E S S A Y S.

U P O N

I. The Law of Evidence.

II New Trials.

III. Special Verdicts.

IV. Trials at Bar.

A N D

V. Repleaders.

IN THREE VOLUMES.

By JOHN MORGAN,

OF THE INNER TEMPLE, BARRISTER AT LAW.

VOL. II.

CONTAINING The First VIII. Divisions of the IId. Essay.

LONDON:

PRINTED FOR J. JOHNSON, N°. 72, ST. PAUL'S CHURCH-YARD.

MDCCLXX IIX.

GENERAL CONTENTS

OF THE

SECOND AND THIRD VOLUMES.

b. ſignifies Vol. II. c. ſignifies Vol. III.

Page

ESSAY II. b. 1

VOL. II.

Of New Trials. Id.

INTRODUCTION. Id.

I. Miſbehaviour of a Party towards the Jury b. 11
II. A Verdict obtained by Fraud, Stratagem, or unequitable Means - - - - b. 16
III. Groſs Miſbehaviour of the Jury - - b. 19
IV. Of a Verdict contrary to Evidence,—Of hard Actions,—and where there is Evidence on both Sides - - - - - - b. 49
V. A Verdict againſt the Record, or againſt Law, —But New Trial not granted againſt the Equity of the Cauſe - - - - b. 110
VI. For Exceſſive Damages - - - b. 198
VII. For Inſufficient Damages - - - b. 264
VIII. Refuſing Evidence by, or Miſ-direction, or Non-direction, of the Judge - - b. 272

 VOL.

VOL. III.

		Page
IX. Of other Matters respecting New Trials, &c.	c.	1
(1.) Mis-trial - - - - - -	c.	1
(2.) Locality of trial - - - - -	c.	11
(3.) Imperfect Verdicts - - - - -	c.	48
(4.) Of New Trials on the Ground of Irregularity - - - - - - -	c.	62
(5.) Of granting a New Trial after two concurrent Verdicts - - - - -	c.	72
(6.) Of granting New Trials in Ejectment	c.	75
(7.) Of the Misconduct of Witnesses -	c.	83
(8.) New Trial not granted for Want of Evidence, which might have been originally produced; & è contra - -	c.	84
(9.) Verdict wrong delivered by the Foreman, amended - - - - - -	c.	99
(10.) Of amending the Postea - -	c.	103
(11.) Not granted in Penal Actions, where the Verdict is for the Defendant -	c.	108
(12.) Of New Trials in Criminal Prosecutions - - - - - - -	c.	110
(a.) In the Nature of Civil Proceedings	c.	id.
(b.) In actual Criminal Prosecutions -	c.	155
(13.) Of Defendant's entering up Judgment against himself - - - -	c.	176
(14.) Of a Verdict right in part, and wrong in part; and of one Defendant being found guilty, and another acquitted -	c.	177
(15.) Where the Court is divided, on Motion for a new Trial - -	c.	179
(16.) Of setting aside Non-suits and Non-prosses, &c. - - - - -	c.	181
(17.) Of Costs on New Trials - -	c.	256
(18.) Of Privy Verdicts - - -	c.	257
(19.) Of a Distringas or Venire Facias de novo	c.	259
(20.) Of New Trials in inferior Courts -	c.	298
(21.) Of withdrawing Pleas, Replications, Demurrers, &c. - - - - -	c.	312

Page

E S S A Y III. 323

Of Special Verdicts, &c.

E S S A Y IV. c. 369

Of Trials at Bar.

E S S A Y V. c. 399

Of Repleaders.

I N D E X

TO THE

SECOND AND THIRD VOLUMES.

b. signifies Vol. II. c. signifies Vol. III.

A.

Abatement.

		Page
Abatement in debt - - -	c.	411

Acceptance of a bill of exchange.

Engagement for - - -	b.	68, &c.
Upon a request to A. to accept a bill, and draw upon B. for the like sum, the mere act of drawing upon B. does not amount to an acceptance - - -	b.	177
Of an absolute and conditional acceptance, and whether the one, or the other, is a question of law - - -	c.	207

Acceptor of a bill of exchange.

In an action against him by an indorsee, it is necessary to prove the hand-writing of the first indorser, altho' such indorsement was upon the bill at the time of the acceptance - - -	c.	248, &c Acquittal.

Page

When the acquittal of one trespasser, shall discharge the other - - c. 421

Adding.

Adding a plea after two terms, since the first pleas were pleaded, and after issue joined c. 313
Defendant permitted to plead a special justification, after he had pleaded the general issue - - - c. 314
The court refuse to permit a defendant to add the plea of the statute of limitations c. 319

Affidavit.

Of the insufficiency of an affidavit for putting off a trial - - c. 375

Agent.

An agent for the public, is not liable to be sued upon contracts made by him in that capacity - - - b. 315, &c.

Agreement.

Where goods are delivered under an agreement to take a specific parcel of copper (counterfeit) money in payment, a delivery of the copper, will be a bar, to an action for the value of the goods c. 213, &c.

Annuity.

Default in annuity - - c. 417

Appeal.

Appeal of murder - - b. 23
——— Maihem day given - c. 417

Assault.

Assault.

	Page
Assault upon a common soldier by his officer: large damages: new trial refused	b. 231
Action for a trifling assault, by one gentleman, against another: large damages: new trial refused - - -	b. 256, &c.
Common assault: large damages: new trial refused - - -	b. 261

Assumpsit.

This action lies for money had and received, where a contract hath been put an end to: contra, if it continue open -	b. 139, &c. 144, &c. 148
Assumpsit the proper form of action, where there hath been an express warranty	b. 144, &c.
Vide however - - -	b. 150, &c.

Averment.

If any averment lies by a daughter, (born before her brother) against a fine, to say that seniori puero in the fine means the eldest child - - -	c. 327
Averment, in pleading, immaterial	c. 407

B.

Banco Regis.

This court executes judgments given in inferior courts - - -	c. 303

Bankrupt.

Exercising a trade, and quitting it	b. 12
What meddling with the effects of a bankrupt, will be a conversion - -	c. 177, &c.

As

Page

As to trading. The queſtion relative to an inn-keeper - - - c. 183

Sed v. a ſubſequent caſe - - b. 333

What dealing in horſes, by a farmer, will make him a trader, within the bankrupt laws - - - b. 336, &c.

Payments made for a man, by his factors, after a ſecret act of bankruptcy - b. 275, &c.

Of lending money to, and advancing money for a man in inſolvent circumſtances, who afterwards becomes bankrupt - - b. 275, &c.

Bankruptcy.

The difference between a man's keeping within his houſe, and concealing himſelf b. 12

Of claims to allowance of money paid, without notice of an act of bankruptcy, under 19 Geo. II. c. 32. - - - b. 275, &c.

Bar, (Trials at) Vide - c. 369, &c.

Where to be granted, or denied - c. 373

Not denied where a juſtice of B. R. or maſter in chancery is concerned - - c. 371

Not denied to officers of the court, or barriſters - - - - c. 373

When to be moved for - - id.

The court lays more weight on a trial at bar, than on a trial at niſi prius, from the ſolemnity of it, and the length of the examination - - - c. 379, &c.

Trial at bar granted, upon conſideration of the conſequences of a conviction upon an information - - - c. 380

It is granted on the ground of value c. 381

A new trial granted, after a trial at bar id.

Motion for trial at bar, before iſſue joined, refuſed - - - c. 384

Page

In what cases of the crown, a trial at bar is demandable - - - c. 384

Reasons for granting, or refusing trials at bar, especially where there are infirm witnesses, who cannot travel to Westminster, and the cause may be sooner tried at the assises c. 385

Motion before appearance, for trial at bar, granted - - - c. 386

The grounds for granting trials at bar are, great value, probable length, and probable difficulties in the trial - - c. 387

The court may lay the party applying, under the terms of receiving nisi prius costs, and paying bar costs - - id.

Upon application for trial at bar, the court will exercise it's discretion upon the peculiar circumstances of the case - c. 389

Bill of Exceptions.

Of the court below, giving judgment upon a bill of exceptions, Vide - c. 465, &c.

Bills of Exchange. Vide NOTICE.

Bill of Lading.

The person who first gets one of them by a legal title from the owner, or shipper, hath a right to the consignment - b. 159, &c.

The indorsement and delivery of a bill of lading to a creditor, primâ facie, conveys the whole property in the goods, from the time of it's delivery: but if the intention of the parties appears to have been only to bind the nett proceeds, in case the goods arrive, then an insurance made on account of the indorser, after such indorsement, is good - - b. 267, &c.

Page

Breve ad audiendum Judicium. Vide c. 413

Bribery.

Verdict for plaintiff on the bribery act. Motion for new trial. 1 Obj. That the man bribed did not vote for the party on whose behalf he was bribed.—2 Obj. That the verdict ought not to have been on the first count, which was for a gift, i. e. for giving money: that there being counter notes, it was not a gift, but a loan. New trial refused - - b. 309

C.

Certificate.

Certificate of a judge, reporting matter of fact on trial, as it appeared to him, conclusive - - - c. 121

Certifying.

Two contrary verdicts, and judgment certified on error by an inferior court, without diminution - - - c. 299, &c.

Cessat Processus.

The jury appearing to try an information, shall not be dismissed upon a cessat processus, but the attorney-general must enter a nolle prosequi - - - c. 372

Challenges.

Of challenges to jurors, &c. - c. 259, &c.

Chancery.

Chancery.

Page
After judgment and verdict, and this affirmed in error, chancery directs a new trial - - - c. 301
As to issues out of chancery - c. 377

Charters.

Of the acceptance and refusal of charters b. 26

Civil Proceedings.

Of new trials in criminal prosecutions, in the nature of civil proceedings - c. 110

Commercial Transactions.

Of commercial transactions, and how they differ from others, vide - - b. 68, &c.
Of credit in commercial concerns, vide id.

Commoner.

A commoner can't justify dispersing the ashes of fern, cut and burnt by a stranger. N. B. He claimed, and gave proof of a right - - - c. 189

Common Informer.

A regular non pros against him, refused to be set aside - - - c. 182

Confession.

Where defendant confesses the trespass, for which action is brought, but offers good matter of bar, if well pleaded - c. 420
Where matter confessed in pleading would not bar the plaintiff - - id.

Construction.

Page
Of deeds, vide - - - b. 342, &c.

Contract.

An illegal contract, if rescinded as to part, must be rescinded in toto - - c. 213, &c.

Copyholders.

If they ought, upon their admittance, to pay fines certain, or uncertain - c. 369

Copyhold Fines.

Assumpsit, for a copyhold fine - c. 289, &c.
The lord's demand for a copyhold fine - c. 294, &c.

Corporate Act.

If one member be omitted to be summoned to a corporate assembly, the act is void c. 281

Corporations.

Of corporations, generally - - b. 26
Of a small variance in a corporate title c. 329, &c.
Of granting a lease by a corporation, for the purpose of bringing an ejectment - c. 329, &c.
Of demanding rents - - id.
Each member may prescribe for common, in right of a corporation - - c. 337
The resignation of an alderman, and election of another in his place, at a meeting not convened for corporation business, adjudged fraudulent, and void - c. 381, &c.
Various questions concerning the city of Chester - - - c. 389, &c.

Corporator.

Corporator.

		Page
As to the existence of corporators, under particular circumstances -	b.	26
A corporator, on a recent prosecution, must prove receiving the sacrament within a year - - -	c.	387
Of the restoration of corporators, that had been disfranchised, vide - -	c.	467, &c.
Of the use, &c. of the word disfranchisement, vide - - -	c.	477, &c.

Costs.

Of costs on new trials - -	c.	256, &c.
If the same party succeeds on a second trial, and nothing is said in the rule concerning costs of the first, he shall not have those costs - - -	id.
As to costs upon a repleader, vide -	c.	407, 441, &c.

County.

The judge, upon a trial, sat in one county; the jury in another - -	c.	8
Perjury committed in the booth-hall, within the limits of the city of Gloucester, which is a county in itself, on the trial of a cause before a jury of the county at large. The indictment may be found and tried, by juries of the county at large -	c.	165, &c.
Declaration in Middlesex, plea in Hertfordshire - - -	c.	8
Fact in Staffordshire, tried in Middlesex	c.	9
Bond at Chester, tried in Middlesex -	c.	10
Ejectment for lands in the county of Dublin: trial in the county of the city of Dublin	c.	12
Where an action must be laid in the proper county - - - -	c.	38

This

Page

This is a part of the judgment of the court in Mostyn and Fabriges, which case (given at length,) contains almost all the law, on the subject of the locality of action

Court divided.

On motion for a new trial, in an information in nature of a quo warranto - c. 113, &c.
On motions for new trials - - c. 179, &c.

Credit.

Of credit in commercial concerns - b. 68, &c.

Creditor.

As to his conduct towards a debtor, whom he knows to be in insolvent circumstances, and who afterwards becomes bankrupt b. 285

Criminal Conversation.

Action for criminal conversation, and large damages given; yet new trial refused b. 230
Trial at bar, upon application of the defendant - - - c. 385

Criminal Prosecutions.

Of new trials in criminal prosecutions c. 110, &c.
In the nature of civil proceedings - id. &c.
In actual criminal prosecutions - c. 155, &c.
Not granted, where defendant is acquitted id.
If granted, where the verdict is for the king. c. 15[illegible]
In perjury, (tho' defendant be acquitted,) new trial may be granted, if there hath been a trick, &c. - - c. 161
On conviction, defendant must be in court, to move for a new trial - - id.
New trial for defendant, where the verdict was contrary to the meaning of the jury c. 162

A new

Page

A new trial may be granted at any time before judgment - - c. 166

Custom.

A custom to have so much, upon every dying seised; and for distraining all beasts c. 3
Custom to inclose common: as to proof of it b. 313, &c.

D.

Damages.

Damages inconsiderable - - b. 67
——— excessive - - b. 198
——— insufficient - - b. 264
Where, upon trying a traverse in a return to a mandamus, no damages are given, this cannot be supplied by a writ of inquiry - - - c. 282, &c.
As to excessive damages, vide - - b. 198, &c. 225, 6
Damages given for a longer time than the plaintiff lost the use of his lands: new trial granted - - - b. 226
Excessive damages being given, a new trial was granted: same damages given on second trial: a third trial refused - b. 228
Motion for new trial: defendant alledged, plaintiff had recovered much larger interest, than he ought, or than allowed by law; (in value of pagodas) but new trial refused, it being India interest, &c. b. 261
Where plaintiff is intitled to a specific sum, if the jury do not give it, a new trial will be granted - - - b. 264
But if damages are uncertain, as in tort, &c. a new trial will not be granted for insufficient damages - - - b. 265, &c.

Day.

Page
Day and place made part of the issue c. 400
Where day is given, prece partium, before declaration, &c. - - - c. 417

Default.

If a party make default as to evidence, absence of counsel, &c. it is not a ground for a new trial - - - c. 84, &c. 93, &c.
Contra, if he is surprised as to evidence c. 86, &c.
So where the conscience of a court of equity is not satisfied, &c. - - c. 89, &c.
Of defaults in real and personal actions c. 404, &c.
Of default peremptory - - c. 411
Diversity as to defaults of defendant's c. 412 ——— ——————— plaintiffs id.
Two defaults in action real, but one in action personal - - - c. 416
Default in annuity - - c. 417
——— appeal - - id.
——— secta ad molendinum - id.

Defendant.

A defendant permitted to enter up judgment against himself, where small damages were recovered, and plaintiff wished to proceed de novo - - - c. 176

Demurrer.

Demurrer waived by default in personal actions - - - c. 414

Deposition.

Deposition of a witness, on a first trial, who dies before a second trial, may be read in evidence - - - c. 377, &c.

Discharge.

Page

Discharge of defendant's undertaking forged b. 57

Discretion.

Discretion of the court is judicial; not arbitrary - - - - b. 198, &c

Disfranchisement.

Disfranchisement of corporators, and restoration, &c. - - - c. 463, &c

Distringas.

Distringas de novo. Vide - - c. 259, &c

Diversity.

Where only inquiry of damages, and where both issue and demurrer - - c. 417, 18

E.

Ejectment.

Of granting new trials in ejectment - c. 75, &c

A demise of premises in Westminster, late in the occupation of A. particularly describing them, part of which was a yard, does not pass a cellar, situate under that yard, which was then in the occupation of B. another tenant of the lessor. And the lessor, on ejectment brought to recover the cellar, is not estopped from going into evidence, to shew that the cellar was not intended to be demised. Motion for a non-suit to be entered, upon the ground that the judge had permitted evidence that was not admissible. Rule refused b. 340, &c.

Eſtoppel.

	Page
The conſtruction of all deeds muſt be made with a reference to their ſubject matter: a leſſor, upon an ejectment brought againſt him, to recover a cellar, alledged to have been by him demiſed, though not ſpecicified, is not eſtopped by his deed, from going into evidence, to ſhew that the cellar was not intended to be demiſed -	b. 340, &c.

Evidence.

Evidence given to the jury after the court's direction - - -	b. 12, 13, 25
Improper evidence being received by the jury - - - -	b. 49
Verdict againſt evidence - -	b. 51, 100
Of the admiſſibility of evidence, viz. of the declaration of a perſon deceaſed, a ſubſcribing witneſs to an inſtrument, that he had forged that inſtrument -	b. 293, &c.
Evidence on both ſides - -	b. 52, 56, 97
	c. 80, 94
Refuſing of evidence - -	b. 272, &c.
Allowing of improper evidence -	id.
Over-ruling of proper evidence -	id.

Executor.

Where an executor ſhall cover aſſets, by pleading the penalty of a bond to be due, and where he ſhall only cover aſſets to the amount of the ſum in the condition, and the method of pleading ſuch bonds	c. 342, &c.
An executor may have debt upon the ſtatute 2 Ed. VI. of tythes, but it does not lie againſt an executor - -	c. 371

Extent,

Extent.

Page

Extent of land, upon a statute acknowledged after a jointure, and before issue, but extent levied after issue, pending infancy. The extent void as to the feme.—Lands can't be extended in the hands of an infant - - - c. 335, 6

A reversion is not extendable - - c. 336

Extortion.

Information for extortion - c. 371, 380

F.

Factors.

Their lien on goods in their hands, or money arising from the sale of goods, the principal becoming bankrupt - - b. 275, &c. and 283, &c.

Faculty.

A faculty for a pew in a church, to a man and his heirs, is bad - - c. 235, &c.

Fictions.

Fictions of law shall never be contradicted, so as to defeat the end for which they were invented; but for every other purpose they may be contradicted - c. 40

Fine.

One fine cannot be assessed on the admission to several copyhold tenements - c. 286

Foreign Laws.

They must be proved as facts - c. 35

Forfeiture.

Page

By an express agreement the obligee of a bond to secure an annuity, may waive the forfeiture for non-payment on the day, so as to be intitled to recover against the obligor, although he has been discharged under an insolvent debtor's act, between the time of the forfeiture, and the action brought - - c. 445, &c.

Forgery.

Discharge of a defendant's undertaking forged b. 57
Information for forgery - - c. 384
A forged instrument set up as a will, &c. to defeat a prior will - - c. 293, &c.

Fraud and Covin. Vide b. 63

Fraud is sometimes mere matter of fact; and sometimes the conclusion of law, from facts - - - b. 284

Frivolous Action. Vide b. 53, &c.

G.

Government.

An officer, appointed by government, treating as an agent for the public, is not liable to be sued upon contracts made in that capacity - - - b. 315, &c.

Grantee.

A grantee of estovers cannot take wood, cut down by the grantor - - c. 192

H.

		Page
Hard Action. Vide	b.	50
Hearsay Evidence. Vide	b.	292, &c. 298

High Treason.

This is sometimes mere matter of fact; and sometimes the conclusion of law from facts - - -	b.	284
Levying war is mere matter of fact -	id.
Compassing the death of the king, is a legal conclusion from facts - -	id.

Highway.

In trespass, upon not guilty, the defendant can't give in evidence, that the locus in quo was the king's highway -	b.	273

Hue and Cry.

A plaintiff cannot recover for notes he does not sufficiently describe; contra for what is sufficiently described - -	c.	179, &c.

J.

Jeofails.

Of jeofails in general - -	c.	404, &c.

Immediately.

The signification of the word, in criminal proceedings - - -	c.	339, 340, &c.

Imparlance.

Imparlance and default in personal actions	c.	411

Imprisonment.

Page

Imprisonment for a few hours: large damages: new trial refused - - b. 237
Similar case: (the printers, &c. of the North-Briton) - - - b. 241 Similar, in Arthur Beardmore's case b. 245, &c.

Indorsement.

Indorsement of a note to R. O. generally, without the words "or order," yet indorsible by him, and every subsequent indorsee - - - - b. 113

Infant.

If a lease be made by an infant, without rent reserved, be void, or voidable c. 326
Lands cannot be extended, whilst in the hands of an infant - - c. 336
If plaintiff reply to plea of infancy, that defendant, after he attained twenty-one, confirmed the promise, and defendant rejoin that he did not, plaintiff need only prove a promise, and defendant must shew he was under age at the time - - b. 338, &c.

Inferior Courts.

As to new trials, &c. in inferior courts, vide c. 298, &c.
Vide the opinion of B. R. upon the subject c. 308, &c.
Inferior courts may set aside a regular interlocutory judgment - - c. 304, &c.

Information.

If a new trial can be granted on an information, for a seisure, where the verdict is for the defendant - - c. 120

One

Page

One information only, may, by leave of the court, be exhibited under the Irish statute, 9 Geo. II. c. 2. S. 4. against different persons, and against the same persons, for usurping different franchises: and there is not any necessity to state such leave upon the record - - - c. 457, &c.

Injunction.

If a will be disputed, after two trials, both determined in favour of it, equity will grant a perpetual injunction - - c. 77

So after several trials in ejectment, upon a bill of peace being filed - - c. 78

Inquest.

When inquest may be taken by default, before count, or after, &c. - - c. 414

Inquiry.

A new inquiry granted, the sheriff having admitted improper evidence, whereby the damages were lessened - - b. 266

Insolvent Debtor.

By an express agreement the obligee of a bond to secure an annuity, may waive the forfeiture for non-payment on the day, so as to be intitled to recover against the obligor, altho' he has been discharged under an insolvent debtor's act, between the time of the forefeiture and the action brought - - - - - c. 445, &c.

Insurance.

What is insurable, and what not, vide c. 225, &c.

Vide also Bill of Lading.—Policy of Insurance.

Interlocutory Judgment.

Page.
An inferior court may set aside a regular interlocutory judgment - - c. 304, &c.

Joinder of Action.

Case and trover, against a carrier, in the same declaration - - - c. 48
Trover and tort - - - c. 49

Irregularity, &c. Vide c. 62, &c

Issue.

If it appears that there is not any issue joined, the jury must be dismissed c. 10
Where the similiter is omitted - c. 63
Improper or immaterial, whether a repleader shall be granted, or not - - c. 399, &c.
Vide c. 466, &c.
Day and place made part of the issue c. 400
The issue being immaterial, judgment on the defendant's confession, and the verdict set aside - - - c. 403
Of an impertinent issue - - c. 404, 407

Issues.

Of a new trial, where there are two issues, one found right, the other wrong - b. 51, 113
And vide Parker & al. v. Godin - c. 177, &c.

Judge.

New trials moved for, on the grounds that the judge refused proper evidence, or misdirected, or, did not properly direct the jury b. 272, &c.
Motion for a non-suit, on the ground that the judge had permitted evidence to be given, that was not admissible, i. e. in permitting a lessor to give evidence of what was intended to be demised: rule refused - - - - - b. 340, &c.

Page

Where a verdict passes against a defendant, upon a point of law, and where he is not able at law to make a defence, whether the judge was right, or wrong, in his opinion, the court will not grant a new trial b. 345, &c.

Judgment.

Defendant entering up judgment, against himself - - - - - c. 176

Judgment upon default, after demurrer joined c. 419

A man out of court, may have judgment against him, tho' not for him - id.

Jurors.

Misbehaviour of jurors - - b. 20, 49, 199

One of them delivering an escrow to his companions, &c. &c. - - b. 21, 47, 49

Tossing up cross and pile - - b. 25, 48

Drawing lots - - - b. 45, 47

Hustling half-pence - - - b. 45

Absence of some of the jurors - - b. 46

Jury.

Jury eating and drinking, after withdrawn b. 19, 20

—— the constitutional judges of facts b. 96, &c.

—— finding contrary to direction - b. 30, c. 125

Of jury process, challenges, venire facias de novo, &c. - - - - c. 259, &c.

Several freeholders named in the venire facias not summoned - - - c. 369, 370

Jury

Page

Jury appearing to try an information, shall not be dismissed upon a cessat processus, but the attorney-general must enter a nolle prosequi - - - c. 372

A jury refusing to give the reason of their verdict, where they gave excessive damages, a new trial was granted - b. 225, 6

One of the jurors did not attend, but his son (who was not qualified,) answered, and was sworn: verdict set aside - - b. 266

Juryman.

A wrong one sworn - - c. 64, b. 266

The Christian name of a juryman mistaken c. 65

Vide Rex v. Roberts, Stra. 1214. the Christian name of a juror amended, against the will of the defendant.

Justice of Peace.

Information against a justice for neglects, and abuses in his office - - c. 383

L.

Laboring a Juror. Vide - b. 15

Lease.

If the lease of an infant, without rent reserved, be void, or voidable - c. 326

The difference between a lease, and an agreement for a lease: and as to stamping the same. Vide - - - b. 345, &c.

Of a lease by a corporation - - c. 329, &c.

Lending Money.

		Page
Of lending money to traders, known to be in dubious circumstances - - -	b.	291

Locality of Trial. Vide - c. 11, &c.

Seising an house in the East-Indies, not triable here - - -	c.	14
Trespass lies here by a native Minorquin, against a governor of Minorca, for an assault and false imprisonment in Minorca	c.	15, &c.
This is the case of Mostyn and Fabrigas, and contains almost the whole learning upon the subject.

London.

Where the venue is in London, there cannot be a trial at bar - - -	c.	372, 384
Sed vide contra - - -	c.	393, &c.

M.

Malice Prepense. Vide - b. 23

Malicious Prosecution.

Action lies for a malicious prosecution in an inferior court, not having jurisdiction	b.	86
Verdict for defendant, against evidence, refused to be set aside - -	b.	100
The judge certified the damages to be excessive, yet a new trial was refused -	b.	228, 9
The action lies upon a bad indictment	b.	229
Action for malicious prosecution for two nuisances: large damages: new trial refused	b.	233
For perjury, and for scandalous words: large damages: new trial refused - -	b.	258
New trial refused, for insufficient damages	b.	265

Mandamus.

Mandamus.

Page

In nature of a procedendo ad judicium — c. 304

To swear in a common-council-man of Totness - - - c. 374

Marriage.

In an action for criminal conversation, an actual marriage may be proved by a copy of the register; and the minister, clerk, and subscribing witnesses, are not the only competent witnesses, to prove the identity of the persons married - - c. 194, &c.

Misbehaviour.

Of a party towards the jury - b. 11, &c.

Plaintiff delivering an escrow to one of the jurors - - - - id.

Gross misbehaviour of the jury, &c. - b. 19, &c.

Of a solicitor, in delivering evidence to the jury - - - - c. 02

Vide Miscarriage, &c.

Miscarriage of Jurors. Vide b. 20, &c. 25

Misconduct of Witnesses. Vide c. 83

Misdirection of the Judge. Vide b. 272, &c. 313, &c. 315, &c. 338, &c.

Where a new trial is moved for, on the ground of a mis-direction in point of law, if the court see that justice hath been done between the parties, they will not set aside the verdict, nor enter into a discussion of the question of law - b. 349, &c.

Mis-

Misspleading.

Page

If B. R. reverse a judgment for mis-pleading, they cannot award a repleader : sed qu? c. 401
Vide c. 284, 406

Mistakes.

What mistakes are causes for granting a new trial; what not c. 112, &c.

Mis-trial. Vide c. 1, &c.

A cause tried before persons interested - c. 2
As to awarding the venire facias - c. 4
Covenant in H. breach assigned in another county, and trial in H. - - c. 11
Where aided after verdict - - c. 7
Escape supposed in another county, yet good after verdict - - - id.

Modus.

A modus must be proved as laid, by the plaintiff in prohibition, or verdict must be for defendant.—But if any modus be found, tho' different from that laid, it is a ground for the court to refuse a consultation b. 182
Upon an issue to try a modus for 3 s. 4 d. for five closes, it appeared in evidence, that it extended to two closes more : the judge directed the jury to find against the modus : new trial granted - - b. 272

Murder.

Per duress of a gaoler - - c. 272, &c.

N.

New Trials. Vide - b. 1, &c.

Causes of granting - - - - id.
History of - - - - b. 60
Of granting a new trial, after two concurrent verdicts - - - c. 72, &c.
Sed, vide - - - b. 152, &c.
New trial not granted for want of evidence, which might originally have been produced - - - - c. 84, &c.
Of granting N. T. by a court of equity c. 90
Not granted in penal actions, where the verdict is for the defendant - - c. 108, &c.
Of new trials in criminal prosecutions - c. 110, &c.
In the nature of civil proceedings - id. &c.
In actual criminal prosecutions - - c. 155, &c.
Of new trials in inferior courts - - c. 298, &c.
Granted after a special verdict, signed by counsel on both sides - - c. 338

Nolle prosequi.

The jury appearing to try an information, shall not be dismissed upon a cessat processus, but the attorney-general must enter a nolle prosequi - - - c. 372

Non-direction of the Judge. Vide b. 272, &c.

Non-pross. Vide - c. 181, &c.

Tho' the defendant's attorney may have searched, on the expiration of the rule to bring in the roll, yet, if any time elapse, before signing non-pross, he ought to search again - - c. 206

Non-

Non-suits, Non-prosses, &c.

Page

Of setting them aside - - c. 181, &c.

Non-suit, before venire, or distringas put in, set aside - - . - id.

The court will not set aside a non-suit voluntarily suffered, and give plaintiff leave to reply de novo, such a replication as will make a new question - - c. 183

Defendant must search in the office if the plaintiff hath brought in the issue roll, before he signs judgment of non-pros, tho' he may have searched on expiration of the rule to bring it in - - c. 206

Notice.

Notice of an indorsed note, not being paid by the drawer, must be given to the indorser, by the holder, and that in reasonable time - - - b. 152

If the indorsee of an inland bill, not due, present it for acceptance, which is refused, and he delays giving notice to the indorser, the indorser will be discharged, and a subsequent proposal by him, to pay the bill by installments, made without knowledge of the indorsee's laches, is not a waiver of the want of notice - - b. 193

Nudum Pactum. Vide - b. 68, &c. 78, &c.

Nusance. Vide - - b. 54

O.

Outlawry.

Page

Outlawry, and process of execution thereon, pleaded to an action of trespass: replication, the lands where, &c. traversed, and verdict for the plaintiff. Qu. if he shall have judgment on the verdict; or on the declaration and plea; or a repleader — c. 402

P.

Palatine.

In an information, where the matter arises in a county palatine, in what county it shall be tried - - - c. 391, &c.

Patent.

A patent is void if the specification is ambiguous, or gives directions which tend to mislead the public - - b. 184

Payment.

A note taken, when it shall be payment b. 16

Payment of money into court, its operation, and effect - - - b. 101

——— of money into court, when regular, &c. - - - c. 68

As to the validity of a payment, made after an act of bankruptcy committed, within 29 Geo. II. c. 32. - - b. 275, &c.

Penal Actions. Vide - b. 51

Where a verdict is for a defendant, in a penal action, no new trial - - c. 108, &c.

Personal Actions.

Page
Of defaults and essoins, in them - c. 410, &c.

Pew.

Possession, for above sixty years, of a pew in a church, is not a sufficient title to maintain case for a disturbance. Plaintiff must prove a prescriptive right, or a faculty, and should claim it as appurtenant to a messuage, &c. - - - - c. 234, &c.
A legal title to a pew, may be presumed, after thirty-six years possession. But, in this case the declaration alledged it, as appurtenant to a messuage - - c. 239, &c.

Place.

Day and place, made part of the issue c. 400

Plea.

If in quo warranto, the defendant's plea be bad, so that altho' a verdict was to be found for him, he could not have judgment, the court will not grant a new trial c. 126
Plea beginning in bar, though it concludes in abatement, judgment peremptory c. 303
Of a plea in bar, concluded in abatement; and of matter in abatement, and concluding in bar - - - c. 422, &c.
Plea of an indenture by testatum existit, not good - - - c. 402
Plea of outlawry, and process of execution thereon - - - id.
Where the plea of one of the defendants, entirely destroys the plaintiff's action - c. 421

Pleading.

	Page
Pleading of bonds by an executor -	c. 342, &c.
Where defendant confesses a trespass, but offers good matter of bar, if well pleaded; and where the matter confessed would not bar the plaintiff - -	c. 420

Policy of Insurance.

The name of the party interested must be inserted in a policy - -	b. 101
As to an illegal policy, vide - -	c. 96
As to a wagering policy, vide - -	c. 225, &c.
As to a voyage, whether abandoned, or not	id.
Averment of loss by capture, wrong, because the ship, notwithstanding capture, might have arrived at M. and the assurance was on the event of her arrival there -	id.
Whatever is written in the margin of a policy, is a warranty, and must be literally complied with - - -	c. 363

Vide tit. UNDERWRITER.

Postea.

As to amending it - -	c. 103, &c.
Amended by the judge's notes -	c. 104, 5, &c. 453

Practice. Vide - c. 66

Where a defendant carries down the record by proviso, it is sufficient if he obtain the usual rule, for trial by proviso, any time before trial, even after he has given notice of trial - - - -	c. 254, &c.

Presumption.

As to the presumption that a bond is paid, upon the expiration of twenty years	b. 330

Page

Privy Verdicts. Vide - c. 257, &c.

A privy verdict for the defendant, the public verdict, contra - - - id.

Process.

Of jury process, &c. vide - - c. 259, &c.

Proof.

As to the general position, to the extent in which it hath been laid down, that a plaintiff is bound to prove every thing which he alledges - - - b. 339, &c.

Proximo Consanguinitatis.

Proximo consanguinitatis de sanguine of a devisor.—Construction of the words c. 266, &c.

Q.

Quo Warranto. Vide - c. 113, &c. 120, &c. 129, 189

If it is a suit of the crown - - b. 32, &c.

As to costs in quo warranto - - id.

As to the statute of jeofails - - id.

The general learning as to usage; acceptance of charters; corporation by prescription; and by charter; suspension of franchises; &c. &c. c. 129, &c.

As to a new trial, in quo warranto, where the verdict was for defendant - c. 155

As to swearing under a mandamus, pursuant to 11 Geo. I. c. 4. - - c. 425

As to repleader, after verdict for the king id.

Error from judgment of B. R. in Ireland, in quo warranto, against corporators of Galway - - - c. 457, &c.

R.

Recital.

Page

Diversity between the common law, and statute law, as to a recital - - - c. 49

Recovery.

Recovery suffered to certain uses, remainder to seniori puero - - - c. 323

Remainder.

Remainder to seniori puero - - c. 323

Covenant to levy a fine with his wife, to uses; remainder to the eldest child of his own body in tail; remainder in fee to K. —Fine levied.—Feme dies; covenantor takes another wife; hath issue, first a daughter, afterwards a son; who, within age, leases to the plaintiff, without reserving rent; defendant, as servant to the daughter, entered upon the lessee - - c. 323, &c.

Remainder in abeyance - - c. 325

If a remainder, which followed an estate in abeyance, was, by a fine, put to a right, &c. id.

Repleader.

Repleader. Vide - c. 398, &c.

Of repleaders in general - - c. 404, &c.

When a repleader shall be upon an immaterial issue - - - c. 406

Where the amendment must begin, as to repleader - - - - id.

No costs on award of repleader - c. 407

Vide father, as to costs - - c. 441, &c.

General rule of repleader - - c. 407

Repleader by common law, when grantable id.

Aid by the statute law - - id.

Where two defendants sever in pleas, &c. no repleader - - - c. 420

Page
If a repleader can be upon a demurrer? c. 423, &c. 492, &c.
As to repleader in quo warranto, after verdict for the king: one of the issues joined, being impertinent, and void - c. 425, &c.
Abstract of various cases, upon the subject of repleaders - - - c. 490, &c.

Replevin.

Avowry for rent in arrear; and issue thereon, with a notice of set-off. The judge rejected the evidence, and verdict for the avowant. New trial refused, the evidence being properly rejected - b. 274
Plea in bar, with an absque hoc: replication, to an issue, demurrer to the replication, and concludes in abatement. Judgment final in C. B. for plaintiff. Qu. If a repleader can be upon demurrer? - c. 422, &c. Vide 492, &c.
Avowry damage feasant: plea, prescription for common: replication a custom to inclose: rejoinder, de injuria, &c. traversing the custom, and issue thereon - b. 312

Revocation.

As to revocation of wills, vide - b. 301, &c. 308, &c.

S.

Saint Martin's.

The judges of Saint Martin's give the same judgment, as the judges in the bustings ought to have given - - c. 300, &c.
A record certified immediately from Saint Martin's, into B. R. without mittimus out of Chancery - - - c. 302

Scan-

Scandalum Magnatum.

Page

This subject fully considered, particularly in what cases the action will lie, and in what not. It is the case of Lord Townshend and Dr. Hughes - - b. 200, &c.

New trial, in scan. mag. refused for insufficient damages - - - b. 265

Scire facias.

Scire facias to repeal letters patent, granted to a borough - - - b. 26

Against tenants in possession, quia ingressi sunt, without shewing title - - c. 302

Against a clerk of the crown for his place c. 373

Secta ad Molendinum.

Default in - - - c. 417

Seisin.

Seisin to uses, upon a recovery - - c. 324

Seniori puero.

If this be a good name of purchase, by way of remainder, he not being in rerum natura, at the time of the limitation c. 324, &c.

If by these words shall be understood a daughter, who was first born, or a son, born afterwards - - - c. 326

Set-off.

In replevin—Avowry for rent in arrear—issue thereon, with a notice of set-off. The judge rejected the evidence, and verdict for the avowant. New trial refused, the evidence being properly rejected - b. 274

Smuggling.

Page

Smuggled goods, the consideration of a note. Verdict for plaintiff. New trial, without costs - - - b. 101

Special Verdicts. Vide - c. 323, &c.

New trials granted after special verdict, signed by counsel on both sides c. 338

Of the difference between pleading and special verdicts - - - c. 331

Vide tit. VERDICTS (SPECIAL.)

Stake-holder.

Action for money had and received, lies against him - - - c. 181

Stamps.

A paper containing words of present contract, with an agreement that the intended lessee, should take possession immediately, and that a lease should be executed in future, operates only as an agreement for a lease, and not as a lease itself; and therefore it need not be stamped, if executed before 23 Geo. III. c. 58.—A lease in writing, tho' not under seal, cannot be given in evidence, unless it be stamped - b. 345, &c.

Surrender.

A surrender of chambers in New-inn, to the treasurer, &c. made with their assent, to the intent that they might grant the same to a purchaser, passes the estate to such purchaser, before admission - - b. 179

As to what is a good instrument, to appoint the uses of a surrender of copyhold land, vide - - - b. 301, &c.

Suspending

Suspending Judgment.

Page

The causes of suspending judgment, vide b. 1, &c.

T.

Tenant in Common.

A member of an amicable society, intrusted with a box, containing the fund, and bound by bond to keep it safely, cannot maintain trover against another member, and a third person who takes it from him c. 251, &c.

Term.

As to its being extinct.—A devisor hath three sons, F. J. and G. He devises to J. for twenty-one years, for certain purposes, and makes J. executor. If J. dies within the term; G. (the plaintiff) to have the like term, and G. to be executor. Devise of the land over to F. in tail; remainder in tail to J. remainder to G.—J. entered: F. died without issue: J. had issue P. (the defendant) and died within the term, upon which G. entered, and P. ousted him.—Qu. If by the descent of the inheritance to J. being in possession of the term, the term was extinct - - - c. 328, &c.

Terminus.

Terminus a quo, mistaken in a plea, prescribing for a way. Verdict for defendant refused to be set aside - - - b. 111

Time.

Time.

Page
Reasonable time wherein notice ought to be given by indorsees of a note, to the indorser, of non-payment by the drawer, is partly a question of law, and partly a question of fact - - - b. 152, &c.
No new trial, after four years acquiescence c. 120, &c.
The court, under particular circumstances, will permit a new trial to be moved for, after the four days are expired - c. 194

Trespass.

Trespass lies for taking boys, where a press-gang is sent for them, tho' they are delivered voluntarily, and no force used b. 131

Trial.

Of putting off a trial - - c. 375
If a fair trial cannot be had in the county where the matter arises, the trial shall be in the next English county, where the king's writ of venire runs - - c. 389

Trial at Bar. Vide - c. 369, &c.

Motion for a new trial, after a trial at bar c. 75, &c.
A new trial may be had in ejectment, after a trial at bar - - - c. 79
Vide tit. BAR (TRIALS AT.)

Trover.

This action will not lie, for an horse, where money, and an horse, are given in exchange for another horse, warranted sound, but not sound - - - b. 150, &c.
Trover lies for rushes cut down upon a common, plaintiff claiming a right c. 184

Tythes.

Page

An executor may have debt upon the Stat. 2 E. VI. but it does not lie against an executor - - - c. 371

V.

Variance.

Variance, in the name of an obligor, between declaration, and obligation - - b. 110

Between nisi prius record, and issue - c. 64, 67

Between the roll, and nisi prius record c. 270, &c

Between issue delivered, and record of nisi prius: verdict refused to be set aside, after defence - - - b. 237, &c

How the defendant in replevin may take advantage of a variance in the place of taking c. 424

Action for bribery at an election: insertion of the word "if" in the precept, set forth in the declaration, is not a fatal variance, but will be rejected as surplusage c. 217, &c.

The contract alledged in plaintiff's declaration was, that the defendant should deliver to the plaintiff all his tallow at 4*s*. per stone: the contract proved, that he should deliver it at 4*s*. per stone, and so much more, as the plaintiff paid to any other person. This variance is fatal - c. 242, &c.

Action against an attorney for negligence, in not prosecuting a debtor to judgment. The return of the writ, on which the debtor was arrested, being laid to be in the 25th year, &c. and the writ appearing to be returnable in the 24th, held a fatal variance, tho' the day of the return, was alledged in the declaration under a videlicet c. 250, &c.

Page

Action by consignor of goods, against a carrier, for non-delivery: plaintiff averred that defendant undertook to deliver, in consideration of hire to be paid by plaintiff: proof that the hire was to be paid by the consignee. This held not to be a variance, the consignor being, by law, liable - c. 253, &c.
Between copyhold fine assessed, and the fine found by the jury - - c. 294, &c. n.
Of a small one, in a corporate title - c. 329, &c.

Venire.

Venire awarding - - - b. 30, 40
—— mis-awarded - - - c. 1
—— mis-awarded, the subject of two issues in trespass, being in different places c. 264, &c.
Where it ought to have been of two different places - - - c. 265
Two distinct matters in it - - c. 413
Returnable at a day after the assises - c. 77

Venire facias de novo. Vide - c. 259, &c.

Upon an imperfect verdict, in an information for a libel - - - c. 50, &c.
Shall not be awarded in murder, for the uncertainty of the finding - - c. 272, &c.
Refused, where upon not guilty in trespass, and two justifications, the verdict was for the defendant, upon the two first issues, and no proof, or any verdict as to the third issue c. 285
On error - - - c. 284, 286
Awarded by the house of lords, upon imperfect finding of a special verdict - c. 295
Issue tried after the day of nisi prius - c. 286
When attaint lies, and no damages assessed id.
In debt for a penalty upon articles; verdict for the whole penalty, instead of assessing damages, according to 8 and 9 W. III. c. 10. id.

To

Page

To assess damages upon one count, on which plaintiff intitled to recover—No cause of action upon the other - - c. 293, &c.
A general verdict being found for plaintiff, in action for words, and some of the counts being bad, venire de novo, to separate the damages - - - c. 282
To remove a doubt in this case, vide - c. 293, &c.

Verdict.

Of a verdict obtained by fraud, stratagem, or unequitable means - - b. 16, &c.
Of verdicts contrary to evidence, of hard actions, and where there is evidence on both sides - - - b. 49
Of a verdict against the record, or against law, but new trial not granted against the equity of the cause - - b. 110, &c.
Contrary to the direction of the court b. 30
c. 125
Against evidence, but damages inconsiderable b. 67
Vide b. 96, &c.
Against law - - - b. 101
Imperfect - - - c. 48, &c.
Good in part, bad in part, and of one defendant being acquitted, and another found guilty - - - c. 76, 177, &c.
Imperfect - - - - c. 270, &c.
Wrong delivered by the foreman, amended c. 99
May be amended by the judge's notes c. 104, &c.
General for plaintiff, in action for words: some of the counts bad: venire de novo to separate the damages - - c. 282
To remove a doubt in this case, vide c. 293, &c.
General verdict on a declaration consisting of several counts, which are inconsistent in point

Page

point of law, and evidence hath only been given on the good, or consistent counts, the verdict may be amended by the judge's notes - - c. 104, &c.

Verdicts (Privy.) Vide - - c. 257, &c.

Verdict (Special.) Vide - c. 323, &c.

Where it is good, because it is true, the court must adjudge the law upon the truth, and are not bound by the finding of the jury - - - - - id.
Where the jury find matter against law, the justices will not take notice of it, but will adjudge according to the law - c. 328
Where the jury find more than is in issue, and assess damages, &c. if it be error c. 334
Where the jury find the issue, and more, it is good for the issue, and void for the residue - - - c. 336, &c.
In all special verdicts, the judges will not determine upon any matter of fact, but that which the jury have declared to be true, by their own finding - c. 335, 6
Uncertainty of finding robbery - c. 338, &c.
How it shall be construed: it may be rectified in point of computation - - c. 358

U.

Undertaking.

What shall be a foundation for an undertaking b. 83

Underwriter.

Action of assumpsit brought by one, to recover back the amount of a loss he had paid in his own wrong, the insured not having complied with the terms of a policy, of which plaintiff was ignorant, at the time of the payment - - c. 363

Page

Use.

An use shall not be raised by covenant, nor by declaration, where it was intended to be otherwise raised - - c. 331

Usury.

India interest upon pagodas, above 5 l. per cent. not usury - - b. 261

Country bankers taking 5 l. per cent. and an additional sum, which bonâ fide, is for incidental expences, and according to usage, &c. this not usury - b. 262, &c.

W.

Wager.

Upon the lives of two fathers - b. 134

Waiver.

Of irregularity of payment of money into court - - - - c. 68

Warrant.

Trespass for the execution of general warrants b. 241, &c. 245, &c.

Warranty.

If a collateral warranty bind a remainder, &c. c. 325

Wast.

Converting a brew-house, in to tenements of greater value, is wast - - c. 298, &c.

Way.

Way.

Page

As to claiming a way - - c. 408
A way for necessity - - - id.
—— by grant - - id.
—— prescription - - c. 409
It is not a good justification in trespass, that the defendant hath a right of way, over part of the plaintiff's land, and that he had gone upon the adjoining land, because the way was impassable, from being overflowed by a river - - c. 451, &c.
Where a common highway is out of repair, by the overflowing of a river, &c. passengers have a right to go upon the adjoining ground - - - c. 453

Welch Drovers.

Three actions by them against an hundred: one verdict for, two against the hundred: new trial granted in the first - c. 370

Will.

As to revocation of wills, vide - b. 293, &c.
—— wills of copyhold lands, vide - b. 300, &c.

Withdrawing of Pleas, &c.

As to withdrawing of pleas, replications, demurrers, &c. Vide - - c. 312, &c.
Withdrawing nil debet, and pleading non assumpsit - - - - c. 312 —— non est factum, and pleading the statute of gaming - - - id. &c.
—— the general issue, and pleading a special plea - - - c. 314, 318
Where defendant pleads a sham plea, the court of C. P. will not let him withdraw it, and plead the general issue - c. 321

Page

Motion for leave to withdraw two demurrers, and plead to issue, upon payment of costs, refused; because several issues in fact had been tried - - - - c. 315, &c.

Withdrawing a replication, and replying de novo, considered as an amendment c. 317

Witness.

Witness examined by the jury, after their withdrawing - - - b. 12

Objection to the competency of a witness, discovered after trial - - b. [illegible]

Misconduct of a witness - - [illegible]

TABLE

TABLE

OF THE

NAMES of the CASES in ESSAY II, III, IV, and V.

b. signifies Vol. II. c. signifies Vol. III.

A.

ABBOT ats. Lord St. John b. 46
Absolon v. Knight and Barber b. 274
Alder v. Chipp — c. 317
Alexander v. Owen - c. 213 ——— and others (Goodtitle ex dm.) v. Clayton and others c. 80
Allanson ats. Mattison, q.t. c. 108
Allen and others ats. Leeman b. 237
Amery ats. Rex - c. 129, 389
Anderson v. George - b. 16
Andrews ats. Tutton - b. 266
Anger v. Wilkins — c. 281
Appleyard ats. Sampson b. 111
Apulby's (corporator of) case c. 382
Archer ats. Mayo - c. 106
Argent v. Sir Marmaduke Dayrell c. 75
Arnold ats. Calvert - c. 334
Arnold ats. Mellish - b. 25
Ash v. Lady Ash — b. 225
Ashley v. Ashley — b. 52
Astle ats. Grant c. 286, 294, n.
Astrey's (Sir Samuel) case c. 373
Attorney-general ex rel. Clarke et al. v. Montgomery c. 379
Avery al. Whadcock and others ats. Frost ex dm. Avery c. 385
Auriol and another v. Thomas b. 261

B.

B.

Bacon ats. Cooper -- c. 1
Bailey ats. Goodtitle ex dem. Edwards —— c. 200
Baker ex dem. Brown v. Petcher c. 76
Baldwyn ats. Brookes ex dem. Mence —— c. 76.
Ball ats. Caldwell and others b. 158
—— ats. Ruſſell — b. 266
Ballantine ats. Waters - c. 12
Bambridge and Corbet ats. Caſtell, Vid. —— c. 384
Bamfylde ats. Nicholas, q. t. c. 251
Bank of England v. Morrice Executrix — c. 342
Banniſter ats. Webſter - c. 445
Barker v. Sir Wolſton Dixie b. 265
Barlow ats. Birt — c. 194
Barnaby ats. Turner - c. 373
Barrett ats. Towers - b. 139
Barry ats. Cowne - c. 493
Bartholomew and another aſſignees of Davis v. Sherwood b. 336
Bartlett v. Spooner - c. 285
Baxter ats. Minns - c. 206
Bear ats. Rex — c. 161
Beardmore v. Carrington and others — b. 245
Beaumont ats. Norman c. 64
Bell ats. Rex — c. 120
Bellamont's (Lord) caſe c. 372
Bennett ats. Holbech - c. 400
Bennet ats. Rex — c. 113
Bennett q. t. v. Smith - c. 182
Benſon v. Sir Thomas Frederick, Bart. —— b. 231
—— ats. Rex — c. 371
Berkley ats. Wilford — b. 230
Berry ats. Cooke — c. 93
Bewdley (the Bailiffs and Burgeſſes of) ats. the Queen b. 26
Bignall v. Devniſh b. 272
Bilſon ats. Croſſe c. 422
Birt v. Barlow c. 194
Blacquiere and others Aſſignees of Sampſon and another v. Hawkins Aſſignee of Wooldridge c. 311
Bodiner ats. Jones — c. 402
Booth ats. Stocks — c. 234
Borthwick v. Carruthers. b. 338
Boucher ats. Smith — b. 256
Bovell ats. Waters — c. 313
Brains ats. Watts — b. 23
Brampton v. Crabb — c. 493
Bramſton ats. Smith — b. 50
Brand ats. Drage — c. 286
Brice ats. Hutchinſon Executrix c. 183
Bright Executor of Criſp v. Eynon b. 56
Brigſtock and others ats. Huddleſtone —— b. 51
Briſtol (the caſe of the Mayor and Aldermen of) — c. 303
Brock v. Richardſon - b. 182
Brooke v. Ewers — c. 304
Brookes ex dem. Mence v. Baldwyn —— c. 76 —— and Wife ats. Rogers c. 239
Brown (Baker ex dm.) v. Petcher c. 76
——. ats. Holmes ex dem. Brown c. 387
——. ats. Price — c. 86
——. ats. Tindal and others b. 152
Buckley v. Buckley — c. 247
Bunning ats. Hill — c. 3
Burdett ats King — b. 25
Burnaford & al. ats. Cavil c. 304
Burt ats. Doe ex dem. Freeland b. 340
Burtenſhaw ats. Gilbert b. 258
Burton ats. Huxley — c. 12
—— (Dr.) v. Thompſon b. 67

Buſcall

Buscall and others Assignees of Thickpenny a bankrupt v. Hogg c. 183

C.

Caldwell and others v. Ball b. 158
Calverley (Lady) v. Sir Richard Leving —— c. 11
Calvert v. Arnold c. 334, &c.
Camswell and White ats. Holliday c. 251
Carrington and others ats. Beardmore —— b. 245
Carruthers ats. Borthwick b. 338
Carter ats. Hibbert and others b. 267
—— ats. Tryon — c. 493
Cartlidge v. Eyles, Bart. c. 179
Castell Vid. v. Bambridge et Corbet —— c. 384
Cavil v. Burnaford and others c. 304
Chaffey and others ats. Farewell, Esq; — b. 54
Chambers v. Robinson - b. 228
Chandler v. the Hundred of Sunning — c. 179
Chester ats. Smith - c. 248
Chipp ats. Alder - c. 317
Cholmondley & ux. (Roe ex dem. of) v. Doe — c. 386
Christchurch (case of the Borough of) — c. 384
Churchill v. Wilkins - c. 242
Clayton and others ats. Goodtitle ex dem. Alexander and others c. 80 Clerk ats. Hinks - c. 336
—— v. Udall — b. 228
Cliffe ats. Grave - c. 63
Clymer (ex dem. Wright) v. Littler — b. 292
Cogan v. Ebden and another c. 99
Coker v. Farewell - c. 377
Cole v. Greene - c. 298
—— ats. Thermolin - c. 63
Cooke v. Berry — c. 93
Cooper v. Bacon — c. 1
Cotherington ats. Goodman b. 20
Courtney ats. Selman b. 273
Cove ats Hale — b. 45
Cowne v. Barry — c. 493
Cowper ats. Lane — c. 323
Cox and another, Executors of Shultz, v. Parry - b. 101
—— v. Rolt — c. 319
Crabb ats. Brampton - c. 493
Crisp (Bright, Executor of) v. Eynon - - b. 56
Cross ats. Gay — c. 374
Crosse v. Bilson — c. 422
Crowder v. Rocke — c. 286

D.

Dalmady v. Motteux — c. 97
Darell (Sir Marmaduke) ats. Argent — — c. 75
Darling (Sir Robert) ats. Farmer b. 233
Dawson ats Read — c. 157
Day ats. Seymour, Bart. qui tam c. 108
Day & others ats. Southeby c. 63
Deane ats. Metcalfe — b. 12
Deerly v. the Duchess of Mazarine —— b. 111
De Hahn v. Hartley c. 363
Deleval ats. Vasie — b. 48
Dennis v. Dennis — c. 161
Dent v. the Hundred of Hertford b. 25
Devnish ats. Bignall b. 272
Devonshire and others, ats. Foxcroft and others, Assees. b. 275
Dix ats Hore —— c. 331
Dixie (Sir Wolston) ats. Barker b. 265
Doe, ex dem. Freeland v. Burt c. 340
Doe ats. Roe, ex dem. Cholmondley & ux. —— 386

Doe, ex dem. Warry and others, v. Miller and another, Executors of Chambers b. 179
Dolley ats. Goodall and others b. 193
Dormer (Smith, ex dem.) v. Parkhurst & al. — c. 79
Downes ats. Weston b. 148
Drove v. Short — b. 21
Drage & Brand — c. 286
Ducker v. Wood — b. 261
Dunkly v. Wade — b. 50

E.

Eades et al. ats. Woodford b. 264
East India Company ats. Edie and another — b. 113
Ebden and another, ats. Cogan c. 99
Eddowes and another v. Hopkins and another Exors. c. 104
Edie and another v. the East-India Company — b. 113
Edgborough v. Stephenson c. 9
Edmonson v. Machell b 349
Edwards (Goodtitle, ex. dm.) v. Bailey — c. 200
Edwards ats. Rex — c. 128
Eichorne v. Lemaitre c. 286
Elliot ats. Lander c. 8, 161
Ellis q. t. v. — c. 321
Englefield ats. Young c. 270
Enys v. Mohun — c. 493
Estwick (Goodtitle, ex dem.) v. Way — b. 345
Ewers ats. Brooke — c. 304
Eyles, Bart. ats. Cartlidge c. 179
Eynon ats. Bright, Executor of Crisp — b. 56

F.

Fabrigas ats. Mostyn c. 15
Fairfax ats. Serjeant c. 399
Farewell, Esq; v. Chaffey and others — b. 54
Farewell ats. Coker c. 377
Farmer v. Darling (Sir Robert) b. 253
Farmer ats. Shelling c. 14
Farthing ats. Vicary c. 62
Farwell ats. Namink c. 338
Fenwick & Gravenor 375
Fenwick & Gravenor al. Grovenor c. 375
Fenwick & Holt ats. Rex c. 158
Fitch, q. t. v. Nunn c. 67, 108
Fitzwater (Lord) ats. Rex c. 110
Foley & Harley ats. Rex c. 380
Fonereau v. — c. 109
Ford v. Tilly — c. 85
Fowler ats. Philips b. 46
Foxcroft and others, Assignees of Satterthwaite v. Devonshire and others — b. 275
Frampton ats. Smith b. 50
Francis ats. Poynes c. 103
——— ats. Rex — c. 154
——— et al. ats. Rex c. 338, &c.
Frederick, Bart. ats. Benson b. 231
Freeland (Doe ex dem.) v. Burt b. 340
Freeman ats. Norris c. 94
Frost ex dem. Avery v. Whadcock al. Avery and others c. 385
Fulcher ats. Hayward c. 323
Fuzz ats. Warren c. 85

G.

Garnet ats. Shuttleworth c. 289 n.
Gay v. Cross — c. 374
George ats. Anderson b. 16
George v. Pierce c. 83
Gibbons ats. Goodwin c. 72
Gibson ats. Rex — c. 161
Gilbert v. Burtenshaw b. 258
——— v. Martin — c. 7
Gist v. Mason and others c. 96
Godin ats. Parker and others c. 177
Goodall and others v. Dolley b. 193

Goodman

Goodman v. Cotherington b. 20
Goodson ats. Mast. — c. 49
Goodtitle ex dem. Alexander and others v. Clayton and others c. 80
Goodtitle ex dem. Edwards v. Bailey —— c. 200
Goodtitle ex dem. Estwick v. Way b. 345
Goodwin v. Gibbons c. 72
Goslin v. Wilcock — b. 86
Gough ats. Rex — c. 165
Grant v. Astle c. 286, 294, n.
—— (Sir Alex. Bart.) ats. Grey b. 256
Grave v. Cliffe — c. 63
Gravenor v. Fenwick c. 375
——— al. Grovenor v. Fenwick c. 375
Graves v. Short — b. 21
Granville ats. Howe b. 52
Green ats. Newcombe c. 104
—— v. Rennett — c. 249
Greene ats. Cole — c. 298
Grey v. Grant (Sir Alex. Bart.) b. 256
Griffiths v. Willliams c. 68
G——r (Lord) v. Heath b. 265
Gunston ats. Wood b. 198

H.

Hackshaw v. Rawlings c. 492
Haldimand ats. Mackbeath b. 315
Hale v. Cove — b. 45
Hales ats. Rex — c. 384
Hall ats. Heylor — b. 12
—— ats. Jervois q. t. c. 109
—— ats. Swain — b. 96
—— v. Vaughan — b. 20
—— v. White — b. 49
Hancock and others ats. Smith c. 2
Hankey, Knt. q. t. v. Smith c. 104
Hartley ats. De Hahn c. 363
Hawkes ats. Roe — b. 199
Hawkins, Assee. of Wooldridge ats. Blacquiere and others, Assignees of Sampson and another — c. 311
Haydon ats. Staple c. 404
Hayward v. Fulcher c. 323
——— v. Newton b. 265
Heath ats. G——r (Lord) b. 265
Heath v. Walker — c. 10
Helston (Corporation of) ats. the Queen — c. 111
Hertford (Hundred of) ats. Dent b. 25
Heylor v. Hall — b. 12
Hibbert and others v. Carter b. 267
Hicks v. Young — c. 66
Hill v. Bunning — c. 3.
Hill ats. Thomkins b. 272
Hillsborough (Lord) v. Jefferyes, Esq; —— c. 385
Hinks v. Clerk — c. 336
Hockley ats. Petty c. 176
Hogg ats. Buscall and others, Assignees of Thickpenny, a Bankrupt — c. 183
Holbech v. Bennett c. 400
Holliday v. Camsell and White c. 251
Holmes ex dem. Brown v. Brown c. 387
Holmy ats. Hopping c. 7
Honour ats. Wheeler c. 369
Hopkins and Spencer ats. Morton c. 371
Hopkins and another, Executors, ats. Eddowes and another c. 104
Hopkins ats. Matthews c. 48
Hopkinson et al. ats. Street c. 284
Hopping v. Holmy c. 7.
Hore v. Dix — c. 331
How, widow, v. Strode b. 312
Howe v. Granville b. 52
Huckle v. Money b. 241
Huddleston v. Brigstock and others — b. 51
Hudsbet ats. Thompson c. 181
Huggins, Esq; ats. Rex c. 272

Huggens

Huggins et al. ats. Smith b. 52
Hughes (Dr.) ats. Lord Townshend — b. 200
Hull ats. Macrow — b. 53
Hutchinson, Extrix. v. Brice c. 183
Huxley v. Burton c. 12

I.

Jackson (Sir John) ats. Rex c. 157
Jarrett ats. Love and another c. 66
Jeffereys v. Walter c. 312
Jefferys ats. Lord Hillsborough c. 385
Jennings v. Warne b. 47
Jermin ats. Willis c. 329
Jervois q. t. v. Hall c. 109
Jessup and Thomson ats. Rackham c. 184
Joddrell ats. Taylor c. 314
Johnson ats. Rex — c. 383
Jones v. Bodiner — c. 402
—— and another ats. Williams c. 103
Ives (the Saint) Causes c. 128

K.

King v. Burdett — b. 25
—— v. Pippet c. 217, 254
Knight and Barber ats. Absolon b. 274
Kniveton v. Roylie c. 265
Kulen, Kemp and others v. Vigne c. 225
Kynaston v. the Mayor of Shrewsbury — c. 281

L.

Lauder v. Elliot c. 8, 161
Lane v. Cowper c. 323
Laxwo.th v. West c. 264
Lee v. Lee — c. 328
Leeds v. Power — c. 12
Leeman v. Allen and others b. 237
Legh ats. Oswald and others Executors of Oswald b. 330
Leighton v. Sir Edward Leighton c. 76
Lemaitre ats. Eichorne c. 286
Lequesne ats. Robinson q. t. c. 119
Letgoe, on dem. of Wheeler v. Pitt — b. 51
Leving (Sir Richard) ats. Lady Calverley — c. 11
Lingen ats. Preston c. 381
Littler et al. ats. Wright, ex dem. Clymer — b. 292
Long (Worden, ex dem.) v. Saunders, Widow, and others c. 67
Love and another v. Jarrett c. 66
Loxworth and West c. 264

M.

Mabbot ats. Stace c. 89
Maby v. John Shepherd, Executor of Edmund Shepherd b. 110
Macbeath v. Haldimand b. 315
Macfarlane ats. Napier b. 8 n.
Machell ats. Edmonson b. 349
Macrow v. Hull — b. 53
Mainwaring, Esq; Walker, et al. ats. Reavely — b. 131
March (Earl of) v. Pigot b. 134
Martin ats. Gilbert c. 7
Mason and others ats. Gist c. 96
—— v. Skurray c. 256
Mast v. Goodson — c. 49
Matthews v. Hopkins c. 48
———— ats. Sproat c. 207
Mattison q. t. v. Allanson c. 108
Mayo and Archer c. 106
Mazarine (Duchess of) ats. Deerly b. 111
Mellish v. Arnold b. 25
Mence (Brookes ex dem.) v. Baldwyn — c. 76
Metcalfe v. Deane b. 12
Miller and another, Executors of Chambers, ats. Doe ex dem. Warre and others b. 179

Minns

Minns v. Baxter — c. 206
Mohun ats. Enys — c. 493
Money ats. Huckle b. 241
Monk (John) ats. Rex c. 129
Montgomery ats. attorney-general ex. rel. Clarke et al. c. 379
Moore and others v. Wilſon c 253
Morrice, executrix, ats. the bank of England — c. 342
Morton v. Hopkins and Spencer c. 371
Moſtyn v. Fabrigas c. 15
Motteux ats. Dalmady c. 97
Moulton ats. Prince b. 226
Muſgrave (Sir Chriſt.) v. Nevinſon — c. 381

N.

Namink v. Farwell c. 338
Napier and Macfarlane b. 8 n.
Nevinſon ats. Muſgrave (Sir Chriſtopher) — c. 381
Newcombe v. Green c. 104
Newton ats. Hayward b. 265
Nicholas q. t. v. Bamfylde c. 251
——— v. Sutcliff c. 312
Niſſen and another ats. Smith and another — b. 177
Norman v. Beaumont c. 64
Norris v. Freeman c. 94
——— v. Tyler — b. 100
Norton ats. Sulſton b. 309
Nunn ats. Fitch q. t. c. 67, 108

O.

Oſwald and others, executors of Oſwald v. Legh b. 330
Owen ats. Alexander c. 213

P.

Page ats. Smith b. 111
Parker & al. v. Godin c. 177
Parker v. Wells c. 295
Parkhurſt & al. ats. Smith, ex dem. Dormer — c. 79
Parr v. Seames and others b. 45
Parry ats. Cox and another, executors of Schultz b. 101
Patman v. Vaughan b. 333
Pearce ats. Turner and others b. 104
Periman v. Pierce c. 266
Petcher ats. Baker ex dem. Brown c. 76
Peters and others ats. Rex c. 304
Pettey v. Hockley c. 176
Philips v. Fowler b. 46
——— ats. Rex — c. 493
——— q. t. v. Scullard b. 51
Phillips (mayor of Carmarthen) ats. Rex — c. 425
Pierce ats. George c. 83
——— ats. Periman c. 266
Pigot ats. March (The earl of) b. 134
Pillans and Roſe v. Van Mierop and Hopkins — b. 68
Pippet ats. King c. 217, 254
Pitt ats. Letgoe, on dem. of Wheeler — b. 51
Pitts al. Wits v. Polehampton c. 84
Polehampton ats. Pitts al. Wits c. 84
Poole ats. The king c. 121
Power ats. Leeds c. 12
——— v. Wells — b. 150
Poynes v. Francis c. 103
Praed ats. Rex — c. 128
Preſton v. Lingen c. 381
Price v. Brown — c. 86
Prince v. Moulton b. 226

Q.

Queen v. Bailiffs and Burgeſſes of Bewdley — b. 26
——— v. Corporation of Helſton c. 111

R.

Rackham v. Jessup and Thompson c. 184
Raley ats. Robinson c. 315
Rawlings ats. Hackshaw c. 492
Read v. Dawson — c. 157
Reavely v. Mainwaring, esq; Walker, & al. b 131
Rennett ats. Green c. 249
Rex v. Amery c. 129, 389
—— v. Bear — c. 161
—— v. Bell — c. 120
—— v. Bennet — c. 113
—— v. Benson — c. 371
—— v. Edwards — c. 128
—— v. Fenwick and Holt c. 158
—— v. Fitzwater (Lord) c. 110
—— v. Foley and Harley c. 380
—— v. Francis — c. 154
—— v. Francis & al. c. 338, &c.
—— v. Gibson — c. 161
—— v. Gough — c. 165
—— v. Hales — c. 384
—— v. Huggins (John) esq; c. 272
—— v. Jackson (Sir John) c. 157
—— v. Johnson — c. 383
—— v. Monk (John) c. 129
—— v. Peters & al. c. 304
—— v. Philips — c. 493
—— v. Phillips (mayor of Carmarthen) — c. 425
—— v. Poole — c. 121
—— v. Praed — c. 128
—— v. Silverton (the parish of) c. 162
—— v. Simmons, a Jew c. 162
—— ats. Symmers & al. c. 457
—— v. White and Ward b. 54
—— v. Woodfall — c. 50
Richards v. Symes c. 86
Richardson ats. Brock b. 182
Roberts (Lord) al. Sir William Roberts ats. Street c. 335
Robinson ats. Chambers b. 228
———— q. t. v. Lequesne c. 119
———— v. Raley c. 315
Rock ats Crowder c. 286
Roe ex dem. Cholmondley and ux. v. Doe — c. 386
Roe v. Hawkes — b. 199
Rogers v. Brookes and wife c. 239
Rolt ats. Cox — c. 319
Roylie ats. Kniveton c. 265
Russell v. Ball — b. 265

S.

St. John (Lord) v. Abbot b. 46
Saint (the) Ives causes c. 128
Sampson v. Appleyard b. 111
Sandwich's (Lord) case c. 373
Saunders, widow, and others, ats. Woeden, ex dem. Long c. 67
Scullard ats. Philips b. 51
Schultz (Cox and another, executors of) v. Parry b. 101
Seames and others ats. Parr b. 45
Selman v. Courtney b. 273
Sephton ats. Smith c. 10
Serjeant v. Fairfax c. 399
Seymour, Bart. qui tam, v. Day c. 108
Shelling v. Farmer c. 14
Shepherd (John) executor of Edmund Shepherd, ats. Maby b. 110
Sherwood ats. Bartholomew and another, assees. of Davis b. 336 Short ats. Drove — b. 21
—— ats. Graves — id.
Shrewsbury (Mayor of, &c.) ats. Kynaston — c. 281
Shuttleworth v. Garnet c. 289 n.
Silverton (the parish of) ats. Rex c. 162
Simmons, a Jew, ats. Rex c. 162
———— ats. Thompson c. 64
Skurray ats. Mason c. 256
Smith ats. Bennett q. t. c. 182
———— v. Boucher b. 256
———— v. Bramston b. 50
———— v. Chester c. 248
———— v. Frampton b. 50
———— v. Hancock and others c. 2

Smith ats. Hankey, Knt. q. t. c. 104
—— v. Huggins et al. b. 52
—— and another v. Niffen and another — b. 177
—— v. Page — b. 111
—— ex dem. of Dorme, v. Parkhurst & al. — c. 79
—— v. Sephton — c. 10
Snell v. Timbrell — b. 15
Soutneby v. Day and others c. 63
Spark v. Spicer — b. 50
Spicer ats. Sparks — id.
Spooner ats. Bartlett c. 285
Sproat v. Matthews c. 207
S[illegible] v. Mabbot — c. 89
Staple v. Haydon c. 404
Starr v. Wade — b. 50
Stephenson ats. Edgborough c. 9
Stocks v. Booth — c. 234
Street v. Hopkinson et al. c. 284
—— v. Roberts (Lord) al. Sir William Roberts c. 235
[illegible]de ats. How — b. 312
[illegible] v. [illegible]kins b. 144
[illegible]on b. 307
[illegible]g ([illegible]e hundred of) ats. [illegible] — c. 179
[illegible] v. Nichols c. 312
Swa[illegible] v. [illegible] — b. 96
Symes ats. Richards c. 86
Symmers & al. v. Regem, in error c. 457

T.

Tamplin v. Vorfell b. 101
Taylor v. Joddrell c. 314
——, Clerk, v. Walker b. 272
—— v. Whitehead c 451
Temple v. Welds c. 181
Thermolin v. Cole c. 63
Thomas ats. Auriol and another b. 261
Thomkins v. Hill b. 272
Thompfon ats. Burton (Dr.) b. 67
—— v. Hudfbet c. 181
—— v. Simmons c. 64
Thorn ats. Wrey — c. 65
Tilly ats. Ford — c. 85
Timbrell ats. Snell b. 15
Tindall and others v. Brown b. 152
Towers v. Barrett b. 139
Townfhend (Lord) v. Dr. Hughes b. 200
Tryon v. Carter c. 493
Turner v. Barnaby c. 373
—— and others v. Pearte b. 104
—— v. Winter b. 184
Tutton v. Andrews b. 266
Tyler ats. Norris b. 100
Tyndall vide Tindal

V.

