TO: See Distribution

1. Local Japanese governmental agencies throughout Japan will hold national elections on 23 January 1949. This headquarters has been directed to provide surveillance of these elections in accordance with the plan outlined in Operational Directive Number 22, Headquarters Eighth Army, 1947, modified to meet the requirements of these particular elections.

2. Surveillance will consist of two phases as follows:

a. Phase One - Pre-election campaign surveillance in each election district with teams operating continuously. See paragraph 4 below for required teams.

b. Phase Two - Election day surveillance to begin two days prior to the election and to continue until the conclusion of the ballot counting. Required teams, to report 20 January 1949, for this phase will be designated at a later date.

3. GOC BCOF has offered the services of three teams for Hiroshima Prefecture for the pre-election phase and will furnish an undetermined number for election day surveillance. The Commanding Officer, Chugoku Military Government Region will coordinate the details of this surveillance with GOC BCOF.

4. It is desired that the Commanding Generals, 24th and 25th Infantry Divisions furnish teams for Phase One surveillance in accordance with the following requirements. Teams will report to the local military government team commander on Wednesday, 5 January 1949. All instructions pertaining to surveillance procedures will be issued to surveillance teams by the military government team concerned.

6. Divisions will furnish, in so far as possible, interpreters for these teams. In the event interpreters are not available in sufficient number to properly constitute all teams, appropriate adjustments will be effected through direct contact with the military government team commander concerned.

7. Administrative details:

a. Military Government team commanders have been instructed to support logistically all election surveillance teams which are so far from their normal supply base to preclude this support. Arrangements for billets and feeding of teams which operate in the vicinity of posts, camps, or stations where tactical troops are located should be made by the tactical commander concerned. Military government teams will arrange for billets and feeding in outlying areas.

b. Each vehicle furnished should be supplied with a full five (5) gallon can of gasoline.

c. Individuals should report with full field equipment and carry sufficient rations for the journey from home station to the military government team station.

8. Direct communication between military government teams and the tactical units concerned is authorized.

SUBJECT: Surveillance of School Board Elections

TO : See Distribution

1. Local Japanese governments throughout Japan will hold School Board Elections on 5 October 1948. Election activity will vary in different prefectures for the reason that in some instances only a prefectural school board will be elected while in other cases both prefectural and city school boards will be elected.

2. This headquarters has been directed to give surveillance to these elections in accordance with the plan outlined in Operational Directive Number 22, Headquarters Eighth Army, 1947, modified to suit these particular elections.

3. It is desired that the Commanding General, 24 25th Infantry Division, furnish surveillance teams to local military government teams in accordance with the following table:

MILITARY GOVT TEAM TO BE FURNISHED TEAMS	NUMBER OF TEAMS	REPORTING DATE
Fukuoka	24*	3 Oct
Oita	10	3 Oct
Miyazaki	10	3 Oct
Nagasaki	12*	3 Oct
Saga	6	3 Oct
Kagoshima	12*	3 Oct
Kumamoto	15*	3 Oct

*May be reduced by 10% if necessary to prevent the taking of vehicles from dead storage. If such a reduction is necessary, it is desired that the appropriate Military Government team commander be informed in advance.

4. A surveillance team consists of the following personnel and equipment:

One (1) officer or one (1) noncommissioned officer of the first three grades.

One (1) driver.

One (1) interpreter (may also be driver).

Necessary transportation (¼-ton or 3/4-ton truck)

SUBJECT: Local Government Elections

TO: See Distribution

1. References are:

a. Eighth Army Operational Directive No. 22, dated 1 March 1947, subject: "Local Government Elections".

b. Mimeographed pamphlet entitled: "Local Elections in Japan", distributed to division and Military Government representatives at the conference held at GHQ, SCAP, 6 - 11 January 1947.

c. Radio, this headquarters, Cite: KFX 1580, dated 11 March 1947, distributed to divisions and regions.

2. Within its area of responsibility, I Corps is responsible for the surveillance and observation of all features of the forthcoming local elections on 5th and 30th April 1947, to insure that they are the untrammeled expression of the will of the Japanese people. Applicable election laws and ordinances, if faithfully enforced, will assure fair and impartial elections. Direct responsibility for such enforcement rests with the Japanese "Election Administration Committees", which have been established in each local entity of government. Should above dates be changed or additional elections be ordered all concerned will be promptly notified by this headquarters.

3. Commanding Officers of Military Government Regions will direct and coordinate the election activities within their respective regions to include:

a. Informing election administrative committees, candidates and the general public in as many cities, towns and villages as possible that Occupation Forces will observe the administration of election laws from the time the campaign opens until the final results are made public.

b. Referring to the proper Japanese authorities for correction all violations or delinquencies noticed.

c. Promoting extensive publicity to the effect that violations or failure to enforce the election laws or infringement of individual liberties should be reported by anyone having knowledge of these abuses to Military Government or other Occupation Force personnel if the Japanese authorities have failed to correct the abuses.

d. Utilizing observation teams to obtain as extensive surveillance as possible throughout their area of responsibility. Where feasible, polling and counting places on election days should be visited at least twice. Insofar as possible, one Military Government officer will be stationed in each large city to assist in coordinating the activities of observation teams.

e. Orienting all Military Government and observation team personnel in the duties to be performed prior to their participation in surveillance of the campaign and elections. (See references a and b).

f. Reporting promptly by the most expeditious channels to Government Section, SCAP, all serious breaches in the administration of the election laws.

g. Submitting the required progress and summary reports. (See reference a).

