YALE.

CLASS OF 1849.

The Class of 1849 met, for the first time after graduation, on the College grounds, at 6 1-2 o'clock, P. M., August 16th, 1849, immediately upon the closing of the Commencement exercises. Morris was called to preside, and, after the unanimous election of Timothy Dwight as Class Secretary, and a resolution to meet in this city three years from that time, at the Commencement season, in the year 1852, the meeting adjourned with parting cheers for the Class, and the giving each to each of the parting word.

On the 15th of August, 1850, forty-seven of the graduated members of the Class being in town, it was thought desirable that they should assemble together, and accordingly, at 10 o'clock, A. M., of that day, thirty-seven met in the Hall of the Brothers' Society. Mr. Fisk was called to the chair. The meeting was occupied mostly with business not important to be mentioned here, excepting so far as regards a movement originated by Mr. Hurlbut, on behalf of the Editors of the Yale Literary Magazine, for the purpose of relieving them from the debt, with which they were burdened at their graduation, and which resulted in the payment of $75.00, mostly from the members who were present; a sum with which the Editors expressed themselves satisfied.

On the 31st of July, 1851, twenty-five members of the Class assembled again at the same place, (there being three others in town, but not present at the meeting.) The meeting was similar in its character to the one which was held the preceding year. Mr. Waring was the presiding officer. After the reading of the Secretary's report, Messrs. Fisk, Waring and Brandegeee were selected as a Committee to provide a supper for the triennial meeting, the Class being well assured from past experience, that, having intrusted their interests to the hands of such persons, there was no danger that the physical nature would suffer want upon that occasion. To this Committee also was assigned the purchase of the Silver Cup,—inasmuch as it was ascertained that there were already two candidates for this honor presented by Messrs. Henson and Gordon. Messrs. Woodruff, Fisk and Dwight, were appointed a Committee on the subject of procuring an index for the Daguerreotypes, which were taken of the Class previous to their graduation, and which had been deposited in the College Library.

Attention was also called at this meeting, to the first death, in which the Class, as it graduated, was especially interested,—that of Mrs. Caroline S. Gordon, who died at Fairfield, Ct., on Wednesday, July 16th, 1851, at the age of eighteen years and ten months. She had been married at the same place, on the 5th of June, in the preceding year. A brief and simple expression of sympathy was immediately presented, and the Secretary was directed to communicate it to Mr. Gordon, in the name of each and every member who was present; a melancholy office, which he endeavored afterwards to perform, with the hope that he himself and all might remember that our own number must very soon be diminished by the departure of some one to the world of spirits, and with the earnest prayer that that one might be “not lost, but gone before,” to a brighter world, to begin the unbroken circle there.

The meeting then adjourned—each person present pledging himself to be present at the next meeting, and likewise to see that every other member of the Class should then return to visit the scenes of College days.

We now come to the triennial gathering at the recent Commencement. On Wednesday, July 28, 1852, a large number of the Class met, upon notice by the Secretary, at 12 o'clock, M., in the Theological Lecture Room under the Trumbull Gallery. At the suggestion of the Secretary, Charles G. Came was appointed the Chairman of the meeting, and also to preside at the ceremonies in the evening. The Committee upon the supper and the Silver Cup being called upon, reported through their chairman, Mr. Fisk, who stated that the Class were invited to assemble at the New Haven Hotel, at 10 o'clock

P. M. He also stated that the Silver Cup had been purchased by the Committee, but as a doubt existed in the minds of some members of the Class, as to who was entitled to it, he wished the opinions of those present upon that subject. Mr. Dwight was called on to state the votes and facts in the case. The Secretary said that no vote had ever been taken on the subject, but that his understanding, and he presumed that of most of the Class, had always been that the Cup was to be given to the first son. This he believed to have been the custom with preceding Classes, except the Class of 1848, which had passed a distinct resolution to bestow this honor upon the first child. The facts in the case were briefly these: Mr. Henson had a daughter, born on the 27th of June, 1850; Mr. Gordon a son, on the 16th of July, 1851. Of course, if the first child was to receive the gift, Mr. Henson was without question entitled to it, but if it was to be presented to the first son, Mr. Gordon's claims were equally undoubted. After some further remarks from several members of the Class, especially from Mr. Hutchins, who strongly urged the claims of John Hopkins, of South College memory,—it was decided by a nearly unanimous vote to give the Cup to Mr. Gordon, for his son.

