NEW YORK
CENTENNIAL LOAN EXHIBITION
OF PAINTINGS,

Selected from the Private Art Galleries.

1876.

AT THE
NATIONAL ACADEMY OF DESIGN,
COR. 23D STREET AND 4TH AVE.,

AT THE
METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART,
128 WEST 14TH STREET,

Admission 25 Cents. Catalogue 25 Cents.

THE present Exhibition originated in the suggestion that the City of New York ought to furnish to its centennial visitors more than its ordinary sources of entertainment. It was supposed that this object could be accomplished in no more effective way than by a loan collection of pictures. The private galleries and individual possessions of our citizens were known to be of a rare and munificent character, and it seemed probable that if these citizens could be persuaded to part with some of their treasures, for a time, a source of almost unrivalled attraction might be opened to the general public. The appeal to them was answered with the most generous responses, which enable the committee having the affair in hand to present an exhibition of art that has, they believe, never been surpassed on this continent.

The proceeds of the exhibition will enure to the benefit of the National Academy of Design and the Metropolitan Museum of Art—two of our most useful and deserving public institutions.

FRANCIS : "AS I took leave of the Bishop, she sat by him; they were playing at chess. He was very gracious; gave me his hand to kiss, and said much, of which I heard not a syllable, for I was looking on his fair antagonist. Her eye was fixed upon the board, as if meditating a bold move. Traces of attentive intelligence around the mouth and cheek. I could have wished to be the ivory king. The mixture of dignity and feeling on her brow—and the dazzling lustre of her face and neck, heightened by her raven tresses."—Goethe's Tragedy of Goetz von Berlichingin, Act 1, Scene v.
