File No.: AG 314.7 (11 Dec 51) CHS Subject: Monograph: "Administration of the Occupation"

Note No. 1.

From: CHS To: Chief of Staff Date: 11 December 1951

1. Transmitted herewith is historical monograph "Administration of the Occupation" (prepared in compliance with paragraph 3a of General Orders No. 1, SCAP, 16 January 1950). This monograph covers the period 1945 through July 1951. No further extension of coverage is planned.

2. This monograph has not been processed through the concerned associated sections for the following reasons:

a. Time available is not sufficient as all SCAP sections are concerned;

b. The major part of the discussion is based on previously published material, e.g., Selected Data on the Occupation of Japan.

The processing of the monograph was discussed with the Assistant Secretaries, General Staff, SCAP and it was agreed to bypass section processing prior to submission to the Chief of Staff.

3. This is the 70th monograph draft (on the 43rd subject field of 53 comprising the basic monograph series) submitted to you. Twenty-four monograph assignments are currently being worked on, either as initial assignments or as extensions through subsequent occupation years.

4. Administrative footnotes, including reference to staff sections' memoranda, reports and intra-SCAP correspondence, and separated from the regular footnotes by a solid cross-page line and indicated in the text by double parenthesis, e.g. ((a)), are for editorial use only and will not be included in the published monograph.

5. Request this monograph be returned to this Section with such comments as desired.

File No.: AG 314.7 (8 Nov 51)CHS Subject: Monograph: "Local Government Finance"

Note No.	From: CHS To: Chief of Staff Date: 9 November 1951
1.	1. Transmitted herewith is historical monograph "Local Government Finance" (prepared in compliance with paragraph 3a of General Orders No. 1, SCAP, 16 January 1950) which has been processed through the Chief, ESS. This monograph covers the period 1945 through March 1951. 2. a. While concurring in the present draft, ESS feels strongly that coverage should be extended through late 1951 in order to show current Japanese Government efforts to "undo most of what has been accomplished to build up local fiscal independence." It states further that "unless these recent developments are covered the present monograph would present a seriously incomplete statement of the situation." b. CHS recognizes the justice of this comment, but does not plan to make the recommended extension because (1) this situation is not peculiar to "Local Government Finance" but applies to most monographs dealing with the reform of Japanese institutions; (2) previous plans of CHS to round out all monographs in this way had to be curtailed last June for lack of money and time, even though the desirability of doing so was recognized; (3) CHS has already lost by attrition the only historians competent to complete this monograph in the way ESS desires. c. To meet this deficiency in monograph coverage so far as possible, CHS proposes in the Introduction to the monograph series to treat the general Japanese reaction against Occupation programs which set in during 1951. 3. This is the 68th monograph draft (on the 41st subject field of 53 comprising the basic monograph series) submitted to you. Twenty-six monograph assignments are currently being worked on, either as initial assignments or as extensions through subsequent Occupation years. 4. Administrative footnotes, including reference to staff sections' memoranda, reports and intra-SCAP correspondence, and separated from the regular footnotes by a solid cross-page line and indicated in the text by double parenthesis, e.g. ((a)), are for editorial use only and will not be included in the published monograph. 5. 3

1. AG concurs in Chapters V and VI of the attached monograph pertaining to Communications.

2. The Japanese Postal Services have had a direct effect upon the economy of Japan in that the Ministry of Postal Services is the largest government agency, employing over 250,000 persons and having an annual budget in excess of 50 billion yen. Approximately 75% of all money turned in to The Ministry of Finance Funds Investment Bureau is derived from the Ministry of Postal Services.

3. Consequently, AG non-concurs in the second sentence of the preface which reads * * * Because of the relative unimportance of postal services in the over-all economic picture of the Occupation * * * and recommends that that part be deleted.

1. From: CHS To: CIE Date: 4 December 1951

1. Transmitted herewith is a draft of monograph "Freedom of the Press", a part of the History of the Nonmilitary Activities of the Occupation of Japan being prepared in compliance with paragraph 3a of General Orders No. 1, SCAP, 16 January 1950 on the basis of a draft written by Mr. G. R. Splane, formerly of CIE. This monograph covers the period 1945 through January 1951. No further extension of coverage is planned.

2. This draft has been reviewed on "working level" by Lt. Col. Imboden and Mr. Don Brown during the period 5 March - 1 November 1951.

3. Administrative footnotes including reference to staff sections' memoranda, reports and intra-SCAP correspondence, and separated from the regular footnotes by a solid cross-page line and indicated in the text by double parenthesis, e.g. ((a)), are for editorial use only and will not be included in the published monograph.

4. Your comments, corrections, approval and/or recommendations regarding the contents of this monograph will be appreciated by 15 December 1951 prior to submission to the Chief of Staff. In this connection your attention is invited to Inclosure 2, which lists several discrepancies and minor gaps found in editorial processing subsequent to the monograph's return from working-level review.

2 1. Reference to the subject of the basic communication, the Civil Information and Education Section has no objections to the monograph as submitted.