A report was also given by Mr. Woodruff, in respect to the Daguerreotypes, stating that he had obtained the proposed index, and had had them arranged in alphabetical order, and that he had communicated with those whose faces were not to be found in the number, but had not yet been able to procure them. This had been done at an expense of ten dollars. The Secretary was requested to estimate the necessary expenses of the Class, and to assess accordingly, at the next meeting. The Class then adjourned to meet at the same place at 9 1-2 P. M., to proceed thence to the Hotel.

WEDNESDAY EVENING. The Class met, pursuant to adjournment, at the Trumbull Gallery, and at ten o'clock took their course in procession to the New Haven Hotel, where, after a few moments delay, they found supper prepared. Mr. Came was invited to the chair—having on his right hand the Secretary, and the Chairman of the Supper Committee on his left: rather an unfortunate position as some of his classmates might think. In a few moments all were gathered around the table, and, after blessing had been asked by the Rev. Edward D. Morris, the gentlemen present, fifty-seven in all, including Mr. Ludden of the Class of 1850, who was an invited guest, began to do justice to the eatables placed before them. The following are the names of those who were at the meeting :—Messrs. Arnold, Atkins, Bannan, H. Barnard, R. P. Barnard, Benedict, Bishop, Bissell, Bradley, Brandegee, Brent, Buck, Bull, Came, Chandler, W. B. Clarke, Couper, Durkee, Dwight, Eliot, Fenn, Finch, Fisk, Galpin, Gordon, Green, Hanes, Harrison, Henson, Hollister, Hough, Hubbard, Hurlbut, Hutchins, Jessup, Kirby, Lee, Lockwood, Mitchell, Moore, Morris, North, Oakey, Peck, Peters, Robinson. Rowell, Skinner, Talbot, Upson, Walker, Ward, Waring, Wilson, Wodell and Woodruff. Mr. J. L. Willard was also in town, but was absent on account of sickness. It may not be uninteresting to mention here, that, at the gathering in 1850, there were present, or in town, twelve members of the Class, who were not in New Haven at our triennial meeting, namely—Messrs. Barnes, Beecher, Bourne, Colegrove, Douglas, Goodrich, Hall, Haskell, Miles, Poole, Starr and J. Willard, and in 1851, Mr. Murray, making seventy in all, who have been present at some season of re-union since our graduation. As the Secretary, as might naturally be expected by all who know him, concluded his report some time before the rest, the exercises were pleasantly varied by his calling on each member for $1.25, for the purpose of paying for the publication of the Class Report, &c., &c., a sum which was paid with a great deal of delight apparently by all, so much so that Mr. Ives, the good proprietor, followed the Secretary's example a few moments afterwards, and found "forty-nine," as usual, ready for every good deed.

After the wants of the animal nature had been attended to, Messrs. Woodruff, Ludden, Lockwood and Hough, favored the meeting with the following song, written for the occasion by Mr. Finch, who was also the author of the other two songs, which will be referred to hereafter :

SONG.

(AIR.—"Lutzow's Wild Hunt.")

As the soldier returns, when the battle is o'er,
 To the hamlet that nourished and armed him,
 As the sailor hies home from the billow-lined shore
 To the eye that enchanted and charmed him,
 Gaily we gather from hill and dale,
 'Neath the elm-tree domes of our beautiful Yale.

From the land of the mountain, the vale of the vine,
 From the prairie and storm-furrowed ocean,
 From the far-leaping torrent and gold-flashing mine,
 Unchanged in our boyish devotion,
 Gaily we gather from hill and vale,
 'Neath the elm-tree domes of our beautiful Yale.

