The Little Boy that Died.

The late Dr. Chalmers is said to have been the author of the following beautiful lines, written on the occasion of the death of a young son whom he greatly loved:

I am alone in my chamber now;
And the midnight hour is near;
And the faggot's crack and the clock's dull tick
Are the only sound I hear;

And the stars are dim in the gloom;
Sweet feelings of sadness glide,
For my heart and my eyes are full when I think
Of the little boy that died.

I went one night to my father's house—
Want home to the dear ones all—
And I left it down the hill,
My mother came out to meet her son—
She kissed me and then she sighed,
And she sat down in a chair,
And the horse he used to ride,
And they will speak with a silent speech,
Of the little boy that died.

I shall miss him when the flowers come,
In the garden where he played;
I shall miss him more by the fire-side,
When the flowers are decayed.

I shall sit alone in my chair,
And the horse he used to ride,
Sweet feelings of sadness glide,
For my heart and my eyes are full when I think
Of the little boy that died.

We shall go home to our Father's house—
To our Father's house the skin,
With the hopes of our souls shall have no bright,
Our love is broken to us.

We shall roam on the banks of the river of peace,
And bathe in the blessed tide—
And the love of our life shall be
The little boy that died.

A Prize Story.

Chapter the First.—It was a dark and dreary night—all the wolves howled around the old mansion.

Chapter 2d.—The thunder roared, the lightning dashed, the wind howled furiously, when on a sudden the old cow, with tail uplifted, darted and with one mighty bound leaped like a forked streak of lightning over a six rail fence.

NOTICES OF THE CENSUS TAXER.—In endeavoring to take the census for the Government, the marshals occasionally meet with such difficulties as well nigh to deprive them of their sense. The following took place on Canal street, New Orleans:

"Who is the head of the family?"

"That depends upon circumstances. If before 11 o'clock, it's my husband—if after 11 o'clock, it's me."
How so?"

"Because after 11 he's as drunk as a piper, unless to say of himself, much less his family."

"What's this?"

"Coming next Michaelas he will lack one day of being as old as Finnegan. You know Finnegan?"

"No, I don't know Finnegan; and if I did it would not help the matter. Is your husband an alien?"

"Oh, then, he's a villain entirely. He has cheued mates worse than owl honney, who was too bad to be with 'em."

"How many male members have you in your family?"

"Never a one."

"What, no boys at all?"

"Boy, is it? Ah, another, go home. We have boys enough to whip four boxes of bread for break fast."

"When were you married?"

"The day Pat Doyle left Tipperary for America—Ah, will I mind! A sunnier day never gladdened the sky of owl Ireland!"

"He's a man more miserable. He said if I didn't give him a promise within two weeksh'd blow his brains out with a crossbow."

"What was he at the time of your marriage, a widow or bachelor?"

"A'which, a widow did you say? Ah! now go away, you old doge. Is it the likes of you we could take a good husband? A' poor devil, allog and consumption, like a sick turkey at a whorl! May I never be blessed of 12 rather than live an owl maid, and bring up a family on buttermilk and praties!"

"What was he at the time of your marriage, a widow or bachelor?"

"A'which, a widow did you say? Ah! now go away, you old doge. Is it the likes of you we could take a good husband? A' poor devil, allog and consumption, like a sick turkey at a whorl! May I never be blessed of 12 rather than live an owl maid, and bring up a family on buttermilk and praties!"

Here the dialogue ended, the Marshal coming to the conclusion that he could "make more" next door. Whether he did we will know at some future time.

NOT SO GREEN AS THAT.—A gentleman born and bred in Cheapside, London, was lately invited to visit a friend in the agricultural districts. The rural aspect of the place amazed and charmed him; still he had brought away from the city his full share of suspicion, and the answers that he received to some of his inquiries really did seem so wonderful that he began to suspect that he was being "chaffed." At last they approached a meadow, in which was standing a glorious crop of hay. The cockney gazed at it wonderingly. It wasn't grass, it wasn't wheat, it wasn't turnip tops. "Why, whatever do you call this stuff?" said he to his companion.

