COLUMBUS SCHOOL BID ACCEPTED

Board Education Attacks Business District Near Doran School

INTERMEDIATE HEAT Plant at Central to Be Cor- rected, Tennis Courts Re-Surfaced

Members of the Board of Education had so much business to transact at their meeting Tuesday evening that their session lasted until 11 o'clock.

One of the matters which came before them was a petition presented by Mrs. H. S. Owen, residing in the Doran street school district, protesting against the establishment of a business district on Doran opposite the school.

Bids in connection with the Columbus avenue school addition were considered and the bid of Elmer Elliott of $19,601 for the general contract was accepted.

The bid of Hoagland & Lakin of $1280 for a ventilating system for the Glendale avenue intermediate, was accepted.

The committee appointed to investigate the heating plant at the present intermediate with power to act, reported that it was abandoning the hot water plant and substituting therefore gas steam radiators.

Superintendent White reported that Mr. Ferry had agreed to remove the buildings purchased by the city from the Glendale campus this week.

Mr. White also reported that an organization of superintendents and business agents is being formed for the purpose of securing better prices on school supplies.

ARKANSAS SATURATED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 12.—Approximately 14,000 acres of land were under six to eight feet of water today as the result of a break in a levee, a short distance north of Snow Lake, Ark.

Fifty hundred families at Elaine, Washakie, Lakeview, Oneida, Barton and Helena Crossing have been driven from their homes and are living in box cars.

Lounge Lizard to Be Exiled From Divorce Court

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—The lounge lizard of the courtroom must go. That is the edict of Superior Judge J. M. Summerfield, who presides over the divorce division of the superior courts here.

Judge Summerfield is tired of seeing the same faces day after day in the spectator's seats in the courtroom, and announced that hereafter those who, through morbid sex curiosity and a love of scandal persist in using his courtroom as a free show, will be put out of the courtroom by the bailiff.

FIGHTING, SINGING MAYOR OF CITY SHOWS 'EM

Puts Them on With City Health Officer and Swap Wallops

"Ladies and gentlemen, on my right is 'Batling' Spencer Robinson of Glendale, and on my left is 'Kid' Eckles, also of Glendale, who are matched this evening for a battle, the winner to be declared the heavyweight champion of the Glendale city hall."

This is an exact quotation of the announcer who had charge of the entertainment of the fire laddies at the banquet last night but it is a darn good lead for a story, catches the eye, creates interest, in everything besides giving a faint intimation of the story and all teachers of journalism say that a lead should do all these things.

All jokes aside, though, the mayor and the health officer in the Glendale met last night in the squared circle and for two rounds fought a battle of wallops and not a few laughs.

The match between the mayor and Dr. Eckles was the main event on a card that included a bout between Johnny Meyers of the Glendale fire department and his younger brother, "Kid" Meyers, also of the department. The match between the mayor and the health officer was an impromptu affair and arranged as a joke at first. Some one challenged Dr. Eckles for the mayor, and the mayor made good.

At the end of the first round the battle was declared a draw, but in the second round "Batling" Robinson came back strong and hammered the "Kid" all over the ring. At the middle of the ring, exhausted but still slugging, the "Battler" finally landed a haymaker on the "Kid's" stomach and knocked him for a row of germs. Robinson was declared the winner of the bout by the referee, popular decision and Dr. Eckles both men showed wonderful form and once in a while landed a good punch. It is said that one of Tex Rickard's scouts was present, and after the battle offered both men a large salary to tour the country, put in the United Press office, and were laymen gave his opinion that they were laymen gave his opinion that they were laymen gave his opinion that they were laymen.

ALLIED WAR DEBT PLAN PROGRESSES

British Ready to Begin Negotiations to Refund Eleven Billions

EASY PAYMENT PLAN

Representatives of Debtor Nations to Assemble at Washington

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Great Britain has informed the state department that she is ready to begin immediate negotiations looking toward the refunding of the $11,000,000,000 allied debt to the United States. It was learned officially here today.

The other debtor nations will not cause any delay in the negotiations. Assurances to this effect have already been received from France, Belgium and Italy, it was said.

Great Britain's commission is expected to arrive here within a month, closely followed by representatives of other nations. Indications are that the United States, and Great Britain—the two big credit nations—will stand together in the negotiations against any moves of France or any other power toward cancellation of the debts.

Both governments, however, will grant liberal terms for payment. Great Britain already has served notice on France that she expects payment of all the French-British obligations. Much of the $4,000,000,000 loaned by the United States to Britain was re-loaned to other countries.

FIRE LADDIES ARE HOSTS TO SOME TURKEYS

Firemen and City Execu- tives Enertain Birds in Real Fashion

A turkey dinner was given to the boys of the Glendale fire department last night in firehouse No. 1 as a reward for the excellent work done by the laddies in converting an out-of-date fire apparatus into a modern ladder wagon.

Edmonds and Louis Tinning together with H. L. Finlay and R. C. Kelley are present representing the local church. The sessions will close on Thursday evening. Dr. W. D. Landis of El Sereno church is the Moderator.

WHEAT POOL COMING

FARGO, N. D., April 12.—A huge wheat pool will be formed this year by a group of farm organizations in the Northwest as a result of decisions reached here in the last two days.

The Equity Co-operative exchange, North Dakota branches of the National Wheat Growers and United States Grain Growers Inc. and the Northwestern Wheat Growers joined in endorsing a program calling for a 100 per cent pool of wheat in this producing section.

Straw Ballot on Sewer Plan

The editorial in Tuesday's Glendale Daily Press urging a straw ballot for the crystallizing of a harmonious sewer propaganda in Glendale met with an enthusiastic reception.

Telephone messages to the Press indicate that those who have given thought to the subject were eager to obtain an angle of approach to the public mind.

In response to the urging of its friends, the Glendale Daily Press has decided to put its idea to the test, to submit a straw ballot to Glendale.

The ballot which is printed below is very simple. It submits the thoughts of the community on the sewer propositions. There are only two: One is for an out-fall through the use of the projected Los Angeles out-fall; the other inclines to one of the local disposal plants. The type of plant for the purposes of the ballot does not matter materially.

Those who have opinions on the subject apart from these objectives may comment as they desire on the ballot. Or add comment as they may desire.

These ballots should be forwarded through the mail or deposited in the office of the Glendale Press any time during the week the ballot will be printed.

MERCHANTS' SALES TAX OPPOSED BY CREDIT MEN

Forward Copies of Resolu- tion to the City Council

At their meeting and luncheon held Monday in the assembly hall of the chamber of commerce the members of the Glendale Credit Association went on record as opposing the proposed special tax that the city council is contemplating placing on the business houses of the city.

Only by getting filled with pledges the emergency subscription blanks taken last week by interested friends at churches, clubs, the high school and other groups, will Glendale be able to meet its quota for Near East relief, according to Rev. W. Mottorn, 211 North Adams street, who makes the following statement:

"Interested friends in many Glendale organizations who have become sponsors for these subscription blanks are requested to circulate them as fast as possible and persons who do not receive calls from sponsors are urged to send checks to E. E. Osgood, treasurer N. E. R., telephone Glendale 1146, First National bank of Glendale."

DEATH VALLEY TO BE LUNCH TOPIC

Sons of Revolution Se- cures C. I. D. Moore for Talk

The Sons of the Revolution will hold a luncheon Wednesday, April 18, at the City Club, Chapman building, "Eight" and Broadway, Los Angeles, at noon.

The society is particularly fortunate in having for its speaker for this event, C. I. D. Moore, vice-president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company, who will give a wonderfully interesting talk on "Death Valley," illustrated with colored stereoptical slides.

REPARATION IS SPECTRE AT GENOA

Frank Vanderlip Conference will Fail Unless Subject Discussed

SOURCE OF ALL ILLS

Cannot Reconstruct Eur- ope Without Rebuild- ing of Germany

GENOA, April 12.—Frank A. Vanderlip, American financier, who is here observing the Genoa conference, today declared the conference cannot succeed completely unless the question of reparation is discussed here.

Vanderlip, in his first criticism of the conference, came to the defense of the German demand that reparations be brought up at Genoa and declared that many of Europe's ills, which the parley met to heal, are directly traceable to uncertainty on this issue.

"While it is impossible for me to judge the prospects at Genoa, because it is not even determined yet how the conference is to proceed, I am doubtful of Genoa's ability materially to promote an European construction revival without a discussion of reparations," Vanderlip said.

"While I am not passing on the wisdom of statements who convened the conference in barring reparations for discussion, the fact remains you cannot reconstruct Europe unless Germany also is reconstructed. The most recent German financial reports show that in new paper marks were issued. This inflation of currency, which is most damaging to European financial stability, can be traced to uncertainty of reparations."

"Moreover, it will be most difficult to balance budgets without a discussion of reparations."

"However, I do not wish to prejudge the conference. It is too early to forecast the outcome. Each nation still is feeling its way cautiously, awaiting decisive developments."

Genoa's modern "tower of Babel" is gradually finding articulate voice. Disputes, savoring of old world world diplomacy, in which balance of power played such an important part in the first 4 hours of the economic conference, have been straightened out under firm dictatorship of Premier Lloyd George.

These results of the Genoa parley are within sight:

- 1.—Re-admission of Russia into the family of nations.
- 2.—Agreement among European powers providing for non-aggression.
- 3.—Economic, financial and trans-

400 MACHINES IN END OF TRAIL CARAVAN

National Real Estate Boards Ass'n Plans Big Hike on L. A.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—At least 400 automobiles will compose the "End of the Trail" caravan which will carry about 1500 delegates to the National Association of Real Estate Boards from Los Angeles to San Francisco.

The caravan, which will take the route through San Joaquin valley, will start from Los Angeles on the morning of May 29. The caravan will be conducted on regular military lines. Controls will be established at the length of the route, and repair trucks bringing up the rear.

The first stop after leaving Los Angeles will be Bakersfield, where the caravan will be treated to an old-fashioned barbecue. The caravan will then pass through the Midway oil field, and through the orange and vineyard country to Fresno, where the realty board of that city will furnish dinner.

An early morning start will be made from Fresno, and the caravan will wind its way through the grape and fig country into the Madera, Merced, and Turlock. It will be met ten miles outside this city by a delegation of the San Francisco Real Estate Board.

Mexican Situation Discussed Tonight by Able Business Man

Tonight on the editorial page you will find an article by Maynard McFie on "The Recognition of Mexico." It is a startling statement of facts regarding our neighboring country. Mr. McFie, one of the ablest business men on the Pacific coast, a director of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank, and general manager of a great wholesale steel products company, gives a clear exposition of the Mexican situation. He traces the politics of the country, touches on the history of the country and shows why the United States has not recognized Mexico and why it would be folly to do so until certain changes are made which would guarantee business safety.

James J. Foley in "The Listening Post" tonight on the editorial page tells of three spirits, gloom, gladness and dread, each looking upon the world and seeing only what he had eyes to see from his viewpoint.

Henry James in his comment on the day's news speaks of the girl in San Francisco who offers to pay $50,000 for a husband, and makes appropriate comment on this case.

DOMINIES DINE AND DISCUSS OTHER DAYS

Members Association Re- tired Ministers Hold Convention

Glendale, the convention city, entertained Tuesday the association of retired ministers of the Methodist church of Southern California, which met at the First M. E. church on Wilson avenue.

The morning session, given over to official reports and election of officers, was followed by a luncheon served in the banquet hall by members of the Ladies' Aid, Mrs. Charles Starkey, Mrs. C. D. Lusby, Mrs. A. W. Tower and others.

Covers were laid for 110 dominies and their wives and it was a jolly gathering, for it would be hard to beat a group of Methodist parsons at story telling, especially such good old pioneers as were these.

The tables were beautifully decorated with sprays of flowers and peaches and the good meal and pleasant environment, tempted these friends in the faith to prolong their enjoyment.

At the afternoon session, which opened at 2 o'clock, Rev. W. B. Collins gave the address of welcome and told something of church development in the city, especially forward movements in the church in which the members were meeting. He told of the Sunday school and Epworth League work. Said he, "The extent to which organization has been carried in the church in general and the efficiency of modern methods, are wonderful. I wouldn't change them, and yet somehow, somewhere, I miss something, a personal, spontaneous something which we do not feel to-day."

The "amens" that followed showed commensurate interest as that continued to manifest itself as a response to express the belief that there would be a return to the old, simple, evangelistic spirit which would cause a more spiritual growth and reach the young early in life, he himself, having been converted at nine years of age.

Rev. J. B. Albrook followed with a response to the address of welcome, and Rev. C. L. Stanford conducted a real old-fashioned Methodist love feast.

The officers elected at the morning session were Rev. W. B. Collins, president; Rev. C. R. Norton, secretary (for the eighth year); Rev. Henry Goodall, vice-president, all of Glendale; Mrs. Q. E. Von Mabel Rudy and Mrs. O. E. Von Owen had been nominated and elected, three others were to be elected. They elected, viz. Mrs. M. E. Plasterer, Mrs. Walter Jones and Mrs. Harry C. Wilcox.

Mrs. Hutchinson then announced the appointment of four members authorized to receive gifts toward the new club house. They were

SOCIETY TO GIVE CIRCUS IN GLENDALE

Tuesday Afternoon Club Plans for Event Are Announced

MAY 25-27 ARE DATES

Miss Zillah Withrow Fur- nished Program Var- ied Entertainment

Members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club enjoyed a pleasant variety entertainment this week in a program provided by Miss Zillah Withrow, assisted by Alice Spencer Rand, piano accompanist, and Mr. Rand, who has a charming baritone voice and delightfully clear enunciation which brought enthusiastic and spontaneous applause after every song. He and Mrs. Rand furnished the interludes between Miss Withrow's numbers.

The opening readings were a series in which Miss Withrow personated first a little girl, then a sweet girl graduate, a sweet little old-fashioned "widow of Mr. Doley," and last the accepted type of suffragette. She did them very well and excels in sobrette characterizations. She then gave a couple of interpretative Indian dances, one the sacred Deva Dassi dance, the other a lotus dance to an appropriate accompaniment played by Mrs. Rand.

Mr. Rand's program included "Slave Song" by Teresa del Riego, "I Love Thee" by Mildenberg, and a group of Irish numbers in costume of green coat and tall hat—"Iole of Dreams," "The Dear Little Girl," "Mother Macree," and a very unusual old folk song—"Ballymore Ballad." Mr. Rand is a member of the celebrated quartette "The Four Embers," and he and Mrs. Rand have entered into a contract with the Affiliated Chautauque Lyceum for a year. Before it expires they will be in Glendale with the Ellison-White combination but not until 1923.

Among the announcements which preceded the program was the tale of the Society Circus which the Ways and Means committee has decided to give May 25, 26 and 27. There will be a committee composed of Mrs. L. N. Ha, which will include Mrs. L. N. Ha, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. Charles Parker and others. Mrs. Stephen Packer will have charge of a country store and was introduced that she might solicit stock for her counters—canned goods, soap, matches, anything salable which she asked the donors to bring to the meetings where she would receive them.

Mrs. Andrew Findlay also requested contributions for a "white elephant department"—anything not wanted which some one else might prize.

Mrs. John Robert White Jr., read the provisions of the bylaws relative to the appointment of an executive board of five members the chairman and one other to be selected by the executive board, and three others elected by the club at a regular meeting. Mrs. Hutchinson, president, stated that Mrs. Mabel Rudy and Mrs. O. E. Von Owen had been nominated and elected, three others were to be elected. They elected, viz. Mrs. M. E. Plasterer, Mrs. Walter Jones and Mrs. Harry C. Wilcox.

Mrs. Hutchinson then announced the appointment of four members authorized to receive gifts toward the new club house. They were

JINGLING JAZZ OF THE NEWS

By Bert Marple

The Mayor and Dr. Eckles battle the Mayor a breathless finish. While the fire boys proceed to raise the roof; And the preachers hold a banquet where they tell some funny stories. Of just how they beat "Old Nick"—they furnish proof.

Then the board of education spends some twenty thousand dollars To help Columbus school—that sure is well; And friend "Polly" at the T. D. L. is full of little giggles—Mrs. Wirt weds E. E. Leggett—ring the bell.

K. of P. brings forth its "butler" which stirs something up, I'll say. As a bunch of shrinking victims stand in line; And the credit men are after that there license tax for fair—Eagle Rock says that its water sure is fine.

