BOOK ONE

"You had better take care!" said the countess. "Mamma! What sweets are we going to have?" exclaimed Natasha, with some eagerness, confident that her prank would be taken in good part.

Sónya and fat little Pétia doubled up with laughter.

"You next! I have asked," whispered Natasha to her little brother and to Pierre, glancing at him again.

"Is your brother the elder in the family?" asked Sónya.

"Márya Dmitrievna and the countess burst out laughing, and all the guests joined in. Everyone laughed, not at Márya Dmitrievna's answer, but at the incredible boldness and smartness of this little girl who had dared to treat Márya Dmitrievna in this fashion.

Natasha only desisted when she had been told that there would be pineapple ice. Before the ice, champagne was served round. The band again struck up, the count and countess kissed, and the guests, leaving their seats, went up to "congratulate" the countess, and reached across the table to clink glasses with the count, with the children, and with one another. Again the footmen pushed about, chairs scraped, and..."
