GRAY-DORT

A High Grade Car at a Strictly Moderate Price

When the Gray-Dort was designed, the engineers had two definite orders.

"Build an economical, simple, low-priced car.

"Build a light car at least fifty per cent. stronger and finer and greater value than light car purchasers have been getting."

The original Gray-Dort was built to these orders. Every improvement and refinement since that time has been in line with this policy.

NO NEW ADRIATIC AGREEMENT YET

Serbian Legation in Paris Denies Report Sent From Trieste

Paris, April 10.—Denial was made by the Serbian Legation here yesterday afternoon of the statement that an agreement had been reached on the Adriatic question.

A Geneva dispatch on April 8 gave a telegram from Trieste as authority for the statement that the Italo-Jugo-Slav commission which had been in consultation regarding an Adriatic settlement had reached an agreement under which Italy was to obtain sovereignty over Fiume.

MINING CONVENTION PASSED RESOLUTIONS

Seattle, April 10.—A resolution pledging the support of the International Mining Convention to the McFadden gold bill, now before Congress, which provides for an excise of $10 per ounce on new gold used in manufacture and the payment of a bonus of $10 on new mined gold, was unanimously adopted at the closing session of the convention here yesterday.

Other resolutions urged the United States Government to protect American miners in Mexico; asked for the repeal of the excess profits and corporation taxes, and asked that mining properties be placed by financial agencies on the same rating with other businesses.

Tyroland, Oregon, was unanimously chosen for the 1921 convention city.

Frank A. Vanderlip, New York banker, principal speaker at the afternoon session, opposed the McFadden bill, declaring that such legislation could not offer a solution of the gold problem.

"There is no shortage of gold in this country at present," Mr. Vanderlip said. "As a matter of fact, there is too much gold on hand right now, and increased production will mean increased inflation of credits."

Convention delegates went to Tacoma to be the guests to-day of the Chamber of Commerce on a visit to the Tacoma smelter.

TWO KILLED AND 186 WOUNDED IN JERUSALEM RIOTS

London, April 10.—Official reports received from Jerusalem say two persons were killed and 186 wounded, of whom 170 were Jews. The situation is well in hand.

According to the reports, the trouble started April 4 with an anti-Jewish demonstration against a religious procession. There was rioting the following day, when the native police joined the Moslems, resulting in their being disarmed by troops and withdrawn.

On April 8 there were a few fires and some violence.

Tourist traffic in Palestine has been stopped.

FRANCHISE BILL WAS ADVANCED

Number of Clauses Passed by the Commons in Committee

Ottawa, April 10.—Consideration in committee of the less contentious clauses of the Franchise Bill took up the major part of the time of the Commons yesterday afternoon and last evening. A large number of clauses were passed, and several to which objection was raised by Opposition members were allowed to stand.

Four clauses of the bill were put through at the evening sitting within half an hour. The only clause debated was the one which deals with the secrecy of the ballot. A number of members took exception to the fact that in cases where the returning officer omits to remove the counterfoil from the ballot paper, a possible source of identification is provided in the subsequent removing of this counterfoil, which the returning officer is allowed by the bill to remove.

Identification.

T. W. Caldwell, suggested that the numbered ballot was inadvisable for the reason that it might often provide a means for the identification of the ballot.

The Solicitor-General explained that the numbered ballot was necessary because if a fraudulent voter used another man's name in voting the bona fide voter had to be sworn and the identity of his vote established for use in case of a recount.

Mr. Caldwell, however, stuck to his point that since this did not provide a means of identifying the fraudulent vote, it served no useful purpose. The clause, however, was adopted later without amendment.

Unionist Caucus.

A sharp difference of opinion between eastern and western members on the Franchise Bill appeared at yesterday's caucus of Government supporters, it is said, and Sir George Foster appealed for a national rather than a political measure.

That the national view has prevailed seems to be accepted in the lobbies. It seems likely the Franchise Bill will go through Parliament in its present form and without any further amendments in the way of disfranchisement. This is the general consensus of Government followers following the caucus.

Outspoken.

There were some very outspoken passages during the caucus from returned soldier members in regard to the proposed disfranchisement of defaulters.

Led by one member who won high distinction in the field during the Great War, it is stated that about a score of members frankly confessed that since the outbreak of the war they had changed their opinions. When the question was first brought up, these men were strong for refusing to go to the polls with a man who had failed his country in a time of direst need.

"But to-day it is just a question if we could get at the real slacker," is how this member is reported to have expressed himself at the caucus.

"There are just as bad defaulters, who went to the front line trenches. Some of them got a mere scratch and got back home as quickly as they could," is another expression of feeling given as coming from the same speaker. There is apparently no disposition to change the plan to bar persons from enemy countries having the franchise for ten years, but, in view of the stand by the soldier members, it is regarded as a foregone conclusion that there will be no general disfranchisement of deserters or delinquents under the Military Service Act.

Siberian Expedition.

Ottawa, April 10.—The total cost of the Canadian military expedition to Siberia was $23,300.

This was the information which Hon. A. L. Sifton gave to the House in reply to a question.

The number of officers and men sent from Canada was 4,214. Of these 72 were discharged in Siberia, 33 Imperial instructors with the British Expeditionary Force, 11 resigned, 4 deserted, 1 died and 1 was not accounted for. Three men were accidentally killed and 15 died of disease. There were no wounded. The annual pensions payable to dependents of deceased soldiers would amount to $4,036.

The force, Mr. Sifton said, did not leave the Vladivostok district. The cost of supply, ammunition, etc. (exclusive of the initial issues of personal equipment and clothing for the Canadian personnel) were borne by the Imperial Government, which assumed responsibility for the same upon shipment from Vancouver, and any balance remained in their hands.

Daylight Saving.

Ottawa, April 10.—Sir George Foster, acting Prime Minister, stated in the Commons yesterday afternoon in answer to a question by J. E. Armstrong, Lambton, that the Government had no daylight saving bill under consideration at the present time. Daylight saving, said Sir George, was entirely a matter for the towns and villages which wished to adopt it.

AN OPPOSITION PROBLEM IN ONTARIO

Speaker Says There Are Two Leaders; Division of Salary

Toronto, April 10.—The problem of the dual leadership of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature is still unsolved. Ruling that the Opposition is composed of two distinct parties, each with a leader of its own, Hon. Nelson Parliament, the Speaker, has refused to recognize H. H. Dewart as Leader of the Opposition, and has given as his decision that Messrs. Dewart and Ferguson are equally leaders.

Thus arises the question to whom the salary voted last session for the Leader of the Opposition will be paid. Whether, under the ruling now given by the Speaker, the salary should be divided between the Liberal and Conservative leaders remains a matter of speculation, and an amendment to the statute probably will be required in order to settle the problem.

NEWSPRINT SHORTAGE IN UNITED KINGDOM

London, April 10.—The shortage of newsprint paper was emphasized at a luncheon given to Stanley Cousins, a noted paper maker, yesterday.

Lord Burnham, proprietor of The Daily Telegraph, who will lead the Imperial Press Conference during its visit in Canada, said it was difficult to see how the supply could be assured unless resources, particularly of Canada, were utilized with far greater potency than at present.

Stanley Cousins said that the present quotations on pulp, representing a 600 per cent advance, was unjustified, but papermakers could not help it with the price of raw materials sky high.

Lord Riddell, director of several newspapers, said very few papers with large circulations now earned a profit. He feared they were going forward blindly and would have a serious reckoning to face when present stocks were exhausted.

PRESENT FORM OF AID IS CONTINUED

Ottawa Government Declines to Agree to Bonus For Returned Men

Ottawa, April 10.—That the Government proposed to continue its present form of relief under the Soldiers' Settlement Act and the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, with its system of vocational training, was a statement made by Sir George Foster, Acting Prime Minister, in the Commons yesterday afternoon when he restated the refusal of the Government to agree to the payment of a cash bonus to returned men.

Sir George referred to the representations for a cash bonus made by delegates from the Great War Veterans' Association, and later by the seven soldier organizations whose delegates saw the cabinet last Monday.

Both of the delegations, Sir George said, contemplated the payment of a cash bonus or gratuity to all returned soldiers. Although there were differences as to the amount of bonus required and the basis upon which the amounts were to be paid, both inherently the same in the fact that they asked for a cash gratuity to be paid to the individual soldier. No Change of Mind.

"The opinion of the Government," Sir George proceeded, "was fairly expressed at the last session by Parliament after a long and very careful examination into the whole subject of readjustment, reconstitution and relief by a committee of this House, and at the same time it was intimated that the Government was not in favor of such a cash payment of bonus or gratuity. Since then the Government has given additional care and consideration to that matter and has come to the conclusion that it can not change its mind with reference to the principle of a cash gratuity. There are various reasons for this which we will take into account—the financial condition of the country and all other interests which have accumulated and press upon the Government and Parliament of the country."

Hugs Amount.
"The indeterminate amount running anywhere from $400,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 which would be involved in a payment of cash gratuities for re-establishment and readjustment has to be taken into consideration and forms the most essential part of the conclusion," said Sir George. "The Government is not of the opinion that the best way to reconstitute and re-establish and readjust the returned soldier is by placing a sum of money in his hands over which there would be no Government supervision and without any reference to the peculiar and different conditions and circumstances of each returned soldier. In that respect, the Government, as I have said, has not changed its mind. Consequently the reply to both these requests, so far as a gratuity or bonus is concerned, must be in the negative."

Committee.
Since the armistice and demobilization, continued Sir George, the Government had not been remiss in giving the most careful consideration to the re-establishment of the soldiers. The result of this careful consideration had been certain conclusions which the Government had not hesitated to put into forms of relief. In the past the Government had been given the benefit of advice from a committee of the whole House. This committee had again been appointed during the present session and to it had been assigned the task of taking up the methods of relieving the soldiers and suggesting what amendments were necessary to these. In so far as the relief of wounded or incapacitated soldiers or their dependants was concerned, the Government would do its utmost to aid them.

GERMANS AT WORK BUILDING AIRCRAFT

Geneva, April 9.—(Via London, April 10).—The Germans are working feverishly to construct giant commercial and passenger airships and aeroplanes, according to a report from Rognanhorn. The first trials were successfully held yesterday of two monster machines above Lake Constance.

The airship Nordstern, greatly surpassing the zeppelin in endurance in size, capacity and power, flew for an hour around the lake with a crew of seven men. At the same time a new giant hydroaeroplane, whose motors totalled 1,000 horsepower, made a trial trip with twenty passengers.

Both machines were recently completed, and other monsters already have been begun. The Germans are concealing the results of the trials, and no reports of them are published in the press.

BY-ELECTIONS IN EDINBURGH RIDINGS

London, April 10.—Polling both in North and South Edinburgh, where vacancies occurred through Scottish legal changes, took place yesterday, and the result will be declared April 22.

In North Edinburgh the Coalitionists are confident that Patrick Ford has triumphed over Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, shipowner, and formerly a member of ex-Premier Asquith's Cabinet. The election was without incident except during the last days, when personalities between Mr. Runciman and Sir Wm. Sutherland, secretary to Premier Lloyd George, concerning the former's shipping interests, added a little ginger. These aspersions, however, ended in mutual apologies.

The South Edinburgh result, where C. D. Murray has sought re-election, is simple to prophesy. Mr. Murray will lose a good proportion of his 10,000 general election majority. T. B. Holmes, Liberal candidate, is expected to do more than reduce this. Mrs. Lloyd George exhorted the women to support the Coalitionists on the ground that this course would strengthen the League of Nations.

BIG STEEL MERGER BEING COMPLETED

Montreal, April 10.—The Montreal Gazette prints the following: "It may now be stated more or less authoritatively that the long pending and now-discussed consolidation of the two principal Canadian Steel Corporation and the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Company, Ltd., is close to the completion stage. A further extension to include the Canada Steamship Lines and several Canadian shipbuilding enterprises, also is embraced in the plans of the interests which conceive the scheme, which is one of the most ambitious in the history of Canadian industry. The ramifications of the enterprise, it is said, will extend to not only Great Britain, but to the outlying parts of the Empire, including India and Australia, so that the developments here form but a part only of a comprehensive imperial steel and shipping combination, in which the splendid natural resources of the Dominion are to play an important part."

WAR MEMORIAL IN TERMINAL CITY

Vancouver, April 10.—Unveiling of a memorial to Japanese soldiers who fought in the great war in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces took place here yesterday afternoon. Alderman J. J. McRae officiating in the absence of the Mayor and Acting Mayor.

The memorial, a thirty-four foot column of Haddington Island white granite, Occidental in general design, with just a touch of the Oriental in the carved Japanese lantern at the top, has a picturesque setting at the forest giants of Stanley Park.

Following the unveiling, Alderman McRae, who presided, and a light which will be kept continually burning. The Great War Veterans' Association band played patriotic airs during the ceremony.

SOVIET DELAYS PEACE DISCUSSION

Warsaw, April 8.—Via London, April 10.—Poland believes a further exchange of notes with the Russian Bolshevik Government relative to details of the proposed peace conference will be useless. The Russians have delayed over the question of an armistice and the place where the conference is to meet.

The Polish Foreign Minister has informed Moscow that owing to the fact that the Soviet notes were not received in time, it will be impossible to begin the peace negotiations before April 17, even if both sides should agree.

PEACE RESOLUTION IN UNITED STATES

Washington, April 10.—The joint resolution declaring the state of war with Germany at an end and repealing most of the war-time legislation, was adopted yesterday by the House. It now goes to the Senate.

Twenty-two Democrats joined with the Republican majority in supporting the resolution, and two Republicans voted against it.

Previously the House voted down a motion to send the resolution back to the Foreign Affairs Committee with instructions to report out a substitute repealing all war-time acts.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days to flush out.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

GERMANY SENDS CATTLE TO FRANCE

First Trainload Arrived Yesterday; Cattle Delivered Under Treaty Terms

Compiègne, France, April 10.—Shipments of German cattle into France, in accordance with the terms of the Versailles Treaty, have begun. The first trainload arrived at Chery-en-Valois yesterday and will be distributed among the farmers of the district, while a second shipment, expected to-day at Longueil, will be turned over to inhabitants of the Canton of Ribecourt.

Under the peace treaty Germany was required to furnish France livestock in equal monthly instalments in the three months following the date the treaty went into effect.

PRINCE TO RETURN VIA PANAMA CANAL

Ottawa, April 10.—Any possibility that the Prince of Wales would carry out his original intention of traveling through Canada on his way home from Australia in the Autumn has been finally disposed of in an official telegram from Lieut.-Col. E. W. Grigg, Military Secretary to the Prince. Col. Grigg telegraphed from H.M.S. Renown, via San Diego, last night to the Canadian Press, Ltd., as follows:

"The Prince of Wales will return to England via Panama, in order to visit the chief British islands of the West Indies. He much regrets that he will, therefore, be unable to have through Canada on the return journey this year, but he means to visit Canada again at the first opportunity."

CONSERVATIVE PARTY DESIRE OF ROGERS

Toronto, April 10.—The Toronto Star says in its news columns: "Things are beginning to buzz in Conservative circles. Hon. Robert Rogers, of Winnipeg, is here, and is busy interviewing the leaders of the party and other leaders from distant parts are expected soon. The object is the revival of the old-time Conservative Party in all its pristine glory. The time is now considered ripe for a general move to get back to old party lines. A great convention comprising delegates from all parts of the Dominion is likely to be announced soon as a result of conferences now proceeding."

THOUSANDS DESERT AMERICAN NAVY

Washington, April 10.—Thousands of desertions in the navy in the last year have brought conditions unparalleled in American naval history. Rear-Admiral Thomas Washington, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, told the Senate investigating committee yesterday.

The whole navy service, he warned, is threatened with disaster unless Congress enacts legislation raising pay of officers and men to a point that will allow the navy to compete with civil occupations. There were 4,656 desertions in the last six months of 1919, he declared, and thus far this year they have averaged around 700 a month, many of the deserters being petty officers of several years' experience.

SAYS TRADE UNIONS BEATEN IN SKIRMISH

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 10.—"In the preliminary skirmishes of the threatened industrial war big business has beaten its rival, the trades unions," Dr. Royal Meeker, Commissioner of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor, declared in an address to-day before the City Club here.

He urged co-operation in the struggle against high prices.

"By a carefully planned and lavishly financed campaign of misrepresentation," Dr. Meeker declared, "big business has succeeded in magnifying the defects and obscuring or discrediting the benefits of public utility-controlled and managed enterprises."

Contrary to the popular belief, Dr. Meeker said, profiteering was the result and not the cause of high prices.

ONAWA DISASTER

Augusta, Me., April 10.—Misunderstanding of an order was the primary cause of collision on the Canadian Pacific Railway at Onawa on December 20, by which twenty-four persons were killed and thirty-nine received injuries, according to a decision by the Public Utilities Commissioner yesterday.

Toronto, April 10.—The initial steps in the establishing of a building guild in this city for the purpose of erecting houses for the people at a minimum cost were taken yesterday at a conference of the Building Trades Council and the Board of Control.

The city is to supply the land and materials, and the building trades the labor. It is understood that no profit is to be made from the construction of the houses and 100 will be erected as an experiment. The city is to finance the undertakings.

DENIKINE'S TROOPS LEAVING CRIMEA

London, April 10.—A Bolshevik message received from Moscow yesterday said: "The evacuation of the Crimea by the troops of Gen. Denikine, the anti-Bolshevik leader in South Russia, is in full swing. The remnants of the Volunteer army, perceiving the futility of further resistance, have refused to fight and are leaving the country by steamers."

"At Simferopol war materials and merchandise from warehouses belonging to private owners are being placed aboard ships."

MOTHERS' PENSIONS.

At least there is one bill of prime importance now before the local Legislature upon which all parties find common ground for agreement. The measure to provide pensions for mothers in cases where the breadwinner is unable to support his family is intimately related to the social and economic life of this Province and its journey to the statute books should be a smooth and speedy one.

It is interesting and satisfactory to observe that the scale of pension proposed for British Columbia exceeds that of the other Provinces of this country where similar laws already are in operation. But it must not be supposed that a beneficiary with one child will be translated from her present precarious condition to the lap of luxury by the receipt of $42.50 per month. Nevertheless, the definite assurance of this measure of support will mean much to those unfortunate women who have struggled in silence to retain some measure of home comfort and preserve the natural associations between mother and child.

The state owes a debt to its motherhood; but it cannot be discharged with platitudes. There must be something more tangible than human sympathy. The mothers and the children of the country are the backbone of the nation. To neglect the younger generation is the shortest step towards national suicide. And as long as the mother of her young family is compelled to enter the competitive market and accept the dual role of domestic provider and industrial producer, just so long will the taxpayer find himself unable to escape his taxes, to use the words of the lady member of the Legislature, in discharge of the cost "of paying another woman to look after another woman's child."

The place for the mother of her family is at home; her children were not given to the State to populate its charitable institutions or its corrective establishments. The future citizens of this Province are the boys and girls of to-day; their days of development must not be retarded by an effete code of parental responsibility.

B. C.'S PROSPECTS.

The Monetary Times is quite favorably impressed with the business outlook in this Province in the light of the large increase in the number of companies being incorporated for business activity here. In a recent issue, it said:

"A most optimistic feeling prevails at present in British Columbia. From reliable information The Monetary Times learns that, during the month of January of the present year, eight or nine new concerns were incorporated for business in that Province, that number constituted a record for the whole period since the office of registrar of joint stock companies was established. Last month, however, ninety-seven new ventures obtained certificates of incorporation. Thus a fresh record has been established. These are encouraging signs of the times and should demonstrate to the rest of the country and countries further afield, that there is a brand of optimism in British Columbia that is willing to take time by the forelock and assist this section of the Dominion along the road to greater commercial importance. Coupled with the type of progressive legislation already on the statute books of the Province, this tangible evidence of belief in British Columbia's future should convince the outside investor, whose money is needed for the development of untapped and untold natural resources, that where there is domestic confidence there his own should be also."

THE PRESIDENTIAL POT.

The presidential election pot in the United States is beginning to boil furiously. The announcement of Herbert Hoover to admirers of Republican persuasion in California that he will permit his name to go forward as a candidate has added a big load of fuel to the fire already well stocked with the charges that an attempt is being made to buy the Republican nomination for General Leonard Wood by the "judicious" expenditure of large campaign funds in doubtful states.

Hoover's announcement has embarrassed and irritated the Progressive Republican wing which has aligned itself behind Senator Hiram Johnson, of Anti-Treaty fame, as well as the hard-shelled element which recalls that Hoover never has been a strong party man and actually supported President Wilson's extraordinary demand for the election of a Democratic Congress in the last Congressional elections, the electors responding to the President's interference by returning a Republican Congress.

Senator Johnson resents the intrusion of Hoover, a fellow Californian, particularly because it will give formidable and eminent leadership to those Republicans who favor the ratification of the Treaty, a course which Hoover, who knows more about that issue and what is involved in it than probably any other presidential possibility, strongly advocates. Hoover, of course, is now under full fire. He is charged with being a man without any real party principles, and a circular issued on the subject of his candidature declares he has lived so long away from his country, particularly in England, that it is to be doubted if he ever has voted. This, however, need not be a disadvantage if the American people are as sick of the party political game as they ought to be after what they have had of it during the last few years. Hoover, as champion of the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations, is undoubtedly a factor to be reckoned with.

THE DOMINION PLEBISCITE.

There has been some difference of opinion among legal minds in the East as to whether a Dominion plebiscite on the question of the importation of liquor can be held under the Act passed last session by the Dominion Parliament in a Province which has not adopted total prohibition. The Department of Justice, however, gives the opinion that the Act authorizing the plebiscite is applicable to any Province which asks for it, whose laws may provide for exceptions from absolute prohibition.

This opinion is endorsed by Mr. Eugene Lafleur, K. C., the eminent Montreal lawyer who, in dissenting from the view that because prohibition has been qualified in Ontario by permission given to manufacturers to sell native wines in wholesale quantities, the Dominion Act would not be applicable to that Province, and a plebiscite on importation could not be held. "I am unable to adopt this view," Mr. Lafleur says, "inasmuch as it appears to me that the context makes it clear that Parliament intended the statute to apply not merely to Provinces in which total and unrestricted prohibition exists, but also to Provinces in which what is generally understood as prohibitory legislation may make certain exceptions to the otherwise general rule."

"Section 154 of the statute," Mr. Lafleur continues, "enacts that if prohibition is, in consequence of a favorable vote, declared to be in force, no exportation shall be allowed, no sale or contract to sell liquor to be delivered in the Province shall be allowed, and the transportation of liquor through the Province is to take place only by common carrier, and no package is to be opened in transit."

"The same section then contains the proviso that its provisions shall not apply or extend to any intoxicating liquor which under the laws of the Province or territory in which the prohibition is in force may be lawfully sold therein."

"From this language it seems perfectly clear that 'prohibition' may be in force in a Province whose law permits the sale of SOME intoxicating liquor, and that Parliament intended the Act to apply to Provinces like Ontario, whose laws contain some exceptions allowing the sale of intoxicating liquors in derogation of the general principle of the prohibitory legislation."

"In other words," Mr. Lafleur concludes, "the amendment to the Canada Temperance Act applies not only to Provinces which have absolute and unrestricted prohibition, but also to those which have a prohibitory law with qualifications and exceptions, and in the latter case effect is given to such qualifications and exceptions by the Dominion legislation."

As this discussion may have direct application to conditions relative to British Columbia later, the opinion of Mr. Lafleur is worth bearing in mind.

After thirty-four years of popularity on the British stage Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hicks have announced their retirement. But these well known favorites do not consider themselves old by any means. Mr. Hicks himself will enter the political arena and his wife will still retain her partnership in her husband's public life. The celebrated comedian suggests that he may not be able to juggle with questions of foreign currency with the ease of a Cabinet Minister; but he believes he will be able to represent the view of the "man in the street" on things that matter. After all, these are the type of men who will dominate the parliaments of the world in the years to come.

Sir Oliver Lodge has discovered that Senator Lodge—the Republican reservationist—belongs to his own family, or at least to a branch of it which settled in Massachusetts in the seventeenth century. According to The New York Times Sir Oliver found it extremely interesting to observe a number of ancestral traits cropping out in Senator Lodge. It is a pity, however, that the Senator does not possess that quality of "insight" to which his distant relative has undisputed claim.

OLIVER WARMLY REPORTS REMARKS FROM MR. BOWSER.

Reply to Speech of Opposition Leader on Prohibition Act

ANSWERS CHARGES OF POLICE NEGLECT

Legislative Press Gallery, Evening Sitting, April 9.

"If he has any sense of decency, any sense of shame, let him get a donkey engine and drag the timber out of his own eye before he attempts to extract the splinter from the eye of the Government." With the foregoing exhortation directed to the Leader of the Opposition the Premier of British Columbia concluded a two-hour address on the second reading of the amendments to the British Columbia Prohibition Act in the Legislature this evening. Full galleries listened to Mr. Oliver's slashing defence of his Government and on numerous occasions applause was by no means limited to the members on the Government benches.

Attacking Mr. Farris.
 At the commencement of his remarks the Premier informed the House that the Leader of the Opposition had launched a definite attack upon the Attorney-General in order to injure his reputation in the Province. It had been a part of the Opposition Leader's reasoning, declared Mr. Oliver, to choose what he considered to be the weakest part in the armor of the Government. He had found it to be poor policy to direct his attack upon the record of the Government as a whole; for that reason he had set upon the Prohibition Act and its administration.

Duty of Police.
 Proceeding from a review of the various avenues through which liquor could be distributed under the authority of the Act, Mr. Oliver reminded the House that the duty of the enforcement of prohibition lay not solely upon the provincial and municipal police of the Province. To get the proper perspective as related to these authorities, therefore, it was necessary to bear in mind that at least eighty per cent of the population of the Province were to be found in the municipalities, while the rest of the people inhabited the unorganized districts, but very largely so at the outset that the duty of the Act's enforcement did not devolve upon the Attorney-General, but upon the police. And it was necessary to emphasize that point because the Leader of the Opposition had been the designer of the measure.

Police Co-operation.
 Dealing with the scandal in connection with the dry law, Mr. Oliver reminded his auditors that these unsavory incidents had not taken place in the unorganized districts, but very largely in the organized municipalities. In that connection, however, he would qualify his statement because of the fact that the provincial police were expected to co-operate with the police of the municipalities, and that there had been co-operation of the Leader of the Opposition proceeded to explain.

The Premier quoted a number of letters which had been sent to the mayors of various cities in the Province by the Prohibition Commissioner intimating that the Act was not being enforced, and that the Department of the Attorney-General had been alive to the situation, said Mr. Oliver, as he declared that it should not have been necessary for the Commissioner to point to the duty resting with the municipality. Nevertheless, it was the case, the Attorney-General, he said, had instructed detectives to enter a number of cities where the Act was not being enforced, and as a result of that procedure convictions had been obtained.

Fernie's Case.
 "When this Government is attacked," proceeded the Premier, "it has a right to defend itself and to tell the facts on the floor of this House. I am informed that the Prohibition Commissioner wrote to the Mayor of Fernie and pointed out to him that the law was not being enforced in his city. He asked that the Act should be lived up to. The city of Fernie failed to do the right thing and our detectives laid the culprits by the heels. And I want to remind this House that the Mayor of Fernie came down, with others, and asked me to try the case—and had given charge to one of having liquor in unlawful possession instead of with selling."

The Revelstoke Cases.
 Mr. Oliver at this juncture proceeded to reiteration of the Revelstoke cases on which the police magistrate had refused to adjudicate. Mr. Bowser had said that the Government had shielded those men whereas the Attorney-General's Department had commissioned the Kamloops stipendiary magistrate and had sent him to Revelstoke in order that the law might be enforced. The Leader of the Opposition had declared that the commission issued to the Kamloops official was an illegal one, but that the law might be enforced by the Court of Appeal. "And although he was checked up, rapped the Premier, "and compelled to withdraw his statement, that piece of misrepresentation has gone to the length and breadth of this Province. I want to say here and now that the commission was not illegal, it was not set aside, and it was not declared illegal by the Court of Appeal. Every prosecution and action taken by this Government in these matters has been found by the courts to be valid and effective."

Assertions of Facts.
 The Leader of the Opposition says that we have not only not aided and abetted its circumvention," continued Mr. Oliver, as he promptly dubbed Mr. Bowser's statements as "mere assertions of fact." "That is the trouble with the Leader of the Opposition; he will persist in mistating the case, and when a falsehood is once set going it loses nothing in its mad career," exclaimed the Premier as he cast his gaze around the well filled galleries.

The Findlay Episode.
 Nor did the Government Leader omit to deal with the Findlay episode. But the late Commissioner had not been an infraction of the British Columbia Prohibition Act, said the Premier. He had been guilty of a breach of the provisions of the Dominion Order-in-Council which had prohibited the importation of liquor from one Province to another.

From this stage the Premier regaled his audience with a review of the proceedings which followed the initial exposure. "I want to tell this House," continued the Government Leader, "that when Findlay was out on bail I sent for him to come to my office and I asked him to tell me his story so that we might be able to clean up the whole dirty business. I pleaded with him with all the earnestness at my command. He said he would consider it and come back to me; but he did not come."

Not Buying Evidence.
 "This House may as well know, too, that a good Conservative came to me at the same time and asked me to bargain with Findlay. But I said to him, and I say now, that I do not intend to buy the case—and had given him, in the face of these things, then, I ask you, Mr. Speaker, does this Government deserve the kind of stigma which accuses it of not only having failed to enforce the Prohibition Act but also of having virtually connived at its infraction?"

The Revelstoke incident was too much of a temptation for the Premier to let it pass without another dig at the Opposition Leader. And he proceeded to read an Order-in-Council passed by the late regime which had created the Kamloops stipendiary magistrate—who had been commissioned to try the case—and had given him no less than thirteen trials. "And yet my honorable friend says this man was not capable of trying a whisky case. This is the sort of material poison which he emanates in political matters," tritely observed the Prescriptions.

