徳島縣社会教育基本方針（草案）

我々は我が国のおかれている客観的條件と我々の地方の特殊性を考え且つ教育基本法、社会教育法の精神に則ってすべての住民があらゆる機会に、あらゆる場所を利用し、自ら実生活に即した教養を高め、民主社会のよりよき成員となることができるような環境の醸成に努めるために、ここに次のような社会教育基本方針を定める。

1、社会教育は本来国民の自己教育であり、相互教育であるから官庁が指揮統制するようなことなく、その自主性を成長せしめるよう適切な指導と援助をすること

2、社会教育はその対象、内容、方法等あらゆる点から見て複雑多岐にわたるものであり、而も我が国の民主的再建のために果す役割は重大であるので、これが組織的計画とその為の財源の確保とが不一に必要である。

4、綜合的な視野をもち、具体的な見透しをたて、長期計画の策定をすること。

5、社会教育の優秀な指導者の養成計画をたてること。

6、各地域社会に中心的な社会教育施設をもつようにすること。

Report of Marugame City Social Education Advisory Committee

Name of reporter : Mr. Masao Wada

Date of reporting: 16 June 1950

I have read an article in the Shikoku Shimbun dated 9 June reporting that social education advisory committee is formed in Marugame City and this committee will have the first meeting on 9 June to plan programs of social education for this fiscal year. So I visited City Social Education Section to ask about this matter. Following is the talk of a Chief of Marugame City Education Section, Mr. Shogoro Okuma.

Bill No. 25, about "By-laws concerning fixed number, term of office and repayment of expenditure of Marugame City Social Education Advisory Committee" was submitted by mayor of Marugame City in Feb. 1950 to the city assembly. The by-laws will be given later. Votes were taken on this bill on 29 March. And it was decided that the bill should come into force from April 1950. Then the city office asked several kinds of organizations formed in this city to find out proper persons as social education advisory committee members representing organizations concerned. The methods of selecting people for the committee were left to each organization. (So some were elected by ballot voting and some were selected by the method of recommendation.) The following people were decided to be the committee members on 8 June. (In the past this city did not have social education advisory committee.)

The first meeting of this committee was held on 9 June 1950. At the meeting Mr. Torao Kono (representative of a cultural organization) was elected chairman by mutual vote. Mr. Shigeru Fujita as vice-chairman and Mrs. Ayako Kohashi also as vice-chairman were selected respectively.

At this meeting mayor asked following two questions of the committee members:

1. Regarding plans for a year of social education
2. How to carry out programs of social education based on the actual situation of this city.

The committee members are studying about these two questions at their own homes. Then they will meet on 22 June to make a decision on the problems after discussion.

To make a long story short, at present the city has its committee and the committee are studying about problems. At the second meeting, plans for a year and their policy will be decided upon. Also it is planned that the detailed regulation of the social education committee will be suggested.

TO : Superintendent of Education

ATTN: Social Education Section Chief.

Enclosed are copies of suggestions for Social Education Advisory Committees. It is recommended that you give copies to assembly members, social education personnel, Superintendents of education and social education advisory committees, on the prefectural level and on local levels.

Please send to this office the following information:

1. How many social education advisory committees are there throughout the prefecture? How many persons are on each committee? How many women are on each committee?

2. Have any liaison councils or federations of Social Education Advisory Committees been formed? If so, where are they located? What are their functions?

3. What has the prefectural committee done up to date?

4. Describe the general tendencies of local committees.

5. What have the local committees done? If there are many local committees, it is not necessary to give a report of all committees.

The social education section should do all it can toward orienting the members of the social education advisory committees in the meaning of social education, the activities of social education and desirable goals for social education. Orientation material could be prepared and distributed to members of the committees. Also, social education personnel could attend meetings of the committees and explain various aspects of social education work.

SOCIAL EDUCATION ADVISORY COMMITTEES

According to the provisions of the Social Education Law, Social Education Advisory Committees have been set up on a prefectural and on a local level. Other committees have yet to be formed. The following suggestions are felt to be appropriate.

1. The members of social education advisory committees should first become acquainted with the meaning of social education and the activities involved in social education.

2. The members of social education advisory committees should understand their functions as outlined in the Social Education Law, and should perform only those functions for which the committees were intended.

   a. The duties of the committees do not involve doing the work of social education officials.

   b. These committees are in advisory capacity and their advice must be considered by social education officials. However, social education officials are not under obligation to put into action everything that is suggested by the committees.

   c. Social education officials should not allow individual members of the committees to dictate to them or to unduly influence them in the carrying out of their official duties, or in changing their attitudes toward certain organizations or toward certain aspects of the work.

