

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Q. B. Div.

Jan. 13.

THE QUEEN ON THE PROSECUTION OF RICHARD MORLEY v. KING AND OTHERS, JUSTICES FOR MANCHESTER.

Wine and Beerhouse Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 27), ss. 8, 19—Certificate of Justices for Excise Licence for sale of Beer, Cider or Wine—Application by Holder of Licence in force on 1st May, 1869—Jurisdiction of Justices—Vested Right—Mandamus—Return of Obedience—Pleading—Replication.

Per LORD ESHER, M.R., and FRY and LOPES, L.J.J. :—

Sect. 19 of the Wines and Beerhouse Act, 1869, which preserves vested rights in respect of excise licenses for the sale of beer, cider, or wine which were in force on the 1st of May, 1869, is to be read distributively, reddendo singula singulis, and the meaning of it is, that an application to justices for a certificate for a renewal of such a licence for the sale of any one of those articles cannot be refused, except on one or more of the four grounds specified in sect. 8 of the Act.

But the fact that a beer licence was in force for a house on the 1st of May, 1869, does not give the occupier of that house any privilege under sect. 19 with regard to an application for a certificate for a wine licence or a cider licence, and the justices have an absolute discretion as to granting the certificate, just as if the application was an entirely new one.

Decision of Charles, J., reversed.

If, to a mandamus to justices to hear and determine a matter, they make a return of unqualified obedience, a replication that the justices had declined to exercise a jurisdiction which they possessed, and had determined the matter, assuming to exercise a jurisdiction which they did not possess, will be a good plea, and the Court must then decide whether the justices have exceeded their jurisdiction.

Henn Collins, Q.C., and R. S. Wright, for the justices.

Bosanquet, Q.C., and J. Paterson, for the prosecutor.

KENT'S CASE.

Company—Shares—Payment in Cash—Debt due from Company to Shareholder applied in payment of future Calls—Companies Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 131), s. 25.

By the articles of association of the above company the directors were empowered to receive from members any moneys due upon their shares beyond the sums actually called for. K., who was a shareholder in the company, purchased a debt due from the company, and on the 2nd of April, 1886, requested the directors to transfer from the amount due in respect of the debt a sum sufficient to pay up in full the shares standing in his name, and on the same day at a meeting of the directors it was resolved that the debt be so applied. Nothing further was done in order to carry the transaction into effect, no entry was made in the books of the company (other than the minute of the resolution) in reference to the shares, nor was any contract in writing registered under the Companies Act, 1867, sect. 25. On the 20th of April, 1886, an order was made for the winding-up of the company, and K.'s name was placed upon the list of contributories. The liquidator took out a summons to enforce the payment by K. of a call of 811. made in the winding-up in respect of his shares.

Marten, Q.C., and Vernon Smith, for the liquidator.

The respondent, K., in person contended that the shares were fully paid up, and relied on Ferrao's Case (Law Rep. 9 Ch. 355), and Spargo's Case (Law Rep. 8 Ch. 407).

KAY, J., said that as nothing had been done to give effect to the contract entered into between K. and the directors there had been no payment for the shares within the principle of Ferrao's Case. The ratio decidendi there was, that the actual writing off in the books of the company of the amount due in respect of shares was equivalent to payment. Here there was nothing but the agreement between K. and the directors, which was not carried into effect by any entry in the books of the company, or in any other way. His Lordship therefore held that as the requirements of the Companies Act, 1867, sect. 25, had not been complied with, K. was liable to pay the amount claimed.

PESCOD v. PESCOD.

Dec. 21, 1887.

Arbitration—Umpire—Drawing Lots for—Irregularity—Injunction.

The plaintiff and defendant were partners, and disputes having arisen between them, a reference to arbitration was proposed under a provision for that purpose in the partnership deed. Two arbitrators were thereupon appointed, one by each side. The arbitrators first met at an hotel, the plaintiff and defendant and solicitors being present. The arbitrators—the other parties having left the room—then proceeded to appoint an umpire, each proposing a name the other had not heard of. Ultimately the arbitrators agreed to decide the choice by lot. Accordingly the two names were written down on separate slips of paper and thrown into a hat. A waiter called in for the purpose, drew out one of the names, and thereupon the arbitrators settled that the person bearing that name should act as umpire, and they subsequently wrote and signed his appointment as umpire on the back of one of his business cards. The arbitrators afterwards held several meetings, but without being able to agree, and now the defendant moved for an injunction to restrain the umpire from acting, on the ground of the irregularity of his appointment.

Marten, Q.C., and Ward, for the defendant.

Benshaw, Q.C., and Church, for the plaintiff, relied on Neale v. Ledger (16 East, 51), followed in In re Hopper (2 Q. B. D. 367).

KAY, J., said that if the case had been that, before drawing lots, the person ultimately appointed umpire had been known to both the arbitrators, and they had both agreed that he was a fit man to act as umpire, and one to whom no kind of objection could be made, it was possible that the case might have come within Lord Ellenborough's decision in Neale v. Ledger, and the appointment might have been free from objection; but here, the name proposed not being known to one of the arbitrators, the case was committed to the decision of the goddess of fortune, and that arbitrator then assented to the appointment of an umpire of whom he knew nothing. That appeared to be a neglect of his official duty. The broad line of demarcation laid down by Lord Ellenborough's decision should be followed with the greatest possible caution, for an arbitrator entrusted with the duty of appointing an umpire had no right to evade what was a judicial duty by leaving the appointment to chance. The appointment in the present case was not a good appointment, and therefore there must be an injunction restraining the person appointed from acting as umpire. No order as to costs.

Kay, J. In re Bourgoise, Infants. Jan. 11.
French Subject—Certificate of Naturalization—Status—Naturalization Act, 1870 (33 Vict. c. 14), s. 7—Code Civile.

In 1861, M. Bourgoise, a French subject, came over to this country, and in 1871 he obtained the usual certificate of naturalization under the Naturalization Act, 1870 (33 Vict. c. 14) containing this qualification—which was in the same terms as the "qualification" in s. 7—"that he shall not, when within the limits of the foreign state of which he was a subject previously to his obtaining his certificate of naturalization, be deemed to be a British subject unless he has ceased to be a subject of that state in pursuance of the laws thereof, or in pursuance of a treaty to that effect." In 1879 M. Bourgoise married an English lady, and in 1880 he returned to France with his wife, and until his death they resided in or near Paris. There were two children of the marriage, both being born in France, and their births being registered at the British Embassy in Paris. In October, 1886, M. Bourgoise died near Paris, having, by his will, which was in French, given the residue of his property, half of which was in England, and the other half in France, to his two children. His widow died in France in June, 1887, and the infants' paternal grandmother was thereupon appointed in France as their guardian.

This was an application by the two infant children, by their half-brother, as their next friend, for his appointment as guardian of their persons and estates.

Benshaw, Q.C., Stock, and Benn, for the infants.

Marten, Q.C., and Farwell, for the French guardian and the other French relatives of the father, were not called upon.

KAY, J., said the case depended on art. 17 of the French Code Civile, which said, "La qualité de Français se perdra 1° par la naturalisation acquise en pays étranger." That meant an absolute naturalization—not a qualified one as in the present case: and the point was, would a qualified naturalization deprive a natural-born French subject of his status? The French Imperial decree of the 26th of August, 1811, provided, in art. 1, that no Frenchman could be naturalized in a foreign country without the authority of the French Government; and no such authority had been obtained in the present case. According to the qualification in the certificate of naturalization, M. Bourgoise was, at the moment of his death, a subject of the French Government, and therefore his children, who were living in France at their father's death, were also then subjects of the French Government. His Lordship accordingly held that, as the father was at the time of his death a French subject and as his children were then also French subjects, the Court had no jurisdiction, and dismissed the summons, with costs to be paid by the next friend.

Chitty, J. In re SILVA'S TRUSTS. Jan. 14.
Chancery Division—Jurisdiction—Person of unsound Mind not so found—Guardianship and Maintenance—Amount of Fund.

A person of unsound mind not so found became absolutely entitled, on the deaths of his parents in 1885, to a fund consisting of about 1500*l.* Reduced 3 per cents., 1216*l.* New 3 per cents., 4200*l.* Consols, and 75*l.* Bank Stock. The fund was in 1887 paid into Court under the Trustee Relief Act, 1850 by trustees, of whom his brother, a respondent on the present application, was one. For some years prior to 1885 his parents had made an allowance to his wife for his support, and various sums had subsequently been advanced to her for the same purpose by the trustees, until the fund was paid into Court. A petition was now presented under the Trustee Relief Act, 1850, another brother acting as next friend, for the payment of the annual income of the fund to the wife, with whom and in whose care he was living,

The income of the fund amounted to about 212*l.* per annum. The petitioner had no other property, and it was not possible to obtain an order in lunacy. There was evidence that the entire income was properly required for his maintenance.

G. Broke Freeman, for the petitioner.

Jeaffreson, for the respondents.

Vane v. Vane (2 Ch. D. 124), and In re Bligh (12 Ch. D. 364), were referred to.

CHITTY, J., held that it was not necessary to appoint any person in the nature of a guardian, and directed the entire annual income to be paid to the wife during the life of the petitioner or until further order, she undertaking to apply it for his maintenance, comfort, and support.

North, J. In re BALKIS CONSOLIDATED COMPANY. Jan. 13.
Company—Transfer of Shares not sealed—Validity.

This was a motion by L. Lehmann, under sect. 35 of the Companies Act, 1862, to rectify the share register of the company, by substituting his name as the holder of 455 shares in lieu of that of A. J. Arnott, in whose name they stood. The articles of association of the company provided that transfers of shares must be made by deed. Arnott deposited the certificates of the shares with Barnard, to secure a loan, and signed a blank transfer of the shares, and handed it to Barnard. Barnard filled up the transfer with the name of Lehmann as transferee, and deposited it and the certificates with Lehmann as security for a loan. Afterwards Barnard sold the shares, and Lehmann executed the transfer as transferee, and sent it to the company's office for registration, to enable Barnard to complete the sale. Arnott gave notice to the company not to register any transfer of the shares, on the ground that he had executed the transfer in blank, and that his signature had been improperly obtained. In the transfer there was no seal, or wafer in place of a seal, opposite Arnott's signature, but only a circle printed on the paper, with the words "place for seal" in the middle of it. A clerk of Barnard had attested the transfer as "signed, sealed, and delivered" by Arnott, in his presence; but the clerk did not make any affidavit on this motion.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Grosvenor Woods, for the motion.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Boome, for Arnott.

Cookson, Q.C., and G. P. Macdonell, for the company.

NORTH, J., refused the motion. He could not hold that the mark of "place for seal" could supply the place of a seal so as to make the document a deed. There was not sufficient evidence to enable him to decide whether the document had been sealed and delivered as Arnott's deed. The costs would be reserved, that the parties might have an opportunity of bringing an action.

DRAKE v. KERSHAW.

Will—Construction—Bequest of Leasehold House—Contract by Testator to Purchase Leasehold Reversion—Liability of Legatee to pay purchase-money—Locke King's Act Amendment Act (40 & 41 Vict. c. 34), s. 1.

A testator, by his will, dated the 19th November, 1884, bequeathed to his wife the leasehold house in which he then resided. In February, 1887, the testator entered into a contract to purchase the reversionary ground lease, under which his lessor held the house, for 2050*l.* The testator died on the 3rd March, 1887, the purchase not having been then completed. After his death the testator's executors completed the purchase. The question was, what interest passed to the widow under the bequest, and whether she was entitled to the leasehold interest which belonged to the testator at the date of his will without performing the contract subsequently entered into by him, or whether she was entitled to have the contract carried out at the expense of the estate for her benefit.

Phipson Beale, for the executors.

Everitt, Q.C., and Carson, for the widow.

NORTH, J., held, that all the testator's interest in the house passed to the widow, subject to her liability to pay the purchase-money out of her own moneys. He was of opinion that sect. 1 of the Act 40 & 41 Vict. c. 34, which amends Locke King's Act, applies to leaseholds.

Patent—Provisional Specification—Complete Specification—Servant—Waiver.

This was an action to restrain the infringement of a patent for moving heavy forgings under the hammer.

Sir R. Webster, A.G., Aston, Q.C., and Lawson, for the plaintiff.

Sir H. James, Q.C., Moulton, Q.C., and Bousfield, for the defendants.

KEKEWICH, J., held on the questions raised by the defendants: that the plaintiff was the first and true inventor; that the invention had utility though it might not be commercially successful; that though the claim in the complete specification was wanting in precision it was fairly intelligible when read and construed with the figures and the letterpress; that the provisional specification was not necessarily bad because it did not describe one of the processes claimed in the complete specification, but that the complete specification must first be read, and then it must be ascertained whether on a fair interpretation each essential part was covered by the former, and his Lordship held that it was so. The plaintiff had formerly been in the employment of the defendants, who had then made use of the invention, but this was not a waiver of the plaintiff's rights, nor could it be construed as a perpetual license to the defendants. An injunction must be granted against the defendants.

Kekewich, J. LIVERPOOL AND MANCHESTER CAUSES. Jan. 11.

Place of Trial—London—Assizes.

Barber, Q.C., as amicus Curie, said that it was doubtful whether his Lordship had power to hear in this Court the Liverpool and Manchester causes, the hearing of which was proposed for Monday next. Under Order xxxvi. r. 22A, if, as was the case, there were not on the 1st of December ten or more such causes sat down for trial, the causes were to be tried at the next Liverpool or Manchester Assizes. Order v. r. 9, under which the causes had been assigned to his Lordship, did not say where the causes were to be tried.

Warmington, Q.C., also as amicus Curie, referred to the order.

KEKEWICH, J., said that probably when Order xxxvi. r. 22A. was made, there was not any idea of a judge in London taking Liverpool and Manchester cases. If any one applied to the Court to change the place of trial, his Lordship had jurisdiction to change it to London, and he thought he could make the order nunc pro tunc at the trial; but if either party objected the trial could not be proceeded with. On further consideration his Lordship thought that he could not hear the causes as proposed.

COURT OF APPEAL.

FROM Q. B. DIV. Jan. 16.
 REAL AND PERSONAL ADVANCE COMPANY, LIMITED v. OLEARS.
 Bill of Sale—Bills of Sale Act (1878) Amendment Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 43), ss. 7, 9—Form in Schedule, Deviation from—Covenant necessary for maintaining the Security.

Appeal from the judgment of the Queen's Bench Division, affirming the decision of the judge of the Westminster County Court.

The facts were as follows:—The plaintiffs in the action claimed under a bill of sale, and the sole question was whether such bill of sale was good. The bill of sale was given by way of security for a sum of money and interest thereon at 40 per cent per annum, and it was provided that, if the mortgagor did not pay the rent, rates, taxes and outgoing of the premises, on which the goods assigned might be, within seven days after the same respectively became payable, the mortgagees might, if they thought fit, pay such rent, rates, taxes, and outgoings, and all sums of money so paid by the mortgagees, with interest thereon after the rate aforesaid, should be charged on the goods assigned and be recoverable in the same manner as the principal moneys and interest secured by the bill of sale. The County Court judge held the bill of sale bad as not in accordance with the Bills of Sale Act, 1882, on the authority of Bianchi v. Offord (17 Q. B. D. 484). He accordingly gave judgment for the defendant.

Bozall, for the plaintiffs.

J. F. Clerk, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.) thought that Bianchi v. Offord (17 Q. B. D. 484) was rightly decided and that the judgment of the County Court judge was consequently correct. They therefore dismissed the appeal.

Appeal dismissed.

KNEBWORTH ESTATE TRUSTS.

Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 26—Permanent Improvements—Approval of Scheme—Payment out of Capital Moneys.

A scheme for the permanent improvement of settled property by providing an additional water supply, and thus rendering it available as a building estate, was submitted to the trustees for their approval by the tenant for life, and by them approved. In the execution of the works specified in the scheme the amount named in the original contract was considerably exceeded:—

Held (per Lord Halsbury, L.C., Cotton and Bowen, L.J.J.) that such extra expenditure having been fairly and properly incurred in carrying out the scheme, the tenant for life was entitled to an order under the Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 26, for payment of the whole amount out of capital moneys forming part of the settled property in the hands of the trustees.

Practice—Costs—Taxation—General Costs of Action—Claim and Counter-claim—Entry of Judgment—Taxation where Plaintiff succeeds on Claim and Defendant on Counter-claim—Order XXI. r. 17.
 Appeal from a decision of the Queen's Bench Division refusing to order a review of taxation of costs.
 Claim for damages for breach of the defendants' agreement with the plaintiff to light a hall by electricity.
 Counter-claim for the contract price alleged to be due from the plaintiff to the defendants for lighting the hall. At the trial before Pollock, B. and a jury, a verdict was taken by consent for the plaintiff for 50*l.* on the claim, and for the defendants for 80*l.* on the counter-claim. Costs to be taxed according to the ordinary practice upon a trial by jury with such a result. Judgment was entered according to the terms of that verdict. The plaintiff obtained an order for taxation of his costs on the High Court scale. The master having taxed the plaintiff's and the defendants' costs, the defendants carried in objections to the taxation. The objections to the taxation of the plaintiff's costs were on the ground that the master (except as to certain items which he had disallowed) had allowed the plaintiff all such items as he would have been entitled to if he had a right to the general costs of the action. The objections to the taxation of the defendant's costs were on the ground that the master had disallowed all such items as the defendants were entitled to as being the parties entitled to the general costs of the action.

Upon a summons taken out by the defendants for a review of taxation, or that the judgment be reformed so that judgment be entered for the defendants for 80*l.* with full costs of action to be taxed, a judge in chambers refused to make any order.

On appeal, a Divisional Court (Stephen and Charles, J.J.) affirmed the judge's decision.

The defendants appealed.

H. F. Boyd, for the defendants.

H. Kisch, for the respondent.

Cur. adv. vult.

Jan. 23. THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.) affirmed the decision of the Divisional Court, and held that, under Order XXI, r. 17, the judge at the trial had a discretionary power to enter judgment for the defendants for the balance of the sum they recovered over the sum recovered by the plaintiff; that the entry of judgment did not affect the question of the right taxation of costs where the defendant recovered a larger sum on the counter-claim than the defendant recovered on his claim; that in such a case, where the counter-claim was in respect of matters which could not be pleaded as a set-off to the plaintiff's claim, the claim and counter-claim must be treated as independent cross actions for the purposes of taxation, and therefore that the objections to the master's taxation failed.

From Ch. Div. BORTHWICK v. THE EVENING POST. Jan. 23.
Trade Name—Newspaper—Injunction.

This was an appeal from a judgment of Kay, J. The plaintiff was the proprietor of the Morning Post, and the defendants were a limited company recently incorporated by registration. They had published an evening paper under the name of "The Evening Post," with which is incorporated The Daily Recorder." The words "The Evening Post" were in the usual large Old English type which London daily papers use for their titles, and the other words were in a separate line, in smaller type. Protest had been made previously to the issue of the first number of the defendants' paper, on behalf of the plaintiff, against the use of the words "The Evening Post," with a threat of legal proceedings. Evidence was given on behalf of the plaintiff that some twenty persons, some shortly before, and the others shortly after, the first appearance of the Evening Post, applied at the office of the Morning Post for copies of the new paper under the impression that it was published at the same office as the Morning Post. There was no evidence that the proprietor of the Morning Post had any intention of publishing an evening edition of his paper under the name of the Evening Post.

Under the circumstances, Kay, J., granted a perpetual injunction, and the defendants appealed.

Renshaw, Q.C., Levett, and B. Farrer, for the appellants.

Marten Q.C., and Begg, for the plaintiff.

COLERIDGE, L.C.J., said this was not a case in which the very name, or a colourable imitation of the name, of the plaintiff's publication had been assumed by the defendants, under which circumstances there was plenty of authority that the Court could interfere by injunction. But the complaint was that the assumption of the name Evening Post was intended by the defendants to indicate, and would be taken by the public to indicate, a connection between that paper and the Morning Post, so that the defendants might get an advantage from that supposed connection; and it was said that this was a misrepresentation on the part of the defendants which would produce an injury to the plaintiff. He did not say that, if it had been clearly made out that damage was likely to happen to the plaintiff through this conduct of the defendants this Court would not interfere, but it did not appear to him that there was any evidence that such injury had happened or was likely to happen to the plaintiff. Under these circumstances he did not think that there was enough in the case to warrant the interference of the Court, and the judgment of Mr. Justice Kay must be reversed and the action dismissed; but as he could not help suspecting that the defendants took the name of the Evening Post, because of the existence of the Morning Post, and thinking that the public might possibly infer that there was a connection between the papers, he was of opinion that the action ought to be dismissed without costs.

COTTON and BOWEN, L.J.J., gave judgment to the same effect.

Practice—Partition Actions—Partition Act, 1876 (39 & 40 Vict. c. 17), s. 6—Person of Unsound Mind—Next Friend.

This was an appeal by the plaintiff from a decision of North, J. (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 232).

Cookson Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and Rawlins, for the motion.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Jason Smith, contra.

THE COURT (Cotton and Bowen, L.J.J.) dismissed the appeal, saying that the Court allowed a person of sane mind to take proceedings as next friend of a person of unsound mind, to whom the taking them was beneficial; that the observations of James, L.J., in Halfhide v. Robinson (Law Rep. 9 Ch. 373), were to be construed with reference to the circumstances of that case and taken in a limited sense; and that proceedings for a partition were prima facie beneficial to a part owner, and might be taken by a next friend for him. That the suit therefore ought not to be stopped in limine, the question whether a next friend could give an effectual consent to a sale not arising till the trial.

Costs—Taxation—Refresher Fees to Counsel—Appeal from Chancery Division—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LXV. r. 21, sub-rr. 30, 37, 38, 48.

This was an appeal by the plaintiffs from an order of North, J. (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 185).

Grosvenor Woods, for the appeal.

W. D. Rawlins, for the defendants, having stated, in answer to a question from the Court, that he did not dispute the existence of a discretion in the taxing master to allow something to counsel in addition to the original fee on their briefs, was not called upon.

THE COURT (Cotton and Bowen, L.J.J.) dismissed the appeal, saying that Svendson v. Wallace (16 Q. B. D. 27) and the order of North, J., in the present case had been misunderstood, for that neither of them decided that the taxing master might allow daily refreshers as fixed sums in the same way as in witness cases, but only that it was in his discretion to allow an addition to counsels' fees as originally marked. The appeal was therefore dismissed.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

Kay, J. HATTEN v. RUSSELL. Jan. 18.
Tenant for Life—Sale—Settled Land Acts, 1882, 1884—No Trustees at Date of Contract or at Time fixed for Completion—Title-Defect—Purchaser's Right to repudiate—Specific Performance.

A tenant for life under a will sold settled land under the Settled Land Act, 1882, by auction, subject to conditions of sale which stipulated that the purchase should be completed on the 29th of September, 1886, and that if the purchase was not completed on that day, the purchaser should pay interest till completion, but there was no stipulation that time should be of the essence of the contract. An objection was raised by the purchaser, in his requisitions on title, that there were no trustees in existence for the purposes of the Act. The vendor at first contended that the two trustees of the will were trustees within the meaning of the Act, but afterwards, on the 6th of October, took out a summons for the appointment of trustees under the Act, and on the same day informed the purchaser that he had done so. The purchaser, however, replied that as a good title had not been shewn, and the day fixed for completion had passed, the purchase was at an end, and asked for the return of his deposit.

By an order made on the summons on the 29th of October trustees for the purposes of the Act were duly appointed, and thereupon, under sect. 5 (sub-s. 3) of the Settled Land Act, 1884, they waived notice of the sale.

The purchaser insisting on his contract, the purchaser, on the 3rd of November, brought this action for the return of his deposit, the vendor counter-claiming for specific performance.

Benshaw, Q.C., and Dauney, for the plaintiff.

Miller, Q.C., and Chubb, for the defendant.

KAY, J., said the scheme of the Settled Land Act appeared to be clearly this—that a tenant for life, quid tenant for life, had, except in certain instances pointed out by the Act, an absolute and unfettered right to sell. The consent of the trustees under the Act to a sale by the tenant for life was not wanted except in one case mentioned in sect. 15. Accordingly, in the present case, the fact of there being no trustees for the purposes of the Act in existence at the time of the sale, was a defect of conveyance rather than a defect in the vendor's title to sell, the title being a perfectly good one. Even if the defect had been one of title, the purchaser was not entitled to repudiate without first giving the vendor a reasonable time to remove the defect. The purchaser had been clearly wrong, for he had brought this action after he knew that what he called the defect of title had been actually removed, and after the vendor was in a position to give him a complete conveyance. The action must be dismissed, and judgment given for the defendant on the counter-claim, with costs.

In re FAURE ELECTRIC ACCUMULATOR COMPANY.

Practice—Company—Winding-up—Summons by Liquidator—Companies Act, 1862, s. 165—Witness Action, setting down as—Cross-examination by Chief Clerk—Examiner of the Court.

In this case the liquidators of the company, which was in course of winding-up, had taken out a summons under sect. 165 of the Companies Act, 1862, to make the directors liable for misfeasance and breach of trust. Numerous affidavits had been filed for and against the summons. The liquidators applied to the chief clerk to have the summons entered in the list of witness actions and the cross-examination of the deponents taken in Court at the hearing, but the chief clerk made an order refusing the application. The liquidators now moved to discharge that order.

Benshaw, Q.C., and Grosvenor Woods, for the liquidators, argued that it would be much more convenient to have the summons treated as a witness action. If the cross-examination took place before the chief clerk, or one of the examiners of the Court, a great deal of irrelevant matter would be gone into and much time thus unnecessarily occupied.

Miller, Q.C., and J. E. Woodroffe, for the directors.

KAY, J., refused to discharge the chief clerk's order. The Legislature had not directed these summonses to be heard as causes. They were heard as summonses on affidavit evidence, and any cross-examination upon the affidavits must take place before one of the examiners of the Court. To support an application for such a summons to be put into the list of witness causes, the parties must make out a special case. The only part of his business which his Lordship could not keep down was his witness causes, and he declined to add to the list of those causes unnecessarily. The present case did not differ from other cases under sect. 165, and his Lordship had no right to incumber his cause-list with cases of this description on such grounds as had been urged. It did not follow, however, that, when all the evidence had been taken by cross-examination before an examiner, the Court would, on the summons coming on to be heard, be entirely satisfied with that evidence: no doubt the Court could require the attendance before it of any witness it pleased, and the judge might himself cross-examine that witness to any extent necessary to enable him to do justice between the parties. It was said that the chief clerk would be ready to take the cross-examination himself, but his Lordship would prefer that the chief clerk did not do so, as the business in chambers was already very heavy. The chief clerk might take the cross-examination of witnesses in cases in which he required evidence to enable him to make his certificate; but that was not this case. In his Lordship's opinion this case was one which should rather go before an examiner of the Court.

WICKS v. WICKS.

Practice—Transmission of Interest—Bankruptcy of Person served with Notice of Judgment—Application to carry on Proceedings—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XVI, r. 40; Order XVII, r. 4.

Action by some of the beneficiaries against the trustees and executors of the will, of whom A. was one, for administration of the testator's estate, commenced in July, 1881. A few days before issue of the writ, A., who was also beneficially interested in part of the estate as tenant for life, presented a petition for liquidation of her affairs, under which J., very shortly after the issue of the writ, in which A. had been named as a defendant, was appointed trustee. J. was served with notice of the administration judgment and obtained leave to attend the proceedings. In 1887, J. became bankrupt and W. was appointed in his place as trustee in the liquidation of A.

A petition of course under Order XVII r. 4, for an order to carry on proceedings between the continuing parties and W. having been presented by the persons having the conduct of the action the registrar objected to make the order on the ground that the effect would be to place as formal defendant on the record a successor in interest to a person who had not himself been made a defendant. He suggested that W. could either attend without any order, or should be served with notice of the proceedings under Order XVI r. 40.

G. Broke Freeman applied to the Court, and submitted that the proper course was to proceed by petition of course under Order XVII r. 4, and not by the more costly form of procedure under Order XVI r. 40.

CHITTY, J., having ascertained that it had not hitherto been the practice on transmission of the interest of a person not actually plaintiff or defendant, but only bound by service of notice of the judgment, to bring the successor before the Court by order on petition of course, held that the procedure under Order XVI. r. 40, and not that under Order XVII. r. 4, was applicable to the case, and accordingly directed W. to be served with notice of the judgment in the action.

Company—Purchase of Undertaking—Surplus after Payment of Debts, &c.—Division between ordinary Shareholders and preference Shareholders.

Summons by the voluntary liquidators of the company to determine how a sum (estimated at 900,000*l.*) was to be divided among two classes (ordinary and preference) of shareholders of the company. The articles of association enabled the company to create capital with a preferential right to dividend or priority in the distribution of assets; that no dividend should be paid, except out of the profits of the company arising from the business of the company, as shewn upon the balance sheet, which should from time to time have been examined and passed by the auditors; that, subject to the setting aside of a reserve fund, and subject to any arrangement which might from time to time have been entered into relative to the remuneration of any manager or other officer of the company by way of commission or percentage on the net profits of the company, or on any part thereof, the entire net profits of each year should belong to the holders of the shares of the company, and be divided pro rata upon the whole paid-up share capital of the company, and that the directors might, with the sanction of a general meeting, declare a dividend to be payable thereout on the shares, in proportion to the amounts paid up thereon. The company issued 30,000 shares of 10*l.* each, entitling the holders thereof to a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum upon the amount for the time being called up thereon, and taking precedence of and priority over all dividends and claims of the holders of the ordinary shares of the company. These preference shares were all issued and paid-up in full. The ordinary shares of the company were 100,000 of 10*l.* each, on each of which 3*l.* 10*s.* had been paid up. The dividend of 5 per cent. was annually paid to the preference shareholders, and an average dividend of 8 per cent. was paid to the ordinary shareholders. The Manchester Ship Canal Company, under the provisions of their Special Act, purchased the undertaking of the Bridgewater Company for a sum of 1,710,000*l.* The Act contained no provision as to the mode in which the purchase money was to be divided among the shareholders of the Bridgewater Company. The Bridgewater Company resolved on a voluntary liquidation, and the purchase-money was paid to the liquidators. The preference shareholders claimed, that the surplus of the fund (after discharging all the debts and liabilities of the company, and paying the costs of the liquidation, and repaying to the shareholders the capital which they had paid up) should be divided among all the shareholders (ordinary and preference) in proportion to the amounts which had been paid up on their shares respectively. The ordinary shareholders contended that the preference shareholders were only entitled to be repaid the capital which they had paid up, with interest at 5 per cent. and that the remainder of the surplus ought to be divided among the ordinary shareholders.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Phipson Beale, for the liquidators.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and O. Leigh Clark, for the ordinary shareholders.

Buckley, Q.C., and Swinfen Eady; and Upjohn; for the preference shareholders.

NORTH, J., held that the surplus in question was not "profit" divisible under the articles of association. The parties had not entered into any contract as to the mode of division of the surplus, and it must be divided on equitable principles. In his Lordship's opinion the case was governed by Sheppard v. Scinde Railway Company (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 192; 36 W. R. 1), and, in accordance with the principle of that decision, the surplus must be divided among all the shareholders, in proportion to the amount paid up on their shares respectively.

VICKERS v. VICKERS.

Ademption—Parent and Child—Advancement.

George William Vickers, by his will, dated April, 1867, after giving specific legacies to his wife and sums of 19*l.* 19*s.* to two persons he appointed executors, gave the residue of his estate (which was entirely personal property) subject to a life interest in his wife for the benefit of all his children equally.

The testator directed his executors to sell the lease of his business premises, goodwill, stock-in-trade, and trade assets of his business as bookseller, the proceeds of which were to fall into his residue.

On the 10th of June, 1886, a deed was executed between the testator of the one part and William Edward Vickers, the elder of his two sons, of the other part, by which the lease and other trade assets, including a sum of 500*l.* temporarily employed by the testator in his business, were transferred to William Edward Vickers upon trusts which provided for the younger son being taken into partnership on equal terms with his brother on attaining 21, for the payment of weekly sums to the elder and younger sons in the meanwhile, the payment of 10*l.* a week to the father so long as he lived, and the repayment to him of the 500*l.* with interest, and the accumulation of the surplus property in the meantime for the benefit of the two sons.

The testator died on the 6th of July, 1886, having survived his wife, leaving two sons and three daughters. The sole surviving executor renounced. Letters of administration with the will annexed were granted to the testator's two eldest daughters.

This was an originating summons, to which the two eldest daughters were plaintiffs, and the other three children of the testator were defendants, to have it determined whether the shares of the testator's sons in the residue were deemed to any and what extent by the assignment on trust of the business assets to the eldest son.

Farwell, for the plaintiffs.

Everitt, Q.C. and Monckton, for the sons.

NORTH, J., held that there was ademption to the extent of the value of the property assigned at the date of the assignment.

WALKER v. GAMMAGE.

Administration—Personal Estate—Intestacy—Descendants—Next of Kin—Grandchildren—Per Stirpes or per Capita—Statute of Distributions (22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 10), ss. 3, 5, 6, 7.

A share of the residuary estate of a testatrix, which she had given by her will, lapsed. Her only descendants living at her death were four grandchildren. She had only two children, a son and a daughter, both of whom died before her. Three children of the son, and one child of the daughter, survived the testatrix. The question was, whether, under the Statute of Distributions, the four grandchildren took the lapsed share, so far as it arose from personal estate, per stirpes or per capita.

Marcy, for the executors of the testatrix.

R. F. Norton, for the three children of the son of the testatrix.

F. L. Wright, for the child of the daughter.

Bunting, for the heir-at-law of the testatrix.

NORTH, J., held that the grandchildren took per stirpes. He thought that "next of kindred" in sect. 7 of the statute did not include issue of children of an intestate, but that children, and all their descendants, were included under the terms "children" or "child." He was of opinion that the point had really been decided by Wickens, V.C. in In re Ross's Trusts (Law Rep. 13 Eq. 286), and his decision was in accordance with the opinion expressed by Lord Hardwicke in Lockyer v. Vade (Barnardiston, Chan. Rep. 444).

Vesting Order—Trustee out of Jurisdiction—Mortgages—Trustee Act, 1850, s. 9.

Petition under sect. 9 of the Trustee Act, 1850, for a vesting order. A mortgage in fee to secure 350*l.* was transferred to E. H. Davis, in consideration of 385*l.* expressed to be paid by him to the transferee. Two of the petitioners alleged that the 385*l.* was really their money, and that the name of Davis was used as a trustee for them. Davis had not executed any declaration of trust. He had since been adjudged a bankrupt, and had gone out of the jurisdiction, and he could not be found. The mortgagor joined in the petition. The trustee in the bankruptcy admitted that the 385*l.* was the money of the first two petitioners, not of the bankrupt, and did not claim it on behalf of the bankrupt's estate. The petition asked for an order vesting the mortgaged property in the first two petitioners, subject to the equity of redemption.

Dunning, for the petitioners, said that it had been held in In re Osborn's Mortgage Trusts (Law Rep. 12 Eq. 392) that a mortgagee was not a trustee for the mortgagor within the meaning of sect. 10, which is similar to sect. 9; but that did not apply to the present case.

G. Lawrence, for the trustee in the bankruptcy.

NORTH, J., said that In re Osborn's Mortgage Trusts did not apply. As between the bankrupt and the petitioners he was strictly a trustee for them. The mortgagor was not claiming to make the bankrupt a trustee for him. The order asked for would be made.

Vendor and Purchaser—Misstatement of Value—Compensation.

Summons under the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, by a vendor, to determine whether the purchaser was entitled to compensation in respect of an alleged misstatement in the particulars of sale as to the value of the property. The property was described as "in hand and of the estimated annual value of 400*l.*" There was a condition entitling the purchaser to compensation in case any error or misstatement should appear to have been made in the particulars. The purchaser alleged, and adduced evidence to shew, that the property was not worth more than 200*l.* a year. He did not, however, allege that the vendor's estimate was a dishonest one.

Whinney, for the vendor.

Stallard, for the purchaser.

NORTH, J., said that the statement was that the property was of the "estimated" annual value of 400*l.* It was clear that it was of that "estimated" value. It was admitted that the estimate was not a dishonest one. The condition did not apply. If the estimate had been dishonest, the purchaser might have been able to get rid of his contract. He was not entitled to any compensation.

KEPFERD v. SEACOMBE, HOYLAKH, & CO. RAILWAY COMPANY.

Railway Company—Notice to treat—Part of a House—Stables, &c. across a Road—Lands Clauses Act, 1845, s. 92.

In the year 1853 the plaintiff purchased a piece of land bounded on the south by a private road and erected two semi-detached villas on the land. He occupied one of the villas as his private residence, and let the other at 110*l.* per annum. The freehold of the private road was not vested in the plaintiff. In the year 1864 he purchased a piece of land about three-quarters of an acre in extent on the south side of the private road and opposite to his private residence, and on this land he erected stable, coach-house, two cottages, green-houses, &c., and from thenceforth used and occupied the same as part of his premises on the north side of the private road. In January, 1887, the defendant company served the plaintiff with the usual notice to treat for the stables, &c, on the south side of the private road, and he served the defendant company with a counter-notice requiring them to take his premises on both sides of the road, on the ground that his premises on the south side were part of his house, on the north side of the road; and this action was instituted to determine that question.

Warmington, Q.C., and Chadwyck Healey, for the plaintiff.

Barber, Q.C., and R. Neville, for the defendant company.

KEKEWICH, J., being of opinion that the premises on the south side of the road would not have passed under a conveyance of the house on the north side of the road, held that the same premises were not part of the plaintiff's house within the meaning of sect. 92 of the Lands Clauses Act, 1845, and accordingly gave judgment for the defendant company with costs.

Case stated on appeal against an order made by the stipendiary magistrate for Hull empowering the guardians to enforce a contribution from a trade union of which the appellant was secretary, in respect of the expense of maintaining a pauper lunatic. By the Poor Law Act, 1876, sect. 23, where a pauper lunatic is "a member of a friendly society," and is as such entitled to any "annuity or periodical payment," the "trustee or other person bound to make payment" to the pauper may be required to pay such sum over to the guardians. By the Trade Union Act, 1871, s. 4 "nothing in this Act shall enable any Court to entertain any legal proceeding instituted with the object of directly enforcing or recovering damages for the breach of" inter alia "any agreement for the application of the funds of a trade union to provide benefits to members."

R. S. Wright, for appellant.

Q. B. Div. REG v. WILSON. Jan. 19.

Charity Commission—Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, 1874—“Regularity of proceeding under scheme to be determined conclusively by the Commissioners.”

A rule nisi had been granted for a quo warranto to invalidate the election of Mr. Wilson as one of the five representative governors of Crosthwaite School, Cumberland, who are elected by the vestry of Crosthwaite pursuant to a scheme of the Charity Commissioners. It appeared that the Charity Commissioners, on the application of the chairman of the vestry of Crosthwaite, had decided that the representative governor was duly elected.

By clause 69 of the scheme "any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceeding under the scheme shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners upon such application made to them for the purpose as they think sufficient."

A. J. Ram, shewed cause.

Austin, in support of the rule.

THE COURT (Mathew and A. L. Smith, JJ.) discharged the rule on the ground that the validity of the election was a "proceeding under the scheme" and that its validity had been "determined conclusively" by the Charity Commissioners under clause 69.

Appeal from a decision of the Registrar of the County Court of Newcastle-on-Tyne dismissing a bankruptcy petition.

The appellant was plaintiff, the respondent was defendant in an action of *Riddell v. An order having been made dismissing the action for want of prosecution with costs, the respondent served the appellant with a notice in bankruptcy under sec. 4, sub-s (g) of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, in which the respondent claimed the costs as due under a "final judgment." Non-compliance with this notice was the act of bankruptcy relied on in the petition.

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Ch. Div. LUCAS v. MARTIN. Jan. 26.

Bankruptcy—Scheme of Arrangement—Approval of Scheme by the Court—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, ss. 18, 23, sub-ss. 1, 2.

This was an appeal from a decision of North, J.

F. Curtois was adjudicated bankrupt on the 18th of March, 1885, and the plaintiff was appointed the trustee in his bankruptcy. On the 2nd of April, 1885, an agreement in writing was made between the plaintiff and the defendants by which it was agreed that the defendants should purchase all the real and personal estate of the bankrupt upon the following terms: that they should pay to the plaintiff such a sum of money as would be sufficient to pay all costs and expenses and the preferential debts in full, and a composition of 15s. in the pound to all the unsecured creditors at the times therein named; and that upon the approval of the scheme by the Court the bankruptcy should be annulled by the Court.

A meeting of the creditors was held on the 15th of April which the statutory majority of creditors passed a resolution accepting the offer of the defendants to purchase the assets of the terms of the agreement, but adding a provision that the defendants should enter into a bond with the plaintiff for securing the payment of the purchase-money. This resolution was duly confirmed at a subsequent meeting of the creditors. The official receiver reported these proceedings to the Court and on the 11th of June an order was made by the Court Judge of Lincolnshire approving of the purchase upon the terms mentioned in the agreement, and annulling the adjudication. No reference was made in the order to the new term respecting the bond. Disputes having arisen as to the construction of the agreement the defendants refused to complete the contract, and the trustee by direction of the Court brought an action for specific performance of the agreement of the 2nd of April, 1885.

North, J., held that the defendants never having consented to the new term respecting the bond, the agreement, as made by them, had not been accepted by the creditors or approved by the Court and could not be enforced against the defendants.

He therefore dismissed the action. From this decision the plaintiff appealed.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Rashleigh, for the appellant.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and R. J. Parker, for the defendants.

THE COURT (Coleridge, L.C.J., Cotton and Bowen, L.JJ.) were of opinion that the view taken of the case by North, J., was correct, and dismissed the appeal.

MAGNUS v. QUEENSLAND NATIONAL BANK.

Mortgagor and Mortgagee—Bank—Loan to Customer—Transfer by three Persons to secure Loan—Transfer to Nominees of Customer after Loan paid off.

Cookson Crackanorpe, Q.C., Rigby, Q.C., and Farwell, for the appeal.

Romer, Q.C., and G. Henderson, for the plaintiffs.

THE COURT (Lord Halsbury, L.C., and Cotton and Bowen, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal, holding, that when the loan by the bank to Goldsmid was paid off, the authority given to him by the deed of transfer was at an end; that the bank had no right to transfer to purchasers from him; and that they were not protected by the money having come to the hands of Goldsmid as the broker of the trustees, for that he had no authority to sell as he did, and therefore no authority to receive the purchase-money.

Bankruptcy—Examination respecting Property of Bankrupt—Refusal of Witness to answer—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 27.

Appeal against an order made by Mr. Registrar Linklater, refusing to order a witness, summoned for examination under sect. 27 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, to answer certain questions, and discharging him from further attendance under his subpœna.

The witness refused to answer the questions, on the ground that they did not relate to the property of the bankrupt, and the registrar thought that he was bound by the decision of Cave, J., in In re Purvis (56 L. T. (N.S.) 579) to accept the witness's answer as true. The trustee in the bankruptcy appealed, and asked by his notice of appeal for an order directing the witness to submit himself for examination touching his dealings with the property of the bankrupt.

The notice was served only on the witness.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and Yelverton, for the trustee.

The witness appeared in person.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that, as the witness had not refused to answer any question which the registrar had ordered him to answer, but had acted in accordance with the registrar's decision, he could not properly be made a respondent to such a notice of appeal. The appeal must be dismissed. And, as to In re Purvis, his Lordship was authorized by Cave, J., to say that he did not intend to decide that, when a witness was being examined under sect. 27, the Court was bound by his first answer that a question did not relate to the bankrupt's property, or that he could not be further questioned about it. Cave, J., only intended to say, that in the end the witness's answer must be accepted, and that witnesses could not be called to contradict him. The appeal would be dismissed, without prejudice to any application to the registrar for an order that the witness should attend and be examined.

Sir A. Watson, Q.C., and R. F. Norton, for the appellant.

Romer, Q.C., and Ingle Joyce, for the executors.

THE COURT (Lord Halsbury, L.C., and Cotton and Bowen, L.JJ.) held that as there was nothing which in strictness answered the description of "My property at R.'s Bank," the Court had to ascertain what the testator intended by a description which did not apply accurately to anything; that regard must be had to the common use of language; that no one meaning to give the balance standing to his credit at his bankers would describe it as "property at my bankers," and that the shares must be held to be included in the gift.

Bill of Sale—Validity—Security for Money comprising both Personal Chattels and "Trade Machinery" not "Personal Chattels"—Departure from Statutory Form—Bills of Sale Act, 1882, s. 9—Bills of Sale Act, 1878, ss. 4, 5.

Appeal against a decision of a Divisional Court (Cave and A. L. Smith, JJ.) declaring a bill of sale, given as security for money, void as not being in the statutory form. The bill of sale assigned to the grantee as security, "the several chattels and things specifically described" in a schedule to the deed. The schedule comprised ordinary personal chattels, and also a gas engine and shafting which was of the kind of machinery which is, by sect. 5 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, expressly excluded from the definition of "personal chattels" given in sect. 4. The Divisional Court held that the bill of sale was void in toto, and not merely as regarded the ordinary chattels. The grantee appealed.

Robson, for the grantee.

Reid, Q.C., and Herbert Reed, for the trustee in the bankruptcy of the grantor.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.)

reversed the decision, holding that the bill of sale, though void as to the chattels, was good as to the gas-engine and shafting.

Fry, L.J. (who delivered the judgment of the Court) said that the object of the Act was to impose certain conditions and terms on instruments by which securities were created on personal property without the transfer of possession. The statute was not concerned with the borrowing on real estate or on chattels real, or on chattels excepted from its operation by sect. 5, or with the forms of the instruments by which such borrowing might be effected. What the Act avoided was the "bill of sale," and not every instrument, of however complicated or comprehensive a nature, of which a bill of sale was part. In the present case the illegal part of the security could be severed from the legal. A security given on several properties was a security for the whole amount on each of them, and the excision of one of them, in law or in fact, withdrew that one from the operation of the instrument, but left the instrument intact and still operative as regarded the rest. On principle the decision of the Divisional Court was not correct, and Davies v. Rees (17 Q. B. D. 408), on which they founded their decision, was distinguishable, because a covenant for payment of the mortgage debt formed part of the statutory bill of sale, and this fact shewed that the term "bill of sale" in the Act included such a covenant. Therefore the Court held that an assignment of chattels, with a covenant for payment, was void in toto, when it was not in the statutory form.

Judge's Order for Judgment by Consent—Effect of not filing under 27th Section of Debtors Act, 1869—Garnishee Order—Bankruptcy—Money received to use of Trustees in Bankruptcy.

Appeal from decision of Cave, J., sitting in bankruptcy.

The facts were as follows:—The defendant in an action had consented to a judge's order for judgment, and judgment had been signed accordingly. The judge's order was not filed within 21 days, as required by the 27th section of the Debtors Act, 1869. The judgment creditors took garnishee proceedings against a person who owed money to the judgment debtor, and, a garnishee order having been made, the garnishee paid the debt to the judgment creditors before the expiration of 21 days from the making of the judge's order. The judgment debtor having afterwards committed an act of bankruptcy and been declared bankrupt, the trustee in bankruptcy applied to the Court of Bankruptcy for an order directing the judgment creditors to pay over the amount so received by them to himself.

Cave, J., refused the application. The trustee appealed. Cooper Willis, Q.C., and Sidney Woolf, for the appellant. Winslow, Q.C., and Yate Lee, for the respondents.

Cur. adv. vult.

Jan 30. THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Bowen and Fry, L.J.J.), on the authority of Farrow v. Mayes (18 Q. B. 516), held that the effect of non-compliance with the 27th section of the Debtors Act, 1869, was to render the judgment void, and to make the moneys received by the judgment creditors under the garnishee order based on such judgment moneys received to the use of the trustee in bankruptcy, although such moneys had been paid before the act of bankruptcy. They therefore allowed the appeal, and made the order applied for by the appellant.

Chitty, J. SEYMOUR v. SEYMOUR. Jan. 27.

Practice—Service out of the Jurisdiction—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XI, rr. 1 (g), 2.

This action was commenced for the execution of the trusts of a marriage settlement, and to make good alleged breaches of trust under which the trust fund had been invested on mortgage of land in Ireland and lost unless it could be followed into the first and second mortgages.

The plaintiff was an infant beneficiary claiming under the settlement; certain of the defendants, who resided in this country, were the representatives of a deceased trustee; the other defendants who resided in Ireland were the surviving trustee of the settlement (who claimed to be entitled beneficially to the first and second mortgages which he had sub-mortgaged) and the two sub-mortgagees from the trustee.

The three last mentioned defendants had been served with the writ in Ireland.

The surviving trustee submitted to the jurisdiction.

The sub-mortgagees now moved to discharge the order for service out of the jurisdiction on two grounds: (1.) That the cause of action against them was one in which no parties within the jurisdiction were interested, and consequently under Order XI rule 1 (g), there was no jurisdiction to make the order. (2.) That any question so far as they were concerned might effectually be raised in proceedings now pending for the sale of the estates in the Land Court in Ireland upon the ruling of the schedule of incumbrances, and consequently that under Order XI. rule 2, the Court ought not to exercise the jurisdiction even if it possessed it.

Maclean, Q.C., and Fellous, for the motion.

Romer, Q.C., and Fossett Lock, for the plaintiff.

CHITTY, J., held that with regard to the first ground of objection in his opinion all the defendants were necessary parties to the action, wherever it might be tried. The cause of action was the same against all, although the remedies against and the liabilities of the several defendants were different. With regard to the second objection, if he were to uphold it, either the parties resident in England would have to be served with the proceedings in Ireland, or two sets of proceedings would have to be carried on, one in England and the other in Ireland. In the first alternative the parties resident here would raise exactly the same objection in the Irish Courts to being taken to Ireland, and there would be a deadlock. In the second alternative there would be two sets of proceedings, in each of which all the same evidence would have to be gone through. On the above grounds he came to the conclusion that the action should continue as at present constituted, and that the defendants had been properly served, and he dismissed the motion with costs.

Settlement—Construction—Ultimate Limitation of Wife's Property to Persons who would have been her Next-of-kin "in case she had died intestate and unmarried."

A marriage settlement comprised only property of the wife but it comprised both real and personal estate. The trust for children was, for all and every the children and child of the wife, who, being a son or sons, should attain 21, or die under that age leaving issue at the time of his or their respective decease, or born in due time after, or who, being a daughter or daughters, should attain the age of 21, or marry under that age with the consent of her or their parents or parent, equally to be divided between all such children (if more than one) as tenants in common, and their respective executors, administrators, and assigns, and, if but one such child, in trust for that child, his or her executors, administrators, and assigns. And, in case there should be no such child of the wife who under the trusts aforesaid should attain a vested interest in the trust estate, then in trust for such persons as the wife should by will appoint, and in default of appointment, in trust for such person or persons as under or by virtue of the statute for the distribution of intestates' estates would at the time of the death of the wife have been entitled to her personal estate as her next-of-kin "in case she had died intestate and unmarried." There was a power to sell the real estate, but no trust for sale, and it had not been sold. The wife died in 1844. There was only one child of the marriage, a son, who died an infant and a bachelor in 1845. The husband died in 1885. He had a life interest in the property. The question was whether the word "unmarried" in the ultimate limitation meant "never having been married," or meant "a widow." On the former construction the wife's brother and her three sisters would take the personal estate; on the latter construction, the husband, as representative of the deceased child, would be entitled to the personal estate.

Cozens-Hardy, Q. C., and Swinfen Eady, for the plaintiff, who was the executor, and also the heir-at-law, of the wife's brother.
Napier Higgins, Q. C., and Methold, for the representative of another sister.

Macnaghten, for the representative of the other two sisters.
Cookson Crackanthorpe, Q. C., and Marcy, for the representatives of the husband.

NORTH, J., held that the cases, such as Clarke v. Colls (9 H. L. C. 601), In re Sergeant (26 Ch. D. 575), and Dalrymple v. Hall (16 Ch. D. 715) shewed that the primary, usual, and accepted legal meaning of the word "unmarried," in the absence of anything in the instrument to shew that that was not the meaning, was "without ever having been married." In the present case the settlement provided for all the children of the wife, except in the possible case of a daughter marrying under 21 without consent, and dying under that age, in which case there would be no provision for her or her issue. But that was an improbable contingency, and it was in the contemplation of the parties, and it was not sufficient to shew that the word "unmarried" was not used in its primary sense. The representatives of the wife's brother and sisters were therefore entitled to the personal estate. The real estate, not being actually converted, and there being no words of limitation applying to it, the persons who were next-of-kin at the death of the wife took only life estates, and, as they all died before the husband, the real estate, on the authority of such cases as Lowe v. Brandreth (28 Beav. 273) must go to the heir-at-law of the wife.

Will—Construction—Rule against Perpetuity—Separable Gift.

The will of a testatrix contained an ultimate limitation of real estate, that in case both her daughters (for whom, and their husbands and issue, provision had already been made by the will) should die without leaving any child, or the issue of any child, living at the death of the survivor of them, or at the time of the death of the survivor of their respective then present or any future husbands, then, after the death of such of the daughters as might happen to survive the other of them, and the death of the survivor of their respective husbands, she devised the property to her own right heirs. There was a similar gift over of personal estate to the same person or persons who would be entitled to the real estates devised as aforesaid. Each of the daughters died leaving no issue surviving her. It was contended that the gift over was bad, because either of the daughters might have married a second husband who had not been born till after the death of the testatrix, though in fact neither daughter did marry a second time.

Fraser Macleod, for the plaintiffs.

Medd, for the heir-at-law of the testatrix.

Dibdin; and R. F. Norton; for other parties.

NORTH, J., held that the gift over was divisible into two distinct gifts: one, in case both the daughters should die without leaving any child, or the issue of any child, living at the death of the survivor of the daughters; the other, in case there should be a child or children, or issue of any child, living at the death of the survivor of the daughters, but there should be none such living at the death of the survivor of the husbands. The latter alternative was bad, as it might violate the rule against perpetuity. The former alternative was not open to that objection, and that was the event which had actually happened. Evers v. Challis (7 H. L. C. 531) and Watson v. Young (28 Ch. D. 436) were authorities for this construction. The ultimate gift to the right heirs was, therefore, not void for remoteness, nor was the corresponding gift of the personality.

Wills Act (1 Vict. c. 26), s. 21—Obliteration.

Sir Matthew Wyatt, the testator in this summons, made his will in 1862. The probate copy of the will contained the following paragraph:—"I give and bequeath to — daughter of — holding some situation about the church —, the sum of fifty pounds annually, during the continuance of her natural life, and I direct my trustees or trustee for the time being to pay to the said —, the said annuity of fifty pounds by equal quarterly payments to be computed from the quarter day next preceding my decease, for her own sole use and benefit, free from the control of any husband, until she shall die, or until she shall become a bankrupt or insolvent debtor within the meaning of any Act of Parliament concerning bankrupts, or for the relief of insolvent debtors, or shall assign or incur the same, or any part thereof, or her interest therein, or until by her own act or operation of law (except the case of marriage) the said annuity given to her for her life would become vested in or payable to or for the benefit of any other person or persons, which shall first happen (and the receipt of the said — shall be sufficient discharge to my trustees or trustee for the time being), and from the decease of the said — I direct that the said annuity shall merge into and form part of my general estate and income."

In the actual will (which was holograph) in the places where lines were drawn in the probate copy there were obliterations covered over with jagged lines. The obliterations were so complete that the words under could not be decyphered. In subsequent parts of the will there were references to Marian Elliott as a legatee. No legacy was given to Marian Elliott by the will other than the legacy put out above. This was a summons by Mrs. Furniss, formerly Marian Elliott, against the sole executor and trustee of the will to have it declared that she was the person named in the bequest and was entitled to the annuity. There was evidence that she was known to the testator and was the daughter of the beadle of the parish of Epsom.

Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), ss. 150, 257—Private Road—Expenses—Vendor and Purchaser.

Bettesworth, by contract made in September, 1886, sold leasehold property within the urban district of Willesden to Richer for 100% subject to certain mortgages. The premises abutted partly on a private road. In November, 1885, the Willesden Local Board, acting under sect. 150 of the Public Health Act, 1875, gave notice to the owners of the property adjoining the private road to pave and do other work on it; the owners made default in not doing the work within the time required by the Board, and the Board did it themselves. The work was in fact completed (as the judge held) in June, 1886. The surveyor apportioned the sum of 41*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.* as the proportion of the expenses payable in respect of the premises. Notice of the apportionment was served October 7, 1886. Demand for payment was served under sect. 257 of the Public Health Act, 1875, in January, 1887. The title was accepted, a conveyance was approved, and the purchase would have been completed in December, 1886, but for the requirement of the purchaser that the vendor should pay the 41*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.* as a charge existing at the time of the contract. Vendor and Purchaser—Appointment of New Trustees—Validity—Construction of Statute—Repeal of Special Act by General Act—Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 31.

Summons under the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874. A private estate Act (passed in 1869), which conferred a power of sale upon the trustees of a will by which the estate was devised (the will containing no power to appoint new trustees), provided, by sect. 34, that sect. 27 of Lord Cranworth's Act (23 & 24 Vict. c. 145) should be deemed to apply to the trusteeship of the will; provided, that every new trustee of the estate should be appointed with the approbation of the Court of Chancery. In 1886 the trustees of the will, being desirous of retiring, executed a deed by which they appointed two persons to be trustees in place of themselves, and vested the estates in the persons thus appointed. The appointment purported to be made under the power conferred by sect. 31 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881. The new trustees afterwards contracted to sell part of the estates, and the purchaser objected that the appointment of new trustees was invalid, because it had not been made with the approbation of the Chancery Division. The vendors took out this summons to determine the question.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and E. S. Ford, for the vendors.

Cookson Crackanorpe, Q.C., and Roby, for the purchasers.

NORTH, J., held that the appointment was valid. The power conferred by Lord Cranworth's Act was qualified as regarded this particular estate by the special provision contained in sect. 34. The case must be treated as if that special qualification had formed part of the general law under Lord Cranworth's Act. That Act had now been repealed, and a general power to appoint new trustees had been conferred by sect. 31 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881. It could not be said that that general power was subject to the qualification contained in sect. 34 of the special Act.

Vendor and Purchaser—Sale of Freehold House "in possession"—Right of Purchaser to benefit of repairing Covenants contained in expiring Lease.

Summons under the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874.

A house was put up for sale by auction on the 2nd of March, 1887. In the particulars of sale it was described as "freehold property with possession," and it was also stated that "the late tenant's fixtures can be taken by the purchaser at a valuation." The conditions of sale provided that the purchase should be completed on the 25th of March, 1887, and that the purchaser should as from that day be entitled to possession. The vendor had in 1873 granted a lease of the house for twenty-one years, and the tenant had, in accordance with the provisions of the lease, given notice to determine the lease on the 25th of March, 1887. In February, 1887, an arrangement was made between the vendor and the tenant, that possession of the house should be given up to the former, without prejudice to the liabilities of the tenant under the repairing covenants contained in the lease. No reference to the lease was contained in the particulars or conditions of sale. The purchaser claimed to be entitled to the benefit of the tenant's covenant to repair, and this summons was taken out to determine the question. There was evidence that the auctioneer stated at the sale the house was not in good repair, and that it was sold as it stood.

Cookson Crackanorpe, Q.C., and P. S. Gregory, for the vendor.

Giffard Q.C., and Arthur Jackson, for the purchaser.

NORTH, J., held that the purchaser was not entitled to the benefit of the lessee's covenant to repair. The purchaser bought, not a reversion, but a property "in possession," and he clearly bought with the knowledge that the amount of his purchase-money would be regulated by the state of repair of the house. He was now claiming something additional, which could not have been in his contemplation at the time when he bought. The contract did not expressly or impliedly include any right to what the vendor might be able to recover from the tenant for dilapidations.

Kekewich, J. VERNEY v. THOMAS. Jan. 28.

Practice—Counter-claim—New Parties—Default in pleading—Moving for Judgment.

This was an action as to rights of common. The defendant, W. Thomas, delivered a counter-claim to which the plaintiffs and seven other persons were made defendants, alleging that one of the original plaintiffs and the seven other persons had dug a trench on land belonging to the defendant W. Thomas, and claiming an injunction to restrain all the defendants to the counter-claim from trespassing on the land of W. Thomas.

The seven new parties to the counter-claim had not appeared or delivered any defence.

This was a motion by W. Thomas that in default of appearance and pleading the seven new parties might be restrained accordingly. The notice of motion had been filed in the Central Office.

Costelloe, in support of the motion.

KEKEWICH, J., said that one objection raised had been that the rules as to default and notices did not apply to counter-claims, but his Lordship was satisfied that under Order xxi. r. 12, and Order LXVII. r. 4, they did apply, and so far W. Thomas was right. But it was not intended that by a counter-claim a new case against other parties should be raised. Either these parties were improperly brought before the Court, or else the questions between them and the plaintiff would be properly heard and decided at the trial. The Court had under Order XXXII. r. 6, a discretion, and the motion must stand over until the trial.

REG. v. COMMISSIONERS FOR SPECIAL PURPOSES OF THE INLAND REVENUE.

In re CAPE COPPER MINING COMPANY, LIMITED.

Revenue—Income Tax—Repayment of overpaid Income Tax—
5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 133—23 Vict. c. 14, s. 10.

Application for a mandamus to the Commissioners for special Purposes of the Inland Revenue to order the repayment of income tax overpaid by the Cape Copper Mining Company, Limited, for the years ending April 5, 1884, and April 5, 1885. The company in March, 1887, made a claim for repayment of income tax paid for three preceding years, viz., those mentioned and the year ending April 5, 1886. The commissioners allowed the claim in respect of the year ending April 5, 1886, but disallowed that in respect of the two previous years, on the ground that the claim was not made in time under 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 133.

By 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 133: "If within or at the end of the year current at the time of making any assessment under this Act, or at the end of any year when such assessment ought to have been made, any person . . . shall find and shall prove to the satisfaction of the Commissioners by whom the assessment was made, that his profits and gains fell short . . . it shall be lawful for such Commissioners . . . to certify to the Commissioners for Special Purposes of the Inland Revenue the amount overpaid and thereupon such last-mentioned Commissioners shall issue an order for the repayment of such sum."

By 23 Vict. c. 14, s. 10: "No claim for repayment of duty . . . shall be allowed unless it shall be made within three years next after the end of the year of assessment to which the claim shall relate."

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., Sir E. Clarke, S.G., and A. V. Dicey, shewed cause.

F. Measlow White, Q.C., and Pollard, in support of the rule.

CAVE, J., held that the Commissioners were right, and that no repayment could be allowed in respect of the two years in question as application had not been made by the company in respect of these years "within or at the end of the year," pursuant to 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 133.

GRANTHAM, J., held that the company were entitled to repayment in respect of the years in question, as 23 Vict. c. 14, s. 10, applied, and such claims could be preferred within three years from the year of assessment.

GRANTHAM, J., as junior judge, withdrew his judgment, and the rule was discharged.

Bankruptcy—Act of Bankruptcy—Assignment for Benefit of Creditors—Release—Right of Parties to Assignment to prove—Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 4, sub-s. 1 (a).

Appeal by the official receiver from a decision of the County Court at Nottingham, allowing the respondent, Hazeldine, to prove in the bankruptcy.

The debt sought to be proved was specifically included in a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, the execution of which by the debtor was the act of bankruptcy, relied on in the petition. The deed contained a covenant by which the creditors, and among others, Hazeldine, "released" the debtor "from all debts, claims, or demands whatsoever" on the part of the creditors parties thereto.

In consequence of this covenant the official receiver disallowed the proof.

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., Sir E. Clarke, S.G., and M. Muir Mackenzie, for the appellant.

Moulton, Q.C., and Stanger for the respondent.

THE COURT (Cave, J., and Grantham, J.) held that the deed did not contemplate bankruptcy, and that the respondent was entitled to prove.

Q. B. Div. HOWARD v. CLARKE. Jan. 31.

Pawnbrokers Act, 1872—35 & 36 Vict. c. 93, s. 34—Detention of Pawner—Reasonable Suspicion that Article offered in pawn was stolen.

Appeal from Nottingham County Court.

In an action for false imprisonment it appeared that the plaintiff, a dealer in stuffed birds, offered in pledge to the defendant, a pawnbroker, a gold horse-shoe pin set with seven diamonds, and also a ring. The pawnbroker having previously received from the police a printed notice of a recent burglary, and that amongst the articles stolen were "a gold horse-shoe pin, set with seven diamonds, massive," and a gold ring, made inquiries of the plaintiff, who said he was a dealer, and had been sent by a publican, whose name and address in the town the plaintiff gave. The pawnbroker, after a consultation with his son, sent for a constable and gave the plaintiff into custody, and he was taken to the police station. It afterwards was proved that he was an innocent man, and that the account which he had given was correct.

The defendant relied on the Pawnbrokers Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 93), s. 34, providing that in any case where on an article being offered in pawn to a pawnbroker he reasonably suspects that it has been stolen or otherwise illegally or clandestinely obtained, the pawnbroker may seize and detain the person and the article or either of them, and shall deliver the person and the article, or either of them, (as the case may be,) as soon as may be into the custody of a constable. The county court judge held that the question whether the defendant had reasonable suspicion was for the jury, and left it to them. They found a verdict for the plaintiff 25l.

A. Channell, Q.C., and Hextall, for the defendant.

Stanger for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Mathew and Grantham, JJ.), were of opinion that the question was for the judge, and that there was no evidence of absence of reasonable suspicion by the defendant, and that judgment should be entered for him.

Q. B. Div. THE QUEEN v. LEE. Jan. 31.
Bastardy Order—Service of Summons—"Last Place of Abode"— 85 & 36 Vict. c. 65, s. 4.

Upon a certiorari to bring up an order under the Bastardy Laws Amendment Act, 1871 (85 & 36 Vict. c. 65, s. 4), to be quashed, on the ground of insufficiency of the service of the summons to found the jurisdiction of the justices, it appeared that, from the month of January, 1885, to the 25th of September, 1886, Lee was a journeyman with one Scott, a baker, at Dorking, in whose service Kate Brett also lived; and that, on the 8th of April, 1887, Kate Brett was delivered of a bastard child of which the justices on the 18th of June adjudged Lee to be the putative father, and ordered him to pay 2s. 6d. per week towards its support. The summons was served on the 19th of May, by leaving it with one Hopkins, a baker, at Sunbury, into whose employ Lee went when he left Dorking.

It appeared from the affidavits, that Lee quitted Sunbury on the 20th of April, and proceeded to Southampton "to better himself;" that he there lodged at No. 27 Cannon Row until the 19th of May, when he shipped as baker on board the steamship Moselle for the West Indies; and that he did not return to Southampton until the 10th of July.

Upon this evidence it was contended for the appellant that his "last place of abode" was 27 Cannon Row, Southampton, and not Sunbury, and consequently the service of the summons at the latter place was not a sufficient service to found the jurisdiction of the justices, and the order was therefore bad. On the other hand, it was submitted that it was not sufficiently shewn that Lee had acquired a residence or "place of abode" at any other place than Sunbury, more especially as he had left "his things" there (at Hopkins's) until the 14th of May, only five days before he shipped for the West Indies.

The following cases were referred to,—The Queen v. Evans (19 L. J., M. C., 151); The Queen v. Davis (22 L. J., M. C., 143); The Queen v. Higham (26 L. J., M. C., 116); The Queen v. Brown (24 Justice of the Peace, 5); The Queen v. Damarell (Law Rep. 3 Q. B. 50).

Mead, supported the conviction.

Taylor, appeared for the appellant.

THE COURT (Hawkins and Charles, JJ.) held that there was no reason for thinking that the justices had arrived at a wrong conclusion, and dismissed the order nisi with costs.

Rule accordingly.

PROBATE, DIVORCE, AND ADMIRALTY DIVISION.

Probate. IN THE GOODS OF MOORE. Jan. 24.

Will—Executor intermeddling with Estate before Probate—Writ for an Injunction granted on Application of co-Executor.

W. C. Moore, late of Dunster, in the county of Somerset, died 4th January, 1888, leaving a will duly executed, bearing date 31st December, 1887, by which he appointed J. C. Ker and William Aubert his executors and trustees.

The property of deceased consisted, to a large extent, of jewellery, precious stones, coins, etc., and a reversionary interest; and shortly after his death, and before probate had been taken out, Aubert, one of the executors, proceeded to intermeddle with the estate by depositing the jewellery, etc., at the National Safe Deposit, in his own name, and making preparations for a sale of furniture, &c. The other co-executor, J. C. Ker, protested, but without effect; and he then applied in the Registry for a writ of summons for an injunction restraining his co-executor from dealing with the property, and for the appointment of another executor. The residuary legatee under the will also joined in his application. Under the rules of the Supreme Court of Judicature the certificate of a Registrar was necessary before the writ of summons; but the Registrar refused the certificate on the ground that the proceeding was irregular.

Beaumont now applied to the Court for leave to issue the writ, and cited In re Parker (54 L. J. (Ch.) 694), in which Chitty, J., held that such an application must be made in the Probate Division.

THE PRESIDENT granted the application.

A Grant of Administration of the Personal Estate of a Deceased, being a domiciled Englishman, whose Marriage had been dissolved by the High Court of Bombay, made to his Brother without citing the former Wife who had remarried and still survived.

Application for a grant of administration.

Major Nares died intestate, September 3rd, 1887. He was a domiciled Englishman, and, being then an officer in the 17th Regiment, he was married in Dublin in May, 1876. He and his wife went to India, and in March, 1884, he obtained a decree from the High Court at Bombay dissolving the marriage on the ground of his wife's adultery. There were no children of the marriage, and the respondent in the suit had since married the co-respondent, and was still surviving.

Middleton, on behalf of Sir G. Nares, the deceased's brother, moved for a grant of administration of the personal estate and effects of the deceased as having died without wife, child, or parent, and without formally citing the former wife, to whom, however, notice had been given. There can be no doubt that the Indian Court has full power to dissolve marriages between Her Majesty's subjects resident in India, and professing the Christian religion. He referred to 24 & 25 Vict. c. 104, s. 9; Her Majesty's Letters Patent of December 28, 1865, s. 35; and the Indian Divorce Act, No. 4 of 1869.

Bankruptcy Notice—“Final Judgment”—Order of Divorce Court for payment of Alimony to a Wife pendente lite—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 4, sub-s. 1 (g)—Matrimonial Causes Act, 1857, s. 52.

Appeal against the refusal of Mr. Registrar Brongham to make a receiving order against W. B. Henderson upon the petition of his wife. The wife had presented a petition to the Divorce Division for a judicial separation from her husband, on the ground of his desertion of her, and had obtained an order for the payment to her by the husband pendente lite of alimony at the rate of 120*l.* a year, to be paid by monthly instalments of 10*l.* each. The husband failed to make the payments, and there being five monthly payments in arrear, the wife issued a bankruptcy notice against the husband in respect of the arrears, treating the order for alimony as a “final judgment” within sub-sect. 1 (g) of sect. 4 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883. The husband failed to comply with the notice, and the wife presented a bankruptcy petition against him. The registrar held that the order was not a “final judgment,” and refused to make a receiving order. The wife appealed.

Sidney Woolf, for the appellant.Muir Mackenzie, for the husband, was not heard.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) held that the registrar was right, and dismissed the appeal. They said that Ex parte Moore (14 Q. B. D. 627) was distinguishable, for there the order for payment formed part of a final judgment which determined the main issue in dispute in the action.

Bankruptcy—Fraudulent Preference—Payment made to Creditor—“with a view of giving such creditor a preference”—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 48.

Appeal by the official receiver, as trustee in the bankruptcy, against a decision of a Divisional Court (Cave and A. L. Smith, JJ.), affirming the judgment of the Oldham County Court that a payment of 223*l.*, made by the bankrupt shortly before his bankruptcy to a creditor named Whitaker, could not be set aside as a fraudulent preference within the meaning of sect. 48 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883. The judge of the county court found upon the evidence that the motive of the bankrupt in making the payment was, not to prefer Whitaker, but to prevent a person named Greenfield, who had become a surety for him for the debt, from being compelled to pay it.

Muir Mackenzie (Sir E. Clarke, S.G., with him), for the appellant.Winslow, Q.C., and Herbert Reed, for Whitaker, were not heard.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) said that, as the payment was made, not with the intent of preferring the creditor to whom it was made, but with the intent of benefiting another person who was not a creditor, it was not within sect. 48. The case was governed by Ex parte Taylor (18 Q. B. D. 295). The appeal must be dismissed with costs.

Winding-up—Contributory—Director—Qualification.

This was an appeal by Mr. Jobling from an order of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries placing him on the list of contributories for 250 shares. Mr. Jobling signed the memorandum of association for 10 shares. By the articles the qualification of a director was the holding 250 shares; he might hold the office without having them, but if he did not acquire them within 3 months after his election, or if he afterwards ceased to hold that number, his office was ipso facto vacated. Mr. Jobling was elected a director a few weeks after the registration of the company, and acted as such by attending meetings for more than 3 months, but never took any shares except his original 10. An order having been made for winding-up the company, the Vice-Warden, referring to the observations of Jessel, M.R., in Karuth's Case (Law Rep. 20 Eq. 510), and other cases, held that Mr. Jobling, having acted as a director after the period at which it was necessary for him to have a qualification, must be treated as bound to take 250 shares, and must be on the list for that number. Mr. Jobling appealed.

Grosvenor Woods, for the appellant.Buckley, Q.C., and Chadwyck Healey, for the registrar as ex officio liquidator.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) held that acting as director after the period at which the qualification ought to have been acquired, did not amount to a contract to take the shares necessary for the qualification of a director, and that Mr. Jobling must be on the list for 10 shares only.

Bill of Sale—Schedule—Inventory of Personal Chattels—“Specifically described”—After-acquired Property—Form of Bill of Sale—Bills of Sale Act (1878) Amendment Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 43), ss. 4, 5, 9.

A bill of sale contained an assignment by way of security for the payment of money of the chattels specifically described in the schedule thereto annexed “together with all other chattels and things the property of the mortgagor now in and about the premises, and also all chattels and things which may at any time during the continuance of this security be in or about the same or any other premises of the mortgagor (to which the said chattels or things or any part thereof may have been removed), whether brought there in substitution for or renewal of or in addition to the chattels and things hereby assigned.”

An interpleader issue was tried in the county court and decided in favour of the execution creditor, on the ground that the bill of sale was void as not made in accordance with the form in the schedule to the Bills of Sale Act, 1882. This judgment was affirmed by a Divisional Court.

On appeal,

MacClymont, and H. Reed, for the appellants.

Lumley Smith, Q.C., and Rose Innes, for the respondent.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.) affirmed the judgment of the Queen's Bench Division. They held that the bill of sale departed from the precise legal effect of the form given in the schedule, and was therefore void on the principle laid down in Ex parte Stanford, In re Barber (17 Q. B. D. 259), which overruled any previous cases which were inconsistent with it—including Roberts v. Roberts (13 Q. B. D. 794), so far as it might be inconsistent with the present decision.

Trustee Acts—Appointment of separate Set of Trustees of Part of Trust Property held on distinct Trusts—Trustee Act, 1850 (13 & 14 Vict. c. 60), s. 32—Conveyancing Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 39), s. 5.

A testator, who died in 1887, by his will, dated in 1879, appointed three trustees and executors, and bequeathed to them two sums of 8000*l.* upon certain trusts, and directed that on the determination of such trusts the two sums should respectively sink into his general personal estate, which was bequeathed upon distinct trusts for the benefit of persons other than the cestuis que trust of the two sums of 8000*l.* The will contained a general power of appointment of new trustees. One of the trustees and executors renounced and disclaimed. The trusts affecting the two sums of 8000*l.* were likely to continue for many years, and the two trustees were desirous of being relieved from these trusts, but were willing to continue trustees for the general purposes of the will. This was a petition by all the cestuis que trust in esse under the trusts of the two sums of 8000*l.* and of the general personal estate, asking that two persons might be appointed trustees of the will for the purposes of those two sums.

Marten, Q.C., and Cust, for the petitioners, referred to Savile v. Couper (36 Ch. D. 520), where North, J., held that sect. 5 of the Conveyancing Act, 1882, did not enable existing trustees of the whole trust property to retire from the trusts as to part by means of an appointment of new trustees of that part. The difficulty, if any, caused by that decision might be got over by now appointing a trustee to act in the general trusts of the will together with the existing trustees. But they submitted that independently of the Conveyancing Act, the Court had jurisdiction under sect. 32 of the Trustee Act, 1850, to make the order now asked for.

F. H. L. Errington, for the trustees.

KAY, J., held that independently of sect. 5 of the Conveyancing Act, 1882, the Court had power under the Trustee Acts to allow trustees to retire from the trusts of a part of the trust property held upon distinct trusts, and to appoint a separate set of trustees for that part. He would not require the appointment of a new trustee for the general purposes of the will, as he did not desire to limit the jurisdiction of the Court. The decision of North, J., merely was, that under sect. 5 of the Conveyancing Act, 1882, or under a general power of appointing new trustees, trustees were not at liberty, without the authority of the Court, to retire from a part only of the trusts, and appoint new trustees of that part to act in their place. That was a very different thing from an appointment with the authority of the Court under the Trustee Acts. His Lordship accordingly made the order.

By a deed dated in 1877 a husband and wife conveyed real estate of which the wife was seised in fee to a purchaser for 23,500*l.* The deed was duly acknowledged by the wife and her separate examination taken in the usual way as required by the Fines and Recoveries Act (3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 74). 18,000*l.*, part of the purchase-money, was received by the husband with the written consent of the wife. The remainder, 5500*l.*, was by a deed of even date vested in trustees, upon trust out of the income to pay an annuity which had been charged on the estate in favour of a lady aged 68, and to pay the residue of the income to the husband and wife, or their executors, administrators and assigns, according to their rights or interest therein as by law from time to time determined or regulated, and after the death of the annuitant the capital was to be applied, after payment of succession duty and costs, in trust for the husband and wife, or their executors, administrators and assigns, according to their rights or interests therein as by law from time to time for the time being determined or regulated. The wife and the annuitant both having survived the husband, the question was whether the wife was entitled to the 5500*l.*, either under the provisions of the trust deed, or as her chose in action not reduced into possession by the husband in his lifetime.

Marten, Q.C., and Hirst, for the plaintiff, the widow.

Rigby, Q.C., and McLaren, for the defendant, the executor of the husband.

KAY, J., said the trust deed merely preserved such rights as the wife might have according to law, and obviously did not intend to confer upon her any right if in law she had none. The only right in law which she could have would be on the supposition that the 5500*l.* was her chose in action not reduced into possession by the husband. To make that out it was essential to shew that it was a chose in action originally belonging to the wife; but this certainly was not the case as to the whole of it. Some part of it was the purchase-money of the husband's freehold interest in his wife's real estate; some part also must be treated as the price of his permitting his wife to sell her interest by concurring in the conveyance. It could not be ascertained how much of it was the wife's chose in action. The effect of the renunciation by the wife, on her separate examination under the provisions of the Fines and Recoveries Act, of any provision being made for her out of the purchase-money, was to make the whole purchase-money the absolute property of the husband, whether part of it was left outstanding or not; so that no part of it ever was her chose in action. Consequently this 5500*l.* could not be treated as a chose in action to which the wife was entitled.

Will—Codicil—Settlement—Married Woman—Power of Appointment—Intestacy.

A testatrix, a married woman, by her will, dated in 1883, after reciting that under her marriage settlement certain bank, gas, and other shares, money, furniture, and property, were vested in trustees upon certain trusts in favour of her husband and their children, and subject thereto in trust for such person and persons and for such purposes as she, notwithstanding coverture, should by will or codicil appoint, she did in exercise and execution of such power and of all other powers, if any, enabling her in that behalf "appoint, give, and bequeath all the property of whatever nature comprised in the said settlement deed over which I have any power of appointment or disposition by will" to trustees upon trusts therein mentioned.

The testatrix survived her husband, and by a codicil, dated in 1885, gave certain property to her brother, but did not thereby in words confirm her will.

After the date of the settlement and the execution of her will the testatrix had become entitled under her husband's will to certain other personal estate:

Held, that the codicil did not enlarge the scope of the will, and that the testatrix died intestate as to so much of the personal estate as was not comprised in the settlement.

Company—Reduction of Capital—Petition for Confirmation by Court—Use of Words "and Reduced."

This was a petition by the company for the confirmation by the Court of a special resolution for the reduction of the capital. An order had been made dispensing with the advertisement of the petition. The proposed reduction did not involve any alteration of the liability of the shareholders or any return of paid-up capital to them.

Coxens-Hardy, Q.C., and Chadwyck Healey, for the company.

NORTH, J., confirmed the resolution. He said that the company must use the words "and reduced" as part of their name for a month. When the petition had not been advertised he could hardly conceive a case in which the use of those words for a time ought to be dispensed with.

North, J. ASKEW v. ASKEW. Feb. 6.
Will—Construction—"Survivor."

A testatrix, who made her will in 1827, and died in 1831, devised her real estate to the use of her daughter, Harriett Askew, for her life; with remainder, as to one-fourth part thereof, to the use of Thomas Askew (a son of Harriett Askew) for his life; with remainder to the use of his children, equally as tenants in common in tail; and, if there should be a failure of issue of any such child or children, then, as to the share of such child or children whose issue should so fail, to the use of the remaining or other of the said children equally, as tenants in common in tail; and in case there should be a failure of issue of all such children but one, or if there should be but one such child, to the use of such remaining or only child, in tail; and, in default of such issue, to the use of the right heirs of the testatrix. The testatrix devised the other three-fourths of her real estate on similar limitations in favour of the other three children of her daughter, viz., Harriett Frances, John, and William, respectively, and their respective issue, with an ultimate limitation in each case to the right heirs of the testatrix. By a codicil, executed the same day, the testatrix directed that, "in case any or either of my grandchildren named in my will shall die without leaving any child or children, then the share or shares of them, him, or her so dying of and in the hereditaments devised by my will, shall go to and devolve on the survivor or survivors of my said grandchildren, and the heirs of his, her, or their body or respective bodies, it being my will that the same hereditaments shall not devolve on my own right heirs but in the event of all my said grandchildren dying without leaving any child or children." The daughter Harriett Askew died in 1832. The four grandchildren died as follows: Harriett Frances in 1838, a spinster, not having disentailed her share; William in 1864, leaving issue; John in 1866, leaving issue; and Thomas in 1887, never having had any issue. The question was how the share of which he had been tenant for life devolved on his death.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Tyssen, for the representatives of William and John.

Everitt, Q.C., and Grosvenor Woods, for the representative of Thomas.

Hammond-Chambers, for the heir-at-law of the testatrix.

NORTH, J., held that Thomas could not take his own share as the "survivor" of the four grandchildren. He felt a difficulty in following the decision of Jessel, M.B., in Maden v. Taylor (45 L. J. (Ch.) 569), although it was to some extent confirmed by the decision of Fry, J., in Davidson v. Kimpton (18 Ch. D. 213). He thought these cases were at variance with Cooper v. Macdonald (Law Rep. 16 Eq. 258), and Griffiths v. Mortimer (54 L. J. (Ch.) 414), and with the reasons given by Baggallay, L.J., in Wake v. Varah (2 Ch. D. 348, 355). But the present case was distinguishable from Maden v. Taylor. He was of opinion that the words "without leaving any child or children," must be construed "without having had any child." It would be absurd to suppose that the testatrix intended a gift over to a person in tail, in the event of his own death without having had any issue. Consequently, Thomas could not take his own share as survivor. In his Lordship's opinion, cross remainders were to be implied between the four grandchildren, or else the words "survivor or survivors" must be construed "other or others." In either view the result would be the same, viz. William and John, each of whom left issue, would take the share of which Thomas was tenant for life, equally between them as tenants in tail.

FRESH FISHERS AND DREDGERS OF WHITSTABLE v. ELLIOTT.

Whitstable Oysters—Right to the Use of the Word "Native" in combination with "Whitstable."

Motion for an injunction to restrain the defendant, the contractor for supplying refreshments in the Royal Courts of Justice, his servants, &c., from exhibiting placards bearing the words "Whitstable Native Oysters" except for the purpose of selling genuine Whitstable native oysters, and from selling, either directly or indirectly, oysters purporting to be Whitstable native oysters which were not genuine. The plaintiffs were incorporated in 1793. Their trade-mark was a man dredging for oysters, with the words "Whitstable Native Oysters." They had used the mark for over 100 years; and registered it in January, 1887. They obtained the spat and young oysters from Colchester, Raynham, and other places on the coast of Essex and brought their oysters to maturity on their beds in Whitstable Bay, of which they claimed to be the proprietors. The defendant obtained the oysters which he offered for sale from the Seasalters Company, who were supplied with spat and young oysters from Brittany and other places on the coast of France, and which were also brought to maturity on beds of the company at Whitstable. There were other oyster beds at Whitstable, known as free or public. The plaintiffs complained that the defendant offered for sale Whitstable natives at a price much lower than the best natives could be sold for, and that the oysters which he offered for sale were only "seconds." It was stated that the Seasalters Company's oysters were originally known in the market as "Princesses" but now as "Seconds." The plaintiffs asked for an injunction to prevent the injury which they were suffering in their business, the name "Whitstable Native Oysters" being that under which their oysters were known to and recognised by the public.

Hastings, Q.C., and J. Ashton Cross, for the plaintiffs.

Swinfen Eady, for the defendant.

STIRLING, J., was of opinion that he could not, upon the evidence, hold that the oysters matured by the Seasalters Company could not be described as "Whitstable," but they could not properly be designated as "Whitstable Native Oysters"; also that the plaintiffs had a right to prevent those oysters being sold, knowingly, as "Whitstable Native Oysters." An injunction was granted to prevent the use of the word "Native" except in connection with oysters the spat or young of which came into being in the estuary of the Thames or its neighbourhood, and were matured at Whitstable.

Bill of Sale—Affidavit of Attestation—Rectification of Register—Bills of Sale Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 31), s. 10, sub-s. 2, ss. 12, 14.

Appeal from a decision of Field, J., at chambers, on an interpleader summons between an execution creditor and a claimant under a bill of sale. The order gave the claimant leave to file a supplemental affidavit of attestation setting out the description, residence, and occupation of one of the attesting witnesses which were stated to have been accidentally omitted from the original affidavit of attestation.

Kisch, for the execution creditor, who proposed to dispute the validity of the registration of the bill of sale on the ground of this omission, contended that the judge under sect. 14 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, had only jurisdiction to cause the omission "to be rectified by the insertion in the register" (i.e., the book kept by the registrar under sect. 12) of the statutable particulars, and that he had no power to cure the defect in the "registration" under sect. 10, sub-s. 2, which resulted from the omission, by allowing the supplemental affidavit.

Bassett Hopkins, for the claimant.

THE COURT (Mathew and A. L. Smith, JJ.) decided with reluctance that it was necessary to construe the language of sects. 12 and 14 as suggested, though this construction was probably not according to the intention of the statute, and allowed the appeal.

Lord Mayor's Court—Practice—Certiorari—Time for Removal of Cause—Mayor's Court of London Procedure Act (20 & 21 Vict. c. clvii.), s. 17.

Appeal against a Master's order referred by Field, J., at chambers to a Divisional Court. The order was for a certiorari to remove the action from the Mayor's Court into the Queen's Bench Division.

By sect. 17 of the Mayor's Court of London Procedure Act (20 & 21 Vict. c. clvii.) "no cause depending in the Mayor's Court shall be removed before judgment therein into any superior Court, unless the writ removing such cause shall have been lodged with the proper officer of the Court within one month after the service of the plaint, or unless such writ shall have been lodged with such officer before such action shall have been entered for trial according to the practice of the Mayor's Court."

The plaint was served on the 25th of November, 1887. The summons for certiorari was issued on the 17th of January, 1888. At the date of the order appealed from the cause had not been set down for trial.

Horne Payne, Q.C. (with him Colam), for the plaintiff, contended that under the section two conditions were imposed, and that the writ for removal not having been lodged within a month of the service of the plaint, the order could not be made.

R. M. Bray, for the defendant, contended that the section should be read disjunctively, and that as the action had not been entered for trial the order could be made.

THE COURT (Mathew and A. L. Smith, JJ.) differed. Mathew, J., holding that the order could, A. L. Smith, J., that it could not be made. The result was that the appeal was dismissed, leave to appeal being given.

WENNHAKE v. MORGAN AND WIFE.

Feb. 7.

Libel—Publication—Husband to Wife—Damage to Testimonial of Character—Damages.

Action by the plaintiff, a German valet, against the defendants, for (1) falsely and maliciously writing and publishing of him the following words, viz., "Dec. 6, 1886, 65, Cornwall Road, S.W. This man has lived with us five weeks, and we dismiss him for staying out all night and leaving the house open. J. and P. Morgan. P.S. We found he was out at 2 o'clock this morning."

(2) For damage by the defendants maliciously and mischievously damaging and defacing a certain document (being a written testimonial to the plaintiff's good character as a domestic servant), the property of the plaintiff, and by writing thereon the words set out in paragraph (1). The defence denied, inter alia, the publication, and malice.

At the trial before Mathew, J., it appeared from the opening statement of counsel for the plaintiff, that the plaintiff, on leaving the service of a lady who was going to reside for some time abroad, and was uncertain whereabouts she might be, received from her a testimonial, in general terms, of good character. The plaintiff handed this testimonial to the defendants, who engaged him as their servant, and retained the testimonial. He afterwards gave them notice to leave. On the 6th of December he went out by the area gate to post some letters for his master, having locked up the gate, of which he had the key. Then he went to visit his sick wife, returned to the house at half-past twelve, found the door bolted, went again at a quarter to seven in the morning, and took up breakfast to his master, who dismissed him. The plaintiff asked for his testimonial, Mrs. Morgan fetched it, and handed it to the plaintiff; upon it Mr. Morgan had written the words alleged as a libel. The learned judge held that, on the opening, there was no evidence of publication of the libel; and that the plaintiff was entitled only to one shilling for damage to the testimonial, and verdict and judgment was entered for the plaintiff on the second cause of action for one shilling without costs.

Bassett Hopkins, for the plaintiff, moved to set aside the verdict and judgment, and for a new trial.

R. V. Williams, for the defendants, shewed cause.

THE COURT (Huddleston, B., and Manisty, J.) held that publication by the defendant husband to his wife was no publication, and that therefore the decision of the learned judge as to the libel was correct, but that the amount of damages for defacing the testimonial might be more than nominal, and should have been left to the jury, and therefore there must be a new trial on that branch of the case.

Rule absolute.

In re THE MERSEY RAILWAY COMPANY.

Railway Company—Judgment Creditor—Receiver and Manager—Railway Companies Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 127), s. 4.

In December, 1887, a judgment creditor of a railway company obtained an order for the appointment of receivers and managers under sect. 4 of the Railway Companies Act, 1867. In January, 1888, another judgment creditor applied for a similar order without prejudice to the former, and Kekewich, J., held him entitled to it. The company appealed.

Buckley, Q.C., and Phipson Beale, for the appellants.

Hastings, Q.C., and E. Ford, for the judgment creditor who had obtained the order under appeal.

Farwell, for the judgment creditor who had obtained the former order.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley and Bowen, L.J.J.) held that a judgment creditor did not obtain any priority by obtaining an order for a receiver and manager, that therefore when a receiver and manager was already in possession, the appointing another on the application of another judgment creditor was only causing useless expense to the company without giving the applicant any benefit, and that such second appointment ought not to be made. The order was therefore discharged.

BADELEY v. CONSOLIDATED BANK.

Partnership—Share of Profits—Bovill's Act (28 & 29 Vict. c. 86)—Garnishee Order.

This was an appeal from a judgment of Stirling, J. (34 Ch. D. 536: Weekly Notes, 1886, p. 178).

J. H. Smith contracted to execute works for the Bury and Tottington Railway Company and signed an agreement with J. Badeley under which Badeley advanced money for the purpose of the works, and Smith assigned to Badeley all principal moneys and interest, shares, bonds, and debentures which he might receive from the railway company. For these advances Badeley was to receive interest at 10 per cent, and also one-tenth of the nett profits of the contract with the railway company. The Consolidated Bank advanced 12,600*l.* to Smith upon the guarantee of several of the directors of the railway company; and the railway company executed Lloyd's bonds to the amount of 16,000*l.* and delivered them to the bank to be kept by them until all the money advanced under the guarantee had been repaid to the bank. Smith brought an action against the railway company, which was compromised, and the Court sanctioned a scheme under which the railway company was to issue 38,000*l.* debenture stock, and Smith was to deliver up the Lloyd's bonds to be cancelled.

Badeley then brought the present action against the railway company, the Consolidated Bank, Wallis, a creditor of Smith, who had served a garnishee order on the Consolidated Bank

During the sittings of the Courts THE WEEKLY NOTES will be published on Saturday, and will generally comprise Notes of the Decisions up to and including those of the previous Wednesday. All cases of permanent interest noted herein will be reported in full in THE LAW REPORTS.

and other creditors, praying that he might be declared to be the first mortgagee on the debenture stock when issued, and for accounts, and foreclosure. The executors of Howarth, one of the guarantors, put in a counter-claim, claiming that the plaintiff might indemnify Howarth's estate against all claims under the guarantee, on the ground that the plaintiff was in fact a partner of Smith. The facts were very complicated.

Stirling, J., held that under the circumstances the plaintiff could have no priority over the guarantors without redeeming the Lloyd's bonds, but that there was in fact a partnership between the plaintiff and Smith, and therefore gave judgment in favour of Howarth's executors on the counter-claim. He also held that Wallis, although he had no notice of the plaintiff's equitable mortgage on Smith's property, obtained no priority over the plaintiff or the guarantors by his garnishee order.

Rigby, Q.C., Swinfen Eady, and Eve, for the plaintiff.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Chadwyck Healey, for the creditors of Howarth.

Corrow, L.J., said that the only points really in dispute were whether there was a partnership between Smith and the plaintiff, and whether Wallis had obtained any priority by his garnishee order, by reason of want of notice or any other acts of the plaintiff. On the first point he was of opinion that the fact of the plaintiff being entitled to a share of the profits of Smith's contract was not sufficient to shew that there was any partnership between them, nor did the correspondence, on which some reliance had been placed, justify any such conclusion. He was therefore of opinion that the judge's decision on that point must be reversed. With respect to Wallis's contention, he was of opinion that the judge had come to a right conclusion, and that Wallis had no priority over either the plaintiff or the guarantors.

KAY, J. SLATER v. SLATER. Jan 21; Feb 4.

Practice—Payment out of Court—Replacement of Fund paid out to Person not entitled thereto—Court of Chancery (Funds) Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 44), s. 5.

Petition.

A fund which belonged to the children of R. M. M. who should attain twenty-one or marry was carried over in an administration action to "the account of the issue or children of R. M. M. deceased." R. M. M. died leaving an only daughter, the petitioner, who was a spinster, and attained 21 in December, 1886. Previously to the 28th of January, 1884, there were standing to the credit of the account two sums of 4387l. 10s. 3d. consols and 195l. 19s. 4d. cash. B., chancery managing clerk to a firm of solicitors whose clients had the conduct of the action, had acquired knowledge of the existence of the fund and the nature of the petitioner's title. By falsely representing that he was authorized by the petitioner to act for her and retain a solicitor on her behalf, he induced L., who was a solicitor, to act as the petitioner's solicitor for the purpose of obtaining payment of the fund. B. afterwards produced a forged affidavit purporting to shew that the petitioner had attained her majority. Upon a summons in chambers and upon production of the forged affidavit an order was obtained from the chief clerk on the 28th of January, 1884, directing transfer and payment of the consols and cash to the petitioner, who in fact was then under age. L., as solicitor, and on behalf of the petitioner, obtained the usual form of power of attorney from the Paymaster General, which he handed to B., who subsequently returned the same to L., purporting to be duly executed by the petitioner in favour of L. It was in fact forged, but payment of the fund was upon production of it obtained by L., and he, after deducting for himself the half of one sixth of the fund (which it was represented by B. that the petitioner had agreed to allow for recovery of the fund) and other expenses, handed the residue to B. upon production by B. of a forged authority purporting to be signed by the petitioner and empowering B. to receive the money. B. afterwards absconded. The petitioner was entirely ignorant of the proceedings, and had never in any way authorized the use of her name in reference to the fund. Having attained 21, she presented a petition to the Lord Chancellor, under sect. 5 of the Court of Chancery (Funds) Act, 1872, for a certificate under that section in order that the fund might be replaced out of the Consolidated Fund. Upon the hearing of such petition on the 14th of December, 1887, counsel for the Treasury contended that the application was premature, and that the certificate should not go until the petitioner had herself obtained a proper order from the Court for payment out of the fund to her and the Paymaster General had failed to comply with such order, and by arrangement the application to the Lord Chancellor stood over in order that the petitioner might apply to the Court for an order for payment out.

