And if any proprietor or owner of a pew in either of the aforementioned houses shall neglect or refuse to pay the sum or sums assessed thereon, after having twenty days' notice thereof given him by the collector, the proprietors of the respective meeting-houses shall be, and hereby are, impowered by themselves, or by their committee, to sell or dispose of the pew of such delinquent according to the valuation thereof, as afores[ai]d, and with the money raised by such sale to pay the assessm[en]t or tax on said pew remaining unpaid, together with the charges arising on the sale; the overplus, if any there be, to be returned to the owner thereof.

NOTES.—There were four sessions of the General Court this year; but at the fourth session, which was held at Harvard College on account of the prevalence of small-pox in Boston, no acts were passed,—the Lieutenant-Governor refusing his assent to the only bill that was passed to be enacted.

The engrossments of all the acts of this year, except chapter 11, are preserved, and all were printed with the other acts of the respective sessions, except chapters 9 and 10, which were separately printed for distribution among the several assessors and officers of impost.

The acts of the first session were duly certified for transmission, September 25, 1751, and were forwarded, with a letter from Secretary Willard, November 1, following. They were delivered by the agent of the Province, to the clerk of the Privy Council, in waiting, March 11, 1752, and immediately referred to a committee. By this committee they were referred to the Lords of Trade, on the nineteenth of March, and were received and read at the Board the same day, and again, April 15, when they were referred to Mr. Lamb, for his opinion thereon in point of law. Mr. Lamb's report bears date January 12, 1755, and is to the effect that he has no objection to offer to any of the acts submitted to him. This report was read at the Board, January 29, 1755, and the draught of a representation was ordered to be prepared, proposing the confirmation of such of these acts "as have not expired by their own limitation, or have not had their full effect." This draught, having been prepared, was ordered to be transcribed, February 4, and was signed February 5, 1755.

The report of the Lords of Trade represents that chapters 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10 "were for temporary services and are either expired, or the purposes for which they were passed have been completed," and that chapters 1, 3, and 4 "appear to have been enacted for the particular convenience, and relate to the present Economy of the Province," &c., and concludes, "We see no reason why His Majesty may not be graciously pleased to confirm them." Accordingly, an order passed the Privy Council, March 11, 1753, confirming chapters 1, 3, and 4.

The acts of the second and third sessions were transmitted by Secretary Willard, with a letter dated November 30, 1752. This letter was read at the Board of Trade, February 2, 1753, and the accompanying acts were ordered to "be sent to Mr. Lamb for his opinion thereupon in point of Law." No record of further action by the Home Government on these acts has been discovered.

CHAPTER 1.

AN ACT IN FURTHER ADDITION TO THE ACT FOR LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, AND FOR AVOIDING SUITS AT LAW, WHERE THE MATTER IS OF LONG STANDING.

WHEREAS in a late law of this province, entitled “An Act in addition to and for [an] explanation of an act, entitled ‘An Act for limitation of actions, and avoiding suits at law, where the matter is of long standing,’” made and pass[e]d in the twenty-second year of his present majesty’s reign, the time limited for commencing of all actions of account, and upon the case, excepting as therein is excepted, will expire in September next; and whereas the difficulties arisen by the exchange of the medium of trade in this province, and the prevalency of the small-pox in Boston and sundry other towns in this gover[n]ment, render it almost impracticable to have such accounts and actions of the case set[t]led within the time by said act limit[t]ed for that purpose,—
Be it therefore enacted by the Lie[v][utenan]t-Governour, Council and House of Representativ[e]s,

Preamble.
1748-49, chap. 17.

That the time for commencing of actions of accounts, and of the case, by said act limited as aforesaid, be and the same is hereby extended to the first day of September, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty-fo[w][u]r; and no suit hereafter to be brought in such cases shall be barred, if commenced before the expiration of said term. ## CHAPTER 2.

AN ACT IN ADDITION TO AN ACT FOR THE MORE SPEEDY EXTINGUISHMENT OF FIRE, AND PRESERVING GOODS ENDANGERED BY IT.

WHEREAS in and by an act made and passed in the eighteenth year of his present majesty’s reign, entitled “An Act for the more speedy extinguishment of fire, and preserving goods enda[n]gered by it,” it is enacted that the several towns within this province may, if they see fit, at their anniversary meeting in March, annually, appoint a suitable number of persons, not exceeding ten, who shall be denominated firewards, whose particular business shall be to take care and govern at fires, which, from time to time, may break out, as in and by said act they are directed and impowered to do; and whereas, by experience, the fire-wards, who have been annually chosen by the town of Boston, have been found to be of great use and service to the said town at times of fires, and it is apprehended it would greatly serve the said town if their numbers were increased,—

1744-45, chap. 30,
§ 1.

Be it therefore enacted by the Lieutenant-Governour, Council and House of Representatives,

Town of Boston
empowered to choose twelve fire-wards.

That it shall and may be lawful[1] for the town of Boston, who at present have ten fire-wards, at any town meeting warned for that purpose, to el[1]ect and appoint two more meet persons as fire-wards, who shall serve in that office till their anniversary meeting in March next; and from thenceforward, as they shall see cause, to chuse twelve persons for that purpose, annually, who shall do the duty and be invested with the like powers and priviledges as fire-wards in and by the said act are invested withal. [SECT. 8.] And if any person or persons shall not have and produce an invoice of the quantities of rum or liquors to him or them consigned, then the cask wherein the same is, shall be gauged at the charge of the importer, that the contents thereof may be known.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 10.] That every merchant or other person importing any wines into this province, shall be allowed twelve per cent for leakage: provided, such wines shall not have been filled up on board; and that every hogshead, butt or pipe of wine that hath two-thirds thereof leaked out, shall be accounted for outs, and the merchant or importer to pay no duty for the same. [SECT. 11.] And if it may be made to appear that any wines imported in any ship or vessel be decayed at the time of unloading thereof, or in twenty days afterwards, oath being made before the commiss<sup>r</sup> or receiver that the same hath not been landed above that time, the duties and impost paid for such wines shall be repayed unto the importer thereof.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 12.] That the master of every ship or vessel importing any wines, liquors, goods, wares or merchandize, shall be liable to and shall pay the impost for such and so much thereof, contained in his manifest, as shall not be duly entred, nor the duty paid for the same by the person or persons to whom such wines, liquors, goods, wares or merchandize are or shall be consigned. And it shall and may be lawful, to and for the master of every ship or other vessel, to secure and detain in his hands, at the owner's risque, all such wines, liquors, goods, wares and merchandize imported in any ship or vessel, untill he receives a certificate, from the commissioner or receiver of the impost, that the duty for the same is paid, and untill he be repaid his necessary charges in securing the same; or such master may deliver such wines, liquors, goods, wares or merchandize as are not entred, unto the commissioner or receiver of the impost in such port, or his order, who is hereby empowered and directed to receive and keep the same, at the owner's risque, untill the impost thereof, with the charges, be paid; and then to deliver such wines, liquors, goods, wares or merchandize as such master shall direct.

any such default, as also to make good the impost or duty for any such wines, liquors, goods, wares and merchandize not entred as aforesaid; and, upon judgment recovered against such master, the said ship or vessel, with so much of the tackle or appurtenances thereof as shall be sufficient to satisfy said judgment, may be taken into execution for the same; and the commissioner or receiver of the impost is hereby impowered to make seizure of the said ship or vessel, and detain the same under seizure untill judgment be given in any suit to be commenced and prosecuted for any of the said forfeitures of impost; to the intent that, if judgment be rendred for the prosecutor or informer, such ship or vessel and appurtenances may be exposed to sale, for satisfaction thereof, as is before provided: unless the owners, or some on their behalf, for the releasing of such ship or vessel from under seizure or restraint, shall give sufficient security unto the commissioner or receiver of impost that seized the same, to respond and satisfy the sum or value of the forfeitures and duties, with charges, that shall be recovered against the master thereof, upon such suit to be brought for the same, as aforesaid; and the master occasioning such loss or damage unto his owners, through his default or neglect, shall be liable unto their action for the same.

Be it enacted,

[SECT. 17.] That the commissioner and receiver of the afores<sup>d</sup> duties of impost shall, and he is hereby impowered and enjoyned to, appoint one suitable person or persons as his deputy or deputies, in all such places in this province where it is likely that wine, rum or other distilled spirits will be brought out of other governments into this; which officers shall have power to seize the same, unless the owner shall make it appear that the duty of impost has been paid therefor since there being brought into or relanded in this government; and such officer or officers are also impowered to search, in all suspected places, for such wines, rum and distilled spirits brought or relanded in this government, where the duty is not paid as aforesaid, and to seize and secure the same for the ends and uses as in this act is hereafter provided.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 18.] That the commissioner or his deputies shall have full power to administer the several oaths afores<sup>d</sup>, and to search in all suspected places for all such wines, rum, liquors, goods, wares and merchandize as are brought into this province, and landed contrary to [SECT. 20.] And the said commiss<sup>r</sup> is hereby impowered to appoint a meet and suitable person, to repair unto and on board any ship or vessel, to take the exact measure or tunnage thereof, in case he shall suspect that the register of such ship or vessel doth not express and set forth the full burthen of the same; the charge thereof to be paid by the master or owner of such ship or vessel, before she shall be cleared, in case she shall appear to be of a greater burthen: otherwise, to be paid by the commiss<sup>r</sup> out of the money received by him for impost, and shall be allowed him, accordingly, by the treasurer, in his accmpts. And the naval officer shall not clear any vessel, untill he be certified, also, by the commiss<sup>r</sup>, that the duty of tunnage for the same is paid, or that it is such a vessel for which none is payable according to this act.

[SECT. 21.] That when and so often as any wine or rum imported into this province, the duty of impost upon which shall have been paid agreeable to this act, shall be reshipped and exported from this government to any other part of the world, that then, and in every such case, the exporter of such wine or rum shall make oath, at the time of shipping, before the receiver of impost, or his deputy, that the whole of the wine or rum so shipped has, bonâ fide, had the aforesaid duty of impost paid on the same, and shall afterwards produce a certificate, from some officer of the customs, that the same has been landed out of this government,—or otherwise, in case such rum or wines shall be exported to any place where there is no officer of the customs, or to any foreign port, the master of the vessel in which the same shall be exported shall make oath that the same has been landed out of the government, and the exporter shall, uppon producing such certificate, or uppon such oath of the master, make oath that he verily beleives no part of said wines or rum has been relanded in this province,—such exporter shall be allowed to draw back from the receiver of impost as follows; viz<sup>t</sup>.—

For every pipe of Western-Island wine, fifteen shillings.

For every pipe of Madeira and other sorts, seventeen shillings.

And for every hogshead of rum, thirteen shillings.

Provided always,—

[SECT. 22.] That if, after the shipping any such wine or rum to be exported as aforesaid, and giving security as aforesaid, in order to obtain the drawback aforesaid, the wine or rum so shipped to be exported, or any part thereof, shall be relanded in this province, or brought into the same from any other province or colony, that then all such rum and wine so relanded and brought again into this province shall be forfeited, and may be seized by the commissioner aforesaid, or his deputy.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 23.] That there be one fit person, and no more, nominated and appointed by this court, as a commissioner and receiver of the

And the said commissioner or receiver and his deputy or deputies, before their entering upon the execution of their office, shall be sworn to deal truely and faithfully therein, and shall attend in the said office from ten of the clock in the forenoon, untill one in the afternoon.

[SECT. 24.] And the said commissioner and receiver, for his labour, care and expences in the said office, shall have and receive, out of the province treasury, the sum of sixty pounds per annum; and his deputy or deputies to be paid for their service such sum or sums as the said commissioner and receiver, with the treasurer, shall agree upon, not exceeding four pounds per annum, each; and the treasurer is hereby ordered, in passing and receiving the said commissioner's accompts, accordingly, to allow the payment of such salary or salaries, as aforesaid, to himself and his deputies.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 2.] That the treasurer do forthwith send out his warrants, directed to the selectmen or assessors of each town or district within this province, requiring them, respectively, to assess the sum hereby set upon such town or district, in manner following; that is to say, to assess all rateable male polls above the age of sixteen years, within their respective towns or districts, or next adjoining to them, belonging to no other town, four shillings and twopence per poll, and proportionably in assessing the fines mentioned in this act, and the additional sum received out of the treasury for the payment of the representatives (except the governour, the lieutenant-governour and their families, the president, fellows and students of Harvard College, settled ministers and grammar-school masters, who are hereby exempted as well from being taxed for their polls, as for their estates being in their own hands and under their actual management and improvement); and other persons, if such their be, who, through age, infirmity or extream poverty, in the judgment of the assessors, are not capable to pay towards publick charges, they may exempt their polls, and so much of their estate as in their prudence they shall think fit and judge meet.

[SECT. 3.] And the justices in their general sessions, in the respective counties assembled, in granting a county tax or assessment, are hereby ordered and directed to apportion the same on the several towns in such county in proportion to their province rate, exclusive of what has been paid out of the publick treasury to the representative of each town for his service; and the assessors of each town in the province are also directed, in making an assessment, to govern themselves by the same rule; and all estates, both real and personal, lying within the limits of such town or district, or next unto the same, not paying elsewhere, in whose hands, tenure, occupation or possession soever the same is or shall be found, and also the incomes or profits which any person or persons, except as before excepted, do or shall receive from any trade, faculty, business or employment whatsoever, and all profits that shall or may arise by money or other estate not particularly otherwise assessed, or commissions of profit in their improvement, according to their understanding or cunning, at one penny on the pound; and to abate or multiply the same, if need be, so as to make up the sum set and ordered hereby for such town or district to pay; and, in making their assessment, to estimate houses and lands at six years' income of the yearly rents whereat the same may be reasonably set or let for in the place where they lye: saving all contracts between landlord and tenant, and where no contract is, the landlord to reimburse one-half of the tax set upon such houses and lands; and to estimate negro, Indian and molatto servants proportionably as other personal estate, according to their sound judgment and discretion; as also to estimate every ox of four years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every cow of three years old and upwards, at thirty shillings; every horse and mare of three years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every swine of one year old and upwards, at eight shillings; goats and sheep of one year old, three shillings each: likewise requiring the said assessors to make a fair list of the said assessment, setting forth, in distinct columns, against each particular person's name, how much he or she is assessed at for polls, and how much for houses and lands, and how much for personal estate, and income by trade or faculty, and if as guardian, or for any estate in his or her improvement, in trust, to be distinctly expressed; and the list or lists, so perfected and signed by them, or the major part of them, to commit to the collectors, constable or constables of such town or district, and to return a certificate of the name or names of such collectors, constable or constables, together with the sum total to each of them committed, unto himself, some time before the last day of October next.

[SECT. 4.] And the treasurer for the time being, upon receipt of such certificate, is hereby impowered and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector, or constable or constables of such town or district, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sum assessed on each particular person, before the last day of December next; and to pay in their collection, and issue the accounts of the whole, at or before the last day of March, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty-three.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 5.] That the assessors of each town and district, respectively, in convenient time before their making the assessment, shall give seasonable warning to the inhabitants, in a town meeting, or by posting up notifications in some place or places in such town or district, or notify the inhabitants some other way to give or bring in to the assessors true and perfect lists of their polls, and rateable estate, and income by trade or faculty, and gain by money at interest; and if any person or persons shall neglect or refuse so to do, or bring in a false list, it shall be lawful to and for the assessors to assess such person or persons, according to their known ability in such town, in their sound judgment and discretion, their due proportion of this tax, as near as they can, agreeable to the rules herein given, under the penalty of twenty shillings for each person that shall be convicted by legal proof, in the judgment of the said assessors, of bringing in a false list; the said fines to be for the use of the poor of such town or district where the delinquent lives, to be levied by warrant from the assessors, directed to the collector or constables, in manner as is directed for gathering town assessments, and to be paid into the town treasurer or selectmen for the use aforesaid: saving to the party aggrieved at the judgment of the assessors in setting forth such fine, liberty of appeal therefrom to the court of general sessions of the peace within the county for relief, as in case of being overrated. And if any person or persons shall not bring in a list of their estate as aforesaid to the assessors, he or they so neglecting shall not be admitted to make application to the court of sessions for any abatement of the assessment laid on him.

[SECT. 6.] And if the party be not convicted of any falseness in the list, by him presented, of the polls, rateable estate, or income by trade or faculty, business or employment, which he doth or shall exercise, or in gain by money at interest or otherwise, or other estate not particularly assessed, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportion to the tax, which the assessors may not exceed.

And forasmuch as, oftentimes, sundry persons, not belonging to this province, bring considerable trade and merchandize, and by reason that the tax or rate of the town where they come to trade is finished and delivered to the constable or collector, and, before the next year's assessment, are gone out of the province, and so pay nothing towards the support of the government, though, in the time of their residing here, they reaped considerable gain by trade, and had the protection of the government,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 7.] That when any such person or persons shall come and reside in any town within this province, and bring any merchandize, and trade, to deal therewith, the assessors of such town are hereby impowered to rate and assess all such persons according to their circumstances, pursuant to the rules and directions in this act provided, tho' the former rate may have been finished, and the new one not perfected, as aforesaid; and the constables or collectors are hereby enjoined to levy and collect all such sums committed to them and assessed on persons who are not of this province, and pay the same into the town treasury.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 8.] That the inhabitants of this province have liberty, if they see fit, to pay the several sums for which they may be respectively assessed, as their proportion of the aforesaid sum of twenty-six thousand seven hundred and forty-two pounds four shillings, in good merchantable hemp, or in good, merchantable, Isle-of-Sable codfish, or in good refined bar-iron, or in bloomery-iron, or in hollow iron-ware, or in good Indian corn, or in good winter rye, or in good winter wheat, or in good barley, or in good barrel pork, or in barrel beef, or in duck or canvas, or in long whalebone, or in merchantable cordage, or in good train-oyl, or in good beeswax, or in good bayberry-wax, or in tried tallow, or in good pease, or in good sheepswool[1], or in good tanned sole-leather; and that the eldest councillors, for the time being, of each of those counties in the province, of which any one of the councillors is an inhabitant, together with the province treasurer, or the major part of them, be a committee, who are hereby directed and fully authorized and empowered, once in every month, if need be, to agree and sett the several species and commodities aforesaid at some certain price, at which they shall be received towards the payment of the sums aforesaid; all which aforesaid commodities shall be of the produce of this province, and, as soon as conveniently may, be disposed of by the treasurer to the best advantage for so much as they will fetch in money; and the several persons paying their taxes in any of the commodities afore mentioned to run the risque and pay the charge of transporting the said commodities to the province treasury.

[SECT. 9.] And if any loss shall happen by the sale of the aforesaid species, it shall be made good by a tax of the next year; and if there be a surplusage, it shall remain a stock in the treasury.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 10.] That the inhabitants of this province shall have full liberty to pay in the several sums, which they shall respectively be assessed in pursuance of this act, in bills of credit on this province; also in government securities, signed by Andrew Oliver, Thomas Hubbard, Esqrs., and Mr. Harrison Gray, with the interest that may become due thereon: provided, they pay the bills aforesaid to the collectors of said assessments on or before the last day of December next.

And whereas, eight thousand one hundred and forty-two pounds four shillings, part of the above tax, has not been appropriated in any supply-bill for the payment of the publick debts,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 11.] That the said sum of eight thousand one hundred forty-two pounds four shillings, shall be issued out of the treasury, when received of the constables and collectors, in manner and for the purposes following; that is to say, the sum of two thousand five hundred pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of eight thousand one hundred forty-two pounds four shillings, shall be applied for the service of the several forts and garrisons within this province, pursuant to such orders and grants as are or shall be made by this court for those purposes; and the further sum of seven hundred pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of eight thousand one hundred forty-two pounds four shillings, shall be applied for the purchasing provisions, the commissary's necessary disbursements for the service of the several forts and garrisons within this province, pursuant to such grants as are or shall be made by this court for those purposes; and the further sum of three thousand five hundred pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of eight thousand one hundred forty-two pounds four shillings, shall be applied for the payment of such premiums and grants that now are or hereafter may be made by this court; and the further sum of five hundred pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of eight thousand one hundred forty-two pounds four shillings, shall be applied for the discharge of other debts owing from this province to persons that have served, or shall serve them, by order of this court, in such matters and things where there is no establishment nor any certain sum assigned for that purpose, and for paper, writing and printing for this court; and the further sum of eight hundred ninety-two pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of eight thousand one hundred forty-two pounds four shillings, shall be applied for the payment of his majesty's council and house of representatives, serving in the general court during the several sessions for this present year.

And whereas there are sometimes contingent and unforeseen charges that demand prompt pay,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 12.] That the sum of fifty pounds four shillings, part of the aforesaid sum of eight thousand one hundred forty-two pounds four shillings, be applied to pay such contingent charges, and for no other purpose whatsoever.

And be it further enacted,

CHAPTER 13.

AN ACT FOR THE MORE EASY PARTITION OF LANDS OR OTHER REAL ESTATE, GIVEN BY WILL, AND HELD IN COMMON AND UNDIVIDED AMONG THE DEVISEES.

WHEREAS it is usual for persons by their last wills to devise their real estates to sundry of their children or others, to be divided to and amongst them in some certain proportion, a division whereof cannot be obtained by the act of the parties, by reason of their disagree[m]ent or some legal incapacity that some of them are under, and other methods for obtaining such partition are attended with charge, delay, and other inconvenienc[ies], to the prejudice of such estate; for remedy whereof,—

Be it enacted by the Lieutenant-Governour, Council and House of Represent[ati]ves,

And whereas it sometimes happens that real estates devised by will lie in common and undivided with other real estate, and in order to a just and more convenient partition or division of the real estate so devised, it may be deem[e]d necessary that partition or division should be first made between the estate so devised, and the other estate lying in common therewith,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 2.] That in every such case it shall and may be lawful for the judge of probate of wills, &c<sup>[al]</sup>, in the county where such estate lies, to empower the five freeholders appointed as aforesaid, first to make partition or division between the lands or other real estate given by will, and any other lands or real estate lying in common therewith, notice being first given to all parties as above directed; and the charge of the division of any estate by virtue of this act, such charge being first set[t]led and allowed by the judge, shall be born by the several persons interested, in proportion to their respective interests therein.

Provided,—

[SECT. 3.] That no partition shall be made where the proportion belonging to the devisees, or any of them, shall appear by the tenor of the device to be disputable and uncertain.

NOTES.—There were but three sessions of the General Court this year. The first session was held at Concord, on account of the small-pox which then prevailed in Boston. On the first of June the Assembly was prorogued to September 27th (16th, Old Style), but was again prorogued, by proclamation, August 28th, to meet at Harvard College on the twenty-second of November, following. The second day of this session, at the request of the House of Representatives, the Lieutenant-Governor ordered an adjournment to the court-house at Boston, where the remainder of this, and the third, session were held.

The adoption of the Gregorian Calendar took effect this year : the day following the 31st of December was called January 1, 1752 ; and eleven days were struck out after the third day of September, which was reckoned the fourteenth. The act of parliament referred to in the following order, is reserved for the Appendix :—

“January 22, 1752. In Council, Ordered that the Act of Parliam<sup>t</sup> pass’d in the twenty fourth year of his present Majesty’s Reign, entitled, An Act for regulating the Commencem<sup>t</sup> of the Year, & for correcting the Calender now in Use, be printed & bound up with the Laws of this Province, for the better Information of the Inhabitants thereof, & that it be recorded in the Secretary’s Office in the Book of Laws.—In the House of Repres.<sup>ves</sup> Read & concur’d.—

No further trace has been found of the proceedings of the Home Government respecting the acts of the first session, than a memorandum, in the minutes of the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, that they were received by the Board, February 2, 1753, and were, by them, sent to Mr. Lamb. The date of the letter of Secretary Willard, transmitting them, is November 30, 1752.

The acts of the second and third sessions were certified for transmission, December 30, 1753, and received by the Privy Council, from Mr. Bollan, the Agent of the Province, May 15, 1754. On the 29th of May they were referred to a committee, who, in turn, referred them to the Lords of Trade, June 14.

The Board of Trade ordered them to be sent to Mr. Lamb, for his opinion, thereupon, in point of law, July 23, 1754. The report of Sir Matthew Lamb—which was, that “upon perusal and consideration of these Acts I have no objection thereto in point of law.”—was read at the Board, March 24 and 25, 1756, and, on the latter day, the draught of a report was ordered to be prepared, which, having been completed, was signed on the 6th of April.

This report of the Lords of Trade is dated April 13, 1756, and represents that chapters 11, 12, 14, 18, and 28 “were for temporary services and are either expired by their own Limitation or the purposes for which they were enacted have been completed,” and that chapters 9, 10, 13, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, and 27 “relate to the internal œconomy of the Province and appear to have been enacted for its private Convenience, and” —the report continues—“We see no reason why His Majesty may not be graciously pleased to confirm them.”

An order was, accordingly, passed in the Privy Council, dated July 7, 1756, confirming chapters 9, 10, 13, 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, and 27.

Chap. 2. An engrossed bill, with this same title, was passed to be enacted by both houses at the April session of 1751-52, but did not receive the Lieutenant-Governor’s signature. It is referred to in the margin of the record thus: “Engross’d Bill ab<sup>t</sup> Fire Wards pass’d by both Houses”—Council Records, vol. XIX., p. 445.

Gentlemen of the Council & House of Represent<sup>ves</sup>,

The Secretary has laid before me for my Signing an Engross'd Bill pass'd both Houses for incorporating the West or Second Precinct in the Township of Leicester into a distinct & Separate Township &c. Whereupon I must Acquaint you that I am restrained from giving my Consent to this Bill, unless Provision be made that the Number of Represent<sup>ves</sup> be not thereby increased, or a clause for suspending the Execution of the Act until his Majesty's Pleasure shall be known thereupon, be inserted in the said Bill."—Ibid., vol. XIX., p. 96.

* This is evidently an error of the recording clerk, and is underscored in the original.

“ January 4, 1749. The following Message to his Honor the Lieutenant Governor, was brought up from the House of Representatives by James Allen Esq<sup>r</sup> & others viz

May it please your Honor.

The House taking into consideration your Honor's Message of the 22<sup>d</sup> of December, wherein you are pleased to inform the two Houses, that you are restrained from your giving your consent to an Engross'd Bill, pass'd both Houses, for incorporating the west or second Precinct into a distinct Township, unless Provision be made that the number of Representatives be not thereby increased, or a Clause for suspending the Execution of the Act, until his Majesty's pleasure should be known thereupon, be inserted in said Bill; beg leave to say, they are at a loss to know, why your Honor apprehends yourself restrained from giving your consent to the bill, unless provision be made that the number be not thereby increased, or a Clause for suspending the Execution of the Act, until his Majesty's pleasure should be known thereupon, be inserted in the said Bill; but must suppose your Honor induced so to judge, either from the Reason & Nature of the thing, or from some Restraint, in their late Majesty's Charter to this Province; which are the only Rules of Government, in this His Majesty's Province, in neither of which can the House find any Restraint, in which Opinion the House are the more confirmed, from the Fate of a late Bill in the Hon<sup>ble</sup> House of Commons of which your Honor is well knowing.

The House apprehend the forming that part of Leicester, into a distinct Township, will be for the prosperity of his Majesty's Subjects, in which his Majesty always takes pleasure; the end of Government being his Majesty's Honor & the happiness of his Subjects, & that the people be fully represented is for his Majesty's Honor & the happiness of his Subjects, & is agreeable to his Majesty's Charter, & the Laws of this Province, is the Opinion of this House; But were it not so, the number of Representatives the Town of Leicester by Charter & The Laws of this Province are now entitled to, are not enlarged by this Bill; And therefore the House flatter themselves. your Honor will give your Consent.”—Ibid., p. 114.

The profession, in the above message from the House, of ignorance as to why the Lieutenant-Governor should suppose himself restrained from assenting to this bill, without a suspending clause, will, in the face of the royal instructions on that subject, seem disingenuous, if it is not borne in mind that those instructions were issued to the Governor, and not, expressly, to the Lieutenant-Governor; who, it was claimed, should be guided solely by the terms of the charter, and a consideration of the welfare of the people. This point, it must be admitted, is extremely fine, but not smaller than many objections gravely entertained by the Ministry in their dealings with the Province.

And whereas, notwithstanding the laws made against selling strong drink without licen[s][c]e, many persons not regarding the penal[t][y][ie]s and forfeitures in the said act, do receive and entertain persons in their houses, and sell great quantit[y][ie]s of spirits and other strong drink, without licen[s][c]e so to do first had and obtained; by reason whereof great debaucheries are committed and kept secret, the end thereby and design of this law is in a great measure frustrated, and such as take licen[s][c]es and pay the excise greatly wronged and injured,—

And be it further enacted,

Persons after first conviction to enter into bonds.

[SECT. 10.] That after any person shall have been once convicted of selling strong liquors without licen[s][c]e, contrary to this act, he shall, upon every offence after such first conviction, be obliged to enter into bonds, with one or more suret[y][ie]s, in the penalty of twenty pounds, to his majesty, for the use of this government, that he will not, in like manner, offend or be guilty of any breach of this act; and upon refusal to give such bond, he shall be committed to prison until he comply therewith.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 2.] That the treasurer do forthwith send out his warrants, directed to the selectmen or assessors of each town or district within this province, requiring them, respectively, to assess the sum hereby set upon such town or district, in manner following; that is to say, to assess all rateable male polls above the age of sixteen years, within their respective towns or districts, or next adjo[y][i]ning to them, belonging to no other town, one shilling and sixpence per poll, and proportionably in assessing the fines mentioned in this act, and the additional sum received out of the treasury for the payment of the representatives (except the governo[u]r, the lieutenant-governo[u]r and their families, the president, fellows and students of Harvard College, set[t]led ministers and grammar-school masters, who are hereby exempted as well from being taxed for their polls, as for their estates being in their own hands and under their actual management and improvement; as also all the estate pertaining to Harvard College); and other persons, if such the[i]r[e] be, who, thro[ugh] age, infirmity or extream poverty, in the judgment of the assessors, are not capable to pay towards publick charges, they may exempt their polls, and so much of their estates as in their prudence they shall think fit and judge meet.

[SECT. 3.] And the justices in their general sessions, in the respective counties assembled, in granting a county tax or assessment, are hereby ordered and directed to apportion the same on the several towns in such county in proportion to their province rate, exclusive of what has been paid out of the publick treasury to the representative of each town for his service; and the assessors of each town in the province are also directed, in making an assessment, to govern themselves by the same rule; and all estates, both real and personal, lying within the limits of such town or district, or next unto the same, not paying elsewhere, in whose hands, tenure, occupation or possession soever the same is or shall be found, and also the incomes or profits which any person or persons, except as before excepted, do or shall receive from any trade, faculty, business or employment whatsoever, and all profits that shall or may arise by money or other estate not particularly otherwise assess[e]d, or commissions of profit in their improvement, according to their understanding or cunning, at a halfpenny on the pound; and to abate or multiply the same, if need be, so as to make up the sum set and ordered hereby for such town or district to pay; and, in making their assessment, to estimate houses and lands at six years' income of the yearly rents whereat the same may be reasonably set or let for in the place where they l[i][y]: saving all contracts between landlord and tenant, and where no contract is, the landlord to reimburse one-half of the tax set upon such houses and lands; and to estimate negro, Indian and molatto servants proportionably as other personal estate, according to their sound judgment and discretion; as also to estimate every ox of four years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every cow of three years old and upwards, at thirty shillings; every horse and mare of three years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every swine of one year old and upwards, at eight shillings; goats and sheep of one year old, three shillings each: likewise requiring the said assessors to make a fair list of the said assessment, setting forth, in distinct columns, against each particular person's name, how much he or she is assess[e]d at for polls, and how much for houses and lands, and how much for personal estate, and income by trade or faculty, and if as guardian, or for any estate in his or her improvement, in trust, to be distinctly express[e]d; and the list or lists, so perfected and signed by them, or the major part of them, to commit to the collectors, constable or constables of such town or district, and to return a certificate of the name or names of such collectors, constable or constables, with the sum total to each of them committed, unto himself, some time before the last day of October next.

