FORMING NEW GOVERNMENT

MADERO WILL ASSIST PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT

Insurgent Leader Leaves for Mexico City to Consult Senior De La Barra

El Paso, Texas, June 2.—Francisco I. Madero was astride early to-day preparatory to his departure at 10:30 for Mexico City to discuss with President De La Barra the problem of forming a new government for Mexico. There was a large throng present when Madero left for the capital.

Going by way of Eagle Pass to-day, Madero intends, after crossing the border, to travel in a special train guarded by armed insurgents. He will visit Torreon, Zacatecas and Agua Caliente, in an effort to pacify that section of the country.

Senior Madero is due to arrive in Mexico City at 10 a. m. on Wednesday. Those selected to accompany him included Raul Madero, his brother, and Francisco Madero, jr., his father, Giuseppe Garibaldi and many minor officers, who participated in the revolution.

Senior Madero was greatly pleased with the prospects of his reaching Mexico City. Just before the time set for his leaving Senior Madero heard of the looting of the city of Parral, an important mining centre near Jimenez. A band of rebels entered the place and took away $50,000 from the banks there.

GOING TO CORONATION

Quebec, June 2.—The cruiser Niobe arrived yesterday with the naval contingent bound for England to represent Canada at the coronation ceremonies.

FLOATS ON LOG FOR NEARLY TWENTY HOURS

Woman Unconscious When Rescued—Mother and Two Brothers Are Missing

McAlester, Okla., June 2.—After floating on a log in a flooded stream for nearly 20 hours Mrs. Sallie Tripp, who with her mother and two brothers were swept into the Canadian river by a freshet yesterday, was found to-day in Gaines creek, two miles above where that stream empties into the Canadian. Mrs. Tripp was unconscious. Physicians said she had a chance for recovery.

No trace has been found of Mrs. Tripp's mother and brothers reported last night from Sapulpa to have been drowned. The family was crossing the river in a wagon at a ford when a fall of water swept them away. Mrs. Tripp's escape from death in the swift current is remarkable. She was carried up from Gaines creek by backwater.

BETTING IN FRANCE

DECLARATION OF LONDON FAVORED

RATIFICATION APPROVED BY IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

Sir E. Grey Says Diminutions Will Be Consulted Before Next Hague Gathering

London, June 2.—The Imperial conference, which is holding its session at the British foreign office, to-day approved the declaration of London and passed a resolution favoring its ratification.

At yesterday's session the conference debated the motion introduced by Hon. Andrew Fisher, premier of Australia, regretting that the Overseas Dominions had not been consulted with reference to the "Declaration of London," the agreement covering prizes in naval warfare which was adopted at the conference of the chief naval powers two years ago.

Sir Edward Grey promised that they should be consulted before the next Hague conference, and pointed out that the refusal to agree to the ratification of the declaration would be a great blow to the cause of arbitration.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier thought that the claim that the dominions should be consulted on treaties negotiated by the Imperial government was unjustified, and said that the arbitration treaty with the United States might not be carried through if the declaration was not ratified. He added that the fact of the colonies being consulted regarding questions of war would place them in the position of being forced to aid in Imperial wars.

The declaration of London was adopted at a conference of the chief naval powers held in London from December, 1908, to February, 1909, with the rules of prize in naval warfare. The object was to draw a definite code following the precedent of the declaration of Paris of 1856, for the purpose of the prize court to be established in favor of one of the conventions of the second Hague conference in 1907. The result was the present declaration of London signed by the representatives of Great Britain and those of other powers and now awaiting formal ratification by parliament.

POLICE CHIEF SHOT BY HIGHWAYMAN

George Bell, Wounded by Robber at Red Deer, Will Probably Die

Calgary, Alta., June 2.—Geo. Bell, chief of police of Red Deer, was shot by a masked highwayman shortly before midnight and will likely die. Geo. Munro, a tailor, and a printer named Grant, were on their way home when a masked man pointed a gun at them and ordered them to hold up their hands. They did so. The chief came on them suddenly and made a dash at the robber, who turned and fired, the ball going through Bell's abdomen. Three men are under arrest.

IS ACCUSED OF MURDER OF WIFE

Suspect Arrested in Connection With Bathtub Mystery—Fight for Freedom

New York, June 2.—Henry A. Schieb, the only suspect arrested in the bathtub murder, continued his fight for freedom to-day. The chauffeur sticks to the story that he knows nothing about how his wife's body came to be in the tub at the flat they had formerly occupied, and in a state of decomposition which indicated that death had occurred four months ago.

Three times freed and four times arrested, Schieb, through the attorney, is seeking to reach the Supreme court to-day with another writ of habeas corpus. Now he is held in the definite charge of murder in the first degree, whereas there was no serious charge against him yesterday when the court felt inclined to grant his applications for freedom. Since then, however, evidence has accumulated.

Connor O'Grady, of Springfield, Mass., has identified the prisoner as the man who married his daughter, the bathtub victim. The coroner's physician has not determined what killed the woman, or whether chemicals were used for the destruction of the body.

CONGREGATIONAL CONGRESS.

Portland, Ore., June 2.—Scores of Congregationalists from California, Washington, Oregon and other states, together with a number of well known missionaries of the denomination, are gathering in Portland for the meeting of the Pacific Coast Congregational congress. The seven day series of meetings and conferences promise to be the greatest in the history of the Congregational Church in this section of the country.

U. S. SOLDIERS PROSTRATED BY HEAT

Officers Cursed and Hissed as They Ride Past Men Who Felt From Ranks

Galveston, Texas, June 2.—In a fifty-mile march to Houston, 280 soldiers under command of Brigadier-General Mills were to-day prostrated by heat. Several hundred of the men were barely able to walk because of sore feet, resulting from macadamized roads. Officers were cursed and hissed as they rode by the column of 3,000, while the cries from the men were pitiful. Half of the column broke ranks and invaded private premises in the small towns and farms and drained the wells and cisterns.

TAKING A VOTE ON QUESTION OF STRIKE

Result at Vancouver Will Probably Be Known To-night

Vancouver, June 2.—Public interest in the proposed general strike of wage-earners on Monday to-day centres on the street railway men. The man on the street is asking if the conductors and motormen intend to go on strike.

"I had it straight this morning from a conductor whom I know that the referendum taken yesterday and last night resulted in a declaration in favor of a strike," insists the man who has a bowing acquaintance with the conductor of the car on which he rides to town every morning. "Why, there is not the slightest doubt about it; the vote stood about 400 to 200 in favor of a strike. I shall immediately buy a motor cycle."

Another man will tell you that he just received inside information, that although the vote of the street railway employees on the strike question was largely in favor of stopping work it was insufficient, under the bylaws of the men's union, because a two-thirds majority is necessary before a decision to strike may be reached.

Then there is the man who had heard that although the men have decided to strike they cannot leave their work without giving the company thirty days notice. This information is accompanied by a broad smile and expression of the belief that the strike will be over before thirty days from June 5 have passed, and then, of course there will be no stoppage of street cars.

So far as can be learned from authoritative sources of information in labor circles the street railway employees' referendum has not yet been completed and it is declared that the result will not be known to-night at the earliest. It is reported that the men employed on the suburban lines of the company did not complete their vote yesterday.

WETTEST MAY AT PRAIRIE CAPITAL

Rainfall, Which Amounted to 6.22 Inches, Sets Record for Month

Winnipeg, June 2.—Another record was being set during May in Winnipeg for the rainfall during the month amounted to 6.22 inches, making the wettest May on record in this city. During the past thirteen years there has been but one month in which a greater rainfall was recorded and that was June, 1904, when 10.65 inches fell. June, 1906, totalled 6.21 inches, being the second highest month on previous records.

TWO BIRDMEN SUSTAIN INJURIES

Airships Fall to Ground and Pilots Are Crushed in Wreckage—Passenger Also Hurt

Pyres, France, June 2.—Lieut. Lucia, of the French army, and his passenger, M. Hennequin, had a narrow escape from death to-day while attempting to conclude the first stage of the Paris-Rome-Turin aeroplane race. Each man sustained a broken leg. The aeroplane was demolished.

The lieutenant was under orders from the ministry of war to accompany the contestants in the air race on the first leg from Paris to Nice. On leaving Avignon yesterday he lost his way in the fog. Finally after flying for a considerable distance out of his course he landed at Marseilles. This morning the lieutenant resumed his flight toward Nice. He made a superb start and the aeroplane was going well as it passed over this city. A short time later, however, the aviator returned to the aerodrom at Hyeres for the purpose of adjusting his motor. When a short distance from the ground the machine veered sharply and was capsized. Attendents rushed up and the two men were taken from under the wreckage and sent to the hospital.

Another Accident.
 Versailles, France, June 2.—M. Gaubert, a French aviator, while making a trial flight with a new aeroplane here to-day, fell to the ground and fractured his hip.

RUSHING TO LONDON FOR CORONATION

Record Number of Passengers Leave Quebec on Empress of Ireland

Quebec, June 2.—The steamship Empress of Ireland, sailing to-day for the other side, carries what is believed to be the largest passenger list of any vessel that ever cleared from a Canadian port. So great is the rush of coronation visitors that some of the officers of the steamship have given up their cabins for the accommodation of the passengers. Among those getting on the Empress is a large contingent of soldiers who will represent Canada at the coronation.

TAKING CENSUS IN DOMINION

GROWTH OF POPULATION LARGER THAN ESTIMATED

Tabulation and Analysis of the Figures Will Keep Bureau Busy for Three Years

Ottawa, June 2.—Practically three years will be required to complete the census of Canada, the taking of which commenced yesterday. The tabulating and analysis of the population figures on the extensive information asked for in regard to trade, industry, etc., will keep the census bureau busy for that length of time.

The total population will not be definitely known until October, though an approximate figure may be given out a month or so earlier. Returns will begin to come in from the cities in about a fortnight's time, but enumerators will have three weeks' time allowed to collect their work and the commissioners are allowed another month in which to forward returns to Ottawa. The work of tabulation and compilation will be done at the census bureau here by a special staff of 160 clerks working with specially devised tabulating and compiling machines similar to those used in Washington for the census of last year. Charles W. Spicer, an official of the American census bureau, is now in Toronto superintending the manufacture of a number of machines to be used in tabulating the schedules turned in by the enumerators.

Reports from census bureau officials who have been receiving reports as to the prospective amount of work required for the commissioners in the various parts of the Dominion indicate that the growth of population in many districts has been considerably larger than was estimated. The final figures will probably show a population increase of about 50 per cent. during the decade. West of the Great Lakes, it is estimated, there are now about a million and a half more people than there were in 1901. Eastern Canada should show an increase of a little over a million and a quarter.

NEW SETTLERS.

NEW POWER PLANT STANDS TEST WELL

WHEELS TURN SOON WITH JORDAN RIVER ENERGY

35,000 Volts Passed Over the Transmission Line From City Station

In view of the fact that the Jordan river power plant will be called into active use in a very short time the B. C. Electric Company has already started giving various parts of the apparatus preliminary tests before making the final try-out, which it is expected will take place in about ten days' time.

Just the other day the new transmission line was connected with the city plant for the purpose of testing its capacity. In the course of the test 35,000 volts were transmitted, and as there was no difficulty experienced the company officials were highly satisfied with the result. At the same time the water pipes were given a try-out, and it is understood that they responded to all the calls made upon them with ease.

Speaking to a Times representative, this morning in connection with the test, A. T. Goward, the local manager, stated that everything passed off most successfully. The transmission line withstood the high-voltage test with the utmost ease, and the water pipes proved their worth most convincingly.

Asked when the new power plant would be in operation, Mr. Goward would not commit himself to any particular date. He did say, however, that the final test of all the apparatus in connection with the plant would be held in about ten days' time. From the experience which he obtained at these preliminary tests Mr. Goward is confident that the plant will emerge from the final test with flying colors.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 2.—Miss Laura M. Neilson, a stenographer of New Bloomfield, near here, the fourth victim of an automobile accident last night in which three persons were instantly killed, died in a hospital to-day. She never regained consciousness after the accident.

Miss Neilson was in the automobile with C. A. Sefton, and W. A. Harrad, prominent Harrisburg men, and Mrs. Robert W. Dunlop. They were crossing a long bridge that spanned the Pennsylvania and Reading tracks, when the machine swerved, crashed into the railing of the bridge and fell fifty feet to the tracks. All were dead except Miss Neilson, when removed from the wreckage. Sefton was married and the owner of a large carriage factory. Harrad was unmarried.

HOTEL KEEPERS ARE VICTIMIZED

Number of Forged Cheques Cashed at Vancouver—Police Investigating

Vancouver, June 2.—Alleged forged cheques calling for an aggregate sum of $1,100 have been floated in Vancouver during the past week, according to information in the hands of the police detective department. It is stated that forty worthless cheques, each for the sum of $27.50, has been cashed, principally by hotelkeepers of this city. The cheques purported to have been issued by the Ritchie Contracting & Supply Company, and were made payable to either "Fred Woods" or "George Stewart," two supposedly fictitious characters. The cheques were drawn on the Traders Bank and bore the Ritchie Company's stamp and signature, which purported to be those of P. E. Ritchie, president, and A. Morrison, secretary, of the company. Mr. Ritchie to-day declared all the cheques were forgeries.

It was stated by Mr. Ritchie this morning that the forgers must have broken into the company's office and there secured the cheques, as those used were taken out of the office cheque book and were numbered successively from the last genuine cheque which had been issued by the company.

The forgery was discovered after the Traders Bank had paid four of the cheques, two drawn in favor of "Fred Woods" and two in favor of "George Stewart." The bank teller noticed that some of the men in the Ritchie Company were evidently being paid twice, and he examined the next cheque which came in. It was allegedly a dummy attempt at forgery and was easily detected when suspicions were once aroused.

According to the statement made by Mr. Ritchie this morning, the signatures were crude attempts at imitation, and the only reason given for the paper so easily passing is that the people who cashed them looked no further than the rubber stamp.

A list of those victimized is not obtainable, but nearly all are said to be proprietors of hotels who have been in the habit of cashing the cheques of the Ritchie company for their workmen. The Ritchie Contracting & Supply Company has a large payroll.

The police are investigating, but so far there is no clue to the alleged forgers.

BUSH FIRE RAGING.

Nelson, June 2.—Word has been received from Arrowhead, one hundred and fifty miles north of the city, of a bad bush fire, one mile in width, that started early yesterday and is at present raging throughout that section. Fifty-fire fighters from Arrowhead fought the flames the greater part of the day, but were unable to cope with the situation and assistance has been asked for from Revelstoke and surrounding towns. Unless the wind changes the city is safe. No lives have been lost as far as can be ascertained.

The district in which the fire is raging is heavily timbered.

ROW AT CHRISTENING.

Banker Fined and Sent to Jail for Drawing Revolver During Ceremony.

Centretown, Ark., June 2.—F. M. Fair, a banker of this city, was fined $500 and sentenced to a year in jail here to-day because he drew a revolver and threatened to stop the proceedings at the christening of his nephew several days ago. The boy, the innocent cause of the disturbance, is the son of James Stroud, Fair's brother in Lowell. Stroud, it was testified, wanted the child christened according to his religion while Fair whose beliefs are different recommended another denomination. When he could not have his way, Fair, it was charged, drew a revolver and attempted to halt the ceremony.

DRENCHED WHILE FIGHTING FIRE

CITIZEN IS CAUGHT SAVING THE GOODS

A. E. Foreman Precedes the Fire Brigade and is Sadly Soaked for His Pains

Yesterday afternoon when the offices of the city were being emptied of their clerical occupants the ominous ring of the fire alarm attracted general attention to a voluminous wreath of smoke emerging from the vicinity of the C. P. R. steamers lying at the wharf of Belleville street. So near to the vessels did the opaque smoke appear that people viewing it from the centre of the city thought for a moment that one or other of them had caught fire. Before speculation had time to assume a definite form the fire brigade was on the street galloping in characteristic fashion for the scene.

Following in the wake of the fire department's turnout it was speedily discovered that the outbreak had occurred in a small house at Belleville and Oswego streets, occupied by Charles Spring. When the brigade arrived on the scene tongues of flame were shooting through the roof and the impression was created that the inside had already been gutted. Closer examination proved, however, that the fire was practically confined to the roof, having commenced there through a spark from the chimney lighting the shingles. In a very few minutes Fire Chief Davis had a line of hose playing on the fire, while other stalwarts of the department entered the house and removed the furniture to a place of safety. The total damage is estimated at $250.

