FRENCH TAKE OVER ALL COAL AND COKE OF RUHR FACTORIES

Enforce Payment of Coal Tax; Seizure of Railway Stations Means Only Electric Cars Now Pass Freely Between Occupied Area and Unoccupied Germany.

Dusseldorf, June 16.—Plans to take control of the coal and coke and supplies of all the factories in the Ruhr were announced to-day at the French headquarters here.

A Berlin dispatch last night said French troops yesterday had occupied railway stations from Dortmund to Kray, including the important junctions of Langendreer and Bochum.

Dortmund and other large towns were completely isolated. Nobody was able to enter or leave without a French permit.

Yesterday Paul Kellerman, director-general of the God Hope Mines at Oberhausen, was sentenced by a French court-martial to five years imprisonment and a great fine for refusing to make reparations coal deliveries to the French and failure to pay the coal tax of forty per cent.

The fine, which amounts to five times the coal tax in arrears, is the equivalent of 24,000,000 French francs.

London Financial Times Deals With Statement to G. T. R. Shareholders

London Times and Financial News Also State Opinions

London, June 16.—(Canadian Press Cable)—In a strangely worded editorial, The Financial Times professes amazement at the Canadian reply to the memorial from Grand Trunk shareholders asking for a compassionate grant.

What was regarded as a test of good faith on the part of the Government in its relations to British capital is calmly relegated to the adjudication of a Junior Minister and two railway officials.

VICTORIA HOST TO U.S. LEGISLATORS

Five Senators and Twenty-Six Congressmen Arrive On Transport

Have Been Touring Alaska to Study National Defence Problems

Strengthening the bond of friendship between the United States and Canada, Victoria acted as host to-day to five United States Senators and 26 Congressmen who arrived on the United States transport Cambrai from Alaska and put into Victoria on their way to Seattle for a few hours.

Most of the members of the party were accompanied by their wives, and finding it was possible to spare a few rooms at such as the first foreign port since the party left New York on April 27, eagerly accepted the cordial invitation extended through the Chamber of Commerce to tour such of Vancouver Island as possible in the fleet of automobiles rallied for the occasion.

Customs and immigration regulations were advised immediately it was made known that the visitors desired to put into port here. As the transport had not touched at any other foreign ports on her journey from Alaska, the regulations did not apply, and met by a pilot she pulled straight to the Government dock.

A radio message from the transport stated that the courtesy extended was greatly appreciated by the entire party.

Senator Warren in the course of an interview explained the object of the trip. The Congressmen and Senators left New York on April 27 to visit the Hawaiian Islands and with the object of securing direct information on matters pertaining to national defence in the main, and other subjects on which they had to pass legislation.

They passed through the Panama Canal, and made, first of all, a study of conditions generally, so that the Senators would be able to consider with a far more intimate knowledge than they would otherwise do any future legislation.

Alaska, they found a territory of vast importance.

The Senator had no comments to make as to the matter of any recommendations which might be made as a result of the visit.

This is not a junketing trip by any means, the Senator added, and we have acquired a lot of valuable information. The trip is taken at the invitation of the Military Committee of the League of Nations.

It was owing to a bright idea of Congressman James H. MacLafferty, who hails from the Sixth District (Oakland and Alameda), California, that many friends in Victoria where he used to call over 20 years ago.

Among the friends he was inquiring about was the late Mr. Thomas Shott.

RUSSIAN BANDITS DERAIL TRAIN AND KILL PASSENGERS

Moscow, June 16.—Already the bodies of seven persons have been taken from the wreckage of the Moscow-Khar'kov Express train, which was derailed yesterday near Khar'kov by bandits. It is believed other bodies are still buried in the debris.

PART OF VILLAGE IN QUEBEC DESTROYED BY A FOREST FIRE

Lac au Saumon, Que., June 16.—Part of the village here was destroyed by a forest fire this morning.

Lac au Saumon is situated in Matapedia County, Quebec, and the Price Brothers' Company has several mills in that district and large timber limits.

Fredericton, N.B., June 16.—Forest fires which have been burning eastward in Restigouche County have now covered a large territory at the junction of Restigouche, Victoria and Northumberland Counties, extending well into the latter in the vicinity of the Nepisiguit Lakes, one of the richest timber stands of the province.

A fire near the mouth of Tracey Brook, which has been burning for some time, was reported to be of a serious nature to-day.

CURZON EXPECTED TO SIGN TREATY

Delegates at Lausanne Believe Pact Will Be Arranged

Greece Will Not Abandon Discussion With Turkey

Lausanne, June 16.—Foreign Secretary Curzon of Great Britain is expected to come to Lausanne to sign the peace treaty with the Turks, which despite the continued complications over the question of the Ottoman debt the delegates persistently believe will be negotiated.

Great Britain is taking the lead in opposing any adjournment of the conference.

The French are no less eager for a definite settlement of the Near Eastern problem, but feel they can not yield to the Turkish demands in regard to interest payments on the Ottoman debt, involving the loss of 600,000 francs a day to French bondholders.

M. Venizelos has assured the Allies Greece has no intention of abandoning the conference.

EVELYN NELSON, MOVIE ACTRESS, ENDED HER LIFE

Los Angeles, June 16.—Evelyn Nelson, twenty-three-year-old film actress who had played in comedy roles, was found dead in a gas-filled room in her home by her mother, Mrs. George P. Nelson, according to a report made to the police late last night.

Two notes were found in the room, the police say, one of which said she intended to end her life because "she was tired."

CANDIDATES WILL HAVE BUSY WEEK

Ontario Speeches Next Week Will Lead Up to Election June 25

Toronto, June 16.—The nearly 200 candidates for the 111 seats which comprise the Ontario Legislature are actively engaged preparing for the final work of the campaign. June 25 will be election day, and it is expected the names of the majority of those nominated will be found on the ballots on that day.

EFFORT TO FORM A WHEAT BOARD

Alberta-Saskatchewan Conference Held in Winnipeg Attended By Two Premiers and Others

Winnipeg, June 16.—Upon high authority, The Winnipeg Tribune says it has learned that the conference which is being held here to-day on the proposed wheat board was called by the Premiers of Alberta and Saskatchewan for the purpose of putting it plainly up to the United Grain Growers, Ltd., and the Saskatchewan "for the purpose of putting it plainly up to the United Grain Growers, Ltd., and the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company to find men to man the proposed board, or work out at once a co-operative voluntary pool."

SECESSION NOT WANTED, SAYS NEW BRUNSWICK PREMIER

Fredericton, N. B., June 16.—Referring to talk of secession during an address last night before the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, Hon. P. J. Veniot, Premier of New Brunswick, said there was no room for it in the maritime provinces.

LEADER IN CHURCH UNION MOVEMENT

REV. DR. G. C. PIDGEON moved the church union resolution which was adopted on a majority vote at a session of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada in Port Arthur, Ontario, this week and he is continuing to work actively for the consummation of union. He is a Torontonian.

URGED TO SUPPORT OLD CHURCH PLAN

Presbyterians Appealed to in Advertisement By Anti-Unionists

Bills in Commons and Legislatures to Be Opposed

Toronto, June 16.—(Canadian Press)—Any impression that the anti-unionists of the Presbyterian Church of Canada have given up the fight against organic union with the Methodist and Congregational churches following the Presbyterian General Assembly's vote at Port Arthur this week favoring union, was dispelled by the appearance in local newspapers to-day of an advertisement signed by leading Ontario opponents of union stating the Presbyterian Church would be continued and asking every member of the Presbyterian Church Association to continue to work for its constitutional and religious liberty.

The notice was signed by John McMillan, of Toronto; Rev. J. W. Macnamara, of Toronto, and C. S. McDonald, of Brampton.

FAMOUS NEWSPAPER MAN HERE ON VISIT

Martin J. Egan Arrives to Meet Wife, Who is Also Literary Celebrity

Martin J. Egan, famous journalist and financial adviser, arrived from the Mainland this afternoon to meet his wife, Mrs. Egan will arrive on the Empress of Canada, due to-morrow morning from the Orient.

Mr. Egan since 1914 has been with J. P. Morgan & Company, of New York. He is among the most distinguished of the newspapermen who have been identified with the press of this city, where he was formerly city editor of The Times.

After leaving here he graduated in law, and was admitted to the California bar. Mr. Egan was a special writer for newspapers and magazines in the United States and Canada for some time, and was with the Associated Press in New York, London, Tokio, Peking, and Manila.

He acted as correspondent during the Spanish-American War, and the Philippine Insurrection. From 1903 to 1912 he was editor of The Manila Times. While in the Orient he organized the Far Eastern service of the Associated Press, and held for some time an important post under the Roosevelt administration.

In 1905 when in Yokohama Mr. Egan married Miss Eleanor Franklin, and under her name of "Eleanor Franklin Egan" Mrs. Egan is almost as well known as her husband in literary circles. She has written widely about many sections of the world and was at the function which proved fatal to General Sir Frederick Maude at Baghdad which she later described in an interesting paper about Mesopotamia. Mrs. Egan has been engaged in collecting data about present conditions in the Orient.

FRENCH CABINET UPHELD ON VOTE

Confidence Expressed by Chamber When Domestic Policy Debated

No Compromise With Revolutionary Factions

Paris, June 16.—The Chamber of Deputies, in addition to giving the Poincare Ministry a vote of confidence on its domestic policy last night, adopted a motion condemning compromise with revolutionaries and opponents of the constitution. The vote was 546 to 18.

Another motion meeting with the Chamber's confidence that the Government would respect legislation dealing with the laws setting the church and religious orders. This vote was 545 to 11.

300 CHINESE MINERS DROWNED WHEN PUMPS STOPPED BY SOLDIERS

Meddlesome Army Men Cut Off Electric Power At Tsaochwang and Disaster Followed; Mine Is Second Largest in China; Operated By Chinese.

Shanghai, June 16.—Three hundred Chinese coal miners were drowned at Tsaochwang yesterday when meddlesome soldiers cut off the electric power, stopping the pumps, according to advices received here to-day.

The scene of the wholesale fatality is the second largest mine in China. It is owned and operated exclusively by Chinese, the only two foreigners at present at the plant being two Germans who are installing new machinery.

ALBERTA'S FINEST CROP REPORT IS FROM BASSANO

Calgary, June 16.—F. W. Crandall, a farmer of the Bassano district, has 150 acres of Fall rye that is now standing four feet two inches high. "Every part of the field I have visited measures within an inch or two of that height," said Mr. Crandall, who is in Calgary.

JAS. LARKIN NO LONGER SECRETARY OF IRISH UNION

London, June 16.—A Dublin dispatch to The Times says that "The Voice of Labor" publishes to-day an announcement to the effect that in view of the recent seizure of Liberty Hall by James Larkin and his charges of fraud against the executive of the Transport Workers' Union, Larkin, by unanimous decision of the executive, will be suspended as secretary of the union.

COUNCIL TO NAME MANAGER; MAYOR ENDS ALL STRIFE

New Controller to Co-ordinate All Departments; Will Be Victoria Man

Hayward Sweeps Away Council Crisis; New Unity Among Aldermen

Victoria's city government will shortly be put under the general direction of a controller or manager who will be a Victoria man, with City Treasurer E. C. Smith acting as head of the financial department, as a result of decisions reached by the City Council at Mayor Reginald Hayward's "peace dinner" last night.

The Mayor last night eased probably the most serious crisis the City Hall has faced in years, ended all discord among Council members, caused the withdrawal of Alderman Leeming's resignation as finance committee chairman, and brought about a unity which yesterday seemed impossible. To-day, as a result, the Council is lined up behind a reorganization policy, the main points of which are:

A controller will be appointed to direct all City Hall departments, co-ordinating them and improving efficiency wherever possible. He will not interfere with department heads but will be the Council's chief adviser on general policy and all business will go through his hands to the Council.

The duties of the controller and the treasurer will be drafted for the approval of the Council by the Mayor and Aldermen Leeming and Sargent.

Only Victoria men will be considered for the controller's position. Applications for the post will be called for as soon as the Council has agreed upon the controller's exact duties. City officials may apply for the position if they so desire.

City Treasurer Smith will be made absolute head of the treasury department.

Medical Men's Opinions Differ About New York X-Ray Cancer Experiment

Woman Treated With X-Rays of 250,000 Volts

New York, June 16.—Marked improvement in the condition of Miss Anna Elin, of Spring Valley, N.Y., was reported last night from the ward in Bellevue Hospital to which she was removed after having been exposed to X-rays of 250,000 volts for fifty-six hours in an effort to effect a cure of abdominal cancer. Dr. I. Seth Hirsch, director of the Bellevue X-ray Laboratory, said he was highly pleased with the result of his experiment.

While cancer experts at Bellevue assert the improved condition of Miss Elin made it possible to hope for a complete cure, Dr. James E. University and the Memorial Hospital, predicted the patient would be injured for the remainder of her life by the high voltage.

"STOP THE STRUTTING" EX-PREMIER'S WARNING

Conference Table is Only Solution, He Says

London, June 16.—The Germans have tried another one. Inasmuch as the Allied Press without exception is agreed in describing it as a great improvement over the first, it is hardly worth while taking up time and space to demonstrate how the essentials of this more favored document were contained in its predecessor. Physically it is a decided advance on the first note. It is crisp and condensed and does not include in its pretentiousness of argument. You should never attempt to argue with an angry man who is brandishing a bludgeon. The second German note avoids this provocation.

It also suggests a number of substantial guarantees for payment of loans to be raised for reparations purposes. I cannot pretend to assess the value that would be attached to these "guzzes" by prospective borrowers. I have no doubt they would add materially to the security of the investment. But this array of securities standing alone will not entice an investor to risk his money on a German reparations loan. He will look for Germany as a whole and not in parts. He will want to know what is likely to happen to that great country during coming years and to its industry, its politics, its people, and its people. A railway which collects its rates and fares in a corrupt currency is of no use as security for any loan. A customs revenue collected in a fugitive coin is equally worthless.

The only reliable basis for a loan is a stable Germany. You can have no stable Germany until you settle reparations. That is, therefore, the first essential preliminary to all discussions on "guzzes" be they "productive" or otherwise.

Hence the propositions that really matter in the German note are not those which give a schedule of guarantees, but those which bear on the fixation of the reparations which Germany is to be called upon to pay. On this question the note does not increase the sum which the first note estimated as the limit of German capacity. But it re-affirms the readiness of the German government to submit consideration of the capacity of Germany to pay to an impartial tribunal which places at the disposal of this body all material which is necessary to enable it to arrive at a just conclusion.

It proceeds to suggest that all further discussions of subjects at issue between the parties should take place at a conference rather than by interchange of notes. How can any unprejudiced person refuse to recognize the essential reasonableness of this part of the offer. It is common ground that the annuities imposed upon Germany in May, 1921, demand modification. Even Poincare proceeds on that assumption. There is, therefore, a most important and highly intricate figure to be ascertained. What annuity can Germany pay? And when will she be in a position to pay?

THROUGH FRAUD WOMAN LOST HER LIFE'S SAVINGS

Winnipeg, June 16.—Believing she had found the path to untold riches, Mrs. Jennie Misher, of this city, invested in a money making machine and to-day she told the police she had been swindled out of $4,000, her life savings.

The machine was made up of two shaped blocks of hardwood. Specially-prepared paper was put between the blocks along with "real" money and pressed down by iron screws. After a certain length of time, she was told, the duplication would be complete. She removed the screws to-day and found nothing but waste paper.

Her "friend" had disappeared.

EMPLOYMENT REPORTS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Ottawa, June 16.—A decided improvement in employment conditions throughout Canada during May is announced by the Department of Labor. The improvement was especially noted in building and construction, mining and logging. At the beginning of May the percentage of unemployment among members of the trade unions was 4.6, as against 6.8 at the beginning of April. Finis in all except the Maritime Provinces reported largely increased staffs, the gains being especially pronounced in Quebec and Ontario.

Will baby live?

That is the question which so many anxious mothers are forced to ask themselves. And to thousands of them Virol has given the answer "Yes." Time and again, when even the doctor has despaired of Baby, Virol has saved that precious life.

BABY FIRMS—At birth he was so small and weak that his life was despaired of. On Virol he soon improved, and is now a plump, strong, happy child.

The essential foods which Virol contains are prepared in such a way that even the feeblest digestion can take them. Gently and gradually "wasting" is arrested; the crisis passes; Baby gains strength and weight, and the "Virol smile" supplants the strained look.

Give your Baby Virol before it is too late.

Make Your Dream—Bungalow Come True

A BUSINESS woman has it in her power by means of a Mutual Life profit-participating endowment policy, to make her dream of a cosy little home of her own an actual reality. She pays in premiums a fixed sum each year. She feels no undue strain. She lives in comfort. But the years of youthful energy and business capacity are building a future for her. She is accomplishing something.

Too often the woman in business reaches the climax of her earning power before she has made any preparation for her future. Too late she finds nothing ahead but the prospect of a room in a boarding house all the rest of her days. A Mutual Life endowment policy coming due at that time would give her sufficient capital to finance a little home of her own.

Do you ever get tired of boarding houses? Take your scissors and clip this coupon below, fill in the particulars called for and mail it to us to-day. We can help you.

System of Auditing Government Accounts to Be Investigated

Ottawa, June 16.—At a meeting of the Redistribution Committee yesterday, there was a discussion upon the advisability of laying the redistribution bill, over till next session, but no decision was reached.

Hon. W. S. Fielding announced in the House last night that it was proposed shortly to provide for the appointment of a board of audit to investigate the whole system of auditing Government accounts.

Passports.
When the estimate of $114,000 for the Department of External Affairs came up Mr. N. MANUFACTURERS MAY MEET IN LONDON

Canadian Association May Hold Convention There in 1924

Toronto, June 16.—There is a possibility that the next annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association will be held in London, England. It is felt that it would be particularly fitting that the annual meeting should be held in the metropolis of the Empire next year, as the British Empire Exhibition will be under way, and a number of manufacturers who intend to give exhibits there will be in London in any event. The place for the holding of the meeting is usually decided in December.

CANCER OPERATION WAS SUCCESSFUL

Patient Exposed to 250,000 Volts of X-Rays

New York, June 16.—Miss Anna Ellis, of Spring Valley, N. Y., a cancer patient at Bellevue Hospital, underwent fifty-six hours of constant exposure under 250,000 volts of X-Rays. Although surgeons have not announced the result of the operation, they assert it was successful, that the patient suffered no burns and was able to eat and sleep throughout the treatment.

Dr. J. Seth Hirsch, head of the X-Ray laboratories, said this marked the test of a new method which gave the rays a radiation which would kill the cancerous cells and leave the healthy ones unharmed. The usual maximum X-Rays to which a patient has been exposed heretofore were of only 150,000 volts, and the maximum time usually 100 minutes.

BALDWIN ADDRESSED CORRESPONDENTS

Parliamentary Reporters Gave Dinner in Honor of British Premier

London, June 16.—Premier Baldwin was given a dinner by the newspaper correspondents in Parliament last night.

Alluding to the valuable help and support he had received from the newspapermen, Mr. Baldwin said: "It is a greater help than even they realize if it should ever happen that we have to endeavor to make this country's will prevail in the settlement of the world, which must be the first and greatest task of any statesman in this country." "The creation of reputations is your prerogative alone," said the Premier. "For whatever reputation I have to-day, I thank you from the bottom of my heart. I can assure you as a modest man that to be suddenly flung into the limelight is an ordeal enough to trouble the staidest nerves."

Speeches.

Referring to the House of Commons, Premier Baldwin said the amount of oratory people used to listen to would not be of the slightest use to-day. In these days the parliamentary machine always ran the risk of becoming clogged. It appeared to him that the main necessary quality for a leader of the House, or a Minister was to get the business of the country through and that the business of the House of Commons could only be got through "by speeches that dealt with the matter in hand, that were straightforward and honest and that did not try to crowd in issues or put in any unnecessary trimmings."

BODY OF AN AGED MAN TAKEN FROM SASKATCHEWAN LAKE

Regina, June 16.—The body of an unidentified man was taken from Wascana Lake yesterday. Dr. Mitchell, coroner, declared the body had not been in the water more than a few hours. The man's age is placed at eighty-five and he was well-dressed, wearing silk socks and a dark blue suit and cap. A laundry mark, "C.E.08," was the only mark on the clothing.

At the meeting of the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society of Grace English Lutheran Church, Bismarck and Queen's Avenue, yesterday afternoon, it was decided to hold a strawberry social and sale of work on the church lawn, Friday, June 22, 3 to 9 p.m. A pageant will be presented at 9 p.m.

WINNIPEG MAN WAS ACQUITTED

Winnipeg, June 16.—Albert E. Horton, the second man to stand trial in the Assize Court here this week as a result of the "hammer murder" of John Penny in December last, was acquitted by a jury yesterday. As at the previous trial of Arthur T. Searle, evidence was given alleging the actual crime to have been committed by John Stanton, missing since the murder.

$26,000 FOR CANADA'S BUYING

Ottawa, June 16.—A vote of $26,000 for supervision of Government purchases and sales was passed by the House of Commons last evening. Sir Henry Drayton claimed the Government was returning to the old patronage system. He asked why more money should be voted for the Purchasing Commission. Premier King said no more money was being voted for the Purchasing Commission. All the purchases for the Post Office Department had been made by tender and the lowest tender had been given the contracts.

BOY DROWNED

Winnipeg, June 16.—Stopping on his way home from school to have a swim in a gravel pit, Mike Roscoe, seven years old, was drowned near Elkhorn, Man., yesterday.

Commons Votes Money for Canadian Representation in United States

Bill Amending Naturalization Act Given Approval

Ottawa, June 16.—On a vote of $50,000 to provide for Canadian representation in the United States, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre, asked in the House of Commons last night whether rumors which had appeared in newspapers relative to the appointment of a Canadian representative at Washington were true.

Premier King replied the rumors were merely rumors.

Naturalization.
The bill amending the Naturalization Act was passed last night by the House after Hon. A. B. Copp, Secretary of State, had withdrawn the amendments transferring the courts to the Department.

On explaining that he would withdraw these sections for the present session, he said it was now proposed to repeal the legislation of 1920, fixing the period necessary for naturalization at ten years. Under the present bill it was five years. Mr. Copp said he realized that the greatest difficulty in administering the Naturalization Act was experienced in the West. He suggested that Western members might submit to him suggestions as to where it would be best to hold sittings for naturalization purposes.

Homesteads.

The resolution of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, to amend the Homestead Act was passed by the House last night.

The main purpose of the resolution is to allow second homesteads where settlers in the pre-emption areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta have not succeeded. The grant of a second homestead in each case will be conditional on the approval of the Provincial Government.

The bill to carry out the terms of the resolution was given first and second reading, but as it had not been distributed, it remains in committee for further consideration.

