WOMEN'S COLLEGE. The fact that Meredith is a college seeking to educate today's woman for tomorrow's world is important to many students.

THE WAY OF TRADITIONS. AIthough people come and go, the traditions provide a special bond between Meredith generations.

GET SMART. The intellectual stimulation of students through classes and campus programs is an important part of the Meredith education.

< MEREDITH COLLEGE

All Roads Lead to Meredith

Indeed, sometimes it does seem as if all roads lead to Meredith when looking at the reasons why students choose Meredith as their college. In a recent survey conducted by the Oak Leaves Staff, the following reasons were cited for coming to Meredith.

Meredith is a women's college, and as a women's college, Meredith offers many opportunities for women. Students reported that they looked forward to taking advantage of the leadership roles available to them. Other students also felt that a women's college offered them a special sisterhood among the students.

Meredith has many traditions. When deciding on a college, students said that they were intrigued by Meredith's endless list of traditions. From Comhuskin', Stunt, and Play Day to Christmas Dinner, Caroling, and the Daisy Chain, the traditions at Meredith make it all the more special!

The academic programs of BEING SMALL is another asset of Meredith. Each student is an individual - not a number.

Meredith are strong. The faculty to student ratio at Meredith is small, affording students extra attention from faculty members. With fourteen different departments offering a variety of majors, Meredith receives a fine academic reputation in the Southeast.
Meredith has a friendly atmosphere and is small. Many students who visited Meredith prior to applying said they were impressed by the friendliness of students, faculty, and administrators. They also liked the small size of Meredith, which makes it easier to get to know people on an individual basis.

Meredith is a Baptist college. Having been established by the Baptist State Convention in 1891, Meredith has received continous support from Baptists for many years.
Whatever the reason(s), the number of applications for admission has been increasing as more and more women want to take a road that leads to Meredith.

RICH IN HERITAGE. As a Baptist institution, Meredith is dedicated to a Christian education.

Parking Problems

"Ican never find a parking space!" is a common cry of Meredith drivers. It seems that with more and more students bringing cars to campus, fewer and fewer parking places are available. This parking situation is not new to Meredith, but the problem seems to have magnified this year.
Residents of Barefoot and Heilman were overjoyed upon seeing a new parking lot built behind their residence halls this summer. Referred to as the "Gravel Lot" or "Dust Bowl", this parking lot has given much relief to students living in the senior residence halls who can't find a parking space along the strip. This gravel lot has brought some complaints from students who report having a difficult time finding their cars under all of the dust. Other students, who had to park in the grass beyond the gravel lot, were horrified to find their cars stuck in the mud both after the snow melted and after it rained heavily.

The parking lot behind

Poteat Residence Hall has also proved to be inadequate this year. Providing parking spaces for a limited number of junior residents, this small parking lot has overflowed with automobiles. Drivers have resorted to parking along the street in front of this parking lot, reducing the street to oneway traffic.
The parking situation has not been confined to just resident students: faculty members and commuting students have lost use of many parking spaces - behind Joyner Hall due to construction of the Shearon Harris Building.
One proposed solution to the parking situation is the tightening of the number of parking permits issued to underclasswomen. The privilege of having cars on campus has typically been reserved for juniors and seniors (with the exception of all commuting students). In the meantimes, when students have searched high and low for a parking space, to no avail, there is always a last resort - parking in the pit.

THE GRAVEL LOT. This new park ing lot has helped the parking situation some, but not enough.

BUMPER TO BUMPER. Cars line up along the strip after the return of students from vacation.

THE LAST RESORT. The "Parking Pit", as it is so named, is the last resort of drivers for parking.

HARD HAT AREA. The Davidson $&$ Jones Construction Co. sign warns students that there is construction ahead.

ANOTHER BRICK IN THE WALL Scaffolding lines the side of the chapel as the foundation is completed.

THE FRAME IS UP as the Jones Chapel takes form.

THE TOOLS OF BUILDING. These were familiar sights to Meredith students during the construction of the chapel.

ABOVE IT ALL. Workmen busy themselves with the task of roofing the Shearon Harris Building.

NOT JUST CLASSROOMS. The Shearon Harris Building will contain a board room and a student reading room.

Meredith College: UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Coming down the front drive at the beginning of school, Meredith students knew that this year was going to be different. The sight of dump trucks and piles of dirt clouded the campus. Yes, during the summer ground had been broken on the construction of the Christina Brown and Seby Brown Jones Chapel. Contributions for the building began with the Class of 1928, who designated $$ 100,000$ for the fund. According to President Weems, "The building of this chapel is the fulfillment of a dream that has been cherished for more than eighty years by all associated with Meredith."
The completion date for the chapel has been set for early August 1982. Students, faculty, and administrators look forward to using the chapel for Wednesday worship, special campus worship services, and weddings.

WONT BE HERE. Senior Business Majors Susan Bishop and Jennifer McNair will graduate before the building is finished, but like most seniors they look foward to seeing it on a visit.

Not long after construction on the chapel was begun, ground was broken on the Shearon Harris Building. Named for the late Shearon Harris, chairman of the Board of Trustees, this building will become home to the mathematics department and the business and economics department. The need for a classroom building to house these two departments was assessed during the seif-study conducted by Meredith two years ago. The math department will use the new facility to expand its growing computer science program. The business and economics department, according to department chairman Lois Frazier, looks forward to the "adequate facilities and room for growth" associated with this building. Completion is slated for July 1982 with full-use scheduled for August 1982.

THE SIGN PLAINLY READS, that men aren't allowed in the resident halls or even admitted to Meredith!

Can't Live With Them Can't Live Without Them

Men. As Meredith policy dictates, members of the opposite sex, namely males, are prohibited from certain areas on campus. After all this is a women's college. But.times are changing. What if Meredith were to experience a new way of life: co-ed existence! Imagine the changes. The basketball team would have height over the average of five feet six inches. You wouldn't see as many women donning the favorite classroom attire (i.e. sweats and sneakers). That might be a pleasant switch for our instructors: women become female again. How about residence hall life? We all know how "causal" our attire is there. Why, the mere presence of men in the cafeteria might reduce the food bill because we must live up to their expectation that women "eat like birds"... But to compensate, men eat like horses. So much for saving money. What about the new classroom atmosphere? Might you catch women ignoring the lecture in Westem Civ. and concentrating on the prospect of getting a date with the gentleman in the third row? Of course not. Our parents aren't paying for us to get a Mrs. degree. And who could imagine the throngs of tenors and basses singing the Alma Mater? No matter how you look at it these changes would be rather drastic, yet they could be a part of Meredith's future. But, are these changes really necessary, for "a woman without man is like a fish without a bicycle."

WE SALUTE THEE Alma Mater. Will these words ever be sung by tenors and basses at Meredith?

SPORTSMANSHIP. Athletics at Meredith would certainly change as the crowd cheers on the volleyball team: "Go Angels!"

AT LEAST WE HAVE DANCES. Although Meredith will never go co-ed, at least we can enjoy the company of gentlemen at dances.

STREET SIGN. The sign for Kensington Square was a familiar sight for Meredith Abroad students. The students lived at 23 Kensington Square for seven weeks.

An Unforgettable Summer

It is hard to describe how it felt Ito be in the most popular city in the world for the summer of 1981. After they paid their dues with hard work on the Meredith campus for two weeks, the Meredith Abroad group arrived in London on June 13, 1981. The group, composed of 43 students, three faculty members (Dr. Crook, Dr. Frazier, and Dr. Samson) and one spouse (Mrs. Crook), were not discouraged by the 22 hour delay in New City caused by the air traffic controllers strike at Heathrow Airport in London. They made it just in time to witness the pageantry of London," at "Trooping, the Colour', the Queen's official birthday celebration.
During their seven-week stay in London, they were able to take advantage of the sports and cultural activities centered there. The avid tennis fans made it to Wimbledon. The theatre buffs raded to National Theatre productions as well as musicals including My Fair Lady and Annie. The musicians among them enjoyed concerts of music by Beethoven, William Byrd, and Tchaikovsky. A special treat for some were the spectacular performances during the Nureyev Festival.

Buckingham Palace, Picadilly Circus, and Trafalgar Square became familiar sights as students rode double decker buses through London. The tube offered expensive, but quick and easy transportation to all points. A cheaper mode of transportation was by foot - this was possible because of their location near Hyde Park, Harrod's, and Kensington Palace.
Though London captivated their attention, the group took excursions to Canterbury, Winchester, Stone Henge, Oxford, and Stratford-uponAvon. Students also traveled in small groups to Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Paris, and Germany during their long weekend break.
The day that they all looked foward to and which made the trip complete was July 29, 1981, the day of the Royal Wedding. A few brave souls camped out along the wedding route and saw Prince Charles, Lady Diana, and other members of the Royal family first hand. The rest of the group enjoyed the festivities on the television. The wedding excitement was a perfect storybook ending to an unforgettable stay in London.

TENNIS ANYONE? The courts of Wimbledon attracted many tourists during the tournament including Meredith students.

THE ROYAL PROCESSION. Shortly before the Royal Wedding, the streets of London were decorated in celebration.

THEY NEVER SMILE Students found that the guards at Buckingham Palace never smile - not even at Meredith Angels!

CHIME, CHIME. The chimes of Big Ben were heard by students visiting the Houses of Parliament.

STARS OF 'TESS'. Meredith women pose in front of Stone Henge - used as a scene in the movie 'Tess'

THE ROYAL COUPLE? Lady Diana and Prince Charies are impersonated by Judy Wilkerson and Marie Hiott on the last night of the trip.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES. Meredith College, like many other institutions of higher learning, is here as a sign of the times.

NEW WAVE. Nancy Sparks, Lib Belton, Sharon Sawyer, Kay Jones, Johnsie Pass, and Susan Bishop are known as "The Bouquets" - a punk rock group.

ANOTHER CHANGE. Cornhuskin wouldn't be the same without the appearance of a fairy godfather, unless, of course, he became a country music star.

