CHOICE MISCELLANY

Gifts of Great Folk.
That gift of $1,375,000 recently made to Prince von Bulow has many parallels in modern history. Von Bulow's benefactor had the excuse of being related in a distant way to the beneficiary. But Herr Bebel, the Socialist leader, is today enjoying the interest which more than $5,000,000. Queen Victoria had many and large gifts of her admirer subjects. The miser Nield left her about $600,000 half a century ago, out of which her majesty gave $4,500 apiece to the three executors and $500 to a woman who had once been her lover's mistress. Nield, who was a widow, was placed in the memory of the miser in a church which she had the good sense to have built.

During the time in which Leo XIII. was pope the papal see was made the richest in the world with $5,000,000. Queen Victoria had many and large gifts of her admirer subjects. The miser Nield left her about $600,000 half a century ago, out of which her majesty gave $4,500 apiece to the three executors and $500 to a woman who had once been her lover's mistress. Nield, who was a widow, was placed in the memory of the miser in a church which she had the good sense to have built.

Alfonso, the young king of Spain, has always been the advocate of wealth conferred by an admiring Spaniard. Three million pesetas was the sum.

Last of the Confederate Congress.
Many of the Confederacy's sons were very robust physically as well as intellectually. Although all its cabinet and its senate have departed, a few of the members of its house of representatives survive. These, with their present places of residence, are: Roger A. Pryor of New York city, A. S. Conley of Memphis, William H. Tibbs of Dalton, Ga.; John Goode of Washington; Hiram P. Bell of Cumming, Ga.; John M. Martin of Ocala, Fla.; John V. Wright of Washington and Joseph B. Hickell of Memphis. None of these served also in the Confederate army, among them being General Pryor, Colonel Martin, Colonel Tibbs and General Hickell.

Mysterious Easter Island.
Dr. Alexander Agassiz, now exploring the Pacific ocean in the United States steamer Albatross, recently visited Easter Island, famous for its colossal stone images, the makers of which have escaped the ken of history. The harness of the island emphasizes the mystery of its strange sculptures. Mr. Agassiz says that it possesses no trees or native bushes, not even such as characterize the shore tracts of the most isolated coral reefs.

House of Commons Loafers.
Mr. T. P. O'Connor, we notice, has just been writing of the house of commons as quite a place for "loafers." It is a perfect forlorn house for them. It would be startling if we could have some account of the many able men whose careers have been ruined by the house of commons. The proceedings this week, last week, any week, have encouraged loafing, lobbying, drifting about aimlessly in those who attend regularly and yet are practically out of the debates. In fact, the more the private member of parliament does his duty the more likely is he to become a loafer.

Saved Sister by a Fish Hook.
Eric Williams, the six-year-old son of Mr. H. Williams, merchant, of Fort Francis, Ont., was fishing at the lower dock at that place, accompanied by his sister Agnes, aged five years, when the latter fell into the water.

White Hicc on Submarines.
Three white mice are in each submarine boat, and they are entered on the payroll of the fleet. These little creatures detect an escape of gasoline more quickly than human beings do and by their squeals and efforts to escape draw attention to the fact that something is amiss. They say that important members of the crew of A-8 went down with that unfortunate vessel.—London Graphic.

Mr. Ryan's Clippings.
When Thomas F. Ryan took hold of the Equitable he began to patronize a newspaper clipping bureau. They had to cut so many clippings for him that an increase of readers was necessary, and Ryan was flooded with them. So he sought relief by having only favorable notices sent to him, and now they say he didn't get a single clipping for ten days. "Good cure for conceit," quoth Mr. Ryan.—Boston Herald.

A Step Too Far.
Author—It's a wise man who knows when he's well off.
Friend—Yes?
"C" told me that everybody was talking about my new book."
"And what about?"
"It was foolish enough to ask what they said."
A general in battle, a statesman in office or a financier handling large enterprises without the ability to readily adapt himself to suddenly changed conditions is a misfit.—From Cent Per Cent.