THREE KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE SMASH

San Jose, Cal., June 16.—Mr. and Mrs. John F. Allen, of San Jose, and a third person, believed to be Mrs. George T. Coleman, of San Jose, were killed last evening when their automobile in which they were riding was struck by an electric car at a crossing two miles west of here. The car was hurled fifteen feet and demolished. Mr. and Mrs. Allen were instantly killed and Mrs. Coleman died on the way to a hospital.

OIL TANK FIRE WAS SPECTACULAR

Lightning Was Cause of Blaze at Pittsburgh

Families in Nearby Houses Were Driven Away

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 16.—Lightning yesterday afternoon struck an oil tank in the storage yard and refinery of the Atlantic Refining Company here and the fire burned till late last night the entire plant being enveloped in flames and smoke. Firemen, held back by the intense heat, fought the flames from a distance. Scores of families were driven from their homes nearby.

Mrs. Ritter Likes Quality

Mrs. Ritter has moved away from British Columbia and takes the trouble to write back saying how much she is able to appreciate Pacific Milk now that she can't get it.

"While I lived in Vancouver I always used Pacific Milk. I had tried others, and not liking them, went back to your milk. I somehow just took it for granted that canned milk is better for cooking, but since we left up there I find I can more appreciate the genuine quality of Pacific Milk. Certain I haven't found another I like so well."

LOSS IN QUEBEC FIRE IS $300,000

Asbestos Corporation's Buildings at Thetford Mines Burned

Fire Caused By Overheated Bearing in Machine

Sherbrooke, Que., June 16.—Damage estimated at more than $200,000 was the result of a fire in the Asbestos Corporation's plant at Thetford Mines last evening. The flames broke out in one of the main buildings of the large plant and spread with such rapidity that in a short time the greater portion of the plant had been reduced to ashes. It is said the conflagration was the result of an overheated bearing in one of the machines in the mill.

SHEDDING LIGHTS ON GREY DAWN OF JORDAN VALLEY

Egyptian Buildings Occupied Strategic Position Through Centuries

London, June 16.—The mission excavating for the University of Pennsylvania at Beisan, Palestine, the Bethshean of the Old Testament, has unearthed, according to a Times dispatch from Jerusalem, substantial Egyptian buildings with evidence of five centuries' occupation, and two large clear monumental inscriptions of Seti I. and Rameses II, respectively.

The inscriptions indicate military dispositions of known divisions of Egyptian troops, and give references to neighboring cities on both sides of the Jordan.

STRIKE WAS DUE TO MISUNDERSTANDING

Sydney, N. S., June 16.—That a regrettable misunderstanding was the real cause of the twenty-four-hour strike of North Cape Breton miners which ended yesterday afternoon is the view taken in the British Empire Steel Corporation official circles here.

MAGNA CARTA.

Seven hundred and eight years ago yesterday the barons of England at Runnymede wrote the Great Charter from the hands of a reluctant sovereign. The incident was the first decisive forward step in the evolution of the British people in the direction of political freedom, and was the luminous precedent which showed the way for the other stages which marked the history of the country at notable points in the centuries that followed.

The signing of the Great Charter was a milestone in the history of nations then unborn. The heirs of Runnymede now cover the earth. The British Dominions over the seven seas, the United States of America and every other forward country where the institutions of free government exist are members of that prolific family.

MENACED BY FIRE.

In the last analysis, adequate fire protection resolves itself down to the question of whether or not the people of this country wish to save their wood-using industries. Let us look into the service of these to the country. According to Dr. C. D. Howe, of the Canadian Forestry Association, the value of the manufactured pulp and paper products is $250,000,000 per annum.

The value of lumber, lath and shingles produced in one year is $150,000,000. Lumber means boards and deals, dimension stock—not the finished product, as in the case of paper. The minor industries, which depend entirely upon wood, produce products to the value of $60,000,000 annually.

Going back to the lumber industry proper, we find that its invested capital reaches $250,000,000. It employs 55,000 men, and gives them $600,000,000 in wages annually.

There are more than 100,000 people in Canada at work converting the forest product into wealth in some form or other. They are chiefly heads of families or the bread winners of families, thus they represent probably a half million people dependent upon the forest for a livelihood.

Our great pulp and paper companies, the great lumber concerns will not exist many years longer unless there is more effective fire protection. In order to get more effective protection, the public must invest more money in it.

CHEERY WORDS.

After a fairly comprehensive business tour of the United States Mr. Bruce Walker, for so long the experienced representative of the Department of Immigration and Colonization at Winnipeg, has returned to that city with a slashing rebuke for the pessimists of the West.

conditions in Florida, he pointed out, revealed the existence of many complaints with which he was familiar in the West. While it was true that there were fruit growers in the Southern States who made profits, just as there were farmers in the Western plains who made profits, in neither case was there a perfect freedom from drawbacks that could only be found in an ideal state not yet attained.

WHAT THEY VOTED FOR.

Senator Barnard told the Senate the other day that the people of British Columbia were not under the impression that Government Control would do away with private importation of liquor when they voted in favor of it.

As an interpreter of public sentiment Senator Barnard takes the cake, provided the cake be the last prize. The public voted for "Government control and sale in sealed packages of spirituous and malt liquors," thus rejecting the Prohibition Act which, as Senator Barnard himself says, affirmed the right of private importation.

THE OPTIMISTIC INTERIOR.

People who live in the Interior of British Columbia are seldom guilty of pessimism. They spend more time on the practical discussion of the things in which they are vitally interested than do the larger communities that possess more material upon which to build future progress.

The tide has certainly turned in British Columbia. On every hand one hears of the maturing of plans for industrial effort. Already construction and logging camps are busy; the wheels are turning in the lumber mills, big and little; there is activity in mining in all the mineral sections of the province, which means practically everywhere.

The foregoing is clipped from The Kamloops Telegram. This particular city very probably is one of the most thriving and progressive in the Interior of the Province. Its commercial backbone is comprised of men of vision who seldom worry governments when money is required for local enterprise.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Golf Championship contests are the most prolific producers of dark horses we know of. World figures spring from them almost overnight. Now it is Champion Havers, winner of the open British championship, and therefore entitled to be called the world's leading golfer.

Senators Barnard, J. D. Taylor and Planta from British Columbia oppose the anti-importation liquor legislation in the Senate. Senator Sir George E. Foster supports it. When it comes to quality the bill does not suffer in that line-up.

OUR CONTEMPORARIES.

The Englishman, Calcutta:—Indian rank and even Indian officers holding the viceroy's commission—whose status corresponds with that of warrant officers in the British army—have proved extremely susceptible to the need for British leadership, a truism which has been proved again and again on the Indian frontier, in France and battlefields in other parts of the world.

Baltimore Sun:—Some Monday morning the community may be startled by a really surprising piece of news. It may read that no automobile accidents occurred on the preceding day. To be sure, the prospect of receiving this gratifying announcement is very recent for last Sunday, like all preceding ones, had its toll of injuries and possible fatalities; but perhaps some Sunday will be different.

PETERSHAM

To the Editor:—In Tuesday's Times, June 12, there was an editorial on Petersham, England. There is another Petersham in Worcester County, Massachusetts. This is the only Petersham in America. The name was left blank during the progress of the Act of Incorporation through the Massachusetts Legislature, and no name was inserted till it came up for final action.

Petersham, in England, is a parish containing a population of six or seven hundred, situated about seven miles southwest by west from London, in the County of Surrey. It gives the title of Viscount to the family of Stanhope, Earls of Harrington. In this vicinity of this place are many elegant villas, particularly Petersham Lodge, formerly the residence of the Duke of Clarence.

It contains also Ham House, where the "Cabal" met, and the great Duke of Argyle was born. Ham House was once a royal residence, the abode of James I., Charles I., and Charles II. In the Doomsday Book this place is styled "Patriclesham."

The Petersham in Massachusetts is situated on a hill, and gives a fine view of the surrounding country. It is a favorable place for New York Coast people to spend the Summer months. Many fine houses have been built there during the past twenty years. It has one of the best country hotels in New England.

ODD FELLOWS END ANNUAL SESSIONS.

Grand Lodge Terminates With Various Appointments.

P. W. Dempster Receives Grant Master's Jewel.

New Westminster, June 16.—The Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows of British Columbia, concluded the forty-ninth annual session of the order when appointed and elected officers were installed by Wallace Law, P.G.M., P.E.R. Appreciation of the manner in which Grand Master M. J. Phillips had discharged the duties of his office was expressed by the delegates. When Mr. Phillips handed over the gavel to his successor, D. H. Proudfoot, of Nelson, he was presented with a handsome Grand Master's jewel.

The delegates authorized Grand Secretary Davey to prepare a sketch of the history of the grand lodge during the fifty years of its activity. This sketch will be read at the jubilee session of the order in British Columbia, which will be held in Vancouver next year.

A. E. Harron Elected. A. E. Harron, P.G.M., was elected grand representative to the sovereign grand lodge, Harry Fooks, P.G.M., of Agassiz, is the senior representative elected last year for a two-year term. The delegates authorized Grand Secretary Davey to prepare a sketch of the history of the grand lodge during the fifty years of its activity.

Standardizing Fees. There was a lengthy debate on the question of amending the constitution to standardize the fees for initiation and degrees members. The amendment was defeated and the fees will remain at the minimum of $10 for initiation and $10 for each of the degrees, any higher charges being left to the discretion of the individual lodges.

Trustees for the home fund were authorized to use such proportion of the interest of the home fund as had accumulated to relieve cases of distress, where lodges were not in financial condition to vote a relief. Mayor S. M. Newton, Prince Rupert, withdrew his motion for the immediate establishment of a home fund, and a committee to arrange the compromise thus agreed upon.

Budget of $8,244. The home fund was granted $1,794 from Grand Lodge funds on the recommendation of the finance committee, which submitted a budget of expenditures of $8,244. The mileage and per diem expenses this year will amount to $2,158.98. The assessment for the Grand Lodge for the coming year was fixed at $1 per capita. There is a balance of $4,208 in the treasury.

It was decided to assist the general relief committees of Victoria and Vancouver. The report from the Vancouver committee showed that $7,000 had been paid out in special relief there last year, and as yet as twenty members in distress were looked after. The finance committee will be left to make the appropriations.

The motion to change the date of meeting to July was laid on the table for one year.

Grand Master J. L. Stewart of Alberta, in extending greetings, announced that his jurisdiction was collecting for a home fund.

garded this as a pleasing evidence that the spirit of appreciation and recognition is pervading the lodges. The presentation of the sixty-year honorary veteran's jewel to Bro. B. W. Referring to the grand secretary's report on the statistics of the order in British Columbia, which showed that since 1874 $1,016,176 had been paid out in relief in this Province, and to which must be added sums paid by the encampments and Rebekah lodges for the same purpose, the committee's report commented on the far-reaching results of this ameliorative work.

Grand Secretary Davey. Grand Secretary Fred Davey was congratulated on his thirty-eighth consecutive year of service and his capable discharge of his duties. The prosperous condition of the order in B.C. owes much to his untiring energy and efficiency, stated the report.

Favor District Groups. The Grand Lodges at the afternoon session registered its decision in favor of district associations, by which lodges would be grouped for the holding of joint meetings and promotion of the principles of the order. This system is working well in Ontario.

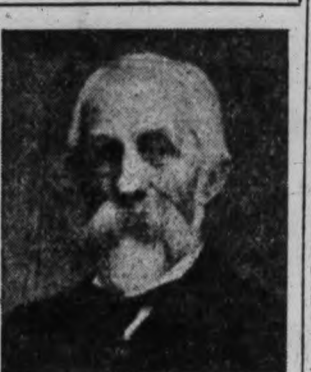

Commends Work. The Grand Lodge endorsed the resolution of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, which commended the work of the Near East Relief Society, especially among the Armenians.

PUBLIC RECEPTION FOR MISS BINA WEST

Brilliant Function Last Evening Drew Large Crowd to Empress Hotel

Yesterday's sessions of the Women's Benefit Association culminated last evening in a largely attended public reception in honor of Miss Bina M. West and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Conant West. The affair was held in the Empress Hotel ballroom, and was attended by a number of representatives of local reviews and members of the interested public. Miss West and her mother, together with Mrs. Minnie W. Aydelotte and other officials high in the Association, stood in the receiving line before the platform with its striking decoration including the colors of the W. B. A., black, red and white, and the standards of the Reviews.

Mrs. Aydelotte, Deputy Supreme Commander of British Columbia, officiated as chairman. Members of the three local Reviews in white frocks with tri-colored sashes formed an escort for Miss West as she proceeded through the ballroom. At the close of the little ceremony of reception the guard was dismissed, warm applause greeting the women who were under the direction of Mrs. Harrison, Captain No. 1 Review, Mrs. Keating, captain of No. 11, and Miss Stevens, captain of No. 18.

The singing of "The Maple Leaf" by the visitors was the preliminary to a flower drive display by members of the Junior W. B. A., under the direction of Mrs. F. W. Laing, junior commander of the three local Reviews. Dressed all in white and carrying flower-covered hoops in the case of the bigger girls, and baskets of flowers for the smaller, they performed a number of marching evolutions with grace and celerity. As a finale they formed in a horse shoe facing the platform and sang "The Flower Song" and "How Do You Do, Miss West." The incident was one of the prettiest of the evening.

The programme included songs by Mrs. Downard, Mrs. Ogilvie and Mrs. Morton, pianoforte numbers by Miss Morton, and violin solos by Miss Dorothy Bland with Miss Eva Bland at the piano.

Miss West in her address referred to Victoria as a paradise upon earth with its scenic beauties, wealth of flowers, and the friendliness of its people, and the story of its charms would be carried to every state of the Union by the two hundred delegates. Miss West also reviewed the work of the Association and its objects. Brief addresses were also given by Dr. Ella J. Field, supreme medical officer, and Miss Frances Partridge, supreme secretary.

CRITICS PRAISED WIFE OF FRED PARKER

Brilliant Contralto to Sing Before Women's Canadian Club

By a curious coincidence Victoria within the past few weeks had been privileged to hear of two contralto singers, both bearing the surname of Parker. Miss Denna Parker, the Scottish artist, sang here recently, while Victoria is yet to hear Miss Winifred Parker, of Seattle, formerly of Toronto, who is to give a recital before the Women's Canadian Club on Tuesday afternoon, assisted by Mrs. A. J. Gibson, Victoria's brilliant pianist.

Of her singing in Tacoma recently the critic of The Daily Ledger said: "Miss Parker appeared in two groups, a Poncehelli Aria from Glorinda and four concert songs in which the fine dramatic quality of her voice had ample showing. Of unusual contralto range in singing Miss Parker found no score too exacting, no insurmountable difficulty of interpretation or art. Full-toned and with unusual power, her voice was equally effective in the opera aria and the softer measures of selection less ambitious. The song which seemed best suited to the brilliance of her voice was the triumphant melody of "The Tears at the Spring"; this won an instant recall to which Miss Parker responded with Leaurance's "Moon Deer."

SOCIETY PERSONAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Kitty Campbell has returned to her home in this city after spending the past three months in St. Louis, Mo., with friends.

Mrs. J. R. M. Andrews and Mrs. Andrews (nee Jean Toimie) are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son.

Miss Dorothea Riddell and Miss Edna Grant, of Victoria, are in Vancouver, visiting Mrs. W. J. Hooper, Fourteenth Avenue West.

Mrs. C. W. Reid, of Vancouver, with her small daughter, Isabel, is visiting her sister, Mr. Norman Turner.

Mrs. Mabel Ingram, president of the Vancouver Business and Professional Women's Club, with her daughter, arrived in Victoria this morning and will spend the week-end motoring on the Island.

At "Breadalbane" last evening, Rev. Dr. Campbell celebrated the marriage of Archibald Dunlop Kerr and Miss Pearl Beatrice Merryfield, of Victoria. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Frank Merryfield, and was attended by Mrs. Eileen Esther Chandler, Mr. H. W. Chandler supporting the bridegroom. The ceremony was witnessed by a number of intimate friends.

At yesterday's session of the Women's Benefit Association, Mrs. H. P. Butchart, of Seattle, formerly of Toronto, who is to give a recital before the Women's Canadian Club on Tuesday afternoon, assisted by Mrs. A. J. Gibson, Victoria's brilliant pianist.

Former Victorians residing in Oakland, Cal., are going to have a reunion on Saturday evening June 23, in the St. George's Hall 25 and Grove Street, and the committee are anticipating a big attendance, there being so many former Victorians in and around. "Follow the Birds" is the slogan for the evening. The main idea of having this event is to and form a Social Club to renew acquaintances. The affair will take the form of a social, dancing, songs and a good programme has been arranged.

Miss Addy Wight, 224 Simcoe St., entertained Thursday evening in honor of her friend, Miss Elsie Smith, who is leaving shortly for the East. Miss Smith was presented with a purse and a beautiful bouquet of flowers by her many friends. The rooms were very tastefully decorated in the national colors. Songs, dancing and games were indulged in. Refreshments were daintily served by Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Wight. A very enjoyable time was spent by all. Among those present were the Misses Elsie Smith, Gertrude Thorpe, Gladys Brown, Viola Lawson, Mary-bella Carr, Doris Brown, Ivy Bradley, Ida Winkler, Eileen Toimie, Addy Wight, and Messrs. Perry Owen, Fred Birch, Albert Winkel, Jack Brown, Walter Woodley, Cecil Wight, Arthur Holt, Jimmy Henderson, Jack Davies, Archie Bradley, Alfred Tripp and Jimmy Wight.

Miss Dorrit Pullen and Miss Dorothy McAdam were joint hostesses to a very pretty miscellaneous shower at the home of the latter on Begbie Street last evening in honor of Miss Theresa Dorrell, who is to be married this month. The rooms were prettily decorated with pink roses and marguerites, the numerous gifts were presented to the guest of honor in a large bon-bon covered with roses, after which dainty refreshments were served. The following ladies were present: Mrs. H. Dorrell, Mrs. T. I. Dunn, Mrs. L. Smith, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Finland, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. Olsen, Mrs. Styles, Mrs. Sehl, Mrs. M. L. Lethin, Mrs. McGregor, K. Sehl, J. Bunn, I. Gardiner, L. Robertson, S. King, O. Scaplen, M. Clay, M. Nelson, T. Dorrell, D. Pullen, D. McAdam and Mrs. C. McAdam.

A pleasant surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Mutch, Delatre Street, when a number of girl friends were guests at a miscellaneous shower for their daughter, Mary, who is to be married this month. The gifts were presented to the bride-to-be in a prettily decorated basket by her little sister, Ada. During the evening games were played and refreshments served. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. G. Mutch, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mutch, Mrs. Cronk, Mrs. Snow, Mrs. Griffiths, Mrs. Ford, the Misses E. Mutch, Mary and Miriam Mutch, Elma and Edith White, Ella George, Annie Parsona, Nettie Hipwood and Dorothy Griffiths.

EDUCATIONAL CLUB HOLDS MEETING AND GARDEN FETE

The charming home and garden of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Luney, Foul Bay Road, were thrown open Thursday afternoon, through the kindness of the hostess, to the Women's Educational Club, who held their regular meeting, followed by a garden fete. Beautiful summer weather enhanced the beauty of the lovely gardens, which proved an ideal setting for a most enjoyable programme. During the short business session, Mrs. W. E. Stanaland, who was the delegate to the annual meeting of the Provincial Educational Club, at Westminister, read her report, which gave a very concise idea of the work being done for the Columbia College of the club. The members paid a silent tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Margaret Jenkins, who was a valued friend of the organization.

Dr. Stupard gave an interesting talk on Negro Life and Literature. Mrs. Shaw sang two songs which charmed the audience. Two piano solos by Mrs. Eva Anderson were enthusiastically received. Refreshments were served on the spacious verandah. Mrs. T. R. Cusack and Mrs. F. W. Fawcett, assisting the hostess.

GARDEN PARTY PLANNED

Attractive Event Under St. John's Church Auspices Next Wednesday

ROYAL VICTORIA

Neil Shipman asks that you please remember, when you see her in "The Grub-Stake" at the Royal today, that she is a star who never permits anyone to "double" for her in any of those scenes where her life is risked.

Neil candidly admits that she is scared when it's all over. At the time the stunt is being played she is too busy wondering what she will do to save herself if the rope breaks, or if she strikes a rock in her plunge into the rapids.

In "The Grub-Stake" there is a scene which a less conscientious star might have excruciatingly avoided. Neil Shipman, as the heroine, hangs over a precipice a thousand feet high, first by a dangling rope and then by the hero's arm.

Neil promised nothing but saw to it that the location chosen for the scene was 66 miles from anywhere. Naturally, there wasn't a soul there who bore the slightest resemblance to the intrepid actress. So, after some argument, Neil found herself hanging by a skippy bit of root a thousand feet above a vast, rock-ribbed crater. Then she said her prayers. She vowed that nothing in her life looked so good to her as the brave, down-reaching hands of the rescue party as she was hauled up to safety.

DOMINION

When Jesse L. Lasky loaned Charles Ogle to Jack Pickford to portray an important character in his Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation picture, "Garrison's Finish," showing at the Dominion Theatre for the last time to-day, he relinquished temporarily his prize veteran of the silver sheet.

On one occasion a friend who was escorting her to the theatre was killed by a stray bullet as they were scurrying across the street. On another occasion, when she was visiting a wounded friend in the hospital, a machine-gun bullet killed him before her eyes.

Such experiences as these were great shocks to her, but nevertheless they have helped her to express so realistically on the screen the great emotional crises in the depiction of which she excels.

CAPITOL

The Peter B. Kyne photoplay, produced by Goldwyn, "Brothers Under the Skin," which is playing at the Capitol Theatre for last time to-day, boasts three of filmdom's most beautiful actresses in its small cast. The three are Helene Chadwick, long a member of the Goldwyn stock company as leading woman, blond Claire Windsor recently given a long-term contract in the same stock company, and Mae Busch whose work in "Brothers Under the Skin" brought her a Goldwyn contract to appear in an important role in "The Christian."

The main element in the cast is composed of Pat O'Malley and Norman Kerry.

COLUMBIA

During the German occupation of Warsaw, before the Russians had been wholly expelled from the city, Pola Negri, star of the new Goldwyn picture, "Mad Love," the feature attraction at the Columbia to-day, had many narrow escapes from death as the Russians subjected the town to bombardment with big guns and machine-guns. Every night she had to be at the theatres, as the German military authorities had ordered the theatres to remain open.

On one occasion a friend who was escorting her to the theatre was killed by a stray bullet as they were scurrying across the street. On another occasion, when she was visiting a wounded friend in the hospital, a machine-gun bullet killed him before her eyes.

Such experiences as these were great shocks to her, but nevertheless they have helped her to express so realistically on the screen the great emotional crises in the depiction of which she excels.