Times Are Changing

M$y$ these times are changing! Cornhuskin', a traditional part of Meredith becomes more complicated and competitive every year. Originality is a big part of this event as evidenced by outrageous costumes. More outrageous than this were the "Punk Rock" outfits many chose to party on the town in. These were certainly quite different from the calmer, more reserved pink and green preppies that once reigned without challenge. However, our basic classroom attire remains the same. Thank goodness for Levi's and Lee's! While many other events and aspects of Meredith life have been altered over the years, one popular form of recreation has changed very little ... catching those wonderful rays.

For the most part, the changes have been for the better. But, there is one thing that never changes: the fact that Meredith is always changing.

FOR THE STUDENTS. Classes have become more student-oriented rather than the traditional lecture session.

CLOSE BY. Zack's is conveniently located across from Meredith offering diversion from school work for students.

HILLSBOROUGH STREET is empty during the morning, but by lunchtime the restaurants will be busy.

A DAY IN THE PARK. Students find Pullen Park a fun place to relax on a spring day.

No Place Like Home

"Ihope to live in Raleigh lafter graduation," replied one senior upon being asked about her future plans. Many other students, during their four year sojourn at Meredith, grow to love Raleigh dearly and look foward to making it their permanent home.
Meredith's location in Raleigh offers many opportunities to Meredith students. There are five other colleges located in Raleigh: N.C. State, Peace, St. Mary's, Shaw, and St. Augustine's. Other institutions of higher learning are not too far away - UNC-CH, Duke, and Southeastern Seminary.

With Raleigh as the capital of the state of North Carolina, Meredith students have first hand access to the workings of state government. Students can also take advantage of capital events: the State Fair, the Farmer's Market, etc.
Raleigh offers students many cultural activities through Stewart Theater, Theater in the Park, and Friends of the College. The circus and concerts (Kenny Rogers, Rod Stewart, Jimmy Buffett) are also attractions which frequent the Capital City.
The range of tastes of Meredith students is easily satisfied by the variety of restaurants located in Raleigh. The choice of three different Darryl's, Angus Barn, Kanki, Swensen's, Brother's Pizza Parlor, and Lock, Stock, & Barrel can whet any Angel's appetite when Belk Dining Hall doesn't come through.
Shopping sprees for Meredith students are not uncommon with the abundance of shopping malls in Raleigh. Ridgewood is just across Wade Avenue with Crabtree, Cameron Village, and North Hills not far away. The new Triangle Outlet Mall towards the airport has offered inexpensive buys for econ-omy-minded students.

The nightlife of Raleigh especially caters to college students. The big question of where to spend an evening can be easily answered by Zack's, Edward's, Tut's, or even a movie at South Hills for $1.

Whatever the attraction, Meredith students find that living in Raleigh is itself a learning expereince.

ICE CREAM TREATS. For Angels with the "munchies" Swenson's has ice cream favors to soothe any sweet tooth.

EXTRA CASH is soon spent during a shopping spree to Crabtree Valley Mall.

THE BIG RUSH. When the newest Darryl's opened on Old Wake Forest Road, customers stood in line for hours to get inside.

TO THE RESCUE For short-notice parties, Secret Santa gifts, or a quick dry cleaning, Ridgewood Shopping Center is most convenient.

66 This is Oak Leaves reporting live from the Meredith Campus. We are waiting patiently to hear the results of the Freshman Class elections. Between classes and studies the women eagerly put up posters, slipped fliers under doors, and taped candy on doors. Each candidate prepared and gave a speech in Belk Dining Hall.

Votes are being counted. The envelope please! The new leaders of the Freshman Class are: Celia Moye, President; Becky Evans, Vice-President; Joan Bunting, Secretary; Susannah Thomas, Treasurer; and Zan Bunn, Historian. This is Beverly Johnson reporting to you on this an important day of elections."

Dear Beddy

Every year it's something Cnew. This 1981-82 year it's granny quilt comforters. 1 get to know a lot about the girls in room 309 Stringfield. Like who's in love with whom; who's failing English or history; who keeps her room clean, and lots more of the gossip.

You might ask how do I know all this since I'm just a bed. Well, like any other bed I keep my eyes and ears open. I listen to all the juicy gossip between roommates and suitemates and all the lovey-dovey on the phone. I see the "D slips," the Twig, and their letters, too - along with all the books and papers thrown upon me
With access to all this I could be the world's first "Dear Beddy.'

Other than all the talk I learn a lot about the girls themselves. Most gain ten pounds their freshmen year. I can tell when I'm bounced upon. A lot of girls like to keep late hours, too. Especially when there's a big test the next day! Most have their little girl qualities still. They can't seem to part with their bears and baby dolls. If I could talk to the guys, I could warn them who's the good housewife and who's the one too lazy to even make me up.
$\perp$ OF MY SENSES are ready to ar today's gossip.

THE WHOLE FAMILY gets involved as freshman Tammy Lee moves to her new home in Stringfield Residence Hall.

Coming Up

Have you ever thought Labout just how many possessions a woman has? You probably wouldn't come close in guessing. Usually there are three bags of hanging clothes, two suitcases full of clothes, big boxes, pillows, a television, food, and something we cannot live without: the old teddy bear!

The stairs seem to get higher as the trips get heavier. Once everything is in the room it looks as if a tornado has blown through. After all the boxes, suitcases, teddy bears, and curtains are put in place, the room seems to be finished.
But it is not until the pictures of boyfriends and family are put up that we are reminded of home. With this final touch we can call our residence hall rooms at Meredith home.

Sisters

Dear Big Sister, I knew that you were going to become a very special part of my experience at Meredith when your encouraging smile met my look of exhaustion at the end of freshmen orientation this fall. I could never thank you enough for all the advice you have given me about which professors to take, which professors to avoid, and the insight into those frats at State. I'll never forget how you came by my room the night before my freshman comp. midterm and talked me into going to Swenson's with you for a study break! I guess I just wanted to thank you for being so special! Love,

Class of 1984

The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language describes a sophomore as one who is immature and overconfident. But certainly these characteristics do not fit members of the Class of 1984 at Meredith. We did arrive on the Meredith campus more mature this fall. Afterall, we had learned a lot our freshman year. We were more confident of ourselves as we planned a wonderful Cornhuskin' endeavor and looked forward to our FreshmanSophomore Dance in the spring. As the year wore on, we realized that we still have some more maturing to do, and we still have to beat the Class of 1983 in Cornhuskin'. We guess all of this will happen next year when we shrug off the title of sophomores and become juniors!

Small World

Out of the mouths of babes come words of wisdom! Our sophomore Cornhuskin' theme centered around babies and their perspective on things that happen in the world. The parade took place at a supermarket when four mothers left their children alone. Despite the narration and "words" being out of place, we still came in third place in the parade. Our hogcalling centered around a mommy pig calling her piglets. Our songs, sung to the tunes of "It's a Small World," "Baby Face," "Oh You Must Have Been A Beautiful Baby" were entertaining for all. Finally, the X. chromosome told us a tale we would never forget! We were thrilled to learn that we placed third overall and had beaten the freshmen!

The

gram, held in CEA was sponsored by the Sophomore Class.

Decision

I-Javing been at college for a Isecond year, we have learned to take in stride those decisions which as freshmen seemed so monumental: "Which classes should I take? How do I take off the ten pounds l've gained? How am I ever going to make it through freshman comp.?" But as sophomores, we have a more important decision to make: "What will my major be?"

For some sophomores the decision has been an easy one. One such sophomore entered Meredith with plans to study dental hygiene and is still satisfied in pursuing it as a career. For other sophomores the decision has not been so easy. Although individual interest has been the main motive for most decisions, future job opportunities also have been considered.

Class of 83

The Junior year may be referred to as the turning point of one's college career, for it is a year for making major decisions. This past year, many juniors began considering internships, cooperative education, early graduation, applying for graduate school, and even marriage. Along with doing some serious planning for the future, the Class of ' 83 also enjoyed the privileges of being juniors. Having cars on campus, finally living in airconditioned residence halls, and getting those long awaited class nings were just a few of the highlights of the past year. Not only were we enjoying getting better acquainted with out Little Sister class, we also had new faces in our own class with incoming transfers. Suddenly we were not only finished with those required courses, but we were well into our major studies, making graduation seem much closer!

The Ring Man Cometh

It is amazing that one, small lpiece of jewelry can cause such an uproar at Meredith. This article of jewelry comes in all sizes and may be either white or yellow gold; however, its meaning is distinct. A smooth onyx stone complete with school seal and engraved oak leaves make up a Meredith class ring, representing junior status as well as much hard work. Worn with pride, a Meredith class ring has good reason to cause an uproar.

We've Grown Used To You

$W$ ell, where should we go
How many times have we heard this question presented to us and discussed an answer with our friends? Some Meredith students prefer places like Edward's Grocery or maybe Tut's. Of course there is the ever-popular Crazy Zack's almost right across the street for the beach music lovers. Music City is for the C&W buffs. The newest choice on the list is 2001 NIP. How many of us will buy a membership? No matter what our tastes in music and fun, there is something for everyone. Raleigh. we've grown accustomed to your face.

Rising Seniors!

${ }^{6}$ C an you believe that our over?"
"No, I can't, but what a year it has been!"
"I will never forget our 'Rat Pack' at Cornhuskin' and all the fun we had. Oh yeah and wasn't Stunt great this year?!"
"You know, sometimes it's still hard for me to believe that we have been at Meredith for three years, but then I'll look down and see my class ring and realize that we are almost seniors."
"Speaking of rings - guess who else just got a diamond?"
"No! Not her too."
"Well, I hope to have mine by Christmas - which doesn't seem so far away."
"Well, while you're planning a wedding l'll be applying to graduate school."
"That's great - you know, this time last year I was really confused about my future there are so many things to consider, but this year it seems as if things are beginning to fall into place."
"I know what you mean. I saw my little sister the other day and she can't decide if she wants to major in sociology or psychology or both."
"Looking back I really believe that every year at Meredith just keeps getting better and better."
"But our junior year has been so great. I can't imagine how we can top it."
"Neither can 1, but I'm sure the "Rat Pack" of ' 83 will come up with something.'