 Then came the "prescription evil." Mr. Bowser had said that there was no ill when prescriptions were being issued in large quantities. He had tried to make out that the doctors were almost criminals for prescribing the amount of liquor they had done. "But he knows that the doctors were breaking the spirit of a law which, after all, was not supported by a very large section of the people," rapped the Premier as he recalled to the memory of the House the mental picture which Mr. Bowser had drawn in prophetic interpretation of what would happen under the provisions of the new amendment. "I do not think of a constructive nature, but of the benefit of the House the spectacle of doctors swapping affidavits. 'I wonder if he left 'bowser' alluding to cash for the electorates' Mr. Bowser, agrees with his Leader on the question of the issuance of prescriptions. I repeat the Premier cryptically, 'for three gallons of whiskey. And if there has been a 'prescription evil' it has been very largely existent in the municipalities."

A Perfect World?
 "Is it possible that the Government is so perfect that the Leader of the Opposition cannot find something that is really wrong, or must he appeal to the electorates on the strength of attempts to fasten a scandal upon us? Or are the conditions in the world to-day so perfect that there is nothing of a constructive nature that could possibly engage the attention and talents of the Leader of the Opposition to better advantage to the benefit of the Province? I do not think so. I am of the opinion that he could be of better service to himself and to the people of this Province if he employed his time and talents to some more useful purpose."

That Price List.
 Mr. Oliver produced the famous price list to which the Opposition Leader had devoted a good portion of attention during his address on Wednesday. The Premier, however, merely pointed out to the House that the innocent little document had been compiled as an ordinary business detail. The business carried on by the Government as far as liquor sales was concerned was strictly on a cash basis. On that account it was necessary for the people out of touch with the vendors' stores—whether doctors, druggists, or the holders of prescriptions—to know what money had to be sent for the liquor prescribed. "Yet the Leader of the Opposition builds up a creature of the imagination and says, 'Look what I have found.'"

Liquor Sales.
 Mr. Bowser: "You sold a quarter of a million dollars' worth of liquor after you issued your price list."
 Mr. Oliver: "What if we did. We sold it under the provisions of the law of his own making."
 Mr. Bowser: "You didn't enforce it."
 Mr. Oliver: "We did not vary that law with regard to prescriptions in one iota."

The Premier next made mention of the famous moving picture film taken in Vancouver of the queue of would-be buyers of Government liquor. Premier Oliver contended that any infraction of the law in Vancouver was the business of the Vancouver police and the Government could not be blamed. Mr. Bowser interrupted to ask why the Government had gone to Revelstoke to prosecute certain persons for infractions. Mr. Oliver replied that the Government considered the police there were not doing their duty.

Shifting Blame.
 "The Leader of the Opposition need not try to shift the blame of the administration of the act in Vancouver to the shoulders of the Attorney-General," rapped Premier Oliver. "That cannot be done."
 Mr. Oliver declared there was no foundation for the charges of the Opposition Leader with regard to the "joker" in the amendments regarding the taking of affidavits by one doctor before another when it was found desirable to prescribe more than eight ounces of liquor. The law would be enforced. He dealt also with the alleged abuse of the permit system. He declared that in quoting the number of permits issued as 560, the Leader of the Opposition had included renewals from year to year. These permits, explained Mr. Oliver, were issued for one year only, and had to be renewed. Never had a permit been re-issued where there had been an abuse of its privileges, said he.

The Art of Twisting.
 Mr. Bowser hereupon said he had secured his figures from the report of the Prohibition Commissioner. Mr. Oliver's reply was that one could select a few words from any document, separate them from the context, and thereby twist the whole meaning.

Premier Oliver challenged the Opposition Leader to quote names of persons who were abusing the privilege granted by permits. Mr. Bowser said he knew of cases in Victoria. The Government Leader asked him for names. "These the Opposition Chief refused," said Mr. Oliver, "but would pass over the list of permit holders he was holding in his hand he would be pleased to point them out."

The Kaslo Affidavit.
 Turning to the Kaslo incident, Premier Oliver denounced the Leader of the Opposition for branding the name of a reputable citizen. He spoke of Frank Abbey as one of the best citizens in the Province, and said it was most unfair to derogate the name of a reputable man in the dust. The Leader of the Opposition had referred to the affidavit taken by Mr. Abbey by saying it was signed by a man convicted of an offence against the customs law, and that Mr. Abbey had committed an assault upon an officer. Premier Oliver explained that Mr. Abbey was absent from his store, and that a woman clerk had sold a bottle of Dr. Farris' Fruit Salts without affixing the necessary excise duty stamp. Mr. Abbey was convicted of an offence.

"That," said the Premier, with some heat, "is the kind of charge lodged by the Leader of the Opposition. Are the people of the Province prepared to consider his re-election to the position of Premier of this Province?"

Defending Mr. Farris.
 Defending the actions of the Attorney-General in administering the Prohibition Act, Premier Oliver declared that that Minister were the kind of man the Opposition Leader asserted he was, the Premier would immediately ask for his resignation, and failing to receive it, he would resign himself.

LUMBER OUTPUT
TOTALS MILLION
DOLLARS MONTHLY

Demand Will Exceed Output For Two Years, says Report of Board of Trade

One million dollars a month is a conservative estimate of the value of the output of the lumber and shingle mills located within and contiguous to Victoria, and the industry is providing employment for thousands of men, according to the annual report of the Board of Trade which was submitted at the annual meeting of that organization held last night. Regarding the outlook the report forecasted a very active demand and men who have studied the market conditions advance the opinion that the supply cannot overtake the demand for two years, which will assure much activity in this industry throughout the Province for a considerable time.

Statistics published by the Provincial Government, show that the total lumber produced in British Columbia during the calendar year 1919 was 1,758,330,000 feet board measure, or slightly less than for the year 1918, continues the report. "However the total value for 1919 was considerably in excess of the year 1918."

"It is to be noted that the total production of the mills in Victoria and vicinity was considerably more during 1919 than for the previous year. And unless some unforeseen obstacle intervenes to prevent, the year 1920 will show an output of lumber and the forest products far in advance of any previous year, both in quantity of production and in the market value thereof."

Trade and Outlook.
An indication of trade conditions in Victoria during the past twelve months which closed March 31, the report gives the following figures:

|                     | March 31, 1919. | March 31, 1920. |
|---------------------|-----------------|-----------------|
| Imports             | $ 10,538,841   | $ 9,046,021    |
| Exports             | 22,286,473      | 4,929,327       |
| Customs Collections | 1,183,114       | 1,496,440       |
| Inland Revenues     | 128,870         | 101,775         |
| Bank Clearings      | 113,179,093     | 105,060,887     |

The Fishery Situation.
Regarding fisheries the report has the following to say:

"The total pack for the Pacific Coast, Siberia and Japan amounted to $240,514 cases, which was materially less than in 1918 and 1917. The greatest falling off was in Alaska, and with the object of preserving the fishery, considerable restrictions are being put into effect which will probably result in permanently smaller packs being secured there than in recent years. For British Columbia, on the contrary, the Dominion Government, notwithstanding the serious fall-off shown at several points, is enacting new regulations in the opposite direction, viz., allowing an unrestricted number of fishing and cannery licenses, relying on its ability to lengthen the close season if found necessary, but with the individual catches already reduced by the increased number of boats fishing, it can easily be seen what serious competition on the part of the fisher-men would be evoked by the further curtailing of their catches by any cutting down of the weekly fishing time. The strongest possible representations have been made to Ottawa supported by the fishermen, cannery owners, returned soldiers' associations, boards of trade, bankers and leading merchants, but so far without avail; and, further, the Provincial Minister of Fisheries has forcibly urged that the acquisition of the fishing interests by the Government to be operated in a manner consistent with the preservation of the fishing would be preferable to the regulation of the industry by measures which it is the general opinion can only lead to its immediate disorganization and eventual destruction. But all so far without avail. Are our remaining salmon fisheries to follow the course of destruction which marked our Fraser River salmon fishing and our halibut fishing, notwithstanding that—unlike the latter instances—they are solely within Canadian control?"

Railroad Construction.
In reviewing the railroad construction carried on during the year the report says:

"During the past year construction was started on the Great Central Lake Branch of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway, and it is expected that it will be ready for track-laying early in the Fall, which new line to Great Central Lake will open up and furnish transportation for a large body of timber tributary to the district, most of which timber it is expected will be manufactured at Port Alberni."

"The company is applying to Parliament for powers to construct from Courtenay to Duncan Bay, and it is possible that work may be started on this extension next year, thereby furnishing rail transportation facilities for Campbell River and northern districts, both on the Island and on the mainland."

Three new logging companies and five new saw mill companies have established their industries on the Island tributary to the E. & N. Railway, which are adding to the prosperity of the various districts in which they are located.

"Progress of Canadian National Railways construction work on Vancouver Island line was as follows:

"During 1919 the Patricia Bay branch between Alpha Street and Patricia Bay has been operated in conjunction with the car ferry Canora, and other barges running to the mainland."

"Owing to the non-completion of the Johnson Street Bridge only that portion of the Victoria terminals north of the Point Ellice Bridge have been so far constructed and will be ready for operation shortly."

"The line under construction has been completed to Mile 52.5, Koksilah River, and it is anticipated that this portion of the line will be opened for traffic about April 15."

"Tracklaying from Koksilah north-erly will be proceeded with about April 15."

Rossini was one day absorbed in contemplation of all the tempting dainties exhibited in the window of a delicatessen store, as an elegant lady addressed him with the words, "Have I not the pleasure and honor to speak with the great Maestro Rossini?" "You certainly have, Madame" and in so saying Rossini turned around so as to give the lady the opportunity to study him from every angle whereupon the facetious maestro said to her: "And now Madame, that you have admired me at your ease, won't you please buy me that bundle of wonderful asparagus?" The lady was only too glad to comply with the humorous request.

In view of the fact that the bride has relatives in this city, the following announcement from The Vancouver Daily Province will be of interest: "A pretty house wedding was solemnized on Wednesday morning at the home of the bride's parents, 1245 Eighth Avenue West, Vancouver, when Miss Helen Christina Harold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Harold, was united in holy matrimony to John D. Strout, son of Eugene Strout, of Vernon, B. C. Rev. E. A. Henry, of Chalmers Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony, which took place under a tastefully decorated arch of ivy, ferns and pink and white carnations, through which dainty white silk ribbons were tied. The bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin, charmingly played by Miss Nellie Fadden, and looked very winsome in a lovely suit of Eeklin blue broadcloth, braided in the same color, and wearing a corsage bouquet of pale pink roses. She wore a charming hat of blue georgette with facings of shell pink. Miss Winnifred Harold, sister of the bride, made a charming bridesmaid, in a frock of pink broadcloth, richly embroidered, and wore a large pink hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Arthur Harold, the bride's brother, acted as best man. Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Strout left by motor for a honeymoon trip to Seattle and Portland, and their return will take up residence at their new home on Belmont Avenue, Point Grey. The guests present were Miss Strout, Mr. and Mrs. Petch, Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. W. Reeves, Miss Agnes Miller, Mrs. F. Mills, Miss Florrie Jones, Dr. Loveridge, Mrs. J. P. Gadd, Mr. A. L. Wilson (Seattle), Miss Nellie Fadden, Miss Marjorie Fadden, Miss Bessie Morrison, Miss Petch, Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Dajus and others.

The Vancouver delegates who came over from the mainland to attend the second reading of the Mothers' Pensions Bill, left on last night's boat on their return to Vancouver. Before leaving the delegation were the guests at supper in the restaurant at the Parliament Buildings of Mrs. Ralph Smith, M. P. P., the Premier and the Speaker of the House joining the party which included Mrs. J. A. Clark, Mrs. Hugh Wilson, Mrs. J. E. Cowper, Miss A. Noble and Mrs. H. G. Taylor, Mrs. J. H. McGill, Mrs. Wm. McConkey, Mrs. R. P. Pettipiece, Mrs. J. R. Brown, Mrs. R. H. Griffin, Mrs. O. Egan, Mrs. McGovern, Mrs. J. C. Kemp, Mrs. J. Robinson, Mrs. D. M. McKay, Mrs. J. A. Gillespie, Mrs. Wm. The following announcement from The Daily Province of Friday's date will be of interest to residents of Saanich: "A quiet wedding was solemnized on Thursday morning in Christ Church, when Miss Phyllis Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Shaw, was united in marriage to Victor Field, manager of the Merchants Bank at Sidney, B. C. Rev. Mr. Craig performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Field and Mr. P. Field acted as groomsmen. Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Field left on a honeymoon trip to Los Angeles, after which they will make their home in Sidney."

The annual dance of the Victoria High School Cadet Corps, will be held at the Alexandra Club on Friday, April 16, dancing from 9 to 1. The dance is under the patronage of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Captain Martin, R. N., General Ross, The Hon. J. D. MacLean and the Camouset Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire. Guards' Orchestra will supply the music. By special permission of the general officer commanding M. D. No. 11, uniform may be worn by returned officers and men. The dance is in aid of the Uniform Fund of the Corps.

The Women's Canadian Club has announced that the opening to the public of the beautiful grounds at "Mountjoy," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Pemberton, has been postponed until Friday, April 16, from 3 till 6 p. m. As previously announced a small admission fee will be charged and afternoon tea will be served. The proceeds will be devoted to the Club's Emergency Fund for the assistance of needy cases among returned soldiers and their families.

The Civil Service Association will hold an informal "At Home" in the Alexandra Club on Monday evening, April 12, from nine till one o'clock. The arrangements are in the hands of the social committee of the organization and admission is by invitation. Dancing, music, and cards will form the main entertainment features and an enjoyable evening is assured. Invitations have been extended to the Premier and members of the Cabinet.

TO PAY TRIBUTE TO MRS. HAROLD FLEMING

Ward in Memory of Soldier-Son to Be Formally Opened Monday

Tribute to the magnificent work performed throughout the whole period of the war by Mrs. Harold Fleming, of the Victoria Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, will be paid at an impressive ceremony on Monday afternoon, when the Lieutenant-Governor will formally open the ward at the Jubilee Hospital as a practical memorial to her son, the late Pte. Chas. H. Fleming of the 29th Battalion, who fell at Courcellette on September 26, 1918.

The ward has been furnished by Victoria citizens from the funds collected by the various women's organizations of the city, and in this connection it must be said that few popular subscriptions have met with more spontaneous support that this tribute to one of Victoria's bravest mothers, whose sense of patriotic duty was so strong that she never ceased her efforts for the Canadian Red Cross even during the trying period following her sad bereavement.

Monday's ceremony will commence at 3.30, and besides the Lieutenant-Governor, who will preside, Mayor Porter, the officers of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and fellow workers of Mrs. Fleming's in the Red Cross, it is anticipated, that all Victorians who desire to pay tribute to Mrs. Fleming's record of service as superintendent of the Red Cross supplies throughout the five years of war will be present at the ceremony.

Navy League Chapter, I. O. D. E., Shows Practical Interest in Boys' Movement

Practical evidence of their keen interest in the Boys' Naval Brigade movement was shown by the members of the Navy League Chapter, I. O. D. E., yesterday afternoon when, at their regular monthly meeting, the members voted the sum of $150 to the local brigade, with the promise of another handsome donation in the near future. Mrs. E. O. Weston, the regent, presided and there was a good attendance of members.

Mrs. Plumb presented an interesting resume of the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women. One new member, Mrs. Whiteley, was enrolled and welcomed to the chapter. Delegates to the National and Provincial Chapter meetings were formally appointed. The treasurer was instructed to forward the annual fees of the officers and councillors—eighteen in all—to the Victoria branch of the Navy League of Canada.

The chapter, in accordance with its work of promoting the interests and housing after the welfare of sailors and their dependents, have decided to co-operate with the Ladies Guild of the Seaman's Institute in holding a garden fête at "Gonzales" on June 2.

Associated Dress Industries Board Seeking Improvements in Dress

The appointment by the Executive Board of the Associated Dress Industries of America of six important committees to act on problems affecting the dress manufacturing industry throughout the United States, promises to result in the accomplishment of constructive work of a most interesting nature, according to a statement issued by the organization, through its Executive Director, David N. Mozesohn.

The six committees will function as follows: One for the purpose of discussing the paper box situation and the feasibility of the organization operating its own paper box plant, and supplying its members with containers at cost. This committee consists of five members. For the purpose of acting on a national advertising campaign to popularize the ready-to-wear dress for women, misses and children, a committee of twelve was appointed. It will report to the organization within the next month and outline the plan of appropriation for the campaign. This committee consists of twelve members of the organization.

A committee of five was appointed to act as a permanent body, to discourage destructive advertising and to encourage an educational campaign among the manufacturers, for improved copy for newspapers in which their advertisements appear. To prepare a uniform order blank for the retail trade of the country, to take the place of the order blanks in use at the present time, and which will contain certain specifications to protect the buyers as well as seller, a committee was appointed. A committee of five members was also appointed to act on a uniform order blank for the wholesale trade, to be used by the wholesalers in their purchases of raw materials.

A committee of five was also appointed in order that the conformation of dresses to women's figures may be even more greatly improved upon. This will eliminate a large percentage of alterations now in vogue in retail stores, as well as making possible a saving to both the retailer and consumer.

TO HOLD DINNER-DANCE

Aerial League Plan Enjoyable Time For Monday Night at Criterion.

If the preliminary arrangements may be taken as a guide to the finished product, the dinner dance to be held by the Aerial League of Canada, Victoria Branch, on Monday night at the Criterion, will far surpass all the previous entertainments staged by the local aviators.

An energetic committee under the capable direction of Mrs. G. Christy has left no stone unturned that would lead to the success of the function. Striking a novel and popular note in the returned service men's entertainments, the Aerial League will produce some of the old quadrance songs that were so popular in the messes of the Royal Flying Corps. These will be encreto numbers and should be productive of much entertainment and revive old memories.

The more solid and conventional portion of the programme will be rendered exclusively by professionals and will in itself form an entertainment worthy of distinct commendation.

As the seating accommodation of the Criterion is strictly limited only 175 guests may be accommodated. Nearly all the tables have been booked, but the few remaining ones may be secured on application to E. G. Christy or W. H. Brown at the Aerial League Clubrooms in the Arcade Building prior to noon Monday.

NOTED PARTY 'SAL

BY KASHIMA MARU
F. A. Vanderlip, Financier, J. G. Schurman, G. Eastman and Others on Mission

An influential party of Americans headed by Frank A. Vanderlip, formerly of the National City Bank of New York and now chairman of the board of directors of the American International Corporation, is leaving for the Orient this afternoon aboard the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Kashima Maru.

Other members of the party include: Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the New York Life Insurance Company; Mrs. Kingsley; Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell University; and Mrs. Schurman; Seymour L. Cromwell, vice-president of the New York Stock Exchange; and Mrs. Cromwell; Mr. Julian Street, writer, representing The Saturday Evening Post; Philadelphia, and their daughter; Henry W. Taft, lawyer and brother of ex-President William Howard Taft; Louis L. Clague, president of the American Exchange National Bank of New York; Mrs. Clarke and their daughter; Lyman J. Gage, Secretary of the Treasury; President McKinley's Cabinet; George Eastman, president of the Eastman Kodak Company, of Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Lyon Berger Travis, of Nippon Yusen Kaisha, Seattle capitalist and philanthropist.

Two Distinctions.
Mr. Vanderlip has two distinctions which he insists are part of his "career." First, he was at one time a successful newspaper man, and is still in the game and loves it; second, he served as assistant secretary of the Treasury under Lyman J. Gage, during the first administration of McKinley.

From the treasury department he went over to the National City Bank of New York City, then a $25,000,000 corporation, as vice-president, and became president in 1903, serving until his resignation a few months ago. Mr. Vanderlip has been traveling and lecturing in Europe after the war, and has said some startling things to the men of big business in America since his return.

Not in Politics.
Just before he left New York on his present trip he was urged by an influential delegation to become a candidate for United States senator in the Empire state, and had it not been for his plans to visit the Orient he might have seriously considered the suggestion. "But I am in no sense a candidate for political office," he says. "It would not be good politics, I am afraid, to announce one's candidacy for a high office and then take a trip abroad."

At the time he served as assistant secretary of the treasury, Mr. Vanderlip had the further distinction of organizing the national loan, which was to have been in the modest sum of $200,000,000. It was subscribed seven times over and so many applications were made for it that only small subscribers were allowed to buy the bonds, and a limit was placed on individual purchases. This loan, Mr. Vanderlip explains, was handled in Washington, D.C., exclusively. Vanderlip organized a special force of 300 clerks, who worked night and day in the city, and on the day that the bids were closed notices were forwarded to the successful bidders. The whole transaction was completed in four hours and put Vanderlip on the official map of Washington.

Visualizes Problems.
Mr. Vanderlip visualizes the biggest problem in America to-day as the development of an intelligent democracy "capable of forming sound judgments regarding the intricate economic questions confronting the Government and the people." Unless these questions, which he says include "inflation, the major cause of the high cost of living, and the situation of sound economic principles. He believes in thrift, for example, but looks to the Federal Government to lead the way and by its own conduct give the people an example of thrift worthy of emulation. The present Federal administration, he declares, is woefully lacking in this homey virtue.

"Taxation is enveloped in profligate expenditure by the Government," he says, "and the support of the tax payer is laid on a civilized people, but our Government expenditures are exceeding our income. Education is being neglected, and the amount almost to a fetish. There are few national ills he could not cure with education properly applied.

In approaching the problem of labor, Mr. Vanderlip is open-minded. He does not believe that all of the wrong and injustice is on one side of the question, and that there may be just complaint on both sides. Here he would digress from his thesis on economics, to frankly admit that "the settlement of the labor controversy is not so much, perhaps, economic, as it is spiritual," and if he could proceed on this basis he is satisfied that the labor problem would cease to be a problem and develop into a simple question of "justice and fair play on both sides." Its determination would then be a simple matter.

He finds in the changed attitude of capital and labor toward each other, coupled with rapidly changing industrial conditions, an open road to the creation of a better understanding between each, and with the removal of the major cause of the high cost of living, as set forth by him in his interview, he is hopeful of a better day coming.

Dr. Schurman.
Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell University, and one of the distinguished group of American diplomats drawn from the educational life of the United States, was named by President McKinley to head the first Philippine commission twenty-one years ago, is also a member of the party of financiers, business men and educators, who are bound to the Orient by the Kashima Maru.

On the subject of the educational problem in the United States, Dr. Schurman speaks with conviction. "The deterioration of the teacher class is a menace to American education," he declares. "We are losing our fair share of the best brains of

A GOOD MEDICINE

FOR SPRING USE
Harsh Purgatives Should Be Avoided — A Tonic Will Restore Your Energy

Not exactly sick but not feeling quite well. That is the way thousands of people feel in the spring. It is a sign that the trying indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you. Early tired, appetite weak, sometimes headaches and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin, or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order, and these symptoms may easily develop into more serious trouble.

Do not dose yourself with purgatives as so many people do, in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you that this is true. What you need in the spring is a tonic that will build up the blood and nerve. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can do this speedily and surely. This medicine enriches the blood, clears the skin, improves the appetite and makes tired, depressed men, women and children bright, active and strong. As an example of the value of these pills we give the statement of Mrs. S. McBurnie, of Tatamagouche, N.S., who says:—"I have good reason to speak in the highest terms of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was badly run down, failing in weight, and suffering from dizzy spells and weakness. In fact my condition was such that I was hardly able to do my housework. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after using several boxes there was a noticeable improvement. I continued using the pills for some time longer and found that I had fully regained my old time health and strength and was able to do my housework without feeling weak and worn out as I did before I began using the pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

the country in the teaching profession. "We are living in a new age, calling for thoroughness and efficiency in our work, and the new age imposes upon us all a greater demand for serious thinking. Higher education is an enormous privilege, and yet how many of our colleges and universities as places to have a good time, to excel in athletics, to acquire social leadership only. "The fact is that colleges and universities exist for the sake of enabling the students to train their minds in serious knowledge, and these come only by dint of hard work. In all such institutions we must have thorough work and constant application.

Train People to Think.
"I regard the colleges and universities of America as being on trial, and the first test is the quality of training our young men and women to think, study and be useful citizens they do not deserve to survive in this new age, and yet how many of our colleges and universities are places to have a good time, to excel in athletics, to acquire social leadership only. "The fact is that colleges and universities exist for the sake of enabling the students to train their minds in serious knowledge, and these come only by dint of hard work. In all such institutions we must have thorough work and constant application.

Political Sentiment.
Eastern sentiment against President Woodrow Wilson and his administration and hope that the coming national elections will place in power an administration that can produce business confidence, is the gist of views advanced by Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the New York Life Insurance Company, and George Eastman, president of the Eastman Kodak Company.

Mr. Eastman does not express personal bitterness against President Wilson, but rather joins Mr. Kingsley in declaring the sentiment of the east at least for a Republican national administration, which "could straighten things out."

YOU can't see the counters in a pair of shoes, yet a great deal depends upon the counters—just how much is shown in the pictures here. The picture to the left demonstrates a shoe where leather counters are used—note how the shoe has kept its shape. The one to the right is where the inferior fibre counter is used—see how it has lost its shape. This actually happens when a shoe with a fibre counter becomes wet.

Consistent to the Leckie policy, "nothing but the best," only leather counters are used in making a LECKIE BOOT. That's one of the reasons it looks as shapely after months of hard wear as it did the day you slipped it on your foot. It's the things you can't see that help make the LECKIE BOOT give—

How to Wave Hair to Appear Naturally Curly

The tight little curls so dear to a woman's heart, the kind that remain in curl under any and all weather conditions, are best acquired by means of the new silmerine method. This simple method enables one to have the prettiest waves and curls imaginable, with all the appearance of "Nature's own." Silmerine is of course perfectly harmless. It leaves no sediment on the hair, nor any sticky or greasy trace. It also serves as a beneficial dressing, imparting a lively lustre and whole-some beauty to the hair. And the hair is fine and fluffy when combed out. If one will procure a bottle of liquid silmerine from the druggist and follow the easy directions, she will be pleased to be in evidence within three hours, and which will last as long time. The silmerine is applied with a brush.

Second Offence Against Nelson For Having Liquor in Possession

While attempting to take two bottles of whisky to a room in the Kent Hotel last night Nels Nelson, one of the bartenders, was apprehended by Police-Sergeant Boulton, who immediately gave chase. In an effort to rid himself of the evidence Nelson rushed into a bathroom and smashed the bottles in the bathtub. He was in the act of pouring out the contents of the second bottle when the police officer stopped him.

In the police court this morning Nelson was arraigned on a charge of having liquor in his possession and pleaded guilty. After hearing the facts of the capture from Sergt. Boulton, Magistrate Jay imposed a fine of $400 or in default four months' imprisonment with hard labor.

This was the second time that Nelson had been found guilty of having liquor in his possession. On November 13 last he was fined $100. The court imposed practically the full penalty of the law this morning.

Four of the young women who were arrested by Magistrate Jay last night were found guilty of leaving the city yesterday disappeared without fuss during the night. The fifth woman, Lena Brown, colored, however, decided to visit the court and prove to the magistrate that she was not a loose, idle and disorderly person without any visible means of support. To show that she had money she engaged the services of R. C. Lowe, as counsel. Without much difficulty she forced the Court to believe that she was not guilty of the charge and was discharged.

ELKS CELEBRATE BY BURNING MORTGAGE

Large Gathering at Smoker Held on Thursday Evening

The odor of incense, burning in a censer, is, as a rule, pleasant, but never did incense smell so sweetly as did the burning of the mortgage on the Elks Club, which ceremony was performed by Worthy Exalted Ruler M. W. Grahame at a banquet held in the clubrooms on Thursday evening.

Two hundred members of the local lodge were seated at tables piled high with delectable viands by Caterer Percy Payne, and as the burning parchment, was being reduced to ashes Professor Heaton at the piano struck up the "Dead March" from Saul. Fully a score of members reminded the assemblage that just three years previously they were preparing to go over the top at Vimy Ridge, and did, just as vociferously as on Thursday.

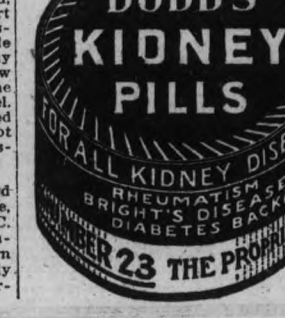

Elkdom in Victoria, the history of which dates from 1914, started under the most auspicious circumstances, but the war took nearly sixty per cent of the active members, and reminded the assemblage that the installation of the Victoria Elks, which was held on the 14th of March, was the result of the financial liabilities.

This liquidation was only accomplished through the return of the soldier members and a vigorous membership campaign begun last Fall, which brought the numerical strength of the lodge up to pre-war days.

The local herd is now concentrating all its energies in a drive for a permanent home, and if the support pledged at Thursday's banquet may be taken as a criterion for future activities, another such occasion will be held at no distant date to celebrate the installation of the Victoria Elks in quarters that will meet every requirement of the Order.

Thursday night's affair was presided over by Past Exalted Ruler Alex. Peden, and between courses the following members contributed to a most entertaining programme: Secretary W. Galt, Freeman Adams, Butterworth, Kelway, Swan, Wands, Rylands and the Sealoway quartette. Speeches were delivered by Messrs. Dillabough, N. C. Hall, C. Raymond, C. F. Moriarty, J. O'Brien, D. W. Spence, J. A. Dadds, McConnell and the Worthy Exalted Ruler.

J. L. BECKWITH NEW PRESIDENT OF BOARD

Relieves J. O. Cameron in Charge of Board of Trade; J. H. Beatty Vice

Following a year's faithful service as vice-president of the Board of Trade, John L. Beckwith was elevated to the presidency of that body at the annual meeting held last night. Mr. Beckwith succeeds Mr. J. O. Cameron, who has accepted a position on the Council of the Board. James H. Beatty, one of the youngest business men of the city, succeeds to the position of vice-president and Fred Elworthy will commence his twenty-ninth term as secretary.

