The Lost Deeds.

A parting glance around the office, to assure himself all desks, closets and iron safes are properly secured for the night, and the solicitor's confidential clerk locks up and prepares for home. With coat buttoned to the throat, and hat drawn over his eyes, Mark Edwards turns his steps towards home, and cheerfully faces the rough wind and drizzling rain, which unmercifully pelt and buffet him, as he vainly hails omnibus after omnibus to receive the same answer—"Full!" But Mark makes no trouble of these out of door inconveniences, for his mind's eye is fixed on the well-covered teatable, bright fire, and best of all, the pretty young wife awaiting his return. The picture is so pleasant, that he cheerily breaks forth in a line of "Home, Sweet Home," as he turns the corner of the street where stands his own trim little dimicil.

Mrs. Edwards is peering into the darkness through the folds of the muslin curtains, and has the door open before Mark's hand touches the knocker.

"What a night for you, love?" says the little matron, brushing the rain drops from his bushy whiskers, and kissing him compassionately; "and how very late you are!"

Edwards looks up at the clock as he struggles out of his dripping coat. "I am late, indeed," he answers; "but Mr. Plendwell has started on his trip to the lakes this afternoon, and there were a great many things to attend to before he went. And, look here, Fanny, this packet contains some valuable deeds and securities, which will be called for by the owner in a few days; in the meanwhile, I have to copy one of them, but don't feel inclined to begin to-night. Where can I place them with safety?"

Fanny suggested his desk, but that is the first article burglars would be likely to meddle with. The wife's cheek pales at the idea of such a visitor, and she considers. "That old escrutoir in the spare bed room, will not that do?" she asks.

Mark still hesitates. "I had so many injunctions to be careful, and not let them go out of my own possession, that I am afraid of even that."

Fanny reminds him that there is a secret drawer in it. "Don't you remember what trouble we had to find it?" she asks.

"The very place!" he exclaims. So his wife carries the candle for him, and the valuable packet is deposited in the hidden receptacle. Its only contents are a few highly scented letters, tied together with a piece of ribbon, the which Fanny, with blushes, confesses are Mr. Mark Edwards' love effusions before marriage, carefully preserved to bear witness against him when he grows cold and cross.

Perhaps it was a restless night and unpleasant dreams that made the clerk so uneasy—even in the hurry of the next day's work—knowing that he had not visited the escrutoir before leaving home in the morning to ascertain with his own eyes the safety of the papers placed in his charge. He pook-pooks the idea as it presents itself, remembering that one key is in his own possession, and the other one in his wife's housekeeping bunch; but it returns so often, that it is with a feeling of relief that he hears the signal for closing, and feels he is at liberty to return home.

How is it his welcome is not such a smiling one as usually greets him? Fanny's spirits seem depressed, and her eyes look as though they had been clouded with tears.

"Have you had any visitors to day?" her husband carelessly inquires as he sips his tea.

The hesitating "No" is so faintly pronounced that the young man, hitherto preoccupied with business, looks up.

"That 'No' sounded like 'Yes!' Who has been here?"

"Only my brother George," Fanny answers in a low voice, and Mark Edwards, frowning, turns away and takes up a book.

"My brother George" is his aversion, and the torment and trouble of his wife's family—always in difficulties, no sooner rescued from one scrape than rushing headlong into another—sometimes invisible for months, and suddenly reappearing to levy contributions on any relative able or willing to assist him. Mark has seriously contemplated forbidding his visits; but then Fanny is so tender-hearted, and cherishes such a kindly belief in the prodigal's ultimate reformation, that her husband has not yet mustered sufficient firmness to enforce his wishes, although he knows where his wife's brooch went, and why she wears that old velvet bonnet.

Fanny seems to guess what is passing in his mind, by her coming so softly to his side, and stroking his hair, and pressing her lips to his forehead, but neither of them say anything, and Mark leisurely prepares for his task of copying. While he has gone up stairs to fetch his papers, she lights an extra candle, and ensconces herself in a corner with a work table, regretting as she does so that her 'poor boy' must be bored with this odious writing when he ought to be resting. However, Mark soon comes down stairs, three steps at a time, to ask, rather angrily, why she has moved his packet without mentioning it. With astonishment in her looks, his wife denies having done so, and hurries with him to the spare bedroom, asserting her belief that he has overlooked the parcel. Not a thing is out of its place. The old escrutoir stands exactly as they left it, the lock had not been tampered with, nor was the secret drawer open; and there, undisturbed, lie the love letters; but the small brown paper parcel, tied with pink tape, and sealed with the office seal, is gone!

The husband, suspecting he knows not what, looks almost sternly at his wife, whose answering glance is confused and full of terror.

