

CROWDS DO MUCH DAMAGE IN CITY

Attack Premises of Well Known Citizens of German Name

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS IN GOODS ARE STOLEN

Militia Called Out to Assist Police and Picket Streets

It was about eight o'clock last evening when the rioting which started on Saturday began again on Yates street, near the corner of Blanshard street. In the crowd there were a few soldiers, these being men who were out on leave, and whose time did not expire until this morning, but who would have been called in last night if they could have been found.

A gang quickly formed and moved down to the Victoria-Phoenix brewery and commenced to throw stones at the lower windows, plenty of missiles being obtainable from the vacant lots across the street.

A crowd of about one hundred got in by the gates on Government street, and others broke down a fence at the side on Discovery street. Through the latter route a quantity of beer in casks and bottles was carried away. Early in the attack Sergeant Fry and Detectives Carlrow and Edwards got in by the gateway and drove the crowd, many of whom were youths, out on the street and closed the gates.

At the dry-cleaning establishment of Herman & Stringer, 248 Yates street, the crowd broke in the windows and smashed many of the fixtures.

Looting on Fort Street.

The worst looting of the night took place on the premises of Schaper & Stringer, 721 Fort street, where Ernest Schaper and W. W. Glass conduct a tailoring establishment. The crowd made a fierce attack upon the place, smashed every pane of glass in the shop and walked off with practically everything in it that could be carried off. Bolts of cloth were borne away openly and boldly under the eyes of the police, and any citizens who suggested that this was stealing were told to mind their own business.

Goods were thrust into the motor cars of people who had been attracted to the scene, and in one case where a protest was made the man who threw the goods in remarked: "You will find this better than any dollar day they could have."

Apparently with the idea that the name was a German one, some one in the crowd led the way to the store of Edward F. Gelger, the plumber, at 228 Fisgard street, where the windows and

ESSEX TOWNS WERE VISITED BY RAIDERS

German Air-Craft Dropped Bombs at Southend, Westcliffe-on-Sea and Leigh

London, May 10.—Two Zeppelin airships are reported to have dropped bombs on Westcliffe-on-Sea, near Southend, Essex, but no fatalities have been reported.

Warning of the approach of the hostile aircraft was sent to Southend at 2.55 o'clock this morning. Several machines took part in the raid. The residents are uncertain in their descriptions as to the weather was cloudy.

Bombs struck houses in various parts of the town. One man and his wife were burned badly in a fire started by an incendiary bomb. One resident tells of three bombs dropping near his home, none of which caused any damage.

It is reported that several shops were burned at Leigh, a town near Southend. Four Zeppelins are said to have dropped forty or fifty bombs there.

London, May 10.—Sixty bombs were dropped at Southend, but most of them fell on the beach or in other places where they exploded harmlessly. One bomb dropped near a ship on which were 1,500 German civilians who had been interned.

A British aeroplane went in pursuit and drove the aircraft out to sea.

A report was received from Romford that a Zeppelin had been seen in that neighborhood, apparently in difficulties.

London, May 10.—Incoming passengers on trains from Southend, a seaside resort in Essex, report an air raid there in which serious property damage was done and which caused some loss of life.

ITALY CALLS FOR REPLY BY MIDNIGHT

Wants Austria-Hungary to Send Her Answer to Demands at Once

AUSTRIANS AND GERMANS ARE LEAVING HURRIEDLY

Army of 600,000 Concentrated at Verona; More Infantry Classes Called Out

Rome, May 10.—Well-informed circles here report that Italy has sent an ultimatum to Austria-Hungary demanding a reply to her demands by midnight to-night.

Paris, May 10.—A dispatch from Bellinzona, Switzerland, to the Temps says:

"Austrians and Germans are fleeing from all parts of Italy. All trains in the direction of the frontier are packed with Teutonic passengers, including merchants and officials.

"Special trains have brought 3,000 Germans from Rome, Florence and Bologna, en route for Germany. Lugano also is filled with refugees.

"Notice has been given of the suspension from yesterday of the telephone service across the frontier and of the cancellation of a great many passenger trains.

"All German and Austrian journalists have left Italy."

Berne, May 10.—It is estimated that 70,000 Germans from Italy crossed the Swiss frontier on Saturday and Sunday. Four thousand arrived at Lugano alone.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 10.—An Italian army, 600,000 strong, fully equipped and ready for the field, has been concentrated at Verona.

Verona is a fortified Italian city situated at the base of the Tyrolean Alps, twenty-five miles from the frontier of Austria-Hungary.

London, May 10.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company sends the following:

"A private message from Berlin states that Italy yesterday called to the colors all infantry classes from 1886 and that many trains loaded with troops are proceeding to the frontier."

BEYOND DESCRIPTION, STATES BONAR LAW

Unionist Leader Refers to the Fiendish Act of Huns; What Will States Do?

London, May 10.—"Our enemies have reached a degree of infamy, culminating in the destruction of the Lusitania, which it is simply hopeless to attempt to describe," said Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, in a speech to-day. Mr. Bonar Law's remarks were delivered on the occasion of the presentation of a medal to Captain Bell, of the British steamship Thorold, which rammed a German submarine off Beachy Head in February.

"This is not an act of warfare," Mr. Bonar Law continued. "It is simply murder, most foul, most unnatural."

Saying that up to the present no "effective protest" had been made by any neutral country, he added: "What will happen now? The great proud nation—the United States—the neutral country most closely affected by this latest outrage. The simple fact is that citizens of that great country have been murdered barbarously. It is not for me to say what their action ought to be, but I feel sure that the United States will be guided not merely by the monetary interests of the country, but by feelings as to what is due to a great nation among other nations of the world.

"If the sinking of the Lusitania has the effect I believe it will have upon the feelings, not only of British soldiers, but of the whole nation, then we can thank the Germans for this latest instance of their barbarous methods," he concluded.

TURKEY LOST FIGHT OF HER TRANSPORTS

Paris, May 10.—According to news from Constantinople from a reliable source, says a dispatch from Athens to the Havas Agency, "six Turkish transports have been sunk by the Russians off the Bosphorus and two others have been sunk in the Sea of Marmora.

"The Turkish army has left Adrianople in the direction of Midia, a seaport on the Black sea."

WILSON MAY STATE POLICY TO-MORROW

Expected That He Will Outline His Views on Sinking of Lusitania

PRESIDENT WENT TO PHILADELPHIA TO-DAY

Washington, May 10.—Speculation as to what the United States will do as a protest against the torpedoing of the Lusitania with the loss of more than 1,000 American lives developed among officials and diplomats to-day the report that the president will express in the policy he pursues a denunciation of the act as execrable under the laws of nations and humanity.

The extent of his action, whether it will go beyond an emphatically-prepared note to an actual severance of diplomatic relations with Germany still is undetermined.

Late to-day the president went to Philadelphia to a gathering of 4,000 naturalized Americans arranged for by the bureau of naturalization of the department of commerce several weeks ago to launch a systematic course in the instruction of aliens in the rights and duties of American citizenship. It generally was expected that he would refer to the situation produced by the sinking of the Lusitania.

When the cabinet meets to-morrow the president probably will present his ideas of what the government's policy should be. It is now certain that the president does not intend to call congress in extra session. This disposes for the present at least, of the suggestion that Germany's action will cause the United States to be drawn into the European conflict. Considerations, such as the military impotence of the United States to affect the course of the struggle abroad and the possibility that the entry of the country into the war automatically would cause a reduction in supplies of ammunition to the allies because of greater need at home, have led many officials to believe that the disapproval of the United States can be voiced in a far more effective way without declaring war.

The withdrawal of Ambassador Gerard without actually severing diplomatic relations has been suggested in some official quarters as one way of indicating the feeling of the American government. Other officials intimate that a complete severance of diplomatic relations or complete repatriation and apology by Germany probably would conform to the wishes of the American public.

"Before any such step could be reached, however, certain preliminary steps would be taken.

As soon as Ambassador Gerard's report from the German government on the facts of the sinking of the Lusitania is received, it is expected that a note will be sent demanding full reparation, under the warning of the United States that Germany would be held to "strict accountability" for the loss of "American vessels or lives."

The case of the American steamship Gulf Light, torpedoed without warning, the attack by German airmen on the steamship Cushing and the drowning of Leon C. Thresher, an American on board the British steamer, Selga, probably will be grouped in the general representations.

On Germany's reply will depend the nature of the next step.

ENEMY DRIVEN BACK IN REGION OF MITAU

Retreated Hurriedly, Leaving Large Quantities of Supplies; Germans Hold Libau

Petrograd, May 10.—The following official communication was issued last night:

"To the southeast of Mitau our troops made a successful passage on the 7th. The enemy was forced to evacuate hurriedly strong fortified positions at Janiski leaving behind a great quantity of booty.

"Yesterday evening the enemy, taking the offensive and supported by their fleet along the littoral, occupied Libau after a fight with a small detachment of our territorial force.

"To the north of the Narva, near Wach, we successfully repulsed an irresolute German attack and threw back the enemy to his original position.

"On the Nida everything is quiet. In Western Galicia on the evening of the 7th the enemy continued his attacks with undiminished vigor but with less frequency. In the district which is the theatre of the enemy's principal attacks one of our regiments, during a Russian counter-attack, captured four enemy machine guns.

"In the Carpathians we repulsed with complete success hostile attacks in the region of Meso-Laborcz, as well as on the right bank of the Upper Lemnitsa."

MANY BODIES ARE FLOATING IN SEA

Message From Steamship St. Paul at Point Twenty Miles Off Kinsale

GERMANS GUILTY OF MURDER, SAYS JURY

St. Paul, by wireless to London, May 10.—Many floating bodies were pushed at 11 o'clock yesterday morning 20 miles off Kinsale.

Kinsale, Ireland, May 10.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the deaths attendant upon the loss of the Lusitania returned the following verdict to-day:

"The jury finds that this appalling crime was contrary to international law, and the conventions of all civilized nations. We, therefore, charge the officers of the submarine and the German emperor and the government of Germany, under whose orders they acted, with the crime of wilful and wholesale murder."

London, May 10.—Rt. Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, stated in the House of Commons to-day that Capt. Turner, of the Lusitania, had acknowledged receipt of messages from the admiralty giving him warning and directions for the course he was to take.

Liverpool, May 10.—Charles Booth, chairman of the Cunard Steamship company, to-day gave the following signed statement to the Associated Press:

"With reference to reported statements by Lusitania passengers, I shall not attempt to draw any conclusions until all the facts are known, and I therefore deprecate criticism which can be based only on assumption.

"In the meanwhile I can only state that I have complete confidence in Captain Turner's judgment."