The fire was first noticed by A. E. Foreman, supervising engineer of the Dallas Road sea wall construction work. He noticed suspicious coils of smoke filtering through the shingles, and not knowing whether the inmates of the house were conscious of their danger or not he rushed into the house. There he found Mrs. Spring, fully aware of the fire, attempting to remove her furniture to the garden. With her assistance he was able to remove the piano and was in the act of removing the pictures—in fact he had a number of them already secured—when the water from the fire hose, playing heavily on the burning roof, penetrated to the plastered ceiling, weakening it so as to cause it to peel off in desiccated lumps. A choice selection of this material found a billet on his person together with an invigorating supply of fresh water from the hose, and by the time Mr. Foreman reached the outside his general appearance had undergone a transformation which was not conducive to his general improvement.

While he had been in the house someone else had notified the fire department and in the few intervening seconds he was made conscious of their arrival in this unexpected manner. The only possible way in which Mr. Foreman can get even with the fire brigade seems to be for him to join it and take every opportunity of pointing the nozzle at his colleagues. Perhaps even that would be a poor revenge, as that is but the substance of their being.

The fire brigade answered another call to 704 Chatham street this forenoon, where a spark from the chimney had set fire to the roof of a house. Arriving on time the brigade killed the outbreak at its inception, the damage amounting to no more than $5.

INTERNATIONAL POLO.

New York, June 2.—The American grip on the international polo championship was given a lively shaking to-day by the challenging English cavalry officers, who in the first game of the match for the trophy outplayed and outhit the Meadowbrook four for three-quarters of the match, only to be out-riden by the defenders until the score finally stood four and one-half goals to three in favor of America.

FIREBUG AT WORK IN SOUTH VANCOUVER

Three Houses Destroyed—Police Have No Clue to the Incendiary

Vancouver, June 2.—A firebug attempted to wipe out a populous section of South Vancouver just after daylight yesterday morning. Fires were started in three different houses situated within a block or two of each other. Had the brigade not arrived promptly a big neighborhood might have been devastated, and at that time in the morning very few of the hundreds of people who live in the pretty cottages on the slope just north of the cemetery were yet afloat.

Flaming ran high in the neighborhood against the one unknown man who is believed to have started the fires in the houses that went up in smoke. There is no clue so far to the perpetrator of the deed. Police Officer Crowder of South Vancouver made an investigation yesterday and came to the immediate conclusion that the fires were of incendiary origin.

One of the houses burned was owned by Mrs. Croftin, standing at the southeast corner of Twenty-fourth avenue and Sophia street, and facing the city, and two dwellings, less than two blocks to the south, on John street, owned by the Western Canada Home Builders, which had been completed only last night. The Horner road, a well known thoroughfare, runs between the point where the first house burned and the corner where the other two stood together.

Just after 4.30 o'clock a lad named Squires came along Twenty-fourth street, having obtained a bundle of morning papers from a stand at the corner of Main and Twenty-fourth. He passed within a few feet of the Croftin house when he saw that it was afire. Dropping his bundle of papers he ran to Twenty-fifth street and aroused Constable Crowder, who lives there. Crowder and several other neighbors turned out to fight the flames and Crowder summoned the fire department from the city, which did splendid work after reaching the nearest hydrant to which they could reach the fire from.

VICTIMS OF HOTEL

FIRE AT SILVERTON

Remains of Four Men Found in Ruins—Ten of Injured in Hospital

Nelson, June 2.—Search among the ruins of the Windsor hotel at Silverton, which was gutted by fire on Tuesday morning, produced a few charred remains of apparently four men, Robert McTaggart, Robert Fairgrieve, one unknown, who is believed to be a foreigner, and a fourth to whose identity there is no clue. These bones were, however, so carefully burned that it is thought possible that others may have lost their lives in the disaster without leaving a trace. The coroner, Dr. Gomme, will hold an inquest today, having made all preparations for an exhaustive inquiry into the fire and its cause.

Duncan Grant, the proprietor of the hotel, has been instructed to prepare plans of the building, and asked to account, if possible, for every occupant of the rooms, while the pile of ashes representing the hotel has been fenced around to keep away the crowds of sightseers who have been visiting the spot during the past two days.

At first, the coroner, along with John T. Black, chief provincial constable, and R. J. Sutherland, provincial constable, found only three piles of charred bones, but later, after Dr. Gomme had returned to Brandon, Constable Sutherland found the remains of another man.

There are crowds of men in Silverton without a place to lay their heads, and at Brandon's hotel as many as eighty men sit down to tea every morning and at night sleep in old shacks, log cabins and in any other place where they can find temporary shelter.

There are at present about ten of the injured in the hospital at New Denver. One man jumped from the third story into a barrel filled with empty bottles. He was cut from the waist upwards, the doctors being occupied for over an hour cutting out broken pieces of glass which were embedded in his flesh. Two other men were awakened by the heat and crackling of the flames which they saw creeping through the transom of their room. Without hesitation they made a dive through the window. Apparently the majority of those who escaped, entirely forgot in their excitement the existence of the ropes which are provided in every room.

RECIPROCITY AND LUMBER.

Now that the morning paper has selected the lumber industry of British Columbia as the issue upon which it proposes to base its opposition to reciprocity, it might be as well for readers of the Times to know the attitude that is taken by the large concerns in the province which are engaged in that industry. It will be acknowledged that there is a vast amount of capital invested in the work of converting the raw material of the illimitable forests of this province into marketable commodities. Those who have invested this capital are capable business men, and it may be presumed know something about how reciprocity will affect the industry in which they have staked their investments. The Times happens to know the attitude of many of these manufacturing firms upon that issue and will state without hesitation that it is one of warm approval of the pact.

The manager of the Western Canada Lumber Company, Mr. A. D. McRae, is agreeably anticipating the ratification of the agreement. The company whose interests Mr. McRae looks after is one of the largest milling concerns in the world, and it may be presumed that he knows his business. He is supported in his attitude toward reciprocity by Manager Cameron, of the Westholme Lumber Company, as well as by Mr. McLaren, operating a very large mill at Barnet. The Mountain Lumbermen's Association, comprising every owner of lumber mills in British Columbia east of the Cascades, is known to heartily approve the terms of the pact. If there is a single millowner in the province who opposes the agreement we are not aware of that fact, and we should be surprised that anyone should do so when those who are most largely interested in the business have approved it. The advantages to be gained are too palpable for anyone to be found who is disposed to reject them.

It must be remembered that with regard to lumber-Canada has made no concessions. The deal is entirely a concession from the United States. It was the Conservative government which in 1894 placed lumber on the free list in Canada, and this was done suddenly without consulting the British Columbia lumbermen. The embargo against lumber entering the United States has stood until to-day, and the agreement makes provision for its removal. The whole objection of Congressmen Humphreys of Washington to reciprocity was because of the concession made to Canada in the matter of lumber.

The reasons why Canadian lumbermen favor reciprocity are clear. They will now have equal chances in competition with the Pacific Coast millmen, and the latter will be anticipated in attempts to dump surplus manufacture upon the markets of the Northwest. The differential of $2 per thousand in a competitive market will no longer insure against Canadian mills and in favor of foreign manufactures. A difference of even $1 per thousand feet in its output makes all the difference between profit and loss in the operation of a milling concern. With an equal field the Canadian mills are asking no favors. They can take care of their native market.

More than this, the market for lumber in the Southern states is becoming very considerable. As far south as Pasadena and Los Angeles the demand for lumber from the north is rapidly increasing. The removal of duties will give the Canadian mills a chance in this expanding market. Canadian lumber may be shipped in any bottoms to these southern ports, but American lumber must be shipped in American bottoms, and the advantage of ready and economical charters will all hure to the business of Canada.

We can, therefore, understand why such a commercial advantage should be pleaurably hailed by the lumbermen of this province. Their reasons for supporting the medium through which it is to be brought about are business reasons. There is neither sentiment nor political prejudice affecting them. They are worth more than the opinions of the morning paper which, at best, could be only academic and are bound to support the opposition engineered by the leaders and following of the party which it serves and the interests which are backing up that party.

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY.

To-morrow a new Imperial holiday will be added to the calendar of all good British subjects and will be generally observed along the red line which belts the world. We shall not be accused of less majesty if we say that not for some years will it become so popular as the day which will be observed for centuries as Victoria Day, the natal day of the grandmother of the present king. The reign of Queen Victoria was a long one and so many things happened during its period which are of superlative importance in the evolution and history of the empire that, until these are eclipsed by something still to be done, the beginning of the Victorian era will be celebrated.

It is not, however, expecting too much to anticipate that all this may happen. We are living in an age when science is having her triumphs and Nature is being subdued, according to the command given our first parents, in a marvellous manner. We can scarcely tell what a day may bring forth. We are turning away from the age of material and national conflicts and conquests into the development of the more peaceful and progressive arts. The conquests of men and of nations to-day are more of compelling the utility of natural forces rather than the compelling of humanity. There may be, because of these things, a new Georgian era which will be in the annals of human history as important as the Victorian era.

His Majesty King George V. is a democratic sovereign in the best sense of that term. This has already been shown by his tacit consent to some things which, not so very long ago, would have been considered a limitation of the prerogatives of the sovereign. With his estimable consort Queen Mary there is evidenced a rare commingling of democracy with wholesome conservatism and the combination of mental and moral qualities exhibited by both king and queen are admirable.

Those who are in close touch with court affairs say that his Majesty has surrounded himself with the safest and wisest men of the court as his personal confidantes and that his warmest friendships are with men of calibre as statesmen and gentlemen. These are comfortable hearings, and anticipating his natal day we say "Long Live the King!"

BORDEN IN THE WEST.

The whole of the middle west in Canada is preparing to welcome Mr. R. L. Borden when he shall begin his tour of the Prairie Provinces in opposition to reciprocity. We state this to be the purpose of his tour, for, whether he wills it or not, he will be forced to confine himself to that issue or else open the floodgates of an inundating deluge of political issues. The strenuousness of his campaign and the distances to be covered in his itinerary will afford him little time for the discussion of other questions, and we think this is unfortunate.

Mr. Borden hopes to defeat the government on the reciprocity issue alone—at least if he does not hope to defeat it he will make that issue the basis of his appeal for its defeat. This is both unfortunate and unfair to the wide range of interests which the people of the Northwest have a right to know his opinions upon. So much are we convinced that the farmers of the Northwest have made up their minds on the reciprocity issue that we think they have a right to know some other things of Mr. Borden, in case he should by any accident become leader of the government.

At any rate the population of the Northwest seem to be of that opinion, and they are preparing a catechism which will recall to Mr. Borden's memory more than his school training in the affairs of state.

Mr. Borden will be asked to explain why the amendments to the Grain Act are blocked at every stage. This is a bill which provides for certain reliefs for the grain growers in the matter of elevator accommodation and incidental advantages. Yet along with the reciprocity agreement it meets with nothing but obstruction.

Mr. Borden will be asked to give a direct promise to support government ownership of terminal elevators. He will be asked to pledge himself to the operation of the Hudson's Bay railway by a board of commissioners and to several other important matters affecting legislation.

Mr. Borden will also be asked to pledge himself, in case he should come into power, to an increased British preference, amounting in the first instance to 50 per cent. and an annual advance of 5 per cent. each year until free trade with Britain is established. This would require but ten years in which to gravitate wholly into free trade with the Mother Country.

These questions have been decided upon as the stock presentation of the desires of the farmers throughout the west. They are not engineered by the Grain Growers' Association, which will confine itself exclusively to representations on the reciprocity issue.

We are not surprised, therefore, that the Conservative press, in the knowledge of these issues, already predicts a failure for Mr. Borden in his tour. Nor do we feel anything like sympathy with them in the announcement that the friends of reciprocity have conspired to defeat the objects of his journey. These are little political contingencies in which the average political leader rejoices, for if his cause is good he wins; if otherwise, a born hero takes his medicine.

To think of it. The McBride government is eight years old to-day and papa is not here to celebrate it. We wonder whether he will think of us in London? Perhaps we had better cable and say that we are "still loyal."

The Colonist is not satisfied with our answer to its question about American lumber being sold in Canada. Will it please tell us why the McBride government buys its road rollers in the United States and who pays the duty to get them over the line into Canada?

If the wages are higher in the lumber mills and camps of British Columbia than they are in Washington with a United States tariff of $2 per thousand against Canadian lumber, how can the removal of that $2 embargo lower the wages of the Canadian workman? We give it up. It can't be done.

The Colonist's argument against reciprocity, if it means anything, means that the higher taxes are on foodstuffs the higher the wages. Ergo, the Tories would keep on increasing taxes because, it argues, that would increase wages. In other words, the more you take from the people in taxes the better off they are.

Cotton's Weekly, the organ of Quebec Socialists, has a startling six-column flare headline reading: "Socialists of Canada: fasten yourselves upon your own county with the firm resolve of tanning the political hides of all capitalist politicians." But it does not make special reference to James Hurst Hawth—te.

The Colonist this morning has this editorial gem: "Granting for the sake of argument that Socialism is a desirable thing, its consummation is far too distant for men who have to make their living to trust their welfare in the hands of leaders who are known to aim at bringing about socialistic conditions." Mr. J. H. Hawth—te was not really one of those leaders who are known to aim at bringing about socialistic conditions. Labor men make a mistake when they reject men who do and are called "anarchists" and such like when they reject a leader who does not. With our potential McBride government Mr. H—te and the Colonist the Socialists have a thorny road to walk.

THE ALLEN PLAYERS

Last night's audience at the Victoria theatre were accorded a rare treat when Miss Vera Felton appeared in a beautiful new coronation gown, purchased from Finch & Finch. The gown is made of a rich red satin with a long tunic of royal blue chiffon, draped from the shoulders and surmounted with a fringe of red, white and blue beads of very elaborate design. The same head work is also used about three-quarters of the length down the skirt, making a slight hobble effect.

A very rich silver cord girdles the entire costume, making an exceedingly pretty effect, and a large silver rose is used on the waist.

This gown is made after the pattern which will prevail at the forthcoming coronation ceremonies in London.

"Magda" the play which was presented last night, will also be repeated for the matinee to-morrow, and to-morrow evening "Hello Bill," a screaming farce comedy, will be on the boards. This is a slight change from the original intentions of the company, and it is hoped that it will meet the approval of patrons of the theatre.

The coronation gown will be used at the matinee, and this will be positively the last chance of seeing it.

Sometimes the spirit of adventure stirs strongly in they fellows in whom its mere existence might not be suspected. Small Walter, for example, is being brought up in accordance with hygienic standards that he finds peculiarly trying. The telephone is sprayed before he uses it. He has his own school drinking cup, duly sterilized, each morning, public conveyances and places are sternly forbidden him. Sometimes Walter feels that such an antiseptic life scarcely is worth living. "Father," he recently remarked, in a tone of desperation, "do you know what I'm going to do, just as soon as I grow up?"

ing himself for the worst. "I'm going to eat a germ."

VETERANS TURN OUT.

Will Play Prominent Part in the Coronation Celebrations.

Additional color and dignity will be afforded the Coronation celebrations in the city of Victoria by the participation of the old British Campaigners and Imperial Veterans. Their decision to take part in the great parade which is being arranged by the Daughters of the Empire was reached at a joint meeting yesterday. It is understood that they will combine forces and form a guard of honor to the Empire Builders' float, which is to be one of the leading features of the picturesque procession.

Preliminary to the celebration the old Campaigners and Veterans will hold a reunion smoker in the Foresters' hall, Broad street, at which it is hoped that every member of the imperial forces resident in the city with ten years' service to his credit will attend. In order to draw up the final details in connection with the parade, the Imperial Veterans will meet in the city hall on Tuesday next.

It is not improbable that a mounted detachment of Veterans, numbering about a score, will give a touch of the old reality to the festive scene which is held in prospect. In the meantime everyone of the old brigade who is in possession of the King's uniform is requested to communicate with Lieut. H. A. Trean, 634 View street.

WILL OPEN NEW STREET.
Alderman Humber Brings in Motion to Open "A" Street in Work Estate.

At the meeting of the city council called for to-night a petition from the property owners on Pembroke street, between Chamber street and Mount Tofino avenue calling for local improvements will be submitted. The petition is in the customary terms, asking for asphalt paving, the construction of sidewalks, curbs and gutters, etc.