NATIVE NEW YORKERS. Senior class officers are Judy Chandler, histonian; Susan Foster, historian; Lesa Seay, secretary: Pam Waters, president. Lora Dinning, vice-president: Donna Tripp, treasurer, Johnsie Pass, historian: Laney Hodge Edwards, histonian. (For a better likeness see page 55!)

If we were sure just what it lwould take to conquer the world, we could do it together. We've got all the makings of a powerful organization: minds, training, determination, creativity, industry, leadership, and unity. Yes, therein lies our main strength: we have each other.

Together we have made our senior year and all our years at Meredith years to remember. We've faced our individual uncertainties - grad. schools, NTE, job hunts - but we have also faced some big questions as a group - choosing Outstanding Seniors and class agents, dressing our class doll, and even deciding on what kind of senior portraits we wanted.

Soon comes our last big "togetherness": graduation. But even after we part, we know we will always be a part of something special - the Class of 1982, IN A CLASS ALL OUR OWN!

Throughout the warm weather months bikini-clad bodies litter Meredith's lawns. Sunbathing on Meredith Beach is strictly a warm weather activity - or is it? One chilly October afternoon saw fifty shivering sunbathers clutching their towels for warmth between snaps of the camera. (Remember

Cornhuskin' 81: Seniors Bite the Big Apple

BREAKIN THROUGH. Led by the Senior Class officers, seniors break through the banner to begin the Cornhuskin' night celebration.

"Start spreadin' the news, we're making our way It's not something you forget in a hurry. All those weeks of secret meetings, spying, " $82-84$ " ringing in your ears. For seniors, Cornhuskin' ' 81 was born in the spring of our junior year, before any of us knew the meaning of being a senior. How do you cram six months of work into four nights? It began with the pre-Cornhuskin' Dance one last night of unity before the rivalry exploded. Yelling and screaming at supper disappointment at hearing the juniors singing "New, York, New York" but jubilation upon discovering rats in Poteat ... rushing to get a shirt before your size runs out.
Cornhuskin' '81 was: Tennis shoes hanging from a ripping red and white banner (but it was such a good idea); waiting in the courtyard at precisely $5: 00$ for the unknown surprise; waiting outside for half an hour in the cold in a skimpy dancing-girl outfit; fastest shuckin' and bobbin' in the whole school; the Statue of Liberty swatting pigeons and shooting muggers with a pop gun: dampened hopes when the juniors won the first two events; holding your breath and each other as the final results were read: " Y 'all, this one was really close. Second place goes to juniors ..." And six months of working and waiting finally paid off

WATCH OUT TUTS!!!

Every morningyou wake up and see that black top hat hanging on your wall. Your oversized surf shirt is an old standby for dressing in a hurry. And you still see candle wax on the tennis shoes you wore on the Li'l Sister serenade. There's a new page in your photo album, a pressed daisy and a wrinkled song sheet in your scrap book, a "seniors" button on your bulletin board, a BZ still on your window ... and memories.

The Beehive

Dear Diary

The Beehive has probably a thousand coats of paint on it, each put on lovingly and joyfully by a soon-to-begraduated senior class. But each coat is different, ours in a special way. We decided to paint a diary of our senior year, beginning with the tale of Flossie on page one. Each "page" was to represent an event with its subsequent memories, all to be held in a "dear diary" close to every senior's heart.

PAGE TWO. This circle of balloons commemorates the big sister-little sister picnic held on August 27.

NERVOUS? NEVER!

Nervous chattering could be heard in the quiet room on the second floor of Cate Center. Graduating seniors paced the floor, quizzing each other on questions they thought the recruiter would ask, stopping others who had just come out of interviews to see how things went. Interviews can be nerve-racking but necessary for seniors wanting to leave Meredith and put into practice the knowledge they had acquired while in school.

RAPT ATTENTION. Claudia Goodman demonstrates her training as she holds the attention of a group of eager first graders.

Teaching At the Head of the Class

In just six hours, a meta1 morphosis occurs - her identity is transformed from "Mary Ann-in-a-Dukesweatshirt" to "Miss-Johnson-in-room-203-who'smean". This student who doubles as a teacher learns on the job what it's like "at the head of the class." She may not see her roommate for days. She lives a strange kind of life where she develops a new understanding of the word "education."

SINGIN' AND PLAYIN' Seniors end their stunt with a rollicking song, "The Games People Play.

The Games People Play

The name of the game was not monopoly, but "Games People Play," and the seniors of ' 82 triumphed again as Stunt ' 82 carried participants and onlookers alike past go and into a night of fun and excitement. Freshmen led off with a blast, spoofing "Angels" and busting "Louie's" gang. Juniors raked in the loot during their mock telethon on behalf of "decibelosis," after sophomores barely escaped literary horrors in dreamland. CP&L provided interim entertainment, and everybody had a jolly time.

READY, SET, GO! Pat Strickland. Susan Foster, Kelly Lennon, and Suzanne Clark wait for their cue to begin the big game.

OUTSTANDING SENIORS

WHITE DRESSES. Seniors clad in white for Class Day exercises pass along copies of the class history.

SORE FEET. Kim Hollars waits until the last minute to put her shoes on as the graduation procession begins. In front of Kim, Dodie Holland cleans her glasses for a moming of importan watching.

Good-bye: A Sign of the Times

One blink and it's over. Four years of study (with fun thrown in for variety), four years of having friends close by are suddenly almost over. You can count the nights you have left to sleep in your residence hall room bed, the meals you'll eat in Belk. There is sadness. But there is also joy. You have a new life ahead, and you're ready to begin. Meredith has helped to prepare you for that life, but she can't nurse you forever. So you look forward with anticipation and excitement to what's ahead as you wave goodbye to what's behind. And those tears you brush away as you leave - they're just another sign of the times.

CAMPUS MINISTER'S SECRETARY: Martha Anderson.

ADMISSIONS OFFICE: Nancy Stanton, Marcia Williams, Sue Kearney, Shera Hube, Mary Bland Josey; Director, and Anne Dahl. The Admissions Office is responsible for reviewing prospective freshmen, transfer students, and readmissions students.

COUNSELOR. As a new member of the Meredith Community, Marge Shelton finds that the greatest reward of her new career is "the opportunity to share in the lives of the students." In her Cate Center office, she is always eager to help students explore options, to offer encouragement, or just to listen. Relating to young people is what she enjoys most.

SECRETARY TO STUDENT ACTIVITIES AND COUNSELING. Mary Lay

STUDENT ACTIVITIES. An important aspect of college life is extracurricular activities. Lynn Moss and Patrice Strifert are responsible for advising, coordinating, and implementing programs to enrich the lives of Meredith students. Receiving their greatest reward through working with others, both combined are involved in organizations such as the Residence Hall Board, MRA, International Students, and the Student Life Committee.

CAMPUS MINISTER: Larry Williams. Leading in worship services, serving as the advisor for the Meredith Christian Association, counseling students, and giving support to students, faculty, and staff in their religious pilgrimage are many of the responsibilities of the Reverend Larry Williams. Seeing Meredith students mature in their faith and grow in the leadership abilities has been the greatest reward of his career here. He is grateful for the many ways that he has received love here at Meredith.

Making the World More Beautiful

The Art Department allows students to develop their talents and creativity through professional instruction. Courses in printmaking, painting, photography, graphics, ceramics, and art history provide valuable studio experience, as well as cultural development. Upon graduation from Meredith, art majors are prepared for careers as professional artists, art teachers, and advertising executives.

ART DEPARTMENT: Leonard White, Chairman; John Givvines, Craig Greene.

COLOR & DESIGN. Mr. Maron gives tips on the proper techniques.

Learn About Your Body

Study! Study! Study! is Sprobably the advice most often heard from biology majors; however, they will also tell you that "if you enjoy the subject it's worth all the time and energy you put into it." The department offers opportunities to learn more about our bodies, health, the ecology of our environment, microorganisms, and other "creatures." The wide range of subjects, the enthusiasm of the faculty, and their up-todate knowledge prepare biology majors well for exciting careers in medicine and research.

BIOLOGY DEPARTMENT: Larry Grimes, Clara Bunn, Chairman; Carol Kepler.

Opportunities

More and more Meredith angels are majoring in business. The Business Department offers a variety of concentrations to prepare majors with challenging careers as executives, administrative secretaries, teachers, and economists. The faculty with their knowledge, experience, and interest inspire their majors for the demands of careers as business women.

What's the  World Made of?

The Chemistry and Physical Sciences Department provides students with an understanding of everyday phenomena. Courses in Organic Chemistry, Physics, and Biochemistry prepare chemistry majors for graduate school and exciting careers in pharmacy, medicine, research, engineering, or textiles. The enthusiasm of the faculty guides students through the demands of lectures and laboratory work.

CHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT. Vergean Birkin, Carol Kepler, Charles Lewis, Reginald Shiflet, Chairman.

LECTURE TIME. Dr. Kepler prepares to deliver a lecture on biochemistry.

Learning To Teach

0ne of Meredith's most popular department is education. Students combine getting a teacher's certificate with every other major offered at Meredith - the most popular of these being psychology, sociology, and religion. Education majors cite their favorite course as educational psychology. They also say that they enjoy the faculty in the department who inspire them to become the best teachers they can be.

CLASS DEMONSTRATIONS Dr. Johnson demonstrates a technique for classroom discipline with the aid of Lisa Loftis and Too Johnson.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT. Seated: Norma Rose, Sarah English, Louise Taylor, Virginia Steinmetz. Standing: lone Knight, Susan Gilbert, Betty Brewer, Chairman; Donald Samson.

LOVE OF LITERATURE. Dr. Taylor's love of literature shines through dur-

To Major In English

Some popular answers as to why students chose to major in English at Meredith are: I enjoy reading and studying great literature; I really like the teachers; because I knew I wanted to write; I wanted to learn more about literature, and I chose it out of enjoyment." From these students majoring in English came some very important advice, the most popular of which was to be self-disciplined and to love literature.

Of the variety of courses offered to an English major, Shakespeare, Advanced Grammar & Composition, Milton, and Creative Writing seem to be favorites. Overall, Kay Murphy thinks that this major teaches you more than how to read or to write papers or to conjugate verbs: it teaches you how to learn. ing her enthusiastic lectures.