This petition was presented in the action accordingly, asking that the order of the 24th of January, 1884, might be discharged, and that notwithstanding that order the Paymaster General might be ordered to transfer and pay to the petitioner 4387l. 10s. 3d. consols and 195l. 19s. 4d. cash, and such further sum as was equivalent to the dividends and interest which would have accrued on the fund if it had not been paid out under the order of the 28th of January, 1884. The petition was, by their request, served on the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury and the Paymaster General.

Upon the petition being in the judge's paper on the 14th of January, 1888, Ingle Joyce, for the Treasury, asked that it might stand over until the next petition day; that L. might be ordered to attend personally, notice being given him that the Treasury would seek to make him liable, and that he might appear by counsel and file affidavits if so advised. The petition was heard on the 21st of January and the 4th of February.

Marten, Q.C., and S. Hall, for the petitioner.

Sir E. Clarke, Q.C., S.G., and Ingle Joyce, for the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury and the Paymaster General submitted that L. having assumed to act for the petitioner, both as solicitor and under the power, but without any real authority from or communication with her, and having obtained the fund upon the representation in effect that he was so authorized, and not having legally discharged himself of the fund so received, was, under the circumstances, liable to replace it (see Re Spencer, 18 W. R. 240).

Renshaw, Q.C., and T. L. Wilkinson, for L., admitted that they could not successfully dispute his liability.

KAY, J., said that he entertained no doubt upon the matter. The order of the 28th of January, 1884, must be discharged, and an order now made, that the sums of 4387l. 10s. 3d. consols, and 195l. 19s. 4d. cash, and such further sums as would have been standing to the credit of the account if the order of the 28th of January, 1884, had not been made, should be respectively transferred and paid to the petitioner, and that L. should, within two months from the date of the present order, pay into Court to the account of the Paymaster General the sum of 4387l. 10s. 3d., consols and such other sums as should be payable to the petitioner under the present order. Such costs of this petition as would necessarily have been incurred if the petitioner had been applying for payment to her of the funds which would have been standing to the credit of the account if the order of the 28th of January, 1884, had not been made, must come out of the fund or be paid by the petitioner, and L. would be ordered to pay all the other costs of the proceedings, including the costs of the requisite application to the Lord Chancellor under sect. 5 of the Act above mentioned. His Lordship further directed that the documents in the case should be impounded.

In re TAYLOR.

Feb. 8.

MARTIN v. FREEMAN.

Will—Charitable Gift—Uncertainty—Mortmain.

Dr. Taylor, by a deed-poll enrolled in Chancery, and dated 25th January, 1882, conveyed a piece of land with the cottages thereon in Pulborough, Sussex, to trustees, on trust for the purposes of a hospital, to be called "Dr. Taylor's Hospital," and to be under the control of the trustees as governors, trusts being declared for the benefit of ten aged and infirm poor persons to be from time to time elected by the governors as inmates of the premises, preference being given to the inhabitants of certain specified parishes.

By his will dated 25th February, 1882, after bequeathing certain legacies and reciting the deed-poll, Dr. Taylor bequeathed the residue of his personal estate to the "governors," upon trust out of the capital to build a hospital on the site of the premises conveyed by the deed, and to apply the income of the remainder, in the first place, in insuring and repairing the hospital; and the testator then proceeded as follows: "If and whenever the said governors shall have in their hands the dividends arising from such capital not required for the purposes aforesaid such governors shall apply the sum of not less than 18*l.*, but more if in their discretion they shall think right, to each of the said ten aged and infirm poor for his, her, and their benefit; and after payment of such sums of 18*l.* or any larger sum as aforesaid in any one year, shall or may apply the balance of such dividends to or for the benefit of aged and deserving poor of either sex, as out-door pensioners, as the governors for the time being may think fit, preference being given to parishioners as aforesaid."

Dr. Taylor died on the 19th of March, 1882, that is, within twelve months from the execution of the deed-poll, which therefore became void under the Statute of Mortmain. The action was for the administration of his estate, and from the inquiries directed by the judgment it appeared that the residuary personal estate available, if at all, for the charitable objects indicated by his will was somewhat under 10,000*l.* The action now came on upon further consideration for the decision of the Court as to the effect of the charitable gift.

A. Young, for the plaintiffs, the executors.

Marten, Q.C., and Birrell, for the next-of-kin, contended that the primary gift was clearly void, as the land on which the hospital was to be built had not been brought into mortmain: and that the ultimate gift of the balance of income was also void, it being uncertain whether there would be any balance at all, or, if any, what the amount of it would be: Chapman v. Brown (6 Ves. 404).

Renshaw, Q.C., and Dibdin, for the governors, contended that, although the first part of the gift might have failed because the trusts could not be executed in consequence of the deed-poll being void, yet the ultimate gift of the balance of income for aged and deserving poor, ought to be allowed to take effect: Fisk v. Attorney-General (Law Rep. 4 Eq. 521): In re Birkett (9 Ch. D. 576); or, at all events, that the whole gift should be applied cy-près.

KAY, J., said it was clear the primary trust for building a hospital failed, and therefore the trust for maintaining ten aged and infirm persons in the hospital failed also. The question, then, was whether the ultimate gift of the balance of the dividends could be carried out. Having regard to the amount of the residue, it appeared that after building the hospital and providing the 18*l.* a year—which was only the minimum payment and might be increased at the discretion of the governors—for each of the ten aged and infirm persons, there would not be a farthing to give anyone else. The case fell within the principle laid down in Chapman v. Brown. In Fisk v. Attorney-General, and In re Birkett the language of the gifts differed from that in the present case, and therefore those cases could not be considered as authorities governing this case. His Lordship's opinion was that if the first gift to charity was void the ultimate gift failed for uncertainty, for the reasons given in Chapman v. Brown, it being impossible to say whether there would any balance or not. His Lordship left untouched the question whether the primary gift could be applied cy-près or not, for that question could not be decided in the absence of the Attorney-General. At present he only held, that the ultimate gift of the balance failed.

HOLDEN v. SMITH.

Will—Construction—Life Interest—Power of Disposition—Enjoyment in Specie—"Remainder."

A testator, who died on the 30th of March, 1887, by his will, dated the same day, after directing payment of his debts and funeral and testamentary expenses, gave and bequeathed "all my moneys, securities for money, furniture, plate, linen, china, and effects, including all debts due to me at my death and other my personal estate of what nature soever unto my wife, Alice Holden" (the plaintiff) "for her own use and benefit so long as she may live: on the death of my said wife it is my will and mind, and I hereby order and direct, that all the remainder of my said estate and effects which may then exist shall be made into money," and the testator gave and bequeathed the same in certain shares among his brothers and sisters and their issue, and a sister of his wife; and he appointed the plaintiff and the defendant H. Smith his executors. Part of the estate consisted of furniture, and a sum of 478*l.* cash at the bank. This was a summons taken out by the plaintiff asking that it might be declared that she was entitled for her life to the testator's personal estate, with the right to retain and enjoy the same in its actual condition or state of investment, and to change the investments thereof, and with an absolute power of disposition over the estate exercisable and to take effect during her lifetime.

H. Nash, for the summons, relied on In re Thomson's Estate (13 Ch. D. 144; 14 Ch. D. 269), as an authority in his favour, and further contended that if the plaintiff was not entitled as claimed by the summons, she was at all events entitled to enjoyment in specie, so that, as was said by James, L.J., in that case, "if there was ready money it need not be invested, but she might spend it."

Badcock, for the defendant Smith.

Woodroffe, for the persons interested in remainder.

KAY, J., said that the use of the word "remainder" could be explained by the circumstance that the estate might have to be diminished, after the plaintiff had taken possession of it, by payment of debts and other expenses. His Lordship held that the plaintiff was entitled to a life interest in specie, but that this did not entitle her to the capital of the sum of cash, which ought to be invested.

Will—Revocation—Special Power of Appointment—Subsequent Revocation of Gifts "in favour of" Donee of Power.

A testator, who died in 1876, by his will, dated in 1875, and four codicils thereto, gave his residuary estate to trustees upon trust for his four brothers and sisters, Thomas, John, Harriet and Ann, and the survivors and survivor of them, and after the death of the survivor upon trust as to one fourth share "for all or such one or more exclusively of the others or other of the children of my brothers Arthur and William as my said sister Harriet shall by will appoint" and in default of appointment upon trust for all such children or child as should be living at the decease of the survivor of Thomas, John, Harriet, and Ann, and the children of such of them as should then be dead, such last-mentioned children taking equally between them their parent's share. The testator made a fifth codicil to his will as follows: "I revoke all devises and bequests whatsoever contained in my will or codicils in favour of my sister Harriet." The question was whether the special power of appointment given to Harriet was revoked.

Marten, Q.C., S. Dickinson, R. F. Norton, Leveson, and Wace, appeared.

KAY, J., said that a person who gave to another a power of disposing of a considerable part of his estate must be supposed to intend to confer a favour on that person; and held that the special power of appointment given to Harriet was revoked, and that the one fourth share devolved as in default of appointment.

RAVENSBROFT v. WORKMAN.

Will—Construction—Charity—Marshalling—Residuary Gift to Charities—Direction that Charitable Legacies be paid exclusively out of pure Personal Estate—"Real Estate"—Land in Colony.

A testatrix, who died in 1885, by her will dated in that year gave all her real and personal estate to trustees upon trust to convert and out of the proceeds pay her debts, funeral and testamentary expenses and certain specified legacies (which were not to charitable objects) and directed that all such legacies should "in the first instance be chargeable upon and payable out of the proceeds of sale of my real and leasehold estate," and she directed her trustees to divide the residue of her estate into three equal parts, and pay the same to certain trustees for charitable purposes, and charitable societies which she named. She then gave the following direction:—"I direct that the foregoing charitable legacies shall be paid exclusively out of such part of my pure personal estate as is legally applicable for that purpose." The testatrix died possessed of land in the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, and of pure and impure personalty. She had no real or leasehold property in this country. Upon the further consideration of an action for the administration of the estate of the testatrix, the question arose out of what portion of the estate the debts, funeral and testamentary expenses and legacies were to be paid.

Horton Smith, Q.C., and Fellows, for the plaintiffs, the trustees of the will.

Marten, Q.C., and C. Williams, for the sole next-of-kin and heir-at-law of the testatrix, contended that the direction as to payment of the charitable bequests was not equivalent to a direction to marshal, and relied on Beaumont v. Oliveira (Law Rep. 4 Ch. 309), Llewellyn v. Rose (Weekly Notes, 1869, p. 178), and Lewis v. Bostefeur (98 L. T. (N. S.) 93, affirmed on appeal, Weekly Notes, 1879, p. 11).

Decimus Sturges, and Stock, for the charities, contra, relied on Wills v. Bourne (Law Rep. 16 Eq. 487), and Miles v. Harrison (Law Rep. 9 Ch. 316).

KAY, J., said that the direction in the will as to payment of the charitable bequests was in effect equivalent to a direction that the residue which the testatrix had given to charities should consist exclusively of pure personal estate; it therefore operated as a direction to marshal the assets for the benefit of the charities. He held that the legacies were primarily payable out of the proceeds of sale of the land in the colony, which was "real estate," within the meaning of the direction contained in the will. The debts and funeral and testamentary expenses, including the costs of the action, and what remained of the legacies (if anything), was payable out of the impure personal estate, so as to leave the pure personal estate, so far as possible, to constitute the ultimate residue.

The plaintiff insisted on the former construction. The Chief Clerk had adjourned the summons into Court.

Everitt, Q.C., and Stufeld, for the defendants, objected that there was no jurisdiction under r. 3 of Order LV. to determine a question arising between legal devisees.

This objection had not been taken before the Chief Clerk in chambers.

North, J. allowed the objection. He said that an originating summons under Order LV. was only intended to provide a short mode of obtaining the determination of questions, arising in the administration of an estate or the execution of trusts, which previously could not be determined without a general judgment for the administration of the estate or the execution of the trusts. This mode of procedure was not intended for the decision of questions arising between legal devisees which had nothing to do with the administration of an estate or the execution of trusts. He adhered to what he had said in In re Carlyon (56 L. J. (Ch.) 219). The summons must be dismissed with costs. OLIPHANT v. GERARD.

Marriage Settlement—Agreement to settle after-acquired Property of Wife—Bequest to Trustees on Trust as Wife shall appoint, and in Default of Appointment in Trust for Wife for separate use—Appointment by Wife to herself.

A marriage settlement executed in 1878, contained an agreement and declaration, that, if during the intended coverture the wife, or the husband in her right, should at one and the same time, from one and the same source, become entitled to any personal property of 500*l.* value or upwards, then and in every such case the husband and wife and all other necessary parties would assign the same to the trustees, upon the trusts of the settlement. In 1884 the wife's father made his will, and thereby bequeathed to the trustees thereof a legacy of 4000*l.*, upon trust for such persons and purposes, and in such sums and manner in every respect, as the wife should, notwithstanding coverture, appoint in writing, and, in default of, or subject to, any such appointment, in trust for the wife, for her sole and separate use "it being my intention that as to this legacy she may be able, by exercising her power of appointment, to defeat the operation of the covenant contained in her ante-nuptial settlement for the settlement of her after-acquired property exceeding 500*l.* in value." After the death of the father the wife executed nine separate appointments in writing, on nine successive days, by each of the first eight of which she, in exercise of the power of appointment given to her by her father's will, appointed that a sum of 450*l.*, part of the 4000*l.* bequeathed by the will as aforesaid, should thenceforth be held in trust for and belong to her for her sole and separate use, and should be paid to her accordingly, and by the ninth appointment she made a similar appointment of the residue of the 4000*l.*, after satisfying the several preceding appointments. The question was, whether the wife was entitled to have the 4000*l.* paid to her as her separate property, or whether the trustees of the settlement were entitled to it. An originating summons was taken out to determine this question.

LONDON STEAM DYEING COMPANY v. DIGBY.

Practice—Judgment on Admissions in Pleadings—Motion or Summons in Chambers—Costs—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XXXII. r. 6; Order XL. r. 1.

This action was brought to restrain the defendants from publishing a certain trade circular, or otherwise making representations similar to those contained in that circular. Upon motion, North, J., granted an interim injunction until the trial of the action, not quite as extensive in its terms as that which the plaintiffs had claimed. The defendants afterwards delivered a statement of defence, in which they offered to submit to a perpetual injunction, in the terms of the interim injunction, to be obtained on a summons issued for that purpose, and they insisted that that was the only relief to which the plaintiffs were entitled, and that the plaintiffs ought, if they should fail to obtain any further relief in the action, to pay all the defendants' costs of the action incurred after the date of the delivery of the defence. The plaintiffs did not take out a summons in chambers for the injunction thus offered, but they set down the action for trial on a notice of motion for judgment on the admissions in the pleadings, and they delivered to the defendants a copy of minutes of the proposed judgment, which was identical with that to which the defendants had offered to submit.

Willis-Bund, for the plaintiffs.

Oswald, for the defendants, objected that the plaintiffs ought not to be allowed any more costs than if they had proceeded by summons in chambers, and also that they ought to pay the extra costs of the defendants caused by their not proceeding by summons.

North, J., had no doubt that, if a perpetual injunction had been ordered in chambers by consent, the defendants would have been as much bound by it as if an adverse order had been made against them in Court. Therefore the plaintiffs would only be allowed the costs which they would have properly incurred, if they had proceeded by summons in chambers. The Taxing Master would decide what the proper costs would be, but his Lordship thought that the costs of minutes of the proposed order ought to be allowed, for it was important to have a statement in writing of what was consented to. If he had thought that inconsistent with Bower v. Smith, and he must follow the latter case.

Metropolis Local Management Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 120), s. 105—Paving Expenses—Tenant for Life.

Leonard Field died in August, 1886, having made a will by which he devised certain freehold houses at Wandsworth to his wife for life—he gave his residue to his wife.

Some of the houses devised to his wife for life were situated in Birdhurst Road. The Wandsworth District Board of Works on the 4th of February, 1887, gave notice of their intention to pave Birdhurst Road, and that the estimated proportion of the expenses payable in respect of the houses lately belonging to the testator amounted to 79*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.*

The testator's widow died the 1st of March, 1887, before the paving in Birdhurst Road had been done. This was an originating summons to determine, among other questions in the administration of the estates of Leonard Field and Sarah Field, his widow, whether the sum of 79*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.* ought to be paid out of the estate of Sarah Field, the tenant for life, or by the remaindermen.

CARLTON v. ROBERTS.

Locke King's Act (17 & 18 Vict. c. 113)—Locke King's Act Amendment Act (30 & 31 Vict. c. 69)—Charge of Debts.

This was an originating summons to determine whether a debt of the testator in the summons charged by deposit of deeds on real estate devised by his will was to be paid out of general estate, or whether the devisees were to take the real estate cum onere.

The testator was a twine manufacturer. He directed his private debts to be paid out of the proceeds of certain policies of life assurance: he made various bequests of personal estate: he devised his real estate on trusts which gave his daughter a life interest: he directed his trade debts to be paid out of his residuary personalty, which included his business and trade assets. He bequeathed his residuary personalty on trusts in which his son was largely interested.

At a time after the date of the testator's will, his bankers required him to find security for his overdrawn account. He deposited the title deeds of his real estate to secure the balance of his overdrawn account. There was evidence that the debt to the bankers was a debt incurred for trade purposes.

Vernon Smith, for the plaintiffs, the trustees of the will.
Cookson Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and Archibald Brown, for the daughter.

Warrington, for the son.

NORTH, J., held that the testator had expressed an intention that his trade debts should be paid out of the residue so as to discharge the devised realty.

Charitable Legacy—Condition—Perpetuity.

Elizabeth Randell, late of Hawley, bequeathed a sum of 14,000*l.* to her trustees in trust to pay the present incumbent of the district church of Holy Trinity, Hawley, and his successors the income so long as they allowed the sittings in the church to be occupied free. In case any incumbent at any time should require any payment in respect of sittings in the church, she directed the legacy to fall into her residue.

This was a summons to determine a number of questions in the administration of the estate of Elizabeth Randall. One of the questions raised was whether the gift over of the 14,000*l.* was void, as offending against the rules against perpetuity, and whether there was such a general dedication of the 14,000*l.* to charitable uses that the Court could, if the condition as to allowing the sittings to be held free were broken, direct a scheme.

Medd, for the trustees of the will.

Carson, for pecuniary legatees.

G. F. Hamilton, for residuary legatees.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Vaughan Hawkins, for the incumbent of Holy Trinity.

NORTH, J., held that there was not a general intention on the part of the testatrix to devote the legacy to charitable uses, and the testatrix having only directed that the legacy should go over in the same way that according to law it would go, there could be nothing illegal in the bequest.

In re LONDON AND LANCASHIRE PAPER MILLS COMPANY.

Vendor and Purchaser of Real Estate—Vendor's Lien for unpaid Purchase-money—Exclusion of Lien by Agreement—Bill of Sale—Validity—Registration—Scheduled Form—"Personal Chattels"—"Trade Machinery"—Partial Invalidity—Bills of Sale Act, 1878, ss. 4, 5—Bills of Sale Act, 1882, ss. 8, 9.

Summons by the official liquidator of the company, asking for an order upon the Union Bank of Manchester to deliver up to him all the "trade machinery" used in or attached to the paper mills lately in the possession of the company, and forming part of their assets.

On the 29th of May, 1886, the bank, who were then mortgagees in possession of the paper mills, and the plant, machinery, and fixtures belonging to them, entered into an agreement with one Balshaw, on behalf of the company, to sell them to the company for 20,000*l.*, payable in instalments. The first instalment of 250*l.* was to be paid on the signing of the agreement, upon which possession of the premises was to be given; the second instalment of 250*l.* was to be paid on or before the 24th August, 1886; the third instalment of 3000*l.* was to be paid on or before the 25th December, 1887; and the other instalments at subsequent dates. Interest was to be paid to the bank upon the amount remaining from time to time unpaid. Clause 2 of the agreement provided that, upon payment to the bank of the first two instalments, the bank should convey the premises to the company, upon their executing a mortgage to the bank for the balance of the 20,000*l.*, the mortgage to contain all usual powers and covenants, and in particular, that, in case default should be made for twenty-one days in the payment of any principal money or interest by the agreement agreed to be paid, or should the business of the company be suspended at any time for a month, power should be given to the bank to re-enter and take possession of the premises, and of everything which should have been built, erected or placed thereon, and which would not require registration within the meaning of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, and to hold the same for their own use and benefit absolutely, but without prejudice to the liability of the company for the whole of the unpaid purchase-money and interest. But should the bank, at any time after making such re-entry and taking possession, require a conveyance from the company of their equity of redemption in the premises, the bank should be entitled to an immediate conveyance thereof, in consideration of their releasing the company from any further liability on account of the unpaid purchase-money and interest.

The agreement was not in the form scheduled to the Bills of Sale Act, 1882, and it was never registered as a bill of sale. The first instalment was duly paid by the company, and possession was delivered to them. The second instalment was paid before the end of 1886. No conveyance or mortgage was ever executed in pursuance of the agreement, but the property remained in the possession of the company until a winding-up order was made on the 12th of February, 1887. On the 17th of May, 1887, the bank gave notice in writing to the company and the liquidator, that, the business of the company having been suspended for upwards of one month, the bank had, in pursuance of the agreement, re-entered and taken possession of the mills, "and of everything that is built, erected, or placed thereon, and which would not require registration within the meaning of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878." This summons was then issued.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and F. B. Palmer, for the liquidator.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Hornell, for the bank.

NORTH, J., held that the position of the parties was the same as if a conveyance and a mortgage of the property had been actually executed, and that, by reason of clause 2 of the agreement, the bank had lost their vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money, the express stipulations of the agreement being inconsistent with the retention of that lien. If the agreement related to "personal chattels" it was a "bill of sale" within the definition in the Act of 1878, and required registration, and it would also be void under sect. 9 of the Act of 1882. But, in accordance with In re Burdett (ante, p. 15), the agreement would not be wholly void. It would remain valid as to the vendor's contract, and also as to the purchaser's contract, except so far as it gave a security for money upon "personal chattels." In other words, it would be valid so far as it was not a bill of "personal chattels." Upon its construction the agreement was not intended to give a security to the bank upon any property as to which registration would be required under the Act. Consequently, "trade machinery" as defined by the Act was not comprised in the security, and such machinery must be delivered up to the liquidators. But in other respects the agreement remained valid.

Bill of Sale—Validity—Fixtures—"Trade Machinery"—Vendor's Lien for unpaid Purchase-money—Bills of Sale Act, 1878.

This case was very similar in its circumstances to the previous one, except that the Bills of Sale Act of 1882 did not apply, and that, as the Court held, the vendors had not by reason of any express stipulation lost their lien for unpaid purchase-money. The company being in liquidation, the question was whether the liquidator, as against the unpaid vendors, was entitled to certain "trade machinery" which was affixed to the freehold.

Methold, for the liquidator.

Swinfen Eady, for the vendors.

NORTH, J., held that the vendor's lien extended to "trade machinery" which was affixed to the freehold, and that, the lien being given by law, and there being nothing which could be registered, the Bills of Sale Act did not apply, and the vendors were entitled to the fixed "trade machinery." The summons must be dismissed.

SIMPSON v. BEARD.

Will—Construction—"Share and Interest in Business."

The testator in this summons bequeathed his share and interest in a brewery partnership to his son in trust for his wife for life, with remainder for his three children, his son and two daughters. The firm owed the testator a sum of 3886*l.*, which bore interest at the rate of 5 per cent. The wife was entitled to the residue.

The question raised was whether the loan passed as part of the testator's interest in the business.

Swinfen Eady, for the plaintiff, a trustee and executor.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Chubb, for the widow and son.

Everitt, Q.C., and F. Thompson, for the daughters.

NORTH, J., held that the debt belonged to the widow as part of the residue.

CROOME v. CROOME.

Will, Construction of—Gift for a particular Purpose—Resulting Trust or not—Admission of Parol Evidence.

J. C., by his will, not dated, gave to his brother, E. R. H. C. all his real estate "on trust nevertheless to pay thereout" two sums of 800*l.* and 300*l.* and certain annuities, and he gave all his personal estate, after payment of his funeral expenses and all his just debts "except the two above mentioned sums of 800*l.* and 300*l.*" to his said brother and to his sister-share and share alike, and he appointed his said brother, E. R. H. C., to be sole executor.

Two questions arose: whether E. R. H. C. was entitled beneficially to the real estate subject to the payment of the two sums and the annuities, or whether there was a resulting trust in favour of the heir-at-law; and whether parol evidence was admissible to shew that the testator intended E. R. H. C. to take beneficially.

Hastings, Q.C., and Theobald, for the heir-at-law.

W. Pearson, Q.C., and Robert Swan, for the devisee.

STIRLING, J., said that it had been held since the case of King v. Denison (1 V. & B. 260), that where there was a devise to A. B. on trust for a particular purpose which did not exhaust the whole property the effect was to give the devised property for that particular purpose only, and not to give him any beneficial interest; but it might be shewn from something else in the will that the testator intended that the devisee should take beneficially. Upon the construction of the will, however, he came to the conclusion that there was not sufficient to shew any such intention, and accordingly he was bound to hold that the devisee was a trustee of the property and that there was a resulting trust in favour of the heir-at-law, and he also held that in such a case parol evidence could not be admitted to shew a contrary intention on the part of the testator.

Kekewich, J. HARVEY v. LAMBERT. Feb. 6.

Purchase by Executor—Bequest to Trustees.

James Harvey, of Jamaica, who died in 1876, by his will appointed executors A. Lambert, O. Williams, and J. R. Latreille, and appointed trustees of his will and guardians of his children A. Lambert and O. Williams, to whom he devised all his estates, real and personal, with powers to manage, cultivate and carry on the same. After the testator's eldest son attained the age of 25 years the estate was to be divided amongst the testator's four children. The will was proved in England by A. Lambert and O. Williams, and in Jamaica by J. R. Latreille. In 1878 the trustees sold to J. R. Latreille the interest of the testator in a leasehold wharf and cooorage in Jamaica.

Some of the children of the testator brought this action against A. Lambert, O. Williams and J. R. Latreille, alleging many breaches of trust, and claiming, amongst other things, to have the sale of the wharf and cooorage set aside.

Warmington, Q.C., and P. S. Stokes, for the plaintiffs.

Barber, Q.C., Cutler, Q.C., and Strickland, for the defendants.

KEKEWICH, J., said that the sale had been defended on the ground that Latreille, though an executor, was not one of the trustees to whom all the estates and powers had been given, and that as he had assented to the bequest to the trustees, he was discharged from liability to cestuis que trustent, and was at arm's length. But that cannot be until the accounts are settled, and here the sale was made not much more than six months after the death of the testator, when no attempt had been made to balance the accounts. The sale must be set aside.

Thomas Davies the elder, being tenant by the curtesy of some houses in the country of Brecon, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by the Settled Estates Act, 1877, demised the houses to William Davies for 21 years; and William Davies covenanted to keep the premises in good and substantial repair, and the same in good and substantial repair deliver up to the lessor at the expiration of the 21 years, fair wear and tear and damage by tempest excepted.

Thomas Davies the younger, being the reversioner, brought this action, after the death of Thomas Davies the elder, claiming, amongst other things, to have this lease set aside as not a valid exercise of the power.

Warmington, Q.C., and Uppjohn, for the plaintiff.

Barber, Q.C., and Ingham, for the defendant.

KEKEWICH, J., said that the covenant must be read as one, and must be held to leave the lessee not liable for damages by fair wear and tear or tempest. He was therefore to that extent a lessee without impeachment of waste, and the lease was therefore not valid under sect. 46 of the Settled Estates Act, 1877.

Application to dismiss the action referred to the Court by Hawkins, J., at chambers.

The defendants were official liquidators of the Blackburn and District Benefit Building Society, an unregistered company, in process of being wound up. The action was for arrears of rent, the plaintiffs claiming as owners of a rent-charge on premises which were alleged to have vested in the defendants as official liquidators by an order made under sect. 203 of the Companies Act, 1862. The defendants contended that the action was "an action against the company," within sect. 87 of that Act, and was therefore not maintainable.

THE COURT (Huddleston, B., and Manisty, J.) held that the action was substantially "against the company" within the meaning of sect. 87, and granted the application.

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Bkey. Ct. la re RIDDELL. Feb. 17.
Ex parte EARL OF STRATHMORE.

Act of Bankruptcy—Bankruptcy Notice—“Final Judgment”—Order dismissing Action with Costs for want of Prosecution—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 4, sub-s. 1 (g).

Appeal against a decision (ante, p. 12) of a Divisional Court (Cave and Grantham, JJ.), affirming an order of the County Court at Newcastle-on-Tyne, dismissing a bankruptcy petition presented by the Earl of Strathmore against Edward Riddell, on the ground that no act of bankruptcy had been committed. Riddell had brought an action against the Earl to recover possession of land; for a declaration of his title to the land; and for mesne profits; and North, J. had made an order in Chambers dismissing the action for want of prosecution, with costs. The costs having been taxed at 50*l.*, the Earl served Riddell with a bankruptcy notice for the taxed amount, and the failure of Riddell to comply with that notice was the act of bankruptcy alleged in the petition. The registrar of the County Court held that the order of North, J. was not a “final judgment” within the meaning of sub-s. 1 (g) of sect. 4 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, and that, consequently, the bankruptcy notice was invalid. The Divisional Court affirmed the decision. The Earl, by the leave of the Divisional Court, appealed.

Sidney Woolf, for Riddell, was not heard.

THE COURT OF APPEAL (Lord Esher M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal.

An imbecile person, incapable of managing her affairs, was entitled under the trusts of a settlement to a sum of 1258*l.*

2½ per cent. annuities absolutely, and under a will to a life interest in a moiety of a sum of 989*l.* 3 per cent. annuities; and one Moore was entitled to such last mentioned sum subject to the life interest of the supposed lunatic. Both these sums were standing in the names of trustees. Moore and his wife (now deceased), who was a sister of the supposed lunatic, had received the income of her property, which amounted to about 54*l.* per annum, and had expended on her maintenance more than 72*l.* per annum, supplying the deficiency out of their or his own pocket. The deficiency during the last six years had been supplied by Moore, and amounted to 104*l.* 17*s.* The supposed lunatic was a spinster, and now 79 years old; and Moore presented a petition under the Lunacy Regulation Acts, 1862 and 1882, praying, inter alia, that the trustees of the 1258*l.* might be at liberty to transfer that sum into Court to the credit of this matter, and that thereout, after payment of the taxed costs of the application, the sum of 104*l.* (being the six years deficiency) might be raised and paid to the petitioner, that the dividends on the residue of the 1258*l.* might be paid to him during the life of the supposed lunatic, he undertaking to apply them towards her maintenance, and that from time to time during her life there might be raised and paid to the petitioner out of the balance of the 1258*l.* a yearly sum equal to the difference between the total income of the supposed lunatic and the sum of 72*l.* per annum, the cost of her maintenance, the petitioner undertaking to apply the same for her maintenance.

The petition was not served upon any one, except upon the supposed lunatic personally in compliance with the order in that behalf. The only next of kin of the lunatic were two nieces.

Theobald, for the petitioner.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.), made the order, and directed that notice of it should be given to the next of kin in order to give them an opportunity of objecting to it if they desired to do so.

HOWARD v. PATENT IVORY MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Company—Contract on behalf of intended Company—Evidence—Ratification—New Contract.

On the 25th of April, 1885, an agreement was entered into between J. and W. W., on behalf of the defendant company (which was therein described as about to be formed) whereby J. agreed to sell certain property to the company. The company was registered four days afterwards. By the memorandum of association one of the objects of the company was stated to be to adopt, ratify and carry into effect (either with or without variation) the agreement of the 25th of April, 1885, and the articles of association provided that the directors should forthwith proceed to do so. On the 27th of May, 1885, at a board meeting of the directors, it was resolved that the agreement of the 25th of April, 1885, should be adopted by the company. At another meeting on the 6th of June, 1885, it was resolved that an offer of J. to accept payment of the purchase-money partly in cash and partly in debentures, should be accepted. At another meeting on the 17th of June, 1885, it was resolved that the seal of the company should be affixed to a deed of assignment by J. to the company of certain leasehold premises comprised in the agreement, and to debentures to be issued to J. in payment of part of the purchase-money. J., who was a director, was present at all these meetings. The deed of assignment was executed by J., and sealed by the company. It contained a recital that he had agreed to sell the leasehold premises to the company. The debentures were issued to J., and the company took possession of the leasehold premises and carried on their business thereon. On the 13th of September, 1886, the holders of the debentures gave notice demanding payment of the capital money and interest then due. On the 16th of the same month a petition for the winding-up of the company was presented by a creditor, and on the 6th of November, 1886, a winding-up order was made. On the 3rd of March, 1887, a deed was, at the request of the liquidator, executed by J., which recited the adoption by the company of the agreement of the 25th of April, 1885, and whereby J. assigned to the company a moiety of certain letters patent comprised in that agreement. In an action to enforce the debentures, the liquidator contended that the agreement of the 25th of April, 1885, was never binding on the company, that there was no evidence from which the Court could infer that a contract was entered into between J. and the company constituting a debt due from them to him previously to the issuing of the debentures, and that the debentures were therefore invalid.

Byrne, Q.C., and Spence, for the plaintiff.

KAY, J., said that the case cited no doubt created considerable difficulty, but the facts of it were distinguishable from the facts of the present case. Referring to the report of that case, his Lordship said that he should have thought that there was evidence there from which the Court might have inferred the existence of a new agreement between the parties to the same effect as the original agreement. But, however that might be, in the present case there was evidence of a contract entered into between J. and the other directors that the agreement of the 25th of April, 1885, should be adopted, so that the money for which the debentures were issued was due at the time of issue. He therefore held that the debentures were validly issued to the extent of the borrowing powers vested in the directors of the company.

NELSON v. ROBINS.

Will—Construction—Gift of "Clear Annuity"—Legacy Duty.

The testator gave to the defendant a "clear yearly annuity" of 250*l.*, and, after payment of that annuity, he gave to E. a "clear yearly sum of 364*l.*, free of legacy duty." The question was whether the annuity given to the defendant was given free of legacy duty.

Christopher James, for the plaintiffs, the trustees of the testator's will, and some beneficiaries.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Gazdar, for the defendant.

NORTH, J., held that the fact that the second annuity was expressly given free of legacy duty did not alter the construction of the word "clear" in the gift of the annuity to the defendant. And the authorities shewed that the effect of that word was to make that annuity free of legacy duty.

GREENWELL v. DAVISON.

Will—Construction—Devise of Real Estate in particular County—Leaseholds—Wills Act, 1837, s. 26.

A testator devised a mansion-house and lands in Kent on specific trusts. And he devised all his real estate in the several counties of Durham and Middlesex, or elsewhere than in the county of Kent, and the manor of S. in the county of Durham, and some houses situate at S., which were held by him under a lease, to his trustees, upon trusts similar to those previously declared of the mansion-house and lands in Kent. And he bequeathed the residue of his personal estate to the trustees, upon different trusts. At the time of his death the testator had no real estate in Middlesex, but he had a leasehold house in that county. He had the manor of S. (which he held on a lease) and the leasehold houses at S. mentioned in the will, and he had also some other leasehold houses in the city of Durham, and some freehold and copyhold lands in the county of Durham. The question was whether the leasehold house in Middlesex, and the leasehold houses in the city of Durham, passed under the devise of real estate in the counties of Durham and Middlesex, or under the bequest of residuary personal estate.

Dundas Gardiner, for the plaintiffs, and some of the defendants.

Dickinson, for the other defendants.

NORTH, J., held that both the leasehold house in Middlesex and the leasehold houses in the city of Durham passed under the devise of real estate in those counties. Neither the fact that there was a bequest of residuary personal estate, nor the reference to a particular leasehold property in the county of Durham, was a sufficient indication of a "contrary intention" so as to exclude the operation of sect. 26 of the Wills Act. Nor was it necessary in order to bring that section into operation that the word "land" should be used in the devise.

Transfer of Fund in Court—Petition or Summons—Summons issued in Error—Petition subsequently presented—Costs of Summons—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LV., r. 2.

This was a petition for the division into thirds of a fund in Court, exceeding 1000*l.* in amount, and the carrying over of those thirds to separate accounts. There had been no order declaring the rights of the parties. The application was in the first instance made by summons in Chambers, but under the circumstances there was no jurisdiction to make the order asked for on summons, and the chief clerk accordingly declined to make it. This petition was then presented.

Cuzens-Hardy, Q.C., and Mortimer Malleon, for the petitioners, asked that the costs thrown away of the summons might be allowed.

J. Cutler; C. H. Sargent; and Norman Pearson; for the respondents.

NORTH, J., said that he would allow the cost of the summons, because it had been issued in the reasonable expectation that the order could be made in Chambers, and it was a meritorious application. But he should not as a matter of course allow the costs of a summons in every case in which a summons had been issued, and it had afterwards appeared that the order asked for could not be obtained, without a petition. If he came to the conclusion that the application by summons was not a meritorious one, he should leave the solicitor who had issued it to bear the extra costs of it. In the present case the extra costs of the summons would be allowed.

BETHELL v. HILDYARD.

English Domicil—Baralong Tribe in Bechuanaland—Marriage according to Custom of Tribe between Englishman and Woman of the Tribe—Polygamy—Marriage invalid.

W. F. B., who died in 1879, devised an estate in Yorkshire to trustees upon trust for his son C. B. for life, and in case he should die leaving a child or children, to sell the estate and to hold the proceeds for such child or children, and if there should be no such child, there was a gift over to W. B. C. B. went to the Cape of Good Hope in 1878, and afterwards became a resident at Mafeking in Bechuanaland. He continued to reside in that territory, and never returned to England. He died in South Africa in 1884. W. B. took out a summons for the administration of his estate. An inquiry was directed whether C. B. was ever married, and if so when, and to whom, and whether he left any children. The chief clerk certified that C. B., in October, 1883, being resident in Bechuanaland, went through the form of marriage according to the custom of the Baralong Tribe with Teepoo, a Baralong girl, and had issue by her a female child who was born ten days after his death; that the Baralongs had not any religion, nor any religious customs, and that polygamy was allowed: that the domicile of C. B. was English, and that, save as aforesaid, he never was married. It was then ordered that the infant should be represented, and the official solicitor was appointed guardian; and he took out a summons asking that the certificate might be varied by finding that C. B. was married to Teepoo, and left one child surviving. The marriage ceremony was, that when the consent of the parents had been obtained, the bridegroom slaughtered certain animals, the heads of which were taken to the bride's parents, and they were then considered married; and after the birth of the first child, the number of cattle previously agreed upon was handed over to the wife's parents. C. B. went through that ceremony with Teepoo, and the evidence of Montsioa, the chief of the tribe, was, that he knew C. B. really married Teepoo, that she was his wife, and not his paramour. In December, 1883, C. B., in writing, in the event of his decease, gave directions to a friend as to the sale of his property in Bechuanaland for the benefit of Teepoo and any child that might be born. C. B. never mentioned his marriage to any of his relatives, but he expressed his intention to return to England. There was no evidence that he ever introduced Teepoo, or spoke of her to any European as his wife. C. B. knew of his father's will, and the income of the estate, about 600*l.* a year, was remitted to him.

Hastings, Q.C., and E. W. Byrne, Q.C., for the infant.

W. Pearson, Q.C., and G. Williamson for the plaintiff; and Borthwick for the trustees.

STIRLING, J.:—After stating the facts and referring to Warrender v. Warrender (2 Cl. & F. 488), and Hyde v. Hyde and Woodmansee (Law Rep. 1 P. & D. 130), held that a union formed between a man and a woman in a foreign country, although it might there bear the name of a marriage, and the parties to it might there be designated husband and wife, was not a valid marriage according to the law of England, unless it was formed on the same basis as marriages throughout Christendom, and be in its essence "the voluntary union for life of one man and one woman, to the exclusion of all others," and said that the evidence proved that C. B. intended that the relationship between himself and Teepoo should be that of husband and wife in the sense in which those terms were used among the Baralongs; but the Baralong husband was at liberty to take more than one wife; and upon the evidence the union between C. B. and Teepoo was a marriage in the Baralong sense. C. B. positively refused to marry her in church, not because of any difficulty in finding a place of religious worship where the ceremony could be performed, but because he alleged that he was a Baralong, and wished to marry according to their custom. He was therefore of opinion that the union between C. B. and Teepoo was a marriage in the Baralong sense only, and was not a valid marriage according to the law of England. The summons would be dismissed, the costs to come out of the estate.

Husband and Wife—Reduction of ante-Nuptial Contract of Marriage—Minority—Scottish and Irish Law.

This was an appeal from the Second Division of the Court of Session, Scotland (12 Court Sess. Cas. 4th Series, 478) in which the appellant, a deceased Scotchman's widow, claimed to be entitled to set aside her ante-nuptial marriage contract.

Rigby, Q.C., and Ed. T. Salvesen (of the Scotch Bar) (with them William F. Hamilton), were heard for the appellant.

The Solicitor-General for Scotland (J. P. B. Robertson, Q.C.), and E. W. Byrne, Q.C., were heard for the respondents.

THE HOUSE (Lord Halsbury, L.C., and Lords Watson and Macnaghten), considering that the appellant's objection to the contract founded on Irish law was still open to her, notwithstanding the course of the proceedings in the Court of Session (see 12 Court Sess. Cas. 4th Series, p. 478), reversed the judgment of the Court of Session on the ground that as Ireland was the country of the appellant's domicile, and also the place of the execution of the ante-nuptial contract of marriage, the contract was to be governed by that law (which was the same as English law); and that as the appellant was at the date of the contract a minor, she could not bind herself, and therefore was now entitled to set the contract aside. No costs.

Breach of Promise of Marriage—Death of Promisor after Breach—Action against Executors—"Actio personalis moritur cum persona"—Special Damage.

Appeal of defendants from a decision of Field and Wills, JJ., ordering a new trial.

The defendants were the executors of G. B. Chirney, and were sued in respect of a breach committed by him during his lifetime of a promise by him to marry the plaintiff. At the trial the plaintiff was nonsuited, on the ground that there was no corroboration of the promise to marry, but the Divisional Court set aside the nonsuit, and ordered a new trial. On appeal to the Court of Appeal, the defendants contended that the action was a 'personal action, that the maxim "actio personalis moritur cum persona" was applicable to it, and that it would not lie against the executors of a deceased promisor.

Digby Seymour, Q.C., and J. Lawson Walton, for the plaintiff.

Waddy, Q.C., H. F. Boyd, and Ernest Pollock, for the defendants.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Bowen and Fry, L.JJ.), held that the action would not lie in the absence of special damage, and that if special damage were proved it would only lie for the amount of such special damage, and not for all the damage ordinarily recoverable from a defendant in an action for breach of promise of marriage. There being nothing claimed in the present case which came within the definition of special damage, the Court entered judgment for the defendants.

Appeal allowed.

From Q. B. Div. REEVE v. BERRIDGE. Feb. 23.

Vendor and Purchaser—Agreement for purchase of Lease—Constructive Notice of Contents of Lease—Onerous Covenants.

The plaintiff, in March, 1886, entered into an agreement with the owner of an estate, under which he was entitled to leases of certain plots of land, when houses should be built thereon. In August, 1886, the plaintiff agreed to sell, and the defendant agreed to purchase, a house, which had been built on one of the plots, for 615*l.*, for the residue of a term of 80½ years from the 29th of September, 1886. A deposit of 20*l.* was paid by the defendant. The plaintiff agreed to make out a title to the house as leasehold, and, on payment of the balance of the purchase-money by the defendant on the 29th of September, 1886, to execute an assignment to the defendant. It was also agreed that, if either party refused to perform the agreement, he should pay to the other, who should be willing to complete, the sum of 100*l.*, exclusive of the deposit, and that on completion the defendant should enter into the usual covenants to indemnify the plaintiff against the rent and covenants of the original lease. On the 29th of September, 1886, the defendant refused to complete, on the ground that the original lease contained some onerous covenants on the part of the lessee (such as one against carrying on certain trades) which were not usual covenants, and that he was entitled to a lease subject only to the usual covenants. The agreement for purchase did not mention the existence of these covenants, but the plaintiff contended that, as the agreement disclosed the fact that the property was leasehold, the defendant must be taken to have had notice of the lease and of all its contents. The lease from the owner of the estate was not in existence at the date of the agreement for purchase, and the agreement between the plaintiff and the owner of the estate was not shewn to the defendant, nor was any opportunity offered to him of inspecting it, or learning the nature of its contents. The plaintiff brought the action to recover the 100*l.*, the stipulated payment for default, less 50*l.* which he had received on account of the purchase-money in addition to the deposit.

The action was tried by Stephen, J., who held that the defendant, having notice of the lease, had notice of all its contents; but decided against the plaintiff, on the ground that the lease from the owner of the estate was not in existence on the day fixed for completion of the agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant, and that the equitable interest which the plaintiff then possessed would not entitle him to recover the 100*l.* The plaintiff appealed.

Gully, Q.C., and H. A. Forman, for the appellant.

E. O. B. Lane, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal.

FRY, L.J., who delivered the judgment of the Court, said that the case was governed by the decision of the Court of Appeal in Hyde v. Warden (8 Ex. D. 72), in which it was held that a person who had agreed to take an underlease was not, by reason of his having had notice of the original lease, to be taken to have had notice of all the terms of that lease, unless he had had a fair opportunity of ascertaining its provisions for himself. The principle of that decision applied to the present case. Consequently, though the Court differed on this point from Stephen, J. (to whom Hyde v. Warden was not cited), his judgment would be affirmed, without expressing any opinion upon the point on which he decided against the plaintiff. The appeal would be dismissed with costs.

From Ch. Div. GAS LIGHT AND COKE COMPANY v. Feb. 23.
SOUTH METROPOLITAN GAS COMPANY.

Metropolis Gas Act, 1860, s. 6—Construction—“ Supply Gas for Sale.”

By the Metropolis Gas Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 125), which was passed for regulating the supply of gas by the several gas companies in the metropolis, and confining the supply by each company to the particular district assigned to it, it was provided (sect. 6) “the limits of each of the said companies shall be the respective districts supplied with gas by such companies as the same are defined upon” certain maps, “and no other company or person than the company to whom such limits are for the time being assigned or shall hereafter be assigned shall supply gas for sale within the said limits, unless authorized by Parliament so to do.”

Previously to 1886, the London and South-Western Railway Company had obtained from the plaintiff company the supply of gas for the use of their goods-sheds and locomotive works at Nine Elms Station, which was situated principally within the district assigned to the plaintiff company by the Act of 1860, but partly also within the district of defendant company. Disputes having arisen as to the price of gas the railway company gave notice to the plaintiff company to discontinue the supply, and required the defendant company to furnish them with gas thenceforth.

In order to comply with this demand the defendant company had placed additional meters within their own district, but had laid down mains and pipes within the district of the plaintiff company, and the gas thus supplied to the railway company was admittedly consumed within the limits of the plaintiff company.

On appeal by plaintiff company from Kekewich, J., who had refused to restrain the defendant company from continuing to supply the railway company, on the ground that such supply was not within the prohibition contained in sect. 6 of the Act of 1860:

Held (per Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.J.J.) that in construing the words of sect. 6 the Court of Appeal, whatever might have been their own individual interpretation of the ambiguous words of that section, was bound by, and could not depart from, the construction placed upon those words by Cairns and Rolt, L.J.J., in December, 1867 (see Imperial Gas Light and Coke Company v. West London Junction Gas Company, Journal of Gas Lighting, January 7, 1868), and accordingly that it must be held that gas consumed within the limits of the plaintiff company, but supplied from a meter without those limits, was not “gas supplied for sale” within the limits of the plaintiff company.

Appeal dismissed.

REPUBLIC OF PERU v. DREYFUS BROTHERS & Co.

Foreign Government — Contract with — International Law — Validity of Acts of de facto Government recognised as such by Government of State of which the other contracting Party is a Subject.

In 1869 the defendants, who were French subjects, entered into a contract with the Government of Peru for the purchase of guano; and it was stipulated that all the differences to which the contract might give rise should be determined by the tribunals of Peru, to the decision of which the defendants bound themselves to submit. Under the contract a difference arose between the defendants and the Government as to the amount due from one to the other of them. In 1879 the existing Government of Peru was overthrown, and a dictator assumed the supreme power; and shortly afterwards the dictator was recognised by the Governments of England and France as being de facto the supreme ruler of Peru. The difference which had arisen under the contract was settled between the defendants and the dictator's Government, the stipulation as to differences being decided by the tribunals of Peru was waived, and the amount due to the defendants was agreed at a sum considerably less than that which they claimed. The dictator made provision for payment of the amount so agreed by consigning cargoes of guano to the defendants. The proceeds of the cargoes were claimed by the Peruvian Guano Company, and in 1880 the defendants brought an action against the company to recover such proceeds. In 1886 the Government of Peru was reconstituted in the form in which it existed previously to the dictatorship, and the new Government passed a law declaring void all the internal acts of government done by the dictator. In the action against the company judgment was given in favour of the defendants, and a large sum of money was paid into Court in that action and invested. The present action was brought by the existing Government of Peru, seeking to establish their claim to the fund in Court, and to restrain the defendants from obtaining it out of Court, on the ground that by the law of Peru the arrangement with the dictator's Government was void.

Rigby, Q.C., Bramwell Davis, and G. M. Ballou, for the plaintiffs, moved the Court for an injunction.

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., and Ingle Joyce for the defendants.

KAY, J., said that the case could not be determined by the law of Peru. The question was one of international law whether or not the citizens of a foreign state might safely have such dealings as existed in this case with a Government which such State had recognised. He must take the law to be that an Englishman or Frenchman might safely contract with the dictator's Government, if not before at any rate after, it was recognised by the Governments of England and France respectively. The agreement entered into between the defendants and the dictator's Government could only be invalidated by showing that that Government had no authority to enter into it; but that question, so far as the defendants were concerned, was settled by the recognition of the dictator's Government by France, and was in no sense a question of the law which the Republic of Peru might now think fit to recognise. Further, it was settled that a foreign Government seeking to recover property under a contract must recognise that contract, and could not recover in violation of it. It followed that the plaintiffs in this case could only recover if the dictator's Government could have done so. That Government certainly could not have recovered in violation of its own contract as the plaintiffs were now seeking to do. His Lordship therefore refused the motion with costs.

Company—Winding-up—Liquidator—Practice—Witness—Examiner of the Court, Attendance before—Subpœna—Motion to compel Attendance—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XXXVII r. 13.

The general rule that, where a witness has been ordered to be cross-examined before one of the examiners of the Court, it is necessary that he should have been served with a subpœna to attend the examination, before a motion can be made to the Court to compel him to attend as a witness at his own expense, does not apply to the case of an official liquidator upon whom an order for cross-examination has been made in winding-up proceedings. Being an officer of the Court, he is not entitled, upon a motion to compel him to attend for cross-examination at his own expense, to raise the technical objection that he had not been served with a subpœna.

Leveti, for a motion to compel the attendance of the liquidator of the above company, who had failed to attend before the examiner at the time and place appointed.

LAVERY v. PURSELL.

Feb. 23.

Statute of Frauds, ss. 4, 17—Interest in Land—Sale of Building Materials—Specific Performance—Damages.

Sale by auction on the 11th of November, 1886, of "the valuable building materials of the spacious premises," etc., etc., under conditions of sale which provided: (a) "Purchase-money to be paid and contract signed on fall of hammer, and possession of the premises to be then given to the purchaser for the purpose only of taking down and removing the materials;" (b) "The materials to be taken down and cleared off the ground on or before the 11th of January next, after which date any materials uncleared will be deemed a trespass, and the purchaser's right of access to the ground shall absolutely cease."

At the auction the property was knocked down to A. (bidding by X., his agent) for 560*l.* The form of contract appended to the particulars and conditions was filled in and signed by X.; and C., the auctioneer, added: "As auctioneer I confirm this sale on behalf of the vendor, and acknowledge the receipt," etc., etc.

As a matter of fact, the purchase-money was not then paid in accordance with the conditions of sale, but 100*l.* was paid to and accepted by C., the auctioneer, "as a deposit on the purchase of building materials, &c."

On the 17th of December, B., the vendor, returned the 100*l.* to A., and stopped A.'s workmen from proceeding with pulling down the buildings. In an action by A., brought in December, 1886, for specific performance, and claiming at the trial damages in lieu thereof, CHITTY, J., after holding upon the evidence that the auctioneer had acted within his authority in accepting the deposit of 100*l.* in lieu of the full purchase-money as provided by the conditions of sale, and that as a matter of fact there had been part performance by delivery of and taking possession, held that the contract which gave the right to enter upon the soil and hold, for the purpose of pulling down, was a contract concerning a hereditament, or an interest in or concerning land within sect. 4, and not for the sale of a chattel within sect. 17 of the Statute of Frauds (Marshall v. Green (1 C. P. D. 35) distinguished on this point), and accordingly, on the authorities, that the absence from the note or writing of any description of the vendor was fatal to any claim for specific performance. Further, as the contract was one of which, having regard to the time limited by the contract, specific performance had become impossible, the equitable doctrine of part performance did not enable the Court to decree damages; the Judicature Act not having extended the equitable jurisdiction so as to enable the Court to grant damages in cases where, before the Act, specific performance would not have been decreed.

Sir A. Watson, Q.C., and D. L. Alexander, for the plaintiff.

Romer, Q.C., and Hatfield Green, for the vendor.

Sale of Settled Estate—Conditional Contract—Sanction of Court—Sale of Leasehold in consideration of Rent-charge—Settled Estates Act, 1877, ss. 16, 18.

A conditional contract had been entered into for the sale of some leasehold property, which was the subject of a settlement, the consideration being an annual rent-charge, payable during the remainder of the term at the times at which the rent reserved by the lease was payable. The rent-charge was to be charged upon the freehold reversion, which had been acquired by the purchasers, and by the joint and several covenants of the purchasers. This was a petition under the Settled Estates Act, 1877, for the sanction of the Court.

NORTH, J., sanctioned the contract. He regarded the rent-charge as the payment of a capital sum in instalments, and he thought that such a mode of payment was within sect. 16 of the Act.

BELL v. KENDALL.

Domicil—Law of Guernsey—Child, legitimate or illegitimate.

A. de la C. B., on the 23rd of December, 1863, assigned to the plaintiffs, trustees of the settlement, a sum of Reduced 8l. per cent. Annuities upon trust for his wife for life, and after her decease in trust for all and every the child and children of him living at his death, if more than one, in equal shares. By another deed, dated the 22nd July, 1864, A. de la C. B. assigned to the plaintiffs another sum invested in certain stock, to hold upon like trusts.

A. de la C. B. was born in the island of Guernsey, and his domicile of origin was there. He resided in the island until 1852, when he entered the British Army, and from that time until 1859 served with his regiment in various parts of the world. He married in 1855, in India, the lady named in the settlements. She died in March, 1873, leaving four children (defendants) of the marriage. In 1860 or 1861 A. de la C. B. came to England and acted as adjutant in various regiments in England until 1868, residing during that time at Uxbridge and Liverpool, and elsewhere. In 1870 he retired from the army, and from that time until his death and burial at Hastings, Sussex, in March, 1887, lived at various places in England. Between 1852 and 1866 he visited Guernsey for a few days, but he never returned to reside there. In March, 1879, he married R. C. at West Ham, Essex. Before the marriage she had two children by him, R. R. W. B. (a defendant) born at Rye, Sussex, and another born in 1875, who died at Peckham, and was buried at Forest Hill, Surrey; and after the marriage another child (a defendant). By the law of Guernsey the marriage in 1879 of A. de la C. B. with R. C. made R. R. W. B. legitimate (see Andros v. Andros, 24 Ch. D. 637). All the defendants except R. R. W. B. contended that A. de la C. B.'s domicile was at the dates of the settlements, and continued to be English, and R. R. W. B. contended that the domicile of origin had never been lost. One of the plaintiffs—a brother of A. de la C. B.—deposed that he was unable to ascertain whether he ever expressed a definite intention to return to Guernsey, or not to return there, or to adopt England as his permanent home; but in a letter dated 14th April, 1866, he said: "I should like an appointment in Guernsey if I could get it—England is a most expensive place to bring up a family in—taxes awful." The deponent added that A. de la C. B.'s return to Guernsey would have been opposed, and if possible prevented by his family, and he believed that he knew that would be so. It was stated that A. de la C. B. resided in one place in England for five years, and exercised the right of voting at elections.

Bardswell, for the plaintiffs, stated the facts.

Hastings, Q.C., and O. Leigh Clare, for all the five children born after marriage.

Buckley, Q.C., and G. W. Melville Dale, for the child born before the marriage with R. C., submitted that the onus lay upon those who contended that the domicile of origin had been changed, and they had to prove both factum and animus manendi. There was no evidence of any intention on the part of the settlor to change the domicile. Residence in England for a long time was not sufficient; but there must be that plus something else to shew intention. The letter of April, 1866, showed a preference for Guernsey, and some of his children were educated there.

STIRLING, J., said that the letter of April, 1866, was the only document which had been preserved that shewed any intention of returning to Guernsey. The settlor resided in England from the time when he left the army down to his death, a period of seventeen years, and had his wife and children with him. One child died and was buried in England. The evidence for the five children prima facie made out a change of domicile; and he came to the conclusion, upon the evidence for the other defendant, that the settlor only contemplated going back to Guernsey when he had obtained sufficient means to live in the same style as his brother there. The case came within Udny v. Udny (Law Rep. 1 H. L., Sc. 441), and King v. Foxwell (3 Ch. D. 518), and he should hold that the domicile was English.

Stirling, J. LEE v. NEUCHÂTEL ASPHALTE COMPANY. Feb. 22.

Company—Payment of Dividends out of Capital—Assets of a wasting Character.

This was an action by the plaintiff, on behalf of himself and all other the ordinary shareholders of the above-mentioned company, in order to restrain the payment of a dividend of 9s. per share proposed to be paid by the directors on the preferred shares out of alleged profits for the year ending the 31st of December, 1885.

The company was formed in 1873, in order to purchase the various concessions, granted to six then existing companies, for the getting and working of bituminous rock in the canton of Neuchâtel and the assets of such companies; and the selling companies were to be paid, not in cash but in shares in the new company, part of which shares were to be ordinary and part to be preferred. The purchase was carried out, and practically the whole of the ordinary and preferred shares were allotted and issued to the selling companies. The articles of the new company provided that the net profits should be applied first in paying a dividend of 7 per cent. on the preference shares, and, secondly, in paying a like dividend on the ordinary shares; and that the surplus should be divided rateably amongst the shareholders; that no distribution of profit except an interim dividend should be made without the consent of a general meeting; that the directors might, before declaring a dividend, set aside and invest out of the net profits any sum as a reserved fund to meet contingencies and maintain the company's works; and that in case of winding-up or distribution of the assets the holders of ordinary shares should participate in the assets rateably with the holders of preferred shares.

The concessions purchased by the company were for twenty years from 1867, but in 1878 the company obtained from the canton, in consideration (inter alia) of a money payment of 8000*l.*, an extension of the concessions to 1907, an extension of the area of working, and a reduction of their rents and royalties. The company had worked and were working the mines down to the present time; and their reports shewed that from July, 1874, to June, 1875, there was a loss; that from then to the 31st of December, 1878, there was a profit which was not divided; that from that time to the present there was in every year an excess of receipts over expenditure; and that dividends were paid in 1879, 1881, 1882 and 1883. In 1884 no dividend was declared, though the accounts shewed a profit balance of 39,359*l.*; but of this sum 1000*l.* was written off the 8000*l.* paid for the renewal of the concessions in 1878, and 38,359*l.* was written off the original cost in shares of the concessions and assets bought. It was then resolved that the purchase-money for the renewal of the concessions should be written off at the rate of 1000*l.* a year.

The accounts for 1885 shewed a net profit of 17,140*l.*, and after setting aside 1000*l.* towards the renewal fund, the directors proposed and the shareholders resolved on the dividend now sought to be restrained. The main grounds on which the plaintiff rested his case were, that the property of the company, consisting chiefly of concessions to get rock during a limited period, was a wasting asset, which had during 1885 and the preceding years been depreciated both by effluxion of time and exhaustion of subject-matter, and that no adequate allowance had been made for such depreciation, so that, in fact, the proposed dividend would be practically paid out of the capital, for if the company was to continue to do in every year what they proposed to do in 1885 there would be nothing to represent the capital of the company at the expiration of the concessions.

Rigby, Q.C., and Upjohn, for the plaintiffs.

Sir Horace Davey, Q.C., W. F. Robinson, Q.C., and Phipson Beale, Q.C., for the company.

W. Pearson, Q.C., Buckley, Q.C., and Methold, for the preference shareholders.

STIRLING, J., said that in order to justify the interference of the Court the plaintiff should have established that the proposed dividend was intended to be paid out of capital, and as the capital here, which was nominally 1,150,000*l.*, never existed in the shape of cash, or otherwise than in the shape of assets taken over, the plaintiff could not do so unless he shewed that after payment of this dividend the assets of the company would fall short of those belonging to it at the time of its formation. The present concession, however, could not be of less value than the original concessions, and there was on the evidence no probability that the amount of rock still remaining would be exhausted during the concession. In future years the company might have to set apart substantial sums to represent depreciation in the value of the concession, but so long as the capital remained intact and the current receipts exceeded the current expenditure it rested with the shareholders to decide whether the excess should be divided amongst them, or set apart as a fund for replacing wasting assets; and the Court had no power to interfere with their decision. The action must be dismissed with costs.

Stirling, J. In re KEEPING & GLOAG, Solicitors. Feb. 23.
Solicitor and Client—Taxation of Costs—Remuneration in respect of Sale, Purchase and Mortgage—Scale Fees—Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44), General Order, August, 1882, Schedules I. and II.—Deduction and investigation of Title.

Adjourned summons by a firm of solicitors to review the taxation of a bill of costs.

G., who carried on business in Yorkshire, by will gave his residuary real and personal estate to three trustees upon trust for sale and conversion, and provided that both might be postponed at their discretion, and that the real estate should not be sold during the lives of any of his sons until the same should have been offered to them jointly or in common at a valuation and they should have refused to purchase, and he declared that if his sons or either of them should elect to take under the option they should accept the same as part of their or his shares or share under the trusts declared of the moneys to arise by the sale and conversion, and bring the value into hotchpot. The testator left two sons and four daughters, and in 1885 the younger son attained 21. In September, 1885, the trustees, who resided at Selkirk, in Scotland, and had employed a Scotch firm of solicitors to carry out the legal matters of the trust, made a formal offer of the property to the sons, which they accepted, and an arrangement was entered into and approved by the whole of the beneficiaries, under which the sons were to take the real estate at a valuation as directed by the will, and were also to take over the whole other assets of the testator's business at a valuation, and to undertake the liabilities of the business. There was to be a mortgage of the estate by the sons to the trustees to secure the purchase-money. The trustees then instructed L. & S. to carry out the arrangement, and for that purpose it became necessary for them to instruct English solicitors to prepare the deeds. They sent the documents relating to the property to K. & G., with instructions to prepare the necessary deeds. Those gentlemen perused the deeds and prepared an abstract of title, which they sent to counsel with instructions to draw and settle the deeds, which he did. When the business was concluded, K. & G. sent in their bill of costs, in which they charged under Schedule I., part 1. of the General Order made under the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44), full vendors' and purchasers' costs on the consideration money and mortgagors' and mortgagees' costs under the same schedule. On taxation the Taxing Master held that the whole matter was a family arrangement, and that the charges should have been made under Schedule II. The solicitors objected to that on the ground that the work done was in respect of business connected with the completed sale, purchase, and mortgage of the freehold property, and that the remuneration ought to be according to Schedule I. The Taxing Master in reply said:—"Being of opinion that all the elements are wanting from the transaction to entitle the solicitor to scale fees under Schedule I. of the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, I have allowed them fees in detail pursuant to Schedule II. of that order." Rule 2 (a) of the order was:—"In respect of sales, purchases, and mortgages completed, the remuneration of the solicitor having the conduct of the business, whether for the vendor, purchaser, mortgagor, or mortgagee, is to be that prescribed in part 1 of Schedule I. to this order, and to be subject to the regulations therein contained." The scale in Schedule I. gives a fee to the vendor's solicitor for deducing title and another for investigating title; similarly it gives a fee to the purchaser's solicitor for deducing title and another for investigating title; it also gives a fee to the mortgagor's solicitor for deducing title, and a fee to the mortgagee's solicitor for investigating title.

Hastings, Q.C., and Lambert, for the summons.

W. Pearson, Q.C., and J. Ashton Cross, opposed.

STIRLING, J., said, that the case was opened as one of considerable importance, and he thought at first he would have to decide questions which were novel and not covered by authority; but upon the view which he took of the facts it would not be necessary for him to go into any new question upon the construction of the rules made under the Act. The case was governed by decisions of the Court of Appeal. The question was whether the remuneration was to be according to Schedule I. part 1, or according to the old system as altered by Schedule II. The Taxing Master held that it was to be according to Schedule II., and he was now asked to hold that the Taxing Master was wrong. Schedule I. part 1, had been considered by the Court of Appeal. It had been held in In re Lacey & Son (25 Ch. D. 301), with reference to the scale fee, that it was not payable unless substantially the whole of the business in respect of which the ad valorem remuneration was chargeable had been done by the solicitor. That case had been followed in In re Newbould (20 Q. B. D. 204.) He had simply to apply the rule laid down there to the facts of this case, which were that, upon the instructions given to the solicitors, they claimed to be entitled to act as solicitors for the vendors as well as for the purchasers, and to investigate the title for both. It was said as a matter of law that upon such instructions a solicitor was bound to investigate the title. That seemed a novel proposition, which was not supported by the two cases which had been cited, Wilson v. Tucker (3 Stark. 154), and another. No doubt it was the duty of the solicitors to read the deeds with a view to the preparation of the necessary documents; but not with a view to investigate the title. That being so, they did not bring themselves within the heading so as to entitle them to the scale fee. But had they, in fact, done the work? Supposing it to have been their duty to deduce title; the contract was really an open contract. The duty of a solicitor in such a case was to commence the title with a proper root—viz., a deed forty years old, and having started with that he was bound to trace it downwards till the vendor was reached, and in so tracing it a great variety of matters would have to be gone into. Now, had the solicitors in this case in point of fact deduced or investigated such a title? They had perused the deeds and prepared an abstract which they had sent to counsel with instructions to settle the deeds and documents. The instructions sent with the abstract were not such as would have been expected if the title was to be investigated—viz., instructions to peruse and advise. What was the duty of counsel? He ought of course to read the abstract for the purpose of preparing the deeds, but not to make requisitions, etc., as he would do if he were instructed to advise upon the title. Counsel, indeed, in this case, seemed to have taken that view. He had made no requisitions. He pointed out that the abstract shewed a good title as to one part of the property, but as to another part it only shewed a title to a moiety. That was a matter which might be properly gone into in the preparation of the conveyance. Then he had concluded his opinion with the following observation: "It is obvious that as regards parts of this property, the title shewn by the abstract is far from being a marketable title, and is hardly such as a willing purchaser could be advised to accept without further explanation." That was an observation which it was highly proper for counsel to make. But there was no obligation on the solicitors to deduce or investigate a marketable title. They had simply to carry out a family arrangement. That being so, they did not bring themselves within the scale. Having regard to the whole circumstances of the case, he came to the conclusion that the solicitors were not really meant to do all the duties which they were bound to do in order to bring themselves within the rule; and held that the Taxing Master was right in allowing costs in detail pursuant to Schedule II.

Costs of Motion for Injunction ordered to stand over till the Trial.

In this case a motion for an injunction had been ordered to stand over until the trial. At the trial judgment was given for the defendant, with costs. The minutes of the judgment given out by the registrar did not mention the costs of the motion.

Barber, Q.C., and Macrory, for the defendants, moved to have the minutes varied by adding a direction to have the costs of the motion taxed with the other costs.

KEKEWICH, J., said that he had asked the opinion of the taxing masters, who had stated that they should on a judgment dismissing the action allow the defendant the costs of such a motion. The motion was therefore unnecessary and no order would be made upon it.

Patent—Use of everything specified—Extensive Use—Proof of Novelty.

This was an action for an injunction to restrain the infringement of a patent for mechanical musical instruments. There were many defences.

Sir B. E. Webster, A.G., Moulton, Q.C., and Lawson, for the plaintiff.

Aston, Q.C., and Wallace, for the defendant.

KEKEWICH, J., in granting the injunction said that it had been argued that the specification was bad, because the patentee did not make use of everything described in the specification; but that in his Lordship's opinion was not necessary so long as the instrument performed all which was pointed out by the specification. As to the objection for want of novelty, it was admitted that no part was new, and the claim was for a combination. 150,000 of the plaintiff's instruments had been sold, and there had been no such previous sale of similar instruments. The inference was irresistible that the instrument supplied a want, and this was cogent though not conclusive evidence of novelty. His Lordship further decided that there had been no anticipation, and that there had been infringement, and granted an injunction with costs.

SHOTTS IRON COMPANY, APPS.; LINDSAY, RESP.

Practice—Question of Fact—Remit to Man of Skill—Incompetent Evidence ought not to be looked at by the Judge.

These were conjoined appeals from an interlocutor of the Court of Session, Scotland, affirming a judgment of the Lord Ordinary, by which his Lordship, after proof, found that the appellants, the Shotts Iron Company, by their mining operations did damage to the house of the respondent. The question raised was purely one of fact; but the appeal is important in respect to what occurred in the proceedings before the Lord Ordinary. His Lordship, after a number of scientific and other witnesses had been examined, and after the proof had been closed, pronounced an interlocutor, remitting the case to Professor T. (who was not called as a witness), to give in a report on certain specified points; and after receiving that report his Lordship delivered his own judgment. The appellants objected to this remit as contrary to practice.

Asher, Q.C., and Graham-Murray (both of the Scottish Bar) (with them Sir H. Davey, Q.C.), heard for the appellants.

The Solicitor-General for Scotland (J. P. B. Robertson, Q.C.), and Finlay, Q.C., for the respondent, were not called on.

THE HOUSE (Lord Halsbury, L.C., and Lords Watson, FitzGerald and Herschell) affirmed the decision of the Court of Session on the question of fact, and dismissed the appeal with costs, but were of opinion that the Lord Ordinary's remit was incompetent. LORD HALSBURY, L.C., observed:—I regret that an experiment, which seems to be as novel in the law of Scotland as it is in the law of England, of remitting the case to somebody else to decide, which is substantially what the remit to Professor T. amounted to, should have occurred. I am quite aware both the learned judge who did it, and the learned judges who commented upon it, affected to dismiss from their minds the result of that examination; but I certainly myself should maintain that the most candid and impartial mind which ever existed is wholly unable to analyse with sufficient precision the mental process by which a conclusion is arrived at, to say that it has not been affected by this or that which it may have heard. The policy of the law, and I think the wise policy, and a policy I hope will be adhered to, is to reject and to refuse to receive that which by law is not evidence, and ought not to be heard by the learned judge, who has to decide the matter. I earnestly hope that that example will not be followed in future.

This appeal was twice argued, first in August 1887, by Sir E. Clarke S.G. and Malcolm Douglas for the appellant, and by Sir C. Russell Q.C. and R. S. Wright for the respondents; and secondly on March 5, 6, 1888 by R. S. Wright for the respondents was not heard.

THE HOUSE (Lord Halsbury L.C. and Lords Watson, FitzGerald, Herschell, and Macnaghten), without deciding whether an alderman is eligible for the office of councillor, affirmed the decision of the Court of Appeal (18 Q. B. D. 349) upon the ground that the question of disqualification for election could only be determined by election petition; that the returning officer had no jurisdiction to determine that Roberts was disqualified for election; and that the appellant had not been declared to be elected, and was not entitled to a mandamus. Appeal dismissed with costs.

Solicitor—Costs—Charge on Property recovered or preserved—
Priority—Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127), s. 28.

Appeal from decision of Cave, J.

In a partnership action in the Chancery Division a receiver of the partnership assets was appointed. Afterwards the partners were adjudged bankrupts, and the action was transferred to the Queen's Bench Division in Bankruptcy. Cave, J., on the application of the solicitor of the plaintiff in the action, under sect. 28 of the Solicitors Act, 1860, ordered the receiver, out of the moneys in his hands, to pay the solicitor's taxed costs of the action, and subsequently, on an application by the receiver for directions, ordered that he should first pay some rent which was due to the landlord of the premises in which the bankrupts had carried on their business. The moneys in the receiver's hands was not sufficient to pay the solicitor in full, and he claimed priority over the landlord. The solicitor appealed.

Dundas Gardiner, for the appellant.

F. Cooper Willis, for the landlord.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) said that under sect. 28 of the Solicitors Act the solicitor's charge was entitled to priority over everything, except the claim of a bonâ fide purchaser for value without notice. The landlord did not fill that character, and the solicitor was entitled to priority over him.

Married Woman—Separate Estate—Effect of prior Settlement—
Married Women's Property Act, 1882, ss. 5, 19.

This was an appeal from a decision of North, J. (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 201). By a settlement on the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Brown made in 1870, certain property of the intended wife was settled; and the deed contained a covenant by the husband that he would settle any property of the wife which during the coverture should come to her or to him in her right. The settlement contained no such covenant by the wife, nor any agreement or declaration to that effect. In 1883, Mrs. Brown became entitled under her mother's will to a share of her residuary personal estate, which was not given to her separate use. This action was brought for the administration of the mother's estate, and Mrs. Brown presented a petition that her share in the residuary estate might be transferred to her. North, J., held that the case was governed in principle by In re Whitaker (34 Ch. D. 227), and that by virtue of sect. 19 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, the fund was bound by the trusts of the settlement. He held therefore that the fund must be paid to the trustees of the settlement. Mrs. Brown appealed.

Mulligan, for the appellant.

E. R. Simpson, for the trustees, was not called on.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.JJ.) agreed with North, J., and dismissed the appeal.

Bankruptcy—Disqualifications of Bankrupt—Certificate that Bankruptcy was caused by "Misfortune without any Misconduct" on the part of the Bankrupt—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 32.

Appeal by the bankrupt from the refusal of Mr. Registrar Giffard to grant to him a certificate, under sub-sect. 2 (b) of sect. 32 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, "that his bankruptcy was caused by misfortune without any misconduct on his part." The bankrupt had already obtained an immediate unconditional order of discharge. He attributed his bankruptcy to the fact that he had commenced a suit in the Divorce Division against his wife for a divorce on the ground of her adultery, and that his petition had been dismissed, and he had been ordered to pay her costs and the costs of four co-respondents. These costs, together with the amount which he owed to his own solicitors, amounted to 494*s.* His assets at the time of the bankruptcy were less than 150*l.*

Finlay, Q.C., and Herbert Reed, for the bankrupt.

Sidney Woolf, for the trustee in the bankruptcy.

THE COURT (Lord Esher M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal. They said that the commencement of the divorce suit and the prosecution of it were entirely under the control of the bankrupt. The verdict of the jury must be assumed to have been right. It could not, therefore, be said that the bankruptcy had been caused by "misfortune." It was not caused by an accident over which the bankrupt had no control.

Company—Reduction of Capital—Form of Minute—Companies Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 26) s. 4.

This was a petition by the above company for the reduction of their capital by cancelling paid-up capital which had been lost or was not represented by available assets. The petition alleged that the proposed reduction of capital did not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up capital, and on the 21st of February, 1888, his Lordship, on motion ex parte, ordered that it should be in the paper for hearing this day without any advertisement or notice, and without any certificate as to creditors. The petition now came on for hearing accordingly.

Marten, Q.C., and F. B. Palmer, in support of the petition.

KAY, J., being satisfied that the loss of capital was established, made the order as prayed, and dispensed with the further use of the words "And Reduced," but said that in these cases it was desirable that the minute to be registered should not merely specify the reduced capital, but should also shew the extent of the reduction. The minute as approved by his Lordship was in these terms: "The capital of the West Cumberland Iron and Steel Company, Limited and Reduced, is from henceforth 360,000*l.*, divided into 24,000 shares of 15*l.* each on which the sum of 14*l.* has been and is to be deemed paid up, instead of the original capital of 600,000*l.* divided into 24,000 shares of 25*l.* with 24*l.* per share paid up."

By a charterparty entered into by the above company, which was incorporated and domiciled in this country, with a citizen of Boston, in the state of Massachusetts, at Boston, for the shipment of certain cattle and sheep to this country, it was provided that the shipowners should not be liable for the negligence of the master or crew.

By the law of Massachusetts such a provision is invalid, but valid by English law.

The ship was stranded on the coast of Wales through negligence, and damage accrued to the cargo.

The company having gone into liquidation, the owner of the goods carried in a claim in respect of the loss on the ground that the law of the country in which the contract was made should prevail.

CLACTON-ON-SEA HOTEL COMPANY v. ABERDEEN.

Building Estate—Mutual and restrictive Covenants—Inquiry into Vendor's Title—Alteration of Character of Estate.

In August, 1872, an estate belonging to P. S. B., situate at Clacton-on-Sea, was laid out for building purposes, and a deed which contained 22 clauses of mutual and restrictive covenants, was entered into by the vendor and the various purchasers who executed it. Clause 13 was that no building should be erected on any part of the estate for use or occupation as an hotel, public-house, beershop, inn, tavern, or restaurant for the sale and consumption of exciseable liquors, nor be at any time used or occupied as such without the written consent of the vendor, and of the Clacton-on-Sea Hotel Company Limited, their successors and assigns. Clause 14 was that no trade or business should be carried on or permitted in or upon any part of the estate without the written consent of the vendor previously given, and then only of the character specifically authorized by him.

Clause 4 required that the vendor and every purchaser executing any conveyance, lease, mortgage, contract, agreement, or other deed or document relating to the disposal or letting of land, messuages or buildings upon the estate should cause to be inserted therein a true and proper reference to those presents and every such deed or document should be expressed to be made subject thereto, and to the conditions and restrictions therein contained; and no grant or assignment of any portion of the estate otherwise than by way of mortgage, or by will, or by way of lease, or under lease or agreement, for a term not exceeding 21 years should be made by any purchaser unless and until the intended grantee or assignee should (if required by the vendor) have executed those presents.

Clause 9 was that the vendor should at such time as and if he should think fit, as the sea frontages of blocks of land shewn on the plan were built upon, inclose certain spaces opposite to such blocks and appropriate and preserve the same as and for pleasure grounds for the free use of the vendor and the purchasers and others.

In January, 1874, W. C. purchased part of the estate and erected upon it a house or hotel. In 1882 those premises, which had been mortgaged, were purchased by W. C. A., and upon them he carried on the business of a confectioner, and held a licence to keep a refreshment-house, but not to sell exciseable liquors. The defendant in March, 1884, purchased the premises from W. C. A. (his father), and applied for a full licence in 1885 and 1886, but was refused till October, 1887, when the justices granted it, notwithstanding the opposition of the Hotel Company. There was evidence that the vendor and the Hotel Company had broken the covenant in clause 9 by allowing to be built numerous little shops on the land whi right to have been laid out for pleasure-grounds. The plaintiffs, the Hotel Company, and their tenant F. W., issued a writ in October, 1887, and now moved for an injunction in the terms of clause 13 to restrain the defendant from opening or using the premises called the Brunswick Hotel—as an hotel, &c. There was a conflict of evidence as to when the defendant first knew of the restrictive covenants, and it was stated that in the conveyances to W. C., W. C. A., and to the defendant there was no reference to them as required by clause 4. The defendant F. W. had not executed the deed of 1872.

Buckley, Q.C., and Whinney, for the plaintiffs, submitted that the defendant, if he had not actual, had constructive notice of the restrictive covenants, and that he was bound to make reasonable inquiry, such as was usual, and was bound by the covenants: Nicoll v. Fenning (19 Ch. D. 258); Putman v. Harland (17 Ch. D. 353), and cases there referred to.

Channell, Q.C., and Russell Roberts, for the defendant, submitted that the plaintiffs were not entitled to the injunction asked for. The vendor and the Hotel Company, which had a monopoly, had committed breaches of the covenants in the deed of 1872. There had been no reference to the restrictions in three deeds. It would be inequitable to say that in this case such covenants ran with the land for 40 years. F. W. not having executed the deed of 1872, alone had no right to an injunction. The plaintiffs' remedy should be for damages and not for an injunction.

STIRLING, J., held that the Hotel Company, who had executed a deed of 1872, were plainly entitled to enforce the covenant in clause 13. The law as to notice was well settled in Wilson v. Cartwright (Law Rep. 1 Ch. 463). The defendant had constructive notice, and was bound to make inquiry into and to require the real title; and if he, for any reason, did not so require, he took the title at his own risk: Putman v. Harland (17 Ch. D. 353). The plaintiffs were not the builders or the owners of the shops erected on part of the land to be laid out as pleasure grounds; and if they were there might be something in the objection. The observations of Lord Justice Bowen in Sayers v. Nyer (28 Ch. D. 108) shewed what the law was. It was not the doctrine of the Court that a purchaser taking with a restrictive covenant was entitled to break it, and then say he would pay damages. The deed of 1872 was meant to bind the land in the occupation of the owners for the time being. There could be an injunction (made perpetual by consent of the parties) in the terms of the covenant in clause 13, with costs.

ROSS v. BURTON.

Feb. 24.

Injunction on Motion by Plaintiff, ex parte, granted, and Undertaking as to Damages given—Motion on the Hearing, after Adjournments, dismissed—Motion by Defendant for Inquiry as to Damages, allowed.

By an agreement, dated the 27th of May, 1887, the defendant agreed to let to the plaintiff "The Haunch of Venison," Bell Alley, Temple Bar, with the use of the fixtures and fittings, which were to be furnished by the defendant forthwith. The tenancy was to commence on the 24th of June, 1887, and to be for one year, with an option to continue it for a much longer term, at a rent of 800*l.*, payable quarterly. The plaintiff did not have possession, and on the 15th of July, 1887, he issued a writ in an action claiming specific performance; damages for breach of contract; an injunction to restrain the defendant from dealing with the premises, and a receiver. The defendant in December, 1887, filed a defence and counter-claim. He denied that the plaintiff had suffered any damage and stated that he offered to give possession on the 25th of June, and again on the 22nd of July, 1887, and that the plaintiff refused to take it; and he alleged that the plaintiff had broken his contract, and counter-claimed a quarter's rent to the 29th of September 1887; 600*l.* damages for the breaches of contract, and costs. The defendant on the 9th of January, 1888, advertised that he would put up the premises for sale by auction with immediate possession. The plaintiff then moved ex parte on the 12th of January, 1888, for an injunction to restrain the defendant until the 19th of January, or further order, from selling or dealing with the premises, and Mr. Justice Kay, sitting for Mr. Justice Stirling, made the order, the plaintiff undertaking to abide by any order the Court might make as to damages which the defendant should have sustained. Notice of motion was then given. The motion stood over from time to time and it came on to be heard before Mr. Justice Stirling on the 10th of February, 1888, when his Lordship, after stating the facts, said it seemed to him that no order ought to be made, and that the motion must be dismissed; the costs of the defendant to be paid by the plaintiff in any event.

W. Pearson, Q.C., and Beddall, for the defendant, now moved that the order for injunction of the 12th of January should be discharged, on the ground of the suppression of a material fact viz., that possession had formally been offered to the plaintiff on the 22nd of July, 1887; and an inquiry as to damages.

Hastings, Q.C., and Crispe, for the plaintiff, submitted that there was no order to discharge, and that the undertaking as to damages was at an end. If any application at all for an inquiry as to damages, it should have been made when the motion was disposed of on the 10th of February.

STIRLING, J., thought that the order of the 12th of January was improperly obtained, as the fact that an offer of possession was made and refused in July, 1887, was not stated specifically in the affidavits; and that fact was material, and should have been brought to the notice of the Court. He was of opinion that though he had discharged the order of the 12th of January, he could direct an inquiry as to damages, as the plaintiff in giving an undertaking when the order was made put himself within the power of the Court; but the defendant would take the inquiry at his own risk. The costs of the motion the plaintiff must pay in any event, and the costs of the inquiry would be reserved.

TARN v. TURNER.

March 3.

Mortgagor and Mortgagee—Agreement for Lease by Mortgagor—Mortgagee's Refusal to adopt Agreement—Tenant's Right to redeem Mortgage.

By deed dated the 27th of January, 1881, the defendant

Wilson mortgaged certain premises to W. Turner, the predecessor in title of the defendant C. Turner, to secure 1500*l.* and interest.

By an agreement in writing, dated the 5th of February, 1885, and made between the defendant Wilson of the one part, and the plaintiff of the other part, the defendant Wilson agreed to grant to the plaintiff a lease of the same premises for 21 years, determinable at the end of the first 7 or 14 years, at the yearly rent of 150*l.* per annum. The plaintiff went into possession under this agreement and expended upwards of 1600*l.* on the property. The defendant C. Turner was not aware of this agreement at the time of its execution, but afterwards gave the plaintiff notice to pay the rent to him, which was done. Negotiations for the concurrence of the defendant C. Turner in the lease fell through, and an offer by the plaintiff to redeem him having been refused, the plaintiff brought this action, claiming specific performance of the agreement against both defendants, on the ground that the defendant C. Turner had adopted the agreement, or, in the alternative, redemption of the premises as against the defendant C. Turner.

Warmington, Q.C., and D. L. Alexander, for the plaintiff, insisted on the right of the plaintiff to redeem, and relied on the dictum of Lord Mansfield in Keech v. Hall (1 Dong. 21).

Barber, Q.C., and H. C. Deane, argued contra, that the acceptance of rent by the mortgagee created merely a tenancy from year to year between him and the plaintiff, and that there was neither principle nor authority for the proposition that a person in that position was entitled to redeem the mortgage of the freehold.

KEREWICH, J., was of opinion that, although there was no direct authority on the point, the observations of Lord Mansfield in Keech v. Hall (1 Dong. 21), and of Lord Hatherley in Pearce v. Morris (Law Rep. 5 Ch. 227) were in favour of the plaintiff's contention. No case had been cited in support of the view that the right to redeem must be restricted to persons having a freehold interest in the equity of redemption. On principle, therefore, he held the plaintiff entitled to redeem, and gave judgment accordingly.

Divorce. DUNN v. DUNN AND WALL. Feb. 27.

Divorce—Wife found Guilty of Adultery—Decree Nisi—New Trial moved for—Refusal to enforce Payment of Alimony pending Suit after Decree Nisi.

Application for the issue of a writ of f. fa. to compel the payment of alimony.

This was a petition for a dissolution of marriage on the ground of the wife's adultery. The case being tried before the Court and a special jury—they found that the respondent had been guilty of adultery, and a decree nisi was pronounced on the 4th of February, dissolving the marriage. The respondent moved for a new trial, and the motion was fixed to be argued on the 5th of March. Alimony had been allotted to the wife at the rate of 70*l.* per month, and after the decree nisi had been pronounced the petitioner ceased to pay the alimony, whereupon Fillan (in Chambers) moved for leave to issue a writ of f. fa. against the petitioner, and cited Wells v. Wells and Hudson (3 Sw. & Tr. 542).

Middleton, for the petitioner:—When that case was decided the practice was different, and it was usual for new motions to be moved for by way of rule nisi within a fortnight. But now that the motion must be heard before a Divisional Court, which may not sit before the next sittings, if this motion is granted the temptation to prolong the payment of alimony by moving for a new trial will be greatly increased.

MUTTER v. EASTERN AND MIDLAND RAILWAY COMPANY.

Inspection of Register of Stockholders—Right to take Copies—Companies Clauses Act, 1863, s. 28.

This appeal by the company from an order of Chitty, J. (ante, p. 41), was argued on the 22nd of February, and the judgment of the Court (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.J.J.) was this day delivered by Lindley, L.J. Their Lordships decided that the plaintiff was not debarred from asking the Court to assist him in enforcing his statutory right on the ground taken in Forrest v. Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Railway Company (4 D. F. & J. 126) for that in that case, and others of the same class, the plaintiff was professing to represent the other shareholders, but in the present case did not profess to represent anybody. As to the main point of the case the Court agreed in the view of Chitty, J., that the plaintiff was entitled to take copies as well as to inspect, and the appeal was therefore dismissed.

Specially indorsed Writ—Bill of Exchange—Summons for Leave to enter Final Judgment—Affidavit by Plaintiff's Solicitor—Omission to state Means of Knowledge—Rules of Supreme Court, 1833, Order XIV. r. 1.

Appeal by the plaintiffs against an order of a Divisional Court (Huddleston, B., and Manisty, J.), giving the defendant unconditional leave to defend the action. The defendant was the acceptor, and the plaintiffs were the indorsers from the drawer, of a bill of exchange. The plaintiffs applied, under r. 1, of Order XIV., for leave to enter final judgment for the amount of the bill. The affidavit in support of the application was made by the plaintiffs' solicitor, who did not state his means of knowledge of the facts to which he deposed. The defendant made an affidavit in answer, in which he alleged that he had a right of set-off against the drawer of the bill. The master gave the plaintiff leave to enter judgment, and his decision was confirmed by Field, J. The Divisional Court were of opinion that the defendant's evidence shewed a prima facie case of fraud in the obtaining of the acceptance by the drawer.

Henn Collins, Q.C., and E. H. Cannon, for the plaintiffs.

Sidney Woolf, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.) said that the affidavit of the plaintiffs' solicitor, if it had stood alone, was not one upon which the Court could properly act, as it did not shew his means of knowledge of the facts. But the defendant's own affidavit, which was before the master and the judge at the same time, shewed that the defendant had no defence whatever to the action. The affidavit did not allege that the acceptance had been obtained by fraud; on the contrary, it shewed that it had not. There was nothing to impeach the acceptance; the affidavit shewed nothing more than a right of set-off against the drawer, of which it was not alleged that the plaintiff had any notice. The defendant in his own affidavit disclosed that he had no defence to the action, and there was no ground for calling on the plaintiffs to shew anything more than that they were the holders of the bill. In order to call on them to do more than that, there must be a prima facie case that the bill had been obtained by fraud, or that it had been indorsed after it had become due. On the defendant's own affidavit the plaintiffs had an unanswerable case, and since the case was before the Master the plaintiffs had given additional evidence that they had discounted the bill as an ordinary business transaction, and had given value for it. The judgment ought to have been for the plaintiffs. The judges of the Divisional Court appeared to have misapprehended the effect of the defendant's affidavit.

BATCHELDOR v. YATES.

March 10.

Bills of Sale Acts, 1878 and 1882—"Trade Machinery"—Mortgage of Freehold having Trade Machinery upon it.

This was an appeal from the Vice-Chancellor of the County Palatine. On the 16th of August, 1886, Yates mortgaged to Mrs. Frost in fee a certain piece of land with the buildings upon it, no general words being used, and no reference being made to fixtures. It was declared that the powers in sect. 19 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, should be exercisable at any time after the 7th of February, 1887 (the day fixed for redemption) without its being necessary to serve the notice required by sect. 20, and that as fully as if such notice had been served and default in payment made for three months. The property was in the occupation of the mortgagor, and upon it was fixed trade machinery belonging to him. The mortgagor died in the early part of 1887. In October, 1887, the mortgagee, under her power of sale, sold the mortgaged property, and conveyed it to the purchaser by the same description as in the mortgage deed. The estate of the mortgagor was being administered by the Court, and it was insisted on behalf of his creditors that the mortgage was invalidated by the Bills of Sale Acts, 1878 and 1882, on the ground that it comprised trade machinery and did not comply with the provisions of the Acts. The Vice-Chancellor held that it was a good security, both as to the land, and the trade machinery as passing by the grant of the land, and that the purchaser, therefore, had a good title to both. The plaintiffs appealed, contending that the mortgage was bad—both as regarded the freehold and the trade machinery. The appeal was argued in January last and judgment reserved; but the Court restored it to the paper for further argument on 8th of March, 1888.

*Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Arkie, for the appellants, said that after the decision of the Court of Appeal in In re Burdett (20 Q. B. D. 310) they could not contend that the mortgage was* invalid as regarded the freshhold, but they contended that it was bad as regarded the trade machinery, and that the trade machinery, therefore, belonged to the mortgagor's estate.

French, Q.C., and Bigland Wood, contra.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley and Bowen, L.J.J.) dismissed the appeal, holding that as the trade machinery merely passed by the mortgage deed as an incident to the land, the mortgage deed was not a bill of sale unless it enabled the mortgagee to sell the machinery apart from the land, and their Lordships were of opinion that the power of sale given by the Conveyancing Act of 1881 ought not to be construed as authorizing the mortgagee to do this. The appeal was therefore dismissed.

In re CHRISTCHURCH INCLOSURE ACT.

Charity—Commonable Lands purchased by Railway Company—Rights of Turbary—Rights of Lord of Manor and Owners and Occupiers of Cottages—Inclosure.

This was an appeal from a decision of Stirling, J. (35 Ch. D. 355; Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 79).

In 1802 an Act (42 Geo. 3, c. 43) was passed for dividing certain commonable lands in the parish of Christchurch, near Bournemouth. Over these lands, which at the time consisted of large tracts of waste land covered with furze and heath, rights of turbary were claimed by the occupiers of cottages and small tenements, and the effect of the Act of 1802 may be briefly stated as empowering the Commissioners appointed under the Act to allot lands in severalty to the several lords of the manors within which the waste lands were situate and other persons interested, and (sect. 18) "to set out and allot unto and for the lords of the several manors respectively in which the said waste grounds are situated in trust for the occupiers for the time being of all such cottages and tenements containing less than one acre each as were erected on ancient sites, or have now been erected more than 14 years, in lieu of their rights or pretended rights or custom of cutting turves in the said tythings or liberties, etc., as shall by virtue of this Act be divided and allotted as aforesaid," portions of the waste for a turf common not exceeding in the whole five acres or less than two acres for each cottage or tenement within each tything, manor, or liberty respectively, "to be managed as the lords of the manors and the churchwardens and overseers of the poor acting for and within such manor, or the major part of them, shall from time to time order and appoint; but such turf common shall not be fed or depastured by any cattle or sheep whatsoever." In 1806 the Commissioners allotted 425 acres of waste for the turf common. It appeared that the practice of cutting turf had fallen into abeyance, and no actual use had been made of the land; but the lord of the manor had taken steps to vest it in the Bournemouth Commissioners for the benefit of the town. The London and South-Western Railway Company purchased a piece of land forming part of the turf common, for the purposes of their undertaking, but various questions having been raised as to the persons entitled, the purchase-money, 1000*l.*, was paid into Court by the lord of the manor, and a petition was presented in order to obtain a decision of the Court as to the rights of the various persons who claimed an interest in the lands. The claimants consisted of four classes—viz., (1) the lord of the manor, under whom the Bournemouth Commissioners claimed by virtue of a conveyance of all the lord of the manor's interest in the land, executed in December, 1883, but not actually delivered until after the sale to the railway company; (2), the owners of certain cottages or tenements, whose occupiers claimed to be entitled to common rights of cutting fuel and turf over the land; (3), the occupiers themselves of the cottages and tenements; and (4), the Attorney-General, who asserted that the fund was subject to a charitable trust.

Stirling, J., held that the persons legally interested in the lands at the time when they were taken by the railway company were the lord of the manor and the persons claiming under him, and the occupiers of the cottages; and that the rights of the occupiers were in the nature of a perpetuity specially created by the Legislature, and that no charitable trust had been created. From this decision the Attorney-General and the owners of the cottages appealed.

Sir R. Webster, A.G., Elton, Q.C., and Ingle Joyce, for the Attorney-General.

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., Robinson, Q.C., and Cust, for the owners of the cottages.

Hastings, Q.C., and Kenyon Parker, for the Bournemouth Commissioners.

Pearson, Q.C., and Ribton, for the Lord of the Manor.

Buckley, Q.C., and Spencer Butler, for the owners of the cottages.

Mann, and G. Pemberton Leach, for other parties.

LINDLEY, L.J., read the judgment of the Court (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.J.J.):—He said that the fund was claimed by the following persons: (1) the Attorney-General claimed the whole fund as a charitable trust for the cottagers; (2) the lord of the manor claimed so much of the fund as represented the value of the soil; (3), and the owners of the cottages claimed so much of the fund as represented the value of the rights of turbary; (4), the occupiers of the cottages claimed such part as represented the same rights of turbary. His Lordship then considered the various sections of the Inclosure Act of 1802, and said that their Lordships had come to the conclusion that the lord of the manor was entitled to so much of the fund as represented the value of the land taken by the railway company; and that the trust was a trust for the occupiers of the cottages for the time being, and not a trust for the owners. On those two points therefore the Court agreed with Stirling, J. There remained, however, the point for consideration, what was the true nature of the trust created in favour of the occupiers of the cottages? The trust being created by statute could not be held void on the ground of perpetuity or for any other reason, but unless it was a charitable trust it was one of a very anomalous character and certainly difficult to give effect to. It was difficult to distinguish this case from Goodman v. Mayor of Saltash (7 App. Cas. 633) and on the authority of that case the Court must hold that so far as the fund did not represent the interest of the lord of the manor it was held as a charitable trust. The decision of Stirling, J., on that point must be reversed.