Another matter affecting the amenity of the city will be brought up on the resolution of Alderman Humber, to the effect that "A" street, situated in the Work estate, and which at present runs from Topaz to Market streets, be extended from Topaz to Hillside street, and that the necessary expropriations be made for the thoroughfare to have a uniform width of sixty feet. In the event of this resolution passing the council communication will be afforded traffic and pedestrians through a section of the city that has hitherto been blocked by the V. & S. railway.

Sundry other works of local improvement will also be brought before the attention of the council.

PROVINCIAL APPOINTMENTS.

This week's British Columbia Gazette contains announcement of the following appointments:
—Walter F. Laidlaw, St. Elmo, to be a Justice of the peace.
—Frederick C. Campbell, to be acting government agent at Clinton during the absence of leave of Frederick Soules.
—Thomas W. Herne, to be acting government agent, etc. for Fort George land division during the absence of George J. Walker.

—Damage to the extent of $200 was done by a roof fire yesterday afternoon at the residence of Charles Spring, 614 Oswego street. The fire started from a spark from the chimney. A fire at the residence of H. A. Potts, 204 Fernwood road, gave the brigade a run and did about $25 worth of damage.

The provisional chairman of the new association, Mr. Morrison, president of the Vancouver society, is in the Old Country at present, but the provisional secretary, W. May Fraser, Vancouver, is here.

SAILING BOAT RACE FOR PIGOTT TROPHY

R. V. Y. Club Has Big Event for To-morrow—Members Enter Oak Bay Regatta

On Saturday afternoon the Royal Victoria Yacht club sailing race for the Pigott cup, which was last year by the Owend, then owned by J. S. Gibb, on the technicality, will take place from the Outer Harbor in the direction of Albert Head and back.

The yachtsmen have all been extremely busy for the last few weeks, overhauling their boats and getting everything in shape for the summer sport. On Saturday week the Oak Bay regatta will occupy the undivided attention of the local yachtsmen, practically all the members of the yacht club having signified their intention of entering as guests of the Oak Bay club.

An extremely important event is scheduled for June 17, when the inaugural flying of the blue ensign over the club house will take place. In honor of the occasion there will be a reception at the club house.

The secretary, Capt. Jarvis, announces that answers have been received from several of the other prominent clubs concerning the financing of the international regatta to be held here from July 3 to 10 and he states proposition made to them in a very favorable light.

High School C. C. vs. Collegiate School is an early game, commencing at 9 o'clock and drawing stumps at 12:30. Since a second game all around is not to be played this is the last of the school series. The match will be on the Jubilee Hospital grounds.

The boards will be occupied by the amateurs to-morrow, and although their work may not be as finished as that of the professionals, two evenly contested and exciting games of ball are promised at the Royal Athletic park in the afternoon.

The first game, Prides vs. Hills, starts at 2 o'clock, and the second, Giants vs. Bays, at 4. Last Saturday the Bays beat the Prides, but the result was in doubt until the end of the last inning.

OAK BAY BOYS WIN FROM NORTH WARDS

First Intermediate Lacrosse Game at Ward Park Last Evening

The intermediate lacrosse series opened last evening with a game between North Ward and Oak Bay, resulting in a win for the latter, 2-1. For the beginning of the season it was not a bad exhibition, being raged in some parts, but good in others.

The teams took the field as follows: Oak Bay—Goal, A. Clarke; point, Jerry MacDonald; cover point, O. Nelson; 1st defence, G. Martin; 2nd defence, F. Nobbs; 3rd defence, D. Hartlett; centre, C. Losey; 1st home, W. Creech; 2nd home, Dunaway; 3rd home, C. McDonald; inside home, C. Baker; outside home, C. Touhy.

ABOUT BASEBALL. It seems surprising, considering the way Ward has been battling and the fine exhibition of base-running and fielding he gave when the Pippins played here last week, that he is not given a chance to do more than come up in a pinch.

NETZEL, the Spokane third baseman, tried out behind the bat yesterday and he was distinctly not a success. His inability to hold Schwenk lost the game for the Indians.

HOUSEHOLDER and Mensor shook off their suspensions on Wednesday and got back into the game, to the decided benefit of their respective teams.

THE SEATTLE P. I. has a good word for Goodman. It says: "Speaking of hitters, do not overlook that fellow Goodman, who is playing third for Victoria. He has corralled seven in three games, and all of them have sounded good. He handles the bat well, meeting the ball squarely on the seam."

DIAZ WILL RETURN IF HE IS NEEDED

Former President Declares New Government Must Resort to His Methods

Veracruz, June 2.—Gen. Porfirio Diaz said his farewell to Mexico at this port. With his wife and other members of the Diaz family he boarded the steamer Ypiranga, bound for Spain.

His last words spoken to those he had left on shore were: "I shall die in Mexico." This was uttered in a tone of prophecy and with a look of inspired conviction.

To his country Gen. Diaz delivered a warning. Speaking to the little group on his trip from the capital, the old man, who governed Mexico for more than thirty years by military strength, said the present government must yet resort to his methods if peace is to be re-established.

Wearing the same uniforms they had on when they served as the general's guard, the soldiers drew up in front of the home of J. B. Body, where the ex-president had been quartered since his arrival at Vera Cruz, under command of Gen. Victoriano Huerta, an old personal friend of Gen. Diaz.

When Gen. Diaz stepped forward there was a buzz of interest but no applause. The moment was too solemn for such an expression, and even the little group of peons behind the soldiers repressed their feelings until the speech-making and embracing were concluded. Their applause then was brief.

In the name of the army Gen. Huerta addressed him, telling his old chief that he could always count on these men, "notwithstanding what everyone said." Gen. Huerta's voice broke as he added, with perhaps more frankness than fact:

"It is the only portion of the country that did not go against you." He declared that he and his men and the army in general were sorry to see Gen. Diaz leave Mexico, but that there was also reason for gratification inasmuch as foreigners would be given an opportunity to know the man who had made his country famous.

Throughout all of Gen. Huerta's talk Diaz stood like a soldier on parade, with eyes front and never a twitch of the muscles. Briefly he began his reply, but before many minutes he was having great difficulty in mastering his emotions.

"I am grateful to the army," he said, "that I could count on it to the last moment of leaving Mexican territory. It is the only real defence the country has, and to re-establish peace in this republic its services will have to be called upon in this crisis."

Tears were slowly rolling down his face now and his voice was broken. But he continued, assuring his hearers that should the country at any time become involved in trouble he would be willing to return.

Pointing to the colors of Mexico, the general added:

"I would then place myself at the head of the country's loyal forces and, under the shadow of that flag, I would know how to conquer as in times past."

Gen. Huerta grasped his hand, and then the two old fighters embraced. Moved by one the minor officers moved forward and each was embraced by Gen. Diaz and told good-bye.

It was over. The troops had stood at attention for an hour in the broiling heat, but none appeared weary. Gen. Diaz turned to enter the house and the officers gave the command to march.

The troops went directly to the cars of a special train, on which they began their journey to the capital.

JUDGE IS FORCED TO ADJOURN TRIAL

Bitter Argument Between the Counsel at Viterbo Results in Suspension of Case

Viterbo, June 2.—Cuocle, a Neapolitan barber, was the star witness at yesterday's session of the Camorra trial, and his testimony caused such an uproar in the court room that the proceedings were adjourned.

The witness described the habit of Gennaro Cuoccolo, who was murdered, the prosecution alleged, by members of the Camorra society. Cuocle said that he saw among the rings worn by Cuoccolo the one sequestered by the carabinieri following the arrest of the Camorrista.

The barber's statement called forth loud cries from the prisoner's cage and counsel for the defence protested energetically against the admission of testimony. The lawyers recalled that Cuocle at a prior examination had testified that he had seen no rings on Cuoccolo's fingers. The defence then demanded that the witness be prosecuted for perjury. The court refused and the argument between opposing counsel became so bitter that President Bianchi adjourned court.

UNREST AMONG YAQUIS

Indians Are Demanding Restoration of Their Lands

Tucson, Ariz., June 2.—Several hundred well armed Yaqui Indians have mobilized in the Yaqui river delta country and are demanding the restoration of their lands, according to the statement of passengers on the train which arrived here from Mexico.

The delta lands in question are the site of an American colony organized by Los Angeles capitalists in which Eastern capital has since become interested largely.

The Indians, it is said, began to gather in Cocorit, near Corral, on Sunday night, and on Tuesday made a demand for the surrender of the river towns of Esperanza, Bacum, Jori, Toron, Lencho and Portim, giving the Mexicans three days to surrender them and the surrounding country into their possession. It is feared that a failure to comply with the demands will bring on another Yaqui war, and that many companies of Yaquis in the regular army will desert the standard and join their countrymen in that event.

PARDONS OFFICERS

It is stated in military circles that the Kaiser intends to signalize his satisfaction over the warmth of the reception accorded him in London during his recent visit by releasing Capt. Trench and Lieut. Brandon, two English officers now in a German prison serving sentences for espionage.

The two officers referred to were convicted of spying on the fortifications at Borkum and last December were sentenced to four years' imprisonment each. It was thought at the time that they would be pardoned in a short time by the Kaiser, but they are still in confinement.

Capt. Trench, who is a descendant of Archbishop Trench, is an army officer, while Lieut. Brandon holds a commission in the British navy.

PORTLAND HOTEL DEAL

Portland, Ore., June 2.—Negotiations for the purchase of the Norman Brothers' interest in the Portland hotel property, which had been pending several days, were closed when Harry L. Day and Eugene Day, Spokane mining men, contracted to take over the 49 shares of stock of the hotel company from the Normans. The consideration was not announced, but it is understood that the Norman holdings were on a basis of $1,200,000 as a valuation of the entire property. The property has been in litigation for some time.

TRUST MAGNATES MUST OBEY LAWS

U. S. Attorney-General Believes Jail Terms Will Bring Them to Time

Washington, D. C., June 2.—The recent decision of the supreme court in the Standard Oil and American Tobacco cases will result in a sweeping attempt to secure criminal conviction of violators of the anti-trust law, according to Attorney-General Wickersham, who appeared before the house committee on expenditures in the department of justice.

Mr. Wickersham was asked why the government thus far had failed to lodge any "trust magnate" in prison.

"We have done the best we could," he said, "but there has been an unwillingness on the part of the juries and courts to sentence men to prison under the anti-trust law. Until the supreme court laid down its definite construction in the two cases just decided their reluctance was well understood, for the law has always been open to question and has been construed in different ways by different courts. Juries are becoming more willing now, however, to convict, and judges who have been reluctant to impose prison penalties now have the supreme court decisions to sustain them."

Mr. Wickersham said he believed prison sentences would be the most effective means of enforcing respect for the anti-trust laws. Criminal prosecutions against the meat packers, milk dealers, grocers, the naval stores and window glass combination and alleged violators of the anti-trust law, he said, would be augmented by other prosecutions.

On this subject the government had definite plans.

Chairman Beall asked why there had been no criminal proceedings against the heads of the Standard Oil and tobacco corporations.

"In view of the fact that we have secured convictions in these cases only within the last two weeks, it seems to me that question answers itself," said Mr. Wickersham. "Now, however, we have an interpretation on trust law on which we can proceed."

The attorney-general was closely questioned by Mr. Beall as to the cotton cases in New York, but he refused to disclose the government's future action.

On learning his whereabouts definitely the state department cabled the American charge d'affaires to acquaint the Portuguese government with the fact that the United States had not changed its view respecting Castro, and that he should not be permitted to organize a filibustering expedition directed against the present government of Venezuela.

Census Girls Snub Senders of Gift of Ice Cream.

With the United States government's street level thermometer at 102 degrees in the shade, here is Washington's prize hot weather story.

Twelve hundred feminine clerks in Uncle Sam's census bureau let fifty gallons of ice cream melt away rather than accept a "gift" from the women's welfare department of the National Civic Federation.

When the Washington temperature record climbed to 104 on one day and dashed up over the 100 mark again the next noon, the directors of the federation at Washington decided that fifty gallons of rich, cool ice cream would just be the thing to take the edge off the sweltering atmosphere in the low roofed buildings that house the census girls. So they sent around two wagon loads to the department.

Then the girls promptly became so haughty as only census girls can and refused to eat the cream. Instead, they got a little hotter than before and gave out the following statement of their strange wrongs:

"The women clerks of the census bureau were furnished ice cream this afternoon by the women's welfare department of the National Civic Federation. Doubtless these good ladies thought that they were doing a great and gracious action in alleviating the sufferings of the poor working women of the census bureau.

"But allow us to voice our sentiments and state that we are perfectly able to buy ice cream for ourselves and resent being treated like factory hands in need of charity.

"May we suggest to those dear ladies that if they've money to give away, they buy ice cream for the penniless poor of Washington, whose suffering during this weather must be terrible, and who receive less help than the poor of any other great city."

HOLDS DIVORCE RECORD

Having divorced five husbands in as many years on the broad general ground that none of them loved her as she wanted to be loved, Mrs. Lydia Green-Baker-Haynes-Turner-Brown-Jones, 25 years old, entered court at Loganport, Ind., again last week, seeking separation from her sixth marital partner.

This warm-hearted creature, by the strangest turn of fate, was named "ice" before she was ever married. All of her previous husbands are still living, and in each instance she has obtained the divorce, averaging one a year since the desire for wedded bliss first became the dominant force in her life at the age of 18.

SEAMEN REFUSE DUTY ON AMERICAN VESSEL

Men of Schooner Balboa, Entitled to Discharge at Port Townsend, Took It

Port Townsend, June 2.—Standing upon their rights as American seamen and with the backing of the local sailors, the crew of the four-masted schooner Balboa, Capt. Anderson, refused duty yesterday when informed that the schooner, which had just arrived here fifty-one days from Molendo, Peru, had received orders to proceed to Astoria to load. The sailors declared that they were entitled to be discharged and paid off at the first American port reached and could not be taken to sea again against their wishes.

Capt. Anderson was compelled to take his medicine, and will ship a new crew here at a heavy expense before proceeding to Astoria. A tugboat company had been instructed several weeks ago to meet the Balboa at sea and order her to Astoria instead of Port Townsend, but the order was not delivered.

The tug Dauntless, Capt. C. H. Titchworth, one of the finest tugboats of the San Francisco harbor fleet, arrived on Wednesday night from the Golden Gate. The tug comes to the Sound to tow to San Francisco the barge St. David, which is now loading lime at Roche harbor.

The four-masted schooner Robert Levers, Capt. A. Anderson, arrived here yesterday morning 25 days from Honolulu.

The Matson barkentine Irmgard sailed for Mahukaton.

BRITISH EMPIRE HAS NOT YET PASSED IN

Tatoosh Has Not Sighted Here—Was Expected at Quarantine Yesterday

Although expected to have reported yesterday the new Northern Steamship Company's steamer British Empire has not yet passed in at Tatoosh, completing her long voyage from Grangemouth, Scotland. The heavy southwest gale which has been blowing off the coast for the past few days is thought to have delayed the little steamer. She will call at the William Head Quarantine station and after obtaining her pratique will proceed to Vancouver without stopping at the outer wharf.

The Empire would have been engaged in carrying passengers and freight to northern British Columbia ports by this time had it not been for the serious delay she experienced at St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands. When making the run from Grangemouth to her first coaling port her engines gave trouble, which necessitated her remaining at St. Vincent for several weeks until new parts arrived from England. She has made one of the longest passages between the Old Country and Cape Flat-ter ever recorded by a steamer.

On her arrival at Vancouver she will be overhauled and placed on the Prince Rupert run, alternating with the Petriana, calling here every Monday for freight and passengers. The British Empire will have her name changed to the Petriana, having been brought to replace the Petriana, now owned by the Canadian Northern Pacific Fisheries Company, formerly used on the run.

Word has been received here that the new G. T. P. steamer en route from the Clyde to this port called at St. Vincent last Sunday, and after taking on bunker coal proceeded on Tuesday to Montevideo.

STILL KICKS AGAINST LAW.

Railroad Men Do Not Think Vancouver Should Be Made Entry Port.

Seattle, June 2.—Passenger agents of the Milwaukee, Great Northern, Northern Pacific and O. W. R. & I. N. have sent a signed protest to all the commercial organizations of the city, asking assistance in preventing the immigration department from carrying out a plan on July 4 for making Vancouver, B. C., an American port of entry for incoming and outgoing Chinese.