With a smile for the rock and the sun-tinted bay,
 For the lawn with its carpet of beauty,
 For the silent old walls, moss-covered and gray,
 Where we mingled pure pleasure and duty,
 Gaily we gather from hill and vale,
 'Neath the elm-tree domes of our beautiful Yale.

Thus ever amid the wild tempests of life,
 When the soul is o'ershadowed with sorrow,
 In calm and in storm—in silence and strife—
 When fortune gilds brightly the morrow,
 May our hearts all gather from hill and vale,
 'Neath the elm-tree domes of our beautiful Yale.

The Secretary then read the record of the last annual meeting, which was accepted. He then rose and presented his Report of the past three years. This Report has, for reasons which will be obvious, been here placed at the end of this account of the Class-meetings.

After the reading of the Secretary's Report, which occupied nearly three-quarters of an hour, cheers were proposed for his benefit, and it was moved that an expression of the thanks of the Class be presented him for his past services, and that he be requested to continue in the same office in future, which motion was carried without any dissenting voice, and the cheers were accordingly given, somewhat, doubtless, to the discomfort of the goodly strangers who were endeavoring to sleep in the rooms above.

The gentlemen previously mentioned then gave us a song, which introduced the names and some of the peculiarities of each member of the Class, whether present or absent, but which, for this reason, it has been thought improper to insert where it might fall under the notice of others besides the friends of '49.

The presentation of the Silver Cup was next called for, and Mr. Waring, as one of the Committee on that subject, rose, and with a few words of congratulation, offered the cup to Mr. Gordon, bearing the following inscription:—"To George S. Gordon—from the Class-mates of his father—July 28, 1852,"—and below—"Class of 1849."

Mr. Gordon replied briefly, expressing his thanks in behalf of the youthful representative of the next generation, and closing with the following sentiment :— “ The first daughter of the Class of '49— Though the letters of her name, which would have graced this cup, have by a trick of the mail (male) miscarried, may she in life reach a happy destination.” Mr. Henson was then called upon to express his sentiments upon the occasion, but was found to have left the room.

This ceremony being finished, the roll was called, and every member of the Class who was present gave an account of his life since leaving college, and declared his strong attachment to the Class of 1849. A tone of deep feeling and solemnity pervaded the meeting, especially as some alluded to the changes which had come over their views and course of life since graduation, as the hopes and aims of the Christian had dawned upon them, and as others brought before their Classmates the dark scenes of trial and affliction through which they had passed, during the three years which were just drawing to their close. Each member seemed to feel that, by wonderful mercy on the part of a kind Providence, we had been permitted to assemble once more at old Yale, and that soon death must call for some of us—for many, doubtless, before we should meet again.

When all had answered to their names, and those gentlemen who had begun to experience the joys of connubial bliss, had generously invited all their classmates to visit them at their own homes, as they passed from place to place, where they might chance to reside, the following closing song was sung, the chorus being united in by all the Class, with an earnestness which reminded us of our undergraduate days :

S O N G.

(AIR—Auld Lang Syne.)

The praises of our noble class,
 This eve we gaily sing,
 While swift the cheerful moments pass,
 And social pleasures bring.

The Class of “Forty-Nine,” my boys,
 The Class of “Forty-Nine,”
 Proud, pleasant memories round it cling,
 The Class of “Forty-Nine.”

When we were "Fresh," we whipped the "Sophs,"
 Upon the foot-ball ground,
 Despite their taunting sneers and scoffs,
 And words of empty sound.

The Class of "Forty-Nine," my boys,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine,"
 Proud, pleasant memories cling around
 The Class of "Forty-Nine."

And when old Euclid slept in death,*
 Though tutors warning gave,
 And wasted much forbidding breath,
 We bore him to his grave.

The Class of "Forty-Nine," my boys,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine,"
 Proud, pleasant memories round it wreath,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine."

We courted all the city girls,
 We made them wedding vows,
 We toyed four years with glossy curls,
 Then made our parting bows.

