CITY SAVES MONEY BY DOING OWN STREET WORK

Glendale Officials Learn of Economy Methods While Attending Convention

"If a town of 6000 can save $71,000 by doing its own street work, how much can a city of 30,000 save?"

This is the question which Councilman Sam Davis and City Manager W. H. Reeves have been considering since their return from the last week's convention of the National Association of Municipalities.

"The little city of Palo Alto—I guess there are about 5000 or 6000 people there—did its own paving last year," remarked Mr. Davis this morning. "That is, a good deal of it. But, on the part that they did through voluntarily signing up all property owners, they saved $71,000. That was a net saving. If they do that, what can we do with all the street work that we are having done?"

The sessions of the convention were very much worth while, according to Mr. Davis and Mr. Reeves. They feel certain that they secured much information which will be of benefit.

Both Sides Represented

Proportional representation, which was one of the subjects discussed, made a favorable impression upon Mr. Davis. Under this system, the minority as well as the majority is supposed to be represented upon the city council.

"That would be a good thing for Glendale," asserted Mr. Davis. "It would be a good thing for any city. It is a fair thing and anything that is fair, nobody can object to."

A proposal, submitted to the state legislature, to take the power to grant franchises within their corporate limits out of the hands of the various communities and commission was strongly denounced by the convention.

The subject was brought up by Fred E. Reed, president of the California Real Estate association.

Upon motion of Mr. Weaver, the convention re-affirmed its action of last year approving the California water and power act. According to Mr. Reeves, this will give the people control of all

Postoffice Here Seeks Charge of Verdugo Section

A committee from the Verdugo Woodlands district met with Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson last night at the Glendale postoffice.

The meeting was held with the idea of improving the service in that district. The delivery in Verdugo Woodlands has been, and still is, under the supervision of the Los Angeles postoffice, although the rural carriers have been getting the mail through the local postoffice.

Mr. Jackson has taken the matter up with the postoffice department at Washington, with the idea of having that district fall under the supervision of the Glendale postoffice. According to word received, it is probable that the district will be taken over about October 5.

The information that Mr. Jackson had already taken steps to improve the service was an agreeable surprise to the committee. The work of the local postoffice was explained by Mr. Jackson, and the committee conducted through the various departments.

The importance of everybody registering before October 7, in order that as large a vote as possible may be polled for the Wright bill, was stressed.

BACK HOME FROM AUTO JOURNEY OF 12,000 MILES

Mr. and Mrs. H. Venske and Son Return; Flocks of Tourists on Way

Mr. and Mrs. H. Venske and son, Harold Venske, of 317 N. Louise street, returned Sunday night from a cross-country automobile trip covering 12,000 miles, and which took them as far east as Washington, D. C., and New York City. They had been gone from Glendale since May 13, and on their journey passed through twenty-five states and two Canadian provinces.

Leaving Glendale by automobile they traveled north to the Columbia river highway, stopping at Portland, Ore., and then into Washington and east to the Yellowstone National park, Wyoming and Idaho. They spent six weeks in the central part of Wisconsin and three weeks at Sault Sainte Marie, Mich. The greater portion of the trip Mr. and Mrs. Venske and son Harold Venske camped out, except in wet weather.

Visit Niagara Falls

From Port Huron, Mich., they crossed into Ontario, visited Niagara Falls, and then through the state of New York to Albany and the Hudson river. From there they traveled south to New York City. They spent several days at Washington, D. C., visiting the public buildings. Of their visit at Washington Mr. Venske commented particularly on the hordes of mosquitoes which are infesting that city.

Leaving Washington, D. C., on September 9 for California they went to Indianapolis and from there over the Old National Trails to St. Louis. From there they followed the Santa Fe trail back in, stopping at the Grand Canyon, Petrified Forest and the Cliff Dwellings, arriving in Glendale on September 24, making the entire return trip, including detours, in fifteen days.

Tourists Flocking

Regarding various features of their trip, Mr. Venske says: "The people in New York City stated that there had been very few weeks this summer they had not had some rain, and the weather there was reasonably cool. It rained generally during our visits in Wisconsin and Michigan. We met tourists coming by thousands to California, particularly from the middle west, and the automobile camps en route are filled every night."

"We encountered the worst roads in Missouri between Kansas City and St. Louis. Business conditions in the east are improving but are way behind the activities in southern California. We did not have any serious motor trouble on the entire trip and wore out only three tires. Although our first cross-country journey was very pleasant, it did seem good to get back to Southern California."

SURPRISED WITH BIRTHDAY PARTY

Dorothea Robinson's Friends Gather on Saturday to Observe Anniversary

Dorothea Robinson was happily surprised Saturday afternoon when she returned to her home at 320 Lorraine street, to find a group of little girl friends gathered to help her celebrate her fourteenth birthday. Her mother, Mrs. Ivan A. Robinson, assisted by Mrs. T. I. Smith, had arranged the affair and received the little guests.

A color scheme of pink and white was used by Mrs. Robinson in decorating for the party. Bowls of pink and white roses decorated the rooms and formed the centerpiece of the dining table; where a birthday luncheon was enjoyed late in the afternoon.

Pink and White Cake

Music and games were arranged for entertainment and the prizes went to Helen Sternberg, Evelyn Alston, Anita Alston and Marie Warren.

For the luncheon a pink and white cake was placed on the table and the individual places were marked with clever little place cards containing fortunes, and pink and white favor baskets filled with pink and white candy hearts.

LOCAL JITNEY BUS SERVICE GREAT NEED, CLAIM

Ed N. Radke Points Out How City Transportation Would Aid Business Men

Jitney bus service within the city limits was suggested yesterday noon by Ed N. Radke of 109 South Brand boulevard at the weekly luncheon of the Glendale Credit association.

Mr. Radke is chairman of this organization, appointed to assist in securing street car service on South Glendale avenue. He has secured pledges of $250 towards the bonus of $25,000. At yesterday's meeting he emphasized the importance of this project. He appealed to those present to exert every effort to put it over.

Local transportation is of the utmost importance, according to Mr. Radke. He believes that its effect upon the business of local merchants would be marvelous.

During Car Strike

Mr. Radke was in Chicago last March during the street car strike there. He said that business in the loop fell off about 75 per cent because shoppers were unable to get down town with convenience. Stores, which were ordinarily crowded, were almost empty and clerks who were quite busy usually had time to chat and take stock.

Although a majority of families in Glendale seem to have automobiles, this does not change the need for local transportation in the opinion of Mr. Radke. He pointed out the fact that the men take the machine in the morning when they go to work and either drive it to Los Angeles or leave it parked on Brand boulevard. As a result, women folks are left at home without any means of getting down town unless they walk.

Women Spend Money

"There used to be a time when men thought they had to 'hold the bag' and spend the money," declared Mr. Radke. "That time is over now. Women now do most of the shopping."

If Glendale cannot get regular street car service to bring its residents down town from the outlying districts, it should encourage jitney buses, in the opinion of Mr. Radke, who believes that the merchants could even afford to subsidize them to a reasonable extent.

PRINCE CHANGED AFTER HIS TRIP

All London Asking Reasons for Aged Expression Youth Now Has

LONDON—What has the Indian tour done to the Prince of Wales?

Has it destroyed his youth? These are the questions that all London now asks. Everyone now sees the change in the prince since his return from his adventurous tour, and the general inquiry is whether it was worth while, after all.

From a fresh-colored, smiling eager boy the prince has turned into a man of early middle age. All of the old light-heartedness seems to have deserted him and, wherever he appears, he looks weighed down by care.

And there is a cautious, apprehensive watchful glance in his eye that none of his friends like. Talking to a friend, his glance is always roving the ground fifty yards ahead. It is not fear, but a kind of subconscious watchfulness. He seems like a man never released from an unending strain.

