TO HIS MANY WAIES ENDEERED
friend Maister Robert Keyfar.

IR, this unfortunate child, who in eight daies (as lately I haue learned) was begot and borne, soone after, was by his parents (perhaps because hee was so unlike his brethren) exposed to the wide world, who for want of iudgement, or not understanding the priuymarke of Ironie about it (which shewed it was no of-spring of any vulgar braine) vtterly reiected it: so that for want of acceptance it was euen ready to giue vp the Ghost, and was in danger to haue bene smothered in perpetuall obliuion, if you (out of your direct antipathy to ingratitude) had not bene moued both to relieue and cherish it: wherein I must needs commend both your iudgement, understanding, and singular loue to good wits; you afterwards sent it to mee, yet being an infant and somewhat ragged, I haue fostred it priuately in my bosome these two yeares,

The Epistle Dedicatory.

and now to shew my loue returne it to you, clad in good lasting cloaths, which scarce memory will weare out, and able to speake for it selfe; and withall, as it telleth mee, desirous to try his fortune in the world, where if yet it be welcome, father, foster-father, nurse and child, all haue their desired end. If it bee slighted or traduced, it hopes his father will beget him a yonger brother, who shall reuenge his quarrell, and challenge the world either of fond and meere lyterall interpretation, or illiterate misprision. Perhaps it will be thought to bee of the race of Don Quixote: we both may confidently sweare, it is his elder aboue a yeare; and therefore may (by vertue of his birth-right) challenge the wall of him. I doubt not but they will meet in their aduentures, and I hope the breaking of one staffe will make them friends; and perhaps they will combine themselues, and trauell through the world to seeke their aduentures. So I commit him to his good fortune, and my selfe to your loue.

Your assured friend

W. Beaumont.

The famous Historie Of the Knight of the burning PESTLE.

Enter PROLOGVE.

Rom all that's neere the Court, from all that's great
Within the compasse of the Citty-wals,
We now haue brought our Sceane.

Enter Citizen.

Cit. Hold your peace good-man boy.

Pro. What do you meane fir?

Cit. That you haue no good meaning: This seuen yeares there hath beene playes at this house, I haue obserued it, you haue still girds at Citizens; and now you call your play,
The London Marchant. Downe with your Title boy, downe with your Title.

Pro. Are you a member of the noble Citty?

Cit. I am.

Pro. And a Free-man?

Cit. Yea, and a Grocer.

Pro. So Grocer, then by your sweet fauour, we intend no abuse to the Citty.

Cit. No fir, yes fir, if you were not resolu'd to play the Jacks, what need you study for new subiects, purposely to abuse your betters? why could not you be contented, as well as others, with the legend of Whittington, or the life & death of fir Thomas Gresham? with the building of the Royall Exchange? or the story of Queene Elenor, with the rearing of London bridge vpon wool-sackes?

Pro. You seeme to bee an vnderstanding man: what would you haue vs do sir?

Cit. Why present something notably in honour of the Commons of the City.

Pro. Why what doe you say to the life and death of fat Drake, or the repairing of Flect-priuies?

Cit. I do not like that, but I will haue a Citizen, and hee shall be of my owne trade.

Pro. Oh you should haue told vs your minde a moneth since, our play is ready to begin now.

Cit. 'Tis all one for that, I will haue a Grocer, and he shall do admirable things.

Pro. What will you haue him do?

Cit. Marry I will haue him —

Wife. Husband, husband.

Rafe. Peace mistresse.

Rafe below.

Wife. Hold thy peace Rafe, I know what I do I warrant thee.
Husband, husband.

Cit. What sayst thou cunny?

Wife. Let him kill a Lyon with a pestle husband, let him kill a Lyon with a pestle.

Cit. So he shall, I'll haue him kill a Lyon with a pestle.

Wife. Husband, shall I come vp husband?

Cit. I cunny. Rafe helpe your mistresse this way: pray gentlemen make her a little roome, I pray you sir lend me your hand to helpe vp my wife: I thanke you sir. So.

Wife. By your leaue Gentlemen all, Im'e somthing troublesome, Im'e a sträger here, I was nere at one of these playes as they say, before; but I should haue scene lane Shore once, and my husband hath promised me any time this Twelue moneth to carry me to the Bold Beauchams, but in truth he did not, I pray you beare with me.

Cit. Boy, let my wife and I haue a cuple stools, and then begin, and let the Grocer do rare things.

Pro. But sir, we haue neuer a boy to play him, euery one

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

one hath a part already.

Wife. Husband, husband, for Gods sake let Rafe play him, beshrew mee if I do not thinke hee will goe beyond them all.

Cit. Wellremembred wife, come vp Rafe: Il'e tell you Gentlemen, let them but lend him a suit of reparrell, and necessaries, and by Gad, if any of them all blow winde in the taile on him, Il'e be hang'd.

Wife. I pray you youth let him haue a suit of reparrell, Il'e be sworne Gentlemen, my husband tels you true, hee will act you sometimes at our house, that all the neighbours cry out on him: hee will fetch you vp a couraging part so in the garret, that we are all as feard I warrant you, that wee quake againe: wee'l feare our children with him if they bee neuer so vn-ruly, do but cry, Rafe comes, Rafe come to them, and they'l be as quyet as Lambes. Hold vp thy head Rafe, shew the Gentlemen what thou canst doe, speake a huffing part, I warrant you the Gentlemen will accept of it.

Cit. Do Rafe, do.

Rafe. By heauen me thinkes it were an easie leap
To plucke bright honour from the pale-fac'd Moone,
Or die into the bottome of the sea,
Where neuer fathame line touch't any ground,
And plucke vp drowned honor from the lake of hell.

Cit. How say you Gentlemen, is it not as I told you?

Wife. Nay Gentlemen, hee hath playd before, my husband sayes, Musidorus before the Wardens of our Company.

Cit. I, and hee should haue playd Ieronimo with a Shoemaker for a wager.

Pro. He shall haue a suite of apparrell if he will go in.

Cit. In Rafe, in Rafe, and set out the Grocery in their kinde, if thou lou'st me.

Wife. I warrant our Rafe will looke finely when hee's drest.

Pro. But what will you haue it cal'd?

Cit. The Grocers honour.

Pro. Me thinks The Knight of the burning Pestle were better.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Wif. Il'e be sworn husband, thats as good a name as can be.

Cit. Let it be so, begin, begin, my wife and I wil sit downe.

Pro. I pray you do.

Cit. What stately muckfike haue you? you haue shawmes.

Pro. Shawnes? no.

Cit. No? Im'e a thiefe if my minde did not giue me so. Rafe playes a stately part, and he must needs haue shawnes: Il'e be at the charge of them my selfe, rather then wee'l be without them.

Pro. So you are like to be.

Cit. Why and so I will be: ther's two shillings, let's haue the waits of South-warke, they are as rare fellowes as any are in England; and that will fetch them all or'e the water with a vengeance, as if they were mad.

Pro. you shall haue them: will you sit downe then?

Cit. I, come wife.

Wife. Sit you merry all Gentlemen, Im'e bold to sit amongst you for my ease.

Pro. From all that's neere the Court, from all that's great.

Within the compasse of the Citty-walles,

We now haue brought our Sceane: flye farre from hence

All priuate taxes, immodest phrases,

What ere may but shew like vicious:

For wicked mirth neuer true pleasure brings,

But honest minds are pleas'd with honest things.

Thus much for that we do: but for Rases part

You must answer for your selfe.

Cit. Take you no care for Rafe, hee'l discharge himselfe I warrant you.

Wife. I faith Gentlemen Il'e giue my word for Rafe.

Actus primi, Scœna prima.

Enter Marchant, and Iasper his Prentice.

March. Sirrah, Il'e make you know you are my Prentice,
And whom my charitable loue redeem'd
Euen from the fall of fortune, gaue thee heate

And

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

And growth, to be what now thou art, new cast thee,
Adding the trust of all I haue at home,
In forren Staples, or vpon the Sea
To thy direction, t'ide the good opinions
Both of my selfe and friends to thy endeauours.
So faire were thy beginnings, but with these,
As I remember, you had neuer charge,
To loue your Maisters daughter, and euen then,
When I had found a wealthy husband for her,
I take it, sir, you had not; but how euer,
I'll breake the necke of that commission,
And make you know you are but a Merchants Factor.

Iasp. Sir, I do liberally confesse I am yours,
Bound, both by loue and duty, to your seruice;
In which, my labour hath bene all my profit;
I haue not lost in bargaine, nor delighted
To weare your honest gaines vpon my backe,
Nor haue I giuen a pencion to my bloud,
Or lauishly in play consum'd your stocke.
These, and the miseries that do attend them,
I dare, with innocence, proclaime are strangers
To all my temperate actions; for your daughter,
If there be any loue, to my deseruings,
Borne by her vertuous selfe, I cannot stop it?
Nor, am I able to refraine her wishes.
She's priuate to her selfe and best of knowledge,
Whom she'll make so happy as to sigh for.
Besides, I cannot thinke you meane to match her,
Vnto a fetow of so lame a presence,
One that hath little left of Nature in him.

Mar. 'Tis very well sir, I can tell your wisdome
How all this shall bee cur'd. Iasp. Your care becomes you.

March. And thus it must be sir, I heere discharge you
My house and seruice, take your liberty,
And when I want a sonne I'll send for you. Exit:

Iasp. These be the faire rewards of them that loue.
O you that liue in freedome neuer proue

The trauell of a mind led by desire.

Enter Luce.

Luce. Why, how now friend, struck with my fathers thun-

Iasp. Strucke and strucke dead vnlesse the remedy (der?
Be full of speede and vertue; I am now,
What I expected long, no more your fathers.

Luce. But mine. Iasp. But yours, and onely yours I am,
That's all I haue to keepe mee from the Statute,
You dare be constant still. Luce. O feare me not,
In this I dare be better then a woman.
Nor shall his anger, nor his offers moue me,
Were they both equall to a Princes power.

Iasp. You know my riual? Luce. Yes and loue him deerly Euen as I loue an ague, or foule weather,
I prethee Iasper feare him not. Iasp. O no,
I do not meane to do him so much kindnesse,
But to our owne desires, you know the plot
We both agreed on. Luce. Yes, and will performe
My part exactly. Iasp. I desire no more,
Fare-well and keepe my heart, 'tis yours. Luce. I take it,
He must do miracles makes me forsake it. Exeunt.

Cruz. Fye vpon am little infidels, what a matters here now? well, I'le be hang'd for a halfe-penny, if there be not some abomination knauery in this Play, well, let 'em looke toot, Rafe must come, and if there be any tricks a brewing,--

Wife. Let 'em brew and bake too husband, a Gods name, Rafe will find all out I warrant you, and they were older then they are, I pray my pretty youth is Rafe ready.

Boy. He will be presently.

Wife. Now I pray you make my commendations vnto him, and withall carry him this sticke of Licoras, tell him his Mistresse sent it him, and bid him bite a peece, 'twill open his pipes the better, say.

Enter Marchant, and Maister Humfery.

Mar. Come sir, shee's yours, vpon my faith she's yours
You haue my hand, for other idle lets
Betweene your hopes and her, thus, with a wind
They are scattered and no more: my wanton Prentice,

That

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

That like a bladder, blew himselfe with loue,
I haue let out, and sent him to discover
New Maisters yet vnknowne. Humf. I thanke you sir,
Indeed I thanke you sir, and ere I stir
It shall bee knowne, how euer you do deeme,
I am of gentle blood and gentle seeme.

March. O sir, I know it certaine. Humf. Sir my friend,
Although, as Writers say, all things haue end,
And that we call a pudding, hath his two
O let it not seeme strange I pray to you,
If in this bloody simile, I put
My loue, more endlesse, then fraile things or gut.

Wife. Husband, I prethee sweete lambe tell me one thing,
But tell mee truely: may youths I beseech you, till I question my husband. Citiz. What is it mouse?

Wife. Sirrah, didst thou euer see a prettier child? how it behaues it selfe, I warrant yee, and speakes, and lookes, and pearts vp the head? I pray you brother, with your fauor, were you neuer none of M. Monkesters schollars?

Cit. Chicken, I prethee heartely containe thy selfe, the childer are pretty childer, but when Rafe comes, Lambe.

Wife. I when Rafe comes conny, well my youth, you may

Mar. Wel sir, you know my loue, and rest, I hope, (proceed
Assur'd of my consent, get but my daughters,
And wed her when you please; you must be bold,
And clap in close vnto her, come, I know
You haue language good enough to win a wench.

Wife. A whoreson tyrant has ben an old stringer in's daies I warrant him. Humf. I take your gentle offer and withall Yeeld loue againe for loue recipocall. Enter Luce.

Mar. What Luce within there. Lu. Cal'd you sir? Mar. I did.
Giue entertainment to this Gentleman
And see you bee not froward: to her sir,
My presence will but bee an eye-soare to you. Exit.

Humf. Faire Mistresse Luce, how do you, are you well?
Giue me your hand and then I pray you teil,
How doth your little sister, and your brother?

And

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

And whether you loue me or any other.

Luce. Sir, these are quickly answered. Humf. So they Where women are not cruel: but how farre (are,
Is it now distant from this place we are in,
Vnto that blessed place your fathers warren.

Luce. What makes you thinke of that fir?

Humf. Euen that face

For stealing Rabbets whilome in that place,
God Cupid, or the Keeper, I know not whether Vnto my cost and charges brought you thither,
And there began. Luce. Your game fir. Humf. Let no game,
Or any thing that teadeth to the same.
Bee euermore remembred, thou faire killer
For whom I fate me downe and brake my Tiller.

Wife. There's a kind Gentleman, I warrant you, when will you do as much for me George?

Luce. Beshrew me fir, I am sorry for your losses,
But as the prouerbe saies, I cannot cry,
I would you had not seene me. Humf. So would I.
Vnlesse you had more maw to do me good.

Luce. Why, cannot this strange passion be withstood,
Send for a Constable and raise the Towne.

Humf. O no, my valiant loue will batter downe
Millions of Constables, and put to flight,
Euen that great watch of Mid-summer day at night.