In handing over the reins of office to Mr. Beckwith, the retiring president made a few pointed remarks about the lack of support from some members of the Board.

Value to Community.

"I don't think some members of the Board realize the value of this Board to the community," he said. There seems to be a great lack of appreciation of the work which is being done. So many men go along and attend to their own business, and refuse to spend any time helping public bodies. They seem to follow the old saying of 'Let George do it,' but they are always ready to run to the Board of Trade when they want assistance in some matter. The business men of Victoria ought to wake up to a better spirit of appreciation of what this Board means. Instead of having 15 new members enrolled to-night we should have had 150." Similar criticism was directed at the new President. "I realize that the business men of this city should get behind the Board's activities," asserted Mr. Beckwith. "I can assure you that while some men have a poor conception of the work of the Board, it has been all-important to the city, and now it behooves us to work harder than our predecessors did if we are to attain lasting benefits for the community. I trust that I shall receive the entire co-operation of the business men. Let us realize that what we do for the good of the Board will also be for our own personal good."

Develop Oceans Docks.

Mr. Beckwith touched briefly on a number of important projects that would have to receive the consideration of the Board during the year. He saw the need of the development of the new ocean piers, and thought it was up to the business men to see that an ocean trade is built up. Mr. Beckwith considered that there was still time for Victoria to become a great shipping port.

The Council of the Board will consist of the following: Beaumont Boggs, J. O. Cameron, C. T. Cross, C. H. French, Herbert Kent, J. Kingham, D. O. Lewis, E. W. McMullen, J. D. O'Connell, H. J. Pendray, J. W. Spencer, W. S. Terry, Edwin Tomlin, Geo. I. Warren and N. A. Yarrow.

The following will constitute the Board of Arbitration: J. O. Cameron, G. D. Christie, Arthur Coles, Lindley Crease, C. T. Cross, C. H. French, W. A. Jameson, J. Kingham, F. B. Pemberton, J. J. Shalloo, R. H. Swinerton and Edwin Tomlin.

WANT CHILDREN INDEXED FOR LIFE

Teachers in Convention Discuss Promoting Efficiency in Schools

How every girl and boy from his earliest days in school should be charted and carried through their whole juvenile and school career and then have these complete records of each man and woman's past filed away in a public institution for reference as to the details of each citizen's life and doings, was described by Miss Grimmer, Victoria school nurse, before the senior section of the B. C. Teachers' Federation yesterday. J. M. Campbell presided.

J. M. Ewing showed how each pupil's progress could be recorded on a big chart so that all could see the details of his whole career at a glance.

R. Straight, of Vancouver, declared that the cost of education could be worked out on a scientific basis to show a direct result between the efficiency of the school and its operation. From this the cost of educating the individual pupil could be worked out.

"Free principals" were advocated by R. Sparling, of Vancouver, who pointed out the advantage to the teachers and the principal himself if the principal were allowed to travel around the school at will without any restrictive ties. By being able to drop in on teachers at any moment, it was explained, the staff could be better co-ordinated and the life of a school principal made less onerous.

State of Nature.

Miss Bernice Hinds, assisted by Miss M. I. Gladstone, had charge of the intermediate section. She brought on J. W. Gibson, Provincial supervisor of Nature study, who declared that there is a reaction from bookishness and people are trying to get back to the olden days when study was carried on out-of-doors in a state of nature, where life was more closely adapted to its environment.

Mr. Gibson asserted that one of the reasons why children do not take to nature study is that the teachers themselves lack enthusiasm for nature. He said the Government was going to give more attention to this. Dealing with the usual method of nature study by school excursions, Mr. Gibson pointed out that one of the problems was the administration of discipline on these trips, as city children become so frisky when they get out into a state of nature. He urged teachers to handle each nature point individually to promote the child's own project. He said that outdoor gardening cultivated the social spirit.

Wear Too Many Clothes.

Lantern slides of outdoor work were shown by Oswald Harries. How out-of-door work benefits people physically, helping them to breathe properly and take off some of their clothes, was described by Miss Muriel Grimmer. She declared that children wear too many clothes, which results in them getting tired easily.

Miss Ida Tuck, assisted by Miss K. Sehl, presided over the junior section and the address of Miss Bertha Winn on Retardation in the Junior Grades. Miss Winn said that most slow pupils really only suffer from lack of interest. She declared it was the duty of the teacher to engender this interest.

T. W. Cornett, assisted by Miss Louise A. de Wolfe Moore, had charge of the discussion on High School work, which lasted two hours. Resolutions were passed dealing with the composition and arrangement of high school curricula which will be referred to the executive of the Mainland and Island Teachers' Associations before going to the Department of Education.

J. C. Lister, in the manual training section presided over by W. H. Binns and G. Anstey, said that manual training is distinct from technical education as manual training is only a process of teaching the mind and hand to work together in an elementary way. Technical education aims to develop a higher capability in mechanical development and seeks to benefit the student in industrial life after school.

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Prior entertained the teachers at Government House yesterday afternoon. There was a dance at the Alexandra Club last night. Most of the Mainland teachers went home by the midnight boat.

WASTE OF SYMPATHY

Brown: "I fear that Green's wife is leading him a lively dance."

White: "Let's see; she's his third wife, isn't she?"

Brown: "Yes."

White: "Well, I've no sympathy with a man who doesn't know when he's had enough."—Spare Moments.

Miss Thortlebury had been invited to be a bridesmaid at quite a smart wedding, and spent much time in planning her new frock. At last it was ready; and when she tried it on she asked Mrs. Jones, from next door, to come and see it. "It's sweet, my dear!" said the good lady admiringly. "And certainly you look a lady, whatever you are." Miss Thortlebury's face told her she had made a mistake, so she corrected herself hurriedly. "No, I mean you are a lady, whatever you look!"

TO GIVE CONCERT AT MEMORIAL HALL

Fine Programme Arranged by J. Douglas Macey For Tuesday Evening

At St. Mary's Memorial Hall, Oak Bay, on Tuesday evening, April 13, a concert of vocal and orchestral music will be given under the direction of J. Douglas Macey. For this occasion, Mr. Macey has recruited some of the best known talent, including Mrs. Eileen Hicks, the popular contralto, who will contribute a group of songs; Edward Petch, the well-known tenor; Miss Kathryn Bradshaw, pianoforte soloist; while Miss Leta Cody, a promising young singer, will also participate.

Mr. Macey has assembled an orchestra, comprising the following musicians: First violins, Mrs. Leeder, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Bristol Bennett; second violins, Miss K. Bradshaw, C. Laundry; violas, Miss Duckett, Dr. Houghton; cello, A. Paffitt; pianoforte, Miss D. Scott; double bass, W. G. Plover.

The orchestral selections will include two of Mr. Macey's own compositions, thus adding to the attractiveness of the programme.

The complete programme will be as follows:

Orchestra—Spanish Dances, Moszkowski
Song—Come Into the Garden, Massé
Ballet
Edward Petch.
Song—The Star ..... Rogers

Song—Still as the Night ..... C. Bohm
Miss Leta Cody.
Orchestra—Nocturne from Midsummer Night's Dream ..... Mendelssohn
God Save the King.

SELFISHNESS IN SOCIETY REARDS BIG DEVELOPMENT

Hon. J. W. de B. Farris Addresses Board of Trade

"I want to say that our after-war problems are greater than the problems we had before us during the war. When the war was on there was a great getting together and there was a consciousness that we must unite if we were to win. But now there is a tendency to break up this unity. The relaxation which had followed the war seems to have let loose the elements of selfishness in society to such an extent as to retard development. If we are to succeed—if we are to come into our own as a Province—there must be more of the milk of human kindness and a larger disposition to get the other man's point of view. The responsibility does not rest upon one group alone. There must be more of the spirit of get-together if we are to make good the demands of the enormous sacrifices made in the war."

With this stirring appeal for a greater unity among the people of this Province, Hon. J. W. de B. Farris, Attorney-General, concluded a very interesting address at the annual meeting of the Board of Trade held last night. The Minister cited a number of instances in his address where it was necessary for the people to present a united front if they were to obtain full justice and carry on the development of the country in a manner fitting the qualifications of the people.

Mr. Farris gave a review of the legislation which had been introduced at the present session of the legislature. Provincial legislation, which he divided into three general sections, business, constitutional and education and social, he claimed came closer to the people than did the deliberations of the Ottawa House.

For Better Roads.

Dealing with the proposed increase in motor taxes Mr. Farris stated that the money so obtained would be used on an extensive policy of good roads in the Province. He explained the new system which was to be used as the basis of taxation, which he termed "the universal joint" arrangement. The unit of taxation had been obtained, he said, by taking into consideration the weight and price of a car, with a percentage of depreciation allowed for each year.

Regarding the change in the rule of the road Mr. Farris said that, in the upper portion of the Province, vehicles would be permitted to travel on the right side of the road on July 1. The changes in cities, however, would not be affected until next year, owing to the extensive work in converting the streets to two-way systems. He admitted that while there might be a slight confusion for a short time, the bulk of opinion favored the move in order to have this Province conform with the rule of the road universal on the continent. It would be of particular advantage to Victoria, he thought, owing to the Island becoming the Mecca for tourists from all parts of North America.

Local Government Board.

Mr. Farris referred to a Local Government Board. "I am more and more convinced," he stated, "than ever that it is in the interests of the Province of British Columbia and of the municipalities to call a local government board established. I hope that we soon will reach a better understanding, looking forward to the creation of such a board not to dominate but to advise the municipalities, but to co-operate with them and act as a buffer between the municipalities and the Government. I believe it is absolutely essential at all times to have such a board with supervising capacity, and I think that it will be possible to get legislation accordingly at the next session of the Legislature."

The new Real Estate Licensing Bill, the Minister thought, would have the joint effect of protecting the public from dishonest real estate agents, and also prevent the profession from having its fair name blackened by the practice of unscrupulous men.

"Every real estate agent or salesman in the Province to do business must take out a license and be reported as to once become liable to the conditions of that license," declared the Attorney-General. "If any person is dishonestly treated by an agent that person is to be able to report the agent and make his complaint, and if the agent has been found guilty of a dishonest practice there is provision for his license to be suspended or cancelled."

Provincial Rights.

The Attorney-General expressed himself in vigor terms when dealing with the Dominion interference with Provincial legislation. He spoke of the disallowance of the Settlers' Rights Act and of the threatened disallowance of the Dolly Varden Mine Act. He explained the investigation made by the special House committee into the workings of the Dolly Varden Mine and of how the report was incorporated into an Act, and unanimously passed by the Legislature. Now the Chief Justice of Canada, who knew nothing of this Province, wanted a report and threatened to wipe out the legislation.

"These men down at Ottawa," continued Mr. Farris, "these individuals—because it is not the Parliament that has done this—are seriously considering recommending to the Governor-General to wipe out this legislation and ignore the united voice of the British Columbia Legislature. Where is a thing like this going to stop? While the Dominion might not respond to these recommendations, the menace is there that this action was seriously considered. If proceeds like this, the sovereignty of the Province has been interfered with to a serious extent. It is an outrageous interference with the rights of the Province to deal with matters pertaining solely to this Province.

Mr. Farris touched briefly upon the matter of Prohibition, and announced that a plebiscite would be submitted to the people this year, in which they would be able to say whether they wanted a bone dry province or to have government sale of liquor. As a result of his decision to limit the amount of prescriptions to eight ounces, the Attorney-General stated that a lot of good citizens had come to him and said that he was interfering with the doctors and the rights of the citizens.

"To me it is not a matter of prohibition, but of common honesty and self-respect," announced the speaker. A plea had been passed, he said, and as he was charged with the administration of laws, it was his duty to see that it was enforced. He showed how the Prohibition Act, which had been framed for the abolishing of liquor except for medicinal purposes, had developed a condition where the liquor was being dispensed as a beverage.

"The man is not honest with himself nor fair with the Government if he votes for Prohibition and wants the back door left open," declared the Attorney-General. "We must limit the sale of prescriptions to eight ounces, and we must have a fair sale prosecution of doctors, which would be unfair on account of the responsibility forced on them by the people."

Establish University.

Briefly the Minister referred to the progressive policy which had been adopted in regard to the University. Regarding its location he thought that its establishment should be where the greatest good could be done to the greatest number, and that that could only be accomplished by placing it in the community of the greatest population. He thought that by a practical scheme of town-planning, the property owned by the Government at Point Grey the price of the land would be greatly enhanced, and that from the sale of these monies would be of great assistance in the establishment of the University.

In order to provide home treatment instead of institutional treatment for children, who had lost their fathers, the Mothers' Pensions had been introduced by the minister said.

"By looking after and caring for our children properly and keeping them out of jail instead of looking after them when they get into jail, the sound policy of citizenship," said the Attorney-General.

James Thomson Will Spend Few Weeks Here Before Taking Tour

James Thomson, who retired at the end of last month from the important positions of Land Commissioner and Fur Trade Commissioner for the Hudson's Bay Company, with headquarters at Winnipeg, has arrived here and will stay for three weeks. He is registered with Miss Thomson at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Thomson is holidaying here, prior to a tour in the Old Country this summer. He made the important statement to The Times that he will remain a member of the Canadian Advisory Board of the Hudson's Bay Company, an organization which is composed of leading business men, and which has a very large measure of control with regard to company management in the Dominion.

Mr. Thomson has always retained a kindly interest in Victoria since his long residence, and while he did not expressly say so, it is probable he will reside here later.

Mr. Thomson expressed his hope that a municipal golf links would be an achievement of which Victoria could boast in the near future.

SPORTING NEWS

Sport of Kings Was King of Sports During the Last Week

Rotarian Golfers Enjoyed Play on Local Greens; Brentwood Links Will Be Ready for Play in Fall.

Golf, the Sport of Kings, has been the King of Sports in Victoria during the past week, a series of competitions engaging the followers of the ancient game. Unfortunately the weather was not the ideal golfing weather of a week previous during the visit of the 1,500 Rotarians, but in spite of this fact the visitors had every opportunity of enjoying the game during their stay in the city.

Each of the links in Victoria and vicinity were played on by the visitors with the Colwood Golf and Country Club thrown open to them during the duration of the convention. Although the Rotarians were unable to live up to their ambition of showing the visitors a municipal links in the course of being mapped out, they were able to show them over links of which the City has every reason to be proud. The frequent claim on Island golfers that the sporting course at Colwood and the ideally situated Oak Bay links compare favorably with any on the continent despite the visitors' natural loyalty to their own particular greens found a lot of endorsers.

The Northwest Rotary Golf Tournament was one of the features of the conference which the golfing Rotarians regard as one of the crowning glories of the entertainment. With over sixty taking part the competition was keen, and the home players more than held their own with two representatives of the Victoria club

Oak Bay Links Over Which 600 Visitors Have Played During the Year

The visit of the Seattle golfers next week is the next big event on the cards. Seattle and Victoria golfers enjoy nothing during the year so much as the annual home and away fixture. The first half of the tournament will again be played in Victoria. Twenty is the minimum number that can take part without forfeiture of points but this year advance notices from the Seattle guests there will be at least thirty competitors, and competition is keen to catch a place among the thirty selected.

A Spirited Fight.
A. V. Macan, handicapped by his war injuries, which, however, have far from spoiled him from playing a great game of golf, failed to live up to the hopes of his clubmates and went the Bostock Cup, emblematic of the provincial championship this year, and the cup still stays on the Mainland. Mr. Macan, who was appointed captain of the Oak Bay Club in place of the retiring captain, Arthur Coles, at the annual meeting this week was title holder in 1912-13 and made another bid for the title last year when without a single round of the course to become familiar with it again, he ran second to Bone of Vancouver.

Past Winners.
In passing it is interesting to note that the Bostock Cup has been up for competition for 27 years although from 1915 to 1918 like many other sporting trophies it was placed on the shelf during the war. The cup has been won as follows:

- W. E. Oliver, 1895, 1896.
- H. Combe, 1897, 1898, 1898.
- A. E. Goldfinch, 1899, 1901.
- H. Combe, 1902, 1902, 1904.
- C. J. Prior, 1905.
- H. Combe, 1906.
- F. H. Stirling, 1907.
- H. Combe, 1908, 1909.
- D'Arcy Martin, 1910.
- L. R. Hargreaves, 1911.
- A. V. Macan, 1912, 1913.
- W. H. Ricardo, 1914.
- Robert Bone, 1919.
- Reginald Symes, 1920.

In spite of the weather conditions the championship tournament conducted by the Shaughnessy Heights Club was as successfully conducted as it could possibly have been. Most of the participants will admit that such an event played so early in the year is not a great success. Apart from the gamble with the weather, there are other disadvantages. Few had the practice to play four days good golf on end. Besides the golfing ability, it took quite a stock of physical endurance to last the period.

Had the event been held later, players would unquestionably have been in better training. Seldom have golfers to play day after day under such unpleasant and trying conditions.

The course, considering the time of the year, was in splendid condition and the greens, while not easy putted, were true.

A Fine Display.
The competition for the Challenger and Mitchell Cup at Oak Bay links over which 600 visitors have played during the year was among the other golf features of the week and golfers

MANITOBA SOCCER MEN SUPPORT COAST BODY

Urge Dominion Body to Remedy "Wrong Done Cause in B. C."

Winnipeg, April 10.—The Manitoba Football Association at the annual meeting Thursday night expressed unanimous disapproval of the manner in which the Dominion Football Association is handling the situation in British Columbia.

The Dominion Football Association is censured for "unconstitutionally" withdrawing from the British Columbia Provincial Football Association, a non-existent body, instead of the British Columbia Association. Withdrawal from the Dominion body is threatened by the Manitoba Association if an effort is not made within the next thirty days to remedy what the resolution terms "the wrong done the cause of soccer in Canada generally, and in British Columbia in particular."

PLANS FORMATION OF SPORTING BODY

The organization of a Victoria branch ready to affiliate with a National Sporting Club of Canada and to encourage the formation of other branches has been discussed in the city. W. H. Davies has revived the idea which was originated when Lou Scholes and other prominent Canadian athletes were in Victoria with the Siberian Expeditionary Force.

Miss Violet Routley Will Show Black and Tan Which Weighs Half Pound

Included in the Seattle entries for the Victoria Kennel Club's show next week will be the smallest dog in the world, which will be shown by Miss Violet Routley. Breeders of poms in their aims to secure small dogs will all envy the remarkable specimen possessed by the Seattle exhibitor. She has a toy black and tan which it is claimed is the smallest in the world, weighing only half a pound. The dog is too young to be entered for any of the classes, but will be brought here for exhibition purposes.

Seattle fanciers, equally as keen as the Victoria fanciers to encourage the breeding and showing of high class dogs, are sending over a big string of entries. Miss Routley, one of the keenest of the Seattle dog owners, will bring over and show her own dogs, among them being Little Wonder, Boy, undefeated champion, and a model for a big terrier, and Little Popsy, which Eastern judges have proclaimed the greatest little dog alive. It is claimed for him that he has won more prizes than any dog alive.

Miss Routley, the owner of the remarkable dogs mentioned, is only twelve years of age, but will demonstrate her ability in handling and showing the dogs which are a present from her mother, and will make her debut at a Canadian show.

FRANCE AND CANADA MAY YET GET INTO DAVIS CUP TENNIS

New York, April 10.—Added importance was given the Davis Cup international tennis matches next Summer with receipt of word here that late entries may be made by France and Canada.

The entry list closed March 1 with the United States, England, South Africa and Holland as the contesting nations. Later, Canada requested the consent of these four entrants for permission to compete. The American Association cabled such consent to Australia, holder of the trophy. A similar action was taken on the French application when France, Canada and Australia were notified that America had no objections to a re-opening of the entry list. It is considered that probably Holland and South Africa will take the same attitude. Final words need to be drawn for preliminary rounds, the majority of which will probably be played in England.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION WILL FINANCE BOXERS

Ottawa, April 10.—The annual boxing championships of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada will be held here April 23 to 24. Following this the Olympic tests will be held, probably in this city. It is expected that a number of the winners in the recent boxing tournament in Boston will be here to compete in the Dominion finals, as well as boxers from all parts of Canada.

It will give the officials of the association an opportunity of sizing up how the aspirants for the Canadian Olympic team show up against the men from the United States, who are also in the race. The number of boxers sent from this country to the Olympic will depend on the showing

ELABORATE CEREMONY AT THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Antwerp, April 10.—Elaborate ceremonies will mark the formal opening of the Olympic Games here next August, according to the plans of the Belgian Olympic Committee. The date for the inauguration has been set for Saturday, August 14. A fanfare of bugles will announce the coming of the men and women who, on the following day, will contest for Olympic honors. Each nation will be assigned a place in the parade, which will file past the royal box and stand at attention on the infield.

The flag of each country will be borne in the fore-rank of its group and the athletes will wear a distinctive civilian uniform.

LAST NIGHT'S BOUTS

Spokane, April 9.—Harry Gillum, of Seattle, and Hal Sommers, of San Francisco, middleweights, fought six terrific rounds to a draw here to-night at an American Legion smoker. The decision was popular.

Vandosen and Lyle King, both Spokane boys, fought four rounds to a draw. They weighed 128 pounds.

Jimmy Cotterill, of Spokane, won the decision over Sewell Deane, of Wallace, Idaho, at 141 pounds.

Hamilton, Ont., April 9.—Bobby Eber, a local featherweight boxer, shaded Frankie Mason, the American flyweight champion, in a ten-round bout here to-night, in the opinion of sporting writers. No official decision was given.

CANADIAN BISLEY TEAM

Vancouver, April 10.—Two applications have been received by Brigadier-General Duff Stuart, who is organizing the British Columbia section of the Canadian Bisley team. Others have inquired, however, and when these and any others desirous of participating in the famous rifle meet have signified their intentions the general proposes to hold an elimination contest to select this province's representatives.

The Vancouver Rifle Association will shortly be resuming activities, and a resolution was forwarded yesterday to Equimait for guns. Candidates for the Bisley team should communicate with General Stuart as soon as possible.

MINING DEVELOPMENT ON MARMOT RIVER

Vancouver, April 10.—Mining development on the Marmot River, Stewart district, started this Spring with the Bush interests commencing a tunnel on the north fork basin claims, according to R. Woods, who has just arrived in the city after selling the property to Mr. Bush.

Mr. Woods, a pioneer in the Stewart district, declares there is a very large body of ore on the Marmot, carrying copper and dry silver, along with other minerals.

New Westminster, April 10.—According to David Whiteside, M. P. P., this city's appeal for the establishment of a juvenile court is soon to be heard. An Order-in-Council extending such a court to this city will be put on the statute books.

FRANCE WISHES HER ACTS TO BE IN LINE WITH ALLIES' COURSE

man Government had formally recognized that formal authorization, given in advance, was necessary for such a derogation, and that France had the right to ask for territorial guarantees.

Not Satisfied.
"How could the Government of France have been satisfied with the German promise to withdraw the troops when order had been restored? Neither for reparations nor for the delivery of the war guilty, nor for coal, have the Allies received the stipulated satisfaction."

"The question could be asked when the British Government, which no doubt has not measured the danger of these systematic violations, would step in the path of concessions, France in any case, was obliged to say: 'That is enough.'"

Unity.
"The French Government is no less convinced than the British Government of the essential necessities of maintaining unity of the Allies for the application of the treaty with Germany. This close concert of France and Britain appears to France equally indispensable for the equitable solution of the vast problems which are presented at this moment in the world—in Russia, the Baltic, Asia Minor and all the Balkans."

"The note closes with assurances that the French Government, for the promotion of these ends, declares itself entirely disposed, before acting, to be assured of the consent of the Allies on all inter-Allied questions which the execution of the treaty raises."

WASHINGTON MAY MOVE TO END RAILROAD STRIKE

morning and the only means of reaching Manhattan from New Jersey lay in ferries irregularly operated because of the strike of railroad marine workers called last week.

Scenes such as have seldom, if ever, been witnessed, occurred today at ferry terminals. With the tubes closed to them, commuters pushed and shoved their way through ferry gates during the rush hours. No teams or automobiles were allowed on the boats and the space usually occupied by them was filled with struggling humanity.

Milk.

The city's milk supply is reported not yet to have been affected. Afternoon newspapers announced that the strike of railroad workers had so accentuated the scarcity of newsprint paper that several pages had been dropped. First editions of many papers comprised only four pages.

A summary of the situation this morning by T. J. Mantell, chairman of the sub-committee of the Railroad General Managers' Association, reported freight of all kinds virtually tied up on all roads entering Greater Louis, East St. Louis, New Brunswick and Trenton. The Chicago, Pittsburg and Erie and Ashtabula divisions were not affected, it was stated.

No Negotiations.
Chicago, April 10.—Railroad managers will not treat with the "outlaw" unions and the only contracts to be recognized are those with the established brotherhoods, it was announced at the headquarters of the General Managers' Association today.

Committees appointed by the strikers to wait on the managers and ask for contracts will not be received, it was said.
"Our contracts with the brotherhoods cover all the men now on strike," Secretary Snyder of the General Managers' Association said. "If the strikers want contracts they have only to return to their unions. We will recognize no outlaw organization."

Strikes at Cleveland.
Cleveland, Ohio, April 10.—One hundred switchmen working the New York Central Lines between East 55th Street and the river went on strike at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Switchmen employed in the Union Station yards and at Collinwood had not gone on strike at that hour.

Superintendent Green of the Baltimore & Ohio announced that 100 switchmen employed on that road went on strike at 2 p. m.
Three hundred switchmen employed at the Kinsman yards of the Pennsylvania Lines announced they would strike at 3 o'clock and that 200 others who usually report at that hour would not go to work.

Miners Idle.
Pittsburg, Kas., April 10.—Four thousand miners were reported idle this morning, in announcement from the headquarters of the coal operators said. About forty mines are involved. More than 12,000 miners are employed in the district.

At Omaha.
Omaha, Neb., April 10.—Omaha and Council Bluffs "outlaw" switchmen on the Southern Pacific's system in San Jose, Port Costa and Sacramento were reported to have returned to work today.

Canada Affected.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 10.—Extension of the strike of insurgent switchmen to minor railroad centres in Western New York and Northern Pennsylvania was shown by reports received here today and local industries already short of fuel and other supplies, began to curtail operations.

Railroad officials estimated a ten per cent. of normal freight movement.

A strike of day crews on the Grand Trunk at Bridgeburg marked the first spread of the strike into Canada.

Gompers to Cleveland.

Washington, April 10.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is en route from New York to Cleveland, headquarters of the Brotherhood of Trainmen. Federation officials here would not discuss the purpose of the trip, but it was understood he would confer with the Brotherhood chiefs on the unauthorized strike of railroad employees.

Return to Work.
Kansas City, Mo., April 10.—One hundred and twenty-five switchmen employed by the Rock Island Railroad returned to work today, according to railroad officials. Sixty-five firemen on Kansas City terminal company locomotives who went on strike in sympathy with the switchmen also were reported as having returned to work.

Shenandoah Valley.

Sharon, Pa., April 10.—Railroad switchmen throughout the Shenandoah Valley went on strike this morning, completely tying up the yards at Sharon, Farrell, Sharpsville and other points in the region.

Serious Proportions.

Chicago, April 10.—Despite assertions by Railroad Brotherhood officials of a break in the ranks of insurgent Chicago switchmen and employees, unauthorized railroad strikes throughout the country assumed serious proportions today with reports indicating nearly 35,000 men were idle.

In the Chicago district, regarded as the key to the whole situation, some strikers returned to work but from other sections came reports of new walkouts and a strengthening of the insurgents' forces.

Embargoes.

Railroads from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, announced embargoes on freight shipments and in industrial centres thousands of workers have been thrown out of employment, and restricted operations because of lack of fuel and raw materials.

Brotherhood officials declared reports that 35,000 switchmen and engine-men were out were exaggerated, but admitted that the seceding workers had gained strength outside of Chicago.

A. A. F. Whitney, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced that a group of striking switchmen on the Burlington Road had returned to work in Chicago last night.

Crisis Reported Past.
A statement by railroad officials declared that all linkages were that the crisis in the Chicago yards had passed.

Insurgent leaders, however, claimed the strike was unbroken in Chicago and declared that ninety-five per cent. of the switchmen in the district were out.

Plants Close.

At Gary, Ind., twelve blast furnaces had been banked today, throwing 12,000 steel workers out of employment. Steel mills in the Mahoning Valley were preparing to close down today and company officials said 35,000 workers would be idle by nightfall.

Toledo reported all but one of twenty-three railroads tied up and a food and fuel shortage threatened. Freight movement west from Cleveland had ceased, it was reported, and between 1,500 and 1,800 employees of nine roads there voted to organize a yardmen's union today.

Switchmen and yardmen on the Norfolk & Western and Pennsylvania Railroads walked out at Columbus last night and early today, and four crews on the Baltimore & Ohio were reported to have gone on strike at Dayton.

St. Louis District.

Freight traffic in the St. Louis district remained at a standstill today and 3,000 stockyards workers were thrown out of work at East St. Louis. Railroad officials admitted that 5,000 men on thirty-seven roads were out in this district.

Both freight and express shipments were reported under an embargo at Indianapolis. Strikers declared that a 100 per cent. walkout had occurred at Kansas City. Switchmen on all

No Worry—No Trouble—No Waste

When pressed for time—when you must wait for your oven—when you cannot get the right temperature—these are the causes of your troubles on bake days when you use the wrong kind of baking powder.

To have enjoyable results of a day's baking, to have no worry or wasted cakes and pastry despite adverse conditions, you must first be careful about the baking powder you select.

Use EGG-O Baking Powder

It does its work absolutely. Its double action makes it a never failing leavener, notwithstanding having to wait on your oven.

Always follow the directions—one level teaspoonful to one level cup of well sifted flour. By doing so, you use a quarter to a half less EGG-O, and get better results.

Small Craft Steamed Ten Thousand Miles

Freighter E. D. Kingsley, Built on Great Lakes for E. C. Company, Made Port Last Night From Fort William; Was Ashore on Nova Scotia Coast.