Native Sons of Canada Expect Great Numbers of New Members

To-day will see the closing of the membership drive of the Sons of Canada, and up to now the officials of that body express themselves as well satisfied with the results of their work during the past week.

The aims and objects of the Order of the Native Sons of Canada are: (1) To develop a true spirit of Canadianism, based on love and pride of country; (2) to promote racial concord, unity and democracy; (3) to advance through our educational system and other means, the knowledge of social and democratic principles and stimulate a love of Canadian art, music, literature and science; (4) to study the constitution, history and geography of Canada, with its relation to other countries, socially, economically and in other respects, for the benefit of our people and the extension of Canadianism; (5) to strive for the equality of opportunity in the production and distribution of wealth; (6) to welcome to membership the spirit of our people, our institutions, and encourage them to become citizens of Canada, and to work faithfully for the safety, peace and prosperity of our country.

ENGLISH COMEDY AT ROYAL NEXT WEEK

The English comedy success, "A Sister to Assist'er," which is coming to the Royal next week, is the story of the famous cockney fun-merchants, Mrs. May, Daisy, Alf and Jim Arnie, who for years have made the London music halls shriek with laughter. These cheer-cockney aristocrats will make all Victoria chuckle, and the name of Mrs. May for years has been a by-word in England. In the beginning Monday, she opened her mouth it was a signal for roars of laughter, which at the famous tipping scene between her and Mrs. Moll worked up to a climax of joyous hysterics.

GEORGE MEREDITH IS AUTHOR OF FEATURE COMING TO ROYAL

"Diana of the Crossways," which plays at the Capitol next week, took its famous author, George Meredith, three years to compose. Meredith considered there was nothing too good for his public and would write and re-write his work again and again.

The Meredith vogue is not confined to this country. The great writer used to say that it was really America that first "discovered" him, and that the American love of his books soon reacted upon the English sales.

However that may be, there is no doubt now of Meredith's place among first-rank English authors, and of all his works none captured the affections of the reading public more than "Diana of the Crossways."

As soon as "Diana of the Crossways" was published the reading public set to work to discover the originals of its various characters, but the heroine at present is apparently a composite photograph of several women.

Readers of "Diana of the Crossways" love to look upon the characters in the book as friends, and there is no doubt that cinemagoers, too, will take them to their hearts when they see the film of this wonderful story.

In filming the novel, "Ideal" had the assistance of the novelist's son, Mr. William Meredith, who has expressed his warm approval of the picture.

The realism of the picture is greatly helped by the use of the original "Crossways," a rambling old red brick building near Dorking.

Expenditures from the Rockefeller Foundation during the past decade, as announced recently, include, for international medical education, $24,716,000, not including several millions for a medical college in Peking; public health, $18,188,000; war relief, $12,298,000; other philanthropies, $10,440,000; and administration, $1,167,000. Pledges have been made for $15,500,000 for future public health work.

SAYWARD LOCALS

Sayward, June 12.—The regular meeting of the Sayward Progressive Agricultural Development Society was held on June 9 at the home of the vice-president, Thomas Herr. Despite the unsettled state of the weather there was a full attendance of members. Letters were read from Hon. J. Oliver, Rev. T. Menzies, M.P.P., member for the district, C. E. Whitney Griffiths, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, and the Canadian Explosives Co. Ltd. The Victoria Chamber of Commerce wrote a very encouraging letter regarding the efforts being made by the society in an endeavor to get the Island Highway extended into the Sayward valley, and the chamber promised its full support. It stated that it had appointed a special committee to attend to the question. Rev. T. Menzies stated that he had taken up with the Department of Public Works the question of the building of the six miles of the Island Highway extension in this district which was promised by the Minister of Public Works. The member stated that the matter would be taken up at once by the Department. The member also stated the land which the society has applied for to the Government, to be used as a recreation park and playground site for the agricultural hall, would be available for the society shortly. Committees were appointed to take in hand the arrangements for the society's agricultural fair, which is to be held on September 10. A very interesting discussion took place on the subject of rural credits, and it was the opinion of the members that agriculture was not receiving the attention it should along these lines. The Secretary, J. E. Armlshaw, reported that the recently placed order for stamping powder had arrived. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. T. Herr. George Browning, superintendent of the Vancouver Engineering Works, arrived on Tuesday's boat to spend his holidays on his farm here, on which he is doing considerable improvements.

The first strawberry of the season were picked here on June 2. They were of good size and quality. Mrs. J. Groulx, widow of the late Joseph Groulx, has gone to Vancouver for medical treatment.

The weather keeps ideal for all kinds of crops, plenty of rain and warm. Three days of last week were very hot, the glass registering as high as 110 degrees in the sun. Mrs. H. Jamieson has gone to Vancouver for an extended visit.

The first general meeting of the Lutheran leaders of the whole world is to be held at Eisenach, Germany in August. Lutherans claim almost millions of adherents, half, or a little more than half of all the Protestants in the world. They are located principally in Germany, Sweden, Denmark, France, America and Australia. It is stated that delegates from all of these nations and all Lutheran bodies in them have signified a purpose to be represented at Eisenach.

STRONGLY URGES THE ADOPTION OF PANAMA SERVICE

Senator Field Would Make C. G. M. Captains Customs Officers

Ottawa, June 16 (Canadian Press)—In the Senate debate on the Government Merchant Marine and Panama Canal route, Senator Danforth said he expected that next week he would be able to make an announcement on the allocation and operation of Government ships.

EMPEROR OF ASIA EXPERIENCED DELAY

The C. P. S. S. Empress of Asia, out of the Orient, seemed doomed to a series of delays. Held a whole day at Vancouver on account of belated passengers, who were held up by a mudslide in the Rocky Mountains while journeying to the coast to take passage by the Asia, the vessel reached Victoria last night.

She docked at Pier 2 at 7 o'clock. Victoria time, last night, but was delayed after leaving. Wing On, a Vancouver merchant, who had booked a passage on the Empress of Asia to make sure that he should take the right ship, went to the Empress of Asia and only found out his mistake when he offered his ticket at the gangway. He was told that he was two weeks ahead of his anticipated trip and was instructed to return. But ill-fortune came his way. His baggage had already been loaded on the vessel and it was too late to rescue it from the mass of baggage.

Wiring to his brother in Victoria, Wing Yuen, he informed him of his predicament. His brother boarded the Asia on her arrival here last night and in rummaging amongst the stowage baggage, did not understand the final going had been sounded and the vessel was a couple of hundred yards from shore, on her way to China.

The Asiatic proceeded to create a fuss. The vessel was hoisted and the pilot launch carried Wing Yuen back to Victoria. With a rope tied about his waist the Chinaman was lowered over the vessel's side with his baggage and placed aboard the pier by Alexander Hector Gilchrist, son of Captain Gilchrist, of the S.S. Princess Patricia, went out on the Asia as fourth officer.

Empress of Canada Will Establish New Pacific Time

Canadian Pacific Liner Expected in Port To-morrow Morning From the Orient After Passage of Slightly Over Eight Days From Yokohama

With the arrival in port early to-morrow morning of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada a new trans-Pacific speed record will be established.

The Canadian Pacific liner, carrying a large list of passengers, is expected to reach William Head about 3 a. m. to-morrow. She will be passed at day-break, it is expected.

If the Empress of Canada sailed from Yokohama at the usual hour last Saturday she would be reaching quarantine at 3 a. m. Sunday, having made the distance between Yokohama and Victoria in slightly over eight days, 5 hours, reckoning Meridian Day and the difference in time.

The trans-Pacific speed is at present held by the liner Empress of Russia, which in 1913 crossed from Yokohama in 8 days, 18 hours and 21 minutes. The new time of the Empress of Canada will stand for some time, although it is believed that she herself can beat it.

Capt. Halley has not been saying anything about speed by wireless, but it is known that the ship has been averaging 10 knots in spite of the fact that she has encountered some bad weather.

Chatham-Island Raid Causes Slump in Liquor Business

Depression in the rum running business is the aftermath of the Chatham Island raid of June 2, when four liquor carriers were seized. Fewer launches are leaving Victoria with consignments of liquor.

The raid has at least made the venturesome liquor runners to go cautiously. The first two days after the raid only small consignments left the harbor. On Sunday, the day after the raid, only one launch cleared. The operator of this launch evidently was not aware that there had been a raid, while the two liquor carriers which cleared on Monday in all probability also knew nothing of the raid until the evening paper announced the spectacular events of the Saturday night attack on rum runners.

After the raid had become public the rum runners took no risks for some days afterwards. A record was kept of the launches leaving the harbor and it was found that no rum runners left on June 4, 5, or 7, while on June 8 only one liquor carrier went out. On June 9 had the same results, only one rum runner leaving the harbor. On June 10 no liquor carriers left.

More Daring. On June 11, when the effects of the raid had worn off slightly, three more launches ventured out with liquor consignments. That rum runners may be superstitious was indicated by the fact that on June 13 no vessel left with liquor.

During the past two days, however, business has been on the increase. Altogether five launches left during the last two days with consignments which averaged from 50 cases to 200 cases to the launch, according to the size of the craft. June 14 saw three craft leave the harbor, while yesterday only two cleared.

New Methods. Rum runners appear to have adopted new methods in the delivery of liquor. Instead of going to some nearby island, as was the old system, the rum runner, it is said, now transfers his cargo to the American launch clear of the islands. Compared with normal conditions the rum running business in local waters has developed a slump.

SEATTLE SHIPPING Seattle, June 16.—The steamship Hanley, which has been purchased from the United States Shipping Board by the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company, of Everett, and which is to be operated by Crowell & Thurlow in their inter-coastal service, is to be in port here simultaneously with the Montana, of the same service. The Crowell & Thurlow inter-coastal fleet has increased to twelve vessels from six in little more than a year.

When the President McKinley of the Admiral Oriental Line, arrives here from the Far East next week, Christiansen, her chief engineer, will take the same post on the Jefferson, of the Pacific Steamship Company, succeeding Harry E. March, who is to be port engineer for the Admiral Oriental Line. J. B. McDonald, chief engineer of the freighter Eldridge, will succeed Mr. Christiansen, and John Groesch, first assistant engineer of the McKinley, will succeed McDonald.

IYO MARU BRINGS JAPANESE CONSUL

Made Port This Afternoon From Orient

Passing the Cape at 7.15 this morning the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Iyo Maru, Captain Horiechi, secured pratique at William Head at 1 o'clock today and docked at the Rithet Pier at 2 o'clock. Aboard the vessel when she arrived here was the new Japanese Consul-general for Vancouver, S. Gomyo.

The vessel had a small passenger list for Victoria, only two first class and 26 steerage passengers disembarked here. There were 30 first class and 19 steerage passengers for Seattle. The cargo consignment for Victoria was fifty tons, while the mail consignment comprised 12 bags of parcel post and 30 bags of letters.

To welcome the new Vancouver Consul-general on his arrival here Mr. Hill, of Victoria, and Mr. Ishido, of Vancouver, accompanied by other prominent Japanese, met the Consul at the boat and took Mr. Gomyo for an automobile ride around Victoria. Mr. Gomyo will proceed to Seattle where he will take over his new appointment.

K. Ito was holding the office of Consul at Vancouver for a number of years but returned to Japan some months ago. During his absence, S. Ishido has been filling the vacancy. Now that Mr. Gomyo has arrived he will relinquish this office. Mr. Gomyo worked in an official capacity of this coast before, for the Japanese Government. His last office was at Portland, where he also graduated from the State universities. For the past few years he has been buying China for the Japha Government.

CHINESE PASSENGERS

For the first time in some years a large number of Chinese passengers booked by the N. Y. K. boat. Altogether nineteen Chinese were traveling aboard.

TO BE HELP ARMY WORK IN JAPAN

Commissioner and Mrs. Eadie, of Salvation Army, Left Last Night On Asia

Bound to Japan to carry out a new programme of Salvation Army work in that country, Commissioner W. Eadie, former chief of the Salvation Army activities in Western Canada, sailed from this port last night on the Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of Asia. He was accompanied by Mrs. Eadie and their daughter Hilda.

Commissioner Eadie who has spent the past twelve months in Scotland, working in the future of the Oriental territory in Japan. The work has been taken up by men of education and social standing and has received general recognition from the Emperor and the Japanese Government.

Of the 400 officers in Japan, only twelve are Europeans or Americans. An outstanding official is N. Muro, of Tokyo, whose translation of the New Testament into the language of the common people has run into its twentieth edition. Commissioner Eadie stated that the Salvation Army in Japan had been largely instrumental in breaking down the Ghetto system. Col. A. Travers Newman is his way to Peking to make a sanitary survey of several new projects of development of the East River by the China Union University. He is also sanitary commissioner in Smyrna during the Greek occupation. During this postwar work Col. Travers was also head of the Armenian Boy Scouts.

Other prominent passengers were Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Hallett, of Long Island, N. Y.; Miss E. B. Hallett, Mr. Hallett is an engineer for the Vacuum Oil Company. A group of Texas pleasure seekers were Mrs. J. J. Timmins, Miss E. C. Timmins and Miss Bennett, all of Gainesville, Texas. Mr. and Mrs. Albin Seidel, of San Antonio; Miss L. McCleary and Master John, of Brown, and Mrs. A. W. McCullum were also on board. The Asia delayed sailing 24 hours to make connections with passengers and mail held up by the recent landslides near Field, B. C.

SCHOOLS OF WHALES RUNNING IN PACIFIC

Tacoma, June 16.—A large number of whales were off the coast of Washington State, according to officers of the whaling plant at Westport in Gray's harbor. The three whaling ships operating out of Westport have thus far this season brought in thirty-seven whales, and five of these were towed in Wednesday, one boat bringing in three and another two. This year's catch is thus far in excess of the average.

AUSTRALIA TO BE DRYDOCKED AT HONGKONG

Divers Say Vessel Sustained Little Damage When Aground

According to information reaching the C.P.S.S. offices here, the Empress of Australia was virtually undamaged when she struck a sand bar off the coast of Japan while en route to Hongkong.

Divers worked on the vessel, but found no serious damage. The divers' report stated there were signs of grounding on her bows to well amidships on her hull. Some of the plates are bent, while a number of rivets are also out. But the damage is slight, report the divers.

It will cause the vessel no delay on her voyage. When she reaches Hongkong she will be drydocked and a survey made. All necessary repairs will be made to the damaged vessel before she proceeds on her homeward voyage. Her scheduled departure is not expected to be interfered with by the carrying out of the repairs.

THREE BRITISH SHIPS ESCAPE LIQUOR RULING

Defender, Astyanax and Proteilaus Not Liable This Time at Seattle

Seattle, June 16.—Assurances that voyages begun at foreign ports prior to last Monday are continuous regardless of calls at British Columbia ports having been received, it was announced to-day that the Defender, of the Harrison-Desmet Line, would come here Sunday with her liquor stores aboard. The stores are to be put under seal here. The Blue Funnel liner Astyanax and Proteilaus, in shifting to Vancouver and back here will also be exempt from the ruling, their calls in British Columbia not being allowed to break the continuity of their voyages from overseas, so far as liquor is concerned.

LEVIATHAN'S TRIAL CRUISE CRITICIZED

Described By Chairman of Democratic National Committee Reiterates Charges

Washington, June 16.—Chairman Hull, of the Democratic National Committee, reiterated last night his charges of waste and extravagance in connection with the proposed trial trip of the Shipping Board liner Leviathan.

Replying to the statement issued by Chairman Lasker, Hull declared responsibility for the "million dollar joy ride" could not be shifted to Democratic officials of the last administration, since the contract for re-conditioning the vessel was not signed until 1922.

"The proposed investigation of Chairman Lasker's so-called 'million dollar joy ride,'" said Mr. Hull, "and his administration of the Shipping Board generally rather than criticism of his Leviathan junket, may have furnished the reason for his belated explanation of that now more or less joyless affair. Before the Democratic National Committee made any comment upon it, Representative William J. Graham, of Illinois, scheduled as the Republican leader in the next House, had cancelled his acceptance of an invitation, and was quoted in the public press as saying: 'The trip is not necessary; the ship has had one trial trip from Newport News to Boston. Why take another? This is the most unjustifiable excursion I ever heard of.'"

BREAKING IT TO FATHER. "You have a nerve to suggest my taking you into partnership. What's the idea?" "Wouldn't you rather have your daughter marry your partner than your clerk?"—Judge.

CANADA SHIPPING ACT AMENDED

Ottawa, June 16.—A bill amending the Canadian Shipping Act in a number of particulars was put through the committee stage in the House yesterday afternoon.

One clause of the bill, presumably referring to sales of ships by the United States Shipping Board with a "string" attached, provides that the Registrar shall not register any ship purchased from a foreign subject or corporation where the bill of sale imputes any measure of continued control by the Government of a foreign country.

Another clause provides that the Minister of Marine may pay out moneys applicable to the relief of distressed seamen, such sums as are deemed necessary for the relief of shipwrecked or destitute seamen not entitled to relief under the Merchant Shipping Act.

Third reading was given to a bill amending the Biological Board Act. This provides for three additional members of the board, one an official of the Department of Marine and Fisheries and the two others, representatives of the fisheries industry.

Mr. Lapointe made it clear that members of the board were only paid their actual expenses.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Rev. J. S. Patterson will conduct (D.V.) the service in the sun room of the General Hospital tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock.

All literature issued by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau is now being issued with the words "Put Out Camp Fires—Please," stamped across in red ink.

For the information of those concerned relative to their obtaining radio receiving licenses under the Radio-Telegraph Act, licenses may now be obtained at the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Office, room 32, Pemberton Building, Victoria, B.C.

Probates and administrations issued during the week are as follows: Probate re-sealed, Ricardo, Greenwood, B. C. estate $48,784; Edward Norrell, of Victoria, died at Victoria May 4, 1923, $4,000.

In a short session of the city police court to-day James C. Danby was charged with being in charge of a car while under the influence of an intoxicant. The accused pleaded not guilty and was remanded until Monday for trial.

Set formerly to take place in the first week of July, the Cadet Camp at Sidney will open on June 30, it is now learned. Cadets from Victoria, Island, and Mainland points to the number of several thousand will be under canvas.

Daily band concerts will begin Tuesday next. Funds to promote these concerts are being raised through different sources. The band at the Armories, Friday, June 22, at which 100 musicians will give their services, will be in aid of the fund for concerts.

Officers of the newly chartered Hawaiian Club of Nanaimo are: President, Dr. W. F. Drysdale; Vice-President, J. C. Dakin; Trustee, E. W. Harding; Treasurer, A. C. Van Houten; Secretary, D. M. Grant. The directors are: A. J. Sampson, W. Dunn, W. E. J. Ekins, J. C. H. Gunn, R. A. Playfair, and F. A. Hanna.

Vancouver friends of the late Samuel Morley, who died suddenly yesterday, are anxious to locate the body. Mr. and Mrs. Splice, who live in this city, Mr. and Mrs. Splice are the brother-in-law and sister respectively of Mr. Morley. A request to this effect was forwarded to the city police yesterday through the Cunningham Hardware Company, Vancouver. The name "Splice," says the request, may be spelled in some other way.

The newspaper offices had numerous inquiries, and much excitement was aroused among the Vancouver girls picking strawberries in the vicinity of Victoria when copies of the Vancouver newspapers arrived to-day carrying the Fire Boat by-law appeal. Hasty readers believed that a fire of serious dimensions had broken out on the Vancouver waterfront, and spread the report verbally until the rumor had grown to gigantic proportions.

Brigadier Baugh, a veteran Salvation Army officer, and Brigadier Coombs, Divisional Commander for Southern B. C., will be welcomed at the Broad Street "Citadel" to-night and conduct the meetings all day tomorrow. The two Brigadiers are old friends, both having held positions in several of the Eastern provinces many years ago. Brigadier Baugh commenced his career as an officer in England and was the first Salvation Army captain in Whitechapel. He will speak to-morrow afternoon on "Early Day Battles and Trophies of Grace." At 7.15 p.m. a salvation meeting will be held.

OBITUARY RECORD

The death took place Friday evening of Velma Victoria Smith, aged one year, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith, of 1117 Johnson Street. The funeral will take place from the McCall Funeral Chapel on Monday afternoon and proceed to St. Andrew's Cathedral, where mass will be celebrated at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made in Ross Bay Cemetery.

The remains of the late Alexander Simpson Kesson will be laid to rest in Ross Bay Cemetery on Monday afternoon. Service will be held at the Thomson Funeral Home, 1625 Quadra Street, at 2.30 o'clock when the Rev. W. G. Wilson, D.D., of the First Presbyterian Church, will officiate. The late veteran will be buried with full military honors.

The funeral of the late Miss Catherine Elizabeth Pamphlet yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the B. C. Funeral Chapel was very largely attended. The late Miss Pamphlet was connected with the early history of this city, her parents having been residents of the Province from the earliest times. Rev. Clem Davies, of Centennial Methodist Church, conducted the services. The beautiful floral designs covered the casket and hearse. The hymns sung were "Forever With the Lord" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The following acted as pallbearers: Messrs. E. P. Kay, Captain J. D. Macpherson, J. A. Robb, J. C. Clayton, J. H. Murray and G. C. Ozard. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot at Ross Bay Cemetery.

The death took place yesterday at Marigold of Dorothy Ailhea Wilson, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. Price Daniel Wilson. The little girl is survived by her father and one sister. The funeral will take place on Monday, June 18, at 3.30 o'clock from the Sands Funeral Chapel, and interment will be made at Ross Bay Cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Susannah Page, who passed away at her home, 1523 Belcher Street, took place yesterday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from the Sands Funeral Chapel. The services were conducted by Rev. A. E. McMinn. Relatives and many friends were present, and the casket was covered with many beautiful flowers. The pallbearers were Messrs. G. M. Brown, J. H. Hamilton, W. Dinmore, J. F. Voigt, F. D. F. Hodges and George McEwan. Interment was made in Ross Bay Cemetery.

COURT OF REVISION

On Monday at the Court House, Easton Street, the City and Esquimalt Courts of Revision of the provincial voters' list will be opened by Registrar George H. Mabon. Anyone omitted from the list and entitled to a vote may secure the restoration of his name by appearing in person.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

COUNCIL TO NAME MANAGER; MAYOR ENDS ALL STRIFE

ment, which will be separated completely from all other departments. The Mayor's hands, the city bonds and sinking funds, are to be regarded as financial expert. His salary will be increased in recognition of his promotion. As head of the treasury department he will be given powers which he did not possess formerly. The Council decided last night that he is too valuable a man as treasurer to give up his office. It would be almost impossible to replace him as treasurer, the Council felt.

The powers and functions of the controller, it was explained by Council members to-day, will be tentatively fixed at first. After he has been in office for four or five months the Council will be in a better position to describe his work in detail.