An interesting program by the Tuesday Club is given, Friend Stork fills Preeman's home with happiness; If you have an Easter party or, perhaps, you're leaving town, Don't forget to tell it to the GLENDALE PRESS.

Glendale Building Has Just Begun

The hundreds of new buildings being erected in Glendale are going to stand for many years as a monument to the men who constructed them. Homes and business blocks are practically all built with restrictions that compel not only good material but the best in workmanship. Contractors and builders and builders supply houses in Glendale are not trying to make a fortune on one house or one building or two. They are putting the best in material and workmanship in every building.

There are a large number of reliable contractors in Glendale who have moved their equipment here, knowing, as every one knows, that the building activity has just begun and feeling confident that it will last indefinitely. It is estimated that there will be five thousand buildings erected in this city between January 1st, 1922, and January 1st, 1923.

Glendale is going to be known as a city of beautiful homes and substantial business buildings, all of which will reflect credit upon the building fraternity from the skilled mechanic to the superintending architect.

'FALSE KISSES' IS TALE OF FISHING VILLAGE LASS

'Are You An Elk' Comedy Is Added Feature at Glendale
The Tuesday night audience at the Glendale theatre had a novelty in the comedy "Are You An Elk" supplemental to the picture "False Kisses" (written before the 18th amendment), International News Review, etc.

It was one of the old-time comedies reduced to tabloid form to meet the rapid-fire demands of moving picture audiences. Father and son-in-law—the old-time gray of staying out until the wee hours enjoying wine, women and song, have each conceived the brilliant idea of pretending to be Elks and so reconciling their wives to their absences. Around their efforts to avoid betrayal to each other and to their wives the slender plot revolves, enlivened by vocal solos of vaudeville type, ending in both making application for lodge membership.

The feature picture, under its rather misleading name of "False Kisses," has a beautiful sea setting and presents elemental passions in a simple environment without artificial complications. A courtship young school teacher in a fishing village is sought by two men, previously chums, and divides them. She marries one, with some glamour still enveloping the other. When put to a severe test after five years of married life under trying conditions, she finds, after all, that the ropes of affection, hard experiences shared and family ties are too strong to be broken and she and her husband are reunited in heart.

WHICH PETAL WILL THE PRINCE PICK FROM THE DAISY?

The Prince of Wales, heir of the British throne, might be called the king-of hearts. During recent months he has been reported to be engaged to the five titled ladies in the daisy group about him. Which petal will he pluck? Society in all the world is eager to know the answer. The Prince, going merrily on his way, unperturbed by reports of his "forthcoming marriage" is not telling anyone who will be "she." From the great list of eligibles he even may decide that he doesn't care for a daisy petal, after all. The Prince is expected to make a choice when he returns from his tour of the Orient.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Oldest Inhabitant

The present scarcity of gold, when it was so common in California a few years ago, reminds one of the year 1896, when there was a similar scarcity. I remember that when an ardent free silverite jeeringly challenged some of us McKinley supporters to show him a piece of gold, declaring it could not be done, I went to a banker friend and got him to loan me a $20 gold piece for a few minutes so I could "cash" the enthusiastic Bryanite. The supporters of the peerless one in that—his first battle—were certainly ardent in their advocacy of his cause and certain of his election. One of my schoolboy friends back in Olin, Illinois, where I lived in the latter sixties and early seventies, was Johnnie Sugg. He and Billy Bryan, who then lived at Salem, his birthplace, six miles east of Olin, were chums, visiting each other often and having good times together. Johnnie afterward became mayor of Olin and a prominent business man of the little city. He kept up his friendship with Bryan even after he moved from Salem, and when his old chum became a candidate for the presidency, he worked for him most enthusiastically and bet everything he had on his election, so certain was he. Well, you know the result and Johnnie's fate. He was certainly a sadder and a wiser man and he never regained his old financial standing.

We are apt to boast often these days that rapid transit has about reached its limit, on land, in the air and on the waters of the great deep. But if the usually reliable Los Angeles Times is to be believed a noted Frenchman set a record for rapid navigation nearly 250 years ago that has never been approached. In an editorial in last Sunday's issue on the significance of the date, April 9, in American history, the paper mentioned the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox on that day in 1865, thus ending the war of the rebellion, and added: "On this day in the year 1682 the Chevalier La Salle descended the Mississippi to its mouth," etc. As the Mississippi is 2100 miles long, the chevalier certainly set the pace for a day's sailing.

I have a mighty good friend in this great city and his name is Clifford A. Cole. He is not "Dye" Cole, though frequently called. Nor is he ever "Rev." Cole, for he and the people he preaches for do not believe in any but Bible names, so if you must put a handle to his name call him Elder Cole. In giving an object sermon to the young people of his church, which is a weekly custom with him, on a recent Sunday, he held up what looked like a very large bill book which was filled with letters, and explained that it had been traveling about constantly for 17 years, having circled the earth several times. He said that when his class graduated that many years ago the members all agreed to write each other every year as long as they lived. One of them wrote the first letter and started it to a fellow member. He or she added to it and sent the whole thing to the next one. And so it made the rounds, increasing in size constantly and finally coming back to the first sender, with "messages from all the class. Every year this was repeated and no one could measure the enjoyment the accumulated correspondence has brought to each member of the class. Nearly, if not quite, all the members have married and there have been a few deaths, but no one has ever thought of breaking the chain. Now, don't you think this was a great thought?

My good friends Cyrus Goodyer is a mighty long-headed individual, according to my notion. After 30 years of strenuous restaurant business in the roaring town just south of us, he came out to quiet little Glendale a few years ago and started a somewhat similar business on a then quiet street, two blocks from the main commercial center.

LADIES' AID DINNER TOO SUCCESSFUL

So well patronized were the ladies of the southwest section of the Congregational ladies' aid at the dinner they served at the church Tuesday night that they ran out of supplies and had to turn late patrons away. They cleared about $20 for the church building fund, which is mounting steadily through the earnings turned in from day to day by the various organizations of the church.

Friday night, girls in the Sunday school class of Mrs. Blake Franklin are giving a benefit stereopticon entertainment as a church benefit, and Saturday at Neale & Gregg's store there will be a sale of home-cooked food prepared by the women of the church, who have secured the sale privilege for the third Saturday of each month.

The hosts committee at the dinner Tuesday night included Mesdames C. P. Parker, Harry Baileys, Clara Lauderdale, C. M. Calderwood and H. W. Yarrick.

MR. AND MRS. T. L. HULL ENTERTAIN L. A. FRIENDS
Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Hull of 328 W. Colorado entertained the following Los Angeles friends at dinner, Tuesday: Mrs. M. E. Swigart, Mrs. Emily Woods and Mrs. Minnie Baker. A very good time was enjoyed.

GOVERNOR APPOINTS
LOS ANGELES, April 12.—Governor William D. Stephens today appointed George H. Luhrs of Woodford, Calif., to succeed R. A. Springmeyer, resigned as commissioner for the fourth district, county of Alpine.

He had faith in the growth of the city and he made no mistake for now he's in a very busy section, with all he can possibly do. In fact he and his good wife are worked so hard that they seriously contemplate disposing of their splendid business, so they can have a little time to enjoy their beautiful home down on East Park avenue, where Mr. Goodyer has recently installed a complete sprinkler system to keep green his most attractive lawn, and help to irrigate the fruit-trees, shrubs and flowers that add so much to the attractiveness of the place. Mr. Goodyer has in mind a manufacturing business which he wishes to and may yet establish in Glendale.

The many, many people in Glendale whom I feel sure have read some or all of Ople Beasly's works will be glad to know that he is one of the attractions of the coming Ellison-White Chautauqua which comes to Glendale for the third time next month. While his writings must be classed as light literature yet there is nothing in the least coarse in any of them, while many gems of thought and quaint expressions of rare beauty can be found in all. In the book I love best of all his works, "Old Ebenezer" are two striking expressions that I can now call to mind. Nancy Pitt's father says to Sam Lyman, when introduced to him, "Isn't this a fine day?" "Just as fine as the first one," is Sam's reply. "Think first one," is Sam's reply. "I take in this a moment and take in this over the stairs and into the editorial room of the little printing office where Sam wrote out his quaint thoughts he found the latter scribbling away. He said to him: "Written for the paper, are you?" "Yes," said Sam, "the typesetter is waiting for copy." "Tellin' people what they don't know, I reckon," rejoined Zeb. "No," said Sam, "only reminding them of what they do know."

Comrade Tom Hull of 328 West Colorado who, though mighty close to the four-score mark, is as spry as most men of 50, is a well-known and welcome figure at a majority of the G. A. R., W. R. C., Sons of Veterans and Daughters of Veterans' gatherings in the Southland.

A Year Ago Today

(From the Glendale Daily Press of April 12, 1921)

At the meeting of the Intermediate school parent-teacher association yesterday afternoon, Richardson D. White, superintendent of the grammar schools, said that at present there are 700 more children in the Glendale schools than there were this time last year. He used this to illustrate the need for the bonds to be voted on for the extension of school buildings of the city.

Several Glendaleans are taking an interest in the specialty dog show for the Pekingeses and Pomeranians breeds, to be given at the Ambassador hotel on April 22 and 23, to the extent of showing their pets. The Glendaleans having dogs on exhibition will be Louise Dresser, Mrs. R. W. Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Robinson and John W. Wilton.

One of the most important organizations of Glendale as far as the young people are concerned was formed Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Robinson. This new organization is the junior auxiliary of the Glendale Music club. The following officers were elected: Veda Knapp, president; Julia Robinson, first vice president; Constance Braasch, second vice president; Genevieve Mulligan, recording secretary; Kenneth Robinson, secretary, and William Farrar, historian.

He is also in great demand by these orders around installation times, to properly seat the new officers. Comrade Hull misses very few national conventions of the G. A. R. and he says he is always mighty glad at such gatherings to meet men who wore the grey and clasp them by the hand, knowing that though they faced him and his comrades in battle away back 60 years ago, they are now his firm friends and as loyal to the government as he is. He relates an interesting experience he had a few years ago when he made a side trip down into Arkansas after attending a national encampment. In a little town down there he met some ex-rebel soldiers and became very friendly with them. They were just ready to start to an encampment of confederate veterans to be held in Atlanta and urged him to go along. He said he couldn't afford to pay full fare and the commander of the camp told him to join them and he could go to the reduced fare "and it will not cost you a cent while you are there." Isn't this a fine spirit between former enemies?

SPRING SHOES ARE MODIFIED TYPES OF STYLES

No Radical Change Is Shown This Year in Modish Models

NEW YORK, April 12.—The spring shoe styles this year show no radical change except that they have a tendency toward moderation.

The cut-out sandals and pumps with the openwork vamps are not considered as smart as they were last season. In fact, the sandal types all seem to be greatly modified and the shoe with the strap dividing the instep is perhaps the most successful of the new combinations. Often the sides of a shoe of this kind will be cut deep and the Cuban heel or military heel is generally used. Only a few of the real dressy models appear with the high French heel. This lowering of the heel is noticeable in all the smart shoe shops, but there seems to be enough of the higher heels to supply the demand which the older matrons will undoubtedly create.

The shoe with the elastic goring is one of the smartest of the new spring models. If it is to be as comfortable as its predecessor, "Grandpa's old comfort slipper," it will be widely used during the summer. The snugness with which it fits over the instep makes it particularly becoming to the foot and when one considers that it slips on without having to be fastened, it surely seems attractive. The gores of elastic are placed at the sides and the vamp comes well up over the foot. This type of shoe has been worn in London for some time, and is considered far more chic over there than the French shoe with the many cross straps.

Colors predominate in shoes just as they do in hats and gowns this year. There are taupes and beige kids, trimmed with strips of patent leather over the toes and with patent straps. Red heels are shown, though American women do not seem to take to them as they do in Paris.

The newest shoe feature is the dyeing of white shoes to match the costume. A taupe gown with henna embroidery appeared on Fifth Avenue the other day with shoes of taupe with henna heels. This color idea carried out in the shoes gets an interesting appearance to an otherwise usual costume. Black satin combined with patent leather is new and looks well with the dressy gown. Then there are combinations such as beige and brown, black and white, grey and patent, all of which are attractive without calling too much attention to the foot.

Vamps seem to be growing a little longer, though it is to be hoped we will never turn to those abominable pointed affairs of a few years back.

SHIP SUBSIDIES NEED SAFETY CLUTCH

President's Bill Will Meet With Opposition in Congress

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Numerous safety clauses must be written into President Harding's ship subsidy bill before it can be passed in Congress, many members of the House believe.

After a careful analysis of the subsidy proposal, these members say they now detect a lack of safeguards without which the subsidy, instead of helping American shipping in general, might be made into a proposition under which all the subsidy benefits could be apportioned among a few "favorite" ship concerns and competition destroyed.

Summed up, the complaint is that the measure confers too broad powers on the United States Shipping Board.

The President's plan provides that a majority of the shipping board members (four) shall decide who shall get subsidy aid and to what extent. These four members could give one Pacific Coast concern a subsidy and refuse it to another Pacific Coast company, and the company turned down would have no way of making an official protest. The President's plan, it is charged, allows absolute control, not even in the form of a hearing before the Shipping Board for a concern whose application for subsidy is rejected.

The House members studying the subsidy plan do not believe there is any intent of administering the subsidy unjustly, but they will insist that Congress "play safe."

Other "dangers" in the president's proposal are pointed out as follows:

1.—The Shipping Board is now advertising for bids on more than 1,500 ships which, board members admit, will bring "practically nothing" on the present market. Some House members charge that they see in this sale a scheme for "handing" the ships to private concerns before the ship subsidy is passed in Congress, after which the ships will double or triple in value.

2.—The subsidy plan authorizes the Shipping Board to sell ships on conditions the board prescribes, providing it stays within a 2 per cent minimum interest rate and 15-year maximum time limit. Under this clause, it is claimed, the board could sell ships to "influential" concerns, let them defer both interest and principal payments for 15 years, and then give them subsidy aid in the bargain. If the concerns should fail before the 15 years were up, all the government would get would be the ships, unpaid for and greatly depreciated in value. The government could lose millions in this way, it is claimed.

3.—The Shipping Board is given authority to set aside a sum not to exceed $125,000,000 as a "construction loan fund," which it can loan as it pleases and on terms the board sets. Under this clause, it is feared, ship concerns which borrowed money from the Shipping Board during the war and whose notes, now worth 20 to 25 cents on the dollar, are still held by the Shipping Board, could now borrow more money and buy back their old notes at, say 25 cents on the dollar. Thus, a concern which borrowed four million dollars during the war could buy back its notes for one million and "clean up" two million dollars on a four million dollar deal financed entirely with government money.

K. OF P. INITIATES KNIGHT CANDIDATE

Pythian Sisters Visit Temple at Van Nuys for Big Reception

The Glendale Lodge Knights of Pythias held their regular meeting at Castle Hall Tuesday evening and initiated one candidate into the rank of Knight.

Two visitors were present, Mr. McBride of Chicago and Mr. Maskey from San Diego. Both made excellent talks on the work of the order.

The same evening Pythian Sisters of La Halla Temple visited the Temple at Van Nuys which was receiving Mrs. Thorne, Grand Chief of the State of California. Several candidates were initiated into membership. Following the work a banquet was served to members and guests and a general good time enjoyed.

There will be no session on the next regular meeting night of La Halla Temple, April 21, because members will be in attendance on the district convention at Santa Monica. Mrs. Wilbur will be the accredited delegate of the local temple and is also the delegate to the state convention to be held in Chico the middle of May at the time Grand Lodge, K. of P. is held. Emil Fram and Frank Peters will be the delegates from Glendale Lodge No. 331, K. of P.

Due for two pianos, 8 hands First piano, Hazel Linkogel and Berdina LeMohn Second piano, Isabel Spear and Winifred Thompson

This last number proved especially interesting. One might imagine that it would be impossible to keep together, but the time and rhythm were perfect and the number was greatly enjoyed. A Knabe piano was used through the courtesy of the Loomis-Shuck Music company.

DAMAGED

FALL AND WALLACE WAR OVER LAND IN ALASKA

Starts Over Suggested Transfer of Forestry Supervision

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Under the surface of President Harding's cabinet a row is smouldering which may burst out at any time and rival in bitterness the famous Ballinger-Pinchot controversy which split the Taft administration into two fiercely hostile camps. One and possibly two cabinet resignations may result.