Chinese arriving at Vancouver from the Orient, by contemplated arrangement, will be examined and where eligible for admission will be given identification slips which will give them entry without further form at Sumner, Wash.; Port of N. D.; Noyes, Minn.; Detroit, Buffalo, Malone, N. Y.; Richmond, Va., and Lowelltown and Vancouver, Maine, practically wiping Seattle off the map so far as Chinese entry is concerned. It is stated by the passenger men that about one-third of the Chinese coming to America arrive in Canadian Pacific steamers, and under the new arrangement will be taken east over the Canadian Pacific railway.

WILL ABOLISH TROLLEY CARS.

Chicago, June 2.—The genius of the young electrical world, working along storage battery development lines, will put the trolley car out of business, according to Thomas Edison, who is attending the convention of the National Light Association in this city.

"Yes, the trolley car is going to be put out of business," Mr. Edison said in his address to the convention. "After a while there will be no trolleys."

Someone asked "when?" "I am not a clairvoyant," he declared with a wave of his hand. "I don't know how soon these bright young fellows can do it, but they are a great lot."

LET CONTRACT FOR WHARF NEXT WEEK

Work on Extension of C. P. R. Docks Will Be Rushed With All Speed

No Mishap Going Out—Possible That Other Steamships Will Dock Inside

Despite the fact that a tricky wind was blowing at the time and that the tide was a foot and a half from full, the big Bank steamship Oceano, Capt. Davies, left the C. P. R. docks this morning for Comox, having completed discharging her cargo of ironwood piles. Pilot Thompson guided the big vessel out of the harbor and although he had to combat against the stiff breeze, accomplished the difficult task without any mishap.

With a tonnage of over 5,000 tons and a length of 370 feet, the Oceano is without a doubt the largest steamship to ever enter the harbor. Bigger vessels are usually sent to the Chehalis wharf but none have ever been brought through the narrow entrance and up to the C. P. R. docks. Pilot Thompson also brought the Oceano in and she was then drawing seventeen and a half feet while when she left she had come up to the fifteen-foot mark.

Skeptics have always knocked any plans mooted for the bringing of big freighters and steamships into the harbor. At present the course used coming into the harbor is satisfactory to the small steamers, but to a vessel of the length of the Oceano it is a difficult task to make the turns. However, now that one big steamship has been able to dock at the inner harbor wharves it is expected that many of the other liners will come inside.

Several years ago it would have been an impossibility for a ship of the size of the Oceano to have steamed into the harbor, owing to there not being a sufficient depth of water. The dredges of the Dominion government, however, have been working consistently and have scooped out many thousands of tons of mud and other material from the bottom of the harbor. When a vessel of the size of the Oceano is entering some harbors they have to be steered by tugs, but not so was the case here.

The fact that the Oceano was able to get into the harbor proves conclusively that any vessels drawing upwards of twenty feet of water may easily tie up at the inner docks. In taking the Weir steamship out it was necessary for Pilot Thompson to swing around on the end of the pier, he backing the vessel out the same as the Princess Victoria and Princess Charlotte do. It, however, required some skilful manoeuvring on the part of the pilot to take the vessel past Laurel point and out to the chemical works.

SOME FLEET READY.

Many Vessels Are at Seattle with Cargoes Awaiting to Sail.

Seattle, June 2.—With the steamships Seward, Victoria, Northwest and Lehigh, the first of the large vessels to be taken, the Victoria expects to be the first of the large vessels into Nome. The steamer EDH of the Alaska Steamship Co. will sail for Nome June 6.

The big steamship J. L. Luckenbach with one of the largest cargoes which ever left for Nome, is loading at Pier 9. She is due to sail to-night with a cargo of 5,300 tons including horses, lumber and general merchandise.

The freighter St. Helens is preparing for her voyage to Nome and St. Michael. She is due to sail June 2.

The time used in Pacific Standard, for the 12th Meridian west. It is counted from 9 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, above the average level of the lowest low water in each month of the year. This level is half a foot lower than the datum to which the soundings on the Admiralty chart of Victoria are reduced.

Perhaps the largest plant in the world is a species of seaweed found near the South Sea Islands, which frequently attains a length of three hundred feet.

MORE MONEY FOR SITE FOR SCHOOL

By-law Will Be Submitted to the Ratepayers of New Westminster

New Westminster, June 1.—The site for the new school for the east end has been decided on and an option taken on the property by the school board. The site, which is bounded by Sixth avenue, First and Second streets and Gray street, comprises about three and a half acres, and was obtained at a cost of $22,500. The school board has been endeavoring to secure a suitable site for some time, the bylaw only providing $12,000 for a site. At the meeting of the city council Chairman T. J. Trapp of the school board and Trustee Green, asked the support of their action. It was decided to approve the action of the school board, and the delegates were told to go ahead and take up the option. A bylaw for public school purposes was recently passed by the ratepayers, which provides $12,000 for a site in this section and $40,000 for a school. A bylaw for the additional $29,500 will be submitted to the ratepayers. The school board has an option on the property for one week.

The B. C. E. R. submitted blue print plans showing a line to be extended on Columbia street from McNeely to Powell street, in order to connect with the Lulu Island extension. The council passed a plan in December, 1909, and this one shows the permanent location of the tracks. It was decided to appoint a committee from the council to discuss the situation with representatives from the company.

The Shops Regulation bylaw, which makes compulsory the Saturday half-holiday and the 6 o'clock closing on other days, was brought up, and after much discussion it was decided by a vote of four to three to let it stand over for six months.

The Liquor Licence bylaw was finally passed.

WAPPENSTEIN'S TRIAL

Saloon Proprietor Tells of Payments to Former Chief of Seattle Police.

Seattle, Wash., June 2.—Clarence J. Gerald, saloon and cafe proprietor, and chief political adviser of former Mayor Hiram C. Gill, took the stand yesterday and told of payments of graft to former Chief of Police Charles W. Wapenstein, who is on trial for accepting bribes from Gerald and Gideon Tupper for permitting them to operate cribhouses in the old King street vice district. Gerald testified that payments of Wapenstein had run from $600 to $500 a month. Gerald said he began by keeping books in which these payments appeared as "expenses" but that he destroyed these books when the council graft inquest gating committee assembled last winter. Gerald, said that soon after the Midway House was opened Tupper came to him and said that they would have to give up $10 a month for each girl to the chief of police. Gerald said that he had replied that this was a good deal, but that it could not be helped.

Gerald related a conversation he had with Wapenstein shortly after the latter's appointment as chief of police, but before he had qualified. In this conversation Gerald said: "I understand they are going to open up the line."

"That's the policy," Wapenstein replied.

"There's a good chance for someone to make a lot of money down there," said Gerald, and Wapenstein replied: "There's a good chance for all to make some money."

Gerald told of introducing Tupper to Wapenstein and of the instructions Wapenstein gave Tupper of securing the lease on the houses. He also told of conversations he had with Tupper concerning the payments. Tupper was making to Wapenstein.

On cross-examination Gerald denied that he had been promised immunity for testifying against Wapenstein but admitted that when he signed a statement before Detective William J. Burns he may have been actuated partly by fear but that he told nothing but the truth.

When counsel for the defence asked Gerald to account for the fact that his testimony flatly contradicted that given by him before the council investigating committee, Gerald said that he had been advised that the council committee had no power to administer an oath and that he could not be prosecuted for perjury for testifying falsely before it.

The prosecution introduced bank records showing that Mrs. Wapenstein, who had been carrying a small account in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, deposited $5,000 on February 15, 1911, immediately after the convening of the grand jury that subsequently indicted her husband. The records also showed that except when Wapenstein was chief of police his average monthly deposit was $200, and that during some months in 1910, when the alleged bribes are said to have been paid, his deposits were as much as $2,000.

FOUR BANDITS HOLD UP FREIGHT TRAIN

Throw Merchandise Into Road—Booty Removed in Covered Wagons

Niagara Falls, N.Y., June 1.—The police to-day are making a thorough search of the Canadian frontier for four bandits who yesterday held up an Erie freight train within the city limits and succeeded in getting away with a carload of merchandise.

The robbers boarded the train at the yards, and cut the air hose, slackening the train speed. When the train was still in motion, two men rushed forward on the cab, levelling guns at the engineer and fireman and forcing them to bring the train to a standstill. The others of the gang opened the cars and tumbled the merchandise into the road. Covered wagons drove up and the booty was hastily loaded and hurried away. The value of the haul has not been determined.

GIRL ATTACKED BY OCTOPUS.

Vancouver, June 1.—A little girl who was dangling her feet in the water from a rowboat in front of the Vancouver Rowing Club, Coal Harbor, was attacked by a huge octopus the other morning. Fortunately only the end of one of the tentacles of the octopus fastened on the girl, and she managed to escape without assistance. The members of the Rowing Club procured pike poles and after piercing the octopus a number of times, succeeded in drawing it up on land, where it lay for several hours before it died. The tentacles measured about five feet in length.

SWISS PEASANTS FINE SHOTS.

Rifle shooting still remains the most popular "pastime" with the Swiss people of every rank, in spite of the invasion of football and lawn tennis, which of recent years have attracted many from the butts every Sunday. The ambition of every Swiss sportsman is to be a good shot; to excel in other sports is a secondary consideration.

The following official statistics will perhaps astonish some people. In 1909 the number of ball cartridges used by Swiss citizens, outside their obligatory military service, in shooting on their own behalf and in various competitions was fourteen millions. In 1909 the total was twenty-six millions. In 1910 the total reached thirty millions.

In international shooting matches in different European capitals during the last ten years the representatives of Switzerland have beaten French, Italian, Austrian, Belgian and Dutch marksmen, but have not yet met German or English representative teams.

As a nation there is no doubt the Swiss are the best rifle shots in the world, as from the peasant to the president every Swiss knows how to handle a modern rifle and shoot straight.

HOSPITAL RATE FIXED AT $1.50

THE DIRECTORS MEET WITH CITY COUNCIL

Matter Referred to the Council for Adoption—Will Be Brought Up To-night

The conference held yesterday afternoon between the city council and the directors of the Royal Jubilee hospital resulted in the drawing up of a resolution for submission to the council in session to-night, to the effect that the city should pay $1.50 per diem for each city free patient admitted by the medical health officer, and for each emergency patient the former to be admitted and discharged solely on the order of the medical health officer, and the latter to be reported to him as soon as possible by the hospital authorities.

It will be observed that the above resolution (with the exception of a specific figure) is exactly the result of what was outlined by the medical health officer as being conducive to the better working of the institution and the better understanding between the city and the hospital authorities. Of course the main part of the discussion was in regard to the proposed rate for indigent city cases. It was explained that the cost to the hospital at the present time was $1.32, but it appeared that this amount included all patients whether treated in the public or private or semi-private wards.

This want of segregation brought up the city's average and induced Mayor Morley to state that while he did not mind paying for the city's indigent cases he did not think it right that the city should be called upon to pay the average of all the patients in the hospital irrespective of where they were treated. This view was shared by Ald. Gleason.

Ald. H. M. Fullerton, however, thought that it would not be the right thing for the city to be niggardly in its treatment of the hospital. He pointed out the good work that was being done and suggested that it ought to be recognized in proper fashion.

It was explained by Dr. R. L. Fraser how the hospital stood in regard to the matter. At the present time the cost per day per patient worked out at $1.92. The grant of the city last year amounted to about 88 cents per patient. It was obvious, therefore, that under the proposed system of the city paying so much per capita the hospital stood to benefit considerably. The rate of $1 was recognized as the minimum daily cost but as there was always a number of extras that figure was advanced.

After a preliminary hearing of views it was decided to discuss the question privately and for that purpose the parties separated. During the recess it was ascertained that some members of the council, even after paying a rate of a dollar, which some of them seemed to think sufficient in view of the fact that the government contributed 50 cents, would not be averse to making a grant of a lump sum over and above the rate.

Mayor Morley expressed the view that if they paid $1 and the government paid 50 cents they were doing all that was required of them in the meantime. It was the rate question alone they were discussing, not their general treatment of the hospital.

On returning to the committee room where the conference was being held, however, it was found that the hospital directors, whose duty it was to come to a decision in the matter, had drawn up the resolution fixing the city rate at $1.50. Some slight discussion followed, after which it was agreed to refer the resolution to the city council for action.

The hospital was represented by the following directors: D. E. Campbell, president of the hospital board; Harold B. Robertson, F. W. Vincent, J. W. Bolden, C. S. Baxter, Simon Leiser, H. Dalles, Helmsken, K. C. R. S. Day and J. A. Mara.

The city was represented by Mayor Morley, Aldermen H. M. Fullerton, Moreby, Okell, Gleason and Bishop.

QUEEN MOTHER IS MUSICAL

Few people outside her family and her most intimate friends knew until the other day that Queen Alexandra is an expert mandolinist. Her tutor, Signor Leopold Francis, has now told how he first met his royal pupil in 1885, when he was appointed director of the Ladies' Mandolin and Guitar Band Orchestra.

This organization consisted of sixty of the most highly-born women in England, including Queen Alexandra, for then of course Princess of Wales. For three or four years the Signor Francis used to go every summer to Kensington Palace or to Bridge-water House, Lady Ellesmere's house in St. James', Queen Margherita, of Italy, an expert mandolinist, had set the fashion for this instrument and from Rome, Naples and Milan the fashion spread to this country.

"Queen Alexandra," says Signor Francis, "had rare musical attainments. She played both piano and guitar with great skill and feeling and her knowledge of harmony and counterpoint was remarkable. She has written several compositions of real beauty. One of these, 'A Wedding March,' for piano and mandolin, was played at the marriage of Lady Beatrice Egerton and Mr. Kemp.

THINKING THEMES BY DR. FRANK CRANE

The excessive value put upon money comes from the poor. Those who esteem riches most are those who do not have it. The principal reason why the rich appreciate it is because the poor want it so much. Thus Bacon "Certainly great persons have need to borrow other men's opinions to think themselves happy. When they think what others think of them, and that other men would fain be as they are, then they are happy, as it were, by report." But the difficulty with this philosophy is that the rich are only amused at it, and the poor do not believe it.

Let us who are perforce humble, therefore, rejoice that obscurity and a low station have their compensations. The tramps and scribblers, show-makers and day-laborers, who are not endowed, may rejoice in this, that to be a success in this world means a trainload of friends; distant relatives suddenly becoming tender and solicitous, hundreds of savage looks from the hungry crowd that wait our place, many a hand that would strike us down for pure envy, and our share of King Solomon's "vanity and vexation of spirit." The fox in the fable was not such a fool; when you cannot get grapes it is a comfort to call them sour. In our poverty we can at least be genuinely sincere when we pray: "Give us this day our daily bread." For the good God alone knows where it is coming from.

PRINCE RUPERT WATER SUPPLY

Five Thousand Dollars to Be Spent Improving the Present System

Prince Rupert, June 1.—In view of the fact that the report of Mr. Thompson, the consulting engineer, who is looking into the question of a water system for Prince Rupert, has not arrived, it has been deemed wise to adopt plans looking to an increased supply until such time as the permanent system is in place. This is necessary for two reasons, first from the standpoint of fire protection, and second to ensure a domestic supply should there be a long period of dry weather in the summer, or frosty weather in the winter. The number of services, with the increased population, is steadily being added to. The prospect of having the permanent supply from Woodworth lake installed this year seems small.

The proposition is to obtain permission to proceed with the completion of the Acropolis Hill reservoir at once, connecting it up with the present system. The existing system can be supplemented also from Morse creek. There are the remains of the dams used by the Grand Trunk Pacific still there. The water is not likely to be contaminated and the engineer recommends the getting of permission from the Grand Trunk Pacific to use the waters of the creek, repairing the dam, and thus obtaining a very considerable body of water. By using this deep reservoirs are obtainable so that the frost of the winter, if severe, would not affect it. The engineer recommends the purchase of a pump to be used in case of necessity, to pump the water into the reservoir.

The remaining part of the system consists of the installation of the permanent cast-iron pipes. Along Third avenue as far as Fulton. These will be the pipes used in the permanent system when installed. The cost of the engineer is put at about $5,000 and will provide for about 10,000,000 gallons of water. Under the improved system adequate fire protection would be provided, as well as an assurance of no shortage for domestic purposes.

When the report was presented His Worship thought the report might well be adopted. Ald. Smith argued that it would be wise to go ahead with the scheme, especially in view of the fact that it involved but $5,000 expenditure. Ald. Douglas was of the same opinion. The motion carried.