4. Commanding Generals of divisions will:

a. Provide observation teams called for in the attached Annex. Personnel composing observation teams will be unarmed. Gasoline used for this mission will be reported separately to Military Government units in order that it may be charged against Military Government appropriations. (See attached Annex -- "Election Observation Teams").

b. Reinforce observation of the elections, in those metropolitan areas occupied by sizeable troop units, in order to insure the maximum coverage. Close coordination with local Military Government unit will be maintained to prevent duplication of effort.

c. Insofar as possible, dispatch the same observation teams to the same general area for the observation of subsequent elections.

d. Submit, as an Election Annex to the daily G-2 Periodic Report, information secured from intelligence agencies and Military Government teams concerning the progress of the campaign and the elections, with particular attention to:

(1) Violations of election directives.

(2) Disorders incident to the elections.

(3) Civilian attitude toward the elections.

DECLASSIFIED E.O. 12065 SECTION 3-402/NNDG NO. 775013

(4) Extent of communist participation in pre-election activity.

(5) Localities where it appears that elections will be hotly contested.

5. The accomplishment of the Corps mission in connection with the elections is of the utmost importance. It is therefore desired that Division Commanders and Commanders of Military Government units give this matter their close personal attention. On matters pertaining to these elections, direct communication between Military Government and Troop Commanders is authorized. It is particularly essential that all activities be conducted in such a manner as to comply fully with the provisions of Operational Directive No. 22, Headquarters Eighth Army, dated 1 March 1947.

2. Early contact will be established with each Military Government unit in the Division area of responsibility to effect detailed planning, assignment of teams to specific localities, and necessary reconnaisance. Report of subordinate units responsible for furnishing observation teams to each Military Government Team will be made to this headquarters by 29 March.

3. Observation teams will depart so as to arrive at the areas designated at least twelve (12) hours prior to the opening of the polls at 0700 on election day.

4. Where necessary, billets may be secured by obtaining self-explanatory transient hotel receipt forms from Military Government units concerned. To insure against their unauthorized use, unused forms will be returned to the Military Government unit concerned. Such billets do not include rations and in many cases field rations must be carried by the team.

5. Orders will be issued by appropriate tactical commanders placing officers and enlisted men on TDY with Military Government Teams for duties pertaining to the Japanese elections. Rail transportation for both personnel and vehicles may be arranged to outlying areas. Transportation Corps Section, this headquarters, may be contacted for assistance in such arrangements where required.

6. An accurate account of all gasoline and other petroleum products used by observation teams furnished by tactical troops will be kept and reported to the Military Government Team under which tactical vehicles and personnel are operating. Military Government Teams will include these amounts of POL in their Monthly Report of Consumption of Petroleum Products, Reports Control Symbol: P-21. The words "(team name) M.G. TEAM ACCOUNT" will be written on the trip-ticket for all tactical vehicles operating on this mission in order that gasoline and fuel oil products may be charged against GARIOA Funds.

ELECTION DIGEST

Most Voters Are Interested In Local Elections

By E. Kusano, Staff Writer

April is going to be a month of elections in Japan. There are a series of six different elections to take place on five different days all over the country.

They are, according to the dates of elections, as follows:

1. April 5, Saturday—Prefectural governors (including the mayor of Tokyo Metropolis and the governor of Hokkaido) and mayors of the five largest cities, city ward chiefs, town mayors, and village masters.

2. April 15, Tuesday—Final prefectural governor election.

3. April 20, Sunday—House of Councillors members.

4. April 25, Friday—House of Representatives members.

5. April 30, Wednesday—Tokyo Metropolis, Hokkaido, and prefectural assemblies; and city, town, and village assembly members.

According to a Mainichi survey, the nation so far shows but little interest in the forthcoming gubernatorial election.

It appears that most people are interested in the election of local city and town mayors and village masters or local assembly members than of prefectural governors. Attention of others is drawn to the election of House of Representatives members.

Effective Campaign

In the face of such a situation, old parties which have had more experiences in elections and which hold many veteran experts on their rosters, are conducting effective campaign much to their advantage.

Generally speaking, efforts are being made not to have too many candidates run in the gubernatorial elections. It is primarily to avoid the trouble of having to conduct a final decisive election due to scattering of votes.

Local authorities of major parties are pushing their decisions as to which candidate the party officially recognize or select as joint candidate of parties. As soon as such readjustment of election front is done, the campaign will enter a hectic stage of final competition.

Salient Situations

Salient among the characteristic situations in the present gubernatorial elections are:

1. In the district where the conservative parties (the Liberal and Progressive) had reached an understanding to present a solid front, they are remarkably aggressive. They are intent to win all the elections, starting with the gubernatorial elections.

