Volume XXXVIII

Published by the Junior Class of Trinity College
Hartford, Connecticut

Editorial

ONE YEAR follows another swiftly at Trinity, and as the student life ebbs and flows, it becomes the duty and pleasure annually to place The Trinity Ivy before the world, undergraduates, graduates and friends. Here, in this true gem of collegiate literature, ever shining in renewed and more lustrous light, the fruit of editorial brains may be gleaned, brains racked with perplexity and deprived of their accustomed fragments of repose, puzzled as to the manner in which to usher in the result of their labor of the late months. We feel it unnecessary to call attention to the intrinsic excellence of our work. One is only obliged to turn the pages of this volume, in order to be adequately impressed with the genius, art and solicitude that have been prodigal in its production. We might indeed speak of the College itself, and rightly, but the life at Trinity must necessarily be experienced to be appreciated, and no words can fitly or fully express our feelings on the subject. Then too, again, we might speak of our own class, if it were not for the fact that Nineteen-Eleven has spoken for itself ever since she entered Trinity, and much more is sure to be heard from her in years to come. Many subjects offer themselves to our mind, but none has its proper place for discussion at the present writing. Therefore, finding ourselves without any reasonable matter to expatiate upon, trusting in the fair criticism of our friends, and without further ado, we submit the Ivy of Nineteen-Eleven.

1910 History

LIFE has two ecstatic moments," says Augustus Hare in his "Guesses at Truth"—"One when the spirit catches sight of truth, the other when it recognizes a kindred spirit." Possibly there are no better words we can find to tell you what these four years at Trinity have brought to the men who are now about to tell the last of their collegiate tales. The little things we have attempted to do while here are so insignificant now when we view them from the finish, that an enumeration would be futile and silly but the record of what Trinity has brought us beggars our vocabularies. Possibly, though, we may find some poor phrase to express the thoughts of our heart of hearts, and thus we hope to tell the tale of what Trinity has done for 1910.

Lessons? you ask. Yes, it has taught us the supreme lesson that we know very little, and that for us the task is to learn by becoming open minded and receptive to the knocks of the world, for we have been told that the world has few text books, and that most of the time we will be obliged to be our own instructors. Trinity has laid the foundation, and we must raise the superstructure. The former is usually hidden beneath the ground, and few will ask us what we have learned while here, but they will be most severe on the rest of the building we finally construct.

However, to return to Augustus Hare, our four years at Trinity gave us some thing that will always be on exhibit—our glances at truth, and our recognition of kindred spirits. She has not been easy on us, this mother of ours, and when we have strayed from the appreciation of the verities of life, it has been no simple task to make ourselves recognize them. But eventually we did come to the truth, and then there was an ecstatic moment, and ecstatic moments are the little hours when we catch such glimpses of eternity that we shall never forget them. It has obliged us to find the truth that was in ourselves, the worth, the latent power, which as William Blake puts it, is holding infinity in the palm of your hand.

Then it has given us the meeting of those kindred spirits. Kindred may sound a misplaced word, but it is the exact one, for the men we have met and have counted our own, have in the four years proved that though diametrically opposed to us in many ways, they have been all that the word kindred denotes.

By these two things the world will judge us. Our appreciation of the truth and the right, and our selection of companions. What are its other standards we have yet to learn, but these we feel for a surety are the fundamentals of her exactions.

Lessons, truth, companions—these Trinity have given us. She has left us her debtors, and though the tear may not appear upon our faces, it is in our hearts. To her we will steal back after we have paid the toll at Folly's Inn. Already the memories are sweet, bitter sweet.

So fare thee well, Trinity, our time is hard at hand, and we must be gone. Even now our words fail us, and we will let Richard Hovey sing for us our stirrup song as we start down the hill from the campus:

*Comrades watch the tides tonight,
For the sailing is with the dawn!
Oh! to face the spray together,
With the tempest coming on!
Greet the sea
With a shout of glee,
When strong men roam together!*

1911 History

IT would indeed be an easy task to act as historian for some of Old Trinity's classes; but to adequately describe the deeds of the illustrious Class of 1911 is a far different matter. It would require reams of paper to do full justice to her numerous triumphs and the narration of the mighty feats of Trinity's chosen people would be like to the tales of the heroes in early legends. Consequently one must limit oneself to a bare outline of the most important events.

When the members of the Class of 1911 were Freshmen, it was immediately apparent that her men were going to play an important part in college activities. Six men played football their first year, and they not only played, but they showed Trinity as fine, if not finer, football than she had ever seen. The men of 1911 were not alone prominent in this one branch; but they shone forth in all branches of athletics and have kept up and added to the reputation of their Freshman year.