Rest—perhaps a happy marriage—may bring back the old ease and gaiety. But at present the young prince looks like a man who has survived a terrible ordeal.

Believing in Glendale About Trade at Home Editors Enjoy Large Night Gifts and Other Things

By Gil A. Cowan

THE GLENDALE EVENING NEWS could publish a newspaper the size of the Los Angeles papers each day, fill its columns with all the available slush, pack in its own advertising and then yawn!

The Glendale Evening News could sit back and rest on its laurels of ten years' publication as a daily and seventeen successful existence and also yawn!

The Glendale Evening News, however, has no occasion to yawn, for business is good, getting better each day for more people are subscribing, more people are advertising and more people are giving their moral support to this paper than ever before.

Yes, The Glendale Evening News has become an institution in the community which it serves, so that a lot of yawning will neither make nor break it.

From Chicago and Raymond, Wash., simultaneously come letters asking the key to The Glendale Evening News' success. And there really is only one answer.

"That is the vote of confidence expressed by the public in purchasing goods from those people who advertise, in believing what they read in The Glendale Evening News, and in believing in Glendale."

All of which fits well in a little discussion I had yesterday with one of Glendale's largest manufacturers, who reflected a sentiment heard at the Merchant's Association luncheon.

"Tell the merchants to practice what they preach," he said. If they expect people to trade at home, let them set the example. How do they expect my workmen to buy their goods when they refuse to buy mine?"

A whole column could be written on the subject, folks. A chapter, a book, a hundred books of proof could be presented why you should trade at home and then you will go out and do as you darned please—to your own personal, civic and commercial detriment.

Will somebody write me a commendation for not saying more on this subject. Sure, and it is good I seldom get personal. I got licked once for that.

It was a large night from 8 o'clock until sometime early today at the Southern California Editorial Association meeting in the Hotel Alexandria, Los Angeles.

Hi Wambold acted as stage manager for the evening's entertainment which might have been captioned "Brain Dust." That, however, is beside the subject. Facts are these:

Friend William Richardson, the honored guest, emphatically stated he is going to kick "Boss McCabe" out of California politics. He will be everybody's friend if he does that one thing, for Al McCabe has ridden in the saddle long enough. The old horse needs a rest.

Speeches at the editors' meeting last night were accompanied by gifts. Cromble Allen of the Ontario Daily Report, on behalf of the association, presented Richardson with a beautiful loving cup.

Judge Harlan Palmer of the Hollywood Daily Citizen presented the retiring president, John E. King, with a gold watch—an appreciation, if we recollect the judge's words, which was appreciated.

And Rupert Hughes presented himself with a gold pencil in a gracious way that got him a "big hand."

At Joy, sporting writer of note, later press agent for the lowly rain, and now doing publicity for the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation, was present and introduced as "All Joy" until his wife knocked a little "I" out of his front name.

At these there were some raisins in cellars than in the whole of the San Joaquin valley. He had the authority to say that, too.

But he turned from raisins to currents of the electrical kind and Major Hughes, who followed, insisted he was the raspberry. Brr.

Americans Getting Rich With Herds of Cattle, Hogs and Horses, Claim

MANILA—Frank W. Carpenter, former department governor of Mindanao and Sulu, told members of the American Chamber of Commerce he believes there is no better investment in the world than cattle investments in Bukidnon and Cotabato and neighboring provinces of Mindanao, where cattle grow and fatten the year around on the broad plains of public land, which may be leased at very low prices.

Dr. Frank C. Gearhart, an Ames (Iowa) graduate, who has bred both cattle and horses in the islands for many years, backed up the statement. He himself is getting rich off cattle, horses and Berkshire hogs that he raises in Bukidnon. To reduce the danger of rinderpest he imports zebu from India and breeds up-grade cattle from native cows. Other Americans are doing the same. His horses are Australians and Arabians.

Every experience that we live through will lead on to a lower or a higher experience, as we choose.

COLLEGE LEADERS PICK SPORTS TO TEACH GIRLS

Tennis, Cricket and Lacrosse Called Suitable; Place Ban on Football

By F. A. WRAY For International News Service. LONDON—Lawn tennis, cricket and lacrosse are the most suitable games for girls, according to a decision reached by the College of Preceptors in England.

They came to this opinion after studying the results of a searching questionnaire submitted to a great number of doctors, women medical students and head mistresses. Schoolmistresses agreed that the effects of games and physical exercises on the disposition and character of girls are beneficial. But a small number thought that there was a tendency in England to magnify the relative importance of games to the detriment of character.

Sixty-six per cent of the mistresses thought that gymnastics, with special apparatus, were suitable for girls, but half of these insisted on the most careful supervision if apparatus were used.

Lawn tennis and netball met with unanimous approval from the teachers. Hockey, although approved by the great majority of mistresses and students, was regarded by some as suitable only for the older and stronger girls and by some as altogether too rough and strenuous for girls.

Cricket was very generally approved, but here again a small proportion thought that the game was of doubtful utility for girls.

Football was condemned almost unanimously. Only two teachers out of fifty-two thought girls should play it, and doctors emphatically condemned it as unsuitable. The consensus of opinion was that it put an enormous strain on the growing girl.

With regard to other sports, swimming was generally approved. It was recognized, however, that this is an exercise entailing some strain on the heart, and medical advice should be taken before a girl indulges too much in this form of recreation.

Rowing Is Condemned Racing in rowing was condemned by twenty-seven out of thirty-four women doctors.

Cycling, providing that it is carried out in moderation and that the cycle is adjusted to the individual, met with a large measure of approval; but by some it was thought to cause round shoulders, and some teachers pointed out that when girls cycle long distances to school the strain tends to unfit them for mental work.

The medical members of the council of the college, after considering the reports of the doctors, drew up this report: "Among the games we have had under consideration, namely, tennis, netball, lacrosse, golf, hockey, cricket and football only the last is considered unsuitable for girls. Of sports, swimming, rowing, cycling, horse-riding are all good for girls, provided they are carried out under suitable conditions and excess is avoided."

The question of what effect girls' games have on motherhood is not definitely answered by the doctors. "On the whole," they declare, "it would seem that there is no clear proof that strenuous physical education has any special influence either upon the prospect of motherhood or of labor."

Itching Eczema Dried Right Up With Sulphur

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.—Advertisement.

GUY BATES POST IN SCREEN PLAY HERE ARE FACTS ON REGISTERING

Distinguished Actor Appears In 'The Masquerader' at T. D. L. Theatre

Unanimously acclaimed one of the most distinguished actors on the American stage today, it was natural that Guy Bates Post should have been besieged with offers of screen stardom. He has at last accepted and will be seen in "The Masquerader," the Richard Walton Tully production which comes to the T. D. & L. theatre today.

For six years the world has waited to see "The Masquerader" in films, just as Richard Walton Tully presented it on the stage. Just as Guy Bates Post created the dual roles of John Chilcote, M. P., and John Loder. Now all those things have come to the screen with redoubled force and "The Masquerader" is as outstanding among motion pictures as it was among stage dramas.

RICHARDSON SAYS HE WILL FIGHT RULE OF BOSS

Republican Nominee States Reasons In Detail for Opposing Boynton

Following the selection of A. E. Boynton as chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, Friend W. Richardson, Republican candidate for governor, issued the following statement:

"The Republican state central committee has been organized by placing it in the control of the political machine which I fought and defeated at the primaries. As the Republican candidate for governor, I did not ask to name the chairman of this committee, but I did claim that no man who had fought me in the primaries should lead the battle.

"At the convention in Sacramento I stood firmly for the right of every member of the convention to name his members of the committee, and to have these names kept on the list. This prevented the slimy tricksters of the political machine from blacklisting Republicans and keeping them from becoming members of the committee.