The Mayor's supreme effort to bring together the Council, hopelessly split over the reorganization of city machinery, succeeded last night beyond everyone's expectations. The success of the Mayor's plan was regarded as a great personal triumph for the city's chief magistrate and the most constructive step he has taken since assuming office.

Yesterday harmony among the aldermen seemed hopeless. With Alderman Leeming's resignation in the afternoon, the city financial administration appeared demoralized. To-day the aldermen were working together more closely than ever before.

Aldermen in Agreement
The Council's agreement on the appointment of a controller or manager was unexpected as a similar scheme was voted down last Monday by big majority, only three members favoring it. Last night it was explained, however, that several aldermen who had opposed the scheme Monday were opposed not so much to the idea of a controller as to the way in which the finance committee had framed its recommendation on the matter. When the alderman got around the table and talked the whole question over in a friendly and dispassionate way, it was found that they were almost on common ground. So satisfactory was the discussion, in fact, that Alderman Leeming withdrew his resignation and declared that the Council's attitude was in complete agreement with his own.

The Council, however, put its foot down flatly on the suggestion that an outsider like C. J. Yorke, city manager of Edmonton, should be made controller. It was felt that a Victoria man who could handle the position satisfactorily would be found without trouble. No salary for the position was fixed.

Alderman George Sangster, who led the fight against the finance committee's recommendations last Monday, was out of the city last night, and his attitude on the appointment of a controller is not known.

SLOAN TO WELCOME PREMIERS TO B. C.

Jubilee Hospital Board Wants $50,000 at Once for New Contracts

From information before the Board of Directors of the Jubilee Hospital last evening approximately $50,000 in contracts have been awarded by the Board in connection with the new hospital buildings.

It transpires that at least $50,000 of the sum of from $125,000 to $150,000 necessary to finish will be required within the next two months, so that the contracts now in progress may be completed.

Unless the Board is in a financial position to award these contracts, work on those already let will be held up, and it will be impossible to open the new quarters for patients by the end of the year, which had been the hope of the Board.

PRETTY WEDDING HELD AT DUNCAN

Miss Mary Elizabeth Butler Becomes Bride of Mr. Hector Marsh

Duncan, June 15.—St. Edward's Church, Duncan, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, when Miss Mary Elizabeth (Bunt), daughter of Captain and Mrs. Butler, became the bride of Mr. Hector Marsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Marsh, Duncan. Rev. Father Johnson performed the ceremony. The church was beautifully decorated by friends of the bride and Mrs. H. P. Swan played the wedding march.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, Captain Butler, by whom she was given in marriage, looked sweetly pretty in a lovely gown of white charmesse satin, the traditional veil and orange blossoms and a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. Her two sisters, Miss Kate and Miss Gladys Butler, acted as bridesmaids, the former dressed in peach colored silk, trimmed with silver lace; hat in suite, and bouquet of pink roses and carnations, and the latter in blue silk, with white straw hat and shower bouquet of pink carnations. Two sweet little flower girls followed the bride, Miss Mary Marsh, the groom's little sister, and Ivy Waterston, a friend of the bride, dressed in dainty white dresses, hats to match and carrying baskets of rose petals with which to strew her pathway. Mr. James Marsh, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, some fifty guests being present. The bride was decorated heart-shaped three-tier wedding cake and the many presents testified to the popularity of the happy pair. The bride's gift to the bridegroom was a sterling silver Eveready pencil, the groom's gift to the bride a lovely toilet necklace and earrings, to the bridesmaid a handsome handbag, and to the best man gold cuff links. During the reception Mrs. Fred Rutledge sang "Bridal Morn," Mr. B. Ryall acting as accompanist.

Mr. and Mrs. Hector Marsh left on the afternoon train, the bride traveling in a becoming navy blue suit, with hat and veil to match. After a honeymoon spent on the Island and Mainland they will take up their residence in their pretty home on St. Julian Street, Duncan.

METS TRIM BAYS BY TENTH-INNING RALLY

Scoring three runs in the tenth inning while their opponents were only able to net one, the Mets succeeded in defeating the Bays at Beacon Hill last evening in a Junior Baseball League fixture by twelve to ten.

At the end of the ninth the teams were on even terms, the score standing at nine all. In their turn the Mets slapped out enough hits to score three runners. The Bays tried hard to keep in touch with the Mets, but Bill Storch had too much on the ball and the best they could do was to send one runner home.

The Bays used three pitchers in trying to halt the rush of the Mets,

Firmness Is Keynote Of Good Iron Shots

Sarazen Advises Against Overswing and Urges Tighter Grip Than Used On Drivers; Left Arm Must Be Kept Straight Regardless of Distance From Green

By GENE SARAZEN World's Champion Golfer Good iron play is the secret of a successful golf game and if you wish to become a proficient golfer I would urge you to cultivate form and style in this department.

One of the reasons professionals score better and more consistently than amateurs as a class is due to the fact they play their irons in better form than an amateur and with a short, compact backswing. Most amateurs, I think, over-swing with their irons and consequently are prone to inaccuracy in respect.

Bobby Jones, Chick Evans, and Francis Ouimet, admittedly three of the greatest American amateurs who ever played the game, stand out because of their iron play. Evans in fact is one of the finest iron players in the country. He developed his play in this resting, as you might say, as did Jones and Ouimet, and as a result, when on occasion they have been erratic around the greens, or from the tees, they have not stood them in good stead and has enabled them to keep in the running.

It is easier to learn to use the wood because this stroke is more of a sweep and a swing and does not demand the precision that an iron shot does. You may get off your drive more quickly than with the irons but you can also get the shot back again by cutting down or easing up on the swing.

But in every case you've got to hit an iron shot with that sweet-sounding click, and with firmness if you wish to obtain good results. And so I say practice constantly with your irons once you have learned the art of hitting the shot. For it is from these shots that most good scores result.

An iron shot differs from a wooden shot in that it is more of a direct hit whereas the stroke with the wood is a long sweep with intent to get as much distance as possible. As I have stated before, all good shots are hit on the down-stroke and this is especially true of the irons, which are especially true of the club-head does all of the work.

Right there is where many players make their mistakes. They try to lift the ball with the arms, instead of hitting through and allowing the club-head to do this work. In hitting through the shot I always take a little turf which, as I keep, keeps the shot firm and holding the ball to the line.

There are some five or six classes of irons used by most good players but of course you do not want that many, especially if you are now developing your game. Irons for getting distance are now numbered 1, 2, 3 and 4. No. 1 is more of a driver, iron than a mid-iron. You may find use for that club but for general purposes No. 2 iron will do the work of the other three very nicely.

Walter Hagen, who some time ago originated what is called the mashie-iron which has a little deeper blade than the ordinary mashie, but here again I think you will find a mashie with a wide blade sufficient for most shots between a mid-iron and a mashie-club.

I would advise you to have both a mashie-club and a niblick. The former is a right useful club which can be employed for various shots. Forget about ribbed clubs, which are extremely difficult to play properly. If you insist on using this kind don't try to cut the ball like Jack Hutchison, but simply play the shot naturally as you would an ordinary shot. Keep the back-swing take care of itself.

The principles for playing each of these shots are virtually the same. In order that you may have a clear understanding of how each shot is made, I shall deal with these separately and give you the details of the mechanics of the stroke of each, as well as I can.

NEW BATTING MARK IN COUNTY CRICKET

Four Centuries Made By Middlesex; Third Wicket Played for 375 Runs

London, June 16.—(Canadian Press).—Following are to-day's county championship cricket results: Surrey defeated Warwick by 45 runs. Sussex defeated Glamorgan by an innings and 60 runs. Middlesex defeated Hampshire on the first innings. Four Middlesex batsmen made centuries, Dales, 103; Lee, 107; Hearne, 232; and Hendrick, 177, not out.

Nottingham defeated Essex by an innings and 110 runs. Leicestershire defeated Somerset in the first innings. Lancashire defeated Worcester in two innings. Makepeace 203. Nottingham defeated Essex by an innings and 110 runs. Leicestershire defeated Kent by 82 runs.

Dates Set for Club Handicap At the Willows

Victoria Lawn Tennis Club Will Start Tournament on June 23

Next to the British Columbia open championships the most important tournament of the season at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club is the annual club handicap for men's singles, ladies' singles, men's doubles, ladies' doubles and mixed doubles. The tournament this year will commence on Saturday afternoon, June 23, at 2:30 o'clock, entries closing on Thursday, June 21, at 6 p.m.

The trophy in connection with the men's singles is a magnificent solid silver cup presented by the firm of Chaloner and Mitchell and estimated to be of the value of one thousand dollars.

There will be very keen competition in the various classes this season and the matches will be well worth watching. In connection with the club handicaps it has been decided to hold the junior championship tournament for boys and girls under 15, 16 and 18, and the twelve grass courts of the club will present a busy and animated scene for the two weeks the tournament is in progress.

The under 15 and 18 represents the teams from Vancouver Island and the under 16 the championships of British Columbia. Competitors entering from outside the province will be expected to play until Monday, July 2.

JUNIOR BASEBALL

There is a lapse of fifteen days between the two halves of the schedule of the Victoria City Junior Baseball League. In this period three games will be played. These all emanate from protests. The first game will be between the Mets and Oakland and the Mets protest being upheld. Oakland is the home team and is making arrangements for the game. The second game will be played by Oakland and the Bays. Oakland will also make arrangements for this game. There was a dispute as to the final score after the innings. This was settled and the game was replayed, by officials, W. S. Maguire, of Y. M. C. A., acting as chairman. The Hustlers and the Mets will also play a protested game. The Mets are the home team.

The dates for these games will be between June 15 and 22. The second half of the schedule will be played starting June 27.

Yankees Pull Up But Giants Are Still Slipping

Chicago Cubs Drop Back After Dash; Athletics Stood On Their Heads

New York, June 16.—Straightening up with a bang, New York Yankees skidded around their new stadium yesterday and won from St. Louis 10-6, but the Giants continued to slip the race that kills, the Reds winning 3-0.

Sherrod Smith stood the Philadelphia Athletics on their head and Cleveland won 4-1. With yesterday's victory Brooklyn has the edge of the series 2-1, and the Cubs, twice within one game of the first division, again have gone definitely into sixth place.

Detroit made it two straight from Boston 2-0, and Washington beat Chicago 8-5, splitting the series, while St. Louis trounced Boston 5-2.

At Chicago—R. H. E. Brooklyn 5 14 2 Chicago 7 10 5 Batteries: Reuther, Decatur and Taylor; Alexander and O'Farrell.

At Cincinnati—R. H. E. Cincinnati 3 6 1 Batteries: McQuillan, Scott and Snyder; Lique and Wingo.

At St. Louis—R. H. E. St. Louis 3 11 3 Batteries: McNamara, Benton, Barnes, Fillingim and E. Smith; Haines, Stewart and Ainsmith.

Pittsburgh First-Baseman Is Now Hailed as Real Rival of Sisler's

CHARLES GRIMM

When Kitty Bransfield faded, Barney Dreyfuss started on a journey that covered fifteen years before he found a competent first baseman for his Pittsburgh Pirates. He expended a fortune, but without results until he found a star for $3,500.

Charles J. Grimm, who received a major league trial at the age of eighteen, represents Dreyfuss's latest first baseman investment.

From the days of Bransfield until the arrival of Grimm, the owner of the Pirates spent close to $100,000 for first base material. The investments include Nealon from the Pacific Coast, Jack Flynn, Bill Abstein, Fred Hunter, Ed Koney, Victor Sauer, Fred Molwitz and others.

Grimm was with the Pirates before he became a senior. He was born at St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25, 1895, and reported to the Pirates in the Spring of 1919.

Compared With Sisler An inside slant on Grimm's first basing and his general all-round ability was presented by Jim Hagby recently. Hagby, an American League player, saw the brilliant George Sisler play. He is with the Pirates this season and he has watched Grimm daily.

"I may open an argument," remarked Hagby recently, "but Sisler surpasses Grimm only in base running and a bit in his hitting. In fielding Grimm is the equal of Sisler in doing everything else and is constantly improving."

"I have never seen a first baseman throw with such accuracy while flying in the air as Grimm. He reaches grounders going to his right, and with a sort of a hurdle tosses the ball down to Maranville, waist high to force runners.

"He is one of the few first basemen to actually post a batting title of the plate, field a bunch on an intended sacrifice and catch the runner going to third.

Shelby to Have Its Big Battle, Bankers State

Dempsey-Gibbons Fight Came Close to Falling Through; Strange Conference

Great Falls, Mont., June 16.—Goldfield had its Gans-Nelson fight, Reno had the battle between Jeffries and Johnson and Shelby, the cow town nestling in the prairie 100 miles north of here, will have its heavyweight championship contest between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons July 4.

In one of the strangest conferences ever held in the history of glove fighting an agreement was concluded at an early hour to-day between Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, and Great Falls business men to raise the second $100,000 installment of a $300,000 guarantee due Dempsey.

George H. Stanton, tall, gray-haired president of the Stanton Trust and Savings Bank, was the actual saviour of the Shelby fight, which last night was threatened with complete collapse and financial failure after the Shelby promoters had admitted their inability to raise the $100,000 which was due Kearns before midnight last night.

Will Risk Last Dollar. Stanton announced that he would advance $50,000 immediately if assured that the remaining $50,000 would be actually posted. Mayor Jim Johnson, of Shelby, treasurer of the American Legion post committee promoting the show, will risk his last dollar to make the fight a success.

Grimm started the season with a remarkable batting spurt, hitting sixteen more and he would have equalled the modern safety record. The nearest approach to his achievements this was that of Harry Heilmann, of Detroit, with a safe hitting mark for twenty-one games.

Bill McKechnie has Grimm in seventh place in the batting order, not because he is a weak hitter but because, as he puts it, "I like to have a good hitter down there and Charley is the best I know of."

Grimm had but two years of professional experience before he received his diploma. He performed on the semi-pro lots in St. Louis, where he was recommended to Connie Mack, the Athletics' manager, carried him around for a month, but with Stuffy McInnis on the bag naturally did not have an opening for him.

Grimm lined up with the Cardinals in 1918, but after playing in fifty games was transferred to Little Rock once with a picture showing him with the Travelers and improved to such an extent in 1919 that he was purchased by the Pirates. Grimm bats left-handed, throws with the right, weighs 175 pounds and measures 5 feet 11 inches.

Hard hitting brought the Sons of Canada through to another victory in the Commercial Baseball League yesterday, when they disposed of the tail-end club, Sidney, by 11-7. The teams played at Sidney and had a very interesting contest.

The Sons have yet to be beaten. They have found the going very much to their liking, but there is a danger that the club will topple them before the season closes. Sidney started out as if it intended to ring the chimes over the Sons' bodies as they scored a run in the first and second innings. Then the Sons came and pounded two runs across, evening the count. In the third the sluggers Sons connected with Lines's fantastic twisters and when the score-keeper had finished his addition he found that six runs had been scored. The Pirates won by 2 to 1. The Oakland put up a good fight and if their fielding had been snappier the tale might have been different. Tom Kay, twirling for the Pirates, was especially brilliant. He struck out nine and walked two. Patrick, for Oakland, twirled good ball, but was let down by his support in the pinches.

By winning this game the Pirates have won the first half of the league schedule. The second half starts on June 27, with the Pirates meeting the Mets at Central Park.

Collins Forges Into Second Place In Race

ASCOT RACE MEET BIG SOCIAL EVENT

Event Will Outstrip Its Pre-War Predecessors From Social Standpoint

London, June 16.—The Royal Ascot racing meet which lasts from Tuesday to Friday of next week bids fair to outstrip from a social standpoint its pre-war predecessors.

The King and Queen will have Windsor Castle, which is close to Ascot Heath full of guests all the week, and if the weather holds good their majesties will follow the usual custom of heading the procession of carriages from the Duke's Drive in the castle to the race course.

There will be semi-state dinner parties each evening at the castle. In consequence of the death of Princess Christian, the King's aunt, several prominent members of society have countermanded their order for colored dresses for the meeting, and will wear black and white gowns similar to Queen Mary's dress at the recent courts.

Canadian Rugby Will Be Played In Vancouver

Game Will Be Introduced Next Winter By Vancouver Amateur Union

Vancouver, June 16.—Vancouver is to have Canadian football next winter if a sufficient number of enthusiasts can be secured. The local branch of the A. A. U. of C. are fostering the movement and a meeting to discuss the formation of a league will probably be held shortly.

Playing rules of the Canadian football game provides for eleven men on a side, and it is very similar to the American game. The local branch of the A. A. U. of C. is anxious to get a line on how the game would take in B. C. and is promoting it.

If Canadian rugby is played here, it will probably mean the entering of a team from the local U. B. C. in the intercollegiate championships, and will also facilitate arranging international games with teams from the United States.

Old-Timers as Coaches. There are enough old-timers around Vancouver to act as coaches and also to form the nucleus for several strong teams. Many young players are anxious to take up the game. Once started, the amateur union officials feel confident that it will soon become popular and be played in all the public schools.

Two Giants Race. Dyer Bancroft and Frank Frisch, both members of the Giants, are having a hot race for scoring honors. The former has crossed the plate forty-eight times and his rival forty-six.

BILL JOHNSTON WINS FINALS IN NET MEET

Mrs. Satterthwaite Defeats Mrs. Mallory Then Loses to Miss Ryan

Beckenham, Eng., June 16.—William M. Johnston, United States star, won the men's singles of the Kent lawn tennis championship today, defeating D. M. Greig in straight sets 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, formerly of California, won the women's singles, defeating Mrs. Satterthwaite, British star, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3. Mrs. Satterthwaite in the semi-finals had previously eliminated Mrs. Molla Maloney.

In the semi-finals of the women's doubles Mrs. Edgington and Miss McKane defeated Mrs. Mallory and Miss Bancroft of Boston, 6-2, 7-5.

FOOTBALLERS DISCUSS PROPOSED AMENDMENTS

A meeting of the Victoria and District Football Association will be held on Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the Veterans of France clubrooms for the purpose of discussing the proposed amendments to the constitution of the B. C. F. A. All delegates from the various football clubs are requested to attend.

BECKETT-CARPENTIER FIGHT IS DOUBTFUL

London, June 16.—Another post-punching fight between Beckett-Carpentier fight, fixed for July 4 in this city, is probable, according to Sporting Life. Beckett's left hand is said to be again giving him trouble.

UNIVERSITY WINS

The University Military School won a match against the Victoria High School, played yesterday, by thirty-two runs. The bowlers had all the better of matters over the batsmen, neither side doing any heavy scoring.

SONS OF CANADA HAVE YET TO BE DEFEATED

Sidney Unable to Halt Victorious March of Leaders; Plenty of Hitting

Hard hitting brought the Sons of Canada through to another victory in the Commercial Baseball League yesterday, when they disposed of the tail-end club, Sidney, by 11-7. The teams played at Sidney and had a very interesting contest.

The Sons have yet to be beaten. They have found the going very much to their liking, but there is a danger that the club will topple them before the season closes. Sidney started out as if it intended to ring the chimes over the Sons' bodies as they scored a run in the first and second innings. Then the Sons came and pounded two runs across, evening the count. In the third the sluggers Sons connected with Lines's fantastic twisters and when the score-keeper had finished his addition he found that six runs had been scored. The Pirates won by 2 to 1. The Oakland put up a good fight and if their fielding had been snappier the tale might have been different. Tom Kay, twirling for the Pirates, was especially brilliant. He struck out nine and walked two. Patrick, for Oakland, twirled good ball, but was let down by his support in the pinches.

By winning this game the Pirates have won the first half of the league schedule. The second half starts on June 27, with the Pirates meeting the Mets at Central Park.

Other leading batters are: Mogan, Philadelphia, 378; Frisch, New York, 365; Housch, Cincinnati, 364; Young, New York, 356; Williams, Philadelphia, 351; Southworth, Boston, 340; Neis, Brooklyn, 336; O'Farrell, Chicago, 336; McInnis, Boston, 332; Johnston, Brooklyn, 330.

VICTORIA, B. C., SATURDAY, JUNE 16, 1923

DEATH WILL RAISE FROM AIR IN NEXT WAR, H. G. WELLS

10 DOWNING STREET HAS DEMOCRATIC AIR UNDER NEW PREMIER

No Diehard Barriers at Door of Official Residence of Government's Leader

Delegation From Baldwin Family's Iron Works 'Shot' By Movie Men

Wife Gives Interviews; Bonar Law's Secretary, Edith Watson, Retains Her Post

London, June 16.—With Stanley Baldwin in residence at 10 Downing Street, there is every indication that the historic though unimpressive home of Britain's Prime Ministers will take on the democratic atmosphere that evolved during Lloyd George's tenure. Although reckoned a diehard Tory, Mr. Baldwin gives no sign he means to erect any diehard barriers at the door of his official residence. In fact, a few hours before his installation at No. 10 he welcomed a delegation of boys from the Baldwin family's iron works in Wales and had a small army of camera and movie men on the premises to record the fact. To give his countrymen a picture of himself at work, he had a cinematographer "shoot" him in the house itself. Unlike most hostesses at No. 10, Mrs. Baldwin granted interviews to women reporters for the British press. Such a thing was not done in Margot Asquith's day, though usual enough in the subsequent regime of Lloyd George.

One Horace Walpole's House. This old house in Downing Street, whose foundations had to be bolstered up last year to prevent a cave-in, has had a chequered career. It is comfortable, but owns few of the pretensions of the aristocratic houses in the West End. It is said a Pittsburgh millionaire offered to buy it once, with or without the furniture. It was first owned by Sir George Downing, some time ambassador to The Hague and also secretary to the Treasury. It then passed to Charles Downing, who advertised it "To Let." It was leased for a time by Baron Bothmer, Hanoverian Minister, on whose death it reverted to the Crown, and was presented by George II to Sir Robert Walpole and his successors as their official residence. The house remains much the same as in Walpole's day, with its brass lion's head door knocker, portico lamp and white front steps. Disraeli, Lord Beaconsfield, used to take his morning airing in its backyard, which in the earlier days was the site of cock-pens, whence the birds were taken to fight in an adjacent cockpit. In the same garden Gladstone used to play with his grandchildren.

Experienced Woman Secretary. One of Prime Minister Baldwin's private secretaries is Edith Margaret Watson, who began her career in the Colonial Office eight years ago. Women have proved so efficient at this sort of work that many of the most prominent politicians in this country count at least one woman in their secretariat.

Miss Watson became Bonar Law's secretary when he was the chief in the Colonial Office and remained with him after he was Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lord Privy Seal. When Austen Chamberlain took up the duties of the last named post in 1921 Miss Watson acted in a similar capacity. Then when Bonar Law was made Prime Minister she rejoined her old chief.

Like Miss Stevenson, who was Lloyd George's secretary and attended with him many of the most important confidential conferences, Miss Watson knows how to keep a secret. It is no eight hours' job, this being the confidential assistant to a Premier or other Cabinet Minister, as the day often exceeds twelve. But it has been found that women can stand the strain of long hours as well as men, if not better.