In Other Tongues

$W$ hen asked why she chose to major in a foreign language Geri Lancaster said, "I've always been interested in foreign languages and I intend to enter the field of travel industry after graduation - French seemed to be a good start." As far as her favorite courses offered in this major, Geri especially enjoyed the Seminar on Realism and Symbolism, and the literature courses. But she adds that one majoring in a foreign language should be prepared to write lots of papers! A Spanish major thought that this would be a useful major as a complement to her business major. She thinks that one entering this major should concentrate on speaking and reading abilities. Thus foreign languages could complement any other major as well.

MODERN EQUIPMENT. Dr. Holt makes use of the Foreign Language Laboratory for his French class.

TAKING A BREAK from her hectic schedule in both the Foreign Languages Department and the Art Department. Miss Short lunches in the dining hall.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES DEPARTMENT. Burgande Winz, Ann Kurtz, Chairman; William Ledford, Nona Short, Brent Pitts.

Looking To The Past

Whaki Parks has advice for women considering a major in history: "be knowledgeable in other areas of study". Other history majors also think that it is very important. Judy Chandler feels "equipped to do research and analyze in a historical perspective. This is not easy to market as a career; however, it is applicable in countless areas." Most history majors minor in other fields of study such as Political Science and Business Administration. Two favorite courses offered at Meredith are Colonial American History and Foreign Relations.

HISTORY DEPARTMENT. Seated: Carolyn Grubbs, Carolyn Happer, Rosalie Gates. Standing: Charles Stewart, Frank Grubbs, Chairman; Tom Parramore.

MUNCHING OUT. Dr. Stewart doesn't spend all of his time in political science classes but enjoys a faculty reception.

DEPARTMENT CHAIRMAN Frank
Grubbs is renowned for many of his Grubbs is renowned for many of his imitations during his history lectures.

Is In!

Suzy Homemaker has been wiped out. Professionalism is in with the Meredith College Home Economics Department as the faculty prepares women for careers in home economics. Meredith home economics majors believe that home economics is a rapidly expanding profession. They most often minor in business to provide a versatile range of careers. Mary Lynn Hinsley, who plans to attend graduate school after Meredith, says "the Home Economics Department at Meredith does a fantastic job of preparing women for occupations in the, field of home economics." Marriage and the Family, Fashion Fundamentals, and Nutrition are among the favorite courses taken by women majoring in home economics.

No Math Anxiety Here

Most math majors at Meredith think that there are many career opportunities open for women with majors in math. Of the surveyed math majors, most seem to think that a teaching certificate will be a great benefit to their careers. They also think that a variety of math courses are offered at Meredith. Among these favorite courses are Linear Algebra and Calculus 211. Ann Fordham commented that "Math is a hard road, but well worth it." One math major offers a bit of advice to prospective math majors: "Don't be afraid of majoring in math."

MATH DEPARTMENT Martha Bouknight, Dorothy Preston. Ed Wheeler, Chaiman: Olive Taylor, Vivian Kraines.

IS MATH FINITE? Mrs. Taylor taught a finite math course this year, proving to math students that math problems don't have to be infinite!

A Display of Talents

6 "Practice hard, be dedica, ted, and never give up" is the advice given by Phyllis Stallings to prospective music majors. Because the Music Department is so demanding at Meredith, Johnette Frazier thinks that she is "ready to face the career world." Theory and private lessons seem to be two of the favorite music courses offered at Meredith. Most music majors choose to major in this field because they enjoy music, and as Carol Hawkins says "There are a lot of different job opportunities for musicians - not just school music teachers."

MUSIC DEPARTMENT. Front Row: Martha Abemathy, Alice Goode, Anita Burt Back Row: Phyllis Garriss, James Clyburn, David Lynch, Chairman.

This spring the Meredith community was saddened by the death of Mrs. Jane Sullivan. Mrs. Sullivan was a favorite member of the Music Department for many years.

MUSIC LESSONS. Brock Downward works with organ student Paula Godfrey on an important piece of music.

Get In Shape

6 Reing involved in P.E helps you keep a healthy body and enables you to relate to others." This is the view of one Meredith student who has been involved in many P.E. courses including, her favorites: WSI, Tennis, and Modem Dance I & II. Students participating in the P.E. curriculum offered at Meredith think that one has to be willing to learm many new ways to participate in sports; as well as willing to exercise and to work.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT. Deborah Whelan, Helena Alen, Luke Huggins, Marie Chamblee, Christa Pritchard, Cindy Bross.

BEING A COACH. In addition to her responsibilities as a P.E. teacher, Ms. Chamblee also coaches the basketball team.

HOLD YOUR BREATH. Mrs. Allen gives some final instructions to her swimming class before they head into the pool.

Be OpenMinded!

One of the reasons that Meredith psychology majors choose this field is an interest in people and their behavior. The Department of Psychology offers a variety of courses, yet Psychology of Sex Roles and Developmental Psychology seem to be the favorites among people majoring in psychology at Meredith. "Be open-minded!" is the advice Carla Barker gives to people entering this field. Carla says "there are not many hard facts therefore, thinking divergently about cause and effect is important."

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT. Teresa Cross, Jack Huber, Chairman: Rosemary Hornak, Marie Mason.

psych. courses at Meredith and is usually taught by Dr. Hornak.

Interest in Theology

Studying in the Department of Religion at Meredith is viewed as a challenge by many religion majors. Most people (when asked) said that they chose a major in religion because of an interest in theol ogy. Kelly Lennon offers advice for anyone entering this major - "Come with an open mind, be prepared to read a great deal and change your attitudes many times - it's fun!" The favorite courses of those interviewed were Old and New Testament and the Seminars. The majors feel that the religion professors are very helpful and have guided them so that they are well prepared for their careers.

EXAM TIME! Dr. Vance passes out an exam to Kelley Stone in a philosophy class.

FROM THE BIBLE. Dr. Crook prepares to begin his lecture with passages from the Bible.

Interested in People?

Meredith's Department of Sociology and Social Work offers a major in sociology and a certificate in social work. According to Cheryl Heath "many people choose sociology or social work because of their interest in people." Connie Elliott thinks that someone entering this field should "have a genuine love of people - all kinds with all problems, and you need to be ready to undergo a few heartaches and enrichments." Patricia Mixen credits the professors in the department: "it is a hard-working department that prepares you for your future career very well."

PRINCIPLES OF SOCIOLOGY, taught by Dr. Tucker, provides sociology majors with a basis of knowledge for other courses.

Acorn

TChe Acorn, Meredith's literary magazine, is published twice a year by students interested in literature, layout, and design. Anyone can join the staff; and, according to editor Felicia Stewart, it is a good way to gain experience in publishing and creative writing. It also gives Meredith students a chance to see their writing and art work in print.

Aqua Angels

If you love swimming, then the Meredith synchronized swimming team is the place for you. Tryouts are held twice a year for interested persons, and members take part in occasional workshops and demonstrations during the year. The highlight of every year is the spring synchronized swimming show. The Aqua Angels are coached by Sandi Sappenfield.

66 Je builds too low who Hbuilds beneath the stars" is the motto of the Astrotekton Service Club, and they try to live up to these words by serving the community throughout the year. Among the projects sponsored by the Astros are a Christmas party at the Shelley Child Development Center, a teacher roast for multiple sclerosis, and the used book sale here at Meredith. President Donna Griffin is particulary pleased with the number of pledges who joined this year and states seeing the group grow and its members become more active and enthusiastic as the best benefits she could hope for the club.

ASTROS: FRONT ROW: Lynn Powell, Vanessa Stephens, Abby Nobles, Tern Yaun, secretary-treasurer; Carla Fowler, Anne Colbourn, Sharon Wooten. SECOND ROW: Karen Sutton, Angie Spaanbroek. ## "I Quit!"

The Oak Leaves staff, comprised of very hard workers, decided this year that the disadvantages of being on the yearbook staff were just too great. They were tired of going to staff meetings every Monday (which included two meetings if you were on the editorial bcard), not getting enough recognition on campus, having deadlines during exam week, trying to identify students in pictures, typing copy, and writing and rewriting copy for the copy editor who was tired of reading all of the messy copy. It was just too much to bear. So . . . they decided to "take the money and run." The business manager liquidated the yearbook funds; usually going toward the production of the yearbook, and instead of having a party they did something extravagant.

Each section decided where they would like to go with their money. So they secretly packed their most treasured possessions, joyfully leaving behind their blue layout sheets, green copy sheets, croppers, rulers, and typewriters. On to the RaleighDurham Airport they headed in their caravan. They all had their future destinations envisioned clearly in their minds. Staff members focused their attention on places like Africa, Hawaii, New York, London, Las Vegas, and the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn.

All was going well as the Oak Leaves staff checked their baggage and began boarding the plane. Just about this time the organizations editor tapped the editor-in-chief on the shoulder. "Jill, Jill, what are you doing?"
"Oh Mary, I must have fallen asleep checking over these final layouts. I was having the most wonderful dream about the yearbook staff. You see we decided to take a trip

All in a Season's Effort

Silence reigned as the deciding point was served. Then pandemonium broke loose as the ball hit the floor, giving Meredith its first victory ever over our state's top-ranked team North Carolina Wesleyan. Aftervards, an exuberant Marie Chamblee, coach of the volleyball team, described the match. "We played the most aggressive, intense games I have seen a Meredith team play. It was an outstanding match and most definitely the most exciting win for me since I have been at Meredith."

Prior to this win the Angels had a season of ups and downs. While the team played "more effectively as a unit" than in the past, Assistant Coach Cindy Bross believed "our main weakness was a lack of confidence in ourselves. We seem to choke when we are ahead or when the game is close." Nevertheless, the 1981 Volleyball team posted an overall record of 11 12 and a division record of 11 4. Several players excelled throughout the season. Fay Bryant, Lynn Ward, and Ginger Ratcliff stunned various opponents with their powerful spiking, the strongest element of the Angel offense. Ratcliff was also chosen Most Valu-able-Player by her teammates.