"That's why, boy, to be sure," was the reply.

"Hay! why, that's come! that's cutting it a little too thick. That's hay, just show me the hay: come on!"

BACHELORS ATTENTION!—The attention of bachelors is invited to the following "wall" from the Springfield Republic:—"There are some sad sights in this world—a city sacked and burned—a battlefield after a great slaughter—London in the midst of a plague—a ship burning at sea—a family pinching in starvation—but to us the saddest sight of all is an army having its backs turned upon its friends, as the Democrats did when they tore off their shirts, cut off their stockings, and at the toes, and nobly to leave his money to waste. We are such a man, the mild, reproving eye of a widow or maiden lady would drive us mad. But there is still hope. Older men than any of our friends have married beautiful wives, who trained admirably, and spent their money elegantly."

A SISTER'S INFLUENCE!—"I was drunk once," said a young man to the other day, "and I shall never forget it. My company with several other jovial fellows, was induced to drink pretty freely, and, by the time I got home, I scarcely knew where I was, or what I was doing. I was put to bed, and how long I laid there I do not know, but when I awoke, my sister was sitting beside the bed, engaged in her sewing. The moment her eyes fell on my face, she burst into a flood of tears, and wept as if her heart would break. Overwhelmed with shame for my conduct, I then formed a resolution never to get drunk again; I have adhered to that resolution for some years, and I mean to keep it!"

ATLANTIC ITEMS.

The Pony Express appears to be running now regularly. By its different arrivals within the past two weeks news of consequence is obtained in advance of other means of communication.

The arrival of Wm. England's Sovereign of the United States—Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, and probably others. His tour had not been fully determined.

The Great Eastern had left New York for Cape May, Chesapeake Bay. She took more than 2000 passengers on the trip, and would return to New York before leaving for England. Thousands upon thousands have visited her at 4 bits a head, the profits of which were so large that the profits of her tour across the Atlantic, though respectable, will not be large.

The Tehuantepec route to California is again to be opened by W. C. Roberts & Co., of New York. For this purpose several steamers have been started for San Francisco. The Illinois and Star of the West will run upon the Atlantic side. The line is expected to be in operation in the course of sixty days.

The English, it appears, anticipate war. Orders have been issued by that Government to have all the war steamers in the dock yards, ready to meet an engagement.

Louis Napoleon has written to the French Ambassador in London, telling him that he entertains other than peaceful intentions. Says he has 400,000 men under arms, of whom near 100,000 are employed in Algeria and in foreign service, and says for them, that his Navy is nothing near that of England, and is no longer than he requires for the protection of Commerce.

By the latest Census it appears that the city of New York contains about 800,000 inhabitants. One ward has 94,000. It is thought Brooklyn, Hoboken, Jersey City and other places about New York may properly be regarded as suburbs, or part of the city, will make New York in point of population, larger than Paris, and perhaps second alone to London of all cities in the world.

News to Aug. 18th, per Pony Express, is as follows:

The Pony Express is to be a permanent institution, as understood east.

The project of a Pacific Telegraph was being favorably considered, and a meeting of the company designated as the Pacific Telegraph Company, was to be held in New York, Aug. 29th.

A Bell and Everett ticket had been nominated in Illinois and Indiana, thought the party in each State had not a single paper in their support.

Pacific Mail Steamship Company's stock has declined since Roberts proposed the opening of the Tehuantepec route.

So sanguine are the Republicans of Lincoln's election that they have formed his Cabinet in the prospective. Seward is to be Secretary of State and H. W. Foote, Secretary of War. Greeley is to go minister Extraordinary to France, and all in some interest, and all opponents can go to the devil.

North Carolina has gone Democratic by a good majority.

The report that Breckinridge had withdrawn as a candidate for the Presidency, or that he ever thought of so doing, is not true.

