Chapter 10 - Missionaries

* * * * *

Christianity is primarily the vanguard of the cultural invasion of the Imperialists; therefore it should be speedily stamped out.

The Cross of Christ is a tool of Imperialism to crush the Chinese people.

Open the knife, and slay all who profess the foreign teachings.

Those who sympathize with Christianity are undesirable members of the Chinese race, and traitors to their country.

Under the leadership of Nationalism, do your best to attack Christianity.

The aim of Christian education is to propagate slavery, to destroy the heart of society by means of education and intoxication of the minds of the young. Therefore the thing to do is to attack Christian schools.

Anti-Christian work should be carried on from the standpoint of Nationalism. Therefore, the anti-Christian movement is part of the National Revolution. If our anti-Christian movement succeeds, the first defence line of Imperialism will have been pierced.

The Nationalist Party Headquarters in Tientsin, in an official statement issued early in 1930, charged foreign missionaries with making a business of dealing in opium and morphine, and with smuggling arms into China for rebels and for thugs. When The Peking and Tientsin Times, a British-owned newspaper, called for a retraction and branded these charges as "calculated and frigid lies," the response of the Party leaders was to confiscate all copies of the newspaper, and to deny it circulation in the mails. The Nanking Government did not check nor rebuke the Tientsin Party Headquarters, which was then the representative of Nanking's authority in Tientsin.