NEW SHORT STORIES

Rebuffed the Railroad President.
Several of them were sitting in the office of General Manager Calhoun of the Southern Pacific discussing railroad men and railroad affairs, and the name of Sidney Dillon, one time president of the Union Pacific, was brought into the conversation.

"Did you ever hear about the time that Sidney Dillon was rebuffed by a railroad president?"

"Have you a telegram for me?" "The story has been told on several railroad officials, but it really happened to Sidney Dillon. There was a washout on the Union Pacific over in Nebraska. The locomotive which carried out of his channel and did quite a little damage to a piece of track at the far end of a long trestle. Several trains were stalled at a little station near the scene of the trouble, and the passengers were subjected to the telegraph operator to all sorts of annoyances by asking questions. During the night President Dillon came along in his special train. Leaving the car he went up to the station and to the operator: "Have you a telegram for me?" "I'm blessed if I know," said the operator, "you're Dillon here, aren't you?" "Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Won the Verdict.
Senator Culbertson of Texas tells a story about a circumstantial evidence and misleading circumstances which is a valuable lesson in law. Ex-Governor Throckmorton of Texas was defending a man who was charged with murder. It was shown that he had killed an unarmed man, and that is an awful crime in Texas, where the law is so strict that a man who has killed a man is liable for the death penalty. Throckmorton pulled a revolver out of each bootleg and drew a long bowie knife from back of his shirt collar. His eloquence and that illustration won the verdict of the jury.

Value of Advertising.
At a political meeting held up the state just before the election of our president, the speaker, an audience which was very much disturbed by a man who constantly called for a Mr. Henry. Whenever a new speaker came on this man bawled out: "Mr. Henry! Henry! Henry! I call for Mr. Henry!"

After several interruptions of this kind at each speech a young man ascended the platform and was soon airing his eloquence in magnificent style in stating out powerfully in his gestures which the old cry was heard for "Mr. Henry." Putting his hand to his mouth like a speaking trumpet, this man was bawling out at the top of his voice: "Mr. Henry! Henry! Henry! I call for Mr. Henry to make a speech!"

The chairman of the meeting now arose and remarked that it would oblige the audience if the gentleman would refrain from any further calling for Mr. Henry, as that gentleman was now speaking.

"Is that Mr. Henry?" said the disturber of the meeting. "Thunder, that can't be Mr. Henry! Why, that's the little cuss that told me to holler!" Philadelphia Ledger.

An Expert.
The late John W. Mackay was attending to business at the great Comstock mine one day when a party of tourists approached and asked if he knew of a guide who would take them about. Evidently none of them knew him. Mackay offered to escort them, and did so, explaining the whole mystery of gold and silver quartz mining. When they emerged the visitors clubbed together and made up a small sum for the guide. Among them was Andrew D. White, recently ambassador to Germany.

"When in doubt," said a southern senator, "we should imitate the example of the astute weather prophet. This prophet walked into his inner office one day and said to his junior clerk, 'Well, how are the indications for tomorrow?' 'Mighty uncertain, sir,' the junior answered. 'I hardly know what kind of a prognosis to make out.' 'Oh,' said the clerk, 'just make it fine weather, with local rain. Then if it is fine we are all right, and if it storms that will be one of the local rains of our prophecy.'"

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.]
Work on the new office for the government of the District of Columbia has begun. The foundations have been completed under a separate contract, and all is in readiness for Mr. James F. Parsons, the contractor for the pre-structure, to raise the marble walls which when completed will constitute one of the handsomest buildings in the national capital. The granite floor of the subbasement were completed previously to the advent of the contractor. Congress after much persuasion and argument appropriated the munificent sum of $2,500,000 for the District building. Of this sum $550,000 was expended for the site at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. $100,000 for the foundations, and the marble will cost $640,000. Mr. Parsons has agreed to complete the building for $935,000. This totals about $2,375,000, leaving $125,000 for architects' fees, machinery and other incidentals.