As a result of these efforts and an undying team spint, this year's team travelled to the Regional Tournament in Midway, Kentucky as North Carolina's top rank in the AIAW- Division III. While the Angels lost the games by very narrow margins, both coaches attributed this to lack of expenience in regional play. Yet the team played exceptionally well and ended the season satisfied with their enormous achievements.

Ats expected, the 1981 Fall Tennis Team opened its season with two explosive victories over Wingate and Methodist. The Angel Netters had high aspirations for an undefeated season and indeed, were well on their way. But the unexpected happened. Manning Winslow, the top-seeded player, was side-lined for the remainder of the season due to a broken finger during a match at UNC-G. As a result, the team temporarily lost its momentum and lost the next match. But after Coaches Jack Huber and Jim Johnson revised the team's line-up and strategy, the Angels regained their composure and their winning status by crushing St.

The fall team expects to have the majority of its players come out for spring competition. Both coaches projected continuing success for the team in the spring. They also felt that players Rhett Ellerbe and Jean Lancaster would be key contenders and players to watch for, as well as the return of Manning Winslow.

Record Is No Reflection of Ability

History has a way of repeating itself; however, the circumstances often differ. This was the case with the 19811982 Meredith Basketball Team. The team had an inconsistent season, posting an overall record of 6-12, that was comparable to that of the previous year. However, the season was much more competitive than statistics indicate; five of the six games lost were only by six points or less. The team also played with determination, but could not overcome certain weaknesses depriving them of a winning season. Yet, Coach Marie Chamblee praised her players for their effective pressing defense. Senior forward Alisa Robertson received the Most Valuable Player award for her contribution in rebounding (average 9), scoring (average 12 ), and most steals. Joining Robertson in commendation for outstanding play was sophomore Clare Lynn Brock, and seniors Sharon Sawyer and Renee Neighbors.

This year's team may very well have made history for themselves by scoring 100 points in an overwhelming defeat against Davidson County Community College. Another highlight of the season found the Angels playing an "exceptionally good game all-round" against St. Andrews, a topranked contender. The team had battled and overcome an 18 point deficit in the second half to pull within two points when teammate Robertson sustained an injury from a blocking call, sending her to the sidelines and St. Andrews to the foul line with less than 30 seconds remaining in the game to give them a victory. Coaches Chamblee and newcomer Ginger Barfield commended the Angels for a well-played game.

Caught on the Upswing a Return to the Nationals

After sweeping up second place in the AIAW Division III National Golf Championship in Sioux City, Iowa, the 1981 Meredith Golf Team returned to Raleigh elated and relieved. Since this was the first time ever that a Meredith team participated in a National Tournament, it was especially exciting to have Luann Johnson named as an All-American finishing fifth individually with a score of 332. Joining Johnson in honors was Peggy Dee Williford, who placing ninth overall, established a new sin-gle-day school record of 79. Coach Fred Thompson lauded his team's success: "I can't say enough about how great this year's team has been and how well they have represented Meredith.

But not resting on its laurals from the previous year, the golf team began preparing for the 1981-82 season. First of all, the golfers had to adjust themselves to several changes. The loss of Coach Thompson midway through the season and the addition of a new coach, Ginger Barfield, required some adjustments.

Then the golfers had to get used to playing with only four players instead of five which created an extreme amount of pressure. Coach Barfield explained that the top four of five scores are counted each day; thus, the team "cannot afford for anyone to have an off day." Since all play is tournament play there is no real record, but scoring averages. While sophomore Luann Johnson led the team with an average of 81 , junior Kathy Reibsamen averaged a score of 87 . Freshman Cathy Everett, who also showed the most individual improvement, posted a 90 for the season, while teammate Edie Hancock followed close behind with a 91.

The team is really excited about its second trip to the Na tionals which will be played June 16-19 in Wilmington, N.C. The golfers played on that course in April and shot their most consistent rounds of the season. Coach Barfield felt that "the golfers played well on that course, and are expecting to have their games in top form by June 16 ."

ALL-AMERICAN Luann Johnson displays proper form which helped guide the team to their second place victory in the Nationals.

Angels Strike Out with Unsuccessful Season

6 ' Tt's not whether you win, or lose until you lose." And the 1982 Meredith Softball Team had plenty of experience at losing gracefully this season. Coach Cindy Bross felt that "the team, as a whole, had a great deal to learn fundamentally" which could be the main reason that the Angels struggled to post a final record of 3-16. Bross expressed optimism for next season because most of the team would return with a little experience and better developed skills. Yet, the season was not all mishaps. The team played exceptionally well, offensively and defensively, in a doubleheader against home team NC-Wesleyan until the last inning where two Angel errors caused Wesleyan to rally from behind to overtake the game by one run.
While the team lacked consistency as a whole, several players ment recognition for their play. Sophomore Jil Humberger was selected Most Valuable Player, as well as most improved by her teammates. Hamberger's all-round playing ability benefited the team greatly. Seniors Sharon Sawyer and Renee Neighbors took honors for defensive and offensive play, respectively. Sawyer posted a fielding average of .952 while Neighbors finished out the season with a batting average of .389 . Even though Coach Bross is uncertain about next year's team, because of the loss of several key players, she can reflect back on the 1982 season as a season for growth and perhaps a new beginning.

Game, Set, Match

Once again a familiar petite figure darted across the tennis courts correcting awkward strokes, re-evaluating strategies, and most of all, lending support to her players. Yes, Tennis Coach Jay Massey had returned to the courts from a sabbatical to guide the 1982 Spring Tennis Team to a record of 5-2. Top-seeded Manning Winslow rejoined the team after being side-lined in the fall from an injury. However, the team was disappointed upon learning that Winslow would be unable to participate in the regional tournament, and thus she de cided to forego the state tournament to allow her teammates the opportunity to gain experience of playing at a higher position. Nevertheless, the Angels captured top honors in the NCAIAW Division III State Tournament which was held at Meredith and St. Mary's. The team then travelled to Fredericksburg. Virginia May 6-8 to play in the regionals at Mary Washington College where they came in sixth place. "I feel the team played very well against some tough competition and since they were playing out of position, they felt pleased to win sixth place," explained Coach Massey.

Impressive records for the season were those of seniors Lynn Hurt (14-2), Alisa Robertson (13-2), and sophomore Jean Lancaster (10-5). Coach Massey felt that "it was an appropriate 'Swan Song' for these three, who will be leaving, to have achieved their best records in their last season of play on the team." Yet, the nucleus of the team will return in the fall giving the Angels as optimistic outlook for a successful season.

PICKING UP HER BAG, Leigh Mauney realizes that she is finally at Meredith College.

MOVING IN. Fathers get the chance to lend a much needed helping hand during the moving process.

My Bags Are Packed. Am I Ready To Go?

For the second year in a row, Mary Jane Johnson and Nancy Small packed (into the back of the Volvo and Mercedes) their boxes of beach music albums, a stereo, Levis, Polos, pink and green dresses, pictures of their boyfriends (Jim and Larry), old pictures that they might want to hang up, and towels and sheets. They were going "light" this year.

Moving-in day, August 23 (August 20 for freshmen) started off with a bang for them. Jim and Larry arrived forty-five minutes late for the starting of the caravan. Mary Jane and Nancy tried to overlook that fact because they were just too excited about seeing their old suitemates, new suitemates, and friends, to think about something so trivial. Finally the crew piled into the cars one last time. They were on their way to M.C.

An hour later, the Johnsons, the Smalls, and Jim and Larry drove down the long road to Johnson Hall. Mr. Shattuck, the well known M.C. security guard, was doing his duty and directed them to a parking place. Luckily, it was close to Brewer, since Mary Jane and Nancy were living on the second floor there.

Everyone piled out of the two cars. The trunk lids popped up, and the boxes were stacked on the ground. Nancy and Mary Jane were nowhere to be found, for they had bolted up to second Brewer to see Sarah, Becky, Carol, and the other group of now sophomores. Meanwhile, Jim and Larry made their first trip upstairs carrying a load ranging from stuffed animals, to last summer's beach pictures, to stereo speakers. While searching for room two-thirteen, they were dodged by Meredith Angels carrying their own bags and boxes. Finally they discovered the room, its door standing open, they dumped the junk on the beds. The parents followed close behind with four more armfuls. Mary Jane and Nancy greeted Jim, Larry, and their parents as they walked out of the room. Nancy introduced Larry and Jim to her new suitemate at a speed of at least ten miles an hour.
Nancy grabbed Mary Jane's arm and took off towards the other end of the hall, leaving Jim and Larry to wander down the hall towards the parking lot.
By twelve o'clock, the men were $\mathrm{s}-1-\mathrm{o}-\mathrm{w}-1-\mathrm{y}$ trudging up to the second floor. "How much more stuff?" they wondered. Larry commented that he'd never known any two women to bring so much to school with them - not even his whole family had as much as those two. The men vaguely remembered Mary Jane and Nancy making one trip to their room about two hours back carrying posters of Jimmy Buffett.

The room looked like a trash receptacle. There wasn't an empty space on the floor, the desk, or either bed. The rest was for Mary Jane and Nancy to sort out - wherever they were

Have "First

 Encounters" at MeredithD ear Mom and Dad,
Remember that long meeting we went to in Jones Auditorium on August twentythird when faculty members spoke to us about finally making it to good ole' M.C.? Well, that was only a first. After leaving y'all I began my long, tiring, and yes! ... exciting orientation week.

I went to hall meetings after hall meetings, meetings with my faculty advisor and student advisor, on a treasure hunt around campus (that's when I got my exercise for the whole month of September), and last but not least, to President Weems's home. The new long dress y'all bought me finally was put to use that Sunday night.

Can you image all of the freshmen in long dresses riding chartered Cat buses? Well, it was a lot of fun getting to meet the president himself and our future professors.

This has been one hectic but memorable week - as y'all can probably tell. Right now I am about to drop dead, and I think I'll try to catch some Z's.

Love,
Your new Angel

PICKING UP PHONES is an important part of the first day of school.