The Class of "Forty-Nine," my boys,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine,"
 A bird-like memory round it whirls,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine."

The dragons, throned in boarding schools,
 Looked on us with disdain,
 We kissed their pupils, broke their rules,
 They veiled their maids in vain.

The Class of "Forty-Nine," my boys,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine,"
 We ne'er shall see its like again,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine."

We shouldered many a barber's pole,
 We tolled the College bell,
 Till Freshmen to the Chapel stole,
 And found an empty shell.

* The Secretary would remark here, that his well-known musical powers suddenly failed him as this verse was sung. The reason of the phenomenon he must leave others to decide upon. The vote of the Class, however, has compelled him to publish it.

The Class of "Forty-Nine," my boys,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine,"
 We love its pleasant memories well,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine."

And when, at last, Commencement came,
 New honors crowned our shrine,
 For "First Orations," boys, we claim,
 Were born of "Forty-Nine."

The Class of "Forty-Nine," my boys,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine,"
 Proud, pleasant memories round it twine,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine."

Then shout and sing, till morning pale,
 For oak and climbing vine,
 The soaring sons of proud old Yale,
 The men of "Forty-Nine!"

The Class of "Forty-Nine," my boys,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine,"
 Proud triumphs grace its festal shrine,
 The Class of "Forty-Nine."

The Chair then requested the Class to be seated for a moment, and the Secretary proposed that a meeting should be held after the exercises of Commencement; also, that all the members of the Class, who should be in New Haven at each Commencement season, should assemble together, that we might have a yearly meeting, though perchance a small one. He then, after expressing his thanks to the Class, for the manner in which his services had been noticed, and alluding to the value of College friendships, and the increased strength and preciousness which they acquire, as the friends of our earlier youth pass into the unseen world, requested that, in gratitude to our Heavenly Father, for the preservation of the lives of all our number, the meeting might be closed with prayer. Mr. Buck then led in a very impressive and beautiful prayer, after which the meeting adjourned at 4½ o'clock A. M. of Thursday.

THURSDAY, JULY 29th, 6½ P. M. The Class met again at the Trumbull Gallery. The Secretary took the Chair. A motion was made and passed, that the two songs which did not allude to the different members of the Class, should be published with the Secretary's report. The deaths of George Haskell, who left the Class during Freshman year, and of Cornelius Sterling, who left about the middle of Junior year, were mentioned by the Chair, and a resolution was offered, that copies of the Secretary's report should be sent to the families of the dead, as well as to the friends of those who died during our College course—A. J. Douglass and Wheeler. This resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote. Haskell left us so early in our course, that he was intimately known to but very few of those who were connected with the Class at graduation ; but as the loss of Sterling was referred to, all felt that a warm-hearted friend and brother had gone down to the grave, who, though he went forth from our number when we had passed but half our time of sojourn here, would yet be ever remembered as one of that band of Classmates, whose faces and characters will remain deeply impressed upon the mind, so long as the memory of the Class of 1849 continues among those who composed its happy circle.

After discussion, it was voted, that the next regular meeting of the Class should be held seven years from that day, at the Commencement season in 1859 ; but that all who should be present, should meet every year, that no gathering of the Alumni might pass without a meeting of the Class of 1849. The Secretary gave notice that his report would be published in a few weeks ; and, after some other unimportant business, the Class removed to the front of the building, where, after "three times three" for "Forty-nine," and a general shaking of hands, we separated until the year 1859.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

YALE COLLEGE, JULY 28, 1852.

The Secretary of the Class of 1849, at the triennial meeting of the Class, would beg leave to offer his report in respect to the duties and business of his office.