"Tell me the truth, Fanny, my dear Fanny. Are you playing a trick to tease me? Remember, if I cannot produce these papers, I am a ruined man! It would be worse than the loss of money; that I might replace, these I cannot. Tell me at once where they are."

"Indeed, Mark, I know no more about them than you do yourself. They must be here—perhaps they have slipped behind the drawer."

Although this is next to impossible, the chance is not overlooked. Hammer and chisel are soon fetched, and the back of the escrutoir is soon knocked out, leaving no nook or cranny where the smallest paper could remain unperceived.

Almost beside himself, Mark leads his wife down stairs, and commences questioning her. Where is the key? on the ring—it has not been out of her possession. Has she been out? No. Is she quite sure of that? Quite. Besides, as she ventures to remind him, the locks have not been forced, nor is aught else missing, as would have been the case if thieves had entered the house. In uncontrollable agitation, the bewildered young man paces the room, while Fanny, unable to proffer advice, or assist him with any reasonable conjecture, watches him in trembling silence.

Suspicious are crowding upon his mind—hints given before his marriage about Fanny Roberts' brother, and regrets uttered, even within his hearing, that a respectable young man like Mr. Edwards should lower himself by such a connection, are suddenly remembered and dwelt upon.

He pauses before his wife and sternly demands what errand had brought that brother of hers to his house. That brother of hers! What a speech! All Fanny's sisterly feelings are in arms, and yet she falters, for she is forced to own that it was the want of money. "And you told him that I had these papers in the house," Mark cries, accusingly. With a crimson face she angrily denies it. She did not mention Mark's affairs during their short interview. Is it likely she would do so? Or if she did, would George, poor foolish fellow that he is, steal up stairs and rob his sister's home? Ridiculous! Impossible!

"Impossible," Mark retorts, "without he possessed the key."

"It has not been out of my pocket," sobs Fanny.

"Then where," asks Mark, "are the missing papers?" Their little servant maid away for a holiday—no one in the house, according to Fanny's own confession, but this young man. Where are the papers?

Receiving for reply a torrent of tears and protestations, he flings himself on the sofa and tries to steady his nerves to the consequences of this extraordinary loss. Meanwhile, Fanny goes and institutes an unavailing search in every box and cupboard and drawer where it could be possible to find a parcel, although it would puzzle her to explain how it could have withdrawn itself from the secret drawer to take refuge elsewhere. At last she returns to the parlor in despair. The packet must have been stolen. But how? When? By whom? Getting frightened at Mark's gloomy look, she is delighted when a tap at the door announces a visitor, and that visitor proves to be her father.

To him the affair is circumstantially detailed, and Mark points out the inevitable loss of his situation and good name if he should be unable to produce the papers or give any clue which might lead to their recovery. To Fanny's dismay, he particularly dwelt upon her brother's visit, and her half made endeavor to conceal it; concluding by an entreaty that she will, if retaining any affection for her husband, tell all she knows.

But now the father interposes. To tamely hear both of his children accused of such a crime is more than his rather irascible temper will endure, and he enters a counter accusation that Mark has, for some unworthy end, removed the parcel himself. Words now become so hot and bitter that Fanny's distress increased, not lessened, by his companionship, and she weeps so bitterly and pleads so earnestly with both, that Mark, more touched than he would like to confess, abruptly leaves them to shut himself in his chamber. After some hours the sound of his footsteps ceasing, the anxious wife creeps softly up stairs, and is relieved to find him lying on the bed in an uneasy slumber. Her father persuades her to rest, too, but poor Fanny shakes her head, and still sets by his side, leaning her head on his shoulder, and feeling more forlorn and miserable than it had ever been her lot to feel before. What will poor Mark do? And what will become of her if he persist in believing her guilty?

Equally bewildered and almost as unhappy as his daughter, Mr. Roberts tries to soothe her with promises not only to seek George and bring him to exculpate himself, but forgive Mark's hasty speeches, and assist him in investigating this mysterious affair. So, at last, Fanny begins to feel more comforted, and to wish her father to leave her; but tired as he confesses himself, he cannot quit her in such trouble, and they continue to occupy the same position by the fire till night had long given place to morning, and Mr. Roberts' eyes close involuntarily.

A footstep overhead startles them. "It is only Mark," says Fanny, after a moment's listening. "Poor fellow, I wish he had slept longer."

In the modern six roomed house every sound is distinctly audible, and they hear him enter the chamber where stands the now shattered escrutoir. After a short pause he is heard slowly descending the stairs, and his wife raises herself from her reclining position and smooths her disordered hair.

As he enters the room, Mr. Roberts lays his hand on his daughters arm.

"Look, child, look!" he whispers; and Fanny sees with astonishment that her husband is fast asleep, and holds in one hand the bundle of old love letters.