REGISTRATION in Johnson Hall was required for freshmen before they could move in

PANIC Is the Word

Registration may seem easy to the Meredith women who have experienced it before. For freshmen, however, registration may seem well, not so simple after all. August twenty-fifth, nineteen eighty one brought not only another hot summer day, but also freshmen orientation groups invading the library at scheduled times. Early and midmorning groups had a wider variety of classes to choose from than afternoon orientation groups. By two o'clock p.m. a majority of classes was closed, except for those dreadful eight o'clocks. Students fumbled their way through the lines changing and rechanging their schedule many times. By late afternoon students clutched a computer print out sheet containing "desired" schedules.

MEREDITH WOMEN pick up computer printout schedules after registration.

BOOKS AND MORE BOOKS: Between classes and other school activities, students had to find time to buy their books for the 1981-82 school year.

ANXIOUS STUDENTS await their turn in line.

Science And Religion

$A^{r}$re science and religion in-ter-related? George K. Schweitzer is an alumni distinguished professor of chemistry at the University of Tennesse. Conducting a convocation, weekly lectures, and a special course, Dr. Schweitzer raised many questions in the minds of the Meredith community. How are technology and pure science related? What ethical questions surround technological innovation? Through studying major scientific, engineering, and technological discoveries over the past four centuries and through lectures and films, Dr. Schweitzer challenged us in many ways.

Groundbreaking

Friday morning, September twenty-fifth, students, faculty, trustees, and friends gathered for the groundbreaking of the Shearon Harris Building. Mr. Harris was a ten year member on the board of trustees. Robert Bryan, Chairman of the Building and Grounds Committee on the Board of Trustees, conducted the ceremony. President Weems and other staff members made comments. Members of the Harris family were present, and a ceremonial shovel was presented to them. Progress continues on the Shearon Harris Building, with hopes that it will be completed by Fall 1982 for use by the Department of Business and Economics and the Department of Mathematics.

Spot Light On Cornhuskin' '81

Well, it's finally here, the big night when we find out who wins Cornhuskin ' 81 ! It seemed as though it would never get here - but it did. I have a great spot this year. . I'm one of the main lights and can see everything from here! Oh, the noise, how could I have forgotten?! My ears! I am sure surprised all these girls don't have sore throats by now. Shh- shh-. It's about to begin ... A werewolf No, not really, it's just Julie Hennis, the MC for the evening. Boy, it sure is packed in here - girls on the seats, chairarms, the floor, and some standing! Oh, here it goes ... it's a bit harder to see now, I'm not as bright as I used to be. My favorite - the parades! Ha ha, those Freshmen sure did a good job. Oh, and the Sophomores too. Ha ha ... boy, those "rats" are sure funny! And the seniors New York Broadcast - great! I'm glad I am not one of those judges. Too much hard work, yes siree -. Tall Tales are next! I like them second best. Let's see ... a big red balloon wanting sympathy for all her abuse ...? That was the Freshmen. I don't know! Here's the Soph-omores-Oh, isn't she cute, a little baby $\mathbf{X}$ chromosome! She's a tough one! A mouse, or rather - a rat trap, ha ha how cute. I'd hate to be caught by that trap! And now the Senior's, the Statue of Liberty. Ha ha, I never knew she was so funny. I guess she'd have to be with all that goes on with her! Ha ha ha. How could I forget - Dr. Cochran! A bit different this year. He has changed from a fairy god father to a country western singer! What will happen next I ask you?

X CHROMOSOME. Grace Ackers told the story of how she came to be as she portrayed a X chromosome for the Sophomore's tall tale.

HOG-CALLING. And "the tenth little piggy went to China for chop suey," said Nancy Murphy, Freshman hogcalling leader.

BEST PACK. The big sister class of '83, with their banner, "The Best Pack Is A Rat Pack." lines the sidewalk for their little sisters to pass through.

TEARIED EYED. Seniors were near tears as they sang to their Little Sisters and realized this was their last Comhuskin'

GETTING STARTED. Weeks of planning and many practices finally come together as the Sophomores prepare to start their parade.

STUFFED RATS. Junior rats, Kim Metts and Stephanie Georgallis contemplate the upcoming Comhuskin' competetion.

GO LUCY. Fay Bryant cheer Lucy Pittard on as she races to shuck her ten ears of corn " $83-85$ ". Freshmen come out in full force for their first Comhuskin'.

Finally Memories

To sum up Comhuskin '81 one might include: Janice 85; yelling " $82-84$ "' or " 83 $85^{\prime \prime} \ldots$ screaming chants from the breezeways waterfights . . . toilet paper in the courtyard ... storming through rivals dorms banging with pots and pans or whatever is in hand ... many late meetings in Jones Auditorium ... no sleep headaches from all the screaming in the cafeteria ... getting our class shirts . . . the picnic in the courtyard ... all the food . . . the plane with the banner "Seniors go for it!" ... last minute costume adjustments ... waiting forever to be seated in Jones ... and then to be seated on an arm ... anticipation ... more screaming and yelling, another headache ... the parades . . . the tall tales . . . our Big Sister and Little Sister songs . . . tears . . . the fairy godfather changing to a country and western singer . . . hog callin' $\ldots$ applebobbin cornhuskin ... the Bathtub Ring ... CP\&L . . . the judges the BIG moment fourth place to Freshmen ... third place to Sophomores ... second place to Juniors disappointment . . . first place to Seniors! . . . screaming . . tears ... hugs ... parties at Tuts and Zacks . . . and finally ... Memories!

WHILE WAITING for the judges to return the Bathtub Ring helped to pass the time by leading in singing.

BEFORE THE RIVALRY of Cornhuskin started, all the classes gathered for a night of shagin' to the beach music of Janice.

STATUE OF LIBERTY. It is not as easy and glamorous as it would appear to be as Alisa Robertson, who portrayed the statue for the Senior's tall tale, told us.

CHANGING HIS IMAGE. The fairy god father, otherwise known as Dr. Cochran, decided to try his luck as a country-western singer.

Went Fine

Until

This fall Meredith presented its fall drama - Once Upon a Mattress, a fifteenth century comic love story. Wendy Stanley starred as Princess Winnefred, who through the cleverness of Queen Agravain, Phyllis Stallings, finally won the hand of Prince Dauntless. The practices, ticket sales and dress rehearsals all went fine. In fact, all was fine up until Sunday's performance. It was during the opening number no less, that the word came . . . there had been a bomb threat! Suddenly, the lights were turned out. Yet the cast kept singing. Security then made the announcement and asked everyone to evacuate the building. Members of the cast and audience waited outside while police and security guards searched the building. Some people were not too patient and left, while others stayed to see the finish of the musical. Once Upon a Mattress was indeed a hit.

ANXIOUSLY WAITING. Members of the cast waited over an hour before they were able to re-enter Jones Auditorium and finish their musical.

PROVING HERSELF to be a true princess, one small pea keeps Princess Winnefred, Wendy Stanley, awake all night.

COURT LADIES. Lillian Dickson Betty Lynn Walters, and Dana Warren capture the audience's attention through a song.

Diet? What's that?

Food, food and more food! There is no better way to describe Meredith's annual Thanksgiving Dinner. This year's feast was no exception. On Thursday, November 19, a bountiful feast, prepared by the cafeteria staff was placed before the eyes of many hungry Angels. While the marshals escorted students to the buffet line, visions of slender bodies disappeared from the minds of all. The usually diet-crazed students heaped delicious piles of ham, turkey, dressing, greenbeans, salad, and bread on their plates. Then the students hovered over the dessert tables, pondering whether Pumpkin pie, German chocolate cake, or a strawberry delight would taste best. All thoughts of calories were forgotten. At Meredith's Thanksgiving Dinner, the word diet had no meaning.

SMILING FACES. Women from third

STUDENTS STILL have room on their plates for one more piece of ham.

OK, IT'S YOUR TURN. Celia Home leads more angels to the buffet line.

Parent's Weekend

"Hi Mom, Hi Dad, so glad you could come!" (If you had stayed home I could have gone to the State game!) "So you think the room looks great, huh?"' (You should see how it usually looks!), "Sure it's always this clean." (Ha! Ha!) "The closets? Yeah, they're really spacious." $(\mathrm{OH}$ NO! If she opens the closet, I'll never get it closed again!), "Take my word for it, Mom." (That was close!) "Oh you think my bed would look better over there, and my desk over there?" (Gosh, I'll never find anything!) "I guess you are right." (As usual! Why does she always have to do this?) "Yeah, maybe we should to lunch first. Pizza?" (I only eat pizza three times a week!) "Play volleyball afterwards? Sure." (Yeah, all I need is some good exercise. Yuk!! "What? You would like to meet some of my teachers?" (l'm in big trouble now! ' 'Zack's? Oh, it's just a little dance place; nobody goes there." (YOU want to go!

I should have known.) "But I thought that you said you were leaving tonight?" (There goes my big date!)
"Well, it's getting late. Maybe you all should go back to the hotel and get some rest." (Please??) "Okay, I'll see you in the morning." (Maybe I'll get to go out after all!)
"Huh? Hello? Oh! Good morning. 20 minutes? Sure, 1 can be ready then." (I'll never make it!) "Bye." Why do they always have to be early? Why can't they be late for a change?
"Pig Pickin'? Sure, 1 was planning on going." (Will they ever leave?) "Really ,Mom, I can't eat another bite." (I think Im, going to be sick!) "Please don't make me eat anymore."
"What? You're leaving? Really?? I mean, do you have to? Oh yes, I've had a great time! Of course l'll miss you! Sure, I'll be good. I'M always good!! (They don't call us Meredith devils for nothing!) "Bye-Bye" WHEW! What a Weekend!

DRESSED FOR the occasion, Kelley Stone and Laura Moore joined the fun at Cate Crash.

CHRISTMAS WAS celebrated in many ways all over campus. One common occurence was the everpopular Hall Party. Granted, some parties were more elaborate than others with Christmas trees and decorations, but fellowship, fun, and food were in abundance at all parties. One of the highlights was finally finding out who Secret Santa really was when gifts were exchanged.

AFTER SEEING the dessert table most everyone put their diets off until an indefinite "tomorrow.

THE DINING HALL staff prepared and served a scrumptious Christmas Dinner.

CHRISTMAS DINNER was served 5 December and was enjoyed by all.