"I have based my campaign on economy and have pointed out the fact that much of the extravagance in state affairs is due to the greed of the political machine which dominates the state, which has piled high the load upon the taxpayers, and which has squandered millions of dollars of the people's money. At the primaries the people by their votes approved my campaign for economy, and approved my pledge to kick out the political wrecking gang, and put a construction crew on the job.

Machine Proxies Win

A. E. Boynton, a state job holder, has won the chairmanship of the committee by the proxies of the machine. He is thus placed under obligations to the machine. I have no personal objections to Boynton, but I decline to put my campaign in the hands of the unscrupulous and treacherous politicians who compose the machine. Boynton is objectionable to the committee of loyal country newspaper men who so ably conducted my primary campaign.

The real issue in the present situation is not Boynton, but whether 'Boss' McCabe shall continue to rule the state of California. I refuse to bow the knee to this self-crowned boss. I refuse to keep him and his greedy crew at the public crib. I propose to fight him to the finish. I would rather be beaten for the governorship than to yield to this political Ishmaelite.

"I want it distinctly understood that I am loyally behind the whole Republican ticket. I will support Senator Johnson, Lieutenant Governor Young and all the other nominees. For years I have fought for progressive ideals and I yield to no man in my adherence to these ideals. I propose to continue my fight in my own way and with my little band of valiant newspaper men. I will carry my message direct to the people.

Platform Detailed

"That message will be economy with efficiency, smash the machine, slash unnecessary political sinecures, substitute business for politics, put highway construction in the hands of skilled road builders, give aid to our war heroes, enforce the laws justly and fearlessly, maintain progressive and humane policies, keep the schools free from politics and support them to the fullest extent, and save the people millions of dollars.

"I have no fear of the result. The rank and file of the voters gave me a majority of 25,000 despite the dastardly frauds, lies and bribery of the political machine. These same voters and thousands of others will in November help me complete the job of smashing the machine. In the primaries the head of the political snake was crushed, but at the election the people will complete the work and the body of this slimy monster will be cut to bits.

"Let us go steadily forward fighting for these principles and let us keep up the battle until once more the government of California is placed in the hands of the people."

TRAGEDY RECIPE

Take one reckless, natural born fool.
Two or three big drinks of bad liquor.
A fast, high-powered motor car.
Soak the fool well in the liquor, place in the car and let him go. After due time, remove from the wreckage, place in black, satin-lined box and garnish with flowers.

Put An End To Neuritis

Neuritis is an inflammation of the nerves, brought on by colds, injuries, bruises, malaria or infectious diseases. As a rule it is in the shoulder, neck, forearm, thigh, leg or small of the back, causing merciless, stabbing pains that are often mistaken for rheumatism, sciatica or neuralgia.

Regardless of what caused your neuritis or where the pain is located, it is possible to obtain quick relief without taking narcotics or other dangerous drugs. An application of Tysmol over the part that hurts usually stops the misery. Tysmol is absorbed through the pores of the skin and has a soothing, healing effect upon the diseased nerves.

Don't endure this agony another day. Get a supply of Tysmol from Roberts & Echols. Price $1 every where. Tysmol company, Mfg. Chemists, 400 Sutter St., San Francisco.—Advertisement.

Frank Wellers Home From Visit In North

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weller, of 301 East Wilson avenue, returned Sunday night from San Francisco and Sacramento. Mr. Weller has been attending the Republican State Central Committee meeting at San Francisco, and also was present at the Republican state convention at Sacramento. Just before leaving by automobile for the north, Mr. and Mrs. Weller spent a week at Lake Arrowhead, returning from there a week ago Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lennox, of Glendale, who have been spending two weeks at the popular resort.

PRAISE GOD, IS MESSAGE GIVEN

Men's Bible Class Hears Rev. Brook's Sermon Sunday Morning

"What would life be if the curtain of death fell upon it never to rise?" inquired Rev. Keith L. Brooks Sunday morning in the council chamber of the city hall before the Men's Bible class of the Presbyterian church.

"Christians should praise God that they are not left to speculations and philosophies concerning the state of the dead in Christ. It is no wonder men, who refuse the Bible, commit suicide. As Christ walked to the grave with Mary and Martha, so He is moving with us toward the sepulcher which His voice shall yet open. It seems a long walk, yet He will not linger a day beyond what divine wisdom sees fit.

"One result of this long delay will be the more magnificent final issue. He will lead forth an innumerable host of glorified saints, carrying their banners of victory and singing Hallelujah to the King of Kings. All our patient waiting will have its full compensation. All our delay will justify itself when we look upon that glorious scene and feel ourselves caught up in clouds to be with the Lord.

Story of Visit

"In the eleventh chapter of John's Gospel we have the remarkable story of Jesus' visit to Bethany and the raising of Lazarus from the dead. The raising of Lazarus was a marvelous miracle proof that He was the Christ. Perhaps, also, it was to prepare their minds for His own resurrection. When His own grave should be found empty, they would not be able to say that His resurrection was impossible. The fact that in that very year within two miles of Jerusalem, a man who had been dead four days had been restored to life would silence all such talk.

"The strange thing about the story is that it says when Jesus heard of Lazarus' sickness he abode two days where He was. Sometimes the promises of Christ seem utterly to fail. Everything events make it plain. It is plain for us to learn that delays are not necessarily denials. They are to enlarge our capacity to receive.

"Jesus' promise is, 'Whoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die.' It should be noticed that destiny depends upon believing in Him while we live. Only on this condition shall we be raised when He comes. There will be no intermission of the everlasting life imparted at the time one receives Christ as savior."

James M. Rhoades Back From Stanford, Tells How Leaders Studied

James M. Rhoades, secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, has returned to the city after passing a strenuous week at Stanford university, attending the Western School of Community Leadership. About eighty-one secretaries of Chamber of Commerce organizations were at the school, representing five western states.

The secretaries, according to Mr. Rhoades, lived like college students during the week. They were addressed at the assemblies twice a day, and at class meetings discussed various subjects affecting the building of communities.

It was a case of getting up at 6:30 each morning, and a breakfast at 7 o'clock. They lived at the fraternities houses.

The League of Municipalities of California was also in session at the university at the same time. There were a number of joint meetings. City Manager W. H. Reeves and Councilman Sam Davis attended meetings of the league.

The school is conducted each year. Mr. Rhoades is on the executive committee of the Community Leadership school, and is also chairman of the law and order committee.

The following bought lots in "Roland Square" during the week: Miriam Stafford, 465 W. California; Jessie Colvard, 319 West Salem; C. W. Thompson, 1259 Gower, Hollywood; John A. Had Visited Norway

Mr. Rudie was returning to the city following a trip to Norway. His experiences of the trip to Norway are related elsewhere in this issue of the Evening News.

Mr. Hewitt left Glendale on August 20, going to New Orleans by train, and from there to New York by boat. He spent three days in New York, taking in the sights. "New York is a wonderful city," he said upon his return. "I have heard others sing the praises of the city, but now I know some of the good things they say are true." The manner in which the city is managed caused much wonder to him, he remarked.

From Buffalo he motored to Canada, visiting a number of Canadian cities. From there he visited Detroit, Pittsburgh, Chicago and San Francisco.

"I'm glad to get back to Glendale, though," he remarked upon his return to the city.

General Wood Gives Paroles to Prisoners

MANILA. — Governor-General Leonard Wood pardoned 200 aged prisoners passing from Bilbilid recently, and many of them, after wandering about town all day, showed up at the police station for something to eat and a place to sleep. There, next morning, they identified belongings taken from them at the time of their arrest, more years ago than Rip Van Winkle slept. Then, they found their way back to old homes in the provinces where they will seek asylum with relatives for the short time they have to live.