3. Where there are Boards of Education, the social education advisory committees transmit the advice and recommendations through the Superintendents of Education to the Social Education sections of the Secretariats. Where there are no Boards of Education, the advice and recommendations are transmitted to the social education officials through the chiefs of the education departments. Where there is no Board of Education or education department, the advice and recommendations are transmitted through the Mayors or headmasters to the assemblies, general affairs sections or appropriate offices.

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 12065 SECTION 3-402/NNDG NO. 775013

4. However, except such social education advisory committees as have been formed, it might be better not to encourage communities to form social education advisory committees until there are Boards of Education or until there is a need for such committees.

5. It is inadvisable for the Social Education Advisory Committees to form themselves into liaison councils.

a. The committees should concentrate on the functions for which they were appointed.

b. The liaison councils resemble a federation which is a formal, closely-knit organization. This is undesirable and unnecessary.

c. There is a strong inclination in Japan to want to federate so that there will be control of large groups of people by a few persons. Since this is being discouraged in social education activities, certainly it should be discouraged in the Social Education Advisory Committees.

d. It is not mentioned in the Social Education Law.

6. Article 18 of the Social Education Law permits local governments to decide on the term of office. Attention should be given to the terms of office and reappointments so that the Social Education Advisory Committees will not become self perpetuating bodies, or groups of social education bosses.

7. In Article 19 of the Social Education Law, it is stipulated that no salary or remuneration shall be paid to committee members, but that expenses shall be met. However, care should be taken so that expenses will not assume the proportions of salaries or remuneration. Expenses should be kept at a minimum. Unnecessary trips or surveys should be discouraged. If there is money available for social education, it should be spent for social education activities and not for the committees.

8. For new committees just forming, it is advisable to consider the appropriate number of committee members. This number should be small enough to do effective work, and yet large enough to get a fair representation of the various groups and organizations. Also, women's groups and women's interests should be fairly represented on the committee.

9. Individual committee members should not function by themselves. The individuals are all a part of the committee which functions as a unit. A chairman should be elected by the members. No decisions should be made without a quorum of the committee present.

The purpose of this association is to help organizations in carrying out the programs with money. This association provides materials and resources for education for women, youth and for adult education.

Charge of meeting places for the organizations will be paid by this association. Liaison conference is held usually once a month.

The things reported here were what Mr. Otani, Ehime Social Education Section official, talked on 29 March 1950 to Miss Shiota. He added that this association might have gotten some money from some government agency. But he did not know exactly about it.

SOCIAL EDUCATION ADVISORY COMMITTEES

(Based on material from CE Section, Tokai-Hokuriku Region, May 1950)

According to the provisions of the Social Education Law, Social Education Advisory Committees have been set up on a prefectural and on a local level. Other committees have yet to be formed. The following suggestions are felt to be appropriate.

1. The members of social education advisory committees should first become acquainted with the meaning of social education and the activities involved in social education.

2. The members of social education advisory committees should understand their functions as outlined in the Social Education Law, and should perform only those functions for which the committees were intended.

   a. The duties of the committees do not involve doing the work of social education officials.

   b. These committees are in advisory capacity and their advice must be considered by social education officials. However, social education officials are not under obligation to put into action everything that is suggested by the committees.

   c. Social education officials should not allow individual members of the committees to dictate to them or to unduly influence them in the carrying out of their official duties, or in changing their attitudes toward certain organizations or toward certain aspects of the work.

3. Where there are Boards of Education, the social education advisory committees transmit the advice and recommendations through the Superintendents of Education to the Social Education sections of the Secretariats. Of course, the superintendent keeps the Board of Education informed. Where there are no Boards of Education, the advice and recommendations are transmitted to the social education officials through the chiefs of the education departments. The chiefs of the education departments will keep the mayors informed. Where there is no Board of Education or education department, the advice and recommendations are transmitted through the Mayors or head-masters to the assemblies or appropriate offices.

4. However, it might be better not to encourage the formation of committees in places where committees have not already been formed unless the committees will really function. In many cases, the CPH Advisory Committee can also serve as the SEAC.

5. It is inadvisable for the Social Education Advisory Committees to form themselves into liaison councils.

4. However, except such social education advisory committees as have been formed, it might be better not to encourage communities to form social education advisory committees until there are Boards of Education or until there is a need for such committees.

5. It is inadvisable for the Social Education Advisory Committees to form themselves into liaison councils.

a. The committees should concentrate on the functions for which they were appointed.

b. The liaison councils resemble a federation which is a formal, closely-knit organization. This is undesirable and unnecessary.

c. There is a strong inclination in Japan to want to federate so that there will be control of large groups of people by a few persons. Since this is being discouraged in social education activities, certainly it should be discouraged in the Social Education Advisory Committees.

d. It is not mentioned in the Social Education Law.