London, May 10.—The Central News has received a dispatch from its correspondent at Genoa which says that a telegram received there from Munich declares that the German submarine U-33 was responsible for the sinking of the Lusitania.

Queenstown, May 10.—A reward of $5,000 was offered here to-day for the recovery of the body of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, one of the multi-millionaire's body all the bodies were found under the direction of Webb Ware, a London solicitor, who has chartered several boats and employed a number of divers.

More than 500 persons are believed to have been killed or injured badly by the explosion which followed the striking of the second torpedo. Information to this effect has been given to officials of the Cunard Line here.

Captain Turner was in conference for hours to-day with officials of the company—When asked if there had been an explosion, Captain Turner answered: "No. If the ammunition had exploded the ship would have been torn to pieces and the loss of life would have been much heavier than it was."

GAINS WERE MADE AT SEVERAL POINTS IN BELGIUM AND FRANCE

French Captured German Positions to East of St. George's; British Won Ground in Region of Fromelles; Progress Made to North of Arras; British Airmen Carried Out Successful Attacks.

Paris, May 10.—The French war office this afternoon gave out the following statement on the progress of hostilities:

"Three new German attacks to the north of Lombaardyde were repulsed yesterday.

"To the east of St. George's our marine fusiliers took possession of the Union farm, very strongly fortified by the Germans, and also of a position farther to the east. They made about thirty prisoners.

"Dunkirk was bombarded again this morning at about 6 o'clock, two shells being thrown.

"In the region to the north of Arras we have maintained all the important gains reported in the communication of yesterday evening.

"Along the rest of the front, particularly in the Argonne and in Alsace, at Sillakerwassen, there was a continuation of the artillery fighting."

SOLDIER SHOT HIMSELF AT VANCOUVER YESTERDAY

Vancouver, May 10.—Private Thomas Hunter, of the machine gun section of the 29th battalion, committed suicide at 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by discharging a bullet from his rifle into his head. Private troubles are said to have been the cause. The bullet was not instantly effective, but the heat that the same officer could do for the soldier could not save his life.
Private Hunter was a native of Scotland and was about 23 years old. He had been in Vancouver for some years and enlisted here. Before enlisting he was a driver for the P. Burns company. He was unmarried.
A military inquiry board sat upon the case this morning.

CREW OF SUBMARINE OFFERED NO HELP

Stood on Deck of Undersea Craft and Looked on, Says Minister

London, May 10.—The statement that three torpedoes were fired at the Lusitania was made to the Fishguard correspondent of the Daily News on the authority of the Rev. Mr. Guvier, of the Church of England's Canada railway mission, who said that the third found its mark while the last boat was being lowered.
"When the Lusitania sank," Mr. Guvier said, "a submarine rose to the surface and came to within 300 yards of the scene. The members of the crew stood stolidly on the deck and surveyed their handiwork. I could distinguish the German flag, but it was impossible to see the number of the submarine, which disappeared after a few minutes."

SEVERAL REFORMS UNDER CONSIDERATION

Ottawa, May 10.—Reforms in the methods and the conditions of general servitude in Canada are under consideration by Hon. C. J. Doherty, minister of justice. The reforms which it is proposed to inaugurate include the establishment of reformatories for young prisoners and first offenders, a system of classification based on the conduct of prisoners, the abolition of the stone-pile and the substitution of outside labor as far as possible, the abolition of close cropping of the hair of all convicts, the abolition of confinement in cells and dungeons, and the establishment of separate hospitals for the criminal insane. It further is proposed to amend the criminal code to permit of indeterminate sentences.

MAN KILLED WHILE SITTING ON TRACK

Vancouver, May 10.—Struck by a Lulu Island tram, a man believed to be G. H. Webster, of 757 Richmond street, was killed almost instantly a few minutes after midnight. Motorman J. Wenborn is being held by the city police pending receipt of word as to the intentions of the Point Grey police, in whose district the accident occurred.
According to Motorman Wenborn the accident took place just after the tram had rounded a corner. The man was sitting on the rail about fifty yards ahead when the motorman saw him, and although he sounded his whistle the man did not move. The motorman threw on the emergency brakes but did not succeed in stopping the car in time.
The body was conveyed to an undertaking parlor. The clue to the dead man's identity was furnished by papers and other belongings found in his pockets. He was about 35 years of age.

TRENCH RECAPTURED BY BRITISH FORCES

London, May 10.—The following official communication was issued by the British war office on Saturday night: "Yesterday fighting continued southeast of Ypres without any material change in the situation. We recaptured a trench that we had lost the day before."

"This morning the enemy started a violent attack on our trenches on the front between the Ypres-Poelcapelle and the Ypres-Memlin roads. The attack was preceded by a heavy bombardment. The fighting continues and counter-attacks are in progress.
"On the remainder of our front there has been no fighting."

LATEST LIST GIVES FIFTY AS KILLED

IT WAS A DEED OF WHOLESALE MURDER

San Francisco Examiner Deals With Sinking of Great Trans-Atlantic Liner

San Francisco, May 10.—Regarding the sinking of the Lusitania, the Examiner says:

"The sinking of the Lusitania with her heavy freightage of peaceful travelers, including hundreds of women and children, was not an act of war; it was a deed of wholesale murder."

"In considering this frightful episode of a war waged with unparalleled ruthlessness and barbarity, it is idle to take into account the technicalities and the niceties of international law. Consideration for the laws of war vanishes in the face of so great a catastrophe, which violates the greater law of common humanity."

"Both parties to the struggle which now is racking Europe have held themselves superior to that code of laws and customs by which civilization has tried to remove from war something of its ruthlessness, to alleviate somewhat the hardships and suffering it imposes upon non-combatants."

"The war that began with a sneering dismissal of a treaty as a 'scrap of paper' has long before its end consigned to the same scrapheap every usage, custom or formal agreement which makes for the protection of neutrals."

Denver, Col., May 10.—The Rocky Mountain News says: "To-day humanity is aghast that such a thing as the destruction of the Lusitania could be possible in this twentieth century. Mankind will hang its head in shame. This was a crime not only against those sent to the bottom, but against all that man has struggled for since he emerged from paganism."

The Post says: "It is infinitely better for a nation to perish from the face of the earth than to lose its honor, its manhood, or self-respect. Peace at any price or craven cowardice are unfailing signs of national or individual decadence."

"No nation that refuses to protect either its citizens or its honor can long endure. Let us hope that the great United States will not hesitate to demand an immediate and proper reparation for the barbarous and inconceivable destruction of innocent American men, women and children."

New Orleans, La., May 10.—The American says: "Action must be taken by the United States, but not hastily. This situation which has arisen calls for action, but not with haste, since the United States is face to face with a grave crisis."

The Times-Picayune says: "What is Washington going to do about it? Slaughter of American citizens in contravention of all laws of warfare has placed the United States in a position that is intolerable."

DECLARES BERNSTORFF SHOULD BE EXECUTED

Knew of Huns' Plan to Murder Non-Combatants, Says London Express

London, May 10.—The Daily Express says editorially: "Count von Bernstorff was an accessory before the fact to the murder of American citizens who went to their death when the Lusitania was torpedoed. It is not for us to say what action the United States government should take in the face of this blatant outrage to civilization. It may be that in the face of the rage and indignation which are sure to be aroused from one end of the union to the other, President Wilson still may contrive to remain neutral and still may be content to write protests and demand explanations."

"The United States knows her own business best, but this we may be permitted to say: If the president were to order the arrest of the German ambassador and put him on trial before any American jury for murder, and if Anglo-Saxon justice sent this worthy servant of his blasphemous master to the electric chair, a most splendid blow would be struck for humanity and the world would be spared a repetition of these cold-blooded horrors which are making living a nightmare."

BRINGS CONFLICT TO THEIR OWN DOORS

Americans' Sense of Aloofness Destroyed by Sinking of Lusitania, Says Gen. Otis

Los Angeles, Cal., May 10.—Dealing editorially in the Times with the sinking of the Lusitania, General Harrison Gray Otis writes:

"The sinking of the great British liner Lusitania and the destruction of perhaps 1,000 human lives, many of them Americans, by a German submarine, brings the ghastly European conflict, the world's frightful exhibition of savagery, right to our own doors and destroys the comfortable sense of aloofness which Americans generally had felt."

"It is true that the torpedoes were directed as an act of war against a enemy ship; it is true that those who took passage on the Lusitania were warned of their danger; it is true that the ship and her passengers deliberately entered a war zone by Germany; it is probably true that the ship's cargo contained contraband of war—that she had ammunition for the allies on board—but all these facts do not mitigate the horror of taking so many innocent American lives."

"Can this act be excused away? Can any apologies or indemnities atone for it? What will be the temper of the American people in the cool of the next day? We wait and see."

St. Louis, Mo., May 10.—The Globe-Democrat editorially says: "Can it be said that Germany or any other nation is justified in destroying the lives of Americans, men, women and children, who are taking no part in the war, who are peaceful passengers upon an unarmed ship? It is a grave question, and its gravity is increased by the fact that it is the culmination of a series of attacks upon American ships, less vital in a legal sense, than the affair of the Lusitania, but this is no time and no occasion for singling out."

"Profoundly as the people of this country are impressed by the horror of this disaster, we realize that the Lusitania is not another Maine—that the attack was not directed primarily against the United States but against Britain—and that our government should be depended upon to exact such reparation as we may have the right to demand. The pity of it is that no reparation will restore the lives so ruthlessly, and, it seems to us, so needlessly destroyed."

The Republic says: "For the moment there is no law of nations. Brute force rules. Let us not despair. The edifice of international law will be resurrected. The more inexcusable the outrages of the hour, the surer the reaction and the securer the feet of those who will feel the ways of peace in centuries yet unborn."
TORONTO OFFICERS WHO WERE CAPTURED
Toronto, May 10.—The reassuring news reached Toronto yesterday that Major J. E. R. Osborne, of the 48th Highlanders, who had been reported previously as killed, is well but a prisoner in the hands of the Germans. The message was sent by Major Osborne's wife, who is in England, and with the name of Major Osborne given those of Capt. C. W. Alexander, Lieut. C. V. Fessenden, Lieut. F. V. Jones and Lieut. P. J. Smith, all of the 48th Highlanders, and all of whom are reported to be well, though prisoners.

LET US HAVE ORDER.