Van Mierop and Hopkins ats. Pillans and Rofe — b. 68
Vafie v. Deleval — b. 48
Vaughan ats. Hall b. 20
—— ats. Patman b. 333
Vicary v. Farthing c. 62
Vigne ats. Kulen, Kemp, and others — c. 225
Vorfell ats. Tamplin b. 101

U.

Udall ats. Clerke b. 228

W.

Wade ats. Dunkly b. 50
—— ats. Starr — id.
Walker ats. Heath c. 10
—— ats Taylor, clerk b. 272
Walter ats. Jeffreys c. 312
Warne ats. Jennings b. 47
Warren v. Fuzz — c. 85
Warry and others (Doe ex dem. of) v. Miller and another, executors of Chambers — b. 179
Waters v. Ballantine c. 12
—— v. Bovell — c. 313

Watts

Watts v. Brains — b. 23
Way ats. Good title ex dem. Estwick — — b. 345
Webb, esq; ats. Wilkes, esq; c. 319
Weeden ex dem. Long v. Saunders, widow, and others c. 67
Webster v. Bannister c. 415
Welds ats. Temple c. 181
Wells ats. Parker c. 295
—— ats. Power — b. 150
West ats. Laxworth c. 264
Weston v. Downes b. 148
Whadcock al. Avery ats. Frost ex dem. Avery — c. 385
Wheeler v. Honour c. 369
—— (Letgoe, on the dem. of) v. Pitt — b. 51
White ats. Hall — b. 49
—— and Ward ats. Rex b. 54
Whitehead ats. Taylor c. 451
Witcock ats. Goslin b. 86
Wilford v. Berkeley b. 230
Wilkes, esq; v. Webb, esq; c. 319 —— esq; v. Wood, esq; c. 318
Wilkins ats. Anger c. 281
—— ats. Churchill c. 242
Wilkins ats. Stuart b. 144
Williams ats. Griffiths c. 68
—— v. Jones and another c. 103
Willis v. Jermin c. 229
Wilson ats. Moore and others c. 253
Winter ats. Turner b. 184
Wits al. Pitts v. Polehampton c. 84
Woeden ex dem. Long v. Saunders, widow, and others c. 67
Wood ats. Ducker b. 261
—— v. Gunston b. 198
—— esq; ats. Wilkes, esq; c. 318
Woodfall ats. Rex c. 50
Woodford v. Eades & al. b. 264
Wrey v. Thorn — c. 65
Wright ex dem. Clymer v. Littler & al. — b. 292

Y.

Young v. Englefield c. 270
—— ats. Hicks c. 66

ESSAY

UTTERPARAH PUBLIC LIBRARY

ESSAY II.

Of New Trials.

INTRODUCTION.

THE causes of suspending judgment, after a verdict given, by granting a new trial, are at present wholly extrinsic, arising from a matter foreign to or dehors the record. They are in general,

Bl. Com. l. iii. c. 24.

I. Misbehaviour of a party towards the jury.

II. A verdict obtained by fraud, stratagem, or unequitable means.

III. Gross misbehaviour of the jury.

IV. A verdict contrary to evidence, or an hard action, &c.

V. A verdict against the record, or against law.

VI. For excessive damages.

VII. For insufficient damages.

VIII. For refusing evidence by, or misdirection or nondirection of the judge.

IX. And other causes, as irregularity, &c.

For these, and other reasons of the like kind, it is the practice of the court to award a new, or second trial. But if two juries agree in the same or a similar verdict, a third trial is seldom * awarded: for the law will not readily suppose, that the verdict of any one subsequent jury can countervail the oaths of the two preceding ones.

6 Mod. 22. Salk. 649.

* But sometimes hath been, as ma* be seen hereafter.

Yet this is sometimes done, where matter of law is blended with the question of fact, and it clearly appears to the court, that the jury have mistaken the law.

Vide Tyndal and others v. Brown. B. R. 1786, 7. Post V.

The exertion of these superintendent powers of the king's courts, in setting aside the verdict of a jury and granting a new trial, on account of misbehaviour in juries, is of a date extremely antient.

There are instances in the year books of the reigns of Edw. III. Hen. IV. and Hen. VII. of judgment's being stayed, (even after trials at bar,) and new venires awarded, because the jury had eat and drank without consent of the judge, and because the plaintiff had privately given a paper to a juryman before he was sworn. And upon these Chief justice Glynn, in 1655, grounded the first precedent that is reported in our books for granting a new trial upon account of excessive damages given by the jury: apprehending, with reason, that notorious partiality in the jurors, was a principal species of misbehaviour.

24 Ed. III. 24. Bro. ab. t. verdite 17. 11 Hen. IV. 18. Bro. ab. t. enquest 75. 14 Hen. VII. 1. Bro. ab. t. verdite 18. Vide Post.

Styl. 466. Vide Post.

A few years before, a practice took rise in the common-pleas, of granting new trials upon the mere certificate of the judge, (unfortified by any report of the evidence,) that the verdict had passed against his opinion; though Chief justice Rolle (who allowed of new trials, in cases of misbehaviour, surprise, or fraud; or if the verdict was notoriously

Styl. 138.

contrary

contrary to evidence) refused to adopt that practice in the king's-bench.

1 Sid. 235. Styl. pract. Reg. 310, 311. edit. 1657.

At that time it was clearly held for law, that whatever matter was of force to avoid a verdict, ought to be returned upon the postea, and not merely surmised to the court; lest posterity should wonder why a new venire was awarded, without any sufficient reason appearing upon the record.

Cro. El. 616. Palm. 325. 1 Brownl. 207.

But very early in the reign of Charles II. new trials were granted upon affidavits; and the former strictness of the courts of law, in respect of new trials, having driven many parties into courts of equity, to be relieved from oppressive verdicts, they are now more liberal in granting them: the maxim at present adopted being this, that (in all cases of moment) where justice is not done upon one trial, the injured party is entitled to another.

1 Sid. 235. 2 Lev. 140.

1 Burr. 395.

Formerly the only remedy, for reversal of a verdict unduly given, was by writ of attaint, and which is, at least, as old as the institution of the grand assise by Hen. II. * in lieu of the Norman trial by battel.

* Ipsi regali institutioni eleganter inserta. (Glanv. l. ii. c. 19.)

Such a sanction was probably thought necessary, when, instead of appealing to Providence for the decision of a dubious right, it was referred to the oath of fallible, or, perhaps, corrupted men. Our ancestors saw, that a jury might give an erroneous verdict; and, if they did, that it ought not finally to conclude the question in the first instance: but the remedy which they provided, shews the ignorance and ferocity of the times, and the simplicity of the points then usually litigated in our courts of justice. They supposed that, the law being told to the jury by the judge, the proof of fact must be always so clear, that, if they found a wrong verdict, they must be wilfully and corruptly perjured, whereas a juror may find a just verdict from unrighteous motives, which can only be known to the great searcher of hearts: and he may, on the contrary, find a verdict very manifestly wrong, without any bad motive, from inexperience in business, incapacity, misapprehension, inattention to circumstances, and a thousand other innocent causes. But such a remedy as this, laid the injured party under an insuperable hardship, by making a conviction of the jurors for perjury, the condition of his redress.

 if

The judges saw this; and very early, even for the misbehaviour of jurymen, instead of prosecuting the writ of attaint, awarded a second trial: and subsequent resolutions, for more than a century past, have so extended the benefit of this remedy, that the attaint is now as obsolete as the trial by battel which it succeeded: and we shall probably see the revival of the one, as soon as the revival of the other.

* Vide Bl. Com. l. iii. c. 17.

And here we may admire * the wisdom of suffering time to bring to perfection new remedies, more easy and beneficial to the subject; which, by degrees, from the experience and approbation of the people, supersede the necessity or desire of using or continuing the old.

If every verdict was final in the first instance, it would tend to destroy this valuable method of trial, and would drive away all causes of consequence from the courts of common law, to be decided according to the forms of the imperial law; upon depositions in writing; which might be reviewed in a course of appeal. Causes of great importance, titles to land, and large questions of commercial mercial property, come often to be tried by a jury, merely upon the general iſſue: where the facts are complicated and intricate, the evidence of great length and variety, and ſometimes contradicting each other; and where the nature of the diſpute very frequently introduces nice queſtions and ſubtilties of law. Either party may be ſurpriſed by a piece of evidence, which (had he known of its production) he could have explained or anſwered; or may be puzzled by a legal doubt, which a little recollection would have ſolved. In the hurry of a trial the ableſt judge may miſtake the law, and miſdirect the jury: he may not be able ſo to ſtate and range the evidence as to lay it clearly before them; nor to take off the impreſſions which have been artfully made on their minds by learned and experienced advocates. The jury are to give their opinion inſtanter; that is, before they ſeparate, eat, or drink. And under theſe circumſtances the moſt intelligent and beſt intentioned men, may bring in a verdict, which they themſelves, upon cool deliberation, would wiſh to reverſe.

Next to doing right, the great object, in the adminiſtration of public juſtice, ſhould be to give public ſatisfaction. If the verdict be liable to many objections and doubts in the opinion of the party's counſel, or even in the opinion of by-ſtanders, no perſon would go away ſatisfied, unleſs he had a proſpect of having it reviewed. Such doubts would with him be deciſive: he would arraign the determination as manifeſtly unjuſt; and abhor a tribunal which he imagined had done him an injury, without a poſſibility of redreſs.

Granting a new trial, under proper regulations, cures all theſe inconveniencies, and at the ſame time preſerves intire and renders perfect, that moſt excellent method of deciſion, which is the glory of the Engliſh law. A new trial is a rehearing of the cauſe before another jury; but with as little prejudice to either party, as if it had never been heard before. No advantage is taken of the former verdict on the one ſide, or the rule of court for awarding ſuch ſecond trial on the other: and the ſubſequent verdict, though contrary to the firſt, doth not impute any blame to the former jury; who, had they poſſeſſed the ſame lights and advantages, would probably have been of a different opinion. The parties come better informed, the counſel better prepared, the law is more fully underſtood, the judge is more maſter of the ſubject; and nothing is now tried but the real merits of the caſe.

A ſufficient ground muſt however be laid before the court, to ſatisfy them that it is neceſſary, for the ſake of juſtice, that the cauſe ſhould be farther conſidered. If the matter be ſuch as did not or could not appear to the judge who preſided at niſi prius, it is diſcloſed to the court by affidavit: if it ariſes from what paſſed at the trial, it is taken from the judge's information; who uſually makes a ſpecial and minute report of the evidence. Counſel are heard on both ſides to impeach or eſtabliſh the verdict, and the court give their reaſons at large, why a new examination ought or ought not to be allowed. The true import of the evidence is duly weighed, falſe colours are taken off, and all points of law which aroſe at the trial are, upon full deliberation, clearly explained and ſettled.

Nor do the courts lend too eaſy an ear to every application for a review of the former verdict.

verdict. They must be satisfied that there are strong probable grounds to suppose that the merits have not been fairly and fully discussed, and that the decision is not agreeable to the truth and justice of the case. A new trial is not granted, where the value is too inconsiderable to merit a second examination. It is not granted upon nice and formal objections, which do not go to the real merits. It is not granted in cases of strict right or summum jus, where the rigorous exaction of extreme legal justice is hardly reconcileable to conscience. Nor is it granted where the scales of evidence hang nearly equal: that, which leans against the former verdict, ought always very strongly to preponderate.

In granting such farther trial, (which is matter of sound discretion,) the court hath also an opportunity, which it seldom fails to improve, of supplying several defects * in this mode of trial, by laying the party applying under all such equitable terms, as his antagonist shall desire and mutually offer to comply with: such as the discovery of some facts upon oath; the admission of others, not intended to be litigated; the production of books, deeds, and papers; the examination of witnesses, infirm or going beyond sea; and the like. And the delay and expence of this proceeding are so small and trifling, that it seldom can be moved for to gain time, or gratify humour. If the cause is tried in term time, it must be moved for in four days; if tried in the vacation, within the first four days of the next succeeding term, within which term it is usually heard and decided. And it is worthy observation, how infinitely superior to all others the trial by jury approves itself, even in the very mode of its revision. In every country of Europe, and in those of our own tribunals which conform themselves to the process of the civil law, the parties are at liberty, whenever they please, to appeal from day to day, and from court to court, upon questions merely of fact; which is a perpetual course of obstinate chicane, delay, and expensive litigation *. With us no new trial is allowed, unless there be a manifest mistake, and the subject matter be worthy of interposition. The party who thinks himself aggrieved may still, if he pleases, have recourse to his writ of attaint after judgment; in the course of the trial he may demur to the evidence, or tender a bill of exceptions. And, if the first is totally laid aside, and the other two very seldom put in practice, it is, because long experience hath shewn, that a motion for a second trial is the shortest, cheapest, and most effectual cure for all imperfections in the verdict; whether they arise from the mistakes of the parties themselves, of their counsel, or attornies, or even of the judge or jury.

* V. 3 Bl. Com. l. iii. c. 23.

Bl. Com. l. iv. c. 27.

In criminal cases which touch life or member, the jury must give an open verdict, which may be either general, guilty, or not guilty; or special, setting forth all the circum-

Bl. Com. l. iii. c. 24. p. 392. n.

* Not many years ago, an appeal was brought to the House of Lords from the Court of Session in Scotland, in a case between Napier and Macfarlane. It was instituted in March 1745; and, (after many interlocutory orders and sentences below, appealed from and reheard as far as the course of proceedings would admit,) was finally determined in April 1749: the question being only as to the property of an Ox, adjudged to be of the value of three guineas. No pique or spirit could have made such a cause, in the court of King's-Bench or Common-Pleas, have lasted a tenth of the time, or have cost a twentieth part of the expence.

stances

ſtances of the caſe, and praying the judgment of the court, whether, for inſtance, on the facts ſtated, it be murder, manſlaughter, or no crime at all.

This is where they doubt the matter of law, and therefore chuſe to leave it to the determination of the court, though they have an unqueſtionable right of determining upon all the circumſtances, and finding a general verdict, if they think proper ſo to hazard a breach of their oaths: and if their verdict be notoriouſly wrong, they may be puniſhed and the verdict be ſet aſide by attaint at the ſuit of the king; but not at the ſuit of the priſoner. But the practice, heretofore in uſe, of fining, impriſoning, or otherwiſe puniſhing jurors, merely at the diſcretion of the court, for finding their verdict contrary to the direction of the judge, was arbitrary, unconſtitutional, and illegal; and is treated as ſuch by Sir Thomas Smith, two hundred years ago; who accounted "ſuch doings to be very violent, "tyrannical, and contrary to the liberty and "cuſtom of the realm of England;" for, as Sir Matthew Hale well obſerves, it would be a moſt unhappy caſe for the judge himſelf, if the priſoner's fate depended upon his directions:—unhappy alſo for the priſoner; for, if the judge's opinion muſt rule the verdict, the trial by jury would be uſeleſs.

2 Hal. P. C. 310.

Smith's Commonw. l. 3. c. 1.

2 Hal. P. C. 313.

Yet in many inſtances, where contrary to evidence the jury have found the priſoner guilty, their verdict hath been mercifully ſet aſide, and a new trial granted by the court of king's-bench; for, in ſuch caſe, it cannot be ſet right by attaint.

1 Lev. 9. T. Jones 163. St. Tr. X. 416.

Mr. J. Blackſtone citing the authority in the margin ſays, there hath yet been no inſtance of

2 Hawk. P. C. 442.

of granting a new trial, where the prisoner was acquitted. And it is right, upon all the grounds of which Mr. J. Blackstone has treated. —But in a case of misdemeanor, where the defendant hath the making up the record, and consequently giving notice of trial; there it ought to be otherwise, if the prosecutor is surprised; as, where a person very lately indicted for perjury, was acquitted: a new trial was moved for, and on behalf of the prosecution, it was insisted, proper notice of trial had not been given. The court entertained the motion, and the defendant finding the point could not easily be cleared up, to the satisfaction of the court, consented to a new trial, and was a second time acquitted; but had he not consented, I doubt not but the court would have granted a new trial, if not fully convinced the notice was not proper; and this gives me an opportunity of saying, I think in such a case as that of perjury, it is very absurd, to permit the defendant to make up the record for trial; for though the effects of gross misconduct may be remedied, yet it may be attended with such trouble and expence, as to render the remedy worse, if possible, than the disease: besides, few have property sufficient, and probably fewer have inclination, to make the attempt, and persevere in it. Why therefore, not pursue the same mode, as in the case of felonies? An additional reason may be assigned, in every case of misdemeanor, where a defendant is compelled to make up the record: if he is innocent, it is punishing him before trial, without the least pretence, contrary to the first principles of justice and equity.

We now proceed to the particular heads, stated in the first page.

I. Misbehaviour of a Party towards the Jury, &c.

Vide III. Goodman v. Cotherington.

The plaintiff in assise delivered an escrow to one of the jury empanelled, as evidence on his part, and afterwards the same juror (with others) was sworn, and they were put into an house to agree upon their verdict: the juror first mentioned, shewed the escrow to his companions, and the officer, who kept the enquest, mentioned this matter to the court; upon which the justices took the escrow from the jurors, and received their verdict, and enquiry was made of the jurors, as to the time of the delivery of the escrow, and it was found ut supra, and because the verdict passed for the plaintiff, he now prayed his judgment. Gasc. and Hulls said, that the jury after they are sworn, ought not to have seen or taken with them any other evidence, but what was delivered to them by the court, and by the party produced in court upon the evidence given; and inasmuch as they had done contrary, it was suspicious, and therefore the plaintiff ought not to have judgment. And afterwards the plaintiff said that the escrow was proved in evidence, and that he gave it to them at the bar, therefore he had not done so ill, as if it had not appeared in evidence, sed non allocatur, &c.

M. 11 H. IV. 17, 18. Bro. Ab. tit. Enquest, 75.
Cause of staying judgment after verdict.
Fitzh. tit. Enquest, 37.
Plaintiff delivers an escrow to one of the jurors.

The

Metcalfe v. Deane, T. 32 Eliz. B. R. Cro. Eliz. 189. One of the witnesses examined by the jury after they went from the bar.

The jury being gone from the bar to confer of their verdict, one of the witnesses that was before sworn on the part of Deane, was called by the jurors; and he recited again his evidence to them, and after they gave their verdict for D. And complaint being made to the judge of the assises of this misdemeanor, he examined the enquest, who confessed all the matter, adding that the evidence was the same in effect, that was given before et non alia nec diversa, and this matter being returned upon the postea, the opinion of the court was, that the verdict was not good, and a venire fac' de novo was awarded, v. 35 H. 6. examination 17. 11 H. 4. 17. and Brownlow cited a precedent inter Leming and Kempe accordingly. Vide the next case.

Heyler v. Hall, M. 20 Jac. B. R. Palmer 325. Evidence given after the direction of the court to the jury. Bankrupt.

In ejectment, the parties were at issue as to the day one Pratt became bankrupt; and it was agreed,

1. That if one keep within his house for a long time, this does not immediately make him bankrupt; but if he conceal himself in his house for a day, or for an hour, to delay or defraud his creditors, this makes him a bankrupt within the statute.

2. It was agreed that if one be surety for another and conceal himself, he is a bankrupt within the statute.

3. It was agreed, that if one exercise trade, and then becomes indebted, and after quits his trade, and lives in the country without any trade, but upon his lands, and conceals himself from his creditors, yet he is a bankrupt, because he lived by his trade, when the debt accrued.

4. It was agreed that if one for a time carry on trade, as Pratt did, who was a felt-maker, and after he quit his trade, but leaves his ſtock in the hands of another, and the former receive part of the profits of the other, and is alſo partaker of the loſs, if after ſuch quitting trade he becomes in debt and conceals himſelf from his creditors, that he ſhall be ſaid to be a bankrupt within the ſtatute; and all this was agreed, upon giving evidence to the jury in B. R. and after evidence given, and the direction of the court, the plaintiff's ſolicitor delivered to the jury, in the face of the court (but this was not obſerved) as they were departing from the bar, the depoſitions of Pratt taken in Chancery, which by his own confeſſion proved him a bankrupt at the time pretended by the plaintiff; (but theſe depoſitions had before been read unto them in court;) they afterwards returned, and were ready to give a verdict for the plaintiff; but the other party by his counſel ſhewed this to the court, and the jury were examined each of them upon oath, if more was read to them after their departure, than was read to them in open court; and they agreed, that there was not. 2. They were aſked, how they were inclined to give their verdict, before they read the depoſitions; and ſome ſaid, that they were inclined to find for one, and others, for the other; and upon this the ſolicitor was committed for his miſdemeanor, and the verdict taken de bene eſſe; and the officer of the court was commanded to make a record of all this matter after the verdict.

Evidence after the direction of the court.

But it was moved by ſerjeant Hitcham, that it was not neceſſary to make a record of this, becauſe in the ſame court, and all that is done in the ſame court, is in the breaſt of the juſtices during this term; otherwiſe if ſuch matter

matter happen at nisi prius, there the justices ought to certify it of record upon the postea, at the day in bank. But the whole court against him, that a record ought to be made of it in this court also; and they would not dispute the law upon the point, until it was recorded; because the verdict is of record for the plaintiff, and that ought to be matter of record, which should vitiate it; and afterwards Hitcham argued, that the verdict ought to be quashed, evidence having been received after the direction of the court to the jury; and for this he cited 35 H. VI. examination 17. 11 H. IV. 17 et 78. as where they eat and drink, 14 H. VII. and for this he relied upon the case of one Metcalfe, T. 31 and 32 Eliz. in B. C. where the jury after their departure from the bar sent for a witness, who had before been examined in court, and examined him, who gave the same testimony, and no more than he had done in open court before; and for this reason Anderson Chief Justice of B. C. was of opinion, that such examination did not vitiate the verdict; but against his opinion it was adjudged by the three other justices, that the verdict should be quashed for two causes. 1. Because the jurors might not think of the answers, which counsel on the other part would apply to this evidence, if it had been again given in court. 2. Because perhaps upon this the court would have given another direction; and all this being returned upon the postea, the record saith, that licet easdem evedentias dedit, the verdict was quashed, and a venire facias de novo awarded; and according to the case of Metcalfe it was said, that the same matter was adjudged afterwards in in C. B. Alſo Paſ. 34 Eliz. between Fleminge and Webb.

Vide ante.

On a motion for a new trial, it was held, that deſiring a juror to appear in his cauſe, which was between a miller and a baker, was no ground to ſet aſide the verdict. And the court remembered the caſe of the duke of Leeds, who wrote a letter to a juror, deſiring him to attend, and you will oblige your humble ſervant Leeds; which was thought no reaſon to ſet the verdict aſide.

Snell v. Timbrell, M. 12 G. I. 1 Stra. 643.
Labouring a juror.

II. A Verdict obtained by Fraud, Stratagem, or unequitable Means.

Anderson v. George, E. 30 G. II. B. R. 1 Burr. 352. Action for goods sold; verdict for plaintiff, who had taken a note upon H. and indulged him with time for payment.

"Upon a rule for the plaintiff to shew cause "why a verdict obtained by him for 16l. "should not be set aside, and a new trial or-"dered, upon payment of costs,"

The case appeared to be, that the plaintiff had sold goods to the defendant, who paid for them by a promissory note of one Hopley, which the defendant indorsed. The plaintiff demanded the money of Hopley, but indulged him with farther day of payment several times, till Hopley broke.

The only dispute between the two parties was, "which of them ought to bear the loss "of this note." For the plaintiff was paid, if the loss ought to fall upon him, through his neglect or indulgence in giving further credit to Hopley.

There were two counts in the declaration: one, for goods sold, the other, against the defendant as indorser of the promissory note.

When the cause came on to be tried, though both parties came to try the real merits of the question between them, viz. "which should "bear the loss of the note, occasioned by "Hopley's failure;" and the plaintiff's agents had the note in court; yet finding upon their own evidence, "that the plaintiff had given "repeatedly further credit to Hopley," they resorted

resorted to a TRICK, and rested their case upon proving the sale and delivery of the goods, which was never disputed. The defendant could not produce the note: it was in the plaintiff's custody. Relying upon it's being the only ground of the plaintiff's case, the defendant had not given him NOTICE "to produce it." The count, stating it, could not be given in evidence: and the defendant had not intitled himself to prove the contents, for want of notice to produce it. LORD MANSFIELD told them, at the trial, it was an improper artifice; that no verdict could stand, which was so obtained. But the plaintiff refused to produce the note, and had a verdict, of course.

It was now contended, for the plaintiff, that the verdict was regular, and the plaintiff in no fault: for, without notice, he was not obliged to produce the note. Therefore the verdict ought not to be set aside.

The court thought the plaintiff had taken an unfair advantage, contrary to justice and good conscience. That the rules of practice must be general: but he who abused them in a particular case, should not shelter a trick, by regularity. The plaintiff did not want notice to produce a note he had in court, and which he had laid in the declaration as his ground of action.

Besides, he took a verdict for the price of the goods, though he had received satisfaction, the evidence of which was in his own custody and suppressed.

They not only set aside the verdict, but set it aside WITHOUT payment of costs: and declared, "the next time that a party should "obtain a verdict in like manner, by an un-

" fair, unconscionable advantage, without trying
" the real question, they would set aside the " verdict, and make him pay the costs."

A new trial being ordered, this cause was tried at Guildhall, the sittings after this term; and the defendant had a verdict upon the merits, to the satisfaction of every body; the case being clear, beyond a doubt.

III. GROSS

III. Gross Misbehaviour of the Jury, &c.

Vide Post vi. Ash v. Lady Ash; et ix. (12.) (a.) The King v. Lord Fitzwater.

Nisi prius in replevin in Essex.

The jury were ſworn and committed to the care of the ſheriff, and when the juſtices would have taken the verdict, certain perſons depoſed, that victuals and drink were brought to the jurors, after their charge, and that they were ſuffered to go out, for which reaſon the juſtices refuſed to take their verdict, becauſe it was ſuſpicious; and complaint was made of this to the king, by bill, which he indorſed to the juſtices of Banco Regis, to do right and reaſon; and the under-ſheriff by his ſervant, confeſſed that he permitted them to go at large, and becauſe this appeared of record, ſſ. his miſdemeanor, and he was an officer, a capias was awarded againſt him: and becauſe their going at large, and victuals and drink being carried to them, was only a ſurmiſe, a venire facias was awarded againſt the jury, and the treſpaſſers, and between the parties a venire facias de novo was awarded.

Bro. ab. tit. verdt. 17. 24 Ed. III. 24.

Victuals and drink brought to the jurors after their charge, and they were ſuffered to go out. As to the jurors eating and drinking, vide poſt IX. (18)

In the common bench, the jury charged, found for the plaintiff, and the defendant prayed a venire facias de novo, becauſe the jury had taken victuals and drink, between their charge, and the verdict given: and the

Bro. ab. tit. verdt. 18. 14 H. VII. 1.

Jury eating and drinking between charge and verdict.

verdict was adjudged void, and a new venire awarded.

Goodman v. Cotherington, M. 16 Car. II. B.R. 1 Sid. 235. 1 K. 824. Litt. Rep. 69. 2 Ro. 715. pl. 16. Stiles 383. Co. Lit. 227. Palm. 325. Mo. 452. Where the miscarriage of jurors shall avoid the verdict. One of the jury went from his companions, and then returned, brought a court-roll with him, and said he knew the matter, and was for the plaintiff, and the rest of the jury submitted, tho' before of a contrary opinion.

A new trial was moved for upon several affidavits that at the last Gloucester assises the jury being charged with an issue concerning a copyhold, after they had heard the evidence, and when they had departed from the bar, one of them went from his companions and then returned to them, and brought a court-roll with him, and said that he knew the matter and was for the plaintiff; and then, altho' the rest of the jurors thought otherwise before, they submitted to this juror, and found for the plaintiff: and the court, for this misbehaviour, awarded a new trial. And in Lord Shande's case, in the time of Roll, chief justice, after a trial at bar, a new trial was granted, because the plaintiff had delivered a paper to the jurors, after they departed from the bar.

How the court takes notice of it.

But Twisden justice said that in case of such misbehaviour in pais, no notice should be taken of it upon affidavits, unless it was indorsed upon the postea, and so it is held in Cro. 3. 189. pl. 17. 411. 626. Vide Introd.

Hall v. Vaughan H. 37 Eliz. rot. 21. Mo. 599. No. 825. Jury eating and drinking at their own charge, after charge, and before verdict.

The jurors eat and drank at their own costs before verdict, and after their departure from the bar. And this was certified upon the postea, yet the verdict was held not to be void, but that the jurors were fineable. It seems otherwise if at the costs of either of the parties.

M. 2 Eliz. Mo. 17. No. 63.

Nota per all the justices, that after a verdict given, a man shall never say in arrest of judgment, that the jurors have had victuals and drink between their departure from the bar, and the giving of their verdict; but it ought to be alledged before the verdict is given.

In

In arrest of judgment after verdict, it was alledged that a juror delivered to his companions an escrow for evidence, which was not given in evidence at the trial, and adjudged no cause to arrest the judgment, unless it had been received from one of the parties, or the other, which did not appear.

Drove v. Short, H. 40 Eliz. rot. 733. Mo. 546. No. 728. A juror delivers an escrow to his companions, not given in evidence.

Error of a judgment in the common-bench, in a formedon. The errors assigned were: the first in fait; that the parties being at issue, whether a feoffment were made, &c, and the jurors at nisi prius, being gone together to confer, &c. William Malevory, one of the jurors, shewed to the other jurors an escrow in writing, pro petentibus quod non fuit dat. in evidence per partes prædictas, per quod, they found a verdict for the demandant.

Graves v. Short, M. 40, 41 Eliz. H. 40 Eliz. rot. 847. Cro. Eliz. 616.

Error in fact, one of the jurors delivering an escrow to his companions, not given in evidence.

And, upon this error assigned, it was demurred in law. And, after argument at the bar, the court resolved, that it was not any error, nor could be alledged for error: for it doth not appear, that it was evidence given to the juror by any of the parties, or by any other in behalf of the plaintiff; but it shall be intended, that he shewed it of himself, and, that it was a piece of evidence, which he had about him before, and shewed it to inform himself and his fellows; and, as he might declare it as a witness, that he knew it to be true; so he might shew any thing which he knew: and therefore it is not like to 11 H. IV. 33. and 35 H. VI. Title Examination. They also held, that, if this were cause to avoid a verdict, if it had been so found by examination, as they conceived it was not, yet in regard it was not examined, nor made parcel of the record, it cannot be assigned for error. For Popham said,

ſaid, the trial hereof reſts only in the examination, and it ſhall not be per pais, as non-age ſhall be by inſpection, to avoid a fine; ſo this matter ſhould, to avoid the verdict; for, if ſo, then every verdict upon ſuch a ſurmiſe, might be drawn in queſtion, and peradventure, after the parties are dead, and all the jurors dead, ſo as they cannot be examined, which would be a great inconvenience. And therefore they held that ſuch a cauſe of ſtaying the judgment ought to be always, if it be upon verdict at niſi prius, upon the poſtea returned: and, if it be upon verdict in banco, it ought to be made parcel of the record; otherwiſe the party ſhall not take advantage of ſtaying the judgment or of aſſigning it for error.

Another error was aſſigned ore tenus, that the record is, ad quem diem, ſcilicit Octob. Trinitatis 39. præceptum eſt, quod habeat corpora Juratorum coram Juſticiariis in Banco in Craſtino Animarum, niſi Juſticiarii in partes illas venerint Octavo Julii proxime præterito, where it ought to have been proxime ſequente. Sed non allocatur: for it was ſaid, that all the precedents are ſo, in the common-bench, to make their entries as of the time paſt: but otherwiſe it is in this court. Wherefore the judgment was affirmed.

Afterwards, at another day, it was moved to have coſts allowed, and damages for the delay of execution, upon the ſtatute of 3 H. VII. cap. 10. whereupon it was doubted, becauſe it was in a formedon, in which (being the principal action) no coſts were allowable. But, notwithſtanding, upon conſideration of the ſtatute, for that the ſtatute is general, that, if a writ of error be brought before execution, and in delay of the execution, and the judgment be afterwards affirmed, that the demandant, or plaintiff, ſhall have coſts, and damages; and it mentions not any action: they all reſolved, that coſts and damages ſhould be given for delay of execution, although in the firſt action no damages were recoverable: wherefore it was adjudged accordingly.

in

Appeal of murder for the death of plaintiff's huſband. The defendant pleaded not guilty; and upon evidence at the bar it appeared, that two days before her huſband's death, he, and the defendant fighting upon a quarrel then between them, the defendant was hurt in that fray; and the third day after the plaintiff's huſband, paſſing by the defendant's ſhop, the defendant purſued him ſuddenly, and the huſband's back being towards him, ſo that he did not perceive him, the defendant ſtruck him upon the calf of his leg, whereof he inſtantly died. The defendant to excuſe himſelf, affirmed, that he who was ſlain, when he came by his ſhop, ſmiled upon him, and wryed his mouth at him; and therefore, for this mocking of him, he purſued him. And it was much inforced by the defendant's counſel, that it was a new cauſe of quarrel, and ſo the ſtroke is not upon any precedent malice, and therefore not murder. But all the court ſeverally delivered their opinions, that if one make a wry, or diſtorted mouth, or the like countenance upon another, and the other immediately purſues, and kills him, it is murder: for it ſhall be preſumed to be malice precedent; and that ſuch a ſlight provocation was not ſufficient ground, or pretence, for a quarrel; and ſo delivered the law

Watts v. Brains, M. 42 Eliz. Cro. Eliz. 778. Vide Co. Ent. 59. a. &c. Vide alſo Cro. Eliz. 695. Appeal of murder, malice prepenſe. The parties had quarrelled three days before.

to the jury, that it was murder, although what the defendant pretended had been true. Whereupon the jury going from the bar, notwithſtanding the evidence was pregnant againſt the defendant, eight of them agreed to find him not guilty: but the other four withſtood them, and would find it murder: and on the next morning, two of the four agreed with the eight, to find him not guilty: and afterwards the other two conſented in this manner, that they ſhould bring in and offer their verdict not guilty; and if the court diſliked thereof, that then they all ſhould change the verdict and find him guilty: and upon this agreement they came to the bar, and the foreman pronounced the verdict, that the defendant was not guilty: and the court much miſliking thereof, being contrary to their direction, examined every one of them by the poll, whether that was his verdict: and ten of the firſt part of the pannel, ſeverally, affirmed their verdict, that the defendant was not guilty: but the two laſt affirmed, how they agreed, and diſcovered the whole manner of their agreement: whereupon, they were ſent back again, and returned, and found the defendant guilty. And for this practice Harris, the foreman, was afterwards fined 100 marks, and the other ſeven who agreed with him at the firſt, every of them was fined 40 l. and the other two, who agreed with the eight, although they affirmed, that it was, becauſe they could not endure, or hold out any longer; yet, for that they did not diſcover the practice, being examined by poll, but affirmed the verdict, were fined each of them at 20 l. and all of them impriſoned: but the other two were diſmiſſed, yet blamed for ſuch a manner of conſenting

ſenting in abuſe of the court. And afterwards the defendant was adjudged to be hanged.

The court denied to grant a new trial, upon affidavit that the jury went by votes; tho' Serjeant Stroud ſaid it had been granted in the like caſe.

P. 2 Jac. II. B. R. Comb. 14.

A new trial was moved for upon affidavit, that the jury took an act of common-council out with them, and that printed libels were ſpread againſt the defendant, and it was denied: for as to the firſt it differs from the Lady Ives's caſe, where they took a map of one ſide, which was evidence on neither ſide: but this was an act of neither ſide, and evidence on both; but admitted to be irregular. Et per Holt, C. J. So if a jury eat at their own charge, 'tis fineable, but that verdict ſhall ſtand; otherwiſe if at the charge of one of the parties, and the verdict is found for him. Vide Mo. 599.

King v. Burdett M. 8 W. III. B. R. Salk. 645. Jury after going from the bar ſent for an act of common council given in evidence, and new trial denied.

A new trial was granted upon affidavit, that the foreman declared the plaintiff ſhould never have a verdict, whatever witneſſes he produced.

Dent v. Hundred of Hertford, M. 8 W. III. B. R. Sal. 645. See Fareſl. 31, and 37.

In an action brought againſt an officer, for a ſeizure abſque probabili cauſa, a new trial was granted, becauſe the jury threw up croſs or pile, whether they ſhould give the plaintiff three hundred pounds or five hundred pounds damages, and the chance for five hundred pounds came up. And note, the court now made a rule, that Middleſex juries at niſi prius ſhall be paid in court.

Mellish v. Arnold, M. 1719. Bunb. 51. New trial granted for miſbehaviour of the jury.

Note, The affidavits moved upon were made by perſons who heard the jurymen talk of the matter; and the jurymen did not think fit to make any affidavit to clear themſelves; ſo a new trial was granted.

A writ

The Queen v. the Bailiffs and Burgesses of Bewdley, in com. Worcester. M. 1712. B. R. 1 P. Wms. 207. Scire facias to repeal a charter.

A writ of scire facias issued out of the petty bag, in chancery, to repeal the charter granted to this borough septimo Annæ Regin'. Whereupon issue being joined, and the record transmitted into the crown-office of the queen's-bench, in Trinity term undecimo Annæ, the cause was tried at the bar of that court.

The points in issue were,

Vide the points opposite.

1st. Whether one Thomas Smith was duly elected bailiff on the 25th of September, 1707?

2dly. Whether there were a bailiff and burgesses (i. e. a corporation) in being at the time of granting this charter?

3dly. Whether that corporation refused this charter?

The case upon evidence, not being given by Mr. Williams, cannot be stated here, nor is it necessary: the two former were the principal questions; and the proof upon them was in short this:

As to the first point, it appeared, that by the charter of Jac. I. all the burgesses (as well common, as capital,) had a right of voting in the election of a bailiff, and that a bailiff might be chosen out of the burgesses.

That Smith was a common burgess under that charter, and that he was elected after the invalidity of king James II.'s charter was publicly known and acknowledged; and that the common burgesses qualified under the old charter were then admitted to vote, (which had not been done from the time of accepting king James II.'s charter, to that day,) and that Smith had the majority of those burgesses; but it appeared, that one Coldwell, the bailiff for the time being, who presided at this election, and took the poll, was in by virtue of the void charter, and that he was never so much as a common burgess under the old charter.

void

That he acted with fourteen capital burgesses, which is the number appointed by the void charter, and that the burgesses qualified by that charter were called, and voted promiscuously with those qualified by the old.

2dly. As to the second point, it appeared, that by the charter of king James I. the bailiff and capital burgesses were to do all corporate acts, and were originally to chuse in the common burgesses.

That upon the death or vacancy of any of the capital burgesses, the charter appoints that residuum capital' burgens' vel major pars eorund', shall chuse in others within fifteen days after such vacancy; that they had neglected to fill up vacancies for these twenty-two years last past, and that at the time of granting the charter of her present majesty, there was only one capital burgess in being (viz. one Slade,) qualified under the charter of king James I.

Upon this evidence several questions in law arose.

1st. As to Smith's election, whether that must not be taken to be one intire act, done under the direction of the illegal bailiff, by virtue of the charter of king James II. and consequently void; the old burgesses having submitted to be called by that bailiff, and voted promiscuously with the others, without distinction?

2dly. Whether, according to the charter of king James I. the capital burgesses were not to be taken to be extinct, there being but one remaining?

3dly. The capital burgesses being an integral part of the body, by the old charter, whether whether the corporation could ſubſiſt without them, or muſt, in defect of them, be diſſolved?

After ſome debate at the bar; the counſel for the defendants prayed a ſpecial verdict, and the chief juſtice, in ſumming up the evidence, directed the jury to reſerve theſe points; for that they were of too great moment to be determined without conſideration; but ſome diſputes ariſing thereupon among the judges, Parker, chief juſtice, ſaid, that the election of Smith to be bailiff ſeemed to him to be made under the void charter, and that it could not be under any other; that Coldwell was bailiff under that charter, and all the voters ſubmitted to his authority, which the old burgeſſes ought not to have done, but to have inſiſted upon their ancient right, and oppoſed the others joining with them; that it was a particular power given by the charter, and, in ſome degree, like the caſe of Wroth v. Wigs, 4 Rep. 39 b, very different from the caſe of electing members of parliament, (which had been mentioned at the bar) for there they all come under pretence of the ſame right, and by a proper authority to chuſe.

But ſuppoſing Smith was duly elected, there was no proper officer to ſwear him in, neither bailiff nor recorder, by the charter of king James I. for Coldwell was not ſo much as bailiff de facto, but a bailiff of a different corporation, as effectually as if he had been bailiff of another town. To make him a bailiff de facto, he muſt have been in under a right conſtitution; whereas he was in by a void one, and had no pretence of right by the old charter.

As to the ſecond queſtion his lordſhip ſaid, he could not think it within the intention of the charter, which appoints the vacancies of the capital burgesses to be filled up within fifteen days, that twenty-two years should be permitted to elapse, till these were all extinct to one man, and that one to have the power of electing all the rest.

As to the third, he thought it a question of great moment, whether this corporation could subsist without capital burgesses, they being made necessary to all corporate acts?

Powell J. could not think the corporation was dissolved for want of capital burgesses, but doubted whether they could act; that it was not material whether Coldwell was a lawful bailiff or not; for that the corporation might, upon their charter-day, chuse a bailiff, tho' there were none then in being, nor had been for twenty years before; not like the case of Wroth and Wigs, for that was of a judicial authority.

(a) Eyre J. thought the third question very considerable, (viz.) Whether, if a corporation loses one of its integral parts, it be not dissolved? vide 1 Rol. Abr. pag. 514. tit. Corporations; the case of a corporation consisting of brothers and sisters.

As to the second question he said, that when a corporation lapses the day of chusing its head, the royal authority must interpose; and in the interim, the operation of it ceases. That in this case there had not been a regular election of a bailiff for several years.

That if Smith was chosen in execution of the charter of Jac. II. tho' at an assembly not under that charter, he was in by virtue thereof; that it was held in the case of the Devizes, that a good mayor for the time being, is neceſſary to the election of another.

(a) Note; Mr. Justice Littleton Powis was absent all this term, being indisposed with the gout.

Notwithſtanding the court was ſo doubtful in theſe points, the jury were, however, very clear in them; and about three of the clock next morning gave a privy verdict, by which they found all the iſſues generally, for the queen, and affirmed it at the bar about ten; and tho' they were ſent out again by the court, perſiſted with great obſtinacy.

Hereupon the defendants came and moved that the verdict might be ſet aſide, upon theſe two points:

Where the jury bring in their verdict contrary to the direction of the court, a new trial may be granted, even after a trial at bar.

1ſt. For that the jury had found matter of law, and contrary to direction.

2dly, For that the venire was wrong awarded, being de vicineto de Bewdley, whereas by the 4th and 5th of queen Anne, cap. 16. for the amendment of the law, it ought to have been de corpore comitatûs.

The court, after advice with the juſtices of C. B. and barons of the Exchequer, gave their opinion upon the firſt point the ſame term; and the Lord Chief Juſtice delivered it as the opinion of all the judges of England, (except Powell) that when the defendant's counſel pray a ſpecial verdict, and the court direct the jury to find one, if the jury will take upon them to go contrary to that direction, and find matter of law; it is a ſufficient ground for a new trial, even after a trial at bar.

For that it would be very unreaſonable, that in caſes where the court and the jury are both of opinion againſt the party, there he ſhould have a remedy by a bill of exceptions; but that in caſes where the jury only are of opinion againſt him, and the court doubtful, he ſhould be absolutely concluded, and without remedy, as he must be in this case.

be

Powell J. contra: I do not very well know upon what foundation of law new trials have been granted; but I found the courts in possession of such a practice as to trials by nisi prius; but I do not know that this practice has been established as to trials at bar.

Indeed I do remember two in the exchequer in my time, but I was always of opinion against them, and that for these reasons, because one is a trial at common-law, and the other by special commission only; and because trials at bar are much more solemn, and attended with much greater charge to the parties, than the other.

I do not think any thing ought to be a ground for a new trial, after a trial at bar, but what would make the jury liable to an attaint.

Chief Justice: The first case of a new trial, which we find in the books, is that of Wood and Gunston, in Styles, 462. 466. and that was after a trial at bar.

Vide Post VI.

The practice of the courts is the law in these cases; and so of ejectments and rules for paying money into court, which have no other foundation.

In the case of Bristol v. Cooper *, a special verdict was prayed and directed, and the jury found generally; whereupon a new trial was granted for that reason.

* I can't find this case reported.

Dowman's case in the 9 Rep. is very observable, about the several duties of judges and jurors in this particular.

9 Co. the 1st. case.

In most cases, even where new trials, after trials at bar, have been denied, the judges have asserted the general right, and one reason why we do not find this practice more ancient,

may may be, that there are no old reports of motions.

Eyre J. I do not find the reasons for new trials confined to misdemeanors for which the jury may be fined; the case of Wood and Gunston was not so.

But if a new trial shall be granted in a case where the jury have done wrong, in a matter which is properly under their cognizance, I cannot see any reason why it may not be done in cases where they take upon them to determine matters not within their cognizance. Vide 1 Sid. 153 *.

* This is the case of Rex v. Fenwick and Holt. Vide post IX. (12.) (b.)

The counsel for the queen insisted, that this verdict being set aside for a misbehaviour of the jury, and not any fault in the prosecutor, costs ought to be allowed.

But the court said, there was no need of entering into that question, 'till the matter of the venire was determined; and adjourned the consideration of that 'till Michaelmas term following, for the advice of the other judges.

Accordingly in Michaelmas term (4 Nov.) this point was argued before all the judges of England, at Serjeant's-inn, in Fleet-street.

Serjeant Prat pro def. By the statute of the 4th and 5th of her present majesty for the amendment of the law, this venire ought to have been awarded de corpore comitatûs.

This is a case within the express words and intention of the act; the words are, "That "from and after the first day of Trinity term, "every venire facias in any action or suit in "any of the courts at Westminster, shall be "awarded of the body of the proper county;" and this is a suit in the court of chancery, in order to repeal the letters patent of the 7th of the present queen.

Neither

Neither is it leſs within the intention and miſchief deſigned to be prevented, as appears moſt plainly from the preamble, which recites, That whereas great delays do frequently " happen, by reaſon of challenges to the " array of panels of jurors, and to the polls, " for default of hundredors, for prevention " thereof, &c." Now this is a proceeding to which that miſchief extended; for at the trial there might have been a challenge to the array, for want of hundredors.

That there may be ſuch a challenge in the caſe of the crown, is what cannot, I think, be denied; for if the ſheriff be commanded to return a jury de vicineto, and there is not any hundredor upon the panel, he has not obeyed the command of the writ, and the challenge is for his default.

3 Keb. 740. In an information for perjury, a motion was made, that the defendant might not challenge for want of hundredors, and it was denied; becauſe the ſubject would thereby be ouſted of a privilege to which he is intitled by law.

The ſtatute of 23 H. VIII. cap. 13. enacts, that in trials for murder, in corporations, there ſhall be no challenge for want of freeholders; by which it appears, that there might be ſuch a challenge at common law, in the caſe of the crown; and certainly where freeholders are neceſſary, hundredors are equally ſo.

This act being made for the advancement of juſtice, it ought to have the moſt beneficial and extenſive conſtruction imaginable; but to ſay, that the crown ſhall not have a jury de corpore comitatûs, is to deprive it of the benefit and advantage of an act of parliament.

It is true, that, generally, the crown ſhall not be ouſted of its prerogative by an act of parliament, unleſs it be expreſsly mentioned; but that rule cannot affect this caſe, for here the crown had no prerogative: it was liable to the inconveniences recited in the preamble, as well as the ſubject, and then ſurely it ought not to be debarred of a ſhare in the remedy.

The intention of this act may be further collected from the next clauſe, which plainly proves, that the law-makers took it to extend to caſes of the crown; for it expreſsly excepts all appeals, indictments and proſecutions on penal ſtatutes, and what occaſion could there have been for that exception, if the former clauſe had not taken in any crown caſes at all?

But, I think, it deſerves to be conſidered, whether this proſecution be properly a ſuit of the crown or not? It ſeems to be no more than a contention between two corporations, whether the letters patent granted to one ſide; or thoſe granted to the other, ſhall prevail? Both are contending for a royal charter, and the crown is perfectly indifferent who obtains it; the judgment in this caſe will be only for the benefit of the party, for here can be no judgment of puniſhment for the uſurpation, as in informations in the nature of quo warranto's.

Sir Peter King: The words of this act are as general and comprehenſive as poſſible, "Every venire facias for the trial of any iſſue, "in any action or ſuit."

That there might be challenges both to the array, and to the polls, in the caſe of the crown, appears from Keilw. 102. a. And this ſtatute is made for the remedy of that miſchief mischief in all cases where it might possibly happen before, some few only being excepted by name. But in the present case, Mr. Attorney General is contending for the crown, that it shall not have the benefit of a very useful and advantageous law; this is like a man's disabling himself. Lit. sect. 410.

I know no instance in the law, where the crown is excluded out of general statutes made for the benefit and advantage of prosecutors. The cases, wherein the crown is held not to be bound, are, where it would otherwise be debarred of a precedent right or prerogative; but in the case at bar, the crown was before this act in the same condition with the subject; and I hope it will appear, that this is not placitum coronæ, but at most a civil action brought in the name of the crown. See Sir Oliver Butler's case, 2 Vent. 344. 3 Lev. 220. In Mr. Brewster's (a) case, Holt, C. J. said, this was a writ of right.

(a) 6 Mod. 229.

Though taking it either way, viz. as a suit of the crown, or of the subject, this venire is wrong, and if so, we are in the only method to take advantage of it: the sheriff has done his duty, and obeyed the command of the writ, and therefore we could not challenge the array, but come to the court to quash it: challenge is for the default of the sheriff, where the writ is right; quashing is for error in the writ itself.

Mr. Salkeld: The great objection in this case is, that the act of the 4 and 5 Annæ is a statute of jeofails, and that therefore this case is not comprehended within it. This act of parliament consists of distinct branches, which are separate laws; some of them are statutes of jeofails, and others statutes alterative of the common law; and the clause, upon which this question arises, is of the latter sort.

 com-

Statutes of jeofails concern such faults as would vitiate the judgment, and make it erroneous, if given, and are to enable the courts to amend such faults, or to overlook them, and to give judgment notwithstanding.

The clause about venire's is not of this nature, but is an intire alteration of the law in this particular, making that to be right now, which was wrong before, & sic vice versâ.

Statutes of jeofails make no alteration in the law; for the errors they concern, continue so notwithstanding, but only provide a remedy, that they may not prejudice the party.

The chief reason why the statutes of jeofails have not been held to extend to the crown is, that such words are used in them, as always exclude the crown, viz. plaintiff and defendant, demandant and tenant, &c. otherwise here.

So far as this is a statute of jeofails, the crown is not comprehended within it; but so far as it is an act of alteration, the crown is included.

Thus in 36 Ed. III. cap. 15. the first clause changes the course of pleading, and by that the king has been always held to be bound; but the second clause, which provides, "That "no man shall be prejudiced for want of form "in pleading," &c. being a law of jeofails, has for that reason been held not to extend to the crown; so of 16 and 17 Car. II. cap. 8.

Northey attorney general pro Reginâ: The practice of the Crown-office ever since the making of this act, in all cases of informations, as well in those not excepted, as in those comprised within the exception, has been to award

the

the venire de vicineto, and it was never controverted till now.

And to this purpose I would apply what I have heard my lord Hale say on like occasions, "That judges ought to have a great regard "to practice, when the matter is not res in-"tegra; and when things have gone on in "that course a great while, without being "broken in upon."

As to what has been said, that the words of this act extend to cases of the crown, the 4 Hen. VI. cap. 3. has words as general, viz. any process or plea, and yet was never taken to extend to the crown. The clause in the statute of (a) frauds, whereby executions are made to bind from the delivery of the writ to the sheriff, has general words, viz. every writ of execution, and yet the crown is held not to be bound by them, notwithstanding it had no prerogative in the case before. I wonder to hear this denied to be a suit of the crown, since the same being brought in the name of the crown, (though for the benefit of the party,) makes it the suit of the crown; as in quo warranto's, &c.

(a) 29 Car. II. cap. 3. sect. 16.

In a late case of a quo warranto of a claim of fishery in several vills, the venire was awarded from one only, and held well enough, because tried by a jury of the proper county; so in the case at bar.

If the resolution in this case should be contrary to the received practice, it would shake all the judgments that have been given upon informations since the making of this act.

Raymond solicitor general: The words in several other clauses in this statute are as general as in this, and yet the crown has been held not to be comprehended within them;

 for

for inſtance, that about demurrers, and that about pleading double; Regina v. Foley, a motion was made for liberty to plead double, and denied, becauſe not within the clauſe.

The words in ſome of the former ſtatutes of jeofails are as large and comprehenſive as here; however they have not been held to extend to the crown: nay, it appears to have been the opinion of the makers of this act, that neither thoſe ſtatutes, nor this of the 4th and 5th of her preſent majeſty, could take in crown-caſes; for they have added a clauſe at the end, to extend this and all the ſtatutes of jeofails to ſuits for recovery of debts owing to the revenue, which had been ſuperfluous, if the former clauſes had been inſufficient.

But if this caſe be held to be within the 4 and 5 Annæ, I hope the ſame reaſon will bring it within other acts of jeofails, which contain words as general and comprehenſive, and then it will be helped by 16 and 17 Car. II. cap. 8. the cauſe being tried by a jury of the proper county.

Mr. Lutwyche: It is conſiderable, in this caſe, who is the perſon that takes the exception to this proceſs, and how he is prejudiced by it? Why truly the defendant comes and complains, that he has had a greater advantage put in his power than he ſhould have had; that he has had a liberty of challenging given him, which, by law, he ought not to have had.

The principal reaſon why the ſtatutes of jeofails have not been taken to extend to the crown, is, becauſe it is not expreſsly named; and this reaſon holds in the act of the 4th and 5th of her preſent majeſty. See the 8th of

II.

H. VI. and alſo the late caſe of the Queen v. Tutchin (a.)

(a) Mich. 3 Annæ.

In Cro. Car. 311. the venire facias was awarded from the town, whereas it ought to have been from the manor; and held ill in a quo warranto; and that the ſtatute of 21 Jac. I. did not extend to it; notwithſtanding that had an exception of ſome other crown caſes, as in this act.

The clauſe about pleading double is general, and uſes the word [defendant] which is proper for all ſuits, and yet held not to extend to the crown.

It is no objection to ſay, that this is a ſuit for the benefit of the party; for ſo are informations in the nature of a quo warranto; but that this is properly a ſuit of the crown, appears, in that the attorney general replies, and the proceedings are in the crown-office; for, if it were not placitum coronæ, it ſhould have come on the civil ſide.

But if this act be taken to extend to the caſe at bar, there can be no reaſon why it ſhould not likewiſe be within the 16 and 17 Car. II. and it will be no objection to ſay, that this ariſes upon a ſubſequent act, for that ſtatute has always received a very large conſtruction, and been extended even to (a) local actions tried in wrong counties.

(a) Sed quære.

Serj. Pratt in his reply for the defendants: Regina v. Foley, was an information in the nature of a quo warranto, which is a criminal proceeding, and beſides, the reſolution was upon the clauſe about pleading double, which is not general; for though it uſes the word [defendant] which is a general term, yet it is reſtrained there by other words, viz. tenant and plaintiff in replevin.

 The

The case of Tutchin was upon a meer statute of jeofails; this is an intire alteration of the law.

The clause, which extends this, and all the statutes of jeofails, to cases of the crown, mentions only suits for the recovery of any debt, and therefore cannot affect the present question; and certainly if there be no provision for that purpose, it is impossible that those other statutes should extend to this cause, because it arises upon a subsequent statute which has made a perfect alteration of the law in this point.

Sir Peter King: As to the pleading double, see Poph. 144. The words of the statute of frauds cannot possibly extend to the crown; for they are, " every writ of fieri facias, or " other writ of execution," and fieri facias being first named, the subsequent words can only mean mesne executions at the suit of the party.

Mr. Salkeld: The 8th Hen. VI. cap. 12. is grafted on the former statute of Hen. V. and expresly tied down to it, so that no general words can carry it any further. Nothing can be inferred from any resolution upon the preceding clauses of this statute; for the very words of them exclude the crown, viz. 1st, Party demurring. 2dly, Plaintiff or demandant appearing by warrant of attorney. 3dly, Defendant or plaintiff in replevin.

After consideration, all the justices and barons were unanimous, and the lord chief justice delivered their opinion in court the same term.

In prosecutions of the crown, though since the late statute of the 4th and 5th of queen Anne the venire facias, which was awarded de vicineto, and not de corpore com', held good.

Parker, C. J.—We are all of opinion, though this clause might have extended to causes of the crown, had the objection come earlier, yet the constant practice, ever since the making of the act, having been otherwise, and all the precedents both in the Crown-office, fice, and in the Exchequer, (in cases not expressly excepted,) being de vicineto; to make a contrary resolution in this case, would be, in some measure, to overturn the justice of the nation for several years past; besides, we considered that it is matter of no great consequence; since it only gives the defendant a privilege of challenge, which otherwise he would not have.

It is a rule, indeed, that precedents sub silentio are of little or no authority: but that is to be understood of cases where there are judicial precedents to the contrary: but here there are none, either on one side, or the other. The chief baron mentioned a case in the Exchequer, which I remember: it was an information about the drawback upon salt, and there (as also in some others both here, and in that court) all the exceptions were taken that the wit of man could invent, but this was not so much as mentioned.

We did not think fit to break in upon an intire practice, and shake so many judgments upon a matter of so small moment; and therefore are all of opinion, that the venire is well awarded.

The rule must be, that the last trial be set aside upon the other point, on payment of costs.

About three days after this rule for a new trial was pronounced; the defendant moved, that some persons might be named to receive the costs, it not appearing certainly, who was the prosecutor in this cause.

Whereupon, Mr. attorney general named Borret, the queen's solicitor, and acquainted the court, that the prosecution was carried on at the proper expence of the crown.

Afterwards the solicitors on both sides went before the master, and the costs were taxed on Saturday the 22d of November.

And on the Tuesday following Mr. Lechmere made a motion, upon notice, against the taxation of costs in general, and against some items allowed by the master in particular.

The defendant shall pay costs for a new trial on a scire facias being brought by the crown to repeal a charter.

He insisted, that though they had submitted to a rule for the payment of costs, when the cause appeared, even upon the plaintiff's own shewing, to be merely a contention between the old and new corporations, upon the validity of their several charters; yet now it appeared in another light, and was owned by the attorney general as a government prosecution, carried on at the charge of the crown, they ought not to be stopped by that rule, from making it a question, whether in the case of the crown, costs are due by law, this being the first time they took advantage of that point. Quod fuit concess' per cur'.

To prove that in cases of the crown, or such as are properly government-prosecutions, costs are not due, he urged the course of the Exchequer, where costs are never paid, unless there be a relator, or some other security to answer costs to the party; which there was not in this case, nor could there be, because the prosecution was in rem, and not in personam; and for that he produced a manuscript of baron Lechmere.

That on the crown side in this court, costs had been so far from being allowed in any case, that it had been thought necessary to provide by (a) act of parliament, that there should be a recognizance given to answer costs in some particular cases; but this was none of those; that the law had provided no judgment, ment, nor process for costs, nor method to bring them into the Exchequer.

(a) Vide 4th and 5th Gul' and Mar', cap. 18.

That if it were otherwise, it would be very unequal; for the queen paid no costs for not going on to trial; nay, Mr. attorney might enter a noli prosequi, or a cesset processus *, even when the jury were ready to give their verdict at the bar, without costs to the subject.

* Vide post Rex v. Benson, XI.

In the case of the Queen v. Collins, (Michaelmas 10 Annæ) in an information for a battery upon a custom-house officer, in the execution of his office, a motion was made for costs for not going on to trial; and upon Mr. Harcourt's affirmation, that no costs were ever allowed in government prosecutions, the same was denied.

That in the case of the Queen v. Clerk, which was an information for a nuisance, viz. for erecting copper mills upon the river Thames, there was a verdict for the queen, which by consent was set aside upon payment of costs; the second verdict was for the defendant, who thereupon moved for costs, which were denied for this reason, (scil.) because the statute of the 24th of Hen. VIII. cap. 8. extends only to trials by nisi prius, and not at the bar, as it was in that case.

So in Hill. 3 W. & M. in Scacc' in my lord Montgomery's case, which was an inquisition on his estate, and but in the nature of an ejectment, there was a verdict for the defendant, and a new trial granted without costs.

Vide post XI.

That here was no prerogative in the case, for the queen and subject were on an equal foot, and if the queen did not pay costs, she ought to receive none.

That this verdict was set aside as unjust, for a misbehaviour of the jury in the face of her her majesty, who was supposed to be always present in her court of Queen's-bench, which court saw plainly, no just judgment could be entered up on that verdict, and yet the defendants were told, that this injustice must be fastened upon them, unless they paid two or three hundred pounds, to be delivered from it; surely this was to pay for justice, contrary to magna charta, which says, nulli vendimus justitiam.'

'That in capital cases, if a jury should obstinately find generally, where the court had directed them to find the matter specially, the court, no doubt, would set aside such verdict, and that without costs; they would not take away the life of a man, because he had not money to pay costs to the crown.

Now the consequence of this suit was of equal concern to this corporation, as that of a capital prosecution, to the life of a particular person; for the very life and being of this corporation were in question; and if costs were once admitted in the case, those writs of scire facias, though they had not yet so harsh a sound in the ears of Englishmen, yet, he would undertake to prove, they would have ten times more pernicious effects than quo warranto's of old; for a judgment in a quo warranto did not destroy the franchise, but a corporation might still, notwithstanding that, have another struggle for its liberty; but in the case of a scire-facias, the judgment was a repeal of the charter; and if a jury could for once be so managed, as to give a partial verdict, it was but getting such costs taxed as a poor borough was not able to pay, and the business would be done; they could not pay the costs, and without that, they should not have

have a new trial in order to come at right and justice.—This was laying the ax to the root of the tree.—The crown indeed was always an unequal match for the subjects: but if the weight of costs were thrown into the scale, this would become such an addition, as would make its prosecutions (a) heavier than they would be able to bear.

Hale v. Cove, M. 12 G. Stra. 642. Where the jury drew lots, the court set aside the verdict though it was according to evidence.

The jury having sat up all night, agreed in the morning to put two papers into a hat, marked P. and D. and so draw lots; P. came out, and they found for the plaintiff, which happened to be according to the evidence and the opinion of the judge.

Upon motion for a new trial, it was argued that the verdict must be set aside; but the question was, whether the defendant should pay costs; the court inclined to give the plaintiff costs, comparing it to the case of a verdict against evidence: but at last it was agreed that the costs should wait the event of the new trial.

Parr v. Seames and others, M. 8 G. II. Barnes 438. The jury differing in opinion, agree to be determined by hustling half-pence in an hat.

Chapple moved to set aside defendant's verdict; the jurors upon differing in opinion, agreed to be determined by hustling half-pence in a hat; if the major part came up heads, the verdict was to be for defendants; but this matter not appearing upon the oath of any of the jurors, but by affidavit, that two of them had confessed the same, the court, upon the first motion, ordered the entry of final judgment to be stayed for a few days only, to give plaintiff an opportunity to procure affi-

(a) By the records in the Crown-office it appears, that the defendants were, notwithstanding, ordered to pay costs, and that afterwards on a new trial, the jury found a special verdict, but this does not appear to have been ever argued.

davits

davits from fome of the jurors; but it afterwards appearing that the jurors were fearful to make affidavits whereby to accufe themfelves, and Chapple citing a cafe in Salk. 645. Dent againft the hundred of Hertford, the court enlarged the rule upon hearing counfel on both fides till next term. Comyns for plaintiff.

Vide ante.

Lord St. John v. Abbot, M. 9 G. II. Barnes 441. Several of the jurors leave their companions, and are abfent for fome time.

This caufe was tried at the laft Northampton affizes before Mr. Juftice Reeve; and after the evidence was fummed up in the forenoon, the jury retired to confider of their verdict: before the rifing of the court they came into court, attended by the bailiff, to afk a queftion, which was anfwered, and they were fent back. At the fitting of the court in the afternoon, the judge was informed that fome of the jurymen (two or three) were in court; whereupon being afked by him what they did there, anfwered they could not agree, and were thereupon fent back to their fellows; and afterwards a verdict was brought in for plaintiff. The judge did not certify the verdict to be contrary to evidence; the court was of opinion that this was a mifbehaviour in the jury, for which they are finable; but not a fufficient caufe to fet afide the verdict; plaintiff was not in fault. If the jury eat and drink at their own expence, that is a mifbehaviour, for which they are finable, but their verdict muft ftand; though it is otherwife if they eat and drink at the expence of either party. Rule to fhew caufe why verdict fhould not be fet afide, difcharged. Belfield for plaintiff, Birch for defendant.

Philips v. Fowler, E. 8 G. II Barnes 441.

After a motion in arreft of judgment, and pending the confideration of the court, it being difclofed to defendant by two of the jurors, that that they and their fellows being divided in opinion had determined their verdict by casting lots. Defendant moved to set aside the verdict upon an affidavit of the fact made by the two jurors *; and upon hearing counsel on both sides, the question was, Whether after a motion in arrest of judgment, defendant in this case could move to set aside the verdict? And the lord chief justice, Mr. justice Denton, and Mr. justice Comyns were of opinion, that though this motion seems out of time by the general rule of practice, yet as it is founded upon a matter disclosed to the defendant after the motion in arrest of judgment, and is made before judgment pronounced, the court must receive it; and the fact, as to the jurors determining by chance being undisputed, the verdict was set aside. (Mr. justice Fortescue, contra.) Vide lord Fitzwater's case *. Salk. 647. Skinner and others for defendant: Chapple and others for plaintiff.

Jury cast lots to determine their verdict.

* Vide infra this head, Vasie v. Delaval.

* Post IX. (12.)

Serjeant Belfield moves to set aside a verdict, because after the jurors were retired, one of them came out from the rest, and came to the attorney of the other side, and received a bundle of papers from him, which he carried in to the rest.

Fortescue contra, alledges that this was nothing more than a map of the premises, which the judge had held in his hand all the trial.

Lord Hardwicke: It will depend only on this, whether it was delivered to the jury by consent of both parties, for if that appeared, it would prevent the parties alledging any thing against it; but as no such consent appears here, the verdict must be set aside.

Jennings v. Warne, East. 8 G. II. B. R. Annaly 116. After the jury had retired, one left the rest, and went to the attorney for one of the parties, received a bundle of papers, and carried them to the rest of the jury, and afterwards gave a verdict for that party.

Upon

Vasie v. Delaval, M. 26 G. III. B. R. Durnford and East, 1 V. 11. Affidavit of a juror that the jury having been divided, tossed up, and that the plaintiff had won, rejected.

Upon a motion by Law for a rule to set aside a verdict, upon an affidavit of two jurors, who swore that the jury, being divided in their opinion, tossed up, and the plaintiff's friends won, Hale v. Cove, 1 Stra. 642. * was cited.

Per LORD MANSFIELD, Ch. J.

The court cannot (a) receive such an affidavit from any of the jurymen themselves, in all of whom such conduct is a very high misdemeanor (b): but in every such case the court must derive their knowledge from some other source; such as from some person having seen the transaction through a window, or by some such other means.

Rule refused.

* Vide ante.

(a) Vide Barnes 438, 441, 4to edition.

(b) Vide Cro. Eliz. 779.

IV. Of

IV. Of Verdicts contrary to Evidence, of hard Actions, and where there is Evidence on both Sides.

Vide Post VI. Farmer v. Sir Robert Darling; VIII. Patman v. Vaughan; and IX. (6.) Smith ex dm. Dormer, v. Parkhurst & al.

The following cases are, in general, arranged in chronological order, and not always classed, according to the above sub-divisions.

Hall v. White, Pas. 5 Jac. 1 Brownl. 207. If a book which ought not, be given in evidence, the court above cannot remedy it, except it be returned with the postea. Sed qu.

In trespass for impounding the plaintiff's cattle, the defendant justified for common, and upon that they were at issue in Derbyshire, and the jurors being sworn, the bailiff found Bagshaw, one of the jurors, reading a letter concerning the cause, and shewed it to the judge, and a verdict given by the jury: and this matter was moved in the then king's-bench to quash the verdict, but denied by the whole court, because the letter and the cause was not certified by the postea, and made parcel of it; for, otherwise, the examination of that at the bar after the verdict, shall never quash it. And so it was adjudged between Vicary and Farthing, 39 Eliz. where a church-book was given in evidence, of which you shall never have remedy, except it be entered and made parcel of the record. Sed Qu.

Vide Post. IX. (4.)

Case

Smith v. Bramston, M. 7. W. III. B. R. 1 Salk. 644. No new trial, the action being an hard one.

Case for negligently keeping his fire, verdict pro def. Tho' the verdict was against evidence, a new trial was denied, because it is an hard action; yet note, action against the hundred for a robbery, verdict pro def. and new trial granted. 1 Sid. 58.

In the same book and page is the following case:

Smith v. Frampton, M. 7. W. III. B. R. 1 Salk. 644. Hard action, 1 L. Ray 623. S. C.

In case for negligently keeping his fire, per quod, the plaintiff's house was burnt, the verdict was for the defendant: and after great debate and consideration a new trial was denied, because it is an hard action and the jurors are judges of the fact: and yet Holt C. J. declared, he was not satisfied with that verdict. Quære whether the same case with the preceding?

Dunkly v Wade Pasch. 5 Ann. B. R. 1 Salk. 653.

In case for negligently keeping his fire, a verdict was found for the plaintiff, and a new trial granted. But per cur; had a verdict been for the defendant, we would hardly have granted a new trial, because 'tis an hard action.

Hard action.

N. B. By Stat. 6 An. c. 31. f. 6. it is enacted, that no action shall be prosecuted against any person, in whose house, &c. any fire accidentally begins, &c. This section is made perpetual by 10 An. c. 14. f. 1. Sed qu. if not repealed. Vide 12 G. III. c. 73. 14 G. III. c. 78. f. 101.

Anonymous P. 8 W. III. B. R. 1 Salk. 644.

The court never, or very rarely, grants new trials in actions for words, per Holt, C. J.

Starr. v. Wade. P. 10 W. III. B. R. 1 Salk. 647.

Lessor brought trover against the lessee, for trees cut down; yet because the lessee did it in trenching, and the plaintiff had thereby greater advantage, tho' the jury found for the defendant, yet the court would not grant a new trial.

Hard action.

Sparks v. Spicer, H. 10. W. III. B. R. 1 Salk. 648. Hard action. No intent to injure or offend.

One was ordered by the judge of assise to be hanged in chains; the officer hung him in privato solo; the owner brought trespass, and upon not guilty the jury found for the defendant, fendant, and the court would not grant a new trial, it being done for convenience of place, and not to affront the owner.

An action brought for 50 l. penalty, for felling half a pint of cherry brandy. The fact was proved upon the trial to be done by defendant's wife; but several circumstances appeared to shew, that she was unwarily drawn in by false pretences. Lord Chief Justice Eyre, who tried the cause, directed the jury to find for plaintiff, but they found for defendant contrary to evidence. Belfield moved for a new trial, and a rule nisi causa was granted, but was afterwards discharged upon shewing cause; the action being hard, and the case having been represented to the commissioners of excise, who refused to direct a prosecution.

Philips, qui tam, v. Scullard. E. 6 Geo. II. Barnes 435. Hard action: and penal.

Two issues were joined between the parties; and upon trial both were found for plaintiff. Defendant moved for a new trial, and Mr. Baron Comyns, before whom the cause was tried, certified the verdict as to one of the issues to be contrary to evidence; but as to the other issue certified it to be right. The court, upon hearing council on both sides, were of opinion that the verdict could not be severed, and being right in part must stand. Bayner for defendant; Darnal for plaintiff.