[SECT. 4.] And the treasurer for the time being, upon receipt of such certificate, is hereby impowered and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector, or constable or constables of such town or district, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sum assess[e]d on each particular person, before the last day of December next; and to pay in their collection, and issue the accompts of the whole, at or before the last day of March next, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty-four.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 5.] That the assessors of each town or district, respectively, in convenient time, before their making [of] the assessment, shall give seasonable warning to the inhabitants, in a town meeting, or by posting up notifications in some place or places in such town or district, or notify the inhabitants some other way to give or bring in to the assessors true and perfect lists of their polls, rateable estate, and income by trade or faculty, and gain by money at interest; and if any person or persons shall neglect or refuse so to do, or bring in a false list, it shall be lawful to and for the assessors to assess such person or persons, according to their known ability in such town, in their sound judgment and discretion, their due proportion of this tax, as near as they can, agre[e]able to the rules herein given, under the penalty of twenty shillings for each person that shall be convicted by legal proof, in the judgment of the said assessors, in bringing in a false list; the said fines to be for the use of the poor of such town or district where the delinquent lives, to be levied by warrant from the assessors, directed to the collector or constables, in manner as is directed for gathering town assessments, to be paid in to the town treasurer or selectmen for the use aforesaid: saving to the party aggr[ei][ie]ved at the judgment of the assessors in setting forth such fine, liberty of appeal therefrom to the court of general sessions of the peace within the county for relief as in case of being overrated. And if any person or persons shall not bring in a list of their estate as aforesaid to the assessors, he or they so neglecting shall not be admitted to make application to the court of general sessions for any abatement of the assessment laid on him.

[SECT. 6.] And if the party be not convicted of any falseness in the list, by him presented, of the polls, rateable estate, or income by trade or faculty, business or employment, which he does or shall exercise, or in gain by money at interest or otherwise, or other estate not particularly assess[e]d, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportion to the tax, which the assessors may not exceed.

And forasmuch as, oftentimes, sundry persons, not belonging to this province, bring considerable trade and merchandi[s][z]e, and by reason that the tax or rate of the town where they come to trade is finished and delivered to the constable or collectors, and, before the next year's assessment, are gone out of the province, and so pay nothing towards the support of the government, though, in the time of their residing here, they reaped considerable gain by trade, and had the protection of the government,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 7.] That when any such person or persons shall come and reside in any town within this province, and bring any merchandi[s][z]e, and trade, to deal therewith, the assessors of such town are hereby impowered to rate and assess all such persons according to their circumstances, pursuant to the rules and directions in this act provided, tho' [igh] the former rate may have been finished, and the new one not perfected, as aforesaid.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 8.] That when any merchant, trader, or factor, inhabitant of some one town within this province, shall traffic, or carry on trade and business, and set up a store in some other town in the province, the assessors of such town where such trade and business shall be carried on as aforesaid, be and hereby are empowered to rate and assess all such merchants, traders, and factors, their goods and merchandi[s][z]e, for carrying on such trade and exercising their faculty in such town, pursuant to the rules and directions of this act; and that before any such assessors shall rate such persons as afore mentioned, the selectmen of the town where such trade is carried on shall transmit a list of such persons as they shall judge may be rated within the intent of this act; and the constables or collectors are hereby enjoined to levy and collect all such sums committed to them and assessed on persons who are not of this province, or are residents in other towns than those where they carry on their trade, and pay the same.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 9.] That the inhabitants of this province have liberty, if they see fit, to pay the several sums for which they may be respectively assess[e]d, of the aforesaid sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, in good merchantable hemp, or in good, merchantable, Isle-of-Sable codfish, or in good refin[e]d bar[r]-iron, or in bloomery-iron, or in h[a][o]llow iron-ware, or in good Indian corn, or in good winter rye, or in good winter wheat, or in good barley, or in good barrel[l] pork, or in barrel[l] beef, or in duck or canvas, or in long whalebone, or in merchantable cordage, or in good train oyl, or in good beeswax, or in good bayberry-wax, or in tr[i][y]ed tallow, or in good pe[e][a]se, or in good sheepswool[l], or in good tann[e]d sole-leather; and that the eldest cancellors, for the time being, of each of those count[y][te]s in the province, of which any one of the cancellors is an inhabitant, together with the province treasurer, or the major part of them, be a committee, who are hereby directed and fully authorized and empowered, once in every month, if need be, to agree and set the several species and commodities aforesaid at some certain price, at which they shall be received towards the payment of the sums aforesaid: all which aforesaid commodities shall be of the produce of this province, and, as soon as conveniently may, be disposed of by the treasurer to the best advantage for so much as they will fetch in money; and the several persons paying their taxes in any of the commodities afore mentioned to run the risque and pay the charge of transporting the said commodities to the province treasury.

[SECT. 10.] And if any loss shall happen by the sale of the aforesaid species, it shall be made good by a tax of the next year; and if there be a surplusage, it shall remain as a stock in the treasury.

And whereas, the said sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds has not been appropriated to any supply bill for the payment of the publick debts,—

Be it enacted,

[SECT. 11.] That the said sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, shall be issued out of the treasury, when received of the constables and collectors, in manner and for the purposes following; that is to say, the sum of two thousand and five hundred pounds, part of the said sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, shall be applied for the service of the several forts and garrisons within this province, pursuant to such orders and grants as are or shall be made by this court for those purposes ; and the further sum of seven hundred pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, shall be appl[i][y]ed for the purchasing provisions, commissary's necessaries and disbursements for the service of the several forts and garrisons within this province, pursuant to such grants as are or shall be made by this court for that purpose ; and the further sum of three thousand five hundred pounds, part of the said sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, shall be applied for the payment of such premiums and grants that now are or hereafter may be made by this court ; and the further sum of five hundred pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, shall be applied for the discharge of other debts owing from this province to persons that have served, or shall serve them, by order of this court, in such matters and things where there is no establishment nor any certain sum assign[e]d them for that purpose, and for paper, writing and printing ; and the further sum of nine hundred pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, shall be appl[i][y]ed for the payment of his majesty's council and house of representatives, serving in the general court during the several sessions of this present year.

And as there are sometimes contingent and unforeseen charges that demand prompt pay,—

Be it enacted,

[SECT. 12.] That the sum of fifty pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, be applied to pay such contingent charges ; and the further sum of four thousand two hundred and fifty pounds, being the remainder of the aforesaid sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, remain in the hands of the treasurer to be drawn out for such uses as this court shall hereafter order, and for no other purpose whatsoever.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 13.] That the treasurer is hereby directed and ordered to pay the sum of twelve thousand and four hundred pounds, brought in by taxes as aforesaid, out of such appropriations as shall be directed to by warrant, and no other ; and the secretary, to whom it belongs to keep the muster-rolls and acco[un][mp]ts of the charge, shall lay before the house of representatives, when they direct, such muster-rolls and acco[un][mp]ts, after payment thereof. ## CHAPTER 28.

AN ACT IN ADDITION TO AN ACT ENTITLED "AN ACT TO ENABLE CREDITORS TO RECEIVE THEIR JUST DEBTS OUT OF THE EFFECTS OF THEIR ABSENT OR ABSCONDING DEBTORS."

WHEREAS in and by an act intituled "An Act to enable creditors to receive their just debts out of the effects of their absent or absconding debtors," which act, in the twenty-first year of his present majesty's reign, was revived and continued in force for the term of ten years, provision was intended to be made for the recovery of any sums that may be justly due to any person, out of the goods, effects or credits of any absent or absconding person or persons, that may be in the hands of any attorney, factor, agent or trustee, and not exposed to view; and some doubts have arisen how far the remedy provided by the said act, according to the true intent thereof, does extend, and in what actions and demands plaintiffs or complainants may recover and receive their dues and damages which they are intitled to, from absent or absconding persons in manner as in and by said act is provided,—

Preamble.
1738-39, chap. 15.
1748-49, chap. 6.

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council and House of Representatives,

That the remedy provided in and by said act was intended, and shall be construed and understood, to extend to all actions of debt, detinue, account, and covenant, and to all actions upon the case, in trover, indebitatis assumpsit, and express contract; and that all persons intitled to either of said actions against any such absent or absconding person, are creditors within the true intent and meaning of said act, and intitled to any method of relief in and by said act given to creditors. [Passed January 25; published January 26, 1754.]

Species of actions in which creditors may receive their debts out of the estate of absent and absconding debtors.

CHAPTER 29.

AN ACT IN ADDITION TO THE SEVERAL LAWS OF THIS GOVERNMENT MADE FOR THE REGULATING GENERAL FIELDS.

WHEREAS, by law, the fence-viewers chosen in the several towns within this province are obliged to view defective and insufficient fence, in case complaint be made to them, and the person complaining pay them three shillings per diem, and for a less time sixpence an hour, and, upon the fence-viewer's finding the fence defective, he is obliged to notif[ic][y] the owner thereof, who hath six days by law allowed him to repair the same; which, if he sufficiently repair within said term, the complainant, who hath paid the fence-viewer[s] for viewing the same, cannot recover the money by him so paid; for remedy whereof,—

Preamble.
1741-42, chap. 3.

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council and House of Represent[ati]ves,

Complainant not to pay the fence-viewer of fences before he views.
Owner of the fence to pay double fees, in case.

[SECT. 1.] That each and every fence-viewer within this province, and that hereafter may be chosen into said office, shall be obliged, upon complaint made to him, to view any insufficient fences without the complainant's first paying him therefor; and in case the owner of such insufficient fence neglect or refuse to pay him the fee allowed by law for viewing such fence, for the space of one month, he shall have and recover of the owner of said fence double the sum allowed by law for that service; but in case the fence complained of appear to the fence-viewer to be sufficient, that then the person complaining shall pay the like fee to the fence-viewer.

Preamble.

And whereas it often happens that horses, cattle and other creatures are found damage-feasant in general fields, which are either clandestinely turned in, or are so unruly as to get in where the fence is sufficient and according to law, and, when impounded, the owners thereof will relieve the same (because there may be some defect in the fence incompassing such general field, tho'[ugh] the same may be at a great distance from the place where such creatures actually got into the field), and judgm[en]t recovered against the person impounding, w[hi]ch may be very unjust and unreasonable; therefore,—

Be it further enacted,

Creatures to be impounded,
unless the fence
be proved insufficient.

[SECT. 2.] That when and so often as any creatures are taken in any general field, and impounded, and a writ of replevin is taken out to relieve the same, the court or justice before whom the action is brought, shall be and hereby is impowered to give judgment against the owner of said creatures, unless by such owner it be made to appear they got into the field where the fence was insufficient at the time of their getting in, or were put in by some other person.

Preamble.

And whereas it often happens, in fencing general fields, for the convenience of fencing, considerable quantities of rocky and barren land, not capable of tillage, are taken into such fields, the owners of which are now by law obliged to fence for the same, and also pay taxes equal to the other lands in said field whenever an assessm[en]t is made by the proprietors of such field, which is very unjust; therefore,—

Be it further enacted,

Owners of rocky, unimproved lands to pay for no part of the general
fence.

[SECT. 3.] That all lands now lying in general fields, or that hereafter may be taken into the same, that are so rocky or barren that the owners thereof have never improved the same, either by mowing, plowing or feeding, said owners shall not be obliged to fence for them any part of the fence incompassing such general fields, nor shall they be taxed for them in any rate raised by the proprietors of such field, until[ ] such time as they shall make improvement thereon.

Limitation.

[SECT. 4.] This act to continue and be in force three years from the first day of February next, and no longer. [Passed January 25; published January 26, 1754.]

CHAPTER 30.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the laws already provided against the destruction of the fish called alewives, do not, in divers circumstances, reach the case of Herring River, in the town of Sandwich, so that, nevertheless, great

And whereas a considerable part of the banks of said river is covered with thick woods, and thereby so obscured as that persons may frequently offend against this act without being discovered, and thereby the good design of it be defeated, unless special provision be made therefor.

Be it therefore enacted,

[SECT. 5.] That the manner, rules and methods of conviction of offenders against this act, be the same as are directed and provided in and by an act, intituled “An Act in addition to and for rendring more effectual an act made in the tenth year of the reign of King William the Third, intituled ‘An Act for preventing of trespasses,’” made in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First.

Preamble.

WHEREAS, in and by an act made and passed in the eighth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Ann[e], intit[u]led "An Act for regulating of drains and common shores," it is enacted, among other things, "That it shall and may be lawful to and for any one or more of the inhabitants of any town, at his or their own cost and charge, to make and lay a common shore or main drain for the benefit of themselves and others that shall think fit to jo[y][i]n therein; and every person that shall afterwards enter his or her particular drain into such common shore or main drain, or by any more remote means receive benefit thereby, for the draining of their cellars or lands, shall be obliged to pay unto the owner or owners of such common shore or main drain a proportionable part of the charge of making or repairing the same, or so much thereof as shall be below the place where any particular drain enters thereinto, at the judgment of the selectmen of the town, or major part of them"; and whereas it frequently happens that the main drains or common shores decay and fill up, and the persons immediately affected thereby are obliged to repair such common shore to prevent damage to themselves and others whose drains enter above as well as below them, and no particular provision is made by said act to compel such persons as dwell above that part where common shores are repaired and have not sustained damage, to pay their proportionable share thereof as shall be adjudged by the selectmen, nor in what manner the same shall be recovered, which has already occasioned many disputes and controversies; wherefore, for preventing the same for the future,—

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council and House of Representatives, [SECT. 1.] That whensoever it shall hereafter happen, after the first day of June next, that any common shore or main drain is stopped or gone to decay, so that it will be necessary to open such common shore or main drain to remove such stoppage and repair it, not only the person or persons who shall so do, or cause the same to be done, but all others whose drains enter, either above or below, such common shore or main drain, or receive any benefit by said common shore or main drain, shall pay such a proportionable part of the whole expence of opening and repairing the common shore or main drain as shall be adjudged to them by the selectmen of the town, or a major part of them, to be certified under their hands; and if any person or persons, after such certificate is made, shall refuse to pay the same, within ten days, to the person so appointed by the selectmen to receive it, being duly notified thereof, he shall be liable and subject to pay to such person appointed double the sum mentioned in such certificate, and all costs arising upon such refusal; and such person is hereby fully authorized and empowered to bring an action or actions for the same accordingly: provided, always, that nothing in this act shall be construed or understood to set aside or make void any covenants or agreements already made, or that hereafter may be made, among the proprietors of such drains or common shores.

Owners of drains, &c., to pay their proportion of the charge for opening of them.

Provided, in case of contract.

[SECT. 2.] This act to continue [to] [and] be in force for five years from the first day of June next, and no longer. [Passed April 17; published April 24, 1754.]

CHAPTER 44.

AN ACT TO PREVENT NEAT CATTLE AND HORSES RUNNING AT LARGE AND FEEDING ON THE BEACHES AND MEADOWS BELOW THE BANKS, IN THE TOWN OF TRURO, FROM THE HOUSE OF JOSHUA ATKINS TO BOUND BROOK, AND ALSO ON THE COMMON MEADOW AT AND ABOUT PAMIT HARBOUR AND RIVER, AS FAR UP AS THE WADING-PLACE BY JOHN LUMBART'S.

WHEREAS there are certain meadow-lands within the township of Truro, in the county of Barnstable, called Pamit Meadows, on which

many of the inhabitants of said town depend for their hay, and the said meadow-land lies adjo[y][i]ning to sandy beaches, next the sea, on which no fence can well be made to stand, and by reason of cattle and horses trampling and feeding there, the beach-grass, which was wont to prevent the driving of the sand from the beaches to the meadows, is destroyed, and a great part of the meadows already covered with sand and become useless for grass, and the whole in danger of being buried with the sands, if not timely prevented,—

Be it therefore enacted by the Governour, Council and House of Represent[at]ives, [SECT. 1.] That no person shall presume to turn or drive any neat cattle, or horses, upon the said beaches or meadows, to feed, or leave them at large there, on the penalty of five shillings a head for all neat cattle, and for every horse-kind so turned upon any of the said beaches or meadows, to feed, or that shall be found at large there; which penalty may be recovered by any of the proprietors of said beaches or meadows, one moiety thereof to be to the informer that shall sue for the same, and the other moiety to be to and for the use of the poor of the town of Truro.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 2.] That it shall be lawful for any owner or proprietor of the said meadows or beaches, or other person, finding any cattle or horse-kind feeding or going at large upon the beaches or meadows aforesaid, or any of them, to impound the same; and the person or persons impounding them shall give publick notice thereof in the town of Truro, and in the two next adjo[y][i]ning towns, and shall rel[ei][i]ve said creatures whilst impounded, with suitable meat and water; and the owner thereof appearing, he shall pay to the impounder, one shilling and sixpence damages for each head of neat cattle or horse-kind so impounded, and cost[s] of impounding them: and if the owner do not appear within the space of six days, and pay the damage, and costs occasioned by impounding the same, then, and in every such case, the person or persons impounding such cattle or horse-kind shall cause them to be sold at publick vendue, for paying such damages and costs, and the charge arising by such sale (publick notice of the time and place of such sale being given forty-eight hours beforehand); and the overplus, if any be, to be returned to the owner of such cattle or horse-kind, on his demand, at any time within twelve months next after the sale; and if no owner shall appear within the said twelve months, then one moiety of the overplus shall be to the party impounding, and the other moiety thereof to the use of the poor of the town of Truro.

[SECT. 3.] This act to continue and be in force for the space of three years from the first day of June next, and no longer. [Passed April 19; published April 24, 1754.]

NOTES.—There were four sessions of the General Court this year. The first session was prorogued, on the twenty-second day of June, to August 15; but, on the first day of August, it was again prorogued, by proclamation, to September 5. On the tenth of August, Governor Shirley, having returned, issued his proclamation confirming the last prorogation by the Lieutenant-Governor. The second session continued from the fifth to the fourteenth of September, inclusive. There is no record of a prorogation of the Assembly at the end of this session; but, as the third session began December 4, after "several prorogations," it may be inferred that the court was prorogued to the latter date. The third session was interrupted by two recesses between the 22d and 26th of December and the 12th and 16th of January; and was concluded January 25, 1754. The fourth session began March 27, and ended April 23.

All the acts of this year were printed: chapters 10 and 11, separately; and the engrossments are preserved except of chapters 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, 30, and 35. The acts of the first session were certified for transmission, October 17, 1753; and were delivered, by Mr. Bollan, the agent of the Province, May 15, 1754. They were referred to a committee of the Privy Council, by whom, in turn, they were ordered to be submitted to the Lords of Trade, June 14; and the latter ordered them to be sent to Mr. Lamb, July 23, 1754. The acts of the second and third sessions were certified, in like manner, October 21,

No person to turn or drive any cattle on the beaches, &c., of Truro.

Cattle found feeding on the beaches aforesaid, to be impounded, &c.

Limitation.

1754, accompanied by a letter from Secretary Willard, dated October 23. They were received by the Board of Trade, in December following, but were not lodged in the Council-office until January 24, 1755. On the 29th of January they were referred to a committee of the Privy Council, and, on the next day, were sent, by this committee, to the Lords of Trade. By the latter they were ordered to be sent to Sir Matthew Lamb, for his opinion, &c., February 4, but were not actually sent until June 19, 1755.

Sir Matthew Lamb's reports to the Lords of Trade, covering all the acts of this year, were read at the Board, March 24, 1756; and were to the effect that upon perusal and consideration of these acts he had no objection thereto, in point of law. The acts having been considered by the Board at this sitting, the draught of a report to the Lords of the committee of the Privy Council, was, next day, ordered to be prepared. On the 6th of April this draught was agreed to and ordered to be transcribed, and on the 13th of April was signed, together with a letter to Governor Shirley, on chapters 8 and 35, which had been prepared at the same time. The substance of this letter is hereafter given in the notes to the chapters above named.

In their above-mentioned report the Lords of Trade represent that chapters 5, 7, 10, 11, 24, 25, 26, and 40 "were passed for temporary services and are either expired by their own Limitation or the purposes for which they were enacted, have been completed"; that chapters 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 8, 9, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 36, 37, 38, 39, 41, 42, 43, and 44 "relate to the internal œconomy of the Province and appear to have been enacted for its private Convenience, and We see no reason why His Majesty may not be graciously pleased to confirm them"; and they conclude with a special report upon chapter 35, which is given at length, hereafter, in the note to that chapter.

In accordance with the representations of the Lords of Trade, an order was passed in Council, July 7, 1756, confirming the thirty-six acts last enumerated, above.

"The anniversary of the Society in Boston for encouraging industry and employing the poor was celebrated with extraordinary attention. In the afternoon, about three hundred young female spinsters, decently dressed, appeared on the common at their spinning wheels. The wheels were placed regularly in three rows, and a female was seated at each wheel. The weavers also appeared, cleanly dressed, in garments of their own weaving. One of them, working at a loom on a stage, was carried on men's shoulders, attended with music. An immense number of spectators was present at this interesting spectacle. Rev. Dr. Cooper preached a discourse, and a collection was made for the benefit of the institution. A Manufactory house, a large and handsome brick building, was erected about this time in Longacre street; and an excise, laid by the general court on carriages and other articles of luxury, was appropriated to it. Its original design was for carrying on manufactures in the town, particularly the linnen manufacture; but 'some untoward circumstances taking place,' that manufacture was wholly set aside. The Institution continued but three or four years."—Holmes's Annals, vol. 2, p. 196, and note; sub anno, 1753.

"The passing of Laws in the Plantations for encouraging Manufactures, which any ways interfere with the manufactures of this Kingdom, has always been thought improper and has ever been discouraged. The great expence which this Country has been and is still at for the defence and protection of the Colonies, while they on the other hand contribute little or nothing to the taxes with which it is burthen'd, gives it a just claim to restrain them in such attempts. And altho' the great importation of foreign Linnens does in some sort take off the objection to a Linnen Manufacture in the Colony's yet as Parliament has lately and particularly this year given great encouragement to this Manufacture here, We desire you will be cautious of assenting to Laws of this kind for the future."—Lords of Trade, to Governor Shirley, April 13, 1756; "Mass. Bay, B. T.," vol. 84, p. 327, in Public Record Office.

"April 10, 1754. * * * * *

We look upon it to be of absolute necessity that the French should at all Events be prevented from making any Settlements whatsoever on the River Kennebeck, or the carrying Place at the head of it,

As Richmond Fort on that River is in a decaying State, We desire your Excellency to order a new Fort to be erected of about one hundred & twenty feet square, as far up the River above Richmond Fort as your Excellency shall think fit, and to cause the Garrison, Artillery & Stores at Richmond to be removed to the new Fort and the old one to be demolished

We pray your Excellency likewise to order a sufficient Force up to the carrying Place to remove any French that may be settling there: But as we apprehend that our Success under Providence will depend very much on your taking this Affair into your immediate Care & Direction: We therefore pray your Excellency to submit to the Inconveniences of a Voyage to the Eastern parts of the Province; and there to give such Orders for the Purposes aforesaid as you shall find necessary. And that your Excellency's Person may be secure against any Attempts of French or Indians; And you may be enabled to effect the Building the Fort aforesaid, and to destroy any French Settlement that may be carrying on, We will make Provision for the Pay & Subsistence of Five hundred Men, Which Number (including the six independent Companies already ordered), We desire you to cause to be enlisted, as you shall think proper,

We will also make ample Provision for your Excellency's Voyage, and for an Interview with the Indians, if you shall find it expedient, We hope by your Excellency's prudent Management, these Indians will be convinc'd that it is their Interest to continue at Peace with Us, and as we are sincerely desirous that every thing may be done, which may tend to perpetuate the same, we will readily defray the Charge of supporting & educating a considerable Number of the principal Indian Children, If your Excellency can prevail on their Friends to agree to it."—*Extract from an answer of the Assembly to the Governor's speech. Gentlemen of the House of Representatives,

I have this Morning received a Memorial from Coll<sup>o</sup> John Winslow (whom I have appointed the Chief Commander of the Forces raised & to be raised for the Service Eastward) Wherein he signifies to me that upon Mustering the five hundred Men first ordered to be raised, there are only one hundred & ninety seven Men that Come provided with effective Arms, so that there will be wanting three hundred & three Arms for equipping the Men already raised, besides the deficiency that may happen among the Three hundred still to be raised, As you will find upon reading the said Memorial, which I herewith send unto you,

Now, Gentlemen, I know no other way of supplying this great Deficiency, upon this Emergency, than by borrowing so many Arms as will be needfull out of the several Town Stocks, with the Engagement of this Court to restore the same after the Service shall be over, in as good Condition as they were received; or making the whole good both as to Number & Quality: If you can find out any better Way it will be very acceptable to Me; But something must forthwith be effectually done by this Court, Otherwise this important Service will be greatly impeded if not utterly frustrated."—Ibid., p. 258.

"The Massachusetts assembly was influenced by the friends of the governor, to address him to raise a small army, and to order a detachment to this supposed settlement, and, if the rumour should be well founded, to break it up; and, at all events, to secure by forts the passes from Quebec, for New England, by the way of Kennebeck. The assembly also desired him to go into the eastern part of the province, and there to take upon himself the immediate direction of the affair. He accordingly made a voyage from Boston, to Falmouth in Casco Bay, and took with him a quorum of his council, and several principal members of the house, who, having, by their advice, been instrumental in promoting his measures, would think themselves bound, upon their return, to promote a sanction of them in the general assembly.

He first held a treaty or conference with the Indian chiefs at Falmouth, to prevent their being alarmed from fear of hostilities against them; and then ordered the forces which he had raised, consisting of eight hundred men under the command of Mr. John Winslow, who had been a captain in the royal army at the siege of Carthage, and was on half pay, to the river Kennebeck. There they first built a fort, about three quarters of a mile below Tacomick Falls, and about thirty-seven miles above Richmond fort. This new fort took the name of Halifax, out of respect to the then secretary of state. A number of persons who claimed a tract of land upon this river, under a long dormant, and lately-revived grant from the assembly of the colony of New Plymouth, obtained leave from the governor to erect another fort, eighteen miles below the first, at a place called Cushnoek. This he called Fort Western from a gentleman of his acquaintance in Sussex, in England; and in each fort a garrison was placed in the pay of the province.

Five hundred men then marched to what was called the carrying-place, and to a pond which they supposed to be half way over it, without finding any marks of French or Indian settlements, made or intended to be made; and then returned to Casco Bay.

This ended this expedition, which was very expensive; and though it was, in every part of it, the project of the governor, yet, as it had the appearance of originating in the assembly, there was no room for complaint."—Hutchinson's History of Mass., vol. 3, pp. 25 and 26.

[SECT. 20.] And the said commissioner is hereby empowered to appoint a meet and suitable person, to repair unto and on board any ship or vessel, to take the exact measure or tunnage thereof, in case he shall suspect the register of such ship or vessel doth not express and set forth the full burthen of the same; the charge thereof to be paid by the master or owner of such ship or vessel, before she shall be cleared, in case she shall appear to be of a greater burthen: otherwise, to be paid by the commissioner out of the money received by him for impost, and shall be allowed him, accordingly, by the treasurer, in his accompts. And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 22.] That there be one fit person, and no more, nominated and appointed by this court, as a commissioner and receiver of the aforesaid duties of impost and tunnage of shipping, and for the inspection, care and management of the said office, and whatsoever thereto relates, to receive commission for the same from the governor or commander-in-chief for the time being, with authority to substitute and appoint a deputy receiver in each port, or other places besides that in which he resides, and to grant warrants to such deputy receivers for the said place, and to collect and receive the impost and tunnage of shipping as aforesaid that shall become due within such port, and to render the account thereof, and to pay in the same, to the said commissioner and receiver: which said commissioner and receiver shall keep fair books of all entries and duties arising by virtue of this act; also, a particular account of every vessell, so that the duties of impost and tunnage arising on the said vessell may appear; and the same to lie open, at all seasonable times, to the view and perusal of the treasurer or receiver-general of this province (or any other person or persons whom this court shall appoint), with whom he shall account for all collections and payments, and pay all such moneys as shall be in his hands, as the treasurer or receiver-general shall demand it. And the said commissioner or receiver and his deputy or deputies, before their entering upon the execution of their office, shall be sworn to deal truly and faithfully therein, and shall attend in the said office from ten of the clock in the forenoon, until one in the afternoon.

[SECT. 23.] And the said commissioner and receiver, for his labour, care and expences in the said office, shall have and receive, out of the province treasury, the sum of sixty pounds per annum; and his deputy or deputies shall receive, for their service, five per cent for whatever

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 2.] That the treasurer do forthwith send out his warrants, directed to the selectmen or assessors of each town or district within this province, requiring them, respectively, to assess the sum hereby set upon such town or district, in manner following; that is to say, to assess all rateable male polls above the age of sixteen years, within their respective towns or districts, or next adjoining to them, belonging to no other town, three shillings per poll, and proportionably in assessing the fines mentioned in this act, and the additional sum received out of the treasury for the payment of the representatives (except the governor, the lieutenant-governour, and their famil[y][i]es, the president, fellows, professors and students of Harvard College, settled ministers and grammar-school masters, who are hereby exempted as well from being taxed for their polls, as for their estates being in their own hands and under their actual management and improvement; as also all the estate pertaining to Harvard College); and other persons, if such the[i]r[ce] be, who, thro[ugh] age, infirmity or extre[em] poverty, in the judgment of the assessors, are not capable to pay towards publick charges, they may exempt their polls, and so much of their estates as in their prudence they shall think fit and judge meet.

[SECT. 3.] And the justices in their general sessions, in the respective count[y][i]es assembled, in granting a county tax or assessment, are hereby ordered and directed to apportion the same on the several towns in such county in proportion to their province rate, exclusive of what has been paid out of the publick treasury to the representative[s] of each town for his service; and the assessors of each town in the province are also directed, in making an assessment, to govern themselves by the same rule; and all estates, both real and personal, lying within the limits of such town or district, or next unto the same, not paying elsewhere, in whose hands, tenure, occupation or possession soever the same is or shall be found, and also the incomes or profits which any person or persons, except as before excepted, do or shall receive from any trade, faculty, business or employment whatsoever, and all profits which shall or may arise by money or other estate not particularly otherwise assessed, or commissions of profit in their improvement, according to their understanding or cunning, at one penny on the pound; and to abate or multiply the same, if need be, so as to make up the sum set and ordered hereby for such town or district to pay; and, in making their assessment, to estimate houses and lands at six years' income of the yearly rents whereat the same may be reasonably set or let for in the place where they lye: saving all contracts between landlord and tenant, and where no contract is, the landlord to reimburse one-half of the tax set upon such houses and lands; and to estimate negro, Indian and molatto servants proportionably as other personal estate, according to their sound judgment and discretion; as also to estimate every ox of four years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every cow of three [years] old and upwards, at thirty shillings; every horse and mare of three years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every swine of one year old and upwards, at eight shillings; goats and sheep of one year old, three shillings each: likewise requiring the said assessors to make a fair list of the said assessment, setting forth, in distinct columns, against each particular person's name, how much he or she is assessed at for polls, and how much for houses and lands, and how much for personal estate, and income by trade or faculty; and if as guardian, or for any estate, in his or her improvement, in trust, to be distinctly expressed; and the list or lists, so perfected and signed by them, or the major part of them, to commit to the collectors, constable or constables of such town or district, and to return a certificate of the name or names of such collector, constable or constables, with the sum total to each of them committed, unto himself, some time before the last day of October next.

[SECT. 4.] And the treasurer, for the time being, upon receipt of such certificate, is hereby impow[er]ed and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector, or constable or constables of such town or district, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sum assessed on each particular person, before the last day of December next; and to pay in their collection, and issue the accounts of the whole, at or before the last day of March next, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty-five.

[SECT. 5.] That the assessors of each town and district, respectively, in convenient time before their making the assessment, shall give reasonable warning to the inhabitants, in a town meeting, or by posting up notifications in some place or places in such town or district, or notify the inhabitants some other way to give or bring in to the assessors true and perfect lists of their polls, rateable estate, and income by trade or faculty, and gain by money at interest; and if any person or persons shall neglect or refuse so to do, or bring in a false list, it shall be lawful to and for the assessor's to assess such person or persons, according to their known ability in such town, in their sound judgment and discretion, their due proportion of this tax, as near as they can, agre[e]able to the rules herein given, under the penalty of twenty shillings for each person that shall be convicted by legal proof, in the judgment of the said assessors, in bringing in a false list; the said fines to be for the use of the poor of such town or district where the delinquent lives, to be levied by warrant from the assessors, directed to the collector or constables, in manner as is directed for gathering town assessments, and to be paid into the town treasurer or selectmen for the use aforesaid: saving to the party aggrieved at the judgment of the assessors in setting forth such fine, liberty of appeal therefrom to the court of general sessions of the peace within the county, for relief, as in case of being overrated. And if any person or persons shall not bring a list of their estate[s], as aforesaid, to the assessors, he or they so neglecting shall not be admitted to make application to the court of general sessions for any abatement of the assessment laid on him.

