PREFACE

As we announced in the preface of Part XI, which consisted of literary papyri, the present volume contains official and private documents. Most of these, including all those in the two most important sections (i Edicts and Circular Letters, and ii The Senate of Oxyrhynchus). illustrate the period from Septimius Severus to Constantine; the others belong to the earlier period of Roman domination in Egypt. With a few exceptions, the 189 texts were discovered in 1904-6. The decipherment and translation of them had in the main been effected by June, 1915: since then Prof. Hunt's military duties have generally kept him away from Oxford, and the commentary unfortunately lacks his accustomed share in its composition; but he has made many suggestions upon the proofs. These have also been read by Mr. J. G. Milne, to whom we are indebted for some valuable criticisms on points of numismatics. Dr. J. K. Fotheringham kindly undertook on our behalf some interesting astronomical calculations in connexion with the chronology of the Emperors from Decius to Diocletian, upon which obscure subject the new horoscopes throw considerable light; cf. pp. 229 sqq.

Part XIII, which is in preparation, will contain two sections (Contracts and Private Accounts) for which there was not space in this volume, but will consist largely of literary pieces, both theological and classical. Among these are parts of two lost dithyrambs of Pindar, and of two new speeches by Lysias and one by Lycurgus, besides considerable fragments of Pindar's Olympian Odes and Herodotus, Book III.

NOTE ON THE METHOD OF PUBLICATION AND LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS

THE general method followed in this volume is the same as that in Parts I-XI, except that the minor documents are now in nearly all cases given in full. The texts, being non-literary, are all given in modern form with accentuation and punctuation. Abbreviations and symbols are resolved; additions and corrections are usually incorporated in the text, their occurrence being recorded in the critical apparatus, where also faults of orthography, &c., are corrected if they seemed likely to give rise to any difficulty. Where additions or corrections are distinguished, those by the same hand as the body of the text are in small thin type, those by a different hand in thick type. Iota adscript has been printed when so written; otherwise iota subscript is employed. Square brackets [] indicate a lacuna, round brackets () the resolution of a symbol or abbreviation, angular brackets () a mistaken omission in the original, braces { } a superfluous letter or letters, double square brackets [] a deletion in the original. Dots placed within brackets represent the approximate number of letters lost or deleted; dots outside brackets indicate mutilated or otherwise illegible letters. Letters with dots underneath them are to be considered doubtful. Heavy Arabic numerals refer to the texts of the Oxyrhynchus Papyri in this volume and Parts I-XI, or in the case of Nos. 1626-1655 to the forthcoming Part XIII; ordinary numerals refer to lines, small Roman numerals to columns. In the critical apparatus II indicates the papyrus in question.

The abbreviations used in referring to papyrological publications are practically those adopted in the Archiv für Papyrusforschung, viz.:—

Archiv = Archiv für Papyrusforschung.

I. EDICTS AND CIRCULAR LETTERS

1405. RESCRIPT OF SEVERUS: APPLICATION TO A STRATEGUS.

 13.7×7.5 cm.

Third century.

This papyrus, written in a small cursive hand, is an application to a strategus by a man who had been appointed to the office of collector of money-taxes in a village of the Oxyrhynchite nome, and proposed to evade the duty by giving up his property in accordance with an Imperial rescript, of which a copy is prefixed. It is closely parallel to B.G. U. 473 (M. Chrest. 375), which contains part of the beginning of what was no doubt a similar application to a third-century strategus, preceded by a rescript of Septimius Severus and Caracalla concerning the cessio bonorum. In B. G. U. 473 the right-hand half of the lines is missing, and 1405 also is incomplete, having lost the earlier part of the rescript and the end of the application. The strategus, Aurelius Leonides, who is mentioned in 890. 5, a third-century letter without a date, held office in the third year of an unnamed emperor, who on palaeographical grounds probably belonged to the period from Elagabalus to Valerian, so that the rescript, which is dated in Pharmouthi of the 8th year of, probably, a joint reign (cf. 1. 8 ταμεῖον ἡμῶν), would in any case appear to have been issued by Severus and Caracalla; the fact that its date coincides in respect of the month and number of the regnal year with the date of the parallel rescript in B. G. U. 473 leaves little room for doubt as to the reign. 1405 in any case provides another specimen of the θειαι διατάξειs referred to in C. P. R. 20 (W. Chrest. 402), which supplies the chief evidence concerning the cessio bonorum as a means of evading liturgies; cf. Mitteis's commentary, Jouguet, Vie municipale, 412-15, and 1416. 6 and 1642, which also bear on this subject.

While the rescript in B. G. U. 473 appears, so far as it can be reconstructed to be mainly a guarantee in general terms to some individual that the renunciation of his property would exempt him from further claims (cf. Mitteis, Hermes.

xxxii. 651), the rescript in 1405 evidently provided some more interesting details, but is too incomplete to be at all clear. The recipient had been appointed to a liturgy, the nature of which depends on the restoration of the critical l. 6: perhaps it was a municipal office of some kind, as in C. P. R. 20 and 1642; but the date of the rescript (A. D. 200) is apparently a year or two earlier than the establishment of senates in Egypt (cf. 1406. int.). He seems to have proposed to cede his property to the Imperial fiscus instead of performing the duty; but his proposition was declined by the Emperors, who awarded the property to his nominator and made this person responsible for the liturgy, at the same time guaranteeing the recipient of the rescript against loss of status and corporal punishment.

The application to the strategus which follows throws some new light on the methods of appointing collectors of money-taxes in villages. In the second century they were usually chosen by lot by the epistrategus from lists supplied to the strategus by the comarchs or other village officials nominating two persons for each vacancy; cf. Martin, Épistratèges, III sqq., Wilcken, Grundz. 347-8. Here, however, the use of the term ἀντωνομάσθαι (l. 17) and the absence of a title after the name of the nominator indicate that he was himself a πράκτωρ, so that the procedure was somewhat similar to that exemplified in 1642 (A. D. 289), where an agoranomus by the command of the praefect nominates his successor, and P. Flor. 2. vii (W. Chrest. 401; A.D. 265), where comarchs nominate their successors and the strategus appoints. The writer denied the justice of the selection, and was prepared to abandon his property to his nominator. The papyrus breaks off at the point where he was proceeding to make a declaration about his πόρος (l. 26, note), probably in order to show that it was below the required amount. So far as can be judged, both the renunciation mentioned in the rescript and that referred to in the application concerned the whole property, not merely two-thirds, as supposed by Mitteis. noteworthy that in P. Ryl. 75, which is also concerned with ἐκστάσεις of property, though not for the purpose of avoiding public burdens, the whole $\pi \acute{o} \rho os$ seems to have been ceded, and we are less confident than Wilcken or Jouguet that Mitteis's explanation of the phrase ἀντὶ τοῦ νενομισμένον τρίτου in C. P. R. 20. i. 18 is correct; but owing to the incompleteness of 1405 it seems impossible to extract from it a definite solution of the problem; cf. ll. 6-7, n.

To Aurelius Leonides, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, from Aemilius Stephanus son of Hatres and Tasorapis, from the village of Sinkepha. To-day I learnt that I had been nominated as his successor by Aurelius Amoïs son of Patas and Demetrous, of the said village, for the office of collector of the village money-dues of the said Sinkepha for the present 3rd year, as being a person of means and suitable. This is unreasonable and contrary to the just apportionment of the liturgy, so that I resign my property to him in accordance with the Imperial decree cited above, and declare that I...

1. $\pi a \rho \epsilon \chi \omega \rho [\eta \sigma as$: cf. $\pi a \rho a \chi \omega \rho \eta \sigma as$ in ll. 3 and 9. Elsewhere the usual verb is $\dot{\epsilon} \xi i \sigma \tau a \sigma \theta as$, c.g. l. 24 and 1417. 6. The preceding words may have been $\tau \dot{a} \dot{\nu} \pi \dot{a}] \rho [\chi o \nu \tau a]$; cf. ll. 5–6.

2. εξ ων would hardly fill the lacuna before εὔδηλον, and παρεχώρ[ησας may be in a dependent clause governed by e.g. ἐπεί.

3. [ταμεί ω ήμων: cf. l. 8 and int.

5. . [. . .]μένω: προβαλομένω, the word expected here (cf. C. P. R. 20. i. 6), is too long. δ[εδο]μένω would not give the right sense, and the vestige of the first letter does not suit δ.

6-7. τὸ λοι πὸν τοῦ . .]πο[. . .] τικο[ῦ] παρέξει: the reading is very uncertain; but, though τό is preferable to τά, τὸ τρίτον referring to the νενομισμένον τρίτον in C. P. R. 20, which Mitteis supposes to have been given back to the owner (cf. int.), is inadmissible. 70 $\pi\rho$ [οσήκον is possible, or τὰ $\pi\rho$ [οσήκοντα with -τικά in l. 7, but then $\pi\alpha\rho$ does not fill up the space before eget, and no other compound of eget suits the vestiges. π_0 , if correct, suggests either an adjective beginning with ύ]πο- or else πο[λε]ιτικού, but τὸ πολιτικόν does not seem to occur in papyri, and έκ τοῦ] πο[λε]ιτικοῦ, with a supposed reference to τὸ ἐπιβάλλον τῆ πόλει τρίτου μέρος (C. P. Herm. 92. 12, 93. 10), which has been sometimes connected with the νενομισμένον τρίτον in C. P. R. 20 (cf. Jouguet, l. c.), does not yield a satisfactory sense; for, if the πόλις paid \(\frac{1}{3}\) of the expenses of liturgies, a regulation would not be expected allowing a person who, in return for his nominee's property, himself undertook a liturgy to obtain 'from the city's account' the balance of expenses incurred. The supplement $[\lambda \epsilon]$ is moreover rather short for the lacuna before ι (which is more probable than ρ), and as the sense expected is that the nominator would, on receipt of his nominee's property, have to provide the rest of the expenses himself, probably the word refers to the nature of the liturgy in question. γ might be read for τ in $\tau\iota\kappa\sigma[\nu]$, for which $\mathring{\eta}$ $\kappa\sigma[\ell]$ is a possible, though less suitable, substitute. \(\) would then be the termination of another verb in the future.

26. For $[\delta\iota\iota\tau a\xi\iota\nu]$ cf. l. i.i., n. $\pi\nu\rhoo\hat{\nu}$ επὶ $\delta\iota[a\phi\delta\rho\phi$ ('at interest') might equally well be read; but $\pi\delta\rhoo\nu$ is expected at this point, though what the next words are is obscure. The amount of the property-qualification in extant paperi concerning $\pi\rho\dot{\kappa}\rho\rho\epsilon s$ $d\rho\gamma\nu\rho\iota\kappa\hat{\omega}\nu$ in villages ranges from 700 drachmae to 3 talents 3,200 dr.; cf. 1406. EDICT OF CARACALLA CONCERNING SENATORS.

A.D. 213-17. Plate I.

This short edict of Caracalla has lost the ends of lines, but the sense is clear. Senators who assault or use unseemly language towards the president or other members of their body are to be deprived of their rank. Senates were first instituted in the nome-capitals by Septimius Severus about A.D. 202, as at Alexandria (cf. Wilcken, Grunds. 41), and their meetings, for reports of which see 1413–15, are likely to have been rather turbulent, at any rate in the early days.

The date of the edict, which was published at some other town than Alexandria, perhaps Babylon (cf. l. 10, n.), is defined, not, as usual, by the consuls or regnal year, but by reference to a local official, who was apparently described as $\tilde{\epsilon}\nu a\rho\chi os$ $\tilde{a}\rho\chi o\nu$ and was an inhabitant of Heliopolis; cf. ll. 11–12, n. The occurrence of Germanicus Maximus among the Emperor's titles indicates that the edict was not issued earlier than the autumn of A. D. 213. This copy may perhaps be a few years later, but was probably written before the end of the reign. Three other edicts of Caracalla on papyrus are extant in P. Giessen 40, and a rescript by him in P. Flor. 382. i. 5–9. 1406 is perhaps incomplete at the top, and another edict may have preceded.

7. An adverb, e.g. αἰσχρολόγως, probably followed μέμψ[ητα]ι.

9–10. [καταστή]σεται: cf. 1469. 5 ἀναπόστατοι καταστη $[\sigma]$ όμεθα. [κατασταθή]σεται is rather long, and the verb in ll. 8-9 is middle.

10. $\epsilon \nu B[\alpha \beta \nu \lambda \hat{\omega} \nu \iota]$: the supposed β is very doubtful, for the traces suit κ better; ϵ is the only other letter possible. Imperial edicts in paper usually give the date of publication at Alexandria, but P. Giessen 40. ii. 12-13 states the dates of promulgation first at Rome and then at Alexandria, and two of the rescripts in 1407 are dated respectively from Ne appolis (l. 8) and Rome (l. 16). The mention of Heliopolis in l. 13 as the place of origin of the magistrate indicates an Egyptian place-name here, and supports $\mathbb{B}[a\beta\nu\lambda\hat{\omega}\nu]$, which was in the Heliopolite nome according to Ptolemy. Of towns beginning with K $\mathbb{K}\dot{\alpha}\nu\omega$ 0 was the most important, but was far from Heliopolis; $\mathbb{K}\epsilon\rho\kappa\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\nu\rho$ 0 (Strabo, p. 806) or $\mathbb{K}\epsilon\rho\kappa\dot{\alpha}\sigma\rho\rho$ 0 (Hdt. ii. 15) was in the Letopolite nome opposite Heliopolis, but does not seem a likely place for the publication of the edict, which may have been issued during Caracalla's visit to Egypt in 215, like P. Giessen 40. ii. 16-29.

11–12. ὑπὸ στοὰ δημοσία: for the precise definition of the place of publication cf. B. G. U. 140. 5–6 ἐν ἐν τῆ] $\pi[a]$ ρεμβολ(ῆ) τῆ[s] χειμασία[s λεγιῶνο(s) τρίτης] $\text{Kν}[\rho]$ ηναικῆς κτλ., 35 recto. 9–13 (cf. Wilcken, Archiv, i. 130) προετέθη ἐν ᾿Αλεξ]ανδρεία . . . ἐκ συνκολλησί[μων βιβλιδίων] Αἰδεινίου Ἰουλιανοῦ ἐπάρχου Αἰγύπτου . . . προτεθέντων τῆ ἐνεστώ[ση ἡμέρα ὑπὸ τῶν ὀφφι]κιαλίων αὐτοῦ ἐν τῷ μεγάλῳ Ἰσίῳ. For a στοά at Hermopolis cf. C. P. Herm. 119 recto. iii. 16 πρὸς τῆ καμάρα ὑπὸ στοὰν ᾿Αντινοιτικῆς πλατίας. In P. Giessen 40. ii. 13 and probably in 35. 13 ὑπό after προετέθη means 'by', referring to the official making the publication; but though δημοσί[ο]ν might perhaps be read, we are unable to reconcile the preceding word with a proper name. Σοῦλ, a name found in P. Grenf. ii. 76. 13, is unsatisfactory; moreover δημοσίου is not very likely as a title by itself, i. e. equivalent to ὀφφικιαλίου (cf. 35), and δημοσίου ἐν[..... does not suggest any known title.

έν[άρχου ἄρ]χουτος: ἔναρχος with titles of officials is very frequent. ἄρχουτες in the plural is common as a general term for municipal magistrates, e.g. gymnasiarchs, cosmetae, or prytaneis, and "hogas frequently occurs as a title 'ex-magistrate' (cf. Preisigke, Städt. Beamtenwesen, 8, 14, and Wilcken, Archiv, iv. 119); ἄρχων is found in Egypt in the phrase πρυτανικός ἄρχων (592; cf. Wilcken, Grundz. 47; A.D. 122-3), in the acclamations of the $\delta\hat{\eta}\mu$ os in honour of a prytanis (41. 12 τον ἄρχοντα τ $\hat{\eta}$ πόλι), P. Thead. 32. 13 Αὐρήλιος Φίρμος ἄρχ(ων) ἀποδέκτης κριθής, where it corresponds to βουλ(εντής) and ἀγορ(ανομήσας) in the titles of the ἐπιμεληταὶ κριθῆς in l. 1 and means 'magistrate', P. Amh. 146. 4 ἢτιάθησαν ἐπὶ τοῦ ἄρχουτος (fifth century), referring to an unspecified magistrate, a third-century ostracon from Oxyrhynchus (Preisigke, S. B. 1951) Φιλήας ἄρχων, and 1526. 10 Διογένης . . . ἄρχ(ων), both referring to unspecified magistrates of Oxyrhynchus: it is also applied to the praefect in fourth-century papyri, P. Leipzig 33. ii. 16, 34. 19, 37. 27. In C. I. G. 4822 (= Dittenberger, Or. Gr. Inser. 698; early second century) ἄρχων Θηβῶν is interpreted by Dittenberger as equivalent to $\Theta\eta\beta\acute{a}\rho\chi\eta\varsigma$, an official who dates from the Ptolemaic period and seems to have been the military governor of the town of Thebes. On this analogy "payros might be interpreted as the military governor of the town in question (Babylon?; cf. l. 10, n.), rather than as equivalent to e.g. πρυτανικός ἄρχων or gymnasiarch, especially as a precise official title is expected in this context; but the evidence of recent papyri considerably diminishes the force of Dittenberger's distinction between ἄρχων and ἄρχοντες in Egypt.

1407. IMPERIAL RESCRIPTS.

Fr. 1 16.1 × 16.3 cm.

Late third century.

These two fragments of a series of Imperial rescripts (cf. 1020, P. Flor. 382, Giessen 40) are too small to be intelligible, the lines being of great length. The larger contains the ends of lines of three such rescripts and a few letters from the beginnings of lines of apparently a fourth, but the document beginning at 1. 33 was different, being perhaps a letter of or to the senate of Oxyrhynchus. The margin at the bottom is preserved, but not at the top. On the verso in a different hand of about Λ. D. 300 are parts of 12 lines of an official letter of some kind with a margin at the top, a circumstance which suggests that the papyrus was cut down before the verso was used. The small fragment (2), from a rescript or edict of Aurelian, has on the verso parts of two lines of the letter, and the margin above the writing there corresponds to that on the verso of Fr. 1. The spacing of the lines in Fr. 2, recto, shows that they do not belong to Fr. 1. i. 1–3; but they may well belong to Fr. 1. ii. 22–4, where in 1. 22 the enlarged and projecting initial letter suggests $A[i v o \kappa \rho \delta \tau \omega \rho$. Otherwise, if Fr. 2 is placed e.g. above Fr. 1, it is necessary to disconnect the lines on the verso of Frs. 1 and 2 and to suppose a blank space between them, which is not very likely.

Of the three rescripts in Col. i the first (ll. 1-8) is dated Phaophi 17 (Oct. 14) of the 7th year, and evidently the consuls were Nummius Tuscus and Mummius . . . (1. 7) and more than one Emperor was reigning (cf. 1. 6 $\eta \mu \epsilon \hat{i} s$); but all that survives of the Imperial titles is $|\tau os$, probably $\Sigma_{\epsilon} \beta a \sigma | \tau os$. Nummius Tuscus and Annius Anullinus, the consuls of 295 (the 11-12th year of Diocletian which = the 10-11th of Maximian) are clearly unsuitable, and the consuls of 258 under Valerian and Gallienus, M. Nummius Tuscus and Bassus, must be meant. The gentile name of that Bassus was not known. A Pomponius Bassus was consul for the second time in 271 with Aurelian, but he seems to be identical with the Bassus who was consul with Aemilianus in 259, not with the colleague of Tuscus, who belongs to the previous year, and, as now appears, was called Mummius [Bassus]. A chronological question of considerable interest is raised by a comparison of the consular dating with that by the regnal year; for the 7th (Egyptian) year of Valerian and Gallienus is generally considered to have been 259-60, whereas, if Oct. 14 of it fell within the consulship of Tuscus and Bassus, the 7th year was 258-9. In 1201. 20, however, Sept. 24 of the 6th year fell in the consulship of Tuscus and Bassus, and it is not necessary that the consulship in 1407. 7 should synchronize with the regnal year in I. 8; for while the former presumably refers to the day on which the rescript was written, the latter, which is separated from the former by a mention of the place of writing, may well refer to the day on which the rescript was published at Alexandria (cf. c.g. 1405. 12-13); and, as P. Giessen 40. i. 12-15 shows, there could be an interval of seven months between the writing of an edict and its publication in Egypt. It is true that, if the 7th year is 259-60, the interval between the writing and the publication of the rescript was, even if it was written quite at the end of 258, as much as $9\frac{1}{2}$ months, and may have been much longer, and the earlier date for the 7th year of Valerian and Gallienus would remove the difficulty caused by the datings in the 7th year of Aurelian. But the astronomical evidence provided by two horoscopes of the present volume confirms the generally accepted date for the 7th year of Valerian and Gallienus, 259–60; cf. 1476. int., where the chronology of this period is discussed.

The rescript seems to have been a more or less favourable answer to a petition (cf. ll. $6-7 \, \sigma o i \, \epsilon \pi \iota \kappa o \nu \rho o i \, [\mu \epsilon \nu]$), and to have been written from Ne]apolis (l. 8), but whether this refers to Naples, Cavalla, or Neapolis near Alexandria is not clear. Valerian is generally thought to have spent a year or more in the East before his capture by Sapor, which occurred in his 7th or 8th Egyptian year. The restoration of the Imperial titles in ll. 1-2 is obscure owing to the uncertainty regarding the length of the lines; cf. note ad loc.

The second rescript (II. 9–16) was issued from Rome by an Emperor bearing the titles Pius Felix Augustus, who was therefore later than Caracalla, and probably not earlier than Gallienus; for the concluding rescript was issued by Aurelian, and a chronological order may have been observed here, though not found in P. Flor. 382. That it was a rescript rather than an edict is not definitely proved, but from its position between two rescripts is highly probable. Lines 10–11 appear to be concerned with an official appointment, which, as is shown by the following lines, had some bearing on ναύκληρου and a πρυτανεία. Perhaps the corn-supply was the main subject, but ἐφέσευς, 'appeals' (cf. 1185. 6), are mentioned in l. 15.

The third rescript (ll. 17-21) was in the form of a short letter to the senate and people of a city, and in some way related to παίδες, perhaps children of gymnasiarchs or other municipal officials; cf. 1417. There is no clear connexion between the various documents in 1407, but they may be all concerned with municipal affairs, especially if ll. 33 sqq. are a letter of the senate of Oxyrhynchus. The Imperial titles Pius Felix Augustus in l. 17 come almost exactly under the same titles in l. 9, which suggests that the name of the Emperor was the same; but l. 18 contains additional titles, showing that he was either tribune or imperator for the third time, consul, and pater patriae. These titles exclude Gallienus, but would suit Claudius II or Aurelian, who are on the whole most likely to be the author or authors of the second and third rescripts, since after a gap at the top of Col. ii, in which one or two rescripts may be lost, the author of the rescript (or edict) in 11. 22-32 was, if Fr. 2 is rightly placed, Aurelian, apparently without Vaballathus. Claudius was consul in 269 (according to some inscriptions for the second time), and his third tribunician year was apparently Dec. 10, 269-Dec. 9, 270 (cf. 1476. int.), while Aurelian was consul in 271, his third tribunician year being apparently Dec. 10, 271-Dec. 9, 272; ΰπατος, however, does not necessarily imply that the Emperor in question was actually consul rather than that he had been consul. Claudius, who had fewer titles of the Germanicus Maximus class than Aurelian, is on the whole the most suitable Emperor, and, as is shown in the note ad loc., ll. 17–18 can easily be restored on the hypothesis of a line of about 63 or 80 letters; but it is difficult to combine either of these alternatives with the restoration of ll. 1–2. Since 1407 was written in the reign of Aurelian or a little later (certainly before 300), Tacitus, Probus, and Carinus are possible authors of the second and (except Tacitus) of the third rescript; but the introduction of one of them or of an Emperor earlier than Gallienus would violate the chronological sequence of these rescripts, which has a prima facie probability in spite of P. Flor. 382.

I-2. The τ of $\frac{1}{3}$ of $\frac{1}{3}$ of $\frac{1}{3}$ is fairly certain, γ and σ being the only alternatives; $\sum \epsilon \beta a \sigma \tau \delta s$ or Méyto ros therefore seems inevitable. In the 7th year of Valerian and Gallienus, Saloninus was Caesar or Augustus (cf. 1273. 44 and 1563. 1), and on the analogy of ll. 9, 17, 22 and 889, part of an edict of Diocletian and Maximian in A. D. 300, ll. 1-2 or 1-3 would be expected to run Αὐτοκράτωρ Καΐσαρ (so also probably 889. I, rather than Αὐτοκράτωρ alone) Πούβλιος Λικίννιος Οὐαλεριανός Γερμανικός Μέγιστος Εὐσεβής Εὐτυχής Σεβαστός καὶ Αὐτοκράτωρ Καΐσαρ Πούβλιος Λικίννιος Οὐαλεριανὸς Γαλλιῆνος Γερμανικὸς Μέγιστος Εὐσεβὴς Εὐτυχὴς Σεβαστὸς καὶ Πούβλιος Λικίννιος Κορνήλιος Σαλωνίνος Οὐαλεριανός ὁ ἐπιφανέστατος Καΐσαρ, followed by a name in the dative with or without χαίρειν. Γερμανικὸς Μέγιστος might however well be omitted in both cases, as it is in C. P. Herm. 119 verso. iii. 8-16, a rescript of Gallienus alone. If]ros belongs to Γερμανικός Μέγιστος in Valerian's titles, l. 1 has 62 letters and ll. 2-3 would have to be restored Ovia [1] [1] [1] per lea [1] vos referring to Gallienus; but this reading seems to be inadmissible, for (1) if a ρ occurred in the lacuna before ιa , the tail of it ought to have been visible, (2) l. 2 would be expected to be 1 or 2 letters shorter than l. 1, whereas with Ovia [] [[] e la at the end it would be 5 letters longer, (3) l. 3 would hardly provide any space for a name between the conclusion of Gallienus' titles and]αι πρὸς τό, to say nothing of the omission of Saloninus. If $|\tau_{0s}|$ belongs to $\Sigma \epsilon \beta a \sigma |\tau_{0s}|$ in Valerian's titles, l. 1 would have 84 letters or, omitting Γερμανικός Μέγιστος, 66, but the titles of Gallienus would still be expected to reach the end of l. 2, and in order to explain [a.]. [...]a there as part of the name of the recipient of the rescript it would be necessary to suppose the omission of not only Saloninus but part of Gallienus' titles (e. g. Αὐτοκράτωρ Καῖσαρ, if the plural was employed in l. 1). These difficulties can be avoided by supposing the lines to have been much longer than 66 or 84 letters and referring | τος to Gallienus. The restoration Αὐτοκράτορες Καίσαρες Πούβ. Λικ. Οὐαλ. Γερμ. Μέγ. καὶ Πούβ. Λικ. Οὐαλ. Γαλλ. Γερμ. Μέγισ]τος | [Εὐσεβεῖς Εὐτυχεῖς Σεβαστοὶ καὶ Πούβ. Λικ. Κορν. Σαλ. Οὐαλ. ὁ ἐπιφ. Καῖσ., corresponding to the ordinary dating formula of these Emperors, would give 124 letters for l. 1, or, if Αὐτοκρ. Καΐσ. was repeated, 136. With Εὐσ. Εὐτ. Σεβ. repeated after each Emperor and Σεβασζτός referring to Gallienus I. I would have 180 letters if Γερμανικός Μέγιστος was inserted, 144 if it was omitted in both cases. Any one of these restorations would provide room for both the insertion of Saloninus' name in l. 2 and a space before a[a]. [...]a, but is open to the objections that in l. 17 certainly, and in l. 9 probably, only one Emperor's name and titles occupy the whole of a line, and, secondly, that the additional titles added in l. 18 after $\Sigma \in \beta a\sigma \tau \acute{o}s$ suit a line of about 62 or 80 letters, so that with a line of over 140 letters there must have been an unusual insertion there. 889. 2 adds νικητής to the titles of Diocletian, but places it between Εὐτυχής and Σεβαστός, a position which is incompatible with l. 17. Titles like Γερμανικός Μέγιστος can follow Σεβαστός, though it is more usual for them to precede; but they cannot be used for expanding l. 18 without producing a deficiency in l. 17. That Γερμανικός Μέγιστος, which is a constant title of the Emperors from Valerian to Probus, except Tacitus, was omitted in ll. 17-18, where the Emperor's titles are fuller than in ll. 1 and 9, is unlikely, and on the whole a line of about 80 letters, making $]\tau os$ in l. 1 $\Sigma \epsilon \beta a\sigma]\tau os$ as in ll. 9 and 17, seems most probable; but we are unable to solve the difficulty of ll. 1-2 satisfactorily. To suppose that Valerian owing to his absence in the East was omitted is not in accordance with $\hat{\eta}\mu\epsilon\hat{u}s$ in l. 6 or with extant laws of A. D. 258-60 in the Cod. Justin., and the supposition that the rescript belongs to another reign altogether seems to be incompatible with ll. 7-8. Above l. 1 is a blank space.