2. In the district where the conservative parties present a solid front, the candidates of their choice is generally an independent, at least in appearance. Most of these candidates jointly supported by the conservative parties are ex-governors who had resigned before March 15. These ex-governors seem to be popular and doing rather well in all the prefectures.

3. In the districts where the conservative parties failed to reach an understanding, the situation is generally chaotic.

Well Balanced Struggle

4. In the district where the conservatives present a solid front, the popular front is also well organized. The conservatives and their opposition, therefore, are waging well balanced uphill competitions.

5. There are a number of districts where the Left wing failed to present a solid front. The Socialist Party's refusal of the Communist Party proposal to conduct a joint campaign, as well as the split within the Japan Farmers' Party evidently have produced delicate effects upon the outlook.

6. Present indications are that the Liberal Party may win the largest number of votes.

7. In some districts, the Progressive Party is working hand in hand with the Socialist Party.

ELECTION DIGEST

Kyushu Campaign Slow; Expenses Big Problem

MOJI, Mar. 22.—Opened on March 15 with a surprising lack of public interest, the gubernatorial election campaign in Kyushu has entered its second week, and with it, it has at length begun to show indications that the climax will be reached before the closing date.

Already 35 candidates for governorship out of 66 who had applied for screening have filed their applications, which number is fast increasing daily among the existing political parties.

The Socialists rank first with six candidates applying for the gubernatorial chairs, followed by the Co-operative Democrats and the Communists both with two candidates each.

Lagging far behind are the conservative parties, with only one candidate applying from the Liberals and none from the Progressives. As against this, an overwhelming number of 23 candidates are fence-sitting as unattached.

House Of Councillo:

As to the applications for the candidacy for the House of Councillors and the city mayors which began on March 20, a total of 14 candidates have filed their applications for the House of Councillors and 48 candidates for the mayorship up to March 21, throughout the Kyushu district.

Just as in the case of the prefectural governorship, the number of candidates posing as "unattached" far exceeds those who represent the existing political parties.

In the forthcoming election, the greatest source of headache for the campaign headquarters of the various political parties is how to raise funds necessary for the election campaign in the face of the present economic situation.

The election expenses to be incurred by the parties vary according to the commodity price which prevails in each corresponding prefecture.

Legal Maximum Listed

Nevertheless, the actual state of affairs is that the legal maximum allowed as election expenses for the candidates which are ¥100,000, ¥50,000 and ¥25,000, for the Houses of Councillors and Representatives and the governorship, respectively, are not even enough to meet a week's automobile expenses in their campaign tour.

The general belief is that no less than ¥500,000 will be required for each candidate of the House of Councillors or the House of Representatives.

As for the candidates for the prefectural board, ¥100,000 may not be enough to meet their campaign expenses even if they are estimated at the minimum.

Effect Of Interim Reparations Removal

The Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers is reported to have received an instruction from the United States Government to remove interim reparations immediately from Japan to the extent of 30 per cent.

The total amount of reparations to be collected from Japan has not yet been made public.

But what will be the effect of this immediate removal of interim reparations on Japanese economy? To our way of thinking, it will have more a beneficial effect than otherwise.

Although permitted to operate until the last moment, most of the industrial facilities earmarked for reparations are practically idle, owing to the lack of raw materials, coal, and electricity.

As has been voiced by some of the Allied authorities, therefore, the speedy removal of reparations items will definitely be beneficial to Japanese economy. For the Japanese enterprisers will then have a chance to formulate plans for future.

But the benefit does not stop there. The countries that are to receive these industrial facilities are all Asiatic countries, such as China, the Philippines, Indonesia, Burma, and Malaya. All these countries are up against it in their postwar reconstruction, for although they have ample raw materials and manpower, they are harassed by the lack of productive facilities.

Thus, the quick removal of reparation items from Japan will have a double benefit on both the dispossessed and the receiver

What is more significant is the fact that only on the complete recovery of Asiatic economy, as

Akama To Osaka Post, Kimura Kyoto Chief; 3 Socialists Win

Bunzo Akama, Liberal, 48-year-old x-director of the Kinki regional commerce and industry bureau, has been returned as the new governor of Osaka prefecture, defeating his ace rival, Socialist Tamotsu Kazuki, by 456,509 votes to 389,526.

In Kyoto prefecture, ex-Governor Atsushi Kimura, 56, was reelected, defeating onetime Communist sympathizer Dr. Tenrei Ota 256,371 to 189,722.

The latest count of the April 5 local elections throughout the country shows 37 new governors already definitely elected.

In eight prefectures—Wakayama, Nara, Kochi, Miyazaki, Ibaragi, Chiba, Niigata, and Hokkaido—a decisive balloting will again take place April 15 as the legal votes secured by the election winner failed to reach three-eighths of the eligible votes.

Of the 37 governors newly returned, 24 are either ex-governors or career bureaucrats. Though they ran for the election as non-partisans, virtually all of them were being supported by the Conservatives.

Only three Socialist candidates elected namely in Fukuoka, Tokushima, and Nagano prefectures.