[SECT. 6.] And if the party be not convicted of any falseness in the list, by him presented, of the polls, rateable estate, or income by trade or faculty, business or employment, which he does or shall exercise, or in gain by money at interest or otherwise, or other estate not particularly assessed, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportion to the tax, which the assessors may not exceed.

And forasmuch as, oftentimes, sundry persons, not belonging to this province, bring considerable trade and merchandize, and by reason that the tax or rate of the town where they come to trade is finished and delivered to the constable or collectors, and, before the next year's assessment, are gone out of the province, and so pay nothing towards the support of the government, though, in the time of their residing here, they reaped considerable gain by trade, and had the protection of the government,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 7.] That when any such person or persons shall come and reside in any town within this province, and bring any merchandize, and trade, to deal therewith, the assessors of such town are hereby empowered to rate and assess all such persons according to their circumstances, pursuant to the rules and directions in this act provided, tho'

the former rate may have been finished, and the new one not perfected, as aforesaid.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 8.] That when any merchant, trader or factor, inhabitant of some one town within this province, or of any other province, shall traffic or carry on trade or business, or set up a store, in some other town in the province, the assessors of such town where such trade and business shall be carried on as aforesaid be and hereby are impowered to rate and assess all such merchants, traders and factors, their goods and merchandize, for carrying on such trade, and exercising their faculty in such town, pursuant to the rules and directions of this act: provided, before any such assessors shall rate such persons, as afore mentioned, the selectmen of the town where such trade is carried on, shall transmit a list of such persons as they shall judge may and ought to be rated, within the intent of this act.

[SECT. 9.] And the constables or collectors are hereby enjoined to levy and collect all such sums committed to them, and assessed on persons who are not of this province, or are residents in other towns than those where they carry on their trade, and pay the same.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 10.] That the inhabitants of this province have liberty, if they see fit, to pay the several sums for which they may be respectively assessed, of the aforesaid sum of twenty thousand and four hundred and twenty-three pounds one shilling, in good merchantable hemp, or in good, merchantable, Isle-of-Sable codfish, or in good refined bar-iron, or in bloomery-iron, or in hollow iron-ware, or in good Indian corn, or in good winter rye, or in good winter wheat, or in good barley, or in good barrel pork, or in barrel beef, or in duck or canvas, or in long whalebone, or in merchantable cordage, or in good train-oyl, or in good beeswax, or in good ba[r]berry-wax, or in tried tallow, or in good pease, or in good sheepswool[l], or in good tann[e]d sole-leather; and that the eldest councellors, for the time being, of each of those counties in the province, of which any one of the councellors is an inhabitant, together with the province treasurer, or the major part of them, be a committee, who are hereby directed and fully authorized and impowered, once in every month, if need be, to agree and set the several species and commodities aforesaid at some certain price, at which they shall be received towards the payment of the sums aforesaid; all which aforesaid commodities shall be of the produce of this province, and, as soon as conveniently may, be disposed of by the treasurer to the best advantage and for as much as they will fetch in money; and the several persons paying their taxes in any of the commodities afore mentioned to run the risque and pay the charge of transporting the said commodities to the province treasury.

[SECT. 11.] And if any loss shall happen by the sale of the aforesaid species, it shall be made good by a tax of the next year; and if there be a surplusage, it shall remain as a stock in the treasury.

And whereas, the sum of nine thousand four hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, part of the above tax, has not been appropriated in any supply-bill for the payment of the publick debts,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 12.] That the said sum of nine thousand four hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, shall be issued out of the treasury, when received of the constables and collectors, in manner and for the purpose[s] following; that is to say, the sum of three thousand pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of nine thousand four hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, shall be applied for the service the several forts and garrisons within this province, pursuant to such orders and grants as are or shall be made by this court for those purposes; and the further sum of one thousand pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of nine thousand four hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, shall be appl[i][y]ed for the purchasing provisions, the commissary's necessary disbursements for the service of the several forts and garrisons within this province, pursuant to such grants as are or shall be made by this court for those purposes; and the further sum of three thousand five hundred pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of nine thousand four hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, shall be appl[y][i]ed for the payment of such premiums and grants that now are or hereafter may be made by this court; and the further sum of eight hundred pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of nine thousand four hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, shall be applied for the discharge of other debts owing from this province to persons that have or shall serve them, by order of this court, in such matters and things where there is no establishment nor any certain sum assigned for that purpose, and for paper, writing and printing for this court; and the further sum of one thousand pounds, part of the aforesaid sum of nine thousand four hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, shall be appl[i][y]ed for the payment of his majesty's council and house of representatives, serving in the general court during the several sessions of this present year.

And whereas there are sometimes contingent and unforeseen charges that demand prompt pay,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 13.] That the sum of one hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, the remaining part of the aforesaid sum of nine thousand four hundred [and] fifty-six pound[s] seven shillings and eightpence, be applied to pay such contingent charges, and for no other purpose whatsoever.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 14.] That the treasurer is hereby directed and ordered to pay the sum of nine thousand four hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, brought in by taxes as aforesaid, out of such appropriations as shall be directed to by warrant, and no other; and the secretary, to whom it belongs to keep the muster-rolls and accompts of the charge, shall lay before the house of representatives, when they direct, such muster-rolls and accompts after payment thereof.

And whereas, by this act, but nine thousand four hundred and fifty-six pounds seven shillings and eightpence, part of the sum of twenty thousand four hundred and twenty-three pounds and one shilling, for which a tax is to go forth, is appropriated and applied for the discharge of the debts of the ensuing year,—

Be it enacted,

[SECT. 15.] That the remaining sum of ten thousand nine hundred and sixty-six pounds thirteen shillings and fourpence, be applied for the discharge of the government securit[y][ie]s that will become due the first of May and the first of June next; as also to discharge the securit[y][ie]s given for six hundred and sixty-six pounds thirteen shillings and fourpence remitted the agent. [Passed June 19; published June 20.]

Deacons and church-wardens of Protestant churches to take, in succession, grants and donations, &c.

Ministers to take, in succession, parsonage lands, &c.

No alienation to be made without consent of the church.

WHEREAS many grants and donations have heretofore been made by sundry well-disposed persons, in and by such expressions and terms as plainly show it was the intent and expectation of such grantors and donors that their several grants and donations should take effect so as that the estates granted should go in succession; but doubts have arisen in what cases such donations and grants may operate, so as to go in succession; for ascertaining whereof,—

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council and House of Representatives, [SECT. 1.] That the deacons of all the several Protestant churches, not being Episcopal churches, and the church-wardens of the several Episcopal churches, are and shall be deemed so far bodies corporate, as to take in succession all grants and donations, whether real or personal; made either to their several churches, the poor of their churches, or to them and their successors, and to sue and defend in all actions touching the same; and wherever the ministers, elders or vestry shall, in such original grants or donations, have been joined with such deacons or church-wardens as donees or grantees in succession, in such cases such officers and their successors, together with the deacons or church-wardens, shall be deemed the corporation for such purposes as aforesaid.

[SECT. 2.] And the minister or ministers of the several Protestant churches, of whatever denomination, are and shall be deemed capable of taking, in succession, any parsonage land, or lands granted to the minister and his successors, or to the use of the ministers, and of suing and defending all actions touching the same: saving that nothing in this act shall be construed to make void any final judgment of any court of common law or judge of probate: saving also, that no alienation of any lands belonging to churches, hereafter made by the deacons without the consent of the church, or a committee of the church for that purpose appointed, or by church-wardens without the consent of the vestry, shall be sufficient to pass the same; and that no alienation hereafter made by ministers, of lands by them held in succession, shall be valid any longer than during such alienors continuing ministers, unless such ministers be ministers of particular towns, districts or precinets, and make such alienation with the consent of such towns, districts or precincts, or unless such ministers so aliening be ministers of Episcopal churches, and the same be done with the consent of the vestry. And the several churches in this province not being Episcopal churches, are hereby impowered to ch[oo][u]se a committee to call the deacons or other church-officers to an account, and, if need be, commence and prosecute any suits touching the same, and also to advise and assist such deacons in the administration of the affairs aforesaid.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 3.] That the income of the grants made or to be made to any one such body politick for pious and charitable uses, shall not exceed the sum of three hundred pounds per annum; and also that all such donations hereafter made by deed, w[hic]h shall not be recorded in the register's office in the county where the lands l[y]e three calendarly months before the death of the donor, and all such bequests or devises w[hic]h shall not be made before the last sickness of the person making the same, or at least three months before the death of the testator, shall be utterly void and of no effect; anything in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Limitation of the income of church grants.
10 Allen, 6.

And whereas the several congregations in the town of Boston, and some others under the like circumstances, are not by law enabled by vote to raise money for the support of the ministry and publick worship among them,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 4.] That in every such case, where moneys cannot be raised as aforesaid for the support of [of] the ministry and defr[a][e]ying the other charges necessary for the upholding and maintaining of publick worship, and repairs of the house in which the same is performed, by vertue of any provision in the laws already made for that purpose, the proprietors of the pews, or persons to whom they are allotted in the several houses for publick worship, may, if they think fit, at a publick meeting to be called for that purpose by the proprietor's clerk, deacons or church-wardens, and notice thereof, immediately after divine service, given ten days at least before said meeting, cause the several pews in such houses to be valued according to the convenience and situation thereof; and a new estimate to be put upon said pews from time to time, as shall be found necessary, and a tax to be laid upon each pew according to the convenience and situation thereof as aforesaid: provided, the said tax shall not exceed two shillings per week on any one pew; the money so raised to be applied towards the support of the ministry and other charges necessary for maintaining publick worship or repairs of the house; and that the said proprietors may, at a meeting to be called as aforesaid, ch[oo][u]se a clerk and treasurer, and likewise appoint some suitable persons to demand and receive the several sums so assessed of the owners of such pews; and in case of denial on such demand or neglect of paym[en]t three months after such demand, to sell the same, and, after deducting such taxes and costs, to return the surplus to the owners.

Pews may be taxed for the charge of the public worship, &c.

Provido, the tax exceed not 2s. per week.

Proprietors to choose a clerk, treasurer, &c.

Provided, nevertheless,—

[SECT. 5.] That when the owner of any pew shall make a tender of the same to the proprietors, or to their comm[itee], at the valuation w[hic]h shall have been last put thereon, and they shall refuse or neglect to accept the same, no sum shall be deducted out of the sale of said pew, but such only as shall have become due before the making of such tender. AN ACT IN ADDITION TO AN ACT, INTIT[UL]ED “AN ACT FOR GRANTING UNTO HIS MAJESTY AN EXCISE UPON SUNDRY ARTICLES HERE-AFTER ENUMERATED, FOR AND TOWARDS THE SUPPORT OF HIS MAJESTY’S GOVERNMENT OF THIS PROVINCE.”

Preamble.

WHEREAS in and by an act, intituled “An Act for granting unto his majesty an excise upon sundry articles hereafter enumerated, for and towards the support of his majesty’s government of this province,” made and pass’d in the twenty-seventh year of his present majesty’s reign, it is provided in the words following; viz<sup>l</sup>, “provided, nevertheless, it shall and may be lawful to sell or dispose of any tea or china-ware to any person whatsoever, in case such tea or china-ware be in a chest or package as imported, and not less in value than twenty pounds lawful money, and also to sell and dispose of any coffee to any person whatsoever, in a quantity not less than one hundred weight”; and whereas also by said act it is further provided in the words following; viz<sup>l</sup>, “that if any person licen[s][c]ed to sell any of the aforesaid commodities shall purchase them of any other person licen[s][c]ed to sell the same, such purchaser shall not be held to pay an excise on any quantity so purchased”; and inasmuch as divers persons licen[s][c]ed to sell the said commodities have sold said commodities to other persons licen[s][c]ed to sell the same, in and by such large quantities as that, by v[er]tue of the said proviso of said act first recited, the seller was exempted from paying any duties or excise for said commodities, and the purchasers of said commodities, purchasing the same by such large quantities, were exempted from paying any excise for all said commodities sold by them, purchased as abovesaid, by v[er]tue of the abovesaid proviso last recited, it has so happened that the design of the government to raise a revenue by said act has hitherto been in a great measure frustrated, and also for the future may continue to be frustrated, unless provision be made by this court to prevent the same,—

And every person licen[s][c]ed as aforesaid, who shall presume to sell any of the before-mentioned commodities, and shall refuse or neglect to account with the farmer, and pay the duties required by this act, shall be subject for each offence to the penalty as if he or she should sell without licen[s][c]e, and shall be rendered incapable of renewing his or her licen[s][c]e to sell the same for the future; the penalty to be recovered shall be one half to the informer, and the other half to the farmer, and the manner of conviction shall be the same as of persons selling strong liquors without licen[s][c]e. 1754-55, chap. 16, § 6.

Provided, nevertheless,—

 which by this act is engaged to be, in said year, apportioned, assessed and levied, that then, and in such case, each town and district within this province shall pay a tax, to be levied on the polls, and estates

CHAPTER 30.

Preamble.

1753-54, chap. 41.

WHEREAS doubts have arisen whether soldiers that have or shall enlist into the service of his majesty are exempted from paying their province tax, and so liable to be taken and imprisoned by the several constables or collectors that have a demand against them for the same,—

Be it therefore enacted by the Governour, Council and House of Representatives,

Soldiers not liable to be distrained on

&c.

[SECT. 1.] That any soldier that hath or shall enlist into his majesty's service, since the making of the act aforesaid, shall not be liable to be taken, or have his body distrained on, by any constable or collector, for his province tax, during the continuance of said act; and where no estate of such soldier can be found, by any constable or collector, to make distress upon for such tax, and the same be made to appear by the oath of said collector or constable, that then, and in every such case, the loss of such tax shall be born[e] by the province; and any constable or collector who shall make it appear to the province treasurer that he hath failed of collecting any sum or sums on any soldier or soldiers enlisted as aforesaid, by a certificate from the selectmen or assessors, or the major part of them, that made the tax, that such person or persons are enlisted and in his majesty's service at the time of such certificate's being made, that then, and in every such case, the province treasurer is hereby directed and empowered to abate such sum or sums to the said constable or collector, and charge the province therewith.

Limitation.

[SECT. 2.] This act to continue in force until the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-nine. [Passed February 27; published February 28, 1755.]

CHAPTER 31.

AN ACT FOR PREVENTING THE UNNECESSARY DESTRUCTION OF ALEWIVES, AND OTHER FISH, WITHIN THIS PROVINCE.

WHEREAS the laws already provided against the destruction of the fish called alewives, and other fish, do not, in divers circumstances, reach the case of divers rivers and ponds where said fish usually go to cast their spawns, so that, nevertheless, great waste is made of them by ill-minded persons, to the great damage of the publick,—

Be it enacted by the Governo[r], Council and House of Representatives, [SECT. 1.] That from and after the fifteenth day of March next, no person or persons whosoever, shall, on any pretence, presume to stretch, set or draw any seine or drag-net, or set up any w[e]ar[e]s or other fishing engines, in any part of the rivers within this province, or ponds adjacent thereto (Merrimack and Connecticut River only excepted), where the fish usually spawn, or use any other instrument for the catching alewives but by dip-nets or scoop-nets, on penalty of a fine of five pounds for each offence, to be paid by every person concerned in taken alewives or other fish in either of the ways forbid by this act.

Preamble.
1735-36, chap. 21.

No nets but dip- and scoop-nets to be used in rivers, ponds, &c.

Except.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 2.] That no person or persons whosoever, shall, on any pretence, presume to stretch, set or draw any seine or drag-net, for the catching of fish in any sort in any of the fresh ponds in this province, on penalty of the fine of five pounds for each offence, to be paid by every person concerned in taking fish in said ponds in either of the ways forbidden by this act.

Penalty for breach of this act.

And whereas, by an act or law of this province, made in the fifteenth year of his present majesty's reign, intitled "An Act in addition to an act made to prevent the destruction of the fish called alewives, and other fish," it is therein enacted "that it shall be in the power of any town, at their annual meeting in March, to chuse one or more persons whose business it shall be to see that the passage-ways are open, pursuant to said act, and that said fish may not be obstructed in their usual passing up and down stream, and to appoint the proper place or places for the taking such fish with scoop-nets, and to limit the particular times and days for taking the same;" but no provision is made in said act to oblige the persons so chosen to serve in said business, or to do their duty therein, neither is their any limitation as to the quantities of said fish that shall be taken, in each town, for pickelling and barrelling for a market[t], by reason whereof many mischiefs arise,—

Preamble.
1741-42, chap. 16,
§ 5.

Be it therefore enacted,

[SECT. 3.] That when any person or persons shall be chosen in any town, at their annual meeting in March, to see that passage-ways are open, agreeable to the afore-recited paragraph of said act, that every such person shall be under oath to the faithful performance of said trust; and any person, chosen as aforesaid, shall, on his refusal, be subject to the penalty of three pounds, and to be proceeded with in order to the recovery thereof in the same way and manner as persons are by law who refuse to serve as constables.

Persons chosen, &c., to be under oath, and fine for not serving.
1692-93, chap. 23,
§ 8.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 4.] That where any town, district or propriety that hath any river or stream that lets the alewives into their natural ponds to cast their spawns, have a desire to catch any of said fish to pickle and barrel[l] up for a marke[t], that, in every such case, where said river or Method to be taken where the stream for fish runs through more towns or districts than one.

stream run[s] through or into more towns, districts or proprietries than one, except where the right of taking fish is otherwise vested, the selectmen of the said several towns, districts, and a committee of the propriet[ie][or]s that are or may be affected thereby shall, sometime in the month of March, and before the first day of April, annually, during the continuance of this act, meet together at such time and place as the selectmen of the oldest town shall agree upon, and then determine what quantity of alewives shall be barrell'd up from year to year for a market in the several towns, districts or proprietries they belong to, the votes to be collected according to the major part of those that represent the towns, districts and proprietries said streams pass through or run into, and not according to the numbers of voters; and when so done, the selectmen of each town, district or proprietors' committee, are hereby impowered to let out the said privilege for the most it will fetch, for the use of their several towns, districts or proprietries, in such way and manner as they shall judge most beneficial; and where any town, district or propriety have a stream or streams as afores[ai]d, that do not run into any other town, district or propriety, that in such case the selectmen or proprietors' committee shall have the sole power, from year to year, during the continuance of this act, to determine what number of barrells shall be caught for a market as afores[ai]d, and shall have the same power of letting out and improving the said rivers or streams in the same manner, as before mentioned, where the town, district or propriety jo[y][i]n as aforesaid.

Be it further enacted,

Fine for breach of orders of proprietors.

[SECT. 5.] That if any person or persons shall presume to catch any alewives for marketing, contrary to the allowance or order of the selectmen, or s[ai]d propriety's com[mitt]ee, where propriet[y][ie]s are concerned, or the selectmen, where no propriety is concerned, or propriety, where they are concerned only, they shall, every of them, be subjected to the penalty of five pounds for each offence.

Preamble.

And whereas some disputes have arisen, or may arise, whether tide-mills that have or shall be set up on and across the mouth of the rivers where the fish afores[ai]d usually go up into the natural ponds to catch their spawns, are within the intent of the last-recited act, and ought to be regulated accordingly,—

Be it enacted,

What tide-mills are subject to this act.

[SECT. 6.] That all tide-mills that have been set upon and across any such rivers or streams since the making the afores[ai]d act, or that shall hereafter be set up, shall be understood to be comprehended in said act, and the owners and occupants, and all others concerned, shall conform thereto accordingly, and be subject to the same penalties, for their neglect, as if tide-mills had particularly been named in s[ai]d act.

And whereas there has been great destruction of the fish that usually pass up Merrimack River, by reason that people made a constant practice of taking fish in s[ai]d river with seine and drag-nets.

Be it therefore enacted,

Days stated for catching fish in Merrimack river.

[SECT. 7.] That no person or persons be allowed, from and after the fifteenth day of March next, and so during the continuance of this act, to catch fish of any sort in any part of Merrimack River that lieth in this governm[en]t, oftner than three days in the week, the days to be Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in every week, and so, successively, until[l] this act expires; and if any person or persons shall presume to catch fish with sein[e]s or drag-nets, at any other times than is hereby allowed, every person or persons so offending shall, for each offence, be subject to a fine of five pounds.

[SECT. 8.] And [that] all the aforesaid fines, penalties and forfeitures, arising pursuant to this act, shall be disposed of, the one half for the benefit of the poor of the town where the offence is committed, the other half to him or them who shall inform and sue for the same.

Disposal of fines.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 9.] That the manner, rules and methods of convicting offenders against this act, be the same as are directed and provided in and by an act made in the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled “ An Act in addition to and for rendring more effectual an act made in the tenth year of the reign of King William the Third, [e][i]ntituled ‘ An Act for preventing of trespasses.’ ”

Rule for conviction.

1726-27, chap. 3.

1698, chap. 7.

Provided;—

[SECT. 10.] That nothing in this act shall be understood to restrain the catching of fish called munhadens, with seines or drag-nets, after the first day of June, and until[1] the first day of October, annually, or, in Connecticut River, at any time in the year.

Proviso for catching menhadens.

Provided, however,—

[SECT. 11.] That the selectmen of the towns of Cambridge, Charlestown and Medford, or the major part of them, being met together, may give liberty for taking fish in Medford River for a limited time in each week, not exceeding two days, with one or two seines, and no more.

CHAPTER 34.

AN ACT TO ENCOURAGE AND FACILITATE THE REMOVAL AND PREVENTION OF FRENCH ENCROACHMENTS ON HIS MAJESTY'S NORTH AMERICAN TERRITORIES.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it may be of very ill consequence if the several measures taking by his majesty's good subjects of this and the governments adjacent, to remove or prevent the encroachments of the French, should be, from time to time, made known and exposed to the people in Louisb[o]urgh, or other French settlements in North America, before their execution,—

Be it therefore enacted by his excellency the Governour, Council and House of Representatives, and hereby it is enacted and declared,

Prohibition of holding correspondence, &c.,
with any of the French king's subjects in North America.

That for the space of four months, to be computed from the last day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-five, it shall be unlawful for any of his majesty's subjects of this province, and they are hereby strictly forbidden to hold any correspondence or communication with any inhabitant of Louisb[o]urgh, or any other of the French settlements in North America, either by land or water; and if any person or persons belonging to this province shall be so audacious as to go or send to Louisb[o]urgh, or any other French settlement in North America, during said four months, the ship, sloop or other vessel employed, with all her tackle and appurtenances, and her cargo, shall be forfeited: one half to his majesty for the use of this province, the other half to him or them who shall inform and sue for the same in any of his majesty's courts within this province proper to try the same; and be further liable, if a ship or [other] vessel, the master to have one ear cut off, and be publickly whip[t][ped] thirty-nine lashes, and be render'd forever [u][i]ncapable of holding any place of honour or profit under this government; and the owner or owners, and factor or factors of the owner or owners, of such ship or other vessel, shall forfeit and pay, each, five hundred pounds, to be recover[e]d and dispos[e]d of as above, and be also forever disabled to hold any place of honour or profit under this government. [Passed March 29; published March 31, 1755.]

Penalty for breach of this act.

NOTES.—There were five* sessions of the General Court this year; but at the fifth session, which began April 22 and ended April 28, 1755, no acts were passed.

During this last session a precedent adverse to the propriety of prolonging a session beyond the time of issuing writs for a new assembly, was established. On the twenty-fifth of April the Secretary delivered a message from the Lieutenant-Governor, to both branches of the Assembly, requesting their advice upon this point, which was raised by the Governor's intimation of his wish that the Assembly should be kept in session until he could meet them after his return from New York. The Governor's letter conveying this intimation was dated April 6, 1755, but, though already public, the Lieutenant-Governor had not submitted it to the consideration of the Assembly, apparently because of his expectation of the Governor's speedy return. As the time approached when the writs for convening a new assembly must be issued, the subject was laid before the Assembly in the message mentioned above. A committee, consisting of Mr. Tasker, Col. Hale, Judge Russell, Col. Brattle and Col. Otis, of the Representatives, and Benjamin Lynde, Thomas Hutchinson, Ezekiel Chever and Stephen Sewall, esquires, of the Council, was appointed, the same day, to consider and report upon the message; but the next day, without waiting for a report from this committee, the Representatives sent up the following message, by a committee consisting of "Samuel Welles and others":—

"May it please your Honour,

The House of Representatives have with Attention considered your Message of Yesterday; And as the Sitting of the General Court after Writs are issued for calling a new Assembly is contrary to the most Ancient & Uninterrupted Practice in our Mother Country, and the Universal Custom in all his Majesty's Governments in all the Plantations; We cannot but humbly be of Opinion that the Ancient & Constant Practice in this Province of issuing Writs thirty days before the last Wednesday in May & previous to it the dissolving the then General Court, is most for the Peace & good Order of this Province, & most conducive to his Majesty's Interest."—Council Records, vol. XX., p. 442.

No further action appears to have been taken on the subject in either branch before the dissolution of the Assembly, which occurred two days later.

All the acts of this year were printed: chapters 10 and 12 separately; and the engrossments of all preserved, except of chapters 9 and 14. The following is the title of the only private act passed this year:—

"An Act to dissolve the Marriage of Mary Clapham with William Clapham, and to allow her to marry again." [Passed January 10; published January 13, 1755.—See note to chapter 15, post.]

The acts of the first session were certified for transmission, October 21, and forwarded with a letter from Secretary Willard, dated October 23, 1754. They were delivered to the clerk of the Privy Council, in waiting, January 24, 1755, having been received by the Board of Trade on the ninth of that month. On the 29th of January, they were referred to a committee of the Privy Council; and, on the next day, this committee referred them to the Lords of Trade, by whom they were ordered to be sent to Sir Matthew Lamb for his opinion thereon, February 4th, 1755. Sir Matthew's report was read at the Board, May 25, 1756. It was to the effect that upon perusal and consideration of these acts he had no objection thereto in point of law. The Lords of Trade, on the same day, ordered the draught of a report to be prepared, which was agreed to and ordered to be transcribed April 6, and signed April 13, 1756.

In their report the Lords of Trade represent that chapters 4, 6, 9, 10, and 11 "were passed for temporary services and are either expired by their own Limitation or the purposes for which they were enacted have been completed"; and that chapters 1, 2, 3, 5, 7, and 8 "appear to have been enacted for" the private convenience of the Province, and that "We see no reason why His Majesty may not be graciously pleased to confirm them." Accordingly, the six chapters last enumerated were confirmed by an order in Council, dated July 7, 1756.

Chapter 16 was certified for transmission, January 14, 1755, and forwarded by Governor Shirley, with a letter bearing date two days earlier. The correspondence, and the action of the Home Government relating to this act, are given in full hereafter, in the note to this chapter, post.

All the acts of the second, third, and fourth sessions, including the private act, the title of which is given above, and chapter 16, were certified for transmission, June 18, 1755, and were received by the Board of Trade, July 23. They were not laid before the Privy Council, however, until the twelfth of September following. There they remained until September 22, when they were referred to a committee. On the twenty-fourth of September, this committee referred them to the Lords of Trade, and from the Lords of Trade they went, in the usual course, to Sir Matthew Lamb; but at what time, precisely, does not appear. Sir Matthew Lamb's report to the Lords of Trade is dated December 18, 1756, and, after specially commenting upon chapters 12 and 15,—as shown at length in the notes to those chapters, post.—and the private act aforesaid, it concludes, "I have no other Observations or Objections to make than are before mentioned."

On the twelfth of May, 1758, these acts, with others, were considered by the Lords of Trade, in consultation with ex-Governor Shirley, who had been invited for that purpose, and the draught of a report thereon was ordered to be prepared. On the 30th of May, this draught was agreed to and ordered to be transcribed, and, on the sixth of June, it was signed. After mentioning that chapter 16 had already been confirmed, the report proceeds to represent that chapters 17, 18, 19, 23, 24, 25, 27, 28, 31, 32, and 34 "appear to have been passed for Temporary services and are either expired by their own limitation or the purposes for which they were enacted have been completed"; that whereas chapter 33, "relative to the raising or borrowing monies for defraying the Expences of Military and other public services, has in great measure taken effect, but the execution of several provisions therein contained in which the public faith of the Province is greatly interested remains still to be completed, for this reason and as Sir Matthew Lamb one of His Majestys Counsel at Law, whose opinion has been taken" * * * "has no objection," &c., therefore, that this act be proposed for confirmation; that chapters 12, 13, 14, 15, 20, 21, 22, 26, 29, and 30, "relate to the internal Economy of the Province and appear to have been enacted for it's private convenience, and We see no reason why His Majesty may not be graciously pleased to confirm them"; and the report concludes with a representation on the private act, the title of which is given above.

* Although the first session was adjourned from June 19 to Oct. 17, expressly to avoid the effect of a prorogation upon chapter 16, from which the Governor withheld his signature in order that, before its passage, the bill might be submitted, by the Representatives, to their constituents, during the recess, still, the acts passed after the recess were printed as of a new session, and were so certified to the Privy Council. The convening of the Assembly after this recess is, therefore, assumed to be the commencement of the second session.

Upon this report an order was passed in Council, June 16, 1758, confirming the eleven acts last-above named.

Chap. 1. "April 19, 1754. A Petition of the President & Fellows of Harvard Colledge setting forth the Inconveniencies of their Proceeding in the usual Forms of Law in selling such Real Estates as may fall into their Hands by Recoveries on Mortgages, or Executions on Debts, Praying that they may be impowered to sell such Estates after the Right of Redemption is expired & to give a good Deed of them.

In Council; Read & Ordered that the Prayer of the Petition be granted & that the President & Fellows of Harvard Colledge be & hereby are authorized & impowered (with the Advice & Consent of the Overseers of the said Colledge) to sell such Real Estates as shall be recovered on Mortgage or taken on Execution for any Debt or Debts due to the said Colledge after the Right of Redemption of such Estate shall be expired, & to give a Good & sufficient Deed or Deeds in Law for the same; And that the Petitioners have Liberty to bring in a Bill accordingly.

Chap. 15. The Governor and Council having granted to Mary Clapham of Boston, a divorce from bed and board against her husband, William Clapham, for adultery on his part, she filed her petition to the General Court, December 4, 1754, for a divorce from the bonds of matrimony, asking also for alimony. This petition was referred, and a bill reported, thereupon, which passed to be enacted in both branches, but failed to receive the Governor's signature.

A new bill was then introduced, which was enacted under the title given in the beginning of these notes. The new bill made no provision for alimony,—the Assembly apparently having concluded that this matter was within the exclusive province of the Governor and Council. But as the Governor and Council were not expressly empowered to enforce their decrees in matters of this nature, this chapter was enacted to meet the case. It was signed by the Governor, January 10, 1755, and, on the 26th of February, the following decree was passed by the Governor and Council:—

“26th of February 1755. Whereas by an Act of this Province Mary Clapham, late Wife of William Clapham of Boston, Gentleman, has been divorced from her said Husband, & their Marriage declared to be dissolved; and the said Mary having made her humble Application to this Board that a reasonable Allowance may be made her out of the Personal Estate of said William for her Maintenance & Support; & having set forth that she is now possessed of Household Furniture & other Personal Estate of the said William to the amount of about One hundred Pounds Lawful Money:

It is therefore Ordered that the said Household Furniture & other Personal Estate of the said William Clapham now in the Hands of the said Mary not exceeding the Value of One hundred Pounds, be & hereby is assigned to the said Mary, as her own separate Estate by her to be used & disposed of as she shall think fit, and the said William Clapham & all others concerned are to take Notice of this Order & govern themselves accordingly.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 2, p. 386.