Victim of Drink Needs Orrine

Drink cunningly destroys the will power, and while the drunkard wants to do what you tell him, he wants a thousand times more the drink that he craves. Medical treatment is necessary. Orrine destroys the desire for liquor, so that the drink will not be missed and restores the patient to health.

This remedy is thoroughly scientific and is so uniformly successful that it is sold with a guarantee to refund your money if after a trial it has not benefited. Booklet free on request. Orrine Company, 1111 Broadway, Washington, D. C. Sold in this city by C. H. Boyes, 123 Government street.

REVOLUTION IN COOKERY METHODS

London Chef Expatriates on Paper Bag in Culinary Achievement

You come away from an afternoon spent with M. Soyer, who has given you a demonstration of his new method of cookery, in a spirit of wonderment. There is a difference, however, M. Soyer is a magician who makes no pretence to magic. He does not explain, as each dish is produced, "Is it not wonderful?" On the contrary, his constant comment is, "See how easy it is—anybody may do it." The results are truly amazing, and they are all the more amazing because the process is such a simple one.

The chef, who bears a famous name, presides over the kitchen of Brook's Club, London, where his grandfather resigned a century ago. Briefly stated, M. Soyer's discovery, which is likely to produce a revolution in cookery, is that food which is enclosed in a paper bag and put into an oven is cooked far more quickly than by the old method. That by itself would be a great gain, but there are others of even more importance. Food cooked in this way loses neither weight nor nutriment. The envelope in which it is enclosed prevents evaporation, and all the essences are retained. Minor, yet substantial, benefits are a reduction in the number of cooking utensils. A kettle and a saucepan for green vegetables will in future form the complete equipment of an ordinary kitchen. Baking dishes, stewpans and the rest of it may be discarded.

In the presence of a Daily Chronicle representative M. Soyer prepared the following dishes in but over an hour: Lamb, 45 minutes; chicken, 25 minutes; "army stew," 20 minutes; stewed kidneys, 5 minutes; bouillabaisse, 30 minutes; soured mackerel, 5 minutes; roasted apples, 15 minutes; veal and ham pie, 35 minutes; currant cakes, 20 minutes; apple tart, 10 minutes; bonne bouche (puff paste), 10 minutes; "grilled" chop, 10 minutes.

The chop was an "extra" and was produced as the result of an inquiry whether paper bag cookery could be employed in place of the silver grill. When it came out of the oven the chop was perfectly cooked, though it lacked the crispness which the grill produces. Possibly the grill will hold its own in the revolution.

What strikes one most in the new cookery is its absolute simplicity. Every cook, even the plainest of them, may become a cordon bleu. The loin of lamb was put into the paper bag without even the companionship of a dressing of flour. Three-quarters of an hour later, to the minute, it emerged from the oven, and the scorched but intact envelope was removed. The joint was of a delicate golden tint, and was accompanied on the dish by a generous quantity of gravy. Judged by the supreme test, the meat was tender and juicy.

The chicken was larded before it was wrapped up, and in consequence was richly browned when taken out. It proved to be exceptionally white inside, and meltingly tender. Poultry, it seems, is particularly susceptible to the influence of the paper bag. M. Soyer once experimented with a three-year-old rooster. He took the precaution of putting it in a double envelope, and gave it an hour in a hot oven. During this time it renewed its youth, and was when eaten, a colorable imitation of a spring chicken.

About the "army stew" M. Soyer is especially enthusiastic, because the improvement of the service cuisine is one of his pet schemes. Into the paper bag he put some mutton cutlets—"very tough mutton," he explained. Carrots and potatoes, tomatoes and a few mushrooms followed. A trifle of flour, a little flavoured, and a spoonful of melted butter were added. In half an hour these ingredients had been welded into a most appetizing dish. The tough mutton was tender, and there was a ample supply of gravy apart from what had been absorbed by the vegetables. For army purposes paper bag cookery seems to possess exceptional advantages. M. Soyer has designed a commissariat wagon which shall serve as a stove as well. On the shelves ranged round the wagon 1,000 rations in paper bags can be cooked while the troops are on the march. On arriving in camp the men would file past the wagon, and each would be handed his bag containing a hot meal. In barracks a similar system would prevent complaints which are now common. About favoritism in serving out rations.

The stewed kidneys were a triumph of success. Supposing one wants a supper dish. You cut up a couple of kidneys with a tomato and a few mushrooms, add a little pepper and salt, a dash of water, or (for epicurians) half a glass of Madeira. On returning from the theatre you put the paper bag in the oven. Five minutes later you may produce a delicious dish, smoking hot. Putting over the apples, which are perfectly cooked, we come to the pastry. The veal and ham pie is "like an old woman would do," the materials just enclosed in a covering of paste, with a trifle of bay for flavoring. "It is impossible to make bad pastry when it is cooked in this way," M. Soyer explains, "an assurance that will bring comfort to many victims of indigestion. Baking powder, according to him, is the curse of the country, and spells stomach-ache ruin. All that is necessary in making pastry is flour and butter and eggs. Enclosed in a paper bag the pastry rises naturally because it is not exposed to air currents which cause it to sink when the oven is opened."

Something should be said about the paper. It must, of course, be pure and devoid of obnoxious chemicals. When there is a wide demand for it, as there must be presently, the supply will meet it. The paper is not expensive—for a middle-class family it need not cost more than 3d. a week—and, when the saving in utensils and the labor in cleaning them is taken into account, the economy of the new process is evident. Enclosed in a paper bag, the food is exposed to heat, which opens the pores of the meat and melts the sinew. Nothing is lost, because there is no evaporation, and careful experiments have proved that the weight of the cooked food is exactly the same as the weight of the raw material. And there is no smell. When paper-bag cookery becomes the vogue, no more will a bouquet of varied odors greet the guest who dines at a small house or flat where the kitchen is close to the dining-room. The scent of the food, like other essences, is retained, until it serves its proper purpose of titillating appetite.

"The Cat and the Fiddle."
 It is astonishing how few people know that many of the Mother Goose rhymes, so familiar in the nursery, were not originally written to amuse the little folks. Take for example, the celebrated and familiar tale, "The Cat and the Fiddle." It was first written and published to hit at the extravagances of the nobility and the foremost men in politics in the reign of Elizabeth. The "virgin queen," too, was not spared in the satirical handling of the simple little nursery rhyme.

It is a matter of history that Elizabeth's court was celebrated both in speech and in living. The plain people looked upon these scenes of festivity as machinations of the devil, and dancing, especially, was viewed by them as one of his slyest arts to wean people from the rightful course. The cat in those days was looked upon as a creature symbolic of witchcraft and evil, and hence an one of the workers of the devil's wiles. In the lampoon, which our present nursery rhyme really originated, the cat was the personification of the wickedness prevailing in court circles.

The cow aimed at the person of the queen herself and was a thrust at her ambition and vanity, expressed in her jumping over the moon. The little dog, who laughed to see the fun, was a bitter thrust at the sycophancy of the courtiers who danced in attendance at the heels of their sovereign. The line, "and the dish, ran away with the spoon," was meant to convey the result of all this wicked waste and extravagance, signifying that the working people of England would go hungry for porridge, or that the porridge dish and spoon would be driven from the homes of the poor people.

These lampoons, or nursery tales, filled the place of our cartoons of the present day, and have been taken as a theme upon which to found a big musical extravaganza, "The Cat and the Fiddle." Lyrics and music have been supplied by Calfeton Lee Colby, a company of 40 people are promised, with Harry B. Watson at the head.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By Ruth Cameron

Can you concentrate?
 Absolutely, I mean, and for more than a minute or two at a time.
 If you can, you are one man or woman in a hundred.
 If you can, you have learned one of the most important lessons of living.
 If you can, you are already at least ten rounds up the ladder of success.

And if you cannot, you are simply my old friend—the average man. For it is daily impressed upon me that the ability to concentrate is a very rare one.

If you will sit down to a task and apply yourself to it for half an hour without allowing one thought of what you are going to do next, one thought of what you have accomplished, one moment of dreaming of alien things to creep into your mind, without permitting yourself one glance out of the window, one instant of toying with the fittings of your desk, you can do an average person's hour's work in that half hour.

If the big business men who astonish lesser men by the prodigious amounts of work they accomplish, were to tell how they do it, I don't doubt in nine cases out of ten we should find that they did not work any longer hours than other men. I think they would simply say that while they worked, they worked with a big W—in other words, concentrated.

A good test of one's ability to concentrate is to get someone to say over four lines of poetry to you. A person of any concentration ought to be able to repeat this much from hearing it once.

It really pains the average man to concentrate, absolutely, because he hasn't been used to doing it. The unaccustomed mental effort strains his mind's muscles just as an unaccustomed physical effort would lame him physically.

What the world needs is more men and women whose minds have been trained from childhood to be capable of concentration.
 I remember a girl I knew in college who could sit down in a room crowded with girls laughing and talking, bend over her Latin book and instantly become oblivious to all around her in her concentration upon her task. We used to say things to each other particularly calculated to distract her attention and laugh at her when she failed to rise to the bait, and some times even take her book away from her and otherwise plague her, but we all admired her just the same and knew she would amount to something.

And she has.
 Given average ability and the habit of concentration—as against unusual mental outfit and inability to concentrate, and I'll back the former every time.

I wish the habit of concentration could be taught in the public schools. I suppose it is impracticable, but it seems to me if our teachers could be made to realize the testable value of that habit they might help to inculcate it—and perhaps, incidentally, learn it themselves.

Two Wives of One Husband Settle Agreeably in Life.

Peter C. Sharp and his two wives, Ann Catharine and Louisa, have settled in the Sharp cottage at Pittsburg, Kas., and told of their plans to live together as a happy family. Ann Catharine, the first Mrs. Sharp, returned to her husband after 40 years' separation, during which each had searched the country for the other.

Mr. Sharp lost his wife in the confusion of the Chicago fire in 181. Through the pension rolls of the war department she found him recently and came here from her home in Oakland, California. Nine years ago Sharp gave up Ann as dead and married again.

"I thought my coming would displace Louisa. I would go back to my nursing the sick in Oakland," said Ann, as the three sat together in the garden to-day.

"She has been a good wife, and married my husband in good faith. This is her home and I shall bring her no sorrow."
 Louisa held Mr. Sharp's wrinkled hand in hers. She is 50 years old; he is 82, and Ann 72.

To signal following automobilists that he is going to stop his own car, a Londoner has invented a semaphore which swings into position automatically as he applies the brakes.

A VETERAN of the Deep Sea Recounts the Wreck of the Prudence, the Battles of Her Suffering Crew with Hostile Tribesmen and the Dramatic Rescue of the Survivors

CAPTAIN GEORGE HUBBARD, who tells the following story, was born in Falmouth, Mass., in 1833. After returning from his first voyage he prepared for Harvard University, where it was his intention to study law. He was graduated from the college and had passed a year in the Law School when the call of the sea overcame his propensities for study and he shipped again. His parents meanwhile had died and he had nothing to bind him to his home. With the passing of the old time sailing vessel Captain Hubbard lost his interest in the sea and settled down to a bachelor's life ashore. He is at present living in Riverside, Mass., a suburb of Holyoke. He does not care to live near the ocean, he says, for the sight and the smell of it wake the old longings in his heart.

BY CAPTAIN GEORGE HUBBARD.

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

BEING the son, grandson and great-grandson of sea captains, it is by no means strange that from early boyhood I was swayed by a longing which amounted to a passion for the sea. Among my earliest recollections is a trip with my father from our home in Falmouth to the old Nobska Light, whence we could see over the rim of the world, as it seemed to me, and watch the tall spindly masts slide down the other side, that other side the longing to see which made me restless from that time until at last I sailed by the old tower myself, until I watched its beacon grow dimmer and dimmer until just before it dropped out of sight behind the earth's edge it became as one of the stars.

I was just past seventeen when I shipped as cabin boy aboard the Prudence out of New Bedford, under Captain Standish Harrington, a great friend of my father, who was home at the time and promised to remain with my mother until my return.

Long previously it had been arranged that I should make my first voyage under the command of one not of our family, for my father wished me to learn the ways of the sea under some other who would not be likely to indulge favorites nor yet to go to the other extreme in efforts to be fair.

Calcutta was our destination. There we were to pick up a cargo of silks and later, at Bombay, take on a consignment of dye stuffs. Weeks of monotonous, uneventful sea life failed to dampen my ardor for the life of a sailor, and the newness of things had not worn off by the time we had tacked through the straits and were well on our way across the Pacific.

I have said that it was my first voyage, and it was likely to have been my last, for of all adventures which have ever befallen me there was never another so perilous as the wreck we endured in the Low Archipelago on that first voyage.

I remember the night was a quiet one until about six bells, when the sun was about to go down. Instead of sinking below the horizon it dropped behind a bank of clouds which had almost the appearance of land in the distance and which hid the bright ball of the sun as completely as though it were night. In fact, it became dark so early that we could scarce tell when the day did slip into the night. For long there was not overmuch wind, though puffs tore viciously at the sails and rattled the yards. A low, dull roar, as of breakers, only not so vibrant, dinned in our ears. The puffs came first from the northeast and then due east. The ship veered around under them, and even before we suffered any violent breeze the helmsman felt the strength of the gale which was approaching.

We had time and to spare to reef and to make all our preparations. The captain calculated that we were at about 20 degrees south latitude and at 135 degrees 20 minutes west longitude. The Low Archipelago was not many miles off our leeward bow, and the captain, fearing the shore, headed a few points into the teeth of the gale, which soon began to toss us about merrily. It was my first big storm, and I think the most terrific I have experienced.

In the next watch, just one hour after the first intimation of the storm, we were plunging about wildly in a monster sea. With the greatest difficulty we had furled all but the jibs, and any attempt to keep into the wind had been abandoned. We could just hold a few points against it.

Thus it went for a time. Then in a sudden vicious gust the jibs were blown away and we scudded helplessly before the storm. The pumps were manned and every soul aboard was kept busy in an effort to preserve the ship. Such another night I have never known.

Hours we were tossed and battered about by the angry water, flying like some great wounded bird, before the wind, not a shred of canvas set. It seemed as though each wave mounted higher and as though the ship must be torn from stem to stern, so terrific was the strain on rope and timber. Yet when a dull, unhealthy light began to spread about us—it must have been the dawn, though no sun could we see—we were still aloft. What was the excitement of it all? I was not in the least way tired, but the captain, noticing my haggard eyes and white cheeks, bundled me off below for a rest.

I climbed into my berth, but there was to be no sleep. For a long time I did not dare to so much as close my eyes, for it seemed that should we for a moment relax our vigilance the bulk must go down. At last from sheer exhaustion, physical and mental, my lids dropped and I was sinking into oblivion when with a crash which tumbled me from my hammock the ship came to a dead stop, careened to starboard and groaned like a monster in pain. Feet scurried across the deck, there were yells and cries and the thud of mountains of sea thundering straight down on us.

You may believe that I sprang for the companionway and lost no time in getting to the deck. Most of the lifeboats were in splinters, but the sad plight of the crew made more than two of the dinghies unnecessary. Many had been carried overboard, and two, Selwyn and Carruthers, had been dashed headforemost into the scuppers, where they were wish-washing back and forth, stone dead.

The Shipwreck.

Whether there was land off our bows or whether we had struck a reef a considerable distance at sea we could not tell, for the wind drove the rain into our faces enough to blind us and it was still murky dark. It seemed like hours, but I suppose it was a matter of seconds before we had the dinghies launched.

Once in the boats there was nothing for us to do but to row before the storm, using all our efforts to ball and to keep the craft right side up. There had

He Accomplished His Purpose, for in a Few Moments There Was a Rattle of Shots.

Finally all that we had with us was a few puncheons of water and enough biscuit for about a meal once around. We very shortly lost sight of the other boat, and I have never learned what was the fate of its occupants. I suppose that they were drowned, as it was a wonder we were not.

Of course it finally ended, as must all things. The wind spent itself, dying almost as suddenly as it had sprung into life, but the waves still ran high. Patches of clouds scudded away, showing blue above them, and in an hour the sky was merely dotted here and there with white, silvery puffs.