Luce. Beshrew me fir, 'twere good I yeilded then,
Weake women cannot hope, where valiant men
Haue no resistance. Humf. Yeeld then, I am full
Of pittie, though I say it, and can pull
Out of my pocket, thus, a paire of gloues,
Looke Lucy, looke, the dogs tooth, nor the Doues
Are not so white as these; and sweete they bee,
And whipt about with silke, as you may see.
If you desire the price, sute from your eie,
A beame to this place, and you shall espie
F.S. which is to say, my sweetest hony,
They cost me three and two pence, or no mony.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Luce. Well sir, I take them kindly, and I thanke you,
What would you more? Hum. Nothing. Luce. Why then
Humf. Not so, nor so, for Lady I must tell, (fare-well.
Before we part, for what we met together,
God grant me time, and patience, and faire weather.

Luce. Speake and declare your minde in termes so brieft.

Humf. I shall, then first and formost for reliefe
I call to you, I if that you can affoord it,
I care not at what price, for on my word, it Shall be repaid againe, although it cost me
More then I'le speake of now, for loue hath tost me,
In furious blanket like a Tennis ball,
And now I rise aloft, and now I fall.

Luce. Alas good Gentleman, alas the day.

Humf. I thanke you hartely, and as I say,
Thus do I still continue without rest,
I th' morning like a man, at night a beast,
Roaring and bellowing myne owne disquiet,
That much I feare, forsaking of my diet,
Will bring me presently to that quandary,
I shall bid all adeiw: Luce. Now by S. Mary
That were great pittie. Hum. So it were beshrew me,
Then ease me lusty Luce, and pittie shew me.

Luce. Why sir, you know my will is nothing worth
Without my fathers grant, get his consent,
And then you may with assurance try me.

Humf. The Worshipfull your fire will not deny me.
For I haue askt him, and he hath repli'd, Sweete Maister Humfrey, Luce shall be thy Bride.

Luce. Sweete Maister Humfrey then I am content.

Humf. And so am I intruth. Luce. Yet take me with you,
There is another clause must be annex,
And this it is, I swore and will performe it;
No man shall euer ioy me as his wife
But he that stole me hence, if you dare venter
I am yours; you need not feare, my father loues you,
If not farewell for euer. Humf. Stay Nimphi, staie,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

I haue a double Gelding coulored bay,
Sprung by his father from Barbarian kind,
Another for my selfe, though somewhat blind,
Yet true as trusty tree. Luce. I am satisfied,
And so I giue my hand, our course must lie
Through Waltham Forrest, where I haue a friend
Will entertaine vs, so fare-well sir Humfrey, Exit Luce.
And thinke vpon your businesse. Humf. Though I die,
I am resolu'd to venter life and lim,
For one so yong, so faire, so kind, so trim. Exit Humfrey.

Wife. By my faith and troth George, and as I am vertuous, it is e'ne the kindest yong man that euer trod on shoole leather, well, go thy waies if thou hast her not, 'tis not thy fault 'faith.

Cit. I prethee mouse be patient, a shall haue her, or i'll make some 'em smoake for't.

Wife. That's my good lambe George, fie, this stinking Tobacco kills men, would there were none in England, now I pray Gentlemen, what good does this stinking Tobacco? do you nothing, I warrant you make chimnies a your faces: o husband, husband, now, now, there's Rafe, there's Rafe.

Enter Rafe like a Grocer in's Shop, with two Prentices
Reading Palmerin of England.

Cit. Peace foole, let Rafe alone, harke you Rafe; doe not straine your selfe too much at the first, peace, begin Rafe.

Rafe. Then Palmerin and Trineus snatching their Launces from their Dwarfes, and clasping their Helmetts gallopt amaine after the Gyant, and Palmerin hauing gotten a sight of him, came posting amaine, saying: Stay trayterous thiefe, for thou maist not so carry away her, that is worth the greatest Lord in the world, and with these words gaue him a blow on the shoulder, that he stroake him besides his Elephant, and Trineus comming to the Knight that had Agricola behind him, set him soone besides his horse, with his necke broken in the fall, so that the Princesse getting out of the thronge, betweene ioy and grieffe said; all happy Knight, the mirror of all such as follow Armes, now may I bee well assured of the

the loue thou bearest me, I wonder why the Kings doe not raise an army of foureteene or fifteene hundred thousand men, as big as the Army that the Prince of Portigo brought against Rocicler, & destroy these Giants, they do much hurt to wandring Damsels, that go in quest of their Knights.

Wife. Faith husband and Rafe saies true, for they say the King of Portugall cannot sit at his meate, but the Giants & the Ettins will come and snatch it from him,

Cit. Hold thy tongue, on Rafe.

Rafe. And certainly those Knights are much to be commended, who neglecting their possessions, wander with a Squire and a Dwarf through the Desarts to relieue poore Ladies.

Wife. I by my faith are they Rafe, let 'em say what they will, they are indeed, our Knights neglect their possessions well enough, but they do not the rest.

Rafe. There are no such courteous and faire well spoken Knights in this age, they will call one the sonne of a whore, that Palmerin of England, would haue called faire sir; and one that Rosicler would haue cal'd right beauteous Damsell, they will call dam'd bitch.

Wife. I'le be sworne will they Rafe, they haue cal'd mee so an hundred times about a scuruy pipe of Tobacco.

Rafe. But what braue spirit could be content to sit in his shop with a flappet of wood and a blew apron before him selling Methridatum and Dragons water to visited houses, that might pursue feats of Armes, & through his noble atchieuements procure such a famous history to be written of his heroicke prowesse.

Cit. Well said Rafe, some more of those words Rafe.

Wife. They go finely by my troth.

Rafe. Why should not I then pursue this course, both for the credit of my selfe and our Company, for amongst all the worthy bookes of Atchieuements I doe not call to minde that I yet read of a Grocer Errant, I will be the said Knight, haue you heard of any that hath wandred vnfurnished of his Squire and Dwarf, my elder Prentice

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Tim shall be my trusty Squire, and little George my Dwarf, Hence my blew Apone, yet in remembrance of my former Trade, vpon my shiled shall be purtraide, a burning Pestle, and I will be cal'd the Knight of the burning Pestle.

Wife. Nay, I dare sweare thou wilt not forget thy old Trade, thou wert euer meeke. Rafe. Tim.

Tim. Anon.

Rafe. My beloued Squire, & George my Dwarf, I charge you that from hence-forth you neuer call me by any other name, but the Right Courteous and Valiant Knight of the burning Pestle, and that you neuer call any female by the name of a woman or wench, but faire Ladie, if she haue her desires, if not distressed Damsell, that you call all Forrests & Heaths Desarts, and all horses Palfries.

Wife. This is very fine, faith, do the Gentlemen like Rafe, thinke you, husband?

Citiz. I, I warrant thee, the Plaiers would giue all the shooes in their shop for him.

Rafe. My beloued Squire Tim, stand out, admit this were a Desart, and ouer it a Knight errant pricking, and I should bid you inquire of his intents, what would you say?

Tim. Sir, my Maister sent me, to know whether your are riding?

Rafe. No, thus; faire sir, the Right Courteous and Valiant Knight of the burning Pestle, commanded me to enquire, vpon what aduenture your are bound, whether to relieue some distressed Damsels, or otherwise.

Cit. Whoresome blocke-head cannot remember.

Wife. I' faith, & Rafe told him on't before, all the Gentlemen heard him, did he not Gentlemen, did not Rafe tel him on't?

George. Right Courteous and Valiant Knight of the burning Pestle, here is a distressed Damsell, to haue a halfe penny-worth of pepper.

Wife. That's a good boy, see, the little boy can hit it, by my troth it's a fine child.

Rafe. Relieue her with all courteous language, now shut vp shoppe, no more my Prentice, but my trusty Squire

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Squire and Dwarf, I must bespeake my shield and armingpestle.

Cit. Go thy waies Rafe, as I'm'e a true man, thou art the best on 'em all.

Wife. Rafe, Rafe.

Rafe. What say you mistresse?

Wife. I pre'thee come againe quickly sweet Rafe.

Rafe. By and by.

Exit Rafe.

Enter Jasper, and his mother mistresse Merri-thought.

Mist. merri. Giue thee my blessing? No, It'e ner'e giue thee my blessing, It'e see thee hang'd first; it shall ner'e bee said I gaue thee my blessing, th'art thy fathers owne sonne, of the right bloud of the Merri-thoughts, I may curse the time that er'e I knew thy father; he hath spent all his owne, and mine too, and when I tell him of it, he laughs and dances, and sings, and cryes, A merry heart liues long-a. And thou art a wast-thrift, and art run away from thy maister, that lou'd thee well, and art come to me, and I haue laid vp a little for my yonger sonne Michael, and thou think'st to be-zell that, but thou shalt neuer be able to do it: Come hither
Michael, come Michael, downe on thy knees, thou shalt haue my blessing.

Enter Michael.

Mich. I pray you mother pray to God to blesse me.

Mist. merri. God blesse thee: but Jasper shal neuer haue my blessing, he shall be hang'd first, shall hee not Michael?
how saist thou?

Mich. Yes forsooth mother and grace of God.

Mist. merri. That's a good boy.

Wife. I faith it's a fine spoken child.

Ia'p. Mother, though you forget a parents loue,
I must preferue the duty of a child.
I ran not from my maister, nor returne
To haue your stocke maintaine my Idlenesse.

Wife. Vngracious childe I warrant him, harke how hee chops logicke with his mother: thou hadst best tell her she lyes, do tell her she lies.

Cit. If hee were my sonne, I would hang him vp by the heeles, and flea him, and salt him, whoore-sonne halter-sacke.

Iasp. My comming onely is to begge your loue,
Which I must euer, though I neuer gaine it,
And howsoeuer you esteeme of me,
There is no drop of bloud hid in these veines,
But I remember well belongs to you
That brought me forth, and would be glad for you
To rip them all againe, and let it out.

Mist. merri. I faith I had sorrow enough for thee (God knowes) but Il'e hamper thee well enough: get thee in thou vagabond, get thee in, and learne of thy brother Michael.

Old merri. within. Nose, nose, iolly red nose, and who gaue thee this iolly red nose?

Mist. merri. Harke, my husband hee's singing and hoiting,
And Im'e faine to carke and care, and all little enough.

Enter old Merithought.

Old merri. Nutmegs and Ginger, Cinnamon and Cloues,
And they gaue me this iolly red Nose.

Mist. merri. If you would consider your state, you would haue little list to sing, I-wisse.

Old merri. It should neuer bee considered while it were an estate, if I thought it would spoyle my singing.

Mist. merri. But how wilt thou do Charles, thou art an old man, and thou canst not worke, and thou hast not fortie shillings left, and thou eatest good meat, and drinkest good drinke, and laughest?

Old merri. And will do:

Mist. merri. But how wilt thou come by it Charles?

Old merri. How? why how haue I done hitherto this forty yeares? I neuer came into my dining roome, but at eleuen & six a clocke, I found excellent meat and drinke a'th table, my clothes were neuer worne out, but next morning a Taylor brought me a new suit; and without question it will be so e-uer: vse makes perfectnesse. If all should faile, it is but a little straining my selfe extraordinary, & laugh my selfe to death.

Wife. It's a foolish old man this: is not he George?

Cit. Yes Cunny.

Wife. Giue me a peny i'th purse while I liue George.

Cit. I by Ladie cunnie, hold thee there.

Mist. merri. Well Charles, you promis'd to prouide for Iasper, and I haue laid vp for Michael, I pray you pay Iasper his portion, hee's come home, and hee shall not consume Michaels stocke: he saies his maister turnd him away, but I promise you truly, I thinke he ran away.

Wife. No indeed mistresse Merrithought, though he bee a notable gallowes, yet I'll e assure you his maister did turne him away, euen in this place 'twas I'falth within this halfe houre, about his daughter, my husband was by.

Cit. Hang him rougue, he seru'd him well enough: loue his maisters daughter! by my troth Cunnie if there were a thousand boies, thou wouldst spoile them all with taking their parts, let his mother alone with him.

Wife. I George, but yet truth is truth.

Oldmerri. Where is Iasper, hee's welcome how euer, call him in, hee shall haue his portion, is he merry?

Enter Iasper and Michael.

Michael.

Oldmerri. Welcome Iasper, though thou runst away, welcome, God bleffe thee: 'tis thy mothers minde thou should'st receiue thy portion; thou hast beene abroad, and I hope hast learn'd experience enough to gouerne it, thou art of sufficient yeares, hold thy hand: one, two, three, foure, fiue, sixe, seuen, eight, nine, there's ten shillings for thee, thrust thy selfe into the world with that, and take some settled course, if fortune crosse thee, thou hast a retiring place, come home to me, I haue twentie shillings left, bee a good husband, that is, weare ordinary clothes, eate the best meate, and drinke the best drinke, bee merrie, and giue to the poore, and belecue me, thou hast no end of thy goods.

Iasp.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Iasp. Long may you liue free from all thought of ill,
And long haue cause to be thus merry still!
But father?

Old merri. No more words Iasper, get thee gone, thou hast my blessing, thy fathers spirit vpon thee. Farewell Ias- per, but yet or ere you part (oh cruell') kisse me, kisse me sweeting, mine owne deere iewell: So, now begone; no words.

Exit Iasper.

Mis. mer. So Michael, now get thee gone too.

Mic'h. Yes forsooth mother, but Il'e haue my fathers blessing first.

Mis. mer. No Michael, 'tis now matter for his blessing, thou hast my blessing, begone; Il'e fetch my money & jewels, and follow thee: Il'e stay no longer with him I warrant thee, truly Charles Il'e begone too.

Old merri. What you will not.

Mis. merri. Yes indeed will I.

Old merri. Hey ho, fare-well Nan, Il'e neuer trust wench more againe, if I can.

Mis. merri. You shall not thinke (when all your owne is gone) to spend that I haue beene scraping vp for Mi- chael.

Old merri. Farewell good wife, I expect it not; all I haue to doe in this world, is to bee merry: which I shall, if the ground be not taken from me: and if it be,
When earth and seas from me are rest,
The skyes aloft for me are left.

Boy danceth. Musicke.

Finis Actus primi.

Wife. Il'e be sworne hee's a merry old Gentleman for all that. Harke, harke husband, harke, fiddles, fiddles; now surely they go finely. They say, 'tis present death for these fidders to tune their Rebeckes before the great Turkes grace, is't not George? But looke, looke, here's a youth dances: now good youth do a turne a'th toe, sweet heart, I'faith Ile haue
Rafe come and do some of his Gambols; hee'l ride the wild mare Gentlemen, 't would do your hearts good to see him. I thanke you kiade youth, pray bid Rafe come.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Cit. Peace Cunnie. Sirrah, you scurvie boy, bid the plaiers send Rafe, or by Gods ——— and they do not, Il'e teare some of their periwigs beside their heads: this is all Riffe Raffe.