Traversing ten thousand miles via New York, the Panama Canal, South American ports and San Francisco, the 1,300-ton steel steamship E. D. Kingsley, a new vessel built on the Great Lakes for the Kingsley Navigation Company of British Columbia, finally reached Victoria at 9.30 o'clock last night from Fort William, Ont. The long voyage occupied four and a half months and almost at the outset the small craft had the misfortune to drive ashore at Whitehaven, N.S. The mishap delayed the vessel three weeks in drydock at Halifax, where she was surveyed. But a few plates were dented and the craft was soon made shipshape to continue her voyage. Captain H. M. Udall is an experienced Pacific Coast master who went East from Vancouver to navigate the E. D. Kingsley to British Columbia.

The E. D. Kingsley was built by the Canadian Car & Foundry Company, at Fort William, and will be operated out of Vancouver and Victoria in the coast trade.

The vessel left Fort William November 21, and after her unfortunate experience at Whitehaven she arrived at Halifax, N. S., December 19. Coming out of drydock she left Halifax for Liverpool, N. S., where wood pulp was loaded for New York. Liverpool was cleared January 26 and New York was reached January 31. Leaving New York February 7, a fine passage was made to Colon, Panama, which port was reached February 16.

To South America.
After passing through the Panama Canal the Kingsley headed south to Buena Ventura, South America. From Buena Ventura the vessel proceeded to Tumaco, Columbia, where she arrived February 23. Thence she went to La Union, Salvador, arriving March 8, and loaded a shipment of coffee for Vancouver.

Clearing from La Union the following day she shifted to San Jose, Guatemala, where coffee and mahogany was shipped for San Francisco. From San Jose the Kingsley went to Champerico, Guatemala, thence to Salina Cruz, Mexico, and on to San Pedro, where she arrived March 28. The voyage from Salina Cruz to San Pedro was exceedingly rough, heavy seas sweeping the little craft almost continuously. From San Pedro the staunch little freighter proceeded to San Francisco, her last port of call before touching here. Leaving San Francisco April 5 she was four days making the run up the coast.

Exact Mileage.
The exact mileage covered by the Kingsley is figured out at 9,700 miles. Capt. Udall speaks in the highest praise of the vessel under his command. "She handled beautifully and her engines turned over smoothly throughout the passage," he said, following arrival here. J. F. Tener, of Vancouver, is purser and wireless operator aboard the vessel.

For a craft of her size the Kingsley is fitted with lavish accommodations for the housing of the officers and crew.

She discharged sixty tons of rice from San Francisco at the Outer Docks.

Type of Craft.
The E. D. Kingsley was built by the Canadian Car & Foundry Company last year for the Kingsley Navigation Company, a subsidiary of the Pacific Coast Line Company of Vancouver. This company will operate the new steamer between the Pacific Coast Company's line quarries and Vancouver, Seattle and San Francisco.

The vessel is 1260 tons deadweight capacity. She has a length over all of 210 feet, 32 feet beam and molded depth of 17 feet. She is built to specifications for A1 rating in Lloyd's register with traverse framing and a cellular double bottom with tanks arranged for fuel oil.

Her power plant consists of two three-furnace Scotch marine boilers built for 100 pounds working pressure and a triple expansion steam engine with cylinders 37 by 25 by 43 and a 36-inch stroke with a rating of 360 indicated horse-power. The engines are equipped with a condenser of 1,200 square feet cooling surface and a simplex air pump.

The speed of the little freighter is ten knots under load.

O.S.K. Liner Mexico Maru to Make Way For More Modern Carriers

After making another round voyage between the Orient and this coast the Japanese liner Mexico Maru, which made port this morning, clearing from Los Angeles, will be transferred to the South American service of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha. The liner Canada Maru has already been transferred to the South American route, and according to statements made by officers of the Mexico Maru to-day, the Chicago Maru, which is due to arrive here on Tuesday, and Hawaii Maru, all of large tonnage and practically uniform design. These changes are planned to coincide with the introduction to Japan of the new trans-Pacific service of the new liners Alabama Maru and Arizona Maru, 10,000-ton ships which are now nearing completion in Japanese yards. To round out the service the liner Hawaii Maru will be reinstated on the Pacific route.

In future the O. S. K. company proposes to maintain its service between Hongkong, Yokohama, Victoria and Tacoma with the steamships Africa Maru, Arabia Maru, Alabama Maru, Arizona Maru, and Hawaii Maru, all of large tonnage and practically uniform design.

Stopped at Moji. On her last trip from this port the liner Mexico Maru went only as far as Moji, Japan, touching at Kobe and Yokohama to load before setting out on the return voyage. Captain K. Komiya, who is the Mexico Maru's commanding officer, is expected to return to this port to-wait for the trip through to Hongkong.

The Mexico Maru brought over five thousand tons of general cargo from the Orient. She is discharging 384 tons for local consignees, and 125 tons manifested to Vancouver. For Seattle the liner carries 921 tons, and in addition she has 556 bales of raw silk, 131 bales of waste silk and 94 cases of silk goods, also for discharge at Seattle. The Tacoma freight amounts to 3,700 tons.

Thirty-eight steerage passengers disembarked here, while nine cabin and 117 steerage passengers are bound for Seattle.

The Mexico Maru was eighteen days crossing from Yokohama. Heavy weather was encountered until the 18th meridian was passed, and in addition she has 556 bales of raw silk, 131 bales of waste silk and 94 cases of silk goods, also for discharge at Seattle. The Tacoma freight amounts to 3,700 tons.

WILL COMPETE FOR AUSTRALIAN TRADE

Ships of U. S. Shipping Board to Inaugurate Regular Australasian Service

Vessels of the United States Shipping Board are to compete with ships of the Canadian Merchant Marine in the Australasian trade.

Early in May a regular steamship service will be established between Seattle and the ports of New Zealand and Australia. Three or four steel steamships of 8,000 tons each will be assigned to the Australasian route and a starter and a monthly service will be maintained, according to the plans of the U. S. Shipping Board.

The route of the vessels of the American Government's first Pacific Coast-Australasian service will be from Seattle to Portland, San Francisco and Tacoma, and thence to Auckland, Wellington, Lyttelton, Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide. Australia is about the only trans-Pacific field that has not been invaded by the ships of the United States Shipping Board.

A considerable fleet of carriers flying the Stars and Stripes is engaged in the Pacific Coast-Oriental trade. Vessels are also operated by the Shipping Board from the Pacific Coast to South America and also to Europe via the Panama Canal.

Regular steamship service out of British Columbia ports to Australasia was recently inaugurated by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, the first ship to make the voyage being the Canadian Explorer, which is now on the Australian seaboard. The Canadian Explorer is now loading and will shortly set sail for the South Seas. The Canadian ships are of 8,100 tons register.

Steam whalers were manoeuvring in the outer harbor this morning for the purpose of adjusting compasses. The whaling fleet is out for the hunting grounds.

WORKERS' BODIES ARE BROKEN UP

Committees of Radicals in Ruhr Region Quit Asserting Authority

Dusseldorf, April 9.—Via London, April 10.—(Associated Press).—The three remaining executive committees of workers' organizations in the Ruhr district—those at Dusseldorf, Elberfeld and Barmen—will dissolve Saturday noon, relinquishing their governing authority to the municipal officials.

Peter Berter, head of the committees here, said to-day that all of the committees in the district had decided to reorganize as committees of order which would look after the interests of the workmen. Berter alleged that the Reichswehr had violated their agreement by the arrival of an officer and fifteen men at Red headquarters to-day who demanded the surrender of two machine guns. These were refused and upon an appeal to the burgo-master the Reichswehr departed, whereupon the Reds put on the machine guns ready for action before their headquarters.

More than 20,000 rifles have been surrendered and provided for in the Bielefeld agreement. The workers' leaders continue to express resentment at the steady advance of the Reichswehr southward the latter arriving to-day at Ratingen and Mettmann, within eight miles of Dusseldorf. The workers declare they have been no disorders anywhere. They deny that any of the Reds carried arms to their homes.

AD. MAN TO TALK

Victoria in Line For 1921 Convention of Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs

Victoria advertising and publicity men are to get the latest ideas on advertising on April 22, when Dave Matthews, president of the Association of Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs, will come here to lecture. It is part of the publicity campaign in connection with the advertising convention to be held at Stockton, May 22 and 23. The meeting here will likely be under the joint auspices of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs.

Efforts are being made to have Victoria represented at the Stockton convention. The question is being taken up by Publicity Commissioner J. G. Thomson of the Victoria and Island Development Association, Herbert Cuthbert, of Seattle, secretary of the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association, also took up the matter when he was here early in the week.

The anxiety for Victoria representation at this convention is due to the likelihood of the 1921 convention coming to this city.

WILL COMPETE FOR AUSTRALIAN TRADE

Ships of U. S. Shipping Board to Inaugurate Regular Australasian Service

Vessels of the United States Shipping Board are to compete with ships of the Canadian Merchant Marine in the Australasian trade.

Early in May a regular steamship service will be established between Seattle and the ports of New Zealand and Australia. Three or four steel steamships of 8,000 tons each will be assigned to the Australasian route and a starter and a monthly service will be maintained, according to the plans of the U. S. Shipping Board.

The route of the vessels of the American Government's first Pacific Coast-Australasian service will be from Seattle to Portland, San Francisco and Tacoma, and thence to Auckland, Wellington, Lyttelton, Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide. Australia is about the only trans-Pacific field that has not been invaded by the ships of the United States Shipping Board.

A considerable fleet of carriers flying the Stars and Stripes is engaged in the Pacific Coast-Oriental trade. Vessels are also operated by the Shipping Board from the Pacific Coast to South America and also to Europe via the Panama Canal.

Regular steamship service out of British Columbia ports to Australasia was recently inaugurated by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, the first ship to make the voyage being the Canadian Explorer, which is now on the Australian seaboard. The Canadian Explorer is now loading and will shortly set sail for the South Seas. The Canadian ships are of 8,100 tons register.

Steam whalers were manoeuvring in the outer harbor this morning for the purpose of adjusting compasses. The whaling fleet is out for the hunting grounds.

WORKERS' BODIES ARE BROKEN UP

Committees of Radicals in Ruhr Region Quit Asserting Authority

Dusseldorf, April 9.—Via London, April 10.—(Associated Press).—The three remaining executive committees of workers' organizations in the Ruhr district—those at Dusseldorf, Elberfeld and Barmen—will dissolve Saturday noon, relinquishing their governing authority to the municipal officials.

Peter Berter, head of the committees here, said to-day that all of the committees in the district had decided to reorganize as committees of order which would look after the interests of the workmen. Berter alleged that the Reichswehr had violated their agreement by the arrival of an officer and fifteen men at Red headquarters to-day who demanded the surrender of two machine guns. These were refused and upon an appeal to the burgo-master the Reichswehr departed, whereupon the Reds put on the machine guns ready for action before their headquarters.

More than 20,000 rifles have been surrendered and provided for in the Bielefeld agreement. The workers' leaders continue to express resentment at the steady advance of the Reichswehr southward the latter arriving to-day at Ratingen and Mettmann, within eight miles of Dusseldorf. The workers declare they have been no disorders anywhere. They deny that any of the Reds carried arms to their homes.

AD. MAN TO TALK

Victoria in Line For 1921 Convention of Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs

Victoria advertising and publicity men are to get the latest ideas on advertising on April 22, when Dave Matthews, president of the Association of Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs, will come here to lecture. It is part of the publicity campaign in connection with the advertising convention to be held at Stockton, May 22 and 23. The meeting here will likely be under the joint auspices of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs.

Efforts are being made to have Victoria represented at the Stockton convention. The question is being taken up by Publicity Commissioner J. G. Thomson of the Victoria and Island Development Association, Herbert Cuthbert, of Seattle, secretary of the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association, also took up the matter when he was here early in the week.

DOMINION

The last picture Marguerite Clark made during her recent sojourn on the Pacific coast is "A Girl Named Mary," a delightful screen comedy. It is showing at the Dominion Theatre. When Miss Clark left her beautiful home in New York to make pictures in California the trip was really her honeymoon, as she had just been married to Lieutenant H. Palmeron Williams. Her first few weeks were occupied chiefly in recovering from a rather severe attack of homesickness. However, her usual buoyant spirits soon came to the front, and the dainty star says that the latter part of her stay in the West was most pleasant.

COLUMBIA

A new William Fox photoplay of the most interesting kind is to be shown to-day at the Columbia Theatre. It is called "Six Shooter Andy," and "Tox Mix" is the star. In this drama he has a role that is distinctly of the Western type. "Six Shooter Andy" is built around a personality that is little known and which, strange to say, has up to this time never found its way into drama or story. Mix is not only a trapper and a pioneer, but a punisher of corruption. The story is essentially a romance, the heart is touched at every step, and the delight of those who view it as the work of the hero brings peace and happiness where there had been none before.

ROMANO

Widely known among screen lovers as the "sweetest girl in pictures," Marguerite Clark has forged to the front rank of popular stars, not only by reason of her beauty and winsome personality, but also by sheer genius as an actress and a passionate devotion to her chosen profession. It is in wholesome light comedies like "Widow by Proxy," showing at the Romano to-day, that the dainty star has won her chief reputation. In this field she is acknowledged as having no superior. However, in her long and successful screen career, Miss Clark has appeared in photoplays drawn from every branch of the dramatic art. In enchanting fairy stories, like "The Seven Swans" and

Stomach and Liver Trouble

Once the liver fails to filter the poisonous bile from the blood, there is a clogging up and poisoning of the whole system which causes many troubles to arise. Therefore, upon the liver, more than any other organ of the body, depends the general health.

Carelessness and neglect, and oftentimes wilful disregard of nature's laws will put the system out of sorts. The bowels become constipated, the liver inactive and the stomach upset. To bring the system back to its normal state, you should take Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They live upon the liver, get the bowels back to their proper condition and tone up the stomach.

Mrs. G. L. Cackett, Enchant, Alta., writes: "I have used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and have found them good for both stomach and liver troubles. I have told others about your valuable medicine, and they have used them with good results."

"They are also good for headache." Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"Snow White," she endeared herself to thousands of kiddies and grown-ups alike. Her smashing stage success, "Prunella," which took New York by storm, she later repeated on the screen where it became even more popular. And in "Rich Man, Poor Man," she proved herself an emotional and dramatic artiste of high order.

PRINCESS

One of the interesting signs of reaction from the strain of the late war is the undoubted inroads the fascination of jazz and syncopated noise generally have made into the realm of music. It is more or less universally recognized, however, that this phase is but a passing novelty, a bubble upon the stream of life, and already there are unmistakable signs of a wish to return to the music of the masters. Amongst such masters the name of Sir Arthur Sullivan holds a high place, and in proportion as the years go by and his life-work persists in its claims whilst the work of lesser men is forgotten so in his claim to be numbered amongst the greatest of the masters more firmly established and justified.

Apart from the sheer beauty of Sir Arthur's work the educational value of his compositions in the musical training of children cannot be overlooked. The Princess Dramatic Society in staging the "Pirates of Penzance" at the Princess Theatre have borne this well in mind and have accordingly arranged for two matinee performances at both of which children will be admitted at half price to all seats. Judging by the advance booking Victoria parents have not been slow to take advantage of the privilege thus extended. It has only been at very infrequent intervals in the past that Victorians have had the privilege of witnessing Gilbert and Sullivan operas, and the present opportunity should not be missed especially in view of the fact that the very finest vocal talent has been engaged.

JAZZ AND PATHOS ORPHEUM FEATURES

Syncopation and Splendid Playlet Make Great Bill at Royal

Jazz raised to the nth power and pathos rendered in a way too little evident on the vaudeville stage were the features of the splendid bill offered by the Orpheum Company at the Royal Victoria Theatre this week-end.

"The last Word in Jazz Art" is what "Vie" Quinn calls her elaborate offering and she is not exaggerating. In the hands of her jazz band jazz really becomes an art—albeit a veritable musical whirlwind. And her syncopated dances—they, too, are the last word in jazz, and loveliness.

A simple, big-hearted man, a frivolous wit too critical of his inability to put on bed-shirt manners and too little appreciative of his devotion and simplicity and an elegant black-mailer are the component parts out of which is fashioned Homer Miles' "Roughneck," a little playlet which has the spectators alternately on the verge of hysterics and tears. Homer Miles shows himself a really talented actor and he keeps his audience constantly in his grasp.

Glimpses of the past and a vision of all that is lovely in the present are presented in Helene "Smiles" Davis' characterizations of Broadway chorus ladies. Miss Davis performs the unique feat of changing from the dainty little lady who tripped before the footlights in the days of '64 to the girl of Flora Dora and, after various other stages, the syncopated, shoulder-shaking girlie who graces the musical comedy stage to-day.

Cute, clever and classy, as advertised, are Polly, Oz and Chick—especially Polly who can sing a song differently from anyone in the world. Harriette Lee is another actress who has something really new to offer in the comedy skit "Hats and Shoes," which she presents with Ben Ryan. She is assured by Mr. Ryan that she is the dullest girl he has ever met; but the audience has an idea he is prejudiced against her, for a cleverer comedienne it would be difficult to find.

Some marvellous, hair-raising stunts on the bars and a large number of impossible feats on a glorified bed springs fill Peters' and Labuff's act with a series of thrills.

Nor do Nestor and Vincent let anyone go to sleep while they are staging their remarkable avalanche of tricks extraordinary.

The opening of the Canadian Parliament is shown in the interesting roll of films which concludes this splendidly well-balanced show.

MOVING PICTURES TO INSTIL PATRIOTISM

Attorney-General Says It Is Designed to Offset Insidious American Propaganda

Legislative Press Gallery, Evening Sitting, April 9.
At a few minutes past the midnight hour Attorney-General Farris moved the second reading of the bill to amend the British Columbia Moving Picture Act, and at twelve-twenty o'clock the Leader of the Opposition adjourned the debate.

Subtle Undercurrent.
Reference has been made in these columns to the provisions of the measure and very little amplification marked the Attorney-General's formal explanation of the bill. He mentioned, however, that it must have been apparent to members of the House that a subtle undercurrent of influence was to be detected in many of the films that were being shown in Canadian moving picture theatres at the present time. It was an influence, he declared, that would not tend to build up the national spirit, Canadianism which was so necessary at the present time.

Insidious Americanism.
"There is an insidious Americanism going on," warned the Attorney-General, who was of the opinion that the greater proportion of moving picture fare was dominated by themes essentially American and dominated by American sentiment. He had no fault to find with American enterprise, but he did consider that the people who were constantly coming to Canada, and whom Canada expected to become good Canadians, should be allowed to recruit their impressions of Canadian ideals and impressions of Canadian sentiments from Canadian films. Were it to continue to be otherwise, he felt that Canadianism of the correct type would be jeopardized.

Already a Start.
Mr. Farris referred to the nucleus of a provincial service already obtained in connection with game, agriculture and scenic beauties. Thirty thousand feet of film were under the provisions of the bill before the House could be made to increase the supply. That done the moving picture theatres of the Province could be supplied with a few hundred feet each day, and by their continued portrayal on the screen the objects which the bill had in sight would be accomplished.

The Leader of the Opposition adjourned the debate.

PLEBISCITE ON PROHIBITION ACT

Two Alternatives Will Be Submitted to the Electors, Probably August 14

Legislative Press Gallery, Evening Sitting, April 9.
Official notice of the taking of a provincial referendum this year is indicated by the bill to provide for a Temperance Plebiscite, introduced to the Legislature this evening by the Hon. J. W. de B. Farris, Attorney-General and Minister of Labor.

The act provides that the vote shall be taken not earlier than August 1 next and not later than September 30, and if no date be fixed by proclamation the date shall be August 14 next.

Two questions only will appear upon the ballot paper. The elector will be asked: Which do you prefer? (1) The present "Prohibition Act" or (2) An act to provide for Government control and sale in sealed packages of spirituous and malt liquors? The provisions of the Provincial Elections Act will apply in the taking of the referendum, all expenses to be borne by the Government out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

The position of Vicerey of India is one of the best paid offices under the Crown, since the holder of this office receives a monthly payment of 20,900 rupees. At the present high price of the Indian rupee this represents a comfortable stipend of over £25,000.

ONE MEASURE UPON WHICH ALL PARTIES AGREE IN COMMON

Second Reading Is Given to Bill For Mothers' Pensions

Legislative Press Gallery, Afternoon Sitting, April 9.

Promising the undivided support of the members of the Conservative section of the House, the Leader of the Opposition added his congratulations to the Government upon its introduction of the Mothers' Pension Act. He spoke in flattering terms of the comprehensive review of the subject by the lady member for Vancouver, and complimented the Provincial Secretary upon his clear explanation of the clauses of the bill. Mr. Bowser, however, took occasion to claim some drawing attention to the fact that at the Conservative convention in Vancouver last Fall the party had gone on record as unanimously favoring the inauguration of a system of pensions for deserving mothers.

Should Be Supported.
"One month after that convention," continued the Opposition Leader, "the Government awoke to the urgency of the situation and a commission was appointed to feel out public opinion. However, leaving political issues and any thought of credit aside, the legislation is good and should receive the unanimous endorsement of the House." Mr. Bowser spoke of the rapid progress of women's legislation during the past few years. A decade ago, he remarked, he would not have considered it possible that in the year 1920 women would have been admitted to an equal place with men in the matter of the franchise, nor could he foresee at that time the imminence of legislation covering workmen's compensation, mothers' pensions and similar phases of social and industrial life. It augured well for the future of British Columbia and the other western provinces, he concluded, that these sections of Canada were well to the fore in matters of reform and social evolution.

Mr. Farris.
Attorney-General Farris drew the attention of the House to the fact that the mothers' pensions legislation under discussion was but the culminating link in a chain of social welfare enacted by the present administration. He referred to the Equal Guardianship Act, the Minimum Wage Act, the amended Workmen's Compensation Act, and improved statutes of the past three years. "There has been a consistent effort on the part of the Government in the way of improving living conditions," reflected Mr. Farris, who pointed out that the legislation introduced and amended by the present administration was considered the fair share of the Province as the result of the findings of the associated representatives of Federal and Provincial Government. So when members spoke of the Provincial Government's duty to enact old age pensions and state health insurance laws they were ignoring the fact that, as declared by the Dominion authorities, these were primarily matters for the jurisdiction of the Federal Government.

The Attorney-General spoke of the changes made in the Deserted Wives Maintenance Act, last year and of the increased allowances provided for widows with children under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Conditions had improved to a marked degree, he maintained, and things were well with British Columbia.

The Premier.
Premier Oliver, who closed the debate and moved the second reading of the bill, dealt briefly with the financial aspect of the case. The new legislation would be found to fill a long felt need, he said, but it would be well to remember that there were costs entailed; someone had to pay the bill. This was the case with all legislation, said the Government Leader, who continued that there was still ample room for beneficial statutes.

Touching upon the political side of the situation, the Premier twitted the Opposition Leader over the latter's attempt to "steal the credit" for the proposed new statute. If mothers' pensions had been favorably passed upon in that memorable convention, he continued, the trembling caused by the passing of a covering resolution had not seriously disturbed the equilibrium of the Province.

Should Be Equal.
"In season and out of season," proceeded Premier Oliver, "I have advocated for the past twenty years that women should be placed upon an equal footing with men."

"This is a great triumph for humanitarian common sense," said J. S. Cowper, Government member for Vancouver, in passing judgment upon the measure. "We talk a great deal

Tung Chow Tower of Victory

Enduring as marble or granite, this Chinese "Tower of Victory," built of wood in the CHOW dynasty, stands today, after centuries of exposure, in a perfect state of preservation. What a monument to Victory! But wherein lay the secret of this triumph over decay?

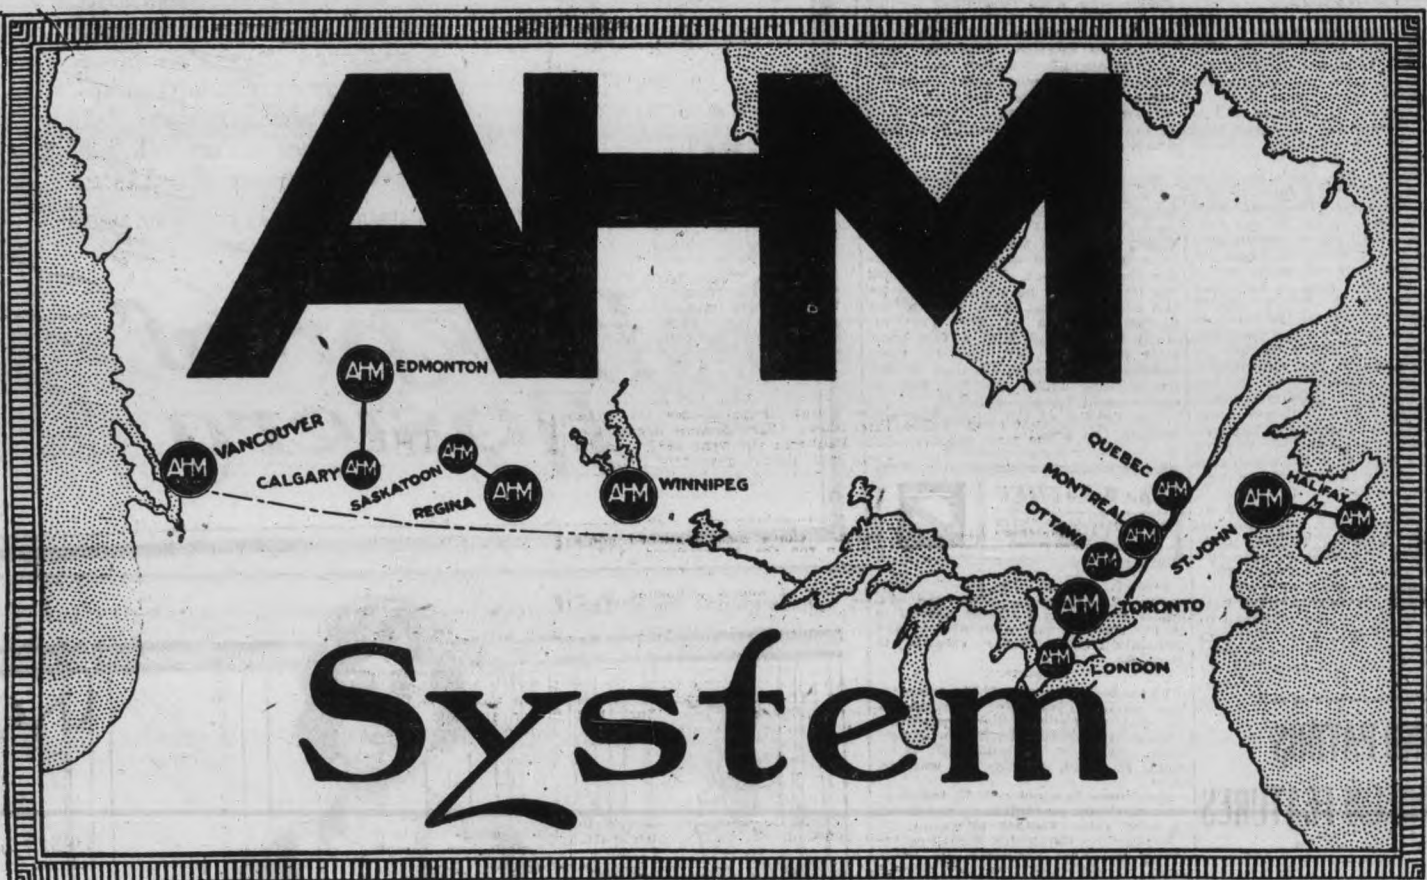

THIS Oriental secret has been probed by Occidental enterprise. The oil extracted from a certain Chinese nut was used in the treatment of the wood to make it outwear the centuries.

THE application of this re-discovery is seen in the wonderful heat-acid- and wear-resisting qualities of BAPCO FLOOR VARNISH, of which, when combined with another remarkable substance—a fossilized gum found in the Antipodes, it forms the base. Tough, transparent, beautifully "bringing out" the grain in the wood, BAPCO FLOOR VARNISH withstands "heel-wear" and heat, acid and alcohol. Stain and varnish—two in one—it comes in five colors.

"Shoemakers To The Nation" about the conservation of natural resources and other possessions, but very little, indeed, about the conservation of the child—the greatest asset of the state."

Mr. Cowper reviewed the good work accomplished in Illinois through the operation of similar legislation, pointing out that in the evolutionary process of juvenile development in the great City of Chicago, as governed by the provisions of the Mothers' Pension law, only one child in a total of 1,754 cared for became a delinquent and of that large number only two were cited for truancy.

Colonel McIntosh.
Colonel J. W. McIntosh, Leader of the Soldier Party, expressed his keen appreciation of the proposed measure, remarking that as a physician of twenty-five years' experience he had come closely into contact with conditions unknown to the average citizen. There was a great need for mothers' pensions, he declared, and predicted an immediate change for the better in the living conditions of many women and children. He was particularly struck with the happy co-incidence arising out of the presentation of the new bill upon the anniversary of the battle of Vimy Ridge.

Expressing his delight that the Mothers' Pensions Act would provide the monetary aid necessary to enable widows to retain possession and care of their children, George Bell, Government member for Victoria, added his commendation to that of previous speakers. He instanced the case of a little Victoria lad who faced separation from his mother because of his parent's straitened circumstances. It would be a happy situation, he went on, when the act became effective and the need for forced and painful separation would be eliminated.

Mr. Weart.
"The new act will prove a most beneficial one," said J. W. Weart, Government member for South Vancouver, "but I would suggest that it does not go far enough. There should be provision made for old age pensions."

The member painted a rather sad picture of the lives of inmates of homes for indigent old people. It was deplorable, he remarked, to think of aged citizens looking into each other's faces day after day with the eternal query marking each countenance, "Who will be the next to go?" Mr. Weart averred that the state owed something better to such unfortunates and appealed for better provision for them.