“June 15, 1754. The following Message was brought up from the House of Representatives to the Council by Col<sup>o</sup> William Brattle Esq<sup>r</sup> & others viz,

May it please your Honours,—This House hath a most gratefull Sense of the paternal Care of His Excellency, discovered in his last Message to this House, that we might not rise with an Empty Treasury; The House is fully sensible of the Inconveniences that may arise therefrom but at the same time are quite conscious to themselves, that they have done every thing on their part Consistent with the publick Good; to prevent it.

The House, to prevent Poles & Estates being over burthened, projected & passed to be enacted a Salutory Excise Bill, whereby all that consumed Spirituous Liquors, the Rich as well as the Poor, those that consumed them for Luxury, as well as those who consumed the same for Necessity, might pay as Excise therefor, sent the said Bill to the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board for Concurrence; which by the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board was non Concur’d;—The House desirous to preserve an Harmony with the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board, prepared another, altering the same materially in many Points, apprehending the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board was not against the Spirit of the Bill, as aforesaid, sent it up to the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board, which was by them passed to be Engrossed; but to our great Surprize was not passed by the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board to be enacted, by means whereof the Treasury is in danger of remaining empty, unless the hon<sup>ble</sup> Board is pleased to reconsider said Vote and pass said Bill to be enacted, which if done will be an additional Security to those Persons unto whom said Excise is mortgaged as a Collateral Security:—Wherefore the House desires the hon<sup>ble</sup> Board would reconsider said Vote of Non Concurrence, and if they please, to pass the same to be enacted.

In Council; The foregoing Message being read & considered. A Motion was made & seconded that the Board would reconsider their Vote for not passing to be enacted the Engrossed Bill, intitled an Act for granting unto his Majesty an Excise upon Wine & Spirits distil’d, sold by Retail & upon Limes, Lemmons & Oranges; And The said Bill was thereupon Voted to be reconsidered, and upon further Debate had thereon, the said Bill was passed to be enacted.”—Ibid., p. 273.

“June 17, 1754. The Secretary went down on a Message from His Excellency, to direct the House of Representatives to attend him in the Council Chamber,

Mr Speaker and the House being accordingly come up, His Excellency made the following Speech to both Houses: viz,

Gentlemen of the Council & House of Representatives,

The Secretary hath laid before me your Engrossed Bill, entitled ‘An Act for granting unto his Majesty an Excise upon Wines & Spirits distilled, sold by Retail or consumed within this Province, & upon Limes Lemmons & Oranges.’ And I find that one of the principal Reasons given in the Message sent up by the House of Representatives to his Majesty’s Council on Saturday last for passing it, was to prevent the Polls & Estates of his Majesty’s Subjects within this Province, being over burthened,

I have already, Gentlemen, in the Course of this Session, given you such an Instance of my real desire to lighten the Tax upon the Polls & Estates of your Constituents by signing my Consent to the Act for extending the Duty of Impost to all Goods imported from Great Britain, (those only of the Produce or Manufacture of it excepted), whereby the Revenue arising from that Branch of Customs to the Province will now probably be greatly augmented, beyond what it hath been during these thirty years past, that I think you can’t doubt of my ready Disposition to concur with you, in any proper Measures for further Easing the Subjects in those Taxes.

But I should ill discharge the Trust reposed in me by his Majesty if for the Sake of Lightning them, I should join in imposing a Burthen upon the People, which would be inconsistent with the natural Rights of every Family in the Community: And such an one I doubt it will appear in the Eyes of your Constituents, to be subjected to keep and render an Account of the Quantity of the Excisable Liquors which they shall consume in their private Houses, to Collectors and their Deputies, and that too upon Oath if required by those Officers, or else to pay a Mulct upon their Refusal to do it,

This Method of raising Money is certainly not only of an extraordinary Kind, but altogether unprecedented in the English Governm<sup>t</sup> and if a Judgment may be formed of the general Reception which a Law of that nature would meet with throughout this Province, from the Dissatisfaction & Murmuring which the News of its being passed by the two Houses, seems already to have raised in several parts of it, it will be so far from producing the salutary Effects, which I am fully persuaded every Gentleman who has voted for it, proposes to his Country, by its being passed into a Law, that it is justly to be apprehended a general Discontent thro' the Province, and Dissatisfaction to his Majestys Governm<sup>t</sup> would be the Fruits of it, at the same time that the publick would reap but a very inconsiderable Part of the Advantage proposed by it, according to the Method of Collecting the Tax, which is provided in the Bill,

I must further observe to you, Gentlemen, that this Method of raising Taxes is contrary to the true Policy of Government in every Respect; That requires that the People should pay their Taxes in the most imperceptible Manner, and not in such an one as would have a Tendency daily to remind them of their Burthen, tho' never so necessary; much less when it is imposed in a Manner which may be conceived by them to be grievous & unconstitutional.

I can't avoid remarking to you, Gentlemen of the House of Representatives, that the Circumstances of your tacking this unprecedented Tax to your ordinary Excise, at a time when the Excise of this Year is mortgaged, for securing the Payment of part of the last Years publick Debt, and intimating in your Message to His Majesty's Council, that unless they would concur with you in passing the Bill now under Consideration, the Treasury would be in danger of remaining unsupplied, hath a direct Tendency to weaken the Credit of the Government, tho' I am fully persuaded at the same time; and I hope that it is the universal Sense of the People that the Present Members of this House are incapable of violating the publick Faith, in any Article or Degree whatsoever;

The Informality of passing this Bill to be Enacted, at the Council Board, is another Circumstance Gentlemen, which I can't omit mentioning, It appears by the Bill that on Thursday last it was passed by the House of Represent<sup>ves</sup> to be enacted, and by Records of the Council that on Fryday following, It was Non Concur'd by the Board; that on the same day in the Afternoon in Answer to a Message from the House to the Council, desiring to know whether the Board had acted upon the Bill, they let the House know they had Non Concur'd it; On the Saturday following it appears by the Message of the House to the Board, that they moved the Board to reconsider their Vote of Non Concurrence, upon which the Board almost Instantly, proceeded to reconsider it, (four of their Members which had been present at and given their Votes in the Debate, when the Board Non Concur'd the Vote of the House for passing the Bill to be enacted, being absent, and a smaller Number by four present, than what had voted the Day preceding, when the Bill was rejected); and the Council then without further Formality concur'd the Vote of the House for passing the Bill to be enacted,

Some very important Affairs of the Province, which will not admit of Delay, will not allow me to enter into a thorough Consideration, whether under these before mentioned Circumstances of the Boards Re-consideration of the Vote whereby they rejected this Bill upon the third Reading, & their subsequent Vote of Concurrence for passing it to be Enacted, were not dangerous Nullities, That this Proceeding was at least Irregular & unparliamentary & of dangerous Consequence to the publick Service seems to me most evident,

Upon the whole Gentlemen I think the least you can do in Justice to your Constituents, upon this Occasion, will be to pursue the Method frequently used by the General Assembly in Cases of the like Nature, by ordering the Bill to be printed, that your Constituents may be fully acquainted with the Contents of it during the Recess of the Court, and yourselves informed of the General Sentiments of the Country, concerning a Matter of this Importance & Difficulty, which so nearly touches the natural Right of every individual Member in his private Family.

In the mean time, I will preserve the Bill in the same State which it is now in, by making an Adjournment, instead of a Prorogation until its next Meeting; And if at that time I shall find that you continue of the same Opinion, after having informed yourselves fully of the Sentiments of your Constituents upon this Bill, I shall think myself more at Liberty to pass it, and I shall have all due Regard to the general Voice of the People in a Matter which purely concerns their own just Rights.

In this Case, to save the Excise, which would grow due upon the excised Spirits & Liquors after the ninth day of July until the time of the next Meeting of the Court, from being lost upon the Expiration of the Excise Act, now in force, It seems to me that you may project a short Bill which may effectually answer that Purpose, without prejudicing your Engrossed Bill now under Consideration."—Ibid., p. 271.

"On a Motion made and seconded, Ordered, That the several Members of this House be directed to lay before the Select-Men of their respective Towns, that part of the Excise-Bill which relates to the private Consumption of Wines and Spirits distill'd, and acquaint them it is the Desire of this House that they call their several Towns together, that this House may know the Minds of their Constituents with Regard to said Bill, on the Adjournment of this Court; Also Ordered, That the Printer for this House be directed to send a Number of Gazettes of this Day, containing His Excellency's Speech of Yesterday, that so the several Members may lay the same before the Select-Men of their respective Towns, together with the Excise-Bill, to be communicated to them."—Journal of the House of Representatives, June 18, 1754, p. 48.

"Nov<sup>r</sup> 20, 1754. In Council; Read a second time, and after a long Debate, committed."—Ibid., p. 331.

"November 21, 1754. In Council; Read a third Time and Non Concur'd.

"A Message was sent up to the House of Representatives by John Choat Esq<sup>r</sup> & others, to desire the Council to reconsider their Vote of Non Concurrence on the Bill, for granting unto his Majesty an Excise upon Wine, Rum &c<sup>a</sup> inasmuch as the House apprehends the Method therein provided to be most salutary for the Province, & that they would give it Dispatch, that so the Court may have a Recess as soon as may be;

And after the Gentlemen were withdrawn, the Question was put whether the Board would reconsider the said Vote? And it pass'd in the Negative:

And thereupon, Samuel Danforth, Samuel Watts, Andrew Oliver, Thomas Hutchinson and Stephen Sewall Esq<sup>rs</sup> were appointed a Committee to prepare a Message to the House of Representatives, for Assigning the Reasons of the Boards Non Concurrence on the Excise Bill."—Ibid., p. 332.

"November 22, 1754. The Committee appointed to prepare the Draught of a Message to the House of Representatives, referring to the Excise Bill; reported the same, Which was Accepted, And is as follows; Viz<sup>t</sup>,

The Bill for granting an Excise on Rum, Brandy &c<sup>a</sup>; appears to the Board to contain many new Matters, and of an extraordinary Nature, to be unnecessarily burthensome to a Considerable Number of His Majesty's Subjects, and to have a Tendency to discourage the Trade and Manufactures of the Province,

The Board have no Exception to the general Design of the Bill in subjecting all the Liquors that shall be expended in the Province to an equal Duty, Nor to the Changing the Manner of raising the Duty by laying it on the Manufacturer, & Importer instead of the Retailer; but they are apprehensive that if the Duty on the Stills be farmed; the Province is in danger of losing a great Part of its Revenue, There having never any Trial of it been made, the Amount of it must be very uncertain; A Farmer may put many Thousand Pounds in his Pocket, and no Person but himself make no Judgment of it, And this for a Number of Years together, if the Government should pursue this Method, and there is not the same Exception to Collectors in the Way of raising the Duty, as when it is raised from Retailers &c<sup>a</sup>, the Distillers being all known, and the Nature of the Business such as it cannot be carried on in Secret; and their Oath faithfully to account will be as obligatory, & have the same Tendency to exact the full Duty from them, when it is paid to a Collector as when it is paid to a Farmer, And altho it may be urged that the Governments Collectors would not be so active in detecting any fraudulent Importation of Liquors into the Province, as a Farmer would be, yet it appears to the Board that if the Excise on Retailers and other Licenced Persons was farmed, and such licenced Persons were obliged to render an Account upon Oath, Whether they imported the Liquors themselves; and if not, from whom they purchased them, and the Retailers be Importers, or otherwise, such Persons of whom they purchased should be obliged when required, to make it appear that the Liquors by them sold, had paid the Duty of Excise due from the Distiller, or Impost due from the Importer, this would in a great Measure prevent any illicit Importation.

The requiring Bond from the Distillers may be a very great Burthen to some of them, and the Board are of Opinion that if their Stills and Utensils were made liable to the Payment of the Duty, in Case of Failure in the Distiller, it would be a less Burthen on them, as effectual for the Security of the Government, and more agreeable to the Provision made by Acts of Parliament in Cases of the like Nature,

The Board are also of Opinion, that it would be a further unnecessary Burthen on the Distillers to make them liable to the Duty on Rum exported, where a Certificate is not returned or other Proof made in a limited Time, of its having been landed or sold out of the Province; And they are further of Opinion That the Oath of the Exporter, that such is actually exported and not intended to be reloaded; & if he afterwards knows or suspects its being reloaded he will discover it, may be as effectual and less burthensome; It seems likewise an extream Hardship to oblige the Distiller to pay the duty on all the Rum they may have by them, at the Commencement of the Act, but also what shall be left unsold at the Expiration of it; w<sup>ch</sup> must cause them either to put a Stop to their Business for some time before, or expose them to a certain Loss.

The Board are of Opinion that the farming the Impost, and giving the Farmer such power over the Properties and natural Rights of the Subject, as are given by this Act, especially where any Person, (of how bad a Character soever) if he be the highest Bidder, may be the Farmer, is without President in any Part of his Majesty's Dominions, & may prove very oppressive to the Subjects where the Officers of the Government are employed to collect this part of the Revenue, the Board have no Exception to the farming of it, or if it should be thought necessary to give the Powers of Collection to a Farmer; yet some further Provision should be made with Respect to the Qualifications of such Farmers, than merely his being the highest Bidder, as the Wisdom of the Government at Home has always thought necessary."—Ibid., p. 333.

May it please your Honours;—The House of Representatives apprehend themselves bound in faithfulness to his Majesty’s dutiful & loyal Subjects the People of this Province, their Constituents, thus publicly to bear Testimony against the great Breach made, by the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board this Morning, on our undoubted Right of granting Money, and determining on the Way and Manner of raising & levying the same on the People, without any Proposal, Conference or any other Method to hinder the Proceedings of the House in such an Affair, besides barely Non Concurring their Votes or Orders in such Case.

We are very sensible of the great Importance and Necessity of a good Understanding and Harmony between the two Houses, in the present Distress and difficult Circumstances of the Province; And had not we apprehended that our Silence on so apparent an Encroachment, might hereafter be improved as a Precedent, we had not thought it so much a Duty to make this Declaration or Protestation, against the Conduct of the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board.”—Ibid., p. 335.

That Article in the Warrant, viz<sup>t</sup> ‘To know the minds of the Inhabitants with regard to a Bill now depending in the General Court laying an Excise on the private Consumption of Wines and Spirits distill’d,’ was taken into Consideration and the Abstract of said Bill, and Governour Shirleys Speech relating to it, being read a long Debate thereon was had, and It was unanimously Voted

1st That it is the sense of the Town that, that part of the Excise Bill contain’d in the Abstract now read, is contrary to those principles upon which our happy Constitution is founded, as well as destructive of those priviledges which it Warrants and Defends, that it is Vexatious and Oppressive and tends to Weaken the just Authority of an Oath, and to prejudice the Morals of the Community.

2<sup>y</sup> Voted unanimously that Thanks be returned to His Excellency the Governour, for his Paternal Goodness and Wise Conduct in relation to said Bill, & that his Excellency be requested still to continue his Care for Us in this respect.

Your Excellency's late seasonable Interposition in favour of the Natural Rights of Englishmen, so greatly, tho' We trust not wilfully, affected by the late Excise Bill, affords us the most convincing proofs of the Rectitude of your Excellency's Sentiments and the Affection of your Patriot heart for that Constitution, which sweetens, improves and Exalts every other blessing of Life.

We cannot feel the decay of Our Commerce, and the many Burdens which this Town labour under, without the most Melancholly Impressions, but these admit of some Alleviations from your Excellency's wise and vigorous Endeavours to preserve Our dearer Liberties neither is it in our power to relish that Relief with regard to the former which must necessarily grow out of those Methods which tend to destroy the Latter.

We would hope that the Honourable Court may upon mature Consideration find reason to alter their Judgment respecting this affair, which if they should renew and insist upon, We humbly apprehend will be attended with the most Mischievous Consequences, unless your Excellency should finally refuse your Sanction to it.

The Noble Pattern your Excellency has in this Affair held up to our view, highten'd by your Situation in Government and Augmented by your Connection with the Prerogative Convinces us of the tender regard you have for the Liberties of this People, and will not we hope be ever forgotten,

And as this particular Instance of your Excellency's Goodness added to our past Experience of your known Abilities has increas'd Our Confidence in your Administration, it shall be our Study to Afford your Excellency all those Demonstrations of Duty and Affection, which Truth and Justice require, and your Excellency's wise & good Conduct will, we doubt not Secure and perpetuate.”—Portion of address of thanks to the Governour from Town of Boston : Boston town-records, vol. 4, p. 355.

I Thank you for this Address; The sense which you there Express of my Attention to His Majesty's Service, and the preservation of the rights and liberties of his People within this Government, give me a solid Satisfaction nor can I pass over in Silence your late Vote for placing my Picture in Fancuil Hall, with which your Selectmen acquainted me, without Acknowledging the pleasure, I feel from that publick mark of your respect for me.

Whenever it may be in my power to contribute towards reviving the decay'd Trade, and easing the Burthens of this Town, which you mention in your Address, I shall gladly Embrace the Opportunity, and you may be assur'd that my Duty to the King, and the Welfare of his good People within this Province, shall ever be the Rule of my Administration.

Boston New England Jan<sup>y</sup> 12th 1755.

My Lords,

The Town of Boston having appointed an Agent to sollicit for His Majesty's disallowance of the inclos'd Excise Act and the House of Representatives having by their Message to me in Council of the 10th Inst. desired that I would use my endeavours for the Royal approbation of it, I beg leave to lay before your Lordships the following Account of this Act, with some Remarks upon it, that your Lordships may be thoroughly inform'd of the merits of the dispute between the Town of Boston and the two Houses of the General Assembly of the Province in this matter.

That part of the Act, my Lords, which is relative to the excis'd Liquors sold by Tav-erners, Innholders & other Retailers in quantities under 30 Gallons to any person at one time, is conformable to the ordinary Excise Act, constantly pass'd every year and not objected to: That part only is in question which imposes an excise upon Rum and other Spirits & Wine consumed in private families and not bought of any Retailer: This part of the Act is new and the motives which induced the House of Representatives to extend the duty to these Liquors seem to be that they thought it just, that those Members of the Community whose Estates were large enough to enable them to buy these Liquors of the Merchant in quantities not under 30 Gallons, should pay their proportionable part of the duty with those whose circumstances would not afford their purchasing 'em in so large Quantities: this they conceiv'd would make the Tax more equal; that the Duty would produce a larger revenue to his Majesty towards the support of his Government and consequently lighten the burthen of the poorer sort in the other Taxes necessary to be raised in the Province for that purpose.

This point also, my Lords, as far as I could perceive from the publick debates of the Council, whilst the Bill was depending, & private conversation, is universally allowed by those Members who opposed it, to be reasonable & just, as it seems clearly to be.

The single matter in difference is the manner of collecting this part of the Duty as prescribed in the Act which subjects every person to Keep an account of the quantity of rum & other spirits and wine consumed in his private family & not purchas'd of a Retailer and to render it to the Town Clerk where he lives once in a year; and in case the farmer of the Excise for that particular County shall think fit to summon him before a Justice of Peace for that purpose, to make oath to the truth of his Account, or in failure thereof to pay £10.—lawfull money, being of the value of £7: 10s.—sterling to his use.

In June last a Bill of the same kind, differing from this in some small Circumstances, was projected and pass'd in the House of Representatives, the Council at first non concurr'd it, but the House made such a point of it, that the Council in the end concurr'd it, and it was pass'd to be enacted by both Houses and laid before me by the Secretary, for my consent.

As I dislike'd the manner propos'd in the Bill for levying the new Duty and it begun to occasion a dissatisfaction in the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston in particular, which had communicated itself from them to other Towns in the Province, I interpos'd in the affair and made a Speech to both Houses, which after urging the exceptions I had to the Bill, in very strong terms (aggravated perhaps beyond what the necessity of the affair required) I concluded by telling them, that 'I thought the least they could do in justice to their Constituents upon this occasion would be to pursue the method frequently us'd by the General Assembly in cases of the like nature, by ordering the Bill to be printed, that their Constituents might be fully acquainted with the contents of it during the recess of the Court & themselves informed of the general sentiments of the country concerning a matter of this importance and difficulty which so nearly touched the natural right of every individual Member in his private family.'

'That in the mean time I would preserve the Bill in the same state, which it was then in, by making an Adjournment instead of a Prorogation of the Court, until it's next meeting and if at that time I should find that they continued of the same opinion after having informed themselves fully of the sentiments of their constituents upon this Bill, I should think myself more at liberty to pass it and should have all due regard to the general voice of the people in a matter which purely concern'd their own rights.'

'And in order to save the duty which would grow due upon the excis'd Spirits & Liquors, after the ninth day of July, until the time of the next meeting of the Court, from being lost, upon the expiration of the Excise Act then in force, I advis'd the House of Representatives to project a short Bill, which might effectually answer that purpose, without prejudicing their engross'd Bill then under consideration.'

I was in hopes, my Lords, if the House of Representatives could have been induced to pass an Excise Bill in the ordinary form that their fondness for the new part of the Bill then depending might have worn off by the time of their next meeting; But they were so much bent upon carrying their point that they refus'd to pass an Excise Bill in any other form and rose without making any supply of the Treasury.

They however complied with my advice to them so far, as to pass on the 18th of June the two following Orders of the House vizt 'that the several Members of that House be directed to lay before the select men of their respective Towns, that part of the Excise Bill which relates to the private consumption of Wines & Spirits distill'd, and acquaint them it is the desire of the House, that they call their several Towns together, that the House might know the minds of their Constituents with regard to said Bill on the adjournm<sup>t</sup> of the Court'

And 'that the House's Printer be directed to send a number of Gazettes of that day, containing the Governor's Speech of the day before that so the several Members might lay the same before the select men of their respective Towns, to be communicated to them together with the Excise Bill'

At the next Meeting of the Court I received Addresses of thanks from some Towns in the Country by their Members, as I had before done from the Town of Boston in particular for the part I had acted in this affair: But as the House did not think fit to call for the Returns of the select men of the several Towns, it did not appear with certainty what the sense of the major part of them was concerning the late Bill; the House however in the beginning of their Session dropped their old Bill and fram'd another for laying a duty upon all distill'd Liquors, at the Still head (as it is called) join'd with an Imposit upon Wine, with sundry new Regulations for making them both effectual for collecting the Duty laid upon the private Consumption of the Excis'd Liquors: But upon considering a Petition from the Distillers against the former part of the Bill, and being of opinion that this Scheme in other parts would probably be very injurious to the trade of the Province in many respects, they quitted it and return'd to their first project and after having sat near eight weeks, pass'd the Act now before your Lordships which was concurr'd by his Majesty's Council & laid before me for my Consent.

The Supply of the Treasury, my Lords, for the current year had been now obstructed for six months after the usual time of making it; no Funds rais'd for discharging the growing debts of the Province; many of the Soldiers and all the Officers & Servants of the Government were suffering by being kept out of their pay; Great sums of money were wanting to purchase fire arms and powder, which the Province stood in need of, and every part of His Majesty's service labour'd, all occasion'd by the suspending of my consent to the late Excise Bill.

This situation of affairs required the most mature advisement; I considered my Lords, this was a Money Bill, which always originates in the House of Representatives and which they claim a right to pass in their own way; that the Dispute was concerning these two circumstances, viz.—every person's being oblig'd to keep & render an account of what excis'd Liquors, not bought of Retailers he consum'd yearly in his private family, which Imposition they insisted upon laying on themselves & their Constituents; that they stood ready to make a large supply of the Treasury, for carrying on every part of His Majesty's service, provided his Governor would accept it with this new duty upon the People; that the lengths I had already gone in asserting the People's cause in this matter against their representative Body had greatly embarrassed his Majesty's service; that if I should refuse my consent to the present Bill there was a prospect of still further confusion, at a time when His Majesty's service in an especial manner requir'd the greatest Harmony to be kept up between me & the two Houses.

Besides the Act is to continue but for one year, and the permitting it's operation to be try'd for that time seem'd the most effectual way to bring the House of Representatives to let it drop for the future: At all events as the present House hath but six months longer to sit, the People will have it in their power either to injoin the Members they choose at the next Election to repeal the Act, or not to pass it again, or to choose new Representatives.

For these Reasons, my Lords, I thought it most adviseable finally to give my consent to the Bill; the immediate consequence hath been a large supply of the Treasury and I hope the Assembly will meet again in the beginning of February (to which time I have prorog'd them) well dispos'd to promote His Majesty's service in the enterprise proposed to me by Colonel Lawrence and which we are now concerting for dispossessing the French of all their Incroachm<sup>ts</sup> in Nova Scotia early in the Spring.

I beg leave now to observe to your Lordships, that the effect of His Majesty's disallowance of this Act would be that the Taverners, Innholders & Retailers will sell the excis'd Liquors at their usual Excise prices, so that that part of the People who shall buy their Liquors of them and not of the Merchant and are of the middling and poorer sort will have paid their part of the duty in those rais'd prices which is computed at about £1000 sterling p<sup>r</sup> ann: and by the disallowance of the Act before the time on which the Retailers are oblig'd to pay to the Farmers of the Excise the duty upon the several species of liquors, which they have sold, or on which the Farmers of the Excise are oblig'd to pay the sum, they have contracted for with the publick, which is a year after the Act takes place, the publick will be wholly depriv'd of the benefit of the Tax and it will in such case be sunk in the pockets of either the Taverners, Innholders & Retailers, or of the Farmers of Excise, neither of which have any right to it.

In this Case likewise all the Governm<sup>ts</sup> Creditors, who have taken the Treasurer's Notes payable with Interest out of the Duty of Excise (which by the Supply Act the Treasurer is empowered to give) & those who shall lend it any sums of money upon the security of this Fund will lose their Security; and for discharging their debts a new Tax must be laid, of which too those, who paid the Duty of this Excise to the Retailers as is before mention'd in the advanc'd prices of the Liquors, must bear their proportionable part over again.

In Case this Act is disallow'd before it hath had it's full operation, the publick will also lose the whole benefit of that part of the duty, which is laid upon those exciseable liquors which shall be purchas'd of the Merchant or others in larger quantities than 30 Gallons by one person at one time which is reckon'd at about £4000 Sterling value more and will be sunk in the pockets of the richer sort of the people who have no reasonable pretensions to be exempted from paying their part of the Duty and so increase the burthen of the other Taxes upon the poorer sort.

Thus, my Lords, would £5000 sterling of the publick Taxes be sunk in the pockets of those who have not the least right to it, to the great hardship of others, who are the least able in the community to bear such a loss, the weakening of the Government credit & the disappointment of His Majesty's service.

But my Lords these are not all the bad consequences which will probably arise to the Province from his Majesty's disallowance of the Act.

I am persuaded that a disallowance of this Act would greatly shock the minds of the Representatives and disserve his Majesty's Government, especially at this Crisis: Tho' they have learned to acquiesce in being restrained from passing Acts of Assembly which intrench upon his Majesty's Prerogative, which have a tendency to weaken his Government, affect the foreign trade of Great Britain, burthen or diminish her trade to the Colonies, lessen the consumption of Commodities either of her growth or manufacture within 'em and even from establishing Manufactures among them, which interfere with her's; but to restrain them either by disallowance of their Acts when pass'd, or standing instructions to their Governors from laying a duty upon Liquors, which in all Communities have ever been esteem'd the most proper object of a Tax or Excise, in such manner as to subject every rank of persons to an equal payment of it and to be collected so as to prevent concealments and frauds in those who ought to pay their parts of it and to make the fund produce what it ought towards the support of His Majesty's Governm<sup>t</sup>: I say my Lords to restrain them from exercising such a discretionary power among themselves would, I am satisfied, grieve them very much at this time, and might tend to quench that ready spirit, which they have hitherto exerted for promoting His Majesty's service and the general welfare of his Dominions upon the Continent; & might also disserve his Government in other respects.

But for what ends my Lords, is his Majesty's disallowance of this Act desired? the principal are to ease those, who shall buy any excisable liquor of the Merchant in quantities not under 30 Gallons at a time for private consumption in their Families, from a new imposition of being oblig'd to keep an account of what they consume this year, and perhaps to gage their casks at the end of the year and afterwards to give publick accot<sup>t</sup> of it upon oath, if the Farmer of Excise shall require it: The number of these within the Province from the best accounts I can get, is very small: All such who buy their liquor of the Retailers are out of the question, as to keeping or rendering any account of the quantity of excisable liquors they consume in their families; the latter circumstance of discovering the quantity of liquor consum'd at a man's private table is certainly a disagreeable one and the imposition of it is new in the English Government; But where is the necessity for having recourse to the remedy which the Town of Boston desires; if the Act is as disagreeable to the several Towns and such an one as they represent it in their Instructions to their Agent, the People will have their remedy in their own hands within seventeen weeks; the present House of Representative will expire in that time: and they may, if they please, choose such Representatives as will pass a Bill for repealing the Act; in which case there is not the least room to doubt, but that the new Council would concur it and the Governor give his consent to it.

I can't avoid observing to your Lordships, the irregularity of the Town's proceedings in this case: It seems a settled maxim in Governm<sup>t</sup> as well as Law that the last remedy ought not to be resorted to, before the intermediate ones are try'd; No person can in the first instance have recourse to the higher Court of Judicature without first bringing his suit in the Inferior Court from whence an Appeal or Writ of Error lies to the Superior one; The Town of Boston ought certainly to have, according to the ordinary course and rule of Government in like cases, petitioned the House of Representatives to be heard against the Bill whilst it was depending there; this was what the Distillers did when the Bill for laying the duty upon the Still head was depending in the House and the Bill was upon their representing the mischievous consequences of it, dropp'd as is before mentioned; It does not appear but that the same proceeding in the Town of Boston might have had the same effect, as to the Excise Bill; The Town ought at least to have try'd this remedy, if that had fail'd they would have had a better pretence to have apply'd to your Lordships for this violent remedy from the Crown.

Petitions to his Majesty, my Lords, from the Assemblies in the Colonies against their Governors for invading the rights or privileges of the people and their appointing Agents to prosecute them are known cases; But a single Town's appointment of a standing Agent (which appears to be the case of the Town of Boston) at the Boards of State, to oppose the Acts of the whole representative body of the people in conjunction with the two other Branches of the Legislature and that in matters which don't touch their particular Franchises and Interests more than it does those of the rest of the community is I believe of the first impression in the King's Government.

I find my Lords in the Town's letter to their Agent, that they have wrote to several other Towns in the Province inviting them to join in this application; It is very possible some of the fishing Towns may: I don't design to trouble your Lordships into an examination of the whole detail of the Votes, which were pass'd at the Town meeting upon the Excise Act in question, But it may be proper for me to make some cursory remarks upon three of them.

One of the hardships pointed out by them in the Act is, that the poor fishermen will suffer by it: I made the same objection my Lords, in private, to some of the Members of the House of Representatives and was answer'd that the Fishermen never purchase their rum for the voyage, but the Owner of the Vessel constantly provides all supplies for it and among other articles sells that of Rum to the crew at the Excise price; that for this Reason the fishermen were never excepted out of the ordinary Excise Acts; that there never was a complaint made of their being burthened by being subjected to the payment of the Duty and that there could be no just pretence for the Owner of the Vessel to charge the fishermen more for his Rum than the Excise price now: But on the other hand that the excepting of rum consum'd in fishing voyages out of this new Act would open a door for frauds, without procuring any benefit to the fishermen.

Another exception pointed out in the Town's Instructions to their Agent is that this Act will increase the number of Excise Officers which may influence Elections; Your Lordships will naturally imagine from this objection that these Officers are appointed by the Governor; But my Lords it is otherwise, the farmers of the Excise are appointed by Committees chosen by a Ballot Vote of the two Houses, to which the Governor signs his consent, so that if there is any force in the objection it makes against them, and as to the fact itself, I can't think that the Farmers of the Excise will be under a necessity of increasing the number of their Deputies much on account of this Act.

Another Objection is their apprehensions that the Excise may in time be extended to the Provisions of private Consumption as well as to Wines and Spirituous Liquors: This Objection holds equally strong against laying an Excise upon the same kinds of liquors consum'd in publick Houses of Taverners, Innholders &c; But this Excise laid upon them hath been experienc'd many years in the Province and I dare say it never entered into any one's thoughts to extend it to any species of provisions sold and consum'd in those Houses and until that shall be attempted private Families have no pretence to be apprehensive of such an Excise being laid upon their provisions.

