PLAN FOR TEACHING CITIZENSHIP IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

By Walt, Le Noir Church
Later investigation discloses the fact, the very gratifying fact, that there is a Junior Chamber of Commerce in the Pasadena High School, and that it is a very active and influential organization. There is said to be a similar effort at teaching citizenship by actively doing something for the city in the Long Beach High School and possibly in the Hollywood High School. Then surely Glendale should have one. Why not? Now that the question is actively started, nothing but success will ever satisfy the starters. It has been approved by teachers in various schools, by many citizens, all saying: "Good idea. Just the thing needed."

The County Superintendent, Mr. Mark Keppel, was consulted by letter. His genial, appreciative and characteristic reply is quite encouraging. "I think the suggestions which you make on a plan for teaching citizenship in public schools are excellent suggestions, and teachers everywhere use some little of the big idea."

Again: "I have considered the self-government organizations of our High Schools as bearing the nearest approach to your idea of teaching citizenship that can be found anywhere. In those organizations the children learn by doing. I shall be glad to give more time to the consideration of the plan which you outline."

"Learn by doing," the greatest secret in education, for long years of half-truth and less achievement.

In this good day of 1917 (not counting what more advanced scholars are doing) we see that plan in evidence whenever we enter a kindergarten or First Grade Grammar School, particularly noticed there as successful with such young pupils. The results are as satisfying as they would be mystifying, could our fathers of half a century ago perceive just what is being accomplished and the simple, natural ways and means of the achievement.

It begins to look like it might not be long before there will be a full-fledged Junior Chamber of Commerce in the Glendale Union High School. So mote it be.

Possibly there may be a Girls' Junior Chamber of Commerce, also; as there now are Girls' Glee Club and Boys' Glee Club. Nothing can be too good for the Glendale Union High School. How could there be?

Then in that glorious event for further promoting education that educates, the debates on civic questions of Glendale betterment would be as instructive as interesting, for there would be some practical outcome, in the near future. Why not?

California has said, with no uncertain sound, that woman shall have all the rights of citizenship. Woman herself has demonstrated that she can take and practically use all the opportunities of business. So, regardless of personal variances of opinion as to ultimate results, we are faced by a condition, not a theory. Those who cheerfully accept that condition and court woman's co-operation in all things profitable along all lines of progress, appear to be following the law of least resistance and greatest power. That is demonstrated in many interesting ways. The Parent-Teacher association, the Garden Society, and other associations chiefly, or largely, as well as those wholly promoted by women, achieve most gratifying results. Outside the good work of secret societies here (of which I know nothing personally), it is only just to admit that if we men of Glendale were as actively interested in doing things for Glendale's betterment not directly connected with our own business, as the women of Glendale undoubtedly are, more particularly good things along progressive lines would soon be coming Glendale-way.

But as Nature's season of renewed growth is close upon us, who knows what the merry Spring-Mother may hold in the hand she hides behind her, doubtless to give us a delightful surprise.

MOTHERS' CLUB

The Mothers' club of the Acacia avenue school will meet Friday at the school. A social half hour will precede the program and refreshments will be served at 2:30. A. W. Kinney of the Industrial commission of Los Angeles county will be the speaker of the afternoon. Mrs. A. J. Van Wie will give vocal selections, accompanied by Mrs. Louis Abell. All are welcome and a good attendance is expected.

The Pasadena and Los Angeles chapters of the American Red Cross has issued a call for the enrollment of nurses between the ages of 25 and 40 years.

TRAINING THE BOY

MUTUAL BENEFIT READING CIRCLE HAS LARGEST GATHERING OF YEAR

One of the largest gatherings in the year's series of weekly meetings of the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Toll on Kenneth Road. The interest in Wm. A. McKeever's practical and sensible book, "Training the Boy," is largely responsible for the growth in attendance.

The Industrial Training of Boys was the topic under consideration this week. The author, believing that "Labor is the first agency in the creation of all the material wealth of the world," and that "From the ranks of the coming industrial class, the rulers, the statesmen, and all the other persons of high official capacity are to be drawn," urges that every parent should bring his growing child into vital relation with the new cultural industry. He urges tasks for all children suited to their age and attainments, beginning with light one minute tasks for the little ones of three or four, and gradually increasing the importance of the task and the length of time of service as they grow older. A very helpful list of suggestive employments around the home for children of various ages is given.

The serious aspect of the amount of idle time that all boys have in vacation unless supplied with proper employment, was discussed at length. Says Mr. McKeever, "During the vacation period, thousands of good boys tend to unlearn the best moral lessons acquired in the schools, to take up habits of shiftlessness, and to fall into evil and criminal companionships." Various vacation employments are fully discussed, among them being work on a farm, herding cows, making gardens, live-stock raising (chickens, pigeons and rabbits), carrying papers, caring for lawns, delivering goods, messenger service, hotel boy, office boy, theater employment and keeping a refreshment stand. Some of these activities were shown to offer such serious objectionable features as to make them prohibitive. In every case Mr. McKeever emphasizes the fact that direction and incentive offered by the father of the boy is an almost essential element for success.

Further related topics to be discussed next week are: Serious Industrial Employment and Sending the Youth to College. After these, "The Social Training of the Boy" will be treated.