A Meredith Christmas Carol

(Sung to the tune of "Chestnuts Roasting On An Open Fire")

The Lovefeast set the mood for Christmas time. Folks of all faiths gathered to worship their God through song in J. Hall while candlelight spread His love.

Many people came to Cate, to see Santa Claus, decorate cookies or make s'mores. A tiny tot pulled Santa's beard off while he read stories to us all.

Everybody knows Belk's food is best for Christmas dinner, and that's the time to check the styles: Folks dress up to eat and then sing songs to their teachers in the cold.

The dance was fun for everyone, although people didn't stay too long - girls asked their dates, made the plans, paid the bills, decided the parties to go to.

Every hall was decorated for Christmas time. Secret Santas gave neat gifts. Hall parties were great fun for everyone then girls were excited to go home.

And now I'm sending you this simple phrase, to classes eighty-two to eighty-five, although it's been said many times many ways, Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas Day!
"CHASER" PROVIDED musical entertainment for the Christmas Dance, 5 December.

DRESSED TO the max, many Meredith students and their dates enjoyed the dance.

TERESA CINDY, and LYNN made a welcomed appearance at Cate Crash.
"THE LITTLEST ANGEL" loved Cate Crash so much that she tried several times to take Santa Johnson's beard home with her.

EVERYONE WHO attended Cate Crash was eligible for the many prizes given away throughout the night.

Bears and Stars

6 6 t's finally here . . . bears land stars are everywhere! On January 19, the Phi Service Club decorated the freshmen halls with pictures of their mascot, Milton the bear. And in the cafeteria, blue and white streamers signaled the students that it was Phi Day. At the Phi rush party, the Bathtub Ring, a traditional Phi singing group serenaded prospective members. Old members introduced the officers and explained the Phi service project, "Pals for Palsy", while everyone enjoyed brownies. The Phis recruited 31 new members, and they were ready for another active year.

On Wednesday January 20, hundreds of yellow paper stars shone brightly in the cafeteria for Astro Day. The Astros went through the freshmen residence halls singing Astro songs. At the rush party, the prospective members were told the Astro motto, "He builds too low who builds beneath the stars", and they were also taught Astro songs by two officers who were dressed up like their mascot, the billy goat. Everybody was served yellow lemonade, cake, and ice cream while being told about the Astro service projects - such as the Shelley School for handicapped children and fundraising activities for muscular dystrophy. The Astors recruited 31 new members, and they're reaching for the stars.

Meredith Blanketed In Angel Dust

Few phenomena, whether natural or man-made, succeed in halting the academic processes at Meredith College. This year, though, an exception to this rule materialized. The snow began to fall on Wednesday, January 13. Excitement rose on every hall on campus. Soon the ground was blanketed in the white fluff. Snow "Things" began to pop up everywhere - snow people, snow animals, snow forts. Snow balls flew. People slid across campus on conventional sleds, trays, or any other available surfaces. On Thursday the snow continued to fall, and everyone began to wonder if the outside world would ever be accessible again. Bob "WeBardelaben was constantly "Wired for weather" and kept Raleigh informed of the situation. Then the miracle happened: about 3:30 p.m., while many angels were watching GH , Bob flashed on the TV screen to give us the best news of the week. Yes, Friday classes were cancelled. Screams for joy were heard everywhere. The long weekend gave everyone chances to get caught up, to get ahead, to go to parties, to sleep, or to recuperate from a grueling first week of classes.

THE ANGEL FARM was blanketed in snow for several days in January.

BEACH-BOUND SNOWMAN: Among the snow things that appeared on campus, one of the creations was made by Maribeth Williams, Beverly Stytz, Melanie Carowan, and Karen Sutton.

MENANCING SNOW DRAGON: Sharon Rinker, Molly Batten, Mary Linda Grantham, and Jill Sumner were the creators of this work of art.

Through Our Eyes

Black Emphasis Week was celebrated during February 8 through 12 in recognition of the contributions of black Americans to our nation. The co-chairpersons of the week's events were Jennifer McNair and Cynthia Washington of Black Voices in Unity. The week's activities began with an opening convocation led by guest speaker Waltye Rasulala of WRAL-TV. St. Augustine's Dance Troupe entertained on Tuesday. The Reverend Cynthia Hale, chaplain at the Federal Correction Center, delivered the message for Wednesday's worship service, and a faculty-staff Poetry Reading also highlighted this special week.

BEW - February 8 -12 provided Cynthia Washington and Reverend Hale a chance to enjoy singing activities.

SINGING TALENT is displayed by Deborah Nesbiit during BEW.

Street Scene: February 12-13, 19-20

TThe Meredith College Department of Music and the Performing Arts presented Elmer Rice's dramatic musical Street Scene on February 1213 and 19-20. This two-act play was a combination of orchestral music and the realities of daily life in a lower class apartment building in New York City.

The set was an elaborate two-story building. This set was especially realistic because it allowed the audience to see the action through the upstairs and downstairs windows. The costumes were typical of lower class dress in the 1960's.

Director Bob Wharton, Musical Director Jim Marshall, and Scenic and Lighting Designer John Martin led the cast through two successful weekend performances. Meredith students Julie Michael, Wendy Stanley, and Betty Lyn Walters had major roles. Raleigh actor Timothy Gordon also contributed to the dramatic appeal of Street Scene.

The play was a thoughtprovoking experience. It is certain that the audience enjoyed the intensity of Street Scene.

Founders' Day:

 Tradition!The first occasion for seniors to wear their caps and gowns was February 26, 1982, Founders' Day. Organ music preceded the invocation by Dr. Crook. Tributes were given to the early founder by Everett L. Henry and to the contemporary founder by Dr. Weems. The keynote speaker was Leon C. Martel, who gave insight into women's futures through his topic: "Today's Woman: Tomorrow's World.' The assembly ended with the singing of the Alma Mater.

EXCITEMENT FILLED THE AIR as seniors prepared for Founders' Day activities.

"YOU'VE COME A LONG WAY BABY." Dr. Leon Martel used this ex pression to sum up the progress that women have made thus far.

Stunt ' 82

Stunt ' 82 , an exciting evening of class competition, was held Wednesday night, February the twenty-fourth, in Jones Auditorium.

As the classes came into Jones Auditorium, all were eager (and maybe a bit nervous) to present their skits and hopeful that they would win. After everyone was seated, Sharon Sawyer, president of MRA and MC for the evening, came out and opened Stunt ' 82.

The Freshman skit was first. It was a take off on Charlie's Angels called "The Bod Squad." The skit went very well and had great casino scenes and an exciting show girl dance.

The Sophomore skit was called "Nightmare: Impossible." In the skit, Grace Akers was a Meredith Angel who had a wild, hilarious nightmare about such things as cafeteria food, English, and roommates.
"Too Loud" was the title of the Junior skit and the theme of this very funny telethon take off. Lynn Tesh played Strip Lipperman, the MC of the telethon for Dicibilosis. Also appearing was Joni Parker tap dancing as a heart beat. An attempt at entertainment was provided by the Mouthman Tabernacle Choir.

The Senior skit, a take off on the game Monopoly, was titled "Games People Play." It was a original skit of a young married couple, a mother-in-law, and a younger sister playing monopoly. The family was playing mind games with each other as well as playing the board game. In the background, members of the Senior class portrayed the spaces of the game board.

As the stage was cleared and the judges were deciding, CP&L sang for everyone. Then Sharon Sawyer came out and announced that the Freshman came in fourth place, the Juniors took third, the Sophomores came in second, and the Seniors won first place! It was an exciting night for everyone there.

TELETHON PARTICIPANTS: Laurie

EYES GLUED: Juniors: Mel Pruneau, Karen McAden, Kathy Hatz, Jerene Combs, and Cindy Shelton, watch the telethon program

DOUBLE FIVES: Seniors, Betty Arnold and Bryn Smith, play the dice in the Senior's Monopoly game.

AN ANGEL DREAMS: Grace Akers, Sophomore, has a wild nightmare in the Sophomore's Stunt. Clare Lymn Brock plays the part of a lamp, Sheri Wayne is the mirror, and Loraine Adcock is the refrigerator.

Play Time!

On Playday, for just a few hours, students can forget about their work and studying and just have a great time! They can relax, listen to music, play games, dance, rollerskate, or just act crazy! At this year's Playday, the students participated in games such as playing with the hula-hoop, the earthball, or bouncing people through the cookiebake line. The students shagged, clogged, and discoed to the music playing in the cafeteria. Students also enjoyed a courtyard picnic with delicious grilled hamburgers and hotdogs and ice-cream for dessert.

WAICH OUT as Ann Wilkerson is on the loose with a styrofoam sword, ready to attack.

HIGHER . . HIGHER. This year Meredith Angels enjoyed playing with an earthball.

ONE . . TWO ... THREE . . UP. It took some muscle to get the earthball from the parachute into the air.

EVERYONE READY? Lying in a state of tension, Pam Waters awaits as the rest get ready to fling her up into the air!

Spring Fling Flung With Success

Once spring had finally sprung, (April 25 to be exact), Meredith's Spring Fling was flung. Meredith students and their friends flocked to the ampitheater to enjoy a sunny afternoon of fun.

Various clubs and organizations sponsored booths where they sold food, bumper stickers, and t-shirts. Keybee was available to create clown faces, a piethrowing booth offered the chance to take frustrations out on professors, and canoes were available for cruising on the lake.

The biggest attraction by far, though, was Mike Cross in concert. Mike performed humorous ballads and songs while the audience enjoyed singing along or just listening. Due to the cooperative contributions of many clubs, organizations, and individuals, Meredith's third annual Spring Fling was an outstanding success.

MIKE CROSS performed a variety of songs ranging from blues to country to Irish folk tunes and played many different instruments while he sang.

THE AMPITHEATER was filled with people ready for an afternoon of fun.

POPCORN PROFITS went to Poteat and Faircloth residence halls, while tshirt profits helped to pay for Mike Cross's visit

CUSTOMERS, such as Margaret Edwards, bought and enjoyed Bagel Dogs

WHILE MONEY rolled in for those who sold them

CANOEING WAS a popular Spring Fling activity.

