SENTENCE OF DEATH

Baker and Sowash, Found Guilty, to Expiate Crime on September 4

Amundsen Hopes to Make Another Pole Flight

EXPLORERS SAY EXPERIENCE OF FIRST FLIGHT WILL LEAD TO SUCCESSFUL POLAR TRIP

Road Amundsen, Back at Spitzbergen, is Reported to be Determined to Head Second Aeroplane Attempt to Reach North Pole at Unstated Date; Courage of Intrepid Explorers Admired in All Countries.

Copenhagen, June 19.—The Social Demokraten publishes a report from Oslo, the Norwegian capital, stating Captain Amundsen, who returned to Spitzbergen after his sensational Arctic flight, is dissatisfied with the results attained and is "quite determined to resume the attempt" to reach the Pole. The explorer is quoted as declaring the experience gained in the attempt just completed would enable him to attain his goal.

The other members of the expedition, the account continues, appear equally animated by a desire to beat the aerial polar expeditions planned by other countries. They expressed the view that important scientific results had been achieved thus far. Captain Amundsen himself was rejected.

COURAGE ADMIRED

London, June 19.—Road Amundsen has once more come safely out of the merciless Arctic.

An abandoned aeroplane frozen in the ice some 150 miles from the North Pole remains as his "Farthest North Marker" but the great Norwegian explorer and his five intrepid companions are enjoying the comforts of bunks and warm meals after twenty-eight days of untold hardships, during which they tried their other machine out of the ice and flew it back to Spitzbergen.

Amundsen failed to realize his dream of reaching the Pole by air but the failure is almost entirely lost sight of here in the great popular wave of relief and news of his return and admiration of his heroic accomplishment.

STARTED MARCH 21

Amundsen's two planes, one commanded by himself and the other by his fellow-adventurer and financial backer, Lincoln Ellsworth, disappeared over the Northern horizon from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, on May 21. The other members of the party were Hjalmer Riiser-Larsen, Norwegian, and Leif Dietrichsen, Norwegian, and Karl Feucht, German, the mechanics. The planes carried no wireless and as the days passed without the fliers' return hopes began to fade that even Amundsen, with all his Arctic knowledge, could survive in the event of an accident in the machines.

As the hopes faded expeditions were made for relief expeditions, although it was realized that looking for a small party of men in the great Northern wastes of ice and water was an almost hopeless task.

It lay with the men themselves either to fly back or by foot and folding boat, on the slenderest emergency rations, to the nearest depot of supplies and there await rescue.

GREAT WELCOME

Yesterday, with the United States Arctic expedition under Donald MacMillan about to start North, planning to look for Amundsen around Cape Columbia, Greenland, word was flashed from Spitzbergen that the explorers had returned. The details since received here have been meagre, but dispatches from Oslo, the Norwegian capital, say all six men are safe. They arrived at Spitzbergen in the remaining plane and were conveyed by a fishing boat to King's Bay, where they undoubtedly received a heart-warming welcome from the members of their base party and the fliers under Lieut. Lutzow Holm sent by the Norwegian government to look for them.

CONGRATULATIONS SENT

The newspapers in Oslo having a contract with the Aero Club posted a bulletin on the fliers' safety, but withheld the details for their morning edition.

S. Harris Head of Navy League

Halifax, June 19.—Sam Harris of Toronto was elected president of the Navy League of Canada at the closing session of the Dominion Council here yesterday.

SOLDIER RUNS AMUCK AND STABS MATE

Serious Affray Among Infantry Encamped at Heals Range

Pte. Leeds, Cook, is Stabbed; Pte. Neville Under Arrest

As a result of a savage stabbing affray at Heals Rifle Range on Wednesday morning Private William Leeds, of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, is lying in the Royal Jubilee Hospital with three knife wounds in his left shoulder. Private Neville, of the same corps, is declared to have made the attack and is under arrest at Work Point Barracks pending a report by a military board of inquiry.

On Wednesday morning, when preparing dinner for the detachment encamped at the range, an altercation as to duties is stated to have arisen between Leeds and Neville. The latter was peeling turnips at the time, and according to Leeds, without warning Neville sprang from his seat and stabbed the cook with the worn down butcher-knife he was using in his paring operations.

THREE STABS

Three blows were successfully delivered by Neville before Leeds, a soldier of 26 years of age, was able to seize his assailant and throw him outside the cook tent, where Neville was promptly seized by other members of the force, while companions found the injured cook.

Trade Commissioner to Former Enemy Country to Spend Summer in Victoria

B.C. Now Doing Considerable Business With Germany, He Declares

"Germany offers a good field for marketing British Columbia fresh and dried apples, but there are restrictions which are obstacles against canned salmon," said L. D. Wilgross, Canadian trade commissioner to Germany, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Russia, on his arrival in Vancouver to-day. He is on his way to Victoria, where he will spend the summer.

Mr. Wilgross has come across the Atlantic in the interests of trade between Canada and European countries. He will spend next week in Seattle at the Foreign Trade Council convention and come across to Victoria at the end of next week on the President Madison, which is bringing the delegates to the convention to Victoria for a day's outing and to attend the opening of the Crystal Garden here as the guests of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The Canadian trade commissioner's wife and family have arrived here already.

PLANE TO CARRY MEDICAL AID TO ALASKA INDIANS NOW IN GRIP OF EPIDEMIC

Juneau, Alaska, June 19.—Governor Parish has authorized an aeroplane flight with a physician and supplies from Fairbanks to the Koyukuk River region, where numerous Indians are reported affected with a mysterious epidemic which has resulted in unnumbered deaths. The district is without a physician, according to meagre advice.

A messenger who reached Wiseman said the epidemic was spreading rapidly, while another messenger from the Episcopal Mission at Atlatla said the malady was characterized by headaches and vomiting.

LOCAL PROGRAMME FOR BARON BYNG IS ANNOUNCED

Many Engagements Arranged For Vice-regal Visit June 29 to July 2

Announcement is made of the official programme for the visit of Baron Byng, Governor-General of Canada, and Lady Byng, who will be in Victoria from June 29 to July 2.

Their Excellencies will reach Victoria by the afternoon boat on Monday, June 29, and will be met at the wharf by the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Nichol. At 5 o'clock the Governor-General will visit the Army and Navy Veterans, and in the evening there will be an official dinner at Government House, after which it is hoped the official party will visit the pagoda at the Arena.

On Tuesday, Baron Byng will be occupied with various interviews in the morning and will be the guest of the municipal executive of the L.O.E. at the residence of Mrs. Curtis Sampson. In the evening there will be a dinner at Government House, followed by a ball.

On Wednesday, the vice-regal party will visit the parade at Beacon Hill Park and will later attend the garden party at Government House from 4 till 5 o'clock.

Found jointly guilty of the murder of Captain W. J. Gillis, Owen Benjamin Baker and "Si" Sowash, alias Harry Frederick Myers were sentenced to death by Mr. Justice Morrison in the Assize court at 12:31 p.m. to-day.

Baker to the last protested his innocence and in response to the usual question: "Have you anything to say" declared in even tones:

"All I have to say, Sir, is the evidence I have given in this court was the absolute truth," replied Baker.

"I have nothing to say, Sir," said Sowash in a response to the same question.

"I do not presume to judge you and in passing sentence I am only fulfilling my duty at your trial. You will be returned to the prison from whence you came and on the fourth day of September, 1925, you will be hanged by the neck until you are dead," was the sentence pronounced by Mr. Justice Morrison.

Baker shrank visibly as the foreman of the jury pronounced the single word: "Guilty." His face was leaden grey and the muscles on his neck convulsed incessantly.

Sowash sat motionless as the death sentence was passed. His eyes filled with tears as he was manacled for the last time before being led from the dock. Both men will be taken on the boat to Vancouver to-day and lodged in the condemned cells at Oakalla.

This passes into history one of the most sensational murder trials in the annals of B.C. courts. Through-out the four-day trial Baker and Sowash had steadily maintained their innocence. In the closing hours of that trial both men turned against each other and told separate stories on the stand in their own defence.

STRONGLY GUARDED

Special precautions were taken to keep the prisoners free from the crowded building after the death sentence had been passed upon them. Through private corridors and down the judge's staircase they were led to where automobiles waited under plain clothes guard at the rear of the building. A crowd gathered at the main entrance waited a long time in vain before it realized the situation.

Mrs. W. J. Gillis, widow of the murdered man, sat in the court room as the death sentence was passed. Paul Stromking, who turned King's evidence in the case, was in a nearby corridor and heard the verdict through the open doorway of the room. An audible murmur ran around the public galleries when the death sentence was passed and many women cried.

JUDGE'S CHARGE

In his charge to the jury Mr. Justice Morrison reviewed the evidence at great length and giving equal weight to the testimony on both sides of the case. He cautioned the jury against sentimentality and asked for a common sense serious deliberation of what they considered the real facts of the case. He said in part:

If they believed the Crown they would have no difficulty in arriving at the conclusion that murder had been committed, said His Lordship. The Crown, he said, was bound to prove that the accused and no other did the deed. It was for the jury to say whether this had been done.

His Lordship stressed the exhaustive case with which the police prosecuted the investigation which led to the arrest of the accused. There was, he said, no lack of proof that the authorities had been most diligent in this respect.

NAVAL BLOCKADE OF MOROCCO NOW

Paris, June 19.—A blockade of the Moroccan coast by French and Spanish warships to prevent arms and munitions reaching Abd-el-Krim, the warring leader of the Moroccan tribesmen, became effective this morning. The French and Spanish Governments having reached an agreement last night regarding details.

There will be no supreme command; but the French and Spanish naval units participating in the blockade will take instructions from their respective admirals. French ships may enter Spanish ports and Spanish ships may enter the French zone. The blockade extends from Mogador on the Atlantic coast to Alhucemas Bay on the Mediterranean, embracing the entire northern coast of Morocco.

CRITICISM FOLLOWS SENATE'S VOTE ON CANTINEEN FUND

Ottawa, June 19.—The Senate committee into the administration of the Canteen Fund, in referring to money granted to the Great War Veterans' Association by the Dominion Government, states in its report to the Senate that "it would not appear that any portion of the sum of $100,000 had been spent on unemployment relief for ex-service men and their dependents."

The report states it would appear the whole of the $100,000 was put into the Dominion command of the G.W.V.A. general fund, and that the whole of the fund was expended between July, 1921, and August 31, 1922.

The money, states the report, appears to have been used for the services as follows: The Veteran Limited, $46,000; salaries, $36,657; traveling expenses, $15,855; loans to provincial commands, $11,200; postage, telegrams and telephones, $5,241; and other expenses of a similar nature.

McNEIL'S STATEMENT

Ottawa, June 19.—G. C. McNeil, secretary of the Dominion Command of the Great War Veterans' Association, commenting upon the report of the special committee of the Senate which inquired into the administration of the Canteen and Disablement Funds, said: "With a knowledge of the facts do not take the report seriously. It is merely a recital of evidence furnished by the prosecution and totally disregards evidence filed on behalf of the association by competent witnesses."

Mr. McNeil said the report would be considered at the Dominion convention of the Great War Veterans' Association to be held in Ottawa June 20.

NEW CHURCH MAKES CONFERENCE PLANS

Toronto, June 19.—The United Church of Canada will consist of eleven conferences, divided into 109 presbyteries. The conferences will be: Maritime Conference, 7; Ontario and Ottawa, 5; Bay of Quinte, 5; Toronto, 12; Hamilton, 9; London, 8; Manitoba, 9; Saskatchewan, 16; Alberta, 15; British Columbia, 8.

HOME BANK LIST

Ottawa, June 19.—The enactment of an eight-hour day law generally within the competence of the Provincial Legislatures, but the authority vested in the Legislatures does not enable them to enact an eight-hour-day law in regard to servants of the Federal Government, or for parts of Canada not within the boundaries of provinces. This, in substance, is the finding of the Supreme Court of Canada on whether the Federal Parliament has jurisdiction to pass an eight-hour day law.

YOUTH HANGED IN SOREL, QUE., TO-DAY

Sorel, Que., June 19.—Henri Messier, nineteen-year-old slayer, was hanged here early this morning in the courtyard of the local jail for the murder last November of Emile Pelletier, a butcher, whom he held up with Hermenegide Dufault and beat so severely that the victim died in a hospital without regaining consciousness.

Toronto, June 19.—Nominations yesterday in Federal ridings in Ontario resulted as follows: East Algoma—G. B. Nicholson, Chapleau, Conservative; Centre—East Toronto—Dr. J. A. Cascard, Liberal; Hastings County—Dr. A. J. Embury, Conservative.

FUR WORKERS IN MONTREAL ON STRIKE

Montreal, June 19.—Approximately ninety per cent. of the 500 fur workers in Montreal are on strike, according to Morris Kaufman, general president of the International Fur Workers' Union. The third week of the strike will end to-morrow.

COLLEGE OFFICIALS' ACTS ARE DEPLORED

Montreal, June 19.—A resolution deprecating the action of General J. G. Ross, Professor R. E. Welsh, Professor A. R. Gordon and Rev. Richard Roberts in entering the principal office of the Presbyterian Theological College in the absence of Principal Fraser and taking possession of the college seal, registers and other official documents, in closing the door to Principal Fraser, and in barring the doors of the college, including the library, to all was adopted at the meeting of the Montreal Presbytery of the Continuing Presbyterian Church in Canada here yesterday.

CANDIDATES NAMED IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Fredericton, N.B., June 19.—Nominations yesterday for the New Brunswick provincial election, which it is unofficially said will be held July 29, were: County of Carlton—Hon. P. Frank Smith, Florenceville; F. C. Squire, Woodstock, and E. W. Melville, Peel, Conservatives; Westmorland County—Hon. I. C. Rand, Moncton, and Fred M. Thompson, Hillsboro, Liberals; Northumberland County—F. M. Tweedie, Chatham; C. J. Morrissey, Newcastle; C. Price, Doaktown, and A. Savoie, Rogersville, Liberals.