7. Νουμμίφ Τούσκφ: the mention of the consuls' names in the dative is usual in rescripts, e.g. 889. 11. These were no doubt followed by the day on the Roman calendar, which is not likely to have corresponded to Phaophi 17; cf. int. The vestige of the first letter of Νουμμίφ is insufficient to decide between ν and μ, but though sometimes called Memmius Tuscus (or Memmius Fuscus, as in Vopisc. Vit. Aurelian. 13), his correct name, M. Num. Tusco, occurs in C. I. L. vi. 2388. Nummius Tuscus, consul in 295 and apparently praefectus urbi in 302-3, may have been his son; cf. Prosop. Imp. Rom. ii. 421.

9. The Emperor is very likely the same as in l. 17; cf. int.

13. μετα- here and in l. 14 may well be part of μεταγωγή or μεταφορά (cf. B. G. U. 286. 8), referring to the transport of corn; cf. int.

14. Perhaps δί καιον, but e. g. 'Ρω μαΐον can be read.

17–18. Before τὸ] τρίτον either δημαρχικῆς ἐξουσίας οι Αὐτοκράτωρ is to be restored. The meaning of the numbers following imperator in late third-century inscriptions and coins is disputed. Dessau (Ephem. Epigr. vii. 429 sqq.) considers that from the time of Gallienus onwards they refer to regnal years, not to victories as in previous reigns, and probably, if Αὐτοκράτωρ τὸ . . . occurred here, the figure coincided with that of the tribunician year. The usual order of these Imperial official titles was (1) pontifex maximus, (2) tribunicia potestas, (3) imperator, (4) consul; but there are numerous exceptions. The restoration ἀρχιερεύς μέγιστος, δημαρχικῆς ἐξουσίας τὸ τρίτον Αὐτοκράτωρ τὸ] τρίτον ὕπατος πατ. πατρ. produces 80 letters in l. 18, or without Αὐτοκράτωρ τὸ τρ., which is often omitted after 250, 62. With the lower figure Αὐτ. Καίσ. Μάρκος Αὐρήλιος Κλαύδιος Εὐσ. Εὐτ. Σεβ. would make 60 letters for l. 17, Αὐτ. Καίσ. Λούκιος Δομίτιος Αὐρηλιανὸς κτλ. 63 (cf. int.), so that there would be no room for titles like Γερμανικὸς Μέγιστος, the insertion of which in l. 17 would yield a line of about 80 letters. A line much in excess of 80 letters would create a great difficulty with regard to the restoration of l. 18; cf. n. on ll. 1–2.

19. 'Οξυρυγχιτῶν τῆς λαμπρῶς καὶ λαμπροτάτης πόλεως τῆ κρατίστη βο]υλῆ (cf. B. G.U. 1074.

10) would give a line of 72 letters; cf. notes on ll. 1-2, 17-18, and 33. But there is no particular reason for supposing a mention of Oxyrhynchus at this point.

24. Kaî]σαρ, γάρ, and ἀργυ[ρ are inadmissible.

33. Probably 'Οξ[υρυγχιτῶν τῆς λαμ. καὶ λαμπροτ. πόλεως ή κρατίστη βουλή (οι τῆ κρ. βουλή); cf. l. 19, n. and int.

1408. REPORT OF A TRIAL: CIRCULAR AND EDICT OF A PRAEFECT.

34·1 × 25 cm.

About A.D. 210-14.

The recto of this papyrus contains a taxing-list concerning State lands in the Arsinoïte nome (1446). On the verso in a large, almost uncial hand is a nearly complete broad column, containing (1) the conclusion of a report of a trial concerning a surety before Sopater, an official whose rank is not stated, (2) a circular of the praefect Juncinus to the strategi of the Heptanomia and Arsinoïte nome concerning the suppression of robbers, enclosing (3) an edict on the same subject for publication; cf. 1100 and B. G. U. 646. This edict was continued in the next column, which is lost, and at least one column (cf. l. 1, n.) of the report of the trial is missing. Juncinus is known from P. Giessen 40. ii. 14 to have been in office on Mecheir 4 of the 21st year of Caracalla (Jan. 29, 213) after Subatianus Aquila, who apparently was still praefect on Epeiph 29 of the 18th year (July 23, 210; cf. P. Flor. 6), and before Septimius Heraclitus, who had entered office by Phamenoth 20 of the 23rd year (March 16, 215; cf. B. G. U. 362. vii. 8). The circular of Juncinus is dated in l. 21 Phaophi 28 (Oct. 25), and the missing number of the regnal year therefore ranged from 19 to 23.

As in B. G. U. 15, which bears a formal resemblance to 1408, the trial (ll. 2-10) seems to have no connexion with the following edict, and may have taken place some years earlier. The contending parties were Tryphon, whom the judge speaks of as ἀξιολογώτατος and who perhaps had occupied some official position, and on the other hand Asclepiades and apparently his father, who had become mutual sureties for Tryphon in connexion with the payment of a fine (πρόστιμου). The exaction of this was imminent, and Asclepiades wished to go away for a time, probably to present an appeal to the praefect (1.7, n.); but to this proceeding Tryphon objected, and the ultimate decision was that Asclepiades should return within fifteen days and pay to Tryphon the full amount of the surety in question. Where the trial took place and whether Sopater was a local official (e.g. strategus of the Arsinoïte nome) or an Alexandrian magistrate (e.g. archidicastes) are not clear. He may be identical with Julius Sopater, έπιστρατηγήσας in 226 (1459. 7). The beginnings of lines are lost throughout, and in most cases a few letters at the ends are wanting. The enlarged ν of $\kappa a \tau \epsilon \lambda \theta \epsilon \hat{\imath} \nu$ in 1. 8 (cf. the ν of $\chi a i \rho \epsilon \iota \nu$ in 1. 11) determines the ending point, and the certain restorations at the beginnings of 11. 4 and 8 fix the size of the initial lacuna in ll. 2-10. In the circular this seems to have been about three letters smaller after 1. 11, an initial lacuna of the same size as that in 11. 2-10 being evidently unsuitable to e. g. ll. 14-15 $\pi d[\nu|\tau\epsilon]s$. In the edict the probable restorations at the beginnings of ll. 22 and 26 suggest that the lines uniformly began about three letters to the right of ll. 12-20; but, since the lacunae at the beginnings of 11. 23-6 are larger than in 11. 11-20 and the restorations more doubtful, ll. 23-6 may have been uniform with ll. 12-20, l. 22, which is introductory, being in that case slightly indented.

The circular of Juncinus (ll. 11–21) concerning the publication of his edict is couched in a severe tone, the word $\kappa l \nu \delta v \nu o s$ occurring thrice. Evidently Egypt was in a disturbed condition at this period owing to organized bands of robbers, as in the time of Marcus Aurelius, when the praefect M. Sempronius Liberalis dealt with the subject in an edict extant in B. G. U. 372 (= W. Chrest. 19). Juncinus' edict opened with general reflexions upon the shelter afforded to criminals (II. 22-6).

Tryphon said, "On this condition, however, that if payment is demanded from me before the end of the period, I shall have the right of arrest against him." Sopater said, "That is completely provided for you, even without a petition and a memorandum, by the declaration, the undertaking of the surety, and the trustworthy note of hand on behalf of the father." Asclepiades said, "So far as my share is concerned." Tryphon said, "The [two?] are mutual sureties, for there is one appeal and one fine." Sopater said to Asclepiades, "Take care that you return within the fifteen days and pay in the whole amount of the fine, as your surety for it is mutual, in order that the most estimable Tryphon may have the security."

Baebius Juncinus to the strategi of the Heptanomia and Arsinoite nome, greeting. I have already in a previous letter ordered you to search out robbers with every care, warning you of the peril of neglect, and now I wish to confirm my decision by a decree, in order that all inhabitants of Egypt may know that I am not treating this duty as an affair of secondary importance, but offer rewards to those of you who co-operate, and on the other hand expose to peril those who choose to disobey. The said decree I desire to be made public in both the capitals and the most important places of the nomes, penalties including personal risk being laid upon you if in the future evil-doers are enabled to use violence without being detected. I hope for your health. The .. year, Phaophi 28.

Proclamation of Lucius Baebius Aurelius Juncinus, praefect of Egypt. That it is impossible to exterminate robbers apart from those who shelter them is evident to all, but when they are deprived of their helpers we shall quickly punish them (?). There are many methods of giving them shelter: some do so because they are partners in their misdeeds, others without sharing in these yet . . . '

1. β : a figure apparently referring to the number of the column.

2. Probably ήμέρας τριά κοντα] (οτ τριάκοντα ή μέρας]) δός; cf. l. 8. 3. ἀγωγήν: for the meaning 'arrest' cf. P. Tebt. 39. 22 βουλομένου ἀγωγήν ποιήσασθαι, and ἀγώγιμος in 1471. 22. Later the word is used as equivalent to the Latin actio (cf. Wenger, Stellvertretung 262), a sense which is possible here.

4-5. $\pi\rho[o\sigma]\phi\dot{\omega}\nu\eta\sigma\iota]s$: the ρ is nearly certain, and the final letter cannot be a (ι , ν , or o are the only alternatives to s). The word, which is used for formal declarations, often on oath, addressed to officials (cf. Griech. Texte 4 int.), combines suitably with $\dot{\epsilon}\gamma\gamma\dot{\nu}\eta\dot{s}$ $\dot{a}\nu a\delta o\chi\dot{\eta}$.

5. ὑπὲρ τοῦ πατρόs: he was probably the father of Asclepiades and was included in the ἀλληλέγγνοι in l. 7 and ὑμῶν in l. 9. To suppose that Asclepiades was the father of Tryphon, and that ἀλληλέγγνοι and ὑμῶν refer only to these two persons, does not suit ἐἰσίν in l. 7, for ἐσμέν would in that case be expected. Tryphon cannot be the father of Asclepiades, since the remark of the judge is addressed to Tryphon. That the judge takes official cognizance of a χειρόγραφον and apparently describes it as πιστόν is noteworthy, for it has been sometimes supposed that a private χειρόγραφον was inadmissible as evidence in a court of law unless it had been subjected to δημοσίωσις (so doubtfully Mitteis, Grundz. 83–4); but the present passage does not favour that view, which is also opposed by Jörs, Zeilschr. f. Savignyst. xxxiv. 143 sqq.; cf. 1472. int.

6. There is a slight blank space before $\epsilon \chi \epsilon \iota$, such as the writer frequently leaves between words, but sometimes between letters of the same word. $\tau \delta \pi \iota \sigma [\tau \delta \nu]$ is too far away from τοῦτο in l. 4 to be the object of $\pi a \rho$ | έχει, unless τούτο $\langle v \rangle$ be read there.

7. The word before ἀλλ]ηλέγγνοι was probably a figure, δύο if Asclepiades and his father were meant (cf. l. 5, n.), or e. g. τριs if there were other persons involved in the suit.

ἔκκλητος: sc. δίκη; cf. 1117. 3, 1642. 21, Preisigke, S. B. 5693. 15, P. Amh. 82. 9 as restored by Wilcken, Grundz. 353¹, in each case referring to an appeal to the praefect, which may well be the cause of Asclepiades' approaching departure (ll. 1 and 8). If κατελθεῖν in l. 8 implies that his return journey was down stream, the trial before Sopater must have taken place north of the town to which he was going, so that the latter cannot have been Alexandria. Possibly the trial was held at Alexandria and the praefect happened to be away. If it was held in the Arsinoïte nome (cf. int.) or at Oxyrhynchus, κατελθεῖν can hardly be brought into connexion with a journey for the purpose of appealing to the praefect.

9. ὑμῶν: cf. l. 5, n. For θεματίζειν cf. P. Catt. 1 verso. iv. 28 ἐξαργυρισθέντα τὰ γενήματα [ε] θεματίσθη, and Preisigke, Girowesen, 185. For άξιολ ογώτατος cf. 1490. 1.

11. [Baίβιοs] Ἰουγκῖνοs: so in P. Giessen 40. ii. 14; in l. 22 below his full name was written [Λούκιοs Ba]ίβι[οs] Αὐρήλιοs Ἰ., the restoration of the missing praenomen there being based on his probable identity with the official of that name whose cursus honorum (before his praefecture) is given in C. I. L. x. 7580, and who was probably a descendant of the juridicus of the same name under Hadrian (Prosop. Imp. Rom. i. 224). With [Βαίβιοs] or [Λούκιοs] in the lacuna it is necessary to suppose that l. 11 was uniform with ll. 2–10 and projected about 3 letters beyond ll. 12–20 (cf. int.). A shorter name, e.g. Γάιοs, does not suit l. 22 so well, for the s of Ba[ίβι[οs]] stood above a]θ of κa]θαι[ρ]εῖν in l. 23 and μ of δικη]-μάτων in l. 26, where the restoration of the initial lacuna is fairly certain and requires 12 letters, mostly rather broad, in the space which would occupy only 11 in l. 22, if [Γάιοs] Ba]ίβι[οs] be read there.

13-14. $\frac{\partial \mu}{\partial \rho} = \frac{\partial \mu}$ unusually small at the end of the line.

18. ἐπισημοτάτοις τῶν νομῶν ⟨τόποις⟩: cf. 1100. 3 ἐπὶ τ[ῶν μητροπόλεων καὶ ἐν τοῖς τῶν νομῶν φαὶνερωτάτοις τόποις, Β. G. U. 1086. ii. 4 ἐπισήμοις τ[ῶν νο]μῶν τόποις.

20. ἐρρῶσθαι ὑμᾶς βούλομαι: the usual salutation of a praefect at this period; cf. 1100.

1409. CIRCULARS OF A STRATEGUS AND DIOECETES.

This fairly well preserved papyrus consists of a short letter from the strategus to the δεκάπρωτοι (cf. 1410. int.) of the Oxyrhynchite nome (ll. 1-6 and 23), enclosing for their information a copy of a circular addressed to the strategi and δεκάπρωτοι of the Heptanomia and Arsinoïte nome by the dioecetes, Ulpius Aurelius, concerning the repairing of the dykes and canals in view of the approaching inundation (ll. 7-22). For this purpose a general corvée was apparently imposed on all cultivators (ll. 9-10, note), and in addition to the control to be exercised by the strategi and δεκάπρωτοι special supervisors were to be appointed in accordance with custom (ll. 12-15). The exaction of a money payment in place of personal service was forbidden in a strongly worded injunction (ll. 19-22), which is probably the main point of the circular, but the relation of this injunction to the various imposts in connexion with the repairs of dykes and canals known from earlier papyri is not very clear; cf. l. 20, note. The evidence concerning forced labour on the embankments is summarized by Wilcken, Grunds. 334-8; the working of the principles laid down in 1409 is well illustrated by 1469, a petition written twenty years later by the comarchs of a village to the acting-praefect, which shows the difficulties arising from the multiplication of officials.

Except perhaps 58 and 474, where the rank of the high officials Servaeus Africanus and Plautius Italus is not stated, 1409 is the only extant circular of a Roman dioecetes. Its style and treatment of the subject recall the more lengthy exhortations of the Ptolemaic dioecetae to officials in P. Par. 63 and Tebt. 27. The direction of public works, as well as finance, fell within their province, as is shown by the Petrie papyri; but by the middle of the third century the καθολικός (cf. 1410) seems to have become the chief finance minister, and the continuance of the office of dioecetes is not attested beyond the time of Carinus. Ulpius Aurelius, who may have been the immediate predecessor of Aurelius Proteas (1115. 11 and 1412. int.; six years later), was thus one of the latest holders of the office. The names of these two, and of two dioecctae under Aurelian, Andromachus (γενόμενος διοικητής in Phamenoth of the 2nd year; 1264. 9) and Julius Monimus (1633. 15; Mesore of the 6th year), besides perhaps Moenatides (P. Ryl. 84. 1; A. D. 146), and Septimius Apollonius κοσμητεύσας την διοίκησιν (P. Thead. 14. 18; late third century), are to be added to the list in Wilcken, Grundz. 156.

⁶ Aurelius Harpocration, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, to the decemprimi of the nome, greeting. A copy of the circular letter written to us, the strategi and decemprimi of the Heptanomia and Arsinoïte nome, by his highness the dioecetes, Ulpius Aurelius, concerning the building up of the dykes and the cleansing of the canals is sent to you, dear friends, in order that you may be informed and follow his instructions. The one of you who is the first to receive this missive should communicate it to the rest. I pray for your health, dear friends. The 3rd year of our lord Marcus Aurelius Probus Augustus, Pharmouthi [.].

Ulpius Aurelius to the strategi and decemprimi of the Heptanomia and Arsinoïte nome, greeting. The season for the building up of the dykes and the cleansing of the canals having arrived, I thought it necessary to announce to you by this letter that all the cultivators and . . . ought now to build these up with all zeal on the . . . belonging to them, with a view to both the public gain of all and their own private advantage. For I am persuaded that every one is aware of the benefit resulting from these works. Therefore let it be the care of you, the strategi and decemprimi, both to urge all to devote themselves to this most necessary labour, and to see that the overseers usually elected for the purpose are chosen from magistrates or private persons, who will compel every one to perform his proper work by personal service, according to the rule given in the constitution of the appointment, with no malice or favour, so that the dykes are raised to the ordained height and breadth and the breaches are filled up, in order that they may be able to withstand the flood of the most sacred Nile auspiciously approaching, and that the canals are cleansed up to the so-called standards and the usual width, in order that they may easily contain the coming influx of water for the irrigation of the fields, this being for the common weal, and that absolutely no money is exacted from any one in place of work. If any one dare to attempt exactions or neglect these orders, let him know that not only his property but his life will be at stake for injuring measures designed for the safety of the whole of Egypt. I pray for your health. The 3rd year . . .

Presented by Aurelius Silvanus, assistant, in the 3rd year, Pharmouthi 6.'

1. δεκαπρώτ[oιs τοῦ νομοῦ: δεκαπρ. τοῦ γ (ἔτουs) (cf. P. Tebt. 288. 2 τοῖs πράκτορσι τοῦ ε (ἔτουs)) is less likely; cf. 1410. int.: but δεκαπρ. simply may be read.

3. For the restorations cf. ll. 7-8.

6. The day was not later than the 6th, on which the letter was presented by the $i\pi\eta\rho\dot{\epsilon}\eta\eta s$ (l. 23). In 1119. 5 and 30 there is an interval of six days between the two corresponding dates.

8. For παραγγέλλειν cf. e.g. 1411. 8.

9-10. γε suggests γε ωργούς or γε ωργούντας rather than γε ούχους or νε ουχούντας, since the circular probably applied primarily to δημόσια rather than to ίδιωτικά χώματα (cf. 1469. 5); but the traces of the supposed e may belong to the y. 1469 and 1546 show that, at this period at any rate, a village as a whole was made responsible for providing the necessary labour (cf. Wilcken, Grundz. p. 335, whose argument concerning the mention of the village in εἴργασται-certificates of the second and early third centuries is unconvincing, as remarked in P. Ryl. 211. 7, n.); and a quite general expression (e.g. γε ωργούς καὶ κληρούχους; cf. P. Tebt. 288. 3) is wanted. The meaning of ταῦτα is doubtful. If dependent on ἀπεργάζεσθαι, it may refer either to 1.8 or to a word such as χώματα or ναύβια (cf. 1546. 3) lost in the preceding lacuna, and in that case the word following αὐτοῖς might be πε[ριχώματα], the areas surrounded by embankments (cf. e.g. P. Cairo Preisigke 39. 10), or some other word in agreement with διαφέροντα. But e.g. πε[νθήμερον], referring to the five days work on the embankments, customary in the second or early third century, could be the object of απεργάζεσθαι (cf. B. G. U. 969. i. 25 πενθήμερον μετρείν), which can also be used absolutely, and $\tau a \hat{v} \tau a$ (referring to I. 8) would then be governed by a preceding participle. The π is fairly certain, but possibly a v intervened between it and the s of αὐτοῖς. ὑπ[άρχοντα], however, would produce a tautologous expression. The phrase ἐπὶ τὰ διαφέροντα αὐτοῖs is not likely to have any connexion with the system indicated in 290 (A.D. 83-4), in which an ίδιωτικου χῶμα is ἀγό(μενου) κατ' ἐπιβο(λὴυ) ὧυ ἔκαστ(ος) ἔχει (ἀρουρῶυ), for this method of apportioning work according to the size of a holding was not employed, so far as is known, in dealing with δημόσια χώματα.

13–14. ἐπιμελη] τάs: χωματεπιμεληταί are often mentioned in second-century papyri and ostraca, e. g. P. Giessen 58–9 and 64; cf. the editors' commentary. ἐπείκ ταs (cf. 1257. 13 ἐπείκτου δημοσίου σίτου, 1413. 25 ἐπ. χρυσοῦ στεφάνου, the χωματεπεῖκται found in early Byzantine papyri, e. g. P. Brit. Mus. 1247. 2, and 1469. 7 ὁ τῆ ἐπείξει τῶν χωμάτων ἐπικείμενος) is slightly less probable, since the division $\pi \rho [o\sigma \tau \epsilon \tau a] γμένων$ is found in ll. 20–1 and έπ είξαι occurred in l. 12.

15. κατὰ τὸν δοθέντα ὅρον ἐν τῆ τοῦ ἀποτάκτου συστάσει corresponds to κατὰ τὰ κελευσθέντα ὑπὸ τῶν τὸ ἀπότακτον συστησαμένων in 1187. 12–15 (cf. n. ad loc.), and is to be connected with αἰρεθῆναι, not with ἀποπληρῶσαι. Cf. also πρὸ τῆς τοῦ ἀποτάκτου συστάσεως in 1562. 11.

16. διακόπους: cf. 1469. 6, P. Goodsp. 30. vi. 4 is έργα διακόπου, and P. Brit. Mus. 1246. 7, where l. διακό που.

17. ἀνα[καθαρή]ναι: cf. l. 8 ἀνακαθάρσεως. ἀνα[ψησθή]ναι is also possible; cf. B. G. U. 530. 17 τὸ ὕδρευμα ἀνεψήσθη, P. Ryl. 90. 20 and P. Giessen 42. int.

18. The γνώμονες here seem to be poles for measuring the depth of canals, corresponding to ύψος in l. 16 as διαστήματος does to πλάτος.

19. εἴσροιαν ὑποδέχοιντο: for the optative cf. 1411. 16 εἰ μὴ πειθαρχήσ(ε)ιαν. εἴσροια

(cf. διάρροια) is apparently unattested elsewhere.

20. ἀντὶ τῶν ἔργων ἀργύριον: in the second and early third centuries three kinds of money-payments connected with dykes are known: (1) the ναύβιον (e. g. 1436. 6), (2) the χωματικόν (1438. 20, n.), (3) πενθήμερος ὄνων (P. Ryl. 195. 5). Of these the ναίβιον has generally been explained in accordance with Wilcken, Ost. i. 263, as an impost in place of personal service, and the same explanation is applied by Kenyon to the χωματικόν, but is not accepted by Wilcken, Grundz. 331; cf. Ost. i. 342. The πενθήμ, ὄνων corresponds to the μετρήματα ὑπὲρ τῆς πενθημέρου in B. G. U. 969. 20-4, and was clearly an adderatio, but whether the payer in

P. Ryl. 195 was a (δημόσιος) κτηνοτρόφος, as in B. G. U. 969, does not appear. How far the system of taxation in Egypt was altered between the reigns of Severus Alexander and Diocletian, who introduced extensive changes, is still obscure owing to the paucity of evidence, and perhaps by the time of Probus the government had become much stricter than formerly in enforcing compulsory labour, as is also suggested by the apparently comprehensive character of the corvée enjoined in ll. 9-10. We are not inclined to think that the dioecetes was referring either to the ναύβιον impost, which used to be levied on land-owners at the rate of 100 copper drachmae per arura upon κάτοικοι and 150 dr. upon ἐναφέσιοι (P. Brit. Mus. 372 ap. P. Tebt. ii, pp. 339–43, and P. Ghent verso. ii–iii ap. P. Ryl. ii, p. 421: ἐναφέσιοι were probably holders of κληρουχική and ἰδιωτική γη; cf. P. Ryl. ii, p. 252) and was classed with ἀρταβία as one of the γνήσια δημόσια (P. Amh. 85. 9 and 86. 10; cf. P. Ghent, l.c., where the ἀρταβία calculation follows that of the ναύβιον), or to the χωματικόν, which was paid by dwellers in the metropoleis as well as by those in villages, and was levied at a uniform rate of 6 dr. 4 obols apart from προσδιαγραφόμενα. The πενθήμερος ὄνων cannot have affected persons who did not own asses, and being rarely mentioned does not seem to have been a far-reaching impost. The bulk of the corvée must at all times have fallen upon cultivators of $\beta a \sigma i \lambda i \kappa \dot{\eta} \gamma \hat{\eta}$ or landless persons, and if the $\nu a \dot{i} \beta i \omega \nu$ and $\chi \omega \mu a \tau i \kappa \dot{\nu} \nu$ imposts survived unchanged to the reign of Probus, probably they were not affected by this circular, which seems to be directed mainly against irregular exactions of money in place of personal service. Payments by individuals of varying amounts for ναύβια occur in the fourth century (P. Gen. 65), and in P. Flor. 346 (fifth century?) there is mention of τὰ ἐξ ἔθους διδόμενα ὑπέρ δε (l. τε) μισθών καὶ ἀναβολῆς τοῦ δημοσίου χώματος, so that money-payments in connexion with the repairs of embankments in any case continued to be exacted in Byzantine times.

23. ὑπηρέτης: cf. l. 6, n. In 59. 22 ὑπ(ηρέτης) βουλ(ης) is more likely than ὑπ(ομνηματογράφος) βουλ(ευτής).

1410. EDICT OF A CATHOLICUS.

 13.5×7.8 cm.

Early fourth century.

An order, of which the conclusion is wanting, issued on the authority of the catholicus, Magnius (?) Rufus, making it illegal to reimpose the office of decemprimus upon persons who had held that position since a particular year of two unnamed Emperors. From the handwriting the papyrus appears to belong to the early part of the fourth century, but there may well have been an interval between the date mentioned in 1.5 and the actual date of the papyrus, which was probably stated in the missing lower portion. Owing partly to the uncertainty with regard to the reading of the figure in the first of the two regnal years mentioned, partly to the difficulties of chronology in the period from 305 to 323, it is not quite clear which Emperors are meant, but probably in 1.5 the 8th year refers to Maximian and the 1st to Galerius (and Constantius), i.e. A. D. 292-3, and the omission of Diocletian's regnal year (which was one in advance of Maximian's) is to be explained by the supposition that 1410 was written during 305-13 after his abdication, when Egypt was governed by Maximinus Daza who belonged to the Herculian faction; cf. l. 5, n. During Diocletian's and Maximian's joint reign there are instances of Maximian's year being ignored, apparently for the sake of brevity (e.g. 895. 6), but none of Diocletian's years being so treated, though cf. 1416. 29, n.

The δεκάπρωτοι, who were introduced into Egypt by Septimius Severus together with the Bovhai, and were generally, perhaps always, senators, had arduous duties as collectors of revenue both in corn (e.g. 1444. 3) and money (e.g. 1442.5); cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 626 and Grunds. 217-18. Seeck, Klio, i. 147-88, Brandis in Pauly-Wissowa, Realencycl. s. v., Gelzer, Studien, 42-3, Jouguet, Vic munic, 366 sqq. It has generally been supposed that the tenure of the office was one year, but Seeck, mainly on the evidence of two Thyatira inscriptions (C. I. G. 3490 and B. C. H. xi. 473), considered that the period lasted 5-15 years, and identified the $\delta \epsilon \kappa \dot{a} \pi \rho$. with the quinquennales. 1410 does not state definitely the length of their tenure, but implies that re-election was customary; and the apparent interval of twelve years or more between the date of the papyrus and the year when the $\partial \epsilon \kappa \dot{\alpha} \pi \rho$, in question entered office rather suggests that the normal tenure was longer than a year. Since 1257, where a person is still called δεκάπρωτος four years after entering office, supports Seeck's view, and the objection to it urged by Wilcken, that the analogy of the tenure of municipal offices favours an annual period, breaks down in the light of new evidence that municipal offices were held for a longer period than a year (1413. 17 and 1418. 15), a five-years' tenure for δεκάπρ. in Egypt is the most probable. Apart from 1410, they are not mentioned in papyri later than the reign of Diocletian, and Gelzer supposes that they disappeared when in 307-10 the new division of the nomes into $\pi \hat{u}_{\gamma 0}$ was substituted for the toparchies with which the $\partial \epsilon \kappa \dot{\alpha} \pi \rho$, were connected. The present regulation therefore probably indicates an important, perhaps the principal, step on the way towards the abolition of the office.

12. l. $\delta \epsilon \kappa a [\pi \rho \omega] r \epsilon i as$: the scribe noticed his original error, but inadvertently crossed through the first ι instead of the second.

'On the authority of Magnius Rufus, the most illustrious catholicus of the praefecture of Egypt and Libya.

Decemprimi from the 8th which = the 1st year must not be re-nominated by any one to the office of decemprimus; for it is necessary that in future they should be protected from being appointed again to the duties of that office, having once discharged them. Any person who has been reappointed decemprimus once more . . .'

1. Έξ αὐθεντείας: cf. P. Leipzig 33. 7 έξ αὐθ. τοῦ δικαστηρίου παραγγ[ελ]εῖς and Mitteis's int., p. 92.