Huddlestone, v. Brigstock and others. M. 7 Geo. II. Barnes 436. Both issues found for plaintiff; one right, the other against evidence.

Vide Post IX. (6.) Brookes dem. Mence. v. Baldwyn.

Vide Post V. Edie. & ano. v. East-Ind. Co. Cont.

In ejectment. This cause was tried before lord chief justice at the sittings, and a verdict obtained by lessor of plaintiff. Defendant moved to set aside the verdict, upon affidavits that some material witnesses for him, absented themselves, and did not appear upon the trial; and also prayed the chief justice's certificate, suggesting that the verdict was contrary to evidence

Letgoe, upon the Demise of Wheeler, v. Pitt. Barnes 439. Verdict against Evidence. New trial.

evidence. The court rejected the affidavits relating to the witnesses absenting, as immaterial. The chief justice certified, that the premises in question were copyhold, and both parties claimed under one George Cromwell, who had made two several surrenders. The question upon the trial was, whether Cromwell was compos mentis at the time of the surrender under which the defendant claimed? That nothing was objected to Cromwell's insanity 'till twelve years after such surrender; and that the chief justice was of opinion the strength of the evidence was with the defendant. The court ordered a new trial upon payment of costs. Eyre and Glyde for lessor of plaintiff; Chapple and Wright for defendant.

Howe and Granville M. 1 Ann. B.R. 7 Mod. 117. Evidence on both sides.

A new trial was denied after a view, there being evidence on both sides.

Ashley v. Ashley M. 14 Geo. II. in B. R. 2. Stra. 1142. No new trial where there is evidence on both sides.

The judge who tried this cause (which was upon a promissory note for 5000 l. and which the defendant insisted was forged) certified that the weight of the evidence was with the plaintiff, and he thought the jury would find for the plaintiff; but they found for the defendant.

Et per curiam, as there was evidence on the part of the defendant, the jury are the proper judges which scale preponderates. It cannot be said to be a verdict against evidence, and therefore we will grant no new trial. The next day

Smith v. Huggins & al. ibid. evidence on both sides.

The same rule was laid down, and a new trial denied: though there was but weak evidence for the plaintiff, and the chief justice summed up strongly for the defendant.

Anonymous T. 16. and 17. Geo. II. B. R. 1 Wils. 22.

On a motion for a new trial in an action by the owner of the inheritance for making a dam cross an ancient water-course, the judge who tried tried the cause, certified that six witnesses were examined at the trial on each side; that the jury found for the defendant, which was against his opinion, but that he could not take upon himself to say that this was a verdict against evidence, because there was evidence on both sides, so a new trial was refused.

No new trial shall be where there was evidence on both sides, though a verdict be against the judge's opinion who tried the cause.

The defendant's council shewed cause against the court's granting a new trial upon payment of costs; which had been moved for, by the plaintiff's council, upon the foot of the verdict's being against evidence.

Macrow v. Hull, M. 30. Geo II. B. R. 1. Burr. 11. Against evidence, but action frivolous.

Mr. Just. Foster (who tried the cause) reported it to be an action of trespass, extremely frivolous; but sufficiently proved. He said that the defence was a very strong one indeed, in mitigation of damages; but yet was not a sufficient denial of the trespass: so that, in strictness, the verdict was undoubtedly against evidence; however, he thought the action so trifling, frivolous, and vexatious, that he should have thought six-pence damages to have been enough.

Whereupon the court held, that NOTWITHSTANDING it's being a verdict AGAINST evidence, (which in general is a good reason for setting aside a verdict and granting a new trial,) yet the action appearing, in this case, to be frivolous, trifling, and vexatious, and the REAL damages little or none, they ought to refuse, and accordingly did refuse to set aside the verdict: and Lord Mansfield added that it would even be a cruelty to the plaintiff, to grant his motion; as he must pay the costs of the former trial, if he should prevail in it; and yet could hope for such very small damages upon a new one. Rule discharged. Vide Post. the next case, S. P. accord.

Farewell, Esq; v. Chaffey and others. M. 30. Geo. II. 1 Burr. 54.
Verdict against evidence, but the action frivolous.

This cause was tried upon the western circuit, the last Summer assises, before Mr. Serjeant Willes; who certified "that the weight of the "evidence was against the verdict." But a new trial was denied, upon the nature of the action, the value of the matter in dispute, and other circumstances of the case. *

* Vide ante the preceding case, Macrow v. Hull. S. P. and Post. Dr. Burton v. Thompson. M. 1758. S. P.

Lord MANSFIELD said, A NEW TRIAL ought to be granted, to attain REAL justice; but not to gratify litigious passions, upon every point of summum jus; and cited Smith v. Bramston, and Smith v. Frampton, in 2 Salk. 644. and an anonymous case there also mentioned, of P. 8 W. III. B. R. and likewise Smith v. Page, M. 8. W. III. B. R. ibidem; also Deerly v. The Dutchess of Mazarine, H. 8. W. III. B. R. 2 Salk. 646. and Sparks v. Spicer, H. 10. W. III. B. R. in the same book, pa. 648. To which may be added, what is said by the court, in the case of Dunkly v. Wade. P. 5. Ann. 2 Salk. 653.

Vide ante.
Vide Tab. Caf.
Vide ante.

In these cases, the verdicts were against evidence, and the strict rule of law, or obtained through surprize: but the court would not give a second chance of success to a hard action, or an unconscionable defence.

Therefore the court, upon the same principles, refused to grant a new trial in the present case, and discharged the rule to shew cause why there should not be one.

Rex v. White and Ward, E. T. 30 Geo. II. B. R. 1 Burr. 333.
Motion for a new trial, where defendants convicted of a nuisance, on the ground of the verdict being against evidence

The defendants had been convicted of a NUISANCE, in erecting and continuing their works at Twickenham, for making acid spirit of sulphur, oil of vitriol, and oil of aqua fortis. The indictment ran thus, viz. That "at the "PARISH of Twickenham, &c. near the king's "common highway there, and near the dwel-"ling houses of several of the inhabitants,

"the

"the defendants erected twenty buildings for "making noisome, stinking and offensive liquors; and then and there made fires of "sea-coal and other things, which sent forth
"abundance of noisome, offensive and stinking
"smoke; and made, &c. great quantities of "noisome, offensive, stinking liquors; called, &c.
"whereby and by reason of which noisome,
"offensive, and stinking, &c. the air was
"impregnated with noisome and offensive stinks
"and smells; to the common nusance of all
"the king's liege subjects, inhabiting, &c. and "travelling and passing the said king's com"mon highway, and against the peace, &c."

Sir Richard Lloyd—for the defendants—(on Monday, 15th November, 1756,) would have moved a mixed motion; viz. both for a new trial, and also in arrest of judgment; or, at least, in arrest of judgment first, and for a new trial afterwards. But

The court held that neither of these methods could consist with the GENERAL RULE of the court, or with a particular rule made in this case, to give them leave to move either of these motions on this day, though the four days given upon the postea were expired. Whereupon Sir Richard was obliged to begin with the motion for a new trial. And he said that this indictment was laid for making a liquor from whence the air was impregnated with noxious, hurtful, unwholsome, and stinking qualities: and the English word, "noxious" answers to the Latin "nocivus." But it appeared he said, upon the evidence, that the fumes, however offensive and disagreeable to many persons, were by no means in reality noxious, hurtful, or unwholsome; but the contrary.

Rule to ſhew cauſe: With this addition,— "That the defendants ſhould have three days "time to move in arreſt of judgment; after "the court ſhall have given their opinion "upon the preſent motion, for a new trial, as "upon a verdict AGAINST evidence."

On Tueſday the 23d. of the ſame month, Mr. Juſt. DENISON reported the evidence; which was of great length, he ſaid, there being about 75 witneſſes on each ſide: however, he collected the ſubſtance of it together in his report.

It appeared to be very ſtrong on the part of the proſecution: and he declared himſelf ſatisfied with the verdict. And it appeared upon his report, that the ſmell was not only intolerably offenſive, but alſo noxious and hurtful, and made many perſons ſick, and gave them head-achs.

Mr. Juſt. FOSTER ſaid that "noiſome" and "noxious" were ſynonimous terms; and that there was no other Latin word for "noxious," but "nocivus."

The rule was therefore DISCHARGED, as to ſetting aſide the verdict.

Bright, Exter. of Hannah Criſp, widow, v. Eynon. T. 30 and 31. Geo. II. B. R. 1 Burr. 390. Evidence on both ſides.

The plaintiff's counſel moved for a NEW TRIAL, upon payment of coſts; and obtained a rule "to ſhew cauſe why this verdict ſhould not be SET ASIDE upon payment of coſts."

Lord Mansfield ſaid that he did not chooſe, in any cauſe, tried before him, to conclude the matter by a ſhort report, "that he was "ſatisfied, or diſſatisfied, with the verdict." He would ſtate the caſe particularly to the court; and reſerve declaring his opinion of the verdict, (which he had not yet intimated, either at the trial or ſince,) 'till he had heard the counſel on both ſides.

This

This was an action upon the case, brought by the plaintiff, as executor of Hannah Crisp, widow, deceased, against the defendant, upon a promissory note, in the following words, (all of the defendant's own writing,) which was proved and read: "I acknowledge to have "borrowed of Mrs. Hannah Crisp, this 29th. "day of September, 1753, the sum of 60 l. "for which I promise to pay 5 l. per cent. per "annum, and to be accountable for the whole, "six months after notice given for that pur-"pose. John Eynon. September 29th, 1753."

The defendant set up a discharge, by a writing in the following words: "I promise unto John "Eynon, that, in consideration of his paying "unto ME, interest for 60 l. he has of mine, "during my life, after the rate of 5 l. per "cent. per annum, that then the said 60 l. at "my decease, shall be his, and his note for "the same shall be void, and of none effect. "Witness my hand, this 10th day of October, "1753. Hannah Crisp." The body was all his own hand; but he called two witnesses who said they believed the name subscribed to be the hand of the testatrix: but their knowledge of her hand was very slight, one of them having only seen her sign a receipt.

He alledged that she gave this discharge, in consideration of a marriage between him and Rebecca Bright his now wife, (sister to the plaintiff.)

He produced a will, in his own custody, bearing date the 11th of August, 1753, by which the testatrix had made the said Rebecca Bright her executrix and residuary legatee.

This marriage was not till May, 1754: the testatrix died in April, 1756.

It

It came out, upon his own evidence, that the testatrix was not worth 200 l. and that she paid five shillings a week, or at the rate of 13 l. a year, for her board. He could make no proof of the consideration alledged: the farthest that any of his witnesses went was to say, "that the testatrix seemed to approve the "match."

The plaintiff in reply, insisted "that the "signature was forged." Josiah Bright swore, that the defendant's wife did not know the defendant had borrowed any money from the testatrix, 'till after she was married. After she was acquainted with it, she pressed him to pay the money, out of a legacy of 150 l. from one Sarah Hart, which he received: for the testatrix might call it in. The defendant bid her not be uneasy: "for I must have six "months notice."

Several witnesses proved, that Hannah Crisp, about Michaelmas, 1754, talked of calling in the money upon this note, and lending it to other persons.

That in 1755 and 1756, she ordered letters to be wrote to the defendant for the money; when she gave these orders, she produced the defendant's note, and said "the interest was "not enough to maintain her."

It was proved that the defendant entered a caveat at Doctors-commons, in April, 1756: and when he found she had made a will in favour of the plaintiff, and consequently revoked that which was in favour of his wife; he was very warm, and mentioned a note from him to her; and declared he would not withdraw his caveat, unless it was given up.

The plaintiff examined no witness, to say the signature was not her hand; by way of rejoinder, rejoinder, they called witneſſes to the defendant's character: who gave him a good one.

The defendant inſtructed his counſel to ſay, that he always underſtood the gift to be revocable by Hannah Criſp during her life; but if ſhe did not revoke or call in the money during her life, then the debt was to be diſcharged.

The principal queſtion made at the trial was, " whether this latter note was forged, or " not." And as to that, the two witneſſes who believed it to be her hand, were not oppoſed by any witneſſes to the contrary: the reaſon given, was, that they had no opportunity of getting it inſpected.

His lordſhip ſaid, he left two queſtions to the jury: (1ſt.) " Whether the name of the " teſtatrix was forged; (2nd.) If they took it upon the evidence laid before them to be her hand, then " Whether it was not obtained by " fraud, and without her knowing the contents " and effects of the writing ſhe ſigned."

The jury found for the defendant.

Lord Mansfield intimated nothing, then, as to his own opinion of the caſe; and profeſſedly avoided doing it now, 'till he ſhould have heard the counſel.

They were accordingly heard. And they who ſhewed cauſe againſt the rule, went very much at large into the propriety and riſe of granting new trials. They urged that a verdict ought to be concluſive, where evidence of any ſort was given on both ſides. That the forgery here was the only queſtion: and if the plaintiff objected fraud and impoſition, he muſt go to a court of equity for relief.

Lord Mansfield.—Trials by jury, in civil cauſes, could not ſubſiſt now, without a power, ſomewhere, to grant new trials.

If

If an erroneous judgment be given in point of law, there are many ways to review and set it right.

Where a court judges of fact upon depositions in writing, their sentence or decree may, many ways, be reviewed and set right.

But a general verdict can only be set right by a new trial: which is no more than having the cause more deliberately considered by another jury; when there is a reasonable doubt, or perhaps a certainty, that justice has not been done.

The writ of attaint is now a mere sound, in every case: in many it does not pretend to be a remedy.

There are numberless causes of false verdicts, without corruption or bad intention of the jurors. They may have heard too much of the matter, before the trial; and imbibed prejudices, without knowing it. The cause may be intricate: the examination may be so long as to distract and confound their attention.

Most general verdicts include legal consequences, as well as propositions of fact: in drawing these consequences, the jury may mistake, and infer directly contrary to law.

The parties may be surprized, by a case falsely made at the trial, which they had no reason to expect, and therefore could not come prepared to answer.

If unjust verdicts, obtained under these and a thousand like circumstances, were to be conclusive for ever, the determination of civil property in this method of trial, would be very precarious and unsatisfactory. It is absolutely necessary to justice, that there should, upon many occasions, be opportunities of reconsidering the cause by a new trial. And it is done in a way very very favourable to the parties for whom the wrong verdict is given: it is, upon payment of costs. Whereas in other cases where a wrong judgment is reversed, costs are paid as if the right judgment had been given in the first instance.

It is NOT true "that no new trials were "granted before 1655:" as has been said from Style 466.

In Slade's case, M. 24. C. 1. (which was in 1648,) in B. R. reported in Style 138. The court was moved for judgment formerly stayed upon a certificate, made by Baron Atkins, "That the verdict passed against his opinion." Bacon justice said, "judgments HAVE BEEN arrested in the common-pleas, upon such certificates." Hales, of counsel with the defendant, prayed that the judgment in that case of Slade might be arrested, and that there might be a new trial; for that it HAD BEEN DONE THERETOFORE, in like cases. Indeed that case, as there reported, represents Roll justice to hold "that it ought not to be stayed, though it "have been done in the common-pleas: for that "it was too arbitrary for them to do it." And he adds, "You may have your attaint against "the jury; and there is no other remedy in "law for you; but it were good to advise the "party to suffer a new trial, for better satis-"faction."

In the case of Wood v. Gunston, Michaelmas, 1665, Banc. Sup. Style 466. (which was an action upon the case, for speaking scandalous words of the plaintiff, and a verdict for the plaintiff, with 1500 l. damages,) the defendant moved for a new trial. And Glyn chief justice said, "It was in the discretion of the court, in "some cases, to grant a new trial; but this "must

Vide Post VI.

"must be a judicial and not an arbitrary dis"cretion. And it is FREQUENT IN OUR "BOOKS, for the court to take notice of the "miscarriages of juries, and to grant new
"trials upon them. And it is for the people's "benefit that it should be so: for a jury may "sometimes, by indirect dealings, be moved
"to side with one party, and not to be in"different betwixt them; but it cannot be so "intended of the court." And in that case a new trial was ordered, upon the defendant's paying full costs; the judgment standing as a security to pay what might be recovered upon the next verdict.

The reason why this matter cannot be traced farther back, is that the old report-books do not give any account of determinations made by the court upon motions."

Indeed, for a good while after this time, the granting of new trials was holden to a degree of strictness so intolerable, that it drove the parties into a court of equity, to have, in effect, a new trial at law, of a mere legal question, because the verdict in justice, under all the circumstances, ought not to conclude: and many bills have been retained upon this ground; and the question tried over again at law, under the direction of a court of equity; and therefore of late years, the courts of law have gone more liberally into the granting of new trials, according to the circumstances of the respective cases. And the rule laid down by lord Parker, in the case of the queen against the corporation of Helston, H. 12 Ann. B. R.
(Lucas 202.) seems to be the best general rule that can be laid down upon this subject, viz.
"doing justice to the party," or in other words, attaining the justice of the case."

Vide post IX. (12.)

The

The REASONS for granting a new trial muſt be collected from the whole evidence, and from the nature of the caſe, conſidered under all its circumſtances.

The power may be exerciſed at much leſs expence of time and money, therefore more beneficially for the ſubject, by the court of common law where the cauſe has been tried.

Of late years, new trials have been granted not only after trials at niſi prius, but alſo after trials at bar. And it is at leaſt equally reaſonable to do it after trials at bar, as after trials at niſi prius, (if the juſtice of the caſe demands it;) or indeed, rather more ſo, as the latter muſt be done upon what could have actually and perſonally appeared to a ſingle judge only, whereas the former is grounded upon what muſt have manifeſtly and fully appeared to the whole court.

I come now to the preſent verdict; and ſhould be ſorry that the queſtion depended upon my being ſatisfied, or diſſatisfied: and therefore I have ſtated the whole.

If the matter in diſpute was of great value, I will not ſay that all the ſuſpicious circumſtances might not be a ground for a new trial; to give the plaintiff an opportunity of getting the inſtrument inſpected by perſons acquainted with her hand: though I think upon the evidence laid before the jury, the verdict, in that reſpect, was right.

What I go upon is the apparent manifeſt FRAUD and IMPOSITION in obtaining the diſcharge from the teſtatrix, if SHE really ſigned it.

FRAUD OR COVIN may, in judgment of the law, avoid every kind of act: many inſtances are put in Fermor's caſe, 3 Co. 77.

" What circumſtances and facts amount to " ſuch fraud or covin," is always a queſtion of law. Courts of equity, and courts of law, have a concurrent juriſdiction, to ſuppreſs and relieve againſt FRAUD. But the interpoſition of the former is often neceſſary for the better inveſtigating truth, and to give more complete redreſs.

The writing, upon the face of it, ſpeaks IMPOSITION. It purports being for conſideration. She releaſes the principal, in conſideration of 5 l. per cent. during her life: which is only legal intereſt, and the preciſe rate he was obliged to pay by his note. The defendant has ſet up another conſideration, not expreſſed; which is not only not proved by him, but diſproved by the evidence on both ſides.

He now contends, and his counſel have argued, " that it was intended to be revocable " by her during her life; and therefore was " only in the nature of a legacy." That power " to revoke," is omitted. The writing, all of his own hand, and kept in his own cuſtody: and if it was in the nature of a legacy, it is revoked by the ſubſequent will.

The teſtatrix never imagined ſhe had ſtripped herſelf of this money: in her circumſtances, it would have been madneſs. The defendant, during her life, did not dare to ſay, even to his own wife, " that the teſtatrix had given " him this money."

He did not dare to claim it, immediately, after her death: but would have compounded, by withdrawing his caveat, to have got his note delivered up. No anſwer was attempted, by proof, to the apparent impoſition. Upon his own caſe ſtated by himſelf, and the evidence on both ſides, the tranſaction to get her her hand to this writing must have been fraudulent: and if it be so, the law says "he "shall not avail himself of it."

The attention of the jury was artfully drawn to the heinous charge of forgery only. And I left the question of FRAUD to them, without any express direction, "that the circum- "stances spoke fraud apparent." The same jury might, upon reconsideration, find a different verdict. I dare say they meant to do right.

But the merits of the case appearing to ME in this light, I am clearly of opinion that there ought to be a NEW TRIAL.

These are my sentiments: my brothers will judge whether I am right, or not.

Mr. Justice DENISON concurred in them.

He added, that it would be difficult perhaps to fix an absolute general rule about granting new trials, without making so many exceptions to it, as might rather tend to darken the matter, than to explain it: but the granting a new trial, or refusing it, must depend upon the LEGAL DISCRETION of the court, guided by the nature and circumstances of the particular case, and directed with a view to the attainment of justice.

In the present case, he said, it appeared to him, "that the testatrix, Mrs. Crisp, had been "imposed upon:" and he held that FRAUD "was sufficient to invalidate this her de- "feazance (the subsequent note of discharge "signed by her,) even in a court of COMMON "LAW." For proof of which, he cited Throughgood's case, 2 Co. 9. where it was holden, "that the deed of an unlettered layman, into "the execution whereof he is deceived, by its "being wrong read to him, or falsely ex"plained to him, (though by a ſtranger to "the party to whom the deed was made,) "ſhall not bind the unlettered perſon who "made it."

Mr. Juſtice FOSTER agreed to the propriety of what had been ſaid, as to ſuch caſes in which the juries give verdicts againſt evidence, and even as to caſes where there may be a contrariety of evidence, but where the evidence upon the whole, in point of probability; greatly preponderates againſt the verdict; (which depending on a variety of circumſtances, is matter of legal diſcretion, and cannot be brought under any general rule:) but in all caſes where the evidence is nearly in equilibrio, he declared that he ſhould always think himſelf bound to have regard to the finding of the jury; for, "ad quæſtionem "* facti reſpondent juratores." In ſuch a caſe, it is not the province of the judge to determine: it ought to be left to the jury.

* See Trials per Pais, p. 447. extremely ſtrong on this ſubject, in favour of juries.

FRAUD will invalidate in a court of law, as well as in a court of equity. We all remember the caſe of Wyndham v. Chetwynd, P. 1755, 28 G. II. in this court, where the court directed the jury to find "non deviſavit," though there was a deviſe in fact, but it was obtained by fraud, and therefore conſidered as no deviſe at all.

And he agreed with Lord Mansfield and Mr. Juſtice Deniſon, that in the preſent caſe, the defeazance or diſcharge (the ſubſequent note) was obtained from Mrs. Criſp by fraud: and that it appeared, upon the whole of the evidence, "that it was ſo obtained:" and that the jury have drawn a WRONG CONCLUSION from facts admitted on both ſides. Therefore he thought the verdict ought to be ſet aſide.

Per

Per Cur. * unanimously,

The RULE for setting aside the verdict was made absolute.

Dr. Burton vs Thompson, Ms 32 Geo. II. 2 Burr. 664. Against evidence, but damages inconsiderable.

On shewing cause against a rule for a NEW TRIAL, which had been moved for by the plaintiff, upon an allegation " that the ver-" dict (which was found for the defendant) " was given contrary to evidence ;"

Mr. Justice FOSTER, (who tried the cause) now reported, that it was an action for a libel; that the charge was proved by the plaintiff; but that the injury done to him thereby, appeared upon the evidence to be so VERY INCONSIDERABLE, that if the jury had found for the plaintiff, he should have thought a half-crown, or even a much smaller sum, to have been sufficient damages: but that the jury had gone too far; and instead of giving the plaintiff very small damages, had found a verdict against him; which was certainly a verdict AGAINST EVIDENCE.

Lord MANSFIELD.—It does not follow by necessary consequence, that there must ALWAYS be a new trial granted, in all cases whatsoever, where the verdict is contrary to evidence: for it is possible that the verdict may still be on the side of the real justice and equity of the case. And of this there are several in-

* Mr. Justice Wilmot was absent, in Chancery. Mr. Gould, of counsel for the plaintiff, moved that it might be without costs : but was answered by Mr. Justice Denison and Mr. Justice Foster, (Lord Mansfield being now gone,) that this was directly contrary to the terms upon which he himself had moved it. And accordingly they only ordered the verdict to be set aside, upon payment of costs by the plaintiff.

Memorandum.—The cause never came on to be tried again. Probably the defendant acquiesced in the opinion of the court, and paid the money.

* See title Trial in 2 Salk. pl. 2, 3, 4, 5, 11, 18, 34. See before, Farewell, Esq; v. Chestey et al'. † Vide post V.

stances in the * printed books, particularly the dutchess of Mazarine's case in 2 Salk. 646. [Dearly v. the dutchess of Mazarine, † which is directly in point.]

Here the jury have found for the defendant, whereas my brother FOSTER, who tried the cause (which the plaintiff has brought hither out of Yorkshire) says that "he thinks "half a crown, or less, would have been da-"mages sufficient, IF they had given their ver-"dict for the plaintiff." He must pay the costs, before he can have a new trial. Therefore I do not think that we ought to interfere, merely to give the plaintiff an opportunity of harassing the defendant at a great expence to himself; where there has been no real damage, and where the injury is so trivial as not to deserve above an half-crown compensation. Besides the plaintiff has brought the action to be tried at a great distance from the proper county. The cause of action is in the nature of a crime: the implied damages are, in some measure, by way of punishment. An indictment or information would lie. And in criminal cases, where the defendant is acquitted, a new trial cannot be granted.

Mr. Justice Denison, Mr. Justice Foster, and Mr. Justice Wilmot, all spoke in very explicit terms to the same effect.

Per Cur. unanimously,

The rule to shew cause why there should not be a new trial, was DISCHARGED.

Pillans and Rose v. Van Mierop and Hopkins, E. 5 Geo. III. B. R. Tuesday, 30 April, 1765. 3 Burr. 1663. Against eviden. Of a nudum pactum.

On Friday the 25th of January last, Mr. Attorney General Norton, on behalf of the plaintiffs, moved for a new trial. He moved it as upon a verdict against evidence: the substance of which evidence was as follows.

One

One White, a merchant in Ireland, desired to draw upon the plaintiffs, who were merchants at Rotterdam in Holland, for 800l. payable to one Clifford, and proposed to give them credit upon a good house in London, for their reimbursement, or any other method of reimbursement.

The plaintiffs, in answer, desired a confirmed credit upon a house of rank in London, as the condition of their accepting the bill. White names the house of the defendants, as this house of rank, and offers credit upon them. Whereupon the plaintiffs honoured the draft, and paid the money; and then wrote to the defendants Van Mierop and Hopkins, merchants in London, (to whom White also wrote about the same time,) desiring to know, "whether "they would accept such bills as they, the "plaintiffs, should, in about a month's time, "draw upon the said Van Mierop's and Hop-"kins's house here in London, for 800 l. upon "the credit of WHITE:" and they, HAVING RECEIVED THEIR ASSENT, accordingly drew upon the defendants. In the interim, White failed, before their draft came to hand, or was even drawn: and the defendants gave notice of it to the plaintiffs, and forbid their drawing upon them; which they, nevertheless, did: and therefore the defendants refused to pay their bills.

See post, Mr. J. Wilmot's 2d argument in this case.

On the trial, a verdict was found for the defendants.

Upon shewing cause, on Monday the 11th of February last, it turned upon the several letters that had respectively passed between the plaintiffs and defendants, and White. The letters were read: 1st. Those * from White and Co. in Ireland, to the plaintiffs in Holland; (by which it appeared that Pillans and Rose had then accepted the bills drawn upon them by White, payable to Clifford;) then those of the plaintiffs to the defendants; and also White's to the defendants; then those of the defendants to the plaintiffs, * agreeing to honour their bill drawn on account of White; the letter from the defendants to the plaintiffs, informing them "that White had stopt payment," and desiring them not to draw, as they could not accept their draft; and lastly, that which the plaintiffs wrote to the defendants, "that they "should draw on them, holding them not to "be at liberty to withdraw from their engage- "ment."

* Dated 16th February, 1762.

 which

* Dated 19 Mar. 1762.

The COUNSEL for the defendants were Mr. Serjeant Davy and Mr. Wallace. They observed that the plaintiffs had given credit to White, above a month before the defendants had agreed to accept their draft: for it appears by White's letter of 16th February, 1762, that Pillans and Rose had then actually accepted Clifford's bills: but Van Mierop and Hopkins did not agree to honour their drafts till the 19th of March, 1762: therefore the consideration was past and done, before their promise was made. And they argued, and principally insisted, "that for one man to under-"take to pay another man's debt," was a VOID undertaking, unless there was some consideration for such undertaking; and that a mere general promise, without benefit to the promiser, or loss to the promisee, was a nudum pactum. And they cited 1 Bulst. 120. Thorner v. Field. Dyer 272. pl. 31. Hunt v. Bate, 2 Vern. 224, 225. Cecil et al. v. Earl of Salisbury, 1 Ro. Abr. 11. pl. 1. letter Q. "Consideration exe-"cuted." Yelv. 40, 41. and 2 Strange 933.

Hayes

Hayes v. Warren; where a paſt conſideration was holden inſufficient to raiſe an aſſumpſit *.

The Counsel for the plaintiffs were Mr. Attorney General, Mr. Walker, and Mr. Dunning. They denied this to be a paſt conſideration; and inſiſted, that the liberty given to the plaintiffs, "to draw upon a confirmed houſe "in London," (which was prior to the undertaking by the defendants,) was the conſideration of the credit given by the plaintiffs to White's drafts; and that this was a good and ſufficient conſideration for the undertaking made by the defendants. It relates back to the original tranſaction.

If any one promiſes to pay for goods delivered to a third perſon, ſuch promiſe, being in writing, is a good one.

And here White had had 800 l. from the plaintiffs, upon this aſſurance: and the defendants undertake in writing, in purſuance and completion of this original aſſurance, to be anſwerable for White's reimburſing the plaintiffs; and a promiſe in writing is out of the ſtatute.

This caſe does not fall within thoſe that have been cited: for Van Mierop and Hopkins have made themſelves originally liable. An ex poſt facto event cannot alter the nature of an original promiſe. Their original promiſe made them liable, and bound them; and they are obliged, both by law, and in honour and honeſty, to perform it.

It is a mercantile tranſaction; and it muſt be conſidered, upon the whole of it, as an admittance "that the defendants either had, "or ſoon would have, effects of White's in "their hands."

* See likewiſe Hardres 72, 73, 74.

Lord Mansfield.—The objection is, "that "the letter whereby Van Mierop and Hopkins "undertake to honour the plaintiffs bills, is "nudum pactum." The other side deny it. This is the only question here.

But this is quite different from what passed at the trial: the nudum pactum was not mentioned at that time. The grounds it was argued upon there, were, 1st, That this imported to be a credit given to Pillans and Rose, in prospect of a future credit to be given by them to White; and that this credit might well be countermanded before the advancement of any money: and this is so. 2dly, That there was a fraud; for that Van Mierop and Hopkins had reason to think that White had sent goods to Pillans and Rose; whereas this was a mere lending of credit. 3dly, That if Pillans and Rose had received goods from White, and retained them 'till he failed, the defendants undertaking was revocable.

I was then of opinion, that Van Mierop and Hopkins were bound by their letter, unless there was some fraud upon them: for that they had engaged under their hands, in a mercantile transaction, "to give credit for Pillans and "Rose's reimbursement." And I did not see it to be future, as had been objected; nor did I see any fraud. And nothing was then urged about its being nudum pactum.

I have no idea, that promises "for the debt "of another," are applicable to the present case.

This is (as Mr. Walker said) a mercantile transaction; and it depends upon these letters from merchant to merchant about honouring bills to such an amount: and this credit is given upon a supposition, "that the person who

"who is to draw upon the undertakers within "a certain time, has goods in their hands, or will "have them." Here, Pillans and Rose trusted to this undertaking: and there is no fraud. Therefore it is quite upon another foundation than that of a naked promise from one "to "pay the debt of another."

Mr. Justice WILMOT.—I own, the want of consideration, at first, occurred to me: but I now am satisfied, that this case has nothing to do with the cases of undertakings by one "to "pay the debt of another." In those cases it is settled, "that where the consideration is past, the action will not lie:" and yet this seems a hard case. The meer promise "to "pay the debt of another," without any consideration at all, is nudum pactum: but the least spark of a consideration will be sufficient. It seems almost implied, that there must be some consideration: but if there be none at all, it is nudum pactum. The statute must mean such a special promise as would have supported an action.

But ALL this is out of the present case. So also, I think, is all the precedent correspondence.

It lies in a narrow compass.

White, Pillans, and Rose, and Van Mierop and Hopkins, had all a correspondence together; they have intercourse together, mutually, in mercantile transactions. Pillans and Rose write to Van Mierop and Hopkins, to know "whether "they will honour their drafts for 800 l. in "about a month's time." They say, they will. Now it strikes me, as Mr. Walker said, that it admits "that they either have assets or "effects of White's in their hands," or "that "they have credit upon him." Now by this under- undertaking of a good houſe in London, and relying upon it, they are deluded and diverted from uſing any legal diligence to purſue White, or even not to part with any effects of his which they might have in their hands. Therefore this ſeems to be an irrevocable undertaking by Van Mierop and Hopkins: and they ought to be bound by it. Conſequently, there ought to be a new trial.

Lord MANSFIELD.—A letter of credit may may be given as well for money already advanced, as for money to be advanced in future.

Let it be argued again the next term; and you ſhall have the opinion of the whole court. Ulterius concilium.

Yeſterday, this matter accordingly came on again; and was argued by Mr. Wallace, for the defendant; and by the ſame counſel as argued laſt term; for the plaintiffs.

The latter repeated and enforced their arguments: they ſaid the conſideration moved from White to the defendants; not from the plaintiffs Pillans and Roſe, to the defendants: and as the defendants have undertaken for White, they can't revoke or retract their engagement.

This caſe is not like the caſes cited: ſome of which are ſtrange caſes, and not founded on ſolid or ſufficient reaſons; and in others of them, there was no meritorious conſideration at all. And Mr. Walker cited Hardres 71. Reynolds v. Proſſer; where the conſideration was adjudged ſufficient, notwithſtanding all the reaſoning of Sir Thomas Hardres, and all the caſes cited by him.

That was an aſſumpſit by a ſtranger, in conſideration that the plaintiff would forbear to proſecute Lord Abergavenny upon a judgment, in the name of the original plaintiff, by virtue of a letter of attorney "to receive it to his "own use."

Serjeant Davy was heard, this morning, on behalf of the defendants; and urged, that the plaintiffs gave credit to White, upon his promising to reimburse them: and he said, there was a fraudulent concealment of facts.

WHITE's first letter could have no influence on the plaintiffs. For they afterwards desired a confirmed credit upon a house of rank in London: so that they did not rely on White's first letter which offered credit on the defendants, or any other method of reimbursement. And nothing had then passed between White and the defendants. For the first letter between them was on the 16th of February, (a fortnight after:) and then the defendants were deceived into a false opinion "that it was for a future "credit, and not to secure a past acceptance "of White's bills by the plaintiffs." And this concealment of circumstances is sufficient to vitiate the contract. The PLAINTIFFS had accepted a bill of 800 l. of White's, a fortnight before the defendant's letter of 16th February: which bill the plaintiffs had accepted upon assurance of credit on a house in London, to reimburse them. And this transaction was fraudulently concealed, both by White and the plaintiffs, from the defendants.

If this had been disclosed, the defendants would have plainly seen "that the plaintiffs "doubted of White's sufficiency;" by their requiring further security for his already contracted debt.

All letters of credit relate to future credit; not to debts before incurred: nor can the advancer vancer of money thereupon, include an old DEBT before incurred.

A bill cannot be accepted before it is drawn. This is only a promise to accept: for it is only a promise "to honour the bill; not a promise "to pay it."

A promise "to pay a past debt of another "person" is void at common law, for want of consideration; unless there be at least an implied promise from the debtee "to forbear "suing the original debtor." But here was a debt clearly contracted by White with the plaintiffs on the credit of White: and there is no promise from the plaintiffs "to forbear "suing White." A naked promise is a void promise: the consideration must be executory, not past or executed.

Lord MANSFIELD asked, if any case could be found, where the undertaking holden to be a nudum pactum was in writing.

Serjeant Davy.—It was antiently doubted, "whether a written acceptance of a bill of "exchange was binding, for want of a con-"sideration." It is so said, somewhere in Lutwyche.

Lord MANSFIELD.—This is a matter of great consequence to trade and commerce in every light.

If there was any kind of fraud in this transaction, the collusion and mala fides would have vacated the contract: but from these letters, it seems to ME clear, that there was none. The first proposal from White, was "to reimburse "the plaintiffs by a remittance, or by credit "on the house of Van Mierop." This was the alternative he proposed. The plaintiffs chose the latter. Both the plaintiffs and White wrote to Van Mierop and company; they answered,

"that they would honour the plaintiffs draft."

So that the defendants assent to the proposal made by White, and ratify it. And it does not seem at all, that the plaintiffs then doubted of White's sufficiency, or meant to conceal any thing from the defendants.

If there be no fraud, it is a mere question of law. The law of merchants, and the law of the land, is the same. A witness cannot be admitted, to prove the law of merchants. We must consider it as a point of law. A nudum pactum does not exist, in the usage and law of merchants.

I take it, that the ancient notion about the want of consideration was for the sake of evidence only: for when it was reduced into writing, as in covenants, specialties, bonds, &c. * there was no objection to the want of consideration. And the statute of frauds proceeded upon the same principle.

* Vide 3 Burr. 1639.

In commercial cases amongst merchants, the want of consideration is not an objection.

This is just the same thing as if White had drawn on Van Mierop and Hopkins, payable to the plaintiffs: it had been nothing to the plaintiffs, whether Van Mierop and Co. had effects of White's in their hands, or not; if they had accepted his bill. And this amounts to the same thing:—"I will give the bill due "honour," is, in effect, accepting it. If a man agrees "that he will do the formal part," the law looks upon it (in the case of an acceptance of a bill) as if actually done. This is an engagement "to accept the bill, if there "was a necessity to accept it; and to pay it, "when due:" and they could not afterwards retract. It would be very destructive to trade and to trust in commercial dealings, if they could.

could. There was nothing of nudum pactum mentioned to the jury; nor was it, I dare ſay, at all in their idea or contemplation.

I think the point of law is with the plaintiffs.

Mr. Juſtice WILMOT.—The queſtion is "whether this action can be ſupported, upon "the breach of this agreement."

I can find none of thoſe caſes, that go upon its being nudum pactum, that are in writing: they are all upon parol.

I have traced this matter of the nudum pactum: and it is very curious.

He then explained the principle of an agreement being looked upon as a nudum pactum; and how the notion of a nudum pactum firſt came into our law.

He ſaid it was echoed from the civil law,—"Ex nudo pacto non oritur actio." Vinnius gives the reaſon, in lib. iii. tit. De Obligationibus, 4to. edition, 596. If by ſtipulation, (and à fortiori, if by writing,) it was good without conſideration. There was no radical defect in the contract, for want of conſideration: but it was made requiſite in order to put people upon attention and reflection, and to prevent obſcurity and uncertainty: and in that view, either writing or certain formalities were required. Idem. on Juſtinian, 4to. edit. 614.

Therefore it was intended as a guard againſt raſh inconſiderate declarations; but if an undertaking was entered into upon deliberation and reflection, it had activity; and ſuch promiſes were binding. Both Grotius and Puffendorf, hold them obligatory by the law of nations. Grot. lib. ii. c. 11. De Promiſſis. Puffend. lib. iii. c. 5. They are morally good; and only require aſcertainment: therefore there is no reaſon reason to extend the principle, or carry it further.

There would have been no doubt upon the present case, according to the Roman law; because here is both stipulation (in the express Roman form) and writing.

Bracton (who wrote * Temp. Hen. III.) is the first of our lawyers that mentions this. His writings interweave a great many things out of the Roman law. In his third book, cap. 1. De Actionibus, he distinguishes between naked and cloathed contracts. He says that "obligatio "est mater actionis;" and that it may arise ex contractu, multis modis; sicut ex conventione, &c. sicut sunt pacta, conventa, quæ nuda sunt aliquando, aliquando vestita, &c. &c.

* Sub ultima tempora Regis H. III.

Our own lawyers have adopted exactly the same idea as the Roman law. † Plowden 308. b. in the case of Sharyngton and Pledal. v. Strotton and others, mentions it: and no one contradicted it. He lays down the distinction between contracts or agreements in words (which are more base,) and contracts or agreements in writing, (which are more high;) and puts the distinction upon the want of deliberation in the former case, and the full exercise of it in the latter. His words are the marrow of what the Roman lawyers had said. "Words "pass from men lightly:" but where the agreement is made by deed, there is more time for deliberation. For when a man passes a thing by deed, first, there is the determination of the mind to do it, and upon that he causes it to be written, which is one part of deliberation, and afterwards he puts his seal to it, which is another part of deliberation; and lastly, he delivers the writing as his deed. "The delivery of the deed is a ceremony in "law, † This probably was Plowden's own argument. Sir J. Burr. supposes he was of himself that apprentice of the Middle Temple who argued for the defendants.

"law, signifying fully his good will that the "thing in the deed should pass from him who "made the deed, to the other. And there"fore a deed, which must necessarily be made "upon great thought and deliberation, shall
"bind, without regard to the consideration."

The voidness of the consideration is the same, in reality, in both cases: the reason of adopting the rule was the same, in both cases; though there is a difference in the ceremonies required by each law. But no inefficacy arises merely from the naked promise.

Therefore, if it stood only upon the naked promise, it's being, in this case, reduced into writing, is a sufficient guard against surprize: and therefore the rule of nudum pactum does not apply in the present case.

I cannot find, that a nudum pactum evidenced by writing has been ever holden bad: and I should think it good: though where it is merely verbal, it is bad. Yet I give no opinion upon it's being good, always, when in writing.

Many of the old cases are strange and absurd: so also are some of the modern ones; particularly, that of Hayes v. Warren *. The reason of the reversal of the judgment was, "that it did not appear by the declaration, to "be either for the benefit, or at the request of "the defendant."

It is now settled, "that where the act is "done at the request of the person promising, "it will be a sufficient foundation to graft the "promise upon."

In another instance, the strictness has been relaxed: as for instance, † burying a son; or ‡ curing a son; the considerations were both past; and yet holden good. It has been melting down into common sense, of late times.

* Vide 2 Sir J. S. 933.

† Church and Church's case, cited in Raym. 260.

‡ Vide 2 Leon 111.

However

However, I do here see a consideration. If it be a departure from any right, it will be sufficient to graft a verbal promise upon. Now here, White living in Ireland, writes to the plaintiffs "to honour his drafts, for 800l. * payable ten weeks after." The plaintiffs agree to it, on condition that they be made safe at all events. White offers good credit on a house in London, and draws: and the plaintiffs accept his draft. Then White writes to them, "to draw on Van Mierop and Hopkins:" to whom the plaintiffs write, "to inquire if they "will honour their draft?" They engage "that they will." This transaction has prevented, stopt, and disabled the plaintiffs from calling upon White, for the performance of his engagement. For White's engagement is complied with: so that the plaintiffs could not call upon him for this security. I do not speak of the money; for that was not payable 'till after two usances and a half. But the plaintiffs were prevented from calling upon White for a performance of his engagement "to give "them credit on a good house in London, for "reimbursement:" so that here is a good consideration. The law does not weigh the quantum of the consideration. The suspension of the plaintiff's right "to call upon White for a "compliance with his engagement," is sufficient to support an action; even if it be a suspension of the right, for a day only, or for ever so little a time.

* For between Ireland and Holland, each usance is one month.

But to consider this as a commercial case. ALL nations ought to have their laws conformable to each other, in such cases. Fides servanda est; simplicitas gentium prævaleat. Hodierni mores are such, that the old notion about the nudum pactum is not strictly observed as a rule.

On a queſtion of this nature, "whether by "the law of nations, ſuch an engagement as "this ſhall bind?"—The law is to judge.

The true reaſon why the acceptance of a bill of exchange ſhall bind, is not on account of the acceptor's having or being ſuppoſed to have effects in hand; but for the convenience of trade and commerce. FIDES eſt ſervanda. An acceptance for the honour of the drawer, ſhall bind the acceptor: ſo ſhall a verbal acceptance. And whether this be an actual acceptance, or an agreement to accept, it ought equally to bind. An agreement "to accept a "bill to be drawn in future," would (as it ſeems to me) by connexion and relation, bind, on account of the antecedent relation. And I ſee no difference between it's being before or after the bill was drawn. Here was an agreement ſufficient to bind the defendants to pay the bill: agreeing "to honour it," is agreeing to pay it.

I ſee no ſort of fraud; it rather ſeems as if the defendants had effects of White's in their hands. And it does not appear to me that the defendants would not have honoured the plaintiffs drafts, even though they had known that it was future credit.

But whether the plaintiffs or the defendants had effects of White's in their hands, or not; we muſt determine on the general doctrine.—And I am of opinion, that there ought to be a new trial.

Mr. Juſtice YATES was of the ſame opinion. He ſaid it was a caſe of great conſequence to commerce: and therefore he would give both his opinion and his reaſons.

The arguments on the ſide of the defendants terminate in its being a nudum pactum, and therefore void.

This

This depends upon two queſtions.

1ſt. Queſtion.—" Whether this be a pro-
" miſe without a conſideration ?"

2nd. Queſtion.—If it is, then " Whether " this promiſe ſhall not be binding, of itſelf,
" without any conſideration ?"

Firſt,—The draft drawn by White on the plaintiffs, payable to Clifford, is no part of the conſideration of the undertaking by the defendants. The draft payable to Clifford is never mentioned to the defendants. They are aſked, " whether they will anſwer a draft from " the plaintiffs upon them?" They anſwer, " they will honour ſuch a draft upon them."

Whether the defendants had or had not effects of White's in their hands, is immaterial.

Any * damage to another, or ſuſpenſion, or forbearance of his right, is a foundation for an undertaking, and will make it binding; though no actual benefit accrues to the party undertaking.

* Vide Coggs v. Bernard. 2 Ld. Raym. 919

Now here, the promiſe and undertaking of the defendants did occaſion a poſſibility of loſs to the plaintiffs. It is plain that the plaintiffs would not rely on White's aſſurance ONLY; but wrote to the defendants, to know if they would accept their drafts? The credit of the plaintiffs might have been hurt, by the refuſal of the defendants to accept White's bills. They were or might have been prevented from reſorting to him, or getting further ſecurity from him. It comes within the caſes of promiſes, where the debtee forbears ſuing the original debtor.

Second queſtion.—Whether, by the law of merchants, this contract is not binding on the defendants; though it was without conſideration?

The acceptance of a bill of exchange is an obligation to pay it; the end of their inſtitution, their currency, requires that it ſhould be so. On this principle, bills of exchange are considered, and are declared upon as special contracts; though legally they are only simple contracts: the declaration sets forth the bill and acceptance specifically; and that thereby the defendants, by the custom of merchants, became liable to pay it.

This agreement, "to honour their bill" was a virtual acceptance of the bill. An acceptance needs not be upon the bill itself; it may be by collateral writing. Wilkinson v. Lutwidge. 1 Strange 648.

A PROMISE "to accept" is the same as an actual acceptance. And a small matter amounts to an acceptance: and so says Molloy, lib. ii. c. 10. §. 20. And an acceptance will bind, though the acceptor has no effects of the drawer in his hands; and without any consideration. Symons v. Parminster, * Hil. 1747. 21. G. 2. B. R. And a bill accepted for the honour of the drawer, will also bind.

* This was on a motion in arrest of judgment. The judgment was affirmed (ex parte) in Dom. Proc. with 100l. costs, upon or soon after 20th Feb. 1748.

Then he applied these positions to the present case. It was an acceptance of this very draft, by relation and connexion; though the bill was not then drawn by the plaintiffs on the defendants.

But even if it did not amount to an actual acceptance, yet it would equally bind the defendants; they would be equally obliged to perform the effect of their undertaking.

The plaintiffs apprized the defendants of their intention to draw; and the defendants promised to "honour their draft:" and the plaintiffs, of course, would regulate their conduct accordingly.

Therefore, upon the whole circumstances of this transaction, 1st. There is a consideration: and and 2dly. If there was none; yet, in this commercial case, the defendants would be bound.

Mr. Justice ASTON.—I am of opinion, "that there ought to be a new trial."

If there be such a custom of merchants as hath been alledged, it may be found by a jury: but it is the court, not the jury, who are to determine the LAW.

This must be considered as a commercial transaction; and is a plain case. The defendants have undertaken "to honour the plaintiffs "draft;" therefore they are bound to pay it.

This cannot be called a nudum pactum. The answer returned by the defendants is an admission of "having effects of White's in their "hands," if that were necessary. And after this promise "to accept," (which is an implied acceptance) they might have applied any thing of White's that they had in hand, to this engagement: even though White had drawn other bills upon them in the interim. The defendants voluntarily engaged to the plaintiffs: and they could not recede from their engagement.

As to it's being a nudum pactum (which matter has been already so well explained) if there be turpitude or illegality in the consideration of a note, it will make it void, and may be given in evidence: but here nothing of that kind appears, nor any thing like fraud in the plaintiffs. Here was full notice of all the facts; a clear apprehension of them by the defendants; a question put to them, "whether "they would accept?" and their answer, "that they would."

Upon the whole, he concurred, "that an "action will lay for the plaintiffs against them; "and that the plaintiffs ought to recover."

By the court, unanimously,

The rule " to set aside the verdict, and for a " new trial," was made ABSOLUTE.

Goslin v. Wilcock. E. 6 G. 3. C. B. 2 Wilson. 302.

An action lies for suing plaintiff in an inferior court maliciously, and arresting him, when that court had not any jurisdiction of the cause.

Verdict for plaintiff—Motion to set it aside, on the ground that the evidence did not support the declaration—New trial refused, the justice of the case being with the plaintiff, &c.

A new trial was refused, though the declaration was faulty in not alledging that the defendant knew the inferior court had no jurisdiction of the cause.

Special action upon the case, wherein the plaintiff declares, that whereas by the laws of this realm no person ought to be arrested, impleaded or imprisoned without a probable cause of action against him, yet the defendant falsely action, in the king's court of record, held at and for the borough of Bridgewater, in Somersetshire, on the 30th of September, 1765, levied a plaint against the plaintiff in a plea of trespass upon the case to the damage of 10l. and afterwards at the same court, on the same day, sued out upon the said plaint a writ of capias ad respondendum directed to the bailiffs of the borough, to take the plaintiff, and have his body before the judges of that court on Monday after the service of that writ, to answer the defendant in the said plea; which writ the defendant falsely and maliciously caused to be indorsed for bail for 5l. 3s. 11d. against the plaintiff; and the defendant further falsely and maliciously, and without any probable cause, afterwards on the 3d. of October, 1765, at the said borough, caused the plaintiff to be arrested, and kept in custody 24 hours, without any probable cause, when in truth and in fact the defendant had not, at the time of levying the plaint, or of the said arrest and imprisonment, any just or probable cause of action against the plaintiff, for which he ought to have been arrested and imprisoned; and the defendant hath not declared against the plaintiff in that plea, nor further prosecuted his said plaint, but hath discontinued the same, and the said suit is long since ended and determined; and the plaintiff in fact says, that by means of the premises, premises, he is greatly injured and damnified, and hath been put to great charges in freeing himself from the said imprisonment, and forced to undergo grievous pains of body and mind, and during his imprisonment, was hindered from exercising his lawful employment, trade, and business, and lost the whole profit thereof, at the borough aforesaid: to his damage of fifty pounds. The defendant pleaded not guilty of the premises laid to his charge, and thereupon issue was joined.

This cause was tried at the last Somersetshire assises, before Mr. Justice Aston, at Taunton, when the jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, and 5 l. damages. The judge reported that it appeared in evidence at the trial, that the plaintiff and defendant both lived at Taunton, a quarter of a year together; that the plaintiff was all that time indebted to the defendant in about 5 l. upon a contract at Taunton, where the plaintiff appeared publicly, and might have been arrested for the same there, at any time; that the defendant said, that if he could not do for the plaintiff at Taunton, he would do for him at Bridgewater; that afterwards at the fair at Bridgewater, when the plaintiff was standing at his stall there, exposing his goods to sale, the defendant came along with the bailiffs to the stall, and said to the bailiffs, there is the rogue, there is your prisoner; whereupon they instantly arrested the plaintiff in the fair: the plaint levied, and the capias indorsed for bail were also proved; there was likewise evidence of the injury the plaintiff suffered, and the expences he was put to, on this occasion. There was not any witness called for the defendant, but it was admitted that he discontinued his action in the borough, when he knew it would not lie there, and that he brought another action against the plaintiff, for what he owed him, and had got a verdict at that assizes for the same; so that there really was a debt owing by the plaintiff to the defendant, at the time the plaintiff was arrested at the suit of the defendant, in the borough-court of Bridgewater; though it was not contracted within that jurisdiction: but the judge was of opinion, that the arrest there at the time of the fair, was done maliciously, and was satisfied with the verdict.

A motion was made for a new trial, because the evidence did not support the declaration, (with leave given to the defendant at the same time to move in arrest of judgment in case he should not succeed in this motion;) It was objected, that the gist of this kind of action is malice; as where a man maliciously arrests another, when there is really no debt at all owing, or where one maliciously arrests another, for a far larger sum than is really due, with an intent to oppress him, and prevent his friends from being bail for him; but the malicious intention must clearly be made to appear, and must be expressly averred in the declaration. In the present case it appears there was really and bonâ fide a debt of 5 l. and upwards owing from the plaintiff to the defendant, at the time of the arrest at Bridgewater; and that the defendant not knowing but that he might lawfully sue plaintiff there, caused him to be arrested there; but as soon as he was informed that court had no jurisdiction, he discontinued his action, and brought another in a superior court, and has recovered: so there appears no malice in the case. 2dly, It was objected that an action will not lie either against the judge,

judge, officer, or party, for arresting a man in an inferior court, when there is no cause of action within that jurisdiction; and the case of Temple v. Killingworth, B. R. Hil. 2 W. & M. Rotulo 725. Carth. 189. 1 Show. 254. S. C. 12 Mod. 4. S. C. was cited as in point, wherein the plaintiff declared thus, viz.

" Petrus Temple queritur de Samuele " Killingworth in custodia marescalli mares- " caltiæ, &c. pro eò videlicèt quod prædic- " tus Samuel machinans & malitiosè inten- " dens eundem Petrum magnoperè prægra- " vare & minùs justè opprimere 25 die A- prilis, anno regni domini regis & dominæ " reginæ nunc primo, injustè & malitiosè " apud London prædictum in parochia, &c. " in warda, &c. prætextu & colore cujusdam " prætensæ querelæ in curiâ dictorum domini " regis & dominæ reginæ ad tunc tenta co- " ram Johanne Flint, milite, tunc uno vice- " comitum civitatis Londini prædicti, in com- " putatorio suo scituato in parochia & warda " prædictis, intratæ & levatæ ad sectam ip- " sius Samuelis super quandam prætensam " actionem ad magnum prætensam damnum " ipsius Samuelis arrestari & imprisonari ibi- " dèm causavit & procuravit, ac prædictum " Petrum in prisona & custodia ibidèm, rati- " one arrestationis prædictæ, per magnum " tempus scilicèt per spatium sex dierum de- " tineri fecit, pro defectu sufficientium manu- " captorûm & securitatis ad prætensam actio- " nem prædictam pro prædicto prætenso " damno; ubi re verâ & in facto prædictus " Samuel tempore arrestationis & imprisona- " menti ipsius Petri prædicti ut præfertur, " vel ad aliquod tempus anteà, nullam ha- " buit causam actionis versus præfatum Pe-

" trum

"trum infra jurisdictionem ejusdem curiæ,
"ratione quorum quidem injustè maliciosè
"arrestationis & imprisonamenti prædicti ipsius Petri, ipse idem Petrus non solùm in
"prisona & custodia per totum tempus prædictum detentus, & de libertate sua deprivatus fuit super prædictam prætensam actionem ob prætensum damnum prædictum;
"verum etiàm magnos labores & expensas
"pro relaxatione sua ab arrestatione & imprisonamento illius erogavit ac subire & erogare compulsus fuit, unde dicit quod deterioratus est & damnum habet ad valenciam quingentarum librarum, & inde producit sectam, &c."

The defendant pleaded the general issue not guilty, and there was a verdict for the plaintiff. It was moved in arrest of judgment, that the plaintiff (when he was defendant below) ought to have pleaded to the jurisdiction of the sheriffs court, and if the plea had been refused, then a prohibition would have been granted; the court inclined to that opinion, and judgment was stayed 'till the plaintiff should move it again; and afterwards the plaintiff moved for judgment, and the cases in * the margin were cited to maintain the action; but the court was not satisfied with the action. There does not appear any judgment entered upon the roll. In Shower 254. S. C. Holt, C. J. said the point was fit to be considered by all the judges; and in 12 Mod. 4. S. C. Holt, C. J. said that of late it is held that case will not lie for prosecution in an inferior court, where the court has not jurisdiction; that the first case in point was at Huntingdon assizes, and referred to the C. B. and there adjudged, that for suing one without out any cause of action at all, no action lies, unless it appears to be with a malicious and vexatious design; eight of the judges seemed to think the action would not lie.

* Hob. 105. Cro. Jac. 667. Cro. El. 628, 636. Stat. 3 Ed. I. cap. 38. Regist. 98. F. N. B. 45. (F) 1 Sand. 221. Sid. 463. 4 Rep. 14. b. 1 Vent. 369.

It was answered by the counsel for the plaintiff, that it appears by the judge's report, in this case at bar, from the time, place, and every circumstance attending the arrest at Bridgewater, that it was done with a malicious design to injure the plaintiff in the sale of his goods at the fair, and to expose him to his customers; the defendant must certainly know, that the borough-court at Bridgewater had no jurisdiction, and his discontinuing the action, after he had executed his malicious design, will not avail him; and 2dly, That it is a rule in law, that wheresoever a man suffers an injury, joined with a loss, the law shall give him a remedy and recompence, Hob. 45. and no remedy or satisfaction can be had in this case, unless this action will lie; for false imprisonment certainly will not lie. Gwinne v. Poole & al'. 2 Lutw. 935. 1571, 1572. And that an action will lie for suing in an inferior court, without any cause of action within the jurisdiction was held good, was cited, 2 Showcr. 328. Hudson v. Cocke.

In reply to the case of Hudson v. Cooke, was cited what Sir John Powell said in his learned argument in the case of Gwinne v. Poole, 2 Lutw. 1571, 2. in regard to the case of Hudson and Cooke: "I was present," (says he,) "when the case of Hudson and Cooke was "adjudged: it was an action upon the case, "brought against the defendant, for com- "mencing an action in an inferior court, "where the cause of action arose out of the "jurisdiction of that court; not guilty was "pleaded,

"pleaded, and a verdict for the plaintiff;
"and an exception was taken in arrest of "judgment, for that it was not shewn that
"the defendant knew that the place where
"the action arose, was out of the jurisdiction:
"but it was held by Jefferys, Holloway and
"Walcot, that it was aided by the verdict;
"Withens Justice being of a contrary opinion:
"I confess, says he, that I then thought it "strange that the gist of the action should be
"aided by the verdict:" therefore the defendant's counsel insisted this case of Hudson and Cooke is not law.

Lord Camden: Baron Powell, in his argument of Gwinne and Poole, has stated the learning of cases of this kind, but hath not laid down any precise rule of law: this is a nice case, and is to be looked into with precision. There are no cases in the old books of actions for suing where the plaintiff had no cause of action; but of late years, when a man is maliciously held to bail, where nothing is owing, or when he is maliciously arrested for a great deal more than is due, this action has been held to lie; because the costs in the cause are not a sufficient satisfaction for imprisoning a man unjustly, and putting him to the difficulty of getting bail for a larger sum than is due. Whenever this kind of action is brought, the particular gravamen must be alledged in the declaration, and it must be laid that it was done maliciously, and with an intent to injure and oppress. The fact of the evidence in the present case is, that the defendant at Bridgewater said, "I know I can catch you here,
"though I could not at Taunton;" but this doth not prove that he might not think that the action would lie at Bridgewater; and it seems

ſeems to me that he did not know to the contrary when he levied his plaint; becauſe as ſoon as his attorney informed him that it would not lie there, he diſcontinued his ſuit. I think the declaration is ill, becauſe it is not alledged in the declaration, that the defendant knew that the place where the cauſe of action aroſe, was out of the juriſdiction of the borough-court of Bridgewater, and that the caſe proved at the aſſizes, is different from the caſe ſtated in the declaration: and if it be ſo, we ought to grant a new trial.

Clive Juſtice: This is the firſt action of the kind I have ever ſeen brought for ſuing in an inferior court which has not juriſdiction; and I am inclined to think the declaration will not ſupport the evidence.

Bathurſt Juſtice: This is a motion for a new trial, as being a verdict againſt evidence: I cannot help agreeing with the judge who tried this cauſe, that the arreſt at Bridgewater was maliciouſly done; it then comes to this queſtion, whether an action upon the caſe will not lie for ſuing in an inferior court which has not juriſdiction, with the circumſtances of malice, which manifeſtly appear; and I am very clear that it will lie, but think this declaration is not rightly drawn: it ought to have alledged that the defendant knew that the cauſe of action did not ariſe within the juriſdiction of the court at Bridgewater, and then it would have been right enough. But the court can ſee, in this caſe, that juſtice and equity are with the plaintiff, and they will never grant new trials, where the verdict is on the honeſt ſide of the cauſe. The caſe of Smith v. Page, 2 Salk. 644. is a very ſtrong caſe to this purpoſe: in ejectment, the plaintiff tiff was a mortgagee, and claimed by furrender, whereas the land was not copyhold, and the defendant claimed only by a voluntary conveyance: the verdict was for the plaintiff, and the court of B. R. would not fet it afide, and grant a new trial againft the honefty of the caufe. So in the prefent cafe, I think the honefty of the caufe is with the plaintiff, and therefore I am for fupporting the verdict if poffible. When a defendant has got a verdict in a hard action, the court will not grant a new trial, and in many cafes, as in qui tams, no new trial is ever granted, where the defendant has got a verdict.

Vide poſt V.

Gould Juftice: I am of the fame opinion with my brother Bathurft, as to the malice in the defendant, and the juftice of the plaintiff's cafe, and think the defendant was confcious that he had no right to arreft the plaintiff at Bridgewater; and the court will be aftute to fupport this verdict, as they fee it is on the fide of juftice, and will not grant a new trial. I am inclined to think this declaration is well enough, for it is alledged, That the defendant malicioufly, without any probable caufe, at the faid borough, caufed the plaintiff to be arrefted; when in truth and in fact the defendant had not at the time of the levying the plaint, or of the arreft and imprifonment, any juft or probable caufe of action, for which he ought to have been arrefted and imprifoned.

I think this is a fubftantial difclofure and allegation of his caufe of action, and was fufficient notice to the defendant, to come with proof, and fhew at the trial that he had a caufe of action, arifing within the jurifdiction of the court at Bridgewater; and that the plaintiff in his declaration was not obliged to aver, that the defendant knew that his cauſe of action did not ariſe within the juriſdiction of that court, for this is matter of evidence, which no man is obliged to ſet out in his pleadings. As at preſent adviſed, I think this declaration is ſubſtantially good: but ſuppoſing it is not, yet in ſuch a caſe as this, we ought not to grant a new trial.

that

The court being divided, took time to conſider; and afterwards, in this ſame term, Lord Camden and Mr. Juſtice Clive agreed in opinion with Mr. Juſtice Bathurſt and Mr. Juſtice Gould, to refuſe a new trial.

Lord Camden: I think, upon further conſideration, that as the juſtice and equity of the cauſe is on the ſide of the verdict, we ought not to grant a new trial. I ſhall always be willing to grant a new trial, where the equity and juſtice of the caſe is with him who prays it, if the law and circumſtances of the caſe will permit; and ſhall be as willing to refuſe a new trial, where I am warranted to do ſo by precedents. The granting new trials began within the time of memory, and I will not extend the practice of granting them further than precedents have already gone. This is an action for bringing a ſuit at law; and courts will be cautious how they diſcourage men from ſuing; where a party has been maliciouſly ſued and held to bail, malice, and that it was without any probable cauſe, muſt be alledged and proved. Upon more mature conſideration, we are all now of opinion, that if you hold a man to bail in an inferior court, when you know it hath not juriſdiction, and with malice, an action upon the caſe will lie. And that if the plaintiff had averred, that the defendant knew that his cauſe of action did not arise within the jurisdiction of the court of Bridgewater, we are all clear of opinion the declaration would have been good; that single averment, together with malice, would have been sufficient without any other. The plaintiff and defendant lived in the same town of Taunton, a quarter of a year together, and the defendant (to whom he was indebted all that time,) never sued him there, (though it is not pretended but the plaintiff always appeared publicly,) but the defendant follows him to Bridgewater, and abuses him there publicly, and arrests him in the fair at his stall, when the defendant must know that the court there had no jurisdiction; we are forced to say the verdict is according to the justice of the case, and on a motion for a new trial we are desired to grant it for a fault in the declaration, against the justice of the case; but if I had only the case of Deerly v. the dutchess of Mazarine, 2 Salk. 646. to warrant me (though the jury were liable to an attaint in that case,) I would not grant a new trial in the present case.

9 did

Vide post V.

So a new trial was refused by the whole court.

Swain v. Hall, H. 10 G. III. 3 Wilf. 45. A new trial was refused, though the Chief Justice reported that the strength of the evidence was against the verdict; the jury being the legal, constitutional judges of the fact.

Covenant upon a lease made by plaintiff to defendant, of a house called the Oxford-arms, for the term of twenty-four years, in consideration of 670 l. in hand paid by defendant to plaintiff, and of the yearly rent of 142 l. wherein the defendant (amongst others things) covenanted to lay out 400 l. in repairing the premises, and also covenanted to keep and leave the same in good and tenantable repair, at the end of the term. Whereupon the plaintiff assigned two breaches; 1st, That the defendant did not lay out 400 l. in repairing the premises; 2dly, That the defendant did not leave leave the ſame in good and tenantable repair, at the end of the term. The defendant pleaded, that he did lay out 400 l. in repairing the premiſes, and thereupon iſſue was joined; he alſo pleaded that he did leave the premiſes in good and tenantable repair, at the end of the term, and thereupon iſſue was alſo joined.

Upon the trial before Lord Chief Juſtice Wilmot, upon the firſt iſſue it was clearly proved, on behalf of the defendant, that he had laid out 400 l. in repairing the premiſes, ſo that the counſel for the plaintiff wholly gave up that iſſue; as to the ſecond iſſue, it ſeems there was a contrariety of evidence; and the Chief Juſtice, in ſumming it up to the Jury, was pleaſed to intimate to them, that he thought the weight of evidence was with the plaintiff; but they found a verdict for the defendant upon both iſſues.

Serjeants Davy and Burland for the plaintiff moved for a new trial, upon this ground, viz. that, as to the ſecond iſſue, the verdict was againſt evidence; for that in fact there was no direct or poſitive evidence given on the ſide of the defendant, that he left the premiſes in good and tenantable repair at the end of the term, and they appealed to the Lord Chief Juſtice's notes: whereupon the court made a rule to ſhew cauſe why there ſhould not be a new trial.

Upon ſhewing cauſe, the Chief Juſtice made his report; after ſtating the two iſſues as above, he laid the firſt entirely out of the caſe, as being clearly with the defendant. As to the ſecond iſſue, he ſaid, the plaintiff called and examined three witneſſes.

Mr. Flight, the firſt witneſs, ſaid he was a ſurveyor; that in April laſt, a day or two after old Lady-day 1769, when the leaſe expired, he ſurveyed the houſe and premiſes in queſtion; that he found the roof much out of repair; that it rained in; that there were ten loads of rubbiſh in the garrets; that there was no ſell, nor any glaſs in ſome of the windows; and that the premiſes were not left in tenantable repair; but he made no eſtimate how much it would coſt to put the ſame into ſuch tenantable repair, as a tenant after a leaſe of twenty-four years ought to have left the ſame.

The ſecond and third witneſſes for the plaintiff were William Smith and —— Wood, two ſurveyors, who ſaid, that in April laſt, about the end of the ſaid term of years, they ſurveyed the premiſes together, and made a particular eſtimate in writing, and ſigned it, how much it would coſt to put the premiſes in ſuch tenantable repair as the defendant ought to have left the ſame, which they eſtimated at 105 l. 18 s. 9 d. and ſaid that was a fair eſtimation between a landlord and a going-out tenant; that they were employed to ſurvey on the part of the plaintiff; that the defendant, Hall, was preſent, and refuſed to employ a ſurveyor on his ſide; but that if they had been employed by him, they ſhould have made the ſame eſtimate: they exactly agreed in their account of this matter. This is the whole of the evidence for the plaintiff.

For the defendant two witneſſes were called. Mr. Frazier, the firſt witneſs, ſaid he was a ſurveyor, and was employed to ſurvey this houſe; he ſwore he thought, that at the time of the defendant's quitting it, at the expiration of the leaſe, it was in tenantable repair: his very words were, " That according to the best of " his judgment, he should have been obliged " to a tenant to have left a house of his so " well, and could not expect to have one left " in better repair." He said, " that there " was a great difference between repairs as to " a tenant's going out, and a tenant's coming " into a house."

Mr. Sommerton, the second witness for the defendant, swore that he was a surveyor; that he was recommended to the defendant Hall, to survey the premises, in order for Hall to take a new lease; that he did make a general survey, and was in every room in the house; and said, upon the whole, that he thought the landlord should have been contented; that if he had been the landlord he should have been contented with the condition the premises were left in when Hall quitted the same. The Chief Justice said this was a very fair and candid witness; that he gave both Wood and Smith, the plaintiff's witnesses, very good characters; said that Smith was a man of knowledge and capacity; and that Flight, the first of the plaintiff's witnesses, was an eminent man in his business.

This is the whole of the evidence as to the second issue. Whereupon the Chief Justice said, he still thought the weight of evidence was on the side of the plaintiff; but notwithstanding his opinion, after hearing Serjeants Nares and Leigh for the plaintiff, and Serjeants Davy and Burland for the defendant, there being evidence on both sides, the court refused to grant a new trial. The Chief Justice spoke to the following effect:

Wilmot, Chief Justice. Where verdicts have been given contrary to evidence, or where there

there hath been no evidence at all to ſupport ſuch verdicts, the court hath granted new trials; but if there hath been a contrariety of evidence on both ſides, the courts have never granted new trials, notwithſtanding the judge before whom the cauſe was tried hath been of opinion, that the ſtrength and weight of evidence was againſt the verdict. In the preſent caſe, there was a contrariety of evidence on both ſides; and although I am ſtill of opinion, that the weight of evidence was with the plaintiff, yet I diſclaim any power to controul this verdict of the jury, who are the LEGAL CONSTITUTIONAL JUDGES of the fact.

N. B. Some days after the court refuſed a a new trial in this caſe, the chief juſtice ſaid, that it could not have been ſent to be tried again upon one of the iſſues, but it muſt have gone back on the whole record; viz. upon both the iſſues; and that one iſſue being clearly with the defendant, there was no foundation or pretence for a new trial on that iſſue: and he cited the caſe of Rowland v. Vanbalken, C. B. Eaſter term, 1 Geo. I. from J. Tracey's notes, where it was ſo determined.

Norris v. Tyler. E. 14. Geo. III. B. R. Cowp. 37. In an action for a malicious proſecution, verdict in favour of the defendant refuſed to be ſet aſide, though againſt evidence.

This was an action for a malicious proſecution, in preferring a bill of indictment againſt the plaintiff, for forging a note of hand. Four witneſſes were called to prove that the handwriting was not the plaintiff's, and the judge directed the jury in his favour: but the jury found a verdict for the defendant. Upon a motion for a rule to ſhew cauſe why the verdict ſhould not be ſet aſide, as being a verdict againſt evidence, and a new trial granted, the court ſaid the defendant had been ſufficiently tried once, where the ſuit was of a criminal nature. Motion denied.

Assumpsit upon a note of hand for 5l. 7s. by payee against drawer. Plea the general issue. This cause was tried at the last assises for Kent.—Plaintiff only proved the defendant's hand-writing.—Defendant, by two witnesses, proved the consideration to be smuggled goods: yet the jury found for the plaintiff.