Setting down his candle, Mark unlocks the front of his large and well filled bookcase, and begins deliberately taking down one by one, the handsomely bound volumes of the History of England, which grace the highest shelf—then he draws out a number of loose magazines, hidden there because of their untidy appearance; lays the old love letters quite at the back of all, replaces the odd numbers, returns the volumes to their shelf, carefully patting them even, locks the glass doors, and is stalking away, when Fanny, with a cry which awakens him, snatches the key from his hand. Rubbing his eyes and wondering, he sees her eager fingers dragging Hume and Smollet from their proud position to assume an inglorious one on the hearth rug and in the fender; the once treasured 'Belle Assemblies' are scattered in all directions; the highly prized love letters receive similar usage; and then, from behind all the rest, Fanny triumphantly takes out the small brown paper parcel, tied with pink tape, and sealed with the office seal. Crying and laughing in one breath, the happy little wife is the next moment in her husband's arms, kissing, and being kissed ad libitum.

Little explanation was needed. The young man's brain, excited by extreme anxiety regarding his trust, had led to his cautiously rising in the night, and unconsciously transferring the packet to what he afterward remembered as the first hiding place which had presented itself to his mind on bringing it home the preceding evening.

How many times he has asked forgiveness is not recorded; but Fanny is a true woman, quick to resent, but easily appeased; and Mark has taken George and George's affairs in hand so heartily, that the young scapegrace is actually improving, and there is even some hope of Fanny's belief in his total reformation being realized.

SCEN IN A SANCTUM.—Enter a large strong man, with a cowhide in his hand.

"Is the editor in?"

"He is."

"You?"

"Yes."

"I have come to settle with you."

"Well, (editor draws a revolver,) go ahead."

"I have taken your paper now about a year."

"Well." (Capping his pistol.)

"An article in your last issue (editor cocks his pistol) has convinced me, sir, that—you—need—"

"I deny your right to give it—because, sir—"

"Give you what?"

"A thrashing."

"Why, no, my dear sir, I came in to pay you in advance for another year."

The editor wilted.

A GOOD story is told of a Michigan soldier, in Virginia, who was accused of stealing a goose from a rebel. He was brought up for trial, and admitted taking the goose, but pleaded in extenuation that he caught it in the act of hissing at the American flag, and arrested it for treason.

PUT TO THE TEST.—The New York Herald of October 1, has the following: According to the statement of Robert V. Fitzgerald, first sergeant, Fifth regiment, Corcoran Legion, (formerly of the old Sixty-ninth,) published in one of the Brooklyn papers, the said sergeant was in search of recruits for the war, in Fulton street, in the city of Churches, on Monday last, and then and there meeting Henry Ward Beecher—whom he did not then know—asked him to enlist under the Stars and Stripes, to fight for the Union. Beecher was shocked, and denounced the recruiting sergeant as "a scoundrel," who "ought to have known that he (Beecher) did not want to enlist." The patriotic Irishman had evidently fallen in with the wrong customer—a man who held any one to be a scoundrel who took him for a patriot. Had Fitzgerald read his blaspheming sermon, published in the Herald of that morning, he could not have made such a mistake, if he had only known the person of Beecher; for, while in that profane discourse the clerical actor compares himself with Christ, and intimates that hanging him and a few other radical leaders would have as great an effect in defeating the rebellion and securing the abolition of slavery as the crucifixion of the Saviour had in overthrowing Judaism and establishing Christianity; he confesses that he thinks too much of his life to sacrifice it in such a cause. Beecher, Greeley, Garrison and Phillips do not want to fight for the Union. As the Richmond Dispatch, in an article we published yesterday, well observes: "The Union is the God of all parties alike, except the ultra abolitionists, who, strange to say, are the only men in the North willing to 'let it slide.' The war has been carried on from the beginning by the conservative classes, and scarcely an abolitionist is to be found in its armies." Greeley, indeed, lately boasted that, tho' they numbered 900,000, not one of them had ever smelt battle. No doubt, like Beecher, they would one and all denounce as a scoundrel any man who should invite them to fight for the constitution, which Beecher holds to be a worthless "sheepskin parchment," and for the Union, which he denounces as "a monstrous outrage upon human rights." But the draft will fetch them up. Sergeant Fitzgerald suggests that Beecher, who "insulted the flag he bore and discountenanced enlistments, ought to be closely watched by the government, as his conduct is very suspicious." We entirely agree in this opinion, and the whole traitor tribe require the exercise of the utmost vigilance on the part of the President.

ADVERTISING.—A writer in the Boston Commercial Bulletin, speaking of advertising says:

I know a man who came into a little legacy of £500, and who asked a friend what he should do with it.