Duty and its regard for the reputation and safety of the city demand that the Times appeal for a reversion to the condition of law and order which always has been one of the conspicuous features of the place. The demonstration which arose from the universal spirit of resentment over the sinking of the Lusitania has evolved into a new and dangerous tendency, developing a situation which will terminate in anarchy unless our citizens, in earnest co-operation with the authorities, take steps to prevent it. It is unnecessary for us to point to the seriousness of the matter. History is full of illuminating instances, and we are confident that once there is a proper realization of the damage a continuation of lawlessness will inflict upon the welfare of the city, socially and economically, for years to come, there will be an immediate end to it.

Citizens should refrain from congesting the streets, for this not only makes it difficult for the authorities to cope with the situation, but produces restlessness and encourages turbulence. Nor should children be permitted to run at large, gaining unhealthy impressions from isolated acts of violence which might do them irreparable harm. It should not be forgotten that this is a British country, which takes pride in its respect for the majesty of the law. No matter what the provocation might be to do differently, we should emulate the other communities throughout the empire in maintaining that attitude. An impression abroad that we tolerate violence and looting would be fatal to our future.

We are engaged in a war which will end in victory for the allies, largely because they are keeping themselves in hand. All our resources must be devoted to that common patriotic purpose. It is the splendid composure and silent determination of the British people which to-day most strikingly impresses the neutral world. They know that their time will come and that it will come the sooner if they refrain from turbulent distractions at home. For the moment they have no other object than to put an end to Prussianism. That is why violent manifestations of wrath are very rare in the British Isles. The same is true of the people of France and Russia, whose provocation is even greater.

It should not be necessary to remind the authorities that they are charged with the responsibility for the maintenance of law and order in Victoria. They are the custodians of the public safety and the guardians of this beautiful city's welfare. The citizens look to them to take such steps as will restore law and order without delay.

THE WAR'S PROGRESS.

The destruction of the Lusitania has attracted attention from the significance of certain events that have been transpiring on the battle front in northern France and Belgium during the last few days. Both the British and French on the front extending from La Bassée to Arras have been engaged in an offensive movement which has brought considerable success. The British have made some progress near Fromelles, while the French, advancing on a line of more than four miles, have pushed materially towards Lens, occupying one village and part of another and gaining ground covering two and a half miles. In this achievement they captured two thousand prisoners and six cannon. Although the French report describes the operation with characteristic modesty and brevity, it is evident that a battle of large dimensions took place. If the French are able to maintain their newly-captured line they will have made Arras secure against a formidable German thrust. The British bulletin reports that the German offensive east of Ypres has been repulsed with heavy losses, and Sir John French declares that the British line is firmly established. Further north, and south of Newport, French marine fusiliers took possession of the Union farm, a bone of savage contention for months. Apparently the allies are on the offensive at the northern end of their line; on the defensive at the Ypres salient and again on the offensive from La Bassée south to Arras. A formidable German attack under cover of poisonous gases and burning liquid at Bagatelle, in the Argonne, was defeated and Paris reports Hunnish losses to have been very heavy.

Little connected news comes from the eastern front, where the Russians in Western Galicia sustained a serious set-back. This seems to have caused the retreat of the Slav forces who were in Hungary southwest of Dukla to the Lupkow pass, but it is altogether unlikely that the Austro-German offensive can be maintained. These massed concentrated onslaughts, while usually successful in the initial stages, are invariably checked before many days pass. In spite of the ground gained by them they are fatal to a successful termination of such a war as this because of the losses they involve. This struggle will be won by the side which has the greatest number of men available for the decisive blow. Russia has inexhaustible human resources and before long will be back in her old position in greater force than ever.

Nothing official has come from the Dardanelles for several days, but unofficially it is stated that the Turkish forts on the Asiatic side of the narrows as far as Nagara, the eastern tip, have been silenced. We venture to predict that the next official bulletin will record the silencing and occupation of the Kilid Bahr, which guards the western entrance. Meanwhile indications point to a new factor in this struggle as well as in the main theatre of conflict within the next week. This is Italy, whose demands upon Austria have been rejected and who, it is reported, has dispatched an ultimatum to expire at midnight. This report is likely premature, as Italy must denounce the Triple Alliance before declaring war. Nevertheless her intervention is inevitable, and it is a foregone conclusion that this will be followed by like action on the part of Roumania and Greece and finally Bulgaria.

U. S. AND REPARATION.

Newspapers of all shades of thought in the United States, including even those friendly to the German cause, are demanding that Washington take such action as will exact reparation for the loss of American lives in the sinking of the Lusitania. The excuses given by the German official press that the vessel carried contraband and that the American people were warned by advertisement over the signature of the German embassy, are waved aside as adding insult to injury. Washington last February pointed out to Berlin that whatever justification might be urged for the sinking of a vessel carrying contraband, there was absolutely none for the destruction of human life in pursuance of such a course. As for the "warning" advertised in the New York papers by the German embassy, it is regarded by the influential American newspapers as another act of intolerable insolence to which the country has been subjected at the hands of the impertinent blackguard, Von Bernstorff. The representative of Germany in the United States has contracted the habit of ignoring the existence of the government. Instead of confining his activities to diplomatic channels which lead to the White House he has gone over the head of the executive of the nation and appealed directly to the people.

What reparation can the United States exact from Germany for the loss of American lives? It almost is idle to discuss it. We think we can say that if those murdered neutrals could speak they would implore their country in the name of civilization and humanity to waste no time in protests and bootless denunciations, but to devote all its resources to the extermination of the vile institution responsible for these devilish crimes. That would be the only effective reparation—the ending of Prussianism and Kruppism, the eradication of that unholy cult of which Potsdam is the centre. If the United States still is the same country that sacrificed a million lives to liberate the slaves it will devote its immense resources to this end. This does not mean that it should send an army to France or Belgium, for it would take a long time to prepare for active service a force that would be as effective aid to the allies. It could help the allies much more effectively by supplying them with ammunition and other material in redoubled volume and by taking over the protection of the high seas, enabling Great Britain and France to concentrate all their naval resources in European waters. There is little doubt that Germany would expect to gain more that she would lose through armed intervention by the republic, as she doubtless anticipates that this would involve a stoppage of supplies for the allies. Washington could blast that expectation by confining its operations to naval operations, the seizure of the enormous German shipping interned in the republic, the acceleration of the manufacture of war supplies for the allies on the east, west and south fronts and by placing at their disposal the gigantic financial resources of the country.

AMERICANS IMPATIENT.

American newspapers, with the exception of those printed in the German language, are by no means soft-spoken in their condemnation of the sinking of the Lusitania. They frankly and forcibly tell the Kaiser and the German nation what they think of their conduct. In this there is little doubt that they express public opinion. Whether the president will act in consonance with public opinion thus expressed is another matter. More than once Mr. Wilson has given evidence of his determination not to be stampeded. Some time ago he issued the following warning to the German government, which, as will be observed, has no reference to the loss of American lives through the sinking of ships flying other colors than those of the United States:

"If the commanders of German vessels of war should act upon the presumption that the flag of the United States was not being used in good faith and should destroy on the high seas an American vessel or the lives of American citizens, it would be difficult for the government of the United States to view the act in other light than as an indefensible violation of neutral rights which it would be very hard indeed to reconcile with the friendly relations now so happily existing between the two governments. If such a deplorable situation should arise the imperial German government can readily appreciate that the government of the United States would be constrained to hold the imperial government to a strict accountability for such acts of their naval authorities and take any steps it might be necessary to take to safeguard American lives and property and to secure to American citizens the full enjoyment of their acknowledged rights on the high seas."

Since the issuance of that notification an American ship has been sunk by a German submarine and American lives have been lost. The president is considering what ought to be done in the premises. The Boston Transcript says:

"These are brave words, but are they to be followed up by action? Twice recently Germany has disregarded them. Does Germany rely upon the meekness of the United States for tacit license to follow a course which is really hostile to the United States, and which may be disavowed as a series of accidents should we show more spirit? It looks so, and in view of the attacks on American steamers and the issuance of German warnings in the United States to Americans not to take passage on liners flying belligerent flags, it is time and more than time that our protests to Germany should in manner correspond to matter."

There seems to be an impression around that Victoria was but one of a large number of cities in Canada and elsewhere where riots broke out following the sinking of the Lusitania. This is a mistake. There were no outbreaks in any other part of Canada, and as for the rest of the Empire, Liverpool is the only place in which any trouble occurred and this was suppressed with true British thoroughness and decision. Nor have there been any serious disturbances in the American cities.

It may be necessary to point out that the city is liable for damages done to the property of citizens through riots. This means that the tax collector will enforce payment of the amount by the ratepayers. The bigger the riot the bigger the bill. It soon mounts up. An extra mill or two added to the taxation rate here means the auctioneer's hammer in some instances and more unemployment. Rioting is an exhilarating exercise while it lasts, but the aftermath always is a serious matter.

The mobs which controlled the city on Saturday and Sunday nights, destroying and looting, exemplified the true Prussian, not the real British, spirit. It is not the British way to deal harshly even with an enemy when he is helpless. Whatever excuse there may have been for an ill-considered act in a moment of exasperation when the news of the heinous crime against the passengers on the Lusitania was received, there was none whatever for later calculated actions.

Ten thousand Germans already have left Italy bound for the fatherland. Soon there will not be a country in the world where anyone bearing a German name will be honored. Probably the Kaiser thinks that is something to be proud of. Hundreds of thousands of Germans, restless and discontented, view the thing differently after reason resumes her throne.

A news item says two little children clasped in each other's arms were taken out of the water after the Lusitania went down, battered by torpedoes. A sight to rend the heart of anyone but a Hun, surely. Yet we are told Berlin rejoiced at this evidence of Germany's naval prowess.

Here is one fact for staid citizens and those responsible for the maintenance of law and order to ponder over: After the dance is over the taxpayers will have to drop their coin in the hat for the piper.

MANY BODIES ARE FLOATING IN SEA (Continued from page 1) nounced the receipt of the following telegram from Liverpool: "Up to midnight, Queenstown advices give the total number of survivors as 754, including 463 passengers and 302 of the crew. "One hundred and forty-four bodies have been recovered, of which eighty-seven have been identified. Identified bodies include sixty-five passengers and twenty-two of the crew. "Number of persons injured, thirty passengers and seventeen of the crew."

London, May 10.—Lord Mersey will conduct the inquiry which is to be held as a result of the sinking of the liner Lusitania.

Queenstown, May 10.—Affidavits made by Miss Jessie Taft Smith, of Braceville, Ohio; Dr. Howard L. Fisher, Major F. Warren Pearl and Robert Rankin, of New York, are the only permanent records of the Lusitania disaster obtained by the United States consulate here. All are brief and none reflects seriously upon the behavior of the Lusitania's crew except that some witnesses call the launching of the lifeboats a fiasco. The affidavits of Miss Smith and Mr. Rankin were called yesterday to Secretary Bryan, while those of Major Pearl and Dr. Fisher were sent to Ambassador Page at London.