Governor Wood, in pardoning them, said they were too old to do anyone any harm, and it was cruel to keep them in prison longer. He is clearing out Bilbilid, benefiting the men by doing so and saving the government much expense. Younger men serving long sentences are sent to prison colonies and farms. Chinese recidivists, chiefly offenders against the opium law, are being deported as undesirable enemy aliens.

Other prisoners, having served from a fifth to a fourth of their sentences, are being paroled on pledges to be law-abiding in the future.

Preacher Fan Has Baseball Souvenir

CHANUTE, Kan. — Chanute's most ardent baseball fan—Rev. R. Y. Barber, rector of the Grace Episcopal church—is the proud possessor of a baseball which is covered with the signatures of twenty well known stars of the diamond. Topping the various signatures is that of Judge Kene-saw M. Landis, national baseball commissioner.

While Reverend Barber was vacationing this summer he attended several games at Chicago, in which the Cubs were contestants. Through courtesy of one of the club officials the minister was permitted to enter the clubhouse in quest of signatures for his spherical souvenir.

The following players complied with Reverend Barber's request for autographs: Bill Killifer, Jr.; Grover Alexander, Ray Grimes, Hollocher, Marty Krug, Zeb Terry, Heathcote, Morris and Osborne, of the Cubs. Among the Giants who signed on the horsehide were

Arrest Boy; X-ray Used to Tell Age

CINCINNATI.—The X-ray was used Tuesday for the first time in the police annals of Cincinnati to determine the age of a prisoner. Allen Harris, a negro, who was arrested last week following the attempted robbery of a local jewelry store, insisted that he was only seventeen years old, though he had the appearance of being much older. So the juvenile court authorities ordered X-ray plates made of the prisoner's hands and other parts of his body, and, after comparing these with similar photographs of various ages, reported that Harris was no more than seventeen and possibly no older than sixteen.

If you are lame every morning, and suffer urinary ills, there must be a cause. Often it's weak kidneys. To strengthen the weakened kidneys and avert more serious troubles, use Doan's Kidney Pills. You can rely on this woman's testimony:

Mrs. J. M. Derr, 757 Earham St., Pasadena, Cal., says: "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was backache. When I first got up in the morning, there was a lameness and soreness through my kidneys and across my loins, but after I had been on my feet awhile about the house, the pain eased up a little. I was extremely nervous and became easily excited. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and one box cured the backache and the nervousness left me."

Cleek knew—but for the time hidden—whoever it was from the common view. He simply motioned Dollops to lay his burden upon the table, and then spoke once more.

"M' Lud," he said clearly, "may I ask a favor of the court? I should be obliged if you would call every witness in this matter here—simultaneously. Set them out in a row, if you will, but call them now. Thanks."

The judge motioned to the clerk, and through the hushed silence of the court the dull voice droned out: "Anthony West, William Borkins, Lester Stark, Gustave Brellier, Miss Antoinette Brellier, Doctor Bartholomew."

And so, as each name was called the owner of it came forward and stood in front of the judge's high desk.

"A most unusual proceeding, sir," said that worthy, again setting the spectacles upon his nose and frowning down at Cleek, "but, knowing who you are—"

"I appreciate your Lordship's kindness. Now then, all there?" Cleek whirled suddenly, and surveyed the strange line. "That's good. And at least every one of them is here. No chance of slipping away now. Now for it."

He turned back to the table with something of suppressed eagerness in his movements, and a low murmur of excitement went up round the crowded courtroom. Rapidly he tore off the wrappings from the long, snake-like bundle, and held one of the objects up to view.

"Allow me to draw your attention to this," he said in a loud, clear voice, every note of which carried to the back of the long room. "This, as you possibly know, sir, is a piece of electric tubing made for the express purpose of conveying safely delicate electric wirings that are used for installations, so that they may not be damaged in transit from the factory to the agent who sells them. You would like to see the wirings, I know—"

For answer he whipped open the joints of one of the tubes, set it upon end, and—

From inside the narrow casing came a shower of golden sovereigns clattering to the floor and across the table in front of the astonished clerk's eyes.

The judge sat up suddenly and rubbed his eyes.

"God bless my soul!" he began, and then subsided into silence. The eyes of young Sir Nigel Meriton nearly leapt from their sockets with astonishment, and every man in the crowd was gaping.

Cleek laughed.

"Rather of a surprise, I must admit; isn't it?" he said, with a slight shrug of the shoulders. "And no doubt you're wondering what all this has to do with the case in hand. Well, we'll come along to that all in good time. Golden sovereigns, you see, carefully stacked up to fill the little tubing to its capacity—and thousands of 'em done the same, too! There's a perfect fortune down there in that factory at Saltfleet! Mr. Narkom," he turned round and surveyed the superintendent with mischievous eyes, "what about these bank robberies now, eh? I told you something would crop up."

You see it has. We've discovered the hiding place of the gold—and the prime leader in the whole distressing affair. The rest ought to be easy." He whipped round suddenly toward the line of witnesses letting his eyes travel over each face in turn; past Tony West's reddened countenance, past Dr. Bartholomew's pale intensity, past Borkins, standing very straight and white and frightened-looking.

Then of a sudden he leapt forward, his hand clamped down on someone's shoulder, and his voice exclaimed triumphantly:

"And here the beauty is!"

Then, before the astonished eyes of the crowd of spectators stood Mr. Gustave Brellier, writhing and twisting in the clutch of the firm fingers and spitting forth in a Flemish patois that would have struck Cleek dead on the spot—if words could kill.

A sudden din arose. People pressed forward, the better to see and hear, exclaiming loudly, condemning, criticizing. The judge's frail old hand brought silence at last, and Antoinette Brellier came forward from her place and clutched Cleek by the arm.

"It cannot be, Mr.—Cleek!" she said piteously. "I tell you my uncle is the best of men, truly! He could never have done this thing that you accuse him of—and—"

"And the worst of devils! That I can thoroughly endorse, my dear young lady," returned Cleek with a grim laugh. "I am sorry for you—very. But at least you will have consolation in your future husband's release. That should compensate you. Here, officer, take hold of this man. We'll get down to brass tacks, now. Take hold of him, and hold him fast, for a more slippery snake was never created. All right, Sir Nigel; it is all right lad. Sit down. This is going to be a long story, but it's got to be told. Fetch chairs for the witnesses, constable. And don't let any of 'em go—yet. I want 'em to hear this thing through."

In his quick, easy manner he seemed suddenly to have taken command of the court. And, knowing that he was Hamilton Cleek, and that Cleek would use his own methods or none, Mr. Justice Granger took the wisest course, and let him alone.

When all was in readiness, Cleek settled down to the story. He was the only man left standing, a straight slim figure, full of that controlled power and energy that so often is possessed by a small but very perfect machine. He bowed to the judge with something of the theatrical in his manner, and then rested one hand on the clerk's table.

"Now, naturally, you are wanting to hear the story," he said briskly, "and I'll make it as brief as possible. But I warn you there is a good deal to be told, and afterward there'll be work for Scotland Yard, more work than perhaps they'll care about; but that is another story. To begin with, the jury, my lord, was undoubtedly, from all signs, about to convict the prisoner upon a charge of murder—a murder of which he was entirely innocent. You have heard Merriton's story. Believe me, every word of it is true—circumstantial evidence to the contrary notwithstanding."

"In the first place, Dacre Wynn was shot through the temple at the instigation of that man there," he pointed to Brellier, standing pale and still between two constables, "foully shot, as many others had been similarly done to death, because they had ventured across the Penns at night, and were likely to investigate this man's charming little midnight movements, further than he cared about. To creatures of his like human life is nothing compared to what it can produce. Men and women are a means to an end, and that end, the furtherance of his own wealth, his own future. The epitome of prehistoric selfishness, is it not? Club the next man that comes along, and steal from his dead body all that he has worked for. Oh, a pretty sort of a tale this is, I promise you!"