Major Burde.

GENA BRANSCOMBE RECITAL NEXT WEEK

Interesting Programme Under Ladies' Musical Club Auspices Next Thursday

The works of Gena Branscombe, the well known Canadian composer, will be featured in a delightful programme to be given at the Empress Hotel on Thursday evening next, April 15, under the auspices of the Ladies' Musical Club. The arrangements are in the capable hands of Mrs. Horace Hamlet and Miss Louise A. de W. Moore, and they have enlisted the assistance of several artists new to Musical Club audiences.

Ernest Butterworth, the baritone, has an interesting record as singer in opera and oratorio, and before coming to Victoria was supervisor of music in schools at Edmonton, Alberta. During his stay there he was active in the work of the Alberta Musical Festival and under his leadership the choral work done by the public school children at these festivals was of a very high order.

Mr. Butterworth is an artistic singer and especially fine in operatic work. The group of Gena Branscombe's songs which he will sing are taken from the "Songs Recently Published," which are each masterpieces in composition. The subject matter relates to the life and experiences of a young British lad of seventeen years who runs away to sea, but who finally returns at the call of his country in her need.

The accompanists for the evening are Mrs. J. O. Cameron, whose work is very well known to all concert-goers, and Miss Louise Adew Moore, who has not appeared so frequently but who has, as organist of the First Congregational Church, placed herself in the front rank of the city's musicians.

The programme will include the earliest as well as the latest compositions of Gena Branscombe, and at the hands of the artists assisting are sure to be given a faithful rendering.

Referring to a recital given by Gena Branscombe, The Canadian Courier of February 28, 1920, says:

"Unusual to a point of novelty was the programme given by the Canadian composer, Gena Branscombe (Mrs. J. Ferguson Tenney), in the Masonic Hall on February 17. Mrs. Tenney herself was at the piano for all the numbers, which included seven groups of songs and two violin numbers, all by Gena Branscombe. The composer herself attracted most attention at first, a genial, girlish simplicity, noted in the modest but charming little verbal prelude which she gave to the song 'The Song of the Sea' which she played not so much with virtuosic finish as with a sort of drawing room intimacy, though always from the score. One could have wished for a melody to be remembered, but as Gena Branscombe has composed a great many songs she had to be excused for preferring the accompaniment to the song itself. There is no suspicion of any particular style in her composition, but rather an attempt to make music the expression of poetry, which in several cases was her own work."

Great Russian Pianist to Play Here on May 3 Before European Tour

Leopold Godowsky, the eminent Russian pianist who holds a warm corner in the hearts of all Victoria music-lovers, is to appear in recital in this city on May 3, according to a telegraphic message received by George J. Dyke, local concert manager, this morning. The great artist will appear under the auspices of the Willis Piano Company, and the place of the recital will be announced later. More than the usual interest attaches to the coming of Godowsky to Victoria as it is likely to be his last appearance in the West before leaving for Europe, where he will undertake an extensive concert tour.

In this connection the following editorial comment from a recent issue of "Musical America" will be of interest:

"Musically, England is reconstructing. Evidence comes in the announcement of the engagement of

The largest combination of instruments to be found in the symphony orchestra and in the brass band. In the symphony orchestra, the instruments are grouped into four choirs: The "strings" (violins, violas, violoncellos and double basses); the "wood-winds," (flutes, oboes, English horn, clarinets, bassoons and sometimes the French horn); the "brasses," (trumpets, French horns, trombones and tuba), and the "battery" (tympani, drums, triangle, bells and other instruments of percussion). The stringed instruments always predominate in this orchestra. The brass band is composed of three choirs: "Wood winds," (clarinets, are principally used); "brasses," and "battery." The brass instruments predominate in the brass band.

In justice to Hamilton Harty, the newly appointed conductor of the Halle Concert Society in Manchester, his name is now as printed and not as appeared in a recent note—we understand that Hamilton Harty's new suite "Fantasy Scenes from an Eastern Romance," is superbly written.

known so well to Londoners. For many years Monsieur Sauret was professor at the Royal Academy of Music, and at the Guildhall School of Music. Sauret studied under De Beriot and Vieuxtemps and subsequently toured Europe and America composed for his instrument and was a teacher of very wide fame. He was born in 1852, and was another disciple of the Belgian School.

Composers are awakening to the advantages of composing music expressly to accompany cinema plays. Cinemas have come to stay and it is generally conceded that the standard of music played in them is excellent. Let the composers see to it themselves that it is so. Here is an opportunity.

Sir Henry Wood, the great English conductor, considers Ralph Vaughan-Williams "Sea Symphony," one of the greatest choral works ever written. For the first time in Sir Henry's career he is giving four separate rehearsals with the chorus alone, and will conduct the digital which is to be given this month by the Liverpool Philharmonic Society. Think of it four rehearsals by the conductor who usually comes for a final rehearsal and causes bewilderment to the chorus by altering at the last minute readings which the chorus master has carefully taught at all previous rehearsals. This is splendid treatment and causes bewilderment on the usual order of things. But all who know Sir Henry are aware of his immense enthusiasm.

In the good old days some of the greatest booksellers—and numerous they were too—mustered strongly in old St. Paul's churchyard, overlooking Fleet Street. Some of the first editions of Shakespeare were published here, and Goldsmith's "Traveler" and "Vicar of Wakefield" also first saw the light of day in this churchyard. There were, too, many music shops situated here, the position being an excellent one because of the daily services held at the Cathedral, which drew together all the lovers of music in London, not forgetting to mention that the choirmen were accustomed to assemble there, and were met by their friends and acquaintances. In this churchyard there lived one, Jeremiah Clark, a composer of some sacred music, who was educated at the Royal Chapel under the great Dr. Blow. Clark became organist of St. Paul's in the year 1693, and his anthems always preserved the dignity and majesty of the church style. The most celebrated of them are: "I Will Love Thee," "Bow Down Thine Ear" and "Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem." Clark also published some ten songs for the harpsichord, and a collection of songs published in a book with the peculiar title of "Fills in Purple Melancholy." That sweet-sounding "The Bonny Grey-eyed Morn," which was introduced in Gay's "The Beggar's Opera" was written by Clark, as also the music for D'Urfey's comedy "The Bond Husband" or the "Plotting Sisters." Poor Clark had the misfortune to entertain a hopeless passion for a very beautiful lady, who repaid his admiration and despairing of success he became subject to periods of deep melancholy. He finally took his life in his own hands and shot himself in his house in St. Paul's churchyard.

It is proposed to set up a memorial to Sir Hubert Parry in Gloucester Cathedral. Sir Hubert rendered great services to the music, and no words are needed as to the fitness of such a memorial or the suitability of placing it in the Cathedral. It was here that many of his best works were first performed and near which the composer lived.

I wish to thank the anonymous sender of some London papers. I find them very useful.

Apologues of the observation of a certain American, who says in commenting upon the Japanese stinking opera "with a view to awakening and comforting the laborers," that "it means rousing the Jap workman from his slumbers with 'Some Day He'll Come.' I will go farther than my American friend, and suggest for instance, 'Lo! He Has Arrived.'"

Gwendolin and H. Coleridge-Taylor, daughter and son of the celebrated composer of "Hiawatha" have been appearing in Queen's Hall, London, in interpretations of their father's music. Gwendolin appears in recitals set to Coleridge-Taylor's music, whilst the son is a gifted conductor and a pianist of rare gifts.

Bach and Beethoven are the Milton and Shakespeare of music. The earlier works of Bach are about 200 years old, whilst some of Beethoven's are only a little more than a century old.

The great composer-pianist, Leopold Godowsky, will by invitation give a private concert this month at the White House for President and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. A number of invited guests will be present.

Over 200 years ago there dwelt at the west corner of London House yard, in St. Paul's Churchyard, one John Young, a maker of violins. John had a son named Tabot, a member of St. Paul's choir, and a well-known violinist in those days, and with his father, a very fine performer on the harpsichord, originated weekly meetings for the practice of music. The fame of these performances spread far and wide and in a few winters these weekly functions were crowded with gentlemen performers. Another noted instrumentalist at these gatherings was a Mr. Franckville, a fine player of the Viol de Gamba. These events were supposed to have been the first chamber concerts held in the British Isles and were known as the "Castle" concerts from the fact of their being held in the "Castle" in Paternoster Row. These concerts continued to flourish for many years. The "Castle" perished by fire but was afterwards rebuilt, and here "The Castle Society of Music" gave

ALONG VICTORIA'S AUTO WAY

Victoria's new car this week is the Grant, a speedy light-six in the $2,500 class which is experiencing a sweep of popularity in the East.

Revercomb Bros. have been selected as the Victoria distributors for the Grant products. Besides the passenger car, the company is turning out a 1 1/2 to 2 ton fast delivery truck. With the sturdy Federals in the heavy-weight classes, the Revercombs are now equipped to meet all demands in the hauling line.

The first carload of Grants was unloaded yesterday. The shipment consisted of two passenger cars and two trucks. Another carload is on the way. They are made in Cleveland.

Charlie Mitchell, head of the Plimley sales force, at his Spring blossoming forth this week with the arrival of the new Willys-Knight model.

The new car has a four-cylinder high-powered motor. The body lines are racy but compact. The rear semi-elliptical springs are unusually long, projecting far behind and giving the riding effect of a much longer wheel base. The rear mudguards are modelled on particularly speedy lines.

Dr. Betchel is the first Victorian to own a new Willys-Knight. Five altogether have been sold, but not delivered yet.

F. B. Graves is responsible for this week's innovation in automobile selling methods. He introduced the New Mitchell to Victoria by an open-air display stand near the Post Office, Government Street. There are few persons who traverse that busy part of the city daily, able to resist the temptation to stop and inspect and admire the latest Mitchell creations.

Three carloads of these new Mitchells have been spoken for, Mr. Graves says. A carload is now on the way. The third carload leaves the factory to-day.

The possibility of the motor truck in speeding up rural life are to be again demonstrated. This time in Saanich.

Frank Young has just taken a one-ton high speed Patriot truck, from the Blanshard Garage, with which he is to enter the general trucking business around the Saanich Peninsula. Mr. Young and his partner are to deliver city supplies to the agriculturists throughout the district and bring back to town and market, butter, eggs and fowl.

An orchestra and afternoon tea and cake were not needed to attract attention to the Studebaker and Gray-Dorts in the new showrooms of Jameson and Willis which had the final finishing touches put on them during the week.

"We don't need to tell you that they are the finest showrooms in the city, because, of course, there is nothing on the island in their class" said Carleton Willis. "The attractiveness of the showrooms is as much an asset to the Studebaker as the Studebaker is to them."

Carmichael ros. have established their "Kor-Ker" headquarters at Lillie's Garage, Johnson Street. With the warm weather motor season coming on, Kor-Ker is coming into more prominence because of the anxiety to be free from punctures while on a country trip.

"Kor-Ker," the Carmichael's explain, "is a compound of mineral ingredients which when mixed with water and injected into the tube, through the valve stem—without removing the tire or tube—renders punctures harmless and slow leaks impossible. Its operation is caused by the pressure from within and forcing the material into the opening made by a nail or other puncture agent, and forming an air-tight plug. It is not injurious to rubber in any way, in fact, it is a preservative element which keeps the rubber live and fresh."

"Now that Spring is here, careful and economical motorists are giving their attention to getting everything in shape for the season," George Fisher and Allan Lynn, of the Central Vulcanizing Station, say in their review of tire business condition. "A careful inspection of casings, tubes and valves should be made. If there are any tread cuts they should be repaired and bad spots in inner tubes should be fixed."

One of the most notable successes in the automobile industry of Victoria has been that of the "drive yourself" livery system. J. C. Macdonald, who holds the distinction of being the proprietor of the first auto livery in Canada, is proud of the evolution of his business from its small beginning two years ago. He now has a battery of sixteen cars, including Fords, Dodges, Overlands, Hupmobiles and Chevrolets, and four more cars on the way, so that he will be well equipped for big business this summer.

The "drive yourself" idea seems to be catching on even more rapidly than Mr. Macdonald's dream of Tourists from across the line, who own their own cars, find it especially convenient, instead of bringing their cars with them, to take advantage of the "drive yourself" system, as a great deal of worry and endless bother is thereby eliminated.

It is considered a tribute to Mr. Macdonald's ability that people in other cities have been watching the Garfords are going strong in the heavy truck line here. One 2-ton and two 3/4-ton Garfords are now on their way to Victoria. They have already been sold by R. E. McMorran, Island distributor.

The Garford plant is now turning out a light and fast ton and a quarter delivery wagon, built on the same substantial lines as the heavy Garfords. Some of the new models are expected in the city before long.

"In getting ready for the season, attention should be given to the repair kit," counsels A. McGavin, of the Gates Half-Sole Institute, Blanshard Street. "Every car should be supplied with blow-out patches of the proper size, cementless tube patches, some good taps, an outside tire sleeve, a tire pressure gauge and some extra valve insides. If last year's stock of repair materials has dried out, it should be renewed."

GASOLINE PRICE HOP MEANS BIG INCREASE IN MOTORISTS' BILLS

ASTONISHING additional costs to be paid by motorists of California on account of the 2 cents per gallon raise on gasoline, newly effective, are reckoned by officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California as follows:

There are 232,825 automobile owners in the eleven southern counties of California, and it was costing them $249,123 a day to buy gasoline.

It is now costing them $274,733 a day at the new price of 24 cents a gallon.

This is a daily increase in the gas bill of $25,610.

In a year this excess cost to southern California motorists will amount to $9,347,650.

California cars number 493,466, and the daily expense for gasoline is $582,266.

The yearly gasoline bill has been $212,527,090.

The yearly gasoline bill, under 2 cent raise, will be $261,511,840.

The daily increase is $54,150.

The annual increase is $48,984,750.

Failure of the railroads to handle the output of the big automobile factories at Detroit, Mich., caused that city to be literally flooded with finished motor vehicles. Every available space was utilized, from abandoned breweries to ball parks, and there are now more than 1,000 cars a day leaving the city over the highways.

BURNT HIS CAR IN IMITATION AT GRAVE

Wealthy Chinese Relatives Adopt Western Idea to Oriental Custom

There was a pretty custom among some of the ancients when a prominent citizen died, to send his valiant along with him on the road to Paradise, and it was oftentimes necessary to resort to extreme methods to insure this company for the departed. But in the territory of the China-American Trading Company, Ford Dealers in Tientsin, China, that short time ago in Tientsin, and who departed over the rough places on the trip to the Promised Land.

It is the custom of the Chinese to burn various kinds of effigies at the funeral ceremonies of the rich, the more wealthy the departed the more elaborate the figures burned over his grave. These effigies represent every manner of thing such as human figures, horses, sedan chairs and tables loaded with money. The figures usually conform to some of these stereotyped fashions, but at the funeral of a Mr. Li, who died a short time ago in Tientsin, and who was a very wealthy man, the bereaved family outdid themselves and made an imitation of the departed gentleman's Ford Car to be burned at his grave.

This Ford effigy was made entirely of strong Chinese paper stretched on bamboo and reed frames. The car was complete in every detail, the pedals accurately placed, and all made of paper and bamboo. The interior of the car was a work of art. The car was carried about three miles through crowded streets to the graveside where a match was applied and it was consumed in a few minutes.

This is the first time that a motor car has been burned at the grave of a Chinese, and there is every reason to believe that Mr. Li went up "On High."

START TO REFORM REPAIR PROFITTEERING

A.A.A. Waging Systematic Campaign Against Greedy Motor Men

New York, April 10.—That profiteering can be eliminated and the profiteer's eye opened to the error of his ways has just been demonstrated in Washington by the A. A. A. District of Columbia Division.

Among the many anti-profitteer campaigns that have been staged in Washington during the past few years, the stand of the organized motorists against the money-mad automobile repairmen has been by far the most successful.

Success in the campaign is attributed largely to the fact that in the beginning the A. A. A. District of Columbia Division obtained the cooperation of the majority of Washington automobile dealers and repairmen, who were anxious to assist in ridding their midst of men who were bringing condemnation upon all alike.

Investigation showed that old-time establishments generally regarded as reputable were dealing fairly with their patrons, the offenders being the mushroom growth of repairmen who came in the wake of national prosperity. These included near-mechanics without business systems who maltreated motor cars at first class price per hour. In these establishments the less an owner knew about motor car mechanics the more he paid for his repairs.

I was not built to run away,
And though I buck and miss and stall
My owner is not hep at all.
Every zero Winter's night,
My radiator's frozen tight,
In Summer-time I hot and fret
And wish my baffle plate were wet;
That's just the way he's treated me

And so I think the thing to do
Is just quit cold on him—don't you?

WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY

It isn't always the dub who gets into a jam in driving his motor car. Some of the so-called experts take fool chances and fail to get away with them.

They like to drive as close to the car ahead as they can, and then when the man ahead stops suddenly, there is a crash.

One of the first things to remember in driving an automobile is to drive with great care and caution and do nothing suddenly.

Here are a few good sensible rules to follow and they are easily followed, and if followed will prevent a lot of trouble.

First, assume that you must look out for yourself and the other fellow too.

Don't rely wholly on the other fellow doing the right thing and be ready for any emergency.

Never back or swing from the curb into the street without looking back to see if the road is clear.

Glance both ways on each cross street, and, if you're not on the main thoroughfare, slow down before you cross.

It's safest to drive slowly enough to have the car well under control where buildings hide the intersection of streets.

Do not cut corners in turning, but keep to your left in passing a street car always keep to the right.

In passing a slower vehicle pass on your left but in passing a street car always keep to the right.

Do not follow another vehicle too closely. It might stop suddenly.

Dim your lights when approaching another automobile on the road.

Stop when the street car ahead of you stops and stand still until all of the passengers getting off are out of the way. In most cities this is required by ordinance.

Amateur tire patching ruins thousands of automobile tires each year.

It is a common practice among automobile owners, when receiving a cut or puncture in a tire to insert a patch on the inside of the casing at the point of injury, thinking that the damage is permanently repaired.

Such a repair in time will ruin any tire.

It is good practice to apply patches in such cases, but a tire sleeve should always be placed on the outside of the tire opposite the patched portion at the same time.

The sleeve serves to bind the tire, hold the torn and injured parts of the fabric in place and prevent further chafing and rupture.

The tire sleeve and patch are merely "first aid" appliances and should be removed at the earliest possible moment.

It will pay motorists to drive to the nearest repair man immediately after the injury occurs.

If allowed to run without repair every time the wheel makes a revolution the tire quickens its pace toward the scrap heap.

It is impossible to overestimate the importance of keeping the brakes of the motor truck properly prepared for their essential duty.

The grease cup at the cam of the hand brake mechanism, if that type is used, should be kept always filled.

The brake rocker shaft should be attended to faithfully.

In the foot brake all the joints from the clutch pedal back, including the pins for the shoes and the arms at the brakes, should be oiled at frequent intervals.

CONGESTED DETROIT

Why Shipments of New Cars Are Running Months Behind, and Something About the Harsh Methods of Purchasers to Get Delivery.

By L. J. Faulkner

Detroit has congestive automobilism. In other words, the city is crowded in every nook and corner with cars and trucks awaiting shipment.

The reason is that transportation of automobiles by freight has been practically suspended since the return of railroads to private control.

This condition is costing the manufacturers and the railroads vast sums daily.

When the roads were under Government ownership a Federal supervisor was located in Detroit, whose duties it was to take care of the distribution of freight cars, allotting them, according to requirements, to the various factories. It made no difference to what railroad these cars previously belonged; if they were available for automobile shipment, it was all that was necessary.

But since March 1, under the new rules governing the return of the railroads to original ownership, all cars must be returned to their home railroads. The result has been that hundreds of empty automobile freight cars have been sent away from Detroit.

Railroads like the Michigan Central which under Government ownership and previous to the war carried most of the automobile shipments, are themselves today with less than 100 of these cars available, the balance being distributed all over the country, and it will take weeks and months before any of the railroads centering in Detroit can get the cars that belong to them, that are available for the shipment of automobiles—that is, that possess double doors and high eaves. In conjunction with this situation, the short-sightedness of the railroads in the past looms up prominently. Thousands upon thousands of new freight cars have been built by the railroads, but strangely no attempt has been made to make these cars adaptable for automobile shipments. In the majority of cases they have been single doors, incapable of entrance for an automobile and in many ways absolutely unsuitable for such shipments.

The result has been that there are thousands upon thousands of empty cars on the various railroads of today lying idle that could be used in the shipment of automobiles if they were adapted to such purpose.

This condition has resulted in the greatest "drive-away" ever known in the history of Detroit. Every day there are at least 1,000 cars driven away to various destinations from this, the hub of motordom. Every train entering the Wolverine City carries from twelve to fifteen Pullman sleepers, filled in every berth with drivers and chauffeurs, sent to Detroit to drive away various makes of cars. Every hotel is filled to capacity, and it is safe to estimate that there are over 3,000 people at this writing in Detroit awaiting a chance to drive away cars.

No such conditions has ever existed in the history of the industry, which has had many handicaps during the past two years, but none quite as serious as this one. The point has been reached when manufacturers feel that the well-known saying that life is nothing but "just one blank thing after another" is very applicable to the auto industry.

Wisconsin issued licenses to 1,396 automobiles dealers last year.

BUS OWNERS CAN LEARN MUCH FROM JITNEY FAILURES

Strong Organization, Strict Schedule and Business Methods Necessary

New York, April 10.—Although the universal use of motor buses for passenger transportation in cities is possible, their success depends upon certain elements of organization and operating methods.

Bus operators of the present and future may well profit by the experience of the so-called jitney lines, not only in New England cities and towns, but also throughout the length and breadth of the United States, that have failed through loose organization and cut-throat method of competition.

In European capitals such as Paris and London, the bus lines carry on tremendous business and are doing it well. The companies are highly organized and are operated with much more efficiency than the street car lines. Each bus has a certain route and certain times of passing each street corner. These schedules are strictly adhered to.

Wrong Assumption
The majority of the jitney lines in America were operated by former private chauffeurs and teamsters

Our New Offering The Latest Mitchell Six

We choose the Mitchell because of many, many reasons. And our choice was not made quickly.

We wanted to be certain of a car that had endurance. For lasting newness is a most important item to-day.

We wanted a dependable performer. And one that kept operating and repair costs at a minimum.

We wanted a car of style, for people like the latest in good taste. We wanted a comfortable car, one with plenty of room, plenty of easy spring action.

After months of investigation, we found that the new Mitchell was our ideal car. It offered every thing we searched for—and a good deal more. Every new appraisal of it brought us fresh surprises.

The Price Surprise

At first we couldn't see how such a fine car could be offered at its price. There were so many extras, such fine workmanship, so many costly superiorities.

Then Mitchell executives showed us how they could do it. They proved to us how plant efficiency saved money that could be put into the car.

Much of this added merit in the car is due to a major saving brought about by Mitchell building its own bodies.

It is one of the few large makers, that owns its own body plant. So it saves the body-builders' profits and gains an added economy in efficient supervision of the body shop.

Throughout the Mitchell factory are such savings. You can appreciate, as we did, that only a way like this could account for the over-values in the new Mitchell.

The Style Surprise

In the new Mitchell we see the car of to-morrow. It brings new harmony of lines. The radiator, for instance, is on the same angle as the wind-shield, doors, louvers, etc.

The finish is superb. No car could be finished more beautifully. Every detail has been regarded with care. Little things have been taken care of that ordinarily makers overlook.

You'll be as fascinated with this splendid new Mitchell when first you see it as we were. And your appreciation will grow as rapidly.

We invite you to come in at your earliest convenience, whether you are ready to buy or not. To show you this car is a pleasure, and it does not obligate you in the least.

But may we say here that if you want a car soon, now is the time to place your order so as to insure early delivery.

who, because of liberal credit extended to truck dealers, could do business with a little capital.

Although their equipment was in many cases inferior they assumed that it could be operated for as little as a high grade and expensive vehicle that is found in the fleets of successful bus-line operators. This was an erroneous assumption.

Boston is one of the largest cities without extensive bus lines. There are many reasons given for this, one being the high bond placed upon the companies by the city council and the other that Boston is not a bus city, meaning that passengers will only ride long distance and will not hop on and off, as is the style in New York's Fifth avenue bus line and in Chicago thus duplicating fares.

WANT CAR DUTY CUT
American Automobile Manufacturers Do Not Fear Foreign Competition; Would Help Exchange.

New York, April 10.—For an industry to ask the Government to lower the import duty against its foreign competitors is unique if not unparalleled, yet such is the position of the automobile manufacturers as announced by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. A canvass of 123 member companies resulted unanimously in favor of the reduction of the tariff on imported cars costing $2,000 or over from 45 per cent to 30 per cent, as now imposed on cars of lower value.

TAX ON ROAD WEAR

British Government Considering New Schedule For Assessing Automobiles.

London, April 10.—The new taxes which, it is contemplated, will be levied on motor vehicles in the United Kingdom will be based on the principle of road wear and tear, according to a statement of the Ministry of Transport. The horsepower will be the unit for the calculation of the tax on private motor vehicles, their weight the unit for commercial vehicles, and their seating capacity for hackney carriages and omnibuses.

Motor cycles will be taxed on their weight, with an added amount for side car or trailer.

What KOR-KER Is

Kor-ker is a compound of mineral ingredients which, when mixed with a little water until about the consistency of an emulsion and injected into the inner tube—through the valve stem—without removing the tire or tube—renders punctures harmless and slow leaks impossible.

Kor-ker is not sticky: its action is purely mechanical. Its operation is caused by the pressure within the tire acting behind the material, which is of such a nature that when forced into the opening made by a nail or other puncture agent, it forms an airtight plug.

Kor-ker is not injurious to rubber in any form. Letters from the leading tire manufacturers, chemists and our customers certify to this.

Kor-ker contains a preservative element which keeps the rubber in the tube live and fresh.

What KOR-KER Does

Kor-ker does not in any way interfere with vulcanizing should a cut or tear make this necessary.

Kor-ker will never dry out, harden, gum or become sticky. Lacking stick, it cannot in any way interfere with the action of the valve.

The same pressure is used—the same resiliency maintained. Kor-ker merely occupies approximately six per cent. of the air space.

The added weight of a Kor-kerized tube is not as much as the difference in weight between a thick and thin tube.

Kor-ker seals the puncture as you ride—in fact, unless you detect a slight hiss of air as the puncture occurs, you are absolutely unconscious of the occurrence.

TRACE TROUBLES METHODICALLY; DO NOT GUESS SO MUCH

In This Way You Will Get Better Satisfaction From Your Car at Less Expense

For the benefit of the motor novice and the man who expects to own his first car this Spring, The Times is printing a series of articles on the construction and operation of motor cars. The eighth, herewith, tells about tracing engine trouble. Another article will appear next Saturday.

When trouble with a car comes more time usually is spent in finding out what the matter is than in fixing it. This is not as it should be, but it will be so until the driver learns to hunt by rule—systematically. The average driver resents this. He guesses that the trouble is in the carburetor, or with the ignition, or somewhere else, and tries to prove his diagnosis, instead of first making sure where the trouble lies and what the matter is.

You have learned in this series that the three things necessary to start a gasoline engine are ignition, compression and gasoline mixed with air in proper proportion. Therefore, if the engine will not start it must be one of these three things at fault. You can settle it as regards the ignition very rapidly. Take a wire off a spark plug, lay it one-eighth inch from the base of the plug and turn over the engine by hand. If you get a good spark you do not have to look further in that direction.

Gasoline Supply
See next if the gasoline is turned on, then if it flows from the drip cock under the carburetor. Put a spoonful in each cylinder through the priming cups, if there are cups, and crank over the engine. It starts and runs a short time and then stops the trouble is between the gasoline pipe line and the cylinder. Usually it means water or dirt clogging the spray nozzle.

Drain the carburetor and see if it fills readily. If so, open the needle valve a complete turn, choke the air intake, turn the engine over briskly and then set the needle valve back exactly where it was. Prime again and try the engine. If it runs you know the trouble was at the needle valve. If it stops again, see if the intake manifold leaks through loose bolts or defective gaskets either at the carburetor or cylinder end. See if the auxiliary air valve is stuck. This should locate the trouble and enable starting.

Don't Annoy the Carburetor
Nothing is said about adjusting the carburetor. If it was right when the car was last run and has not been changed, except as directed above, you may be sure it is in adjustment still. Incidentally the carburetor maker will be glad to give you an instruction book for your make which is a real compendium of information concerning this device.

If there was no spark upon testing you need not bother about the gasoline supply. Go to the interrupter, with switch turned on and short circuit the fixed point and see if there is a spark. Next, if there is dirt between the points and if they open and close as the engine is cranked. Test the battery; see that wires are neither loose, broken nor short-circuited. This is not need if there is a good spark at the interrupter points.

How About the Spark?
See if the distributor is dirty, or if wires have become loose. If a magnet only is used it is easy to see if the interrupter points make and break properly and the distributor is in condition. If so, and the wires are all right up to the plugs and the plugs are clean, the trouble is in the armature winding or condenser and it is a repair man's job.

If with a good spark and the cylinder in good condition there is no explosion the compression should be tested as previously described. If the car stops in the road and does not start again when the starter pedal is pressed get out the crank and turn the engine over by hand, with spark retarded and gears in neutral. If it is hard to turn over it indicates lack of lubricating oil or lack of water, which allows the engine to heat so that the oil does not do its work.

Causes of Misfiring
If the engine runs, but one or two of the cylinders do not fire, it often is quite as annoying as to have the auto stop. There is a variety of causes for irregular action or loss of power, the most usual being dirty or short-circuited plug. That is, carbon has collected on the insulator until it offers a path for the electric current, depriving the plug points of the vital spark. A clean plug will rectify this. Leaking at the valve also causes misfiring, as do a leaky manifold, pitted or glazed points of interrupter, too rich or too lean a mixture. With these things all right there should be no trouble with a missing cylinder unless you allow it to become unbolted from the base when there might be a missing cylinder, indeed.