Beginning at noon yesterday, on Consul Frost's orders, the bodies of the identified Americans were covered with the Stars and Stripes and removed from scattered morgues and placed side by side in the Cunard line offices on the waterfront. As they were carried through the streets by British sailors the crowds uncovered.

Cheap brown coffins contained the bodies of Charles Frohman, Isaac F. Trumbull, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Mrs. Henry D. Macdonna, of New York; Chas. H. Stevens, of Atlantic City; Dr. F. S. Pearson, of New York; D. Walker, of New York; Dr. Pearson's secretary, Mrs. McBride; Hugh Compton, 17 years old; C. T. Brodick, of Boston; Herbert Ellis, of New York; and Mrs. Spillman, of Detroit.

Mr. Frohman's secretary arrived yesterday to take charge of his late employer's body. One of the survivors identified the body of Mrs. R. D. Shymer, of New York, American widow of a British nobleman, who subsequently married an American and had been living in New York. She was on her way to London and her name probably will be added to the list of American dead. Her body will be sent back to the United States, as well as those of the others.

A whole company of British soldiers yesterday completed the digging of three huge graves, each thirty by twenty feet, in which the one hundred and forty odd unidentified bodies were buried to-day. The moving of the bodies up the hill to the cemetery began at 3.30 a. m., and continued until 1.30 p. m. Then as the last ten or a dozen moved to the cemetery, the funeral procession formed and marched to the graves. Mounted police, soldiers and civilians participated. There was a joint service, clergymen of all creeds joining in saying prayers.

Many children and little babies still lie in the morgues like so many dolls. The townspeople covered them with flowers yesterday. Some on crutches, many limping and nearly blind, the survivors left their hotels in silent groups throughout yesterday afternoon. There were some Americans and many Canadians and British. The presence of so many children on the Lusitania was due to the fact that Canadian women were going to England to join their relatives while their husbands were at the front.

Not a single body was brought in yesterday from the spot where the Lusitania disappeared, but some bodies may be found yet if a storm does not scatter them. There will not be so great a number picked up, however, as was the case in the North Atlantic after the Titanic disaster, for

Carelessness in this matter may lead to loss of life. Mr. H. B. SIMON LEISER IS CANADIAN CITIZEN

Will Claim $35,000 Damages From Dominion Government for Riots

IMPORTANT NAMES ON DIRECTORATE OF FIRM

Men Threatened to Throw Manager of Business From Upper Windows

As a result of rioting on Saturday night the firm of Simon Leiser & Co., Ltd., intend demanding damages of from $25,000 to $40,000 from the Dominion government. This statement was made this morning by Simon Leiser, president of the company, and the damage was estimated by Herbert Macklin, manager, and C. F. Gardner, secretary. The composition of the directorate of Simon Leiser & Co. is as follows: Simon Leiser, born in Prussia and naturalized as a Canadian citizen at the county court of Victoria, September 1, 1892, president; Hon. T. W. Paterson, former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia; J. H. Lawson; R. P. Rithet, of R. P. Rithet & Co. J. A. Sayward, owner of the Sayward block, Douglas street; D. R. Ker, of Brackman, Ker & Co.; and James Forman, real estate agent. Hon. James Dunsmuir is one of the stockholders. All the stockholders in the company are British or Canadian born, except Mr. Leiser.

The most authentic account of the raid made on the premises was given this morning by Herbert Macklin, the manager, who was in the building when the crowd entered the premises, and who mixed with them during the raid. Mr. Macklin was in the private office behind the general office when the storm broke. He had heard there was to be a raid on the premises, and went down to the warehouse. When the men arrived Mr. Macklin called Mr. Leiser on the telephone, told him what had occurred, and held the receiver of the telephone open so that Mr. Leiser at his residence could hear what was taking place. Mr. Macklin then went out and mixed with the crowd. His description of what took place is as follows: "Soldiers broke open the doors and rushed into the building. When I got into the tobacco room, where we had about $20,000 worth of stock, I saw the soldiers throwing boxes of plug tobacco to men who carried it away. They broke the windows, and in doing so some of them were cut." Mr. Macklin pointed to some blood-stained tobacco tins as evidence of this, and said that yesterday morning many of the tins of tobacco were stuck together by the gashed blood. In the second tobacco room where the bars on the window were too close to allow the boxes to be thrown out the bars were wrenched off to make the looting easier. In the rear room of the ground floor Mr. Macklin pointed to tomato sauce bottles all cracked or broken. "There," he said, "is where they picked up bottles and hurled them at piles of other bottles to smash them." On the first floor I found the rioters throwing goods out of the window to the sidewalk. They threw out a twelve hundred pound scale, two typewriters, dozens of cases of honey, jam and vinegar to the crowd below. Twenty-five boxes of shelled almonds which we had standing in front of the window were thrown on the crowd. "I saved this case of coffee," said Mr. Macklin, "and in doing so one of the soldiers threatened to throw me out of the window, calling me names. He called to his comrades when I protested, and asked them to assist him in throwing me to the sidewalk. I struck him under the chin and knocked him down and made my escape. I noticed to my surprise this morning that the coffee is still here. When they eventually got through, the place was indescribable. Our goods were all over the place. Yesterday morning the main building down stairs, and we shovelled away the debris to get inside. We have reached something approaching order now and as far as we can see from our depleted stock we have lost about $35,000 of goods destroyed and carried away by the looters." Mr. Leiser desired to make a statement for the purpose of putting his position before the public. "For over forty years I have been in British Columbia. I built the overland route from Vancouver to Seattle and here forty years ago. I operated four stores in the Cassiar district. It is thirty-five years since I came to Victoria, and I have done more for this city than five hundred men in it. We employ over one hundred people, all British or Canadians, in our stores on Vancouver Island, and all the capital invested in

BISHOP OF KOOTENAY SPEAKS AT CATHEDRAL

Urges Responsibility of Church in Preaching Lasting Peace

At Christ Church cathedral both yesterday morning and evening, Rt. Rev. Dr. Doull, bishop of Kootenay, preached. In the morning his text was from St. Luke 24, vs. 36 and 50: "And as they thus spake Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, peace be unto you, etc."

Peace was the thought uppermost in the hearts of all, said the bishop. Now that the whole civilized world was engaged in this life and death struggle they were beginning to realize as never before what a blessing they had in the days of peace. These were dreadful days. Disaster after disaster was reminding us of the awful reality of war. War itself was disaster enough, but after that came the disaster of the Lusitania, which sent women and children as well as men to death. The profoundest sympathy moved in all hearts for those who were bereaved through this last infamy.

The Christian church had a very solemn and important duty to perform at the present time. She must realize her responsibility. If she failed to teach the world that lesson which she alone could teach, then she would stand condemned in the fact of God and man. She must not only bring home the knowledge of why peace had been lost, but must bring the knowledge of how peace could be restored. Peace was a gift which came from Christ, the Prince of Peace. When He came into the world it was of peace that the angels sang; it was of peace that Jesus spoke to His disciples at the last supper; peace He bestowed on His followers on the resurrection morning, and on the day of His ascension it was His peace He left with the disciples. If the world to-day had lost peace it was because it had never really accepted Christ. The world had built up its civilization on a foundation of sand which had collapsed. To talk of "Christian nations in deadly warfare" was wrong. There were no Christian nations. There might be godly men and women, Christian people. But there were no Christian nations. Not a single nation to-day yielded entire homage to Christ.

"Read Sir John Jellicoe's appeal to the nation to stop the drunkenness which is responsible for a fatal condition in the navy," continued the bishop. "The men who go ashore with a few days' pay are too often useless, and the navy cannot get enough workmen to carry out the necessary repairs in urgent times like these. We have lost peace because we have repudiated Christ. The nation has been educated on ethical principles which are opposed to Christ principles."

"The nations are beginning now to talk of peace. Various writers advocate devices and schemes for placing peace on a permanent foundation. But the church should warn the world that the peace cannot be secured without Christ. For centuries the church has preached peace but the people have paid no heed."

As Canadians, the speaker continued, all were proud of the Dominion and anxious to see her grow up into a great nation, with peace founded on a sure and lasting rock. To-day it was realized that the greatness of Canada did not exist in those things formerly considered her greatest assets: broad wheatfields, great railway systems, vast commercial enterprises, mines, fisheries. To-day it was realized that the greatness of the nation was to be found in the character of the men and women who were its citizens, in the strength of purpose in the nation's sons and daughters who were proving themselves capable of making those great sacrifices demanded by the present hour. The material aspect which was so alarming before the war had, fortunately, not grown down into the heart of the Empire. It had been arrested.

Now was the opportunity for church. People were willing to listen to-day if they had never been willing to listen before. If the church could only be well represented in every parish between the Atlantic and the Pacific a great work might be done. But here and there the tragedy. At the very moment when people were willing to listen to the church she found herself seriously crippled by lack of funds. In the prairie provinces and in British Columbia this was chiefly felt. In his diocese of Kootenay a large number of the most loyal supporters had gone to the front, which meant that their support was withdrawn from the church. The English Society which had hitherto helped so liberally with funds had been forced to reduce this year about 50 per cent. In the diocese of Kootenay there were about seven vacant parishes that could not be filled owing to lack of funds. The same condition might be found in any western diocese, and to a certain extent in the eastern dioceses also.

The bishop concluded: The world is witnessing the most awful sacrifice of all time. What a dreadful thing it will be if that sacrifice is made in vain! God grant that the Christian church may not fail to render that service of enabling Canada to become a truly great nation in the only way in which she can be truly great: loyalty and service to Christ and His teachings."

MANY STRANGE WORDS

Interesting Competition Organized by B. C. E. R. Will Bring Forth Many Words Seldom Used.

The interesting competition which the British Columbia Electric company has originated in connection with the tango tickets should unearth some little known and interesting words. There are hundreds of words very seldom used which may be enumerated in the list.

There are more words in the dictionary that are unused than are used generally. Under the letter O there is "Ooaa." This is a bird, or to be exact, melphagid bird of Kanaal. Another unusual one is "Oncin," being a hooked weapon representing the martel-de-fer.

Other examples of what may be found on a brief examination and should be included in the lists are, under the letter N, the word Natia, meaning a carnivorous naticoid sea-animal; under the letter C there is coool, a large heron; under K there is Kana, meaning Japanese writing, and Ketone, one of a class of organic compounds in which the group carbonyl (CO) unites two alcoholic radicals.