Those present at Wednesday's meeting were: Mrs. A. M. Beamon, Mrs. H. H. Beede, Mrs. G. J. Blech, Mrs. R. T. Burr, Mrs. C. M. Brubaker, Mrs. F. H. Cassell, Mrs. James Campbell of Pasadena, Mrs. R. du Coe of New York, Mrs. Geo. Dewey, Miss N. E. Dewey, Mrs. E. W. Farrand, Mrs. H. H. Faries, Mrs. J. W. Cousins, Mrs. Zetta Gibbons, Mrs. H. V. Henry, Mrs. W. R. Heustis, Mrs. H. B. Howeth, Mrs. J. S. Jackson, Mrs. N. C. Kelley, Mrs. A. P. Knight, Mrs. Geo. M. Harrison, Mrs. O. C. Logan, Mrs. S. C. Maranville, Mrs. A. L. Morgan, Mrs. B. H. Nichols, Mrs. H. D. Lockwood, Mrs. M. E. Plasterer, Mrs. C. E. Rathbone, Mrs. T. W. Sampson, Mrs. J. H. Southard, Mrs. E. Riskin, Mrs. F. V. Hall and Mrs. C. H. Toll.

BENEFIT CARD PARTY

The members of the Holy Family Catholic church gave a card party at Masonic Temple Wednesday evening for the benefit of the church building fund. There were twenty-four tables and a very enjoyable and pleasant evening was spent by those present in playing progressive whist. The first ladies' prize was won by Mrs. Armour, the second prize by Mrs. Carrie Smith and the booby prize by Mrs. Becker. The first gentleman's prize was awarded to Byron Power and the second to Francis Power. The hostesses for the evening were Mesdames Chas. Rudell, Wm. O'Brien, Frank Patch, A. Gage and Ed. Burlingham. Appetizing refreshments were served at the close of the evening. The members of the church are planning to build a new church on their lot at the corner of Everett and Lomita streets as soon as funds will permit, as the growth of the parish calls for a more commodious church edifice. When Rev. James O'Neill, rector of the church, came to Glendale seven years ago, the Catholics had no church building. He began to hold meetings in the G. A. R. hall with the few scattering members of the parish, increasing the membership until a building was necessary and the present edifice on Seventh street near Everett, was built. By his faithful and untiring service he has built up the parish until now a larger building is necessary to adequately meet present needs.

GUICE HITS HARD

"COST TO CHRIST AND MEN" HIS SERMON THEME LAST NIGHT

There was a good congregation at the First Methodist church last night to hear Mr. Guice preach and sing. His fine tenor voice in solo work makes a strong appeal. The large chorus threw itself into the singing and led the congregation in swelling waves of song.

At 6:45 last night Mr. Guice began his personal workers and Bible study class. All are invited to join this class. It will meet this evening and Friday evening at the same hour.

Mr. Guice preached last night from Isaiah 53:11, "He shall see of the travail of his soul and shall be satisfied."

"If you suddenly came into possession of this chapter you would think that it had been written after the life and death of Jesus. This one thing proves to me the inspiration of the Book. The whole thing is of God. All your lives you have been familiar with the thought of Christ as the Saviour. Have you thought what it cost him to become that? It cost him 33 years' absence from His Father's house. We think the foreign missionaries make a sacrifice when they go to heathen lands. Often when I am away from home and compelled to be at home in some hotel room, I get homesick for my wife and family and I picture them missing me, and I ask God why it must be. Then I think of the Christ and am ashamed of myself. In a sense Christ was an orphan while on the earth. Christ paid a great price to become what he is to men. It cost him his good name. All his life he lived under a cloud. Men said he was of illegitimate birth. One thing that will make men fight is reflection on their mother's good name. Men forget good stories and remember the evil. They love to drag the bad out of a man's past long after God has forgiven it. Christ was the most sensitive man that ever lived, yet he endured humiliating shame. That is what men meant when they said, 'Is not this Joseph's son?' He taught them of God and they cast this in his teeth.

"It cost him a life of struggle, endurance, suffering and achievement. The work of his life staggers one. How so much could be crowded into the short years of his ministry passes comprehension. Such work could not be crowded into your life or mine. We think too much of self. He never had a thought for himself. Why did God not leave him here longer? I have thought possibly God could not make a human body capable of enduring more than Christ put into his ministry. Tissot's great paintings of the life of Christ should be in every public library. I cannot see how any one can read of the scene in Pilate's judgment hall without heart break. The French infidel said, 'Socrates died like a philosopher.' And so does the suicide. He knows that his family will be better off without him. But when the French infidel wrote of Christ's death he said, 'He died like a god.'

"If Christ shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied, it will cost earnestness on your part. You will have to lead men to him. There is too much insincerity on the part of church members. They think of these meetings as a sort of dress parade. God wants you to get busy. "It will cost you effort. You may have to go without sleep. You women must leave some work undone at times like this. Sometimes men pray that God will disturb the sinners' sleep. What they need is for their own sleep to be disturbed. "It will cost you much prayer and travail of soul."

Mr. Snudden will preach to-night and his subject will be "Crisis Hours."

HONOR ST. VALENTINE

Among the happy festivities of the Valentine season was the affair held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Lyons, 428 S. Louise street, Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Lyons and Miss Isabelle Van Epps were hostesses to the members of their Sunday school class of the Presbyterian Sunday school. Red and white decorations with appropriate symbols suggested St. Valentine and games were in keeping with the day. A valentine box was a feature of the entertainment and refreshments including heart-shaped confections were served. Those who enjoyed the hospitality of the two young hostesses were their teacher, Miss Vera Holloway, and Misses Floy Wills, Aileen McMasters, Mildred McKee, Emily Blackman, Mildred Carmichael and Marian Richardson.