Worthy of note is the fact that not a single candidate on the Communist ticket was returned as governor throughout Japan.

ALL SAVE 21 MAYORS CHOSE ONLY 9 POSTS TO SOCIALIST

The new mayors of the country's 209 cities were decided by midnight, Sunday, April 6, with the exception of 21 cities in which a decisive voting will be taken on April 15.

Included among the newly elected mayors are 54 former mayors and 15 other governmental or public officials, their combined force representing a little over 36 per cent of the total.

The Socialist Party succeeded in capturing nine mayoral offices, namely, in Osaka, Yokohama, Moriguchi (Osaka), Maizuru (Kyoto), Mihara (Hiroshima), Izumo (Shimane), Koriyama (Fukushima), Omiya (Saitama), and Ueno (Mie).

The following is a list of the new mayors whose election was ascertained after yesterday's issue of this paper:

Measures To Restore Foreign Trade Believed Necessary Immediately To Halt Japan's Economic Collapse

Figures Show Seriousness Of Situation; Japanese Must Do Part To Avert Disaster; Chief Causes Of Present Impasse Listed

(Editor's Note: Facts and figures to substantiate General Douglas MacArthur's assertion that the strangling Allied economic blockade of Japan" threatens this country with an almost complete economic collapse are given in the following dispatch—the first of a number by a veteran Far East correspondent):

By Miles W. Vaughn, United Press General Manager For Asia

TOKYO, Apr. 6.—Japan's economic position is becoming daily more precarious and an almost complete collapse is in prospect unless measures now being taken by General Douglas MacArthur are successful, according to information obtained by this correspondent. The recent action on the part of the United States in directing General MacArthur to go ahead with a 30 per cent interim reparations was a "late but welcome partial step in the right direction."

The obstacle imposed by the reparations question will not be completely removed until there is "full and final" disposition of the entire matter.

It is agreed in all quarters that

Economic Unity For Germany Pushed

United Press

MOSCOW, Apr. 6.—The Big Four Foreign Ministers have agreed to an early establishment of a control administration for Germany as the first step toward economic unity.

They disagreed, however, on some of the functions and powers of the five proposed control agencies.

Disagreement also arose on the composition of a German Advisory Council and the entire question was sent back to the coordination committee for further study.

Russian Foreign Minister Molotov insisted that the Advisory Council include representatives of political parties, trade unions and other anti-Nazi organizations, as well as representatives of state legislatures.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Secretary of State George C. Marshall finally accepted a French compromise, but Molotov did not yield.

Radiopress

SYDNEY, Apr. 7.—Reuter's correspondent at Moscow predicts that the Foreign Ministers conference, which is scheduled to end about the middle of this month, will be extended until April 20.

He points out that this would give the Ministers one more chance to solve the difficult German economic questions.

Bevin's Illness Denied

2 Women Elected Heads Of Villages For 1st Time

Two women were elected as heads of villages for the first time in the history of Japan, election returns tallied on April 6 showed.

Leading her nearest competitor with 470 odd votes, Tomo Matsuno took over the headship of Hozumi-mura, Motosu-gun in Gifu prefecture with 1,416 votes. Aged 35, she has been teaching in a primary school in her village since her graduation from the Gifu normal school.

The other woman to win the honor of being one of the first women to become a village head is Hisa Tojo, 42, of Ueno-mura, Nakabe-gun, Ibaragi prefecture. She is a graduate of Women's University and is the largest landowner in her district.

72-Year-Old Governor

The oldest candidate to win a post in the April 5 local elections was Soejiro Hara, new governor of Shimane prefecture, who is 72 years old.

A veteran politician, he has been returned nine times to the Diet in the past.

Among the youngest elected was Osamu Shirakawa, 36-year-old mayor of Sumoto City.

Messages Received On 1947 Army Day

GHQ, FAR EAST COMMAND, PRO, Apr. 7.—The following Army Day messages were received today by General MacArthur:

From Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Pacific Fleet; "On the occasion of Army Day, 1947, I wish to express to you and the officers and men under your command the Pacific Fleet's best wishes."

From Lt.-Gen. H.G.H. Robertson, BCOF: "On behalf of all the ranks of BCOF, I offer, on the commencement of Army Week, greetings to you and to all ranks of the United States Army under your command.

"As soldiers we understand and admire the tradition of service of the United States Army to the American people and the sacrifices involved in safeguarding democratic ideals.

"We are proud to share with the United States Army Forces the task of establishing those ideals in Japan, and we look forward to further service under your leadership until our work is successfully completed."

Maj.-Gen. Paul J. Mueller, Chief of Staff, GHQ, FEC, received the following Army Day message yesterday from Yorkson C.T. Shen, Acting Chief, Chinese Mission in Japan:

"With your Army Day drawing near, I wish to express on behalf of all the members of the Mission our hearty congratulations, through you, on the brilliant task the United States Army has been performing in Japan. The world is watching with keen interest, and appreciation the untiring efforts of the American Army. We are indeed proud of being participants in the great cause of the occupation.

"May the memorial Army Day bring prosperity and happiness to everyone of the American Army and a better future for world peace."