"Lay out," he replied, "fifty pounds in pill boxes, signboards, the fitting up a shop, and a few reams of printed directions how to take Parafarmanagus's Universal Pills—the other £450 spend in advertising in the newspapers."

The legatee looked unutterable things. "What, spend so much in advertisements?"

"Certainly—and when that is gone, spend £500 more."

"But how on earth shall I get that other £500?"

"By the sale of your pills, to be sure."

"Yes—the pills—it's all well enough to say that—but where am I to get the pills from?"

"Oh! that's easy enough—make them out of crumb's of bread, colored and rolled in magnecia."

"What good will that do?"

"My dear fellow, declare in your bills that they'll cure anything and they will cure anything. Don't you know that 'Conceit can kill and conceit can cure'?"

If people have faith in your pills, you'll do, and faith they will have if you drive them down their gullets by will advertising."

The man took his friend's advice—and is now a millionaire.

Is this a fiction? Professor Holloway began with almost nothing. He kept on advertising—a little at first and increasing—never ceasing altogether—and now he is worth £30,000 per annum. Moses & Son, the London tailors, are worth £10,000 per annum. The proprietors of the Macassar Oil, £10,000, and Dr. De Jough, the Cod Liver Oil man, £20,000 per annum. How much, too, has been made by similar speculations in this country, and all through advertising!

Two Irishmen in a recent engagement when gallantly standing by their gun, firing in quick succession, when one touching the piece, noticed that it was very hot.

"Arry! Mike, the cannon is gettin' hot, we'd better stop firin' a little."

"Divil a bit," replied Mike, "just dip the catridge in the river afore yees load, an kape it cool."

SEVENTH VOLUME.—This number is the commencement of the Seventh Volume of the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS. We have successfully conducted the WEEKLY NEWS through the past three years, and now enter upon the fourth with confidence that, having overcome all the difficulties under which newspapers have to contend in the earlier periods of their existence, we will be able, as heretofore, to regularly furnish the paper to our subscribers; and at the same time we shall aim not only to make it a readable paper, but also, by pursuing an independent course, condemning all that we see that is wrong, and encouraging all that will tend to promote the best interest of the community among which we labor, not only to build up a paper which will be a source of pride to the county, but tend to encourage the interest of our farmers and business men generally, by laying before them in the columns of our paper such useful suggestions and notes of improvements, as may from time to time come under our notice; and our patrons and the public may be assured that the NEWS is a progressive institution, and our aim shall always be to make each number the superior of its predecessor in all that constitutes the Modern Newspaper.

THE regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors will be held at Woodland on Monday next.

NEW FLOUR MILL AT WOODLAND.—We understand that the new Flour Mill at Woodland will soon be in operation.

LAND FOR SALE OR RENT.—In another column will be found an advertisement of Jerome C. Davis, who has several thousand acres of land for sale or rent.

RAIN.—Quite a shower of rain fell here on Thursday last, laying the dust and making the atmosphere feel fresh and invigorating.

NEXT week we shall publish by the request of the Teachers' Institute, the eulogy delivered upon the death of Wm. Wild on the 24th ult.

NEW STORE.—We understand that a new store will soon be opened by Messrs. Goodhue & Case at this place, on a large and extensive scale.

LARGE LOAD.—Two ox teams arrived in town on Friday last from Nevada, loaded with eleven thousand feet of lumber—one five the other six thousand feet. The latter load was estimated to weigh twelve tons, this is the heaviest load ever brought to our town by any other than steam power.

Early Rains.
The first rains of the season have already come; but as yet only in very moderate quantities—just sufficient to warn farmers to make preparations for the greater visitations yet to come. In a short ride through the surrounding country this week, we noticed great quantities of hay and grain on the neighboring ranches yet exposed to the weather. Our crops have been so large this season that but few of our farmers have been able to market them up to this time. The season has been a late one, and the time short for this purpose. We trust the warning will be heard, and our large stores of grain and hay safely housed before the winter rains set in. Last year stock-feed of all kinds got to high figures before Spring. This advance in price was not caused by any scarcity, but mainly on account of the vast amount destroyed by being left exposed to the inclement rains of the season. Our farmers should endeavor to save from the weather all the feed they can, even if it sells at low but remunerative rates, which can now be obtained; for even at these figures stock raisers can afford to purchase rather than let their stock die. Last year stock feed could not be had, and the result was the tremendous losses, and inhuman sacrifices of last year. Thousands upon thousands of cattle died from sheer starvation, and we may reasonably look for a similar state of affairs this winter, if preparation is not made to secure fodder for them before Winter sets in. The rain of this week is the warning which we trust all will heed.