A VISIT TO ROME

MRS. C. M. TURCK'S REMINISCENCES OF JOURNEY ABROAD

The following reminiscences of a visit to Rome were read before the members of the Art and Travel Section of the Tuesday Afternoon club by the curator, Mrs. C. M. Turck:

On the 27th day of June we arrived in Rome. The day was a beautiful one and like the old woman in Mother Goose's rhyme whose skirts were cut short by some mischievous boys while she slept by the roadside, I had to pinch myself to realize that I was I and that the cherished dream of a lifetime had come true.

We had planned to reach Rome in time to witness the fete of St. Peter, which is quite the most important fete of the year, St. Peter being the patron saint of that city. All went well and Sunday found us at the church for the afternoon service and never have I seen anything so impressive or heard music so beautiful. Truly the "Heavenly Choir" is well named. As you know, St. Peters, while not the most beautiful is the largest and most impressive church in the world. It is built in the form of a Latin cross (one arm longer than the others, and you can perhaps gain some idea of its size when I tell you that the length of the interior is 700 feet, its width at the transept, or short arm of the cross, 450 feet, and its width at the entrance 90 feet. The height of the dome is 404 feet, while its diameter is 138 feet.

The church contains 29 altars in addition to the high altar which is reserved for the exclusive use of the pope.

This altar, nearly 10 feet in height, was designed by Bernini in 1633 and is very beautiful with its spiral columns surmounted by a most graceful canopy all made of bronze stripped from the Pantheon by Urban VIII, who was in private life Maffeo Barberini. Upon the tomb of this pope as well as upon the columns appear many gilded bees, the heraldic emblem of the Barberini family, indicating industry, and of which Urban VIII was a fine example, for he most industriously appropriated the good things of Rome to his own use, for not only did he rob the Pantheon of its bronze, but his palace, and a most magnificent one it is, even today is built of stone

VALENTINE PARTY

Little Miss Barbara Juliet Kranz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Kranz, 1317 N. Brand boulevard, was hostess to her many little friends at a beautiful valentine party Wednesday afternoon, February 14. The little guests were received in rooms gay with valentine decorations. Throughout the house bowls and vases of red roses and ferns with red streamers and valentine symbols lent a festive air to the scene. The company enjoyed games both out of doors and in the house. Miss Bernice Watts proved to be an accurate archer and won a book of valentine verses as a prize for proficiency in piercing a heart with an arrow. In this game Miss Dorothea Becker won the consolation prize.

Later in the afternoon the guests were each invited to make a selection from a pile of valentines tied with cords which were entwined. These were in duplicate and the girls matched valentines to find partners. These valentines also served as place cards on the beautifully decorated tables. In the center of the large table a miniature lake reflected the vase of red roses and ferns and the handsome oriental chandelier with streamers suspended above. Crystal candelabra contained tiny pink candles and cut glass bon-bon dishes added to the pretty effect. The four smaller tables were similarly decorated. A two-course luncheon including heart shaped cakes and confections and many other delicious dainties was served. Miss Barbara's little guests on this happy occasion were Misses Lois Naudain, Miriam Whitten, Kathleen Campbell, Mary Elizabeth Campbell, Imogene Farrell, Dorothy Lukenback, Dorothea and Bernadette Becker, Frances Wyman, Polly Virginia Holman, Marie Hearnshaw, Reba Phillips, Helen Daniels, Genevieve Burr, Elizabeth Boggs, Edna Muller, Helen Payne, Helen and Elizabeth Sternberg, Cornelia Wilson, Bernice Watts, Marian Lazana, Ethel Sanders, Margaret Clark, Dorothy Yager, Elizabeth and Clarice Dinsmore, Mary Lois Newlin and Celia Logan. Besides these younger guests there were present Mrs. F. H. Vesper, Mrs. Earl Naudain, Mrs. Charles Sanders, Miss Edith Copeland and Miss, Marié Oliver.

BENEFIT OF PROSPEROUS NEWSPAPER TO COMMUNITY

Time was in this country when the newspaper was looked upon as a sort of community ward. Not so many years ago the country newspaper was regarded as a pawn of some prominent citizens as a sort of organ to further their political and financial interests.

In recent years, however, the country newspaper has come to be recognized for its own worth to the community much in the same light as the butcher, the baker, the merchant, the banker, or what not.

A country newspaper to-day maintains its position in the ranks according to the measure of its industry and intelligence. It is regarded by most people as an entity sufficient unto itself and its community. It is the captain of its own destiny.

This has been brought about through an awakening of most men who engage in the country newspaper business to the fact that the country newspaper publisher has an important task to perform, not alone to his community, but equally as well to himself and family.

Speaking along this line in a recent address in a nearby state, M. I. Forker, a country newspaper publisher, said:

"Any newspaper helps a community to the same degree that its editor helps himself. In the same measure that a shiftless editor, with only a makeshift of a newspaper, is a hindrance to the development of any community, the thrifty editor with a newsy, well-arranged and well-balanced paper, puts his town on the map and contributes as much if not more, directly and indirectly, to his community as any other agency. The world loves patriotism, morality and thrift; it hates disloyalty, degeneracy and shiftlessness. It will foster and will be influenced by the newspaper that stands for the one and will scorn and neglect the newspaper that stands for the other."—Sunnyside, Washington, Sun.