I Corps Hq. Holds Big Parade In Kyoto

KYOTO, Apr. 7.—The I Corps Headquarters celebrated the second US Army Day in Japan today with a grand parade participated in by approximately 2,200 soldiers representing various contingents stationed in the Kyoto area.

Units marching to the lively tune of the 296th Army Ground Force band included the 35th Infantry; 58th Signal Battalion; I Corps Headquarters Co.; 1067th Engineer Construction Group Headquarters Co., and the 453rd Engineer Depot Co.

The appearance of the 75 mm. mobile artillery pieces and four heavy tanks added further color to the big parade.

Beginning near the Higashi Honganji temple at 10 a.m., the parade proceeded northward on Karasumaru street and moved past the Daiken Bldg. where Maj.-Gen. R. B. Woodruff, I Corps Commanding General, reviewed the troops from a special stand. The one-mile march terminated at Sanjo street.

Various unit commanders gave brief addresses to troops under their respective commands. General Woodruff's speech was broadcast over station WVTQ at 12.15 and again at 17.50.

2,000 Crack Troops Of 25th Div. March

Participated in by approximately 2,000 crack troops, the 25th Infantry Division staged a colorful parade in commemoration of Army Day on April 7 along Lightning Boulevard.

The parade, starting in front of the Osaka Main Post Exchange at 9.30 a.m., went past the reviewing stand set up before the entrance of the Division Headquarters, where Maj.-Gen. Charles L. Mullins, Jr., Commanding General of the 25th Division, stood with his staff.

Led by mechanized Reconnaissance troops, the event was a full display of U. S. military glory, with martial music being furnished by the 25th Division Band.

(Editor's Note: Facts and figures to substantiate General Douglas MacArthur's assertion that the strangling Allied economic blockade of Japan" threatens this country with an almost complete economic collapse are given in the following dispatch—the first of a number by a veteran Far East correspondent):

By Miles W. Vaughn, United Press General Manager For Asia

TOKYO, Apr. 6.—Japan's economic position is becoming daily more precarious and an almost complete collapse is in prospect unless measures now being taken by General Douglas MacArthur are successful, according to information obtained by this correspondent. The recent action on the part of the United States in directing General MacArthur to go ahead with a 30 per cent interim reparations was a "late but welcome partial step in the right direction."

The obstacle imposed by the reparations question will not be completely removed until there is "full and final" disposition of the entire matter.

It is agreed in all quarters that General MacArthur analyzed the situation clearly and accurately in his interview with accredited correspondents in Tokyo March 17, and in his subsequent letter to Japanese Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida.

General MacArthur for months has been striving to persuade all those interested to view the position of Japan realistically and it would seem a safe guess that his efforts will be intensified from here on.

In his March 17 interview, the General urged an immediate settlement of the reparations question and the earliest possible signature of a peace treaty.

In his letter to the Japanese Prime Minister, he bluntly stated that the Japanese must do their part in averting disaster, by enforcing existing economic controls, or face the consequences.

In broad outline, the causes of the present dangerous situation, which conceivably may throw Japan into near-anarchy or Communism, may be listed as follows:

1. The terms of the Potsdam Declaration, which took away from Japan a large share of her prewar empire—Manchuria, Korea, Formosa, Sakhalin, and the Kurile Islands.

These areas supplied prewar Japan with more than 40 per cent of its foodstuffs and most of its raw materials. Without these areas some 80-million Japanese in their narrow, mountainous home islands are short of everything from rice to coal.

2. Failure to completely settle the reparations question has paralyzed Japanese industry.

Unable to learn what plants they may keep and what they must ship to Allied Nations, many Japanese industrialists have adopted a do-nothing attitude.

3. Uncertainty as to the terms of peace has had profound psychological and material effects upon many Japanese leaders who have tended to await apathetically for whatever fate many befall them.

This correspondent personally knows many able Japanese men—who should be working to the limit of their ability to restore the country—who are doing nothing. Some of them are idle, others because of a general feeling of hopelessness.

4. The weakness and inefficiency of Japan's postwar Cabinets, none of which has been able to command sufficient public support to enable it to enforce the rigid economic controls which the situation of the country demands.

5. A general lack of unity among the Japanese people who, suddenly freed from a rigid totalitarian dictatorship, have tended to split into class-conscious groups, each intent on furthering its own welfare regardless of consequences.

6. Communist agitation, a too-hurried development of labor unions, and other factors also have played parts.

Finals Go 13 Innings; Tokushima Scores 2 In Last Frame, Wins 3-1

By Muneo Kimura And Kyuma Hatada, Staff Writers

KOSHIEN STADIUM, Apr. 7.—The Tokushima commercial nine from Shikoku finally realized its cherished ambition of winning its first pennant victory in the National Invitational Secondary School Baseball Tourney when it nosed out Kokura middle from Kyushu 3 to 1 in the 13-inning finals of the 19th tournament, which wound up here this afternoon after a nine-day gala series.

By virtue of Tokushima's clean-cut victory, the championship banner was brought back to Shikoku for the first time in 22 years, that is, since 1925 when Matsuyama commercial won the title in the second tourney.