1-2. $May[\nu i]ov$ 'Po $\dot{\nu}\phi ov$: a procurator in Spain called P. Magnius Rufus Magonianus is known from C. I. L. ii. 2029, and a procurator of Neapolis by Alexandria in 247-8 called Magnius Rufinianus, probably a relative, occurs in B. G. U. 8. ii. 26. Our catholicus may well have belonged to the same family. The scribe has apparently used the second half of the μ to represent a, as in 1. 10 he used the a of νa to represent half the following μ . The remains of the letter before the lacuna suggest γ rather than ϵ or ι , and there is barely room for $M \in [\sigma \sigma i] \circ [v, \text{ much less } M \in [\tau \tau i] \circ [v.$

2-4. The addition of Libya to Egypt in the title of the catholicus is new. He is generally called ὁ διασημ. καθολ. (in C. I. G. 4807 of the year 341 λαμπρότατος) with or without Αἰγύπτου (e. g. 1509. 6); cf. C. I. L. iii. 17 v(ir) p(erfectissimus) rat(ionalis) Aeg(ypti). Libya seems to have been united to Egypt by about Λ. D. 300. The earliest mentions of the union apart from the present passage are B. C. H. i. 85 ὁ κράτιστος συνήγορος τοῦ ἱερωτάτου ταμείου ᾿Αλεξανδρείας καὶ Αἰγύπτου πάσης καὶ Λιβύης Μαρμαρικῆς (late third or fourth century), and C. I. L. iii. 18 v(ir) p(erfectissimus) mag(ister) privat(ae) Aeg(ypti) et Lib(yae) (fourth century). On the subsequent varying relationship of the two provinces see J. Maspero, Organisation militaire de l'Ég. 23-5.

5. η ($\tilde{\epsilon}\tau ovs$) $\kappa a \tilde{\epsilon}$ ($\tilde{\epsilon}\tau ovs$): the traces of the first figure suit η better than ιa or β , which are the only alternatives. A joint reign with a difference of γ between the two figures indicates Maximian and Galerius, i. e. Λ . D. 292-3; cf. int. To refer the 8th year to Probus and the 1st to his successors Carus, Carinus, and Numerian, i. e. Λ . D. 282-3, or the 8th year to Gallienus and the 1st to the usurpers Macrianus and Quietus, i. e. Λ . D. 260-1 (cf. 1411. int.), is unsatisfactory, since a ($\tilde{\epsilon}\tau ovs$) simply would be expected, and both the handwriting and the mention of Libya suggest a later date than the 2nd or 3rd year of Carinus or the 2nd of Macrianus and Quietus, which would be the latest years available for the date of the papyrus itself. With ιa ($\tilde{\epsilon}\tau ovs$) $\kappa a \tilde{\epsilon}$ a ($\tilde{\epsilon}\tau ovs$) the figures would suit Constantine and Crispus, i. e. Λ . D. 316-17 (cf. P. Thead. 6. 5). The ignoring of Licinius, who was in possession of Egypt from 313-23 and is mentioned by himself without Constantine in P. Thead. 49 (his regnal years are uniformly two behind those of Constantine), could be explained by the supposition that 1410 was written after 323, when his memory was obliterated. With β ($\tilde{\epsilon}\tau ovs$) $\kappa a \tilde{\epsilon}$ a ($\tilde{\epsilon}\tau ovs$) the Emperors would certainly be Diocletian and Maximian, and the papyrus could easily be assigned to a later year of their reign; but the β of $M\beta i\eta s$ in l. 4 (the only other β that occurs in 1410) is made quite differently. A curious date in 1318, the 11th year of Galerius Augustus and [.]th of Maximinus Caesar, which seems to belong to the period 305–10, the first figure being apparently erroneous, affords a parallel for the omission of the Jovian Augustus (Constantius or Severus) in Egypt under the rule of the Herculian faction, such as we have supposed to be the case here.

10. $\mu \dot{\eta}$: the letters are imperfectly preserved, and the scribe seems to have omitted the the first half of the μ owing to confusion with the preceding a; cf. ll. 1-2, n. A negative is essential for the sense.

1411. PROCLAMATION OF A STRATEGUS.

A.D. 260.

This interesting document is a notice issued by the strategus Ptolemaeus also called Nemesianus, ordering bankers and all other persons engaged in commercial transactions to accept the new Imperial coinage. The papyrus belongs to about the middle of the third century, and a strategus of that name is known from 1555. I to have been in office at Oxyrhynchus under Macrianus and Ouietus, who held Egypt during nearly all the 8th and part of the 9th year of Gallienus (cf. 1476. int.). To their brief reign accordingly 1411 also is in all probability to be referred (cf. ll. 20-1, n.). The order was called forth by complaints of the δημόσιοι (l. 2, note) that the proprietors of banks of exchange (κολλυβιστικαὶ τράπεζαι; cf. l. 4, note) were closing their doors in preference to accepting the coin; and the trouble was apparently not new, for the strategus alludes in ll. 18-20 to a praefectorial edict or edicts previously issued on the same subject. There had been a steady deterioration in the coinage of Egypt, in the size of the coins as well as in the quality of the metal, and it is not surprising that attempts were made to discriminate, and some disinclination was shown to accept the $\theta \epsilon \hat{u} o v$ νόμισμα at its face value. It may be noticed in this connexion that in several contracts of about this period the money specified is old Ptolemaic silver; as has been suggested by Wessely (Mitth. Pap. Rain., iv. 144 sqq.), the disrepute of the later Imperial issues may well have assisted the survival of the ancient coin. In the present case the dubious character of the claim of Macrianus and Quietus to the Imperial titles (they perished in the attempt to obtain Italy) may well have been an additional cause of the reluctance in Egypt to accept their coinage.

On the verso is a list of utensils (1654) in a different hand.

Since the officials have assembled and accused the bankers of the banks of exchange of having closed them on account of their unwillingness to accept the divine coin of the Emperors, it has become necessary that an injunction should be issued to all the owners of the banks to open them, and to accept and exchange all coin except the absolutely spurious and counterfeit, and not to them only, but to all who engage in business transactions of any kind whatever, knowing that if they disobey this injunction they will experience the penalties already ordained for them in the past by his highness the praefect. Signed by me. The 1st year, Hathur 28.'

2. τῶν δημοσίων: it has been disputed whether the δημόσιοι, who often appear in papyri of the third-fourth centuries, are simply 'officials' in general (Wilcken, Archiv, iv. 223, Preisigke, Fachwörter, 49), or φύλακες and other minor police-officials (Hohlwein, Musée Belge, ix. 187–94, accepted by Wilcken, Archiv, v. 441; cf. Gelzer, Studien, 58), or the πρεσβύτεροι as well as the ἀρχέφοδοι and lower police-officials, but not the comogrammateis or tax-collectors (Jouguet, Vie munic. 217). In P. Brit. Mus. 1247. 23 (iii, p. 226) οί προκίμει[οι] δημόσιοι [s] includes the comarchs (cf. 1246. 25; iii, p. 225), who were by no means limited to police duties, besides other persons whose rank was not stated in 1247. In P. Goodsp. 14. 9 παραδώσουσιν εἰς τοὺς δημοσίους τῆς Νέας πόλεως Preisigke (Berichtigungen, 173¹⁷) is probably wrong in explaining δημοσίους as a general term for the corn-revenue officials rather than δημ. (θησαυρούς) (so Wilcken and Vitelli); but P. Ryl. 232. 8 and still more the present passage, which refers to officials of the metropolis rather than of the villages, favour the wide interpretation of δημόσιοι; cf. 1421. 2 and n., 1557. 3.

4. κολλυβιστικών τραπεζών: cf. B. G. U. 741. 10, 1053. 16, and often in 1118-1156, P. Hamburg I. 2, C. P. R. I. 13, P. Strassb. 34. 7, P. S. I. 204. 21. The point of the adjective is not clear. Preisigke, Girow. 27 sqq., considers that κολλ. τρ. were not different from τρ. simply, whether privately owned or leased from the State, and in support of this it may be noted that κολλυβ. is omitted in l. 9 πασει τοις τὰς τραπέζας κεκτ ημέριοις; but the injunction there may be intentionally framed so as to include banks other than κολλυβ., if such existed apart from δημόσιαι τρ. with which 1411 is not concerned. Other terms applied to banks are χρηματιστική (P. Brit. Mus. 1164; Antinoë) and ἐπιτηρουμένη (Mél. Nicole, p. 193. 1-2, P. Ryl. 176. 2, n.). The former refers, according to Preisigke, to the notarial capacity of banks, which, as appears from P. Strassb. 34, was shared by the $\kappa o \lambda \lambda$. $\tau \rho$.; the latter must refer to the supervision exercised by ἐπιτηρηταί over banks which were leased from the government; cf. 513. 37, 1132. 8–12, nn. The relation of the ἐπιτηρούμεναι to the ίδιωτικαί and δημόσιαι τρ. is disputed. If Preisigke's view of the leased banks is correct, and the Ἡρακλείδου κολλ. τρ. Ταμείων at Arsinoë (C. P. R. 1. 13) was really a leased 'Staatsbank', not ιδιωτική, the ἐπιτηρούμεναι τρ. do not form any more suitable contrast to the κολλ. τρ. than do the χρηματιστικαί, as he explains that term. The evidence, however, for Preisigke's theory of 'Staatsbanken', which was mainly based on Oxyrhynchus papyri, is weakened by 1639, which mentions 'Ηρακλείδων ίδιωτική τρ. at the Serapeum of Oxyrhynchus in 22 B. C., and it is still uncertain whether the ἰδιωτικαὶ τρ. were different from the ἐπιτηρούμεναι, and, if so, to what extent the banks not described as ίδιωτ. or ἐπιτηρ. were leased or under private ownership; cf. Wilcken, Grundz. 160 and 1639. 3-5, n. The phrase οἱ τὰς τραπέζας κεκτημένοι (l. 9) is new, and comprehensive rather than precise, so that it might apply to any banks which were not δημόσιαι, whether leased or privately owned. On the whole we are disposed to think that κολλ. τρ., probably like the Ptolemaic αμοιβικαί τρ., were contrasted with banks which did not undertake money-changing, perhaps the χρηματιστικαί, and that, if the ίδιωτικαί τρ. were different from the ἐπιτηρούμεναι, the κολλ. τρ. belonged to the former class.

Valerian and Gallienus, and the date 258. But since Ptolemaeus also called Nemesianus is known from 1555 to have been strategus under Macrianus and Quietus (a. d. 260-1), $\pi\rho\dot{\omega}|\tau\sigma\nu$ is much more likely than $\tilde{\kappa}\kappa|\tau\sigma\nu$. $\tau\epsilon\tau\dot{\omega}\rho|\tau\sigma\nu$ or $\tau\rho\dot{\nu}|\tau\sigma\nu$ would imply an unusually long period of office for this strategus, three years being apparently the normal duration of their tenure (cf. Dittenberger, Inser. Gr. Or. 699. 35). That the accession of Macrianus and Quietus took place before Hathur was already known from P. Strassb. 6. 30; cf. 1476. 2 and P. Flor. 273. verso, where Thoth 1 (Aug. 29) of their 1st year occurs as an isolated date, perhaps written later. On the question whether the year was 260 see 1476. int.

II. THE SENATE OF OXYRHYNCHUS

1412. NOTICE OF A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE SENATE.

About A.D. 284.

That the meetings of the senate were convened by the prytanis was a natural supposition made by Jouguet (Vie munic. 379), and direct evidence on the question is now provided by this notice of a special general meeting summoned by the prytanis, who bears a long and interesting list of municipal titles (ll. 1-3, n.), in consequence of letters received from the dioecetes (cf. 1409. int.) and another high official. Urgent business was to be transacted by the appointment of λειτουργοί in connexion with the transport of corn required by troops, stationed probably at Babylon (cf. e.g. 1261. 7), the requisite boats having been already provided by the government (Il. 8–10, n.). The precise character of the liturgies is not stated; but from other papyri of the third-fourth century they are known to have included the supervision of the transport by water, as well as the care of the transport by land from the θησαυροί to the Nile and the embarkation; cf. l. 14, n. It is noticeable that no hour is fixed for the meeting, which was to be held apparently on the same day (cf. ll. 14-16, n.), and the place of assembly is also described in general terms (l. ΙΙ είς ἐπιμελῆ τόπον). Presumably both time and place were subject to fixed rules and Oxyrhynchus had a regular βουλευτήριον, though it is still unattested; the evidence for βουλευτήρια at other metropoleis is singularly slight; cf. Jouguet, op. cit. 374. With a view of securing a full voluntary attendance at the meeting the prytanis, if 1. 16 is rightly restored, had posted up publicly the letters which he had received, and the concluding exhortation concerning the necessity for dispatch (ll. 16-20) also bears witness to the difficulty of making senators perform their onerous duties in connexion with liturgies. The somewhat dilatory character of their deliberations is well illustrated by 1413 and 1415; cf. 1413. int.

The date of the papyrus, which is written in a rather large late third-century cursive hand, is not preserved, but the dioecetes Aurelius Proteas (l. 9) is known from 1115. II-I2, where l. $\Pi\rho[\omega|\tau\epsilon a$ for ' $\Lambda\rho[\iota\sigma|\tau\epsilon a$, to have held office in the second year of Carinus (A. D. 283-4). The other high official δ $\kappa\rho\delta\tau\iota\sigma\tau\sigma$ 0 ' $\Lambda\mu\mu\delta\nu\iota\sigma\sigma$ 0 (ll. 9-I0) is no doubt identical with ' $\Lambda\mu\mu\delta\nu\iota\sigma\sigma$ 0 δ 0 $\kappa\rho\delta\tau$ 1. δ 14, and the unnamed emperor whose years are mentioned in 1257 was clearly Probus, as already suggested in 1257. int. Aurelius Ammonius δ 1 $\kappa\rho\delta\tau\iota\sigma\tau\sigma\sigma$ 1 in 1191. I, I5 (6th year of Probus) was perhaps the same person, though the context there suggests that he was an epistrategus. The $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i \kappa \tau \eta s$ δημοσίου σίτου, who is not mentioned elsewhere, was apparently created in the third century in addition to the existing $\epsilon \pi i \tau \rho o \pi o s$ Nέαs $\pi \delta \lambda \epsilon \omega s$, as the catholicus (cf. 1410. int.) was appointed in addition to the dioecetes. The $\kappa \rho \dot{\alpha} \tau i \sigma \tau o s$ Aυρ. Άμμωνίων in 1544. 3 (probably early in the reign of Diocletian) may also have been an $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i \kappa \tau \eta s$, and was possibly identical with Aur. Ammonius. The prytanis Aurelius Eudaemon also called Helladius (l. 1) was no doubt the same person as the $\delta \iota_{\beta} \lambda \iota_{\delta} \phi \dot{\nu} \lambda a \xi$ of that name in Mitteis, Chrest. 196. 4 (A. D. 307), where he is only called $\gamma \nu \mu (\nu a \sigma \iota_{\delta} \chi \dot{\gamma} \sigma a s)$ $\beta o \nu \lambda (\epsilon \nu \tau \dot{\gamma} s)$; cf. 1452. 2, n.

^{&#}x27;From Aurelius Eudaemon also called Helladius, formerly eutheniarch, cosmetes. exegetes, hypomnematographus, senator of the most illustrious city of Alexandria, exgymnasiarch, senator, prytanis in office of the illustrious and most illustrious city of Oxyrhynchus.

The question of the transport of provisions for the most noble soldiers does not admit even a brief delay, and for this reason, and since letters from his excellency the dioecetes Aurelius Proteas, as well as from his excellency Ammonius, are urging us on this matter, and the boats to receive the supplies are already at anchor, it became necessary to summon a special general meeting of the senate at a suitable place, in order that a discussion may be held on this single subject, and the obligations performed as quickly as possible. Accordingly in order that every one, being informed of this, may willingly act as senator (?) to-day, which is the 15th, the letters are publicly exhibited. I thought it right that you should know by this proclamation that I have instructed you, being now in possession of the facts, to assemble swiftly in view of the orders, since no other subject remains for the present meeting, and to vote upon the elections of those who are to serve.

The 2nd (?) year, (month) 15.'

1-3. Cf. the identical titles of an Alexandrian magistrate in a Pachnemounis inscr. (Hogarth, J. H. S. 1904, p. 10); in B. G. U. 1074. 10 (from Oxyrhynchus) the same four titles as those in ll. 1-2 occur (also referring to Alexandria), but εὐθηνιάρχης is placed between εξηγητής and ὑπομνηματογράφος. Jouguet (Vie munic. 292 sqq.), in endeavouring to reconcile those two instances with the rules laid down by Preisigke, Beantenwesen, 31 sqq. for the order of municipal titles in papyri and inscriptions, naturally became involved in great difficulties, and eventually concluded that exegetae, cosmetae, and eutheniarchs were all on much the same level, so that, if the chronological order in which these offices were held was followed, there was a good deal of variation. With regard to the ὑπομνηματογράφος he did not accept Preisigke's proposal to relegate him to the lowest grade, but thought that he was inferior to the gymnasiarch. Our view of Preisigke's rules is somewhat different. The order in point of rank which he proposed was (1) gymnasiarch, (2) exegetes, (3) cosmetes, (4) chief-priest, (5) agoranomus, (6) eutheniarch, (7) hypomnematographus, and he considered that papyri differ from inscriptions in usually having an ascending instead of a descending order where several offices are mentioned together. The attempt to differentiate the practice of papyri from that of inscriptions, which results in interpreting the Pachnemounis list as a descending one (so Jouguet, op. cit. 298), although another Pachnemounis inscription (Hogarth, l.c. p. 5) has a list which is clearly ascending, seems to us fallacious. If inscriptions provide somewhat more exceptions than papyri to the general rule that titles are mentioned together in an ascending scale, that is more likely to be due to local variations of style than to the nature of the writing-material, and especially in the light of 1412 we prefer to interpret both the Pachnemounis inscriptions in accordance with the usual practice in papyri. This results in our regarding the hypomnematographus as superior to the gymnasiarch, which removes the difficulty (cf. Jouguet, op. cit. 171-3) created by the great importance of the hypomnematographus at Alexandria (cf. p. 30), as contrasted with his supposed low rank in the nome-capitals, and is quite in accordance with the evidence of second-century papyri concerning the cursus honorum at Alexandria; cf. P. Tebt. 286. 14-15, where Julius Theon is stated to have been archidicastes before becoming hypomnematographus, Flor. 68. 5 γενόμ. γυμν. καὶ ὑπομν., and B. G. U. 832. 15 and 888. 5, where (γενόμ.) ὑπομν. follows (i. e. ranks higher than) των γεγυμνασιαρχηκότων and γενομ. αρχιδικαστής respectively. The last three instances, which on Preisigke's view of the rank of the ὑπομν. were exceptions to his rule about the ascending order of municipal titles in papyri, thus on our view serve to illustrate it. With regard to the hypomnematographus fresh evidence is afforded by B. G. U. 1073. 4, where the titles γενομένου κοσμητοῦ έξηγητοῦ ύπομνηματογρά(φου) are in the usual ascending order, and 1434. 10 and 1461. 2-3, in both of which cases he ranks higher than the ἀρχιερεύς, and the two instances which have been thought to indicate his low rank in the hierarchy do not justify that inference. In B. G. U. 121.

I (A.D. 194), where Preisigke doubtfully proposes γενο(μένου) [ύπομνηματογρ(άφου)] άγορα(νομήσαντος), the restoration is open to the objection that the ὑπομν. is absent from the list of municipal officials in P. Amh. 124, which is approximately contemporary with B. G. U. 121, and the creation of local ὑπομν. was, as Jouguet points out, most likely connected with the establishment of senates in 202, so that we prefer to restore [εὐθηνιαρχ(ήσαντος)]. In 55. 1-2 (Α. D. 283) Αὐρ. ᾿Απολλωνίω τῷ καὶ Διονυσίω γεν. ὑπομν. κ[αὶ] ὡς χρηματίζει γυμνασιαρχήσαντι βουλευτή ενάρχω πρυτάνει της λαμ. και λαμ. 'Οξ. πόλ. διέποντι και τα πολιτικά Preisigke, followed by Jouguet, ignores καὶ ὡς χρηματίζει, which in reality is a periphrasis for βουλευτοῦ τῆς λαμ. πόλ. τῶν 'Αλεξανδρέων, as is clear from 59. 2-3 (Α.Β. 292) where Αὐρ. 'Απόλλωνο[s] τοῦ καὶ Διονυσίου γεν. ὑπομν. βουλευτοῦ τῆς λαμ. πόλ. τῶν 'Αλεξ. γυμν(ασιαρχήσαντος) πρυτ(ανεύσαντος) βουλευτοῦ ἐνάρ. πρυτ. must be the same person (cf. 1463. 27, n.). Hence γεν. ὑπομν. in 55 refers to Alexandria, not to Oxyrhynchus, and stands in no close relation to γυμνασιαρχήσαντι. Corroborative evidence for the high rank of the hypomnematographus is afforded by 59. 6, 1191. 11, and 1257. 4, where a strategus is called γενόμ. ύπομν.. 59. 7, where a former ὑπομν. acts as deputy for the strategus, a function performed elsewhere by ex-gymnasiarchs or ex-exegetae (cf. Preisigke, op. cit. 66-7), P. Thead. 18. 1, where a ὑπομν. is apparently a deputy-strategus, and 1645. 2-3, where two ὑπομν. are responsible for the appointment of a guardian, a task usually undertaken by exegetae or officials of the central government (cf. P. Tebt. 397 and 1466. int.).

The normal order of the hierarchy of municipal officials in the nome-capitals was in our opinion as follows: (1) hypomnematographus, (2) gymnasiarch, (3) exegetes, (4) cosmetes, (5) chief-priest, (6) eutheniarch, (7) agoranomus. Concerning the eutheniarch (cf. 1454. int.) it is still doubtful whether by himself he should be ranked above or below the cosmetes or chief-priest; his office was often combined with the tenure of another, e. g. that of gymnasiarch in 1417-18, that of exegetes apparently in P. Tebt. 397. 15, that of chiefpriest in P. Amh. 124. 22. There is also some fluctuation in the relative position of the cosmetes and chief-priest, the former taking precedence in P. Amh. 124 (Hermopolis) and Flor. 21. 1 (Arsinoë), the latter in 1025. 4-5; in C. P. R. 20. i. 2 (Hermopolis) the titles γυμνασιαρχήσαντι καὶ ἀρχιερατεύσαντι are arranged exceptionally in a descending scale, as in Inscr. 66 of De Ricci, Archiv, ii. 444. In P. Ryl. 149. 1-4 (A.D. 39-40) an unusual combination of the offices of chief-priest, exegetes, and strategus occurs. In P. Brit. Mus. 1177. ii (iii. 182) the cosmetes seems to rank above the exegetes. Where the ἀγωνοθέτης, who is rarely mentioned, should be placed is not clear. In Dittenberger, Inser. Gr. Or. 713, his office is combined with that of gymnasiarch, and seems to rank below it; P. Ryl.

At Alexandria the conditions were somewhat different. Plaumann (Archiv, vi. 927), after examining the evidence, could come to no definite conclusion; but some of the difficulties which troubled him disappear with the modification of Preisigke's arrangement caused by placing the hypomnematographus at the top, and in P. Tebt. 317. 2 γ ε νομένο probably refers only to κοσμητή, and ἱερεὶ ἐξηγητή are the offices actually held, so that this instance indicates the customary relation of cosmetes and exegetes, concerning which Plaumann expressed doubts. On the whole, in spite of the inconsistency of the evidence regarding the eutheniarch already noted, the rank of the seven officials mentioned above seems to apply to Alexandria as well as to the nome-capitals, except perhaps in the case of the chief-priest. The hypomnematographus (1102. 4), archidicastes (e.g. 1471. 2), and exegetes (P. Tebt. 317. 2) are called lepeis, as sometimes the exegetae in the nomes (Jouguet, op. cit. 3381). Concerning the relationship of the archidicastes to the hypomnematographus the evidence is conflicting, since in B. G. U. 832. 15 an archidicastes (cf. Koschaker. l.c.) is called των γεγυμν. η ενομένω υπομ[υηματογράφω, whereas in P. Tebt. 286. 14-15 and B. G. U. 888. 5 (cf. p. 28) these offices were held in the reverse order. Since the post of hypomnematographus at Alexandria was one of great importance and that official, who dated from Ptolemaic times, was chief of the praefect's chancery (that more than one imour, existed at Alexandria, as has been sometimes supposed, seems to us unlikely), we prefer to place him above the archidicastes, whose deputy is now known from 1472. 12 to have been in one case an exegetes-elect, not a hypomnematographus. The στρατηγός της πόλεως was inferior to the archidicastes (cf. Koschaker, l. c.), and if he was identical with the νυκτερινός στρατ, of Strabo, he may well have ranked low down in the list; for the νυκτοστράτηγοι of the nomes (Wilcken, op. cit. 414) do not seem to have ranked as high as ordinary στρατηγοί, and from 1560. 10-11 the office of στρατ. της πόλ. appears to have been lower than that of ἐπὶ $\tau \hat{\eta}_s \in \delta \theta \eta | v | as$ (i. e. cutheniarch), unless the two were held simultaneously. We are accordingly more disposed than Jouguet (ορ. cit. 193-4) to regard the rank of the στρατ. of Alexandria as quite different from that of the strategi in the nomes, who ranked above gymnasiarchs. 1560 also mentions $\pi\rho\epsilon\sigma\beta\epsilon\nu\tau\dot{\eta}s$ in the list of titles in l. 11, placing it between $\epsilon n \tau \dot{\eta}s$ $\epsilon \dot{\nu}\theta\eta \dot{\nu}$ in the list of titles in l. 11, placing it between $\epsilon n \tau \dot{\eta}s$ $\epsilon \dot{\nu}\theta\eta \dot{\nu}$ in the list of titles in l. 11, placing it between $\epsilon n \tau \dot{\eta}s$ $\epsilon \dot{\nu}\theta\eta \dot{\nu}$ in the list of titles in l. 11, placing it between $\epsilon n \tau \dot{\eta}s$ $\epsilon \dot{\nu}\theta\eta \dot{\nu}$ in the list of titles in l. 11, placing it between $\epsilon n \tau \dot{\eta}s$ $\epsilon \dot{\nu}\theta\eta \dot{\nu}$ in the list of titles in l. 11, placing it between $\epsilon n \tau \dot{\eta}s$ $\epsilon \dot{\nu}\theta\eta \dot{\nu}$ in the list of titles in l. 11, placing it between $\epsilon n \tau \dot{\eta}s$ $\epsilon \dot{\nu}\theta\eta \dot{\nu}$ in the list of titles in l. 11, placing it between $\epsilon n \tau \dot{\nu}s$ αρχιδικαστής. Το judge by 1242. 3-11, where the πρέσβεις are chiefly gymnasiarchs, the special office of πρεσβευτής is likely to have ranked very high, so that the order of the Alexandrian hierarchy which we propose is the following: (1) ὑπομνηματογράφος, (2) ἀρχιδικαστής, (3) πρεσβευτής, (4) γυμνασίαρχος, (5) έξηγητής, (6) κοσμητής, (7) ἀρχιερεὺς Σεβαστῶν, (8) εὐθηνίαρχος, (9) ἀγορανόμος, (10) στρατηγός (?).

8–10. Cf. int. The πλοΐα in question were no doubt δημόσια; cf. P. Cairo Preisigke 34 quoted in l. 14, n., Amh. 138. 5 πλοίου ταμιακοῦ, Brit. Mus. 256 (a). 1 σκάφης δημοσίας. Private boats were also frequently employed; cf. πλοίου ὶδίου in 1554. 6, P. Flor. 75. 8, Brit. Mus. 948. 1–2 (iii, p. 220), and Goodsp. 14. 3, and πλοΐου 'Ηραΐσκου ναυτικοῦ in

ΙΙ. ἐπιμελη τόπον: cf. int.

12. πρόσκλητος βουλή, an expression adopted from Attic, is illustrated by the proceedings recorded in 1414, which apparently also refers to a special meeting (l. 29). How often the ordinary meetings of Egyptian senates were held is not known; very short notice was given in the present instance; cf. ll. 14–16, n. The word used in 1412 for 'meeting' is not συνέδριον (C. P. Herm. 7. ii. 6) but σύνοδος (l. 19). For partial meetings of the senate cf. 1414. 21, n.

14. λειτουργήματα: the duties of senators in connexion with the collection of corn and the transport from the granaries to the boats are illustrated by P. Brit. Mus. 948 (iii, p. 220), Flor. 75, W. Chrest. 434, and Stud. Pal. i. 34, all acknowledgements by κυβερνήται to senators concerning the receipt of corn for dispatch by river. That the ναυκληρία too tended to become a liturgy was conjectured by Rostowzew, Archiv, iii. 223 (cf. P. Giessen II. II, n.), and the evidence desiderated by Wilcken, Grundz. 379, was provided by 1261, a declaration concerning the transport of produce for troops at Babylon, made by a senator acting as an επιμελητής in terms which correspond to the declarations of a ναύκληρος χειρισμοῦ Νέας πόλεως in 1259, and of a κυβερνήτης in 1260; cf. P. Cairo Preisigke 34. 3–4 Αὐρήλιος ᾿Αμμωνᾶς . . . ἄρξ(ας) τ[ῆς Ἑρμοῦ πόλεως ναύ]κληρος πλοίου δημοσίου τῆς Μαξιμιανοῦ πόλ[εως, where βουλευτής may well be the word lost before ναύ]κληρος.