About half-way through the pages devoted to the letter G there is the word goat. This should be included in all contest lists. Its meaning given in the dictionary is, "a caprine hollow-horned ruminant."

Under T, is tain, which has to do with the manufacture of tinplate, and there is also Tanit, the name of the virgin queen of the moon. Also there is titanate, salt of titanlic acid.

All these and the several hundred others applicable to the contest can be found in the dictionary by those who are not afraid of losing their caprine hollow-horned ruminants in the progress of their search.

A servant girl determined to take a ticket in a lottery. She applied for and obtained a ticket numbered 22, and, what was of more importance, gained the big prize. When her master inquired what had induced her to choose the winning number, the girl replied that for three consecutive nights she had dreamed of the figure 7, and as three sevens made 21, she had therefore taken that ticket!

During a geography lesson, the master remarked: "In front of you is the north, directly behind you the south, on your right hand the east, and on your left hand the west." Seeing a lack of attention on the part of one boy, he asked, "What is on your left hand, Bobby?" "If you please, sir," he replied, "it's some tar, and it won't come off."

FIELD AMBULANCE SAILS FOR ENGLAND

Corps Which Left Here Now Probably in England; Appointments Gazetted

The Field Ambulance Corps which left here a fortnight ago sailed from Halifax on May 1 by S. S. Hesperian. At Ottawa they were joined by 72 nurses for overseas service, and nine more joined them at Point Lewis, Que. Pte. Alcock, who was suffering with appendicitis, had to be removed to the hospital at Montreal.

A. A. and P. J. Crow, sons of Wm. Crow, of this city, who is captain with the Victoria Volunteer Corps, have joined the C. M. R. and will probably leave with that regiment when it goes to Sevel.

Militia general orders gazetted in the current issue of the Canada Gazette contain the following orders of local interest:

Stanley Foulds, to be a provisional lieutenant (super-numerary) in the 30th Regiment, B. C. Horse.

Capt. C. A. Forsythe, 50th Regiment, to be major, vice Major and Brevet Lieut.-Col. G. B. Hughes, seconded.

Ernest Singleton (Wise), to be provisional lieutenant (super-numerary) in the 5th British Columbia Regiment, C. G. A.

Gentleman Cadet Frederick Despard Pemberton is granted his discharge from the Royal Military college on appointment to a commission in the active militia.

Confirmation of rank is announced in the cases of Lieut. R. C. Hoyie and Super-numerary Lieut. John Hart, J. B. Clearhar and E. G. P. Barker, 5th Regiment, C. G. A.; Super-numerary Lieut. A. E. C. Lane, 50th Regiment, Gordon Highlanders of Canada.

The following officers are gazetted to the 10th East Kootenay Regiment, on organization of the corps:

To be provisional captains: Reginald Danbury Davies, Noel Macintyre Foulkes, Frank Richardson.

To be lieutenants: Victor Franklin Locke, Henry Greenhalgh Lockwood.

To be provisional lieutenants: Francis James Eastmond Hankey, Irving Cameron Wedd, Henry Buell Hicks, John Andrew Forin, Charles Joseph Archer, Charles Grest Bennett.

To be provisional lieutenants (super-numerary): William Garland Foster, Horace Venus, George Cuthbert Henry Coleman, Eric Hugh Wilkinson.

To be quartermaster with the honorary rank of lieutenant: John Stanhope Gladwin.

To be chaplain, with the honorary rank of captain: Reverend David Edward Dicey Robertson.

SAANICH UNEMPLOYED WILL HOLD MEETING

Situation is Beyond Municipal Authorities Owing to Various Causes

Next to the city Saanich feels the unemployment situation most acutely, the question there being practically that of making provision for the surplus population of the city that overflowed into the district in the busier years, and from whose earnings Victoria citizens profited. A meeting is to be held at Marshalls hall on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock on the subject.

For months past unemployed meetings have been held in wards two and seven, and less frequently in Ward four. The people have been somewhat buoyed up with the hope of the water-works and paving contracts starting, but while contracts have been let in the former case, the recent suit delayed action in the paving question. Probably to-morrow at the council meeting formal authority will be given for the invitation of tenders for the bonds under the latter by-law.

The relief work which was carried out at a reduced wage some time ago by the council, and which caused much controversy, will have to be paid for out of the taxes when they come in in the fall. It is impossible to do any work except by means of borrowed money, and naturally at this time borrowing money for public works is difficult. Therefore the council is in a quandary in meeting the situation, and would be only too glad to have any suggestions made as to the way in which relief can be afforded.

The government has not given much assistance to the situation as yet. A certain number of men have been given employment at Little Saanich mountain, and some Saanich residents have been employed on the Indian reserve work, but the number engaged has been totally inadequate to the number of unemployed. There is no private work opening for the employment of men, and each day makes the conditions worse.

There was to have been a meeting of the unemployed committee at the Crystal theatre last evening, to be addressed by Rev. William Stevenson, but in view of the disturbed state of the town, the gathering was not held.

Sympathiser slacker to wounded Tommy—"Yes, old man, the sudden shock must have been absolutely terrible. I know the sort of thing. Only last night a careless blighter gave me a beastly knock on the nose with his billiard cue. Horrid shock. I can sympathize with you."—Funch.

"Your daughter is improving," said the music teacher, "but somehow when she gets to the scales I have to watch her pretty closely." "She's just like her father," said the mother; "you know, he made his money in the retail grocery business."

SOLDIER OR NAVY?

A private in a London regiment writes:

I have just spent three days and nights in the trenches, and the experience has shattered every illusion about war. This siege warfare is a terribly dreary business, there is no romance in it, and often for long stretches you can scarcely realize that you are "fighting." You stand on the grimy platform of your dug-out and absent-mindedly stare at the landscape of mud and wire, and then the ping of the sniper's bullet breaks into your thoughts and reminds you that after all there is an enemy a few hundred yards away and that you must keep down behind the breastworks.

Our half of the battalion set out for the trenches on Thursday night to relieve the other half. I expected to be shivering with funk. As it happened, my pack was intolerably heavy. Besides the usual contents and 150 rounds of ammunition, I had several tins of food, some wood, and an extra rifle (carried for a man who was tugging a sack of coal to the trenches). We had to grope a way in the dark through mud, jagged logs, loose green fields, and great dykes of this, horribly slippery planks. If you fall into one of these dykes you become like one of the tormented souls in Dante's Inferno. In these circumstances I could only think of one thing I desired was to reach the trench and take it off. When that blessed moment came I found myself not in a trench but in the usual sense of the word, but behind high revetments, built with bags of sand and earth. The old trenches had become canals and had to be replaced by these breastworks. It is behind these sandbags, and in the dug-outs, tiny chambers built in the line at intervals of a few yards, that we spend our days. At night we go as patrols into the field between the barbed wire in front of our breast-works and the green ridges, or we wallow in mud at the back and fill more sandbags. Every available moment is spent in strengthening our position. After three days you feel that you are not a soldier at all—that you are a navy, or perhaps you realize that it is the business of a soldier in this kind of warfare to use a pick and shovel about ten times as much as he uses his rifle and bayonet, certainly you look like a navy—there is nothing like mud for disfiguring puttees and trousers as yellow corduroys.

The social life of dug-outs in a way is charming—men are so willing to help you—but as we are so crowded we are bound to get on each other's nerves a bit. Ghastly incidents happen sometimes. When anyone bumps into you and knocks your bread into the mud, it does not matter—bread can be scraped—but if your butter or jam falls in there is not to be imagined.

GRINDLE GOES TO TACOMA TIGERS VICTORIA CLUB NOW DOWN TO THE LIMIT

Woods, Grimes and Otto Nye Let Out; Hoffman Here Today; Bonner With Locals

"I have reduced the club to fourteen men, and to do this it became necessary to cut loose Pink Grindle as Dutch Hoffman will join the club to-day," said President Joshua Kingham's statement this morning upon his return from Tacoma. Grindle has been placed with the Tacoma club, and he will join that club the middle of this week. Lefty Woods has also been released, so that Victoria has left four of its regulars who in the past week, Grindle, Otto Nye, Woods and Grimes being the unlucky quartette. Al Bonner, the former Seattle hurler, joined the club at Tacoma, and will try for a regular berth with the club.

Seattle's chances of winning a few games this week against the locals will be more favorable with the addition of Pat Eastley, the original Victoria jinx, to the pitching staff. Eastley won fame for himself two years ago by beating the locals in about a dozen games in the year, most of his wins being chalked up against Victoria. Dugdale was lucky to sign this twirler, as Victoria was also bidding for him. He is a very hard worker and can take his turn on the mound every third day if necessary.

PINKY GRINDLE

Peppery backstop who was released by Victoria, yesterday and who will join the Tacoma club at Aberdeen the middle of this week.

Ballard club in action. Murray is a splendid catcher and the possessor of a deadly whip, but he cannot hit very hard, and that hurs his chances of going up to the coast league.

Roy Grimes, the former Oakland twirler, who was released by the Leafs on Saturday, had a lot of stuff but could not get the ball over the plate. Grimes was satisfied with the treatment that he received at Victoria, and thinks that he may be able to work out the wilderness by pitching in semi-pro ball at San Francisco.

STAN OKELL NOW WITH LOCAL CLUB

Oak Bay Twelve to Practice Against Representative Team; Pro. Gossip

Stan Okell turned out for the first time yesterday morning with the Victoria Lacrosse club, and he can now be counted upon at first defence for the local twelve. Coach Springer announced this morning that the Oak Bay club will practice against the seniors to-morrow night at the ball park, in what should be a real live clash.

Vancouver, May 10.—Negotiations between Red Donahue of Toronto and the Vancouver Lacrosse club have reached that stage where the Green-shirt officials announce they are safe in saying that the eastern home man will be on the Vancouver home during the season of 1915.

The local club was gratified yesterday to receive assurances from officials of the "Big Four," which is this year out of business, and of the N. L. U., that in his efforts to secure Donahue, Roberts, Hyland, Fitzgerald and others, he is in no wise impairing the peace agreement entered into between the east and the west two years ago. The players finally secured, however, will be but temporarily loaned, and will be required to report to their old clubs next year if lacrosse is re-established on the old basis.

An End To The Curse Of Wearing Worthless Trusses

No More Rupture Troubles
60 Days Trial To Prove It

You Don't Have to Risk a Penny. Here is something absolutely guaranteed to keep your rupture from coming out. And you can try it sixty days—make a thorough prove-it-to-you test—without having to risk a penny. If it doesn't hold—if it doesn't keep your rupture from bothering you in any way—then it won't cost you a single cent. The Only Thing Good Enough to Stand Such a Test. You know as well as we that you can't tell anything about a truss or anything else for rupture merely by trying it on. That's the worst of going to a drug store and buying a "cheap" truss. A truss or so-called "appliance" may seem alright when you first put it on, and afterwards prove utterly worthless. The only way in the world you can make sure of exactly what you're getting is by a day-after-day test.