Here Are Some Rules
It is not necessary to tell all the steps in the search for trouble, for once you get the idea the logical progression is natural; where you have a rule to follow it is a pleasure. This is the general trouble rule used at our school, which will simplify the problem of the driver:

1. Gasoline.
Is tank full?
Are pipes clean?
Is carburetor clean?
If carburetor needs adjusting, do it, otherwise leave it alone.
Does manifold leak?
2. Compression
To test: Open all petcocks except on cylinder to be tested.
Crank engine, noticing how strong compression is on each cylinder in turn.
You must turn the crank over twice for each cylinder.
3. Ignition
A—Test for spark by taking wire off any plug, hold wire about 1/4-inch from plug; crank engine with switch on. Spark should jump to plug. Make sure about switch on for test.
B—Are batteries run down? Does vibrator (if any) buzz? Is timer

A Blood-Food Discovered That Entirely Overcomes Anaemic Weakness

CAREFULLY INVESTIGATED REPORTS ESTABLISH TRULY WONDERFUL RESULTS

Heretofore it has often been a hopeless task for a thin-blooded person to gain either strength or weight. Neither food or medicine in many instances had beneficial effect.

What is practically a perfect blood-food, containing such elements as iron, has at last been produced, and when taken after meals will put new life and vigor into people that have despaired of ever being strong again.

This truly wonder-working treatment consists of taking two small chocolate-coated Ferronone Tablets at the close of every meal.

This wonderful blood-food supplies nourishment, vim, energy—sends a stream of vigorous, strength-making blood to every nook and corner of the body, makes every muscle and fiber sing with new-found life and health.

That gnawing tiredness leaves you—Ferronone drives it away. Sleepless nights are turned into periods of rest, and you pick up fast. Day by day your appetite improves—this means more food is transformed into nutriment that will build and energize weak organs.

The inclination to worry passes away because Ferronone imparts nerve—tone and bodily strength that prevents depression.

Think it over—Ferronone is a wonderful tonic, in fact, it is more than a tonic, because it establishes health that lasts. Thousands use it and they cleanse and restore the entire system to a perfect condition. You'll feel the uplifting power of Ferronone in a week—it's bound to help you if you only give it the chance. Sold by all dealers. See a box of six boxes for $2.50; be sure of the name Ferronone. Forwarded by mail to any address if price is remitted. The Catarrhzone Co., Kingston, Ont.

CANADIAN HIGHWAY

Kingston, Ont., April 10.—One of the members of the Vancouver Automobile Club intends to motor from the Pacific Coast to Montreal this Spring for the purpose of mapping out the shortest and best route between the Coast and the Canadian metropolis, according to a letter received by J. K. Carroll, Secretary of the Kingston Automobile Club.

clean? Does timer rotor make good contact?

C—Are any wires loose, burnt, wet, broken or short-circuited? Are spark plugs clean and points 1-50 inch apart?

D—Does magneto armature revolve? Is safety spark gap clean? Are interrupter points clean and adjusted right? Do all brushes make good contact? Is distributor clean? Is distributor rotor loose, broken, or making poor contact?

E—Check all magneto wires as per "C."
Note—Loose wires and terminals, neglected batteries and dirty gasoline cause much trouble. The above covers everything needed to start a gasoline engine. To keep it running, cooling, lubrication and a free exhaust are necessary.

TAKING AUTOS ABROAD

New York, April 10.—Despite the fact that all reports from abroad show that the highways in Europe are in very bad condition, that gasoline costs three to four times what it does in the United States and that hotel rates are very high for very poor accommodation, there will probably be a great number of wealthy Americans who will take their cars abroad this Summer.

For the information of such tourists, Edward H. Wakefield, manager of the foreign department of the Automobile Club of America's Touring Bureau, says:

When taking an automobile abroad for touring purposes, there are four principal matters to be attended to. These are: Transportation, insurance, customs and licenses.

Plan Well in Advance
All arrangements for packing and transportation of automobiles by sea should be made well in advance of the sailing date as possible. Suitable shipping accommodation is somewhat limited, while freight rates are constantly varying. At the present moment the cost of packing an ordinary large size touring car and embarking it on board ship amounts to approximately $100, including brokerage charges. Atlantic freight rates vary from 65 cents to $1.05 per cubic foot, according to the weight of the automobile when packed.

The average cost of shipping an ordinary touring car to Europe may be said to work to about six or seven hundred dollars. The return voyage is, of course, considerably less as the expense of having the car made and eliminated, the same case being used for the homeward voyage that the car was packed in when shipped to Europe.

To encourage a wider market for foreign automobiles in the United States, the reduction of 15 per cent in tariff on imported cars costing $2,000 or more, was advocated by members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

As a school for their instruction prior to the beginning of the 1920 road work, 300 inspectors and other employees of the Pennsylvania State Highway Department are conducting a two-week conference at Harrisburg.

Be Ready With a Cletrac

You will find the tireless all-round handiness of the Cletrac useful for every kind of work on the ranch.

The Cletrac farmer doesn't need to lose time. He can handle the big jobs as they come along and he always has the odd jobs done. Weather conditions or short seasons make no difference, the Cletrac keeps going more hours—longer days.

All the year round—ploughing, discing, harrowing, seeding, pulling logs, hauling loads, sawing wood, mixing cement—the Cletrac Tank-type Tractor will buckle down to work and save you money.

The Cletrac, with its big wide tracks—800 square inches—is better because it goes over rough spots, in sandy places, and across soft ground. It does not pack the soil or injure seed beds—rides on top.

The Cletrac is easy to control—no more trouble to drive than a team of horses. Operates on coal oil (kerosene), perfectly.

The improved Cletrac has more power and tracks one-third wider. There is an exclusive steering device and a new water air cleaner that takes out the dust that would grind the pistons and overheat the motor.

During the Fall of 1919, automobiles were imported from the United States into Japan at the rate of 150 per month.

The twenty-second anniversary of the first sale of a motor car in the United States will be celebrated next month.

The oldest, largest and most important manufacturer of automobiles in Barcelona, Spain, has an annual output of 2,000 cars.

The average weekly wage in the automobile industry in the United States was $25.74 last year.

the twelfth annual automobile show in Louisville, Ky.

Sixty million dollars will be spent upon the construction of good roads in the province of Ontario during the next five years.

In western Samoa, motor vehicles were a curiosity seven years ago. To-day there are forty-nine passenger cars, nineteen motor trucks and six motor cycles.

In Canada, Ontario leads all provinces with a total of 151,754 automobiles.

The Low Tension Magneto

By Chief Instructor, Hemphill Trade School

The low tension magneto is an electrical generator for converting the magnetic energy from permanent magnets into low tension electrical energy, which must then be transmitted to a high tension coil and be transformed to a high pressure current and from there to the spark plugs, where it jumps the gap and ignites the gasoline mixture that has been compressed in the cylinders burning the fuel out of the air or oxygen, which it heats to a high degree causing the air to expand and force the piston down transmitting the power thus obtained through the connecting rods to the crank shaft and from there to the rear wheels through the clutch, transmission, propeller shaft, differential and rear axles to the rear wheels, all of which will be treated at a later date.

The low tension magneto consists of permanent magnets, marked magnets in the above drawing, which are made of very hard steel and magnetized, these magnets are placed over the pole pieces marked P. F. of the magneto, which are flat on one side with the other side curved to fit the armature with very slight clearance so as not to have too great an air gap for the magnetic flux to jump before reaching the armature, thus losing as little force as possible, the armature which runs between the pole pieces is of the shuttle type with two pole pieces, A and a core V, running between them on which is placed a low tension winding, the revolving of the armature cuts the lines of force running from the north pole N, of the magnets to the south poles S, of the magnets placed on either side (in placing the magnets on a magnet always place the south pole S on one side of the magneto and the north pole N, on the other side or in parallel).

These lines of force will be noted by the arrows Y, which point the way the lines of force travel, also the revolving of the armature reverses the direction of the travel of the lines of force Y, through the core Y, of the armature.

It is at the point of reverse of these lines of force that the current that is built up in the armature of the magneto is at its highest peak, at this time the interrupter points in the housing H are parted by the cam I, operating on the lever K from the point on the stationary block M, which is insulated from the housing H, when the interrupter points above mentioned are together they make a complete circuit from the terminal O to the ground at the pin T.

The primary circuit Z is taken from the primary winding through the commutator J, which is insulated from the ground to the primary winding Q, on the core of the high tension coil which is made of a bundle of soft iron wires and out of the coil at the top of the terminal O on the interrupter housing H through the block M, which is insulated from the case H, and the interrupted points through the arm or lever K to the ground through the pin T, thus making a complete circuit from the commutator J to the ground connection of the primary winding on the armature marked U through the low tension winding Q on the high tension coil.

At the highest peak of the primary current generated in the armature the interrupter points are separated, thus breaking the primary circuit Z in the low tension winding Q, and violently agitating the lines of force that have been built up in the core of the coil by the passing of the current through the low tension winding Q in the primary circuit Z we have shunted a condenser C for absorbing the energy that would go to causing a spark or arc at the interrupter points which would cause them to burn and pit or corrode, and which would also cause the interrupting of the primary circuit to be slow which would not agitate the lines of force sufficiently in the high tension winding of the coil and therefore make a weak thin spark at the spark plugs, which, in some cases, is too weak to ignite the gases in the cylinders.

So far that reason the condenser C is the source of much trouble in the average high tension system, the high tension winding R wound around the primary winding Q in the coil is grounded to the return wire on the primary side which grounds it to the motor and the other side is taken to the distributor on wire S and from there it is distributed to the different cylinders as they should fire.

The brush D revolves at one-half motor speed in contact with the brass ring E and the brass segments B, giving four sparks to the four cylinders each two revolutions of the motor through the high tension wires F.

MUSICAL NOTES

(By George J. Dyke.)

A very remarkable incident and romantic, too, has been the revival in Cambridge, England, of Henry Purcell's opera "The Fairy Queen," announced in the phrase of the playbill as "First performance on any stage since 1693." The really curious thing about the "Fairy Queen" disappeared from the Dorset Gardens Theatre (where it was first produced) in 1700, and although a new version of the play was discovered it was not until exactly 200 years later that the theatre company of the name was reconstituted.

Henry Purcell was organist of Westminster Abbey in the time of Charles II and those of his contemporaries had much to say then of the talents of the renowned English composer. Purcell knew all of the great Lully's manner of making music, and all that the Italians had taught Lully. He was virile to a degree, and in a very short time absorbed and transcended his wonderful knowledge of music so that two hundred and thirty years later we listen with keen ears to music that was in its time revolutionary; and that music seems, by a sweet directness, all its own, as modern in places as anything Richard Strauss or Stravinsky ever projected with a huge orchestra. Strauss will crackle the whips in "Elektra" and say the last word in "realism," but with the harpsichord and the smallest fraction of an orchestra Purcell gives us the most perfect of Drunken Poet with equal realism and less offence.

In this quaint relic of the Restoration there is abundance of sweet music. There are great breezes in its rhythm, with here and there a suggestion of the Morris dance. Tenderness, too, and elegance, and not a note ignoble if its origin be from start to finish. How free and spirited is the soprano solo and chorus, "Sing, sing, while we trip it, trip it," upon the green—as English as the crow and the maypole; how grave and calm the music for the Entrance of Night, where Night, Mystery, Serenity and Sleep forgether on the stage with their chorus of attendants; and how perfect the foiling in the dialogue between Monsa and Coridon, as fine a parody of operatic which it is proposed to the four cylinders each two revolutions of the motor through the high tension wires F.

Five instruments are classified as a "quintette," six instruments are designated as a "sextette," seven as a "septette," etc. With the string quartette, which comprises two violins, viola and cello, these smaller groupings of instruments are termed "chamber music."

The "voices" of the string quartette are similar to the mixed quartette of women's and men's voices: 1st violin, soprano; 2nd violin, contralto; viola, tenor; violoncello, baritone or bass.

The importance of diction is more and more now demanded, not only on the operatic, but on the dramatic stage. How often have we sat even almost at their very feet and found utterance of speech incomprehensible. How much greater the effect would be if actors, actresses and singers would let their audience thoroughly understand what they are saying and singing.

The revival of this historic production was magnificently done, we read. The cast was enormous, and nearly all who took part—actors, singers, dancers and instrumentalists—were drawn from the University of the town. If we lived in Cambridge we would strive for an annual staging of such a beautiful work as "The Fairy Queen."

The Prince of Wales is very fond of a good song and at a reception during his New York visit he admired a song entitled "The Borderland" and wanted to know all about it and about its composer.

Reports have come that that quartette of string players—the Zoellers, father, daughter and two sons—is enjoying an exceedingly busy and prosperous season on tour. The quartette has given some 762 performances in public. The Zoellers played here two seasons ago.

The collapse of a chimney over the New American Hotel in Boston, during a storm, killed the leader of the hotel orchestra.

The amount paid into income tax account of the U.S.A. by singers is enormous. John McCormack heads the list with nearly $140,000. Petrazzina and Caruso made returns of $100,000, and Galli-Curci about $80,000.

In Sweden the public in general is highly educated in music. They are somewhat phlegmatic in type and do not respond with enthusiasm to all the music offered them. For temperament one looks to the Latins.

There are Russian musicians aplenty this season on tour. The latest is Michel Guskoff, a violinist, who recently received an ovation at Chicago.

Certain primitive elements are recognizable in the music of all nations and of all times. Climatic, racial and governmental conditions are influences in the customs and art of various nations, but peculiarly there are certain musical characteristics to be found in music which are common to all countries. While the song of a mother to her child is universal there is the rhythmic and melodic differences of the locality. Love is a universal language and is not disguised even with the characteristic instrument of the nation. Religion, joy, the tragic note of death, are all recognized even with but slight changes in the vocal methods employed. Patriotism is absolutely universal, and the stirring battle hymn arouses an ardor in the heart of the hearer which is not entirely governed by nationality. While, then, music is universal and the oldest of arts, nationality is the first of the fundamental principles to be expressed in music. Music springs directly from the daily life of the folk, and it is easily understood that there is naturally a great difference between the music of the people of various lands as it is to be found in their language, customs, dress and daily habits.

Musical history is divided into the following general periods: Ancient music, to the birth of Christ; early church schools, to the sixteenth century; secular schools, from the twelfth to the seventeenth century; musical renaissance, seventeenth century; classical school, early nineteenth century; romantic school, early nineteenth century; modern music, late nineteenth century to present day.

It is the custom to use the word "orchestra" when speaking of a group of instrumentalists playing together. For instance a group consisting of violin, piano and drums is termed (save the mark) an orchestra. Small orchestras are heard at theatres, restaurants, dances, and occasionally they are heard in small concerts, but must not be confounded with the modern orchestra, which is called "symphony orchestra," because the chief function of this orchestra is to play symphonic music. For the present we will give the names of the instruments of this size and character is necessary. The symphony orchestra, which is divided into four sections, consists of from fifty to one hundred players, and in the latter number are apportioned about as follows:

String section—First violins, sixteen or eighteen; second violins, sixteen or eighteen; violas, twelve; violoncellos, twelve; double basses, ten.

Wood wind section—Flutes, two; piccolo, one; oboes, two; English horns, one; bassoons, three; contrabassoons, one; clarinets, two; bass clarinets, one.

Brasses—French horns, four; trumpets, four; trombones, three; tubas, one.

Battery—Tympani or kettle drums, two or three; side or snare drums, one; bass drums, one; bells, one; triangles, one; tamborines, one, etc.

The new army reorganization bill, which has just passed the House (U.S.A.) and is now in the Senate, calls for 157 bandmasters and 6,280 bandmen.

The German way of spelling the name of the Russian composer is Tschalkowsky. In England this has been the German spelling. We can conclude that the proper way to spell the name of this composer is Tschalkowsky.

Adelina Patti's great rival was Christine Nilsson (now Dowager Countess Casa de Miranda). Christine Nilsson was called "the Swedish Nightingale." Jenny Lind being the first, and when a young girl used to sing at concerts and play the violin. It was during one of her open air concerts that a wealthy man, a judge, was so struck with the beauty of her voice that he provided means for her musical education in Stockholm and then later in Paris. She was born in 1843 at Wexio, and made her debut in 1864 as Violetta in "Traviata" in Paris. Three years later she appeared at Her Majesty's Theatre in the Haymarket and afterwards made several tours in the U.S.A. as well as traveling over Europe. In 1872 Christine married M. Auguste Barzani who died ten years later. She married in 1887 Count Angel Casa de Miranda, a Spanish nobleman, who, having through gambling ruined himself, became a journalist in Paris and Madrid. The Count died in 1902. The Countess finally retired from the operatic stage and, disposing of her possessions in Kensington Court, took up her permanent residence in Paris.

A handbook is in course of preparation at the Community Service headquarters, New York, which has for its purpose suggestions of a survey of every community's musical resources throughout the whole of the U.S.A. It will not only stimulate local enterprise, but will gather a mass of facts as to each community's advantages, possibilities, needs and handicaps. More than 150 questions have been prepared, and

A model committee for each local community suggests representatives of the city or town, Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, churches, fraternal orders, business clubs, merchants, manufacturers, theatres, schools, women's clubs, and the city's musicians.

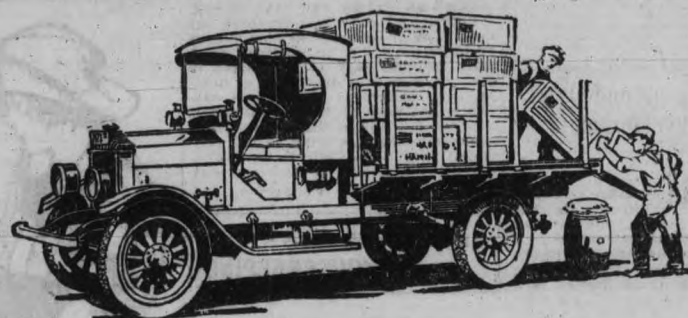

We have just seen the Sir Thomas Beecham repertory of the six weeks' season of opera in English, which began at Covent Garden on February 24. Surely a crowded hour of glorious life will be found in the six weeks of opera. We understand that this is preliminary only to a prolonged Summer season. The conductors are Sir Thomas Beecham, Albert Coates, Eugene Godens and Percy Pitt.

One set of queries has to do with in the survey such as the following:

NATIONAL MOTOR TRUCKS

THE fast mounting and exacting requirements of Canadian Industry are being met by National Motor Trucks.

The National offers permanent maximum truck service and economy under extreme conditions. Every day the National is rendering a sturdy co-operation to the Government, and to cities and business houses from coast to coast.

The National acknowledges no superior. It is built up of units that are absolutely standard. Each unit is a leader in its class. Such names as these are an indication of the quality in the National.

- Eisemann Magneto
- Hele-Shaw Clutch
- Brown-Lipe Transmission
- Timken Carburetor
- Spicer Universal Joints
- Timken Roller Bearings
- Timken David-Brown Worm Drive Axles

Another thing. The National is built in Canada. Canadian capital, labor and raw materials are responsible for it. That means more to Canadians today than ever before.

The National pays substantial returns for the money invested. We want you to become acquainted with it—to study its many advantages and to see wherein it is best suited to the needs of your business. The National offers largest haulage capacity at lowest cost per ton mile. Put it up to the truck. Arrange for a demonstration and watch it make good in every detail.

Built in five models—1 ton, 1 1/2 ton, 2 ton, 3 1/2 ton trucks and 6 ton tractor. Bodies to suit your individual needs.

NEW HIGHWAY IS PLANNED IN LONDON

Would Construct New Road From Victoria Station Through Lambeth

London, Eng., April 10—It is reported in the London daily papers that Parliament is expected early in the present session to give consideration to an important improvement in Westminster which will open up a large area for much-needed roads and buildings. The district covers 250,000 acres of old houses and narrow ways between Victoria Street and Millbank. The scheme provides for the building of a new "city" as an adjunct to the government centre of Westminster. It is intended as an Empire War Memorial.

For some months the London Traffic Board and a Cabinet committee have been considering the scheme. Sir Eric Geddes, Minister of Transport, has expressed a favorable opinion of the new main thoroughfare, which it is proposed to run from Victoria Station along the line of Horseferry Road over a new Lambeth Bridge and through Lambeth to London Bridge. This road would have the effect of considerably relieving the east and west traffic along the Strand and Holborn. On the cleared area it is proposed to erect a Shakespeare theatre, new buildings for the University of London, a gothic memorial chapel by Westminster Abbey, and industrial institutes.

A prominent architect, when interviewed on this subject, stated: "This district has been more or less lying waste, and it is badly needed for the erection of commercial buildings. It will be part of the scheme to erect large groups of offices. So great is the demand for offices that half of the Suites in a large block of offices to be built near Victoria Gardens have been left before the foundations have been dug."

Five instruments are classified as a "quintette," six instruments are designated as a "sextette," seven as a "septette," etc. With the string quartette, which comprises two violins, viola and cello, these smaller groupings of instruments are termed "chamber music."

The "voices" of the string quartette are similar to the mixed quartette of women's and men's voices: 1st violin, soprano; 2nd violin, contralto; viola, tenor; violoncello, baritone or bass.

How often have we sat even almost at their very feet and found utterance of speech incomprehensible. How much greater the effect would be if actors, actresses and singers would let their audience thoroughly understand what they are saying and singing.

LOW initial cost, economical operation, minimum up-keep expense, are factors not to be overlooked in the selection of a motor truck.

The Commerce Truck represents a value not to be duplicated in its class—price, serviceability, dependability, reputation.

An investigation of performance records in farm and commercial use will prove convincing arguments why Commerce Trucks merit consideration.

An End to the Suffering!

It has been estimated that one out of every fifteen people in Canada use Gin Pills yearly, the annual sale being between 580,000 and 600,000 boxes and still increasing. That these Gin Pill users have benefited is evidenced by the immense number of letters which continually pour into our office, full of praise for Gin Pills and gratitude to us for perfecting the formula on which these excellent Pills are prepared. That formula was only achieved after profound study and patient experimenting. But it was well worth all the time and thought given it, for Gin Pills have done more to relieve pain and to prevent serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles than perhaps any other preparation that can be obtained.

Gin Pills

FOR THE KIDNEYS

Mr. Frank Ide, a Pullman conductor, suffered intensely from pains in the groins, sore back and very severely from gravel and sediment. After taking Gin Pills, Mr. Ide wrote us—
"The pain left me entirely. I have no trouble whatever in urinating and I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I recommend Gin Pills to everybody in any way troubled with kidneys or bladder."
Mrs. Milford, Galtzie, Ont., writes concerning her husband thus—
"After one dose of Gin Pills my husband found them exactly what he needed, and after taking two boxes he was completely cured." He had had backache and kidney trouble for a long time.

In writing for more Gin Pills Mrs. Grant, Woonsocket, R. I., says—
"I am having good results from them. The doctor says I have consumption of the bladder. The pills seem to keep me comfortable."
Mrs. Perry, Halifax, N.S., after trying a sample sent for six boxes. She wrote—
"Before I finished the third box I found myself for the first time in years perfectly free from pain—the pain did not return. I wish everybody who suffers from backache and kidney trouble would use Gin Pills. They are great."

If you suffer from pains in the groins or back, rheumatism, swollen ankles, stiff joints, gravel, constant headaches and lassitude, constipation and dizziness, take Gin Pills and nip the trouble in the bud. Send for free sample—or get a box from your druggist or dealer, 50c., with money-back guarantee. Act at once—delay is dangerous.

DEVELOPING THE FLAVOR OF FOODSTUFFS

The Secrets of the Use of Garlic, Pistache and Other Little-known Adjuncts

Developing the appetizing flavor of foods is an art in itself. In this, French cooking excels, and in that mellow blending of flavors which produces an agreeable effect without any one taste predominating. In nothing so much as in flavors is a light hand required, as well as a delicate sense of taste. A little at a time, adding more if necessary, is the safest rule to follow, with much stirring and mixing and frequent tasting.

Variety an Asset.
In many households nothing is ever used save salt, pepper, onion, and lemon, and while these are all that are strictly necessary to help the foods from being insipid, better and more varied results are obtainable by making use of the long list of condiments, spices, herbs and extracts. In our deserts we weary of the invariable vanilla. Pistache is no more expensive and liked much less than a change in ice cream, and if it is colored green young people are apt to think they are having something very rare and elaborate. When making chocolate icing try using a little almond extract and you will never go back to vanilla again, so delicious and "nutty" is the flavor.

Our eyes sometimes play queer tricks on our sense of taste. If we expect a certain color to correspond with a particular flavor it will not taste right unless the color is present. Thus the flavor of pistache is to all intents and purposes better when the icing or ice cream is green. For this reason when making lemon frosting try using the yolks of eggs instead of the whites and when enough sugar has been added it will be a pretty yellow color.

Sugar a Flavor.
Sugar must not be overlooked as a flavor, for it is most important in bringing out the taste of insipid fruits. In flavoring desserts it is well to remember that those served warm taste somewhat sweeter than when served at ordinary temperature, and therefore requires less sugar, while frozen desserts, on the other hand, need more sweetening.

In what high esteem salt was held by the ancients is shown by the words of praise, "Ye are the salt of the earth." Not only as a preservative, but in all cooking it is essential and it seems to supply a need of the human system. It not only brings out the flavor of meat and vegetables, but it is also necessary in making fruits, gelatine jellies, custards, cakes, ice cream and even coffee. Lemon juice is especially acceptable with fish. Celery salt is useful when fresh celery cannot be obtained, to season soup or stews.

Onion juice should occupy a large and important position in the cooking scheme. It is despaired and held up to scorn only when used unskillfully. It should never be left out of salad, though if properly used its flavor should not be detected. The French prefer clove of garlic for this purpose, but it is difficult for the unexperienced to use it successfully. Try holding the clove of garlic in your hand and rubbing the inside of the salad bowl with it before making the dressing. This will give sufficient flavor and not be detected. A French gentleman who prided himself on his wonderful method of making French dressing was in the habit of preparing it in the afternoon, and leaving the clove of garlic in the bowl until just before dinner when he would remove it himself. But one day he neglected to do so, and the salad was served as remembered and told his old cronies what had happened. "Yes," said one, "I have just succeeded in swallowing a piece of I thought you were trying to poison me."

"Sugar and Spice."
Spices seem to be much neglected these days. We seldom meet with them except in mince pies, fruit cake or Christmas pudding, yet what is more delicious for frequent use than cinnamon buns or that easily prepared faintly cinnamon toast? Ginger cookies will never lose their popularity with countless kiddies, yet it seems as if city children must depend upon fancy crackers, and spend few mothers appear to find time to keep the cookie jar filled. But we all remember the bliss of coming home from school hungry and joyfully sniffing the odor of freshly baked cookies. And oh! the caraway seed cakes that grandmother used to make at New Year's and the Christmas cookies all sugary and star-shaped! Coffee and chocolate essences are even popular and should also occupy an important place on our list. Cheese adds tremendously to the relish of any tasteless substance such as macaroni, and when the kitchen cupboard is not used as much as it might well be, for just in the same way, as some housekeepers cling to the perennial vanilla, do others use only tomato catsup year in and year out.

ELECTRICAL AIDS TO HOUSEKEEPING

If the modern housekeeper has made a resolve to run her home this year as efficiently and economically as possible, she will probably want to add some new pieces of electrical equipment to it. Real economy comes, of course, something besides dollars and cents, for saving time, inconvenience and health will actually mean money saving in the long run.

Perhaps one of the greatest labor savers is the vacuum cleaner which so quickly and neatly takes up every particle of dirt. Spring housecleaning, particularly, will lose its terrors indeed for the whole family if a vacuum cleaner is used, especially for the attachments for cleaning upholstery, furniture, curtains and walls. These attachments, so useful for thorough cleaning are usually in the form of little suction nozzles.

For the kitchen electrical devices are rapidly being made more numerous and practical for the average home. Among the kitchen appliances are electrical ranges with heat devices that will regulate the heat automatically, electric ovens, electric dish washing machines, electric washers and electric irons. None of the electric stoves costs more than other stoves of equal quality. But the expense and quantity of electric current they require for satisfactory operation makes the real cost to figure upon.

With any electrical device it is considered wasteful to supply it with current from a lamp socket if it requires more electricity than a regular professional electrician. It should be realized that a fire insurance policy becomes void if home wiring is done (that is, without the O. K. of a building inspector) after a policy has been granted. On the other hand it is worth knowing that fire risk from electricity is very low, it being figured by experts as only one per cent of the fire risk from gas.

Among the very useful electric appliances for the dining room are grills that fry, boil, broil or toast, chafing dishes, toasters, waffle irons, and electric coffee makers. There are several types of the last. Glass coffee urns are very attractive for making the after dinner demitasse and some of the coffee machines have a built-in warmer and tray all to match. The electric waffle iron is really superior to other kinds, as it positively does not smoke or give any odor which is produced so conveniently by the electric table hot, crisp and toothsome waffles.

For midday's dressing room there is a delightful warm electric radiator especially designed for heating ironing cabinets, hair dryer for shampoo use, curling iron, vibrator, and, equally useful for the sick room, a hot pad to replace the old fashioned, ever-lasting hot water bottle, and a white night light.

Besides all these things there is an electric immersion heater which is plunged, when desired, into liquids to heat them, and is used for heating water in the kitchen and toilet sizes and is equally useful for heating hot water when travelling, cooking eggs, heating the baby's milk or supplying shaving water. Best of all it is self-regulating.

To give all kinds of electrical devices the best care, avoid overheating them. To forget to turn off the current when through using them not only wastes electricity, but will warp and darken the finest nickel finished appliances.

Try taking twelve deep breaths each day and you will notice that you feel much lighter in spirits.

MAKING PALATABLE THE HUMBLE CEREAL

Appetising Ways of Preparing Breakfast Dishes at Low Cost

Both for children and adults it is wise to have the largest portion of the breakfast consist of some form of cereal. As an inducement it must be remembered that it is about the cheapest food we can buy, and gives a large return in nourishment for the small amount expended.