14–16. The reconstruction of this sentence is not quite certain. After $\lambda \epsilon u \tau v p \gamma \eta \mu a \tau a$ a blank space was, we think, left, as after $\pi \rho \delta \kappa \epsilon u \tau [a] \mu$ in l. 16. The supposed s of $\pi]a \nu \tau \epsilon s$ is not very satisfactory, but the next word seems to be $\epsilon \kappa \delta \nu \tau \epsilon s$, not a participle. $\beta \delta v \lambda \epsilon u \tau a$ suits the vestiges very well, and there is no room for a verb except at the beginning of l. 15. The emphatic date refers to what precedes rather than to what follows; in view of the pressing nature of the business, and the prevailing custom of giving invitations at very short notice ($\alpha \tilde{\nu} \rho \iota v \nu$ is usual, e.g. in 1487; $\sigma \tilde{\eta} \mu \epsilon \rho \iota v$ occurs in 1485–6), the fact that the meeting was summoned for the very day on which this notice was issued (whether sent to individual senators or publicly exposed) is not very surprising. Another doubtful point is the restoration of the beginning of l. 16, where we suppose that $[\tau \dot{a} \gamma \rho \dot{a}]\mu \mu [a]\tau a$ refers back to $\gamma \rho a\mu \mu \dot{a}\tau \omega \nu$ in l. 8. The final a is probable in any case, but the traces of the preceding letters are very slight. $]\tau a[\hat{v}]\tau a$ and $\pi \rho \dot{a}]\gamma \rho a[\mu]\mu a$ are unsatisfactory.

16-17. ἐνόμισα [γινώσκει]ν οτ ἐνομίσα[μεν είδέν] at can be read, or the infinitive may be

e. g. [νουθετεί]ν.

1413. REPORT OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE.

22.3 × 24.8 cm.

A. D. 270-5.

The procedure of the local senates in Egypt is very imperfectly known; for though several fragments of reports of their debates are extant in 1103 (and perhaps 1305; cf. 41, a report of a meeting of the $\delta \hat{\eta} \mu os$ at Oxyrhynchus), B. G. U. 925 (Heracleopolis), C. P. Herm. 7. i (Hermopolis), and De Ricci, C. R. Acad. Inser. 1895. 160, Wilcken, Archiv, iv. 115 sqq. (both Antinoöpolis), owing to the great length of lines which is customary in this class of documents the restoration of lacunae is difficult; cf. Jouguet, Vie munic. 374 sqq. where an attempt is made to reconstruct the Hermopolite text. 1413–15, which are reports, divided into sections, of discussions in the senate of Oxyrhynchus, with 1416, a list of resolutions, though also imperfect, are much more extensive, and serve to give a very fair general idea of the proceedings.

The subjects of discussion illustrated by these four papyri concern either administration or finance. Under the former head come the appointment of exegetae and ἐπιτηρηταί (1413. 4–18, and perhaps 1–3), of a δημόσιος τραπεζίτης (1415. 13-31), of a new prytanis (1414. 24-7), of an $ay\omega ro\theta \dot{\epsilon} \eta s$ (1416. 5), of a temporary cosmetes (?) (1416. 18), the apportionment of the duties of gymnasiarchs on particular days (1413. 19-24, 1416. 6-9; cf. 1417-18), nominations for special liturgies such as the transport of military and other supplies (1414, 17-23, 1415. 4-12), arrangements for the local festival (1416. 2 and 11-17), or other duties (1416. 19-26). Financial questions were debated in 1413. 25-33, concerning the completion of a gold crown in honour of Aurelian (cf. 1416. 29, where some honour to be bestowed on an Emperor and praefect is mentioned). 1413. 34-7, concerning a payment for some public object for which the cosmetae seem to have been responsible, 1414. I-3, apparently concerning clothes payable to the State, 1414. 4-11, concerning the supply and price of yarn for linen required by a temple, and 1414. 12-16, dealing with an application from the city linenweavers for an increase of their remuneration; cf. also 1416. 3-4, referring to a loan from the municipal funds. An application from the local priests is alluded to in 1416. 10 (cf. 1414. 4, n.), but the nature of the question discussed is uncertain, as in 1414. 28–30, 1415. 1–3 and 32–42, 1416. 1 and 27–8.

The debate on each topic was generally opened by the reading of a communication from the strategus or some other external official (e.g. 1414. 17, 19), or by an explanatory speech from the prytanis (for an exception cf. 1413. 19, n.), who was no doubt responsible for the drawing up of 1416 and often took a leading part in the discussion (1413. I, n.). The senators' remarks, as reported, are frequently collective, as in B. G. U. 925, frequently also acclamations like those in 41; but sometimes one section speaks, e.g. the exegetae in 1413. 5, the members of the third tribe in 1413. 12-13 (cf. 1415. 19), and in 1413 and 1415, though not in 1414, the names of individual senators are mentioned, besides the σύνδικος. That official of the senate is prominent in 1413-14, especially in connexion with bringing matters to a decision or collecting information to be used at a later sitting, and he seems to have been a kind of legal adviser, as well as an advocate of the senate in courts of law; cf. 1413. 17, n. There are frequent references to communications to or from officials of the central government, an επίτροπος in 1416. 28, an επείκτης χρυσοῦ στεφάνου καὶ νίκης in 1413. 25, the epistrategus in 1413, 30, 1415, 8-9, the strategus in 1414, 4, 17, 19, 1415, 4, 13, and magistrates whose titles are uncertain in 1415. 13, 17, 1416. 19; but the officials of the central government do not take part in the debates, and Wilcken is no doubt right in now (Chrest. 39. int.) referring the συνέδριον in C. P. Herm. 52. ii. 9 to a trial, not, as formerly, to a meeting of the senate (cf. 1412. 12, n.). A tendency to postpone business until the next meeting is distinctly marked: cf. 1413. 11-12, 1414. 16, 18, 1416. 10, and 1412. int. Altogether 1413-16 provide much new information, the details of which are discussed in the commentary.

1413, written in a small cursive hand, consists of the ends of lines of a very broad column from the official records (ὑπομνηματισμοί; cf. C. P. Herm. 7. ii. 7 τοῖς ὑπομνημ(ατισθεῖσι) ἐπὶ τῆς κρατ. βουλ.) of five debates in the reign of Aurelian (ll. 4, 25–6) on a day early in Thoth (see below). 1414, which is approximately contemporary with 1413 since it mentions the same σύνδικος, has on the verso a document written in the fifth year of an Emperor (1496. 25), and whether the reigning monarch there was Aurelian or Probus (cf.1497. 2–3) is uncertain. 1413–14 therefore may belong to the latter part of Aurelian's reign; but the mention of the χρυσοῦς στέφανος καὶ τίκη in 1413. 25 suggests a year soon after Aurelian had got rid of either Vaballathus, who was associated with him in his first and second years, or Firmus, who revolted in his third or fourth year. The second, third, and fourth sections are fairly intelligible, though from ll. 14 and 17 it appears that more than 80 letters are lost at the beginnings of lines normally (10 more in ll. 16–17).

The first three lines give the conclusion of a discussion about the filling up of an official post, probably that of exegetes, which is also the subject of the following section. Lines 1-2 seem to belong to a speech of the prytanis, acting as $\gamma\nu\omega\mu\eta\epsilon\iota\sigma\eta\gamma\eta\tau\dot{\gamma}s$ (l. 1, n.), proposing to assign half the post to some one. This is followed by some remarks from an exegetes, of which the senate expressed its approval by a favourite exclamation at this period, $\dot{\omega}\kappa\epsilon\alpha\nu\dot{\epsilon}$ (l. 3, n.).

In Il. 4-18 the topic is the appointment of municipal magistrates, whose numbers tended at this period to diminish owing to the lack of willing candidates (cf. 1252. verso and 1642), and in particular, though perhaps not exclusively (cf. l. 5, n.), the nomination of exegetae and their ἐπιτηρηταί, thus providing an interesting parallel to P. Ryl. 77, which gives an account of the appointment of a cosmetes in the period before the creation of senates. On the general character of exegetae see Jouguet, op. cit. 315-18. Oxyrhynchus had at this period many gymnasiarchs (1413. 19-24, 1416. 6-9) and sometimes many eutheniarchs, who in 199 numbered 12 (908. int.), but how many exceptae there were in the κοινόν of that τάγμα (891. 14) is unknown. The prytanis opened the debate with a reference to honouring the Emperor by the nomination of senators to magistracies, in order that their payments for the crowns of office (στεπτικά, 1. 4, n.) should be available for the State, and, in answer perhaps to a question who should make the first nominations, appealed to the exegetae. These officials suggested that Serenus (?) should be made exegetes. After a remark by the prytanis, which is lost, perhaps a request for more nominations, Sabinus, an ex-prytanis, called attention to the fact that a certain Plution had not yet paid his στεπτικόν for becoming exegetes; about this the prytanis apparently appealed to the γραμματεύς πολιτικών (l. 7, n.) for confirmation, and received an affirmative answer. The subject of Plution's debt was continued by one of the exegetac, perhaps with a warning that the precedent was not to be followed in the case of Serenus, to which the senators replied that the latter was nominated on the security of his property (l. 8, n.). The syndic then apparently closed the discussion about Serenus with a remark of which the point is obscure, but which perhaps implied that Serenus was ineligible owing to his being gymnasiarch. In any case the prytanis appealed to the exegetae for further nominations, and they put forward the name of Ion. A proposal was next made by a chief-priest that Ion should have an ἐπιτηρητής attached to him (l. 10, n.), the suggestion being accepted by the prytanis, who nominated Phileas and Plotinus for this post, their names meeting with the approval of the senate. The definitive appointment was, however, not made, the question being adjourned till the next meeting, and the prytanis appealed to the occupants of other magistracies to make nominations. The answer came from the members of the third tribe.

which was at the moment responsible for liturgies (l. 12, n.), but the name of the person put forward (as exegetes?) is lost. As in the former case, an $\epsilon \pi \iota \tau \eta \rho \eta \tau \eta s$ was nominated by the prytanis, and his name greeted with acclamations by the senate. After another proposal, which is lost, by the members of the third tribe, the syndic again intervened, explaining that he had seized the property of some individual (probably the person who had just been mentioned by the third tribe), and would report later on its value. A criticism of the two names presented by the third tribe was then made by a new speaker (possibly a hypomnematographus; l. 15, n.), who stated that the nominations had been made by only two persons, and this led to the selection by the senators collectively of several persons, chosen apparently from the whole body of the tribe or senate. The debate concluded with some remarks by the syndic concerning the first year of office (l. 17, n.), apparently making some concession to the newly nominated persons in order to induce them to serve.

In ll. 19-24 the topic was the days on which individual gymnasiarchs were responsible for the provision of oil for gymnasial purposes, which was one of their chief duties. The opening speaker seems to have been not, as usual, the prytanis, but a gymnasiarch called Ptolemaeus, who stated that he had recently provided oil on two days (probably Thoth I and 3) in place of two of his colleagues, and apparently asked to be relieved from duty on the days fixed for The senators accepted his proposal with acclamations, and appointed other persons to serve on Thoth II and I2, which must have been subsequent to the date of the meeting. An objection to the alteration of the dates was then raised by a gymnasiarch whose name is lost, but was apparently overruled by the senate, which proceeded to appoint persons for the 13th and following days. Another objection was then raised (l. 23) by a gymnasiarch called Serenus (perhaps identical with the preceding objector), that the change might affect him injuriously, and, if the first part of l. 24 belongs to the same speaker, he seems to have claimed to have acted, like Ptolemaeus, in place of some one else, his remarks being greeted with applause from the senate.

A fresh section begins in l. 25, the prytanis reporting the receipt of a communication from the ἐπείκτης χρυσοῦ στεφάνου καὶ νίκης of Aurelian (of which the purport was similar to that of the letter of the ἐπείκτης δημοσίου σίτου in 1412. 9), concerning the completion of a golden crown due from the city (cf. 1441. int.). In order to expedite matters the prytanis proposed that 12 talents more should be paid to the artificers, and a discussion arose on the questions how and when the amount was to be collected. With regard to the first point it was decided to keep the same collectors as previously; with regard to the second the remarks of a certain Euporus, who apparently wished to expedite the completion of the crown in view of the approaching visit of the epistrategus, met with the approval of the senate. The syndic concluded the discussion, promising to report any payments made to the artificers in advance. The last section (ll. 34–7) refers to some duty imposed upon the cosmetae, apparently involving a payment for a public work of some kind.

I. ἐπὶ τούτοιs: cf. l. 3 ἐπὶ τού]τοις τοῖς ὅροις, and, for ὅροι of the senate, 1414. 4–9. The speaker, to whom the first part of l. 2 also seems to belong, is probably the prytanis, who in B. G. U. 362. xv. 8 acts as γνωμηεισηγητής and ἐπιψηφιστής, though the suggestion of Jouguet (ορ. cit. 381) that he alone had the right of exercising those functions is disposed of by 1416. I and 4, where ordinary senators act as εἰσηγηταί. A change of speaker in the lacuna after τ[, the earlier part of the line being then possibly spoken by the ἐξηγητής (cf. l. 2), is unlikely; but, if καὶ ὡ[ς χρημα(τίζει) be restored in l. 2 (cf. e. g. l. 6), a third speaker perhaps intervenes, and ἐπὶ τού τοις τοῖς ὅροις might be spoken by him, not by the exegetes. The name and titles of Septimius Diogenes, the only σύνδικος found in 1413–14 (cf. l. 17, n.) cannot be restored in l. 2.

εἰς ἡμιχώριον: cf. l. 24, where the two sons of Philosophus have a single day assigned to them as gymnasiarchs, B. G. U. 579. 5 (= W. Chrest. 279) οἱ δύο γυμ(νασιαρχήσαντες) ἰς χώραν ἐνός (sc. δεκαπρώτου), 144. 7–9 ἐγ (μέρους) ἀγορανο(μήσας) οτ ἐξηγ(ητεύσας), 574. 10 ἐγ μέρ. ἀγορανομ., P. Amh. 67. 8 ἐγ μέρ. ἦρξεν. The office in question may well be that of exegetes; cf. int.

2. εἰσηγοῦμαι: cf. l. I, n. γνώμ as is possible before it, but not γνώμην.

3. ἀκεανέ: cf. ll. 21, 24, 41. 4, 1305, C. P. Herm. 7. i. 9, Wilcken, Archiv, iii. 541.

4. For [ὁ πρύτανις εἶπ(εν), projecting by 2 or 3 letters, at the beginning of a new section cf. 1415. 32, 41. Something like δεῖ σέβεσθαι may have preceded τὸ μεγα λίον (for which cf. e. g. 1252, 38); cf. 1416. 29.

στεπτικά: cf. στεπτικόν in ll. 6, 7; the term does not occur elsewhere. It clearly refers to payments for the crown of office; cf. P. Ryl. 77. 34-5 στεφα[νη φόρον εξηγητείαν, 36-7 εἰ... βούλεται στεφανωθῆναι εξηγητείαν, εἰσενεγκάτω τὸ ἰσητήριον εντεῦθεν, 1117. 5, n., and 1252. 16 στε[φάνον τοῦ] εὐθηνιαρχικοῦ καὶ ἀγορανομικοῦ. The form στεπτικόν supports the view (which is not the usual one) that the officials called οἱ ἐπὶ τῶν στεμμάτων were connected with the στέφανοι of magistrates; cf. P. Ryl. 77. 31, n.

5. At the beginning of the line the speakers were probably the βουλευταί οτ έξηγηταί;

cf. int.

6. ἀπὸ τιμῶν is used by itself as a title in 1498. 1-2.

7. [γ]ραμματεὺς πολιτικῶν: this title is new. πολιτικὰ χρήματα are probably me ant(cf. 55. 14 ταμίας τῶν πολιτικῶν χρημάτων); but he might be the secretary of the prytanis (who is described as διέπων τὰ πολιτικά in 55. 4), though in that case he would be expected to be mentioned more often. A different official, the σκρίβας, seems to have been the principal secretary of the senate; cf. 1191. 7, n., 1417. 10.

8. βουλευτ]αί or έξηγητ]αί can be restored. δ δυομασθείς refers to Serenus (l. 5, n.). With επὶ τῷ ιδίφ πόρφ cf. 1642. 20, where a man is appointed agoranomus επὶ πόρφ έαυτοι καὶ τῶν ὑποχειρίων τέκνων, and 1405, where a nominated πράκτωρ ἀργυρικῶν surrenders his πόρος rather than take office. Line 14 below also refers to the seizure of a πόρος (that of Plution or some one just mentioned?), apparently owing to the owner's refusal to become exegetes or ἐπιτηρητής. For the restoration of the titles of the σύνδικος cf. l. 17 and 1414. 7. For the rank of the ὑπομνηματογράφος cf. 1412. 1-3, n.

9. The name is is probably the same as that in l. 5; cf. n. ad loc.

10. έξηγητεί αν τοῦ πάππου: cf. P. Ryl. 77. 34 στεφέσθω 'Αχιλλεύς κοσμητείαν' μιμοῦ τὸν

ἐπιτηρρίσθω: i.e. be subject to ἐπιτηρηταί, as ll. 10–13 show. The senators seem to be more interested in them than in the exegetae, and the post of ἐπιτηρητής appears to have been as important as that of the magistrate whom he supervised. ἐπιτηρ. of exegetae are new, but ἐπιτηρ. of the ἀγορανομεῖον are often found acting in place of agoranomi in Heracleopolite papyri, and ἐπιτηρ. of gymnasiarchs occur in an obscure context in 471. 29–36. For ἐπιτηρ. of banks, whose relation to the τραπεζίται is not yet clear, cf. 1411. 4, n. The present passage shows clearly the nature of the distinction between magistrates and their ἐπιτηρηταί, and in the light of the new evidence the common identification of the ἐπιτηρ. ἀγορανομείου with agoranomi (e. g. Jouguet, ορ. cit. 335) is to be rejected.

11. άγνὲ πιστέ: cf. ll. 16, 29, 41. 29, 1415, 27. The expression was commonly applied to persons accepting office.

11-12. τούτων . . . βουλήν: cf. 1414. 18.

12. οἱ ἀπὸ τῆς τρίτης φυλῆ[s: cf. 1030. 2 ἀμφοδογρα(μματεῖ) α φυλῆς, 1552. 3, and 1415. 19 sq. The φυλαί corresponded to the ἄμφοδα at this period (cf. 1116. 20, n.), and that λειτουργίαι were assigned to them in rotation was known from e.g. 86. 10–11; cf. Jouguet, op. cit. 410–11, and l. 5, n.

13. δ πρύτανις εἶπ(εν) εἰπι]τηρήσει: cf. l. 10, n. προτραπήτω or ὀνομάζομεν followed by a proper name is probably to be restored at the beginning of both this line and l. 14;

cf. int.

14. That the σύνδικοs is the speaker is clear from παρατε[θ]ήσεται ὑμί[ν, which is a favourite phrase of his; cf. l. 33 and l. 17, n. Before κατείληφα the name of the person nominated in l. 14 (cf. l. 13, n.) or possibly Πλουτίωνος (cf. ll. 6–8) is to be restored; cf. l. 8, n. Μονίμου ἐποίκιον was in the ἄνω τοπαρχία (1285. 62).

15.]φοs: if this belongs to a title, not to a proper name, ὑπομνηματογρά]φοs is required, and the remark seems not inappropriate to that magistrate; cf. 1412. 1–3, n. γενόμενος ὑπομν. can of course be read, but Septimius Diogenes is unsuitable, since σύνδικος comes after ὑπομν. in his titles and he was the speaker in l. 14; cf. n. ad loc.

16. βουλη̂s can be substituted for φυλη̂s. Nesmimis was in the ἄνω τοπαρχία (1285. 57), Dositheou in the κάτω τοπ. (1285. 139; cf. 1425. 4, n.).

17. σύνδικος: apart from 1413–14, where Septimius Diogenes plays an important part in the debates (cf. int.), and 1417, where another σύνδ, appears on behalf of the senate at a trial before a strategus, not much is known about syndics in Egypt. An Oxyrhynchus papyrus at Leipzig (M. Chrest. 196), a προσφώνησις of βιβλιοφύλακες concerning the property of an accused person, is addressed to the prytanis and two σύνδικοι βουλευταί, who thus ranked below him. The normal number was at least two, for the plural also occurs in 41. 29 άγνοὶ πιστοὶ σύνδικοι (Wilcken's suggestion in Chrest. 45. int. that the plural is rhetorical is without justification), and in C. P. Herm. 23. ii. 5–8, where at a trial before an ἐπίτροπος a σύνδ. says ἡμεῖς ἀ ἐδειδά[χ]θ[η]μεν ὑπὸ τῆς λα[μπρ ...] ταῦτά σοι παρεθέμεθα, to which the ἐπίτροπος replied ὅσα εἶ[ρ]ἡκατε ἀνε[νεγκ] καὶ δεήσει καὶ ὑμᾶς ὡς συνδίκους ... ἀνενεγκεῖν τῷ λαμπ(ροτάτῳ) ἡγεμόνι περὶ πάντων. Similar references to the παράθεσις of documents by a syndic occur also in C. P. Herm. 25. ii. 3–4 and 41. 25; cf. 1413. 14, 33, 1414. 16, the verb being also used by the prytanis in 1415. 8. C. P. Herm. 53 is probably a letter from the senate to a syndic (so Wilcken, Chrest. 39. int.) concerning an action brought by the senate against the gymnasiarchs (cf. 1417). In ancient Greek city-states the σύνδικοι seem to be identical with ἔκδικοι (cf. Liebenam, Städleverwall. 303 sqq.); but the ἔκδικοι τῆς πόλεως (defensor civitalis), who appears in Egypt early in the fourth century (cf. 1426. 4, n.), was an official of the central government, whereas the σύνδικοι were presumably elected by the senate, like the prytanis (1414. 24–7).

offices having exceeded one year is confirmed by 1418. 15; cf. 1410 and 1418. intt.

19. The analogy of the beginnings of new sections elsewhere in 1413–15, in which the prytanis is the first speaker (cf. l. 4, n.), suggests that he introduced the discussion here also; but, if so, his remarks were unusually brief. The first person in ll. 19–20 appears to refer to the gymnasiarch who is acclaimed in l. 21, even though in 1496. 28 the prytanis is found making payments, which may be for oil, together with other municipal officials, some of whom were probably gymnasiarchs. Ptolemaeus must have been mentioned before l. 21, and the sentence beginning εἰαν οἶν [was probably a request to let him off his appointed day or days; cf. ll. 22–3, where the proposed change is further discussed. A word like ὑπέσχετο followed by a proper name is required before ε[is.

ἔχρεισεν: cf. 300. 12–13 εἰς τὸ γυμνάσιον Θέωνι . . . ἐλεοχρείστηι, and C. P. Herm. 57–62, which are reports to the βουλή by an ἐλαιοχύτης (who corresponds to the ἐλαιοχρίστης) of the gymnasium concerning the neglect to provide oil on particular days assigned to different

 $τ\hat{η}$ έξης νεομηνία: i. e. Thoth I (cf. l. 20), not the 1st intercalary day.

παραδεχ[ο] μένου: cf. 1418. 18 παρ]αδέζομαι τῷ παιδὶ τετραμήνιον γυμνασιαρχίαν, the context being obscure. But a full stop is perhaps to be placed after ἔ[χρεισε]ν, in which case e. g. παραδεχ[θήτω μοι is possible, though not satisfactory; for a request for the remission of Ptolemaeus' day came in ll. 20–1 (cf. l. 20, n.), and all the earlier part of his speech seems to be narrative.

20.]s δ τοῦ Φιλοσόφου: Σεουῆρο]s or Ἐπίμαχο]s is suggested by l. 24, but this may have been a third brother, acting by himself. Φιλοσόφου is probably a proper name, not a title as in P. Leipzig 47. 11, 14; cf. 1497. I Ἐπίμαχον (the Ἐπ. mentioned in l. 24) νίδν Φιλοσόφου.

On the days of gymnasiarchs cf. l. 19, n., 1416. 6-9.

ἐπεστάτει: this term is new in connexion with gymnasiarchs. The context shows that it refers to the one responsible for providing oil. The ἐπιμελητής γυμνασίου quoted by Preisigke (Beamtenwesen, 63) and Jouguet (ep. cit. 321) from P. Rainer, Mittheil. iv. 58 is non-existent, as appears from the publication of the full text in C. P. Herm. 94, the title being ἐπιμελητής τῆς πλακώσεως στοῶν γυμνασίου.

21-2. $\Lambda \sigma[v] \gamma \kappa \rho i | [\sigma v : \sigma \kappa \rho i |] \beta \sigma s$ (cf. 1417. 10) might be read, but there is hardly room for a patronymic in front of it.

22. The speaker in the first part of the line may be Ptolemaeus or Serenus (cf. l. 23), but is more likely to be another gymnasiarch making a similar objection to that of Serenus.

κύρια τὰ ψηφίσματα: this probably refers to the previous decrees concerning the days of gymnasiarchs, which were not to be affected; cf. l. 23, n.

Ξενικός: cf. 1496. 22, 34, probably referring to the same person. That gymnasiarchselect were liable for providing oil is noticeable; cf. P. Brit. Mus. 1166, where a μελλογυμνασίαρχος makes a contract regarding the heating of a gymnasium thirteen months before entering office.

23. Σερηνος: cf. l. 5, n. μου τὸ ψήφισμα means a resolution appointing a particular day for Serenus (cf. l. 22), not a resolution proposed by him.

24. Whether ϵl] καὶ μὴ ἔχρεισεν κτλ. was spoken by Serenus or e.g. by the speaker of ll. 19–20 is uncertain. κη may refer back to Mesore (cf. l. 19); if it refers to Thoth, there was an interval of several days for which no arrangements were made. Similar intervals occur in C. P. Herm. 57–62. For Ἐπίμαχος cf. l. 20, n. For the restorations at the end of the line cf. l. 21.

25. The prytanis, not $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i \kappa \tau \eta s$, was the speaker, as is shown by $\eta \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$; cf. l. 4, n. A verb like $\xi \gamma \rho \alpha \psi \epsilon \nu$ is to be supplied. $\epsilon \pi$. χρυσοῦ στεφάνου κτλ. is a new title; cf. 1412. int., and 1428. $3 \epsilon \pi$. $[\tau \hat{\eta} s] \delta \theta \delta \nu \eta s$. The levying of aurum coronarium was not confined to the Emperor's accession: cf. 1441. int. 'Ισίνλιος or 'Ισίνλιος is probably the name of the $\epsilon \pi$.

rather than that of a new speaker, e.g. Ἰουλιανὸς ὁ καὶ Διοσκουρίδης (l. 7).

26-7. For κατ' εὐχήν cf. C. P. Herm. 119 verso, iii. 4 τῆς τοίνυν τύχης... Γαλλιηνοῦ... πάντα ἡμῶν κατ' εὐχὴν ἤνυσται. The great length of the lacuna between εἰ μὴ οἱ τεχνεῖται and τὰ σκ]εύη makes it improbable that that τὰ σκ]εύη... γίνεται is the apodosis, and the parallel from C. P. Herm. is against interpreting κατ' εὐχήν in an unfavourable sense, 'visionary'. Something like τελειώσουσι τὸ ἔργον (cf. l. 30) is expected after τεχνεῖται.

29. άγνοὶ πιστοί: cf. l. II, n.

Εὔπορ[ος] ὁ καὶ ᾿Αγα[θὸς Δαίμων: cf. 1496. 26, and B. G. U. 1073. 2, 1074. 10, where he appears as πρύτανις in the 5th-6th years of Aurelian and his titles are given in full (cf. p. 28). His proposal met with the approval of the senate (l. 32).

30. Probably δ[ι' ἐπιστάλματος οτ ὑπομνήματος; cf. 1415. 8-9.

31. For Εὔπορος . . . κ]αὶ ὡς χρημ. cf. l. 29, n. Θέων ὁ καὶ ΄Ωριγένης Χαιρήμονος κ]αὶ ὡς χρημ.

(cf. l. 28) is also possible.

32. $\epsilon i \delta \delta \omega i \kappa \eta \tau \epsilon$: the instances of this word in Stephanus, Lex., refer to easily digested food.] $\tau \epsilon$ was probably another compound beginning with ϵi - rather than $\dot{a}\gamma\nu\dot{\epsilon}$ $\pi\iota\sigma$] $\tau\dot{\epsilon}$ (cf. l. 11).

34. $]\pi \circ \nu : \gamma, \sigma, \text{ or } \tau, \text{ followed by } \iota, \text{ can be read for } \pi, \text{ but } \pi \rho \delta \sigma \kappa \lambda \eta] \tau \circ \nu \text{ (cf. 1412. 12)} \text{ and } \sigma \upsilon \nu \delta \delta] \rho \iota \circ \nu \text{ are inadmissible.}$ For the activity of the $\kappa \circ \iota \nu \delta$ of different magistrates after the foundation of senates cf. 891, where the prytanis Cornelianus (about twenty years after the date of 1413) may be identical with the cosmetes of that name here.

35. Μάξιμον: possibly the Μάξιμος of 1496. 36.

36. λιτουργησίαν: cf. l. 17.

1414. REPORT OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE.

 $22 \cdot 3 \times 18$ cm. A.D. 270-5.