The home of Mrs. James Mills, in New Brunswick, N. J., where she lived with her husband who is sexton of the Church of St. John the Divine. Mrs. Mills was found shot to death in a lonely field on the outskirts of the town together with the body of the Rev. Edward W. LOUD SPEAKERS

Those who would reap the full benefit from vacuum tube work in the reception of broadcast music and other radio entertainment can hardly dispense with a loud speaker. Hitherto this was an expensive item, but several have appeared on the market that are excellent investments and moderately priced.

The illustration shown here pictures one of them. Its construction is such that it will fit any of the popular makes of radio receivers. This is accomplished by means of an adapter concealed under the base, which is provided with an opening to permit the horn to set over the receiver coil. This horn will work equally well on one or two stages of amplification.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE ARC

Arc radio equipment at present enjoys a worldwide application, particularly with reference to point to point communication and ship long distance work.

For a number of years past the arc has steadily been gaining in favor among the governments of the world, the United States navy adopting the policy in 1914 of equipping all large vessels with this type of apparatus, since it was found by very exhaustive tests that the arc system gave much more reliable communication over greater distances than was possible with spark apparatus.

These sets installed by the government have so conclusively proved the reliability of arc transmitters for shipyard work that numerous installations are now being made on vessels of the American merchant marine. This is particularly true of the U. S.

They Say That

The department of agriculture has been able to figure out an imitation of at least a part of the human digestive process, and as it is all enclosed in a glass jar, a great deal of interest has attached to the experiments that have been made this summer in Washington. The scientists say that it is now possible to determine the digestibility of the protein in foods and whether it is necessary to cook various foods without conducting "feeding tests," as in the past. Even the so-called "poison squads" will lose their jobs, because ill success to the "artificial stomach" will cause no human discomfort. Dilute solutions of hydrochloric acids, similar to those found in the human stomach and quantities of pepsin are the chief constituents in the experiments. Temperature and other chemicals play an important part in the tests that are being made. The department enthusiasts say that the "artificial stomach" will tell if one protein is more digestible than another, and whether it is more digestible when cooked than raw.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY IN THE MUD

Uncle Wiggily drove his automobile around to the front door of his hollow stump bungalow and called:

"Ho, Nurse Jane! Are you ready to go for a ride with me?"

The muskrat lady housekeeper hopped out on the front porch.

"Will you drive carefully?" she asked, "and not make me hold my bonnet on with both paws?"

"I'll drive so carefully as never was: enucleated Uncle Wiggily. Come on, Janie! We'll have an adventure."

"Oh, you and your adventures!" laughed the muskrat lady. "Well, you may drive me over to see Mrs. Twistytail, the pig lady, and then go on an adventure of your own. Then you may stop for me on your way back."

"All right!" said the bunny rabbit uncle, as he twinkled his pink nose like one of the headlights on his auto. Nurse Jane took her place beside Uncle Wiggily, and away they started, the wheels turning around and around.

I think I have told you that Uncle Wiggily's auto had a tunip for a steering wheel, and bologna sausages for tires, and whenever the bunny wanted to go extra fast he just sprinkled a little pepper on the sausage tires.

"But don't go very fast now!" begged Nurse Jane. "I like to ride slow and enjoy the scenery."

"You shall ride as slowly as you please, promised Mr. Longears. When I go adventuring I'll drive fast."

As Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane were driving along, all of a sudden the bunny saw beside the road a queer bug, large and black, with shiny wings. The bug was caught in a tangle of dried grass, which was wound around its legs and, kick and struggle as it did, the bug could not get loose.

"Excuse me, Nurse Jane," spoke Uncle Wiggily, as he stopped the auto, "but here is a bug I must help, for he is in trouble."

"That's just like the dear bunny gentleman," whispered Nurse Jane to herself, as Uncle Wiggily hopped out of the machine. "He's always helping others."

"Take it easy, Mr. Bug," said Uncle Wiggily, as he went up to the place where the beetle was caught. "I'll untangle the grass from your legs; and then you'll be able to fly away."

It did not take the bunny gentleman long to do this, and soon the bug was able to walk out on the smooth road.

"Thank you, Uncle Wiggily!" buzzed the beetle, flitting its wings. "You did me a great favor, and some day I hope I may do one for you."

"Pray do not mention it," spoke the bunny with a low and polite bow of his tall silk hat. Uncle Wiggily was polite, even to beetle bugs.

"Though I don't see," said Nurse Jane, as they drove on, "I don't see how a bug can ever do you a favor."

"You never can tell," remarked the bunny.

The auto sank in deeper.

nose, looked first on one side of the machine and then on the other side, and said:

"We're stuck in the mud!"

"Can we get out?" asked the muskrat lady.

"Oh, surely!" answered the bunny. But this was easier said than done. He turned on the gas, but the wheels only spun around in the mud. "I should have brought my chains," said the bunny. "But perhaps I can get out of the mud in another way." But he couldn't. He turned the tunip steering wheel this way and that; he dug and scratched some of the mud out from beneath the wheels, and even tried to put boards under them, but the auto only sank in deeper and deeper.

"Oh, dear!" cried Nurse Jane. "I'm so nervous! What's to be done? Are we ever going to get unstuck out of this mud?"

Uncle Wiggily was beginning to wonder that himself when, all at once, a cloud seemed to come over the sun, for the air grew dark. But it was not a cloud. It was thousands of black flying beetles that sailed over the auto like a cloud. And as the beetles settled down on the ground, the trees and the fences near by, one of them spoke, saying:

"Uncle Wiggily, we have come to help you. Flying in the air I saw you get stuck in the mud. So I called thousands of my beetle bug friends, telling them that you helped me, and now it was my turn to help you. Just sit in your auto and we'll soon have you out."

"How can you help me?" asked the bunny.

"Why," buzzed the beetle, "we are mud bugs. Each one of us will roll up a ball of mud and toss it over in the field. Then the mud hole will be dried up and you can get your auto out."

In another instant each of the thousands of beetles was picking up a ball of mud in its jaws, rolling it about and then tossing it over the fence. In a short time all the mud was picked up, the hole in the road was dry and Uncle Wiggily easily ran out his car.

"Thank you, Beetle Bugs," called the bunny, as they flew away, and then Uncle Wiggily took Nurse Jane to Mrs. Twistytail's house and stayed there himself, for he said he had had all the adventures he wanted that day.

And if the molasses candy doesn't stay so late at the moving picture show that it turns into a chocolate drop, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the nuts.

HOBSON'S, TOO

It was a small town hotel and the traveling salesman, injured to the horrors of such places, entered the dining room with forebodings. He gasped with delight to see written on the menu: "Choice—Fillet saute, broiled young chicken, beef stew."

"A decent place, at last," exclaimed the salesman. "I'll have fillet saute."

"Sorry, sir, but that's out," answered the waiter.

The guest was somewhat disappointed, but one must put up with these things.

"Bailed chicken, then," he ordered.

But that was out, too. Then the salesman exploded.

"What do you mean by a choice of three dishes?" he roared.

"Ah, the waiter replied, "you see, sir, it's the proprietor who asks the choice."

FULFILLING PROMISES BY PERFORMANCE.

Promises may get friends, but it is performance that must keep them. —Feltham

The test of business vitality is in performance, not in promises. If this were not so, anyone could attain success without effort, simply by setting up an imposing sign or publishing impressive promises of fair dealing.

But few succeed, while many fail. The law is "give and take," and those who chiefly take, without giving "value received," never attain the heights.

Because its promises have been conscientiously and consistently carried out in performance, the L. G. Scovern Co. has succeeded.