MY CLASSMATES :

Three College years ago to-morrow night, we met for the first time to give each other the hand of friendship, as graduates of old Yale—pledging each other to meet again, if life should be spared, when this Commencement season should remind us of the past and of the future. Three College years have gone, carrying with them all our generation of students forth into the world, until now the Freshmen of our Senior days are just bidding farewell to the old scenes—looked upon by the expiring and the rising Freshmen of to-day, with something of the same reverence with which they themselves regarded us in that “dim shadowy period” of the past. We meet to-night—fifty-seven of that blessed ninety-four—nay, all of that ninety-four—for they are all with us in spirit at this hour—a band unbroken by death—to look back upon the hours spent together here in our second home. And, first of all, in presenting before you, as your official servant, the way in which we have been led, since we uttered the parting word, let me remind you of the gratitude we owe to Him, who rules above, that this joyful season finds us all still among the living. We have mourned over the loss of friends—some of us over each other's friends—but we assemble to-night without a tear for a Classmate lost, with the assurance that all of the absent ones are looking with sympathies and warm feelings to us who are so favored as to be gathered here.

In carrying out the duties of the office which you assigned me at our graduation, I have watched, with some degree of care, from year to year, the progress of each member of the Class. At our first meeting in August, 1850, it may be remembered that we assembled forty-seven, or one-half of our whole number, on College grounds, and at the last Commencement, nearly thirty met again. I felt then, that the spirit of "forty-nine" was reigning with its old power over the Class; and I resolved that our triennial meeting should surpass, in point of numbers, all former gatherings of a similar character. In accordance with this feeling, I informed the Classmates who were here in July last, that I should hold communication with all who graduated with us, within the twelve months then to come; and in the Spring vacation of this College year, I carried out that intention, by writing nearly one hundred letters. I wrote them all in preference to getting a printed form, because I felt that the sight of a Classmate's hand would, peradventure, lead some to meet with us, who might otherwise have remained away, or would at least be much more certain to bring a written answer to those questions which would be so interesting to the Class. And in this I was not mistaken; for within three weeks after the first of June, nearly sixty had given me a history of their lives. When the month was entirely gone, I wrote again to all from whom I had not heard—some twenty or thirty letters more—having, in the meantime, determined with certainty the residences of all, by communicating with the friends of those in respect to whom I was not thoroughly informed. Of the results, the report which I am to read, will speak with sufficient fullness for itself, presenting, as it will, the occupations and employments of all our Classmates during the three years past, with but one single exception. And in stating this, you must allow me to say that I feel some satisfaction, and that I feel that it may serve to show somewhat of the superiority, in point of Class spirit, as well as in all other respects, of the Class of 1849 to all other Classes since the flood. For any thing which I may thus have done to render this meeting one of interest, I do not even claim your thanks, for I have only fulfilled the duties of my station; and I have had more, far more than a compensation for all my labor, in the renewed assurance which each Classmate's letter gave me in reply, of that which afforded me so much pleasure at my graduation, and which will always, so long as life continues, be one of the most delightful of all thoughts connected with my College course—the thought that, however excited the strifes, or bitter the animosities of College might have been with others, there was no Classmate towards whom I was not a friend—none who, so far as I have ever known, bore a single feeling of ill will towards myself.

With these few few words of introduction, I beg leave to offer you, as the result of my preparation for the Class meeting, the following Report.

N. B. Since the presentation of the report to the Class, at their meeting in July, the facts in respect to the individual referred to above, as one concerning whom nothing was known, have been obtained, so that we now have information as to the residence and business of all the graduated members.

 burg, Aug. 31, 1828 ; entered Freshman, May, 1846 ; left College, April, 1848. " During the Winter of Junior year, he applied himself very closely to his studies, and about a month or six weeks before the Spring vacation, he complained of feeling unwell. His complaint grew worse and worse, until he placed himself under the charge of a physician, and was confined to his bed for several weeks. A day or two before the close of the term, he began to grow better, so that he left for his home. On his reaching home, he found that his disease was dropsy in the chest. He failed very rapidly, until the close of the vacation, when he died May 22, 1848."

" By those who knew him, he can never be forgotten."