In accordance with the earnest desire of women baseball fans, 2,000 seats in the left and right-field stands were reserved free of charge for the fair spectators on Ladies' Day today.

With fine baseball weather, "Play Ball" was called for the title game at 2.08 p.m. before another huge week-day crowd who packed the main stands.

A clout from the bat of centerfielder Bando, with runners on all bases in the 13th frame, brought out two runs for Tokushima commercial to decide the championship match.

Taking advantage of an error by first-sacker Io, the Tokushima lads took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. But in the following canto, the Kokura boys evened the score 1-1.

After eight scoreless innings, the Tokushima sluggers at last tallied two runs with two singles, a walk and an error in the 13th frame, thus bringing the gruelling extra-inning tussle to an end.

Though beaten, the Kokura batters, pounding out a total of 11 hits against Tokushima's only five, grabbed chances in the first, third, fourth, seventh, and 10th innings, but they failed to tally.

After the game, Chikao Honda, representative director of the Mainichi, Osaka, delivered a closing address on behalf of the sponsors.

This was followed by the presentation of the championship flag to Captain Kuramoto of Tokushima commercial and then the runner-up banner to Captain Miyazaki of Kokura middle.

The school flag of Tokushima commercial that was sent up the flagpole immediately after the completion of the title game, was lowered by players of the victorious team amid the playing of the school's song by the Osaka municipal band, following which the tournament flag was also lowered.

Led by Captain Kuramoto, who carried the championship banner, the players of the Tokushima nine marched around the edge of the huge bowl, bringing the 1947 tourney to a close.

mystery thriller laid against the kground of World War II, when voys were moving about in the ost secrecy to prevent attacks by my submarines in the Atlantic, s fast-moving story has a fascinat- plot.

Stuck in Iceland on his way back to erica after an assignment for his gazine, News Review, Max Ferries, photographer, writes regularly to New York friends, Paul and Mary ong.

Sixteen letters come from Reyk- ik and then a mysterious cable, ding:

MY SEVENTEENTH LETTER IN THE IL BE UNDERSTANDING MY IENDS."

When the 17th letter comes, all t the envelope contains are eight nk pages of paper and a theater ogram from an unidentified city. Knowing that Max is in trouble, ul, who is a correspondent for the ne magazine, gets himself assigned Iceland to investigate.

Mary unhesitatingly stows away on same ship when she receives a sterious warning that "something going to happen to the convoy."

From then on, things begin to ppen in a swift and bewildering quence. Not the least of the com- lications on board the ship is a arge of murder brought against ary and Paul by the captain.

When the ship arrives at Halifax, fun really begins, because their oblem is to get ashore and dodge Mounties while they pursue the e of the enigmatic theater pro- am.

The attractive young American upie find themselves both the pur- ed and the pursuers. The manner which they finally find Max and lp to foil a sinister Nazi spy plot, ile running into an international llection of interesting characters, ovides a melodramatic yarn that kes good reading.

Serious Economic Situation Faced

tion provides that "Japan shall be permitted to maintain such industries as will sustain her economy—to this end access to....raw materials shall be permitted. Eventual Japanese participation in world trade relations shall be permitted."

This clause, it is presumed, will be put into force when the peace treaty is signed.

Prewar Japan was one of the chief foreign trade nations of the world. The economy of the country rested largely on this trade which was carried in Japanese ships and financed by a worldwide system of closely integrated banks and commercial houses.

The Japanese militarists destroyed much of this great system by their wartime totalitarian economy and the Allies disrupted most of the remainder.

Measures to restore foreign trade are, in General MacArthur's opinion, immediately necessary.

Indicative of the seriousness of the present situation are the following figures:

COAL PRODUCTION, upon which Japan's economy rests, must be increased 100 per cent. Japan's industrial production is now less than one-third of normal. In January it stood at 30.4 compared to 100 for the years 1930-34.

STEEL INGOT PRODUCTION is now about 50,000 tons per month—less than one-sixth that is required for a minimum Japanese economy.

FERTILIZER PRODUCTION, absolutely essential to restore fields worn out during the war years, now is a "mere drop in the bucket."

CAUSTIC SODA PRODUCTION is about 2,000 tons a month, less than one-tenth of requirements.

OTHER ITEMS include sulphuric acid, 30 per cent of requirements; rayon, less than one-million pounds a month compared to a pre-war 30-million pounds; and silk, 10,000 bales per month compared to the prewar 60,000.

Reports Of His Death Most Over-Exaggerated, Live Cartoonist Finds

Shigeo Miyao, noted cartoonist, experienced one of the biggest shocks of his life when he returned to his home in Tokyo recently from a trip. He saw his own obituary in the papers.

The newspapers in Tokyo heard of his "death" from Takeshi Ogawa, also a cartoonist, who had heard rumors that Miyao died of pneumonia.

When the several papers which carried articles of his demise were called up in person by the "dead" Miyao, reporters rushed to his home where they found Ogawa, the originator of the rumor, at the Miyao residence.

Ogawa had called to pay sympathy and condolence to the family.

When the reporters asked for an explanation, Ogawa said that he received the shock of his life when he found his colleague still alive.

