HISTORY OF '24

THE proverbial expression "history repeats itself," has proved to be no exception in the case of the Class of 1924. We have trod the same paths that have been beaten by those who have gone before us; we have sat in the same seats and learned from the same professors; we have sung the same songs and yelled the same yells; we have re-acted the same scenes that have been staged on the campus of V. P. I. year in and year out.

Yet with all this apparent sameness, we feel proud of the record that our class leaves behind it, and the differentiation, as we see it, comprises many noteworthy events. We have witnessed the most rapid growth that V. P. I. has ever known. We have noticed the internal changes for the better and the great successes that have come to our institute under the capable and efficient management of Doctor Julian A. Burruss.

Seniors, let us pause before taking our departure from the scenes so dear and familiar to us and look back over the happenings of four momentous years. It seems as if it were only yesterday that we were dumped ungraciously from the drawing-cars of the Huckleberry Limited into the Grand Central Terminal of Blacksburg; and that green, arrogant and fresh, we passed through the Alumni Gateway and were eventually presented to a new commandant who we thought had such an aspect of severity and authority as we had never seen before. Well do we remember the shock we received when we stood in the doorway of our future abode and viewed the artless and cheerless condition of our surroundings. Our debut into Techland was made on the first Saturday afternoon of our sojourn here. Never before had such a diversity of fashions been presented to the populace of Blacksburg. There were tall rats, and short rats, slim rats and fat rats, gauky rats and gaudy rats, some wise and some otherwise, and all one hundred per cent. green. To repeat, we were an aggregation of green, arrogant and fresh rats. Some weeks later we were still green, but our freshness had somewhat dwindled and our pride had received many a severe jolt.

So it was; we were living a never-to-be-forgotten nine months. For nine long months did we shrink from the dreaded cry of "RAT!" And for nine long months did we receive and abide by the ten commandments as set forth for the Freshmen at V. P. I. However, we were contented and were proud to wear the blue and gray that is respected and loved by the great Southland.

The climax of the social life of our Freshmen class came on the last Saturday in May. While the fair dames of a famous college in Lynchburg were gaily dancing around the gay may-pole, the same scene was being enacted by the members of our class at V. P. I., gracefully draped with sheets of domestic cotton and tissue paper.

In the following fall we became Sophomores and automatically the chief advisors of the newcomers into Tech, who seemed mere pygmies to us who had just risen to such heights in the world of knowledge. Along with these strangers came some who were stranger still; namely, co-eds—and still they come. One notable event during the fall was a pleasant trip to Richmond to participate in the celebration of the coming of Marshall Foch. We did ourselves the honor of taking first place in the military parade, thereby becoming better than "the West Point of the South."

The Junior year came—the turning point in a man's college life, if not the turning point in his whole career, the formative year, the year in which he puts away childish things and begins to think and act as a man. At the beginning of the year we found that the military had undergone a profound metamorphosis. Nothing of any great importance happened during the year except that for two days during the third term the student body and college authorities disagreed to such an extent that a dissolution of the college seemed inevitable. But fortunately, through proper manipulation, things were brought to normal conditions with a new constitution for the corps of cadets resulting. The middle of June found us either at Camp Meade or at Fort Monroe, enjoying (?) the thrills of more military life.

At last we were Seniors! Senior Capes—Senior Privileges! How proud we were of both, and how eager we were to take advantage of them! But the novelty soon wore off and we came back to earth once more to put forth a last effort for that coveted goal—a Bachelor's Degree. Life has been about the same with us as with the Seniors who have gone before us. We are now standing at the threshold of a new world. We have stood together here as college students; may we still stand together through all time and strive to heed every call of our Alma Mater and to show to the world that the Virginia Polytechnic Institute can put forth men who are surpassed by none—men who are of untold service to country, humanity and God. Such is the retrospection of the Senior.

Now we bid farewell. Soon will some of us shake hands for the last time, some to go one way and some another. Wherever our paths may lead us and whatever our tasks may be, we bid Alma Mater and each other godspeed, and may each one lead a useful and happy life, remembering that life is too short to waste, and keeping always in mind the high ideals of every true Techman.

Nineteen Hundred Twenty-four, a last farewell!

"BOOTH"

Whenever you see a great big smile surrounded by several square inches of freckled face and topped off with a thatch of red hair, well that's our own Paul Booth, and you had better be careful in talking with him because he is mighty quick at repartee (altho we don't call it that). "Red" is personable, congenial, witty, entertaining—ask any member of the Blacksburg fair sex—they know. He is quite an electrical shark and can fix any thing from an alarm clock up. Finally, in his relations with others, in his devoted work on the "V" cabinet and as a Bible Class leader, we see in him those characteristics which complete the all around man.

"MELLI."

Well, well, look what the cat dragged in, "M. O." himself! He's from Portsmouth, but he doesn't list that among his honors. When he came to V. P. I. they looked him over and shook their heads in a knowing way, but "M. O." had something either in his head or in his heels and immediately commenced to read his "Rat Bible." He hoped some day to find his name written high on the roster of military immortals; but alas! Poor "Skipper." "Mell" is the Christian leader of the campus, a man among men, and long will he be remembered in these parts for his noble work. No man on the campus has worked harder than "Mell," and the field of foreign service eagerly awaits him.

Industrial Education

"ALPOCA"

From a beautiful little city nestled away in the heart of the lofty mountains of West Virginia there came to Tech a rather aspiring young chap. His aspirations, however, were by no means directed toward military, nor have the authorities been able to demote him from the rank of private. At first, things seemed strange to him; such cruelty as the Nazis imposed upon him was beyond his understanding, yet he "stuck it thru" and gained experience that he later found to be valuable in making him the hardest Nighthawk at V. P. I. After the four years that followed with well-merited opportunities overbalancing his mistakes, we find Bair at the end of his college career. We look back and many memories enter our minds that bring gladness to our hearts that he has been one of us.

*Applied Biology"DUKE"

"Duke" hails from Southern Virginia and entered Tech with many ideas to reduce military to a minimum. He had a "Skipper's" ambition until his Junior year, when exercises were thrown his way and he changed his motto to "Military First." But we are glad to say that he did not have to change his course to achieve his ideal. His outstanding characteristic, which few Tech men have, is that he has not fallen for the "Skipper's line." He came here to master Applied Biology and has succeeded along with his other work. In all, he was an ambitious student, a consistent worker, a loyal friend and capable officer, characteristics that make a true gentleman. We understand that he is going to continue his studies in medicine.

"JACK"

"Jack," like most of us, came to Tech with good resolutions to work hard and make good. But unlike the majority of us, he has kept his resolutions and has made a success of everything that has fallen his lot to do. A strong sense of right and wrong, and a consistency that will not be broken are the qualities that make successful men. "Jack" possesses these in a large measure along with many others. To hear the ladies talk about "Jack" one would think him an Adonis or a sleek. But no, he is only an ordinary every-day man, possessing a great many qualities that cause not only the ladies, but the men to admire him. Why is this? There is but one answer. He is interested in people and ever willing to lend a helping hand.

"HULL MONTANA"

Although "Hop" started at Tech with musical inclinations, ranking corporal of the Band did not satisfy the military instinct which had for a while gone slumbered within him. Consequently the musician lost a good corporal and "C" Company gained an excellent officer. Withal he has a very serious expression and manner, which is not the result, however, of excessive worry over his studies, although Hopkins' marks at times are as good as the best, and it is understood of course that he always makes quality credits on Harrodsburg correspondence. Being a keen discoverer of human nature he makes friends slowly and carefully, but once a friend always a friend, and so we are very glad that "Hop" is a Technician.

"SLEEPY"

"Judge" is not really "Sleepy"; but he has one of those weary-looking faces that hides a brain of the keenest type. He ran usually be heard to say just before an exam, "Boy, I kinda know my berries on this stuff," and when the A's are dished out, Sleepy's name is always in front. No one knows just how to take "Sleepy," for mystery surrounds his personage; however, he has been found true to men on the whole and to women—well to one of them at least. He is one of the very few who take a big part in the social side of college life as well as the academic side. John was also mentioned for All-American football manager.

"SAM"

Samuel von Wildt von Ligon moseyed up to V. P. I. from that fair city of Pamplin, leaving the tender cares of home life, to enter into the evils of college life. "Oh, what darling curly hair"! So cries the "weaker" sex. "See that military bearing"! So cried the military department as they handed him his lieutenantcy without mousings. This is not all either, for he seems to manage a high average on his academic work, which seldom goes hand in hand with the above characteristics. "Sam," we say good luck and know that it will mean something to you, to see being able to rank so high in all phases of college life should have little trouble with life after college.

"PETE"

It is hard to realize that the time is so near when "Pete" will return to his home in Childowie. He came here four years ago intending to stay two, but his personality won such and friends so numerous that we could not let him go. In work and play he has always been sincere to his many friends, and above all, to himself, true. We feel sure that the world will find in "Pete" those traits which go to make up real manhood and qualities that should be desired by all. "GEORGE"

The well-favored young man whose portrait appears herewith is none other than our friend and classmate, George, a good all-around fellow and to know him serves as an impetus to know him better. He is not only popular with men, for his many friends among the members of the fair sex hold him high in their estimation. He has but two weaknesses—sleep and sleep. Would that there were thirty-six hours in a night; and Burkeville! His thoughts are there. Besides being a writer, George is one of the highest types of good fellows, always friendly, and greeting everybody with a good-natured smile. He is one of a large class to graduate in "Aggie" Engineering and we feel that he will meet with nothing but success.

Be informed, kind reader, that the stern countenance on this page is not that of the commandant. You see before you the sedate and calm "Skinner" Blanton, a man whose very presence is an indispensable factor to the contentment of his friends. Congeniality, his most prominent quality, is of the truest type. He tolerates the frivolous with big-heartedness, and invites the rational with understanding. Nothing is too deep to deprive "Skinner" of a big laugh, nor is anything too trivial to afford him food for thought. In no phase of college life has he triumphantly excelled, but nothing has passed under his observation without being a contribute to his advancement. We lose "Skinner" that the world might find him.

"Bass" in his numerous and various offices has found no problem too big for his solving. As chairman of the Executive Committee he is a judicious sage; as a captain he is a man who leads not by compulsion but by an irresistible influence; as president of the corps he is the advisor and helper of his fellow students. His wonderful ability to drop into his niche of society, and then to so act that each member of his group rejoices because of his presence, can be summed up by one word, personality; and it is this quality that has drawn to "Bass" his many friends. And we predict that because of this ability that he shall have the best in "Fate's" realm of future success and happiness.

"Speech may be silver but Silence is Gold." Though an old and well-worn proverb and probably considered a mere relic by our present generation of strong self-assertion, it is obviously true that Wade has found the "lucky medium" that is worth its weight in gold. Things that we hear we doubt, but seeing is believing. In Wade we have found a self-reliant young man of strong will power and possessing an integrity of purpose that we all admire. Nor do these qualities impose upon him that impenetrable dignity that holds off the would-be friend. And thus there is dignity, beneath it we find a sincere and jolly friend with a disposition that we can truthfully call infallible.

He was the genius of the electrical wizards and a right hand man to Claudius, with the ability to wire anything from a grocery store to a railroad. No one kept track of him (?) during the summers of '21 and '22, but the summer of '23 found him at Mesle Desert actively engaged in shoveling sand in preparation to become an officer in Uncle Sam's future army. When it came to getting out of work he had no rival, for wherever there was a working detail he could be found at some shady nook about a quarter of a mile away. "The Staff" was a shuck at the R. O. Judging from numerous messages that are always to be found in the mail, certain members of the fair sex are as much interested in this young man as his classmates are. Aside from an uninterrupted ascent to military halls of fame, "O. S." achieved success in numerous other activities—his honor list is self-evident of this fact. Because of his quiet nature we have not been able to obtain much dope on his relations with the ladies sex. "Dirk" worked in the Bethlehem Steel Plants for awhile, but he decided that the long leaf pines of North Carolina were more attractive, and consequently he turned his steps southward to Raleigh. We know not what line of chemistry this man intends to follow, but we feel sure that he will make a success in whatever line he chooses. Ingleside, a suburb of Norfolk, Virginia, though not on the map at the present time, will be when "Dirk" turns his gasses loose on the world.

Let us introduce the only and original tea-bowl at V. P. I., for if you want a cup of tea all you have to do is to see "Strangler" and a cup of hot steaming beverage is quickly yours. Although not one of the shining stars on the wrestling squad, Bryant brought back an enviable nick-name from the mat. On entering Tech he viewed his intention of finishing in Chemistry, and after four, long years of patient study has accomplished this purpose. Tech will lose a "Skipper," but the world will gain a man.

"PARENTHESIS"

"Gimme a cigarette? How about putting out for the Lyric? No, I can't start studying until the whistle blows," can be heard nearly every night in front of Plank and Hogg's by none other than Lee Walton Finks, Jr. Lee Walton's only objection to military being that it is prohibitive to wear blue neckties, he acquired a Lieutenancy to grace his Senior year. This, however, is not the only phase of college activities in which he has excelled, as a glance at his list of honors will show that his abilities were at least in part recognized while he has been here at Tech. Also, from the manner in which he has done things entrusted to him, we feel very little uncertainty as to his future.

Introducing Lyndon Johnson Whitlock, Jr., of Milton, N. C. Yes, he is a Tar Heel, and under pressure, will admit it. "Whit" came to us in the fall of '20 with ambitions of becoming greater than Siemens. However, at the beginning of his Junior year the electrical world lost its embryo genius and he began to prepare himself for the modest position of President of some large corporation. Sleeping (he holds the local sleeping record of 16 hours and 47 minutes) and dancing are among his accomplishments. Awake, his interpretations of the Terpanbovian ark and his dimples make him one of the reasons that girls leave home. His ability, willingness to work (when necessary) and a pleasing personality assure us that his will be a successful future.

"HAMPTON"

The you may not believe it, this young man from the wilds of Callao, Va., has been named by one, at least, as being the handsomest man at V. P. I. In his Junior year he took a sudden leap into the limelight of military and became a sergeant, but the picturesque life of a "Skipper" proved too strong an attraction and military lost another embryonic general. In addition to being a scribe in all his classes and a student assistant in English, "Hampton" has taken the agency for the Underwood typewriter. But we have often wondered why he chose Underwood when Remington (Va.) has such a potent attraction for him. "Hampton's" cheerful good nature and readiness to help any and every one has won him a host of friends at Tech and will carry him far on the road to success.

Behold, "Baby Bill," the only one of his kind in captivity, who has been confined within the walls of V. P. "The best of goods is often done up in the smallest parcels," says an ancient proverb, and to this we most attribute his success with the fair sex. "The pen is mightier than the sword," is his motto, and to this he sticks. Daily, winged words of eloquence and love flow forth from the gilded point of his pen. He hopes to become a successful engineer and if he does not reach his goal, then "cherchez la femme."

"SAM"

"Loving Sam" hails from Loudon County, Virginia. "Sam" has made wonderful strides in football since coming to us, but no one would have thought he would have made such a star from the way he started his "rat" year. In fact, it is said that all during that year he was never known to leave his room except to go to the library during his leisure hours. "Sam's" real football life started the fall of his Sophomore year. He started his course of study here in Mechanical Engineering, but at the beginning of his Sophomore year changed over to Agriculture to specialize in Agronomy. We still believe that he has missed his calling for it is said that he can buy goods from a Scotchman and sell it to a Jew at a profit.