CORNELIUS STERLING, of Bridgeport, Ct.; born in Bridgeport, Aug. 18, 1828; entered Freshman, Sept., 1845; left College, April, 1848; engaged in mercantile business as a clerk, in Bridgeport, immediately on his return from College; was compelled, by symptoms of consumption, to abandon his business mostly in the Spring of 1850; having partially recovered, was married to Miss Susan Augusta Hall, of Bridgeport, May 12, 1850; during the Summer of 1850, had, on one or two occasions, a slight hemorrhage of the lungs, and in Nov., 1850, was obliged to visit the South, where he spent the Winter of 1850-51; returned to his native place in May, 1851, and learned from his physician that his left lung was affected, and that the dreadful disease was firmly seated upon him; his uncle being about to sail for California, with sanguine expectations of improvement from the voyage, he left home on the 12th of July; arrived at San Francisco on the 29th of October, very feeble, though not apparently in immediate danger; but very suddenly, on the 30th, he began to grow weaker, and after lingering for a few hours, he expired at twenty minutes before 1 o'clock, on the morning of Oct. 31, 1851, at the age of 23 years and 2 months.

In a letter, written at the request of the Secretary, his father, Mr. Sherwood Sterling, says:

“I should have had hope in his death, had there been no further testimony beyond what he gave when at home. But, in his journal, he speaks of his fears having left him, of his hope in his Redeemer; and, in his conversation with his friends in San Francisco, he said that he felt prepared for death, and that his preparation was founded on his faith in the atoning sacrifice of Him who died for him. He said but little for two or three hours previous to his death, yet expressing wishes that his wife and parents were with him, though not despondingly; expressing also his confidence in the Savior, and then thanking his brother and friends for their kindness to him, after a short time he expired without a groan. We believe that he sleeps in Jesus."

LA FAYETTE TWITTY, of Rutherfordton, N. C.; entered Freshman, Sept. 1845; left College in Jan., 1848; has been studying medicine for two or three years past; now residing in Rutherfordton, but is expecting to establish himself as a physician in Texas.

ANDREW JACKSON WHEELER, of Easton, Ct.; born May 15, 1828; entered Freshman, Sept., 1845; left College on account of feeble health, Jan., 1848. He gradually declined until the 7th of June, 1848, when he died in the midst of his friends, in his native place.

We quote the following extract, as setting forth the opinions of those who knew him intimately, and the sorrow felt by all his Classmates at his death.

"Wheeler was really known to but few of our number, and we are happy that we were ranked among that few. Exceedingly modest in his demeanor, he yet possessed uncommon self-reliance, and an energy indomitable. When once incited by difficulties in study, night and day bore equal testimony to his ardent toil. And we are sure that there was not one among us who loved study better for its own sake—who was less influenced by all those flattering considerations which ever hover around the scholar. What would such energy and perseverance, united to strong, clear intellectual powers and an unerring judgment, have not done for their possessor in the combat of life? But his kindness of heart, and his freedom from selfish prejudices, were equally evident to his associates. He had not a single enemy. We visited his funeral with nearly sixty of our Classmates, and our impressions of that journey will never be erased. It was a beautiful day in June; the sky with its light clouds, the earth with its green fields, its leafy woods, its flashing streamlets, its flocks and herds, seemed all bathed in glorious, God-given life. Life! often we thought, on our way from the house of mourning to the house of prayer, that nothing could be dead on such a day. But the awful realities were before our eyes. As the remains of the departed were placed in their narrow home, the following hymn, composed on the occasion by two of his Classmates, was sung with unaffected feeling.

“Lightly, brothers—lightly tread
 Where the floweret blooms no more ;
 Where, among the honored dead,
 Sleeps the heart whose throbs are o'er.
 Death has torn a friend away,
 Waked the sigh and loosed the tear,
 Bade us weep and sadly pray
 O'er a brother's silent bier.

“Classmate, brother, fare thee well,
 In thy lonely place of rest ;
 Sadder thoughts than words can tell,
 Live in each surviving breast.
 Death has sundered every tie,
 Borne thee to a distant shore ;
 Thou hast passed away for aye,
 We shall meet no more, no more.”