Fillan, for the appeal.

Inderwick, Q. C., and Middleton, contra, were not called upon.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.JJ.) held that where a wife who has been found guilty of adultery, and against whom a decree nisi for dissolution has been made, moves for a new trial, the judge has power to allow her alimony if he thinks fit. But that her title as of right to alimony which has previously been ordered pendente lite ceases at the date of the decree nisi. The appeal was therefore dismissed.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

Kay, J. March 2.

In re EXCHANGE DRAPERY COMPANY.

Company—Winding-up—Shareholder—Advances beyond Calls—Surplus Assets—Interest on Advances—Advanced Shareholders—Ordinary Shareholders—Distribution.

Where, upon the incorporation of a limited company, it is provided that a shareholder advancing in respect of any of his shares sums beyond the amount actually called and paid up shall receive interest on such advances, such advanced shareholder is entitled, in the event of the company being wound up and there being surplus assets of the company after payment of debts, not only to be repaid the amount of his advances together with interest thereon up to the date of the commencement of the winding-up, but also further interest from that date up to the repayment of the advances.

The articles of association of a limited company, whose nominal capital was divided into 10*l.* shares, ratified an agreement which had been entered into between the vendors and the promoters, by which it was agreed that the vendors should be paid partly in fully paid-up shares, and that the holders of vendors' shares should be entitled to dividends upon so much thereof as should be equal to the amount for the time being paid up on the ordinary shares, and also to interest at five per cent. per annum upon such amount of the nominal value of the vendors' shares as should be equal to the amount for the time being not called up on the ordinary shares.

The vendors' shares were duly issued as fully paid up, but on the ordinary shares 7*l.* only per share was called and paid up. On the company subsequently going into voluntary liquidation, the assets shewed a surplus after payment of debts. Out of this surplus the liquidator returned to the holders of vendors' shares 3*l.* per share, thus equalising the amounts paid up on those and on the ordinary shares. The holders of the vendors' shares also received out of the surplus assets, on the 3*l.* per share so returned, interest at 5*l.* per cent. per annum up to the date of the commencement of the winding-up.

This was a motion by the liquidator raising the question whether the holders of vendors' shares were entitled to further interest from that date.

Theobald, for the liquidator.

Vernon B. Smith, for a holder of ordinary shares.

KAY, J., held that the meaning of the agreement was, that the amount paid up on the vendors' shares beyond the amount paid up on the ordinary shares should be treated as an advance to the company carrying interest at 5 per cent. per annum, and to put the "advanced" shareholders on an equality with the ordinary shareholders; that in dealing with the surplus assets in the winding-up the liquidator must give effect to that agreement by not only repaying to the advanced shareholders the 3*l.* per share as capital advanced, with interest to the date of the commencement of the winding-up, but also by paying them further interest from that date up to the date of the repayment of the 3*l.* per share; and that the remaining assets would then be distributable among both advanced and ordinary shareholders pari passu.

In re BULLEN-SMITH. BERNERS v. BULLEN-SMITH.

Domicil—Residence—Will—Administration.

The question in this case was whether a testator, a Scotchman by birth, had acquired an English domicil, and therefore whether his estate should be administered according to English, rather than Scotch law.

The testator was born in Scotland of Scotch parents, and was educated in Scotland until the age of 16, when, in 1848, he became a clerk in a mercantile house in London. In 1855, he went to Calcutta, and entered the employ of Jardine, Skinner, & Co., merchants there. He subsequently became partner in that firm and remained so until 1877, when he retired from business and returned to England, and became a member of the Indian council. Immediately on his return he took a house near Southampton for 16 months, the residue of a lease, and lived there with his wife and family. On the expiration of that lease, in 1878, he took a 5 years' lease of a house at Surbiton and there resided until the expiration of the lease in 1883, when he removed with his wife and family to London, and took a lease of a house in Kensington on a 7, 14, or 21 years' lease, with an option of purchase at the end of two years. He did not exercise that option, but he continued to reside in that house until his death in January, 1887. While in Calcutta he had made his will in English form. He died possessed of considerable personal estate, but he had no property whatever in Scotland.

The question of domicile was raised by an originating summons by the trustee of the will against the testator's widow and children, two of whom were infants.

Sheldon, for the plaintiff.

A. Young, Birrell, and Cababé, for the various defendants.

KAY, J., said that, upon the facts, there was not the faintest indication of intention on the part of the testator, upon his return from India, to go back to Scotland, or of treating himself as a Scotchman. If he had intended to remain a Scotchman he would have made his will in the Scotch, instead of the English, form, since a man's personal property in any locality was governed by his domicile. The result of the evidence was that he had shaken off his Scotch domicile and had acquired an English one, the facts being conclusive to fix him with an English domicile. There must be a declaration accordingly.

In re QUEENSLAND MERCANTILE AGENCY COMPANY.
Ex parte AUSTRALIAN INVESTMENT COMPANY.

Companies Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 89) s. 87—Foreign Company—English Winding-up—Scotch Action.

The Australian Investment Company was a Scotch company having its registered office in Edinburgh. The Queensland Mercantile Agency Company, Limited, was an Australian company with limited liability under the law of Queensland, with its registered office at Brisbane.

The Australian company having founded jurisdiction by an arrestment of the unpaid capital in respect of shares in the Queensland Company, held by persons resident in Scotland, brought an action in Scotland against the Queensland Company to make them account for alleged misapplication of money entrusted to them for the purpose of investment on mortgage in Queensland. The record in that action was closed in May, 1887. In October, 1887, an order was made in the Queensland Court to wind up the Queensland Company. An order was subsequently made in this Court to wind up that company in this country. A motion was made by the English liquidator of the Queensland Company to restrain the Australian Company from proceeding with the Scotch action, and a cross motion was made by the Australian Company to allow the Scotch action to proceed notwithstanding the winding-up.

Cookson-Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and Rawlins, for the Australian company, argued that they had obtained a security on the Scotch assets by means of arrestment; that pending the action in Scotland there would be a difficulty in the liquidators getting in those assets, and that the action having proceeded so far, it would be better that it should go on. They admitted that evidence would have to be taken in Australia.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Kenyon Parker, for the liquidator.

NORTH, J., considered it more convenient and to the advantage of everybody that the matter should be investigated in the winding-up; he would take care that the Australian Company should not lose any priority they had over the unpaid Scotch capital by their action. He made an order restraining the Scotch action.

MAPLE v. STEVENSON.

Practice—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XXXVII, r. 16—Cross-examination before Examiner.

Affidavits had been filed on a motion by the plaintiffs to commit one Caleb Manchester in this action. The cross-examination of the witnesses had been directed to take place before one of the examiners. The cross-examination of Caleb Manchester on the part of the plaintiff had been completed. The cross-examination of the plaintiffs' witnesses on behalf of Caleb Manchester had commenced, and the plaintiffs' counsel objecting to the line of cross-examination taken on behalf of Caleb Manchester, the examiner adjourned the further cross-examination that the plaintiffs might take the opinion of the Court.

A motion was now made on the part of the plaintiffs that the examiner might be ordered forthwith to transmit to the Central Office, to be there filed pursuant to Order xxxvii. r. 16, the original depositions authenticated by his signature of the witnesses whose examination had been completed in this action.

Beddall, for the motion, asked that the examiner might be ordered to transmit the evidence in the present state in order that (the examiner being powerless) the plaintiffs might apply to the Court to deal with the cross-examination.

Kenyon Parker, for the examiner, was not called upon.

NORTH J.—I see no reason for making any order on the examiner. If it is necessary I can look at the depositions without their being filed. If the plaintiffs give notice of any action in respect of which it is material that I should see the depositions I will ask the examiner to let me look at them. I should have no difficulty in knowing what to do on a proper application being made. There are many things I can do. I may dismiss the motion, or I may say I will have no further cross-examination, or that I will have no further cross-examination except in Court. I can see my way on a proper application to stop the great abuse which is said to have been practised. I dismiss this motion with costs, the costs of the examiner to be paid by the plaintiffs, without prejudice to any question as to how they are ultimately to be borne as between them and Lancashire.

In re LONDON AND LANCASHIRE PAPER MILLS COMPANY.
Ex parte SCOTT.

Companies Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 89), s. 115—Examination of Officers—Contributory—Locus Standi of Witness—Appeal.

The liquidator of the London and Lancashire Paper Mills Company obtained an order to examine Mr. Scott, a former director, and other directors, under sect. 115 of the Companies Act, 1862.

An order was obtained on February 10, 1888, on behalf of Mr. Collins, as a contributory, to attend, and, after the liquidator, to examine, and, if necessary, cross-examine the witness touching the formation, trade-dealings, estate and effects of the Company.

The order of February 10 was made by the Chief Clerk; it was not before the judge personally; it was obtained, in accordance with the practice, without notice to the directors. Scott attended for examination on February 14. Gery, the solicitor of Collins, was present, and Scott refused to answer in his presence, and the examination was postponed. Scott now moved to discharge the order of February 10. There was evidence that Gery was the solicitor of the plaintiff in a contributory's action against Scott, and other directors, to make them responsible for alleged representations alleged to have induced the plaintiff in the action to take his shares; that Gery had sent a circular to shareholders inviting them to employ him in resisting their being settled on the list of contributories; and that Collins had objected to being settled on the list of contributories, and had not yet been fixed as a contributory.

Everitt, Q.C., and Dunham, for the motion.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and O. E. E. Jenkins, for Collins.

NORTH, J., discharged the order of February 10.

Stirling, J. ASHBY v. HINCKS. March 9.

Tenant for Life pur autre vie—Mansion-house—Felling Timber Trees, ornamental or for shelter—Inquiry whether it would be right and proper—Injunction—Security for Damages.

By a deed dated in 1855 real estate was conveyed by G. A. to trustees to the use of himself for life without impeachment of waste, and after the determination of that estate to the use of his children as he should appoint, and in default of appointment to the use of his first and other sons in strict settlement, with remainder over on failure of issue to the use of G. A. in fee. The deed conferred upon the trustees, with consent of the tenant for life, a power to sell or exchange the settled hereditaments for others of the description thereafter authorized, to be held upon the subsisting uses of the settlement. At the date of the deed there was no mansion-house upon the estate. In 1859, at the wish of G. A., certain lands comprised in the deed were exchanged for other lands upon which there was a house, a small one, partly surrounded and sheltered by woods and pleasure-grounds. G. A. enlarged the house and made it into a mansion-house leaving the woods standing for protection and ornamentation. In 1887, G. A. was adjudicated bankrupt, and the trustee in bankruptcy sold his life interest in the estate to the defendant, who entered into possession of the estate and commenced to cut down trees in the woods surrounding the house. The plaintiff, the eldest son of G. A. and tenant in tail in remainder, no appointment having been made, brought an action to restrain the defendant from cutting down the trees, and this was a motion for an injunction on the ground that the trees were "ornamental," which a tenant for life without impeachment of waste was not entitled to cut down. The question was whether the rule as to "ornamental trees" was applicable to this case, the lands not having been originally settled by G. A., but acquired by way of exchange after the date of the deed.

Hastings, Q.C., and Dunham, for the plaintiff.

W. Pearson, Q.C., and Rowden, for the defendant.

STIRLING, J., said that if the tenant for life had built a new house on the settled estate it was plain upon the authorities that the timber trees would not have been entitled to protection at all, but he was not prepared to say that where trustees acquired for the benefit of the settled estate a residence which might be surrounded by ornamental timber trees, they were not entitled to protection. That was a question which would have to be considered at the trial of the action. He thought there was sufficient to justify him in directing an inquiry whether what was proposed to be done by the defendant who was an assignee of the tenant for life's interest in the estate, and was, as alleged, attempting to cut down a great many of the trees, would be right and proper, and he would make an order for inquiry in the form settled in Marker v. Marker (9 Hare, 1; Seton on Decrees, 4th Ed. p. 187), and the inquiry would extend to whether the trees were ornamental or for purpose of shelter as they stood in 1859, and whether those trees, or what other trees, could be cut without impairing the beauty of the place. There would be an injunction pending the inquiry, and the plaintiff must give security, to be approved by the chief clerk, for any loss or damage which the defendant might sustain if the Court should be of opinion that this order ought not to have been made.

CROFT v. RICKMANSWORTH HIGHWAY BOARD.

Highway Act, 1835, s. 67—Drain—Dumb Well.

The plaintiff was the owner of a chalk-pit wherein a dumb or dead well had at some time been made, into which a drain from a highway ran, the water sinking into the soil of the well. The Rickmansworth Highway Board claimed the right to clear out the well and to keep open the communication with the road drain, through which it was alleged by the plaintiff some sewage now came to the annoyance of his house. The plaintiff brought this action to restrain the highway board.

Barber, Q.C., and Morhead, for the plaintiff.

Warmington, Q.C., and Sebastian, for the defendants.

KEKEWICH, J., held that as the water ran from the highway through the communication with the dumb well and into the dumb well whence it percolated away, the well was a "drain" which the highway board had a right to construct under the Highway Act, 5 & 6 Wm. 4, c. 50, s. 67, and dismissed the action with costs.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL v. ANDERSON.

Chapel—Presbyterians—Independents—Usage.

In 1766 a chapel at Tooting was conveyed to trustees "as a meeting-house or place for Protestant dissenters of the Presbyterian or Independent denomination." For many years it has been an Independent chapel, and the present action was brought to prevent the use of it as a chapel of the Presbyterian Church of England.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., Aspland, Q.C., and Lemon, for the plaintiffs.

Gainsford Bruce, Q.C., and Pownall, for Dr. Anderson, present minister of the chapel.

Levett, and Sillem, for trustees of the chapel and the funds.

KEKEWICH, J., said that at the time when the chapel was founded the Presbyterians and the Independents were not different, and that the chapel had been Independent for many years, but not so as, in his Lordship's opinion, to exclude Presbyterians under 7 & 8 Vict. c. 45. The form of Presbyterianism which prevailed in 1766 had disappeared, and the congregation had joined other religious bodies, so that until 1836 Presbyterianism in England had no active life, and the rules of the Presbyterian church as it now existed were contrary to the rules of the Independents in 1766. Dr. Anderson was a Presbyterian and a large number of the congregation agreed with him, but even one dissentient would be enough to prevent change nor had the proper meetings been called. His Lordship would direct the execution of the trusts of the deed with declaration that it had not been competent to a certain meeting to subject the trust property to the control of the body of the Presbyterian Church of England, but that the same ought to be held by the Protestant dissenters of the Presbyterian Independent denomination worshipping therein.

EARLY v. RATHBONE.

March

Description—Freehold—Copyhold—General Words.

By an indenture of mortgage, dated the 10th of September 1884, W. Rathbone conveyed to Ellen M. Elliott "all those several pieces or parcels of freehold meadow land situate at Mill Hill," &c. By an indenture of mortgage, dated the 1st of March, 1886, W. Rathbone conveyed to A. R. Early "those two pieces of land situate at Mill Hill, Hendon, and every, if any, the land, hereditaments, and premises at Hendon" to which the mortgagor had any estate. Part one of the pieces of land was a slip of copyhold land, which A. R. Early, the plaintiff, claimed as being included in the mortgage, and as not being included in the mortgage to Ellen M. Elliott the defendant.

Dauney, for the plaintiff.

D. Sturges, for the defendant.

KEKEWICH, J., held that the word "freehold" could not be rejected as surplusage, inasmuch as there was in the description no sufficient words to pass the copyhold strip. The copyhold strip was therefore not included in the first mortgage, but was included in the general words of the second mortgage.

Supreme Court of Judicature

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Ch. Div. SELWYN v. GARFIT. March 9.
Mortgage—Power of Sale—Proviso requiring Three Months Notice after Default.

This was an appeal from a decision of Kay, J.

A mortgage was made by C. Selwyn on the 22nd of November, 1880, of a reversionary interest and other property to E. Green, with a covenant to repay the principal with interest on the 22nd of May, 1881. The deed contained a power enabling the mortgagee at any time after the expiration of six calendar months from the date thereof, without any further consent on the part of the mortgagor, to sell the mortgaged property as therein mentioned; provided that no sale should be effected under the power unless and until default should be made in payment of the principal moneys or interest secured, and the mortgagee should have given to the mortgagor a notice requiring payment of the same principal or interest moneys, and default should have been made in payment for the period of three months after giving such notice; but that upon any sale purporting to be made in pursuance of such power the purchaser should not be bound to inquire as to the propriety or regularity of such sale, and, notwithstanding any impropriety or irregularity whatsoever in any such sale, the same should, so far as regarded the safety and protection of the purchaser, be deemed to be within the power, and be valid and effectual accordingly, and the remedy of the mortgagor for any breach of the stipulations should be in damages only.

The mortgagee gave notice on the 19th of January, 1881, to the mortgagor, requiring him to pay the mortgage debt, and on the 20th of June, and without further notice, executed a deed under his power of sale conveying the property to Mrs. Garfit. The executrix of the mortgagor brought this action, seeking to set the sale aside as not being within the terms of the mortgage deed. Kay, J., decided that, although there was a power of sale six months after the date of the mortgage, yet the mortgagee was restrained from exercising such power until default in payment had been made, which could only happen at the expiration of the six months, and until the mortgagee had given notice requiring payment after the default, and default in making that payment had occurred for three months subsequently. His Lordship also held that such clause did not enable Mrs. Garfit (the purchaser from the mortgagee), who had bought with knowledge that a proper notice had not been given entitling the mortgagee to exercise the power of sale, to maintain her purchase against the mortgagor. From that decision Mrs. Garfit appealed.

Millar, Q.C., and J. Simmonds, for the appellant.

Marten, Q.C., and Kenyon Parker, for the plaintiff.

Grosvenor Woods, for another party.

COTTON, L.J., said that the main question was whether Mr. Justice Kay was right in the construction which he had placed upon the power of sale contained in this mortgage deed. In his opinion Mr. Justice Kay's decision was perfectly right. The power of sale could not be exercised until default in payment had been made, which could not happen until the six months had expired, and until a notice had been given by the mortgagee requiring payment after the default and default in making that payment had occurred for three months subsequently. Therefore the appeal failed, and must be dismissed with costs.

LINDLEY and BOWEN, L.JJ., delivered judgment to the same effect.

In re A PROHIBITION TO THE MAYOR'S COURT OF LONDON.
GRUNDY v. TOWNSEND.
Mayor's Court of London—Jurisdiction—Prohibition—Account stated.

Appeal against an order of a Divisional Court (Mathew and A. L. Smith, JJ.) refusing to discharge an order made by Kekewich, J., in chambers for a writ of prohibition, prohibiting further proceedings in the action, which had been brought in the Mayor's Court of the city of London.

The plaintiffs were merchants at Liverpool; the defendant was a tradesman, carrying on business in the Harrow Road, outside the city of London. The plaintiffs had supplied the defendant with goods. On the 8th of June the plaintiffs' solicitors, whose office was within the city of London, wrote to the defendant demanding, on behalf of the plaintiffs, payment from him of 7l. 6s. 6d. as due to the plaintiffs for goods sold and delivered to him. On the 9th of June the defendant replied to this letter, stating that he owed the plaintiffs only 5l. 6s. 6d., as he had paid their traveller 2l. The reply was received by the plaintiffs' solicitors at their office in the City on the 10th June. The same day they, on behalf of the plaintiffs, commenced an action against the defendant in the Mayor's Court, claiming 7l. 6s. 6d. for goods sold and delivered by the plaintiffs to the defendant. The defendant obtained from the Queen's Bench Division a writ of prohibition of this action, on the ground that the cause of action arose entirely outside the City, and that the Mayor's Court had no jurisdiction. The plaintiffs then commenced a second action in the Mayor's Court against the defendant, claiming 5l. 6s. 6d. as due on an account stated between the plaintiffs and the defendant. The defendant obtained a second writ of prohibition, which the Divisional Court refused to set aside. The plaintiffs appealed.

Crump, Q.C., and Lewis Thomas, for the plaintiffs.

Byerley Parkes, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.B., and Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.) held that the unqualified admission by the defendant, that 5l. 6s. 6d. was due from him, was evidence against him of an account stated, and the bringing of the second action was an acceptance of the account by the plaintiffs; that the plaintiffs' solicitors were their agents to receive the defendant's admission: and that the account was stated where the letter containing the defendant's admission was received, i.e., at the office of the plaintiffs' solicitors in the city of London. Consequently, there was a cause of action—an account stated—arising within the City of London, and the Mayor's Court had jurisdiction. The writ of prohibition must be set aside.

Court of Bankruptcy—Jurisdiction—Money Demand by Trustees—Bankruptcy Act, 1869, s. 72—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 102.

Appeal against a decision of Mr. Registrar Hazlitt. The trustee in the liquidation (commenced in 1883, under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869) applied to the Court for an order that Charles Norton, formerly the debtor's solicitor, might be ordered to pay to the trustee the sum of 3342l., shewn by Norton's account to be wrongfully withheld by him from the trustee. Norton was executor to the debtor's father; and he had been receiver of the rents of the debtor's estates, and receiver under some mortgage deeds executed by the debtor. He was also an executor of one of the mortgagees. In 1884, Norton carried in a proof against the estate for 8498l., alleged to be due to him by the debtor on a balance of account. In support of this claim he furnished accounts to the trustee. He afterwards desired to withdraw the proof, but was not allowed to do so, and it was expunged on the application of the trustee. While the proof was on the file, Norton endeavoured to make use of it for the purpose of removing the trustee. Norton was also examined on several occasions under the provisions of sect. 96. The trustee alleged that Norton's accounts shewed that he had charged the debtor with certain premiums twice over.

On the hearing of this application, it was objected on behalf of Norton that, it being a mere money demand by the trustee, not arising out of the liquidation, the Court of Bankruptcy ought not to exercise the jurisdiction given to it by sect. 72 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, but ought to leave the matter to be dealt with by the High Court in an action. The registrar overruled the objection, "deeming it expedient and necessary to decide the motion for the purpose of doing complete justice, and making a complete distribution of property." Norton appealed.

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., R. Vaughan Williams, and Levett, for the appellants.

Bigham, Q.C., and Henry Kisch, for the trustee.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.B., and Fry, and Lopes, L.J.J.) held that the Court of Bankruptcy had clearly jurisdiction under sect. 72, and that under the peculiar circumstances of the case the registrar had exercised his judicial discretion rightly in deciding to deal with the matter himself.

WAITE v. MORLAND.
Married Woman—Judicial Separation—Property coming to her subsequently—Restraint on Anticipation—20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, s. 25.

This was an appeal from a decision of Kay, J.

By the will of Miss Mary Spenlove, who died in 1862, a third part of the testatrix's residuary estate was directed to be invested and held in trust for Mrs. Finney for her life, for her separate use, without power of anticipation; with remainder to her children as she should appoint. In July, 1869, Mrs. Finney obtained a decree for judicial separation from her husband, and the separation still continued. A suit for administration of the estate of Miss Spenlove was instituted, in which Mrs. Finney's share of the estate was paid into Court. Mrs. Finney had recently appointed the fund, after her death, to her only daughter; and she now presented a petition asking that the funds might be paid out of Court so as to be at the disposal of herself and her daughter. Kay, J., refused the application, on the ground that she was restrained from anticipation of her life interest, and Mrs. Finney appealed.

The question turned upon the construction of the 25th section of the Divorce Act, 1857 (20 & 21 Vict. c. 85), which enacted that in any case of a judicial separation, the wife should, from the date of the sentence, be considered a feme sole, with respect to property of every description which should come to or devolve on her.

Dundas Gardiner, for the petitioner, contended that she ought to be treated as a feme sole as to this property, and that the restraint on anticipation was removed. He relied on Cooke v. Fuller (26 Beav. 99).

COTTON, L.J., said that the section provided that a married woman during judicial separation should be considered a feme sole as to a limited class of property only, namely, what came to her after the decree for judicial separation. This life interest belonged to the petitioner before the judicial separation. If the Master of the Rolls in Cooke v. Fuller decided differently he should decline to follow his decision: but the case was very shortly reported, and the reasons were not fully stated. The appeal must be dismissed.

LINDLEY, L.J., agreed, and said that Cooke v. Fuller was a case not under sect. 25, but sect. 21, which was differently worded.

BOWEN, L.J., concurred.

Solicitor's Bill—Taxation—Costs of Taxation—One-sixth taxed off Bill—Offer to take less than Taxed Costs—"Special Circumstances"—6 & 7 Vict. c. 73, s. 37.

Summons by a client to review the taxing-master's certificate by allowing him the costs of the taxation and disallowing them to his solicitors, and on other grounds which were abandoned at the hearing.

The solicitors had, it appeared, accepted by arrangement with their client, a sum of 20*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.* in full discharge of their costs, and without the delivery of any bill. The client subsequently changed his solicitors, and at his request his former solicitors delivered a bill amounting to 26*l.* 8*s.* 3*d.*, but without seeking to disturb the former alleged settlement. The client then obtained an order for taxation which the solicitors moved to discharge, but which the Court allowed to stand, making no order as to costs.

On taxation the delivered bill was reduced to 20*l.* 16*s.* 7*d.*, more than one-sixth being thus taxed off, though the amount of the bill as taxed exceeded the amount received by the solicitors under the alleged settlement. The taxing-master certified "special circumstances" under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73, s. 37, and gave the solicitors their costs of the taxation, distinguishing the cases of In re Carthew and In re Paull (27 Ch. D. 485), on the ground that in those cases the bills as taxed were less than the sum which the solicitors offered to accept.

V. R. Smith, for the summons.

Farwell, for the solicitors.

KAY, J., said there were no special circumstances to entitle the solicitors to the costs of the taxation. The case came most distinctly within the very mischief sought to be provided against by s. 37 of the Act, and the solicitors had been clearly wrong in delivering a bill which, upon taxation, was reduced by more than one-sixth. On the other hand, the bill as taxed exceeded the amount which the solicitors had always been willing to take. Accordingly the justice of the case would be met by allowing no costs of the taxation or of this summons.

BARTON v. NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE RAILWAY COMPANY.

Railway Company—Shares or Stock—Forged Transfers—Statute of Limitations—Application of, to Action by Holder of Stock—Co-executors—Powers of, as to Transfer of Stock—Companies Clauses Act, 1845 (8 Vict. c. 16), s. 20—Forgery by one Co-executor—Form of Action.

Under the will of a testator who died in 1870, railway stock was vested in his executors, T. B. (his son) and A. B. (his widow), upon certain trusts. At various times during the years 1880 to 1885, T. B., without the knowledge of A. B., entered into contracts for sale of the stock, and signed and executed transfers thereof to the several purchasers, and forged the signature of A. B. to such transfers, so that the same appeared to be signed and executed by her. These transfers were duly registered by the railway company, and the proceeds of sale were received by T. B. and applied by him to his own purposes. He continued to pay the amount of the dividends to the persons respectively entitled. A. B. remained ignorant of the forgeries until May, 1886, when she accidentally discovered them. Upon the discovery being made, A. B. wrote to the secretary of the railway company asking for information whether any stock was standing in the names of herself and T. B., and a deed was executed appointing a new trustee of the will in the place of T. B. In August, 1886, A. B. and the new trustee so appointed informed the railway company that the transfers were invalid, and claimed to be registered as holders of the stock. The railway company declined to accede to the claim, and in December, 1886, A. B. and the new trustee brought this action, alleging that the transfers were invalid, and claiming that the company might be ordered to register the plaintiffs as owners of the stock. The action was brought more than six years after some of the transfers were executed and registered, and as to the stock comprised in such transfers the defendants sought to raise by amendment the defence of the Statute of Limitations. They also contended (amongst other grounds of defence) that T. B., being one of two executors, had power to transfer the stock, and that the transfers were therefore valid.

Rigby, Q.C., Renshaw, Q.C., and Whitaker, for the plaintiffs.

Sir Charles Russell, Q.C., Marten, Q.C., and Farwell for the defendants, the railway company.

Swinfen Eady, for third parties, transferees of the stock.

KAY, J., held that the defence of the Statute of Limitations was not available, and that the transfers were invalid. There was no authority for saying that a partner who did nothing for six years lost all remedies against his co-partners: time only began to run against him from an act of exclusion. By application of that analogy to the present case, time did not begin to run against the plaintiffs until the refusal of the defendants, when the forgery was made known to them, to treat the plaintiffs as holders of the stock. Whatever the powers of executors might be as to other property vested in them in that character, one co-executor had no power to transfer railway stock registered in the names of both, such stock being governed by the Companies Clauses Act, 1845. His Lordship further held that in equity A. B. had a sufficient interest in the stock to enable her to sue, making T. B. a defendant, and that, whatever remedies the railway company might have against T. B., they could not, at the suit of A. B., deny that the stock had not been validly transferred. Judgment was accordingly given to the plaintiffs.

DRAKE v. FRANCKE.

Administration Action—Writ or Summons—Appointment of Receiver—Costs.

This was a creditor's action (commenced by writ) for the administration of the personal estate of a testator. The defendant was the administrator with the will annexed. The writ claimed the appointment of a receiver. The day after the writ was served a receiver was appointed on the motion of the plaintiffs in Court. The action now came on for trial as a short cause, on notice of motion for judgment according to proposed minutes in the ordinary form of a creditor's administration judgment.

Butcher, for the plaintiffs.

NORTH, J., asked why the action had not been commenced by originating summons.

Butcher:—It was essential to obtain an appointment of a receiver at once, and it did not appear that this could be done upon an originating summons before an order for administration had been made: Gee v. Bell (35 Ch. D. 160); Weston v. Levy (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 76).

W. O. Hodges, for the defendant.

NORTH, J., said that, when an administration action was commenced by originating summons, a receiver could be appointed, either in chambers or in Court, immediately after the service of the summons, before any order for administration had been made. The plaintiffs would be allowed only such costs as they would have incurred if they had commenced the action by originating summons.

North, J. SMITH v. BRENTNELL. March 14.
Statute of Frauds (29 Car. 2. c. 3), s. 4—Agreement for Sale of Land—Name of Purchaser.

This was a purchaser's action for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of freehold property in the market-place Long Eaton. The purchaser was one Ernest Terah Hooley.

The vendor was William Brentnell, a butcher. The contract was made on the 11th of December, 1886, the price was 2000*l*. The vendor was to have a year to look to find fresh premises. Hooley made the contract for the benefit of the plaintiffs, who were bankers at the time of entering into the contract. Hooley handed Brentnell a cheque for 100*l*. as a deposit, and Brentnell signed a receipt written out by Hooley. The receipt was written on a bill form with the heading, "Bought of W. Brentnell, family butcher." It was in the following words, "Received from E. T. Hooley, the sum of one hundred being deposit on all my property, Market Place, sold for 2000*l*. complete, Xmas, 1887."

The Statute of Frauds was pleaded, and it was contended on the part of the defendant that the receipt did not shew by reasonable intendment that Hooley was the purchaser, because it did not follow that the deposit was paid personally by the purchaser.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., Everitt, Q.C., and S. Leeke, for the plaintiffs.

Company—Winding-up—Jurisdiction—Voluntary Winding-up—Return to Registrar of Final Meeting—Expiration of three Months—Dissolution of Company—Alleged Fraud by Liquidator—Companies Act, 1862, ss. 142, 143.

Petition by a creditor for a compulsory winding-up of the company.

In 1873 the company resolved on a voluntary winding-up, and one Elkin was appointed sole liquidator. In 1875 Elkin called a general meeting of the company, as provided by sect. 142 of the Companies Act, 1862, and laid before the meeting an account shewing how the winding-up had been conducted, and the property of the company been disposed of, and, in accordance with sect. 143, made a return to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies of the meeting having been held. Sect. 143 provides that, on the expiration of three months from the date of the registration of such a return, the company shall be deemed to be dissolved. The petitioner alleged that Elkin, who had been one of the promoters of the company, in violation of his duty as liquidator, had wilfully and fraudulently abstained from taking proceedings to enforce a liability of himself and other promoters, and of some directors of the company, to the company in respect of certain misfeasances and breaches of trust, and thus to obtain assets to satisfy the liabilities of the company, and that under these circumstances the affairs of the company had not been fully wound up. The petitioner had only recently discovered these facts. Elkin was dead, and it was believed that he had no personal representative. The petitioner asked for a declaration that, notwithstanding the return made by Elkin to the registrar, the company had not been dissolved according to law, and for an order to wind it up. The company alone was made a respondent to the petition. By the leave of the Court the petition was served on two of the former directors. The petition was supported by the statutory affidavit of the petitioner, verifying the statements in it, and by an affidavit by a shareholder and creditor, who stated that the facts attending the promotion and formation of the company were never disclosed by Elkin at any meeting of the company or otherwise.

Cookson-Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and Butcher, for the petitioner, cited In re Crookhaven Mining Company (Law Rep. 3 Eq. 69), In re Pinto Silver Mining Company (8 Ch. D. 273), and In re London and Caledonian Marine Insurance Company (11 Ch. D. 140).

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C.; and T. E. Wilkinson, for the respondents, were not called on.

NORTH, J., said that, even if fraud would authorize the making of a winding-up order after the expiration of the three months mentioned in sect. 143, no sufficient case was made out. He thought the cases cited shewed that there was no jurisdiction under the circumstances to make a winding-up order. It was necessary at any rate that fraud should be alleged and proved. There was nothing to shew that it was a fraud in the liquidator not to take proceedings against the other persons who were said to have been guilty of misfeasance towards the company. For aught that appeared it might have been very undesirable to take such proceedings, and in the absence of any representative of Elkin, it could not be inferred that he had been guilty of any fraud as regarded the claim against himself. In the absence of his representative it was impossible to treat as a nullity all that had been done. The petition must be dismissed with costs.

Legacy—Debt—Double Portion.

Frederick Wiggins, by a deed made on his separation from his wife, Sarah Wiggins, covenanted for the payment immediately after his decease to his wife of the sum of 100*l*. by instalments of 6*l*. as therein mentioned. By his will, after directing his debts and personal and testamentary expenses to be paid, he bequeathed to his wife 100*l*. payable within six months after his decease, 6*l*. to be paid to her order, to be deducted from the said 100*l*. as per separation indenture stated.

The question was whether Sarah Wiggins was entitled to 100*l*. under the deed, and to 100*l*. under the will, or to one sum of 100*l*. only.

Procter, for Sarah Wiggins.

Warmington, Q.C., and P. S. Stokes, for the executors.

KEKEWICH, J., held that Sarah Wiggins was entitled to two sums of 100*l*. There was a direction to pay debts, and the fair meaning of the latter part of the clause, though not so plain was that it was an addition to the terms.

BARTON v. LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Practice—Third Party Notice—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XVI., rr. 48, 52.

Action by the trustees of the will of Samuel Barton against the London and North Western Railway Company to compel them to replace stock which, as the plaintiffs alleged, had been parted with under forged deeds of transfer. The company served a third party notice on the transferees. Mr. Justice Kay, as in Coles v. Civil Service Supply Association (26 Ch. D. 529), gave liberty to such of the transferees as desired to defend to appear at the trial of the action, and take such part as the judge should direct. Two of the transferees appealed against this order, asking that they might be at liberty to deliver a statement of defence, appear at the trial, and put in oral and documentary evidence, and cross-examine the plaintiff's witnesses.

Vaughan Hawkins, for the appellants.

Clare, for the company.

A. Whitaker, for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal. Their Lordships said that if the company had omitted to raise any defence which ought to be raised, the judge would no doubt have given the third parties liberty to raise it, but the company here appeared to have raised every ground of defence, and a plaintiff ought not, without special reasons, to be embarrassed by having third parties coming in to take all the same steps as if they were defendants.

Copyright—Right to use Title of Newspaper.

On the 3rd of February, 1888, the plaintiffs published the first number of a weekly newspaper called The Licensed Victuallers' Mirror, and registered it at Stationers' Hall on the same day. On the 6th of February the defendants published the first number of a weekly newspaper with the same name. The plaintiffs brought an action to restrain the publication. In the interval between the two publications the plaintiffs' paper had only a small sale. Mr. Justice North refused an injunction, and the plaintiffs appealed.

Everitt, Q.C., and St. John Clerke, for the appeal.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Charles Browne, contra, were not called upon.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal, holding that the registration at Stationers' Hall did not by itself give any exclusive right to the use of the name, and the short interval between the two publications was not sufficient to give the plaintiffs such a title by user as to enable the Court to interfere on the ground that a man must not pass off his goods as those of another man.

STEPHEN v. CUNNINGHAM.

Will—Construction—Portions—Vested Interest—Gift over without "leaving" any child or children "surviving"—Testator whether in loco parentis to Grandchildren.

A testator, who died in 1825, gave his real and personal estate to trustees, upon trust to sell, and invest the proceeds, and pay the income to his daughter E. during her life, and after her death, as to the capital, "in trust to pay, and I do hereby give and bequeath the same, unto all and every the children at child of her my said daughter who, being a son or sons, shall attain the age of 21 years, or, being a daughter or daughters, shall attain that age or marry, to be divided between or amongst them, if more than one, in equal shares and proportions (with benefit of survivorship between and amongst them in case any or either of them shall happen to die without having obtained a vested interest therein), and in case my said daughter shall happen to die without leaving any child or children her surviving, or leaving such they shall all die without having obtained a vested interest in the said trust moneys, and without leaving any issue them, him or her surviving," then to W. B. and S. G. absolutely: and the testator declared that, in the meantime and until the vesting of the "portions" thereby provided for the children of his said daughter, the trustees should, after her death, apply the income for their maintenance.

E. was the only child of the testator. She was unmarried at the time of his death. She married in 1840, and had five children, of whom only two attained 21, and all died unmarried in her lifetime. She died in January, 1881.

The question was whether upon her death the gift over to W. B. and S. G. took effect.

Vaughan Hawkins, Bramwell Davis, E. Beaumont, and H. Stephen, appeared.

KAY, J., held that the circumstance that in the maintenance clause the testator referred to the shares of his possible grandchildren as "portions" was not sufficient to shew that he had placed himself in loco parentis to such grandchildren: that, therefore, the artificial rules of construction adopted in Emperor v. Rolfe (1 Ves. Sen. 208) and a long series of subsequent cases upon settlements did not apply; that the words of the will must consequently be construed according to their grammatical meaning, and that, as the testator's daughter had died without leaving any child or children her surviving, the gift over took effect. His Lordship added that, as he was satisfied that in his case there was no ambiguity in the terms of the instrument, he should, even if the words he had to deal with had been in a settlement, have hesitated long before he applied to them the rules of construction above mentioned.

Dibdin, for the petitioner.

NORTH, J., asked why the application was not made by summons in chambers, in accordance with Order LV., r. 2 (1).

DIBDIN:—It was thought right to present a petition because of the largeness of the amount: In re Rhodes (31 Ch. D. 499); re Broadwood (55 L. J. (Ch.) 646).

NORTH, J.:—I can see no reason why the application should not have been made by summons. It ought not to have been made by petition. In any case of real difficulty I should allow the costs of a petition, even if the application might have been made by summons. But I do not think the mere fact that the fund exceeds 1000l. is sufficient to justify the presentation of a petition. Rule 2 (1) of Order LV. prescribes no limit of amount in a case where the title to the fund "depends only upon proof of the identity or the birth, death or marriage of any person." I do not think that in In re Rhodes Mr. Justice Pearson intended to decide that a petition could properly be presented in every case in which the fund exceeds 1000l.; if he did, I cannot agree with him. The report of In re Rhodes shews that the title of the account in that case must have been entirely different from that of the account in the present case. Under the circumstances, however, I will allow the costs of the petition.

Stirling, J. ROOTS v. WILLIAMSON. March 15.
Company—Transfer of Shares—Inchoate Legal Title—Pre-existing Equitable Title.

In 1876, the plaintiff, a married woman living apart from her husband, purchased, with moneys forming part of her separate estate, 175 shares in the X. Life Assurance Society, which was registered under the Companies Act, 1862; and such shares were transferred to and registered in the name of W., who held them as trustee for her, for her separate use. W. was a member of a firm who had dealings with, and in 1886 became indebted to, the defendants, H. & A., to the extent of 200l., and the said defendants requiring security, W., early in February, 1886, deposited with them the certificates of 75 of the plaintiff's shares, and executed a transfer to them of these 75 shares, which transfer was, however, undated, and left the amount of the consideration in blank. On April 26, 1886, the plaintiff wrote to the manager of the company, stating that W. held the shares in trust for her, and asked whether the shares could be transferred to her or to her daughter; and the manager replied on the 29th that they must be transferred by W., and could be transferred to the plaintiff's daughter, but not to her.

About the 4th or 5th of May, the said defendants executed the transfer, filling the blank left for the consideration with "5s.," and that left for the date with "4th of May;" and on the 6th of May their brokers sent the transfer along with the certificates to the company for registration. The company declined under the circumstances to register the transfer. Shortly afterwards the plaintiff brought this action to assert her rights; and the question at the trial was whether the title of the plaintiffs or that of the defendants ought to prevail.

The deed of settlement under which the company was originally formed, provided (cl. 5) that no person claiming to be the proprietor of any share by transfer should be treated as such unless and until he should have been registered on the register of shareholders as the proprietor of them; (cl. 6.) that no person should be entitled to be registered as the proprietor of any share unless and until he should have executed the deed of settlement; (and cl. 14) that the deed by which the transfer was effected must be deposited or left at the office of the company. The defendants had neither executed nor offered to execute the deed of settlement.

Buckley, Q.C., and Mulligan, for the plaintiff.

Hastings, Q.C., and G. Broke Freeman, for the defendants.

STIRLING, J., held that the defendants had not shewn an absolute and unconditional right to be registered as shareholders in the place of W.; and that their title, being inchoate only, was not sufficient to defeat or take away the pre-existing equitable title of the plaintiff.

Practice—County Court—Remitted Action—Partis—Jurisdiction to add Defendant—County Court Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 142), s. 10—County Court Rules, 1886, Order XIV.

Appeal from A. L. Smith, J., sitting at chambers.

The plaintiff claimed 150*l.* damages for an illegal distress.

The action was brought in the Queen's Bench Division against the defendant, Coulson, alone. Subsequently the defendant obtained an order under sect. 10 of the County Court Act, 1867, that the action be remitted for trial in a county court, on the ground that the plaintiff had no visible means of paying the defendant's costs, should a verdict not be found for the plaintiff.

The action having been remitted, the plaintiff obtained an order from the county court judge, under Order XIV. of the County Court Rules, 1886, to add Strousberg as a defendant. Strousberg objected to this order being made.

The defendants did not appear at the trial, and the county court judge gave judgment for the plaintiff for 80*l.* and costs.

A. L. SMITH, J., having ordered that a writ of prohibition be issued to prohibit the county court from proceeding on the judgment so far as it affected Strousberg, the plaintiff appealed.

PROBATE, DIVORCE, AND ADMIRALTY DIVISION.

Divorce. DUFF v. DUFF AND LINDSAY. March 23.

In an undefended suit for divorce on the husband's petition which leave had not been obtained to dispense with a co-respondent, the Court held that the identity of the co-respondent must be proved though there was no claim for damages or costs.

This was a suit for dissolution on the petition of the husband on the ground of the wife's adultery with the co-respondent. Neither the respondent nor co-respondent had answered or appeared. There was no claim for damages, and leave had not been obtained to proceed without making a co-respondent.

At the trial it was proved that the wife had confessed her guilt, and the landlady of a house at Torquay, in which she and the co-respondent had lodged as Mr. and Mrs. Tracey, was called, and identified the respondent, but there was no evidence to shew that the co-respondent and Mr. Tracey were the same person.

Lipscomb submitted that as neither damages nor costs were asked against the co-respondent, further identification was unnecessary.

BUTT, J. :—I am told that the practice in this Court formerly was to require the co-respondent to be identified in such cases but that latterly that practice has been relaxed. I think what the Legislature has said that you must have a co-respondent if you have not been formally relieved from making a co-respondent you are bound to prove adultery against the particular co-respondent. Here there is evidence that the respondent has committed adultery, but there is no evidence against the particular man you have charged.

Subsequently evidence of identity was produced and a decree nisi was pronounced.

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Bkcy. Ct. In re CONNAN. March 22.
Ex parte HYDE.

Bankruptcy Notice—"Final Judgment"—"Execution stayed"—Garnishee Order by Creditor of Judgment Creditor—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 4, sub-s. 1 (g)—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XLII. rr. 22, 23.

Appeal against a receiving order made by Mr. Registrar Giffard.

In January, 1887, Hyde obtained a final judgment against Connan for 70*l.* In July, 1887, Making, who was a judgment creditor of Hyde for 100*l.*, served a garnishee order nisi on Connan, attaching the judgment debt due from him to Hyde, and in August, 1887, the garnishee order was made absolute.

On the 15th December, 1887, Hyde served Connan with a bankruptcy notice for the 70l. debt. The notice was accompanied by a letter from Hyde's solicitors, stating that the garnishee orders had been discharged by payment, and that, therefore, the amount of the judgment debt was properly payable by Connan to Hyde. No other evidence was furnished to Connan that Making's debt had been paid, and the garnishee orders had not been discharged by the Court. Connan did not comply with the notice, and Hyde presented a bankruptcy petition against him. The Registrar held that, as Making had been paid (which was proved on the hearing of the petition) Hyde was entitled to serve the bankruptcy notice, and that consequently Connan had committed an act of bankruptcy by not complying with it, and he made a receiving order against Connan.

Connan appealed.

S. Lynch, and Francis Watt, for the appellant.

Herbert Reed, for Hyde.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) held that, so long as the garnishee orders remained undischarged by the Court, execution on the judgment for 70l. was stayed as regarded Hyde, and therefore he was not such a creditor as, under sub-sect. 1 (g) of sect. 4 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, was entitled to serve a bankruptcy notice. Consequently, no act of bankruptcy had been committed, and the receiving order must be discharged.

BARONESS WENLOCK v. RIVER DEE COMPANY.

Company—Restricted Power of Borrowing—Advance by Lands Improvement Company—Invalid Charge.

This was an appeal from a decision of Kekewich, J. (36 Ch. D. 674; Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 169).

The River Dee Company had under their Act power to borrow 25,000l. The late Lord Wenlock had advanced to the company 145,000l., and in an action by his executors against the company it was decided that they could recover only 25,000l., and so much of Lord Wenlock's money as had been employed in payment of debts and liabilities of the company's property incurred (10 App. Cas. 354). It appeared that the River Dee Company after having borrowed more than 25,000l., obtained from the Lands Improvement Company 6500l. repayable by instalments of 429l., which was purported to be charged on the lands of the River Dee Company. This charge had been redeemed out of the money advanced by Lord Wenlock. In taking the account it was held that this was not a debt or liability of the company, and the executors of Lord Wenlock brought this action seeking for a declaration that they were entitled to the benefit of the annual charge of 429l. on the lands of the company.

Mr. Justice Kekewich, before whom the action was tried, held that the powers given by the Lands Improvement Company's Act did not override the restrictions on the River Dee Company's borrowing powers, that the charge given by them to the Improvement Company was invalid, and that the plaintiffs' case failed. The plaintiffs appealed.

Rigby, Q.C., and Methold, for the appellants.

Sir Horace Davy, Q.C., Barber, Q.C., and Kirby, for the River Dee Company.

Hornell, for the Lands Improvement Company.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Lopes, L.JJ.) agreed with the decision of Kekewich, J., and the appeal was accordingly dismissed with costs.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

BUCHAN v. ARTLETT.

March 22

Party Wall.

The defendant was the owner in fee of a plot of land on the north side of Caledonian Road, formerly part of Great Cherry Orchard, Chichester, on which two villas had been erected. The plaintiffs, Miss Buchan and W. Duke, sued as owners of the adjoining plot on the west side of the plaintiff's land. The plaintiff Duke was the legal owner in fee, and he had agreed to sell the plot to his co-plaintiff, Miss Buchan, and she had commenced building cottages on it. The defendant was entitled through one Thomas Willshire, who had bought from the plaintiff Duke. The conveyance from Duke to Willshire, dated October, 1879, contained a covenant by Willshire to erect a wall or fence on the east side of his plot, not less than three feet six inches high, and a proviso that "all outside walls or fences erected by the said Thomas Willshire or any person or persons entitled as aforesaid on the boundary of the said piece of land hereby conveyed and adjoining any other part of the Great Cherry Orchard aforesaid, be deemed party-walls or fences." The land now held by Miss Buchan, had been taken by one Smart from the plaintiff on an agreement to purchase. Smart entered into possession and built a flint wall on the east side of the plot, but his agreement was never carried out and the plaintiff Duke resumed possession and afterwards entered into the agreement with his co-plaintiff.

Miss Buchan had commenced to raise the wall abutting on the defendant's land for the purpose of making a gable end to one of her cottages; the defendant objected to her doing so on the ground that the wall was a party-wall and he pulled down some of the work. This was an action to restrain his interfering with the plaintiff Miss Buchan's building.

It was contended on the part of the defendant that the estate of which both parties' plots formed part was a building estate, the subject of a common design for the mutual protection of the purchasers; and that the plaintiff's land was subject in equity to similar restrictions to those contained in the conveyance to Willshire; and that the owners of that plot were bound to erect a party-wall or fence on the east side at least 3 feet 6 inches high; that when once a wall had been erected on that side it became a party-wall, which the owners could not remove or raise without the consent of the adjoining owner.

Everitt, Q.C., and Edward Ford, for the plaintiffs.

J. G. Wood, and T. W. Chitty, for the defendant.

NORTH, J., held that, assuming the wall to be a party-wall within the meaning of the proviso in Willshire's conveyance, and that the plaintiff's land was subject to a similar provision, the wall was in no way vested in the defendant, and that though he might use it as a "party-wall" by putting a lean-to against it, or by toothng a door support into it, the plaintiffs could, subject to its being so used, do what they liked with it, and he granted the injunction.

JONES v. HAWKINS.

Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LV., r. 10—Administration Order—Discretion of Court—Direction by Testator that Executors shall commence Administration Action.

Motion by the defendants to discharge an order made in Chambers. The action was commenced by originating summons by one of the executors and trustees of a will against his co-executrix and co-trustee (the daughter of the testator), who was also tenant for life of the residue, and another beneficiary. The will contained a direction that the trustees should within two months after the death of the testator commence an action in the Chancery Division for the administration of the testator's estate but, notwithstanding that direction, and the institution of any action, the testator authorized his trustees to pay the several pecuniary legacies thereinbefore given as and when they should think fit, and to realise his business as and when they should think fit, without being liable for any loss. The order which it was sought to discharge declared that the estate of the testator ought to be administered under the direction of the Court, and ordered the same accordingly. And it was ordered that an inquiry should be made "of what the property now subject to the trusts of the will consists." And it was ordered that the trustees should be at liberty to apply to the Court for such further accounts and inquiries as might be deemed necessary, and also to apply to the Judge in Chambers on the answer to the above inquiry being certified, and generally as they might be advised.

Herbert Lake, for the motion, urged that the Court was not bound by the direction in the will, and that an order for administration was not necessary.

C. T. Simpson, for the plaintiff, relied on the direction in the will, but submitted the matter to the Court.

NORTH, J., thought that the object of the testator, in giving the direction to his trustees to commence an administration action, was that certain infant beneficiaries might become wards of Court, and he felt bound by that direction. But the making of an administration order did not necessitate the working out of all the details of the administration, and therefore he had limited the inquiry. It would be right that the Court should know of that the estate consisted, and that could be ascertained by means of an affidavit of the executors. He should refuse, therefore, to discharge the order.

Solicitor, Personal Undertaking by, not given in a Cause—Summary Enforcement by Motion.

Motion on the part of B. B. that the respondent, F. C., a solicitor, might be ordered to pay the sum of 100*l.* and interest in pursuance of his undertaking. The applicant, it was stated, discounted a bill of exchange drawn for 100*l., and accepted by F. C. S. upon the faith of an undertaking, dated the 22nd October, 1886, signed by the respondent. It was as follows:—"In re* S's acceptance. Referring to this acceptance, I undertake to see you paid out of moneys payable on Mr. S's reversionary interest in a sum of consols under settlement of 17th November, 1846, and which has now fallen in. This is given in case the acceptance shall not have been previously paid off." The bill of exchange was dishonoured, and the applicant recovered judgment against the acceptor, and he was appointed receiver of his interest under the settlement by way of equitable execution; but owing to prior incumbrances and charges upon the fund nothing was recoverable by way of execution. It was admitted that the undertaking was given by the respondent in his professional character as solicitor for F. C. S.

Cordery, for the applicant, submitted that the undertaking could be summarily enforced, though not given in a cause, and referred to In re Gee (2 Dow. & L. 997).

Colquhoun, for the respondent.

STIRLING, J.—I am of opinion that the order must be made. F. C. gave an undertaking, in his capacity as solicitor for F. C. S., to see that the applicant should be paid out of the moneys arising under the settlement. These moneys being subject to prior charges, F. C. is now called upon to fulfil his undertaking, and for him it was contended that this application against him personally, as solicitor, is not a proper one; but the case which has been referred to for the applicant is decidedly in point. There Mr. Justice Coleridge made an order in the matter of a solicitor, ordering him to pay the amount pursuant to his undertaking, and on that authority the remedy now sought is the proper one. The meaning of the undertaking was that the bill of exchange should be paid out of the moneys mentioned in the settlement, and which have turned out to be insufficient. By reason of the undertaking being given the applicant did not make any inquiry into the title of F. C. S., and F. C. bound himself to see that the money should be paid. The order will be as asked. F. C. may take six weeks from this day to pay the money.

BROOKING v. MAUDSLAY, SON & FIELD.

March 26.

Marine Insurance—Insurance on Freight—Unseaworthiness of Ship—"Innocent Shippers"—Action by Underwriters to restrain proceedings on Policy.

The plaintiff in this case sued on behalf of himself and all others the underwriters on a policy of assurance dated in February, 1884, on machinery carried by a ship that was lost, and he claimed a declaration that the policy was void, and that it might be delivered up to be cancelled, or, alternatively, a declaration that he and the other underwriters were discharged from all liability for loss, and an injunction to restrain the defendants from taking any proceedings on the policy. The defendants were the shippers of the machinery, who had effected the policy. After the occurrence of the loss, an inquiry was taken in the Wreck Commissioner's Court, and it was found by the commissioner that the ship was sent to sea in an unseaworthy state, and that the owner alone was responsible for this. The defendants upon this applied to the underwriters to pay, and some did so, but the majority refused, and this action was brought in May, 1884. At the trial it was admitted by the plaintiffs that the policy was not void, and that judgment for cancellation could not be given; but they insisted that they were entitled to relief, according to the alternative prayer of the statement of claim. The defendants admitted that the unseaworthiness of the ship constituted a good defence to an action at law on the policy, but denied the right of the plaintiffs to any relief; and alleged that it was the practice of underwriters who might have a good defence to an action on a policy through the unseaworthiness of a ship, to pay insurers who are "innocent shippers," as the defendants claimed to be. The defendants further said that they had never threatened legal proceedings, but they declined to give an undertaking not to take such proceedings, and abstained from saying whether it was their intention to take proceedings or not.

Sir Henry James, Q.C., Hastings, Q.C., and Hurst, for the plaintiffs.

Sir R. Webster, A.G., Byrne, Q.C., and Bray, for the defendants.

STIRLING, J., said the real question between the parties was whether the defendants were "innocent shippers," and entitled to the benefit of the practice above mentioned. This was an issue to be decided, if at all, by some Court of Honour, and could not be tried by any legal tribunal. The sole ground on which the plaintiffs claimed relief, was that although they had a good defence to any claim by the defendants against them, that defence depended on extrinsic facts, the evidence of which might not be forthcoming at all times, and under all circumstances. The existence of such evidence was, however, neither pleaded nor proved; and if it had been, the appropriate remedy would have been an action for the perpetuation of testimony. The present action was in the nature of an experiment, and must be dismissed with costs.

Q. B. Div. FURNESS v. BOND. March 16, 20.
Landlord and Tenant—Agreement for Lease—Equitable Estate—

"Void at Law"—Statute 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, s. 3—Judicature Act, 1875, s. 33.

Action of ejectment tried before Manisty, J. The defendant was in possession under an agreement for a lease for a term of years of which four were unexpired, entered into with the plaintiff's predecessor in title. The plaintiff claimed possession under a six months notice to quit, treating the defendant as tenant from year to year. The defendant, without counting on claiming for specific performance, relied on his equitable estate under the agreement.

W. H. Clay, for the plaintiff.

Philbrick, Q.C., and Theodore Ribton, for the defendant.

In the argument the effect of statute 8 & 9 Vict. c. 106, and by which "a lease required by law to be in writing . . . shall be void at law unless made by deed" was discussed, and it was contended that this section was repealed by sect. 33 of the Judicature Act, 1875.

See the passage in Woodfall's Landlord and Tenant, 13th ed. p. 86, in which Walsh v. Lonsdale in the Court of Appeal (2 Ch. D. 9, per Jessel, M.R. at p. 14); In re Maughan, Ex parte Monkhouse (14 Q. B. D. 956, per Field, J., at p. 958); Allhusen v. Brooking (26 Ch. HART v. STANDARD MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Marine Insurance—Warranty—"Iron," "Steel."

Action on a policy of marine insurance tried by Mathew, J. without a jury.

The policy was on the hull and machinery of the steamer "Celtic Monarch." The claim was for a total loss. The defendants admitted the loss of the vessel by perils insured against, but claimed that they were not liable owing to the breach of the following warranty contained in the policy: "Warranted no iron or ore or phosphate cargoes exceeding net register tonnage across the Atlantic." The wreck occurred in the Atlantic, and the ship was loaded at the time to an extent exceeding her net register tonnage with a cargo composed partly of iron but principally of steel.

Kennedy, Q.C., and Joseph Walton, for the plaintiff.

Bigham, Q.C., and Barnes, Q.C., for the defendants.

MATHEW, J., held that the cargo was an "iron cargo," within the meaning of the warranty, and gave judgment for the defendants.

v. ROSS.

Light—Implied Grant—Building Scheme—Intervening Strip of Land.

This was an appeal from a judgment of Kekewich, J. (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 219).

The plaintiffs' buildings were held by them under a lease from the corporation of Birmingham granted to their predecessor in title Mr. Daniel. At the date of the lease the building, which had been recently erected, overlooked a passage twenty feet wide, on the other side of which were old buildings twenty-five feet high, which were shortly afterwards pulled down. The passage and the land on both sides of it belonged, as Daniel knew, to the corporation of Birmingham, and were included in a building scheme for the improvement of Birmingham. Subsequently the corporation granted the site of the old buildings on the other side of the passage to the defendant, who built a house eighty feet high. The plaintiffs claimed an injunction against the defendant for obstructing their light and damages. Kekewich, J. dismissed the action and the plaintiffs appealed.

Sir Horace Davey, Q.C., Warmington, Q.C., and Beale, Q.C., for the appellants.

Rigby, Q.C., and Methold, for the defendant.

COTTON, L.J., said that the case was not one of ancient lights, but depended on the lease by the corporation of Birmingham to the plaintiffs' predecessor in 1882, and the lights were therefore modern lights. The lease contained no express mention of lights, but merely demised the plot of land, "together with the rights, easements, and appurtenants to the said premises belonging." Those words would carry with them whatever right to light existed at the time the lease was granted, but could not be properly construed as the plaintiffs contended for—viz., as entitling them to a right to so much light as they enjoyed when no building existed higher than the old building that stood on the defendant's plot of ground when the plaintiffs' lease was granted. The light coming over the original low buildings could not be considered as light enjoyed with the plaintiffs' house. Then, was there any implied right? His Lordship referred to the view of Sir George Jessel in Rigby v. Bennett (21 Ch. D. 559), and said that an implied right was rather an obligation arising, not from the terms of the instrument, but from the position which the parties to the contract put themselves in at the time of the contract; and it was a duty imposed on a grantor from the relation which he put himself into with respect to the grantee. All the circumstances of the case at the time the lease to the plaintiffs' predecessor was granted must therefore be looked at. It was an obvious fact, well known to both parties, that the remainder of the lands in the street would be let by the corporation for building purposes, and it was impossible, therefore, under the circumstances, to imply an obligation on the corporation not to let the lands except for the purpose of building such class of buildings as existed at the time the lease was granted to the plaintiffs' predecessor.

He was therefore of opinion that the plaintiffs' case failed, and the appeal must be dismissed.

LINDLEY and BOWEN, L.J.J., gave judgment to the same effect.

GRAHAM AND OTHERS v. EDGE AND ANOTHER (OFFICIAL LIQUIDATORS OF THE BLACKBURN AND DISTRICT BENEFIT BUILDING SOCIETY). April 14.

Company—Unregistered Company—Winding-up—Official Liquidators, Action against, in personal capacity—Stay of Action—Practice—Land subject to Rent-charge—Vesting Order, Effect of—Companies Act, 1862, ss. 87, 92, 203.

Appeal from the decision of the Queen's Bench Division (reported 20 Q. B. D. 538) by which the Court directed that the action should be stayed.

The facts were as follows: An order having been made for the winding-up of an unregistered company under the Companies Act, 1862, the Court, under sect. 203 of the Act, directed that certain land, which was vested in trustees for the company, subject to a rent-charge, should be vested in the official liquidators, appointed for the purposes of the winding-up, by their official name. The plaintiffs brought an action to recover arrears of the rent-charge against the defendants. The defendants applied to the Queen's Bench Division for a stay of proceedings in the action, under section 87 of the Companies Act.

1862, on the ground that it had been commenced after an order for winding-up without leave of the Court.

THE COURT (Huddleston, B., and Manisty, J., the latter doubting) granted the application.

T. Willes Chitty, for the plaintiffs, now argued that sect. 87 had no application, the action being brought not against the company, but against the liquidators personally, on the ground that, having taken possession of the land, they were personally liable as terre tenants in respect of the arrears of the rent-charge accruing while they were in possession. He contended that under these circumstances the plaintiffs were entitled to try the question whether the defendants were so personally liable and the action ought not to be stayed.

Neville, Q.C., and Joseph Walton, for the defendants, were not called upon.

THE COURT OF APPEAL (Lord Esher, M.R., and Bowen, L.J.) affirmed the order of the Court below on the ground that the action being against the defendants in their personal capacity was obviously not maintainable, and, therefore, ought to be stayed, not under sect. 87, but in the exercise of the general jurisdiction of the Court to stay manifestly groundless actions.

Appeal dismissed.

LINWOOD v. ANDREWS.

Mar. 21.

Contempt of Court—Attachment—Counsel—"Obstructing Course of Justice"—Conniving at Fraud on the Court—Jurisdiction.

This action was instituted by the plaintiff, a young man, to recover from the defendants Louisa Andrews and J. L. Campbell certain foreign bonds alleged by the plaintiff to belong to him and to have been made away by those defendants or one of them.

On the 21st January, 1887, an interim injunction was granted restraining the defendant Andrews from parting with the bonds, and on the 4th February, 1887, the injunction was continued and the defendant Andrews was ordered to bring the bonds or the proceeds, if sold, into Court. On the 18th March, 1887, upon a motion for an interim injunction to restrain the defendant Campbell from removing the plaintiff out of the jurisdiction, as he had attempted to do, the defendant Campbell gave an undertaking in the terms of the notice of motion. On the 1st April, 1887, the defendant Andrews moved to discharge the two orders of 21st January and 4th February, and there was also, on the same day, a cross-motion by the plaintiff to attach her for contempt in not having brought the bonds or proceeds into Court, but her motion was refused, and her committal was ordered on the plaintiff's motion. On the 19th April an appeal by Andrews against the refusal to discharge and the order to commit was dismissed by the Court of Appeal with costs.

Upon the plaintiff's motion to commit, and on the defendant

Andrews' motion to discharge, two affidavits were filed by Andrews, in which she stated that she had parted with the bonds early in December, 1886, long before the issue of the writ in this action, which was on the 13th of January, 1887; that she did not know what had become of them; and that neither she "nor her solicitor, agent, or trustees, nor any one else held the same on her behalf, or for her use or benefit, either openly or upon any secret trust;" and that, therefore, it was utterly out of her power to deposit the bonds or proceeds in Court. It turned out, however, that Charles Edward Moore, who appeared as the defendant Andrews' junior counsel on her motion to discharge, and on the plaintiff's motion to commit, and also on her appeal, and was present in Court on the several occasions and heard the affidavits read, had himself received the bonds in a box from Andrews, who was an acquaintance of his, on the 13th of December, 1886, and had on the 18th of January, 1887, after the issue and service of the writ, and the service of the notice of motion for injunction against the defendant Andrews, handed over the box with the bonds to Andrews' solicitor, Thomas Edward Watkin, who the next day sold half of the bonds and applied the proceeds to his own use. The other half had not since been found. Watkin died on the 30th of July, 1887, insolvent, leaving Moore one of his executors. Under these circumstances, Moore was made a co-defendant, and the plaintiff now moved to commit him for contempt of Court (1) in attempting to obstruct the course of justice by concealing the fact that he had the bonds in his possession on the 13th of January, 1887, the date of the service of the writ and the notice of motion for injunction against the defendant Andrews: (2) by secretly parting with the bonds to Watkin, the defendant Andrews' solicitor, who instructed Moore to appear as her counsel: (3) by being a party to the reading to the Court on the 1st of April, 1887, of affidavits which he knew to be untrue: (4) by inducing the defendant Andrews to make an affidavit containing statements he, Moore, knew to be untrue: and (5) by endeavouring to prevent the plaintiff from deriving any benefit from the order of the 4th of February, 1887, directing the defendant Andrews to bring the bonds or proceeds into Court.

The facts upon which the present motion was made were stated in a fresh affidavit filed by the defendant Andrews, from which it appeared that her affidavits on the former proceedings were prepared for her by Watkin, and that she was induced to swear them by pressure from Moore. Moore filed an affidavit in opposition to the present motion, in which he stated, that although he purported to appear for the defendant Andrews on the 1st of April, he never, in fact, read his brief, nor even knew what the nature of the motion against Andrews was, he being determined to have nothing to do with the matter. Being cross-examined in Court on his affidavit, he admitted that he had received his fees on his briefs, both original and on appeal, and had signed receipts on the briefs for the fees, and that the briefs (which were produced) contained pencil-marks of his own as if he had read them; also that Watkin, who was an intimate friend of his, had told him that the affidavit prepared by him, Watkin, and sworn by the defendant Andrews expressly to meet the motion against her for attachment, was an "ingenious affidavit," from which he, Moore, inferred that it "contained chicanery," but that nevertheless he did not consider it his duty either to inform the Court or his leader of the real facts. It also appeared from his cross-examination that he had not only been an intimate friend of Watkins, and had been on friendly terms with the defendant Andrews, but that he had also been for some time on terms of friendly intercourse with the other defendant, Campbell.

Ince, Q.C., and A. Young, for the plaintiff.

Renshaw, Q.C., and P. B. Abraham, for the defendant, Moore, submitted that Moore's conduct did not come within the definition of "contempt of Court" given by Lord Hardwicke in Anon. (2 Atk. 469) and that all he had done was merely to sit in Court and remain silent while the affidavits were being read. His duty, no doubt, was to have thrown up his brief, but not to have tendered himself as a witness.

KAY, J., said Moore was in this difficulty—either he had read the affidavits in the briefs when the matter came on in Court, or he had not. If he had read them, of course he was a party to one of the grossest frauds ever attempted to be committed on the Court, because he had himself received the bonds and had them, according to his own admission, at the time the writ was issued, and kept them till the 18th January, when he handed them to Watkin, who he could have had no reason to doubt was the defendant Andrews' solicitor. Upon the evidence, his Lordship utterly disbelieved Moore's story, and was satisfied that he did read his briefs. The only conclusion his Lordship could arrive at was that Moore had committed perjury, and that he was quite as guilty of the fraud that had been practised on the Court as Watkin. His Lordship was told that the arm of the Court was so short that it could not reach him, and that all he had been guilty of was in not having thrown up his brief. That was not his Lordship's opinion of the law. Moore's fault lay, not in not having thrown up his brief, but in having made himself a party to a fraud by conspiring with Watkin in inducing the defendant Andrews to make these affidavits which were used to delude the Court. There must be an order on Moore to pay the costs of this motion and for his committal to prison till further order.

Elizabeth Dugdale, deceased, by her will, dated in 1865 devised and appointed certain real and personal estate "upon trust for my third son, James Boardman, his heirs and assigns; but if my said son should do, execute, commit or suffer any act, deed, or thing whatsoever whereby or by reason or in consequence whereof, or if by operation of law, he would be deprived of the personal beneficial enjoyment of the said premises in his lifetime, then and in such case the trusts hereinbefore contained for the benefit of my son shall absolutely cease and determine, and the estates, hereditaments, money, and premises hereinbefore limited in trust for him" should go and be held in trust for his wife, or, if no wife then living, for his children equally.

James Boardman was still living and unmarried, and claimed to be absolutely entitled to the property so devised and appointed, on the ground that the executory gift over was void for repugnancy.

Farwell and A. J. Chitty, for the parties.

KAY, J., held that James Boardman was entitled to an equitable estate in fee simple in the real estate, and to an absolute estate in the personal estates, and that the attempted executory gift over was void for repugnancy.

MARSHALL v. MARSHALL.

Administration Action—Costs—Infant Plaintiffs—Next Friend—Plaintiffs having contingent Reversionary Interest—Taxation as between Solicitor and Client.

This was an administration action. The plaintiffs were infants, suing by a next friend, and their interests under the will of the testator were contingent upon their being alive at the death of the tenant for life, who was still living. The order made in chambers on the further consideration of the action, directed that the plaintiffs' costs should be taxed as between party and party, and paid out of a fund in Court. This was a motion on behalf of the plaintiffs to vary the order.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Ribton, for the plaintiffs, relied on Damant v. Hennell (33 Ch. D. 224) and In re Burton (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 160) as shewing that the costs of the infant plaintiffs should be taxed immediately as between solicitor and client, and that so much of the taxed amount as represented the party and party costs should be paid at once to the next friend out of the fund in Court, liberty being reserved to him to apply for payment of the difference when there should be a fund to which the plaintiffs were absolutely entitled.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Crawley, for the trustees and executors of the will.

Swinfen Eady; and H. Terrell; for other parties.

NORTH, J., held that the plaintiffs' costs ought now to be taxed as between party and party, the taxed amount being paid out of the fund in Court, liberty being reserved to the next friend to apply for a taxation as between solicitor and client, and for payment of the difference out of the shares of the plaintiffs, if and when they should become absolutely entitled in possession. The next friend was not entitled to solicitor and client costs, except as between him and the infants, and the additional expense of a taxation between solicitor and client ought not to be thrown upon the fund in Court, to which the infants were not absolutely entitled.

CRAVEN v INGHAM.

March 27.

Chief Clerk's Certificate finding a Sum due for Occupation Rent—Motion to vary Certificate—Motion, before the Expiration of eight Days from Date of filing, for Leave to distrain for the Rent or for Security to be given, ordered to stand over—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LV. r. 70.

The Chief Clerk had made his certificate that the sum mentioned in it should be paid by the defendants for occupation rent of premises held by them. Before the eight days from the date of filing the certificate had elapsed the defendants took out a summons to vary it.

This was a motion on the part of the plaintiff, asking for leave to be given to the receiver to distrain for the rent, or that some security should be given by the defendants if the receiver should not be allowed to distrain.

Buckley, Q.C., and Bramwell Davis, for the applicants.

Hastings, Q.C. and Ingle Joyce, for the defendants:—The decision in Douthwaite v. Spensley (18 Beav. 74) governs this case. There, a motion was made for payment of money found due by a certificate before the eight days had elapsed from the date of filing, and the Master of the Rolls ordered the motion to stand over till the expiration of that period. The practice now, under Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LV. r. 70, is substantially the same as under the old orders. The certificate is not yet binding upon the defendants. The summons has been taken out too soon. The applicants have no right to ask the Court to do anything at present.

Buckley, in reply:—The applicants ask the Court to infer that the defendants are attempting to escape from a present payment of the occupation rent, and that their summons is not merely to obtain a reduction of the amount fixed. It is submitted that an order ought to be made for security at once.

STIRLING, J.:—I think I ought not to make the order which has been asked for in reference to the amount fixed for occupation rent of the premises held by the defendants. This matter has been before the Courts upon several occasions. Originally the Chief Clerk's certificate fixed 1500*l.* for the occupation rent: but in April, 1886, Mr. Justice Kay substituted 2000*l.* for that sum. The parties not being satisfied went to the Court of Appeal, and the Lord Justices in November, 1886, said that an occupation rent ought to be paid by the defendants as from September, 1884; and ordered an inquiry as to what the proper sum would be. That order in form left everything open, the Court of Appeal simply deciding that the rent fixed of 2000*l.* was insufficient, and that upon the materials before them they were unable to say what would be the proper sum to pay. The matter was sent back to the Chief Clerk. Before him the parties went into further evidence, and he has fixed the occupation rent to be paid by the defendants at a considerably larger sum. The certificate having been made, the defendants took out a summons to vary the sum fixed for the rent, and then this application is made to me asking for leave to be given to the receiver to distrain for the amount of rent due, or that the defendants shall be ordered to give security, if the receiver be not allowed to distrain. The case of Douthwaite v. Spensley has decided this point. I have referred to the Masters in Chancery Abolition Act (15 & 16 Vict. c. 80, s. 34), and to the General Orders made in October, 1852, and I am unable to find any substantial difference between Order LI., and Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LV. r. 70, which is binding upon me. In the case of Douthwaite v. Spensley there was a reference to Chambers to take the accounts. The Chief Clerk made his certificate, and then there was a motion asking for the payment into Court of the money found due before the eight days from the date of filing it, and the Master of the Rolls ordered the motion to stand over till after the eight days had elapsed. That practice having been laid down so long ago as December 1853, and noted in Morgan's Chancery Acts and Orders (3rd ed. p. 150), I can hardly lay down a fresh practice. I will deal with this case in the same way as the Master of the Rolls dealt with that, and direct the motion to stand over, to come on with the defendants' summons to vary.

HARRISON AND OTHERS, CLAIMANTS.

Practice—Interpleader—Ship—Bill of Lading—Two Sets of Bills of Lading given in respect of same Goods—“Passing of Property”—Bill of Lading Act (18 & 19 Vict. c. 111), s. 1—Order LVII, r. 1 (a).

Appeal of the defendants from a decision of Hawkins, J., at chambers, refusing to direct an interpleader issue between the plaintiffs and the claimants.

The defendants were owners of the “Sherboro,” a vessel engaged in the West African trade. The “Sherboro,” while loaded with a cargo of palm kernels and oil for conveyance from the Brass River to Liverpool under bills of lading signed by the captain at Brass River, went ashore on the West Coast at Accra in German territory. In order to get the ship off it became necessary to discharge the cargo, and the German commandant, alleging that this was a part of his duty, employed native labourers to put the cargo on shore, and took it under his protection when landed. The commandant claimed; for these services what the captain considered an exorbitant sum, and, not being paid, sold part of the cargo by auction. The captain then re-shipped the cargo, giving, under compulsion, as he alleged, bills of lading from Accra to Liverpool to the purchasers by auction at Accra, and continued his voyage to Liverpool. On the arrival of the ship at Liverpool, delivery was claimed from the defendants of the same part of the cargo by the plaintiffs under the bills of lading given at Accra, and by the claimants, of whom there were several, under the bills of lading given at Brass River.

Barnes, Q.C., and Joseph Walton, for the defendants, relied on Attenborough v. St. Katharine's Dock Company (3 C. P. D. 373, & 450 (C. A.)), and urged that the real question at issue was whether the property in the goods was in the plaintiffs or the claimants, under these peculiar circumstances as under the Bill of Lading Act (18 & 19 Vict. c. 111) s. 1, there was no right of action apart from the passing of the property.

Bigham, Q.C., and Pyke, for the plaintiffs, and Synnott, A. J. Ashton, and B. A. Cohen, for the different claimants, objected to the proposed order on the ground that the case was altogether outside the purview of interpleader. They contended that the captain might well have rendered his owners liable to the holders of both sets of bills of lading.

THE COURT (Field and Stephen, JJ.) held that the defendants were not entitled to relief by way of interpleader within the meaning of Order LVII. r. 1 (a) and dismissed the appeal.

Poor-rate—Deficiency in Poor-rate in respect of Lands taken by a Railway—Borough Rate—County Rate—Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 133.

Case stated for the opinion of the Court.

The plaintiffs, the overseers of Salford, claimed from the defendants, the London and North-Western Railway Company, a sum as deficiency in a poor-rate payable in respect of lands taken by the company under an Act with which the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, was incorporated.

By sect. 133 of the Lands Clauses Act: “If the promoters . . . become possessed of land . . . liable to be assessed to the poor's-rate they shall . . . until the works shall be completed and assessed to such poor's-rate, be liable to make good the deficiency in the assessments for poor's-rate.” The defendants contended that “borough rate” and “county rate” were not included in “poor-rate” for the purposes of the section, though collected by the overseers as “poor-rate” under the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 50), ss. 145, 146, (“borough-rate”) and 15 & 16 Vict. c. 81, s. 26, (“county rate”), respectively, and claimed to deduct from the “poor-rate” to be made up by them under the section these items.

Henn Collins, Q.C., and Howland Roberts, for plaintiffs.

Bosanquet, Q.C., and Ernest Moon, for defendants.

THE COURT (Field and Wills, JJ.), held that the “borough rate” and the “county rate” were both included in “poor-rate” for the purposes of the section, and gave judgment for the plaintiffs for the full amount claimed.

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Q. B. Div.

March 27, 28.

ANLABY v. PRETORIUS AND ANOTHER.

Practice—Specially indorsed Writ—Defence—Time for delivery of—Setting aside Judgment—Power to impose Terms—Order III. r. 6; XXI. rr. 6, 7; LXX. r. 1.

Appeal from a decision of the Queen's Bench Division.

A writ specially indorsed with a statement of claim under Order III. r. 6, was served upon the defendants upon January 21, and they entered an appearance on January 25. On February 7, the plaintiffs entered judgment in default of delivery of a defence. On the same day, after judgment had been entered, the defendants delivered their defence, but the plaintiffs refused to accept it on the ground that it was out of time.

On February 9 the defendants took out a summons to have the judgment set aside, and that the costs should be paid by the plaintiffs. A master having dismissed that summons with costs, Hawkins, J., affirmed his order. On appeal, the Queen's Bench Division (Huddleston, B., and Manisty, J.) ordered the judgment entered by the plaintiffs to be set aside on condition that the defendants paid a sum into Court within four days, costs to be costs in the cause; but that the appeal should be dismissed with costs if the sum was not so paid into Court.

The defendants paid the sum into Court, and appealed from the order of the Queen's Bench Division, and asked that the judgment entered should be set aside for irregularity, and that all the costs of the application should be paid by the plaintiffs.

J. G. Witt, for the appellants.

Israel Davis, for the respondent.

THE COURT (Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) held that the judgment entered by the plaintiff was premature and irregular, because the service of a writ specially indorsed under Order III. r. 6, was delivery of a statement of claim within the meaning of Order XXI. r. 6; so that the defendants had ten days from the time limited for appearance within which to deliver their defence, and therefore that the entry of judgment was premature and irregular. The Court held also that the defendants were entitled ex debito justitiae to have the irregular judgment set aside, and that terms could not be imposed upon them as a condition of setting it aside unless they asked for their costs of the application, and the Court gave them such costs.

Practice—Appeal—Further Evidence—Interlocutory Order—Writ of Sequestration.

In this case North, J., on the 21st of February, 1888, refused to order a writ of sequestration to issue against the defendant company for breach of an injunction against the violation of the plaintiff's patent. The plaintiffs appealed.

Sir R. Webster, A.G., Moulton, Q.C., and Dove, for the appellants, proposed to read some affidavits which had been filed since the order in the Court below.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Clare, for the defendants, objected to the reception of the fresh evidence, as no leave had been obtained from the Court, and no special grounds had been shewn under Order LVIII. r. 4. They contended that the order refusing the writ was a final order as to the matter in dispute, and not an interlocutory order.

COTTON, L.J., said that he was of opinion that the order appealed from was an interlocutory order within the rule referred to, and therefore the appellants had a right to adduce fresh evidence. But the appeal must stand over to enable the respondents to answer the new affidavits; and after the affidavits on both sides had been filed, either party might cross-examine the deponents.

JOWETT v. LOCAL BOARD OF IDLE.

*Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), ss. 4, 150—
"Street," Meaning of,*

Appeal from the judgment of the Queen's Bench Division (Stephen and Charles, J.J.)

The facts were as follows:—The action was for trespass in respect of certain works of paving, etc., done on land the property of the plaintiff, by the defendants, a local board, who claimed to have been entitled to do them under sect. 150 of the Public Health Act, 1875, and the question involved was whether the locus in quo was a "street" within the meaning of that section.

It appeared at the trial before Manisty, J., with a jury, at Leeds, that the locus in quo was situated in a square or yard known as Union Yard, which had been formerly a farm yard; that there were some houses the backs of which abutted upon such yard and also some cottages which fronted to it; that at the end of it there were certain mill premises, the gates of which opened into it; and that the occupiers of the premises abutting on the yard and the operatives employed at the mill in considerable numbers used to pass through the yard in going to and returning from their premises and the mill. It did not, however, appear to have been suggested that there was a public footway over the yard. The learned judge read the definition of "street" given by sect. 4 of the Public Health Act, 1875, to the jury, and left it to them generally to say whether the locus in quo was, under the circumstances, a street. The jury found that it was not. On an application by the defendants to the Queen's Bench Division to enter judgment for them or for a new trial, the Divisional Court held that, having regard to the interpretation clause (sect. 4) of the Act, which defines "street" as including, inter alia, "any lane, footway, square, court, alley, or passage whether a thoroughfare or not," Union Yard was for the purposes of the 150th section a street, even if it were not a street in the ordinary acceptation of the term; that the learned judge ought so to have ruled; and that, therefore, notwithstanding the verdict of the jury, judgment ought to be entered for the defendants under Order XL., r. 10.

Against this decision the plaintiff appealed.

E. Tindal Atkinson, Q.C., and Longstaffe, for the plaintiff, referred to Mayor of Portsmouth v. Smith (13 Q. B. D. 184 and 10 App. Cas. 364). They argued that the expression of opinion by the Court of Appeal in that case, to the effect that the definition given by the interpretation section of the Act was to be read into the section giving the board power to cause streets to be paved, and that therefore a place within that definition might be a street for the purposes of that section, though not a street in the popular sense, was merely obiter, and they relied upon the observations of Lords Blackburn and Watson (10 App. Cas. 373, 375) as tending to the opposite conclusion.

Forbes, Q.C., and Wilberforce, for the defendants, were not called upon.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Bowen, L.J.) thought the case concluded, so far as they were concerned, by what they had said in Mayor of Portsmouth v. Smith (13 Q. B. D. 184). They held that what was said by the House of Lords (10 App. Cas. 364) did not amount to an expression of dissent from the opinion expressed by them in that case that the definition given by sect. 4 applied, but merely of a doubt on the subject; that they were, therefore, entitled to adhere, and did adhere, to the opinion so expressed by them, and that, if the plaintiff wished to question that opinion, he must do so in the House of Lords; and therefore that the decision of the Court below was correct and the appeal should be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

Ex parte REYNOLDS.

Bankruptcy—Jurisdiction—Debtor "ordinarily residing" in England—Residence at Hotel—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 6.

Appeal against an order of Mr. Registrar Hazlitt dismissing a bankruptcy petition presented by G. Reynolds against J. Norris. The petition was founded on the non-compliance with a bankruptcy notice served on the 28th January, 1888. It was objected on behalf of the debtor that the Court had no jurisdiction over him, because he was not domiciled in England, and had not, within a year before the presentation of the petition ordinarily resided or had a dwelling house or place of business in England. Norris was a financial agent. He was an American citizen, and his wife and family lived in Brussels. In November, 1886, he took a room at an hotel in London, which he had ever since continued to pay for, and he gave the hotel as his address on the letters which he wrote. The registrar held that the debtor was not domiciled in England, and that he had not within a year before the presentation of the petition ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business in England. He was of opinion that the debtor had ordinarily resided in Brussels. The petitioning creditor appealed.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and Hilbery, for the appellant.

Herbert Reed, for the debtor.

THE COURT (Lord Halsbury, L.C., Lord Esher, M.R., and Bowen, L.J.) held that the debtor had ordinarily resided at the hotel, and allowed the appeal.

Ex parte PHILLIPS.

Bankruptcy—Receiving Order—Deed of Arrangement with Creditors—Secret Benefit to one Creditor.

Appeal against the refusal of Mr. Registrar Brougham to make a receiving order against G. C. Harvey on the petition of W. Phillips. Phillips was a judgment creditor of Harvey for 800*l.*, and had assented to a deed of composition between him and his creditors. By the deed the creditors, in consideration of the composition, respectively released the debtor from their debts, but it was provided that, in case the debtor made default in paying the composition, the deed should become void, and the creditors should not be bound by its provisions. The composition was to be 2*s.* 6*d.* in the pound, and was to be paid in three instalments, and the debtor had not paid any of them. Phillips signed the deed on the terms of receiving a secret payment in excess of the other creditors. Part of this payment had been made to him. When the debtor made default in paying the composition, Phillips presented a bankruptcy petition against him, which he afterwards withdrew on receiving from Harvey 100*l.* in cash, and bills for another 100*l.* These bills were dishonoured at maturity, and Phillips presented a second bankruptcy petition on which the registrar refused to make a receiving order. Phillips appealed.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and R. G. Glenn, for the appellant.

Sidney Woolf, for the debtor.

THE COURT (Lord Halsbury, L.C., Lord Esher, M.R., and Bowen, L.J.) dismissed the appeal.

LORD HALSBURY, L.C., approved of the decisions in Ex parte Oliver (4 De G. & Sm. 354), Mallatieu v. Hodgson (16 Q. B. 689), and similar cases. The real meaning of the composition deed was that the debtor's estate was to be divided among his creditors in proportion to the amounts of their debts. Phillips had secretly bargained for a larger proportion than the other creditors. The result was, in accordance with the decisions, that the release of the debt by Phillips remained absolute, and the condition subsequent that the composition should be paid, was, by reason of the fraudulent preference in his favour, a void condition.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that the case was directly within the authority of In re Cross (4 De G. & Sm. 364, n.), decided by Mr. Commissioner Fane. The release of the debt was absolute, and the condition was fraudulent, because Phillips had attempted to deceive the other creditors. The creditor who had attempted to commit a fraud lost both his original debt and the composition. The Court would not in any way assist a fraud.

Practice—Order in Chambers—Appeal—Motion to discharge—Irregularity.

In this case a question arose whether an order made by a Judge in Chambers on a summons upon which the parties have been represented by counsel, can be appealed from by way of motion to discharge it.

Marten, Q.C., Renshaw, Q.C., A. d.B. Terrell, and P. F. Wheeler, for the parties.

KAY, J.:—I have said over and over again that when an order has been made by a Judge in Chambers the Court has no power to alter that order unless by motion, under the well-known 50th section of the Judicature Act 1873, to discharge the order. But it is not necessary or proper to make such a motion if all the parties concerned have been represented by Counsel in Chambers. Chitty, J. In re TUCKETT'S TRUSTS. April 10.

National Debt (Conversion) Act, 1888 (51 Vict. c. 2)—Trustees—Power of Reinvestment.

Residuary moneys had, in pursuance of specific directions contained in a will, been invested by the trustees and executors in the purchase of consols, and the income of the consols periodically applied in payment of life annuities. The will contained no power to change or vary the investment, and it was stated that the effect of accepting conversion under the National Debt (Conversion) Act would be to considerably reduce the annuities, being, as they were, payable out of income and not out of capital. The trustees were desirous of at once selling out the stock and re-investing the proceeds of sale in securities authorized by law as trust investments, and asked by petition for the opinion and direction of the Court whether they would, under the circumstances, be justified in taking that course.

E. Ford, in support of the petition.

B. Eyre, for the persons entitled in remainder after the life annuitants, also supported the petition.

CHITTY, J., held that the obvious effect of sect. 8 (1), sect. 26, and sect. 27 of the new Act was to enable the trustees to exchange their stocks for new stock and then to sell the new stock and re-invest the proceeds in investments authorized for the investment of cash under the control of the Court. It certainly appeared to him that re-investment was beneficial to the trust, and that being so, that the more advantageous mode of procedure was to take one step instead of two. The trustees would therefore be advised that they might sell the consols and re-invest at once in authorized securities.

Crown—Prerogative—Debtor to Crown—Priority.

Moneys received on behalf of the Post Office were paid into their own private accounts with a bank by the receivers with the sanction of the Postmaster General, to whom the balances were from time to time transmitted. The bank knew that the moneys paid in by the post-office receivers consisted in part of moneys received at the post-offices, and were in the habit of issuing to them, in addition to ordinary cheque-books, books containing unstamped cheques with the words "On Her Majesty's Service" overprinted, for transmission of the balances to H.M.'s Postmaster General. The bank having stopped payment, and consequently dishonoured cheques for about 600*l.* drawn by the receivers in favour of the Postmaster General:—

Held, that the post-office moneys having been received by the bank with knowledge that they were moneys of the Crown, the bank thereby became a debtor to the Crown, and accordingly that the Postmaster General was entitled to an order for payment, in priority over other creditors, of the balance due in respect of the cheques drawn in his favour by the receivers, and since dishonoured.

BOWLES v. HYATT.

Mortgagor and Mortgagee—Executor—Devastavit—Statute of Limitations—Trustees—Rents and Profits—Real Assets—Specialty Creditors—3 & 4 Will. 4., c. 104.

A testator mortgaged a freehold farm for 5000*l.* and died in May, 1867, having devised and bequeathed all his real and personal estate to A. and B. upon trust for his wife and children, and having appointed A. and B. his executors. The mortgage contained the usual covenant by the mortgagor for payment of principal and interest. The whole of the personal estate was applied in payments to simple contract creditors and to the beneficiaries and no provision was made for answering the mortgage debt. In July, 1869, A. died, and C. was appointed trustee in his place, in 1871. The balance of the rents after providing for the interest on the mortgage were received by B. and C. up to May, 1884, and applied by them in accordance with the trusts of the will. In May, 1884 the mortgaged property became untenanted and the interest having fallen in arrear a receiver was in March, 1885 appointed.

In January, 1886, the mortgagees, on behalf of themselves and all other creditors of the testator, took out an originating summons under Order LV. against B. and C. claiming accounts and administration of the testator's real and personal estate, under which the usual accounts, including an account of rents and profits, against both B. and C., was directed. The defendants carried in accounts in which they claimed credit for all payments and disbursements made to the beneficiaries under the will; and further, that as to such of the payments as were made by A. and B. upwards of six years before the action any claim on a devastavit was barred after six years by the Statute of Limitations, and that as to the rents they were not liable to account for them to the mortgagees at all.

Sir A. Watson, Q.C., and H. C. Brown, for the petitioners.

Romer, Q.C., and Warrington, for the defendants.

CHITTY, J., held that the defendant B. could not set up his own and A.'s wrongful payments by way of devastavit as a defence, or claim the benefit of the Statute of Limitations (In re Marsden (26 Ch. D. 783) followed, In re Gale (22 Ch. D. 820) distinguished); that as to the rents and profits of the real estate which had been received by B. or by B. and C. jointly they were under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 104, assets by accretion, primarily liable under the circumstances for the payment of creditors by specialty, just as much as the real estate was assets under that statute; and that accordingly both B. and C. were equally accountable to the plaintiffs for all rents received by them since 1871.

ROBSON v. WORSWICK.

Discovery—Affidavit of Documents—Privilege—Shorthand Writer's Notes.

A claim was made in this administration action by the chaplains and poor of Wiggeston's Hospital, Leicester, as the landlords of a coal-mine, for damages in respect of the flooding of the mine alleged to be indirectly caused by negligent and improper working of a mine, which had been in lease to and worked by the testator in the action. The collieries of the testator were as to part leased from the claimants. Collieries adjoining the testator's collieries were worked by the Snibston Colliery Company, and were also as to part leased from the claimants. The damage was alleged to be caused by the working in that part of the testator's collieries that was not leased from the claimants so as to allow the water from the testator's mine to flow into a part of the Snibston Colliery's mines not leased from the claimant. It was alleged water thus let into part of the Snibston Company's mines found its way into the part of their mines leased from the claimant and drowned it. The claim was grounded on a covenant in the lease from the claimants held by the testator not to work any pits or mines so that any adjoining or neighbouring mines belonging to the claimants should be drowned, or damaged, or spoiled. The Snibston Colliery Company had brought an action against the defendants in respect of damage done to the part of their mines that adjoined the testator's mine, where negligent working was alleged to have taken place, that action was compromised.

The claimants administered interrogatories to one of the defendants. One part of the interrogatories asked whether the defendants had not taken shorthand notes of the evidence at the trial of the action by the Snibston Colliery Company. The defendants submitted that, as they had made an affidavit of documents, they were not bound to answer as to the shorthand notes. The shorthand notes were not scheduled to their affidavit of documents. This was a summons for a further answer as to the shorthand writer's notes, and other matters interrogated upon. The parties also submitted to have the decision of the judge as to whether, if a further answer should be required in respect of the shorthand writer's notes, they were privileged.

Practice—Payment into Court—Defence setting up Tender—Denial of Liability—Continuance of Action—Payment out of Court—Necessity for Order—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XXII, rr. 5, 6.

Action for wrongful dismissal claiming a year's salary in lieu of notice.

The defence alleged that the plaintiff was only entitled to one month's notice, or, in the alternative, three months; that before action the defendant made tender of a sum of money, which the plaintiff refused, that the defendant had paid the said sum into Court, and that it was enough to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, and gave particulars, describing a part of such sum as three months' salary in lieu of notice.

The receipt for the money paid into Court described it as "paid in with defence setting up tender."

The plaintiff's solicitor, with the plaintiff's written authority, but without obtaining an order, applied for and obtained payment out of Court. The plaintiff proceeded with the action, and at the trial the Judge held that a month's notice was sufficient, and gave judgment for the defendant.

The defendant applied by summons for orders calling on the plaintiff and the plaintiff's solicitor to pay over to the defendant a part of the money which had been paid out of Court. The application was refused, and the defendant appealed.

Henn Collins, Q.C., and Merton Smith, for the defendant, in support of the appeals.

Lumley Smith, Q.C., and Horace Browne, for the plaintiff's solicitor.

Horace Browne, for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Mathew, J.) held that, the action being for unliquidated damages, the payment into Court was not made with a defence setting up a tender of the sum paid, within the meaning of Order xxy. r. 5 (c), and, further, that, as the defendant's liability was denied, and the plaintiff did not accept the sum paid into Court in satisfaction, but proceeded with the action, the case was within rule 6 (c) and not rule 5 of Order xxx., and therefore the money ought not to have been paid out of Court, except in pursuance of an order, and the defendant was entitled to an order for payment as against both the plaintiff and the plaintiff's solicitor.

Appeals allowed.

Solicitors for defendant: Ross & Douglas Norman.

Q. B. Div. THOMAS v. PEEK. April 18.

County Court—Execution—High Bailiff's Fees—Possession-money—County Court Rules, 1886, Order xxvii. r. 1.

Action by the high bailiff of a County Court against an execution creditor to recover four days' possession-money from the date of the seizure to the receipt by the defendant from the plaintiff of notice of a claim which had been made to the goods seized. On receipt of the notice the plaintiff by the defendant's direction withdrew from possession.

By the County Court Rules, 1886, Order xxvii. r. 1, where a claim is made in respect of goods taken in execution, if the execution creditor admits such claim, and gives notice thereof in manner by the rule provided, "he shall only be liable to such high bailiff for any fees of possession or expenses incurred prior to the receipt of such notice."

The County Court Judge gave judgment for the plaintiff, and the defendant appealed.

J. G. Witt, for the defendant, in support of the appeal.

Henn Collins, Q.C., and W. Wills, for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Cave and A. L. Smith, JJ.) held that the County Court Judge had power to award possession-money to the high bailiff, though the execution was non-effective by reason of not being upon goods of the execution debtor, and whether he would do so or not was a matter purely for his discretion.

Appeal dismissed.

Registry Acts—Middlesex—Copyhold Estates—Enfranchisement Deed—7 Anne, c. 20, ss. 1, 17.

Argument of a point of law raised on a return made by Lord Truro to a writ of mandamus, directed to him as registrar of deeds in Middlesex, requiring him to register a memorial of a deed enfranchising copyhold land in Middlesex.

Rid, Q.C., and William Murray, for the prosecution.

Channell, Q.C., and Trevelyan, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Mathew, J.) held that, as on the execution of the deed the land ceased to be copyhold, the provision in 7 Anne c. 20, s. 17, "that this Act shall not extend to any copyhold estates" did not apply, and therefore the memorial must be registered under sect 1.