BALLOONIST HONORED

Brussels, June 19.—The Belgium balloon pilot Veenstra arrived here from Spain yesterday and was escorted through the streets as the winner of the Gordon Bennett Cup Race, which started from Brussels June 7. The demonstration was staged despite the fact that the official decision regarding the winner of the race was not to be made till to-day. It is expected the decision regarding Veenstra's flight will be the same as that handed down for the United States pilot, Wade T. Van Orman, who piloted the Goodyear III. It is believed both the Belgian and the United States pilots will be disqualified, or that both of their flights will be accepted.

A GLORIOUS FAILURE

ALTHOUGH HE HAS failed in his attempt to fly to the North Pole in a heavier-than-air machine, Captain Roald Amundsen has added much valuable information to his store of knowledge of conditions in the uninviting waste of snow and ice.

The principal difficulties confronting the aerial explorer in those regions seem to be the absence of suitable "hangar" facilities and the uncertain activities of the ice fields. What developments in aerial navigation will contribute towards the solution of this problem is a matter which only the future will decide.

The interesting point about Capt. Amundsen's magnificent adventure is that he failed to accomplish by the quicker and supposedly safer method what he accomplished in the Antarctic, and what Admiral Peary succeeded in doing at the North Pole. It is of still further interest to note that the observations that were made by the party which has just returned confirm in some details the observations recorded by the American explorer.

Although the world in general has benefited nothing materially from the sacrifices which have been made by Arctic and Antarctic explorers, although the world will continue to marvel way stout hearts seek the mercenary wages for their life's battleground, there is nobody anywhere who does not consider the world fortunate in its possession of the Amundsen, the Scotts, the Pearys and the Shackletons.

A GREAT CANADIAN

AT ITS BEST THE ANNUITY voted by Parliament for the Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding in no sense balances the debt which this Dominion owes to the veteran statesman whose days of active public service unfortunately are at an end.

Mr. Fielding is a great Canadian in every sense of the term, and his place in history as one of the foremost makers of Canada is assured. In certain respects his career is without a parallel in this Dominion.

until 1896, when he joined the first Laurier Ministry, the famous "Cabinet of all the talents," as Finance Minister. The fact that he was chosen for so prominent a post in a Cabinet which contained such striking figures as Sir Oliver Mowat, Sir Richard Cartwright, J. I. Tarte, Sir Louis Davies, Clifford Stobo and A. G. Blair was a tribute no less to his ability than to the sagacity of the far-sighted leader of the Government.

Mr. Fielding retained the portfolio of Finance throughout the entire brilliant regime of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. On the return of the Liberals to power in 1921 he resumed office as Minister of Finance, and notwithstanding the encroachment of time and indifferent health discharged his onerous duties with all his pristine vigor and sagacity until illness struck him down a year or more ago, after a service as head of the national treasury department, covering, all told, eighteen years.

Until his comparatively recent withdrawal Mr. Fielding was easily the most authoritative and influential figure in the present Parliament. His long parliamentary experience, his lofty character, his wide knowledge of public questions, his capacity as an administrator, his consummate ability as a debater on any subject at any time, and the memory of his brilliant record during the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave him a commanding position which was recognized by all parties not only in Ottawa but all over Canada.

AT LAST!

CANADA IS ABOUT TO experiment with the future of those former members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force who are now members of another organization known as the Tubercular Veterans' Association. The Dominion Government intends to initiate legislation which will provide for the erection of five cottages at Kamloops for the use of T.B. veterans who are not in need of further institutional care.

This plan was first suggested as far back as 1917. Ottawa has heard about it many times. Quite a number of Federal officials have discussed it on the spot at Kamloops on which it was suggested a tubercular colony might be established with lasting benefit to the patient and of no mean economic value to the community in particular and the country as a whole.

As a commencement of the plan which has produced wealthy communities in the neighboring republic it is a good sign. True, it is a very small beginning, and is to be confined to ex-servicemen; but it may expand and eventually many more of the four thousand sufferers in this Province may get a chance to regain some of their lost vitality under conditions that are as favorable as they can be made. Nor is there any reason why the form of sheltered employment which could be carried on in such a colony should not put it on an economically self-sustaining basis before very long.

In early manhood he came to the United States, but left in a few years to become professor of history at Strasbourg University and later at the University of Freiburg; then he returned to hold the same position at the University of Chicago for seven years.

Less than half a century ago primeval forest occupied the site upon which Vancouver and Greater Vancouver now stand. Tomorrow what is known as Vancouver proper and what is known as South

Vancouver will decide whether they shall become one civic entity and advertise itself as a community with a population of more than 150,000, or whether they shall each go their own way and continue to split the population figures by municipal charters. If this enormous growth can take place in less than half a century, a period in which little more than the normal trade opportunities have been seized, what will be the outcome of the next fifty years of the teeming millions of the Orient in the market for much of that which the Occident alone is able so far to supply? It is a pleasant prospect for Pacific Coast communities.

DR. FRANK CRANE
On THE GOLD STANDARD AND HONESTY

THE reason why the best judgment of the world adheres to the gold standard is that it is honest. That is, there is enough in the bank to pay for all its obligations if they are not all come at the same time. There is a reasonable amount of gold kept in reserve.

Communists talk about capitalism and the conspiracy of money, and all that sort of thing; but the fact remains that capitalist countries, at the head of which are reckoned America and Great Britain, are the most prosperous countries.

As a matter of fact a country reverts to the gold standard simply because it prefers honest and straightforward means of doing business and is not bitten by the bug of inflation.

HEALTH & DISEASE PRE-NATAL CARE

The question of pre-natal influence often arises. This question cannot be answered too dogmatically, but the kind of parents determines largely the kind of baby that is to be born.

It need hardly be mentioned that in case of any possibilities of venereal infection an early examination is essential to the health of both the mother and the child.

O. B. V. Robinson Investigated Janet Smith's Death, Says Point Grey Reeve
He Performed Work Before Second Disappearance of Wong

Vancouver, June 19.—O. B. V. Robinson, head of the Canadian Detective Agency, a private concern, now in Okalla Jail charged with illegal detention of Wong Foon Sing in connection with the second kidnaping of the Chinese housewife, was the man employed by the Police Commissioners of Point Grey to clear up the mystery surrounding the murder of Janet Smith.

A statement to this effect was made today by Reeve J. A. Paton of Point Grey and head of the Police Commission of that municipality.

Reeve Paton stated that for his work in connection with the case Robinson was to have been paid $1,000, but extras crept into the matter and he was finally given $1,250.

MAIL MAN HAS CHANCE TO STUDY HUMAN NATURE

For a thorough insight into the various intricate problems which confront the loyal mail man in his daily round of duty, during which he comes into direct contact with the destinies of thousands of families, Emory Johnston's photoplay, "The Mail Man," now playing at the Coliseum Theatre is keenly accurate. That the mail man has more opportunity to study human nature first hand with its reactions to joy and to sorrow, than any human being in the civilized world, is made apparent in its rich fund of dramatic incident, masterfully created and executed by the Johnsons, mother and son. As Emory Johnston displayed a thorough knowledge of the trials and problems of other public servants in "The Third Alarm" and "In the Name of the Law," in "The Mail Man" she rises to greater heights of sympathetic encouragement to the humble heroes in gray. In the same way, Emory Johnson sets a distinct precedent with his brilliant picture glorifying the least appreciated, and most highly deserving man in the world—the mail man.

SCOTTISH CASTLE USED TO PRODUCE "THE SPORTING VENUS"

A castle in Scotland, built in the year 1590, became a movie "set" for Marshall Neilan's Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Sporting Venus," now at the Dominion Theatre.

Many exterior scenes for the picture were made in the castle grounds, with the gray stone walls of the stately old mansion in the background. On the screen it appears as the manor of Blanche Sweet, the "sporting venus" of the picture. Neilan points out the highest tower of the castle as the torture room in feudal days.

"They told me that one of the owners of the castle had been put to death in that tower," Neilan said. "I went up to see it and they had a radio set in it!"

CONNIE TALMADGE INTRODUCES LATEST IN PLUMED GOWNS

Constance Talmadge, like a true daughter of California, has started an ostrich revival among the screen stars of Hollywood.

She is using ostrich on her gowns and wraps and on her afternoon and evening costumes as well. There is no denying that ostrich lends a lightness, grace and color to gowns that nothing else could give.

One of Constance's gowns in her new comedy, "Her Night of Romance," is of black satin tube with a border of rows of black ostrich and of white ostrich mottled with black; at the side is a cascade of red roses with trailing stems.

Constance also has reintroduced the feather boa which is now one of the smartest style accessories, also the yellow plume style which lies like a soft, weightless collar about the neck and floats to two and three yard lengths.

In her new gowns, Constance uses ostrich principally at the hem, with occasionally a bit on the bodice as a shoulder knot, a corsage rightly curled, to outline an edge. She employs all colors, sometimes to match the frock, but more frequently in black and white or speckled black and white.

In "Her Night of Romance" Constance is seen as an American heiress in a most amusing love mix-up with an English lord and a London money-lender. The picture was produced by Joseph M. Schenck for First National, under direction of Sidney Olcott. It is the current feature at the Capitol Theatre.

EMIL JANNINGS IN "QUO VADIS" HAS GREAT ROLE

Emil Jannings, for several years one of the foremost screen stars of Europe, has made rapid strides towards stardom in this country. His work in "Passion," "Deception," and other pictures made abroad and imported to this country has won wide acclaim from photoplay critics. And now, in First National's new and gigantic production of the Sienkiewicz classic, "Quo Vadis," Jannings, in the role of Nero, is said to have eclipsed any characterization he has ever done before. "Quo Vadis" will be the screen attraction at the Capitol Theatre next Monday.

"MUTT AND JEFF" TO BE OFFERED AT PLAYHOUSE

Jess Le Roy, well-known stage and screen player, joins the Frank Morton Company at the Playhouse next week, making his initial Victoria appearance in "Mutt and Jeff," another of the cartoon musical comedies to be presented as a series by the Morton Company. For the last times to-day and to-morrow the current musical comedy, "Ship Ahoy," and, on the screen, Guy Bates Post in "Omar the Tentmaker" will be shown. This combination is one of the most pretentious programmes offered by the Playhouse this season. The manager of the Playhouse Theatre announces that he will soon show one of the most remarkable motion pictures of the present season—one that has met with unusual success and has received high praise from the critics. It is "The Age of Desire," a First National picture, and it was produced by Frank Borzage, the directorial genius responsible for "Children of Dust" and "Humoresque," pictures never to be forgotten by those who saw them.

Seattle, June 18.—R. F. Tolmie, sixty-seven, of Victoria, retired Deputy Minister of Mines of British Columbia, in a hand-to-hand battle with an armed negro thug here was struck over the head with the butt of his assailant's gun and knocked unconscious last night. The criminal escaped.

of the house, but heard the footsteps following him. Turning, he faced the pistol of the intruder, whom he now saw was a negro.

CONGRATULATIONS WERE SENT TO AMUNDSEN

New York, June 19.—A radiogram of congratulation to Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth on their party's safe return from the North Pole region to Spitzbergen was sent yesterday afternoon by the American Geographical Society. It read as follows:

DISCUSS REVISION OF BOOK OF PRAYER

London, June 19 (Canadian Press Cable).—After nearly two days of discussion, the House of Laity of the Church of England, comprising the lay branch of the Church of England's Assembly, expressed its belief that the great majority of the laymen are satisfied with the present communion services as incorporated in the Book of Common Prayer, but agreed to a resolution for the insertion of one alternative form. This alternative form provides for the wearing of vestments and permits reservation of the Sacrament for communion of the sick only.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily and the Burdock Burrs

(By Howard R. Garis)

Copyright, 1925, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Warm was the sun and gentle the wind one day in Woodland, where Uncle Wiggily Longears lived, his hollow stump bungalow with Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, his new wife, and many little boy and girl rabbits. So lovely was the weather that it is no wonder Jingle and Tangle and Scooter and Weezie and Wizzle—in fact, all the little bunnies—didn't want to go to school.

"But yes, my dear—come! hurry! You must go to school and you must be on time!" cried Mrs. Longears as she looked at their pink noses to see if they were twinkling straight as was their new daddy's. "Hop along to school like good children. Soon the Summer vacation will be here."

"Oh, I wish we didn't have to go to school!" sighed Jingle. "I wish we could stay home and go adventuring—like Uncle Wiggily," sighed Jangle. "I'll take you adventuring after you come from school," promised Mrs. Longears.

"Oh, that will be lovely!" said most of the children. But Wizzle, who was twin brother to Weezie, whispered to his sister:

"I'm not going to wait until after school to go adventuring!" "What are you going to do?" asked Weezie, in surprise. "I'm going adventuring right now!" declared Wizzle, positive like. "Come on, we'll have some fun," and he pulled his sister to one side off the main path through the woods.

"This isn't the way to school!" cried Weezie. "I know it," answered her brother. "We aren't going to school! It's too nice out of doors to sit in the old hollow stump school saying lessons for the lady mouse teacher. Come on, we'll run away from school and have an adventure!"

"Oh-oo-oo-oo!" gasped Weezie, but in the end she followed her brother off through the woods an over the fields. At first it was fun to listen to the birds singing and the bees humming. They rolled on the green grass, they gathered flowers and ran along the edge of the brook, and all of a sudden, Weezie fell in.

"Oh, I'm all wet!" she cried. "That doesn't matter, you'll soon dry," said Wizzle. "I'll help you out." But when he had his paw to Weezie in the brook, his foot slipped and he fell into a puddle of mud. Oh, but he was a sorry sight when he crawled out, and Weezie looked very dreary when she waded out of the water. The little rabbits looked sadly at each other.

"We had better go up in that sunny field and get dry," said Wizzle. But the field was filled with burdock weed plants. And growing on the burdock were many sticky, prickly burrs which clung to the fur of the little rabbit boy and girl, until they were covered thickly.

And then, all of a sudden, there was a rustling noise in the grass, and Weezie, who was trying to pick the burrs off her legs, cried: "Oh, maybe it's the Fuzzie Fox!" "No, it's our Daddy—Uncle Wiggily," joyfully cried Wizzle. "Who is calling my name?" asked the bunny gentleman stopping to look at the two little rabbits.