The memory of “that beautiful day in June” will never pass away from any of those who witnessed that mournful scene ; and though we were not all, like our Classmate, “ranked among that few” who knew him well, yet as we meet, from time to time, in years to come, the thought of Wheeler's death will carry us back to the hour when we stood beside his open grave, and felt that he had gone from us forever.

He soon entered a dry goods importing house in Boston, where he remained till the fall of 1849. In November of the same year, he took passage on board ship Reindeer, for San Francisco, where he arrived, after a short passage. He spent several months in making observations and ascertaining what business was most promising. He had made no perma-ment arrangements, when, about the last of October, 1850, he was seized with cholera, at Sacramento City, and died Nov. 1st, after one week's illness. He was well attended, and, after the first, suffered but little. He always remembered his Class, and spoke of his Classmates with a great deal of interest."

[Oct. 12, 1852.—Just as this report is about to be sent forth to those for whom it has an especial interest, we are reminded once more of the nearness of the eternal world, by the death of our former Classmate, Lamb. He died at his home in Norfolk, Va., on Sunday, Oct. 3, 1852, after a severe sickness of nine weeks' duration. Many of those whose names are on the pages of this book, will remember him as he was during our Freshman year; many others will think of him as a companion of our College life, even after he had united himself with the Class below us; and all will rejoice to hear that he died in the Christian's faith, and will follow him in thought to the higher sphere, where we hope he is now engaged in the nobler services of those who have been admitted to the Church above. We would join our sympathies with those of his Classmates of 1850, for the friends who are now mourning his loss with a sorrow which no stranger can understand.]

Nothing has been heard from Tebbs since his farewell speech on the steamboat wharf in New Haven, which all his Classmates, who were present, will doubtless remember. The Secretary, at least, and, we presume, all the members of his division, would be glad to see him enter the Freshman Recitation Room once more, having the same benign appearance which he wore after his unfortunate interview with Chase.

In concluding the report of the past three years, the Secretary would present the following summary of the Statistics of the Class.

The whole number of those who were connected with the Class, during its Collegiate course, was 162. Of these, 37 left the Class during Freshman year, 18 during Sophomore year, 10 during Junior year, and 3 during Senior year—making in all 68—and leaving 94 as the number who took the degree of Bachelor of Arts, in August, 1849. Of this 94, only 56 entered at the beginning of Freshman year, being but one more than one half of those who entered at that time. In the enumerations which follow, will be included, in the first place, a summation of the facts respecting the graduated members of the Class alone—and afterwards a few words will be offered, setting forth, so far as the information contained in the preceding pages will allow, the occupations, &c., of those who went out from us at different periods of our College life.

Of the graduated members of the Class, then, as has been said, fifty-six entered at the very commencement of our course, viz. : Messrs. Adams, H. Barnard, Benedict, Bishop, Bissell, Bourne, Bradley, Brandegee, Buck, Bull, Came, Carey, W. B. Clark, Durkee, Dwight, Eliot, Fenn, Fisk, Foote, Galpin, Green, Hall, Harrison, Haskell, Henson, Hill, Hubbard, Hurlbut, Hutchins, Lee, Lockwood, Lyon, Merriman, Miles, Mitchell, Moore, Murray, Oakey, Peters, Richards, Richardson, Robiunson, Rockwell, Rowell, Skinner, Starr, Upson, Walker, Ward, Waties, Weiser, J. The first of all the Class who was married, was Woodruff—married Feb. 10, 1849. The first child was born June 27, 1850—Dora Blanche Henson ; the first son was born July 16, 1851—George Steinbergen Gordon. The first of those studying for the ministry who has been settled, and, thus far, the only one, is Morris, settled in May, 1852. Colegrove was the first who was admitted to the bar, Aug. 15, 1850. Colegrove and Finch, the first who were settled in the law, May, 1851. Benedict, the first who received the degree of M. D., graduating at Yale Medical School, Jan., 1851 ; and also the first who was settled as a physician, early in 1851. As above stated, only one of those pursuing theological studies, has as yet been settled, though fifteen (the first fifteen in the list given above of those in this profession) are licensed to preach. In the law, twenty-two (the first twenty-two in the list given above) are already settled ; and in medicine, three (the first three in the list given above) are now established in business.