FINDS FORGOTTEN PIONEER MAIL-MESSENGERS

A long-delayed recognition has at last come to heroic pioneers who carried the mails to California for ten years before the famous "Pony Express" was established.

Everyone knows the romantic story of the "Pony Express," but by a curious irony of fate the world had forgotten until now predecessors who for a decade faced every danger of nature and of hostile Indians to carry the mails across plains and mountains to California. This forgotten history has been recovered through documents sent to the California Historical Survey Commission, at its headquarters at the University of California, by H. Chorpenning McGee of Berkeley.

Discovery has been made by Owen C. Coy, Secretary of the Commission, through examination of these documents, that as early as April 25, 1851, nearly ten years before the "Pony Express" was started, the United States contracted with George Chorpenning and Absalom Woodward to pay $14,000 a year to have the mail carried once each month between Salt Lake and Sacramento. The contractors agreed to make the 910-mile journey in not more than thirty days. The original route was along the regular emigrant road through Placerville, crossing the Sierras at Carson's Canon, then following along the Carson and Humboldt rivers and around the northern end of Great Salt Lake. In the first journey across the mountains it took at times a whole day to make two miles through the snow. Before the end of the first year, Woodward was killed by Indians, near Great Salt Lake. Winter proved the northern route impracticable, so, after an unsatisfactory trial of the Feather-river route, Chorpenning changed the winter route so that the mails went from Salt Lake to San Pedro and thence on a Panama mail steamer to San Francisco. By 1858 the quantity of mail to be carried increased so much—and also the government remuneration—that Chorpenning was able to run a stage-line of four-horse coaches along the mail route. A new route was discovered, south of Great Salt Lake, which shortened the journey a hundred miles.

The very idea of the "Pony Express" was anticipated by Major Chorpenning, for in December, 1858, when the President's Message was about to be issued, Chorpenning placed a fresh horse at each mail station from Salt Lake to California, and Sacramento read President Buchanan's second annual message only seventeen days after it had been delivered to Congress. This was two years before Russell and Company established the famous "Pony Express."

Californians who read a Chicago newspaper only three days old, or who look out over the desert from a dining-car table, little realize the dangers and difficulties of these long-forgotten pioneer mail contractors. During the ten years Major Chorpenning was engaged in this service, says Mr. Coy, he lost at the hands of the Indians nearly three hundred head of horses and mules and many coaches, wagons, and station buildings, and sixteen of his brave messengers were slain by the Indians.

NOT SO MUCH LEGISLATION

Information from Sacramento is that there is a marked decline in introduction of proposed new laws, the total being less than in 1915.

At the end of the first half of the session 2200 bills had been introduced, and many of these were duplicates or covered the same topic.

Many are only offered for effect and are not expected to receive serious consideration but will be lost in the committee siftings.

Many of these bills show ignorance of existing laws on the part of members as the ground they cover has already been legislated on.

No cure has been found for legislative prolixity, and members try to accomplish what experience would call foolishly impossible.

When all reductions are made the number of bills that will actually become laws is not appallingly numerous.

Indications are that a great many members will do a lot of thinking and be prepared to do a lot of negative voting after seeing their constituents.

STUDIES IN PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

By Walt, Le Noir Church

STUDY XXVI. GLENDALE DEVELOPMENT.

A number of inquiries have lately come to the Chamber of Commerce from people in regions where the extremes of cold and heat have proved too hard to live the comfortable lives they long for, and are determined to have, if investigation and money can avail.

Before answering such inquiries, I thought I would ask the co-operation of the News readers to this extent: Why not write me or call at the office of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, 1111 Broadway, and tell me what you think are the strongest points in favor of Glendale as a home. From such answers perhaps I can arrange the strongest case ever made by any city wishing more inhabitants.

What appeals to one as most desirable in a home location might not be so convincing to another. For that reason it would greatly help the cause if many would answer that question: men, women, boys and girls. Each one probably has some decided likes or dislikes regarding home surroundings, which would strongly appeal to others if brought to their attention. The date of publication of those collated suggestions might be made known in advance, so that those who wish extra copies of the News to send away to friends may make request for papers in time to get them.

Such a compendium of booster opinions ought to make what Horace Greeley called "mighty interesting reading."

Though the distant friends you send it to might not be able to come to Glendale to live, the paper may fall into the hands of some one else seeking for just such conditions as Glendale could offer, if all her good points are catalogued. There are so many good points about Glendale as a residence, it is doubtful if any one person would include them all in a single statement. Hence the request for such team work, which would let no good point escape. Will you do it? If you do it NOW, it will be off your mind and you will not need to bother about it "To-day—or To-morrow," two perfectly good dates set for so many desirable things that never, never happen at all.

Progressing from two thousand to eight thousand population in five years—over a thousand a year without aid of any mining or oil boom—proves that Glendale has some years of substantial reasons for continued growth and prosperity, and she certainly has better reasons to-day. Between us we ought to get at all those inducements and send them to the investigators as soon as may be. Ought we not? You are personally interested as a resident of Glendale. As such, are there not many reasons why you should lend a hand?

Seed thoughts confided to a newspaper for planting in human brains certainly are sown broadcast, sometimes.