THE CLUTE AUTOMATIC MASSAGING TRUSS IS SO UTTERLY DIFFERENT FROM ANYTHING ELSE FOR RUPTURE THAT IT HAS RECEIVED EIGHTEEN SEPARATE PATENTS. IT PROVIDES THE ONLY WAY EVER DISCOVERED FOR OVERCOMING THE WEAKNESS WHICH IS THE CAUSE OF RUPTURE. Just how it does that—entirely automatically—is all explained in the free book. Will Save You From Operation. The Clute Truss has so thoroughly proved its merits that physicians in all parts of the world and surgeons in the U. S. Army and Navy now recommend it instead of advising operation. It has brought complete recovery in hundreds of cases after operation has proved a failure.

NEW YACHTING ASSOCIATION WILL CONTROL CLUBS

Seattle, May 10.—The formation of a new yacht racing association that will include the entire Pacific coast, and be divided into local associations in the various districts is to be undertaken by well known yachtsmen on the North and South coast and a big meeting will be held in San Francisco during the exposition regatta to perfect plans.

Announcement of the plans for the new organization were made yesterday by Daniel L. Pratt, editor of Pacific Motor Boat, who has been in communication with the south coast organizations for some time. Two years ago Mr. Pratt made an effort to have the coast yacht clubs affiliate into one organization, but at that time the north coast could not get together because the former are opposed to racing for cash prizes, while the latter are in favor of it.

This line of contention, however, has now been removed by the withdrawal of the Portland Motor Boat club from the Pacific International Power Boat association. As this club is the one containing the largest number of speed boat men on the north coast and the one which is most strongly in favor of cash-prize racing, its withdrawal leaves the other clubs, which are more largely interested in yacht and cruiser racing to affiliate as they see fit.

Tire Protection

Let the Fortified Tire Span Your Way Over Trouble

The Long, Hard Way

Years ago, when we were little and weak, we started building a super-tire at Bowmanville. It is now called the Goodyear Fortified Tire.

Those early years were hard. Some men doubted our ability to build the best in tires. But the top place, as you know, is never easy.

We made mistakes—what successful men don't? We knew our ideas on tire building were right. We forged ahead in spite of keenest competition. Our sales and prestige grew, as men learned of greater tire mileage.

To-day Goodyears hold the throne in Tiredom. From small beginnings we have grown to big production—the largest in Canada. Men bought last year in numbers, more than one Goodyear tire for every car in Canada. Think what a tire must do to dominate like that.

Not Trouble-Proof

We don't claim the impossible—a trouble-proof tire. Mishap and misuse come to every tire some time. But Goodyears average best. They never could hold the lead unless they were true, as you know.

These are super-quality tires. Not in materials alone, but in features. We protect you in five exclusive ways. They cost us thousands extra yearly.

Tests which can't be disputed prove that these features save tire users tens of thousands.

Fortified Tires Five Exclusive Ways

Goodyear Fortified Tires protect you in five exclusive ways:

One combats rim cutting, in the most efficient way that's known.

One means safety. These tires are held on by an unstretchable tire base, in which we vulcanize four flat bands of 126 braided wires.

One saves needless blow-outs. Our "On-Air" cure prevents the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric.

One—a patent method—reduces by 60 per cent. the risk of tread separation.

And one combats punctures and skidding. That's our All-Weather tread—tough and extra thick, flat and smooth running, sharp-edged and resistless.

All these features are in Goodyear Fortified Tires. Not one of them is found in any other.

Third Price Reduction Yours

For the third time in two years the price of Goodyears is lowered. These reductions have saved tire users an average of 37%. Yet this third reduction comes during war times.

But we determined to keep our factory wheels moving. In spite of the new war tax, we have just doubled the capacity of our plant.

And now comes this third price reduction. You can see what faith we have in the Fortified Tire.

It's a business policy with a rare precedent in Canada's manufacturing history.

How Can You Hesitate?

Note the place which Goodyear holds here—the highest place in Tiredom.

Note its users and endorsers—more than any other tire ever had.

Note its growing prestige. The sales last year were 29 per cent. larger than the year before.

Note how they have averaged best. They mean less trouble, less cost per mile. The place they hold would be impossible without that. Our extra features would be folly.

Are you fair to yourself when you fail to prove out what is known to so many as the super-quality tire.

They will mean to you tire content. If you want these new prices and these better tires any dealer can get them for you.

REMARKED ON THE SIDE

Local Club is Evenly Balanced. Baseball men who have glimpsed the Leafs in action are in accord on one view, that being the remarkable strength of the Victoria club with the willow.

Even the pitchers have been slamming the ball and with the club being the leather around the 300 mark, it will take some well pitching to stop our Pennant Hopes. The Leafs can all take a healthy cut at the pill, while their speed on the sacks makes them dangerous at all times.

Barrieau Cannot Make Lightweight Limit.

An offer to Joe Bayley to meet Ernie Barrieau at the welterweight limit brings the admission that the former championship aspirant can no longer make 135 lbs. Barrieau shaped up as a dangerous lightweight a couple of years ago, but he has taken on a lot of weight of late, and will not fight lower than 140 lbs. again. Bayley has been loafing a bit recently, but a rigorous course of training would soon pull him below the required mark. Bayley would be foolish to take on Barrieau as a welterweight, for when he whipped this welter, he would have difficulty in securing another bout with a lightweight. The latter boys would all point him out as a welter.

No Standard Ball for Golf.

Golf is one of the few games that has not adopted a standard ball. There are only two distinct kinds of markings—the sunk marking, which are the balls where the marking is indented, and the raised marking, better known as the bramble or pebble marking. The sunk marking makes the ball more buoyant so that it carries a greater distance. The surface being more smooth than that of the bramble, it naturally follows that it will not grip the ground so hard on landing, so that, of course, it must roll considerably more than the bramble ball. The bramble marking is the more reliable and easier to control. The reason is not far to seek. A really good iron player in the man who can play his ball so that it will stop close to where it lands. It is much easier to impart a backspin to a ball with a roughened surface like the bramble marking than it is to a ball with a smoother surface like the sunk marking. So we will assume that, while the sunk marking has the advantage in the long game, the bramble has a slight advantage in the approach play.—May Outing.

The Vancouver and New Westminster pro lacrosse teams expect to play their first match on May 24 in New Westminster. A schedule of twelve matches will be drawn up this week. A couple of the games may be played in Victoria.

THE GERMAN PUBLIC IS LOSING CONFIDENCE

False Reports Authorized by Headquarters No Longer Accepted at Face Value

That the German public is losing its confidence is suggested by several articles in well-known German papers, says the Westminster Gazette. The writers, of course, do their best to encourage their readers, but it is easy to see that they, like their public, are anxious. Thus Major-General Keim, the military governor of the province of Limburg, is very much concerned in an article in Der Tag about "the spirit of lying," which, he declares, affects everything that concerns Germany, not only in England, France, Russia and Belgium, but also in neutral countries. "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," he says, maintaining that this is the first duty of a cultured nation:

Apt Pupil of Masters of Lies.

"But, from the beginning of the war, the neutral press has been an apt pupil of masters of lies in London, Paris and Petrograd. It would be mere self-deception to suggest that this campaign of lies and slander has done us no harm and can do us none, because the truth must prevail. That is a dangerous error, because we have suffered under this dominion of lies both in the political and military sense. . . . There is nothing to be done either by religious or ethical means against this unparalleled campaign of lies. Neither British nor French ecclesiastics have any Christian feeling left; their one idea is hatred of the Germans. Professors who formerly lauded the German spirit, and spoke of world brotherhood, are loud-gat in their shrieks against our people. The so-called intellectuals used to declare that there was a cultured friendship which was international. Where are the people now who could not praise Germany enough?"

Whole World Arrayed Against Germany.

Where, indeed? The major-general finds it particularly and that the neutrals should have nothing to say against Britain for her effort to "starve" Germany out. "In North America," he declares, "they pray every Sunday for peace, and sell our enemies arms in the week to prolong the war and shed the blood of our children." In fact, he detects the "whole world arrayed against Germany, and prefers to believe that the world has gone mad rather than admit that Germany has given any excuse for this world-wide hatred. As for German lies, there is, of course, not a word.

A Knave's Explanation.

"The 'sire' people," remarks Rittmeister Grossman, also in Der Tag, who "think our success has not been rapid enough, and who declare that our position in August was more favorable than it is in March. But for me (he adds) the position of the German armies is as follows: In August we had unheard-of successes in the west, which made the world hold its breath, while in the east we had to face a dark cloud which we were not able to see through or size up. Now the high flood in the east has been dammed, and so completely has it retired into its bed that we have no more anxiety about it, while on the west we are in full enjoyment of the unparalleled successes which we won in August. Our conquests in Belgium and North France represent not only an important gain that is not easy to appraise in its full value, but it touches also the nerve of our enemy's country, and its importance in this connection is not to be measured. And as for the fact that Russia holds Galicia, that is a possession which is held far less firmly, it can easily slip out of the once strong grasp that gained it, and thus lose its value in the balance."

The article protests too much. If there were not a feeling in Germany that all is not well, a diminished confidence, in fact, to say the least of it, Herr Rittmeister Grossman would not have left his riding school to take up the pen and explain that all was well.

Wait Until the Fruit is Ripe.

"It is natural," says the Frankfurter Zeitung, "that many should look with longing eyes at the fruit that is not yet ripe, and that when they hear nothing for a long time of important undertakings and questions that are being settled they should become anxious. Such feelings are unavoidable in war, which inflicts many graver hardships than this even on the winning side. In war, as in diplomacy, there are periods when silence is most useful, and when letters and telegrams should be laid aside. That may make us uneasy, but we must accept this, and wait until the fruit is ripe and falls of itself, whether it falls sweet, or sour to our taste. Therefore we must wait and wait, like the soldiers in the trenches, even if we have no news, confident that everything necessary is being done to achieve the desired end."

"What are you going to do, John?" asked Mrs. Fazole, as her husband unwrapped a pair of boxing-gloves. "I'm going to give Bobby some lessons in self-defence," he answered. Every boy should know how to take care of himself in an emergency. Come on, Bobby, I won't hurt you." Twenty minutes later Mr. Fazole returned with his hand on his face. "Get me a raw piece of meat to put on my eye and the arnica bottle. Why, you don't mean to say that Bobby—" "Of course I don't. Bobby's sitting out in the yard now in sorrow and repentance. I've discovered that the only way to teach that boy is with a strap."