Actus secundi Scœna prima.

Enter Merchant and Humphrey.

March. And how faith? how goes it now son Humphrey?

Humph. Right worshipfull, and my beloued friend
And father deere, this matters at an end.

March. 'Tis well, it should be so, Im'e glad the girle
Is found so tractable. Humph. Nay she must whirle
From hence, and you must winke: for so I say,
The storietels, to morrow before day.

Wife. George, do'st thou thinke in thy conscience now 'twil be a match? tell me but what thou thinkst sweet rogue, thou seest the poore Gentleman (deere heart) how it labours and throbs I warrant you, to be at rest: Il'e goe moue the father fort.

Cit. No, no, I pre'thee sit still hony-suckle, thou'l't spoile all, if he deny him, Il'e bring halfe a dozē good fellows my selfe,
& in the shutting of an euening knock't vp, & ther's an end.

Wife. Il'e busse thee for that i'faith boy; well George, well, you haue beene a wag in your daies I warrant you; but God
forgiue you, and I do with all my heart.

March. How was it sonne? you told me that to morrow
Before day breake, you must conuey her hence.

Humph. I must, I must, and thus it is agreed,
Your daughter rides vpon a browne-bay steed,
I on a forrell, which I bought of Brian,
The honest Host of the red roaring Lion
In Waltham situate; then if you may Consent in seemely sort, lest by delay,
The fatall sisters come and do the office,
And then you'l sing another song. March. Alasse
Why should you be thus full of grieffe to me?
That do as willing as your selfe agree

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

To any thing so it be good and faire,
Then steale her when you will, if such a pleasure
Content you both, I'le sleepe and neuer see it,
To make your ioyes more full, but tell me why
You may not here performe your marriage?

Wife. Gods blessing a thy soule old man, i'faith thou art loath to part true hearts, I see, a has her Georg, & I'me as glad on't, well, go thy waies Humphrey, for a faire spoken man, I beleue thou hast not thy fellow within the wals of London, & I should say the Suburbes too, I should not lie, why dost not reioyce with me George? (mine Host i'faith.

Cit. If I could but see Raph againe, I were as merry as

Hum. The cause you seeme to aske, I thus declare,
Helpe me ô Muses nine, your daughter sweare
A foolish oath, the more it was the pittie,
Yet none but my selfe within this Citty,
Shall dare to say so, but a bold defiance
Shall meete him, were he of the noble Science.
And yet she sweare, and yet why did she sweare?
Truely I cannot tell, vnlesse it were
For her owne ease, for sure sometimes an oath,
Being sworne thereafter is like cordiall broth.
And this it was shee swore, neuer to marry,
But such a one, whose mighty arme could carry
(As meaning me, for I am such a one)
Her bodily away through sticke and stone,
Till both of vs arriue, at her request,
Some ten miles off, in the wilde Waltham Forrest.

March. If this be all, you shall not need to feare
Any deniall in your loue, proceed,
I'le neither follow, nor repent the deed.

Hum. Good-night, twenty good-nights, & twenty more.
And 20 more good-nights, that makes three-score. Exeunt.

Enter mistresse Mery-thought, and her son Michael.

Mist.mer. Come Michael, art thou not weary boy?

Mich. No for-sooth mother not I.

Mist.mer. Where be we now child?

Mich.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Mich. Indeed for-sooth mother I cannot tell, vnlesse we be at Mile-end, is not all the world Mile-end, Mother?

Mist.mer. No Michael, not al the world boy, but I can assure thee Michael, Mile-end is a goodly matter, there has bene a pitch-field my child betweene the naughty Spaniels and the English-men, and the Spaniels ran away Michael, and the Eng-lish-men followed, my neighbour Coxstone was there boy, and kil'd them all with a birding peece. Mich. Mother forsooth.

Mist.mer. What saies my white boy?

Mich. Shall not my father go with vs too?

Mist.mer. No Michael, let thy father go snicke-vp, he shall neuer come between a paire of sheets with me againe, while he liues, let him stay at home & sing for his supper boy, come child sit downe, and I'le shew my boy fine knacks indeed, look here Michael, here's a Ring, and here's a Bruch, & here's a Bracelet, and here's two Rings more, and here's mony and gold br' th cie my boy. Mich. Shall I haue all this mother?

Mist.mer. I Michael thou shalt haue all Michael.

Cit. How lik'ft thou this wench?

Wife. I cannot tell, I would haue Raph, George; I'le see no more else indeed-law, & I pray you let the youths vnderstand so much by word of mouth, for I tell you truely, I'me afraid a my boy, come, come George, let's be merry and wise, the child's a father-lesse child, and say they should put him into a streight paire of Gaskins, 'twere worse then knot-grasse, he would neuer grow after it.

Enter Raph, Squire,

Wife. How do you Raph? you are welcome Raph, as I may say, it's a good boy, hold vp thy head, and be not afraid, we are thy friends Raph, the Gentlemen will praise thee Raph, if thou plaist thy part with audacity, begin Raph a Gods name.

Raph. My trusty Squire vnlace my Helme, giue mee my hat, where are we, or what Defart may this be?

Dwarfe. Mirrour of Knight-hood, this is, as I take it, the perrilous Waltham downe, In whose bottome stands the enchanted Valley.

Mist.mer. O Michael, we are betrai'd, we are betraid here

be Gyants, flie boy, flie boy, flie. Exit mother & Michael.

Rafe. Lace on my helme againe : what noife is this?

A gentle Ladie flying? the imbrace

Of some vncurtuous knight, I will releiue her.

Go squire, and say, the Knight that weares this pestle,

In honour of all Ladies, sweares reuenge

Vpon that recreant coward that pursues her.

Go comfort her, and that same gentle squire

That beares her companie. Squire. I go braue Knight.

Rafe. My trustie Dwarf and friend, reach me my shield,

And hold it while I sweare : First by my knight-hood,

Then by the soule of Amadis de Gaule,

My famous Ancestor, then by my sword,

The beauteous Brionella girt about me,

By this bright burning pestle of mine honour,

The liuing Trophie, and by all respect

Due to distressed Damfels, here I vow

Neuer to end the quest of this faire Lady,

And that forsaken squire, till by my valour

I gaine their liberty. Dwarf. Heauen bleffe the Knight

That thus relieues poore errant Gentlewomen. Exit.

Wife. I marrie Rafe, this has some sauour in't, I would see the proudest of them all offer to carrie his bookes after him, But George, I will not haue him go away so soone, I shall bee sicke if he go away, that I shall; Call Rafe againe George, call Rafe againe, I pre'thee sweet heart let him come fight before me, and let's ha some drums, and some trumpets, and let him kill all that comes neere him, and thou lou'st me George.

Cit. Peace a little bird, hee shall kill them all and they were twentie more on 'em then there are. Enter Iasper.

Iasp. Now Fortune, if thou bee'st not onely ill,

Shew me thy better face, and bring about

Thy desperate wheele, that I may clime at length

And stand, this is our place of meeting,

If loue haue any constancie. Oh age!

Where onely wealthy men are counted happie:

How shall I please thee? how deserue thy smiles?

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

When I am onely rich in misery?
My fathers blessing, and this little coine
Is my inheritance, a strong reuengew,
From earth thou art, and to the earth I giue thee,
There grow and multiply, whilst fresher aire, Breeds me a fresher fortune, how, illusion! spies the
What hath the Diuell coin'd himselfe before me? asket.
'Tis mettle good, it rings well, I am waking,
And taking too I hope, now Gods deere blessing
Vpon his heart that left it here, 'tis mine,
These pearles, I take it, were not left for swine. Exit.

Wife. I do not like that this vnthrifty youth should embecill away the money, the poore Gentlewoman his mother will haue a heauy heart for it God knowes.

Cittiz. And reason good, sweet heart.

Wife. But let him go, I'le tell Raph a tale in's care shall fetch him againe with a Wanion I warrant him, if hee bee aboute ground, and besides George, heere are a number of sufficient Gentlemen can witnesse, and my selfe, and your selfe, and the Musitians, if we be cal'd in question, but here comes Raph, George, thou shalt here him speake, an he were an Emperall.

Enter Rafe and Dwarfse.

Raph. Comes not sir Squire againe?

Dwar. Right courteous Knight,
Your Squire doth come and with him comes the Lady,

Enter mistresse Merr: and Michael, and Squire.

For and the Squire of Damsels as I take it.

Rafe. Madam if any seruice or deuoire
Of a poore errant Knight may right your wrongs,
Command it, I am prest to giue you succour,
For to that holy end I beare my Armour,

Mist.mer. Alas sir, I am a poore Gentlewoman, and I haue lost my monie in this Forrest.

Rafe. Defart, you would say Lady, and not lost
Whilst I haue sword and launce, dry vp your teares
Which ill befits the beauty of that face:

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

And tell the storie, if I may request it,
Of your disafterous fortune.

Mist. mer. Out alas, I left a thousand pound, a thousand pound, e'ne all the monie I had laid vp for this youth, vpon the fight of your Maistership, you lookt so grim, and as I may say it, sauing your presence, more like a Giant then a mortall man.

Rafe. I am as you are Ladie, so are they
All mortall, but why weepes this gentle Squire.

Mist. mer. Has hee not cause to weepe doe you thinke, when he hath lost his inheritance?

Rafe. Yong hope of valour, weepe not, I am here
That will confound thy foe and paie it deere Vpon his coward head, that dares denie,
Distressed Squires and Ladies equitie.
I haue but one horse, on which shall ride
This Ladie faire behind me, and before
This courteous Squire, fortune will giue vs more
Vpon our next aduenture; fairelie speed
Beside vs Squire and Dwarfe to do vs need. Exeunt.

Cit. Did not I tell you Nel what your man would doe?
by the faith of my bodie wench, for cleane action and good deliuerie they may all cast their caps at him.

Wife. And so they may i'faith, for I dare speake it boldly, the twelue Companies of London cannot match him, timber for timber, well George, and hee be not inueigled by some of these paltrie Plaiers, I ha much maruell, but George wee ha done our parts if the boy haue any grace to be thankfull.

Citiz. Yes I warrant thee duckling.

Enter Humphrey and Luce.

For your lame horse; you're welcome vnto Waltham.

For this place good enough. Hum. Then vp and ride,
Or if it please you walke for your repose,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Or fit, or if you will go plucke a rose:
Either of which shall be indifferent,
To your good friend and Humphrey, whose consent
Is so entangled euer to your will,
As the poore harmeleffe horse is to the Mill.

Luce. Faith and you say the word we'le e'ne sit downe
And take a nap. Hum. 'Tis better in the Towne,
Where we may nap together, for beleeuue me
To sleepe without a snatch would mickle grieue me.

Luce. You're merrie Maister Humphrey. Hum. So I am,
And haue bene euer merrie from my Dam.

Luce. Your nurce had the lesse labour.

Hum. Faith it may bee,

I'le tell thy maister for I know thee well.

Iasp. Nay, and you be so forward for to tell,
Take that, and that, and tell him sir I gaue it,
And saie I paid you well. Hum. O sir I haue it,
And do confesse the paiement, praie be quiet.

Iasp. Go, get to your night-cap and the diet,
To cure your beaten bones. Luce. Alas poore Humphrie
Get thee some wholsome broth with sage and comfrie:
A little oile of Roses and a feather,
To noint thy backe withall. Hum. When I came hether,
Would I had gone to Paris with Iohn Dorrie.

Luce. Fare-well my prettie Nump, I am verie sorrie
I cannot beare thee companie. Hum. Fare-well,

Cit. You're too bitter, conny, the yong man may do wel enough for all this.

Wife. Come hither Maister Humfrey, has hee hurt you? now beshrew his fingers for't, here sweet heart, here's some greene ginger for thee, now beshrew my heart but a has pepper-nel in's head, as big as a pullets egge, alas sweete lamb, how thy Tempels beate; take the peace on him sweete heart, take the peace on him.

And so desye him. Squire. From the Knight that beares
The golden Pestle, I desie thee Knight,
Vnlesse thou make faire restitution,
Of that bright Lady.

Iasp. Tell the Knight that sent thee
Hee is an Ass, and I will keepe the wench
And knocke his Head-peece.

If thou thou recall not thy vncurteous tearmes.

Ifswear by this my Order nere to leaue you.

Wife. Well said Raph. George, Raph was euer comfortable, was he not? Cit. Yes Ducke.

Wife. I shall nere forget him, when wee had lost our child, you know, it was straid almost, alone, to Puddle-wharfe and the Criers were abroad for it, and there it had drown'd it selfe but for a Sculler, Raph was the most comfortablest to me: peace Mistresse, saies he, let it go, I'll get you another as good, did he not George? did he not say so?

Cit. Yes indeed did he moule.

Dwarfse.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Dwarfe. I would we had a messe of Pottage, and a pot of drinke, Squire, and were going to bed.

Squire. Why we are at Waltham Townes end, and that's the Bell Inne.

Dwarfe. Take courage valiant Knight, Damsel, & Squire I haue discouered, not a stones cast off,
An ancient Castle held by the old Knight
Of the most holy order of the Bell,
Who giues to all Knights errant entertaine:
There plenty is of food, and all prepar'd,
By the white hands of his owne Lady deere.
He hath three Squires that welcome all his Guests.
The first high Chamberlino, who will see
Our beds prepar'd, and bring vs snowy sheetes,
Where neuer foote-man stretch'd his butter'd Hams.
The second hight Tastero, who will see
Our pots full filled and no froth therein.
The third a gentle Squire Ostler hight,
Who will our Palfries slicke with wisps of straw,
And in the Maunger put them Oates enough,
And neuer grease their teeth with candle snuffe.

Wife. That same Dwarfe's a pretty boy, but the Squire's a grout-nole.

Raph. Knocke at the Gates my Squire with stately launce.

Enter Tapster.

Tap. Who's there, you're welcome Gentlemen, will you see a roome? (Pestle,

Dwarfe. Right curteous and valiant Knight of the burning
This is the Squire Tapstero.

Raph. Faire Squire Tapstero, I a wandring Knight, Hight of the burning Pestle, in the quest
Of this faire Ladies Casket, and wrought purse,
Loosing my selfe in this vast Wildernesse
Am to this Castle well by fortune brought,
Where hearing of the goodly entertaine
Your Knight of holy Order of the Bell
Giues to all Damsels, and all errant Knights,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

I thought to knocke, and now am bold to enter.