Once, while manager of the Cincinnati home office of Snow, Church & Co., I had need to find one Charles LeClerque, who owned a recorded judgment he evidently had forgotten years before. We had postal cards printed, making the needed inquiry, and we sent them to nearly all the attorneys in the Snow-Church directory, all over the continent. But no results. Finally I wrote an article on "Names," and told how the spelling changes, sometimes by accident, and again by design, if the bearer goes west to grow up with the country and for any reason wishes to lose his identity. It was published in The Telegram, a pink evening sheet. In about two weeks we received a letter from a little town in southwestern Texas, Laredo, perhaps, saying the writer had seen my article in a paper brought down from Cincinnati by a drummer. That Charles LeClerque, a friend of his, had never changed his name for his country's good or any other reason, and was then living within 90 miles of Cincinnati, in a little, directory-less town, so escaping our drastic search. We were soon in direct communication with him. That story illustrates how the unexpected happens when you entrust it to a newspaper; even to one of small circulation, as far as its books show. So if you start off a few papers containing the Ultimate Argument for Glendale, you could not even guess all the faraway places to which a copy may wander, nor how many good citizens it might draw or send to Glendale.

If you love to do good in this life, storing up credit for the life to come, just think all you might earn, directly and indirectly, by inducing even one desirable citizen to make Glendale his home and so make him forever grateful to you.

Yesterday work began in the new office of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, in the front room of the Monmouth R. R. offices, 1111 Broadway. "Come and see us."

LOVE, NOT MONEY

I was talking the other day with a young man. "What is your ambition?" I asked. His answer was not what I expected. He said: "I want to do work of such character that people will love me."

Think of that from a big, strong, ambitious six-footer! He did not choose fame; he did not choose money; he asked for love.

"I've been watching men," he went on, "and the number of men who have fame and wealth but who are disliked for one reason or another, appalls me. It seems to me they have paid too big a price for their money. Others have paid too much for their fame. Their ideals were too low."

I was interested to know what conclusion he had come to as a result of his observing, so I said: "Why do you ask for such a thing as love?"

"Because," he answered without hesitation, "love is the reward the world returns to those who serve efficiently. By efficiently I do not mean with mechanical precision and lack of waste. I mean service rendered in the right spirit—as a loving mother would help her child.

"I want to write things that will make people feel better—stories that will make them cleaner, kinder, more neighborly, more eager to help one another. I want to increase the amount of love in the world. Hate isn't driven out by fighting against it with stronger hate. It is always driven out by greater love.

"Maybe I won't make so much money, and I may not become famous, but I know for an absolute certainty that I can be lovable and can express that loveliness in my writings. That ought to win, do you not think?"

A good question to ask: Are my writings helpful, neighborly, love-liberating, or are they filled with irritation, hatefulness, envy—the devils of an unhappy heart—From Editor and Publisher.

USE LEMON JUICE

When celery or lettuce becomes wilted wash it thoroughly in clear water and then in water enough to cover them to which lemon juice has been added. In a little while their crispness will return with even better flavor. The uses of lemon juice about the house are many. Use it for removing fruit stains from hands or clothing; match marks from the wall or sweetening a sour dishrag or any container.

VALENTINE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Valentine day was the occasion of a delightful celebration at Palm Villa, the home of Mrs. David H. Imler on Park avenue, her daughter, Miss Marjorie Imler, herself being a valentine, and the evening of her birthday was a series of happy surprises for the popular young lady. A delicious dinner in honor of the event was served in the early part of the evening, those present besides the members of the family being Mr. and Mrs. John Hunchberger and daughters, Misses Evangeline and Virginia Hunchberger, and Miss Catherine Phillips. Almond blossoms formed the lovely table center piece and the rooms were decorated with yellow acacia. As the dainty white candles in the red rosebud holders had burned out and Miss Marjorie was cutting the birthday cake, the bell rang and in tramped a group of her young friends to surprise her. The surprise was planned by Miss Catherine Phillips and Miss Evangeline Hunchberger and the excitement and glee of the recipient proved its success. Greetings were scarcely over when the door bell rang again, and this time Mrs. Imler was the only one in the secret as to what the ring of the door bell meant. It was the announcement of the arrival of Miss Marjorie's brother, Eugene Imler, and three fellow students from Throop college, William Renshaw, Homer Bullard and Samuel Rasmussen. The young lady had been regretting the absence of her brother, so this completed her happiness and joy in the occasion. Along with the hearty congratulations extended she was the recipient of many lovely gifts, flowers and valentines. A number of games were played and ice cream and cake were served late in the evening. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. John Hunchberger, Misses Evangeline and Virginia Hunchberger, Catherine Phillips, Waunita Emery, Katherine Renshaw, Esther Schremp, Ernestine Lyon, Margaret Boucher and Hope Armstrong; Messrs. Seymour Smith, Tom Phillips, John Sharp, Olin Wilson, Fred Dodge, William Renshaw, Homer Bullard, Samuel Rasmussen, Eugene Imler and Frank Liddell.

CHAPTER B A BIRTHDAY

Chapter L of the P. E. O. Sisterhood entertained Chapter B A at a birthday party at the home of Mrs. Arthur Brown of 1301 Milford street on Wednesday, February 14th.