Tamplin v. Vorsell. E. 28. G. III. B R. Verdict against law and evidence. Consideration of a note, smuggled goods. Yet jury found for plaintiff.

Morgan obtained a rule to shew cause why there should not be a new trial, without costs.

Serjeant Bond and Adam shewed cause.—The court made the rule absolute for a new trial, without costs.

To an action on a policy of insurance, tried before Buller, J. at the sittings at Guildhall, after last Trinity term, the defendant pleaded the general issue, and paid money into court. A verdict having been found for the plaintiffs, a new trial was moved for on the grounds that this was a verdict against evidence; and that upon the construction of the 25 G. III. c. 44. the plaintiffs could not support this action in point of law, the name of Shultz not being inserted in the policy. After argument, the court took time to consider of the case: and on this day,

Cox and another, Exo[illegible] of [illegible]ultz, against P[illegible]. H. [illegible] G. III. Durn[illegible] and East, 1 V. [illegible]. Payment of money into court is only an [illegible] [illegible]led [illegible] the defendant that the plaintiff is entitled to recover the sum so paid: but it does not preclude him from taking any objection to the action beyond that sum: th[illegible] unless such sum were paid, such objection would be a bar to the plaintiff's action. According to the 25 G. III c. 44. the name of the party interested must be inserted in a policy of insurance: otherwise he cannot recover upon it.

Ashurst, J.—delivered the opinion of the court.

This is an action on a policy of insurance, made in the name of Lyon De Simons on goods and jewels on board the Halswell from London to the East-Indies.

This policy was made on the 23d December last; which being long subsequent to the passing of the statute 25 Geo. III. the policy cannot by law be applied to any goods which were not the property of De Simons, or which he was not interested in (a) but the plaintiffs have endeavoured to make another use of it, and to apply it not only to the goods which were shipped

(a) Vide Durnford and East. 1 V. [illegible] Pray and Edie.

ſhipped in the name of De Simons, but alſo to goods ſhipped in the name of Shultz. And in order to do that, they proved on the trial that Shultz ordered two policies to be made, one in the name of Shultz on goods and jewels for 1,400 l. the other (which is the policy in queſtion) in the name of De Simons, to the amount of 1,600 l. on goods and jewels; which policy was to be lodged in the hands of De Simons, as a ſecurity for 1,600 l. which Shultz had borrowed of him: When Shultz borrowed the money of De Simons, he aſſigned over to him the jewels which were ſhipped in the name of De Simons, and they were to be re-delivered to Shultz in the Eaſt-Indies, upon his paying the principal and intereſt there. The jewels ſhipped in the name of Shultz are totally loſt, but thoſe ſhipped in the name of De Simons have been recovered. If the plaintiffs can apply the policy to the goods ſhipped in the name of Shultz (as well as to thoſe ſhipped in the name of De Simons) there has been an average loſs, and the verdict which the plaintiffs have obtained ought to ſtand. If it cannot be ſo applied, the underwriters are liable only for the ſalvage of the jewels ſhipped in the name of De Simons; and, more having been paid into court, the verdict is wrong.

I have already ſtated, that by law the policy can only be applied to the intereſt of De Simons, the ſtatute having made it void to other purpoſes.—But a great queſtion in the caſe is, whether the defendant has not precluded himſelf from making that objection by paying money into court, therefore it will be neceſſary to ſee what effect paying money into court has in the cauſe.

It

It admits that the plaintiffs have a right to maintain the action (a) and reduces the question simply to the quantum of damages, which they are entitled to recover.

(a) Vide Elliott v. Callow. 2 Salk. 597.

In this case, if the defendant had not paid money into court, the plaintiffs must have been non-suited, for the executors of Shultz could not have recovered on a policy made in the name of De Simons only: but as the defendant has paid money into court, he has thereby admitted that the plaintiffs are entitled to maintain their action on the policy to the amount of that sum: but he has admitted nothing more. He does not, by paying money into court, vary the construction and import of the policy, so as to entitle the plaintiffs to recover beyond that extent.

'The question still remains, whether upon this contract the plaintiffs are entitled to more. In order to ascertain that, it is incumbent on the court to examine and expound what the contract is. At the time it was made, it could only be good as an insurance on the goods which belonged to De Simons; it is made in his name; it is a good and valid contract, as far as it respects his goods; but is void as to all others. And the plaintiffs shall never be admitted to say that this contract, tho' apparently legal, is in fact illegal, as being made for their benefit; and yet they mean to avail themselves of that illegality, and to recover damages upon it.

Besides this, we think that, (independant of the objection in point of law), the verdict is not supported by any fact of the evidence. The broker's evidence does not by any means prove that Shultz did not intend to make distinct policies upon the distinct goods shipped in his own name, and that of De Simons.

On the contrary, the making of two policies, each according to the value of the goods which were shipped in their respective names, and the purposes for which that was done, namely—to lodge one in the hands of Shultz, and the other in the hands of De Simons, and the impossibility that they should by law take effect in any other way than as specific policies on the specific goods (which we are bound to presume Shultz knew) are unanswerable proofs, that he intended that the policies should have the effects which the law gives them.

The defendant underwrote the policy made in the name of Simons only; and it does not appear that he knew or even heard of the other policy which was made in the name of Shultz. Then the evidence of one of the witnesses stands wholly uncontradicted, and he says that De Simons (who is one of the plaintiffs) told him that this policy was made on the particular jewels shipped in his name.

On the whole, we are of opinion, that this is a verdict both against law and against evidence; and therefore must be set aside.

Turner and others, v. Pearte. E. 27. G. III. B. R. Durnf. and East. 1 V. 717.

An objection to the competency of witnesses discovered after a trial, is not a sufficient ground of itself for granting a new trial: but it may have some weight with the court where the party applying appears to have merits.

This action was brought for withdrawing suit from the mill of the plaintiffs, situated within the manor of Leeds, which suit they claimed as lords of the said manor. The defendant, at the trial before Mr. Baron Perryn, at the last assises at York, set up an exemption as being situated within the manor of Whitkerk cum membris, which was part of the possessions of the knights of St. John of Jerusalem, the tenants of which manor had always been exempt from doing suit to the mill of the lord of the manor of Leeds. It appeared that the manor manor of Whitkerk extended into the manor of Leeds, and the defendant brought evidence to prove that the houſes in reſpect of which this exemption was claimed were ſituated within that part of Whitkerk, and were diſtinguiſhed by the mark of a croſs. The jury found a verdict for the defendant; and a new trial was moved for, this term, upon two grounds; firſt, that it was a verdict againſt evidence. Secondly, upon an affidavit, that it had been diſcovered ſince the trial, that five out of nine of the witneſſes on the part of the defendant, were intereſted in the event of the cauſe, and therefore were incompetent, and ought not to have been received. The ground of their incompetency was ſtated to be, that they contributed towards the relief of the poor of Leeds, and that the overſeers of the poor had contributed twenty guineas towards carrying on this ſuit in reſpect of the workhouſe, which was one of the St. John's houſes, and claimed a ſimilar exemption. In anſwer to this, an affidavit was made by thoſe witneſſes, that they did not know of this ſubſcription at the time they gave their teſtimony.

Cockell Serjeant, Wood and Topping, ſhewed cauſe againſt the rule; and as to the ſecond objection, they contended that it came too late, even if it were intitled to any conſideration at all: for in ſtrictneſs no perſon could be objected to as an incompetent witneſs, after he had been ſworn in chief. In Abrahams and Bunn, (a) where a witneſs was not objected to 'till after his examination, Lord Mansfield ſaid, "in ſtrictneſs, the objection comes too late "after he has been ſworn in chief, examined, "and croſs-examined. The ſtrictneſs of law, "in this reſpect, is very wiſe, and ought to "be

(a) 4 Burr. 2252.

"be adhered to, for the relaxation may be "abused, and must always occasion a waste "of time." But at all events, supposing the objection could be gone into, some of the most material witnesses did not know that the houses to which they belonged did contribute towards the general fund at the time that they gave their evidence: so that all objection, in point of interest, is entirely done away from them, and there were others who had no interest whatever.

Chambré and Law, in support of the rule. If a witness has an interest in the cause, however small or remote, that will render him incompetent. Here the witnesses not only claimed a similar exemption in respect of the poor-house, but likewise contributed to the defence of this action. In the case of Abrahams and Bunn, Lord Mansfield was only stating what had been the ancient doctrine in respect to witnesses; and he certainly did not intend to recognize it in its fullest extent, for he says that it had been relaxed in modern times, and, in that instance too, he held the witness to be competent; therefore it was decided on another ground.

The counsel on each side also argued this case upon the merits; as to which, the court being of opinion, that the weight of evidence was in favour of the verdict, they also discharged the rule on that ground; but they first gave their opinions upon the other point.

Ashhurst, J.—The regular time for objecting to the competency of witnesses is at the trial. The ancient doctrine on this head was so strict, that if a witness were once examined in chief, he could not afterwards be objected to on the ground of interest. Perhaps that ſtrictneſs may in ſome degree be relaxed by the cuſtom of ſuffering witneſſes to be examined conditionally, which is only waving the objection for the time. But ſtill the objection muſt be made at the trial. Beſides the affidavit on the part of the plaintiffs is anſwered as to the bias which might be ſuppoſed to be on their minds, for they ſwear that they did not know of any ſubſcription at the time of giving their evidence.
that

BULLER, J.—There has been no inſtance of this court's granting a new trial on an allegation that ſome of the witneſſes examined were intereſted; and I ſhould be very ſorry to make the firſt precedent.

Anciently, no doubt, the rule was, that if there was any objection to the competency of the witneſs, he ſhould be examined on the voir dire; and it was too late after he was ſworn in chief. In later times, that rule has been a little relaxed; but the reaſon of doing ſo muſt be remembered. It is not that the rule is done away, or that it lets in objections which would otherwiſe have been ſhut out. It has been done principally for the convenience of the court, and it is for the furtherance of juſtice. The examination of a witneſs, to diſcover whether he is intereſted or not, is frequently to the ſame effect as his examination in chief: ſo that it ſaves time, and is more convenient, to let him be ſworn in chief in the firſt inſtance; and in caſe it ſhould turn out that he is intereſted, it is then time enough to take the objection. But there never yet has been a caſe in which the party has been permitted after trial to avail himſelf of any objection, which was not made at the time of the examination; but in the preſent caſe there is not the leaſt foundation for this court to interpoſe; for it cannot be ſaid, that the witneſſes were ſwayed by this intereſt in the leaſt degree. I do not ſay that it might not have been a ground to object to their teſtimony on the trial, ſuppoſing the whole of what was ſuggeſted by the plaintiff was true: but it would have been neceſſary to have determined another queſtion firſt; whether the houſes, in reſpect of which the witneſſes are ſuppoſed to be intereſted, were really houſes formerly belonging to the knights of St. John of Jeruſalem, before any deciſion could have been made on their competency; but at any rate we will not permit them to make the objection now. Where it appears that one or more material witneſſes who were examined on a trial were intereſted, it may afterwards weigh with the court as a circumſtance for granting a new trial, provided the merits of the caſe are doubtful; but as a ſubſtantive objection, I am clearly of opinion that it ought not to be allowed.

is

Grose, J.—As to the competency of the witneſſes, it is not contended that in point of law we are bound to reject their teſtimony now. This then is an application to our diſcretion; and the queſtion is, whether that ſhould induce us to reject their evidence after verdict. If this objection had been made before me at the trial, perhaps I might have admitted it: but then by the rule of law, objections of this nature muſt be made at the trial. And if the plaintiffs will inſiſt upon the ſtrict rule relative to the incompetency of witneſſes, the defendant has an equal right to avail himſelf of the rule that the objection now comes too late. Formerly the rule was to examine on the voir dire; that indeed has been relaxed: but but this application requires us to go farther; and the affidavit ſtates no ſufficient grounds in ſupport of it.

In the firſt place, it does not clearly appear, that the plaintiffs did not know of the objection at the time of the trial. It is ſworn very looſely; and if they knew of it at that time, that would be a deciſive reaſon for refuſing to allow it now. However, although no new trial has ever been granted on ſuch an objection, I do not know but that, if a proper affidavit were made, it might have ſome influence on my mind, where the party applying has merits; but here the weight of the evidence is in favour of the verdict.

Rule diſcharged.

V. A Verdict against the Record, or against Law, but new Trial not granted against the Equity of the Cause.

Maby v. John Shepherd, extor. of Edmund Shepherd. T. 20. Jac. B. R. Cro. Jac. 640. Palm. 286. S.C. Godb. 283. S.C. Debt upon obligation by Edmund S. Oyer. Bond subscribed Edmund, the true name, but it was Edward in the obligation, non est factum testatoris. Jury found it the deed of Edmund.

Debt upon an obligation for 40 l. by Edmund Shepherd: the defendant demanded oyer of the deed, and of the condition, which was entered in hæc verba; noverint universi pro præsentes me EDWARDUM teneri, &c. in 40 l. And he subscribed it by the name of Edmund Shepherd, which was his true name; the defendant pleaded non est factum testatoris. The jury found that it was the deed of the said Edmund Shepherd the testator. And now it was moved, that notwithstanding the verdict is found for the plaintiff, yet the judgment ought to be given against the plaintiff: for he declares upon a bond by Edmund Shepherd, and shews a bond of Edward Shepherd, which is another person; and they never were the same, but distinct names. And although it be subscribed by the name of Edmund, yet it is no part of the bond; which being apparent to the court, the plaintiff cannot have judgment, but ought to be barred; and of that opinion was the whole court. And although the jury hath found it to be the deed of the said Edmund, yet that will not help it, but he ought to have brought his action according to the bond: wherefore it it was adjudged, quod quæreus nihil capiat per billam. Vide Dyer 279. Shoibolt's case, and Watkins and Oliver ab Colver Cro. Jac. 558.

Judgment quod quærcus nil capiat, &c.

In ejectment, the plaintiff was a mortgagee, and claimed by surrender, whereas the land was not copyhold, and defendant claimed only by a voluntary conveyance. The verdict was for the plaintiff, and the court could not set it aside, and grant a new trial, against the honesty of the cause.

Smith v. Page, M. 8. W. III. B. R. Salk. 644. No new trial against the equity of the cause.

Upon non assumpsit pleaded, the jury found for the plaintiff, tho' the dutchess gave good evidence of her coverture; and the court would not grant a new trial, because there was no reason why the dutchess, who lived here as a feme sole, should set up coverture to avoid the payment of her just debts.

Derrly v. the Dutchess of Mazarine. Hill. 8. Will. III. B. R. Salk. 646. New trial not granted, for mistake in point of law, against the honesty and equity of the cause. Vide ante.

Trespass quare clausum fregit. The defendant pleaded, 1st. Not guilty. 2dly, He prescribed for a certain way, leading from a common highway in Birkin, into, through, and over the plaintiff's closes, in which, &c. The plaintiff by his replication traversed the prescription, whereupon issue was joined. At the trial of this cause, the council for the defendant, having admitted the trespass, called ten witnesses, who clearly proved the defendant's right of way. But it appeared upon the evidence that this way did not lead from a common highway, but did lead from a certain private way in Birkin; whereupon it was objected at the trial, that the defendant had not proved his prescription to the way, it being laid in his plea that the terminus a quo was from a common highway, whereas the proof was, that it was from a private way; but the right to the way over the plaintiff's closes, in which, &c. being clearly proved, Mr. Justice Gould, before whom the cause Sampson, v. Appleyard. M. 12. G. III. C. B. 3 Wils. 272. In trespass defendant prescribes for a way over the close, in which, &c. and mistakes the terminus a quo, in his plea: verdict for the defendant. The court refused to grant a new trial, the merits having been tried.

caufe was tried, left it to the jury (nine of which jury had a view) who found a verdict for the defendant for his right of way.

And now Serjeant Leigh for the plaintiff moved for a new trial, objecting that the defendant had failed in proving the prefcription, as laid in his plea; that the termini à quo, and ad quem over what land ought to be laid, and proved with the utmoft certainty. That here the terminus à quo was laid to be a common highway, but was proved to be a private way; and he cited Lit. Rep. 295.

Serjeant Burland for the defendant.—The merits of this cafe have been tried, and the courts do not grant new trials for any little flip in pleadings, where they fee that the merits have been tried; but I fubmit it to the court, that the terminus à quo is not a material part of the prefcription; the defendant is called upon in this action to fhew his right of way over the place in which, &c. he pleads that he has that right by prefcription; the material part of which prefcription is confined to the locus in quo. The plaintiff could not have replied that the terminus à quo was from a private way, abfque hoc, that it was from a common highway, becaufe the merits could not have been tried upon an iffue taken on that traverfe.

Palmer 420.

Lord Chief Juftice De Grey.—This is a motion for a new trial, becaufe the defendant, in his plea, has miftaken one abuttal of the way; if a new trial was to be granted, the defendant would amend his plea, according to the evidence, and would have another verdict, in all human probability, having given fuch clear proof of his right by many witneffes.

Upon

Upon this record, it is certain that the defendant was bound to prove his right of way as it is pleaded; he has proved it to a common intent; the terminus à quo is pleaded to be a common highway, (it is not described to be the king's highway,) and a common highway may be a private way in common ſenſe and underſtanding; however, the merits have been tried, and therefore a new trial ought not to be granted.

Nares Juſtice.—I am of the ſame opinion; and the court never grants a new trial, when they clearly ſee the merits have been fairly and fully tried.

Gould Juſtice.—I am of the ſame opinion; and that in pleading a right of way, you need not deſcribe the terminus à quo, becauſe the plaintiff may reply extra viam, which will be a matter for evidence.

New trial refuſed per totam curiam.

Edie and another v. Eaſt-India Company. T. 1 G. III. B. R. 2 Burr. 1216. Verdict for the plaintiff on one count, right; for the defendant on the ſecond, wrong; evidence of uſage contrary to ſettled law having been admitted, new trial granted, but verdict ſet aſide generally.

This was an action, brought by the indorſees, upon two foreign bills of exchange, drawn by colonel Clive, then in the Eaſt-Indies, upon the Eaſt-India company, and accepted by them, payable to Mr. Campbell or order, then alſo in India, and indorſed by Mr. Campbell to Mr. Robert Ogilby. One of theſe bills was by ſuch indorſement directed to be paid to Robert Ogilby or order, in the uſual way of indorſing; and no diſpute or queſtion aroſe upon it. The other bill was alſo indorſed by Mr. Campbell to Robert Ogilby; but the words, "or order," were originally OMITTED in this indorſement, and afterwards put in, by another hand, before the trial.

Theſe bills, thus indorſed by Mr. Campbell to Mr. Ogilby (without adding the words or order in the indorſement of the latter) were by

by him indorsed to the plaintiffs Edie and Lard, or order.

Ogilvy became insolvent; and the question then was, Who was to bear the loss; whether Mr. Campbell, or the plaintiffs? (for the East-India company were no more than stake-holders.)

The dispute arose only upon this latter bill: for the first bill was given up at the trial, by the counsel for the defendants; and a verdict was taken for the plaintiff upon that count. But

On the second, an objection was taken to the want of the words "or order;" which the defendant's counsel insisted were necessary to be originally inserted by the indorser; and that the OMISSION of them was equivalent to the most restrictive words that he could have made use of in order to limit the payment. And accordingly, on this second count, a verdict was found for the defendants.

Mr. Morton, of counsel for the plaintiffs, having moved for a new trial, Mr. Norton and Mr. Wedderburn now shewed cause, on behalf of the defendants, why a new trial should not be granted.

In support of the motion, Mr. Morton and Mr. Yates had cited the three following cases, viz. * More v. Manning, Comyns 311. in point: where it was holden, "That a promissory note "to pay one or order, is assignable toties "quoties by the indorsee or indorsees, though "the words or order be omitted in the in-"dorsement."

* In C. B. Hil. 6 G. I.

† Acheson v. Fountain, 1 Strange 557. in point also; it being there holden, "That an "indorsable note indorsed to A. B. without "saying or order, is an indorsement to the in-"dorsee or order: for the law interprets the

† In B. R. Trin. 1723. Vide Eff. I. [A.] II. (11.) [4.] (2.)

"assign-

" assignments to be in the same manner as the " note is drawn."

And Evans v. Cramlington, in Carthew 5. and 2 Ventris 309, 310. which was said to be applicable to the present case.

They alledged, that every indorsement imports that the value has been received by the indorser: and

A promissory note or bill of exchange, originally made payable to one or order, is in its own nature assignable; and the assignee has the whole interest in it, and may assign it as he pleases; and any restriction or confinement of his assignment of it is contrary to the nature of the thing, and therefore void.

An indorsement is an assignment, and, for the reasons aforesaid, is not restrainable by the omission of words, or even by negative words; and if it be given in blank, it may be filled up by the indorsee or by any one else, even in the face of the court, at the trial *.

* See Comyns 312. accord.

Having thus established this principle, " That the bill of exchange being originally " made assignable and negotiable, and being in " its own nature assignable, must continue al- " ways so; and that the law will interpret the " assignment to be made in the same manner " in which the bill is drawn, although the " words or order be omitted."

They grounded their motion for a new trial upon these two foundations:

1st, That the jury have found directly contrary to this settled law, and have founded their verdict upon the CUSTOM OF MERCHANTS, which they suppose to be quite to the contrary; and of which custom of merchants evidence was permitted to be given at the trial: which evidence should not have been allowed.

allowed. For the cuſtom of merchants is part of the law of England; and the law of England being already fully ſettled on this point, no evidence in contradiction to it ought to have been admitted; nor can any finding of a jury alter it.

2dly, That if the counſel for the plaintiff had apprehended that ſuch ſort of evidence would have been gone into at the trial, they could and would have produced better and fuller evidence than they did, to prove that the cuſtom of merchants was really and in truth and fact agreeable to the law as ſettled: and they alledged that no fact of uſage was proved at the trial, to ſupport a notion, that the acceptor was not liable upon ſuch an indorſement as this.

Mr. Norton and Mr. Wedderburn, contra for the defendants, inſiſted that the preſent verdict was right, and ought to ſtand. It has been urged, 1ſt, "That this bill is in "its nature negotiable;" and 2dly, "That "being ſo, it cannot be reſtrained by this or "any other indorſement."

As to the firſt:—They agreed a bill of exchange to be negotiable in its nature; but it does not follow, they ſaid, that becauſe it was once ſo, it muſt therefore always continue ſo: for the payee has the abſolute property in it; he is the purchaſer of it: and why ſhould not he limit the payment of it as he pleaſes? No man can be injured by this; no man can be deceived by it; it cannot be attended with the leaſt inconvenience.

No caſe can be cited to the contrary. The caſes that have been cited do not apply to it; as will appear preſently.

An imperfect indorsement, an indorsement in blank, indeed may be supplied: but the owner may, if he thinks proper, indorse it negatively and upon terms; and then the indorsee takes it upon those terms, and under that restriction, which the indorser has expressly imposed upon it.

This is no more than a naked authority to receive the money.

It is not true, " That every indorsement im- " ports value received by the indorser. For an indorsement may be so worded as to shew that the interest remains in the indorser: as for instance, " Pay this bill to my steward, and to " no other person;" or, " Pay to such a one " for my use, and to no other person whatso- " ever."

And whether he has or has not so limited it, is a question of fact, not of law: and it depends upon the custom of merchants.

The case of More v. Manning does not contradict our principle: it does not appear that that was not an indorsement in blank; which, it is agreed, does not destroy its negotiability. The assignment was there treated as an absolute assignment to Witherhead: it must have been an indorsement in blank; and the case goes upon that supposition: however, that came before the court upon demurrer.

The case of Acheson v. Fountain was only a question, " Whether the plaintiff's evidence " supported her declaration:" but her demand was full and clear, without those words. The case could not require the reasons there given: therefore they are at best extrajudicial, or perhaps added by the * reporter.

* The court expressed themselves to the effect there reported. Sir James Burrow's note of that case agrees with Sir John Strange's.

As to Evans v. Cramlington—'Tis nothing like this caſe; nor is any inference to be drawn from it.

Beſides, all theſe caſes are only upon promiſſory notes, which depend upon our municipal laws: and promiſſory notes are, by the ſtat. of 3 and 4 Ann. c. 9. put upon the ſame foot with inland bills of exchange.

But foreign bills of exchange ſtand upon quite another foot; † namely, upon the general law and cuſtom of merchants. And the verdict ſuppoſes and proves the cuſtom of merchants to be with the defendants: and the evidence of ſeveral eminent merchants and experienced perſons at the trial, was agreeable to the finding. And if they could have encountered it, why did they not? Their omitting to do ſo, is ſurely no ground for a new trial.

† Wood's Inſt. 283.

Mr. Morton and Mr. Yates in reply.—They admit the queſtion to be, "What is the true "conſtruction of ſuch a reſtrained indorſement as this is?" And certainly this ſort of indorſement makes, or rather continues, a bill of exchange generally negotiable. Meſſieurs Edie and Lard are in the caſe of every common indorſee.

The caſes that we have cited are plain and clear on our ſide: on the other ſide, they ſuppoſe imaginary circumſtances, which did not really exiſt in them.

The determinations upon promiſſory notes, prove "that the law was likewiſe ſo upon fo-"reign bills of exchange."

The fact of uſage, that would have been cogent and binding, if proved, ſhould have been a refuſal to negotiate a bill with ſuch a limited and reſtrained indorſement.

If

If this bill was to go back to India, protested by Messieurs Edie and Lard for non-payment by the company and the indorsers, undoubtedly the drawer would be liable to Mr. Edie and Mr. Lard, for the payment of it.

Lord MANSFIELD.—I thought, at the trial, that the defendants might be at liberty to go into the usage of merchants upon this occasion. And Mr. Race, the cashier of the Bank of England, gave evidence, " That the Bank, if " ever they discounted these bills not indorsed " to order, did it only upon the credit of the " indorser; but that otherwise they would not " take them. not considering them as being " negotiable."

Mr. Simon, a very eminent and experienced merchant, deposed, That he considered the omission of these words as restrictive of the indorsement to the particular individual person specified in the indorsement: and he added, that it was, in his opinion, merely in the nature of a personal authority, " to receive the " money;" and was not negotiable.

So Mr. Grant, another witness on the part of the defendants, declared his opinion also to be.

So also Mr. Regnier, their fourth and last witness. These were the four witnesses for the defendants.

The plaintiffs, on their part, called Mr. Richard Cope, partner with Mr. Honeywood the banker: but they were mistaken in him; for he agreed with the other four witnesses exactly.

Another witness called by the plaintiffs was Mr. Udney: who thought it sufficient without the words " or order," and attested that he had himself discounted one, and said he had paid, he believed, fifty bills, where the words "or order," were omitted in the indorsement.

Mr. Macbean, a notary public, also in his opinion held the indorsement of a bill of exchange to be negotiable, notwithstanding the omission of these words: and that no objection of this sort was ever made. Indeed if the bill should be indorsed, "Pay the contents to A. "B. only," it was looked upon, he said, to be a restriction of the payment to A. B. personally.

Mr. Uny and Mr. Anderson deposed to the same effect, "that the omission of the words "or order, did not prevent the negotiability."

But the plaintiffs did not, however, come prepared with particular witnesses to the usage in such cases; not expecting that the evidence in support of such an usage, would have been admitted.

I told the jury, that by the general law, (laying the usage out of the case,) the indorsement would follow the nature of the original bill, and be an absolute assignment to the indorsee or his order.

And after having told them that this was the general law, then I left it to them upon the particular evidence of the USAGE, that had been laid before them; and recommended it to them to consider well of this evidence; and told them, that if they found an USAGE, so established and settled amongst merchants and traders as to be clear and plain, and beyond doubt, they might find a verdict for the defendant upon that second bill: but I directed them, that if they were doubtful of the usage, or if the usage appeared to them not to be fully and clearly established, or to be the other way, then they ought to find for the plaintiffs.

I told them, that the question arose upon the insolvency of Ogilby, the first indorsee; and that it ought to be considered by them, who it was that gave the trust to Ogilby: for he that gives the trust, ought to run the risque of his credit.

I observed, that this indorsement was made by Mr. Campbell, the payee, to this Ogilby; and if he meant to trust Ogilby, it was but reasonable that he should be the person to suffer by Ogilby. And it was clear that he meant to trust Ogilby with the money: for it is acknowledged on all hands, that Ogilby himself had a right to receive it of the company, whether he had a right to indorse the bill to another person or not.

The jury staid out a considerable time, and then brought in a verdict for the plaintiffs, upon the bill indorsed to Ogilby or order, (which was not disputed:) but they gave their verdict for the defendants, upon that count which declared upon the second bill (for 2000 l.) which was indorsed to him WITHOUT adding the words "or order."

In the whole course of the evidence, no one fact was proved, where the indorsee to whom a bill was indorsed, without adding the words, "or order," ever actually LOST the money, so as to put him upon disputing the point.

Since the trial I have looked into the cases, and have considered the thing with a great deal of care and attention, and thought much about it: and I am very clearly of opinion, that I ought not to have admitted any evidence of the particular usage of merchants in such a case.

caſe. Of this, I ſay, I am now ſatisfied; for the law is already SETTLED.

I lay the caſe of Evans v. Cramlington out of the way, as I do not ſee that it is much applicable to the caſe now before us.

But I go upon the two caſes of More v. Manning, and Acheſon v. Fountain. The former was an aſſumpſit upon a promiſſory note, given by Manning to Statham or order. Statham aſſigned it to Witherhead; and Witherhead to the plaintiff. Upon a demurrer to the declaration, exception was taken, "becauſe the "aſſignment was made to Witherhead without "ſaying to him and order; and then he can- "not aſſign it over." But it was reſolved by the whole court, that it was good: for if the the original bill was aſſignable, then, to whomſoever it is aſſigned, he has all the intereſt in the bill, and may aſſign it as he pleaſes. And very right that was: for the main foundation is, "what the bill is in it's original?" And accordingly, as that note was originally made payable to Statham and order, they held the aſſignment of it to Witherhead to be an abſolute aſſignment to him, which comprehended his aſſigns. It could not be an indorſement in blank; becauſe it is ſtated, "that the aſſign- "ment was made to Witherhead, without ſay- "ing to him or order." The point reſolved was, that the aſſignment to Witherhead was abſolute. The words added at the end of the report are inaccurate, and might, at firſt view, occaſion a little confuſion: but, to be ſure, the court went into an additional argument, which the reporter has omitted to particulariſe. But the declaration ſets out the aſſignment; which is "an aſſignment by Statham to Wither- "head, omitting to add the words and order."

Then as to the other case of Acheson v. Fountain. —The plaintiff had declared upon an indorsement made by William Abercrombie, whereby he appointed the payment to be "to Louisa "Acheson or order:" upon producing the bill in evidence, which appeared to be originally made payable to Abercrombie or order, yet Abercrombie's indorsement was only this— "Pray pay the contents to Louisa Acheson." It was objected, "that the indorsement did "not agree with the declaration." The court, notwithstanding this, gave judgment upon the ground of a general proposition in law, "That "a bill is negotiable, without adding those "words to the indorsement." And though the plaintiff might, perhaps, have had leave to amend his declaration in the point objected to, yet the declaration came before the court unamended: so that the objection came with it's full strength; and the court gave their opinion upon the point, as a matter of clear settled law: for the whole court were of opinion, "that it was well enough, that being the legal import of the indorsement; and that the plaintiff might, upon this, have indorsed it over to another, who would be the "proper order of the first indorser. And ac-"cordingly, judgment was given for the "plaintiff."

A draft drawn upon one person, directing him "to pay money to another, or "order;" is, in it's original creation, not an authority, but a bill of exchange, and is negotiable. It belongs to the payee to do what he thinks proper with it, and to use it as best suits his convenience. It is his property; and he may assign it as such, and to whom he pleases: and his direction "to pay it to such a "one,"

"one," is a direction "to pay it to him or his "order;" for he aſſigns his whole property in it, and has had a valuable conſideration for ſo doing.

Another thing obſervable is the abſurdity of the opinion of the merchants, (which they avowed to be their opinion,) "that a bill "thus indorſed was not to go to the executors "or adminiſtrators, in caſe of the indorſee's "death:" whereas there can be no doubt, that ſuch an intereſt is tranſmiſſible to executors or adminiſtrators.

The words "or order" are not neceſſary to be inſerted in the indorſement, any more than the words "executors or adminiſtrators," are neceſſary to be added to it.

The point now in queſtion has been already ſolemnly ſettled both in the court of king's-bench and common-pleas, by the two adjudications that have been mentioned: and therefore witneſſes ought not to have been examined to the uſage, after ſuch ſolemn determinations of what was the law.

Therefore there ought to be a new trial.

As to the coſts—I think there ſhould be none, in this caſe. For the verdict muſt be ſet aſide generally, not in part only. Yet this verdict is agreed to be right upon the firſt count; and that is found for the plaintiffs; therefore there ought to be no coſts upon granting a new trial in the preſent caſe: ſince the merits were always clear for the plaintiffs, on the firſt count; and it now appears that nothing remained to be tried, on the ſecond.

Mr. Juſt. Deniſon concurred in toto.

This verdict upon the ſecond count is not well founded. The point in queſtion is not matter of fact; but matter of law.

I never

I never before heard of this notion of a restrictive assignment of a negotiable bill.

Where a bill is originally made payable to A. or order, it is of course and in its very essence negotiable from hand to hand. An inland bill of exchange is assignable in its nature toties quoties: and promissory notes are now put upon the same foot with them. Foreign bills of exchange are equally so, by the law of merchants, and by the settled determinations of courts of law in England.

This is a matter of law: and the law is clearly and fully fixed. There is no instance of a restrictive limitation, where a bill is originally made payable to a man or order.

I never heard of an indorsement to A. only. In general, the indorsement follows the nature of the thing indorsed; and is equally negotiable.

But at least, here is no such restraint as that: here is nothing from whence to collect an intent to limit and restrain it. The law has determined that the bill is negotiable in itself: and there is no law to the contrary, nor any pretence for it in the present case. And it would be infinitely inconvenient, if it should be otherwise; for as no circumstances at all appear, it would destroy or disturb that certainty which transactions of this nature require.

An executor or administrator may indorse a bill or promissory note, within the custom of merchants. In the case of Rawlinson v. Stone, M. 20. G. II. B. R. upon a writ of error from C. B. an inland * bill of exchange was made payable to A. or order: A. died, and the administrator of A. assigned the note to the plaintiff in the common-pleas, for whom that court gave judgment upon demurrer. The court upon argument of the writ of error

* 2 Stra. 1260. Robinson v. Stone.

here,

here, held, " that the executor or adminiſtrator
" might aſſign it over:" and they affirmed the judgment of the court of common-pleas. The executor or adminiſtrator is only aſſignee in law, not in fact: yet they held that he might aſſign it by the name of executor or adminiſtrator; and that it was the common method to do ſo, the indorſement virtually included it.

Now the preſent caſe includes that, and more: for here, the firſt indorſee was an aſſignee in fact. And it ought to be ſo, for the ſake of certainty, and for the benefit and convenience of trade. No intention appears here to reſtrain it: and in general, the law ſays it is aſſignable.

And it is not material when or how filled up: for it is every day's practice to fill up the indorſement long after it is made; nay even in court, at the trial.

I will not give any opinion whether the indorſer MIGHT have limited his aſſignment by ſome clear plain negative words, if in fact it had been his intention to limit and reſtrain it.

But no ſuch intention appears: the indorſement is general; and the law is ſettled, " that " the aſſignment follows the nature of the " thing aſſigned."

And the law being already ſo ſettled, the jury ought not to have given their verdict upon an opinion contrary to it.

A new trial ought therefore to be granted: but no coſts ſhould be paid: for the reaſons already mentioned.

Mr. Juſtice Foſter concurred that there ſhould be a new trial; becauſe it is a verdict againſt a known and ſettled rule of law; as appears by the two adjudged caſes reported in

Comyns

Comyns and Strange. Therefore it ought not to have been left to a jury at all.

Much has been said about the custom of merchants: but the custom of merchants, or law of merchants, is the law of the kingdom, and is part of the common law.

People do not sufficiently distinguish between customs of different sorts, the true distinction is between general customs (which are part of the common law) and local customs, (which are not so.) This custom of merchants is the general law of the kingdom, part of the common law; and therefore ought not to have been left to the jury, after it has been already settled by judicial determinations.

But there should be no costs paid upon this occasion; because the verdict is both against law and against the opinion and direction of my lord chief justice, upon the second count; and is with the plaintiffs, on the first.

Mr. Just. Wilmot was of the same opinion.

The law with regard to this point, is settled and fully established by the two cases which have been cited; and upon right and proper principles.

This original contract is, "to pay to such "person or persons, as the payee or his assignees "or their assignees shall direct:" and there is as much privity between the last indorser and the last assignee, as between the drawer and the first payee. When the payee assigns it over, he does it by the law of merchants; being a chose in action, not assignable by the general law. And the indorsement is part of the original contract, and is incidental and appurtenant to it in the nature of it; and must be understood and interpreted to be made in the same manner as the bill was drawn. And the indorsee holds it in the ſame manner, and with the ſame privileges, qualities, and advantages, as the original payee held it; that is, as an aſſignable negotiable note, which he may indorſe over to another, and that other to a third, and ſo on at pleaſure.

the

There is a great deal of difference between giving a naked authority "to receive it," and transferring it over by indorſement. And I doubt whether he can limit his indorſement of it by way of aſſignment or transfer to another, ſo as to preclude his aſſignee from aſſigning it over as a thing negotiable. For the aſſignee purchaſes it for a valuable conſideration; and therefore purchaſes it with all its privileges, qualities, and advantages; one of which is, it's negotiability.

To be ſure, he may give a mere naked authority to a perſon "to receive it for him;" he may write upon it—"pray pay the money to "my ſervant for my uſe;" or uſe ſuch expreſſions as neceſſarily import that he does not mean to indorſe it over, but is only authoriſing a particular perſon to receive it for him and for his own uſe. In ſuch caſe, it would be clear that no valuable conſideration had been paid him. But at leaſt; that intention muſt appear upon the face of the indorſement. Whereas here, no ſuch thing nor any thing tending to it, appears upon the face of the indorſement: it is a general aſſignment without any reſtriction at all.

The principle I rely upon, is the paying a valuable conſideration for the aſſignment.

In the caſe of More v. Manning, (which is in point,) theſe words added at the end, * "that at a trial, when a bill is given in evi- "dence, the party may fill up the blank as "he pleaſes,"—are redundancy. And that indorſement

* Vide Comyns, 312.

indorsement could not be an indorsement in blank: it appears otherwise from the case itself. It was made to Witherhead, but without saying to "him and order."

So the other case reported in 1 Strange, 557. is likewise in point. And there is no difference, whether the determinations be on promissory notes or on bills of exchange; it is just the same thing; because it is to be governed by the same rule.

[He cited a manuscript report of the case of Acheson v. Fountain, which is reported by Sir John Strange: which agreed with Sir John's report of it.]

There is another case in Carthew, 403. Fisher v. Pomfrett, that shews this to be a right determination; (though the state of that case was indeed just the reverse of the present case.) It was a bill of exchange, payable to T. S. who indorsed it, "pay the contents of this "bill unto the order of Mr. Fisher." Fisher brought his action as indorsee. The defendant demurred to the declaration, because the indorsement was not to Fisher himself, but to his order; but the court held that Fisher might well bring the action: "for, amongst tradesmen, that form was commonly used, though "intended to be made payable to the person "whose order is mentioned." And Fisher had judgment.

Therefore a note indorsed over to A. would enable him to indorse it over to B. and so on. For the convenience and course of trade is to be attended to: the intention is to be regarded, not the form.

The custom of merchants is part of the law of England: and courts of law must take notice of it as such.

 There

There may indeed be some questions depending upon customs amongst merchants, where, if there be a DOUBT about the custom, it may be fit and proper to take the opinion of merchants thereupon: yet that is only where the law remains doubtful. And even there, the custom must be proved by facts, not by OPINION only: and it also must be subject to the controll of law. And so was the case of Hawkins v. Cardy, reported in Carthew, 466. and in 1 Salk. 65. There the defendant had given a note under his hand, "to pay "unto E. G. or order a certain sum of money: "E. G. by indorsement on this note, ordered "PART of the money to be paid to the plaintiff.

"Upon which this action was brought: "and a special custom amongst merchants was "laid in the declaration, according to the "plaintiff's case." Upon a demurrer to this declaration, it was adjudged, "that this is a "void custom; because by means of such "division, the defendant would be subject to "as many actions, as the person to whom the "note was given should think fit; and this "upon a single contract, which subjected him to "one action only." This warrants what I said, "That the original contract must be looked into." Here the original contract is a negotiable bill; and the indorsee is in the place of the original payee.

The two cases of More v. Manning, and Acheson v. Fountain, serve to prove "that there "is NO such custom of merchants as the defen-"dants pretend:" for they could not have been so determined as they were, if there had been such a custom of merchants.

Therefore these judicial determinations of the point are the LEX MERCATORIA, as to this question: for they settle what is the custom of merchants; which cuſtom is the lex mercatoria, which is part of the law of the land: but this finding of the jury in the preſent caſe, is directly contrary to the lex mercatoria ſo fully ſettled and eſtabliſhed by legal adjudications.

of

Therefore the verdict ought to be ſet aſide: but it ſhould be without coſts; for the reaſons already ſpecified.

Per. Cur. unanimouſly,

The verdict was ſet aſide, and a new trial ordered; (but without coſts.)

Reavely v. Mainwaring, eſq; Walker, et al. H. 2. G. III. B. R. 3. Burr. 1306.

Treſpaſs for taking five boys, apprentices to the plaintiff, out of his hands.

Apprentices diſcharged by juſtices at ſeſſions, on complaint of an intention to ſell them in Guinea. They had been put by plaintiff into the hands of Jones, to be kept ſafely: Walker ſent a note to Jones to deliver them to the lieut. of a tender of a man of war. They were accordingly delivered. Walker, who was lieut. of a man of war, had, upon the boys being diſcharged, obtained their conſent to ſerve the king, and had given Jones a guinea to take care of them 'till he

This was action of treſpaſs vi et armis, for taking five boys, apprentices to the plaintiff, out of the hands of the plaintiff.

Lord MANSFIELD, who tried the cauſe, reported the evidence.

Theſe were apprentices regularly bound to Reavely, for the ſea ſervice. The action was treſpaſs vi et armis, for taking them.

It was proved, on the part of the plaintiff, that they were voluntarily indentured to him, and were by his direction delivered to one Jones, to be kept by him, to prevent their running away. Part of Jones's houſe was a priſon, part a public houſe.

The juſtices, at their ſeſſion of gaol delivery, upon a complaint of "an intention to ſell "them in Guinea," diſcharged them.

Reavely ordered them to be put into the hands of Jones. Walker ſent a note to Jones, to deliver them to the lieutenant of a tender of a man of war: who thereupon delivered them, and took a receipt for them.

This was the evidence for the plaintiff.

On the part of the defendants, it appeared that one Lane told Walker of the boys complaints, and of the affecting ſcene that he had ſeen.

 One

he ſent for them, &c.
Verdict for all the defendants. Motion for new trial. Qu. if treſpaſs vi et armis, will lie in this caſe. Walker ought to have been found guilty, becauſe he ſent a preſs-gang for them. But as it was an hard action againſt him, new trial refuſed. No colour for the action againſt the other defendants.

One of the boys alſo gave evidence of Blackwood's picking them up; and of their being deceived, and ill uſed at Jones's, and their endeavours to eſcape. That Walker and Pell came to the priſon: and the boys made their complaints to them. Upon which they were ſent for to the court-houſe: and they all made their complaints to the juſtices, of their being deceived, impriſoned, ill uſed, &c. and their apprehenſions of being ſold.

The plaintiff next morning ſent coaches to carry them away. They reſiſted. Walker (who was lieutenant of a man of war) being preſent, aſked them if they were willing to ſerve the king. They aſſented. He ſent a preſs-gang. They went with their own conſent. They begged of the juſtices to be ſet at liberty. They were brought into court before the juſtices as priſoners; but no commitment being produced, the juſtices diſcharged all and each of them, by writing againſt their names—"diſcharged."

Walker bid Jones to keep them that night. But there was no order to deliver them to Walker: they were only diſcharged from being kept as priſoners. Whereupon Walker aſked if they were willing to ſerve the king: to which they aſſented. And Walker gave Jones a guinea to take care of them that night.

At the trial, all the defendants were found "not guilty;" as well the juſtices, as the lieutenant.

Mr. Yates now ſhewed cauſe againſt a new trial, which had been prayed by the plaintiff.

He inſiſted, that as the boys were in the hands of Jones, who he ſaid, was agent to the plaintiff, and delivered them to the lieutenant who commanded the preſs-gang, upon a note from Walker, and took a receipt for them from him, him, here was no force; therefore trefpafs vi et armis will not lie. It ought to have been an action upon the cafe, or an action upon the ftatute of labourers: for which, he cited Bro. Abr. title Labourer 21, 28. as in point. 6 Mod. 182. Queen v. Daniel, (the fecond refolution) is in point alfo, "that a common "action of trefpafs will not lie, for inticing "an apprentice or fervant from his mafter, if "there be no force."

And here, Jones's delivery was the delivery of the plaintiff; he was the owner's agent.

Mr. Solicitor-General, and Mr. Morton, on behalf of the plaintiff, did not difpute the law, but the fact.

The juftices difcharged the boys: they were put into the hands of Jones, by the juftices. Walker ordered them out of Jones's hands into the hands of the lieutenant, who headed the prefs-gang.

Here was no feduction or inticement; but a forcible taking away a man's apprentices by a prefs-gang, and carrying them on board a man of war: in which Walker was concerned, as having actually fent the prefs-gang to fetch them. And in trefpafs, all are principals.

Lord Mansfield.—It was objected, at the trial, that Walker could not be liable to an action of trefpafs vi et armis: for that Jones delivered them voluntarily to the lieutenant.

But I thought then, and now think that he was liable to this action; becaufe he fent a force, a prefs-gang, to take them.

As to the juftices,—there was no colour to maintain the action againft them.

A fpecial jury of gentlemen found all the defendants not guilty.

 I think

I think they ought to have found Walker guilty, upon the evidence that was laid before them. Yet it would have been very hard, if Walker had suffered for his behaviour upon this occasion; because he seems to have acted with good intentions.

Therefore I think that there ought not to be a new trial.

Rule to shew cause "why there should not "be a new trial."—Discharged.

Earl of March v. Pigot. Trin. Tm. 11 G. III. in B. R. 5 Burr. 2802.
A Newmarket wager, upon the lives of the elder Mr. Pigot, and Sir Will. Codrington. Mr. Pigot's father died at two in the morning of the day the bet was made, in Shropshire.
Objection the contract void, as being without consideration. That it respected a future contingency, and that it was impossible Mr. Pigot should win.
Adj. that the nature of the contract, and the manifest intention of the parties, supported the verdict.
New trial refused.

A verdict having been found for the plaintiff, Mr. Lee moved on behalf of the defendant, for a new trial.

The cause was tried before Lord MANSFIELD. It was a contract made at Newmarket. The wager was originally proposed between young Mr. Pigot, the present defendant, and young Mr. Codrington, to run their fathers (to use the phrase of that place,) each against the other. Sir William Codrington, the father of Mr. Codrington, was then a little turned of fifty: Mr. Pigot's father was upwards of seventy. Lord Ossory computed the chances, according to the above-mentioned ages of their respective fathers. Mr. Codrington thought the computation was made too much in his disfavour. Whereupon Lord March agreed to stand in Mr. Codrington's place: and reciprocal notes were accordingly given between the earl and Mr. Pigot.

Mr. Pigot's note ran thus,—"I promise to "pay to the Earl of March, 500 guineas, if "my father dies before Sir William Codrington. "William Pigot."

The earl's was—"I promise to pay to Mr. "Pigot 1600 guineas, in case Sir William "Codrington does not survive Mr. Pigot's "father. March."

No

No mention was at all made, at the time of this transaction, about their father's being then dead or alive. But the fact was, that Mr. Pigot's father was then actually dead: He died in Shropshire, 150 miles from London, at two o'clock in the morning of the same day on which this bet was made at Newmarket, after dinner.

However, this fact was not, at that time, at all known to any of the parties; nor was there any reason for suspecting that Mr. Pigot's father was then dead. There was no objection made at the trial, against going into parol evidence. Lord Mansfield left the matter to the jury, who found a verdict for the plaintiff, with 525 l. damages.

The objection was, that the contract was VOID; it was without any consideration: for there was no possibility of the defendant's winning, (his father being then actually dead;) and therefore he ought not to lose. It was a contract in futuro, manifestly made upon the supposition of a then future contingency. The meaning can't be doubted: and the words sufficiently express that meaning. "If my "father dies before Sir William Codrington," is equivalent to saying, "If my father shall "die before Sir William Codrington." But his father was dead before he entered into this contract.

Mr. Lee said, it was given in evidence, and is certainly true, that their fathers being dead, or being alive, made no difference in the proportion of the value of the chance: and he observed, that in the case of an insurance upon a ship, if the words "lost or not lost," be not inserted; and the fact should happen to be, that the ship was actually lost at the time when the insurance was made; the insurance is void.

 when

Rule to shew cause why there should not be a new trial.

And now Mr. Wallace, Mr. Dunning, and Mr. Mansfield, on behalf of the plaintiff, shewed cause against a new trial being granted.

They said that the insertion of the words "lost or not lost," was peculiar to English policies: it is not inserted in the policies of other nations. Roccus fo. 205. No. 175. And the reason there given (at the end of it,) namely, "that the fact being unknown will "not prejudice the insurance," applies to the present case.

Supposing it to have related to the death of persons in India, or the safety of the Aurora, can any one imagine that the insurance would be void, because the event had happened antecedent to the making of the contract?

The event of either of the two fathers being then already dead, did not occur to the parties. If it had, it would not have varied the bet. The two reciprocal notes undoubtedly mean one and the same event. Retrospect is included, as well as futurity.

Mr. Lee and Mr. Bolton, for the defendant, replied, that by the law of England it is necessary to insert the words "lost or not lost," in ship-policies: otherwise the insurance is void, if the ship was then already lost. And this, they said, was expresly laid down by Malloy.

The bet went upon the idea that both fathers were then living: and so the evidence agreed. The bet was clearly future. If a bet be laid upon two horses, and one is dead at the time, it is no bet.

The

The case of the Mills frigate was an insurance upon a ship, which had a latent defect totally unknown to the parties: and the insurers were holden not liable, upon account of the ship's being not sea-worthy, though such defect was not known.

Lord MANSFIELD.—I differ totally in opinion from that doctrine. The determination in that case, (which was made by my Lord Chief Justice Wilmot and me, to whom it was referred,) was made quite upon another ground: and the change of opinion in the court of common-pleas happened upon the citing of two cases that had been determined before me; which cases were mistaken. The insured ought to know whether his ship was sea-worthy or not, at the time when she set out upon her voyage: but how should he know the condition she might be in, after she had been out a twelve-month?

If the present case had stood upon written evidence only, it had been matter of law. But there was no objection made, at the trial, against going into parol evidence.

The question is, "What the parties really "meant?" The material contingency was— "Which of these two young heirs should "come to his father's estate first?" It was not known that the father of either of them was then dead. Their lives, their healths, were neither warranted, nor excepted. It was equal to both of them, whether one of their fathers should be then sick or dead. All the circumstances shew, that if it had been then thought of, it would not have made any difference in the bet; and there was no reason to presume that they would have excepted it.

The

The intention was, that he who came firſt to his eſtate, ſhould pay this ſum of money to the other, who ſtood in need of it. That the event had happened, was in the contemplation of neither party.

Both notes are ſo penned, as to be applied to what was to happen. But the nature of ſuch a contract, and the manifeſt intention of the parties, ſupport the verdict of the jury, (to whom it was left without objection,) "that "he who ſucceeded to his eſtate firſt, by the "death of his father, ſhould pay to the other," without any diſtinction whether the event had or had not, at that time, actually happened.

Mr. Juſtice Aston.—It was originally intended to be a bett between two young heirs apparent; and the material point to be ſettled was, to fix the difference of the chances of the ſurvivorſhip of their fathers. The mere ſurvivorſhip was the thing intended to be betted upon. The jury were the proper judges of the intention of the bett; and they have determined what that intention was. If it had ſtood ſingly upon the defendant's note, I ſhould have thought it not to be a good promiſe at the time of giving it. But taking the evidence and all the circumſtances together, it was proper to be left to the jury: and the jury, taking the circumſtances into conſideration, (and it was proper to take them into conſideration,) have determined it. I ſee no ground for granting a new trial.

The other two Judges concurred; and the court unanimouſly diſcharged the rule for a new trial.

Towers v. Barrett, H. 26 G. 3. B. R. Durnford and East 1 V. 133.

Assumpsit for money had and received lies when a payment has been made on a contract which is put an end to, as where either by the terms of the contract it is left in the plaintiff's power to rescind it by any act, and he does it; or where the defendant afterwards assents to its being rescinded. But if it continue open, the plaintiff [illegible] only recover damages, and then he must state the special contract, and the breach of it.

Action for money had and received, and for money paid, laid out, and expended.

On the trial of this cause before Lord Mansfield, at the sittings at Westminster after last Michaelmas term, it appeared that this suit was instituted by the plaintiff, to recover ten guineas, which he had paid to the defendant for a one-horse chaise and harness, on condition to be returned, in case the plaintiff's wife should not approve of it, paying 3s. 6d. per diem for the hire of it.

This contract was made by the defendant's servant, but his master did not object to it at the time. The plaintiff's wife not approving of the chaise, it was sent back at the expiration of three days, and left on the defendant's premises, without any consent on his part to receive it: the hire of 3s. 6d. per diem was tendered at the same time, which the defendant refused, as well as to return the money.

After a verdict had been given for the plaintiff, Sir Thomas Davenport obtained a rule to shew cause, why a nonsuit should not be entered, on the ground that this action for money had and received would not lie; but that it should have been on the special contract.

Erskine now shewed cause.

This case is very distinguishable from those of Power v. Wells (a), and Weston v. Downes (b), on which this rule was obtained. In the former of those cases, it was determined, that a warranty could not be tried in an action for money had and received: and in the latter, that such an action did not lie, the payment having been made on a contract which was still open and disputed by the defendant. But this is the very case put by Mr. Justice Ashhurst (c), where he said this action would have lain.

(a) Cowp. 818. Vide post.

(b) Dougl. 23. Vide post.

(c) Dougl. 24.

The

The principle is this, where a man enters into a contract for a ſale, and he warrants that the object of that ſale ſhall be of a certain denomination, and he does no act to diſallow that contract, there money had and received will lie againſt him: but where the warranty is diſputed, that muſt be tried in an action on the ſpecial contract. In the preſent caſe, there was no warranty: it was only a ſale on condition, which failed. And it was held in Moſes and Macferlan (a), that an action for money had and received will lie to recover money paid by miſtake, or upon a conſideration which happens to fail.

(a) 2 Burr. 1012

Sir Thomas Davenport in ſupport of the rule.

Wherever there is a ſpecial contract, whether conditional or abſolute, or in whatever terms it may be conceived, ſo long as that contract remains open to be diſputed, and the party has done nothing to acknowledge the contract, or to preclude himſelf from entering into the nature of it, the defendant ought to have notice on the declaration, that he is ſued on that contract.

The caſes of Power v. Wells, and Weſton v. Downes, are deciſive as to the preſent. This comes within the principle laid down by Mr. J. Buller, in the latter of thoſe caſes, where he ſaid, "where the contract is open, it muſt "be ſtated ſpecially."

The chaiſe was left on the premiſes, but the defendant refuſed to receive it: then the queſtion is, whether the plaintiff had a right to return it? And how that right is to be tried?—There are ſeveral matters here in controverſy, which cannot be tried in an action for money had and received: 1ſt, Whether in fact there was any contract; 2dly, The extent of it; and, 3dly, What the plaintiff ought to have paid per diem for the hire: for it is open on this declaration to ſay, that the defendant ought to have had 5 s. per diem, as well as 3 s. 6 d.

tent

When the party has done any thing to preclude himſelf from going into the contract, then money had and received will lie: but here the defendant diſputes it.

Lord MANSFIELD, Ch. J.—I am a great friend to the action for money had and received: it is a very beneficial action, and founded on principles of eternal juſtice.

In ſupport of that action, I ſaid in the caſe of Weſton v. Downes, that I would guard againſt all inconveniencies, which might ariſe from it, particularly a ſurpriſe on the defendant; as where the demand ariſes on a ſpecial contract, it ſhould be put on the record. But I have gone farther than that: for if the parties come to trial on another ground, though there happens to be a general count for money had and received, I never ſuffer the defendant to be ſurpriſed by it, unleſs he has had notice from the plaintiff that he means to rely on that, as well as the other ground.

But conſiſtent with that guard, I do not think the action can be too much encouraged. Here there is no pretence of a ſurpriſe on the defendant: there is no other queſtion to be tried. The defendant knew the whole of the matter in diſpute as well as the plaintiff. On what ground can it be ſaid that this is not money paid to the plaintiff's uſe? The defendant has got his chaiſe again, and, notwithſtanding that, he keeps the money.

The caſe was well put by Mr. J. Aſhburſt, in Weſton v. Downes, and I think this is exactly actly like that. I was of opinion at the trial that this action would lie; and I still continue of that opinion.

Willes, J.—The only difficulty is to distinguish this case from that of Weston and Downes; and I think it differs from that on two grounds.

That was an absolute, this a conditional, agreement. And another more material difference is, that this agreement was at an end: the contract was no longer open.

In the case of Weston and Downes, Mr. J. Buller said, "This action will not lie, as the "defendant has not precluded himself from "entering into the nature of the contract, by "taking back the last pair of horses:" but in the present case, the defendant has precluded himself by taking back the chaise. I think the verdict is right.

Ashhurst, J.—This action is maintainable; for it is different from the cases of Weston v. Downes, and Power v. Wells. The latter was merely a case of warranty. In these actions, the party cannot desert the warranty, and resort to the general count, because the warranty itself is one of the facts to be tried.

As to that of Weston v. Downes—on the first contract there was an agreement to take back the horses, provided they were returned within a month: that would have been like the present case, if they had been returned within that time; but there was an end of the first contract, for the plaintiff took a second, and then a third pair of horses: that was a new contract, not made on the terms of the first, and that is distinguishable from the present case.

But

But laying that determination out of the question, this is like the common cases, where either party puts an end to a conditional agreement. Here the condition was to return the chaise, if not approved of; therefore, the momrnt it was returned, the contract was at an end, and the defendant held the money against conscience, and without consideration.

BULLER, J.—On the very principle in Weston v. Downes, and Power v. Wells, which determined, that the action for money had and received would not lie in those cases, it is clear that this action will lie.

It is admitted, that if the defendant had accepted the chaise, the action would lie: but it has been contended, that he did not receive it. Then let us see whether there is not something equivalent to an acceptance? I think there is, from the terms of the contract.

There was nothing more to be done by the defendant; for he left it in the power of the plaintiff to put an end to the contract. Here it was not in his option to refuse the chaise, when it was offered to him; he was bound to receive it; and therefore it is the same as if he had accepted it.

The distinction between those cases, where the contract is open, and where it is not so, is this: if the contract be rescinded, either, as in this case, by the original terms of the contract, where no act remains to be done by the defendant himself, or by a subsequent assent by the defendant, the plaintiff is intitled to recover back his whole money; and then an action for money had and received will lie. But if the contract be open, the plaintiff's demand is not for the whole sum, but for damages arising out of that contract.

 demand

In a late case before me, on a warranty of a pair of horses to Dr. Compton, that they were five years old, when in fact they turned out to be only four, and they were not returned within a certain time, I held, that if the plaintiff would rescind the contract intirely, he must do it within a reasonable time, and that as he had not rescinded the contract, he could only recover damages; and then the question was, what was the difference of the value of horses of four or five years old.

So that the difference, in cases of this kind, is this: where the plaintiff is intitled to recover his whole money, he must shew that the contract is at an end; but if it continues open, he can only recover damages, and then he must state the special contract, and the breach of it.

Rule discharged.

For the purpose of farther elucidating the preceding subject, the three following cases are given, two of which are several times cited in the preceding case.

Stuart v. Wilkins, M. 19 G. III. B. R. Doug. 18. Assumpsit is a proper form of action, where there has been an express warranty.

The two first counts in the declaration in this case were as follows:—David Stuart complains of James Wilkins being, &c. For that whereas the said James, on the 1st day of February, in the year of our Lord 1778, at Hatfield, in the county of Hertford, offered to sell to the said David, a certain mare of him the said James, and whereupon afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, at Hatfield aforesaid, in the county aforesaid, in consideration that the said David, at the special instance and request of the said James, would buy of him the said James, the said mare, at and for a certain certain large price or ſum, to wit, the price or ſum of 31 l. 10 s. of lawful money of Great-Britain, to be paid by the ſaid David to the ſaid James, when he the ſaid David ſhould be thereunto afterwards requeſted; he the ſaid James undertook, and then and there faithfully promiſed the ſaid David, that the ſaid mare was ſound; and the ſaid David in fact ſaith, that he, confiding in the ſaid promiſe and undertaking of the ſaid James, ſo by him made as aforeſaid, afterwards, to wit, on the ſame day and year aforeſaid, at Hatfield aforeſaid, in the county aforeſaid, at the ſpecial inſtance and requeſt of the ſaid James, did buy of the ſaid James the ſaid mare, at and for the ſaid price or ſum of 31 l. 10 s. and did then and there pay to the ſaid James the ſum of 25 l. 5 s. part of the ſaid ſum of 31 l. 10 s. and did then and there undertake, and faithfully promiſe the ſaid James, to pay him the further ſum of 6 l. 5 s. reſidue of the ſaid ſum of 31 l. 10 s. when he the ſaid David ſhould be thereunto afterward requeſted: yet the ſaid James, not regarding his ſaid promiſe and undertaking ſo by him made as aforeſaid, but contriving and fraudulently intending to injure the ſaid David in this behalf, did not regard his ſaid promiſe and undertaking ſo by him made as aforeſaid, but craftily and ſubtilly deceived the ſaid David in this, that the ſaid mare, at the time of the making the ſaid promiſe and undertaking of the ſaid James, was not ſound, but on the contrary thereof was unſound, and was afflicted with a certain malady or diſeaſe, called the windgalls, to wit, at Hatfield aforeſaid, in the county aforeſaid; whereby the ſaid mare then and there became, and is of no uſe or value to the

ſaid

ſaid David.—And whereas alſo the ſaid James, afterwards, to wit, the ſame day and year aforeſaid, at Hatfield aforeſaid, in the county aforeſaid, in conſideration that the ſaid David, at the like inſtance and requeſt of the ſaid James, had bought of him the ſaid James, a certain other mare of him the ſaid James, at and for a certain other large price or ſum, to wit, the ſum of 31 l. 10 s. of like lawful money, and had then and there paid to the ſaid James the ſum of 25 l. 5 s. in part of the ſaid laſt mentioned ſum of 31 l. 10 s. and had then and there undertaken and promiſed to pay to the ſaid James the further ſum of 6 l. 5 s. reſidue of the ſaid laſt mentioned ſum of 31 l. 10 s. when he the ſaid David ſhould be thereunto afterwards requeſted, he the ſaid James undertook, and then and there faithfully promiſed him the ſaid David, that the ſaid laſt mentioned mare was ſound.—Yet the ſaid James, not regarding his ſaid laſt mentioned promiſe and undertaking ſo by him made as aforeſaid, but contriving and fraudulently intending to injure the ſaid David in this behalf, did not regard his ſaid promiſe and undertaking ſo by him made as laſt aforeſaid, but craftily and ſubtilly deceived the ſaid David in this, that the ſaid laſt mentioned mare, at the time of the making of the ſaid laſt mentioned promiſe and undertaking of the ſaid James, was not ſound, but then was unſound, whereby the ſaid laſt mentioned mare became and is of no uſe or value to the ſaid David."—To theſe were added a count for money laid out and expended, and another for money had and received.—The cauſe was tried at the aſſiſes at Hertford, before Lord MANSFIELD, and a verdict found for the plaintiff; but the evidence evidence given being of an expreſs warranty, and a doubt being raiſed whether, in ſuch a caſe, this was a proper form of action, the verdict was taken, ſubject to the opinion of the court on that queſtion.

Upon the motion for ſetting aſide the verdict, and entering a nonſuit, Lord MANSFIELD ſaid, that it had been ſuggeſted, that the form of this declaration aroſe from a determination of his at the ſame place, about twenty years ago, but that that was a caſe of a clear fraud, and that it was declared on as a fraud.

Cauſe was now ſhewn againſt making the rule abſolute.

Kempe Serjeant, and Morgan, for the defendant, contended that there are two ſorts of warranty, 1. expreſs, 2. implied.—That, in an expreſs warranty, the party is liable without alledging notice; but that it muſt be laid warrantizando vendidit.—That every promiſe is executory, and refers to ſomething to be done in future; whereas the declaration here charged the defendant with promiſing a thing paſt. They cited Finch, 180. Dyer, 75. pl. 23. Bro. Abr. tit. Action ſur le caſe pl. 8. Keilway, 91. 2 Lord Raymond, 1118. Herne's Pleader, 7, 77, 223. Raſtall, 9. 1 Ventr. 365. Alleyne, 91. Salk. 210. Fitz. N. B. 98. a.

Lord MANSFIELD.—The declaration ſtruck me as particular, in departing from the old rule of declaring expreſsly on the warranty. A warranty extends to all faults, known and unknown to the ſeller. Selling for a ſound price without warranty, may be a ground for an aſſumpſit; but, in ſuch a caſe, it ought to be laid that the defendant knew of the unſoundneſs. I left it to the jury as on a warranty, ſubject to the opinion of the court, whether a nonſuit ſhould not be entered. I am told by the learned judges on my left hand (ASHHURST and BULLER, Juſtices,) that this ſort of declaration, where a warranty is to be proved, has been practiſed for twenty years, and that it is made uſe of with a view to let in both proofs if neceſſary.

ASHHURST, Juſtice.—Whatever may have been the old form, I believe it has been long ſettled that this form of action is right; and, having been long eſtabliſhed, I am of opinion that it ought to be ſupported. There may be caſes where the count for money had and received, may be of uſe to the plaintiff, and the warranty including the promiſe, may be declared on as ſuch.

BULLER, Juſtice.—This mode has been in uſe ever ſince I have known any thing of practice, and my brother ASHHURST remembers it much longer. There is no objection to it, in point of form, which could prevail even on a ſpecial demurrer. Promiſes are not all executory. Do not all our law books make a diſtinction between promiſes executed, and promiſes executory;—that in one, you may traverſe the conſideration, in the other not? Becauſe another action would lie, it does not follow that this will not. It was determined in Slade's caſe, that there may be different actions for the ſame injury (a).

(a) T. 44 Eliz. 4 Co. 92. b.

Weſton v. Downes, M. 19 G. III. B. R. Doug. 23. Aſſumpſit for money had and received, will not lie when the payment has

This was an action for money had and received by the defendant, to the uſe of the plaintiff. On the trial, before Lord MANSFIELD, the plaintiff proved that the defendant, in conſideration of ſeventy guineas, had ſold him a pair of coach horſes, which he undertook to take back, if the plaintiff ſhould diſ-approve

approve of them, and return them within a month. The plaintiff did return them within a month, but took another pair from the defendant in their ſtead, without making any new agreement. Theſe he alſo returned within a month, and received a third pair on the 23d of December, without any freſh bargain. This third pair he diſapproved of, becauſe they were reſtive, and would not draw, and offered to return them on the 5th of January; but the defendant refuſed to take them back.

been made on a contract which is ſtill open, and not given up by the defendant.

Lord MANSFIELD directed a nonſuit; and, on a rule to ſhew cauſe why the nonſuit ſhould not be ſet aſide, and a new trial granted, the queſtion was, whether the action of aſſumpſit for money had and received, would lie in this caſe.

Dunning and Davenport, for the plaintiff, contended, that there was an end of the contract on the return of the firſt pair of horſes, and that then a right accrued to bring this action.

The Solicitor General, for the defendant, inſiſted, that the contract was continued by taking other horſes, and that the plaintiff ought to have declared upon the ſpecial agreement.

Lord MANSFIELD.—I am a great friend to the action for money had and received; and therefore I am not for ſtretching, leſt I ſhould endanger it. Where there is a ſpecial contract, the defendant ought to have notice, by the declaration, that he is ſued upon that contract.

WILLES, Juſtice, of the ſame opinion.—Here was originally a ſpecial contract, and it continued between the parties through all their ſubſequent dealings.

Ashhurst, Justice.—If the plaintiff had demanded the seventy guineas, and brought his action on the return of the first pair of horses, and no second pair had been sent, this action would have lain; but here the contract was continued, and the case resembles one that was tried before me on the midland circuit, and afterwards came on in this court, viz. Power v. Wells, E. 18 Geo. III. (a).

(a) Vide post.

Buller, Justice.—This action will not lie, as the defendant has not precluded himself from entering into the nature of the contract, by taking back the last pair of horses. Where the contract is open, it must be stated specially. In Power v. Wells, the defendant had warranted a horse to be sound, which proved unsound. The plaintiff tendered a return of the horse, but the defendant refused to receive him, and an action for money had and received being brought, it was held by the court, that it would not lie.

The rule made absolute for a nonsuit to be entered.

Power v. Wells, Idem v. Eundem, E. 18 G. III. B. R. Cowp. 818. If money and a horse are given in exchange for another horse warranted sound, which was unsound at the time, an action for money had and received, is not a proper action to try the warranty;—nor will trover lie for the horse given in exchange, because the property is altered.

Upon shewing cause against a new trial, in the above causes, Mr. Justice Ashhurst, before whom they were tried, reported as follows:

The first was an action for money had and received, brought to recover a sum of twenty-one pounds, paid by the plaintiff upon the exchange of a mare of his, for a horse of the defendant; which the defendant warranted to be sound, but which was clearly proved to be unsound at the time. Immediately upon discovering that the horse was unsound, the plaintiff sent it back, together with a letter, by a person who put the letter and halter into the defendant's hands, in the defendant's yard, but he refused to take them. The person, at the the ſame time demanded the twenty guineas, and the plaintiff's mare given in exchange; but the defendant ſaid he had ſold her; that he would have nothing to do with the perſon ſent by the plaintiff, and turned him out of his yard. Upon which the plaintiff brought both the above actions.

The ſecond was an action of trover for the mare: both cauſes ſtood for trial in the paper together. As to the firſt, an objection was made at the trial to the form of the action, and I was very doubtful how far it was maintainable. But it was agreed that I ſhould ſum it up to the jury, and if they ſhould be of opinion with the plaintiff upon the facts proved, then, inſtead of making a ſpecial caſe, it ſhould be put in the form of a motion for a new trial. The jury found for the plaintiff. As to the ſecond action, it was agreed that a verdict ſhould be taken for the plaintiff, upon the evidence given in the firſt cauſe, but with liberty to move for a new trial; and it was underſtood between the parties, that the defendant ſhould be entitled to the ſame redreſs in both cauſes, in caſe the opinion of the court ſhould be in his favour, as if the whole had been ſtated in the form of a caſe.

Upon ſhewing cauſe, the queſtion was, whether the above actions were rightly conceived? or, whether the plaintiff ſhould not have brought a ſpecial action on the caſe? Mr. Wheler, for the plaintiff. Mr. Newnham for the defendant.

The court were of opinion that both actions were miſconceived. 1ſt. The action for money had and received, with no other count, was an improper action to try the warranty *. 2d. The action of trover could not be maintained, be-

* Vide Stuart v. Wilkins, ante, and note the difference between a count for money had cauſe

had and received only, and an action of assumpsit, to try the warranty.

cause the property was transferred by the exchange.—Accordingly a nonsuit was ordered to be entered up in each cause.

Tindal and others against Brown. E. 26 Geo. III. B. R. Durnford and East. 1 V. 167. If the holder give time to the acceptor of a bill, or drawer of a note, after it has been dishonoured, the indorser is discharged. Notice of a bill of exchange or promissory note, being dishonoured, must come from the holder. What is reasonable notice to the indorser of non-payment by the drawer of a promissory note or acceptor of a bill of exchange, is partly a question of fact, and partly a question of law.