Those who know "Bob" have found him to be one of the hardest workers in his class. Whenever there is work to be done and a clear-thinking man needed, he can always be relied upon to do his part. His disposition is one that is rarely found; always ready to give a helping hand and a cheerful smile to those around him. "Bob's" interest in activities in college has been very noticeable. His value as a football player made him indispensable to the team during his four years at Tech. Besides being prominent in football, he has made the Senior class a good and capable president during his last year in college. "Bob" is quite interested in the opposite sex, at least men are; consequently, he expects to grow "yearless" when he finishes his education.

The Commandant appointed him a corporal, but after hearing him call "Wate on fourth the!" for nine months, he was left in the ranks during his Junior year. Santa Claus hated to see so many good men left behind; so Lieutenant stripes were given him at Christmas this year. For two years "Lukie" has been one of the mainstays of the Tech Orchestra, and is manager and director this year. Although an Eastern Virginian, it is said that a Southwest Virginian has a hold on him. His high ideals and his appreciation of high honor has brought him success at Tech.

When September, 1920, brought us to Blacksburg, "Artie" didn't look different from the rest of us. It was not long, however, before his high sense of honor, his congenial disposition, and his intent to climb the ladder of fame was evident. Although a little light, he set out in his "Bat" year to make a "VP" in football and after four years of hard work he received that which was due him. The military department got an eye on him with the result that he became the commander of the Second Battalion. He was popular among the weaker sex as well as with his classmates, made an excellent officer, and was as true a friend as a man ever had.

This young man chose Dairy Husbandry as his life's work, his chief ambition being to start a revolution in Mexico; not a military one, for he aspires to no military honors, but one far nobler, namely, that of promoting the dairy industry of his native country. We wonder why he ever selected Dairying, for he admits that he has never milked a cow. He is a favorite among the ladies and is known far and near as can be readily noticed by observing the various postmarks on his numerous letters. Just where his heart is we do not know. His popularity among the ladies is paralleled only by that among his fellow students, for to meet him is to be impressed by his winning personality.

His hard work, coupled with his natural ability, has placed him among the foremost of his class of Mechanical Engineers. "Ed's" career at V. P. I. has been a combination of study, college life and Cosmopolitan. His favorite pastimes are sleep, lyrics, dancing, and writing to Dobb's Ferry; but among these he finds time to study the ethics of coal mining, his chosen profession. Among his other characteristics are his good nature, his attractive personality, and a regular Rudolph Valentino with the women. Military seems to be a lost art in the Sherman family and "Ed" thoroughly agrees with what his great uncle said about war—at least about the military part of it.

The confound "Squak" seems to have its results when the "leaves" are concerned as is evidenced by the comments that "Squeekum" never tires of telling us about. However, we too, especially after the sixth repetition, but our gentle hints are of no avail and he squeeks on and we endure. As a title we suggest M. R. F. REVERDY GHISELIN SASSER
UPPER MARLBORO, MARYLAND

Applied Geology

"REVELLE"

"Revelle" has been noted throughout his stay at Tech for his lack of military ambitions, and he is therefore a first class "Skipper." When there is any fun to be had, Sasser is right there; and if there isn't, he entertains himself with solitaire, at which game he shuffles a wicked deck. He is also a football player of distinction and during the past season was one of the mainstays of the "Suicides." Sasser has yet to fall for feminine wiles, but we predict that when he does he is going to fall hard. Although he has not overburdened himself with studying, he has nevertheless succeeded in "scribing" on Geology, and we may expect to hear of his discovery of some of the largest oil fields of the future.

Coal Mining

"HAGY"

Here's to Jim, the lady-killer, who does not part his hair in the middle nor assume the drag of the cake-eater. To his name that carries the power of attraction of a killer. We speak of his fickleness, yet when the grades are posted, he has nothing to regret. His willingness and congeniality make him a good mixer and we predict for him a great future. His hopes lie in the coal fields of West Virginia where he expects to apply the principles of coal mining that he has successfully learned here, and we expect to hear of him as a leading mining engineer.

Electrical Engineering

"WILLIAMS"

This energetic, blue-eyed lad came to V. P. I. from the state of Georgia. Roy is one of those Tech men who, on a short visit to the Eastern part of the state, discovered that it is better to write to many rather than write a lot just to one. As a room orderly, he sets the standards that might well be published as a model. His selection of pictures that walls his den are known to all that visit him. His outstanding feature (unlike most men) is an inclination to work. He is very much interested in the profession that he has chosen, and perhaps some day we will again hear of him as a noted "juice pusher." We have found him, as we expected, tried and true and above all, a friend worth having. To know Roy is to admit him and to have a true friend always.

"GUS"

"Gus" leads from "Up North" (Pulaski), and after attending the S. A. T. C. at the University of Virginia for one year, he entered Tech. Being militarily inclined he rose rapidly in the ranks, first a corporal, then to a sergeant, and finally to the much coveted grade of "Skipper." And a true "Skipper" could not be found. As a baseball star there have been few at Tech to outshine "Gus." He has experienced many times the shock received when a home run is registered. In fact, he liked the experience these shocks gave him so well that in order to become familiar with other shocks, he pursued the course of Electrical Engineering. He was one of the most broadly and cheerfully characterized at Tech and ever in the minds of all Techians will remain "Gus's" hearty laughter.

"PEACHY"

This young man, better known to us as "Peaches," came to us from Greenbrier Military Academy. At prep school "Peaches" was reported as scribbling in everything that he undertook, even scribbling in military. The military knowledge thus gained was of inestimable value at Tech, for by this knowledge he was able to rid himself of a high ranking corporalship which had been thrust upon him, and this led to his esteemed membership in "The Royal Order of Skip-pers." Having seen an electrical locomotive once, "Peaches" became greatly concerned about the how and why of electrification and determined to find out all about it from Tech's electrical course. Of course we know that we shall hear of him in electric railway some-time, somewhere.

Lewis, better known as "Sphenoid" from his connection with Dr. Hadden's Crystallography, is taking Mining Engineering, and some day we expect him to discover a big gold mine that will make people forget the "Rush of 1848." He seems to be one of the commandant's chosen few, never having failed to get an invitation from the Major to go "Squirrel Hunting" at the end of each month. Lewis is one of the lucky few who have fallen for more than an education since he came to Blacksburg. Indeed, he declares that an education is of minor importance when compared with the other benefits derived since coming to this burg. Therefore, we offer you this picture as representing his most characteristic pose. We feel that if the world gets a chance to know Lewis as we do, his success will be assured.

"WEARY WILLIE"

"Say, 'Weary,' do you understand this problem?" "Well, a little perhaps," and so saying he would lay down his work and enlighten the one in trouble. The above is almost a daily occurrence and is typical of Winstead. He is always ready to help anyone out except the Military Department, and thus we are justified in saying that he is a most excellent student, true friend and a good "Skipper." Aubrey has a weakness that is known to us all—"hay arguing." The only thing that keeps him out of that land of dreams is an argument, and then he will often pile up on his "hay" to argue. Aubrey has his heart set on South America and from all indications he will get there and meet success with it.

Behold, who is this new military authority in our midst? It is none other than Captain Ninde of "E" Company. "Sam," as he is known to his classmates, takes great pride in his company and is always working to perfect it. But this is only one of his interests. In his chosen profession, Chemical Engineering, Sam is quite adept. Of course, in writing about Sam one must bring up the subject of the eternal feminine. T. S. D. insists that he is going to be a bachelor; nevertheless, he is seen quite often writing to the opposite sex. As a center on "A" Company's basketball team for three years Sam has added one more laurel to his crown. Taking him all in all, Sam is quite a fine, likeable "old chappy."

Never since Adam decided to take a breathing spell has mortal man been adorned with such curly locks as ornament our hero's brow. The English Department and the dictionary were short-circuited his "Bar" year, but the insulation lasted until English was buried, and the chief mourner was none other than Aubrey himself. Now he consoles himself with Noah Webster's masterpiece. For four years "A. J." has proved an indispensable asset to the minstrels. This year he reached the apex of his career, winning the sobriquet of "Dream Boy." "Frank Miles Williams, from Chase City." Thus Frank came to V. P. I. to study Electrical Engineering. However, he received such a severe shock after his Sophomore year that he decided to discard his Elements of Electricity and began to collect a library on "How to Chase the Sale." He has become quite proficient in this in spite of his frequent committee meetings, military obligations and trips to "Columbo." His striking personality has made him something of a social lion, eating his "plenty dilly" with the members of the fair sex who attend our dances. If Frank's unusual ability to do things backed by a willingness to work stay with him, he has a most enviable future before him.

"Nuts" has always done well in whatever he attempted here at Tech, and he has worked in his classes despite a great deal of sickness during his four-year sojourn among us. Our chief editor has been prominent in military and social life at V. P. L., holding many dills in both the commandant's office and the social organizations of the corps. Emmett, as he is known to all of us, hails from no other place than "The Garden Spot." He never seems to lose any sleep over the fair sex, but we are inclined to think that he has been keeping something from us. Emmett never had any serious military ambitions, but having a corporalship and sergeantscy thrust upon him, he did the job well. Having disposed of these afflictions, he entered with us this year a full-fledged "Skipper," but the commandant realizing that he was too good a "Skipper" demoted him at Christmas to a lieutenant. Owens is one of the few men in our class who make good grades without "busing," and fortunate will be the company that lands this budding engineer.

"Don" came to us from Bristol and almost immediately jumped into the spotlight as one of the greatest all-around athletes that Tech has yet produced. His record in football, basketball and baseball is most enviable. In 1924 he led the whole country in drop-kicking; he has twice captained the baseball squad and has played a strutting forward on the basketball quint for two seasons. That he has other abilities has manifested itself in his academic work, his capacity to form strong friendships, and by the fact that he piloted the "Skippers" through a "nasty" night at sea. It is with reluctance that we see "Don" enter professional life because in his leaving we lose a loyal friend who will forever have a place in our hearts.

A true "Skipper" is Ray, both from a military standpoint and from the manner in which he skillfully pilots his canoe over the waters of his native river. His mastery of this and the other aquatic arts is only exceeded by his ability as a football player. Consistently opposed by men much heavier than himself, he has played his position in a manner that has been a credit to himself and his school. In his four years at V. P. I. At the end of "Jakie's" second year of college, he sacrificed his military career and joined the "mighty tightys" where his greatest ambition was to rival Gaius. "Jakie's" favorite sport, however, is wrestling, in which he excelled for two years, and was awarded the coveted VP at the end of his Senior year and elected to the position of Captain for the season of 1924-'25. "Say there, boy, why do they call you 'Satchel'?" We wonder. "Satchel" is a happy-go-lucky fellow with plenty of life and buoyancy. Many are the ladies of his acquaintance, and those for some eighteen are supposed to have fallen for his line. Even though several fair dames awaited him, we have heard that the reason "Suitcase" did not attend the Virginia game was because baggage could not be checked on excursion tickets. The summer of '23 found him in training for Uncle Sam's arms at Camp Meade. However, "Slump" soon succumbed to the military atmosphere of camp, and as chief "griper" his name will live forever in the minds of his associates there. During his stay of six weeks the name of Ryder appeared regularly with the rest on the punishment list with excavation work his specialty.

John's pleasing personality and open heart have won him a place in all our hearts. As a true friend he cannot be excelled; as a hard worker and good student he is hard to beat. Of course, it must not be omitted that he is a pronounced success with Earth's fairest creatures, and we hope that little Dan will soon have his works completed. After graduation "P. C." expects to put aside his pen for calipers and compass, to lay away his Senior cap and don overalls and begin his upward climb to success as a Mechanical Engineer. "Shep" is studying the art of "grease-wiping" and he is aiming to invent some new process that would eliminate the grease and the wiping from the profession. During summer months he has applied his theory to actual railroad work and from all reports he has been doing well. Some day we hope that he will take charge of the "Huckleberry Limited" ("limited" meaning 18 miles per hour and a-half), and modernize the speed of the "missing link" between Blacksburg and the outside world. "Shep" is never idle. When you cannot find him in his room working some math problems or writing letters to "bet," you may be sure that he is at a meeting of the local Masonic Lodge. Best of all, he is a good pal and can always be depended on.

FRANK MERIWETHER SOMERVILLE

"FRANK"

Here is Frank who hails from Stanton, but we do not hold this against him. We wonder if his oratorical talents are typical of his birthplace. Such guesses? Perhaps he will be an orator or a stump-speaker some day. Although our efforts to learn his relations with the fair sex have been in vain, we notice that he seems to be open to attack when Kentucky is mentioned. Frank wears a V. P. which he well earned on the baseball diamond as pitcher. This, however, is only one of his virtues and space makes it impossible to enumerate them. And now, as we reach the crossroads of life where we must each choose the long, long trail that winds into the land of our dreams, there is a heart-felt farewell in our voices as we say to him, "Goodbye."

"SIMP"

And this is "Simp," the boy who hails from "Ole Kentucky," the land of "beautiful women" and "fast horses." We do not know his ideas concerning the "fast horses," but those concerning the "beautiful women" are obvious to all who know him well. At the beginning of his senior year his affections were balanced between two; but now, the balance seems to be pointing towards Hellen. However, Simpson is one who has never turned his back, but has marched bravely forward. He has gone through his four years at Tech with all the straightforward courage that is implied with a Scotch humor and a fine spirit that has made its influence felt on all that he has done and on all with whom he has come in contact.

"ILLY"

"Judas Priest! How do they expect a fellow to get in a formation on time when they haven't got balls in the barracks?" This was the subject of Willie's first clash with the C. O., but the result of this and subsequent engagements, caused him to change his original intention of majoring in military. He tries to convince us of his indifference toward the "betmes," but from what we have heard from various outside sources we are inclined to doubt him and think that he believes in the maxim, "there is safety in numbers." Willie took a great step forward when he enrolled in E. E. at V. P. I. and he will without a doubt make a success in the sales end of the electrical industry.

"G'wan, lemme alone, I'm 'wakin'." Anyone that ever tried to induce "Jack" to quit the "Southers" has heard this. Nothing short of a 115 would stir "Jack's" shoulders, as the glass chink, hanging by his feet, has absolutely no effect. In addition to this, "Jack" is a literary critic of note and can tell anyone the best magazine of the day. "Jack" is one of the best natural fellows we have ever had the pleasure of knowing and he will go to any extreme to help a friend. Needless to say, he has a host of them. Up to Christmas this year, worry was the farthest thing from this boy's mind; but since then, something besides A. I. seems to occupy his thoughts. We haven't found out his secret yet, but we leave our opinions.

Rev. J.—"Conspicuous, the rest of the class keep quiet and listen to Mr. Stull." Stull—"Well—er, no, I did not get a chance to study this lesson last night." We wonder why? It would take a specialist to find the reason. Meade came to us from the Metropolitan of Buchanan. His military bearing gained at Fiddlers Military Academy marked him as a man of ability. During his stay at Tech he has tried football; but on account of injuries received in prep school he was unsuccessful. Not to be deprived of a monogram, he went out for manager track and made it. We are sure that he would have made the Phi Kappa Phi had he studied instead of "racking" one night and writing to North Carolina the next. Perhaps he may yet be superintendent of Mountain Mines and settle down in Blacksburg.

"Bill," the boy who hails from North Carolina and is proud of it, has come to be a well known figure on the V. P. I. campus. We attribute "Bill's" popularity to his ready wit, genial humor, originality, and faithfulness as a friend. His career has been complete at V. P. I. Aside from his host of friends, "Bill" as captain and manager of the wrestling team, will show us some good work on the mat. He is one of the few who, for four years went down on Mile's Field and helped whip the big team into shape, taking his knucks as they came and coming up with a smile. "Bill" is also a good talker and has held the corps at delightful suspense on many a timely subject. At one time he stayed to have the corps relinquish its hold on Blacksburg and move to North Carolina for the winter.