After the devotionals and business were over, words of greeting were received from the different members of B A, at which time Mrs. Willisford gave a little original poem which brought forth much laughter and merriment. Words of greeting were also given by Mrs. Garvin, the state organizer, and Mrs. Hulda Miller Nash of Chapter E, Los Angeles. When the greetings were over the meeting was adjourned until afternoon and all passed to the dining room, where a beautiful luncheon awaited us. The chapter colors of yellow and white were carried out in the refreshments and the center piece was a lovely birthday cake in yellow and white with the words "Birthday Greetings" and 12 candles which signified the original number of Chapter B A. At the properly appointed time for the cutting of the cake the shades were all drawn and candles lighted and Mrs. Cunningham, President of Chapter B A, was called upon to blow out the candles, after which she and our acting president, Mrs. Lee, proceeded to cut the cake.

The program of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Anna Goss. After a few well-chosen remarks, she announced a piano selection by Miss Waunita Emery, which received a very hearty encore. Mrs. Genevieve Goss gave a group of three readings, "Accountability," by Dunbar, "In California," Brimminstool, and "Old Glory" by Riley. Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Bryant very sweetly sang "Oh wert thou in the cauld blast," by Bobby Burns.

Mrs. Miller gave a very interesting talk on "What constitutes a good P. E. O." Her remarks were full of good advice to each individual member and portrayed thoughts we should all try and remember. Mrs. Miller was at one time Supreme President, State President of California, and State Organizer of California, and also organized Chapter L 12 years ago this coming March, so Chapter L naturally has a very fond spot in her heart for Mrs. Miller.

Mrs. Garvin also gave a splendid talk on "Justice." Mrs. Garvin is also greatly beloved by our chapter, as she has been with us on several different occasions and always brings with her food for the mind. Mrs. Garvin organized Chapter B A last March. It was indeed a happy birthday occasion and one long to be remembered.

P.-T. A. TEA

Mrs. A. S. Chase opened her beautiful home at 1500 Riverdale drive to the ladies of the Parent-Teacher association of the Pacific avenue school and their friends on Wednesday, when a very pleasurable afternoon was spent in conversation while fingers were busy with fancy work, mending and darning. Tea was served by the charming hostess and as usual at the gatherings of this P.-T. A. a silver offering was made for the Central avenue fund, and $5.13 was added to the fund. Those present were Mesdames R. A. Puffer, E. B. Lannan, J. P. Hilbert, J. W. Begg, F. D. Warner, Frank Ayars, G. Phillips, Colin Cable, Minnette Sherman, O. E. Van Oven, Ella W. Richardson, J. H. Springer, Frank Herron, P. O. Lucas, Brahm van den Berg, James Sibel, C. A. Burnham, Chas. Hutchinson, Steve Packer, Sherman, Longley, A. S. Thaxter, Halstead, F. A. Chase, Hanning, Roach, J. S. Boys who desire to take the examination may secure additional information from the state civil service commission offices in either of the three cities.

Other examinations scheduled for March are:

THE MORAL LIFE

Moral principle is not thinking the right thing, but doing it. It is giving 16 ounces to the pound and 36 inches to the yard. It is treating your neighbor kindly. It is not worrying others. There are some people who pride themselves on holding to high moral principle, who are an exceeding, great annoyance to the people they meet. Of all the unprincipled things in this world, making people unhappy is the meanest. Yet there are many people who are sticklers to moral duty, doing that very thing every day. He is a mean thief who will take from another his peace of mind. One man told us he didn't sleep a whole night because of a needless remark a thoughtless friend made to him. They are many people who are such confirmed materialists that they think you can only do harm to a man by hitting him with a club or stealing his chickens. They don't seem to know there is a mental and spiritual world, where all real feeling dwells and where the deepest torture may be inflicted.—Ohio State Journal.

NOT TO BE CAUGHT

"I think children are not so observant as they used to be," said a member of the school board to a teacher whose class he was visiting. "I hadn't noticed it," said the teacher. "I'll prove it to you," said the school officer, pompously. Turning to the class, he said: "Someone give me a number." "Thirty-seven," said a little girl, eagerly. He wrote "73" on the board. Nothing was said. "Well, someone else give me a number." "Fifty-seven," said another child. He wrote "75" and smiled knowingly at the teacher when nothing was said. He called for a third number, and fairly gasped at the indignation manifested by a small, red-faced urchin, who said: "Seventy-seven, and see if you can change that."—Harper's Magazine.

COINING MONEY

"That's the most realistic wild man I ever saw. His contortions are horrible." "Just confidentially," said the side show manager. "I'll tell you what's the matter with Sam. He's suffering with a jumping toothache. It seems a shame to make him stay in his cage all day, but look at the business we're doing."

WISDOM OF THE WISE

"Did you ever sow any wild oats?" asked the inquisitive stranger. "Only once," replied the young farmer. "I believe in the rotation of crops."

CYNICAL COMPARISON

"This self-made man scoffs at a college education, you say?" "Yes. To hear him talk you'd think a diploma was of no more practical use to the man who possesses it than a loving cup."

FORD AND GASOLINE

Henry Ford is arranging to ship in a lot of "alcohol" potatoes from Europe, which he is going to furnish free to Michigan farmers, with instructions for growing. This is Ford's way of fighting the gasoline combination. These potatoes are so repulsive in odor and taste that they are not eatable, but a bushel will yield about 4 1/2 gallons of 160 to 180 proof alcohol, the grade that works best in motor cars and tractors. European farmers get from 175 to 200 bushels of these potatoes to the acre. Ford believes the day of alcohol fuel in the United States is fast approaching, as the world's supply of gasoline is threatened by a gradual decrease.—Collier's Weekly.