Q. B. Div. MONETARY ADVANCE COMPANY v. CATER. April 16.

Promissory Note—Bill of Sale—Validity of Promissory Note given as Collateral Security for Payment of Sums secured by void Bill of Sale.

Appeal from a decision of the judge of the Edmonton County Court.

Action to recover 31l., the balance of principal and interest alleged to be due on a promissory note.

On Feb. 18, 1886, the plaintiffs lent to the defendant 30l. upon the security of a bill of sale of the defendant's furniture, and at the same time took from him a promissory note for the payment of the 30l. with interest, payable by instalments on the same days, and of the same amount, as in the bill of sale. The promissory note also contained a stipulation that if any instalment became in arrear the whole amount outstanding on the note should immediately become due and payable.

The County Court judge found that the bill of sale and promissory note were given as one and the same transaction, and held that, the bill of sale being void according to the decision of Counsell v. London and Westminster Loan and Discount Co. (19 Q. B. D. 512) the promissory note was also void.

The plaintiffs appealed.

Clay, for the plaintiffs.

L. Probyn, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Cave and A. L. Smith, JJ.) reversed the decision of the County Court judge, and held that the promissory note was good, and the plaintiffs could recover on it.

HER MAJESTY'S POSTMASTER-GENERAL v. GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Telegraph—Postmaster-General—Agreement with Railway Company—"Messages relating to business of company"—"Transmission of telegrams"—Charges for Delivery of Telegrams—Telegraph Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 110), s. 15.

By an agreement made between the Postmaster-General and the Great Western Railway Company at the time of the passing of the Telegraph Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 110), it was provided that "the Postmaster-General shall transmit free of charge to their respective destinations in the United Kingdom all messages of the railway company bona fide relating to the business of the railway company." The company contended before an arbitrator, Lord Hobhouse, to whom certain questions arising on the agreement had been referred, that this clause entitled them to have every business telegram addressed to any place beyond the limits of free delivery as defined by the Telegraph Act, 1868, sect. 15, delivered by the Post Office to the addressee at his address by special messenger free of charge. The Postmaster-General disputed this liability. The arbitrator found in favour of the company. Lord Hobhouse, by agreement, stated a case for the opinion of the Court, in accordance with which his award was, if necessary, to be amended.

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., Sir E. Clarke, S.G., C. T. Simpson, and Casserley, for the Postmaster-General.

Sir H. James, Q.C., and R. S. Wright, for the company.

THE COURT (Field and Wills, JJ.) held that the construction contended for by the company was unreasonable, and that the Post Office was only bound to deliver the business telegrams of the company addressed to places beyond the limits of free delivery from telegraphic termini according to the terms of the Telegraph Act, 1868, sect. 15, viz. on payment of portorage at sixpence a mile, if agreed to be paid by the company, otherwise by posting the telegrams without charge from the telegraphic termini by the first post after their arrival.

Local Government—Local Authority—Power to compel Paving—"Street"—Footway recently added to Highway—Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 75), ss. 4, 150.

Appeal by the occupier of a house abutting on Church Road, Christchurch, Monmouthshire, from an order of justices against him for the payment of paving expenses incurred by the local authority of Christchurch under the Public Health Act, 1875, (38 & 39 Vict. c. 75). The ground of appeal was that the part of the road in which the house was situated did not form a "street not being a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large" within the meaning of sect. 150 of the Public Health Act, 1875.

Church Road, Christchurch, is an old turnpike road, and "a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large" within the meaning of the section. The appellant's house was one of a row recently built on land at the side of the old road. The ground with respect to which the paving expenses were claimed was ground in front of the new houses, formerly a ditch, which had been converted into a footpath when the houses were built. The houses and footpath were, the old part of the road was not, within the jurisdiction of the Christchurch local authority. It was contended that the place, a longitudinal section of the road, was not a "street" in the ordinary sense of the term, but it was admitted that criminal proceedings could not be taken against the community for neglect to repair it.

A. T. Lawrence, for the appellant.

Jelf, Q.C., and Heber Jones, for the respondent, the clerk to the local authority.

THE COURT (Field and Wills, JJ.) held that the place was "a street" within s. 150, and the definition of "street" in s. 4 of the Public Health Act, 1875, and dismissed the appeal.

Landlord and Tenant—Agistment of Cattle—Use of Pasture—Eatage—Privilege from Distress—Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 61), s. 45.

Appeal from the Somersetshire County Court. The action was for trespass against the defendant, a landlord, for distraining cattle privileged, as the plaintiff, their owner, alleged, from distress under sect. 45 of the Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 61). The cattle when seized were on land demised by the defendant to a tenant whose rent was then in arrear, and were pasturing under an agreement by which such tenant granted the plaintiff the "exclusive right to feed the grass on the land for four weeks."

The County Court judge held that the cattle were not "taken in" by the tenant "to be fed at a fair price" within the meaning of sect. 45 of the Act and were therefore not privileged from distress, and gave judgment for the defendant.

W. H. Clay, for the plaintiff.

W. B. Odgers, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Field and Wills, JJ.) held that the contract was not a contract for the "agistment" of the cattle, and that the statute therefore did not apply, and dismissed the appeal.

Bankruptcy Notice—Final Judgment—Stay of Execution—Mortgage—Personal Judgment against Mortgagor for Mortgage Debt and Judgment for Foreclosure—Order for sale of Mortgaged Property—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 4, sub-s. 1 (g).

Appeal against an order made by Mr. Registrar Hazlitt, adjourning for six weeks an application to set aside a bankruptcy notice.

The debtors were mortgagors. The mortgages had, in an action in the Chancery Division, obtained a personal judgment against the mortgagors for the mortgage debt, and the ordinary foreclosure judgment, a period of six months after certificate being allowed for redemption. The personal judgment directed payment of the sum found due within a month from the date of the certificate. The certificate with regard to the personal judgment was made on the 14th of December, and it found that 5491l. was due from the defendants to the plaintiff. No part of this sum was paid within the time limited, and the plaintiff then served the defendants with a bankruptcy notice for the amount. He had previously, in pursuance of liberty reserved in the foreclosure judgment, obtained an order for the sale of the mortgaged property, which had not yet been acted on. The defendants applied to have the bankruptcy notice set aside. The registrar, on the 23rd March, adjourned the further hearing of the application till the 4th of May, on the ground that an opportunity ought to be afforded to the defendants of carrying out the sale. The plaintiff appealed.

Yate Lee, for the plaintiff.

Herbert Reed, for the defendants.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Bowen, L.J.J.) discharged the order of the registrar, and dismissed the application to set aside the bankruptcy notice. They said that a mortgagee was entitled to pursue all his remedies at once, and the mere fact that an order had been made for the sale of the mortgaged property was not in equity equivalent to a stay of execution on the personal judgment for the mortgage debt. If there were any circumstances which made it equitable that execution on the judgment for the debt should be stayed, the Court would have power to set aside the bankruptcy notice, but there was nothing of the kind in the present case.

Ex parte HOYLE, SHIPLEY AND HOYLE.

Solicitor—Costs—Charge on Property preserved—Defeat of hostile Administration Action—Solicitors Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 127) s. 28.

Adjourned summons.

The applicants claimed a charging order as solicitors to the defendants, who were the executors of the late Robert Dickinson (the testator) under the following circumstances:

The testator died on the 9th of September, 1884, and his will was proved by the defendants on the 9th of October, 1884. The plaintiff was a creditor of the testator in respect of arrears of rent of a colliery, and on the 17th of September, 1884, he issued a writ for administration and claimed an immediate receiver. On the 24th of September, 1884, he moved for a receiver, and on the 15th of October, 1884, his motion was dismissed with costs. On the 16th of October, 1884, he discontinued the action. The costs of the motion had not been paid. An order for administration was subsequently made in an action by a legatee, and in this action the plaintiff carried in and established a claim for a large sum for arrears of rent. There was evidence to the effect that if the plaintiff had succeeded in his action, the costs of administration would have been largely increased, and he would probably have seized and sold the colliery which formed part of the estate.

Whitehorne, Q.C., Romer, Q.C., and H. Greenwood, for the applicants.

Cecil Russell, for the defendants.

Farwell, for the plaintiff, claimed to set off the costs against his claim for rent.

Curry, J., held that the estate had been preserved by the exertions of the applicants in resisting the motion and defeating the action, and that the applicants were entitled to a charging order on the whole estate. As to the defendant's costs of the motion, they must be paid by the plaintiff to the applicants direct. The plaintiff could not set off costs which he had been ordered to pay to the executors personally against a debt due to him from the testator's estate.

Solicitors' Remuneration Act (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44)—General Order, August, 1882, Schedule I. Part II. rule 5—Lease—Premium.

This was a summons by solicitors to review the taxation of a bill of costs in respect of work done by the applicants for Lord Wallcourt relating to the formation of the Ardree Oyster Fishery Company, Limited, and the negotiation and preparation of a lease to the company by Lord Wallcourt (the tenant for life) of oyster beds and premises at Galway Bay for 21 years. The rent reserved was 80*l.* a year, and the profits accruing on an issue to the lessor or to the proper parties on his behalf of 200 shares in the Ardree Oyster Fishery Company of the nominal value of 10*l.* each, to be issued as paid up in full, and on a further issue of 200 shares of the nominal value of 10*l.* each, to be issued as and when the unpaid portion of 5*l.* per share or any part thereof should be called up upon the partially paid shares of the company, in the proportion of two fully paid shares for each 1*s.* per share called up on the said partially paid shares. The first 200 shares had been allotted to trustees for the inheritance. None of the other 200 shares mentioned in the lease had been allotted. There was no evidence that any share in the company had been sold, or that the shares had any market value. One ground taken by the applicants for reviewing the taxation was that the trustees had refused to allow the applicants to charge a scale fee in respect of negotiating and preparing the lease.

Company—Formalities—Directors—Meeting—Allotment.

This was a summons by three allottees of shares to have their names removed from the register of members of the company on the ground that they had been induced to apply for their shares by misrepresentation, and also on the ground that the shares had been allotted under circumstances of grave irregularity.

Application was invited for 106,000 preference 1*l.* shares. The directors of the company were five in number, Messrs. Duncan, Witt, and Simpson, Dr. O'Connor, and Colonel Halkett, of whom two were a quorum. At a meeting of the company held November 6th, 1886, at which all the directors were present it was resolved that no allotment should be made until 14,000 shares should be applied for. On the morning of December 1st, 1886, Dr. O'Connor and Colonel Halkett were present at the office of the company. They sent notices by letter to Messrs. Simpson and Witt at their respective offices that a board meeting would be held at two o'clock on the same day at the offices of the company. The objects of this meeting were not stated in the letters. Mr. Duncan had gone to America and no notice was sent to him. Mr. Witt was not at his office that day and did not receive his notice till the next day. Mr. Simpson received his notice and sent word that he could not go till three o'clock. Dr. O'Connor and Colonel Halkett proceeded to hold a meeting at two o'clock. They purported to pass resolutions, among others a resolution rescinding the resolution of November 6th above stated, and resolved to allot the shares then applied for, not quite 3000 in number, including 130 applied for by the persons who had taken out this summons, and letters of allotment were sent out the same day.

BRIDGETOWN WATERWORKS COMPANY v. BARBADOS WATER SUPPLY COMPANY.

Practice—Pleading Matter since Writ—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XXIV. r. 3—Confession of Defences—Judgment for Costs.

The plaintiffs, a company incorporated by statute of the Barbados legislature, claimed against the defendants, an English company registered December 6, 1886, an injunction to restrain working in Barbados so as to intercept the plaintiff's water supply. The defendants put in a statement of defence, delivered August, 1887, by which they pleaded statutory authority under the Barbados Water Supply Act, 1886. They delivered under order duly obtained on December 9, 1887, a further statement of defence setting forth as ground of defence that had arisen since the statement of defence, that by a Barbados Act assented to November 30, 1887, it was provided that the said Water Supply Act, 1886, should apply to the defendants as if they had been duly incorporated before the passing of the Water Supply Act, 1886. The plaintiffs delivered a confession of the further defence, and signed judgment for costs. This was a motion by the defendants to set aside the judgment for costs.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and George Henderson, for the motion.
Christopher James, for the plaintiffs.

NORTH, J., set aside the judgment for costs, on terms of the defendants withdrawing the further statement of defence.

Parliamentary Deposit—Lien—Request to pay inferred.

The company in this case had obtained their Act, and there was an application by the representatives of Mr. W. Haynes for payment out of Court of the parliamentary deposit. Mr. Haynes had agreed to find the money, which was to be paid through the Alliance Bank, and the bank had refused to pay the money unless certain expenses were paid to them. Colonel Durnford, the parliamentary agent for the promoters, paid the expenses and the deposit was made.

E. Ford, for the applicants, contended that Colonel Durnford had no lien on the fund.

J. G. Wood, for Colonel Durnford.

KEKEWICH, J., said that unless these expenses had been paid the deposit could not have been made, and under the circumstances he must infer a request by Mr. Haynes to Colonel Durnford. Colonel Durnford was therefore right in making his claim to be paid.

CAPEL & Co. v. SIMS' SHIPS COMPOSITION COMPANY.

Shares—Prospectus—Misrepresentation—Contract not specified.

This was an action against a company and the directors to have the names of the plaintiffs removed from the register of shareholders, and for repayment to them of what they had paid in respect of the shares. The grounds for the action were (with others) misrepresentation in the prospectus, and not specifying a contract.

Rigby, Q.C., and G. Woods, for the plaintiffs.

Warmington, Q.C., Finlay, Q.C., and Channell, Q.C., Sturges, J. B. Little, C. E. Allan, and Pochin, for the defendants.

KEKEWICH, J., after disposing of some of the alleged misrepresentations as insufficient, said that the prospectus stated the purchase-money to be 36,000*l.* But Dr. Sims was the vendor and was to have 80,000*l.*, and a Mr. Evans was to have 6000*l.* as promoter, and the present plaintiff, who was then the broker of Capel & Co., who took the shares, had sworn that he would not if he had known this have recommended the purchase to Capel & Co. Nor was the agreement between Dr. Sims and Mr. Evans specified in the prospectus; it was only verbal, but was still a contract within the meaning of the statute. On both grounds the plaintiffs were entitled to have their names removed from the register and to be repaid what they had paid.

Warranty—Conditions—Return of Horse.

Appeal from Marylebone County Court.

Action for breach of warranty.

On April 20, the plaintiff bought a horse at Aldridge's, warranted quiet to ride, and subject to the following conditions of sale:—"4. Any horse sold at this establishment with a warranty, must, in case the buyer contend that it does not correspond with such warranty, be returned before five o'clock p.m. on the second day after the sale (Sunday excluded), otherwise it shall be deemed and taken to be in all respects as warranted as between all persons, and the non-return within the time limited shall be a bar to any claim on account of any breach of warranty, and the buyer shall be bound to keep and pay for the horse, whether it be or be not according to the warranty.

"5. Should a horse, warranted quiet in harness or to ride, be returned, it shall be tried by an impartial person to be named by the proprietors of this establishment, whose decision shall be final and conclusive upon all persons, and a fee of ten shillings for the trial shall be paid by the party in error."

The horse was taken to Eastbourne, and on the 21st of April was ridden, and it ran away, fell, and broke its shoulder bone. On the 22nd the plaintiff telegraphed to Aldridge's that the horse did not answer the warranty, and was unfit to travel. On the 23rd the horse was still unfit to travel, and ultimately was killed.

The County Court judge found that there was a breach of warranty, and that, under the circumstances, the non-performance of the condition for return of the horse did not bar the action.

Gully, Q.C., and Thomas Terrell, for the defendant, relied on the condition as absolute.

Robert Wallace, for the plaintiff, was not called upon to argue.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Mathew, J.), held that the continued existence of the horse as an animal capable of being used and tried was implied in the stipulation for its return, and that the horse having on the 22nd ceased to exist for all purposes of draught or riding as if it was actually dead, the plaintiff was absolved from the obligation of returning it, and the County Court judge was right.

Appeal dismissed.

HORSHILL v. SWINDON NEW TOWN LOCAL BOARD.

Local Government—Bye-law—Validity—New Houses—Certificate of fitness for habitation—Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), ss. 23, 25, 26, 157, sub. s. 4, 183, 315.

Case stated by justices of Wilts.

The appellant, a builder of houses in a new neighbourhood at Swindon, had been convicted by the justices at the instance of the Swindon New Town Local Board of an offence against a bye-law made by the Board under the Public Health Act, 1875. The bye-law was as follows: "No new house shall be occupied until the house drainage has been made and completed, nor until such house has been certified by the local board, or their officer authorized to give such certificate after examination, to be in every respect fit for human habitation in their or his opinion." Before the justices the appellant did not deny that he had broken the bye-law in respect of a house, one of a row recently built by him, which was occupied, notwithstanding that the officer of the board had refused to grant a certificate of its good drainage, and fitness for habitation; but contended that the bye-law was invalid, as being unreasonable in itself, and inconsistent with the provisions of the Public Health Act, and proposed to adduce evidence to shew, contrary to the opinion of the officer of the board, that the house in question had efficient drainage and was fit for habitation. The justices declined to hear such evidence, held that the bye-law was good, and inflicted a fine for the breach of it. The appeal was against this conviction.

A. Glen, for the appellant.

F. C. Gore, for the respondents.

THE COURT (Cave and A. L. Smith, JJ.) held that the bye-law was not unreasonable, and was not inconsistent with the above-mentioned sections of the Public Health Act, 1875, and affirmed the conviction.

THE COURT (Cave and A. L. THE QUEEN v. ARCHBISHOP OF YORK.

April 25.

Ecclesiastical Law—Convocation—Archbishop as President of Convocation—Mandamus—Jurisdiction of High Court of Justice—Elections to Convocation of York.

Rule calling on the Archbishop of York, as President of the Convocation of York, to shew cause why a mandamus should not issue directing him to admit into Convocation the Rev. Canon Tristram, as a proctor duly elected to represent the clergy of the archdeaconry of Durham in the Lower House.

In the poll for the election of two proctors to represent the clergy of the archdeaconry of Durham in 1886, Canon Tristram was second. He was then a canon residentiary of Durham Cathedral, which is situated within the archdeaconry of Durham, but he had not otherwise a benefice within the archdeaconry of Durham. He was objected to on the ground that his canonry, which qualified him to vote at the election of a representative of the chapter or himself to represent the chapter, was not a benefice within the archdeaconry, and that he was, therefore, not qualified to vote at an election of proctors, or himself to be elected a proctor, for the clergy of the archdeaconry.

The Archbishop of York, as President, held that Canon Tristram was disqualified, and declared a clergyman beneficed within the archdeaconry, who was third in the poll, duly elected.

The only question argued was whether the High Court of Justice had jurisdiction to issue a mandamus to the Archbishop of York as President of the Convocation of his province.

The Archbishop of York in person shewed cause.

Tristram, Q.C., and Jeune, Q.C., in support of the rule.

Cur. adv. vult.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., Pollock, B., and Hawkins, J.), held that a mandamus would not lie, and discharged the rule.

SKINNER v. SKINNER.

April 13.

In a wife's suit for dissolution on the ground of adultery and cruelty, after a decree nisi had been pronounced the Court made an order under the Guardianship of Infants Act (49 & 50 Vict. c. 27, s. 7), declaring the respondent an unfit person to have the guardianship of his children.

The petitioner, the wife, sued for a dissolution of her marriage on the grounds of her husband's cruelty coupled with adultery. The cruelty consisted in the communication of disease on several occasions. The Court found for the wife on all the issues, and pronounced a decree nisi.

B. Deane moved the Court on behalf of the wife to pronounce an order in the terms of the 7th section of the Guardianship of Infants Act of 1886, that the respondent by reason of his misconduct is an unfit person to have the guardianship of his children. The effect of that will be, that in the event of the wife's death the father will not be entitled to take possession of the children.

Evidence having been given that notice of this application had been personally served on the respondent, and as he did not appear to oppose,

THE PRESIDENT made the order as prayed.

BIGWOOD v. BIGWOOD.

April 13.

The desertion which arises under sect. 5 of 47 & 48 Vict. c. 68, from a refusal to obey an order for restitution of conjugal rights, held to be on the same footing as desertion for two years, and to be capable of being coupled with adultery committed either before or after the date of the order.

The parties were married September 23, 1879, and cohabited together at Balham and other places, and there had been three children of the marriage. In 1887 the respondent began to separate himself from his wife, and when she went down to Margate for her health he refused to live with her. On July 15, 1887, she presented a petition praying for restitution of conjugal rights, and a decree was pronounced ordering the respondent to return to cohabitation within fourteen days. A copy of the decree was personally served on the respondent in November 1887, but he had not complied with the order.

On January 7, 1888, the petitioner filed this petition for dissolution on the ground of adultery coupled with desertion to which the respondent filed no answer. The adultery, which occurred at Eastbourne on the 7th and 8th of May, 1887, was proved.

Deane, for the petitioner.

THE PRESIDENT:—I think the petitioner is entitled to the remedy she asks. Section 5 of the Act places desertion which arises out of the neglect to comply with a decree of restitution of conjugal rights on the same footing as desertion for two years, with all its consequences, and may be coupled with adultery committed either before or after the order.

Income Tax—Bank Premises—Income Tax Act (5 & 6 Vict. c. 35), s. 100, Sch. D, Rule 1, Cases 1 & 2.

This was an appeal from the First Division of the Court of Session as the Court of Exchequer in Scotland. The respondents claimed that the entire annual value of their bank premises, including the portion occupied by their bank manager, or agent as a residence, should be deducted from their balanced profits before returning them for assessment; and the Court of Session upheld this view (14 Ct. Sess. Cas. 4th Series, 538). On the other hand, the appellant contended that no amount should be deducted in respect of that portion of the premises belonging to the respondents which was occupied by the bank manager as a dwelling-house, hence this appeal.

Ex parte LEWIS.

Insolvent Debtor—Revesting of Surplus of Estate—Judgment Debt—Interest—1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, ss. 17, 92.

Appeal against an order of Mr. Registrar Giffard. Horatio Claggett, being then in prison for debt, petitioned for Insolvent Debtors Court in January, 1845, and a vesting order was made. Charles Lewis had in February, 1884, recovered judgment against the debtor for 865*l.*, of which 829*l.* remained due at the date of the petition. The judgment debt was entered in the debtor's schedule as admitted. After the death of the debtor in 1880 the assignee in the insolvency, by means of an action in the Chancery Division, recovered a sum of 26,000*l.* on behalf of the estate. It was admitted that there would be a surplus after paying the principal of all the debts in full. The executors of Lewis (who died in 1864) claimed interest at 4 per cent. on the judgment debt from the date of the judgment. The registrar disallowed the claim for interest. The executors appealed.

Sect. 17 of the Act 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, provides that "every judgment debt shall carry interest at 4 per cent. per annum from the time of entering up the judgment . . . until the same shall be satisfied, and such interest may be levied under a writ of execution on such judgment." Sect. 92 provides that, if the Court shall be satisfied that all the debts in respect of which the adjudication was made have been paid and satisfied, the Court may direct the warrant of attorney executed by the insolvent to be cancelled, or, if judgment shall have been entered up, the Court may order satisfaction to be entered up on the judgment; and, if it shall appear that after the debts of the insolvent have been discharged and satisfied, there shall remain any property in the possession of the assignee, the Court may order that such remaining property shall be vested in the insolvent, or his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns.

Muir Mackenzie, for the appellants.

Herbert Reed, for the assignee.

Sidney Woolf, and Ringwood, for the personal representative of the insolvent.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.B., and Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.), held that the claim for interest must be admitted. The effect of sect. 17 was to impose on a judgment debtor a statutory duty to pay interest on the judgment debt, and the interest became a debt due from him. It could be recovered by execution on the judgment, but it could also be recovered by any other legal process. The interest was a debt necessarily attached to the judgment debt, and the entry of that debt in the debtor's schedule included the interest by implication, and the judgment debt would not be "discharged and satisfied" within the meaning of sect. 92 until the interest had been paid, and, until that had been done, the surplus could not be handed back to the debtor's estate.

Ex parte McDERMOTT.

Bankruptcy—Composition—Subsequent Adjudication of Bankruptcy—Relation back of Title of Trustee—Bankruptcy Act, 1869, ss. 6, 11, 94, 126.

Appeal against a decision of Mr. Registrar Hazlitt.

The debtor in August, 1879, filed a liquidation petition under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869. The first meeting of the creditors was repeatedly adjourned, and ultimately, in November, 1883, the creditors resolved to accept a composition payable in instalments, the first of which became due on the 13th of July, 1884. The resolutions were duly registered. On the 12th of July, 1884, the debtor executed a deed, by which he assigned to E. McDermott the proceeds of the surrender of certain policies of assurance, upon trust to make certain specified payments, and to retain the balance in or towards payment of advances made by McDermott on behalf of the debtor. McDermott had notice of the composition proceedings. He received the proceeds of the policies, which amounted to 5765*l.*, and out of them made (in addition to the payments mentioned in the deed) under the direction of the debtor, certain other payments amounting to 2251*l.* None of the instalments of the composition were paid, and in March, 1886, the debtor was, under the power given to the Court by sect. 126 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, adjudged a bankrupt. The trustee in the bankruptcy claimed to recover the 2,251*l.* from McDermott, on the ground that the title of the trustee related back to the act of bankruptcy committed by the debtor in the filing of the petition. The registrar ordered McDermott to pay the 2251*l.* to the trustee.

McDermott appealed.

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., Cooper Willis, Q.C., and F. Cooper Willis, for the appellants.

Sir H. James, Q.C., Winslow, Q.C., and Sidney Woolf, for the trustee.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.B. and Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) held that, in the case of an adjudication of bankruptcy made under the special power conferred by sect. 126, there was no relation back of the title of the trustee. Such an adjudication was independent of the consideration of any act of bankruptcy. The filing of the petition, though it was causa sine qua non of the adjudication, was not the causa causans. If in such a case the title of the trustee related back, composition arrangements would be utterly unworkable, for no one could safely deal with the debtor, and the very object of such arrangements was that the debtor should be master of his property, and be able to deal with it, just as if there had been no petition. The registrar's order must be discharged.

Leave to appeal to the House of Lords was refused.

WILLIAMS v. LONDON CHARTERED BANK OF AUSTRALIA.

Shares—Pledge of Certificates—Blank Indorsement—Brokers—American Law—Defective Title.

Appeals by the plaintiffs from the judgments of Kekewich, J., in these two actions (36 Ch. D. 659).

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., Warmington, Q.C., and D. Sturges, for the appellants.

Rigby, Q.C., Reid, Q.C., and C. James, for the Colonial Bank.

Latham, Q.C., and T. H. Wright, for the Chartered Bank.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.JJ.), considered that the American law only entitled the holder of certificates to obtain registration of the shares in his name if he had a good title to the certificates; that as the transactions as to the certificates took place in England, the question whether the holders of them had a good title to them must be determined by English, and not by American, law; that as the certificates were not negotiable instruments, the broker could not give a better title to them than he had; and that as he only held them for the plaintiffs without any authority to dispose of them, he could not give a title to a purchaser. The judgments were therefore reversed.

Kay, J. WATERMAN v. AYRES. April 20.
Trade-mark—Registration—"Fancy Word"—Foreign Word—"Reversi"—Injunction—Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks
Act, 1883, s. 64.

In 1883 the plaintiff invented a game, somewhat analogous to draughts, which he called "Reversi," and in 1887 he registered it under that name. In November, 1886, the defendant brought out a similar game under the name of "Annex," which the plaintiff asserted was a clear imitation of his. In February last the defendant added to the word "Annex" on his boxes of counters the words "a game of reverses," an alteration which the plaintiff said was made on account of the increasing sales of his, the plaintiff's, game of "Reversi." The plaintiff then brought this action, which now came on upon a motion by him for an interim injunction to restrain the defendant from infringing the plaintiff's registered trade-mark of "Reversi," and from affixing to any game sold by the defendant a label bearing the word "Reverses," or any other colourable imitation of the plaintiff's trade-mark. A motion was also brought on by the defendant under the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, to rectify the register of trade-marks by removing the plaintiff's trade-mark therefrom. The defendant deposed that the plaintiff's game was only a cheap modification of a game previously invented, and ever since 1876 sold by the defendant under the name of "Annexation," and that he used the words "a game of reverses" merely to indicate the nature of the game. In an affidavit in reply the plaintiff said he believed the word "Reversi" was an obsolete French word for a particular game of cards popular in France in the sixteenth century.

The motion to rectify was opened first.

Aston, Q.C., and Sebastian, for the defendant, contended that the word "Reversi" was incapable of registration, as it was merely the name of an article and was not used to designate the plaintiff's manufacture; also because it was nothing more than the English word "Reverses" with a foreign termination, and an English word in common use could not become a "fancy word" within sect. 64 of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883.

Marten, Q.C., and Birrell, for the plaintiff, were not called upon.

KAY, J., said he had no hesitation in holding that this word

"Reversi," which was more like an Italian verb than a French word, might, when applied in England, be a "fancy word not in common use," and might, therefore, come within sect. 64 of the Act: and accordingly it was a word which, if properly applied, might be registered, and that had been done in the present case. As to the objection that the plaintiff's game was only a modification of the game of "Annexation" which he called by the fancy name of "Reversi," and that, the name having been the name of the game ever since 1883, everyone who sold it might call it by that name, there was no evidence that the word had become attached to the game, and that other people had been making and selling the game under that name. On the contrary, the evidence was that down to 1887 no one but the plaintiff so sold and made the game. His Lordship was of opinion that in 1887, "Reversi" was a "fancy word not in common use," and was the trade-mark of the game sold by the plaintiff, and that, therefore, he had a perfect right to register it. Accordingly the motion to rectify must be refused, with costs: and, as the defendant's conduct was a flagrant attempt to pass off his goods as those of the plaintiff, there must be an interim injunction to restrain him from using the word "Reverses," or any other colourable imitation of the word "Reversi."

Club—Committee—Expulsion—Action by Member—Costs—Practice—Parties—Numerous Persons—Suing Defendants on behalf of Class—Refusal of Defendants to represent Class—Summons by Plaintiff—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order
xvi. r. 9.

The plaintiff was a member of the Randolph Churchill Conservative Club, Wanstead Slip, Essex, and the two defendants were the chairman of the committee and the hon. secretary of the club, who was also a member of the committee. By his writ the plaintiff claimed a declaration "that a resolution passed on the 19th January, 1888, purporting to expel him from the Randolph Churchill Conservative Club, was invalid; and an injunction to restrain the defendants, their agents, servants and workmen, from excluding the plaintiff from the said club, and from interfering with him in the enjoyment of the use of the buildings and property of the club." The resolution in question had been passed by the committee of the club, but the writ did not state who the defendants were or in what character they were sued. On the 23rd of April the plaintiff gave notice of motion for an interim injunction, but on the 25th he received a letter from the defendant, the secretary, informing him that the committee had passed a resolution rescinding the previous resolution for his expulsion. On the 21st of April a summons had been taken out by the plaintiff that the defendants might be sued on behalf of all persons who were officers or members of the committee. The motion and summons now came on together. As the resolution for expulsion had been rescinded, the only question remaining in the action was one of costs, and this question his Lordship was asked, by the consent of counsel for both parties, to decide upon the motion for injunction.

Marten, Q.C., and H. Greenwood, for the plaintiff, submitted that, now the defendants had admitted themselves to have been in the wrong, they ought to pay the costs of the action. They also submitted, on the summons, that as the members of the committee proper to be sued were numerous, consisting of about thirty persons, the plaintiff ought to be allowed, under Rules of Court, 1883, Order XVI. r. 9, to sue the defendants on behalf of all those persons, and thus save expense and trouble.

Curtis Price, for the defendant, relied, as a ground for resisting costs, on the plaintiff not having complied with a notice requiring him to attend the meeting at which the resolution for his expulsion was passed and to hear the "charge" against him, though it appeared that the plaintiff had not received any information of what the charge was. He also contended that the Court should not interfere in the internal matters of a club. With regard to the summons, he said the defendants did not wish to represent the committee in the action, and submitted that the Court could not, against their wish, order them to be sued on behalf of the committee.

KAY, J., said it was quite true that the Court did not interfere with the internal matters of a society like a club; but there was a broad exception to that rule, namely, that when those matters were so conducted as to be contrary to every man's notion of what was just, then the Court would interfere, especially in the case of the expulsion of a member. His Lordship then held, upon the facts, that the resolution for the plaintiff's expulsion was improper and unjust. With regard to the summons, it asked, practically, though it was not quite right in form, for an order under Order XVI. r. 9, that the two defendants, of whom one was the chairman and the other a member of the committee, might be authorized to represent the committee. In his Lordship's opinion, that was a reasonable application, and he would therefore make an order authorizing the defendants to defend the action on behalf and for the benefit of all the members of the committee. The defendants (including the persons on whose behalf they were now authorized to defend) must pay the costs of the action.

Real Property Limitation Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 57), ss. 1, 2—
Equitable Mortgage—Reversion—Contingent Interest.

This was a partition action relating to real estate devised by the will of Joseph Hugill who died in 1845. He gave the property in question, after previous life interests, to such of his grandchildren, the children of named children, who should be alive at the death of the survivor of certain named persons, as tenants in common. The last of these persons died in August, 1886. Two of the grandchildren belonging to the class to take, and who survived August, 1886, were John and Joseph Wilkinson. Joseph Wilkinson had signed a receipt for 150*l.* from his brother John Wilkinson, dated Sept. 22, 1870, containing the following words: "and I hereby give him as security the whole of my interest I am entitled to out of the property left by my grandfather, Joseph Hugill."

Joseph Wilkinson was a discharged bankrupt. This was a claim in the action by John Wilkinson to stand as mortgagee of his brother's interest, notwithstanding the lapse of time since the charge, and the fact that no acknowledgment or payment had been made in respect of the debt.

The 12th rule made by the Lord Chancellor under the National Debt (Conversion) Act, 1888, directs (Weekly Notes, April 7, 1888, p. 153), that "where the dividends on any Consols or Reduced Annuities standing in the name of the paymaster . . . are, by any . . . authority to be acted upon by him, directed to be accumulated, the paymaster shall, subject to the consent of the judge to whom the cause or matter is attached, without further order, signify his assent to the exchange thereof for new Consols, unless on or before the 11th day of May, 1888, an order has been lodged with him directing him not to signify such assent."

This was a petition by a person of unsound mind not so found, through her next friend, asking that the dividends upon a sum of Reduced Annuities standing in Court to her credit might be paid to the next friend during the life of the person of unsound mind for her maintenance, benefit and support; and questions arose whether it was necessary that any order should be made directing the paymaster to assent to the exchange of the Reduced Annuities for the new Consols; and whether the 5s. per cent. payable under sect. 10 of the Act ought to be treated as capital or income.

G. Broke Freeman, in support of the petition.

STIRLING, J., made an order in the form of the actual order made in Vane v. Vane (2 Ch. D. 124), as corrected in In re Brandon's Trusts (13 Ch. His Lordship further held that the bonus must be treated as income.

Companies Act, 1862, ss. 26, 27—Judicature Act, 1873, s. 34—Prohibition—Jurisdiction.

Under the Companies Act, 1862, ss. 26 and 27, a company is required, under penalty of a fine of 5*l.* for each day's default, to make an annual list of the members of the company; which list is to state the names, addresses, and occupation of such members, and must contain a summary specifying (amongst other particulars) the amount of the capital of the company, and the number of shares into which such capital is divided; and to forward a copy thereof to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies.

On April 24 the above-named company was summoned before the magistrate at Bow Street Police Court for making default under these sections; and it was alleged in the police court that although the return which had been forwarded to the registrar corresponded with the company's register, the company's register was itself incorrect. The company maintained that the magistrate had no jurisdiction to determine the question of the correctness of their register, and the case was directed to stand over in order to give the company an opportunity of applying to the High Court for a writ of prohibition.

This was an ex parte motion by the company, whose affairs had already been several times before this branch of the Court, for a writ of prohibition in order to restrain the magistrate from proceeding further with the hearing of the summons.

His Lordship accordingly granted a rule nisi for a writ of prohibition, following the form adopted in Jones v. Sles (ubi supra), and fixed May 4th for the hearing of the rule.

DERBON v. COLLIS.

Practice—Administration Action—Claim for Recovery of Land joined without Leave—Time for taking Objection—Rules of Supreme Court 1883, Order LXX. r. 2.

This action as originally commenced only claimed administration of the estate of Rachel Derbon, deceased. The defendant Collis was the surviving trustee of Rachel Derbon's will, and the defendants, Langham and Holmes, were the executors of a deceased trustee against whose estate an account was claimed. The plaintiffs by their amended statement of claim alleged that the defendant Langham was wrongfully in possession of a freehold house, part of Rachel Derbon's estate, and claimed that the same defendant should deliver up possession of the said house. The defendant Langham by his amended statement of defence alleged that he held the house as a yearly tenant under the defendant Collis, and also objected that the plaintiffs were not entitled to maintain the claim for possession against him the leave of the Court not having been obtained to join the several causes of action. This was the trial of the action.

Barber, Q.C., and Fawcus, for the defendant Langham, insisted on the irregularity as fatal to the plaintiff's claim as against him.

Warmington, Q.C., and Nalder, for plaintiffs, contended that it was now too late to take the objection.

Barber, in reply.

KEKEWICH, J., over-ruled the objection. The objection when first raised by the defence was no doubt of some importance but it was the duty of the defendant to come to the Court's once to strike out the irregularity and have the pleadings put in proper form. Here the defendant did nothing, and it was now too late for him, after the action came on for trial, to insist on the irregularity, especially as he was not in any way prejudiced.

Kekewich, J. WHELAN v. PALMER. April 25.
Settlement—Power of jointuring—Corrupt Bargain inducing Appointment—Fraud on Power—Escrow.

Under the will of W. C. Whelan, deceased, H. C. Whelan became entitled as tenant in tail male to certain real estates with remainder (in the events which happened) to the defendant Elizabeth Palmer for life, with remainder to the defendant V. D. Palmer in tail male. The will contained a usual power for every male tenant for life by deed or will to appoint in favour of his wife a yearly rent-charge not exceeding 200*l.*, to be issuing out of the said estates, and to commence from the decease of each tenant for life.

H. C. Whelan died on the 26th of April, 1886, having by deed-poll dated 23rd of April, 1886, and made in pursuance of the aforesaid power, appointed a yearly rent-charge of 200*l.* in favour of his wife, the plaintiff. H. C. Whelan and the plaintiff had lived apart for several years, and the appointment was not made with the view of benefiting her, but with the sole object of securing a position for a Mrs. Thornton, with whom H. C. Whelan was living; and prior to the execution of the appointment the plaintiff entered into a written agreement with H. C. Whelan that in the event of his appointing 200*l.* a year to her she would thereout secure 60*l.* a year to Mrs. Thornton. On the death of H. C. Whelan the plaintiff was advised that the appointment was to the extent of 60*l.* per annum a fraud on the power, and thereupon she refused to secure the 60*l.* per annum to Mrs. Thornton, and brought this action, claiming a declaration that she was entitled under the appointment to a rent-charge of 140*l.* per annum.

Barber, Q.C., and R. J. Parker, for the plaintiff, relied on Sugden on Powers (8th ed. p. 609), and cases there cited.

Warmington, Q.C., and A. Young, for the defendants, the Palmers, contended (1) that the cases cited did not bear out the proposition in the text-book; (2), but if so, the cases were distinguishable from the present, for in them there was an intention to benefit the wife to some extent, and a separate appointment to her. Here there was no intention whatever to benefit the wife, the only object was to benefit Mrs. Thornton; and (3), the appointment was executed as an escrow, not to be handed over until the plaintiff had fulfilled her part of the agreement.

Farwell, for trustees of the settlement.

Barber, in reply.

KEERWICH, J., said that if the case had rested on the first point, he should have felt bound to follow the authority of the cases cited, whatever his own opinion might be. But the question here was, whether the appointment was an honest exercise of the power. The object of the settlor in conferring the power undoubtedly was to enable a tenant for life to provide for a wife. But on the evidence it was clear that the sole purpose and intention with which the appointment was executed was to benefit a stranger, Mrs. Thornton. The plaintiff knew perfectly well that her husband had not the slightest intention of making any appointment for her benefit, and that he used the power of jointuring merely as machinery to secure an annuity for Mrs. Thornton. He never intended to exercise the power at all, unless Mrs. Thornton could be provided for. To hold that as a valid exercise of the power would be to say that the power could be exercised contrary to the intention of the settlor. Further, the evidence established the fact that the deed was executed as an escrow, and was not to be delivered to the plaintiff until she had fulfilled her part of the bargain, which she had declined to do. On those grounds, therefore, the appointment was void altogether, and there must be judgment for the defendants with costs.

Application for a new trial in a case tried before Pollock, B., and a jury at Aylesbury, in which a verdict was found and judgment entered for the defendant.

The action was brought to test whether the public had acquired a right of way over a part of the towing-path attached to the plaintiff company's canal. The part in question is adjacent to a dock and wharf at Aylesbury, which form the terminus of one of the arms of the plaintiffs' system of canals. There was abundant evidence of user by the public, and some evidence of interruptions of the user by the plaintiffs: but the principal contention of the plaintiffs was that under their Act, 33 Geo. 3, c. 80, the material clauses in which were similar to those of the Surrey Canal Company's Act set out in Grand Surrey Canal Company v. Hall (1 Man. & G. 392), the dedication of the towing-path must have been ultra vires, and that the judge should have so ruled.

Case stated on appeal from an order of the Court of Quarter Sessions for Westmoreland confirming an order of justices refusing to renew the licence of an innkeeper. The grounds of the refusal were "remoteness from police supervision and the character and necessities of the neighbourhood" in which the inn was situated.

It was contended before the Court of Quarter Sessions by the appellant, that on the hearing of an application for the renewal of a licence under the 9 Geo. 4, c. 61, and the subsequent Licensing Acts, "the Court is not entitled to inquire into the character and wants of the neighbourhood, or to refuse a grant of licence by way of renewal on such grounds." Criminal Law—48 & 49 Vict. c. 69, s. 4—Indictment for carnally knowing a girl under 18—Unsworn Evidence of Child—Conviction for Indecent Assault under s. 9.

Case stated for the opinion of the Court by Hawkins, J.

The prisoner was indicted under sect. 4 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1885 (48 & 49 Vict. c. 69), for unlawfully and carnally knowing a girl under the age of 13 years, to wit, of the age of 5 years. The child being, in the opinion of the learned judge, incapable of understanding the nature of an oath, gave her evidence without being sworn, as the section permits, and some evidence in corroboration of her statement was also given.

By sect. 9, a jury may on an indictment under s. 4 acquit the prisoner on the charge under that section and find him guilty of an indecent assault.

The jury acquitted the prisoner of the charge under s. 4, but found him guilty of an indecent assault.

Without the girl's evidence the evidence would have been insufficient. The statute does not make unsworn evidence admissible upon a simple indictment for indecent assault. The question was whether the conviction was right.

No counsel appeared.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., Manisty, Hawkins, Mathew, and A. L. Smith, JJ.) held that, although the result of the legislation was anomalous, yet, inasmuch as the unsworn testimony was legally admissible in evidence on the charge under sect. 4, the conviction under sect. 9 was right.

This was an application to condemn the co-respondent in the costs of an unsuccessful intervention by the Queen's Proctor.

The petition, presented by the husband on the ground of his wife's adultery with the co-respondent, was heard and a decree nisi was pronounced May 25, 1887. On November 7 the Queen's Proctor obtained leave to intervene, and filed a plea praying that the decree be rescinded and the petition dismissed on the grounds of connivance and suppression of material facts. The case was heard before Butt, J., without a jury, and his Lordship dismissed the intervention, but refused to condemn the Queen's Proctor in costs.

B. Deane moved to condemn the co-respondent in the costs. These costs come within the 34th section of the Divorce Act, which gives power to order the co-respondent "to pay the whole or any part of the costs of the proceedings." They are on the same footing as the costs of a petition to vary settlements, which the co-respondent has to pay, though he is not represented in the proceedings. He cited Gill v. Gill (33 L. J. (P. & M.) 43).

(lay, for the co-respondent:—It would be unjust to condemn him in the costs of a proceeding over which he had no control, and in which he could not possibly be represented. Sect. 34 of the Divorce Act could not refer to the costs of the Queen's Proctor's intervention, because it was not until 1860 that the Act was passed authorizing the Queen's Proctor to intervene.

JOYNT'S DIVORCE BILL.

May 8.

Service out of the Jurisdiction—Evidence of.

This was a petition of R. W. Joynt, of county Mayo, Ireland, that a duly attested copy of his bill for a divorce may be transmitted by registered letter to D. G. Gillette in New York, and that Mr. Gillette's attendance before this House to prove the personal service of the copy of the bill, etc., on Mr. Joynt's wife there may be dispensed with, and that an affidavit of Mr. Gillette of such personal service sworn under 18 & 19 Vict. c. 42, before the British Consul in New York may be deemed sufficient proof of such service.

Lewis Coward appeared in support of the petition, citing Robotham v. Robotham (27 L. J. (P. & M.) at p. 34).

The prayer of the petition was granted. (Present, Lord Halsbury, L.C., Earl of Selborne, and Lords Watson, FitzGerald, and Macnaghten.)

Solicitor and Client—Auctioneer's Commission—Solicitors' Remuneration Act—Auctioneer paid by Client—Lump Sum.

This was an appeal by the solicitors from an order of Justice Chitty (ante, p. 89).

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., Romer, Q.C., Dauney, and R. S. Wright for the appellants.

Oswald, contra, was not called upon.

THE COURT (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes, L.J.J.), without giving any formal judgment, dismissed the appeal on the ground that the case was not distinguishable from In re Newbould (20 Q.B. 204). The respondents' solicitor, to save the expense of an application to stay proceedings, gave his undertaking to refund the costs payable to him under the order appealed from, in case an appeal to the House of Lords should be successful.

BLOUNT v. LAYARD.

May 1.

Exclusive Right of Fishery—Navigable non-tidal River—Action for Trespass—Defence of "Non-possession"—Evidence of Opposed Fishing by the Public—Question for Jury.

Appeal by the plaintiff against the affirmance by a Divisional Court (Hawkins and Grantham, JJ.) of the refusal of Lord Coleridge, C.J., to enter judgment for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff claimed to be the owner of an exclusive right of fishing in the River Thames at Mapledurham, where it adjoined an estate of which he was the owner. The action was brought in respect of a trespass by the defendant. At the trial the plaintiff gave good prima facie evidence of title by document and otherwise, but the defendant adduced evidence that for many years past the public generally had, whenever they pleased, fished in the main stream of the river at the spot in question with rod and line, without any interruption by the plaintiff or his predecessors in title. Lord Coleridge, C.J., left to the jury the question whether the plaintiff had established his alleged right. The jury disagreed, and were discharged. The plaintiff applied to have judgment entered for him, on the ground that there could not in law be a public right of fishing in such a stream. Lord Coleridge, C.J., refused the application.

Jef, Q.C., Jeune, Q.C., and Stuart Moore, for the plaintiff.

Philbrick, Q.C., and Phelps, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ.) affirmed the decision of the Divisional Court. They said that the evidence that the public had fished in the river without interruption by the plaintiff, though it could not prove the existence of a public right of fishing, might possibly tend to the inference that the plaintiff did not interfere because he knew that the real title was in some one else, and the jury were entitled to take this evidence into consideration in determining whether the plaintiff had established his title. There must be a new trial.

Practice—Appeal—Jurisdiction—"Criminal Cause or Matter"—
Extradition Proceedings—Writ of Habeas Corpus—Judicature
Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 47.

Ex parte motion, made on behalf of Alice Woodhall, by way of appeal from a decision of the Queen's Bench Division.

Alice Woodhall was brought before a metropolitan police magistrate, under the Extradition Act, 1870, as a fugitive criminal, charged with having committed forgery in New York. The magistrate, having before him the evidence appearing on depositions duly taken in New York under s. 14 of the Act, committed her to prison.

An application on her behalf having been made to a Divisional Court for an order nisi for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that the magistrate had declined to hear evidence on her behalf, the Court (Field and Wills, JJ.) refused the application.

Finlay, Q.C. (David with him) now moved for an order nisi in the Court of Appeal.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) dismissed the motion, holding that this was an appeal from a judgment of the High Court in a "criminal cause or matter" within the meaning of s. 47 of the Judicature Act, 1873; and that, under that section no appeal would lie from a decision by way of judicial determination of any question raised in or with regard to proceedings, the subject matter of which was criminal, at whatever stage of the proceedings the question arose.

Highway—Main Road—"Maintenance" of Road—Improvement—
Liability of County Authority—Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 77), s. 13.

Appeal from the judgment of Huddleston, B.

The plaintiffs, who were the highway authority for the highway district of Leek, sued the defendants, the county authority, to recover the sum of 102l. 18s. which they claimed under the 13th section of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, as being the half of certain expenses incurred by them in maintaining a main road. It appeared that the plaintiffs had incurred those expenses in paving the road in question, which had theretofore been a macadamized road, with granite setts. The learned judge held that what the plaintiffs had done to the road could not be considered as "maintenance" of the road within the section, but was in the nature of an improvement; and therefore that the plaintiffs could not recover half the expenses of the paving. He accordingly gave judgment for the defendants.

Bosanquet, Q.C., and J. Rose, for the plaintiffs.

Acland, for the defendants.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) were of opinion that the making of a different sort of road could not be considered as "maintenance" of the road within the section, and that the judgment of the learned judge was right, and they therefore dismissed the appeal.

Appeal dismissed.

Kay, J. MAGNUS v. NATIONAL BANK OF SCOTLAND. May 4.

Practice—Action—Dismissal for want of Prosecution—Consent Order—New Action—Same Cause of Action—Consolidated Order XXIII. r. 13—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Orders XXVI.; LXXII., r. 2.

On May 13, 1885, an action (No. 1) was commenced by the same plaintiffs against the same defendants as in the present action (No. 2), claiming payment of a sum of 4000l. Great Eastern Railway stock, the cause of action being the same as that in Magnus v. Queensland National Bank (36 Ch. D. 25; 37 Ch. D. 466), namely, the frauds of one Bartle Goldsmid, a co-trustee of the plaintiffs.

On the 25th of August, 1885, the plaintiffs informed the defendants that they proposed to abandon action No. 1, and would pay the defendants' costs of it. At that time the plaintiffs had made default in filing their answers to interrogatories by the defendants.

On the 26th of November the defendants issued a summons, returnable on the 7th of December, for dismissal of action No. 1 "for want of prosecution."

On the 4th of December the plaintiffs paid the defendants' costs of that action, and on the 7th of December the plaintiffs' and defendants' solicitors attended before the Chief Clerk upon the said summons, and it was then "by consent ordered that this action do stand dismissed out of this Court as against the applicants, the defendants."

On the 14th of February, 1888, the same plaintiffs commenced the present action (No. 2) against the same defendants, asking for the same relief.

The defendants in action No. 2 now moved for the decision of the preliminary question of law whether the plaintiffs were not estopped from bringing the action by reason of the order of 7th December, 1885, in action No. 1, the relief sought in both actions being the same.

Marten, Q.C., and Farwell, for the defendants.

Renshaw, Q.C., and G. Henderson, for the plaintiffs.

KAY, J., said that if the consent order of the 7th December, 1885, in action No. 1 had proceeded on a compromise of the cause of action, which was the same as the cause of action in No. 2, that would have been an absolute bar to a new action; but no such compromise had been proved, and the order was in fact made upon a summons to dismiss "for want of prosecution," and must therefore be treated simply as an order to dismiss "for want of prosecution." Accordingly, the case was governed by the practice of the old Court of Chancery as laid down in Mitford on Pleading, p. 238, and preserved by Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LXXII, r. 2 (Consolidated Order XXIII. r. 13, having been repealed by the new rules), namely, that "an order dismissing a bill for want of prosecution is not a bar to another bill for the same matter;" though otherwise where the order was for dismissal as upon the hearing, thus dealing with the merits.

His Lordship accordingly made the following order on the motion in action No. 2: "The Court being of opinion that there was no agreement to compromise the cause of action, and therefore that the order made on the summons to dismiss for want of prosecution, although expressed to be an order by consent for dismissal of the action No. 1, is no bar to the present action—dismiss the motion, but without costs."

 STEVENS v. KEILY.

Will—Construction—Contradictory Words in Bequest—"Share and Interest in Business"—"Book Debts"—Gift cum onere.

A testator had carried on business in partnership with his three sons, Warwick, Frederick, and Leicester. In March, 1879, the sons Warwick and Frederick each gave six months' notice to dissolve the partnership. The testator then gave notice of his intention to exercise an option given to him by the deed of partnership to purchase Warwick's share in the business, but he did not give any such notice as to Frederick's share. Before his death the testator had paid a large part of the purchase-money of Warwick's share, and after his death it was decided by Chitty, J., and the Court of Appeal, in an action of Keily v. Stevens, that the testator was, under the provisions of the partnership deed, bound to have purchased Frederick's share also, and that the obligation could be enforced against his estate. By his will, made on the 10th May, 1881, the testator gave all his real and personal estate to trustees, upon certain trusts, and he declared that his trustees should hold "all my estate, share and interest of and in my business carried on by me in partnership with my sons Frederick and Leicester, and of and in the goodwill, stock-in-trade, &c., belonging to or used in such business, together with my share of the book debts (but not including my freehold, copyhold, or leasehold estate, or my share of the book debts) in trust for my son Leicester absolutely." The testator died on the 16th of May, 1881. This was a summons to determine the construction and effect of the bequest.

Rigby, Q.C., Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and R. W. Ingham, for Leicester Stevens.

Cookson-Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and Christopher James, for the plaintiffs.

NORTH, J., held that the bequest comprised the share of the son Frederick, which the testator was bound to purchase, and that the son Leicester did not take that share subject to the obligation of paying the purchase-money to Frederick, but that that purchase-money was payable out of the testator's general estate. His Lordship also held that the latter clause of the bequest must prevail with regard to the "book debts," and that they were excluded from the gift to Leicester; and that the balance at the bankers of the firm, bills receivable by the firm, and bonds of railway companies belonging to the firm, were not "book debts."

Land Registry Office—Caveat by Mortgagee—Notice to Cautioner—Injunction to prevent dealing with Land—Bond of Indemnity—25 & 26 Vict. c. 53, ss. 96, 98, 99, 101, 134.

The owner of land, who was registered in the Land Registry Office with an indefeasible title, executed a mortgage of it in February, 1887, and the mortgagee lodged a caveat with the registrar, as provided by sect. 96 of the above Act. In February, 1888, the mortgagor conveyed the land to a purchaser in fee, without any reference to the mortgage. The purchaser applied for registration, and the registrar, in accordance with sect. 98, sent notice to the mortgagee on the 20th of April, that his caveat would cease to have any effect upon the expiration of twenty-one days, unless an order to the contrary should be made by the Chancery Division. On the 2nd of May the mortgagee took out a summons, addressed to the purchaser and the mortgagor, asking for an order that the caveat might continue in full force and effect, notwithstanding the notice of the 20th of April, and that the mortgagor and all other persons might be restrained from dealing with the property, except subject to the mortgage. This summons could not be made returnable till the 11th of May, on which day the twenty-one days would expire, and the mortgagee, by special leave of the Court, gave a short notice of motion for an order as asked by the summons. The purchaser was served with the notice of motion, but service on the mortgagor could not be effected, because he was in custody on a charge of forgery.

Horace Kent, for the motion.

The respondents did not appear.

NORTH, J., said that the applicant must enter into the bond of indemnity, required by sect. 99 of the Act, before the expiration of the 21 days, the bond being given to the registrar, and upon that being done, the registrar would be ordered to delay the registration of any dealing with the land until four days after an order should have been made on the summons.

Settled Land—Trust for Sale—Direction not to sell for limited Period—Power to apply Income for Maintenance of Infants—“Tenant for Life”—Power of Sale—Settled Land Act, 1882, sect. 58, sub-s. 1 (ix), 59, 63.

Summons to determine whether land could be sold under the powers conferred by the Settled Land Act, 1882.

A testator, by his will made in 1874, devised his real estate to trustees in fee, upon trust for sale, but he directed that his estate at Matfield should not be sold until the expiration of twenty-one years from the date of his will. He declared that real estate should for the purpose of transmission be impressed with the quality of personality from the time of his death, and that the rents of the real estate previously to the conversion thereof should be applied in the same manner as the income of the proceeds of sale. Out of the proceeds of sale the trustees were to pay his debts, funeral and testamentary expenses and legacies, and to invest the surplus, and to pay the income to his wife during her life or widowhood. And, after her death or marriage again, the trust fund was to be held in trust for all his children, or any his child, who, being sons or a son, should have attained or should attain 25, or, being daughters or a daughter, should have attained or should attain that age, or should have married or should marry under that age, and, if more than one, in equal shares. And the testator empowered his trustees to apply the whole, or such part as might be required, of the annual income of the share to which any child might be entitled in expectancy under the trusts for or towards his or her maintenance or education, and he directed his trustees to accumulate the unapplied surplus of such income in augmentation of the share whence such income should have proceeded and eventually to devolve in like manner. The testator's wife died before him. He died in February, 1888, leaving six children—two sons who had attained 21, but were under 25, and three sons and one daughter who were infants. The six children were plaintiffs, the infants suing by their guardian; the trustees were defendants.

Writers Horne, for the plaintiffs.

L. L. Shadwell, for the defendants.

NORTH, J., held that sect. 63 of the Act did not apply to the Matfield estate. By reason of the direction not to sell for twenty-one years, that estate was not now subject to “a trust or direction for sale” within the meaning of sect. 63. The children had not the powers of tenants for life under sub-sect. 1 (ix) of sect. 58, for none of them had yet attained 25, and therefore none of them had acquired an absolute interest. Under the power of maintenance the trustees had a discretion as to the application of the income, and the surplus was to be accumulated, not necessarily for the benefit of the child for whom the income was applied, but possibly for a different person. Nor did sect. 59 apply, for the applicants were only contingently entitled as yet. The Matfield estate could not be sold under the Act.

MASON v. THORNE.

General Power of Appointment by Will—Exercise—Wills Act, 1837, s. 27.

A marriage settlement contained a trust for the benefit of the children or issue of the marriage, or for the benefit of any other person or persons whomsoever, as the husband should, by will, “expressly referring to this power or the subject thereof” appoint, and in default of appointment in trust for the children of the marriage who should attain 21, or marry, in equal shares. The only children who became entitled under the ultimate trust were two daughters, one of whom was married, and the other of whom attained 21, and died intestate and unmarried before her father. The father by his will (not referring to the power), gave the residue of his property to trustees, on trust for the benefit of his married daughter and her children. The question was, whether the will was an exercise of the power of appointment; if it was not, the moiety of the trust fund to which the married daughter was entitled in default of appointment would belong to her husband. This was an originating summons by the married daughter and her children to determine the question.

C. Arnold White, for the plaintiffs.

M. Shearman, for the husband of the daughter.

E. Ford, for the trustees of the settlement.

NORTH, J., held that, notwithstanding what was said in Sugden on Powers (8th ed.), p. 806, the judgments of the Court of Appeal in In re Clark's Estate (14 Ch. D. 422) shewed that the will alone could be looked at to see whether the testator had manifested any “contrary intention,” so as to prevent the will from operating as an exercise of the power of appointment. No such “contrary intention” appeared by the will, and it therefore operated as an exercise of the power.

In re PALATINE ESTATE CHARITY AND CHARITABLE TRUSTS ACTS.

Ancient Charity—Scheme for the Application of the Fund—Portion of the Surplus applied towards the erection of a Spire to the Parish Church.

In the case of Attorney-General v. Love (23 Beav. 499) Lord Romilly settled a scheme for the application of the income of a charity, which accrued from about six acres of land called the Palatine Estate, which had been held from time immemorial by trustees for the parish of St. Mary, Stoke Newington; and, so far as appeared, the income was applicable "for and towards the reparation, ornaments, and other necessary occasions of the parish church of Stoke Newington." By a decree of charitable uses made in 1638, it was directed to be so applied.

In 1857 the net income was about 237*l.*, but buildings having since been erected upon the land it was now more than 800*l.*; and this summons, adjourned into Court, was in reference to the application of the surplus. In January, 1887, a scheme was, on the application of the Attorney-General, directed to be framed for the future management and regulation of the charity, and the disposal of the income. Shortly before 1859, the old parish church of St. Mary having become insufficient for the requirements of the congregation, a new church was erected, principally by subscriptions, and in that year, by a deed executed under the statutes 8 & 9 Vict. c. 70, and 19 & 20 Vict. c. 55, it was substituted for the old parish church, which, however, remained, and was used as a chapel of ease. The charity was transferred to the new parish church, which was designed by the late Sir Gilbert Scott, and was intended by him to have a spire; but, owing to lack of funds, it was not, at the consecration, built. The church had remained incomplete in that respect to the present time. In addition to the new St. Mary's, there had been four district churches erected. In compliance with the order of 1857 a scheme had been framed, and in reference to it questions arose, one being whether any portion of the fund could properly be applied in erecting a spire to the new parish church.

Cecil H. Russell, for the Attorney-General:—The erection of a spire is not within the trust, as it is not an "ornament" in a strictly ecclesiastical sense, nor can it be called a "reparation." A spire cannot be said to be a "necessary occasion." If so, the church would not have been consecrated without it, nor could the services have been conducted. The surplus income beyond what is necessary for the object of the trust, ought to be applied cy-près.

Hastings, Q.C., and Boome, for trustees of the charity, the rector and churchwardens of St. Mary's Church, and three other persons named in the scheme, submitted that the spire was both an "ornament" and a "necessary."

Ingle Joyce, for the vicar and churchwardens of three district churches, and Stuart Moore, for the vicar and churchwardens of St. Matthias.

STIRLING, J., said there was no evidence as to how the property originally came to be devoted to charity. The earliest document was an inquisition in the reign of King Charles I., by which it was found that the churchwardens had "tyme out of minde untill the said twentie-nynth of September, 1623, employed all the rents issues and profits" of the land "for and towards the reparations, ornaments, and other necessarie occasions of the said parish church of Stoke Newington." His Lordship then referred to Attorney-General v. Love (23 Beav. 499), where it was held that the object of the charity was the support of the parish church of St. Mary, and said that under the scheme afterwards framed the surplus rents had been devoted towards the "reparations, ornaments, and other necessary occasions" of the church, and after providing for matters which fell within those terms there was still a large surplus accruing from the increased value of the land. How was it to be applied? In regard to "reparations" the law was very wide. As to "ornaments," he was not sure that confining them to the internal furniture of the church was putting too narrow a construction on the word. Sir B. Pollock more treated ornaments as including decorations. He included a spire, and certainly said that decorations included all architectural decorations. It was not necessary, however, to decide whether a spire came within either "ornaments" or "reparations." But what were "necessary occasions" if they did include such a work as this? It seemed to him that they might fairly include all purposes necessary and proper in order that the building might fulfil the object for which it was erected—parish church; and that church, as designed, was incomplete for it had not a spire—the place in which it was usual to hang the bells, which it had been decided were not mere ornaments but were a necessary part of a complete parish church. He thought he ought not to limit "necessary occasions" to anything less than that, and held that the erection of a spire fell within the original trust.

In re MARQUIS OF DONEGAL.
DIMOND v. PENNINGTON.

Renewable Leaseholds—Right reserved for Lessor to work Mines—Grant in fee under Renewable Leaseholds Conversion Act—Damage caused by working Reserved Minerals—Compensation.

This was a claim brought against the estate of the late Marquis of Donegal by one W. under a lease for lives and covenants for perpetual renewal granted in 1829 by the second Marquis to a predecessor of the claimant, which contained an exception of all quarries of limestone, and a covenant by the lessee that it should be lawful for the persons entitled to the reversion on the demise to bore, search for, dig and carry away the limestone, making or allowing to the lessee, his heirs or assigns, reasonable amends and satisfaction for the damage which should be done to the soil thereby.

The late Marquis, who was not a party to the lease of 1829, succeeded the second Marquis as tenant for life of the Donegal estates in 1844, and since 1874 he had been working limestone on the land comprised in the demise, under the reservation and the power of working contained in the lease.

In June, 1881, the late Marquis, being required by W. to execute to him, under the provisions of the Renewable Leaseholds Conversion Act (12 & 13 Vict. c. 105), a grant in fee simple of the demised premises at a perpetual fee-farm rent, with a grant reserved to the grantor the limestone quarries, which contained covenants by W. that the grantor, his heirs or assigns, might work the limestone, making an allowance to W. and reasonable amends and satisfaction for the damage to the soil thereby. Damages to the soil of the demised premises having been occasioned by the workings of the late Marquis (who died in 1883), the question was whether a claim in respect thereof could be sustained against his estate, and whether such claim constituted a specialty or simple contract debt, and for how long a period it was recoverable.

Hastings, Q.C., and F. Watson, for the plaintiff.

Buckley, Q.C., and Henry Fellows, for the defendant.

STIRLING, J., said that there was no covenant on the part of the late Marquis, but the right to compensation rested on the reservation. There was no obligation on the late Marquis to work the limestone, but if, as was the case, he availed himself of the right to work, then, according to Aspden v. Seddon (1 Ex. D. 496), he was bound to make compensation. The grant of 1881 was a continuing grant, and the obligation to pay compensation a continuing obligation. But it did not constitute a specialty debt, and the remedy was confined to six years, but it extended for the full period of six years, and was not confined to acts done under the lease.

Kekewich, J. WEBB v. JONAS. May 3
Settlement—Power to invest on real Securities—Contributory Mortgage of Freeholds—Breach of Trust.

A settlement contained the usual clause empowering the trustees to invest the trust funds "in their or his names or name" upon (inter alia) real securities.

The trustees invested 1500*l.* on a contributory first mortgage of freeholds. The sum required was 2000*l.* and this was made up of the 1500*l.* and a sum of 500*l.* advanced by the trustees of another trust. At the date of the mortgage the property was valued at 8090*l.* The mortgagor afterwards became insolvent, and the property, by reason of the general depreciation in value of land, was now only worth about 3500*l.* This was an action by beneficiaries to make the surviving trustee and the representatives of a deceased trustee liable for the 1500*l.* on the ground that it was a breach of trust to invest on a contributory mortgage.

Barber, Q.C., and Bardswell, for the plaintiffs.

Warmington, Q.C., and Colt, for the defendants.

Barber, in reply.

KEKEWICH, J., said that there was no doubt that the trustees had acted with the greatest honesty and good faith, but the point that he had to decide was whether they had acted within the scope of their authority. The authority to the trustees here was to invest "in their or in his names or name" in real securities. There was no doubt that they had invested on real securities, and the question turned on the words "in their or his names or name." It was the duty of trustees to keep entire control over the trust fund and the securities which represented it, but if they invested in their names and the name of a stranger they at once lost that sole control over the investment which it was their duty to retain. In the case of a contributory mortgage they did not get the entire legal estate; they could not sell, they could not let, they could not foreclose, they could do nothing, in fact, to realize their security without the concurrence of the other mortgagees. In his Lordship's opinion, therefore, it was clearly a breach of trust for trustees, in the absence of an express power, to invest the trust funds on a contributory mortgage, however good the security might be, and there must be judgment accordingly.

Kekewich J. CHARSLEY v. COAKS. May 8.

Set aside Sale—Fraud—Misrepresentation.

The defendant, I. B. Coaks, had agreed to allow to the plaintiff F. Charsley one twelfth of the life interest of E. K. Harvey about to be purchased by Coaks and others and the subject of the litigation in Borwell v. Coaks (11 App. Cas. 232). Shortly afterwards Charsley sold to Coaks the twelfth share for 500*l.*

Charsley brought this action to have this sale set aside on the ground of misrepresentation by the defendant that the life of E. K. Harvey was uninsurable, which would make the twelfth share of little value.

Cookson-Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and Brabant, for the plaintiff.

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., Rigby, Q.C., and Ingle Joyce for the defendant.

The case depended chiefly on evidence as to what took place at two interviews in July, 1877.

KEKEWICH, J., said that the plaintiff had come into Court to establish fraud by the defendant on which the plaintiff had acted. He had not done so, and the action must be dismissed with costs.

BANKRUPTCY.

Cave, J. In re BOND. April 25.

Bankruptcy—Joint Petition by Persons not Joint Traders—Separate Adjudications and Receiving Orders—Irregularity—Jurisdiction to rescind—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, ss. 8, 104.

In this case a receiving order was made against John Bond and his wife, C. P. Bond, on their joint petition filed in the Birmingham County Court, and the official receiver became the trustee. It then transpired that John Bond and his wife were not partners in trade, but carried on business separately, and that John Bond had no assets whatever. On this, the Registrar rescinded the joint receiving order, and made separate receiving orders and separate adjudications against John Bond and his wife. The Board of Trade objected to the insertion in the London Gazette of two receiving orders against two persons, not partners, and petitioning under one petition; and thereupon a special case was stated for the opinion of the High Court.

Muir Mackenzie, for the official receiver.

CAVE, J., held that the petition was an abuse of the process of the Court, and that, notwithstanding the imperative language of sect. 8 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, the Court had jurisdiction under sect. 104 of the Act to amend the proceedings by rescinding the receiving order and adjudication against John Bond, and striking his name out of the petition, and ordered accordingly.

Bankruptcy—Sale by Trustee of Bankrupt's Freeholds subject to Incumbrance—Solicitors' Commission or Percentage—Bankruptcy Rules, 1886, Part II., Gen. Reg. VII., r. 2—Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, Gen. Ord. Sched. I. pt. 1, r. 9.

On the 1st August, 1886, a receiving order was made against the debtor, Gallard, which was followed by adjudication. The official receiver became trustee, and, pending the appointment of the creditor's trustee, contracted to sell the bankrupt's freehold house for 4750*l.*, subject to a mortgage of 3000*l.* The sale was to be completed on the 6th October, 1886, but was postponed to the 18th of the same month. On the 14th October 1886, the appellant Harris was appointed the creditors' trustee, and completed the sale on the 18th. The sale was carried out by two deeds, viz. a reconveyance by the mortgagee, and a conveyance to the purchaser by the trustee, the mortgages being paid off out of the purchase-money, and the trustee receiving 1750*l.* the balance of the purchase-money. The reconveyance was dated the 6th of October, but was in fact executed on the 18th of October. In taxing the costs of Messrs. Griffiths & Eggar, the solicitors of the official receiver, the registrar of the County Court allowed them a percentage on the whole amount of the purchase-money, 4750*l.*, as solicitors for the vendor.

The trustee appealed.

Sydney Woolf, for the appellant, contended that under the rules and orders the percentage was only payable on the amount received by the trustee for the equity of redemption, viz. on the 1750*l.*

Muir Mackenzie, for the official receiver, argued contra, that the percentage was payable on the whole amount of the purchase-money.

Sydney Woolf, in reply.

CAVE, J., held that on the true effect and construction of the rules and orders, the percentage was payable on the whole amount of the purchase, 4750*l.*, to the solicitors of the vendor. Here the official receiver was the vendor, and Messrs. Griffiths & Eggar, his solicitors, had practically done all the work, and were entitled to the percentage. The appeal must be dismissed with costs.

THE QUEEN v. THE REGISTRAR OF JOINT STOCK COMPANIES.

Mandamus—Alternative Remedy—Registrar of Joint Stock Companies—Filing of Contract—Companies Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 131), s. 25—Stamp Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 97), ss. 18, 19.

A rule nisi had been granted for a mandamus to compel the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies to file a contract dated the 27th of January, 1888, under sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 131).

The publishing firm of Sampson, Low, Marston & Co. arranged to sell their business to a limited company, and to carry out the sale a contract dated the 2nd of January, 1888, was prepared, and was presented to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies to be filed. The Registrar refused to file the contract on the ground that it was insufficiently stamped. An application was then made to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue under s. 18 of the Stamp Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 97) for their opinion as to the sufficiency of the stamp. The Commissioners decided that the stamp was insufficient. A second contract was then drawn up, dated the 27th of January, which a schedule was annexed containing the terms of the contract of the 2nd of January. The Registrar refused to file the document of the 27th of January, unless the document of the 2nd of January was produced to him properly stamped.

R. S. Wright (Sir Richard Webster, A.G., with him), showed cause.

Sir Henry James, Q.C., and Macaskie, in support of the rule.

THE COURT (Field and Wills, JJ.) discharged the rule on the ground that there was an appropriate remedy by taking the opinion of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue as to the sufficiency of the stamp under sect. 18 of the Stamp Act, 1870, and appealing from their decision by special case under sect. 19, and therefore a mandamus ought not to be granted.

Rule discharged.

REG v. OWEN.

April 5.

Criminal Law—Indecent Assault—Evidence of Prisoner—48 & 49 Vict. c. 69 s. 20—Conviction for Common Assault.

Case stated by the deputy chairman of Worcester Quarter Sessions.

The prisoner was indicted for indecently assaulting the prosecutrix, and in a second count for a common assault. All the evidence for the prosecution had been given by the prosecutrix and her husband, the prisoner gave his evidence in his defence and denied any assault, and said that he only put his arm round the waist of the prosecutrix with her consent.

The jury acquitted the prisoner of the indecent assault and found him guilty of the common assault.

Amphlett, for the prosecution.

Harington, for the prisoner, contended that as the evidence of the prisoner was inadmissible on the second count he could not be convicted under it.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., Manisty, Hawkins, Mathew and A. L. Smith, JJ.), held that the prisoner having voluntarily given evidence his admission was evidence against him, as would have been before the Act enabling him to be sworn, and the conviction was right.

OTWAY v. OTWAY AND HOFFER.

Divorce—Cross Petitions by Husband and Wife—Husband and Wife both found guilty of Adultery—Husband found guilty of aggravated Cruelty also—Judicial Separation—Right of Wife to Relief—Costs of Wife.

This was an appeal from a decision of Butt, J. (13 P. D. 13), whereby, after finding upon cross petitions presented by a husband and wife, that both parties had committed adultery, and that the husband had also been guilty of cruelty of such a character that the wife ought not to be left at his mercy, his Lordship granted a decree of judicial separation to the wife, and gave the wife her costs.

Lockwood, Q.C., Scarlett, and Lewis Edmunds, for the husband in support of the appeal.

Bayford, Q.C., and Abinger, for the respondent, the wife.

THE COURT (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes, L.J.J.) held that a wife who had herself been guilty of adultery was not entitled to a decree for judicial separation on the ground of the cruelty of her husband, however aggravated; that the order of Butt, J., must be discharged, and that both petitions for dissolution must be dismissed.

W. W. K.

May 11. This case was mentioned again on the question whether Mrs. Otway, the unsuccessful respondent, ought to have her costs in the Court below and in the Appeal Court.

Abinger (Bayford, Q.C., with him) contended that the fact of Mrs. Otway having been guilty of adultery was no bar to her having her costs, especially as the appeal was not brought by her but by her husband.

Scarlett (Lockwood, Q.C., and Lewis Edmunds, with him) argued that in the Court below the husband had been required to give security for his wife's costs to a certain amount, and she was entitled to nothing beyond that amount; and that as she had been found guilty of adultery she could have no costs of the appeal.

COTTON, L.J., said that the judge at the hearing had discretion to allow the wife her costs, and he had exercised his discretion, and had allowed them. He was of opinion that this discretion ought not to be interfered with. As to the costs of the appeal he had felt some doubt on the ground that she had been found guilty of adultery, but he had come to the conclusion that as she had not brought the appeal herself, but had been brought here by her husband, she ought to have means of properly defending herself. She must therefore have her costs both here and in the Court below.

Inn—Licence—Renewal—Insertion of Condition in Licence—Renewal of Licence subject to Condition originally inserted—Six-day Licence, Renewal of—35 & 36 Vict. c. 94, ss. 42, 49.

Appeal from the decision of a Divisional Court (Mathew and A. L. Smith, JJ.) discharging a rule nisi for a mandamus to compel the justices to renew a six-day licence without inserting in it the condition that the house was to be closed on Sundays.

In 1881 the appellant applied for a licence for the sale of intoxicating liquors to be consumed on the premises, and asked the justices to insert in it a condition under s. 49 of the Licensing Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 94), that the premises should be closed on the whole of Sunday. The licence was granted to him subject to this condition, and was annually renewed as a six-day licence. In 1887 the appellant made two applications to the respondents; first, for the renewal of the licence simply; and, secondly, for a renewal without the insertion of the six-day condition. The justices granted the first application, but refused to entertain the second, and a rule nisi for a mandamus to compel them to hear it was discharged by the Divisional Court.

J. Paterson, for the appellant, contended that as it had been held in Reg. v. Justices of Kirkdale (18 Q. B. D. 248) that the six-day condition provided for by sect. 49 of the Licensing Act, 1872, could only be inserted in a new licence on the request of the applicant himself, the applicant was entitled, on each application for a renewal, to elect whether he would ask for the condition to be inserted or not; that the justices had no power to insert it against his will, and that they must renew the licence as a seven-day licence unless requested by the applicant to insert the condition.

William Wills (Blake Odgers with him), for the respondents.

THE COURT (Lindley and Bowen, L.J.J.) held that the licence was only renewable as a six-day licence, and that if the holder of such a licence desired to omit the condition he must make a substantive application for the ordinary seven-day licence.

Appeal dismissed.

ALLEN'S CASE.

Company—Issue of Shares at a Discount.

This was an appeal from the refusal by Chitty, J., to strike out from the register of the company the name of the appellant, Mr. Allen, as the holder of shares which had been issued by the company at a large discount on the ground that such issue of shares, of the nominal value of 1*l.* (which were credited with 18*s.* paid up), was ultra vires and void. The articles of association of the company adopted table A, schedule 1, of the Companies Act, 1862, and also authorized the company to reduce its capital in the manner allowed by the Companies Acts 1867 and 1877, and to accept surrender of shares, but contained a provision that no part of the company's assets should be employed in the purchase of the company's own shares. In July, 1887, resolutions were passed for the increase of the capital from 210,000 shares of 1*l.* each to 420,000 shares of 1*l.*, such additional shares being credited with 18*s.* paid up. The new shares were offered to the shareholders in the proportion of one for each old share held, and an agreement was subsequently registered containing in a schedule the names of the applicants for the shares. The question raised in the case was whether the issue of shares at a discount was valid under the provisions of the Companies Acts 1862 and 1867. Chitty, J., decided that such issue was valid in In re Ince Hall Rolling Mills Company (23 Ch. Div. 545, n.), but that decision was not approved of in In re Adlestons Linoleum Company (37 Ch. D. 191, 205).

Chitty, J., having dismissed the application in the present case, Mr. Allen appealed.

Buckley, Q.C., and Grosvenor Woods, for the appellant.

Beale, Q.C., and Chadwyck Healey, for the company.

Cotton, L.J., said that he was of opinion on the construction of the Acts of 1862 and 1867 that the issue of shares at a discount was ultra vires and void. The appeal must therefore be allowed, and the name of the appellant be removed from the list in respect of the new shares, and the money paid by him in respect of them must be returned.

Fry, L.J., was of the same opinion. Nothing but payment would extinguish the liability of a shareholder in respect of the shares; and no release by the company, or, as in this case, acceptance of a smaller sum in lieu of the full amount, could have that effect.

Lorres, L.J., agreed. Every limited company was required to state in its memorandum of association the amount of capital with which it was proposed to be registered, divided into shares of a certain fixed amount. This requirement was not idle or objectless. The amount of the shares was to be the real sum to be paid either in cash or, subject to the restrictions of sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1862, in what the company had contracted to accept as of that cash value. The issue of shares at a discount would reduce this requirement to an empty form.

Trustee Act, 1850, ss. 3 & 5—Appointment of New Trustees in Place of Lunatic and Person out of Jurisdiction—Subsequent Vesting Order as to Mortgage and Stock.

This was a petition entitled in Lunacy and in the Chancery Division, presented by the two trustees of, and all the beneficiaries under a settlement dated in 1843, and praying for an order reappointing the two trustees as trustees of the settlement and vesting in them the property subject to the trusts thereof. The two trustees who were co-petitioners had been appointed in April last trustees of the settlement under a power therein contained in the place of the two surviving trustees thereof, of whom one was a lunatic, and the other resident out of the jurisdiction. The committee of the lunatic trustee was a co-petitioner. The property subject to the settlement comprised a sum of money lent upon a mortgage of freeholds vested in the said two surviving trustees, and a sum of consols standing in their names.

P. S. Stokes, in support of the petition:—Where any person is entitled jointly with a lunatic to any stock or chose in action upon any trust the Court has, under sect. 5 of the Trustee Act, 1850, power to vest such stock and chose in action either in the person so jointly entitled or in such last-mentioned person together with any other person or persons; but the Act does not empower the Court to vest stock or a chose in action directly in new trustees in a case where such stock or chose in action is vested in a lunatic jointly with another person. I submit, however, that the difficulty can be got over by vesting the stock and chose in action in the first instance in the trustee out of the jurisdiction.

THE COURT (Cotton and Fry, L.J.J.) declined to re-appoint the new trustees, but made the following order: Vest the lands subject to the mortgage in the new trustees under sect. 3 of the Trustee Act, 1850; under sect. 5 vest the mortgage debt and the right to call for a transfer of the consols in the trustee of sound mind who is resident out of the jurisdiction; and it appearing that he is out of the jurisdiction vest the mortgage debt and the right to call for a transfer of the consols in the new trustees.

Company—Winding-up—Surplus Assets—Preference Shareholders—Net Profits.

This was an appeal from an order of North, J., made in the voluntary winding-up of the above-mentioned company directing that the surplus assets after payment of all debts and liabilities should be divided between the preference and ordinary shareholders, in proportion to the amounts paid up on their shares. The undertaking had been purchased by the Manchester Ship Canal Company for 1,710,000*l.* Out of that amount the paid-up capital had been repaid to the shareholders of the Bridgewater Navigation Company, and a surplus of 850,000*l.* remained. The preference shareholders had paid up the full amount, 10*l.*, on their shares; but the ordinary shareholders had paid up only 3*l.* 10*s.*, leaving 6*l.* 10*s.* still uncalled.

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Clare, for the ordinary shareholders who appealed, contended that the preference shareholders were entitled to nothing beyond the five per cent dividends for which they had bargained; or that if the Court should hold that they were entitled to a share of the surplus, the ordinary rule in winding up companies ought to be followed, and that 6*l.* 10*s.* ought to be repaid to the preference shareholders on each of their shares, so as to put them on a level with the ordinary shareholders, and then all the surplus ought to be divided between all the shareholders according to the number of shares held by them.

Rigby, Q.C. Buckley, Q.C. and Swinfen Eady, for the preference shareholders, supported the order of the Court below.

Napier Higgins, Q.C. and Sampson, for the liquidators.

Corroon, L.J., said that after consideration of the articles of association and the resolution for issuing preference shares it appeared clear that the preference only applied to the dividends payable out of the yearly profits of the company, and that except as to those profits the ordinary and preference shares were all on the same footing. Therefore in the division of the surplus assets the preference shareholders were entitled to share with the ordinary shareholders. With respect to the other question, in what proportion the assets should be divided, he was of opinion that the principle apparent in the articles was that the shareholders should receive benefit in proportion to the amount paid up on their shares, and he was of opinion that the same principle should be acted upon in the distribution of the surplus assets. The appeal must therefore be dismissed.

Fry and Lopes, L.J.J., gave judgment to the same effect.

Their Lordships stated their adherence to the definition of "fancy word" in the judgments in Van Duzer's Trade-mark (34 Ch. D. 623), and held that this did not come within them; and Fry, L. Practice—Partition Action—Form of Judgment—Evidence of Title at Hearing—Sale out of Court.

This was an action for the partition and sale of real estate. On the action coming on for hearing as a short cause, Quin, for the plaintiffs, asked for the usual judgment directing an inquiry as to the persons interested, and whether they were parties to the action, and if it should be certified that all persons interested were parties, then directing a sale.

Ingle Joyce, Daw, and Alfred Smith, for the defendants.

KAY, J., said that in these cases the shortest and least expensive way was to prove the title in Court in the first instance. Strict evidence was not necessary, but it would be sufficient if there was an affidavit by a competent person. The case might be brought on again when such an affidavit had been procured.

May 12. The action was again in the paper of short causes, and upon its coming on for hearing an affidavit by one of the plaintiffs, shewing that all persons interested were parties to the action, was produced.

KAY, J., said that the Court being satisfied that all parties interested were parties to the action, and desired a sale, there would be an order for sale out of Court with the usual directions as to fixing the reserved price, and the auctioneer's remuneration, and as to payment of the deposit and the rest of the purchase-money into Court. The plaintiff delivered a statement of claim by which it was alleged that "by an agreement in writing, dated the 10th of August, 1887, and made between the plaintiff of the one part, and the defendant of the other part (to which agreement the plaintiff craves leave to refer), the defendant agreed to purchase from the plaintiff certain hereditaments situate in the parish of St. Peter the Great, otherwise Sub-

The action came on for hearing as a short cause in default of defence.

E. P. Hewitt, for the plaintiff.

KAY, J., said that he could not give judgment, in default of defence, for specific performance, as the property was not described sufficiently in the statement of claim. There had been a difference of opinion among the judges, but at a meeting the majority of the judges had decided that in such cases the Court could not look at the agreement or receive any evidence, but must give judgment according to the pleadings alone. The statement of claim must be amended by making it contain a more specific description of the property, and must be served afresh. The case was accordingly adjourned for that purpose.

Trust—Employment of Solicitors by Trustee—Payment of Costs out of Trust Estate—Breach of Trust—Application for Relief—Refusal by the Solicitors refused with Costs.

Adjourned summons. The testator in the action, who died in 1882, by his will appointed three executors and trustees. They were to sell the estate, and after payment of legacies, to divide the residue equally between G. B. (an executor) and J. B.'s children. G. B. had liberty to take over the testator's business at a valuation, and if he did not do so it was to be sold. There was no power to carry it on. G. B. alone proved the will. He employed a firm of solicitors. He did not exercise the option given him, but he took a roundabout course of "getting the business into his own hands by going through the farce of a sale by auction to a nominee of his own, from whom he took it over—a device which a man need not be a lawyer to understand was not an honest thing to do." That was stated by Mr. Justice Kay when the case was before him. The solicitors advised G. B. that he could not purchase without the leave of the Court; and he acted contrary to their advice in attempting to do so. The solicitors transacted a considerable amount of business for G. B. in connection with the estate, which was of large value, and he paid them sums of money on account of their costs. G. B. had been guilty of a breach of trust.

This was an application on behalf of creditors who had the conduct of the action, that the solicitors might be ordered to pay into Court the sums received by them from G. B.

W. F. Robinson, Q.C., and E. Ford, for the summons.

Buckley, Q.C., and Levett, for the solicitors.

STIRLING, J., said in the course of their employment the solicitors required to be paid certain costs which the trustee paid them. The proposition that solicitors could not retain such payments except upon the terms that, if the trustee should turn out to be a defaulter, an order might be made against them to refund the moneys, was a very serious one, and must be extended to auctioneers and stockbrokers, who deducted their charges for the business done. A trustee who employed a solicitor or other agent to help him in the execution of the trusts was personally liable to such agent, and was entitled to be indemnified out of the trust estate—he had a right of resorting to the estate in order to pay any person properly employed by him: Barnes v. Addy (Law Rep. 9 Ch. 244.) It could not be said that the right of solicitors to receive their costs was affected by the subsequent conduct of the trustee. The case of Stanier v. Evans (34 Ch. D. 470) was quite a different case, and was not a decision that, in every case in which solicitors to a trustee received payments out of the estate, they would stand in no better position than the trustee himself. Speyer v. Hart, decided by the Court of Appeal, was a direct authority that solicitors could not be made liable as constructive trustees unless they could be brought within the doctrine of the Court with reference to strangers who were not themselves trustees, but were liable to account. Solicitors dealing with a trustee and having no notice of any breach of trust were clearly entitled to accept payments from him. In order to prevent solicitors from accepting payment out of a trust estate, knowledge must be brought home to them first at the time they accepted the payments the trustee had been guilty of such a breach of trust as to preclude him from resorting to the estate for payment of costs. On the facts of the case he could not come to the conclusion that the solicitors were parties to any fraud, or joined in any breach of trust. There was not sufficient to render them liable as constructive trustees. The application failed, and the costs must follow the result.

Companies Act, 1862, ss. 26, 27—Annual List of Members and Summary—Default in forwarding—Summons before Magistrate—Jurisdiction—Writ of Prohibition.

Sections 26 and 27 of the Companies Act, 1862, require that every company shall annually forward to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies a list of all the members of the company, with a summary specifying the amount of the capital of the company, with the shares into which it is divided. On April 17, a summons was issued from Bow Street Police Station requiring this company to appear to answer an information alleging that the company had made default under these sections in forwarding the list and summary thereby required.

When the summons came on before the magistrate, counsel for the company took the preliminary objection that a list and summary had been duly made and forwarded, which were in accordance with the existing register of the company, and that as such register was conclusive until rectification, the magistrate had no jurisdiction to enter into the question whether such list and summary were correct or not. The magistrate was of opinion that he had jurisdiction to hear the summons, but adjourned the further hearing to enable the company to obtain the opinion of the High Court. An application for a writ of prohibition to restrain the magistrate from proceeding further with the summons was accordingly made to this branch of the Court and the judge on April 26 granted a rule nisi.

Cause was shewn against this rule on May 5, when his Lordship reserved judgment.

Hastings, Q.C., and H. Courthope-Munroe, for the company.

Alexander Young, for the applicant, was not called upon.

May 9. STIRLING, J., now held (1), that a company does not comply with the provisions of sect. 26 unless the list of members and summary are substantially in accordance with fact, and, consequently that the magistrate had jurisdiction to inquire into the truth or falsehood of the statements contained in the list and summary; (2), that although, in his Lordship's opinion, it was not intended that nice questions as to the title to shares and the right to be on the register should be summarily disposed of by a police magistrate in the absence of the parties interested, there being no evidence that the magistrate had decided to enter into any such question, he was not precluded from hearing evidence upon the complaint before him merely by the circumstance that the list and summary were in accordance with the register.

The order nisi was accordingly discharged with costs, to be paid by the company.

Novel, "Little Lord Fauntleroy"—Copyright, Infringement of—5 & 6 Vict. c. 45 ss. 2, 3—Dramatization of Novel—Injunction.

An action by the proprietors of copyright in a novel, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," for an injunction to restrain the defendant from an infringement of the copyright. The defendant had dramatized the novel, and caused his play to be performed on the stage. Of that the plaintiffs did not complain. The alleged infringement consisted in this: that for the purpose of producing the play the defendant had made four copies of it either in manuscript or by the aid of a type-writer. One of the copies had been deposited with the Lord Chamberlain, and the other three remained in the possession of the defendant, or of the persons employed by him in the representation of the piece. It was admitted that the defendant claimed the right to make further copies if they should be necessary for representations of the piece. Taking the first act, out of 627 lines in the play about one fourth were taken from the novel.

Hastings, Q.C., and E. F. Studd, for the plaintiffs.

Buckley, Q.C., and Lewis Coward, for the defendant.

STIRLING, J., said it was not disputed that the plaintiffs' title depended upon the statute, the 5 & 6 Vict. c. 45. Sect. 2 defined copyright to be "the sole and exclusive liberty of printing or otherwise multiplying copies of any subject to which the said word is herein applied," and "book" was to be construed to mean and include "every volume, part or division of a volume;" and sect. 3 enacted that copyright in every book should be the property of the author and his assigns. After referring to the authorities, including Tinsley v. Lacy (1 H. & M. 747), his Lordship said that in the present case he was of opinion that if the defendant had caused his play to be printed and published there would have been as substantial an infringement of the plaintiffs' rights as occurred in Tinsley v. Lacy. He thought that what had been done, and was intended to be done, by the defendant constituted an infringement of the plaintiffs' legal rights no less than if the defendant had printed and published his play; and, notwithstanding the smallness of the damage, he considered himself bound by the authority of Tinsley v. Lacy to grant a perpetual injunction to restrain the defendant from printing or otherwise multiplying copies of his play, containing any passages copied, taken, or colourably altered from the plaintiffs' book, so as to infringe the plaintiffs' copyright in the novel or tale entitled "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The plaintiffs further insisted on an order directing the delivery up for cancellation of the existing copies of the play; and they relied on the decision in Hole v. Bradbury (12 Ch. D. 886). In that case the whole of the work complained of was an infringement of the plaintiffs' rights. In the present case, however, upon an examination of the play, he had come to the conclusion that it might not be impossible for the defendant to sever the passages which he had extracted from the novel, from the rest of his work: and if he desired it he would give him an opportunity of doing so. He must, however, first state upon oath what copies of the work existed; secondly, extract from those copies which were in his possession or power, and deliver up to the plaintiffs for cancellation, all passages copied, taken, or colourably imitated from the plaintiffs' book; thirdly, produce to the plaintiffs, if required by them, for examination the copies after the pirated passages have been extracted, and there must be liberty for the plaintiffs to apply for a further order if they were dissatisfied with the result. He introduced the last words purposely because, as was pointed out in the course of the arguments, there was a possible mode by which, without infringing the plaintiffs' copyright, the defendant might be able to make copies of the play. The costs of the action must be paid by the defendant.

Bankruptcy—Trustee appointed by Creditors—Objection by Board of Trade to Appointment—Report to the High Court—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 21.

On the 1st of October, 1887, the debtor executed an assignment of all his property to J. Jenkins upon trust for the benefit of his creditors. On the 6th of January, 1888, a receiving order was made against the debtor on a creditor's petition presented in the previous December, the act of bankruptcy being the execution of the trust deed; and on the 21st of January the debtor was adjudicated bankrupt.

On the 11th of January the official receiver requested J. Jenkins to furnish an account of his receipts and payments under the trust deed, and to pay over the admitted balance into his hands. This he did. The official receiver, however, required further accounts, and the payment of some further small sums, but J. Jenkins did not comply with this request, and stated that he had furnished all such accounts as he was advised, he was legally liable to render.

On the 11th of February, J. Jenkins was duly appointed trustee of the creditors in the bankruptcy, and his appointment was reported, in due course, to the Board of Trade, who objected to it on the ground that under the trust deed he was an accounting party to the estate, and that his connection with the bankrupt and the estate was such as to render it difficult for him to act with impartiality in the interests of the creditors generally. The creditors required the Board of Trade to notify their objection to the High Court, and thereupon the Board embodied the facts and their objection in a report which was brought on to be heard.

Sir E. Clarke, S.G., and Muir Mackenzie, for the Board of Trade.

H. Reed, for Jenkins.

CAVE, J., held, upon the facts that the objection of the Board of Trade was well grounded and must be sustained. The trust deed was an act of bankruptcy; and Mr. Jenkins, instead of waiting the statutory period of three months to see if it could be impugned, had at once proceeded under it to deal with the debtor's estate as if no act of bankruptcy had been committed, and thus had raised divers questions between himself and the estate which would have to be decided, and by so doing he placed himself in a position in which his duty would conflict with his interests. He would have to decide between his c interests and the claims of creditors, and it would be very difficult for him to act with impartiality. The object of the statute was to avoid any such mischief in the outset, and to enable the Board of Trade to object to the appointment where the circumstances made it difficult for the trustee to act with impartiality. In the two or three questions that had already occurred between Mr. Jenkins and the Board of Trade his Lordship was not satisfied that Mr. Jenkins had acted with strict impartiality, and there was therefore good ground for the objection taken by the Board of Trade.

By deed dated 23th January, 1884, F. W. Willis demised by way of mortgage to the Baroness D'Eresby, the premises known as "Willis Rooms," King Street, St. James, for the residue of a term of years created by certain indentures, to secure the repayment of 20,000*l.* then advanced by her to him. The interest was payable half-yearly at Lady Day and Michaelmas at the rate of 5*l.* per cent. per annum. And by the same deed F. W. Willis attorned tenant to the Baroness D'Eresby of the same premises from quarter to quarter at the yearly rent of 2000*l.*, payable by equal quarterly payments; and all money received by the Baroness for rent due under the attornment was to be accepted in satisfaction of interest. On the 7th November, 1885, the Baroness distrained for 1485*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*, being the amount of interest in arrear, and the distress realised 1715*l.* 17*s.* On the 20th November, 1885, a receiving order was made against F. W. Willis, and adjudication followed, and Kennedy was appointed the trustee. This was a motion by the trustee against the Baroness claiming payment of the 1715*l.* 10*s.* on the ground that the attornment clause was a bill of sale within sect. 6 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878; and, not being registered, was void as against him.

E. C. Willis, Q.C., and Houghton, for the trustee.

French, Q.C., and B. O. Lane, for the Baroness D'Eresby.