"They, we did—don't you know us?" asked Weezie. "This is Wizzle and I'm his sister. We live at your bungalow and—"

"What's that—you are Weezie and Wizzle?" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Nonsense! Weezie and Wizzle are in school! Besides you are nothing but a bunch of burdock burrs—you aren't even rabbits!" "Oh, yes, we are. Yes, we are! Truly we are!" cried the twins. "Help us pull off the burdocks and clean off the mud and water and you'll see!"

So Uncle Wiggily did this and beneath the layers of mud, water and burdocks he found his own two little rabbits. "Oh, ha! So you played truant from school, did you?" asked Mr. Longears. "Yes—yes—we did!" sobbed Weezie and Wizzle. "But we'll never do it again! And they never did. And on the way home the Bob Cat tried to jump down out of a tree to nibble their ears. But Uncle Wiggily threw burdock burrs at the head of the cat until they covered his eyes and he couldn't see to catch the rabbits. So if the ink bottle doesn't stand on its head and try to pop its cork at the looking glass, I'll tell you next about the Uncle Wiggily and the four-leaf clover."

WALTER H. CROSS DIED AT UPLANDS

Well-known Resident Will be Interred in Montreal

Walter Herbert Cross, a resident of this city for the past ten years, passed away yesterday afternoon at his home at the Uplands. Mr. Cross was a son of the late Hon. Mr. Justice Cross of Montreal, in which city he was born sixty-six years ago. For many years he was a notary public in Montreal until farming attracted him to the West. After a successful career in ranching in Alberta he retired in 1916, and came to Victoria to reside.

He is survived by his widow and four children, three daughters and one son; three brothers, Senator Harry Cross of Douglas, Wyoming; A. E. Cross, a prominent resident of Calgary; and Edmund Cross of Edmonton, and one sister, Mrs. W. W. B. MacInnes, wife of Mr. MacInnes, vice-president of the C.P.R., in charge of western traffic. Two of his daughters are at present in Paris studying.

The funeral will be held from the B.C. Funeral Chapel on Monday, after which the remains will be forwarded to Montreal for interment. Mrs. Cross will accompany the remains to the East.

MOONLIGHT TRIP PROMISES TO BE A GREAT SUCCESS

As the time draws near there is every indication that all accommodations will be taken for the Victoria Liberal Association's moonlight excursion to-morrow. The Princess Victoria will be used for the trip, the Princess Adelaide being found too small to accommodate the crowd after the late rush for tickets. The Sixteenth Canadian Scottish band will play all the evening. There is every indication of perfect weather and not a single thing has been left undone to make the party a success.

ACTION ON BERRY LOAN IS POSTPONED

Action on the proposed loan of $100,000 to mainland berry growers to assist them in their crop has been postponed until next week pending a meeting of the Provincial Cabinet. With only two ministers in the city, Hon. J. E. Macdonald, acting Premier, has decided that no step involving so much money should be taken now.

Aberdeen, Washington, delegates to the Eagles Convention were greatly impressed with their entertainment and welcome while in Victoria. Secretary W. L. Hynd of Aberdeen Aerle has forwarded to The Times the following official letter of appreciation: "On behalf of the delegates of Aberdeen Aerle No. 24, F.O.E., I wish to thank the Mayor, F.O.E., and citizens of Victoria, B.C., for the kind treatment and hospitality accorded us during our visit to your beautiful city. I assure you that we appreciate it and will always have a longing to return and visit you again."

Marling of Colwood First to Tee Off

At Pacific Northwest Golf Tournament To-day

Tacoma, June 19.—The Pacific Northwest tournament opened in ideal weather with hardly a noticeable breeze. The course is in fine condition. The first golfer to tee off was A. Marling of the Colwood Club, Victoria.

Dave Ayton, with a score of 22, led the field at noon to-day when about half of the players had turned in. In the Pacific Northwest open golf championship, Jack Houston of Seattle was second, one stroke behind; Neil Christian of Yakima, the defending champion, turned in a 27.

Other scores follow: A. Marling 22, Frank Noble 25, Cleve Jefferson 25, W. Price 27, D. Hunter Jr. 25, Perry Gal 24, Fred Henwood 26, Ben Stein 27, Frank Smith 21, W. J. Noonan 27, Mel Smith 21, A. W. Watson 27, Johnny Junior 29, Forest Watson 26, Dave Black 28, P. Delp 24, Jimmy Huisch 28, O. F. Willing 30, R. B. Baker 24, G. M. Pursey 26 and M. E. Naeel 28.

WITHDRAWS MOTION TO PAY CANADIANS FOR WAR LOSSES

Ottawa, June 19.—Owing to the opposition to the resolution expressed by several members, Hon. A. B. Copp, secretary of state in the House of Commons this afternoon withdrew a Government resolution preliminary to a measure providing for the payment of claims for reparations for losses suffered by Canadian nationals during the Great War.

Mr. Copp declared that the Government's proposal was to remunerate Canadian nationals who had claims before his department for several years for indemnity owing to losses caused by Germany. Many of these were poor people. He regretted the attitude of the House, but in the circumstances he would withdraw the resolution.

BOAK CASE SENT BACK FOR RULING

Deaf Juror and Improper Panel Not Grounds For Appeal

Misdirection of Jury Plea is Vital Point Remaining

The Court of Appeals of British Columbia will reconvene consideration of the Boak appeal against conviction on a charge of manslaughter, which resulted from a fatal accident on Quadra Street last year. The Supreme Court of Canada, by a ruling issued yesterday, has declared in effect that the constitution of the jury panel, and the inclusion of a deaf juror, were not grounds for appeal. The panel of the trial jury, are immaterial matters.

The decision of the British Columbia Court of Appeals, which had ordered a new trial because of these points, has been vacated or wiped out by the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada.

The British Columbia Court of Appeals heard argument on a third point of appeal, that the trial judge had misdirected the jury on material points, but had rendered no decision on this aspect of the appeal from the trial court.

POLICE HOLD GUNS SAID TO BELONG TO WONG ABDUCTORS

Are of Type Issued to Municipal Officers

Seized Following Arrest of Two Men in Vancouver

Vancouver, June 19.—Two revolver, of police pattern, said to have been in the possession of men who abducted Wong Poon Sing from F. L. Baker's residence on Shaughnessy Heights, Vancouver, on March 20 last, are now in custody of the Provincial police, according to information given out here. These guns are of a type issued by municipalities to their officers and it is stated that an amazingly interesting story will be eventually disclosed in court proceedings as to their ownership and how they came to be in possession of the kidnaping party.

The revolver, seized following the arrest of O. B. V. Robinson and V. W. Norton in Vancouver on Wednesday, are only two of a number of similar type used by the kidnapers. Badges of a style used by police officers are declared to have been in the hands of those who rushed the Chinese boy from the residence to waiting automobile. These badges are now being traced by the authorities.

WEEK'S REMAND IN J. S. COWPER CASE

Vancouver, June 19.—The late Mr. Fletcher came from Weston, England, thirty-five years ago, and settled in Victoria, where he was an engineer for the Phoenix Brewery. Later he spent some time in Vancouver, taking charge of the new Nanaimo Brewery. During those years he was a frequent visitor to Salt Spring Island, where he was well known to all old-timers, and where thirty years ago, accompanied by his wife, he made his home. In connection with his nephew, Mr. E. Carson, he went in for extensive poultry farming. The late Mr. Fletcher, a well-known resident of Salt Spring Island, was found dead at his home at Ganges Harbor on Wednesday.

LA FOLLETTE'S DEATH REGRETTED BY COOLIDGE

President of U.S. Wrote Letter of Condolence to Widow of Senator

Washington, June 19.—To Mrs. La Follette, following the death of Senator Robert M. La Follette, yesterday President Coolidge wrote:

"The news having just reached me of the death of Senator La Follette, I wish to extend to you and your family the sympathy of myself and Mrs. Coolidge. As you know, I presided over the Senate for a considerable period while he was a member of that body and so came to know of his great ability and untiring energy.

He has left behind him a great course of friends who will, I know, do everything in their power to comfort you in this hour, but my own experience tells me that nothing that mortals can do will be of very much help to you.

"I trust you may, as the years go by, find an increasing satisfaction in the long list of honors that were conferred upon Senator La Follette by his countrymen.

As soon as he heard of his colleague's death, Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, one-time follower of Mr. La Follette but of late opposed to him politically, called at the home to extend his sympathy to members of the family.

Mrs. La Follette, the Senator's confidante and adviser for forty-three years of married life, withstood the shock of his death bravely. In addition to her, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Fola, Middleton of New York and Mrs. Ralph Sucker of Washington, and two sons, Edward Madison and Robert, who had served as his father's secretary.

Born on a farm near Madison, June 14, 1855, La Follette was a contemporary of Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson and Harding, as well as "Czar" Reed, James G. Blaine and Mark Hanna.

In stature he was a figure to attract attention. His build was short, heavy and exceptionally strong, with a broad chest and powerful arms. He wore a high, heavy pompadour above deep-set, sharp blue-brown eyes with overhanging brows; and had a broad, high forehead, prominent aquiline nose and mobile mouth.

In public address, Senator La Follette's delivery was dynamic and dramatic always, with violent gestures and penetrating voice. When he warmed to an oratorical effort, he had a habit of tossing back his pompadour with a quick, sharp jerk of the head and running his fingers through his thick locks. His speeches often lasted for hours, especially during his filibusters in the Senate.

Senator La Follette derived his name from ancestral stock of French Huguenot refugees. His Kentucky father, Josiah La Follette, and his mother, Mary (Purgeson) La Follette, were pioneers in Wisconsin, where they went from Indiana. Their children were reared in the face of poverty, but all were able to attend the rural schools.

SUPPORTED MOTHER

Robert was admitted to the University of Wisconsin by special waiver of entrance charges. After his graduation he was called upon to support his mother and sister while teaching a country school and studying law. He was admitted to the bar in 1889 and soon entered politics as a candidate for prosecuting attorney. Despite the opposition of what he termed "political bosses and machines," he was elected and subsequently re-elected. Again over the opposition of party leaders, he was nominated and elected to the forty-ninth Congress in 1884, becoming at twenty-nine years of age the youngest member of the House.

He was elected Governor of Wisconsin in 1901 on a reform platform. As a Presidential candidate Senator La Follette began an active campaign for progressive support in December, 1911, but while speaking in Philadelphia the following February he collapsed after a long address and many of his supporters turned to Roosevelt. He continued his campaign, but it was a hopeless enterprise.

OPPOSED SPECIAL PRIVILEGE

During his early service in the Senate, he won prominence by repeated forays against "special privilege" and "special interests" in tariff and other legislation. He broke with President Taft in 1911 and opposed the administration's Canadian reciprocity treaty. He was an early advocate of woman suffrage, labor legislation and taxation of the wealthy classes.

URGED CONFERENCE

Opposing United States intervention in the World War, Senator La Follette urged a peace conference of neutrals. He took a leading part in the spectacular filibuster against the armament bill, asked for by President Wilson, and encompassed its defeat early in 1917. He was among the famous "twelve willful men" named by President Wilson as obstructionists.

After voting against the United States war declaration, Senator La Follette also opposed the Selective Draft Act, but supported the enormous war appropriations and other bills. He sponsored many "free speech" proposals, fought ratification of the Treaty of Versailles, and in many long speeches after the war under the Espionage Act.

INQUIRY ABANDONED

During 1917 the Senate received a mass of petitions demanding Senator La Follette's expulsion, principally because of a speech at St. Paul to a non-Partisan League convention. The Minnesota Public Safety Commission was among those demanding his unseating, and the Wisconsin Legislature passed resolutions of censure. It was during that political period that Mr. La Follette was hung in effigy and denounced by resolutions of civic and other organizations throughout the country. An investigation of the St. Paul speech, based on the war and the part of the United States in it, finally was made by the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee. Senator La Follette submitted copies of the speech and other evidence, and charged that he had been misquoted, a charge admitted by some of the reporters, and the Senate inquiry was dropped in February 1918.

SEAMEN'S LAW

Always a champion of labor, the La Follette seamen's law, designed to safeguard the interests of United States seamen, probably in the most important measure bearing his name. Labor formed the nucleus of the support to his independent candidacy for the Presidency in 1924, when President Coolidge was re-elected.

Senator La Follette took a prominent part in the framing of tariff and tax legislation, fighting the Fordney-McCumber tariff measure of the Harding administration, and opposing the domestic and private life of Senator La Follette might be described as ideal. At the age of twenty-six he married Miss Belle Cas of Baraboo, Wis., and from that moment she became his political and well as his personal partner. She took an active part in all his campaigns, served as his secretary while he was in the House, and aided him in preparing his speeches.

RECORDS SMASHED AT TOURISTS' CAMP

Greater Registrations This Year Than Last

Fifty-four more cars than last year have been registered at the Victoria tourist camp at Curtis Point to date. Last year up to this time there were 111 cars. Registrations last night brought the total for this year at 167 cars. Thirteen weary cars after a long day on the road gazed with delight on the appealing haven as they pulled up at the gates last night. Although the season is yet in its infancy, there have been as many as twenty-two cars in the camp in one day. Mr. and Mrs. Upstead of Ontario came for one week's stay, which has lengthened to three weeks, and they are still enjoying Victoria. During the Eagles' convention many of the delegates took advantage of the accommodation provided.

The improvements at the camp have created much favorable comment. There is a new kitchen with a new stove, more "bathhouses" and washing accommodation, with a plentiful supply of hot water.

VICTORIA HAS IDEAL GOLF COURSES

Colwood Course Is Known To Golfers All Over Continent

Site Was Scene of Notable Sporting Events in Victoria's Early Days; Course Laid Out by A. Vernon Macan and W. Chambers; Opened in Autumn of 1914.