Tapster. An't please you see a chamber, you are very welcome.

Exeunt.

Wife. George I would haue something done, and I cannot tell what it is.

Cit. What is it Nel?

Wife. Why George, shall Raph beate no body againe? prethee sweete-heart let him.

Cit. So he shall Nel, and if I ioyne with him, wee'le knocke them all.

Enter Humphery and Merchant.

Wife. O George here's maister Humphery againe now, that lost Mistresse Luce, and Mistresse Lucies father, Maister Humphery will do some-bodies errant I warrant him.

Humf. Father, it's true, in armes I nere shall claspe her, For shee is stolne away by your man Iasper.

Wife. I thought he would tell him.

March. Vnhappy that I am to loose my child,
Now I beginne to thinke on Iaspers words,
Who oft hath vrg'd to me thy foolishnesse,
Why didst thou let her go? thou loust her not,
That wouldst bring home thy life, and not bring her.

Hum. Father forgiue me, shall I tell you true,
Looke on my shoulders they are blacke and blew.
Whilst too and fro faire Luce and I were winding,
Hee came and basted me with a hedge binding.

March. Get men and horses straight, we will be there
Within this houre, you know the place againe.

Hum. I know the place, where he my loines did swaddle, I'le get six horses, and to each a saddle.

Mar. Meane time I'le go talke with Iaspers father. Exeunt.

Wife. George, what wilt thou laye with mee now, that Maister Humphery has not Mistresse Luce yet, speake George, what wilt thou laie with me?

Cit. No Nel, I warrant thee Iasper is at Puckeridge with her, by this.

Wife. Nay George, you must consider Mistresse Lucies
feete

feete are tender, and, besides, 'tis darke, and I promise you tuely, I doe not see how hee should get out of William forrest with her yet.

Cit. Nay Cunny, what wilt thou laie with me that Raph has her not yet.

Wife. I will not lay against Raph hunny, because I haue not spoken with him, but looke George, peace, heere comes the merry old Gentleman againe.

Enter old Merrie-thought.

Oldmer. When it was growne to darke midnight,
And all were fast asleepe,
In came Margarets grimely Ghost,
And stood at Williams feete.

I haue mony, and meate and drinke before hand, till to morrow at noone, why should I be sad? mee thinkes I haue halfe a dozen Iouiall spirits within mee, I am three merry men, and three merry men, To what end should any man be sad in this world? giue me a man that when hee goes to hanging cries, trouble the blacke bowle to mee: and a woeman that will sing a cath in her Trauell. I haue seene a man come by my dore, with a serious face, in a blacke cloake, without a hat-band, carrying his head as if hee lookt for pinnes in the streete, I haue lookt out of my window halfe a yeare after, and haue spide that mans head vpon London-bridge: 'tis vile, neuer trust a Tailor that does not sing at his worke, his mind is of nothing but filching.

Wife. Marke this George, tis worth noting: Godfry my Tailor, you know, neuer sings, and hee had foureteene yards to make this Gowne, and I'le be sworne Mistresse Pen-nystone the Drapers wife had one made with twelue.

Oldmer: 'Tis mirth that sils the veines with bloud,
More then wine, or sleepe, or food.
Let each man keepe his heart at ease,
No man dies of that disease.
He that would his body keepe
From diseases, must not weepe,
But who euer lauges and sings,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Neuer he his body brings
Into feuers, gouts, or rhumes,
Or lingringly his longs consumes:
Or meets with aches in the bone,
Or Catharhes, or griping stone:
But contented liues for aye,
The more he laughes, the more he may.

Wife. Looke George, how saist thou by this George? is't not a fine old man? Now Gods blessing a'thy sweet lips. When wilt thou be so merry George? Faith thou art the frowningst little thing when thou art angry, in a Countrey.

Enter Merchant.

Cit. Peace Coney, thou shalt see him taken downe too I warrant thee; here's Luces father come now.

Old mer. As you came from Walsingham, frō that holy land, there met you not with my tru-loue by the way as you came

March. Oh Maister Merri-thought! my daughters gone. This mirth becomes you not, my daughters gone.

Old merri. Why an if she be, what care I?
Or let her come or go, or tarry.

March. Mocke not my misery, it is your sonne,
Whom I haue made my owne, when all forsooke him,
Has stolne my onely ioy, my childe away. (gray)

Old mer. He set her on a milk-white steed, & himselfe vpō a
He neuer turn'd his face againe, but he bore her quite away.

March. Vnworthy of the kindnesse I haue shewn
To thee, and thine: too late I well perceiue
Thou art consenting to my daughters losse.

Old mer. Your daughter, what a stir's here wee ver daughter?
Let her goe, thinke no more on her, but sing lowd. If both my sons were on the gallows, I would sing downe, downe, downe: they fall downe, and arise they neuer shall.

March. Oh might I behold her once againe,
And she once more embrace her aged fire.

Old merri. Fie, how scuruily this goes: and she once more imbrace her aged fire? you'l make a dogge on her, will yee?
she cares much for her aged fire I warrant you.

She

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

She cares cares not for her daddy, nor shee cares not for her mammie,

For she is, she is, she is, she is my Lord of Low-gaues Lassie.

March. For this thy scorne, I will pursue
That sonne of thine to death.

Old merri. Do, and when you ha kild him,
Giue him flowers i' now Palmer: giue him flowers i' now,
Giue him red, and white, and blew, Greene, and yellow.

March. Il'e fetch my daughter.

Old merri. Il'e heare no more a your daughter, it spoyles my mirth.

March. I say Il'e fetch my daughter.

Old merri. Was neuer man for Ladies sake, downe, downe,
Tormented as I poore sir Guy? de derry downe,
For Lucies sake, that Lady bright, downe, downe,
As euer men beheld with eye? de derry downe.

March. Il'e be reueng'd by heauen.

Exeunt.

Musicke. This Actus secundi.

Wife. How do'st thou like this George?

Cit. Why this is well coney: but if Raph were hot once, thou shouldst see more.

Wife. The Fidlers go againe husband:

Cit. I Nell, but this is scuruy musicke: I gaue the whore-son gallowes money, and I thinke hee has not got mee the waits of South-warke, if I heare him not anan, Il'e twinge him by the eares. You Musicians, play Baloo.

Wife. No good George, lets ha Lachryme.

Cit. Why this is it cony.

Wife. It's all the better George: now sweet lambe, what story is that painted vpon the cloth? the confutation of Saint Paul?

Cit. No lambe, that's Raph and Lucrece.

Wife. Raph and Lucrece? which Raph? our Raph?

Cit. No mouse, that was a Tartarian.

Wife. A Tartarian? well, I'wood the fidders had done, that wee might see our Raph againe.

Actus

Actus tertius, Scœna prima.

Enter Iasper and Luce.

Iasp. Come my deere deere, though we haue lost our way,
We haue not lost our selues: are you not weary
With this nights wandring, broken from your rest?
And frighted with the terrour that attends
The darknesse of these wilde vn-peopled place?

Luce. No my best friend, I cannot either feare,
Or entertaine a weary thought, whilst you
(The end of all my full desires) stand by me.
Let them that loose their hopes, and liue to languish
Amongst the number of forsaken louers,
Tell the long weary steps, and number time,
Start at a shadow, and shrinke vp their bloud,
Whilst I (possess with all content and quiet)
Thus take my prettie loue, and thus imbrace him.

Iasp. You haue caught me Luce, so fast, that whilst I liue
I shall become your faithfull prisoner,
And were these chaines for euer. Come sit downe,
And rest your body, too too delicate
For these disturbances; so, will you sleepe?
Come, do not be more able then you are,
I know you are not skilfull in these watches:
For women are no souldiers; be not nice,
But take it, sleepe I say.

Luce. I cannot sleepe,
Indeed I cannot friend.

Iasp. Why then wee'l sing,
And try how that will worke vpon our senses.

Luce. Il'e sing, or say, or any thing but sleepe.

Iasp. Come little Mer-maid, rob me of my heart
With that inchanting voyce.

Luce. You mocke me Iasper.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Song.

Iasp. Tell me (decreest) what is loue?

Luce. 'Tis a lightning from above,

'Tis an arrow, 'tis a fire,

'Tis a boy they call desire.

'Tis a smile

Doth beguile

Ias. The poore hearts of men that proue.

Tell me more, are women true?

Luce. Some loue change, and so do you.

Ias. Are they faire, and neuer kind?

Luce. Yes, when men turne with the winde.

Ias. Are they froward?

Luce. Euer toward,

Those that loue, to loue a new.

Ias. Dissemble it no more, I see the God
Of heauy sleepe, lay on his heauy mace
Vpon your eye-lids. Luce. I am very heauy.

Iasp. Sleep, sleep, & quiet rest crowne thy sweet thoughts
Keepe from her faire bloud, distempers, startings,
Horrors, and fearefull shapes: let all her dreames
Be ioyes, and chaste delights, imbraces, wishes,
And such new pleasures, as the rauisht soule
Giues to the senses. So, my charmes haue tooke.
Keepe her you powers diuine, whilst I contemplate
Vpon the wealth and beauty of her minde.
She is onely faire, and constant: onely kinde,
And onely to thee Iasper. Oh my ioyes!
Whither will you transport me? let not fulnesse
Of my poore buried hopes, come vp together,
And ouer-charge my spirits: I am weake
Some say (how euer ill) the sea and women
Are gouern'd by the Moone, both ebbe and flow,
Both full of changes: yet to them that know,
And truly iudge, these but opinions are,
And heresies to bring on pleasing warre

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Betweene our tempers, that without these were Both void of ater-loue, and present feare.
Which are the best of Cupid. Oh thou child!
Bred from dispaire, I dare not entertaine thee,
Hauing a loue without the faults of women,
And greater in her perfect goods then men:
Which to make good, and please my selfe the stronger,
Though certainly I am certaine of her loue,
It'e try her, that the world and memory
May sing to after times, her constancie.

Luce, Luce, awake. Luce. Why do you fright me, friend,
With those distempered lookes? what makes your sword
Drawne in your hand? who hath offended you?

I pre<sup>e</sup>chee Iasper sleepe, thou art wilde with watching.
Iasp. Come make your way to heauen, and bid the world
(With all the villanies that sticke vpon it)

Fare-well; you'r for another life. Luce. Oh Iasper!
How haue my tender yeares committed euill,
(Especially against the man I loue)

Thus to be cropt vntimely? Iasp. Foolish girle, Canst thou imagine I could loue his daughter,
That flung me from my fortune into nothing?

Discharged me his seruice, shut the doores
Vpon my pouerty, and scorn'd my prayers,
Sending me, like a boat without a mast,

To sinke or swim? Come, by this hand you dye,
I must haue life and bloud to satisfie
Your fathers wrongs.

Wife. Away George, away, raise the watch at Ludgate, and bring a Mittimus from the Iustice for this desperate villaine.
Now I charge you Gentlemen, see the Kings peace kept. O my heart what a varlet's this to offer ma. laughter vpon the harmelasse Gntlewoman?

Cit. I warrant thee (sweet heart) wee'l haue him hampered.

Luce. Oh Iasper! be not cruell,
If thou wilt kill me, smile and do it quickly.

And

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

And let not many deaths appeare before me.

I am a woman made of feare and loue,

A weake,weake woman, kill not with thy eyes,

They shoot me through and through. Strike I am ready,

And dying stil I loue thee. Enter Merchant, Humphrey, and

March. Where abouts. his men.

Iasp. No more of this, now to my selfe againe.

Hum. There, there he stands with sword like martial knight

Drawne in his hand, therefore beware the fight

You that be wise: for were I good fir Bewis,

I would not stay his comming, by your leaues.

March. Sirrah, restore my daughter. Iasp. Sirrah, no.

March. Vpon him then.

Wife. So, downe with him, downe with him, downe with him: cut him ith leg boies, cut him ith leg.

March. Come your waies Minion, Il'e prouide a Cage
For you, your growne so tame. Horse her away.

Humph. Truly Ime glad your forces haue the day. exeunt.

Iasp. They are gone, and I am hurt, my loue is lost, manet

Neuer to get againe. Oh me vnhappy!

Iasper.

Bleed, bleed, and dye, I cannot: Oh my folly!

Thou hast betraid me. Hope where art thou fled?

Tell me if thou bee'st any where remaining.

Shall I but see my loue againe? Oh no!

She will not daine to looke vpon her butcher,

Nor is it fit she should; yet I must venter.

Oh chance, or fortune, or what ere thou art

That men adore for powerfull, heare my cry,

And let me louing, liue; or loosing, die.

Exit.

Wife. Is a gone George?

Cit. I come.

Wife. Marie and let him goe (sweet heart,) by the faith a my body a has put me into such a fright, that I tremble (as they say) as 'twere an Aspine leafe: looke a my little finger
George, how it shakes: now i truth euery member of my body is the worse for't.

Cit. Come, hugge in mine armes sweet mouse, hee shall not fright thee any more: alas mine owne deere heart, how it quiuers.

Enter Mistresse Merrithought, Rafe, Michall, Squire Dwarfe, Host, and a Tapster.

Wife. O Rafe, how dost thou Rafe? how hast thou slept to night? has the knight vs'd thee well?

Cit. Peace Nell, let Rafe alone.

Tapst. Maister, the reckoning is not paid.

Rafe. Right curteous knight, who for the orders sake Which thou hast tane, hang't out the holy bell, As I this flaming pestle beare about, We render thanks to your puissant selfe, Your beauteous Lady, and your gentle Squires, For thus refreshing of our wearied limbes, Stiffned with hard atchieuements in wilde desert.

Tapst. Sir, there is twelue shillings to pay.

Rafe. Thou merry Squire Tapstero, thanks to thee, For comforting our soules with double Iug, And if aduentrous fortune pricke thee forth, Thou Iouiall Squire, to follow feats of armes, Take heed thou tender euery Ladies cause, Euery truery true Knight, and euery damsell faire faire; But spill the bloud of trecherous Sarazens, And false inchanters, that with magicke spels, Haue done to death full many a noble Knight.

Host. Thou valiant Knight of the burning Pestle, giue care to me, there is twelue shillings to pay, and as I am a true Knight, I will not bate a peny.

Wife. George, I pray thee tell me, must Rafe pay twelue shillings now?

Cit. No Nell, no, nothing but the old Knight is merrie with Rafe.

Wife. O is't nothing else? Rafe will be as merry as he.