The New Persian Minister.
The new Persian minister, General Morteza Khan, has created something of a stir in Washington by the richness and gorgeousness of his Persian fashions. He brought from Persia the Embassy in Eighteenth street is said to contain some of the handsomest and most expensive Persian rugs, draperies and embroideries ever seen in Washington. One room is particularly beautiful, every foot of floor, wall and ceiling space being covered with antique rugs.

General Morteza is a rich bachelor and is anxious to become acquainted with the people here. He is handicapped by not being able to speak a word of English. But he is most hospitable and on the slightest pretext will invite acquaintances to the embassy and regale them with rare and curious sweets from the far east.

General Morteza has some of the costliest medals and decorations worn by any member of the diplomatic corps. One is particularly beautiful and was given to him by the shah of Persia. It contains a miniature portrait of the shah, studded with diamonds, and is the highest form of decoration bestowed by that potentate on any of his subjects.

Hard to Rob Uncle Sam.
It is practically impossible to rob Uncle Sam of any of the actual cash in his coffers. Eight years ago when the cash in the treasury was turned over to Treasurer Roberts it was discovered for the first time in the history of the nation that there had been some tampering with certain great bags of gold.

Foreign Warship at the Capital.
The Italian cruiser Dogali, used as a training and school ship, came up the Potomac a few days ago and anchored just below the city. She has 245 men and boys on board fresh from an extended cruise in the West Indies. The Dogali is the second warship of a foreign power to fly her flag in sight of the capital. The first being also an Italian vessel, the Amerigo Vesputelli, which came up the river in 1858 and for a time frightened the inhabitants along the banks, who thought she was a Spanish battleship coming to bombard Washington.

Praying for Good Husbands.
A picturesque ceremony takes place every year in Haute-Vienne. All the girls in the place on the day of St. Eutropeus file in procession to St. Julien-Combes to the cross which is erected near the church to the saint. Each girl hangs her left garter on the cross and prays that she may have a good husband and then gives way to the next girl. The cross is so smothered in garters of different colors that at a short distance it looks as though it were covered with flowers.

THE GREAT ICE AGE.

How Its Passing Left its Record in Gravel and Rocks.
Some 10,000 or more years ago the conditions which had brought about the great ice age were beginning to change. The elevated land began to sink, and a higher temperature slowly followed. The long winter was gradually drawing to a close, and the great springtime of the world was beginning to hasten its influence upon an ice covered land. Then, rather mountains, of ice began to melt, and the water filled the river valleys to overflowing. Gravel, sand and mud were borne along by these raging waters and deposited wherever the conditions were favorable. Ice mats covered the surface of the food, bearing rocks and boulders from more northern lands.

All rivers which had glacial sources were greatly influenced by the final melting. As the southern part of the ice sheet rested over northern Pennsylvania, the Delaware and the Susquehanna were typical rivers of the age. The rocks and gravels which line their banks show how well they have kept their record. In the Delaware valley brick clay and gravel are laid out in beautiful terraces, especially at Stroudsburg and the Water Gap. Here the waters rose some 200 feet, and an artificial dam is supposed to have formed the river into a broad lake. The Indians, it is said, have a curious legend about this flood. They tell us that the "Minisink" were the first race which dwelt here, and the region round about they call "Minisink," meaning that the waters are gone; "vague reminiscence perhaps of the postglacial floods.

Rapid Fire Justice.
Yankee dispatch characterizes the court rulings of a Toronto magistrate, of whom John Foster Fraser tells in his book, "Canada as It Is." The magistrate, who is reported to have got through with forty cases in forty minutes, was once asked how he managed it. "You must have some system," was the suggestion.

"I never allow a point of law to be raised," was the magistrate's prompt reply. "This is a court of justice, not a court of law."
"Not so very long ago a young attorney wanted to quote law against my sending his man down for six months," he wanted to quote Mathews, I think.

"Well," said I, "Mathews may be a great authority on law, but I guess he hasn't as much authority as I have in this court. Your man goes down for six months."

