They succeed in Florida and the Gulf Coast sections where other kinds fail. For Rose satisfaction in these sections, plant more Tea Roses.

Hardy Climbers, Ramblers and Pillar Roses

A Climbing Rose is a plant that, if given support, grows higher and higher, starting each year from or near the top of the previous year's growth.

A Rambler, properly speaking, has long, thin, pliable branches which if not supported, take root where they touch the ground and thus "ramble."

A Pillar Rose does not climb or "ramble" for its canes are too stiff. Some are strong and self-supporting; others require a stake or some support.