Rafe. Sir Knight, this mirth of yours becomes you well, But to requite this liberall curtesie, If any of your Squires will follow armes, Hee shall receiue from my heroicke hand

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

A Knight-hood, by the vertue of this Pestle.

Host. Faire Knight I thanke you for your noble offer, Therefore gentle Knight,
Twelue shillings you must pay, or I must cap you.

Wife. Looke George, did not I tell thee as much, the Knight of the Bel is in earnest, Raph shall not bee beholding to him, giue him his money George, and let him go snickvp.

Ci. Cap Raph? no; hold your hand sir Knight of the Bel, theres your mony, haue you any thing to say to Raph now? Cap Raph?

Wife. I would you should know it, Raph has friends that will not suffer him to be capt for ten times so much, and ten times to the end of that, now take thy course Raph.

M. mer. Come Michael, thou & I wil go home to thy father, he hath enough left to keep vs a day or two, and we'leset fellows abroad to cry our Purse & our Casket, Shal we Michael?

Mich. I, I pray Mother, intruth my feete are full of chilblaines with traueilling.

Wife. Faith and those chilblanes are a foule trouble, Mistresse Merie-thought when your youth comes home, let him rub all the soles of his feete, and the heeles, and his ancies, with a mouse skinne, or if none of your people can catch a mouse, when hee goes to bed, let him rowle his feete in the warme embers, and I warrant you hee shall be well, and you may make him put his fingers betweene his toes & smell to them, it's very soueraigne for his head if he be costie.

Mist. mer. Maister Knight of the burning Pestle, my son
Michael and I, bid you farewell, I thanke your Worship hearttily for your kindnesse.

Raph. Fare-well faire Lady and your tender Squire,
If, pricking through these Defarts, I do heare
Of any traiterous Knight who through his guile,
Hath light vpon your Casket and your Purse,
I will despoile him of them and restore them.

Mist. mer. I thanke your Worship. Exit with Michael.

Raph. Dwarfe beare my shield, Squire eleuate my lance,
And now fare-well you Knight of holy Bell.

Ci. I, I Raph, all is paid.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Raph. But yet before I go, speake worthy Knight,
If ought you do of sad adventures know,
Where errant Knights may through his prowesse winne,
Eternall fame and free some gentle soules,
From endlesse bonds of steele and lingring paine.

Host. Sirrah go to Nicke the Barbor, and bid him prepare himselſe, as I told you before, quickly.

Tap. I am gone sir. Exit Tapster.

Host. Sir Knight, this wildernesſe affoordeth none
But the great venter, where full many a Knight
Hath tride his prowesse and come off with shame,
And where I would not haue you loose your life,
Against no man, but furious fiend of hell.

Raph. Speake on sir Knight, tell what he is, and where,
For heere I vow vpon my blazing badge,
Neuer to blaze a day in quietnesſe;
But bread and water will I onely eate,
And the greene hearbe and rocke shall be my couch,
Till I haue queld that man, or beast, or fiend,
That workes such damage to all Errant Knights.

Host. Not far from hence, neere to a craggy cliffe,
At the North end of this distressed Towne,
There doth stand a lowly house
Ruggedly builded, and in it a Caue,
In which an ougly Gyant now doth won,
Ycleped Barbaroso: in his hand
He shakes a naked lance of pureſt steele,
With fleeces turn'd vp, and him before he weares,
A motley garment, to preserue his cloaths
From bloud of those Knights which he massacres,
And Ladies Gent: without his dore doth hang
A copper bason, on a prickant speare:
At which, no sooner gentle Knights can knocke,
But the shrill sound, fierce Barbaroso heares,
And rushing forth, bings in the errant Knight,
And sets him downe in an enchanted chaire.
Then with an Engine which he hath prepar'd,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

With forty teeth, he clawes his courtly crowne,
Next makes him winke, and vnderneath his chinne,
Hee plants a brazen peece of mighty bord,
And knocks his bullets round about his cheeks,
Whilst with his fingers, and an instrument
With which he snaps his haire off, he doth fill
The wretches eares with a most hideous noise.
Thus euery Knight Aduenturer he doth trim,
And now no creature dares encounter him.

Raph. In Gods name, I will fight him, kinde sir,
Go but before me to this dismal Caue,
Where this huge Gyant Barbaroso dwels,
And by that vertue that braue Roscicleere,
That damned brood of ougly Gyants slew,
And Palmerin Frannarco ouerthrew:
I doubt not but to curbe this Traitor foule,
And to the Diuell send his guilty soule.

Hof. Braue sprighted Knight, thus far I will performe
This your request, I'le bring you with in sight
Of this most lothsome place, inhabited
By a more loathsome man; but dare not stay,
For his maine force soopes all he sees away.

Wife. George, dost thinke Raph will confound the Gyant?

Cit. I hold my cap to a farthing hee does: why Nel I saw him wraastle with the great Dutch-man and hurle him.

Wife. Faith and that Dutch-man was a goodly man, if all things were answerable to his bignesse, and yet they say there was a Scotch-man higher then hee, and that they two and a Knight met, and saw one another for nothing, but of all the fights that euer were in London, since I was married, mee thinkes the little child that was so faire growne about the members was the prettiest, that, and the Hermaphrodite.

Cit. Nay by your leaue Nel, Niniuy was better.

Wife. Niniaie, O that was the story of Ione and the Wall, was it not George?

Cit. Yes lam.

Enter mistresse Merry-thought.

Wife.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Wife. Looke George, heere comes Mistresse Merry-thought againe, and I would haue Raph come and fight with the Giant, I tell you true, I long to see't.

Cit. Good Mistresse Merry-thought be gone, I pray you for my sake, I pray you forbear a little, you shall haue audience presently, I haue a little businesse.

Wife. Mistresse Merry-thought if it please you to refraine your passiō a little, til Raph haue dispatch the Giant out of the way we shalthink our selues much bound to you, I thank you good Mistresse Merry-thought. Exit mist. Merry-thou:

Enter a boy.

Cit. Boy, come hither, send away Raph and this whore-sonne Giant quickly.

Boy. In good faith sir we cannot, you'le vtterly spoile our Play, and make it to be hist, and it cost money, you will not suffer vs to go on with our plot, I pray Gentlemen rule him.

Cit. Let him come now and dispatch this, and I'le trouble you no more.

Boy. Will you giue me your hand of that?

Wife. Giue him thy hand George, do, and I'le kisse him, I warrant thee the youth meanes plainly.

Boy. I'le send him to you presently. Exit Boy.

Wife. I thanke you little youth, feth the child hath a sweete breath George, but I thinke it bee troubled with the wormes, Carduus Benedictus and Mares milke were the onely thing in the world for't, O Raph's here George, God send thee good lucke Raph.

Enter Raph, Host, Squire, and Dwarf.

Host. Puissant Knight yonder his Mansion is,
Lo where the speare and Copper Bason are,
Behold that string on which hangs many a tooth,
Drawne from the gentle iaw of wandring Knights,
I dare not stay to sound, hee will appeare. Exit Host.

Raph. O faint not heart, Susan my Lady deere,
The Coblers Maid in Milke-streete, for whose sake,
I take these Armes, O let the thought of thee,
Carry thy Knight through all aduenterous deeds,

And

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

And in the honor of thy beauteous selfe,
May I destroy this monster Barbaroso,
Knocke Squire vpon the Bason till it breake. Enter

With the shrill stroakes, or till the Giant speake. Barbor.

Wife. O George, the Giant, the Giant, now Raph for thy life.

Barber. What fond vnknowing wight is this? that dares
So rudely knocke at Barbarossa's Cell,
Where no man comes but leaues his fleece behind?

Raph. I, traiterous Caitiffe, who am sent by fate
To punish all the sad enormities
Thou hast committed against Ladies Gent
And errant Knights, traitor to God and men:
Prepare thy selfe, this is the dismall houre
Appointed for thee, to giue strickt account
Of all thy beastly treacherous villanies.

Barber. Foole-hardy Knight, full soone thou shalt aby
This fond reproach, thy body will I bang, Hee takes downe
And loe vpon that string thy teeth shall hang: his pole.
Prepare thy selfe, for dead soone shalt thou bee,

Raph. Saint George for me. They fight.

Barber. Gargantua for me.

Wife. To him, Raph to him, hold vp the Giant, set out thy leg before Raph.

Cit. Falsifie a blow Raph, falsifie a blow, the Giant lies open on the left side.

Wife. Beare't off, beare't of still; there boy, O Raph's almost downe, Raph's almost downe.

Raph. Susan inspire me, now haue vp againe.

Wife. Vp, vp, vp, vp, vp, so Raph, downe with him, downe with him: Raph.

Cit. Fetch him ore the hip boy.

Wife. There boy, kill, kill, kill, kill, kill, Raph.

Cit. No Raph get all out of him first.

Raph. Presumptuous man, see to what desperate end
Thy treachery hath brought thee, the iust Gods,
Who neuer prosper those that do despise them,
For all the villanies which thou hast done

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

To Knights and Ladies, now haue paid thee home
By my stiffe arme, a Knight aduenturous,
But say vnto the wretch, before I send thy soule
To sad Auernus whether it must go,
What captives holdst thou in thy sable caue.

Barber. Go in and free them all, thou hast the day.

Raph. Go Squire & Dwarfse, search in this dreadfull Caue
And free the wretched prisoners from their bonds.

Exit Squire and Dwarfse.

Barber. I craue for mercy, as thou art a Knight,
And scornst to spill the bloud of those that beg.

Raph. Thou shoudst no mercy, nor shalt thou haue any,
Prepare thy selfe for thou shalt surely die.

Enter Squire leading one winking, with a Bason vnder his chin.

Squire. Behold braue Knight heere is one prisoner,
Whom this wilde man hath vsed as you see.

Wife. This is the first wise word I heard the Squire speake.

Raph. Speake what thou art, and how thou hast bene vs'd,
That that I may giue condigne punishment,

1. Kni. I am a Knight that tooke my iourney post
North-ward from London, and in curteous wise,

This Giant train'd me to his loathsome den,
Vnder pretence of killing of the itch,

And all my body with a powder strew'd,
That smarts and stings, and cut away my beard,

And my cutt'd lockes whierein were ribands tide,
And with a water washt my tender eyes,

Whilst vp and downe about me still he skipt,
Whose vertue is, that till mine eyes be wip't

With a dry cloath, for this my foule disgrace,
I shall not dare to looke a dog in th' face.

Wife. Alas poore Knight, relieue him Raph, relieue poore Knights whilst you liue.

Raph. My trusty Squire conuey him to the Towne,
Where he may finde releife, adiew faire Knight. Exit knight.

Enter Dwarfse leading one with a patch ore his Nose.

Dwar. Puisant Knight of the burning Pestle high,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

See heere another wretch, whom this foule beast
Hath scorcht and scor'd in this inhumaine wise.

Raph. Speake me thy name and eke thy place of birth,
And what hath bene thy vsage in this Caue.

2. Knight. I am a Knight, Sir Pocke-hole is my name,
And by my birth I am a Londoner
Free by my Coppy, but my Ancestors
Were French-men all, and riding hard this way,
Vpon a trotting horse, my bones did ake,
And I faint Knight to ease my weary limbes,
Light at this Caue, when straight this furious fiend,
With sharpest instrument of purest steele,
Did cut the gristle of my Nose away,
And in the place this veluet plaister stands,
Relieue me gentle Knight out of his hands.

Wife. Good Raph releiue sir Pocke-hole and send him away, for, intruth, his breath stinkes,

Raph. Conuey him straight after the other Knight,
Sir Pocke-hole fare you well.

2. Kni. Kinde sir good-night.

Exit.

Cries within.

Man. Deliuer vs. Woeman. Deliuer vs.

Wife. Hearke George, what a woefull cry there is, I thinke some woman lies in there. Man. Deliuer vs.

Woeman. Deliuer vs.

Raph. What gastly noise is this? speake Barbaroso,
Or by this blasing steele thy head goes off.

Barber. Prisoners of mine whom I in diet keepe,
Send lower downe into the Caue,
And in a Tub that's heated smoaking hot,
There may they finde them and deliuer them,

Raph. Run Squire and Dwarf, deliuer them with speed.

Exeunt Squire and Dwarf.

Wife. But will not Raph kill this Giant, surely I am afeard if hee let him go he will do as much hurt, as euer he did.

Cittiz. Not so mouse neither, if hee could conuert him.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Wife. I George if hee could conuert him, but a Giant is not so soone conuerted as one of vs ordinary people: there's a pretty tale of a Witch, that had the diuels marke about her, God blesse vs, that had a Giant to her sonne, that was cal'd Lob-lie-by-the-fire, didst neuer here it George?

Enter Squire leading a man with a glasse of Lotion in his hand, and the Dwarfse leading a woman, with diet-bread and drinke.

Cit. Peace Nel, heere comes the prisoners.

Dwar. Here be these pined wretches, manfull Knight,
That for these fixe weekes haue not seene a wight.

Raph. Deliuier what you are, and how you came To this sad Caue, and what your vsage was?

Man. I am an Errant Knight that followed Armes,
With speare and shield, and in my tender yeares
I stricken was with Cupids fiery shaft,
And fell in loue with this my Lady deere,
And stole her from her friends in Turne-bull-streete,
And bore her vp and downe from Towne to Towne,
Where we did eate and drinke and Musicke heare,
Till at the length, at this ynhappy Towne
Wee did arriue, and comming to this Caue
This beast vs caught and put vs in a Tub,
Where we this two monthes sweate, and should haue done
Another Moneth if you had not relieu'd vs.

Wom. This bread and water hath our diet bene,
Together with a rib cut from a necke
Of burned Mutton, hard hath bene our fare,
Release vs from this ougly Giants snare.

Man. This hath bene all the food we haue receiu'd,
But onely twice a day for nouelty,
He gaue a spoonefull of this hearty broth, Puls out a siringe
To each of vs, through this same slender quill.

Raph. From this infernall monster you shall go,
That vseth Knights and gentle Ladies so,
Conuey them hence,

Excunt man and woman.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Cit. Cony, I can tell thee the Gentlemen like Rafe.

Wife. I George, I see it well inough. Gentlemen I thanke you all heartily for gracing my man Rafe, and I promise you you shall see him oftner.

Barber. Mercy great knight, I do recant my ill,
And henceforth neuer gentle blood will spill.

Rafe. I giue thee mercy, but yet shalt thou sweare
Vpon my burning pestle, to performe
Thy promise vttered.

Barber. I sweare and kisse.