ONLY YOU'VE ONCE

This is the golden age for children. Never were their needs and wishes, their health, their pleasures, their education made the subject of so much anxious consideration, so much sacrifice as they are today.

And much of this is good. It is right and natural and beautiful that each generation should want to give a little more to its children than it received, should want to make up to the child of today for the disappointments and deprivations that the child of long ago suffered.

But it is so easy to do harm when you want to do good! And when we get sentimental over children, I think we are apt to do them harm.

Here is the sort of things that I mean.

I have a friend who has two daughters to whom she is a wonderful mother in every way but one. She cannot bear to make those children shoulder a single responsibility of any sort.

A Wonderful Mother But—

She has no maid and her husband suggests that she have each of the children perform two or three duties each day both for her sake and for theirs. Sometimes she makes spasmodic attempts to have them do this and then they beg off. "If I stop to help with the dishes I don't get to school until the last minute and all the other girls go early and have lots of fun before school." "Oh, mother, I don't want to come home after school today because Mary wants us all to come up to her house. Can't I go after I get my work done? Oh, dear, that wouldn't be half so much fun. I want to go along with the rest."

To such pleas as these the mother gives in and when the father reproaches her she says: "I want them to have as much

WOMEN GOOD DETECTIVES, SO FINGERPRINT EXPERT STATES

Miss Helmer-Nielsen, 174.

Young woman delegate to police conference in New York says women are keener than men on detail detective work.

'Portrait Parle' System Is Explained to Police Officials In Their New York Convention

NEW YORK—Women are better than men on detail detective work, according to Miss Ingeborg Charlotte Helmer-Nielsen, attractive and intelligent 26-year-old Danish fingerprint expert who attended the international police conference here.

Miss Helmer-Nielsen appeared before the conference, an assemblage of "best minds" in police and detective circles of the world, and explained the intricate and highly-effective detective system which is employed in her native Denmark.

At the conclusion of the conference she was scheduled to make a tour of a number of Eastern cities to explain the workings of the system to other law-enforcement officials.

'Portrait Parle'

Of the system Miss Helmer-Nielsen says: "Besides the usual data on a criminal's record, name, history and general description, we use a system of figures called the 'portrait parle', which can be telephoned to another place in the city. If a person at the other end receives our message, learns that the fugitive has a 'type one' chin and a 'type four' ear, with other numbered types of features, he can send out an expert who can picture those features in his mind, and who will arrest the criminal at sight, without any photograph to identify his object of search."

"Details of fingerprints have numbers, too, and we send them along to be compared with prints of someone who is arrested. That saves time. They don't have to compare with the old prints that are hard to get. All these prints and numbers are listed in a central identification bureau, and the formula is telegraphed or cabled."

Good on Detail

"Women are good on detail," continued Miss Helmer-Nielsen. "They never miss small points and have keen powers of observation. In detective work they are useful at desks at jobs which men hate to sit down to—men would rather go out and hunt for the criminal."

"Women are not generally used in police work in Denmark. In Copenhagen there are five who attend to children's cases and to women vagrants, whose number has a direct relation always to unemployment. There is no vice in Copenhagen."

Douglas McKay, secretary of the national police conference and special deputy police commissioner, said of the "portrait parle" system:

"The various points of identification are classed in a fine degree, and a splendid system of coding enables police to transmit a complete description by mail, phone, wire or cable. The receiving end can always tell exactly what sort of person is wanted."

Only serious crimes cause transgressors to be sent to the quarters, and great effort is made to keep all criminals out of Denmark.

Diet and Health

GIVE THE DOG A CHANCE

I am a dog. Of all animals, I am the one which is most loved by you who are human. I do not have to tell you that I love you. You know that your animal can so well express its love to the human as I can. While I live in a world of my own and you live in a world of your own, still our worlds touch.

I live with you. I am faithful. I guard your homes and protect your children. I save your lives. If you are drowning, I rescue you. If you are lost in the snows of the mountains, I find you and bring you food. I serve you on the battlefields. Though you beat me and are cruel to me, I still love you. I give up my life for you. Greater love hath no man than this.

Now I come to your pleading for your help. I want you to save me from myself. I want you to save me from my brother dogs and other animals. I want you to save me from inflicting this hideous disease upon the children I love and upon other animals. I want you to save me from hydrophobia.

In order to save me from hydrophobia, you must protect me from some of my supposed friends among the humans who are super-sentimental and thoughtless. I don't believe with the great psychologist, Freud, that these people are inherently cruel and that their agitation for the protection of animals is a manifestation of this complex, to convince themselves and the world that they are not cruel. Nor do I believe that the majority of them are childless and their maternal and paternal love which should be expended on children is lavished on dogs. No, I believe these people really are sincere. But oh! I plead with you, protect me from them.

If these misguided friends of ours had ever seen a case of this agonizing disease, hydrophobia, in a dog or a human, they would not be so cruel as to protest against the measures that are known to prevent it. But as in the case of other things pertaining to us and to other animals, they do not investigate for themselves. They do not know.

The doctors say that there is no disease so hideous in its agony

Book Reviews

A book that will be eagerly read by boys from 14 to 24 is Frederick Becholdt's "When the West Was Young." Painstakingly, yet without ever losing sight of the intrinsically dramatic and often humorous possibilities of his material, Becholdt has gathered together a series of incidents that constitute the high-lights in the romantic history of the West, particularly Arizona.

There are eleven chapters in all, dealing with the first discovery of Death Valley, the story of Joaquin Murietta, and two chapters on that reckless town of Tombstone, whose name so defiantly warned all comers of the most that they might expect. Famous Cochise county, beloved of all writers of Wild West fiction, we learn, was named after a famous Apache whose hair-raising exploits are enumerated in another chapter. The passing of John Ringo, the tale of John Slaughter, and the lead-punctured romance that is conjured up by the memory of the old overland mail, all of these are detailed faithfully, accurately and with no lack of red pepper on the side.

Becholdt has, quite sensibly, not undertaken to whitewash any of his characters. He shows them exactly as they were, men whose greatest virtue was fearlessness, the one virtue, after all, that can successfully break a new trail of any sort, physical or spiritual.

SKIRTS FOR MEN BATHERS

By ukase of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, the men swimmers of Zion City must wear skirts that extend below the knees and the women must be covered entirely, except from wrist to elbow. Isn't it wonderful how they put up with Wilbur. Having clothed Zion's bathers in this way Zion City's stern moralist requires that the men and women bathers must be separated a distance of 500 feet, which would seem to make clothing unnecessary.

BEAUTY CHATS

ANSWERED LETTERS

C. S. H.—Soften the warts by rubbing into them either salt, olive oil or lemon juice; and, each time the hands are washed, use a little pumice on them.

X. Y. Z.—With reddish brown hair and deep blue eyes you can wear all colors; but the best choice will be all shades of green, brown or blues. To retain that glint in your hair, shampoo once in three weeks, using a fine quality of soap such as castile or similar.

Lila—Extract the coarse hairs by using tweezers. Bleach the finer ones with peroxide.

Mrs. M. C.—Henna shampoo is made by mixing one ounce of Egyptian henna with three ounces of powdered castile soap. This makes enough for several shampoos. Take a tablespoonful of this mixture and put it into a pint of hot water; rub this over the head, working it into a lather. Let it remain from 10 to 15 minutes and proceed as in any shampoo. This gives luster and richness, but in no way changes the shade of the hair.

Anxious M. C.—The condition which causes your neuralgia could affect your hair, as the hair's health follows that of the whole system.

H. M. D.—An ounce of Epsom salts to a pint of water will form a strong solution to be used in massaging the fleshy part of the ankles for reduction purposes.