After the football season a most successful banquet was given to the Juniors, at which the meddlesome Sophomores were not allowed to interfere, and which was, in consequence a most convivial and enjoyable evening. Also in the rushes 1911 was most fortunate, winning the Campus Rush, on St. Patrick's Day for both years, an unprecedented thing in the annals of the college.

In her Sophomore year, 1911 gave the most entertaining Sophomore Smoker that Trinity has yet seen, and a great portion of the success of the Senior Play that year was also due to her men. In addition to all this she made a decided hit with the faculty, for it was noised about that there was going to be an almost unheard number of ΦBK men in her ranks. The very professors marvelled that there could be so many "sharks" in one class.

1911 is during the present year devoting herself most strenuously to the social game. Not a dance or a social festivity of any kind occurs but what a goodly percentage of Juniors are present. As a proof of our social prestige take note of Junior Week. It was one endless round of gaiety, teas and dances followed each other in bewildering succession and each one seemed more enjoyable than the last. Then came our crowning social glory—The Junior Promenade! From far and wide fair damsels came to be present at this—our great endeavor of the year—and none went away disappointed.

The Class of 1911 will undoubtedly outdo all her former records when she reaches her Senior year; but remember that just as she is today she is the quintessence of the Trinity spirit.

1912 History

Translation of an Associated Press Dispatch, A. D. 3010

WINDSOR LOCKS, U. S. A., May 13. Excavations being carried on about five miles from this city, near what was probably the ancient city of Hartford, or Hertforde, revealed to-day the ruins of what seems to have been an institution of learning. A large number of books, curiously made of a material called "paper", and fastened together at the left side, were unearthed, many of them believed to be of historic value. Professor Ump, who is superintending the work, although he has not had time to make an exhaustive inspection of the material, thinks it may have been the library of a college or university. While he was unwilling, on being interviewed, to express too hopeful an opinion, he admitted that there was a possibility of its being the famous Trinity College for which archæologists have so long been searching.

One of the volumes unearthed was of especial interest, as it gave some idea of the art of war as practised by these primitive peoples. From this account it appears that the colleges were chiefly designed to teach the youth how to fight, which, while it seems strange to us in this enlightened age, was doubtless a very important part of the life of those times. The volume referred to, of which only a few pages have been found, read as follows:

".....ball being now placed in the middle of the field, at a given signal the opposing classes rushed headlong toward each other. The valiant Sophomores, being the first to reach the ball, piled up on it and the chagrined Freshmen were unable to lay hands upon it. The battle was fast and furious for some time, and the slaughter was terrific. Finally, after it was seen that there was no chance for the Freshmen the judges reluctantly gave the victory to the Sophomores."

Another fragment, interesting because of its picture of the strange customs of the day, reads thus:

"The annual banquet tendered the Juniors by the new men was held last night at New Haven. It was a great success, thanks to the presence of several members of the Class of 1912, without whom it must inevitably have been a decided gloom. The speeches were . . . . ."

From this, which unhappily breaks off where it promises to be most interesting, we get an idea of their eating customs. It seems that they were accustomed to eating in groups, making something of a ceremony of it. "It is possible," says Professor Ump, "that they attached some religious or superstitious significance to this function, and it may have been attended with sacrifices or libations. Certain it is that it consumed some time, as in those days they probably had to chew their food. Primitive man was doubtless equipped with teeth, as wild beasts are nowadays. Thus eating, with them, was a matter of great inconvenience as compared with our simple swallowing of a tablet."

Although it is believed by the best authorities that even in that remote period mankind was making strides toward democracy, it is curious to note their love of titles and other empty honors. A man who had pursued a course at a college, a very rare thing in those days, was entitled to wear a black gown with blue stripes running down his back. He was also allowed to add certain letters to his name, such as "A. B." (Ainty Bright) and "B. S." (Bug Shark). These degrees, as they were called, were nominally given only as a reward for good work, but as a matter of practice were handed around indiscriminately to favored persons. For example, we read in one of the books dug up by Professor Ump that a certain Freshman was "given forty-five degrees!" W. A. B.

1913 History

LIKE many another freshman class that has come to Trinity we of the Class of 1913 have come "with verdure clad." We have been called childish, puerile, infantile and most of the other terms which are applied to tender years and lack of sophistication. We have borne without a murmur the reams of advice, the mass of warnings and the patronage of the upperclass men, and those who were freshmen last year. Now, at the turning point, perhaps, the turning out point for some in our freshmen year, we may be said to be at least considered as giving some promise to the college. Certain things which have occurred since college opened have given the present freshmen class some confidence in regard to its position. In their own eyes this personal estimation is righteous in view of what they have accomplished between September 1909 and January 1910.