"IKE"

"Hey, 'Ike,' c'mon over," is the most familiar sound in the vicinity of Fourth Division. "Ike" is one of those men who seems to be forever radiating amiability and good cheer; hence, he is always in demand when good fellows get together. Military holds no terror for "Ike." Having mastered the science of squads right and the rifle in two short years, he transferred to the "Band" where he attacked the seven harmonies with such results that he now makes the saxophones do everything but yodel. "Ike's" chosen field is Mechanical Engineering, and we look forward to the day that we crawl under the steering wheel of a KRAEMER, the best word in automotive design.

Here we have Hyatt Johnson, but known to all on the campus as "Box Car." Why he should be called by this unusual name is a mystery to most all of us. "Box Car" is an all around man in every sense of the word. Chess, tennis, golf, and the intricacies of Bridge hold no terrors for him. Football and wrestling are also among his accomplishments. With the saxophone he is right at home, being almost able to play anything that is written and some that is not. "Box Car" is bound to make good when he gets out of college. He has already proved that he can get along without the support of others and that he is in every way qualified for any position that he may take.

Introducing "Red," dean of the I. E.'s. He says that I. In one sense of the word he is the brightest one of the Seniors taking this course, and this is in the color sense, his hair being the medium. While not generally recognized as a scribe, he seems to have very little difficulty in making good grades on all his subjects and it is no uncommon occurrence on the night before a test to find several of his classmates in his room seeking information on any of the very interesting subjects to which the I. Yes, there are thousands upon thousands of Smiths, but there is only one Wade Brackett "Bodo" Smith in all the world. Furthermore, he is a full-fledged, unadorned, yard wide and high-toned "Skipper," which fact places him above the ordinary realm of mere men. Wade lays no claims to athletic honors, nor to high military achievements, but he has served his time faithfully as a cadet private of the first water. His cherry smile and ready wit have helped him while away many a weary hour. From the standpoint of scientific analysis, we would say that Wade has many capabilities and great possibilities.

"Wop," the athlete, has placed his name and record in the archives of the Hall of Fame, which is located in the heart of every Tech man. Undoubtedly Harry is one of the best all around athletes that V. P. I. has turned out in the past few years. Happily born under Scorpio of the Zodiac, "Al" has the wonderful faculty of never worrying about the morrow, and yet, for him, that elusive day is always taken care of. He has the happy proclivity of being able, with the least amount of exertion, to get his work done without the usual rush. This lad from the sunny banks of the James is not without the frenzied phase of life even though he may at most times seem dignified. Even in his High School days he was properly labeled "Jazz Baby" and never since has he allowed the fair Goddess Terpsichore to forsake him whenever a chance to sling a wicked shoe-sole has presented itself. Take good care of that transit, "Al," we are all confident that the Civil Engineering World will hear from you.

After completing two years at Tech, Julian spent a year in the State of Washington. The following year he returned to V.P.I. to become a member of our class, and has risen to many responsible positions in the student body. As business manager of the 1924 "Bugle," he has demonstrated his ability as a business man. We are indebted to him for the best "Bugle" ever given, and also for those given in 43 First Division. Under his efficient management, the Virginia Tech Minstrels enjoyed the most successful season in their history. Julian is a rare combination of good humor and hard work; a man to be liked for his personality and admired for his ability. To say that his attraction for the fair sex had caused many a broken heart would be putting it mildly, for he is a woman-hater, "anyhow."

And now we shall introduce "Ernie" Brown, the Commercial wizard. Not only is he a Commercial shark, but he is a cheer leader of no mean ability. Although his school life has been filled with various activities, military, minstrels, athletics, etc., he has always found time to keep up in his classes with high standing, and has shown much interest in the social life on the campus. "Ernie" showed during his Sophomore and Junior years that he could be a military man if necessary, and then he responded to the call of the "S. P." and has proved a worthy member. When "Ernie" goes out to take his place in the world, whether it be in Roanoke or in Baltimore, we feel sure that he will succeed and meet with approval.

"Pat" hails from Richmond, coming to V. P. I. with a reputation as a basketball player, which he has upheld, being a star forward for four years and an equally capable baseball player. He has many friends at Tech and his popularity as a clean athlete and good fellow is shown by the fact that he was captain of the 1924 basketball team and president of the Athletic Association. As our space is limited we cannot go into details about his affairs with the fair sex, but must say that he has the reputation of being a "lady killer." "Pat" chose Commercial Engineering as his profession, and if he plays that game as he did those at Tech, nothing but success lies ahead.

"Well, how about a Chesterfield? What's this for?" "What you got in that box?" And the man is no less than "Dick." Glenn was undecided as to which department to enter, but having a natural love for horses he chose Animal Husbandry. That he has made a success of his course is shown from a letter he received from Mr. Barnum offering him a position as chief tamer of elephants, lions, tigers, and mules which have made his circus famous. Glenn's hard work, earnest efforts and unusual ability have won for him the highest goal in "Aggriology," the King of the "Hoof and Horners." Next, "Dick" turned to baseball, and with a magnificent expenditure of energy and chewing tobacco, we find that he has again succeeded and was chosen manager of the 1924 team.

An excellent student and a consistent worker, he is one of the leading men in the Electrical Engineering class, and we know that some day he will astound the electrical world with some of his remarkable discoveries. "HENSHAW"

They call him Marshall at home, but we dubbed him "Steinmetz" almost before we knew his real name. No job was too hard or too disagreeable for him, provided that when he finished he might view his accomplishment; but since "Steinmetz" could not see the conclusions of his brain, he detested study because it had no visible result. Problems were more to his liking, and laboratory experiments, under his hand, were transformed from careless repetitions of the previous findings of others to real research into the secrets that lay hidden in the ancient machinery. Girls! Through the long years there has been only one, though as the bass of the college quartette he must have had chances too many to mention. The regular Sunday morning "specials" were postmarked Schemectady, and in later years that is where he will be found.

"T. Wrassler" has the unusual distinction of being the only "Skipper" who has not missed a breakfast this year. From the started appearance of the rats who sit next to him at mess it would seem that he makes the best of his opportunity. As his name indicates, this Farnvillian can consume everything from A. C. problems to the hearts of the few girls he allows to meet him. We certainly felt sorry for the fair members of F. S. N. S. when the "Wrassler" was shipped to us four years ago. One of the greatest events in Tom's life while at V. P. I. was his promotion from the rank of Sergeant to that of an honorable "Skipper."

When Harry beered into V. P. I., Christiansburg came into its own. We are told that that they laid off—but oh—it that would never do and besides you might wake him as it's only ten o'clock in the morning. Harry is one of those happy, light-hearted fellows, always smiling. As a chemist he is right there with the best of them, and he does mighty well as a rock-breaker; altho his only practice has been in search of fossils as Harry is somewhat of a geology scribe. Being the high monkey-monk of the supreme order of Prevaricators, he has often entertained us with fabulous tales of his past, present, and future, and we suspect that with his highly imaginative powers he will be able to write stories that will rival those of Tarzan.

Milton came to us fresh from Rensselaer Tech in 1921, and at once secured advanced academic standing as a Sophomore-Rat, and entitled to all rat privileges as such. For the past two years Friedman's Unparalleled One-Piece Orchestra was a permanent attraction at the Lyric. He could sway whole audiences to laughter and tears. Wagner is said to have done such on separate occasions, but we claim that Milton is the only man to do both simultaneously. Milton also qualified as expert salesman, hundreds of the corps falling for his gold-plated line concerning raincoats and laundry bags. We do not know at present whether he expects to undertake the technical file; at any rate his technical training will be valuable in finding the center of gravity of the three gift balls.

He cares little for the honors and glories of college life, and thus we account for his quiet, unassuming manner. "Percy" has diligently struggled with and conquered all the mysteries of the Chemical world—at V. P. I., any way. Avogadro and Berzelius would turn over in their very little graves could they but know how "Percy" has tossed their pet theories and hypotheses to smithereens and tossed them to the four winds in order to make way for his great theories and laws that will in the near future "astound" the immediate generations, causing the name of Rogers to go echoing and re-echoing down the Halls of Chemical Fame.

Lester is the type of a man that gives his biographer much trouble, since it is impossible to do him justice in the allotted space. He received his early training at Woodberry Forest and with great difficulty broke the ties of Calverton, Orange and the surrounding territory and came to us in the pursuit of a knowledge of Agriculture. As to Lester's academic work, no words are needed; his record speaks for itself. Lester has a winning way with the ladies which is evident from his picture. The letters from his numerous girls that keep the post office from going out of business. Girls, beware if you should chance to meet this youth. Lester is ambitious, intellectual, industrious, and has many other qualities which are essential to success. Above all, he is a true friend.

"GOD'S GIFT"

After two years of Tech life during S. A. T. C., "Joe" decided to try his luck at William and Mary; but he could not resist the love of his Alma Mater; so in the fall of 1922 he again decided to cast his lot in Techland. "Joe" has won a host of friends among the many acquaintances which he has made at Tech. When the call of the practical side of the electrical work proved too great an attraction for him, Tech's lost a valued member of the Senior Class. It was with much regret that "Joe" decided to leave us, but we feel assured that he will meet success in his life work just the same.

Early in his life "Baby" probably overheard some one say, "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings come forth words of wisdom." At any rate he has been living up to the adage ever since we have known him. Really such eyes and hair are rarely found in combination with such good sense. In speaking of his other winning qualities we can only say that they total a goodly sum and leave us confident that in all things which he undertakes "Baby" will be successful. "Baby" matriculated in Civil and has gone happily thru his four years writing on all sides. In addition to all of his work, he has found time to display a game of basketball which has placed him on the squad.

"LOVE"

Behold! The reader of the "Evening News." Harry entered V. P. I. with the class of '24, with a strong determination to be a Senior Private. After a lengthy conversation with the commandant as to how a company should be run the Major deemed it necessary to make Harry Regimental Adjutant. Love is one of those all-around good fellows. His good naturedness and willingness to do for others are chief among his many admirable characteristics. One never feels without a friend as long as Harry is around. He is undecided whether to follow agricultural education or join the army. We are sure that he will make a success in either. With his many likes, we fear some day he will pull the wrong line on the right girl, and be taken up in a state of unpreparedness.

It is hard to tell what to write about this product of the "Hill City." He is one of the quiet men of the class, but one who is known and admired by every man in the corps. Allen's personality has won for him a host of friends who will always remember him as an irreproachable character, and above all, a man. His mind inclines too much to the practical to make him a star in his classes, but this should be considered an advantage rather than otherwise. If we do not know him as well as we might, it is because he has never courted popularity, choosing rather to have such friends who do not consider this an essential to true friendship.

Although we hate to see him leave us before June, we know that he did what was best. Anyway, if "Ward" puts forth in the affairs of the world as he did while at V. P. Who is that military-looking bird strutting around with that bunch of coons? O-uch! That's Lieutenant Mackey. Oh, daddy, he's a shak (shrick). Mackey, like the proverbial sailor, has a home in every port. His own statement is, "I don't lose any of them, but I am nice to them all." Next to military, the fair sex claims place in this young man's heart. Nevertheless, Mackey takes the world as he finds it with the sunny smile that is typical of his whole nature, and this has won the hearts of those with whom he has come in contact. His achievements here have been earned by his push and not by his pull. Now as he matriculates in the School of Life we feel sure that his record here will prove but an introduction to his Book of Life.

"BLONDIE"

In the fall of 1920, there entered at this institution a seemingly unsophisticated lad who claimed East Radford as his "headquarters." Since this metropolis is located in the midst of a prosperous farming section of the state, and since this lad nurtured his desire to undertake the arduous study of agriculture, the truth of his claim was not doubted. The climax of Randolph's college life was brightened when it became known that during his senior year he had acquired the honor of being the son of a state senator, and we are proud to confide this bit of information to our outside friends. During the four years of his residence in Techland, we have observed that "Tucker" has some strange power over the women. We wonder if this results from his winning personality or his blond hair.

Although from Fredericksburg, John has made a good academic and military record while here, and we expect some day to hear that he has been promoted to rear chairman in a real treaty, for he graduates in Civil Engineering. "Peck's" ability to keep his opponent between him and the mat has won him great fame at Tech, as well as given him that great privilege of becoming a Monogram Club member. That gold band and those stripes, along with that sense cape, have caused many a fair damsel to turn her affections to Lieutenant Givens. After familiarizing himself with London and "Gay Paris," he returned to America and continued his cosmopolitan career in the western states. Starnes is one of those fellows firm and solid in his convictions, and you say "no" to that which he believes to be morally wrong. With the women he's a lady killer, and has assumed the name of being the ablest "rucker" that roams in town. His motto is, "Take the Millaps first, then take 'em as they come." JOHN W. NUTTYCOMBE

Editor-in-Chief

The production of a college annual is a stupendous task. The responsibility for the creation of such a book necessarily falls on one man. That man is the editor.

What requisites must the successful editor have? The ability to plan—to see the book before it has been put on paper; that inherent knowledge of human nature which will enable him to get the best and most from his assistants; keen observation, and good judgment, that he may profit by the mistakes of his predecessors; and lastly the desire to get things done.

With this we present him whom we have dubbed "Nutts"—Our Editor-in-Chief.

J. JULIAN BAKER

Business Manager

Julian is the man who plays banker to THE BUZZ. It was he who through perseverance, unlimited energy, ceaseless labor, and an unruffled good humor attached to a salesman's psychology, has stood us all on our heads and shaken "mazuma" from our hidden pockets. And more than that he continued doing it over the period of a year. Any one capable of wresting money from the general public, and then leaving it with the feeling that it has received a favor, deserves a place in the Hall of Financial Wizards. And we give it to him now—but may we never have to compete with such as Julian on the outside. He is a REAL business manager with REAL ability.

OUR TOIL IS O'ER

From the first day of October to the sunny month of June, every night our typists rattle on their never-ceasing tune. When the regiment is sleeping and taps has long since blown, when the O. D. has ceased his vigil and to his slumber flown. When the barracks are in darkness, silent, sombre, in the night—still forth from the windows of our rooms come shafts of yellow light. When our brains are tired from study and our frames are tired from toil, we remember then what must be done, and burn the midnight oil. We don't get a training table and we never get a cheer and we wear no orange letter, though our season lasts a year.

On our staff, you'll find no loafers but only the best of men; they pass up the chance for Phi Kappa's and never get a yen. When exams are coming daily and you must study hard or flunk, we must get out the blooming Tech and study, too, before we seek a bunk. Can we let the Tech work slide awhile—lay off a week or two? No! It takes fifteen thousand words to fill a Tech for you. We get them by exertion, by working night and day; we get them by continual brain-work, that turns our temples gray.

Our aim is just to please you and to boost the teams a bit, and to put across a brain throb that will maybe make a bit. If we do this we've succeeded; if we haven't we should fret—there's naught to lose by failure, for we've gotten nothing yet.

MAJOR FORREST E. WILLIFORD
Commandant of Cadets

After four years of service at this Institution, Major Forrest E. Williford, Commandant of Cadets, leaves, as he came, with the Class of 1924. During his stay here Major Williford has worked untiringly for the betterment of his Department and has been instrumental in bringing about many changes which have proved beneficial to both the College and to the Corps.

As Major Williford goes to take up his new assignment he leaves behind him many friends who appreciate his valuable services and will keenly feel their loss.

The Graduating Class and the Corps take this occasion to extend to Major Williford and his family their best wishes for success and happiness at the new post.