Miyao said that "this job of being dead" was big nuisance with all the letters and wires of condolence that are avanlanching him from all over the country and which he must answer and explain.

"But it feels great to be alive," he said.

Conditions Of Schools

To the Editor:

Sir:—As an interpreter I have had good chances lately to visit many primary schools throughout Iwate prefecture. When I saw them with my own eyes, I was surprised to find that most of them are in extremely bad shape; walls are fallen, window glass panes are broken, letting the biting cold wind into the classrooms.

Owing to lack of rooms, pupils are jammed up in their classes.

Fortunately many schools have radios for their children but quite a number of them are broken, whose troubles are mostly just bad tubes. A principal said he could not afford to buy them at blackmarket prices, for the school maintenance fund given to the school for the year is less than the price of a single tube.

About half as many schools as we saw have school libraries. But the books are insufficient to satisfy children's craving for reading.

A great many country school children are suffering from lice but the teachers can do nothing to relieve them due to lack of DDT.

Everything we saw was in quite bad condition. Everything which is absolutely necessary in a school is mostly either short or broken.

In the creation of a brighter, democratic Japan, education is to play one of the most important roles. Whatever kind of difficulties may be ahead of the new 6-3-3 system, they have to be surmounted by all means.

I am sure that the education reform is too big a problem to be only left to the care of the Government. It is the matter to be solved by each community; by us all.

Without understanding and cooperation by the public at large, its smooth realization and progress will be next to impossible.

Cotton Spinning Can R

Revival Of Japanese Textile Industry Will Increasingly Tend To Enhance Living Standard Of Asiatic Nations

By Toyosaburo Taniguchi,

Representative Director, Toyo Cotton Spinning Co., Ltd.

Food, clothing and housing are the prime necessities for the Japanese people today—and there are shortages in all of them.

Japan has been defeated in war, resulting in the practically complete destruction of her industries. Reconstruction is going to be a hard task.

It is evident that reconstruction of Japan as a whole will depend largely on the revival of the Japanese textile industry.

It is a matter of regret to note that during the war there was no improvement of the industry. Moreover, as far as technical improvement is concerned, there was a degradation. To make matters worse, the import of raw materials and the export of the finished products were completely halted with transportation and other commercial facilities completely destroyed.

Nothing remains to remind one of the pre-war age. At the moment, it is evident that there is a great need to mobilize a huge fund for the reconstruction of the financial structure of Japan. To achieve this aim, however, we must ask the assistance of the United States.

NO FUNDS AVAILABLE

The present day sees no funds available for the reconstruction of the textile industry. Capital is practically nil. The only thing we have to be used for reconstruction work is labor, which can be exploited to much greater lengths for the expansion of the textile industry, providing the other necessary conditions are met.

I believe that if large capital interests can be invited from the United States to aid in the reconstruction of the textile industry, if we can import superior American raw cotton to produce a large quantity of high grade textiles, and then if we can export these finished goods to the Far Eastern market, the reconstruction of the Japanese textile industry would then be possible, with accompanying contribution to the elevation of human life in this part of the world.

We can also serve in this manner to make up in a small measure for our deeds in the past, for the great suffering of the Asiatic nations during the past several years of war. Japan can thus be placed in a position to pay her way back to economic recovery.

Peace and order in Japan will depend on the adequate provision of the necessities of life, namely, food, clothing and housing. This is the first step we must try to take. To save the people from famine is to prevent unrest and Communism in Japan, thus leading to the construction of a peaceful and self-supporting nation.

ELEVATION OF LIFE

The reconstruction of the Japanese cotton spinning industry furthermore means the opening of a market, or rather the expansion of a market for American cotton, as well as the elevation of livelihood for the Asiatic nations as a whole.

For the import of such necessary raw materials as iron, oil, rubber and fertilizer, as well as for food, Japan needs goods in exchange. Textiles must play a leading role in providing this necessary collateral.

It is to be noted that a considerable increase in production has already been effected in the cotton spinning industry in Japan, particularly since the import of American cotton in limited quantities. But because of the huge losses suffered during the war, the most that can be expected of the industry for the immediate future is to reach one-half of the pre-war production.

The financial and material difficulties facing the industry today has also meant that the big plans which had been drawn up for recovery have not been realized.

It is for us to pave the way to reconstruction by our efforts. As an exporting industry, it is apparent that the cotton spinning companies must play an important role in the future.

The reopening of foreign trade in the future is being awaited eagerly by all industries in Japan, but most particularly by the textile industry in view of its character.

REGAINING REPUTATION

It is a mistake to think that the cotton spinning industry has no future in Japan because of the total setback received by the war. Japan's textiles have established a high reputation in pre-war days. The new cotton spinning industry of Japan must exert its utmost to attain those levels. This will assure Japan of recovery.

Because of the earnest desire on the part of all cotton textile enterprisers, there is no doubt that the industry will revive, especially if the coal and other material shortages can be alleviated and transportation made open.

The over-all picture of reconstruction evidently will require outside aid, particularly from the United States. On the other hand, the Japanese industries must on their part undertake to view their economy in an international light. Present methods and practices must be revised to meet this new contingency.