Rafe. Depart then, and amend.

Come squire and dwarfe, the Sunne growes towards his set,
and we haue many more aduentures yet. Exeunt.

Cit. Now Rafe is in this humour, I know hee would ha beaten all the boyes in the house if they had beene set on him.

Wife. I George, but it is well as it is, I warrant you the Gentlemen do consider what it is to ouerthrow a gyant: but looke George, heere comes mistresse Merri-thought and her sonne Michael; now you are welcome mistresse Merri- thought, now Rafe has done you may go on.

Enter mistresse Merri-thought, and Michael.

Mist. mer. Micke my boy?

Mich. Iforsooth mother.

Mist. mer. Be merry Micke we are at home now; where I warrant you, you shall finde the house flung out at the windowes: Harke, hey dogges, hey, this is the old world I faith with my husband; if I get in among 'em, Ile play em such a lesson, that they shall haue little list to come scraping hither, againe. Why maister Merri-thought, husband, Charles Merri-thought.

Old merri. within. If you will sing and daunce, and laugh, and hollow, and laugh againe, and then cry there boyes, there: why then

One, two, three, and foure,
We shall be merry within this houre:

Mist. merri. Why Charles, doe you not know your owne

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

owne naturall wife? I say, open the doore, and turne me out those mangy companions; tis more then time that they were fellow and fellow like with you: you are a Gentleman Charles, and an old man, and father of two children; and I my selfe (though I say it) by my mothers side, Neece to a worshipfull Gentleman, and a Conductor, ha has beene three times in his Maiesties seruice at Chester, and is now the fourth time, God blesse him, and his charge vpon his journey.

Old Mer. Go from my window, loue, goe;
Go from my window my deere,
The winde and the raine will drine you backe againe,
You cannot be lodged heere.

Harke you Mistresse Merrithought, you that walke vpon adventures, and forsake your husband, because hee sings with neuer a peny in his purse; What shall I thinke my selfe the worse? Faith no, Il'e be merry.

You come not heere, heer's none but lads of mettle, Kues of a hundred yeares, and vpwads, care neuer drunke their blouds, nor want made 'em warble.

Hey-ho, my heart is heauy.

Mist mer. Why Mr. Merrithought, what am I that you should laugh me to scorne thus abruptly? am I not your fellow-feeler (as we may say) in all our miseries? your comforter in health and sicknesse? haue I not brought you Children? are they not like you Charles? looke vpon thine owne Image hard-hearted man; and yet for all this —

Old mer. within. Begone, begone, my Tuggy, my puggy, begone my loue, my deere.

The weather is warme, twill do thee no harme, thou canst not be lodged heere.

Be merry boyes, some light musicke, and more wine.

Wife. He's not in earnest, I hope George, is he?

Cit. What if he be, sweet heart?

Wife. Marie if hee be George, Ilc make bold to tell him hee's an Ingrant old man, to vse his bed-fellow so scruily.

Cit. What how does he vse her hunny?

Wife.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Wife. Marie come vp sir sauce-box, I thinke you'l take his part, will you not? Lord how hot you are growne: you are a fine man an you had a fine dogge, it becomes you sweetly.

Cit. Nay pre'thee Nell chide not: for as I am an honest man, and a true Christian Grocer, I doe not like his doings.

Wife. I cry you mercie then George; you know we are all fraile, and full of infirmities. Dee heare Mr. Merrithought, may I craue a word with you?

Old mer. within. Strike vp liuely lads.

Wife. I had not thought in truth, Mr. Merrithought, that a man of your age and discretion (as I may say) being a Gentleman, and therefore knowne by your gentle conditions, could haue vsed so little respect to the weaknesse of his wife: for your wife is your owne flesh, the staffe of your age, your yoke-fellow, with whose helpe you draw through the mire of this transitory world: Nay, she's your owne ribbe. And againe—

Old mer. I come not hither for thee to teach,
I haue no pulpit for thee to preach,
I would thou hadst kist me vnder the breech,
As thou art a Lady gay.

Wife. Marie with a vengeance.<sup>1</sup>
I am hartely sorry for the poore gentlewoman: but if I were thy wife, I'faith gray-beard, I'faith—

Cit. I pre'thee sweet hunny-suckle, be content.

Wife. Giue me such words that am a gentlewoman borne, hang him hoary rascall. Get mee some drinke George, I am almost molten with fretting: now beshrew his knaues heart for it.

Old mer. Play me a light Lualto: come, bee frolicke, fill the good fellowes wine.

Mist. mer. Why Mr. Merrithought, are you disposed to make me wait here: you'l open I hope, Il'e fetch them that shall open else.

Old mer. Good woman if you wil sing Il'e giue you something, if not—

Song.

You are no loue for me Margret, I am no loue for you.

Come aloft Boyes, aloft.

Myſt. mer. Now a Charles fart in your teeth fir: Come Micke, wee'l not trouble him, a shall not ding 'ys i'th teeth with his bread and his broth: that he shall not: come boy, Il'e prouide for thee, I warrant thee: wee'l goe to maister Venterwels the Merchant, Il'e get his letter to mine Host of the Bell in Waltham, there Il'e place thee with the Tapſter; will not that doe well for thee Micke? and let me alone for that old Cuckoldly knaue your father, Il'e vse him in his kinde, I warrant yee.

Wife. Come George, wher's the beere?

Cit. Here loue.

Wife. This old fornicating fellow wil not out of my mind yet; Gentlemen, Il'e begin to you all, and I desire more of your acquaintance, with all my heart. Fill the Gentlemen some beere George.

Finis Actus tertij. Musicke.

Actus quartus, Scœna prima.

Boy daunceth.

Wife. Looke George, the little boy's come againe, mee thinks he lookes something like the prince of Orange in his long stocking, if hee had a little harnessse about his necke. George I will haue him dance Fading; Fading is a fine Iigge Il'e assure you Gentlemen: begin brother, now a capers sweet heart, now a turne a'th toe, and then tumble: cannot you tumble youth?

Boy. No indeed forsooth.

Wife. Nor eate fire? Boy. Neither.

Wife. Why then I thanke you heartily, there's two pence to buy you points withall.

Enter Iasper and Boy.

Iasp. There boy, deliuer this: but do it well. Hast thou prouided me foure lusty fellowes?

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Able to carry me? and art thou perfect
In all thy businesse? Boy. Sir, you need not feare,
I haue my lesson here, and cannot misse it:
The men are ready for you, and what else
Pertaines to this imployment. Iasp. There my boy,
Take it, but buy no land. Boy. Faith sir 'twere rare
To see so yong a purchaser: I flye,
And on my wings carry your destinie. Exit.

Iasp. Go, and be happy. Now my latest hope Forsake me not, but sling thy Anchor out,
And let it hold: stand fixt thou rolling stone,
Till I enioy my decreest: heare me all
You powers that rule in men cœlestiall. Exit.

Wife. Go thy wayes, thou art as crooked a sprigge as euer grew in London; I warrant him hee'l come to some naughty end or other: for his lookes say no lesse: Besides, his father (you know George) is none of the best, you heard him take me vp like a flirt Gill, and sing baudy songs vpon me: but I saith if I liue George.—

Cit. Let me alone sweet-heart, I haue a tricke in my head shall lodge him in the Arches for one yeare, and make him sing Peccani, er'e I leaue him, and yet hee shall neuer know who hurt him neither.

Wife. Do my good George, do.

Cit. What shall we haue Rafe do now boy?

Boy. You shall haue what you will sir.

Cit. Why so sir, go and fetch me him then, and let the So-phy of Persia come and christen him a childe.

Boy. Beleeue me sir, that will not doe so well, 'tis stale, it has bene had before at the red Bull.

Wife. George let Rafe trauell ouer great hills, & let him be very weary, and come to the King of Craconia's house, couered with veluet, and there let the Kings daughter stand in her window all in beaten gold, combing her golden locks with a combe of Iuory, and let her spy Rafe, and fall in loue with him, and come downe to him, and carry him into her fathers house, and then let Rafe talke with her.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Cit. Well said Nell, it shal be so: boy let's ha't done quickly.

Boy. Sir, if you will imagine all this to be done already, you shall heare them talke together: but wee cannot present a house couered with blacke veluet, and a Lady in beaten gold.

Cit. Sir boy, lets ha't as you can then.

Boy. Besides it will shew ill-fauouredly to haue a Grocers prentice to court a kings daughter.

Cit. Will it so sir? you are well read in Histories: I pray you what was sir Dagonet? was not he prentice to a Grocer in London? read the play of the Foure Prentices of London, where they toss their pikes so: I pray you fetch him in sir, fetch him in.

Boy. It shall be done, it is not our fault gentlemen. Exit.

Wife. Now we shall see fine doings I warrant tee George.
O here they come; how pretily the king of Cracnoia's daughter is drest. Enter Rafe and the Lady, Squire and dwarfse.

Cit. I Nell, it is the fashion of that country, I warrant tee.

Lady. Welcōme sir Knight vnto my fathers Court.

King of Moldauia, vnto me Pompiona

His daughter deere: but sure you do not like

Your entertainment, that will stay with vs

No longer but a night. Rafe. Damsell right faire,

I am on many sad aduentures bound,

That call me forth into the wilderneffe:

Besides, my horses backe is something gal'd,

Which will inforce me ride a sober pace.

But many thanks (faire Lady) be to you,

For vsing errant Knight with curtesie.

Lady. But say (braue knight) what is your name & birth?

Rafe. My name is Rafe, I am an English man,

As true as steele, a hearty Englishman,

And prentice to a Grocer in the strond,

By deed Indent, of which I haue one part:

But Fortune calling me to follow Armes,

On me this holy order I did take,

Of Burning pestle, which in all mens eyes,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

I beare, confounding Ladies enemies.

Lady. Oft haue I heard of your braue country-men,
And fertill soyle, and store of holesome food:
My Father oft will tell me of a drinke
In England found, and Nipicato cal'd.
Which driueth all the sorrow from your hearts.

Rafe. Lady 'tis true, you need not lay your lips
To better Nipicato then there is.

Lady. And of a wild-fowle he will ofren speake,
Which poudred beefe and mustard called is:
For there haue beene great warres 'twixt vs and you,
But truly Rafe, it was not long of me.
Tell me then Rafe, could you contented be,
To weare a Ladies fauour in your shield?

Rafe. I am a knight of religious order,
And will not weare a fauour of a Ladies
That trusts in Antichrist, and false traditions.

Cit. Well sayd Rafe, conuert her if thou canst.

Rafe. Besides, I haue a Lady of my owne
In merry England, for whose vertuouse sake
I tooke these Armes, and Susan is her name,
A Coblers maid in Milke-street, whom I vow
Nere to forsake, whilst life and Pestle last.

Lady. Happy that Cobling dame, who ere she be,
That for her owne (deere Rafe) hath gotten thee.
Vnhappy I, that nere shall see the day
To see thee more, that bearst my heart away.

Rafe. Lady fare-well, I needs must take my leaue.

Lady. Hard-harted Rafe, that Ladies dost deceiue.

Cit. Harke thee Rafe, there's money for thee; giue something in the King of Craconia's house, be not beholding to him.

Rafe. Lady before I go, I must remember
Your fathers Officers, who truth to tell,
Haue beene about me very diligent.
Hold vp thy snowy hand thou princely maid,
There's twelue pence for your fathers Chamberlaine,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

And another shilling for his Cooke,
For by my troth the Goose was roasted well.
And twelue-pence for your fathers horse-keeper,
For nointing my horse backe; and for his butter,
There is another shilling. To the maid
That wash't my boot-hose, there's an English groat;
And two pence to the boy that wip't my boots:
And last, faire Lady, there is for your selfe
Three pence to buy you pins at Bumbo faire.

Lady. Full many thanks, and I will keepe them safe
Till all the heads be off, for thy sake Rafe.

Rafe. Aduance my Squire and Dwarf, I cannot stay,

Lady. Thou kilst my heart in parting thus away. Exit.

Wife. I commend Rafe yet that hee will not stoope to a Craconian, there's properer women in London then any are there I-wis. But heere comes Maister Humphrey and his loue again now George.

Cit. I cony, peace.

Enter Marchant, Humphrey, Luce and a Boy.

March. Go get you vp, I will not be intreated.
And gossip mine, Il'e keepe you sure hereafter
From gadding out againe with boyes and vnthrifts,
Come, they are womens teares, I know your fashion.
Go sirrah, locke her in, and keepe the key, Exit Luce
Safe as you loue your life. Now my sonne Humfrey, & Boy.
You may both rest assured of my loue
In this, and reape your owne desire.

Hum. I see this loue you speake of, through your daughter,
Although the hole be little; and hereafter
Will yeeld the like in all I may, or can,
Fitting a Christian, and a gentleman.

March. I do beleue you (my good sonne) and thanke you:
For 'twere an impudence to thinke you flattered.

Humph. It were indeed, but shall I tell you why,
I haue beene beaten twice about the lye.

March. Well son, no more of complement, my daughter
Is yours againe; appoint the time, and take her,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

We'le haue no stealing for it, I my selfe
And some few of our friends will see you married.

Hum. I would you would i'faith, for be it knowne
I euer was afraid to lie alone.

March. Some three daies hence then.

Hum. Three daies, let me see,
'Tis some-what of the most, yet I agree,
Because I meane against the appointed day,
To visite all my friends in new array.

Enter seruant.

Ser. Sir, there's a Gentlewoman without would speake with your Worship. Merch. What is shee?

Seru. Sir I askt her not.

Merch. Bid her come in.

Enter mistresse Merry-thought and Michael.

Mist.mer. Peace be to your Worship, I come as a poore
Suter to you sir, in the behalfe of this child.

Merch. Are you not wife to Merrie-thought?

Mist.mer. Yes truely, would I had nere seene his eies, ha has vndone me and him selfe and his children, & there he liues at home & sings, & hoights, & Reuels among his drunken cõ-panions, but, I warrant you, where to get a peny to put bread in his mouth, he knowes not: and therefore if it like your Worship, I would entreate your letter, to the honest Host of the Bel in VValtham, that I may place my child vnder
the protection of his Tapster, in some setled course of life.

Merch. I'me glad the heauens haue heard my prayers: thy VWhen I was ripe in sorrows laught at me, (husband
Thy sonne like an vnthankfull wretch, I hauing
Redeem'd him from his fall and made him mine,
To shew his loue againe, first stole my daughter,
Then wrong'd this Gentleman, and last of all,
Gaued me that grieffe, had almost brought me downe
Vnto my graue, had not a stronger hand
Relciu'd my sorrowes, go, and weepe, as I did
And be unpittied, for I heere profess
An euerlasting hate to all thy name.