At the very outset the freshmen assured the upperclass men of their strength—both strength in numbers and ability. From the fateful afternoon when college opened and the freshmen ran down the chapel stairs into the darkness and the pugnacious arms of the sophomore class, this strength made itself felt. For what did it matter whether they were thrown down once or twice in running the gauntlet? Did not these same, green freshmen completely rout the sophomores a few moments later in the "rushes" upon the campus? In the second rush, that of the bulletin board, the freshmen won easily. The only defeat recorded to the present freshman class in the football rush which was won this year by the sophomores, who held in their ranks the best sprinter in college.

In athletics the freshmen have been exceptionally active. On the football team this year, three of the most reliable players were of 1913. A freshman took away from an upper class man the tennis championship and freshmen are prominent on the hockey team.

In regard to the treatment of the sophomores the freshmen have no complaint to make. He has saluted this august second year man upon every possible occasion and, as far as is known, there has been little need of either correction or hazing. The sophomores, shortly after college opened, one day called the freshmen before "The Bishop" and there went through the customary method of compelling him to unsmilingly "develop like a film," "bake like a cake" and "scramble like an egg." But this great ceremony was sadly spoiled by the sudden decamping of the entire freshmen class to the alarm and surprise of the sophomores who were for several days the laughing stock of the two upper classes.

The great accomplishment of the Class of 1913 was the Freshman-Junior banquet, the most successful ever given in the history of the college. This was held at Heublein's, New Haven, on the Saturday following Thanksgiving, the affair being the first one held in a city over thirty miles from Hartford. The greatest caution was taken by the freshmen to prevent the sophs discovering the date and place of the banquet and the effort was entirely successful. Every man of the Freshman Class reached New Haven in safety and all preparations for the banquet were made without an interruption.

The sad and mournful side of the banquet was the capture of three sophomores by the freshmen. These were kept prisoners throughout the day and in the evening were invited to take part in the banquet. Thus two precedents in Trinity history were broken by the freshmen turning the tables on their enemies and then showing them the milk of human kindness.

The banquet was almost our last effort. A few weeks ago the freshmen won an easy victory from the sophomores in the annual football game. The victory was due to the exceptional work of one of the most promising freshmen.

Now, with a record of some accomplishment behind us, we freshmen are looking forward to three more years of equal prominence. In our ranks we have much undeveloped talent in many lines which college is daily bringing out more and more. We have men who are destined for the Tripod Board, for social prominence in college and for marked prominence in scholarship. The class is a large one and the spirit which we have tried to display is that of true Trinity men. We have tried to show that we are striving to help the college and we hope that the other undergraduates and the alumni appreciate our efforts. Meanwhile we look forward to giving the sophomores a most disgraceful drubbing on St. Patrick's Day, 1910.

Review of the Football Season

THE nineteen-nine season began by Trinity's settling her old score with Worcester Tech., winning easily, 12-6. In the next game we scored against West Point. The games with Holy Cross and with Colgate were ties. With what was virtually a second team on the field during the second half, and many "subs" during the first half, Trinity trimmed the Connecticut Aggies in good shape. Then Wesleyan, for the third successive year, went down before our cohorts. The game with New York University was forfeited by the latter. All this good work was not due to the work of any one man. Under the leadership of Captain Henshaw, the team worked like a clock. The line, although light, stood some fierce attacks. The ends and the back field ran the other teams off their feet. Cook, at quarter, showed good generalship, and Ramsdell did some fine work in handling forward passes. Professor Gettell, as coach, spent a great deal of time and labor on the team, and deserves great credit for this sacrifice.

Review of the Baseball Season

THE baseball season of 1909 was on the whole a successful one, though the losing of the Wesleyan series was a keen disappointment to all. Out of a schedule of sixteen games fifteen were played, the game with Columbia on June 5th being cancelled on account of rain, and eight of these fifteen were victories for the "Gold and Blue."

In the field the nine showed great strength and the infield especially was most reliable, but at the bat oftentimes the needed hits would not come, and this was the principal weakness. However the team is to be commended for the true fighting spirit that it showed throughout the season and for its hard-earned victories. A word of special mention is due to Captain Connor for the result of his hard work with the men and for his efficiency as a member and leader of the team.

Review of Track Season

COACH Coholan and Captain Maxson, from a squad of twenty-five candidates developed a track team which was very creditable to the college. The first meet, against Tufts, was easily won. In it two records were broken. Burdick, '11, lowered the college record in the hundred from 10 1-4 to 10 1-5 seconds. Nelson, '10, lowered his own and the college record from 2.07 to 2.06 minutes in the half-mile. In the Wesleyan meet another record was broken. Eaton, '10, throwing the discus 99 ft. 11 in., 13 inches farther than the previous record. There were many new and inexperienced on the 1909 team. Of these Backus, '09, did very well, securing a place in every race that he ran. Judge, '10, won two firsts and one third. Burdick, '11, was the only man to qualify for the finals in the N. E. I. A. A. This was in the 2.20. He ran in the trials for the hundred against the winners of the finals or he would probably have been placed in that event.