Praying for Good Husbands.
A picturesque ceremony takes place every year in Haute-Vienne. All the girls in the place on the day of St. Eutropeus file in procession to St. Julien-Combes to the cross which is erected near the church to the saint. Each girl hangs her left garter on the cross and prays that she may have a good husband and then gives way to the next girl. The cross is so smothered in garters of different colors that at a short distance it looks as though it were covered with flowers.

The Greeks were physically perfect and beautiful because they were healthy. The man who suffers from ill-health cannot be physically robust and manly. The woman who is richly cannot be beautiful and womanly. Most all forms of ill-health have their inception in disorders of the digestion. When the digestion is bad the blood becomes impure, and is imperfectly supplied with the food-elements that build up new and healthy tissues, and tear down, and carry away those that are inert and half-dead. The nerves are not rebuilt from day to day with new, vigorous, active fibers. Every organ, tissue, muscle and nerve in the body is half finished for healthy nutriment. Almost any disease in the category of human life may be the result of this condition. Most frequently it is the most deadly of disorders—consumption. Sometimes it is some other wasting disease. Again, it may be scrofula or some skin disease. There is a sure preventive and remedy for these conditions and maladies. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It corrects all disorders of the digestion. It restores the lost or failing appetite and invigorates the liver. It fills the arteries with the pure, rich, red blood of health. It builds new, firm flesh, healthy, active nerve fibers and strong, elastic muscles. It cures consumption, if taken in time, and wasting diseases. It cures nervous prostration. All good, drug-gists sell it.

"Last August my limbs commenced to swell from ankles up to stomach, and the skin on my limbs seemed to shive like glass," writes Mrs. Lucretia J. Cornish, of Chippewa Station, Osceola Co., Mich. "I could not take a good breath. The doctor said I had lifted too much and my liver was swollen to double the size it should be, and crowded my heart and lungs. I could scarcely speak without coughing. The doctor gave me six powders and a liquid to take, and said he would send me more if I would. I took his medicine. We did not have the means to pay six dollars a trip for the doctor, so I sent and got six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle my swelling had nearly gone out of my limbs and I commenced to improve. Through the goodness of God and your wonderful medicine I feel as well as I did before I was taken sick. I cannot expect to feel as young as formerly. I was never as old as I am now. I weighed one hundred and thirty-eight pounds one hundred and eight pounds bill I am gaining now. Can walk two miles and totally free of swelling. On Sunday, so don't think I ought to complain."

A Great Doctor Book Free—Send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., to cover cost of mailing only and he will send you a free copy of his 1008-page Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper-covered. Cloth-covered $1.00.

Not only the Original but the best Little Liver Pills first put on the market over 40 years ago by old Dr. J. C. Ayer, who has been much imitated but never equalled as his much praised pills. They are purely vegetable, being made up of concentrated and refined mineral and vegetable extracts from the roots of American plants. Do not give out or two for stomachic corrective, three or four for cathartic.

HINTS TO POULTRYMEN

Begin making preparations now for the molting period, which will soon be upon us, especially in the warmer climates. The process of molting and the growing of new feathers is a severe drain upon the vitality of the fowls, and the better their condition when entering upon this period the sooner will they get through the process and begin laying again. Occasionally a hen will lay right through the molt, but this is not desirable, as her vigor is greatly impaired and the chances are ten to one that she will not lay at all during the winter months. For the next two months see that the fowls have plenty of nutritious food and are kept free from lice. Get them in the best possible condition for the molting period. The hen that molts in August will begin laying again in November and will conditions being favorable—lay all winter.

PLAN EXTENSION OF RAILROAD

Some extensive improvements are being planned on the ranch at Lakeville recently purchased by President Arthur W. Foster, of the California Northwestern. The president is having surveys made with the view of extending the present road from Donahue to Reclamation. For the past week Chief Engineer Zeok has been engaged in the work of surveying for the proposed extension of the road, and in the near future it is expected that work will begin.