Katharine C.—It is not advisable to peel the skin, as it would be left in such a delicate state that it would be affected by every change of temperature or other conditions. The few blemishes that you have now will be nothing compared with those you will have after making the skin sensitive through this unnatural process. You can bleach the liver spots by persistent applications of lemon juice or cucumber lotions.

D. A. M.—If you curl the hair by using heated irons you would not have any need for the curling fluid.

K. K.—Spirits of camphor is drying to the skin. Do not overdo the applications. The best method for clearing the skin was given in the Chat of yesterday. Squeezing the flesh not only bruises it but it will cause the large pores to coarsen even more.

Reader—When powder does not stay on the skin it is not so much the fault of the powder as the condition of the skin; if it is inclined to be dry, the powder blows off and if the skin is very active it throws the powder off. If the skin is dry rub into it a bit of cream before using powder; if it is oily remove all secretion first.

There are any number of good powders and among them are those made from rice or lycopodium.

SNOW WHITE GEESSE

Donald MacMillan, Arctic explorer, sailing back to civilization in his little schooner, Bowdoin, after being frozen in the ice 274 days, reports an Arctic island of 625 square miles so white with geese that it appeared covered with snow. According to the best maps of that part of the world, MacMillan's schooner sailed more than 60 miles on land, but the land was so well covered with sea water that nobody noticed the bumps, and the crew sighted big herds of walrus, which they believe to be the remnant of the great walrus herds which once inhabited the Arctic. Notwithstanding the thousands of years man has been on earth, he still has a great deal to learn about his home on this speck in the universe.

PURCHASING FOOD

Select the grocery, market and bakery with a view of their cleanliness. Notice if the doors and windows are screened, and if proper effort is made to catch flies that may have entered. Refuse to buy food that is exposed upon the sidewalk, and if it is within doors, see that it is protected from dust and flies. The best markets now have tiled floors and walls, which help very materially to insure cleanliness. The difference in odor is marked between a market that is properly cleaned daily, and one where the proprietor uses unclean methods. Meat and vegetables, in particular, should be personally selected whenever this is possible. The butcher must understand that the purchaser is familiar with the cuts of meat and that honest service is demanded in regard to the quality, trimming and weight of the meat. One does not want to be too suspicious, but it is well for the marketmen to know that the purchaser has a pair of standard scales at home by which to prove the accuracy of his weighing. It is also important to inspect fruit and vegetables for quality and cost.

The amount that one purchases of a certain food depends on its keeping qualities, and upon the storage space available at home. A general rule may be stated: Buy perishable foods in small quantities; non-perishable foods in large. In a modern home or apartment where there is not room for storage, the quality must be gauged by the space. The foods classed here as perishable are those which are readily "spoiled," that is, those that are affected by mold and bacteria on account of the moisture that they contain, and also those that lose freshness and flavor quickly. Those most easily affected should be kept the coldest; those in the semi-perishable group do not deteriorate so rapidly, although a low temperature is desirable with all these. Under the non-perishable foods are classed those which are not subject to bacteria or mold under ordinary circumstances. These should be kept dry, however, and never in a heated place. In a sense, no food is non-perishable. Insects sometimes develop in the cereal products, for instance, and the material is thus rendered unfit for food.

Perishable Food—Milk, cream, uncooked meat and fish, shellfish, berries, fruits with delicate skins, lettuce, vegetables that wilt easily.

Semi-Perishable Food—Butter, eggs, cooked meat and fish, root vegetables, cooked vegetables, left-overs in general, skin fruits like apples, bananas, oranges and lemons, dried fruits, scalded milk and cream, smoked and salted fish and meats, open molasses and syrup.

Non-Perishable Foods—Flour, macs and cereals, sugar, salt and

SEALS AND VERNON IN CLOSE RACE FOR PENNANT

Teams Neck and Neck In Coast Battle; Salt Lake Stick Work Good

With but three more weeks of play remaining in the 1922 baseball schedule of the Pacific Coast league, San Francisco and Vernon are entering into the most exciting and closest home stretches in the history of the circuit. Having played more than 175 contests since the opening of the season last spring, these teams are neck and neck in the wild pennant dash, the standing of each showing the same number of games won and lost to date. A very extraordinary feat and one which does not figure to occur in one out of every thirty leagues in the country.

Regular Playing Fools

The credit for stimulating the unusual amount of interest in the league race is due solely through the efforts of Baffin Bill Essick and his crew of "ball playing fools." During the past five weeks, with the Seals playing practically as good a game as they have exhibited all year, Eddie Maier's Bengals have outdone their Bay City rivals by winning approximately eighty per cent of their games and gaining five full games on the leaders. Should the present pace be continued by the so-called "Jungle Babies" throughout the remaining three weeks of the schedule, and there is no reason to believe that such will not be the case, the gonfalon is due to come to southern California for the fifth consecutive time.

This Week's Predictions

Neither Vernon nor San Francisco appears to have an edge on this week's schedule, although the advantage, if any, will probably be with Vernon playing Seattle in Los Angeles. Dots' Miller's self-appraised "million dollar team" draws the demoralized Sacramento squad, which is battling it out for the cellar with Portland. Both San Francisco and Vernon figure to win at least five games, and probably six or seven, as their share of the week's spoils.

Lead in Stick Work

Although the Salt Lake ballgamers will not have a possibility of coming out one-two-three in the pennant race they will nevertheless have the satisfaction of leading the rest of the clubs in both team and individual batting honors. Paul Strand appears to show no signs of slipping, while there is hardly a chance that his mark of .389 will be approached within three weeks' time. Duffy Lewis, Strand's team-mate and manager, has passed Sammy Hale of Portland for runner-up honors, his present average being .371. Hale's mark is .365. Smith of Vernon and "Brick" Eldred of Seattle appear to have things all their own way for fourth and fifth places. The popular Vernon third baseman is now leading his fellow auburn-haired rival of the far northwest by a single digit with a mark of .352.

Duck Season October 1

Many local hunters are looking forward with pleasant anticipation to the opening of the 1922 duck season, which has been set for October 1. Although there are numerous lowlands and lakes in southern California where the elusive game birds may be found in the winter months the mecca of two-thirds of the hunters each year is Big Bear Valley.

And this season is no exception. Already Baldwin lake, which is located adjoining Big Bear, has been reported to have attracted thousands of ducks, and it is estimated that November 1 will find as many as ever "waiting to be taken home."

WAGERS ON YANKS TO BEAT GIANTS

Money Proposition, So Writer Declares

By FRED ORRIN
For S. Sports Service
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Assuming that the New York Americans finally will win out for the American league pennant from St. Louis, early betting shows, at the moment, that the Yanks are favored to beat McGraw's Giants in the coming world series.

General Survey

It is quite as interesting to note, also, that a review of how close the estimates tally with the actual results shows that they are usually way off and look silly after the series is over. A general survey is quite as enlightening and usually comes very much nearer the mark.

Even Money Bet

As we see it, there is really no reason for any odds being offered by either side, and even money proposition is as logical a comparison as can be placed on the probable result. While one player may be better in some ways than his opponent in the same position, his opponent probably has some ways in which the first man may be lacking. A good player on second may be countered by a better opposing player on third.

Girl Becomes Blind, Then Regains Sight

Margaret Wisler, 19 years old, of Norristown, Pa., who went stone blind when frightened by another automobile approaching the one she was driving. She pulled to one side of the road, stopped the machine, and then told her companion, John Smith, she couldn't see. This happened about ten days ago. She has since been under the care of specialists, but no definite opinion as to her recovering her sight could be given. On August 29 her sight returned as suddenly as it went. TRADE IS KINSHIP LINK FOR WORLD, EXPERT SAYS

Comptroller Crissinger Sees International Commerce As Common Ground

By W. H. ATKINS

For International News Service.