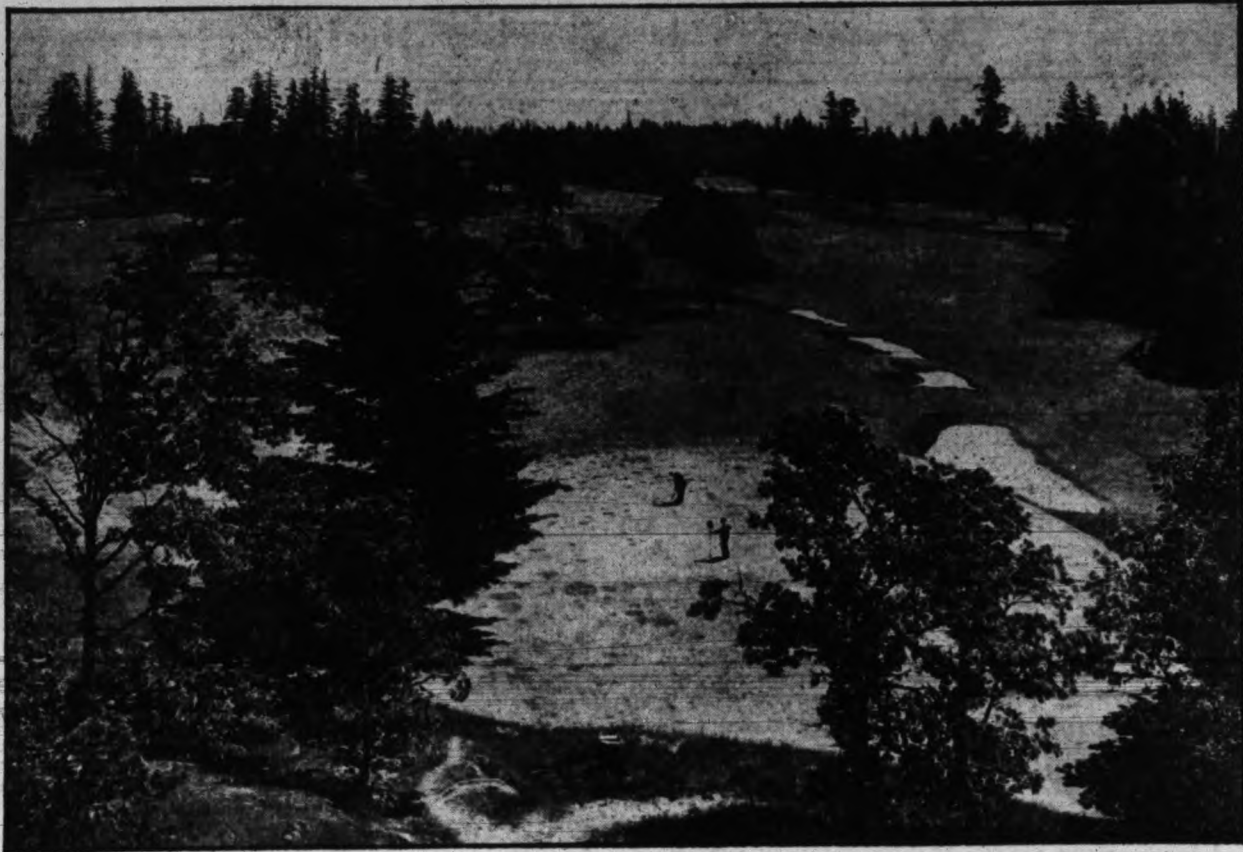

The site of the Colwood Golf and Country Club, seen in the light of sporting tradition, dates back many more years than the majority of its present members can recall. One of the many properties of the Hudson's Bay Company, it was unoccupied as a farm or other productive concern, and was the scene of many gymkhanas and hurdle races in the "early days" of Victoria, when British men-of-war were stationed at Esquimalt. One feature of the former happenings is still preserved when Jack Frost holds sway—skating on the pond which forms the hazard on the fourth hole.

The days of the races were long past when, in the latter part of 1912, some long-sighted members of the Victoria Golf Club, foreseeing the loss of their links owing to increasing taxation, which happily has since been lessened, began casting about for a suitable location for a new course. A tract of land lying between the villages of Colwood and Langford was negotiated for with the Hudson's Bay Company, and chiefly through the instrumentality of the late Hon. James Dunsmuir and Joseph A. Seward the present links were purchased. A. Vernon Macan and the late W. Chambers, another well-known English golfer, together laid out the course, and work was begun and continued in 1913 and the first part of 1914. In the Autumn of that year the new course was opened, a team of golfers from Seattle coming over for the opening match. Luncheon that day was served in the old club house, now used as a pro's shop and accommodation for some of the staff.

SURVIVED HARD TEST

The first few years were, owing to the great war, a hard financial struggle, but the club weathered the storm of adversity and hard times and has steadily improved its course

NINTH GREEN FROM CLUBHOUSE AT COLWOOD

Golf Has Been Played At Macaulay Point For Half a Century

Esquimalt's Famous Old Course is Ideally Situated With Six Holes in Full View of Sea; Macaulay Point Golf Club's Third Year.

Macaulay Point Golf Club is just completing its third year, having been organized on July 1, 1922, taking over the Macaulay Point course when the United Services Club moved to their new eighteen-hole course at the Uplands.

Esquimalt's famous old course is ideally situated, six of the holes being in full view of the sea. Many improvements have been made since the Macaulay Point Club was formed, the laying of water to all the greens being the most important, making it possible to keep the greens in good playing condition throughout the year. The purchase of a triple horse mower and its constant use on the fairways since the Spring of the year has improved the playing qualities of the course beyond all expectations. The daisies, so long an annoyance, have been eliminated by its use, to the joy and satisfaction of the members. The turf of the fairways is exceptionally good and is the particular pride of the club.

WITHIN REACH OF ALL

The fees of this club are extremely moderate. Entrance ten dollars, annual subscription fifteen dollars. The idea in mind in forming the club was to bring it within the scope of players of modest means. At present there are vacancies for several men.

Any information regarding membership can be obtained by telephoning either 1559R or 1495.

The present committee of the club is composed as follows: President, A. R. Wolfenden; committee, D. Fyvie, W. B. Christopher, Commander G. L. Stephens, Major W. W. Rowson, A. E. Ashe, J. A. Davidson; club captain, T. Angus; ladies' captain, Mrs. H. L. Roberts; secretary, Major G. Sisman.

The Macaulay Point course is one of the oldest on the continent and has been played over for nearly half a century. It was constructed for the army and navy.

Mrs. Brookline: "I understand the Eskimos are very keen domino players, and sometimes bet heavily, even putting up their wives and losing them."

Mr. Brookline: "Well, I'll bet there are a lot of good losers among the Eskimos."

Seems to me Mother Nature has provided for everything," he said.

"What prompts that reflection?"

asked one of those who had the misfortune to be near him.

"Why," answered Muggins, "look at the way she has placed our ears. Yet thousands of years ago she didn't know we were going to hook spectacles over them."

and enlarged its membership. In 1922 the Pacific Northwest Golf Association championship was held at Colwood, and in time for that event the present club house was built.

To-day Colwood ranks as one of the best golf courses in North America, and its directors and members are continually receiving compliments upon its intrinsic beauties and the excellent test of golf which it offers.

OFFICERS OF THE CLUB

J. A. Seward is the president of the club and T. S. McPherson the captain. The directors are: Sir Frank Barnard, W. S. Terry, A. C. Flumerfelt, J. L. Mara, B. S. Heisterman, J. A. Rihet, Capt. J. W. ## Unequaled Sport Offered To Lady Golfer In Victoria

For the lady golfer Victoria presents opportunities of indulging in this sport unequalled almost in Canada, and rarely found in the country to the south of the 49th parallel. Not only is the weather sufficiently equable to permit of feminine indulgence in the royal and ancient game the year round, but the local clubs are free from irksome restrictions which so often face the average woman player in the clubs in the larger cities.

FEW INHIBITIONS

With the exception of the Victoria Golf Club, where lady members are prohibited from playing on Sundays, the ladies of the other clubs are extended the same privileges as the men, and on Sundays and holidays, the lovely greens and fairways at the Colwood Golf and Country Club, at the Uplands, and at the United Services Club provide a setting for many would-be imitators of Cecil Leitch and Joyce Wethered, as well as for the host of followers of the male "stars" of the golfing world.

Many a fair American visitor has expressed her admiration of the facilities offered to women golfers by the local courses. In Seattle the majority of the clubs will not allow women to tee off until afternoon, in order to allow the men to get clear away from the "first holes," but in Victoria the ladies can go out at any time, with the one exception quoted above, and find pleasure in following the elusive "pull."

APPEAL TO BEGINNERS

While these privileges, naturally have their particular appeal to the woman who rejoices in a low handicap, and has ambitions to the title of champion, they are, perhaps most appreciated by the woman who is a beginner just yielding to the fascination of the game. In larger centres where women are merely tolerated on the golf course, the beginner is apt to quail at the hedge of inhibitions created by very heavy male membership lists, but in Victoria there is nothing to discourage the timid lady member, except perhaps the occasional cry of "Fore" on the fairways and greens. It is this pleasant state of affairs which is leading to a steady increase in the number of lady golfers and near-golfers in this city.

The charm of the settings of the various clubs also has its appeal to the feminine devotee of golf. Colwood Golf and Country Club has a clubhouse of palatial size and equipment, set on a rocky eminence rimmed with gnarled rocks and towering pines. At the Oak Bay resort, a popular form of diversion, chosen by the hostesses is the morning round of golf, followed by luncheon, and then a quiet game of cards in the dimly-lighted, adorned cardroom. While tea on the veranda with the vista of snow-capped Mount Baker, the long sweep of the Olympics, and the blue waters of the gulf, is a pleasure long to be remembered. Victoria women are indeed fortunate in their privilege of playing their favorite game in a setting generously endowed by Nature in one of her happiest moods.

Uplands Club Took Over Site Planned For Municipal Links

Eighteen-hole Course Has Fine Location Overlooking the Straits; Splendid New Clubhouse Built to Replace Structure Recently Destroyed by Fire.

Victoria's newest eighteen-hole course is at the Uplands Golf Club and has a commanding view of the city, straits and mountains. This club was organized a little over three years ago. It is an outgrowth of the old United Services Golf Club, which formerly operated at Macaulay Point. The nine-hole course proved too small for the rapidly growing membership and the club decided to go ahead with the construction of an eighteen-hole course.

Just prior to reaching this decision, an effort had been made to build a municipal links at the Uplands but the by-law was defeated.

The United Services Club arranged to take over this land and changed the name to the Uplands Golf Club. After three years the course is in splendid shape. Certain alterations have been made to the course and at present it represents a very good test of a golfer's ability.

LOST CLUBHOUSE

A few months ago the club suffered the loss of its beautiful clubhouse, through fire. Undaunted the club went ahead and constructed even better quarters until to-day it ranks with the best on the coast.

Officials of the Uplands Golf Club are as follows: President, Fred G. Fowkes; captain, R. J. Darcus; vice-captain, G. S. Carr; committee, A. V. Price, H. F. Hepburn, R. Peachey, J. Cameron, S. Staden, P. Austin, Secretary, J. Caven.

The fixture card is as follows: July 1 (Dominion Day)—One club competition. Medal round—full handicap.
July 12—Nanaimo vs. Uplands, at Nanaimo.
July 18—Monthly medal. Medal play—full handicap.

July 19—Duncan at Victoria (Uplands).
July 26—Monthly medal. Medal play—full handicap.
August 2—Oak Bay vs. Uplands, at Uplands.

August 7—Golfers' Magazine excursion, at Colwood. Chas. Evans, Capt. Carter, Jim Barnes and Jock Hutchison.
August 9—Monthly medal. Match play against par.
August 10-11—Amateur and professional competition, at Rainier.
August 16—Captain's vs. vice-captain's teams.
August 22—Medal Round. Match play against par.

August 30—Uplands vs. Point Grey, at Uplands.
September 5-6-7—City championship, at Colwood.
September 5—Qualifying rounds, 26 holes (32 to qualify). Flights of 16.
September 6—First and second rounds.
September 7—Third and semi-final rounds.
September 12—Finals. Monthly medal play—full handicap.

September 13—Tombstone. Captain's vs. vice-captain's teams.
September 26—Monthly medal—tombstone.
October 4—Uplands vs. Colwood, (a) Uplands, (b) Colwood.
October 11—Monthly medal. Medal play—full handicap.

October 12—Tombstone Cup, 26 holes. Medal play: Full handicap allowed. First 32 to play, 26 holes following Sunday—22 holes to count.
October 25—Uplands Cup. Second stage.

Entries will be received up to June 30. Handicap competition for players with handicap of 20 and over. The competition will be match play with three-quarters of the difference between handicaps being allowed.

Two handicaps being allowed. The first round will be played during the week July 5 to 12, and subsequent rounds during the following weeks.

CITY IS KNOWN AS GOLFER'S PARADISE

Victoria Appeals To Golfing World

Victoria is always referred to as the Golfer's Paradise. Not only does the city boast of many beautiful courses but it has what many other larger and more wealthy cities do not possess, a hospitality that makes a great appeal to the golfer.

Victoria is so favorably situated that it attracts thousands of golfers here each year for a few rounds of golf. They come under the spell of the Victoria hospitality and instead of staying one day they stay a week and sometimes months.

Golf associations always want to come to Victoria for their championships. Two years ago the Senior Northwest Golf Association was formed and the first championship was staged at the Victoria Golf Club. By right the tournament last year should have gone elsewhere but the Americans and players from the Canadian mainland refused to entertain the idea of going to any other city. So they played at the Colwood Club.

The seniors are holding their third championship in August of this year and again they are coming to Victoria. They will play at Oak Bay. The Capital City has a grip on the seniors and they refused to be steered off a good thing.

P. N. W. EYED VICTORIA

The Pacific Northwest Golf Association which held its annual championships here three years ago was very anxious to come to Victoria again this year. Tacoma, however, was opening a new course and entered an invitation for the championship in 1925. J. M. Wood, captain of the Colwood Club, who attended the meeting, said that Victoria would be glad to entertain the P. N. W. but that it would waive in favor of Tacoma owing to the circumstances in the case.