WIDE AWAKE. Sophomores had the tough job of trying to stay awake to make the daisy chain after nsing at 5:00 a.m. to go pick daisies.

NANCY-DIANA with a silk-ruffled blouse, new suit, split skirt, and ankle strap shoes is shown to the class by Judy Chandler.

Class Day

The Daisy Chain procession by the Class of ' 84 began Class Day for the seniors. This celebration filled with joy, and sadness, featured the reading of the Class History (complete with songs). The usual Big Sis-ter-Little Sister songs were song as the seniors presented their little sisters with sticks and stones to ward away the evil spinits of the odd classes. The Class Doll (Miss 1982) modeled her new outfit, complete with her Meredith ring! The finale of Class Day was made complete with helium balloons for each senior.

THE BANNER. Seniors hold up the banner in honor of their big sisters. This same banner was used two years earlier to honor them at their Class Day.

THE ISLAND IS COMPLETE Fol lowing the seniors onto the island with the daisy chain, the sophomores make Class Day complete

THE DAISY CHAIN was composed of ivy, roses, wildflowers and, of course, many daisies.

STICKS AND STONES Sophomores received sticks and stones reminding them to be wise and stay on top of the odd classes.

Commencement

May 16,1982 was a day of endings and beginings for the Senior Class. Their four years at Meredith were over. And with those four years behind them, each senior was ready to begin a new journey.

Three hundred and nineteen students received diplomas from President Weems and Bibles from Trustee Chairman Seby Jones. The Baccalaureate address entitled "Legacy of Risk" was delivered by Suan B. Anthony, great-neice of the suffrage leader.

In his challenge to the graduates, President Weems quoted words from the musical "Annie:" The sun will come out tomorrow - bet your bottom dollar there will be sun.

IN LINE. Paige Lewis prepares to receive her diploma as Laurie Lewis.

Diane Lindley, and Susan Lyon wait in line.

moved their tassles to the left and were seated.

Life at Meredith

Life at Meredith has changed in many ways, but many things have remained the same. The closeness of Meredith students has remained constant through the years. Louise Stephens Upchurch '54, mother of Connie Upchurch '82, described Meredith during her years as "one big family." Meredith students felt loyalty during the fifties as we do now. Duning the fifties there were room checks once or twice a week. Lights had to be out by 11:00 every night. Unlike today's angels who have televisions and radios to use in their spare time, in the fifties many students played cards in their spare time. Carolyn Compton '57, mother of Nancy Compton '84, remembers that, "Saturdays were usually days for cleaning the room" and washing clothes like today. Many students enjoyed "fixing up their rooms'" as Gwendolyn Farrier '46, mother of Michelle Farrier '83, remembers. Panty raids by State boys and fire drills gave some excitement. One rule that isn't in effect today is the no smoking rule in the residence halls. Occasionally this rule was broken by Meredith angels in the fifties.

WASHING CLOTHES. Doing laundry on Saturdays is a must if a Meredith angel wants clean clothes.

TALKING ON THE PHONE While reading a magazine and listening to the stereo, Linda Sellers talks on the phone.

TAKING A BREAK. Frances Mundy and Pauline Thompson spend their free time cross-stitching and watching their favorite soap.

Changes at Meredith

Amajor change on Meredith's campus today is the style of clothing worn by Meredith students. Today, although the preppy look is going out, many students think it will remain popular. For those many summer picnics, Meredith women have to get tans so they will look extra special in their Bermuda shorts, which were popular in the fifties.
In the fifties, styles girls wore were very important. Meredith angels then wore suits and skirts half way between the knee and ankle. Shoes that were popular were saddle oxfords and loafers. Shorts could only be worn in the quad and in gym. No pants could be worn to class. When students left campus in the fifties they were required to wear hats, gloves, and hose. For meals Wednesday evening and Sunday noon in the cafeteria, Sunday clothes were required. Today when angels go to the cafeteria we wear everything from sweatpants and shorts to Sunday clothes.
Another aspect of Meredith that has changed is the campus meal. For dinner in the fifties the large dinner bell was rung to call students to eat. On Sunday evenings bag suppers were provided, and Gwendolyn Farrier '46, mother of Michelle Farrier, remembers that meal, "was the most despised experience!" Today an added attraction to meals is the salad bar for those all important diets. Also, Domino's Pizza is called on for late night snacks.

THE PREPPY LOOK. Although some people say the preppy look is on the way out, these two angels don't think so.

DIVERSE CLOTHING. Clothing on Meredith's campus ranges from skirts and sweaters to sweatpants and tennis shoes.

STAYING ON A DIET has become a little bit easier since Meredith has a salad bar for students like Clair Clybum.

DRESSING UP TO EAT. These seniors have come to the dining hall dressed unlike most.

Since the Fifties

Many new buildings have come into existence on Meredith's campus since the fifties. One building that was an important place to go then was the old Beehive. Today many Meredith angels go to Cate Center to "hang out." Cate Center is a place for studying, dating, and eating. Another building which was new in the fifties was the Joyner classroom building. Most classes were held in wooden buildings where the senior residence halls are now located. Meredith has now added a chapel and a new business and math classroom building.

ON CAMPUS in the fifties Joyner was a new classroom building.

THE OLD BEEHIVE was a popular place to "hang out" for Meredith angels in the fifties.

ANOTHER NEW BUILDING. Cate Center took the place of the old Beehive for studying and dating when it was constructed.

CHECKING THE MAIL. In Cate Center, Meredith student, Danna Collier checks her mailbox for "air" mail.

Popular

Hangouts

Today for many Meredith angels, the popular nighttime attractions are Edward's Grocery, Crazy Zack's, and Tuts. In earlier years double dating for freshmen was the rule. Only approved dances at N.C. State could be attended. No dances were held on campus, and fraternities were off limits except on special occassions. Many church activities were popular for night life. A popular place to go during the fifties was to Roy's Drive-In, which is now the Waffle House at the end of Meredith's drive. Many angels would go there for a hamburger and just to sit around and socialize. Club meetings and movies were also popular night activities. Today Ridgewood is a popular shopping place for students.

IN THE FIFTIES, Roy's Drive-In a popular hangout stood at the end of Meredith's drive where students of the eighties see the Waffle House.

A NIGHT ON THE TOWN for some Meredith students includes a trip to Tut's.

RIDGEWOOD SHOPPING CENTER is a convenient place for Meredith students to do some shopping.

TODAY IN THE EIGHTIES Crazy Zack's is a popular place Meredith students go.

Movies, Music, Etc.

$\mathrm{M}_{\mathrm{o}}$ovies and music are as popular a part of life at Meredith today as they were in the fifties. Songs that Marilyn Greene Burris '57, mother of Mary Lynne Burris '83, remembers are "Rock Around the Clock," "Sixty Minute Man," and "I'm In The Mood For Love." Some favorite movies of Anita Hiatt Hennis '57, mother of Julie Hennis '83, were "The Bridge On The River Kwai," "Sayonara," and "Around The World In 80 Days." Today some popular movies are "Raiders of The Lost Ark," "Arthur," "On Golden Pond," and "Chariots of Fire." Some popular songs today are "Physical" by Olivia Newton-John, and themes from popular movies like the theme from "Endless Love" and the theme from "Arthur."

PREPARING TO GO OUT, Lisa Hendrick adds a few finishing touches to

POPULAR MUSIC. Today some of the favorite music groups are the Commodores and singer James Taylor.

GOLDEN TANS. Meredith angels spend much of their free time in the sun to have golden tans.
 adds those special touches before

CAUGHT BY THE FIRE ALARM this

A BEAUTIFUL SCENE. The morning fog thickens over the courtyard outside of Johnson Hall.

THE BURNING QUESTION is asked by Jeanne Puckett and Jennifer Dorman. But who are they asking?

LINES!LINES!LINES! It seems that Meredith students constantly find themselves standing in lines: in the Dining Hall, in the Business Office, and, of course, at registration.

STUDY TIME. This student finds that the hallway in Hunter is a good place to catch up on studying.

LET THE GAME BEGIN. Julie Hennis waits along side the softball field for the game to begin.

THE PROCESSION of students receiving their diplomas at graduation has begun.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE members Jeanne Puckett, Virginia Gentry, and Cindy Sellers plan Meredith's year of Awareness.

HELLO. A warm welcome is extended to the future generations of Meredith Angels.

BEFORE OUR EYES a chapel was built on campus this year. Although it was completed during the summer, students saw most of the progress including the steeple raising.

CORNHUSKIN' CHAOS. Before the event even began, Jones Auditorium was filled with hundreds of screaming women.

Asigh of relief! The final pages of the 1982 Oak Leaves have been put to rest A year of hard work (anyone on the staff will tell you that putting together a yearbook is not an easy task) is finally over. I would really like to thank the staff of the 1982 Oak Leaves - you all did a great job, and you were fun to work with! There were some staff members who went out of their way to help me this year, and they deserve special recognition. I would have never made it through the second deadline without Mary Lynn Hinsley and Anna Pearson. They worked extra hard making sure the pages we sent in were top quality. Ialso received much needed moral support from Pam Mortensen, Anna Pearson, and Mary Weathers throughout the whole year. But the staff could not have done it alone. Rachel Brown gave us much technical advice. Bill Norton and Patrice Strifert served as our able advisors this year. Joe Allegood was a great representative from Hunter Publishing Company. Vaughan Gwyn of Smith Studios provided us with some great pictures. I Ialso want to say a personal thanks to my suitemates Judy Andrews and Paula Godfrey who put up with phone calls (7:00 a.m.-12:30 a.m.) from distraught staff members, and a very special thank you to my roommate Lynda Smith who had to live most of the year (especially deadline time) in a pig pen! My parents Jane and Bill Kibler were also very supportive of all of my endeavors at Meredith (and especially the yearbook).
The responsibility of yearbook editor for the 1982-83 school year has been passed into some very responsible hands. Anna Pearson and Harriet Platts will share the duty next year as Co-Editors. They have already begun a lot of planning, and I know they have something wonderful in store for the next Oak Leaves edition!

Jill Kibler, Editor

[^0]:    A NEW DRESS CODE. With men as Meredith students, would women students wear dresses to class?