BEAUTIFYING CALIFORNIA

Systematic beautification of California cities as well as her highways and out of town parks must sooner or later be adopted if she is to maintain her standing as a "Mecca" for tourists and a desirable place to build homes. Tree planting is of course the foundation for all permanent improvements along aesthetic lines everywhere in cities, suburban districts or countryside holdings, not to mention national or state reservations and parks.

Riverside and Pasadena are shining examples of what may be done by systematic public spirited beautification. In the infancy of the development of the citrus industry about 1880, some far-sighted citizens planted Magnolia avenue with a few magnolias and an assortment of trees that were known to thrive in that climate, such as the blue gum, red pepper and palms. In a few years Magnolia avenue was one of the show places of Southern California. Trainloads of tourists were met at the Riverside station and were driven in carriages out and back between rows of trees that were not only beautiful, but unlike any that may be grown in cold climates. Riverside and Magnolia avenue were synonymous names in those days for one always suggested the other, and while everyone who enjoyed Magnolia avenue in the 80's and 90's will always remember it with pleasure it is today but a small part of the beautification system of the city and county of Riverside.

What would Pasadena be today without the trees and other ornamental planting with which she is adorned? A collection of buildings, however harmonious in architecture, would have little attraction for tourists, or the thousands who frequently drive out of Los Angeles to Pasadena and back, because in addition to the smooth highway there are trees and shrubs and flowers in great profusion.

While it is true that there is great wealth centered at Pasadena the amount expended on beautification is comparatively a small item. But whether small or large it cannot fail to be a good investment in the enhancement of property values. In fact any city within a few hours drive of a great commercial center, manifests a poor business policy when it fails to make itself attractive to the touring thousands who daily throng our state highways.

It has been urged against the construction of our expensive state highways that they will be used more for pleasure travel than for commercial traffic. Perhaps that may be true, and if so it only proves that our people demand and are getting more of the bright side of life by taking innocent, health-promoting outings in the open, breathing pure air and enjoying our most interesting landscapes.—Home and Farm Section.

THE NEW SERVANT

Weighing but a few pounds and occupying a space less than six inches square, the modern fractional horse power motor applied to the simple every day tasks of running a sewing machine, winding the phonograph, or washing the family clothes, is a wonder of concentrated power. One of these little motors with an actual horse power of less than one-sixtieth of the faithful Dobbin in the stable will run a sewing machine, deliver a stiff breeze from an eight-inch electric fan, suck the dirt out of the carpet when applied to a vacuum cleaner, and run an electric drink mixer. It will operate continuously for four hours on electricity costing about one cent at the usual city rate of ten cents per kilowatt.

A CHILD'S LAUGH

The laugh of a child will make the holiest day more sacred still. Strike with the hand of fire, O weird musician, thy harp strung with Apollo's golden hair; fill the vast cathedral aisle with symphonies sweet and dim, deft toucher of the organ keys; blow, bugler, blow, until the silver notes do touch and kiss the moonlit waves and charm the lovers wandering 'mid the vineclad hills. But know your sweetest strains are discords all compared with childhood's happy laugh—the laugh that fills the eyes with light and the heart with joy. O rippling river of laughter, thou art the blessed boundary line between beasts and men, and every wayward wave of thine doth drown some fretful fiend of care. O laughter, rose-lipped laughter of joy, there are dimples enough in thy cheeks to catch and hold and glorify all the tears of grief—Robert Ingersoll.

ON EQUAL TERMS

"I'm afraid father-in-law doesn't care much about me," said the young man. "He finds fault with most everything I do."
 "Nonsense," replied his wife. "You don't know his ways. He is treating you like one of the family."

 blocks taken from the Coliseum. I have here a genuine Barberine bee in Mosaic. Napoleon I adopted bee as his own. The dome of St. Peter's was designed by Michael Angelo when he was 72 years of age and he lived to see the most arduous part of the work completed. He was almost ninety years old when he died, but the models that he left were so complete that the dome was finished in exact conformity with his design.

The church stands on the site of the circus of Nero where St. Peter is supposed to have been crucified head downward. It was begun by Emperor Constantine I at the request of Pope Sylvester I on Nov. 18, 314 A. D., and was completed Nov. 18, 1614 A. D., just 1300 years from the day of its original consecration. Its cost was $50,960,000 and the present cost of maintenance is $37,000 yearly. Imagine if you can the interior walls of this magnificent edifice, completely covered with cardinal brocaded satin hangings bordered with broad bands of cloth of gold and you can see with your mind's eye the picture that greeted us as we entered the church on that memorial Sunday afternoon. The life-sized statue (bronze) of St. Peter was originally dedicated to the pagan god Jupiter. It was excavated early in the history of the Roman Catholic church, consecrated and dedicated to the Apostle Jew Peter. On this particular day this statue was clothed in robes of cardinal and gold brocaded satin, adorned with jewels, brooches, rings, necklaces of diamonds and other gems with a magnificent crown upon its head. It was closely guarded by uniformed police in order to prevent those who filed by and reverently kissed the toe (after first carefully wiping it with the handkerchief) from yielding to the temptation one of the many gems so needlessly displayed.