Best of all, we saw a low line of hills miles to the eastward. It was hard to tell just how far away they were because one moment we saw them and the next, plunged into the trough of the sea, we could look only at walls of water. As best we could we set off landward. It was slow progress we made, with the fury of the water and the fatigue of the men, but every stroke counted, and at last when the sea had quieted we were close enough to see what kind of shore it was which offered us uncertain safety. The sun, which shone now unmercifully, drew perspiration in streams from the men and parched the throats of all of us. No water was left, and the biscuit refused to go down dry. Our hands were blistered from the long rowing and we were a sorry crew, most of us jealous that we had not been washed away by the first shock, as some of the crew had been.

The beach which we were approaching seemed to keep ever the same distance away, but at last we made it, capsizing the boat in the breakers. The men were all for getting themselves ashore as best they could, but Captain Harrington cursed them roundly and forced them to rescue the dinghy from the breakers, where she might easily have pounded herself to pieces. This latter proved our salvation, for had it not been for that same boat we would have suffered a death far worse than drowning. What island we were on none knew, for our reckoning had been lost during the night; but Captain Harrington was of the opinion that we had struck one of the Low Archipelago group. This afterward proved to be the truth.

No time was lost in going in search of water, which we found in a cool, clear spring not far from the beach. We drank sparingly and washed down the precious biscuits, of which there was about one apiece remaining. Then we began to forage. Some of the men were sent to pry about the land and to discover whether the inhabitants were friendly or otherwise. A roaring fire was built on the beach and our clothes were dried. Those sent to forage soon returned with fruits of all kinds and reported that they had seen many birds which looked like game fowl, but there was no means of killing them, what few pistols were among us being soaked. This brought to mind the possible need for powder and lead, and most of our arms being of the old fashion, we dried our powder on a flat stone in the sun.

Just how the fight went after that I do not know. There was a terrible clashing of blades, thuds of blows and occasional shrieks. The scolding was not all on our side either, for Mr. Kendall, the mate, was killed outright, most of our men were more or less wounded, and one of our crew, who was bound a captive, was stabbed by a native, who committed the dastardly act as he fled from us. The odds were becoming too great against them, especially as under protection of two of my mates I had and it more friendly. We might even sight a ship, which was our greatest hope. Six men were detailed to gather fruit. They went boldly into the wood, but a few seconds later rushed pell mell onto the beach again, a band of black, swarthy fellows close upon them. Two seemed to run with great difficulty, and before they had gone many paces Bill Cook was cut down. One of the men—Sanders was his name—dropped from wounds or because he tripped, but before the savages had reached him he lifted his pistol and fired it into his own brain.

The suddenness of the scrimmage left us all but stupefied, which was perhaps our blessing, for we could never have held out against the thirty or more savages who ran from the woods, and by the time we had recovered our wits our men were upon us helping with the boat. Captain Harrington ordered the men with pistols to ward off the natives until we should launch, and they used the few shots at their disposal to excellent advantage. Some spears were thrown and Captain Harrington was wounded in the thigh, but we were soon afloat.

Wearily, almost fagged, we began to row, keeping far enough from shore to be out of range of the spears in case the natives should follow us. Once, after rowing for about an hour and seeing no sign of human life, we attempted to land in search of water, but no sooner had we set foot on the white sandy beach than a band of natives issued from the wood. One of our men, I have forgotten his name, was left on the beach with an arrow through his heart when we regained the boat.

It seemed as though it would be best to land and fight it out. Death might at least come suddenly that way, and not from thirst and hunger, the more tantalizing since we knew water and food to be within easy reach. Finally, after what seemed days of tedious rowing, we had completely skirted the island. Not a sign of other land had we seen and no sail had we sighted. Opposite the point where we had first gone ashore we lay on our oars while some of the men slept. I think even worse than the thirst we endured, certainly worse than the hunger, was the loss of sleep. About noon the torment of it all became maddening and Captain Harrington asked the men if they were willing to attempt a landing. Any peril, however grave, seemed better in anticipation than the awful scorching heat of the sun and the pangs of thirst. Not a savage had shown his body for an hour, and we thought perhaps they had given up the chase disgusted. But again we were disappointed. We met with the same repulse as at the previous landing, though this time we were fortunate enough to escape without loss of life.

Captain Harrington was unable to resist the temptation to fire into the mass of running black bodies, and one plunged head foremost into the sand. That left us three charges of powder, and it was imperative to preserve them. The captain stopped one of the men in the very act of cocking his pistol and then took the little pouch of powder in his own charge. He seemed cast down by his failure to save the other charge, which he had used, but promised to be more careful. It was lucky that he was.

Drift in the Cove.

How long we drifted back and forth that little cove I do not know. It seemed days and nights, but it could not have been more than an hour. One of the men slept with an unhealthy, stupor-like kind of sleep. Another rolled and moaned in the bottom of the boat. The rest of us sat gloomily, brooding. I stuck close to Captain Harrington, finding my solace and comfort in his companionship. Some way he seemed also to value my company.

It must have been about eight bells when suddenly Waite, who was constantly scanning the horizon, exclaimed:—
"Ahoy! There be a ship. Blast me, but she's bearin' down on us!"

All of us but those too weak to notice jumped to our feet and followed the direction of his trembling forefinger. Sure enough, just rounded the point of the island, a four-master under full sail was bearing toward us. If she held to her course she would pass within a mile and a half. At the time she was about five miles distant. The captain was all action on the instant. "Come on, boys!" he cried. "Man her again. A few more pulls, lads, an' we'll have duff an' grog a-plenty."

The men responded as best they could, though two lay helpless in the boat. We had scarce covered an eighth of a mile when the schooner brought about and tacked off from us. It was the crisis of suspense. Three times the captain fired into the air. It used his last grain of powder, and we all strained over the sides of the dingy to see what effect it would have on the ship. For a few seconds, which told us all what eternity must be, she held on her course. Then she luffed. Captain Harrington, who throughout had held to his spyglass, told us that a man was running up the stern of the vessel. A few seconds later a gun boomed from the vessel's deck and we knew that we were saved. She put about again and came toward us.

At first we tried to row to meet her, but the effort was too great, and we lay there in the tide waiting for our rescuers. Some of us cried. A few prayed, and others, standing, waved their caps about their heads and cheered, then sank back exhausted with the effort. All eyes were strained on the approaching schooner. No one of us was thought of the shore. Actuated by a mysterious feeling of curiosity to see once more the place where my bones might well have bleached in the sun, I turned and glanced toward the beach astern of us.

A cry of horror broke from me. From a little cove where a fair sized stream emptied into the sea a number of long, swift canoes manned by six or eight men apiece were skimming toward us. My cry attracted the others and all attention was again centered on the savages. We sprang to the oars, dragging astern of us the mangled remains of the boat through the quiet water, but the light canoes ever gained on us. The stakes were life, but we entered the race cruelly handicapped.

There was not a charge for one of the pistols. The only weapons we carried were knives, which were useless, for the savages could kill us all before they were close enough to use cut-throats. At the oars the men moaned and murmured incoherent sentences and crazy phrases. It seemed as though something was dragging astern of us. My head felt like to burst and my hands had scarce the power to hold my oar. The men on the schooner had evidently seen our distress, for we could see them scurrying about the deck. A man in the bows was sounding. This reminded us of another statement of danger.

The vessel might not be able to run in close enough to help us. From time to time I snatched a glance over my shoulder at the ship bearing ever closer to us. At last she came to anchor, and in a way, I think, the natives were almost close enough to hurl their spears. No sooner had the vessel luffed than a boat put off and the crew rowed frantically in our direction. The savages began to hurl their weapons, which fell some distance astern of us, but flew always nearer to the mark. Suddenly Captain Harrington hit upon a scheme. "Lay on, port," he cried. "Pull her around port," and at the same time he threw the rudder hard against the starboard side.

The canoes of the enemy were a little to the starboard of us, and the captain's idea was to change our course enough to give the men in the ship's boat a chance to use their firearms. He accomplished his purpose, for in a few moments there was a rattle of shots. Dark bodies plunged from the pursuing canoes and one or two sank. As the rescuers drew closer the fire became more rapid, and soon the water was dotted with the pale, stricken natives swimming for shore and safety. The canoes which had not been sunk or overturned were headed for the beach.

Of how we reached the ship I do not remember. Some of our men were taken into the other boat and some of their men came into ours to row us to the ship, which turned out to be a Dutch trader which was slightly armed. One of the men—Bozer—died, as much from exposure, I think, as from his wounds. The Dutch ship, which had been to Ceylon and later stopped at some ports in the China Sea, was bound for Dutch Guiana. We were carried to Paramaribo and thence shipped to Boston. Captain Harrington never went to sea again. The other men shipped on various vessels; and it was never my fortune to meet with them after that first managed to liberate two of the captives, who joined in the fight with zest.

Rescuing the Wounded.

As soon as we had the field to ourselves we rigged up a sort of hammock of bows and carried Drake and Clews, who had been wounded so that they could not walk, back toward the beach. After a short consultation we decided that it would be suicidal to attempt to bury the two who had been killed. We had not the slightest idea how soon the enemy might reappear or in what numbers, and the safety of the survivors was not to be sacrificed. It was a forlorn party and a battered one which made its way back to the beach. There, while we made ready the boat for a cruise in case of necessity, we feasted on the fruits which had been brought from the forest. Then we gathered as many more as we could conveniently take in the boat with us and filled every available utensil with water from the spring.

We had little thought of repelling the next attack and pinned our hopes for safety on flight. Our powder was dried, but it meant only some score of shots at the most, and few of those would land their mark. We half expected that the natives might wait for night before they attacked us, but we had scarcely prepared for emergency when a band came whooping from the woods. It would have been useless to resist on shore. The boat might have been destroyed and our one hope with it. We took to the water, shoving the dinghy through the subsiding breakers with little difficulty. The natives seemed at first afraid to come down far on the beach, experience probably having taught them that white men carried firearms. They lurked near the edge of the woods and seemed content with preventing us from landing. This we had no desire to do. We had provisions enough for a day or two and we were safe so long as the sea ran smooth, unless they also should take to the water.

When we were all refreshed a little we started to travel round the island. It was not large, and, computing from the direction shown by the compass and by the fact that a great, scarred peak in the centre was always in our sight, we judged that we had gone half the distance when night fell. No signs of the savages had been seen and we decided to sleep ashore. We were the more determined to do this since the sea was running high again and the wind tossed us about more than was comfortable. The utter exhaustion of all of us and our nervous condition was probably responsible for the clumsy landing we made, and, much to our disgust, in a twinkling little breaker we capsized the boat. This did not at the time seem serious, for we soon collected food enough for dinner, though we felt the need of something more hearty than the juicy fruit, which was great port water.

Leaving three men on guard, the rest lay down to sleep, which gave them but little difficulty. It must have been about six bells, or eleven o'clock, when we were watching at the time saw a great red flare in the western sky. It seemed to be fire behind the first range of hills, though it might have been further away. At any rate, I was sent to wake the captain. He was in a quandary, not knowing whether to believe it was a signal and take to the water or whether to wait for sunrise in the hope that if it was a signal the natives were not ready to act on the moment. Considering the sea, the discomforts of the boat and the loss of our provisions when we had capsized, he decided to let the men rest the night.

With the first pinking of the east we were all roused, and after making ready the boat and eating a small breakfast Captain Harrington explained that we would take more fruit and water on board the dinghy and continue round the island. It was possi-

STEPS TOWARD UNIVERSAL PEACE

Senator Dandurand at Mohonk Conference Praises Arbitration Treaty.

In discussing the proposed Anglo-American arbitration treaty before the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration, Raoul Dandurand, LL.D., of Montreal, member of the Canadian Senate, said:

This is the first time within six years that I have had the privilege of addressing an American audience, and on previous occasions, as on this one, I carried from the people of Canada a message of fraternal good will and a wish for permanent peace between our two countries.

In 1905 I represented the Dominion of Canada at an official function of an international character on the shores of Lake Superior, and I there expressed the wish that we should cultivate together an ideal which would be special to North America—the application of the golden rule to our neighborly relations—since it seemed useless to ask Europe to adopt on this question our own ethics. It then appeared to me that if the Christian era could justly claim for itself a considerable advance in civilization by pointing to a greater measure of justice in the relations of these very nations which internally were governed by just laws.

Europe could justly boast of a higher culture in art and science and thereby claim a superiority in modern civilization, yet Europe was and is still a military camp, where millions of men are in daily training, because the law of might, which dominated the international relations five hundred years ago, is still the code to which it clings.

Europeans have presented this peculiar and sorry spectacle of having reached the acme of civilization individually while remaining in barbarism collectively.

It is true that the first peace conference had met already at The Hague, and that most of the powers had, through their representatives, evinced a desire to work together towards better international relations, but, it had hardly closed its doors when the dogs of war were let loose in Manchuria and in South Africa.

In my utter despair of ever seeing peace reign in this wide world of ours, I limited my ambitions to praying that North America be preserved from the medievalism of Europe.

Six years have since gone by, and a change which approaches the magnitude of a revolution has come over the world. Although good men and true, in every country, have been unremitting in their efforts to shape public opinion, nowhere have we seen such zeal and such concerted action as in the United States. It will be generally admitted that American soil was the best prepared for the rapid fruition of the seed so generously sown as it is mostly covered by people whose ancestors succeeded in extricating themselves from the yoke of European conscription and the burden of militarism.

The will of the nation being clear and undivided in favor of the settlement of all international questions by arbitration, its representatives in congress gave expression to it by voting unanimously the resolution of June last, which gladdened the hearts of all right-minded men throughout the world. At that psychological moment the Republic was fortunate in having at its head a true representative of all that is best in the nation, a man strong of mind and stout of heart, who gave practical shape to the people's wish by asking Great Britain to join hands in the forging of the first link in what should become a chain of treaties binding all the nations of the world to the principle of arbitration—a chain strong enough, on account of its uniform strength at every point, to stand the strain of popular ebullitions. Mr. Taft's offer to arbitrate all questions of disagreement without any reservation whatever is the most important and serious step towards the goal of universal peace which has been made since creation. The acceptance of the suggestion by Great Britain's foremost representative men, Messrs. Asquith and Balfour, should ensure the signing of this treaty. It was fitting that this offer should come from the American Republic and go primarily to Great Britain. The many ties which draw them together—a common origin, a common history, the same language, the same literature—should maintain a same trend of thought.

The humanitarian Gladstonian era truly brought the two peoples nearer in the worship of common ideals. Gladstone's regard for the right of the weaker nations gave him a large place in the hearts of Canadians and Americans alike, and why should I not say of the whole thinking world. This Gladstonian age seemed at the dawn of this century, to be threatened by an abrupt ending, but the magnificent answer which has lately come from the British Isles to Mr. Taft's proposition shows that the Grand Old Man has left behind him worthy disciples.

Let us all hope that the terms of this agreement will be drafted in the same liberal and lofty spirit in which the offer was made and accepted.

This document will be an object lesson for the world. It will be the foundation of the League of Peace, to which will gradually rally all the other nations. I venture to prophesy that the French Republic will be the first to give its cordial adhesion to this holy alliance.

Canadians will hail with enthusiasm the conclusion of such a compact, because they will see in it the promise of immunity from ever-increasing armaments.

They have lived, up to the present, the happiest people in the world, without any fear of attack from a foreign foe. The day is at hand when the responsibilities of nationhood will weigh heavily upon their shoulders. This great desire, their most fervent prayer, is that they may be protected against the plague of militarism.

The road is a long one which leads to a reduction in armaments, even after arbitration treaties are signed, yet if we are convinced that we are on the right path, let us join hands, from over all frontiers, and, together, in spite of the pessimists and fatalists, let us strive towards that higher measure of justice among men which will lift them high above the level of the wild beasts in the primeval forests, that obey but the law of might.

No other alternative has ever been suggested for the solution of the problem which confronts us than that of arbitration.

VIRILITY AND VICE.

It is not often that secular newspapers resort to the art of preaching sermons on moral qualities and ethical principles. The Toronto World has the following editorial which is worth repeating:

"All the talk about physical bravery," says the Halifax Herald, "dangling on little boys to be brave and fight, simply encourages the little boys to lie and brag, makes those that have actual spiritually feel guilty because they lack the quality of the bulldog or the wild bear."

We have not read anything so utterly wrong for a long time, or so far removed from the "actual spiritually" the Herald mentions. The Herald article condemns boxing, the main qualifications for which are disregard of pain and a good temper. St. Paul knew the philosophy of fastenings, and the technique of the boxing ring as well. In fact, the mens sana in corpore sano has always been regarded by the greatest men as an essential to spiritual living.