At the present time there is a branch road running from Petaluma to Donahue, and in order to preserve the franchise on this piece of track the company is compelled to use it every day. In compliance with this provision, a train or handcar goes over the track every twenty-four hours.

The distance from Donahue to Reclamation is only eight miles, and that would close a gap and make connections with the Sonoma and Napa branch of the road. This branch runs out from Ignacio, and would give an easy outlet from President Foster's ranch to that branch, and make it easy of access either to or from the metropolis.

With a gap of eight miles closed from Donahue to Reclamation President Foster could reach his ranch without coming up the roundabout way to Petaluma and then over the branch road to Donahue, but could make a quicker and easier journey by means of the proposed road.

Many other improvements are being made on the big ranch. Surveyor Preston R. Davis is busily engaged running levels and staking out roads over the vast property. The new owner intends to make the ranch out of the best in the state and equip it with all modern conveniences. The roads will all be practically on a dead level, and be situated in the best possible manner for gathering any crops grown there.

Dr. Gerber of Buena Vista Castle introduced to us to-day, Dr. W. O. Schmidt, Ph. D., (Bonn, Germany), (L. L. E. O., (Oxford), M. A., (Edinburgh), Gold Medalist, Academie des Sciences, Paris, and University of Melbourne, late Head Master of Hawthorn College, Melbourne, and First Assistant of the Dr. Ellis College of Music, Melbourne. The intentions of Dr. Gerber are, we understand, to supply the children who may stay at his resort for a short or long time, with the necessary schooling; and he goes so far to suggest that parents desirous of providing for their children the very best of natural surroundings, cannot do better than sending them to the beautiful Buena Vista Castle. At the same time the best of instruction is warranted by the capacities of the instructor, Dr. Schmidt, of such eminent centres of education as mentioned above. His list of subjects is a comprehensive and complete one. One special feature, we notice, is the introduction of Hygienic and Gymnastic instructions, which shows that the directions taken are of a very reformative and advanced character. We are surprised to see such an institution established in our community, and we hope to see it receive the assistance of all friends of education. The idea to extend the benefits of its schooling to the children of the community has met with the doctor's approval.

Dr. Schmidt will give a free public lecture at an early date to explain his new methods of education.

LETTER FROM GLEN ELLEN

The crowning event of the past week, was the "Calico Ball" given by the Women's Improvement Club to aid in the purchase of fire apparatus. As usual with this popular organization. The ball was a success in every way. With such an energetic president as Mrs. O'Donnell, it would scarcely be otherwise for there is no such word as fail in her vocabulary. In fact there is a corps of good workers in the club, and they seemed to be moved by a most generous spirit in providing the supper which was both bountiful and substantial.

It was the intention of the club to decorate each guest with streamers of bright yellow calico, that being the club's color, but owing to a mishap the calico failed to materialize, so they were obliged to tag the guests with small slips from a remnant of yellow ribbon which had been rescued from the fire. We were glad to see Sonoma so well represented and they all expressed themselves in very complimentary terms of their entertainment.

Next on the list is the Catholic Fair held in Social Hall to which two wings have been added for the special accommodation of the different booths, this will leave the main floor free for promenading and dancing.

There has been a number of changes on the C. N. R'y, many trains have been dropped off and there is great uneasiness among the employees as to what the next order may be.

Lost—Between San Francisco and Glen Ellen a package containing several yds of yellow calico. Any one finding the same, will return it to Dr. C. C. O'Donnell at his residence "Casa Cozy" Glen Ellen and receive a liberal reward.