A FEW days since P. E. Kincheloe of Yolo county called at this office, and advertised two mules that had been stolen from his premises, offering a reward of $100 for their recovery. Yesterday morning, in company with a friend, he concluded to ride out in the interior, and see if he could gain any information in regard to the lost stock. A short distance this side of the Old Virginia Ranch Mr. Kincheloe came up to two Mexicans who had his mules in their possession. Observing the thieves were armed he concluded to pass on, and upon reaching the ranch, stated the circumstances and asked for assistance. Four men in the house offered to aid him, and just as they were coming out with their guns the Mexicans were approaching and commenced firing. One of the white men approached towards the Mexicans and fired, when a simultaneous fire commenced between the two parties, nine rounds being discharged. One of the Mexicans reeled on his mule, and placed his hand on his side in such a manner as lead to the belief that he was shot. The two thieves dismounted from the mules and took to the woods, leaving the animals to be taken possession of by their owner. He arrived in town with them yesterday afternoon.—Marysville Express, 25th Oct.

LYNCH LAW IN SUTTER COUNTY.—In the county jail yesterday, we had some conversation with one John Kirk, which brought to light some facts which, if correct, are not very creditable to the authorities of our neighboring county of Sutter. Kirk was brought to our jail on Monday last, on a charge of larceny, committed in or near Yuba City, there being several charges of that character preferred against him. On Tuesday he was taken over to Yuba City for trial before a justice of the peace, and he then entered a plea of guilty to a portion of the charges, affirming his innocence of others. He says that when he refused to plead guilty to the theft of some of the articles which he was charged with stealing, he was quietly taken from the hands of the under-sheriff, and, without any objection on the part of that official, was taken in a wagon to a tree on the edge of the town, and there a rope was put around his neck and cast over the limb, and he was then threatened with hanging if he did not confess, and tell where he had hidden the articles referred to. He says that he could not confess, and that he was choked a little, then coaxed and threatened by turns, until, finding that they could get nothing from him, they brought him back, and gave him up to the officer of the law, and the trial went on. Kirk says that there was no fuss or noise made, but the whole affair seemed to have been arranged before hand, and the half-dozen men who managed the mock hang were not interfered with by anybody. This is, indeed, a very poor state of affairs, when county authorities wink at such an outrage.—Marysville Appeal.

RUMOR.—The San Francisco L'Echo du Pacifique of Tuesday says that a report is current in that city which causes anxiety in the minds of some, while others doubt the truth of the rumor. It is said that thirty secessionists, among them men of naval experience, embarked on the last steamship carrying treasure, and that it is their intention to capture the steamship on the Atlantic side when in the latitude of Charleston and take the vessel into that port. At the head of the party report places an old Californian named Browder, and it is generally understood that this corps of filibusters are armed to the teeth.

BY OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.

The following dispatches are from the Sacramento Union of Oct. 29th:
Fr. MONROE, Oct. 25.—The following items are from the Richmond Examiner of the 23d:
Travelers from Winchester report that our army was crossing the Potomac on Monday into Maryland.

Our pickets attacked the enemy from several points near Nashville, Tenn., at daylight on the 22d, driving in the pickets, killing several, and capturing fifty. Among the killed is W. B. Stokes, Colonel of renegade Tennessee regiment, and one other Federal Colonel. We drove the enemy into their intrenchments at Nashville.

Gov. Vance of North Carolina has issued a stirring appeal to the citizens of his State, in behalf of the army, and calls for contributions of clothes for the soldiers for the coming Winter.

The Lynchburg Republican says there is a general stampede from Culpepper county, owing to the anticipated early advance of the Yankees in that direction. Having once suffered from the Federals they are unwilling to undergo the like treatment.

A great many persons in the South have received permission to leave the Confederacy. They are generally aliens claiming the protection of European Consuls.

Twenty-four privates and one Lieutenant, captured a Haymarket and Rappahannock, arrived at Libby prison last evening.

The Richmond Whig of the 22d says a letter from the Mayor of Wilmington, N. C., says:
"For the first time in many weary days, the reports of new cases of yellow fever show a falling off, and we now hope we have at last reached the worst."

The Richmond Examiner of the 24th has the following:
SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 23.—The Abolitionists attacked in force Pocotaligo and Coosawhatchee, South Carolina, yesterday. They were gallantly repulsed to their gunboats at Mackay's Point and Company's landing, by Colonel Walker, commander of our troops. The enemy came in 13 gunboats and transports. The Charleston Railroad was injured. The Abolitionists left their dead and wounded on the field. Our cavalry are in hot pursuit.