No boys are less likely to lie and brag than those who know what real achievement means, and who have accomplished something by their own effort. It is the boys who have no record that usually brag. The Herald asks, "What has fist fighting to do with a decent human brain?" The answer, of course, is that the better the brain, the more effective the fist. Philology would tell the Herald as much, since man, and manus, mind, and manus, hand, are all derivatives of one root. The hand is the organ of the mind. The fist is a formidable spiritual agent.

It is an error which many modern writers and thinkers have endeavored to extirpate that spirituality is to be associated with weakness and virility with vice. John Ruskin took pains to show the relation between virtue and virility, and real power is always an attribute of spirituality. The error is not likely to be eradicated for a long time to come, and the more especially as the Nietzsche doctrine is likely to swing opinion too far in the other direction.

Our modern theories of puny proverbs are based on a misreading of the Sermon on the Mount, which has been badly assimilated by dyspeptics, but which is really a counsel of perfection for the very strong both in mind and body. "Resist not evil," it says, but the weaklings for whom these are intended are to be over others. To accept one's own portion, but to strive like a giant for the welfare and protection of others, is the altruistic ideal which was meant to displace the old egotism. There have never been enough strong men to make the doctrine universal, and so the practice of ninny-prinny survives to this day.

MAN BADLY BURNED.

Clothing Caught in Fly Wheel on Gasoline Launch—Injuries Were Serious.

Prince Rupert, June 1.—Serious injury has been inflicted on Robert Kitson, who is well known in Prince Rupert, by an accident on board his gasoline launch at Skidegate channel the other day. He was attending the engine, when the sleeve of his jacket got caught, and his left arm was drawn in by the fly wheel and fractured. Unable to free himself Kitson, was held so close to the exhaust valve that the burning gas poured all across his arms, shoulder and face. W. J. Leary and Reginald Husband, who were with him, did all they could to help him. They had to slash away his clothes, and the agony he suffered from the burns made him faint. As soon as he was extricated the others ran the launch at top speed for the Queen Charlotte hospital.

NEW RELIGIOUS CULT IN MONTREAL

Creed and Philosophy of Ancient Zend Avesta Revived in Canada

Proclaiming the freedom of man and his self-sufficiency for the overcoming of evil, proclaiming also the sacredness of the family life and the cult of Mazdaism was formally installed in Montreal at the residence of Hooper Mallet, at 1063 Mount Royal Avenue, where there gathered about 70 persons, about half of whom were followers of the movement, and the others desirous of examining it.

Like most religions of its type, it evidently appeals to the wealthy or well-to-do people and those of good education, and all the surroundings bespoke this fact. The meeting was in a suburban drawing-room and attended by ladies and gentlemen who suggested such an atmosphere, though the dress was regulated by the circumstances, white being the predominant color of the ladies' costumes, while the gentlemen in many cases wore white suits, either frock coats or jackets, imparting a smack of life in Oriental and tropical climes where such garb is worn on account of the heat.

The master of the ceremonies, Dr. Otoman Zar-Adust, Hahish, wore priestly vestments of white surmounted by a sort of stole in red over the shoulders, and seated in the front row were three youths, who appeared to be acolytes, and who during the service were initiated into the mysteries of the cult by some words and hidden signs. To be noted in the appearance of the disciples was the fact that they all looked healthy, thus bearing testimony to the fact that their dietary scruples ruling out flesh food and the tobacco habit produce good physical results. It was also noticeable that no man wore a beard, and a clean-shaven face was the rule. The master is said to be nearly three-score and ten, but would easily pass for fifty.

The first service was dedicatory in respect of the first home of the cult—that is, of the roof where hospitality was shown it; but beyond this Mr. Hooper Mallet has granted a plot of ground behind his house for the erection of a temple, and this plot is to be also dedicated.

An admixture of mysticism, pantheistic adoration and telepathic concentration seemed to mark the mental attitude, added to which was the outward manifestation in the form of ritual expressed by lighted candles, seven in number, the burning of salt as a symbol of cleansing, all of which was interspersed with congregational singing, solos, invocations, and once the repetition of what seemed to be a modification of the Paternoster.

Messages of greeting and congratulation on progress achieved by the Canadian "centre" were reported from Chicago and Brooklyn.

Following the ceremony of the induction of the three youths, during which a refrain, containing a Persian word, was lustily chanted by all, the master pronounced the dedicating words upon the house, dedicated, he said, by "signs known only to those who are the members of the inner fold." Then came the singing of some verses, which he repeated, and which slightly varied in a word here and there, and sung in many an evangelical church, and as these lines were sung, "Blest be the tie that binds," the faithful joined hands.

In the address, which was then given by Dr. Hahish, he claimed that the history of Mazdaism was too well known to speak of, but apparently for the benefit of the heathen, he proceeded to retell it. Unlike all other systems and movements of the world, he said, it had retained all its purity, the idea of family teaching, holding that the ties of family relation are most sacred above all things. It was for this reason that the trine principle of Mazdaism from time immemorial found expression in the Father, Mother and Child, the father as the male positive incarnated in flesh demonstrating the fatherhood of God, the negative female, the mother of the race, the God-mother, and the child the culmination of the fatherhood and motherhood of God. With this thought and idea well rooted in the mind, the family relation had been cultured through dispensation of cycles, and at certain times, not finding suitable material to answer its higher purposes, Mazdaism had retained this most noble teaching in their own little family circle, and only when the conditions and environment proved satisfactory would they impart whatever was contained within the annals of their specific records as was judged expedient to the wealthier of human-kind.

The master went on to declare that they took in their philosophy all the great teachers, their object being the betterment of the race, teaching simplicity, and pointing out that the only way for man to overcome was by his own individual effort, as the efforts of the individual alone could bring final redemption.

The concluding portion of the address apostrophized Anyahita, the subject of a legend of the Zend people, who was supposed to have solved the problem covering all the evolutionary stages of being.

SEATTLE CELEBRATES.

Seattle, Wash., June 1.—The first Milwaukee train from Chicago arrived last night. Work was begun to-day on the United States canal to connect Lake Union with salt water; the Northern Pacific Railway Company commenced work on its union belt line; a great hoisting mill set its machinery in motion, and the demolition of a building to be replaced by a 42 story structure was undertaken. The coincidence of these big things caused the celebration of to-day as progress and prosperity day, the mayor having issued a proclamation asking the citizens to make a holiday. There will be appropriate ceremonies at the canal and railroad terminals, and general public rejoicing over the outlook.

Several lots changed hands, especially horses, sound animals selling readily. There was a good attendance and biddings were brisk. Mr. List intends having an auction every fortnight, particulars of which will be found in his advertisements from time to time.

TEAMSTERS' STRIKE REMAINS UNSETTLED

Employers Determined Not to Grant Men Pay for Holidays

The situation created by the walk-out on Monday of the employees of several transfer barns of the city remains to-day practically unchanged. The men state that, while on their part they are doing what they can to settle the dispute, they are in a position to hold out indefinitely. The employers say that they are meeting with but little trouble in obtaining new men to fill the places of those who have quit. An informal conference took place on Wednesday between George Hardy, business agent for the teamsters, and John Haggerty, a member of the Team Owners' Association, at which Hardy made the proposition on behalf of his union, that a committee of six would meet the executive of the owners' organization, or a full session of them, at any convenient time to try to arrive at an amicable settlement. Nothing has, however, been done in this connection yet. The result is that there seems now to be a possibility of a general walk-out.

Joseph Heaney stated this morning that of twelve trucks in his barn eight were working. At the Victoria Truck & Dray stables there are 25 teams, and of these five are being used to-day. W. Skillings also has five trucks in commission. A mass meeting of teamsters will be held this evening at 8 o'clock.

"A DAY IN FLOWERDOM"

This musical entertainment is being given in aid of the orphans next Monday and Tuesday nights in Ina's hall. It seems likely to be an unequalled success, with bright music, pretty girls, dainty flower costumes and novel electrical effects. Tickets are selling like wild fire, and by present appearances there will not be standing room either night.

PREMIERS ENTERTAINED.

London, June 2.—The overseas premiers were guests of the Irish Nationalists at dinner at the House of Commons last night. There were no speeches, but Mr. Redmond said: "We owe deep gratitude to those great countries which have given a home to so many of our race."

RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS.

Ottawa, June 2.—The board of railway commissioners will go west this month. They will sit at Brandon on June 14 and Winnipeg on the 15th. Assistant Chairman Scott and Commissioner McLean will probably take the trip.

BOY ELECTROCUTED.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 2.—John Wadley, aged 8, yesterday rode his bicycle into a live telephone wire hanging in the street and was instantly killed. His father, who is L. G. Wadley, a furniture dealer, was burned severely on both hands and arms in an attempt to save his son.

PAVING CONTRACT COMMENCES MONDAY

NUMBER OF STREETS
ALREADY ASSIGNED

Company's Plant for Preliminary Work Now in City Ready to Start

Work on the great paving contract which the city recently awarded to the Canadian Mineral Rubber Company will be commenced on Monday first. The plant necessary for the preliminary work of grading and concreting is now in the city and Angus Smith, city engineer, issued a list of eight streets upon which work can be commenced, this afternoon. As the asphaltizing is the last part of the work the fact that the necessary plant for that branch has not yet arrived will not deter the company from making the start. The streets upon which the contractors will make their first attack upon the execution of the paving contract are as follows:

- Yates street, from Blanchard to Fort.
- Menzies street, from Belleville to Simcoe.
- Cook street, from Dallas Road to May street.
- Cambridge street, from Dallas road to May street.
- Chapman street, from Cook street to Linden avenue.
- McKenzie street, from Linden avenue to Moss street.
- Sutcliffe street, from Vancouver street to Cook street.
- Pendergast street, from Vancouver street to Cook street.

While it is certainly gratifying to know that the Canadian Mineral Rubber Company has seen fit to make a start at last many people are wondering why it is that it has been so long about it. One of its boasts when lobbying for the contract was that if it got the work it would be operating in a week. Of course that statement did not figure in the contract and, as time has proved, amounted to nothing at all. It is now some weeks since the contract was awarded, and it was only the other day that the plant required for the preliminary stages of the work arrived in the city. It is located at Kipling's wharf.

The commencement of operations will, of course, mean the employment of a large gang of men. As the contract specifically states that the company shall employ Victorians as far as possible, consistent with the best interests of the work, it is certain that many local out-of-workers will find a steady job until the whole contract is completed. Exactly when the entire work will be finished it is impossible to say, but that it will be pushed on once it is started is certain, as a swift completion is as much in the interest of the company as of the city.

PERSONAL

Miss J. Jones, Victoria, was among the passengers sailing on the express steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie, of the North German Lloyd line, from New York to Bremen, via Plymouth and Cherbourg, on Tuesday.

Rev. Robert Wilkinson, late of Ladysmith the newly appointed pastor of the Strawberry Vale Methodist church, will preach his opening sermons on his new field on Sunday next. He and his family removed to the parsonage at Colquits this week.

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized last evening by Rev. T. E. Helling, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nute, North Park street, the contracting parties being their daughter, Miss Kate Nute, and Mr. Clifton Walter Cameron. The bride, who looked charming in white silk crepe de chine, handsomely embroidered in silk, and wearing veil and orange blossoms, carried a beautiful bouquet of bride's roses. She was attended by Miss Grace Cameron, sister of the groom, becomingly gowned in white, and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Clarence Cameron. The groom's gift to his bride was a beautiful gold bracelet, to the bridemaid an opal ring, and to the best man a pair of gold cuff links. The popular young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. They left on the Princess Royal for Vancouver, thence to Portland, where the honeymoon will be spent. On their return they will reside in Kitsilano, Vancouver.

STATEROOMS NEARLY ALL USED ON PUEBLA

Many Passengers Leave San Francisco Steamship at This Port—Rough Outside

Bringing her usual cargo of freight, including fruit and vegetables, hardware, paints and whiskey, the Pacific coast steamship City of Puebla, Capt. C. J. Hanah, arrived at the outer wharf late last evening from San Francisco. After discharging about two hundred tons of merchandise she proceeded to Fugot Sound points to unload the remainder of the northbound cargo.

Yesterday afternoon the Puebla ran into a heavy southwest gale off the coast and was battered about severely when in the vicinity of Cape Flattery. The steamship had a good run up from Frisco until she encountered the heavy blow and was delayed a short time in reaching this port.

The Puebla brought north one of the largest passenger lists she has had this season. Nearly every stateroom on the steamship was utilized by the many people and as is not usually the case, most of the passengers left the ship at this port, including the following: John Atcherley and wife, J. Atcherley, Jr., Sybil Atcherley, Mary Atcherley, Chas. Callier, Edith Coleman, May Dempsey, A. W. Fenn, wife and child, Fred Fenn, Florence Fenn, J. P. Flint and wife, Elsie Gutteridge, Elizabeth Hays, Mrs. E. Hallson, Ellis Hallson, E. H. Hellman, Amelia Hutchins, Alice Manners, Ester H. Manners, Howard Mayers, Lucien Mesa, Jno. W. Miller, J. M. McElhenney, E. W. Pearce, Kennel Priest, Wm. A. Scott, wife and two children, Emily Stokes, Mrs. A. B. Talmage, Louis Tanquy, Mrs. E. B. Wilcox, Marion Wilcox, Mabelle A. Wood, Mrs. A. Kuhn.

—The value of building permits issued in Oak Bay for the five months just expired was $12,650, while for the whole of last year the amount was $4,700. This shows that the great prosperity of the city extends to the flourishing and well-managed municipality adjoining.

—It has been found that a typographical error has occurred in the complimentary tickets for the Scottish sports at the Willows to-morrow, July 3 being printed as the date instead of June 3. Recipients are asked to note the fact.

—In the provincial police court this morning Richard Price, licensee of the Parsons Bridge hotel, was fined $100 on a charge of not having the blinds of the bar windows raised during Sunday, May 7th, so that a full view of the bar could be obtained. A second charge of not having his bar door locked was withdrawn.

—The Y. M. C. A. boys will start on their annual pilgrimage to the camping grounds at the Gorge to-morrow at 8:30 a. m. At that time a truck will be in readiness at the rooms on Blanchard street to convey all personal effects to camp. About twenty-five campers will turn out. J. Brace; manager, T. Webster; secretary-treasurer, E. Jones. The camp welfare committee consists of T. Webster, Thomas R. Jones and S. Young.

IMMIGRATION LAWS BEING ENFORCED

Woman Not Allowed on the Steamer Without Her Marriage Certificate

Seattle, Wash., June 2.—Married women seeking to join their husbands in Victoria, Vancouver or other cities of Canada will do well to locate their marriage certificates and have them handy in their travelling bags before seeking to embark on a steamship leaving this port for the cities across the line.

Mrs. Theodore Heimann, a pretty bride of a year, whose home is in Los Angeles, learned the capacity of handy reference to her marriage certificate when she appeared to board the Princess Victoria this morning and was told by the Canadian immigration inspector, Samuel Reid, to find her certificate and return later to take the night steamer Princess Charlotte.

Mrs. Heimann's protest availed nothing. She has relatives living here, but none happened to be with her at the dock. Her trunk was checked and was at the dock and her husband will be at the dock at Vancouver at 7 o'clock to-night looking for her coming. She will leave for Vancouver on to-night's boat.

"Rules regarding the entry of women from the United States to Canadian ports, which seem harsh and unreasonable, have been in effect for the past twelve months," said Inspector Reid this morning, who handled Mrs. Heimann's case. "People may complain of the rules, but they are the law and are copied largely from the United States customs regulations."

Heimann, who was one of the chief inspectors employed in the construction of the Alaska-Yukon exposition, went from Los Angeles to Vancouver four weeks ago. Mrs. Heimann expected to join her husband there.

Local shipping men are informed of the stringent regulations of the Canadian immigration service and they deem it best to warn married women travelling alone to be prepared for all manner of embarrassing inquiries when they seek to board steamships plying between Seattle and Canadian ports. As a matter of fact, however, the general public had been until now in dense ignorance of the regulations covering all the points enumerated in the foregoing.

IN THE POLICE COURT.

In the police court this morning Frank Bentley was fined $5 for leaving a horse untied on Menzies street. He is a driver for the Pacific Transfer Company, and was given a day to pay the fine.

Alfonzo Zarali paid $5 for having no light on his bicycle after dark.