This was an action by the indorsees of a promissory note against the indorser.

The cause first came on to be tried at the sittings after Easter term, 1785, before Lord Mansfield, at Guildhall, when the jury found a verdict for the plaintiffs. On a motion for a new trial in last Trinity term, the facts appeared to be to the following purport: * that on the 21st of August, 1784, the note in question was made by one Donaldson, for 35l. 2s. payable six weeks after date; that on the 5th October, 1784, the day on which the note became due, allowing for the three day's grace, one Howell (the plaintiffs clerk) called on Donaldson, at ten in the morning, and, not finding him at home, regular notice of the demand of payment of the money contained in the note was left at the house of Donaldson; that on the 6th of the same October, between the hours of 10 and 11 in the forenoon, he called again on Donaldson, who promised that the said note should be taken up before the bank was shut on that day, within the banking hours, which were from 9 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon of each day. That the note not being taken up that day, he called again on Donaldson, on Thursday, the 7th, and not finding him at home, he was sent to the defendant Brown, to tender the note, who rerefused to pay it, saying the plaintiffs had made it their own.

* The facts are taken from a special verdict, afterwards found in this cause.

Donaldson

Donaldson proved at the trial, that immedately on his parting with Howell, on Wednesday, the 6th, he went to Brown's house, and not finding him at home, he left a message with his wife that the note was due, that he (Donaldson) could not pay it, desired that Brown would take it up, adding that he would make it good to him.

That all the parties lived at Bristol, within twenty minutes walk of each other.

After argument by Lee and Morgan, for the plaintiffs, and Cowper and Baldwin, for the defendant, the court delivered their opinion to the following effect.

Lord Mansfield.—On full consideration, I am now decidedly of opinion that there ought to be a new trial. It is of great consequence that this question should be settled. Certainty and diligence are of the utmost importance in mercantile transactions. It is extremely clear that the holder of a bill, when dishonoured by the acceptor, must give reasonable notice to the drawer or indorser. What is reasonable notice is partly a question of fact, and partly a question of law. It may depend in some measure on facts; such as the distance at which the parties live from each other, the course of the post, &c. But wherever a rule can be laid down with respect to this reasonableness, that should be decided by the court, and adhered to by every one for the sake of certainty. I cannot form to myself an idea of the ground on which the jury went in giving this verdict. Did they conceive the rule to be that the holder might delay giving notice for two days, or what other time did they mean to allow him? Here an earlier notice might certainly have been given, as all the parties lived within twenty minutes walk of each other. The bill was dishonoured on the 5th, the clerk saw the maker on the 6th, and gave him time during the banking hours of that day; and the plaintiffs did not go at four that afternoon, but waited till the next day. It has been held (a), that where the party liable, does not live in the same place, the holder must write by the next post after the bill is dishonoured. It was well observed by the counsel, that the juries were obstinate in the case of Metcalf and Hall (b), where they struggled so hard, in spite of the opinion of the court, to narrow the rule, that they held you must in certain cases demand payment on a banker's draft within an hour. Here the struggle is to give a greater latitude than is necessary. It was once doubted (c) whether notice within fourteen days was not sufficient. For the sake of diligence and certainty, I am of opinion there should be a new trial.

lived

(a) Vide Dougl. 497.

(b) Tr. 22 Geo. III. B. R.

(c) Vide Ball. N. P. 274, 276.

Willes, J.—I agree that there ought to be a new trial. New credit was given to the maker on the 7th, the plaintiffs clerk went first to Donaldson to demand the bill of him, and after that they sent it to the defendant. As to the notice, I cannot consider the notice given by the maker equal to that given by the indorser. The plaintiffs have not acted with legal diligence.

Ashhurst, J.—It is of dangerous consequence to lay it down as a general rule, that the jury should judge of the reasonableness of time. It ought to be settled as a question of law. If the jury were to determine this question in all cases, it would be productive of endless uncertainty. The next day at the most, is as long as is necessary in a case circumstanced cumſtanced like this. If the parties live at a ſmall diſtance, this is ſufficient time: if at a greater, they ſhould write by the next poſt. Notice means ſomething more than knowledge; becauſe it is competent to the holder to give credit to the maker. It is not enough to ſay that the maker does not intend to pay, but that he (the holder) does not intend to give credit. In the preſent caſe there is no notice; for the party ought to know whether the holder intends to give credit to the maker, or whether he intends to reſort to the indorſer.

BULLER, J.—The numerous caſes on this ſubject reflect great diſcredit on the courts of Weſtminſter; they do infinite miſchief in the mercantile world: and this evil can only be remedied by doing what the court wiſhed to do in the caſe of Metcalf and Hall; by conſidering the reaſonableneſs of time as a queſtion of law, and not of fact. Whether the poſt goes out this or that day, at what time, &c. are matters of fact: but when thoſe facts are eſtabliſhed, it then becomes a queſtion of law on thoſe facts, what notice ſhall be reaſonable.

As to giving time the holder does it at his peril. And that circumſtance alone would be ſufficient to decide this caſe. For in no caſe has it been determined, that the indorſer is liable, after the holder of the note has given time to the maker.

With reſpect to notice, I concur in the opinion which has been given by the court, and particularly for the reaſon given by my brother ASHHURST. The purpoſe of giving notice is not merely that the indorſer ſhould know the note is not paid, for he is chargeable only in a ſecondary degree; but to render him liable you muſt ſhew that the holder looked to him for payment, and gave him notice that he did ſo. A caſe might eaſily be put, where the indorſer might have notice from the holder, and yet would not be liable; as if in the preſent caſe the holder had written a letter to the indorſer, containing the circumſtances which have been given in evidence, the indorſer would have been diſcharged; becauſe it would have amounted only to this, "the note "made by Donaldſon, and indorſed by you, is "not paid, and I have given credit to Donaldſon "'till to-morrow." Though there is no preſcribed form of this kind of notice, yet it muſt import that the holder looks on the indorſer as liable, and expects payment from him, that he may have his remedy over by an early application. Then it becomes his buſineſs to take up the note. But notice of having given credit to the maker, will diſcharge the indorſer. The notice by another perſon to the indorſer, can never be ſufficient; but it muſt proceed from the holder himſelf.

to

The rule for a new trial being made abſolute,

This cauſe was heard a ſecond time before Buller, J. at the ſittings at Guildhall, after laſt Hillary term, when in addition to the evidence given on the former trial, one Weeks, the defendant's attorney, was called, who ſwore, that in a converſation which he held with Donaldſon, on Thurſday the 7th of October, concerning the note in queſtion, Donaldſon told him he was that moment come from Brown's, where he had left a meſſage with Mrs. Brown, deſiring her huſband to take up the note; that the reaſon why he was ſo exact as to the particular day, and the expreſſion made uſe of by Donaldſon, was becauſe he kept a minute of all his tranſactions; that his minute was confirmed

firmed in this respect by his memory; and besides, that at a meeting between the parties before the action was brought, this fact was admitted on both sides. This jury, which was a special one, likewise found for the plaintiffs.

Cowper having moved this term for a second new trial, on the ground, that this was a verdict against law,

Erskine now shewed cause, and admitted that it was not now to be disputed, that what should be considered to be a reasonable time, was a question of law; but contended, that in this case the plaintiffs had used due diligence, and had given the defendant notice within a reasonable time. That Donaldson ought to be considered as the agent of the plaintiffs for the purpose of giving notice to the defendant. That there was a contradiction as to the time when this notice was first given to the defendant, whether on the 6th or 7th of October, which contradiction arose from the testimony of Weeks, who was not produced at the former trial, which circumstance might have afforded the jury some room for suspicion: but this was a point proper for the determination of the jury who had decided it. That at all events, the court should be extremely cautious in granting a third trial; particularly as the sum in litigation was so small. That in Metcalf and Hall, which involved a similar question, the court had refused to grant a third trial.

The counsel on the other side were stopped by the court, who referred to their former decision, and added, that even if the application had been made to the defendant on the 6th, it would have been too late, because the plaintiffs had given credit to the drawer. That though it was true in general, that the court would refuse to grant a new trial, when the ſum in litigation was ſmall, yet that rule did not apply, where a verdict had been given againſt law. That the reaſon why the court refuſed granting a third trial, in the caſe of Metcalf and Hall, was, becauſe the plaintiff had proved his debt under a commiſſion of bankrupt, which had iſſued againſt the drawees of the bill, between the time of the verdict and the motion for a new trial.

a new

Rule abſolute.

This cauſe was tried a third time, and that the point might be ſolemnly ſettled, the parties conſented to have a ſpecial verdict found, which was done according to the facts firſt ſtated, Weeks's evidence not making a part of it. Morgan was to have argued for the plaintiffs, but as the court of B. R. had given two decided opinions againſt his clients, he did not think proper to argue it before that court.—Judgment was therefore given for the defendant, and a writ of error was brought in the exchequer chamber, and argued by Morgan for the plaintiffs in error, Baldwin for the defendant. Morgan made two points; one, that the notice given by Donaldſon was the ſame as if given by the plaintiffs, and that the defendant had ſufficient notice: another, that whether the notice was or was not ſufficient and reaſonable, was a mere queſtion of fact, and ought to have been determined by the jury, and therefore a venire facias de novo ought to be awarded.—The court determined againſt the plaintiffs in error upon both points, and affirmed the judgment of the king's-bench.

Caldwell and others againſt Ball. E. 16 G. III. B.R. Durnford and Eaſt. 1 V. 205.

TROVER for fifty hogſheads, and one hundred and twenty tierces of ſugar, and thirty puncheons of rum.

On

On a motion to set aside the verdict, which had been given for the defendant in this cause, and to grant a new trial, WILLES, justice, before whom this cause was tried, at the last assises at Lancaster, made the following report.

Where several bills of lading have been signed, of different imports, no reference is to be had to the time when they were signed by the captain; but the person who first gets one of them by a legal title from the owner or shipper, has a right to the consignment.—And where such bills of lading, tho' different upon the face of them, are constructively the same, and the captain has acted bonâ fide, a delivery according to such legal title will discharge him from them all.

The question arises upon two bills of lading signed by the defendant, who was captain of the ship Tyger, under one of which bills of lading the plaintiffs claim.

Thompson, the shipper of the goods in question, was a considerable planter in the island of Jamaica, and corresponded with Fairbrother, a merchant residing at Liverpool. Previous to the 19th August, 1784, Fairbrother had acted as the general agent or consignee of Thompson, but from that time his general agency ceased, in consequence of a power of attorney to Dorothy Thompson and Bromfield, which superseded his authority. From that time, whatever act was done by Fairbrother on behalf of Thompson, was by virtue of a special order or commission for that specific purpose.

The above-mentioned power of attorney to Dorothy Thompson and Bromfield, authorised them to raise money for the use of Thompson, whose affairs were then much involved, and to make a mortgage upon his estates in Jamaica. It likewise empowered them to enter into any contract that they should think fit for consigning and shipping any sugar, or produce, made on any of the plantations.

At the time that this power arrived in England, Thompson was indebted to the house of Caldwell and Company, the present plaintiffs, who were merchants of Liverpool, in the sum of 4000 l. By way of a security for this debt, Dorothy Thompson and Bromfield gave the plaintiffs a mortgage dated the 20th of March, 1785, for 7000 l. upon the plantations in Jamaica; and likewise entered into a covenant for the future consignment of Thompson's sugars to them.

 for

By a subsequent indenture, dated 10th. of May, 1785, and executed between the same parties, after reciting the above-mentioned mortgage, it was declared, "that whereas "the sum of 4000 l. or thereabouts, part of "the said sum of 7000 l. at the time of the "execution of the said indenture, was actually "owing by the said T. P. Thompson, to the "said C. Caldwell and Company, for which "they have the bond of the said T. P. Thompson, "and others, and the further sum of 100 l. "has been also advanced to the said T. Bromfield, as the attorney of the said T. P. Thompson, "and the remainder of the said sum of 7000 l. "was intended to have been so advanced; "but doubts having arisen as to the force and "validity of the power of the said T. Bromfield, to charge with effect the said plantation and premises, and it being uncertain "what sum of money the said plantation and "premises are already mortgaged for, and "what other circumstances affect the same, "it has been agreed that the said indentures "of lease and release, (meaning the before-mentioned mortgage) shall be sent out to "Jamaica, to the correspondent of the said "Charles Caldwell and Thomas Smyth, to be "recorded in the said island, and for information how the said estate is affected by former "incumbrances, and that so soon as the said "plantation, lands, and premises, are effectually made liable to the payment of the "said sum of 7000 l. and interest, according "to the terms of the said indenture of release, "and the said Charles Caldwell and Thomas

"Smyth,

" Smyth, are well ſatisfied that the ſame are a
" good and ſufficient ſecurity for the ſaid ſum
" of 7000 l. and intereſt; and are alſo ſatisfied,
" that the ſaid Thomas Pepper Thompſon will
" conſign the produce of the ſaid plantation to the " ſaid Charles Caldwell and Thomas Smyth, ac- " cording to the terms of the ſaid indenture of " releaſe, then and not until then, the ſaid
" Charles Caldwell and Thomas Smyth are to " advance unto the ſaid Thomas Bromfield, as " attorney for the ſaid Thomas Pepper Thompſon,
" the remainder of the ſaid ſum of 7000 l.
" And in the mean time no intereſt for more " than is or may be actually advanced, is to " be charged or payable. But it is fully un-
" derſtood amongſt the parties, that the ſaid
" Charles Caldwell and Thomas Smyth, are not " to be under any obligation of advancing any " more money than they have done already,
" until they are fully ſatisfied with the pro" priety thereof, and are content to do ſo."

At the time this indenture bore date, the houſe of France and Company, merchants at Liverpool, were alſo creditors of Thompſon, to the amount of 3000 l. for money advanced to him ſome time before, through the hands of their agents in Jamaica, Meſſrs. Coppell and Goldwin; and Thompſon, to diſcharge this demand, had drawn two bills of exchange, bearing date the 28th July, 1784, upon Dorothy Thompſon and Thomas Bromfield, payable at ninety days ſight, in favor of Meſſrs. Coppell and Goldwin, who indorſed the ſame to the order of France and Company.

Extract of a letter from Thompſon to Fairbrother, dated the 6th of December, 1784, from Jamaica.

" I have now the pleaſure to inform you,
" that I have a moſt pleaſing proſpect of a " crop,

"crop, which, avoiding accidents, I hope
"will enable me to take up those heavy bills
"when due, which my sister (Dorothy Thompson) will inform you of, and for which I "shall ship 200 casks on the Tyger, Captain Ball,
"who expects to sail in all next month."

Extract of a letter from Thompson to Fairbrother, dated Jamaica, 23d January, 1785.

"I shall wait upon Messrs. Coppell and "Goldwin, to desire them to write to Messrs.
"France and Company, relative to the bills
"drawn in their favor. We are making fine
"sugar, and a large quantity of it. I hope "you will make Messrs. Caldwell and Company "satisfied until I have the pleasure of seeing "them, which will be soon, as I am, please
"God, determined to leave this island in all
"July next, in the packet."

Extract of a letter from Thompson to Fairbrother, dated Jamaica, 15th March, 1785.

"I shall have on board the Tyger one hundred and seventy hogsheads and tierces,
"and thirty puncheons, most of which are "already on board. She will sail the beginning "of April.

"N. B. With respect to insuring what I "shall have on board the Tyger, I shall leave "it to your own option. Should she be long "on her passage you might get insurance for "2000 l. as we could not well bear a loss
"just now."

On the same day on which the last mentioned letter from Jamaica was written to Fairbrother, he, being applied to by Messrs. Caldwell and Company for payment of Thompson's debt, wrote the following answer to them.

"Messrs.

"Messrs. Caldwell and Company,

"In consequence of your application to "me for money on account of Mr. Thompson,
"I am sorry to inform you, that I have no"thing wherewith to pay. A letter from "that gentleman acquaints me, that he will
"ship two hundred casks of sugar and rum on "board the Tyger, Captain Ball. I will be "obliged to you, if you will order insurance
"on these goods.

T. Fairbrother."

Liverpool, 15 March, 1785.

On the 18th of March, 1785, the defendant signed the bills of lading in question.

One of these bills of lading for the whole cargo, which was acknowledged to have been the first signed by the defendant, was to deliver to Messrs. Thompson and Fairbrother, or their assigns; this was indorsed by Thompson in Jamaica, and sent by him to Fairbrother in England, where it arrived on the 20th of May, inclosed in the following letter.

Jamaica, 18th March, 1785.

"I send you inclosed a bill of lading, for "what goods I have got on board the Tyger.
"This will acquaint you of my being obliged to "assign the other bills of lading to Coppel and
"Company, for the security of the payment of
"the bills drawn in their favour, &c."

A short time after the receipt of this letter, Fairbrother indorsed the bill of lading abovementioned to Messrs. Caldwell and Company, the present plaintiffs; who, after they were in possession of it, advanced two sums, amounting together to 219 l. 13 s. 8 d. for the use of Thompson.

The other two bills of lading for different parts of the cargo, making up the whole together, were to deliver to the order of the ſhipper or his aſſigns, and indorſed by Thompſon as follows: "Deliver the within to Meſſrs. Thompſon and Fairbrother, provided they engage "to pay the nett proceeds to Meſſrs. France "and Nephew; otherwiſe, deliver them to "the order of James France and Nephew, on "account of Coppell and Goldwin."

Theſe laſt bills of lading had been delivered into the hands of Coppell and Goldwin, by Thompſon, at the time when he wrote the letter of the 18th of March, 1785, to Fairbrother, as appeared by that letter, and were afterwards received by France and Company, on the 6th of June, 1785, in a letter from Meſſrs. Coppell and Goldwin, dated 16th April.

Captain Ball, the defendant, arrived at Liverpool on the 19th of June, 1785, having on board his ſhip the goods in queſtion.

The day after his arrival, the plaintiffs demanded the goods of him, when he acknowledged the bill of lading, but ſaid that he could not deliver the goods without the conſent of the owners of the ſhip, who were France and Company.

On the next day the plaintiffs ſaw France, and repeated their demands, tendering, at the ſame time, all charges of freight, &c. France ſaid, that neither he nor the captain would deliver the goods, unleſs upon a promiſe that the nett proceeds ſhould be paid to him. This was refuſed by the plaintiffs.

WILLES, J. then obſerved, that, on the trial, ſeveral points had been made by the plaintiffs.

1ſt, That

1st, That the captain had no right to retain the goods in question, for that he was liable in an action of trover on the bill of lading signed by him.

But in answer to it, he had considered this in reality as an action between the plaintiffs and France and Company, and that the defendant, who was captain of the ship, was merely a trustee for one or the other, and was indemnified in the mean time. That he was in a similar situation to a sheriff, when contrary demands are made by the assignees of a bankrupt and a creditor claiming under an execution.

2dly, It was insisted that the defendant had done wrong, in refusing to deliver the goods according to the first bill of lading signed, by which he had bound himself.

As to this point, he had left it to the jury to consider of, under the particular circumstances in which all the parties stood. He had represented to them, that the defendant was master of France and Company's ship, and was charged to deliver the goods to them by Coppell and Goldwin.

That the conduct of Fairbrother was in some degree culpable, in assigning the bill of lading over to the plaintiffs immediately after he had received it, against what he knew to be the design of his principal.

And that as the plaintiffs, and France and Company, were both fair creditors, and bonâ fide holders of the bills, he who had first got possession by a legal title, ought to be preferred; and that for this purpose the possession of Coppell and Goldwin was to be considered as the possession of France and Company.

 3dly, It

3dly, It was objected, that France and Company were not creditors of Thompſon, becauſe the bills of exchange were not due, and therefore that they had no equitable lien on the goods.

But that was anſwered, by ſaying that the conſideration for theſe bills had actually been advanced by France and Company.

4thly, It was inſiſted that the conſignments of theſe goods was bound by the mortgage to the plaintiff, executed by Bromfield, under the power of attorney.

This was anſwered, by ſaying that the mortgage did not affect this tranſaction, being ſubſequent in point of time; that at all events it was only a covenant which bound the covenanter perſonally.

Under theſe directions, the jury had given their verdict for the defendant, which he had no reaſon to diſapprove of.

Scott, Wood and Law, ſhewed cauſe againſt the rule, and directed their arguments to two grounds, on one of which they ſuppoſed that the plaintiffs meant to rely.

1ſt, That the bill of lading indorſed to them, being actually ſigned before the other, veſted ſuch a property in them, as enabled them to maintain this action. Or, 2dly, That under the agreement to conſign to them in the mortgage deed, they had a right to theſe goods.

They obſerved, that, in order to clear this tranſaction, it was neceſſary to conſider the different relations of the parties to each other.

After Auguſt 1784, Fairbrother no longer acted as the general agent of Thompſon, but under a ſpecial direction accompanying each cargo conſigned to him: therefore he had no longer

longer the arbitrary difpofition of Thompfon's property. Bromfield was at that time appointed the general agent. The nature of this connection between Fairbrother and Thompfon, was perfectly well known to the prefent plaintiffs. Previous to their getting poffeffion of the firft bill of lading, the plaintiffs had taken a mortgage on Thompfon's eftate, for 7000 l. for a debt of 4000 l. only.

At this time, France and Company were alfo creditors of Thompfon, upon bills of exchange drawn by him, to the amount of 3000 l. for money which had been advanced to him, through the hands of Coppell and Goldwin, who were agents of France and Company. Under thefe circumftances the bills of lading were figned, Thompfon intending that Fairbrother fhould apply thefe goods in difcharge of the bills of exchange which were in the poffeffion of France and Company.

But the plaintiffs contend, that the bill of lading which configned the goods to Fairbrother, having been actually firft figned by the defendant, and Fairbrother having afterwards indorfed it over to them, the defendant is concluded by his own act. In anfwer to this, they obferved, that Fairbrother being merely the agent of Thompfon for a fpecific purpofe, and not having a general power over the confignment, which was known to the defendant, it was nothing more than an undertaking by him to deliver the goods to Fairbrother, for the purpofe of being difpofed of according to directions from Thompfon: and therefore, as between Thompfon and Fairbrother, under whom the plaintiffs claim, Fairbrother had indorfed this bill of lading over to the plaintiffs, without any authority, and againft confcience;

ſcience: and there being a general communication between Fairbrother and the plaintiffs, that they either had, or might have had notice, unleſs they were guilty of great negligence. That theſe goods were originally devoted to take up the bills which were in the poſſeſſion of France and Company.

But even ſuppoſing that any ſtreſs is to be laid upon the plaintiffs bill of lading having been the firſt actually ſigned, yet that will have no weight under theſe circumſtances; for, according to the nature of Fairbrother's authority, if Thompſon had merely ſent him a letter, ordering him to deliver the nett proceeds of the goods to France and Company, that would have been ſufficient. Then there is no good ground to repreſent theſe bills of lading as inconſiſtent; for the ſecond bill of lading amounted to no more than a ſpecial appropriation of the goods which were to be delivered to Fairbrother under the firſt bill of lading, and came in lieu of a letter, or other ſpecific order from Thompſon. The defendant therefore, being appriſed of the mode of dealing between Fairbrother and Thompſon, only bound himſelf to deliver the property to Fairbrother, as the ſpecial agent of Thompſon, and Fairbrother was afterwards to deliver the nett proceeds according to further directions from Thompſon, which were contained in the ſecond bill of lading. Defendant, therefore, has complied with his duty, for the goods were offered to be delivered to the plaintiffs, provided they would promiſe to pay the nett proceeds to France and Company.

It is not contended that any money was advanced by the plaintiffs, at the time of aſſigning over the bill of lading to them; but it is ſaid ſaid that two ſmall ſums were afterwards advanced by them, on the credit of the bill of lading; but it is much to be doubted whether the money was advanced on that account; for the plaintiffs had, at that time, a large mortgage on Thompſon's eſtate, which was more than ſufficient to cover their debt. And indeed the ſums advanced were ſo ſmall, that they could only be colourable, for they muſt have known that they were not ſufficient to anſwer the preſſing demands of Thompſon. Beſides, if the fact were ſo, it was done at their own peril, under notice of Fairbrother's limited authority; for, before that time, they had treated with Bromfield as the general agent of Thompſon.

Fairbrother was, during all this tranſaction, in the habit of communicating his letters to the plaintiffs. In the letter dated 6th December, 1784, Thompſon took notice that he had heavy bills outſtanding againſt him, for the payment of which, he ſhould ſhip two hundred hogſheads on board the Tyger, Captain Ball. It was clear, therefore, from that letter, which the jury had a right to preſume that the plaintiffs had ſeen, that the goods in queſtion were ſent to Fairbrother to take up thoſe bills, which were in the poſſeſſion of France and Company, for there were no other heavy bills except thoſe. The plaintiffs muſt have known, therefore, that there was a ſpecial lien meant to be fixed on this property; and the letter of the 23d January confirmed it, becauſe it ſhewed that Thompſon held the ſame intention that he had manifeſted in the former letter; and is alſo very important, becauſe it proves negatively, not only that Thompſon had no idea of ſending the goods to the plaintiffs, plaintiffs, but that he had alſo expreſsly intended to exclude them; for he deſired Fairbrother to call upon them, and make them ſatisfied 'till he came to England.

No argument in favour of the plaintiffs can be drawn from the circumſtance of their having inſured this cargo by the direction of Fairbrother, he himſelf having no authority from Thompſon to order any ſuch inſurance 'till the receipt of the letter of the 15th March, which was long afterwards: and it was groſs negligence in the plaintiffs, knowing Fairbrother's limited commiſſion, not to demand a ſight of his authority for making ſuch an order.

It was therefore for the jury to determine, under all theſe circumſtances, whether the plaintiffs had or had not actual notice, that theſe goods were conſigned to Fairbrother, for the ſpecial purpoſe of paying the bills in the hands of France and Company; and the verdict has determined that they had.

Hitherto this caſe has only been conſidered on the preſumption of fraud or wilful negligence on the part of the plaintiffs: but, in point of law, this property was veſted in France and Company, before the plaintiffs were in poſſeſſion of their bill of lading. All the bills of lading had an exiſtence when the letter of the 18th of March was written. Thompſon had then put the ſecond bill of lading into the hands of Coppell and Goldwin, for the uſe of France and Company. The firſt bill of lading was at that time, and long afterwards, in abeyance, it not having reached Fairbrother. Therefore not only the right of property was veſted in France and Company in point of law, but they were alſo in poſſeſſion in point of fact, for the goods were actually on board a ſhip belonging to them.

of

At all events, the agent could do no more than the principal. Had Thompſon himſelf been in England, he could not have delivered this cargo to the plaintiffs, after Coppell and Goldwin had been put in poſſeſſion of the bill of lading.

2dly, As to the mortgage, allowing it to have been warranted by the power of attorney, it could make no difference in this caſe, as between the plaintiffs and France and Company; for the covenant to conſign the produce of Thompſon's eſtate, could only be binding upon him, and could not affect France and Company, who were in poſſeſſion under a legal title in the mean time. But this mortgage was not executed purſuant to the power of attorney. The power was expreſsly given in order to raiſe money for Thompſon, and not for the purpoſe of ſecuring an old debt.

Wilſon, Chambre, and S. Haywood, contra, contended, that as the plaintiffs were in poſſeſſion of the firſt bill of lading, which was ſigned by the defendant, it is concluſive as againſt him. A bill of lading is as negotiable as a bill of exchange. It is an undertaking by the captain, to deliver the goods ſpecified therein, either to the conſignee, or to his aſſigns. The defendant, therefore, having ſigned one bill of lading, acted fraudulently in ſigning another, which was inconſiſtent with the firſt. But in every caſe where there are two inconſiſtent bills of lading, the firſt binds the captain and owners. If the other bills of lading had been of the ſame tenor and date as the firſt, Coppell and Goldwin could have derived no title under them, becauſe, in order to negotiate them, they ought to have been indorſed by Fairbrother as well as Thompſon.

gotiate

Admitting that the defendant is to be conſidered as a truſtee, yet he is truſtee for thoſe perſons to whoſe order he himſelf ſigned the bills of lading; and if, after having ſigned one, he enters into a ſubſequent contract inconſiſtent with ſuch truſt, he is guilty of a breach thereof, for which he is perſonally anſwerable. He is not in a ſimilar ſituation to a ſheriff, who knows not whom to prefer of two contending parties, whoſe ſeveral claims he is not privy to, and therefore comes to the court for an indemnity, or ſeeks it from the parties: for here theſe contradictory claims are ſet up in conſequence of the defendant's own wrong, and could not have happened without. The defendant, therefore, has made himſelf liable.

But even conſidering this merely as a queſtion of right between the plaintiffs and France and Company, the plaintiffs title ought to be preferred, becauſe they derive it under the firſt bill of lading.

Willes, J.—Gave no further opinion, but declared himſelf ſatisfied with the verdict.

Ashhurst, J.—I do not think, upon the whole of the tranſaction, that this can be conſidered as a verdict either againſt evidence or law, and therefore there ought not to be a new trial.

There is no reaſon for ſaying that either the plaintiffs, or France and Company, are not equitable holders of the ſeveral bills of lading. When equity is equal between the parties, a legal title muſt prevail. This reduces the queſtion to a mere point of law. I ſhall put out of the queſtion all the letters, which ought not to prejudice the plaintiffs, becauſe they were not proved to have had actual notice of them; neither are they guilty of negligence, in not having endeavoured to learn their contents. They knew that Fairbrother acted as the agent of Thompſon, and had no reaſon to be ſuſpicious of his authority.

2 ough

Upon the merits of the caſe, the leaning of my inclination would rather be in favour of the defendant, whom I conſider as the ſervant of France and Company, than in favour of the plaintiffs, becauſe they have got another ſecurity.

But in point of law alſo the plaintiffs are not entitled to recover. Three bills of lading were ſigned by the captain. The firſt is a general one, conſigning the whole cargo to the order of Thompſon and Fairbrother; the other two are partial conſignments of different parts of the ſame cargo to the order of the ſhipper. If it could be proved, or there was any reaſon to infer, that the defendant meditated a fraud on any perſon, that would afford an argument as againſt him; but no fraud can be preſumed here.

I do not ſee, indeed, the reaſon of making theſe bills of lading in a different form; but the captain might ſuppoſe them to be the ſame in effect, for he knew that Fairbrother was merely an agent for Thompſon. Therefore I do not think that they can be ſaid to be inconſiſtent; they are all of them in ſubſtance to the order of the ſhipper. Whoever, then, was firſt in poſſeſſion of either of theſe bills of lading, had the legal title veſted in him.

It appeared by the letter of the 18th of March, that at that time Thompſon had indorſed two of the bills of lading to the agents of France and Company. In my opinion, that was an immediate transfer of the legal intereſt in the cargo; and that ſame letter, which alſo conveyed the other bill of lading to Fairbrother, gave him notice of this indorſement.

of

It was argued, that the defendant was bound to deliver the cargo according to his undertaking; but as he knew of this indorſement to Coppell and Goldwin, he conſidered himſelf bound to deliver the cargo according to that bill of lading, which was firſt poſſeſſed by one of the parties. He then concluded, that he ſhould fulfil his undertaking by delivering to the order of the ſhipper. As to the plaintiffs being in poſſeſſion of the bill of lading under which they claim, before the other two arrived in England, the time of their arrival cannot vary the caſe, for the legal title was veſted in Coppell and Goldwin, by their being indorſed to them.

BULLER, J.—Several objections have been made to this verdict, but the caſe is confined to a very narrow compaſs.

The firſt objection was, that the defendant had no right to withold the goods, after demand made by the holder of the bill of lading. The anſwer given to it was, that he was indemnified, and that it ought to be conſidered as an action between the plaintiffs and France and Company. But I do not think that the doctrine of indemnity applies to ſuch caſes as theſe. Beſides, it always applies againſt a defendant, and not for him. If it appears that a defendant ſtands in the place of a third perſon, he ſhall not be permitted to avail himſelf of any objection againſt the merits of the caſe, which ſuch third perſon could not have availed himſelf of.

The

The ſecond objection was, that, as there were different bills of lading, the defendant was bound to deliver the cargo according to the firſt bill of lading actually ſigned.

This being the real point of the caſe, I ſhall reſerve it till laſt.

Third objection. That as the plaintiffs and France and Company were bonâ fide holders of theſe bills of lading, they who firſt got poſſeſſion, as between theſe parties, were to be preferred.

But bare poſſeſſion conveys no title, as between perſons claiming under different rights. The queſtion here is, who has the legal title? For the perſon who firſt gets poſſeſſion, under the legal title, muſt prevail.

4thly, That France and Company were not creditors to Thompſon at the time that the bills were indorſed to them. But that is not ſo: for they ſtood in the ſituation of payees of the bills of exchange, for which they had given a valuable conſideration.

The laſt objection was, That the plaintiffs were entitled under the covenant contained in the mortgage, to conſign to them.

The anſwer given to that was right: that the mortgage had nothing to do with this queſtion. It was ſubſequent to the tranſaction; and, beſides, it was only a covenant to conſign, which could not bind third perſons.

Now as to the principal point, it is material to conſider the nature of a bill of lading. It is an acknowledgment under the hand of the captain, that he has received ſuch goods, which he undertakes to deliver to the perſon named in that bill of lading. It is aſſignable in its nature; and by indorſement the property is veſted in the aſſignee. It is now clearly ſettled that goods at sea may be so assigned. This doctrine is laid down in Evans and Marlett, 1 Lord Raym. 271. and is recognized by Lord Mansfield in Wright and another v. Campbell and another. 4 Burr. 2051.

It is argued that the captain must be answerable, at all events, in this action, because he signed the first bill of lading to the order of Thompson and Fairbrother, who indorsed it to the plaintiffs.—I think it very material to consider who Fairbrother was. He had no interest in these goods; and he was known to all the parties, to be the agent of Thompson. Then Fairbrother must be considered as Thompson himself. The bills of lading were all to the order of Thompson: he had then the absolute controul over the goods, and might have unshipped them if he had so pleased: so that they are not like goods consigned to a third person, for they remained under the power of Thompson all the time, 'till he indorsed the bills of lading. If Thompson and Fairbrother are to be considered as the same person, it is the same as if the bills of lading were to the order of Thompson alone. Then the question is, who has the prior right under him?

It was said by the plaintiffs counsel, that the defendant was the agent of France and Company, and that they must be taken to know what he did; but that makes against the plaintiffs: for at the time when Thompson assigned the two bills of lading to Coppell and Goldwin, the defendant knew that he had the other in his hands, and could not, therefore, have assigned it to any other person. The defendant then acted fairly; and it could only happen by the subsequent misconduct of Thompson, namely, by his afterwards indorsing one of the bills of lading to another party, that any difficulty could arise.

one

Then the question is, whether this bill of lading, being made in favour of Thompson and Fairbrother jointly, can be distinguished from one made in favor of Thompson only? I think it cannot, because Fairbrother is known to the parties to be the agent of Thompson.

As, therefore, this transaction is to be considered in the same light as if all the bills of lading had been made to the order of Thompson alone, how does the question stand as between the plaintiffs and France and Company? Both parties claim under Thompson: but France and Company have the first legal right; for two bills of lading are first indorsed to them, and the letter which conveyed the other bill of lading to Fairbrother, apprized him at the same time of this indorsement.

Rule discharged.

Smith and another against Nisset and another. T. 26 Geo. III. Durnford and East I V. 269. Upon a request to A. to accept a bill, and draw upon B. for the like sum, the mere act of drawing upon B. does not amount to an acceptance.

This was an action for money paid, laid out, and expended, tried before Buller, J. at the sittings after last Easter term, at Guildhall, when a verdict was found for the plaintiffs. The circumstances were these.—One Taubert sent an order to the defendants for goods, and desired that they would draw a bill on the plaintiffs for the value, which the defendants accordingly did, after they had sent the goods. The plaintiffs, in a letter written to the defendants, on the 23d September, said, that they could not accept the bill on account of Taubert at present, because they (the defendants) had sent a larger quantity of goods than were ordered; adding, that they had written to Taubert for further directions. Two days afterwards the defendants wrote to the plaintiffs, pressing that the bill might be taken up; and on the 28th of the ſame month received for anſwer, that the plaintiffs had written to Taubert, and were waiting for his anſwer before they could accept; and that they had deſired the holder to keep the bill in the mean time. On the 14th October, Taubert, in a letter to the plaintiffs, took notice, that the orders had been exceeded, but deſired that they would accept the bill, and draw upon Govertz, at Hamburgh, for the amount. In conſequence of which, the plaintiffs drew on Govertz, who refuſed to accept, and afterwards the plaintiffs paid the bill for the honor of the drawer; to recover back the amount of which, this action was brought.

Wilſon now moved for a rule to ſhew cauſe, why the verdict which had been given for the plaintiffs ſhould not be ſet aſide, and a verdict entered for the defendants, upon the ground that the plaintiffs had actually accepted the bill drawn upon them. He admitted that, notwithſtanding Taubert's letter, the plaintiffs might have choſen whether they would accept or not; but he contended, that they had only a right to draw on Govertz, upon condition that they themſelves ſhould accept the bill drawn upon them, and therefore that their drawing upon Govertz was an implied acceptance of that bill. But the court held, that what the plaintiffs had done did not amount to an acceptance, for they never meant to make themſelves liable, unleſs the bill drawn upon Govertz was accepted and paid; and they would not imply a contract which the parties themſelves refuſed to enter into.

Rule refuſed.

Doe, on the demise of Warry, and others, against Miller and another, executors of Chambers. M. 27 G. III. B. R. Durnford and East. 1 V. 393. A surrender of chambers in New-Inn to the treasurer and antients of the society, made with their assent, to the intent that they might grant the said chambers to a purchaser, passes the estate to such purchaser before admission. Admission is not necessary, as in the case of copyholds, to complete the grantee's estate, but is only for the purpose of signifying the assent of the society that the grantee should become a member of the inn.

Ejectment by the lessors of the plaintiff, who are the treasurer and antients of New-Inn, to recover a set of chambers in the inn.

In February last, Richards, who was tenant for life of the chambers in question, agreed with J. Chambers for the sale of his life estate: but there being a clause in Richards's grant that he should not sell or assign without the licence of the treasurer and antients of the inn, application was made to them for that purpose; who at a pention held on the 23d of February, 1786, ordered "that Richards should be at "liberty to surrender his chambers in favor "of J. Chambers, for his life, the latter having "agreed to take them for the purpose of "studying the law, and that he (J. Chambers) "should be admitted thereto upon the usual "payment, and subject to the usual terms and "conditions." In consequence of this, Richards executed a conveyance to J. Chambers, by which he surrendered, granted, and yielded up the said chambers, &c. and all his estate, right, title, interest, and property therein, to J. Warry, the treasurer, and the rest of the antients, to the end, intent, and purpose, that the said treasurer and antients, or their successors, might grant the said chambers and premises, according to the custom of the said society, unto J. Chambers, one of the members of the said society, and who had agreed to take the said chambers and premises, for and during the term of his natural life, at and under such yearly rents, provisoes, conditions, and agreements, as they should think fit. J. Chambers was to pay 20 l. yearly to the society by quarterly payments, from the Christmas preceding. Immediately on the execution of the surrender, he entered into possession,

possession, and continued therein till the 28th of March last, when he died. There being no meeting of the treasurer and antients between the time of the surrender by Richards and the death of Chambers, the admission of the latter was not made out by the society, neither did J. Chambers pay the alienation fee of five guineas, which is due to the society, on the transfer or sale of chambers. But it was proved at the trial that he might have had his admission if he had applied for it. The surrenders to the society by the tenants for life are always upon the usual stamps used for deeds; and the admissions are entered only in the society books, without any stamp.

On these facts the jury found a verdict for the lessors of the plaintiff.

Richardson, on a former day, had obtained a rule to shew cause why the verdict should not be set aside, and a new trial granted, on the ground that wherever an estate passes by surrender and admission, the latter is absolutely necessary to perfect the conveyance of the estate. And he likened this to the case of copyholds, where admittance is necessary, in order to vest the estate in the surrenderee. Co. Copyh. 70. If grantee enter before admittance he is punishable as a trespasser, and if he surrender to the use of another it is void. Co. Copyh. 51. Yelv. 44. 5. So where surrenderer or surrenderee and the two tenants into whose hands the surrender was made died before the presentment of the surrender, it was held that the heir of the surrenderer might enter. Co. Copyh. 69. 3. Bulst. 214. Cro. Jac. 403. Bridg. 52. Gib. Ten. 263. 2 Wils. 13. It was held that admittance is as necessary to a surrender, as inrollment to a bargain and sale, or livery to a feoff-a feoffment. That though, by the case of Vaughan ex dem Atkins v. Atkins (a) admission, when granted, has relation back to the time of the surrender, yet in this case there having in fact been no admission, the estate continued in the surrenderer.

(a) 5 Burr. 2764.

Gibbs was to have shewn cause this day against the rule, but the court being of opinion that the cases relating to copyholds were not applicable to the present, delivered their opinions, without hearing him, to the following effect.

ASHHURST, J.—In whatever light this case is considered, the lessors of the plaintiff are entitled to recover. For if the surrender were not good, so as to pass the estate to the surrenderee, the society are entitled to the possession of the chambers as against the defendants, because they were surrendered into their hands; and the defendants, as executors of the surrenderee, can have no colour of right to them. But if the surrender were good, then the testator having only a life estate in them, they reverted of course to the society upon his death.

This cannot be considered as a copyhold or customary estate. For the surrender which is made to them upon every alienation is a mere form introduced for their own convenience, for the purpose of preventing improper persons from being admitted into the society. Immediately upon this surrender they became trustees for the testator. The equitable estate was vested by that act in him, and the legal estate in them.

BULLER, J.—There is a manifest distinction between this case and that of copyholds. In the latter case there must be an admittance as well as a surrender, because admittance is necessary to pass the legal estate. But this is a bare trust. This is not a customary estate; but a freehold interest. New-Inn is a part of the Middle-Temple, who are trustees for the inn; and the society themselves are merely trustees for the persons holding the chambers. As to the admittance which it has been contended is essential to the completion of a purchaser's title to chambers, that is only an assent on the part of the society that the particular person should become a member of it. For every person, on purchasing chambers, covenants that he will not assign without giving notice to the inn, of the person to whom he is about to assign, that they may either approve or disapprove of the intended purchaser, and that assent is written on unstamped paper, and conveys no title. It is the surrender which passes the whole interest.

Rule discharged.

Brock against Richardson. M. 27 G. III. B.R. Durnford and East. 1 V. 427. If a modus be not proved as laid by the plaintiff in a suit in prohibition, there must be a verdict for the defendant. But if any modus be found, though different from that laid, that is a ground for the court to refuse a consultation.

This was a suit in prohibition; and the question was, whether within the chapelry of Witton Gilbert there is a modus for every inhabitant to pay three half-pence for every milch-cow at the time of calving, in full satisfaction for the tithe of calves?

At the trial of this cause at the last assises at Durham, before Heath, J. there was no contrariety of evidence; and the jury found the modus, with this variance, that it was payable at Easter, and that it did not extend to certain lands within the chapelry, called the Copse lands, consisting of five farms, which were exempted from the payment of these and all other tithes. Verdict for the plaintiff, with liberty to move to set it aside in this court, without costs.

Wood

Wood having moved to ſet aſide this verdict, on the ground that, as this was a claim by preſcription, the jury ought to have found the modus as laid in the declaration, or not at all;

Chambre now ſhewed cauſe. The variance between the modus laid and that proved is no ground for a new trial, or to entitle the defendant to a verdict. An iſſue in prohibition to try a particular modus is extremely different from iſſues in other ſuits; for, whether one ſort of modus or another be found, it is equally a reaſon to warrant the prohibition (a). The very ground on which a prohibition is prayed for, is a ſuggeſtion that the eccleſiaſtical court is proceeding to try a queſtion of which they have no cognizance. The fact which is tried in ſuits in prohibition is merely for the information of the court. This is in ſome reſpects like an iſſue directed by the court of chancery to try a particular cuſtom, which is merely for the information of the chancellor, and which may be indorſed ſpecially on the poſtea, according to the truth of the fact. He was then ſtopped by the court, and

(a) Dyer 170, 1. Hob. 192. 1 Ventr. 32.

Buller, J. ſaid it was too clear for any further argument. The authorities cited are directly in point, as far as they go. It appears from them that no conſulation ought to be awarded: but it is equally clear that the verdict muſt be entered for the defendant.

In order to try a particular modus, one party alledges, and the other denies, the exiſtence of it: that is the only iſſue on the record to be tried. As the plaintiff therefore has failed in proving the modus as alledged in pleading, the verdict muſt be entered ſpecially for the defendant, who is entitled to his coſts. But though the modus be not found, as laid, yet

 if

if any modus be found, that is a sufficient ground for refusing a consultation.

Per curiam. The verdict must be entered specially for the defendant; and no consultation will be awarded.

Turner v. Winter H. 27 Geo. III. B. R. Durn. and East 1 V. 602. A patent is void if the specification is ambiguous or gives directions which tend to mislead the public. The patent was for producing a yellow colour, for painting in oil or water, and making white lead, and separating the mineral alkali, from common salt, all by one process.

This was an action on the case, brought against the defendant for infringing the plaintiff's patent, which was granted to him for producing a yellow colour, for painting in oil or water, and making white lead, and separating the mineral alkali from common salt, all by one process. On the trial before Buller, J. at the last sittings at Westminster, a verdict was found for the plaintiff: and on a motion to set aside that verdict and grant a new trial, these facts were reported. The plaintiff within the usual time had enrolled the following specification *; Take any quantity of lead, and calcine it, or minium, or red lead, litharge, lead ash, or any calx, or preparation of lead, fit for the purpose; to any given quantity of the above-mentioned materials, add half the weight of sea-salt, with a sufficient quantity of water to dissolve it, or rock-salt, or sal gem, or fossil-salt, or any marine salt, or salt-water proper for the purpose; mix them together by trituration 'till the lead becomes impalpable, or sufficiently comminuted. When the materials have been ground, let them stand for twenty-four hours, in which time the lead will be changed to a good white, and the salt decompounded; if not, the trituration must be repeated, with the farther addition of salt, 'till the white colour be obtained; the decomposition of the salt may also be brought about by digestion or by calcination. The materials may be suffered to remain together, before the alkali is separated by the addition of water, for

* Specification.

for a longer time than is ſpecified above, according to the diſcretion of the operator, and the end he wiſhes to obtain. The yellow colour is produced by calcining the lead after the alkali has been ſeparated from it 'till it ſhall acquire the colour wanted: this will be of different tints according to the continuance of the calcination, or the degree of heat employed. The white lead muſt be finiſhed by repeated ablutions, and by bleaching it 'till the white be made perfect.

On the part of the plaintiff it was proved, that the firſt effect of the proceſs was the ſeparating of the mineral alkali from common ſalt; that that produced white lead, and that by continuing the proceſs to a certain degree, and afterwards expoſing the matter, the yellow colour was produced. That as the ſpecification required the heat to be continued 'till the colour was obtained, any perſon trying the experiment would neceſſarily be led to fuſion. That a chymiſt would ſee by the ſpecification, that if leſs heat would not anſwer the purpoſe, he muſt go on to fuſion. The difference between fuſion and calcination, both of which proceed from different degrees of heat operating upon the ſubject matter, was, that the ſubſtance to be calcined continued in a ſolid form; whereas fuſion is a liquid ſtate to which the ſubſtance may be reduced by continuing the heat. Inſtances were produced by perſons who had made the colour by the help of the ſpecification, after trying ſome experiments. In trying thoſe experiments minium had been uſed in the firſt inſtance. The white lead produced by following the directions in the ſpecification was not what was ſold as ſuch; but a white ſubſtance, the baſis of which was lead.

Objections to the specification.

For the defendant it was proved, that the patent colour could not be made by following the directions of the specification. For calcination was not sufficient to produce the effect intended; it was necessary to go on to fusion. That, as it appeared upon the specification, minium or red lead might be considered most convenient for the purpose, because a previous process was necessary to reduce lead to minium or litharge, before the other parts of the process were to be begun; minium and litharge differing only in having undergone different degrees of calcination. But that minium would not produce the effect unless first fused. And that if red lead were calcined, the experiment would not succeed without fusion: whereas, according to the terms of the specification, fusion should be cautiously avoided. That the specification was calculated to mislead also with respect to the salts. For fossil salt is a generic term, including all mineral salts: but only one species of fossil salt, namely sal gem, has marine acid, without which the colour could not be produced. That several persons had tried to make white lead by the specification, but had not succeeded. They could only produce a greyish white powder, quite unfit for painting, and not merchantable.

Objections at the trial.

Mr. J. Buller,—after reporting these facts, observed, that at the trial three objections had been taken to the specification. 1st, That, after directing that lead should be calcined, it directed another ingredient to be taken, which would not answer the purpose, namely, minium. Neither was it said that the minium should be calcined or fused: but if it had any reference to the preceding words, then it should be calcined, which would not produce the effect, fusion being necessary. 2dly, That "fossil "salt" was improperly mentioned. There were many kinds of fossil salt, only one of which, namely, "sal gem," would answer the purpose; because it must be a marine salt. 3dly, That all these things put together did not produce the thing intended. And that the patent was for an invention to do three things in one process, whereas one of them, namely, white lead, could not be produced at all; for that a white substance like lead remained, applicable only to some of the purposes of common white lead. The learned judge then said that at the trial he had told the jury, that if either of these objections were well founded, it would avoid the patent.

fusion

Erskine and Piggott shewed cause against the rule for granting a new trial, and contended, that in actions for infringing patents, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to give any evidence to shew what the invention is, but that it is incumbent on the defendant, if he objects to the specification, to shew that it is defective; and that persons acquainted with the subject, could not by the assistance of the specification, effect the thing intended. The consideration, which the patentee gives for his monopoly, is the benefit which the public are to derive from his invention, after his patent is expired; and that benefit is secured to them by means of a specification of the invention. But it is not necessary that that specification should be such, as that persons unacquainted with the terms of art, which must necessarily be used in writing it, should be able to understand it. It is sufficient if persons of skill can understand the process, by means of the specification, tion, ſo as to keep alive the diſcovery, after the patentee's excluſive title is expired.

The firſt objection which has been raiſed againſt the ſufficiency of this ſpecification has no weight: for though the direction to calcine is applicable to all the ingredients in the firſt part of the deſcription, yet ſcientific perſons would inſtantly diſcover what degree of heat was neceſſary to be uſed to each of thoſe ingredients; and that minium, being already a calx, muſt be fuſed. 2dly, The heat is ordered to be continued 'till the experiment ſucceeds, and the colour is produced. Fuſion is a neceſſary conſequence of continuing the heat; and this direction would be ſufficiently underſtood by all perſons acquainted with the ſubject.

As to the ſecond objection, with reſpect to the "foſſil ſalt," the ſpecification begins with "ſea ſalt," which is the genus: then it afterwards ſtates not "any foſſil ſalt;" but "foſſil "ſalt," or "any marine ſalt;" the "marine "ſalt" is therefore the baſis of the experiment; ſo that no foſſil ſalt but what is likewiſe a marine ſalt, can be taken under this deſcription.

The anſwer to the third objection is, that a ſpecies of white lead is produced, though not the common ceruſe; and the patent does not profeſs to make the common white lead. Beſides the making of white lead was not the ſubject of the preſent action, which was for making the yellow colour, which accounts for the plaintiff's not being prepared to prove this part of the ſpecification. Upon the whole, this was a mere matter of evidence, as to the ſufficiency of the ſpecification, upon which the jury have exerciſed a ſound diſcretion.

Bearcroft.

Bearcroft, in ſupport of the rule, was ſtopped by the court.

Ashhurst, J.—I think that, as every patent is calculated to give a monopoly to the patentee, it is ſo far againſt the principles of law, and would be a reaſon againſt it, were it not for the advantages which the public derive from the communication of the invention, after the expiration of the time for which the patent is granted. It is therefore incumbent on the patentee to give a ſpecification of the invention in the cleareſt and moſt unequivocal terms of which the ſubject is capable. And if it appear that there is any unneceſſary ambiguity affectedly introduced into the ſpecification, or any thing which tends to miſlead the public, in that caſe the patent is void. Here it does appear to me, that there is at leaſt ſuch a doubt on the evidence, that I cannot ſay this matter has been ſo fully and fairly examined as to preclude any farther inveſtigation of the ſubject. Three objections have been made to this ſpecification. The firſt is, that in the ſpecification the public are directed "to take "any quantity of lead, and calcine it, or "minium, or red lead;" from whence it is inferred that calcining is only to be applied to lead: I confeſs if the objection had reſted here, I ſhould have entertained ſome doubt.

The next objection is, that in the ſubſequent materials to be added, the public are directed to add "half the weight of ſea ſalt, "or ſal gem, or foſſil ſalt, or any marine ſalt." Now "foſſil ſalt" is a generic term, "including ſal gem" as well as other ſpecies of foſſil ſalt. And I underſtand that ſal gem is the only one which can be applied to this purpoſe; ſo that throwing in foſſil ſalt can only be be calculated to raiſe doubts and miſlead the public. That word could not have been added with any good view: it muſt produce many unneceſſary experiments; therefore in that reſpect the ſpecification is not ſo accurate as it ought to have been. Another objection was taken as to the white lead; to which it was anſwered, that the invention did not profeſs to make common white lead. But that is no anſwer: for if the patentee had intended to produce ſomething only like white lead, or anſwering ſome of the purpoſes of common white lead, it ſhould have been ſo expreſſed in the ſpecification. But in truth the patent is for making white lead and two other things by one proceſs. Therefore if the proceſs, as directed by the ſpecification, does not produce that which the patent profeſſes to do, the patent itſelf is void. It is certainly of conſequence that the terms of a ſpecification ſhould expreſs the invention in the cleareſt and moſt explicit manner; ſo that a man of ſcience may be able to produce the thing intended, without the neceſſity of trying experiments.

Buller, J.—Many caſes upon patents have ariſen within our memory, moſt of which have been decided againſt the patentees, upon the ground of their not having made a full and fair diſcovery of their inventions. Wherever it appears that the patentee has made a fair diſcloſure, I have always had a ſtrong bias in his favour, becauſe in that caſe he is intitled to the protection which the law gives him. How far that law, which authoriſes the king to grant patents, is politic, is not for us to determine. When attempts are made to evade a fair patent, I am ſtrongly inclined in favour of the patentee; but where the diſcovery is not fully made, the court ought to look with a very watchful eye, to prevent any impoſition on the public. Then the queſtion is, whether the preſent plaintiff has made a fair diſcovery? I do not agree with the counſel, who have argued againſt the rule, in ſaying, that it was not neceſſary for the plaintiff to give any evidence to ſhew what the invention was, and that the proof that the ſpecification was improper lay on the defendant; for I hold that a plaintiff muſt give ſome evidence to ſhew what his invention was, unleſs the other ſide admit that it has been tried and ſucceeds. But wherever the patentee brings an action on his patent, if the novelty or effect of the invention be diſputed, he muſt ſhew in what his invention conſiſts, and that he produced the effect propoſed by the patent in the manner ſpecified. Slight evidence of this on his part is ſufficient, and it is then incumbent on the defendant to falſify the ſpecification. Now in this caſe no evidence was offered by the plaintiff to ſhew that he had ever made uſe of the ſeveral different ingredients mentioned in the ſpecification; as for inſtance, minium, which he had nevertheleſs inſerted in the patent; nor did he give any evidence to ſhew how the yellow colour was produced. If he could only make it with two or three of the ingredients ſpecified, and he has inſerted others which will not anſwer the purpoſe, that will avoid the patent. So if he make the article, for which the patent is granted, with cheaper materials than thoſe which he has enumerated, though the latter will anſwer the purpoſe ually well, the patent is void, becauſe he es not put the public in poſſeſſion of his invention, invention, or enable them to derive the fame benefit which he himfelf does.

As to the firft objection which has been taken with refpect to the minium: it was not pretended, by any of the plaintiff's witneffes, that he ever made ufe of minium. And it was proved by the defendants witneffes, that from the fpecification they fhould be led to ufe minium, becaufe minium is lead already calcined, which is what the fpecification directs in the firft inftance. But minium will not anfwer the purpofe. Then as to fufion: it is faid that the public are directed, by the words of the fpecification, to continue the heat till the effect is produced; which muft neceffarily lead to fufion, though fufion is not exprefsly mentioned. But that is no anfwer to the objection: for the fpecification fhould have fhewn by what degree of heat the effect was to be produced. Now it does not mention fufion; and, as one of the witneffes faid, in order to produce the effect, "you muft go out of the "patent;" for fufion is beyond calcination, and in fome fenfe contrary to it; and, by mentioning calcination, it fhould feem that fufion was to be avoided.

The next objection was as to the falts. "Foffil falt" is mentioned, as a diftinct fpecies of falt, and many other falts are alfo mentioned, as indifferent whether one or the other be ufed. But it was proved that foffil falt was a generic term, including feveral fpecies; and that "fal gem" was the only fpecies of it which would anfwer the purpofe; becaufe none of the others contained a marine acid, which was effential.

There was no contradiction by the witneffes on the third objection: for the moft that the plaintiff's plaintiff's witnesses said, was, that, following the specification, the experiment only produced a white substance like lead.

Now, on either of these grounds, the patent is void. Because if the patentee says, that by one process he can produce three things, and he fails in any one, the consideration of his merit, and for which the patent was granted, fails, and the crown has been deceived in the grant. Slight defects in the specification will be sufficient to vacate the patent.. In a case before Lord Mansfield, for infringing a patent for steel trusses, it appeared that the patentee, in tempering the steel, rubbed it with tallow, which was of some use in the operation; and, because this was omitted, the specification was held to be insufficient, and the patent was avoided.

Rule absolute.

Goodall and others against Dolley, E. 27 G. III. B. R. Durnford and East, 1 V. 712
If the indorsee of an inland bill, not due, present it for acceptance, which is refused, and delay giving notice to his indorser, the indorser will be discharged. And a subsequent proposal by the indorser, to pay the bill by instalments, made without knowledge of the indorsee's laches, is not a waiver of the want of notice.

This was an action by the indorsee of a bill of exchange against the indorser, tried before Heath, Justice, at the last assises at Warwick. The bill, which was dated on the 4th of November, 1786, was drawn by one Lutwych, on John Rutter, in favour of the defendant, and payable sixty-five days after date. The defendant indorsed it to the plaintiffs. The bill was tendered for acceptance by the plaintiffs to Rutter, on the 8th of November, who refused to accept it. The first advice given of this refusal by the plaintiffs to the defendant was by a letter, dated the 6th of January following, which only mentioned generally the return of the bill, without specifying the time or circumstance of the tender of the bill to Rutter, and his refusal. The bill expired on the 11th of January, and, on the next day, the defendant made a proposal to one of the plaintiffs,

tiffs, to pay the bill by instalments. Heath, Justice, was of opinion, that as this proposal was made under an ignorance of all the circumstances of the case, which it was material for the defendant to know, he was discharged by the laches of the plaintiffs; and, in consequence of that direction, the jury found a verdict for the defendant.

A motion was made by Lee for a new trial, on two grounds. First, that as notice in this case could not have been of any service to the defendant, in as much as Rutter was insolvent when the bill was refused acceptance, it was not necessary to give notice before the bill became due, and the indorser still continued liable. Secondly, supposing he might once have taken advantage of the plaintiffs laches, yet he had waived that advantage by his subsequent promise.

Balguy shewed cause. As to the first point, it is perfectly clear that the plaintiffs, if they meant to resort to the defendant, should have given immediate notice to him of the bill's being dishonoured; instead of which, they suffered a long space of time to elapse, by which neglect they have discharged the defendant. As to the other point; the defendant cannot be said to have made himself liable by his subsequent conduct: for, if that were so, the same reasoning would have governed the case of Blesard and Hirst (a), where there was an absolute promise to pay. That, therefore, was much stronger than the present; for here the party did not absolutely say that he would pay the bill; but, under an ignorance of all the circumstances, he proposed to pay it by instalments. This then, at most, was only a conditional offer, and, not being accepted, cepted, was the ſame as if it never had been made.

(a) 5 Burr. 2670.

Lee and Dayrell in ſupport of the rule. The caſe of Bleſard and Hirſt was materially different from the preſent; for the ground of that deciſion was, that, if notice had been given, it would have been extremely material, as the drawer continued in credit for three weeks after the bill had been diſhonoured. But here it was utterly impoſſible that notice could have been of any ſervice whatever; for the defendant being the only indorſer, could not have reſorted to the drawer; for, in truth, he became inſolvent immediately after the bill was tendered for acceptance. But ſuppoſing the neglect of the plaintiff had at one time diſcharged the defendant from payment, yet he made himſelf ſubſequently liable, by his offer to pay. And no argument can be drawn from the ſilence of the court in Bleſard and Hirſt, for that point was never mentioned even in argument; but if it had been urged, it would have been deciſive in favour of the plaintiff.

The plaintiff's counſel alſo offered to procure an affidavit, that the drawee had no effects of the drawer in his hands at the time. But as to this, the court were of opinion, that, as between theſe parties, that would make no difference.

Ashhurst, J.—The caſe of Bleſard v. Hirſt goes the whole length of deciding the preſent. It was there determined, that though it was not neceſſary that the holder ſhould preſent the bill for acceptance before it became due, yet if he does, he muſt give immediate notice to the perſon from whom he received the bill, in caſe it is diſhonoured.

Here ſuch notice was not given, and therefore the defendant was diſcharged. But then it is ſaid, that he made himſelf ſubſequently liable, by his propoſal to pay the bill by inſtalments, which amounted to an acknowledgment of the debt. That argument might as well have been urged in the caſe of Bleſard v. Hirſt as the preſent, if it had been thought material: for there the indorſer abſolutely promiſed to pay the bill on his return from Leeds, but, on his beingappriſed that he was not bound by law, he refuſed; and yet that was not held as a waiver of the want of notice. That, indeed, was a ſtronger caſe than the preſent; for here the defendant only made a conditional offer to pay by inſtalments, which being rejected, put matters in the ſame ſituation as if no offer had been made. The defendant then had a right to ſtand on the ſtrict rule of law, and by law he is not bound to pay.

BULLER, J.—It is rather extraordinary, that in the caſe of Bleſard v. Hirſt, it ſhould have been made a doubt whether notice of non-acceptance in the caſe of an inland bill of exchange, was neceſſary to be given to the drawer: for it had long been ſettled, that notice was neceſſary to be given in the caſe of foreign bills. But no mention is there made of the want of notice being waived by a ſubſequent promiſe; and that was a much ſtronger caſe than the preſent: for there there was an expreſs promiſe to pay by the indorſer; but, in this caſe, there was only a conditional promiſe, which was made by the defendant under a total ignorance of all the circumſtances relative to the bill having been diſhonoured. All this is an anſwer to an action againſt the indorſer. But if the action had been brought againſt the drawer, I ſhould have been willing to let in the affidavit, to ſhew that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee. That would be like the caſe of Bickerdike v. Bollman (a). If A. draw on B. it muſt be taken primâ facie that he has effects in his hands; otherwiſe he has no right to draw on him. But if the drawer has no effects in the hands of the drawee, he cannot be injured by want of notice that the drawee will not pay.

action

(a) Durnford and Eaſt, 1 V. 405.

GROSE, J.—If there be any difference between the caſe of Bleſard v. Hirſt and the preſent, it is in favour of this defendant: for, at the moſt, this was only a conditional offer to pay, but that was a poſitive promiſe by the defendant, to take up the bill as he returned from Leeds. That caſe, therefore, being preciſely in point, muſt govern the preſent.

Rule diſcharged.

VI. For Exceſſive Damages.

Vide ante Eſſay IV. Wheeler v. Honour.

Wood and Gunſton, M. 1655, Banc. ſup. Sty. 466. For a new trial in an action of treſpaſs for words. Vide ante No. IV. Bright v. Eynon.

Wood brought an action upon the caſe againſt Gunſton, for ſpeaking of ſcandalous words of him, and, amongſt other words, for calling him TRAYTOR, and obtained a verdict againſt him at the bar, wherein the jury gave 1500 l. damages. Upon the ſuppoſition that the damages were exceſſive, and that the jury did favour the plaintiff, the defendant moved for a new trial. But Serjeant Maynard oppoſed it, and ſaid, that after a verdict the partiality of the jury ought not to be queſtioned, nor is there any precedent for it in our books of the law, and it would be of dangerous conſequence if it ſhould be ſuffered, and the greatneſs of the damages given can be no cauſe for a new trial; but if it were, the damages are not here exceſſive, if the words ſpoken be well conſidered, for they tend to take away the plaintiff's eſtate and his life. Windham, on the other ſide, preſſed for a trial, and ſaid it was a packed buſineſs, elſe there could not have been ſo great damages; and the court hath power in extraordinary caſes, ſuch as this is, to grant a new trial.

Diſcretion of the court. Diſcretion judicial, not arbitrary. The court not to be intended partial.

GLYN, Chief Juſtice.—It is in the diſcretion of the court in ſome caſes to grant a new trial, but this muſt be a judicial, and not an arbitrary diſcretion; and it is frequent in our books for the court to take notice of miſcar-

riages

riages of juries, and to grant new trials upon them, and it is for the people's benefit that it ſhould be ſo: for a jury may ſometimes, by indirect dealings, be moved to ſide with one party, and not to be indifferent betwixt them; but it cannot be ſo intended of the court: wherefore let there be a new trial the next term, and the defendant ſhall pay full coſts, and judgment to be upon this verdict, to ſtand for ſecurity to pay what ſhall be recovered upon the next verdict.

Vide obſervations upon this caſe in Roe v. Hawkes, poſt. and in 1 Sid. 131, 132. Mod. 251, and Beardmore's caſe poſt.

In Styles, fo. 462, is the following note in the ſame cauſe.

Upon a motion for a new trial between Wood and Gunſton, upon a ſuppoſition of exceſſive damages given by the jury, in an action upon the caſe, tried at the bar for words, viz. calling the plaintiff traytor, &c. 1500l. being the damage given, it was ſaid by GLYN, Chief Juſtice, that if the court do believe that the jury gave their verdict againſt their direction, given unto them, the court may grant a new trial. And a new trial was granted in this caſe, after a full debate had by counſel on both ſides.

Mich. 1655. Memorandum. New trial for miſcarriage of the jury.

In an action upon the caſe by an officer of the cuſtom-houſe at Portſmouth, becauſe the defendant ſaid of him, he ſet his hand to the petition to bring the king to juſtice. After verdict for the plaintiff, a new trial was moved for, on account of exceſſive damages, which were 700l. and Wood and Guſton's caſe, Style's Rep. was cited. But to this it was anſwered by Twiſden, that the new trial in Wood and Gunſton's caſe, was not granted merely for the exceſſiveneſs of the damages, but becauſe tampering with the jury was proved. Q. It was moved that the attorney for the plaintiff ſaid before the trial, that the jury were their friends,

Roe v. Hawkes, E. 15 Car. II. B. R. 1 Lev. 97. New trial not granted for exceſſive damages, nor for words ſpoken by the ſucceſsful party's attorney, that the jury were their friends, &c.

Vide ante.

friends, and underſtood their buſineſs, and they would do well enough. But by WINDHAM, J. If expreſs embracery of the jury be not proved, the words of the attorney ſhall not prejudice the cauſe of his client, and if the damages are exceſſive, attaint lies; and a new trial was denied.

The Lord Townshend v. Dr. Hughes, M. 28 and 29 C. II. C. B. 2 Mod. 150. No new trial in an action of ſcandalum magnatum. Mod. Rep. 232.

The plaintiff brought an action of ſcandalum magnatum, for theſe words ſpoken of him by the defendant, viz. He is an unworthy man, and acts againſt law and reaſon. Upon not guilty pleaded, the caſe was tried, and the jury gave the plaintiff 4000 l. damages.

The defendant, before the trial, made all poſſible ſubmiſſion to my lord: he denied the ſpeaking the words, and made oath that he never ſpoke the ſame; after the trial he likewiſe applied to my lord as before, making ſeveral proteſtations of his innocence: but having once in a paſſion ſaid, that he ſcorned to ſubmit, my lord, for that reaſon, would not remit the damages; it was therefore moved for a new trial upon theſe reaſons:

1. Becauſe the witneſſes who proved the words, were not perſons of credit, and that, at the time when they were alledged to be ſpoken, many clergymen were in company with the defendant, and heard no ſuch words ſpoken.

2. It was ſworn that one of the jury confeſſed, that they gave ſuch great damages to the plaintiff (not that he was damnified ſo much) but that he might have the greater opportunity to ſhew himſelf noble in the remitting of them.

3. And which was the principal reaſon, becauſe the damages were exceſſive.

The

The court delivered their opinions feriatim; and first, Curia

The Chief Juftice North faid: In cafes of fines for criminal matters, a man is to be fined by Magna Charta, with a falvo contenemento fuo; and no fine is to be impofed greater than he is able to pay; but, in civil actions, the plaintiff is to recover by way of compenfation for the damages he hath fuftained, and the jury are the proper judges thereof.

This is a civil action, brought by the plaintiff for words fpoken of him, which, if they are in their own nature actionable, the jury ought to confider the damage which the party may fuftain; but if a particular averment of fpecial damages makes them actionable, then the jury are only to confider fuch damages as are already fuftained, and not fuch as may happen in futuro, becaufe for fuch the plaintiff may have a new action. He faid, that, as a judge, he could not tell what value to fet upon the honour of the plaintiff; the jury have given 4000 l. and therefore he could neither leffen the fum, or grant a new trial, efpecially fince by the law, the jury are judges of the damages; and it would be very inconvenient to examine upon what account they gave their verdict, they having found the defendant guilty, did believe the witneffes, and he could not now make a doubt of their credibility.

Wyndham, Juftice, accorded in omnibus.

Atkins, Juftice, contra. That a new trial fhould be granted, for 'tis every day's practice; and he remembered the cafe of Gouldfton and Wood, in the King's-bench, where the plaintiff, in an action on the cafe for words, for calling of him bankrupt, recovered 1500 l.

Wood and Gunfton. Vide ante.

and

and that court granted a new trial, becanse the damages were excessive.

The jury, in this case, ought to have respect only to the damage which the plaintiff sustained, and not to do an unaccountable thing, that he might have an opportunity to shew himself generous; and as the court ought with one eye to look upon the verdict, so with the other they ought to take notice what is contained in the declaration, and then to consider whether the words and damages bear any proportion; if not, then the court ought to lay their hands upon the verdict: 'tis true, they cannot lessen the damages, but if they are too great, the court may grant a new trial.

Scroggs, Justice, accorded with North and Wyndham, that no new trial can be granted in this cause. He said, that he was of counsel with the plaintiff, before he was called to the bench, and might, therefore, be supposed to give judgment in favour of his former client, being prepossessed in the cause, or else (to shew himself more signally just) might, without considering the matter, give judgment against him: but that now he had forgot all former relation thereunto, and therefore delivered his opinion, that, if he had been of the jury, he should not have given such a verdict; and, if he had been plaintiff, he would not take advantage of it, but would overcome with forgiveness such follies and indiscretions of which the defendant had been guilty; but that he did not sit there to give advice, but to do justice to the people. He did agree that where an unequal trial was, (as such must be where there is any practice with the jury,) in such case 'tis good reason to grant a new trial; but no ſuch thing appearing to him in this caſe, a new trial could not be granted.

tiial;

Suppoſe the jury had given a ſcandalous verdict for the plaintiff, as a penny damages, he could not have obtained a new trial, in hopes to increaſe them; neither ſhall the defendant, in hopes to leſſen them: and therefore, by the opinion of theſe three juſtices, a new trial was not granted.

Afterwards in this term, Serjeant Maynard moved in arreſt of judgment, and ſaid, that this action was grounded upon the ſtatute of R. II. which conſiſts of a preamble, reciting the miſchief, and of the enacting part, in giving of a remedy; and that the defendant's caſe was neither within the miſchief or the remedy.

