

PECOS PUEBLO
Long a trade center for Pueblo and Plains Indians, this pueblo and later Spanish mission were abandoned in 1838, becoming only a landmark along the Trail.

SANTA FE
This provincial capital of Nuevo Mexico was an isolated outpost until the Santa Fe Trail turned it into a commercial center.

BENT'S FORT
The Bent brothers and Cerán St. Vrain built a commercial trade depot in 1833. It served American Indians, fur traders, and trail travelers for 17 years.

MOUNTAIN ROUTE
Called the Ratón or Bent's Fort Route during Trail days, it was longer and more difficult than the Cimarron Route, but considered safer.

RATÓN PASS
The difficult crossing over Ratón Pass was a major obstacle to Trail travel. In 1865, entrepreneur Richens "Uncle Dick" Wootton eased the journey by building a toll road.

FORT LARNED
From this fort, established in 1859, the U.S. Army provided protection for caravans, stagecoaches, and other Trail travelers.

ARKANSAS RIVER
Rivers were serious obstacles. During crossings, injury to people or animals and damage to loss of wagons or cargo were ever-present dangers.

WET/DRY ROUTES
Trail travelers chose between the "wet route," which afforded good grazing and water for large numbers of stock, and the shorter but water-limited "dry route."

CIMARRON ROUTE
This was the shortest and the original wagon route between Santa Fe and Missouri. The easternmost 60 miles offered no reliable water and was called La Jornada (The Journey).

For Your Safety and Comfort
Do not assume that signs will warn you of all safety hazards. Keep watch over children. Keep pets under physical restraint at all times. Leave domestic stock and wild animals alone. Be aware of potentially extreme weather conditions and the sometimes-high danger of fire on the prairie. Many Trail sites lack amenities; plan ahead. Use public restrooms and other facilities while in towns or developed areas.

Remember: You Are a Guest
Some private landowners are graciously allowing you to visit their sites. Please behave as you would like guests on your own property to behave. Leave everything the way you find it. Don't disturb the owner, owner's family, or employees, except in the rare case of emergency, accidents, or other problems. Owners retain the right to ask you to leave at any time. Obey posted signs, use designated roads and parking areas, and stay only long enough to appreciate the natural and cultural resources of the site.