Signed, BEAUREGARD.
LOUISVILLE, Oct. 26.—A detachment sent from Bowling Green, Ky., attacked a part of Morgan's forces at Morgantown on Friday, capturing 16 prisoners; whereupon Morgan's men retreated toward Rochester, where they were joined by Woodward and Johnston. Previous to this junction, Col. Shackelford with his forces had a fight with another band of Morgan's guerrillas, capturing 27.

There is nothing of interest from Bragg's or Bell's army. Generals Buell and Rousseau arrived here on Friday.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 25.—A rumor, which seems probable, says a force of from forty to sixty thousand is being concentrated at Holly Springs.

FAIRFAX, Va., Oct. 26.—A detachment of about 80 men from this division stationed at Manasses Junction, were attacked on Friday by about 150 rebels from Warrenton, and driven towards Bull Run, with the loss of 2 Lieutenants and 15 privates taken prisoners. Capt. Conger, with 40 of the Third Virginia Cavalry, who had been on a scouting expedition and was on his return, met a part of this body of rebels between Catlett's Station and Warrenton, and dispersed them, killing several and taking two prisoners.

In the engagement Capt. Conger was seriously wounded and captured, but afterwards paroled.

Harper's Ferry dispatches continue to assert that the rebels have evacuated Winchester, falling back on Staunton, while citizens of that place coming within Gen. Sigel's lines throw doubt on this intelligence. Some of Sigel's scouts report large bodies of rebels in front, and refugees assert that the main body of the rebel army is still at Winchester.

Sigel's scouts from Fredericksburg report but a small body of rebel cavalry at that point.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27th.—The Times' Washington special dispatch says:
We have intelligence from the South, through a source entitled to credit, that the rebels have really ventured upon the dangerous policy of arming their negroes. In Atlanta, G.; Montgomery, Ala., and other places, it is said that negro regiments have already been organized and supplied with weapons. Recent North Carolina newspapers state that about 8,000 black soldiers, officered by white men, have been sent from camps of instruction to garrison the fortifications of important towns.

The Express professes to have reliable information from semi-official circles in Europe that France and England have decided upon the recognition of the Southern Confederacy if joint offers of mediation, and an armistice for four or six months be proposed to Seward, are not accepted. They fear a slave insurrection in the South, the Express says, after the 1st of January, and it is to afford their own citizens residing there ample protection, under the aegis of their regularly appointed agents, that France and England will claim the necessity of a recognition of the new Confederacy.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—The Press, of this city, publishes a statement from Fort Monroe, dated last Friday, to the following effect:
Gen. Henry A. Wise, with 20,000 men, is advancing on Yorktown. He has reached New Kent Court House. The report needs confirmation. Dispatches of Saturday make no mention of it.

The Baltimore American of to-day has a dispatch, dated Harper's Ferry, Sunday evening, announcing a movement of Gen. Pleasanton's cavalry across the Potomac. From thence they moved forward to Waterford, and expected to reach Leesburg early this (Monday) afternoon. The people everywhere received them with acclamations of delight.

Gen. Burnside's artillery crossed at the same point, and was expected to rest at Lovittsville, Loudon county, and move forward to-day.

The troops on Bolivar Heights (Sumner's corps) are under marching orders, and will also move forward to-day. Active movements are on foot on the upper Potomac.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 27.—A portion of Crittenden's corps—the 1st and 20th Kentucky Regiments; fell upon Kirby Smith's rear guard 40 miles from Cumberland Gap, on Wednesday, Oct. 22d, and routed them, taking 90 prisoners and 150 head of cattle.

Gen. Jeff. C. Davis has been indicted in the Criminal Court for killing Gen. Nelson.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—A dispatch from the headquarters of the Potomac, dated yesterday, says:
Gen. Pleasanton's advance has arrived at Parcellsville, within a few hours march of Gen. Longstreet's command, which is believed to be at Upperville, near Ashby's Gap. No information has been received of the changing of the position of the main body of the rebel army from the vicinity of Winchester and Bunker Hill.

Recent rains have not materially interfered with the fords at Shepherdstown and Williamsport. At Harper's Ferry the Potomac has risen two inches, and the Shenandoah has increased four inches at the same point. The rebel cavalry, in considerable numbers, continue to show themselves between Martinsburg and Gherry Run, and a regiment was seen and fired at opposite Sharpsburg yesterday.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Reports concerning the position of the rebel army in the Shenandoah Valley are still contradictory. A correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, under date of Harper's Ferry, Oct. 27th, says the entire rebel army in Northern Virginia is said to have been divided into two bodies, under Jackson and Longstreet. The column of the former moving directly to Staunton, where it is said Winter quarters for a large force have been provided. Longstreet, it is thought moves to Gordonsville.

The New York Tribune's correspondent, writing from Bolivar Heights, Oct. 27th, says:
LOUISVILLE, Oct. 26.—Nashville papers of the 23d were received to-day.