This ſtatute doth not create any action by way of particular deſign; and if the matter was now res integra, much might be ſaid that an action for damages will not lie upon this ſtatute; for the ſtatute of Weſtm. 2. appoints that the offender ſhall ſuffer impriſonment, until he produces the author of a falſe report; and the ſtatute of 2 R. II. which recites that of Weſtm. 2. gives the ſame puniſhment, and the action is brought qui tam, &c. and yet the plaintiff only recovers for himſelf. It was uſual to puniſh offenders of this kind in the Star Chamber; as in the Earl of Northampton's caſe, where one Goodricke ſaid of him, That he wrote a book againſt Garnet, and a letter to Bellarmine; intimating, that what he wrote in the book was not his opinion, but only ad captandum populum, which was a great diſgrace to him in thoſe days, being as much as to ſay he was a papiſt. Cro. Eliz.

Ca. 38.

12 Co. 132.

But

But the Serjeant would not inſiſt upon that now, ſince it hath been ruled, that where a ſtatute prohibits the doing of a thing, which, if done, might be prejudicial to another, in ſuch caſe he may have an action upon that very ſtatute for his damages.

But the ground on which he argued was, that theſe words, as ſpoken, are not within the meaning of the act, for they are not actionable.

1. Becauſe they are no ſcandal; and words which are actionable muſt import a great ſcandal, which no circumſtance or occaſion of ſpeaking can excuſe; and if they are ſcandalous, and capable of any mitigation by the precedent diſcourſe, the pleading of that matter will make them not actionable; and for this the Lord Cromwell's caſe is a plain authority. The words ſpoken of him were, You like thoſe that maintain ſedition againſt the King's perſon; the occaſion of ſpeaking of which was, to give an account of his favouring the Puritan preachers, which was all that was intended by the former diſcourſe; for that Lord had approved a ſermon which was preached by a parſon againſt the Common Prayer Book; and the defendant having forbid ſuch preaching, the Lord told him that he did not like him, upon which he ſpoke thoſe words: ſo that the ſubject matter explained the ſenſe, for which reaſon it was adjudged that the action would not lie.

4 Co. 13.

2. The ſcandal for which an action may be brought within this ſtatute muſt be falſe, for that word goes quite through the whole act, viz. falſe news, falſe lies, &c. and the words here are ſo general, that it cannot appear whether they are true or falſe, for there can be no juſtification here, as in caſe where a man is charged with a particular crime; my Lord Townſhend is not charged with any particular act of injuſtice as a ſubject, nor with any miſdemeanor as a peer, nor with any offence in an office.

Can.

If, therefore, in all actions brought upon this ſtatute, the defendant may juſtify, and put the matter in iſſue, to try whether it be true or falſe, and in this caſe the defendant can neither juſtify nor traverſe; for this reaſon the action will not lie.

That the words are general, and of a doubtful ſignification, it cannot be denied; for to ſay, He is an unworthy man, imports no particular crime. Unworthy is a term of relation, as he is unworthy of my friendſhip, acquaintance or kindred, and ſo may be applicable to any thing; and a lord may in many things be unworthy of a particular man's friendſhip; as if he promiſes to pay a ſum of money at a day certain, and faileth in the payment, (as 'tis often ſeen,) ſuch is an unworthy man; but that will not bear an action. He is an unworthy man who invites another to dinner to affront him; but it will not bear an action to ſay, That a lord invited me to a dinner to abuſe me; neither will it be actionable to ſay, He is an unworthy man, becauſe ſuch inſtances may be given of his unworthineſs, which will not bear an action. If my Lord had been compared to any baſe and unworthy thing, theſe words might have been actionable; and that was the caſe of the Lord Marquis of Dorcheſter, it being ſaid of him, That there was no more value in him than in a dog.

Then to ſay, a man acts againſt law, this is no ſcandal; becauſe every man who breaks a penal

penal law, and suffers the penalty, is not guilty of any crime. The statute commands the burying in woollen, the party buries one of his family in linen; in this he acts against the law, but if the penalty is satisfied, the law is so likewise.

A man who acts against law acts against reason, because Lex est summa ratio; but no instance is here given wherein he did thus act. 'Tis not said that he did act against law wilfully, or that he used to do any thing against law; and so cannot be like the case of the Duke of Buckingham, who brought an action for these words, viz. You are used to do things against law, and put cattle into a castle, where they cannot be replevied; for there was not only an usage charged upon him, but a particular instance of oppression.

This action lies for words spoken of a judge of either bench, and of a bishop, as well as a peer. Now if a man should say, A judge acted against law, will an action lie? Because a judge may do a thing against law, and yet very justly and honestly, unless all the judges were infallible, and could not be subject to any mistakes, which none will deny.

So if a bishop return the cause of his refusal to admit a clerk quia criminosus, this is a return against law, because 'tis too general; but if J. S. should say, a bishop acted against law, and shewed that for cause, an action would not lie. If the Lord Townshend had commanded his bailiff to make a distress without cause, that had been acting against law and reason.

He agreed the words to be uncivil, but not actionable; for if such construction should be made, a man must talk in print, or otherwise not not ſpeak any thing of a peer, for fear of an action.

There are many authorities where a peer ſhall not have an action, for every trivial and ſlight expreſſion ſpoken of him.

As to ſay of a peer, He keeps none but rogues, and raſcals about him, like himſelf; by the opinion of two Juſtices, Yelverton and Fleming, the action would not lie, becauſe they are words of ſcolding, and this was the caſe of the Earl of Lincoln, Cro. Jac. 196. But the court was divided, the defendant died, and ſo the writ abated.

Actions for words have been of late too much extended; formerly there were not above two or three brought in many years; and if this ſtatute ſhould be much enlarged, the lords themſelves will be prejudiced thereby, by maintaining actions one againſt another.

Upon this ſtatute of 2 R. II. c. 5. there was no action brought till 13 H. VII. which was above an hundred years after the making of that law; and the occaſion of making the law was, becauſe the Duke of Lancaſter, who was then the firſt prince of the blood, took notice that divers were ſo hardy as to ſpeak of him ſeveral lying words, 1 R. II. num. 56. and therefore this ſtatute was made to puniſh thoſe who deviſed falſe news, and horrible and falſe lies of any peer, &c. whereby diſcords might ariſe between the Lords and Commons, and great peril and miſchief to the realm, and quick ſubverſion thereof. Now from the natural intent and conſtruction of theſe words in the act, can it be ſuppoſed that if one ſhould ſay, Such a peer is an unworthy man, that the kingdom would be preſently in a flame, and turned into a ſtate of confuſion and civil war; and to ſay, That he acts againſt law, that the government would thereby be in danger to be loſt, and quick ſubverſion would follow? This cannot be the common and ordinary underſtanding of theſe words.

and

If, therefore, the plaintiff by ſpeaking theſe words was in no hazard, nor anywiſe damnified; if he was not touched in his loyalty as a peer, nor in danger of his life as a ſubject; if he was not thereby ſubjected to any corporal or pecuniary puniſhment; nor charged with any breach of oath, nor with a particular miſcarriage in any office; if the words are ſo general that they import no ſcandal, and are not capable of any juſtification; and laſtly, if they are not ſuch horrible lies as are intended to be puniſhed by the ſtatute; for theſe reaſons he concluded the action would not lie, and therefore prayed that the judgment might be arreſted.

Serjeant Baldwin and Serjeant Barrel argued on the ſame ſide for the defendant, but nothing was mentioned by them which is not fully inſiſted on in the argument of Serjeant Maynard, for which reaſon I have not reported their arguments.

Ex parte quer.

But Pemberton, ſerjeant, who argued for the plaintiff, ſaid, that it would conduce much to the underſtanding of the ſtatute of 2 R. II. cap. 5. upon which this action of ſcandalum magnatum was grounded, to conſider the occaſion of the making of it.

In thoſe days the Engliſh were quite of another nature and genius from what they are at this time; the conſtitution of this kingdom was then martial and given to arms, the very tenures were military, and ſo were the ſervices, as knight's ſervice, caſtle-guard, and eſcuage

There

There were many caſtles of defence in thoſe days in the hands of private men; their ſports and paſtimes were ſuch as tilts and tournaments, and all their employments were tending to breed them up in chivalry.

Thoſe who had any dependency upon noblemen were inured to bows and arrows, and to ſignalize themſelves in valour it was the only way to riches and honour. Arts and ſciences had not got ſuch ground in the kingdom as now; but the commons had almoſt their dependence upon the lords, whoſe power then was exceeding great, and their practices were conformable to their power; and this is the true reaſon why ſo few actions were formerly brought for ſcandal, becauſe when a man was injured by words, he carved out his own remedy by his ſword.

There are many ſtatutes made againſt riding privately armed, which men uſed in thoſe days, to repair themſelves of any injury done unto them, for they had immediately recourſe to their arms for that purpoſe, and ſeldom or never uſed to bring any actions for damages.

This was their revenge; and having thus made themſelves judges in their own caſes, it was reaſonable that they ſhould do themſelves juſtice with their own weapons; but this revenge did not uſually end in private quarrels, they took parties, engaged their friends, their tenants, and ſervants on their ſides, and by ſuch means made great factions in the commonwealth, by reaſon whereof the whole kingdom was often in a flame, and the government as often in danger of being ſubverted; ſo that laws were then made againſt wearing liveries or badges, and againſt riding armed.

This was the mischief of those times; to prevent which this statute of R. II. was made, and therefore all provoking and vilifying words which were used before to exasperate the peers, and to make them betake themselves to arms, by the intent of this act are clearly forbidden, which was made chiefly to prevent such consequences; for it was to no purpose to make a law, and thereby to give a peer an action for such words as a common person might have before the making of the statute, and for which the peer himself had a remedy also at the common law, and therefore needed not the help of this act.

If then the design of this statute was to hinder such practices as aforesaid, the next thing to be considered is, what was usual in those days to raise the passions of peers to that degree, and that will appear to be, not only such things as imported a great scandal in themselves, or such for which an action lay at the common law, but even such things as favoured of any contempt of their persons; and such as brought them into disgrace with the commons, for hereby they took occasion of provocation and revenge.

'Tis true that very few actions were brought upon this statute in some considerable time after it was made; for though such practices were thereby prohibited, the lords did not presently apply themselves to the remedy therein given, but continued the military way of revenge to which they had been accustomed.

As to the first objection that hath been made, he gave no answer to it, because it was not much insisted upon on the other side, whether an action would lie upon this statute, for the very words of it are sufficient ground for an action;

action; and 'tis very well known that wherever an act prohibits an evil thing, the person against whom such thing is done, may maintain an action.

Maxim.

This statute consists of two parts, the first is prohibitory, viz. That no man shall do so, &c. Then comes the additional clause, and saith, That if he do he shall incur such penalty. 'Tis on the first part that this action is grounded; and so it was in the earl of Northampton's case, in that report which goes under the name of Lord Coke's 12th report, where by the resolution of all the judges in England, except Flemming, who was absent, it was adjudged that it was not necessary that any particular crime should be fixed on the plaintiff, or any offence for which he might be indicted.

Vide ante.

So are the authorities in all the cases relating to this action. In the Lord * Cromwell's case, for these words, You like those who maintain sedition. In the Lord of Lincoln's case, My lord is a base earl, and a paltry lord, and keepeth none but rogues and rascals like himself. In the Duke of Buckingham's case, He has no more conscience than a dog. In the Lord † Marquis of Dorchester's case, He is no more to be valued than the black dog which lies there. All which words were held actionable, and yet they touch not the persons in any thing concerning the government, or charge them with any crime, but in point of dignity or honour; and they were all vilifying words, and might give occasion of revenge.

* 4 Co 13 b. 2 Cro. 196.

† Hil 16 Car. II. Rot. 1269. Affirmed on a writ of error in B. R.

And so are the words for which this action is brought, they are rude, uncivil, and ill-natured; unworthy, is as much as to say base and ignoble, a contemptible person, and a man of neither honour or merit. And thus

 to

to ſpeak of a nobleman, is a reflection upon the king, who is the fountain of honour, that gives it to ſuch perſons who are (in his judgment) deſerving, by which they are made capable of adviſing him in parliament, and it would be very diſhonourable to call unworthy men thither.

'Tis likewiſe a diſhonour to the nobility to have ſuch a perſon to ſit among them as a companion, and to the commons to have their proceedings in parliament tranſmitted to ſuch peers: ſo that it tends to the diſhonour of all dignities, both of king, lords, and commons, and thereby diſcords may ariſe between the two houſes, which is the miſchief intended to be remedied by this act.

Then the following words are as ſcandalous; for to ſay A man acts againſt law and reaſon, imports ſeveral ſuch acts done; a man is not denominated to be unworthy by doing of one ſingle act; for in theſe words more is implied, than to ſay he hath done an unworthy thing; for the words ſeem to relate to the office which the plaintiff had in the country, as lord lieútenant, which is an office of great honour; and can any thing tend to cauſe more diſcord and diſturbance in the kingdom than to ſay of a great officer, That he acts according to the dictates of his will and pleaſure? The conſequence of which is, that he will be rather ſcorned than obeyed.

It hath been objected, that the words are general, and charge him not with any act. Anſwer. The ſcandal is the greater; for 'tis not ſo bad to ſay A man did ſuch a particular thing againſt law and reaſon, as to ſay, He acts againſt law; which is as much as to ſay, his conſtant courſe and practice is ſuch: and to ſay ſay that the words might be meant of breaking a penal law, that is a foreign conſtruction; for the plain ſenſe is, he acts againſt the known laws of the kingdom, and his practice and deſigns are ſo to do, for he will be guided neither by law or reaſon.

Object. It has been objected that the ſcandal muſt be falſe: but whether true or not, there can be no juſtification here, becauſe they are ſo general, that they cannot be put in iſſue.

Anſw. He agreed that no action would lie upon this ſtatute if the words were true; but in ſome caſes the divulging of a ſcandal was an offence at the common law; now to argue (as on the other ſide) that the defendant cannot juſtify, and therefore an action will not lie, is a falſe conſequence; becauſe words may be ſcandalous and derogatory to the dignity of a peer, and yet the ſubject matter may not be put in iſſue.

He agreed alſo that occaſional circumſtances may extenuate and excuſe the words, tho' ill in themſelves; but this cannot be applied to the caſe in queſtion, becauſe the words were not mitigated: the defendant pleaded not guilty, and inſiſted on his innocence; the jury have found him guilty, which is an aggravation of his crime; if he would have extenuated them by any occaſion upon which they were ſpoken, he ſhould have pleaded it ſpecially, or offered it in evidence, neither of which was done.

This act is to be taken favourably for him againſt whom the words are ſpoken; becauſe 'tis to prevent great miſchiefs which may fall out in the kingdom, by rude and uncivil diſcourſes; and in ſuch caſes 'tis uſual for courts rather to enlarge the remedy than to admit of any extenuation; for which reasons he prayed that the plaintiff might have his judgment.

It was argued by Serjeant Calthrop on the same side, and to the same effect.

Argument at the Bench.

Afterwards this term, all the judges argued this case, seriatim at the bench. And first, Justice Scroggs said, That the greatness of the damages given should not prevail with him, either on the one side or the other; at the common law no action would lie for such words, though spoken of a peer, for such actions were not formerly much countenanced; but now since a remedy is given by the statute, words should not be construed either in a rigid or mild sense, but according to the genuine and natural meaning, and agreeable to the common understanding of all men.

At the bar the strained sense for the plaintiff is, that these words import He is no man of honour; and for the defendant that they import no scandal, and that no more was meant by them, but what may be said of every man.

'Tis true, in respect of God Almighty, we are all unworthy, but the subsequent clause explains what unworthiness the defendant intended, for he infers him to be unworthy, because he acts against law and reason.

Now whether the words thus explained fix any crime on the plaintiff, is next to be considered, and he was of opinion that they did fix a crime upon him; for to say He is an unworthy man, is as much as to say, He is a vitious person, and is the same as to call him a corrupt man, which in the case of a peer is actionable; for general words are sufficient to support such an action, though not for a common person.

To

To say a man acts against law and reason, is no crime, if he does it ignorantly; and therefore if he had said My lord is a weak man, for he acts against law and reason; such words had not been actionable; but these words as spoken do not relate to his understanding, but to his morals; they relate to him also as a peer (though the contrary has been objected) that they relate to him only as a man, which is too nice a distinction; for to distinguish between a man and his peerage, is like the distinction between the person of the king and his authority, which hath been often exploded; the words affect him in all qualities and all relations.

It has been also objected, that the words are too general, and like the case of the bishops return, that a man is criminosus, which is not good. but though they are general in the case of a peer, they are actionable; for to say of a bishop that he is a wicked man, these are as general words, and yet an action will lie.

It has been also objected, that general words cannot be justified; but he was of another opinion, as if the plaintiff, who was lord lieutenant of the county, had laid an unequal charge upon a man, who upon complaint made to him, ordered such charge to stand, and that his will in such case should be a law. If the person should thereupon say that the lord had done unworthily, and both against law and reason, those words might have been justified, by shewing the special matter, either in pleading or evidence.

'Tis too late now to examine whether an action will lie upon this statute, that must be taken for granted, and therefore was not much insisted on by those who argued for the defendant; for the authorities are very plain, that such

ſuch actions have been allowed upon this ſtatute.

The words as here laid to be ſpoken, are not ſo bad as the defendant might ſpeak, but they are ſo bad that an action will lie for them; and though they are general, yet many caſes might be put of general words which import a crime, and were adjudged actionable.

The Earl of Leiceſter's caſe, He is an oppreſſor: the Lord of Wincheſter's caſe, He kept me in priſon till I gave him a releaſe: theſe words were held actionable, becauſe the plain inference from them is, That they were oppreſſors: the Lord Abergavenny's caſe, He ſent for me, and put me into little eaſe: it might be preſumed, that that lord was a juſtice of peace, as moſt peers are in their counties, and that what he did was by colour of his authority; ſo are all the caſes cited by thoſe who argued for the plaintiff, in ſome of which the words were ſtrained to import a crime, and yet adjudged actionable; eſpecially in the caſe of the Lord Marquis of Dorcheſter, He is to be valued no more than a dog; which are leſs ſlanderous words than thoſe at the bar, becauſe the ſlander is more direct and poſitive.

It appears by all theſe caſes, that the judges have always conſtrued in favour of theſe actions, and this has been done in all probability to prevent thoſe dangers that otherwiſe might enſue if the lords ſhould take revenge themſelves; for which reaſons he held the action would lie.

Atkyns, Juſtice, contra. This is not a common action upon the caſe, but an action founded upon the ſtatute of 2 R. II. upon the conſtruction whereof the reſolution of this caſe will will depend, whether the action will lie or not. And as to that he considered,

1. The occasion.

2. The scope.

3. The parts of the statute.

1. The occasion of it is mentioned in Cotton's Abridgment of the Records of the Tower, f. 173. nu. 9 and 10. At the summoning of this parliament, the bishop of St. David's declared the causes of their meeting, and told both the houses of the mischiefs that had happened by divers slanderous persons, and sowers of discord, which he said were dogs that eat raw flesh; the meaning of which was, that they devoured and eat one another; to prevent which the bishop desired a remedy, and his request seemed to be the occasion of making this law; for ex malis moribus bonæ nascuntur leges.

2. The scope of the act was to restrain unruly tongues from raising false reports, and telling stories and lies of the peers and great officers of the kingdom; so that the design of the act was to prevent those imminent dangers which might arise, and be occasioned by such false slanders.

3. Then the parts of the act are three, viz. reciting the offence and the mischief, then mentioning the ill effects, and appointing of a penalty.

From whence he observed,

1. That here was no new offence made or declared; for nothing was prohibited by this statute, but what was so at the common law before.

The offences to be punished by this act, are mala in se, and those are offences against the moral law; they must be such in their nature,

ture, as bearing of falſe witneſs; and theſe are offences againſt a common perſon, which he admitted to be aggravated by the eminency of the perſon againſt whom they were ſpoken; but every uncivil word, or rude expreſſion ſpoken, even of a great man, will not bear an action; and therefore an action will not lie upon this ſtatute for every falſe lye, but it muſt be horrible as well as falſe, and ſuch as were puniſhable in the high commiſſion court, which were enormous crimes, 12 Co. 43.

By this deſcription of offences, and the conſequences and effects thereof, he ſaid he could better judge whether the words were actionable or not; and he was of opinion, that the ſtatute did not extend to words of a ſmall and trivial nature, nor to all words which were actionable, but only to ſuch which were of a greater magnitude, ſuch by which diſcord might ariſe between the lords and commons, to the great peril of the realm, and ſuch which were great ſlanders, and horrible lies, which are words purpoſely put into this ſtatute, for the aggravation and diſtinction of the crime; and therefore ſuch words which are actionable at the common law, may not be ſo within this ſtatute, becauſe not horrible great ſcandals.

He did not deny but that theſe were indecent and uncivil words, and very ill applied to that honourable perſon of whom they were ſpoken, but nobody could think that they were horrible great ſlanders, or that any debate might ariſe between the lords and commons, by reaſon ſuch words were ſpoken of this peer, or that it ſhould tend to the great peril of the kingdom, and the quick deſtruction thereof: ſuch as theſe were not likely to be the effects and conſequences of theſe words, and therefore could not be within the meaning of the act, becauſe they do not agree with the deſcription given in it.

coul

2. Here is no new puniſhment inflicted on the offender, for at the common law any perſon for ſuch offences as herein are deſcribed might have been fined and impriſoned, either upon indictment or information brought againſt him, and no other puniſhment is given here but impriſonment.

Even at the common law ſcandal of a peer might be puniſhed by pillory and loſs of ears, 5 Co. 125, de libellis famoſis, 12 Co. 37. 9 Co. 59. Lamb's caſe. So that it appears this was an offence at the common law, but aggravated now, becauſe againſt an act of parliament, which is a poſitive law; much like a proclamation which is ſet forth to enforce the execution of a law, by which the offence is afterwards greater.

He did agree, that an action would lie upon this ſtatute, though there were no expreſs words to give it to a peer, becauſe where there is a prohibition and a wrong and damage ariſes to the party, by doing the thing prohibited; in ſuch caſe the common law doth intitle the party to an action, 10 Co. 75. 12 Co. 100, 103. And ſuch was the reſolution in the Earl of Northampton's caſe, upon conſtruction of the law as incident to the ſtatute, and as the offence is greater becauſe of the act, and as the action will lie upon the ſtatute, ſo the party injured may ſue in a qui tam, which he could not have done before the making this law.

3. But that ſuch words as theſe were not actionable at the common law, much leſs by the ſtatute; for the defendant ſpoke only his judgment and opinion, and doth not directly charge

charge the plaintiff with any thing; and might well be resembled to such cases as are in Roll's Abridgm. 1 part 57 pl. 30., which is a little more solemn, because adjudged upon a special verdict; the words were spoken of a justice of peace, Thou art a blood sucker, and not fit to live in a commonwealth. These were not held actionable, because they neither relate to his office, or fix any crime upon him. Fol. 43, in the same book, Thou deservest to be hanged, not actionable, because it was only his opinion.

So, where the words are general, without any particular circumstances, they make no impression and gain no credit; and therefore in Cro. Car. 111. 1 Roll. Abridgm. 107. pl. 43. You are no true subject to the King; the action would not lie.

In this case 'tis said, the plaintiff acts against law, which doth not imply a habit in him so to do; and when words may as well be taken in a mild, as in a severe sense, the rule is quod in mitiori sensu accipienda sunt. Now these words are capable of such a favourable construction; for no more was said of the plaintiff, than what in some sense may be said of every person whomsoever; for who can boast of his innocence? Who keeps close in all actions to law and reason? And to say a man acts against both, may imply that he departed from those rules in some particular cases, where it was the error of his judgment only.

In the Duke of Buckingham's case, Sheppard's Abridgment, 1 part. f. 28. viz. You are used to do things against law; and mentions a particular fact there indeed, because of usage of the ill practice, it was held that an action lies; but if he had been charged for doing a thing against law but once, an action would not lie.

He

He then observed how the cases which have been adjudged upon this statute, agree with the rules he had insisted on in his argument, which cases have not been many, and those too of late times; in respect of the antiquity of the act; which was made almost 300 years since, anno 1379. And for 120 years after no action was brought: the first that is reported was 13 H. VII. Keilway 26. So that we have no contemporanea expositio of the statute to guide an opinion, which would be a great help in this case, because they who make an act, best understand the meaning; but now the meaning must be collected from the statute itself, which is the best exposition, as the rule is given in Bonham's case, 8 Co. vide the case, in 13 H. 7.

The next case in time is the Duke of Buckingham's case, 4 H. 8. Cromp. Jur. of Courts, f. 13. You have no more conscience than a dog. Lord Abergavenny against Cartwright, in the same book, You care not how you come by goods; in both which cases the words charge the plaintiff with particular matter, and give a narrative of something of a false story, and do not barely rest upon an opinion. In the Bishop of Norwich his case, Cro. Eliz. 1. viz. You have writ to me that which is against the word of God, and to the maintenance of superstition. These were held actionable, because they refer to his function and greatly defame him, and yet he had but 530 marks damages. 29 and 30 Eliz. 1 Cro. 67. The Lord Mordant against Bridges, My Lord Mordant did know that Prude robbed Shotbolt; and bid me compound with Shotbolt for the same; and said he would see me satisfied for the same, though it cost him an hundred pounds; which I did for him, being my master, otherwise the evidence I could have given would have hanged Prude. Theſe words were held actionable, and 1000 l. damages given; and in all the other caſes which have been mentioned upon this ſtatute, and where judgment was given for the plaintiff, the words always charge him with ſome particular fact, and are poſitive and certain; but where they are doubtful and general, and ſignify only the opinion of the defendant, they are not actionable.

2 the

The words in the caſe at bar, neither relate to the plaintiff as a peer, or a lord lieutenant; and charge him with no particular crime; ſo that from the authority of all theſe caſes he grounded his opinion, that the action would not lie; and he ſaid, if laws ſhould be expounded to wrack people for words, inſtead remedying one miſchief, many would be introduced, for in ſuch caſe they would be made ſnares for men.

The law doth bear with the infirmities of men; as religion, honour, and virtue doth in other caſes; and amongſt all the excellent qualities which adorn the nobility of this nation, none doth ſo much as forgiving of injuries; Solomon ſaith, That 'tis the honour of a man to paſs by an infirmity. Which if the plaintiff ſhould refuſe, yet the defendant (if he thinks the damages exceſſive) is not without his remedy by attaint, for he ſaid he could ſhew where an attaint was brought againſt a jury for giving 60 l. damages.

He farther ſaid, that he could not find that any judgment had been either reverſed or arreſted upon this ſtatute, and therefore it was fit that the law ſhould be ſettled by ſome rule, becauſe 'tis a wretched condition for people to live under ſuch circumſtances, as not to know know how to demean themſelves towards a peer; and ſince no limits have been hitherto preſcribed, 'tis fit there ſhould be ſome now, and that the court ſhould go by the ſame rules in the caſe of a peer, as in that of a common perſon, that is, not to conſtrue the words actionable without ſome particular crime charged upon the plaintiff, or unleſs he alledge ſpecial damages; for which reaſons he held that this action would not lie.

Wyndham, Juſtice, accorded with Scroggs, and the Chief Juſtice North agreed with them in the ſame opinion; his argument was, viz.

Firſt, he ſaid that he did not wonder that the defendant made his caſe ſo ſolemn, being loaded with ſo great damages; but that his opinion ſhould not be guided with that or with any rules, but thoſe of law, becauſe this did not concern the plaintiff alone, but was the caſe of all the nobility of England; but let it be never ſo general, and the conveniences or inconveniences never ſo great, he would not upon any ſuch conſiderations alter the law.

He ſaid that no action would lie upon this ſtatute, which would not lie at the common law; for where a ſtatute prohibits a thing generally, and no particular man is concerned, an offence againſt ſuch a law is puniſhable by indictment; but where there is a particular damage to any perſon by doing the thing prohibited, there an action will lie upon the ſtatute, and ſo it will at the common law.

The words therefore which are actionable upon this ſtatute are ſo at the common law.

This ſtatute extends only to peers or other great officers, now every peer, as ſuch, is a great officer, he has an office of great dignity, he is to ſupport the king by his advice, of which he

he is made capable by the great eminency of his reputation, and therefore all words which reflect upon him as he is the king's counsellor, or as he is a man of honour and dignity, are actionable at the common law.

In the ordinary cases of officers, 'tis not necessary to say that the words were spoken relating to his office, as to say of a lawyer that he is a sot or an ignoramus; or of a tradesman, he is a bankrupt; the action lies, though the words were not spoken of either as a lawyer or a tradesman.

Quæry?

He did not think that judges were to teach men by what rules to walk, other than what did relate to the particular matter before them; all other things are gratis dicta; neither would he allow that distinction, that an action would not lie where a man spoke only his opinion; for if that should be admitted, it would be very easy to scandalize any man, as I think such a judge is corrupt, or I am of opinion that such a privy counsellor is a traytor; and can any man doubt whether these or such like words are actionable or not, because spoken only as the sense of the person? 'Tis true, in some cases where a man speaks his own particular disesteem, an action will not lie, as if I say, I care not for such a lord, but that differs much where a man speaks his opinion with reference to a crime; for opinions will be spread, and will have an implicit faith, and because one man believes it another will; and 'tis upon this ground that all the cases which have been since the statute are justified; and so was the late case of the Marquis of * Dorchester, He is no more to valued than the black dog which lies there; which were words of disesteem, and only the opinion opinion of the defendant, in which caſe judgment was affirmed in a writ of error.

* Sid. 233.

Object. If it be objected to what purpoſe this ſtatute was made if no action lies upon it, but what lay at the common law?

Anſ. The plaintiff now upon the ſtatute muſt proſecute tam pro domino rege quam pro ſeipſo, which he could not do at the common law. And it has been held in the Star Chamber, that if Scandalum Magnatum be brought upon this ſtatute, the defendant cannot juſtify, becauſe 'tis brought qui tam, &c. and the King is concerned; but the defendant may explain the words, and tell the occaſion of ſpeaking of them; if they are true, they muſt not be publiſhed, becauſe the ſtatute was to prevent diſcords.

Object. Theſe words carry in them no diſeſteem.

Anſw. According to common underſtanding, they are words of diſreſpect and great diſeſteem; for 'tis as much as to ſay, that the plaintiff is a man of no honour; he is one who lives after his own will, and ſo is not fit to be employed under the King. If any precedent diſcourſe had qualified the ſpeaking theſe words, it [illegible] by the defendant, [illegible] before he conclu[illegible] ſtanding what was objected, were actionable: and ſo by the opinion of him, Wyndham and Scroggs, Juſtices, judgment was given for the plaintiff.

Atkins, Juſtice, of a contrary opinion.

Anne Aſh v. Lady Aſh, 8 W. III. B. R. Comb. 357. False impriſonment; verdict for plaintiff with Aſſault, battery, and falſe impriſonment. The Lady Aſh pretended that her daughter, the plaintiff, was troubled in mind, and brought an apothecary to give her phyſic, and they bound bound her, and would have compelled her to take physic. She was confined but about two or three hours, and the jury gave her 2000 l. damages.

2000l. damages. New trial, the jury refusing to assign the reason why they gave such a verdict.

New trial for excessive damages. N. B. The jury refused to give the reason of their verdict. Vide post.

Juries duty.

Quære.

Sir BARTH. SHOWER moved for a new trial for the excessiveness of the damages.

HOLT, Ch. J.—The jury were very shy of giving a reason for their verdict, thinking they have an absolute despotic power; but I did rectify that mistake: for the jury are to try causes with the assistance of the judges, and ought to give reasons when required, that, if they go upon any mistake, they may be set right; and a new trial was granted.

Evidence.

Nota. ROOKBY, J. said obiter, that he had known some things given in evidence under the words al' enormia, which were turpia, and not fit to be mentioned in a declaration.

Prince v. Moulton, T. 9 W. III. B.R. Comb. 442. Judgment arrested, because [illegible] given than ought; i. e. for a longer space of time than the plaintiff actually lost, or could lose the use of his lands, according to his own shewing.

The plaintiff declares, that 2 Juliis, sexto regni regis, he was possessed of a close called the Meadow, and of another close called the Pingle; and that the defendant, 3 Augusti, anno sexto præd. a certain water-mill did erect, and the foundations thereof ultra in solo did extend; by reason whereof the plaintiff lost the use and profit of his said close, from the said 2d of July, sexto.

The defendant pleaded not guilty, and a verdict was given at the assizes at Chester for the plaintiff, and entire damages assessed: and now it was moved in arrest of judgment, that the jury were inveigled to give damages from the 2d of July, which was before the mill was built: the jury, indeed, might have helped it in their verdict, but now it is too late. Hob. 189. Harbin and Green, Mo. 887. S. C.

NORTHY, Contra. One may lose the whole year's profits by an overflowing in harvest time.

Pasch. 4 Regni Regis, Horner v. Bridges, trespass tali die, with a CONTINUANDO from a day which was before, yet held good: so in an action for words spoken at several times, if the words spoken at one of the times were not actionable, but only in aggravation; if entire damages given, they shall be intended only for what is actionable. [Sed qu.?] So Roll. 577. (5.) Gosse and Pangnel, about assigning over his trade.

Ward ad idem, cited Allen 22. Syms and Gregory, Hob. 282. Hunt and Lawring.

Cheshire ad idem, That if the plaintiff could lose the use and profits of his lands from the 2d of July, then damages are well given; if not, then the jury could not consider it.

Sir Barth. Shower pro defendente. As to the case, Roll. 577. the forbearing to exercise his trade was held a good consideration; continuando's, indeed, are rejected, when impossible or inconsistent, because the defendant is not bound to answer the continuando. The case of Syms and Gregory is answered by that of Hambleton and Veer, 2 Saund. 169. If a man brings an action in Michaelmas term for words spoken in November, it might be said there to be impossible, and helped by intendment, but always held ill.

Continuando.

HOLT, Ch. J.—Where the day is not material, as in trespass, &c. if you lay a day in the declaration, which is really after the action brought, and before the trial, the Judge of Nisi Prius will suffer you to give in evidence any day before the action brought; but the defendant may take advantage of it in arrest of judgment; but if you lay a day which is impossible, as the 30th of February, or a day which is not come at the time of the trial,

 there

there you may likewise give in evidence any day before the action brought, and there the defendant shall never take advantage of it in arrest of judgment; because the court will intend, that the plaintiff must have given in evidence a time before the trial, else he could not have had a verdict, and the fault in the declaration is cured by the verdict.

In the principal case, it is true, the plaintiff might lose the profits of the whole year by an overflowing in harvest-time; but here is the word usum, which is impossible; and yet the jury might compute according to the declaration. I cannot distinguish it from the case of Harbin and Green, Hob. 189. Judicium arrestetur.

Vide 2 Mod. 154.

Clerk v. Udall, M. 1 Ann. B. R. Salk. 649. New trial for excessive damages, and the same damages given, and third trial refused. See [illegible], [illegible].

Upon a trial at nisi prius, the jury gave excessive damages; and for this cause a new trial was granted. The second jury gave the same damages again, and a second new trial was moved for and denied, because there ought to be an end of things: but several cases were cited, which the Chief Justice allowed, that where, upon the second trial, the jury have doubled the damages, a third trial had been granted.

Anonymous, M. 7 Geo. II. Barnes, 436. Action for a malicious prosecution; verdict for plaintiff; the judge certified the damages to be excessive, but the court of different opinions, and refused a new trial.

This cause was tried the last Gloucester assises. Defendant moved for a new trial; and Mr. Justice Page certified the damages (which were 50 l.) to be excessive; but the action appearing to be brought for a very malicious prosecution, and plaintiff having been imprisoned and tried for felony, the court were of opinion, that, in the nature of the thing, the damages appeared to be moderate, and therefore refused to grant a new trial.

Chambers v. Robinson, H. 12 Geo. II. 1 Stra. 691.

In an action for a malicious prosecution of an indictment for perjury, the Chief Justice allowed allowed the plaintiff to give in evidence an advertifement put into the papers by the defendant of the finding the indictment, with other fcandalous matter, though an information had been granted for it as a libel, not, as he faid, that the jury were to confider it in damages, but only as a circumftance of malice.

Evidence.

Upon the trial it appeared, the perjury was ill affigned; fo that the now plaintiff could not have been convicted; and that exception was taken to it by the Judge, and he was acquitted without examination of any witneffes. But the Chief Juftice held the action lay, though it was a faulty indictment, relying upon the cafe of Jones v. Gwynn, where the diftinction in Salk. 13. was denied, and held by the whole court that the action would lie, though the indictment was bad; a bad indictment ferving all the purpofes of malice, by putting the party to expence, and expofing him; but it ferves no purpofe of juftice in bringing the party to punifhment if he be guilty.

Action lies for malicious profecution of a bad indictment.

Vide Jones v. Gwynn, Gilbert's Cafes, Oct. 185.

Salk. 15.

Whereupon the jury gave the plaintiff 1000l. damages; and the next term the defendant moved the court for their judgment upon this point (which was faved at nifi prius) and for leave to move for a new trial after the court had given their opinion upon the point, which was granted: and as to the point of law, the court made no difficulty of agreeing with the cafe of Jones v. Gwynn, and the defendant's counfel did not feem to think the reafon and authority of that cafe was to be fhaken.

New trial granted for exceffive damages, but the fame damages being given a fecond time, another trial cannot be had.

Then the defendant moved for a new trial, on account of the exceffivenefs of the damages; and the court faid it was but reafonable he fhould try another jury *, before he was finally charged with 1000 l. So a new trial was granted, upon payment of costs. And a new trial being had, the same damages were given again; upon which the defendant applied to the court, who said it was not in their power to grant a third trial; and so is Salk. 649. the case of Clark v. Udall.

* This said to be a bad reason, and the case denied to be law in Beardmore's case. Vide post.

Vide ante.

Wilford v Berkley, T. 31 G. II. B. R. 1 Burr. 609. Action for crim. con. Verdict for plaintiff; 500 l. damages; defendant only a clerk in an office with a salary of 50 l. per ann. yet new trial refused.

Mr. Morton, on behalf of the defendant, moved for a new trial for EXCESSIVENESS of damages. It was an action for CRIMINAL CONVERSATION with the plaintiff's wife: and the jury (a special one) had given 500 l. damages. The defendant was a clerk in the Exchequer, during pleasure, at a salary of 50 l. a year only, which was his whole subsistence.

The court were, all * three, clear and unanimous, that although there was no doubt of the power of the court to exercise a proper discretion in setting aside verdicts for excessiveness of damages, in cases where the quantum of the damage really suffered by the plaintiff could be apparent, or were of such a nature that the court could properly judge of the degree of the injury, and could see manifestly that the jury had been outrageous in giving such damages as greatly exceeded the injury; yet the case was very different, where it depended upon circumstances which were PROPERLY and SOLELY under the cognizance of the jury, and were FIT to be submitted to their decision and estimate. And they held the case of criminal conversation with another man's wife to be of this latter kind: for the injury suffered by the husband, and the estimate of the damages to be assessed, must, in their nature, depend entirely upon CIRCUMSTANCES, which it was strictly and properly the province of the jury to

* Mr. Justice Foster was absent.

to judge of; and, in the present case, th court could not say that 500 l. was too much or that 50 l. would have been too little.

Note.—The case of Chem. v. Brigg, M 6 G. I. B. R. before Lord Ch. J. Pratt, was exactly similar to this; and the very same sum of 500 l. was given: and the like motion was rejected then, upon the same principles as the court have now rejected the present one.

Motion denied.

Benson v. Sir Thomas Frederick, Bart. H 6 Geo. III. B. R. 3 Burr. 1845. Action by a common soldier against his colonel, for an assault, viz twenty lashes, by two drummers; judgment per default; on inquiry 150 l. damages; motion to set aside inquiry refused.

Lord MANSFIELD reported the evidence given upon a writ of enquiry, which had been executed before him, and upon which 150 l. damages had been given.

It was an action brought against the defendant, who was colonel of the Middlesex militia, for ordering the plaintiff, who was a common man therein, and had a furlough from the major, to be stripped, and to receive twenty lashes from two drummers.

Mr. Morton had moved to set aside this verdict, for EXCESSIVENESS of damages; and had obtained a rule to shew cause. The counsel on both sides left it upon his Lordship's report.

Lord MANSFIELD said, He had no doubt but that it might be right to give an opportunity of reconsidering verdicts, where excessive damages had been given.

But in the present case, he was not dissatisfied with the verdict; for Sir Thomas had manifestly acted arbitrarily, unjustifiably, and unreasonably. He had ordered this innocent man to be flogged, (though unjustly and improperly,) merely out of spite to his major; because the major (Spinnage) who gave the man the furlough, had offended him: in which he acted malo animo, and out of mere ſpite and revenge. And the man, though not much hurt indeed, was ſcandalized and diſgraced by ſuch a puniſhment. The defendant is a man of ſuch ſubſtance, as to be very able and ſufficient to pay this ſum; and could only ſave a part of it by having a new writ of inquiry, if we were to direct one. His Lordſhip acknowledged, that he thought the damages were very great, and beyond the proportion of what the man had ſuffered: and yet, under the whole circumſtances of the caſe, he was not for granting a new trial.

Mr. Juſtice WILMOT concurred; and obſerved, that it was rather owing to the lenity of the drummers than of the colonel, that the man did not ſuffer more.

Therefore, though he had no doubt but that the court might look upon theſe damages to be too high, in a common and ordinary caſe, and had power to ſet aſide the verdict, and award a new writ of inquiry; yet, as in this caſe, the defendant had acted very arbitrarily, and was well able to pay for it, he did not think the court were obliged to ſet aſide the verdict that the jury had found.

Mr. Juſtice ASTON concurred. He was very full in vindicating the diſcretion of the court to grant new trials, even when damages were ideal; and cited the caſe of * Wood v. Gunſton. But as in the preſent caſe, the defendant had acted very arbitrarily and unjuſtifiably, and under the circumſtances that appeared upon the report, he did not think this to be a proper occaſion for the court to ſet the verdict aſide.

* Vide ante.

Per Cur. unanimouſly, rule diſcharged.

On

On Thursday last, Sir Fletcher Norton, on behalf of the defendant, moved for a new trial, and to set aside the verdict, which had been given for the plaintiff, in an action for a malicious prosecution, with 250 l. damages, at the Middlesex sittings at nisi prius, before Lord Mansfield, on the 15th instant.

Monday 24th Nov. 1766. Farmer v. Sir Robert Darling, M. 7 Geo. III. B. R. 4 Burr. 1971. Malicious prosecution by two indictments for nuisances; verdict for plaintiff; 250 l. damages; motion for new trial; 1. for excessive damages; 2. as a verdict against evidence, i. e. want of proof of probable cause; new trial refused.

His objections were, 1st, That the damages were excessive; 2dly, That the verdict was against evidence.

He had a rule to shew cause.

Lord MANSFIELD now reported the evidence.

It was an action for a malicious prosecution of the plaintiff, by two indictments for nuisances; one by a drain, the other by his poulterer's yard, both of them near the prosecutor's house: upon which indictments the then defendant and now plaintiff had been acquitted.

It appeared upon the report, "That there "was malice implied:" and it appeared that the plaintiff had actually and bonâ fide paid 140 l. in defending himself against the two indictments.

His LORDSHIP said, he told the jury, that the foundation of this action was MALICE; which must be either express, or implied: and he acquainted them, that they were not obliged to give all the 140 l. expended; or they might (on the other hand) give more, if they should see it proper to do so; he said, he left it to the jury to consider of the implied malice, from the groundlessness of the prosecution.

Sir Fletcher Norton, Mr. Morton, and Mr. Recorder Eyre, now argued on behalf of the defendant, for a new trial.

They

They ſaid, there was another requiſite to the maintenance of this ſort of action, BESIDES malice: it was alſo neceſſary to prove " that the " indictment was cauſeleſs, and without any " foundation:" both theſe are eſſential, and neceſſary to be proved.

As in a writ of conſpiracy, falſity is neceſſary to be charged; ſo in this caſe, malice ALONE is not ſufficient; it muſt alſo be a proſecution without any foundation. Theſe are two independent eſſentials to the maintenance of this action: there muſt be both malice and FALSITY.

We admit there was ſome evidence of malice; but it was proved, by ſufficient evidence, to be a NUISANCE: therefore there was a probable cauſe for the indictments; and if there was, then the proſecutor is not liable to this action for a malicious proſecution, whatever motive might induce the proſecutor to indict the perſon guilty of the offence. It would be of dangerous conſequence to make a proſecutor liable to this action, where there is a probable cauſe for indicting an offender.

Secondly, The damages are exceſſive; and the court may grant a new trial in matters of tort.

The bill of 140 l. was greatly overcharged in many articles. It ought to have been proved to have been properly paid, as well as bonâ fide. But this bill is not ſo: for ſome articles in it, there were no vouchers; and ſome of them are too general; as, for inſtance, " ſundry expences, fourteen guineas."

The counſel for the defendant alledged, that ſeventeen witneſſes proved, " that the " nuiſance exiſted:" one of whom was the foreman of the grand jury. And they alſo alledged,

alledged, that it was fully proved, "that Sir "Robert Darling did think, and had good rea- "son to think, that it was a nuisance."

Besides, Farmer himself was the occasion of it's running to so great expence: for the indictments were found at Hicks's-hall, and he removed them hither by certiorari; it was he also that moved for a view: to which Sir Robert Darling consented, when he needed not to have done so. The defendant in the prosecution could not suffer any more damages than the money out of pocket. There could be no injury but to his property; there was none to his fame. He could be intitled to no compensation for any thing else but pecuniary damages; and the jury could take nothing further into their consideration, as the measure of the damages they were to give. 1 Salk. 13. Savil v. Roberts.

Mr. Stowe and Mr. Wallace contra, for the plaintiff, denied the damages to be excessive at all, much less against a man of great fortune; which a sheriff of London, they said, must be supposed to be, at least as far as 15,000 l. for otherwise, he might have been excused from serving the office by swearing himself off. This prosecution of the indictments was at the peril of the defendant's trade, which would have been destroyed, if the prosecution had succeeded.

Upon the whole evidence, we proved, and the jury believed, that the indictments were groundless, as well as malicious.

In such an action as this is, the court cannot measure the damages by any certain rule: they have none to go by. The articles in the bill of costs were all of them necessary expences to the plaintiff, in order to defend himself

ſelf againſt theſe indictments, and were ready to have been proved, if objected to at the trial: and the whole was proved to have been bonâ fide paid. And he had reaſon to remove them from a court where the proſecutor would have been upon the bench.

The diſtreſs and vexation, and all the inconveniencies the plaintiff was put to, may fairly be taken into the conſideration of his damages, as well as the pecuniary expences.

Lord MANSFIELD.—This action is for a malicious proſecution, without a probable cauſe.

I cannot ſay that the jury have done wrong here, in finding that the indictments were preferred without probable cauſe.

This drain was an ancient drain. The fault aroſe above and below Farmer's part of it. His brick-drain was cleaned and clear. The gift of the indictment was, that he did not "lower his drain:" he had no need to do it.

The verdict was not, in my opinion, againſt evidence.

The next proſecution was for the feeding the fowls. And I cannot ſay that the jury had no reaſon to find this likewiſe to be an indictment without probable cauſe.

Every ſtench is not a nuiſance; nor is every noiſome trade a nuiſance in every place; though many of them are nuiſances by reaſon of their locality. This was an ancient trade, long carried on in this place; long before Sir Robert Darling came there. He comes and builds a houſe near it, in a place that was formerly a poultry-yard. Nobody before complained of it, or preſented it. So that the concluſion does not follow, "that it was a nuiſance." And the jury had a view; therefore I cannot ſay, that the jury had no reason to take the prosecution to be groundless.

 that

As to the excessiveness of the damages—it does not appear by the verdict, how far the jury gave it upon the bill; and how far, upon the whole circumstances of the case taken together.

The end and tendency of these two indictments was to drive this plaintiff from his business of a poulterer, after having long carried it on. This was sworn to be the prosecutor's view in preferring them. And they might affect the man's credit.

There are many circumstances which make it reasonable, not to indulge the present defendant in sending it to a new litigation, only to abate the quantum of the damages, when he has been so much in the wrong.

Therefore he was against granting a new trial.

The THREE other JUDGES entirely agreed with his lordship in both points; and expressed their sentiments at large to the same effect. They likewise agreed with Sir Fletcher Norton, as to the grounds of this sort of action; viz. "That "malice, (either express or implied,) and the "want of probable cause must both concur." But they were clearly of opinion, that it appeared upon the whole state of the evidence, that in this case they did both concur. Therefore they thought the rule ought to be discharged; both objections being sufficiently answered.

Per cur. unanimously.

Rule discharged.

Leeman v. Allen and others. E. 3 Geo. III. B.R. 2 Wils. 160.
Imprisonment for a few hours, 300 l.

TRESPASS, assault, and imprisonment, to the plaintiff's damage of 300 l. The defendant pleaded the general issue; upon the trial the jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, and 300 l.

300 l. damages not excessive, and new trial refused.

Verdict not set aside for a variance between the issue delivered and the record of nisi prius after a defence.

300 l. damages. In the paper book of the issue, delivered to the defendant with notice of trial, the damages (by mistake) were laid only 200 l. but the record of nisi prius was right, and agreeable to the roll, which was 300 l. damages; after a defence made at the trial, it was now moved by Serjeant Nares for the defendants to set aside the verdict upon two matters: 1st, because there is a variance between the issue book delivered and the nisi prius record; and 2nd, because the damages are excessive.

It appeared in evidence at the trial, that the plaintiff kept the Rummer tavern, in Chancery-lane; that the defendants are persons called reforming constables, and under pretence of a warrant from one Kynaston, a justice of peace, entered the plaintiff's house with staves, there seised and carried her into the yard, and said, "now we have got her, and will carry the bitch "to New Prison;" the defendants would not say what crime she was guilty of, or charged with; Allen, the constable, had a warrant, but he did not shew it; that the next morning the plaintiff went to Mr. Kynaston's house, but he was not at home; then she went to Justice Cox's, and again to Mr. Kynaston's, but none of the defendants appeared to prosecute her. John Slade, the waiter at the tavern, proved, that a man and a woman came to plaintiff's house (who looked like fellow-servants) between nine and ten o'clock, one evening in Easter week, a few minutes before this imprisonment was done; that they appeared to be honest sober persons, and came to refresh themselves; that he saw the defendants armed with bludgeons, take and seize the plaintiff, his mistress; that Allen laid hold of her, and said, "Now damn you "for

"for a bitch we have got you, and we are "determined you shall go to New-Prison;" other witnesses gave evidence to the like effect; that these defendants called themselves reformers; about twenty witnesses proved the Rummer tavern to be a house of good repute, and no body proved the contrary; it was also proved that one of the defendants struck the plaintiff. That the defendants never prosecuted the plaintiff, nor did they appear against her when she went before the justice next day. For the defendants, one William Gardiner, who was accidentally present in court at the trial, swore he was at the Rummer when this affair happened, and that he heard no oaths, nor the word bitch, &c. It appeared that the warrant was granted and signed by Justice Kynaston, to enter this house, upon an allegation that the plaintiff kept a loose and disorderly house; that they had two warrants, one for London, and another for Middlesex, because this house stands partly in and out of the city, which they kept five weeks before they executed them; that they frequently watched the house, and when they imagined any lewd persons went into the house they took that opportunity to execute the warrant; this is the substance of the evidence, whereupon the jury found for the plaintiff, and 300 l. damages.

Chief Justice.—1st, As the defendants made a defence at the trial, the court will not set aside the verdict for the variance between the issue book delivered in paper; and the record of nisi prius, which was not mentioned or objected to, at the trial; and if the record of nisi prius had been wrong, the court would have amended it by the roll, after a verdict and a defence made.

have

2nd, As to the excessiveness of damages; courts should be very cautious how they overthrow verdicts that have been given by twelve men upon their oaths; however, if damages be unreasonable and outrageous indeed, as if 2000 l. or 3000 l. was to be given in a little battery, which all mankind might see to be unreasonable at first blush; certainly a court would set aside such a verdict, and try whether a second jury would not be more reasonable. The rule in the case of Ash v. Ash, Comb. 357. laid down by Lord Holt, is a good one;—"That the jury are to try causes with the "assistance of the judges, and ought to give "their reasons, when required, that if they "go upon any mistake they may be set right; "and for their not doing so, and for excessive-"ness of damages, a new trial was granted." And this rule is universal, and extends to all sorts of actions; but it may be said, what rule has the court to govern themselves by as to matters of tort? I answer, the court must be able to say the damages are beyond all measure unreasonable, though they cannot say exactly what damages ought to be given. I do not think the damages excessive in the present case; here are a number of persons like a new sort of grand jury, who meet once or twice in a week, and take upon themselves to present, correct, reform, and commence prosecutions; a warrant is granted by Kynaston, a reforming justice, on the information of one Tristram, who is fled for an abominable crime; there was no account given at the trial of the matter of his information to Kynaston, who did not appear, though he was subpœnaed; the warrant is pocketed five weeks, the defendants watch and wait 'till they can dodge a lewd woman into the out-rooms of this house, where they had not been five minutes, before the defendants entered with bludgeons, and seized upon the person of the plaintiff, and would have carried her to prison that night, if her neighbours had not then interposed and undertaken that she should appear before Justice Kynaston next morning, which she did, but the defendants never pursued the warrant one step farther. I think the king's-bench would grant an information against these persons for setting themselves up as a kind of grand jury; an informer is a most odious character; and I am glad of an opportunity of declaring my dislike towards these reformers. The whole court refused to set aside the verdict, and the plaintiff had judgment.

Vide ante.

is

Huckle v. Money. M. 4 Geo. III. C. B. 2 Wilson 205. A new trial for excessive damages in assault and imprisonment refused. Vide Essay I. [E.] (a.) tit. Bills of Exceptions.

TRESPASS, assault, and imprisonment; issue joined upon the general issue, not guilty; tried before the Lord Chief Justice, when it was proved for the plaintiff that he is a journeyman printer, and was taken into custody by the defendant (a king's messenger) upon suspicion of having printed the North-Briton, number 45; that the plaintiff kept him in custody about six hours, but used him very civilly by treating him with beef-steakes and beer, so that he suffered very little or no damages; the defendant attempted to justify under the GENERAL WARRANT of a secretary of state, to apprehend the printers and publishers of the said North-Briton, number 45, by virtue of the stat. of Jac. I. and the stat. 24 Geo. II. cap. 44. but was over-ruled by the Lord Chief Justice; whereupon the king's counsel, who were advocates for the defendant, tendered a bill of exceptions; the jury gave 300 l. damages.

It was now moved by Serjeant Whitaker, that the verdict might be set aside, and a new trial had; for that it appeared upon the evidence the plaintiff was only a journeyman to Leech the printer, at the weekly wages of a guinea; that he was confined but a few hours, and very civilly and well treated by the defendant, so that 300 l. were most outrageous damages in this case, and a new trial he hoped would be granted; and cited Chambers v. Robinson, 1 Stra. 691. which was an action for a malicious prosecution upon an indictment wherein the jury gave 1000 l. damages, and the court granted a new trial for the excessiveness of the damages; several other similar cases were cited to induce the court to grant a new trial.

Vide ante.

Serjeant Burland, for the plaintiff, insisted that in cases of tort, which sound merely in damages, and are not like debt or assumpsit, the court will never interpose in setting aside verdicts for excessive damages; that in the case of Leeman against Allen and other reforming constables, C. B. in an action of trespass and imprisonment, the jury gave 300 l. damages; and this court refused to grant a new trial, though the plaintiff had not been imprisoned above 24 hours. And in a late case in B. R. for criminal conversation, 500 l. damages were given against a man in very poor circumstances, as appeared to the court by affidavit, and yet they would not grant a new trial, but said they could not interpose in cases of tort, unless the damages were very outrageous; but that the jury were the sole judges of the damages.

Vide ante.

Vide ante.

Lord

Lord Chief Justice.—In all motions for new trials, it is as abſolutely neceſſary for the court to enter into the nature of the cauſe, the evidence, facts, and circumſtances of the caſe, as for a jury; the law has not laid down what ſhall be the meaſure of damages in action of tort; the meaſure is vague and uncertain, depending upon a vaſt variety of cauſes, facts, and circumſtances; torts or injuries which may be done by one man to another are infinite; in caſes of criminal converſation, battery, impriſonment, ſlander, malicious proſecutions, &c. the ſtate, degree, quality, trade, or profeſſion of the party injured, as well as of the perſon who did the injury, muſt be, and generally are, conſidered by a jury in giving damages; the few caſes to be found in the books of new trials for torts, ſhews that courts of juſtice have moſt commonly ſet their faces againſt them; and the courts interfering in theſe caſes would be laying aſide juries: before the time of granting new trials, there is no inſtance that the judges ever intermeddled with the damages.

I ſhall now ſtate the nature of this caſe, as it appeared upon the evidence at the trial; a warrant was granted by Lord Halifax, ſecretary of ſtate, directed to four meſſengers, to apprehend and ſeiſe the printers and publiſhers of a paper called the North-Briton, number 45, without any information or charge laid before the ſecretary of ſtate, previous to the granting thereof, and without naming any perſon whatſoever in the warrant: Carrington, the firſt of the meſſengers to whom the warrant was directed, from ſome private intelligence he had got that Leech was the printer of the North-Briton, number 45, directed the defendant to execute the warrant upon the plaintiff (one of Leech's journeymen), and took him into custody for about six hours, and during that time treated him well; the personal injury done to him was very small, so that if the jury had been confined by their oath to consider the mere personal injury only, perhaps 20 l. damages would have been thought damages sufficient; but the small injury done to the plaintiff, or the inconsiderableness of his station and rank in life, did not appear to the jury in that striking light, in which the great point of law, touching the liberty of the subject, appeared to them at the trial; they saw a magistrate over all the king's subjects, exercising arbitrary power, violating Magna Charta, and attempting to destroy the liberty of the kingdom, by insisting upon the legality of this GENERAL WARRANT before them; they heard the king's counsel, and saw the solicitor of the treasury, endeavouring to support and maintain the legality of the warrant, in a tyrannical and severe manner: these are the ideas which struck the jury on the trial, and I think they have done right in giving exemplary damages: to enter a man's house by virtue of a nameless warrant, in order to procure evidence, is worse than the Spanish inquisition; a law under which no Englishman would wish to live an hour; it was a most daring public attack made upon the liberty of the subject: I thought that the 29th chapter of Magna Charta, Nullus liber homo capiatur vel imprisonetur, &c. nec super eum ibimus, &c. nisi per legale judicium parium suorum vel per legem terræ, &c. which is pointed against against arbitrary power, was violated.

I cannot say what damages I should have given, if I had been upon the jury; but I directed directed and told them they were not bound to any certain damages, against the solicitor-general's argument. Upon the whole I am of opinion the damages are not excessive; and that it is very dangerous for the judges to intermeddle in damages for torts; it must be a glaring case indeed of outrageous damages in a tort, and which all mankind at first blush must think so, to induce a court to grant a new trial for excessive damages.

BATHURST, Justice:—I am of my lord's opinion, and particularly in the matter of damages, wherein he directed the jury that they were not bound to certain damages: this is a motion to set aside 15 verdicts in effect; for all the other persons who have brought actions against these messengers, have had verdicts for 200l. in each cause by consent, after two of the actions were fully heard and tried.——CLIVE, Justice, absent.

Per curiam, new trial refused.

Arthur Beardmore, an attorney, v. Nathan Carrington, James Watson, Thomas Ardran, and Robert Blackmore, four of the king's messengers in ordinary.

Er. Tm. 4 Geo. III. 1764.

A new trial was refused in an action of trespass and imprisonment under a secretary of state's warrant, where 1000l. damages were given for six days imprisonment, and the entering plaintiff's house, and seising his books & papers.

THIS was an action of trespass and false imprisonment; the plaintiff declared that on the 11th of November, 1762, the defendants broke and entered his dwelling-house at London, in the parish of St. Stephen, Wallbrooke, in the ward of Wallbrooke, and continued therein four hours, disturbed him in his possession, broke and forced open several doors of the rooms, and broke and spoiled the locks, bolts, and bars thereof, and broke and forced open many boxes, chests, bureaus, scrutores, writing-desks, drawers, and cup-boards of the plaintiff, in his house, and the locks thereof, and searched and examined all the rooms in the house, and all the boxes, &c. so broke open, and read over, pryed into, and examined all the private papers, books, letters, and correspondence of the plaintiff and his clients, whereby the ſecret and private affairs, concerns, buſi-neſs, and circumſtances of the plaintiff, and his clients, became and were wrongfully diſcovered, and made public; and then and there ſeiſed, took, and carried away 500 printed charts, and a great many other papers, printed and written, (particularly mentioned) and took, and cloſely impriſoned the plaintiff for nine months, whereby he was hindered from following and tranſacting his lawful affairs and buſineſs, and was thereby put to great expences in his maintenance during his impriſonment; and in obtaining his legal diſcharge and releaſe therefrom, againſt the peace, &c. to the damage of the plaintiff 10,000 l.

The defendants pleaded firſt, not guilty; and, 2dly, by leave of the court, as to the breaking and entering the dwelling-houſe, continuing there, diſturbing the plaintiff in his poſſeſſion, forcing open the ſaid doors, forcing open the boxes, cheſts, &c. and examining his private papers, &c. and carrying away the goods, &c. and impriſoning the plaintiff and detaining him for ſix days and an half; they plead that the plaintiff ought not to have his action againſt them, becauſe they ſay, that before the treſpaſs, &c. was ſuppoſed to be committed, viz. on the 6th of November, 1762, the Earl of Halifax was, and yet is one of the lords of the king's privy council, and one of his principal ſecretaries of ſtate, and that he on the 6th of November, 1762, made his warrant under his hand and ſeal, directed to the defendants, four of the king's meſſengers in ordinary, by which warrant the earl did, in the king's name, authoriſe and require them, (the defendants) taking a conſtable to their aſſiſtance,

aſſiſtance, to make ſtrict and diligent ſearch for the ſaid Arthur Beardmore, mentioned in the ſaid warrant to be the author, or one concerned in the writing of ſeveral weekly very ſeditious papers, intituled the Monitor, or Britiſh Freeholder, number 357, 358, 360, 373, 376, 378, 379, and 380. London, printed for J. Wilſon and J. Fell, in Pater-noſter-row; which contained groſs and ſcandalous reflections and invectives upon his majeſty's government, and upon both houſes of parliament, and him the ſaid Arthur Beardmore having found, to ſeiſe and apprehend, and to bring him, together with his books and papers, in ſafe cuſtody, before the ſaid Earl of Halifax, to be examined concerning the premiſes, and further dealt with according to law, &c. That the ſaid warrant was, that day, delivered to the defendants to be executed; that they took C. W. a conſtable, to their aſſiſtance, and on the ſame day in the declaration, they went towards the plaintiff's houſe and found him near to it, and did there ſeiſe and apprehend him by virtue of the warrant, and immediately the ſame day, about ten o'clock in the forenoon, being the time when, &c. entered his dwelling-houſe, (the door being then open) to ſearch for, and ſeiſe the books, papers, &c. of the plaintiff, and to bring them with the plaintiff, before the Earl of Halifax, according to the exigency of the warrant; and ſo the defendants go on and juſtify the treſpaſs aforeſaid, and ſay they delivered the books, papers, &c. to Lovel Stanhope, an aſſiſtant of the Earl of Halifax, and a juſtice of peace for Weſtminſter, to be examined; and that they kept the plaintiff in cuſtody, 'till he gave bail for his appearance in the king's-bench, the then next term, to anſwer ſuch matters as ſhould be objected againſt him; and then the defendants, by order of the Earl of Halifax, diſcharged the plaintiff, and they ſay that he was neceſſarily put to expences by ſuch detainer, which is the ſame treſpaſs complained of. There is another juſtification much to the ſame purport. The plaintiff replied de injuria ſua propria, whereupon iſſue was joined; and at the trial the jury were directed to aſſeſs damages, under an idea that the treſpaſs and impriſonment committed under this warrant, could not be juſtified by any plea whatſoever; and they found a verdict for the plaintiff, and gave him 1000 l. damages.

It was moved by the king's ſerjeants that the verdict might be ſet aſide, for exceſſive damages; upon ſhewing cauſe, the Lord Chief Juſtice ſtated the ſubſtance of the evidence given at the trial as follows:

The plaintiff called his clerk, David Meredith, who proved, that on the 11th day of November, 1762, he found all the defendants in the plaintiff his maſter's houſe, and in the private office there, opening the drawers and taking out papers; that they demanded the plaintiff's file of letters, and examined them back 'till the year 1752. Defendant Carrington then ſaid, "that was ſufficient;" afterwards they went into the public office, and there opened the deſk, took out the books, and looked into the ledgers, but did not break any deſks or drawers open, becauſe the plaintiff opened the ſame for them; afterwards they took the plaintiff and this witneſs away in a coach; this witneſs proved that the plaintiff was then concerned in a great many cauſes depending, as an attorney, that he ſent for Mr.

Winbolt,

Winbolt, to manage his businefs while he fhould remain in confinement; that no violence was offered to the perfon of the plaintiff, and that his wife was permitted to be with him; that this witnefs had actions depending againft the defendants and Lord Halifax; that the defendants refufed to permit one Mr. Collet, who was a client of the plaintiff, to converfe privately with him about his bufinefs; that while the plaintiff and this witnefs were confined in the houfe of the defendants, he the plaintiff was fuffered to go into any part of the houfe, and after fix days imprifonment, they were both difcharged, upon entering into recognizances to appear in the king's-bench the then next term, and for their good behaviour, without paying any fees.

Mr. Collet, a client of the plaintiff, fwore that the plaintiff was concerned in fome caufes for him at that time, and that he defired to fpeak with him in private about his bufinefs, but he was refufed by the defendants to fpeak to the plaintiff privately, and to write down what he wanted to fay; that pen and ink were refufed to him, but the defendants told him he might fpeak publicly to the plaintiff, in the hearing of the defendants if he pleafed; it was alfo proved that the plaintiff was then refufed the liberty of writing a letter to Mr. Alderman Beckford, one of the members of parliament for the city of London; this was the fubftance of the plaintiff's evidence.

For the defendants, Lovel Stanhope, efq; deputy fecretary of ftate, affiftant to Lord Halifax, was called, who fwore that his bufinefs was to look into, and examine all papers touching the government; that he took an oath of office, and was to pay obedience to the the orders of the ſecretary of ſtate; he ſaid that on theſe occaſions, when the meſſengers have a man in cuſtody, they are not to do any thing without his orders; that Lord Haliſax ordered the plaintiff to be bailed, and that he was continued upon his recognizance from term to term for ſeveral terms. It was admitted on all ſides at the trial, that there have been a great many precedents of warrants of the like ſort with the preſent, for the ſeiſing perſons and papers, &c. and for all ſorts of crimes or offences, let the offence be what it would; and this was the ſubſtance of the defendants evidence.

For the defendants it was ſaid, that for ſix days and an half confinement in a meſſenger's houſe, where little or no injury had been done either to the plaintiff's perſon, houſe, or goods, 1000 l. were exceſſive and outrageous damages, and that if the court ſaw that they were exceſſive, they had power to grant, and would grant a new trial, even in caſes of tort. It is ſaid the caſe of Wood and Gunſton, Styles 466. Mich. 1655. is the firſt inſtance of granting a new trial; but this ſeems to be a miſtake, for there were new trials granted long before, as appears from this, viz. that it is a good challenge to a juryman to ſay, that he hath been a juror before in the * ſame cauſe: per Holt. C. J. 2 Salk. 648. It is true that in Roe and Hawkes, 1 Lev. 97. † it is ſaid by Twiſden, Juſtice, that the new trial in Wood and Gunſton, was not merely granted for exceſſiveneſs of damages, but for tampering with the jury; but in 1 Sid. 131. and in 2 Mod. 151. it is ſaid that the new trial in Wood and Gunſton was for exceſſiveneſs of damages; that was an action for words, and is a caſe in point, that the court has

Vide ante.

* This might be in the caſe of a venire facias de novo awarded, where a miſ-trial has been had.

† Vide ante.

has power to grant new trials in cafes of tort for exceffive damages. Suppofing new trials firft began in the reign of Charles the Firft, yet it appears from the Year-books, long before that time, that courts of juftice (not having then come into granting new trials) when they faw reafon for it, either leffened or increafed the damages, as they do in the cafe of maihem to this day, upon view of plaintiff's maihem, and identifying his perfon; and for this purpofe thefe cafes were cited from the Year-books, Mich. 22 Ed. III. fol. 11. c. 10. which was a battery. Mich. 3 Hen. IV. fol. 4. c. 16. Mich. 7. H. IV. 31. b. c. 15. in confpiracy, where the plaintiff releafed part, or the court would have abridged the damages according to their confcience. Eafter, 8 Hen. IV. fol. 23. c. 9. the Juftice of Nifi Prius thought the damages too little, yet they would not increafe them without feeing the maihem. Mich. 19 H. VI. 10. b. c. 28. Trin. 32 H. VI. 1. a. c. 2. in debt the parties were at iffue, and the jury found for the plaintiff damages 6 s. 8 d. and cofts 20 s. the court increafed the damages to 13s. and 4d. more. Dyer 105. Palm. 314. From thefe ancient cafes it was argued, that courts of juftice have, in all times, confidered themfelves authorifed to review the damages given by juries, in all kinds of actions, and either to abridge, or increafe them; and fince that practice has been difufed, and abridging damages by the court has been looked upon as unconftitutional, new trials have been granted for exceffive damages.

For the plaintiff it was faid, that new trials can only be granted in cafes where the court can clearly fee that the jury is miftaken, or have mifbehaved themfelves; all the cafes of new trials tend to prove, that where the court have no measure to direct them, they cannot grant a new trial, there must be some infallible mark for them to go by in the case; no two judges in the world can agree what damages ought to be given in the present case, for damages here lie in speculation. That the misconduct of juries seems to have been the first occasion of new trials. It is said new trials were first introduced to prevent attaints; but an attaint would not lie in this case, for there is no possibility of pointing out how far the damages are excessive or not. The case in Styles 466, was not for excessive damages, but for tampering with the jury; it was said in that case to be a packed business. In the case of Lord Townshend for words, 2 Mod. 150. the court said they had no ground whereby they could measure the damages, and refused a new trial. Ash and Ash, Comb. 357. is not to the purpose; Lord Holt asked the jury upon what ground they went, but they refused to answer him, and so were guilty of a misconduct.

I new

Vide ante.

Vide ante.