E. C. Willis, in reply.

Cave, J., held the clause in question was a bill of sale within the meaning of s. 6 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878. It was, however, further contended by the respondent that, if it were so, it was within the proviso at the end of that section which enacted that nothing in the section should extend to any mortgage of any estate or interest in any hereditament which the mortgagee being in possession should have demised to the mortgagor at a reasonable rent. But his Lordship was of opinion that the proviso only applied to a case where the mortgagee had taken actual possession under his mortgage, and had subsequently demised to the mortgagor, and not to a case where there had been no actual taking of possession, and the demise had been created by the mortgage deed itself. If the respondent's contention was correct the creditors might see all the chattels on the mortgagor's premises swept away by the mortgage, although nothing had taken place which could lead them to suspect that he had given any one the power of seizing them to the exclusion of the other creditors. The trustee was therefore entitled to the order for which he asked.

Practice—Defendant Foreigner residing out of Jurisdiction—Service of Writ on Defendant—Nullity—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order xl., rr. 1, 6; Order lxx. r. 2.

Summons to set aside the judgment obtained in the action, referred from chambers to the Court.

In September, 1887, the plaintiffs issued a specially indorsed writ for service out of the jurisdiction for the balance of an account for goods sold and delivered. The defendant resided at Bordeaux, in France, and the plaintiffs obtained leave from Kekewich, J., to serve the writ upon the defendant there upon an affidavit stating that the defendant, though resident abroad, was a British subject. The writ was served upon the defendant at Bordeaux on the 24th December, 1887, and no appearance being entered on his behalf the plaintiffs on January 7, 1888, signed judgment against him. Proceedings upon the judgment having been taken by the plaintiffs in the French Courts, the defendant applied to set aside the judgment and all proceedings upon it upon the ground that the service was a nullity, he being a French subject. At the hearing before the Master it was admitted by the plaintiffs that the defendant was not a British subject. The Master dismissed the application, and the defendant appealed to the judge, who referred the matter to the Court.

Stephen Lynch, for the appellants.

H. D. Greene, Q.C., for the plaintiffs.

THE COURT (Field and Wills, JJ.) held that, inasmuch as Ord. xl., r. 6, provided that in cases where the defendant was neither a British subject nor in British dominions, notice of the writ, and not the writ itself, should be served upon him, the service was a nullity, and not a mere irregularity capable of being cured under Ord. lxx. r. 2, and set aside the service and the judgment.

Bankruptcy—County Court—Jurisdiction of Judge to review Order of Registrar—Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 104.

Appeal from the order of a county court judge by which the names of different creditors were substituted for those of the petitioning creditors in a bankruptcy petition that had previously been dismissed by the registrar. The bankrupt had executed a deed of assignment for the benefit of his creditors on the 7th July, 1887, which was assented to by all but two of his creditors, Messrs. Walker & Hall, who issued a writ for the amount of their debt, and obtained judgment and issued execution. On the 17th September Messrs. Beckett, the largest of the assenting creditors, filed a petition against Maugham—the latter being an invalid and unable to transact business himself; on the 11th October this petition was dismissed by the registrar on the ground that the petitioning creditors had assented to a scheme of arrangement. On December 5 a motion was made to the county court judge on behalf of Messrs. Walker & Hall, asking for an order under sect. 107 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, rescinding or varying the order of October 11, and substituting Messrs. Walker & Hall as petitioning creditors for Messrs. Beckett; and on January 7, 1888, the judge made an order in the terms of that motion. The debtor and the creditors other than Messrs. Walker & Hall, appealed.

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., and Yates Lee, for the appellants.

Herbert Reed, for the respondents.

THE COURT (Cave and A. L. Smith, JJ.) held that, there being no appeal expressly given by statute from the registrar's order, the judge had no power to review or rescind that order; that the jurisdiction given by sect. 104 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, to the Court to review, rescind, or vary its orders was given only to the Court by which the order was originally made; that the registrar was the Court by which the petition was dismissed, and the judge therefore could not review his order.

Appeal allowed.

This was an action brought by a firm of dressmakers against husband and wife to recover 168*l.*, the price of goods supplied to the wife before marriage. On the plaintiff applying for judgment under Order xiv., the husband was allowed to defend unconditionally. As regards the wife, there was no proof that she possessed separate estate, and the master on this ground refused to allow summary judgment to be signed against her. The plaintiff appealed to the judge at chambers, who referred the matter to the Court.

E. Moten, for the plaintiff.

McCall, for the defendants.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Mathew, J.) held that the plaintiff was not bound to prove as a condition of obtaining judgment against the wife that she possessed separate estate, and ordered judgment to be signed in the form settled by the Court of Appeal in Scott v. Morley (20 Q. B. D. 132).

Appeal from an order rescinding an order made ex parte, by which the plaintiff had been admitted to proceed as a pauper.

The plaintiff, who was appealing against the order of Manisty and Hawkins, JJ. (reported 20 Q. B. THE COURT (Cave and A. L. Practice—County Court—Power to remit Action—County Court Act, 1856 (19 & 20 Vict. c. 108), s. 26.

Appeal from an order of Denman, J., at chambers, confirming an order of the district registrar at Newcastle-on-Tyne, remitting the cause to the Newcastle-on-Tyne County Court for trial.

The action was brought to recover 66*l.* money had and received. The plaintiff had judgment under Order xiv. for 2*l.*, and the defendant paid the plaintiff that sum. The registrar then, at the instance of the plaintiff treated the claim as "reduced to a sum not exceeding 50*l.*" within the meaning of the County Courts Act, 1856 (19 & 20 Vict. c. 108), s. 26, "by payment, payment into Court, an admitted set-off, or otherwise," and made the order appealed from. In support of the appeal reliance was placed on Foster v. Usherwood (in the Ct of Appeal) (3 Ex. D. 1) approving Osborne v. Homburg (1 Ex. D. 48) decisions on the County Court Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 42) s. 7.

Newson, for the plaintiff.

Vindal Atkinson, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Mathew, J.) pointed out that the objects and phraseology of the two Acts differed held that under Order xiv. payment was ejusdem generis with the terms of the Act, and dismissed the appeal.

WERNER'S CASE.

Company—Rectification of Register—Companies Act, 1862, s. 35—Jurisdiction

A. deposited with B., a broker, together with other securities, certificates for fully paid-up shares in the X. Company, and executed a blank transfer of the shares for which B. signed a receipt, stating that the shares had been received as security for balance due, but that B. would not realise without A.'s sanction. A. by letter authorized B. to sell the X. shares at a certain price, but subsequently wrote that his securities in B.'s hands would be sold by another broker, though requesting him to sell certain other shares.

B. sold to C. the X. shares at a price above the limit fixed by A., and filled up the blank transfers with C.'s name. The company, in consequence of notice from A., refused to register the transfer.

On appeal by A. from an order made by North, J., on motion by C. under the Companies Act, 1862, s. 35, for rectification of the register of shares of the company by entering the name of C. as a member of the company, in respect of the shares included in the transfer, in the place of A.

Held (affirming North J.), that sect. 35 gave an unlimited jurisdiction as to the rectification of the register, though with a discretion in the Court in the circumstances of each case; and that in this case, the X. shares having been deposited with B. as equitable mortgagees with authority to sell, the jurisdiction had been rightly exercised by placing C. on the register in respect of the shares.

Patent—Practice—Infringement—Dismissal of Action—Validity of Patent—Declaration of Infringement—Costs—Success by Defendants.

This was a patent action which had come on for trial and been dismissed with costs. In delivering judgment his Lordship held, as a matter of law, that the plaintiffs' patent was invalid, but expressed his opinion that "if the patent was valid," there had been an infringement. The defendants were two partners; but after the action had been commenced, and before trial, the partnership was dissolved, and the defendants severed and appeared by separate solicitors, though only one appeared at the trial by counsel, the other appearing in person and availing himself of the defence of his co-defendant.

Questions having arisen before the registrar as to the form in which the judgment should be drawn up, the plaintiffs moved to vary the minutes by inserting a declaration that the defendants had infringed the plaintiffs' patent (see Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Levinstein (29 Ch. D. 366, 419)); and by directing that the defendants should only have one set of costs.

Sir R. Webster, A.G., Aston, Q.C., and J. Ouller, for the plaintiffs.

Fillan, and H. J. Broun, for one of the defendants.

KAY, J., said he intended to give the defendants all their costs, and that whatever expense had been occasioned to them by the action the plaintiffs should pay. As to the other point he was asked that, although he had found, as a fact, that the patent was invalid, a declaration should be inserted in the judgment that the defendants had infringed it. How was possible to infringe a patent which was bad? He did not, at the trial, make any distinct finding that there had been an infringement. All he said was that, "If the patent was valid," there had been an infringement. The motion must be dismissed with costs.

Kirring, J. MUNICIPAL PERMANENT INVESTMENT BUILDING SOCIETY v. RICHARDS AND OTHERS. May 17.

Building Society's Rules—Dispute between Society and Member in a Fiduciary Position—Action or Arbitration—Action not stayed.

The society was registered under the Building Societies Act, 1874, and the subsequent Acts amending it. The defendants were formerly directors of the society, and the secretary. The allegation in the statement of claim was that while directors and secretary they received on behalf of the society sums of money which they ought to have paid over or accounted for to the society. They also retained in their own hands, as alleged, sums of money which they deducted for advances made by the society, and in respect of which they charged the society in account with the whole of the advance without making any allowance in respect of such deduction, and appropriated the amounts so deducted to their own use. Further, or in the alternative, the defendants in consideration of their making, as such directors and secretary, on behalf of the society, advances on mortgage out of the society's moneys received from the persons to whom such advances were made sums of money by way of bonuses or bribes. The plaintiff society claimed that an amount might be taken of all moneys received and retained by the defendants, and which they ought to have paid over to or accounted for to the society. Payment of the amount so received or retained; and damages for breach of trust.

Rule 17 of the society stated that "the qualification for each director shall be fifty shares, ten of which must be fully paid-up on election," and rule 49 stated that "in case of dispute arising between the society and any members thereof . . . it shall be settled by arbitration."

This was a summons taken out on behalf of the defendant Richards asking that the action should be stayed upon the ground that it was in respect of a dispute arising between the society and himself, one of the members thereof, and relating to the construction of the 23rd rule of the society, that "all properties offered to the society shall first be surveyed by two at least of the directors for which a charge" should be made, and the rule provided for payments to the surveyor should "a special survey be considered necessary," and that it should be referred to arbitration in accordance with the rules, and in pursuance of the Building Societies Act, 1884.

T. Lee Roberts, and J. G. Pease, for the summons.

T. Willes Chitty, for the plaintiff society, opposed.

STIRLING, J., said, the object of the action was to recover from the defendants moneys which, it was alleged, they had received by reason of their fiduciary relation. The defendant Richards contended that in accordance with the legislation upon the subject the matter should be referred to arbitration. The point had not been conclusively settled by authority. The statutes were 10 Geo. 4, c. 56, s. 27, which stated that where the rules of the society (friendly) provided that there should be a reference to arbitration of a matter in dispute between the society and a member the Court might stay an action. That section was extended by 6 & 7 Wm. 4, c. 32, s. 4, and thereafter there were decisions as to the nature of the disputes which were to be referred to arbitration, Morrison v. Glover (4 Exch. 430) being the leading case. Then came the Building Societies Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 42), and it was provided by sect. 16 that the rules of every society thereafter established should set forth certain things; and amongst them, whether (sub-sect. 9) "disputes between the society and any of its members . . . shall be settled by reference to the Court, or to the registrar, or to arbitration." Upon the construction of the section a difference of opinion arose: Municipal Permanent Investment Building Society v. Kent (9 App. Cas. 260). The action there related to the enforcing of a covenant in a mortgage deed by the society against a member. It was held that it was a dispute between the society and a member within rule 49 and the action was stayed. Then came the Amending Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 41), which provided (sect. 2) that "disputes" in the Acts or rules should be "deemed to refer only to disputes between the society and a member . . . in his capacity of a member . . . unless by the rules . . . it shall be otherwise expressly provided."

His Lordship then referred to the Western Suburban and Notting Hill Building Society v. Martin (19 Q. B. D. 66 & 609), and to Walker v. General Mutual Building Society (36 Ch. D. 777), and observed that that being the state of the decisions it could not be said that the true construction of sect. 2 had been finally disposed of. The effect of it was that the law was brought back to what it was before the Act of 1874, but with this addition, that any society might expressly decide what cases should be referred to arbitration and which were not referred prior to the Act of 1874. The question was whether the directors and secretary were bound to account for moneys which had come to their hands. This society was formed before 1884. The rules were altered in 1886, but advantage was not taken of the Act of 1884, as might have been done, to bring disputes of this description within them. There was the case of Sinden v. Banks (3 E. & E. 629), in which an action was brought to recover moneys received by a treasurer of a society, and it was held that the dispute was not one between the society and a member. He had to decide upon a claim against the directors and secretary, which did not arise simply out of their relationship as members, but out of the obligation cast upon them by reason of their being in a fiduciary position towards the ordinary members, and he could not distinguish between their case and that of the treasurer in Sinden v. Banks; but in a case of this sort the society might wish to preserve all the remedies by action—discovery before trial, which might be more effective than the proceedings before an arbitrator—against persons who had deprived them of moneys which ought to be in the hands of the society. He thought that he ought not to stay the proceedings in the action, but allow them to go on in the ordinary way.

KYSEY v. HOLT, CHILDS AND BROTHERTON.

Practice—Discovery—Privilege—Solicitor and Client—Materials obtained by Party to Action otherwise than at the Instance of his Solicitor—Privilege as regards Party conducting Cause in Person.

Appeal by the plaintiff from an order of Denman, J., allowing privilege in the case of certain documents. The action was brought to recover a sum of money alleged to be due to the plaintiff for services as the defendants' agent in the United States in a mining transaction. In the affidavit of one of the defendants the documents in question were described as "declarations on oath made in the United States as to the subject matter of this action, and sent to me or to my solicitor in contemplation of and in preparation for and for the purposes of my firm's defence to this action." There was information before the Court which was not before the Judge at Chambers, with respect to the nature and object of the declarations; and the Court (Cave, and A. L. Smith, JJ.), held that the documents were not privileged, and allowed the appeal.

It was argued that the affidavit shewed that as regards the documents, or some of them, the deponent, one of the defendants' firm, was in the position of a party conducting his own case, and that, if so, the rule as to privilege was the same as if the deponent had employed a solicitor. In Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia (2 Ch. D. 644), Mellish, L.J., speaking of evidence etc. obtained by the litigant himself says (p. 658): "In determining to what extent this privilege goes, and whether it is confined to cases where a solicitor is employed, or extends to cases where a man acts as his own solicitor, some very nice questions may arise."

Scrutton, for the plaintiff.

Lyon, for the defendants.

CAVE, J., expressed the opinion that, owing to the substitution of the rules of equity for those of common law with respect to discovery, the privilege of documents now depends entirely on the employment of a solicitor, and that in the case of a party to an action conducting his own case there is no privilege. The learned judge contrasted the practice at common law, which he compared to a game of whist, in which the player has no right to see his adversary's hand, with the rule in equity with respect to "searching the conscience of the opposite party," and stated that the only exception to the rule appeared to be in the case of communications between solicitor and client. He cited Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia (2 Ch. D. 644); Southwood and Vauhall Water Company v. Quick (3 Q. B. D. 315); Whelan v. Le Marchant (17 Ch. D. 675); in which Jessel, M.R., said (p. 681): "The protection is of a very limited character, and in this country is restricted to the obtaining the assistance of lawyers, as regards the conduct of litigation or the rights to property. It has never gone beyond the obtaining legal advice and assistance, and all things reasonably necessary in the shape of communication to the legal advisers are protected from production or discovery in order that legal advice may be obtained safely and sufficiently." Jessel, M.R., also says (p. 682) the information may be privileged "even if obtained by the client." The learned judge interpreted this as meaning "by the client" acting as the agent of his solicitor. He said, "confidential communications between solicitor and client direct or indirect are privileged. Information obtained by the solicitor is privileged. Information obtained by the solicitor's agent is privileged, even although that agent be the client himself. Information obtained by the client for the purpose of being laid before the solicitor is privileged. No case whatever goes further than this, and no case states any principle which would enable us to go a step further." He concluded "with regard to the question of what will happen where the man has a solicitor, I think under the whole of the circumstances perhaps, although I have a strong opinion on the subject, it is better to follow the reticence displayed by Mellish, L.J., in the case of Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia (2 Ch. D. 644), and reserve my opinion on that point until some other occasion arises when it may be given with authority."

A. L. SMITH, J., expressed an opinion to the contrary effect. His Lordship dealt with the cases cited by Cave, J., and observed that they were all cases in which the relation of solicitor and client existed, so that the point raised could hardly be said to have been under consideration in them. He said that he himself should infer from passages in the judgment of Mellish, L.J. in Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia (2 Ch. D. 644), that that learned judge considered that privilege could arise at an early stage in the case of a litigant conducting an action in person. He said, "If the litigant is either prosecuting or defending a suit in person, as at present advised, I think that a privilege must arise at some time. Otherwise the opposite party must demand and have access to all the materials of the prosecution or defence of the unassisted litigant at any moment up to trial. He declined to go the length of holding that the substitution of the rule of equity for that of common law has had this effect."

GUARDIANS OF DORCHESTER UNION v. GUARDIANS OF POPLAR UNION.

Poor Law—Settlement—Wife deserted by Husband having no Legal Settlement—Divided Parishes Act, 1876 (39 & 40 Vict. c. 61), s. 35.

Appeal of the Poplar Union from the decision of the Queen's Bench Division upon a special case stated under 12 & 13 Vict. c. 45, s. 11, upon appeal against an order of removal.

Upon the application of the Poplar Union two justices of the peace made an order adjudging the place of the last legal settlement of Eliza George and her four children to be in the Dorchester Union, from which order the Dorchester Union gave notice of appeal to quarter sessions, whereupon this case was stated.

Eliza George was born in a parish in the Dorchester Union in 1851, and when she attained the age of 16 in 1867 her father was alive and had acquired a settlement in the Plumstead Union by renting a tenement. In 1878 she was married to James George, a native of Africa, who never had a legal settlement. In 1887 James George deserted his wife and went to Japan, and the pauper Eliza George and her children became chargeable to the Poplar Union.

It was contended on behalf of the Dorchester Union that the pauper Eliza George, being under the age of 16 at the time her father had acquired a settlement in the parish of Plumstead, took and retained that settlement by virtue of sect. 35 of the Divided Parishes Act, 1876, she not having since acquired or derived any other settlement.

It was contended on behalf of the Poplar Union that Eliza George being at the time of removal above 16 years old could not take her father's settlement, and that she was properly settled in her own birth settlement in the Dorchester Union.

The question for the Court was whether the order was rightly made adjudging the settlement of Eliza George and her children to be in the Dorchester Union. The Queen's Bench Division (Mathew and A. L. Smith, JJ.) held that the order was bad, and that the pauper Eliza George took her father's settlement which he had when she attained the age of sixteen.

Bosanquet, Q.C., and Mead, for the Poplar Union.

Bowen Rowlands, Q.C., and B. Cunningham Glen, for the Dorchester Union.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.B., Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ.) affirmed the judgment of the Divisional Court, and dismissed the appeal. The Court further intimated that in their opinion the case of Guardians of Edmonton v. Guardians of St. Mary, Islington (15 Q. B. D. 95) was wrongly decided in the Queen's Bench Division, and stated that the formal approval of that decision in the Court of Appeal (15 Q. B. D. 339) had been given in consequence of the admission that the case was not distinguishable from that of Reg v. Bridgnorth (11 Q. B. D. 314), but that upon examination the cases were clearly different.

Appeal dismissed.

Ex parte GRANT.

Bankruptcy—Receiving Order—Judgment Debt—Discretion of Court—Joint and several Promissory Note by Sureties—Debt payable in Instalments—Payment of One Instalment by One Surety—Right to Contribution by co-Surety—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 7.

Appeal from the refusal of Mr. Registrar Hazlitt to make a receiving order against James Macdonald.

Macdonald, and Peter Grant, as sureties for W. D. Gordon, gave to the Commercial Bank of Scotland a joint and several promissory note for 400*l.* The debt was payable in three equal instalments. The first instalment of 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* was not paid by the principal debtor when it became due, and Grant was compelled to pay it to the bank. Grant then brought an action against Macdonald for 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* (half of the 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*) and recovered judgment for that sum and 7*l.* 10*s.* costs. He served a bankruptcy notice on Macdonald in respect of the judgment debt, and Macdonald failed to comply with the notice. Grant then presented a bankruptcy petition against Macdonald. The Registrar was of opinion that all the requisites for the making of a receiving order were proved, but upon the evidence he thought that he ought, in the exercise of the discretion given by sect. 7 (3) of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, to refuse to make the order, and he accordingly dismissed the petition. Grant appealed.

Yate Lee, for the appellant.

Sidney Woolf, for the debtor, contended that a surety was not entitled to sue his co-surety until he himself had paid more than the proportion of the principal debt which as between the sureties he ought to pay in case of default by the principal debtor: Ex parte Snowden (17 Ch. D. 44); Craythorne v. Swinburne (14 Ves. 160). It could make no difference that the debt was payable in instalments.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ.) allowed the appeal.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that the meaning of the promissory note was, that, as between themselves, the two sureties would pay each instalment of the debt, if the principal debtor did not. If one of the sureties paid an instalment, he was immediately entitled to contribution from the other. The evidence did not shew any "sufficient cause" for refusing to make a receiving order.

LINDLEY and LOPES, L.JJ., concurred on other grounds, without referring to the question of the surety's right to contribution.

The only note of the vivâ voce evidence given at the hearing of the petition was a short note taken by the Registrar.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that it was the duty of the Registrars to assist the Court of Appeal by taking down in writing the material parts of the evidence given before them. And the Registrar ought to be firm in resisting the putting of irrelevant questions.

LINDLEY and LOPES, L.JJ., concurred.

CHANCERY DIVISION

May 29.
In re RAILWAY AND ELECTRIC APPLIANCES COMPANY.

Deed—Assignment—Deed—Avoidance of Patent—Implied Covenant to keep on foot—Breach of Covenant—Damages.

By deed in 1883 a patent belonging to Messrs. Gilbert & Inclair was assigned by them to the above company in consideration of 250l. "and the other considerations thereafter appearing." Then followed covenants for title by the assignors, including a covenant for quiet enjoyment of the patent "during the term subsisting therein." Then the company covenanted to pay of a royalty for every article manufactured and sold by them under the patent "while subsisting" and also to pay of a share of any sums obtained by granting licences under the patent "while subsisting." In consequence of the company having, by inadvertence, omitted to pay one of the annual fees of 10l. required under the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883, the patent became void. An unsuccessful application was then made by the company to Parliament for an Act to revive the patent. Subsequently the company went into voluntary liquidation, and Messrs. Gilbert & Inclair sent in a claim to the liquidators for 2000l. damages for the loss of the patent, contending that the assignment contained, by implication, though not in express terms, a covenant by the company to keep the patent on foot.

This was a summons by the liquidators under sect. 138 of the Companies Act, 1862, for directions as to whether they should allow all or any part of the claim.

Renshaw, Q.C., and Chadwyck Healey, for the liquidators.

Horton Smith, Q.C., and Haldane, for the claimants.

KAY, J., said it seemed clear that an express covenant to keep the patent on foot had been purposely omitted from the assignment, the assignors being content to leave the matter to the interest the company themselves had in keeping up the patent. It would be extremely dangerous, therefore, to import into the deed a covenant which was not there, and accordingly he must decline to import such a covenant as was contended for. Even supposing such a covenant was to be implied, there was no obligation on the company to manufacture the patented article, and therefore the assignors could claim only nominal damages. Much the safest rule to follow in such cases as this was that, where there was any reasonable doubt whether the parties to a deed did intend to enter into a covenant such as was sought to be implied here, the Court should look at the circumstances under which the deed was executed; and when the Court found that the deed contained no such covenant, and that there had been no bad faith on the part of the person against whom it was sought to imply the covenant, the Court ought to be extremely careful how it imported such a covenant into the deed, especially where the deed had been, as was evidently the case here, well considered by the parties before executing it. Accordingly the claim must be disallowed.

BERENS v. BENYON.

Settlement—Covenant to settle after-acquired Property, except any Property settled by the Instrument under which it was derived.

A marriage settlement in which the wife's property was vested in trustees for her separate use without power of anticipation, contained a covenant by husband and wife to settle all property to which she, or he in her right, should become entitled during the marriage "except any property which may be settled by the instrument under which it is derived" upon the trusts of the settlement.

The wife's father subsequently charged his real estate with payment to her of £—, which, with the interest, was to be for her sole and separate use, and should not be subject to any trust or agreement for settlement contained in any settlement executed upon her marriage.

Held (following Kane v. Kane (16 Ch. D. 207)) that the £— was excluded from the operation of the covenant.

Vendor and Purchaser—Specific Performance—Agreement to sell Lease—Title shewn to Underlease.

Further consideration of an action by a vendor to enforce specific performance of an agreement to purchase a lease. By the agreement the defendants undertook to purchase from the plaintiff "his interest in the lease held by him of Verulam Church." By his statement of claim the plaintiff alleged that he held the property for a term of 93½ years from the 25th December, 1824, under a lease dated the 24th March, 1825. The chief clerk found that a good title could be made to a derivative term of 93½ years from the 25th December, 1824, less three days, created by a deed dated the 5th June 1841.

Alexander, for the plaintiff.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Gregson, for the defendants, contended on the authority of Madeley v. Booth (2 De G. & Sm. 718), that purchaser of a lease could not be compelled to accept an underlease.

NORTH, J., held that the words of the agreement distinguished the present case from Madeley v. Booth, and overruled the objection.

 NIXON v. SHELDON.

Will—Construction—Tenant for Life and Remainderman—Unauthorized Security—Enjoyment by Tenant for Life in Specie—Power to Trustees to retain existing Securities.

Further consideration of an administration action. The testator gave the residue of his real and personal estate to his two brothers and his six sisters in equal shares. And he directed that the share of each of his sisters should be retained and held by his trustees, upon trust to pay the annual income to such sister during her life, and after her death in trust as she should by will appoint, and in default of appointment in trust for her children. The testator empowered his trustees at their discretion to continue all or any portion of his personal estate in the state or investment in or upon which the same should be at his death, or otherwise to convert the same, and to invest the proceeds in the names of the trustees in certain specified securities. At the death of the testator part of his personal estate consisted of unauthorized securities, which were not, however, of a wasting nature. The chief clerk by his certificate found that some of these securities were proper to be continued, and that others were proper to be called in.

The question was, whether the tenants for life were entitled to receive in specie the income of those unauthorized securities which were retained, and which were not of a wasting nature, though they might be of a hazardous character.

Theobald, for the plaintiff, one of the tenants for life.

Carson, for the trustees, and for the other tenants for life.

Porter v. Baddeley (5 Ch. D. 542), and Gray v. Siggers (11 Ch. D. 74) were referred to.

NORTH, J., held that the tenants for life were entitled to receive in specie the income of the unauthorized securities (not wasting) which were to be retained.

Kekewich, J. DOOBY v. WATSON. June 6.

Solicitor and Client—Investment—Liability of Solicitor—Solicitor Trustee.

Mrs. Dooby had in 1877 advanced 5000*l.* on a mortgage of land in Yorkshire, J. Watson being employed by her as solicitor in the business. The security proved insufficient, and in 1886 Mrs. Dooby brought this action against the executor of J. Watson and the mortgagor claiming as against the estate of J. Watson an account on the footing of wilful default in advancing the 5000*l.*, and that the deficiency might be paid by the executor.

The executor amongst other defences pleaded the Statute of Limitations.

Seward Brice, Q.C., and Butcher, for the plaintiff, argued that the solicitor had placed himself in the situation of trustee for the plaintiff, and therefore the statute did not apply.

Barber, Q.C., and Warrington, for the executor.

KEKEWICH, J., held that according to the evidence the relationship between the plaintiff and the solicitor was merely the ordinary relationship of a client and solicitor in the preparation of a mortgage of which the client had approved and the solicitor had not made himself trustee as to the advance of the money. The Statute of Limitations, therefore, applied, and the claim of the plaintiff against the executor failed. The plaintiff must pay the costs of the executor.

County Court—Admiralty Jurisdiction—"Collision"—County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 71) s. 3, sub-s. 3.

Application under the County Courts Acts Amendment Act 1856 (19 & 20 Vict. c. 108), sect. 43, for a rule calling upon the judge of the City of London Court to shew cause why he should not entertain an Admiralty action for damage by collision. The applicant, the plaintiff in the action, was owner of a ship driving engine, employed at a wharf in the Blackwall Reach of the Thames, and alleged that the mainsail gear of the barge "Kate" had fouled his engine through the negligence of the servants of her owner. He claimed damages in consequence.

The judge held that the claim was not a claim for "damage by collision" within the meaning of sect. 3, sub-s. 2, of the County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 71), sect. 3, sub-s. 3, and that he had no jurisdiction.

THE COURT (Wills and Grantham, JJ.) held that the judge of the City of London Court was right, and refused a rule.

Rose, Thompson, Young & Co., a telegram in the plaintiffs' name stating the amount of reinsurance premium which the plaintiffs had instructed them to pay. From this point Rose Murison & Thompson ceased to act in the matter. Telegrams followed between the plaintiffs and Rose, Thompson, Young & Co., and in the result before the close of the day, Rose, Thompson, Young & Co. communicated with another London broker, who effected the insurance with the defendant which was sued upon. Rose, Murison & Co. did not charge commission to the plaintiffs.

Day, J., put questions to the jury to elicit their opinion as to whether the policy was effected through the agency of Rose, Murison & Co., the firm the member of which possessed the concealed information, the whole negotiation being one transaction, or whether the agency of Rose, Murison & Thompson had become determined on that firm putting the plaintiffs into communication with their London agents, Rose, Thompson, Young & Co. BLACKBURN, LOW & Co. v. HASLAM.

Marine Insurance—Concealment of Material Facts—Principal and Agent.

Application by the plaintiffs for a new trial in a case tried before Day, J., and a special jury of London, on the ground of misdirection, and that the verdict, which was for the defendants, was against the weight of evidence.

The plaintiffs, underwriters in Glasgow, sued the defendant, an underwriter in London, to recover his subscription to a policy of re-insurance effected on the steamship "State of Florida." The defence was concealment. The facts relied on arose out of circumstances similar to those which appeared in Blackburn, Low & Co. v. Vigors (17 Q. B. D. 553, 12 App. Cas. 11), another action by the plaintiffs on a reinsurance policy on the same vessel, in which concealment was also pleaded, and in which the House of Lords, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal and restoring that of Day, J., held that there had not been concealment such as to avoid the policy, and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover.

At the time when both policies were effected the "State of Florida," which was overdue, was, in fact, lost. The material facts, the concealment of which it was contended in both cases avoided the policies, were the knowledge of a member of the firm of Messrs. Rose, Murison & Thompson, insurance brokers in Glasgow, whom the plaintiffs employed to negotiate reinsurances, that a vessel having on board the shipwrecked crew of the "State of Florida" was reported to have been spoken.

The policy sued on in Blackburn, Low & Co. v. Vigors (17 Q. B. D. 553, 12 App. Cas. 531), was effected for the plaintiffs under the employment by the plaintiffs of Rose, Murison & Thompson, and after the report had reached the firm, to reinsure for them, but not according to the view of the facts taken by the House of Lords, through the instrumentality of Messrs. Rose, Thompson & Co. That policy was, in fact, effected for the plaintiff by Messrs. Roxburgh, Currie & Co. the day after the report reached Rose, Murison & Thompson, but it did not appear that this firm placed the plaintiffs in communication with Roxburgh, Currie & Co., and neither the plaintiffs nor Roxburgh, Currie & Co. knew of the report which had reached a member of the firm of Rose, Murison & Thompson.

Here the facts were somewhat different. Half-an-hour after the report had reached the member of their firm, Rose, Murison & Thompson sent from Glasgow to their London agents,

Q. B. Div. MEEK v. WENDT & Co. June 4.

Principal and Agent—Warranty of Authority—Measure of Damages.

Case tried before Charles, J., without a jury at Liverpool. The action was brought by the plaintiff to recover damages against the defendants for breach of warranty of authority. The plaintiff insured a ship for 1000*l.* with the Sun insurance company in San Francisco, of which the defendants were the English agents. A loss having occurred the Sun Company repudiated liability. The plaintiff brought an action against the Sun Company in England and duly effected service out of the jurisdiction. The company did not appear, and the plaintiff signed judgment for 1000*l.* Negotiations afterwards took place in London between the plaintiff and the defendants as the representatives of the company, with the result that the company offered 300*l.* in settlement of the plaintiff's claim. This offer the plaintiff at first refused. Afterwards, the plaintiff having expressed to the defendants his willingness to accept this sum in settlement, the defendants telegraphed to San Francisco and received, as they supposed, by telegram, the authority of the Sun Company to settle the claim for 300*l.*, and informed the plaintiff that the Sun Company agreed to do this. This telegram proved not to have been in fact sent to the defendants by the authority of the Sun Company, and the Sun Company refused to pay the plaintiff. The plaintiff then sued the defendants for 300*l.* as damages for breach of warranty of authority, together with the expenses incurred in negotiating the compromise. The defendants paid into Court a sum representing these expenses, but denied that they were otherwise liable. The only question for decision was as to the measure of damages for the false representation of authority innocently made by the defendants.

Bigham, Q. C., and Joseph Walton, for plaintiff.

Barnes, Q. C., and Butler Aspinall, for the defendants.

CHARLES, J., in giving judgment cited Lord Esher, M.R., in In re National Coffee Palace Company (24 Ch. D. 871), "the damages are the sum which the plaintiff would have gained by the contract which the defendant warranted should be made." Prima facie, therefore, the damages were the sum agreed to be paid by the Sun Company, 300*l.*, together with the expenses of the plaintiff in bringing about the settlement. It had been urged that the remedies of the plaintiff against the Sun Company on the judgment and on the policy were of greater value than 300*l.* That company, however, had no property in England available for execution, and the law of the United States being in this respect the same as the law of England (see per Blackburn, J., in Schibsby v. Westerholz, Law Rep. 6 Q. B. 160), the judgment could not effectually be put in suit in the Courts of the United States, as the defendant company were not English subjects or resident in England either when the policy was issued or when the suit was commenced. Their claim on the policy was sure under the circumstances to be resisted, and it was therefore impossible to give to it any pecuniary value. The plaintiff was therefore entitled to judgment for 300*l.*, the amount which they represented that the Sun Company had agreed to pay, in addition to the money in Court.

(Before THE LORD CHIEF JUSTICE and THE PRESIDENT sitting

Divorce—New Trial—Order XXXIX., r. 3, is applicable to Divorce Proceedings.

This was a motion for a new trial of a petition for divorce heard before Butt, J., in which the issues were found in favour of the respondent and co-respondent, on the ground of misdirection, and that the verdict was against the weight of evidence. On the point of misdirection the notice was in these terms, "and also on the ground of misdirection—the absence of proper and complete direction of the jury as to the evidence applicable to the said issues, and also on the ground of rejection of evidence."

Shearman, submitted, on a preliminary objection, that under Order XXXIX., r. 3, the notice was insufficient as it did not set forth the grounds on which misdirection is alleged. He cited Murfett v. Smith (12 P. D. 116).

Walter:—That is only requisite when specific misdirection is alleged, and the rule does not apply where the objection is to the direction as a whole. He cited Toulmin v. Hedley (2 Carr. & Kir. 157) and Lord v. Wardle (3 Bing. N. C. 680).

THE COURT held that the case must be governed by Murfett v. Smith, and that the rule requiring particulars of misdirection to be given applies to divorce proceedings as well as to the Probate Division.

Probate Suit—An Application to cite the Heir-at-Law to see Proceedings in a Probate Suit should be made in the Registry, and not in Court.

The plaintiff propounded the will and seven codicils of Richard Matthews, deceased, and the defendant opposed probate of the last codicil. The deceased died possessed of real property which he disposed of by his will and codicils.

Barnard moved for leave to cite the heir-at-law to see proceedings.

BUTT, J.:—Ought not this application to be made in the Registry.

Barnard:—So it was understood, but two of the registers held that it should be made in Court.

BUTT, J.:—In that case I must hear you. I make the order prayed, but I am decidedly of opinion that under the terms of the rule the application should be made in the Registry.

Practice—Payment into Court—Defence setting up Tender—Denial of Liability—Payment out of Court to Plaintiff's Solicitor—Liability of Solicitor to refund—Order XXII, rr. 5, 6.

Appeal from a decision of the Queen's Bench Division (reported 20 Q. B. D. 722).

In an action for wrongful dismissal, claiming a year's salary in lieu of notice, the defendant pleaded that the plaintiff was only entitled to one month's notice; or in the alternative, three months; that before action the defendant made tender of three months' salary, which the plaintiff refused; that the defendant had paid the said sum into Court, and that it was enough to satisfy the plaintiff's claim. The request for lodgment in Court contained a statement that the money was paid in with a defence setting up tender.

The plaintiff's solicitor, without obtaining an order, but on the written authority of the plaintiff, took the money out of Court, and the plaintiff proceeded with the action; at the trial judgment was given for the defendant on the ground that the plaintiff was only entitled to one month's salary.

The defendant applied for orders upon the plaintiff and his solicitor respectively for payment over to the defendant of the difference between one month's salary and the total amount paid into Court in respect of salary.

The Queen's Bench Division made the orders, holding that, the action being for unliquidated damages, the payment into Court was not made with a defence setting up a tender of the sum paid, within Order XXII, r. 5 (c), and that, as the defendant's liability was denied, and the plaintiff did not accept the sum paid into Court in satisfaction, but proceeded with the action, the case was within r. 6 (c), and therefore that the money ought not to have been paid out of Court without an order.

The solicitor appealed, and filed an affidavit stating that on receipt of the money out of Court he had paid over the balance thereof, after deducting out of pocket expenses, to the plaintiff.

Lumley Smith, Q.C., and Horace Browne, for the appellant.

Henr Collins, Q.C., and Morton Smith, for the respondent.

Our adv. vult.

June 11. THE COURT (Lindley and Lopes, L.J.J.) allowed the appeal, holding that, as the solicitor had been misled by the defendant's plea of tender, and had acted with good faith in taking the money out of Court, he ought not, under the circumstances, to be personally compelled to refund it.

LORD R. MONTAGU'S CASE.
GREY'S CASE.

Company—Winding-up—Contributory—B. list—Transfer of Shares—Registration within a Year of Winding-up—"Default or delay" in registration—Companies Act, 1862, s. 35—Costs—Creditors—Appearance—Attending Proceedings—Gen. Ord. Nov. 1862, r. 60.

In the first case Lord R. Montagu, in May, 1882, applied for and had allotted to him 1000 shares in the company. By transfers dated the 7th and 19th of February, 1883, he transferred the shares to one Malgarini, the promoter of the company, but the transfers were not registered until the 26th of November, 1883, although it appeared that Lord R. Montagu, on the execution of the transfers, requested the secretary of the company to register them forthwith. On the 26th of July, 1884, the company was ordered to be wound up, and Lord R. Montagu was placed on the B. list of contributories on the ground that as the transfers were not completed by registration until the 26th of November, 1883—that is, within a year prior to the winding-up, he still remained liable as a contributory. This was a summons by Lord R. Montagu to have his name removed from the list, his contention being that it was solely through the default or delay of the company, within the meaning of the s. 35 of the Companies Act, 1862, that the transfers had not been registered in February, 1883, more than a year before the winding-up.

Renshaw, Q.C., and Haldane, for Lord R. Montagu.

Marten, Q.C., and T. L. Wilkinson, for the liquidator, were not called upon.

KAY, J., said that to escape from the position of a shareholder, a man must make a complete transfer of his shares, and the transfer was not complete until it was entered on the register. The law as to the duty of the transferor to see that the transfer was entered on the register was accurately stated by Giffard, L.J., in Marshall v. Glamorgan Iron and Coal Company (Law Rep. 7 Eq. 129, 187). The evidence shewed that Lord R. Montagu had not fulfilled that duty, and that it was not owing to any default on the part of the company that the transfers were not completed by registration sooner than they were. The summons must be dismissed with costs.

Beddall, for creditors, asked for his costs.

KAY, J., said the creditors ought not to be represented by any one but the liquidator, and declined to allow more than one set of costs.

In the second case, Colonel Grey had had allotted to him 500 shares in the company, and these he transferred to Malgarini by a transfer which was undated, but which he said he executed on the 24th January, 1883. Subsequently the date of August, 8, 1883, was filled in by the secretary of the company, and the transfer was registered on the 14th of August, 1883, both the date and the registration being thus within a year of the winding-up. Colonel Grey having been settled on the B. list, he applied by summons to have his name taken off, his case being that on May 9th, 1883, he gave instructions at the company's office for the registration of the transfer, and that it was by the company's default that registration was delayed until August 14th. The main question was, what, upon the evidence, was the real date of the transfer.

Ince, Q.C., Jeune, Q.C., and A. C. Nicoll, for Colonel Grey.

Marten, Q.C., and T. L. Wilkinson, for the liquidator.

Beddall appeared for creditors.

[KAY, J. :—Have you any locus standi?]

I have attended on the summons and cross-examined the witnesses under an order for cross-examination on the affidavits.

[KAY, J.:—I never heard of a creditor appearing to argue a case of this kind. If that were so, every creditor might appear, and the arguments might last until the Long Vacation.]

I admit that, having regard to your Lordship's previous ruling, I must appear at my own expense; but in that case I have a right to be heard under Rule 60 of Gen. Ord. Nov. 1862, which says that "every person having a debt or claim against the company, allowed by the judge, shall be at liberty, at his own expense, to attend the proceedings before the judge."

[KAY, J.:—That rule does not interfere with the discretion of the judge as to whom he will hear in argument. I decline to hear anyone but the liquidator.]

In delivering judgment,

KAY, J., held, upon the evidence, that the date of August 8, 1883, was the right date of the transfer, the transfer thus having been made within a year of the winding-up. Accordingly the summons was dismissed with costs.

Mortgage—Gift—Equitable Assignment—Release by Parol—Mortgage Deed handed over to Mortgagor by Mortgagee—Absence of Consideration—Statute of Limitations—Reversionary Interest.

Under the will of C. H., who died in 1843, C. E. B. and G. A. B. became entitled to shares in the testator's residuary estate in reversion expectant on the decease of their mother, E. B. In March, 1858, G. A. B. mortgaged his share to his father, who by his will appointed E. B. and C. E. B. executors, and bequeathed his residuary estate to them upon trusts under which, on the death of E. B., C. E. B. was absolutely entitled thereto. E. B. died on the 20th of October, 1887. C. E. B. shortly after his mother's death wrote to G. A. B. stating that in accordance with a wish expressed by their mother that he should hand over the mortgage deed to G. A. B., he gave himself the satisfaction of fulfilling her desire, and enclosed with this letter he sent the mortgage deed. C. E. B. afterwards insisted on his rights under the mortgage, and declined to execute a release, and a summons was taken out by the executor and trustee of the will of C. H. to determine who was entitled to a sum of money representing the share of G. A. B. under the will and less in amount than the mortgage money. G. A. B. had never paid any principal or interest under the mortgage, or given any acknowledgment in respect thereof.

Hope, for the summons.

Cutler, Q.C., and S. Peel, for C. E. B., contended that there had been no release of the mortgage debt either at law or in equity.

Marten, Q.C., and Horsley, for G. A. B., contended that the letter of C. E. B., accompanied by the delivery of the mortgage deed, amounted to a release of the debt or a direction to the trustee to hold the mortgaged share on trust for G. A. B. They also relied on the Statute of Limitations.

KAY, J., referred to In re Marshfield (84 Ch. D. 721), and In re Richardson (30 Ch. D. 396), and held that the Statute of Limitations had no application to the case, and that the intended gift being by parol and without consideration, although accompanied by the delivery of the mortgage deed, was incomplete and incapable of being enforced, and that therefore C. E. B. was entitled to the money in question.

Infant—Fund belonging to Infant invested in her sole Name—Trustee Acts—Vesting order—11 Geo. 4 & 1 Wm. 4, c. 65—Bank of England—Order to accumulate Dividends.

An infant was absolutely entitled under a will to a sum of money which remained in the hands of the two trustees and executors of the will. Part of the money was invested in 3 per cent. Bank annuities, but by some inadvertence the investment was made not in the names of the two trustees but in the names of one of them and of the infant. That trustee died, leaving the fund in the infant's name alone, so that no one could receive the dividends or make a transfer. The dividends were not required for the maintenance and education of the infant. New trustees of the will having been appointed, a petition was presented under 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 65, and the Trustee Acts by such new trustees, the infant, and her mother asking that the right to transfer the bank annuities and receive the dividends due and to become due might vest in the newly-appointed trustees, and that the Bank might be at liberty to transfer the annuities into their names, or, in the alternative, that the newly-appointed trustees and the mother of the infant might be appointed her guardians, and that the dividends due and to become due might be paid to them during her minority.

Decimus Sturges, for the petitioners, referred to Sanders v. Homer (25 Beav. 467), Gardner v. Cowles (3 Ch. D. 304), and In re Findlay (32 Ch. D. 221, 641).

KAY, J., suggested that as the dividends were not wanted for the maintenance of the infant, an order might be made directing the Bank of England to accumulate them during her minority. He directed that the Registrar should draw up such an order, and that it should be submitted to the Bank to ascertain if they had any difficulty in acting upon it.

Such an order was accordingly drawn up and submitted to the solicitors of the Bank, who objected that under 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 65 the Court had no power to throw the debt of investment on the Bank, and refused to advise the Bank to accept such responsibility or to act on the order.

June 9. The matter was accordingly again mentioned to the Court.

KAY, J., now made an order in accordance with the prayer of the petition directing payment of the dividends to the newly-appointed trustees of the will.

Mortgagor—Mortgagee—Valuation—Loss—Action by Mortgagee against Valuers—Negligence—Misrepresentation—Damages.

An intended mortgagor, at the request of the solicitors of intended mortgagees, applied to a firm of valuers for a valuation of the property proposed to be mortgaged.

A valuation at the sum of 3000*l.* was sent in by the valuers direct to the mortgagees' solicitors. The mortgage was carried out.

Default was made in payment by the mortgagor and the property was put up for sale when, the highest bid was 680*l.*, and no sale took place.

The mortgagees commenced an action against the valuers for damages for the loss sustained through the negligence, breach of duty and misrepresentation of the defendants.

On the evidence the Court was satisfied that the defendants knew at the time the valuation was made that it was for the purposes of an advance; and further, that the valuation as made was in fact no valuation at all.

Held, that under the circumstances the defendants were under an obligation to the plaintiffs, and had failed to discharge the obligation, and were consequently liable in damages.

Will—Construction—Estates Tail Male by Implication.

This was a vendor's summons to determine whether the applicant, William Ernest Bird, could make a good title to a leasehold house, either as owner in fee or as tenant in tail male. Stephen Gale died in 1837, having made a will dated 1836, by which he devised the premises to William Bird for life, "but in case William Bird should die leaving no son" he devised the premises to others. William Bird never executed a disentailing assurance. On his death in 1882, his eldest son, the vendor, entered into possession; he had contracted with William S. Barnard, the purchaser, to sell the premises conditionally on the Court declaring that he was entitled in fee or tail.

A. Young, for the vendor.

Fossett Lock, for the purchaser.

NORTH, J., held that William Bird took an estate tail male by implication which descended to the applicant.

BIRMINGHAM VINEGAR BREWERY COMPANY v. LIVERPOOL VINEGAR COMPANY.

Trade Name—Unauthorized Use—Injunction—Use of Name of Third Party.

Motion for interlocutory injunction.

The defendant Holbrook had been for some years in the employment of the plaintiffs and their predecessors in business, who were manufacturers of sauces, as a traveller. By his authority they had sold a sauce which they manufactured under the name of "Holbrook's Worcestershire Sauce," and it had acquired a reputation in the market under that name. This arrangement had continued for some years. In December, 1887, the plaintiffs discharged Holbrook from their employment, and he then assigned to the defendant company the right to use his name in connection with sauces manufactured by them. The defendants issued advertisements stating that they were the sole proprietors of "Holbrook's Worcestershire Sauce," and that they had purchased from Holbrook the right to manufacture the sauce bearing his name. The plaintiffs by their writ claimed an injunction to restrain the defendants, and each of them, from selling or representing any goods manufactured by the defendant company as being "Holbrook's Worcestershire Sauce," and from representing or doing anything which should lead to the belief that the articles manufactured and sold by the defendant company were the goods or manufacture of the plaintiffs, or that the defendants were the proprietors of the articles known by those names. The plaintiffs now moved for an interlocutory injunction.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Sturges, for the plaintiffs.

Neville, Q.C., and MacConkey, for the defendant company.

E. S. Ford, for Holbrook.

NORTH, J., granted the injunction asked for. He thought the plaintiffs had acquired a right to use the name of Holbrook, and their sauce had acquired a reputation under that name, and the evidence shewed that some people at any rate knew the sauce as the manufacture of the plaintiffs. In his Lordship's opinion the object of the defendants in doing what they had done was to obtain the benefit of the reputation of the plaintiffs. There was no evidence that the defendants had manufactured, or were going to manufacture and sell the article which the plaintiffs manufactured. The defendant company had purchased nothing but the right to use Holbrook's name, and their object was not a legitimate one. It was clear that the plaintiffs had for a great many years sold their sauce under the name of Holbrook, and that the defendants wished to obtain the benefit of this. It was said that the defendant Holbrook had a right to use his own name, and to sell his own goods. There was no evidence that he was doing that. He had sold the right to use his name to the other defendants, and they were using his name for the purpose of selling their own goods. Even if Holbrook were selling his own goods under his own name, it would be his duty under the circumstances to take care that in so doing he was not passing off his goods as those of the plaintiffs—to make it clear that the article which he was selling was not the same article as that which had become well known as the manufacture of the plaintiffs.

Stirling, J. In re SCANLAN, Infants. June 12.

Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886 (49 & 50 Vict. c. 27)—Rights of Mother as Statutory Guardian—Religious Education of Infants.

By the 2nd section of the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886, on the death of the father of an infant, "the mother, if surviving, shall be the guardian of such infant, either alone when no guardian has been appointed by the father, or jointly with any guardian appointed by the father. When no guardian has been appointed by the father . . . the Court may, if it shall think fit, from time to time appoint a guardian or guardians to act jointly with the mother."

This was a case in which the father had died in the lifetime of the mother without appointing any guardian of their three infant children, and, in the view which the Court took of the evidence, during the last year of his life the father caused all three children to be brought up as Protestants, and expressed his wish that they should be brought up as members of the Church of England. The mother, on the other hand, was a Roman Catholic, and wished to bring the children up in that faith.

Upon an application made by a next friend on behalf of the three infants to remove their mother from the office of guardian to them, Mr. Justice Stirling held, on May 9, that the mother ought not to be removed, but that some one ought to be appointed to act jointly with her; and it having been contended that the effect of the Guardianship of Infants Act was to give the mother, as guardian thereunder, the right of regulating the religious education of her children, the Court reserved judgment on the question in what religious faith the infants should be brought up, the decision of that question being material with reference to the appointment of the joint guardian.

Buckley, Q.C., and Kirby, for the next friend.

Hastings, Q.C., St. John Clerke, and Stokes, for the mother.

STIRLING, J., now said it was clear that under the law as it stood prior to the Act of 1886, the Court would have been bound to give effect to the wishes and directions of the father as to the religious education of these infants; and having regard to the preamble of that Act, and to sects. 2, 3, 4 and 5 of the Act, the powers of the mother as guardian under the Act were to be those which any guardian appointed by will or otherwise at the passing of the Act had under the Act 12 Car. 2, c. 24. Now according to the authorities, such a guardian was bound to see that the child was brought up in the religious faith of his father. The mother, therefore, in his Lordship's opinion, was bound to observe this rule; and he held that the Act had not introduced any change in the rule as to the religious education of infants, and directed the infants in question be brought up as members of the Church of England.

NAHMASCHINEN FABRIK GESELLSCHAFT v. PICKFORD & Co.

Pledge—Agent.

This was an action by a German Company to recover 200 boxes of sewing-machines which had been pledged to the defendants, Lee, and Harris. There was a company called Hermann Loog, Limited, of which Hermann Loog was manager. Hermann Loog was the person who obtained the advance on the sewing-machines as for Hermann Loog, Limited, and the German Company contended that Hermann Loog was their agent, and not Hermann Loog, Limited, though by a mistake of their clerk the note of consignment of the sewing-machines had been made out to Hermann Loog, Limited; and Hermann Loog, Limited, therefore, had no power to pledge the machines.

Lockwood, Q.C., and Theobald, for the plaintiff.

Warmington, Q.C., and T. Ribton, for the defendants.

KEKEWICH, J., said that on the evidence he must hold that it was Hermann Loog, Limited, who were agents for the German Company; and, therefore, had power to pledge the sewing-machines. The defendants were entitled to judgment.

Practice—Court Fees—Official Receiver—Several Transactions embodied in one Application—Order 25th Oct. 1886, Scale of Fees, Table A.—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 55, sub-s. 5.

In this case (a small bankruptcy) the official receiver was the trustee; and two questions arose, which were referred by the registrar to the judge. They were, first, whether the official receiver was exempt from payment of the fee of 5s., on an application to the Court made by him as trustee, the words of Table A. of the scale of fees prescribed by the order of the 25th October, 1886, being: "Every application to the Court, except by the official receiver, 5s.;" and, secondly, whether the official receiver could, by one application, apply for leave to disclaim separate properties, or apply to set aside several transactions, or whether he must make a separate application in respect of each property, or each transaction.

Sidney Woolf, for the official receiver.

CAVE, J., held, on the first point, that the official receiver was not exempt from the payment of the prescribed fee of 5s. when he made the application as trustee. The exemption only applied when he made the application solely in his capacity of official receiver. On the second point his Lordship was of opinion that so long as there was some one chief respondent who was affected by the whole application, the application was one, and only one fee was payable, although there might be many other respondents, some of whom might be interested or concerned in the property or transaction in part only; but that, as soon as there was no chief respondent sought to be affected by the whole of the application, then the application was double, and should not be made in that form.

Q. B. Div. STOTESBURY v. CAMBERWELL VESTRY. June 5

Local Government Acts—New Street—Apportionment—Metropolis Management Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 120), s. 105—Metropolis Local Management Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 102), s. 77.

Case stated by the stipendiary magistrate for Greenwich. The appellant was the owner of land and houses abutting on Canterbury Road—a “new street” within the district of the respondents. The respondents having resolved to pave the street by virtue of their powers under the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, and the Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1862, estimated the cost of the work and apportioned it upon the several owners of land and houses so situated. The sum apportioned on the land and houses of the appellant was computed at a rate of 14s. 9½d. per foot of frontage. That apportioned on land owned by the Grand Surrey Canal Company, which also abutted on the street, was, it appeared, computed at a rate of 2s. per foot frontage. The minutes of a committee of the vestry contained a resolution that, inasmuch as the land of the canal company was to be shortly given up by the company to form a road to be constructed by the Metropolitan Board of Works it was just to assess this land at an exceptionally low rate. The magistrate, on appeal against the apportionment of 14s. 9½d. on the appellant's land and houses, held that, under the 106th section of the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, and the 77th section of the Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1862, the apportionment was valid, and that he had no jurisdiction to inquire into the principle on which it was made.

Lyon (Gerard Laing with him), for the appellant.

J. V. Austin, for the respondents.

THE COURT (Wills and Grantham, JJ.) held, affirming the decision of the magistrate, that the jurisdiction of the vestry was absolute, and gave judgment for the respondents.

Appeal from Denman, J., at chambers.

Action by landlord against tenant in which the plaintiff claimed (1) possession of the premises; (2) mesne profits; and (3) damages for breach of covenant to repair.

The defence consisted of a general denial of the allegations in the statement of claim; and a further plea that “the defendants bring into court 30l., and say that the same is sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim in this action.”

Denman, J., ordered the defendants to deliver particulars stating in respect of which of the two heads—mesne profits, or damages for non-repair—the 30l. was paid into Court; and if in respect of both, how much for each.

The defendants appealed.

OVERSEERS OF MANCHESTER v. HEADLAM AND LONDON AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY CO.

Poor-rate—Procedure—Distress Warrant.

Rule obtained by the overseers of the poor for Manchester calling on the stipendiary magistrate for Manchester to shew cause why he should not issue a distress warrant for non-payment of rates by the London and North Western Railway Company. The property rated—the company's Victoria Station at Manchester—was rated under the description of “offices and land with rails.” The company had not appealed against the rate, and “offices and land with rails” was an accurate description of the property rated. It appeared, however, on the hearing of the summons, that in estimating the amount of the rate the overseers had treated some station buildings as in the occupation of the London and North Western Railway Company which were in fact in the occupation of another railway company. On this ground the magistrate refused to issue a distress warrant.

Bosanquet, Q.C. (with him E. Sutton), shewed cause.

Gully Q.C., and Smyly, in support of the rule.

Cur. adv. vult.

THE COURT (Wills and Grantham JJ.) held, on the authority of Crease v. Sawle (2 Q. B. 862), that the error in the assessment, if any, was a matter for appeal, and that the rate being good on the face of it the magistrate was bound to issue a distress warrant, and made the rule absolute.

Q. B. Div. WINDHAM v. BAINTON. June 9.

Practice—Costs—Costs of Defendant's Witnesses incurred before Notice of Trial—Discontinuance of Action—Ord. LXV., r. 27, sub-r. 9.

Motion to review a taxation of costs referred to the Court by Cave, J.

Action for injury to river banks by improper dredging. The defendant, who represented Drainage Commissioners, before notice of trial instructed engineers to view the river banks and report on the injury. The plaintiff subsequently discontinued the action without going to trial. The master upon taxation of costs disallowed the defendant's costs incurred in procuring the engineers' evidence on the ground that in practice they were never allowed as between party and party at that stage of the case.

Order LXV., r. 27, sub-r. 9, provides that "such just and reasonable charges and expenses as appear to have been properly incurred in procuring evidence . . . are to be allowed."

R. D. Acland, for the plaintiff.

Henry Sutton, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Manisty and Stephen, JJ.) held that the alleged practice was inconsistent with sub-r. 9, and could not prevail; that "evidence" in the sub-rule included evidence procured before notice of trial whether the case went to trial or not; that the master had a discretion to allow the costs, and before disallowing them ought to have considered whether or not they were properly incurred.

The affidavit of the plaintiff claimed that the documents were privileged as being "acquired and held by" him "in his capacity of governor, and subject to the direction of the Secretary of State," and that "the attention of the Secretary of State has been directed to the nature and dates of the documents, and he has directed me not to produce or disclose them, and to object to their production on the ground of the interest of the State and of the public service, and in consequence of these instructions, and the rules and regulations of the Colonial service, I am unable to produce them." THE COURT (Field and Wills, JJ.) reviewed the authorities at length, and decided, while disclaiming any intention to interfere with the discretion of the judge at the trial, that accepting as they were bound to do, the statements in the affidavit as true, it would, according to the principles laid down, be injurious to the public interest to compel the production of the documents and refused the application.

Inn—Offences—Suffering Gaming—Ignorance of Landlord—

Knowledge of Servant in charge of Premises—Licensing Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 94), s. 17.

Case stated by a stipendiary magistrate.

The appellant, a licensed victualler, was convicted under s. 17 of the Licensing Act, 1872 (35 & 36 Vict. c. 94), by which "If any licensed person suffers any gaming . . . to be carried on on his premises" he is made liable to a penalty.

Gaming took place in a skittle alley attached to the appellant's house, without the knowledge of the appellant, but with the knowledge of his servant, who was employed to manage the skittle alley, and had received general directions from the appellant not to permit gambling.

J. P. Grain, for the appellant.

H. D. Greene, Q.C. (A. T. Lawrence, with him) for the respondent.

THE COURT (Manisty and Stephen, JJ.) held that, as the gaming took place with the knowledge of the appellant's servant, who had charge of the premises, the appellant had suffered gaming to be carried on within the meaning of the statute.

Rule nisi for a certiorari to bring up certain orders of special licensing sessions confirmed at quarter sessions to be quashed.

It appeared that the keeper of a house licensed on and from 1st May, 1869, for the sale of beer on the premises was on the 13th December, 1887, convicted of permitting the premises to be used as a brothel. Applications were made at the next special transfer sessions on behalf of a new tenant, and the landlord respectively, for a grant of a licence or a transfer, but were refused, on the ground that the licence was forfeited on the conviction, and on appeal the quarter sessions affirmed the refusal.

J. Paterson, for the justices, shewed cause.

Silvester appeared for the chief constable, on whom notice of the rule nisi had been served.

J. L. Walton, in support of the rule.

THE COURT (Manisty and Stephen, JJ.) held that by reason of the forfeiture the licence was not "in force" within the meaning of the Wine and Beerhouse Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 27), s. 19, and that the justices therefore had a discretion to refuse the applications, and the refusal was right.

Lunacy—Surplus Income of Lunatic—Allowance to Collaterals.

The lunatic in this matter was a bachelor of upwards of 80 years old, whose next-of-kin were six cousins ex parte paternâ, and four cousins ex parte maternâ. When sane he had been in the habit of making weekly allowances to three of these cousins, and after he had been found of unsound mind the Court continued these allowances. The net income of the lunatic was 1647l. per annum; the amount allowed for his maintenance was 790l., and in a recent report the Master in Lunacy had recommended that the weekly allowances already given to the three cousins above-mentioned should be increased, and that weekly allowances should also be made to certain others of the lunatic's cousins who, according to the evidence, were in extremely indigent circumstances. After payment of all these allowances, increased and otherwise, there would still be a surplus income of 545l. An application was now made by the committee of the lunatic asking (inter alia) that the allowances so recommended by the master might be sanctioned by the Court.

Edward Ford, for the committee.

Decimus Sturges, for two of the persons to be benefited, supported the application, and there was no opposition to it.

THE COURT (Cotton, Bowen, and Fry, L.J.J.) considered that it was not for the Court to deal with the property of a lunatic according to charitable and benevolent principles, and that the jurisdiction to make allowances to collaterals not being next successors to settled land ought to be exercised with the utmost jealousy. There was nothing here to shew that the lunatic would himself have done what the Court was asked to sanction, and the mere fact that these collaterals were in humble circumstances, and had difficulty in providing themselves with necessaries, was not sufficient to justify the Court in making them an allowance. The recommendation of the Master could not be adopted, the application must be refused, and the costs of it could not be allowed.

BUTLER v. MANCHESTER, SHEFFIELD AND LINCOLNSHIRE RAILWAY COMPANY.

Railway Company—Passenger—Ticket, failure to produce—Condition incorporated by Ticket—Forcible Removal from Carriage—Assault—Licence—Easement.

Appeal from judgment of Manisty, J., at the trial. The facts were in substance as follows:—The plaintiff was a passenger by the defendants' railway. He took a return ticket by an excursion train for a journey from Sheffield to Manchester and back. The ticket had on it the words "subject to the conditions contained in the company's time tables and advertisements." One of such conditions was that "every passenger should show and deliver up his ticket to any duly authorized servant of the company when required to do so for any purpose, and any passenger travelling without a ticket, or failing, or refusing to show or deliver up such ticket as aforesaid, should be required to pay the fare from the station whence the train originally started." The plaintiff having lost the return half of his ticket, was unable to produce it on being required to do so during the return journey, by one of the company's servants. The plaintiff was thereupon required to pay the ordinary third class fare from Manchester to Sheffield, and on his declining to do so, was forcibly removed by the defendants' servants from the carriage in which he was travelling, no more force being used than was necessary for his removal. He thereupon brought the action for assault. Manisty, J., gave judgment for the defendants.

Waddy, Q.C., and Lawson Walton, for the plaintiff, contended that the fact that the plaintiff had lost and failed to produce his ticket did not put an end to the contract of carriage; that, the plaintiff being lawfully in the defendants' carriage, the defendants had no right to remove him; and that there was no ground for the implication of any agreement on his part that they should have such right.

Lockwood, Q.C., and Dodd, for the defendants, contended that it was a necessary implication that, on the plaintiff's failing to produce a ticket and refusing to pay the fare as provided in the regulations, the contract of carriage should be at an end, and thereupon the defendants should be entitled to remove the plaintiff from their premises. They also contended that the case fell within the doctrine of Wood v. Leadbitter (13 M. & W. 888).

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Lopes, L.J.J.) held that the defendants could not justify the assault on the plaintiff. They therefore allowed the appeal and reversed the judgment of the learned judge below.

Landlord and Tenant—Lease—Agreement for Lease—Forfeiture—Notice—Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 14.

Appeal from the decision of Charles J. (reported 20 Q. B. D. 585).

The facts were in substance as follows:—The action was for recovery of a house and premises. The defendants were in possession of the premises as tenants under an agreement for a lease which provided that the lease should contain (inter alia) a covenant to keep in repair and a condition for re-entry for breach of such covenant. Rent had been paid in pursuance of the agreement but no lease was ever executed. The premises being out of repair the landlord brought the action to recover possession of them as upon a forfeiture. No notice had been given before action under the 14th section of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881. The learned judge below gave judgment for the plaintiff.

Cavanagh, and Moyses, for the defendants.

Finlay, Q.C. and Lush-Wilson, for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Lopes L.J.J.) held that the 14th section of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, did not apply to a mere agreement for a lease or a tenancy from year to year without an actual lease: that, there being no actual lease of the premises, and no title shewn to a decree for specific performance by execution of a lease, the defendants were not entitled to the protection of the section. They therefore dismissed the appeal.

Appeal dismissed.

Justices—Practice—Case, Application to state—Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 49), s. 33—Summary Jurisdiction Rules, 1886, r. 18.

Appeal from judgment of Queen's Bench Division on case stated by justices under the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, s. 33. The Court below had given judgment for the respondents on the authority of South Staffordshire Waterworks v. Stone (19 Q. B. D.

168) on the ground that they had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, the application for the case not having been made in accordance with the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, sect. 33, and rule 18 of the Summary Jurisdiction Rules, 1886, made under that section. It appeared that, though notice of application for a case in writing had been served on the magistrates' clerk, no notice in writing of such application had been given to the magistrates themselves who made the order complained of.

Grain, and Reg. Kemp, for the appellant.

Lumley Smith, Q.C., and Richard Muir for the respondents.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Lopes, L.J.J.) were of opinion that South Staffordshire Waterworks Company v. Stone (19 Q. B. D. 168) was rightly decided. They therefore held that compliance with the provisions of the rule was a condition precedent to the right of appeal; that the rule had not been complied with; and that therefore the decision of the Court below was correct. They accordingly dismissed the appeal.

Practice—Costs as between Solicitor and Client—Jurisdiction—Action against Trustees of Charity Fund.

This was an appeal on a question of costs from a decision of Kay, J. (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 251).

The action was brought by the vicar and churchwardens of a parish, to recover from the defendants, the members of a local committee, a sum of 16*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.* which had been handed over to them for a charitable purpose. The plaintiffs alleged that the money had been handed over to the defendants subject to a condition which had become impossible of fulfilment. At the trial they failed to make out their case, and the action was dismissed with costs as between solicitor and client.

From this judgment, so far as it ordered the costs to be paid between solicitor and client, the defendants appealed.

Renshaw, Q.C., and Swinfen Eady, for the appellants.

Marten, Q.C., and Worthington, for the respondents.

Fry, L.J., delivered the judgment of the Court (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes, L.J.J.), in which the Court held that, at the time of the abolition of the Court of Chancery by the Judicature Acts, there was inherent in that Court a general and discretionary power to award costs as between solicitor and client, to a successful party, and that Kay, J., therefore, had jurisdiction to make the order which he pronounced, and consequently that the appeal failed. As the nature of the suit was one of equitable jurisdiction, the question whether the Judges of the High Court have any power to award costs as between solicitor and client in matters of common law jurisdiction did not arise, and the Court expressed no opinion on that point.

In re SOUTH LONDON FISH MARKET COMPANY.

Company — Director — Qualification — Winding-up — Company formed by Act of Parliament—Fraudulent Transfer of Qualifying Shares—Companies Act, 1862, s. 199.

By a local Act of Parliament passed in 1882, reciting that the establishment of a market on a site specified would be advantageous to the inhabitants of the neighbourhood and of the southern part of the metropolis, a company, including P. and seven other persons, was incorporated and authorized to construct a market; and it was provided that P. and the seven other persons should be the first directors of the company, and should continue in office until the first general meeting; that the qualification of a director should be the possession of 40 shares in his own right, and that the preliminary expenses of obtaining the Act should be paid by the company. By one of the sections of the Act, reciting that it was desirable to make provision for proper approaches to the market, it was provided that the company should execute certain works in the nature of street improvements by a specified time, and in default of doing so should forfeit and pay certain penalties to the vestry of the parish in which the market was to be. The scheme proved altogether abortive; none of the proposed works were executed; no shares were taken by the public, and no general meeting was ever held. The vestry brought an action against the company to recover penalties under the Act, and judgment for 750*l.* was given against the company. P. had defrayed the preliminary expenses. While the action was pending, and before judgment, the eight directors held meetings at which they allotted to each of themselves the 40 qualification shares, made a call on the shares, and paid the same, and applied the money in payment of the expenses. Five of them, including P., then transferred their shares to a nominee, thus reducing the number of the members below seven. The transfers were expressed to be in consideration of a sum paid not by, but to, the transferee.

The vestry, being unable to recover under their judgment, presented a petition for the winding-up of the company.

On behalf of the company it was contended that as the company did not consist of more than seven members there was no jurisdiction under sect. 199 of the Companies Act of 1862, to make a winding-up order. The petitioners contended that the transfers by the directors were fraudulent and invalid; that there were, therefore, in fact, seven members of the company, and that a winding-up order ought to be made.

Marten, Q.C., and F. Beaumont, for the petitioners.

Ince, Q.C., and Haldane, for the company.

KAY, J., referred to the dicta of Lord Romilly, M.R., and Giffard, L.J., in Gilbert's Case (Law Rep. 5 Ch. 559, at pp. 558, 565) as shewing that a director cannot deal so freely with his qualification shares as shareholders in general can with their shares, and said that a director who voluntarily and without consideration transfers his qualification shares in order to escape liability commits a fraud. He held that the transfers in question were fraudulent and void. Referring to the case of In re The Free Fishermen of Faversham (36 Ch. D. 329) he said, that it was much more for the public benefit that this company should be wound up than that it should carry on a lingering existence unable to pay its debts. He accordingly made the usual winding-up order.

JOHNSTON v. HILL.

Will—Gift to Children of any Son of Tenant for Life—Remoteness—Tenant for Life past child-bearing—Admissibility of Evidence.

A testator by his will dated 21st September, 1866, devised and bequeathed his real and personal estate to trustees upon trust for sale, conversion, and investment, and declared that they should out of the annual income of the trust funds pay Petition by the Duke of Richmond for the payment to him of a sum of 2258*l.*, which had been paid into Court under the Trustee Relief Act.

The Duke was the survivor of two trustees of a term of one hundred years, if the Earl of Winchilsea should so long live, in certain settled estates, upon trust for the payment of the rents to the Earl, until he should assign or charge the estates or the rents, or should do or suffer anything whereby the estates or the rents, if vested in or payable to himself, would become vested in or payable to some other person, and, after the determination of this trust, upon certain discretionary trusts for the benefit of the Earl and his wife and children. By the "Earl of Winchilsea's Estate Act, 1865" (28 & 29 Vict. c. 2, Private Acts), it was provided that the Earl might, with the consent of the trustees of the term, raise for certain purposes in the Act mentioned, on the security during the life of the Earl of all or any part of the settled estates comprised in the term, and, if necessary, with the collateral security of any assurances on the life of the Earl, any sums not exceeding in the whole 50,000*l.*, besides the expenses of raising and securing the same, and that, in order to secure the repayment of the sums so raised, with interest, and the moneys payable for effecting and keeping on foot the assurances, the Earl, with the like consent, might mortgage for his life the settled estates, or any part thereof, to the persons advancing the principal sums, and that the mortgages should be paramount to the term. The Act also provided that, from and after its passing, the trustees might and should make such provision as they from time to time should think proper for the application, during the life of the Earl, of a sufficient part of the rents of the settled estates, (1), for the payment from time to time of the interest on certain already existing incumbrances on the estates, and subject thereto, (2), for the payment of the expenses of the execution of the Act, and subject thereto, (3), for the payment from time to time of the interest on the principal sums raised by the Earl, with the consent of the trustees, under the Act, and of the premiums on the policies of assurance constituting the collateral security for the repayment of those principal sums.

In December, 1865, the Earl, with the consent of the trustees, under the powers of the Act, raised 50,000*l.* by a mortgage of part of the settled estates and of two policies of insurance, for 7000*l.* and 48,000*l.*, on his life. The mortgage deed reserved the equity of redemption in the policies to the Earl. The trustees of the term entered into receipt of the rents of the estates, and thereout, so far as the same would extend, paid the interest on the charges affecting the estates, and the premiums on the policies. In October, 1870, the Earl was adjudicated a bankrupt. In March, 1886, the Duke's co-trustee died. In December, 1886, a premium of 2290*l.* became due in respect of the policy of 48,000*l.* The Duke had no trust moneys in his hands applicable to the payment of the premiums, the rents of the estates being insufficient to keep down the interest on the charges on the estates, and the premiums on the policies. In order to save the policy from lapsing, the Duke, in January 1887, paid the premium out of his own moneys. He made the payment voluntarily, without any request either by the mortgagees or by the trustee in the bankruptcy of the Earl. The Earl died in June, 1887. In September, 1887, the mortgagees received 55,000*l.*, the amount of the two policies; and, after retaining what was due to them upon their security, they paid the surplus into Court. The trustee in the bankruptcy claimed the amount in Court, and the Duke claimed to be entitled to receive it in part repayment of the premium which he had paid.

Cookson-Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and Farwell, for the petitioner.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and H. Terrell, for the trustee in the bankruptcy, were not called on.

Hornell, for the mortgagees.

NORTH, J., said that the judgment of Fry, L.J., in In re Leslie (23 Ch. D. 552), which had been approved by the Court of Appeal in Falcke v. Scottish Imperial Insurance Company (34 Ch. D. 234), had laid down exhaustively all the cases in which a person (not the absolute beneficial owner) who paid the premium on a policy of insurance out of his own money was entitled to a lien on the proceeds of the policy for the amount which he had paid. One of those cases, under which, it was contended, the payment made by the Duke came, was "the right of trustees to an indemnity out of their trust property for money expended by them in its preservation." But the Duke was not a trustee of the policy money, and that money was not trust money. He was not entitled to any lien for money expended in the preservation of that which was not a trust fund. The petition must be dismissed.

HILTON v. TUCKER.

June 13

Chattels stored in a Room as Security for Loan—Delivery of Key—Memorandum of Transaction—Pledge or Bill of Sale.

In November and December, 1883, the plaintiff advanced to S. Tucker, a member of the Archaeological Society, the sum of 2500*l.*, on the security of a valuable collection of engravings, and in pursuance of the agreement between them S. Tucker hired a room in Oxford Mansions in which the collection was placed. S. Tucker paid the rent of the room and employed and paid one Larking to make a catalogue of the collection, and on the 21st December, 1883, wrote to the plaintiff as follows: "The collection was moved in to-day, and I have arranged with Larking to spend—subject to your approval—a certain time in the room each day in making a list. This I shall afterwards edit into a perfect Catalogue. Larking has the key, which I place entirely at your disposal." On the 11th January 1884, S. Tucker handed the plaintiff the following letter: "You having advanced to me the sum of 2500*l.* . . . I hereby request and authorize you to retain possession of my collection of engraved portraits, prints, and other property now deposited by me in a certain room in Oxford Mansions, Oxford-st., the key of which room is now in your possession or power, and I hereby acknowledge that you are to retain possession of such portraits, prints and property until the whole of the said sum of 2500*l.* with interest thereon at 5 per cent. per annum shall have been repaid to you." In 1885 S. Tucker died and the defendant was his legal personal representative. The plaintiff did not obtain actual possession of the key until after S. Tucker's death. Doubts having arisen as to the validity of the plaintiff's security this action was brought to determine that question.

Henn Collins, Q.C., and Bradford, for the plaintiff:—The transaction was one of pledge. The letter of the 11th January 1884, was merely a record of the facts. The delivery of the key to Larking was constructive delivery of the goods to the plaintiff.

Barber, Q.C. and A. W. Rowden, for the defendant:—The transaction rests on the letter of the 11th January, 1884, which is void under sects. 8 and 9 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1882. To perfect a transaction of pledge, possession must be contemporaneous with the pledge. The property in and possession of the goods did not pass to the plaintiff by delivery of the key to Larking.

Henn Collins, in reply.

Kewton, J., held that the Bills of Sale Act, 1882, did not apply. The transaction was one of pledge. There was no authority for saying that delivery of possession must be actually contemporaneous with the pledge. The handing of the key to Larking was constructive delivery of the goods to the plaintiff, who therefore held a valid security for his money. There must be judgment for the plaintiff with costs.

Appeal from a decision of the judge on the trial of an interpleader issue remitted to the Clerkenwell County Court.

Haydon, the execution creditor, claimed under a judgment obtained in January, 1888, under which the sheriff had levied on the goods in question, the household furniture of the execution debtor, Brown, and 40l. was paid into Court to abide the result of the interpleader. Eyre, the claimant, claimed that the goods were his property under the following circumstances. In November, 1887, Eyre had obtained judgment against Brown for 47l. Brown's furniture having been taken in execution, Eyre agreed with Mrs. Brown to buy it from Brown for 200l., and then to let it to Mrs. Brown under a hiring agreement by which she was to pay him the purchase-money and interest by instalments. In order to carry out this agreement Brown gave the sheriff an authority to sell all the furniture in two lots, and Eyre paid the sheriff 200l. by cheque—118l. 2s. 6d. in respect of one lot, 81l. 17s. 6d. in respect of the other. An order was made in the action for the sale of the goods seized by private contract; and the sheriff, after retaining the amount of the levy for the statutory fourteen days, paid Eyre the sum due under the execution, and also a sum due to him under a bill of sale, and gave him two receipts with inventories in respect of the two lots, for the purchase-money of the furniture, &c. The documents were not registered. Certain payments under the hiring agreement appeared to have been made by Mrs. Brown. The judge held, on the authority of North Central Wagon Company v. Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Railway Company (35 Ch. D. 191), that there had been a sale irrespective of the receipts and inventories, and that the documents did not constitute a bill of sale within the meaning of the Bills of Sale Acts.

THE COURT (Manisty and Stephen, JJ.) differed. STEPHEN, J., held that the above case applied, and that the claimant was entitled to the goods.

STEPHEN, J., withdrawing his judgment, the appeal was allowed, and leave to appeal was given.

Q. B. D. COLE v. MILES. June 19.

Trespass on Railway—Right of Way across—Bonâ fide Claim of Right—Conviction—Jurisdiction of Justices—Ouster of—Extinguishment of Way.

Case stated by justices under 42 & 43 Vict. c. 49, s. 33, on appeal against a conviction of the appellant for unlawful and wilful trespass on the respondent's railway contrary to 45 & 46 Vict. c. cxxiv., s. 38, as amended by 46 & 47 Vict. c. cxliii., s. 50, and 31 & 32 Vict. c. 119, s. 23, as amended by 34 & 35 Vict. c. 78.

At the hearing of the charges for which the appellant had been convicted the justices found that he trespassed by crossing over the railway embankment; that, prior to the making of it, a public right of footway had existed over the land occupied by the embankment, and that the appellant crossed the railway in assertion of the right and believing that he was entitled to do so by virtue thereof; but the justices held that there was not such a claim of right as to oust their jurisdiction; that the right of way even if it still existed would not be an answer to the charge, and that the right of way was intended to be extinguished and was in fact extinguished by the Acts authorizing the making of the railway.

The question was whether the justices were wrong in convicting the appellant.

Bowen Rowlands, Q.C. (R. C. Glen with him) for appellant.

Finlay, Q.C. (Asquith with him) for respondents.

THE COURT (Cave and Wills, JJ.) held that the conviction was wrong, because (1) a question of title was raised on which the justices ought not to have adjudicated, and (2) there were no provisions in the Railway Acts having the effect of extinguishing the right of way.

Conviction quashed.

Q. B. Div. HENDERSON v. PRESTON. June 19, 20.

False Imprisonment—Governor of Prison—Time from which Sentence runs—Prison Acts, 1865, 1877.

Argument of a point of law raised on the pleadings.

The action was one for false imprisonment brought by the plaintiff against the governor of the Lancaster county prison. The plaintiff, having been found guilty of obstructing a highway, was sentenced to pay a fine and costs, or, in default, to seven days imprisonment. He was arrested on the 24th of August, was received into the prison on the 25th of August, and was discharged on the 1st of September, 1887.

It was contended on the plaintiff's behalf that the imprisonment dated from the day on which he was arrested, 24th of August, and that consequently his detention during August 31st was illegal. For the defendant reliance was placed on the words of the warrant by which, as governor, he was "to receive" the plaintiff "into his custody, and keep him for the space of seven days unless the sum, &c. be sooner paid." If the imprisonment commenced on August 25th, the detention during August 31st was legal.

Gye, for the plaintiff.

R. S. Wright, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Manisty and Stephen, JJ.), after reviewing the authorities, which appeared to be conflicting, gave judgment for the defendant.

GUARDIANS OF POOR OF SOUTHAMPTON v. BELL & TAYLOR.

Poor Law—Guardians—Employment of Solicitor by Guardians—Costs, Taxation—Taxation by Clerk of the Peace—7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, ss. 32, 35, 39—Solicitors Act (6 & 7 Vict. c. 78), s. 37.

Argument of a point of law raised on the pleadings.

The action was brought by the plaintiffs, the guardians of the poor of Southampton, against the defendants, their solicitor, for money had and received, the sum claimed being a balance alleged to be due out of 600*l.* paid by the plaintiffs to the defendants for the purposes of an action.

It appeared that the sum claimed back was the balance remaining after deducting the costs allowed by the clerk of the peace of Hampshire on taxation under 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, s. 39.

The section is as follows: "On application of any overseer or of any board of guardians, or of any attorney-at-law, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the peace of the county or place, or his deputy, if thereunto required, to tax any bill due to any solicitor or attorney in respect of business performed on behalf of any parish or union situate wholly or in part within such county or place; and the allowance of any sum on such taxation shall be prima facie evidence of the reasonableness of the amount, but not of the legality of the charge; and if any such bill be not taxed before it is presented to the auditor, the auditor's decision on the reasonableness as well as the legality of the charges shall be final."

The defendants claimed that the costs allowed by the clerk of the peace were unreasonably low, that they were not bound by his allowances, and that they were entitled as between solicitor and client to have the costs taxed in the High Court under the Solicitors Act (6 & 7 Vict. c. 78), s. 37.

Gye, for the plaintiffs.

J. Alderson Foote, for the defendants.

THE COURT (Manisty and Stephen, JJ.) held that the defendants were not bound by the taxation of the clerk of the peace, and made an order for taxation under the Solicitors Act.

Solicitors for the plaintiffs: Braikenridge, for Harefield Southampton.

Solicitors for the defendants: Emanuel, Round & Nathan.

CROOME v. CROOME.

Will—Gift in Trust for Particular Purpose—Resulting Trust—Parol Evidence.

This was an appeal from a decision of Stirling, J., on the construction of the will of J. Croome (ante, p. 37).

The testator gave to his brother all his real estate, on trust nevertheless to pay thereout two sums of 800*l.* and 300*l.*, and also on trust to pay certain annuities, and he gave all his personal estate, after payment of his funeral expenses and all his just debts, except the two above-mentioned sums of 800*l.* and 300*l.*, to his said brother and his sister, share and share alike.

Stirling, J., held, that, on the construction of the will, there was a resulting trust of the real estate, so far as it was not required for payment of the sums charged on it, for the heir-at-law; and that parol evidence was not admissible to shew a contrary intention on the part of the testator.

The testator's brother, the devisee, appealed.

W. Pearson, Q.C., and Robert Swan, for the appellant.

Hastings, Q.C., and Theobald, for the heir-at-law.

THE COURT (Cotton, Bowen, and Fry, L.JJ.), without giving any opinion on the admissibility of parol evidence, held, that as the construction of the will the testator shewed an intention that the devisee should take the real estate, not simply as a trustee for the particular purpose of paying the charges, but as beneficial owner, subject to payment of the charges. They therefore reversed the decision of the Court below.

Practice—Costs—Administration Action—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LXV. r. 11.

This was an appeal by the plaintiff from a decision of Kay, J. (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 251.)

Everitt, Q.C., and J. S. Colquhoun, for the appeal.

S. B. L. Druce, for the respondents, was not called upon.

THE COURT (Cotton, Bowen and Fry, L.JJ.) held that as there was no ground for disturbing the order appealed from on any point other than costs, the Court could not entertain an appeal as to the costs incurred since the Orders of 1883 came into operation. As to the costs incurred before that period the Court held that as the plaintiff had taken no steps to obtain the decision of the Court on the question whether certain investments were improper, of which investments he had complained before the commencement of the action, but had only proposed inquiries as to them at the hearing for further consideration he had been guilty of such misconduct as justified the refusal of costs. The appeal was therefore dismissed.

County Court—Committal for Contempt—Wilful Insult to Judge—Jurisdiction of Appellate Court—Form of Warrant—County Courts Act (9 & 10 Vict. c. 95), ss. 111, 113.

Appeal from the refusal of a Divisional Court (Cave and A. Smith, JJ.), of a rule to bring into the Queen's Bench Division for the purpose of quashing it, an order made by the judge of the County Court at Newcastle-under-Lyme to commit the solicitor for contempt of Court.

An action had been brought in the County Court by a client against the solicitor for the recovery of 10*l.*, which the plaintiff said that she had paid to him for the specific purpose of obtaining counsel's opinion, and which he had applied to his general costs. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, and the solicitor applied to the judge for new trial. The judge refused the application, and the solicitor then said that he was about to take proceedings against the plaintiff for perjury. The judge thereupon said that he would have found the same verdict himself, for he considered that the solicitor had got the 10l. from the plaintiff in order to obtain counsel's opinion, which he did not get. Thereupon the solicitor said, "That is a most unjust remark." The judge replied, "I fine you 5l. or 6 days; this is a most gross contempt of Court." Subsequently the judge said to the solicitor: "You have publicly insulted me. If you apologise publicly, I will not issue the warrant to send you to prison." The solicitor, however, refused to apologise. The next day he was lodged in Stafford Gaol upon a warrant signed by the judge, which was absolute in form, and did not say that he was committed until payment of the fine. On the third day he was released by order of the judge. He obtained a rule nisi to shew cause why the order and commitment should not be quashed. The Divisional Court held that there were reasonable grounds for considering that the solicitor had wilfully insulted the judge, and that the warrant was in the proper form.

The solicitor appealed.

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., W. Willis, Q.C., R. Vaughan Williams, and Carrington, for the appellant.

Henn Collins, Q.C., and C. A. Russell, for the judge.

THE COURT (Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal.

LINDLEY, L.J., said that, if there was before the judge anything from which he could reasonably infer that a wilful insult had been offered to him, the Court could not go behind his decision that there had been a contempt. In the present case it was impossible to say that there were no materials from which the judge might infer that he had been wilfully insulted.

It was objected that the warrant was bad in form, because it was for an absolute committal, and not for a committal until the fine was paid, in accordance with the original order of the judge. But by sect. 113 of the Act the only power which the judge had to fine or to commit was by warrant under his hand and the seal of the Court. That applied equally to fine and committal. Therefore, when the Judge said that he fined the solicitor, it was absolutely inoperative until the warrant was issued. The judge might at any time before issuing the warrant alter his decision and commit him instead of fining him. The warrant was for absolute committal. His Lordship was disposed to think that the warrant would not have been in the right form, if the committal had been till payment of a fine, but no fine was imposed, since it could only be imposed by warrant.

LOPES, L.J., thought that there was reasonable ground in law for holding that the expression addressed to the judge was contemptuous. The inference had been drawn by the judge that it was contemptuous, and this Court could not review his conclusion. As to the warrant, it was clear, that, until it was issued, the solicitor could not have been arrested, nor the fine recovered from him. All that passed before the warrant was issued was absolutely inoperative, and the warrant was good.

LINDLEY, L.J., added that he doubted whether this was not a criminal matter, and, if so, the Court ought not to have entertained the appeal. The point had not occurred to him before.

Henn Collins, Q.C., said he did not think it right to take the objection on behalf of the judge.

LINDLEY, L.J.: This case must not be taken as a precedent for hearing such an appeal.

LOPES, L.J., concurred.

Bankruptcy—Married Woman trading separately—Separate Property—Settlement—Life Estate—Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 75), s. 1, sub-s. 5, s. 19.

The bankrupt carried on business separately from her husband. On her marriage, property had been settled on her for life for her separate use, and after her decease as she should appoint, with remainders over in default of appointment. There was no clause in the settlement restraining her from anticipation. The question was whether her life estate passed to the trustee in bankruptcy. The County Court judge, to whom application was made, decided that the property did not pass to the trustee. A Divisional Court on appeal considered themselves bound by the judgments in In re Armstrong, Ex parte Glüchist (17 Q. B. D. 167, reversed on appeal, but on a different ground, 17 Q. B. D. 521), and reversed the decision of the County Court. On appeal, Ribton, for the bankrupt.

Yate Lee, for the trustee.

Held (by Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ., Lord Esher, M.R., dissenting), that the trustee was claiming under the settlement, and not adversely to it, and did not therefore "interfere with or affect" it within the meaning of sect. 19 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, and that the life interest of the bankrupt passed to him. The decision of the Divisional Court was therefore affirmed.

Mortgage—Attornment Clause—Bill of Sale—Registration—Bills of Sale Act, 1878, ss. 3, 4, 6.

Appeal from a decision of Cave, J. (ante, p. 123). The question was, whether an attornment clause in a mortgage deed was void as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the mortgagor, on the ground that the deed had not been registered as a bill of sale. It was admitted that the attornment was at the fair rent of the property. Cave, J., held that the proceeds of a distress levied by the mortgagee by virtue of the attornment must be paid over to the trustee in the bankruptcy. He was of opinion that the proviso at the end of sect. 6 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, applied only to a case in which the mortgagee, being first in actual possession of the property, had demised it to the mortgagor. It did not apply to a possession only by virtue of the attornment.

The mortgagee appealed.

French, Q.C., and R. O. B. Lane, for the appellant.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and Boydell Houghton, for the trustee.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ.), affirmed the decision.

LINDLEY and LOPES, L.JJ., agreed with the construction which Cave, J., had given to sect. 6.

Lord ESHER, M.R., said that he would not dissent from the decision, but he felt very great doubt.

THE COURT gave leave to appeal to the House of Lords.

THE QUEEN v. THE COMMISSIONERS FOR SPECIAL PURPOSES OF THE INCOME TAX.

Revenue—Income Tax—Repayment of Income Tax—Computation of Profits—Time within which Overpayment must be proved—5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 133—"At the end of the year."

Appeal from the order of the Queen's Bench Division (reported 20 Q. B. D. 549), discharging a rule for a mandamus. The facts were as follows:

By the 133rd section of 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, if, within or "at the end of the year" of assessment, any person charged with duty under Schedule D. shall find and shall prove to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, by whom the assessment was made, that his profits during such year, for which the computation was made, fell short of the sum computed, it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners to amend the assessment, and, if the sum assessed has been paid, to certify the amount overpaid to the Commissioners for Special Purposes, who are thereupon to issue their order for repayment of such sum. The applicants, an English company working mines abroad, made in March, 1887, an application under the above section for certificates in respect of overpayments of income tax assessed on profits for the years ending respectively April 5, 1884, and April 5, 1885, and the Commissioners, by whom the assessments were made, having inquired into the case, gave them certificates under the section. The Commissioners for Special Purposes refused to issue orders for repayment on such certificates on the ground that they were made without jurisdiction, the company not having found and proved that their profits in the respective years fell short of the sum computed "within or at the end of the year" as required by the section. On application for a mandamus to the Commissioners for Special Purposes to issue their orders for repayment,

THE Divisional Court (Cave and Grantham, JJ.) were divided in opinion; and, the latter withdrawing his judgment, the rule for a mandamus was discharged.

Sir Horace Davey, Q.C., Meadows White, Q.C., and Pollard, for the applicants, the company.

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., Sir E. Clarke, S.G., and T. Hewitt, for the Commissioners.

Our. adv. vult.

June 23. THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley, L.J.) reversed the order of the Court below, holding that mandamus would lie and that the applicants were entitled to a mandamus.

LORD ESHER, M.R., was of opinion that the expression "at the end of the year" as used in sect. 133 does not mean at any time after the end of the year, or, on the other hand, within any limit of time generally applicable, but as soon after the end of the year as, having regard to the circumstances of the particular case, is practicable by the use of due exertion, and that the Commissioners for General Purposes who made the assessment were given by the section jurisdiction finally to determine whether the period of time contemplated by the section so interpreted had or had not been exceeded.

LINDLEY, L.J., agreed with the interpretation of the expression "at the end of the year" given by Lord Esher, M.R., and, while doubting whether the Commissioners for General Purposes were made final judges of the question, he was of opinion that, the certificates having been granted, the onus was thrown on those impeaching their validity of shewing that the period given by the section so interpreted had been exceeded, and that the mere fact that the application for the certificates had not been made till the date at which it was made was not sufficient to sustain this onus. The appeal was therefore allowed.

The action was brought to recover 66*l.* The plaintiff had had judgment under Order XIV. for 28*l.*, and the defendant paid that sum. BJORKMAN v. LORD KIMBERLEY.

Will—Construction—Testamentary Appointment—"Clear" Sum—"Residue."

A testatrix, having a general power of testamentary appointment over the funds comprised in a settlement, by her will, dated in 1871, directed and appointed that the trustees of the settlement should stand possessed of so much and such part of the trust funds as should be of the "clear value" of 1000*l.* sterling, in trust to pay or transfer the same to the trustees of her will, and declared that they should hold the same upon trust to pay or transfer the same to a named person. She made other appointments of other "clear" sums in similar language upon different trusts, and directed and appointed that the trustees of the settlement should stand possessed of "all the residue of the said trust funds" in trust to pay and transfer the same to the trustees of her will, who were to hold the same upon certain trusts for the benefit of the plaintiff and her children. The question was whether the trustees of the will were entitled to deduct and pay out of the "residue" the probate and legacy duties payable in respect of the whole of the trust funds and also the testamentary expenses of the testatrix.

Ince, Q.C., and Alexander Young, for the plaintiff.

Marten, Q.C., and Nalder, for the trustees of the will.

KAY, J., held that the effect of the word "clear," used in reference to the several appointed sums, was to throw upon the appointed portion described as "residue" the liability of discharging all outgoing which would otherwise have fallen on the previous appointees, as well under the will as under the settlement, and that the duties and expenses in question were payable out of such residue.

Company—Reduction of Capital—Nominal Capital unaltered—Paid-up Capital reduced by return of Money to Shareholders on Footing that same might be called up again—Companies Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 131), ss. 9, 11, 16—Companies Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 26), s. 8.

This was a petition by the above company for the confirmation by the Court of a resolution for the reduction of the company's capital of 480,000*l.* divided into 30,000 shares of 16*l.* each, the whole of which had been issued and allotted, and upon each of which 14*l.* had been paid up. The capital being in excess of what the company, it was resolved to pay off or return to the shareholders 3*l.* of the amount paid up, upon the footing that the amount so paid off or returned might be called up again. Upon the petition coming on to be heard on June 16th, Kay, J., expressed a doubt whether the Court had power to sanction such a reduction of capital.

Millar, Q.C., and G. T. Millar, in support of the petition, stated that such a reduction had been held to be a reduction of capital within the meaning of the Companies Acts, 1867 and 1877, and referred to previous cases cited in Palmer's Company Law, 3rd ed., p. 200.

The petition stood over in order that the orders made in the previous cases might be referred to.

June 23. Millar, Q.C., and G. T. Millar, now produced the original orders which had been made by Hall, V.C., Kay, J., Hilly, J., and North, J., and in the Palatine Court of Lancaster, in similar cases.

KAY, J., said that he must hold himself bound by the authority of those cases, and made the order as prayed.

CHIFFERIEL v. WATSON.

Practice—Adjournment from Chambers into Court—Affidavits filed after Hearing by Chief Clerk—Time for filing Affidavits fixed by Chief Clerk.

Summons by a purchaser of property, sold in the action under the direction of the Court, asking for a declaration that he was entitled to compensation in respect of an alleged misstatement as to the property in the particulars of sale, and that the amount of the compensation might be determined. The summons was heard by the Chief Clerk on the 19th of March, and on the 20th of March, he expressed his opinion that the purchaser was entitled to compensation. At the request of the vendors, the summons was adjourned to the judge. No order was made fixing the time within which affidavits were to be filed. On the 15th of May, the vendors filed two fresh affidavits. The adjourned summons now came on for hearing.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and G. Harris Lea, for the purchaser.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Beaumont, for the vendors, proposed to read the new affidavits.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., objected that evidence filed after the discussion before the Chief Clerk could not be received: In re Munns and Longden (Weekly Notes, 1884, p. 117).