The fight centers around the suggested transfer of the Forest Bureau from the Department of Agriculture to the Department of the Interior.

The principals, who are now quietly arming for the expected clash which may come at any meeting of the Harding cabinet, are:

Albert B. Fall, a tall, broad-shouldered, "two-gun" rancher with a brain as keen as his eye, and a vitrolic tongue which made him the terror of all Democrats when he was in the Senate before becoming Secretary of the Interior.

Henry C. Wallace, a little mouse-like Presbyterian from Des Moines, who despite his customary silence, has red hair and is as determined as a bull dog, especially when strangers from the Interior Department come over to the Department of Agriculture looking for stray bureaus to carry away.

Fall sat down at his new desk, got out the maps and looked over the extensive domains of which he is virtually monarch—practically all of the public lands of the United States, totalling millions of acres. But he saw several big green patches roped off and marked "Department of Agriculture."

"That's bad," he observed. "Divided authority."

He suggested to President Harding that those big green patches representing the national forests ought to be transferred from Agriculture to Interior. President Harding had Walter F. Brown, his reorganization expert, look into the suggestion. Brown thought something ought to be done, but he wasn't ready to say just what.

Secretary Wallace heard about this.

Then the row began. Wallace talked it over with W.B. Greeley, head of the forest service, and Gifford Pinchot, who as forester back in Taft's time, uncovered the Guggenheim grab and forced the resignation of Secretary of the Interior Ballinger.

Fall, Pinchot charged, was trying to grab the remainder of the public domain and turn it over to private exploitation.

Articles and editorials began to appear in various newspapers making charges against Fall.

Fall, out west on an inspection trip, heard of these attacks on him and, his wrath aroused, let go a sarcastic broadside about Pinchotism, at the same time asking President Harding to do something to stop the attacks on him which he said were emanating from the Forestry Bureau of the Department of Agriculture.

Secretary Wallace, not being much of a talker, said nothing for publication. But references were made to an old story that Fall, while raising sheep in New Mexico, years ago, had a controversy with the Forest Service over sheep grazing privileges on public lands.

Fall sat down and wrote a hot letter to a congressman. The agricultural bloc was rallied to the cause of the Department of Agriculture.

Then President Harding suggested that the row had better be kept in the family as much as possible and both sides subsided for the time being. But a call at the office of the Forest Service any day will reveal signs of quiet activity which foreshadows a finish fight unless the soothing hand of President Harding intervenes successfully.

Although it has many ramifications, the controversy centers around control of the Alaskan forests. Fall's contention is that the national forest reserves controlled by the Forest Service should be placed under the Interior Department which now has jurisdiction over the remainder of the public domain. Under the present plan, he says, authority is divided where it should be concentrated. More fundamental than this is his charge that the Forest Service is under the sway of the conservationist policies introduced by Gifford Pinchot which he believes have locked up tremendously valuable forests and mineral deposits and prevented their development.

This policy, Secretary Fall alleges, has caused a general slump in Alaska which has resulted in an exodus of Americans from that country and has stunted the development of the greatest treasure chest of the nation. Private capital will not go there, he argues, as long as the restrictions now exercised by the Forestry Bureau are continued.

The conservationists retort that Fall would turn priceless timber lands, oil, coal and precious mineral deposits over to exploitation by private interests and that the public would be robbed of thousands of dollars by these interests.

The Interior Department already controls 95 per cent of the Alaskan forests, only 5 per cent being reserved and under control of the Forest Service. But this five per cent is at present the kernel of the Alaskan nut because it covers most of the developed sections of that vast wild country. The two biggest reserves are located in the Juneau and Seward regions and stretch over a thousand miles of the lower coast. This gives the Forestry Bureau jurisdiction over the choicest morsels in the entire Alaskan Territory—and that is why such a relatively small section

M'CUMBER IS TO FIGHT FOR HIS SEAT

North Dakota Complicated Gross

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Outside our state, a fight is being waged in North Dakota for the seat of "sometimes called" the "understanding" of our state politics for that matter—"his" "understanding" of us inside the state occasionally wonder if we understand.

That is, putting it to a concrete test, in a territorial election in North Dakota. You can see by the saying that he is McCumber is a Republican, or "plain" man, and long for the Senate in 1920 for the support of the Nonpartisan League, which is a Republican League. Gronna is to have the support of the I. V. A. Republicans and Independent Voters League, although Gronna is a Democrat. The I. V. A. is strictly Republican, but has Democratic members just like the league.

McCumber has been in the Senate for four terms—24 years. The fight he faces this year is his hardest. Gronna, who was beaten in 1920 by Dr. Ladd, the present junior senator, blames McCumber in a measure for his defeat. Therefore, his effort to come back contains a strong personal element.

The death of Senator Penrose put McCumber at the head of the Senate finance committee, a position of great power and influence. That will help him, his friends assert. His work in behalf of farm legislation and his stand for the soldier bonus, also are calculated to aid him, they think. But admittedly his fate hangs to a degree upon what the people of North Dakota think of the Nonpartisan League. If the league can come back after its recent setback, McCumber ought to be renominated and re-elected. If the league is beaten, McCumber may go to defeat with it. For while he emphasizes the fact that he is a Republican, as distinguished from a leaguer or an I. V. A., McCumber must have the support of one or the other to win.

Gronna has formally announced his candidacy, and is busy as a beaver among the farmers.

such a big thorn in the side of Secretary Fall.

Fall contends that the government must offer far more attractive inducements to private enterprise than the Forest Service has been willing to grant.

If proper inducements are held out, Alaska can be made to draw new waves of ex-service men there, Fall believes.

"I have been impressed with the conviction that what Alaska needs for its development is the brain and the strength of the virile young American manhood, so conspicuously represented by the veterans of the World War," he said in a recent letter.

"A rational policy which will make available the undeveloped resources of Alaska will enable them to gratify their desire to intermingle again with other civilizations and permit them to follow the course pursued by their fathers who brought your state and later the great Rocky Mountains states into the union.

"I am convinced that the great non-metalliferous mineral wealth in the United States is or can be made accessible in ever greater volume than was the precious metalliferous mineral wealth of the Rocky Mountain region.

"The non-metalliferous wealth minerals lie more deeply under the ground, and the investment of capital in prospecting is necessary.

"It is my firm conviction that a deep prospecting in Alaska, it will be necessary for Congress, either to liberalize the laws to the end that private capital may be invited, with an opportunity to earn sufficient rewards, to justify taking the gambler's chance, or in lieu thereof provide a revolving fund to be used by some department in the sinking of experimental oil wells and in prospecting for other non-metalliferous mineral deposits. In other words, either capital must have the speculative chance, or the risks of prospecting must be assumed directly by the government.

"A small revolving fund would do the work. The same policy should be pursued upon the public lands of the United States."

"I think, dear," said Mrs. Grabhit. "I'll ask the people next door to share our Christmas dinner."

"Why?" asked her husband.

"Well, the man left their turkey here by mistake and it seems only

MRS. T. W. WHITE TO SELL CANDY

Before the walls of the new theatre were laid, Mrs. T. W. White, wife of the senior member of the real estate firm of White & Clark, had taken a 5-year lease of one of the two stores, in which she will open about June 1, an up-to-date candy shop, fitted up in Spanish style to correspond with the architecture of the building.

Theirs Is a "Common Sense" Marriage

Mrs. H. C. Auer

There'll be few rifts on the sea of matrimony if man and wife enter into a "common sense" marriage, declare Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Auer, of Chicago. While "hubby" stays home and writes short stories, Mrs. Auer goes to the theatre with another man. Such a programme alternates between the two. They both do as they please. It's easy to get along that way, both assert.

EAGLE ROCK WATER SUPPLY IS IN FINE SHAPE

Meets Enormous Demand Increased Population, Decreases Cost

The growth of the city was normal up to January, 1920, but by the end of 1921 there were about twice as many services as when the department was taken over by the city. The rates were reduced at the time the city took charge of the service and were not raised during the war. All the interest due on outstanding bonds has been paid and two $1000 bonds have been retired each year, leaving at the present time $60,000 indebtedness of the original $70,000. The department is self-sustaining, all betterments having been met through the earnings, with the exception of the additional wells and the new reservoir at the east end of the city and the necessary connecting lines. These expenses were paid by the issuance of bonds to the amount of $40,000 in 1921. The capacity of the wells has been increased 63 per cent over the capacity at the time the system was acquired by the city.

Some of the statistics added to the above information are that in 1917 there were 640 services, these were increased in 1918 only to 657, in 1919 there were 703, in 1920 the number was 963, and in 1921 the figures rose to 1253. Many services have been added since January 1 of this year. There are nine wells and eight pumps. The number of cubic feet pumped in 1921 was 26,089,590.

EAGLE ROCK SEEKS PLACE IN STAR LIGHT

Mammoth Electrical Sign to Mark Entrance to Sister City

Acting upon a motion made at the last meeting of the Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce, the publicity and executive committees of the chamber met last week to consider the suggestion of Sherrill B. Osborne, son of Congressman H. Z. Osborne, that a mammoth electrical sign bearing the name Eagle Rock should be erected high up on the hills north of the city, instead of the three smaller signs for which a subscription had been started, to be placed across the boulevard entrances. No proposition ever met with more immediate favor. Everyone who heard of it thought it the best thing to do, certain to attract far wider attention from the public than the smaller signs would, and having the merit of being unusual.

So the committees decided to carry out the suggestion and details were arranged. The sign will be 100 feet long and ten feet high. The letters on it will be seven feet wide, and it will be raised from a big platform. The electrical current will be conducted to it by the Southern California Edison Co. Further subscriptions from those received will be needed and arrangements are being made for a systematic drive to secure them. Those who have not already contributed should take pride in such a beautiful advertisement of their loved home town, as this brilliant sign standing out clearly from the background of the green hills will be, should wish to have a hand in the undertaking.

NIKLAUS KOCHER

On Tuesday, April 11, funeral services for Niklaus Kocher, father of the late Mrs. C. M. Zadow and Fred Kocher of Eagle Rock, were held in the Little Church of the Flowers at Glendale. Mr. Kocher resided at the Zadow home, 1940 East Colorado boulevard. His age was 77 years. He left three other children—Mrs. H. W. Kaupisch and Alfred Kocher of Portland, Ore., and Guy Kocher of Mt. Pleasant, Wash., and was the brother of Mrs. Beuhler of Los Angeles.

The professor was deeply absorbed in some scientific subject when the nurse announced the arrival of a boy.

"What—who?" stammered the professor absently. "Why interrupt me—isn't my wife at home?"

NEW TRUSTEES ARE ELECTED AT EAGLE ROCK

Sherill B. Osborne, Geo. C. Mattison and Elmer Bergvisk Selected

The election for three city trustees on Monday resulted in a strong infusion of new blood into the personnel of the board which will control municipal affairs during the coming year. Cromwell Galpin, Robertson Abbot, and M. V. Shaff, who are old-timers in the service, were retired and their places will be filled by Sherrill B. Osborne, George C. Mattison and Elmer Bergvisk. Mr. Osborne, who practices law in Los Angeles, will represent the western part of Eagle Rock; Mr. Mattison, who is connected with a title insurance company in Los Angeles, resides in the eastern part, and Mr. Bergvisk's home is in the southern part. He was warmly endorsed by the American Legion post, of which he is the commander, and by other friends as well. Since the two members of the board who retain office, Jesse H. Taylor and H. B. Curtis, live in the central district, there is a general feeling that all sections will be adequately served.

EAGLE ROCK PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Candee, who sold their home a year or so ago, have purchased the lot just south of the residence of Mrs. H. G. Shearin, on Paloma avenue, a fine home site.

Newcomers from Puente are L. W. Case and family. They have rented the bungalow at 112 Florissant avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. G. I. Weisbrod and family of Los Angeles have moved into their handsome new house at 208 Fairmont avenue.

Mrs. E. M. Jackson of Pasadena has bought two lots on North Peyton avenue, with the intention of building a two-story apartment house on one of them and perhaps a court on the other.

P. Gastrock and wife of Hollywood have moved into their new house at 340 West Sycamore avenue. It was built in English style and is an attractive home.

Mrs. William Lunny has purchased a hill-side lot on the corner of South College View and West Eagle avenues and will build a stucco bungalow on it.

Septimus Wagge met his chum the other day. "I say, Bill, I watched a wonderful machine at our shop this morning," asked Bill. "And how does it work?" asked "Well," was the reply, "by means of a pedal attachment, a fulcrum lever converts a vertical reciprocating motion into a circular movement. The principal part of the machine is a huge disk that revolves in a vertical plane. Power is applied through the axis of the disk, and work is done on the periphery, and the hardest substance, by mere impact, may be reduced to any shape."

T. D. & L.'S SHOW DRAWS BIG HOUSE TO 'POLLY'

Constance Talmadge Puts Over Another of Her Good Characters

So many girls are accused by blue-nosed reformers of losing their head over the stage that it is refreshing to find one who refuses to be blinded by the glare of the spotlights. Her name is Polly Meacham, in the title role of "Polly of the Follies," the latest First National attraction starring Constance Talmadge, which is now being shown at the T. D. & L. theatre. As if to refute the obnoxious insinuations made by the "better than thou" element, Polly points a decided moral in her decision when it comes to a choice between fame and happiness.

The opportunity came through an acquaintance who gave her a chance for a try-out before Fio Ziegfeld, and the great creator of beauty choruses actually placed her in one of his reviews. The startling fact about it all was that after she found herself in the game, Polly wasn't so greatly enamored of the stage as she had thought she would be. There was a fly in the ointment and the fly was young Bobby Jones, played by Kenneth Harlan. Polly makes her decision in a characteristic way that is certain to please film followers for its novelty and to add new admirers to Constance Talmadge's already large list.

The evening's program was opened with one of the grandest scenic reels ever seen in Glendale. These are an excellent example of polychrome work, or color photography. Polychrome has for some time been applied to still photography, but it is one of the latest things in connection with the motion picture. There is no hand-coloring done on these films. "Nothing Like It," a Christie comedy of two reels, is a laugh from start to finish. In this play Dorothy de Vore and Eddy Barry are featured and they make the best of the opportunity to give the audience a good laugh.

Also included on the program is Kinograms, a reel of the very latest news features.

'WILD HONEY' IS THRILL BY PROXY AT GLENDALE

Priscilla Dean Adds Triumph to Her Record in Filmed Drama

To the majority who live the humdrum lives of the average good citizen, adventure and nerve-racking dangers are a sealed book except as they enter into them by proxy. A safe road to a thousand thrills is afforded by the moving picture "Wild Honey," in which Priscilla Dean as "Lady Vivienne" has another great role which adds a new star to the crown of her triumphs. It will be seen today at the Glendale theatre. For this story of elemental passion the wastes of South Africa furnish the background. Man's brutality at the peak, combine with awful forces of nature to provide the incidents of a drama crowded with sensational situations which will keep spectators on the edges of their chairs with suspense. Priscilla Dean needs no introduction to movie audiences who have seen her in "The Virgin of Stamboul," "The Wildcat of Paris" and "Outside the Law," and other productions in which her powers have been tested. This one is said to excel in interest all its predecessors, and movie patrons who enjoy a good show will do well to take it in. The program will also include "Aesop's Fables" modernized, and Al St. John's delightful comedy "Straight From the Farm." The bore had the fair young thing on the verge of tears. "It costs a good deal more than you think to become a broadminded and intelligent man of the world," he remarked. "The young thing saw her opportunity and took it. 'I suppose so,' she said, 'and I don't blame you for saving your money.'" A member of the British parliament who died some time ago had represented a certain town for forty years, though he had never once visited the town during the whole of that long period.

Keep It Growing

You are making a start towards independence and success the day you open your first Savings Account.

The next thing is to keep it growing. Regular, systematic saving is the only way by which this may be accomplished. Decide how much you can afford to lay away each week or month—and then make that sum the first money that comes out of your pay envelope.

It is not so important to save a large sum at the start. The main thing is to do it regularly.

Soon saving will be as much a habit as spending—and your fight will be won. Try it!

Mail Want Ad

Write your advertisement in the blank spaces below, just as you want it to appear in the Want Ad columns. Tell your story completely and convincingly if you want to accomplish quick results. Three days' insertion produces more replies than one; a week's insertion is best of all.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES First insertion—Minimum charge 30 cents, including four lines, counting five words to the line. Additional lines 5 cents per line. Subsequent Consecutive Insertions—5 cents per line. Minimum charge for each subsequent insertion, 15 cents.