2. Regarding the points raised in Inclosure 2:

a. No solution for the discrepancies in newsprint production and allocation figures is known.

b. The name Yamanushi, on page 70, footnote 1, apparently is correct.

c. The first name of Mr. Komatsu, on page 82, should be Miyuki instead of Yoshiyuku.

d. Not much help can be given in eliminating the discrepancies concerning book production. However, the figures given in Appendix 6 are not for books

At the same time, books were published for which allocations were not requested or granted. As no single agency, official or private, was in a position to compile comprehensive statistics, exactness cannot be claimed for any of the figures for the post-war years. The Research Section of the Japan Publishers' Association claims to know of 3,470 books published in 1946 and 5,952 published in 1947. The National Diet Library, on the basis of books submitted to it for deposit, knows of 3,222 books published in 1948 and 9,497 published in 1949, exclusive of 1,602 books published by the Government during these two years. It recognizes that many more books were published in each of these two years but is unable to estimate their number. For 1950, the Shuppan Nenkan for 1951, on the basis of publishers' catalogues, reports the publication of 17,942 books, of which 14,825 were published by commercial publishers and 3,117 by the Government. 2 Incls Dup cy Incl 2 w/d ----------D. DISCREPANCIES FOUND IN RE-EDITING OF "FREEDOM OF THE PRESS"

1. Pages 31-32 and 34-35:

While the newsprint production and allocation figures given by Mr. Splane are consistent with each other, they differ considerably from the data collected by ESS and published in "Japanese Economic Statistics".

Let present figs stand

CHS favors letting Mr. Splane's figures stand, but feels that you should be advised of the discrepancies involved. A comparative tabulation follows:

Fiscal Year	Newsprint Production (tons) Text	Newsprint Production (tons) J.E.S. a/	Newsprint Allocations (million lb.)	Newsprint Allocations (tons)
1938	323,566	293,544	..	..
1945	81,856	69,432	135.1	67,600
1946	83,262	75,528	160.2	80,000
1947	99,615	90,372	176.8	88,400
1948	..	101,424	203.6	101,800
1949	..	108,660	232.0	116,000
1950	160,000 b/	131,796	..	..

a/ Annual figures derived from average monthly production data given in Japanese Economic Statistics, No. 61, page 89.

b/ Estimated.

2. Pages 134-135:

These figures are suspect. The choice percentages given here are too one-sided to make a 60-40 breakdown likely on the total votes cast.

3. Incomplete action is reported in four fairly conspicuous cases:

page 133: FTC decision on the newspaper joint distribution system.

page 148: Supreme Court decision on FTC ruling against the Japan Publishers' Association's activities in connection with paper allocation.

page 173: Supreme Court decision in Kiyoshi Ishii's appeal against conviction of contempt of court.

page 194: Enactment of amendments to copyright law.

4. Two names given in the text appear to be in error:

OK. page 70 footnote 1: The name Yamanushi looks wrong. YAMANUSHI

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 11652 SEC. 3(E) AND 5(D) OR (E) NNDG # 775015

5. a. The material given on domestic book production, pages 186-187, appears to be seriously defective, provided the data given in Appendix 8 are reliable. Detailed comparisons follow:

Period	Titles Published (Text)	Titles Published (Appendix)
	Calendar year	Fiscal year, starting in April.
Jan-Mar 1946	368	1,378
Apr-Jun 1946	1,061	3,016
1948 monthly avg.	600	2,172

In view of the figures given for paper allocations, the appendix data look more probable.

A similar comparison of the mid-page table and comparable data in Appendix 8 follows:

Delete par + par + table, p 187.

	Text			Appendix 8
Year	1st Edns	Reprints	Total	1st Edns	Reprints	Total
1945	..	..	878	..	..	1,378
1946	3,619	1,040	4,659	..	..	5,514
1947	4,499	985	5,484	11,620	2,984	14,604
1948	..	..	..	20,255	5,812	26,067
1949	..	..	..	12,867	7,636	20,503
1950	5,471	6,122	11,593	4,526 a/	4,427 a/	8,953 a/

a/ Excludes March 1951 data.

b. Appendix 8 shows that the number of titles began to drop after mid-1948, while paper allocations kept on increasing. Although this evidence is not conclusive, it would appear to contradict the text statement that the number of copies also declined.

c. The text says publication reached the 1500-2000 title level in September 1949. The appendix indicates that this level was reached in the April-June 1948 period.

2. From: ESS To: CHS

1. This monograph has the substantial merit of describing in one document the many changes made in the Japanese local fiscal system between 1945 and early 1951. One factual misstatement was found on page 64 in lines 7 and 9. The Admissions Tax was recommended by the Shoup Mission for prefectural use, not municipal. The words "municipalities" in line 7 and "municipal" in line 9 should be changed to prefectures and prefectural respectively.

2. It is recommended that the decision to give no further coverage to this subject be reconsidered. Within the past six months the central government has advanced proposals to revise the local tax system, which, if adopted, would undo most of what has been accomplished to build up local fiscal independence. Unless these recent developments are covered the present monograph would present a seriously incomplete statement of the situation.