This report is similar to 1413 and approximately contemporary with it, the same syndic being mentioned. It is written in two hands, of which the first is smaller than the second, and both are different from that of 1413. The lines were of about the same length as those in 1413 and 1415, and both beginnings and ends are lost, but ll. 4, 19, and 24, where the restorations are practically certain, combine to indicate clearly the extent of the initial lacuna (about 16 letters) at the beginning of a new section; the other lines presumably began a few letters to the right, as in 1415. ii. At the ends of lines about 50 letters are missing, to judge by ll. 9–10, where the whole lacuna between them can be filled satisfactorily; but cf. l. 16, n. Parts of six or seven different sections are preserved (that a new one began in l. 12 is not certain), and except the first and last are fairly intelligible. Besides the prytanis and syndic, the only speakers appear to be the senators collectively, thus affording a contrast to 1413 and 1415; cf. 1413. int.

The first three (or two) sections (ll. 1-16) are concerned with different points connected with the δθονιηρά, on which subject in general see Wilcken, Grundz. 245-7, and Reil, Beitr. z. Kenntnis d. Gewerbes, 5 sqq., and in reference to the temples Otto, Priester u. Tempel, i. 300, ii. 64. That the Ptolemaic government controlled the textile industries in a manner somewhat similar to the oil-monopoly was shown by the fragmentary Cols. lxxxvii-cvii of P. Rev. Laws; but the details are obscure, and how far the parallelism with the oil-monopoly is to be carried is doubtful, especially in the Roman period, when Reil in fact supposes that the weaving monopoly had disappeared. To the scanty evidence for that period have now to be added P. Ryl. 98 (A.D. 172), an application for the lease of the ίστωναργία of an Arsinoïte village, addressed to the ἐπιτηρηταὶ μισθοῦ βαφικής, which favours the continuance of a monopoly; 189, a receipt for χιτώνες of some kind (cf. 1414. 1, n.) and παλλίολα delivered in A.D. 128 by the γέρδιοι of Socnopaei Nesus to παραλήπται δημοσίο(ν) ίματισμοῦ κωστωδιών; 214, a list of μερισμοί including one called ενδεήματος δθονιηράς; 374 (about A.D. 100), a taxing-list mentioning a payment of 5,420 dr. 2 ob. for δθο(νιηρά): Preisigke, S. B. 5677. 9, a payment of 85 dr. for $\mu \epsilon \rho(\iota \sigma \mu o \hat{\nu}) \sigma \tau \delta \lambda(o v) \sigma \tau \rho \alpha(\tau \iota \omega \tau \hat{\omega} v)$; 1436. 5, where $\partial\theta'$ ov $(\eta\rho\hat{a}s)$ occurs in a list of taxes (cf. 1438. int.); 1428, a letter to an exactor about an $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i \kappa \tau \eta s$ $[\tau \hat{\eta} s]$ $\delta \theta \delta \nu \eta s$ and the manufacture of the requisite ύφάσματα; and 1448, a list of στιχάρια and πάλλια due from various villages. Most important of all is the present passage, which throws some much needed light on the relations of traders and manufacturers in the textile industries to the State and to the senate as tax-collector. Except for instances of payments of 12 drachmae for χειρωνάξιον (cf. 1436. 4) by a λινόϋφος in Wilcken, Ost. No. 23, and by a λινοπώληs in Ost. No. 45, little was known of those two classes of persons in the Roman period. Lines 1-3 belong to the conclusion of a discussion about what seems to be a sum payable by the nome as the value of (most probably) στιχάρια, the prytanis being apparently the speaker. In spite of P. Ryl. 214. 42-3, n., there was probably a close connexion between the contributions of clothes for δημόσιος ίματισμός and the payments of money for τιμή of clothes in 1414 or δθονιηρά: the latter was probably an adaeratio from those who did not provide actual clothes, and was balanced against the payments from the local authorities to the city manufacturers (cf. l. 15, n.) or, as apparently in ll. 1-2, against the total value of clothes due from the nome to the central government. The suggested interpretation of ll. 1-2 serves to explain a difficult passage in P. Leipzig 57 concerning the proportion of the tax which fell on μητροπόλεις; cf. l. I, n.

In Il. 4-11 the topic is the supply of yarn (λίνον στημονικόν) required for making the vestments (δθόνη) of a local temple, and the amount to be paid to the varn-merchants (λινέμποροι). Probably a new section began at l. 12, where the question of the remuneration of the city cloth-weavers (λινόϋφοι) was entered upon. The opening speech of the prytanis (cf. 1413. 4, n.) explained that a previous resolution of the senate concerning the budget of a temple required modification on account of the difficulty of obtaining yarn for manufacturing the temple vestments. Owing to the refusal or inability of the village flax-spinners and their wives to carry out their engagements, it had apparently become necessary to apply to the city yarn-merchants for the material, as was pointed out by the syndic, who reported that the price demanded by them was 49 denarii (196 drachmae), of which II denarii had already been advanced from the ταμιακός λόγος (l. 8, n.). This price was considered too high by the senate, and they reduced it to 30 denarii (120 dr.) in all, a figure accepted by the syndic, who then undertook to present a sample to the weavers appointed for the manufacture of the temple linen. These are also mentioned in the obscure l. II, which seems to be concerned with the same subject as l. 10; but the topic of discussion changes in 11. 12-16, which are concerned with a petition from the associated cloth-weavers of Oxyrhynchus, asking for an increase in their remuneration owing to the rise in both the price of raw materials and the wages of their assistants. Probably these manufactures were destined for the State, like those in ll. 1-3, not for the temple, as those in ll. 4-11. The figures relating to the demand of the cloth-weavers are not preserved; but some increase in remuneration was conceded by the senate, which fixed the amount payable to them at 200 drachmae (for each κρίκος?; cf. l. 15, n.).

After a short section (II. 17–18), perhaps referring to a different sitting (I. 17, n.), which deals with an appointment to a public office of some kind at the instance of the strategus, the question being adjourned, II. 19–23 are concerned with another and similar communication from the strategus, ordering the appointment of persons to convey animals and other supplies for the government down the river, probably to Alexandria or Babylon; cf. 1415. 4–12. The prytanis stated that in order to expedite matters he had held a partial meeting of senators and nominated a certain Sarapion. His choice was ratified by the acclamations of the senate as a whole. This interesting side-light upon the powers of the prytanis serves to explain a passage in B. G. U. 144 (I. 21, n.). Another instructive section follows in II. 24–7, concerning the approaching resignation of the prytanis. The law, as it now appears, required that a new prytanis should be nominated six months before entering office. How long the normal tenure was is uncertain, but C. P. Herm. 57 sqq. show that at Hermo-polis the same prytanis was in office for 14 consecutive months in the 14th and 15th years of Gallienus, and probably he was prytanis in the 13th year also, so that if the appointment was annual re-election was evidently not unusual; cf. Jouguet, Vie munic. 376-8. That the tenure was annual is now much more doubtful in view of the new evidence concerning the longer length of tenure (five years?) of the offices of gymnasiarch and decemprimus (cf. 1410, 1418. intt.); but the question of re-election may well have entered into the present case, for after the senate had declared their intention of making the necessary choice by a resolution comes a speech from the prytanis alluding to his bad health, and that he was declining a proposal to re-elect him (which is probably lost in the lacuna between ll. 25-6) is fairly evident from the complimentary entreaties of the senate that he should continue in office, which seem to express the resolution alluded to in l. 25. A new section apparently began in l. 28, where an obligation which probably fell on some members of the senate is mentioned. but the remains of the last three lines are very slight. If $\beta ov \lambda \dot{\eta} v$ in 1, 29 is correct, the sitting in question was specially summoned, like that to which 1412 refers.

On the verso is a list of payments by various officials in the 5th year of Aurelian or Probus (1496); cf. 1413. int.

1-27. '(The prytanis said,) "... is owing, and 14 talents. The value of the 100 (?) garments is 14[0] talents, ... I have received the $6\frac{1}{2}$ belonging to the nome on account of the city's share. Let them be compelled to pay monthly from their own property $7\frac{1}{2}$ (?) ..."

The prytanis said, "You examined the list of the temple and fixed a limit, and your resolution was submitted to the strategus, but (the priests?)... made the excuse that those who undertook the work in question and their wives were unable to spin the yarn,... (see) that on this point also you fix a limit, for there are only a few villages in your nome which have this material." The senators said,... Septimius Diogenes also called Agathodaemon, ex-hypomnematographus and however he is styled, syndic, said, "(The yarn-merchants report that)... and the price of weaving-yarn is 49 denarii, and 11 denarii were paid to them from the Treasury's account." The senators said, "Let the yarn-merchants be content with 19 denarii besides what was paid to them from the Treasury's account." Septimius Diogenes also called Agathodaemon, ex-hypomnematographus and however he is styled, syndic, said, "If this is your decision in the case of the weaving-yarn, we will supply a sample and... to those who are to weave it... Let the cloth-weavers who are to weave the linen of the temple appoint (?) some one to (test it?)."

A petition of the city cloth-weavers having been read, to the effect that, besides the ...

drachmae paid to them in the past year (for each ...), .. more drachmae should be given to them on account of the rise in the value of the materials and in the wages of their workmen, after the reading the prytanis said, "Let .. more drachmae be given to the cloth-weavers, making 200 drachmae in all, on account of the rise in value of the materials. Decree this . . . When the bundle (?) has been valued, let these (drachmae) too accrue. Those who pay the value of the (cloth) . . . it shall be submitted to you at the next meeting of the senate." The senators said, "So be it."

A communication from the strategus having been read, concerning the election of other convoyers of animals, after the reading the prytanis said, "... especially the convoyers of the animals transported... I collected some senators who were present and nominated one, Sarapion... in order that there should not be (any delay)..." The senators said, "Invaluable prytanis; save yourself for us, prytanis; excellent is your rule; excellent..." The prytanis said, "... is in the counting-house." The senators said, "The prytanis has done right."

The prytanis said, "The law commands that the coming prytanis should be nominated six months beforehand. I remind you..." The senators said, "The nomination is made with a resolution..." The prytanis said, "... for I have (long) been ill and have a cough from my lung, as you know, ..." The senators said, "(Illustrious) prytanis, noble prytanis, still labour for us; labour in a manner worthy of the past."

1. τάλ[a]ντa: τὰ λ[o]ιπά might be read, but δεκατέσσαρα probably refers to talents in any case rather than to the word after των, and is perhaps accounted for by the figures in l. 2; cf. n.

τιμή: cf. ll. 9, 15, nn., and the προστιμήσεις οθονίων in P. Tebt. 5. 63.

 $\sigma[\imath_i]_{\chi}[a]\rho i\omega\nu$: cf. e. g. 1448. 1. The reading of the figure $(\rho$?, if there was a number at all) is very doubtful; but a new compound of $i\sigma\tau_0$ -, like $i\sigma\tau_0\lambda_0$... ovs in P. Ryl. 189. 3 (cf. the $i\sigma\tau_0\nu_0\rho\chi_i(a)$ in P. Ryl. 98, and P. Rev. Laws xciv. 2 $]_{\nu}$ τον $i\sigma\tau_0\nu$ (δραχμ.) $\kappa\epsilon$) is less likely. That a kind of garment was meant is strongly suggested by the context and a comparison of l. 2 with P. Leipzig 57. 26 sqq., an undertaking to transport to Alexandria τ_0 $\epsilon^*_{\sigma}\iota_{\sigma}^{\rho}\lambda_0\nu$ $\epsilon^*_{\sigma}\nu_0^{\rho}\lambda_0\nu$ (i. e. $\pi_0\lambda_0\nu_0^{\rho}\lambda_0\nu$) $\epsilon^*_{\sigma}\nu_0^{\rho}\lambda_0\nu$ [.].

2. ἀπέχω . . . εἰς τὸ μέρος τῆς πόλεως: this indicates that the prytanis was the speaker in

ll. 1-2; cf. 1515. 1, where he pays a tax on behalf of the city.

έ $[πτὰ ημισυ: 7\frac{1}{2}+6\frac{1}{2}=14 \text{ (talents)}; cf. l. 1, n. The use of μηνιαῖοι for persons making monthly payments, not, as usual, for μηνιαῖοι λόγοι (cf. Wilcken, Archiv, ii. 126) is$ remarkable, but without alteration of the text can hardly be avoided.

4. ἱεροῦ γραφήν: this document probably resembled B. G. U. 362, the official budget of the chief temple at Arsinoë in A.D. 215, and corresponded to the budget usually appended before 202 to the annual γραφαὶ ἱερέων καὶ χειρισμοῦ (the contents of the temple; cf. 1449), e.g. B. G. U. 162, P. Tebt. 298. After the establishment of senates, which assumed the administration of the temples, the budgets seem to have been drawn up by a special ἐπιμελητής appointed by the senate (B. G. U. 362. iii. 3), rather than by the priests. It is noticeable that P. Ryl. 110 (A.D. 259), in most respects resembling an ordinary second-century γρ. ἱερέων καὶ χειρ., has no budget attached to it. The temple in question, which was not precisely described (cf. l. 11), was probably one of the two principal shrines at Oxyrhynchus, the Serapeum and Thoëreum; cf. 1449. int. and 1453.

imply more than that the senate was responsible for obtaining the supply of yarn; for the actual price of this material presumably fell directly upon of $\tau \epsilon \lambda \sigma \delta \nu \tau \epsilon s$ $\tau \gamma \nu \tau \iota \mu \gamma \nu \tau \sigma \nu \nu \tau \epsilon t$ (cf. l. 15, n.), or at any rate on the contributors to the temple, who were by no means all senators, as is shown by the list of persons (many of them women) making payments to the Arsinoïte temple in B. G. U. 362.

5. It is not clear whether δύνασθαι is governed by προεβάλοντο, or by a word like φάμενοι or διὰ τό in the preceding lacuna; in the latter case προεβάλοντο connects with what follows. Besides a negative, the lacuna may have contained another infinitive with τοὺς . . . μεταχειρισαμένους as the subject. τὸ ἔρ γον τοῦτο, which refers to the manufacture of yarn (l. 6), indicates that some reference to λίνον στημονικόν or γέρδιοι had also just occurred. The subject of προεβάλοντο is probably either the priests or ἐπιμεληταί appointed by the senate to collect the yarn (cf. l. 4, n.), not the λινόϋφοι, who do not seem to be mentioned before ll. 10 or 11, nor the λινέμποροι, to whom αὐτοῖς in l. 8 refers.

5-6. A verb like φροντίσατε or γενέσθω ἐπιμελές probably occurred in the lacuna before τοῦτο τὸ εἶδος: cf. l. 13, where εἰδῶν refers to the yarn. εἶδος here might also mean the flax. Wilcken (Ost. i. 268) supposed that the cultivation of this was regulated under the Ptolemies, like that of the oil-producing plants, but the fragments concerning the ἐθονιηρά in P. Rev. Laws bear no trace of a list corresponding to that in Cols. lx–lxxii, and in later periods at any rate λινοκαλάμη seems to have been cultivated at will, without reference to the government; cf. e.g. 1102–3. The point of the remark about the κῶμαι is not that the villages had failed to produce the statutable amount of yarn, but that this material would have to be obtained not from the local villages, but from the city λινέμποροι, who presumably imported it from other nomes, if there was not enough in the city.

7.]ναι might be ναί (cf. 1413. 7), in which case another speaker intervened in the preceding lacuna, but is more likely to belong to an infinitive or participle. On the σύνδικος see 1413. int. and l. 17, n.

8. $\epsilon[\kappa]$ τεσσαράκοντα ἐννέα: the supposed ρ might be ι (but not any other letter), and the vestiges of the preceding five letters are very slight and inconclusive; $\epsilon[.]$... τριάκοντα might be read, but there is not room for $\epsilon[\kappa]$ ατὸν τριάκ. [δε]καεννέα seems to be the figure in l. 9, where [τεσσαράκον]τα ἐν. cannot be read; but there is every reason to expect the figure before ἀρκείσθωσαν to be considerably smaller than that in l. 8, since the 11 denarii which had already been paid were part of the 49 denarii, whereas in l. 9 they are an addition to the 19 denarii. The senate, as we think, offered 30 denarii instead of the 49 demanded by the yarn-merchants, who do not appear to have had their prices fixed beforehand by a State tariff like that found in P. Rev. Laws xciv-viii; cf. l. 13, where the complaint of the cloth-weavers about the πλεοτιμία τῶν εἰδῶν does not suggest that the price of these was fixed by the government. How much yarn was supplied for 49 denarii may have been stated in the lacuna in ll. 7–8; cf. l. 12, n.

αὐτοῖs: i.e. the λινέμποροι (cf. l. 9), even if the priests or ἐπιμεληταί responsible for obtaining the yarn (cf. l. 4, n.), and not the λινέμποροι, were the subject of the verb governing εἶναι (e. g. προσεφώνησαν).

ἀπ[ο τοῦ ταμιακοῦ λόγου: i.e. the fiscus; cf. l. 9, P. Brit. Mus. 985. 6 (iii. 229) τὰ ώρισθέντα μοι δοθῆναι εἰς λόγον τῆς στρα|τ|ίας μου ἀπὸ τοῦ ταμιακοῦ λόγου, and P. Leipzig 64 quoted in 1419. 2, n.

9. [δε]καεννέα:]τα ἐνν. might possibly be read, but there is not room for [τριάκον]τα, and cf. l. 8, n. For λινέμποροι, which seems to be a new form, cf. the λινοπῶλαι in Wilcken, Ost. No. 45, quoted in int. In B. G. U. 1. 3 and P. Rainer af. Wessely, Karanis, p. 74, the priests of Socnopaei Nesus paid 300 drachmae εἰς τιμὴν ὁθονίων βυσσίνων στολισμῶ(ν), and the nature of the payment has given rise to some discussion in view of other evidence that the temple in question manufactured $\delta\theta\delta\nu\iota a$ itself; cf. Wilcken, Osl. i. 269, Otto, op. cil. i. 301. That the $\lambda\iota\nu o\nu$ with which $\lambda\iota\nu \epsilon\mu \pi o\rho o\nu$ were concerned was yarn, not manufactured linen, is clear from the present passage; the occurrence of $\sigma\nu\nu\tau\epsilon$] $\tau\iota\mu\eta\mu\epsilon\nu o\nu$ and $\tau\iota\mu\dot{\eta}$ in l. 15 with an apparent reference to the finished product suggests that the priests of Socnopaei Nesus paid $\lambda\iota\nu\delta\dot{\nu}\phi\iota$ 0 just as the senate or of $\tau\epsilon\lambda\sigma\dot{\nu}\nu\tau\epsilon$ 5 $\tau\dot{\eta}\nu$ 7 $\tau\iota\mu\dot{\eta}\nu$ 700 [$\lambda\dot{\nu}$ 00 did, and it is hardly likely that the weavers at Socnopaei Nesus were really priests, as supposed by Otto, since in the receipts of the temple there is no trace of profits derived from weaving. The procedure in the case of the Oxyrhynchite temple was different, since the senate did not buy the manufactured article, but had separate arrangements with the persons who supplied the yarn and with the weavers.

10. πείραν: cf. l. 15, n., and the πρὸς δειγματισμὸν διάφορα remitted by Ptolemy Epiphanes in connexion with the δθόνια supplied by the priests (Rosetta Inscr. 17–18).

προσενεγκοῦμ[ε]ν: cf. 1260. 28 κατενεγκῶ, and n. The construction of καὶ τοῖς is uncertain. μ έλλουσι[ν]ν ὑφαίνειν: cf. l. 11. τὴν ὀθόνην τοῦ ἱεροῦ may have followed, as there; but if l. 11 was also spoken by the syndic, there was probably some slight variation.

II. Either] ταξάτωσαν or a compound is more likely than π]ραξάτωσαν. What τινά refers to is not clear. If it is masculine, ἀνα. [is probably a future participle in agreement, e. g. ἀναμ ετρήσοντα τὸ λίνον, meaning that the cloth-weavers were to appoint a representative to examine the sample. But there may be a reference to the payment which they were to receive for making the cloth; cf. l. 15.

λινόϋφοι: cf. int., ll. 12–16, 1281. 4, 1303, and Reil, op. cit. 97. An ἄμφοδον at Arsinoë was called Λινυφείων, e.g. P. Tebt. 321. 5 (wrongly assigned to Tebtunis by

S. Niccolò, Vereinswesen, i. 102).

12. For ἀναγνωσθείσης at the beginning of a new section cf. l. 19; the restoration suits ll. 19 and 24. In l. 17 (though cf. n.) and 1415. 4, 13, 17 the same participle occurs elsewhere than at the beginning of a line, and ἀναγ[νωσθείσης can be read in l. 11, with καὶ ἀξ]ιώσεως in l. 12, but the arrangement of ll. 11–12 as continuous is not satisfactory. In spite of the mention of λινόϋφοι in l. 11, the λινόϋφοι in l. 12 seem to be distinct, and not concerned with the temple, while with regard to the supply of yarn their arrangements were different from those in ll. 4–11; cf. l. 13, n. λινόϋφοι τῆς πόλεως means the whole guild of cloth-weavers (cf. 1303 and the similar guilds of other trades in 85), this being the first mention of them in the Roman period; cf. S. Niccolò, l. c. They must have been the persons responsible for making the cloth required from the city; cf. ll. 1–3 and int.

αὐτοῖς was probably followed by [ὑπὲρ ἐκάστου κρίκου (cf. l. 15, n.) or whatever the measure of the cloth was; cf. l. 8, n. 200 drachmae are much too small a sum to represent the whole amount due to the cloth-weavers.

13. πλοστιμίαν τῶν εἰδῶν: cf. ll. 5-6, n. It is clear that the λινόϋφοι τῆς πόλεως had to find their own yarn, unlike the λινόϋφοι in ll. 10-11; cf. l. 12, n.

ύπουργ[ω]ν: cf. e.g. B. G. U. 362. viii. 6 παιδία (l. -δίοις) 5 ύπουργουσι τοις αὐτοις

ό $\pi[\rho \acute{\nu} \tau a \nu s : o \ifill \beta \cdot \cdo$

14. ψηφίσασθε: or, if this line was spoken by the βουλευταί (cf. the preceding n.), ψηφ ιζόμεθα.

15. συντε] τιμημένου τοῦ κρίκου: κρίκος, which usually means an iron ring (cf. Reil, op. cit. 66), is found in 147. 2 σχοιν (ίον) ήτοι κρίκον in the sense of a coil of rope. Here it seems to refer to a bundle of cloth, perhaps tied by a ring, for αὖται refers to the additional drachmae voted by the senate, and the payment to the cloth-weavers would naturally be made after the valuation of the cloth following its manufacture. With συντε]τιμημένου cf. ll. I and 9-10, nn. That the κρίκος refers to yarn is unlikely (cf. l. 13, n.); but whether it means the whole amount due, or is a unit of measurement, is not clear. τοῦ [κρίκου might be restored after την τιμήν, where the verb may well have been ἀπαιτείσθωσαν (cf. l. 2); but λίνου is there more likely, though referring to manufactured linen, not to yarn (cf. l. 13, n.). οί τελοῦντες are clearly tax-payers, not purchasers, and appear to have been the persons responsible for paying to the senate for the cloth-weavers the value of the cloth, i. c. probably the persons who make money-payments for οθονιηρά; cf. int.

16. π[a]ρατεθήσεται ὑμῖν: cf. 1413. 14, 17, nn., 33, which suggest that here too the speaker was a σύνδικος: but if Σεπτίμιος Διογένης κτλ. (cf. l. 7) be restored, the length of the lacunae at the ends of lines was much longer than seems probable in ll. 9-10, and the assent of the senators suggests that $\pi[a]\rho a\tau \epsilon \theta$. $\kappa \tau \lambda$ is all part of the speech of the prytanis. Cf. l. 13, n., and 1415. 8, where παραθησόμεθα . . . τῷ κρατίστω ἐπιστρατήγω is spoken by the prytanis.

17. Since Il. 19 and 24 are irreconcilable with the supposition that ἀναγ|νωσθέντος came at the beginning of the line, there was either a blank space before it or more probably c. g. a date. Terentius Arius is possibly the strategus mentioned in 1455. 1, 34 (A.D. 275).

εκα : or εκε. A minor official title is expected; cf. l. 10.

18. [έδοξεν ὑπερτεθηνα]: cf. 1416. 10.

19. [ἀναγνωσθέντος ἐπιστά]λματος: cf. l. 17 and 1415. 17. For κατα]πομπῶν (masc.) cf. 1415. 6 and P. Leipzig ined. ap. Wilcken, Chrest. 43. int. ὑποδέκτης (l. -as) ήτοι καταπομπούς τῶν κελευσθέντων [. .] . ων. For με[τὰ τὴν ἀνάγνωσιν cf. l. 13.

20. μάλιστα [δέ]:]. πλίστα[ιs] or possibly ταχίστα[ιs] can be read, with ται instead of τοις before $\tilde{a}\mu a$, but $\epsilon \pi \iota |\mu \epsilon \lambda \eta \tau a|\hat{\iota}_s|$ is inadmissible.

21. εἰς ἐπιμελῆ] τόπου (cf. 1412. 11-12) cannot be read. A similar partial meeting of the senate seems to be meant in B. G. U. 144. ii. I (cf. 1416. int.) $\eta \rho \epsilon \theta \eta$ $\dot{\nu} \pi \dot{\nu} \delta [\tau] \dot{\omega} \nu \dot{\epsilon} \pi \dot{\nu} \tau \sigma \dot{\nu} \dot{\alpha} \dot{\nu} \dot{\alpha} \dot{\nu}$ $\tau \eta s$ αὐτης βουλης, where Jouguet (op. cit. 382) proposed τού(του) for τοῦ, but τόπ(ου) or τό(πο)υ seems more likely.

22. γ είνηται: the subject was probably a phrase like ενέδρα (or εμποδισμός) περί τήν καταπομπήν της αννώνης των γενναιστάτων στρατιωτών; cf. 1415. 7.

24. ὁ νόμ]os: "Αρι]os (cf. l. 17) could be read, but there is not room for ὁ στρατηγ)ός, which would rather be expected, if he were mentioned.

25. σκέψεωs apparently means a resolution of the senate, as in 1412. 13. In 41 the honour to be bestowed upon the prytanis has been supposed by Wilamowitz and others to refer to his re-election, but that is very doubtful since the meeting was of the $\delta \hat{\eta} \mu o s$, not of the senate; cf. Wilcken, Chrest. 45. 9, n. The appointment of a prytanis seems to have required the confirmation of the praefect; cf. 1252, verso ii. 18-19.

26. Probably πολ δ (or έκ πολλο δ) γάρ.

- 27. $\kappa \lambda \nu \tau \epsilon$, a poetical word, is unsatisfactory here, though the doubtful π might be τ and the δ might be λ or a. $d\tau i \mu \eta \tau \epsilon$ (cf. l. 22) is inadmissible. Whether the scribe wrote the correct vocative εὐγεν ές is also uncertain. The scribe of 41, who is equally careless, especially with regard to the confusion of α and ϵ , may have intended $\epsilon \vartheta \tau \nu \chi \eta$ for a vocative, though Wilcken (Chrest. 45. 3, n.) prefers to regard that form as an imperative, i. e., εὐτύχει. The vocative of Λεωνίδηs is Λεωνίδη in 1413. 16, but the declension of that word is of course different.
- 28. The word after [δ]φε[ί]λ[ον]τες may be a verb ending in -ουσιν, but not [ἀπ]έχουσιν. 29. πρόσκλητον βου[λήν: cf. 1412. 12, n. But in 1416. 28 πρόσκλητον is used in a quite different sense, and the vestiges of βου λήν are very slight.

1415. REPORT OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE.

26.2 × 32 cm.

Late third century.

This much damaged papyrus contains the latter part of one column and the beginnings of a few lines of a second from a report of the senate's proceedings similar to 1413-14 but a little later, and probably belonging to the reign of Diocletian or possibly the period 305-23; cf. 1413. int. The mention of an epistrategus, an official who is not elsewhere attested later than 280 (P. Ryl. 114, 35, n.), does not favour a fourth-century date. Two sections (ll. 4-12 and 17-31) are fairly well preserved, and another (ll. 13-16) is partly intelligible; but the other three are quite fragmentary. Lines 1-3 belong to the conclusion of a debate, apparently a speech of the prytanis, declaring his intention of referring the question, which seems to have concerned some kind of transport, to the epistrategus. In ll. 4-12 the subject is the consideration of instructions from the strategus to appoint persons to serve in place of two others, who were responsible for transporting military supplies but had absconded. The prytanis was anxious for the appointment of substitutes without delay, but objection was raised by the senate to nominating beforehand a certain class of persons (or perhaps any one at all), for fear of their flight. The prytanis was therefore reduced to an appeal to the epistrategus on this point, as well as on the question of filling up two other vacant posts, of one of which the description is lost but the holder seems to have absconded, the other being the office of winecollector, of which the holder, Aristion, had been released from duty by the epistrategus. The mention of Aristion's name was greeted with exclamations of approval by the senate; when, however, the prytanis made another request for filling up the vacant posts, their reply referred to the seizure of the sureties of the defaulters and shows no signs of their consenting to do as they were asked, so that the concluding remark of the prytanis, which is lost, may well have been a repetition of his former declaration that he would appeal to the epistrategus.