Any golfer who likes to play golf every day in the year can do so in Victoria. He does not have to oil his clubs and lock them away for six months in the year as do his brethren in the snowbound Eastern provinces and states. There is never a day when the local links are not well filled with people.

The city now has three full eighteen hole courses and two nine-hole affairs. Victoria, Colwood and Uplands boast of the full-sized course, while Macaulay and Cedar Hill are homes of the bob-tailed ones.

MANY FINE GOLFERS
Many splendid golfers have been developed in this city and a flock of youngsters are coming who will make names for themselves very soon. They have climbed upon many of the veterans who have above on the links for years. The B. C. amateur championship held here in April brought to the forefront a number of young golfers who can hit the ball with remarkable ability.

Victoria Golf Club, Formed In Year 1893, Owns Famous Course

Hon. E. Dewdney Was First President of Club; Picturesque Links on Seafront at Oak Bay Has Been Scene of Many Notable Tourneys; Course Greatly Improved

In the Autumn of 1893 a few enthusiasts prominent among whom was the late Harvey Combe, decided that the royal and ancient game would meet with favor in Victoria.

An informal meeting was held on November 7, 1893. This was the beginning of the Oak Bay Golf Club.

There were present Sir Richard Musgrave, in the chair, and Messrs. P. G. Vernon, Geo. Gillespie, A. P. Luxton, G. A. Kirk, J. W. Anderson, W. Ridgway-Wilson, B. H. Tyrwhitt Drake, W. H. Langley, Hewitt Bostock, C. Ward, Lionel H. Webber, W. A. Ward and O. H. Van Millingen.

A resolution was passed that those present form themselves into a golf club; that the name of the club be the Victoria Golf Club; that His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia (Hon. E. Dewdney) be requested to accept the presidency; that Mr. O. H. Van Millingen fill the position of hon. secretary pro tem; and a committee was formed to ascertain the cost of preparing the ground, the probable amount of running expenses per month, and to formulate rules.

A general meeting of the club was held the next day, at which this resolution was confirmed, and it was decided to take immediate steps to get the ground in order.

The ground consisted of the present links—the 16th and 17th fairways were the only wooded parts—though it was not until the Autumn of 1895 the club had 18 holes.

The property then belonged to the Pemberton estate.

The entrance fee at the beginning was $5.00, and a monthly subscription of 50¢—after the membership reached fifty the entrance fee was to be $10.

Within three months there were 125 members.

B. C. CHAMPIONSHIP

In September, 1895, the club resolved to hold an annual contest for the championship of British Columbia. On the 7th of January, 1895, Hewitt Bostock (now Senator) offered a cup for the championship to be known as the "Bostock Cup," and to be played for alternately on the Victoria and Vancouver links. For some years it was played for at Victoria only, there being no other available course in British Columbia. Now the cup is played for in accordance with the regulations of the British Columbia Golf Association, and on the links in British Columbia fixed under such regulations.

Apparently the first interclub competition was on April 18, 1895, with Tacoma, at Edson, when six Victorians, viz. Harvey Combe, C. B. Stahl-schmidt, W. H. Langley, A. P. Luxton, C. J. Prior and J. W. Anderson, met six Tacomaans, C. S. Milliken, S. Macleod, A. J. Bremner, J. Dabhart, Rev. W. J. Cornett and T. B. Mac-jean—the famous club winning by twelve strokes. The scores were remarkably high according to present times, the only one under 100 being H. Combe.

In August, 1895, the club resolved to affiliate with the Canadian Golf Association.

On the 17th of January, 1899, the committee resolved to send two delegates to Tacoma to meet delegates from the other golf clubs for the purpose of considering the formation of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association. This meeting was held in Tacoma on the 4th of February, 1899, when that association was formed. C. B. Stahl-schmidt (Victoria) being elected president, and Mr. Stuart Rice (Tacoma) secretary.

The best professional was engaged in purchased estate. In January, 1906, the Pemberton estate offered to sell the property to the golfers—an offer having been made by outsiders to purchase from the estate—presumably for a subdivision. The offer was accepted, a company was formed which bought

Unusual Statistics Taken at Open Golf Tourney In States

Willie MacFarlane Uses Steel-shafted Clubs; Hickory Did Not Suit Him

Overlapping Grip Seems Most Suitable; Popular Golf Ball Is the Mesh

The United States Open Golf Championship is now history and real history it was made with Willie MacFarlane and Bobby Jones the furnishers and the Worcester Country Club the stage.

Such like controversies make it possible to gather statistics of unusual interest connected with the game. The first tee is the spot for gathering, and only time and patience are necessary to obtain a unique golfing education.

A strict watch there will create a few surprises in the line of what the pros are favoring in the way of clubs, balls, footwear, grip and stance; how their opening shots are played and a lot of other things.

THE OVERLAPPING GRIP

The observer will soon learn that the popular grip of the present day is the overlap. Ten only in seventy-eight to seventy-two, and the interlocking and palm grip. The latter was a very small factor in the play. And the story the second day of the game was the same.

And as the overlapping grip enjoys a fine percentage, so it is with the square stance. Professional golfers use the open only in a ratio of about eight to seventy-two.

So much for the stance and grip. Another outstanding feature of the play at Lido was the popularity of wooden tees. Boxes containing tees are rather non-essentials these days, if the qualifying rounds at Lido are any criterion. Five players each day preferred to mould their own, and at Worcester manufactured "roosters" enjoyed the same popularity.

No doubt the greatest surprise to golf followers will be the statistics gathered concerning the clubs. The first day at Lido the opening tee shots were sent down the first fairway by twenty-two contestants from steel-shafted clubs. Eighteen followed with the same style at the second.

MACFARLANE USES STEEL SHAFT

At Worcester the percentage, considering the number present was even greater than at Lido. And Willie MacFarlane won the event playing with steel shafts. Jack Hutchinson, another of the stars, has taken to them. MacFarlane gave as his first reason for changing the fact that he could not obtain hickory long enough to suit him. After adopting steel he found it so suitable that hickory and himself parted company.

Passing on to footwear, the story was this. Rubber has made heavy inroads into golf. Professionals to a fifty-fifty basis have adopted it.

MESH MARK BALL POPULAR

The popular golf ball, as far as marking goes, is-day is the mesh. There's a feeling it flies better in the wind and farther as well. And don't run away with the idea that the golf doctors have hard work getting their opening shots away. Lido was a spot to throw one off concentration with its motor cars running here and there, the mesh work of phone wires in front of the tee and idle gossip close by. But not a golfer topped a drive in opening his fire there. Quite remarkable that. Pros do keep their heads down, and no two ways about that.

What they wear, how many clubs they carry, who wears spectacles and a lot of other things could be mentioned in connection with this party, but they are of little interest. In closing, it might be mentioned that they start early along the trail to ambition these days. Howard Tryon, an amateur of Providence, was the youngest on the field. He was seventeen. Probably Alex Smith, the grandfather, was the oldest. But that is a matter open to argument. There seemed to be others present to vie with Alex for this distinction.

Can Bobby Jones Bridge Golf Gap Across the Line?

By JOE WILLIAMS

THIS year at Oakmont, in the Pittsburg district, Bobby Jones, distinguished father and family man, will be defending his title as amateur golf champion for the first time.

It is fashionable, and probably altogether correct, to call the Atlanta athlete the greatest amateur golfer has ever known.

What does the coming season hold in store for this genius of the links?

History proves that no ordinary mortal can hope to rule the clubhouse for more than twelve months hand-running.

Jerome Travers was the last amateur golfer champion to repeat. He won in 1912, again in 1915, and was runner-up in 1914. This is the most remarkable demonstration of sustained championship form in the books.

TERM HIM SUPER-STAR

Bobby Jones has been sold to the golfing public on the glittering basis of a super-star.

Is a super-star big enough to carry on from one year to another? Can Jones extend his championship reign from 1924 to 1925, and thereby bridge a gap in the records that has existed since 1913, a matter of twelve years?

Naturally the question must remain unanswered. Jones ought to have a better chance than any one who has held the title in recent years, for he is enormously gifted and is young and strong. But very often these details are not as important as dumb luck.

Jones has reason enough to remember Oakmont, where this year's battle will be decided.

It was at Oakmont in 1919 that he seemed a certainty to win his first title and, when he failed, many predicted he never would win, having passed up, as he had, such a glorious chance.

JONES LOOKED CERTAIN

Jones eliminated Jimmy Manion in the first round, took Bob Gardiner over the embattled bunkers in the second, checked Ruddy Knepper out in the third, and downed the venerable Bill Fowles in the semi-final.

This sent him into the finals facing S. Davidson Herron, one of the best course players.

And who was S. Davidson Herron? Someone in the press tent learned he worked in one of the steel mills, and, judging by his Dempsey-like build, it appeared likely he might even be a pudger.

Giants and Robins Check Their Long Streak of Defeats

New York Noses Out Cincinnati in 13 Innings; Brooklyn Beats Pittsburgh

Athletics Win in Ninth While Washington Loses; Detroit Bumps Yanks

New York, June 19.—Giants and Robins are making desperate efforts to regain lost ground before their trips west are ended.

President Robinson, of Brooklyn, occupied the bench yesterday as the skidding Dodgers spiked the winning streak of the Pirates 6-2. Dazzy Vance fanned seven batters, bringing his strikeout record to 99 in 99 innings.

After losing six straight, the Giants came out on the long end of a 3-3 score in a thirteen-inning brush with Cincinnati, which widened the distance from the Pirates to two-and-one-half games.

Brooklyn is now within half a game of the Reds, who hold third place.

The Phillies beat the Cubs 5-1 after losing eleven straight games. Jimmy Ring held Chicago to five singles.

The Cardinals won 4-3 from the Braves. It was the sixth straight win for St. Louis.

COBB HITS WELL Ty Cobb had a perfect day at bat with four hits, one of which was his tenth homer, as Detroit again defeated the Yankees 6-3. Four runs in the ninth shattered the game, and Cleveland bowed before the Athletics 6-2.

Everett Scott, late of the Yankees, made his debut with Washington at short. The champions lost to the Browns 9-6.

The White Sox finished a five-game series with the Red Sox by winning 5-1.

AMERICAN LEAGUE Cleveland, June 19.—After battling on even terms with the Indians for eight innings yesterday, Cleveland staged a ninth-inning four-run rally, winning 6-2.

Cochran led off in the ninth with a single. Poole and Galloway singled, Cochran scoring. Walberg doubled, scoring Poole and Galloway, while a single by Bishop scored Walberg.

Umpire Geisel was hit on the instep by a foul tip and forced to retire.

R. H. E. Philadelphia 6 10 1 Cleveland 2 6 0 Batteries: Wells and Cochran; Uhl and L. Sewell.

YANKES BEATEN AGAIN New York, June 19.—Detroit turned back the Yanks yesterday, 6 to 3, making it three games out of four in the series. Ty Cobb made four hits, including his tenth homer of the season. Southey Edwin Wells held the Yanks to six hits.

R. H. E. Detroit 6 13 1 New York 3 6 1 Batteries: Wells and Bassler; Shocker and Bengough.

WHITES TRIM REDS Boston, June 19.—Lyons pitched effectively in the pinches, and was supported by good infielding yesterday, the Chicago White Sox thereby annexing the game 5 to 1, their second win of the five-game series finished with the Boston Red Sox. The play of both centerfielders was a feature. Davis's work, which stood out during the entire series, was brilliant yesterday.

R. H. E. Chicago 5 10 0 Boston 2 10 1 Batteries: Schalk; Wingfield, Puehr and Pincich.

WASHINGTON TOO WILD Washington, June 19.—An epidemic of wildness seized three Washington pitchers yesterday, and the champions dropped the final game of the series to St. Louis, 9 to 5. Everett Scott, former Yankee, played his first game for Washington, substituting at shortstop for Peckinpah.

Manager Harris hit safely for his twenty-fourth consecutive game.

R. H. E. St. Louis 9 7 1 Washington 5 10 1 Batteries: Davis and Rego; Reuther, Russell, Marberry and Ruel.

NATIONAL LEAGUE Cincinnati, June 19.—New York outlasted Cincinnati and won the second game of the series, 4 to 3, in thirteen innings. Jackie May weakened in the ninth inning, permitting the Giants to make two runs and tie the score. They won out in the thirteenth off Benton. McQuillan, who started for the Giants, gave way to Hunterzinger in the eighth.

R. H. E. New York 4 11 1 Cincinnati 3 9 1 Batteries: McQuillan, Hunterzinger and Snyder; May, Benton and Wings.

VANCE STOPS PIRATES Pittsburgh, June 19.—Brooklyn won from Pittsburgh yesterday, 6 to 2. Dazzy Vance allowing the Pirates but seven hits. Vance fanned seven batters, increasing his 1925 strikeout record to ninety.

R. H. E. Brooklyn 6 10 0 Pittsburgh 2 7 1 Batteries: Vance and Deberry; Kremen, Morrison, Culloton and Smith, Gooch.

HELEN SEEKS THIRD TENNIS CROWN THIS SEASON

On the California courts Miss Helen Wills, United States women's tennis champion, is preparing for the coming season, and according to reports playing a better game than ever. Helen, as you will doubtless recall, has won the title for the past two campaigns and this year is out to make it three in a row. She went to Wimbledon last year, but lost to Kitty McKane in the final. She was unable to make the trip this year.

One Match In Each Cricket Division Set For To-morrow

Albions and Incogs to Play in "A" League; Five C's Meet Albions in "B"

Owing to a revision in the schedule of the "A" Division of the Victoria and District Cricket League there will be only one match to-morrow afternoon. Three clubs will be held over but it is possible that two of them may arrange a friendly match.

The Albions will meet the Incogs at Mount Carmel in the only senior fixture. The match should be very close as both clubs are anxious to pull up in the standing.

The Five C's, Victoria and Cowichan hold the bye.

In the "B" Division there will be one match, the Five C's playing the Albions at Beacon Hill. This should prove quite an interesting game as the teams are very evenly matched.

The Albions teams to-morrow will be as follows: "A"—F. Jordan, captain; N. F. Pite, R. M. Knight, T. Hoggarth, W. R. Knight, G. D. Smith, R. A. Wilcox, S. G. McInroy, G. Heiney, P. Bossom, and A. Adams.