How to Figure Your Want Ad

Count five average words to each line. The address at the foot of your Want Ad is counted also. Each number, initial, etc., counts as one word. For example, the name, "John C. Smith," is three words; "212 W. Main Street" is four words; ".400 acres, 3 miles from railroad, $300 per acre," is nine words, etc. In case you want a keyed or "blind" address used instead, indicate so above. The "blind" address comprises five words and will be counted as part of your advertisement.

Glendale Shops Smile Easter Greetings In Fine, Nicely Selected, Seasonable Goods

In Union of Ideas Merchants Demonstrate in Windows the Day of Los Angeles Bid for Local Trade Closed with Winter Season

DETAIL OF NEW GOODS AND OFFERINGS IN STORES Here They Are, the Mart Display of All the Wide-awake Purveyors to the Public Who Wish to Make Your Acquaintance This Unfolding Season

Glendale is all dolled up with its Easter bonnet everything all nicely in place, and she has on that holiday season smile and taken all in all, things around here are looking just like it should look on a season such as this. The stores are offering to the people of Glendale many appropriate Easter things, some worthy of mention and others of the "unmentionable" kind. There is no need of the Glendale folks going to Los Angeles to secure their Easter things, or things for any other season, for that matter. The prices at the various local stores are a pleasant surprise to those who are expecting to find "elevated" figures.

Candy for You
For instance, the Matthews confectionery, 127 West Broadway, is making all its own candy in one of the finest equipped little kitchens in Southern California. Everything in this establishment is modern, the best of materials are used, and the prices charged for the various confections are a revelation.

Your Dyeing Work
The Glendale Dye works, 135 South Brand boulevard, is right on the job when it comes to renovating, dyeing, cleaning, and in every other way bringing the old clothes back to life. These people can work wonders with the old suit or dress, and when they get through with it it goes back to the owner almost like new.

Drink With Us
Then there is the Japan Art and Tea company, 136 South Brand boulevard, where everything in the way of artistic Japanese goods, teas, coffees, spices, etc., are to be found. This is really a high-class store and the goods to be found there will please the most exacting.

That Easter Bonnet
The Yarbrough Hat shop, 108 West Broadway, is one of the best places in Glendale to secure the Easter hat. There is plenty of time before Easter to get that bonnet, and this very attractive shop is an excellent place to go if something real chic and attractive is desired.

For Masculine Eyes
J. B. Carlock, 135 South Brand boulevard, maintains one of the leading haberdasheries in Glendale. In this store there is everything for the gentleman at prices that will be interesting to the average man. Also in this store is Ed Nisle with his generous supply of men's tailored goods, hats, caps, etc. The line carried by Mr. Nisle is worth looking into and it would be hard to beat at his prices.

They Knock the Spots
At 209 North Glendale avenue is the Palace Cleaners, a new cleaning and dyeing establishment in Glendale. These boys know their particular line from one end to the other and an honest effort is being made to give Glendale residents the very finest possible service along this line. All they ask is a trial.

Song of Sewing
June Armstrong, 106 South Maryland avenue, is agent for the Singer sewing machine in Glendale. She can supply sewing machine needles of all kinds. She is making a specialty of hemstitching.

The Electric Things
The Glendale Electric company, 132 North Brand boulevard, is electrical from the front door to the back. It would indeed be hard to name anything along the electrical line that is not carried by this concern. The policy of this concern is small profit and large sales. That is one reason they are meeting with such remarkable success.

Men's Good Tailoring
J. Goldbery and I. Gold, 218 South Brand boulevard, constitute a men's tailoring establishment that is second to none in this part of the country. They learned their trade under skillful masters and it is this experience they are passing on to the Glendale people.

Regulation Goods
The new home of the Army & Navy store, corner Brand boulevard and Harvard street, is one of the busy places in Glendale—and there's a reason. This store, although it has been here but a few months, has a reputation for selling things for "just a little less." This fact is in a great measure responsible for its wonderful progress.

The Home Banker
The Glendale State bank, 109 East Broadway, is one of the solid and substantial savings institutions in Glendale. It is headed by a corps of men that makes it for safety—men who are well-known in this section of the country, who have lived here for years and are interested in the upbuilding of the city.

Our Own Furniture
Glendale-made furniture of all kinds is turned out by the Russell-Pierce Furniture company of 1529 South San Fernando boulevard. For months this company has been turning out everything in the way of high-class furniture. Recently it enlarged its factory in an effort to take care of its increasing business. The prospects are that further enlargements will have to be made before a great while.

Brand Cleaners
The Brand Cleaners, 217 South Brand boulevard, is a firm that has been cleaning up Glendale for months and is a firm doing a good job, too. Their work is of the highest order and gives universal satisfaction. They are making a specialty of Easter cleaning and dyeing.

Kenny Music Shop, 203 North Brand boulevard. The special inducement campaign, which was started a few days ago and through which the people of Glendale are enabled to put a Columbia graphophone in their homes on a payment of $1 down and easy monthly payments thereafter. This is without doubt the most liberal talking machine offer that has ever been made in Glendale and for this reason the people of Glendale are availing themselves of this opportunity of securing for their homes this wonderful instrument. With this company making this very remarkable proposition there is absolutely no reason for the homes of Glendale being musicless over Easter. Immediate deliveries can be made of these machines, any size and price of which may be received, and as this company has all the latest records, many of which pertain strictly to Easter, the homes of Glendale may vibrate with wonderful Easter selections on next Sunday morning. New low prices are being made on every machine in this shop and these can be remarkably reasonably terms put a graphophone within the reach of all.

Special on Easter Meats
Mr. Caswell at his Gateway Meat Market, corner Brand boulevard and San Fernando road, and the White Star Market, corner Broadway and Maryland, is making a special offer on Easter breakfast meats. This concern has just received a large shipment of Swift's premium hams and bacon. On Friday with every ham secured at this establishment a half pound of Swift's bacon will be given free. The excellent products sold by this concern are well known in Glendale and the people of this city will doubtless take advantage of this wonderful offer.

Easter Flowers
Nothing is more appropriate as an Easter gift than flowers. The Glendale Florist Shop, 129 South Brand boulevard, is headquarters for all kinds of cut flowers, and the patrons of this establishment will find that the prices are right. This shop is not "saddled" with high rents like the Los Angeles concerns, and for this reason the prices are within reach of all. The flowers sold by this firm are the finest the market affords.

Easter Gifts for Ladies
For the many little fineries for the ladies, Gordon's, 119 North Brand boulevard, will be found to be one of the finest places in Glendale. Everything that the lady is likely to require for the Easter season is to be found at this establishment. And Gordon never "overcharges."

Electric Novelties
For the electric toaster for the Easter breakfast, or for the electric grill, or, in fact, for anything in the electric line, the Glendale Electric will find it to his advantage to call at the Smith Electric Shop, 631 East Broadway. The Smith shop is one of the leading establishments of its kind in this city, and its courteous treatment and reasonable prices are winning favor among the folks in Glendale.

Special Gas Ranges
Special Electric Inducements to the people of Glendale to purchase the Direct Action gas ranges are being made at this time by Coker & Taylor, 209 South Brand boulevard. This range can be secured with or without the Lorain heat regulator, and there are so many styles of ranges in this store that every purchaser can find just the style he is looking for.

Easter Linens
Everything in the Easter linen line may be secured at the Irish Linen store, 117 North Brand boulevard, and this at prices that will be entirely satisfactory to the purchaser. A number of very important shipments have been received by this concern so that the assortment at this time is very complete.

Oodles of Dry Goods
There are many little things that will be needed along the dry goods line by the average family. These needs will be satisfactorily taken care of by the Glendale Dry Goods company, 115 East Broadway. This company knows dry goods from the word "go" and it is imparting this knowledge to the people of Glendale. The prices at this store are right.

Easter Novelties
At this time the firm of Roberts & Echols is making a specialty of Easter novelties. Everything conceivable along this line may be found at this establishment, from Easter cards to Easter bunnies. Then, too, this firm is headquarters for kodaks, the finest in drugs and everything that should be carried by a leading drug store.

Murphy for Ranges
Another booster who should not be forgotten in this Easter story is "Murphy," proprietor of the Murphy Furniture company, 1261 South Brand boulevard.

CHAUTAUQUA DATE FOR GLENDALE IS SET

May 25 to 31 Announced as Week for Ellison-White Lyceum

The Chautauqua season of 1922 is an important one in the history of the Ellison-White Lyceum and Chautauqua Association as it is the tenth anniversary of the establishing of their Chautauqua business in the west. To build a program which would fittingly celebrate this happy event was evidently in the mind of the Ellison-White management when the program for the coming season was arranged. The dates for the Glendale Chautauqua have been definitely set for May 25 to 31.

Heading the lecture list is Opie Read, a prominent platformist whom the Ellison-White people have been trying for the past five years to secure for a tour of their western chautauqua. Opie Read is like no one else in the world. Perhaps you have enjoyed his books, been stirred by his plays, or spent happy hours in the reading of his clever character sketches, but unless you have sat within the sound of his voice and heard from his own lips the quaint tales that originate in his brain, you do not fully appreciate the splendid genius of the man.

The sixth night of Chautauqua will be one of the most important of the entire series. On that night comes Dr. Elmer Lynn Williams, "fighting parson" of Chicago, in his famous lecture, "The Big Game." Bookkeepers, gamblers and dive keepers in Chicago's famous "north side" know and hate Dr. Elmer Lynn Williams. They hate him because he is one of the bitterest foes graft and corruption ever had. In his fight in clearing up vice and crime in Chicago's loop district, he was given the name of "fighting parson." Dr. Williams was formerly pastor of one of the largest churches in Chicago and comes to Chautauqua at the height of his oratorical power with a message that is vigorous and vital.

Other prominent names found in the list of lectures are Norman Allan Inrie, who is described as a "perfect tornado of eloquence," using as his lecture subject, "Working Together for Billions," a masterly exposition of the Anglo-Saxon problems of the age; Edna Eugenia Lowe, telling in an interesting way of some "Danger Signals on the Road to Health," and J. C. Herpman, a brilliant, rapid-fire lecturer will discuss "Life's Balance Sheet."

Two entertainment features of the week will be the well-known play, "Cappy Ricks," a dramatization of the "Cappy Ricks" stories which ran in the Saturday Evening Post and were read by millions; and an evening of magic with the Paul Fleming company, master magicians.

That the musical end of the program has not been slighted is evident with such musical organizations as the following on the list: Stearns-Hellekson Trio; Patton Brothers Trio; the Oceanic Quartet; Wateau Duo; Stone-Platt company; and the Gilvan Opera company.

PACIFIC MACHINE WORKS INVITED TO GLENDALE

Report of Sec. Rhoades Without Reference to Stock Sale, Adopted

After spending the entire meeting period of the chamber of commerce directors yesterday in discussing the report of Secretary Jas. M. Rhoades relative to his trip of inspection to the plants in Modesto and San Francisco of the Pacific Power Implement & Machine company, which is planning to move the two plants to Glendale, the directors finally voted to endorse the secretary's report and invite the company to come to Glendale. The motion was made by Peter L. Ferry and seconded by Jesse Smith.

The trip of inspection to the two factories was made by the secretary on instructions from the directors at their meeting and luncheon last week. J. J. Perlin of the company accompanied him on the trip as host.

The company, which is a consolidation of a plant in San Francisco and another in Modesto, contemplates moving to Glendale and conducting the combined factory here, which will be the only one of its kind west of Chicago. This is not a new concern but has been in existence for several years and has established agents throughout the west.

Mr. Perlin said that the company wanted to move to Los Angeles county and intends coming here because the greater portion of the production of the plant is automobile parts and the heads of the plant realize that almost half of the automobiles of the state are in Los Angeles county and that over half of them are located in the five counties that make up Southern California. Another reason the firm wants to move to the Southland is to overcome labor troubles in the north which, according to heads of the firm, have made operation of the plants difficult at times.

The company has secured an option on land at Glendale avenue and San Fernando boulevard, where it is planned to erect a factory that, including the cost of the property, will be valued at about $3,000.

The cost of moving the two plants to Glendale from San Francisco and Modesto will be approximately $100,000, and in order to help defray the expense of moving the heads of the firm plan the sale of stock amounting to about $90,000 among investors of the Southland.

It was this proposition to sell stock that caused the delay in extending an invitation to the firm to come to Glendale on the part of the directors. By endorsing the report of the secretary in its entirety, it was suggested that they would be establishing a precedent.

Talks were made by various directors regarding the endorsing of the report. The speakers agreed that the coming to Glendale of this established factory would be a great thing for the city, as Mr. Rhoades predicted "there will come a time in the history of Glendale when this city will feel the need of a payroll such as the one offered by the Pacific Power Implement & Machine company."

One phrase in the report of Mr. Rhoades was objected to and ordered stricken out before its adoption. It was the closing sentence. It was felt by some of the directors that for it to remain in the report as approved would be endorsing a stock-selling proposition in the community. The sentence objected to and stricken from the report, read as follows:

"Looking at this plant from every angle, I can see built here a great industry that will do great good to the city and bring handsome returns to those investing their money."

M. W. Lee Reports Sale of Apartment and Plans Transferring Interests

M. W. Lee reports the sale of his M. W. L. Staybuilt 4-family apartment building at 614 and 616 South Louise street to Robert Barnes of Los Angeles.

Mr. Lee is one of the recent but sound converts to the present and future growth and possibilities of Glendale. In commenting on this city, Mr. Lee says: "I drove some 2000 miles visiting all the various towns and cities in California before deciding on a location, Glendale being one of the first cities inspected, and presenting wonderful possibilities for business as well as an ideal home life. I not only located and invested money here but expect to return to Minnesota this summer and dispose of my various interests there and transfer my manufacturing and mercantile interests to Glendale. This will bring some 20 families from the east as well as giving employment to a good many local people."

Since locating in Glendale Mr. Lee has had 29 to 30 men on his payroll. The class of construction turned out speaks for itself as to the high class of Glendale mechanics.

portation agreements among the leading powers represented.

Delegates today frankly admit the Genoa conference cannot in itself hope to cure Europe's ills. These can only be overcome during a long period of time when natural laws of supply and demand have had time to adjust themselves.

The chief opposition to the conference's successful progress has developed from the Russian delegation. Tchitcherin, as predicted, is proving the stumbling block.

Lloyd George, however, with the moral support of Italy, which is willing to sacrifice everything for the success of the conference, has won over the French by his firm stand against Russian proposals and bids fair to bring the conference through with sufficient success to warrant its existence.

Allied sponsors of the conference, in talks with the United Press, today pointed out that in the first two days at Genoa four imposing obstacles have been overcome.

1.—Alignment of powers, which was one of the most critical issues, involving a choice between allied dictation to the conference or re-establishment of European nations upon equal terms, has been arranged, through British insistence upon a measure of equality for all. Lloyd George, if he has not secured complete equality for Russia and Germany, has at least secured their representation on the main councils with full opportunity to voice their own views.

2.—The Cannes resolutions have survived the initial test and their conference now has an established basis for its deliberations.

3.—The intangible, yet fearful question of the probable behavior of the Russian representatives has been satisfactorily straightened out by Tchitcherin's gracious compliance with Lloyd George's demands. When the Russian leader crossed swords with Louis Barthou at the opening session, and later demanded withdrawal of Japan and Rumania, there was no little apprehension among the delegates, but this has now given way to acknowledgment the Russians may behave after all.

4.—The question of how the various commissions should be constituted has apparently been satisfactorily settled.

This latter question, however, still may cause trouble, for those small powers not represented on the political commission, which includes Lloyd George, Garthou, Schanzer, Thounia, Ishii, Wirth, Tchitcherin, Branting, Motta, Skirnut and Bratiano, are protesting that since this group controls the conference, they might as well go home. The low rate of exchange makes it most costly for them to remain at Genoa, they say, when they have no voice in its decisions.

Alfred Green of 211 West Eulalia street has purchased the oil and gasoline station at the corner of Los Feliz and Boyce street, just beyond the Southern Pacific tracks on Los Feliz, and will open up for business.