The next section (ll. 13-16) began like the one preceding with the reading of an official communication from the strategus, of which the contents are not preserved; a second communication was from a public banker, apparently desiring a substitute for one of his colleagues, whose conduct had been unsatisfactory. A suggestion was then made, probably by the senate collectively, that a richer person should be appointed, after which the prytanis made a speech, apparently occupying the rest of the section, except perhaps for a remark of assent from the senate at the end; but the nature of his observations is obscure

In l. 17 a difficulty arises similar to that in 1414, 12; for, though a fresh series of communications was read, the name but not the rank of the official being given. the topic which gave rise to an animated discussion in ll. 18-31 was the appointment of a public banker, and it is not at all clear that a new section began after 1. 16, especially as ll. 15-16 may have been concerned only with the instructions from the strategus, and the question of the appointment of another public banker may have arisen out of the communication in 1. 14. The public bankers, however, formed a collegium at this period (cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 647), and on the whole we are disposed to disconnect ll. 17-31 with the preceding section, and to regard the communications mentioned in l. 17 as parallel to that in l. 14, but referring to a different vacancy. The first speech seems to have come, as usual, from the prytanis, who pointed out that persons already holding a public office were eligible for election to a second, and it was on this question that most of the subsequent discussion turned; for, after a second speech from the prytanis urging an immediate election (cf. ll. 4-12), but leaving the choice of a candidate to the senate, the members of the tribe which by rotation was responsible for the appointments to liturgies (cf. 1413. 12, n.) proposed the election of Ptolemaeus, a chief-priest, one of the lesser municipal officials (cf. 1412. 1-3, n.). The next speech (l. 21) was apparently an objection to the nomination from Eudaemon (an exegetes who intervenes again later in support of Ptolemacus) on the ground that the burden of two offices was beyond Ptolemaeus' means, as was also pleaded by the chief-priest himself. The prytanis' suggestion that more pressure should be brought to bear upon Ptolemaeus, as being too modest, led to renewed protests from both him and Eudaemon; but though perhaps disposed to make some concession with regard to the office already held by Ptolemaeus, the prytanis would take no refusal on the question of the bankership, and the senators showed their opinion by the acclamations customary in these circumstances (l. 27, n.). A final appeal from Ptolemaeus, supported by a reminder of his past services from his champion, was disregarded, and his election as banker was proposed by the prytanis and accepted by the senate, a last good word for Ptolemaeus being spoken by Eudaemon, acquiescing in the verdict of the majority. This lively and interesting debate presents several points of similarity to the discussion in C. P. Herm. 7. ii; cf. l. 25, n.

Col. ii, belonging to two other sections, contains only one or two letters in most of the lines, but is valuable for its indications of the method of commencing a new section, the beginnings of lines being nowhere else preserved in 1413–15. The lines in 1415 were, as is usual in this class of documents, of great breadth, and in no case can the whole gap between two consecutive lines be filled up with certainty; but in 1. 5 not more than about 4.5 letters need be lost at the beginning, and the initial lacuna there is unlikely to exceed 60 letters. Compared with the beginning of 1. 5, the initial lacuna in 11. 1-3 is longer by about 38 letters and in 1. 4 by 8; in 1. 6 it is of the same length, and in 11. 7-10 shorter by 5 letters, but longer in 1. 11 by 7, in 11. 12-13 by 11, in 11. 14-15 by 12, in 1. 16 by 8, and in 11. 17-31 by about 25 letters.

1. Perhaps ἐπειδή φανερόν ἐστιν ὅ]τι; cf. l. 26. For καταφερέτωσαν cf. ll. 5-6.

2. $a\dot{v}$ τ $\hat{\omega}$ is probably the epistrategus; cf. l. 8. $\pi a \rho a \left[\theta \dot{\omega} \mu \epsilon \theta a \right]$ indicates the prytanis or syndic as the speaker; cf. l. 8 and 1413. 17, n.

4. καὶ ἀ]ναγεινώσ[κε]ται ὑμῖν: cf. l. 13, B. G. U. 925. I -θην [τν] εἰδῆς καὶ ἀναγεινώσκεται. μετὰ τὴ]ν ἀνάγνωσ]ιν κτλ., De Ricci, CR. de l'Acad. d. Inscr. 1905. 160 (W. Chrest. 27). 9–11 ἀναγνωσθ(ἡ)τω ἡ διάταξις Πρώκλου. ἀναγνωσθείσ(ης) κτλ. Something like ἐπιστάλματα ἕλαβον, followed by the name of the strategus (cf. l. 17, n.), probably preceded.

5. For the restoration of the name cf. l. 11. For καταφέρου ros cf. ll. 1, 6, 1414. 20; κατάγου ros would also be suitable. For καταπομποί cf. 1414. 19, n.

6. ἐξ] ᾿Αραβία[s : this probably refers to the district between the Nile and the Red Sea, or else Arabia Felix. Most of the caravans bringing Arabian wares from Philotera, Myos Hormos, Leucos Limen, or Berenice entered the Nile valley at Καινή (Κεπελ), Coptos, or further south, but Hadrian constructed a road from Antinoë to the coast. 36 (= W. Chrest. 273) contains part of a tariff relating probably to wares imported from the Red Sea; cf. Rostowzew, Archiv, iv. 298 sqq. The νομὸς ᾿Αραβία (cf. 1435. 8) is certainly not meant, and though ᾿Αραβία is sometimes used merely in reference to that part of an Upper Egyptian nome which was on the east bank (e. g. P. Brit. Mus. 401. 10 Κόχλακος τῆς ᾿Αραβίας τοῦ . . . Παθυρίτου νομοῦ; cf. Strabo, p. 806), it is very doubtful whether any part of the Oxyrhynchite nome, even the eastern toparchy, was on the east bank; cf. 1421. 3, n.

7. δότε κτλ.: cf. ll. 10–11 and 19. For the annona militaris cf. Wilchen, Grundz. 360. προ[[τραπήτωσαν: cf. l. 23, 1413. 9. προ[ονομασθήτωσαν (cf. 1417. 8–9, n.) would also be suitable.

9. The person referred to in the early part of this line was probably mentioned also in l. 11, where, if the restoration is correct, he was in the same position as Actiasion and Theon with regard to his surety, a circumstance which suggests that he like them had run away. But δι ἀλ[λου ὑπιο]μνήματος at the end of the line indicates that a ὑπόμνημα of the epistrategus occurred earlier, and πε[ρὶ (title) ἀντὶ (name) τοῦ ἀπολυθέντος ὑπὸ τοῦ κρατίστου ἐπιστρατήγου δι ὑπομνήματος καὶ π ερί can be restored, in which case the first part of l. 10 may have contained some complimentary references to him corresponding to those concerning Aristion, and the words preceding παρὰ τῷ στρατηγῷ in l. 11 would have to be restored differently.

συνλέκτου οἴνου: the first word seems to be the genitive of συλλέκτης, an otherwise unattested form analogous to ὑποδέκτης, rather than of σύλλεκτος.

10-11. ίνα | [μη έμποδίζηται: cf. l. 7.

11. $\mathring{\eta} \delta \eta$: cf. l. 18. If $\dot{\epsilon} \gamma \gamma \dot{\nu} \eta$ is right, it was preceded by the name of the person described in the first part of l. 9; cf. n. The deleted letter may have been s or v.

παρὰ τῷ στρατηγῷ: declarations of sureties for pilots or ναύκληροι in the public service were usually addressed to the strategus, e. g. 1554; ἐγγύαι probably means the documents, not the actual money.

12. The final remark of the prytanis may well have been παραθησόμεθα καὶ περὶ τούτου τῷ κρατίστω ἐπιστρατήγω; cf. l. 8 and int.

13. καὶ ἀναγεινώσκεται: cf. l. 4, n. The word ending in -ov is probably a proper name, στρατηγοῦ being inadmissible. v can be read for ϵ before . . ov, but the name seems to be different from that in l. 17.

14. ἀντὶ Πασίωνος κτλ.: cf. l. 5 and 1416. II-I2 ἀντὶ...] τ[ο]ῦ ὀνομασθ(έντος) καὶ μὴ συνλειτ[ο]υργήσαντο[ς. The word before καί does not seem to be λειτουργήσαντος, but all the readings in this line after τοῦ are very uncertain. ἐπὶ πᾶσι is possible.

15. ὀνομαζέσθω is apparently middle, as in l. 19; the active occurs in 1413. 4, 9. The speaker can be the senate collectively or an individual, but not the prytanis, who generally opens the discussion after the reading of documents. ὀνομάζεσθαι (which would be passive, depending on π ερὶ τοῦ in l. 14) cannot be read, and an acrist infinitive is expected after π ερὶ τοῦ. For the prytanis as nominator cf. l. 30; but the subject might be e.g. the λειτουργοῦσα ψυλή; cf. l. 19, n.

16. τηλικαύτην: cf. ll. 23-4. λειτουργίαν may well have occurred earlier in the line, but not immediately before τηλικ. At the end of the line οὖτω would be suitable (cf. 1414. 16), but the reading οἱ βο[υλε]υτο[ί is very doubtful, especially as υτα was on a separate fragment, which is not certainly placed here.

17. If a new section began in this line (cf. int.), the prytanis probably made an introductory remark, as in ll. 4 and 13. The word after ἐπισ]ταλμάτων is apparently a proper name, not a title, and may well refer to the strategus; cf. 1414. 17.

18. For the initial restoration cf. l. 6; that είς λειτο]υργίαν κτλ, belongs to the ἐπιστάλματα is less likely. Instances of persons holding more than one public office are not uncommon: a βασιλικὸς τραπεζίτης in B. G. U. 121 (A. D. 194) is also ἔναρχος γυμνασίαρχος, the εὐθηνιαρχία was often combined with other offices (1412. 1-3, n.), and cf. l. 25, 1416. 5, nn.

19. δότε [τον λε] [τον] [τον]

for οἱ ἀπὸ τῆς [[(number) φυλῆς l. 30 and 1413. 12, n.

20-1. αναλαβέσθε may be for ἀναλαβέσθαι. The reference to βαρυτάταις λειτουργίαις suggests that, in l. 21 at any rate, Eudaemon (cf. int.) was the speaker, rather than the prytanis or the tribe, and if e. g. οὐ δύναται (cf. ll. 26 and 28) occurred before Π]τολεμαῖος, that sentence too may belong to Eudaemon. The members of the tribe may have said προτραπήτω Πτολεμαῖος Δαμαρίωνος ἀρχιερεύς: cf. 1413. 9.

23-4. Cf. P. Ryl. 77. 38-9 ἀναδεξάμενος την μείζονα ἀρχην οὐκ ὀφείλει την ἐλάττον' αποφεύγειν.

25. ἐν ἄλλη [: or ἐναλλα[-, i. e. some part of ἐναλλαγή (cf. 1413. 22, 23) or ἐναλλάσσειν. In any case there is probably a contrast between Ptolemaeus' ἀρχιερωσύνη, which might be got rid of in some way, and the bankership, which he could not refuse; cf. l. 30, and 1627, which is concerned with a change of λειτουργίαι. A somewhat similar situation occurs in C. P. Herm. 7. ii, where Heraclammon, who is pressed to undertake an ἐπιμέλεια, desires to vacate his position of eutheniarch first (perhaps he was gymnasiarch also, for ἐκ τῶν γυμνασσιαρ[χ in ll. 8–9 apparently refers to Heraclammon, and his name may have occurred in l. 2 as one of the two gymnasiarchs instead of Paniscus' as restored by Jouguet, op. cit. 383).

27. For άγνὲ πιστέ cf. 1413. 11, n. iκανά might mean 'bail', and a word like ἀνίεμεν can be restored; cf. P. Ryl. 77. 30 ίκανὸν ἀνεθῆναι. But it may well have its commoner

28. Δα]μαρίωνος: or, possibly,] 'Ωρίωνος. 29. For ὑποστῆναι cf. e.g. C. I. G. 1365 γυμνασιαρχίαν ὑποστ. For Eudaemon as Ptolemaeus' supporter cf. ll. 24, 31, and 20-1, n. The senate also might be the speaker.

30. προβάλ λομαι: cf. C. P. R. 20. i. 6-7 τοις προβαλομένοις τον ήμετερον υίον . . . είς κοσμητείαν. The letter before o (which is nearly certain) can be γ , λ , π , σ , or τ .

31. πίστεως ενεκεν: cf. 1413. 11.

MEMORANDA OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE.

27.2 × 12.4 cm.

About A. D. 299.

On the recto of this papyrus is a list of official persons (1498). The verso contains a valuable list of subjects discussed by the senate of Oxyrhynchus, and is to some extent parallel to B.G.U. 144, a fragment of what seems to be official memoranda of a prytanis (cf. Preisigke, Beamtenwesen, 53). Col. i of that papyrus is, however, too imperfect to show its contents, and of Col. ii ll. 1-5 refer to a person appointed to an office by the prytanis after an informal meeting of senators (cf. 1414. 21, n.), leaving only ll. 6-9, which are part of a list of individuals apparently appointed to some λειτουργία by the senate. 1416 was clearly drawn up by or for a prytanis, and that it refers to the acta, not the agenda, of the senate is indicated by the use of past tenses throughout, especially in l. I είσηγήσατο. The different subjects are normally introduced by the phrase $\pi(\epsilon \rho l)$ $\tau o \hat{v}$ followed by an infinitive, but in 1. 27 there was apparently some variation, perhaps owing to the commencement of a separate section. On the right-hand side there is an almost vertical break, and the ends of lines are mostly lost. Probably at least twenty letters are missing; cf. l. 6, n. The arrangement of ll. 19-26, which are not likely to form one paragraph, is uncertain. The writing on the recto bears considerable resemblance to 1412, which belongs to the reign of Probus, and 1416 must be assigned approximately to the close of the third century on palaeographical grounds. The mention of the praefect Publius indicates a date about A. D. 299, though only one emperor is referred to; cf. l. 29, n. On the general question of the subjects debated by the senate see 1413, int.

1. $\epsilon l \sigma \eta \gamma \dot{\eta} \sigma a \tau o$: cf. int. and 1413. 2, n. $\epsilon l \sigma \eta \gamma (\eta \tau \dot{\eta} s)$ added later in the margin here and against l. 4 serves apparently to emphasize the insertion of the name of the proposer, which seems to be omitted in the later sections. This Tiron is probably mentioned in 1515. 4.

2. πανήγ[υριν: cf. l. 16, 41. I]αρίας πανηγύρεως οὔσης, where Wilcken (Chrest. 45. I, n.) has suggested ἐξτραορδιν]αρίας, and 705. 34–5 ἔτι καὶ νῦν τὴν τῶν ἐπινεικίων ἡμέραν ἐκάστου ἔτους πανηγυρίζοντας (sc. the Oxyrhynchites). A tax [....] πανηγύρεω(s) occurs in P. Ryl. 213. 374. It is possible that a name is lost at the end of this line and l. 5.

3. ἀπὸ βουλευτικῶν προχρείαν: cf. 1418. 20 ἀs ἐκ προχ[ρε]ίας πεποίηκεν γυμνασιαρχίας ἡμε[ρ..., and 1501, which is concerned with a loan by a ταμίας βουλ(ευτικῶν) χρη(μάτων). The βουλευτικά, which are not mentioned elsewhere, seem to be a private fund of the senate, distinct from the πολιτικὸς λόγος administered by them, on which see Jouguet, op. cit. 416.

The name of some office or offices, e. g. τη̂s γυμνασιαρχίαs, probably followed χώραs, for which cf. 1413. 1, n.

5. ἀγωνοθέτην: this official, who is often met with in some of the provinces (Liebenam, Städteverwaltung, 542), is rarely mentioned in Egypt; but cf. 1284. 8-9, where the order κοσμητεύσαντος [καὶ ἀγωνο]θετήσαντος indicates that he ranked above the cosmetes (cf. 1412. 1-3, n.), Dittenberger, Or. Gr. Inser. ii. 713, where his office at Alexandria was combined with that of gymnasiarch (cf. είς ἀρχάς here), P. Ryl. 117. 18.

6. After κθ at least one more day (i.e. λ, followed perhaps by Παχῶν..) must have been mentioned, if l. 7 refers to this date; but that is far from certain. The occurrence of (Pachon) 8 in l. 8 would suit the view that the lacuna at the end of ll. 6 and 7 extends to 30 or 40 letters, but at the end of l. 8 only one name is necessary before ι, and though a father's name may have been added and ι...τὸν καὶ Ἡλιοβῶρον is possible, a lacuna of more than 20 letters is unlikely. Probably several of the early days of Pachon were omitted; cf. 1413. 24, n. Gymnasiarchs only held office for a few days in the year, so that a large number of them was required; cf. 1418. 15, n.

8. H[: κ[ληρονόμους (cf. l. 7) is improbable.

10. Cf. 1414. 18 and 1413. int.

11–12. προτραπῆναι, for which cf. ll. 5–6, or δοθῆναι (cf. 1415. 5, 14–15) is to be restored either in l. 15, in which case the liturgy in question was connected with the πανήγνρις (l. 2, n.), or in l. 12, in which case it may have been different and εἰς τὸ . . . πανήγνριν may depend on ἐνομασθ(έντας) in l. 15. It is curious that so many names were apparently suggested, for there seems to have been only one defaulter $(\tau[\hat{\omega}]^{\nu}$ cannot be read in l. 12), and only one substitute (aἰτόν in l. 17), with another person as surety. Possibly the persons mentioned in ll. 14–15 were not coupled with Heracleon and Serenus.

13. Σέσφθα (or Σέφθα, as in P. Hibeh 45. 5) was in the lower toparchy (1285, 136), probably close to the Nile since a κυβερνήτης in 1554. 6 came from it, and a place of some size since in 1285 it paid more than any other village in its toparchy. The boundary between the lower toparchy and the Heracleopolite nome was probably somewhere between Fishn and Fint, and nearly opposite Hibeh, which lies on the east bank. That town, perhaps identical with Hipponon (cf. P. Hibeh, p. 10), was in the Heracleopolite nome, but the papyri from its cemetery were mainly written either in the Κωίτης toparchy of the Heracleopolite nome, or in the lower toparchy of the Oxyrhynchite. Ψῦχις and Ταλαή, two Heracleopolite villages often mentioned in them, and, as P. Hibeh 117, 8 indicates, near each other, may well correspond to the modern Absug and Tala to the north-west of Feshn, in which case the Κωίτης τόπος was the southern portion of the Heracleopolite nome. This is on the whole more probable than the view suggested in P. Hibeh, I.c., that it was all on the east bank, for unless the Nile has shifted its course since Roman times, there was hardly any cultivation on the east bank between Wasta and Fent. Tala, however, might be the Oxyrhynchite village of Ταλαώ, Shenra, which is near the edge of the desert west of Fent, may be the Oxyrhynchite Σιναρύ, often mentioned in the Hibeh papyri, and Talt, a little south-west of Tala might be another, Θῶλθις. The Ptolemaic papyri found in recent years at Gamhûd, between Shenra and Talt, are likely to throw more light on the question. Τακόνα, another village in the lower toparchy, is stated by the Iterin. Anton. to have been twenty-four Roman miles from Oxyrhynchus. Since Sesphtha was in the 10th pagus in the fourth century (P. Giessen 115), it was probably in the extreme north of the toparchy, of which other villages belonged to the 8th and 9th pagi, i.e. further south in the direction of Maghagha; cf. 1425. 4, n., and 1448, int. The boundary of the Oxyrhynchite and Heracleopolite nomes was perhaps slightly altered in Roman times, for 'Aσσύα, which is found in a taxing-list of Heracleopolite villages in P. Hibeh p. 8, occurs in 1529 along with villages of the lower toparchy of the Oxyrhynchite nome, unless a different village is meant.

14. ἐκ δοχ $\hat{\eta}[s]$: cf. 1265. 17 ἐκ διαδοχ $\hat{\eta}s$ τοῦ . . . πατρόs in a declaration by a priest (cf.

[ν]υνεὶ ἱερέα in l. 15).

15. For είς τό followed by an infinitive (ἄγειν?) cf. ll. 2 and 11-12, n.

 παρασ[τῆσαι: cf. l. 21 and e. g. 1554. 8 ον καὶ παραστήσω σοι.

18. κοσμητ(ήν): concerning this office not much is known, and whether it was normally held for only a few days at a time like that of gymnasiarch (cf. ll. 6–9) is uncertain. κοσμητ(οῦ) οτ κοσμητ(εύσαντος) would apparently yield the same sense as κοσμητ(ήν), if εφ' ή μέρας be retained; cf. l. 2 for the absence of an expressed subject of the infinitive. εφή βων followed by a title, which would be the subject of ήρησθαί, is less likely.

19. π] $\epsilon \pi o [\hat{\eta} \sigma] \theta(a)$ does not seem the right verb if the genitive $\Lambda i \mu \lambda (a \nu o \hat{\nu})$ is correct, and there is hardly room for another letter besides $\pi(\epsilon \rho i)$ $\tau o \hat{\nu}$ in the lacuna. a can be read for o, and κ or η for ι . $a \pi o \phi a \sigma \iota s$ means a sentence of a judge, but what rank Aemilianus Asclepiades held is uncertain, except that he was not praefect; cf. l. 29, n.

21. [ν]ομικάριον: νομικάριος seems to be a late variant for νομικός, which can mean either a legal adviser, as in C. P. R. 18. 22–5 (= M. Chrest. 84) Βλαίσιος Μαριανός . . . συνλαλήσας ᾿Αρτε[μ]δ[ώρω τ]ῶ νομικῷ περὶ τοῦ πράγματος ὑ[πη]γόρευσεν ἀπό[φασιν ἡ καὶ ἀν]ε[γ]νώσθ[η], or a tabellio, as in 34. iii. 3 (cf. Koschaker, Zeitschr. f. Savignyst. xxix. 15–19). In Byzantine papyri νομικάριος occurs in 136. 10, 154. 10, P. Iand. 45. 1. The proximity of ἀπόφασιν in I. 19 suggests the meaning 'lawyer' here, but l. 20 refers to an election to some office and may belong to a new section. The doubtful second a of παρα[can be ω, but l. 21 may well correspond to l. 17.

are lacking. Line 25 might be [περὶ τοῦ προτρ(απῆναι) Π]τολεμῦνον έξηγ(ητεῦσαι) κτλ.; cf. l. 6. of can be read after huipals in place of the supposed p at the end of the line above.

26. Possibly the supposed ι (or ρ) belongs to l. 25, and the space between ll. 25 and 27 was blank. If there was a line there, it may well have been a heading, possibly a date;

cf. the next note.

27. This section seems to have begun somewhat differently from the rest, for, though $\pi(\epsilon_0 i)$ $\tau_0 i$ can be supplied, the word before $\tau_0 i$ is not an infinitive, γ_0 can be read for $\gamma \epsilon[.]$.; the word shows no sign of having been abbreviated. A substantive to which δημοτελής would apply is expected.

28. 70v is written a little higher than the rest of the line and might be a marginal note (cf. ll. 1 and 4), but this line is more probably a new section than a continuation of l. 27. πρόσκλητον λαβείν seems to refer to receiving a judicial summons from the ἐπίτροπος, though πρόσκλησιν (for which cf. Mitteis, Grundz. 16) would be expected. For trials before an έπίτροπος involving the senate cf. 1413. 17, n., 1417. int. It does not seem practicable to interpret πρόσκλητον here in the same sense as in 1412. 12 πρόσκλητον βουλήν.

29. The word before τόν is presumably an infinitive (μισαι, |κισαι, |αρθαι, or |ειναι is possible), but can be | αι καί. It is remarkable that only one Emperor is mentioned, though two were reigning if 1416 is contemporary with 1204, which mentions the same praefect (Aelius) Publius (Aug. 19, 299). He came after Flavius Valerius Pompeianus, who was in office from October 287 (888. 6) to Sept. 15, 289 (1252. recto 28), and Aemilius Rusticianus, deputy-praefect in 298 (1469. 1), and before Clodius Culcianus, who held office from Feb. 28, 303 (71. 23) to May 29, 306 (1104. 10). Of the three other praefects assigned to this period by Cantarelli (Prefetti di Egitto, ii. 13–16), Sallustius (P. Amh. 137. 4) was shown by 1191 to belong to the 6th year of Probus (280-1); Aurelius Antinoüs (B. G. U. 13. 3) was not a praefect, but the $\pi(\rho a \iota) \pi(\delta \sigma \iota \tau \sigma s)$, or at any rate a subordinate, of an unnamed praefect, while Hoof \(\tau \cdot \nu \nu \mu \rangle \) or Hoof \(\ell \cdot \delta \cdot \rangle \), the praefect mentioned on Pompey's pillar at Alexandria (Dittenberger, Or. Gr. Inser. ii. 718. 3), was probably our Πούβλιος, Salt having in fact read TOYBAIOC and Köhler TOYBAIOC. On the praefects preceding Valerius Pompeianus see 1456. 1, n.

1417. REPORT OF A TRIAL CONCERNING THE SENATE.

 21.8×26.8 cm.

Early fourth century.

The trial reported in this fragment was an action before a strategus, brought by the senate of Oxyrhynchus through their σύνδικος (cf. 1413. 17, n.) against Nilus, probably Thonius (l. 33), and perhaps other persons (cf. l. 28), who had after election by the senate failed to perform the duties of eutheniarchs. A somewhat similar action before an ἐπίτροπος, brought by the senate of Hermopolis against gymnasiarchs, is mentioned in C. P. Herm. 53 (W. Chrest. 39); fragments of other trials in which the senate was represented by σύνδικοι are extant in C. P. Herm. 23, 25-6. The office of eutheniarch, a magistrate responsible for the grain supply of Oxyrhynchus, was difficult to fill, and, as 1252, verso shows, for some years before 289 it was in abeyance. In the present case one of the persons nominated (Nilus?) threatened to resign his property and appeal to the praefect. as not infrequently happened in connexion with the nomination to municipal offices; cf. 1405, 1642, and C. P. R. 20. The judge, as might be expected, exhibited a desire to carry out the resolutions ($\psi\eta\psi i\sigma\mu\alpha\tau\alpha$) of the senate (cf. ll. 16, 23, 28–32); but the lines were of considerable length, though the writing is large, and are too incomplete to permit a reconstruction of the dialogue, which was chiefly between Nilus and the strategus. The papyrus probably belongs to the early part of the fourth century rather than to the end of the third; a date towards the middle of the fourth century, though palaeographically possible, is hardly compatible with the prominence of the strategus, for that office after the establishment of the logistes and defensor (cf. 1426. 3, 4, nn.), and praepositi of the pagi (1425. 4, n.) rapidly waned in importance; cf. 1430 and 1470. intt.

3. Solymare: cf. 1. 27 and P. Fay. 20. 22, where the word is used by the Emperor (Julian?) for an edict, i. e. the papyrus in question. In 1417 it may refer to an edict of the praefect, who is mentioned just before l. 27, while ἡγεμόνες καὶ ἐπίτροποι is not unlikely in l. 4, as e. g. in 237. vii. 14.

5-6. Cf. 1405. 5-6 and 24-5 έξιστανόμενος αὐτῷ, and, for πάντα, 1405. int. αὐτοῖς refers to the nominators, and φ νλή may be substituted for βο νλή (which may of course be dative);

cf. 1413. 13.

8-q. It is not clear whether Nilus or the strategus is the speaker; but if ἐπεί in l, q is for ἐπί, as is probable (cf. l. 25 περεί), l. 9 suits Nilus, and ll. 11-13, if there is no change of speaker in l. το, can be restored προσ νομασθέντες . . . ὑπὸ τῆς βουλῆς] ἐν τοῖς ὑπομνήμασι τηρήσομεν τὸ δί καιον τῆς γυμνασιαρχίας (cf. l. 24), ἀπολυθήσομεθα (?; cf. l. 20, n.) δὲ τῆ ς εὐθηνιαρχίας. On the other hand, if εὐθηνιαρχίας depends on τὸ δίκαιον, ll. 11-13 at any rate are best assigned to the strategus, and it is he who refers to the praefect in 11. 26 and 29. If èmet is retained, "ξοδον might mean 'issue', not 'voyage', and the speaker be the strategus, but the instances of appeals to the praefect for release from liturgies (P. Amh. 82 and 1642. 21) favour the view that l. 9 refers to a voyage to Alexandria. The line drawn above l. 10 was perhaps intended to indicate deletion, as e.g. in 843.

10. Perhaps | τὸν διασημότατόν μου ἡγεμόνα; cf. l. 26. The σκρίβας was the secretary of the senate; cf. 1191, a regulation that appointments of ἐπιμέληταί by the senate should bear his signature. The letter after $i\pi\epsilon\rho$ is either ν or π , and that before $\nu\tau\rho\nu$ is apparently not a.

11-13. Cf. ll. 8-9, n. After των συνδίκων a participle like προσφωνησάντων is expected, but ἦτιω||μένων (i. e. ἢτιαμένων) does not suit the vestiges, for the second letter seems to be γ or σ and the fourth to be ν , though whether any letter at all followed is very doubtful. ή γινο μένη does not suit the context.

19. ἀναδίοχή: cf. 1418. 18, n. ἀνάδίοσις would also be suitable with αὐτοίῦ; with μοίν or σολυ a longer word (ἀνάδ[ειξις?) is necessary. ἐδεή σαντο is more likely than ἐψηφί σαντο.

20. ὑπό μ]νη μα is unsuitable. At the end of the line a participle, possibly ἀπολυθέντος

(cf. ll. 8-9, n.), is expected.

22, μάτην: the fourth letter begins more like ε than η, but μάτεον for μάταιον cannot be read.

24. The subject of διελάλησεν is perhaps the praefect. On the combination of the offices of gymnasiarch and eutheniarch cf. 1418. 14, n.