Mist.mer. VWill you so sir, how say you by that? come

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Micke, let him keepe his winde to coole his Porrage, we'le go to thy Nurces Micke, shee knits filke stockings boy, and we'le knit too boy, and bee beholding to none of them all.

Exeunt Michael and mother.

Enter a boy, with a letter.

Boy. Sir, I take it you are the Maister of this house.

Merch. How then boy?

Boy. Then to your selfe sir comes this letter.

Merch. From whom my pretty Boy?

Boy. From him that was your seruant, but no more shall that name euer be, for hee is dead, Griefe of your purchas'd anger broke his heart, I saw him die, and from his hand receiv'd This paper, with a charge to bring it hither, Reade it, and satisfie your selfe in all.

Letter.

March. Sir, that I haue wronged your loue, I must confesse, in which I haue purchast to my selfe, besides myne owne vndoing, the ill opinion of my friends, let not your anger, good sir, outline me; but suffer mee to rest in peace with your forgiveness; let my body (if a dying man may so much preuaile with you) bee brought to your daughter; that shee may truely know my hote flames are now buried, and, withall, receiue a testimony of the scale I bore her vertue: farewell for euer, and be euer happy. Iasper.

Gods hand is great in this, I do forgiue him, Yet I am glad he's quiet, where I hope He will not bite againe: boy bring the body And let him haue his will, if that be all.

Boy. 'Tis here without sir. Merch. So sir, if you please You may conduct it in, I do not feare it.

Hump. Ple be your Vsher boy, for though I say it, He ow'd me something once, and well did pay it. Exeunt.

Enter Luce alone.

Luce. If there be any punishment inflicted Vpon the miserable, more then yet I feele, Let it together ceaze me, and at once.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Presse downe my soule, I cannot beare the paine
Of these delaying tortures: thou that art
The end of all, and the sweete rest of all;
Come, come ô death, bring me to thy peace,
And blot out all the memory I nourish
Both of my father and my cruell friend.
O wretched maide still liuing to be wretched,
To be a fay to fortune in her changes,
And grow to number times and woes together,
How happy had I bene, if being borne
My graue had bene my cradle? Enter seruant.

Ser. By your leau
Yong Mistresse, here's a boy hath brought a coffin,
What a would say I know not, but your father
Charg'd me to giue you notice, here they come.

Enter two bearing a Coffin, Iasper in it.

Luce. For me, I hop' 'tis come, and 'tis most welcome.

Boy. Faire Mistresse let me not adde greater grieffe
To that great store you haue already; Iasper
That whilst he liu'd was yours, now dead,
And here enclos'd, commanded me to bring
His body hither, and to craue a teare
From those faire eyes, though he deseru'd not pittie,
To decke his funerall, for so he bid me
Tell her for whom he di'de. Luce. He shall haue many:
Good friends depart a little, whilst I take Exeunt Coffin
My leau of this dead man, that once I lou'd: carrier & boy.
Hold, yet a little, life and then I giue thee
To thy first heavenly being; O my friend!
Hast thou deceiu'd me thus, and got before me?
I shall not long bee after, but beleue me,
Thou wert too cruell Iasper gainst thy selfe,
In punishing the fault, I could haue pardon'd,
With so vntimely death; thou didst not wrong me,
But euer wer't most kind, most true, most louing;
And I the most vnkind, most false, most cruell.
Didst thou but aske a teare? Il'e giue thee all,

The Knight of the burning Pestle

Euen all my eies can powre downe, all my sigh's
And all my selfe, before thou goest from me
There are but sp<sup>er</sup>ing rites: But if thy soule
Be yet about this place, and can behold
And see what I prepare to decke thee with,
It shall go vp, borne on the wings of peace
And satisfied: first will I sing thy dirge,
Then kisse thy pale lips, and then die my selfe,
And fill one Coffin and one graue together.

Song.

*Come you whose loues are dead,
And whiles I sing
Weepe and wring
Every hand and euerie head,
Bind with Cipres and sad Ewe,
Ribands blacke, and candles blew,
For him that was of men most true.*

*Come with heauy mourning,
And on his graue
Let him haue
Saerifice of sighes and groaning,
Let him haue faire flowers enow,
White and purple, greene and yellow,
For him that was of men most true.*

Thou fable cloth, sad couer of my ioies
I lift thee vp, and thus I meete with death.

Iasp. And thus you meete the liuing. Luce. Saue me heauen.

Ias. Nay do not flie me faire, I am no spirit,
Looke better on me, do you know me yet?

Luce. O thou deere shadow of my friend.

Iasp. Deere substance,

I swear I am no shadow, feele my hand,

It is the same it was, I am your Iasper,

Your Iasper that's yet liuing, and yet louing,

Pardon my rash attempt, my foolish prooffe

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

I put in practise of your constancy,
For sooner should my sword haue drunke my bloud,
And set my soule at liberty, then drawne
The least drop from that body; for which boldnesse
Doo me to any thing: if death I take it
And willingly. Luce. This death I'll giue you for it,
So, now I am satisfied: you are no spirit,
But my owne truest, truest, truest friend,
VVhy doe you come thus to mee.

Iasper. First to see you,
Then to conuey you hence.

Luce. It cannot bee,
For I am lockt vp here and watcht at all howers,
That 'tis impossible for me to scape.

Iasp. Nothing more possible, within this coffin
Do you conuey your selfe, let me alone,
I haue the wits of twenty men about me,
Onely I craue the shelter of your Closet
A little, and then feare me not; creepe in
That they may presently conuey you hence:
Feare nothing deere'st loue, Il'e be your second,
Lie close, so, all goes well yet; Boy.

Boy. At hand sir.

Iasp. Conuey away the Coffin, and be wary.

Boy. 'Tis done already.

Iasp. Now must I go coniure. Exit.

Enter Merchant.

Merch. Boy, Boy.

Boy. Your seruant sir.

Merch. Do me this kindnesse Boy, hold here's a crowne:
Before thou bury the body of this fellow, carry it to his old merie father, and salute him from mee, and bid him sing, he hath cause.

Boy. I will sir.

Merch. And then bring me word what tune he is in,
and haue another crowne: but do it truely.
I haue fitted him a bargain, now, will vex him.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Boy. God bleſſe your VVorſhips health ſir.

March. Fare-weil boy. Exeunt.

Enter Maiſter Merrie-thought.

Wiſe. Ah old Merry-thought, art thou there againe, let's here ſome of thy ſongs.

Old Mer. Who can ſing a merrier noate,
Then he that cannot change a goat?

Not a Denier left, and yet my heart leapes, I do wonder yet, as old as I am, that any man will follow a Trade, or ſerue, that may ſing and laugh, and walke the ſtreetes, my wife and both my ſonnes are I know not where, I haue nothing left, nor know I how to come by meate to ſupper, yet am I merry ſtill; for I know I ſhall finde it vpon the Table at fixe a clocke, therefore hang Thought.

I would not be a Scruigman to carry the cloke-bag ſtill,
Nor would I be a Fawleconer the greedy Hawkes to fill.
But I would be in a good houſe, & haue a good Maiſter too.
But I would eat & drinke of the beſt, & no work would I do.

This is it that keepes life and ſoule together, mirth, this is the Philoſophers ſtone that they write ſo much on, that keepes a man euer young.

Enter a Boy.

Boy. Sir, they ſay they know all your mony is gone, and they will truſt you for no more drinke.

Old mer. Will they not? let am chooſe, the beſt is I haue mirth at home, and neede not ſend abroad for that, let them keepe their drinke to themſelues.

For Illian of Berry ſhee dwels on a Hill,
And ſhee hath good Beere and Ale to ſell.
And of good fellowes ſhe thinks no ill,
And thether will we go now, now, now, now, and thether
Will we go now.

And when you haue made a little ſtay,
You need not aſke what is to pay,
But kiſſe your Hoſteſſe and go your way, And thither, &c.

Enter another Bey.

2. Boy. Sir, I can get no bread for ſupper.

Old mer.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Oldmer. Hang bread and supper, let's preserve our mirth, and we shall never feel hunger, I'll warrant you, let's have a Catch, boy follow me, come           sing this Catch.

Ho, ho, no body at home, meate, nor drinke, nor money have we none, fill the pot Eedy, never more need I.

Oldmer. So boies enough, follow mee, let's change our place and we shall laugh afresh.

Exeunt.

Wife. Let him goe George, a shall not have any countenance from vs, nor a good word from any i'th' Company, if I may strike stroke in't.

Cit. No more a shall not loue; but Nel I will have Raph doe a very notable matter now, to the eternall honour and glory of all Grocers, sirrah you there boy, can none of you heare?

Boy. Sir, your pleasure.

Cit. Let Raph come out on May-day in the morning and speake vpon a Conduit with all his Scarfes about him, and his fetters and his rings and his knacks.

Boy. Why sir you do not thinke of our plot, what will become of that then?

Cit. Why sir, I care not what become on't; I'll haue him come out, or I'll fetch him out my selfe, I'll haue something done in honor of the City, besides, he hath bene long enough vpon Adventures, bring him out quickly, or if I come in amongst you —

Boy. Well sir hee shall come out, but if our play miscarry, sir you are like to pay for't.

Exit Boy.

Cit. Bring him away then.

Wife. This will be braue i'faith, George shall not he dance the morrice too for the credit of the Strand.

Cittiz. No sweete heart it will bee too much for the boy, o there he is Nel, hee's reasonable well in reparaell, but hee has not rings enough.

Enter Raph.

Raph. London, to thee I do present the merry Month of May

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Let each true Subiect be content to heare me what I say:
For from the top of Conduit head, as plainely may appeare,
I will both tell my name to you and wherefore I came heere.
My name is Raph, by due descent, though not ignoble I,
Yet far inferior to the Flocke of grations Grocery.
And by the Common-councill, of my fellowes in the Strand,
With gilded Staffe, and crossed Skarfe, the May-lord here I stand.
Reioyce, ô English hearts, reioyce, reioyce ô Lovers deere, Reioyce ô City, Towne, and Country, reioyce eke euery Shire;
For now the fragrant Flowers do spring and sprout in seemely sort,
The little Birds do sit and sing, the Lambes do make fine sport.
And now the Burchin Tree doth bud that makes the Schoole boy cry
The Morrice rings while Hobby-horse doth footc it feateously:
The Lords and Ladies now abroad for their disport and play,
Do kisse sometimes vpon the Grasse, and sometimes in the Hey.
Now Butter with a lease of Sage is good to Parge the blond, Fly Venus and Phlebotomy for they are neither good.
Now little fish on tender stone, beginne to cast their bellies,
And sluggish snails, that erst were mute, do creep out of their shelles
The rumbling Riuers now do warme for little boies to paddle,
The sturdy Steede, now goes to grasse, and vp they hang his saddle.
The heauy Hart, the bellowing Bucke, the Rascal and the Pricket,
Are now among the Yeomans Pease, and leaue the fearefull thicket.
And be like them, ô you, I say, of this same noble Towne,
And lift aloft your veluet heads, and slipping of your gowne:
With bells on legs, and napkins cleane vnto your shoulders tide,
With Scarfes & Garters as you please, & Hey for our Town cri'd
March out and shew your willing minds by twenty and by twenty,
To Hogsdon or to Newington, where Ale and Cakes are plenty:
And let it nere be said, for shame, that we the youths of London,
Lay thrumming of our Caps at home, and lest our custome vndone.
Up then, I say, both yong and old, both man and maide a Maying
With Drums and Guns that bounce alowd, & mery Taber playing.
Which to prolong, God saue our King, and send his Country peace
And roote out Treason from the Land, and so, my friends I cease.

Finis Act. 4.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Actus 5. Scœna prima.

Enter Marchant, solus.

March. I will haue no great store of company at the wedding, a cupple of neighbours and their wiues, and wee will haue a Capon in stewed broth, with marrow, and a good peece of beefe, stucke with rose-mary.

Enter Iasper, his face mealed.

Iasp. Forbeare thy paines fond man, it is too late.

March. Heauen bleffe me: Iasper?

Iasp. I, I am his Ghost

Whom thou hast iniur'd for his constant loue:
Fond worldly wretch, who dost not vnderstand
In death that true hearts cannot parted be.
First know thy daughter is quite borne away,
On wings of Angels, through the liquid aire,
To farre out of thy reach, and neuer more Shalt thou behold her face: But shee and I
Will in another world enioy our loues,
Where neither fathers anger, pouertie,
Nor any crosse that troubles earthly men
Shall make vs feuer our vnited hearts.
And neuer shalt thou sit, or be alone
In any place, but I will visit thee
With gastly lookes, and put into thy minde
The great offences wich thou didst to me.
When thou art at thy Table with thy friends
Merry in heart, and sild with swelling wine,
Il'e come in midst of all thy pride and mirth,
Inuisible to all men but thy selfe,
And whisper such a sad tale in thine eare,
Shall make thee let the Cuppe fall from thy hand,
And stand as mute and pale as Death it selfe.

March. Forgiue me Iasper; Oh! what might I doe?

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Tell me, to satisfie thy troubled Ghost?

Iasp. There is no meanes, too late thou thinkst of this.

March. But tell me what were best for me to doe?

Iasp. Repent thy deede, and satisfie my father,
And beat fond Humphrey out of thy dores, Exit Iasper.

Enter Humphrey.

Wife. Looke George, his very Ghost would haue folkes beaten.

Humph. Father, my bride is gone, faire mistresse Luce,
My soule's the fount of vengeance, mischiefes fluce.

March. Hence foole out of my sight, with thy fond passion Thou hast vndone me.

Humph. Hold my father deere,
For Luce thy daughters sake, that had no peere.

Mar. Thy father foole? there's some blows more, begone.
Iasper, I hope thy Ghost bee well appeased,
To see thy will performd, now will I go
To satisfie thy father for thy wrongs. Exit.

Humph. What shall I doe? I haue beene beaten twice,
And mistresse Luce is gone? helpe me deuce:
Since my true-loue is gone, Ineuermore,
Whilst I do liue, vpon the sky will pore;
But in the darke will weare out my shooe-soles
In passion, in Saint Faiths Church vnder Paules. Exit.

Wife. George call Rafe hither, if you loue me call Rafe hither, I haue the brauest thing for him to do George; pre thee call him quickly.