"B"—E. Yearwood, captain; E. Marshall, H. Leithaby, L. Beckler, W. L. Armstrong, Ring Lindner, J. Mitchell, C. E. Straker, E. Parsons, V. S. Roberts and R. White.

secutive triumph for the locals. A crowd of approximately 17,500 watched the game.

R. H. E. Boston 4 12 3 St. Louis 4 8 0 Batteries: Barnes and Gibson; Sherdell and O'Farrell.

PHILLIES END LOSING STREAK Chicago, June 19.—Jimmy Ring let Chicago down with five hits yesterday and broke Philadelphia's losing streak by turning in a five to one victory. The Phillies had lost eleven games in a row.

R. H. E. Philadelphia 5 9 0 Chicago 1 5 1 Batteries: Wilson; Jacobs, Brett and Hartnett.

COAST LEAGUE At Salt Lake—R. H. E. Oakland 5 10 4 Salt Lake 6 7 2 Batteries: Bobler and McDonald; Pierce and Cook.

Taylor and Black Are Fancied In P. N. W. Open

Big Golf Tournament Opens in Tacoma To-day; Prominent Professional and Amateur Golfers Seeking Crown; California Entrant Withdraws Because of Attitude Over Espinosa's Entry

Tacoma, June 19.—The 1925 Pacific Northwest open golf championship will start to-day on the course of the Tacoma County and Golf Club with some three score professional and amateur golfers, the pick of the links talent of the Northwest, and a scattering of outside entries taking part. Thirty-six holes will be played to-day and thirty-six to-morrow.

Harold Sampson, the California golfer star, withdrew his entry at the last minute as the result of the controversy over the action of the Pacific Northwest Professional Golfers' Association in rejecting the entry of Abe Espinosa, another California professional star.

For to-day's round Dave Black, the Shaughnessy Heights pro, is paired with Forrest Watson, the Inland Empire amateur champion, and Jimmy Hulsh, of the Vancouver Golf and Country Club, with Frank Dolp, the hard-hitting amateur from Portland. Alex Duthie, veteran pro of the Jericho Golf Club, will start with E. W. Greenway, of Jefferson Park, Seattle.

The field includes in addition to all of the professionals of the district such fine amateur players as Dr. O. F. Willing, present champion, and H. Chandler Egan, former amateur champion. Egan plays to-morrow with W. McKenzie of the Marine Drive Club of Vancouver.

Black, Hulsh, McKenzie and Duthie played practice rounds yesterday and were reported hitting the ball in fine form. Black is a hot favorite with the galleries along with Phil Taylor, of the Victoria Golf Club.

Capitals Hope To Hand Sidney First Defeat of Season

Fans Will Be Treated To Their First Senior Lacrosse Game To-morrow

Victoria lacrosse fans will see their first senior lacrosse game of the season to-morrow evening at the Royal Athletic Park. The Sidney and Victoria Capitals are due to face each other at 6.15 o'clock, and a real torrid exhibition of the national summer game is looked for.

Supporters of lacrosse are making a determined effort to revive the game, which has been losing ground here rapidly in recent years. Intermediate and senior leagues have been formed and teams of splendid calibre have been organized. Special instructions have been given that the players must play the ball and not the man and thereby get away from the brutal tactics which have hurt lacrosse in the past.

SIDNEY OFF WELL The Sidney team has hopped off to a flying start in the Senior League, to be tonight by the Victoria and Garrison teams. The Capitals, however, hope to come back strongly at the mill-ends to-morrow night.

Several local sportsmen, it is reported, are already pulling every string to have the club taken over by other interests. If Wes Champ is determined to dispose of his property, whether their efforts bring success or not will probably be known within a very short time, as a sale either in the east or here must be made within the next few days, all available information indicates.

Wes Champ had no thought of disposing of the Caps when he started them, it is believed here. He went solely to land a few stars to make his team of championship calibre again, and the Detroit offer apparently came altogether unexpectedly.

Interest in running very high over to-night's amateur ball game between the Commercial Travelers and the C.P.R. The Travelers, smarting under their defeat at the hands of the Sons of Canada on Wednesday, are raring to get at last year's champions. The railroaders have an old score to settle with the Travelers as they lost their initial game of the season to the talkative gentlemen.

The game will start at 6.15 o'clock. If the Travelers win they will increase their advantage over the Sons of Canada. A loss for them would, however, make the race all the more interesting and leave three clubs on pretty even terms. It would only remain for the Eagles to jack themselves up to come on and make as pretty a race as has been seen here in years.

Roy Copas, playing boss of the C.P.R., is on the mound to-night for the C.P.R. The railroaders have several other twirlers and the call may go to either of them.

SHOULD BE WARM ONE The game should be a hot one all the way. If the C.P.R. lose they will have little chance of making up the lost ground. The C.P.R. are anxious to figure in the championship play-off and will exert every effort to win to-night.

The Tillcum's leaders of the Commercial Baseball League, had a pain in the back of their necks last night as a result of a defeat handed them by the Spencers. The leaders went under by the score of 12-3. It was a nip and tuck tussle till the sixth, seventh and eighth innings when Spencers' were running under a three-run lead when the teams entered the fifth inning but a slashing attack by the Tillcum's resulted in six runs and left Spencers' three runs in the hole. Undaunted Spencers' nibbled away at the lead and a pair of runs in end of the sixth, seventh and eighth innings pushed them back into the lead once more and left them in a secure position.

The teams were as follows: Spencers—Wright, 3b; Rutledge, 2b; Oatman, 1b; Donaldson, c; Barry, cf; Malcolm, ss; Post, cf; Stewart, 1b; Campbell, p.

Tillcum's—Sargent, ss; McDiarmid, 1b; McLennan, 3b; Kenny, 2b; Barr, cf; McLaren, cf; Taylor, lf; Hilton, c; Kay, p; Rhoads, p.

Pictorial Golf Instruction Hitting the Ball From the Inside Out

By H. B. MARTIN

Golfers have often heard professionals explain that the only successful tee shot is the one where the ball is hit from the inside out. This means that the club head should be starting across the imaginary line to the hole at the instant the ball is hit.

One might think that this would tend to cause the ball to fly straight for the rough to the right of the fairway, but, in fact, this is not the case, as the follow through will attend to that part. The only chance for a mistake would be where the player attempted to make a direct hit out of it instead of a sweep. In this case the ball would be pushed to the right. The stance should be square for this shot or in case where one was intent on hooking, the right foot should be drawn back.

HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR TENNIS

By WILLIAM T. TILDEN, 2nd

The Volley Volleys is a science based on the old geometric axiom that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points.

I mean that a volleyer must always cover the straight passing shot, since it is the shortest shot with which to pass him, and he must volley straight to his opening and not waste time trying freakish curving volleys that give the base-line time to recover.

The shot itself is made with a short swing from behind the body. The racket face meets the ball flat or, if the shot must be made from below the top of the net and lifted slightly under the ball. The wrist is stiff and locked. The angle made by the flight of the ball coming to you and the racket face, the racket moves forward, meets the ball and stops dead. It does not follow through. It blocks the ball, which rebounds by its own speed plus your body weight behind the racket.

If you can meet the ball above the top of the net then volley hard and down, but if the ball has dropped below the top then strive for placement, not speed, to make your point.

The "stop" volley is a shot blocked short. There is no force used. The racket meets the oncoming ball and stops it. The ball rebounds and falls of its own weight. There is little bounce to such a shot, and that may be reduced by allowing the racket to slide slightly under the ball at the moment of impact imparting sharp back spin to the ball.

The correct net position is about six to ten feet back from the net and about two feet toward the centre from the straight line of the ball. Do not stand in the middle of the net and think the ball will come to you, for it will not. Follow its flight, so that you are on a line with it.

It is hard to pass a man cross-court, but easy with a straight shot; so if you cut down the chances on the straight shot, you increase your opponent's chances of error.

Everett Taylor made a capable referee. The teams were as follows: Sidney—F. Crossley, S. Hill, D. Bowdell, C. David, H. Munn, J. St. Louis, A. Munn, B. Ward, J. Anderson, M. Clanton, B. Bowcott, F. Crossley, A. Gilman, H. Lind.

Esquimalt—Basso, Knowles, Sweeney, Burnett, Hicks, Blair, Mercer, Scalfie, Thompson, Nicol, Sutton, Slater, Jenkins, Jacks, Chalmers.

Finals In Junior Tennis Are To Be Decided To-morrow

Semi-finals in Most Classes Are Being Played To-day at Willows Courts

Youngsters Show Splendid Form and Furnish Very Keen Competition

The semi-finals of the British Columbia junior tennis championships, being played on the Victoria Tennis Club's court, were reached yesterday afternoon. All the matches leading to the semi-final were close and hard-fought.

In the boys under eighteen, James McDonald, of Vancouver, and Clist, "Squeak" Morrison and J. Coleman, of Brentwood College, are the four players who will fight it out for the two places in the final round.

On the form shown during the week Morrison and James McDonald showed his class by defeating A. T. Eagle, promising local boy, in three sets. Clist won his place in the seniors by beating Don Campbell in a fine match 6-3, 5-7, 6-2. They had long rallies, and the games were very close, but Clist's superior steadiness won for him in final set. J. Coleman had another marathon match yesterday, defeating A. D. Gordon 4-6, 6-3, 12-10.

VANCOUVER BOY FAVORED The semi-final round of the under sixteen was played yesterday, James McDonald, of Vancouver, and Steve Jones, Jr., being the winners. The Vancouver boy is favorite for this tilt, and a straight set victory is expected. McDonald has been coached by the most consistent tennis of the tournament and certainly looks like a "comer."

In the under fifteen event for boys one match has still to be played before the fourth place in the semis is known. The other three are C. H. Ruttan, S. Jones and A. R. Clist, last year's champion. In the girls' events the boys' events some great tennis is expected, especially in the under eighteen event.

GIRLS' MATCHES GOOD Six matches were played yesterday in the girls' championships and all but one were very close. Alice Code had to go three sets before she defeated Z. McNab. Her win entitled her to a place in the semi-finals. Jean List defeated D. Swayne 7-5, 10-8 in a great match and K. Hall beating Helen Campbell in three sets 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Hope Leeming, who has been playing sensational tennis all week, won her match 6-1, 6-6. She is favored to win the under eighteen title again this year. She has been coached by her sister, Marjorie Leeming, and is steadily improving her game.

In the under fifteen event only two matches were played, both being close. Jean List defeated D. Swayne 7-5, 10-8 in a great match and K. Hall beating Helen Campbell in three sets 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

FINALS TO-MORROW All finals will be played to-morrow in a large gallery will undoubtedly be on hand to witness the matches. The full results of yesterday's play.

Boys Under 18 A. S. Clist defeated John Campbell 6-2, 5-7, 6-2. H. Morrison defeated A. T. Eagle 4-6, 6-3, 12-10. J. Coleman defeated A. D. Gordon 4-6, 6-3, 12-10. W. W. Deans defeated W. Wainman 5-8, 6-2.

Boys Under 15 L. Backler defeated R. Appleton 6-4, 6-1. S. Jones defeated L. Backler 6-3, 6-2.

Boys Under 12 C. H. Ruttan defeated A. Tisdall by default. C. H. Ruttan defeated E. Slingsby 6-1, 6-3. S. Jones defeated E. A. McSwain 9-7, 1-6, 6-3. A. S. Clist defeated D. Robertson 6-0, 6-1.

Girls Under 18 F. Tisdall defeated D. Hindman 6-1, 7-5. H. Leeming defeated C. Garesche 6-1, 6-0. A. Code defeated Z. McNab 6-4, 1-6, 6-0. J. Campbell defeated C. Wilson 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Girls Under 15 J. List defeated D. Swayne 7-5, 10-8. K. Hall defeated H. Campbell 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

On Second Thought Tommy Gibbons says he fought with a blank mind from the sixth round against Tunney. That's the way most fighters fight.

Now that Babe Ruth is regaining his waistline the Yankees may be said to have a fat chance to win.

TETJANA CHANGES HANDS FOLLOWING DELIVERY OF SHIP IN MONTREAL SOON

Big Freighter Will be Sold by Pacific Salvage Company Shortly for Approximate Sum of $300,000; Company Representatives Meeting in East to Sign Agreement.

When the freight carrier Tetjana arrives in Montreal within the next week or ten days, representatives of the Pacific Salvage Company and a big Norwegian shipping firm will meet and settle final arrangements for the purchase of the ship. The deal has not been closed, and the party concerned in this city will give little information on the matter. Rumors have floated through to this port stating that the Tetjana would in all probability change hands shortly, but it was only learned to-day that she was actually to be sold, pending inspection of her hull on her arrival in Canada's great eastern grain port.

Officials of the Salvage Company have gone to Montreal. It was stated to-day. They will meet and arrange the details of the transaction with the Norwegian firm's representatives. The price set for the sale of the ship is in the neighborhood of $300,000.

WRECKED OFF COAST

Wrecked on the West Coast of Vancouver Island, lying stranded on the rocks in Barkley Sound, the

Tetjana was given to the Salvage Company by her former owners, who were also Norwegian, and has since been repaired and placed in operation by the company, with headquarters here. She has been making regular voyages out of this and other coast ports since the completion of the big repair job on the ship, and is now thought to be as good as when she was first launched.

It was not revealed here to-day when the Tetjana was due at Montreal, nor exactly what the price or terms of the agreement were, but the fact that the ship was to be actually sold and that the deal only required the signature of those concerned, was admitted. The Pacific Salvage Company stated that, as far as they were concerned, they had accepted an offer by the Norwegian firm, and that the deal was practically closed.

The Tetjana is now off the Atlantic coast heading north with a heavy cargo, it is understood. She will be in Montreal within a few days, it is believed. There she will undergo inspection, and if all is right with the ship will fly a Norwegian flag again before long.

She was Norwegian built, owned and operated when she was wrecked on the West Coast some time ago. Since then she has been a Canadian ship. Now her registry will change once more.