We must remember that quick and immediate results cannot be effected. The future of Japan will depend largely on the development of the cotton spinning industry, so we must plan carefully and make sure that the plans can be carried out.

We have hopes for the future. The great industry which existed before the war still remains in spirit. This time, however, we are reconstructing for peace. Confidence of the world in Japan must be re-established. We will do this by producing high quality goods from a peacetime industry.

The leaders of the textile industry feel their responsibility and are determined to do thir utmost.

Financial Recovery First Prerequisite For Tackling Spinning Industry Crisis

By Kazuyoshi Mimura
President, Dai Nippon Cotton Spinning Co., Ltd.

Before the war, the Japanese cotton spinning industry dominated the world market with textiles produced by over 13-million spindles. The several years of war however have proved disastrous to the industry which had to adapt itself to wartime conditions. A great number of spinning equipment went into the scrap pile to make munitions.

The stark truth of the situation is that Japanese financial situation today is facing bankruptcy. In view of this condition, this defeated nation must take all measures possible, no matter what the cost, to effect the financial recovery of Japan before we ask for any help from the outside, particularly from the United States. This is our burden at present.

As has been rapeatedly ppinted out, the reason for the delay in the financial reconstruction of Japan is principally because of the decrease in coal and iron production, as well as the acute scarcity of food.

DANGER OF COLLAPSE

As a step toward solving these problems, a priority system has been established for coal and iron since the last quarter of 1946. In respect to food, however, there is no other way to solve this issue than to ask for Allied aid to permit imports. Although the priority system for coal and iron is being enforced, we consider that it is going to be very difficult to overcome the present financial and industrial crisis by ourselves. not only that, but it will take a very long time.

As a result, there is the danger that before financial and industrial reconstruction can be effected, the financial structure of Japan may collapse, particularly in view of the inflationary tendency which has become more and more conspicuous since the end of last year,

Therefore, the only measure which can rescue Japan out of her present plight is to import raw materials to be used to produce export articles. Foreign trade must also be resumed to allow Japan to purchase home consumption materials.

Food is being imported, thanks to the goodwill of the Allied Powers, and cotton with limitations has been coming from the United States. In addition, the import of oil, anthracite, rubber, Indian cotton and wool is being planned.

SMOOTH IMPORTS NECESSARY

It would not be an exaggeration to state that the future of Japan's financial structure will depend on the smooth operation of the import plan. Japan, of course, will need collateral to meet these imports. Silk and cotton textiles must serve as the principal collateral products.

During the war, heavy industries in Japan made a sudden progress. However, there were special conditions which permitted this, such as the enforcement of a blockaded economy. Thus, Japanese heavy industries cannot be compared with the progress of European or American heavy industries.

Japan's textile industry, however, was in a high position even before the war. Japanese textiles were welcome throughout the world. Rarely were there complaints of inferior quality or other factors. The Asiatic nations particularly widely used Japanese textiles.

With the war's end, there has arisen a great shortage of textiles throughout the world. This shortage is being keenly felt by the Oriental countries. Thus, the early recovery of the Japanese textile industry is important not only for Japan but also for the welfare of the whole world.

PROGRESS SLOW

Despite the great efforts which have been exerted since the first import of American cotton last July, cotton textile production in Japan has not progressed as hoped. In January this year, the production of cotton yarn reached a capacity of 67,000 bales of 20 count per month, while the equipment capacity attained 2,570,000 spindles. We in the cotton spinning industry feel a deep responsibility for the early recovery of the industry to a pre-war level.

The fact is clear that the Japanese cotton spinning industry depends largely upon foreign countries who can prdduce the raw materials and at the same time are the consumers of the finished products.

The situation in our country is quite different from that of the United States, which produce the raw material, and consume her own ome products.

We cannot get enough raw material for our industry, and are forced to be very careful in the utilization of the limited amounts reaching our hands, In this light, the position of Japan's textile industry is utterly different from some countries in Europe and the U.S.

It is natural for Japan to adopt the polygonal enterprise system, such as for silk, wool, staple-fiber, and rayon. For example, 10 cotton textile companies have had to engage in competition to improve their products by rationalizing their equipment. It has always therefore been impossible to monopolize the industry in Japan.

New enterprisers in the field are never hindered from starting business. No company today monopolizes the field.

OBSTACLES TO RECOVERY

Any consideration of removing or dissolving the industry at present would serve only to delay the reconstruction of the textile industry as well as of financial recovery. Our sole consideration today must be to step up production.

The bill recently passed by the Government to prevent monopolies is considered to be elastic in nature. The proper enforcement of this bill will mean much to the future of Japanese finance.

Beside the shortage of skilled labor, coal, pulp, caustic soda and other materials, a great hindrance to recovery is the difficulty of transporting goods.

The textile industry has been working steadily toward the solution of this problem. Government control of the economic field, however, is strict, making difficult any progress toward solution.

We hope earnestly that both Government and non-official quarters will cooperate wholeheartedly with us in our efforts to revive the textile industry of Japan to the pre-war level.