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., contended that, as either party had a right to go before the judge, any evidence filed before the hearing by the judge could be used, no time having been fixed for the filing of evidence.

NORTH, J., said that he would allow the new affidavits to be used, on the terms of the vendors paying the costs of the day. The purchaser must have an opportunity of answering them, and he must file his evidence in reply within ten days. If in any case the chief clerk had made an order fixing the time within which evidence was to be filed that would have the same effect as an order made by the judge, provided that the parties did not ask for a reference to the judge, and there could be no doubt that the judge in chambers had power to fix a time within which evidence was to be filed. In future his Lordship would not allow any affidavits to be used which had been filed after the time fixed by the chief clerk, unless he himself or the chief clerk gave special leave to use them. If no time had been fixed, this rule would not apply to evidence filed after the hearing by the chief clerk, but each such case must be dealt with as it arose.

[Mr. Lavie, the Registrar in Court, referred to a manuscript note of In re Travis, O'Sullivan v. Young (C. A. No. 2, 6 May, 1885) in which, objection having been taken to the reading of an affidavit which had not been before the chief clerk, Cotton, L.J., said that all affidavits filed before the matter came before the judge in Court could be properly read, if notice of the intention to read them had been given, though they had not been used before the chief clerk. No time had been fixed in that case.]

LEDBROOK v. PASSMAN.

Mortgagor and Mortgagee—Successive Incumbrancers—Assignment from Purchaser for Value without Notice—Trustee for Mortgagor—Tacking.

This was an action for redemption in which the question was whether the defendant P., in whom certain incumbrances, admitted to be prior to that of the plaintiff, had become vested, was entitled to tack an incumbrance posterior in date to the plaintiff's, of which that defendant was also transferee, and on the security of which B., the original incumbrancer, was alleged to have made his advance without notice of the plaintiff's security.

Hastings, Q.C., and Lambert, for the plaintiff.

Robinson, Q.C., and F. H. Colt, for the defendant.

STIRLING, J., assumed that B. at the time of the advance and security had no notice of the plaintiff's charge, and said that it was old law that, as a general rule a purchaser for value without notice can for valuable consideration assign to another who has notice the benefit of his own position; but from this general rule there were certain recognised exceptions. The mortgagor could not, by taking an assignment from a purchaser for value, squeeze out one of his own incumbrancers; and his Lordship held that under the facts of the case, the defendant P., as trustee under a certain deed for X., the mortgagor, stood so nearly in the position of X. that in his dealings with any of X.'s mortgagees he must be taken to be acting on X.'s behalf, and so could not prejudice or defeat the rights of X.'s mortgagees any more than X. himself could. His Lordship therefore held that the defendant P. was not entitled to tack as against the plaintiff.

J. Fleming had deposited with a banking company the title deeds of a house by way of security for advances. He died in 1881 owing 8000*l.* to the banking company, and his widow and executrix gave to the banking company a memorandum of deposit of the deeds and a bill of exchange for 8000*l.*, and she had other dealings with the banking company. Mrs. Fleming died in 1887.

The banking company brought this action against the personal representatives of Mr. Fleming and of Mrs. Fleming to enforce the security given by J. Fleming.

Warrington, Q.C., and G. Henderson, for the banking company.

R. Neville, Q.C., and Galey, for the defendants, contended that the banking company had taken the liability of Mrs. Fleming in substitution for the securities given by Mr. Fleming.

KEKEWICH, J., held on the facts that the company did not intend to give up Mr. Fleming's security on his debt. When bankers hold a security from a customer, the Court would not hold that the security had been given up, and personal liability accepted in substitution for the security, unless there was cogent evidence of a release by the bankers.

Judicial Separation—Wife's Separate Property—Inquiry by the Registrar as to Title—Married Women's Property Act, 1882, s. 17.

In this case the petitioner—the wife—on April 21st, 1888, obtained a decree for a judicial separation on the ground of her husband's cruelty. On March 6th the petitioner obtained an order restraining her husband from dealing with the furniture then in his house, which the petitioner alleged to be her separate property. Subsequent to the decree, the petitioner gave notice of motion for an order on the respondent to deliver up the furniture, but the respondent having claimed the furniture as his own, an application was made for an inquiry as to the title to the furniture.

Middleton, for the petitioner, referred to sect. 17 of the Married Women's Property Act, which "in any question between husband and wife as to the title to or possession of property," empowers the judge to direct "any inquiry touching the matters in question to be made in such manner as he shall think fit."

BUTT, J., said the proper course would be to direct an inquiry by the registrar as to the title to the furniture, and to order the application for the delivery up of the furniture to stand over until after the registrar's report.

GRAND JUNCTION CANAL CO. v. PETTY AND OTHERS.

Highway—Dedication, Power to make—Land vested in Company for Statutory Purposes.

Appeal from order of Queen's Bench Division refusing a new trial or to enter judgment for the plaintiffs.

The facts were, so far as material, as follows:

The action was for trespass on the plaintiffs' towing-path, the defence being that the locus in quo was a public footway and the alleged trespasses were committed in the exercise of the public right of way. The plaintiffs were a canal company and were authorized by their Acts to acquire land by agreement or compulsorily for the purpose of making certain canals and towing-paths. They had accordingly acquired the locus in quo and used the same for the purposes of a towing-path under their statutory powers. Evidence was given shewing user of the towing-path as a footway by the public during a long period of time. The plaintiffs contended (inter alia) that they had no power to dedicate. The question whether there was a dedication by the plaintiffs being left by the learned Judge at the trial to the jury, they found that there had been such a dedication. No evidence appeared to have been given that the use of the towing-path as a footpath by the public was in any way inconsistent with its use by the plaintiffs for the purposes specified in their Acts of Parliament. The learned judge entered judgment for the defendants on the finding of the jury.

Application was made to the Queen's Bench Division for a new trial on the ground of misdirection, or to enter judgment for the plaintiffs for nominal damages, but the Divisional Court (Lord Coleridge, C.J. and Mathew, J.), refused the application.

W. Graham, and Etherington Smith, for the plaintiffs, contended that, where a statute authorizes a company to take land compulsorily for specific purposes, they cannot apply it to other purposes, and therefore cannot dedicate it to the public as a highway. They cited Mulliner v. Midland Railway Company (11 Ch. D. 611), and Bostock v. North Staffordshire Railway Company (4 E. & B. 798).

Hammond-Chambers, for the defendants.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Lopes, L.J.J.) held, following the decision in B. v. Inhabitants of Leake (5 B. & Ad. 469), that land acquired under an Act of Parliament by a company for the purposes of their undertaking as specified by such Act may be dedicated by them as a public highway, if such use by the public be not incompatible with the objects prescribed by their Act, and that the plaintiffs had power to dedicate the locus in quo as a public footpath subject to its use by them as a towing-path. They therefore dismissed the appeal.

Appeal dismissed.

Action for Breach of Promise of Marriage—Promise by Infant—Ratification or New Promise after Full Age—Intention—Question for Jury—Infants' Relief Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 62), s. 2.

Appeal by the plaintiff against an order of a Divisional Court (Huddleston, B., and Charles, J.) to enter judgment for the defendant. The jury at the trial before Grantham, J., had found a verdict for the plaintiff. The action was for breach of promise of marriage. The defendant, a man, when under 21, promised to marry the plaintiff. He came of age in September, 1886, and in October, 1886, the plaintiff told him that her father's pecuniary circumstances were altered, and added that "if he wished to break the engagement off he could." He replied that he "was ready to marry her then if she thought they were old enough." She answered that she thought they were too young, and had better wait. About a year afterwards the defendant refused to carry out the engagement, and the plaintiff thereupon brought this action. The defendant alleged that there was no new promise after he came of age, but only a ratification of the former promise, and that therefore, by sect. 2 of the Infants' Relief Act, 1874, no action could be brought. At the trial before Grantham, J., the jury found for the plaintiff. The Divisional Court held that there was no evidence of a new promise after the defendant came of age, but only evidence of a ratification of the old promise, and entered judgment for the defendant.

Addison, Q.C., for the plaintiff.

Joseph Walton, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Lopes, L.J.J.) allowed the appeal.

LORD ESHER, M.R., was of opinion that in such a case the right question to be left to the jury, if there was any evidence to go to them, was the question stated by Lopes, L.J., in Northcott

v. Doughty (4 C. P. D. 385), viz., was what was said or done intended by the party to be a new promise or merely a ratification of the old promise? In the present case, that question had been substantially left to the jury. The question then remained, whether there was evidence upon which the jury might reasonably find that there was a new promise and an acceptance of it. His Lordship declined to lay down generally what would amount to a new promise as distinguished from a mere ratification of the old one. Upon the evidence in the present case he thought it was open to the jury as reasonable men to come to the conclusion that there was an intention to make a new promise. And if so, they having found that there was such an intention, their verdict could not be set aside.

LINDLEY and LOPES, L.J.J., concurred.

LORD ESHER, M.R., added that in Ditcham v. Worrall (5 C. P. D. 410) the only question really decided was, that there was evidence to go to the jury.

Kay, J.,

In re BRIANT.

June 25.

POULTER v. SHACKEL.

Husband and Wife—Legacy to Wife—Husband's Debt to Testator—Executor's Right of Retainer—Equity to a Settlement.

R. Briant, who died in 1877, by his will, dated in 1875, devised and bequeathed his residuary real and personal estate to his trustees and executors upon trust for his wife for life; and after her death for sale and conversion and to pay the proceeds to all his children in equal shares "for his, her and their own absolute use and benefit." And the testator proceeded to settle the share of a married daughter, Mrs. Shepherd, upon herself, her husband and children; and he directed his trustees to deduct any debt due to him from any or either of his children, with interest at 5 per cent., from the shares or share to which they, he or she were entitled under that his will. The testator left six children, one of whom, a daughter, had, in his lifetime, married Edward Shackel. The testator's widow died in 1886. The testator's residuary estate consisted of a sum of about 4000*l.* He had advanced his son-in-law, E. Shackel, various sums of money amounting to 750*l.*, which sum remained due from him to the testator at the time of the death of the latter. Mr. and Mrs. Shackel were both now living, but Mrs. Shackel was in infirm health. They had six children, all living. No settlement had been made on the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Shackel. The husband had no means beyond an income of about 60*l.* a year, and the wife had no other means than what she took under her father's will, and an income of about 70*l.* a year for her life under the will of an uncle.

This was an originating summons taken out by the trustees and executors of R. Briant's will, raising the question whether, in distributing the testator's residuary estate, they were entitled to deduct from Mrs. Shackel's share the debt due from her husband to the testator's estate, or whether Mrs. Shackel was entitled to her share intact and to have it settled on herself and her children.

Marten, Q.C., and Vaughan Hawkins, for the plaintiffs.

MacSwinney, for Mr. and Mrs. Shackel.

A. W. Rowden, for other parties.

KAY, J., said it was perfectly well settled by Ranking v. Barnard (5 Madd. 32), that, as against the right of a husband in a legacy given to his wife, the executors of the testator might set off a debt which had become due from the husband to the testator in the latter's lifetime. Then arose the question, Supposing the wife to assert her equity to a settlement, the property given to her being such that she could assert her equity in respect of it, did that equity precede the executors' right of retainer, or did the right of retainer precede the equity?

Upon the authority of Carr v. Taylor (10 Ves. 574) and the dictum of Lord Selborne in In re Batchelor (Law Rep. 16 Eq. 481, 488)—in which dictum he concurred—he should hold that the wife's equity preceded the right of retainer. In Knight v. Knight (Law Rep. 18 Eq. 487), which had been cited as an authority to the contrary, he did not think that Hall, V.C., intended to overrule Carr v. Taylor, or In re Batchelor, neither of which cases were cited before the Vice-Chancellor. There must therefore be a declaration that Mrs. Shackel's equity to a settlement took precedence of the right of retainer for her husband's debt, and also a declaration settling 500*l.* of her share upon her for life without power of anticipation; and after her death, the capital to go to such of her children as she should by will appoint, and in default of appointment, to such of her children as, being sons, should attain 21, or, being daughters, should attain that age or marry, in equal shares: and in default of such children, the fund would belong to the wife. The rest of the share would be retained by the executors, and be applied for the benefit of the other residuary legatees exclusive of the wife.

Bankruptcy—Execution Creditor—Seizure and Sale—From what Date fourteen Days to run—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, ss. 45, 46.

On the 23rd of January, 1888, the sheriff seized the goods of Cripps, Ross & Co. under a judgment for over 50*l.*; and on the 9th of February he sold, but some of the purchase-money was not paid to him until the 10th of February. On the 24th of February a bankruptcy petition was presented against Cripps, Ross & Co., and notice thereof was the same day given to the sheriff. Both the execution creditor and the trustee in bankruptcy claimed the balance of the proceeds of sale in the hands of the sheriff, and the question was from what date the fourteen days prescribed by s. 46 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, was to run.

H. Reed, for the execution creditor.

S. Woolf, for the trustee.

CAVE, J., held that reason and convenience required that the fourteen days should run from the date when the levy was perfected by seizure and sale, that was the date of the sale, and not from the date when the last payment on account of the purchase-money was received by the sheriff. In this case therefore, the sale was completed on the 9th of February, and the execution-creditor was entitled to the proceeds. The petition was one day too late.

Cave, J. In re DOWSON. July 2
Ex parte JAYNES.

Small Bankruptcy—Practice—Taxation of Costs—Bankruptcy Rules, 1886, r. 112.

In this case, which was a small bankruptcy, the official receiver, as trustee, obtained in the County Court an order against T. Jaynes for payment of the sum of 21*l.* 0*s.* 11*d.* paid to him by the bankrupt, on the ground that such payment was a fraudulent preference. On the 8th December, 1887, the decision of the County Court Judge was reversed on appeal, and the trustee was ordered to pay the appellants' taxed costs of the appeal and in the Court below, with liberty to recoup himself out of the estate the costs so directed to be paid by him. In taxing the appellant's bill of costs the taxing master held that the costs must be taxed on the lower scale, on the ground that they were payable out of the estate within the meaning of rule 112 of the Bankruptcy Rules, 1886.

Jaynes appealed against this decision.

Ringwood, for the appellant, contended that the rule did not apply to costs of proceedings against persons outside the bankruptcy.

Muir Mackenzie, contra.

CAVE, J., held that the appellants' contention was correct. The costs in question were not costs "payable out of the estate" within the meaning of rule 112 of the Bankruptcy Rules, 1886. That rule did not apply to proceedings against third parties outside the bankruptcy. The costs, therefore, were not taxable on the lower scale.

Q. B. Div. LEWIN v. TRIMMING. June 18, 29.
TRIMMING v. LEWIN and CHADWICK & SONS, by Counter-claim.

Practice—Costs—Counter-claim—Counter-claim against Third Person—Trial by Judge without Jury—Discretion of Judge—County Courts Act, 1867, s. 5—Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24, sub-s. 3—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XXI, rr. 11, 12, 13, 14; Order LXV., r. 1.

Appeal from the decision of Grantham, J., at chambers, affirming the decision of the master, who had refused to tax the costs of the defendant as against the defendants to the counter-claim. The action was brought by the plaintiff, the landlord of a shop in West Brompton, to recover rent from the defendant, Mrs. Trimming, his tenant. The defendant by her counter-claim claimed damages against the plaintiff and Messrs. Chadwick & Sons, bailiffs employed by the plaintiff, for illegal distress. Stephen, J., before whom the case was tried without a jury, gave judgment for the plaintiff for 147*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* in respect of rent and also on the counterclaim, and judgment for the defendant against Messrs. Chadwick & Co., defendants to the counter-claim, for 2*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.*, "with such costs as they would be entitled to by law." The master and Grantham, J., held that sect. 5 of the County Courts Act, 1867, applied to the counter-claim against the third parties, and that therefore, as the defendant had recovered under it less than 10*l.* in tort, he was not entitled to costs.

Beddall, for the defendants.

Buckmaster, for the defendants to the counter-claim.

Cur. adv. vult.

THE COURT (Huddleston, B., and Charles, J.) held that, the case having been tried by a judge without a jury, the costs were "in the discretion of the judge," under Order LXV., r. 1; that Stephen, J., had not exercised his discretion, and that the defendant was therefore not "entitled by law" to costs. They also (the point having been the principal matter argued before them) expressed the opinion that the effect of s. 24, sub-s. 3, of the Judicature Act, 1873, and Order XXI, rr. 11, 12, 13, 14, is not to render sect. 5 of the County Courts Act, 1867, applicable to the case of a counter-claim by the defendant against a third party. They dismissed the appeal, but without costs.

Pleading—Libel Action—Justification—Particulars.

Action by the plaintiff, governor of the Mauritius, against a newspaper for libel contained in certain articles published in the paper in relation to proceedings in the council of the island, and which were alleged to impute to the plaintiff that he had "edited" i.e. altered and tampered with the reports of the speeches in council which, as governor, he had transmitted to the Secretary of State for the Colonies. Defendants pleaded as justification that the alleged libels were published bonâ fide and without malice, and were parts of fair and accurate accounts and reports of public proceedings, and were fair and reasonable comments upon matters of public interest and notoriety, and privileged; and lastly, that "the alleged libels were and are true in substance and in fact."

Plaintiff having obtained an order for delivery by defendants of the particulars of fact relied upon in justification of the alleged libel, in respect of which the action was brought,—

Held, per COTTON, BOWEN, and FRY, L.JJ. (affirming Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Mathew, J., the Divisional Court), that plaintiff, before going to trial, was entitled specifically to know what defendants really did mean by their pleading that "the alleged libels were and are true in substance and in fact;" whether they meant that it was true that the particular charge had been made against the plaintiff, or whether they meant to assert that the charge was true in fact.

Imperfect Testamentary Instrument—Donatio mortis causa.

This document was placed at A.'s request with his will and remained there until his death in April, 1887. Evidence having been admitted as to the circumstances attending the execution of the document,—

Held (per COTTON, BOWEN and FRY, L.JJ.), that it was intended as a testamentary instrument, and not having been validly attested according to the Wills Act, could not take effect as a will; and secondly, that effect could not be given to the document as a donatio mortis causa, or as an immediate assignment by A. to B. of the property therein mentioned.

Appeal from the decision of the Queen's Bench Division (reported 20 Q. B. D. 191) upon a case stated from sessions on appeal against an order of removal.

The pauper, a widow, had resided continuously with her husband in a parish for upwards of three years before his death, and she had continued to reside in such parish as a widow for three months after his death. The order of removal, which was confirmed by the sessions, adjudged her to be settled in such parish. The Queen's Bench Division (Pollock, B., and Hawkins, J.) affirmed the order of the sessions.

HENNESSY v. WRIGHT.

July 6.

Practice—Interrogatories—Action for Libel against Publisher of Newspaper—Publication admitted by Defendant—Disclosure of name of Writer of alleged Libel—Disclosure of Original Manuscript.

Appeal by the plaintiff against the refusal of a Divisional Court (Manisty and Stephen, JJ.) to order the defendant to answer certain interrogatories which the plaintiff had delivered for his examination.

The action was brought to recover damages for an alleged libel. The plaintiff was the governor of a colony; the defendant was the publisher of a newspaper in London. The alleged libel was contained in a letter from a correspondent in the colony and in articles commenting thereon, which were alleged by the plaintiff to mean that he, as governor, had been charged by members of the Council of Government of the colony with sending home to the Secretary of State for the Colonies garbled reports of their speeches for the purpose of deceiving him. The defendant admitted the publication, and pleaded that the alleged libels were published bona fide and without malice, and were fair and accurate reports of proceedings of the Council, and fair reasonable comments upon matters of public interest and were published bona fide and without malice, and that the alleged libels were true in substance and in fact. The plaintiff delivered interrogatories for the examination of the defendant, asking the name of the correspondent in the colony; what inquiry the defendant had made as to the reliability of the correspondent; whether the defendant had had in his possession the original manuscript, and what he had done with it; and whether that manuscript contained anything besides that which had been published. The defendant objected to answer the interrogatories, on the ground that they were irrelevant and not put bona fide for the purposes of the action, and that he was not bound to disclose the names of persons who would probably be his witnesses at the trial. The Divisional Court held that the defendant was not bound to answer. The plaintiff appealed.

Lockwood, Q.C., and Cagney, for the plaintiff.

Lumley Smith, Q.C., and W. Graham, for the defendant.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ.)

affirmed the decision.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that in order to take away the the defendant's privilege it must be shewn that he was actuated by malice in publishing the libel; it would be of no avail to shew that the persons who gave him the information were actuated by malice. That would not be evidence of the defendant's malice, and therefore the answers to the questions were immaterial. The names of the defendant's informants could have no bearing on the question whether the comments were fair, or on the question whether the report was accurate. Nor could the existence or contents of the manuscript be material to the accuracy of the report. If the manuscript itself were produced and was found to differ from the published report, the question would still be whether the published report truly represented what took place in the colony. The interrogatories were "fishing," i.e. intended to enable the plaintiff to find out whether he had a case of which he had as yet no knowledge, and such interrogatories could not be allowed.

LINDLEY and LOPES, L.JJ., concurred.

In re DIGGLES.

GREGORY v. EDMONDSON.

Will—Precatory Trust.

M. A. Diggles, by will, after giving all her property to her daughter Frances Edmondson, proceeded: "And it is my desire that she allows to A. Gregory, now residing with me, an annuity of 25l. during her life, and that the said Anne Gregory shall, if she desire it, have the use of such portions of my household furniture etc. as may not be required by my daughter F. Edmondson." She then "desired" that her watch should be given to A. T. E., and her ring to F. M. E. She appointed her daughter and her daughter's husband her executors. The testatrix died in 1872, and the annuity was paid till 1883. It was then discontinued, and in 1886 Anne Gregory commenced this action in the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine against Mr. and Mrs. Edmondson claiming the appropriation of a sum sufficient to provide for the annuity. The Vice-Chancellor held that Mrs. Edmondson took the property subject to a valid trust to pay the annuity, and made a decree for administration. Anne Gregory appealed, asking for a personal decree against the defendants. The defendants gave notice that they should contend that the action ought to be dismissed.

Rotch, for the plaintiff.

Neville, Q.C., and Horridge, for the defendants.

THE COURT (Cotton, Bowen, and Fry, L.JJ.) held that no trust or charge was created, and that there was only a request to the daughter which was not obligatory upon her. The action was therefore dismissed.

MASSEY v. HEYNES & Co. AND SCHENKER & Co.

Practice—Service out of Jurisdiction—Notice of Writ—"Proper Party"—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XL r. 1 (g).

Appeal by the defendants Schenker & Co. (who were foreigners resident abroad) against the refusal of a Divisional Court (Wills and Grantham JJ.) (ante p. 149) to set aside an order for service of notice of the writ on the appellants out of the jurisdiction.

Barnes, Q.C., and F. W. Hollams, for the appellants.

English Harrison for the plaintiffs.

THE COURT (Lord Esher and Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ.) affirmed the decision. They held that, if a foreigner resident abroad would, if he had been resident in England, have been properly joined as a defendant to an action against a person resident in England, he could, under rule 1 (g) of Order XI, be served out of the jurisdiction as a defendant to such an action, even though relief could be obtained against him only in the alternative of its being decided at the trial that the other defendant was not liable to the plaintiff. The time for determining whether service out of the jurisdiction could be allowed was when the writ was issued, and it must be then determined whether the defendant abroad was a "necessary or proper party" within the meaning of rule 1 (g).

ROPER v. DONCASTER.

Married Woman—Mortgage by Husband—Covenant by Wife—Surety—"Separate Estate"—Testamentary Appointment by Wife—Liability of Appointed Property to Wife's Contract—Married Women's Property Act, 1882, s. 1, sub-s. 4.

In 1881 Mrs. Roper, being entitled to separate property, joined with her husband in a mortgage to secure 1000l. lent to him, and thereby, "with the intent to bind her separate estate" covenanted to pay the interest, and assigned a 1000l. policy on her life, by way of further security. She joined in this deed, his Lordship held, merely as surety for her husband. In the same character she concurred in a transfer of this and previous mortgages given by her husband, and entered into a similar covenant with the transferees for payment of the interest. Afterwards she separated from her husband, and by a deed of September 22, 1884, she covenanted with him to pay the interest on the said mortgage debts out of her separate estate.

She died on July 10, 1887, leaving her husband surviving. At the date of the mortgage and transfer her only separate property as to which she was not restrained from anticipation, was some furniture worth about 200*l.* and the said 1000*l.* policy on her life; but she had, under the will of her grandfather, a general power of appointment, by will only, over a sum of about 10,000*l.*; and she had a similar power over another fund of 2400*l.* in the event of her daughter, the infant plaintiff, dying under 21 and unmarried. By her will dated May 31, 1873, she, in exercise of her powers, appointed the whole of the fund to the plaintiff upon attaining 21 or marrying, subject to an annuity of 250*l.* to her husband.

The question was whether the funds so appointed were liable to satisfy Mrs. Roper's obligations under her covenants with the mortgagees. The Married Women's Property Act, 1882, commenced on the 1st of January, 1883.

Freeman, Field, Borthwick, and Gaselee, for the parties.

KAY, J., held that the case did not fall within s. 1, sub-s. 4, of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, that sub-section referring only to contracts made by a married woman after the commencement of the Act; and that, in cases not within the Act, whether a married woman's power of appointment was by deed or will, or by will only, her appointment by will did not make the property appointed her assets so as to be liable to engagements entered into with her on the credit of her separate estate. Consequently the property appointed by Mrs. Roper's will was not subject to her engagements made during her coverture.

Foreclosure Action—Form of Statement of Claim—Mortgagor—Personal Order for Payment—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Appendix C, s. II., Form No. 5.

This was a foreclosure action by a mortgagee of real estate, against the mortgagor and subsequent incumbrancers. The action had been set down for trial and now came on upon motion for judgment. There was no real defence to the action. The statement of claim followed Form No. 5 in sect. II. of Appendix C to Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, and did not set out the usual mortgagor's covenant for payment of the mortgage debt and interest.

Stowd, for the plaintiff, asked for the usual foreclosure judgment including an order for personal payment against the mortgagor, citing Lee v. Dunsford (54 L. J. (Ch.) 108).

Badcock, and St. John Clerke, appeared for the several defendants, including the mortgagor.

KAY, J., declined to follow the case cited, or to make an order which the pleadings did not shew the plaintiff was entitled to. There must be the usual judgment for foreclosure, but without any order for personal payment against the mortgagor.

KAY, J. In re ST. STEPHEN, COLEMAN STREET. July 4.
In re ST. MARY, ALDERMANBURY.

Advowson—Right of Presentation—"Charity"—City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883.

In St. Stephen's parish, in the City of London, an improper rector was granted by the Crown in 1589, together with the church of St. Stephen, and all tenements, tithes, and other hereditaments to the same belonging, to four persons, their heirs and assigns for ever. The property was conveyed from time to time to new trustees "for the benefit of the parish," and the choice of the vicar was always made by the parishioners. The vicarage-house was conveyed in 1755 to the then vicar and six vestrymen and had since been held on like trusts for the benefit of the parish.

The case of St. Mary, Aldermanbury, was substantially the same, the living there being called "a perpetual curacy," but there was no house attached thereto.

The question, raised on petitions by the parishioners in both cases under sect. 10 of the City of London Parochial Charities Act, 1883, was whether the advowsons, and also the vicarage-house in the one case, were "charity property" within that Act and so became vested in the Charity Commissioners under that Act.

Jeune, Q.C., and Stuart Moore, for the parishioners of St. Mary's.

Sir Horace Davey, Q.C., and Vaughan Hawkins, for the Commissioners.

KAY, J., held that, notwithstanding the doubt reported to have been expressed by Lord Hardwicke in Attorney-General v. Parker (1 Ves. Sen. 43; S. C. 3 Atk. 576), an advowson was no exception from the general law as to charitable trusts, and that both the advowsons—and also the vicarage-house—were held in trust for charity; and that the language of sect. 5 of the Act was sufficiently comprehensive to include charitable trusts of this nature. Petitions dismissed with costs.

KAY, J. July 6.
In re DRY DOCKS CORPORATION OF LONDON, LIMITED.

Company—Winding-up—Voluntary Liquidation—Provisional Liquidator—Parish Rates—Distress—Priority.

On the 6th of March last a creditor's petition was presented for winding up this company, and on the 8th of March a provisional liquidator was appointed on that petition, with power to carry on the business of the company. On the 22nd of June last, an extraordinary resolution was passed for the voluntary winding-up of the company, and on the following day a supervision order was made. In April rates were made by the overseers of the parish of St. Anne's, Limehouse, for the quarter ending at Midsummer last, in respect of the company's two docks. The rates having fallen into arrear, the overseers, about the 16th of June, proceeded to distrain for the same on the company's chattels, they not being at the time aware that a provisional liquidator had been appointed, but ultimately an arrangement was made by the overseers with the provisional liquidator not to sell the chattels distrained upon until the 28th June. On that day the duly appointed official liquidators, who had also been appointed, under an order made in a debenture-holder's action, receivers and managers of the company's property, obtained an injunction extending over to-day (July 6th) restraining the overseers from selling any of the company's property without the leave of the Court. The liquidators now moved to continue the injunction. The liquidators were now in possession or occupation of the company's docks, and it was stated in evidence that business was now being carried on there for the benefit of the company.

G. T. J. Millar, for the liquidators.

Eustace Smith, for the overseers.

KAY, J., said that, according to Weston's Case (Law Rep. 4 Ch. 20) the winding-up commenced on the 22nd of June, the date of the resolution to wind up, and did not relate back to the presentation of the petition on the 6th of March. But the company's property was already in the possession of the provisional liquidator, and the distress was put in, though innocently, while he was so in possession. It was said that the provisional liquidator was carrying on the business for the benefit of the winding-up; but he was only put in to prevent creditors from obtaining priority; and in no true sense could he be said to carry on the business for the purpose of winding-up. The putting in of a distress was altogether a wrongful act, and, if the overseers knew that a provisional liquidator had been appointed, was an interference with an officer of the Court which, in the case of a receiver, would amount to contempt. Therefore the overseers could not be allowed to get any advantage by putting in this distress. Then, could it be said that these rates became due during the winding-up? That was impossible, because the winding-up did not commence until the 22nd of June. He must hold that there was no priority for these rates, and that the overseers must come in and prove with the other creditors. Accordingly, the injunction must be continued. No order as to costs.

One of the two plaintiffs died August 26, 1887. The time limited for payment expired January 26, 1888, and default was made. Companies Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 89), s. 138—Voluntary Winding-up—Stay of Proceedings—Jurisdiction.

The Schanschieff Electric Battery Syndicate, Limited, was registered on August 10, 1887, for the purpose of purchasing certain patent rights from Alexander Schanschieff and working the same. A tripartite agreement, dated March 22, 1888, was made between the Schanschieff Electric Battery Syndicate, Limited, Alexander Schanschieff, and the Schanschieff Light and Power Company, Limited, for the sale to the latter company of all the patent rights of the former company.

A resolution to wind up voluntarily was passed on April 23, 1888, and duly confirmed May 9, 1888, by the Schanschieff Electric Battery Syndicate, Limited.

The agreement of March 22, 1888, was rescinded by the liquidators of the Syndicate (duly authorized by a meeting of the members of the Syndicate summoned for that purpose); Alexander Schanschieff and the Schanschieff Electric Light and Power Company. The latter company subsequently went into voluntary liquidation.

This was a motion on the part of David Marks, a contributor of the Schanschieff Electric Battery Syndicate, that all proceedings in the winding-up of the Syndicate might be stayed, and that the liquidators might be ordered to pay the costs of the application and retain the costs of liquidation out of the assets of the Syndicate, and hand over the balance of the assets to the persons who were the directors when the resolution for winding-up was passed.

Practice—Order as to Supreme Court Fees, 1884—Schedule, fee 72—Periodical Accounts—Fee Quantum Meruit.

Two partnership actions had been instituted under the order of the Court in administration proceedings. The same manager had been appointed in both partnership actions. He had carried in annual accounts; all the accounts had been passed and vouched, except the last. Circumstances had arisen which made it probable that it would be unnecessary to proceed with the last annual accounts brought in. A question was now raised by summons as to whether the usual percentage on the accounts that had been passed were to be levied on the amounts received by the manager in accordance with the words of the paragraph of the schedule to the order as to Supreme Court Fees numbered (72), or whether the explanatory words in the unnumbered paragraph relating to paragraph (72): "And in that case and in all other cases to which the fee No. 72 is applicable, the amount found to be due by any one certificate or on any one account" reduced the Court fee on a periodical account to a percentage on the amount found to be due. The question was also raised what, if any, fee was payable in respect of the accounts brought in but not passed.

NORTH, J., considered that some of the words of the order must be rejected, and that the meaning of the whole order was that the percentage was to be taken on the amount found to have been received on any periodical account. He considered also that where the accounts were not passed a fee should be paid proportionate to the work actually done in Chambers.

Petition for the transfer to the credit of an action of a sum of money, paid into Court under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, by the Metropolitan Board of Works, as the purchase money of land subject to the trusts of a settlement, which they had taken under their statutory powers. Further consideration of a partition action.

The property had been sold, and the proceeds of sale had been paid into Court. The Court had made orders dispensing with service of notice of the judgment on some absent persons, in whom legal estates were vested as trustees, but who had no beneficial interest in the property. The question was now raised, whether it was necessary, under sub-sect. 3 of sect. 4 of the Partition Act, 1876, that notice of the intended distribution of the proceeds of sale should be given by advertisement to the persons with regard to whom service of notice of the judgment had been dispensed with.

PLOWDEN v. GAYFORD.

Married Women's Property Act, 1882, ss. 1, 2, and 19—Separate Use under Act.

By a settlement dated June 17, 1878, and made upon the marriage of Mrs. Onslow with Mr. Stoate, certain securities were settled upon trust to pay the income thereof to the wife during her life, and during her then intended coverture such income was to be for her separate use without power of anticipation; and after her death the fund was to be held upon certain trusts for the benefit of the husband and the children of the marriage, and in default of children, in trust for such persons and purposes as the wife should, during coverture by will, and when discovered by deed or will, appoint, and in default of appointment, if the wife should survive the husband, then in trust for her, her executors, administrators, and assigns.

Mr. Stoate died in 1880, and there was no issue of the marriage. Mrs. Stoate married Colonel Plowden in the year 1887, and no settlement was executed on such marriage. This was an originating summons taken out by Colonel and Mrs. Plowden under Order LV., r. 3, in order to have it determined by the Court whether, under these circumstances, Mrs. Plowden could release the power of appointment given to her by the settlement in default of children, and if so whether the trustees could, upon the execution of such release, properly transfer the funds and property subject to the settlement to Mrs. Plowden.

STIRLING, J., held that the effect of the 1st, 2nd and 19th sections of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, taken in conjunction with the decisions in Holloway v. Clarkson (2 Hare, 521), and In re Armstrong, Ex parte Boyd (ante, p. 153), was to make the interest of Mrs. Plowden in the funds and property comprised in the settlement on her former marriage that of a feme sole for her separate use, and consequently that she was entitled to require the trustees to transfer and pay over the same.

This was a petition for the revocation of a patent granted in 1882 to Gaulard & Gibbs for a new system of distributing electricity for the production of light. The petitioner, L. Sir H. Davey, Q.C., Moulton, Q.C., and Pyke, for the petitioner.

KEKEWICH, J., as to the alleged nonconformity between the provisional specification and the complete specification, said that the complete specification had been amended by striking out an erroneous statement which might be said to remain in the provisional specification, but this was not fatal, and he also held that another variation was not fatal. But the complete specification did not sufficiently describe the invention, as a maker could not tell which of the several secondary generators must be used, though it was said that he would know as it was a well-known scientific fact. But this was not sufficient. As the Court had come to this conclusion it was not necessary to go into the question of anticipation. There seemed, however, to have been several previous patents in which the necessary directions were given, though Gaulard & Gibbs may have been the first to teach the world that high electric tension must be employed. But the best use of a known tool did not fall within the proper definition of invention. The patent must be revoked and the respondents must pay the costs.

Ex parte ARNAUD.

Bankruptcy—Discharge of Bankrupt—Condition with respect to after-acquired Property—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 28, sub-s. 1.

Appeal by a creditor against an order of Mr. Registrar Giffard, granting the bankrupt an order of discharge subject to a suspension of three months.

The bankruptcy petition was presented by the debtor himself. He had two fully secured creditors who were first and second mortgagees of a public-house which he occupied. Arnaud, another creditor, was partly secured by a third mortgage of the public-house. The debt due to Arnaud exceeded by 443*l.* the balance of the value of the mortgaged property after deducting the amount due to the first and second mortgagees. The only other debts were 3*l.* due to a water company, and 12*l.* 10*s.* due to the landlord for a quarter's rent, which was payable in priority to the other debts. The assets (other than the mortgaged property) were worth only 57*l.* 10*s.* The official receiver reported that the bankrupt had not kept proper books, and that he had continued to trade after he knew that he was insolvent, and it was on account of those offences that the registrar suspended the order of discharge. Arnaud opposed the granting an order of discharge on the ground that the bankrupt had been guilty of improper conduct in presenting the petition, which could not under the circumstances have been presented for the benefit of the creditors generally by obtaining an equal division of his property among them, but must have been intended to defeat execution which Arnaud had levied. Arnaud urged that in any rate the discharge should have been granted only on condition of the bankrupt consenting to judgment being entered against him by the trustee for the unpaid balance of Arnaud's debt.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and F. Cooper Willis, for the appellant.
A. A. Terrell, for the bankrupt.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Bowen, L.J.) affirmed the decision.

LORD ESHER, M.R., would express no opinion whether an adjudication obtained on the petition of a debtor who had but one creditor could be set aside. On the present application the adjudication could not be challenged. No complaint was made of the punishment which the registrar had inflicted in respect of the two offences against the bankruptcy law, and, if there was a complaint of that, it would require a very strong case to induce the Court of Appeal to increase the punishment. The argument for the appellant would do away with the protection given to a debtor under the bankruptcy law, and put him in the position of not having a discharge at all. The debtor had been punished for his offences against the bankruptcy law, and his Lordship thought the punishment sufficient.

LINDLEY, L.J., saw no reason for differing from the registrar. The question whether a man who had only one creditor could obtain his discharge by presenting a bankruptcy petition himself would require consideration when it really arose. It did not arise in the present case, for secured creditors could not be overlooked. They could sue their debtor. No doubt, on the hearing of an application for a discharge the registrar must consider the conduct of the bankrupt. The registrar was asked to annex to the discharge a condition which would enable the applicant to have some right against the debtor's after-acquired property. But there was no evidence that the bankrupt was likely to acquire any property hereafter, except by means of his earnings; there was no evidence that he had any reversionary interest, and under such circumstances the Court ought not to tie him up by such a condition, which would certainly lead to a contest between the judgment creditor and any future creditors. The Court ought not to place itself in that position in the absence of evidence of the probability of the bankrupt acquiring property beyond what would be necessary to keep body and soul together.

BOWEN, L.J., concurred.

McGOUGH v. LANCASTER BURIAL BOARD.

Burial Board—15 & 16 Vict. c. 85, ss. 33, 38—Right of Burial, what included in—Glass Shade placed on Grave—General Control of Burial Board.

Appeal from the judgment of the Queen's Bench Division in appeal from the Lancaster County Court. The facts were as follows: The defendants, a burial board, had provided a burial ground under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 85. By section 33 of that Act the burial board are empowered to sell the exclusive right of burial in any part of their burial ground, the right of constructing a vault or place of burial, and also the right of erecting any monument, gravestone, tablet, or monumental inscription in such burial ground. By sect. 38 the general management, regulation, and control of the burial ground are vested in the burial board.

For the purpose of burying a deceased daughter, the plaintiff purchased from the defendants and the defendants conveyed to him "the exclusive right of burial" in a grave-space in their burial ground in perpetuity; and they also granted him the right to erect a gravestone over the grave. He afterwards placed upon the grave a wreath and, to protect it, a glass shade covered with a wire frame. It was the general rule of the defendants never to allow the placing of such glass shades on graves in their burial ground, and accordingly the defendants removed the glass shade and wire covering without the consent of the plaintiff. The plaintiff sued them in the county court for so doing. The county court judge found that the glass shade and covering were of a kind which it was usual and customary to place on graves, and decided that the defendants had no right to remove them. He accordingly gave judgment for the plaintiff for nominal damages, with costs. In appeal to the Queen's Bench Division, the Divisional Court (Wills and Grantham, JJ.), reversed his decision.

Crompton, Q.C., for the plaintiff.

R. O. B. Lane, for the defendants.

THE COURT OF APPEAL (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Bowen, L.J.J.), held that the plaintiff had only acquired such rights as under sect. 33 the defendants were empowered to sell; and such rights did not include a right to place the glass shade and wire covering on the grave; and that in the exercise of the control vested in them by sect. 38 the defendants were entitled to remove the same. They therefore dismissed the appeal.

KENT'S CASE.

Company—Shares—Payment in Cash—Agreement to apply Debt owed but not yet payable by the Company to the Shareholder in payment of future Calls—Pendency of Petition to wind up—Fraudulent Preference—Companies Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 131), s. 25.

Kent was the holder of 800 10s. shares in, and had been managing director of, this association. By the articles of association the directors were empowered to "receive from any member willing to advance the same, all or any part of the moneys due upon the share or shares held by him, beyond the sums actually called for."

Early in 1886, the association was indebted to X. in the sum of 16,000l., payable by instalments, the first of which fell due on June 30, 1886, and Kent had agreed to purchase the debt from X. On March 13, 1886, Kent presented a creditor's petition to wind up the company, but such petition was not advertised. On April 2nd, the purchase of X.'s debt was completed, and Kent requested the directors to transfer from the amount due in respect of the debt a sum sufficient to pay up his shares in full. The directors the same day passed a resolution that the debt should be so applied, but nothing further was done to carry the transaction into effect, and there was no entry in reference to it in the books of the company other than the minute of the resolution, nor was any contract registered as to the shares within sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867. At this time 1l. per share remained uncalled on Kent's shares. His petition was withdrawn on April 17, but on another petition which had been presented on April 5, an order to wind up the association was made on April 20, 1886. Kent's name was placed upon the list of contributories; and upon a summons taken out by the liquidator to enforce a call of 1l. per share made in the winding-up in respect of his shares, it was held by Kay, J., that the transaction between Kent and the directors not having been carried into effect by any entry in the books of the company, shewing that the shares had been fully paid up, rested in agreement only, and did not amount to a payment within sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, and that the agreement (even if it would otherwise satisfy the terms of the statute), not having been registered Kent was liable to the calls. See 37 Ch. Div. p. 608.

From this decision Mr. Kent appealed.

Kent, in person, in support of his appeal.

Marten, Q.C., and Vernon R. Smith, for the liquidator.

Kent, in reply.

THE COURT (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes, L.J.J.) held, affirming the decision of Kay, J., that there being on neither side any debt payable in presentis, this transaction between Kent and the directors did not amount to a payment in cash within sect. 25 of the Companies Act of 1867; and held further, that if the transaction could be treated as amounting to payment, it would be a fraudulent preference in favour of Kent over the other creditors of the company. Appeal dismissed with costs.

Vendor and Purchaser—Underlease—Receipt for Rent—Receipt of Ground Landlord—Waiver of Covenants—Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, s. 3, sub-s. 5—Rescission of Contract—Costs.

On the sale of an underlease the production of the ground-landlord's receipt for rent paid by the vendor to the ground-landlord under threat of distress for the ground-rent is not the "production of the receipt for the last payment due for rent under the underlease" within the meaning of s. 3, sub-s. 5, of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881.

Accordingly, on the contract for the sale of an underlease, an objection by the purchaser that the vendor had produced only such a receipt by the original lessor or ground landlord, and not a receipt by the underlessor for the last payment of rent reserved by the underlease, was held to be a valid objection; and on a summons by the vendor under the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, for the opinion of the Court on the purchaser's objection, an order was made, as in In re Yielding and Westbrook (31 Ch. D. 344), rescinding the contract and for the return of the deposit with interest, the purchaser being given his costs of the summons, including his costs of investigating the title, with a charge for such costs on the vendor's interest in the property.

S. Hall, Q.C., and Brinton, for the purchaser, were not called upon.

July 13.

Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 57), s. 81, sub-ss. 1, 2, 12—Sheffield Register—Corporate Marks—Appeal.

This was an application by George Wostenholm & Son, Limited, of Sheffield, the registered owners of a trade-mark consisting of the design of a tobacco pipe—in respect of goods in class 12 of the third schedule to the Trade Mark Rules, 1883—that is to say, "cutlery and edge tools." Wostenholm & Son's mark is an old Sheffield corporate mark, originally assigned in the year 1694.

Mr. Arthur Lambert, trading at Sheffield under the name George Johnson & Co., is the registered owner of the trade-mark of a tobacco pipe with a dart in line with the pipe at the bowl end in respect of three classes of goods, namely class 6 (machinery other than agricultural and horticultural machines), class 12 and class 13 (metal goods not included in other classes). Lambert's trade-mark was also an old Sheffield corporate mark, originally assigned in the year 1698. In the year 1839 it was surrendered and re-assigned to one Thomas Linley, a razor manufacturer. Thomas Linley assigned to George Johnson. Arthur Lambert in March, 1887, became assignee of the goodwill of the business of George Johnson & Son and of the right to use the trade-mark of the pipe and dart.

The last record in the books of the Cutlers' Company relating to the mark of a pipe and dart was an entry dated 1839 in a book entitled Mark Book, 1291-1803.

On the application of Mr. Lambert the Cutlers' Company registered him as owner of the trade-mark, a pipe and dart, in respect of goods in classes 5, 12, and 13, on the Sheffield Register of Corporate Marks. In due course he became registered in the same way on the London register. George Wostenholm & Co. had given notice of opposition to the registration, and appealed to the comptroller under sect. 81, sub-sec. 12, of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, to have the entry expunged. The comptroller held that he had no jurisdiction in such a case.

This was a motion on the part of George Wostenholm & Son, Limited, by way of appeal, that the decision of the comptroller might be set aside, and that the Cutlers' Company might be ordered to accept and admit the opposition of the applicant and proceed thereunder. In the alternative, the motion asked to have the entries of the trade-marks of Arthur Lambert in both the London and Sheffield registers expunged.

The Cutlers' Company and Arthur Lambert were the respondents.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Charles Gould, for George Wostenholm & Son, Limited.

Sir R. Webster, A.G., Sir Horace Davey, Q.C., and Ingleton, for the Cutlers' Company.

Moulton, Q.C., and Hatfield Green, for Arthur Lambert.

NORTH, J., held that the act of the Cutlers' Company in registering the trade-mark under sect. 81, sub-sec. 2, of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, and there was no appeal from that act. He held on the evidence that on the merits the applicants were not persons aggrieved, and refused the motion.

Married Woman—Death of—Undisposed of Separate Estate—Devolution—Title of Husband—Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 75), s. 1, sub-s. 1—Probate Rules, 1887.

Adjourned summons.

The testatrix married in 1867, and died in September, 1887, leaving her husband and three infant children surviving her.

Under the will of her mother she had a general power of appointment by deed or will. By her will, dated in April 1887, she exercised this power in favour of her husband and children, and appointed executors of her will, but made no further disposition. In November last, probate of this will was granted under the Probate Rules, 1887, without any restriction or limitation, to the executors named in the will. The testatrix was at the time of her death entitled to certain separate estate, including cash at the bank, representing savings of income to which she was entitled for her separate use, and her title to which had accrued prior to the passing of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882.

The question upon this summons was whether the husband of the testatrix or her next of kin were entitled to the personal estate of which she did not effectually dispose by her will.

Lawrence Jenkins, Ashworth James, and Bryan Farrer, for the various parties.

STIRLING, J., held, on the authorities, that up to the passing of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, upon the death of a wife without disposing of her separate estate the quality of separate property ceased, and the right of her husband accrued just as if the separate use had never existed; and that the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, had not altered the devolution of such undisposed of estate. Accordingly that on the death of the testatrix the title of the husband to her undisposed of separate estate accrued: that the executors of the will became trustees of it for him, and consequently that he and not the next-of-kin of the testatrix were entitled to it.

Charity—Charitable Trusts Acts—Summons.

On 23rd March, 1887, Kekewich, J., had held that the corporation of Norwich were seised of certain lands in trust for the freemen of Norwich and had given judgment accordingly, but declined to direct a scheme. The Attorney-General thereupon issued a summons under the Charitable Trusts Acts asking for a scheme.

Warmington, Q.C., Swinfen Eady, and Shearman, for the freemen, took the objection that this trust was not clearly a charity, and that the question whether it was or not could not be decided in this way.

Ingle Joyce, for the Attorney-General.

P. H. Lawrence, for the Corporation.

KEKEWICH, J., said that the question whether this was a charity was one of some difficulty. In most cases there was no doubt, and the Charitable Trusts Acts seemed to have been drafted on that assumption, so that the tenour of the Acts was adverse to the conclusion that a question like this should be determined under enactments directed to administration only. The objection was good, and the summons must be dismissed, leaving the Attorney-General to shew by independent proceedings that there is a charity.

Warmington, Q.C., and Carpmael, for the defendants, objected that the design could not be validly registered as there had been previous publication.

It appeared in evidence that the plaintiff before registration had shewn the designs to two or three persons asking their advice and asking for orders.

KEKEWICH, J., held that what had been done amounted to a previous publication of the design, and that therefore it could not be properly registered under 46 & 47 Vict. c. 57, s. 47, and dismissed the action.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL v. MONTEFIORE AND OTHERS.

Revenue—Succession Duty—"Disposition"—Succession Duty Act, 1853 (16 & 17 Vict. c. 51), s. 2.

Information by the Attorney-General claiming payment by the defendants, the trustees of the Ramsgate Jewish Synagogue and College founded by the late Sir Moses Montefiore, of succession duty in respect of 10,500l. Bank Stock, and 500 shares in the Alliance Insurance Company, the endowment of the synagogue and college.

The fee simple of the site and buildings was conveyed by Sir Moses Montefiore to the trustees in 1866. By indentures dated in 1866, 1868, and 1870, it was agreed that Sir Moses Montefiore during his lifetime, or his executors or administrators within one calendar month after his decease, would transfer the stock and shares forming the endowment of the institution into the names of the trustees. Sir Moses Montefiore died in 1885 without having in his lifetime transferred the stock and shares into the names of the trustees. This was done by his executors in 1886, and the Commissioners of Inland Revenue then claimed succession duty from the trustees in respect of the stock and shares transferred. The claim was resisted on the ground that the circumstances shewed no "disposition" of property by Sir Moses Montefiore in respect of the stock and shares within the meaning of the Succession Duty Act, 1853, sect. 2 the transfers having been made by the executors in satisfaction of covenants by the testator, the remedies for the breach of which sounded in damages only.

THE COURT (Manisty and Charles, JJ.) held that the circumstances shewed a "disposition" of property within sect. 2 of the Succession Duty Act, 1853, and gave judgment for the Crown.

Revenue—Succession Duty—"Acceleration of Succession by Surrender or Extinction of Prior Interests"—Exercis of Power of Appointment—Succession Duty Act, 1853 (16 & 17 Vict. c. 51), s. 15.

Appeal by a trustee under the marriage settlement of Mr. and Mrs. Drury Lowe against an assessment to succession duty made by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue.

By the deed of settlement the property was vested in the trustees in trust for the husband for life, then for the wife for life, and then for the children of the marriage in such shares and proportions as to maintenance or education as the husband and wife, or the survivor of them, should appoint, and, in default of appointment, for the children who should attain the age of 21, or die leaving issue, or marry, in equal portions; and the trustees had power with the consent of the husband and wife, or of the survivor, or after both their deceases at their own discretion, to raise and apply or dispose of all or any part of the expectant share of any child whose share should not be then payable for or towards the preferment, advancement or benefit of such child, or his or her issue.

On the termination of the life estate by the death of the wife it appeared that of the property settled, which amounted to about 68,000*l.*, only 3000*l.* remained unappointed. The appellant claimed that succession duty was payable only on the unappointed balance, the Commissioners of Inland Revenue said that it was payable on the total amount of the property.

By the Succession Duty Act, 1853 (16 & 17 Vict. c. 51), s. 15: "Where the title to any succession shall be accelerated by the surrender or extinction of any prior interests, then the duty thereon shall be payable at the same time and in the same manner as such duty would have been payable if no such acceleration had taken place."

W. Graham, and P. B. Abraham, for the appellants, argued that the case did not fall within the section, as the advancements under the power of appointment did not effect a surrender or extinction of the life estate, and that therefore the title to the succession had not been accelerated.

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., Sir E. Clarke, S.G., and A. V. Dicey, for the Crown.

THE COURT (Manisty and Charles, JJ.) held that the case fell within s. 15 of the Succession Duty Act, 1853, and gave judgment for the Crown.

Revenue—Income Tax—Interest on Securities on which Income Tax has not been deducted at its Source—Profits—5 & 6 Vict. c. 85, ss. 102, 163—16 & 17 Vict. c. 34, s. 2, Schedules C. & D.

Case stated by the Commissioners for General Purposes of the Income Tax Acts for Westminster.

The Clerical, Medical, and General Life Assurance Society had appealed to the commissioners against an assessment under Schedule D of 16 & 17 Vict. c. 34, in the sum of 2000*l.* in respect of interest arising from securities on which the tax had not been deducted at its source, and which had not been otherwise specifically charged.

It appeared that the society carries on the business of life insurance and derives a large portion of its income from interest on its investments. This interest, which includes the interest in question from which the tax has not been deducted at its source, together with other sources of income, is brought into the accounts of the society. These accounts shewed that after debiting all expenses of management and other outgoings, there was for 1885–1886 an average net balance of profit not exceeding 74,250*l.* The society had, however, paid by way of deductions income tax on 107,378*l.* in respect of interest derived from investments. They stated that the interest which had escaped taxation at its source did not amount to the sum assessed, but admitted that they had received 165*l.* in respect of interest from securities in full without deduction for income tax. The commissioners thereupon reduced the assessment to the amount actually received, viz. 165*l.*, but refused to discharge it altogether. The society contended that the assessment should be discharged altogether on the ground that income tax was already overpaid, declared their dissatisfaction with the decision, and required the commissioners to state a case.

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., Finlay, Q.C., and A. T. Lawrence, for the appellants, relied on Last v. London Assurance Corporation (10 App. Cas. 438).

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., Sir E. Clarke, S.G., and A. V. Dicey, for the respondent.

Cur. adv. vult.

THE COURT (Manisty and Charles, JJ.) held that Last v. London Assurance Corporation (10 App. Cas. 438) did not decide the question, and that the effect of the Acts was to tax interest as being in itself a profit or gain, and to make no distinction between investments made for business purposes and other investments, and gave judgment for the Crown.

Lunacy—Appointment of New Trustees—Trustee Act, 1850 (18 & 14 Vict. c. 60), s. 2.—Person of Unsound Mind.

This was an application by beneficiaries for the appointment of new trustees of settled property which comprised freehold lands, and for a vesting order. The last surviving trustee was 90 years of age, and it was alleged in the petition, which was entitled in Lunacy and in the Chancery Division, that he was in such a state of mental infirmity as to be incapable of acting in the trust. The medical evidence was that owing to his advanced age, and to his being at present subject to attacks of cerebral hæmorrhage, any attention to business would be likely to cause apoplexy; but that he could not be correctly described as of unsound mind.

Everitt, Q.C., and Shebbears, in support of the application.
Waggett, for the surviving trustee.

THE COURT (Ootton, Fry, and Lopes, L.JJ.) held that it had not been shewn upon the evidence that the trustee was, in the terms of the Trustee Act, 1850, sect. 2, "incapable from infirmity of mind to manage his own affairs"; that this being so there was no case for the exercise of the jurisdiction in Lunacy; and accordingly that the petition must be withdrawn and presented in the Chancery Division alone. And they directed that the costs of the present hearing should be dealt with by the judge who heard the petition.

Appeal against a decision of Cave, J., that the trustee in a bankruptcy was entitled to certain furniture comprised in a bill of sale executed by the bankrupt on the 26th October, 1857. The deed was registered under the Bills of Sale Act, 1854, on the 7th November, 1857. It was not re-registered until the 30th April, 1881, when the re-registration was effected under an order of Huddleston, B., which purported to be made in pursuance of sect. 14 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878.

Cave, J., held that the re-registration was ineffectual to restore validity to the bill of sale, which had already become invalid for want of re-registration, and that the chattels conprised in it, being at the date of the commencement of the bankruptcy in the actual or apparent possession of the bankrupt, belonged to the trustee.

The grantees of the bill of sale appealed.
Reid, Q.C., and S. H. Leonard, for the appellants.
Sidney Woolf, for the trustee.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) affirmed the decision. They approved of Askew v. Lewis (10 Q. B. D. 477), holding that sect. 14 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, applied only to a bill of sale which was within sect. 11, which this bill of sale was not. Therefore, sect. 23 did not apply.

Bankruptcy—Discharge of Bankrupt—Annexing Condition—Bankruptcy (Discharge and Closure) Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 66) s. 2, sub-ss. 3, 4.

Appeal against a decision of Mr. Registrar Hazlitt, granting the bankrupt a discharge, on condition of his consenting to judgment being entered up against him by the trustee for the balance of the debts provable under the bankruptcy which had not been satisfied. The adjudication had been made in 1883, under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, and the bankrupt had not obtained a discharge since the passing of the Bankruptcy (Discharge and Closure) Act 1887. He applied for his discharge under the provisions of sect. 2 of that Act, and the Registrar, under the power given him by sub-sect. 3, granted the discharge subject to the above condition. The bankrupt appealed.

Herbert Reed, for the appellant, contended that such a condition was inconsistent with sect. 54 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, which provided that no part of a debt provable in a bankruptcy should be enforced against the property of an undischarged bankrupt until the expiration of three years from the close of the bankruptcy, and that, if during that time he should pay his creditors such additional sum as would make up a dividend of 10s. in the pound, he should be entitled to his discharge as if a dividend of that amount had been originally paid out of his property.

F. Cooper Willis, for creditors, was not called on.
 THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) affirmed the decision, holding that the provisions of sect. 2 of the Act of 1887 were not inconsistent with sect. 54 of the Act of 1869.

Highway Act, 1835, s. 67—Powers of Highway Board—"Drain"—Dumb Well.

This was an appeal from a decision of Kekewich, J. (ante, p. 64).
 The plaintiff was the owner of a chalk-pit wherein a dumb well or pit had been made several years ago, into which a drain from a highway under the control of the defendants ran, the water percolating through the bottom of the well and taking into the soil. The defendants claimed a right to use this pit as part of their drainage system. The plaintiff brought this action to restrain the defendants from doing so, alleging that it was not a "drain" within the meaning of the 67th section of the Highway Act, 1835 (5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50). Kekewich, J., held that the defendants were entitled to use the dumb well, and dismissed the plaintiff's action. The plaintiff appealed.

The Plaintiff in person supported the appeal.
Warmington, Q.C., and Sebastian, for the defendants.
 THE COURT (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes, L.JJ.) held that the dumb well was not a "drain" within the meaning of the Act; that the defendants had shewn no right to use it as part of their drainage system; and that the plaintiff was entitled to the injunction claimed. The appeal was therefore allowed.

Will—Limitation to second and third Sons—Remainder to fourth and every other Son—Exclusion of eldest Son—"To be begotten."
 This was an appeal from a decision of Stirling, J. (Weekly Notes, 1887, p. 103).

W. L., who died in October, 1835, devised real estates to his second son for life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail male; with remainder to the testator's third son for life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail male; with remainder to the testator's fourth, fifth, and every other son of his body to be begotten, born, or en ventre sa mère at the time of his decease, succeeding in priority of birth, in tail male; with remainder to his daughters begotten or to be begotten, born, or en ventre sa mère at the time of his decease, equally as tenants in common in tail, with an ultimate remainder to his own right heirs.

The testator left eight children, three sons and five daughters; the second and third sons died without issue male. The eldest son, the plaintiff, now claimed the estate under the devise "to the testator's fourth, fifth, and every other son" in tail male. Stirling, J., held that the eldest son was excluded, and that the remainder to the daughters took effect. The plaintiff appealed.

W. Pearson, Q.C., Barber, Q.C., and Waggett, for the appellant.

Hastings, Q.C., Rigby, Q.C., and Vernon R. Smith, for the respondents.

COTTON, L.J., said that he was of opinion that the words "to be begotten" in the devise to the fourth, fifth, and any other son of the testator, must, having regard to the general intention of the will, be taken as purporting futurity, and to have reference to sons born after the date of the will, which would exclude the eldest son. In the cases where "other sons" had been held to include an eldest son this construction had been adopted in order to give effect to the evident intention of the testator. If that construction was put on the words in the present case, it would be contrary to the intention of the testator. He was of opinion that Stirling, J., had come to a correct conclusion, and that the appeal must be dismissed.

FRY and LOPES, L.J.J., agreed.

Mortgage—Power of Sale—Administration Action—Sale of Court—Mortgagee's Accounts—Auctioneer—Commission—Charges—Disallowance—Court Scale.

After the judgment for the administration of a testator's estate, a mortgage on the real estate for 3000*l.* was, with consent of the Chief Clerk, transferred to certain persons, who were to sell the property under the power of sale, it being represented to the Chief Clerk that, under the particular circumstances of the case, a sale by the transferees would be the more economical way of effecting a sale. The property was then, upon the instructions of the transferees, put up for sale by auction by a firm of auctioneers, but owing to the reserve price, 7000*l.*, not being reached it was not then sold. Subsequently the auctioneers sold the property by private contract for the reserve price. On the mortgagees bringing in their accounts of the sale, the Chief Clerk allowed the auctioneers only the charges usually allowed in cases of sales in Court, and struck 62*l.* 10*s.* off the charge in their bill for commission.

The action now came on for further consideration together with a summons by the mortgagees to vary the Chief Clerk's certificate by restoring the 62*l.* 10*s.* he had disallowed. There was a considerable body of evidence tending to shew that the auctioneers' commission, as charged by them, was reasonable and in accordance with a scale agreed upon among auctioneers generally.

Renshaw, Q.C., and B. B. Rogers, for the applicants, mortgagees, contended that the auctioneers' charges ought to be measured by the scale prevalent among and acted upon by auctioneers in cases of sales by free owners, and not by the scale adopted in cases of Court sales.

Marten, Q.C., Ince, Q.C., Millar, Q.C., Begg, Daniel Jones, and D. L. Alexander, for the other parties.

KAY, J., said that the Chief Clerks not only in his chambers but also in the chambers of the other Judges of the Chancery Division, had agreed to settle what they considered a proper remuneration to auctioneers for doing that which the auctioneers in the present case had done. There was in his Lordship's chambers a regular fixed scale of charges upon which auctioneers were remunerated for work of this kind. He had heard with the greatest surprise that auctioneers had agreed among themselves to fix a certain scale of remuneration upon which they chose to charge the persons who employed them.

They had no more right to do that than any other body of persons in the kingdom; and he hoped that no Judge would allow auctioneers more than their proper remuneration merely because they had agreed among themselves to charge more. For his own part he would not recognise any such arrangement. In his opinion the Chief Clerk was perfectly right, and had allowed to the auctioneers in this case quite as much as they ought to have. Besides the amount of remuneration the auctioneers had been allowed a sum for various outgoing, and yet they had charged about 130% for commission alone. The Chief Clerk was quite right to disallow the 62l. 10s., and therefore the application must be refused with costs.

Practice—Petition—Trustee Acts—Appointment of New Trustees—Affidavit of Fitness.

This was a petition under the Trustee Acts for the appointment of new trustees of real estate of small value. In the affidavits as to the fitness of the proposed trustees it was stated that they were persons of integrity and fit to be appointed trustees, one of them being described as a farmer and the other as a carpenter, but it did not appear what their financial means were.

Bradford, for the petitioners.

KAY, J., said that these affidavits were in what now seemed to have become a common form to which he greatly objected. In his opinion affidavits filed in order to induce the Court to appoint new trustees should shew something as to the position of the proposed trustees in respect of their pecuniary means. In the present case, however, having regard to the nature of the property, he accepted the affidavits as sufficient.

[NOTE.—In the case of a subsequent application of a similar nature which came on to be heard on the same day, his Lordship declined to accept affidavits of fitness similarly worded.]

Petition for payment out of money paid in by the London, Brighton and South Coast Railway Company, in respect of the purchase of land comprised in a will by which real and personal estate was given to trustees, upon trust to pay certain annuities out of the rents and profits of the real and income of the personal estate, and subject thereto to pay such rents and profits and income equally amongst his children (named) during their lives, and upon the death of the survivor upon trust to sell the real and personal estate, and to stand possessed of the proceeds in trust to set apart a sufficient amount of Government stock for payment of the annuities, and subject thereto to divide the residue amongst a class.

The survivor of the children having died the trustees and residuary legatees and annuitants (except one) presented this petition, which was served on the company and the dissenting annuitant.

Whitehorne, Q.C., and Arkcoll, for the petition, submitted that now that the trust for sale had arisen the trustees were persons who had become absolutely entitled within sect. 69 of the Lands Clauses Act, 1845: Hobson's Trusts (7 Ch. LEAK v. SCOTT.

Will—Construction—Next-of-Kin.

This was an originating summons taken out by the surviving executor of the will of Mr. Sefton Parry, who died in December, 1887, the will was dated March, 1887. He gave legacies to his two executors (one of whom died in his lifetime), and annuities to his parents and sisters. The rest of his will was in the following terms:—"This will is merely made by me in consequence of the intestacy created by my recent marriage and to provide for my parents and my sisters should my death occur, it being my intention after due consideration of the subject to make a will which shall deal with my entire estate, meanwhile should I die before signing such will, I declare that the residue of my property, after payment of my debts and funeral and testamentary expenses and the legacies and annuities herein-before directed to be paid, shall be divided among my next-of-kin and heiresses as though I had died intestate with respect thereto."

The testator left two children only, Mrs. Scott and an unmarried daughter. The defendants were Mr. and Mrs. Scott, Miss Parry, and the widow.

The question for the determination of the Court was whether the widow took any interest in the testator's estate.

Mortgage—Covenant to pay Principal and Interest—Assignment of Equity of Redemption—Further Charge by Assignee in favour of Original Mortgagees—Action on the Covenant by Original Mortgagees—Right of Original Mortgagors to Reconveyance on Payment.

In 1870 the defendants mortgaged property to the plaintiffs to secure 12,000*l.*, and the mortgage deed contained the usual covenants for payment of principal and interest, and a proviso for redemption in the usual form. In 1872, the defendants sold the equity of redemption to A. B., and he covenanted to indemnify them against the 12,000*l.* In 1875, A. B. further charged the equity of redemption to the plaintiffs to secure 8000*l.*, covenantiing that the property should not be redeemable except upon payment of the 8000*l.* as well as the 12,000*l.* A. B. afterwards became insolvent, and the interest on the 12,000*l.* having fallen into arrear and the property having depreciated in value, the plaintiffs applied to the defendants to pay them the 12,000*l.* and interest. The defendants were willing to pay the 12,000*l.* and interest, but insisted that upon such payment the plaintiffs must reconvey the mortgaged property to them, and that they would thereupon be entitled to hold the property as first mortgagees.

The plaintiffs refused to execute a reconveyance to the defendants, and brought an action on the covenant contained in the original mortgage of 1870, to recover the 12,000*l.* and arrears of interest. Upon a special case stated in this action the question was whether the plaintiffs were entitled to judgment for 12,000*l.* and interest, and if so, upon what terms.

Hastings, Q.C., and Frank Evans, for the plaintiffs.

Buckley, Q.C., Horsbrugh, and Napier Trollope, for the defendants.

Hastings, in reply.

STIRLING, J., said that a mortgagor who had absolutely assigned his equity of redemption, when sued upon the covenant to pay principal and interest contained in the mortgage, acquired a new right to redeem, and was entitled, upon paying the mortgage money to a reconveyance to himself, and it made no difference if after the assignment of the equity of redemption the assignee mortgaged either to the original mortgagee or to some other person; for the assignee could only raise money on his own behalf, and could not (as against the mortgagor) impose any additional burden on the property. His Lordship accordingly held that the plaintiffs were entitled to judgment for 12,000*l.* and interest, but only on the terms that upon receiving payment they reconveyed the mortgaged property to the defendants, subject to such equity of redemption as might be subsisting in any person or persons other than the defendants themselves.

WOOD v. ANDERSTON FOUNDRY COMPANY.

Defendant Company having Registered Office at Glasgow—Branch Works in Yorkshire—Service of Writ upon Director managing Works in Yorkshire bad, and set aside—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order ix., r. 8.

The Anderston Foundry Company, Limited, formed under the Companies Acts, 1862-1883, had their registered office at No. 100 Cheapside, Glasgow, in the county of Lanark, Scotland, and a branch factory at Port Clarence, near Middlesborough.

Yorkshire. The secretary of the company resided at Glasgow. The plaintiff served the writ in this action upon a director of the company residing at Middlesborough, and having the management of the works near that place. He also sent by post a copy of the writ to the office of the company at Glasgow.

This was a motion on behalf of the defendant company asking that the writ of summons issued in the action and service thereof, and all subsequent proceedings, if any, might be set aside on the ground that the defendants were domiciled in Scotland, and that the action ought to be tried there; and that the plaintiff might be ordered to pay to the defendants the costs of the action, and of the motion.

Aston, Q.C., and W. N. Lawson, for the defendants.

Chadwick Healey, for the plaintiff, submitted that the director at Middlesborough was under Rules of Court, 1883, Order ix., r. 8, the head officer, and that the service upon him was good.

STIRLING, J., after referring to Newby v. Von Oppen (Law Rep. 7 Q. B. 293), the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, sect. 16; Rules of Court, 1883, Order LXII., r. 2; and Order IX., r. 8, said it appeared to him that the service of the writ upon the director at Middlesborough was bad; and that leave ought to have been obtained to serve the writ at Glasgow. The proceedings having been irregular they must, as asked, be set aside, but as the plaintiff had, as he thought, been invited to take the course which he had done, he having been a defendant in a former action, commenced against him by the defendant company who therein described themselves as of Middlesborough, he should set aside the proceedings without costs.

TUDBALL v. MEDLICOTT.

July 19.

Trustees—Litigation—Forgery.

This was an action by the infant devisee in remainder under the will of Amos Tudball, claiming that the trustees of the will might be ordered at their own expense to take all proper proceedings for recovering possession of the land devised, and in default to be declared liable. It appeared that there was an alleged mortgage of the land by the testator under which it had been sold, and the case of the plaintiff was that this mortgage was a forgery, and known by the trustees to be so. The trustees, who were also executors, had no funds of the testator in hand, his personal estate having been insufficient for payment of his debts.

Warmington, Q.C., and Rawlins, for the plaintiff.

Neville, Q.C., S. Hall, Q.C., Ingle Joyce, and Chubb, for the trustees.

KEKEWICH, J., said that the evidence of forgery was this, but it was not necessary for him to decide whether the mortgage was forged. The trustees had no funds, and could not be required at their own risk to undertake a difficult and expensive litigation. The action must be dismissed with costs.

CHARMAN v. SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Railway Company—Level Crossing—Liability to maintain—Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 20), s. 13

Appeal by the defendants against an order of a Divisional Court (Manisty and Stephen, JJ.) for a new trial of the action.

At the trial, Huddleston, B., held that there was no evidence of the negligence of the defendants to go to the jury, and entered judgment for the defendants. The order for a new trial was made on the application of the plaintiff. The action was brought to recover damages for two horses belonging to the plaintiff, which had got on to the defendants' line of railway, and were killed by a passing train. The horses had strayed in the night out of a meadow belonging to the plaintiff, and had found their way into a road which crossed the railway by a level crossing. There were large gates which shut off the railway from the road, and there was at the side a swing gate for foot passengers. The horses pushed against the fence at the side of the swing gate, and one of the posts to which it was attached, being rotten underground, gave way and the fence fell down, and in this way the horses got on to the railway. The company had widened the road at the crossing, so that the place on which the fence which was broken stood was outside the original limits of the road.

Sect. 47 of the Railways Clauses Act, 1845, provides that, "If the railway cross any public carriage road on a level, the company shall erect and at all times maintain good and sufficient gates across such road, on each side of the railway, where the same shall communicate therewith, and shall employ proper persons to open and shut such gates, and such gates shall be kept constantly closed across such road on both sides of the railway, except during the time when horses, cattle, carts, or carriages passing along the same shall have to cross such railway; and such gates shall be of such dimensions and so constructed as when closed to fence in the railway, and prevent cattle or horses passing along the road from entering upon the railway."

W. Willis, Q.C., and Leslie Probyn, for the appellants, argued that under this section the company were only bound to maintain sufficient gates of the exact width of the original road, and that they were not liable for the condition of the fence beyond those limits.

Winch, Q.C., and Tufton, for the plaintiff.

The Court (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley, L.J.) held that judgment must be entered for the plaintiff.

Lord Esher, M.R., said that the company had brought their road at a level across the road. Sect. 47 was intended to give protection to the persons who used the road, and if possible it ought to be so construed as to give the necessary protection to those whose rights were interfered with by the making of the road. If a point beyond the width of the road was left unprotected, cattle using the road in the ordinary way would almost inevitably get upon the railway. If the company were only bound to guard the exact width of the road the remedy provided by sect. 47 would be ineffectual. In many cases the line of railway would be wider than the road, and, if the company were only bound to erect gates the exact width of the road, there would be a gap when the gates were open to the road and shut across the railway. Sect. 47 meant that the gates must be made of such a width that when closed they would prevent cattle using the road in the ordinary way from entering on the railway—not merely from entering on the level crossing—and if it was necessary in order to do this to make the gates wider than the road the company must do so. This must be understood within reasonable limits, and it would be unreasonable to say, for instance, that the company must make the gates a quarter of a mile long. Under the circumstances of the present case the wide gates were not sufficient, but it was necessary that there should be the swing gate and fence as well, and the latter was not properly constructed, or rather had become insufficient by reason of the decay of the post. The company were bound to maintain in an efficient condition the gates which they had in fact erected, and they had not done so.

LINDLEY, L.J., concurred.

In re AN ARBITRATION BETWEEN MITCHELL AND ANOTHER AND THE GOVERNOR OF CEYLON.

Arbitration—Power to revoke Submission—3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 39—Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, s. 17.

Appeal from a decision of the Queen's Bench Division refusing a motion to set aside an award upon the ground that the authority of the arbitrator had been duly revoked before publication of the award.

The applicant's, Messrs. Mitchell & Izard, entered into a contract in 1882 with the Governor of Ceylon on behalf of the Colony for the construction of waterworks at Colombo. The contract contained provisions that differences and disputes not otherwise provided for should on the demand in writing of either party be referred to the sole arbitration and award of the consulting engineer, whose decision was to be final, and by clause 85 of the contract it was provided as follows: "As far as the same are applicable and not hereby varied the provisions of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854; or any statutory modifications thereof for the time being in force with reference to the settlement of disputes by arbitration, shall apply to the arbitration agreed to in these presents." Differences having arisen at the conclusion of the contract the Governor of Ceylon made a demand in writing that they should be referred to the consulting engineer, who duly gave notice of the time and place for holding the arbitration. Messrs. Mitchell & Izard appeared before him to enter a protest against the arbitration being proceeded with before they had time to properly prepare their case, and declined to appear before him; the arbitrator thereupon proceeded ex parte. Three days after the ex parte hearing, and six weeks before the arbitrator published his award, the contractors revoked his authority. The award was in favour of the Governor of Ceylon. The contractors moved to set aside the award, and contended that clause 85 of the contract did not amount to an agreement between the parties that the submission should be made a rule of Court, and that therefore the submission was revocable without the leave of the Court required by 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 39, in cases where the submission contains an agreement to that effect. The Governor of Ceylon contended that by making the provisions of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, applicable, the parties had, by means of s. 17 of that Act, which enables an agreement to be made a rule of Court unless it contain words purporting that the parties intend it should not be made a rule of Court, brought the case within s. 39 of 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, and that the revocation was therefore bad. The Divisional Court (Cave and A. L. Smith, JJ.) refused the motion to set aside the award.

The contractors appealed.

Finlay, Q.C., and Reginald Brown, for the appellants.

J. G. Wood (Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., with him) for the respondent.

Mortgage—Redemption—Right of Yearly Tenant to redeem.

This was an appeal from a decision of Kekewich, J. (ante, p. 55).

The action was brought by a yearly tenant who had made an agreement for a lease with the mortgagor, against the mortgagor and the mortgagee who had, as the plaintiff alleged, adopted the agreement, for specific performance, and in the alternative for redemption of the mortgage. The mortgagee repudiated the agreement, but had accepted the plaintiff as tenant. Kekewich, J., held that as the plaintiff originally claimed as yearly tenant under the mortgagor he was entitled to redeem, and gave judgment to that effect. The mortgagee appealed.

Practice—Respondents out of the Jurisdiction.

In 1888 sums of stock and cash representing the residuary estate of William Jellard were transferred and paid into Court under the Trustee Relief Act. Under the testator's will, J. P. Jellard the elder was tenant for life with remainder to his three children, of whom J. P. Jellard the younger was one. By an order made on the 18th of February, 1888, on the petition of J. P. Jellard the elder and his three children, the third shares of the children were carried over each to the separate account of the child and his or her incumbrancers subject to the life interest of J. P. Jellard the elder. In 1881 J. P. Jellard the elder and J. P. Jellard the younger had joined in mortgaging their interests in the residuary estate, and the mortgagee had subsequently, under a power of sale, sold those interests to P. F. Taylor. The two Jellards were resident in Australia. Taylor now presented a petition for transfer to him of the stock standing to the credit of J. P. Jellard the younger and his incumbrancers subject to the "life interest of J. P. Jellard, the elder," and for payment to him of the dividends on the other two thirds during J. P. Jellard the elder's life. He applied for leave to serve the petition on the Jellards in Australia, which was refused by North J. (post, p. 186). The application was now renewed before the Court of Appeal.

C. H. Sargent for the application.

THE COURT (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes, L.JJ.) said that as the present petition was not one in which it was sought to originate jurisdiction against the Jellards, but was one which might be treated as giving more full effect to the order of the 18th of February, 1888, which was made on their own application, the Court would, without deciding that leave was necessary, give leave to serve the petition on the solicitors who had acted for the Jellards in obtaining the order of the 18th of February, it being stated that they were willing to accept service.

SMITH v. JOBSON.

Aug. 1.

Will—"Children"—Illegitimate Child by Name—Gift over on death of "Children."

James Jobson, who died in 1854, by his will, dated in 1847, after certain specific gifts to his "eldest son" and his "three youngest sons," nominatim, proceeded, "in the third place I give and bequeath to my eldest daughter Elizabeth Jane Jobson" a certain estate in the parish of Elwick Hall; and the whole of his property in the same parish "I give and bequeath to my said eldest daughter, Elizabeth Jane Jobson, and to her heirs for ever." Then followed a gift to "my four youngest daughters," nominatim. And the testator directed that "neither my sons nor eldest daughter shall have or enjoy a benefit from the lands I have bequeathed to them until a fund is raised of the 3 per cent. consols to pay my four youngest daughters 1000*l.* each, and also a fund left therein, the interest of which shall pay my dear wife 26*l.* a year, the principal of which shall at her death or marriage be divided equally among all my children"—not "said" children. Then the testator proceeded, "I particularly direct that should any of my children die without having children of their own lawfully begotten, the share, whether land or money, shall be divided equally among my surviving children."

The testator left surviving him his four sons and five daughters, including Elizabeth Jane Jobson, who was illegitimate, having been born before the testator's marriage. In 1850, in the testator's lifetime, she married. She died in 1881 without issue, leaving the testator's other children surviving her. The question was whether the Elwick Hall estates given to her were subject to the gift over in case of any of the testator's "children" dying without children, or whether, at her death without issue, those estates became escheated to the Crown.

Ingle Joyce, for the Crown, contended that the word "children" in the gift over meant only legitimate children, and that therefore the clause did not apply to Elizabeth Jane Jobson's interests under the will. The mere description in an earlier part of a will of a particular individual as being a "child" would not include that individual in a subsequent gift to "children" generally as a class, the word "children" meaning only legitimate children: In re Hall (35 Ch. D. 551); Bagley v. Mollard (1 Russ. & My. 581).

Renshaw, Q.C., Borthwick, J. G. Wood, and V. R. Smith, for the testator's legitimate children, or their representatives, were not called upon.

KAY, J., said that, in face of the fact that the testator had twice over called Elizabeth Jane Jobson by name his "daughter," it would be a strange construction to hold that the word "children" in the gift over did not apply to her. His Lordship had no doubt that the word "children" applied as much to her as to the other children. There was a rule that where there was a gift to "children," that prevented illegitimate children taking with legitimate, unless the context absolutely required that the illegitimate should take concurrently; but his Lordship had never heard that this rule applied to a gift over. In his opinion the Crown was wrong; and accordingly, on the death of Elizabeth Jane Jobson the property in question went to the other children living at her death.

WHITE v. CITY OF LONDON BREWERY COMPANY.
Mortgage—Public-house—Mortgagee in Possession—Account—Trade Profit—Rent—Wilful Default—Limit of Security—Outgoings.

In February, 1868, the plaintiff mortgaged a public-house occupied by himself, held by him for a term of 50 years at the annual rent of 60*l.*, to the defendants, the City of London Brewery Company, to secure a sum of 700*l.* and further advances and the price of goods to be supplied. A second mortgagee was party to the mortgage-deed, and it was provided that "the whole amount to be recovered by the said company under these presents shall not exceed 900*l.*" In September 1869, default having been made in payment of interest the mortgagees took possession, and they obtained assignments of the mortgagor's licences in pursuance of provisions in the mortgage-deed. They put a manager in and carried on the business for a time on their own account at a loss. In March, 1871, they let the premises to their manager, Moulton, at a yearly rental of 15*l.* by agreement containing a stipulation that Moulton would take his ale, beer, and porter of the mortgagees' brewing and none other. In September, 1873, Moulton gave up possession, the mortgagees let the premises to one Hake at an annual rent of 60*l.*, with a stipulation that he would take his beer, ale, and porter of the mortgagees' brewing only except Burton ales.

In September, 1879, the company, in exercise of a power contained in the mortgage, sold the premises for 2650*l.* The purchase was completed on November 21, 1879. Out of the purchase-money the mortgagees retained what they alleged to be due to them and paid the balance, 377*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.*, to the second mortgagee. This was an action for an account. The Chief Clerk had certified that there was due to the mortgagees at the date of the sale 1415*l.* 17*s.* principal, and 615*l.* interest. The 1415*l.* 17*s.* comprised the loan of 700*l.* and 83*l.* for goods supplied and various sums paid for headrent and taxes. The Chief Clerk also certified that the mortgagees in possession had expended on repairs and lasting improvements 380*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.*, and computed the interest thereon at 96*l.* 2*s.* 4*d.* He found the mortgagees accountable for 396*l.* 9*s.* 10*d.* in respect of rents, and found a balance of about 18*l.* due from the mortgagees. The action now came on for further consideration, and summons to vary the Chief Clerk's certificate. One question raised was whether the limit of 900*l.* as the sum recoverable under the mortgage extended to the sums paid for headrent and in repairs and lasting improvements and interest on such sums. The mortgagor sought to make the mortgagees account for a sum of 1994*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.* as profits on the beer supplied to Moulton and Hake, or in the alternative to have them charged with a greater rent than was actually obtained, on the ground that a greater rent might have been obtained if the house had been let as a free house and not as a tied house.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and A. à B. Terrell, for the plaintiff.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and J. D. Fitzgerald, for the brewery company.

NORTH, J., held that the limit of 900*l.* did not apply to the sums expended in rent, taxes, and repairs and improvements or interest thereon. That the mortgagees were not chargeable with the profits realized by the sale of beer to the tenants: but were chargeable with an increased rent, which he assessed at 100*l.* for five years.

GLADSTONE v. BLUMENTHAL.
Practice—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LV., r. 3—Jurisdiction.

This was an originating summons taken out for the purpose of deciding a point on the construction of a deed executed by Messrs. Gladstone Brothers, of London, in favour of their creditors. The plaintiff was a creditor of the firm who had taken promissory notes drawn by J. Atkinson & Co., of Durban, and indorsed by Gladstone Brothers to him.

There were two partners in the firm of Gladstone Brothers. Robert Stewart Gladstone and Cecil Robert Gladstone. The business of J. Atkinson & Co. belonged to Robert Stewart Gladstone. That business had been wound up in Durban, and a balance of 537*l.* realized had been transmitted to the trustees of the creditors' deed. The question raised on the summons was whether, on the proper construction of the creditors' deed, the sum of 537*l.* realized in respect of the Durban business was included in the deed.

The plaintiff sued on behalf of himself and all other separate unpaid creditors of Robert Stewart Gladstone, trading as J. Atkinson & Co. The defendants were the trustees of the deed.

G. Foster Cooke (Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., with him), for the plaintiff.

Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and Herbert Reed, for the defendants, were not called on.

NORTH, J., considered that though the plaintiff was a beneficiary under the deed he was claiming against the deed, and there was no jurisdiction to decide the matter on originating summons. He also considered on the construction of the instrument that the property in question was included in it.

KING v. CHICK.

Administration—Insolvent Estate—Interest on Debt—Secured Creditor—Judicature Act, 1875, s. 10.

This was the further consideration of an administration action. The testator's estate was insolvent. The plaintiff was a secured creditor, and the proceeds of sale of the mortgaged property were not sufficient to pay what had been found due to him. The question was now raised for what amount he was entitled to prove against the testator's estate, having regard to the fact that, the estate being insolvent, no interest could be allowed as against the estate subsequently to the date of the administration judgment.

Quin, for the plaintiff.

Swinfen Eady, for the defendants, urged that, though the plaintiff was entitled to interest up to the present time as against the proceeds of his security, he must not be allowed in that way indirectly to increase the amount payable out of the estate.

NORTH, J., said that the plaintiff was entitled to apply the proceeds of his security first in payment of interest, and then in payment of principal due to him, and to prove against the estate for any balance which might remain due to him, but without any interest on that balance. The amount proved for could never exceed the amount of principal due at the date of the administration judgment.

Appeal by the defendant from the refusal by Charles, J., of an application for a prohibition to prohibit proceedings on an order of commitment, on the ground that the order, which was made by a County Court Judge, did not shew on its face the ground on which it was issued, as required by s. 5, sub. 1 of the Debtors Act, 1869. The operation of the order was suspended, and the only written document which had been drawn up was in the books of the County Court, in the form given in the schedule to the County Court Rules, 1886, and the Forms of Books, which by Order II, r. 2, the registrar was directed to keep, headed "Book H.—Summonses for Commitment, Interpleader, and Minutes of Orders thereon."

The Defendant, in person.

T. Willes Chitty, for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Bowen, L.J., sitting in a Divisional Court) held that the minute of the order in Book H, (which did not shew on its face the ground on which the order was made) was not the order, within the meaning of the Debtors Act, but that if the order were afterwards drawn up as directed by Order XXV, r. 33, of the County Court Rules, 1886, it would sufficiently comply with the Act, and therefore the application for a prohibition was rightly refused.

Company—Winding-up—Voluntary Winding-up—Provisional Liquidator—Parish Rates—Distress—Priority.

This was an appeal by the overseers from a decision of Mr. Justice Kay (ante, p. 165).

Eustace Smith, for the appellants.

Millar, Q.C., and G. T. J. Millar, for the liquidators.

THE COURT (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes, L.JJ.) held that as the overseers had at the time when the winding-up commenced a right of distress which they were only prevented from putting in force by the fact of the property being in the hands of the provisional liquidator, they ought not to have been restrained from selling, except on the terms of the liquidator paying the amount of the rates, for that if they had applied for leave to distrain, leave would have been given, and that their irregularity in distraining without leave was not sufficient to take away their right to priority.

Held (by Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) that, when the trustee of a bankrupt disclaims leasehold property of the bankrupt, which the bankrupt has mortgaged by sub-demise, an order may be made on the application of the original lessor, excluding the sub-lessee from all interest in and security upon the property, unless he elects to accept an order vesting the property in him subject to the same liabilities and obligations as the bankrupt was subject to under the lease in Pr. dice—Charging Order—Jurisdiction—Cash standing to credit of Judgment Debtor in Administration Action in Chancery Division—1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, ss. 12, 14—3 & 4 Vict. c. 82, s. 1—Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24, sub-s. 7—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order XLVI., rr. 1, 3—Supreme Court Funds Rules, 1886, r. 99.

Appeal from an order of a Divisional Court (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Mathew, J.) (ante p. 168; 21 Q. B. D. 226) refusing an application to discharge an order made by Field, J., in Chambers, whereby the sum of 48*l.*, for which the plaintiffs had recovered judgment in this action against the defendant, was charged upon a sum of 65*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* cash, which was standing to the credit of the defendant in the name of the Paymaster-General in an administration action in the Chancery Division. This sum was part of the proceeds of the sale of a sum of consols, which had been sold for the purpose of division among the persons entitled thereto. The charging order nisi was made on the 26th of January, and it was made absolute on the 31st of January. On the 27th of January the guardians of the Congleton Union obtained in the administration action an order for the payment to them out of the 65*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* of a sum of 14*l.* 12*s.*, which was due to them for the maintenance of the defendant as a pauper. The Paymaster-General declined to act on this order, because he had received notice of the charging order in favour of the plaintiff. The plaintiffs had not obtained a stop order. The Divisional Court held that Field, J., had jurisdiction to make the charging order, and refused to set it aside. The guardians appealed.

Horace Ivory, for the appellants.

Ince, Q.C., and E. Brodie Cooper, for the plaintiffs.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) affirmed the decision.

Lord Esher, M.R., said that the charging order could not be maintained under sect. 14 of 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, or sect. 1 of 3 & 4 Vict. c. 82, which applied only to Government stock, bonds, or annuities, or stock or shares in any public company, or the dividends, interest, or annual produce of the same. But sect. 12 of 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, enabled a sheriff under a fi. fa. to seize a cheque or cash belonging to a judgment debtor, and, if such a cheque or cash had been in the hands of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, that Court would have insisted the judgment creditor in obtaining the fruits of his judgment, by allowing the sheriff to receive the cheque or cash from the Accountant-General. This had been decided in the case of a cheque in Watts v. Jefferyes (8 Mac. & G. 422) and the same principle applied to cash. Under the Judicature Act all judges of the High Court were judges of every Division, and therefore Field, J., had jurisdiction to make the order. It was unnecessary to go through the form of appointing a receiver. The order nisi when made absolute took effect as from the date of the order nisi, and was therefore prior to the order obtained by the guardians. Haly v. Barry (Law Rep. 3 Ch. 452) was an authority for this. Under the present practice, especially having regard to r. 99 of the Supreme Court Funds Rules, 1886, it was unnecessary for the plaintiffs to obtain a stop order. The Paymaster-General had notice of the charging order, and that was sufficient.

LINDLEY and BOWEN, L.JJ., concurred.

Bramwell Davis, for the representatives of William Bennett.

Herbert Stephen, for the trustees.

THE COURT (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes, L.JJ.) said that the rule in Emperor v. Rolfe (1 Ves. Sen. 208), and cases of that class, was not a rule of law, but a rule of construction, which was to be applied in construing limitations in which there was any ambiguity, but which could not control plain unambiguous expressions; that here there was no ambiguity, and that the decision of Kay, J. was right.

Ince, Q.C., and Haldane, in support of the appeal.

Marten, Q.C., and E. Beaumont for the respondents, the petitioners.

THE COURT (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes, L.JJ.) considered it unnecessary to decide whether or not the transfers were invalid, and, assuming them to be valid, held on the construction of the company's special Act, that the persons named as directors were and still remained incorporators directors and members of the company, and being eight in number, the company was liable to be wound up under sect. 199 of the Company's Act, 1862. The decision of Kay, J., was accordingly right, and the appeal must be dismissed with costs.

Petition asking for the approval by the Court of an agreement for the compromise of the action. One of the persons interested in the property was a married woman (married in 1875), whose interest was limited to her separate use, without power of anticipation.

Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and T. L. Wilkinson, for the petitioner.

Eustace Smith, and Cutler, Q.C., for the respondents.

The question was raised whether the married woman ought to be examined separately as to her consent to the compromise.

Hodges v. Hodges (20 Ch. D. 749), was referred to.

NORTH, J., said that in some such cases he had required a married woman to be examined separately, but he would not lay down as a rule that this was absolutely necessary in every case. He should reserve the right of requiring a separate examination in any case in which he might think it necessary. In the present case he thought the compromise would be for the benefit of the married woman, and he did not think it necessary that she should be separately examined.

Company—Powers of Majorities—Pension.

Mr. Parkes, the colonial superintendent of the Bank of Australasia, while employed in the service of the bank, was killed in a railway accident in May, 1887. At the annual general meeting of the proprietors of the bank held in April, 1888, a resolution was passed authorizing "the directors to grant to the family of the late Mr. E. S. Parkes, in recognition of his eminent services to the bank for 20 years, a pension of 1500*l.* a year for a period of five years, commencing October 10, 1887, such pension to be paid in equal half-yearly instalments of 750*l.* each, to be distributed among his sons and daughters in such manner as the directors may think fit." The constitution of the company was regulated by a deed of settlement. There was no express power in the deed to make grants to the families of deceased officers. This was an action by a proprietor to obtain a declaration that the resolution was ultra vires, and to restrain the directors from acting on it. This action was brought on motion for an interim injunction. The motion was treated as the trial.

Kekewich, J. TYARS v. ALSOP, MANN & Co. July 30.

Solicitor and Client—Voluntary Gift by Client—Election to abide by Gift.

In 1880 the defendants, a firm of solicitors, were employed by a Mrs. Graham as her solicitors in a litigation in which she was successful, and on the 5th of June, 1880, the defendants, as her solicitors, received on her behalf the sum of 5000*l.*, and the sum of 100*l.* for their costs. On the 7th of June, 1880, Mrs. Graham made the defendants, as they alleged, a gift of 1000*l.* for their services. The relation of solicitor and client subsisted between the defendants and Mrs. Graham until March 1882, when she left them in anger. In April 1883, Mrs. Graham applied to the defendants for a loan of 10*l.*, which they lent her on her I. O. U. There was evidence that at this interview she was informed she was legally entitled to claim from them the 1000*l.*, but she said she would not recede from the gift. In May, 1883, she consulted another solicitor, who on her behalf wrote to the defendants and demanded an account of all moneys received by them on her behalf. On the 8th of June, 1883, Mrs. Graham died, and the plaintiff, who was her legal personal representative, commenced this action in December 1884, claiming repayment of the 1000*l.* with interest. The defendants, by their defence alleged that Mrs. Graham had by her acts elected to abide by the gift.

Oswald for the plaintiff.

Warmington, Q.C., and Chadwyck Healey, for the defendants.

KEKEWICH, J., said the question was whether Mrs. Graham at the date of her death was entitled to claim the repayment of the 1000*l.* from the defendants. If so, then her right of action survived to her legal personal representative, who could bring the action. In his Lordship's opinion, although she had shewed some intention to adhere to the gift, she had done nothing whatever to release her right to the money at the time of her death. The action was therefore maintainable, and having been brought in time, there must be judgment for the plaintiff with costs.

VAUGHN v. THE SOLICITOR TO THE TREASURY.

Legitimacy—Illegitimate Child—Subsequent Marriage of Parents—Legitimation of Child—Intervening Marriage of Father with another Woman—Domicil of Origin—Domicil of Choice—Length of Residence.

Maro Thomegay, who was born in Geneva in 1712 of Swiss parents, came to England in 1734, where he carried on business and resided till his death in 1779. In 1744 he had an illegitimate child by an Englishwoman named Martha P., and in 1746 and 1747 he had other illegitimate children by her. In 1748 he married another English woman, named Elizabeth W., and by her he had a daughter. Elizabeth W. died in 1752, and Maro Thomegay then married Martha P., by whom he had had three illegitimate children. He died in England in 1779, having by his will described himself as of Tottenham in Middlesex, and being possessed of leasehold property in London. After his marriage with Martha he had by her certain legitimate children. The question was whether the three illegitimate children were legitimated by the subsequent marriage of their father and mother, and notwithstanding the intervening marriage of their father with another woman. It was held by Stirling J., on the 1st of November, 1887, that the evidence shewed that in 1744 and afterwards Maro Thomegay intended to make England his permanent residence, and consequently that he had in that year acquired an English domicile: and this being so the case was governed by In re Wright's Trust (2 K. & J. 595), and the three children in question were illegitimate.

This was an appeal from that decision.