I am afraid I have troubled your Lordships too much already with a particular examination of the objections I have taken notice of, and shall not descend to the others mention'd in the Town's Instructions to their Agent and shall only add and that from the best accounts that I can get of what the produce of this new part of the Excise will probably amount to, I have reason my Lords, to think it will fall so short of the expectation of the Assembly, that they will not press the Act another year, at least the disagreeable part of it which is the obliging every person to give an account of his private consumption of Wine and Spirituous Hquors not bought of any Retailer.

Upon the whole, my Lords, a new Assembly must according to the Charter be chosen next May, which will I make no question from the experience I have had of them, act in a matter of this nature, agreeable to the general sense of their Constituents which must at this Election be certainly known; If that should be to have the Act repeal'd, the Assembly must at the same time make provision for discharging the Debts for which the present duty of Excise is mortgaged and for the exigencies of his Majesty's service which might otherwise be effected by the Repeal; so that in such case no inconvenience of any kind could attend the repealing it, whereas several most probably would ensue upon his Majesty's disallowance of it.

At all Events if the Assembly is permitted to settle this matter with their Constituents, let it terminate either way, it seems evident that it can't hurt his Majesty's service in the Province but must have a tendency to promote it: and I think I can be answerable to Your Lordships that the Rum consum'd in fishing Voyages shall be exempted from the payment of the duty, if the Act should be passed again another year, and as it would be a great pleasure to me to have the Town of Boston gratified by leaving the Clause out of the Act which subjects every person, but those who are expressly excepted out of it, to render an account of the excis'd liquors (not bought of Retailers) which is consumed in their private Families and which I shall again make a point of, as far as the good of his Majesty's service at this critical conjuncture will allow me, I can't but conceive strong hopes that I shall be able to induce the Assembly to do it.

But if Your Lordships shall be of opinion that at all events I should not consent to passing the Act again with the like Clause in it and will be pleas'd to signify your directions to me upon it in a Letter, I shall pay the strictest obedience to them and would submit it to Your Lordship's consideration whether that might not be at this time as salutary a method of prohibiting it's being passed again as by a standing Instruction from his Majesty.

I am, with the highest respect,

My Lords,

“Report of Lords of Trade on an Act passed Dec. 1754.

To the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lords of the Committee of His Majesty’s most Hon<sup>ble</sup> Privy Council for Plantation Affairs.

My Lords,

Pursuant to Your Lordships Order dated the 7th of May last, We have had under our Consideration an Act passed in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in December 1754 Entitled,

An Act for granting unto His Majesty an Excise upon Spirits distilled and Wine and upon Limes, Lemons and Oranges.

And having been attended by M<sup>r</sup> Kilby, whom the Towns of Boston, Marblehead and Gloucester within the said Province have appointed their Agent to solicit the Repeal of the said Act, and by M<sup>r</sup> Bolland, Agent for the Province in support of it, and heard what each party had to offer, We beg leave to acquaint your Lordships;

That so much of this Act as relates to the Excised Liquors sold by Taverners, Innholders and other Retailers in quantities less than thirty Gallons to any person at one time, is conformable to the Ordinary Excise Act annually past in the said Province: That part of it only is new, which imposes an Excise upon Rum & other Spirits and Wine brought in larger Quantities than thirty Gallons, & consumed in private Families, which, by the method prescribed for collecting this part of the duty, subjects every person to render to the Town Clerk once in a year an Account of the Quantity of Rum, and other Spirits and Wine, consumed in his private Family; and in case the Farmer of the Excise for that particular County shall think fit to summon him before a Justice of the Peace for that purpose, to make oath to the truth of his account, or on failure thereof to pay Ten Pounds, being of the value Seven Pounds ten shillings sterling, to the use of the said Farmer.

On this new part of the Act the objections of the three Towns above mentioned are chiefly founded. It has been urged on their behalf, that the method of collecting the Excise by Farmers or their Deputies is grievous; that by giving them power to administer an Oath to every person in the Community they may harrass and perplex his Majesty's Subjects; that the multiplying oaths on trifling occasions has a tendency to lessen the sanctity of an Oath, and contributes to the spreading of perjury That the obliging persons to expose the secrets of their Families, by rendering an account of their private consumption is inconsistent with the natural rights of mankind unconstitutional and unprecedented in the English Government.

It has also been objected, that there being no Clause in this Act to exempt the Fishermen from the payment of this Excise for all spirituous liquors they may purchase at Newfoundland, Halifax, or any other port they may put into for supplies, altho' they should have paid an Excise in those Govern<sup>ts</sup>, since they cannot take the Oath required by this Act, without giving an account of the Liquors they purchased in those Provinces, and therefore that this Act tends greatly to the discouragement of the Fishery.

On the other hand it has been urged in support of this Act that it is founded on the principle of equality and impartiality, That the motives which induced the House of Representatives to extend the Duty of Excise in the manner above stated were, that it seem'd just that those members of the Community, whose Estates were large enough to enable them to buy the said Liquors of the Merchants in larger quantities than thirty gallons, should pay their proportionate part of the Duty (from which under all former Excise Acts they have been exempt) with those whose circumstances would not afford their purchasing in so large Quantities This they conceived would make the tax more equal, produce a larger revenue towards the support of His Majesty's Government and consequently lighten the burden of the poorer sort in the other Taxes necessary to be raised for that purpose; That with respect to the rendering an account of private Consumption, the Legislature have laid this burthen on themselves equally with the rest of the Community; That it is no great hardship to give once in a year an account to the best of the party's knowledge of Liquors purchased in large quantities, to the truth of which he is not required to make oath, unless on cause of suspicion.

That the Fishermen never purchase their Rum for the Voyage, but the Owner of the Vessel constantly provides all supplies for it, and among other articles, sells that of Rum to the Crew at the Excise Price; that for this Reason the fishermen were never excepted out of the Ordinary Excise Acts, and there never was a complaint of their being burthen'd by being subjected to the payment of the Duty, and that there can be no just pretence for the owner of the Vessel to charge the Fishermen more for his Rum than the Excise price now; But on the other hand that the excepting of Rum consum'd in fishing Voyages out of this new Act would open a door to frauds, without procuring any benefit to the Fishermen.

It has been further alleged that the Act will expire by its own limitation in December next, by which time the new Assembly (chosen in May last) will be fully apprized of its effect and operation and of the sense of their Constituents upon it, and if it shall have been found grievous and burthensome, they will not pass another Act of the like nature but that as it has now been in force for six months and upwards the disallowance of it must produce many bad consequences. For the poorer and middling sort of people who buy liquors of Retailers, have already contributed to this Tax by paying the Excise price for them and whatever sums have so accrued will be sunk either in the pockets of such Retailers or of the Farmers of Excise, who are not obliged to pay the sum they have contracted for with the publick till the end of the year; And thus the Publick will be deprived of the benefit of this part of the Tax; That, if the Act be disallowed before it has had it's full operation, the publick will also lose the whole benefit of that part of the Duty which is laid on Exciseable Liquors purchased in larger quantities than 30 Gallons, which is computed at about four thousand pounds Sterling, That this Sum will be sunk in the pockets of the richer sort of people who have no reasonable pretensions to be exempted from paying their part of the duty and the burthen of other Taxes will be thereby increased upon the poorer sort—That in such case likewise all the Governments Creditors who have advanc'd any sums of money on the security of this Fund will lose their security, which will not only be of great detriment to the publick, as it will create a necessity of imposing a new Tax, in order to satisfy such Creditors, but must give such a shock to its Credit as may have the most fatal effects upon any future occasion of raising money on emergencies.

Upon the whole, my Lords, as the mode of levying taxes is a matter of Provincial Economy of which the Representatives of the People are the Competent Judges; And as the Repeal of this Act would disappoint His Majesty's service, deprive the publick of the benefit of the duty thereby imposed, put that part of it which has already accrued into the private pockets of Retailers and Farmers of Excise and above all as it must necessarily weaken the credit of the Province, which we conceive may, in the present conjuncture, be of fatal consequence, We are humbly of opinion that the said Act should receive His Majesty's Royal Confirmation.

“A bill was brought forward by the legislature of Massachusetts for granting an excise on wines and spirituous liquors; but, meeting with great opposition, it was referred to the consideration of the people in the several towns. The returns discovering great diversity of opinion, the house, not viewing them as conclusive instructions, voted, that they should not be considered; and the bill was finally enacted and approved.”—Holmes's Annals, vol. 2, p. 203, anno 1754.

Chap. 17. “December 30, 1754. His Excellency sent the following Message to the House by the Secretary;

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives

The Bill for laying an Excise upon Wines & Strong Liquors, being now passed through the whole Legislature, I suppose I need not put you in Mind, That (how large a Revenue soever this Act may raise for this Government) It can be no present Supply, Unless something further be immediately done to procure, upon the Credit of this Fund, such Sums of Money as will discharge the present Debt of the Province, & (as far as the Fund itself will be sufficient) answer the further rising Expence for the Support of the Government, and the Defence and Protection of the Inhabitants thereof: It will be a full

Year before one Penny of this Tax will come into the Treasury; and unless more effectual Means than hitherto have been practis'd in like Cases, be used in this, It will be a much longer Time before the Government will have any great Benefit from this Branch of the Revenue.

Besides, Gentlemen, It seems to me to be very ill Policy to have our Treasury never supplied, till great Debts are first contracted, and the poor Soldiers & other Creditors of the Public are necessitated to spend a great Part of what is honestly due to them, in Attendance, for obtaining the Payment thereof, and sometimes to sell their Dues at great Loss: And by these Means the Credit of the Government is much sunk, and the Subjects of it more backward to serve it than they would be, if they could expect to be paid when the Service is performed; Besides, the large Sums which are paid for the Interest of the Money should put us upon more expedite and frugal Ways of raising the Taxes of all Kinds than any which hitherto have been practic'd.

And I would furthurr add on this Head, that I think it would be a great Point of Wisdom in this Government, especially in the present Conjunctionure of our Affairs, always to have a Surplusage in the Treasury beyond what will fully discharge the Debts already contracted, and the stated Accruing Expence of Government in its Circumstances, as estimated when the Provision is made, that so in the Recess of the Court there may be no Difficulty to draw out such Sum, as may answer any Exigency of Government; lest otherwise irreparable Damage should accrue to the Publick.

And therefore, Gentlemen, I must earnestly desire you would look into the State of the Treasury and get as much Knowledge as you can of the Sum of the Debts owing from the Government, and do your part for making a full & speedy supply for the Payment of the publick Debts, and for the Support of the Government, and the Protection & Defence of the Inhabitants."—*Council Records, vol. Chap. 20. It will be seen in the following communication to Silliman's Journal, by the distinguished botanist, Dr. Asa Gray of Cambridge, that the sagacity of the promoters of this measure is fully vindicated by the later researches of European cryptogamists:—

“The effect of barberry-bushes in rusting wheat, after having been long accounted a groundless popular superstition, is at length understood and admitted by the cryptogamists. The botanists used to rebut the charges of the farmers by the statement that the rust in the grain-fields and the prevalent fungus of the barberry belonged to very different genera, and that, therefore, the one could not give origin to the other. But De Bary in Germany, and Ærsted in Denmark, following up similar enquiries by Tulasne in France, have concluded that Uredo, Puccinia and Æcidium are to be regarded, not as so many genera, but as three successive forms of fructification of the same fungus, or, in some sort, an alternation of generations. De Bary ascertained that the spores of Puccinia graminis do not germinate when sprinkled on the leaves and stalks of the cereal grains, which this rust infests, while they will germinate on the leaves of the barberry, and there give rise to the Æcidium berberidis; and the spores of this are equally inert upon the barberry, but will grow, in their turn, upon wheat, and there reproduce first the Uredo, or yellow rust, and later the Puccinia graminis, or dark rust. Another species of Puccinia equally produces its Æcidium upon buckthorn; another alternates between the cereal grains and certain boraginaceous weeds. These results have been practically tested, in the large way, last summer [1869] in France. Long hedges of barberry planted along the Paris and Lyons railway, in a commune in the Côte d'Or, were complained of by the adjacent cultivators, and were cut away at certain places by way of experiment; and an investigation by the railroad company, whose interests were adverse to such a decision, left no doubt of the injurious effects of the barberry on the contiguous wheat-fields.”—American Journal of Science and the Arts, vol. 49, 1870, p. 406 (No. CXLVII., 2d series).

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 13.] That the master of every ship or vessel importing any liquors, wines, goods, wares or merchandize, shall be liable to and pay the impost for such and so much thereof, contained in his manifest, as shall not be duly entered, nor the duty paid for the same by the person or persons to whom such wines, liquors, goods, wares or merchandize are or shall be consigned. And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 17.] And the commissioner or receiver of the impost is hereby impowered to allow bills of store to the master of any ship or vessel importing any wines or liquors, for such private adventures as shall belong to the master or seamen of such ship or vessel, at the discretion of the commissioner or receiver, not exceeding three per cent of the lading; and the duties payable by this act for such wines or liquors, in such bills of stores mentioned and expressed, shall be abated.

And for the more effectual preventing any wines, rum or other distilled spirits being brought into the province from the neighbouring governments, by land, or in small boats, or vessels, or any other way, and also to prevent wines, rum or other distilled spirits being first sent out of this province, to save the duty of impost, and afterwards brought into the government again,—

Be it enacted,

[SECT. 18.] That the commissioner and receiver of the aforesaid duties of impost shall, and he is hereby impowered and enjoined to, appoint one suitable person or persons as his deputy or deputies, in all such places of this province where it is likely that wine, rum or other distilled spirits will be brought out of other governments into this; which officers shall have power to seize the same, unless the owner shall make it appear that the duty of impost has been paid therefor since their being brought into or relanded in this government; and such officer or officers are also impowered to search, in all suspected places, for such wines, rum and distilled spirits brought or relanded in this government, where the duty is not paid as aforesaid, and to seize and secure the same for the ends and uses as in the act hereafter provided.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 19.] That the commissioner or his deputies shall have full power to administer the several oaths aforesaid, and to search in all suspected places for all such wines, rum, liquors, goods, wares and merchandize as are brought into this province, and landed contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, and to seize the same for the uses hereinafter mentioned.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 20.] That there shall be paid, by the master of every ship or other vessel, coming into any port or ports of this province, to trade or traffick, whereof all the owners are not belonging to this province (except such vessells as belong to Great Britain, the provinces or colonies of Pennsylvania, West and East Jersey, Connecticut, New York, New Hampshire and Rhode Island), every voyage such ship or vessel doth make, one pound of good pistol-powder for every ton such ship or vessel is in burthen: saving for that part which is owned in Great Britain, this province, or any of the aforesaid governments, which are hereby exempted; to be paid unto the commissioner or receiver of the duties of impost, and to be employed for the ends and uses aforesaid.

[SECT. 21.] And the said commissioner is hereby impowered to appoint a meet and suitable person, to repair unto and on board any ship or vessel, to take the exact measure and tunnage thereof, in case he shall suspect the register of such ship or vessel doth not express and set forth the full burthen of the same; the charge thereof to be paid by the master or owner of such ship or vessel, before she shall be cleared, in case she shall appear to be of a greater burthen: otherwise, to be paid by the commissioner out of the money received by him for impost, and shall be allowed him, accordingly, by the treasurer, in his accompts. And the naval officer shall not clear any vessel, untill he be certified, also, by the commissioner, that the duty of tunnage for the same is paid, or that it is such a vessel for which none is payable according to this act.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 22.] That when and so often as any wine or rum imported into this province, the duty of impost upon which shall have been paid agreeable to this act, shall be reshipped and exported from this government to any other part of the world, that then, and in every such case, the exporter of such wine or rum shall make oath, at the time of shipping, before the receiver of impost, or his deputy, that the whole of the wine or rum so shipp'd has, bonâ fide, had the aforesaid duty of impost paid on the same, and shall afterwards produce a certificate, from some officer of the customs, that the same has been landed out of this government,—or otherwise, in case such rum or wines shall be exported to any place where there is no officer of the customs, or to any foreign port, the master of the vessel in which the same shall be exported shall make oath that the same has been landed out of the government, and the exporter shall, upon producing such certificate, or upon such oath of the master, make oath that he verily believes no part of said wines or rum has been relanded in this province,—such exporter shall be allowed a drawback from the receiver of impost as follows; viz<sup>t</sup>.,—

For every pipe of Medaria, twenty-two shillings.

For every pipe of the Western-Island wines, and other sorts, ten shillings.

For every hogshead of rum, twelve shillings.

Provided, always,—

[SECT. 23.] That after the shipping of such wine or rum to be exported as aforesaid, and giving security as aforesaid, in order to obtain the drawback aforesaid, the wine or rum so shipp'd to be exported, or any part thereof, shall be relanded in this province, or brought into the same from any other province or colony, that then all such rum and wine so relanded and brought again into this province, shall be forfeited and may be seized by the commissioner aforesaid, or his deputy.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 24.] That there be one fit person, and no more, nominated and appointed by this court, as a commissioner and a receiver of the aforesaid duties of impost and tunnage of shipping, and for the inspection, care and management of the said office, and whatsoever thereto relates, to receive commission for the same from the governour or commander-in-chief for the time being, with authority to substitute and appoint a deputy receiver in each port, or other places besides that in which he resides, and to grant warrants to such deputy receivers for the said place, and to collect and receive the impost and tunnage of shipping as aforesaid that shall become due within such port, and to render the account thereof, and to pay in the same, to the said commissioner and receiver: which said commissioner and receiver shall keep fair books of all entries and duties arising by virtue of this act; also, a particular account of every vessell, so that the duties of impost and tunnage arising on said vessell may appear; and the same to lie open, at all seasonable times, to the view and perusal of the treasurer or receiver-general of this province (or any other person or persons whom this court shall appoint), with whom he shall account for all collections and payments, and pay all such monies as shall be in his hands, as the treasurer or receiver-general shall demand it. And the said commissioner or receiver and his deputy or deputies, before their entring upon the execution of their office, shall be sworn to deal truly and faithfully therein, and shall attend in the said office from ten o'clock in the forenoon, untill one in the afternoon.

[SECT. 25.] And the said commissioner and receiver, for his labour, care and expences in said office, shall have and receive, out of the province treasury, at the rate of sixty pounds per annum; and his deputy or deputies shall receive for their service such sums as the said commissioner of impost, together with the province treasurer, shall judge necessary, for whatever sums they shall receive and pay; and the treasurer is hereby ordered, in passing and receiving the said commissioner's accounts, accordingly, to allow the payment of such salary or salaries, as aforesaid, to himself and his deputies.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 26.] That all penalties, fines and forfeitures accruing and arising by virtue of any breach of this act, shall be one half to his majesty for the uses and intents for which the afore-mentioned duties of impost are granted, and the other half to him or them that shall seize, inform and sue for the same, by action, bill, plaint or information, in any of his majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoign, protection or wager of law shall be allowed: the whole charge of the prosecution to be taken out of the half belonging to the informer.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 27.] That from and after the publication of this act, in all causes where any claimer shall appear, and shall not make good the claim, the charges of prosecution shall be born and paid by the said claimer, and not by the informer. [Passed June 21; published June 27.]

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 2.] That the treasurer do forthwith send out his warrants, directed to the selectmen or assessors of each town or district within this province, requiring them, respectively, to assess the sum hereby set upon such town or district, in manner following; that is to say, to assess all rateable polls above the age of sixteen years, within their respective towns or districts, or next adjoining to them, belonging to no other town, six shillings per poll, and proportionably in assessing the fines mentioned in this act, and the additional sum received out of the treasury for the payment of the representatives (except the governo[u]r, the lieutenant-governo[u]r and their families, the president, fellows, professors and students of Harvard College, settled ministers and grammar-school masters, who are hereby exempted as well from being taxed for their polls, as for their estates being in their own hands and under their actual management and improvement; as also all the estate pertaining to Harvard Colle[d]ge); and other persons, if such there be, who, through age, infirmity or extre[a]m[e] poverty, in the judgment of the assessors, are not able to pay towards publick charges, they may exempt their polls, and so much of their estates as in their prudence they shall think fit and judge meet.

Rules for assessment.

[SECT. 3.] And the justices in their general sessions, in the respective counties assembled, in granting a county tax or assessment, are hereby ordered and directed to apportion the same on the several towns in such county in proportion to their province rate, exclusive of what has been paid out of the publick treasury to the representatives of each town for his service; and the assessors of each town in the province are also directed, in making an assessment, to govern themselves by the same rule; and all estates, both real and personal, lying within the limits of such town or district, or next unto the same, not paying elsewhere, in whose hands, tenure, occupation or possession soever the same is or shall be found, and also the incomes or profits which any person or persons, except as before excepted, do or shall receive from any trade, faculty, business or employment whatsoever, and all profits which [shall or] may [or shall] arise by money or other estate not particularly otherwise assessed, or commissions of profit in their improvement, according to their understanding or cunning, at one pen[n]y on the pound; and to abate or multiply the same, if need be, so as to make up the sum set and ordered hereby for such town or district to pay; and, in making their assessment, to estimate houses and lands at six years' income of the yearly rents whereat the same may be reasonably set or let for in the place where they lye: saving all contracts between landlord and tenant, and where no contract is, the landlord to reimburse one-half of the tax set upon such houses and lands; and to estimate negro, Indian and mol[l]atto servants proportionably as other perso[n]al[l] estate, according to their sound judgment and discretion; as also to estimate every ox of four years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every cow of three years old and upwards, at thirty shillings; every horse and mare of three years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every swine of one year old and upwards, at eight shillings; goats and sheep of one year old, at three shillings each: likewise requiring the said assessors to make a fair list of the said assessment, setting forth, in distinct colum[n]s, against each particular person's name, how much he or she is assessed at for polls, and how much for houses and lands, and how much for personal estate, and income by trade or faculty, and if as guardian, or for any estate, in his or her improvement, in trust, to be distinctly expressed; and the list or lists, so perfected and signed by them, or the major part of them, to commit[t] to the collectors, constable or constables of such town or district, and to return a certificate of the name or names of such collector, constable or constables, with the sum total to each of them committed, unto himself, some time before the last day of October next.

[SECT. 4.] And the treasurer, for the time being, upon receipt of such certificate, is hereby impowered and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector, or constable or constables of such town or district, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sum assess[e]d on each particular person, before the last day of December next; and to pay in their collection, and issue the accòmpts of the whole, at or before the last day of March next, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty-six.

And be it further enacted,

Inhabitants to bring in a true
list of their polls,
&c.

[SECT. 5.] That the assessors of each town or district, respectively, in convenient time before their making the assessment, shall give seasonable warning to the inhabitants, in a town meeting, or by posting up notifications in some place or places in such town or district, or notify the inhabitants some other way[s] or give or bring in to the assessors true and perfect lists of their polls, rateable estate, and income by trade or faculty, and gain by money at interest, which they are to render to the assessors on oath, if required; and if they refuse to give in an account of the money at interest, on oath, the assessors are impowered to doom them; and if any person or persons shall neglect or refuse so to do, or bring in a false list, it shall be lawful[1] to and for the assessors to assess such person or persons, according to their known ability in such town, in their sound judgment and discretion, their due proportion of this tax, as near as they can, agreeable to the rules herein given, under the penalty of twenty shillings for each person that shall be convicted by legal proof, in the judgment of the said assessors, in bringing in a false list; the said fines to be for the use of the poor of such town or district where the delinquent lives, to be levied by warrant from the assessors, directed to the collectors or constables, in manner as is directed for gathering town assessments, to be paid in to the town treasurer or selectmen for the use aforesaid: saving to the party aggrieved at the judgment of the assessors in setting forth such fine, liberty of appeal therefrom to the court of general sessions of the peace within the county, for rel[ei][ie]f, as in case of being overrated. And if any person or persons shall not bring a list of their estates, as aforesaid, to the assessors, he or they so neglecting shall not be admitted to make application to the court of general sessions for any abatement of the assessment laid on him.

[SECT. 6.] And if the party be not convicted of any falseness in the list, by him presented, of the polls, rateable estate, or income by trade or faculty, business or employment, which he does or shall exercise, or [in] gain by money at interest or otherwise, or other estate not particularly assessed, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportion to the tax, which the assessors may not exceed.

CHAPTER 22.

AN ACT IN FURTHER ADDITION TO THE ACT FOR LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, AND FOR AVOIDING SUITS IN LAW WHERE THE MATTER IS OF LONG STANDING.

Preamble.
1753-54, chap. 34.

1743-49, chap. 17.

WHEREAS, by a law of this province, [e][i]ntitled “An Act in further addition to the act for the limitation of actions, and for avoiding suits at law where the matter is of long standing,” made and pass’d in the twenty-seventh year of his present majesty’s reign, the time limited for commencing all actions of account, and upon the case, excepting such as are excepted in another act, [e][i]ntitled “An Act in addition to and for the explanation of an act, [e][i]ntitled ‘An Act for the limitation of actions, and avoiding suits at law where the matter is of long standing,’” made and pass’d in the twenty-second year of his present majesty’s reign, will expire the last day of March next; and whereas there are great numbers of men now in the publick service who, if debtors, are by law exempted from arrests for any debt less than ten pounds in value, and, if creditors, are, by reason of their absence, under disadvantages for recovering their just dues, and it is thereby become impracticable to have such accounts and actions settled within the time now limited by law for that purpose,—

Be it therefore enacted by the Lieutenant-Governour, Council and House of Representatives,

Time for bringing actions of the case, to be extended.

[SECT. 1.] That the time for commencing of actions of the case, upon notes of hand, or upon book accounts, limited by the said act of the twenty-second, or by said act made in the twenty-seventh, year of his present majesty’s reign, shall be and is hereby extended to the last day of March, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand and seven hundred and fifty-eight; and no suit hereafter to be brought in such cases shall be barred if commenced before the expiration of said term.

And that this law may be more generally known,—

Be it further enacted,

This act to be read in towns and districts.

[SECT. 2.] That the clerk of every town and district within this province shall read, or cause the same to be read, in their respective towns and districts, at their anniversary meetings in March and May, annually; and the justices of the several courts of common pleas within the respective counties shall cause the same to be publicly read at the opening of their courts, from time to time, after the publication of this act, and until [1] the last day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-eight. [Passed October 31; published November 5.

* On the engrossment the date of publication is given as November 5, although the usual memorandum on the face of the act gives the date of passage, in both branches, and the lieutenant-governor’s signature, as November 7, herein agreeing with the record. A printed copy also gives the same date of publication. The date on the engrossment, however, appears to have been altered by writing the figure 5, over 7; and as the latter seems the more probable date it has been followed above.

Be it therefore enacted by the Governour, Council and House of Representatives, to feoffees in trust, and to such their successors in the same trust as those feoffees should appoint to hold perpetual succession, certain lands, tenements and annuities by them mentioned, for the use of school-learning in said town forever; of which feoffees the honourable Thomas Berry, Esq<sup>[r]</sup>, Daniel Appleton and Samuel Rogers, Esqrs., with Mr. Benjamin Crocker, are the only survivors; and whereas the town of Ipswich did also, in their laudable concern for promoting learning, about the same time, and for the same use, give and grant to certain persons in said grant mentioned, and to such others as the said town should appoint, a large farm, then called a neck of land, situate in Chebacco, in the same town, with some other lands adjoining; all which farm and lands were soon after leased out for the space of one thousand years, the rents to be applied to the uses of learning in said town as aforesaid; but as is apprehended by some, no power was given by the said town to their trustees to appoint successors in that trust for receiving and applying the rents, or of ordering and directing the affairs of the school in said town, as in the first-mentioned case is provided; from which difference in the original constitution of those grants, which were all designed for one and the same use, considerable disputes have already arisen between the said town and the feoffees; and not only so, but some doubts are started whether it is in the power of said town or feoffees to compel the payment of the rents of the farm and adjoining land before mentioned; and inasmuch as the said town of Ipswich, by their vote of the twenty-second day of January, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-six, by and with the consent of the aforementioned feoffees, have agreed to apply to this court for aid in the manner in said vote mentioned; wherefore,—

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council and House of Representatives, Feoffees of Ipswich school appointed.

Their power.

[SECT. 1.] That from and after the first day of March next, for and during the space of ten years, the aforesaid Thomas Berry, Daniel Appleton and Samuel Rogers, Esqrs., with Mr. Benjamin Crocker, the present surviving feoffees on the part of the private persons granting lands as aforesaid, together with Francis Choate, Esq<sup>[r]</sup>, Capt. Nathaniel Tredwell and Mr. John Patch, Junr., three of the present selectmen of said town, shall be and they are hereby incorporated a joint committee or feoffees in trust, with full power and authority by a majority of them to grant necessary leases of any of said land not prejudicial to any lease already made, and not exceeding the term of ten years, to demand and receive the said rents and annuities, and, if need be, to sue for and recover the same; to appoint grammar-school masters from year to year and time to time, and agree for his salary; to apply the rents and annuities for the paym[en]t of his salary and other necessary charges arising by said school; to appoint a clerk and treasurer, and if found necessary, to impose some moderate sum and sums of money to be paid by such scholars as may attend said school, for making up and supplying any deficiency that may happen in the yearly income and annuities of said lands; for defr[a][e]ying the necessary charges that may arise by said school, and enforce the payment; to inspect said school and schoolmaster, and in general to transact and order all matters and things relative to such school, so as may best answer the original intent and design thereof.

Account of feoffees' proceedings to be laid before the town annually.

[SECT. 2.] And the said committee or feoffees and their successors shall, at the anniversary meeting of said town in March, yearly, during the continuance of this act, lay before said town a fair account of their proceedings relating to said school for the year then last past.

And for the continuance of the succession of the before-named committee or feoffees,—

Be it enacted,

[SECT. 3.] That if either the said Thomas Berry, Daniel Appleton, Samuel Rogers or Benjamin Crocker, shall decease, or remove out of said town of Ipswich, or otherwise become incapable or unfit to discharge said trust, it shall and may be lawful for the surviving and qualified remainder of those four gentlemen to appoint some other suitable person or persons in his or their room so deceasing, removing or otherwise unqualified, according to the original intention of their first appointment, so as to keep up the same number of four feoffees thus constituted, and no more; and no person to be appointed a feoffee but an inhabitant of the town of Ipswich: and the aforementioned selectmen shall, from year to year, be succeeded by the three oldest in that office of the selectmen of said town for the time being, other than such of them as may be also one of the aforesaid four feoffees; and in case it should at any time happen that there is not three selectmen chosen by said town that may have served the town before in that office, the deficiency shall be supplied by those first named in the choice of the town.

Provision for the succession of said feoffees, &c.

And for rendering the whole more effectual,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 4.] That the aforesaid committee or feoffees in trust may, in all matters relative to said grammar school, in which they may by force of this act be concerned, sue or be sued by the name or character of the feoffees of the grammar school of the town of Ipswich, in the county of Essex; and in this power their successors shall be included with respect to the transactions of those that may have preceded them in said office.

Feoffees, or committee, to sue and be sued.

[SECT. 5.] This act to continue and be in force for the space of ten years, and no longer. [Passed February 17; published February 26.]

CHAPTER 31.

AN ACT FOR GRANTING UNTO HIS MAJESTY AN EXCISE UPON SPIRITS DISTILLED AND WINE, AND UPON LIMES, LEMMONS AND ORANGES.

We, his majesty's most loyal<sup>[1]</sup> and dutiful subjects, the representatives of the province of the Massachusetts Bay, in general court assembled, being desirous to lessen the present debt of the province, have cheerfully and unanimously granted, and do hereby give and grant unto his most excellent majesty, for the end and use above mentioned, and for no other use, an excise upon all rum and other spirits distilled, and upon all wines whatsoever, and upon lemmons, limes and oranges, to be raised, levied, collected and paid in manner and form following:—

Preamble.

And be it accordingly enacted by the Governour, Council and House of Representatives,

[SECT. 1.] That from and after the twenty-sixth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-six, and until<sup>[1]</sup> the twenty-sixth of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-seven, every person already licenced, or that shall hereafter be licenced, to retail rum or other spirits, or wine, shall pay the duties following:—

Time of this act's continuance.

For every gallon of rum and spirits distilled, fourpence.

For every gallon of wine of every sort, sixpence.

For every hundred of lemmons or oranges, four shillings.

For every hundred of limes, one shilling and sixpence.

