FRIBAY MORNING, FEB. 27, 1994. The Late last evening we were informed that a merchant this city has received a letter from New-Yorke informing him that the chamber of peers in France had refused to take

This report may be promatured but few can refrain from French chambers are gled of any excuse to refuse or a aining and will act from any the weakest pretext-not rehaps so much in had faith to our citizens, as in opposition to their beloved monarch.

Some of our representatives appear to have singular idea of the relation between consignors and consignors, between imployers and agents. One of them had precented a very ou're bill to view indebted factors as criminal offenders: and render them lishes to imprisonment for 5 years. Does no the meniber know that the laws are sufficiently guarded to planters; and that there have always redress by civi process? When an agent accepts a commission he is bound to abide by the express terms specified by the planter for the sale of goods; otherwise he is legally liable for non-conformity or for violation. When the terms of sale are stipu titled, a factor has no choice; but when the planter confide in his agent, the agent is bound to take advantage of the

But why a negligent or culpable factor should be view s a criminal offender, is more than we can conjecture—as h precisely in the condition of any other debtor, to the amount claimed for his neglect of taking advantage of the market; or for having taken advantage of his creditor.

The war with France seems to be apprehended now with which were better prevented or postponed; but should it b round inevitable, we know there is a south and decision is the character of our terlow citizens, which knows not fea-

It is now idle to attribute such an event to the the executive government. Our worthy president has but build's and fearlesty assurted the matics of American claims on France; and again called to the patriots of his country. Once there unto the breach dear friends, once more; but he has neither made nor sought that breach. He had urged and used every friendly exercion which a regard for our old ally of revolutionary days, and for the law of nations, had prompted; and was determined - as in every other instance. o preserve union and peace-to obtain justice poaceably if he could, but forcibly if he must. Having failed by peaceable means to obtain that justice so long tantulized, he during the presidency of any vigilant whief magistrate, resolved not to be fooled. The bad faith of the French King has wrought this muchieft he seems oppressive at home, and unjust abroad. Our president detected this monarchial of the nation, to the charmery and conidity of the French monarch, is he to he blamed ? What object can one like our president, advanced at the verge of life, and living in the hearts of his countrymen,-what object can he have who has attained the height of ambition, but an honest and determinate Tegard for the welfare and honor of his country ? Shall not these be maintained?

There are none more disposed to deprecate an unnecessary or avoidable war with France, than we. Aware of the honorable character of the French nation, -of the political and mercial relations which existed between it and sheet states,-aware of her military and naval resources, of th great extent of our commerce on the sere obnexious to he tice of our claims;—that when they are now refused after being formerly ratified, the bad faith of those who conduct the government in France is mamfest; -and that when is then is denied, honor is insulted. It is too true that re, prisale if reciprocal would be manifestly minimous to us; but if they were made reciprocal contrary to international law, it would afford an other argument in our favor against the dutilicity to cajole America, by professions of friendship to deceive her; or by manifestations of hostilities to affright her Too many of the whig journals have lately sought to tame. our spirit by long parades of the extent and equipments of the French navy, and by secret smeers at the practice for naval resources. Be it so. But what cares the welf how many the sheep are? Were our crizens terrified and reduced during the last war ? And if they could nobly brave the hor, will they tamely submit to the wolf t wisely in husbanding of Jacocha sa sources of the nation; and the example should be fol-I wed by the legislature of each and every state. Though we may alwas hope for the liest, we should also be provide ed against the worst. The resources of each state should be put in requisition; and if of any state in particular, that state is Louisiana.

It is indeed true-that the duties of every native and naturalized citizen absorb all other considerations; but it appears calculated to do much good, and its editor appear is also true that there are laudable feelings of filial respect entertained by many in this state town da France. which cannot be easily eradicated-and true also, that the shipping and commerce of this state are great and dable to hostile attempts; and that its geographical position presents too many favorable means of invasion.

We write more in sorrow than in anger on this subject; for few deprecate it more than we. But being aware of the admitted justice and denial of our claims, and that the national honor is therefore insulted and must be vindicated-we think that when forewarned it is well the city with gas.

Agen, I have reason to believe from the consists of the first reasons, that the price of thirty five delicing allowed annually for lighting every lamp. Is after the great. Reducting on this, you will reastly perceive that the company is not bound never to increase this price; and there is no results are reasonable with the company is not bound never to increase this price; and there is no results were the price; and there is no results were the price; and the price is no results were the price; and the price is no results were the price; and the price is no results were the price; and the price is no results were the price of the price; and the price is no results were the price of the price the company is set bound never to increase this price; and there is no security against the phentility of this ever a built in the subject, also, I must again remind you that Mr Catid well had agreed to light thartres street, at the rate of twenty five dollars per land, which—counting five hundred lamps, will streetly present a difference greater than $2500, with the cost of the oil; for the city pays about $2500, with the cost of the oil; for the city pays about $2500. It is true-that the whole-cost of lighting by oil, with the wages of lamplighters and costal repairs, and was a lamp-lighters should be paid by the company of on one hand it would cost the city $2,000 more for ighting, on the other its disbaseanests would be for ighting, on the other its disbussionests would be $14,00s less, which is the whole attrough of the lamplight is wages, and occasional repairs of all lamps. You in your resolutions it is not specified that the lamp-lightor your resolutions it is not specified that the lamp-lighters will be paid by the company, which is ab-olutely necessary; for on the very first day, we might have a law suit on that subject. Besides, as the number of gas lamps must be doubled, even supposing the lighting of each should only cost $25, it would esceed the expenses. already incurred by the city. Yet this calculation is but based on supposition; but it is certain that by your resolutions, he number of gas lamps would amount to about 900, which at $36 each, makes $31 500; exceeding the actual expenses by 7,500 dollars, without any security hat we will not have to pay the lamp-lighters. I leave you, gentlemen, to reflect on these figures; and if, after mature consideration, you still persist in your resolutions, I will have at least the sample tion to know that I have endeavored to defend the interest of the city us f r as reasoning and the nature of things permit.

One of your resolutions does not appear to be distinctly expressed. You say that in case the company sho ld s'o; lighting with yas, it must abandon the pipes, or they be disposed of by the city. Does that mean that said gas pipes would become the property of the city? This pipes would become the property of the city? This would indeed be but justice; since it has paid for them. If such is your meaning, it would be well to express to more explicitly; not forgetting to include also the lamp

Next, is it proper to subject in this manner, the city to the control of the gas company! Must it depend on the contractors to choose the streets in which they are to begin the works for lighting; or do you reserve the right designating them

You have provided for some of the material interests of the corporation in the contract to be persed with the company. Well and good; you say that the gas shall be a quality equal to that now used in Chartres street. Very ell again, but when contracting for the quality, would it iot have been proper to stipulate for the quantity? Again f deceived in their expectations, the contractors were ntity! Again iddenly to seep their works, and if the city from want gas, should be thrown into profound darkness, who should take upon himself to manusecture gas! I repeat it, gentlemen, in submitting to you these obserations; I don't expect to alter your opinions which seen