How the LONDON TIMES is PRINTED.—A London correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, having visited the office and press room of the "Great Thunderer," communicates the following interesting facts which came under his observation:

"They use nine men of paper a day—enough to reach to Dover, eight miles. The water to wet the paper is raised by an engine, and going through a perforated one cylinder, falls on an endless blanket, and wets twenty four sheets at a time. They use twenty seven legs or tuns of ink in a week. Molds for electrolyzing are made of paper mache, from which lead impressions are taken, and are ready for use in half an hour; can take six plates from a mold, the number of doing it without burning the mold is a secret; they save six hours by electrolyzing. They use three thousand five hundred pounds of a horse's cylinder, which turns out sixteen thousand four hundred an hour, working sixteen. The latter, moving horizontally, is not more so complicated as the former, which works vertically. They prefer a pleatless, as it does its work more neatly. They employ three hundred and sixty men, and issue fifty five thousand copies a man who counts three hundred in a minute, and they are all delivered in five minutes after the stoppage of the press. One dealer takes twenty eight thousand copies in twenty four hours. Two twelve horse power engines are used. Forty years ago, only took one thousand two hundred impressions per hour, and first yearly volume (172) is but quarter the size of quartilles of late years."

The Eve of Clinton II.—The reign of Charles was setting in a sultry, dire oppression. Chapels were shut, ministers dying in jail, congregations scattered. A man who would not take the sacrament whipped and pilloried, a man who would not if kneeling was plundered and imprisoned.

"See then!" cried the sharp strong sense of Daniel, when his business had taken to Windsor, where he sauntered into St. George's Chapel with a friend.—"See that afterpiece! Our raving administrators fast supper to their disciples, sitting round the table, and because we could copy that posture, the government oppresses us!" Almost as he spoke, the end was approaching. Evelyn had seen the King on the past Sunday evening sitting and toying with his concubines—Portsmouth, Cleveland, and Mazarine. A French boy sang love-songs in a glorious gallery; and round a table groaning with a bank of two thousand golden pieces, a crew of profligate courtiers drank and gambled. Six days after, all was in the dust; and caps in the air for James II.—Evelyn's Essay.

A countryman going into a probate office, where the wills are kept in huge volumes on the shelves, asked if they were blotted.

"No sir," replied one of the clerks, "they are testaments."

SPECIAL NOTICE.—The Medical and Surgical Institute of Dr. L. J. CZAPKAY, is already settled in a position which places it in the front rank of its profession. In the schools of France, the highest prizes are often awarded to practitioners in this department of Medical science, and they occupy with others, an equally lofty position in the profession. Ricord is an illustrious example, a shining light among the philosophical stars of his age in Europe, and Dr. Czaplakay has fully equalled him in this country, as a proof of which, the Philadelphia College of Medicine complimented him with a Diploma, and the honorary of comme degre. Selecting this as his field of operation, although qualified as a graduate of the University of Pesto, and late Surgeon of the Hungarian Revolutionary army, for more extended labors, Dr. L. J. Czaplakay has but his earnest attention to the cure of chronic and private diseases, in which he has become particularly expert, having treated many cases of the most difficult nature throughout the United States, and his portraits and biography are published as matter of interest to their readers in the most exclusive journals. The Doctor's offices are at his Medical and Surgical Institute, on Sacramento street, corner of Lodi street, nearly opposite the buildings of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company.

We ask particular attention of our readers to the sworn certificates of remarkable cures, in another column of this paper.

For Fever and Ague it is one of the most efficacious preventives that can be resorted to.

The Aromatic Scheidam Schnapps is consequently in great demand by persons traveling, or about to settle in new parts of the country especially, as well as by many in every community who are desirous of securing its valuable remedial properties.

It has long since acquired a high reputation both in Europe and America, than any other.

Analyzed, it is a perfectly pure liquor, in its effects a mild and wholesome tonic. It's extensively used and appreciated by physicians, the temper and appetite, health of families, and the like.

In Gravel, Gout, and Rheumatism, in obstructions of the Bladder and Kidneys, as General Debility, its effects are prompt, decided, and invariably reliable. It is also a valuable remedy for the cure of all cases in which they are produced by drinking bad water, which is almost universally the cause of such diseases.