—And so proportionably for any other quantity or number.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 2.] That every retailer of wine, rum or spirits distilled, taverner, innholder and common victualler, shall, on the said twenty-sixth day of March next, take a just and true account, in writing, of all wine, rum and spirits distilled, and of all limes, lemmons and oranges then by him or her, or in his or her possession; and that every person who shall hereafter be licenced to be a taverner, innholder, common victualler or retailer of wine, rum or spirits distilled, shall take a like account of all wine, rum and spirits distilled, and of all limes, lemmons and oranges by him or her, or in his or her possession, at the time of such licence granted; and that every taverner, innholder, and common victualler and retailer of wine, rum or spirits distilled shall make a fair entry, in a book by them respectively to be kept for that purpose, of all such wine, rum or spirits distilled, as he or she, or any person or persons for him or her, shall buy, distill, take in or receive after such first account taken, and when and of whom the same was bought and taken in; and at the expiration of every half year shall take a just and true account how much thereof then remains by them; and shall, in writing, under their hands, render to him or them that shall farm the duties aforesaid the whole of those several accounts, and shall also, if requested, make oath, in the form following, before such farmer or farmers, who are hereby impowered to administer the same :—

Account to be taken.

Form of the oath.

You, A. B., do swear that the account by you now rendred is, to the best of your knowledge, a just and true account of all the wine, rum and distilled spirits, limes, lemmons and oranges you had by you, or in your possession, on the twenty-sixth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-six, and also of all the wine, rum and distilled spirits bought, distilled, taken in or received by you, or by any person or persons for or under you, or by or with your knowledge, allowance, consent or connivance, and that there still remains thereof in your possession unsold, so much as is in this account said to remain by you unsold; and that you do not know or bel[ei][ie]ve that there hath been by you, or by any other person or persons for or under you, or by your or their order, allowance, consent or connivance, either directly or indirectly, sold, used or consumed any wine, or liquor for, or as, wine; any rum or distilled spirits, or liquor for, or as, rum or distilled spirits; or that there hath been any limes, lemmons or oranges by you, or by any person or persons for or under you, or by your order, consent, allowance or connivance, used or consumed in making punch, or otherwise, since the said twenty-sixth day of March, besides what is contained in the account by you now rendered. So help you God.

[SECT. 3.] And for every person that was not licenced on the said twenty-sixth day of March, the form of the oath shall be so varied, as that instead of mentioning that day, the time of their being licenced shall be inserted and used; and for every person rendering an account after the first, the oath shall be so varied, as that instead of expressing the day aforesaid, the time of taking and rendering their last account shall be inserted and used.

Duties to be paid to the farmer.

[SECT. 4.] And every such taverner, innholder, common victualler and retailer shall pay the duties aforesaid to him or them that shall farm the same, [f] or the whole of the several articles mentioned in such account rendered, save only for such part thereof as remains in their hands unsold: provided, nevertheless, that for leakage, &c<sup>[a]</sup>, ten per cent shall be allowed them on all liquors in such account mentioned, besides what remains in their hands unsold.

Ten per cent allowed for leakage.

And be it further enacted,

Taverner, &c., to give bond.

[SECT. 5.] That every person hereafter licenced to be a taverner, innholder, common victualler or retailer of wine, rum or spirits distilled shall, within thirty days after such licence granted, and before he or she sell by vertue of the same, not only become bound to keep good rule, &c<sup>[a]</sup>, as by law is already required, but shall also become bound, with sufficient sureties, by way of recognizance, to his majesty, for the use of him or them that have farmed or shall farm the duties aforesaid, in a sufficient sum, to be ordered by the court that grants the licence, which sum shall not be less than fifty pounds, conditioned that they shall take, keep and render the accounts aforesaid, and pay the duties aforesaid, as in and by this act is required.

And be it further enacted,

Forfeiture for neglect in keeping and rendering accounts.

[SECT. 6.] That every such taverner, innholder, common victualler and retailer, who shall neglect or refuse to take, keep and render such accounts as by this act is required, or that shall neglect or refuse to take the oath aforesaid, if required, shall for[ie][ei]t and pay, to him or them that shall farm the duties aforesaid, double the sum which the court of general sessions of the peace in that county shall adjudge that the duties of excise upon the liquors, limes, lem[m]ons and oranges by such taverner, innholder, common victualler or retailer, or by any for or under him or them, sold, used or consumed would have amounted to; and no person shall be licenced by the justices of the general sessions of the peace that hath not accounted with the farmer, and paid him the excise aforesaid, due from such person at the time of his or her taking or renewing such licence.

And whereas, notwithstanding the laws made against selling strong drink without licence, many persons not regarding the penalties in said acts, do receive and entertain persons in their houses, and sell great quantities of spirits and other strong drink, without licence; by reason whereof great debaucheries are committed and kept secret, and such as take licences and pay the duties of excise therefor are greatly wronged, and the farmers unjustly deprived of their dues,—

Be it therefore enacted,

[SECT. 7.] That if any distiller, importer or any other person whatsoever, after the said [26th] [twenty-sixth] day of March, shall presume, directly or indirectly, to sell any rum or other distilled spirits, or wine, in less quantity than twenty-five gallons, or any beer, ale, cyder, perry or other strong drink, in any quantity less than ten gallons, without licence first had and obtained from the court of general sessions of the peace in that county, and recognizing in manner as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay for each offence, the sum of four pounds, lawful money, and costs of prosecution, one half to the farmer of said duties and the other half to the informer; and all such as shall neglect or refuse to pay the fine aforesaid, shall stand closely committed in the common goal of the county, and not have the liberty of the goaler's house or yard, until [1] said sum of four pounds is paid, with costs; and any goaler giving liberty contrary to this act, shall forfeit and pay the said sum of four pounds, and cost[s] of prosecution.

Forfeiture of £4 for selling without licence.

And whereas, in order to elude the design of this act, some persons may join together and buy wine, rum, brandy and other spirits distilled in quantities above twenty-five gallons, and afterwards divide the same among themselves in less quantities,—

Be it therefore enacted,

[SECT. 8.] That where two or more persons, not licenced as aforesaid, shall join together, and purchase wine, rum, brandy or spirits distilled, or shall employ any other person or persons not licenced as aforesaid to do it, and shall afterwards divide the same, or cause it to be divided among themselves, or otherwise, in less quantities than twenty-five gallons, they shall be deemed and taken to be sellers of such wine, rum, brandy and other distilled spirits, and each and every of them shall be subject to the same pains, penalties and forfeitures as any person by this act is who shall sell wine, rum or spirits distilled, without licence first had and obtained.

Persons not licenced joining together in purchasing liquors and dividing the same, liable to a forfeiture.

And whereas some doubts have arisen whether the lending or delivering wine, rum, brandy or spirits distilled to others, for their use, upon agreement or in confidence of having the like liquors returned again, be a sale thereof; wherefore, for removing all such doubts,—

Be it enacted,

[SECT. 9.] That all wine, rum, brandy and other spirituous liquors, lent or delivered to others for their use, upon such like consideration, is, and shall be deemed and taken to be, an absolute sale thereof. And that every person not licenced as aforesaid, that shall order, allow, permit or connive at the selling wine, rum, brandy or distilled spirits, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, by his or their child or children, servant or servants, or any other person or persons in or belonging to his or her house or family, shall be deemed and taken to be the seller of such liquors, and be subject to the aforesaid pains and penalties provided against such offenders, and shall be recovered in like manner: provided, that if it shall be made appear that the liquors lent or delivered as aforesaid, shall have had the duty paid upon them, or were purchased of any person or persons having licence or permit, the person lending or delivering the same, as aforesaid, shall not be subject to the aforesaid pains and penalties.

Preamble.

And whereas divers other persons than those licenced to sell rum and other distilled spirits by retail, have heretofore supplied persons employed by them in the fishery, building vessel[1]s, and in other business, with rum and other liquors, without paying any excise thereon, and thereby have defrauded the government of the duty of excise, and have not been subject to the penalty provided by law against selling drink without licence, and the same practice will probably be continued, unless effectual care be taken to prevent the same,—

Be it therefore further enacted,

Persons not licensed supplying those employed by them in the fishery, &c., with spirituous liquors, to be deemed sellers.

[SECT. 10.] That all persons not licenced, as aforesaid, who hereafter shall, by themselves, or by any other person or persons under them, or by their order, allowance or connivance, supply any person or persons by them employed in the fishery, building of vessel[1]s, or in any other business or [i][e]mploy, with wine, rum or other distilled spirits, shall be deemed and taken to be sellers of such liquors, and be subjected to the aforesaid pains and penalties provided against persons selling any of the liquors aforesaid without licence, which shall be recovered in the like manner, unless they make it appear that such wine, rum or other distilled spirits, was purchased of a taverner, innholder or retailer, or other person or persons that had licence or permit to sell the same.

And be it further enacted,

One witness sufficient for conviction.

[SECT. 11.] That when any person shall be charged with selling strong drink without licence, one witness produced to the satisfaction of the court or justice before whom the trial is, shall be deemed sufficient for conviction. And when and so often as it shall be observed that there is a resort of persons to houses suspected of selling strong drink without licence, any justice of the peace in the same county, shall have full power to convene such persons before him, and examine them upon oath concerning the persons suspected of selling or retailing strong drink in such houses, outhouses or other dependencies thereof; and if upon examination of such witnesses, and hearing the defence of such suspected person, it shall appear to the justice there is sufficient proof of the violation of this act by selling strong drink without licence, judgment may thereupon be made up against such person, and he shall forfeit and pay in like manner as if process had been commenced by bill, plaint or information before the said justice; or otherwise such justice may bind over the person suspected, and the witnesses, to the next court of general sessions of the peace for the county where such person shall dwell.

And be it further enacted,

Penalty for selling strong drink to negroes, mulattoes, &c.

[SECT. 12.] That when and so often as any person shall be charged with selling strong drink without licence to any negro, Indian or mollat[t]o slave, or to any child or other person under the age of discretion, and other circumstances concurring, it shall appear to be highly probable in the judgment of the court or justice before whom the trial shall be, that the person complained of is guilty, then, and in every such case, unless the defendant shall acquit him- or herself upon oath (to be administered to him or her by the court or justice that shall try the cause), such defendant shall forfeit and pay four pounds to the farmer of excise, and costs of prosecution; but if the defendant shall acquit him- or herself upon oath as aforesaid, the court or justice may and shall enter up judgment for the defendant to recover costs.

And be it further enacted,

Penalty on persons refusing to give evidence.

pear before the court of general sessions of the peace, or other court proper to try the same, to give evidence on the trial of any person informed against, presented or indicted for selling strong drink without licence, and shall neglect or refuse to appear, or to give evidence in that behalf, every person so offending shall forfeit the sum of twenty pounds and cost of prosecution; the one half of the penalty aforesaid to be to his majesty for the use of the farmer, and the other half to and for the use of him or them who shall sue for the same as aforesaid. And when it shall so happen that witnesses are bound to sea before the sitting of the court where any person or persons informed against, for selling strong drink without licence, is or are to be prosecuted for the same, in every such case, the deposition of any witness or witnesses, in writing, taken before any two of his majesty's justices of the peace, quorum unus, and sealed up and delivered into court, the adverse party having first had a notification, in writing, sent to him or her of the time and place of caption, shall be esteemed as sufficient evidence, in law, to convict any person or persons offending against this act, as if such witness or witnesses had been present at the time of trial, and given his, her or their deposition viva voce; and every person or persons who shall be summoned to give evidence before two justices of the peace, in manner as aforesaid, and shall neglect or refuse to appear, or to give evidence relating to the facts he or she shall be enquired of, shall be liable and subject to the same penalty as he or she would have been by virtue of this act, for not appearing, or neglecting or refusing to give his or her evidence before the grand jury or court as aforesaid.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 14.] That all fines, forfeitures and penalties arising by this act shall and may be recovered by bill, plaint or information, before any court of record proper to try the same; and, where the sum forfeited doth not exceed four pounds, by bill, plaint or information before any one of his majesty's justices of the peace in the respective counties where such offence shall be committed: which said justice is hereby impowered to try and determine the same. And said justice shall make a fair entry or record of all such proceedings: saving always to any person or persons who shall think him-, her- or themselves aggrieved by the sentence or determination of the said justice, liberty of appeal therefrom to the next court of general sessions of the peace to be holden in and for said county, at which court such offence shall be finally determined: provided, that in said appeal the same rules be observed as are already required, by law, in appeals from justices, to the court of general sessions of the peace: saving, only, that the recognizance for prosecuting the appeal shall be eight pounds.

How fines are to be recovered.

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 15.] That every farmer shall settle all accounts relating to said excise in the county where he is farmer, first giving seasonable and publick notice of the time and place or places where said business shall be transacted.

[SECT. 16.] That one or more person or persons, to be nominated and appointed by the general court, for and within the several counties within this province, publick notice being first given of the time and place and occasion of their meeting, shall have full power, and are hereby authorized, from time to time, to contract or agree with any person for or concerning the farming the duties in this act mentioned, upon rum and other the liquors and commodities aforesaid, in the respective counties for which they shall be appointed, as may be for the greatest profit and advantage of the publick, so as the same exceed not the term of one year after the commencement of this act; and every farmer, or his dep-

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 27.] That from and after the commencement of this act, in all causes where any claimer shall appear, and shall not make good the claim, the charges of prosecution shall be born and paid by the said claimer, and not by the informer. [Passed April 20; published April 21, 1756.]

NOTES.—There were eight sessions of the General Court this year. The third session was convened, upon an extraordinary emergency, on the fifth of September, while the Assembly stood prorogued to September twenty-fourth. To remove any possible doubt as to the legality of the acts of the Assembly during this session, chapter 17 was enacted. See further on this subject, the note to chapter 17, post.

All the acts of this year were printed (chapters 15 and 47 separately) except the private acts, the titles of which are as follows:—

“An Act to dissolve the Marriage of Mary Parker with Phineas Parker, and to allow her to marry again.” [Passed and published June 10, 1755.]

“An Act to dissolve the Marriage of John Farnum jun<sup>r</sup> with Elisabeth Farnum, and to allow him to marry again.” [Passed April 20, 1756.]

The engrossments of all these acts are preserved, except the private act last named, which has not been discovered.

The acts of the first and second sessions, including the private act first above named were certified for transmission, Nov. 25, 1755, and were delivered by the agent of the province, to the clerk of the Privy Council, in waiting, Feb. 24, 1756. On the second of March, they were read, in council, and referred to a committee. On the sixth of March they were referred, by this committee, to the Lords of Trade, and the latter, on the ninth of March, ordered them to be sent to Mr. Lamb for his opinion thereon in point of law.

The acts of the subsequent sessions were certified for transmission, in June, 1756, and were delivered to the clerk of the Privy Council, in waiting, August 12, 1756. On the thirteenth, they were referred to a committee, and on the eighteenth they were, in turn, referred by this committee, to the Lords of Trade, who, on the seventh of October, read this order of the committee and were thereupon informed by the secretary of the Board that the acts had been sent “in the usual manner, to Sir Matthew Lamb for his Opinion thereupon in point of Law.”

Sir Matthew Lamb's report is dated Oct. 10, 1757, and contains no objection to either of the acts of this year, except to chapter 38, and the private act last above named.

All the acts of this year, with others, came up for consideration by the Board of Trade, in their meetings of May 12 and 30, 1758. At the former of these meetings, at which the late governor, Shirley, was present by invitation, the draught of a representation was ordered, and, at the latter, the draught was agreed to and ordered to be transcribed.

This representation sets forth that chapters 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 22, 25, 28, 29, 30, 31, 33, 34, 36, 37, 40, 44, 45, and 47 “appear to have been passed for Temporary services, and are either expired by their own limitation or the purposes for which they were enacted have been completed”; that chapters 27, 42 and 46, “relative to the raising or borrowing monies for defraying the expences of Military and other public services have in great measure taken effect, but the execution of several provisions therein contained in which the public faith of the Province is greatly interested remains still to be completed, for this reason and as Sir Matthew Lamb, one of His Majesty's Counsel at Law, whose opinion has been taken on these Acts has no objection to any of them in point of law, We would humbly propose that they may receive His Majesty's Royal Confirmation”; and that chapters 9, 10, 17, 21, 23, 24, 26, 32, 35, 38, 39, and 43 “relate to the internal Economy of the Province and appear to have been enacted for it's private convenience, and We see no reason why His Majesty may not be graciously pleased to confirm them.”

Accordingly, an order was passed, in Council, June 16, 1758, confirming chapters 9, 10, 17, 21, 23, 24, 26, 27, 32, 35, 38, 39, 42, 43 and 46.

It will be noticed that in neither the representation of the Board of Trade, nor the Order in Council, is mention made of chapter 41. Still another bill passed its several stages in both branches of the legislature, was signed by the Governor April 21, and, if the memorandum on the engrossment is correct, was actually published, April 22, 1756, but has not been found among the printed acts, nor was it included in the list transmitted to the Home Government. For this bill and other matters relating thereto, see note to chapter 40, post.

Chap. 4. The votes and orders of the Assembly, and the speeches, messages, and proclamations of the Governor relative to the measures adopted to prevent the encroachments of the French, are too numerous and intricate to be given in full as notes to the acts of the Assembly, which they serve to illustrate.

It may, however, be proper to note, with regard to the first expedition against Crown Point, which drew so largely from the treasury of the province, and in which so many soldiers of the province enlisted, that, as soon as the expedition against Nova Scotia was well under way, Governor Shirley began to develop a plan of operations on the western frontiers, substantially identical with the plan successfully conducted on a larger scale by Major General Amherst in 1759.

In a speech to both branches of the Assembly, Feb. 13, 1755, the Governor represented that the projected expedition against Nova Scotia, by diverting the French from the exclusive pursuit of their operations in the south and west, afforded a most favorable opportunity for "building a fort upon the rocky eminence near Crown Point which may command the French fort there," and set forth the advantages of this position as the key to the reduction of Canada, and the expulsion of the French from the Continent in case of a rupture with France. He also declared that this expedition would require a considerable force, but, on the other hand, would perhaps save a long and expensive war; and that if he had neglected seasonably to point out this opportunity and to warn the people of their danger, he would have been guilty of a breach of vigilance which it was his duty to keep.

This speech was referred, the next day, to a committee of sixteen members of the house and twelve of the council, with instructions to sit forthwith. On the fifteenth, and while this committee were sitting, a message was received from the Governor containing intelligence which arrived the night before, from Brigadier Dwight, that the French were attempting to build a fort at the carrying-place beyond Crown Point, and declaring that it would be too late, if the French were allowed to complete this fort, to attempt the measures proposed in his speech of the 13th, and concluding, "I hope, Gentlemen, you will not lose an Hour's Time in considering and coming to a Determination upon what I have recommended to you."

The committee reported the same day, that, while they were aware that the country of which the Governor proposed to take possession lay beyond the bounds of the province as lately defined, and that there were other governments which would be more benefited by the expedition than would Massachusetts, still the measure seemed more likely to assist the movements at the south and east than the addition of an equal force to the expeditions already contemplated against Nova Scotia, and the French on the Ohio. The committee, however, could not, in view of the burdens already resting on the province, recommend any present appropriation, but expressed the hope that the inability of the province to defray the charges of this expedition would not discourage the Governor from its prosecution.

The Governor replied immediately in another message, ostensibly to remove the impression that he had authority to organize and conduct this expedition at the expense of the Crown, or even to give assurance that the Home Government would deem it reasonable to assume such an expense.

He reminded them, however, that the expenses of the capture of Louisbourg had been reimbursed without any previous arrangement or promise, and intimated that his own personal influence would be exercised in their behalf, whenever the opportunity was presented.

On the 17th, this last message was referred to the same committee, which on the 18th, submitted a report, an extract from which is hereunder given, together with the draught of a message to the Governor, which is given in full:—

“February 18, 1755. The Committee’s Report on the Governour’s Speech of the 13th & Message of the 15th Cmt<sup>r</sup>”

The Committee to whom was refer’d the Consideration of his Excellency’s Messages of the 13th & 15th Instant, having maturely deliberated thereon, report as their Opinion;—

That the attempting to erect a strong Fort upon the Eminence near to the French Fort at Crown Point, or upon some other Parts of his Majesty’s Lands, not far distant from the said Fort, is a Measure highly necessary to be forthwith pursued, in order to secure his Majesty’s Territories from any further Encroachments of the French, and remove such Encroachments as have been already made.

That in Order to erecting such a Fortress, and to repel any Force that may be brought to oppose the erecting of the same, and to revenge any Hostilities or Insults that may be offered, during the Execution of this Design, an Army of at least Five Thousand Men will be necessary,

That His Excellency the Governour be desired, forthwith to make the necessary Preparation for such an Expedition, to appoint & commissionate a General Officer to command the same; To advise his Majesty’s other Governments hereafter mentioned of this Design, and in such Manner as he shall think most effectual to urge them to join therein, and to raise their respective Proportion of Men as follows; viz<sup>t</sup> New Hampshire Six hundred Men, Connecticut One Thousand, Rhode Island Four hundred, New York Eight hundred, or such larger Proportion as each Government shall think proper.

That His Excellency be desired to endeavour, that his own Regiment or Sir William Pepperills, or both, be employed in this Service.

That as soon as it shall appear that the said Number of Five Thousand Men, including those from this Province, shall be agreed to be raised, His Excellency be desired to cause to be enlisted Twelve hundred Men, * * *

That His Excellency be desired likewise to make Application to the Government of New Jersey to raise an additional Number of Men in Proportion to the Circumstances of that Government to be employed in the Service afores<sup>d</sup> and also to the Government of Pensylvania, urging them to contribute a Quantity of Provision to be transported to Albany for the Service of the Army. By Order of J. OSBORNE.

In the House of Representatives, Read & Accepted. In Council; Read & Concur’d.”

—Council Records, vol. XX., p. 401.

“February 18, 1755. Committee’s Report of a Message to the Governour on the Affair of Crown Point,

May it please your Excellency,—
From a Sense of Duty & Loyalty to his Majesty, and of the indispensable Obligations we are under, by all Ways and Means in our Power to promote his Majesty’s Interest, and to defeat the Designs of his Enemies, we have come into a Resolution to desire your Excellency to engage in an Attempt to erect a Fortress near to the French Fort at Crown Point, and to repel and revenge any Hostilities that may be offered to his Majesty’s Forces while they are employed in this Service; And we have done this in humble Trust & Confidence, that his Majesty will be graciously pleased to relieve us from the Charge of this Undertaking; your Excellency very justly observes that our Case is distinguished from that of other Governments; For should we sit still, and those Governments take upon themselves the whole Burthen of this Attempt; Yet, even their Charge would fall far short of their Proportion to what we have already sustained since these last Commotions raised by the French,

And although your Excellency has been pleased to tell us that you have no Authority from his Majesty to defray the Charge of the proposed Expedition, yet we depend upon your Excellency’s humble Application to his Majesty in our behalf,

We assure your Excellency that, at all Events, we will not leave your Excellency to be a Sufferer by any Engagements made at our desire; But we are sensible that unless his Majesty shall be graciously pleased to enable us to defray our part of the Charge of this Expedition, we shall necessarily be involved in Difficulties so great, that we despair of being extricated from them for a long Course of Years to come.

In the House of Representatives; Read & Ordered that Mr Tyng, Col<sup>o</sup> Brattle, Col<sup>o</sup> Choat, Col<sup>o</sup> Otis, and Col<sup>o</sup> Laurence with such as the hon<sup>ble</sup> Board shall join be a Committee to present this Address to His Excellency the Governour. In Council; Read & Concur’d, And John Osborne, Jacob Wendell, Samuel Watts & Sylvanus Bourn Esq<sup>rs</sup> are joined in the Affair.”—Ibid., p. 402.

On the 25th of March, the Governor, in a speech to the Assembly, reported the result of applications made by his order to other governments to secure their co-operation, and also other matters of importance relating to the expedition, and laid before them the letters and other papers relating thereto. This speech was immediately referred to a committee, and on the next day the committee made a partial report, asking leave to sit again. Among other things, they reported that the Governor be requested forthwith to issue his proclamation encouraging the enlistment of forces for the expedition, and also that he be requested to secure the co-operation of as many of the Indians of the Six Nations as practicable.

On the 27th, the following vote was passed:—

“March 26, 1755. In the House of Representatives; Voted that Mr Speaker, Mr Welles Col<sup>o</sup> Brattle, Mr James Bowdoin, Capt Williams and Mr James Russell with such as the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board shall join, be a Committee on the part of this Government to provide for the intended Expedition to the Westward a sufficient Quantity of Provisions and Warlike Stores, and other Things necessary; and that the Committee in procuring the same give the Preference to the Inhabitants and the Produce of this Province:—In Council; Read & Concur’d; And John Osborne Jacob Wendell, Samuel Watts, Ezekiel Chever, John Wheelwright, and Thomas Hutchinson Esq<sup>rs</sup> are joined in the Affair:—Consented to by the Governour.”—Council Records, vol. XX., p. 427.

On the 28th, the Governor sent another message to both houses, calling attention to the vote of the previous session authorizing him to issue his proclamation for raising the Massachusetts quota, exclusive of the forces to be raised in New York, as soon as he should be informed of the consent of the other New England Governments to the proposed expedition, and declaring that advices from New York gave him no encouragement to hope that any men would be raised there (although he had every reason to expect that province would bear its part of the expense of the expedition) and giving notice that he should give orders for raising enough more men than had been assigned to Massachusetts, to equal her proportion of the deficiency caused by this failure of New York.

The next day the Assembly passed an order granting an additional bounty to soldiers enlisted, and fixing the limits of their service, and requesting the Governor to issue his proclamation accordingly. At the same time an order was passed for advanced pay to non-commissioned officers and privates, and also the following vote:—

“March 29, 1755. In the House of Representatives, Voted that His Excellency the Captain General be desired to enlist three hundred able bodied, effective Men for the Expedition to Crown Point, in addition to the twelve hundred already granted; & that they have the same Bounty & Wages in all Respects, as those heretofore ordered:—In Council; Read & Concur'd;—Consented to by the Governour.”—Council Records, vol. XX., p. 432.

These votes and orders were followed by the Governor's proclamation of March 29th, which offered all the inducements to volunteers that had been promised in the votes and orders of the General Court, and on the same day an act to empower the province treasurer to borrow £5,000 to defray the expenses of the expedition westward, was signed by the Governor. (1754-55, chap. 32.)

At the same time an address to His Majesty for reimbursement was ordered to be prepared, and this order was consented to by the Governor.

General Braddock having arrived in Virginia, as commander-in-chief of the American forces, Governor Shirley was summoned thither to a conference with him and Commodore Keppel in which the representatives of other colonies joined. The Governor had communicated to the Assembly, at the opening of the 4th session, his intention to attend this conference, and soon after its close he left the province, to which he did not return until the thirteenth of May.

Meanwhile the enlistments proceeded, additional bounties being granted by an order of the General Court which was promulgated in a proclamation by the Lieutenant-Governor, and an increase of pay and rations for both officers and men was agreed upon.

At the opening of the next session, in a speech to the Assembly, the Governor informed them that both the eastern and western expeditions had met with the entire approbation of the General, and that everything necessary on his part for forwarding them had been immediately done. He then proceeded to disclose the plans of Braddock's campaign, including, besides the attack of the forts on the Ohio, the reduction of those at Niagara, which last undertaking had been intrusted to Shirley, to be carried on with two regiments already enlisted as regulars by authority of the Crown, and under the respective commands of himself and Sir Wm. Pepperel. The latter regiment was already in motion, and the former he expected to embark for Albany in a few days, and to follow it in person by the middle of June at furthest.

Finding that Pepperel's regiment would not, from its incompleteness, and by reason of losses from details for other purposes, furnish an available force of over four hundred men, the Governor, on his return from the south, had applied for and received from the government of New Jersey a re-enforcement of five hundred men, and now asked the Assembly of his own province if it would not be wise to have his corps of nineteen hundred men increased. This he hoped might be done without weakening the movement against Crown Point; but, at all events, he should proceed against Niagara, whether his force were increased or not. He also submitted letters and other papers from General Johnson in command of the expedition against Crown Point, calling for immediate action, and asked that the pay for officers in command of the Indian allies should be fixed, that provision should be made for building proper storehouses between Albany and the carrying-place to Crown Point, also for building batteaux and other vessels and constructing a road nearly twenty miles in length, and made the following call on the house for an appropriation:—

“Gentlemen of the House of Representatives—I must recommend it to you, forthwith to make the needful Supplies; for which Purpose I shall order the Committee of War to lay an Estimate before you of what Sums will be wanting to defray the Expence of the Expedition, & the Treasurer to lay before you a State of the Treasury.”—Extract from the Governor's speech to both houses, May 30, 1755.—Council Records, vol. XX., p. 455.

The speech containing this recommendation was immediately referred to two joint committees, one of which, charged with the consideration of that part of the speech which relates to the several expeditions against the French, was ordered to sit forthwith.

This committee reported May 31st, approving the expedition against Niagara, and recommending that as many of the forces raised for the Crown Point expedition as the Governor should deem necessary, be employed in the first-named service, during the term of their enlistment, provided the province should be free from the expense of their transportation and subsistence; that the other governments concerned in the expedition against Crown Point should raise no objection; that the soldiers should voluntarily enlist in this service; and that not less than thirty-seven hundred men, exclusive of the Indians, should be engaged in the expedition against Crown Point. This report was accepted by both branches, and consented to by the Governor.

On the second of June the Governor sent another Message to the Assembly, disclaiming any thought of reducing the force to be employed against Crown Point; but observing that affairs between the English and French in America, were in a different position from what they had been, inasmuch as the design of the enemy, now, was not to harass any particular colony, but to extirpate the whole, and that the plan communicated by him in his speech at the beginning of the session was calculated to frustrate the enemy's extensive operations. He therefore asked the Assembly to consider, whether it was not necessary to increase the New England forces in order to serve the general interest, without regard to their own particular situation, seeing that the Assembly had, in their vote of May 31st, agreed that the movement against Niagara was an important part of the proposed plan, but yet had made their support of that movement conditional upon the securing a full complement of men to be engaged against Crown Point, while it was uncertain whether the other colonies would contribute their full quotas towards that expedition,—which left it doubtful if, under that vote, the expedition to Niagara would receive any considerable addition.

A committee was immediately appointed to draught an answer to the Governor's message, but before they reported, a vote was passed by both branches, and received the Governor's signature, "that there shall be no augmentation of the Provincial forces raised for the expedition to Crown Point."

On the third of June the committee's report was presented and acted upon as follows:—

"The Committee appointed to prepare a proper Answer to His Excellency's Message of the second Instant, reported the following Draught; Viz<sup>t</sup>,

May it please Your Excellency,

We have considered with Attention your Excellency's Message of Yesterday, We are fully sensible of the formidable Designs of the French against his Majesty's Territories upon this Continent, and we think that the Plan which your Excellency has communicated to us, if the several Parts of it can be properly supported, is well calculated to defeat them. The Expedition to Crown Point, now made a Part of this Plan, has been undertaken by the Governments in New England, & those of New York, & New Jersey, with a Contribution of Provisions from Pennsylvania; and your Excellency cannot wonder if we think ourselves in some Measure, peculiarly obliged to make all necessary Provision for the Success of it. About one third of the Forces to be employed in it are in the Pay of this Province. This is undoubtedly more than our Proportion, whether we consider our Estates or the Number of our Inhabitants; & it is much more so, if any Regard be had to the very great Charges, to which we are exposed for our Defence. The Forces raised by New Jerseys have since been destined for Niagara; and we have Consented that your Excellency on certain Conditions should employ part of the other Forces in the same Service, but we don't apprehend it will be safe to make any further Reduction. We agree with your Excellency that the Colonies have one common Interest at Stake; and that a Defeat of the Forces, wherever it may happen, may be of fatal Consequence. We wish the Governments to the Southward had contributed to this General Interest, in Proportion, as those to the Northward have done; If this had been the Case no Additional Force wd now be wanting. As for this Province, It is the Opinion of the best Judges that at least an eighth part of the Males capable of bearing Arms, including every Rank & Order of Men, have enlisted into the Service, to act offensively against the Enemy; and the Defence of our Frontiers, which are already attacked, will require a large Number of those that remain. We have taken as many Men into our Pay as we can find either Money or Credit to Support; And it is utterly impossible for us to comply with your Excellency's Proposal; or to make any further Addition to the Forces to be employed in one or other of the Expeditions: At the same time we are sensible of the Necessity that the Expedition to Niagara should be well supported; and it is not only a Regard to your Excellency's Person, who has undertook in the Command of it but a real Concern for His Majesty's Service, <sup>we</sup> makes us wish that your Excellency had it in your Power to strengthen it to any other Parts of the Plan, & to increase the Forces in some other Way than by the Assistance of this Government.