Curia. We are called upon, on our oaths to say, whether these are excessive damages or not, and ought to have very clear evidence before us, before we can say they are excessive. The jury were directed to assess damages for the plaintiff according to the evidence given, under an idea that the defendants could not by law justify the trespass under this warrant, by any manner of plea whatsoever. It is clear that the practice of granting new trials is modern, and that courts anciently never exercised this power, but in some particular cases they corrected the damages from evidence laid before them. There is great difference between cafes of damages which be certainly feen, and fuch as are ideal; as between affumpfit, trefpafs for goods, where the fum and value may be meafured, and actions of imprifonment, malicious profecution, flander, and other perfonal torts, where the damages are matter of opinion, fpeculation, ideal. There is alfo a difference between a principal verdict of a jury, and a writ of inquiry of damages; the latter being only an inqueft of office, to inform the confcience of the court, and which they might have affeffed themfelves, without any inqueft at all; only in the cafe of maihem, courts have in all ages interpofed in that fingle inftance only. As to the cafe of the writ of inquiry in the Year-book of H. IV. we doubt whether what is faid by the court in that cafe be right, That they would abridge the damages, unlefs the plaintiff would releafe part thereof, becaufe there is not one cafe to be found in the Year-books, where ever the court abridged the damages after a principal verdict; and this is clear down to the time of Palmer's Rep. 314. much lefs have they interpofed in increafing damages, except in the cafe of maihem. One fide fays no attaint lies (in cafes of tort) for exceffive damages; the other fide fays it does: we give no opinion as to that point; but it is faid in a hundred cafes in the books, that an attaint does lie. See 10 Rep. 119. Lord Cheyney's cafe.

ference

All, or moft of the cafes of new trials, are where juries have * mifdemeaned themfelves contrary to their oath; in the cafe in Styles 466. the mifconduct of the jury was certainly an ingredient, and fo it appears from the cafe in 1 Lev. 97. Some books fay it was a trial at

* The Judge who tried the caufe, ufed to certify to the court the mifbehaviour. Cro. El. 189, 411, 616. 3 Keb. 351.

at bar, and it is highly probable there was ſome evidence, that the jury had been tampered with; and this was certainly the very firſt caſe of a new trial; and from that period the courts have exerciſed the power of granting new trials in ſeveral caſes: as when the jury find contrary to the judges directions in point of law; when they find directly contrary to the evidence; (that is to ſay,) againſt evidence all one ſide, for if there be evidence on both ſides, the court never interpoſes in that caſe.* As to the granting the firſt new trial in Styles 466. there is great reaſon (as was ſaid before) to think it was for miſbehaviour in the jury; it was an action for words; ſo was the caſe of Lord Townſhend, 2 Mod. 250. for words, and 4000 l. damages, where the court refuſed to grant a new trial. And if a court could not ſay that thoſe damages were exceſſive, they can hardly ſay that damages are exceſſive in any caſe of ſlander whatever; and this caſe has never been contradicted, or denied to be law. The caſe of Aſh and Aſh, Comb, 357. was plainly for the miſdemeanour of the jury, in refuſing to anſwer the judge, when he aſked what ground or reaſon they went upon. To be ſure judges are to adviſe, but not to controul juries; and my Lord Holt and the King's-Bench did right, in granting a new trial in that caſe. In the caſe of Wilford v. Berkley, Trin. 31 and 32 G. II. B. R. which was an action for criminal converſation, the jury gave 500 l. damages againſt the defendant; and, upon affidavits that he was only a clerk in low circumſtances, and unable to pay ſo large a ſum, it was moved for a new trial; but the court refuſed to grant even a rule to ſhew cauſe, becauſe in caſes of tort, the 351. Styl. 448. Moor. 451, 452. Bacon v. Hutchinſon, Eaſter term, 8 Ann. C. B. a rule to ſtay the judgment until the judge's certificate; Palm. 325. Concerning miſdemeanor of juries, ſee 2 H. P. C. 306, 307, &c. Cro. Jac. 210. c. 2.

Vide ante Wilford and Berkley.

the jury are the only proper judges of the damages.

We are now come to the case in 1 Stra. 691. Chambers v. Robinson; which seems to be the only case where a new trial was granted merely for the excessiveness of damages only. We are not satisfied with the reason given in that case, and think it of no weight, and want to know the facts upon which the court would pronounce the damages to be excessive: the principle on which it was granted, mentioned in Strange, was to give the defendant a chance of another jury: this is a very bad reason; for if it was not, it would be a reason for a third and fourth trial, and would be digging up the constitution by the roots; and therefore we are free to say, this case is not law; and that there is not one single case, (that is law,) in all the books to be found, where the court has granted a new trial for excessive damages in actions for torts.

Vide ante.

It was strongly argued at the trial of this cause, that the jury were to measure the damages by what the defendant had suffered by this trespass, and six days and an half's imprisonment; but this was thought a gross absurdity by the judge who presided there.

Markham v. Middleton, Tr. 19 Geo. II. B. R. Per Curiam, the jury are the sole judges of the damages in cases of torts.

We desire to be understood that this court doth not say, or lay down any rule, that there can never happen a case of such excessive damages in tort, where the court may not grant a new trial; but in that case, the damages must be monstrous, and enormous indeed, and such as all mankind must be ready to exclaim against at first blush.

The nature of the trespass in the present case is joint and several; and the plaintiff has still another action against Lord Halifax, who,

it is ſaid, is more culpable than the defendants, who are only ſervants, and have done what he commanded them to do, and therefore the damages are exceſſive as to them: but we think this is no topic of mitigation; and, for any thing we know, the jury might ſay, "we will make no difference between the miniſter who executed, and the magiſtrate "who granted this illegal warrant:" ſo the court muſt conſider theſe damages as given againſt Lord Halifax; and can we ſay that 1000l. are monſtrous damages as againſt him, who has granted an illegal warrant to a meſſenger, who enters into a man's houſe, and pries into all his ſecret and private affairs, and carries him from his houſe and buſineſs, and impriſons him for ſix days? It is an unlawful power aſſumed by a great miniſter of ſtate. Can any body ſay that a guinea per diem is ſufficient damages in this extraordinary caſe, which concerns the liberty of every one of the King's ſubjects? We cannot ſay the damages of 1000l. are enormous; and therefore the rule, to ſhew cauſe why a new trial ſhould not be granted, muſt be diſcharged. Per totam Curiam.

Hil. 8 Geo. II. B. R. Smith v. Boucher.

In treſpaſs and impriſonment, damages on a writ of inquiry 200l. Skinner moved to ſet it aſide for exceſſive damages; but per Curiam, in tort the jury are the proper judges.

Grey againſt Sir Alexand. Grant, Bart. a member of parliament, T. 4 G. III. C. P. 2 Wilſon 252. In a little aſſault and battery 200l. damages not exceſſive, and a new trial refuſed. Plaintiff and defen-

This was an action of aſſault and battery, tried at Guildhall, London, wherein the jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, and 200l. damages; and now it was moved to have the verdict ſet aſide and a new trial, for exceſſiveneſs of damages. The caſe upon the evidence was as follows:

Captain

Captain Holland, of the ship Nancy, having brought from the West-Indies a turtle for the plaintiff, Mr. Grey, and which was his property, and it having been, by mistake, delivered to the defendant, the plaintiff went to him, and demanded it of him; but he said he had invited some friends to dine with him upon it, and refused to deliver it, or to pay for it, and that the plaintiff might take his remedy; and pointing at the plaintiff, said, "If that man was to ask a turtle of me, I "would give him one;" the plaintiff answered and said, this is very ungenteel; and the defendant shoved the plaintiff out of his house with his elbow; who thereupon asked the defendant if he would waive his privilege of parliament, but the defendant refused to do it; plaintiff then said to him, you are a scoundrel, and defendant gave him a blow upon the face, which caused a black eye; the plaintiff also demanded the turtle by a letter, and required the defendant to restore it; Captain Holland also informed the defendant, that the turtle had been delivered to him by mistake, and desired him to restore it; but the defendant said, "A turtle I have got, and what I "have got I will keep." The captain told the defendant, if he wanted a turtle to entertain his friends, there was one then at the Jamaica coffee-house to be sold, and he might buy that; the defendant answered, "You may "buy it yourself, I will keep that I have got." Then the plaintiff said to the defendant again, I come here to demand my right, and if you will not give it me, I will take my remedy at law, if you will waive your privilege; the defendant answered and said, "In such a trifling "business as this I will not waive my prividant men of rank, and the latter had treated the former with great contempt.

"lege, but in a matter of property I would "waive it." One Falconer was called as a witneſs, to prove that he was preſent at this diſpute, and could not remember that any blow was ſtruck by the defendant; he had forgot every thing which made in favour of the plaintiff, but remembered every thing which made for the defendant; ſo it was a m.... ring caſt whether a blow was ſtruck or not: however, the jury found for the plaintiff, and 200 l. damages.

Curia. This was a quarrel between two gentlemen, and has been properly tried by a ſpecial jury of merchants of London, who are the proper judges of the damages. When a blow is given by one gentleman to another, a challenge and death may enſue; and therefore the jury have done right in giving exemplary damages. The plaintiff has been uſed unlike a gentleman by the defendant in ſtriking him, with-holding his property, and inſiſting upon his privilege; all of them tending to provoke him to ſeek his revenge in another way than by law: and therefore we think the damages are not exceſſive. Rule to ſhew cauſe why a new trial ſhould not be had, diſcharged per totam Curiam.

Gilbert v. Burtenſhaw, M. 15 Geo. III. B. R. Cowp. 230. In perſonal torts, the court will ſeldom grant a new trial for exceſſive damages. Malicious proſecution for perjury, and for words after the acquittal, charging plaintiff with the crime; 400 l. or 500 l. damages; new trial refuſed.

This was an action for maliciouſly indicting the plaintiff for perjury. The ſecond and third counts were for defamation, in ſaying the plaintiff was a perjured knave and ſcoundrel, (after acquittal,) and he would prove it.

Upon ſhewing cauſe why a new trial ſhould not be granted on the ground of exceſſive damages, it appeared by the report of Lord Chief Baron Smythe, before whom the cauſe was tried, that his Lordſhip directed the jury, in caſe they were of opinion that there was malice, malice, and no probable cause, to find a verdict for the plaintiff; but if they thought there was a probable cause, then to find a verdict for the defendant. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, damages * 400 l. and his Lordship reported that he was very well satisfied with the verdict.

Q. 500l.

Mr. Dunning, Mr. Lade, and Mr. [illegible], in support of the rule, were instructed to say, that the acquittal upon the indictment for perjury was by mistake, and not upon the merits; and in respect of the damages they insisted, that, as no special damage was laid or proved, the sum of 400 l. was much too severe and excessive.

Mr. Justice Willes, who tried the indictment against Gilbert the plaintiff, explained what passed at that time, and said, that, after a trial of six hours, it was an acquittal upon the merits, and very much to his satisfaction.

Lord MANSFIELD—This rule comes before the court singly on the judge's report. It is not an application on the ground of surprise, or of new evidence, that has been discovered since the trial; nor upon the ground, which counsel were instructed to mention to the court, when it was first moved, namely, that, from the hurry of summing up, the jury were misled to think, that declarations accusing the plaintiff of perjury, were left to the jury, when, in fact, no such evidence was given. By the report it appears, that that suggestion is totally untrue, and that there was strong evidence of such declaration being made by Burtenshaw, after the trial of the indictment.

The verdict is taken upon two counts: upon the first, "for maliciously indicting the plain"tiff of perjury;" and upon the ſecond, for calling him "a perjured raſcal, and ſaying he "would prove it." There was evidence in ſupport of both counts. Therefore the whole ground of the application reſts on the point of exceſſive damages. I ſhould be ſorry to ſay that, in caſes of perſonal torts, no new trial ſhould ever be granted for damages, which manifeſtly ſhew the jury to have been actuated by paſſion, partiality, or prejudice. But it is not to be done without very ſtrong grounds indeed; and ſuch as carry internal evidence of intemperance in the minds of the jury. It is by no means to be done where the court may feel, that, if they had been on the jury, they would have given leſs damages, or where they might think the jury themſelves would have completely diſcharged their duty, in giving a leſs ſum. Of all the caſes left to a jury, none is more emphatically left to their ſound diſcretion, than ſuch a caſe as this; and, unleſs it appears that the damages are flagrantly outrageous and extravagant, it is difficult for the court to draw the line.

But in this caſe, where the defendant has been guilty of repeated defamation againſt the plaintiff, after a fair trial and acquittal, upon a malicious proſecution, it is impoſſible for the court to go into a nice examination and admeaſurement of what ought to have been the damages.

Aston, Juſtice.—I am clearly of the ſame opinion; and in the preſent caſe I ſhould doubt, even if it ſtood upon the ſecond count only, whether the court ought to interpoſe on account of the largeneſs of the damages, in favour of a man who has been guilty of charging another with ſo foul a crime as is there laid,

laid, and declaring in public that he would prove it upon him.

Mr. Justice WILLES, and Mr. Justice ASHHURST, were of the same opinion.

Rule for a new trial discharged.

ACTION of assault. Verdict for 150l. Mingay moved to set it aside, on account of excessive damages.

Ducker v. Wood, T. 26 G. III. B. R. Durnford and East, 1 V. 277.

The court may in any case grant a new trial upon the ground of excessive damages.

Lord MANSFIELD said, there was no doubt but that the court had a power of taking the opinion of a second jury, in any case where the damages were excessive: but all these questions depended on their own circumstances on which the court would exercise their discretion.

But in this case, upon hearing the report of the judge, the court thought fit to reject the motion (a.)

(a) Vide 2 Wils. 405. and 3 Wils. 62.

On a motion to set aside a writ of inquiry for excessive damages, it appeared that the plaintiffs were the indorsees of a bill of exchange drawn here by G. Campbell, for 2,800 star pagodas; payable to the defendant or order, and directed to G. Mowbray, Esq; at Madras. The plaintiffs discounted the bill, giving the then current price of the exchange, which was 6 s. 6 d. per pagoda. They sent it to Madras, from whence it was returned to England, protested for non-acceptance, and also for non-payment; on which the plaintiffs had demanded and recovered at the rate of 10 s. per pagoda, and 5 l. per cent. from the expiration of thirty days after notice to the defendant of it being returned.

Auriol and another against Thomas, Trin. Tm. 27 G. III. B. R. Durnford and East, 2 V. 52.

Where a bill indorsed over is not duly paid, the indorsee may charge the indorser with interest, exchange, and other incidental expences, beyond the amount of 5 l. per cent. if such charges are reasonable, warranted by usage, and not made a colour for usury. The charge of 10 s. per pagoda on a bill returned protested from India is not excessive,

Wood shewed cause, and contended that this could not be considered as an usurious demand, because the usage, as well as the particular

ticular agreement of the defendant, had been proved before the jury to charge at the rate of 10 s. per pagoda for bills returned from India proteſted, and 5 l. per cent. after thirty days notice to the defendant of non-payment, which included all incidental charges.

though it was taken in payment here at the rate of 6 s. and 6 d. per pagoda.

Philips, in ſupport of the rule, cited the caſe of Benſon v. Parry (a), where it had been held to be uſury for country bankers to take more than 5 l. per cent. on inland bills payable at another place; and if the practice be contrary to law, no uſage could make it good.

(a) Summer aſſiſes at Hereford, 1780.

(b) Buller, J.—The caſe of Benſon v. Parry, at Hereford, was determined on a miſtake; but, when it was more maturely conſidered by this court, on a motion for a new trial, they were unanimouſly of opinion, that extra charges might be allowed, though they amounted to more than 5 l. per cent. if they were fair and reaſonable, and not as a colour for uſury; and there a new trial was granted. This doctrine was again recognized in two Niſi Prius caſes, the one before the Lord Chief Baron Eyre, on the circuit, the other before me at the ſittings at Weſtminſter (c). So that it is now clearly ſettled, that the party is intitled to take not only 5 l. per cent. for legal intereſt, but alſo a reaſonable ſum for remitting, and other neceſſary incidental expences. The demand, in the preſent caſe, ariſes upon a bill of exchange, payable in India, which, if not paid there when due, would carry the intereſt allowed in that country; and it is admitted that the conſtant courſe with reſpect to bills returned proteſted from India, has been to allow at the rate of 10 s. per pagoda, which includes

(b) Aſhhurſt, J. was abſent.

(c) Winch qui tam v. Fenn, Sitt. after H. 1786, B. R. That was an action for uſury againſt the defendant, who was a country banker living at Sudbury. It appeared on the trial, that the practice was to diſcount bills in London for various correſpondents at Sudbury, and for includes interest, exchange, and all other charges. There cannot, therefore, be any colour for saying that this transaction is usurious.

GROSE, J.—The same doctrine has been confirmed in the court of Common-Pleas; and the line which has been taken is, that, if the sum charged be not a colour or a skreen for usury, but is only fair and reasonable, it ought to be allowed. This is like the case some few years ago, where Indian interest was allowed here on a bond given in India (a).

Rule discharged.

which they had 5 l. per cent. for the time the bills had to run; and they had also 5s. per cent. on the gross sum, without any reference to the time which the bill had to run: this commission had been taken by the defendant on the bills in question, and the jury found a verdict for the defendant under the judge's direction.

(a) Bodily v. Bellamy, 2 Burr. 1094.

VII. For insufficient Damages.

Anonymous. M. 10 W. III. B.R. 2 Salk. 647. New trial, or writ of inquiry, not granted for too small damages, unless where there is a trick. Here the plaintiff intitled to a specific sum, and the jury ought not to give less, except defendant proves something in mitigation.

IN covenant to pay a sum certain, viz. 100 l. and a grant that upon default it should be lawful for the covenantee to enter and take the profits; the defendant pleaded entry and prisal del profits in bar, and judgment was for the plaintiff, upon demurrer, and upon the writ of inquiry the jury gave damages, and upon motion a new writ of inquiry was awarded; for debt might have been brought upon this covenant; and this is not like an issue where the jury are to give no more damages than are proved: but here the jury are to give the whole, unless the defendant proves something in mitigation, which was not done in this case; therefore, the common rule holds, viz. that no new trial, or new writ of inquiry, shall be for too small damages, yet there being a contrivance in this case, it differs. Vide the next case.

Woodford vers. Eades et al. Eas. Tm. 7 Geo. II. 1 Stra. 425. The court set aside verdict for smallness of damages. Vide ante. Anon. Ca. from Salk. 647. The jury mistaken in point of law, in giving nominal damages, where plaintiff was intitled to real damages.

On a contract for stock between the plaintiff and J. S. they each deposit 200 l. in the hands of the defendant, and J. S. not performing his agreement, the plaintiff sues for the deposit, and had judgment on demurrer, and took out a writ of inquiry, and proved his case; but the jury, on a notion that the defendant could not pay out the money without consent of both parties, gave one penny damages; which was now set aside, the court saying, that the rule of not setting aside verdicts for the smallness of the damages, did not extend to this case, where where the jury miſtook in point of law; and the Chief Juſtice ſaid he knew no reaſon why the court ſhould not interpoſe in the other caſe.

Hayward v. Newton. M. 6 Geo. II. B. R. 2 Stra 940.
Verdict not to be ſet aſide for ſmallneſs of damages, where they are uncertain, as in action for words.
Vide ante. Woodford v. Lades.

An action was brought for theſe words ſpoken of the plaintiff as a wine-merchant; "You "are a rogue, villain, and raſcal, and ſell by "ſhort meaſure;" and the jury gave twenty ſhillings damages: and though it was thought a hard caſe, yet the court ſaid it has always been denied to ſet aſide a verdict for ſmallneſs of damages, and therefore denied it in this caſe.

Barker v Sir Wolſton Dixie. 9 Geo. II. B. R. 2 Stra. 1051.
No new trial for ſmallneſs of damages, the ſame being uncertain. A malicious proſecution.
Vide ante Anon. Ca. et Woodford and Eades, et Hayward v. Newton.

In caſe for a malicious proſecution of an indictment for felony, the jury found for the plaintiff, and gave five ſhillings damages. And upon motion for a new trial, on account of the ſmallneſs of damages, the court held there could be no new trial on that account: for this was not a falſe verdict, as finding for the defendant would be, and would ſubject them to an attaint; whereas they having found rightly for the plaintiff, no attaint would lie. And new trials came in the room only of attaints, as a more expeditious and eaſy remedy.

Lord G——r v. Heath. T. 13 Geo. II. C. P. Barnes 445.
In Scan. Mag. tho' only 12 d. damages given, the court refuſed to ſet aſide the verdict.

This was an action upon the ſtatute of Scan. Mag. for the following words ſpoken of the plaintiff; G—d—m my Lord G——r, he is a rogue, and all on his ſide are rogues: if the mob would ſtand by me, I'd drive them all, or lay the town in heaps. The words were proved upon the trial, notwithſtanding which the jury only found twelve-pence damages. Darnal, for plaintiff moved to ſet aſide the verdict, by reaſon of the ſmallneſs of the damages; but not being able to produce any inſtance of a verdict's being ſet aſide, merely for that reaſon, though for exceſſive damages verdicts have been frequently

frequently ſet aſide, and in point of reaſon there is the ſame cauſe for ſetting aſide one as the other; yet as the difference hath been always taken, and practice long ſettled, per cur. we can make no rule.

Tutton v. Andrews. T. 14 & 15 Geo. II. C.P. Barnes 448. Inquiſition ſet aſide, and new inquiry granted, the ſheriff having admitted defendant to give improper evidence, whereby the damages were leſſened.

The ſheriff, on the execution of a writ of inquiry of damages, admitted improper evidence to be given by defendant, whereby the damages were leſſened; the court ordered the inquiſition to be ſet aſide, and gave plaintiff leave to execute a new writ of inquiry. A notion has prevailed, that where damages are exceſſive, a new trial, &c. may be granted; but not where damages are leſs than they ought to be, though there is as much reaſon for a new trial, &c. in the one caſe as the other. Burnett, for plaintiff; Gapper, for defendant.

Ruſſell v. Ball, in aſſumpſit E. 18 Geo. II. Barnes 455. Money paid into court. Plaintiff did not take it out. Tried cauſe. Recovered only ſum paid in. Motion to ſet aſide verdict on two grounds. 1ſt, One of the jury ſummoned did not appear, but his ſon, who was ſworn. 2d, Damages too ſmall. Verdict ſet aſide on the firſt ground, not on the ſecond, this being a caſe of uncertain damages.

Defendant paid twenty-five pounds into court on the common rule; plaintiff refuſed to accept the money, proceeded to trial; and on a full hearing of the merits, had a verdict for 25 l. the exact ſum paid into court; in conſequence whereof, plaintiff, not having recovered more, was, by the rule, liable to pay coſts to defendant; to avoid which, plaintiff moved to ſet aſide the verdict, objecting, that the cauſe was tried by eleven jurors only. It appeared that one John Pearce, ſummoned on the jury, did not appear, but his ſon of the ſame name, not qualified, attended the aſſizes, and when the father was drawn, and called, anſwered for him, and was ſworn on the jury.

Plaintiff alſo objected to the ſmallneſs of the damages found. Per cur'. Attaint will not lie againſt jurors for finding too ſmall damages. Where a demand is certain, as by promiſſory note, the court will ſet aſide a verdict for too

ſmall

ſmall damages, but not where the damages are uncertain; as in this caſe, for curing a wound. But the verdict by eleven jurors only is no verdict; it is null and void.

Rule abſolute to ſet aſide the verdict, without coſts. Vide Norman againſt Beaumont, Mich. 18 Geo. II. Poſt IX, (4.)

Belfield, for plaintiff;

Draper, for defendant.

Qu. If a caſe, nearly ſimilar, hath not lately been determined in B. R. contra. Here were 12 jurors.

Hibbert and others againſt Carter. E. 27 Geo. III. B. R. Durnford and Eaſt 1 V. 745. The indorſement and delivery of a bill of lading to a creditor, primâ facie conveys the whole property in the goods from the time of its delivery. But if the intention of the parties appears to have been only to bind the net proceeds in caſe of the arrival of the goods, then an inſurance made on account of the indorſer, after ſuch indorſement, is good. This a queſtion of law, how much plaintiff was intitled to, and the motion was to ſet aſide the verdict, for that the jury, as plaintiff contended, had given him much leſs than he was intitled unto.

This was an action upon a policy of inſurance on goods, on board the ſhip Devonſhire, at and from Jamaica to London, which inſurance was ſtated upon the head of the policy to be made "on account of Robert Kerr, eſq; The plaintiffs were merchants in London, and the general conſignees of Kerr, who was a planter in the iſland of Jamaica. They were in the conſtant habit of procuring inſurance upon his goods, as ſoon as they received advice of their being ſhipped. On the 2d of December, 1782, the plaintiffs received advice from Kerr of having ſhipped ten hogſheads of ſugar on board the Devonſhire, in which letter, dated 18th of October, 1782, was contained a general direction to inſure whatever goods were ſhipped by him. The inſurance was immediately effected, but in the month of November, between the time when the order was ſent, and the time when the defendant ſubſcribed the policy, Kerr had indorſed the bill of lading to one Dellpratt, in Jamaica, to whom there was an arrear of intereſt due upon mortgage on Kerr's eſtate in that iſland. The plaintiffs had notice of this indorſement, after the inſurance was made, by a letter from Kerr to them, wherein wherein he informed them, that he had been obliged to aſſign the bills of lading for the net proceeds to Dellprat. The bill of lading, as it originally ſtood, expreſſed the ſugars to be ſhipped on account and riſk of the ſhipper, and directed the delivery to his order, or that of his aſſigns: the indorſment was in the following terms; "deliver the above ſugars to Mr. "John Hodgſon, for account of S. Dellprat;" ſigned "Robert Kerr." The ſhip was loſt in the courſe of the voyage.

At the trial of this cauſe at the laſt ſittings at Guildhall, before Buller, J. the plaintiffs reſted their caſe here, and contended that upon theſe facts they were entitled to a verdict for the amount of the inſurance. On the other hand it was objected, that Kerr, having aſſigned the bill of lading before the inſurance was actually effected, the averment in the declaration that theſe ſugars had been inſured on his account was not true, for he had not then any inſurable interest remaining in him, the entire property in the goods having paſſed out of him by the aſſignment of the bill of lading, which operated in this inſtance as a payment; and Buller, J. being of this opinion, upon the general ground that the indorſement of a bill of lading paſſed the whole property, would have non-ſuited the plaintiffs; but it appearing that the defendant had neglected to pay the premium of twenty guineas into court, the plaintiffs took a verdict for that ſum.

Upon a motion on the part of the plaintiffs in this term for a new trial, Erſkine and Eaſt contended that the verdict ought to have been taken for the whole ſum inſured. The indorſement of the bill of lading only bound the conſignment of the goods in England,

England, and cannot be taken to have transferred the whole property out of the consigner in the mean time. He was answerable again to Dellprat for the amount of the sugars, in case they did not arrive safe; the bill of lading was put into his hands merely as a collateral security for the debt; he was only to receive the net proceeds; and therefore it cannot be said to be a payment upon the spot, for it is not certain what the net proceeds will be. If so, there did remain an insurable interest in the consigner, for he was to run the risk of the voyage. The case of Caldwell and Ball (a) went no farther than to determine that the indorsement of a bill of lading bound the consignment.

(a) Durnford and East. 1 V. 205. Vide ante V.

The principal dispute between the parties was, who should get the consignments of an estate in the West-Indies. It is evident from the very terms of this bill of lading, that the risk of the voyage was to be run by the shipper; for, upon the face of it, the goods are expressed to be shipped "on account" and "at the risk of the shipper;" and the indorsement only directing the delivery to be "on account" of another person, leaves the risk as it was before. But, admitting that by the general law, the indorsement of a bill of lading does transfer the whole property out of the consigner, yet the consigner may recover from the underwriter, as a trustee for the person really entitled. This doctrine seemed to be admitted in the case of Delaney and Stoddart (b), which was stronger than the present; for there, there had been an actual sale of the ship insured between the time of sending the order for insurance, and the time when the insurance was actually effected; and there, the action was

(b) Durnford and East. 1 V. 22.

was held to be ſuſtainable againſt the underwriter, in the name of the vender, though in reality for the benefit of the vendee; ſo here, perhaps, the inducement for taking the bill of lading, if it is to be conſidered as an abſolute transfer of the property, was the idea of ſecurity, from the goods being inſured.

The court, however, upon this occaſion, were clearly all of opinion, that where a bill of lading is taken by a creditor, as a ſecurity for his debt, on his own account, the whole property paſſes by the delivery, and is to be conſidered as a ſatisfaction of the debt pro tanto. That the parties were always at liberty to vary from the general rule, by entering into any particular agreement between themſelves; but that muſt be ſhewn, in order to take advantage of it. They conſidered the caſe of Caldwell and Ball as deciding the general queſtion. And as to the caſe of Delaney and Stoddart, there was an agreement that the policy ſhould be transferred.

Vide ante V.

They therefore refuſed the rule.

But afterwards, on a ſubſequent day, the motion was renewed, by leave of the court, on an affidavit ſtating the particular tranſaction between the parties.

That Kerr had no intention whatever of paſſing the whole property by the indorſement of the bill of lading; his intention being no more than to bind the conſignment of the goods in England; to which purpoſe he had ordered his correſpondents to pay the net proceeds to Dellprat, as appears by the letter before-mentioned; and that ſince that time Kerr's executor had actually accounted to Dellprat again for the amount of the ſugars which had been loſt, a demand a demand having been made on them to that purpofe.

A rule was now granted to fhew caufe why there fhould not be a new trial; which was afterwards made abfolute, without hearing either fide (a).

Verdict for the plaintiffs (b).

(a) The caufe came on to be tried a fecond time at the fittings after Eafter term, at Guildhall, when, the fame clear evidence of the intention of the parties being given, as had been fet forth in the affidavit laid before the court, Mr. Juftice Buller, was of opinion, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the amount of the infurance. He faid the general doctrine was clear, that the indorfement of a bill of lading primâ facie transferred the whole property in the goods, but this was fubject to be controlled by the evident intention of the parties. Here advice was fent by the configner to his correfpondents at home, that he had been obliged to give the bill of lading to Dellprat, for the net proceeds, and the amount of the goods was actually accounted for again by Kerr's executors to Dellprat, after the lofs was known. And befides, what was material to be obferved, no value had been put upon the goods at the time, which fhewed that Dellprat was only to have the net proceeds.

(b) Vide Godin v. the London Affurance Company. Vide ante, L. E. 197.

VIII. Re-

VIII. Refusing of Evidence by, or Mis-direction, or Non-direction of the Judge.

Vide post IX. (12.) (a.) Rex v. Amery; and IX. (16.) Buckley v. Buckley.

Bignall v. Devenish. M. 3 Ann. B.R. 6 Mo. 242. The judge refusing legal evidence.

Per cur. Good cause of new trial, where the judge, who tried the cause, has denied to admit that for evidence, which was legal evidence.

Thomkins v. Hill, M. 1 An. B.R. 7 Mod. 64. Judge allowing or over-ruling evidence, which he ought not to have done.

It was agreed by the court, that if any judge of nisi prius allow, or over-rule evidence which he ought not to have done, upon application to the court, they will grant a new trial; for all writs of nisi prius, are under the control of the court out of which they issue.

Anon. M. 1 An. B.R. Salk. 649. S.P. Farell. 53, 64. v. 6 Mod. 222, 242. Mis-direction.

A new trial shall be granted, if the judge of nisi prius mis-direct the jury, because those trials are subject to the inspection of the court, per Holt, C. J.

Taylor, Clerk, v. Walker. Pas. 1729. Excheq. Bunb. 267. Upon an issue to try a modus of 3 s. 4 d. for five closes, it appeared in evidence, it extended to two more. New trial granted, because the judge mis-directed the jury.

Bill was preferred by the plaintiff, as rector of Checkley, in the county of Stafford, for tithes of five closes in that parish, in the defendant's possession.

The defendant by his answer, insisted, that there was a modus of three shillings and fourpence, in lieu of all tithes arising on the five closes, and that no tithes in kind were ever paid: upon the hearing the court directed an issue to try the modus, and upon the trial it appeared in evidence, that this modus was payable payable not only for the five closes, but two closes more particularly named; Mr. Justice Probyn, upon this evidence (at Stafford) directed the jury, who accordingly gave a verdict for the plaintiff against the modus. Now, upon the return of the postea, it was moved for a new trial; for that this being an issue to inform the conscience of the court, the defendant ought not to be held so strictly to proof, especially, since no proof of tithes in kind being paid was given; and therefore, though it extended to two closes more, yet it was less than really the prescription was, which he insisted on, and therefore he ought to have had the benefit of the proof, as to five closes only. For the plaintiff it was insisted, that a modus ought to be certain, being in bar of common right, and therefore he has failed in the defence he insisted on; and Mr. Justice Probyn's opinion, as certified by Baron Hale, was relied on: but per totam curiam, a new trial was granted: and they said they could not distinguish this from the case of a prohibition, and cited these cases; Hetley 111. 1 Vent. 32. Hob. 64. 1 Sho. 347. 4 Mod. 89. Carth. 89. Cro. Eliz. 531, 722.

Selman v. Courtney. T. 13 and 14 Geo. II. Baines 446. In trespass, defendant pleaded not guilty, and would have given evidence that the locus in quo was the king's highway. The judge refused to admit the evidence. Verdict for plaintiff. Motion for new trial, but refused. Majority

This was an action of trespass, quare clausum fregit. Defendant pleaded not guilty; and upon the trial before Mr. Baron Carter, defendant offered to give in evidence, that the place in which, &c. was the king's highway; but the judge refused to admit that evidence to be given, and plaintiff recovered a verdict. Defendant moved for a new trial, and a rule to shew cause was granted, on payment of costs. Upon shewing cause, several cases were cited on both sides. And it being said, that some judges in the circuit had been of different opinions, with respect to this point, the court thought it a matter of so much consequence, that it was proper to be considered by all the judges. After a consultation, the Chief Justice declared it to be the opinion of a great majority of the judges, that an highway ought not to be given in evidence under the general issue; but ought to be pleaded specially; and the rule to shew cause was discharged.

Majority of the judges of opinion such evidence could not be given upon the general issue.

Skinner and Prime, for plaintiff; Belfield and Urlin, for defendant.

Cases cited for plaintiff, Watson against Sparks, 1 Salk. 287. Sid. 106. Doct. Placitandi 197. Crogate's case, 8 Co. 66. b. 1 Inst. 303. b. 5 C. 805. 6 Mod. 66.

For defendant, James against Hayward, Cro. Car. 184. Morse against Bennett, 9 G. B. R. 2 Ventris 297. and in Shower.

Absolon against Knight and Barber, in replevin. E. 16 Geo. II. Barnes 450. Avowry for rent, in arrear, and issue thereon, with a notice of set-off. The judge rejected the evidence. Verdict for avowant. Motion for new trial, refused, the evidence being properly rejected.

Avowry for rent in arrear, and issue thereon. Plaintiff had given notice with his plea in bar, to set off a mutual debt against the rent, and offered to give evidence of it at last Berks assises, before Mr. Justice Denison, who refused to admit the same. The question was, whether such evidence ought to have been received or not? And the court were of opinion, that such evidence was properly rejected. This case is neither within the letter nor the intention of the statute. The issue is special and not general. It is not an action upon a personal contract. The rent savours of the realty, and the remedy is by distress. Replevin is a mixed action. The judgment, if for the avowant, must be a return of the cattle. To take the benefit of the statute, plaintiff and defendant must plead properly. In debt on bond, defendant cannot set off under non est factum, or solvit ad diem; but must plead specially.

Qu. If a set-off could have been pleaded in this case.

ſpecially. Perhaps by way of ſpecial plea to the avowry, plaintiff might have pleaded a mutual debt of more than the rent. There could not have been a ſet-off by defendants under non cepit; nor can there be for plaintiff under riens in arrere. The rule to ſtay the entry of judgment upon the verdict for the avowants was diſcharged. Belſfield and Agar, for plaintiff; Skinner, for avowants.

This matter came before the court, upon a motion for a new trial, on the ground of a miſ-direction by the judge who tried the cauſe.

It was an action upon the caſe, upon an indebitatus aſſumpſit, brought by the plaintiffs againſt the defendants, for monies had and received by the defendants, to the uſe of the plaintiffs, as aſſignees of the bankrupt: to which the defendants pleaded the general iſſue, "that they did not undertake, &c." and iſſue was joined thereon.

The cauſe was tried at the Lancaſter aſſiſes, before Mr. Juſtice Noel. A verdict was found for the plaintiffs: and the judge declared himſelf ſatisfied with the verdict.

It was admitted at the trial, on the part of the defendants, "that Satterthwaite was a "trader:" the debt of the petitioning creditor was alſo admitted, and ſo were the commiſſion and the aſſignment; but they diſputed the act of bankruptcy ſuppoſed to have been committed by Satterthwaite.

The action was brought for money ariſing from the ſale of goods, conſigned by Satterthwaite to the defendants, as FACTORS for him, (which they had long been,) and ſold by them as ſuch; which money was admitted to be in the hands of the defendants, and amounted to 5314 l. 17 s. 9½ d.

Monday, 11th February, 1760. Foxcroft et al. aſſignees of William Satterthwaite, a bankrupt, v. Devonſhire et al. H. 33 G. II. B. R. 2 Burr 931. Defendants factors to the bankrupt, had the goods conſigned to them. Sold the goods and paid money upon the bankrupt's drafts. Action for money had and received, claiming all the money ariſing from the ſale, except commiſſion and charges. Defendants claimed allowance for money paid, &c. A ſecret act of bankruptcy proved by plaintiff, which over-reached conſignment and ſale. Defendants contended they had not notice of the act of bankruptcy, and inſiſted on their claim under 19 Geo. II. c. 32. Plaintiff contended tended the transaction, as to payments, &c. was fraudulent, and therefore defendants precluded from entering into the merits, &c.

The

The judge left it to the jury upon the preliminary point of fraud, who found the transaction fraudulent; upon this defendants moved for a new trial. Court of opinion the conclusion drawn by the jury was wrong.
New trial granted.

The defendants, on the other hand, had paid several sums of money upon Satterthwaite's drafts, and otherwise, to his use, and upon his account.

The plaintiffs at the trial, proved some secret acts of bankruptcy, by his being denied to his creditors about Christmas, 1751: after which, he appeared again publicly as usual, 'till about the month of August following; (as was proved on the part of the defendants.) In August, 1752, he totally stopt payment: and thereupon, the commission was taken out; these secret acts of bankruptcy, at Christmas, 1751, over-reached the consignment to the defendants, the sale, and the time when the money was advanced by them to the use and order of the bankrupt. And the counsel for the plaintiffs produced a series * of letters from the defendants to Satterthwaite, which fully proved, as they alledged, "that the defendants were "privy to his insolvency at the time when they "advanced the money to his use and order."

* See these letters verbatim, p. [illegible]t.

The counsel for the defendants would, at the trial, have entered into the two following points; viz. 1st, Whether the defendants were not intitled, as FACTORS for Satterthwaite, to retain for the general balance of their account: 2dly, Whether they were not within the protection of the statute of 19 G. II. c. 32. §. 1. which, after reciting "that bankrupts frequently commit secret acts of bankruptcy "unknown to their creditors, and other persons with whom, in the course of trade, "they have dealings and transactions; and "after the committing thereof, continue to appear publicly and carry on their trade and "dealings, &c. and after reciting that the "permitting such secret acts of bankruptcy,

"to

"to avoid and defeat payments really and "bonâ fide made in the cases, and under the "circumstances before-mentioned, where the "persons receiving the same had NOT notice of "or were privy to such person's having com-"mitted any act of bankruptcy, would be "a great discouragement to trade and com-"merce, and a prejudice to credit in general;" enacts, "that no person who shall be really "and bonâ fide a creditor of any bankrupt, for "or in respect of any bill or bills of exchange, "really and bonâ fide drawn, negotiated, or "accepted, by such bankrupt, in the usual "and ordinary course of trade and dealing, shall "be liable to refund or repay to the assignees of "such bankrupt's estate, any money which be-"fore the suing forth of such commission was "really and bonâ fide and in the usual and ordi-"nary course of trade and dealing, received by "such person of any such bankrupt, before such "time as the person receiving the same shall "know, understand, or have notice that HE is "become a bankrupt, or that HE is in insolvent "circumstances."

But the counsel for the plaintiffs objected, "that this transaction of the defendants was "FRAUDULENT; for that they plainly knew "and were apprized that Satterthwaite was "insolvent at the time when the effects came to "their hands."

The jury were of this opinion; and gave a verdict for the plaintiffs, for the whole money, except commission and charges of sale.

This previous point concerning the FRAUD having been strongly insisted upon by the counsel for the plaintiffs, at the trial, the counsel for the defendants were thereby precluded from entering into other points, which they thought to be material for their clients, and which they said they were otherwise ready to have entered into at that time. Upon this preclusion they grounded their present motion for a new trial: for they alledged that the jury had founded their verdict upon wrong conclusions drawn from the evidence, and upon a mistake of the law; and that the defendants had been unjustly precluded from entering into the two preceding points, or any thing else that might have been material to their defence.

 to

And they now insisted, 1st, That the defendants had a GENERAL lien, as factors, upon the bankrupt's goods consigned to them; 2dly, that they were purchasers of them for a valuable consideration, without notice that Satterthwaite was become a bankrupt, or in insolvent circumstances; 3dly, That in this action (upon an indebitatus assumpsit,) it is not in the power of the assignees, to affirm the contract in part, and deny it in part; but if they affirm it in part, they affirm it in toto. Now here, they do affirm it in part; they affirm part of their conduct, as factors: therefore they cannot disaffirm the rest of their conduct as factors.

They said that the present verdict would not stand in their way; because FRAUD is a conclusion of LAW, from facts: and therefore the court, and not the jury, are the proper judges "what facts do import fraud," and "what facts do not import fraud." And they denied that the letters, or any part of the facts given in evidence were at all unfair: at least, it could never be said, "that they supported a conclusion of fraud."

This case was argued on Thursday, 24th January last, by Mr. Norton, for the plaintiffs, who shewed cause against setting aside the verdict and granting a new trial, upon payment of costs; and by Mr. Winn, e contra, for the defendants, who had moved for a new trial.

The court having taken time to consider it, Lord MANSFIELD now delivered their resolution.

This matter came before the court, upon a motion for a new trial, on the ground of a misdirection by the judge who tried the cause.

It was an action upon the case upon an indebitatus assumpsit, for monies had and received by the defendants, to the use of the plaintiffs, as assignees of the bankrupt. The defendants pleaded the general issue, and the cause was tried at Lancaster assises, before Mr. Justice Noel.

It was admitted at the trial, that Satterthwaite, the bankrupt, was a trader: and the debt of the petitioning creditor, the commission, and the assignment, were likewise all admitted.

The action was brought for monies arising from the sale of goods which had been consigned by the bankrupt to the defendants, as factors for him, and sold by them as such; which money was admitted to be in the defendants hands, and amounted to 5314l. 17s. 9½d.

It appeared that the defendants had paid several sums of money to Satterthwaite's use, upon bills drawn upon them by him, and otherwise.

The plaintiffs (the assignees under the commission) proved some SECRET acts of bankruptcy to have been committed by Satterthwaite, about Christmas, 1751; namely, his being denied to his creditors. On the other side, it was proved that he soon appeared again publicly as usual; and continued to do so, 'till about the month of August following, (1752); but in August, 1752, he stopt payment, and thereupon the commission was taken out.

 of

These secret acts of bankruptcy, committed at Christmas, 1751, over-reached the consignment of the goods, the sale of them, the receipt of the monies for which they were sold, and likewise the time when the defendants advanced the monies, to the use and order of the bankrupt.

It was insisted by the counsel for the defendants, that from the nature of the present action, an indebitatus assumpsit, the defendants, being FACTORS, ought to be allowed not only for their commission and all charges and expences, but also whatever money they had paid on account OF BILLS drawn upon them by Satterthwaite: and that the plaintiffs in this action could only recover the BALANCE of the general account.

The counsel for the plaintiffs admitted that the defendants were intitled to be allowed their commission and all charges and expences, as factors: but not the bills of exchange drawn by Satterthwaite, which they had paid subsequent to the act of bankruptcy.

This question was agreed to be reserved, (if it should be necessary to have recourse to it,) as a point for the future consideration and determination of the judge who tried the cause.

But the counsel for the plaintiffs insisted on a preliminary point; viz. "That the defendants were guilty of a FRAUD, in paying these bills of exchange drawn upon them by the bankrupt:" which preliminary point of FRAUD was sufficient to destroy any right that the defendants might otherwise claim (supposing the transaction had not been fraudulent,) to an allowance of the money paid in discharge of them;

and,

and, consequently, to preclude them from entering at all into the question above-mentioned. For if it should be admitted on the part of the plaintiffs, "that this action of indebitatus "assumpsit affirmed the contract," yet if their payment of the bills was fraudulent, it would at once put an end to their claim of an allowance of the money as fraudulently paid. They granted, that, in case the defendants should appear not to have been guilty of any fraud, but to have paid the bills fairly and honestly, they would then have a right to enter into the point reserved (as above) for future consideration.

But they insisted that, upon supposition that in a common case, this sort of action would confirm the contract, so as to make the consignment, sale, and payment of the bills, to be considered as before any act of bankruptcy committed, and, consequently, that the defendants would be intitled to retain what they had paid upon the bills; (for every thing that could be alledged by the defendants, must, pro hac vice, be admitted, upon a previous bar to their going into the question;) yet the bar of FRAUD would destroy any demand they could have upon that account.

And the FRAUD which they charged upon the defendants was this, "That they were "PRIVY to Satterthwaite's insolvency, at the "time when they advanced the monies to dis- "charge his bills."

Upon this preliminary point only, OF FRAUD, it was left to the jury: and, upon this point only, they found their verdict. Upon hearing all the evidence, they were of opinion, "That "the transaction was fraudulent on the part "of the defendants;" and they gave a verdict for the plaintiffs, for the whole money, deducting only the commission due to the defendants, and the expences of the sale of the goods.

dict

Though the ground of the verdict should be wrong, yet if it clearly appeared to us now, "that, upon the whole, no injustice had been "done to the defendants;" or if it clearly appeared to us now, "that the plaintiffs, by "another form of action, could recover all they "have got by this verdict;" we think the court ought not to grant a new trial. But if injustice be done to the defendants, by the present verdict, and if it be not certain and clear "that the plaintiffs might have equal redress, "and recover as much by another form of ac-"tion," then we ought to grant a new trial.

Two points have been argued, and urged on the part of the plaintiffs.

First collateral point.

1st, That clearly the defendants were not to be allowed to retain for the bills: because, (1st,) They were not paid 'till after an act of bankruptcy; (2dly,) This action (of indebitatus assumpsit) only admits the sale of the goods, and nothing else, but the agency of the defendants in that single respect; and, (3dly,) If it admitted every thing, so as to put the assignees in the very condition the bankrupt would have been, had he brought this action, yet a factor has no lien for items of a * general account, (his lien being confined to his commission and expences about the particular goods.)

* Vide 1 Burr. 494.

These points have not been at all considered in this action: and, therefore, it is enough if they are doubtful. They went off upon the preliminary question of the fraud being taken up and pursued, and were never afterwards taken

taken into any further consideration at the trial.

We are not clear that this action of indebitatus assumpsit does not affirm the power of the bankrupt and the contract, throughout the whole transaction. Where such an action is brought by assignees of a bankrupt's effects against a vendee of goods, it affirms the sale, and also the payment to the bankrupt of any part of the price. It is agreed here, that it admits. the consequence of the defendants being factors, and allows a lien for commission and expences.

" That a factor has also a lien upon goods " consigned, (whilst they remain in his possession) for ITEMS of a general account with " his principal," has been solemnly * determined. However, the present case differs from the case of Krutzer v. Wilcocks, where it was so determined: for there, the factor remained in possession of the goods; but here the goods have been sold, and turned into money. In such a case, there never was a doubt but that mutual items of account might be set off; the demand and recovery can only be for the balance. Therefore it is impossible to say, that the question the defendants would have made upon this point, had they been permitted, may not be very material. And if it might have been material to their defence, they have a right to have it tried and considered.

* In the case of Krutzer v. Wilcocks.

Second collateral point.

2dly, Another matter gone into at the trial, and urged by the counsel for the plaintiffs, was, " That, in an action of TROVER, the " plaintiffs might certainly recover the value " of the GOODS, without making any allowance."

Mr.

Mr. Winn convinced me, that it would depend upon a variety of circumstances, (some of which he offered to lay before us by affidavit,) which were not gone into at the trial, because the counsel for the defendants were stopped and cut short, by the preliminary bar of the fraud, which was alone sufficient to invalidate their claims as upon a fair transaction.

I do not choose to say more particularly what may possibly assist the defendants in an action of trover, because I would not prejudice the matter: it is enough to say, " it does " not sufficiently appear to us, that they could " make no defence to an action of trover."

Principal point.

This makes it necessary to examine the GROUND of the verdict, which proceeded from the direction given.

I will admit, " that the evidence proved " the fact, and every conclusion deducible " from it:" but I cannot think that the fact so proved, or conclusion so drawn, amounts to that offence which the law calls FRAUD, to avoid the debt. And in examining this matter, we must remember, that, pro hac vice, the whole transaction is admitted to be before any act of bankruptcy.

Mr. Norton rightly said, " that fraud is " sometimes mere matter of fact; and sometimes, the conclusion of law from facts."

So is high treason. Levying war is mere matter of fact: compassing the death of the king, is a legal conclusion from facts. So it is almost as to every other offence.

Fraud often is a mere fact; as when it depends (as on a policy of insurance, for instance,) upon what the party said or did; or it may be, and often is, a question of law.

Suppose

Suppose a creditor, knowing a trader likely to break, conceals it from the knowledge of other creditors, 'till he gets, even by threats of legal process, payment of his debt before any direct act of bankruptcy, and the assignees should insist this was a fraud, and that he should refund: this is a matter of law; and the law would say "that this was not fraudulent."

Suppose a man, bonâ fide, lends money to a trader upon a mortgage, after an act of bankruptcy without notice, and then knowing of the commission of bankrupt and assignment, gets in an old term, even for little or no consideration, and the assignees bring an ejectment, and it becomes a question, "whether "this be a fraud, or not;" this is a matter of law: and the law will say "it is no fraud;" for the mortgagee had a right to do this.

The evidence of fraud in this case, as stated by the report, are the following letters:—The first is dated Bristol, 5th May, 1752, signed "Devonshire and Reeves," and directed to William Satterthwaite.

"We wish you had been open, and told us "in time how your affairs stood.—It appears "to us very evidently, you have risqued your "reputation and credit on the faith of those "S. Do but consider where you must have "been in point of reputation, had we done otherwise than we did.—It is now over; "and we will not do any thing that should lessen your credit—therefore ship not an "ounce of goods more, 'till your affairs are "settled."

The next letter is dated Bristol, 15th May, 1752, signed "Devonshire and Reeves," and directed to William Satterthwaite, merchant in Bristol,

Briſtol, and contains the following paſſage:—
"We cannot help being uneaſy to think you "have drawn on us again for 120 l. Really
"you will make us let your bills go back
"proteſted, in ſpight of our inclinations. We "will pay this; but take notice—don't draw
"another: we friendly hint it."

The next letter is dated 25th June, ſigned and directed as above, and is thus:—"Wil- "liam Satterthwaite, eſteemed friend—We "really fear theſe proceedings will greatly hurt
"your credit in the eyes of every judicious
"perſon: it is very natural to think that will "be the conſequence. For our part, we "would make a thouſand ſhifts, rather than "trifle with our reputation, as you do with
"your's—it's a matter well worth your ſe-
"rious conſideration.

"P.S. Incloſed we return you Liebenrood's "draft 150 l. which, with one ſhilling poſt-
"age, place to our credit. This is ſuch a "thing we never did before, nor ever will
"again."

The next letter is dated 27th June, 1752, ſigned as before, and directed to William Satterthwaite. After referring to the laſt, it goes on thus—"In this laſt letter, thee mentioned
"nothing of remitting for Liebenrood's bill,
"which thee ordered us to ſend for from Lon- "don four days before due, (which we did,
"and returned thee in our laſt,) though thee
"promiſed us faithfully to remit for the ſame,
"laſt ſixth day was a week, and having had
"ſundry letters that take no notice thereabout,
"we cannot help thinking and ſaying that "thee trifles with thy creditors and us. We "are ſo much in want of money as thee canſt
"poſſibly be; and had we thought thee wouldſt

have

" have treated us in this manner, we would " not have advanced one quarter of the sum,
" to be allowed 10 l. per cent. The disap" pointment to us gives more uneasiness than
" all the profits of a year's trade will do us."

The next letter is dated 14th July, the same year, and signed as before; and is as follows:— " William Satterthwaite, Esteemed Friend, So " much for your affairs in and under our care, " which shall be managed with all care and " frugality.

" But what next we say, appears to us in a " very odd light—For Edward Wilcox has been " with us, and says you have made over our " goods on the Sarah and Martha. If true, " gives us such ideas that we dare not put pen " to paper to say our sentiments. If you send " us any more bills—if ever we do return a " bill, we will return your's."

The next letter is the 28th July, the same year, signed as before, and is as follows:— " William Satterthwaite, — The Sarah and " Martha, your ¾ths. The Carolina, how " much? Tell us: for you must secure us, by " a bill of sale of each,—that is your parts— " unless you send here some security.—Say, " your father Moss—join in a bond, or some " good man. Claimants will call upon us, " for their proportions of cargoes we have " sold; as Touchetts did of the rice. We are " willing to stand by you as far as we can with " prudence: but an undoubted counter-security " we must have—we dread the consequences of " these repeated strokes—we very much sus- " pect, you have not the money—we must have " your affairs cleared up. Whatever you are, we " are almost broken-hearted, to see how you are " going on, and have of late. And what will be " the

"the consequence, if you are worth 3000l.?
"We know, and have seen, the consequence
"elsewhere."

Some vague suspicions beside, have been mentioned at the bar, by the counsel for the plaintiffs: as, that they were all of them Quakers, and endeavouring to play into each others hands, to the prejudice of Satterthwaite's other creditors; that Satterthwaite had broke before; that all the bills were after May; (which the other side denies.)

But as I proceed upon allowing the evidence to prove the conclusions contended for, it is only necessary to examine what those conclusions are. The report says, "that a false cre-"dit was given the bankrupt;" i. e. he would have broke openly, unless they had lent him money. The counsel for the plaintiff say, the defendants lent him money to keep him from failing, 'till his ships and goods might come home, consigned to themselves, or even to the bankrupt's own hands: whereas, if a commission had issued before that time, the assignees would have had them.

It was left to the jury, that if they believed, from the evidence, that the defendants knew, or understood, the bankrupt's circumstances to be insolvent at the time they paid his bills, they might find against him, upon the ground of FRAUD. And they found in the affirmative.

Had the question turned upon the validity of a payment made after an act of bankruptcy committed, within the act of 19 G. II. c. 32.* (which was one of the points made at the trial,) the direction would have been quite agreeable to the terms of that act. But, as the question was, "Whether, supposing the whole "transaction before any act of bankruptcy "com-

* Vide §. 1.

"committed, the defendants were to be ex"cluded from claiming satisfaction for the "money they had advanced upon Satter-
"thwaite's bills, by reason of their fraud in "advancing it;"—we are all of opinion,
"that the direction was a MISTAKE."

It is NO fraud for a factor, knowing the circumstances of his principal to be desperate, and believing that he must break unless he can procure credit, to advance money upon his bills, to save him from an immediate failure. On the contrary, it is an honourable, friendly, and generous act. No prejudice can arise but to the lender himself. He may lose the whole, or the greatest part of the money so advanced: but the principal's estate, if he breaks, is by so much a gainer, or some particular creditors, to whom this money has been paid, are gainers. If, by this assistance, the principal has the good luck to stand his ground, he and all his creditors are benefitted: but none of his creditors can suffer by the advancement of money to their debtor. Many beneficial instances of this kind have saved the most considerable houses from ruin.

If the factor trusts that effects of his principal will come over from abroad, consigned to him, by which means he may acquire a lien upon them for his reimbursement, the factor's conduct is a little more prudent; but still it is free from all colour of fraud. It is the usual method of dealing between principals and factors in good credit; the latter advances money upon the faith of consignments: but when a factor, knowing his principal to be in great distress, and in immediate danger of failing, advances money upon the faith "that

 "effects

" effects beyond sea will come over consigned
" to him," he acts meritoriously.

The richest man in trade may be ruined, while his effects are abroad, and not in his own power, to answer immediate demands upon him, (which was the case of the Woodwards, who could not save themselves from failing, though they had sufficient to pay 30 s. in the pound.) But the factor may actually save him by this assistance, 'till they come home: and yet the factor himself runs a great risque, and trusts to a precarious security. For the goods may in fact be consigned originally to another; or the consignment to him may be countermanded; they may be sold; they may be mortgaged, or burnt, or lost, and never come into his possession so as to give him any lien: and it appears by the letters that have been read, that, in this very case, Satterthwaite unworthily made over to other persons part of the goods to which the defendants had trusted for their security.

A mortgage of ships abroad, or of cargoes upon the high seas, by a trader, to any body, is good, notwithstanding the clause in 21 Jac. I. c. 19. * though possession has not been actually delivered: for a bill of sale is all the possession that can be delivered, 'till the ship comes home.

* Sect. 11th.

There scarce happens a bankruptcy, in which it does not appear that a fictitious credit has been acquired by drawing and redrawing bills of exchange, and by accepting and indorsing promissory notes: yet there never was a doubt, but that the persons lending their names, by which they render themselves at last liable, may come in as creditors. The case of a man who has actually paid his money to ſupport the credit of another, is infinitely ſtronger than that of lending a name only, without advancing any money at all.

There cannot be a greater paradox, than that a man ſhould be guilty of a fraud, in lending his money with no other proſpect but the chance of being repaid it.

Of lending money to traders known to be in dubious circumſtances.

A notion, " that lending money to traders, " knowing them to be in dubious, tottering, " or diſtreſſed circumſtances, upon mort- " gages or liens, is fraudulent; and, conſe- " quently, the contract void in caſe a bank- " ruptcy enſues;" would throw all mercantile dealing into inextricable confuſion. Men lend their money to traders upon mortgages or conſignments of goods, becauſe they ſuſpect their circumſtances, and will not run the riſque of their general credit.

Though we have all been clearly of opinion, that no concluſion attempted to be drawn from the evidence in this caſe, allowing it to be true, amounted, in point of law, to the offence of fraud, and a forfeiture of the debt on that account; yet I have ſo great a regard for the authority of my brother Noel, (whoſe knowledge and experience is as great, and his opinion of as much weight, as any man's, both in courts of law and equity,) that I was deſirous to talk the matter fully over with him; which I have done.

He ſays, the point upon which the defendants caſe is now put, and which was reſerved for his opinion if it ſhould be neceſſary, was not explained, or underſtood at the trial, as it is now: and the queſtion of fraud was ſo intangled, by not diſtinguiſhing this caſe from that of a factor having goods in his poſſeſſion conſigned to him before an act of bankruptcy; and, after knowledge of an act of bankruptcy, advancing money to the bankrupt, with a view of covering the effects, and playing them into his own hands, in opposition to the bankrupt's assignees.

But in this case, where the factors did not know of the act of bankruptcy, he is now fully convinced that the facts did not amount to fraud, and that the jury should have been so told; and concurs in opinion, that there should be a new trial.

If we did not grant it, the precedent of * Villain v. Hyde must be followed; where a bill in Chancery was brought by the defendant at law in an action upon an indebitatus assumpsit, because allowances, which ought in justice to have been made to him at the trial, were not made. Lord Hardwicke was, in that case, under great difficulties how to proceed, upon such a ground, to give relief in equity: but the strong justice of the case prevailed upon him to shew such a disposition, as induced the assignees to consent to the allowance, and make a satisfaction agreeable to the real justice of the case.

* In Chancery, M. 1749.

We are all of opinion that the rule be made absolute for a NEW TRIAL: but the new trial must be upon payment of COSTS.

RULE made ABSOLUTE for a new trial, upon payment of costs.

N. B. The assignees acquiesced; and never tried the matter again in this action, nor brought any other.

Friday, 20 Nov. 1761. Wright, ex dimiss' William Clymer v. Littler et al'. M. 2 Geo. III. B. R. 3 Burr. 1244.

This was an ejectment for certain copyhold lands within the manor of Barnes, in the county of Surry; in which manor there is a custom of Burrough-English.

The

> Ejectment. Question upon a forged will or instrument, and a genuine will of prior date; with another question, supposing the latter instrument not forged, if it was a revocation of the first will; also another question, as to the legality and admissibility of the evidence offered and received to impeach the latter instrument. The judge directed the jury to find for the plaintiff upon the prior will, which they did. Motion for new trial, on the ground of misdirection, int. al. new trial refused.

The lessor of the plaintiff, William Clymer, made out his title, under a regular and undisputed will of his grandfather, John Clymer, dated 17th February, 1743, and executed in the presence of three witnesses, disposing of his freehold, as well as of this copyhold estate, to the lessor of the plaintiff in fee; the testator, John Clymer, having previously surrendered the copyhold to the use of his will.

The title of the defendants (who were purchasers under another William Clymer, second and youngest son of John, and uncle to William, the lessor of the plaintiff,) depended upon another subsequent will (or instrument which they called a will) made by the said John, as they alledged, on the 20th of September, 1745; which, they contended, was at least a REVOCATION of the former will in 1743. And if it be only a REVOCATION of the former will, then William, the youngest son of John, must inherit as heir in Burrough-English.

This will or instrument of 1745, (which was not under seal,) was all written by one William Medlicott, who was son-in-law to the said John Clymer, (having married his only daughter Amey.)

It was also indorsed on the back, in the same hand-writing of the said William Medlicott, in these words—" The COVENANT and " AGREEMENT of John Clymer:" and it was witnessed by the said William Medlicott, and one Elizabeth Mitchell.

The body of it was in these words: " Know " all men by these presents, That I John Clymer, of Barnes, in the county of Surry, " Gent. have this day COVENANTED and " AGREED in the manner and form following, that is to say: For natural love and " affection which I have and bear to my son,

" and daughter, and grandson, herein after " named, I do make, constitute, and appoint
" the several estates and sums of money fol" lowing, after the decease of myself and " Amey my wife, to come to and be given " to them. But first of all, my estate called
" Barnes and Hopton, to my wife for her life;
" and, after her decease, all that eighteen
" pounds a year, to my son William Clymer,
" for his life; and, after his decease, to Wil- " liam Clymer, my grandson. And as to all " those COPYHOLD messuages, lands and te" nements at Barnes, in the county of Surry," (which is the estate in question) " to my " daughter AMEY, the wife of William Med-" licott, her heirs and assigns for ever; to take
" and hold the same after the immediate " death of myself and said wife, and not be" fore. Dated 20 September, 1745. John
" Clymer. Witness, Elizabeth Mitchell—Wil- " liam Medlicott.

It happened, in fact, that this Amey Med-licott, daughter of John Clymer, and wife of this William Medlicott, died before her father.

In order to be better understood, I will give a short pedigree of the family, and specify the particular times of their respective deaths.

Old

Old John Clymer, the teſtator, ſeiſed in fee, died in April 1746. He had iſſue by his wife Amy, two ſons and one daughter. | Amy, wife of old John Clymer, died in his life-time, viz. 7 Feb. 1745.

John Clymer, eldeſt ſon, died in his father's life-time, leaving iſſue a ſon and a daughter.	William Clymer, ſecond ſon, died November 1747, a widower, without iſſue.	Amy Clymer, married William Medlicott: ſhe died in her father's life-time, viz. in January 1745, without iſſue.

William Clymer, leſſer of the plaintiff.	Amy Clymer, died an infant.

Upon the death of old John Clymer, in 1746, his ſecond ſon, William Clymer, was admitted to this copyhold eſtate (the premiſes in queſtion) as heir in Burrough-Engliſh: the above mentioned will of old John Clymer, in 1743, being then UNKNOWN to every body except the above named William Medlicott, who had it in his poſſeſſion, but ſecreted it.

This William, youngeſt ſon of John, enjoyed the eſtate until 1751; and afterwards ſold it to one Penley. Penley was admitted, and aliened it to one Mitchell, who was admitted in 1751; and afterwards ſold part of it to Littler, one of the preſent defendants, who was admitted to that part: the other part deſcended to Penley's heir, who was admitted thereto, and then ſold it to Pelham, another of the preſent defendants, who was alſo admitted in due manner.

During the time of all theſe tranſactions, the leſſor of the plaintiff was at firſt a minor, then at ſea, always poor, and remained ignorant of the will in 1743, 'till the death of William Medlicott, who produced it when dying, and directed it to be delivered to the leſſor of the plaintiff.

William Medlicott died in May 1747. He had the cuſtody of both wills, 'till a few weeks before his death. The latter will was found among his papers. The former was delivered by the ſaid William Medlicott to one Edwards, about three weeks before his death; and it was, about three months after, delivered to William Clymer, the leſſor of the plaintiff, who was then about two years under age, but proved it in 1751.

After this diſcovery, the leſſor of the plaintiff did not bring this ejectment 'till after an acquieſcence of fourteen or fifteen years from his uncle's firſt admiſſion to it, upon old John's death, or at leaſt, without the nephew's ſetting up any claim within that time; during which his uncle William, or the purchaſers under him, had been in quiet poſſeſſion.

At the trial, the leſſor of the plaintiff produced and proved the will of 1743, under which he was deviſee of this eſtate in fee.

To encounter this evidence, the defendants produced this will, or inſtrument, in 1745; and both the witneſſes to it (Elizabeth Mitchell and William Medlicott) being dead, they proved their hand-writings, and alſo the hand-writing of old John Clymer, in the common and ordinary form.

Whereupon the plaintiff's counſel inſiſted, that this will or inſtrument was, in the firſt place, an abſolute FORGERY; and, in the next place, that, in point of law, it could NOT operate as a REVOCATION of the will in 1743.

And they called Mary Victor, ſiſter to the ſaid William Medlicott, who was one of the ſubſcribing witneſſes to the will, or inſtrument, of 1745: which Mary Victor ſwore,

"That

"That whilst she was attending her said "brother William Medlicott, in his last illness, "and about three weeks before his death, he "pulled out of his bosom the will of 1743, "and said 'it was the TRUE will of John "Clymer;' and then delivered it to her, with "directions to deliver it over to William "Clymer, the lessor of the plaintiff, or to Mr. "Faulkner." And she added, "that one "Edwards was present at the time."

This Edwards (who had been already called on the part of the defendants, to prove the hand-writing of Elizabeth Mitchell, one of the witnesses to the will or instrument of 1745,) on being cross-examined on the part of the plaintiff, confirmed Mary Victor's evidence, "That Medlicott did pull the will of 1743 "out of his bosom, and gave it to her with "such directions as she had deposed."

Upon Mary Victor's CROSS-examination by the counsel for the defendants, she not only persisted in what she had before deposed, but also added, that at the same time that William Medlicott produced the will of 1743, as the true WILL of old John Clymer, HE ACKNOWLEDGED and DECLARED to her, "that the said "will or instrument of 1745, was FORGED BY "HIMSELF."

No objection was made to this evidence, by the counsel for the defendants, at the trial.

The judge and jury (a special one) perused and examined the two instruments of 1743, and 1745, and their different signatures;— and took notice of the circumstances of the latter, being all of the hand-writing of this William Medlicott himself; and disposing of a fee to Medlicott's own wife: and upon the whole, they were all of opinion "that it was

"a

" A FORGERY." And the judge directed the jury to find for the plaintiff: which they did.

On Tuesday, 10th November, 1761, Mr. Norton moved, on behalf of the defendants, for a new trial; upon the foot of a mis-direction by the judge who tried the cause, upon a point of evidence: and a rule was made to shew cause why the verdict should not be set aside, and a new trial granted.

This cause coming on to be argued yesterday, (19th November, 1761,) Mr. Justice WILMOT reported the * evidence from Lord Chief Justice Willes, who tried the cause, and who was satisfied with the evidence; and reported that no objection was made at the trial, to the evidence given by this witness, Mary Victor.

* Sir J. Burrows says, I have already endeavoured to throw the whole together, as clearly as I was able.

Mr. Justice Wilmot having made his report, and several additional circumstances, not mentioned in the report, having been agreed by the counsel on both sides,

Mr. Norton proceeded. He objected to the admission of this evidence, as being only HEAR-SAY evidence. What Medlicott said, ought not to be admitted or regarded: for it was not said upon oath, nor was there any opportunity of cross-examining him.

Indeed this evidence would have been of little or no weight, even if he had given such a testimony HIMSELF; after having himself solemnly attested this will, as a witness to it.

This pretended declaration was made near fifteen years ago (for he died in 1747:) and yet the ejectment was not brought till 1761. This sort of evidence shall not overturn a title confirmed by so many years possession.

Besides, we are a purchaser for a valuable consideration, under the heir at law; to whose title no objection was ever made.

Mr. Eliab Harvey, for the plaintiff, admitted the possession to have gone in the course of descent in Burrough-English; but observed that the granting new trials is not so necessary in ejectment as it may be in other cases; because it is easy to bring another ejectment.

As to the length of time they have been in possession—William, the grand-son (the lessor of the plaintiff) was poor, a minor, at sea, and ignorant of the will in 1743.

Our title stood upon an unexceptionable will. Their's is rather a deed of covenants: but they insisted upon it as a testamentary act, and a revocation.

Their own witness, Edwards, proved, in the course of giving his evidence, "that Medlicott "did produce out of his bosom, the will of "1743, and delivered it to Mary Victor, to "be given to the lessor of the plaintiff, or to "Mr. Faulkner."

We called this Mary Victor, not to give evidence of the forgery, but to impeach the credit of their evidence William Medlicott.

If Medlicott had been living, he must have been called to prove the will. And if he had owned "that he forged it," it could not have been established: or if he had proved the execution of it, we should have been at liberty to discredit his personal evidence, by shewing "that "he had himself owned it be a forgery." And surely, we may give the SAME evidence after he is dead, in contradiction to the proof made by other persons of his hand-writing.

In this second instrument of 1745, there is a disposition to "Medlicott's wife, in fee:" she died before the testator. But it was no will, no testamentary act, nor even a deed.

This

This is the verdict of a special jury. And Lord Chief Justice Willes compared the papers, and declared " that it bore the appearance of " a forgery." The jury thought so too. And their verdict ought to stand.

Lord MANSFIELD ordered both the wills or instruments to be produced here to-day: to which time it was adjourned.

And they being now, accordingly, produced, Mr. Norton, for the defendants, proceeded, to the following effect. We could have proved this will, even without calling Medlicott, if both the witnesses had been living: or if Medlicott himself had been alive and been called, he might have explained the occasion of his saying such words to such a person, and at such a time.

The consequence of admitting such evidence as this is, would be fatal: and no purchaser under a will could be safe.

Here were many notorious changes of the property; and an absolute acquiescence all the time, by the lessor of the plaintiff.

The wills are now both of them before the court. That of 1745, enures either as a will of copyhold land, or as a good writing to appoint the uses of a surrender of copyhold land; or at least, as a revocation of the will made in 1743.

First, It is a good will of copyhold lands. Copyhold lands are not within the statute of frauds: and no witnesses at all are necessary to such a will. It is a good will under the statute of Hen. VIII. * that statute only requires " that " it be a will in writing."

* 32 H. VIII. c. 1.

I agree that here is no disposition of the personal estate, or any appointment of an executor. But still it is a good will of copyhold land: for neither of those are necessary in a will of copy-hold

hold land. It gives an eſtate for life to his wife, with remainder to William Clymer, under whom we claim. And the eccleſiaſtical court have received it, and ſuffered it to be proved as a will.

Secondly, it is a good inſtrument to appoint the uſes of a ſurrender.

Any writing is ſufficient for this purpoſe: it needed not any atteſtation.

Thirdly, At leaſt, it will operate as a revocation.

Revocations are favoured, both in law and equity. There are many methods of revocation: a will may be revoked by mere operation of law, without the intention of the party. A feoffment without livery, a bargain and ſale, without inrolment, a grant, without attornment, are ſufficient to do it.

But by his own act, a man may, by writing, revoke one will, without making another.

Before the ſtatute of frauds, he might have revoked it verbally, by mere parol only.

Any act inconſiſtent with the will, though ineffectual to the purpoſe it was intended for, yet being done by the maker of the will, is a revocation; becauſe it ſhews his intention to revoke the diſpoſition he had before made of his eſtate.

This writing fully ſhews the animus revocandi. Which alone is ſufficient. It is indeed a very inaccurate inſtrument: but it is in writing; and he ſays * "I have agreed that my "eſtate ſhall go ſo and ſo." And this will or writing ſhews his intention of a total revocation of the former: for, by this, he diſpoſes of his land to a very different purpoſe, from the former diſpoſition of it, by the will of 1743.

Both wills were read in court.

Mr.

* Vide ante.

Mr. Harvey and Mr. Lee were for the leſſor of the plaintiff, William Clymer, the grandſon.

They obſerved that Mr. Norton's objection was confined to the evidence of Mary Victor, ſiſter to William Medlicott, one of the witneſſes to the will of 1745: and they obſerved too, that her evidence was corroborated by the evidence of Mr. Edwards, one of their own witneſſes.

But it was to be further obſerved, they ſaid, that the verdict was not founded on this evidence ONLY. For the ſpecial jury actually ſaw and deliberately peruſed the will or inſtrument of 1745, and upon ſuch view, inſpection, and examination, and upon all the circumſtances of the diſpoſition, they judged it to be a forgery. —Beſides, no objection was taken to this evidence, at the trial. They might have objected to it then, or demurred to it.

As to acquieſcence—The leſſor of the plaintiff was but ſeventeen years of age, when his grand-father died; was always poor; and was at ſea, the moſt part of his time.