OLD HEADS WAG, TOGETHER

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Ha-wank, ha wank!" exclaimed the funny old goose who had just drawn the thorn from the red dog's foot. "If here isn't Dr. Muskrat himself! Well, well, why didn't you speak, and I'd have let you doctor your own patient?"

"The paddle-paw wagged his head. 'Not I, Fickle-feather. I almost got even with you that time. Have you forgotten how you hid in the brushpile while I took a bullet from old Hotspur's wing? You said it was because the skin had to be cut, which was all my teeth were good for, but I've always believed it was entirely because you knew he'd carry on like a half-witted fish.'"

"No, no," denied the old webby-foot bird. "Only half. I can't cut at all, and that's what had to be done. Though I could have beaked the bullet out if he'd come to me before it got so sore he couldn't stand a little pressing. But, great clam shells, what a temper he was in! He sent you sprawling like a water-spider. Wasn't I glad it wasn't I?"

"So he did; so he did," chuckled Dr. Muskrat. "I had a bruise as big as a walnut behind my ear." Turning to the red dog he demanded: "Pal, you hear what this old rascal is remembering? Why didn't you give him at least a snap to let him know who he was hurting?"

"Because he really didn't hurt at all," answered the dog with a puzzled air. "And if he'll excuse my saying so, I can't see why he didn't." For a goose's clumsy beak looks about as fit to pull fine splinters as a cow's horn to do fancy knitting. "Would you explain it to me?"

"No, indeed," Dr. Tickle-feather winked a mischievous black eye at Dr. Muskrat. "It's a professional secret. But when you find out how we can tell whether we've found a shall deep in the mud or only a pebble, maybe you'll suspect. And when you know how we can husk a bite of wild rice and swallow only swered it for him. "All the same, doc, old Hotspur was the cleverest leader we ever had. Ah, the good old days—bigger flocks, larger birds, and fullest nests! Though his young grandson is a fine fellow. But we've had a most alarming experience. So I brought him here, old Star-gosspier, as soon as I found where you were living. Perhaps you can help him."

FALL OUT OF TOBACCO IS NEW CURE

Washington Judge takes a Tumble and Now Ignores Pipe

SOUTH BEND, Wash., April 12.—Judge J. N. Skidmore, 88, who has enjoyed his jimmy pipe since a mere youth, recommends high and lofty tumbling for those who would rid themselves of the tobacco habit.

Judge Skidmore recently suffered a slight fall, the effects of which, however, were sufficient to confine him to bed for several weeks. When he was "up and around" once more his pipe and pouch lay neglected on the chimney piece. All desire for the pungent weed had fled.

ILLINOIS CLEANERS SUGGEST SAVINGS

The Illinois Cleaners, 629 East Broadway, say: "Before you lay out money for new clothes must be purchased, you have. Send them to the cleaners—then put the money you have saved in the bank."

There is doubtless a lot of wisdom in this. There seems to be a general impression that about every so often a whole bunch of new clothes must be purchased, regardless of the fact that there may be many slightly used garments hanging in the wardrobe. This may be all right when there is an unlimited bank account to draw from, but where it is a question of struggling hard to make both ends meet, as they say, it would probably be a wise thing to select a few of the best of the "slightly worn" and to send them to the cleaners, possibly to have them dyed, and possibly cleaned. It is remarkable what a first class

HOME FURNITURE TELLS STORY

"Every home tells a story," declares the Page Furniture company, 306 East Broadway. "You can read it in the faces of your friends when they walk. It reveals itself in the freedom and comfort expressed by those who come into your home. You, by the selection of your furniture, create that atmosphere. This firm creates, by its fine sense of fitness the individuality you desire to express."

By reason of its low operating cost and extensive buying power, as Glendale's leading furniture store, the prices are considerably lower than those of the larger city stores. The quality, regardless of price, admits no superior.

Right now this firm is making a specialty of refrigerators. One of the first questions asked by the housewife is, "What could be automatic about the refrigerator?"

"Answer—'Automatic circulation of air.' 'What keeps the air that comes in contact with the food you must eat pure?' Answer—'Automatic contact of air with ice.' In this automatic refrigerator, food is enveloped and preserved by the constant circulating current of pure-cold air.

Other features that are being emphasized are rugs and linoleums. The choicest of lovely rugs in all sizes are on display for your selection. Unusual values are being offered at this time. This firm is exclusive agent for the Blabon art linoleums. There are all kinds of beautiful patterns and shades to be selected from.

EVENING GLOVES NEED NOT BE LONG

Easter Style Sharp Declares There Is Change in Fashion Due

NEW YORK, April 12.—At present every one is interested in long gloves, as the summer season brings so many of the short-sleeved gowns which demand them. There is not a great variety of colors in gloves this season. Brown seems to be the leader in the skin gloves and black still manages to hold its own. Grey is not considered as smart as it was this time last year for lighter tones of beaver are supplanting it. There are endless color combinations such as white and grey, black and white, brown and beige, etc.

It is no longer considered necessary to wear long gloves for evening wear. Many of the best groomed women at the recent formal functions appear with bare arms.

The short two-clasp gloves continue in favor with the sport wear suit, but many of the dressy suits have the wide sleeves which necessitate the gauntlet or the 12-button length.

It is well to have the color scheme of the costume carried out in the coloring of the gloves this year, as gloves should blend in with the costume, rather than stand out a thing apart. When the costume is full of color, never wear shoes of one color and gloves of another if you can avoid it. That is, if your shoes are grey do not wear beaver gloves. By matching the shoes and gloves, the whole costume is drawn together. Too much attention cannot be paid to these little details of the Easter costume.

San Jose Takes Advantage of Legislation Permitting Close Affiliation

Articles signed by David P. Barrows, President of the University of California, W. W. Kemp, President of the San Jose Teachers' College and Will C. Wood, State Director of Education, provide for the affiliation of the Junior College Department of the San Jose Normal School with the University of California. This affiliation was made possible by the authority given the governing board of any Junior College in the state under Senate Bill 500 which was passed by the last session of the State Legislature.

In the future students coming from San Jose Junior College can transfer to Berkeley with the assurance that the work taken in approved courses in the San Jose school will carry the same credit value as if the work had been taken in the State University.

This is the second Junior College in the state to affiliate with the University of California, the Junior College Department of Fresno Teachers College having been affiliated with the State University during February.

VALUABLE LIBRARY

The University of California has purchased in Paris the private library of Dr. August Fournier, late professor of history at the University of Vienna, according to an announcement by David P. Barrows, President of the University. The historical collection of Dr. Fournier consists of 1260 numbers or approximately 4,000 volumes. It is largely a Napoleonic library and includes very rare German editions of works dealing with the Napoleonic period.

With the addition of this collection together with the private library of the late Professor Henry Morse Stephens to the library the University of California may claim the distinction of having one of the best libraries in America dealing with the revolutionary age in France.

It is the intention of the Department of History to develop strong graduate work in this particular field and thus continue the work so well established by the late Professor Morse Stephens.

HONEY BEES

The honey bees of California in 1920 supplied a surplus of over five and one-half million pounds of honey, which is enough to supply almost three pounds for each person in the state. California ranked third in swarms of bees in 1920 but first in the honey crop. Recent investigations by the University of California College of Agriculture have thoroughly demonstrated the need of cross-pollination for many varieties of fruit to give a good crop and bees are exceedingly important in doing this work.

Beemen and fruit producers of the state will be interested in a new correspondence course which is now being offered by the University of California College of Agriculture on Apiculture Management. The course was written by a practical beekeeper in this state. Circular 113 describing the course may be obtained from the College of Agriculture, Berkeley, California.

EASTERN STUDENTS

From the enthusiastic letters being received by the University of California Summer Session office in Berkeley it seems that every method of travel is to be used to reach California this summer. Groups of teachers write that they are planning to motor to Berkeley while others are joining organized tour parties under competent management. A number of the "See America First" travellers are planning their route so as to reach Berkeley in time for the six weeks Summer Session.

The Southern Branch of the University of California has secured Charles E. Clemens of Western Reserve University to give courses in Music and to direct the University Chorus. Mr. Clemens is an organist of world repute, having been official organist in one of the great churches in Berlin.

FISH AND GAME LECTURES

Dr. Harold C. Bryant, Economic Ornithologist of the California Museum of Vertebrate Zoology will give a series of nine illustrated lectures on fish and game under the auspices of the Division of Forestry of the University of California College of Agriculture. Dr. Bryant is in charge of Education, Publicity and Research for the California Fish and Game Commission.

TO ADDRESS NORTHERN COUNTIES

Dr. Elwood Mead, Professor of Rural Institutions at the University of California will address annual meetings of the Associations of the Northern Counties of California at Redding on April 8. Following the meeting the members of the Association are to visit various irrigation districts where there are attractive opportunities for settlement.

Mr. George C. Kreutzer, Superintendent of the Durham Settlement will be representative to the Division of Rural Institutions at the University of California during the absence of Professor Mead.

OIL PAINTING PRESENTED U. C.

An oil painting of Lulu Mayflower, International Grand Champion Heifer belonging to the University of California, was presented to the Division of Animal Husbandry of the College of Agriculture by the John Clay Commission of Chicago.

It has been the custom of this commission firm to present to the exhibitors of the International Grand Champion oil paintings of the champion that are sold by them. Pictures of California Favorites and Lulu Mayflower form the nucleus of an interesting group of prize winners that is steadily growing from year to year at the University of California Farm at Davis. C. & S. CAFETERIA TO MOVE TO NEW LOCATION

To Occupy Part of New Brand Block at Wilson

Plans have been completed and contract let by the well known architectural firm of Chaslog & Brannard, with offices in the Central Building, Glendale, for a two-story brick building to be built on the east side of Brand Blvd. between Wilson and California avenues, Glendale, for Mr. J. T. Stewart. The contract has been let to D. C. Stevens, a Glendale contractor and, with the exception of a few items, the materials and labor furnished will be from Glendale.

The building in size will be 50 feet by 100 feet, two stories in height and a basement under a portion of the building. The second floor will have four offices across the front and six apartments. Every convenience will be built into these apartments to make them first class and up-to-date in every way, including gas radiators, Marshall and Stearns Portal Wall Beds, oak floors throughout, inclosed baths, etc. There will be a laundry room on the roof.

The ground floor, with the exception of a small store room, will be occupied by the C. & S. Cafeteria. The C. & S. has been located for the past five years on Brand Blvd. near Broadway, and its owners are looking forward to these new quarters which will give this popular cafeteria one of the finest and most up-to-date places in Glendale. Owing to the many conveniences, the neat, artistic interior design and the color scheme, the new C. & S. will give a home-like, restful feeling to those who like to rest while they enjoy a dinner such as the C. & S. serves.

POWDER RIVER IS DISGUSTED

PORTLAND, Ore., April 12.—Bill Barrett, Montana buckaroo, came to town the other day wearing faded overalls and high-heeled boots. He saw a man who looked familiar to him, and on accosting him, found it was his old friend Clarence Hotchkiss, who, when a boy, used to visit on a Montana ranch belonging to his uncle, where Barrett worked. Hotchkiss took Barrett to lunch.

In talking over old times Hotchkiss told how he had gone east for an education, how he had gone to war, and how for 15 years he had lived in Portland. Barrett then became confidential.

He wanted to know in a whisper if Hotchkiss knew where he could get "some good moonshine whiskey."

Hotchkiss was taken somewhat aback, but was forced to tell his old comrade that because of his official position as United States marshal, he was unable to accommodate.

"Well," drawled Barrett, as an expression of mingled amazement and disgust stole over his face, "I've associated with some pretty bad horses and have drunk some mighty bum whiskey in my time, but this is the first time I've ever associated with a United States marshal."

SKILLED LABOR IS SHORT AT OAKLAND

OAKLAND, April 12.—For the first time since the general depression of 1920-21, a shortage of skilled labor has been noted here. Skilled bricklayers and plasterers are in a good deal of demand, according to Chamber of Commerce reports. Building here and in San Francisco is going on at an unprecedented rate. Many apartment houses are going up. The building boom has been given added impetus because of the long strike period during the summer of 1921 when things were practically at a standstill owing to the strike in the buildings trades.

Journalism in the University of Oregon will give a course in Practical Editing in the Summer Session of the University of California. Lectures on newspaper policies and practices, with exercises in proof-reading, copy-reading, and head-writing will be part of the course.

Austin K. Gray, Assistant Professor of English at the Southern Branch of the University of California is to teach the principles of writing criticisms and reviews in the coming session. The dramatic criticisms are of such importance in the newspaper field that this course is in much demand by many embryo journalists.

Miss Grace Edgington, instructor in the University of Oregon will have charge of the Reporting class in the Department of Journalism in the Summer Session. Methods of getting news and of keeping out inaccuracies, judging of news values and types of news-writing will be taught by Miss Edgington. A brief survey of the reportorial field and of the editorial side of a newspaper will be made in this class.

The Summer Session Californian which is edited twice a week during the session, will be edited by the students of Miss Edgington's class.

Mr. George C. Kreutzer, Superintendent of the Durham Settlement will give at least half of his time to the land settlement investigations of the Division of Rural Institutions at the University of California College of Agriculture and the Department of Public Works.

The assistance of Mr. Kreutzer makes it possible to co-ordinate the investigations of the Division of Rural Institutions with the soil surveys being carried on by C. F. Shaw, Professor of Soil Technology and the irrigations investigations carried on by Frank Adams, Professor of Irrigation at the University of California.

PARIS EVENING GOWN, WITH DROOPING SHOULDER LINE, IS OF ANKLE LENGTH

Here is one of the most advanced fashions just received from Paris. This evening gown is made of gold cloth. The front and back views give a very good idea of the effect produced by the new neck lines. Note the drooped shoulder effect and particularly the ankle length. The extended hip line, showing circular lace panels, is featured.

AIR BUS TO HOTEL IS NEW IDEA

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—It hasn't been so long ago that the fantastic-minded writers and vaudeville artists used to picture "Life in 1950" when airplanes would convey passengers directly to the roofs of the great metropolitan hotels.

That picture is very nearly realized at present, for although the airplanes of the Western Airway company do not light on hotel roofs, they will soon be maintaining a regular daily schedule between the Fairmont hotel here, and the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles. Service will be primarily for the hotels' guests. Landing fields in the outskirts of each city will be used as terminals. Five and one-half hours will be flying time.

LOUNGE LIZARD LOUIS IS TO BE DISCIPLINED

House Mothers of Sororities of Berkeley Are Roused

BERKELEY, April 12.—If recently adopted rules for the conduct of University of California codes are strictly enforced, house mothers at sororities will soon be adopting the Stanford system of arousing Lounge-Lizard Louis from clasping the hand of Languid Louise on the sorority divan at late hours by letting down the time-honored alarm clock, ringing loudly, on a string or knocking his derby off the hat rack with a stick.

The two rules recently adopted by the women's council of the university are:

Resolved that callers leave at 12 nights.

Resolved that we are in favor of a rule requiring women to stop dancing at 1 o'clock Fridays, and 2 o'clock Saturday nights, and to be home by 2 o'clock Friday and Saturday nights.

Thus, it may be seen, if the men want to go on dancing after these hours, they can—without interference from the women's council.

At the same time, Friday night ought to be popular—with that extra hour after the dance closes, and before its time to get home. Nothing is said about Sunday dancing, although 2 o'clock Saturday night is sometimes called Sunday morning in the large cities.

ENLIST GIRLS TO FIGHT BOOTLEGGERS

"Do not let a young man call on you if you know he is in the habit of drinking intoxicants when he can get them," said Miss Miriam Genrich, dean of women, in addressing the girl students of the State College of Washington on the subject of moral standards for men and women. She pointed out various ways in which the girls could use their influence, the weight of united opinion, to bring the moral standards of men and women more on a par.

DEMOCRATS SEE CHANCE IN PENN.

Unite to Take Advantage of Lack of Republican Leadership

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 12.—The political campaign in Pennsylvania this year promises to be the most interesting in many years. With an amazing rapidity, the strategic positions of the two great parties have been reversed. Instead of a highly organized Republican party, scornfully ignoring a weak and divided Democratic minority, this campaign finds a united Democratic party determined to take advantage of Republican lack of leadership.

The death of Boise Penrose threw into disarray the well oiled Republican machine in Pennsylvania. In the place of the over-towering figure who controlled the destinies of the party, there are now a score of big and little bosses who have as yet failed to get together. The Republicans are going into the primaries with a multiplicity of elbowing candidates attacking one another with ammunition usually used against Democratic opponents.