In Council; Read & Ordered that this Report be Accepted; & that Mr Danforth & Dr Pyncheon, with such as the Hon<sup>ble</sup> House shall join be a Committee to wait on His Excellency therewith,—In the House of Representatives; Read & Concur'd, & Mr Cooper, Mr James Bowdoin & Mr Tyng are joined in the Affair."—Council Records, vol. XX, p. 460.

On the fifth of June, the Governor sent another message to the Assembly, calling attention to the latter part of his opening speech, in which he urged the necessity of providing supplies for carrying on the war, and on the next day sent still another message accompanied by an extract from a letter which he had received the night before from the Governor of Connecticut, containing proposals respecting the provisions contributed by Pennsylvania. On these proposals the Governor asked the immediate action of the Assembly, so that he might send an answer by the return of the express. He also intimated his wish to send by the same express an account of their doings upon the subjects contained in the letter of Maj. Gen. Johnson, and urged the necessity of immediate action thereupon, so "that he [Johnson] and the Colonies may know it."

The conclusion of this message, and the action of the Assembly thereupon, were as follows:—

"The Season is so far advanced, & the Forces destined to Crown Point should keep Pace with those designed for Niagara, in order to secure as much as may be the Success of both Expeditions. The first Division of the latter of these Forces will march on Monday next for Providence, in the Colony of Rhode Island where Transports are waiting for them, & they will be all embarked in seven days from that Time, & sail for Albany, & from thence proceed directly for Oswego; Their Battoes for transporting them & their Stores being in such Forwardness as to be ready to receive them upon their arrival at Schenectady.

I would not mention to you how much General Johnson's Success in engaging the Indians depends upon your making Provision for that Purpose.

In the House of Representatives; Read & Ordered that Col<sup>o</sup> Lawrence, Col<sup>o</sup> Williams, Capt Livermore, Mr Tyng & Mr Taylour with such as the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Board shall join, be a Committee to take the foregoing Message from His Excellency under Consideration, together with the Extracts from Governour Wentworth's & Governour Fitch's Letters, & report thereon; & that the Committee be directed to sit forthwith;—In Council; Read & Concur'd, & John Otis, Thomas Hutchinson, Elcazer Porter & William Brattle Esq<sup>rs</sup> are joined in the Affair.”—Extract from the Governor's Message to both houses.—Council Records, vol. XX., p. 464.

On the ninth of June, the bill for supplying the treasury with fifty thousand pounds was passed to be engrossed, and was signed by the Governor two days later.

Chap. 6. “June 13, 1755. A Message was brought up from the House of Representatives, by Robert Hooper Esq<sup>r</sup> & others to acquaint his Excellency, that the House were informed, that there were divers Vessels, now loading at Newbury, with Provisions, (supposed to be designed for the French) under the Pretext of Carrying them to Newfoundland; and therefore desiring His Excellency, to give effectual Orders for preventing all Vessels, laden with Provisions or Warlike Stores from sailing out of any Place in this Province, untill further Order, and that he would write to the Governours of the other Colonies to do the same, & to the Commanding Officer at Newfoundland, to use his best Endeavours to prevent this Trade.”—Council Records, vol. XX., p. 478.

“June 14, 1755. In Council; Voted that William Brattle Esq<sup>r</sup> with such as the Hon<sup>ble</sup> House shall join, be a Committee to wait on His Excellency, desiring him to acquaint the other Governments with what this Court hath done, respecting the transportation of Provisions, and Warlike Stores out of this Province, & to urge them to join in the same Measures;—In the House of Representatives; Read & Concur'd, and Mr. Cooper and Mr. Tyng are joined in the Affair.”—Ibid., p. 484.

“August 16, 1755. In the House of Representatives, Whereas the House are informed that by the Acts of the Southern Governments Vessels are restrained from clearing out for this Province with Provisions; Which Prohibition may occasion a great Scarcity of Provisions among us, and thereby not only distress our own Inhabitants, but render it very difficult for the Government to supply our Forces; Therefore, Voted that His Honour the Lieutenant Governour be desired to [write] to the Southern Governments, desiring of them that Liberty may be given to any Vessels bound to the Ports of Boston or Salem to clear out for those Ports with Provisions, sufficient Security being first given that the same shall be landed at one or the other of the said Ports; In Council; Read & Concur'd.”—Ibid., p. 524.

“The Secretary delivered the following Message from his Excellency;
Gentlemen of the Council & House of Representatives,

By the French Vessels hovering upon our Coast, it seems highly probable, that they are very short of Provisions at Louisbourgh & other Northern Parts; and in these Circumstances there is nothing (under God) can have a greater Tendency to promote the Success of our Enterprizes, now on Foot, than effectually to prevent the French from receiving any Supplies from the English in these Parts. And as there are so many persons among us that are so false to the Interests of their Country, & so mad after this pernicious Trade, that no Laws will restrain them; and as there are divers small Harbours especially on our Eastern Coast, where these Traders may meet with the French Vessels & Carry on the Trade without Discovery, I must recommend it to you to provide for the Charge of a small, armed Vessel, sufficiently manned to cruize upon our Coast, in Parts most suspected; that they may intercept the Traders in this unlawful & mischievous Commerce: And whatsoever may be lawfully done for encouraging the Commander & Company of such armed Vessel out of the Captures & Seizures, made by them & legally condemned, I shall readily join with you in the proper Way of providing for it.

Gentlemen, This Affair requires the greatest Dispatch. In the House of Representatives; Read & Ordered that the foregoing Message be committed to the Committee appointed Yesterday to project some more effectual Method to prevent Supplies of Provisions & Warlike Stores being carried to the French; for Consideration, & that they report what they think proper for this Court to do thereon, & that the said Committee sit forthwith.—In Council; Read & Concur'd.”—Ibid., p. 494.

“June 19, 1755. Report of the Committee on his Excellency's Message referring to a Guard Vessel for Preventing the carrying Provisions to the French. “September 5, 1755. Mr Speaker and the House being accordingly come up, His Honour made the following Speech to both Houses, viz<sup>t</sup>

Gentlemen of the Council & House of Representatives, I have received late Advices from Major General Johnson which I shall order to be laid before you: And they are of such Importance, that I could by no Means think it proper to delay communicating them, to you until the Time to which the General Court stood prorogued; And therefore I have called you together in a Manner somewhat extraordinary, but yet absolutely necessary for the publick Service

You will perceive, Gentlemen, That, not only the Provincial Forces fall Short of the proposed Number, but also that there is a probability of a much greater Forces prepared to resist them than we ever imagined that there would be; and altho our Troops appear to be animated with true Courage, and to be zealously bent to maintain the Honour of their King, and to remove and prevent all Encroachments upon his Majesty's Dominions, yet it will be Presumption to suffer them to engage with any great Inequality of Numbers, when we have it in our Power to prevent it.

I must therefore most earnestly recommend it to you to come into some vigorous & speedy Resolution, which may enable me to raise an additional Number of Men to join our other Forces without any Delay. I leave you to consider what Encouragement is proper & what Measures are necessary to be taken: But certainly something further must be done than has yet been done; for I have not been able to compleat the Eight hundred Men you desired me to raise in your last Session, notwithstanding my utmost Endeavours for that Purpose.

The Secretary laid before the two Houses the Letters received from Major General Johnson, referred to in his Honour's Speech, with other publick Letters received in the Recess of the Court.

Chap. 17. "The Massachusetts assembly stood prorogued to the 24th of September. The lieutenant-governor was advised to order a special session, by proclamation, on the 5th. There had been no precedent for this in the province. Recourse was had to precedents in parliamentary proceedings. When the Dutch threatened an invasion in 1657, King Charles II., having prorogued the parliament to October 10th, called, by proclamation, an intermediate session on the 25th of July. The Dutch did what mischief they could, and withdrew their ships. The parliament was again prorogued to the 10th of October, and, as no business was done, there was no room to call in question the validity of any proceedings.

The necessity of the case induced Mr. Phipps to comply with the advice given him, and the assembly, having sat every day, Sunday included, from the 5th to the 9th, and made provision for raising two thousand men as an additional force, were prorogued on the 10th of October; * when it was thought proper, by an act passed for that purpose, to establish all the proceedings of the intermediate session. Some of the council opposed this measure, lest it should be urged, in future time, as an objection to the proceedings of any intermediate session, and sufficient ground for a refusal to obey them, which might be of very bad consequence."—*Hutchinson's Hist. The Two Houses have reassumed the Consideration of further prosecuting an Expedition against the French Fort at Crown Point, & the other Encroachments made upon his Majesty's Territories adjacent, and they are willing in conjunction with the other Governments to come into any reasonable measures for raising a Sufficient Force for this Province—They have tried every method they could conceive of to obtain an immediate Supply of Money for the Payment of the Wages of the Soldiers in the last Expedition, but all to no purpose—whilst those Troops remain unpaid, they think that any attempt for a new Enlistment would be altogether Fruitless: and indeed they are unable to raise money even for the Bounty for such Enlistment—

We have all imaginable reason to depend on a Reimbursement from His Majesty but untill it be actually granted & received we cannot apply it to the Payment of the Debts We have contracted, or to any future Service—Our dependence is upon your Excellency—If a sufficient Sum can be advanced for the Payment of the Soldiers employed last Year, & for a suitable Bounty to such Forces as it shall be found necessary to employ the ensuing year We will immediately proceed to the doing every thing requisite on our part towards the raising such Forces; but unless such Sum can be advanced, we are very sure that it will be in vain to attempt it."—*Message from both houses to the Governor, Council Records, vol. Gentlemen of the Council & House of Representatives:

It is of the utmost Importance that the great Affair under your Consideration should be determined upon without delay, & prosecuted with the greatest Diligence & Vigour—That I may not be the means of losing a Minutes time. I send you an immediate Answer to your Message to me this Morning; and seeing Gentlemen that no other way can be found for the Payment of the Men employed the last Year, and for the Bounty that will be necessary upon a new Enlistment, except that of borrowing from me Moneys committed to my Trust, for the Service of his Majesty's Forces, rather than there should be a failure, or any further delay on the part of this Province I consent to Advance to you a Sum for the Purposes you desire; Provided it shall not exceed Thirty Thousand Pounds Sterling which is the most I am able to engage: I have no reason to think his Majesty ever expected any part of the Money sent over would be employed in this manner; And altho I doubt not when the necessity of this measure is properly represented that His Majesty will approve of my Conduct, yet I think it proper that you should by an Act of the Government secure to me the Repayment of the Sum advanced out of the first Moneys that shall be granted either by His Majesty or the Parliament of Great Britain for the use of this Province; And that in the same Act you make Provision for a Tax to be Levied in the Years 1757. & 1758, for the whole sum borrowed, such Tax to be a Collateral Security for the Repayment thereof, in case there should not be a Grant of Money, or that it should not arrive here before those Years; and that you enable the Province Treasurer to give me a proper Receipt for the Money to be advanced.

I intreat you Gentlemen to lay aside all private Business & let this most Weighty & interesting Affair take up your whole Attention."—Ibid., p. 89.

"February 25, 1756. The following Message was sent from the Board to the House of Representatives by Sir William Pepperell Bart<sup>t</sup> Jacob Wendell & Sylvanus Bourne Esq<sup>rs</sup>—

The Board are fully of Opinion that the Prospect of Success in the proposed Expedition very much depends on its being carried into Execution as early as possible; and that a few days delay of any necessary measures may be the occasion of a fatal Disappointment This Consideration has Caused the Board to give all the dispatch in their Power to every thing that has come before them relating to the Expedition; and in a particular manner the Bill for Supply of the Treasury was past on by the Board immediately on its being sent from the Hon<sup>ble</sup> House; And the House by a Message from the Board the 21st instant were informed that the said Bill was Engross'd, & only waited the Formality of being enacted, notwithstanding which it has not since been returned to the Board."—Ibid., p. 105.

"February 27, 1756. "This objection he [Shirley] obviated too, by an offer to lend the province thirty thousand pounds sterling, out of the monies which had been remitted for the king's troops, and to repay himself out of the grant which it was expected parliament would make to the province for last year's charges; but with this caution, that an act of assembly should pass for levying a tax in the years 1757 and 1758, of thirty thousand pounds sterling, as a collateral security, the act to have no effect if the grant should be before made by parliament.

"February 7, 1756.

We beg leave further to represent to Your Excellency that about three Months ago a Vessel arrived at Boston from Nova Scotia full Freight'd with French Persons Inhabitants of that Province, whom the Governour & Council there in Concert with the Admirals of his Majestys Squadron then at Halifax, judg'd necessary to be removed and distributed thro his Majestys several Colonies upon the Continent; His Honour the Lieu<sup>t</sup> Governour with the Advice of the Council; soon after the Arrival of the said Vessel sent to M<sup>r</sup> Green one of the Council of Nova Scotia then at Boston, & also the Agents employ'd in hiring & paying the Charge of the Vessels in which the said Inhabitants were transported, to enquire whether any Provision was made for their Subsistence; But the said M<sup>r</sup> Green had received no Orders for that Purpose, and the Agents declined to continue the Subsistence after the Passengers landed, so that unless Provision had been made by this Government these unhappy People must have perished; And upon Information given that several other Vessels were design'd hither the Lieutenant Governour acquainted Governour Lawrence by Letters with the desire of the Two Houses that no more of said Inhabitants should be sent to this Province; but it does not appear that the said Letter arriv'd seasonably; and the other Vessels came in soon after; and about One Thousand Persons in the whole have been Land'd here; Application could not be made to your Excellency during your Absence; Therefore Orders were given to distribute the whole Number thro the several Towns, there to be supported until your Excellencies Return to your Government—

The receiving among Us so great a Number of Persons whose gross Bigotry to the Roman Catholick Religion is notorious & whose Loyalty to his Majesty [Lonis XV.] is a thing very disagreeable to Us, but as there seems to be a necessity for it We shall be ready to come into any reasonable Acts or Orders to enable & encourage them to provide for their own Maintenance; We humbly conceive that it will never be expected that in the meantime the Charge & Burthen of their Support should ly upon this Government—We must acquaint Your Excellency, that the Live Stock, Husbandry Tools & most of the Household Furniture of these People are left in the Province of Nova Scotia & that very few have brought with them any Goods or Estate of any kind sever—In the Southern Colonies where the Winters are more mild & Employments may be found so as to prevent any great Expence to the Governments; but here they are a dead weight, for many of our own Inhabitants are scarcely able to find Employ sufficient to support themselves during the Winter Season—

The Removal of the French Inhabitants from Nova Scotia seems to be as fully Connected with the Protection & Safety of that Province, as the removal of the Encroachments made by the Subjects of the French King; And We doubt not Your Excellency will think this matter comes under your immediate Care & direction in Consequence of the Commission you have lately received from his Majesty. Our other necessary & unavoidable Charges are as much as We can bear; We therefore earnestly Pray your Excellency to give such directions in this Affair as that this Government may be freed from any further Charge in Relation to it & reimburs'd the Sums already advanced—

"February 14, 1756.

With respect to the French Inhabitants sent hither from Nova Scotia which is the other part of the Subject of your Address: you seem to think yourselves that it was a necessary measure: I believe Governour Lawrence had no apprehensions that it would occasion any considerable Charge to this Province, or that it would be a disagreeable thing to have those People sent here: I am sorry it is likely to prove so burthensome: I have it not in my Power to Support them at the Charge of the Crown; you have a great deal of Encouragem<sup>t</sup> to depend on it that his Majesty will not suffer any unreasonable Burthen to ly upon any of his Colonies: I will make a full Representation of the State of this Affair & in such a manner as that I hope you will receive a favourable Answer, and I shall be ready to join with you in proper measures to enable & induce those Persons to provide for their own Support & that of their Families."—Extract from Governor's answer to the Address, ibid., p. 90.

The Committee appointed to consider what is proper to be done with regard to the Government of the Army in the intended Expedition against Crown Point beg leave to report, that a Regimental & general Court Martial be appointed in the Army, and that for this purpose, It be Enacted by this Court that the Commission Officers of every Regiment may by the Appointment of their Colonel or Commanding Officer hold a Regimental Court Martial for Inflicting such Corporal Punishments as the Neglect of Duty, Disorders in Quarters, or other such Crimes may deserve, which Regimental Court shall not consist of less than Five Commission Officers of which Two to be Captains, and the Judgment to be by them given shall be according to the Plurality of Voices; and the Sentence shall not be put in Execution until the Officer commanding the Regiment has confirmed and approved the same, And that it be likewise Enacted that there be a General Court Martial, which shall not consist of less than Thirteen Commission Officers under the Oath of Office, of which Seven to be field Officers, the President not to be under the degree of a Field Officer and the Sentence of this Court not to be put in Execution till Report be made of the whole Proceedings to the General Commanding in Chief, and his Directions signified thereon, and that a Bill be brought in accordingly & that the other Governments concerned in this Expedition be notified of this Act, and be desired to make like Provision for the Government of their several Forces in this Army

"April 20, 1756. A Bill entitled an Act for the Government of the Forces in the Expedition intended against Crown Point—Having been read three times in the House of Representatives, and there passed to be Engrossed—In Council; read a First & Second time and passed a Concurrence."—Ibid., p. 175.

The following is a copy of the engrossment of this Bill. As the province seal seems never to have been impressed upon the parchment as required by the charter, it is to be presumed that, for some reason, this act was purposely left incomplete, since it is hardly possible it could have been intentionally omitted from the list transmitted to the Privy Council, or have failed, either by accident or design, to have been included in any contemporary list or collection of the acts of the session in which it was passed. It is not unlikely that after signing the bill the Governor was convinced that this subject was properly within the exclusive province of the commander-in-chief whose forces were to be chiefly employed out of the provincial territory, and whose management of the army could not be controlled by regulations established by the legislatures of the respective colonies that had ordered levies for the army.

Rules for assessment.

[SECT. 2.] That the treasurer do forthwith send out his warrants, directed to the selectmen or assessors of each town or district within this province, requiring them, respectively, to assess the sum hereby set upon such town or district, in manner following; that is to say, to assess all rateable polls above the age of sixteen years, within their respective towns or districts, or next adjo[y][i]ning to them, belonging to no other town, [at] nine shillings per poll, and proportionably in assessing the additional sum received out of the treasury for the payment of the representatives (excepting the governo[u]r, the lieutenant-governo[u]r and their families, the president, fellows, professors and students of Harvard College, settled ministers and grammar-school masters, who are hereby exempted as well from being taxed for their polls, as for their estates being in their own hands and under their actual management and improvement; as also all the estate pertaining to Harvard College); and other persons, if such there be, who, thro[ugh] age, infirmity or extreme poverty, in the judgment of the assessors, are not able to pay towards publick charges, they may exempt their polls, and so much of their estates as in their prudence they shall think fit and judge meet.

[SECT. 3.] And the justices in their general sessions, in the respective counties assembled, in granting a county tax or assessment, are hereby ordered and directed to apportion the same on the several towns and districts in such county in proportion to their province rate, exclusive of what hath been paid out of the publick treasury to the representatives of each town for his service; and the assessors of each town in the province are also directed, in making an assessment, to govern themselves by the same rule; and all estates, both real and personal, lying within the limits of such town or district, or next unto the same, not paying elsewhere, in whose hands, tenure, occupation or possession the same is or shall be found, and also the incomes or profits which any person or persons, except as before excepted, do or shall receive from any trade, faculty, business or employment whatsoever, and all profits which shall or may arise by money or other estate not particularly otherwise assessed, or commissions of profit in their improvement, according to their understanding or cunning, at one penny on the pound; and to abate or multiply the same, if need be, so as to make up the sum set and ordered hereby for such town or district to pay; and, in making their assessment, to estimate houses and lands at six years' income of the yearly rents whereat the same may be reasonably set or let for in the place where they lye: saving all contracts between landlord and tenant, and where no contract is, the landlord to reimburse one half of the tax set upon such houses and lands; and to estimate negro, Indian and molatto servants proportionably as other personal estate, according to their sound judgment and discretion; as also to estimate every ox of four years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every cow of three years old and upwards, at thirty shillings; every horse and mare [at] [of] three years old and upwards, at forty shillings; every swine of one year old and upwards, at eight shillings; goats and sheep of one year old, at three shillings each: likewise requiring the said assessors to make a fair list of the said assessment, setting forth, in distinct columns, against each particular person's name, how he or she is assessed at for polls, and how much for houses and lands, and how much for personal estate, and income by trade or faculty, and if as guardian, or for any estate in his or her improvement, in trust, to be distinctly expressed; and the list or lists, so perfected and signed by them, or the major part of them, to commit to the collectors, constable or constables of such town or district, and to return a certificate of the name or names of such collector, constable or constables, with the sum total to each of them committed, unto himself, some time before the last day of October next.

[SECT. 4.] And the treasurer for the time being, upon receipt of such certificate, is hereby impowered and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector, or constable or constables of such town or district, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sum assessed on each particular person, and to pay in their collection, and issue the acco[un][mp]ts of the whole, at or before the thirty-first day of March next, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifty-seven.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 5.] That the assessors of each town or district, respectively, in convenient time before their making the assessment, shall give reasonable warning to the inhabitants, in a town meeting, or by posting up notifications in some place or places in such town or district, or notify the inhabitants some other way to give or bring in to the assessors true and perfect lists of their polls, rateable estate, and income by trade or faculty, and gain by money at interest, which they are to render to the assessors on oath, if required; and if they refuse to give in an account of the money at interest, on oath, the assessors are impowered to doom them; and if any person or persons shall neglect or refuse so to do, or bring in a false list, it shall be lawful to and for the assessors to assess such person or persons, according to their known ability in such town, in their sound judgment and discretion, their due proportion of this tax, as near as they can, agreeable to the rules herein given, under the penalty of twenty shillings for each person that shall be convicted by legal proof, in the judgment of the said assessors, in bringing in a false list; the said fines to be for the use of the poor of such town or district where the delinquent lives, to be levied by warrant from the assessors, directed to the collectors or constables, in manner as is directed for gathering town assessments, to be paid in to the town treasurer or selectmen for the use aforesaid: saving to the party aggrieved at the judgment of the assessors in setting forth such fine, liberty of appeal therefrom to the court of general sessions of the peace within the county for relief as in case of being overrated. And if any person or persons shall not bring a list of their estates as aforesaid to the assessors, he or they so neglecting shall not be admitted to make application to the court of general sessions for any abatement of the assessment laid on him.

Inhabitants to bring in a true list of their polls, &c.

[SECT. 6.] And if the party be not convicted of any falseness in the list, by him presented, of the polls, rateable estate, or income by trade or faculty, business or employment, which he does or shall exercise, or in gain by money at interest or otherwise, or other estate not particularly assessed, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportion to the tax, which the assessors may not exceed.

And forasmuch as, oftentimes, sundry persons, not belonging to this province, bring considerable trade and merchandize, and by reason that the tax or rate of the town where they come to trade is finished and delivered to the constable or collectors, and, before the next year's assessment, are gone out of the province, and so pay nothing towards the support of the government, though, in the time of their residing here, they reaped considerable gain by trade, and had the protection of the government,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 7.] That when any such person or persons, shall come and reside in any town within this province, and bring any merchandize

Transient traders to be rated.

and trade to deal therewith, the assessors of such town are hereby empowered to rate and assess all such persons, according to their circumstances, pursuant to the rules and directions in this act provided, tho' [ugh] the former rate may have been finished, and the new one not perfected, as aforesaid.

And be it further enacted,

Merchants, &c., to be rated for carrying on trade in any other town beside where they dwell.

[SECT. 8.] That when any merchant, trader or factor, inhabitant of some one town within this province, or of any other province, shall traffic or carry on any trade or business, or set up a store in some other town in the province, the assessors of such town where such trade and business shall be carried on as aforesaid, be and hereby are empowered to rate and assess all such merchants, traders and factors, their goods and merchandize, for carrying on such trade and business and exercising their faculty in such town, pursuant to the rules and directions of this act: provided before any such assessors shall rate such persons as afore mentioned, the selectmen of the town where such trade is carried on, shall transmit a list of such persons as they shall judge may and ought to be rated, within the intent of this act, to the assessors of such town or district.

Selectmen to transmit a list of such persons before they are rated.

[SECT. 9.] And the constables or collectors are hereby enjoined to levy and collect all such sums committed to them, and assessed on persons who are not of this province, or are residents in other towns than those where they carry on their trade, and pay the same.

And be it further enacted,

Supply of £3,000 13s. 4d. for future public debts.

[SECT. 10.] That the sum of three thousand and six pounds thirteen shillings and fourpence, part of the aforesaid tax, not appropriated in any supply bill for the payment of the publick debts, shall be and remain as a stock in the treasury, subject to the future orders of this court, and be employed for the payment of the public[k] debts, as this court shall hereafter direct.

And whereas it hath been the practice of some of the inhabitants of the town of Boston to remove to some other town in this province, and there reside for some months, to avoid paying their part of the taxes in the town of Boston, to which they really belong, to the great injury of said town,—

Be it therefore enacted,

Inhabitants of Boston removing to any other town, and returning again the same year, to pay the tax in Boston.

[SECT. 11.] That when any inhabitant[s] of the town of Boston shall remove to any other town in this province, and shall, in one year after, remove back to said Boston, and shall have been taxed in said town, he shall be subject to pay said taxes, in like manner as he would have been had he not removed from said Boston: saving so much as he shall be taxed in the town removed to, anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding. five, were required, on oath, to transmit into the secretary's office a copy of the list and valuation of estates, by the last Wednesday of May, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-six, on penalty of five pounds; but, by reason of the shortness of the time between the making and publishing said act and the said last Wednesday of May, the assessors in divers towns and districts of the province did not, as this court have been well informed, obtain the knowledge of said act, and have not been able to comply with the order and duty enjoined, and yet are exposed to the penalty therein mentioned,—

Be it therefore enacted by the Lieutenant-Governour, Council and House of Representatives, [SECT. 1.] That such assessors of the several towns and districts as have failed of returning a list by the said last Wednesday in May, as by said act required, shall not be subjected to the penalty of five pounds, or any part thereof; anything in the said act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Assessors not returning valuation lists, at time, indemnified.

WHEREAS it appears necessary for his majesty's service, and for the preservation and defence of the trade and fishery of this province, that two armed vessels be provided for that purpose; and in order thereto that the treasury be supplied with the sum of seven thousand pounds, which it appears most just and equal, considering the heavy burthen of the public[k] taxes, should be laid on the trade and fishery; wherefore,—

Be it enacted by the Lieutenant-Governour, Council and House of Representatives, [SECT. 1.] That from and after the first day of November next, during the continuance of the present war with France, and until [1] the first day of November then next following, there be and hereby is granted unto his most excellent majesty, a duty of sixpence per ton on all ships and other vessels, excepting common coasters, whaling and fishing vessels, entering into any port or harbour within this province, other than such as shall clear out of some other port or harbour within the same, and on all coasters trading from harbour to harbour within this province; and whaling and fishing vessels the like sum of sixpence per ton a year; and also a duty or excise of sixpence per pound upon tea, and twopence per pound upon coffee, and five per cent upon china-ware ad valorem, the income of which shall be applied to the providing and maintaining of two armed vessels ordered by this court to be provided and equipped for the guarding the coast[s] of this province against his majesty's enemies.

Duty of sixpence per ton, on all ships and other vessels, except coasters, &c., from Nov. 1, 1756, during the continuance of the present war with France; also a duty on tea, &c.,—for building two armed vessels.

And to render this act effectual,—

Be it further enacted,

[SECT. 2.] That the tonnage of all vessels, except whaling, fishing and coasting vessels, shall be measured and taken in manner as is directed in the act for building the light-house, passed in the first year of King George the First, chapter the sixth; and the commissioner of impost, or his deputy, is hereby directed and impowered, before he enters any ship or vessel, that is by law required to enter, to demand and receive the duty by this act intended to be paid, and shall certify Manner of measuring vessels. 1715-16, chap. 4, § 3. Commissioner of impost to receive duty required by this act, &c.

* In the record, this act seems to have been signed during the previous session (Sept. 10). It appears again, however, under the above date. It probably failed to receive the Governor's assent before his departure, and the second enactment was deemed necessary at this session on account of the change in the gubernatorial office, since there was no intervening promulgation.

[SECT. 3.] That the selectmen or assessors of every town within this province, where any whaling, fishing or coasting vessels may belong, are hereby impowered and directed to assess and tax the vessels aforesaid according to the direction of this act hereinbefore expressed; the measure of the vessel, in case of doubt, to be taken at the cost of the respective owners or masters by the said assessors, unless the account of their measure first given in be just and true, in which case the charge to be born by the respective towns; and the said assessment and tax, when made, to commit to the constable or collectors of their towns, respectively, who are hereby impowered and obliged to collect the same of the master or other person having the principal care thereof, and pay it into the province treasury; and the said assessors are further required and directed to transmit to the province treasurer, yearly, a list of every vessel by them according to the tenor of this act assessed and taxed, together with [a] [the] certificate of the name or names of the constable or collectors to whom the said assessment shall have been by them committed to collect; and the province treasurer is hereby impowered and directed to issue out his warrants for the recovery of the said duty or tax assessed as aforesaid, on any whaling, coasting and fishing vessels, against any delinquent constables or collectors, as is by law in other cases made and provided. Provided, nevertheless, this act shall not be construed to exempt any vessels aforesaid from being taxed as vessels heretofore.

Licensed persons to give bond.

Provided, nevertheless,—

Proviso.

[SECT. 5.] It shall and may be lawful for any person, whether licenced or not, to dispose of any tea, coffee or china-ware in any

Provided, always, and it is the true intent and meaning of this act,—

[SECT. 6.] That if any person, licenced to sell any of the aforesaid commodities, shall sell to any other such licenced person any quantity of the commodities aforesaid, such licenced person, selling as aforesaid, shall not be held to pay such duty, but the licenced person who is the purchaser shall pay the same; and the seller aforesaid shall and is hereby required to deliver to the farmer of this duty a true account of such commodities sold as aforesaid.

And if it shall then appear to said court that such juror doth not stand indifferent in said cause, he shall be set aside from the trial of that cause, and another appointed in his stead.

CHAPTER 20.

AN ACT IN ADDITION TO AN ACT, INTIT[U]LED “AN ACT FOR THE BETTER REGULATING THE CHOICE OF PET[TY][IT] JURORS.”

WHEREAS in and by an act made and pass[e]’d in the thirtieth year of his present majesty’s reign, intitl[ed] “An Act for the better regulating the choice of petit jurors,” it is, among other things, enacted, “that the selectmen of each town within this province shall, within their respective towns, some time before the first of December next, take a list of the persons, liable by law, and which they shall judge able and well qualified, to serve on the petit juries, and lay the same before the town, at a meeting to be immediately call[e]’d for that purpose; and the town shall, respectively, at such meeting, select out of the list, such as they judge most suitable to serve as jurors, and put their names, written on separate p[er]p[et]uities of paper, into a box, to be provided by the selectmen for that purpose, and deliver the same to the town clerk, to be by him kept under lock and key.” And it being represented to this court, that the town of Boston did not conform to the directions of said act, through inadvertence, before the first of December last, in taking a list of such inhabitants as were qualified to serve as petit jurors, but in said month of December, in the choice of petit jurors for the inferiour court of common pleas now sitting for the county of Suffolk, said town proceeded according to the act made in the thirteenth year of his present majesty’s reign, relating to the choice of petit jurors, and have accordingly made return to said court of the persons then drawn to serve as petit jurors; and whereas it is very probable that many other towns in this province did not, before said first of December, take a list of the inhabitants qualified to serve in such towns as petit jurors and conform to said act, but have proceeded according to the act made in the thirteenth year of his present majesty’s reign, whereby great disputes may arise as to the legality of the choice and return of such jurors, and the verdicts they may have given or shall give in all causes tryed and to them committed; for the remedy whereof, and to confirm the proceedings of such towns,—

Be it therefore enacted by the Lieutenant-Governour, Council and House of Representatives,

That the choice and return of the petit jurors made by the town of Boston to the said inferiour court now sitting, and of any other towns that have not conform’d to the act aforesaid, pass’d in October last, shall be and hereby is adjudged and held good and valid, and the verdicts given, or that shall be given in all causes committed to them, shall be effectual to all intents and purposes; and also that such towns as did not, before said first of December, take said list, are hereby allowed and directed to take said list some time on or before their annual meetings in March next, and then proceed in the same manner in all things as they are directed by said act; and until[1] said annual meeting said towns are impowered, in their choice of petit jurors, to

NOTES.—There were eight sessions of the General Court this year; but no acts were passed at the second, fifth and sixth sessions, and of the sixth session no record or pro rogation appears. The engrossments of all the acts of this year are preserved, except of chapter 30, and all the public acts were printed with the sessions acts, except Chapters 1 and 19, which, being a tax-act and impost-act, respectively, were printed separately.