Two members of the Class are now traveling in Europe, Hall and Douglas. Four are now Tutors in Yale College, Fisk, Dwight, Hurlbut, and Miles. Thirty-eight have been engaged in teaching, at some time since graduating.

In respect to the time of birth—one was born in 1831 ; eleven in 1830 ; thirteen in 1829 ; fifteen in 1828 ; seventeen in 1827 ; six in 1826 ; thirteen in 1825 ; seven in 1824 ; one in 1823 ; four in 1822 ; three in 1821 ; one in 1816, and two unknown. The average age of the Class, at graduation, was twenty-two years and four months, nearly.

Twenty-three members are now residing in Connecticut, twenty-two in New York, seven in Massachusetts, six in Pennsylvania, six in Ohio, four in Georgia, four in Alabama, three in Kentucky, three in Maryland, three in Maine, two in New Hampshire, two in Virginia, two in Tennessee, two in Mississippi, one in Texas, one in Arkansas, one in California, and two in Europe.

It may not be uninteresting to state, also, in closing this summary, in respect to the graduates, that thirty-nine received the degree of M. A., at the recent Commencement, July 29, 1852—Messrs. Arnold, Atkins, Atlee, Baer, Bannan, H. Barnard, Beecher, Benedict, Bishop, Brent, Chandler, W. B. Clark, Dwight, Eliot, Fenn, Fisk, Goodrich, Gordon, Henson, Hollister, Hough, Hurlbut, Jessup, Kirby, Lee, Lockwood, Merriman, Moore, Morris, North, Peck, Peters, Poole, Talbot, Walker, Ward, Waring, J. L. Willard, and Woodruff.

The Secretary, on account of the limited time allowed, and the pressure of his other duties during the vacation, has been able to collect the facts with regard to but fifty-six of those members of the Class who did not graduate, leaving twelve concerning whom no information has been obtained. This portion of the report, however, is believed to be more full and definite than is usual in these statistical accounts. Of those whose history is presented in the preceding pages, nine took their first degree with the Class of 1850, of Yale College, and eight graduated at other Colleges ; five have died—two, A. J. Douglass and Wheeler, before our graduation ; and three, Ewing, Haskell, and Sterling, since that time. Fourteen have been married. Thirty-three have entered a professional life, of whom eight have studied for the ministry, sixteen for the law, and nine for the medical profession. Most of the others are engaged in mercantile or agricultural pursuits.

Thus, then, I bring my labors to a close, trusting that this report may be acceptable to all my Classmates, and may serve to call up in the mind of each one, as he reads its pages, renewed and pleasant memories of the Class of 1849. Mistakes may doubtless be found by those who examine it with care, and, perchance, some things may have been inserted which will meet the censure of many under whose notice it may fall, and other things may have been omitted, which would have rendered it more interesting to the Class. If so, all I can say, is, that "I am sorry for it;" and if any or all of those for whose especial benefit it has been prepared, are dissatisfied with any or every portion of it, I am willing now, or whenever such a state of feeling shall be made known to me, to deliver over the office which I have held since we left College, to some other more competent and worthy person—with the assurance, however, that that person, after discharging the duties assigned to him, for a period of three or four years, and after having gone through with a labor like that which has occupied so large a portion of my time since April last, will have the charity for me which will "cover a multitude of sins."

If any inaccurate statements are discovered, it is desired that immediate information concerning them should be sent to the Secretary; and, also, in the years that intervene between this time and our decennial meeting, all the members of the Class, without exception, are requested to forward to the Secretary all such intelligence in respect to themselves, as may be of especial interest to the Class.

With the hope that we may be able to meet once more in 1859, and that our number may long be, as it has been, unvisited by death, I would respectfully submit this report to the Class of 1849.

TIMOTHY DWIGHT,

Secretary of the Class of '49.

YALE COLLEGE, SEPT. 11, 1852.