Accordingly, ~~Following SCAP's permission,~~ the Japanese Airlines Company invited offers from each of the eligible airlines individually. A contract with one of the United States lines was finalized early in October 1951 and services were scheduled to start on 25 October 1951. Initially, the service was to be between Tokyo and Osaka, and Tokyo and Fukuoka with stops at Osaka, and Tokyo and Sapporo. Eventually the service was to extend from Chitose in the north to Itazuke in the south with stops at Tokyo, Nagoya, Osaka, Iwashimi and Sendai, Sendai and Iwakuni.

2. The following comments are offered:

a. Administrative footnote ((a)), p. 4, is not completely accurate. The comments made by Mr. Gillies in interview with Mr. Van Staavern on 20 Jan 51 in regard to "combination of enterprises" were made for the purpose of indicating the distinction between actions under the Deconcentration Law and those under the Holding Company Liquidation Commission Ordinance. The latter were designed to separate the combine affiliations between companies in the same chain of capital, while the former were concerned principally with the industrial capacity of a single enterprise in any of its subsidiary companies.

b. On p. 6, Law No. 54 of 1947 is first referred to as the "Fair Trade Practices Law." The short title for this law in common usage in both Headquarters and Japanese circles is "The Anti-Monopoly Law."

c. Footnote 2/, p. 15, ascribes to Mr. Gillies the statement that the provision in the Deconcentration Law for appeal to the Prime Minister would, if tested in the courts, probably prove unconstitutional. A correct interpretation of Mr. Gillies' remarks in the interview of 6 February 51 would be that while the Deconcentration Law did not specifically provide for judicial review of HCLC actions, such review was, nevertheless, a constitutional guarantee and the law should, therefore, if tested in the courts, not be declared unconstitutional for failure to specifically grant the right of appeal to the courts.

d. The first paragraph on p. 85 indicates that the Japan Iron and Steel Company and Daiken Company were each reorganized into four new companies, while the recommendations of the Deconcentration Review Board in each case required that only two new companies be established from the respective reorganizations. It is pointed out that the HCLC orders of reorganization conformed with the DRB's recommendations and the establishment of two additional companies by both Japan Iron and Steel and Daiken was voluntary action on their part.

e. It is suggested that the paragraph beginning at the bottom of p. 88 in regard to sale of shares by designated excessive concentration companies which were also holding companies be omitted. The sale of such shares would have been required even though such companies had not been designated under the Deconcentration Law and this general subject matter is treated under the Zaibatsu monograph.

f. Final paragraph of the monograph may be amended to indicate that all reorganizations under the Deconcentration Law were completed by 1 June 51.

Mr. Gillies, 26-6561

2. From: ESS To: CHS Date: 17 AUG 1951

1. The monograph, "Deconcentration of Economic Power," transmitted by C/N 1 above for examination and comment has been reviewed.

2. The following comments are offered:

a. Administrative footnote ((a)), p. 4, is not completely accurate. The comments made by Mr. Gillies in interview with Mr. Van Staavern on 20 Jan 51 in regard to "combination of enterprises" were made for the purpose of indicating the distinction between actions under the Deconcentration Law and those under the Holding Company Liquidation Commission Ordinance. The latter were designed to separate the combine affiliations between companies in the same chain of capital, while the former were concerned principally with the industrial capacity of a single enterprise in any of its subsidiary companies.

b. On p. 6, Law No. 54 of 1947 is first referred to as the "Fair Trade Practices Law." The short title for this law in common usage in both Headquarters and Japanese circles is "The Anti-Monopoly Law."

c. Footnote 2/, p. 15, ascribes to Mr. Gillies the statement that the provision in the Deconcentration Law for appeal to the Prime Minister would, if tested in the courts, probably prove unconstitutional. A correct interpretation of Mr. Gillies' remarks in the interview of 8 February 51 would be that while the Deconcentration Law did not specifically provide for judicial review of HCLC actions, such review was, nevertheless, a constitutional guarantee and the law should, therefore, if tested in the courts, not be declared unconstitutional for failure to specifically grant the right of appeal to the courts.

d. The first paragraph on p. 85 indicates that the Japan Iron and Steel Company and Daiken Company were each reorganized into four new companies, while the recommendations of the Deconcentration Review Board in each case required that only two new companies be established from the respective reorganizations. It is pointed out that the HCLC orders of reorganization conformed with the DRB's recommendations and the establishment of two additional companies by both Japan Iron and Steel and Daiken was voluntary action on their part.

e. It is suggested that the paragraph beginning at the bottom of p. 88 in regard to sale of shares by designated excessive concentration companies which were also holding companies be omitted. The sale of such shares would have been required even though such companies had not been designated under the Deconcentration Law and this general subject matter is treated under the Zaibatsu monograph.

f. Final paragraph of the monograph may be amended to indicate that all reorganizations under the Deconcentration Law were completed by 1 June 51.