26. After δύναται is a blank space. η is more likely than η (referring to the βουλή), for ll. 25-6 may well be restored οὐ τανῦν περὶ γυμνασι αρχίας διαλήψομαι (cf. 1420. 5). περὶ τούτου δ (e.g.) ἐπίτροπος δια γεινώσκειν δύναται, ἢ δ κύριός μου [δ] διασ ημότατος ἡγεμών. The last three words are not quite certain, for it is not necessary to suppose that a letter is lost after μοθ; but $\delta \iota \alpha \gamma | \nu \omega \sigma \epsilon \tau a \iota$ is inadmissible, θ being the only alternative to σ , and the omission of $\delta \iota a - \delta \iota a - \delta$ σημότατος ήνεμών would be unsatisfactory.

27. δόγματα: cf. l. 3, n.

30. Perhaps λει τουργημάτων (cf. l. 21); but λa. [can be read.

33. This line is lower than l. 16, which corresponds to l. 33, and perhaps ll. 28-32 contained the concluding judgement of the strategus.

APPLICATION TO THE SENATE.

Fr. 1 30.6 x 13.3 cm.

A. D. 247.

On the recto of this papyrus is part of a Latin list of soldiers (1511). On the verso are the ends of lines of what must have been an interesting application to the senate through the prytanis from a certain Aurelius Pasion, who had combined the offices of gymnasiarch and eutheniarch, and apparently wished for some kind of relief in connexion with the gymnasiarchy of his youthful son; but the initial lacunae, as is indicated by the certain restorations in l. I, probably exceeded 70 letters in ll. 1-3 and 9-13, and 65 in the rest, so that hardly any connected sense is obtainable. The first thirteen lines seem to be mainly concerned with an account of the writer's services and the difficulties of his financial position, while ll. 14-30 are a complaint against a former prytanis, Asclepiades, with reference to the days on which the writer and his son had been or were to be in office. Asclepiades by his failure to fulfil his promises had apparently caused them to undertake more than had been agreed upon or was just. The details are for the most part obscure, but 1418 supplies some useful information about the length of tenure of municipal offices; cf. l. 15, n. It was written in Thoth (1. 23) of the 5th year (1. 26) of the Philippi, as is shown by the mention of the praefect Valerius Firmus (l. 4, n.). A small detached fragment with the beginnings of four lines can belong to a second column. The papyrus is no doubt a draft or copy of the document actually sent to the senate.

3. παρὰ τὴν ἡμετέ ραν δύναμιν: cf. ll. 7, 12, 13.

4. Οὐαλερίου Φίρμου: cf. 1466. 2 (May 21, 245), 1271. 6 (April 26?, 246), P. Amh. 72 (June 16, 246), 720. I (Jan. 5, 247), P. Amh. 81. 5 (March 26, 247). The present mention (Sept. 247; cf. ll. 23-5) is the latest; cf. 1466. int.

6. δρου: cf. 1409. 15, 1414. 4.

7. Possibly οὐ κατὰ [λόγον: cf. 1405. 23 οὐκ ἀνὰ λόγ(ο)ν.

9. Cf. 1415. 25 ύπερ εμέ εστιν το λειτούργημα.

14. For the combination of the offices of gymnasiarch and eutheniarch cf. 908, 1252.

15. κατ' ἔτος: this indicates that the γυμνασιαρχία was held for a longer period than a year, though the holder was only ἕναρχος for a few days in each year; cf. 1413. 17, n., 1410. int., and ll. 25–8 below, where at least two consecutive years of office are implied (l. 26), and, if the πρυτανεία in l. 27 refers to a preceding year, three or more.

ήμέρας πέντε: in ll. 22-3 there is a question of three days, in l. 26 of two, and in ll. 27-8 of five again, l. 28 perhaps referring back to l. 15. This evidence (cf. also 1416. 6-9) is in accordance with that of the contemporary Hermopolis papyri; cf. C. P. Herm. 57-62, and 53. 13 (W. Chrest. 39) τὰς ἐπιβαλλούσας αὐτ∫οῖς τἢς γυμνασιαρχίας ἡμέρας [τρεῖ]ς.

16. For the initial restorations cf. ll. 28 and 7.

18. dv] $a\delta \epsilon \epsilon \omega u$: cf. 1417. 19 $dva\delta [o\chi \dot{\eta}]$? The meaning seems to be that Pasion would undertake for four months in a year (i. e. $\frac{1}{3}$) the responsibilities of gymnasiarch on behalf of his son; cf. ll. 23-5, where there is a question of the division of three days between different months (in l. 22 they are consecutive). $\pi a\rho a\delta \epsilon \delta \omega u$ 'remit' seems less suitable.

19. |σετε: Or |σετα[ι].

20. Possibly ἐν συνεδ]ρίω; cf. l. 22 ἐν ὑμ $\hat{\nu}$ ν. For ἐκ προχ[ρε]ίας cf. 1413. 20 and 1416. 3.

21. Perhaps παιδίω; cf. l. 5.

22. Perhaps $i\pi[\epsilon][\sigma\chi\epsilon\tau_0$. Asclepiades seems to have undertaken certain days himself; cf. ll. 19–20 and 1252. verso ii. 18–21, where a prytanis becomes eutheniarch. $d\nu\epsilon\delta\epsilon\xi\dot{\alpha}\mu\eta\nu$ (cf. l. 18, n.) can be restored before $\dot{\eta}\mu\dot{\epsilon}\rho as\ \tau\rho\epsilon\dot{\epsilon}$]s.

24. The line may have begun $[\tau \hat{\varphi} \ \tau \hat{\eta} s \ \sigma \nu \gamma \kappa \sigma \mu \nu \hat{\delta} \hat{\eta} s \ \kappa \alpha \iota \rho \hat{\varphi}$ (cf. l. 25), and ended $[\dot{v}] \tau \sigma \hat{v}$.

25. $\{[\dot{v}]\theta \eta v [\iota][\alpha \rho \chi \hat{\iota} u s$ does not suit the vestiges at the end of the line, which may have concluded with a proper name, followed by $\pi \rho \nu \tau \alpha \nu \epsilon \hat{\iota} u s$; cf. l. 27.

26. Cf. l. 15, n.

27. $a\partial \tau o \hat{v}$ (or $a\partial \tau o \hat{v}$) is probably Asclepiades; but $\Theta \hat{\omega} [\theta]$ can hardly refer to the 5th year and be the month in which 1418 was written (cf. l. 23), for the prytanis in l. 1 was a different person.

1419. ORDER FROM A PRYTANIS TO A TAX-COLLECTOR.

16.8 × 12.4 cm. A.D. 265.

An order from a prytanis of the senate to a tax-collector called a $\pi\rho\dot{\alpha}\kappa\tau\omega\rho$ $\pi o\lambda\iota\tau\iota\kappa\hat{\omega}\nu$ (l. 2, n.), to pay the prytanis 1,500 drachmae credited by the tax-collector to another revenue official, and 300 drachmae required for military supplies. The document was written by a clerk (across the fibres), and signed by the prytanis, who also added a line after 1. 5. Since the writing is not earlier than the middle of the third century, the 12th year in the date presumably refers to the reign of Gallienus (cf. 1407. int.); for though in the last year of Diocletian's reign instances occur of Maximian's year being ignored (895. 6 and P. Leipzig 84. vii; cf. 1416. 29, n., and 1410. int.), there is no example of the omission of both Maximian's and the Caesars' years in a contemporary document. 1499, written in 309, is very similar to 1419; but that the latter was dated by the Oxyrhynchite era beginning in 307 (cf. 1431. 5, n.) and belongs to the year 319 is improbable, not only on palaeographical grounds but also because the sums mentioned are too small to suit the period of great depreciation of the coinage, and the financial powers of the prytanis were much circumscribed in the fourth century. The technical terms present several points of interest, especially as the evidence for the changes in the revenue administration caused by the establishment of senates in A.D. 202 is still scanty.

(Signed) Pay the 1,800 drachmae. The 12th year, Pauni 4.'

2. πράκτορι πολιτικ(ῶν): cf. 1444 (Λ.D. 249), where πολιτικά are contrasted with κωμητικά, both being collected in corn by a δεκάπρωτος in a village, and P. Strassb. 45, where the payments of κτήτορες are divided into those of πολίται and those of κωμηταί. In Justinian, Edic!. 13. 13 τά τε πολιτικὰ καὶ σολέμνια τέλη τῆς μεγάλης τῶν ᾿λλεξανδρέων πόλεως καὶ τὰ ἐκατέρας

Αιγύπτου (cf. 13. 14 δαπανήματα ποιήσαι επί τε της εκπυρώσεως των δημοσίων βαλανείων επί τε τοις σολεμνίοις απασι τοις πολιτικοίς) are distinguished from δημόσιοι φόροι (13. 9), and Gelzer, Archiv, v. 363, followed by Wilcken, Chrest. 297. int., connects these πολιτικά with the αστικόν and κωμητικόν in P. Cairo Maspero 67060 (W. Chrest. 297), regarding them as communal taxes, like Maspero. It is, however, very doubtful whether κωμητικόν even in the Byzantine period ever meant a tax levied for the benefit of a village (i.e. public works). That is certainly not the meaning of κωμητικά in B. G. U. 802. xi. 23 (A.D. 42), P. Tebt. 340 (A.D. 206) which is parallel to 1444, Ryl. 221. 29 (early 3rd cent.) κωμητικά διοικήσεως, and C. P. Herm, 120. recto iii. 12 (3rd cent.), where κωμητικά are contrasted with μητροπολιτικά (i. 4). In all those cases κωμητικά is a general expression for 'village-dues'; cf. P. Tebt. 340. int. The same meaning will also suit κωμητικόν in P. Cairo 67060, and it is noteworthy that δημόσια ἀστικά in P. Cairo 67045-6 (cf. P. Brit. Mus. 1419. 439 ἀστικ(ῶν) 'Ανταίου) are in P. Cairo 67047 called δημόσια simply, so that there is no need to refer αστικόν to a communal as distinct from an imperial tax. πολιτικά in 1444 is clearly to be explained in the light of P. Strassb. 45 and C. P. Herm. 120 as simply equivalent to μητροπολιτικά, i. c. the ordinary State taxes of the metropolis, which in earlier times were often collected in villages (e.g. 1283. 4, 1433. 8, 38); and with regard to 1419 the fact that the πράκτωρ πολιτικών was concerned with τελωνικά (l. 4, n.) and paid them in the first instance to a δημοσία τράπεζα, just as the earlier πράκτορες μητροπολιτικών did, indicates that he was dealing with State, not with communal, taxes. For the separate existence of the latter there is in fact no very clear evidence: the results of Jouquet's investigation in Vie munic. 432 sqq. are mainly negative, and even in C. P. Herm. 101 it is not certain that the έξηκοντάδραχμος μερισμός was paid to the πολιτικός λόγος. The metropoleis even before the third century had property of their own, called οἶκος πόλεως in P. Fay. 87. 5, της πόλεως λόγος in 54. 15, and after the establishment of senates we hear of land belonging to the πολιτικὸς λόγος (C. P. R. 39. 8), which is also often mentioned in papyri concerning public works. This fund was at first administered by the senate through the prytanis, who in 55.4 (A. D. 283) is called διέπων καὶ τὰ πολιτικά, and below him by the ταμίας πολιτικών χρημάτων (55. 14; cf. 1501. 2). After the establishment of the logistes at Oxyrhynchus in the reign of Diocletian or just after (cf. 1426. 3, n.) the πολιτικά were controlled by him and an imperial επίτροπος, to whom the prytanis had to apply before obtaining a grant for repairs of the public baths (1104; A.D. 306). From C. P. Herm. 92-3 (A.D. 265-7) it appears that at Hermopolis the πολιτικὸς λόγος supplied $\frac{1}{3}$ of the expenses of public works. At Oxyrhynchus in A.D. 316 payment for δημόσια πολιτικά έργα was made by a δημοσίων χρ[η]μάτων (not λη[μ]μάτων; cf. 1430. 9, n.) τραπ(εζίτης) 'Οξ(υρυγχίτου) πολιτικής τραπέζης (84. 8), and πολιτική τράπεζα there is considered by Preisigke and Wilcken (Grundz. 167) to be the communal as opposed to the State bank ($\delta \eta \mu \sigma \sigma' \alpha \tau \rho \acute{a} \pi \epsilon \zeta \alpha$), and the outgoings are supposed by them to have come from the city not the State funds. We think, however, that the contrast drawn by Wilcken between δημόσιος and πολιτικός is too sharp: certainly in 84, as the employment of both terms with reference to ἔργα shows, there is no essential incompatibility between them, and instead of regarding δημόσιος there as used loosely (so Wilcken), we prefer to regard πολιτικόs both in the phrase 'Οξ(υρυγχίτου) πολιτ. τράπεζα and δημόσια πολιτ. έργα as simply meaning 'of the city', without implying any reference to the commune as distinct from the State; cf. 892. 11 πολιτικον έργον. In P. Strassb. 28 (A.D. 305) α πολι(τικός) τρα(πεζίτης) issues a receipt for φόρος προβάτων, which in earlier times was an ordinary State impost (Wilcken, Ost. i. 286), and it is very unlikely that this tax was ever made over to the πολιτικός λόγος in the sense in which that phrase is used in C. P. R. 39. The senate became largely responsible in the third century for the collection of taxes through ἐπιμεληταί and δεκάπρωτοι (Jouguet, Vie munic. 387 sqq.), and even in 55 and 1104 πολιτικά may possibly have the sense found in 1444 and not refer to the city's own funds; cf. Jouguet, op. cit. 281 and P. Leipzig 64. 21-2 (A.D. 368) τον ἀπο των πολιτικών χρεωστηθέντα κανόνα προσήκει σώον ἀποδοθηναι τοις ταμιακοις λόγοις (sc. the imperial fiscus). πολιτικός is, we think, primarily contrasted with κωμητικός, not with δημόσιος, at any rate in 1419; cf. the next note.

4. τε λω νικ (ων): the traces of the second letter would also suit ι, but τι ρω νικ (ων) is unsatisfactory, for the tail of a ρ , if there had been one, ought to have been visible, and though the χρυσὸς τιρώνων is often mentioned in fourth-century documents (cf. 1103. int.), the word τιρωνικά is unattested in papyri. τε (λω]νικ(ών), moreover, is confirmed by the mention of an $\alpha \pi \alpha \pi \pi \tau \eta \tau \eta s$; cf. an ostracon ap. Wilcken, Ost. i. 610 $\alpha \pi \alpha \pi \tau (\eta \tau \eta s)$ $\eta \epsilon \rho \tau (\mu \omega \nu)$ $\epsilon \nu \lambda (\epsilon i \mu \mu \alpha \tau \sigma s)$ τελωνικών. Here too the ἀπαιτητής may have been collecting arrears, which would account for his presence in connexion with taxes which were farmed and for his rank being apparently higher than that of πράκτωρ. During the earlier Roman period in the case of taxes collected directly ἀπαιτηταί are found interchanging with πράκτορες (Wilcken, l.c.), and where taxes were farmed they are only known to come in when it was a question of arrears; but their position may have been altered by the middle of the third century; cf. 1413. 29, where the senate appoints ἀπαιτηταί, and 1461. 13. In Ost. i. 581 Wilchen in connexion with B. G. U. 10 expressed a doubt whether τελωνικά necessarily implies the farming of a tax; but in the present case there is no reason to suppose that the word is used loosely, for τιμή πυρού in Ost. No. 1587 was collected by a $\tau \epsilon \lambda(\omega \nu \eta s) \frac{\theta \eta \sigma(a \nu \rho o \hat{\nu})}{\theta \rho \sigma(a \nu \rho o \hat{\nu})} i \epsilon \rho \hat{\omega}(\nu)$. What particular tax was meant by τιμή πυροῦ is uncertain, but probably the ordinary land-tax is referred to; cf. the πολιτικά in 1444 and P. Thead, 42, 6, 9 (A.D. 312). In any case a State impost is probably meant; cf. l. 2, n.

8. ἀπὸ Ἡρακ[λ]ἀμ[μ]ωνος: κώμης is probably to be supplied, but this is not known as a place-name, and was probably outside the Oxyrhynchite nome, like the place from which the soldiers in 1543. 4 came.

III. OFFICIAL DOCUMENTS.

1420. REPORT OF A TRIAL.

About A. D. 129.

The recto of this papyrus contains some traces of obliterated second-century writing. On the verso is the concluding column of an account of a trial before the strategus Asclepiades, whose date is known from 1024. I. The contending parties were Heradion and Agathinus, and the dispute concerned the administration of some property of which they were, apparently, joint $\epsilon \pi i \tau \rho o \pi o t$ (ll. 9–10, n.). A final judgement was postponed by the strategus pending an examination of the accounts to be presented by the two parties.

"... has not yet been presented. Asclepiades, strategus, after consideration said, "It appears to be necessary that the accounts should first be presented, in order that it may be ascertained what has been left, what there is over, and what debts have been paid. I will then decide about the allowances, and, if there is anything required, judgement shall be given. Heradion said, I will present the accounts immediately; but it is not my fault that they have not been presented. Agathinus too, however, must join in presenting them, and until judgement is given I will not undertake the post (?) of guardian myself or in combination with Agathinus. The strategus ordered the whole amount to be accounted for. Read by me."

9–10. The construction is harsh, but there is little doubt about the reading $\lambda a \beta \epsilon \sigma \theta(a\iota)$, with which $\epsilon \mu \epsilon$ is to be supplied. $\epsilon \pi \iota \tau \rho \sigma n \sigma \upsilon [\mu \epsilon \nu \eta s]$ might be read (sc. $\gamma \hat{\eta} s$ or $\sigma \upsilon \sigma \hat{\iota} a s$), but the form $\epsilon \pi \iota \tau \rho \sigma n \epsilon \hat{\iota} \nu$ for $\epsilon \pi \iota \tau \rho \sigma n \epsilon \hat{\iota} \nu$ is not certainly attested. $\sigma \upsilon \upsilon [\delta] \epsilon \chi o \mu \epsilon \nu \upsilon \sigma$ or $\sigma \upsilon \upsilon [\iota] \sigma \chi o \mu \epsilon \nu \upsilon \sigma$ or $\pi a \rho a \sigma \chi o \mu \epsilon \nu \upsilon \sigma$ and ϵ or σ was blank. The doubtful χ can be λ , and the next letter might be a. $\epsilon \pi \iota \tau \rho \sigma n \upsilon \sigma \upsilon \chi \rho \epsilon \iota a s$ (for which cf. e.g. P. Iand. 33. 12 $\epsilon \iota \nu \tau \iota \lambda \dot{\eta} \psi \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota \chi \rho \epsilon \iota a s$) seems to refer to a private guardianship rather than an official post, which would be less likely to be concerned with $\chi \rho \epsilon \sigma \lambda \upsilon \tau \eta \theta \epsilon \upsilon \tau a$ and $\chi \sigma \rho \eta \gamma \iota a \iota \tau \iota a$ or $\tau \iota \tau \sigma \iota \tau a$ or $\tau \iota \tau \sigma \tau a$ or $\tau \iota \tau \tau a$ or $\tau \iota \tau a$

1421. ORDER FROM A STRATEGUS TO COMARCHS.

11.9 × 9.2 cm.

Third century.

On the recto of this papyrus is part of a list of land-holders, written in the late second or early third century (1533). On the verso, written along the fibres, is a brief order from a strategus to the officials of two villages, situated in different toparchies but probably near each other (l. 3, n.), concerning the embarkation of some acacia-wood belonging to the government (l. 4, n.). P. S. I. 213, an order to the $\pi\epsilon\delta\iota o\phi \dot{\nu}\lambda a\kappa\epsilon s$ of Nesmimis to keep some chaff, is similar; cf. also the common orders for arrest, e. g. 1505-7.

2. ων of κωμων corr. from ης.

'From the strategus to the comarchs and officials of the villages of Taampemou and Seruphis. Send at once the acacia-wood which has been cut at Ionthis to the . . . ferry, and put it on board the State boat which is stationed there.'

2. δημοσίοις: cf. 1411. 2, n. Here too there is nothing to indicate that police were specially meant, though the δημόσιοι would probably consist mainly of guards; cf. the Leipzig papyrus mentioned in 1465. 8, n.

3. Taampemou was in the eastern toparchy (1285, 88); Scruphis was in the western (1285. 71), and probably a place of considerable size, for it paid 1,040 drachmae, i.e. much more than any other village in 1285, where only three villages paid over 1,000 dr. Since Oxyrhynchus itself was in or adjoined the western toparchy (1475. 22, n.) and Taampemou was further east and probably near both the Nile (cf. l. 6) and Seruphis (cf. 1545. 3, where it comes next to Seruphis), the modern village of Ashrûbah four miles east of Oxyrhynchus, is perhaps to be identified with Seruphis, and Tanbarvah, between Ashrubah and Benimazar, with Taampemou. The area of cultivation on the west bank is exceptionally broad in this part, and the eastern top. may have run north and south between Malar and Tanbadi (near Maghághah), which strongly suggests Ταμπετί, also in the eastern top. (612). On the west would be the western and probably part of the middle top. The order of the toparchies in 1285 is (1) upper (i.e. southern), (2) western, (3) eastern, (4) middle, (5) Thmoisepho, (6) lower (i.e. northern), and since the same order from south to north is traceable in the arrangement of the villages in pagi, which were substituted for toparchies in the fourth century (cf. 1425. 4, n.), probably the bulk of the middle top. was north of the western and eastern. That the eastern top, extended to the east bank of the Nile is improbable; for behind Shékh Fadl, which is opposite Beni-mazár, is the cemetery of Cynopolis (cf. Arch. Rep. 1902-3, p. 4). That town according to Ptolemy was on an island, but its site is fixed by a Graeco-Coptic-Arabic list of equivalents (Amélineau, Géogr. 396) at el-Kés, on the west bank about two miles south-east of Tanbawa. Ptolemy's account of the Cynopolite nome is not satisfactory, for Kώ, which he places west of Cynopolis and calls the metropolis of the nome, is not found in papyri or ostraca mentioning Cynopolite villages, and the Κωίτης τόπος was in the Heracleopolite nome, i.e. much further north (cf. 1416. 13, n.), while Tenis (Tehnah), which Ptolemy assigns to the Cynopolite nome, was really in the Hermopolite (cf. P. Ryl. 207 a. 13, n.). But his statement that Cynopolis was on an island is confirmed by its absence from the Itiner. Anton., indicating that it was off the main road, and the 'island' may well have been the bend of the Nile between Matar and Abû Girgeh, if the Derwish canal corresponds to an ancient branch. The 'ferry' (1. 6) might then be over this canal, and all the land to the east of it would belong to the Cynopolite nome, which is likely to have also included the whole of the existing east bank between the Heracleopolite and Hermopolite nomes. That the 'ferry' was over the Bahr Fusuf is improbable, seeing that a village in the eastern toparchy is mentioned. In

P. S. I. 80. 21 Ταμπείου is probably a misspelling or misreading of Τααμπέμου; cf. the spelling Ταμπέμου in 1491. 13.

4. ἀκάνθανον: cf. 1112, where fallen acacia-trees situated on embankments were sold by the government for 13 drachmae each and 1188, where in a similar connexion the price was 4 dr. each. Acacia-wood was used for houses, boats, water-wheels, &c.; cf. Reil, Beiträge, 72, P. Brit. Mus. 1177. 191.

5. ἐν τῆ Εἰόνθει: no village of this name is known, unless it is identical with κώμην Εἰω. [... in P. Giessen 30. 10 (from Oxyrhynchus, as appears from l. 7 ἀμφόδου Πλατείαs). Possibly Ἰόνθις was a τόπος at a village, especially as it has the article. Ἰονθῶν(ος) (gen.)

occurs as a personal name in P. Leipzig 99. ii. 6.

6. ἐκεῖ, ἄνω, or κάτω, but not ἐνθάδε, would suit the lacuna.

8. For παρασταθέν cf. 1542. 2. παρακείμενον is possible; έφορμοῦν (1412. 11) is too short.

9. The main document probably ended at πλοΐον, but this line may have had εσημειωσάμην (cf. P. S. I. 213. 7) or a date.

1422. LETTER OF A STRATEGUS.

About A.D. 128.

A short letter to Agathodaemon, an Oxyrhynchite strategus mentioned also in 1452. I, from the strategus of another nome (l. 3, n.) concerning an individual, whose arrest was required on the charge of harbouring a fugitive slave. Owing to the loss of the beginnings of lines a few points remain in doubt, but apparently the person wanted could not be found in the writer's nome; cf. the declaration of riparii in 897, which probably corresponded to the reports of the local officials mentioned in ll. 9–11 here. Other papyri concerning fugitive slaves are 1423, 1643, and P. Par. 10.

I pray for your health . . . The 12th year of the Emperor Caesar Trajanus Hadrianus Augustus, Tubi 20.

Tubi 24 (?).'

1. ἐλ(άβομεν): cf. P. Tebt. 19. int.

3. The Lycopolite nome was much nearer than the Gynaecopolite (on which see 1380. 21, n.) to the Oxyrhynchite nome, and $\Lambda \nu] \kappa \sigma \tau \sigma \lambda \epsilon i \tau \sigma \nu$ would make l. 3 correspond to l. 2, if there the writer wrote a rather large Δ and the space before it was blank, as is possible; but there is not room for $\sigma \tau \rho a$ -1 at the end of l. 3, so that l. 4 in any case corresponded to ll. 6 sqq., where the length of the initial lacuna is fixed by ll. 9–10. The remains of the letter before $\sigma \tau \sigma \lambda \epsilon \iota \tau \sigma \nu$ consist of a long horizontal stroke coming below the line; this does not happen to occur elsewhere in 1422, but suits κ very well.

6. ἐδήλωσας [ἐν-[κεκλῆσθαι] οτ εδήλωσας [[ἤτιᾶσθαι] can be read.

7. For $i\pi o \delta o \chi \hat{\eta} s$ cf. 1408. 23. $\delta o i [\lambda o v]$ (or $\delta o i \lambda \omega v$), followed by a number) is a possible, but less likely, division. A name, either that of the slave or his master $(\sigma o \hat{v})$, probably followed $\delta o i [\lambda o v]$.

11. ἀφανή]s: cf. e. g. P. Brit. Mus. 342. 9 ἀφανεῖs ἐγένοντο.

12. $\gamma \rho \cdot \kappa($): or $\pi \cdot \kappa($). The last letter is written above the line and the preceding one is more like σ or γ than a.

13. The year is restored from 1452. 14; cf. int.

15. The meaning of this addition is obscure. If κ is right, the hand is probably different, and the note, if a date, may be due to a $i\pi\eta\rho\dot{\epsilon}\eta\eta s$ (cf. 1409. 23). The date of the receipt of the letter is, however, given in l. 1, being nearly three weeks later. ("μρουρια) δ could be read and possibly assigned to the third hand, in which case there might be a reference to Achilleus' property and a word like $\epsilon \ddot{\nu}\pi\rho\rho_0$ s might be substituted in l. 11 for $a\phi a\nu\dot{\eta}$ s. But an addition by the third hand after the date is unlikely.

1423. AUTHORIZATION FOR THE ARREST OF A SLAVE.

27.3 × 11.4 cm.

Fourth century.

A formal authorization, addressed by one officialis on the praefect's staff to another, for the arrest of the writer's slave, who had run away with some of his property; cf. 1422 and 1643. The papyrus belongs to the middle or latter part of the fourth century. P. Gen. 79, a ὑπομνηστικόν of a ducenarius to his contubernalis concerning the search for and arrest of a debtor, is somewhat similar; P. Brit. Mus. 233 (W. Chrest. 44) is a parallel ἐντολή on a different subject in A.D. 345.

This order is valid, and in answer to the formal question I gave my consent. I, Flavius Ammonas, officialis on the staff of the praefect of Egypt, have made this order.'

6. δράσαντα is apparently a novel form of the acrist of διδράσκειν, not from δράν. The only alternative to δρ is φ, but ψυγόντα cannot be read, and φ(θ)άσαντα is unsatisfactory.

1424. LETTER OF A CENTURIO PRINCEPS.

About A.D. 318.

A letter from a centurio princeps (l. 2, n.) to his brother Heras, asking him to obtain the release of a $\gamma \epsilon \omega \rho \gamma \delta s$, i. e. tenant, of the writer from the post of tax-collector to which he had been appointed; cf. P. Grenf. ii. 82. The papyrus was found with 1425 and 1448, and Heras was no doubt the pracpositus of the 8th pagus, Aurelius Heras also called Dionysius, to whom 1425 is addressed.

I present

In the consulship aforesaid, Pharmouthi 18. I, Aurelius Hatres, presented this. I, Aurelius Ammonas, wrote for him as he is illiterate.'

4. Αὐρηλίω Ἡρậ: cf. 1424. int.