On the other hand, the Democrats, usually divided into bitterly warring factions, as a result of a harmony conference, have arranged a complete state ticket which has the declared support of all wings of the party and will, therefore, need to waste no effort in pre-primary intra-party bickering.

At the election next November the voters of Pennsylvania will elect two United States senators (the successors to Knox and Penrose), congressmen, and a complete state ticket. Sitting in the senate now the Republicans have George Wharton Pepper in the seat of Penrose and William E. Crow in the place of Knox. It is evidence of Republican lack of unity that no decision has yet been reached concerning how these two senatorships may be preserved from Democratic clutches. Major David A. Reed of Pittsburgh has practically uncontested Republican support to succeed Crow, who has been sick in a hospital for months. Pepper seems equally certain of little contest within Republican ranks and will be nominated without question as Pennsylvania's other United States senator.

The Democrats have named Col. Frederick Kerr to run against Pepper and Judge Samuel S. Shull against the Republican who takes Crow's place. The Democratic state ticket as a whole, led by John A. McSparran, farmer candidate for governor, will make a vigorous attack on the Republican record. There are few indications that Pennsylvania, so long fixed in the Republican column, will turn Democratic this year. However, if the Republican party proves unable to restore harmony within its ranks, the Democrats will probably have the best chance of the last several decades.

The candidacy of Clifford Pinchot, famous conservationist and former Progressive, for Republican nomination for governor is a most interesting element in the primary campaign. Pinchot has not the support of any group of the Republican organization which is divided among four other candidates, but personally he is believed here the strongest figure in the race. There are indications that he will pick up most of the woman vote and it is possible that, totally independent of the party machine as he is, he may win the Republican nomination for governor.

SCHOOL IN PRISON—WAUPON, Wis., April 12.—Making use of their spare time, 84 prisoners of the Wisconsin State prison here, are taking up the University of Wisconsin Extension work and, according to the prison officials, have been doing excellent work. Their marks, according to the University of Wisconsin authorities are on an average much higher than those of other students taking the work. This they say, is due to the fact that they are not subject to temptations of attending dances, movies and other social events. Twenty-four of the prisoners have already completed their courses.

DEVIL ANSE TO BE IMMORTALIZED

MATEWAN, W. Va., April 12.—Perpetuated in marble, "Devil Anse" Hatfield, leader of a faction of the famous Hatfield-McCoy feud will watch over the destinies of his descendants from the peak of the mountain which separates the Big Sandy and Guyandotte rivers.

Capt. Anderson Hatfield, called "Devil Anse" because of his relentless leadership in the most famous feud of modern times, realized his life's ambition when he died "with his boots on" in his home here in January of last year. The Hatfield-McCoy friction came to an end 30 years before the death of the stern old warrior, and Hatfields and McCoys rubbed elbows at his funeral, uniting to pay homage.

The statue which shows "Devil Anse" as he lived, with rough, home-spun clothes, cowhide boots and bristling beard, was carved in Italy from designs furnished by an American granite company.

Weighing over 6,000 pounds, the monument to "Devil Anse" will be erected in the Hatfield family plot in Logan county, where the remains of the feudal leader are buried.

The "household expenses" of the Pope exceed five thousand dollars a day.

a home; perhaps having something left over for investment.
Other families are unable to do this. They do not know how. That they do not know how does not give them logical right to declare that it cannot be done, for they may look all about them and see it being done.

The subject is one that does not lend well itself to tabulation. The trained figures of the statistician may be made to prove anything he desires to prove; but at that, they do not carry conviction.

"HOW GREAT A FIRE"

"Behold how great a fire a little matter kindleth!"
Back in rural Kansas, two girls appeared at the district school in dresses that the school board deemed too short. The girls were fifteen years of age. The dresses had been made by their mothers, who are farmers' wives. They thus belong to a class not prone to go to an extreme in fashions. Doubtless they have every wish that their respective daughters shall be properly clad, and shall demean themselves, in school and out, with propriety.

By orders of the school board, the girls were sent home to have their skirts lengthened. In that portion of Kansas there seems to be a lingering tradition that a lass must not be acknowledged to possess legs. The parents in this instance are exempt from the influence of this tradition. The father of one of the girls took the case to court. The judge ordered the board to let the girls go back to school, but said nothing whatever on the subject of skirts. The board filed a demurrer, which the court sustained, and out went the girls again. Then the father appealed to the supreme court. There the matter rests at present. Perhaps it may yet reach the tribunal presided over by Chief Justice Taft.

Until the decision shall have been made, the opinion will prevail generally, that mothers are competent censors of the skirt, that the affair is none of the business of the board, and that the right to discard skirts wholly and appear in knickers, is guaranteed by the constitution. And if the court rules otherwise, the public will be in contempt, for it will not change its opinion.

first time and now began the "Augustan age" of Mexico. During which time practically all the great public works and the advancement of his country and his people had their birth. Sitting in the national palace on the Zocalo, just across the square from the magnificent Cathedral of Mexico, from whose altar Junipero Serra started on his footsore journey through the California's, sitting there in his capital, Porfirio must have early taken a mental inventory of the problems besetting his people. His breadth of vision enabled him to see that his country, while rich in untitled fertile plains and valleys, rich in mineral wealth locked up in her hills, rich in millions of human workers, could never reach her national destiny without capital and skill in which she was hopelessly destitute, and so early he adopted John Hay's "open door" policy of inviting—yes, soliciting, foreign nations, British, French, Belgian, Spanish, as well as the American to develop his country, granting liberal concessions as their inducement to undergo hardship and chains of labor, in mine, in field, in city. He had the mind of a statesman enough to appreciate that a chance for income and profit must be the incentive to the exploration of the world and that this development is mutual and that if the capitalists gain, so Mexico, as a nation and people, gains, too, in fact more. If but this one sound economic social truth and this one only could successfully permeate the cranium of all our vote casting citizens here in our own country, what problems of America would today be solved?

And so under the constitution of the Mexican nation, the law of the land since 1857, which guaranteed to its citizens and to foreigners alike the right of private property, Diaz invited the world and for thirty years the Pearsons, the Dohenys, the Guggenheims, and all the countless foreigners of many nations began to unlock the "treasure house" with its gold, silver and oil, its coffee, lumber and henequen. Mexico for the first time in history entered upon what our President Monroe might have called it, her "Era of Good Feeling," with a solidarity based on a sound commercial, financial, social and educational program made possible by the foreigner.

From the fall of Diaz to the successive de facto governments of Madero, Huerta and Carranza, we step from the "iron hand" of the enlightened despot, who ruled pro bono publico, to days similar to the French revolution of Marat or Robespierre, but without the enlightenment of the European, a situation verging on socialism. Heed what the Mexican office of foreign affairs said officially on August 12, 1915, "The modern concept of property is that it is social function bound closely to the prosperity of the state." You might have expected the New York Jew, Trotsky, to have uttered the same thing in Petrograd.

As far back as January, 1916, our state department, anticipating the socialistic trend of Mexican governmental thought, brought to their attention how seriously any such actions would embarrass American citizens as well as foreigners who had long been engaged in business in Mexico. But Carranza as head of the de facto government, calling together a hastily arranged constitutional convention at Queretaro in 1917, promulgated on May 1 of that year the present constitution of Mexico, upon which the fundamental law of the land for sixty years, which had recognized as you have seen, the right of private property. Article 27 of the new constitution of 1917, which is the bone of contention, to which Britain, France, Spain and Belgium, as well as our own government protests, says in part: "The nation shall have at all times the right to impose on private property such limitation as interest may demand. For this purpose necessary measures shall be taken to divide large landed estates, etc." and again "In the nation is vested direct ownership of all minerals, phosphates, solid mineral fuels, petroleum and all hydro carbons; and again "Only Mexicans by birth or naturalization and Mexican companies have the right to acquire ownership in lands, obtain concessions to develop mines, waters or mineral fuels. The nation may grant the same right to foreigners, provided they agree not to invoke the protection of their governments in respect to same, under penalty of forfeiture to the nation of property so acquired."

Against the confiscatory provisions here reproduced, there is one safeguard in the same constitution, Article 14, which says: "No law shall be given retroactive effect to the prejudice of any person whatsoever."

After much correspondence in 1917 and only after repeated assurances from Ambassador Fletcher that Carranza and his minister of foreign relations, that Article 14 would prevent the confiscatory application of Article 27 to all property rights acquired in good faith prior to the new constitution of 1917, our government under President Wilson recognized the government of Carranza as a de jure government. Furthermore, Obregon himself has been quoted as stating that Article 27 would not and could not have retroactive effect. Nevertheless on February 2 of this year, 1922, in answer to a memorial drawn up in protest by the Spanish chamber of commerce of Mexico, whose position is practically the same as that of the American, following the seizure of lands under the Agrarian laws recently enacted to carry out the spirit of Article 27, for which payment in bonds of states of doubtful value were made. Hear the very words of Obregon himself sixty days ago: "In vain," said he, "do you invoke Article 14 of the constitution to support your claims, because that article does not and cannot refer to another constitutional precept, that of article 27."

If this view obtains, as it apparently does, where is the safeguard in the present constitution against the retroactive effect of Article 27? Secretary Hughes, like Secretary Colby before him, is not endeavoring to interfere with the internal government of Mexico or to insist that Mexico change this system under which her states are passing laws taking our private property. To clarify the present situation I can give you nothing better than the official statement of the press by our department of state on June 1st last year. Listen to the words of Secretary Hughes:

"The fundamental question which confronts the government of the United States in considering its relations with Mexico is the safeguarding of property rights against confiscation. Mexico is free to adopt any policy which she pleases with respect to her public lands, but she is not free to destroy without compensation valid titles which have been obtained by American citizens under Mexican laws. A confiscatory policy strikes not only at the interests of particular individuals, but at the foundations of international intercourse, for it is only on the basis of the security of property, validly possessed under the laws existing at the time of its acquisition, that commercial transactions between peoples of two countries and the conduct of activities in helpful co-operation are possible."

"This question should not be confused with any matter of personalities or of the recognition of any particular administration. Whenever Mexico is ready to give assurances that she will perform her fundamental obligation in the protection both of persons and of rights of property validly acquired, there will be no obstacles to the most advantageous relations between the two peoples."

"This question is vital because of the provisions inserted in the Mexican constitution promulgated in 1917. If these provisions are to be put into effect retroactively, the properties of American citizens will be confiscated on a great scale. This is the gravest character and this government could not submit to its accomplishment. If it be said that this wrong is not intended, and that the constitution of Mexico of 1917 will not be construed to permit, or enforced so as to effect, confiscation, then it is important that this should be made clear by guarantees in proper form. The provisions of the constitution and the executive decrees which have been formulated with confiscatory purposes, make it obviously necessary that the purposes of Mexico should be definitely set forth.

"Accordingly this government has proposed a treaty of amity and commerce with Mexico, in which Mexico will agree to safeguard the rights of property which attached before the constitution of 1917 was promulgated. The question, it will be observed, is not one of a particular administration but of the agreement of the nation in proper form which has become necessary as an international matter because of the provisions of its domestic legislation. If Mexico does not contemplate a confiscatory policy, the government of the United States can conceive of no possible objection to the treaty."

"The question of recognition is a subordinate one, but there will be no difficulty as to this, for General Obregon is ready to negotiate a proper treaty if it is drawn so as to negotiated with him and the making of the treaty in proper form will accomplish the recognition of the government that makes it. In short, when it appears that there is a government in Mexico willing to bind itself to the discharge of primary international obligations, concurrently with that act its recognition will take place. This government desires immediate and cordial relations of mutual helpfulness and simply wishes that the basis of international intercourse should be properly maintained."

"Accordingly, on the 27th of May last, Mr. Sumnerlin, American charge d'affaires in Mexico City, presented to General Obregon a proposed treaty covering the matters to which reference has been made. The matter is now in the course of negotiations and it is to be hoped that when the nature of the precise question is fully appreciated the obstacles which have stood in the way of a satisfactory settlement will disappear."

Our government, then, is asking nothing on behalf of Americans who have gone into Mexico since the new constitution of 1917 became operative. It demands protection only for those Americans who have created values under the old laws.

A statement of Mexico foreign commerce in 1912 is here pertinent. It shows, for instance, the importance of oil to Mexico's exports. In that year 44.8 per cent of all Mexico's exports were oil. To Mexico's export, largely carried in tank ships which bear the name "Los Angeles" across their stern. Oil is today the mainstay of Mexico industrially and produces over one-half her revenue. Picture for yourself, Sunsets, the condition of our neighbor had not American and English enterprise developed her oil resources.

How about the Mexican landowner himself? While seizure of his land and crops hangs over his head like the sword of Damocles, and only some executive order of the President is needed to bring it down upon him, how can he see his way clear to cultivate or stock his lands? Last year's importation of 11,000,000 bushels of corn, which is the wheat of Mexico, and of thousands of head of cattle, both of which Mexico should be exporting and always did export, tell the tale in short order.

Our government recalls that Carranza was long on promises and short on keeping them. Several departmental representations were made by our state department complaining of injustice to Americans. The answer of the Mexican government has almost invariably been "Your communication of a given date is hereby received and filed." Our government remembers, too, that Carranza made promises similar to those made verbally and unofficially by Obregon, but that after he secured the backing of the United States through recognition, he used the added prestige to injure citizens of the United States.

There is no doubt that the recognition of Obregon by our country would strengthen him. With recognition he might (and he would) use the word cautiously) be able to alter present conditions, which are the machinations of the radical socialist party. On the other hand, notwithstanding the personal desire of Obregon to be satisfactory (and I believe he himself desires to be just) once recognition is radiated more socialist might force the adoption of measures of bolshevistic and enter upon a saturnalia of the executive.

The United States government not only with the rights of her own people at stake, but as the official sponsor and trustee of the rights of the nationals of her allies, Britain, France and Belgium, cannot afford to risk a second chance. Accordingly our government suggested the plan above mentioned in Secretary Hughes' statement, whereby Mexico might secure recognition by signing a compact which would guarantee American citizens justice in the courts. "The Mexican government has to date refused such a commitment, and has merely answered such a chief executive had publicly stated that retroactivity could not be applied. While these utterances were being made and since, violation of American rights have been continued. You recall also President Obregon's commerce on February 5, this year, less than two months ago.

The proponents of an immediate recognition call attention to the recent decision of the Mexican supreme court in the case of Texas Co. In a country where the force of public opinion is nil, it is but natural that at times the judicial arm of the government might be influenced by the thoughts of the executive. In this decision the court handed down a decision, which on its face appears to give the desired protection to American oil interests, but actually does not. The decision goes on to state that an oil well actually developed may be retained by the owner, but that undeveloped oil lands acquired in good faith may revert to the state. Under this opinion one might have acquired prior to 1917 valuable lands on which only one well had been actually brought in, which he might keep. The rest of his land, no matter how valuable it might be or regardless of the development work he might have had in progress or the money he might have actually spent, might be subject to confiscation by the state.

The experience of our government with Carranza is a warning. It is the "Stop, look and listen sign" in determining our national policy. However, it is unjust to require President Obregon to suffer for the acts of his predecessor. Yet Obregon succeeded Carranza and in the vicissitudes of the Mexican state, as we cast our eye back over the tortuous course since 1821, which I have indicated, nobody can foretell who will succeed Obregon. The recognition of Carranza was premature on our part and certainly unwarranted on his. His assurances were informal at best and not embodied in a treaty or compact.

Is the Rio Grande to separate or simply divide the two people? President Obregon knows the answer. No one will deny the Herculean task confronting him, to dominate by brain and by force the Mexico of today. No one will deny that in the sixteen months since he addressed us that day at Chapultepec he has achieved a considerable success. Has he yet the reins of government strongly and firmly enough in his hands to persuade his cabinet and his lawmakers to see the one way out for Mexico? Can he make them realize in this international game of poker there is a new administration in the White House with a firm upper lip and that to gain points the international rules of play must be observed? Should we Americans keep shouting from the house tops with resolution but the gravity and the points of which we so little appreciate? Should we not rather repose our confidence in Under Secretary Fletcher and Secretary Hughes whose idea is to grant recognition only on a basis that will make for sound, lasting international relations between the two peoples?