High mass was celebrated by Cardinal Rampolla, the pope's secretary of state, who stood just outside the high altar, for 'twas whispered about that Pope Leo XIII was ill—not seriously so, but too ill to celebrate high mass on that day as was his custom.

On the following day he was said to be worse and the report proved to be true. The pope's apartments are in the vatican and are small and simple in appointment, when compared with other apartments in the most magnificent palace in which there are more than 1000 rooms. His garden contains but five acres and here in this walled enclosure he must take his exercise, for he never goes outside the grounds. Like a bird in a gilded cage he is none the less a prisoner, although it lies in his power to revoke this law or edict should he wish to do so.

The third day's report as to the pope's condition were less encouraging and the world became anxious. The windows of his bedroom face St. Peter's square and we had been told by an old Italian, whose acquaintance we had made in our daily visits to St. Peter's, that it was a time-honored custom to hang a black blanket from one of those windows to announce to the public the death of a pope, and we were on the square on that never-to-be-forgotten 20th of July at 4 o'clock in the afternoon when the death of Leo XIII was so announced. In less than 20 minutes after that black blanket appeared the square was filled with soldiers by order of King Victor Emanuel III. They seemed to spring from the stones of the streets. The doors of the church and the entrance to the vatican were closed and closely guarded. No official announcement of the death was made at that time, however. The dead man was covered with a sheet and left entirely alone for 24 hours. The cardinals then filed into the room. Cardinal Rampolla took a silver gavel and tappink Leo XIII lightly upon the forehead called him three times by name, Giachinno Pecci, Giachinno Pecci, Giachinno Pecci. Upon receiving no response he turned to the others and said:

"Gentlemen, Leo XIII, the Holy Father, is dead."

The news was then given to the world, and every church bell in Rome rang for an hour. The din was beyond description, and the sky was black with swallows who had been driven from their homes in the church bellies where for years they had nested and raised their broods undisturbed.

The remains lay in state in the chapel of the Holy Sacrament, the iron gate of which was closed, and on the 23d of July, at nine in the morning we went to the church, hoping to gain entrance. Admission was by ticket only, we had been told, and these tickets were to be obtained from influential Catholics only. We knew no one of whom we could ask this favor and I proposed that we take our chances with the other less favored mortals. Our usual good luck followed us, for through the courtesy of one of the guards whom we had come to know in our frequent visits to St. Peter's we were allowed to enter without question, and as the crowd was not great at that early hour, we were permitted to stand close to the gate and had a splendid view of that grand old man, whose gorgeous robes of cardinal and white satin, heavily embroidered in gold and trimmed with fine lace, cardinal silk gloves with the gold cross on the back, the gold cross on the toes of the cardinal satin slippers and the magnificent white and gold mitre on his head made a picture never to be forgotten. Two scarlet uniformed guards stood at his head and two more at his feet. An Italian told me that when the late Pius IX lay in state in an open chapel souvenir seekers, mostly women, I regret to say, carried scissors and cut even the slippers from his feet and, not wishing to risk a repetition of this, the gate of the chapel in which Leo XIII lay was closed.

Opposite this chapel is the large choir chapel where ladies are supposed to be admitted only when wearing a black dress and veil and gentlemen must be in full evening dress, but we passed in with the crowd unnoticed. Here there was an immense catafalque, empty of course, with candles all lighted. I counted 130 on the side nearest me.

On a small table lay the gavel, trowel, mitre and ring of the deceased pope over which mass was being sung. The ring contained a large emerald of the first quality, upon which had been engraved the private seal of Leo XIII and which was used to officially seal all papal documents.

In order to prevent fraud this beautiful emerald was crushed and a new seal, "sede vacante" (vacant chair), which was to be used in the interim between the death of Leo XIII and the coronation of his successor, was adopted and blessed.

Over the door of this chapel is the temporary tomb in which the remains of the most recently deceased pope rests until the completion of his permanent tomb elsewhere, and that night at 10 o'clock all that was mortal of Leo XIII was placed there. He had requested that his heart be put in a small urn and carried to the little church of Sant Agostina, his first charge, for which he had never lost his love. This had been done with appropriate ceremony.

Leo XIII was of the noble Pecci family of Carpineto, Italy.

He was a wonderful man, a gentleman, a scholar, a diplomat and a financier. He had reached the great age of ninety-three years and for twenty-five years had filled the sacred office of pope most acceptably, but that he was weary and longed for freedom from care and responsibility is shown by the following verses which are the last he ever wrote and which he called his last prayer:

Leo, now sets thy sun; pale is its dying ray;
 Black night succeeds thy day,
 Black night for thee; wasted thy frame;
 Life's blood no more sustains,
 No more thy shrunken veins.
 Death casts his fatal dart; robed for the grave thy bones
 Lie under the cold stones.
 But my freed soul escapes her chains and longs in flight
 To reach the realms of light
 That is the goal she seeks; thither
 her journey fares;
 Grant, Lord, my anxious prayers,
 That, with the citizens of Heaven,
 God's face and light
 May ever thrill my sight.

That I may see thy face, heaven's queen,
 whose mother love
 Has brought me home above
 To thee, saved through the tangles of a perilous way,
 I lift my grateful lay.

LIFE'S THREE QUESTIONS

The three great questions of life are: "Is it right or wrong? Is it true or false? Is it beautiful or ugly?" These our education should help us to answer, and inasmuch as it fails it will lack in reaching a proper physical or moral standard.