In this case a writ of prohibition was granted to the Mayor's Court by Field, J., at chambers. On appeal to Mathew and L. L. Smith, J.J., this decision was reversed. The application was made after judgment but before execution. The Court of appeal, after argument, decided that the Mayor's Court had exceeded its jurisdiction, but the question whether there was any discretion to refuse the writ was directed to be argued before the full Court.

NIXON v. FOGG.

Aug. 4, 6, 7, 9.

Will—Construction—Gift of Real and Personal Estate to Wife for her separate use "during widowhood"—Direction to pay Debts thereout.

T. T., a silk manufacturer, by his will dated the 15th of October, 1872, gave and bequeathed unto his wife, S. A. T., all his real and personal estate "including moneys, &c., household goods, and furniture, &c., and my share in the business of a silk manufacturer in the firm of "Trafford & Son" carried on by me and my partner in Bell Hay Green aforesaid or elsewhere, for her separate use during her widowhood, she my said wife paying thereout my just debts and funeral and testamentary expenses." And he appointed his wife, his partner, J. Edge, and one J. G., the executrix and executors of his will, all of whom duly proved the will.

T. T. died in 1874, leaving his widow, S. A. T., and one only child, G. T., by a previous marriage, him surviving. The child died in 1875, leaving three infant children, and also her husband (the plaintiff) her surviving, and the husband sued as administrator.]

S. A. T. died intestate in 1884, and it was found that (excepting the furniture) the whole estate had disappeared, the principal item (the share in the business) having been lost by being left in the business as continued by the surviving partner Edge, one of the executors, who had become bankrupt in 1885, and whose estate paid a dividend of a few shillings in the pound.

The plaintiff claimed that upon the true construction of the will there was an intestacy after the widow's death, and that he was entitled (as representing G. T.) to two-thirds of the estate (which was wholly personal estate), and to make the real and personal estate of S. A. T., deceased (which was considerable), liable to make good such two-thirds; and he made the bankrupt executor and J. G. and also the next of kin and co-heiresses at law of S. A. T. co-defendants, the first co-defendant being also the administratrix of S. A. T.

The defendants claimed that upon the true construction of the will the widow was entitled absolutely and not merely during life or widowhood; and further, that if entitled during life or widowhood only, she was entitled to enjoy the estate in specie, and in either case that the defendants or any of them were not liable for the loss of the estate.

Stirling, J., by an order dated the 18th March, 1887, decided that S. A. T. was only entitled for her life, and the time for appealing from this order had expired long before the trial.

At the trial before Kekewich, J., on the 18th of April, 1888, he decided that S. A. T. was entitled to enjoy the estate in specie, and accordingly dismissed the action with costs.

The plaintiff appealed; and his appeal coming on, Archibald Brown, appeared for the appellant.

Warmington, Q.C., and Butcher, for the respondents.

On the second day of the hearing the Court gave the respondents special leave (on terms) to appeal from the judgment of Stirling, J., of the 18th of March, 1887, and the original appellant consenting, the appeal from that judgment came on with the further hearing of the first appeal on the third day of the hearing.

Our. adv. vult.

Aug. 9. THE COURT (Cotton and Lopes, L.J.J., Fry, L.J., dissenting) reversed the decision of Stirling, J., of the 18th of March, 1887, and held (differing as to their reasons) that S. A. T. was entitled absolutely under the will of T. T., and on that decision, it became unnecessary to decide the question raised on plaintiff's appeal from the judgment of Kekewich, J. No costs of the action (subsequent to the 18th March, 1887) or of either appeal were given.

An application for an attachment in the Chancery Division, is not properly made by summons in chambers, but should be brought on in open Court by motion—the Judge being the only proper person to deal with questions of that description. Life Insurance Company—Transfer of Business—Power of Meetings.

This was a petition under the Life Insurance Companies Act, 1870-72, for the confirmation of the sale and transfer of business of the Argus Life Insurance Company to the Imperial Life Assurance Company. A question was raised on the part of a policy-holder, who opposed the petition, whether the Argus Company had power to sell the business. The company was formed in the year 1833 under a deed of settlement. There was no power in the deed as originally subscribed to for the company to transfer its business. But the deed gave power to the proprietors to alter the provisions of the deed, and the proprietors had in manner prescribed duly passed resolutions taking power to sell its business.

Coxens-Hardy, Q.C., and D. Jones, for the Imperial Company.

Napiér Higgins, Q.C., and Grosvenor Woods, for the opposing policy-holder.

Mortgage—Foreclosure—Ejectment—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883; Order XVIII., r. 2.

This was a foreclosure action commenced by originating summons. The summons asked for possession. An order for foreclosure had been made absolute in the action, but no order for delivery of possession had been made. The mortgagor refused to give up possession. The mortgagees moved now for an order on the mortgagor to deliver up possession.

Coxens-Hardy, Q.C., and Freeman, for the motion, relied on the first proviso to r. 2, Order XVIII.

Church, contra.

NORTH, J., considered that whatever was the construction of the proviso to the rule, he could now make an order for delivery of possession; such relief was asked for on the summons. It seemed to him that although the plaintiff might have applied at an earlier time for the order, the having got the foreclosure order did not disentitle him from getting the other order claimed, subject to this, that he had made no applications for what might have been done in one. His Lordship could not give him any costs. There would be an order for immediate delivery of possession without costs.

Lessee—Nuisance—Covenant for quiet Enjoyment—Injunction.

This was an action by John Jenkins, as lessee of two rooms in the Philharmonic Buildings at Cardiff, against the lessors, and T. Summers, tenant under them of other parts of the building, to restrain the use of the building for dancing, musical entertainments so as to occasion a nuisance to the plaintiff as lessee of the two rooms, which he used as a quiet enjoyment. The lease to the plaintiff contained the usual covenant for quiet enjoyment.

Warmington, Q.C., and R. J. Parker, for the plaintiff, contended that besides his rights at law he had a right to prevent the nuisance under the covenant for quiet enjoyment.

Neville, Q.C., and France, for the defendants.

KEKEWICH, J., said that such an annoyance as the plaintiff complained of was not a breach of a covenant for quiet enjoyment, but the plaintiff had rights at law. As to the law, they were also liable, as Summers was only a weekly tenant, and they knew that the plaintiff complained. The plaintiff had a right to complain, but on the balance of convenience Lordship would not grant an injunction, though the plaintiff might enforce his legal rights. His Lordship gave the plaintiff 20*l.* damages and the costs except as to a part of his claim which he had failed.

Building Society—Mortgage—Statutory Receipt—Successive Incumbrancers—Priority—Tacking—Right to call for Legal Estate—"Person for the time being entitled to the equity of redemption"—Building Societies Act 1836 (6 & 7 Wm. 4, c. 32) s. 5.

Harris mortgaged leasehold property to benefit building societies established under 6 & 7 Wm. 4, c. 32. In 1880 he executed a second mortgage of the property to the respondents. In 1883 the appellants lent Harris 6000l., 2000l. odd being employed in paying off the building societies, and the balance being paid to Harris. Upon being so paid off the building societies indorsed on their respective mortgages receipts to the mortgagor in accordance with 6 & 7 Wm. 4, c. 32, s. 5, and delivered the indorsed deeds with the title-deeds of the mortgaged property to the appellants. Harris at the same time executed a mortgage of the property to the appellants to secure the 6000l. Neither the building societies thus paid off nor the appellants had any notice of the mortgage to the respondents. The respondents afterwards brought an action against the appellants for foreclosure and sale, the only question raised being whether the respondents' mortgage had priority over the balance of the 6000l. which was paid directly to Harris, it being admitted by the respondents' pleadings that they had no priority in respect of the 2000l. odd applied in paying off the building societies.

The Vice-Chancellor of the County Palatine gave judgment for the appellants upon a point not material to this report. The Court of Appeal (Cotton, Lindley and Bowen L.JJ.) reversed this decision and gave judgment for the respondents upon the question of priority, upon the ground that the decision of Lord Cairns L.C. in Pease v. Jackson (Law Rep. 3 Ch. 576), followed in Robinson v. Trevor (12 Q. B. D. 423), was binding.

R. Neville Q.C. and P. O. Lawrence for the appellants.
French Q.C. and V. Somers Browne (J. D. Crauford with them) for the respondents.

THE HOUSE (Lord Halsbury L.C. and Lords Watson and FitzGerald) after consideration reversed the decision of the Court of Appeal with costs, and held that the appellants had priority over the respondents in respect of the balance of the loan, being of opinion that Pease v. Jackson was wrongly decided as to that point.

Husband and Wife—Agreement for Separation—Power of Wife to contract without Intervention of Trustee—Agreement not to be performed within a Year—Statute of Frauds, s. 4.

Appeal from the decision of the Queen's Bench Division (reported 20 Q. B. D. 529) upon an appeal from the County Court of Newcastle.

The facts were as follows:—A husband and wife having taken out cross summonses for assault against each other entered into an oral agreement to withdraw the summonses and to live apart, the husband agreeing to allow the wife a weekly sum for maintenance, and the wife agreeing to maintain herself and their children, and to indemnify the husband against any debts contracted by her. The action was by the wife to recover six weeks arrears of maintenance under the agreement. The County Court Judge gave judgment for the plaintiff. The Queen's Bench Division affirmed his decision.

J. Lawson Walton, for the defendant, contended that such an agreement between husband and wife was not binding without the intervention of a trustee, and that the agreement not being in writing was within the 4th section of the Statute of Frauds.

He cited on the latter point Davey v. Shannon (4 Ex. D. 81).

Stuart Sim, for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) affirmed the decision of the Court below. They intimated an opinion that the decision in Davey v. Shannon (4 Ex. D. 81) could not be supported.

Appeal dismissed.

[Aug. 9.]

Company—Reduction of Capital—Confirmation by Court—Discretion—Preference Shares—Companies Act, 1867, s. 11—Companies Act, 1877.

Petition by the company for the confirmation by the Court of special resolutions for the reduction of the capital, by an amount which had been lost or was unrepresented by available assets. The capital of the company consisted of ordinary shares and two classes of preference shares, and it was proposed to reduce all the shares by one fourth of their nominal amount. All the shares had been paid up in full. The original articles of association (dated in 1864) did not contain any power to reduce the capital. They provided that the directors, with the sanction of a special resolution, might from time to time increase the capital by the issue of new shares, which when created should be considered as part of the original capital, but the company might by special resolution direct that the new shares should have such priority in respect of dividends as it should deem expedient. In 1872 it was resolved to issue certain preference shares "bearing interest at 8 per cent. per annum in perpetuity." In 1876 it was resolved to issue certain other preference shares "entitling the holder to a fixed dividend of 6 per cent. per annum on the amount for the time being paid up in respect of such shares." In both cases it was provided that the preference shareholders should be entitled to attend the general meetings of the company, but that they should not be entitled in virtue of those shares to vote. In 1885 a special resolution was passed, adding to the articles of association a clause authorizing the directors, from time to time, with the sanction of a special resolution, to reduce the capital by cancelling lost capital, or capital unrepresented by available assets. In April, 1888, the special resolutions, the confirmation of which was sought by this petition, were passed. The petition was opposed by some of the preference shareholders, who contended that there was no power to reduce the amount of the preference shares, or that at any rate the amount of the dividends payable on their shares could not be reduced.

Sir B. Davey, Q.C., and Farwell, for the company.

Rigby, Q.C., and Chadwyck Healey, for the opposing preference shareholders.

NORTH, J., confirmed the resolutions. He thought that the Act of 1867 did not require that the reduction should necessarily be spread equally or rateably over all the capital of the company. But prima facie, in the absence of any contract to the contrary, all the shares ought to be equally or proportionately reduced. In the present case, looking at the terms of the bargain, he thought the company could not have thrown the reduction on the ordinary shares in relief of the preference shares. In his Lordship's opinion the fact that the power to reduce the capital was not introduced into the articles until after the creation of the preference shares did not afford any valid ground for distinguishing the case from Bannatyne v. Direct Spanish Telegraph Company (34 Ch. D. 287). The preference shareholders bargained to take their shares with the knowledge that under the Act of 1867 the company could reduce its capital, if a special resolution was passed to introduce such a power in the articles. And his Lordship could not find any substantial distinction between the terms of the contract with the preference shareholders in the present case and those of the contract in Bannatyne's Case. In both cases the contract was for a preferential dividend on the amount of the shares subject to the power of reduction. No doubt the Court has under sect. 11 of the Companies Act, 1867, a discretion to refuse to confirm resolutions for a reduction of capital, but it was judicial discretion, and ought not to be exercised unless there was something unjust or inequitable in the proposed reduction. He could see nothing of that kind in the present case. He therefore confirmed the resolutions. The minute to be registered must shew, not only the amount of the capital as reduced, but also the amount from which it was to be reduced.

Bankruptcy—Bankruptcy Notice—Judgment by Consent—Omission to file Consent Order—Debtors Act, 1869, s. 27.

Appeal by the debtor against the refusal of Mr. Registrar Linklater to set aside a bankruptcy notice, which was founded on a consent judgment against the debtor. The judgment creditor had omitted to file the judge's order by consent, in accordance with the provisions of sect 27 of the Debtors Act 1869.

Digby Seymour, Q.C., and B. Vaughan Williams, for the appellant.

Archibald, for the creditor, was not heard.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Lindley and Bowen, L.J.J.) affirmed the decision. They said that in Goswami v. Wright (18 Q. B. D. 201) it was decided by this Court, that the omission to file the consent order, as required by sect 27, made the judgment void as against the creditors of the judgment debtor, but not as against the judgment debtor himself. The judgment was, therefore, notwithstanding sect. 27, capable of being enforced against the judgment debtor himself in any way in which a judgment could be enforced, including a bankruptcy notice. The case was very different in principle from Ex parte Lennox (16 Q. B. D. 315). In that case, if the allegations were well founded, there was no real debt.

Bankruptcy Notice—Act of Bankruptcy—Charging Order obtained by Creditor during pendency of Notice—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 4, sub-s. 1 (g).

Appeal against the refusal of Mr. Registrar Linklater to set aside a bankruptcy notice served by McMurdo on Sedgwick. During the seven days limited by the notice for the payment of the judgment debt McMurdo obtained an order, under sect. 14 of 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, charging the debt on some shares belonging to Sedgwick.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and Henry Kisch, for the debtor, argued that, by the creditor's own act in obtaining the charging order, the debtor had been prevented from paying the debt, as required by the notice, by means of a sale of the shares; the creditor could not, therefore, be allowed to avail himself of the act of bankruptcy committed by non-compliance with the notice: Ex parte Musgrove (3 M. D. & D. 386); Ex parte Greener (15 Ch. D. 457); In re Phillips (5 Morell, 40).

Vennell, for the creditor, was not heard.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that the cases cited shewed that, if a creditor who had served a bankruptcy notice by his own act prevented the debtor from complying with the notice, he could not be allowed to insist on the act of bankruptcy committed by the non-compliance. But it must be something which in a business sense really prevented the debtor from complying with the notice; it was not sufficient that a difficulty had been placed in his way. The charging order did not prevent the debtor from selling the shares. If he had sold them, and had given notice to the creditor that he was prepared to pay the debt out of the proceeds of sale, the creditor could have been compelled to give his consent to the transfer of the shares. The charging order did not, therefore, prevent the debtor from paying the debt.

Bankruptcy Petition—Judgment Debt—Non-Compliance with Bankruptcy Notice—Appeal pending from Judgment—Stay of Petition—Jurisdiction of Court of Bankruptcy to go behind Judgment—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 7, sub.-ss. 3, 4.

Appeal against the refusal of Mr. Registrar Haslitt to stay the hearing of a bankruptcy petition, pending an appeal by the debtor against the judgment for the debt on which the petition was founded. The act of bankruptcy relied on was non-compliance with a bankruptcy notice in respect of the debt. The judgment was obtained after a trial before a judge and jury.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and Gwynne James, for the appellant, argued that the Registrar ought to have stayed the petition pending the appeal against the judgment, and that in bankruptcy the validity of a judgment could be inquired into: Ex parte Lennox (16 Q. B. D. 815).

Herbert Reed, for the creditor, was not heard.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that under sub-sect 4 of sect. 7 the Registrar was not bound to stay the petition because an appeal from the judgment was pending; he had a judicial discretion in the matter, and the Court of Appeal would not interfere unless it was clear that he had exercised his discretion wrongly. And, as was shewn by Ex parte Saville (4 Morell, 277), the Court of Bankruptcy would not inquire into a judgment which had been obtained after a trial of definite issues before a proper tribunal, unless there was something to shew that there had been fraud, or collusion, or some miscarriage of justice. There was nothing of that kind here.

Injunction—Restrictive Covenant—Annoyance and Grievance—Throat and Skin Diseases Hospital.

Held, that the establishment of a hospital and surgical appliance department for the treatment of diseases of the throat, nose, ear, skin, and eye, fistula and other diseases, and deformities of the human frame, being an act which materially interfered with the comfort and pleasurable enjoyment of their houses by sensible persons, in causing a reasonable apprehension, if not an actual risk, of infection, was an "annoyance and grievance" within the meaning of the covenant which would be restrained by injunction:

Held, also, that in order to enforce such a covenant it was not necessary to shew actual damage or pecuniary loss.

This was a summons under the Vendors and Purchasers Act, 1874, raising the question whether s. 127 of the Lands Clauses Act, 1845, providing that a railway company shall "absolutely sell and dispose of" superfluous lands within a prescribed period, had been satisfied.

Will—Construction—Special Power of Appointment.

Mary Martha Eastwood Cotton, who died on the 25th of September, 1881, made her will shortly before her death containing the following words: "I give, devise, and appoint all my real and personal estate whatsoever and wheresoever and all other the real and personal estate of or to which I shall at my death be seised or possessed, or over which I shall at my death have a power of appointment or disposition by will, unto my trustees upon trust at their discretion and subject to the power of postponement hereinafter contained to call in, sell and convert the same into money, and after payment thereof of my debts and testamentary and funeral expenses to stand possessed of the net proceeds of such sale and conversion and of my ready money (hereinafter referred to as 'my trust estate') upon trust to invest the same and during the minority and spinsterhood of my daughter Elizabeth Martha Wood Cotton to pay to or apply for her maintenance and education such part of the income and profits of my trust estate as my trustees may in their discretion think proper and to accumulate the residue of such income, and such accumulations shall from time to time and when they arise be added to and form part of my trust estate." The testatrix's daughter was given a life interest, her attaining 21 or marrying. After her death trusts were declared in favour of her issue with remainder over in default of issue.

The testatrix was a widow, and by her marriage settled property in which she took a life interest was divided among children of the marriage "with such provision for the respective maintenance and education or advancement and for the respective vested interests at such age, day, or time, or respective days, or times" as she should appoint. In default of appointment the trusts of the property were for such of the children of the marriage as being sons, should attain 21, or being daughters should attain that age or marry.

The testatrix had only two children, a son who died in the lifetime of his mother under age, and her daughter Elizabeth Martha Wood Cotton, who when her mother died was under age.

This was an originating summons which, for the purpose of determining whether there was a case for election, raised the question of construction whether the clause in the will set out above was an exercise of the power of appointment contained in the settlement.

LEWIS v. WESTON SUPER-MARE LOCAL BOARD.

Public Health Act 1875, ss. 16, 54, 189—Local Board—Carrying Water-Mains—"Surveyor's" Report—"Necessary"—Injunction.

This was a motion for an injunction to restrain the defendants who are an urban local authority, from carrying a water-main through part of a freehold garden belonging to the plaintiff and situated within their district. By sects. 16 and 54 of the Public Health Act, 1875, the defendants were empowered to carry water-mains through any lands within their district giving notice in writing to the owner or occupier, "if on the report of their surveyor it appears necessary." By sect. 189, every urban authority is required from time to time to appoint a fit and proper person to be surveyor, and also to appoint such assistants, collectors and other officers and servants as may be necessary and proper for the efficient execution of the Act; and every officer and servant (with an exception not necessary to be stated) appointed under the Act is removable at pleasure by the urban authority.

In December, 1887, the defendants' surveyor died. In January, 1888, the defendants appointed A. P., a civil engineer in their employment, to be their surveyor until a permanent surveyor should be appointed, subject to a week's notice to determine his appointment.

On March 21, 1888, A. P. reported to the defendants, in pursuance of sects. 16 and 54, that it was "desirable and advisable" that their 15 inch water-main should be carried from a certain point to a certain other point in their district, and that it would be "necessary to lay the said water-main through land belonging to" the plaintiff. The report then recommended that notice to that effect should be given to the plaintiff, and was signed "Your Surveyor, A. P."

Four days after the date of the report A. P.'s appointment was determined, and C. was appointed surveyor to the defendants, and the defendants retained A. P., who was a candidate for the surveyorship, as waterworks engineer under the supervision of their consulting engineer. The report of March 21 was adopted by the defendants on April 11, 1888, and notice was served on the plaintiff; who, after some correspondence, finding the defendants were carrying their pipes up to his land, obtained an ex parte injunction against them.

Upon motion made on August 9 it was contended on behalf of the plaintiff that the injunction ought to be continued until the trial upon two grounds: (1) That it did not appear by the report of March 21, 1888, to be "necessary" to carry the main through the plaintiff's land; and (2) that A. P., by whom the report was made, was not "the surveyor" within the meaning of sect. 16.

Buckley Q.C., and Haldane, for the plaintiff.

Hastings, Q.C., and E. Ford, for the defendants.

Cur. adv. vult.

Oct. 25. STIRLING, J., said that if the words of s. 16 had been "if it appears necessary," the persons to judge of the necessity would be the local authority; but as the words stood, the person to determine on the necessity was the surveyor; that being so, the surveyor was bound to exercise a bonâ fide judgment in the matter. As to the construction of the word "necessary," in the case of a public body charged with the performance of a public duty, it might well mean "necessary for the efficient discharge of the duty in the way which is most for the public interest." And if the Court was satisfied that the surveyor had exercised his judgment, and come to a conclusion in good faith, it would not interfere, although other courses might be practicable by which the necessity for entering the private lands might be avoided. But "the surveyor" must be the fit and proper person duly appointed under sect. 189, and the defendants must strictly follow the terms of their powers, and, as A. P., though "an officer or servant necessary for the efficient execution of the Act," never was "the surveyor," the report on which the whole proceedings were founded was not the report of "the surveyor," and the plaintiff was entitled to an injunction until the trial.

LOWTHER v. HEAVER.

Oct. 30.

Building Lease—Separate Leases—Conditions divisible—Amendment of Defence.

By an agreement made between A. Heaver and J. Rowe, Heaver agreed to grant to Rowe, or his nominees, leases of forty-two plots of ground at Clapham. Rowe was to erect and roof in houses and shops on the plots, and as soon as Rowe had roofed in the houses, the lessor would grant a separate lease of each house and plot. There was a power of re-entry, if the rents were not paid and the houses were not finished as therein mentioned. Leases had been granted of some of the plots and houses. On four of the plots houses were begun by Rowe, and, as alleged by the claim, were roofed in by March, 1887. This was not denied by the defence, but, as it came out by the evidence in Court, they were in fact not roofed in until September, 1887. In June, 1887, J. P. Lowther, the plaintiff, advanced money to Rowe on the security of the four plots, with an option to purchase, which he afterwards exercised. Rowe died on the 6th of July, 1887, and as the conditions of the lease had not been complied with as to several of the plots Heaver had taken possession.

Lowther now brought an action against Heaver and the administratrix of Rowe claiming execution of leases of the four plots.

Barber, Q.C., and Cree, for the plaintiff.

Warmington, Q.C., and J. G. Wood, for Heaver, contended that the agreement applied to the whole of the plots, and that if default was made as to any, they could re-enter on all. They also asked leave to amend as to the time when the four plots were roofed in. They had not denied the statement as to the time because they were not aware of the facts, but the plaintiff must have been aware.

B. B. Rogers, for Rowe's administratrix.

KEKEWICH, J., said that what was not denied was according to the rules of Court expressly admitted, and that he could not allow such an amendment. As to the agreement, he held on the construction that it was divisible, and that the plaintiff was entitled to have the leases.

Rule nisi calling on two justices of Derbyshire to shew cause why they should not issue a warrant under their hands and seals to appoint David Massey to be assistant overseer of the poor of the parish of Glossop pursuant to 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, s. 7.

It appeared from affidavits that on the 11th of May a vestry meeting of the inhabitants was held, and a chairman appointed under 58 Geo. 3, c. 69, ss. 1, 2. Two candidates were nominated for the office of assistant overseer. There was a show of hands, but a poll was demanded, and on the 12th of May the poll was held. The votes were counted, and the result of the poll was a majority of 2 votes in favour of Massey, who was declared by the chairman to have been duly elected. On the 31st of May an application was made under 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, s. 7, to the two justices to issue their warrant appointing Massey assistant overseer. They received evidence showing that at the poll more votes had in some cases been allowed to voters than they were entitled to under 58 Geo. 3, c. 69, s. 3, and the justices refused the application on the ground, inter alia, that Massey was not duly elected by reason of the chairman not having in all cases allowed the proper number of votes to each voter.

By 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, s. 7, the inhabitants in vestry may nominate and elect any discreet person to be assistant overseer, and determine and specify his duties and salary, "and it shall be lawful for any two justices . . . by warrant under their hands and seals to appoint any person who shall be so nominated and elected to be assistant overseer. . . for such purposes, and with such salary, as shall have been fixed by the inhabitants in vestry."

Asquith shewed cause, contending that the justices had jurisdiction to review the election, and there were no other means of reviewing it.

R. C. Glen, for the applicant, was not called upon.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Grantham, J.) held that the justices had no jurisdiction to review the election, but should issue their warrant appointing the person elected to be assistant overseer.

Q. B. Div. WILLIAMS v. SMITH AND ANOTHER. Oct. 27, 31.

Defamation—Libel—Innuendo—Defamatory Meaning—Publication in Trade Newspaper of Extracts from the Register of County Court Judgments.

Motion by the defendants to set aside the judgment for the plaintiff in an action for libel tried at the Middlesex sittings before the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury. The plaintiff was a hatter, carrying on business in London, and the libel complained of was the publication by the defendants in the Hatters' Gazette, a trade newspaper, in a list, headed "County Court Judgments," and containing the names of members of the trade against whom there was judgments entered on the County Courts' register, of the plaintiff's name, together with the amount of a judgment against him which appeared on the County Court register. At the time of the publication the plaintiff had satisfied the claim, but he had not procured the removal of the judgment from the register. The Lord Chief Justice held that the statement published was capable of a defamatory meaning (viz., that the judgment was still unsatisfied), and left it to the jury to say whether it was libellous. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, with 25*l.* damages, and the Lord Chief Justice gave judgment for the plaintiff for this amount.

Winch, Q.C., and Herbert Reed, for the defendants, argued that as the 18th section of the County Courts Act, 1853, provides for the registration of County Court judgments in such a manner as to render the list accessible to the public, the publication in a trade newspaper of extracts from the register was not per se libellous, and that, under these circumstances, as there was no evidence of express malice, the verdict could not be supported.

Cock, Q.C., and R. G. Glenn, for the plaintiff.

The following authorities were referred to in the argument: Fleming v. Newton (1 H. L. C. 363), in which the House of Lords reversed a decision of the Scotch Court of Session granting an injunction to restrain the publication of a copy of the register of protests for non-acceptance and non-payment of bills of exchange and promissory notes established by certain Scotch Acts; and M'Nally v. Oldham (16 Ir. C. L. Rep. (N.S.) 298), and Cosgrave v. The Trade Auxiliary Company (18 L. J. Common Law, 349), two Irish cases on the subject of whether the publication of "black lists" in trade newspapers constitute an infraction of the law of libel.

This was an appeal from a decision of the Vice-Chancellor of the county palatine of Lancaster.

Turcan by his marriage settlement assigned certain personal property to trustees upon the trusts of the settlement, and covenanted that if he should during the marriage become entitled to any other property by devise, bequest, purchase, or otherwise, he would assign it to the trustees, upon the trusts of the settlement.

After the date of the settlement Turcan effected three policies of insurance, namely, one for 1000*l.*, against death by accident, one for 500*l.* against death or disablement by accident, and one ordinary life policy for 500*l.* Turcan was accidentally drowned, and the three sums due on the policies were paid to his executor. The trustees of the settlement claimed these sums as bound by the covenant in the settlement; and the executor presented a petition to the Court to decide the rights of the parties.

The accident policy for 1000*l.* contained a special condition that the policy "should not be assignable in any case whatever."

The Vice-Chancellor directed that the three sums of money should be paid to the trustees of the settlement, and the executor appealed.

*Henn Collins, Q.C., and Hughes for the appellant.

COTTON, L.J., said that it had been contended that the covenant was against public policy and altogether void. He did not agree with that. It might however be a question whether a covenant in general terms to settle the whole of the future property of the covenantor would be enforced by a Court of Equity. But it had been held that if the covenant besides the general terms mentioned particular classes of property, the covenant was divisible, and the Court would enforce the covenant as to those particular classes. In the present case he was of opinion that the policies came under the category of property acquired "by purchase," and that they ought to be held to be bound by the covenant. With respect to the proviso that the policy for 1000*l.* was not to be assignable, he thought that proviso was inserted to avoid the effect of the 30 & 31 Vict. c. 144, which enacted that policies might be assigned at law; and it did not prevent the settlor declaring himself a trustee of the policy money for the trustees of the settlement, which would have satisfied the covenant. The order of the Vice-Chancellor was right, and the appeal must be dismissed.

Reference was made to the Annual Practice, 1887-8, p. 573, where, after a reference to the provisions of the Judgments Extension Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 54), under which judgments of a superior court in Scotland or Ireland for "any debt, damages, or costs" may be executed in England, it is stated that Scotch judgments "of all kinds are placed upon the rolls of the Chancery Division, though not under any special Act of Parliament, but under a practice which has grown out of the partial union of Scotch and English Courts under art. 24 of the Act of Union (5 Anne c. 8), establishing one great seal for Great Britain." It appears, however, that in the more recent edition of the same work this passage is omitted.

KAY, J., directed that the motions should stand over in order that the registrar of the day should make inquiry as to the existence of any such practice.

Nov. 3. KAY, J., said that the registrar reported that it did not appear that any such practice existed. The decree of the Court of Session was not a judgment for "debt, damages or costs," and his Lordship having made every possible inquiry into the matter, and referred to the statutes upon the subject, found that there was no statute and no practice of the Court which warranted the enrolment. The whole thing seemed to have been a complete mistake. The motion of Strousberg must be allowed, with costs to be paid by the company, and the motion for attachment must be refused with costs.

Strousberg being resident in London, the decree was served on him by being posted at the general register house in Edinburgh. On the 23rd of August, 1888, upon a petition of course presented by the company and judicial factor, an order was made directing that the decree of the 17th of July, 1888, should be enrolled on the rolls of the Chancery Division. On the 6th of September, 1888, Denman, J., made an order giving leave to issue a writ of delivery against Strousberg for delivery by him of the books and papers of the company.

Strousberg now moved that the orders of the 23rd of August and the 6th of September, 1888, might be discharged, and the enrolment of the decree of the Court of Session vacated and expunged from the rolls of the Court.

When the motion stands till the trial, the judge at the trial disposes of the motion including the costs. The practice is this: Where the parties agree that the question arising on the motion is the same as that at the trial, then the right course is to make the costs of the motion, costs in the action. Often, however, a different point arises on the motion from that involved in the action, such as the question whether it was right to make the motion at all, whatever the rights of the parties may be. In such a case the proper order is that the motion stands over until the trial.

This was a summons by a purchaser which asked for a declaration that he was entitled to compensation for a misdescription in the particulars of sale under which he bought, and to have the amount of compensation determined. The defendants were trustees who had sold under direction of the Court in an administration action. The sale was made by private contract under conditions and particulars prepared for sale at public auction, the property having been put up and not sold, the price £1500. The property bought was described in the particulars as 21A, 1B, 21P., "building or accommodation pasture land," "approached by Cuddington Avenue, a new road (made up and sewered) which is continued across the property," "having considerable frontages for building purposes, and affording several sites for the erection of gentlemen's residences." There were delineated on a plan attached to the particulars Cuddington Avenue, and, in dotted lines, its continuance over the estate. The evidence shewed that Cuddington Avenue had gravel with a foundation of chalk, with two footpaths, one of which only was gravelled. The road over the estate had not been gravelled, but a foundation in part of chalk and in part of brick ballast had been made.

There was a condition that any error or misstatement should not annul the sale, but that compensation should be made by or to the purchaser.

The contention on the part of the purchaser was that the particulars represented that the road was made up with two gravelled footpaths, and that he was entitled as compensations to the amount that it would cost him to put the road in such condition. The evidence shewed that, to make the road up with two footpaths gravelled would cost 303*l.*, to make it up as Cuddington Avenue was made up, with only one footpath gravelled, would cost 214*l.*

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and G. Harris Lea, for the purchaser.

Cozens Hardy, Q.C., and E. Beaumont, for the vendors.

NORTH, J., held, on the construction of the particulars, that there was a representation that the road was made to the same extent as Cuddington Avenue, with one footpath gravelled; that the purchaser was not entitled to the sum that it would cost to do the work necessary to put it in the same state as Cuddington Avenue; but was entitled only to the difference between the actual value of the land at the date of the sale and the price paid, and directed an inquiry in chambers to ascertain the value at that date.

Originating summons to determine whether the trustees of a will had power to sell the testator's real estate.

And he declared that it should be lawful for his trustees, at their absolute and uncontrolled discretion, to continue the whole or any part of his estate at all times and from time to time in the firm in which he was a partner, or to invest, reinvest, and lend any part of his estate to them, on such terms as the said trustees should at such discretion as aforesaid think proper.

Dundas Gardiner, for the plaintiffs, argued, on the authority of In re Cooke's Contract (4 Ch. D. 454), and Affleck v. James (17 Sim. 121), that the power to the trustees to invest and lend any part of the estate to the firm necessarily implied a power for the trustees to sell the testator's real estate.

NORTH, J., held that there was no implied power to sell the real estate. The cases cited were distinguishable, because in them there was a trust to invest all the testator's estate in the way specified, whereas in the present case there was only a discretionary power to invest.

The business of the testator in this action, of manure, wool and seed merchant, had been carried on for ten years under the direction of the Court by a manager and receiver. The business had been carried on for the benefit of the infant son of the testator, one of the plaintiffs, with the view of his being able to take it himself when he came of age. The manager when he was first appointed had not been previously engaged in business. There was evidence that the business was of a character that depended largely on the personal influence of the manager and the traveller. Circumstances had arisen under which, in the interest of the infant, the Court had ordered the business and goodwill to be sold. An offer had been made to purchase the goodwill and stock-in-trade of the business as a going concern "If Mr. J. G. In February, 1887, a notice was issued inviting applications, and on the 19th of April a meeting was held for the election of an ophthalmic surgeon. The votes were taken, and 140 proxies for Mr. Ensor were counted on the ground that they were signed in 1886, and were valid for this election. The other candidate was thereupon declared to be elected. This action was then brought, claiming that Mr. Ensor was duly elected, which would have been the case, if the 140 proxies had not been rejected.

VAGLIANO BROTHERS v. GOVERNOR AND COMPANY OF THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

Appel—Negligence—Proximate Cause of Loss—Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 61), s. 7, sub-s. 3.

Case tried before Charles, J., without a jury.

The action was brought by Messrs Vagliano Brothers, merchants, to recover from the Bank of England, who acted as their bankers, a sum of 71,500*l.*, the amount of bills of exchange for which cash had been paid by the Bank to one Glika, a clerk in the plaintiffs' employment, under the following circumstances. Glika conducted the correspondence of the plaintiffs' firm with Vucina, a merchant engaged in business at Odessa, who drew on them for large amounts, sometimes making the bills payable to the order of C. Petridi & Co., merchants engaged in business at Constantinople. Glika had paper prepared to resemble that on which Vucina's letters were written, and bills prepared to resemble Vucina's bills. He forged on the prepared paper letters of advice bearing Vucina's signature, and forged Vucina's name to the prepared bills, as drawer, writing on each bill the name of C. Petridi & Co. as payees, and stamping on each bill a fictitious name, F. Pasqua & Son, as indicating the London firm which had left the bill for acceptance. Glika would then place one of the forged letters of advice from Vucina with the letters of the firm, and would drop the corresponding bill into the bill box. The particulars of the bill given in the forged letters of advice would be entered by the clerk in the "bills payable" book, and the bill being found in order, would be stamped by another clerk "accepted payable at the Bank of England," the number, date of acceptance and date when due would be added in writing, and it would come with other bills before a member of the plaintiffs' firm for acceptance. The member of the plaintiffs' firm would then accept the bill with the others, and it would be placed in a portfolio to be called for by the supposed F. Pasqua & Son. From this portfolio Glika would abstract the draft. He then forged upon it the indorsement of C. Petridi & Co., and took or sent the bill to the Bank of England, and obtained payment across the counter. The frauds were discovered, and Glika was convicted. The Bank thus cashed between February and October, 1887, thirty-eight bills, paying to Glika in respect of them 71,500*l.*, the amount claimed.

The defendants submitted (1) that the Bank was protected by the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 61), s. 7, sub-s. 3, which enacts that "where the payee is a fictitious or non-existing person, the bill may be treated as payable to bearer;" (2) that the plaintiffs had by their conduct disentitled themselves from insisting on treating the payments to Glika as made without their authority; (3) that the amount of the bills having been debited to the plaintiffs in their pass-book, and the account having been balanced, there was an account stated.

Sir C. Russell, Q.C., Finlay, Q.C., and F. W. Hollams, for the plaintiffs.

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G., H. D. Greene, Q.C., and Arbuthnot, for the defendants.

CHARLES, J., held as follows: As regards (1) that C. Petridi & Co., the payees, whose indorsements had been forged, being a real and existing firm, the bills were not payable to "a fictitious or non-existing person" within the meaning of s. 7, sub-s. 3, of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882. His Lordship said that it had been suggested that the payees must be regarded as "fictitious and non-existing," because the transaction was fictitious, Vucina not having drawn to the order of C. Petridi & Co., and Glika not having intended that C. Petridi & Co. should indorse the bills, and that it was impossible to hold that the mere selection by the forger of a name actually borne by some one could deprive the Bank of the protection of the Act. The distinction, however, between the forged signature of a real person and the signature of a fictitious person was well recognised: Boeman v. Duck (11 M. & W. 251). By the law merchant it was only when a bill was drawn payable to the order of a payee who was fictitious or non-existing to the knowledge of the acceptor, that the bonâ fide holder for value could recover against him as upon a bill payable to bearer: Gilson v. Minet (1 H. Bl. 569); Phillips v. Im Thurm (Law Rep. 1 C. P. 463); Cooper v. Meyer (10 B. & C. 468). Applying this test, C. Petridi & Co. were made payees by the forger precisely because they were not "fictitious or non-existing" as regards Messrs. Vagliano, who often accepted bills payable to their order. The learned judge thought the sub-section did not change this state of the law. Again by sect. 54 the plaintiffs were precluded "from denying to a holder in due course the existence of the payees and their then capacity to endorse, but not the genuineness or validity of the endorsement." O. Petridi & Co., who under this section could by indorsing one of these forged bills have made a good title to a bona fide holder for value to whom the plaintiffs would have had to pay, could hardly be "fictitious and non-existing" within s. 7, sub-s. 3. And this view the learned judge considered was supported by sect. 60, which, reproducing 16 & 17 Vict. c. 59, enacts that with respect to a cheque payable to order a banker is to be taken to have paid it in due course, although the indorsement has been forged. If the words of s. 7, sub-s. 3, were sufficient to cover such a case, the special provision of s. 60 would have been unnecessary. The statute therefore did not in his opinion apply.

As to (2) the learned judge referred to Roberts v. Tucker (16 Q. B. 560), in which the effect of an acceptance of a bill payable at a banker's was discussed in the Exchequer Chamber, (particularly to the judgments of Parke, B., and Maule, J.), to the opinion given by Parke, B., for all the judges in the House of Lords in Bank of Ireland v. Evans's Trustees (5 H. L. C. 389), and to Merchants of Staple v. Bank of England (21 Q. B. D. 160). Applying the principle of these cases to the transactions of the plaintiffs with the bank from February to October, 1887, he held that there was no evidence of negligence on the part of the plaintiffs so conducive to the payments to Glika as to estop the plaintiffs from saying that the payments were not made by their authority. Reliance had been placed on the part of the bank on the conduct of the plaintiffs in not having the bills scrutinized as they were returned, but it did not appear that the bank had done anything to put them on any special inquiry. Reliance had also been placed on the conduct of the plaintiffs in not properly checking the accounts kept by Glika, and the learned judge thought that, considering that he was a clerk at a small salary, he had not been properly watched, but this conduct was not the proximate cause of the loss within the decisions referred to.

As to (3), the learned judge held that the frauds of Glika not having been discovered when the account was balanced, there was no reason why the items debited should not be questioned by the plaintiffs.

DIVORCE. LAPINGTON v. LAPINGTON. Oct. 26.

Where a petitioner, who had originally sued for a divorce on the grounds of adultery and cruelty, amended her petition by adding a charge of desertion, and alleged the commencement of the desertion one year and ten months before the date of the amendment, the Court held that the cause of action must be complete before the institution of the suit, and refused to make a decree but allowed the petition to be withdrawn.

Petitioner filed a petition in August, 1886, praying for a dissolution of her marriage on the ground of adultery coupled with cruelty, and on June 11, 1888, she obtained leave to amend her petition by adding a charge of desertion for two years and upwards.

The case was heard before Butt, J., without a jury. The charge of cruelty was not pressed.

Searle, for the petitioner.

THE COURT held that the principle involved was the same as in other suits—that the cause of action must be complete at the time of the institution of the suit. There was no difference in principle between an amended and supplemental petition. Unless the petitioner would be content with a judicial separation, the proper course would be to withdraw the petition and commence de novo.

DIVORCE. CURLING v. CURLING. Oct. 30.

In a wife's petition for divorce on the grounds of adultery and cruelty in which the husband in his answer charged his wife with adultery, the Court gave the husband leave to proceed without naming a co-respondent, but reserved the question whether it had power to make a man a co-respondent under such circumstances.

In this case the petitioner, the wife, filed a petition in February, 1888, praying for a judicial separation on the ground of adultery. The husband in his answer denied the adultery. In July, 1888, the wife amended her petition, alleging cruelty by the communication of venereal disease, and made an affidavit stating that when she filed her original petition she was unaware of the nature of the disease. The respondent in his amended answer denied that he had communicated the disease to his wife, and charged her with having committed adultery with some person unknown.

An order had been made in the Registry directing the respondent to apply to the Court for leave to proceed without making a co-respondent.

B. Deane for the respondent, now moved for leave accordingly.

BUTT, J.:—I am not clear that such an order would be regular. It does not seem to come within the 28th section of the 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85.

B. Deane:—Sect 2 of the 29 Vict. c. 82, provides that the Court may give the respondent the same relief to which he or she would be entitled if he or she had filed a petition seeking such relief.

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Ch. D. In re MILLS' TRUSTS. Nov. 9.

Devolution of Trust Estate in Copyhold—Vesting Order—Trustee Extension Act, 1852, s. 2—Wilful Refusal.

This was an appeal by the petitioner from a refusal of North, J., to make a vesting order (§7 Ch. D. 312).

Levitt, for the appellant.

Willis Bond, for the executors.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley and Bowen, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal on the ground that as the executors had felt a doubt in consequence of one of the parties claiming under the will disputing the title of the petitioner, their refusal to convey was not wilful, and the Court therefore had no jurisdiction under s. 1 of the Trustee Extension Act, 1852. Their Lordships declined to give any opinion as to the combined effect of s. 30 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, and s. 45 of the Copyhold Act, 1852. Solicitors: *S. D. Ashby & Compton; W. H. LONDON, CHATHAM AND DOVER RAILWAY COMPANY v. SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Jurisdiction—Arbitration Clause—Railway Companies Arbitration Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 59).

In 1865 the plaintiff and defendant companies entered into an agreement to bring into a common fund the receipts from all traffic between London and Folkestone and Dover. The agreement contained a clause providing that all questions and matters in dispute except as therein mentioned should be referred to and determined by arbitration provided by the Railway Companies Arbitration Act, 1859. By sect. 26 of that Act it was enacted that "full effect shall be given by all the superior courts . . . and by the companies respectively, and otherwise, to all agreements, references, arbitrations, and awards in accordance with this Act."

Disputes having arisen between the two companies respecting the receipts from traffic between London and the stations of Shorncliffe and Radnor Park, near Folkestone, which the plaintiffs asserted ought to be brought into the account as Folkestone traffic, the present action was brought to determine the question. The defendants pleaded the clause in the agreement providing that all disputes were to be referred to arbitration, but at the hearing before Kekewich, J., they did not insist that objection, but argued the question upon the merits, and went into evidence in support of their case. The judge decided in favour of the plaintiffs, and the defendants appealed.

Sir R. Webster, A.G., Seward Brice, Q.C., and C. T. Michell for the appellants, raised the preliminary point that the Court had no jurisdiction to decide the questions in dispute but that they ought to be referred to arbitration. The point was raised by the pleadings and could not be waived or abandoned. They relied on Watford and Rickmansworth Railway Company v. London and North Western Railway Company (Law Rep. 8 Eq. 231) and Caledonian Railway Company v. Greenock and Wemyss Bay Railway Company (Law Rep. 2 H. L. Sc. 347).

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., Romer, Q.C., and Haldane, for the plaintiff company.

COTTON, L.J., said that the sections of the Act referred to no doubt rendered it obligatory on the Court, when either of the companies insisted on that course, to give effect to the agreement to refer to arbitration, by making an order that the case should be withdrawn from the Court; but in his Lordship's opinion that in no way had the effect of depriving the Court of jurisdiction in case both the companies once agreed to go on with the action. In such a case, not only would the Court have jurisdiction to hear the case, but it would be its duty to do so. When the case came on for trial before Mr. Justice Kekewich this point was not insisted on by the present appellants: on the contrary, they called their witnesses and sought a decision on the merits, and it was too late for them now to insist on their right to refer to arbitration, which they might have at a proper time insisted on in the Court below. The cases which had been cited were not decisions to the effect contended for, as in those cases one of the parties insisted from the first on the right to have the matter in dispute referred to arbitration, and therefore it was held that the Court ought to have declined to entertain the matter; but that did not apply to the present case, where the present appellants had sought to get a decree of the Court on the merits of the matter in dispute.

LINDLEY and BOWEN, L.JJ., gave judgment to the same effect.

Nov. 9. The appeal was afterwards heard on the merits, and the Court held that the two stations at Shorncliffe, and Radnor Park were properly included in the term "Folkestone," and that the receipts from the traffic between London and those stations must be accounted for. They therefore dismissed the appeal.

GREY'S CASE.

Company—Winding-up—Contributory—Transfer of Shares—Registration within a Year of Winding-up—Default or Delay in Registration.

Appeal from the judgment of Kay, J. (noted ante, p. 137) refusing an application by Colonel Grey for rectification of the register of the company by ante-dating the transfer and registration of transfer of his shares (now bearing date as of the 8th and 14th of August, 1883) to a date prior to one year before the commencement of the winding-up (14th July, 1884).

Buckley, Q.C., and T. R. Warrington, for the appellant, Colonel Grey.

Marten, Q.C., and T. L. Wilkinson, for the official liquidator.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal with costs, holding that Colonel Grey had failed to discharge the burden of proof thrown upon him of shewing that the delay in registering the transfer, until within a year before the commencement of the winding-up, had arisen from any default or neglect on the part of the company.

A petition had been presented by the above company to sanction a special resolution for reduction of capital, and to dispense with the addition of the words "and reduced" to the company's name.

Gazdar, for the company, applied for an order dispensing with the words "and reduced" until the hearing of the petition, and to have the petition placed in the paper for hearing by a short day without advertisement, and without any certificate of creditors.

[KAY, J.:—Have you any affidavit in support of your application?]

No, I have only a copy of the petition. The practice appears to be not to require an affidavit.

KAY, J.:—If any such practice exists, I do not approve of it. Sect. 10 of the Companies Act, 1867, requires that the words "and reduced" shall be added. It is true that the Court has power to dispense with those words; but surely there is no reason why, when the petition states so and so, the Court should accept those statements as sufficient without an affidavit verifying them. You must renew your application when you have made an affidavit verifying the petition, and the affidavit must be produced to me personally, and not to the registrar.

COOPER v. STRAKER.

Ancient Light—Prescription—User—Window with Shutters occasionally opened—Prescription Act (2 & 3 Wm 4, c. 71), ss. 3, 4—“Actually enjoyed.”

The plaintiffs were the owners of a wool warehouse in the city of London, having several windows, five of which (one on the ground floor, two on the first floor, and two on the second floor) had existed in the same condition for more than twenty years next before this action. These windows had shutters of sheet iron, like folding doors, hinged to the outside of the window openings, which shutters when closed would completely exclude the access of light to the windows. These shutters were kept closed except when the business of the warehouse required them to be opened, and were more generally closed than opened, being only occasionally opened for the purpose of admitting light. This occurred very seldom to the window on the ground floor, more frequently on the first floor, and still more often on the second floor.

The defendants, who were the owners of adjoining land, were proceeding to build in such a way as to obstruct the access of light to the five windows, and the plaintiffs brought this action for an injunction to restrain them from so doing.

The defendants contended that the plaintiffs had not enjoyed the use of the light to these windows, or at any rate to the ground floor window, within the meaning of 2 & 3 Wm. 4, c. 71, s. 3.

Marten, Q.C., Sir H. Davey, Q.C., and F. M. Abrahams, for the plaintiffs.

Jelf, Q.C., Renshaw, Q.C., and Haldane, for the defendants.

used in such manner as suited his convenience for the passage of light during twenty years. In the case of windows with moveable shutters which were opened at the owner's pleasure for admission of light, the right was gained at the end of twenty years, if he opened them at any time he pleased for the admission of light during those twenty years, and if there was no such interruption of access over the neighbouring land as was contemplated by the statute. In such a case, it being proved that the window openings had remained unchanged for twenty years, and that the shutters were constructed so that they might be opened or closed at the pleasure of the owner, the onus was thrown upon the owner of the neighbouring land to prove that the right had not been gained. In this case the defendants had not discharged that onus. His Lordship held that under the circumstances the plaintiffs had acquired an absolute right to all the light coming to their ancient windows over the defendants' land as it had come during the twenty years next before the action just as though the windows had been open for the admission of light during all that time, and accordingly he granted an injunction.

Kay, J. FRY v. LANE. Oct. 25, 26; Nov. 10.

Reversion—Sale—Undervalue—Setting aside Sale—31 Vict. c. 4, s. 1.

The plaintiff, who was a man in a humble condition of life, was entitled under the will of a testator, who died in 1854, to a contingent reversionary interest in the residuary estate of the testator, subject to the payment of two deferred legacies of 250*l.* each. In 1878, while the interest of the plaintiff was still reversionary, he sold the same to the defendant (a plumber carrying on business in London) for 170*l.* The solicitor of the defendant acted as solicitor for the plaintiff in the matter of the sale, and prepared first an agreement for sale, and subsequently an assignment. After the signing of the agreement, and before the execution of the assignment, the solicitor became aware that one of the legacies of 250*l.* had in fact been satisfied and released, but this circumstance was not disclosed to the plaintiff, nor stated in the assignment. It appeared that the value of the reversion at the time of the sale was about 475*l.* The reversionary interest fell into possession in 1886, and the plaintiff brought this action to set aside the sale. The residuary estate of the testator having been realized, and paid into Court, it appeared that the present value of the plaintiff's interest was about 730*l.*

Sidney Woolf, and Philip H. Clifford, for the plaintiff.

Neville, Q.C., and R. C. Dobbs, for the defendant.

Renshaw, Q.C., and E. Ford, for the trustees of the will, defendants to a counter-claim.

Nov 10. KAY, J., after referring to the provisions of the statute, 31 Vict. c. 4, and to decided cases, said that the result of the decisions was that where a purchase was made from a poor and ignorant man at a considerable undervalue, the vendor having no independent advice, a Court of Equity would set aside the transaction. This would be done even in the case of property in possession, and à fortiori if the interest were reversionary. The circumstances of the poverty and ignorance of the vendor and absence of independent advice threw upon the purchaser when the transaction was implied the onus of proving that the purchase was fair, just, and reasonable. Upon the evidence it was clear that the price was considerably below the real value, and that the plaintiff, a poor ignorant man, had no independent advice, and was on equal terms with the purchaser. The solicitor did not properly protect him, but gave a great advantage to the purchaser, who had been his client, and for whom he was acting. His Lordship was of opinion that no moral fraud had been proved on the part of the defendant, but such transaction amounted to unfair dealing, which equity considered a fraud, though his Lordship would rather the word were used only for moral delinquencies. Out of the plaintiffs' share of the fund in court the money which the defendant gave for the purchase of the share, viz., 170*l.*, together with interest at 4 per cent per annum from the date of payment, must be paid to the defendant, and the residue to the plaintiff.

HITCHINS v. MORRISON.

Will—Construction—"Wife"—Life Interest to future Wife—Legatee—Divorced Wife.

A testator, who died in 1864, bequeathed his personal estate upon trust for his four sons and two daughters (who were named) during their lives, and from and after the death of each such son and daughter as to his or her share "to pay unto or permit or suffer any wife or husband (in case may be) of such son or daughter to receive the whole income of his or her share during the life of such wife or husband," and subject as aforesaid as to the capital of each share upon certain other trusts. One of the testator's daughters married in 1882, but was divorced from her husband in 1887. He died in 1888, without having married again. The question was whether the divorced wife was entitled to a life interest in the share of such son under the above gift.

A. J. Spencer, for the trustees of the will.

Vernon Smith, for the former wife, relied on Bullmore v. Wynter (22 Ch. D. 619).

Millar, Q.C., and Willis-Bund, for persons interested in the remainder.

KAY, J., said that he did not feel bound to follow the decision in Bullmore v. Wynter, because neither the words of the will nor the facts in this case were identical with those in that case. If the son had married again and left a widow, that widow would clearly have been entitled under the gift. The order to take under the gift, must be able to say, "I was the former wife of the deceased son and am now the widow." He held, therefore, that the divorced wife was not entitled to a life interest in his share.

Winding-up Petition—Costs—Two Petitions—Notice.

Two petitions were presented for the winding-up of this company; the first by a shareholder, the second by a creditor. When the petitions came on for hearing the company had failed to wind up voluntarily. The two petitions were in paper together, and an order was made to continue the voluntary winding-up under supervision. On making this order North, J., said that, if the solicitor who presented the second petition should state to the registrar, that, before presenting it, he had had no notice of the first, one order should be made on both the petitions, and the costs of them both should be provided for. On the drawing up of the order the solicitor attended before the registrar, and stated that, when he took the second petition to the Senior Registrar's Office for presentation, he was informed of the first, but that he had had no previous knowledge of it. After the presentation of the second petition, no further costs were incurred, except by the appearance of the second petitioner at the hearing to ask for his costs.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., for the first petitioner, by the desire of the registrar, mentioned the matter again to the Court.

NORTH, J., held that the second petitioner was entitled to his costs.

North, J. FARBRAND v. YORKSHIRE BANKING COMPANY. Nov. 6.

Mortgage—Priority—Negligence—Omission to obtain Title Deeds—Postponement of first Equitable Mortgages to second.

In July, 1860, the testator of the plaintiffs (who were executors) advanced 200*l.* to the defendant Prince, to enable him to make up the purchase-money of some copyhold property which he had then recently agreed to purchase, on the security of an agreement by Prince that, so soon as he should be admitted tenant on the court roll in respect of the property, he would execute and pass a proper mortgage surrender thereof in favour of the testator, if the 200*l.* should be then unpaid, as a security for the 200*l.* and interest thereon, and that Prince would also, on receipt of the title deeds relating to the property, hand them to the solicitor of the testator, his heirs, executors, or administrators, for the purpose of preparing the mortgage surrender. The interest on the 200*l.* was duly paid to the testator during his life, and after his death to the plaintiffs as his executors, down to October, 1882. The purchase was completed, and in August, 1861, Prince created an equitable mortgage of the property in favour of the Yorkshire Banking Company, to secure the balance of his current account, at the same time depositing the title deeds with them. The deeds remained in the possession of the bank, and in January, 1884, at the request of the bank, Prince surrendered the property to the use of the manager of the bank, on their behalf, by way of mortgage to secure the balance of his current account. The bank had no notice of the plaintiffs' charge when they took their equitable mortgage, and it was alleged that they had no notice of it when they obtained the surrender of the legal estate. Neither the testator nor the plaintiffs ever obtained possession of the deeds, or made any inquiry of Prince about them. On the 1st of February, 1884, the plaintiffs gave notice of their mortgage to the bank, and by this action they claimed priority over the charge of the Bank.

Crackanthorpe, Q.C., and A. Brown, for the plaintiffs.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Wiglesworth, for the Bank.

NORTH, J., held that the bank were entitled to priority over the plaintiffs. Independently of the acquisition of the legal estate by the bank, and treating them only as equitable mortgagees, the testator and the plaintiffs had been guilty of such great negligence in making no inquiry about the deeds as to deprive them of the priority which the date of their mortgage would otherwise have given them. The equities, otherwise than by reason of time, were not equal. In order to deprive an equitable mortgagee of his priority over a subsequent equitable mortgagee it was not necessary, as it would be in the case of a legal mortgagee, to show that he had been guilty of negligence equivalent to fraud.

He also found that the defendant had independently arrived at the word "herbaline." The plaintiff, therefore, apart from the law as to trade-marks, could not have an injunction. As to the registration of the word "herbalin," his Lordship directed, under 46 & 47 Vict. c. 57, s. 90, a note to be placed on the register that the plaintiff was not entitled to the exclusive use of the word.  Vict. c. 100, ss. 20, 47.*

This was a Crown Case reserved for consideration by the Recorder of the City of London. The prisoner was indicted at the Central Criminal Court under an indictment charging him in the first count with "unlawfully and maliciously inflicting grievous bodily harm" upon his wife; in the second count with "an assault" upon her "occasioning her actual bodily harm," statutory offences under the 20th and 47th sections respectively of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 100. It was alleged in support of the indictment that at a time when the prisoner knew that he was suffering from gonorrhoea, he had connection with his wife, in consequence communicated to her the disease. The Recorder directed the jury that if the evidence established these allegations they might find the prisoner guilty on either count, notwithstanding that the prosecutrix was his wife. The jury found the prisoner guilty, and the Recorder stated a case in which the question to be decided was whether the conviction could, under the circumstances, be maintained.

The case came on for hearing before a Court consisting of five judges, but was postponed on the ground of its importance in order that a larger number might attend. Ultimately it was argued before a Court consisting of thirteen judges.

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Prob. Div. CORBETT v. CORBETT. Nov. 15.
Prohibition against Alienation—Absolute Interest—Forfeiture—Repugnant Condition.

By an instrument, in the form of a deed of settlement, but proved as a will, real and personal property was given by the settlor to trustees upon trust for the sole use and benefit of A. (son of the settlor), his heirs, executors, and administrators, to be assigned and transferred to him as soon as conveniently might be after the settlor's death, subject to a proviso that if A. should die unmarried and without issue, his share should go over, and also that the property assigned in trust for A. was assigned to the trustees, and was to be held by them upon the express condition that A. should not during his life have power to mortgage, sell, alien, charge or incumber any part of the property, and that in the event of his so doing, the trustees should stand possessed of such property in trust for other persons:—

Held (per COTTON, LINDLEY and BOWEN, L.JJ.), affirming Butt, J. (13 P. D. 136), that A. took an absolute interest under the instrument, and that the provision for forfeiture in case of charge or alienation was therefore void as repugnant; and accordingly that he could be ordered to secure to his divorced wife an annual sum for her maintenance, by a charge on his property under the instrument.

G. Cave, for the appellant A.

Farwell, for the wife.

In re FAURE ELECTRIC ACCUMULATOR COMPANY.

Company—Directors—Misfeasance—Breach of Trust—Shares—Transfer—Brokerage—Commission—Ultra vires—Companies Act, 1862, s. 165.

This was a summons by the official liquidators of the above company, under s. 165 of the Companies Act, 1862, seeking to make the former directors of the company liable for alleged misfeasance in having sanctioned the transfer of a large number of 10*l.* shares, on which 8*l.* per share was payable, to one Phillippart, who joined the board of directors shortly after the transfer but subsequently became bankrupt; also to recover from the directors the brokerage which they had paid out of moneys of the company to a stockbroker for originally placing the shares. It was alleged that the directors had sanctioned the transfer to Phillippart without having first properly investigated into his financial position, and thus had not complied with the requirement in one of the articles of association, that "no transfer of shares not being fully paid up shall be registered unless and until the transferee is approved by the board of directors."

It was also contended that the payment of brokerage to the stockbroker was illegal as being analogous to issuing the shares at a discount.

Sir Horace Davey, Q.C., and Grosvenor Woods, for the liquidators.

Ince, Q.C., Buckley, Q.C., Woodroffe, J. Henderson, and Merrick for the directors.

KAY, J., said the evidence shewed that in sanctioning the transfer to Phillippart the directors acted upon the best knowledge they then had of his financial position, after full consideration, and after being advised by their solicitor that there was no valid objection to be made to the transfer. Anything like corruption or dishonesty on the part of the directors was out of the question, and his Lordship was unable to treat them as responsible for the consequences of permitting the transfer. Even if the act was, with the knowledge the directors had at the time, a grave error of judgment, that was not a ground upon which the Court could properly hold them liable. As to the question of brokerage or commission, there was nothing in the memorandum of association which would justify such a payment except the words "to do all such other things as the company may deem incidental or conducive to the attainment of any of the aforesaid objects of the company; but these "objects" did not include the issue of the company's shares. The payments for commission were ultra vires; they were such an application of the subscribed capital as could not be sanctioned by a general meeting. A company could not, in order to induce persons to take shares, employ the capital which had been subscribed for the purposes of its business in making payments either to such persons themselves, or to another person who could influence them to take shares. The directors who made the payments must be declared jointly and severally liable to repay them to the company, with interest at 4 per cent per annum from the time the payments were made.

KELSON v. ELLIS.

Nov. 14.

Practice—Release—Setting aside—Originating Summons or Writ—Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LV., r. 3.

This was an originating summons by the beneficiaries under a settlement asking that, notwithstanding a release which had been executed to the trustees, they, the trustees, might be ordered to render an account of the trust funds; thus, in effect, claiming to have the release set aside. The summons now came on for hearing on affidavit evidence.

R. F. Norton, for the plaintiffs, submitted that an application to set aside a release could now be made by originating summons under Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Order LV. r. 3: In re Garnett, Gandy v. Macaulay (32 W. R. 474; on app. 31 Ch. D. 1).

MacSwiney, for the defendants, objected that the action should have been instituted by writ, and not by summons.

KAY, J., said he was clearly of opinion that this was not a case which should be heard on an originating summons. He would give the plaintiff leave to issue a writ, and the action would be set down as a witness action, but, as the parties desired it to save expense, without pleadings. The question of the costs of the present summons would be reserved till the action came on for trial.

North, J. In re D. JONES & Co's MORTGAGE TRUSTS. Nov. 10.Trustee—Vesting Order—Equitable Mortgage with Agreement to execute Legal Mortgage—Death of Mortgagor intestate—Infant Heir—Trustee Act, 1850, s. 7.

Petition, under s. 7 of the Trustee Act, 1850, for a vesting order in respect of some mortgaged freehold property. The mortgagor deposited the title deeds of the property with his bankers, to secure a debt due to them, and agreed to execute a legal mortgage when required by them to do so. He was dead intestate, and his heir was an infant. This was a petition by the bankers for an order vesting the legal estate in the property in them.

Pattison, for the petitioners.

Stimmonds, for the infant.

NORTH, J., doubted at first whether he had jurisdiction under the Trustee Act, but, on the authority of In re Crowe's Mortgage (Law Rep. 13 Eq. 26), he made the order, declaring the heir a trustee for the bankers, subject to the right of redemption.

North, J. In re PAPER BOTTLE COMPANY. Nov. 10.Company—Winding-up Petition—Withdrawal—Costs.

H. B. Williams, for shareholders supporting the petition.

Bunting; and Stokes, for shareholders opposing the petition
NORTH, J., on the authority of In re North Brazilian Sugar Factories (Weekly Notes 1887, p. 3), held that the petitioners must pay a separate set of costs to each set of creditors and to each set of shareholders who appeared separately, and not merely one set of costs for creditors, and one set of costs for shareholders. This would be the order, unless it should be found (as has been suggested) that the Court of Appeal had recently decided to the contrary.

Stirling, J. In re FRANKLYN'S MORTGAGES. Nov. 17.Infant Heir of Mortgagee—Vesting Order—Trustee Act, 1850, s. 7—Copyholds Act, 1887, s. 45.

A mortgagee of copyholds, who had been admitted tenant on the court roll, died on the 28th of October, 1887, having by her will devised and bequeathed all her real and personal estate and all property over which she might have any power of appointment as to one equal half part to be equally divided amongst the children of her deceased sister, M. F. C., who should be living at her decease, and the children (equally) of such of them as should be then dead, the children of a deceased child taking, if more than one, the share which their parent would have taken, if living, and as to the other equal half part, to her sister M. O. W. for her separate use and benefit, and, in case she said M. O. W. should die in her lifetime, the testatrix gave such last-mentioned half share to G. F. W., only child of the said M. O. W., for his life, and after his decease to be equally divided amongst the children of the said G. F. W. who should be living at his decease, or have died in his lifetime, leaving issue who should be living at the decease of the said G. F. W. The testatrix appointed E. J. C. and the said G. F. W. executors of her said will.

This was a petition by the executors and the infant heir of the testatrix for an order to vest in the executors the legal estate, which, it was submitted, was not disposed of by the will, but was outstanding in the infant heir.

Tallents, for the petitioners.

STIRLING, J., after consideration, held that the rule laid down by Lord Eldon in Lord Braybrooke v. Inskip (8 Ves. 417) and followed by Sir W. Page Wood, V.C., in Thirtle v. Vaughan (24 L. T. 5), applied to this case, and made the order accordingly.

Kekewich, J. JAY v. LADLER. Nov. 12.

Trade-mark—Illustration—Registration—Injunction—General Law.

The plaintiff T. S. Jay had in 1883 registered as a trade-mark in class 38, in respect of sealskin mantles and coats, a representation of a lady taking a card from a bear.

The defendant Ladler had lately used in connection with his business as a furrier a representation of a lady and a bear; and this action was brought to restrain him.

Aston, Q.C., and E. Ford, for the plaintiff.

Barber, Q.C., and Slater, for the defendant.

KIRKEWICH, J., said that it had been argued that the mention of seal-skin mantles and coats in the registration had been by way of illustration only, and that the plaintiff was entitled to the trade-mark as applied to all articles of clothing. His Lordship was of opinion that the protection was confined to seal-skin mantles and coats. Though it was not proved that the defendant had sold seal-skin mantles and coats, the defendant had used a colorable imitation of the mark, and the plaintiff was entitled to an injunction as to them. But independently of the Trade Marks Act, the plaintiff had under the general law a right to the exclusive use of the trade-mark which he had acquired, and an injunction must be granted as to the use of a lady and bear mark, not as applied to seal-skin mantles and coats only, but generally.

Q. B. Div. BICKERS v. SPEIGHT. Nov. 14.

Practice—Writ specially indorsed—Sufficiency of Indorsement—Rules of Supreme Court, 1888, Order III., r. 6; Order XIV.

Appeal by the plaintiff from an order giving leave to defend. The writ was indorsed as follows:—"The plaintiff's claim is 130*l.* due to him from the defendant under and by virtue of an assignment under the hand of one Martha Iman, and dated the 14th July, 1888, particulars whereof are as follows."

The indorsement then set out the alleged assignment in these words, "I do hereby authorize and request you to pay to Mr. Emanuel Bickers of &c., the sum of 130*l.*, being the amount due or to become due from you to me, as appears by an I.O.U., signed by you, and dated the 4th February, 1885, and his receipt for the same shall be a good discharge."

Macaskie, for the defendants, objected that this was not a special indorsement within the meaning of Order III., rule 6, and Order XIV.

J. S. Green, for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Wills, J.) overruled the objection, holding that as the indorsement gave sufficiently specific particulars to inform the defendant what the claim made against him was, and as it would have been a good special indorsement under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 25, it was a sufficient special indorsement within the meaning of Order III., rule 6, and therefore Order XIV. applied, but they affirmed the order made at chambers on the merits.

Appeal dismissed.

Mandamus—Prerogative Writ of—Transfer of Shares in Railway Company—Refusal to register—Other Remedies for—Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, s. 68—Companies Act, 1862, s. 35.

Rule nisi for a prerogative writ of mandamus to the defendants requiring them to register the transfer of 495 shares in their company. It appeared from affidavits that the prosecutor, a shareholder in a railway company which had not within the time limited in their Act of Parliament constructed their line, was opposed to an application being made to Parliament for an enlargement of the time, and, in order to get rid of future liability on his shares, made an absolute transfer of them to a person practically insolvent. The secretary had refused to register the transfer.

Finlay, Q.C., and McColl, shewed cause.

Bosanquet, Q.C., and à Beckett Terrell, in support of the rule.

Cur. adv. vult.

THE COURT (Pollock, B., and Manisty, J.) held that inasmuch as the applicant had other remedies, viz., by action of mandamus under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, s. 68, and also by motion under the Companies Act, 1862, s. 35, the Court, in its discretion, ought to refuse to issue the writ.

Rule discharged.

Q. B. Div. STUMM v. DIXON AND KNIGHT. Nov. 21.

Costs—Joint Defendants—Severance of Defence—Verdict for Plaintiff—Costs of Issues on Pleas of one Defendant allowed against him only.

Motion that objections to a taxation of costs might be allowed, and that it might be referred back to the taxing master to vary his certificate accordingly.

The plaintiff brought an action against Knight, the owner of adjoining premises, and Dixon & Co., contractors, for removing the support of the plaintiff's premises.

The defendants pleaded jointly payment into Court only, and the plaintiff replied. But afterwards the defendants Dixon & Co., changed their solicitor, and after application, at chambers, amended their defence by denying all the allegations in the plaintiff's claim. The defendant Knight's defence was never altered. The cause went to trial before an official referee, who found a verdict for the plaintiff for 130*l.*, beyond the 50*l.* paid into Court, against both defendants. The taxing master certified that he allowed the plaintiff as against Knight all the costs of the trial and action, except those occasioned by, and in consequence of Dixon & Co.'s pleading, which the master thought Dixon & Co. alone should be liable for, and that Knight should not pay costs incurred by Dixon & Co. going to another solicitor, and placing false pleas on the record without the consent or knowledge of Knight.

Le Riche, in support of the motion.

Witt, for the defendant Knight, shewed cause.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, U.J., and Manisty, J.) held that the Taxing Master was right.

Appeal dismissed.

Solicitor for plaintiff: C. T. Foster.

Solicitors for defendant Knight: Saunders, Hawkyard, Bennett, & Co.

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Ch. Div.

Nov. 19.

In re SAMUEL SMITH.

Ex parte LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY AND MIDLAND RAILWAY COMPANY.

Payment out of Court—Purchase-money of Settled Land taken by Railway Company—Trustees—Person absolutely entitled—Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 69—Settled Land Act, 1882, ss. 21 (sub-s. 9), 34.

Petition for payment out of Court. The fund in Court represented the purchase-moneys (over 5000*l.* in amount) of settled land taken by two railway companies. Under the settlement, which was made by will dated in 1829, the land was vested in trustees in fee simple in trust for Avarilla Hurry for her separate use for life, with power for her by will to give the same to all or one or more of her children; and in default of such gift by will, the land was to go to her children equally as tenants in common in fee simple, and the will contained a gift over in the event of her dying without issue, and a power of sale, which, however, was now exhausted. The present trustees of the will were two in number; one of them was a member of the firm of solicitors in the country who acted as solicitors to the trust and were solicitors for the petitioners in this matter, and the other was a saddler. By an order of Court, dated April 13, 1888, and made in the matter of the fund and of the Settled Land Act, 1882, the two trustees were appointed trustees under the settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1882.

This petition was presented by Avarilla Hurry, who had for some years been living apart from her husband, and by the trustees, and it prayed that the fund might be transferred to the two trustees to be held by them upon the trusts of the will affecting the same.

At the date of the petition Avarilla Hurry was 65 years of age, and she had three children, all of whom had attained majority. In the first instance the petition was served upon the railway companies only, and when it came on for hearing on May 11, 1888, it was directed by Kay, J., to stand over in order that the petitioners might procure the consents of the children of Avarilla Hurry.

The petitioners then procured consents from such children and made them respondents to the petition, and brought the petition on again on June 23, 1888.

On that occasion the children appeared by separate counsel to consent, but such counsel was instructed by the solicitors for the petitioners, and Kay, J., considering that it was in the discretion of the Court whether or not to order payment out to the trustees, declined to make any order upon the petition on that ground that the children were not represented by an independent solicitor.

The petitioners now appealed.

E. P. Hewitt, for the Petitioners:—Trustees for sale are persons absolutely entitled within the meaning of s. 69 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, and are entitled as of right to payment out: In re Hobson's Trusts (7 Ch. D. 708). In the present case the trustees together with the tenant for life could not give an absolute discharge. They are also entitled to payment out under the Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 21, sub-s. 9, which, taken into conjunction with s. 32, provides that money paid into Court under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, may be applied "in payment to any person becoming absolutely entitled, or empowered to give an absolute discharge." Moreover, in this case the power over has ceased to be applicable, and Avarilla Hurry being past child-bearing, she and the three children are in fact absolutely entitled to the fund.

J. W. Leslie, for the children, supported the petition.

W. J. Radcliffe, for the railway companies.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.JJ.) considered that, notwithstanding the decision in In re Hobson's Trusts it was doubtful whether the Court before the Settled Land Act had jurisdiction to direct payment out to trustees with a power of sale as persons absolutely entitled. There was, however, no doubt that the Court had jurisdiction under the Settled Land Act 1882, to order payment to trustees entitled to give an absolute discharge, but the Court was not bound to make the order; the power was discretionary; and their Lordships declined to interfere with the discretion exercised by Mr. Justice Kay. The appeal must be dismissed.

Practice—Specially indorsed Writ—Action on Solicitor's untaxed Bill of Costs—Form of Judgment—Order XIV., r. 1—Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 Vict. c. 73) s. 37.

Appeal from the Queen's Bench Division (Lord Coleridge, L.C.J. and Bowen, L.J.)

On the 29th June the plaintiff issued a specially indorsed writ of summons to recover the amount of four untaxed bills of costs for conveyancing work done by him for the defendant. After appearance by the defendant, the plaintiff took out a summons under Order XIV., r. 1, for leave to sign final judgment, and the defendant admitting that the work had been done, though the charges of the plaintiff for doing it were disputed, an order was made by Butt, J., giving the plaintiff leave to sign final judgment "for the amount indorsed on the writ subject to taxation and costs to be taxed." On appeal to the Divisional Court the order was upheld, the Court saying that they would not interfere with what they were informed was a settled practice. The defendant appealed.

Channell, Q.C. (A. J. Walter, and Anderton with him), for the appellant, contended that, assuming that there was jurisdiction in such an action to make an order under Order XIV., r. 1, at all, the order was wrong in form, and would operate to deprive the defendant of the benefit of the provisions of s. 87 of the Solicitors Act, 1843, by which the costs of a reference to taxation under that Act are to be paid by the solicitor if one-sixth is taxed off the amount of the bill.

Apland, Q.C., and Theodore Ribton, for the plaintiff.

Cur. adv. vult.

Nov. 19. THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.), held that as in such a case an order for final judgment under Order XIV. could admittedly be made after taxation of the bill of costs on which the action was brought, it might properly be made before such taxation, provided that the rights of the defendant under the Solicitors' Act, 1843, were preserved by the order; but that the order as drawn up operated to deprive the defendant of those rights, and the appeal was therefore allowed.

The following form of order was drawn up by Fry, L.J., and approved by the Court for use in similar cases.

"It is ordered that the bills of costs on which this action is brought be referred to the taxing-master pursuant to the statute 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73, and that the plaintiff give credit at the time of taxation for all sums of money received by him from or on account of the defendant. And let the plaintiff be at liberty to sign judgment for the amount of the master's allocatur in the said taxation and costs to be taxed."

NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND v. MARSHALL.

Bond—Condition—Restraint of Trade—Injunction.

This was an appeal by the defendant from an order of Mr. Justice Butt, sitting as Vacation Judge, restraining the defendant, John Marshall, of Cardiff, until August the 31st, 1890, from accepting any employment or allowing himself to be employed in any capacity whatsoever in or for any bank not connected with the plaintiffs, within 20 miles of their principal bank or their Cardiff branch, at which the defendant had been employed up to the time of his retirement in August last. Upon entering the employment of the plaintiff bank in January, 1879, the defendant entered into a bond in the penal sum of 1000*l.*, subject to a condition for making the same void if the defendant should perform and observe the duties and regulations therein mentioned—

"And also if the obligor (the defendant) and his executors or administrators shall pay to the said bank the sum of 1000*l.* as liquidated damages, in case the obligor at any time within two years after he shall have retired from any employment in any capacity under the said bank, or shall have been dismissed therefrom, shall accept any employment or allow himself to be or shall be employed in any capacity whatsoever in or for any bank not connected with the said bank, within 20 miles of the said bank or any branch thereof at which he shall have been employed at the time of such dismissal or retirement or at any time within six months prior to such dismissal or retirement."

In August last the defendant retired from his post as cashier in the Cardiff branch of the plaintiff bank, and accepted employment in another bank in Cardiff, and on September the 19th the plaintiffs moved for and obtained an injunction to restrain the defendant from acting in breach of his agreement of January, 1879.

Marten, Q.C., and Warrington, for the defendant, who appealed.

Sir A. Watson, Q.C., and E. Beaumont, for the plaintiffs.

It was agreed between the parties that the hearing of the appeal should be treated as the trial of the action.

CORROX, L.J., said that the question to be considered was whether the agreement to be gathered from the bond was sufficient to give them a right to an injunction. It had been contended on behalf of the appellant that he had a right to enter into any other service or employment provided he paid the penalty of 1000*l.* It might, however, be observed that such an agreement was not one which the bank would be likely to have entered into. Looking at the condition of the bond throughout, he was of opinion that the mention of the sum of 1000*l.* as penalty did not imply that a breach of the agreement was to be satisfied by payment of 1000*l.* as damages, but that the bank should be entitled to recover 1000*l.* without being put to proof of the actual amount of damage sustained by them. This, in his opinion, led to the conclusion that there was an agreement on the part of the defendant that the particular act—entering into the employment of another bank—should not be done. How could there be any claim for damages if there was no agreement in respect of which they were to be paid? In his opinion the clause shewed that the bank looked upon the condition as prohibiting any other employment being accepted by the defendant; and an agreement not to do so was implied in the terms of the bond. There would therefore be a perpetual injunction in the terms of the condition of the bond.

LINDLEY and BOWEN, L.JJ., gave judgment to the same effect. Solicitors: Wilde, Berger & Moore; Cunliffes & Davenport, for Williams, Cardiff.

From Div. Ct. FIELD v. FIELD. Nov. 19, 23.
Restitution of Conjugal Rights — Petition by Wife — Written Demand by Wife for Cohabitation and Restitution of Conjugal Rights — Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Rules and Regulations, 1866, r. 2 — Additional Rules and Regulations, 1875, r. 175.

This was a suit by a wife for the restitution of conjugal rights. The Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Rules and Regulations, 1866, provide in rule 2 that with every petition before the Court there is to be filed an affidavit made by the petitioner verifying the facts of which he or she has personal cognizance, and deposing as to belief in the truth of the other facts alleged in the petition.

Rule 175 of the additional Rules and Regulations, 1875, is as follows:—"The affidavit filed with the petition, as required by rule 2, shall further state sufficient facts to satisfy one of the registrars that a written demand for cohabitation and restitution of conjugal rights has been made by the petitioner upon the party to be cited, and that after a reasonable opportunity for compliance therewith such cohabitation and restitution of conjugal rights has been withheld."

The affidavit filed with the petition in this case, and made by the petitioner, stated, that by her instructions a letter was written and sent to her husband by her solicitors in the following terms:—

55, Lincoln's Inn Fields.
14 June, 1888.

Dear Sir,

We are instructed by your wife, Mary Françoise Field, of South Villa, Wells Road, Great Malvern, to demand for her forthwith cohabitation and restitution of conjugal rights, and in default of your complying with this request we shall be compelled to institute proceedings for the same without further notice.

Yours truly,
(Signed) Crowders & Vizard.

John Kingsford Field, Esq.,
Lombard Road, Battersea, S.W.

The registrar was satisfied under rule 175 with this affidavit, and allowed the petition to be filed, and it was filed and personally served upon the respondent on the 8th of July, 1888, but he had not appeared nor filed any answer to the petition.

There was no evidence that the letter had been received by the husband, but it appeared that it had been sent to him through the post as a registered letter, that he had not complied with the demand, and that cohabitation and restitution of conjugal rights were still withheld. On the 24th of October, 1888, the petition came on as an undefended case, before Butt, J. (ante, p. 202) who held, that under rule 175, and according to the practice of the Court, the demand before suit should have been written by the wife herself, and that the rule 175 had not been complied with, and His Lordship refused to grant a decree upon the affidavit before him, but was willing to allow the petition to stand over in order that this defect might be remedied.

From this decision the wife appealed.

Bargrave Deane (with him Barnard), for the appellant. The Respondent did not appear.

Cur. adv. vult.

Oct. 23. THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen L.JJ.) held that it was not necessary according to the true construction of rule 175 that the demand requiring the restitution of conjugal rights should be written by the wife herself; and that any practice of the Court requiring it to be so written was erroneous. What the particular form of the written demand should be must depend upon the particular circumstances of each case, but in the absence of previous communications to the like effect the demand should be a conciliatory letter likely to lead to friendly negotiations written by or on behalf of the wife stating that she was willing to come back to her husband. In this case the wife might have the case restored to their Lordships' paper, but she must produce evidence that her husband had been asked by her, or on her behalf, to restore to her her conjugal rights, and that he had refused or taken no notice of her request.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

KAY, J. UNITED TELEPHONE COMPANY v. TASKER. Nov. 16.
Practice — Pleadings — Striking-out — Embarrassing Matter — Separate Causes of Action — Statement of Claim — Seeking Relief not asked by Writ — Discontinuance — Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XVIII. r. 1; Ord. XIX. r. 27; Ord. XXVI. r. 1.

In 1884, the plaintiffs commenced an action against the defendants for alleged infringement of their patent. In consequence of the evidence given on behalf of the defendants on interlocutory proceedings in that action, the plaintiffs discontinued the action and paid the costs.

In August last the plaintiffs issued a writ for the same object, claiming the relief ordinarily claimed in a patent action, namely, an injunction, delivery-up of the infringing instruments, and an account or damages and costs. The statement of claim in this new action contained an allegation (No. 3) that since discontinuing the former action, the plaintiffs had discovered that the defendants' evidence which led to its discontinuance was false; and the statement of claim then contained, in addition to the claims for infringement contained in the writ, the following claim, which did not appear in the writ:—

"7. The plaintiffs also claim that this action may be treated as supplemental to the said previous action, and that the defendants may be ordered to repay the costs paid to them in the said action, and to pay the costs, charges and expenses of the plaintiffs of the said action, as between solicitor and client." In October last a summons by the defendants to strike out paragraphs 3 and 7 from the statement of claim was dismissed. The defendants now moved under Rules of Supreme Court, 1833,

Ord. XIX. r. 27, to discharge the order dismissing the summons, and to strike out the two paragraphs on the ground that they were unnecessary, tended to prejudice, embarrass or delay the fair trial of the action, were frivolous and vexatious, and disclosed no reasonable cause of action.

Ince, Q.C., and Boufield, for the motion.

Micklem, for the plaintiffs.

KAY, J., said that in this case two causes of action had been joined in the same statement of claim. The writ in the action was one seeking the ordinary relief claimed in a patent action. The statement of claim contained allegations which led up to that relief, and then asked for that relief; and it further contained the two paragraphs now in question. In his opinion it was entirely irregular to introduce into the statement of claim a different cause of action, and one which was not mentioned in the writ. Ord. XVIII., r. 1, provided that, if it appeared to the Court that any causes of action united in the same action could not be conveniently tried together, it might order separate trials of any of such causes of action, or might make such order as might be necessary or expedient for the separate disposal thereof. Now the two causes of action mentioned in the statement of claim were entirely separate and distinct, one involving the question of the infringement and validity of the patent, and the other the question whether in the previous action false evidence had been given by the defendants. The latter question constituted a particular issue which, in his Lordship's opinion, would be much better tried by a judge with a jury than by this Court; and if the action had been regularly constituted he should have been inclined, under Ord. XVIII., r. 1, to direct this part of it to be separately tried, and to send it to a judge and jury for that purpose, for, under that Order, the Court had not only the power to direct a separate trial of that cause of action, but to "make such other order as may be necessary or expedient for the separate disposal thereof."

In his Lordship's opinion the proper order to make was to strike out these two clauses in the statement of claim, and leave the plaintiffs to bring a separate action, which, if they should think fit to bring it, ought to be brought in the Queen's Bench Division, upon these separate allegations. It was not necessary to the relief sought in the present action, namely, an injunction against infringement, delivery up of instruments, and an account or damages, that there should be any reference to the discontinuance of the former action, because the rule as to discontinuance, Ord. XXVI. r. 1, stated that "such discontinuance . . . shall not be a defence to any subsequent action." Therefore it need not be mentioned at all.

As to the claim that this action should be treated as supplemental to the former action, that was ridiculous, for how could this action be treated as supplemental to an action which had been discontinued? In his opinion the proper order to make was—acting on the discretion given to the Court under one or other of the rules which had been referred to, namely, either under Ord. XIX. r. 27, the rule as to striking-out pleadings which would embarrass the trial, or under Ord. XVIII. r. 1—to order these two paragraphs in the statement of claim to be struck out; first, because to try such an issue in a patent action would be embarrassing; secondly, because the writ did not mention any such cause of action at all; and thirdly, because, under Ord. XVIII. r. 1, the Court had power to do this, and to direct an action on the question involved in those paragraphs to be brought, as a separate action, in the Queen's Bench Division. There must therefore be an order to strike out the two paragraphs and the plaintiff must pay the costs of this application.

Chitty, J. GROSVENOR v. SUTTON LOCAL BOARD. Nov. 23, 24.

Practice—Injunction against Local Board—Obstruction of Highway—Form of Order.

The action was brought by the owner of a house and land abutting on the highway at Sutton, Surrey, for the purpose of restraining the Local Board from inclosing or otherwise obstructing free passage over the public highway in front of plaintiff's house, and from using any part of the said highway as a stone yard and depot for road-mending materials.

At the trial, Chitty, J., being of opinion that the plaintiff had suffered special damage from a public nuisance caused by the act of the defendant Board, granted an injunction restraining the defendants from permanently enclosing, occupying or using the said highway as or for a stoneyard and depot for road-mending materials, and from otherwise obstructing the plaintiff in the enjoyment of a convenient access to or from her property.

In granting such an injunction care must, however, be taken that the duties of the defendants as a public Board were not interfered with, and the injunction as granted was qualified by the following words:

"But this injunction is not to preclude the defendants from lawfully exercising over or in relation to the said highway any power or authority which is or may be vested in them by statute or otherwise."

DAY v. WOOLWICH EQUITABLE BUILDING SOCIETY.

Conveyancing Act, 1881 (41 & 45 Vict. c. 41), s. 56—

Solicitor—Receipt.

This was an action for the delivery up and cancellation of a deed of further charge of 100l. on leasehold premises executed by Mr. and Mrs. Day, the plaintiffs in the action in favour of the defendant society. The deed was executed on the 30th of September, 1896, at the office of the solicitor of the society, who had prepared it, and was left with him. No money was paid to the plaintiffs. The following day a cheque to bearer for 99l. 7s., the amount of the proposed advance less 18s. costs, was handed to a clerk of the society's solicitor by their secretary. He paid it into the solicitors banking account. The solicitor absconded, and the money was never recovered. The 56th section of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, was set up as a defence, and it was argued that if the solicitor of the society was not acting as solicitor for the mortgagors by the production of the deed he gave a good discharge for the mortgage money.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Harry Greenwood, for the plaintiffs.
Napier Higgins, Q.C., and C. E. E. Jenkins, for the defendant society.

NORTH, J., gave judgment for the plaintiffs. He held that the solicitor was not in fact the solicitor of the plaintiffs; that there had been no production of the deed by a solicitor at the time of payment; and that to give a discharge under the section the solicitor producing the deed must be acting for the person sought to be charged.

GENT-DAVIS v. HARRIS.

Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), s. 4, sub-s. 3—Receiver—Debtors Act (1869) Amendment Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 54)—Discretion of Court—Poverty—Member of Parliament—Privilege.

This was a motion for leave to issue a writ of attachment against the plaintiff in the action for non-compliance with an order to pay into court part of a sum certified to be due from him as receiver and manager of the business of the testator in the action.

The plaintiff was appointed receiver and manager of the business of the testator in the action in August, 1880. By an order dated on the 1st of June, 1888, he was discharged, ordered to pass his final account, and pay the balance which should be certified to be due from him into Court, and pay the costs of the motion. By an order on the 12th of July, 1888, he was ordered to pay into Court on or before July 30, 1888, the sum of 8778*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*, the residue of a sum of 7678*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* already certified to be due from him after deducting certain sums claimed as his own share as a beneficiary, his costs and advances made to another beneficiary. The plaintiff's final account had not been passed. On the 8th of September, 1888, notice of motion was served on behalf of Ellen Gent, a defendant and beneficiary, on the plaintiff, for leave to issue a writ of attachment against him for not having paid into Court the 8778*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.* he had been ordered to pay. When the motion was about to be moved before the Vacation Judge, it stood over till Michaelmas Sittings by arrangement on terms, signed by the solicitors of all parties, that the plaintiff should pay forthwith into Court 1500*l.* and certain costs.

The 1500*l.* was paid into Court, but the costs were not paid.

The motion was now brought on. The plaintiff had made an affidavit to the effect that the 1500*l.* had been paid, that he had done his best to find the rest of the money, and was unable to do so. He also claimed privilege from arrest as member of Parliament. On the part of the applicant it was contended that the plaintiff had waived privilege by agreeing to have the motion stand over.

A. Rowden, for the applicant.

Jason Smith, for the trustees of the testator's will.

McSwinney, for the plaintiff.

NORTH, J., held, that the plaintiff had not waived his privilege; that as the application was of a punitive character there was no privilege; and that the mere fact of the plaintiff's present poverty was not sufficient to make the Court exercise the discretion given to it by the Debtors Act (1869) Amendment Act, 1878, in favour of the plaintiff. He gave leave to issue the writ of attachment.

KILHAM v. KILHAM.

Administration Action—Mortgagees' Actions—Order for Sale of Properties—Time for Redemption—Foreclosure absolute of Parts of Properties not sold.

This was an application in five actions, one for administration, and four of mortgagees.

In the action (K. v. K.) an order was made on the 8th of June, 1888, for a sale of the properties of which there were 39 lots. Some of the lots were sold on the 9th of August, and the day fixed for completion was the 11th of October, 1888. The properties mortgaged were very much intermixed. In the action of J. v. K., (1) judgment was given on the 12th of December, 1887. The chief clerk on the 15th of March, 1888, certified that the sum of 8188*l.* 14*s.* was due, and the day fixed for redemption was the 15th September, 1888, when 8842*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* became due. The properties in that action were put up for sale in 5 lots, of which only 2 were sold, realizing the sum of 1880*l.* In the action J. v. S. (2) judgment was given on the 15th of December, 1887. The sum certified, on the 21st of March, 1888, to be due was 4617*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.*, and the day to redeem was the 21st of September, 1888, when the sum of 4704*l.* 18*s.* 11*d.* became due. The properties in this action were put up for sale in 10 lots, of which 5 were sold for a sum in the aggregate of 3220*l.* In A. v. K. (3) the date of the judgment was the 16th of December, 1887; that of the certificate the 19th of March; finding 8177*l.* 10*s.* 3*d.* to be due, and that for redemption the 19th of September, 1888, when 8882*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* became due; and in P. v. K. (4) the judgment was dated the 17th of December; the certificate the 21st of March, when the sum of 6161*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.* was found to be due, and the day to redeem was the 21st of September, 1888, when 6307*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.* became due. In the actions 3 and 4 the properties were offered in one lot in each, but neither lot was sold. A receiver had been appointed in the actions.

Fischer, Q.C. (Arthur Jackson with him), for the mortgagees, stated the facts, and asked for an order for immediate foreclosure of the parts of the properties not sold.

Coleman v. Llewellyn (34 Ch. D. 143) was referred to.

Eastwick, for the mortgagor's representatives, submitted that under the circumstances further time should be given to enable the parties interested in the equities of redemption to again offer the remaining properties for sale.

STIRLING, J.:—The plaintiffs adopting and undertaking to carry out the contracts for sale of the parts of the mortgaged properties sold; the order will be absolute for foreclosure of the unsold parts of the mortgaged properties: and by consent there will be an order that possession of those parts be given to the plaintiffs.

Kekewich, J. NICHOLL v. EBERHARDT COMPANY. Nov. 16.
Liquidation—Compromise—Ultra vires—Transfer of Assets—Liability—Sanction of Court.

The plaintiffs in this case were the executors of R. Towne, a holder of fully paid-up shares of £l. each in the Eberhardt Company. Shortly before his death the company was voluntarily wound up, and an agreement was made between the liquidators and a trustee for a proposed company under which the shareholders in the old company had the option of becoming £l. shareholders in the new company credited with 15s. as paid up. This action was brought to set aside this agreement as ultra vires, and to claim a share in the assets of the old company.

S. Hall, Q.C., and Beome, for the plaintiffs.

Warmington, Q.C., and Bowden, for the old company.

Barber, Q.C., and G. Woods, for the new company.

KEKEWICH, J., disposed of some objections taken by the defendants. One argument used by the plaintiffs was that an agreement could not be good under which a shareholder must give up his rights or accept new shares with a liability. The words of sect. 161 of the Companies Act, 1862, seemed to point to such a result, but his Lordship must not be taken as giving any judicial opinion on the subject. But the scheme for the transfer of the assets was brought before the Court in an action by debenture holders, and on a summons made in the action, in the winding-up, and in the Acts of 1862 and 1870, an order was made sanctioning the scheme. Under these Acts the Court had power to sanction a general compromise with contributors, and the shareholders were therefore bound by that order, and the action must be dismissed.

Brice, Q.C., and Colt, for the plaintiffs.

BANKRUPTCY.

Cave, J. In re DAVIS & Co. Nov. 13
Ex parte RAWLINGS. DEWAR'S CASE. PIPE'S CASE.

Furniture Dealers—Hire purchase Agreements—Mortgage—Assignment—Choses in Action—Assurance of personal Chattels—Bills of Sale Act, 1878, s. 4.

These were two applications by the trustee in bankruptcy of Messrs. Davis & Co., furniture dealers, claiming a declaration that he was entitled as against Dewars & Co. and W. Pipe, creditors of the bankrupts, to the instalments accruing due and all other benefits under certain hire purchase agreements which had been made over to them by the bankrupts under these circumstances.

The bankrupts dealt largely in furniture, which they let out on hire purchase agreements. These agreements were in common form, and provided (amongst other things) that the property in the goods should remain in the lenders until all the instalments had been paid by the hirers, and that if default were made in payment of instalments, the lenders might enter the house of the hirer and seize and sell the goods in satisfaction of all that was payable under the agreement and expenses, and should pay over the surplus proceeds of sale (if any) to the hirers.

In Dewars' Case the bankrupts had deposited several of these agreements with Messrs. Dewars & Co. as security for a trade debt, but the transaction was not put into writing and no notice was given to the hirers.

In Pipe's Case the bankrupts had by deed assigned all moneys due or to accrue due to them under certain recited hire purchase agreements and all their rights and remedies thereunder to W. Pipe absolutely in satisfaction pro tanto of a trade debt. Notice of this assignment was given by W. Pipe to the hirers before the presentation of the bankruptcy petition.

E. C. Willis, Q.C., and Rose Innes, for the trustee, contended (1) that both transactions amounted to an assurance of personal chattels or a license to seize personal chattels within the meaning of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, s. 4, and, not being in the form required by the Act, were void; (2) that the goods comprised in the agreements were in the order and disposition of the bankrupts at the commencement of the bankruptcy.