with happiness and coy dignity, she held aloft a letter. Its whiteness was not more snowy in its purity than her hand.
"Why do you not ask for it?" she exclaimed.
The Rev. Sextus Wortley turned pale, and his face dropped with an ominous click; his hands clenched his sides.
"Did you think it would never come?" she asked, fingering it lovingly. "But the writing is so beautiful, I would hardly know that it was."
"My sins have found me out—found me out!"
"Was there anything in the letter that you regret saying?" she asked softly.
He looked at her. Her face was delicately tinged with red. The eyes were shining brightly. One shaft from them struck him. He forgot his resolutions, his temptation, his sin.
"No; nothing that I regret. It was all true."
Then she picked absently at the letter she held.
"The letter?" "That it has come give it to me."
She sank back shudderingly and replied: "No; it is mine. I must keep it. I shall always treasure it."
The Reverend Sextus gazed mutely at her, his mind astray with love.
"And you are not offended?" he asked.
"I answered with restraint, but with eyes full bent upon him."
"Then—and the words came slowly—"then my sin is not—not a sin. I feared it would be yours. But if it is not, my love must find some response in you, Cynthia. The letter has not been without effect."
"A few minutes later he touched her hand and said:
"That the letter, Cynthia. You will give it to me now."
"No, no, never!" she protested. "It is mine. I cannot give it up."
"As you say, dear," he responded, with the pride of a newborn idea entered his bosom. "It was great to have another cherish his composition."
"And you will sell me Reverend Sextus—no, Sextus—simply Sextus?" he asked.
"Sextus—Sextus, dear," she made answer, "but I will conceal the letter in the folds of her dress."
But she hesitated; she was not given to him. When the Reverend Sextus let Cynthia gaze at the illusive epistle, with its faded chromography, and marked softly, "He didn't know," she thought as much as to give a proposal, after all. I wonder what he said.
"And she sighed for the impossible, for his letter had not been delivered."
MAKE YOURSELF KNOWN.
A Little Story That Shows the Value of Acquaintances.
How professional men make acquaintances can be illustrated by the case of two dentists who lived in the same house. One was a young man, a man of letters, who taught him how good an investment good clothes and many friends might be. This doctor lived for many years at leading hotels and on an evening would dine at the club with the guests. There was never a pleasanter man than he at these leisure times, nor a man of better appearance, although during the early years he was content with a simple and a plain. In all this social life he never mentioned his profession or his work unless such personal talk came naturally into the conversation. Each year he went to Europe and dined at the club's table, and always in immaculate evening clothes. Sometimes he went and returned by the same ship, for there was little to gain by staying abroad. Everybody liked him, and today he has an immense practice, a considerable proportion of which he admits frankly can be traced to his steamship acquaintance. One day a year ago he met a lawyer of about his own age and degree of success at their common club.
"I'm going abroad Saturday," said the lawyer. "Come along," he added, "I've been over eighteen times," said the doctor. "I've never been over a dozen times," said the lawyer. "I've been over a dozen times for the same reason that you have gone and are going. We'll work the boat together, you and I."—Arthur Goodrich in Leslie's Monthly Magazine.

WOMAN AND FASHION
Smart Summer Gown.
This attractive costume shows a waist made with a chemisette combined with a plaited skirt and is cool and fresh in appearance. The material for the model is the white rep, which is a close rival of linen for fashionable favor, with trimming of embroidered muslin, but there is a long list of materials which might be substituted. Linen is always smart and in some of its newer forms, such as voile and etamine, is particularly so this season, while, again, there are the favorite mercerized chevrons and the like, all of which are appropriate for the washable gown, while mohair and silk also can be utilized.

The separate chemisette is a most desirable feature, inasmuch as it allows of wearing several with a single gown and making as many changes as need be. The embroidered muslin is especially well liked, but lace is also used, and fine linen lawn, embroidered by hand, is one of the smartest of all smart things. The skirt is exceptionally adapted to washable materials, as it is straight at front and back, so doing away with the danger of stretching, which so often is a detriment.
The shirred belt of linen lawn is dainty and pretty, but there are many novelties offered, and this accessory can be changed again and again. Among the latest fads is leather to match the gown, made in what is known as Paquin style, wide at the front, narrow at the back, where it is buckled into place. In this instance the hat is of straw, with trimming of mull, and the parasol is of linen, but hats in lingerie style are greatly in vogue.
The New Lingerie.
The beauty of present day linen is that not only is it less crushable than of yore, but it is obtainable in every conceivable shade. The brightest and most daring tones of color—pale pastel, tender summer tints and useful blues, blacks, purples and browns—are all used.
Coming Fashions.
Henrietta cloths and the lightweight broadcloths promise to be smart for autumn wear, and panne and chiffon velvets will be among the leading materials to be combined with the former.
New French Blouse.
Never have the separate blouses seemed so altogether fascinating and present. The sheer materials which the importer shows in such wonderful array make these waists especially attractive. The creation shown here