RÉSUMÉ OF 1923 FOOTBALL SEASON

THE spirit of autumn had hardly gained sway when Coach Cullage sent his call to the various parts of the country for all football candidates to report on the tenth of September for their seasonal grind. As an answer, thirty-five huskies of last year's Varsity and Freshman team responded to the inevitable lure of the gridiron. These warriors realized that a grim hard season loomed up before them, that some of the mightiest of last year's team were missing. It was for those who had returned to uphold the wonderful record of the previous year. To fill in such gaps as was left by the absence of Wallace, Tibson, Hardwick, Gettle, Wilson, and Moore would require their last ounce of sweat and energy.

With the opening of the school year, football enthusiasm was rampant. Many questions were put forth that would be answered only as the team proved their worth. Would "Wop" Sutton continue to huffe all tacklers as he had done in the past, with his fast, quick, short side-stepping? Could it be that Flory still possessed that lightning-like speed that he exhibited in that hard-fought game with Center College the year before? Was that right foot of Rutherford's still able to boot the ball between the bars from the forty-yard line? Was Sam Graham able to massacre the opposing line as he did in Roanoke the previous year on Thanksgiving Day? Runt Baker, was he back scrapping to hold his old place in the center of the line? All of which goes to show that the football field was not the only place that football held sway.

HARDEN-SYBRY GAME

Coach Coblage, ably assisted by Wallace of last year fame, went to work with a determination and will. They realized only too well the huge responsibility that confronted them. A quarterback had to be developed, two new wingmen had to be trained, our regular fullback was missing and several holes were evident in the line. These grave problems were soon ably solved and after the first game had been played we realized that before the season would close we could rightly be proud of our football colors.

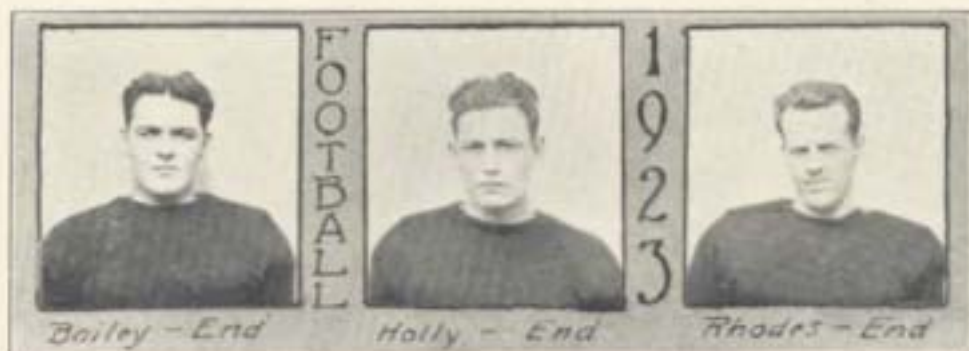

THE GAMES

Hampden-Sydney, 0; Tech, 29

The proud "Tigers" from Hampden-Sydney College invaded Miles Field one sunny week-end late in September and were humbled by the Tech "Gobblers" by a one-sided score. Although the score was one-sided the game did not drag in the slightest for the vanquished dug their heels in the sod and would not relinquish an inch of ground that was not fought for. Tech was unable to gain much through her opponent's line but her backs had little trouble circling the ends for long, sweeping end-runs. Don Rutherford lost no time indicating the fact that his toe was to prove a worthy factor in the scoring of the year and it was he that scored the first tally of the season for Tech by that method from the thirty-yard line. Outside of this event there was but little individual starrng. The whole team looked promising to the Corps while the Coaches, praising their work one minute, understood that there were still a great many rough edges to be worn off before they could risk another game.

DAVIDSON GAME

Davidson, 0; Tech, 7

Determined to avenge herself for the tie of the previous year, the "Goldblers" went against the "Wildcats" of Davidson College. But this team was coached by "Mook" Younger and "Tex" Tilson, two of Tech's mightiest warriors of past days, and was not in a condition to be taken off of their feet. Our team was pushed to their utmost to win and keep that fighting bunch of "Wildcats" from duplicating their feat of the previous year. Our only score came when Jack Moss, one of the products of the last year Freshman Team, snagged a pass, and ran for a touchdown. The Carolinians had the ball on their eighty-yard line when they attempted a pass. Tech's linsky fullback was running hard to break it up but seeing his chance he grabbed it from the air and continued his journey to the goal posts behind perfect interference.

Third Corps Area, 21; Tech, 17

Even though the "Goldblers" emerged from this game on the small end of the score, V. P. I. will always have reason to be proud of the straight, clean fight that her warriors made on the gridiron in Baltimore when she met the team of the Third Corps Area and was defeated. In the opening period both teams were forced to resort to a kicking game in which the honors were about divided evenly. The scoring was started in the second period when three successive runs by Hahn accounted for a first down.

W. AND L. GAME

This was followed by two successfully executed forward passes which netted the first touchdown for the Army. Tech, then began to show her real fighting spirit and by means of several beautiful runs, coupled with a pass to Holly, scored her first touchdown in the third quarter. The soldiers seemed to catch the spirit and rushed over two touchdowns, by means of passes, before the Gobblers were able to stem the tide. Tech then staged a comeback and came very close to defeating her opponent. Rutherford intercepted a pass and made a sweeping run of over fifty yards for a touchdown. Don then brought his toe into play and kicked a field goal from the thirty-eight-yard line, making the score twenty-one to seventeen. This was by no means the end of the Gobbler offensive for by means of several runs and passes the Techmen soon placed the ball on her opponent's two-yard line with three downs in which to score, when the final whistle blew.

It was in this game that Greene made his debut as a mighty linesman, by consistently ripping through his opponent's line to ruin more than one of their plays. The entire line placed a stonewall defense and forced the Army to resort almost entirely to aerial tactics, Don Rutherford with his consistent kicking, and Buchanan with his powerful plunges showed up especially bright in the backfield.

Maryland University, 7; Tech, 16

Maryland University, the conquerors of the University of Pennsylvania, fell before the onslaught of the Tech warriors. By this victory the Gobblers won their first real victory in the South Atlantic Contest.

CLEMSON GAME

It was in this game that Rutherford's toe was supreme, three drop kicks out of three attempts he neatly placed between the bars and each kick was from beyond the thirty-yard line. The game started with an exchange of punts. Then Rutherford sprang a surprise into the Marylanders by a neat drop kick from the forty-yard line. About five minutes later he duplicated this feat. This was not all for after a few more minutes of play Don had again added three more points by means on his wonderful toe. Our opponents made their only tally in the third quarter by means of two well executed forward passes. Our touchdown came in the latter part of the game, when a pretty piece of strategy worked wonderfully. Don was called back for a drop kick, but the State warriors were determined to break it up, consequently instead of kicking Don shot a well executed pass behind the goal line into the waiting arms of Rhodes, making the final score sixteen to seven.

Washington and Lee University, 12; Tech, 0

Jubilantly we journeyed to the Hill City but there our hopes were drowned under a 12 to 0 score, meeting with the worst defeat that we had received at the hands of the Generals for several years. All the dope was turned topsy turvy as we were slated to win by a margin of two or more touchdowns. What was responsible no one knows, but we do know that the Generals presented one of the cleanest and hardest-fighting machines that we had been against for a long time and that our warriors fought every second of the game. The Gobblers seemed to be miserably out of tune during the whole game.

VIRGINIA GAME

It seemed impossible to hold the ball and even when it was retained we were able to make no decided advantages of the opportunity. In the first three minutes of play a Gobbler fumbled and the Minks turned it into a touchdown by means of a pass. Before the quarter had ended Tech had again fumbled and the result was the same. After the first quarter both teams fought with desperation and neither side was able to gain any decided advantage. As a result the ball see-sawed up and down the field the rest of the game. Bob Baker was our only redeeming feature, for the way he towered over the line, mixing into every play, was a wonderful exhibition of fighting spirit.

Clemson, 6; Tech, 25

To appease our wrath for the defeat at the hands of W. and L. we defeated the Clemson aggregation from South Carolina to the tune of twenty-five to six. This game proved to be the most spectacular home game of the season and was far more interesting than the score seemed to indicate. Flory was the shining light for the Gobblers, the California Flash exhibiting the best form that he had shown during his three years on the team. In this game he advanced the ball for a total of two hundred and eighty-two yards.

FOOTBALL TEAM

North Carolina State, 0; Tech, 16

The Gobblers journeyed to Norfolk to meet their Tar Heel friends from North Carolina, our rivals of old. The whole team continued in its reversal of form and carried away the score of sixteen to nothing. Both teams played a scrappy game and often a Gobbler or a Wolf would bring the spectators to their feet with a pretty pass, a neat tackle, or a flashy end run. There was no special feat however that was directly responsible for any of the scoring, as all of the points were the results of advancing the ball yard by yard until finally the much-coveted goal line was reached. No scoring took place in the first half and neither team seemed especially aggressive in that stage of the game but when the second half opened the Gobblers had a rejuvenated team on the field. Never for once from the time of the kick-off to the end of the game did the Tech eleven weaken. Don Rutherford's toe was again called upon and he accounted for the first score of the game with a well-executed drop kick. Moss and Sutton scored the two touchdowns that accounted for the rest of the scoring.

RUTHERFORD

Virginia, 3; Tech, 6

Gridiron relations were renewed with the Cavaliers after an elapse of eighteen years. Tech won the contest by the close score of six to three. It was a mighty, terrific struggle from start to finish with the Gobblers holding a slight margin over her opponents. The University warriors were attempting to avenge the defeat of years ago at the hands of the Techmen, but the Gobblers were just as anxious to maintain their long held supremacy. Tech got off for a bad start due to fumbles, one of which Arnold utilized when he managed to topple a drop kick over the bars for Virginia's only counter. The Gobblers' touchdown came in the last quarter when with the ball on the twenty-five-yard line Captain Wop Sutton circled the end for a pretty run of fifteen yards. This was followed by two line plunges which placed the ball on the one-yard line. Sutton rushed the ball over on the next play and we had won.

GRAHAM

THE THANKSGIVING GAME

V. M. I., 6; V. P. I., 0

Thanksgiving will ever be a sacred word to all Techmen. So on the day before that magic day the Corps gathered in assembly to hearten the warriors that were to bear Tech's colors in Roanoke. Every senior member of the team was called upon to say something, and while those speeches were nothing in the way of orations, yet they had a meaning to both the spokesmen and the audience, that could come only from words that were plain-spoken as those few words were. The Corps swung aboard the Huckleberry the next morning and the usual crowded trip to the Magic City was made. Then it rained as we made our march to the Fair Grounds where we swung into a parade in honor of the Governor. As soon as we had gained our seats there came a mighty yell from down the field. Captain Sutton and his mighty Gobblers were on the field.

Teach Triumph was played and the game was on. We received and Flory was the first man to tuck the ball under his arm. He jumped high into the air, grabbed the ball and twisted his way up the field for fifteen yards before he was downed. Then after both sides had exchanged punts, it seemed as if neither eleven was able to penetrate their opponent's line. But this idea was ruined by Flory when he whirled his way fifteen yards, making the first down of the game. The bleachers went wild at this spurt of speed, but it was short-lived for the rain then began to pour in torrents, and forced both teams to resort almost entirely to a punting game, each waiting for a break.

Our opponents were considerably heartened at the beginning of the third period by the appearance of White in their line-up. With their mainstay back in the game, our opponents started an offensive that resulted in the only touchdown of the game. After Moran had blocked, and recovered a place-kick, we were forced to kick. Ryder caught the punt and made a long brilliant run of twenty-five yards. This paved the way for the touchdown. White shot one of his arrow-like passes to Ryder, netting twenty more yards. The Gobblers then held, forcing White to try a place-kick. Although it was unsuccessful, nevertheless V. M. I. profited, as one of her players fell on the ball, giving them a first down. The Gobblers with set faces and every muscle strained did their best to stem the tide but our opponents had gained too much momentum to be stopped. After two successful line backs White finally rushed the ball over. During the rest of the game, our warriors fought furiously to gain the lead, but when the final whistle blew, the score stood 6 to 0.

The Classic of the Year was over and V. M. I. rightly won the crown of victory. V. P. I. won something that can never be taken from her, and it is the unsurpassable admiration and esteem, of every spectator who witnessed that battle, for the clean, white fight that our Gobblers put up during the whole game.

RÉSUMÉ OF THE SEASON

PROBABLY no other basketball team in the history of V. P. I. has ever had to undergo the privations, disappointments, and handicaps like those confronted by the team of 1924. This quint commenced their season without even a floor to practice on. Not to make excuses, but merely to state facts, we can readily understand, when cognizance is taken of the fact that when the Field House was burned in the fall, the home of basketball at this institution was gone, and with it went the uniforms and other athletic equipment that took time to replace, why it was that the usual brand of basketball was not displayed during the past season. So it was after Christmas that practice started, several weeks late, forcing our quint to leap into our schedule without the usual necessary workout.

Coch Day took upon himself the rather difficult task of whipping together an almost new team when he took the reins of coachship. Rhodes, our last year's Captain, was unable to play on account of his previous four years of service on the varsity. Joe Brittingham, our rangy center of last year, had graduated, and that left another gaping hole to be filled. To cap it all, at the beginning of the season, Sutton had not returned to take care of his old position at guard. Competition for places on the quint centered most strongly around the center, and guard positions, abundant material reporting for both positions. Ebert, the Freshman center of the previous year, succeeded in driving off all opposition from the pivot position, except Manager Roberts, who decided that he should play on the team as well as manage it. The fight for the guard, left by Rhodes, centered around Cousins, Ewing, and Michael, but Cousins finally managed to emerge victorious after a hard struggle for the much sought after position. Roberts, as manager, did not let the fact that he was on the team lessen his abilities as manager to any extent, for he arranged and executed a difficult, but worthy schedule.

THE GAMES

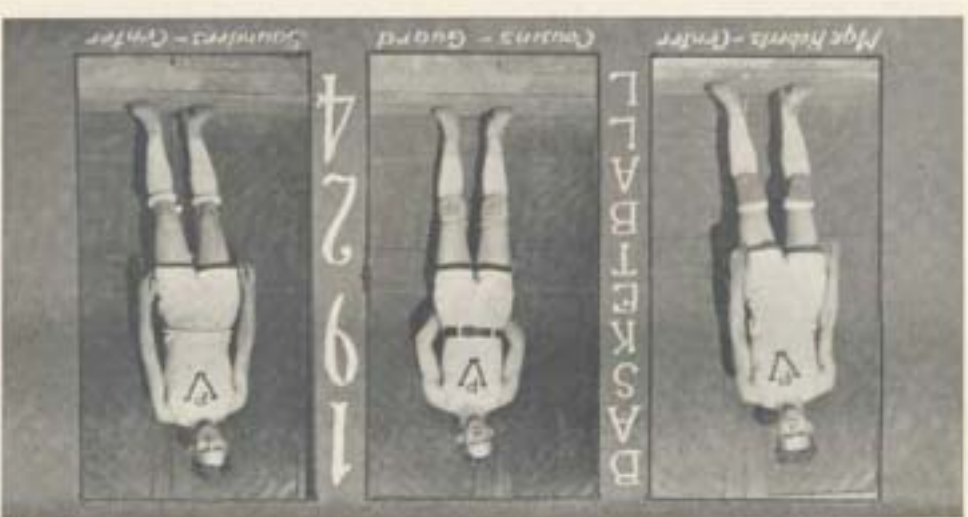

With but seven days of real practice, and the team hardly organized, our quint was pitted against the strong Lynchburg College five on their home floor. The game was to dedicate the Hill City boys' new gymnasium and for them it was a fine affair for they overwhelmed our Gobblers by a 42 to 14 score. It seemed impossible for our cagers to penetrate their defense so the L. C. quint got an early lead which was continually increased visitors tightened up and the game went on as before. second half, it looked as if the home team had struck their old-time stride, but then the was to no avail as they were completely off on their shooting. At the beginning of the Our men seemed utterly unable to get together and even when they did get the ball, it play, they had run up fourteen points before our basketers had registered a single counter. and seemed anxious to show it. The Hapists took the tip-off and in a few minutes of when their quiet trounced ours by a 27 to 19 score. The visitors had a well-oiled machine.