6. Article 18 of the Social Educatinn Law permits local governments to decide on the term of office. Attention should be given to the terms of office and reappointments so that the Social Education Advisory Committees will not become self perpetuating bodies, or groups of social education bosses.

7. In Article 19 of the Social Education Law, it is stipulated that no salary or remuneration shall be paid to committee members, but that expenses shall be met. However, care should be taken so that expenses will not assume the proportions of salaries or remuneration. Expenses should be kept at a minimum. Unnecessary trips or surveys should be discouraged. If there is money available for social education, it should be spent for social education activities and not for the committees.

8. For new committees just forming, it is advisable to consider the appropriate number of committee members. This number should be small enough to do effective work, and yet large enough to get a fair representation of the various groups and organizations. Also, women's groups and women's interests should be fairly represented on the committee.

9. Individual committee members should not function by themselves. The individuals are all a part of the committee which functions as a unit. A chairman should be elected by the members. No decisions should be made without a quorum of the committee present.

10. Meetings of the committee should be at regular stated times. Also, the meetings should be held at a convenient time for all, and not during the working hours of any of the committee members.

11. The committees should strive to be unbiased, broad-minded and democratic, and through their influence, social education should be improved in the community.

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 12065 SECTION 3-402/NNDG NO. 775013

12. Examples of proper functions of Social Education Advisory Committees

a. Suggest programs for specific events such as for women's week, or Youth Day.

b. Suggest topics for adult education courses which are needed or desired by the community.

c. Suggest coordination of community agencies and organizations on the subject of life improvement. A plan for this coordination could be included.

d. Suggest programs, activities or action that will tend to remedy organizational defects such as involuntary membership, the rule by bosses, inactive members, etc.

e. In connection with available printed material, make suggestions as to which would be of value to distribute or reprint, and which groups would benefit by the material.

f. Suggest new material that is needed and that could be developed by members of the social education section.

g. Analyze the social education program for needs that have not been met, and make recommendations concerning the inclusion of these needs in the program.

h. Recommend the development of well-rounded, effective CPH's and CPH programs.

i. After examining the budget, recommend to the assembly that the budget for social education be adjusted to meet the needs of social education.

j. When increase in personnel is being considered, recommend the added personnel include a woman if there is no woman already working, or that the added personnel work on social education which has not been adequately covered.

k. The prefectural social education advisory committee could recommend the establishment of local committees in communities where there is a Board of Education or where there is a need for such committees.

13. Examples of improper functions of Social Education Advisory Committees

a. It is improper for the committee to sponsor meetings, lectures or training courses.

b. It is improper to publish pamphlets or magazines.

c. It is improper to conduct research that could be carried on by the social education section.

d. It is improper to plan the social education budget or to plan the entire detailed program for the Social Education Section.

e. It is improper to make direct contact with individual organizations except for the purpose of acquiring information.

f. It is improper for individual committee members or the committee as a whole to interfere with social education officials or to try to control them or unduly influence them in any way.

g. It is improper to allow personal affiliation of committee members to detract from the function of overall planning for social education.

h. It is improper to allow individual groups or organizations to dominate or unduly influence the committee.

5. It is inadvisable for the Social Education Advisory Committees to form themselves into liaison councils.

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 12065 SECTION 3-402/NNDG NO. 775013

SOCIAL EDUCATION ADVISORY COMMITTEES

(Based on material from CE Section, Tokai-Hokuriku Region, May 1950)

According to the provisions of the Social Education Law, Social Education Advisory Committees have been set up on a prefectural and on a local level. Other committees have yet to be formed. The following suggestions are felt to be appropriate.

1. The members of social education advisory committees should first become acquainted with the meaning of social education and the activities involved in social education.

2. The members of social education advisory committees should understand their functions as outlined in the Social Education Law, and should perform only those functions for which the committees were intended.

   a. The duties of the committees do not involve doing the work of social education officials.

   b. These committees are in advisory capacity and their advice must be considered by social education officials. However, social education officials are not under obligation to put into action everything that is suggested by the committees.

   c. Social education officials should not allow individual members of the committees to dictate to them or to unduly influence them in the carrying out of their official duties, or in changing their attitudes toward certain organizations or toward certain aspects of the work.