THE LISTENING POST

Three spirits walked down the highway together. Looking upon life and landscape and earth and sea and sky. Each with a different viewpoint.
The three spirits were those of Regret, Gladness and Apprehension. The apprehension that is sometimes called Fear. And they expressed themselves. With regard to life first.
Regret said it was a place strewn with broken hearts and lost opportunities. Gladness said it was a place of sunshine and hopefulness. Apprehension said it was only a place of decay and death.
"How cold and bleak it was yesterday," said Regret. "How warm and sunny and cheerful it is today," said Gladness. "How bleak and barren and wintry it will be tomorrow," said Fear.
"Do you remember how dead and bare the limbs of the trees were but a while ago," asked Regret. "Do you observe how green and full of leaves and blossoms the trees and bushes are today?" said Gladness. "Have you thought how dead and lifeless and ugly they will be before long?" asked Fear.
"Was a beautiful thing that youth," said Regret. "I sigh that I have lost it."
"Was a wonderful thing life is," said Gladness. "I am delighted that I live it."
"Was a sad and terrible thing death and decay are," said Fear. "I shudder that I must face them."
"Was bare the hills were yesterday," said Regret. "I remember how sad it made me." "How green and fresh they are today," said Gladness. "I rejoice that I may look upon them." "How sear and bare and barren they will be tomorrow," said Fear. "I dislike to think of it."
"I wept yesterday," said Regret. "I shed bitter tears." "I smile today," said Gladness. "I will die tomorrow," said Fear. "I am full of dread."
"That rose was not there yesterday. The bush was bare," said Regret. "How beautiful it is today. The bush is aflame," said Gladness. "Its petals will drop and die tomorrow," said Fear. "Its doom is certain."
Three spirits walked down the highway. Gloom and Gladness and Dread. Each looking upon the same world. And each seeing only what he had eyes to see.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES
Up in San Francisco there is a girl who offers to pay $50,000 for a husband. This does not mean any old husband who is available. She has picked her man. She is willing to put up $50,000 as a bet that she loves him with a fine and enduring affection. Love is a great thing; eccentric in its manifestations at times.
The man in the case is married. He has been married three times, divorced once, had one marital operation annulled. Altogether, quite to be considered an expert on matrimony. He is trying now to get another divorce. Here is where the $50,000 comes in: It is for the wife, if she will agree not to oppose the action. But wouldn't this be collusion?
When a divorce judge spots collusion in his court, he throws it out, along with the case and the litigants. There may be a severe bump in the path of this true and touching love.
Looked upon without bias, and as a commercial proposition, the hopeful maid's proffer seems to represent an over-estimate of values. The opinion that comes to mind, is that the bid (waiting the morals involved) is too high. Almost anybody with that sum to spend could make better use of it than the purchase of a man whose profession appears to be that of being a sporadic husband.
Were the wife to be guided by the real worth of the object of her barter, and disregard the impropriety of the sale, it is likely she would think herself getting overpaid in the amount of $49,999.70.
However, there is no telling how a woman will act in such emergency.
Three footpads captured a Los Angeles policeman, took away his gun, handcuffs and money, and then unloading the weapon, handed it back to him and turned him loose. This shows the nerve of the prevalent highway thief.
The policeman having some extra cartridges in his pocket related the gun, captured his captors, and they are in prison charged with robbery. This shows that, however good their nerve, they lacked foresight.
A number of Chicago criminals, whose victims were girls, have been sentenced to prison for a year each.
On this coast a similar group was broken up a year or two ago, and the lightest sentence that resulted was fifty years. The leader got a full hundred.
Even the distinguished gentlemen sitting on the bench seem to fail to get anything approximating a common point of view.
From the top of a peaceful mountain a large section has lopped over and fallen into Topanga canyon, greatly to the marring of a scenic road that winds through the gorge. There was nothing sudden about the journey of the mountain top. It cracked gradually, and losing its balance, succumbed to recognized natural laws.
Sometimes it might be wished that mountains would refrain from acting in this manner, but 'twas in this fashion the visible world took on its present aspect.
The country drifts on towards a coal famine. Upon its arrival thousands of men in other industries will be thrown out of work.
If the operators think for a minute that the people are unqualifiedly with them, they are adding another error to a list already long.
Sometimes the public even goes so far as to believe that a miner should have living wages and decent conditions, and that to withhold either is disregarding the rights of some hundred millions of people who are in the mass only as innocent bystanders.
Many must have felt a strong emotion of sympathy upon hearing that Rose Coghlan was in need in her old age. They will be happy to learn that friends went to her rescue without loss of time.
Miss Coghlan's length of service on the stage has been exceeded by few of the profession. By the older people she will be remembered as giving them the most artistic "Lady Teazle" ever portrayed. In the nineties she was in a stock company on this coast, taking many roles, and being delightful in all.
The widow of the late Emperor Charles is to be permitted to leave exile. There is not deemed to be slightest chance that she has the ability, if the will, to stir up trouble in Europe.
When the Hapsburgs were cast out of power, in all probability the operation was for all time. The eldest son of the widow is nine. He might as well begin to figure on some method of earning a living. No throne awaits.
Asked by a kindly judge if he was addicted to the use of drugs a prisoner replied that he used a little opium, cocaine, morphine, heroin, strychnine and occasionally arsenic, "but nothing more," he added.
Dear mol-is there anything more?

THE RECOGNITION OF MEXICO

By MAYNARD MCFEE

(The following address was delivered by Mr. McFee before the Sunset Club of Los Angeles at its monthly meeting March 30. It is a clear statement of the situation in Mexico, and so illuminating that it is being reproduced for the benefit of our readers. Mr. McFee is one of the most able business men of the Pacific coast. He is a director of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank. During his term as president of the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles he conducted an excursion of Los Angeles business men to Mexico City. He is general manager of W. T. McFee Supply company, wholesale steel products, Los Angeles.)

Paraphrasing the words of Hamlet—we ask—"To recognize or not to recognize Mexico—that is the question." "Aye—tis a consummation devoutly to be wished." At this juncture, however, the inevitable "but" struts across the train of our thoughts and like the famous Dane in his soliloquy "must give us pause." Certainly the United States has much to gain from a recognition of Mexico—and our city in particular would undoubtedly profit as much as any section of the country.

In November, 1920, at the inauguration of President Obregon in Mexico City, I made the statement that whereas England is generally spoken of as the Mother Country of the United States—when we reflect for a moment on the names of Junipero Serra and his Franciscan Padres, the Missions, Portola and his galleons, Cabrillo, who lies buried in an unknown grave on San Miguel island off Santa Barbara—when we call to mind our Mission Play, our Mission Inn, our El Camino Real, the names of our city and mountains and streets—certainly Mexico is the foster mother of Southern California. Sentimentally then and historically, how natural for an Angeleno to wish a speedy recognition of this mother country into the comity of nations!

Furthermore, how many appreciate the fact that after Mexico City, Guadalajara and Puebla, Los Angeles is the fourth largest Mexican city in the world with a population in excess of 50,000? In effect, our city is really the capital of the west coast of Mexico, north of the boundary, the Mecca for most Mexicans coming to the states. As soon as the eighty-mile stretch of tunnels, now long delayed by world conditions as well as by Mexican upheavals, between Tepic and Guadalajara is completed, Pullman coaches will leave our Fifth and Central avenue station and via Nogales, Arizona, land our passengers at the Colonna station in the Mexican capital, without change of car. Within the last fortnight you have seen in the press how the Clan Line, one of the largest Scottish English merchant ship operators, has just inaugurated under the Mexican flag a monthly combination passenger and freight service out of our harbor, calling at the principal west coast ports as far south as Salina Cruz, which is but another of the forces that will weld our city to the west coast and cut this section of the world in the same analogous position to us here in the Pacific southwest that Alaska has long borne to Seattle.

Consider also for just a moment what Los Angeles capital is already bound up in the destiny of Mexico. Over twenty years ago Messrs. Doheny and Canfield, who had previously discovered the first oil within the city limits of Los Angeles—out on Lake Shore avenue—sold out their interests in the Kern river to the first Mexican petroleum company, successfully opened up the first Mexican petroleum near Ebadon. Within the last few years our own Union Oil company of California has developed considerable territory in the state of Tamaulipas; E. J. Marshall's great cattle range, the Palomas, stretching along the Texan border in the state of Chihuahua, the scene of Pancho Villa's raid on Columbus, N. M., a few years ago; the Richardson Bros.' land project at the mouth of the Yaqui river delta in the state of Sonora; likewise the vast fertile acreage of the Sinaloa Land company in the state just to the south, organized by Los Angeles capitalists; M. Elasser and his associates in various cattle raising and mining enterprises and in farming in the valley of Mexico; the Globe Cotton Oil mills across from Calexico; the so-called Otis, Chandler, Brant syndicate in Baja, Cal.; the Bradbury mines at Santa Rosalia; the late J. S. Torrance and his International Development company's rich iron ore deposit near Magdalena Bay—these and numerous other holdings reveal the live interest Mexico holds for us in southern California today.

Why does not the United States recognize the Obregon government? If recognition were a mere state ceremonial, it might be granted for the asking. If it were nothing more than the token of good will, that token might be tendered without delay. But it is much more than either. Recognition is a solemn act of state. It changes the status of the government recognized. It admits the recognized government as its into the society of nations. It imposes obligations and international rights and duties. Down deep in their hearts the great 110,000,000 people of the United States are disposed to bear good will towards Mexico. They would rejoice to see a situation arise that would justify immediate recognition. Why then is the present position of our state department justified? Let us ponder for a few moments a close up of Mexico.

The Rio Grande separates two peoples and two republics. In distance it represents only a few hundred yards. In point of time, however, it represents as many hundred years. Two different civilizations confront each other across a slender thread of water—one of Anglo Saxon origin, the greatest experiment in self government the world has ever known—the other, the Latin, a democracy in name only, which during 110 years of independence from Spain, has undergone 200 revolutions and sustained ninety presidents, thus averaging one and one-half revolutions per year and almost one president for the same period. This constant state of turmoil turns my mind to an editorial I read one morning at the breakfast table in Washington, D. C., recently. Picking up a copy of that venerable New England sheet, the Boston Transcript, my eye caught the following sandwiched in between two longer editorials. The editor was apparently giving vent to his opinion on the local Boston political situation, for he said: "We are to be congratulated. Normalcy has returned. The city council is again deadlocked."

Consider Mexico, a people of fifteen million inhabiting a territory—a "veritable treasure house"—one-third the size of the United States, six million of whom are native Indians in the same state of civilization as when Cortez landed in 1521, one million Spanish and eight million mixed; fifteen million people with sixty-three dialects and a thousand idiosyncracies, one-tenth only of whom have common school educations and 75 per cent of whom cannot read a sign post or scratch their names, all topped off by a so-called aristocratic or ruling class of a hundred thousand, together with a similar number of churchmen. What France was under Louis XIV.—what Russia was under Catherine the Great—Mexico is today—a remnant of feudalism of the seventeenth century, living in 1922, a military oligarchy in the guise of a republic backing across the Rio Grande to a government of—by and for the people.

To set the stage, to create the correct atmosphere of the picture, bear with me a moment while I brush the cob webs from your memory and call to mind the salient points in Mexican history.

Three hundred years after Cortez began his conquest at Vera Cruz in 1519, the Monk Hidalgo, Mexico's George Washington, threw off the Spanish yoke and Mexico declared her independence. The last Spanish viceroy was deposed in 1821, and Iturbide was proclaimed emperor the year following. Texas seceded in 1836 after the Alamo massacre in San Antonio and set herself up as the "Lone Star state." Her annexation to the United States in 1845 was the signal for the Mexican war of 1848, which resulted in the Guadalupe Hidalgo in 1848, which resulted in the ceding of a large territory to the United States comprising the modern states of Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Arizona, parts of our own state of California. This incident is even today the basis of much of the animosity, jealousy and hostility which most of even the better class of Mexicans nourish in their hearts for the Gringos, claiming that Mexico was robbed outright of a vast territory belonging rightfully to her United States. Just during the past twenty years in the United States their ear to the ground to muck rake our great business corporations willy nilly, so since the fall of Diaz Mexican politicians, whether by the indecisive attitude on the part of our last administration in dealing summarily with Mexican problems, have used as a stepping stone to rise higher and higher, their ability to rail out box oratory on the Paseo del Reforma or in government halls is inspired by this grievance of 1848. I know this sentiment actually exists from a personal close up inside one of the leading influential Mexican families of Tacubaya on my try to Mexico last year. Giving the devil his due, and looking facts in the face, is the Mexican angle in this one instance so far elongated?

Proceeding down the aisle of history, we note that while America was torn with civil war in '65, France sought to test the strength of our Monroe doctrine, and Maximilian's feeble expire came and went in three short years, with the restoration of the Mexican republic in 1867. Ten years later Diaz became president for the

He is shown here listening in on a code message which trickled in from Russia.

EASTER BONNETS CLAIM PLACE IN THE SUN

Fashion Notes From New York Proclaim New Styles and Motifs

NEW YORK, April 12.—A ground hog has a chance to pick his weather. A woman never. Weather it be raining cats and dogs on Easter Sunday, perched on every woman's head, will be her Easter bonnet offering.

From Fifth avenue, New York, to Main street, in 48 states, there will be one long procession of bonnets as varied in color as dyed Easter eggs. Whatever Easterite may mean to the theologian or to the philosopher, to a woman it means—a new hat.

Although hats are far less expensive this year than they have been for some time back, there is no reason why the Colonel's Lady and Julie O'Grady should appear in the same head-gear, for there seems to be no two models exactly alike either as to shape or trimming.

The turban will undoubtedly be the most popular model in the Eastern parade, as many of the smartly gowned women prefer a close fitting hat for the early season wear. They are usually made in black highly lustered fabric, which is wrapped in thick rolls about a medium sized frame in Hindu effect. They are trimmed in various ways, of which the small rhinestone pin placed at the center front is the most frequent. The earring idea is carried out in some instances, where long pendants are attached to the sides of the hat. Then there are the sprays of Paradise and aigrettes which fall to one side. Hats of this turban type are generally made in black, although there are a few jade greens and Roman striped silks used. One very attractive turban made in the Roman striped effect has colorings of blue, jade, yellow and black swathed about the head with a huge green scarab placed directly over the eyes.

It is futile to try to describe the many effects of the turbans but their general aim is to look like the head gear of the Hindu or the fez of the Turk. To achieve the best effect the turban must be worn low over the eyes giving one a mysterious Oriental appearance and there are some fetching little harem veils made of transparent mesh which make one look—Oh! La! La!

The poke hat will not be poking in the rear of the Easter procession if the smart hat houses have their way. Perhaps more can be done with a hat of this sort than with any other model, as so much depends upon its trimming and facing. They may be either small and close fitting or quite wide with glazed fruits or flowers piled high across the front. A pretty dressy model is made of black horse-hair braid trimmed with black grapes and shiny leaves. Its back brim is cut very short as are most of the poke effects. Sometimes there is no back brim at all, which is particularly attractive on the bobbed haired miss, for it permits her short locks to curl cunningly upwards in back. Since these poke brims tend to cast a shadow over the face it is well to have them faced in a soft color. A black shape of Timbo straw is lovely faced in the faintest of shell pink with waxed pink camellias placed at the sides, their stems and foliage drooping slightly over the brim.

The very large hat adds a new note to the spring millinery with its brim slightly drooping and softened with a maline flange. Nothing can be prettier for afternoon or dress wear than a hat of this type. There is some doubt as to whether these large hats will make their appearance as early as Easter, as they are essentially a summer hat. A wide leghorn has its wired brim edged with a fold of narrow blue ribbon and its crown developed in the same shade of blue silk faille. Its sole trimming is a wide sash of coral velvet swathed about the crown and tied in a loose bow at one side. Leghorns, by the way, form the body of some of this season's smartest hats. There is one model trimmed in yellow chiffon which is peccoted in petals that are placed in layers about the brim and fall over the edge giving a soft effect to the face. The crown is left in the plain leghorn while the facing is of the yellow chiffon. Streamers of yellow ribbon fall over the left shoulder in cascade fashion. This makes a bewitching hat for the Easter bridesmaid. A novel way of trimming the large hat is to place flat flowers in solid mass effect on the under brim.