HEROISM OF OFFICERS

In the course of a report to Colonel Ivatt, the Depot, Lincolnshire Regiment, regarding the part which the 2nd Battalion, Lincolnshire Regiment, took in the battle of Neuve Chapelle, Capt. and Acting-Adjutant Impey states that the assault was made at 8 a.m. on March 10. He describes how "C" and "D" companies, led by Captain Eager and Captain Bastard, rushed the trenches under a pretty hot fire, and the 2nd Brigade, having worked up on the left the enemy was caught in a trap. Meanwhile "A" and "B" companies followed the remainder of the gap caused by the charge. The enemy seemed very full of retreat, and our men were very elated. Many who were hit continued to advance.

Spy in Scottish Rifles Uniform.

Having described in detail the various movements of the attacking force, and the fact that relief was given by the 2nd Royal Irish Rifles, Captain Impey states that "there is one incident I have left out. We had been greatly troubled by people shooting at us from the rear (Lieut. Wylie was killed like this). At about 10 a.m. I was practically sure somebody was firing from a 'Jack Johnson' hole about 25 yards to our rear. Sure enough, they hailed out a man in Scottish Rifles uniform—a spy. Well, he met his deserts."

Concession of Explosives Was Terrible.

On the morning of the 11th matters were fairly quiet, and he states that the battalion stopped all day in an old trench about 200 yards to the rear. An order was then given that there was going to be an attack, and that the Lincolnshire Regiment were to support the Irish Rifles. The Irish Rifles lost very heavily in officers and men. At about 10 a.m. the enemy started shelling our trenches with heavy high explosives, several shells pitching in the trench. Sometimes single shells were sent, sometimes in pairs and threes. The concussion of their explosives was terrible. We were in a rather shallow trench with high command.

Very Hard and Trying Ordeal.

The regiment passed through a very hard and trying ordeal. For two hours they poured shells into us, cutting our telephone wires. Major Cox decided at about 12.15 p.m. to move up in support of the Irish Rifles, thus anticipating an order that he had expected to arrive. Major Cox showed great coolness in getting the regiment out of the trench.

The regiment then proceeded up a road into Neuve Chapelle through a pretty hot fire till we actually got into the village, where we were somewhat protected by the ruins of what was once a very pretty village. We lay in support in this village while the Irish Rifles fought the enemy in front. A company was sent in close support just behind them along a hedge.

Captain's Sad Fate.

We remained here all day and night, moving back the following morning to our original German trench. During the night the enemy dropped odd shells into the village. We remained in this German trench all day—choosing a more suitable and remote spot for headquarters. The enemy shelled the trench again, but not so actively as the day before.

At 8 p.m. Capt. Wellesley rejoined. (He had been ill up to date and had not taken part in the battle.) He had not been with us more than ten minutes when a shrapnel came from our left front and burst in the trench, mortally wounding Capt. Wellesley and twelve others. Capt. Wellesley died about one and a half hours afterwards. (9.30 p.m.)

End of the First Phase.

They sent the shells at us at odd moments throughout the night. We spent that day in this trench and relieved the Irish Rifles that evening. The Irish Rifles going back to our late German trench. Next evening we relieved the West Yorkshires in trenches on our left.

The following morning the Germans started shelling us with a small high explosive nicknamed "White-bang." They shelled the headquarters trench all day in three batches, sending 150 shells at us. They hit the parapet several times, but did no other material harm. They also sent four big shells, each bursting close to the trench. The shelling was most unpleasant while it lasted. Three times they cut the telephone wires. They shelled us again the next day. That night we were relieved by the Irish Rifles, and we went in support behind. Thus ended the first phase of the battle of Neuve Chapelle as far as the regiment was concerned.

Success of Primary Assault.

There are hundreds of incidents that I have left out; it would take a better narrator to do it than myself. But I have attached other experiences and accounts which will help to make it more intelligible. There is no doubt, however, that the Lincolnshire Regiment captured all the ground that was ordered and a bit more besides. I think I am right in saying that the success of the battle was a good deal due to the dash shown by the Lincolnshire Regiment and the Royal Berkshire Regiment, who made a primary assault.

"The regiment lost seven officers killed, six officers wounded and 288 N.C.O.'s and men killed and wounded.

"Have They Taken the Trenches?"

The following is an extract from a letter referred to in the foregoing account received from the front, under date March 28:

"But what I want know is the gallant way in which Lieut.-Colonel G. B. McAndrew met his end. His leg was shattered by a shell shortly after we started, and he died within an hour. He must have been in great agony, but never a thought did he utter of himself. His one concern was as to how his regiment was doing. 'Have they taken the trenches?' he asked. He insisted on being propped up so that he could get a view of us while we assaulted, and thus he watched until God claimed him. Sergeant-Major Parish gives us this account. It was he who was with him throughout."

LONGSHOREMEN READY.

To the Editor.—On account of the last catastrophe by the sinking of R. M. S. Lusitania we are here at present about fifty strong of the Longshoremen's union ready to join the colors. We are all seamen of former days, but quite a number of us has already seen active service in the Boer war. Most, if not all, of us can handle a gun, so without any further drilling or instruction, let's get at the Germans. We don't ask no detention at various camps which the government has reserved for drilling, but let us at the Huns the way we are prepared, and we can all show that we are Britishers or loyal British subjects. All we ask for is quick action, and hoping this letter will be noticed and respected by us. Undersigned.

A WORKMAN'S APPEAL.

To the Editor.—Through the medium of your paper I should like to say a little on the question of the unemployed who are anxious to return to Great Britain. Just now it is the one topic among the workmen who are willing to work for their country if they cannot fight. There is no reason why they should be forced to stay here and be out of work all the time and be dependent on charity to live, when there is such a call for men in the Old Country. All of us can be of use at some kind of work. We can help to bring about a great victory for the British Empire. Now the great trouble is to get transportation, as all of us are without means through no fault of our own. But in a case like this what is the matter with the government finding the money, as this small difficulty could easily be overcome by appealing to the transportation company. Let the C. P. R. and other shipping companies share their patriotic spirit now by charging a small rate and place their boats at the disposal of the country. This is a case of saving lives and property and an opportunity for the workman to do his duty and help in the country's great battle. I am sure by the government getting us where we are wanted, where we could work and by supplying our troops with the necessary weapons to fight the foe, we would be doing a lot of good to the Empire. Do not the words of Lord Charles Beresford prove it: "If we had had more torpedo boat destroyers the disaster to the Lusitania would never have happened." Let us get busy and if the government will not assist us as workmen willing to do our duty, let them deport us as undesirable, as, if we cannot get work to support ourselves and our families we shall have to go somewhere. We are not asking for charity, as in a time like this dividends and making good at the expense of other people's lives does not seem the right thing to me.

A SHIPWRIGHT.

GERMAN MARINE MURDERING.

To the Editor.—In view of the Hun's dirty submarine work in general, and in particular the callous slaughter of women and children on the Falaba, Lusitania and other vessels, probably the following remedy would at once very adequately meet the case:

Let every allied mercantile vessel be armed; not indeed with guns, but with machine-guns, and let the Hun government be officially informed of the fact. Take the Atlantic passenger trade, for example, every Liverpool-Montreal boat would permanently carry fifty or so of the more prominent of our German prisoners, who, while accorded suitable liberty at sea would invariably be confined below when ever leaving or arriving at an allied port. Should America not immediately join the allies, then let every Cunard boat leaving Liverpool carry the stipulated number of prisoners, who would be disembarked on a British cruiser outside New York or entering that port, and taken on again on the vessel's return journey.

To prevent the taking off of prisoners, every captain would receive orders never to stop on any submarine challenge; for, in no instance, could a German be trusted in any party that might arise. In the first instance, then, let us begin with the captured German submarine crews now in our hands.

Suitable modification of the above proposal should also be tried in connection with our trawlers and other vessels. Surely the lives of our own sailors must dictate to us some protection for them of this kind; the only thing these German blackguards will ever understand or respect.

ARTHUR FELLOWS,
Victoria, B. C., May 10.

A German schoolmaster was instructing his pupils how to act when a certain Grand Duke should pass through on the railway, an event which was to occur the next day. "Remember, children," said the pedagogue, "that as soon as the train arrives you are to shout as loud as you can, 'Long live the Grand Duke!' until he leaves." The next day, when the Grand Duke arrived at the station and bowed graciously from the platform of the special carriage, the school children made the welkin ring with: "Long live the Grand Duke until he leaves."

will arrest every person to s guilty of any attempt to resume the rioting." Chief Langley told the Times to-day. "The police are doing all they can under the sud- den and unusual circumstances, and with the assistance of the military we will preserve order in the city. Crowds will not be allowed to collect, and the people will be kept on the move. The names of a number of people who were seen taking goods away from the Leiser and Schaper stores are known to the police and they will be prosecuted if the articles are not returned to the police station by to-night. The police will do their duty and afford citizens every protection in their power."

A good deal of surprise is being included in to-day as to the source from which the merchants and property-owners may expect compensation for their losses. In the case of the rioting in Vancouver some years ago, arising out of anti-Japanese feeling there, the Dominion government paid those whose property was destroyed, following an inquiry, and the bill was sent in to the city. It was tabled by the council and that was the last heard of it.

In order to prevent the landing of any yegmen from across the Gulf or down the Sound who might be attracted to the city by the news of the disturbance the boats will be watched more closely than usual for the next few days.

The Chinese restaurant of Haag Fah on Fligard street had all the glass in the front broken during the rioting, and a pane of glass in the store next door was also smashed in the premises of Wing Hong Ching. Boys are believed to be the culprits in these cases, smashing the main mob.

William Catsifos was arrested this morning by Detectives Murray and Macdonald, and arraigned in police court on a charge of stealing a bolt of cloth from the premises of Schaper & Glass yesterday. He at once started to make an explanation of how he ran out of the restaurant in which he works and saw the crowd carrying things away. Being stopped in order to make his election of mode of trial, he was with difficulty made to understand what was wanted, but in the end decided that he might as well be tried in police court as anywhere.

A remand was granted by the magistrate on the application of the city prosecutor until to-morrow, and as he was leaving the dock the accused was overheard to mutter: "I am not the only one." This afternoon the detectives brought in several men who are believed to have been concerned in the rioting and looting, and charges will be laid in some of the cases to-morrow.

The watchmaking and jewelry store of Max Kilburger at the corner of Fort and Douglas streets was the object of mob violence. The large plate-glass window on the Fort street side was broken, and some articles which were lying on the shelves were stolen. The doors and the Douglas street window were not touched. The loss by theft will be considerable.