MAX IN WRONG

Max Beerbohm, famous cartoonist, has rendered himself extremely unpopular in England by his caricatures of the Royal Family.

Beerbohm Calls in Cartoons on Royalty After Public Storm

London, June 16.—Storm of protests, which was raised over caricatures of royalty by Max Beerbohm, has caused the withdrawal of the offending drawings from the display here.

The Hanoverian kings after Queen Victoria came in for a merciless lampooning at the hands of popular artists, with public sympathy on the whole favorable to the former. Practically every newspaper in London severely reprimanded Beerbohm for his temerity in caricaturing royalty as sharply as he did in the present showing of his works at Leicester galleries. The manager of the galleries published a letter from the artist reading: "The drawings objected to were, as you know conceived in a spirit of light-hearted fantasy, but if the public is likely to read any shadow of seriousness into them, and accordingly regard them as unkind, and even disloyal, I think it would be well to avoid misunderstanding of my disposition—in which you know there is no unkindness and certainly no disloyalty—by removing the particular drawing from the exhibition."

Wedding Cartoon Deplored. The cartoon which caused the most trouble is one entitled "Long Chosen and Beginning Late." It depicts the Prince of Wales in 1927 at last choosing as his bride a coarse looking, red-faced woman about forty. The sketch was at once bought for £250 by Sir Gerald-du Maurier, the famous actor, who said he bought it because "I think it is funny and to prevent it from falling into the wrong hands, I would present it to the prince himself if I knew him well enough."

Beerbohm's other satires on royalty included several lampoons of the present king and the late King Edward. One of the latter is genuinely funny. It is entitled "One of the Rare and Rather Awful Visits of Edward, Prince of Wales, to Windsor Castle." Edward, bald and well past middle age, is shown in a corner of the throne room with his back turned toward his mother, whose face bears an inimitable expression of mingled pride and disapproval.

Already Britain has 1,024 women magistrates. "And just how long ago was it that it was said they hadn't sense enough to vote?"

COURT FUNCTIONS MAKE BRITAIN SOCIAL SEASON

Numerous Big Dances and Parties Make for Busy Times in London Life

Chelsea Flower Show and Royal Military Tournament Attract Many Visitors

Prince of Wales Has Been in North On Tour, Planting Trees and Seeing Races

London, June 16.—With two courts held at Buckingham Palace, and numerous dances and parties in addition, the last several days have been most brilliant for society here, although perhaps not quite so exciting as the week's festivities at the end of April, on the occasion of the wedding of the Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowes Lyon. The two courts were the outstanding events, of course, and American as well as British debutantes visited the palace to make their first court to the King and Queen. The first evening was the more brilliant of the two, attended by diplomats and high officials of state in gorgeous livery. The drawing rooms were filled with the wonderful court gowns worn by the wives and daughters, it made a particularly striking scene. The great ballroom, with the concert gallery running along one side, was used, as has been the case ever since the days of King Edward VII, who had it enlarged and improved when he instituted evening court functions instead of the old stately afternoon "drawing rooms" of Queen Victoria.

Industrial Tour Takes Place. Not all the royal family was present. The Prince of Wales was away making an industrial tour of Yorkshire, while the Duke and Duchess of York were unable to attend because of the illness of the duchess, who has been unable to make a public appearance for the next few weeks. The presentations on Wednesday were mostly diplomatic, debaters being presented in the "general" drawing room. Two affairs, apart from balls, which attracted many prominent guests, were the Chelsea Flower Show and the Royal Military Tournament at Olympia. In spite of the drenching rain society which is in force for the latter, which is a well-attended affair, looked forward to with interest. The King and Queen and other members of the royal family were present at both.

On the day before the first court King George and Queen Mary attended a dinner given by the Earl of Farnham, and guests were invited, including the Earl and Countess of Beatty, the Duke and Duchess of Roxburgh, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire and Marquis and Marchioness Curzon of Kedleston. Chief among many other gayeries were a musicale and dance given by Mrs. M. M. Curzon, at the home of the Countess of Ancaster. Mrs. Wheeler's party took place in Raleigh House, her place on the Embankment. Other guests included the Archbishop of Canterbury, Mrs. Randall Davidson, the Duchess of Buckingham, Mr. John Sargent, Marquis and Marchioness Curzon, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Glasgow, Mrs. Marcellus Thompson, Mrs. Graham, Lord and Lady Swaythling and many others.

Fete Preceded by Dinners. Before the affair given by the Countess of Ancaster many well known persons gave dinners, taking their guests to the ball afterward. The guests of the countess included Princess Helena, Victoria, Princess Marie Louise, the Crown Prince of Sweden and Lord and Lady Kylesand. Mrs. Corrigan and Lady Ward were some of the other hostesses who entertained before the ball. The Countess of Ancaster loaned Ereby House for the entertainment, but the Marchioness of Carisbrooke received guests. Ereby House has a fine ballroom, with a leaded glass roof, sunken gardens, and is much used by the Ancasters for both formal and informal entertaining, of which they do great deals during the season.

If the Prince of Wales had been in London he would undoubtedly have been a guest at one or other of these dances, as he goes to a number of informal affairs whenever in town. He spent the week-end with Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles at their Yorkhouse, Goldersborough Hall, and while there planted two trees in the grounds as a memento of his first visit to his sister's country house. He has been touring through a number of towns in Yorkshire, attending the races. Mr. and Mrs. William B. Leeds (Princess Xenia of Greece) are now in London at Spencer House, and are expecting Prince and Princess Christopher of Greece to join them within a few days.

BROUGHT LAUDER OUT

London, June 16.—Mackenzie Murdoch, violinist and composer, who died recently at Lennoxton, in his early touring days was the friend and associate of Sir Harry Lauder. He was the composer of "Home o' Mine," a notable addition to Scottish songs. In Harry Lauder's early days Mackenzie Murdoch was largely instrumental in bringing the famous Scotch singer into prominence. Lauder made his first tour in partnership with Murdoch. It was a great success and at its conclusion a concert was held in the Glasgow City Hall, at which it may be said Lauder first came to the front. The pair made other tours together in Scotland and England.

OXFORD SLIP OFF TO SHOPGIRLS' PARTIES ON SLY

Noblemen and Pretty Store Workers Glide Together Despite Strict Varsity Rules

Stern Proctors Raid Halls and Students Caught Are Fined $10 Or Confined

One Quick-Witted Undergraduate Makes His Escape Posing As a Drummer

Oxford, June 16.—The university police of Oxford, or "Proctors," as they are called, are still continuing their war on dancing. Public dancing has long been forbidden in Oxford, the only dances allowed being those of a private nature on the express permission of the senior proctor. Subscription dances cannot be attended by undergraduates except on penalty of being fined or confined to their respective colleges after 9 o'clock at night if they are apprehended. Dancing never has taken possession of England, and it was the United States and Canada, but there has been a marked increase in its popularity since the war, and the English undergraduate now is not only losing his former bashfulness and dread of dancing, but is becoming quite enthusiastic.

Dances Lure Students. Unfortunately, Oxford is built on a monastic order, and there is little social life in which the students can meet the young women of the town. Consequently a singular situation has arisen, which baffles university authorities. For the last few years subscription dances have been given regularly at the Masonic Hall for the benefit of the townpeople. Dance enthusiasts in the undergraduate body soon discovered that by dropping in on these affairs they were able to meet the store girls of the town. They found that many of these girls were excellent dancers, and, being highly flattered at dancing with "gentlemen," not to mention an occasional lord, encouraged a mixing of domestic dances, which is not in English society.

The chief obstacle to undergraduate participation in the dances is that the hall is raised every night some 100 feet above the street level. Members of the university found dancing as politely requested to report to the proctor's office the next day, and were fined, which usually costs £2. The proctors, or "progs," as they are familiarly called, go about in their academic dress, and are not so grown. Each has two assistants who follow him a few paces behind to pursue undergraduates who try to make their escape by darting down the nearest side street. The assistants are known as "bulls," and they are always to be recognized by their derby hats. Needless to say, they are fast of foot.

Danger of Raids. When the warning is issued at a dance that "the progs are here!" there is a general scattering of the crowd on the floor. Unfortunately, the streets are usually guarded by the progs. Some few escape over the roofs to neighboring buildings, into nearby college gardens, but this method is difficult and dangerous, and a bar to timid men. Others mix with the townspeople in hopes of escaping unnoticed. In a recent raid on a dance at the progs' gate, picked up the drum and walked out as if he were a member of the orchestra going home. At the door he asked one of the "bulls" to call a taxi for him, and getting in he drove off to his college.

The university has become so severe in its determination to stamp out a practice which it considers bad for the undergraduates and shopgirls that the dances nowadays are but little before the hall. The proctors are now fined £2 for each time they are apprehended at a dance, and a greater sum if the offenses continue. Penalties Discouraging. The additional penalty of being "slipped" or confined to college after 9 o'clock also is a great discouragement to most dance enthusiasts, for all the colleges are well protected by high walls and it is difficult to get in or out except by the porter's gate. In a recent raid an English earl was caught by the progs, fined, and because it was not his first offense he was gated for a month, an embarrassing position to be in, as it necessitates scrambling in over high stone walls without being detected, if entry must be made after 9 o'clock. And some who at Oxford are fatal to the best garments.

NO CANCER CURE YET

Bonar Law's Medical Adviser Says It Is Not Even Known Whether It Is Local or General Disease. Horder, one of the chief medical advisers to Bonar Law, says no other single menace to human life and happiness approaches in significance the plague of cancer. This view is expressed by the noted Harley Street specialist in an article in the Sunday Times, in which he says: "We do not even know if cancer is a local or a general disease. Despite great improvements in surgical technique, and despite the efforts of those experts who have made radium and X-rays their special province, cancer is still, in the great majority of cases, an incurable disease. The limits of treatment along these lines appear to have been reached. Sir Thomas is one of the most prominent men identified with the British Empire cancer campaign.

King George Anxious to Make Sure Baby Lascelles Is Well Cared For

LONDON, June 16.—There's a "bat" in the palace. Says King George looking worried: "I tell you, Mary, that poor child isn't getting enough to eat! You don't feed him enough." Says Princess Mary: "Just like a grandpa! Of course he's fed enough. No, I simply won't wake him up in the middle of the night to feed him. That's mid-Victorian!" Mother and grandpa can't agree on many things for Baby George Henry Hubert Lascelles. The conversation given here isn't absolutely verbatim. But they've said approximately that, gossip has it. The king thinks that a baby ought to be fed regularly every three hours, awake or asleep. His own children were, he argues, and he'd like to know why his grandson shouldn't be fed every three hours. Modern nursery custom laughs at that. Princess Mary points out—nowadays a baby is left to sleep as long as six or seven hours if he is sleeping. Young Master Lascelles is not a bottle baby. His mother is raising him like any other youngster, and she hasn't a bit of patience with grandfaterly notions. Queen Mary, meanwhile, is a most docile grandamma. She doesn't share the king's anxieties at all, but sides with her daughter in the debate over the baby's feeding times. So it's two to one against the King, and the upshot is that Princess Mary is bossing George Henry Hubert's nursery. She has a nurse to wait on the baby, and a nursemaid to wait on the nurse. She herself picked out the furniture for the nursery. The articles are plain and simple, painted in gay tints and decorated with bright colored designs. She has decreed that unnecessary luxury and tiresome ceremonial be dispensed with. Royal women parliamentarians are successful. By her order he is called "Master Lascelles"—not "His Highness." And she feeds him when she pleases—no matter what the king says.

ROYAL MARRIAGE POSES AGE TO WED

London, June 16.—The Duke of York's marriage has stirred up a discussion as to what is the proper age for marrying. Most critics think that the Duke, who is 27 and the Duchess who is 22, hit the ideal age. Others point out that any age is the right one provided you have a sufficiently bulky bank account. The Bishop of Wexford and Dean of Durham oppose her departure on the Aquitania. Referring to the flapper, she said: "She is all right, but needs time to get straightened out. She wants more freedom than the girls of thirty years ago and she can't get adjusted all at once. I do not think the girl of to-day is flat and unattractive. Go to a bathing pool and see her in her bathing costume, and you will find that she is just beautiful. The modern girl has the secret of beauty. She moves with the times and has all but shaken herself free from the vulgarities acquired during the war. In two years' time there won't be a shaft of criticism directed against her. There is litheness and slender easy grace about the twentieth century woman that no age ever approached."

Flapper Surpasses Graces of the Ages Says Elinor Glyn

London, June 16.—Elinor Glyn says that American and English flappers will be fully appreciated and understood in two year's time but it will be ten years before it will be possible to say whether women parliamentarians are successful. The novelist made these remarks when seen at Waterloo Station before her departure on the Aquitania. Referring to the flapper, she said: "She is all right, but needs time to get straightened out. She wants more freedom than the girls of thirty years ago and she can't get adjusted all at once. I do not think the girl of to-day is flat and unattractive. Go to a bathing pool and see her in her bathing costume, and you will find that she is just beautiful. The modern girl has the secret of beauty. She moves with the times and has all but shaken herself free from the vulgarities acquired during the war. In two years' time there won't be a shaft of criticism directed against her. There is litheness and slender easy grace about the twentieth century woman that no age ever approached."

WHOOPIING COUGH ATTACKS DUCHESS

London, June 16.—Such a plebeian malady as whooping cough is as likely to upset the plans of royalty as well as the commonest subject of King George. Within a few weeks of her marriage the Duchess of York, who was Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, has contracted the disease, and at a time when it prevented her making an appearance at the first court reception of the season as a Duchess and the fourth lady of the land. Her physicians have prescribed complete isolation. The Prince of Wales, Viscount Lascelles, Princess Mary and Princess Christian also were prevented from attending. When it became known that the Duchess was ill there were many nervous mothers in Mayfair, as whooping cough seems to have attacked a number of adults in this fashionable section of London. To add to the worry there was the possibility that their own daughters might catch it just at the time they might be presented at court.

SELL DICKENS'S HOME

London, June 16.—Charles Dickens's last home, in which he lived fourteen years, has just been put on the market. The famous author gave $10,000 for "Gadshill," a red brick house on the old Dover Road near Cobham, and spent much money changing it to make it as pleasantly irregular and as violently opposed to all architectural ideas as the most hopeful man could possibly desire."

Othello Asks Brabantio for the Hand of His Daughter, Desdemona

AS GEORGE BERNARD SHAW WOULD RECORD IT

By SAMUEL HOFFENSTEIN. Brabantio—Now, see here, General, you don't believe in miscegenation, do you? Othello—What? Brabantio—I say, you don't believe in miscegenation, do you? Othello—I know nothing of these matters; I am a soldier. Brabantio—Of course, you don't. A soldier is not expected to know anything about anything; least of all, of the profession of firearms. As soon as he acquires the least inkling of what his business is all about, he chucks the army and becomes a military expert for "The Times," where he confuses the public, who don't know what he is talking about, and irritates his ex-comrades who wonder where the devil he picked it all up. But why did you give yourself away? Othello mops his brow with an enormous lemon-colored handkerchief, unstraps his sword and lays it on the floor and sits uncomfortably in a well constructed chair. Brabantio—I say, General, why did you give yourself away? Othello—What? Brabantio—There goes your simple-minded, childlike, riddleable Oriental. Now a British officer would have known more about miscegenation than you, but he never would have given himself away. Neither would a German, a Frenchman or an Italian. An Irishman might, although he, of course, would have tried to bluff. But an Oriental gives the game away. There's another popular notion that's all nonsense and humbug. People think the Orientals are subtle, complex, mysterious, secretive and deep. Rot! That's the kind of rot one would expect from the Chancellor of the Exchequer about matters of finance. Your Oriental is as transparent to us as say, as the Near East policy of a shrewd British Cabinet. Othello (hoarsely)—But how about your daughter? Brabantio—You want to marry her? Othello—Yes, sir. Brabantio—Of course, I might answer one or two things—I might refuse you or I might accept it. That's the sort of thing your dramatic critic would expect, because he couldn't possibly see more than two sides of a two-sided question: if he saw three he'd write plays instead of writing about them and not begrudge himself an extra bottle of wine for dinner. But I'll give you neither of these answers—neither "yes" or "no." Othello (prespiring frightfully)—What then? Brabantio—I'll just talk and I'll make them pay their good money to hear it. Force something down their throats they don't want and make them pay for the privilege and they'll lick your boots the rest of their lives. An audience is masochistic. The more you make them suffer, the more they'll adore you. Othello (hoarsely)—I could run you through with my sword. Brabantio—No, you couldn't, because I'm not Pinero or Jones or Maugham. That's just the sort of situation they'd revel in. The crowd would think they're getting their money's worth and the playwright, who is invariably an idiot where the feelings of the crowd are concerned, would be delighted at having given them something—that tickles them before his play is well on the way. Then you get three or four acts of the kind of pathos and drivel that your sophisticated people, who are even greater idiots than the others, think is true to life and that has come to be associated in a well constructed play, with younger sons, the Indian service and vicar's daughters. No, my boy, you can't run me through. Othello (AAside)—You can't get any thing out of this damn fellow. (Rising)—I'll run off with your daughter. Brabantio—Of course you will. But you'll do it off-stage, where they won't get tuppence worth of excitement out of it, and we'll talk every vestige of it out of their minds in the next act. Run off with her, my boy, and God bless you! (Shakes Othello's hand and gently pushes him through door).

No! This Is Not Suzanne!

Miss Evelyn Beekingham put every ounce of energy into this drive during the play for the singles championship of North London. Notice that the entire body, from toe to clenched fist, was under tension as the racket met the ball. The picture is quite reminiscent of those showing Suzanne Lenglen, world's champion, in action.

BRITAINS AROUSED BY LACK OF AIR DEFENCE AGAINST CHANNEL ATTACKS

England Seeks to Define Its Strength in Aircraft; France Now Has Lead. Author, Who Predicted Combats of Flyers, Opposes One-Power Standard. He Sees Defence Impossible, With Showers of Bombs Destroying Everything. League Accused of Plunder Scheme in Campaign to Increase Aeroplane Forces.

London, June 16.—H. G. Wells, whose work in the Air published in 1908, with prophetic of subsequent military aerial developments, strongly attacked the Air League and the British Empire for demanding one-power air standard. The adoption of a one-power standard in the air, leading either to a new competition of armament in aeroplanes or negotiations for a treaty along the lines of the Washington naval pact, for the limiting of air strength, looms as the next development in England's defence policy. Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of Aerial Navigation, has sent to members of the Imperial Defence Committee memoranda urging the adoption of a standard and at the same time has come out with a call for the public to back up his demand. He is one of the most energetic members of the Conservative Administration and the keenest on the job. If he is now aiming for a one-power standard he is the man to get his own way, and there is no question that public opinion is thoroughly roused over what is describable only as the country's defencelessness in the air. The present position of England has less than one-third the number of combatant aeroplanes possessed by France, while the disparity in the respective air forces of available combatant pilots is even more decisive.

English Defence is Weak. The real comparison of strength is even more marked than this, for practically the whole strength of France is concentrated within the country, while the larger part of England's air strength is scattered over the regions of the Empire remote from home. For the defence of London and the industrial centre of England the proportion is something like one in five.

Wells, who is a member of the Council of the Air League, however, attacks as archaic and useless any one-power standard. He declares that "Some people cannot see farther than their noses and are incapable of disregarding fetishes and prejudices of another age. These gentlemen are under the impression that the only way to avoid air raids is to be strong in the air. That is an absurdity. France, while the disparity in the respective air forces of a nation may be it cannot prevent aeroplanes of a rival country penetrating."

Predicts Bomb Warfare. "I speak not as a novelist but as a practical man. In the war of the future, one bomb will wipe out the inhabitants of a small town and a rain of bombs will destroy every living thing in a large city. "When that stage is reached the profession of arms will be reduced to a ring of increased persons gathered together to conduct the Government to embark on a vast, expensive air policy.

Sees Air Transportation. "I do believe most wholeheartedly in research in all matters connected with aviation, for aviation is the coming transport of the future. Tremendous advance in air travel is as inevitable as the coming of the new year after the decline of the old. "I object to interested manufacturers attempting to stampede the Government to place large orders for aeroplanes and airplane parts in the hands of private firms. They are in most cases inefficient and I can see no hope of any real development in civil aviation until aircraft manufacture is placed under national control. That the average Englishman is getting worse and worse in his opinion does not mean there is any hostility toward France—it is simply part of England's traditional policy. This country has the one-power standard at sea even to the detriment of the United States, and the recent feat of Georges Barbou of gliding across the Channel is an epitaph on insularity. "Unless the present development in the air is kept up in England she has not a reasonably good chance to defend herself and therefore her foreign policy is not wholly within her own control. As a matter of fact it is notorious that weakness in the air has been for some time a source of embarrassment to the British foreign policy. The objection felt by taxpayers to provide more money in order to increase air strength is met by the argument that reasonable security."

Long Search Reveals Lincoln's Double

Searcher Says He Never Expects Again to Find a More Striking Lincoln Resemblance.

SEARCH in forty-eight states has produced the exact prototype of Abraham Lincoln, says the man who conducted it. This prototype is of the mountains. He came up from the soil and worked his way through college. Like that other mountain man, he has a quiet humor, a native drawl, and slow gestures.

John E. Holley

That the "Lincoln type" endures and did not appear just as a phenomenon has been proved by the resemblance to Lincoln of some 200 men now living. Dr. Francis Trevelyan Miller, author of "The Portrait of Lincoln" and other historical books, since 1916 has been looking for a man fashioned in what he calls the "Lincoln mold." He found him in John E. Holley, of Cincinnati. The search also yielded two other distinctive Lincoln types, a clergyman in New York and a school teacher in Brooklyn.

Early historians of Lincoln, according to Dr. Miller, did not pay much attention to the details of his life. They made him a heroic and at times unreal figure, building their records principally on a foundation of formal facts about Lincoln in public life. But of the temperamental Lincoln of stormy moods, of many loves, with an inordinate fondness for the violin—the spiritual Lincoln—only later historians have written.

"It is quite possible," said Dr. Miller, "that if Lincoln had not become a great statesman he would have been a great musician. Lincoln's mother was a high strung, emotional woman from whom he inherited much of his romanticism. It was this man of great vision and deep melancholy who walked seven miles every week to visit the grave of his first love—Ann Rutledge—and kneeling there, said: 'Here my heart is buried.'"

