The screenshot shows a web application interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with a logo on the left and links for "My Dashboard", "Training", "Documentation", and "Report a problem". On the right side of the navigation bar, there is a language selector set to "en" and a user profile for "Ariel Cetrone (WMDC)" with a "Log out" link.

Below the navigation bar, there is a breadcrumb trail: "ArtandFeminism Mastercard Service ..." followed by "Home", "Editors", "Articles", "Uploads", and "Activity". The "Articles" link is highlighted with a red circle.

Underneath the breadcrumb trail, there are three buttons: "Articles Edited" (which is dark grey and active), "Assigned Articles", and "Available Articles".

The main content area is titled "Articles Edited" with a help icon. To the right of the title is a filter icon. Below the title, there is a table header with the following columns: "Class", "Title", "Chars Added", "References Added", "Views", "Assessment tools", and "Tracked".

Below the table header, there is a large white box containing the text: "There are no edited articles for this project yet."

Elizabeth Catlett [edit | edit source]

ORES predicted quality: ★ FA (5.14)
A C-class article from Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Elizabeth Catlett (April 15, 1915^[2] – April 2, 2012)^[3] was an African-American graphic artist and sculptor best known for her depictions of the African-American experience in the 20th century, which often focused on the female experience. She was born and raised in Washington, D.C. to parents working in education, and was the grandchild of freed slaves. It was difficult for a black woman in this time to pursue a career as a working artist. Catlett devoted much of her career to teaching. However, a fellowship awarded to her in 1946 allowed her to travel to Mexico City, where she worked with the Taller de Gráfica Popular for twenty years and became head of the sculpture department for the Escuela Nacional de Artes Plásticas. In the 1950s, her main means of artistic expression shifted from print to sculpture, though she never gave up the former.

Her work is a mixture of abstract and figurative in the Modernist tradition, with influence from African and Mexican art traditions. According to the artist, the main purpose of her work is to convey social messages rather than pure aesthetics. While not very well known to the general public, her work is heavily studied by art students looking to depict race, gender and class issues. During her lifetime, Catlett received many awards and recognitions, including membership in the Salón de la Plástica Mexicana, the Art Institute of Chicago Legends and Legacy Award, honorary doctorates from Pace University and Carnegie Mellon, and the International Sculpture Center's Lifetime Achievement Award in contemporary sculpture.

Career

Very early in her career, Catlett accepted a Public Works of Art Project assignment with the federal government for unemployed artists during the 1930s. However, she was fired for lack of initiative, very likely due to immaturity. The experience gave her exposure to the socially-themed work of Diego Rivera and Miguel Covarrubias.^[4]

Much of her career was spent teaching, as her original intention was to be an art teacher. After receiving her undergraduate degree, her first teaching position was in the Durham, NC school system. However, she became very dissatisfied with the position because black teachers were paid less. Along with Thurgood Marshall, she participated in an unsuccessful campaign to gain equal pay.^[9] After graduate school, she accepted a position at Dillard University in New Orleans in the 1940s. There, she arranged a special trip to the Delgado Museum of Art to see the Picasso exhibit. As the museum was closed to blacks at the time, the group went on a day it was closed to the public.^[1] She eventually went on to chair the art department.^[4] Her next teaching position was with the George Washington Carver School, a community alternative school in Harlem, where she taught art and other cultural subjects to workers enrolled in night classes.^[4] Her last major teaching position was with the Escuela Nacional de Artes Plásticas at the National Autonomous University of Mexico