Walter Forest was the author of the worst defeat that Tech had received that season, of the game on account of an injured ankle. the ferocity with which they fought. Ketherford, our speedy and flashy forward, was out Sutton played the floor like demons, and both Cousins and Kiser were not far behind in and from that time on the Technicians stayed on the smaller end of the score. Carroll and of a long, difficult shot from near the middle of the floor. V. M. L. was the next to score foul line. Captain Carroll then retaliated for his team when he forged ahead by means to register a point. Ryder, for the Keydets, broke the zero score by a free throw from the with both teams playing a hard defensive game and for ten minutes neither side was able quiet, but in spite of this the Keydets took the game by a 22 to 11 score. The game opened next. As the football team of the fall had given their all, the same can be said of our For the second time, within the school year, V. M. L. defeated Tech in an athletic con-of the thing; they almost carried away the game. the second half, our cagers came back, and they did so with vigor, supported by the cheers to cage the huge sphere while the long accurate shots of the visitors counted heavily. In frame, the ball stayed continually near the home goal, but our warriors seemed unable of the game, the Tech quiet played a desperate game against heavy odds. During the first fully realized that playing space was totally inadequate. With several of our stars out a basketball game had been held in the Old Shops, our new "odd" athletic home, and it was by the lack of a few minutes of playing time. It was the first time in many years that our team threatened to break into the winning column but was prevented from doing so.

The first home game of the season was with Morris-Harvey College. In this game best pair of forwards in the state. not keep up with the stride that they had set the year before, which had made them the Carroll, and Ketherford exhibited their true form at times, but it seemed as if they could throughout the game. Our quiet seemed unable to get together, for their shooting, guard-

Washington and Lee managed to pull another spoke out of our basketball wheel in Roanoke. Although beaten by ten points, our team showed remarkable improvement over the work done in the previous games. The game started with both quints displaying a hard defense and for eight minutes, neither team was able to register. The Generals broke the ice with a foul goal, but in a few seconds "Pat" Carroll slipped one in from under the goal, and this added to a foul, and a long one from midfloor, placed Tech in the lead by a three-point margin after twelve minutes of play. The boys from Lexington then managed to gain the lead and they kept it until the end. Captain Carroll, as usual played his consistent game, while Sutton, in addition to playing a consistent floor game, negotiated two field goals from difficult angles.

Captain Carroll, and his basketecers, then dropped one of the hardest fought games of the year to Elon College. The Gobblers did not have as much fight as usual during the first half, but when they came back in the second semester, they were a rejuvenated five; and more than once it looked as if we would jump ahead of the visitors, but the latter would always take on new life at this point and hold on to their margin. The passing was not of the best, but the spirit of "hanging on" aroused admiration in the breast of every spectator.

The University of Virginia basketball tossers evened up their account with Tech for our victory of the previous year by downing our quint with a 32 to 16 count. The game was fast and furious from the first to the last blast of the whistle, in spite of the fact that both were off on their shooting. Up to the last five minutes of play, the game promised to be close, and it seemed as if the outcome would be a toss-up, but at this point the Cavaliers staged a spurt which gave them the ball pretty much as they wanted for the balance of the game.

After losing eight straight games, the Gobbler quint finally piled up a winning score over William and Mary. The team exhibited the best that they had shown during the whole year, and the Corps was jubilant. The most exciting event of the game came at the final blast of the whistle which found the teams at a tie. Five minutes extra was allowed. Then a foul was called on our quint, putting W. & M. in the lead, and with only seven seconds to play, Don Rutherford leaped into the air, and sent the ball through the hoop, snatching victory from the very jaws of defeat, just as the whistle was on its way to the referee's lips.

Playing a loose, but well fought game, having unaccountable hard luck when the ball positively refused to go through the basket, our basketeers lost to the fast Carson-Newman quint. The Tennesseans' dribbling was the feature of the game, and they also handled their passes with deftness and accuracy.

For the second time during the season, Tech met V. M. I. on the court, and for the second time the Red, White and Yellow emerged victorious. The Cadets however found that they were not playing the poorly conditioned team of a few weeks before, for they were forced to exert themselves to the utmost to carry away even the five-point margin with which they managed to limp away.

The V. P. I. basketeers showed rare form, coupled with well-nigh perfect floor work when they triumphed over King College to the refrain of 24 to 11. The King College quint sprinted in the first part of the game, but they were soon overtaken by the fast-moving Gobblers who maintained the lead until the game was over.

The fact that we lost to W. & L. by the score of 29 to 17 does not do justice to the contest, for the Techmen put up a hard, stubborn fight and uncorked some neat floor work that would have swelled their score, but for the fact that they could not cage the sphere with any degree of accuracy.

Our quint then began its western trip into Kentucky and West Virginia, winning two and losing three of the games played. The first to fall was Transylvania College, when our cagers overcame their quint with a 26 to 22 victory. The next game came when we went against the formidable Kentucky University five. The Gobblers jumped into the lead at the first of the game, but the Bluegrass cagers came back with overwhelming force, snatching our chances of victory from us. Our team then journeyed on to Center College where we were cleanly defeated by a ten-point margin. In the roughest game of the season our quint was defeated by the much heavier Marshall College five, the latter starting off the game in true football fashion and continuing in this manner throughout the game. In the last, and the best game of the trip, Morris Harvey was played and defeated when our Gobblers walked away with a 34 to 20 count.

In the night-cap game of the season, the Gobblers handed defeat to the Roanoke College basketeers. It was an intensely interesting and exciting game, replete with thrills, beautiful snow-birds, long difficult shots, and fancy floor work; a fitting game to mark the end of the season.

RÉSUMÉ OF THE 1923 BASEBALL SEASON

IN March, before the first sign of spring had reached Blacksburg, baseball was under way. A promising aggregation of some fifty candidates reported themselves as aspirants of the national pastime. When noses were counted, and the letter-men checked up, it was found that out of the excellent battery material of the preceding year only one man had returned. This man was Ed Callahan, our catcher, a regular diminutive chatterbox whose line of chatter behind the bat had kept the 1922 team always on its toes. The loss of such twirlers as Harrelson, Myric, Morton and Harvey at first threw a gloom into our camp, and then, too, with Sloop missing from behind the bat, our prospects seemed almost hopeless. The Corps then demonstrated its usual versatility, and out of the gloom that had gathered, there emerged a battery of five men, who although they had never before played college baseball, soon demonstrated the fact that their abilities as twirlers was not to be despised. These men were Cummotte, Dyer, Sommerville, Mosley and Franklin. Coach Younger did not have to look far for someone to fill the vacancy left by Slomp for it so happened that Thomas, a second baseman of the year before, had hidden within him all the necessary qualities that go to make up a catcher.

Ample material was to be had from which to make up the infield. Captain Rutherford was on hand to handle all of the hot ones that would happen around short-stop as well as a lesty hit. Finks, third baseman of last year, was transferred to the initial sack to take the place left vacant by Deane, and he consistently pulled in those erratic pegs that only a real first-sacker is able to handle. Henry Turner, who had been unable to play the year before, came back to claim a position at second and proved to be a regular flash, playing a well-seasoned game from the start. Moyer, a sub of the previous year, demonstrated the fact that it was possible to catch a slow-teasing grounder, and then get it to first in time to clip the runner off.

In the outergarden Wallace, who captained the nine of the previous year, clinched his old position in the center of the field. Pat Carroll cleaned up in left, and Williams in right formed a perfect basket for all flies in his direction.

Tech opened her baseball season in a blizzard from the north when she yielded to Dartmouth, of that general direction, in a poorly played game. This game lasted only seven innings due to the mercury hovering around zero. For the first two innings both teams played gilt-edge ball, but in the third and in our "lucky" seventh the visitors pounded the ball for a total of nine runs. Our lone tally came in the fourth when Wallace scored on an error after he had placed himself on third by a long drive to deep center field.

The first game enabled Coach Younger to get a line on his men, and new moundmen so that he might be in readiness for Lynchburg College the following week. In these two games, the scores stood three to two, Tech winning the first day on the errors made by her opponents, coupled with timely hitting. The game of the second was stretched into extra innings but Parker of Lynchburg ended it when he singled, and then scored on a two-racker by Goff. He was later scored by a sacrifice. In Tech's half of the inning, it looked as if the score might be tied again when Rutherford, after being walked, scored on a double by Wallace. The game however ended with the latter on third.

The games with King College, W. & L., and V. M. I. were credited as victories belonging to the weather, and after this rest-up, we won the next two out of three, home games. In a slugging festival, Roanoke College was defeated thirteen to three. Hampden-Sidney was the next to succumb when Dyer pitched a shut-out game against them; four of our men managed to cross the home plate. In one of the fastest and most thrilling games of the season we lost to W. & L., by the score of thirteen to seven. Heavy hitting was the feature of the game, four circuit-clocks being clouted out; of these Tech got three.

On April 21 the big team started on the longest trip of the year playing Davidson, Wofford College, Clemson, Oglethorpe University, University of Tennessee, and Emory and Henry. Out of these six games, we won two, losing one more to the elements, and the other three to our opponents.

Back on her home field, Tech trounced Guilford College in a loosely-played game as indicated by the 17 to 10 score. The University of Virginia then played on our field for the first time since 1905, and avenged herself of the defeat that she then received at our hands by piling up a 7 to 0 score. The game was airtight until the sixth, neither side having scored, then we weakened and the Cavaliers slipped seven runs across before they could be checked. Tech came back and avenged herself on the Davidson nine for the defeat earlier in the season.

The last, most exciting, and incidentally the most interesting, game of the season was at hand. It looked as Tech had the Catlet nine nicely beaten until the ninth, as the score then stood 8 to 6 with the Gobblers on the upper side. We were doomed to disappointment however for in her half of the ninth V. M. I. ran five runs across the plate, and jubilantly went back to Lexington with the game.

RÉSUMÉ OF 1923 SEASON

PROSPECTS for a winning track team loomed especially bright at the beginning of the 1923 season when Manager Aulick sent in his call for track men. Brittingham, the Orange and Maroon flash, was elected to captain the team, and by the end of the season it proved that he had been so fortunate as to lead one of the best track teams in the history of V. P. I. The absence of such men as Captain Woodward, McElroy, Hyrd, McDorman, and McGraw was both lamented and felt, but with the true Tech spirit, those who did return for practice worked all the harder to fill in the gaps left by graduation. Coach Culbage with his characteristic aggressiveness soon whipped into shape a team which Tech was proud to have sport her colors. Manager Aulick arranged an especially hard, and interesting schedule, and during that season Miles Field was the scene of many thrilling meets.

NEWSMAN BREAKING SCHOOL RECORD

THE MEETS

Syracuse University, 91; Tech, 35

Out of the North came Syracuse to prove her mettle against the Tech trackmen, and left carrying with them the better end of a 91 to 35 score. This was the hardest meet of the schedule, and taking into consideration the fact that practice had been considerably hampered by the extreme weather, Coach Cullage was rightly proud of the showing made by his protégés.

The Northerners displayed one of the best teams that has ever been seen on Miles Field. They took the lead by winning the first event, and Tech was never able to overcome that lead. Allen Woodring, All-American indoor 220-yard champion, was seen with the visitors, and showed wonderful form when he took first place in both the 220- and 440-yard dashes.

Peter Smith, for the Gobblers, broke into the athletic limelight when he vaulted high into the air for first place in the pole vault. Jimmy Potts started the year right by breaking the school record in the javelin throw, which was formerly held by Dwight Carpenter of '21, when he hurled it for a distance of 164 feet, four inches.

BOWLES WINNING FROM V. M. I.

Penn State, 71; Tech, 64

Tech in her fourth annual meet with Penn State, Tech was doomed to disappointment. The Gobblers took the lead in the first event, when Captain Brittingham and Owens won first and second places respectively in the 100-yard dash, and held it until the last event. This event was the hammer throw which was abolished in the South Atlantic division many years ago, and as Tech had no one who could compete against the State thrower, she was forced to forfeit the nine points to her rival.

Bob Baker featured in track for the first time by breaking the local record for shot put, putting it a distance of 39 feet, nine and a half inches. Potts smashed his own record made but a week before when he threw the javelin a hundred and seventy-one feet nine inches. Bowles worked Haufman hard for first place in the hurdles but he lost each of these events by mere inches. Captain Brittingham displayed his old-time speed, taking first place in the century, the 220-, and the 440-dashes.

W. & L., 57½; Tech, 68½

The Grange and Maroon trackmen journeyed to Lexington and defeated W. & L. in a hard-fought meet by a close score. The Gobblers took the lead at the beginning, and at end of the first three events, were leading by thirteen points. The Generals then exhibited form, and showed up well in the pole vault, coming up to within three points of our lead. Then, although never once during the rest of the meet did the Minks gain the lead, the score ran fairly even.

Brittingham, Bowles, and Potts each took two first places for Tech, and Kelly ran one of the fastest two-mile races that a Techman has ever run. Captain Thomas was high point man for the generals, with first place in the quarter-mile, and second places in both the century, and the two-twenty-yard dash. The surprise of the meet was when Hill of W. & L. who had been trailing along behind Newman and Ewing in the two-mile, won by an unexpected whirlwind finish.

V. M. I., 52; Tech, 72

Tech had little trouble in defeating her old-time rivals from Lexington in the track meet on Miles Field, the twenty-fifth of May of 1923. The meet proved to be a fast one throughout, the dash events being won by inches. Foster, of the Keydets, found Captain Brittingham off form, and took first place in both the one hundred and the two-twenty-yard dashes.

The Gobblers found it easy picking in the distance and in the weight events. Both Newman and Gayle led by over a lap in each of their events. Bob Baker, and Jimmie

SCHOFFNER WINNING THE 440

SPRINTERS

Potts were star men in the field events, the former taking first place in the shot-put, and the latter hurled the javelin, and threw the discs. Bowles easily took two firsts in the hurdles, while Culbreth added a first by broad-jumping a distance of 21 feet, 8 inches.

Two local records were broken, Bob Baker breaking his own record by heaving the shot 40 feet, 8½ inches, and in the mile Tommy Newman clipped it off in 4 minutes and 33 seconds.

SOUTH ATLANTIC TRACK MEET

Georgetown, with a total of seventy-two points, won the eleventh annual track, and field championship meet of the South Atlantic Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association held in Richmond on May the eleventh and twelfth of 1923. Johns Hopkins with forty-four and one-half points was second, while Virginia came in third with thirty-six points. Tech won a respectable fourth place with twenty-four points accredited to her. Others trailing along in their order were V. M. I., N. C. State, William and Mary, and Maryland. Washington and Lee, George Washington, and the University of North Carolina participated in the meet, but failed to register in the points.