BASKETBALL TEAM

Review of the Basketball Season

THE Basketball Team came through the season of 1908-09 with a list of seven defeats and two victories, and yet upon examining the scores it will be noticed that several of those defeats occurred in games won by a very narrow margin, which were hotly contested to the very finish and in which Trinity seemed to lose out through a lack of staying-power rather than the superiority of their opponents. The only home game was that with Columbia on December 18th, in which our five was pitted against one of the strongest teams in the country and beaten by a large margin. The team went through the season without a regular coach, and were also handicapped in the earlier games by the absence of Cook at forward. Captain A. L. Gildersleeve worked hard with the team and added many points to Trinity's scores by his accurate shooting.

Review of the Hockey Season

The hockey season of 1909-10 was a fairly successful one, Trinity's opponents being of a higher class than in any former season. The interest manifested for this sport was greatly increased and the team's game showed much improvement, for each year better teams are played and greater experience in hard games is gained. The season sums up with a record of two victories, a tie and three defeats, the victories being over Springfield Training School and the Amherst Aggies, the tie with Wesleyan and the defeats from Amherst, Loudon Field Club, and Williams.

Acknowledgments

The editors wish to express their thanks to Dr. Arthur Adams, for his assistance in proof reading, to Mr. Clarence E. Sherman, '11, for his kindly advice and interest, and to any others who have helped make this volume what it attempts to be.

Sentiment

A lawyer charges a man $10 for ten minutes' conversation—the man insists on paying it. A doctor charges $1 for a prescription and the patient says: "Oh, pshaw—is that enough?" An undertaker charges $100 for conducting a funeral and he is just perfectly lovely with everybody inside and outside the family. A man buys a gold brick and apologizes for not having bitten before. An editor walks a mile in the hot sun to get the facts of a death or wedding or social function and spends three hours writing it up and tells lies praising people until he hates himself. Then if he makes an insignificant omission or charges so much straight for three extra copies, he is a stingy, careless, good-for-nothing cuss, who never gets anything right and charges four times the price of publications twice as large.

Trinity College

Hartford, Connecticut

TRINITY COLLEGE, under the name of Washington College, received its Charter in 1823. The present name was adopted in 1845. Its chief founder was the Right Rev. Thomas Church Brownell, Bishop of Connecticut. Established by Episcopalians as a contribution to higher education, it is not a Church institution in the sense of being directed by the Church. Its advantages are placed at the service of those of every creed.

Formerly on the site of the present State Capitol, it was transferred in 1878 to the southwestern part of the city. The principal building, in the English Secular Gothic style, 653 feet long, including Jarvis and Seabury Halls and Northam Towers, is one of the most imposing and admirably fitted educational edifices in the United States. It was intended to form the west side of a great quadrangle. Outside of the lines of this quadrangle at the south are the Observatory, the Boardman Hall of Natural History, and the Jarvis Laboratories for Chemistry and for Physics. To the north of it are the Gymnasium, houses of the President and Professors, and Chapter Houses of the Fraternities. Below the College Campus to the east and within three minutes' walk is the spacious Athletic Field. In beauty of situation, healthful conditions of life and equipment for its special work, the College is not surpassed.

The Faculty includes sixteen professors, four instructors, librarian, and medical director.

Among the Elective studies within the respective courses there is no important subject for which adequate provision is not made.

The Library contains 58,000 volumes. Generous contributions of the Alumni are making possible a rapid addition to its resources. A Reference Reading Room is open every day and five evenings of the week.

The Jarvis Chemical and Physical Laboratories have an excellent equipment for Elementary and Advanced work.

The Hall of Natural History contains the Museum, Biological Laboratories, and the Psychological Laboratory.

In the year 1903-1904 a full technical course in Civil Engineering was for the first time made available for all qualified applicants.

There are numerous scholarships providing pecuniary assistance for deserving students. The three Holland scholarships, yielding each $600 per annum, are awarded to the three best students in the three lower classes respectively. The Russell Graduate Fellowship of $500 is awarded biennially in the interest of higher graduate study. The Mary A. Terry Graduate Fellowship of $550 is awarded annually. Prizes to the amount of $500 are also awarded to undergraduates for success in the work of the various departments.

Two examinations for admission are held at the College each year, the first during the days following the Annual Commencement, and the second in September, immediately before the beginning of the Christmas term.

For Catalogues, Examination Papers, or information, apply to the President or Secretary of the Faculty.
