

Its been a long struggle to get the Playstation technology released in China but recently Sony was issued a 'China Compuslory Certificate' which will soon allow sales in China. There is a natural resistance to games technology in China because of its US culture in the games. This is quite unfounded as most gamers would see little of that issue in any of the combat games – its just goodies and baddies. The ban of games sales in China has also been for Microsoft Xbox and Nintendo Wii. Its also interesting that one of the latest games issue has been 'China Rising' and perhaps that is some sort of carrot to encourage Chinese Govt to allow freedom of Western games and technology. In the meantime the most gamers in various countries are waiting for the exciting release of Playstation 4 from <http://playstation4preorder.net> and Pre orders are building towards a release in November this year 2013