"I am satisfied with the historical results," said Dr. Miller. "I do not expect ever to find again a more striking resemblance of Lincoln. Mr. Holley is a modern, representative American but in a moment he becomes Lincoln by simply disheveling his hair, relaxing from the nervous strain of our busy world, permitting himself to settle back into the natural state of his early life and surroundings. He was born in a log cabin and all his early life was similar to Lincoln's. In fact, Mr. Holley spent most of his life in the Lincoln country, on the border between Kentucky and West Virginia. He is of the physical structure of Lincoln and has his natural movements and mannerisms. He is the exact counterpart of Lincoln when 'Abe' was a country lawyer, before he grew a beard.

"We had some difficulty in getting Mr. Holley to pose for the pictures which we plan to take through the Lincoln country," said Mr. Miller. "But he could not resist that sense of duty to help us which all the mountain folk have— which Lincoln himself had. It is just another Lincoln trait which makes him true to the type. He finally said, after talking the matter over with his wife and children: 'Well, I'm not an actor, but if I look like Lincoln to such an extent that I can perpetuate his life, it is my duty to do it.'"

Dr. Miller said that there was no definite plan to make a moving picture of the historic Lincoln pageant. The photographs will embody many incidents of Lincoln's life, and will be taken on the exact ground where they occurred. The series of pictures will start in the Kentucky Mountains and follow the boy Lincoln up through Indiana, Illinois and on to Washington, where his life's journey ended.

Chinese Collection Dumfounds Bakst

Says Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, Has Greatest Collection of Things Chinese in the World.

Never was there a visitor so excited as Bakst, when he viewed the Ontario Museum of Art on the occasion of his recent visit to Toronto. He continually threw off exclamations such as "marvellous," "incredible," "impossible." But when he saw the Chinese exhibit he went up into the air with delight. "It's the most wonderful collection in the world," he declared, and after expressing amazement that Canada should in this way surpass the great Metropolitan centres of London, Paris, New York and Berlin, he gave himself up to the pleasure of examining closely the various treasures, the keenest joy manifested in his beaming face.

Two citizens accompanying him waited long and patiently. Then they began to remind him it was time to go, with many worried glances at their watches. But in a transport of delight over things Chinese, Bakst was oblivious to words, lunches and watches.

Finally they grew desperate. The Arts and Letters Club would be waiting for his promised visit. So taking a firm hold of the celebrated artist they said, "You've got to come now," and, literally wrenched him away from the Museum to the waiting motor. This was his second visit to the Museum, and, each time, violence had to be used to detach him from it so he could keep his engagement.

"I'm coming back again," he declared with a last regretful look at the treasures of art. "You've certainly got the greatest collection of Chinese things in the world," he reiterated.

Queen Matches Boxers And Cheers Their Fight

Queen Mary Encourages Boys to Learn to Use Their Fists in Real Pugilistic Fashion

The Queen of England believes that boys should learn to use their fists. There is nothing of the nobby-pamby about her. Good old Queen Victoria would have regarded Queen Mary's conduct the other afternoon as nothing short of scandalous. She did all she could to encourage a couple of sturdy youngsters to exchange black eyes and bloody noses in the most approved pugilistic fashion. That the knockout blow was not administered was no fault of either of the boys.

Queen Mary

The Queen was visiting the headquarters of the Kensington Council for the Social Service to see for herself what was being done to provide healthful exercise and recreation among the poor children of the borough. "Would you like to see some of the boys box?" a member of the council asked her.

"Certainly," she replied, and followed by the shrill cries of hundreds of poor children, made her way to an upstairs room, where a ring had been roped off. In the centre of it stood a couple of juvenile pugilists anxious to start fighting. They put up a good bout, which the Queen watched with interest. Chancing to glance aside, she espied a couple of diminutive youngsters, who, with bared chests and clenched fists, looked on with a world of envy in their excited eyes.

"Do you want to box?" she asked, beckoning them to her. "Yes'm," one of them summoned up courage enough to gasp—forgetting all that he had been taught about how he should speak to the Queen.

"Then you shall box for me," she said, and waved them into the ring when the two bigger boys had finished their exhibition. They fought with grim determination, and, at the conclusion of their bout stood before the Queen hot and panting like young knights waiting royal commendation. And they got it, too. "Bravo!" exclaimed the Queen. "You fought first rate." And she clapped her hands. The boys were only sorry that they could not fight longer, one of them remarking that it was not every day that "boys like us get a chance to fight for the Queen."

RALPH CONNOR NO LOVER OF GLOOMY COUNTY JAILS

Rev. Chas. W. Gordon, of Winnipeg, the well-known preacher and author, visited a certain jail on one occasion in order to take notes for an article he was writing on prison life.

On returning home he described what he had seen, and his description made a deep impression on his little daughter.

A few weeks later the author and his offspring were in a train which stopped at a station near a gloomy building.

A passenger asked, "What place is that?" "The county jail," promptly answered another.

Whereupon, Ralph Connor was gratefully embarrassed by his little daughter asking in a loud shrill voice, "Is that the jail you wer in, father?"

New British Premier in a Moment of Relaxation.

In this latest, restful picture of the new British Premier, the kindly sociability and home-loving nature of Mr. Baldwin find expression. While business has always meant business to this director of the great steel corporation of Baldwin's, Limited, and of the Great Western Railway, business is not the whole of life. Often, as long as he remains Premier, Baldwin will be found sitting in his library at "Chequers."

Europe's Universal Hero of the War Is Bayens, "The Mysterious Grenadier"

Belgian Grenadier Took Turns in Fighting in Almost Every European Army of the War—The "Fighting Neutral"—Swindler—Last Survivor of Glorified Self-Interest.

EUROPE has found its universal hero of the war.

He is not Foch, nor Haig, nor Hindenburg, nor Mackensen; he is only a common soldier, yet so uncommon that he served on every front in Europe and in practically every army, friend and enemy alike.

He played a practical joke on the world, and as a result his name will live forever in the folklore of all the warring nations. To-day he is the hero of many a conversation in cafes from Paris to Moscow. His name is on every tongue. He is called the "Mysterious Grenadier."

Pierre Francois Bayens was born near Brussels of a Belgian father and a German mother, and is now nearly fifty years old. The year before the war he enlisted, in spite of his age, in the Royal Belgian Grenadiers. He shared in the retreat of 1914, deserted at Havre, and joined the French Foreign Legion. Tiring of the big coats, he slipped across the line in the uniform of a dead German. After a week in the opposite trenches he was sent down to the base and transferred to a Saxon regiment, which, in turn, he deserted. He took part in Mackensen's drive, and then deserted to the Rumanians. He is said to be entitled to medals from the French, German, Belgian, Austrian, Polish and Rumanian armies. Stories are current of his gallantry on both sides at the battle of Verdun. With the French pilous or in the midst of goose-step discipline he was equally at ease. He marched to the tune of the "Marseillaise" or of "Deutschland uber Alles."

The universal volunteer, Bayens, was for years the only free man in Europe. Mocking at militarism, he served in each army as long as it suited his purpose, no longer. He fought as readily on one side as on the other. He never shirked the firing line and was twice wounded; yet no one had less reason to risk his life in the conflict.

Was it quest of adventure only which sent him wandering across war-torn Europe? Not at all. An impersonal figure, only concerned in his trade, while all about him men were fighting and dying for their ideals, Bayens picked their pockets. He served mostly as a regimental cook, or waiter, in officers' messes, because there were fatter purses. Three cases are known where he committed frauds on officers or men, and three times he was court-martialed, twice by the French, and once by the Germans. He was punished for theft; for swindling decorations to which he had no claim (perhaps he did have the right); and he spent a month in Berlin military prison for riotous conduct as a soldier.

Bayens is very tall and has a limp. He is not over-intelligent, though no fool. Yet conspicuous as he is, he moved freely over Europe in pursuit of his trade. (What a wonderful spy gone to waste!) He saw four big offensives, two on each side, yet he is a swindler rather than a soldier by trade. That his story is mainly true there seems little doubt. The Paris Temps prints it. The prefecture of police of Paris admits it, and verification comes from Berlin and Bucharest. Bayens is, or was, till recently, under arrest for fraud at Basle, Switzerland, and the police of Moscow, Brussels, Paris and Berlin hold old warrants from 1918-1917 for similar offenses. With swindling as his greatest incentive to adventure, Pierre Bayens has leaped into immortality as the "universal legendary figure" of the war. The "fighting neutral," the last survivor of glorified self-interest, yet has the "Mysterious Grenadier" earned well his title.

The Dean of Durham has said that he is not one who holds that it is a sin to risk a shilling on a horse. Our own view is that there are horses on which it would be a sin to risk as much as sixpence.

Woman Member Spears Male Interrupter

Overwhelming Retort of Nellie McClung Silences Forever the Member for Vegreville.

Mrs. Nellie McClung, M.L.A., the well-known writer and lecturer, is the subject of a good story which has caused more than one smile around the legislative halls in Alberta's capital city during the present session of Parliament.

Mrs. McClung is sitting as Liberal member for Edmonton, but, true to her traditions, she is independent in her action whenever her principles are at stake.

Across the floor of the House sits a young U. F. O. member who seems to enjoy interrupting the lady member for Edmonton whenever she rises to speak.

One afternoon a few weeks ago, Mrs. McClung had the floor and was giving the House a first-class speech. The member in question evidently did not agree with her ideas and was interrupting her frequently as he had done on more than one occasion before this. The interruptions did not disturb Nellie to any great extent, but they evidently aroused her temper.

Continuing after one of these interruptions, she straightened her shoulders, and, with a great show of seriousness begged leave to call the attention of the members to a conviction which had become deeply rooted in her mind. "Gentlemen," she said, "I am now convinced that the member for Vegreville has not had an unuttered thought in his head since he took his seat in Parliament."

Blindness Approaches Al. Joyce Rushes On

Author of "Ulysses" Traces Vast Letters With a Crayon in Forlorn Attempt to Write Sequel.

A year ago and something shockingly new—a blue-covered volume of half a million words—was troubling the police authorities and the critics of two continents. The book was called "Ulysses," and the author was James Joyce, a middle-aged Irishman, who found at last an apartment in Paris beneath the Eiffel Tower.

Now, in that same apartment, is being enacted the tragedy of James Joyce, perhaps the most pathetic case of any master now writing—for he is rapidly going blind. Striving desperately to complete a sequel to "Ulysses," while his fading vision permits, he labors all day, writing great sweeping words with a thick red crayon on a huge sheet of paper stretched on the table before him.

For the last three years Joyce's sight has been falling. This was thought to have culminated in the Summer of 1922. At that time a temporary attack of blindness came upon him. For three months he never left his darkened room, nor put pen to paper.

With the spirit of the old Greek hero whose name is the title of Mr. Joyce's story of three Dubliners during only twenty-four hours of their lives, he is struggling heroically against the fatal hour he now knows he cannot evade, the hour has almost arrived when he will be totally blind.

Every word he writes he thinks may be his last, for he has said that he cannot dictate. The rest will be silence.

DISCOVERS OIL GUSHERS IN HEART OF TORONTO?

Prof. Tomlinson, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, was a guest of John D. Egan, Toronto, recently, and John was, of course, showing him the sights of the city. The party were driving through Queen's Park when the Professor said seriously:

"I didn't know, Mr. Egan, that you had oil in this district."

"The only oil I know, professor," said John D., "is the stocks in the service station. Why do you ask?"

"But isn't that a derrick?" queried John's guest, pointing to the big flag pole.

What John said witness deponeth not.

Speaking at a meeting of the National Sunday Schools Union, Mr. Lloyd George said that he did not know a better training for politics than the Sunday Schools. Yet we had a ways been under the impression that these institutions were intended to guide the young idea along the paths of righteousness.

Clairvoyant's Message Foreshadows Death

Fortune-Teller's Seemingly Absurd Message Came True for Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith.

FIVE years ago a bright-looking, middle-aged woman went to consult a soothsayer. Many of her friends had gone to him, and they reported his powers to be really uncanny. And true enough, the message he gave her was startling, although her lot in life then was the calm, tranquil one of a happy wife, devoted to husband and home.

"You are going to lose the best friend you have ever had, but through his death a door will be opened to you; you will enter its portals and go on to fame and power."

This prediction seemed almost absurd, so unlikely did it then appear. It would ever come true. But inside of three months her husband, Hon. Ralph Smith, in the full flush of health and vigor, was suddenly removed by death. One year later she ran as a candidate for the city of Vancouver to take his vacant seat in the legislature, and won. Since then honors have been laid at the feet of Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, she having been offered the speaker's post in the House because she has been twice returned to the provincial legislature, the second time with such an enormous majority that she headed the polls. All is yet to come, for it is freely predicted she will yet be given a portfolio in recognition of her services on behalf of the women and children of British Columbia. Mrs. Smith never ridicules the pretensions of soothsayers; anyway, the East Indian mystic whom she consulted evidently knew his business.

WHY HE WAS MARRIED PUZZLED HIM GREATLY

Police Magistrate H. R. Blake, whose jurisdiction includes the cities of Brantford, Galt and Kitchener, had a son of Italy before him recently for some rather trivial offense in Kitchener.

"Are you married?" asked the P.M.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Where?" again inquired His Worship.

"I don't know," replied the accused.

"What, you don't know where you were married?"

"Oh, I thought you asked me why," was the reply.

MONKEY THAT SLEEPS OUT FOR THE NIGHT

"Sir Basil Zaharoff, who has succeeded the Blanc family as the principal owner of Monte Carlo," said a recent visitor there, "took me one evening through the gorgeous gaming-rooms of the Monte Carlo Casino. We halted awhile at the roulette table. A Londoner was winning tremendously there. Finally, the man cashed in. 'Goodness!' I said. 'What a haul that lucky bird has made!' 'Oh,' said Sir Basil, 'that's nothing. It makes no difference to the Casino. It's just a bit of our money sleeping out for the night.'"

Fine Sketch of Great Architect

Those who only knew Frank Darling as a designer of fine buildings missed one side of his character. His social side was the one which his friends are likely to remember longest. As a raconteur he had few equals in Canada, and he never lapsed, as so many story-tellers do, into the position of a bore. His stories were short, crisp, and had a real point to them, and were largely derived from his own personal experiences. Then, again, he did not always insist on being the speaker. He enjoyed a new story from another narrator. "And Mr. Wylie Grier, whose studio was an suite with Mr. Darling's, has a vivid recollection of amusing anecdotes which were exchanged during the progress of the accompanying drawing with a complete disregard on the part of the architect of what might be happening to the design for a million dollar building in course of preparation in the adjoining office. Mr. Grier's original drawing of this fine likeness of the late Mr. Darling is now in the possession of Sir Edmund Walker."

Eighteen of Them—All Going Home to China to Live in a Mansion Built to Measurements

Charlie Toy and his family of eighteen attracted considerable attention at Vancouver when they boarded the Empress of Canada to sail for China. For 43 years Mr. Toy has been a prominent merchant in Milwaukee. He is taking his American-born children and grandchildren for their first visit to his native land. The party includes six adults and twelve chubby youngsters ranging in age from thirteen months to thirteen years. At Canton, Mr. Toy will build a modern mansion with all the very latest ideas in decorating and plumbing. His grandchildren will go to the Canton Christian College.

EMERGENCY SERVICE CAR APPEARS

Local Branch of B. C. A. A. Grows Rapidly

The local branch of the British Columbia Automobile Association, which was formed here on June 8, is proving to be very energetic. On Thursday morning one of the emergency service cars made its first appearance on the streets, and much favorable comment was heard regarding the inauguration of this service.

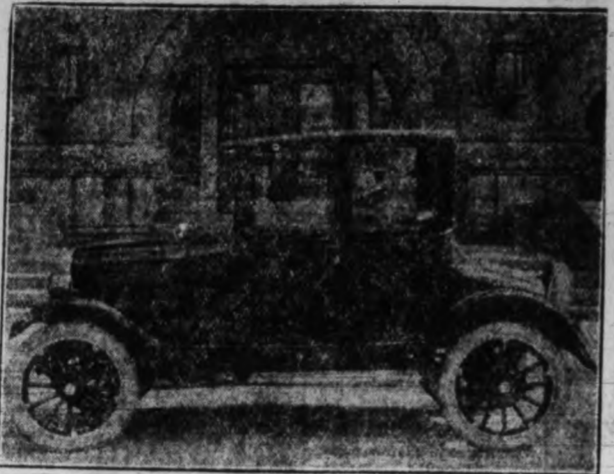

H. Critchley, Superintendent of Emergency Service for the B.C.A.A., who is in charge of this car, explained that these cars are fully equipped to handle any emergency on the road, such as motor, ignition or tire trouble, as well as carrying a supply of extra gasoline, oil, spark plugs, a full kit of tools and a tube repair outfit. It is fully expected that this service, which is free to members, except for material used, will prove as popular here as it has on the mainland where it has been in operation for some time. These cars respond to calls for aid, and where the call is received from a non-member, a nominal charge is made which is deducted from the membership fee if application for membership is made within thirty days from the date of receiving service.

The objective of the association, set on March 11, was 5,000 members by December 31, and at the present rate of enrollment, this mark will have been passed before that time. It has now headquarters in Vancouver and six branches.

Among the many benefits extended to members of the association are: Free towing service. Free emergency service. Free legal department.

Free map service and road information, both in the United States and Canada. At the present time there are 46 towing and emergency service stations in B. C., and it is expected that a fleet of emergency service cars will be in operation here shortly, and also that offices will be opened on Monday, where motorists can get all information required when traveling and where phone calls will be received for the emergency cars from motorists who are in trouble.

New Willys-Overland Model

An attractive coupe is one of the four body styles in the new Overland model 91, which was announced to-day.

TO OPEN IN TWO WEEKS

The official opening of the Banff-Windermere highway will take place on June 30 at Kootenay Crossing, B.C. Motorists from all over Alberta, British Columbia and the Western States will be present in large numbers. A lunch will be provided for several thousand people at Kootenay Crossing. Prominent representatives will be present from the Canadian and United States Governments and from Provincial and State Governments on both sides of the line. The official opening will be marked by the cutting of red, white and blue ribbons stretched across the roadway.

United States the price is expected to be considerably lower than the American quotation. The factory, when built, will employ fifty men to start with.

HUDSON-ESSEX CO. STILL HOLDS ITS SPEED RECORDS

Essex Has One-Way Continental Record, Hudson Has Both-Way Record

"Every American transcontinental record for time and endurance is held within the Hudson organization," says A. W. Carter, local Hudson-Essex dealer. "So are the records for twenty-four hours' continuous running, for a similar trial of fifty hours, and many others."

The significance of these records is two-fold: first, they were all made with stock cars, such as anyone could buy from any Hudson or Essex dealer, and, second, they are records which could not be established by mere speed, but which required also endurance and reliability of the highest character.

Probably the most spectacular of Hudson-Essex achievements was the one-way transcontinental trial of the Essex in August of 1923. Four cars were chosen so as to guard against any possible road mishap or freak of weather. Two started from New York City and two from San Francisco.

Every one of those four cars beat the best previous record for the trip. The average time for all four cars was 4 days, 21 hours and 32 minutes; fastest time was 4 days, 14 hours and 43 minutes.

What is most surprising perhaps to those who know the inside of speed records is the fact that every one of those four Essex cars is still in daily operation. As they were not special cars in any way, the Essex organization put them on the market after they had been exhibited a time, and they were purchased by private owners. Recently a check-up was made on their careers and it was found that each one is in daily use, and giving satisfactory service.

Hudson's two-way record was made some four years prior to the Essex trials. At the time the very idea of a two-way transcontinental dash was unique.

The speedometer showed 3,476 miles from San Francisco to New York. In the going trip the Super-Six averaged 28.14 miles per hour. This included all stops and the slowing down of the speed requirements of more than 250 cities, towns and villages. The return trip, because of floods, was so fast, including all stops from San Francisco until its return, the Super-Six traveled 7,952 miles at the rate of over 700 miles a day.

To Hudson and Essex engineers the most prized fact in all these records was that endurance was proved, and that economy and reserve strength were shown to be equally present with speed. The factory management regards these workaday virtues as far more to be sought than any other. Balanced development and all-round operating ability are the fundamental aims of Hudson-Essex engineers.

TAXIS OWNED BY DRIVERS.

Despite the high price of gasoline in Paris, 40 per cent of the taxis operated in the capital are owned by their drivers.

To supply the demand of brake lining for motor vehicles this year, manufacturers in the United States will produce nearly 6,000 miles of brake lining. The amount is for replacement as well as new cars.

According to estimates no fewer than 50,000 passenger automobiles will be driven by Shriners' members in the United States at the National Shrine Convention, to be held in Washington, D.C., starting June 26.

YOU WILL NEED THESE THINGS

- Before taking an up-Island tour or even longer journey in your automobile the following things should be packed away in the car's kit.
1. A spare inner tube with a box of valve insulators.
 2. Two extra spark plugs—one spark plug intensifier.
 3. Two blowout patches.
 4. An air pressure gauge.
 5. A few extra bulbs.
 6. Automatic windshield cleaner.
 7. A pound of cup grease.
 8. A can of hand soap and a hand cap.
 9. A package of wiping cloths.
 10. Extra fan belt.
 11. Oil and grease gun.
 12. An extension luggage carrier.
 13. A roll of tire tape and a couple of good, substantial straps.
 14. A Blue Book.

DEDICATION OF NEW HIGHWAY IS HELD AT BRIDGE

Seattle, Bremerton, Vancouver and Neighboring Cities Participate

Seattle, June 16.—Official dedication of the Navy Yard Highway, comprising 45 miles of graveled highway between Charleston and the Olympic Highway near Union City, took place last Tuesday at the bridge over Tidewater Creek, two miles west of Charleston. Representatives from the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, Bremerton Chamber of Commerce and neighboring cities participated.

The road was provided for by the state legislature of 1914 and is intended eventually to connect Puget Sound points near Kingston or Port Gamble with the Olympic Highway near Union City. The total length of the road will be about eighty miles and work on the remainder will continue until completed.

Fifty machines, containing about 200 persons, were at the dedication. The speakers included E. F. French of Vancouver, Wash., state commissioner of agriculture; J. F. Carter, chairman of the Kitsap County board of commissioners; A. H. Dandini, president of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce; M. M. Bowman, president of the Charleston Chamber of Commerce, and Alexander McKee, president of the Bremerton Chamber of Commerce.

The Seattle visitors included William Duncan, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. O. J. C. Dutton, Senator Piny Allen, M. J. Carrigan, Alfred H. Lundin, John D. Price and Mrs. May Avery Wilkins.

NEW INDUSTRY MAY START IN VICTORIA

Tire Factory Likely to Be Established Here

Local Man Has Sole Canadian Rights

Victoria is in line for a new industry. Negotiations are being made and inducements offered for the erection of a tire factory here. The Colby Compression Tube Company is the firm seeking establishment of the factory and G. R. Colby is personally visiting this city with a view to making arrangements for the completion of the deal.

The company is an American one introducing a non-blow-out inner tube for any make of car, and W. Davis Morse, a Victoria man, has the sole Canadian rights. There is some talk of the factory going to Vancouver but this city is offering inducements and the fact that a Victoria man holds the Canadian right may result in the establishment of the factory here.