Cit. Rafe, why Rafe boy. Enter Rafe.

Rafe. Heere sir.

Cit. Come hither Rafe, come to thy mistresse boy.

Wife. Rafe I would haue thee call all the youthes together in battle-ray, with drums, and guns, and flags, and march to Mile end in pompous fashion, and there exhort your Souldiers to be merry and wise, and to keepe their beards from burning Rafe, and then skirmish, and let your flagges flye, and cry kill kill, kill: my husband shall lend you his Ierkin Rafe, and there's a scarfe; for the rest, the houte shall furnish you,
and

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

and wee'l pay for't: doe it brauely Rafe, and thinke before whom you performe, and what person you represent.

Rafe. I warrant you mistresse if I do it not for the honour of the Citty, and the credit of my maister, let me neuer hope for freedome.

Wife. 'Tis well spoken I faith; go thy wayes, thou art a sparke indeed.

Cit. Rafe, Rafe, double your files brauely Rafe.

Rafe. I warrant you sir. Exit Rafe.

Cit. Let him looke narrowly to his seruice, I shall take him else, I was there my selfe a pike-man once in the hottest of the day, wench; had my feather shot sheere away, the fringe of my pike burnt off with powder, my pate broken with a scouring-sticke, and yet I thanke God I am heere.

Drum within.

Wife. Harke George the drums.

Cit. Ran, tan, tan, tan; ran, tan: O wench an thou hadst but seene little Ned of Algate, drum Ned, how hee made it rore againe, and layd on like a tyrant: and then stroke softly till the ward came vp, and then thundred againe, and together we go: sa, sa, sa, bounce quoth the guns: courage my hearts, quoth the Captaines: Saint George, quoth the pike-men; and withall here they lay, and there they lay: And yet for all this I am heere wench.

Wife. Be thankfull for it George, for indeed 'tis wonderfull.

Enter Rafe and his company with Drummes and colours.

Rafe. March faire my hearts, Lieuetenant beate the reare vp: Ancient, let your colours flye; but haue a great care of the Butchers hookes at white-Chappell, they haue beene the death of many a faire Ancient. Open your files that I may take a view both of your persons and munition: Sergeant call a muster.

Serg. A stand, William Hamerton peuterer.

Ham. Here Captaine.

Rafe. A Corflet, and a spanish pike; 'tis well, can you shake it with a terror?

Ham.

The Knight of the burning Pestle

Ham. I hope so Captaine.

Rafe. Charge vpon me, 'tis with the weakest: put more strength William Hammerton, more strength: as you were a-gaine. Proceed Sergeant.

Serge. George Greene-goose, Poulterer?

Greene. Heere.

Rafe. Let me see your peece neighbour Greene-goose, when was she shot in?

Greene. And like you maister Captaine, I made a shot euen now, partly to scoure her, and partly for audacity.

Rafe. It should seeme so certainly, for her breath is yet inflamed: besides, there is a maine fault in the touch-hole, it runnes, and stinketh; and I tell you moreouer, and beleeue it: Ten such touch-holes would breed the pox in the Army. Get you a feather, neighbour, get you a feather, sweet oyle, and paper, and your peece may do well enough yet. Where's your powder?

Greene. Heere.

Rafe. What in a paper? As I am a Souldier, and a Gentleman, it craues a Martiall Court: you ought to dye for't. Where's your horne? answere me to that.

Greene. An't like you sir, I was obliuious.

Rafe. It likes me not you should bee so; 'tis a shame for you, and a scandall to all our neighbours, beeing a man of worth and estimation, to leaue your horne behinde you: I am afraid 'twill breed example. But let me tell you no more on't; stand, till I view you all. What's become o'th nose of your flaske?

1. Souldier. Indeed law Captaine, 'twas blowne away with powder.

Rafe. Put on a new one at the Cities charge. Wheres the stone of this peece?

2. Souldier. The Drummer tooke it out to light Tobacco.

Rafe. 'Tis a fault my friend, put it in againe: You want a Nose, and you a Stone; Sergeant, take a note on't, for I meane to stoppe it in the pay. Remoue and march, soft and faire faire Gentlemen, soft and faire: double your files, as you were, faces about. Now you with the sodden face, keepe in there: looke to your match firrah, it will be in your fellowes flaske anone. So, make a crescent now, aduance your pikes, stand and giue care. Gentlemen, Countrey-men, Friends, and my fellow-Souldiers, I haue brought you this day from the Shops of Security, and the Counters of Content, to measure out in these furious fields, Honour by the ell; and pro- wesse by the pound: Let it not, ô let it not, I say, bee told hereafter, the noble issue of this Citie fainted: but beare your selues in this faire action, like men, valiant men, and free- men; Feare not the face of the enemy, nor the noise of the guns; for beleeu me brethren, the rude rumbling of a Brew- ers Carre is farre more terrible, of which you haue a daily experience: Neither let the stinke of powder offend you, since a more valiant stinke is nightly with you. To a resolu- ed minde, his home is euery where: I speake not this to take away the hope of your returne; for you shall see (I do not doubt it) and that very shortly, your louing wiuies againe, and your sweet children, whose care doth beare you company in baskets. Remember then whose cause you haue in hand, and like a sort of true-borne Scauingers, scoure me this famous Realme of enemies. I haue no more to say but this: Stand to your tacklings lads, and shew to the world you can as well brandish a sword, as shake an apron. Saint George and on my hearts. Omnes. St. George, St. George. Exeunt Wife. 'Twas well done Rafe, Il'e send thee a cold Capon a field, and a bottle of March-beere; and it may be, come my selfe to see thee.

Cit. Nell, the boy has deceiued me much, I did not thinke it had beene in him: he has performed such a matter wench, that if I liue, next yeare Il'e haue him Captaine of the Gally- foist, or Il'e want my will.

Enter old Merri-thought.

Old mer. Yet I thanke God, I breake not a rinkle more then I had, nor a stoope boyes: Care liue with Cats, I desie thee, my heart is as sound as an Oke; and though I want drinke to wet my whistle, I can sing:

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Come no more there boyes, come no more there:

For we shall neuer whilst we liue, come any more there.

Enter a boy with a Coffin.

Boy. God saue you sir.

Oldmer. It's a braue boy: canst thou sing?

Boy. Yes sir, I can sing, but 'tis not so necessary at this time.

Oldmerri. Sing wee, and chaunt it, whilst loue doth grant it.

Boy. Sir, sir, if you knew what I haue brought you, you would haue little list to sing.

Oldmer. O the Mimon round, full long long I haue thee sought,

And now I haue thee found, & what hast thou here brought?

Boy. A Coffin sir, and your dead son Iasper in it.

Oldmer. Dead? why fare-well he:

Thou wast a bonny boy, and I did loue thee.

Enter Iasper.

Iasp. Then I pray you sir do so still.

Oldmer. Iasper's ghost? thou art welcome from Stygian lake so soone, Declare to mee what wondrous things in Pluto's court are done.

Iasp. By my troth sir, I nere came there, 'tis too hot for me sir.

Oldmer. A merry ghost, a very merry ghost.

And where is your true-loue? o where is yours?

Iasp. Marie looke you sir.

Heaues vp the Coffin.

Oldmer. Ah ha! Art thou good at that Ifaith?

With hey trixie terlery-whiskin; the world it runnes on wheelcs,

When the yong mans ——— vp goes the maidens heeles.

Mistresse Merri-thought, and Michael within.

Mist.mer. What Mr. Merri-thought, will you not let's in? what do you thinke shall become of vs?

Oldmer. What voyce is that that calleth at our doore?

Mist.mer. You know me well enough, I am sure I haue not becne

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

beene such a stranger to you.

Old mer. And some they whistled, and some they sung, Hey downe, downe: and some did lowdly say, euer as the Lord Bar-nets horne blew, away Musgrau, away.

Mist. mer. You will not haue vs starue here, will you Mr. Merri-thought?

Iasp. Nay good sir be perswaded, she is my mother: if her offences haue beene great against you, let your owne loue remember she is yours, and so forgiue her.

Luce Good Mr. Merri-thought let mee entreat you, I will not be denied. (still)

Mist. mer. Why Mr. Merri-thought, will you be a vext thing

Old. mer. Woman I take you to my loue againe, but you shall sing before you enter: therefore dispatch your song, and so come in.

Mist. mer. Well, you must haue your will when al's done. Micke what song canst thou sing boy?

Mich. I can sing none forsooth, but a Ladies daughter of Paris properly.

Mist. mer. Song. It was, a Ladies daughter, &c.

Old. mer. Come, you'r welcome home againe. If such danger be in playing, and iest must to earnest turne, You shall go no more a maying.

March. within. Are you within sir, Maister Merri-thought?

Iasp. It is my maisters voyce, good sir go hold him in talke whilst we conuey our selues into some inward roome.

Old mer. What are you? are you merry? you must bee very merry if you enter.

March. I am sir.

Old mer. Sing then.

March. Nay good sir open to me.

Old mer. Sing, I say, or by the merry heart you come not in.

March. Well sir, ll'e sing.

Fortune my Foe, &c.

Old mer. You are welcome sir, you are welcome, you see your entertainment, pray you bee merry.

March. O Mr. Merri-thought, I am come to aske you

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Forgiueness for the wrongs I offered you,
And your most vertuous sonne, they're infinite,
Yet my contrition shall be more then they.
I do confesse my hardnesse broke his heart,
For which, iust heauen hath giuen me punishment
More then my age can carry, his wandring spirit
Not yet at rest, pursues me eucry where,
Crying, I'le haunt thee for thy cruelty.
My daughter she is gone, I know not how,
Taken inuisible, and whether liuing,
Or in graue, 'tis yet vncertaine to me.
O Maister Merry-thought, these are the weights,
Will sinke me to my graue, forgiue me sir.

Old mer. Why sir, I do forgiue you, and be merry,
And if the wag, in's life time, plaid the knaue,
Can you forgiue him too? Merch. Withall my heart sir.

Old mer. Speake it againe, and hartely.

Merch. I do sir,
Now by my soule I do.

Old mer. With that came out his Paramoure,
Shee was as white as the Lillie flower,
Hey troule trollie lollie. Enter Luce and Iasper.
With that came out her owne deere Knight,
He was as true as euer did fight. &c.
Sir, if you will forgiue ham, clap their hands together, there's no more to be sad i'th' matter.

Merch. I do, I do.

Cit. I do not like this, peace boies, heare me one of you, euery bodies part is come to an end but Raphes, and hee's left out.

Boy. 'Tis long of your selfe sir, wee haue nothing to doe with his part.

Cit. Raph come away, make on him as you haue done of the rest, boies come.

Wife. Now good husband let him come out and die.

Cit. He shall Nel, Raph come away quickly and die boy.

Boy. 'Twill be very vnfit he should die sir, vpon no occasion,

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

sion, and in a Comedy too.

Cit. Take you no care of that fir boy, is not his part at an end, thinke you, when he's dead? come away Raph.

Enter Raph, with a forked arrow through his head.

Raph. When I was mortall, this my costlie corps
Did lap vp Figs and Raisons in the Strand,
Where sitting I esp'd a louely Dame,
Whose Maister wrought with Lingell and with All,
And vnder ground he vampied many a boote,
Straight did her loue pricke forth me, tender sprig
To follow feats of Armes in warlike wise,
Through Waltham Desert, where I did performe
Many atchieuements, and did lay on ground
Huge Barbaroso that insulting Giant,
And all his Captiuies soone set at liberty.
Then honour prickt me from my natiue soile,
Into Moldania, where I gain'd the loue
Of Pompiana his beloued daughter:
But yet prou'd constant to the blacke thum'd maide
Susan, and skorn'd Pompianaes loue:
Yet liberall I was and gaue her pinnes,
And money for her fathers Officers,
I then returned home, and thrust my selfe
In action, and by all men chosen was Lord of the May, where I did flourish it,
With Skarfes and Rings, and Poesie in my hand,
After this action, I preferred was,
And chosen Citty Captaine at Mile-end,
With hat and feather and with leading staffe,
And train'd my men aud brought them all of cleere,
Saue one man that berai'd him with the noise.
But all these things I Raph did vndertake,
Onely for my beloued Susans sake.
Then comming home, and sitting in my Shop
With Apron blew, death came vnto my Stall
To cheapen Aqua-vita, but ere I
Could take the bottle downe, and fill a taste,

The Knight of the burning Pestle

Death caught a pound of Pepper in his hand,
And sprinkled all my face and body ore,
And in an instant vanished away.

Cit. 'Tis a pretty fiction i'faith.

Raph. Then tooke I vp my Bow and Shaft in hand,
And walkt into Moore-fields to coole my selfe,
But there grim cruell death met me againe,
And shot this forked arrow through my head,
And now I faint, therefore be warn'd by me,
My fellowes euery one of forked heads.
Fare-well all you good boies in merry London,
Nere shall we more vpon Shroue-tuesday meete
And plucke downe houses of iniquitie.
My paine increaseth, I shall neuer more
Hold open, whilst another pumpes both legs,
Nor daube a Satten gowne with rotten eggs:
Set vp a stake, ô neuer more I shall,
I die, flie, flie my soule to Grocers Hall:      oh, oh, oh, &c.

Wife. Well said Raph, doe your obeysance to the Gentlemen and go your waies, well said Raph.

Exit Raph.

Oldmer. Methinkes all we, thus kindly and vnexpectedly reconciled should not depart without a song.

Merch. A good motion.

Oldmer. Strike vp then.

Song.

Better Musicke nere was knowne,
Then a quire of hearts in one.
Let each other that hath beene,
Troubled with the gall or spleene:
Learn of vs to keepe his brow,
Smooth and plaine as ours are now.
Sing though before the houre of dying
He shall rise and then be crying.
Hey ho, 'tis naught but mirth.
That keepes the body from the earth.

Epilogus.

The Knight of the burning Pestle.

Epilogus.

Cittiz. Come Nel, shall we go, the Plaies done.

Wife. Nay by my faith George, I haue more manners then so, I'll speake to these Gentlemen first : I thanke you all Gentlemen, for your patience and countenane to Raph, a poore fatherlesse child, and if I might see you at my house, it should go hard, but I would haue a pottle of wine and a pipe of Tobacco for you, for truely I hope you do like the youth, but I would bee glad to know the truth : I referre it to your owne discretions, whether you will applaud him or no, for I will winke, and whilst you shall do what you will, I thanke you with all my heart, God giue you good night; come George.