A porridge bowl of oatmeal costs about one cent, while an egg at the beginning of the year will cost about eight cents. The ready-to-eat cereals have certain advantages, and are excellent to give change and variety, but are usually costly in proportion to those which we expend our own time and labor. If cereals are bought in cartons we have to pay a little more, but they reach us in a clean and convenient container in which it is handy to keep them. In warm weather all cereals should be carefully examined before cooking lest they may have become infected with insects; therefore it is wise to buy in small quantities at a time in Summer.

Best Liked Grains

The four best liked grains are corn, oats, rice and wheat. Generally speaking, the larger the particles of grain the more water is absorbed in cooking and the longer the time required. Whole grains are improved by soaking in cold water and then less fuel is needed.

Finely ground grains are more starchy and should therefore be mixed with cold water; all others should have boiling water. A good plan is to have the water salted, allowing one teaspoonful per quart, and when it is boiling in the upper portion of the double boiler, directly over the heat, shake in the cereal from a cup and stir to prevent lumps. When it has boiled for a few minutes place in the lower portion of the boiler and let it cook for several hours at least.

Cornmeal must be mixed first in cold water, stirred until smooth and boiling water added. Rapid cooking is necessary at first for about five minutes directly on top of the range, then the slow cooking in the double boiler, closely covered and without stirring. The longer it is cooked the better the flavor and the more digestible it will be.

To Prepare Properly

To prepare all mushes properly cook them the day previously, and be sure to put in the right proportion of water at the start, for it is practically impossible to add more afterward without making it lumpy and pasty. Careful measurements and a double boiler are essentials to good results, and it is necessary that the boiler be large enough to allow for the proper expansion of the grains. The usual directions on packages do not allow a sufficient time for cooking; in fact, cereals cannot be overcooked. In the hospitals oatmeal is steamed twenty-four hours, and seldom is it found so delicious. When the boilers are emptied at breakfast time they are immediately refilled for the next day's porridge, and that is the reason why persons wonder that oatmeal tastes so different elsewhere. In few private houses is this practice adhered to, but for very young children or invalids it is invaluable. One young mother wisely invested in a same fireless cooker for this very purpose, and had the comfort of knowing that her baby was fed thoroughly cooked cereal, that it could not burn and was prepared with less trouble than by the ordinary method, right under her own eyes in the nursery.

Rice, having woody fibre, requires ### less cooking to make it tender, but here again for very young children it is found to be more nourishing and more easily digested if cooked in very little water in a double boiler for three hours.

Left over cereals can be utilized in many ways, and no matter how small the quantity, should never be thrown away. They can be added to thickened gravy or may be mixed with the liquid used in making muffins.

Hominy packed smoothly in a bread pan or in a round tin box and allowed to cool can be sliced and fried to serve with syrup or to eat with meats.

As Desserts

A delicious luncheon dish can be made from one cup of corn meal, well boiled, some salted peanuts and grated cheese. Grease a pudding dish or a casserole thoroughly, and pour into it a layer of mush, sprinkle liberally with peanuts, grated cheese and paprika, another layer of cornmeal and repeat until the dish is filled; then cover the top with grated cheese and set in a hot oven for ten minutes. Serve with or without tomato sauce.

Farina makes a very palatable dessert if a little milk, an egg or two and some sugar are added and it is moulded in a fancy shape. It can be served with cream or with preserved fruits.

Fluffy Effects Still in Popular Favor

Despite the decrees of some of the leading designers of fashions, the bouffant hips and fluffy effects still retain their popularity, perhaps because of their youthful air. Feathers and fur trimmings are brought into use to this end, as are loops of wide ribbons, as will be seen in the two charming models pictured above.

EXPERT'S VIEW OF MOTHERS' PENSIONS

How Other Parts of Continent Are Handling Question

In an article on Mothers' Pensions, in the Canadian Municipal Journal, J. W. Macmillan says:

Who Are Eligible
I shall set down the broad differences which exist in the various countries, which have adopted the system, display.

- 1.—Who are eligible for the allowances?
- 1.—Any mother with a dependent child.
- 2.—Widows only.
- 3.—Widows and wives of prisoners, the insane and the physically incapacitated.
- 4.—In addition, deserted wives.
- 5.—In addition, expectant mothers.
- 6.—In addition, unmarried mothers.
- 7.—In addition, expectant mothers.
- 8.—Conditions on which aid is given.

The first condition is uniformly poverty. But poverty is vaguely defined as—unable to support her children, dependent on her own efforts, unable without assistance to prevent her home being broken up, unable to prevent her children being taken to an institution or becoming a public charge. In some states the mother may not own property. In others she is allowed such tools and implements as for the purpose of increasing her income.

The second condition generally includes the requirement that she is physically and morally competent to care for her children. In some cases she is forbidden to work away from home no more than one day a week.

III. Residence qualifications. The maximum varies from thirteen to seventeen. Fourteen is the most frequent figure.

V. Amount of allowance. In some cases the maximum is fixed, but the decision is left to the administrative body. In others it is two, three or three and a half dollars per week. Some states limit the amount which may be given to any household, and set this maximum at from 25 dollars a month all the way up to 60 dollars a month.

VI. Administration. Here the variety is extreme. Probate Court, County Commissioners, Board of Trade Welfare, Supervisors of the Poor, State Treasurer and Board of Education have each their turn. In many states the administration is under the supervision of the State Board of Charities. In every case the administration is non-political, that is, it is not subject to review by the Government of the state. In the three Canadian laws now in force the final authority remains with the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

There is also considerable variation in the three Canadian laws, now operating in the west. Manitoba gives to widows and to wives of men insane, or prisoners, or who are physically unfit for work. Saskatchewan gives to widows only, Alberta to widows and wives of the insane. Manitoba refuses to aid any mother who possesses property of a value exceeding $200. The other provinces set no minimum.

Each of these three provinces levy on the municipalities for the amounts expended. In Alberta the cost is equally divided between the Government and municipality. In the other provinces the proportion is fixed at the will of the Government.

In Saskatchewan and Alberta the administration is vested in the Superintendent of Dependent and Neglected Children. In Manitoba a

HOW MANY WORDS DOES A CHILD KNOW?

Average Child of Four Years Has Knowledge of Over 1,000 Words

How many words does an ordinary child know? Fifty? Wrong. One hundred? Wrong again. Five hundred, for a wild guess? A little nearer, but not much.

The truth is that most people under-estimate the number of words that a child can speak. The ordinary idea is that a child's vocabulary is extremely limited, that fifty or sixty words will cover all that he knows. But just make an investigation some time. Take paper and pencil, follow the child for several days, putting down every word that is uttered. You will find out some things that will surprise you concerning the memory of children and their aptitude for acquiring a vocabulary.

When the word "child" is used it does not refer to a boy or girl eight years old, but to one of four years. An investigation made recently by following a child every word that is uttered, will find out some things that will surprise you concerning the memory of children and their aptitude for acquiring a vocabulary.

The next investigation that was made concerned children two years old. By that time the vocabularies had increased to one-half, says an exchange contributor.

The flame should be about one-half inch of clear blue, and after the alcohol you are cooking comes to a boiling point reduce it to a point that will just keep it boiling. This is equally true in the oven. Invariably the gas is turned too high for baking and the bread or cake is burned. This also means waste of gas and a constant anxiety about the oven, which would not be necessary if gas were used at a lower temperature.

MUNICIPAL LAUNDRIES

In the Republic of Uruguay, South America, a law was passed June 27, 1918, providing for construction by the municipalities of public laundries in all cities of the republic. The buildings are to be completed in four years. The Government authorized to expend not more than $22,750 for the purpose. If the cities have the necessary funds, they may construct their own laundries, in conformity with Government requirements. The buildings will, after completion, be turned over to the municipalities.

It is a good idea to cut the dough for baking powder biscuits with a sharp knife. The biscuits will be in squares and there will be no waste.

Making a Dresser Into a Cabinet

Old-Time Kitchen Furniture May Be Remodelled With Little In-vestment by Handyman her time in the kitchen is likely to be possessed of an intense longing for one of those delightfully attractive kitchen cabinets we see so temptingly illustrated in the magazine advertisements, and frequently housewives are doomed to sigh and long in vain, for when a kitchen equipment is already established it seems a needless extravagance to add more expense to it; then, too, they are not within reach of every pocketbook.

The answer to this problem is justified in buying one determined nevertheless to be quite as up-to-date as her more fortunate sisters. Her husband, being both good natured and generous, lent his aid and between them they turned the old-time kitchen dresser into a very good imitation of the modern kitchen cabinet.

Time and Ingenuity
Before the change recorded below it was just the average kitchen dresser seen in so many homes, so that it would not be difficult for any one to copy the idea, adapting it to their own particular needs or the special kind they might have to work on.

There were three shelves to this dresser besides the base, four and a half feet long, twelve inches deep and eighteen inches between the shelves. It was not convenient in any way and meant a great loss of space, but by changing it somewhat it was possible to make it an adjunct to the store closet and keep enough supplies near at hand to save many weary steps to and fro.

It is not an advantage to have the shelves a foot deep, for it saves time to have everything in plain sight and easy reach, whereas on a wide shelf some things are bound to get hidden behind others and are forgotten. The lower shelf was removed and sawed in half, making two shelves six inches wide.

One half was replaced at the same height, eighteen inches, but the other half was placed just nine inches above the first, this distance apart allowing plenty of room for the quart and pint jars in which it was intended to keep dry groceries.

The shelves being now set in back in the dresser, with the exception of the two top shelves, it was possible to utilize the inner side of the wooden doors. Wire racks can be procured almost any hardware store, and brass screws used on which to hang such small wares as are in constant use—bread knife, meat fork, mixing spoons, potato masher, egg beater, dippers, potato masher, strainers, graters, etc.

Attractive Article

The cupboard under the dresser for saucenaps, and the drawers at the side were lined with oilcloth, and the top drawer partitions were made to keep separately forks, spoons and knives. The two top shelves were reserved for china and were covered with a pretty pattern of oilcloth. The cup being hung from brass hooks. The whole closet was painted white and enamelled, looking most attractive when finished.

DEVELOPING THE FLAVOR OF FOODSTUFFS

The Secrets of the Use of Garlic, Pistache and Other Little-known Adjuncts

Developing the appetizing flavor of foods is an art in itself. In this, French cooking excels, and in that mellow blending of flavors which produces an agreeable effect without any one taste predominating. In nothing so much as in flavors is a light hand required, as well as a delicate sense of taste. A little at a time, adding more if necessary, is the safest rule to follow, with much stirring and mixing and frequent tasting.

Variety an Asset.
In many households nothing is ever used save salt, pepper, onion, and lemon, and while these are all that are strictly necessary to help the foods from being insipid, better and more varied results are obtainable by making use of the long list of condiments, spices, herbs and extracts. In our deserts we weary of the invariable vanilla. Pistache is no more expensive and liked much less than a change in ice cream, and if it is colored green young people are apt to think they are having something very rare and elaborate. When making chocolate icing try using a little almond extract and you will never go back to vanilla again, so delicious and "nutty" is the flavor.

Our eyes sometimes play queer tricks on our sense of taste. If we expect a certain color to correspond with a particular flavor it will not taste right unless the color is present. Thus the flavor of pistache is to all intents and purposes better when the icing or ice cream is green. For this reason when making lemon frosting try using the yolks of eggs instead of the whites and when enough sugar has been added it will be a pretty yellow color.

Sugar a Flavor.
Sugar must not be overlooked as a flavor, for it is most important in bringing out the taste of insipid fruits. In flavoring desserts it is well to remember that those served warm taste somewhat sweeter than when served at ordinary temperature, and therefore requires less sugar, while frozen desserts, on the other hand, need more sweetening.

In what high esteem salt was held by the ancients is shown by the words of praise, "Ye are the salt of the earth." Not only as a preservative, but in all cooking it is essential and it seems to supply a need of the human system. It not only brings out the flavor of meat and vegetables, but it is also necessary in making fruits, gelatine jellies, custards, cakes, ice cream and even coffee. Lemon juice is especially acceptable with fish. Celery salt is useful when fresh celery cannot be obtained, to season soup or stews.

Onion juice should occupy a large and important position in the cooking scheme. It is despaired and held up to scorn only when used unskillfully. It should never be left out of salad, though if properly used its flavor should not be detected. The French prefer clove of garlic for this purpose, but it is difficult for the unexperienced to use it successfully. Try holding the clove of garlic in your hand and rubbing the inside of the salad bowl with it before making the dressing. This will give sufficient flavor and not be detected. A French gentleman who prided himself on his wonderful method of making French dressing was in the habit of preparing it in the afternoon, and leaving the clove of garlic in the bowl until just before dinner when he would remove it himself. But one day he neglected to do so, and the salad was served as remembered and told his old cronies what had happened. "Yes," said one, "I have just succeeded in swallowing a piece of I thought you were trying to poison me."

"Sugar and Spice."
Spices seem to be much neglected these days. We seldom meet with them except in mince pies, fruit cake or Christmas pudding, yet what is more delicious for frequent use than cinnamon buns or that easily prepared faintly cinnamon toast? Ginger cookies will never lose their popularity with countless kiddies, yet it seems as if city children must depend upon fancy crackers, and spend few mothers appear to find time to keep the cookie jar filled. But we all remember the bliss of coming home from school hungry and joyfully sniffing the odor of freshly baked cookies. And oh! the caraway seed cakes that grandmother used to make at New Year's and the Christmas cookies all sugary and star-shaped! Coffee and chocolate essences are even popular and should also occupy an important place on our list. Cheese adds tremendously to the relish of any tasteless substance such as macaroni, and when the kitchen cupboard is not used as much as it might well be, for just in the same way, as some housekeepers cling to the perennial vanilla, do others use only tomato catsup year in and year out.

ELECTRICAL AIDS TO HOUSEKEEPING

If the modern housekeeper has made a resolve to run her home this year as efficiently and economically as possible, she will probably want to add some new pieces of electrical equipment to it. Real economy comes, of course, something besides dollars and cents, for saving time, inconvenience and health will actually mean money saving in the long run.

Perhaps one of the greatest labor savers is the vacuum cleaner which so quickly and neatly takes up every particle of dirt. Spring housecleaning, particularly, will lose its terrors indeed for the whole family if a vacuum cleaner is used, especially for the attachments for cleaning upholstery, furniture, curtains and walls. These attachments, so useful for thorough cleaning are usually in the form of little suction nozzles.

For the kitchen electrical devices are rapidly being made more numerous and practical for the average home. Among the kitchen appliances are electrical ranges with heat devices that will regulate the heat automatically, electric ovens, electric dish washing machines, electric washers and electric irons. None of the electric stoves costs more than other stoves of equal quality. But the expense and quantity of electric current they require for satisfactory operation makes the real cost to figure upon.

With any electrical device it is considered wasteful to supply it with current from a lamp socket if it requires more electricity than a regular professional electrician. It should be realized that a fire insurance policy becomes void if home wiring is done (that is, without the O. K. of a building inspector) after a policy has been granted. On the other hand it is worth knowing that fire risk from electricity is very low, it being figured by experts as only one per cent of the fire risk from gas.

Pineapple Possibilities

You may doubt the reliability of some of the statements concerning the almost miraculous merits of pineapple. The claim has been made that pineapple has rare healing qualities for the throat, that it would very nearly bring eternal youth.

It is one of the foods that, like celery with its reputed nerve healing virtues, has always come in for enthusiastic praise that has not always been entirely based on scientific investigation. However, we do know that all fruit is beneficial and pineapple has none of the superacidity that would make it less so than other fruit.

And there is one thing that has brought great popularity to pineapple within the last few years. It is the one sort of tinned fruit that seems to be universally liked. There are many persons who actually prefer the canned fruit to the fresh sort. The fact is that the pineapple that is canned is mellow and entirely ripe at the time of canning, hence it has none of that rather biting flavor that is sometimes found in the pineapples that we get in the market.

There are two sorts of pineapples—one that comes to us in slices and the other that is cut up. If you are using it for salad or desserts where you want the whole piece, then the former sort is your best selection, whereas if you are going to make a dessert where you wish to have it minced then you save time by using the later sort.

When it is possible open a can of pineapple to-day and use it for a salad and finish it up to-morrow in a dessert. If you are making a fruit mixture of bananas, apples, grapefruit or other fruits in combination a little pineapple, even if it is but one slice left over, will add piquancy to the flavor. The juice in which pineapple is canned is quite sweet, and this may be used to sweeten a fruit dessert.

The very good salad that may be made to take the place of salad as well as dessert is made by placing pineapple discs on lettuce and then filling the holes of the pineapple with cream cheese. French dressing to which a little pineapple juice has been added should be used with it.

Always a little pineapple placed in the bottom of the dish in which custard is served adds interest to that simple dessert.

A delicious dessert is a pineapple omelet made as follows:—Beat three eggs thoroughly and add a tablespoonful of sugar, a pinch of salt and, after this is mixed, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a teaspoonful of the juice of canned pineapple. In the meantime prepare your omelet pan by greasing it with butter. When hot turn in the beaten eggs and proceed as usually with an omelet. When it is set sprinkle over the top with powdered sugar before serving.

It Builds You Up

THESE are letters of good cheer. They tell of health restored, of nerves strengthened, of pain and weakness overcome in the only natural way—by building up the vigor of the human system.

These letters tell you better than we can in any other way what you may expect from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Everywhere you find people enthusiastic over Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. If you do not happen to know any of these people ask your friends about this "food cure." They are sure to know of some cases in which it has proved a blessing.

Clementsport, N.S.

Miss Gertrude M. Burrell, Clementsport, N.S. writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results. For a number of years I was afflicted with nervousness, and six years ago had a complete breakdown. I had no control of my nerves, and had terrible hysterical spells. I could not sleep, had night sweats, awful dreams and nightmare. My physician gave me medicine to put me to sleep every night, and another kind to take every two hours during the day, but it did not see to do me any good only while I was taking it. I never really expected to get well. Reading about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food one day, I gave it a trial, and the results from the first box encouraged me so I continued its use, and found my nerves getting steady and stronger. My appetite improved and I gained in strength, ambition and flesh. Now I am able to do considerable work, and can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a good tonic for the whole system."

(Alonso W. Daniels, J.P. says:—"It gives me great satisfaction to vouch for the testimony of this young lady and the benefit she has received from your wonderful discovery.")

Brockville

Mrs. Marshall Dellabough, 262 Brock St., Brockville, Ont. writes:—"For about a year, I have suffered from nervousness and run down system. I had headaches, neuralgic pains through the body, and my nerves used to twitch and I could not stop them. I was very easily worried or tired, and began to feel that my heart action was becoming weak. I went to see a Doctor, and he told me I was nervous and run down, and needed a tonic. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and at the end of three weeks I could see an improvement. I took four boxes in all, and now am completely cured. I can sleep well now, and eat a good hearty meal. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to any suffering from nervous trouble of any kind, and I hope my letter will benefit other women suffering from nervousness."

Petrolia

Mrs. R. Thomas, Eureka St., Petrolia, Ont. writes:—"For over two years I suffered with my nerves; sometimes I would break down completely and be in bed for a week at a time. I never could get any sleep until about three or four o'clock in the morning. A friend of mine one day advised me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and a treatment of this medicine proved to be just what I needed. It soothed my nerves, made me sleep at night, and strengthened me in every way. I continued using the Nerve Food until I completely recovered. Now I would have no hesitation in recommending it to anyone suffering from nervousness or run-down system."

("I am acquainted with Mrs. Thomas, and believe her statement to be correct."—Thos. Kelly, Postmaster.)

Spalding, Sask.

Mrs. Olese B. Qualie, Spalding, Sask. writes:—"I am glad to say that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a great deal of good. When I commenced using this medicine I was very weak and run down. My memory was poor, and I was gradually going down in weight. My blood was thin, and I was troubled continually with tired feelings and headache. I would hardly get the breakfast over in the morning when I would become so weak that I would have to lie down. One evening my husband read of a case like mine which had been cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so he told me to try it. Inside of a month I began to feel stronger, so I kept right on taking the Nerve Food until I had used fourteen boxes. There is a great change in my condition, and I cannot thank Dr. Chase's Nerve Food enough for all it has done for me."

The old method of treating Nervous diseases was the use of opiates and narcotics to deaden the nerves. Pain was relieved but at terrible expense to the nervous system, because this meant the tearing down of cells and tissues.

With the advent of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the method of treatment was revolutionized because the idea of this "food cure" is to form new, rich blood and build-up the depleted nerve cells. Instead of affording mere relief Dr. Chase's Nerve Food removes the cause of trouble by restoring energy, vigor and vitality to the whole human system.

OLIVER WARMLY RETORTS REMARKS FROM MR. BOWSER

Concluding, the Premier referred to the recent statement of the Opposition Leader to the effect that he was neither "wet nor dry." He quoted scripture, referring to the Church of the Laodiceans, neither hot nor cold, being spewed out of the mouth of the Almighty, and thought some fitting action might be applicable to the case of the Opposition Leader. People who were on neither side were called in the south "mugwumps," exclaimed the Premier.

He then called upon the Conservative Leader to retract his statements of recent maladministration of the act on the part of the Government, saying: "If he has any sense of decenty, any sense of shame, let him get a donkey engine and drag the timber out of his own eye, before he attempts to extract the splinter from the eye of the Government."

The debate was adjourned by George Bell, Government member for Victoria.

MYSTERY BARONET.
Although some people said they did not know Sir Walter Harry Evans, a new baronet in the New Year's honours list, his name is known to many thousands of people in the Midlands. He controls the business of hydraulic pump manufacture which his father started 120 years ago in Wolverhampton, and which is one of the most up-to-date concerns in the country.

With his 800 employees Sir Walter is extremely popular, for he is a liberal, broad-minded man and a keen sportsman.—Tit-Bits.

CLAIMS GOVERNMENT HAS CHANGE OF HEART

Mr. Bowser Debates Future For British Columbia House in London

Legislative Press Gallery.
Afternoon Sitting, April 9.
British Columbia House and the annual vote engaged the attention of the House for half an hour this afternoon and the discussion ended in a decision of the Minister of Finance to hold the item over for further argument at the next sitting of the committee.

Mr. Bowser introduced the subject of the necessity of the House in London and announced his detection of a change of heart on the part of the Government since the election days of 1916. During that campaign, he said, the present Premier had roundly condemned the late regime for its extravagance in connection with the office in the empire's metropolis. Still more perplexing to the Opposition Leader was the fact that the present Agent-General could find no language blue enough for the editorial columns of the Sun in his censure upon himself and his Government at that time in relation to the same matter, yet, said Mr. Bowser, that self-same gentleman now was occupying the very post he would have abolished with such little ceremony.

In consequence of the change and of the varied expression of opinion which had been handled across the floor of the House as to the advisability or otherwise of the retention of the overseas agency, Mr. Bowser invited the Premier to announce the policy of the Government before the passing of the vote.
Mr. Oliver replied with the suggestion that the Leader of the Opposition could not refrain from talking to the galleries—well filled with

Tried Them and Now Is Satisfied

MADAM LANDRY TELLS WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR HER.

New Brunswick Lady Who Had Tried Other Medicines Claims She Found the Remedy She Was Looking For in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Leon, N.B., April 9.—(Special).—Among the many women who claim they owe their health to Dodd's Kidney Pills, none is more elastic than Madam Bruno (ry, a highly esteemed resident). "It is with great pleasure that I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who are afflicted with kidney trouble, as I have found them to be a long time, and nothing else relieved me. I read of the Dodd's Kidney Pills in the papers, but I had not much faith in them. At last, after having tried a lot of other medicines, I decided to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial. The result has brought me perfect health. If those who suffer from kidney disease will use Dodd's Kidney Pills they will find them good and soon be convinced, as I have been, that they are the remedy for kidney disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills are no faith cure. You don't have to believe in them to find in them the relief you are looking for. But if you ask your neighbors they will tell you out of their own experiences of the work Dodd's Kidney Pills have done."

Again Mr. Bowser pressed for an announcement on policy.
Mr. Oliver replied with the suggestion that when a change of policy was due an intimation would be forthcoming; but he informed the Leader of the Opposition that he was not to be caught in a fishing expedition.
The vote was then formally stood over.

PROFIT BY DEED OF PHAROAH'S DAUGHTER

Movement For Women's Pensions Traced Back to Nile by Mrs. Ralph Smith

Legislative Press Gallery.
Afternoon Sitting, April 9.
"This is a 'red letter' day in the history of the Women's Movement," exclaimed Mrs. Ralph Smith, lady member for Vancouver, as she rose to speak to the second reading of the Mothers' Pensions bill in the Legislature in describing the bill before the House as the Magna Charta of the widow and the fatherless."

No Novelty
In the opinion of Mrs. Smith, the world has come to the point when the consideration of humanitarian principles must take a much more prominent place than has been the case down through the ages. And as part of her mental excursion into the realms of history the speaker would not agree that the mothers' pension movement was any novelty. Had not the daughter of Pharaoh found the infant Moses in the bushes, and had not the edict gone forth: "Take this child and care for it and I will give thee wages," asked the speaker as she traced the movement down to its practical form and the eventual origin of a tangible demonstration in the State of Illinois in the year 1911.

The Double Job
To the mind of the speaker there always was the horror of the double job in the case of the fatherless family. It could not be supposed that the mother could preserve the natural associations between herself and her children if she were denied the ordinary means of her maintenance or if she were required to enter the open labor market. On that account the measure under discussion contemplated the position of the helpless mother whose breadwinner had passed beyond mortal ken.

Plea for Unmarried Mother
The lady member complimented the Government upon its action in submitting the bill to the House. She had noticed, however, that no specific provision had been made for the unmarried mother. She presumed, nevertheless, that the latitude given by the bill, in respect of cases where the circumstances warranted assistance, would be made to apply to the unmarried mother. At this point Mrs. Smith paused to give stress to her declaration that there were no illegitimate children. In her opinion the laws and customs of the country would continue to mark the offenders of convention as illegitimate parents. "But for God's sake don't brand the children," warned the speaker as she scorned the unctious attitude of the ultra-pious, whose continued worship of an effete code labelled the fallen sister as a creature different to themselves.

The Economic Phase
Passing on to the economic aspect of the case Mrs. Smith argued in favor of a principle which would abolish the old idea of paying another woman to look after another woman's child. The system was entirely wrong; the child belonged to the mother and the mother to the child; but so long as society was content to subscribe to laws which consigned both mother and child to the barren walls of charitable institutions, instead of assuring them of practical human sympathy, there would still be a drain upon the public purse and gradual depletion of the country's most valuable natural asset—its child life.

Foundation Stone
"Mothers' pensions will lay the foundation stone of a new world," said Mrs. Smith as she drew to a close. "There is no law on the statute books of this Province with so much humanity in it as in the bill now before the House. It is the Magna Charta of the widow and the fatherless for the whole world. And surely, Mr. Speaker, if this glorious old Empire is able to lay low the common enemy of civilization in the greatest war the world has ever known; if Great Britain could pay between eight and nine millions of pounds per day for the prosecution of that war, surely it is not too much to ask that a sufficient sum be set aside to preserve the greatest asset the nation possesses."

"A measure of this kind," Mrs. Smith concluded, "will help to slay the sweating system which exists in this country, and the fact that the matter is not one over which there could be any display of party heat, I am sure this bill will have the hearty support of every member of this House."

Galleries Filled
During the whole course of the lady member's remarks a large and interested audience thronged the galleries and the members of the House were liberal in their applause as Mrs. Smith drove home her marshalled facts in the manner of an old-time parliamentarian.
J. S. Cowper, fifth member for Vancouver, continued the debate.

PUBLIC UTILITIES ACT TO BE REPEALED

After "Birds Have Flown" Need For Cage Has Disappeared

Evening Sitting, April 9.
As the hour approached midnight, the Hon. J.W. de B. Farris, Attorney-General and Minister of Labor, moved the second reading of the bill repealing the Public Utilities Act. He explained the reason for the legislation and informed the House that the British Columbia Electric Railway Company and the British Columbia Telephone Company, since the creation of the commission, had been transferred from provincial jurisdiction to that of the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada. In other words, said Mr. Farris, both birds had flown and there was little further use for the commission.
The Attorney-General explained the case of the six-cent fare and the trust fund which had been created on the understanding that the investment which had been commenced by the Public Utilities Commissioner should determine whether or not the accumulated odd cents should be transferred to the company, or whether it should be donated to the Vancouver General Hospital. This was the arrangement when the commission commenced its duties. In the meantime, however, representations had been made by the B. C. Electric Railway Company advancing its claim to the whole amount and it had been decided, in view of all the circumstances, to distribute the $50,000, so accumulated, in equal proportions between the hospital and the company.
J. H. Hawthornthwaite, Socialist member for Newcast, who remarked that he would have a good deal to say upon the subject, adjourned the debate.

MOTHERS! NEVER NEGLECT WHOOPING COUGH

Many mothers make the mistake of thinking that whooping cough is not of serious importance, but unfortunately this mistake often leads to the neglect of its dangerous child's disease.
Never neglect whooping cough, for it may be followed by some serious lung trouble.
Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is highly recommended by mothers everywhere for the relief of this trouble. It will clear the clogged-up air passage of the mucous and phlegm that has collected, and in this way bring on the "whoop" which brings the so-much-sought-for relief.
Mrs. Francis Burlington, New Gate, B. C., writes: "This Spring three of my children took the whooping cough, and they had it so bad I thought they would choke. I was getting pretty worried when my sister wrote me, telling me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I sent for some right away, and believe me, I will never forget how it worked. It will always have it in my house." There are many imitations of Dr. Wood's on the market. Get the genuine when you ask for it. It will pay in the end. Put up in a yellow wrapper, 3 pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Millburp Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL SUNDAY SCHOOL GROWING

On account of the increasing membership of Christ Church Cathedral Sunday School, it has been found necessary to provide for a temporary division of the school in order that more accommodation may be secured. Under the present temporary plan, three senior boys' classes meet in the Cathedral on Sunday afternoon at 2.45 p. m. This is also the meeting place of the Young Men's Bible Class, which has been steadily growing under the leadership of W. O. Cocklett. The other departments of the school, including boys' and girls' junior classes and the older girls' bible class, meet in the schoolroom.