A villager told his wife he had bought two tickets for a whist drive. "What's the good?" she said, "you can't play whist."

Veteran Skipper Dead in Seattle

Seattle, June 18.—Capt. Gus Soderman, fifty-eight, Puget Sound navigator for more than forty years, died here last night after a month's illness. Funeral services will be held to-day.

With a capacity cargo of freight, consisting principally of foodstuffs and supplies for the Far North, the steamship Oulu will leave Seattle Sunday for Kotzebue Sound ports, stopping at Nome on the way. This is to be the only voyage of this vessel to the Kotzebue district this season.

INDICATIONS ARE THAT LUMBER MARKET IS NOW EXPERIENCING REVIVAL

Lumber Shipments From Port Continue to Keep Mills Busy and Lumbermen Encouraged by Prospects; Canadian Puget Sound Shipping Large Quantities; Niels Nielson Due To-morrow.

One lumber carrier left port yesterday, another is due to-morrow and two more will be here to load later in the month, according to an announcement made by local lumbermen from one mill alone this morning. The Canadian Puget Sound milling hands are working hard getting 700,000 feet ready to load aboard the Niels Nielson when she is taken alongside the freighting wharf at their plant to-morrow evening, and it is expected loading will commence immediately as the ship is anxious to put to sea.

The Niels Nielson is bound for the Atlantic seaboard. Her lumber cargo is consigned to New York, it was stated here to-day. She has been loading up the Fraser River and at Nanos Bay previously.

RAN ASHORE

It was while this freighter was coming out of the Fraser that she ran aground and the Salvage King had to be rushed to the spot to take her from the mud. This was easily accomplished, and the ship proceeded to Nanos Bay, whence it comes here to-morrow.

The Jane Nettleton, which loaded 450,000 feet from the Canadian Puget Sound mills, as well as 300,000 lbs. of lumber, left this port yesterday for San Pedro. There was other lumber on the ship loaded at various points on the coast. The market in the United States shows an improvement, say local lumbermen.

RANGER TO LOAD

The Canadian Ranger, which is undergoing repairs at Yarrow's Limited at present, and will be finished shortly, according to an announcement from local mills to-day, will load 450,000 feet for the United Kingdom as soon as she is out of drydock and ready for sea. It is expected that she will commence taking lumber aboard on June 25, and that she will be free to depart within a few days after that date.

AUDITOR COMING

Two or three days after the Ranger comes alongside the Ogden Point pier, the Auditor, a British ship, will steam into the harbor and pick up about 500,000 feet from local mills to complete her cargo.

These four ships will load an approximate total of 2,200,000 feet.

Ruth Alexander Docks From Southern Ports in Early Morning Hours

Buffeted by strong head winds, the steamer Ruth Alexander arrived here from California ports this morning with a full passenger list, but slightly behind schedule owing to bad weather. The vessel made her average good time up the coast until a few miles from Victoria, when the wind slowed her down. She reached the Rithet piers about 2 o'clock this morning.

Aboard the Ruth was a considerable quantity of freight for Victoria, in all about 100 tons.

British in China Given Protection

London, June 19.—Foreign Minister Austen Chamberlain stated in the House of Commons yesterday that, with the other interested powers, the British Government would protect the lives and property of British subjects in China and would hold the Chinese Government responsible for all injuries and for all damages.

"There can be no weakness or hesitation," declared Mr. Chamberlain. "The British Foreign Minister stated such a course was the fundamental duty of every British Government, and that any British Government must discharge its duty."

"It is not a remedy for the situation, but it is necessary because of the outrages that have taken place," he said.

B.C. READY TO USE
POWER TO ABOLISH EXPORT COMPANIES

Province Would Have no
Hesitation in Using Method
Offered by Ottawa

Fear Senate May Reject
Liquor Legislation Now Before House of Commons

British Columbia will not hesitate a moment to put liquor export houses out of business if this power is granted to it by the Canadian Parliament, liquor officials here declared today after they had read Ottawa dispatches outlining the precise effect of the new Federal liquor import regulations. Latest reports received here indicate that the Federal authorities will place upon the provincial authorities the onus of recommending the cancellation of Federal liquor export licenses. If this cancellation is recommended by the Provincial Government the Federal authorities will act upon it immediately. It is understood that the British Columbia Government has been fighting for years to abolish the liquor export warehouses because they are the cause of widespread bootlegging operations here, there would be no hesitation on the part of the provincial authorities in recommending the cancellation of export licenses, it is said.

Shus, the arrangement proposed by the Federal Government in effect desired by British Columbia. It is feared here, however, that the Canadian Senate may reject any legislation which placed this power in the hands of the provincial authorities. British Columbia senators who killed the proposed ban on private liquor importation before, are known to be opposed to the granting of any power to the Provincial Government whereby it could decide whether export houses are to continue in business or not.

How the Senate will regard the legislation is the chief question now. Months ago when the matter was first discussed at Ottawa British Columbia Senators intimated that they would no longer oppose the ban on private importation.

"We just put this parcel under my arm," said Mr. Chamberlain. "Heaps of husbands: 'Er—right or left arm, dear?'"

Amundsen Had Plans To Fly
Over Pole and On To Alaska

ROALD AMUNDSEN
and
CAPT. H. H. HAMMER

WRECK OF AMUNDSEN'S FIRST NORTH POLE PLANE

EXPLORER AND HIS COMPANIONS ON DARING TRIP TO POLE

By HAAKON H. HAMMER
Associate of Roald Amundsen and Arctic Explorer
(Copyright, 1925)

New York, June 19.—Away up in the ice-bound land where ice fields and frozen mountains are clothed with the weird shadows of the midnight sun, has been a secret treasure that may have meant the difference between life and death to Roald Amundsen, gallant polar explorer.

This treasure trove consisted of ten tons of gasoline.

It was stored in a cache between Wainwright and Point Barrow, Alaska, and was deposited there by Amundsen a couple of years ago. When Amundsen sailed north from Spitzbergen a month ago did he have a secret goal?

Did a more direct to the pole seem insufficient to him? Was his real purpose to fly all the way from Alaska, exploring the million square miles of unknown territory that that route would include on the way?

The thing is far from unlikely. If true, it is all the more amazing in that practically every time Amundsen tried to fly a plane he met with disaster and narrowly escaped death.

Amundsen has always had an uncontrollable impulse for surprises. In his official announcement of this year's expedition he emphasized that he was only planning a flight to the pole, but what he expected to gain by a flight from Spitzbergen to the North Pole and back was difficult to conceive.

WHAT HE SAID

"The distance from Spitzbergen to the Pole is considerably shorter than from New York to Chicago. The round trip of about 1,400 miles would mean nothing extraordinary in present day aviation.

And then again, the North Pole has already been discovered. Many years have passed since Admiral Peary planted the flag on the utmost top of the world.

Not even the achievement of discovery would be Amundsen's. What then could have been his real object?

In searching for an answer it is interesting to review a statement given out by Amundsen in May, 1924. Amundsen said:

"I am not the least interested in the North Pole, but I aim to solve the world's last geographical problem and discover just what is to be found within the unexplored regions between the North Pole and Alaska. In view of it all one cannot but help making certain deductions.

"Was it likely that he had entirely changed his mind within the space of twelve short months, or can it be possible that when he took off from Spitzbergen his real goal was still Alaska and exploration of parts unknown?"

THE IRONY OF FATE

He carried sufficient gasoline in the two planes combined to enable him to follow his old plan of abandoning one "ship" in the vicinity of the Pole, transferring fuel and men to the second "ship" and endeavoring to reach the Alaskan coast and the hidden deposits of gasoline.

In 1922 and 1923 Amundsen was in Alaska all ready to attempt a flight from Alaska over the North Pole to Spitzbergen, and his total equipment was one small all metal monoplane equipped with one 185-horsepower motor. But fate intervened and minor accidents prevented his hop off.

This year he had the most carefully selected and prepared equipment which money could buy. To add to the safety of the expedition twin-motored planes had been selected, each equipped with two 360-horsepower motors.

The attempt of a flight from Spitzbergen to the Pole had been made as safe as man could make it. While Amundsen was tremendously interested in aviation he personally disliked to fly. His aviation experiences in the past have been most unfortunate.

With a few exceptions every airplane flight on which he had embarked had ended disastrously. Even in 1914, at the occasion of his examination flight in Oslo, Norway, where he earned his pilot certificate, that very flight almost proved fatal. The very flight almost proved fatal and the school machine in which he flew crashed.

In 1922 Amundsen started out to fly his airplane from New York to Seattle, but crashed in Pennsylvania since then until now in Spitzbergen he absolutely declined to set foot aboard an airplane.

HAMMER KNOWS ARCTIC PATHS

HAAKON H. HAMMER is one of the few men living who have flown over the Arctic regions.

He has been a partner and close personal friend of Roald Amundsen for fifteen years, and knows not only the perils of polar flying but the principal in the daring expedition probably better than any other man in America.

In 1922-24 he accompanied Amundsen on the latter's expedition north of Alaska. Then he took a plane to Spitzbergen and prepared to fly across the top of the world to Amundsen's relief, doing considerable valuable reconnaissance flying in that locality when he learned an accident had caused Amundsen to call off his trip.

"Jinx," he did not hesitate to attempt his North Pole flight. He had prepared to withdraw his previous failures, his bankruptcy, but in spite of it all he carried on.

A MAN OF HONOR

Why? Because he stood committed to the world and because he is a man of undaunted courage and determination.

Amundsen has never allowed himself to forget that he was a world figure. To him the old saying that "a man is a man and a word a word" was more than a mere phrase.

In 1922 he announced in the world that he would attempt a Polar flight and that meant that only death would prevent him from keeping his promise.

Amundsen's spirit will hover over coming ages as an everlasting inspiration toward true manhood.

SUPERTWIST BACK OF GOODYEAR MILEAGE

THE ever-increasing mileage which users report from all Goodyear Cord Tires—balloon and other sizes—is due in large measure to the amazing qualities of the exclusive, new, Goodyear cord fabric, SUPERTWIST.

SUPERTWIST is but one more in the long line of Goodyear achievements in tire construction. It is another evidence of what world-wide buying and selling in the tire industry means—greater opportunities for tire improvements, wider experience, lower costs. The Goodyear fabric mills where SUPERTWIST was developed are made possible only by world-wide Goodyear sales.

SUPERTWIST'S great virtue is its ability to outstretch other cord fabrics—to stand more punishment without breaking or weakening. Developed specially for Goodyear Balloons, it is now used in all Goodyear Cords—and only in Goodyears.

The Goodyear Selected Dealer has tires of SUPERTWIST in stock.

HOW TO SOLVE THE CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

Every number in the form represents the beginning of a word, reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. The same number may of course begin both as a horizontal and a vertical. The definitions for the correct words in the form are found below, with numbers corresponding to those in the form. Run through the definitions till you find one that you recognize, and put it in its proper place on the form, one letter for each white square. This furnishes several cross-clues to the words linking with it at right angles. Continue in this manner till the form is completely filled. If you have solved the puzzle correctly it should read both horizontally and vertically with words corresponding to the definitions. The correct solution of to-day's puzzle will be printed in the next issue of The Times.

"The Steadfast Heart"

By Clarence Budington Kelland

"I'm glad." That was all. Dave's eyes twinkled. After a few moments of silence he said quizzically, "I don't calculate you'll hazard a remark if I wait till midnight."

Angus grimaced. "There isn't anything to say," he said.

"Mr. Woodhouse was here to-day," talked about you. He wants you to come to work for him—Dave stated the fact suddenly and boldly and then waited to see what expression would alter Angus's face. But Angus was the better water—nothing happened except that Angus winked. "I told him I'd ask you what you thought about it. What do you think?"

"The paper—" Angus began. "I'll be back in a month—and then you'll be out of a job."

"This was true. Angus had never considered it before. When Dave came back he would be superfluous, a burden.

"There—there, won't be anything for me to do," he said blankly for you to do. You're welcome, you're wanted. But here, Angus, is a chance, a greater chance than I can ever give you to make something of yourself. And you would be near me."

"Could I—keep on sleeping in my old room over the shop?"

Dave turned away his head. "That's part of the bargain. You've got to promise to stay there—with me—or I shan't let you go."

"You're my boy, Angus—my son!—Mr. Woodhouse can have your days—but we'll sleep under the same roof." The boy gulped and looked out of the window.

"I'll go," he said.

"I knew you would," said Dave.

"But," said Angus after a prolonged silence, "what will everybody say? Won't folks be afraid if in the bank? About their money—you know about their money?"

"Don't ever say a thing like that again," said Dave fiercely.

"But—"

"If anybody hints at such a thing in your hearing, I don't care who or when or where, and you don't thrash him, I'll thrash you. Remember that."

When you go to work for Mr. Woodhouse forget everything in your life but that—and me. Make up your mind you are the equal of everybody and better than most. Make up your mind to show 'em all. Climb! Climb higher than any of them. You're a first-class man, Angus, so act as if you knew it. A show of confidence in yourself is half the battle. You do know it, don't you?"

Again Angus hesitated. "Yes," he said presently.

Dave changed the subject. "You've never told me how you came back to Rainbow? How did you know I was sick? Who told you?"

Angus did not know how to evade questions, indeed it was an art he never learned. His methods were always direct. Now he kept silence.

"I never could figure it out," said Dave. "Nobody knows where you were but the Brownings and Mr. Woodhouse, and neither of them sent for you."

"No," said Angus.

"Who did, then, somebody else."

Dave wrinkled his nose, as was his custom in moments of perplexity. "He began to understand dimly that something—some incomprehensible scruple—was holding the boy silent."

"Is it a secret?" he asked.

"Nobody said I shouldn't tell."

"I see. . . . Then, of course, you mustn't tell. I shouldn't have asked."

At that instant Lydia Canfield, who had been reading quietly in the next room, hurried through the portiere flushed, eyes snapping, in a rage.

"I did it," she cried. "I did it again."

"So there! And I'd do it again."

"Well. . . . We'll. . . ."

"Well. . . . We'll. . . ."

"And nobody has to keep secrets for me. Nobody."