DISTANCE MEN

HIGH JUMP

Five South Atlantic records were smashed in the finals, the time in one equalling the world record. Officials of the Association however, accepted only one performance, which, with two marks set in the preliminaries, bring three new records as result of the meet. Clark, of Johns Hopkins, by lowering the one hundred and two hundred records, was the hero of the day. Brittingham of Tech ran Clark a close race, however, coming in about six inches behind him, taking second place in the event. In hurling the shot, Beers, of Maryland, established a new South Atlantic record of forty-five feet, six inches. Hass, of Georgetown, broke the record of the 220-yard low hurdles, but his time was not allowed to stand.

In the semi-finals, Captain Brittingham, won his heat in the 100-yard dash, with a time of nine and four-fifths seconds, but his time was not allowed to stand on account of the wind. Bowles and Brittingham were high-point men for Tech, with two second places each to their credit. Tommy Newman made an exceptionally fine run, and placed third in the mile. Culbreth did not come back without his part of the meet as he placed third in the high-jump.

No small credit should go to Coach Cullage for the manner which he coached, and trained this team and it is to be expected that with the same system, sometime in the future our team will come back from the South Atlantic with the large end of the score slung over its back.

Tech has reason to be proud of the showing that the Gobblers made during this season and the results go to show that Track is on the upgrade at V. P. I., the future of this branch of sport looming brighter each year.

RÉSUMÉ OF THE SEASON

SEPTEMBER, and the cool, chilly breezes of autumn, began dashing down from Brush Mountain and stealing over Miles Field. At this time Coach Redd sent out a loud and lusty call for candidates to report for Freshman Football. Many husky Gobbllets reported, many of whom had won fame on the gridiron at some of the best prep, and high schools in the state, and elsewhere. Many of the others, reported, however, who had never before had a football in their hands, and proved their worth before the season was over. With this material, Coach Redd succeeded in weaving together one of the best Rat teams that this Institute has ever placed upon the field.

After weeks of practice, the Gobbllets felt equal to the occasion, and locked horns with, and defeated the Hampden-Sidney Junior Varsity in the first game of the season. Roanoke College Seconds were the next to succumb, and they went down to defeat in easy style. Then down to Techland came the University of Virginia Freshman team. In one of their best played games of the year, the local Freshmen went down into defeat by the score of 7 to 6. Cuddy, of Virginia, by a mad dash of fifty yards, brought victory to his team. Tramp, tramp, tramp, and then column right, the young Keydets from Lexington were on hand for the fray. In this game it was Esleeck and Anderson here and, Kessler and Faulkner everywhere. By smashing line plays, flashy end runs, and a dazzling overhead attack, the Gobbllets smothered the Keydet Freshmen under an avalanche of touchdowns, defeating them by the decisive score of 51 to 0. One of the features of this game was Rat Price, when he broke through the Red, White and Blue line, blocked a punt and then fell on it for a touchdown. Our Yearlings then journeyed to Newport News and slaughtered the undefeated Apprentices by a large score. The Gobbllets ran wild in this game and the Apprentices could hardly launch an attack before it was smothered. Our next victim was Roanoke High, the State Champions of last year. In a thrilling game Captain Kessler's cohorts snowed them under a large score. It was a wonderful sight in this game to see Kessler, running behind perfect interference, circle the ends, and glide through center again and again for large gains, and sometimes touchdowns. In their last game, just before the 1923 football curtain was drawn, the Gobbllets journeyed down to Lexington, and there in a sea of mud, outplayed the Washington and Lec Freshmen in every department of the game. But the Lexingtonians had Lady Luck with them, and because of the recovery of a blocked punt, turned into a touchdown, won the game by a close score of 7 to 6. Every Freshman fought hard in this game.

This game brought a very successful season to a close; the Freshmen had won five out of seven encounters, and both of these games were lost by a one point margin. Captain Jake Kessler, our diminutive quarter-back, led his team in great fashion, and he was ably supported by the other brave and true Techmen on the team. Every man in the line showed up exceptionally well, pushing their opponents' line back whenever called upon. In the backfield, Faulkner, Kessler, Esleeck, and Anderson hit the line, dashed off tackle, punted, passed, and circled the ends in varsity style.

Couch Redd deserves a lot of credit for the smooth playing and well-coached machine that he placed on the gridiron. His team upheld the standards of Tech, and carried the Orange and Maroon over many a chalk line, and between many a goalpost during the 1923 season.

COACH REDD

RÉSUMÉ OF THE SEASON

PAYNE

MANY and various praises have been voiced, but none are more merited than the admiration of Techmen for the Freshman Basketball Team of 1924. These Gobblers, under the able tutelage of Coach "Puss" Redd mastered basketball to the very tips of their fingers. He molded this quint into perfect form of offensive, as well as a well-nigh impenetrable defense. From a squad of high and prep school captains and players "Puss" evolved a champion basketball team that will take years to duplicate. It is not probable that the Varsity of next year will be forced to look very far for men to fill the vacancies that will be left by graduation this year.

The season opened in the middle of January, when the young Gobblers rang up with Roanoke High, and defeated them by the score of 30 to 21. Payne started the scoring for Tech, and when the first half ended the Freshmen were to be found on the larger end of the score. Undaunted, the Magic City lads came back in the second half, and tied the score. The Gobblers then found themselves and spurred, combining a consistent attack with faultless guarding presented the fastest, and most finished set of basketballers that have ever been seen on the local court, vanquishing their opponents in the hard-fought struggle. Lazebny, with his air-tight defense and long shots was the outstanding star for Tech.

Down to Techland came the fast Beaver High team, the last year's champions, and they were forced to partake of the cup of defeat, at the hands of the Gobblers, by a 44 to 24 count. The Freshies started things off fast from the start and at no time was there any doubt in the minds of the spectators as to what the outcome of the game would be. Going strong, and keeping up the fast clip with which they started, the youngsters played rings around the Roanoke College Junior Varsity. The Roanoke boys were no match for the smooth-playing machine that confronted them although at one time they did show signs of a comeback, but the Gobblers braced, and time after time put the ball through the rims. Our next opponents on the home floor were the Roanoke Elks. This team was made up of many ex-college stars, and had been beaten by only a small margin in the game with V. M. I. a few days before. These antlered Elks were a well-balanced five, but they were no match for the young Techlets who romped off with the game. The uncanny accuracy of Dear and Lazebny in ringing up tallies, and tight guarding of Powers were the outstanding features of the game.

In a fast and exciting game, the young Gobblers added another scalp to their string when they massacred the aspiring young Cadets from the Chatham Training School by more than doubling the score. The Chathamites started off with a rush, and rang up three goals in rapid succession. Captain Payne then took time-out, and when play was resumed they soon overtook the boys from the Training School, then walked away with the game. Every member of the Freshman Team, after the first few minutes, played a marvelous game. "Buddy" Dear, as usual, had his eye on the basket as he had seven field-goals to his credit when the game ended. The next to fall before the prowess of the Rat basketballers were Dyleville and Bluefield Colleges who went down in an easy manner, this bringing the number of victories for our "Freshies" up to seven with no defeats.

Playing their best game of the season, the Gobblers sang defeat to the Little Generals to the tune of 31 to 23. The young Minks came to Blacksburg, an undefeated team, and tried hard to catch the Gobblots in their nest asleep, but when the visitors hit the basketball floor they found a very much awake quint to handle. The first half ended with the local Freshmen with only one point in the lead, but at the beginning of the second frame it was evident that Tech had an entirely rejuvenated quint on the floor, Paige, who had been substituted, taking the lead and the game from then on was on ice.

DEAR

Down to Bluefield journeyed the Gobblots to play the Beaver High School on their home floor where they had not been defeated for four years. At the end of the first half the Beavers were leading by a twelve to eleven score. The Gobblots then rallied and at the final blast of the whistle Bluefield found that the list of victories on their home floor had been broken. Lexington was next visited, and this trip resulted in the defeat of both V. M. I. and W. & L. In these two games Perry and Paige loomed especially bright, but all of the luminosity should not go to two men as the whole team played as veterans.

With these victories the Gobblots became the undisputed champions of all the first year teams in the state, having kept a clean slate throughout the season. In the nightcap affair the Freshmen defeated the Apprentices by a 36 to 20 score. With this game, the Freshmen ended an undefeated season, and tucked away the championship of their class. Never before in the history of Tech has she produced such a Rat team.

The whole team showed up fine, every man on it deserves credit, and we hope to see them all back next year for the varsity. When it came to putting them through the hoops, Dear, Paige and Kennedy were hard to beat. As a leader Captain Payne maneuvered his men in fine fashion, and at guard Lavenby and Perry were terrors to their opponents.

To Coach Redd much credit is due for the smooth playing, hard fighting, well balanced, and clever basketeers he placed on the floor; who went through the season with a clean slate, and brought to Tech the championship.

RÉSUMÉ OF FRESHMAN BASEBALL SEASON, 1923

WHEN the mild zephyrs of spring began to drift about the campus Coach Redd sent in his call for candidates for Freshman baseball. The Rats responded lustily to the call, and soon the coach had a promising bunch of men for his team, from all parts of the east.

In the first game of the season the young Gobbllets crossed bats with Roanoke High, and went down in defeat to the tune of 9 to 7. This game was featured by a circuit-clout by Stenuette. The next game, with Chatham Training School, was called on account of rain. With blood in their eyes, the Freshmen next took to the road. Revenge was sweet when they stopped in Roanoke and beat the High School there 9 to 6. Journeying onward they scalped the W. & L. Freshmen, and Bridgewater College, but went down in defeat before Augusta Military Academy. Not damaged by their defeat however, the Rats went over to Staunton Military Academy, and smothered them under a neat score. Back in Techland again, they played the strong Milligan College nine, coming out with the small end of the score. Next in line came Radford High School; the young Cadets hit them hard, and they went home in defeat. The game with the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind was postponed, and Coach Redd began pointing his team for the last few games of the season. In one of the best games of the year the Gobbllets swamped Pulaski High, ten to nothing. Our next opponent was the strong N. and W. team from Roanoke, and the game was exciting from beginning to end, but when the final man was thrown out at first base, N and W. held the large end of a four to two score. The season was ended up with a victory over Dublin High.

Because of the excellent work of Coach Redd, the young Gobbllets had a smooth working, and hard playing aggregation, emerging victorious in eleven out of the fourteen contests. The whole team played a nice season of ball, and showed wonderful spirit. Among those who were most promising during the season were Bond, Henley, and Moore. After the smoke and dust had cleared from the diamond, and the batting averages had been figured up, the final tally showed that Moore led his team when it came to swatting the ball to the four corners of the lot.

RÉSUMÉ OF SEASON

IN the spring of 1923, Freshman Track was commenced at V. P. I. as an entirely new institution. With only two weeks on schedule, Coach Redd called out the aspirants of the cinder path, and the next day Miles Field swarmed with a bevy of candidates. We were very fortunate in having as one of this number Bascom, judged as the best all-prep half-mile man in Canada the year before. Holly, the Captain of the Freshman football team, was on hand to take care of the field events while Ellis acted as an all-round, taking places in the broad-jump, high-jump, shot-put, and in the dashes. In the dashes and distances, the outstanding men were Dance and Funkhouser. All of these men showed promise of being varsity material for the coming year.

Roanoke High sent their cinder squad to Blacksburg only to meet with defeat at the hands of the young Gobblers by the score of 79½ to 37½. Holly, by winning first place in the shot-put, and javelin, and placing in the discus, was high man in this meet. Bascom, Dance, Linkous, and Ellis showed up well; Bascom, in the 880-yard, ran an especially good race, outdistancing his man by about forty yards.

The Gobblers were defeated by the Little Generals in an especially thrilling meet by the score of 69 to 48. The Rats won a majority of first places, but the strong aggregation from Lexington captured the preponderance of seconds, and thirds, and along with the few first places that they had won, they managed to walk away with the meet. Our team fought hard for every event, and was worthy in every way of Puss Redd's coaching. Bascom took first places in the 440 and 880 for Tech, and showed that he had within him that material that would win many victories for V. P. I. on the cinder path. Holly easily won first place in the javelin and discus throws. Wood and Ellis each won a first place in the pole vault and broad jump, respectively.

The Virginia Tech Freshman relay team, composed of Bascom, Ellis, Funkhouser, and Dance went to Atlanta, Georgia, to compete against the Freshman teams from other Southern institutions. The meet, a one mile college relay, was held on the fast Georgia Tech track, and the outcome resulted in a victory for the freshmen of that institution. Our Rats did not win, but they gave a very creditable account of themselves.

These events are evidence that interest is being shown by the Gobbler coaches, in the development of material for more successful participation in like events for the future. It is hoped that in the following season the Freshman track team will be able to enter into as many scheduled meets as the varsity, for the greatest development is an outcome of the keenest competition.

RÉSUMÉ OF SEASON

COACH HAHN

CHRISTMAS holidays a thing of the past, the mighty sons of Tech turned their attention to the great old game of the Greeks—Wrestling. Many would-be Lewises, Stetchers and Cradlocks reported to the old shops, and the seasonal work began. With Captain Sanders, Ronzie, Andrews and Lineberry of last year's team, Coach Herrin had quite a nucleus about which to build up a team that made a very creditable showing.

After weeks of practice, Captain Sanders and his gang of Gobblers, consisting of Andrews, Elsie, Ronzie, Ray, Hammack, and Lineberry, made a flying trip down to Lexington, and on a night attack on the Generals defeated them in a close, thrilling meet by the score of 14 to 13. In this meet the W. & L. wrestlers started off with a rush, and won the first two bouts. Ronzie and Sanders then came to the rescue, and won a fall and decision, respectively, tying the score. Teddy Ray then put us in the lead by gaining a decision over his opponent, this being followed by Lineberry wrestling his man for a decision, put the meet on ice.

Flushed with victory, and ready to defend their laurels, the Gobblers tackled the strong team from the University of North Carolina. The Tarheel wrestlers were just starting their trip through Virginia, and were fresh from their victory over Virginia. Just before the struggle great joy reigned in the Gobbler's camp—Flory, our California flash, and the mainstay of the one hundred and fifty-eight pound class of the previous year, returned and began practice at once. In an interesting, grueling meet from beginning to end, our Gobblers held the Tarheels to a six to six tie.

The Tarheel match a thing of the past, all eyes were focused on the next meet, and the words from the lips of every Techman was "Come on V. M. L." The Keydets, last year's S. I. A. A. Champions, did come and they went home with the spoils of a thirteen to six victory. This match surpassed any match heretofore seen at V. P. I. and was featured by two falls and three decisions. Lowe and Harbour of V. M. I., after hard struggles, gained falls over Rousie and Lineberry of Tech. The most exciting match of the evening was between Flory and Carlton, revenge was sweet for the former, and he won a decision over his opponent, thus avenging his defeat, in a like match, the year before. In practice, just before this meet, Hammack injured his arm, and Miles, a freshman, slipped into this breach. He proved his worth, and in the first match of his career, fought his more experienced opponent to a draw.

The Davidson "Wildcats" came up to Blacksburg, pounced on the nest of the Gobblers, and after a thrilling struggle, carried off the meet by a narrow margin. Tech points were registered by Sanders, Flory and Miles, the former getting a fall, and the latter two gaining decisions over their opponents. The main feature of the bout was the double win by Comartri of Davidson, when he won a decision over Elsie, and then put Rousie's shoulders to the mat.

Undaunted by their last defeat, the Tech matmen began pointing for their last meet of the season, the Virginia Match, on Washington's birthday. On that afternoon the Cavaliers locked horns with the Gobblers, and the meet was one of intense excitement from beginning to end, the latter carrying off the larger portion of a sixteen to nothing score. Miles secured the only fall of the meet when, after six minutes of active wrestling, he pinned Gwyn's shoulders to the mat. Rousie and Flory were the other point-getters, each gaining a decision over his opponent.