WASHINGTON—It takes more than a world war to break up Europe's nationalistic ideals, according to Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger. The comptroller got away from staid topics like high finance. He digressed into the realm of the bigness of the human family and the oneness of it. Altogether he thought the past seven years of war and post-war turmoil has done much to develop the idea among world peoples that they are interdependent upon each other, at least economically.

"The world will soon be brought to common standards of modes of life," Mr. Crissinger said. "Different communities will cling to different languages, traditions, religious institutions of law and economic organization. Perhaps it is well that they should."

Seeks Denominator

"But somewhere in the scheme of things there is a common denominator by which we can reduce the problems of this varied family of the world to its lowest quantities and view them in the most understandable terms."

"In my belief this common denominator is international trade. It stands as the solvent, the medium of communication, the nerve center by which we establish touch and understanding among different peoples of the globe."

"Intimately related to the world's system of sustenance and alimentation is international commerce."

"The last seven years has given us a conception of the oneness of the human family, the interdependence among peoples, and the intimate relationship between states and nations."

"This is not a shocking realization for Americans. But to those communities of the old world in which the nationalistic ideal has been developed to the extreme point, this conception is not so easily accepted."

Depends On Europe

"The extent to which America can co-operate and assist Europe out of its economic difficulties depends entirely upon the attitude that Europe adopts."

"America cannot live alone, although it is conceded that America could come nearer than perhaps any other nation to living to ourselves."

"The cataclysm of the last few years has shown us Americans how necessary it is to maintain the privilege of easy communication and economic interdependence. No other country ever had the chance of world leadership that is so literally forced upon us. Our contribution in material things is certain to carry with it also a corresponding part in social and intellectual direction of world affairs."

GOLD IS COMMON IN SWITZERLAND

But It Won't Buy Anything So Only More Wealthy Tourists Visit

By HERBERT M. DAVIDSON
For International News Service.

LUCERNE—Remember the fairy story of the little girl whose porridge or corn meal mush or shredded wheat, or whatever it was, turned to pure gold?

Somehow or other she was saved from starving to death—some fairy prince or other cooked her an omelette just in time—but she never wished for gold after that.

She was just exactly like the Swiss people this summer.

Gold in Switzerland is as common as mountain goats. Twenty-franc gold pieces—the "louis" of the French empire, Belgian pieces, Italian pieces, some of them rare enough coins from before the middle of the last century—pass from hand to hand and are as plentiful as coffee checks in a cafeteria.

But they won't buy anything. And their relation to the exchanges of other countries is so high that nobody, except a few better-to-do tourists, comes to buy what Switzerland has to sell.

Sell Scenery

The chief thing Switzerland has to sell is scenery. Scenery, with all the trimmings. Other parts of the world have lakes and mountains—we have 'em in our own national parks—but no place except Switzerland has lakes and mountains so beautifully arranged to be looked at with no exertion whatever.

Any American family—including grandpa and grandma—who have never so much as walked three blocks without calling upon the ministrations of the family fiver, can "rough it" in Switzerland without even getting out of breath.

They can leave a first-class hotel, where they are made to feel by practiced Swiss hotel people that they are the express individuals whose comfort the proprietor had in mind when he established the house, ride on a swift, even-keeled boat on a placid lake to the lower terminus of a cog-railway, ascend a mountain, sleep there in another first-class hotel, where they are persuaded they are enjoying an original adventure; view the sunrise and descend again to the same swift boat—all without so much as one single, solitary pant.

Caddies Demanding Better Pay, Strike

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa.—The high cost of living goes hand in hand with the expense of golf. Caddies at the Punxsutawney Country club are on strike for higher wages. One of the boys writes thus:

"We caddies are on strike. We are union caddies and have to eat and sleep same as other people, and we can't do it at 25 cents a round. The reason golfers are sore is because caddies try to get a man who will pay more than a quarter for two rounds."

"There are a number of caddies in our bunch that has to wear pants, and we can't buy a pair a season by only making 25 cents a day."

"We don't think a little bit more money would hurt some of the fellows who charge so dang much for the pants, either."

Short lengths of laces, embroideries and all kinds of piece goods are marked for clearance at half price and less.

Here are some real bargains if you can use short lengths.

We have just received our first shipment of ladies' knit underwear for fall and now have in stock union suits from 75c to $3.50 per suit.

O. G. RUDIE FAMILY HOME FROM TRIP INTO NORWAY

Glendale Man Visits Former Residence After 18 Years; to Resume Building

O. G. Rudie, 524 West Broadway, who, with his wife and three children, left Glendale on June 3 for Norway, has just returned to the city with many experiences of the trip.

The party left New York for Norway on the Bergensjord, the trip taking ten days. They landed at Christiania, going to Mr. Rudie's old home at Valdres, where they intended visiting his mother.

Business conditions, while still unsettled in Norway, are becoming better, according to Mr. Rudie. Factories are beginning to run and all indications point to a return of prosperity.

While at Christiania the party saw two American battleships anchored in the harbor. "The American sailors are the favorites of the people here," he said. "Other nations also visit the harbor, but they like the United States boys best."

Mr. Rudie will start building homes since his return to the city, he announces.

CITY SAVES MONEY BY DOING OWN STREET WORK

water power in the state not already controlled by private corporations. He considers it an excellent measure.

Cheaper Than Cemetery
Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of the American Medical Association, addressed the convention on the subject of "Public Health." He brought out the fact that it is cheaper to maintain a municipal health department than a cemetery. He commented on the fact that many phases of public health work have passed beyond the theoretical stage and that there is no longer any argument in regard to some of the best practices in this line of work.

Too Much Red Tape
In order to see if the present red tape involved in street work cannot be greatly reduced a committee was selected by the convention to take this matter up with the state legislature. It was the consensus of opinion that about two-thirds of the present red tape could be eliminated.

For Street Purposes
Mr. Burton and Mr. Montgomery appeared regarding streets in tract to be opened by them. After discussion Mr. Burton agreed to give 26.30 feet running west from Pacific to Montgomery for street purposes. Mr. Montgomery agreed to give 23.70 feet running west from Pacific to Montgomery. Mr. Montgomery agreed to deed Montgomery Place as shown on his proposed map.

Officers to Be Athletes, Plan Annapolis and West Point Strong for Training Men Physically

WASHINGTON.—"Every officer an athlete" is the big idea behind the training of the future generals and admirals of the American army and navy today.

At Annapolis Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, the superintendent, is backing every midshipman to tackle as many forms of sport as his talents permit. At present of the 2200 future naval officers more than 1800 are "out" for some athletic team.

Regular Sport Schedule
During the four-year course of training the cadet is required to devote a certain number of hours every week to a regular schedule of various sports, similar to the range at Annapolis, and including among others polo. The routine gymnasium training is carried out at both academies in addition to the various athletic competitions.

Judges Hampered
She said judges are hampered in their decisions by the enormous amount of litigation which has to be handled and by the circumstances that there is no acknowledged head to the judicial departments.

Decide Fate by Cards and Dice
AKRON, Ohio.—"The machinery which our officials use today in the administration of justice is that machinery which was evolved in the days of the stage coach and the knitting machine," declared Miss Florence E. Allen, one of Cuyahoga county's twelve common pleas judges, addressing the East Akron board of trade.

Lady Judge Suggests That Higher Moral Code Be Followed in Work
Judge Allen urged a higher moral code and the introduction of business methods in the administration of justice, together with abandonment of outworn machinery of the law in favor of new codes tempered to the needs of the present.

Actual Retrenchment Plans Show Big Drop; Other Economies Also
TOKIO.—There appears to be a real intent on the part of Japan to retrench naval and military expenditures. The budgets for the two departments for the fiscal year 1923-24, made during the Washington conference, has been announced showing a combined reduction of approximately $57,000,000 for the two from the present fiscal year.