He Wanted to Know.
Scotlandmen are fond of an argument, and delight to find flaws in an opponent's logic. Two blacksmiths were once conversing as to which was the first trade in the world. One insisted that it must have been gardening, and quoted from Genesis: "Adam was put into the garden of Eden to dress it and keep it." "Aye, John," retorted the other, who had stood up for his own trade, "but what made the spades?"

OPEN LETTER.
The editor of the California Christian Advocate was asked to name some minister he had absolute confidence in to thoroughly investigate the claims that chronic Bright's Disease is now curable and report the findings to that paper. He appointed the Rev. W. S. Urmey of Berkeley, one of the most thoroughly respected and widely known ministers in the California Conference. He went at the matter with characteristic energy and earnestness. Following is the full report of his investigation. It will be of profound interest to nephritis and diabetics.
To the Editor of the California Christian Advocate:
Dear Sir:
Having had my attention called to some remarkable cures effected by a medicine called Fulton's Compound, I determined to investigate the matter for myself and find whether or not the remedy was what its friends asserted it to be—a real cure for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys and Diabetes. I called on about a dozen persons and came into possession of facts which are little short of miraculous.
It is well known that the medical books and living authorities unite in asserting that Bright's Disease is incurable, and that Diabetes, when fastened on the system, is also an incurable malady. My astonishment was intense when I heard from the lips of perfectly reliable people that they had been entirely and permanently cured by the faithful use of the remedy alluded to, accompanied by proper dieting.
I have known by reputation for fifty years, told me that several physicians had declared his case incurable, and gave him only ninety days to live, advising him to close up his affairs in view of speedy death. He is now in good health, attending daily to his business, and looks as if he might live twenty years.
A lady of San Francisco, who is related to one of the Chief Justices of the United States, avowed in my presence that she had Diabetes in its worst form. Dropsy set in and every part of her body became badly swollen. Her fingers fell off, and she died in five months. She was entirely cured eight years ago and had had no return of the disease nor its symptoms. She eats what she chooses.
A prominent insurance man of strict integrity related to me the case of his son, who was far gone with Bright's Disease, so that he was expected to die within a few weeks. His body was immensely bloated with dropsy, and that he could hardly see. He commenced taking the remedy. His dropsy disappeared, the weight was restored, but began to regain flesh. He now weighs 150 pounds and is completely well, attending regularly to his business.
I have seen parties connected with three of the papers of San Francisco, and their statements are similar. They assert that the cure they received has been thoroughly cured and that they have the fullest faith in the remedy being entirely efficacious.
One gentleman, keeping a highly respectable rooming house of San Francisco, detailed his case to me. He was so weak that he could not walk a block without resting. He is now strong and hearty. His cure was effected fourteen years ago and he has had no return of the disease or its symptoms. Two noted attorneys of the city gave their testimony to the curative powers of the remedy. One I saw who is now in an extremely bad condition. He is now well and hearty. The other says that three friends of his who were hopelessly ill (two with Bright's Disease and the other with Diabetes) were completely cured, and that he has no more doubt of the curability of these diseases than that he is living. These men are prominent in the legal fraternity.
I might give other instances, but these will suffice. It is not a recent discovery. The cures I have investigated run from one year to fourteen.
My own deliberate opinion is that a perfect cure for Bright's Disease and Diabetes has been at last discovered, and that while there are some failures, the cures effected are eighty-seven per cent. of the cases treated.
I believe it to be the duty of every lover of his kind to spread this good news and thus help save from death scores of thousands who yearly perish from these diseases. I have no financial interest in the matter.
W. S. URMAY.
Berkeley, July 6, 1905.
If any of our readers have a knowledge of a case of Bright's Disease or chronic kidney disease and will send the name and address to THE EXPOSITOR we will see that they are sent full literature concerning this remarkable discovery.
Too few people understand that common kidney trouble has generally reached the stage called Bright's Disease when it begins to be noticed that it has resisted all treatment and is still hanging on.