"Now, now. . . . What's the use setting the house afire?" asked Dave.

"I won't be shielded. I won't have him trying to shield me. . . . or anybody else trying it. When I do anything I'm not afraid of the consequences. He needn't think I'm ashamed of sending for him—or afraid, for I'm not."

"I'm sure," said Dave with mock staidness, "that I'm under a weight of obligation to you for sending for Angus. It was the wise thing to do."

"Of course, I knew that," she said. "Anybody with sense would do. But I don't want anybody protecting me—and you just understand that from now on, Angus Burke!"

Whereat she bounded out of the room, leaving Angus aghast and Wilkins shaking with laughter. It was Angus's first encounter with the incomprehensibility of woman's temper.

bank. His duties, in the beginning, will be those of my personal assistant."

Leaving his horror-stricken employees, the old gentleman motioned Angus into his private office and closed the door. Chet turned his head slowly and peered at Gene, who returned the gaze open-mouthed.

"Well—" he said, and then words failed him.

"In the bank!" exclaimed Gene. "Right where folks deposits their money—where money's a-layin' around under foot, so to speak. Folks 'll be drawn' out as soon as they hear of it."

"And him a murderer, too—for 'twain' both' but Cradle Brown's cleverness got him out of it! . . . Think of us bein' throwed with him all the time! Why, the hain't nobody in town has anythin' to do with him."

"His father, he was a thief too. That's what took Sheriff Bates out there to fit himself killed. . . . Perty kittle of fish, that's what I say."

"So Pruddler has given up smoking?"

"Yes. On the advice of his doctor, at the request of his wife, and by command of his mother-in-law!"

MANY TRIBUTES FOR LATE H. W. DAVIES

Impressive Services at James Bay Church and Graveside

A large number of friends attended the funeral services Wednesday over the remains of the late Herbert Wynne Davies of 45 Boyd Street. The long cortege left the Sands Funeral Chapel at 2 o'clock, proceeding to the James Bay United Church, where Rev. W. H. Best conducted the impressive services, assisted by Rev. Mr. Knott and Rev. C. M. Tate. Rev. Mr. Best eulogized the late Mr. Davies in his address. The hymns were "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "For All the Saints" and "Peace, Perfect Peace." During the service, Mr. Evans of the Cymrodion Society sang a solo in Welsh.

At the graveside the Masonic service was in charge of Worshipful Brother John Woolcock, acting Worshipful Master. The pallbearers, all members of the Masonic lodge, were Messrs. E. T. McComb, W. H. Gardner, E. E. Richards, William Wilby, J. H. Renfree and J. W. Robinson.

Many floral offerings were sent.

amongst which were wreaths from Vancouver and Quadra Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 2, Canadian Legion Post No. 1, Cymrodion Society, Sons of England, Alexandra Lodge 118, Sons of England, Pride of the Island Lodge 131, Provincial Treasury Department staff, pupils of division 1, South Park School, trustees and quarterly board of the James Bay United Church, Young People's Society and Sunday School of the James Bay United Church, the Ladies' Aid of the same church, the patients of the British Hospital, the patients of the British Israel Association, staff of Swift Canadian Company, the long distance telephone staff, and other floral tributes from a host of friends and relatives.

BAKER AND SOWASH TURN ON EACH OTHER IN CLOSING HOURS OF MURDER TRIAL

Sowash Says He Saw Baker Handcuff Bodies on Beryl G. and Swears Stromkins' Story Correct in Most of its Details. Baker Retorts Sowash Was First to Tell Him of Hi-jacking of Rum Ship.

An open fight in which the two accused turned against each other marked the closing moments of the case for the defence in the trial of Owen B. Baker and "Si" Sowash for the murder of Captain William Gillis yesterday afternoon. At the evening session counsel for the Crown and defence alike finished their addresses to the jury.

Baker said Sowash was the first to tell him of the Beryl G. hi-jacking when that accused said Captain Gillis and his son had been marooned on an uninhabited island without a boat.

SAW TWO DEAD

Sowash sided with Stromkins in stating that he saw the two men lying dead on the deck of the Beryl G. and saw Baker handcuff the bodies and engineer their commitment to the water.

Sowash classed Baker as leader of the gang and said his part had been confined to obeying orders in an affair which led to consequences he could not have foretold. At all points save where it tended to incriminate himself did Sowash support the evidence given by Paul Carl Stromkins, chief witness for the Crown.

HEARD TWO SHOTS

The most important addition to Sowash's evidence came when that accused told his version of the alleged crime. Baker rowed the Denman II dinghy with Charles Morris and himself to the Beryl G. They almost bumped the boat in the dark. Baker leaped on board with a flashlight in his hand. Morris in climbing out gave the dinghy an unintentional push and Sowash and the dinghy were away from the side of the schooner. At this moment Sowash heard two shots, five seconds past and of different sounds, and grew frightened. He worked the dinghy back to the counter of the Beryl G but did not get out until Baker returned on her deck and ordered him to go to his cabin.

In his address to the jury R. C. Lowe, Baker's counsel, urged the innocence of his client at the expense of Stromkins and at times Sowash. R. D. Harvey, for Sowash, pleaded for credence of the explanation of that accused that he had no part in the killings. If they could not acquit Sowash they would at least return a verdict of manslaughter, urged Mr. Harvey.

In a brilliant review of the evidence in the three-day hearing, A. M. Johnson, K.C., dealt impartially with the story told by those called on both sides of the case. He complimented American officers and witnesses for their courtesy in attending a hearing to which they could not have been summoned against their wish. He lauded provincial police officers for the way in which the Beryl G. had been unravelled after the finding of the boat drifting and abandoned on September 17, 1924; her bloodstained decks holding no clue to the identity of either the murderer or the murderers. The Crown sought to punish no one unjustly, but rested when it had presented all the facts it could gather to the jury.

PROOF OF DEATH

Production of the actual bodies was not necessary if proof of a life having been taken could be shown. It would submit it had been so shown, and that with ample corroboration of the material details.

Rebuttal evidence called by the Crown in the afternoon was addressed to a statement made by Baker in his evidence in chief. He had not had possession of a gun, handcuffs or a flashlight for ten years, Baker had stated.

K. C. Johnson, called into the courtroom, Baker an opportunity of telling if he knew the man misnamed Stromkins, who had answered instead, "Yes, Sir," said Johnson answering the question of Baker, "Do you know that man?" Quick as a flash was Baker's answer to the question: "No, Sir, never saw him before."

WAS HI-JACKED

Taking the stand as a witness in rebuttal Mr. Johnson said Baker hi-jacked him and associates in August, 1924, using a revolver to get the drop on the party. When they had their hands up Baker signalled to confederates who came to the spot from a little distance away. Baker then put handcuffs on the witness and took his liquor, releasing him when the work was completed.

Similar evidence was given by Peter Marinoff of Tacoma, who said that in the Fall of 1921, Baker, and a "colored man named Schoonover" had hi-jacked him of liquor, using guns and handcuffs in the operation. Baker posed as an officer and sported a badge. Mr. Lowe taxed Marinoff with inability to identify Baker at the trial on American soil, where Baker was convicted of the crime and sentenced to the imprisonment from which he was released only in June 29, 1924. Marinoff reaffirmed he knew Baker by sight.

SOWASH ON STAND

"Si" Sowash, alias Harry Frederick Myers, took the stand as sole witness in his own defence. He affirmed his statement to the police as correct in every detail and amplified it by word of mouth. Stromkins' story of the hi-jacking, said Sowash, was correct in every particular save that he, Sowash, had not killed the boy nor taken any part in the violence shown on the Beryl G. Sowash retold at great length the story of his actions in the hi-jacking episode. While penniless and in debt he had been lured by Baker into the rum running business by tales of ready wealth, he said. He had followed the fortunes of Baker, Morris and others in the ten days prior to the date of the alleged crime, and said Stromkins had been correct in his story of the movements of the Beryl G. and the Denman II, save that the Beryl G had #### not been sighted on the West Coast trip.

Sowash said he wanted to see what had taken place in the cabin but was afraid of what he might see, so he did not look. Later he saw the bodies of Captain Gillis and his son, lying side by side on the deck. This was after liquor had been unloaded into the Denman II. Stromkins, said Sowash, stood with one foot on each craft and helped to pass liquor to the schooner. When he saw the bodies he realized what was amiss and went to look at them. The forms lay cold and dead, said Sowash.

BAKER ON HIS FEET

Sowash drew Baker to his feet in the dock when he swore that he saw Baker handcuff the bodies together with a pair of handcuffs. Baker then tied an anchor and a chain to the manacles and subsequently ordered the Denman II ahead so that the partying boats drew the bodies into the water when the anchor was let go by Charles Morris, said Sowash.

In the recovery of the liquor thrown overboard by various caeches Sowash said he again joined Baker, fearing to cross him and not fearing any more harm from the association than he had already received. He dressed the money, he said, and was willing to take the chance. Baker paid him and he sought work in Seattle with the Brewster Cigar Company where he was again employed. He placed a price on his head and he fled to New Orleans only to be arrested and brought back.

The Okalla messages to Baker, Sowash explained, were sent by the crew of the Beryl G. as he could, as he was sorry for his wife.

DENIES KILLING BOY

The blood on his shirt sleeve, told of by Stromkins, Sowash explained by saying that in shifting liquor sacks he had broken bottles and spilled a glass on the hand. In reference to the slitting of the bodies, Sowash denied that this had been done. He denied too, that he had followed the young boy's body to the back of the schooner, a statement made three times over by Stromkins. The rest of Stromkins' story was true in the main, asserted Sowash.

Unexpected evidence as to the condition of the bodies was given by Sowash when he stated: "I stooped over on the deck and felt both of the bodies. They were both cold and dead. I was not aware until then what had happened. I didn't want to be curious as I was afraid I would find something in the cabin that I did not want to see," continued Sowash.

With his head down, his hands in his pockets, and coal black eyes staring from sunken sockets, Sowash was hi-jacked by Baker and his crew. He denied categorically all portions of Stromkins' story implicating himself. Sowash was dismissed from the stand by Baker's counsel with two brief questions.

Mr. Johnson's cross-examination of the witness was by way of corroboration of his story of Baker's story as witness agreed to. By a series of questions counsel secured from Sowash affirmation of much of the story of the man who turned King's evidence, and who was given his freedom.

PRISONERS SEPARATED

After returning to the prisoner's dock Sowash was kept separated from Baker by provincial constables, who placed each accused at divided portions of the dock, one officer sitting between. Baker's lip curled into a sneer when Sowash was testifying against him, and bawled himself afresh with writing notes to his counsel, R. C. Lowe, who opened his address to the jury at this point.

Resuming at 8.15 p.m. R. C. Lowe continued his address to the jury on behalf of Baker, and his story of the attack on the Beryl G. by both Stromkins and Sowash. Stromkins' breakdown in the witness stand had been "acted," he said, in his story "plugged" until it spread out to cover points not raised before by the prosecution.

Sowash, said Mr. Lowe, had told a make-up story designed to free him from the gallows. He would submit that if the hi-jacking had taken place at all it was Stromkins who did it, and later tried to put the blame on to innocent shoulders.

After a two-hour address in which he reviewed the mass of testimony given in the hearing Mr. Lowe closed the case in the defence of Baker.

In a brief address R. D. Harvey submitted on behalf of Sowash that he had played the part of an unwilling witness to a scene that he had not been able to anticipate would take place. By an arrangement with to his counsel even in the middle of the latter's address to the jury. Once, and once only did Baker's eyes stray to where Mrs. Gillis sat with face averted at the side of the courtroom. He looked quickly away.

WORD AGAINST WORD

It was word against word, and in all this Sowash stood alone, apart from the gang, and having no share in its counsels. Baker had deluded the boy, submitted counsel, by talk of a secret commission from the Canadian Government, followed this with a story of a "faked hi-jack" to be carried out on the Beryl G. with her master's consent, and in which violence was to be used. Stunned into silence by the prime reality Sowash had kept quiet, the natural action of one similarly placed.

At 10.10 p.m. A. M. Johnson, K.C., opened his address on behalf of the Crown. Mr. Johnson recalled the evidence given by Stromkins, Sowash, and many incidental witnesses. Sowash's statement, he reminded the jury, could be used only against Baker, and not against Baker. Baker, similarly, must stand on what he had said in his own defence.

THE CROWN'S DUTY

On the other hand it was the duty of the Crown to prove that murder had been done, and that the accused were responsible for the act. This resolved into three elements, he said, the production of proof that life had been taken, though not essentially the production of a body, the proof of the fact that the accused were at the scene of the crime, and proof that they had done the deed beyond all reasonable doubt. The Crown, through Stromkins and many corroborating witnesses had proved all these phases of the case, he submitted in closing.

HAD ONE HIATUS

The Crown's hiatus, he admitted had one hiatus, a period of from 7 p.m. on September 15 to midnight that night. In this time it had been proved the accused visited the scene of the crime, and that their bodies had been seen by more than one person, who came forward and swore to that fact. The Crown had showed, as far as humanly possible, that no other bodies had visited Sidney Island at that hour, and there it rested its case. The hearing adjourned at 11 p.m.

The closing moments of the session last night were dramatic in the extreme. Mrs. W. J. Gillis cried silently in the private gallery set aside for participants in the case. Paul Stromkins in the public galleries stared, round-eyed and nervously down into the prisoner's dock, where sat Baker and Sowash. Sowash sat quietly enough, his coal-black eyes half shut as if he dozed after the tedium of nine hours in court. Baker, short and watchful as when the trial opened three days ago, wrote notes

CLOSELY GUARDED

Redoubled guards surrounded the prisoner's dock and plain clothes officers were distributed throughout the public galleries unknown to the crowd. On the street outside the building plain clothes and uniformed officers patrolled the entrances and exits to the building.

Not until the building had been cleared were the accused led to the manacles, and hustled into a special car waiting to return them to separate cells. Baker puffed contentedly at a cigarette as he was led away. Sowash refused a proffered cigarette, and kept his face averted from the line of people gathered deep to catch a fleeting glimpse of the accused.