3. Where there are Boards of Education, the social education advisory committees transmit the advice and recommendations through the Superintendents of Education to the Social Education sections of the Secretariats. Where there are no Boards of Education, the advice and recommendations are transmitted to the social education officials through the chiefs of the education departments. Where there is no Board of Education or education department, the advice and recommendations are transmitted through the Mayors or head-masters to the assemblies, or appropriate offices.

4. However, except such social education advisory committees as have been formed, it might be better not to encourage communities to form social education advisory committees until there are Boards of Education or until there is a need for such committees.

5. It is inadvisable for the Social Education Advisory Committees to form themselves into liaison councils.

a. The committees should concentrate on the functions for which they were appointed.

b. The liaison councils resemble a federation which is a formal, closely-knit organization. This is undesirable and unnecessary.

c. There is a strong inclination in Japan to want to federate so that there will be control of large groups of people by a few persons. Since this is being discouraged in social education activities, certainly it should be discouraged in the Social Education Advisory Committees.

d. It is not mentioned in the Social Education Law.

6. Article 18 of the Social Education Law permits local governments to decide on the term of office. Attention should be given to the terms of office and reappointments so that the Social Education Advisory Committees will not become self perpetuating bodies, or groups of social education bosses.

7. In Article 19 of the Social Education Law, it is stipulated that no salary or remuneration shall be paid to committee members, but that expenses shall be met. However, care should be taken so that expenses will not assume the proportions of salaries or remuneration. Expenses should be kept at a minimum. Unnecessary trips or surveys should be discouraged. If there is money available for social education, it should be spent for social education activities and not for the committees.

8. For new committees just forming, it is advisable to consider the appropriate number of committee members. This number should be small enough to do effective work, and yet large enough to get a fair representation of the various groups and organizations. Also, women's groups and women's interests should be fairly represented on the committee.

9. Individual committee members should not function by themselves. The individuals are all a part of the committee which functions as a unit. A chairman should be elected by the members. No decisions should be made without a quorum of the committee present.

10. Meetings of the committee should be at regular stated times. Also, the meetings should be held at a convenient time for all, and not during the working hours of any of the committee members.

11. The committees should strive to be unbiased, broad-minded and democratic, and through their influence, social education should be improved in the community.

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 12065 SECTION 3-402/NNDG NO. 775013

12. Examples of proper functions of Social Education Advisory Committees

a. Suggest programs for specific events such as for women's week, or Youth Day.

b. Suggest topics for adult education courses which are needed or desired by the community.

c. Suggest coordination of community agencies and organizations on the subject of life improvement. A plan for this coordination could be included.

d. Suggest programs, activities or action that will tend to remedy organizational defects such as involuntary membership, the rule by bosses, inactive members, etc.

e. In connection with available printed material, make suggestions as to which would be of value to distribute or reprint, and which groups would benefit by the material.

f. Suggest new material that is needed and that could be developed by members of the social education section.

g. Analyze the social education program for needs that have not been met, and make recommendations concerning the inclusion of these needs in the program.

h. Recommend the development of well-rounded, effective CPH's and CPH programs.

i. After examining the budget, recommend to the assembly that the budget for social education be adjusted to meet the needs of social education.

j. When increase in personnel is being considered, recommend the added personnel include a woman if there is no woman already working, or that the added personnel work on social education which has not been adequately covered.

k. The prefectural social education advisory committee could recommend the establishment of local committees in communities where there is a Board of Education or where there is a need for such committees.

13. Examples of improper functions of Social Education Advisory Committees

a. It is improper for the committee to sponsor meetings, lectures or training courses.

b. It is improper to publish pamphlets or magazines.

c. It is improper to conduct research that could be carried on by the social education section.

d. It is improper to plan the social education budget or to plan the entire detailed program for the Social Education Section.

e. It is improper to make direct contact with individual organizations except for the purpose of acquiring information.

f. It is improper for individual committee members or the committee as a whole to interfere with social education officials or to try to control them or unduly influence them in any way.

g. It is improper to allow personal affiliation of committee members to detract from the function of overall planning for social education.

h. It is improper to allow individual groups or organizations to dominate or unduly influence the committee.

i. It is improper to demand that funds be used for certain projects developed by the committee, or for any other specific projects.

三、教育委員会のある所では社会教育長を通じて事務局の社会教育課にその助言及び勧告を傳えます。

勿論教育長は教育委員会にも連絡をします。教育委員会の無い所では教育部(課)長を通じて社会教育職員に助言及び勧告が傳えられます、教育部も無い所では町村長を通じて社会教育委員会も教育部もない所では町村長にも連絡します又教育委員会が適当な件関に傳えられます。

a委員会は任命された職務に全力を傾倒すべきであります。

a連絡協議会は形式的、緊密な連絡体本にたっています これは望ましくない