Al Wah, a Chinese, will be arrested on a warrant for not appearing to answer a charge of carrying baskets on a pole over his shoulder to the public inconvenience.

O. Chandler, who pleaded guilty to using obscene language, was fined $10.

William Priest, who was found with two aprons belonging to William Gaff in his possession, said he did not know how they got into his grip, and was given the benefit of the doubt.

F. Lansberg was fined $20 for automobile speeding.

Lay Lytton is charged with assaulting Alexander Haslam and a remand was granted until Monday.

The South Saanich municipality is proceeding against employees of the Worwick Paving Company, who are charged with blasting on Mount Tolmie without having obtained a permit. A remand was granted the defence until to-morrow week on an undertaking that the blasting would cease meanwhile.

PASSING SHOW

New Grand Theatre.
Lillian Lucas is the central figure in the charming one-act play, "The Girl of the West," which the Luttringer-Lucas Company is staging at the Grand this week, and her personality marks the success of the act. She is ably assisted by Al Luttringer as Lem Hawkins, the miner, and by Paul Atherton as Jim Redburn, the designing villain from the city. The stage is well set, showing a typical Montana cattle rancher's cabin, and Miss Lucas receives an enthusiastic ovation when the act closes in an engagement between herself, as the western girl, and the miner.

Other acts on the Grand bill are the Rathskeller trio, Bissett and Scott, Gretchen Spencer and Sprague and McNece, and the bill is well selected and well varied. The Grandioscope pictures, two in number, close the show.
"There's Many a Slip" is one of the finest comedies shown at this theatre for some time and heads the programme for to-day and to-morrow. "Percy Jones in the South Seas" is a comedy film showing all the grandeur of the Antarctic seas. "Between Life and Death" is a gripping tale of the South, showing the terrific ride for life. "Lake Zeil" is a beautiful scenic film. Miss Olga England will be heard in a new song and the Romano orchestra will play selections for the pictures.
Majestic Theatre.

To-day and to-morrow: "Her Child's Honor," depicting an interesting competition developing dramatic situations not commonly seen in motion pictures. "Windsor McKay," shows Little Nemo and his friends who are made to do amusing and surprising stunts. The film presents something like 4,000 drawings which "Windsor McKay" draws on a bet that he could make moving pictures. "Robbedling" shows exciting scenes photographed at Huntington, Long Island, where bow-sledding has acquired a national reputation. "Love at First Sight," showing a mix-up in love affairs following the answering of a matrimonial advertisement. "Frisilla's April Fool Joke," a Biograph comedy presenting many amusing scenes. "Cyrus," a comedy introducing an old gentleman afflicted with the gout, whose wheel chair is stolen by a tramp, and all sorts of capers are cut.
Crystal Theatre.

The headliner at the Crystal to-day and to-morrow is a new kind of bunco story entitled "Get Rich Quick." It is the story of a poverty-stricken man and wife, who, after they had become rich, concluded they were better off poor. How this realization came about is just what makes the story the dramatic gem it is. The human interest in it will enthrall you—hold you captive until the reel works out to its wonderful conclusion. The picture achieves a distinct mission in teaching that gold is not all that it is usually after all to gain it the way so many of our "best people" do now. "Brave Swift Eagle's Pride" is a thrilling Indian-cowboy picture. "The Little Child," very pathetic story of a child. "Study in Expressions" and "The Advantage of Keeping a Dog" are two very good ones.

Empress Photoplay Theatre.
The management of this theatre has secured some exceptionally fine subjects for to-day and to-morrow. "Two Gardeners" is a roaring comedy. "The Snake in the Grass" is a drama of exceptional merit. "His Best Girl's Little Brother" is a comedy for laughing purposes only. "O'er Grim Fields Scarred" is a gripping war drama beautifully executed by the Reliance players.

EXPLORER REPORTS PLANS.

Route to Be Followed in Search of Antarctic Pole.
Lieutenant Filchner, leader of the German Antarctic expedition which left Hamburg for Bremen and thence for Buenos Ayres, has communicated the following details of his plans: "As to the general objects of the expedition," says Lieutenant Filchner, "these are to explore the innermost recesses of the Antarctic, and in particular to establish the relations of the masses of land lying west and east of the South Pole. Much work of a general scientific character will also be undertaken."

LEFT FORTUNE TO DIVORCEE.

Calgary Man Pays Big Sum for Domestic Freedom.

J. J. Young, of Calgary, secured a divorce from his wife in the Superior court at Spokane, Wash. The Spokane Spokesman-Review contained the following account of the proceedings: "Few men leave a divorced wife as much property as did John J. Young, according to his testimony in Judge Henry L. Keenan's department of the Superior court. Young testified that he had left to his wife property to the value of $300,000 in Calgary, and another witness testified that she was rated as the wealthiest woman in that city. The husband told that his wife accused him unjustly of paying attentions to other women and that he was unable to stand it longer and left her in 1909, after they had lived together since 1888. When he left her he gave her the property spoken of and retained a comfortable amount for himself. The decree was granted."

HYDRAULIC PLANT NEARLY COMPLETED

OPERATIONS WILL SOON BE STARTED IN CARIBOO

Will Be Able to Handle 25,000
Tons of Gravel Daily—Expenditure of $1,000,000

Vancouver, June 1.—Midsummer of this year will see the commencement of vast operations by the Quesnel Hydraulic Gold Mining Company on the Quesnel river at the new town of Quesnel, Cariboo district. The plant now nearing completion will be the largest of its kind in existence. It will have the phenomenal capacity of handling 25,000 tons of gravel daily.

Construction work on the plant was started five years ago. Investment up-to-date reaching nearly $1,000,000. It includes a 24-mile ditch system which draws an unending supply of water, even during the driest season, from a watershed over three hundred square miles in extent and embracing many lofty snow-capped mountains.

According to Howard W. DuBois, of Philadelphia, general manager, who is here to-day, the ditches, when operations are in progress, will furnish 50,000,000 gallons of water daily, or one-fifth of the daily consumption of water in greater New York. Giant monitors will be utilized in concentrating the flow at the outlet, a tremendous pressure being exerted by the water in rushing the gravel.

The company has already thoroughly tested its ground with Keystone drills. The concession consists of three miles of an ancient river channel of the depth of six hundred feet of gravel extending to bedrock.

Although Mr. DuBois will not indicate its richness, he expressed himself as very sanguine about the results of the clean-up. His associates are American capitalists who are handling at a profit in California, gravel running only two cents per cubic yard.

Mr. DuBois added that the Quesnel holdings of his company contained sufficient gravel to ensure hydraulic operations there for at least one hundred years. Less than thirty men will be employed owing to the automatic character of the plant. By means of an ingenious device one man will be enabled to turn the giant monitors in any direction by simply operating a lever. The pressure will be over three hundred pounds to the square inch.

HAYTIEN REVOLT.

Sharp Engagements Between Rebels and Federal Forces.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 1.—The revolution in the northern part of Hayti against the government of President Simon is growing steadily. The uprising began a month ago and the rebels are daily becoming stronger.

Several sharp engagements have been fought between rebels and the federales under the command of General Jean Gilex, the minister of war, and General Terelle Monplaisir, the commander of the Cape Haytien district. The insurgents were victorious. Many persons on both sides were wounded. The rebels captured two cannon and one machine gun.

U. S. WOOL TARIFF.

Proposed Changes Represent Reduction of $1,300,000 in Revenue of Government.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—The Democratic wool tariff bill prepared by the ways and means committee of the house was presented to the Democratic caucus to-day. The bill makes reductions of from one-half to two-thirds in all wool goods. Raw wool itself, which was free in previous Democratic tariff bills, is given a duty of 20 per cent. ad valorem, equivalent to from 2 to 5 cents a pound.

The proposed wool tariff represents a reduction of only $1,350,000 in the revenue of the government, according to a statement presented to the caucus by Chairman Underwood.

garding Methods of the Steel Trust

London, June 1.—"I have had absolutely nothing to do with them and know nothing of those dirty scandals," declared Andrew Carnegie, when asked about the revelations of the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co. by the steel trust.

He declined to discuss or answer Gates' testimony and he said he would answer all questions put to him by the Stanley committee when he returned.

Asked about George W. Perkins' connection with the panic, he replied: "Perkins is one of the finest fellows in the world. He is on my peace board, and is utterly incapable of doing anything but right."

Asked if he knew whether Valentine P. Snyder of the National Bank of Commerce, had orders from Morgan to refuse the Knickerbocker Trust clearance of cheques on his bank, he said: "I don't believe a word of it. Morgan isn't that kind of a man."

Committee Hears Witness.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—Eliot H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, to-day flatly denied any knowledge of the proposed formation of a combination to control the steel trade of the world. Mr. Gary appeared before the house committee in connection with the steel trust and declared that he had come to Washington to tell frankly all he knew of the big corporation.

The disclaimers, as to world-wide combination was called out by a statement by Chairman Stanley and Mr. Gary was accredited with being the directing genius of such a trust.

His Superiors.

Seattle, Wash., June 1.—When the trial of former Chief of Police Wappenstein, charged with accepting a bribe for permitting white-slave houses in the vice district to operate, was resumed in the criminal court to-day, the prosecution had presented a large volume of evidence favorable to the defence. Officers of the health department had testified that former Mayor Hiram C. Gill fixed the boundaries of the vice district, that members of the council prepared the medical inspection of the women as a means of gaining revenue, and that Wappenstein acted under the orders of his superiors. Police men had testified that they kept count of the women in order that they might pay tribute through the medical inspection.

ANOTHER BIRDMAN REACHES ROME

French Aviator Completes the Second Stage of Long Flight

Rome, June 1.—In a determined effort to overtake his keener rival, Andre Beaumont, who was the first aviator to complete the second stage of the Paris-Rome-Turin flight, Roland Garros started from Pisa at 10.30 o'clock bound for Rome. He arrived here at 5.15 o'clock this afternoon.

Garros, who was delayed at Pisa yesterday by an accident which badly damaged his machine, received a new airship this morning. After working for two hours on the motor to perfect its movement, the Frenchman ascended and, hugging the Mediterranean coast, headed for this city. He passed over Grosseto, about eighty miles south of Pisa, at 11.50 a. m.

Vidart resumed his flight from Nice to-day at 4.51 o'clock a. m. and reached Genoa three hours and five minutes later. After taking on a supply of fuel he again ascended and headed for Pisa.

Frey, whose machine was smashed at Pisa yesterday, is still stalled at that city. He hopes to have the machine in shape to resume his flight before noon.

Vidart reached Pisa at 12.25 o'clock this afternoon and is making preparations to continue his flight toward Rome at 2 p. m.

St. Petersburg, June 1.—In a leading article the Novoye Vremya points scathingly to the Chinese armament in Manchuria, which, it says, calls for the greatest vigilance on the part of Russia.

The paper says 6,500 European trained troops are being quartered in the towns and villages within a three days' march of Harbin, and that auxiliary troops are being maintained in the same area; that 20,000 so-called rural guards have been drafted along the Chinese Eastern railroad, and that four divisions of regulars have been stationed at various strategic points in the province.

Russia, the Novoye Vremya says, can place in opposition to this force only the feeble ranks of the railroad police, which now are scarcely able to cope even with Chinese bandits.

The paper ironically speaks of "beginners in diplomacy" referring to Premier Stolypin, who, since Foreign Minister Sazonoff's illness, has taken charge of the foreign ministry. Russia, for decades, the paper says, has not faced a foreign event in full armor, and as a consequence her unpreparedness and irresolution are exemplified by the recent episode with Turkey.

Port Arthur, Ont., June 1.—Refusing to be governed by an order of the city council that all employees punch a clock on going to and on leaving work, City Engineer Antonson yesterday resigned.

Ernest Fieneschmidt, in room No. 32, St. James Hotel, 1516 1/2 First avenue, endeavored to end his life with a bullet through the heart, but the bullet missed that vital organ, and he made death certain by sending a second through his brain.

NEW YORK HAS BATHTUB MYSTERY

Cannot Locate Husband Who Disappeared Shortly Before Finding of Body

Winnipeg, June 1.—The Tribune to-day publishes an account of another bathtub mystery in New York, Mrs. Henry C. Shieb, aged 23, being the victim.

Her husband was seen around shortly before her body was discovered and the police are now endeavoring to locate him.

In the dead woman's room was an empty envelope bearing the request: "If undelivered return to box 1223, Winnipeg, Man." This box is owned by John MacKenzie, a local real estate agent, who knew the murdered woman well. He says she was Lillian Mae Stearns, daughter of a book agent of Springfield, Mass. Her husband is a traveller, Mr. McKenzie met her in New York in 1905 and since then has been writing to her occasionally and on several occasions has sent her money.

FORTRESS WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY SOLDIERS KILLED

Cause of Explosion in Nicaraguan Town Not Known—
More Trouble in Republic

San Juan Del Sur, Nic., June 1.—The fortress on Tiscapa Hill, Nicaragua, was blown up at 2 p. m. yesterday. Fifteen soldiers perished in the explosion. All the ammunition in the fortress was destroyed. The cause of the explosion is as yet unknown. Strict cable censorship has been established from Managua.

Report Confirmed.
Washington, D. C., June 1.—One hundred and fifty people were killed in the explosion of the fortress La Loma at Managua, Nicaragua, according to a telegram to the state department to-day from Minister Northcott. The cause of the explosion is not known.

Mr. Northcott's dispatch indicated that every person in the garrison was killed.

Since the resignation of President Estrada and assumption of power by Vice-President Diaz the state department has received no advices indicating discontent in the republic. The general disposition in administration circles is to conjecture that the disaster was the result of carelessness in the handling of explosives.

May Divide Republic.
New Orleans, La., June 1.—Nicaragua, probably the most war-torn republic of the tropics, is to be split into two nations if the plans of the Liberal party successfully materialize. This is according to gossip in the Central American colony here to-day.

The scheme provides for making independent republics of the Atlantic and Pacific provinces. In the west the Conservatives would rule, while the new Atlantic Republic would be precipitated by the Liberals who precipitated the revolution of a year or more ago that resulted in the deposition of Zelaya.

It is planned that Adolf Diaz, who recently succeeded Juan Estrada as president of the republic, shall be chief in the new Pacific nation, while Estrada shall resume the role as president of the Atlantic republic.

It is compulsory upon the head of a household, institution or firm to answer all the questions. The enumerators, like the census office staff at Ottawa, are sworn to absolute secrecy as to the information they are called upon to obtain and record, and the facts set down can in no way work to the detriment of any citizen hereafter.

CENSUS MAN IS ON HIS ROUNDS

ENUMERATION OF THE PEOPLE BEGAN TO-DAY

Questions to Which Citizens of Canada Have to Give Full and True Answers

This morning, all over Canada the census enumerators started out to number the people, as of their place of abode last night. Transients are taken in the city where they were, and this even up for the permanent residents who are away from home at the time.

The enumeration will take several days, as the census schedules are formidable-looking sheets and even where the house-holder has all the facts at his tongue's tip will take time to fill in the co-operation of every citizen is asked in the work, to ensure its thoroughness and accuracy, and a little patience ought to be exercised towards the enumerators, who are only inquisitive because the law says they must be.

Schedule No. 1 in the census enumeration is the one in which the people as large are interested, as it is the one which deals with the population by name and personal description. The forty odd facts which have to be recorded to the census man are these:

As to residence and personal description—name of each person in family or household, place of habitation, sex, relationship to head of family, whether single, married, widowed, divorced or legally separated; month of birth; year of birth; age last birthday.

As to citizenship, nationality, and religion—Country of birth; or province if in Canada; year of immigration or naturalization, racial or tribal origin, nationality (which is, of course, Canadian, in the case of all British citizens living in the Dominion permanently), religion.

As to profession or occupation—Chief occupation or trade, any other occupation, whether employer, employee, or working on own account.

Wage-earners will be asked to state where employed (as "on farm," "in drug store," "in insurance office," "in woolen mill," "in foundry"), how many weeks employed in 1910 at chief occupation, how many weeks in 1910, at any other than chief occupation, hours of working time per week at each, total earnings in 1910 from each, rate of earnings per hour when these are so reckoned.

Citizens are being requested to say how much insurance they have on their life and against accident or sickness and what it cost them this year.

Under the heading of education and language of those over-fice, the facts called for are: Months at school in 1910, can read, can write, language commonly spoken, cost of education in 1910 for persons over sixteen at college, convent or university.