That the new inner tube is non-puncturable was demonstrated this week when Mr. Colby and some of the city aldermen drove nails into the tire when filled with air at a hundred pounds pressure. When the nails were withdrawn there was no blow-out and not even the sign of a leak except a hole in the outer tire to indicate where the nail had entered. Seven nails in all were driven into the tire with the same result. Mr. Colby says that approximately 4,000 nails had been driven into the same tire during demonstration.

Explaining the secret of the non-puncturable tube, Mr. Colby said that instead of expanding as the ordinary make of rubber tube does, the Colby tube compresses when the air is pumped into the tire. This fills in any hole that might be made even with the driving in of a nail. The minute the nail is drawn out the hole closes in with the compression and there is no leakage.

The tire is three times as thick as the ordinary tube and instead of having an even surface contains a total of 95 indentations which, when the air is blown into the tire fills outward by compressing the rubber. There is longer wear in this tire and the outer cover can be worn until the tube is showing as was demonstrated by Mr. Colby on his own car. The object of the factory in Victoria is to establish the tire business in Canada and as rubber is much cheaper in Canada than in the

BLOW YOUR HORN IN PROPER WAY

Favorable Results in Avoiding Accidents

That the automobile horn is equally important as brakes in the prevention of motor accidents is a fact which apparently very few drivers recognize, according to a bulletin on this subject just issued by the educational bureau of the National Motorists' Association.

There are many situations, in fact, points out the National Motorists' Association, where the horn alone must be relied upon; but without good judgment in using it the driver cannot hope for favorable results. The bulletin says further:

"The motorist uses the horn as a signal of approaching doom, just as though he and his car were entitled to special privileges. Accident reports, as analyzed by the National Motorists' Association, show that such attitude on the part of the driver encourages an attitude of retaliation and disinclination to make concessions on the part of other motorists and pedestrians, with the result that they take their time about getting out of the way. This may be the making of an accident if the driver also happens to be depending upon his horn for safety.

Sound Scares Pedestrians

"Impatient sounding of the horn often has the same effect; and if the driver sounds his horn too loudly he may disconcert a pedestrian, or frighten him to the extent that he will change his course of direction, hesitate and otherwise endanger himself. There are occasions when it is better not to use the horn at all."

"For most purposes a moderate, long blast of the horn, sounded from a suitable distance, is to be preferred. "A short blast from the horn displays either impatience or inexperience, to either of which pedestrians or other motorists will foolishly pay less attention."

Investigating the subject, the average driver does not appreciate how often he is dependent upon 100 per cent results from his horn. There are many tight situations where failure of the pedestrians to act upon the warning of the horn, or a too violent and illogical response, will put the driver in a position where he is helpless to avoid an accident, regardless of the use of his brakes and clever steering.

Chevrolet National Economy Week

JUNE 24th to 30th, 1923

Not by Factory Tests—but by Owners' Results will Chevrolet Economy be Judged

Chevrolet owners will now have an opportunity to prove conclusively the Chevrolet claim of Economical Transportation. Exhaustive tests at the Chevrolet plant have shown this claim to be well-founded, but this time the tests will be made under actual road conditions, by the men who own and drive Chevrolet cars — motorists, not mechanics.

Every Chevrolet Owner Eligible

In order that a permanent record of these tests may be obtained, thirty-seven Cash Prizes, ranging from $100.00 to $10.00 are being offered for the highest gasoline-mileage scores in Canada. Every Chevrolet owner is invited to enter the contest.

Owing to variations in road conditions, individual prizes will be given to winners in each Province, a Grand Prize of $100.00 being awarded for the best record in the whole Dominion.

There are no entrance fees, no "strings" to the competition. Your Chevrolet dealer has Blank Forms and all particulars.

The contest will be held during Chevrolet National Economy Week—June 24th. to 30th.—and the results published August 4th. See what YOUR Chevrolet can do in a real gasoline-economy test.

Mr. H. G. Wells Discovers a New World

In His New Story, "Men Like Gods," the Famous Novelist Tells How English Motorists Skid Into the Fourth Dimension to Find a Civilization Three Thousand Years In Advance of Our Own.

By Professor W. T. Allison

With his new ideas of space and time, that clever German Jew, Professor Einstein, has caused a great many learned men to admit that there may be worlds contiguous to our own of which as yet we have no certain knowledge. To use the old mysterious phrase, there may be "a fourth dimension." Under the influence of Einstein's equations, professors of science and mathematics, embedded in their lives in the field of materialism, are at this moment feeling the wash of a new gulf stream of pure thought, persuading them of finer worlds, intangible, incomprehensible worlds, within our universe. Until 1914, Mr. H. G. Wells, who specialized in science in his student days, belonged to this earth-bound company, but sensitive as he is to the Einstein doctrine, he returns in every second book to the idea that there is a God, and that neither this earth nor this life is the be-all and end-all of human existence. And now he has written one more book, a story this time, in which he plays with the possibility of a fourth dimension. On the hypothesis that it is possible for many three-dimensional universes, resembling each other much as the leaves of a book are alike, to lie side by side and to undergo a roughly parallel movement through time, he tells the story of a number of English motorists who suddenly skidded into another planet. This planet, like ours, circulates round a sun like that in our skies, and has progressed under our most exactly parallel conditions to those of our own evolution. This world, strangely like our own in make-up and inhabitants, is about three thousand years ahead of our own intellectual development. It is close at hand, "nearer to us than the blood in our hearts," but hitherto invisible to mortal eyes, for it would still be outside the domain of human knowledge had not two daring geniuses of Utopia by means of atomic energy rotated a part of that world into this much as a globe swims on its hinges, taking back with it a storm of dust and three sets of visitors, all of them motorists out for a spin in the neighborhood of London. Almost without their knowing it, they had run into what Mr. Wells calls Utopia. The citizens of that world are "Men Like Gods," which phrase stands as the title of Mr. Wells' fantastic novel (The Macmillan Co., Toronto).

ONLY ONE EARTHLY WORTHY OF RESPECT The dozen or so human beings, or earthlings as Mr. Wells calls them, are a mixed company. There are two women, Lady Stella, a society leader, and Miss Gretna Grey, a music-hall actress. Among the men the leading characters are Mr. Cecil Burchell, leader of the Conservative party; Mr. Rupert Catekill, an English gentleman; Father Amerton, a popular preacher and censor-in-chief of the Vaughan type; M. Dupont, a Frenchman; Lord Barralonca, novelist picture king; Hunker, an American; Ridley and Fenk, chauffeurs, and last but not least Barnastaple, manager of an English Liberal weekly, really Mr. Wells himself in disguise. The purpose of the story is to chronicle the adventures of these earthlings in Utopia, to register the impressions they received and their reaction to them and incidentally to show how very much we have to improve before our earth can begin to call itself perfect. That Mr. Wells has rather a poor opinion of his kind is seen in the fact that his characters fail to appreciate the order and beauty of the strange world into which they have been so suddenly ushered; they sniff at the higher civilization which is explained to them by the serene and courteous Utopians, and they end up by organizing a dastardly rebellion against their hosts. That is, all except Mr. Barnastaple. From the outset he is a frank admirer of things Utopian. He dissociates himself from his fellows and even goes so far as to endanger his life by giving the Utopians warning of their peril at the hands of his own countrymen. Mr. Wells introduces us to people like Burchell, the politician; Catekill, military man and Harrow graduate;

Barralonca, the one-armed showman, and Father Amerton, the fanatical cleric, in order to inveigh against types of Englishmen whom he violently dislikes and whom he has already satirized in "Joan and translated them so easily into all their visitors. Father Amerton created the greatest disgust in the superior minds of the Utopians. Earthlings who read this story—at least those who read it easily—will thank Mr. Wells for this portrait of a contemporary churchman. It is badly overdue, a gross slander at the expense of a much-maligned class.

LANGUAGE AND CLOTHES NOT NEEDED IN UTOPIA Most of the space in Mr. Wells' book is given up to talks between the tall, beautifully formed men and women of Utopia and the inquisitive visitors from Earth. A few minutes after their entrance into the new planet the latter were hooked to the dead bodies of two scientists whose successful experiment had picked them up out of earth and sent them to the planet. The world three thousand years ahead of ours in development. But other Utopians, nearly all of them naked, soon appeared travelling swiftly in small aeroplanes which kept near to the ground. The new arrivals were taken to a commodious hall of conference and the palavers began. Strange to say, although the Utopians spoke in a clear, distinct voice, their words were not heard. Their thoughts, however, reached the English visitors and the Frenchman as thought uttered in their own language. Utopians could not understand their visitors' thoughts before they trembled from their lips in speech. They exchanged ideas with their guests in the manner of invisible thought. The domain of intellectual superiority, kindly and indulgent, just as a cultured Torontonian would converse with a Doukhobor.

NO PARLIAMENT, NO POLITICS, NO PRIVATE WEALTH As Mr. Wells has been pretty much of a Utopian himself—these days, impatient with nationalism, capitalism, war, disease, and other social and physical evils, we are not surprised to find that his new world has done away with these things. Utopia, he makes its inhabitants explain, is the result of a terrific struggle and made endless scientific experiments before it emerged from selfishness and ugliness and into the education state in which the supreme moral law. From Lion, a fair and rather slender man with a delicately beautiful face, the Earthlings received this information. For centuries now Utopian science has been able to discriminate among births, and nearly every Utopian child has been ranked according to genetic creative spirit in former days. There are few dull and no really defective people in Utopia; the idle straining, the people of lethargy, dissipation or weak imaginations, have mostly died out; the melancholic type has taken its dismissal and gone; spiteful and malignant characters are disappearing. The vast majority of Utopians are active, genuine, inventive, receptive and good-tempered.

And you have not even a parliament," asked Mr. Burchell, still incredulous. "Utopia has no parliament, no politics, no private wealth, no business competition, no police nor prisons, no lunatics, no defectives nor cripples and all that none of these things because it has schools and teachers who are all that schools and teachers can be. Politics, trade and competition are the methods of adjustment of a crude society. Such methods of adjustment have been laid aside in Utopia for more than a thousand years. There is no rule nor government needed by adult Utopians because all the rule and government that they need they have had in childhood and youth."

WHY THE UTOPIANS DO ANY WORK When the Earthlings enquired how the Utopians sustained such a system without laws or a police force, Lion replied, "Every Utopian child is taught to the full measure of its capabilities and directed to the work that is indicated by its desires and capacity. It is born well. It is born of perfectly healthy parents; its mother has chosen to bear it after due thought and preparation. It grows up under perfectly healthy conditions; its natural impulses to play and learn are gratified by the subtlest educational methods; hands, eyes and limbs are given every opportunity of training and growth; it learns to draw, write, express itself, use a great variety of symbols to assist and extend its thought. Kindness and civility become ingrained habits, for all about it are kind and civil. And in particular the growth of its imagination is watched and encouraged. It learns the wonderful history of its world and its race, how man has struggled and still struggles out of his earlier animal narrowness and egotism towards an empire over being that is still but faintly apprehended through dense veils of ignorance. All its desires are made fine; it learns from poetry, from example and the love of those about it to lose its selfishness for itself in love; its sexual passions are turned against its selfishness; its curiosity flowers into scientific passion; its combativeness is set to right disorder; its inherent pride and ambition are turned towards an honorable share in the common achievement. It goes to the work that attracts it and chooses what it will do. "The individual is indolent there is no great loss, there is plenty for all in Utopia, but then it will find no lovers, nor will it ever bear children, because no one in Utopia loves those who have neither energy nor intelligence. There is much pride of the male in Utopian love. And there is no idle wish 'society' in Utopia, nor games and shows for the mere look-on. It is a pleasant world for the young, but not for those who would continuously do nothing."

The Story of Our Rocks

By ROBERT CONNELL

VIII. Last week I described the basaltic lavas of the Metochin and Sooke districts with a reference to the associated sedimentary beds at Albert Head and William Head. These rocks belong to the Tertiary Era and thus mark as it were an important epoch in geological and biological history. The title Tertiary is one which comes to us from the beginnings of modern geology when the earth was divided into the primary, secondary and Tertiary formations. The two first have long since been dropped as insufficient to describe the earth's history with the addition of a fourth term, Quaternary which describes the most recent rocks, generally unconsolidated, such as those of the last great glaciation. The Tertiary strata as well as their consequent very full exposure of them in Europe and America both as marine and continental deposits has made them intensely interesting from a paleontological point of view. Indeed it is the presence of the abundance of shells which has made possible and necessary the subdivision of the period which is accepted through a geological history. Recognizing an ever-growing approximation to the genera and species of to-day, geologists have divided the Tertiary into the following epochs which mark definite stages of deposition: Eocene, Oligocene, Miocene and Pliocene. These distinctions are based in part on rock relations but principally upon the percentage of living species of shells which the formations contain. Thus the Eocene has only from 5 per cent of living species, the Oligocene from 10 to 15, the Miocene from 20 to 40 and the Pliocene, from 50 to 90. This shows how as we approach the present day, the structure life increasingly approximates to its present forms and the ancient forms fade out to the point of vital existence. To the Eocene belong the Albert Head fossils, which are identified as those of the Teton series of California, several of the species being identical.

The Intrusive Rocks of Sooke. Some time after the outflowing of the Metochin lavas and as a result of the contraction, a slow sedimentation which had taken place in Cretaceous and Eocene times in the ocean valley between the mountains and the coast, a slow folding of the rocks to the southwest took place. The basalts were invaded as a result of this movement and the material was pushed precisely those of the rocks which it invaded, except that there was present olivine, which curiously enough has not been found in the basalts. The composition of the mass however were split up in the process of intrusion, so that there is at one end of the scale a white basaltic rock, and at the other a dark augite olivine rock with a heavy iron content. In addition there are patches of granite which represent a split in a further direction. These gabbros as they are called, consisting of felspar and quartz, are found in the peninsula which they constitute the predominant country rock. The basaltic rocks have been removed and intruded body forms the massive hills which separate Sooke Basin from Beecher and Pender Bays. The Sooke gabbros have special interest as containing both iron and copper deposits. These are confined apparently to the faulted area of East Sooke proper and are absent from Rocky Point. The Sunlock and associated mines in the Jordan River District are related to the same formation which has been uncovered somewhat extensively in that section, and is sometimes met with in the creek beds in small patches from which the overlying sandstone has been removed.

The Beginning of Juan de Fuca Straits. Interesting it will always be to Victorians to picture that seventeenth century vessel which first penetrated the waterway between Cape Flattery and Port San Juan and which bore (if the legends are true) the old Greek pilot Juan de Fuca, otherwise and rightly Apollonios Valerianos. But the geologist must go very much further back than the first discovery by man; of whatever race or time. His can be satisfied with nothing less than the beginning of the celebrated Strait. This would appear to have taken place during the period of star movement which was marked by the intrusion of the Sooke gabbros; later evidence than that which caused the depression in which the Cretaceous sandstones and coal measures were deposited, since wantonings—Man. With Man came Logos, the word and the will into our universe to watch it and fear it, to lead it and cease to fear it, to know it and comprehend it and master it. So that we of Utopia are no longer the beaten and starved children of Nature, but her free and adolescent sons. We have taken over the Old Lady's Estate. Every day we learn a little better how to master this little planet. Every day our thoughts go out more surely to our inheritance, the stars. And the deep beyond and beneath the stars.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

With Our Typical Novelists Edwin and Ethelinda Afterthought—Husband and Wife—in Their Delightful Home Life

It was at their beautiful country place on the Woonagsan that we had the pleasure of interviewing the Afterthoughts. At their own cordial invitation, we had walked over from the nearest railway station, a distance of some fourteen miles. Indeed, as soon as they heard of our intention they invited us to walk in the motor; they wrote, "but the roads are so frightfully dusty that we might get dust on our chauffeur."

The Source of Inspiration. "My usual plan," said the Novelist, "is to come out here and sit in the sty till I get my characters."

"Oh anywhere between four and five," said the Novelist. "Ah! and do you generally take a cold dip as soon as you are up—even in winter?" "I do."

The Barrier to Our Success. We said no more. We have long understood the reasons for our failure in life, but it was painful to receive a renewed corroboration of it. This ice question has stood in our way for forty—ten years.

The Modern Way to Begin. "Can you indicate," we continued, "what method you follow in beginning one of your novels?" "I always begin," said Ethelinda Afterthought, "with a study."

tramp with my esquimaux dogs, and get back in time to have a go through the cattle sheds and take a romp with the young bulls."

The Eminent Novelist met us at the gate. We had expected to find the author of Angela Rivers and The Garden of Desire a pale aesthetic type (we have a way of expecting the wrong thing in our interviews). We could not resist a shock of surprise (indeed we seldom do) at finding him a burly out-of-door man weighing, as he himself told us, a hundred stone in his stockinged feet (we think he said stone).

When to Spray—How to Spray—What An Effective Spray Should Contain With Springtime here, every reader will be interested in spraying. The following hints are given by the manufacturers of the largest dealers in spraying materials in the West.

Use Kero Spray for spraying. It is a spray that has no equal either for ornamental garden or agricultural purposes. The larvae are voracious eaters, develop amazingly and are mature by the time the bloom appears. This they sting with the inevitable result of imperfect fruit and spoiled blooms. Spray early in sound advice. Keep spraying from time to time through the season is wise counsel for the gardener.

MRS. ANDERSON TELLS WOMEN How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leslie, Sask.—"For about a year I was troubled with a distressing down-bearing pain before and during the periods, and from terrible headaches and backache. I hated to go to a doctor, and as I knew several women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results, I finally bought some and took four bottles of it. I certainly do recommend it to every woman with troubles like mine. I feel fine now and hope to be able to keep your medicine on hand at all times, as no woman ought to be without it in the house."

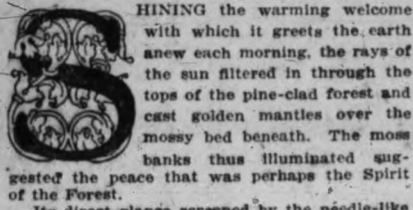

Mrs. Kelsey Adds Her Testimony Copenhagen, N. Y.—"I read your advertisement in the papers and my husband induced me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to get relief from pains and weakness. It was so weak that I could not walk at times. Now I can do my household and help my husband out doors, too. I am willing for you to publish this letter if you think it will help others."

Is that CORN COMING BACK AGAIN? REUDEL No. 158 (24 Ft.) A good handful of Reudel Bath Salts dissolved in a gallon or so of hot water will soften corns and callouses like water-softens soap. Just soak them in this for a while, then take hold of the corn with your fingers and out it will come, root and all. The refined Reudel Bath Salts costs very little, and every druggist has it. A half-penny is sufficient to rid the whole family of all foot troubles.

WHAT THE RED SQUIRREL SAW FROM HIS LOOKOUT

WHENING the warming welcome with which it greets the earth anew each morning, the rays of the sun filtered in through the tops of the pine-clad forest and cast golden mantles over the mossy bed beneath. The moss banks thus illuminated suggested the peace that was perhaps the Spirit of the Forest.

Its direct glance screened by the needle-like foliage of the pines, the sun glided softly on the tree branches and the undergrowth, burnishing the tall bracken to a hue of bronze. This, then, was the setting on the quiet slope that bordered on a lake in the heart of a typical Island forest.

Dawn was round to dusk in this hallowed spot without interrupting the peaceful pleasure of denizens of this fairyland; for, though their presence was unobtrusive, this haven had its occupants in every nook and cranny. Deep in the moss were the creepy-crawly insects which may not be pretty to look at but which nevertheless have their uses to our woods. Among these mice made an easy harvest and so did the birds when the insects chose to come to the top of their mossy retreat. In the dense underbrush and thickets birds had their homes, the smaller and less lordly of their kind, while further up in the trees were the timid ones where, nightfall would save them from prowlers.

This haven had its prowlers, too, though to be sure these were asleep in daytime. At night, however, the woods would take on a different complexion. There would be a rustling of myriads of little feet, carrying denizens of this clearing to their midnight retreat. Squirrels alone were bold enough to do their hunting by day, and these little red madcaps of the glades were satisfied with a strictly vegetarian diet. Nuts and pine cones they craved and these they sought with a merry prankishness that made them the life of the trees.

In one of the most secluded quarters of this retreat a brace of grouse had built their nest and were engaged alternately in guarding the eggs, twelve in number, which lay at the bottom of the downy structure. Each morning the mother goose would leave the nest to get breakfast, and while she was away her mate would assume the post of sentinel over their home. They had done this for many days before the time our story opens, but not in interrupted peace.

Once a rat tried to steal an egg from the nest and was driven off, escaping with one eye ruined for life. At another time a rock had become dislodged further up the slope and rolled by the fall nest, even dinging its sides without harming the precious contents. Through it all the mother grouse guarded her home with a bravery that did not shake even when the boulder rolled by her head within an inch of crushing her to death. Now, however, the sense of this woodland garden was to be broken.

It happened in this manner: Further up the slope a ledge of rock tilted at an angle of about thirty degrees into the air. On the top of this jagged peak one evening as the sun was sinking in the west a stranger fluttered for a moment and then settled. The stranger was a bird, but so large and different looking from anything the denizens of this haven had seen before that they stopped to stare at the newcomer.

Its beak was curved and ended in a cruelly pointed tip which curved around almost like a fish hook. Its feet were short, ending in a series of talons the like of which other birds in that vicinity had not beheld in their lives before.

The body of the newcomer was tall and gaunt without any decided coloring other than presenting a darkish brown when viewed from a distance. Though they knew not the stranger, the denizens of the clearing felt he boded them no good and for a time there was a general flurry for cover.

The stranger was an unusually large hawk which, coming from a great distance, dropped down out of the sky lanes to survey at closer range the inviting looking home by the lakeside. Spectacularly its head rolled from side to side. The hard eyes glittered with a kind of glassy stare, the very fixedness of which seemed to betoken the unrelenting ferocity of mind within. This, so its looks bespoke it, was a killer, and one who killed often for the love of killing and from a cruel disposition rather than from a desire for food.

Stilled by the approach of the apparition the woodlands crept back to life little by little. The squirrels were the first to leave their hiding. One even climbed a tall tree near the rocky ledge to stare up at the visitor with audacity. What he saw, however, did not please him, for, with one frightened squeak, the squirrel darted down the tree again and out of sight.

Time makes even the greatest of dangers powerless to frighten, and it was not long before the denizens of the woods got over their fright and resumed their customs. Mice hunted in the mossy banks, robins flitted between tree holes, picking here and there a seed to add to their daily repast. Squirrels chattered busily to themselves and scolded when one of their fellows outstripped them to a pine cone. Deer, questing water, ploughed a soft and graceful way through the underbrush and buried their feet in the cooling waters of the lake.