Saturday Night About 8 o'clock on Saturday evening a few soldiers and civilians were attracted to the Blanshard hotel. They were displeased, it was stated, with the display of the German coat-of-arms. The cheering and shouting of the men in the bar soon attracted numbers of people and rapidly a huge crowd gathered at the intersection of Blanshard and Johnson streets. The noise in the bar grew in intensity and at intervals the smashing of glass could be heard. Men mounted the two bars and their boots caused great damage to the furniture. Two cus- piders were shied at the mirrors and there was a series of crashes as the glass fell to the floor. Tumblers and glasses of various sizes were kicked from the counters, and all the German writing on the walls was scratched off. In an attempt to quell the distur- ance before it assumed too gigantic proportions, the patrol was summoned, and the police at once made their way into the bar. They were, however, helpless and were politely informed that they might "just as well save themselves any trouble as no one was going to be placed in the patrol wagon to-night."

With overwhelming odds against them the few stalwarts were unable to turn a hand. With the bar and all its fixtures de- molished the crowd took leave and started off for the late premises of the Deutscher Verein, in the Pat Burns block on Government street. The crowd of civilians at this time totalled about 3,000. As they marched along the main thoroughfares other soldiers fell into line and there was a fair sprinkling of sailors. The crowd hung closely to the khaki-clad men, and upon reaching the German club, Govern- ment street was packed for some dis- tance and the street cars were tied up.

Thrown From Window. A number of men rushed up the stairs and battered their way into the premises. The windows were first broken and then commenced a shower of tables, chairs, cushions, cabinets and pillows. The sidewalk was strewn with a mass of debris. The soldiers again fell in. Two men managed to locate pictures of the late King Edward VII. and King George V. and when these were hoisted above the crowd it signalled a violent outburst of cheering.

The old-Kaiserhof was paid another visit, and a few more windows were broken, after which the crowd proceeded to the warehouses of Simon Leiser, where they smashed the win- dows and returned once more to the Kaiserhof. This time the work of destruction was carried out to the limit. People who were occupying rooms were ordered to leave. Bedding, mat- tresses and pillows then commenced to shoot from the windows and the huge mob sent up round after round of shouts as the articles sailed forth from the building. Nearly every win- dow was smashed and the leaded-light decorations received no quarter. One man took great delight in popping the electric light globes which outlined the beer gardens. The taps of the beer kegs were opened and with much whisky flowed freely across the pavement into the drains. When the rioters left for newer fields, the Blanshard had been completely wrecked.

Destruction at Leiser's. The march was resumed to the Leiser warehouses. The soldiers stormed the place and goods were thrown out to the crowd. Crates of oranges, packages of tea, bags of sugar and other commodities were gathered in by eager spectators, and when they were fully loaded they hastened off for home.

The sign of Leis & Leiser, directly opposite the wholesale grocery, attracted the eye of the crowd and the plate glass windows were smashed. Men entered the building and commenced to throw dry goods out to the crowds. Some even went to the third story and dropped heavy cases to the pavement. Women grabbed bolts of cloth and blankets, and men pilfered clothes, socks and other articles which were handy. Several motor cars filled up with goods and made off. Men with their arms filled with loot marched boldly through the street and did not even seem alarmed when a policeman approached.

Carl Loewenburg's store on Wharf street was next attacked, and here the male sex reaped a harvest. Pipes and cigarette holders were taken in large quantities. Much cutlery was also taken from this place. A few rocks were hurled through the windows of Pither and Leiser, but it was settling late in the night and the armed guard was making its appearance and no further damage was done. One hundred and fifty fully armed men were sent to town from the Willows at 1:30 o'clock on Sunday morning and stationed at the places which had been broken in, to see that no further raids were made.

Went to Police Station. During the night a report came to the rioters that a sailor had been arrested. The mob at once proceeded to the police station and demanded the release of the prisoner. The officers informed the rioters that no one had been arrested and they proceeded happily on their way.

At City Hall. There is only one topic of discussion at the city hall to-day, and other engagements were postponed this morning to devote special attention to the matter. The police commissioners were in session, and the mayor, and Alderman McNeill, said this morning he will take the attitude that as the council does not appoint the commissioners and is not responsible for their action, the city council should go on record dis- avowing the action of the rioters. He claims that the commissioners, being responsible for law and order (being appointed by the government), redress should be looked for from the province.

One of the senior officials, after a long connection with the city business, says there has been no precedent for a generation of the reading of the Riot act, and therefore it is impossible to say what may happen, though he inclines to the view that the owners whose property was damaged have a case at law for suit, because the universal law is to hold the municipality responsible for damage done in its boundaries, irrespective of the resi- dence qualification of the rioters.

The general impression around the city hall is that the matter will have to be settled in the courts eventually. Chief Davis, who was twice called on by the military to turn out the fire department on Saturday, said to-day: "My duty is not to police the town, and if I had interfered at the Blanshard hotel there would have been bloodshed. The temper of the mob was such that they would have destroyed the hose, and would not have hesitated to wreck the downtown fire station. We put out a small fire in the vacant lot adjoining the Blanshard hotel, kindled by the crowd to burn mattresses, and then followed them from place to place to watch in case of a conflagration. There was much risk at the Loewenburg place, and there I personally appealed to the crowd to be careful with kicking matches about. I stayed on till three o'clock on Sunday morning prepared in case of a call of fire kindled by the crowd."

One of the principal legal gentlemen in Victoria, when asked for his opinion, said the owners had apparently redress against the Dominion government for the action of the soldiers on Saturday, and probably the city could be joined with other parties as defendants to the suit, while the action of civilians yesterday would probably involve the local authorities in a lawsuit.

INQUIRY WILL BE HELD UNDER BOARD OF TRADE

London, May 10.—Rt. Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, announced in the House of Commons to-day that a board of trade inquiry will be held to determine the circumstances of the loss of the Lusitania.

In the meantime it is premature to discuss the matter, he continued, "but I make plain that in no circumstances will it be possible to make public the naval dispositions for patrolling our coast. Our resources do not enable us to provide destroyer escorts for mail and passenger ships."

Washington, May 10.—Count Bernstorff, the German ambassador, called on Secretary Bryan to-day and expressed deep regret that the events of the war had led to the loss of so many American lives. He did not mention the sinking of the Lusitania.

Amsterdam, May 10.—The Cologne Volks Zeitung says: The sinking of the Lusitania is a success of our submarines which must be placed beside the greatest achievements of this war. The sinking of the giant British liner is a success of merit and significance which is still greater than material success.

DAMAGED PREMISES OF BRITISH SUBJECTS

Statements Made by Managements of Various Concerns Attacked During Week-End

In their anxiety to attack places of business controlled by Germans, the crowds which thronged the streets on Saturday and Sunday were led to do damage to several buildings whose owners, unfortunately for them, possessed German names though being themselves British subjects, and having no connection whatever with the enemy.

The damage done to the Victoria Phoenix Brewing Co.'s premises last night was very great, running into thousands of dollars, though the exact amount has not yet been estimated. This concern, the directors state, has been owned exclusively by British capital ever since it was incorporated into a joint stock company in 1892. There is not one cent of German capital, say the directors, in the whole business. The president of the company is H. E. Newton; Joseph E. Wilson is vice-president; and A. W. Jones, F. B. Pemberton, J. Bridgman and William Wilson are directors.

Nearly one thousand dollars' damage was done to the premises of Hermann & Stringer, French dry cleaners at 548 Yates street, simply because of the fact that the former name is of Teutonic origin. Mr. Hermann stated to the Times this morning that not only was he born in Russia, but that every member of his family who is of military age is fighting for our allies in Poland. He also proved by the production of his naturalization papers that he is a British subject, and has been in business in Victoria for close on five years. His partner is an Englishman.

Damage was done to windows on the premises of Pither & Lelser, corner of Fort and Wharf streets, the crowd probably being under the impression that the business is owned and operated by German capital. On the other hand, the management of the business is responsible for the statement that not a dollar of German capital is invested in the enterprise. About three years ago the whole concern was bought out, 90 per cent. going to W. P. Geoghagan, of Dublin, and the remainder being taken over by well-known local men. Mr. Geoghagan at the present time is making accommodation in his magnificent home in Ireland for the wounded from the British trenches, while his brother has offered his private yacht to the British admiralty for patrol purposes.

Another building attacked was the New England hotel and restaurant owned by Michael Young. Thousands of dollars' worth of damages were done to these premises, and yet Mr. Young has been a British subject for 35 years. In a statement made to the Times this morning, Mr. Young said: "In 1886 I fought against Prussia for Bavaria and we were beaten. I was forced to flee the country, and I would never dare to go back. Now as then my sympathies are all against Prussia, and for many years I have been a staunch supporter of the British cause. I came here in 1871 and became naturalized thirty-eight years ago. I say positively that I am not in sympathy with the German idea."

Another sufferer from the destruction wrought during the week-end was Moses Lens, the sole proprietor of the dry goods store of Lens & Lelser. Mr. Lens is a native born American, and has been in the city 42 years. The business is entirely his own, and the

OFFERS AN EXCHANGE

Valuable Suggestion Will Reach Council From Prince Rupert. A somewhat unusual letter, but one which probably opens an avenue for successful interchange of business, will be read in council to-night from the city clerk of Prince Rupert.

It states that the city authorities of the northern port are in communication with the municipalities in British Columbia and Alberta, inquiring as to prices and the likelihood of supplying the market with commodities in their localities, and the possibility of supplying in exchange fish at cost price, plus freight.

While the fish used in Victoria is caught in local waters, there are some fruit products around this city which require an avenue for marketing, and the subject will doubtless be taken up by the fruitgrowers' associations and farmers' institutes around Victoria. In this connection it should be noted that the two markets a week commencing Wednesday, and for that reason the alterations to the market floor have been hurried. The refreshing rains of the week-end will greatly improve the produce offered at the first Wednesday market. With vegetables of this season's growth now reaching the market, the growers claim they will be able to supply the market adequately.

BUY MADE-IN-CANADA CORSETS.

D & A CORSETS

NON RUSTABLE

Did you contribute to the $700,000.00 sent from Canada in 1913 to corset makers in the United States, and to the $245,000.00 paid in customs on them?

Keep Canadian Shoppers here for years bought the "D & A" and the "La Diva" Corsets in preference to the imported, because they are better value.

Justify our statement by comparing "D & A" and "La Diva" against foreign makes. It's only a few old style or prejudiced firms who do not sell these Made-in-Canada Corsets.