Paris is responsible for the fantastic tamoshanter, called the "crazy quilt." It is made of various colors and shapes of silk put together with yarn feather-titching. It is exactly like Grandma's old patch quilt work, but when a varicolored tassel is added it really acts as a smart finish for the unusual looking costume. The Parisian price tag which it carries will bar it from becoming common.

In spite of the preponderance of colors used this Spring, black will lead during the early season. Red is being used regardless of one's coloring and is quite attractive with the all white sport suit, especially since there are such adorable white sport shoes with red trimmings. Red, however, is not credited entirely to sport wear. A very popular debutante who effects the pale make-up with red lips, appeared on the Avenue recently in a grey costume suit which was worn with a grey silk turban trimmed with a huge center pendant of lip-stick red.

Periwinkle is a popular hat shade just now, though there is danger of its becoming very common. Dandelion yellow is good, but the tendency of the well dressed woman is to let others carry the real vivid hues. She prefers the new colors in the softer, more subdued tones. Black and white is gaining in popularity daily and no longer is associated with mourning wear. The white is introduced by way of trimming either as piping or as clusters of waxed flowers. Dark women find this black and white effect flattering.

Odd feather fantasies are leading over the flowers as a trimming for the Easter hat. Where flowers are used they are in the buttoniere clusters placed about the hat brims or else in the solid mass effect on the off-the-face hat. Tulips in shades of red and purple are very new and add a "Springiness" to the Easter bonnet.

They are placed in nosegay fashion about the brim. Another nosegay trimming is made of roses of dyed narrow lace. The all face hats will play their part in the Easter evening show as will malines in black and browns. Just now wide ribbon bows are being used on many of the all black models. Often a plain black hat is turned into a charming creation by a huge loosely tied bow placed at exactly the right angle with long ends falling to the waistline. For the woman who intends to spend her Easter at Atlantic City or Palm Beach, the sport hat will enact the Easter bonnet role. Quite the smartest of these are the small roll brim, leghorn sailers with the usual ribbon hat band. The debutantes prefer to wear theirs rolled up in front and down in the back. Felts are still going well for resort wear and best suit the tweed sport costumes. The new, striped awning effects made of cloth material have a certain amount of distinction.

The Standard of the World

Exceptional roadability, combined with a dashing smartness, are admired characteristics of the Type 61 Eight-Cylinder Cadillac Phaeton.

Owners are enthusiastic over its exhilarating gliding smoothness even when the car is driven at high speeds.

They take no less pleasure in its superb power and in the easy swiftness of its acceleration.

An outstanding improvement of the Type 61 Cadillac—its lowered center of gravity, achieved without reduced road clearance—causes the Phaeton to cling to the road and handle with a sure case which is a joy to the experienced driver.

In the Phaeton, as in all models of the Type 61, a delightful surprise awaits those who had assumed that the maximum of roadability and riding comfort had been previously attained in the Cadillac.

NEW AUTO SALES PLAN
MONTE CARLO, April 12.—First do away with the tariff on automobiles in all countries. Then establish an international selling corporation, with branches in all countries to sell on their merits at standard prices all makes of motor cars of all origins. That is the plan evolved by Raymond S. Schindler, former president of the New York Rotary club, after a study of French and other foreign motor markets. Schindler is wintering at the Riviera.

NEW INDUSTRY IS BUILDING IN TUJUNGA

Davies Sheet Metal Works Building on Sunset Boulevard

TUJUNGA, April 12.—Thomas R. Davies, of the Davies Tin & Sheet Metal works, is erecting a building on Sunset boulevard between Monte Vista and El Centro to house his business. Mr. Davies has purchased the lot on which he is building and lives in Tujunga.

Besides doing all the ordinary kinds of tin and sheet metal work, this shop will make a specialty of made-to-order toys, such as miniature battleships for show window purposes.

Since the matter of attracting small industries to Tujunga was brought up some time ago, several industries employing a small number of people have been started.

Tujunga Scout Activities
Tomorrow night Tujunga boy scouts and scout leaders and executives will go to Glendale to take part in the ceremonies coincident with receiving the charter for the Verdugo Hills district.

The program committee has arranged a fine program which will be divided into part A and part B. Part A consists chiefly of scout activities as follows: Presentation of the twelve international laws by Burbank scouts, in the costumes of twelve different countries in which the scouts are organized; scout chorus of 150 voices; scout Hawaiian orchestra of Pasadena; welcoming address by a boy scout orator; boy scout assemblage on the stage. The Eagle Rock scouts will give a snappy exhibition of knot-tying and the Tujunga troop will give the scout oath in tabloid form. Troops 1, 2 and 5 of Glendale will demonstrate respectively camp life, model scout meeting and typical games.

Part B of the program will be given over to the more formal aspects of the occasion. Talks will be made by Charles L. Chandler, president of the Verdugo Hills district council; Tallman H. Trask, scout executive of Pasadena council, etc. The formal presentation of the council charter will be made by Stuart W. French, member of the twelfth regional committee, Boy Scouts of America, and president of Pasadena scout council.

Scout activities in Tujunga have taken a decided step forward in the last few months. An executive committee and scoutmaster have been appointed and most of the boys of scout age in the community are members.

FITFUL BARBER IS IN BAD
OAKLAND, April 12.—A plea of why he was unable to support his family, a wife and four children, who touched even the judicial heart of Judge L. S. Church, was made by John S. Vierra here recently during a non-support hearing.

"How would you like to be shaved by a barber who had the habit of throwing a fit just as he was about to scrape the foliage from your Adam's apple?" asked Vierra's attorney.

The judge admitted that he wouldn't choose it as his favorite indoor sport.

Vierra informed the court that because of the fact that he has fits, he has a hard time to keep a job in a barber shop. He says he goes along all right for a while but that the first time he throws a fit while shaving a customer he gets fired. Hence, he stated, he was frequently unable to support his family.

PERMISSION TO MARRY
BERLIN, April 12.—While any ordinary German citizen, male or female, ceases to need the consent of the parents for marrying at the age of 21, the German doughboy needs a special permission by his officer. As a rule this permission is not given before the age of 28. However, if it is refused, he has the right to appeal to the war ministry.

30 TONS OF GOLD
BRUSSELS, April 12.—Thirty one of gold have been extracted from the Belgian government gold mines at Kilo Moto, in the Congo, according to a report by Vice Governor Moulart, who is president of the special committee sent out 18 months ago to start operations. Over 6,000 natives and 100 whites are employed on the work, the report stated.

THE TRAITORS
I write this confession down slowly,
I've pondered the subject for long,
I know it is wicked, unholly,
Unrighteous and totally wrong.
I know it's a barbaric jingle,
How little of music it has,
But I feel such a jovial tingle
In my feet when the band's playing jazz.

I know, yes, I know that I shouldn't Set down, it may be, what I say.
I wish that the feet of me wouldn't
Go on misbehaving that way.
I try as I ought to suppress it,
That wicked influence it has,
But the tingle is there, I confess it
In my feet when the band's playing jazz.

My voice has been lifted in protest,
My pen has opposed it, you see,
But my feet, I have shamefully noticed
With my voice and my pen don't agree.
I talk of the jazz and its jingle,
And the evil influence it has,
But both of my feet—well, they tingle
Somehow when the band's playing jazz.

"Oh, Youngsters, I'm sure it will hurt you,
It's music not wholesome or sweet!"
So the mind of me fills up with virtue—
But the devil gets into my feet.
I hit it a swat and a bingle,
For the evil it does now and has,
But my feet have that traitorous tingle
Somehow when the band's playing jazz.

EASTER SUIT MUST BE PRACTICAL SAY EXPERTS

Fancy of Women These Days Turn to Colorful Clothes

NEW YORK, April 11.—In the spring a woman's fancy lightly turns to thought of clothes. At the ebbing of the long winter months, Eastertide marks the high tide when all nature tidies up a bit for the beginning of the spring season.

The Easter costume will be first of all, colorful. Those who love color need have no qualms about being grotesque or loud for the spring costume must have abundant color to gain cognizance in the Easter parade. The rainbow colors seem pale in comparison with many of the man-made shades of this season. Care must be taken, however, in deciding just where the color is to be used, for the Easter outfit is one which does duty as a street dress later on and must be practical, unless one has an unlimited amount of gowns. Let your sleeves, linings, pipings, garters or girdles supply the color touches, keeping the main material of the costume in practical tones. No little emphasis should be laid to the selection of the color used. There are no set rules to go by. You must study yourself.

An artist will tell you to follow your own coloring in the color scheme of your gown. To make blue eyes appear bluer, wear a darker shade of blue, but not too dark; or the eyes will become paler by contrast. A blend should never attempt orange tones near her face; blues, green and black will be more becoming to her. Pinks and orchids also look well on the blond. The titian haired girl should shun red like she'd shun a mouse. Rich browns, soft greens, dark purples, greys and orange will bring out the golden tints of her hair and soften the face. Entire black is difficult to wear. Those who are inclined to be sallow should avoid it.

While white is becoming to the young face, it could be used sparingly, unless the complexion is quite perfect, though an oyster white or cream is extremely flattering. Brunettes can effect far stronger colors than can the blond, titian or brown haired types. Yellows, reds, maientas and almost any vivid color will prove becoming to them. The girl with drab or mouse colored hair is the one who should be most careful in her color selections. She should avoid dark colors, unless brightened up with contrasting shades. Pastels are her best choice, though black and certain deep blues will be becoming to her. Dandelion yellow, periwinkle blue and new shades that are constantly being brought out should be worn with discrimination. Never wear a novel color simply because it is the latest vogue.

Having settled the color selection, the attention is turned to the silhouette, which should be a bit elongated as to hem with wide flowing sleeves, low draped waistline and simple bateau neck. One should try to gain picturesque simplicity in clothes that suggest the individuality of the wearer, rather than the individuality of the garment. The woman that is conscious of a "dressed up" feeling never looks smart, for she is overcome by her gown. Carry your costume—never let the costume suit you!

The three piece costume suit will by all odds be the most popular Easter garb, especially in the east, where the weather does not permit one to doff the winter weights for the one piece dress so abruptly. Not only is the three piece suit one which adapts itself admirably to exquisite trimmings and individual touches, but it is the most practical suit arrangement brought out in recent years. On warm days the jacket or short cape can be dispensed with, leaving an equally smart frock to be worn with a small fur piece. The tailored suit is no longer considered smart except, of course, in the sport models and these should be worn for sport wear only, if one wishes to display good taste in gowning. For resort wear, on the links or for the morning shopping tour, the sport suit is at its best, but it certainly is not the thing for afternoon wear about town.

However, the regulation sport suit will not be taken up too seriously by smart women who wish to appear individual, for the flapper type has rather monopolized it. I do not mean to disparage the young girlhood of today in slurring the flapper, but refer to a certain type of girl who are wearing an exaggerated lot of publicity of late by their superficial actions and the ridiculous "swankness" with which they carry their sport clothes. Flapperism is no longer a question of age but of spirit clothes.

When one's figure is such that it requires a longer outer garment than the paletot jacket or short cape, heavy figured silk crepes made in the Spanish shawl effect are lovely and give that careless draped effect that is so fascinating on the over medium-height woman. They are usually just large squares of material bordered with a wide fringe in self color and lined in some contrasting shade that will be becoming when carried out in the hat. Jade makes a pretty lining when one can wear it. These Spanish capes are made in supplies to the dressy gown and are appropriate for afternoon or evening wear. More practical capes cut on regular cape lines are better for the business girl or the woman who wants her wardrobe to be a practical one. A cape of grey velour de laine is banded in blue velvet and lined in the same shade of blue. Black crepe moire capes collared with chinchilla are considered very smart, and are one of the few exceptions where fur is used. Most capes have collars of self material with puffed rosettes made of the same material.

The introduction of drapery into many of the spring models is being noted. The gown which is completely draped following the line of the figure should be worn only by a woman who is tall and slender and unless one is certain of the effect of this type of gown, one should not attempt it. Most of us will confine our drapery to our skirts, where the side drape is gracefully held in place by a buckle or pendant at the low waist line. Metal girdles are used with most of the better class of gowns. Among the colors which are considered strong in conjunction with black are cinnamon brown, beige, putty and almond green. Dark blue as ever holds a prominent place in the Easter offering and this year we will see it brightened with dashing colors.

STATE RAILWAY CONTROL
LUXEMBOURG, April 12.—The Luxembourg Railway Workers' Federation, comprising 8,000 railway workers of the Grand Duchy, has rejected a proposal to hand over the Luxembourg railways to a corporation, and proposed they be turned over to the Belgian government, to be run in connection with the Belgian government system.

We have communicated with the spirit of Diogenes. "Ask him," we requested the medium, "ask him if he really lived in a tub." The table moved nervously, the medium snored, and then from her lips came the very voice of the great Athenian: "I owned a yacht; you call it a houseboat," said the sage. "I lived on it. The jealous yachtmen of the times call it a tub. Come a drink. T say, gimme." The voice died away, but we had solved a mystery.

SPRING STYLES OF MEN CHANGE LITTLE

So Says Arbitrator in Gotham Discussing Cuffs on Trousers

NEW YORK, April 12.—Radical changes in Easter style of clothes for men are conspicuous by their absence this year, according to indications of the national barometer—Fifth avenue windows.

"Ze well dressed man he will wear—ah, ze well dressed man he will just be well dressed," declared the designer of one of the nation's most extensive manufacturers of men's clothing, adding to his perplexing description that it was impossible to point out any radical changes in style.

Trousers are to retain their cuffs or rolls at the bottom, according to the fashion decree, and these are being shown in leading displays.

Most distinctive among the minor changes in style is the three or four button high-cut coat. It is loose, much roomier than past styles, and is being generally adopted by the clothing trade, not alone for the metropolis but for the entire country. The long, narrow lapels are favored.

Loose-fitting top coats for spring wear accompany the wardrobe into which the roomy coats are to go.

The cloth of years ago, "tartan," is being extensively shown. It's an over-plaid with frail stripes spread about two inches apart running up and down the cloth. Freakish cuts in suits have been entirely tabooed by manufacturers, and except sport wear for riders, golfers and campers there is little unusual in the showings. The sport coats get into the race jockey's class. Some of them have white sleeves and green and red fronts and backs.

Hats are as varied as the makers but the prevailing style will be similar to those of this winter, pronounced roll to the brims, and with most of the manufacturers inclining to the soft materials.

Shoes range in varieties more numerous than hats, but dealers declare the broad or modified toe is now a fixture in styles. This "broad toe business," as one dealer put it, followed the war and discharged soldiers, and there is no getting away from it.

Bow ties are coming back strong into man's realm of fashion, dealers declare, and substantiate their statements by displaying them liberally in windows. The "bat-wing" tie, a bow tie with wider tips than the usual neck-piece, is highly favored.

Four-in-hands will always remain around some men's necks but the younger set is lighting things up a bit with the new issues—with a heavy brilliant stripe.

White, for shirts, is conspicuously favored for spring wear, although for vacationists, caterers to the best dressed man are showing brilliantly colored shirts with stiff colored collars to match.

Hosiery continues along its usual lines. In the spring a young

TO KILL ANTS

In answer to a query from a Harvey farmer as to a means of destroying ants that ate the tender plants in his hotbed as fast as they came up, A. Spuler, assistant entomologist at the State College of Washington says a weak solution of sodium cyanide (about 1 per cent) poured into holes punched in the ants' nests will generate an extremely poisonous gas which will suffocate the pests. Holes may be punched with a cane or broomstick about two feet apart, the liquid poured in, and the hole immediately closed by a kicking in some of the dirt. A cool morning should be chosen, when the ants are at home. This method has the advantage of reaching and killing the queen mother of the colony, as the poisoned sweet baits sometimes used outside do not.

man's thoughts turn to fancy, so he'll wear white or light hose with "clocks."

FROM STAGE TO CELL

LONDON, April 12.—A star comedian at a West-end theatre went through his paces at the matinee while two policemen waited to take him to jail for non-payment of income-tax. The performance over, the comedian went to his dressing room with the policemen and then went to jail. The policemen arrived at the theatre just as the comedian was going on. They were persuaded to wait until the performance was over.

LONDON, April 12.—Pythons or hot dogs, its all the same to the pretty fair-haired snake curator of the London History Museum. She handles 'em all, live or dead. "It's just like handling uncooked sausages," she told a little bunch of admirers as she fondled a great ten foot rock python in her arms.