That city is still cut off from the surrounding country by bands of guerrillas. A foraging expedition from the city to plantation of the rebel General Donelson, brought away 300 cattle, 600 sheep and hogs, and 600 wagon loads of corn and oats.

A spy was caught inside of the Federal lines with a roll of parchment containing the names of over 200 citizens of Nashville, who were armed and read to raise and assist in the expulsion of the Federals at any time the rebels might make the attack. Gen. Negley, commanding the post, issued an order to all citizens to deliver up their arms and ammunition to headquarters. Refusal will be deemed evidence of disloyalty, and will be severely punished.

There is considerable alarm in Kentucky, the inhabitants fearing an attack from Morgan's guerrillas. On Saturday morning Morgan was at Hartford, Ohio county, 72 miles from Owensboro, with 1,500 men, and was expected to be joined by Johnston's guerrillas. The bridge on the Hartford road, 10 miles from Owensboro, was burned by the rebels on Saturday night. Guerrillas are plundering Davies, Butler, and the adjacent counties.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 27.—Lieut. Colonel Guitar, with a force of cavalry, pursued the enemy from Arreenville, Mo., towards Homansville, where, on the 25th, he attacked and routed Col. Brown, killing 8 and taking 18 prisoners, 25 stand of arms and 12 horses. The rebel forces of McBride and Parsons were seen to retreat towards Vellville, Ark.

CAIRO, Oct. 28.—Infantry and cavalry expeditions, a few days since, into the country back of Memphis, destroyed five or six guerrilla camps, and also laid waste ten plantations belonging to Secession sympathizers along Wolf river.

It is said that Ballentine's rebel cavalry left Holly Springs and come as far north as Hatchie river five days since. This fact may have given rise to the reported approach of Price to Bolivar.

The rebel force in the vicinity of Memphis has been driven away after skirmishes in which they lost two killed and a number taken prisoners.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The Washington special dispatches say:
The reported negro insurrection at Culpepper Court House turns out to be without the slightest foundation in truth.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—On the first day of the present month the national debt was six hundred and twenty millions. This includes the entire circulation of every species of notes, and between seventy and eighty millions of debt contracted under the late Administration, but excepts claims for which no requisitions have been made. The claims objected and unadjusted cannot exceed twenty millions.

POSTAGE STAMP CURRENCY.—The N.

STATE FINANCIERS.—On inquiring at the office of the Assistant Treasurer in this city, we learn that the exact amount of greenbacks tendered to the Assistant Treasurer by Mr. Ashley, on the 30th of September, was $63,839 31.

We were shown a sample of the Egyptian, or seven-headed wheat, grown at the Tejon Indian Reservation. The wheat is singular in its appearance, though so many headed in its nature, and its prolific character may be best estimated when we consider that as many as fourteen of such heads as shown to us have been produced from a single grain.

A new steamship company, to be called "The China Mail Steamship Company," is now forming in New York and San Francisco, with the object of establishing a regular semi-monthly line of first class fast steamers to run between San Francisco, Honolulu and Shanghai.

THE receipts in the United States Treasury, from customs alone, during the present fiscal year, will aggregate from ninety to one hundred millions. From direct taxation two to two hundred and fifty millions.

THE Knights Landing News.

A DUTCHMAN thus describes an accident:
Once a long while ago, I went into mine apple orchard to climb a bear tree to get some beeches to make mine vrow a blum pudding mit; und ven I gets on de tobermost branch I vall down from de lowermost limb, mit von leg on both sides of de fence, and like to stove mine outsides in.

"WELL what next?" said Mrs. Partington, as she interrupted Ike, who was reading the war news—"the pickets were driven in five miles! Bless my poor soul but that will make a strong fence. I suppose they had to be driven in deep, to keep the Sessionaders from digging out under them."

A YANKEE has just invented a suspender that so contracts on your approach to water, that the moment you come to a puddle it lifts you over, and drops on the opposite side.

SAYS an interior paper: The lady who sent us a mince pie, with the request to 'please insert,' is assured that such articles are never crowded out by a press of other matter.

TO CATCH MICE.—On going to bed, put crumbs of cheese in your mouth, and lie with it open, and when a mouse's whiskers tickle your mouth, bite.

FOUR things come not back—the broken word, the sped arrow, the past life, and the neglected opportunity.

He is a contemptible fellow that sneaks through life on tippy, with his ear at the keyhole of everybody's business.

THE busybody labors without thanks, talks without credit, lives without love, and dies without tears.

A FLUSH of hope renders toil and trial beautiful as the sunbeam gives a sparkle to the winter's frost.

FORTUNE may favor fools, but that's a poor reason why you should make a fool of yourself.