"THE LETTER AT LAST!" SHE EXCLAIMED.
"They do not intend to deliver it in person. It is by mail they will send it. I'm safe for the night."
When he reached his home his thoughts were confused, bitterness mixed with strange remorseful emotion. When she received the letter it was with satisfaction to know that it was properly worded. He doubted if the letter of her former husband could have penned such another note.
But immediately following his elation at this reflection he shuddered, and a cold perspiration broke out on his forehead. If she did not love him—what presumption on his part! No, the letter must not be delivered.
That night he tried to bribe the postman on his route to rob the mail—that is, to secure back his letter to Cynthia.
"It's against the law, sir," severely answered the honest postman. "But, seeing it was your letter first, I—what kind of handwriting was it?"
"It—I don't know. You see, it was addressed by—"
The postman shook his head. "Couldn't do it, sir, for anybody. It would name me in jail. Sorry, sir."
On many mornings thereafter he visited Cynthia, with always the same query framed on his lips. "The letter—has it come yet?"
No, the letter had not come by post or by tramp delivery. And each succeeding day the Reverend Sextus gained back some of his former poise and self-confidence. But the necessity of making the inquiry before he began a day's work on his sermon grew into a fixed habit which he could not cast off.
It was a pleasant habit too. It inspired him for the duty of the day. He grew anxious for the sermon every one portion of the temptation entered his blood and grew with insidious rapidity. He did not realize it until a fortnight after the holdup in the woods.
Then like a flash of inspiration it dawned upon his mind. He was seeking Cynthia's society not for the sake of the letter, but for the pleasure of her company. He had been deceiving himself all these days, weaving a web of delusion around his life that was as dangerous as the temptation of the drunkard. He was drunk—drunk with the wine of love.
He groined in spirit and beat himself with mental castigation. He was weak under the hypocrite who deceived the world, but was honest to himself. Not in all his days had he yielded to such a fondle of inquiring about the letter than on the night of the holdup, and the reason for this was a sad and quieter man, with thoughts on things spiritual rather than material. No words about the letter escaped his lips. His walk and smile were sedately solemn.
But there was no reciprocating word to greet him. Cynthia Trimble was alive with happiness and coy dignity, she held aloft a letter. Its whiteness was not more snowy in its purity than her hand.

"Why do you not ask for it?" she exclaimed.
The Rev. Sextus Wortley turned pale, and his face dropped with an ominous click; his hands clenched his sides.

"As you say, dear," he responded, with the pride of a newborn idea entered his bosom. "It was great to have another cherish his composition."
"And you will sell me Reverend Sextus—no, Sextus—simply Sextus?" he asked.
"Sextus—Sextus, dear," she made answer, "but I will conceal the letter in the folds of her dress."
But she hesitated; she was not given to him. When the Reverend Sextus let Cynthia gaze at the illusive epistle, with its faded chromography, and marked softly, "He didn't know," she thought as much as to give a proposal, after all. I wonder what he said.

could not fail to increase the charms of the wearer. White, crystal silk serves for the entire waist, while catier cuffs and stole collar are embroidered in pastel shades. Narrow black velvet in Greek key pattern gives character to the bodice, and both of these decorations are novel as well as inexpensive. Applique, guipure or the popular spangle can be used in place of the embroidery. A bodice suitable for formal occasions is effected by omitting plastron and cuffs. The material required for medium size is four and a quarter yards twenty-seven inches wide.