Chapters 35 to 41 inclusive, were signed by the major part of the Council, the Lieutenant-Governor having deceased the 4th day of April, 1757.

The following are the titles of two private acts passed, but no engrossments have been discovered, and they do not appear to have been printed:—

“An Act to dissolve the marriage of Lydia Kellog with Ephraim Kellog and to allow her to marry again.”—[Passed April 18, 1757.]

“An Act to dissolve the marriage of Jonah Galusha with Sarah Galusha and to allow him to marry again.”—[Passed April 22, 1757.]

All the acts of this year were duly certified to the Privy Council, by Governor Pownall, under the province seal, January 12 1758. They were received by the clerk of the Privy Council in waiting May 3, 1758, and on the eighth by his Majesty referred to the committee for Plantation Affairs, who in turn on the next day, referred them to the Board of Trade, by whom they were received and considered on the sixth day of June, and sent one week later to Sir Matthew Lamb for his opinion thereon in point of law.

On the thirty-first of July, 1759, the Lords of Trade signed their report to the Privy Council. In this report chapters 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 8, 9, 15, 19, 21, 22, 23, 25, 29, 30, 35, 37, 33 and 40 are represented as “for temporary Services and are either expired by their own Limitations or the purposes for which they were enacted have been completed.” Chapters 4, 7, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 20, 24, 26, 27, 28, 31, 32, 33, 34, 36, 39 and 41 are represented as appearing to “relate to the internal Economy of the Province and appear to have been enacted for its private convenience, and we see no reason why His Majesty may not be graciously pleased to confirm them.” No record of further action by the Home Government on these acts has been discovered.

"April 15, 1757. In the House of Representatives; Voted that the following Message be sent to the Honourable his Majestys Council—viz<sup>t</sup>

May it please your Honours

It is with great Concern that the House are informed by your Message that the Consideration of the Affair of putting the Province Ship into Commission is again referred for several days to come, notwithstanding this House fully sensible of the necessity of her being speedily Commissioned signified their earnest desire thereof by Message to the honourable Council Six days ago, and being still of the same Opinion now beg leave to represent to your Honours that as there is now an Embargo on all our Navigation the Mariners sensible of this, and under necessity to get Employ as soon as possible would very readily in sufficient Numbers enlist themselves; whilst if there should be any further delay there is danger that an Impress would be necessary which might not only take up longer time to procure the Men, and force many against their Wills, who will doubtless embrace the first Opportunity to Desert, & so give continually fresh occasions to renew an Impress, a thing abhorrent to the English Constitution and peculiarly odious in this Country but also distress the Trade & Fishery; which this Ship at an immense Cost to the Province is designed to protect, by breaking up the Crews & Companies of many of the Vessells, & besides give occasion for horrid Murders a late Instance of which We have experienced with uncommon Aggravations—

We would but just mention that as it is necessary the Ship should be fit for the Sea as soon as the Embargo is over in order to answer the Purposes for which She was Built, so we think this can scarcely be done but by the Assistance of the Officers & Company; or at least neither so well nor by a great deal so Cheap; a Consideration of much Weight in a time of such a heavy Burthen of Charges on the Province. For these and divers other reasons that might be urged we earnestly move your Honours that Commissions may be made out as soon as possible to some suitable Person to Command and Officers to assist in Navigating the said Ship that so She may be with the greatest Dispatch Manned, and fitted for the Sea for his Majestys Service"—Ibid., p. 461.

"June 15, 1758. The Committee appointed to inquire into the Conduct of the Captain, Officers and Seamen of the Snow Prince of Wales at the time of her being taken, and respecting the Loss of said Snow made the following Report. viz<sup>t</sup>

That they had carefully examined the said Captain, and all the persons which were to be found that were taken in said Snow, and returned home viz<sup>t</sup> Marmaduke Masterman, Mate of said Snow, John Phillips jun<sup>r</sup> and Joseph Lovell Midshipmen, and after a full hearing of said Evidence and having taken the same in writing agreeable to the Interrogatories annexed—the Committee were of opinion That the said Captains Conduct in going so near to Louisbourg was inconsistent with the Instructions which he had received from his Excellency the Governor. That the said Captain was to blame in lying to until the Enemy came up with him, and delivering up the said Snow without making any Resistance—Yet notwithstanding they do not apprehend that Captain Dowse did deliver up the said Vessell either through Cowardice or Treachery, but through Error of Judgment—And further that it appeared to the Committee that the other Officers and Seamen on board the said Snow were not blameable—

Signed—In the name of the Committee J. OSBORNE.

In Council. Read and thereupon Resolved That although there were no Marks of Cowardice or Treachery in Capt<sup>a</sup> Dowse's Behaviour, yet it appears that his going so near Louisbourg in his passage to the Banks was extremely ill judged, and not warranted by his Instructions from his Excellency the Governor. And that hereby, as well as by suffering a Ship so much superior to come so near him when he was at no greater distance from an Enemy's Port before he endeavoured to avoid, or escape from her, the said Capt<sup>d</sup> Dowse unnecessarily exposed the Province Vessel, and that his Conduct herein has been unjustifiable and blame worthy. "Gentlemen of the Council & House of Representatives, The Forces which were raised in the Pay of the Government for the Service of the late Expedition being returned home, and many of them no doubt being in necessitous Circumstances, the first thing which I have to recommend to your Consideration in the present Session is a method of providing for a Speedy Payment of their Wages.

The Gentlemen sent by the Court to wait on his Excellency the Earl of Londond al Albany and to Sollicit his Lordship to Advance a Sum of Money for the Service of the Province are returned, and have made Report to me that although his Lordship treated them with great Condescension and Goodness, and as they were well assured was zealously disposed to promote the Interests of the Colonies, yet he gave them no Encouragement to expect the Advance of any Monies: but on the contrary was pleased to acquaint them that the Support of the Regular Forces would call for all the Publick Money that was then in the Treasury, and that his Compliance with the desire of the Provincs must therefore greatly Prejudice his Majestys Service.—

There seems to be no way left in the present Emergency, but to make use of your Credit to the utmost in order to obtain such Supply as is requisite, and humbly to rely on his Majestys Favour to the Province, the Measures for obtaining whereof gone into by the Council in the Recess of the Court I shall order to be communicated to you.—

I must therefore recommend to you Gentlemen of the House of Representatives the immediate Consideration of this Affair, and must desire that you would let no other Business hinder you from completing it, lest a Failure in your Engagements now should destroy that Confidence which is necessary in Order to Encourage our People to further Service—

The other Charges of Government must likewise in proper time be provided for in the best manner you can in Order to which the State of the Treasury, and an Estimate of the Sums necessary to be Supplied shall be laid before you.

It has been much for the Honour of the Government that the several Assemblies since the Change of the Currency have been carefull to preserve the Publick Credit, & I have no reason to doubt of your being as well disposed as any of them."—*Extract from the Governor's speech to both houses, January 6, 1757.—Council Records, vol. The said Committee having laid before his Lordship their determination that 1750 Men should be raised as this Provinces Proportion to Four Thousand Men, and the Commissioners from the Government of Connecticut having determined to raise 1250 only, those of Rhode Island 334, and New Hampshire but 220 it appeared that the whole Number Added together fell several Hundreds short of the proposed 4000, whereupon his Lordship recommended a further Consideration of the Affair to the Commissioners, but no Government seemed inclined to increase their Number,—His Lordship was then pleased to recommend to Connecticut the raising 1400 Men, to Rhode Island 450, and to New Hampshire 350, and to the Massachusetts 1800. The Commissioners from the other Governments did not absolutely agree to the respective Numbers, but engaged to recommend them to the several Assemblies and did not doubt a Compliance—your Committee likewise declined an absolute Engagement, but informed his Lordship they would make a Report to the Court, and were in hopes there would be no difficulty on the part of this Province.

The several Commissioners proposed to his Lordship several Circumstances relative to the raising the Men which he proposed to give his Answer to in Writing & when received by your Committee shall be laid before the Honourable Court—

"Febru<sup>y</sup> 8, 1757. In the House of Representatives; Voted that the Committee appointed to receive Proposals from the Right Honourable the Earl of Loudoun &c<sup>e</sup> be directed to Confer with his Lordship on the Subject Matter of the Message from the Honourable Board to the House of this Forenoon and Report. In Council; Read & Concurr'd—Consented to by the Lieuten<sup>t</sup> Governour.

The Committee for receiving Proposals from Lord Loudoun &c<sup>e</sup> having received this Morning his Lordships determination on certain Points proposed to his Lordship referred to in the Committees last Report, the same is herewith humbly presented.

Thomas Hutchinson ¶ Order.

In Council; Read and sent down with his Lordships Determination which is as follows—viz<sup>t</sup>

To the Governours and Commissioners of and from the several Governments of New England;

His Excellency the Earl of Loudouns Opinion and determination upon several Points proposed and conferred upon at his House the 5th instant relative to the Four Thousand Men agreed to be raised and employed under the Kings General & Commander in Chief in the Pay of said Governments.—

The first thing you proposed to me Gentlemen, was the time when I thought it would be necessary the Men should be at the place of Rendezvous; I think no time should be lost before you begin the raising your Men, much will depend upon an early or backward Spring—I should be glad that the whole Forces might be ready to be Mustered by the 25th of March at farthest.—

It is most agreeable to his Majestys Directions to me, and to my own Sentiments in the present Situation of our Affairs, that the Forces should be raised in Companies of One Hundred Men each (including Four Commission Officers) or as near to that Number as the whole that may be furnished by any particular Colony will admit—Besides the Officers to each Company I desire there may be one Officer to Command from each Colony who may Convey such Orders as he shall receive from me to all the Troops of such Colony.—I desire particular Care may be taken that both Officers and Men may be such as are fit for the Service; and that none but able Bodied Men and such as can bear the Fatigue of a Campaign in this Country may be employed.—Unless the Muster Masters are faithful you will be in danger of having many insufficient Men sent out. I am afraid there was a great remissness in this respect the last year, and I hope there will be no Cause of Complaint for the future.—

It is of great Importance that in each Colony an exact Knowledge should be had from time to time of their Forces raised and actually Marched, that the whole number engaged may be Completed, and any deficiency whether from desertion or any other cause may be made good.—After you have given me Assurances of a certain Number of Men, and I have Ordered my Plan & Measures with a dependance upon them it may be of extreme bad Consequence to disappoint me in any degree.

I find that it will be a very agreeable thing to your People that Courts Martial for the Trial of Offences should be Constituted from among their own Officers; and as I am willing they should be gratified in everything that may Consist with his Majestys Service I intend that all Offences in any of the Provincial Troops, that are not of the most heinous Nature shall be tried and determined by the Provincial Officers alone, and when any of the grossest Crimes shall make it necessary for me to appoint some of the Officers of his Majestys Regular Forces I intend even then to join some of your Provincial Officers to be assisting with them in trying & determining all such Cases.—

As I am very desirous the Forces should be raised and Engaged in the Service as soon as possible, I will allow at the Rate of Two Shillings Sterling  $\text{4}^s$  Week in Lieu of Provisions to each Man from the time of their first Muster until their Actual March or receiving the Kings Provisions, and this Allowance I make for the Sake of Forwarding this particular Service, and I do not intend it to serve as a Precedent for the future—that I may act with the greater Certainty with respect to this Allowance I expect that regular Returns be sent to me of the time and Place & Number of Men as often as any Muster shall be made.—Ibid., p. 367.

“February 15, 1757. The Committee appointed to receive the Proposals of the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Earl of Loudoun, and to Confer with the Commissioners from the other Governments of New England made their final Report as follows—viz<sup>t</sup>

The said Committee first Convened on Saturday the 29th of January together with Thomas Fitch Esq<sup>r</sup> Governour & Jonathan Trumball Phineas Lyman Eliphalet Dyer & Elihu Hall Esq<sup>s</sup> Commissioners from the Colony of Connecticut Theodore Atkinson Esq<sup>r</sup> Commissioned by the Governour of New Hampshire, and the following Commissioners from the General Assembly of Rhode Island—viz<sup>t</sup> Stephen Hopkins Esq<sup>r</sup> Governour & James Honeyman & George Brown Esq<sup>s</sup> and having appointed William Brattlé & Phineas Lyman Esq<sup>s</sup> to acquaint his Lordship that they were met agreeable to his Lordships Proposals to the several Governments, he was pleased to desire that they would Attend him at his House which they immediately did, and his Lordship made the following Speech, and delivered a Copy thereof to Governour Fitch—viz<sup>t</sup>

Boston Saturday 29th January 1757.

Gentlemen

You must be very sensible that the Measures taken the last Year for the Preservation of his Majestys Dominions and Colonies upon this Continent and for the Annoyance of his Majestys Enemies have proved ineffectual and instead of removing the French from any of their Encroachments we have suffered them to make Considerable Advances upon Us.—

I will put you in Mind of some of the Proceedings to which I apprehend your Misfortunes may be in a great Measure attributed—

When I Left London which was the 17th of May the Ministry had received no Intelligence of the determination of any of the Governments to prosecute an Expedition against Crown Point, although this determination had been made by the Massachusetts the 16th of February. And I Cannot account for this Neglect in those whose Duty it was to have given the earliest Advice that might be. The want of this Advice rendered it impossible for me to receive any Orders with immediate Relation to your Resolutions —

Upon my Arrival at Albany I found that your Forces fell very much short of the Number you had agreed to raise, and which you thought necessary for the Service, and from the best Information I Could get the Troops in general were not equal to those which you had always employed on former Occasions; I Could not therefore think it adviseable for them to proceed without the Assistance of Part of his Majestys Regular Troops.—

I met with unexpected Difficulties, and was much retarded in Settling the Connection between the Regulars and the Provincials, and before it could be fully effected, and any Proceeding had in Consequence of it, I received the News of the Surrender of the Forts & Garrisons at Oswego, and all his Majestys Possessions upon the Lakes to the French. The true State and Circumstances of these Forts & Garrisons were never represented to me by my Predecessor.

I had good reason to think that the Enemy flush'd with Success would make an Attack upon the Provincial Forces—I immediately wrote to the several Governours and demanded an Aid suitable to the State of their Affairs—What Success I had you very well know —There was in some of you a Profession of Readiness to afford Assistance, and the Shew and Appearance of it in the Votes of the Assembly but it turned out in fact that the Attempts to carry those Votes into Execution were defeated and proved ineffectual.—

Sometime after I had applied to the several Governments for Aid it pleased God that the Recruits from London & the High Lands arrived, and I was able to Collect a greater Number of the Recruits raised for the Royal American Regiment than I had any hopes of being able to Collect at that Season of the Year all which I immediately joined to the Regular Troops, and as many of them as could be Spared I Marched for the Strengthening, & for the Security of the Provincial Forces.—

I Have since received certain Intelligence that I was not mistaken in my Apprehensions of the designs of the French, and that it was the Account which they received from their Scouts & Spies of the Actual March of the Regulars the Number of which was reported to be greater than it really was which diverted them from the Resolutions which they had formed.—What the Event of such an Attack would have been God only knows.—I was extremely anxious about it, and I have the greatest reason to think that if it had been made upon the Provincials alone it would have been followed with very fatal Consequences.

Your Forces after this by Sickness or Desertion or both were daily diminished, the Season was so far advanced that I had no further thought of any Offensive Measures against the Enemy and I determined that as soon as they withdrew the Provincials should be dismissed, and that the Charge which the several Governments were at for their Pay should Cease as soon as possible.

This has been the State & Progress of your Affairs the Year past I hope Gentlemen that under the Guidance & Blessing of Divine Providence the Plan of Operation for another year will be better prosecuted.

I Have desired a Meeting of your several Governments by their Govern<sup>rs</sup> & Commissioners at this time in Order to their determining what Number of Men they will raise to be employed in Conjunction wth his Majestys Regular Forces the ensuing Year.

Considering the vast Expence of Supporting so large a Number of Troops as are employed by his Majesty for the Protection of his Colonies, the Burthen whereof you bear no part in, you cannot think much of Contributing so small a proportion towards your own defence as I now require of you, for could I be assured of Four thousand good & Effective Men to be raised by the Four Governments of New England in such proportion as you shall settle among yourselves I would not urge you to go beyond that Number.—

I must recommend to you the giving better Encouragement to your Officers than you have formerly done which may be an Inducement to Persons who shall be equal to their Posts, and who will preserve Order & Discipline to engage in the Service and I think if some Part of your Mens Pay were Converted into a Fund to assist in giving them necessary Cloathing it would be of great Use.

The Particular Service in which I must Employ these Troops it is not in my Power to Communicate to you—I wait for Answers to my Letters gone to England before I can fully determine upon it myself, but if you were to wait until I receive them before you proceed to raise the Men it would be too late to do it for the Service of this Year.— Besides Gentlemen great Inconvenience must arise from making my design publick, and I know of no Advantage which can accrue from it.—The Confining your Men to any particular Service appears to me to be a preposterous Measure Our Affairs are not in such a Situation as to make it reasonable for any Colony to be influenced by its particular interest.—The Question is in what way & Manner the whole may be Secured and the Common Enemy of all most effectually annoyed.—this is the Point I must keep in view and no Consideration will prevail on me to depart from it —

You may depend on my treating your Men with all that tenderness and Indulgence which will Consist with necessary Order and Discipline and that I will employ them whenever there shall be room for it in such Services as shall be most suitable to their Genius, and the way and Manner of Fighting to which they have been used, and that they shall be discharged at farthest at the Expiration of the Term for which they are raised, and as much sooner as the Service will admit, but to engage that I will employ them in this or that particular Place only is what I Cannot do upon any Terms for I think it would be more prejudicial to the Publick than the whole Benefit which We may expect from the Provincials would Countervail.

I Do not thus express myself to you Gentlemen because I think it a matter of but little Consequence, whether you Afford me Aid or not, no, I think it of such moment that you would never be able to Atone for a Refusal—I hope therefore you will spend no time upon this Point, but will without delay determine upon a Compliance with my Proposal to you that so We may begin our Preparations this Year earlier than We have ever done before.

LOUDBON.—

The Commissioners having received the foregoing Speech went from Lord Loudouns House to the Council Chamber in Boston, and after a short Conference they agreed to meet on Monday the 31st at M<sup>rs</sup> Ballards Great Room in King Street which had been provided for that Purpose.—

The Commissioners being met accordingly agreed upon the following Queries to be presented to his Lordship—

To His Excellency the Earl of Loudoun General & Commander in Chief of all his Majestys Forces in North America &c &c at Boston.

The Commissioners from the several Governments of New England Convened at Boston having received you Lordships Proposals for affording an Aid for the Service of the ensuing Year beg leave before they enter into a general Consideration of the Proposals humbly to pray your Lordship to Signify your Intention with regard to the following particulars.—

1st They pray your Lordship to inform them what Proportion or particular Parts of the Charge of the Provincial Forces your Lordship expects should be borne by the Colonies?

2<sup>d</sup> The Commissioners being apprehensive that it will be a great discouragement to the Inhabitants of the Northern Colonies from Inlisting unless Assurance can be given that they shall not March to the Southward of certain Limits, Therefore they humbly pray your Lordship to inform them whether it may Consist with the Publick Service that such Assurances should be given, and if it may Consist what Limits your Lordship will approve of?

3<sup>d</sup> The Commissioners humbly pray your Lordship to Signify for what Length of time it will be necessary that the Men be raised?

Signed at the desire of the Commissioners THOS FITCH.—

January 31. 1757.

The Commissioners being met the 1st February received the following Answer from the Earl of Loudoun.

To the Governours and Commissioners of & from the several Governments of New England.

His Excellency the Earl of Loudouns Answer to their Queries of Yesterday.—

1st When I had the Honour to be appointed to the Command of the Troops in North America the Plan for Supplying the necessary Expences of the War here was the same as when Major General Braddock came out—Viz<sup>t</sup> That the Provinces should not only bear the Expences of the Troops they raised for their own Defence, but should likewise Supply at their Expence the Regular Troops sent for their Protection with Provisions.—

It was afterwards agreed that a Contractor should be appointed to Supply the regular Troops with Provisions, and you will see by the Secretary of States Letter that the Troops raised by the several Provinces to Act in Conjunction with the regular Troops were to be provided likewise with Provisions. The Provincial Troops shall likewise be Provided with Ammunition.—The Artillery Stores will be provided by the King, and although I expect you should provide Surgeons & Medicines for the ordinary Service of your Troops I shall admit those into the Hospital whose Cases require it, & take the same Care of them as of the other Troops, and I Do not think myself intituled to go further.

2<sup>d</sup> As I am very unwilling that by anything that passes between you and me the Enemy should ever be informed that there was any part of his Majestys Dominions in North America that they could Invade and be safe from meeting with the Combined Forces of New England to drive them back, & Prescribe the Bounds they would permit them to come to, therefore hope you will not insist on a direct Answer to the Query—At the same time I do assure you that I neither now have nor ever had the smallest Intention of Marching the Troops raised by the New England Governments out of the Limits I know they will willingly go to, and that you will approve of their being Led into.

3<sup>d</sup> As to your Third Query I observe you have been formerly in the use of raising your Troops for a Year, and that Period will now Answer the Purposes of the Service: for although I see no reason to believe I shall have occasion to detain them so long it will not prevent my sending them home as soon as the Service will permit, and if any unforeseen Accident should make it necessary for them to Continue longer in the Service it will leave time for a fresh Application to the several Governments for that Purpose.

Tuesday Morning 1st February 1757.

LOUDOUN.

After reading the foregoing and Conference had between the Commissioners, and those on the Part of Connecticut New Hampshire & Rhode Island having determined to Comply with his Lordships Proposals, and to raise each Governments Proportion of the 4000 Men the Massachusetts Committee made the following Report viz<sup>t</sup> as Entered the 1st

Whereupon the following Vote passed the Massachusetts Assembly—Viz<sup>t</sup> as Entered the 2<sup>d</sup> of February instant.

Pursuant whereunto the Committee made divers Proposals to the Commissioners of the other Governments as reported the 4th instant and made a Separate Answer to his Lordship as is likewise entered on said day—The Committee reported further as entered on the 7th—On the 8th his Lordship was pleased to Signify his Mind upon certain Points to the Commissioners in Writing—Viz<sup>t</sup> as Entered on said day.

The foregoing Account of the Proceedings of the Committee is humbly offered to the General Court—

Gentlemen of the Council & House of Representatives.

I Do not find that you have made any Provision for Arming the Eighteen Hundred Men proposed to be raised for the Service of the Current Year—You cannot but remember that by a Letter from M<sup>r</sup> Secretary Fox dated the 13th of March last, his Majestys Pleasure was Signified for this Governments Arming as well as raising a Number of Troops to Act in Conjunction with his Majestys Forces.—His Excellency the Earl of Loudoun in the Proposals he has laid before you for raising Men for the Service of this Year goes upon the Plan of this Letter and expressly refers to it; and it appears very evident that his Lordship expects you to supply the Arms, as they are not included in the Articles which he has engaged to furnish the Troops withal at the Charge of the Crown.

I must therefore recommend it to you Gentlemen to make full Provision for Arming your Troops that no Disappointment or hindrance may arise for want of such Provision. And I recommend it to you likewise to come into such Resolutions as may be effectual to bring in such Arms when the Service is over.—There has been a very great Failure in this Respect the Year past, and I cannot but think if the arms were Estimated at something more than the Value, and the Men made accountable therefor they would be more Carefull to return them.

In the House of Representatives; Ordered that Colonel Williams Colonel Cotton & M<sup>r</sup> Thomas with such as the Honourable Board shall join be a Committee to take under consideration his Honour's Message dated the 18th instant relating to Supplying the Forces of the Province agreed to be raised for his Majestys Service with Arms, and Report what they Judge proper for this Court to do thereon. In Council; Read & Concurr<sup>d</sup>; and Thomas Hutchinson & William Brattle Esq<sup>rs</sup> are joined in the affair.”—Ibid., p. 395.

“Febru<sup>a</sup> 21, 1757. May it Please your Honour,

The Council and House of Representatives are sensible that it is of very great Importance that the Forces to be raised for the Service of the ensuing Year should be provided with good Arms. It had formerly been the Practice of the Government to require the Soldiers to furnish themselves with Arms, as far as they were capable of doing it, but this method was found inconvenient, and many times the Arms proved unfit for Service; and the Last Year Two Thousand of the Arms which had been sent over by his Majestys Orders were delivered for the Service of the Expedition to that Part of the Army which was raised by this Province, and the rest of our Men were furnished with such Arms as had been purchased by this Government Principally with a view to make up the Deficiency of Arms at Castle William—We wish that more effectual Provision had been made at the beginning of the Expedition to oblige the Soldiers to return their Arms We have in the present Session passed such Votes & Orders as appeared to Us the most likely to answer this Purpose, and we doubt not that by far the greatest part will be returned.

We can conceive no way of furnishing Arms for the present Service but by obliging the Men to bring such as they have, or by impressing others from among the Inhabitants, many of which We have reason to fear will upon a Survey be deemed insufficient or else by making Application to his Majestys General that the Kings Arms which were made use of the Last Year may again be allowed for the Service of the present Year If there should not be a sufficient number of them returned for this Purpose what shall be wanting which we hope will not be many may be supplied from the Governments Arms.—

We are sensible that we have no right to demand the Kings Arms and that they are at the Disposal of his Majestys General, but We have no doubt that when a Representation is made that if all the Arms belonging to the Government and fit for Service should be delivered to the Soldiers there would still be a deficiency, that Castle William would be left in a manner destitute, and that it is not possible to purchase within the Province suitable Arms, his Lordship will allow the Arms which were used last Year to be again delivered—But if after considering these Circumstances it shall appear to his Lordship to be necessary that the Kings Arms should be used in some other Service the Forces raised by this Province must bring the best that they have, and We think that until his Lordships Pleasure be known, such Men as Inlist should be informed that it is expected that they furnish themselves with Arms, unless Orders shall hereafter be given to the Contrary.—

As the appointment of the Officers of these forces is with your Honour, such Security may be required from the Commander of each Company as shall oblige him to return any Arms that may be delivered for the use of the Men that are under him, and such Officer may take Receipts from the Men to be accountable on Penalty of a reasonable Deduction from their Wages, or other Satisfaction in case of Failure as shall be judged necessary.—In Council; Read and Accepted and Ordered that Andrew Oliver Esq<sup>r</sup> with such as the Honourable House shall appoint be a Committee to present the same to his Honour the Lieutenant Governour Accordingly.—In the House of Represent<sup>rs</sup> Read & Concurr<sup>d</sup> & Colo Cotton & Judge Russell are joined in the Affair.”—Ibid., p. 397.

“February 23, 1757. In the House of Representatives; Voted that the following Message be sent to His Honour the Lieutenant Governour.—viz<sup>t</sup>

The House considering that your Honour is now about to Issue your Orders to the Colonels of the several Regiments of Militia within the Province for the Levying their respective Proportions of the Eighteen Hundred Men agreed to be raised by this Government for his Majesty's Service under the Right Honourable the Earl of Loudoun and apprehending that from the Nature of the thing and from past unhappy Experience there is great reason to fear a deficiency in the Number raised for that Service unless some more effectual Provision be made for speedy Collecting the Men inlisted and impressed than hath been made heretofore. And as Provision is made by the Assembly for the Subsistence of the Men from their first entering on the Service.—

The House therefore earnestly desire your Honour that in the Warrants to the Colonels for raising the said Men your Honour would be pleased to give them particular Orders to Collect together all the Men raised in their respective Regiments in some proper place within the same on or before the Thirty first day of March next in order to their being Mustered, and that they order the Men so Collected & Mustered to continue there ready to yield a punctual Obedience to your Honours further Orders.

The foregoing Message was accordingly delivered to his Honour the Lieutenant Governour in Council by a Committee of the House of Representatives.—Ibid., p. 406.

“Februa 24, 1757. In the House of Representatives Voted that his Honour the Lieutenant Governour be desired to give Orders to the Person he shall think proper to employ to repair to Albany to take Care of the Arms & Stores belonging to the Province: that he immediately Collect from the several Stores Forts & Officers hands, all the Kings Arms & Accoutrements that were left at Albany & Parts adjacent by the Forces raised by this Government the last Year on the Expedition against Crown Point & Ship them directly for Boston, unless his Excellency the Earl of Loudoun or some of his principal Officers give Orders to the contrary: and in that case that he see that a proper Certificate be taken and returned in order to Discharge the Commissary Generals Obligations (in behalf of this Government) to the Kings Store Keeper for the Arms & Accoutrements aforesaid In Council; Read & Concurr'd

May it Please Your Honours

The House beg leave to express their Concern that notwithstanding they have made an Establishment for Wages for One Colonel, Two Lieutenant Colonels, and Two Majors to Command the 1800 Men raised by this Province to be under the General Command of his Excellency the Right Honourable the Earl of Loudoun, yet his Honor the late Lieutenant Governour has Commissioned only one General Officer to Command said Troops.—The House apprehend that from the nature of the Service, and the common dangers of War, the Life of that Officer is so precarious that it will be very inconvenient to have the Command solely in any one Gentleman without any Provision of some proper Person to Succeed him in that important Trust in Case of his Decease.—

They would therefore humbly propose to the Consideration of the Hon<sup>ble</sup> his Majestys Council whether it might not be advisable to make some further provision on this head, and that if they please, One Lientenant Colonel & one Major may be appointed under the General Officer already in Commission—

Sir

The King having nothing more at Heart than the Preservation of his good Subjects & Colonies of North America, has come to a Resolution of acting with the greatest vigour in those Parts, the ensuing Campaign, and all necessary Preparations are making for sending a considerable Reinforcement of Troops, together with a Strong Squadron of Ships, for that Purpose; and in order to Act offensively against the French in Canada.

It is His Majesty's Pleasure that you should forthwith call together your Council & Assembly, and press them in the Strongest Manner, to raise with the utmost Expedition, a Number of Provincial Troops at least equal to those raised the last Year, for the Service of the ensuing Campaign, over & above what they shall judge necessary for the immediate Defence of their own Province; and that the Troops, so raised, do act in such Parts, as the Earl of Loudoun, or the Commander in chief of His Majesty's Forces for the Time being, shall judge most conducive to the Service in general; And the King doubts not, but that the several Provinces, truly sensible of His paternal Care in sending so large a Force for their Security, will exert their utmost Endeavours to second & strengthen such offensive Operations against the French, as the Earl of Loudoun or the Commander in chief, for the Time being, shall judge expedient, and will not clogg the Enlistments of the Men, or the raising of the Money for their Pay, &c<sup>a</sup> with such Limitations, as have been hitherto found to render their Service difficult & ineffectual. And as a further Encouragement, I am to acquaint you, that the Raising of the Men, their Pay, Arms & Cloathing, will be all that will be required on the Part of the several Provinces, Measures having been already taken for laying up Magazines of Stores & Provisions of all kinds at the Expence of the Crown.

I cannot too Strongly recommend it to you, to use all your Influence with your Council and Assembly, for the punctual & immediate Execution of these His Majesty's Commands.

Sir