All this and more saw the wicked looking sentinel on the rocky ledge. Suddenly lifting two enormous wings it soared into the air and began climbing higher and higher in spirals. Now it had reached a height of about 500 feet and at this level it circled the confines of the lake.

There was nothing unusual about the lake to interest it, one would have thought. Trout were jumping here and there after careless flies who skimmed too low over the water. Now and then a swallow would rush across the surface, seeming almost to swim, so low did it swim the water. What sought the stranger in its airy vigil?

The answer came suddenly. The hawk folded its wings and dropped like a stone. Down, down it tumbled, its long scrawny sides seeming to grow even leaner in its fall. Right to the surface of the lake it sped and disappeared below the water. The splash made by the bird had hardly begun to ripple out from the centre of the spot at which it dived before the curved beak appeared, to be followed by the head and cruel eyes.

In the beak was a two-pound trout. There was a violent splashing, and presently the bird rose again in the air. This time the captive was held clamped by the talons of its feet. Up slowly in ever-widening circles flew the hawk, until finally it dropped the fish on the top of the ledge of rock. One foot then held the prey.

The feast began. The beak tore large pieces out of the side of the trout and gulped them down whole. It made short work of its capture and then scraped its beak on the rock. While the eyes of every denizen of that woodland haven watched it, the hawk soared again into the air and winged its way south over the tree line and so out of sight.

Almost before the bird of prey disappeared from sight a red squirrel raced again to the top of the tall pine tree near its ledge. The "chir-r-r" of the red guard from the treetops was the signal for a renewal of life in the haven below. "All's well" sang the squirrel, and all was well, for had not the killer gone?

of the woods was as careful as he could be. Nature would still set fire to the bush in places through natural means. The loss from the preventable source alone is very great, but the loss from preventable causes is a double burden for which we have only ourselves to blame.

Because a forest fire takes place 100 miles away from your home do not think that it costs you nothing. It costs money to fight fires—Governments raise money for that purpose. Your parents and you help to pay the cost in the long run. Increase your wealth in the Bank of Natural Resources by using the same ordinary care you would be obliged to use in your own home.

The Sandman Story For To-night

MR. CHIRP AND MR. HOP Part II

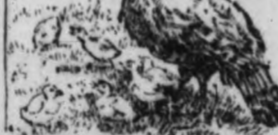

Chirp had been singing all night and he really would have chosen to find a comfortable place in which to take his daytime rest but he did not want to hurt Hop's feelings so he good-naturedly listened.

"Yesterday morning," Hop began, "I got into Farmer Jones' potato patch, and you should have seen that place when I left. My, but the farmer was angry!"

"Then I hopped over to the lawn of the farmhouse where the farmer's wife was whitening some clothes on the grass. She had no right to cover up my property, anyway," said Hop as if to excuse this part of his bad manners.

"I just hopped all over those clothes and left brownish marks wherever I traveled. That will teach her, I guess, not to cover up my grass."

"There were some berry bushes near the house, and those I nibbled until the leaves looked quite pretty, I thought. But the farmer's wife didn't. I heard her scolding about my family—called us ugly green things. She said she wished the hens and turkeys would gobble every one of us. Did you ever hear of such a disposition as that woman has, Chirp? Just as if we grasshoppers didn't have a right to live in this world as well as folks."

"Maybe if you did not do so much harm, cousin," said Chirp timidly, "the farmer's wife would not feel that way towards your family."

"Well, if you think I am going about singing a silly thing chirping song as you do and never make a show in the world you are quite mistaken, cousin Chirp," replied Hop in a harsh voice as he stretched his legs.

The sun was now shining right on Hop and he began to warm up and feel a bit happier. Besides he had been telling Chirp how much harm he had done and this made him feel in better humor.

"If you are going to do anything in this world, Chirp," he continued, "do something that will make folks talk about you; make them notice what you do. Don't sit on the hearth near the fire and sing silly songs."

Hop was getting ready to jump into the field on the other side of the rail fence as he gave Chirp this advice, but just as he was about to hop under the rails he spied Madam Turkey and her young family walking about, eating as they went.

"Now just look at that," exclaimed Hop; "old Madam Turkey teaching her children to 'destroy my family. No doubt if I went over there she would eat me, so I won't go. I'll go over and see what I can do to make the farmer and his wife angry. Goodbye, Chirp. Do give up your silly singing and do something worth while."

Chirp watched his cousin out of sight and then he crept far under a bush and fixed himself for a comfortable rest. "I can't see how cousin Hop can get any pleasure at all out of life," thought Chirp. "I guess I do lead a rather quiet sort of life, but it seems to me I get more pleasure out of living than he does. I must go to sleep now or I shan't be up in time to sink for my nice young couple after their supper to-night and they might get to thinking about their rich neighbor again and be unhappy."

Tireless Genii Aid Modern Aladdin

The servants of mankind are many and varied. Electricity is known as the silent magician—the invisible genii which responds to the Aladdin lamp in the hands of its possessor. Water tumbling down mountains and roaring through deep gorges carries with it a force that turns a man's mill. The winds, all four of them, drive planes which revolve about their tower to grind wheat into flour in many corners of the world. Even the rise and fall of the tide is harnessed in some places to do the work of mankind. Unpent from a drop of gasoline a force is loosed that turns the wheels in many motors. From the heart of a lump of coal man draws a gas that will give him light, heat and power.

Wide and differing very greatly are the servants of mankind in this twentieth century, and nobly they do his work with muscle power that he had not and never could attain. Not all of these genii—for they are indeed magical servants—which respond to man's slightest wish—are silent. Many of them are accompanied in their working by a noise that is heard at long distances. Explosives are in this class. Mainly because it falls to its lot to do this noisy type of work, compressed air is one of the noisiest genii.

Few realize to what an extent compressed air has come to be utilized in this modern scurrying world of to-day. When the operator on a street car throws his brake handle over it is not electricity but compressed air which stops the car. The air is compressed, it is true, by means of a small electric motor, but the force, the air is the genii that does the work. The same holds true of the transcontinental

Five Year Old Star

Edwin Mills, who at five years of age is playing a leading role as Zander in Zander The Great, in New York. The youthful star has mastered over 100 "cues," the majority of which are "business cues" which actors maintain are the hardest to learn. Edwin memorized fifteen pages of script in spite of the fact that he can neither read nor write. The memorization was achieved when Edwin was taught his part by his actress mother. He has an understudy too, but the understudy is just twice the age of the boy star.

TOMMY TREADS THE MILL OF TO-MORROW

TOMMY'S voice floated in no uncertain manner through the open door, protesting against having to do something at once. "I will do it to-morrow," said the boy; "can't I finish this story first, Mother?" "Well, dear, if you will do it to-morrow without fail it will be all right," came the gentle tones of the boy's mother. Tommy snuggled down farther into the chair in which he had ensconced himself and turned his full attention to the story in question.

It was the adventures of Deadgull Bill, who was holding off a band of Indians with one hand while he rescued the fair maiden of the village with his other. The Indians, read Tommy, became so excited at this stubborn resistance that they turned on one another and began scalping members of their own tribe in mistake for the enemy. Tommy's hair stood fairly on end as he reached this phase of the story. Gone was the thought of what he had promised to do on the morrow.

Dusk lengthened out into darkness and Tommy, except for rising momentarily to turn on the lights in the room, continued reading. He read down to the last period of the final sentence before the book slipped from his fingers, and his head rolled over on the cushions. He was asleep. It may be the way his arms were crooked in the chair or some other discomfort in his posture, but the fact remains Tommy had a nightmare. Not an everyday-take-it-or-leave-it kind of a nightmare, but a real, hair-raising, every-moment-your-last type of a dream.

The boy groaned and trembled as he slept. Deadgull Bill, hero of a thousand valiant exploits himself, could not have worn a more determined mien as Tommy prepared, so it seemed from his face, to sell his life dearly.

If Tommy's guardian angel shared his nightmare that good guardian must have had a terribly anxious time. All of a sudden the boy cried out—evidently the climax of the dream had been reached—and rolled clean off the chair on to the ground. The bump woke Tommy up, and he sat up, rubbing his eyes.

"Oh, that was terrible!" he said. "What was terrible, Tommy?" asked his mother, coming into the room at this moment to take the small boy off to bed. Then the story came out. It seemed Tommy had no sooner got safely asleep than he found himself in the middle of a Wild West kind of a country.

For a while he saw little to excite his fears, but suddenly an arrow whistled over his head so closely that, in spite of his bravery, he quailed. Then, remembering how Deadgull Bill had faced such dangers, he drew himself to his full height—three feet four inches, in fact—and faced the direction of the missile.

His heroism availed him less than nothing, if that were possible, for now a cloud of arrows train with its twenty cars, each set of wheels being braked by means of the air compressed by the engine.

When you pass a shipbuilding yard and hear the merry rattle of hammers on the side of the ship—again it is the work of the genii compressed air which you behold. Even the very letters cut on tombstones are carved and curved by the same useful servant of man. Passing a cutting on a railway you may notice the train go through a cutting which has been hewn from solid rock. The explosives which removed this immense body of rock were only placed after the air drills had hammered and chipped out a narrow hole for their entry into the hard face of the rock.

Freight lifts and many other devices are run by the same power, and in the form of the pneumatic jube which carries your change back to you in the large stores the same genii is at work again.

Tireless, so long as their master treats them with respect, these forces raised by the brain of mankind guided by a very kind Providence, are the unseen, often noiseless, workers in the world of to-day. Year by year the number of these magicians grows and who can tell what a host of these useful and obedient servants man will have 100 years from now?

rows glided over his head and on all sides. The enemy was playing with him, he decided, and drew himself up to his full height again—a nearby rock gave him fully three inches more than he really was, and he hoped the Indians would not see that he stood on a rock. Suddenly he remembered where he carried his weapons and in two seconds or even less he stood with a six-shooter in each hand and a knife in his mouth. He was not sure about the knife, but he had read it somewhere and it looked thrilling.

Not all the heroism in the world, however, could have averted the end. It seemed, for the Indians broke from cover with a series of blood-curdling yells, war whoops, cat calls and an angry chattering of teeth, to bear Tommy off in captivity. His arms were bound cruelly tight with cords; his legs followed the same painful insult, and finally—crowning indignity this—a copy of Deadgull Bill's latest exploits was thrust into his mouth as a gag. Placed in the centre of the band of painted savages—all savages are painted—Tommy was marched off to the village of his captors.

Here without losing further time Tommy was tied to a post or it may have been a stake—Tommy was not quite sure—and the fire was started under his feet. He had ever been taught to feel the heat of the licking flames—all good flames lick—when his guardian angel swooped down from the sky and cut loose his bonds.

Tommy found himself lifted up off the ground and borne away over the clouds. He had just begun to congratulate himself on a lucky escape when he was thrown none too gently down on something hard. The something, he found, was an old-fashioned treadmill to which he was chained. At the top, he saw at a glance, was freedom, and at the bottom death.

With the strength born of desperation Tommy bounded up the steps of the mill, but every step he took the wheel revolved that much, leaving him in the same position. If he did not climb, he discovered, the mill would carry him down, down to his end. Then, and not until then, Tommy found that each step bore a name, and the name of one was the name of them all. This was "To-day."

No sooner had he put his foot upon the step above him called "To-morrow" than it changed into "To-day," before his eyes. "How long must I stay at this?" Tommy asked his guardian angel, who sat at the top of the mill. "Until to-morrow," was the reply. Crying the cry that we have heard before, Tommy jumped from the "Wheel of To-morrow" and sprang into space.

The fact that he landed on the floor beneath the arm chair in his home did not shake Tommy's view of the nightmare. Ever after that Tommy, if he found himself about to say "To-morrow" would wince and stop short. Then he would go and do whatever it was "To-day." He and every other little boy who remembers this will live happily ever after.

Our Heavenly Neighbor, Moon

If you could put all the railways of the world together and swing their tracks end-on stretching out into space, then you might still be short of track upon which to reach the moon. Our nearest neighbor in the heavenly system, the moon is nevertheless about 240,000 miles away.

An express train running over this track, if it were capable of being built, at a speed of 40 miles an hour would take 4,000 hours to complete its journey; or if it traveled night and day incessantly for 250 odd days it would only reach its destination.

To give you an idea of what this distance means, a thread wrapped ten times around the earth at its widest portion, the equator, would only just reach to the moon if stretched out. So you see that the "cow," which "jumped over the moon," was a considerably powerful cow. Objects viewed at this great distance appear very much smaller than they really are.

Supposing the city of London, with its teeming millions, says Sir Robert Ball, in the book "Starland," a book that all children should read, were drawn to scale so that its entire area would be covered by a postage stamp—then that stamp would have to be placed a quarter of a mile away from our eyes to represent the degree of vision that we would have if the real city of London were to be lodged in the moon.

Astronomers, however, have studied the neighbor of the earth closely for a great many years. Every year teaches them something new and important about its cold radiance. Telescopes aid their observations, and as each era brings improvement in the telescope, so more is learnt about the heavenly bodies which dot our sky so brightly at night.

If you were to turn a telescope on the moon, the first thing you would discover would be that no sooner had you become interested in the night than the moon apparently became irritated at your gaze and moved away. Indeed you would soon find that your telescope would have to be mounted on a stand that moved by clockwork so that it held the telescope pointed at the moon. Then you would get a really uninterrupted view of our neighbor.

Take an orange in your hand and examine the amount of detail that you can see of its crevasses with your unaided vision, then you have a very fair idea of what a good telescope will show in the details of the moon's surface. Your eye will not see everything that is to be seen on the surface of the orange, nor will the telescope show all that is in the moon. Strange to say the moon only presents one side towards the earth all the time. It does not, as do other heavenly bodies, show itself off by turning completely around so that we can look at it all over.

In spite of this, scientists have told us that the moon was once hot like all other heavenly bodies, but that now it has cooled off. Once it was a molten mass of enormous heat, but age succeeded age and the moon cooled off. At first the surface cooled and then it commenced to harden deeper and deeper until at last even its internal fires were still.

Volcanoes no doubt broke the surface open for a space and then they too grew cold. The light we get from the moon is none of its own, but just the reflection of the sun on its surface. We of this earth have a fondness for the moon more perhaps than the more distant bodies—it is our neighbor and even if it be cold it is ours, spending its whole time in our service.

POLYGOON PROBLEM FOR BIBLE USERS

Remarkable Canadianizing Effort of Canadian Bible Society

In B. C. Testaments Are Distributed in Nearly Forty Tongues

The problem of Canadianizing foreign born residents of this country is brought forcibly home in the transactions of an organization like the Canadian Bible Society. Some figures which were before the Victoria branch at its meeting yesterday afternoon show not only the tremendous problem of the national situation, but bring the position in this Province in a remarkable way.

It appears that the Bible is distributed in British Columbia in some thirty to forty languages and in 110 different tongues in this country. The splendid progress which the pioneers in the missionary field to the aborigines of Canada made in taking the Gospel message to the Indians in their own speech is shown by the fact that out of twenty-seven different Indian tongues spoken by the 100,000 Indians in Canada about twenty are provided with the Testaments in their own languages.

The bulk of the Testaments issued in this Province are to non-English speaking Europeans, there being a small call for Eastern Asiatic peoples, and two or three of the East Indian, peninsular tongues. Dr. John Knox Wright, secretary for British Columbia, informed the Times.

The British and Foreign Bible Society and its auxiliaries overseas publish Testaments in 558 tongues, adding eight last year. There are also 600 languages in the world to be provided for, of which sixty or seventy are in India, but out of the 600 there are a number provided for by the American society, it being estimated that users of languages throughout the world can now read the Scripture message in their mother tongue. Since 1841, when the British and Foreign Bible Society was founded, the society has distributed about 325,000,000 Testaments.

To teach foreign immigrants the knowledge of English the society distributes Bibles at the ports of entry printed in parallel columns of English and the mother tongue of the newcomer.

The Local Society. The officers of the local society were elected as follows: President, Bishop Schofield, vice-president, Rev. Dr. Joseph McCoy, secretary, T. H. Humphries.

Complimentary reference was made to Mr. Lee's long association with the organization and it was unanimously agreed that an application should be made to the Canadian Bible Society that Mr. Lee should be made a life member.

Rev. Dr. W. B. Cooper, general secretary of Toronto, gave an interesting address, and stated that the society contemplated the celebration in Canada of the fourth centenary of the publication of Tyndale's version of the New Testament, which was issued in 1525 and upon which was based the authorized version.

Rev. Dr. John Knox Wright, the secretary for British Columbia, also spoke and indicated that the work was progressing in the Province. A vote of thanks was tendered to Rev. Dr. Cooper on the motion of Rev. Dr. McCoy and Rev. Dr. Sipprell.

HAS WRITTEN HIS AUTOBIOGRAPHY ON UNUSUAL CAREER

Harold Hewitt, of Sooke, who gained notoriety in 1913 when he stopped the leading horse in the Ascot Gold Cup race, being seriously injured, later being committed to a lunatic asylum, has returned to the city from a tour in northern Europe. He is just as ardent a suffragist as when he jeopardized his life on the race track.

Mr. Hewitt has just published his book "From Harrow School to Heron House Asylum," which has been reviewed in the British press extensively.

Mr. Hewitt told The Times last evening at the Strathcona Hotel that he has given considerable attention recently to study of the international situation in the Ruhr, and of co-education. He has recently published a pamphlet on the Ruhr situation, in which he says: "The action of France deserves the severest condemnation." He maintains that the Coalition Government fell from power owing to the threat of war with Turkey, and that Britain, in the interests of peace, cannot allow the situation between France and Germany to continue without peril to international peace.

In Scandinavia he has given special attention to co-education, where the system has been tried, and is a success. He says the boarding school system of holding sexes in on a different plane, to that of separate classes at school, where the boys and girls mingle at home under due supervision, and with opportunities for development.

That haste makes waste is an adage a large part of the chauffeurs have never learned.

FIRST BERRIES OFF TO PRARIE MARKET

Carload Shipped Yesterday, Another Followed Today; Publicity Card in Each

The first carload of Saanich and Gordon Head strawberries left yesterday for the Mainland, where it will be shipped on to the prairies for consumption. Saanich supplies 1,300 crates yesterday and Gordon Head sent in several hundred more, and these comprise the first load of berries. It is expected that beginning next week the growers will put out five carloads a day. To-day another shipment will leave for the Eastern markets.

The growers here have been guaranteed $1.50 per crate, but they expect to make at least $2.00. Last year's net price for strawberries on the prairies was $2.10 per crate, more or less. In all probability the price will be the same this year.

In every crate of these berries which has already been sent, is a card telling the purchaser of the crate of the fact that the fruit was grown on Vancouver Island, near Victoria. The card also makes the statement that Vancouver Island berries admittedly make the finest jams and preserves. There is no other information on the card, but it is expected that the prairie residents, including a recipe for loganberry wine. One of these cards will accompany every crate of fruit shipped from this island through Victoria.

KING'S DAUGHTERS HOSPITAL MEETING

Directors Will Be Represented at Hospital Association Meeting

Special to The Times.

Duncan, June 15.—The monthly meeting was held on Wednesday. There were 62 in and 4 out patients treated during May; average per day, 24. Day treatment 764; turnover, $2,697.39. Hospital fees collected since accounts passed for payment totalled $2,776.20.

It was decided to install the new X-ray machine on part of the east veranda by converting a porch into a suitable room. It was also decided to loan some men's ward, the hospital authorities would like to thank the gift of a Simmons bed, mattress and pillows complete for the P. B. ward. The secretary was appointed as the delegate to the B. C. Hospital Convention to be held at Penitence on August 28 and 29.

Dr. Kerr had stated that the Shewan and Victoria, would come to Duncan some Sunday and give a concert in the hospital grounds. They would do this gratuitously and a collection would be taken up for some special work in the hospital. Those present were W. H. Elkington, chairman, Messrs. Hardis and Morley (Victoria), H. H. Whitmore, Corbishley and Christmas, Miss Wilson, Mr. T. A. Wood, O. T. Smith and E. W. Carr Hilton, secretary.

The Cowichan Cricket Club 2nd XI. journeyed to Shawnigan on Thursday last to play Shawnigan and Cobble Hill combined teams. Cowichan were very weak in the attack and Colonel Greer and Mr. Ellison fairly collared the bowling with the result that Shawnigan and Cobble Hill won by seven wickets. For the losers Capt. F. Gonsidine 41, E. L. Lear 28, H. M. Charter 18, E. W. C. Hilton 13 and J. D. Mackenzie, captain, not out 10, all obtained double figures. Capt. Gonsidine 41 was the result of well-timed hits all round. The eleven from Cowichan was very hospitably entertained to lunch at Mr. Lonsdale's school, Mr. Lonsdale and his staff doing all they could to make the trip a pleasant one. Tea was served later on the shore of Shawnigan Lake.

The following are the full scores:

LAWYERS ASKED TO FIX OWN LICENSES

Victoria lawyers were asked by the City Council yesterday to fix their own business license fees for the next year. The Bar association was asked to draft a license scale which will raise $1,700, and distribute this amount among lawyers on a fair basis.

The Council decided on this course after listening to M. B. Jackson, K.C., who declared that lawyers could not pay a higher license fee, as proposed by the Mayor and aldermen. A number of young lawyers here were having a hard time to make ends meet, he stated, and he blamed them for insisting on their sons entering a crowded profession simply because it is considered highly respectable.

PARK SPUR LINE TO GO, COUNCIL RULES

E. and N. Must Remove Tracks From Across Johnson Street

There will be no railway tracks across Johnson Street and through Victoria West Park in future. The City Council yesterday decided to inform the Equimait and Nanaimo Railway that it must remove the existing spur running through the southern portion of the park.

City Engineer F. M. Preston recently asked the railway company to move this spur away in preparation for the paving of Johnson Street from the new harbor bridge westward. This action was formally endorsed by the Council.

Action by the Council to rid the park of the railway spur and prevent the establishment of a level crossing on Johnson Street was unanimous yesterday. At a previous meeting the Council was divided on the question with a majority favoring the maintenance of the track under certain conditions. Since then, however, Victoria West people have been waging a strenuous fight for the removal of the spur and no one has asked for its maintenance.

VETERANS WILL HOLD SPORTS' DAY SHORTLY

It was decided last night at a meeting of the Victoria branch of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, to hold the sports and field day of that organization on July 2. The time and place of the function has not been decided, but will shortly be announced.

At the meeting, which was held in the new club rooms, Hamley Building, a resolution was passed conveying the appreciation of the members to the Boys' Naval Brigade and its band, the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, and all other organizations for their kind assistance on Sunday, June 2, in paying tribute to the memory of the comrades who had given their lives in the Great War, and other campaigns.

Comrade Seymour Rowlinson presided at the meeting. Past President Comrade T. A. Drake was also present.