This match drew to a close the Tech wrestling season, and Coach Herrin deserves much credit for the splendid team he put on the mat. In five matches, Captain Sanders' men won two meets, lost two, and one resulted in a draw. Flory was the main point-getter for his team, winning either a fall or a decision in every struggle.

CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM

RÉSUMÉ OF SEASON

THE cross-country phase of sport is fast gaining prominence in athletics at V. P. I., and too much credit can hardly be given to those men who silently, but steadily work out those five miles every afternoon in preparation for just one or two meets a season.

Under the able tutelage of Captain J. C. Roden, the Tech Harriers were rounded into shape, being accredited as one of the best, if not the best, Cross-Country team that has ever represented V. P. I. on the road. The most likely men on the squad were Newman, Roden, Jackson, Richards, Dance, Crowell and Christian; to these men goes the credit of winning the right to claim the Cross-Country South Atlantic Championship.

By capturing the second, third, fourth, and fifth places in the meet with the W. & L. Harriers, the V. P. I. Cross-Country team gained the undisputed claim to the Championship.

The first man to finish for Tech was Jackson, coming in just behind Howard of the vanquished. The other men placing were Richards, Newman, Crowell and Roden, all of Tech. The time was thirty-one minutes and thirty-four seconds.

It is true that the V. P. I. Harriers had only one meet, yet their victory gave them the above honors. W. & L. had won from Virginia, Maryland and since there were no more teams among the major colleges of the Conference, we are therefore justified in laying our claim. Last year the Generals won the S. A. Cross-Country on the local course, and set up a record for the six miles that could not be equaled this season. Howard, the W. & L. Harrier Captain, first place winner this year, holds the record.

RÉSUMÉ OF SEASON

THE rapid approach of spring marked the beginning of the second, and most successful tennis season at V. P. I. Scarcely had the winter weather passed than our tennis courts had become the scene of intense activity, and keen competition. So adept were our men in wielding the racquet that it was hard, and almost impossible to select the team. Indeed it was not until the eve of the first meet that Captain Gish was able to determine which of the candidates were to represent Tech before the net. The team selected consisted of singles, Captain Gish first, Rodgers second, Finks third, and Jones fourth. In the doubles, the teams were composed of Gish and Rodgers first, with Jones and Finks second.

The season opened when our team locked racquets with the strong Davidson quartet, the meet resulting in a tie. Tech started the match strong, winning three out of the four singles, but weakened toward the last, losing both doubles to the snappy, smooth-running pairs from the Tar-heel state. It was in this meet that the well-balanced quartet of Tech netmen proved their mettle, and gave promise of the great season to follow.

Following a period of strenuous practice, during which the flaws discovered in the previous meet were worked out, the locals met the Randolph-Macon College team on our courts, and walked away with the meet almost without a struggle. The whole team played in tip-top form, allowing the visitors only one set out of the six matches, the final score being six to nothing.

The hardest meet of the year came when Tech journeyed to Lexington to demonstrate their racquet prowess against the Washington and Lee team. This meet which lasted from early afternoon till dusk, was the most doubtful as to outcome, and the hardest fought of the year. In three fast hard-fought deuce sets, Captain Gish lost to Burke, 1 to 2. Rodgers came through in his sector in straight sets. Finks and Mason came practically to a deadlock which was broken only when Finks finally pulled out with the long end of a 2 to 1 score by taking the third set 13 to 11. Jones lost to Snivley, 1 to 2, in three hard fought sets, leaving the score 2 to 2 at the end of the single events. Our Gobblers took both of the double events, one in straight sets, and the other only after a hard gruelling fight between Gish and Rodgers of Tech, and Burke and Mason of W. & L. With these two matches Tech carried away a hard-earned victory over the Mink netmen.

Several days later our racquetees triumphed over the "Keydets" from V. M. I., winning two of the three singles, and both of the double matches. It was during this same week that the Tech netmen entered the Middle Atlantic Tennis Tournament in Richmond. In the singles of this tournament, our men seemed lost, only Jones being able to win out in the first block. In the doubles, we were more successful, Gish and Rodgers reaching the semi-finals where they were defeated by the Seminary team and Jones and Finks, after winning from Georgetown, lost to George Washington, who played against the seminary in the finals.

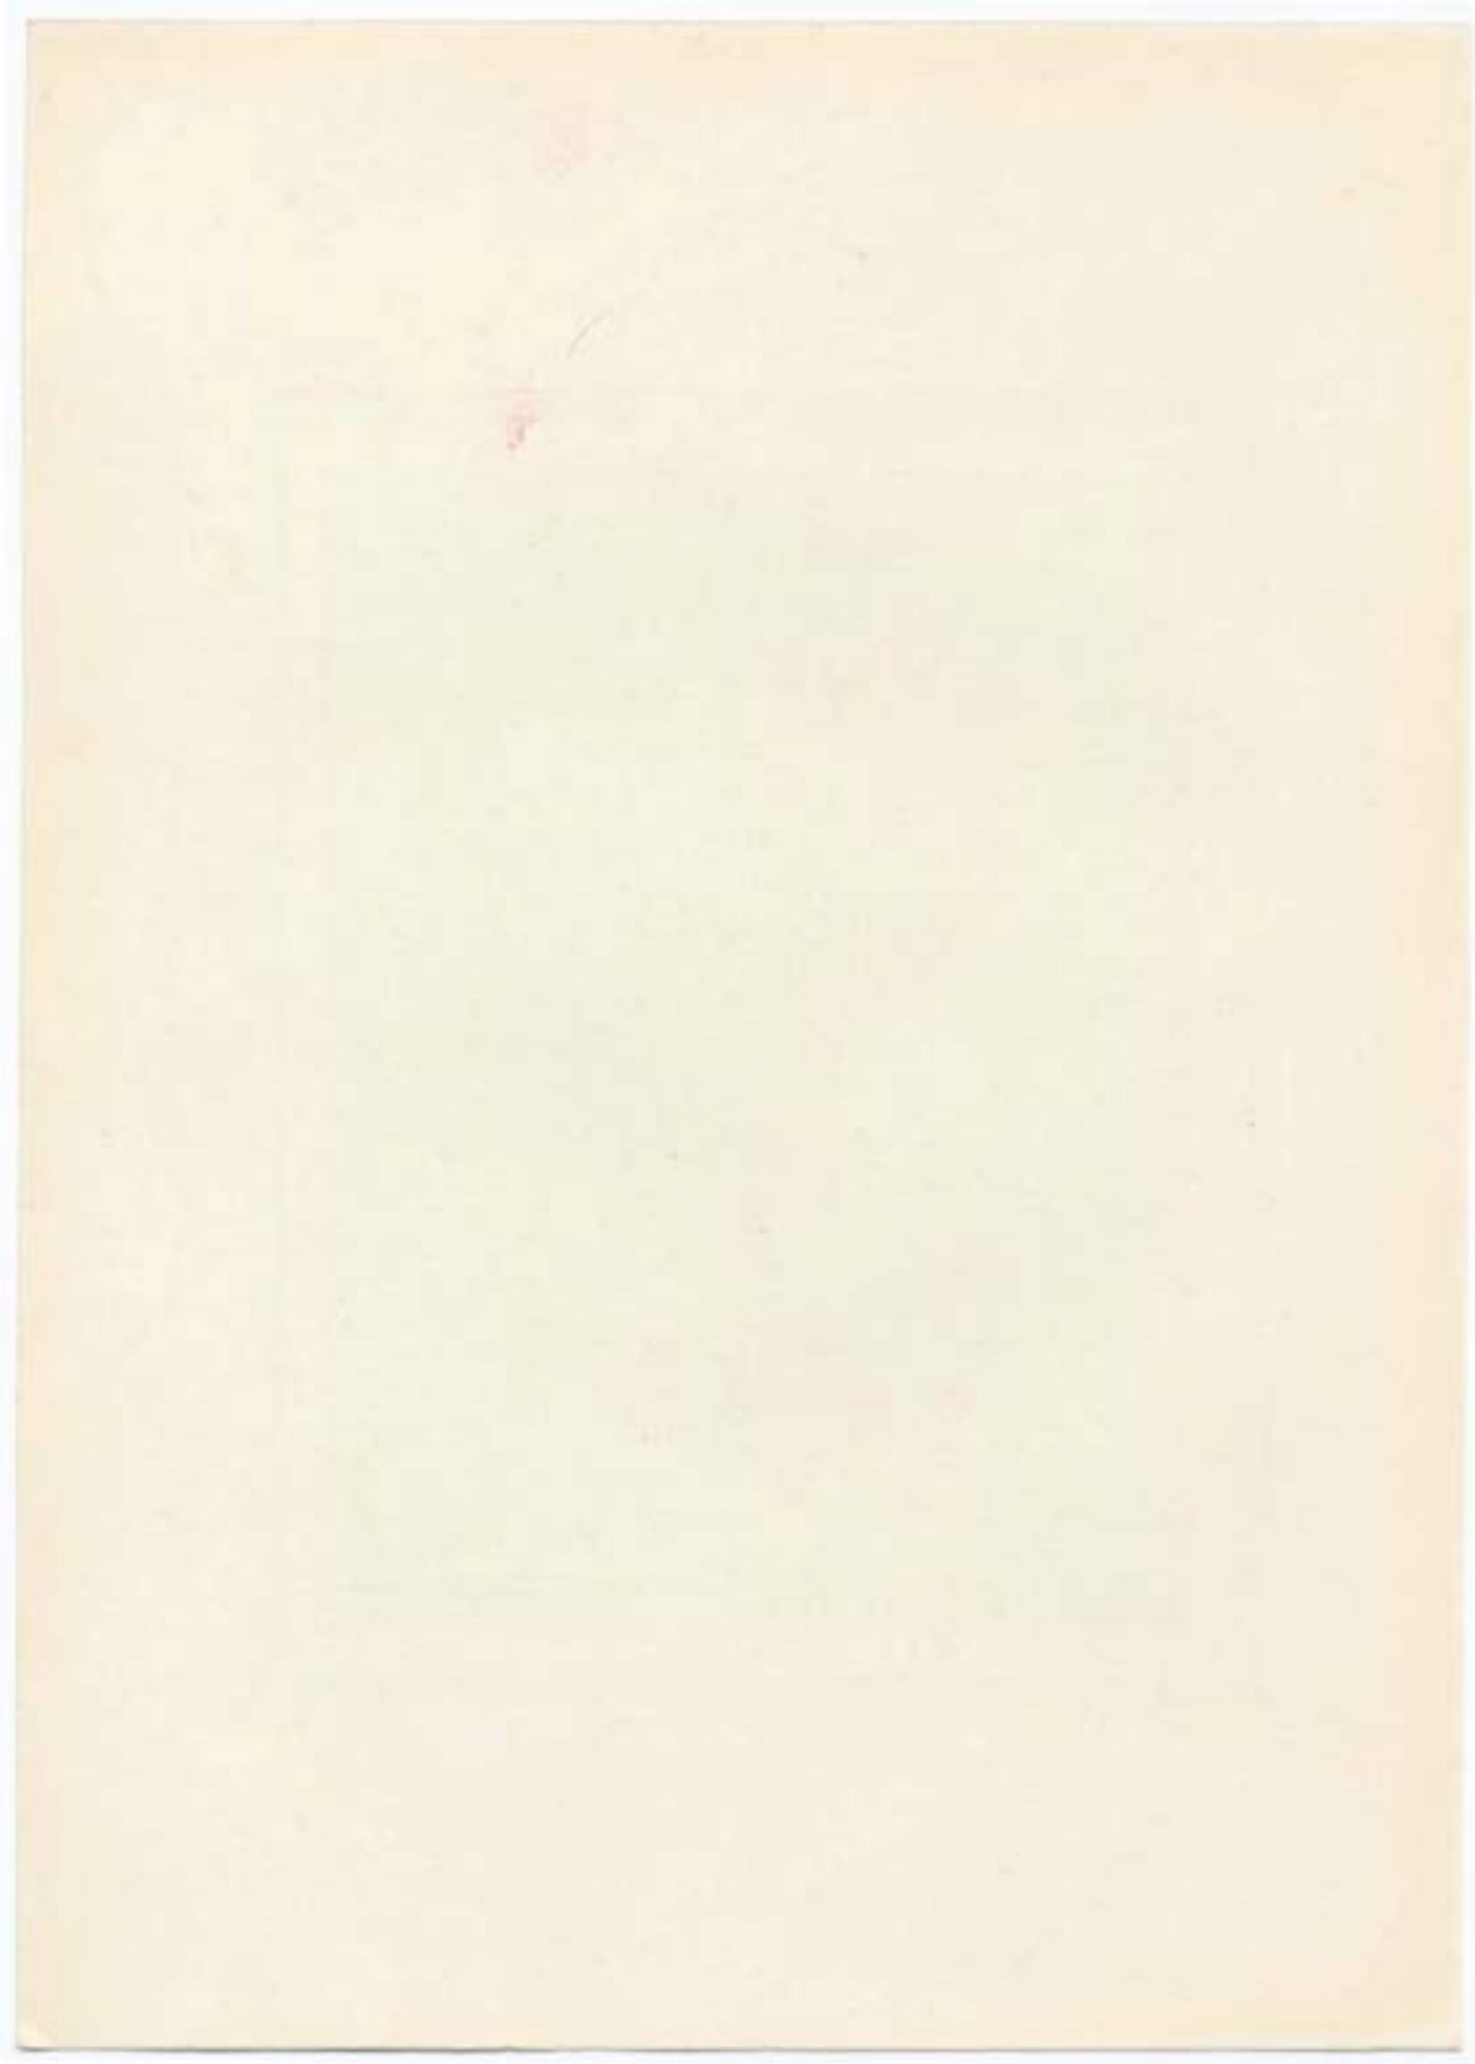

The 1923 season was brought to a close when the locals met and decisively defeated William and Mary College on the local courts. The score was five to nothing, and every match was a straight win for Tech.

With this victory the Gobbler netmen earned the undisputed right to the State Inter-collegiate Championship, and with it they brought to a close the second year of tennis as a Minor Sport at V. P. I., during which the Tech netmen have passed undefeated. With such men back at school this year to carry on, as Finks, Buck, Garnett, Jones, Hall, and Asher, it seems not at all improbable that yet another spotless record will be hung up by the Tech netmen after the 1924 season.

In writing a review of the 1924 performances of the Virginia Tech Minstrels, we cannot say too much in praising those who were untiring in their efforts to put on a good show. These efforts were not in vain, for the show was an ultimate success from beginning to end. The man on whose shoulders rested the burden of putting the play across in the best way possible was "Hoggy" Bullock. "Hoggy" worked untiringly to this end, and with the assistance of "Ernie" Brown staged some performances which were real novelties to their audiences. "Doc" Harmon, who has supervised the minstrels for the past four or five years, was present at each show and entertained the audiences in his best form. The soloists did splendid work and were ably supported by a strong chorus. "Billy" Bowles made an exceptionally good interlocutor, and was ably assisted on each end of the semi-circle by three excellent black-faced comedians.