H. Reed, for Dewars & Co.

S. Wolf, for W. Pipe.

CAVE, J., held that neither of the transactions came within the purview of the Bills of Sale Acts. The instalments payable under the hire purchase agreements were debts growing due to the bankrupts in the course of their business, and were, with the rights and remedies reserved to them by those agreements, choses in action which, under the circumstances in Dewars' Case, had not been validly assigned to Messrs. Dewars & Co. The trustee in bankruptcy, therefore, was entitled to all the instalments due and to accrue due under the agreements held by Messrs. Dewars & Co., and to have those agreements handed over to him. In Pipe's Case, however, a valid assignment of the choses in action had been made to W. Pipe, and, as the transaction was not impeachable on other grounds, he was entitled as against the trustee in bankruptcy to the benefit of his assignment.

QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION.

Q. B. Div. HARTLEY v. HALSE. Nov. 27.

Parliament—Borough Vote—Notice of Objection—Sufficiency of—Registration Act, 1878 (41 & 42 Vict. c. 26), s. 28, sub-s. 2—Registration Act, 1885 (48 Vict. c. 15), s. 18—County Electors Act (51 & 52 Vict. c. 10), s. 13.

Appeal from a decision of the Revising Barrister for the Southern Division of the borough of St. Pancras. The vote of the appellant was objected to under a notice of objection in which the objector was described as "on the occupiers' list of parliamentary voters (and county electors or burgesses) for the borough of St. Pancras, Southern Division." It was contended that this description was insufficient, and that the notice of objection was bad. There are four parliamentary divisions of the borough of St. Pancras. The lists for the whole borough are made out and published together, but are divided into separate portions corresponding to the four divisions. This year, in consequence of the passing of the County Electors Act (51 & 52 Vict. c. 10), the list was further subdivided, each portion being made out in three divisions, the first containing the names of persons qualified both as parliamentary voters and county electors, the second of those qualified as parliamentary voters only, and the third of those qualified as county electors only. The name of the objector was in Division One of the list for the Southern Division. The Revising Barrister held that the notice of objection was bad, but that he had power to amend it, and he amended it by inserting in it the words "Division One."

Cyril Dodd, for the appellant.

R. M. Bray, for the respondent.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., Manisty and Hawkins, J.J.) held that if the notice was insufficient, which they doubted, the insufficiency was a "mistake" which the Revising Barrister could correct, and dismissed the appeal.

Appeal dismissed.

Appeal from a decision of the Revising Barrister for the borough of Christchurch, Hants, disallowing the claims of the Rev. L. F. Hake and E. D. Hake to have their names placed on the list of parliamentary voters in respect of their joint occupation of a vicarage the rateable value of which exceeded 20%. The Rev. L. F. Hake's name was already on the Occupiers' List in respect of the vicarage, the nature of the qualification stated in the third column being "dwelling-house." It appeared that the claimants had resided together in the vicarage during the qualifying period, using it as a residence and not for any business purpose. The Revising Barrister held that, as the premises constituted a "dwelling-house" qualification under sect. 3 of the Representation of the People Act, 1887, the claimants were not entitled to be placed on the list in respect of a "joint" occupation qualification under s. 29 of the Reform Act, 1832.

Appeal from a decision of the Revising Barrister for the borough of Gloucester, who had erased the name of the appellant from the old Lodger List of voters. The ground of objection stated in the notice of objection given by the respondent was: "You have not complied with the statutory requirements for making your claim." The notice of claim was according to Form H. (No. 2), Schedule 3, to the Registration Act, 1885, but it stated that the voter had resided in the lodgings for two months preceding July 15, 1888, it itself purported to have been signed and attested on July 9, 1888. The name of the appellant was published in the old Lodger List without the addition of the words "objected to." The real ground of objection taken was that the date of the notice.

Bompas, Q.C., for the appellants, contended (1) that the notice of objection was insufficient; (2) that the name of the claimant having been placed on the old Lodger List the Revising Barrister had no power to inquire into the sufficiency of the notice of claim; (3) that the notice of claim was fact sufficient.

A. T. Lawrence, for the respondents.

PARKER AND OTHERS, APPS.; BLENKHORN, RESP.
NEWBOULD, APP.; BAILWARD AND OTHERS, RESPS.

Solicitor and Client—Costs—Taxation—Remuneration for conducting Sale by Auction when Auctioneer paid by Client—Scale Fees—Solicitors' Remuneration Act 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 44)—Gen. Ord. August 1882, 2, Sched. I. Part I. r. 11.

These two appeals were heard together, both raising the same question, viz.: whether the decision of the Court of Appeal in In re Newbould (20 Q. B. D. 204), from which Newbould v. Bailward was an appeal, was correct. In Parker v. Blenkhorn the Court of Appeal (Cotton, Fry, and Lopes L.JJ.), affirming the decision of Chitty J., followed In re Newbould.

In each case property was sold by auction, and the question arose on taxation of the solicitor's costs. The auctioneer's commission having been paid by the client, the case came under rule 11. of Sched. I. Part I. of the General Order made in pursuance of the Solicitors' Remuneration Act 1881. Rule 11 provides that "the scale for conducting a sale by auction shall apply only in cases where no commission is paid by the client to an auctioneer." The solicitors did not charge the scale fee for conducting a sale by public auction, but they charged the client various items for attending the sale and other work done in respect of the conduct thereof. These charges were all disallowed upon the ground that the solicitor was by rule 11 prevented from recovering not only the scale charges but any charges whatever for work done in respect of the conduct of the sale.

In Parker v. Blenkhorn—

Sir H. Davey Q.C. and R. S. Wright appeared for the appellants.

Cozens-Hardy Q.C. and Oswald for the respondent.

In Newbould v. Bailward—

Bowen Rowlands Q.C. Arthur Yates and F. C. Philips for the appellants.

Lumley Smith Q.C. and G. E. S. Fryer for the respondents.

THE HOUSE (Lord Halsbury L.C. and Lords Watson and Macnaghten) held, reversing the decision of the Court of Appeal in both cases, that the scale charge being by rule 11 inapplicable, the solicitor was by Gen. Ord. 2 subs (c) entitled to remuneration for the work in question according to the old system as altered by Sched. II.

Appeals allowed.

Bankruptcy—Rescission of Receiving Order—Jurisdiction—Discretion—Consent of Creditors—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, a. 18.

Appeal against the refusal of a Divisional Court (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Cave, J.), affirming a decision of the County Court at Southampton, to rescind a receiving order which had been made against the debtors on their own petition. An action in the Chancery Division had been brought by some beneficiaries under the will of a former partner in the firm against the debtors and other defendants in respect of the business, and in that action a receiver and manager of the business was appointed by Chitty, J. The assets of the firm were taken possession of by the receiver, and the debtors were consequently unable to pay some debts of the firm, for which judgment had been recovered against them. For this reason they filed the bankruptcy petition. Their statement of affairs shewed a considerable surplus of assets over liabilities. Terms were arranged for the compromise of the action, but, some of the parties being under disability, the compromise could not be carried out without the sanction of Chitty, J., and before applying for that sanction it was desired to have the receiving order rescinded. All the creditors who were mentioned in the debtors' statement of affairs had consented in writing to the rescission of the receiving order. The official receiver stated that he had nothing to allege against the conduct of the debtors. The Divisional Court were of opinion that the debtors ought to proceed in the regular way by means of a scheme under s. 18 of the Act.

Yates Lee, for the debtors, urged that the proposed compromise could not be carried out under sect 18, and that it was the only way in which anything could be obtained for the creditors. It would enable the debtors to pay the creditors in full, and was clearly for the benefit of the creditors.

Sir E. Clarke, S.G., and Muir Mackenzie, for the official receiver, were not heard.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) affirmed the decision.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that the Divisional Court had jurisdiction to grant the application, but they had a discretion. They had exercised their discretion, and the Court of Appeal would not interfere unless they were satisfied that the discretion had been wrongly exercised. If the proposed scheme was one which could not be carried out under sect. 18 (of which his Lordship was not satisfied), then the Court was asked to sanction a scheme over which the Court of Bankruptcy would not retain any control. If the scheme should fail, what would happen. It was said that any creditor could then file another petition. Could that be for the benefit of the creditors? The Court of Bankruptcy ought not to part with its control, unless it could be certain that the proposed scheme would necessarily be carried out completely.

Fry and LOPES, L.JJ., concurred.

Bankruptcy—Secured Creditor—Judgment Creditor—Equitable Execution—Order appointing Receiver of Chattels—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, ss. 2, 45, 168.

Appeal against an order of Cave, J., declaring the trustee in the bankruptcy of A. Dickinson entitled to the proceeds of the sale of certain chattels.

The debtor was a licensed victualler. On the 6th of December, 1887, Charrington & Co. recovered judgment against him in an action in the Queen's Bench Division for 2930l. On the 9th of December the plaintiffs obtained an order in the action, appointing one of their firm "without security until further order to receive the stock in trade and other property and effects belonging to the defendant, and unincumbered by any mortgage or other document or process of law," at his public-house, "but without prejudice to the rights of any prior incumbrancer, or his possession (if any), or to the rights of the landlord of the premises. And it is ordered that all further questions be reserved until further order." The receiver took possession of the goods under this order, and continued in possession of them until the 13th of January, 1888, when a receiving order in bankruptcy was made against Dickinson on his own petition filed that day, and on the 16th of January he was adjudicated a bankrupt. The goods in the possession of the receiver were sold by arrangement, without prejudice to the question who was entitled to them. Charrington & Co. claimed the proceeds of sale, on the ground that, by virtue of the receiving order, they were secured creditors.

Cave, J., held that the trustee in the bankruptcy was entitled to the money. Charrington & Co. appealed.

Henn Collins, Q.C., and McCall, for the appellants, argued that the receiving order amounted to an equitable execution upon the goods, and that it was not necessary that such an execution should be completed by sale before the date of the receiving order.

Winslow, Q.C., and Colt, for the trustee, were not heard.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) affirmed the decision. They were of opinion that the appellants were not secured creditors. They did not hold any "mortgage, charge, or lien," on the bankrupt's property. The order appointing the receiver was not an equitable execution, and, if it was, then, inasmuch as it was not completed by sale of the goods before the date of the receiving order, sect. 45 applied, and the appellants could not retain the benefit of the execution against the trustee in the bankruptcy.

Landlord and Tenant—Covenant by Lessee to pay Rent—Assignment—Surrender of Part of Premises by Assignee—Effect of—Apportionment.

Appeal from the judgment of the Queen's Bench Division (reported 21 Q. B. D. 101), on appeal from the County Court of Southwark, affirming the decision of the County Court Judge.

The facts were as follows: The plaintiff demised premises by deed to the defendant for a term of years at the yearly rent of 50*l.*, and by a covenant contained in the lease the defendant covenanted with the plaintiff for the payment of the reserved rent. The defendant assigned his interest in the term, and his assignee surrendered a portion of the premises to the plaintiff. The quarter's rent due in September, 1887, being unpaid, the plaintiff sued the defendant for the same upon his covenant. It was arranged that it should be referred to a referee to ascertain what, assuming the rent to be apportionable for the purposes of the covenant, the fair rent apportionable for the part of the premises surrendered was, and he had found it to be 4*l.* per annum. The plaintiff ultimately limited his claim to the amount of 11*l.* 10*s.*, being the quarter's rent less the sum of 1*l.* the apportioned rent for the part of the premises surrendered. The defendant contended that the rent was not apportionable for the purposes of the covenant, and that the effect of the surrender of part of the premises was to extinguish the covenant altogether. The County Court Judge gave the plaintiff judgment for the amount of 11*l.* 10*s.*

Jelf, Q.C., and H. Terrell, for the defendant.

Channell, Q.C., and Jason Smith, for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.) held that the covenant was not extinguished, and that the plaintiff was at any rate entitled to recover thereunder the apportioned rent for the part of the premises not surrendered, which was all he claimed. Whether he was entitled to recover the whole rent as originally reserved it was, under the circumstances, unnecessary to decide. They therefore dismissed the appeal.

Appeal dismissed.

Rules of Divorce Division—Restitution of Conjugal Rights—Rules 2 and 175.

This appeal by the petitioner from a dismissal of her petition by Mr. Justice Butt (see ante, pp. 202, 222), came on again upon further evidence.

Bargrave Deane, for the appellant.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.J.J.) again stated their view that it was not indispensable for the demand for cohabitation to have been written by the petitioner herself, but that rule 175 required a friendly written application to have been made for a restitution of conjugal rights, such as would be likely to lead to amicable negotiations; that the petition therefore ought not to have been allowed to be filed; and that as no demand had been made except a hostile letter by the petitioner's solicitors, threatening proceedings on non-compliance, a decree ought not to be made. The appeal was accordingly dismissed.

Ex parte SACKER.

Bankruptcy—Petitioning Creditor—Receiver appointed in Action in Chancery Division—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 6.

Appeal from a decision of Mr. Registrar Linklater.

An action was brought in the Chancery Division by Boyle & Co. against Sacker and the Bulk Petroleum Company, claiming an account of all dealings between the plaintiffs and Sacker in respect of a business which had been carried on by them upon joint account, and to have the business wound up by the Court; an account of the sums received by Sacker in respect of the assets of the Bulk Company (that company having granted to the plaintiffs a charge on their assets as security for advances made by the plaintiffs to them); and an order that all sums received by Sacker in respect of the assets of the Bulk Company should be paid to the plaintiffs in discharge pro tanto of the advances made by them to the company. In this action an order was made by Chitty, J., appointing a receiver to collect, get in, and receive the outstanding assets, property and effects of the business lately carried on by the plaintiffs and Sacker; and to collect, get in, and receive the outstanding assets, property, and effects comprised in the charge given to the plaintiffs by the Bulk Company, including therein any balance of the company's moneys so charged in the hands of Sacker. An order was subsequently made that Sacker should pay to the receiver a sum of 3950*l.*, which he had received for the company. This sum not having been paid by Sacker, the receiver presented a bankruptcy petition against him in respect of it. On the hearing of the petition the preliminary objection was taken, that no debt was due to the receiver, and that he was not a good petitioning creditor. The Registrar, on the authority of Ex parte Harris (2 Ch. D. 423), overruled the objection. Sacker appealed.

Herbert Reed, for the appellant.

Romer, Q.C., Sidney Woolf, and J. G. Butcher, for the receiver.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.) held that the receiver was not entitled to present the petition. There was no debt due to him, and he could not have maintained an action in his own name at law or in equity for the sum which was ordered to be paid to him. The ground of the decision in Ex parte Harris was, that the receiver in that case was the holder of a bill of exchange in respect of which he could have sued at law. Ex parte Muirhead (2 Ch. D. 22) shewed that a person in the position of a receiver could not maintain a bankruptcy petition.

Bankruptcy—Proof—Interest accrued due since Adjudication—Covenant to pay gross Sum made up of Principal and Interest.

Appeal against the disallowance in part by Mr. Registrar Brougham of a proof tendered by the appellants in the bankruptcy of H. J. Fane. The bankrupt had in 1880 mortgaged to the appellants his interest in certain real estates (of which his father was tenant for life), to secure the repayment of an advance made by them to him. The mortgage deed provided for the redemption of the mortgage on payment by the bankrupt to the mortgagees, six months after the death of his father, of the sum advanced "with interest thereon at 5 per cent. per annum capitalized at compound interest" by means of half-yearly rests until the death of the father, "the aggregate of which shall form the capital sum owing under these presents at the death of" the father, with interest on the capital sum owing at the death of the father from the date of that death. The bankrupt covenanted with the appellants that he would, at the end of six months from the death of his father, pay to them the sum which, pursuant to the proviso for redemption, should be the capital sum owing at the death of the father, together with interest from the death of the father. The adjudication of bankruptcy was made in September, 1882; the father died in November, 1885.

The appellants claimed to prove in the bankruptcy for the aggregate sum due to them under the covenant at the death of the father, less the value of their security. The registrar disallowed the proof to the extent to which the aggregate sum was composed of interest. The mortgagees appealed.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and J. T. Prior, for the appellants.

Winch, Q.C., Sidney Woolf, and Ringwood, for the trustee in the bankruptcy.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.) affirmed the decision, holding that the case was governed by Ex parte Bath (22 Ch. D. 450), and Ex parte Robinson (31 L. J. (Bkcy.) 12).

Leave to appeal to the House of Lords was refused, unless the Court on further consideration should fit think to grant it.

Practice—Appeal from Chambers—Appeal from Order made during Vacation—Time—Order LII. r. 5; Order LIV. r. 24.

Appeal from a Divisional Court (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Cave, J.).

The plaintiff took out a summons under Order xiv. r. 1, for liberty to sign final judgment, upon which a master gave the defendant unconditional leave to defend; the master's decision was affirmed by Denman, J., at chambers on the 11th of September. On the 1st of October the plaintiff served the defendant with notice of motion by way of appeal for the 24th of October. In the Divisional Court a preliminary objection was taken on behalf of the defendant to the hearing of the appeal upon the ground that the notice was given too late, and that under Order LII., r. 5, and Order LIV., r. 24, two clear days' notice of appeal from a decision of a judge at chambers must be given within five days of the decision, so that the appeal could be heard, if necessary, within eight days. The Divisional Court held that the objection was good and dismissed the appeal without going into the merits. The plaintiff appealed.

ROUSE v. TRIBLE.

Nov. 23.

Practice—Order in Chambers—Motion to discharge—Evidence—Affidavits filed since Order—Leave to use—Review—Judicature Act, 1873, s. 50.

On the 29th of November, 1886, an originating summons was taken out for the administration of the estate of a testatrix, Betsy Rouse deceased, the plaintiff being a residuary legatee under the will and the defendants being the executors.

The defendants, by their affidavit in opposition to the summons, deposed that the estate was insufficient to satisfy the debts and legacies: and on the matter coming before the chief clerk the summons was dismissed. The summons was then adjourned to the judge in chambers, who directed it to it to stand over generally, in order that the executors might realise the estate and ascertain whether there was in fact a deficiency to pay the legacies. The estate was eventually sold, and the matter again came before the Chief Clerk, who, being satisfied that there was nothing for the plaintiff—after having given the plaintiff opportunity of shewing that there would be a surplus for him by surcharging or falsifying the accounts that had been delivered to him by the defendants—dismissed the summons with costs, and, by an order dated the 18th of November, 1887, this order was confirmed by the judge in chambers, to whom the matter had been adjourned.

The plaintiff now moved to discharge the order of the 18th of November, 1887, on the ground that the plaintiff had since accidentally discovered that a further sum of money was due to the estate which would leave a surplus on the residuary account. The facts tending to shew this result were embodied in certain affidavits filed on behalf of the plaintiff in support of the present motion.

Blakeley, for the motion, proposed to read these affidavits.

Renshaw, Q.C., and Stock, for the defendants, raised the preliminary objection that on a motion to discharge an order in chambers the applicant could not use any affidavits filed since the order.

KAY, J., said he was not aware that the Judicature Acts and Orders had altered the practice as to proceedings in the nature of review. A proceeding of that kind in the old time before the Judicature Acts was always very carefully guarded, for it was necessary to obtain the leave of the Court to take such a proceeding, and, on applying for such leave, to make out a strong case and shew, not only that the evidence had been discovered since the order was made, but that by no diligence could it have been discovered before; and the Court would not allow a party who had been disappointed by an order, or part of an order, to take proceedings to set it aside unless he could shew a strong case. Here the order had been made in chambers more than a year ago, and an application was now made under s. 50 of the Judicature Act, 1873, to discharge that order, not because the order was wrongly made by the judge in chambers, but on the footing of further evidence, which it was said the Court should have before it. His Lordship was most emphatically of opinion that it was not the intention of the section to allow further evidence to be adduced on such an application. The object of that section was, in his opinion, as clear as could be. An order in chambers might not come before the judge personally, or, if it did, might be such as, if he had heard the matter more deliberately in Court, he would not have allowed to stand: and the object of this section was to enable a party dissatisfied with the order in chambers to obtain a reversal of it. But could it be supposed that the meaning of the section was that that party might, without leave, bring fresh evidence to support his application in Court? The true ground of such an application was that the order was wrong upon the evidence that had been adduced. To allow fresh evidence to be adduced on an application to discharge an order made in chambers would be a course of practice leading to the greatest possible abuse: for a party might bring in his evidence in chambers, make out his case there, and, when by the discussion in chambers he found out the pinch of the case, might bring fresh evidence addressed to that point when he brought on his case in Court. In his Lordship's opinion that was not the meaning of the Judicature Act, and any such practice would lead to very great abuse and wrong. His Lordship could not accede to this application. If the legislature had done away with the old practice as to proceedings by review, and had removed the safeguards in such cases, he should have expected to find an Act of Parliament passed for the purpose. He found no such Act. In his opinion it was not the proper practice to obtain review on evidence obtained or discovered after an order had been made in chambers, and that it was not competent to bring new evidence on a motion of this kind, which was not one for leave to take proceedings of review. The duty of the judge before whom a motion was made to discharge an order made by him in chambers was to decide the motion on the evidence brought before him in chambers. Then, if the judge declined to discharge the order, the applicant might go to the Court of Appeal, who would have power to admit new evidence, if they considered the case required it, and then no harm would be done. For review a new action should be instituted, and before that was done the leave of the Court should be obtained. The present motion must be dismissed with costs.

Will—Construction—Intestacy—Gift to Executors and Administrators of A. and B.—Gift by A. to Testator.

A testator, who died in 1887, by his will, dated in 1851, gave his residuary estate to M. and J., and appointed them his executrixes, and in case of the decease of the said M. and J., he bequeathed what he had bequeathed to them to their executors or administrators, and appointed these last his executors. M. and J. both died in the lifetime of the testator, and J. by her will bequeathed the residue of her property to the testator. Her debts had been paid, so that property devolving on her representatives under the will of the testator formed part of such residue. A fund representing one moiety of the testator's residuary estate was paid into court under the Trustee Relief Act, and was claimed on the one hand by the petitioner, who was the administrator and residuary legatee of M., and on the other hand by the respondent on behalf of himself and the other next of kin of the testator.

Bankruptcy—Composition—Annulment—Discharge of Surety—Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), s. 18, sub-s. 11—Bankruptcy Rules, 1886, r. 213.

A receiving order under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, having been made against a debtor, his creditors resolved to accept a composition payable by instalments. The plaintiff, at the request of the debtor, agreed to secure the payment of the composition, and by a deed made between the plaintiff of the first part, the debtor of the second part, and the defendant of the third part, the plaintiff conveyed property belonging to her to the defendant as trustee, by way of mortgage to secure the payment of the composition. The deed contained a proviso that though as between the plaintiff and the debtor she was only a surety, yet as between her and the defendant she was to be considered a principal debtor. The composition was subsequently approved by the Court. The debtor having made default in payment of the instalments, an order was made, on the application of a creditor, that the debtor should be adjudicated bankrupt, and that the composition approved by the Court could be, and the same was thereby, annulled. The plaintiff sought this action to set aside the deed.

Benshaw, Q.C., and Hadley, for the plaintiff.

Marten, Q.C., Herbert Reed, and Rowden, for the defendant.

KAY, J., held, that upon the annulment of the composition the liability of the plaintiff as surety for the composition under the deed was discharged, and that the deed must be declared to be so void so far as related to such liability.

KAY, J. MAYOR OF WEST HAM v. GRANT. Nov. 29.

Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), s. 257—Special Act—Paving and other Expenses—Estimated Expenses—Charge on Property.

By a special Act (30 Vict. c. lvi.) the plaintiffs were empowered to apportion the estimated expenses of paving and sewer works in any street among the owners or occupiers of property in the street, and such expenses so apportioned were to be recoverable either before the work was commenced, during its progress, or after its completion, either by action at law, or in a summary manner before justices of the peace, at the instance of the plaintiffs; and it was provided that in case the actual expenses should be less than the estimated sum the difference should be paid by the plaintiffs to the owners of the houses or property who might have paid such sum, or whose names or property might have been "charged therewith." The Act was to be construed together with the Public Health Act, 1875, as one Act. The plaintiffs duly apportioned the estimated expenses of certain works in a street, and demanded payment from the defendant (who was the owner of property in the street) of the proportion payable by him. The defendant did not pay the amount demanded, and the plaintiffs brought this action to establish their right to a charge on the defendant's property for the amount under sect. 257 of the Public Health Act, 1875. It was not alleged that any work had been actually done or expenses incurred.

Phipson, for the plaintiffs referred to Midland Railway Company v. Watton (17 Q. B. D. 30), and contended that the effect of the special Act was to extend the charge conferred by the general Act, for expenses incurred, to estimated expenses.

The defendant did not appear.

KAY, J., held that the special Act had not the effect of so extending the general Act, and that the plaintiffs were only entitled to a charge in respect of expenses incurred, and he dismissed the action with costs.

The subscribed capital of this company consisted principally of ordinary shares. There were also a comparatively small amount of shares having a fixed preferential dividend. The amount of the preference share capital was about 4 per cent. of the whole subscribed capital, which was all paid up. Resolutions had been passed and duly confirmed by meetings of the company for the reduction of the ordinary capital only by 10 per cent. to be written off the amount paid up. The petition had not been served on anyone.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Stroud, moved on behalf of the company that the petition might be heard on the first petition day (the next day); that advertisements for creditors might be dispensed with; that the words "and reduced" might be dispensed with till the hearing; and that advertisements of the presentation and hearing might be dispensed with. They suggested that an ordinary shareholder should be appointed to represent others and argue the point of law, whether a majority of shareholders could pass valid resolutions reducing one class of share capital leaving another unreduced.

NORTH, J., dispensed with advertisements for creditors and the use of the words "and reduced" till the hearing. He directed that the petition should be in the paper for Saturday, the 8th of December, and should be advertised in the London Gazette, the Times, and another London daily newspaper to be named by the registrar. He thought it was preferable, if some shareholder wished to argue the point of law on his own account, that he should do so, instead of having the point argued by a person appointed for that purpose.

Notice—Stay of Execution on Judgment—Payment of Debt pre-

Judgment Creditor—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 4, sub-s. 1 (g).*

Appeal against a receiving order made by Mr. Registrar Giffard against R. Dennis on the petition of C. G. Robertson, a judgment creditor of Dennis. On the 18th of October, Robertson served a bankruptcy notice on Dennis in respect of the judgment debt. On the 23rd of October, Dennis was served by Macrae & Co., judgment creditors of Robertson, with a garnishee order nisi, attaching all debts owing from him to Robertson. Dennis did not comply with the bankruptcy notice within the seven days limited by it, and, on the 26th of October, Robertson presented a bankruptcy petition against Dennis. On the 29th of October the garnishee order was made absolute. On the 19th of November the bankruptcy petition was heard, and Dennis resisted the making of a receiving order, on the ground that, before the expiration of the seven days limited by the bankruptcy notice, execution on the judgment against him had been stayed by reason of the service of the garnishee order nisi, and that consequently no act of bankruptcy had been committed by him. The Registrar overruled the objection, and made a receiving order. Dennis appealed.

Douglas Walker, for the appellant.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and Evan E. Brock, for Robertson.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that the words "execution thereon not having been stayed" in sub-s. 1 (g) of sect 4, meant stayed before the service of the bankruptcy notice. The garnishee order nisi was not served till after the service of the bankruptcy notice, and there was nothing, therefore, in sub-s. 1 (g) to prevent the making of the receiving order. If Dennis had been in fact prevented by the act of Robertson from paying the debt to him, there would have been an equity against Robertson, disentitling him from availing himself of the act of bankruptcy. But it lay on Dennis to shew that he had been in fact prevented from paying the debt, and there was no evidence that he had any means by which he could have paid Robertson if the garnishee order had not been served. In re Connan (20 Q. B. D. 690) was distinguishable from the present case, because there a garnishee order absolute had been served before the service of the bankruptcy notice.

Bankruptcy—Bill of Sale—Licence to seize Personal Chattels—Assignment of Rights under Agreements for hire and purchase of Furniture—Assignment of future Payments—Validity against Trustee in Bankruptcy of Assignor.

Appeal against a decision of Cave, J.

Davis & Co, furniture dealers, in March, 1886, assigned to Fuchsbalg, as security for money lent by him to them, all their rights under certain agreements which they had entered into for the hire and purchase of furniture. The loan was to be repaid by monthly instalments, and, upon default in payment of any of the instalments, Fuchsbalg was to be at liberty to exercise all the powers contained in the hiring agreements until the whole balance then due to him should have been repaid, and Davis & Co. thereby authorized him to use their names for all purposes in connection with the agreements, and appointed him their attorney for those purposes. Each of the hiring agreements was an agreement by Davis & Co. with a person (called therein the hirer) that they would let, and that he would hire, certain articles of furniture described in an inventory annexed thereto, which were stated to be of a specified agreed value. The hirer was to pay to the lenders certain periodical instalments, until the full amount of the agreed value should be paid. If default should be made in the payment of the hire, the lenders might immediately take possession of and remove and sell the goods, and for that purpose might enter the dwelling-house of the hirer, and, if necessary, break open doors for that purpose. When the agreed value should have been paid by the hirer, the goods were to become his property, but until that sum should have been fully paid, they were to remain the property of the lenders. On the 15th of May, 1887, Fuchsbalg gave notice of the assignment to the hirers; on the 19th of May, 1887, a receiving order in bankruptcy was made against Davis & Co., and they were afterwards adjudicated bankrupts. After the receiving order Fuchsbalg received from the hirers some of the instalments which became due under the hiring agreements. The trustee in the bankruptcy applied to the Court for a declaration that he was entitled to the benefit of the hiring agreements, and of all moneys paid, due or growing due thereunder. Cave, J., following his own decision in In re Davis & Co, Pipe's Case (ante, p. 225), dismissed the application. The trustee appealed.

Cooper Willis, Q.C., and Rose Innes, for the appellant, argued that the assignment gave to Fuchsbalg under the hiring agreements a licence to seize the furniture. It was, therefore, a bill of sale within s. 4 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, and void for non-compliance with that Act and the Bills of Sale Act, 1882. At any rate, Davis & Co. could not, as against the trustee in the bankruptcy, make a valid assignment of the instalments becoming due under the hiring agreements after the commencement of the bankruptcy: Ex parte Nichols (22 Ch. D. 782).

Sidney Woolf, for Fuchsbalg, was not heard.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.JJ.) dismissed the appeal.

Lord Esher, M.R., said that the assignment was nothing but an assignment of a contract, and there was nothing in the Bills of Sale Act to make it a bill of sale. It only assigned the rights of the lenders under the hiring agreements. No property in the goods passed by means of it. The property in the goods was not in the lenders by virtue of the hiring agreements, but by their antecedent title. The licence given by the hiring agreements to the lenders to take possession of the goods in default, was not legally capable of being assigned, as was shown by Brown v. Metropolitan Counties Life Assurance Society (28 L. J. (Q.B.) 236). The hiring agreements amounted to a sale of the goods at a fixed price payable in specified instalments. The assignment of the future instalments was an assignment of a then existing debt payable in futuro, and this was good as against the trustee in the bankruptcy. In Ex parte Nichols the assignment was of future payments arising from the carrying on of a business. They could arise only if the business was carried on, and, if after the bankruptcy of the assignors, the business was carried on by their trustee, the payments became due, not to the bankrupts, but to their trustee.

TONBRIDGE WELLS IMPROVEMENT COMMISSIONERS v.
SOUTHBOROUGH LOCAL BOARD.

Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), s. 174—Contract under Seal—Contract "whereof the value or amount exceeds fifty pounds"—Agreement to adopt and dedicate Road—Petition to Local Government Board.

Under an agreement with a landowner the plaintiffs had constructed a road over land of his situated within the district of the defendants, and had become liable to maintain and repair such road. The plaintiffs entered into an agreement with the defendants that, subject to the approval of the Local Government Board being obtained, the plaintiffs should transfer to the defendants certain land forming part of the plaintiffs' district, and situated near to the road, on condition that the defendants should adopt the road and dedicate the same as a public highway. This agreement was not under seal. The plaintiffs and defendants presented a petition to the Local Government Board stating the agreement and praying that the Board would grant a provisional order sanctioning the transfer and alteration of boundaries on the terms above stated. This petition was sealed with the common seals of the plaintiffs and defendants. The Local Government Board, after inquiry, made a provisional order sanctioning the transfer and alteration of boundaries, and such order was confirmed by Act of Parliament, but neither the order nor the Act contained any reference to the terms of the agreement as to the road. There was evidence that the cost of completing the road, so that the same might be dedicated as a public highway, would considerably exceed the sum of 50*l.* In an action by the plaintiffs to enforce specific performance of the agreement as to the road by the defendants, the plaintiffs contended that the agreement was not such a contract as by section 174 of the Public Health Act, 1875, was required to be under seal, but if it were, then that the petition to the Local Government Board, being under seal, constituted a sufficient contract within that section.

Marten, Q.C., and Chadwyck Healey, for the plaintiffs.

Benshaw, Q.C., and Farwell, for the defendants.

Key, J., held that the agreement as to the road was a contract the value or amount whereof exceeded 50*l.* within the meaning of section 174, and, therefore, according to the decision in Young v. Corporation of Leamington (8 App. Cas. 517), incapable of being enforced unless under seal, and that the petition to the Local Government Board, not being a deed or equivalent to a deed, was not such a contract under seal as was required by that section.

PURDAY v. JOHNSON.

Will—Charity—Lapse.

Gift by will to Rev. R. A. C. of 1000l. "upon trust to apply the same for the benefit of the Society for Suppressing Cruelty by United Prayer, of which society I have for some time been the treasurer, and to be applied by him in such way as he may consider most for the benefit of the said society, and for accomplishing the purposes and objects thereof, and I trust to his acting in the matter in such a way as he may consider will best carry out my desires, wishes, and intentions, which to him are well known." The testatrix had taken great interest in the question of vivisection and in 1876, founded a so-called society, to which she gave the name of the Ashley Grove Society, towards which R. A. C. had given his voluntary assistance. The testatrix had issued a small card with on one side a Scripture text, and the title, "The Society for United Prayer for Protection of Animals from Cruelty." Beneath this were printed three so-called rules, to the effect—(1) that each member would be required to purchase a card, price 2s., or for the poor, 1s.; (2) to use the prayer; and (3) that it was hoped that each member would use his influence in gaining other members and circulating pamphlets, &c., so as to disseminate facts relative to vivisection and all other cruelty. On the other side of the card was a prayer, written by R. A. C. The testatrix was the sole controller of the society, and had sold cards to as many as 17,000 persons or members. She defrayed out of her own pocket any expenses which were not met by the sale of the cards, but rendered no account of her expenditure, nor was there any evidence that she kept any accounts beyond a few incomplete memoranda. On two or three occasions an "Ashley Grove Annual" was issued, containing tales and other contributions supposed to be likely to further the objects which the testatrix's society and its members had at heart. For a year or two before the testatrix's death, the work of the society was discontinued by her, owing to ill-health. R. A. C. stated that he was willing to carry out the testatrix's wishes as soon as he had received the amount which she had bequeathed for the purpose. The residuary legatees contended that the bequest was either invalid or void.

Byrne, Q.C., and C. E. Bovill, in support of the bequest. The society had and still has an existence independent of the testatrix. But even if the particular society has ceased to exist the prevention of cruelty to animals is a good charitable purpose, and the bequest may be applied cy-près for the objects indicated by the testatrix; or R. A. C. may take the gift in trust for benevolent purposes.

Ingle Joyce, for the Attorney-General, also supported the bequest as a good charitable gift.

Romer, Q.C., and W. G. Robinson, for the residuary legatees submitted that the gift was void. The society never had any real existence, but was a mere name given by testatrix to her own private work; and therefore there was no general charitable purpose capable of being carried into execution, and the gift was void for ambiguity. If the society ever did exist, it ceased to exist before the death of testatrix or died with her, in which case the legacy had lapsed. If upheld as a gift to R. A. C. in trust for benevolent purposes, where were the cestuis que trust? what was there to prevent his retaining the 1000l. for his own purposes?

Badcock, for the executors.

CHITTY, J., held that the legacy had lapsed, being on the face of it given for the benefit of a particular society, which, on the evidence, ceased to exist when the testatrix, who was herself the society, died. The gift could not be supported as a gift for general charitable purposes in continuation of her own work, as there was in terms a gift to a particular society. And further, the object being to suppress cruelty to animals and effect improvement of individuals by united private prayer, the gift did not fall within the legal definition of charity. Nor was it a gift in trust for benevolent purposes, as there were no cestuis que trust, nor any persons indicated as objects of benevolence. The legacy therefore fell into the residue.

Appointment of new Trustees—Nomination of "Trustees Corporation."

Petition for the appointment of three new trustees of a settlement in place of three retiring trustees. It was proposed to appoint three persons who were nominated by a company, called The Trustees, Executors, and Securities Insurance Corporation (Limited). If these persons were appointed the company would, on payment of a premium, which the tenant for life was willing to pay, guarantee the due performance of the trusts.

J. G. Butcher, for the petitioners.

Carson, for the company, and the proposed trustees.

NORTH, J., said that he would appoint the three persons named, if proper affidavits of their fitness were produced, and on their consenting to act as trustees in the ordinary way. But he would have nothing to do with "the company" which they represented, and they must understand that they would become personally liable for the performance of the trusts, and that, if they delegated the performance of them to the company, they would do so at their own risk. He thought that he had no power to appoint a corporation to be trustees. Before making the appointment he must have the consent of the proposed trustees to act, given by them after what he had now said had been communicated to them. The petition would stand over, with liberty to amend, and all reference to the corporation must be struck out of it.

Settlement—New Trustees—Action—Originating Summons—Costs—Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883—Ord. L.V. r. 3 (g)—Practice.

By a marriage settlement dated 11th of August, 1862, the plaintiff and the defendant Todd were appointed trustees of certain funds, and the plaintiff alleged that the defendant Todd had accepted the trusts of the settlement, but now refused to act or to concur in appointing a new trustee to act in his place, and claimed that the defendant Todd might be discharged from the office of trustee, and that a new trustee might be appointed in his stead to act with the plaintiff.

The defendant Todd by his defence denied that he had ever accepted the trusts of the settlement, and alleged that he had offered to execute a disclaimer at the cost of the trust estate, and submitted that under the power of appointing new trustees contained in the settlement a new trustee could have been appointed in his place without his concurrence.

The plaintiff now moved for judgment, and also offered to retire from the trust.

Eramwell Davis, for the plaintiff.

F. T. Procter, for the defendant Todd.

V. R. Smith, for the other defendants, beneficiaries under the settlement, submitted that relief could have been obtained in chambers by originating summons under Order L.V. r. 3 (g), and that the plaintiff was not entitled to more costs than would have been thus incurred.

Kobewich, J., held, that relief could not have been granted on an originating summons in chambers, and that the action was rightly constituted. There would be the usual reference to chambers to appoint two new trustees, the plaintiff's costs as between solicitor and client, and the defendants' costs of the action as between party and party, to be a charge on the trust funds.

Will and Codicil, Construction of—Devise of Estate, and Gift of Chattels as Heirlooms—Different Limitations of Estate by the Codicil, but no Reference to Heirlooms.

Petition and Summons. G. E. T. by his will, made in 1854, devised the Harewood Lodge and hereditaments to the use of his cousin H. G. H. for life, and after his death to the use of his wife for life, and after the death of the survivor to the use of their children, in strict settlement, and in default of issue to the use of the testator's cousin, F. T. A. L., his heirs and assigns, with a gift over in case he should become a Roman Catholic. The testator gave certain chattels in, about, or belonging to Harewood Lodge, to trustees in trust to permit the same to be held and enjoyed as heirlooms by the person or persons who for the time being should be entitled to Harewood Lodge under the devise therein before contained. He then gave a legacy of 20,000*l.* to the trustees upon trust "for the person or persons for the time being entitled to" the Harewood Lodge estate, and "so as the income thereof only be paid to the tenant for life of such estate." By a codicil the testator gave the Harewood Lodge estate to H. G. H. and his wife and children, as in the will, and in default of children to T. L. (the petitioner) if he should attain the age of 21 years, and if he should die under 21 to F. T. A. L., and the devisees over, as in the will. There was no reference in the codicil to the heirlooms, but there was a direction that the 20,000*l.* should go the same as in the will and except as there intimated he confirmed his will. H. G. H. and his wife had died without leaving issue.

The questions which arose on the petition and summons were whether T. L., who was entitled to the Harewood Lodge estate, was entitled to the chattels bequeathed by the will and to the benefit of the 20,000*l.*

Fischer, Q.C., and Cordery, for the petitioner.

Buckley, Q.C., and Morshead, for the representatives of H. G. H., and Method, Haldane, and Pownall, for other parties.

STIRLING, J., held that as to the chattels, the meaning of the bequest in the will was to give them to the person or persons who for the time being should be entitled to Harewood Lodge as persons designata under the will; that the effect of the codicil, which simply altered the devolution of the Harewood Lodge estate, and was silent altogether as to the chattels, was that the disposition of them in the will still remained in force and that the same reasoning applied to the gift of the 20,000*l.*; therefore the claim of the petitioner to the chattels and the legacy failed.

In re RAILWAYS' TIME TABLES PUBLISHING COMPANY.

Company—Rectification of Register—Issue of Shares at a Discount—Contract void and not voidable—Companies Act, 1862, s. 35—Damages.

This was a motion on behalf of Mrs. S., the wife of the designer of the railways time tables, to have the register of members, rectified by striking out her name as the holder of 673 5l. shares which had been allotted to her by the company as fully paid-up shares, in consideration of 10*s.* only per share. The shares were part of an issue of 5000, which the company at a meeting held on the 29th of November, 1886, resolved to issue at 10*s.* per share, i.e., at a discount of 4*l.* 10*s.* per share. The whole of the shares were allotted to the original shareholders on their application, in proportion to the number of shares already held by them. In February, 1888, the directors proposed to make a further issue of 7000 shares. That was objected to by Mrs. S., and the shares were not issued, but she did not otherwise repudiate the allotment which had been made to her of the 673 shares. In May, 1888, the Court of Appeal in the case of In re Almada and Tirito Company (38 Ch. D.

415) held that an issue of shares at a discount was invalid. Having regard to that case Mrs. S. now moved as above, and also asked for repayment of 336*l.* 10*s.* paid by her in respect of the shares. As to 155 of the shares it appeared that Mrs. S. had sold them to a friend who had no notice of the invalidity of the issue, but after the decision in In re Almada and Tiritó Company; the 150 shares were retransferred to Mrs. S., in consideration of 150 other full paid-up shares, the validity of the issue of which was not disputed.

Buckley, Q.C., and John Chester, for the applicant, submitted that the agreement to take the shares at a discount was entirely void, and that therefore there was no contract at all.

Beale, Q.C., and Carson, for the company, contended that it was too late for the applicant to ask to be relieved from any of the shares; and that she had no right to the return of the money.

STIBLING, J., held, that the case was governed by the decision in In re Almada and Tiritó Company, and that the issue of the shares at a discount was void and not voidable only. It might have been shewn that a new contract had been entered into to retain the shares and to pay in full, but the delay in coming to the Court was not a sufficient bar to the right of the applicant to be relieved from liability in respect of the shares. Upon the question of the 150 shares he held that the retransfer to Mrs. S. of those shares, which her transferee had taken without notice, entitled Mrs. S. to hold them as fully paid-up. As to the remaining 523 shares, her name must be removed from the register, and there must be an order to repay her the money paid in respect of them as damages under section 35 of Companies Act, 1862. He would give no costs of the application, as both parties had been in the wrong.

Case stated by a Metropolitan Police Magistrate, before whom the respondent was charged with keeping a dog without a licence. It was proved that the respondent had been convicted of a similar offence on a previous occasion, when he was fined two shillings, but such previous conviction was not stated in the information.

By 30 & 31 Vict. c. 5, s. 8, any person keeping a dog without a licence "shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of five pounds."

By 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 53, s. 78:—Except where there is any provision that no mitigation shall be made, justices are authorized and empowered to mitigate any penalty incurred for any offence committed against that or any other Act relating to the revenue of excise, for which any information shall have been exhibited before such justices, as the said justices in their discretion shall think fit, so as such mitigation shall not reduce such penalty to less than one fourth part thereof.

By the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 49), s. 4:—"Where a Court of summary jurisdiction has authority under this Act or under any other Act whether past or future . . . to impose a fine for an offence punishable on summary conviction, that Court . . . in the case of a fine, if it be imposed as in respect of a first offence, may reduce the prescribed amount thereof."

The magistrate convicted the respondent, and, being of opinion that, as the previous conviction was not stated in the information, the case came within s. 4 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, and should be dealt with as the case of a first offence, imposed a fine of 9*s.* 6*d.*

The respondent did not appear.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Manisty, J.) held that the case was not within s. 4 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, and therefore there was no power to mitigate the penalty so as to reduce the amount to less than one fourth of the sum prescribed by 30 & 31 Vict. c. 5, s. 8, and the fine must be increased to 1*l.* 5*s.*

Divorce. IN THE GOODS OF MIDDLETON. Dec. 11.

The Court refused to make a grant of administration to the father of an intestate—passing over the widow on the ground of bad character—without citing her.

This was an application to grant administration of the estate of a deceased intestate to his father, passing over his widow. David Middleton, who died September 29, 1883, intestate, leaving a father, sister and a widow surviving him, was married in August, 1875, to Emma Partridge, and twelve months after marriage she committed adultery. Middleton, however, forgave her and took her back, but subsequently she left him, led a profligate life at Kidderminster, where she contracted a bigamous marriage, and finally in 1884 went off to the United States, where she has since remained.

B. Deane, now moved for a grant to the father, passing over the widow, under the 21 Hen. 8, c. 5, s. 3, or under the 73rd section of the Court of Probate Act. Cited In the Goods of Williams (3 Hagg. 217); and In the Goods of Furrands (1 P. D. 439).

BUTT, J.:—To grant such an application without giving the widow an opportunity of answering the charges made against her would open a very wide door. I am afraid I must require you to cite her.

COURT OF APPEAL.

From Q. B. Div. ROE v. SIDONS. Dec. 7.

Discontinuous Easement—Right of Way—Grant of Land together with all Ways "now or heretofore enjoyed" therewith—Existing Road formerly enjoyed with Land, but at Date of Grant incapable of use.

Appeal against the affirmance by a Divisional Court (Cave and A. L. Smith, JJ.) of an order of a County Court, restraining the defendant from erecting a gate across a private road over which the plaintiff claimed a right of way.

The plaintiff and the defendant were owners of adjoining lands.

Before 1872 their respective predecessors in title had been occupiers of the land under the same landlord, and had used the road in common. The road was formed in 1786, when the lands were allotted under an Inclosure Act. There was access to the plaintiff's tenement from the high road without passing over the private road, but the only access to the defendant's tenement was by means of that road. In 1852, by the permission of the landlord, the then occupier of the plaintiff's tenement built a wall which entirely separated his tenement from the private road, and from that time down to 1872 the occupiers of the plaintiff's tenement had made no use of the private road, but obtained access to the tenement directly from the high road. In 1872 the owner sold the two tenements, the one to the plaintiff, the other to the defendant's predecessor in title. The conveyance of the plaintiff's tenement to the purchaser contained a grant of the land, together with "all ways, &c., easements and appurtenances whatsoever to the said tenement and premises hereby granted, or any part thereof, now or heretofore held or enjoyed, or reputed or known as part or parcel thereof or appurtenant thereto." In 1873 the plaintiff carted some bricks up the road, and put them over the wall into his premises, but his was the only instance in which he had made use of the road down to 1887, when the defendant erected the gate of which the plaintiff now complained.

The judge of the County Court held that the right to use the private road passed to the plaintiff by virtue of the words in his conveyance "ways heretofore held or enjoyed as part thereof, or appurtenant thereto." The Divisional Court affirmed the decision, Cave, J., agreeing with the County Court judge, A. L. Smith, J., differing, and holding that the general words would not carry a right of way which was not in fact existent at the date of the conveyance, and had ceased to exist twenty years before. The defendant appealed.

W. Graham, for the appellant.

Aspland, Q.C., for the plaintiff.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry, and Lopes, L.J.J.) allowed the appeal.

LORD ESHER, M.R., said that in construing the words of the grant the condition of things at the time when it was made must be looked at. The words in question were ordinary general words, usually (though not always) inserted in a conveyance, even when there was nothing to which they could apply. In 1872 the grant of the right to use the private road would have been of no benefit to the plaintiff's premises, unless the physical condition of things had been altered by pulling down the wall or making an opening in it. This was sufficient to countervail the prima facie meaning of the words "heretofore enjoyed." The judgment of Cave, J., must be reversed and that of A. L. Smith, J., upheld.

Fry, and Lopes, L.J.J., concurred.

Lunacy. Dec. 10.
In re M. A. BOLTON, A PERSON OF UNSOUND MIND.

Lunatic—Tenant in common in tail—Partition Action—Trustee Act, 1850 (13 & 14 Vict. c. 60), ss. 3, 20, 30, 37.

In pursuance of an order made on the 25th of June in an action for sale in lieu of partition of lands, to one undivided part whereof a lunatic defendant was entitled as tenant in tail in possession, the lands were put up for sale by auction in seven lots. Two of the lots were sold at the auction, and two other lots were afterwards sold by private contract. The remaining three were still unsold, and it was intended again to put them up for sale at an early opportunity. In order to enable this intention to be carried out, a petition was presented by the committee of the lunatic's estate asking for a declaration that the lunatic was and would be trustee of one fourth part of such parts of the lands directed to be sold as had been or should be sold for the purchasers thereof within the meaning of the Trustee Act, 1850, and that the petitioner might be appointed to convey all the estate in such parts of the lands as had been or should be sold under the order of the Court which the lunatic could convey if sane to the purchasers or their nominees. This petition was entitled in Lunacy and Chancery.

Byrne, Q.C., and Ryland:—The Court has power under the Trustee Act, 1850, ss. 20 and 30, to make the order as to all the lands directed to be sold, whether actually sold or not.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley and Bowen, L.J.J.) considered that it would be a dangerous precedent to make the order as asked for, but made it as to the lands already sold, directing the rest of the petition to stand over, and observing that it ought to be presented by the next friend of the lunatic as well as by the committee but that it would suffice if the committee were made next friend.

MANCHESTER AND LIVERPOOL DISTRICT BANKING COMPANY v. PARKINSON.

Practice—Execution—Appointment of Receiver—Equitable Execution—Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8.

Appeal from order of Queen's Bench Division, setting aside two orders made by judges at chambers.

The facts were as follows: a judgment having been obtained in an action, the judgment debtor died, leaving a will by which she appointed an executor. The judgment debtor was at the time of her death possessed of certain chattels, and was carrying on a business. The will not having yet been proved, and the judgment remaining unsatisfied, the judgment creditors applied at chambers for, and obtained an order appointing a receiver of the chattels and business, and directing the receiver to get in the debts due to the business, and apply the proceeds of such debts in satisfaction of the judgment: and a further order was subsequently obtained at chambers, authorizing the receiver to sell the chattels.

On appeal to the Queen's Bench Division by the executor, who had then proved the will, both the orders were set aside.

Cozens-Hardy, Q.C., and Smyly, for the judgment creditors, the appellants.

Byrne, Q.C., and A. Powell, for the executor.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., and Fry and Lopes, L.J.J.) held, that in the absence of any legal impediment to obtaining execution of the judgment in the ordinary course of law by feri facias, or attachment of debts, and of any special circumstances shewing it to be just or convenient that an appointment of a receiver should be made, the orders were wrongly made, and ought to be rescinded. They therefore dismissed the appeal.

Appeal dismissed.

Case stated on appeal from an order of Quarter Sessions for Westmoreland, confirming an order of justices refusing to renew the licence of an innkeeper. The grounds of refusal were, "Remoteness from police supervision and the character and necessities of the neighbourhood," in which the inn was situated.

BADCOCK AND ANOTHER v. HUNT.

Landlord and Tenant—Covenant by Lessor to pay Rates, Taxes, and Impositions—Water-rate.

Appeal from the judgment of the Queen's Bench Division affirming the judgment of the judge of the City of London Court.

The facts were as follows:—By a covenant contained in a lease of premises in the city of London the lessor covenanted to pay all rates, taxes and impositions whatsoever, whether parliamentary, parochial, or imposed by the corporation of the city of London, or otherwise howsoever, which then were and thereafter might be rated, charged or assessed on the said premises or any part thereof, or on the said yearly rent or on the landlord, owner, or tenant of the said premises in respect thereof. Water having been supplied to the demised premises after the lease by the New River Company, under the provisions of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, the lessees paid the water-rates due in respect of such supply, and brought their action against the lessor to recover the amount so paid upon the covenant. The judge of the City of London Court gave judgment for the plaintiffs on the authority of Direct Spanish Telegraph Company v. Shepherd (13 Q. B. D. 202).

Finlay, Q.C., and C. E. Jones for the defendant.

Winch, Q.C., and W. E. Hume Williams, for the plaintiffs.

THE COURT (Lord Esher, M.R., Fry, and Lopes, L.JJ.) thought that the terms of the covenant differed from those of the covenant in the Direct Spanish Telegraph Company v. Shepherd, and therefore it was unnecessary to decide whether that case was rightly or wrongly decided. They were of opinion that the water-rate, being a charge voluntarily incurred by the consumer, was not a rate or imposition within the meaning of the covenant, and therefore that the action could not be maintained, and the appeal must be allowed.

Appeal allowed.

Solicitor and Client—Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881—General Order—Scale Charge—Sale of Land in Ireland—Lord Ashbourne's Act, The Purchase of Land (Ireland) Act, 1885.

A client, through his English solicitor, sold land in Ireland under Lord Ashbourne's Act, "The Purchase of Land (Ireland) Act, 1885." The English solicitor employed an Irish solicitor in order to do such work connected with the sale as could only be done in Ireland.

The English solicitor made out and delivered a detailed bill of costs to his client. On taxation of the bill the client objected that the England solicitor was only entitled to the scale charge allowed by Sched. I, Part 1, to the General Order under the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, but the taxing master overruled the objection. The client then took out this summons to review the taxation.

CHARLES v. BURKE.

Dec. 12

Settlement—General Power of Appointment—Power of Revocation—Will—General Bequest, Effect of—Wills Act (1 Vict. c. 26), s. 27.

H. R. Phillips, by his will, dated 12th June, 1879, after appointing trustees and executors, and making certain pecuniary bequests and devises of real estate, bequeathed to them all his personal estate upon certain trusts. The testator made three codicils, but none of them affected the general bequest in the will.

By an indenture of settlement, dated 8th January, 1880, between the dates of the will and first codicil, after reciting that the said H. R. Phillips was desirous of making a provision for the plaintiff, a natural daughter, it was declared that a fund should be held by the trustees upon trust that they should deal with the same in such manner as H. R. Phillips, the settlor, should, by any writing or writings, revocable or irrevocable, "but not by his last will and testament, or any codicil thereto, unless he should expressly refer to the said trust fund and premises, order and direct, by which writing or writings the trusts of the said indenture might be absolutely revoked, annulled, altered, varied or otherwise dealt with at the free will and pleasure of the said H. R. Phillips": and, subject to the said trust, should pay the income to the said H. R. Phillips during his life, and after his decease should stand possessed of the trust premises upon certain trusts in favour of the plaintiff and her children, if any, and in case of her dying without children, in trust for the said H. R. Phillips absolutely.

H. R. Phillips died on the 10th September, 1886.

The question raised by this summons, which was by the plaintiff, for whose provision the settlement had been executed, against the trustees of the settlement and the trustees and executors of the will, was whether the will operated as an exercise of the power reserved to H. R. Phillips by the settlement, the plaintiff claiming that it did not so operate.

Marten, Q.C., and Warrington, for the plaintiff.

Renshaw, Q.C., and Allen, for the defendants, the trustees and executors of the will, relied on In re Marsh (38 Ch. D. 630), and contended that the clause in the will above quoted was an attempt to repeal s. 27 of the Wills Act.

Millar, Q.C., and Bramwell Davis for the defendants, the trustees of the settlement.

KAY, J., held that the general bequest in the will did not operate as an exercise of the power. It was argued that it did not matter what restriction was put upon the power in the settlement—that if the objects of the power were unlimited, and the donee of the power made a general bequest by will in favour of any person whom he selected as the object of his bounty, the will operated as an exercise of the power. That point was open to very considerable argument, upon which he would say nothing, in consequence of the recent decision which had been referred to. In the present case there was a power of revocation. In Palmer v. Newell (20 Beav. 32) Lord Romilly held, following Pomfret v. Perring (5 D. M. & G. 775), that "although a will does, by virtue of the statute (Wills Act, s. 27), operate as a general exercise of all powers of appointment, yet it does not operate as an exercise of a power of revoking a previous instrument." That was a most reasonable restriction to be put upon the general provision in s. 27 of the Wills Act. That was the law by which he was bound, and to which he entirely assented. The power of revocation given by the settlement was an overriding power, and its meaning—which was as intelligible as if it had been introduced at the end of the settlement in the form of a proviso—was, "I declare that it shall be lawful for me to revoke the settlement hereinbefore made and to make a new settlement." So that this was a power of revocation and making a new appointment, and the Court was not bound to say that a general bequest exercised a power of that kind; the authorities were, in fact, the other way. Consequently there must be a declaration that the general bequest did not operate as an exercise of the power.

BRITON MEDICAL, ETC., LIFE ASSOCIATION v. BRITANNIA FIRE ASSOCIATION.

Practice—Particulars—Instigation to improper Act—Improper Motives—Adjournment into Court—Costs—Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Order XIX, rr. 6, 7.

The plaintiffs brought this action against the defendant association and the liquidator in their winding-up claiming a declaration that notwithstanding a certain order made in the winding-up the defendant association was liable to pay to the plaintiffs the sum of 34,591l. 0s. 8d. The plaintiffs' case was that the sum in question was the amount of a debt proved by them against the defendant association, and that the order in question was one made upon the application of the liquidator, by which the debt of the plaintiffs was improperly postponed to other debts, and made payable only out of the residue of the assets remaining after payment of such debts; that the directors of the plaintiff association were shareholders in the defendant association and "instigated and concurred in such application and order for the purpose of escaping from the liability to calls which as members of the defendant association they would be under if the said claim was enforced," and that the defendant, the liquidator, and the directors of the defendant association and their solicitors all knew that the directors of the plaintiff association were also shareholders of the defendant association, and "they also knew, or ought to have known, and must be taken to have known, the improper motives which actuated the said directors of the plaintiff association." The defendants took out a summons asking that the plaintiffs might be ordered to give particulars whether the application for the order was instigated by the board of the plaintiff association verbally or in writing or otherwise, and if verbally or otherwise, the words used and the means used or adopted by the board of the plaintiff association to instigate such application, stating in detail how such application was instigated; and also what were the improper motives which actuated the directors of the plaintiff association, and how and in what manner were such motives known to the defendant, the liquidator.

Renshaw, Q.C., and Beddall, for the defendants in support of the summons.

Marten, Q.C., and Chadwyck Hooley, for the plaintiffs.

KAY, J., referred to the decided cases upon the subject and said that he had to draw the line between requiring the plaintiffs to make a statement which would prevent the defendants being taken by surprise at the trial, and requiring them to make a statement of the evidence on which they intended to rely. He had great difficulty in drawing that line, and he could not find any case to guide him. The pleading in this case was designedly vague, and, though the summons went too far, he thought that the plaintiffs ought to state whether the instigation alleged to have been made was verbal or in writing, and if verbal by whom it was made, and if in writing the date of such writing, and should also give particulars of the improper motives which actuated the board of directors of the plaintiff association. His Lordship said that applications of this kind ought in general to be dealt with in chambers at the least possible expense and not adjourned into Court, and he directed that only such costs as would have been incurred if the application had been disposed of in chambers should be costs in the action.

A winding-up petition had been presented and advertised, and a winding-up order made thereon, under the title of "The Newcastle Machinists Company, Limited," but it was subsequently discovered that the proper registered title of the company was "The Newcastle-upon-Tyne Machinists Company, Limited," though the company appeared to be generally known under the shorter title.

Married Woman—Chose in Action—Title of Husband—Probate of Will of Married Woman having no Testamentary Capacity—Action by Husband in Chancery Division—Jurisdiction—Probate Rules, 1887—Judicature Act, 1873, s. 34.

The plaintiff's wife, who was married before the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, and was entitled to chooses in action, but had no separate property and no testamentary capacity by assent of the plaintiff or otherwise, made a will whereby she appointed executors, and purported to leave her property upon trust for her mother, brothers and sisters. After the death of his wife the plaintiff entered a caveat against the proof of the will, but afterwards withdrew the same, and probate of the will was granted to the defendant, one of the executors, according to the practice introduced by the Probate Rules of March, 1887, rr. 15 and 18 (see 39 Ch. D. at p. 627) i.e. in the ordinary form without any exception or limitation. The plaintiff brought this action claiming the chooses in action on the ground that his late wife had no power to make a will.

Murten, Q.C., and Nalder, for the plaintiff.

Eustace Smith, for the defendant.

Dec. 15. KAY, J., said that the proper course for the plaintiff was to take proceedings to recall the probate, and to obtain administration to his deceased wife, and his Lordship had the authority of Mr. Justice Butt for saying that the withdrawal of the caveat would be no bar to his doing this. The plaintiff seemed to have completely mistaken his remedy. Suing the executor in this Court he must treat the will as valid, in which case he had no title. This Court could not recall the probate and grant him administration to his wife. It was only by applying to the Probate Division that he could establish his right to his late wife's chooses in action. The action must be dismissed with costs.

Maintenance—ChamPERTY—Bankrupt's Right of Action—Assignment by Trustee in Bankruptcy—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 57 (subs. 8) and s. 168.

The plaintiffs, a trading firm, claiming to have accounts between them and the defendants, their brokers, re-opened on the charge of fraud, became bankrupt pending the action, and their right of action was assigned by the trustee in bankruptcy, with the approval of the committee of inspection, to one Ford, upon the terms that he should continue the action at his own risk and expense, and that a fourth of whatever should be recovered by Ford in the action should be paid to the trustee in bankruptcy, and the remaining three fourths be retained by Ford.

The evidence shewed that Ford was himself a creditor in the bankruptcy and was acting as trustee for himself and other creditors, including the plaintiffs' solicitors on the record, and it appeared that the plaintiffs' solicitors were acting for Ford in the continuation of the action.

Romer, Q.C., and Ingle Joyce, for the defendants, submitted that the assignment was champertous and void.

Maidlow, and L. E. Pyke, for Ford.

CHITTY, J., held that after the decision in Seear v. Lawson (15 Ch. D. 426) the assignment could not be impeached merely on the ground of maintenance, and that any objections on that ground were removed by the Bankruptcy Acts. Moreover, that the parties as creditors had an actual interest sufficient to justify maintenance; and, further, that that being so the transaction could not be attacked as champertous simply because the parties had agreed to divide the subject matter of the litigation amongst themselves in a manner not in accordance with their actual title. The circumstance that the solicitors of the plaintiff were retained by Ford was disposed of by the fact that the solicitors were themselves creditors. There was also no obligation on the part of Ford to employ them.

DENNIS v. CRAWSHAY.

Administration Action—Scheme for Sale of Property of Testator to Limited Company in consideration of Debentures and Shares—Sanction of Court—Jurisdiction.

This was an action for the administration of the estate of a testator, who was a partner in large collieries and ironworks. By his will he bequeathed a number of pecuniary legacies, some of which were settled on trusts for his daughters and their husbands and children. The will of the testator did not authorize the investment of any property bequeathed by him on trust in shares or debentures of a limited company. It was admitted that, after the payment of incumbrances, the estate would not be sufficient to pay the legacies in full. It was alleged that the partnership property, if sold at the present time, would be sold at a great loss. Agreements had been entered into, conditional upon the sanction of the Court being obtained, for the sale of the partnership property to a limited company, which was to be formed for the purpose, for a sum which was to be paid by means of debentures and shares of the company, which were to be apportioned among the persons entitled to the pecuniary legacies or their trustees. This was a petition by the plaintiff asking for the sanction of the Court to the agreements.

North, J. MARTIN v. EARL BEAUCHAMP. Dec. 18.

Statute of Limitations—Action against Administrator—Date from which Time begins to run—23 & 24 Vict. c. 38, s. 13.

Summons by the defendants to strike out the statement of claim as disclosing no reasonable cause of action, and to dismiss the action as being frivolous and vexatious.

The plaintiff was the administrator de bonis non (with the will annexed) of Wm. Jennens, who died in 1798, having made a will, but not having appointed any executor and not having disposed of his personal estate. The grant of administration was made to the plaintiff in 1862. The two defendants were alleged to be the personal representatives of two former administrators, and the writ claimed an account of the personal estate of the testator come to the hands of those administrators respectively, and of their administration of it, and payment and transfer to the plaintiff of what should be found to have been left unadministered by them. William, first Earl Beauchamp, and Mary, Countess of Andover, were in 1798 appointed administrators (with the will annexed) of Jennens. William Earl Beauchamp died in 1816, and in 1817, Lady Andover being dead, administration de bonis non of Jennens (with the will annexed) was granted to Catherine Countess Beauchamp, the executrix of William Earl Beauchamp. She died in 1844. No further grant of administration to Jennens was made until the grant to the plaintiff. The plaintiff alleged that the defendants were the personal representatives of William Earl Beauchamp, and Catherine Countess Beauchamp.

O. Leigh Clare, for Earl Beauchamp, the first defendant; and Hornell, for Mrs. Scott, the other defendant; relied on s. 13 of 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38.

H. Courthope-Munroe, for the plaintiff, contended that the twenty years, limited by sect. 13 for the bringing of an action against an administrator, did not begin to run until the grant was made to the plaintiff.

NORTH, J., dismissed the action, with costs, on the ground that it was frivolous and vexatious. As regarded William Earl Beauchamp the time began to run from the date of the grant of administration to Catherine Countess Beauchamp, who might have brought an action against the representatives of William Earl Beauchamp. As regarded Catherine Countess Beauchamp, the proper representative of her estate was not made a defendant.

Company—Reduction of Capital—Confirmation by Court—Preference and Ordinary Shares—Lost Capital—Resolution for Reduction of Ordinary Shares alone—Discretion of Court—Companies Act, 1867, ss. 9, 11—Companies Act, 1877, s. 3.

Petition for the confirmation by the Court of a special resolution for the reduction of the capital of the company. The capital consisted of 100,000 shares of 10*l.* each, of which 80,659 had been issued and paid up in full, and 100,000 preference shares of 1*l.* each, of which 87,518 had been issued and paid up in full. The preference shares were entitled to a preferential dividend of 10 per cent., which, if the profits of any year were insufficient to pay it, was to be made good out of the profits of subsequent years. But the preference shares were not entitled to any preference in respect of capital. The company had lost paid-up capital to the extent of 80,659*l.*, and the special resolution provided that this loss should be written off by reducing the ordinary shares by the sum of 1*l.* each, but that no reduction should be made in the preference shares. The special resolution had been carried by the unanimous vote of the shareholders who were present in person or by proxy at the first and second meetings. At the first meeting about one-third in value of the shareholders were present in person or by proxy, and at the second meeting about one-fourth. The notices convening the meetings had stated exactly the resolution which it was intended to propose, but they did not expressly call the attention of the shareholders to the fact that the result would be to throw the loss of capital exclusively on the ordinary shareholders. No ordinary shareholder had expressed any dissent, and, though the petition had been advertised, no shareholder appeared on the present occasion.

Napier Higgins, Q.C., and Stroud, for the company.

NORTH, J., thought that the proposed reduction would not be fair as between the two classes of shareholders. According to the constitution of the company the preference shareholders were not entitled to any preference in respect of capital, and consequently any loss of capital would have to be borne by all the shareholders rateably. The notices convening the meetings did not sufficiently call the attention of the shareholders to the fact that the proposed resolution would alter the constitution of the company in this respect, and throw the loss of capital exclusively on the ordinary shareholders. Under these circumstances the ordinary shareholders who were not present at the meetings, could not be treated as having assented to this alteration, and it would not be fair or equitable to confirm the resolution. He would not, however, dismiss the petition, but would order it to stand over generally, with liberty to amend.

In re APPLICATION, No. 71,961, BY THE CALIFORNIAN FIG SYRUP COMPANY.

Convention with Foreign States under the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883—Application by Foreigners for Registration of Trade-mark refused, not being within the Time allowed.

This was an application under sect. 103 of the Patents, &c., Act of 1883, made by the Californian Fig Syrup Company of Reno, &c., in the United States of America, for an order directing the Comptroller-General of Patents, Designs, and Trade-Marks to proceed with the registration of the words "Syrup of Figs" as a trade-mark.

Sub-sect. 1 of sect. 103, enacted that "if Her Majesty is pleased to make any arrangement with the Government or Governments of any foreign State or States for mutual protection of inventions, designs, and trade-marks, or any of them, then any person who has applied for protection for any invention, design, or trade-mark in any such State shall be entitled to a patent for his invention or to registration of his design or trade-mark (as the case may be) under this Act, in priority to other applicants; and such patent or registration shall have the same date as the date of the protection obtained in such foreign State. Provided that this application is made . . . in the case of a design or a trade-mark within four months from his applying for protection in the foreign State with which the arrangement is in force," and Sub-sect. 3 provided that "the application for the . . . registration of a trade-mark under this section must be made in the same manner as an ordinary application under this Act. Provided that in the case of trade-marks, any trade-mark the registration of which has been duly applied for in the country of origin may be registered under this Act."

On the 20th of March, 1883, an international convention for the protection of industrial property was signed at Paris by France, Italy, Spain, Belgium, and other foreign States. By article VI. of that convention it was provided that "every trade-mark duly registered in the country of origin shall be admitted for registration, and protected in the form originally registered in all the other countries of the union." England was not at first a party to that convention, but on 17th of March, 1884, it was acceded to by Her Majesty's Government, and on 30th of July, 1887, by the Government of the United States. In the London

Gazette of the 15th of July, 1887, an Order in Council was published, dated the 12th of July, 1887, whereby it was declared that the provision of the Patents, &c., Act, 1883, should apply to the United States of America. In 1879, the company adopted the trade-mark in question, and on the 14th of February, 1885, they applied for and on the 14th of April, obtained registration of the mark in the United States. On the 23rd of January, 1888, they applied to the Comptroller-General of Patents, Designs, and Trade-marks to register "Syrup of Figs" as a trade-mark of this country, and gave notice that their application was under sect. 103, sub-sect. 3, of the Patents, &c., Act, 1883. The application was refused on the ground that the application to register in this country was not made within four months of the application to register in the United States as required by the section. The company appealed to the Board of Trade, who referred the appeal to the Court.

Hastings, Q.C., and John Cutler, for the Company.

Sir R. Webster, A.G., and Ingle Joyce, opposed the application.

STIRLING, J., said that this was an application by citizens of the United States for the registration of a trade-mark under sect. 103 of the Patents, &c., Act of 1883, which he now had to construe. The first part of sect. 103, sub-s. 1, was plain enough. At the time of the passing of the Act in August, 1883, there was no convention or arrangement with any foreign State for the mutual protection of inventions, designs, and trade-marks. No doubt in March, 1883, a convention had been entered into between certain foreign States, which contemplated that other States might accede to it, but at that time the Crown had not acceded to it, nor to any other convention, so that the proviso was entirely hypothetical. He could not say that he had any doubt as to the meaning of the section, viz., that it was essential that the application should be made within four months from the time of the application in the foreign State. As to sub-sect. 3, he had no doubt that the words "the application for the registration of a trade-mark under this section" referred to what was mentioned in the first part of the section. Then came the proviso which gave rise to doubt. That was simply a qualification of the previous part of the sub-section, and that having provided that the application must be made in the ordinary manner as under the Act the proviso went on to relieve foreigners from certain liabilities. He was not going further than was necessary for the decision of this particular case, neither was he going to say how far the proviso extended, nor what liabilities it emancipated foreigners from. The proviso was simply a qualification of the previous parts of the clause, and gave no new or independent right of registration under the act. That being so, as the company had not made their application within the four months, and the Crown, by the Attorney-General, insisting on the objection, the application failed. The convention did apparently provide (Art. 6), that every trade-mark duly registered in the country of origin should be admitted for registration in the other countries of the Union. Certainly, on his construction of the Act it did not afford means of carrying out the article, and Her Majesty's Government would probably consider what steps ought to be taken in order to carry it out.

Bequest of Residue to Legatee who witnessed Testator's Signature to the Will—Two other Witnesses of Signature—Wills Act, 1837, s. 15—Adjournment of Summons to enable Legatee to apply to the Probate Court to have her Name omitted from the Probate.

Adjourned summons.

Thomas Jones, the sole next of kin of the testator, took out an originating summons, making Jabez Pursey, Thomas Jackson, and Ann Kilpin, defendants.

The testator by his will, which was made on a printed form, gave the residue of his personal estate to Ann Kilpin, and appointed the other two defendants his executors. At the foot of the will was the attestation clause thus:—

“Signed by the above-named ——— as his last will in the presence of us both (that word was in the original in print) being present at the same time who in his presence and in the presence of each other have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses. Jabez Pursey, Thomas Jackson, Ann Kilpin.”

On the probate of the will, which had been granted to the defendants Jabez Pursey and Thomas Jackson, the names of all three defendants appeared as witnesses.

Hastings, Q. C., and Joseph Tanner, for the plaintiff, submitted that Ann Kilpin was by virtue of sect. 15 of the Wills Act, 1837 (1 Vict. c. 26), debarred from taking the personal estate bequeathed to her; and that if she did not attest the will as witness her proper course would have been to have applied to the Probate Division to have her name omitted from the probate. They referred to Wigan v. Rowland (11 Hare, 157), Cozens v. Crout (21 W. R. 710,) and 1 Jarman on Wills, 4th Ed., p. 74 (n.)

Swinfen Eady, for the defendants, proposed to adduce evidence of the circumstances under which Ann Kilpin attested the will, and to shew that she was not present when the will was signed by the testator, and referred to the case of In the Goods of Sharman (Law Rep. 1 P. & D. 661.)

STIRLING, J., held that the probate was conclusive against Ann Kilpin, and that he could not go into evidence of the circumstances under which she attested the will; he would, however, allow the summons to stand over to enable her to take such steps as she might be advised for the purpose of having her name removed from the probate, upon her undertaking to abide by any order he might make as to the costs.

Will—Construction—“Rents, dividends, and annual proceeds,” direction to pay Debts out of—Income—Corpus—General Legacy—Specific Legacy.

By will dated in 1861 a testator (who died in 1879) bequeathed to his wife all the cash in his house at the time of his decease, and directed in case such money should be insufficient for the payment of his debts, funeral, and testamentary expenses, that the deficiency should be paid out of the rents, dividends, and annual proceeds of all his estate due at the time of his decease, and afterwards to become due; and he bequeathed a leasehold public-house called the “Duke of Wellington” to his wife for life, with remainder to his elder daughter. He also bequeathed to his executrix and executor a leasehold public-house, called the “Princess Alice,” upon trust for sale, and out of the proceeds of such sale, and the rents and profits until sale, he bequeathed a sum of 100*l.* to E. D.; and as to the residue of such proceeds, and rents, and profits, and all other the residue of his real and personal estate, he devised and bequeathed the same to his daughters equally. He appointed his wife and J. P. executrix and executor of his will.

By codicil dated in 1876, the testator bequeathed certain shares to his wife for her life, and, after her decease, as therein mentioned.

The will and codicil were proved by the wife alone, and the testator's debts were paid by her out of the cash in the house and the proceeds of the sale of the “Princess Alice,” and she retained for her own use the whole of the income arising from the “Duke of Wellington” and the shares bequeathed by the codicil.

The testator's estate was being administered by the Court in an action brought by the legal personal representative of one of the residuary legatees under the will against the widow, and a summons to vary the Chief Clerk's certificate was taken out by the plaintiff, whereby he sought to charge the defendant with a sum of 67*l.*, as income received by her for her own use, which ought to have been applied towards payment of the debts of the testator. The plaintiff contended that the debts were charged by the will upon the income only, and that the person entitled to the life interest was bound to recoup the corpus; and further, that the bequest of the residue of the proceeds of the “Princess Alice” was specific, and that the debts ought not to have been paid out of such proceeds.

Hastings, Q. C., and Brodie Cooper, for the plaintiff.

W. Pearson, Q. C., and Vernon R. Smith, for the defendants.

STIRLING, J., held, first, that the words “rents, dividends and annual proceeds” were equivalent to annual rents, dividends and proceeds, and did not create a charge upon the corpus; secondly, on the principle of Tewart v. Lawson (Law Rep. 18 Eq. 490), that as the debts had in fact been paid out of corpus, the will contained nothing which rendered it obligatory on the defendant to recoup the corpus out of her income; thirdly, that the gift of the residue of the proceeds of the sale of the “Princess Alice” was not specific.

BRIDGER v. DEANE.

Dec. 5.

Settlement of Policy of Assurance—Fraud on Power of Appointment—Restitution—Measure of Liability.

By deed dated the 20th of March, 1834, J. B. Deane settled a policy of assurance in the Equitable Assurance office on his own life for £2000 and all bonuses payable thereunder, and certain other moneys, upon trust, after his decease, for his children the plaintiff Augusta Bridger, H. A. Deane, and the plaintiff Sophia Deane, in such shares and proportions as he should by deed or will appoint, and, in default of appointment, or his said three children in equal shares.

In 1852, J. B. Deane, under an arrangement with his daughter, the plaintiff Augusta Bridger, by deed appointed to her the policy of assurance and all bonuses payable thereunder, and she thereupon surrendered the policy to the Equitable Assurance office for 897*l.* and handed over the amount to him and he thereout paid her 150*l.* and retained the balance for himself.

J. B. Deane died in July, 1887, and the value of the policy, if it had been kept up, and the bonuses payable thereunder, would have been 5470*l.*

This action was commenced in November, 1887, by Augusta Bridger, and Sophia Deane, against Louisa Deane, the widow and administratrix of J. B. Deane, and Alice Deane, the widow and administratrix of H. A. Deane, alleging that the above appointment and certain other transactions, detailed in the statement of claim, were one entire family arrangement and were valid; but if not, then claiming that the appointment was a fraud on the power and that the estate of J. B. Deane might make good to the trust estate the loss that had been sustained.

THE COURT held that the appointment of 1852 was a fraud on the power, and the question of the measure of liability of the estate of J. B. Deane was then argued.

Warmington, Q.C., and Simmonds, for the plaintiffs, contended that J. B. Deane's estate was liable to pay what the trust estate would have received if the policy had been kept on foot, viz., 5470*l.*

Barber, Q.C., and P. B. Abraham, for the defendant Alice Deane, supported this view.

Neville, Q.C., and W. D. Rawlins, for the defendant Louisa Deane, argued that as J. B. Deane was not a trustee of the settlement, his estate was only liable to repay what he had received, viz., the 897*l.* with interest at 4*l.* per cent. per annum.

KEKEWICH, J., said the question was what did J. B. Deane receive? The substance of the transaction between him and the plaintiff, Augusta Bridger, was that he received the policy, i.e., the engagement of the Assurance Society to pay at his death the sum of 2000*l.* with all bonuses and additions. That was what he received and what he got rid of, and his estate must now restore to the trust the sum that would have been received at his death if the policy had remained in existence. There would be a declaration to that effect, and the fund would be distributable as in default of appointment.

Master and Servant—Negligence—Employers' Liability Act, 1880 (43 & 44 Vict. c. 42), s. 1, sub-s. 2.

Appeal from the County Court.

Action under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880 (43 & 44 Vict. c. 42), for negligence.

The plaintiff and Dean were employed by the defendant to work at one of several calico printing machines in a factory. Dean was the printer, and the plaintiff was the "back tenter." The plaintiff said in evidence that he was "bound to conform" to the orders of Dean, and that it was the duty of Dean to start the machine with steam-power lever, to keep the pattern in fit with his hands, to clean the machine before starting the machine, and to see that the plaintiff did his work, which was to clean the machine and keep the pattern straight upon it. On the 9th of March, Dean directed the plaintiff to clean the blanket which went over a cylinder of the machine, and in doing so he put a cloth between the cylinder and the roller with his hands. Dean started the machine without warning, and at too great speed, and the plaintiff's finger was cut off in the machine. The County Court Judge asked the jury whether Dean had started the machine through neglect of his duty, without first giving the usual signal, and they found a verdict for the plaintiff for 140*l.*

Wheeler, Q.C., for the defendants, contended that the plaintiff was from the negligence of a fellow workman and not from the plaintiff having conformed to the orders of a person to whom orders he was bound to conform within s. 1, sub-s. (3).

Tatlock, for the plaintiff, argued that sub-s. 3 applied.

THE COURT (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Manisty, J.) gave their opinion that sub-s. 3 implies that the person giving the orders must be a person in a condition of superiority and not merely a fellow workman, who, being engaged in a joint operation with another, communicates with him when particular acts are to be done; and that, even if the orders given were within sub-s. 3, the conforming to the orders was not the efficient cause of the injury, and there was no evidence of negligence for which the defendants were liable.

Warrington, Q.C., Swinfen Eady, and Shearman, for the freemen.

P. H. Lawrence, for the corporation.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.J.J.) were of opinion that, according to the principles laid down by Lord Cairns in Goodman v. Mayor of Saltash (7 App. Cas. 633, 650), a trust for the freemen of a particular corporation was a charitable trust, and that a scheme ought to be directed on the summons. The order dismissing the summons was therefore discharged.

Dec 20. Warmington, Q.C. (Swinfen Eady, and Shearman with him), for the plaintiffs, moved that the order might be confined to the question of jurisdiction by declaring that the Court had jurisdiction on the summons to determine whether the trust was charitable, and that the summons might be remitted to the judge, or that the appeal might be set down again to be argued on the merits.

Sir R. E. Webster, A.G. (Ingle Joyce with him) for the Attorney-General, did not oppose further argument, as the question whether the trust for the freemen was necessarily charitable had not been argued.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley and Bowen, L.J.J.), held that the Court had jurisdiction on the summons to determine whether there was a charitable trust or not, and directed the appeal to be set down again before them to be argued on the question whether the trust was charitable.

BATES v. BATES.

Dec. 20.

Arrest—Contempt of Court—Divorce Court—Default by Husband in providing for Wife's Costs—Debtors Act, 1869, s. 4.

This was an appeal from an order of Butt, J., directing a writ of attachment to issue against A. J. P. Bates for contempt of Court.

An action was brought by Emma Bates, the wife of the appellant, in the Divorce Court for judicial separation, on the ground of cruelty. On the 14th of August, 1888, Sir J. Hannen made an order that the appellant should within seven days pay to the solicitor of the petitioner 41*l.*, the amount of the petitioner's costs as taxed, and should within the same time pay into Court 40*l.*, estimated by the registrar as sufficient to secure the costs and expenses of the petitioner of and incidental to the hearing of the cause, or give a bond with two sufficient sureties for 80*l.* to pay those costs, not exceeding 40*l.* The appellant having made default, Butt, J., made an order for the issue of an attachment against him for contempt of Court in not paying into Court 40*l.* or giving a bond as required by the order.

Pritchard, for the appellant, relied on the 4th section of the Debtors Act, 1869, which abolishes imprisonment in default in payment of a sum of money.

Mears (C. A. Middleton with him), for the petitioner, admitted that the attachment could not be supported so far as related to the taxed costs, but contended that the obligation to pay money into Court or to give a bond was not within the section in the Debtors Act. The express point had been decided in Lynch v. Lynch (10 P. D. 183).

Cotton, L.J., said that the default in obedience to the order to pay money into Court or give a bond was not within the 4th section of the Debtors Act. It was not default in paying a sum of money within the meaning of the Act. The Act referred to payment of debts, and was intended to prevent persons from being imprisoned for non-payment of debts. The order must be varied by omitting the reference to the taxed costs; but subject to that variation the appeal must be dismissed.

From Ch. Div. FARRAR v. FARRARS, LIMITED.

Dec. 21.

Mortgages—Power of Sale—Sale by Mortgagee to Company of which he is a Member.

J. R. Farrar, a solicitor, was one of three mortgagees of a mining property with power of sale. The mortgagees under their power sold the property to a company of which J. R. Farrar was to some extent a promoter, in which he had a substantial interest as shareholder, and whose solicitor he was. The mortgagees sued to impeach the sale, and Chitty, J., dismissed this action. From this judgment they appealed.

Romer, Q.C., Gainsford Bruce, Q.C., and Ingle Joyce, for the appeal.

Rigby, Q.C., and Farwell, for the respondents.

THE COURT (Cotton, Lindley, and Bowen, L.J.J.), held that a sale by a person to a corporation of which he is a member is not either in form or in substance a sale by a person to himself, and that a sale by a mortgagee to a corporation of which he was a member could not be impeached on that ground. Their Lordships, however, were of opinion that the peculiar position of Mr. Farrar caused such an apparent conflict between his interest and his duty as to throw on the company the onus of upholding the sale by shewing that the mortgagees had acted bona fide and taken reasonable precautions to obtain a proper price. This their Lordships considered to be shewn, and the appeal was dismissed.

In re SKEGNESS AND ST. LEONARDS TRAMWAY COMPANY.

Company—Winding-up—Charges of Parliamentary Agent.

This was an appeal from two orders of Chitty, J., disallowing the claim of Messrs. Hanly to be paid their charges as parliamentary agents in obtaining the Acts of Parliament under which the above mentioned company was incorporated.

The company was incorporated by an Act passed in 1883, for the purpose of constructing a tramway from Skegness to Bilsby, in Lincolnshire. By another Act passed in 1885, the construction of some new tramways was authorized. The company proved abortive, a very small number of shareholders having been obtained, and the necessary number of directors not having been completed. Ultimately in 1886 an order was made by the High Court for the winding-up of the company, and in 1887 an Act was passed for the entire abandonment of the undertaking. Mr. Spark, an engineer, was actively engaged in the promotion of the company, and he employed Messrs. Hanly as parliamentary agents in procuring the passing of the Act of 1883, and also of the Act of 1885, at which time the company was in existence. The Act of 1883 contained a clause (s. 72) which provided that "all costs, charges, and expenses of and incident to the preparing, applying for, obtaining and passing of this Act, or otherwise in relation thereto, shall be paid by the company." There was a similar clause in the Act of 1885. Messrs. Hanly claimed to prove in the winding-up of the company as creditors of the company in respect of a sum of 767*l.*, the amount of their costs in relation to the Act of 1883, and a sum of 785*l.*, the amount of their costs in relation to the Act of 1885. Mr. Justice Chitty rejected both the claims. Messrs. Hanly appealed.

Romer, Q.C., and W. Evans, for the appellants.

Byrne, Q.C., and L. E. Pyke, for the official liquidator.

W. M. Cannon, for two of the directors.

COTTON, L.J., said that it was contended by the appellants that having acted in the promotion of the company, and not being in a subordinate position, they were entitled to be paid for their services by the company, which had obtained the benefit of their services, but he was of opinion that the case was governed by Wyatt v. Metropolitan Board of Works (11 C. B. (N.S.) 744), and that the section in the Act of 1883 incorporating the company only applied to persons who were themselves promoters of the company, and not to the parliamentary or other agents whom they employed. It was admitted that the appellants were employed by Spark, and they could only look to him for payment. With respect to the costs incurred in obtaining the Act of 1885, he was of opinion that they stood in the same position; for although the company was then in existence, it existed only in name, and there was no board of directors capable of binding the company. The appellants therefore had no claim on the company for their costs. The appeal must be dismissed.

LINDLEY and BOWEN, L.J.J., gave judgment to the same effect.

In re JACKSON'S TRADE-MARK.

Dec. 17.

Trade-mark—Registration—"Fancy word not in common use"—Distinctive Word—Word intelligible only in Dialect of Indian Tribe—Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 57), ss. 64, 72, 73.

This was an application by an American firm that the registration of the word "ko ko ko," as a trade-mark in respect of cotton goods, might be proceeded with, notwithstanding the refusal of the Comptroller to register the same. The applicants had originally applied for the registration of the word, coupled with the device of an owl, but, on being informed that the Manchester Chamber of Commerce had found that that device was common in the trade and had recommended that registration of it should not be allowed, they had withdrawn that part of their application. It appeared that the word "ko ko ko" was used by the Chippeway Indians to denote a particular kind of owl, which was thus named from the sound of its nocturnal cry; that the language of these Indians was an unwritten one; that there was no trade with them in cotton goods; that their tribe was dying out, and that the word in question would be unintelligible to persons engaged in the trade in cotton goods. There was also evidence that the word "coco" had been commonly used, though not as a trade-mark, in connection with cotton goods sent to Spain and Spanish colonies, and apparently also to other parts of the world.

J. CUTLER, for the applicants, contended that, although neither the device of an owl nor the name of that bird in any recognised language could be registered, yet the word in question, which would not convey the idea of an owl to the mind of any inhabitant of any country with which a trade in cotton goods was carried on, was a "fancy word not in common use" within sect. 64, sub-s. 1 (c) of the Patents, &c., Act, 1883, and capable of registration.

Sir E. CLARKE, S.G. and Ingle Joyce, for the Comptroller, were not called upon.

KAY, J., said that, although it might be that at present the trade in cotton goods had not reached the Chippeway Indians, yet it might reach them at any time, and, if it did, and they had to choose between goods marked with the word "ko ko ko" and goods marked with the device of an owl, confusion might arise in their minds, and that word would not be distinctive. On the ground, therefore, of the signification of the word, and on the further ground of its similarity in sound to the word "coco," which had been used on cotton goods, the Comptroller was justified in refusing registration. His Lordship accordingly dismissed the application.

In re UNITED KINGDOM LAND AND BUILDING ASSOCIATION, LIMITED.

Winding-up—Official Liquidator—Employment of Solicitor—Taxation—Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881 (Gen. Order, Aug. 1882), r. 6.

The official liquidator of a company having appointed a solicitor to act for him in the winding-up, received notice from him, pursuant to r. 6 of the General Order of August, 1882, under the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, that he elected that his remuneration for work in connection with the sale or offering for sale of the property of the company, should be under Sched. II., and not by scale under Sched. I. of the Order. On taxation the taxing master, disregarding the notice, had taxed the bill as if Sched. I. applied.

Summons by the official liquidator to review the taxation dismissed, on the ground that it was the duty of the official liquidator, in order properly to protect the assets of the company, to have obtained the decision of the judge in chambers as to whether he ought in the circumstances to continue to employ a solicitor who required payment on the less economical footing.

Both A. and B. survived the testator, but were dead when the action to administer his estate was commenced:—

Held that parol evidence of a conversation, in which the testator told the witness that he had communicated his wish to benefit a charity to one of the legatees, was inadmissible; and accordingly that A. and B. took an absolute interest in the legacy free from any trust for charity, and that the legacy was payable to their executors in moieties.

Vendor and Purchaser—Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 78), s. 9—Jurisdiction—Misleading Particulars—Rescission of Contract—Return of Deposit—Notice—Contents of Lease.

This was a purchaser's summons under the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, for a declaration (1) that the vendors had not shewn a good title under a contract dated March 22, 1888, for the sale of No. 12, Charles Place, Plumstead; and (2) that the applicant was entitled to a return of the deposit paid on the purchase and the costs of investigating the title.

The property was bought at a sale by auction. On the cover of the particulars of sale it was described as "leasehold business premises"; and the conditions provided that the title should commence with the conveyance to the vendors, and that no earlier title should be required or investigated, and that no objection should be made in respect of any clause, matter, or thing contained in, or omitted from, the lease of the premises or other documents of title, and that should any misstatements or omissions have been made, or appear, in the particulars of sale, the same should not annul the contract, nor should any compensation be allowed by the vendors in respect thereof.

An abstract was duly delivered to the petitioner, but it made no mention of the covenants contained in the original lease under which the property was held. But, after delivery, the purchaser's solicitor upon attending the vendor's solicitor to inspect the documents of title, was shewn the lease, and he then discovered that it contained a restrictive covenant that the lessee, his executors, administrators, or assigns, was not to carry on or permit upon the demised premises any trade, business, or occupation, or to do any act to the annoyance, nuisance, or damage of the lessors or the tenants of the adjoining properties, and also that he was not to open the premises as a public-house or bearshop without the consent of the lessor.

The purchaser did not inspect the lease before the sale, and after he had inspected it, he claimed to avoid the sale, and receive back the deposit.

As a matter of fact, notwithstanding the covenant, the premises had, for some time previous to the sale, been used as a dairy.

Hastings, Q.C., and Farwell, for the purchaser.

W. Pearson, Q.C., and J. Cutler, for the vendor.

STIRLING, J., held that the covenant (whether it amounted to an absolute or qualified prohibition of trade) was seriously restrictive of the use of premises which might have been bought as business premises, and that the purchaser was entitled to a declaration that the title shewn was not such as he ought to be compelled to accept. Under the conditions, however, the purchaser was not entitled to a declaration that the vendors had not shewn a good title according to the contract; and under the circumstances he was not entitled to a return of the deposit. The judgment, however, was without prejudice to the purchaser's right to proceed for rescission according to the principle of Flight v. Booth (1 Bing. (N.C.) 379), and the vendor must pay the costs of the summons.

Dec. 18.

Practice—Default of Appearance—Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Order IX., r. 15, Order LXX., r. 1—Service of Writ, Indorsement of—Day of the Week omitted—Objection by Registrar.

This was a foreclosure action, to which there were three defendants, A. B., A. T. B., and A. B., neither of whom had appeared. The action proceeded in default of appearance in the usual way, and was heard as a short cause. The usual judgment was pronounced. When the order was about to be drawn up the registrar objected that the indorsement of service on the writ was defective, as it did not comply, as regarded two of the defendants, with Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Order IX., rule 15, which required that the day of the week on which service was effected should be stated as well as the day of the month. The indorsement was as follows: "This writ was served by me at Margate, in the county of Kent, on the defendants, Alfred Basset and Arthur Thomas Basset, on the 25th day of July, and on Albert Basset on Thursday, the 26th day of July, 1888. Indorsed the 26th day of July, 1888.—W. KING."

Sebastian mentioned the matter to the Court and referred to Rules of the Supreme Court, Order LXX, r. 1.

STIRLING, J., said that the order might be drawn up, notwithstanding the objection.

NOTE.—In December next there will be four Examinations, one in the Subject of the Lectures given by each Professor, open (subject as hereinafter mentioned) to all Students who have during the year 1888 attended the Lectures of any of the Professors, but no Student will be admitted to the Examination in the Subjects of the Lectures of any Professor unless he shall have attended at least two-thirds of the Lectures given during the year by such Professor. No Student will be admitted to more than two Examinations; and no Student who shall have obtained a Studentship will be admitted to any such Examination.

After the Examinations the following Prizes will, on the recommendation of the Committee, be given (that is to say):—

To the Students who shall have passed the best Examination in the Subjects of the Lectures of each Professor,

First Prize, 50*l.*; Second Prize, 25*l.*; Third Prize, 15*l.*; Fourth Prize, 10*l.*

And a First and Second Prize of 70*l.* and 30*l.* respectively to the Students who obtain the greatest aggregate number of Marks in the Examination in the Subjects of the Lectures given by any two of the Professors.

No Student will be entitled to more than one Prize, but a Student will receive the Prize of the highest value to which he shall appear to be entitled.

The Committee will not be obliged to recommend any of the above Prizes to be awarded, if the result of the Examination be such as, in their opinion, will not justify such recommendation.

Any further information required by Students may be obtained on application to the CLERK OF THE COUNCIL, Lincoln's Inn Hall.

By Order of the Council,

(Signed)

S. H. WALPOLE,

THE ROYAL PHRASEOLOGICAL FRENCH-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-FRENCH DICTIONARY

By J. C. TARVER, LATE FRENCH MASTER, ETON COLLEGE.

"Most readily do we acknowledge the flood of light which has been thrown on French phrases by M. Tarver. . . . His work is really a valuable addition to our Dictionary shelf—the most important shelf in every man's library. The nice skill with which he has compared and contrasted the phrases of the two most influential of modern tongues can hardly be over-praised. Such a book might well deserve a distinct notice; but we are happy to take this opportunity, meantime, of saying that one of the volumes has now been in constant use with us for five years; and we should be at a loss to name another recent one of its class which we have found more useful. The idea was happy, and the execution has been most laudably careful. We have been infinitely obliged to it in reading the lighter French literature of this day—so full of vocables fresh from the market camp or gustanquette, and lively audacious turns of phrase, such as 'un homme d'un air de quarante'—which would have puzzled Voltaire as much as Johnson."—Quarterly Review.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION.

MIDDLESEX.—HILARY SITTINGS, 1888.

N.B.—This List contains all Actions entered in the Queen's Bench Division, and also all Actions in the Chancery Division, in which Notice has been given of Trial before a Judge and Jury, up to and including 11th January, 1888.

The Actions which have been entered but for various reasons are at present not ready for Trial are omitted from this List. Such of them as become ready during the present Sitting will be inserted as nearly as possible in their original positions.

When Actions are settled out of Court the Solicitors concerned are particularly requested to withdraw the Pleadings, as great expense and uncertainty are occasioned to the Suitors in other Causes, by the maintenance in the List of Actions not intended for Trial.