WORLD EVENTS AND BIBLE PROPHECY

Most Momentous Period in World's History.
 Present world events and their meaning according to Bible prophecy will be the subject of an illustrated Lecture to be delivered by Evangelist George Young, one of the widely known lecturers and Bible Expositors of the I. B. S. A.

Mr. Young says: "The prophecies of the Bible foretell the exact conditions as they exist in the world to-day. The events of the past five years: The Great World War—the League of Nations—Church Federation, and the re-establishment of the Jewish Nation in Palestine, are events clearly marked in the Bible.

Since 1879 Bible Students throughout the world have pointed to the Scriptures which foretell these world events, their significance and the final glorious outcome. If the world could realize what these momentous events foretold, there would be less uncertainty, and unrest in the world.

It is a knowledge of these features of God's word regarding the immediate future which will inspire hope and confidence as to the outcome of the present world distress and perplexity.

This lecture is fully illustrated, the Bible pictures and Scripture texts will be illuminated; marking something definite and realistic in the manner of positive Bible presentation.

The lecture will be delivered in the Princess Theatre Sunday, April 11, at 7.30, and is under the auspices of the INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION. All are welcome. No collection is taken.

URGES SUPPORT FOR UNION UNIVERSITY
 Building Is Badly Required at Chentu, West China

Dr. C. W. Service, of Chentu, West China, is visiting Vancouver in the interest of the West China Union University. This university is in the centre of a population of 100,000,000 and has a site of 120 acres just outside the great city of Chentu.

It was founded in 1910 by the missionary societies working in that part of China and is now controlled by a board of governors appointed by five of these societies. The American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, the Friends' Foreign Missionary Association of Great Britain and Ireland, the general board of missions of the Methodist Church of Canada, the Board of Foreign Missions of the M. E. Church, United States, and the Church Missionary Society have representatives on the board of governors.

SMALL GAINS IN CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

New York, April 10.—The smallest increase in Protestant membership in thirty years is recorded for 1919 in statistics compiled by Dr. H. K. Carroll, who prepared an official census of religions, made public to-night by The Christian Herald. The increase for 1919 was only 56,000, as compared with the average increase for the ten years previous of 771,947. The slump started, he said, in 1918, which showed an increase of only 155,000 members.

The hitherto most prosperous denominations in the United States showed the following decreases for the year: Methodist Episcopal, 89,949; Presbyterian (North), 32,303; Disciples of Christ, 17,645; Methodist Episcopal (South), 16,404; Northern Baptist Convention, 9,156; National Baptist Convention, 35,007; Presbyterian (South), 8,311; United Methodist, 2,986; Cumberland Presbyterian, 1,645; Welsh Calvinistic Presbyterians, 932; Norwegian Lutheran, 8,021.

MISSION CIRCLE GAVE LIVING PICTURE SERIES

A novel and extremely attractive entertainment was given at the Metropolitan Methodist schoolroom last night when the members of the Mission Circle presented a series of living pictures, representative of the works of well-known artists, in addition to an enjoyable musical programme. Those assisting in the posing of the pictures were the Misses Hedley, Norah Hudson, Edna Bradshaw, Percy, Freda Bradshaw, M. McElhannon, Craig, Hudson, Col. H. B. B. and Mr. Davis. Some well-known songs were also depicted. Mrs. Yeo, and a quartette comprising Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Downard, Mr. Palmer and Mr. Lally, sang the melody during the presentation of the living picture.

The remainder of the programme included a recitation by little Miss Hudson; vocal solos by Miss Beal, Mr. Palmer and Mr. Tracey; a corned solo, Mr. Young, and an entertaining monologue and recitation by Mr. Wild. The pastor, Rev. H. S. Osborne, acted as chairman, and at the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served.

At Metropolitan To-morrow.—Mrs. Ralph Smith will speak at the Metropolitan Church to-morrow evening on "The Foreign Problem" at 7.30 o'clock.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she would use nothing else. The Tablets give such results that the mother has nothing but words of praise and thankfulness for them. Among the thousands of mothers throughout Canada who praise the Tablets is Mrs. David A. Anderson, New Glasgow, N. S., who writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children and from my experience I would not be without them. I would urge every other mother to keep a box of the Tablets in the house." The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach; drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EVERY CHURCH ITS OWN MOVIE THEATRE
 Fans Waiting at the Church?

Is the motion picture exhibitor soon to stand in front of his theatre and watch the crowd flow by in the picture show at the Little Church Round the Corner?

Will there soon be a long, sinuous line waiting at the church to witness from the picture screen a picture programme with organ or orchestral accompaniment, with musical feature numbers by the choir, the quartette, the soloists, and everything—save alone—admission?

A Great Clientele. As to the first question, the answer is, probably, no, if the producers and exhibitors wake up to the fact that they must show, not as the exception, but as the rule, a picture of some constructive pictures. If they do they will win over the 20,000,000 church people who do not now attend church shows but who, in their own churches, are learning to love the pictures and to appreciate their tremendous power for good, and who will attend the motion picture theatre if the programmes offered are right.

The answer to the second question is yes. The church has discovered the motion picture, has adopted it as a good and faithful servant in the Christian vineyard, and has begun to save souls with it. Every live church will soon be its own picture show, with music, features and all the rest, and there will be a line, too. Producers are waking to the needs of the churches, but already projection machines are being installed faster than films can be made, and the demand will exceed the supply for years to come.

The Historical Film Corporation of America, who are filming the entire Bible, have been deluged with applications for their product, and made that Canada should furnish the new medical-dental college building on the site of the university. At present the work is being done in temporary buildings. Medical instruction was first given in 1914 and dental teaching later.

The Other Courses. Already much has been done to assure the success of the undertaking; pre-medical instruction and preliminary education is provided; a site has been assigned to the new building on the university campus; there are about forty buildings now in use; three good hospitals with accommodation for 300 patients; the university provides the architect and the builders so that everything is in readiness for the erection of the medical-dental building when the money is subscribed.

Dr. Simon Flexner, of New York, and Dr. William H. Welch, of Baltimore, director of the school of hygiene and public health at the Johns Hopkins University, visited China in connection with the Rockefeller Foundation investigations. Dr. Welch reported as follows:

"I returned from China in 1915 convinced, as were the other members of our party, that medical and missionary work is the most important agency in reaching the people of this country and in promoting their advancement and development. I am convinced that the project in Chentu, situated in the capital of one of the largest and most progressive provinces in China. The needs of development in other parts of China and it is impossible to exaggerate the importance of maintaining and developing the college in Chentu, already so auspiciously begun. The appeal for funds for this work, the generous response from the medical, dental and nursing professions, as well as from the public."

APPEAL FOR AID FOR ARMENIANS
 Religious Education Council Wants Funds For Persecuted Peoples

The religious Education Council of Canada, in co-operating with the Armenian Relief Fund Association of Canada, has appealed to the Christian Churches and Sunday Schools throughout the Dominion to help through the Sunday Schools on behalf of the 250,000 homeless and hungry orphans of persecuted Armenia. The days suggested are: either Sunday, April 11, or Sunday, April 18.

The aim is for Canadian Sunday Schools throughout the Dominion, to raise at least $150,000 for this work, which means the saving alive of 2,500 starving Armenian children. It is pointed out that these people are brothers and sisters in the human family and in the Christian faith, and it is expected that Canadian boys and girls will surpass last year's record in generous action on their behalf.

"Propinquity is what brings about marriages," declared the father of three single daughters. "Yes," murmured his wife. "I fear," murmured the son, "from among the men who call most frequently at a house the daughters of the house naturally select husbands."

"In that case," said the mother, sadly, "I fear our girls are doomed to marry bill-collectors."

SECOND INDUCTION TO SANDWICK CHURCH
 Notable Record of Rev. Thos. Menzies, in Returning to Former Pastorate

Courtenay, April 9.—On Thursday night the induction took place of the Rev. Thomas Menzies, as permanent pastor of the Sandwick, Comox District, Presbyterian Church. The ceremony was in charge of Rev. Dr. Casworth, of Nanaimo, Moderator. He was assisted by Rev. James Hyde, of Courtenay, and Rev. H. A. Bain, of Alberni. Miss Menzies presided at the organ. This was the second occasion on which Mr. Menzies had been called to the pastorate of the Sandwick Church, it being twenty years ago on April 11 since he first conducted service at Sandwick. Twenty years ago services were held in the present structure, but Mr. Menzies held services at Comox in various buildings under trying circumstances and also at Courtenay in the Agricultural Hall. When the new church was built at Courtenay Mr. Menzies, who served there until two years ago when his district was divided in two, and when he resigned also the pastorate to which he has just been recalled by an appreciative congregation, whose Christian service should be appreciated in a greater degree than that of the man who for the past twenty years has never refused a request for assistance at night, in the day, in foul or fair weather? It has been said of Rev. Mr. Menzies that he has performed many acts, for the good of his community that would have called many another man, and this is the spirit that has made the pioneers of Comox Valley cling to him and won him popularity among the younger folks. When the new church was built at Courtenay, Mr. Menzies did not lay back on his oars, but was there with the rest of the crew, with his coat off and his overalls on, driving the nails and sawing lumber with the others.

At the induction service Rev. James Hyde delivered the sermon, and the charge to the pastor was made by Rev. H. A. Bain, of Alberni, a close friend of Rev. Mr. Menzies. After the service the ladies of the Sandwick Church served refreshments, which were partaken of heartily by a gathering which taxed the capacity of the church, and among which were noticed many people from Courtenay.

FORMER PASTOR TO PREACH TO-MORROW
 Rev. H. E. B. Speight, of Berkeley, Cal., at First Unitarian Church

Rev. Harold E. B. Speight of the First Unitarian Church at Berkeley, California, former pastor of the First Unitarian Church in Victoria, is on a brief visit to the City. He will preach at the First Unitarian Church on Sunday morning at eleven o'clock, taking as his subject "A Real Revival in Religion."

Mr. Speight who was for eighteen months pastor of the First Unitarian Church here, prior to the coming of the Rev. Ernest Bowden, left Victoria in 1915 for California, where he occupies the position of pastor at Berkeley. In addition to his clerical duties he is on the teaching staff of the Divinity School associated with the University of California. When the United States entered the war, Mr. Speight enlisted with the American forces and saw much service overseas.

A close student of economic and social conditions and keenly interested in the question of international relationships, especially between the two great English-speaking races, the American and the British, Mr. Speight is a firm believer in the powers of individual citizens to strengthen and cement the good relationships between the two nations.

 "Ah, this is a Rembrandt, Helen!" "Isn't it wonderful! What is that one?" "That is a Rubens!" "How perfectly marvelous! Were they both painted by the same man?"—Cartoons Magazine.

Borean Bible Class Banquet.—There were about seventy members and friends of the Borean Bible Class present at the eleventh annual meeting and banquet, which was held in the church on Wednesday evening. The tables were arranged to form three sides of a square, so that everyone could see the toastmaster and other speakers. The tables were decorated in red and white, the class colors. The president, J. Chapman, as toastmaster, proposed the following toasts: "The King," all sang the National Anthem; "Canada," replied to by J. W. Chapman; "The Church," replied to by Rev. R. Wilkinson; "Our Country," replied to by E. W. Whittington; "The Primary Department," replied to by Miss Brindley; "Our Class," replied to by E. E. Hardwick; "The Ladies," replied to by E. Wilkinson; "The Adult Bible Class Movement," replied to by Rev. H. S. Osborne. A pianoforte solo was given by Miss Hanna and vocal solos by Mrs. W. Chapman, Mrs. Moore decorated the tables. The success of the evening was due to the very efficient way in which they performed their duties. The Borean Bible Class is the oldest organized class in the Sunday School system of the largest in the city, its membership having been greatly increased recently by the consolidation with it of the Young Ladies Bible Class and a class of young men known as the "Try Co."

The annual cricket match between the Borean house party and the servants was in full swing. His lordship was keeping wicket and he was rather startled when in response to the customary "How's that?" his butler, who was playing the part of umpire, replied in portentous tones: "Not at all, my lord."

PIPED COLD AIR FOR HOMES How You Can Shiver in Comfort in Summer's Sizzling Heat

DURING the cold months hot air or steam is piped to various parts of houses to warm them, so why not reverse the plan and during the hot months pipe cold air throughout all buildings to cool the inhabitants thereof?

As a matter of fact, this suggestion for Summer has been carried into effect by Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, airplanes and ship salvage schemes, with an actual working installation of "piped cold." This idea occurred to Dr. Alexander Graham Bell when the Washington weather became extremely sizzling. Former President Taft, when he was in the White House, had a refrigerating device put in the offices, which since has fallen to disuse, but Dr. Bell believed he procured better results by his "home made" cooling arrangements in his Washington residence. In a communication to the National Geographic Society, Dr. Bell describes how he tricked the thermometer out of some 15 degrees—and you can try this out in your own home if you are "handy" about the house. Says Dr. Bell:

I have found one radical defect in the construction of our houses that absolutely precludes the possibility of cooling them to any great degree. You will readily understand the difficulty when you remember that cold air is heavier than warm air. You can take a bucket of cold air, for example, and carry it about in the Summer time and not spill a drop, but if you make a hole in the bottom of your bucket, then, of course, the cold air would run out.

I began to think that it might be possible to apply the bucket principle to at least one room in my Washington home, and thus secure a place of retreat in the Summer time. It seemed to be advisable to close up all openings near the bottom of the room to prevent the escape of cold air and open the windows at the top to let out the heated air of the room.

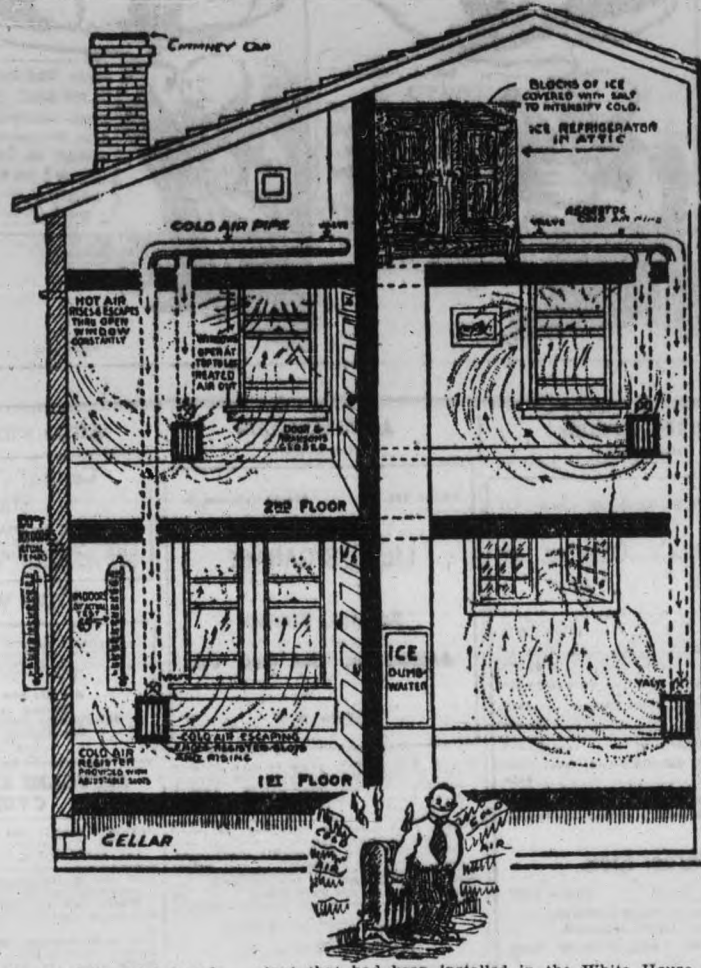

Now, it so happens that I have in the basement of my house a swimming tank and it occurred to me that since this tank holds water, it should certainly hold cold air; so I emptied the water out to study the situation. The tank seemed to be damp and the sides left wet and slimy.

Is reflected, however, that the condensation of moisture resulted from the fact that the sides of the tank were cooler than the air admitted. Water vapor will not condense on anything that is warmer than itself, and it occurred to me that if I introduced air that was very much colder than I wanted to use, then it would be warming up in the tank and becoming dryer all the time. It would not deposit moisture on the sides and would actually absorb the moisture there.

I therefore provided a refrigerator, in which were placed large blocks of ice, covered with salt, to intensify the melting and freezing action of the ice. This was placed in another room at a higher elevation than the tank, and a pipe, covered with asbestos paper, was employed to lead the cold air into the tank.

The first effect was the drying of the walls, and then I felt the level of the cold air gradually rising. At least it came over my head. The tank was full, and I found myself immersed in cool air. I felt so cool and comfortable that it seemed difficult to believe that all Washington was sizzling outside. I climbed up the ladder in the swimming tank until my head was above the surface, and then found myself breathing a hot, damp, muggy atmosphere. I therefore speedily retreated into the tank where I was perfectly cool and comfortable.

Guided by this experience, I tried another experiment in my house. I put the refrigerator in the attic (see drawing herewith) and let the cold air downward through a pipe covered with asbestos into one of the rooms of the house. The doors were kept shut and the windows were opened at the top. The temperature in that room was perfectly comfortable, about 65 degrees!

Some time ago the papers were speaking of an ice plant that had been installed in the White House, and congratulated the President, then Mr. Taft, upon a temperature of only 80 degrees when the thermometer showed 100 degrees outside. Under similar conditions (100 degrees F. outside), I enjoyed in my home a temperature of 65 degrees (the ideal temperature), with a delicious feeling of freshness in the air.

The system proposed by Prof. Bell occupies very little space. In fact, in the opinion of the Electrical Experimenter, it could be placed very easily in apartment houses utilizing the area between the ceiling and the roof, as all houses have at least a three-foot clearance between these two points. No doubt in the future, owners of houses will arrange their heating plants so they can be converted into cooling systems during the hot months.

INTERCHANGABLE HEELS for SHOES

A SIMPLE but nevertheless ingenious invention now places the shoe on the same basis as the automobile as far as mechanical convenience is concerned. In other words, just as the tire of an automobile wheel can be readily removed and replaced, so can the heel of a shoe be removed with a minimum of effort and, what is more, without tools of any kind.

It has remained for Maurice Mayorowitz of New York City to invent what appears to be a practicable detachable and interchangeable heel. His invention as shown in the accompanying illustration from The Scientific American, consists of two parts; first, the base, which is permanently attached to the shoe; secondly, the heel proper which locks on the base by a simple means and which can be readily removed and replaced at will.

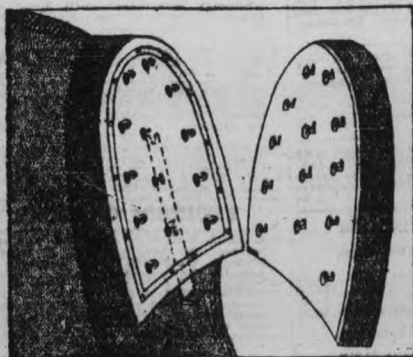

Imbedded in the inner surface of the heel proper are a number of metal pegs which fit into corresponding slots in the metal plate, forming part of the shoe, as shown. The slots have an upward curve, due to an upward depression of the base at such points. The heel is placed over the plate so that the pegs can engage with the slots, and the heel is struck a sharp blow so as to drive it into alignment with the permanent or upper heel member. This serves to draw up the pegs and consequently the heel until the two surfaces are so tightly held together that no water can penetrate. The heel is finally locked by a sliding key, which is pushed inward, locking the central row of pegs into the slots.

A year of constant wear has disclosed this system of detachable and removable heels to be entirely satisfactory. There is nothing to rust—the metal parts being non-corrosive metal—and nothing to stick or jam.

One advantage of this system of detachable heels is that when a heel wears down on one side it can be transferred at once to the other shoe, thus giving double wear. If the ground is wet or slippery, a rubber heel can be immediately replaced by a leather one, or vice versa, according to the desires of the pedestrian. In fact, spiked heels can be applied to the shoes when the walking is exceptionally unfavorable. All in all, the detachable and interchangeable features have obvious advantages.

Convenient as this system may be for men's shoes, it is ever so much more so for women's shoes where high heels have to be contended with. Ladies accustomed to wearing French heels are frequently troubled by the loss of the leather or rubber top lifts of their heels, or are otherwise inconvenienced by the rapid wear of such heels. This inventor has devoted particular attention to this matter of high heels, and has developed top lifts for French heels that are small enough to be carried in Milady's purse. Thus it becomes possible to change the top lifts at any time.

When the Heel Wears Down on One Side it can Be Changed to the Other Shoe, Thus Giving Double Wear.

BAROMETER LIKE A CHAMELEON

AMONG the most novel barometers is that known as the chameleon barometer. It is said to be a very reliable device for indicating coming changes in the weather.

A chameleon barometer is very easy to make, according to the description of this device given in Popular Science Monthly by S. Leonard Bastin.

Obtain a piece of stout cardboard. If it is round the effect is all the better. Right in the centre paint a dead black circle on which the chameleon will later be mounted. Divide the white ring surrounding it into four equal parts. These are marked Wet, Variable and Dry. The lower space is lettered Chameleon Barometer. Now color the Wet space pink, the Variable section purple and the Dry space blue. These give indications of the color that

Disease Danger in Postage Stamps

IN a discussion of "The Postage Stamp as a Possible Source of Infection," by J. Diner and G. Horstman, which appears in the Medical Times, the writers tell how they obtained postage stamps from 50 different places, notes being made in each case whether the stamps were kept exposed on the desk or held for sale in a drawer or cash register. Laboratory tests showed that no stamp was free from germs. Twenty of them contained colonies too numerous to count.

Among the germs were colon bacilli, staphylococci, streptococci, pneumococci and diphtheroid bacilli. Apparently there was little difference in bacterial content between the stamps exposed on the desk and those kept in drawers. The amount of danger presented by these organisms cannot be stated, as, unfortunately, no tests were made to determine the virulence of the germs.

In commenting on these results, American Medicine, while not encouraging the common practice of moistening stamps with the tongue, points out that if stamps were a grave source of infection a very large percentage of the population would undoubtedly be suffering from infections due to this cause. The fact is that most oral cavities will reveal the presence of some or all of the organisms above mentioned, whether stamps have been licked or not.

the chameleon will take on according to the conditions of the weather at that time.

The chameleon should be made from good blotting paper. Sketch out the animal with a pencil, making a strong outline, and indicating the leading characteristics. Then cut out the picture and soak it in the following solution: Cobalt chloride, 1 part; gelatine, 10 parts; water, 100 parts.

When the picture has been thoroughly saturated fix it with strong glue on the black area in the centre of the cardboard.

Mr. Chameleon will then play the part of a weather prophet, changing color in relation to the humidity of the air and predicting more accurately than the human prophet

A BED TO BANISH INSOMNIA

A N anti-insomnia bed that positively is said to be conducive to sound sleep, is the invention of Miss Alice O. Darling of Tilton, N.H. The mattress, which is shown in the accompanying illustration, is in three sections. The main long section supports the body, the two upper sections, which are attached to each other by hinge-like members, providing a raised support for the forehead of a person lying face downward.

According to this woman inventor, the prone position relieves blood pressure from the vital organs and from the brain. Lie face downward, with your forehead on a ledge and you will surely go to sleep, says Miss Darling. It has been found that this position eliminates the persistent distressing and sometimes injurious coughing in diseases of the stomach.

The posture which the patient assumes on this mattress relieves from pressure that part of the brain known as the medulla oblongata, situated at the base and back of the head, thereby permitting the person to fall asleep in a short time.

"During the day time the mattress is stretched out after the fashion of any ordinary mattress," explains the inventor, "but at night the hinged section is doubled over to furnish a ledge on which to rest the forehead. In a little while you become drowsy; whereupon you put back the mattress, pull up your pillow from the bottom of the bed, and sleep."

This Mattress Enables the Sleepless Person to Lie Prone, Thereby Aiding Sleep and General Comfort.

TASTING and SMELLING by EAR

THERE are lots of things your ear is capable of doing besides hearing. It can taste and smell when those senses have been lost. Mr. Henry Fawcett, England's blind postmaster-general, declared that the sense of sound enabled him to see, in a modified form, shape and color. He could tell, for instance, by the sharpness of the sound, a life-guardman in scarlet blowing a trumpet from a horseguardman in blue playing on the same instrument.

The report of bursting tire in the street suggests a different impression altogether to the report of a revolver shot and so on indefinitely throughout the whole gamut of sound and smells.

What is termed seeing, hearing, tasting, smelling and feeling may be described as picturizations on the brain, performed through the instrumentality of the eyes, nose, ears, mouth and the body generally.

Most persons are unaware that in many cases they recognize things by their smell when they think they know their flavor. Again, they do not know that they taste some things with one part of the tongue only and some with another, while some parts of the tongue are devoid of taste.

Prof. H. L. Hollingsworth has recently been making exhaustive experiments with a view to solving the mystery of taste. He has demonstrated that the sense of taste reaches the brain mainly through the ear-nerves.

Various nerves in the tongue communicate with a main nerve, which acts as a kind of telephone exchange to ring up the brain. The taste-nerves for the tongue concentrate in the ear-drum nerve. If this nerve is injured the sense of taste becomes dulled, and it is well known that deaf persons lose the finer perceptions of taste.

When the drum of the ear is stimulated mechanically, chemically or electrically, at the point where the nerves meet, taste sensations are aroused. Sweet, bitter and sour flavors may be detected, but, strange to say, salt tastes have never been observed by the direct action of the ear. Many sensations called tastes are merely odors. Pinch your nose and shut your eyes, and see if you can distinguish between an apple and an onion.

The TESTING of EGGS by GRAVITY

THE method of telling the age of an egg by specific gravity is described as follows in the Scientific American:

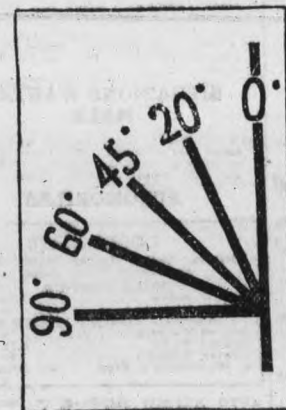

A solution of salt and water is prepared, one part of the former to two parts of the latter being allowed. It is preferable to employ rain or distilled water. The eggs when placed in this salt mixture behave according to their age and, in this way, it is possible to tell how old they are with great accuracy.

An egg up to 36 hours old will sink to the bottom of the vessel and lie in horizontal fashion. When 2 or 3 days old the egg floats horizontally just below the surface of the solution. There is a slight tendency on the part of the thicker end to rise upward. When 4 to 5 days old this tendency becomes more pronounced; the long axis of the egg (an imaginary line drawn through the centre lengthwise) stands at an angle of 20 degrees from the perpendicular. The angle increases daily, until at the end of the eighth day it is 45 degrees; on the 14th day it is 60 degrees, on the 21st day 75 degrees, while at the end of a month the egg will be upright in the solution; the smaller end downward.

The changes in the manner of floating are due to the following fact: In the thicker end of the egg there is an air space. As the days go by this space tends to become larger owing to the evaporation of moisture through the pores of the shell. This loss of moisture naturally means that there is more air in the egg, and its manner of floating thus varies from day to day.

To find out the exact angle at which an egg is floating at any time is a simple matter if a diagram is prepared on the lines shown in the illustration. It will be seen that a scale of degrees has been drawn out on a card. The perpendicular line represents 90 degrees and, from this downward, the different angles are shown to the horizontal 0 degree. The diagram should be boldly drawn so that in all ways it is very plain. The salt solution is put into a glass jar and the egg to be tested is then placed in the mixture. The card is held on the outside of the jar and the egg worked up to that side. It will then be possible to see at a glance the angle at which the egg is floating and, in this way, discover its age.

A Boat Made of Plaster

IF boats can be made of concrete there seems no inherent reason why they cannot be made of plaster.

In fact, an inventor in Portland, Ore., Mr. J. B. Lindberg, has actually made a plaster boat.

His boat is 15 feet long and weighs 406 pounds. Its side is three-quarters of an inch thick, and very strong although only made of ordinary building plaster.

The boat is cheaper than a wooden one, and the inventor believes it will last longer. Its advantage over a concrete craft is mainly that of lightness.

The construction is also much easier, Mr. Lindberg says, since the plaster requires an inner and an outer form to a much less extent than the concrete. In large part this lighter material can be laid down over a single form, much like a series of coats of paint. Mr. Lindberg's boat has been put in commission and seems to be quite seaworthy and easily handled.

Palladium from Alaska

A. G. Larson is the proud possessor of a medal of pure palladium. It was presented to Mr. Larson by J. E. Chilberg, of the Scandinavian Bank, Seattle. Mr. Chilberg owns the Salthuck Mine on Prince of Wales Island, and it is being run under the management of Mr. Larson, who discovered that the ore was running high in palladium. The metal was not previously recognized in this ore and its discovery by Mr. Larson means an important source of revenue to Mr. Chilberg, as palladium, while quoted on the market at $120 per oz., is actually paid for on the same basis as platinum, and now paid for at $160 per oz.

The medal bears the inscription: "10z. Palladium, Presented to A. G. Larson, by J. E. Chilberg." The metal in the medal is 99.8 fine.

The Salthuck Mine was operated as a copper mine. Now it is equipped with 100-ton mill. It is located on Prince of Wales Island. The ore is concentrated about 35 to 1, and this concentrate gives a return of 3.15 oz. palladium per ton. The Salthuck is the only mine in the world outside Russia producing palladium. It is intended to double the capacity of the mill, which will then be capable of producing about 18 oz. palladium a day, of a value of $2,500.—Mining and Engineering Record.