THE men who deserve the greatest favor among women, are husbandmen, or any other man.

PEACE is the evening star of the soul; virtue is the sun; and the two are never far apart.

MANUFACTURER'S AGENTS, AND DEALERS in Pitt's, Ball's, Russell's, and other popular Thrashing Machines.
Also, the following
Reapers and Mowers,

Improved for the harvest of 1862:
Burt's Eagle Combined Machine; New York do.; McCormick's do.; Heath's Eagle do.; Kentucky Harvesting Machine; Haines' (Illinois) do.; Ball's Ohio Reaper and Mower; Manny's Improved Machine.
Esterly's Improved Machine; Rugg's Combined machine; Vermont mowing machine; Buckeye do.; Bay State do.; Molly Stark (Ohio) Mower.

And sole agents for the celebrated Nourse, Mason & Co's
Ketchum's Improved Mowers,
With or without Reaper attachments—the best mowing machine in use. They will be furnished this season at greatly reduced prices, bringing them within the reach of every farmer. These machines are very much improved, and never fail in the matted or lodged clover—cutting with equal ease the tall or tangled grass without clogging or breaking; and so close that it will save from one to five dollars' worth of hay per acre more than any other machine. They are furnished with Reaper Attachment, at small cost—making them a good and serviceable combined machine; and when all other machines have failed in the tangled grain, the work has been done by the Ketchum machine to the perfect satisfaction of all. The one horse machine cuts four feet; the light two-horse machine cuts four and a half and five feet—two sizes; the heavy two-horse machine cuts five and five and a half feet, two sizes. Any boy capable of driving the team can manage the machine; it is not liable to get out of order.
The New Bay State two-wheeled Mower.—We have purchased the patent right to the New Bay State Mower for the State of California. It is one of the many machines lately invented, and stands far ahead of all others in point of excellence as a two-wheeled mowing machine, having all the new improvements that have been fairly tested. It is very light, strong, durable machine, and cuts full four and a half feet.
The Vermont Mower.—Also, a two-wheeled machine. It is made mostly of iron, simple in construction, and can be managed with ease.
The Buckeye Machine has two driving wheels like the Vermont machine, and is simple in its construction.
The Molly Stark Mower, (manufactured at Canton, Ohio), is a very light mower, of the Buckeye pattern.
Ball's Ohio Harvester, (manufactured at Canton, Ohio), is a two-wheeled Reaper and Mower. Has two cutter bars—one for reaping and one for mowing. We have imported a few for trial this season.
The Kentucky Harvester cuts about five and a half feet. Said to be a very good machine.
McCormick's Reaper and Mower—a very good reaper—intended for four large horses.

Burt's Eagle Reaper and Mower, (Improved for 1862.) Baker & Hamilton, sole agents for this machine in California and Oregon.
We have imported these machines for the past two years, which were furnished to some of our neighboring farmers and thoroughly tested. They gave general satisfaction both in cutting grain and grass. The style is very much the same as the celebrated Esterly's machine, except that they are better made; have a strong iron finger bar; are hand-raking reapers and have no side draft. They have a large four foot driving wheel. The outside grain wheel is thirty inches in diameter. The driver's seat is over two iron truck wheels, each thirty inches in diameter, and the machine may be turned round without crowding the horses, as there is no weight upon their necks. They have two sets of gearing for fast and slow motion; a smooth knife for mowing, and a sickle for reaping; the back of each is made of hammered cast steel. They cut about six and a half feet, and can be worked with two light horses. We have but a few for this season's trade, owing to the fact that the great demand at the factory made it impossible for the manufacturer to fill our orders for a large number in season for shipment to this market.
Rugg's Reaper and Mower, cutting six and nine feet. This machine cuts in advance of the horses, and the cutter can be raised by the driver from one to twenty-four inches. Sold very cheap.
Haine's Illinois Harvester, or Header, cuts ten feet. Improved for the harvest of 1862. We have also imported complete sets of trucks, or running gear for header-wagons, with neck yokes and whiffletrees complete.

P. Manny's Improved Combined Reaper and Mower.—This is a new style of machine, very light, yet strongly built, lately patented by P. Manny, in which there are many valuable improvements. We are willing to guarantee this Combined Reaper and Mower in every instance.
We have imported a large stock of extras for repairing Reapers, Mowers and Thrashers, all of which will be sold cheap for cash.
—ALSO—
Mowing and Harvesting Tools
Of every description necessary to meet the wants of the farmers. These they have in large quantities, and can supply to traders wholesale and retail, at San Francisco prices.

All kinds of Farming Implements, Hardware and Seeds.
We are determined not to be undersold by any other house in the State; and invite customers to call and examine for themselves at our