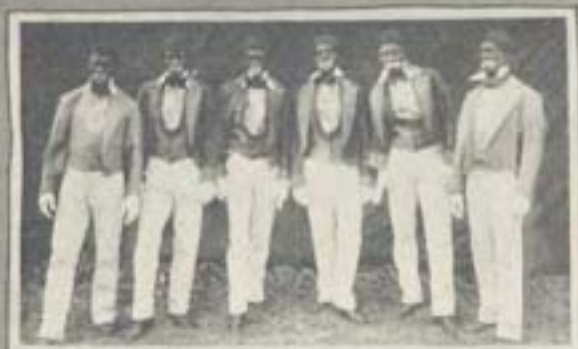

After the initial performance in Blacksburg, the troupe toured the State of Virginia and was received everywhere by very large audiences who were exceedingly enthusiastic in their praises for the V. P. I. Minstrels.

We must not fail to add that the shows were financially successful and greatly aided the publication of the 1924 BUGLE from a monetary standpoint.

RAVINGS OF A WOLF WIT

THE ANTIQUATED JOKE

*The curse of a sailor, when heard on shore,
Makes the mule-skinner heave a sigh;
But more terrible still than this
Is the curse in a dead man's eye.
But quite the most horrible of all the curses
Yet heard by man or beast,
Is the curse we utter when some poor, dumb fool
Whose intelligence is the least,
Looks o'er the columns of jokes we've got
By working our fingers sore,
And says in his brainless, cynical way,
"I've heard that joke before."*

ESPRIT DU HOP

The night was rare,
The girls were there,
The Collegians were pepping it up,
The price was a bone,
Go pick your own,
And dance with your lady fair.

The old Mess Hall,
It housed them all,
From Captains down to rats,
"Have you met my girl?"
Was heard in the whirl;
And that is so much for that.

I met her twice,
The waltz was nice,
So soothing, restful and calm,
She had her line,
And I had mine,
I learned something of woman from her.

She went away,
I had to stay,
Right here at V. P. I.
Love is Hell,
I mean to tell,
When the girl has gone away.

Take my advice,
Never fall twice,
At these remarkable Bugle Hops,
You rate for a time,
You feel sublime,
Then you are left in the ice.

The night was rare,
The girls were there,
The Collegians were pepping it up,
The price was a bone,
Go pick your own,
And dance with your lady fair.

Mr. Venable appears late in the evening at the German Hall, carrying weight and dignity.

"You sheen 'Nuts' thish evenin'?"

"He was here about an hour ago."

Mr. Venable considers this information carelessly, and fixing his friend with a cold suspicious eye, gravely demands:

"Wash I wish 'im?"

JACK—"Is this the first time you have ever been kissed?"

HONEY—"Yes," she whispered, "what makes you so thoughtful?"

JACK—"Say, you are going to be a little wonder when you've had a little practice."

A. J. told us that the reason he was so popular with the ladies was because he kissed them and then pushed them away and said that they could not have anymore.

IRATE WIFE—"And how did you get that cut on the forehead?"

ENVIED GENT—"Mushta . . . He . . . hit m'self."

IRATE WIFE—"Oh heavens! How could you cut yourself up there?"

ENVIED GENT—"I guesh I mushta stood on a shair."

PROF. RAYNOR—"According to Milton's idea of the universe where is hell, Mr. Younger?"

MR. YOUNGER (reaching suddenly)—"Here, Sir."

PARADE

Little Willie, rough as hell,
Shoved his sister down a well;
And his mother, drawing water,
Said, "It's hard to raise a daughter."

They strolled into the garden,
And necked for quite a spell;
A couple o' shots of corn
And the rest ain't fitten to tell.
Proth.

CHAS EWING (making Johnny Clark)—"It's ten to eight."
JOHNNY (deeply)—"Wait till the odds get better. Then place it all."

REFORMER—"We save bad men."
JULIAN BAKER—"Do you save bad women?"
REFORMER—"Yes, we save bad women too."
JULIAN—"How about saving me two for Saturday night?"

"Who giveth this woman away?" asked the clergyman.
"I, (to himself)—"I could but I won't."

BLACKSBURG POLICE FORCE TO CABOT—"You better take a car to barracks."
CABOT—"Sh' no use! The commandant wouldn't let me-bie-keep it in my room."

SHE (indignantly)—"No, and there aren't supposed to be any hands on them."

"You look kinda fatigued. Been exercising?"
"Yeh. I went out to a Bugle Hop and spent the evening swinging the dumb-bells around."

CAKE EATER—"Why call it the horse walk?"
DITTO—"Wagon behind."

WAITER—"I don't know, sir."

OUR GIRLS

Our girls, they are most wondrous fair—
These, our girls;
More beautiful than others everywhere—
These, our girls,
None so pretty, none so sweet,
In all the world they can't be beat—
These, our girls.

Th' love it is a fickle thing, of
These, our girls;
Thus fickle man himself doth sing, of
These, our girls,
But we've no right to raise a fuss,
For if we love them they'll love us—
These, our girls.

Some are wise and some are witty, of
These, our girls;
Some are clever, some are pretty, of
These, our girls,
But if they fail in Beauty's laws,
Still we love them "just because"—
These, our girls.

And you may think what you may of
These, our girls;
But be careful what you say of
These, our girls,
For we'd fight for them forever,
Even tho' they loved us never—
These, our girls.

THINGS AIN'T WHAT THEY USED TO WAS

There's a kinder sorter feelin'
That through my heart comes stealin'
That V. P. I. is reelin'
Down the slopes to utter ruin.
The why of this delusion
I see in much profusion
In every new intrusion
Of trouble that's a-brewin'.

"To hell with military"
Is taugt to each canary,
And every Dot and Mary
Is told we are insane.
Military's degenerated;
Thes 'tis often stated,
And Lord knows how I've hated
To deny this thing in vain.

For though I know it is quite true,
I wo'ldn't tell a soul but you
How each and every stick an'ew
Gripes me to the bone.
For the friends I have in other schools
Would be sore dismayed to know the rules
By which these militaristic tools
Do for their pay atone.

For the days of larks so clipper,
When each and every skipper
Drank freely from the dipper
Are forever o'er,
And now there's not an elbow
Can through a shirt-sleeve show,
And not a keydet dars to go
S's pieces from his door.

For the flashlight of the O. C.,
And the dill-book of the O. D.,
Yea, and even the lowly O. G.
Seek C. Q. breakers,
And the drill that is so tight
And the inspections of the night
Calm with all their mighty might
The merrymakers.

And 'tis the thought of cows allowin'
And of lay at home that needs allowin'
That keeps all cadets from goin'
A. W. O. L.
Allow me this remark to make
Ere from this page my pen I take
And duty I'll nevermore forsake:
Military's gone to hell.

I WANT TO KNOW

I've learned a little at college,
But there's much I want to know;
Some things must be clear to me
Ere from this school I go.

Often have I wondered,
And wondered all in vain,
Why girls these days walk backwards
When getting off a train.

I really can't consider
That my schooling's quite complete
Till I know why two girls hug and kiss
When'er they chance to meet.

For every time I see this thing
Tis pain to me anew,
For 'tis only some girl doing
What all men want to do.

And after I've learned the secrets
Of these two things, why, then,
I want to know why flappers wiggle
When passing by some men.

I'm in sympathy with their movement;
This, I admit, is true,
But I want to know just what they think
Is the good that it can do.

There are many things I want to know
About the modern girl—
Why she powders, why she paints,
Why she wears a curl.

Other things I want to know
That I can't tell here and now,
But when there are more co-eds
I'll learn them—anyhow.

BLOODY INTER-BATTALION MURDERS

Miles Field has been the scene of many brutal and bloody football battles in the past, but never has it seen, nor is it likely to see again, such a so-called football game as occurred when the First Battalion Mammoths clashed with the Second Battalion Mastodons one afternoon last fall. Lefty Louie, the valiant and reputable leader of the First Battalion hijackers had declared grim and unyielding war on the Second Battalion run-runners. Gyp the Blood, the fearless chieftain of the Second Battalion, swore a mighty oath on the bones of the sacred goat that he would drink the blood of Lefty Louie. Food and firearms were the reports that emanated from the rival camps on the eve of the catastrophe. Rumors were being spread abroad that raw beef was being fed the gladiators, and the spectators-to-be were urged to don stout armor to wear to the game. The betting rings were crowded and the book-makers swamped—great enthusiasm prevailed. Many efforts were made to engage a referee, but one and all claimed exemption on the grounds of having wives and children to support. Finally one dare-devil, One-Eyed Luke by name, agreed to referee the murder for the fabulous stipend of seventy-eight cents and a pair of yellow shoes. On the fatal afternoon, about ten minutes before the game, a dozen ambulances arrived upon the scene with a corps of trained nurses and efficiency experts. Everything was then in readiness for the slaughter.

The referee blew his whistle, several people among the multitude screamed, Lefty Louie placed his mighty toe against the ball, and the fray had started. The pigskin soared far and high into the scene, and then settled into the arms of Frisco Red, the huge and valiant fullback of the Second Battalion. Frisco Red, having caught the ball, stood and proceeded to tie a blue ribbon around the ball and walked with short mincing steps up the field. But stranger still, the opposing team, instead of charging down upon the runner, came tripping and skipping down the field lightly and merrily. One of them, the stalwart tackle, tripped up to the runner and touched him on the back, saying "Tag! You're it." Frisco Red dropped the ball, and dabbling at his eyes with a silk handkerchief, strode to the referee and charged gentleman Jim with striking him too hard upon the back. Gentleman Jim made a scraping bow, and politely denied the accusation. He was a man of great character was Jim, and he would not stoop so low as to do that which he was accused of. And even, if he did, but not Frisco Red called him names because he persisted in wearing a yellow headgear in place of the standard blue. Thereupon Frisco Red mounted a soap-box and swore that he was a poor man, and Heaven was his witness he did not call anyone names, and football was a brutal game anyhow. By this time the spectators had gone frantic and were calling the wrath of Jehovah upon the players, the referee, the officials, the game in general, and all pertaining thereto. Thereupon One-Eyed Luke, the fair-minded official, noting the attitude of the populace, ordered that the game proceed. The giants lined up, Gyp the Blood called a mysterious signal, and received the ball. His opponents lined up in two lines and made a triumphal arch for Gyp to walk through. Gyp, dangling the ball by the blue ribbon from his thumb and forefinger, marched down the field for eight yards. The murderous Gyp then presented the ball, with his compliments to Lefty Louie and assured him that none of his men would interfere with his (Lefty's) triumphant march to the goal. The brutal Lefty thanked him profusely and assured him that he would not dream of depriving Gyp of the honor of the first touchdown. Thus they argued politely back and forth for about five minutes. Then the crowd went crazy. Frantic and incoherent yells, howls and guttural groans floated down across the field. They were with difficulty restrained by the state militia, who were there, but for a different purpose.

BULLFESTIC COMPETITION

INASMUCH as it has become necessary, because of the oppression and tyranny exercised by the militaristic element in trying to quell the sedition and mutiny which supposedly arises from participation in the international sport, to organize a unified body for the perpetuation of this most ancient pastime in order that future generations may enjoy its benefits;

WE, do yearly offer a prize to him who exhibits to every comer his supremacy over all others in open competition (without limit as to subject, length, or vocabulary).

AND WHEREAS, in this year one, titus military, one "Tug-boat" Sanders has in competition with "Sachel" Ryder, Lord Sanford Ninde, "Rouse" Whitlock, "Bodo" Smith, and "Pop" Wilkins, through volume, width of range, and intensity of recoil proved beyond question his supreme, and undeniable prowess in the aforesaid sport,

WE, do yield unto him our treasured symbol of homage in the form of a short-circuited, double action, bivalent, two-phase, diatomic, self-exciting anti-secession radiator.

Once upon a time there lived a very wise co-ed. Now this co-ed did a very foolish thing in coming to V.P.T., but she soon realized that she had made a mistake in wanting a college education anyway, and decided that much more opportunity lay in the presence about her of some one thousand young men of marriageable age and disposition. And so she started to pick and choose a future life companion whom she could love, honor, cherish, and command. Now it so happened that that this co-ed was possessed of a fair amount of looks and many arts and wiles. And many, many of the flower of Virginia's manhood fell for her. But she decided at last upon a senior, for a senior was the quickest-paying proposition in sight, and she realized that procrastination was the thief of a girl's looks. This senior was from some little town in the bushes, had never been out much, and so was easy. And so it came to pass that the senior was indeed enamoured of her, and about March she became so sure of him that she stopped all competition, and devoted herself to ensnaring him alone, by doing it so well that there could be no slip between the moonlit garden scene and the plain gold band on the third finger of the left hand. And so they were seen everywhere together—at the library, at the drug store, and in the academic buildings. And she showed him more and more that she loved him, and knew that he was only waiting for June and graduation before popping the question.

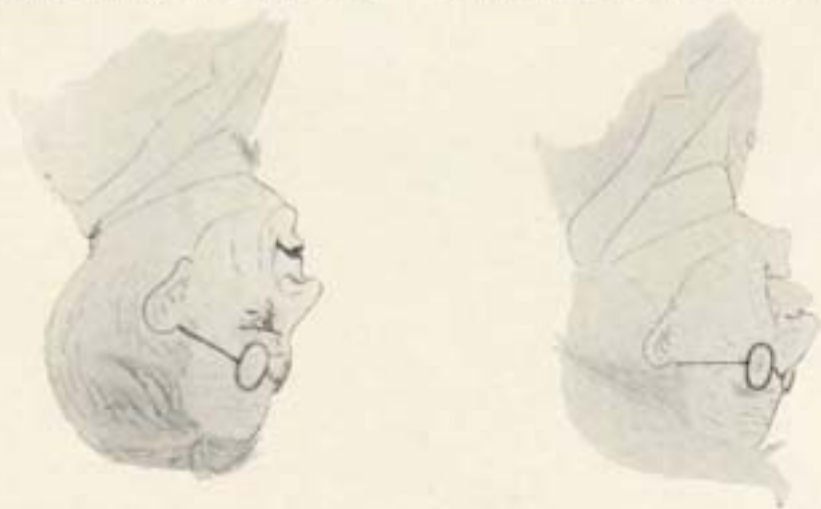

And all in the course of time June came, and with June all the visitors to see the stalwart young cadets graduate. Now this co-ed did not see this senior often during the last few days, and she knew he must be horribly busy. And so after the exercises were over this young man came to her and said very simply but with a trace of embarrassment in his voice, "Come, I want you to meet a very dear friend of mine. She's from my home town, and we're to be married in September."

AND NOW

Our task is over—for that we are truly thankful. We hope it has given you some pleasure to look through the pages of the Book, and withal, that its contents have carried you back to memorable incidents of the session of 1923-'24. If our work has in any way fallen short of your expectations, we are sorry, but we shall lose no sleep because you are disappointed, nor shall we pine away because your highest anticipations were not realized—we have done as we thought best and knew how.

AGRICULTURALLY SPEAKING

John Smith, in an intoxicated condition, was going home the other night on his old mule. In ascending a steep hill the saddle and John slid off and the mule went on home. The next morning a stranger came by and woke John.

STRANGER: "Wake up, man, this is no place to sleep."

JOHN SMITH: "Say, feller, can you tell me if my name is John Smith?"

STRANGER: "How should I know, I never saw you before?"

JOHN SMITH: "Well, if my name is John Smith I have lost a darn good mule and if it ain't I have found a darn good saddle."

The new and unusual—that sparkling reality which is known as the life of each school year—is caught and held forever within the pages of Bureau built annuals. The ability to assist in making permanent such delightful bits of class spontaneity rests in an organization of creative artists guided by some 17 years of College Annual work, which experience is the knowledge of balance and taste and the fitness of doing things well. In the finest year books of American Colleges the sincerity and genuineness of Bureau Engraving quality instantly impresses one. They are class records that will live forever.