But as to the EVIDENCE itſelf—It was ſtrictly and legally admiſſible. It was not given in order to prove the forgery; but to DISCREDIT their evidence, ariſing from the proof of Medlicott's hand; Medlicott muſt have been called, if living; and would have overturned the will or writing of 1745, by giving this evidence of what Mary Victor ſwears he owned to her. The preſent proof is only "that he was a "ſubſcribing witneſs." And this evidence might be and was proper to be given, to take off the force of ſuch his atteſtation. As to the legal operation of this will or inſtrument of 1745,— Firſt,

First, It is no good-will of LAND of any kind; there is no animus testandi; no publication; no mark of a will.

Secondly, Neither can it be a sufficient appointment of the uses of a surrender made to the use of a WILL; when it is not a will at all, nor even a testamentary appointment.

Thirdly, Nor can it operate as a REVOCATION of the former will. Here are no words of revocation; no declaration of an inclination to it: no such intention appears. Revocations are not favoured now: the statute of * frauds settles the point, in what manner they shall be made. Feoffments to uses, bargains, and sales inrolled, and grants operate by relation to the life-time of the testator: and a feoffment without livery, a bargain and sale without inrolment, or a grant without attornment, are only incomplete. But a mere covenant "to make a feoffment in fee," without more, is no revocation of a will: as was determined in the case of Montagu v. Jeofferys, in Moore, 429. and 1 Ro. Abr. 615. pl. 3.

* 29 C. 2. c. 3.

Little or nothing is to be found about revocations of wills of copyhold lands. But it has never been determined, "that a will of "copyhold is not within the revoking clause of "the statute of frauds."

A will of copyhold lands cannot now be revoked by parol: it must be by some other will declaring the same. In the case of Eggleston et al. v. Speke, 3 Mod. 258. the second will did not operate as a revocation of the former; because it was not a good will in all particulars, and there was no such declared intention. Carthew 79. S. C.

But a mere covenant and agreement will not revoke a will. 1 Ro. Abr. 615. pl. 3. Title Devise.

Devise. Letter P. And yet that was a covenant in pursuance of a marriage: which makes it a very strong case.

The words "constitute and appoint," are not testamentary words: nor is there any publication of this writing. It is not under seal: which it ought to be, in order to revoke what is under seal: therefore, as an appointment, it cannot revoke the former will. It ought also to have been done in the presence of three witnesses, by the statute of frauds, the twenty-second section takes care of the revocation even of wills of PERSONAL estates; though it does not meddle with the making them.

And this is a ground for a presumption, "that the legislature considered copyhold wills "to be within the provision of the statute, as "to the revocation of THEM too."

The revocation in the present instance, must be extended to the will of the freehold, as well as of the copyhold, if it operates at all: it cannot operate as a revocation of part of the former will, and not as a revocation of another part. It must be an intention to revoke the whole: it must intend to give to another, as well as to take from the former. In the case of Onions v. Tyrer, 1 Williams, 345. Lord Cowper argues upon this principle, "that if "the second devisee took nothing, the first "devisee could lose nothing. But in this case now before the court, nothing is given to any other person. This covenant is no revocation of a will. 2 Peere Williams, 623. Cotter v. Layer. And it cannot take effect as a testamentary revocation. The defendants cannot be purchasers for a valuable consideration, under a public notoriety; and without notice of our claim. All the purchasers were under notice of a will:

a will: and the defendants consulted counsel upon the validity of it.

This evidence is admissible; because it was the solemn declaration of a dying man to his nearest relation; which is equal to an oath: for such declarations of dying men have been admitted as evidence even in cases of murder. So that it ought not to be called "MERE "hearsay evidence."

But their objection comes too late; as it was not taken upon the trial: they even cross-examined the witness. So is Lucas's Rep. 202, 203. H. 12 Ann. B. R. Queen v. Corporation of Helston.—"If counsel do not, at the trial, in-"sist upon an objection, there ought to be no "new trial." H. 2 Geo. II. Fitzgibb. 40. Anonymous.

Vide post IX. (12.) (a.)

Mr. Lee moved for a new trial, because his client had made a mistake in point of evidence: and it was denied; because "vigilan-"tibus non dormientibus jura subserviunt."

This express evidence of the direct forgery came out upon Mr. Knowler's CROSS-examination of our witness (this Mary Victor;) not upon our examination of her.

Mr. Norton, in reply.—This will of 1745, says, "I appoint my lands to come to, and be given "to, &c." It cannot be a covenant to stand seised: there is no seal, no covenantee; and besides, it is copyhold; of which there cannot be a covenant to stand seised. It must operate as a revocation.

Wills of copyholds are not within the statute of frauds; either as to the making or as to the revocation of them. They stand just as they did: the revoking clause can never extend to them, when the enacting clause does not.

As to the case of Eggleston et al. v. Speke. 3 Mod. 258.—the nature of the estate is different from this. This is a revocation of the will in toto, quoad the copyhold land.

A will may be good as to copyhold, though bad as to freehold: therefore so also may a revocation be.

An instrument may operate as a revocation; though it be void as to its professed end and intention: as, for instance, a will devising land to a papist.

As to the case in 1 Peere Williams, 345. there was no intention to revoke the will, and let in the heir at law.

But in the present case, the two acts of the testator are inconsistent. This is not a covenant to do the thing; but actually doing it: it does not rest in futuro.

Nothing passes by a feoffment, without livery; or by a bargain and sale, without inrolment; or by a grant without attornment: and therefore in such case there can be no reference backwards.

Lord MANSFIELD.—The defendants came to the trial, apprised of the plaintiff's title, and prepared to encounter it.

There is no doubt as to the will of 1743; which is the plaintiff's title. The only answer to it, which the defendants now alledge, is, "that the instrument of 1745 has revoked it." And they do not suggest that they can give any new evidence in support of that instrument, or the point of revocation. The jury have found for the plaintiff: consequently, "that the will of 1743 was not revoked." Lord Chief Justice Willes is satisfied with the verdict. This motion, therefore, and the argument in support of it, as there is no pretence tence that the defendants can mend their caſe upon a new trial, is in the nature of an appeal from his opinion.

There are three grounds, any one of which, if made out, is ſufficient to ſupport this verdict. If the inſtrument of 1745 was forged, if it was obtained by fraud and impoſition, though not forged; or, though duly and fairly executed, if it be no revocation.

As to the firſt ground, the defendants complain, that the Chief Juſtice miſ-directed the jury, by leaving to them as evidence, the declaration of Medlicott "that he forged it."

Anſwer. It came out upon their own examination. They made no objection to it at the trial, and it certainly was a circumſtance proper for the jury to conſider. The competence of evidence depends upon the circumſtances under which it is given.

The will of 1743 is ſet up after fifteen years. It was neceſſary to ſhew how it was ſecreted, and how diſcovered. The declaration of Medlicott in his laſt illneſs, when he produced and delivered it for the uſe of the plaintiff, is allowed to be competent and material evidence. The inſtrument of 1745 was equally in his cuſtody and ſecreted. The account he gave of it in his laſt moments is equally proper, even though it had been upon an examination by the plaintiff, (eſpecially as it was all written and witneſſed by him, and gave the premiſes in queſtion to his wife,) as the account was a confeſſion of great iniquity, and as he could be under no temptation to ſay it, but to do juſtice, and eaſe his conſcience; I am of opinion "the evidence was proper to be left to "the jury."

But,

But, independent of this declaration, forgery or fraud was apparent. Medlicott appears to have been a bad man. It is all written by him, and gives the fee to his wife, in prejudice of John Clymer's male issue. It is worded as an irrevocable settlement; without cause or consideration. Medlicott never dared to produce it; and chose rather to conceal the will of 1743, that the younger son might be admitted and possess the premises.

But lastly, This paper is NO revocation. It is no will: and therefore cannot direct the uses of the surrender. It is no conveyance. It is no agreement with any body. It does not purport having been delivered to or for the use of any body. There is no proof that it was out of the custody of John Clymer before his death. It ought not to have been out of his custody; because it is voluntary, and without any consideration. He could not have been obliged to perform it. Then it amounts to no more than his bare saying, "that he intended "to make a will or surrender to the use of "his daughter, in fee" and did neither. An INTENTION to revoke by a future act which a man cannot be compelled to perform, is no revocation, till the act is done. All the cases are so: and the reason is evident.

It is to no purpose to grant a new trial; because I am satisfied that the verdict is, in every light, agreeable to the true justice of the case.

Was it a measuring cast, or if the defendant had been surprised by the plaintiff's title, I should have thought otherwise.

The defendants are purchasers from the heir of a copyholder duly admitted. There has been a possession above fifteen years. The title set up by the plaintiff is a will concealed.

But,

But, be these favourable circumstances as they may, the trial had is satisfactory beyond a doubt: and the defendants cannot mend their case. Therefore it would be vain and vexatious to grant a new trial.

The three other judges declared their entire concurrence: but declined expatiating upon it, or entering into particulars, as Lord Mansfield had so fully gone through it.

Per cur. The rule must be DISCHARGED.

This was an action on the statute of 2 G. II. c. 24. §. 7. "For the more effectual preventing bribery and corruption, in the election of members to serve in parliament."

Sulston v. Norton. M. 2 G. III. B. R. 3 Burr. 1235. Action upon the Bribery Act. Verdict for plaintiff. Motion for a new trial. 1. Obj. That the man bribed did not vote for the party on whose behalf he was bribed, and therefore plaintiff ought not to have recovered. 2. Obj. That the verdict ought not to have been upon the first count, which was for a gift, i. e. for giving money. That there being counter notes, it was not a gift, but a loan. New trial refused.

The declaration contained five counts:— First, That the defendant corrupted one Moore to vote for Lord Villiers and Sir Robert Burdett, by giving him five pounds five shillings,— Secondly, A corrupt agreement to give Moore five pounds five shillings;—Thirdly, A corrupt agreement to lend him five pounds five shillings upon a promissory note;—Fourthly, A corrupt agreement to deliver the note to Moore on voting; Fifthly, For giving the note and counter-note hereafter mentioned. A verdict was found for the plaintiff, and entered on the first count.

Mr. Serjeant Hewitt, on behalf of the plaintiff, shewed cause against setting aside the verdict; which had been moved for, on the part of the defendant.

Mr. Caldecott, on behalf the defendant, had objected, when he made that motion,

First, That the man did not in fact vote for the persons he promised to vote for; but, on the contrary, voted for their opponents: and therefore the defendant, as he did not by any corrupt agreement, procure Moore to vote for them, them, cannot be ſaid to have corrupted him to do ſo.

Secondly, That the verdict ought not to have been taken on the firſt count, which was for giving him the money.

To the firſt objection, the caſe of Buſh v. Rawlins, in B. R. P. & Tr. 29 G. II. was ſaid, by the Serjeant, to be a full anſwer, being in point.

And in anſwer to the ſecond objection, he alledged, that the evidence given very ſufficiently ſupported the taking the verdict on the firſt count; and for the truth of his allegation, appealed to Mr. Juſtice Foſter, who tried the cauſe.

Mr. Juſtice FOSTER reported the evidence to have been, "That the defendant gave Moore "five guineas, to vote for Lord Villiers and "Sir Robert Burdett; that Moore gave him a "note for it; and the defendant gave him a "counter-note, obliging himſelf to give up "the former note, when the condition ſhould "be performed."

Mr. Caldecott and Mr. Thurlow, for the defendant, thereupon obſerved, that the act of parliament ſays, "If any perſon, &c. ſhall "take any money, &c. by way of gift, loan, "or other device:" and though the plaintiff has laid this ſeveral ways, he has taken a verdict as upon a GIFT; whereas it appears in fact, NOT to have been a GIFT, but a LOAN, or other device.

In order to intitle them to take a verdict on the firſt count, they muſt have proved it to be a gift: which, it appears by the judge's report, they could not prove. And we have a verdict for the defendant, as to all the other counts.

The

The statute expresly distinguishes between gifts, and loans or other devices. And so indeed does their own declaration: for the first count is founded upon the former; the four others, on the latter.

This action being upon a penal statute, it therefore ought to be taken strictly.

This case, as it is laid, differs from that of Bush v. Rawlins: the resolution there does * not interfere with this. For here, "corrupting "Moore to give his vote," must mean actually "procuring him to give his vote:" whereas the man did not vote so; and consequently, the other candidate (Mr. Luttrel) was not hurt, at all, by what the defendant did.

Lord MANSFIELD.—The first objection is in the nature of a motion for a new trial, on account of a mis direction by the judge.

But the case of Bush v. Rawlins, is in point. And I wonder how it could ever be a doubt: for the offence was completely committed by the corrupter, whether the other party shall afterwards perform his promise, or break it.

Secondly, As to the verdict's being taken on a wrong count—The evidence does support the first count. For this is a GIFT: the note and all the rest is mere evasion, colour, disguise, and device, to evade the law.

But if it were not so, the verdict was given generally for the plaintiff. If, by mistake, it has been entered upon a count not proved; instead of the count which was proved, that is no reason for a new trial: the blunder has not injured the defendant. The court ought rather to rectify the mistake, by ordering the verdict to be entered upon the right count, agreeable to the evidence, and consequently the

* That resolution was "that "the giving a "bribe to forbear voting at "the election of "a member to "parliament, "was an offence "within this "same act and "clause, altho' "the man did "not forbear to "vote, but actually voted "for the opponents candidate, and that "there was no "need for the "plaintiff to allege in his "declaration, "that the man "did actually "give or forbear "his vote, according to his "promise."

the true ground upon which the jury found for the plaintiff.

However, the gift is the true and proper count to take it upon: if it was really a loan, it would be no corruption.

Mr. Juſtice Wilmot held accordingly. This is the right and true count to take the verdict upon.

Per cur. Rule diſcharged.

Catherine How, widow, v. Edward Strode, M. 6 Geo. III. C. B. 2 Wilſon 269. Replevin: avowry, damage feaſant. Plea preſcription for common, from time of cutting and carrying away corn, until land reſown. Replication, a cuſtom to incloſe, which diſcharges the land from the right of common. Incloſure. Rejoinder. De injuria ſuà propriâ. Traverſing the cuſtom. Sur-rejoinder taking iſſue upon the cuſtom.

Replevin—Avowry, that defendant took the cattle damage feaſant.

Plea in bar the place in which, &c. is part of Eaſt-field, that plaintiff is ſeiſed of ten acres of land in B. and claims common of paſture in Eaſt-field, when the ſame is ſown with corn, and it is cut and carried away, until it be re-ſown; and at a proper time put in her cattle.

Replication to the plea in bar, that there are in B. two fields, Eaſt and Weſt-field, and that the owners thereof intercommon while they lay not incloſed for a certain time.

A cuſtom to incloſe, and that ſuch incloſure is freed from common of any other perſon, and that the perſon ſo incloſing, thereby frees and diſcharges all the unincloſed from all common, in reſpect to ſuch land incloſed.

That he incloſed the place in which, &c. to which he had a right of common before, whereby all the unincloſed lands were freed from his ſaid right of common; and that the place incloſed ought to be free from common of any other perſon.

Plaintiff rejoins, that ſhe put in the cattle 'till defendant took them of his own wrong, and traverſes the cuſtom to incloſe, &c.

Vide the pleadings at length in Wilſon.

The defendant ſur-rejoins, and takes iſſue on the traverſe.

This

This cause was tried at the last assises for the county of Somerset, the issue lying upon the defendant to prove the custom; it was reported by the judge, that the defendant produced five very old deeds, and several other deeds, which proved the custom to inclose; he also called seven old witnesses, three of the oldest proved the custom to inclose of their own knowledge, for a great number of years, and that they had been told (when they were young) by very old persons then living, that it was the custom for the land-owners in these fields to inclose; and said that they thought any man might inclose his land. As to the right of common, whilst the lands lay uninclosed, some of the witnesses said, that such owners of the uninclosed lands, had a right of common without stint, but that after any of them had inclosed his land, such person had no right of common at all in the said fields, or either of them.

New trial, for mis-direction of the judge, upon the evidence given for the defendant at the trial, the judge being of opinion he had not sufficiently proved the custom, whereas the evidence did prove it.

Another witness said, if a man inclosed all his lands in the fields, he lost his right of common totally; but that if he left any bit, only an acre, uninclosed, he used to enjoy his common in regard to that acre, uninclosed, just as before, and used to put in any number of cattle without stint; several other old witnesses swore to the same effect, and here the defendants rested their case; whereupon the judge was of opinion that the defendant had not proved the custom, which he said was intire: that several of the witnesses had proved, that if a man inclosed 19 acres out of 20, it was the custom for him, in respect to the one acre not inclosed, to put into the uninclosed lands as many cattle as he pleased, without stint, and as he had done before he inclosed the 19 acres, acres, and therefore, the judge was pleased to tell the jury, that he thought the defendant had not proved the custom intirely; and that, if they believed the land inclosed in question was discharged and freed from any person having a right of common thereon, they should find for the defendant; if not, that they should find for the plaintiff: whereupon the jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff.

It was now moved for a new trial, for the misdirection of the judge: 1st, For that the custom to inclose was fully and clearly proved; and, 2dly, That the right of common before inclosure made, was for cattle levant and couchant upon each person's uninclosed lands; and this matter is not at all in issue, but is admitted on the pleadings, by both sides: the right of inclosure, with it's consequence, viz. it's being freed from any person's former right of common thereon, was the only matter in issue; the other was a legal consequence, and not traversable, (to wit,) that the owner of such inclosed land is barred of any future right to common on the uninclosed land in these fields; and what some of the witnesses said of common without stint, is nothing to the purpose, for there is no such thing as common without stint belonging to land; common belonging to land can only be for cattle levant and couchant thereon: that the custom to inclose was clearly proved, as appears by the evidence before stated; and, when the land is inclosed, it is freed and discharged from any person's former right of common thereon. And of this opinion was the whole court; and said, 1st, That the parties agree by the pleadings, that, while the lands in these open fields are uninclosed, all have a right of common for for cattle levant and couchant; 2dly, The cuſtom to incloſe, and that the land as ſoon as, and while incloſed, is free from common, is fully proved: the 3d matter is a conſequence in law, and wanted no proof, viz. that, as ſoon as any perſon has incloſed, he has excluded himſelf from any right of common on any of the unincloſed lands: and any judgment given upon this record, cannot be a bar to any other party who may claim common in theſe fields without levancy and couchancy. Per totam Curiam, the verdict muſt be ſet aſide for miſ-direction of the Judge, and there muſt be a new trial.

Macbeath v. Haldimand, E. 26 Geo. III. B. R. Durnford and Eaſt. 1 V. 173.

An officer appointed by government, treating as an agent for the public, is not liable to be ſued upon contract, made by him in that capacity. The judge having directed the jury to find for the defendant upon that ground, motion for new trial was made, as conceiving he had been miſtaken in point of law, and, conſequently, miſdirected the jury. Court of opinion the direction was right, and new trial refuſed.

This was an action upon promiſes againſt the defendant, as agent for work and labour, &c.

Plea—the general iſſue.

The cauſe was tried at the Sittings after laſt Hilary Term, before BULLER, Juſtice, when a verdict was found for the defendant, by the direction of the Judge.

Upon a motion for a new trial by Cowper, the following facts appeared from report.

In the year 1779, the defendant, being Governor of Quebec, appointed Captain Sinclair to the command of a fort called Michilimakinac, ſituated upon the lake Huron, in the province of Canada.

On the 17th of Auguſt, 1779, defendant tranſmitted certain inſtructions to Sinclair, reſpecting the government of the fort, in which he ſays,

" You are to pay great attention to the In- " dians reſorting to Michilimakinac, or fur- " niſhed with neceſſaries from thence. En- " deavour to preſerve them in good humour; " and attach them, by every means in your " power,

"power, to the King's intereſt." In a further part of the ſame inſtructions he adds, "You will draw bills of exchange for defray-"ing the contingencies incident to that poſt, "in the manner practiſed by Major De Peyſ-"ter, (an officer on whom that command had "been before conferred,) taking care to mo-"derate and reduce thoſe expences, as far as "can be done, without injuring the King's "ſervice."

For ſome time Sinclair employed one Grant to diſtribute preſents among the Indians, and to procure military ſtores, &c. for the uſe of the garriſon: and to defray theſe and other expences drew bills of exchange upon the Governor, according to his inſtructions. When theſe accounts came to the defendant, he made objections to ſeveral of the articles, as unneceſſary, and exorbitant; and ſoon after recommended the plaintiff to Sinclair, by a letter dated the 16th of May, 1782, of which the following is an extract:

"Upon an examination of the accounts, "accompanying your late drafts, for expences "incurred at Michilimakinac; the articles are, "in general, charged at prices exceeding all "bounds of moderation.

"Upon the compariſon of the prices made "here, the advantages taken of the neceſſities "of the crown, by the traders at Michili-"makinac, is ſhamefully obvious; and it is "more ſo in the account of Mr. Grant, who "appears to be an agent for government, "than in any other particular.

"Perſuaded that you have ſupplied your "wants from thoſe traders, in whom you "have had the greateſt reaſon to confide, I "find there is but little to be expected from "any

" any of them residing at that post: which
" induced me to make inquiry, if any per" son could be found here more worthy of " the public confidence. A Mr. Macbeath,
" who will deliver this letter, and who has " just made application for a pass, was men" tioned to me as a man of known and esta" blished integrity; and, upon a more par-" tiular inquiry, I find that he has always,
" both here, and in the upper country, me" rited that character. I have proposed to " him to supply the crown with such quanti" ties of Indian corn and grease, as may be " wanted for the necessary purposes at that " post; and likewise all other articles which " shall occasionally be wanted in the engineer " department, which he has undertaken to " do for 10 l. per cent. on the market
" prices at the place, (costs and charges;) a " profit which appears to be reasonable, in" asmuch as it is greatly under that hitherto " charged."

(After some orders given relative to the plaintiff.)

" These instructions, and all others that " concern the interest of the crown, I am " persuaded that you will cheerfully give " him."

A letter from the defendant to the plaintiff, dated May 17, 1782.

" Having thought it fit to direct Lieute" nant-governor Sinclair, commanding the post
" of Michilimakinac, to employ you in supply" ing such quantities of corn and grease, and all " other articles, as shall be wanted for the use of " the crown at that post, in consequence of " your offer to furnish the same at the rate of " 10 l. per cent. on the costs and charges here

" and

"and to Michilimakinac, for all articles, corn
"and greafe excepted, and thefe at the fame
"rate where they fhall be purchafed; for "which fufficient vouchers are to accompany
"your accounts: you are, therefore, hereby "directed to make applications, from time "to time, to Lieutenant-governor Sinclair,
"for fuch directions, information, and affift-
"ance, as will beft enable you to execute "that bufinefs to the greateft advantage for
"the public intereft; as your continuing in "this employ will intirely depend upon your
"conduct therein."

Several fpecial orders were proved from Sinclair to the plaintiff, for fupplying particular articles, amongft which was the following, dated 1ft of Auguft, 1782.

"You will be pleafed for the future, with"out any requifitions in form, to provide "for the different fervices of the poft, in the "manner leaft expenfive to government, and "ftill equal to the neceffities of the different "departments."

In purfuance of thefe orders, the plaintiff furnifhed articles to a confiderable amount. But when his bills, at the top of which was prefixed, "Government debtor to George Mac-
"beath, for fundries, paid by order of Lieute- "nant-governor Sinclair," were fent to the defendant at Quebec, he made objections to feveral of the articles, as being unreafonable, and furnifhed contrary to fubfequent inftructions.

Afterwards, on the 2d of July, 1784, Matthews (the defendant's fecretary,) wrote the following letter to Meff. Dobie and Forfyth, who were agents for the bill-holders.

"I am

" I am commanded by his Excellency Ge" neral Haldimand to acquaint you, that, in " consequence of instructions from the Lords
" Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury,
" in answer to a representation made by him
" to their lordships, concerning the bills drawn " upon him by Lieutenant-governor Sinclair,
" in the year 1782, which he thought it neces" sary to refuse payment of, his excellency,
" in conformity with the offer which he made
" to the holders of the said bills in the year
" 1782, is still willing to pay such parts of " the charges, for which the said bills were " drawn, as at that time appeared, upon ex" amination, to be reasonable."

(After stating the amount of goods furnished for the engineer department, to the value of 9,266 l. 5 s. 1½ d. which the Governor was willing to pay, the letter proceeded thus:)

" His excellency will also pay for all the " goods or utensils furnished for the engineer " department, so far as they shall appear to " be charged at reasonable prices, to be as" certained by merchants appointed for that " purpose, by his excellency and the holders " of the bills. And he will further pay for " the labour, so far as the accounts thereof
" shall appear to be properly vouched.

" But with regard to the charges for the " hire of horses and carts, his excellency,
" from the exorbitance of the charge, will " have nothing to do therewith, leaving, ne" vertheless, to the complainants to take " such methods to procure redress therein, as " they shall think proper.

" With respect to the Indian department,
" his excellency will pay such part of the ar" ticles

" ticles as compose the accounts for which the " bills were drawn, as were not purchased
" contrary to his orders to Lieutenant-gover" nor Sinclair, dated 22d August, 1781; and " except also for the articles furnished by " Lieutenant-governor Sinclair himself, which " his excellency will not pay, as they were " received from the Indians, in expectation
" of being well repaid, by the presents which " they afterwards received, from the King's " stores.

(The letter then stated the account of Indian expences, amounting to 12,715 l. 9 s. 10 d. and concludes by saying,)

" You will therefore see, by the foregoing
" state, that the sum proposed by his excel" lency general Haldimand, to be immediately
" paid, amounts to 21,981 l. 14 s. 11¼ d.
" New York currency."

The bills which Sinclair drew in favour of the plaintiff, were drawn on the defendant as governor and commander in chief.

The plaintiff finding that all these bills drawn by Sinclair, and indorsed by himself, which were to a much greater amount than the abovementioned sum, would not be accepted by the defendant, received a partial payment from him, with a proviso, that it should not prejudice his claim for the remainder; to recover which, was the object of the present action.

The plaintiff remained in his post 'till 1785.

It was acknowledged at the trial, and in court, that all the accounts had been submitted to a board of officers by defendant, for them to examine, and report what charges ought to be allowed; and that the sum adjudged

judged by them to be due, which fell very ſhort of the plaintiff's demand, had been paid by the treaſury.

BULLER, Juſtice, after reporting the above facts, ſaid, that he had been of opinion at the trial, that the goods in queſtion having been ſupplied for the uſe of government, and the defendant not having perſonally undertaken to pay, the plaintiff ought to be non-ſuited. That it appeared to him, that the plaintiff had acted with the defendant ſolely in the character of commander in chief, conſidering him as the agent of government. That all the letters imported it to be a tranſaction on the part of government, and that the accounts confirmed it. But the plaintiff's counſel appearing for their client when he was called, he left the queſtion to the jury, telling them that they were bound to find for the defendant in point of law. And upon their aſking him, whether, in the event of the defendant's not being liable, any other perſon was, he told them, that was no part of their conſideration; but, being willing to give them any information, he added, that he was of opinion, that if the plaintiff's demands were juſt, his proper remedy was by a petition of right to the crown: on which they had found a verdict for the defendant.

The rule for granting a new trial was moved for, on the miſ-direction of the judge upon two points.

1ſt, That the defendant had, by his own conduct, made himſelf perſonally liable, which queſtion ſhould have been left to the jury.

2dly, That the plaintiff had no remedy againſt the crown, by a petition of right, on the ſuppoſition of which the jury had been induced to give their verdict.

Lord MANSFIELD, Ch. J. now declared, That the court did not feel it neceſſary for them to give any opinion on the ſecond ground.

His Lordſhip ſaid, that great difference had ariſen ſince the revolution, with reſpect to the expenditure of the public money. Before that period, all the public ſupplies were given to the King, who, in his individual capacity, contracted for all expences. He alone had the diſpoſition of the public money. But ſince that time, the ſupplies have been appropriated by parliament to particular purpoſes; and now, whoever advances money for the public ſervice, truſts to the faith of parliament.

That, according to the tenor of Lord Somers's argument (a) in the banker's caſe, though a petition of right would lie, yet it would probably produce no effect. No benefit was ever derived from it in the banker's caſe, and parliament was afterwards obliged to provide a particular fund towards the payment of thoſe debts (b). Whether, however, this alteration in the mode of diſtributing the ſupplies, had made any difference in the law upon this ſubject, it was unneceſſary to determine; at any rate, if there were a recovery againſt the crown, application muſt be made to parliament, and it would come under the head of ſupplies for the year.

Bearcroft and Bower ſhewed cauſe.

They allowed that a perſon, acting in a public ſituation under government, might, by his own conduct, make himſelf perſonally liable for contracts, which, from the nature of his office, he would not otherwiſe be anſwerable for.

(a) Vide II. State Trials, 759.

(b) The ſtat. 12 & 13 W. III. c. 12. §. 15. provides, that, in lieu of the annuities granted to the bankers and all arrears, the hereditary exciſe, ſhall, after the 26th December, 1701, be charged with annual ſums equal to an intereſt of 3 per cent. 'till redeemed by payment of one moiety of the principal ſums.

for. But the plaintiff ſhould make out a very ſtrong caſe, in order to induce the court to beleive that ſuch was the agreement. As if a perſon, reſiding at a diſtance abroad, abſolutely refuſed to treat with the government, but choſe rather to rely upon the perſonal ſecurity of the governor, who was upon the ſpot, and who was willing to treat upon thoſe conditions: but they contended, in this caſe, that the defendant had acted avowedly as the agent of government, and did not intend to make himſelf perſonally reſponſible.

But conſidering this even as a common tranſaction between private parties, apart from public conſiderations, which would weigh in this caſe, the plain queſtion would be, to whom was the credit given? It appears, upon the face of it, not to have been given to the defendant. The goods furniſhed were not for his uſe, and ſo the plaintiff knew. The defendant's letter to the plaintiff, when he was appointed to the poſt, expreſsly mentions that they were for the uſe of the crown.

The orders given by the defendant were in the quality of governor, and therefore the plaintiff muſt be taken to have contracted with government. It is no anſwer to ſay, that the bills were drawn on the defendant, for that is the common courſe of buſineſs; and the letter from Matthews, the defendant's ſecretary, ſpeaks of an application to the treaſury, which ſhews, that it could not be conſidered as a perſonal demand on the defendant.

Suppoſing the defendant in the ſituation of a private ſteward, if it be notorious that the orders are given by him for his employer, and that he acts merely in the capacity of an agent, that is ſufficient to ſhew the nature of the tranſ-tranſaction, and to whom the credit has really been given.

In ordinary dealings, where it is a matter of doubt to whom the credit has been given, the queſtion has frequently been decided, by having recourſe to the creditor's books, or by producing his bills, and ſeeing whom he himſelf has debited. In this inſtance, the plaintiff has debited government.

Another circumſtance is here diſcloſed, which decides as to whom the plaintiff gave the credit: for he firſt applied for payment to the treaſury, and, on their refuſal, had recourſe to the defendant; which manifeſtly proves, that he looked upon government as his debtor.

They then mentioned the caſe of General Burgoyne, againſt whom a bill was filed in Chancery, for a ſpecific performance of a contract, for the ſupply of artillery carriages in America. Lord THURLOW, Chancellor, ſaid, that there was no colour for the demand, as againſt the defendant, who acted only as an agent for government, and diſmiſſed the bill with coſts. His Lordſhip alſo made the ſame obſervation, which the learned Judge made in this cauſe, that the plaintiff had his remedy againſt the crown by petition of right.

Cowper, Law, and Adam, in ſupport of the rule, contended, that the evidence which was produced at the trial was ſuch, as ought to have been left to the jury to determine, whether the defendant had not made himſelf perſonally liable.

In general, a commanding officer is not anſwerable for ſtores, and other articles furniſhed notoriouſly for the uſe of government; but there is no doubt that he may become ſo by his own conduct. Here the plaintiff was directed by the defendant to obey the orders of Lieutenant-governor Sinclair. Every article which he furnished was in obedience to Sinclair's commands; and Sinclair himself was instructed to draw bills for the payment of those articles, not on the government, or on any official paymaster, which would have afforded a strong presumption in discharge of the defendant's liability, but his orders were to draw on the defendant himself.

The partial payment which was afterwards made, was under the special directions of the defendant, who, throughout the whole transaction, exercised his own discretion, as to which part of the charges should be allowed or rejected. The defendant's own conduct, therefore, has made him personally liable.

Distance of place and situation might also have been a reason with the plaintiff, for giving the defendant personal credit: for the parties being removed so far from the seat of government at home, there was no other person to whom the plaintiff would so naturally look for payment, as the defendant himself.

The production of the letters at the trial, was an additional reason for leaving the question to the jury, whose province it was to determine the import of them.

In an action brought against General Burgoyne, to recover a sum of money due to the plaintiff, as provost-marshal, the defendant having promised that he should be paid at the same rate as the provost-marshal under General Howe had been, a similar objection to the present, was started on the trial, by Mr. Lee, against the legality of the action; but Lord Mansfield refused to nonsuit the plaintiff, upon which he went into his case;

 and

and it afterwards appeared, in the courſe of the inquiry, that the plaintiff's demand had been ſatisfied. From this it is evident, that his Lordſhip thought a commanding officer might make himſelf liable, and that whether he had, or not, was a proper ſubject for the inquiry of a jury.

Taking this to be the caſe of a factor reſiding abroad, who tranſacts buſineſs for his principal in England; if the former had undertaken in the ſame manner that the defendant has done in this caſe, he would have made himſelf perſonally liable, ſince they may both be bound.

Suppoſing that the articles furniſhed were for the uſe of government, that will not vary the queſtion. A maſter of a ſhip, who contracts for neceſſaries for the uſe of the ſhip, is perſonally liable, though he is known at the time not to be the owner (a). At all events, if there be any difference between this caſe and that of agent and principal, to which the preſent is likened, yet every agent who perſonally undertakes, cannot diſpute his liability:

(a) Cowp. 639.

The whole queſtion, therefore, ſhould have been left to the jury, whoſe conduct proved that they entertained doubts upon it, 'till they were informed that the plaintiff had his remedy againſt the crown.

But if there is no remedy, in the form of a petition of right againſt the crown, on account of the appropriation of the ſupplies ſince the revolution, and the public is to be conſidered as the real debtor, then there was no other perſon, againſt whom this demand could ſo properly be urged, as againſt the defendant, dant, who repreſented and acted as oſtenſible agent for the public in this tranſaction.

Lord MANSFIELD, Ch. J.—The only queſtion before the court is, whether the defendant is liable or not in this action? If he is, the plaintiff muſt recover; if not, no conſideration reſpecting the plaintiff's remedy againſt any other party, can induce the court to make him ſo.

There is no colour to ſay that he is liable in his character of commander in chief.

In a late caſe which was tried before me, where one Savage brought an action againſt Lord North, as firſt lord of the treaſury, in order that he might be reimburſed the expences which he had incurred in raiſing a regiment for the ſervice of government, I held that the action did not lie.

So in another caſe of Lutterloh againſt Halſey, which was an action brought againſt the defendant, who was a commiſſary for the ſupply of forage for the army, and by whom the plaintiff had been employed in that ſervice, the commiſſary was held not liable.

In the preſent caſe it was notorious that the defendant did not perſonally contract; the plaintiff knew at the time that he furniſhed the ſtores, that they were for the uſe of government: and he afterwards made government debtor in his bills.

But it has been urged, that the defendant made himſelf liable, after the debt was contracted. In my opinion there is no ground for ſuch an argument. The evidence does not warrant it.

Then it was objected, that whether the defendant had made himſelf liable or not, was a queſtion, which ought to have been left to the jury to decide. But there was no evidence which was proper for their consideration, for the evidence, consisting altogether of written documents and letters, which were not denied, the import of them was matter of law, and not of fact. Therefore I am of opinion that the verdict should stand.

Willes, J.—I think, under all the circumstances of the present case, that the defendant is not personally liable. The goods were furnished for the use of the crown: government was made debtor: and all the letters speak of the transaction, as having been considered in that light. Then if the defendant was liable, his person and property would be subject to an execution, and he must afterwards apply to government for a reimbursement, which would be no satisfaction to him, for the inconvenience he had been put to.

The letter from defendant's secretary shews, that what he did was under the direction of government, and that the fund, out of which the plaintiff was to be paid, was the treasury. And though I consider the faith of government, as pledged for the acts of the defendant, yet I cannot consider him as personally answerable.

As to the objection, that this should have been left to the jury, it is decisive, that this question comes before the court on a motion to set aside the verdict, and not a nonsuit. There was no other evidence but letters, which were before the jury, and the judge had a right to give his opinion upon them. The construction of deeds is a matter of law, but that of letters is proper for the consideration of the jury.

Ashhurst, J.—In great questions of policy, we cannot argue from the nature of private agreements. But even in these cases, the question question must be, what was the meaning of the parties at the time of entering into the contract?

A person acting in the capacity of an agent, may undoubtedly contract in such a manner as to make himself personally liable: and that brings it to the true question here; namely, whether, from any thing that passed between the parties at the time, it was understood by them, that the plaintiff was to rely upon the personal security of the defendant? But nothing appears from the evidence in this case, to warrant such a conclusion. Government was made debtor; and it is evident that the plaintiff looked to them for payment: for he first made application to the treasury, and his demand against the defendant was only an afterthought, when he found he could not obtain the money in any other way. Then it seems to me, that there is nothing in this transaction, to fix the defendant, or to shew that the plaintiff looked to him as his debtor, at the time that the credit was given.

Great inconveniences would result from considering a governor, or commander, as personally responsible in such cases as the present: for no man would accept of any office of trust under government, upon such conditions. And, indeed, it has frequently been determined, that no individual is answerable for any engagements which he enters into on their behalf.

There is no doubt but the crown will do ample justice to the plaintiff's demands, if they are well founded.

Buller, J.—I do not agree with my brother Willes, as to the construction of letters. If they are written in so dubious a manner, as to be be capable of different constructions, and can be explained by other transactions, the whole evidence must be left to the jury, to decide upon; for they are to judge of the truth or falshood of such collateral facts, which may vary the sense of the letters themselves: but if they are not explained by any other circumstances, then, like deeds, or other written agreements, the construction of them is a mere matter of law.

In what character then, as appears from these documents, did the defendant act throughout this business? It is true, that he gave the orders to Sinclair, and that every thing which the plaintiff did, was pursuant to directions from the latter, whom he was instructed to obey; but these orders did not flow from the defendant in his own personal character, but as governor and agent for the public; and so the plaintiff himself considered it. And in any case where a man acts as agent for the public, and treats in that capacity, there is no pretence to say that he is personally liable.

Rule discharged.

Oswald and others, executors of Oswald, against Legh. T. 26 G. III. B. R, Durnford & East. 1 V. 270.
Twenty years without any demand, is of itself a presumption that a bond has been paid.
A verdict being found for the plaintiff, motion for a new trial, upon the ground that the jury should have been directed

Debt on bond by the executors of the obligee against the obligor.—Pleas—non est factum; solvit ad diem; & solvit post diem. This cause was tried at the sittings after last Easter term, before Buller, J. at Guildhall, when it appeared, that the bond was executed on the 17th January, 1765. That in June, 1784, the obligee sued out a writ upon the bond, but he died within three months afterwards, without having ever served it. That the present action was commenced last Easter term, That the parties were both men of fortune, residing in England, and had lived upon terms of intimacy. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiffs.

of

Bower moved for a rule to shew cause why there should not be a new trial, on the ground that the jury should have been directed to find for the defendant, on the presumption of the bond's having been satisfied, as the parties had lived in the kingdom, and no demand had been made for nineteen years and an half. That in some cases, this presumption had arisen where demand had not been made even for a less time. In an action of debt on a bond by Kowley against Tomkins (a).

directed to have found for defendant, upon presumption of payment arising from length of time, and other circumstances. New trial refused.

Aston, J. mentioned the case of Weldon v. Davis, at Guildhall, after Trinity, 1760, which he said he had often heard cited by Lord Mansfield, where eighteen years was held sufficient to raise a presumption upon, unless some reason was assigned for not calling on the party. In that case, the case of Moyle against Lord Roberts was cited; where the plaintiff, in order to obviate the presumption, shewed two writs of testatum capias to have been sued out, but not served, because the party could not be found; in which last case Lord Mansfield said, there was no foundation for the presumption.

BULLER, J.—I have always been of opinion, that no less time than twenty years, could of itself form a presumption that a bond had been paid; and as there was no evidence at the trial in aid of the presumption, I left the question to the jury, with strong directions in favour of the plaintiffs; for even with regard to the rule of twenty years, where no demand has been made during that time, that is only a circumstance for the jury to found a presumption upon, and is in itself no legal bar. In those cases, where satisfaction of a bond has has been presumed within a less period, some other evidence has been given in favour of such a presumption, such as having settled an account in the intermediate time, without any notice having been taken of such a demand.

(a) Salop Summer assises, 1766.

It is manifest that this doctrine of twenty years presumption, was first taken up by Lord Hale, who only thought it a circumstance from whence a jury might presume payment. In this he was followed by Lord Holt, who held, that if a bond be of twenty years standing, and no demand proved thereon, or good cause of long forbearance shewn, on solvit ad diem, he should intend it paid (b).

(b) 6 Mod. 22.

This doctrine was afterwards adopted by Lord Raymond, in the case of Constable v. Somerset (c): that was debt upon bond, where the defendant, an executor, craved oyer of the bond, and of the condition, which appeared to be for the payment of so much money, six months after the death of the defendant's testator. The defendant, in his plea averred, that the testator died on the 15th March, 1711, and that he had paid the said sum on the 16th March, 1711, within six months after the testator's death, and thereupon issue was joined.

(c) Hil. 1 G. II. at Guildhall.

The defendant relied on the ground that, as he, after the death of the testator, his father, had an estate in the plaintiff's neighbourhood, and was constant and regular in all his payments, it should be presumed that the money was paid to the plaintiff. In answer to this objection, evidence was given of a demand of the money on the defendant himself in 1725; and the Chief Justice said, that the presumption of money having been paid, which was due on bond, if it were put in suit after twenty years standing,

ſtanding, was not the old, but a new doctrine, which had been introduced in Lord Hale's time, and that he would never ſuffer a plaintiff to be ſtripped of a juſt debt, by ſuch a preſumption as was then contended for.

This opinion ſeems to fortify the idea which I took up at the trial, in anſwer to a dictum which was then cited (a), that the queſtion of preſumption of payment within a leſs time than twenty years, had been left to a jury, which was, that it muſt have been left to them upon ſome evidence; and in ſuch caſes the ſlighteſt evidence is ſufficient. In one of the Winchelſea caſes (b), Lord Mansfield expreſsly ſaid, that if a bond had lain dormant for twenty years, it ſhall be preſumed to be paid.

(a) 1 Burr. 434.

(b) 4 Burr. 1962.

The court, however, inclining to believe that the real truth of the caſe was with the defendant, deſired that he would make an affidavit; which being read upon a ſubſequent day, and not proving ſatisfactory, they Diſcharged the rule.

And Lord MANSFIELD, Ch. J. ſaid, that there was a diſtinction between length of time as a bar, and where it was only evidence of it: the former was poſitive, the latter only preſumption; and he believed that in the caſe of a bond, no poſitive time had been expreſsly laid down by the court; that it might be eighteen or nineteen years.

Patman v. Vaughan. H. 27 G. III. B. R. Durnford & Eaſt. 1 V. 572.

An inn-keeper who ſells liquor out of the houſe to all cuſtomers that apply for it, is ſubject to the bankrupt

The plaintiff, who was an inn-keeper, brought this action againſt the defendant for ſeiſing and taking his goods. The defendant pleaded the general iſſue, and proved that he took the goods as meſſenger under a commiſſion of bankrupt. And the queſtion was, whether the plaintiff was a trader?

Upon

Upon the trial before Buller, Juſtice, at the ſittings after laſt term for Weſtminſter, it appeared in evidence, that the plaintiff had kept a public-houſe for nine months, during which time he had ſold to three or four perſons about ſix gallons of ſpirits altogether. One of the inſtances was, that, having bought five gallons of ſpirits of one Bennett, he had deſired him to ſend two of the five into the country, to a perſon who had ordered it of him. It was alſo ſaid by his own ſervant, that if any perſon had ſent for liquor, he might have had it. The learned judge left the queſtion to the jury, with this direction, that if they were of opinion that the plaintiff had endeavoured to make a profit of his trading, and was ready to ſell to any perſon who applied to him, and not merely as a matter of favor, that then the quantum and extent of the trading was immaterial, and they ſhould find for the defendant. The jury having found for the defendant accordingly;

Bankrupt laws; however inconſiderable the extent of ſuch dealing, and the profits ariſing from it, may be. It was left to the jury whether the plaintiff had endeavoured to make a profit of his trading, and was ready to ſell to any who applied, and not merely as a matter of favor, and that then the quantum and extent of trading was immaterial, and the [illegible] find for the defendant, which the jury did. Motion for new trial, on the ground that the direction was contrary to law, or the finding of the jury contrary to evidence. New trial refuſed.

Erſkine now moved for a rule, to ſhew cauſe why there ſhould not be a new trial, on two grounds; either that this was a direction contrary to law; or that the finding of the jury was contrary to evidence. After obſerving, that, in order to ſubject a man to the bankrupt laws, it was neceſſary by the 21 Jac. I. c. 19. that he ſhould ſeek his living by trading; and that whether the facts found amounted to a trading, was a queſtion of law (a); he ſtated the queſtion to be, whether in point of law, the proportion of the plaintiff's trading out of the houſe, was ſufficient to make him a bankrupt. He admitted that, if the quantum of his trading was in proportion to his uſual and principal buſineſs, he was liable to the bankrupt laws; as in the caſe of Mayo and Archer (b), but but he contended that in the preſent caſe, the quantum of the plaintiff's dealing bore no ſuch proportion. That it had always been conſidered 'till very lately, that the quantum of the trading was material. It was ſo laid down by Lord Chief Baron Parker, in Buſcall v. Hogg (c), where the inſtances of trading of one Thickpenny, an inn-keeper, were much more numerous and ſtronger than the preſent: and though the court afterwards ſet aſide the nonſuit in that caſe, yet it was becauſe it did not appear to them, what proportion the trade in his inn bore, to his trading abroad, and out of doors. And Wilmot, Ch. J. ſaid, "that "if Thickpenny's trade and profits in his inn, "were much larger than his trade and profits "abroad out of his inn, he ſhould not think "him liable to the bankrupt laws." The diſtinction ſeemed to be this, that wherever a man follows one trade only, though his dealing be ever ſo ſmall, he is liable to the bankrupt-laws. But where he has another mode of getting his livelyhood, and his trading is only collateral, and bears but a ſmall proportion thereto, in that caſe the law will not raiſe a preſumption that he ſeeks to get his living by it. If that were ſo, either the learned judge's direction to the jury was wrong, or they have found a verdict not warranted by the evidence.

(a) Cowp. 745.

(b) 1 Stra. 513.

(c) 3 Wils. 146. Vide poſt IX. (16.)

ASHHURST, J.—I do not now conſider the queſtion of law to be governed by the quantum of the trading: but I take the rule to be this, that where it is a man's common or ordinary mode of dealing, or where, if any ſtranger, who applies, may be ſupplied with the commodity in which the other profeſſes to deal, and it is not ſold as a favour to any particular perſon, person, there the person so selling, is subject to the bankrupt laws.

BULLER, J.—The case of Bartholomew v. Sherwood (a), was much stronger than the present. On the trial of this cause I left the question to the jury, with this direction, that if they were of opinion that the plaintiff meant to sell spirits out of his house, and to get a profit by it, the quantity which he sold was immaterial, and he must be considered as a trader. It was proved at the trial, that the plaintiff lived in the public-house only nine months, during the course of which time, there could not be many instances adduced in evidence of his having sold spirits out of the house: but I particularly directed the jury to advert to the circumstance, of there not being any one instance of any person, who had applied to buy liquor, having been refused. That is the great point; for as to the extent of the dealing, and the profit which he made, it is immaterial: for if a man makes a considerable profit, he is not likely to become a bankrupt; it is only in cases where the profits of the trade are inconsiderable, that such an event is likely to take place. Now the circumstances here were, that from the time when the plaintiff took this house, he was willing to sell spirits to any person who applied: therefore, though the time was short, and the instances of his trading were few, yet I thought it proper to be left to the jury: and they found a verdict for the defendant.

Rule refused.

(a) Vide at the end of the case.

(a) Bartholomew and another, assignees of Davis, against Sherwood, M. 27 Geo. III. B. R.

This was tried before Mr. Baron Eyre, at the Summer assises at Oxford, 1786. The plaintiffs,

(a) Willett v. Hudson. E. 26 Geo. III. B. R. S. P. The question here was, if a farmer had dealt in plaintiffs, as assignees, brought an action of trover against the defendant, who claimed under an execution against the goods of the bankrupt.

in horses in such a manner as to make him a trader.

The only question was, whether Davis, the supposed bankrupt, was a trader, within the meaning of the statutes concerning bankrupts. It was contended that he was a dealer in horses: as to which it appeared in evidence, that Davis, at this time, and for a few years past, had rented a considerable farm at Whitchurch; and that he kept two, and occasionally three teams of horses, for the farming business. That previous to his taking this farm, he had lived with an uncle, during which time he attended several different fairs, and occasionally bought and sold horses; that after he took this farm, there were several instances of his attending fairs, and of every now and then buying a horse, which was not calculated for the farming business, and which he constantly sold again. It appeared, that during the course of two years, he had bought and sold five or six horses in this manner, two of which had been sold directly after he had bought them, for the sake of a guinea profit, and another was sold again within three days. No evidence being offered to contradict this on the part of the defendant, the judge left it to the jury on the plaintiff's evidence, and they found a verdict for the plaintiff.

A motion was made for a new trial last Michaelmas term, which, after argument, was refused. And Ashhurst, J. said, It is admitted on the part of the defendant, that this was a matter of evidence, and proper for the consideration of the jury. Then if it were proper to be left to them, and there was no evidence to contradict it, they were bound to find as they did. The general principle is right, that a farmer, as such, is not an object of the bankrupt laws; and if a farmer, in the course of his business, buys a horse, and after using him for some time, sells him again, that will not subject him to the bankrupt laws. But in this case the evidence is, that he bought horses for the express purpose of gaining by it.

BULLER, J.—It appears upon the evidence, that there were many instances of the bankrupt's buying horses which he could not use in his farming business, and others which he bought for the express purpose of selling again. Whether there were more or fewer instances, was proper to be left to the consideration of the jury.

It is like the case of a vintner, who if he sell only a few dozen of liquor to particular friends, cannot be made a bankrupt; but if he is desirous to sell to every person who applies, that will subject him to the bankrupt laws. But in all these cases the question is, whether the person buys and sells with a view to make a profit by it; and that is proper to be left to the consideration of the jury. Here it was left to them, and they have found that Davis was a trader.

Rule discharged.

Borthwick v. Carruthers. E. 27 G. III. B. R. Durnford & East. V. 648. If plaintiff reply to a plea of infancy, that defendant, after he attained 21, confirmed the promise, and defendant rejoin that he did not; plaintiff

To an action for goods sold and delivered, the defendant pleaded, amongst other things, infancy. The plaintiff replied, that after the defendant had attained his age of twenty-one years, he ratified and confirmed the several promises and undertakings, &c. To this the defendant rejoined, that he did not, after he had attained his age of twenty-one years, ratify and confirm the promises, &c. and thereupon issue issue was joined. On the trial before Buller, J. at the last sittings at Westminster, the plaintiff proved a promise by the defendant, and rested his case there. The counsel for the defendant contended that the plaintiff had not proved the whole of his replication; for that it was incumbent on him to shew that the defendant was of age at the time when the promise proved was made. But Buller, J. being of opinion that the proof of infancy lay on the defendant, within whose knowledge the fact was, and who wished to take advantage of it, the plaintiff obtained a verdict.

plaintiff need only prove a promise, and defendant must shew he was under age at the time. The judge of opinion the proof of infancy lay on the defendant, and verdict for the plaintiff. Motion for new trial, on the ground of misdirection. New trial refused.

A motion was made by Gibbs, to set aside the verdict and enter a non-suit, upon the ground that the plaintiff having alledged in his replication that the defendant was of age, at the time of confirming the promise, it became necessary for him to prove him to be so. That it was a material allegation to support the plaintiff's replication; and if it were necessary to alledge it, it was also necessary to prove it.

ASHHURST, J.—This was a fact, which, if true, rested within the knowledge of the defendant, and which it might be impossible for the plaintiff to be able to prove. In general, such a fact is proved by a copy of the register of the baptism, which the plaintiff may not know where to find; and in some instances, as in case of a private baptism, is not possibly within his power, therefore the proof of the fact lay upon the defendant.

BULLER, J.—I do not agree with the general position, to the extent in which it has been laid down, that the plaintiff is bound to prove every thing that he alledges. For in actions on the game laws, although it is necessary to alledge, that the defendant was not qualified, yet the plaintiff need only prove the offence, and then, if the defendant is really qualified, it is incumbent on him to ſhew it.

 yet

In the preſent caſe, the defence ariſes from a perſonal incapacity to contract, which lies only within the defendant's knowledge, and which, therefore, he ought to prove.

Grose, J.—It was ſufficient in this caſe for the plaintiff to prove the promiſe; and it was incumbent on the defendant to prove infancy, if he had meant to take advantage of it; for it is to be preſumed that when a man contracts, he is of proper age to contract, until the contrary be ſhewn.

Rule refuſed.

Doe, on the demiſe of Freeland, v. Burt. E. 27 Geo. III. B. R. Durnford & Eaſt. I V. 701. A demiſe of premiſes in Weſtminſter, late in the occupation of A. particularly deſcribing them, part of which was a yard, does not paſs a cellar ſituate under that yard, which was then in the occupation of B. another tenant of the leſſor. And the leſſor, on an ejectment brought to recover the cellar is not eſtopped by his deed from going into evidence, to ſhew that the cellar was not intended to be demiſed. Motion for a non-ſuit to be entered, upon the ground that the Ejectment, for a cellar and wine vaults, in Weſtminſter, tried before Buller, at the ſittings after laſt term. The defendant claimed under a leaſe from the leſſor of the plaintiff, of certain parts of a meſſuage, ſituated on the weſt ſide of Swallow-ſtreet, deſcribed to be one room on the ground-floor, and a cellar thereunder, and a vault contiguous and adjoining thereto; and three rooms, together with the ground whereon the ſame now ſtand, and together with a piece of ground on the north ſide, particularly deſcribing it, with an exception of a right of way. It was admitted that the vault in queſtion was under this piece of ground, which was a yard, and the whole were deſcribed to have been late in the occupation of A.

The defendant reſted his title on the maxim that cujus eſt ſolum, ejus eſt uſque ad cœlum & ad inferos. The leſſor of the plaintiff offered evidence to ſhew that at the time of the leaſe the cellar in queſtion was in the occupation of B. another tenant: and therefore that it could

could not have been the intention of the parties that it ſhould paſs by the leaſe to the defendant; and that the defendant had not claimed it, 'till after the expiration of that leaſe. The defendant's counſel objected to this evidence, becauſe the leſſor of the plaintiff was eſtopped by his deed, from ſaying it was not meant to paſs. But Buller, J. was of opinion that the evidence was admiſſible; and the plaintiff obtained a verdict, with liberty to the defendant to enter a non-ſuit, if the objection was well founded.

the judge had permitted evidence that was not admiſſible. Rule refuſed.

Mingay now ſhewed cauſe againſt a rule for entering a non-ſuit. The evidence offered was not contradictory to, but in explanation of the deed. It is evident that it was not the intention of the parties, that the cellar ſhould paſs by the defendant's leaſe, becauſe every thing which was intended to be leaſed, was particularly deſcribed, and no notice is taken of the cellar. And the leſſee enjoys premiſes which anſwer to every part of the deſcription in the leaſe. Beſides the premiſes intended to be demiſed, are deſcribed as late in the poſſeſſion of A. and this cellar was in the occupation of B. According to the deſcription of the premiſes, therefore, the defendant has no claim to the cellar, unleſs he is intitled by the ſtrict operation of law, for want of an exception of that, which was not intended to be leaſed. And it is to be conſidered, that in London and Weſtminſter, it is not unuſual for landlords to let the buildings above ground to one tenant, and thoſe underneath to another; ſo that the ſtrict rule of law cannot be applied to caſes like the preſent. But a farther argument alſo ariſes from the circumſtance of the cellar being in leaſe to another perſon, at the time when the defendant's defendant's leaſe was granted; ſo that the leſſor of the plaintiff could not have granted it, even if he had wiſhed ſo to do.

Bearcroft and S. Heywood, contra.

The leſſor of the plaintiff is eſtopped by his own deed, from recovering theſe premiſes, for he is the leſſor of the defendant, as well as of the plaintiff; and whatever right any third perſon might have, he cannot diſpute the defendant's title. The rule of law is clear, and the queſtion is as to the application of it. The principle is, that every grantor is eſtopped not only from ſaying that he did not grant, but that he had no eſtate in the premiſes. Now this ejectment is for a cellar, which is locally ſituated under the ground which it is admitted was demiſed to the defendant: and the leaſe paſſed every thing which was under it. But ſuppoſing the ſtrict rule of law could not be applied to the preſent caſe, and that the intention of the parties could be enquired into, it is clear that the leſſor of the plaintiff did not intend to except the cellar in the defendant's leaſe: for whatever was intended to be excepted, is mentioned in the leaſe; there being an exception of a right of way. As to the defendant's not claiming 'till after the expiration of the other leaſe to B. that does not aſſiſt the right of the leſſor of the plaintiff: for the ſame queſtion of law ſtill ariſes: and it was no objection to the leſſor's granting the cellar to the defendant, becauſe it was then on leaſe to B. for perhaps the defendant was not to take poſſeſſion, 'till after the expiration of the other leaſe.

ASHHURST, J.—It appears plainly from the evidence, that this objection is againſt the juſtice of the caſe: for it was not in the contemplation templation of the parties, at the time of the leaſe, to paſs the cellar; and it appears, that, for three or four years after the defendant's leaſe, the leſſor of the plaintiff received rent, from the former tenant of the cellar. The only queſtion is, whether the court are abſolutely bound, by the terms of this leaſe, to put the conſtruction on it, for which the defendant contends. Now, it ſeems to me, that the conſtruction of all deeds muſt be made with a reference to their ſubject-matter; and it may be neceſſary to put a different conſtruction on leaſes made in populous cities, from that on thoſe made in the country. We know that in London, different perſons have ſeveral freeholds over the ſame ſpot; different parts of the ſame houſe are let out to different people. That is the caſe in the inns of court. Now it would be very extraordinary to contend, that, if a perſon purchaſed a ſett of chambers, then leaſed them, and afterwards purchaſed another ſett, under them, the after-purchaſed chambers would paſs under the leaſe.

In the preſent caſe, conſidering the nature of this property, it was proper to let in evidence, to ſhew the ſtate and condition of it at the time when the leaſe was granted.

Prima facie, indeed, the property in the cellar would paſs by the demiſe; but that might be regulated and explained by circumſtances: therefore I am of opinion, that, conſidering all the circumſtances of this caſe, it was proper to receive the evidence offered at the trial, which, when received, proved that the cellar was not intended to be paſſed by the demiſe to the defendant.

 BULLER,

BULLER, J.—Where there is a conveyance in general terms, of all that acre called Black-acre, every thing which belongs to Black-acre paſſes with it.

And there the rule, which has been mentioned, primâ facie obtains. But whether parcel or not of the thing demiſed, is always matter of evidence. Suppoſe the premiſes in queſtion had been the inheritance of another perſon, at the time of this demiſe, inſtead of their being in leaſe, they clearly would not have been parcel of this demiſe. Then their being in leaſe to another perſon, under this plaintiff, cannot vary the queſtion, whether parcel or not. In the next place, it is very clear, on inſpecting the leaſe itſelf; theſe words cannot receive the general conſtruction of the law. This is a leaſe of a part of a meſſuage, conſiſting of one room on the ground-floor, with a cellar thereunder: now, if the argument for the plaintiff would hold, the cellar would have paſſed with the room on the ground-floor, without particularly ſpecifying it. Then a deſcription of another part of the premiſes is, "of ground, together with three rooms which "ſtand on it:" which ſhews that the parties have particularly deſcribed every thing which was intended to paſs. Then follows a demiſe of the yard deſcribed, with the ſame particularities, ſpecifying the abuttals and the dimenſions.

GROSE, J.—This is a demiſe of premiſes in Weſtminſter, and the queſtion is, whether it appears to have been the intention of the parties to demiſe this cellar. But every thing which was meant to be demiſed is particularly deſcribed in the leaſe, and no notice is taken of this. It might as well be contended, that a leaſe

a leaſe of an houſe in the Adelphi, would paſs the warehouſes underneath. But it would be the greateſt injuſtice to put the general conſtruction of law, on grants of the houſes in that building; for we all know that thoſe houſes are held under titles intirely diſtinct from the cellars and warehouſes underneath. And here the premiſes demiſed are deſcribed to have been lately in the occupation of A. And if the parties had intended that this cellar in queſtion ſhould have paſſed, it would have been deſcribed as being in the poſſeſſion of B. But this cellar not being a part of the premiſes, nor appurtenant to them, did not paſs under this leaſe.

Rule diſcharged.

Goodtitle, on the demiſe of Eſtwick, againſt Way, E. 27 Geo. III. B. R. Durnford and Eaſt, 1 V. 735.

A paper containing words of preſent contract, with an agreement that the intended leſſee ſhould take poſſeſſion immediately, and that a leaſe ſhould be executed in future, operates only as an agreement for a leaſe, and not as a leaſe itſelf; and therefore it need not be ſtamped, if executed before 23 G. III. c. 58. The truſtee of a term to ſatisfy creditors, not having notice of an agreement for a

UPON a motion for a new trial, where Bearcroft, Bower, and Milles, argued for the defendant, and Plumer for the leſſor of the plaintiff, the court took time to conſider, and now

ASHHURST, J. delivered the opinion of the court as follows:

This was an ejectment brought by the leſſor of the plaintiff, claiming under a demiſe made by Lord Abingdon to him, by deed, dated in 1784, where the truſt of the term was for the benefit of creditors. The defendant claimed under a leaſe, as it was opened by the defendant's counſel, (at the laſt Oxford aſſiſes, before Groſe, J.) dated in 1779; which was prior in point of time to the demiſe to the leſſor of the plaintiff. The agreement, when produced in evidence, appeared to be on paper unſtamped, and not under ſeal; it imported to be articles of agreement between Lord Abingdon and the defendant's father, by which Lord Abingdon, in conſideration of a ſum of money

to

a leaſe, before the grant of the term, may maintain an ejectment against the tenant in poſſeſſion, under the agreement. A leaſe in writing, though not under ſeal, cannot be given in evidence, unleſs it is ſtamped. Whether the judge was right or wrong in his opinion, the defendant not being able at law to make a defence, the court refuſed a new trial.

to be paid by Way, ſold him the goods in his houſe at Rycot. The ſubſequent part of the agreement was as follows: " And further the " ſaid Earl of Abingdon doth hereby agree to " lett, and the ſaid Richard Way agrees to " rent and take for the term of ſeven, four" teen, or twenty-one years, in caſe the ſaid
" Earl ſhall ſo long live, at and for the rent " of 1,400 l. a year, to be paid half-yearly, (the
" ſaid Earl to pay or allow all manner of tithes
" and taxes, both ordinary and extraordinary,)
" all his eſtate, &c. at Rycot. It is agreed
" the ſaid Richard Way ſhall enter upon all the " ſaid premiſes immediately, but not commence " payment of rent until Lady-day next. It " is further agreed, that leaſes with the uſual
" covenants ſhall be made and executed
" by the parties, on or before Michaelmas
" next."

On the production of this, it was contended, that this being produced as a leaſe, and not being ſtamped, it could not be read in evidence; and, the judge being of that opinion, the cauſe was not further gone into, and the plaintiff had a verdict. A motion has been made for a new trial, on the ground that this was not in fact a leaſe, though it was ſo opened by the defendant's counſel, but only an agreement. On the part of the plaintiff, it was contended, that this is a leaſe, being by words de præſenti; for which was cited Proſſer v. Philips, at Niſi Prius, before Mr. Baron Perrot; or taking it not to be a leaſe, but only an agreement for a leaſe, then it gave the defendant only an equitable title, which cannot be ſet up in a court of law againſt the plaintiff, who has a legal title. So that either way the verdict was right.

On the part of the defendant it was contended, that though, in common parlance, this may be termed a leaſe, it is in law only evidence of a parol demiſe, it not being under ſeal, and that being only matter of evidence, it need not be ſtamped. And as to the other objection, they anſwer, that the defendant's agreement is prior to the demiſe to the plaintiff; and that they could have proved that the plaintiff, at the time of the defendant's title, knew of the demiſe to him; and that the conveyance to him being a voluntary conveyance, he ſtands in the place of Lord Abingdon, and muſt be conſidered as a truſtee for the defendant; and the court will not permit him to bring an ejectment againſt his ceſtui que truſt. As to the queſtion whether this is or is not a leaſe, we are all of opinion, that this is not a leaſe (a). The caſe in Noy 128, of Sturgeon and Paynter, is in point. In the preſent caſe, there is alſo an expreſs ſtipulation that leaſes ſhould be drawn before Michaelmas; therefore, it plainly was not the intention of the parties that ſuch agreement ſhould operate as a leaſe; but only that it ſhould give the defendant a right to the immediate poſſeſſion, 'till the leaſe could be drawn. Had it been a leaſe, and as ſuch it was offered in evidence, we think that the determination was right, that it ought to be ſtamped. For as to the argument, that the word leaſe is inſerted in the Stamp Act amongſt other inſtruments, which are all ſpecialties, and therefore that it ſhall not be intended that the legiſlature meant to include leaſes not by deed, we do not think any ſuch intention can be inferred. The only object of the legiſlature was, to raiſe a revenue from certain things

(a) Vide Cro. El. 33. 486.

enu-

enumerated. There is no reaſon why one of the things ſhould be charged rather than another. It is matter of mere poſitive inſtitution; and, as it falls within the words, there is nothing in the nature of the thing to take it out of them. But if we thought that this had been a ſurpriſe upon the defendant, and that, by granting a new trial, we could enable the defendant to make uſe of this paper, as an equitable agreement, and to ſet it up as a valid objection, to preclude the plaintiff from bringing his ejectment, we perhaps ſhould not refuſe it.

The ground on which the defendant reſts his title is this: it is ſaid that the leſſor of the plaintiff only repreſents Lord Abingdon, it being a voluntary conveyance, and is to be conſidered as a truſtee for the deſendant, and as ſuch he ſhall not bring an ejectment againſt his own ceſtui que truſt. If we were to decide that, it would be going a great deal further than has ever yet been done. The only cases, where this principle has been adopted, are, where the leſſor of the plaintiff has been clearly and unequivocally a truſtee for the defendant; and it would have been of courſe, for the court of Chancery to have decreed a conveyance to him. It is not neceſſary for us to ſay, what a court of Chancery might do in the preſent caſe. But thus much we may ſay, that it is not a mere voluntary conveyance to the leſſor of the plaintiff. It is made to him as a truſtee, for the benefit of creditors; and it is the ſame as if a mortgage had been made to any individual creditor, and he had brought the ejectment. In that caſe, it might perhaps be contended, that, as each party had an equitable claim upon Lord Abingdon, whoever firſt got the legal title to the estate, ought not to be divested of it by a court of equity. But we do not mean to give any opinion as to this. It is enough for us to say, that this being at least a doubtful equity, which the defendant sets up against a legal title, this court, or a Judge at Nisi Prius, would not, and ought not, to interpose; and, therefore, it would be nugatory to send it down to a new trial.

got

Rule discharged.

Edmonson v. Machell, T. 27 Geo. III. B. R. Durnford and East, 2 V. 4. Where a new trial is moved for, on the ground of a mis-direction in point of law, if the court see that justice has been done between the parties, they will not set aside the verdict, nor enter into a discussion of the question of law.

On a motion for a new trial, Mr. Baron Perryn, before whom the cause was tried at the last assises at Lancaster, reported, that this was an action of trespass, for assaulting and beating the plaintiff's niece, per quod servitium amisit. The niece lived with her aunt in Lancaster, as her servant; her mother lived in a different part of the same county; and, by permission of the plaintiff, the niece went, in the month of March last, to see her mother; at which time the assault was made. The case proved on the part of the plaintiff, was aggravated with many circumstances of ill treatment, (which were particularly related in the detail of the evidence.) Another cause stood next in the paper for trial, which was brought by the niece against the same defendant, for the same assault. The counsel for the plaintiff declared their intention of not trying that cause, and withdrew the record. The defendant's counsel contended, that the jury could only give damages, in this cause, for the loss of service; the plaintiff's counsel insisted on the contrary. The learned Judge thought the aunt, in this case, stood in loco parentis; and as in actions brought by a father for deflowering his daughter, whereby he lost her service, large damages had been often given, he thought this caſe bore an analogy to that, and that the jury, upon the whole of the caſe, had a right to give ſuch damages as they thought juſt, conſidering the ſituation and circumſtances of the defendant, who was proved to be a captain in the militia, the qualification for which was 300 l. a year. The jury, after conſideration, found a verdict for the plaintiff, damages 300 l. with which the learned Judge declared himſelf not diſſatisfied.

 this

This application was made laſt term, on the ground of a miſ-direction to the jury. The defendant's counſel denied that they had entered into any compromiſe, to permit the jury to take into conſideration, in the meaſure of their damages, the injury which the niece herſelf had ſuſtained, and which was the ſubject of the next action, in conſideration of the plaintiff's counſel withdrawing the record in the next action. But it was admitted that the damages were not exceſſive, according to the evidence then given, if the jury could take both the actions into their conſideration at once.

After a queſtion put this day to the plaintiff's counſel, whether the niece would enter into a rule not to proceed in the action, in which ſhe herſelf which was plaintiff, was anſwered in the affirmative,

Ashhurst, J. ſaid, that the Judges of this court had conſulted with the reſt of the Judges on this caſe, and the reſult of their opinion was, without giving any poſitive opinion upon the queſtion of law, that this rule ought to be diſcharged. An application for a new trial, is an application to the diſcretion of the court, who ought to exerciſe that diſcretion in ſuch a manner as will beſt anſwer

 the

the ends of juſtice. It does not require much penetration to ſee what are the ends of juſtice in the preſent caſe. It is certain that the girl herſelf ought to have ſome ſatisfaction for the injury ſhe received; and as ſhe conſents not to try her action, the queſtion is, whether juſtice has not already been done: for it was admitted at the bar, that, if the injury ſhe ſuſtained could be taken into conſideration, in this action brought by the aunt, the damages which the jury have given are by no means exceſſive. Then there does not appear to be any ground for the defendant to call on the diſcretion of the court, to ſend this cauſe down to be re-tried, on a technical objection in point of law. And all the Judges are unanimouſly of opinion, that, as complete and ſubſtantial juſtice has been done, there is no reaſon to grant a new trial.

On the plaintiff's undertaking to pay over to the niece the damages, after deducting the coſts of this action, and on the niece's undertaking not to proceed in the action in which ſhe herſelf was plaintiff, rule diſcharged without coſts.

END OF VOL. II.

This Day is published,

In three large VOLS. Octavo, price £. 1. 2s. bound,

THE ATTORNEY'S VADE-MECUM,

AND

CLIENT'S INSTRUCTOR,

Treating of ACTIONS, such as are now most in use; of PROSECUTING and DEFENDING them; of the PLEADINGS and LAW; also of HUE and CRY. The subjects arranged in a clear and perspicuous manner.

By JOHN MORGAN, of the INNER TEMPLE, BARRISTER at LAW.

Printed by his Majesty's Law Printers, for T. CADELL, in the Strand; P. URIEL, Inner Temple-Lane; and T. WHIELDON, in Fleet-Street.

 The third Volume consisting of PRECEDENTS, adapted to the Work, and arranged according to its order, many of them drawn by the ablest pleaders; others translated from the best Latin entries; and all revised by the author; may be had separate. Price 7s. in boards.