 $\eta \pi \dot{\alpha} \gamma(ov)$: the arrangement of villages by pagi instead of toparchies (cf. 1285) was introduced by 310; cf. Gelzer, Studien, 57. Dositheou (l. 6), which was in the lower toparchy, occurs with Teïs, Paomis, Palosis, and Kesmouchis, which were all in the Thmoisepho top., in a list of villages of the 8th pagus in P. Giessen 115, and the same five villages are grouped together in 1448 along with Souis, which was in the lower top.. Tholthis (either that in the lower top, or that in the Thmoisepho top.), and several apparently smaller villages, all of which are likely to have been in the 8th pagus. The Giessen papyrus assigns Iseum Tryphonos, which was in the lower top., Psobthis (probably that in the lower top.), and three other villages, of which the names are imperfectly preserved, to the oth pagus, and Sesphtha (also in the lower top.) to the 10th. Nigrou and Sadalou, both in the upper top., were in the 2nd pagus (1426. 6-7); Lile (67. 5), Sarapionos Chaeremonos (1190. 19, where no correction of the text is required), Taampemou (901. 4), and Phoboou (1041. 4), all villages of the eastern top., were in the 5th pagus. Paneui, which was in the western top., perhaps belonged to the 3rd pagus (1559. 9). There were six toparchies in the Oxyrhynchite nome, and, as far as the evidence goes, the numbering of the pagi seems to correspond with the order of the toparchies in 1285, which begin with the upper and end with the lower (cf. 1421. 3, n.), so that the villages of the western top. may well have belonged to the 3rd and 4th pagi, and those of the middle top, to the 6th and 7th, while the 1st pagus was presumably part of the former upper top., like the 2nd. It is probable, but not certain, that the Oxyrhynchite nome had only ten pagi; the Hermopolite nome, which was larger, had apparently seventeen (cf. P. Flor. 71. 71 where ιζ πάγου occurs, but the figures in Il. 69-71 are not in the right order, and P. Cairo Preisigke 46. 14).

5. τεσσα(ρ)aρίου: for military tesserarii at Oxyrhynchus cf. 43. ii. 21. In 1430. 4 a tesserarius of a village takes precedence of comarchs, but in P. Goodsp. 12. 6 a κουαδράριους, who seems to be identical with our τεσσαράριους, is mentioned after an έφορος and comarchs. The village tesserarii bear Egyptian names, and are perhaps different from the military ones, though the tesserarius was not a very high officer, ranking below the signifer and optio; cf. Domaszewski, Rangordnung, 43. Preisigke's S. B. 2267 is a similar return by α λη στοπιαστής.

8. ονηλάτου: on the δημόσιοι ονηλάται see Wilcken, Grundz. 377.

1426. APPOINTMENT OF A WORKMAN ON TRAJAN'S RIVER.

A return, similar to 1425, addressed by the comarchs (cf. 1425. int.) of two villages in the 2nd pagus (cf. 1425. 4, n.) to an interesting collocation of officials (ll. 3-4, nn.) who had taken the place of the strategus and basilicogrammateus. At the end only the date giving the month and the signatures are missing; cf. 1425. 13-15. The workman nominated was required for repairs of Trajan's river, which connected Babylon with the Gulf of Suez.

His name is Aurelius Hatres son of Fabulus, of the village of Nigrou, aged about..years. ...'

1. Οὐλπίου Πακατιανοῦ: the name of this consul (in P. Cairo 10515 Πακατιανός simply) is given variously by Athanasius as Papinius Pacatianus and Fabius Pacatianus; cf. Liebenam, Fasti consulares, 35. Ovivior is a less satisfactory reading.

3. $\lambda o \gamma_i \sigma \tau \hat{\eta}$: the earliest mention of a logistes (= curator; cf. P. Leipzig 40. ii. 8) at Oxyrhynchus is in A.D. 305 (895. 3), the latest in 363 (1116. 3). At Heracleopolis a logistes occurs in 288, if the lost B. G. U. 028 is rightly assigned to that year; but the reading and correction of the date there are uncertain. Wilchen (Chrest. 80), following Mommsen, considers him to be not, as the curator was in earlier centuries, an extraordinary magistrate belonging to the central administration, but a permanent municipal officer appointed by the senate. We do not, however, think that that view suits 1104, where a λογιστής is requested by a prytanis to ask an ἐπίτροπος to make a payment from the πολιτικά (1419. 2, n.), or the other evidence concerning Egyptian λογισταί; and that they were officials of the central government appointed from outside seems more probable for the fourth century. Later they may have been appointed by the senate; cf. P. Flor. 352. 2 (fifth century) πολιτευόμενος καὶ λογιστής. The logistes apparently succeeded to many of the functions of the strategus; cf. Jouguet, Vie munic. 463. For another instance of a nomination addressed to him see 1116, written by a συστάτης. In earlier times such nominations were sent to the strategus, e. g. 1254.

4. ἐκδίκφ: this is the earliest mention of the ἔκδικος (defensor) in Egypt, the next being in 336 (901. 3 διοικοῦντι ἐκδικίαν 'Οξυρυγχίτου); cf. Druffel, Papyrol. Stud. i. 35 sqq., and 902. 1, n. He here ranks below the logistes (curator), with whom he is not elsewhere associated in Egyptian texts.

γρα(μματεί) 'Οξυ(ρυγχίτου): 'Οξυ(ρυγχίτου) refers to all three titles, not to the last only. The γρα(μματεύs) of the nome (though the papyrus is damaged, there is little doubt about the reading) seems to correspond to the βασιλικὸς γραμματεύς of former centuries, but has not occurred previously in fourth-century papyri.

10. Τραιανὸν ποταμόν: cf. Ptol. iv. 5. The Τραιανὴ διῶρνξ, of which an ἐργάτης and ἐπιμελητὴς τῆς ἀνακαθάρσεως are mentioned in P.S.I. 87 (A.D. 423, from Oxyrhynchus), is likely to be identical, rather than a canal in the Oxyrhynchite nome, as supposed by the edd.

1427. ORDER TO WORKMEN ON DELTA EMBANKMENTS.

 5.1×6.5 cm.

Third century.

The recto of this papyrus, which is incomplete at the bottom, is blank. On the verso is a short order from a scribe of diggers employed by the government in repairing canals to work for fifteen days on the river Talu, which according to Ptolemy diverged from the main western branch at Hermopolis Parva (Damanhūr) and issued at the Bolbitine mouth. Kore (l. 1) is likely to have been a village in that part of Egypt. The work in question was paid for (ll. 4–5), and is to be distinguished from the corvele for working at canals, on which see 1409. The handwriting is small and very cursive with numerous abbreviations, some of which are obscure. The 3rd year in the date (l. 6) refers to a third-century reign, probably not later than that of Valerian and Gallienus.

'Aurelius Tithoëtion, scribe of the river-workmen of Kore, through me, Melas, his friend, to his colleague and the river-workmen, greeting. By continuous labour dig the whole amount of naubia in the waters of Talu at the customary rate of payment for fifteen days, total 15. The 3rd year, Pauni 26.'

1. $\pi(o)\tau(a\mu\iota\tau\hat{\omega}\nu)$: for $\pi o\tau a\mu\hat{\iota}\tau a\iota$ cf. 1053. 2 and n. The word suits the context, but the reading here is not certain and $\pi(o)\tau(a\mu\iota\tau a\iota s)$ in l. 2 is even more doubtful. The first letter is more like π than $\gamma\rho$, but the supposed τ may in both places be a stroke representing abbreviation.

2. συνγρα(μματεύοντι): the flourish representing a is written somewhat differently from that in $\gamma \rho a(\mu \mu a \tau \epsilon \nu s)$ in l. 1, and the first letter might be a instead of σ ; but no proper name suggests itself, and the reading adopted gives an appropriate sense. συγγραμματεύειν is apparently not found elsewhere.

3-4. If $vav\beta(\)$ is right, the scribe has run the av together, as not infrequently happens in the cursive writing of this century; cf. 1410. I-2, I0, nn., and 1475. int. The $vav\beta\iota ov$ at this period was a cube of I $\xi v \lambda ov$ or 3 royal cubits (669 and 1053. intt.), and digging 5 $vav\beta\iota a$ perhaps constituted an average day's work (Milne, Theban Ost. p. 146), but receipts for much smaller amounts of $vav\beta\iota a$ are also common. Though the supposed ϵ at the end of the line may be nothing more than a stroke over the κ , it is not satisfactory to connect κ with $vav\beta(\)$; for 20 naubia are too small an amount for fifteen days' work by at least two persons, and more probably a considerable number (l. 2), and τo would then be left unaccounted for, $\tau \bar{\kappa}$, i.e. 320, being inadmissible. The construction of $\epsilon p v \mu \delta a v \delta a v$

1428. LETTER OF A PRAESES (?) TO AN EXACTOR.

24 × 21·3 cm.

Fourth century.

A letter from Nicon, a high official, to the exactor of the Oxyrhynchite nome, ordering him to help in expediting the manufacture of clothing required by the State, for which cf. 1414. int. and 1448. On the office of exactor, which is first mentioned in the fourth century and was sometimes identified with that of strategus (Archiv, iii. 348 στρατηγφ [ή]τοι ἐξάκτορι Ἑρμοπολίτ[ον]), see Seeck in Pauly-Wissowa, Realencyel. vi. 1542 sqq., Gelzer, Studien, 50 sqq., Wilcken, Grundz. 229. In the present text, as often elsewhere, he seems to be concerned with the collection of arrears; cf. l. 2, n. The fact that Nicon sends an officialis (l. 12; cf. P. Leipzig 64. 15), and speaks of a centurion as a subordinate (ll. 7–8) and of Alexandria as if he were not there himself (ll. 3–4), combined with the general resemblance to P. Leipzig 64, strongly suggests that he was a praeses of the province Herculia or, as it was called after 341 (cf. 1559. 8 and Gelzer, op. cit. 3 sqq.), Augustamnica, the head-quarters of which are likely to have been at Memphis or Babylon. The script is a large clear cursive, probably of about the middle of the fourth century; the document was apparently a copy made by a clerk, but signed by Nicon himself.

 - 1. ἀντίγραφον is abbreviated a/, as here, in 1470. 8; cf. e.g. B. G. U. 1073. 1.

2. . . .]s: there is barely room for even Γάιο]s, if this line was uniform with those following; but it may have projected by three or four letters.

έξάκτορι 'Οξυρυγχίτου: there was probably only one exactor for each nome when 1428 was written; cf. P. Leipzig 51. 3 έξάκτωρ 'Υψ[ηλ]ίτ(ο)υ and Archiv, iii. 348 quoted in int. Late in the fourth century two or more exactores are found acting together; cf. P. Leipzig 62. i. 9 and Flor. 95. 60. Gelzer, followed by Wilcken, regards these as a quite different and much lower grade of officials, on the level of πράκτορες, but the evidence for that is inconclusive. If the exactores came in towards the end of the process of tax-collecting and were specially concerned with arrears, as Seeck supposed, the smallness of the sums collected by them as compared with those collected by ὑποδέκται in P. Leipzig 62 would be explained, and 1428 rather supports Seeck's view, which Gelzer and Wilcken reject. Concerning B. G. U. 1027. xxvi. 10 (late fourth century), where ἐξάκτορες rank above πρόεδροι and seem to be just as important as in the earlier P. Leipzig 64 or 1428, Wilcken (Grundz. 229°) is disposed to abandon his former explanation (ap. Gelzer, op. cit. 50) that ἐξάκτορες of different years are meant. Griech. Texte 18 is too incomplete to show the character of the ἐξάκ(τωρ).

3. $[\mathring{\eta}\lambda\theta]\epsilon\nu$ εἰs ἐμὴν γνῶσιν: cf. P. Leipzig 64. 29 (W. Chrest. 281) $\mathring{\eta}\lambda\theta\epsilon\nu$ εἰs γνῶσιν τῆs εἰμῆς καθοσιώσεως in a letter of the praeses of the Thebaid (cf. int.), who proceeds, more correctly than Nicon, with ὅτι and the indicative.

 ϵ πίκτου $[\tau \hat{\eta}_s]$ $\delta \theta \delta \nu \eta s$: this title is new, but cf. 1257. 13 τοῦ κρατίστου ϵ πείκτου δημοσίου σίτου, 1413. 25 έπ. χρυσοῦ στεφάνου, and 1412. int.

6. $[\dot{\epsilon}\xi v]\phi \dot{\eta}\nu$: a compound of $\dot{v}\phi \dot{\eta}$ is required (cf. l. 10 $\dot{v}\phi \dot{\alpha}\sigma \mu \alpha \sigma w$), and $[\dot{\epsilon}\xi v]\phi \dot{\eta}\nu$, though not attested, suits the size of the lacuna much better than $[\lambda \iota \nu]v\phi \dot{\eta}\nu$ (also unattested) or συν υφήν.

9-10. ἀνεπίκλή]τοις: ϵ can be read for a and π or γ for τ , while the last letter is more like o than s; but $\epsilon \nu$ $\epsilon \pi i [\tau \eta \delta] \epsilon i o is inadmissible and <math>]\pi o i o \tau o i s$ (for $]\pi o i \eta \tau o i s$?) suggests no suitable word. The second $\tau o i s$ may be a dittography.

1429. LETTER OF A LESSEE OF THE ALUM-MONOPOLY.

A.D. 300.

A short letter in the reign of Diocletian from a lessee of the alum-monopoly, probably at Oxyrhynchus, to one of his agents, announcing the dispatch of some alum and nasturtium-powder. Concerning the alum-monopoly the only evidence hitherto has been B. G. U. 697 (W. Chrest. 321), an acknowledgement by $\hat{\epsilon}\pi\iota$ - $\tau\eta\rho\eta\tau\alpha\hat{\iota}$ at Arsinoë of the receipt of alum transported from the Small Oasis, upon which they paid the octroi duty and carriage. 1429 confirms Wilcken's interpretation of B. G. U. 697 and throws some light on the nature of the monopoly; cf. ll. 1-2, n.

'Aurelius Macrobius, lessee of the administration of alum, through me, Caesarius, clerk, to Aurelius Isaac, agent, greeting. I have sent you one Italian pound of alum through Isidorus, and 2 ounces, 8 carats of nasturtium-powder. The 16th, 15th, and 8th year, Tubi 28.'

1–2. μισθωτ(ης) ἀσχολ(ήματος) στυπτηρίας: cf. 977, a receipt of the φόρος of an ἀσχόλημα which was clearly parallel to, possibly even identical with, that mentioned here, P. Fay. 93. 5–6 (W. Chrest. 317) βούλομαι μισθώσασθαι παρὰ σοῦ τὴν μυροπωλαικὴν καὶ ἀροματικὴν ἐργασίαν, and Wilcken, Grundz. 257. The use of the word ἀσχόλ(ημα) is consistent with the view that Macrobius was engaged in the production as well as the sale of the alum, which was probably obtained from the Small Oasis (cf. int.). In 44. 6 οί τὸ ἐγκύκλιον ἀσχολούμενοι means the tax-farmers, and in P. Grenf. ii. 46 (cf. Wilcken, Archiv, v. 282) the ἀσχολούμενοι τὸ γραφείον (cf. P. Tebt. 524) apparently corresponds to the δημοσιώναι of the ἀγορανομείον in 44. 8 (cf. also P. Ryl. 95. 15 τ]ῶν ἀσχολουμένων τὴν ὧνὴν ταύ[την]; but οί ἀσχολούμενοι τοὺς καταλοχισμούς in 45–6 seem to be government officials (cf. 1463. 22. n.), and in B. G. U. 1202. 4 a topogrammateus speaks of the λόγος of his ἀσχολία, i. e. office, so that the word is not confined to the farming of revenues; cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 388. On the use of alum in antiquity see Wiedemann, Herodots zweites Buch, 610; to judge by its association with κάρδαμον, it was here probably going to be used for medical purposes rather than dyeing (467. 7).

4. στυπτηρίαν μίαν is for στυπτηρίας λίτραν μίαν, as is shown by the following Ἰτ(αλικήν): for λίτραι Ἰταλικαί cf. e. g. 43. recto iii. 13, P. Leipzig 84. vii. 10. In B. G. U. 697 alum is neasured by talents.

5. The οὐγκία is usually divided into 24 γράμματα, but the symbol before η resembles that for κεράτια in later Byzantine papyri, and is not in the least like the abbreviation of γράμματα, e. g. in 1430. 17. The κεράτιον (siliqua) was $\frac{1}{6}$ of a γράμμα.

1430. PAYMENT FOR MAINTENANCE OF A PUBLIC BATH.

A.D. 324.

An acknowledgement, similar in character to 84 (A. D. 316), addressed to a strategus by village-officials, of the receipt of 12 talents 4,575 drachmae for charcoal supplied by them to the public bath of Oxyrhynchus. Payment was made as the equivalent partly of tow, a common article of commerce in the Byzantine period (cf. P. Giessen 103. 11, n.), partly of fine gold, of which 10 γράμματα were valued at 7 talents 3,720 drachmae. The solidus of Constantine and his successors, being $\frac{1}{72}$ of a pound, weighted 4 γράμματα (cf. P. Leipzig 62. ii. 31, Flor. 95. 10), and $10\frac{1}{2}$ $\gamma\rho$. thus = a little over $2\frac{1}{2}$ solidi. In the nearly contemporary papyrus 1653. 22-3 (A.D. 306) 58 γρ. are equated to 12 δλοκότινα (aurei), but the gold in the case of 1653 may have been impure, and the aurei of Diocletian, which were $\frac{1}{50}$ or $\frac{1}{60}$ of a pound, were somewhat larger than the solidi of Constantine. The ratio between the value of gold and billon in 1430, in which about 3 talents = 1 solidus, is not nearly so high as in four Hermopolite papyri of the fourth century (Wessely, Ein Altersindizium im Philogelos, 41-2), in which a solidus is valued at 36, 100, 120, and 1831 talents; but it is much higher than the ratio fixed by Diocletian in his edict concerning the maximum tariff (cf. Babelon, Traité de monnaies, i. 611), where a denarius is reckoned as 50000 of a λίτρα of gold, so that only about 2,764 drachmae would be the worth of the metal in a Constantinian solidus. The fall in the value of the billon tetradrachm or denarius, which ceased to be coined in Egypt after 297 (Wilcken, Grunds, lxvi), was greatly accelerated in the reign of Constantine;

cf. 1431. int. and 1223. 32, where a solidus is valued as high as 2,020 $\mu\nu\rho\iota\dot{a}\delta\epsilon$ s (13,466 $\frac{2}{3}$ talents) near the end of the fourth century.

1430 was written during the civil war between Licinius and Constantine, when the names of the consuls were in doubt (l. 1, n.). The waning power of the strategus is shown by his being addressed like the praepositus of a pagus (l. 2, n.). The scribe of the body of the document was rather careless, mistakes, especially of omission, being frequent.

- 1. The question which year is meant by τοις ἐσομένοις ὑπάτοις τὸ δ' is bound up with that concerning the date of the 6th consulship of Licinius and 2nd of Licinius Caesar, since the year τοις ἀποδειχθησομένοις ὑπ. τὸ γ apparently corresponded to the year following that consulship; cf. 42. 9 (as restored by Seeck [μετὰ τὴν ὑπατίαν] τῶν) and Jouguet's latest discussion in P. Thead. p. 212. The evidence of the present volume confirms Jouguet's view, based on the Theadelphia papyri, that the consulship in question was 322, not 323 as proposed by Mommsen and Viereck, and that τοῖς ἐσ. ὑπ. τὸ δ' (cf. P. Thead. 34 and 50. 28) means 324, not 325. The ordinary consuls of 325 occur in 1626. 23 (Pauni 1), as in 52. 1 (month lost), P. Thead. 7. 26 (month uncertain), 35. 11 (Epeiph 4); Mesore, in which month 1430 was written (l. 21), is much more likely to be ten months earlier than 1626. 23, than two months later. Even before the end of 324 the regular consuls of the year were recognized in Egypt (Preisigke, S. B. 5615. 16 Χοίακ κη), and concerning the consuls of 325 no doubts are traceable. The latest extant dating which mentions Licinius' regnal years is 1574. 4, Tubi 26 of his 16th year, the 18th of Constantine (Jan. 22, 324), which shows that Constantine's conquest of Egypt was not effective before 324. The system of dating τοις ἐσομένοις (or ἀποδειχθησομένοις) ὑπάτοις in a series must have begun in Egypt in 321, if the 4th year was 324, and was apparently the result of Licinius' refusal to recognize the consuls of 321 appointed by Constantine, Crispus II and Constantine Caesar II; cf. Seeck, Rhein. Mus. lxii. 534. The consuls of 320, Constantine VI and Constantine Caesar, seem to have been accepted in Egypt without question; cf. P. Cairo 10567 verso. There is as yet no evidence from papyri of datings in 321, and whether Licinius appointed opposition consuls in that year is unknown. In 322, the 6th consulship of Licinius and 2nd of Licinius Caesar, covering the 10th-11th indiction in Egypt (C. P. R. 10; cf. Führer, 292), a curious phrase μέλλουσι ὑπάτοις δευτέρα ἀμοιβή occurs in P. Cairo 10622 after the consuls' names, and seems to be equivalent to τοις ἐσομένοις ὑπάτοις τὸ β', a figure not yet attested. It shows that for some reason the dating by the consuls in office was insufficient, although these were known, and indicates either a doubt about the validity of the 6th consulship of Licinius and and of Licinius Caesar (who were of course not recognized by Constantine), or else an attempt to start dating by an era. That many efforts were made in the early part of the fourth century to substitute eras for consular datings is now clear from 1431, and the year 321, in which the system of dating by consuls broke down in Egypt probably much more completely than in any year since the introduction of that system by Diocletian, may have been chosen as the starting-point of an era τοις εσομένοις υπάτοις, which survived for four years, and possibly represents a deliberate attempt on the part of scribes to simplify the official calendar.

2. Έρμεία στρατηγῷ: cf. 60. 1, written in Mesore τοῖς ἀποδειχθησομένοις ὑπάτοις τὸ γ΄. A strategus is found in the Oxyrhynchite nome as late as 362 (1057. 2), and no instance from that nome has occurred in which he is identified with an exactor (cf. 1428. int.). In l. 7, if $\langle \tau οῦ ὑπὸ \rangle σὲ πάγου$ is more than a phrase taken from the customary address to a praepositus (cf. e.g. 1425. 6), the strategus had become one of the praepositi of the 10 pagi of the nome (cf. 1425. 4, n.); but without corroborative evidence we are rather disposed to regard σε πάγου as due to a reminiscence, and not really inconsistent with Οξ(υρυγχίτου). The strategus is still found exercising judicial powers in 66 (357) and probably 1470 (336).

4. τεσ(σ)α(ρ)αρίου: cf. 1425. 5, n.

5. 'Αρ(ά)χθου: cf. 'Αράχθης in e. g. a contract of sale to be published in Part xiii.

7. Ἡρακλείδου ἐποίκιου, as this κώμη is generally called, was in the western toparchy (1285. 72), and probably in the 3rd or 4th pagus (1425. 4, n.). For $\langle \tau \circ \hat{v} \ \tau \circ \rangle \ \sigma \in \pi \acute{a} \gamma \circ v$ cf. l. 2, n. ς' πάγου is inadmissible.

9. δημοσί(ων) χρημάτων τραπεζί(του): these words are very badly written, but the reading is confirmed by 84. 8–9 δημοσίων χρ[η]μάτων (so Wilcken, Chrest. 197. int. for $\lambda \eta [\mu] \mu \dot{\alpha} \tau \omega \nu$) τραπ(εζίτου).

10. τετάγ[με]θα: cf. 84. 12. The precise meaning is not clear. An equivalent to αἰτούμεθα in 55. 6, C. P. Herm. 56. 3–5 would rather be expected.

12. χωρ(οῦντος): cf. e. g. 84. 15, 890. 8.

13. πανίδιον is apparently a mistake for βαλανείον or βαλανίδιον; cf. e. g. 53. 6, 1499. 3.

14. For σίππιον, i. e. στύππιον, see Reil, Beiträge, 123, P. Giessen 111. 3, n. The relation of a δέσμη to a κεντηνάριον, which is used also for measuring iron in 84. 14 and charcoal in P. Amh. 138. 13, is unknown.

15. ὧν πρ(οαπέσχομεν?): the abbreviation (cf. the critical n.) is similar to that used for έκατοσταί (e. g. 1286. 6) or προσδιαγραφόμενα (e. g. 1486), but since the sum in question is deducted from the main sum, not added to it, and the payment was made by, not to, the government, neither of those words is suitable here. In 1449. 19, 48, 52 it is used for πρ(οσ). For προαπέχειν cf. P. Tebt. 399. 14.

τὰ λοιπά: the use of the accusative here indicates that the symbols for talents and drachmae in ll. 15–17 are in the accusative, and the abbreviations in l. 14 in the genitive, not vice versa. The original arrangement was for payment in tow and gold, for which the government substituted billon.

16. $\epsilon vo(\beta)\rho(i)$ ζου: cf. P. Leipzig 62. 7 μετὰ τῆς δρισθείσης $\delta\{\mu\}\beta\rho i$ ζης.

1431. PREPARATIONS FOR AN OFFICIAL VISIT.

 8.3×25.8 cm.

A.D. 352.

An order to an agent ($\chi \epsilon \iota \rho \iota \sigma \tau \dot{\eta} s$; cf. e.g. 1429. 3) to pay a carpet-manufacturer the price of a carpet required for the approaching visit of the dux, who was the supreme military authority in Egypt in the middle of the fourth century; cf. P. Brit. Mus. ii, p. 270. That the writer occupied an official position is not certain, but he must have been a fairly rich man, for the carpet cost 1,500 talents, a considerable sum even though the billon coinage was much depreciated; cf. 1430. int. The equivalent amount of $\delta \eta \nu a \rho \iota \omega \nu \mu \nu \rho \iota \delta \delta \epsilon s$ is stated, and the meaning of that phrase, which has been misinterpreted (l. 3, n.), becomes clear. Another interesting point in the papyrus is the three-fold date, which is fortunately explained by 1632. It refers to three local eras, starting in the years 307, 325, and 341, and distinct from the two well-known Oxyrhynchite cras beginning in 324 and 355, which soon superseded the rest; cf. l. 5, n.

The writing is along the fibres of the verso, the recto being blank.

2. For $\tau a\pi \eta \tau \acute{a}\rho \iota os$ cf. B.G.U. 1082.2: in 999 it seems to be used as a proper name. The form $\tau a\pi \iota \tau \acute{a}s$ occurs in 1517. 3. The price of a $\tau \acute{a}\pi \eta s$ Alyú $\pi \tau \iota os$ in the Ed. Diocl. 19, 21 is only 1,750 denarii; cf. 1430. int.

ἐπιδημία: cf. 1261. 7, n., P. Brit. Mus. 1159 (iii. 112), Wilcken, Archiv, iv. 374.

3. δηναρίων μυριάδας: this phrase first occurred in P. Brit. Mus. 248 (ii. 306), where items of 675 talents (l. 13), 90 talents (l. 15), 140 (δηναρίων) μυριάδες (l. 19), and perhaps another (ll. 16-17) make a total of 259 δηναρίων μυριάδες (ll. 21-2; τετρ ακόσιε in l. 21 is incorrect; l. διακόσιαι). Kenyon regarded 459 μυριάδες as a conversion of only the two items in talents, ignoring the 140 μυριάδες, which, as he supposed, were accounted for in the mutilated lines 16-18. Hence he deduced the equivalence of the denarius and drachma, which was accepted by Wessely, Ein Altersind. im Philog. 30. But the conversion in 1431, which corresponds to the conversion of 300 δην. μυρ. into 2,000 talents in B. G. U. 1049. 13 (A. D. 342), indicates that the denarius was reckoned, as would be expected, at the usual rate of 4 drachmae, and the sums mentioned in ll. 16-19 of the British Museum papyrus are clearly to be included in the total, of which the 675+90 = 765 talents (nearly 115 δην. μυρ.)

5. Cf. 1632. 9, dated in 353, where the 47th, 29th, and 2nd years correspond to the 12th indiction (i. e. 353-4). The first two of these eras, separated by eighteen years and dating from 307-8 and 325-6 respectively, are also now to be recognized in 92. 4, where the third is to be read δ (ἔτους), as suggested in the int. That papyrus equates the 31st, 13th, and 4th years, and belongs to the year 337, not to 335, as doubtfully explained by reference to the years of Constantine and Constantius. A fourth example of a triple dating, in which the first two eras are probably the same as in the other three instances, is 1575. 4; but the figures are uncertain. The variation with regard to the third era is striking: in 1431 it dates from 341, in 1632 from 352, in 92 from 334. Since eras at Oxyrhynchus dating from 324 and 355 (cf. 125 int.) were known previously from numerous examples, of which the earliest so far is 1056 (37th and 6th year, 360-1), there are now no less than seven different eras attested between 307 and 355. With regard to the month in which they began, in 125. int. we supposed that the eras of 324 and 355 began on Thoth 1 (Aug. 29) like regnal years, and this view was confirmed by 1116. 11-15 èψ èυαυτου ενα των ἀπίου νηθεσμηνίας Θωθ εως Μεσορή ἐπαγ, πέμπτης . . . τοῦ ἐνεστωτος ἔτους μ (ἔτους). But the years on the eras of 307, 325, and 352 apparently coincided with the indiction-year (cf. 1632. int.), which commenced in one of the summer months Pachon, Pauni, Epeiph, or Mesore (in the case of 1632 on or before Mesore 1) and varied from year to year, and P. Flor. 325 raises a difficulty with regard to the eras of 324 and 355. That papyrus is dated on Pachon 25 of the year after the consulship of Longinus, 12th indiction, and speaks of the 165th and 134th year (i. e. 488-9) as $i\nu \epsilon \sigma \tau \delta s$. The year after the consulship of Longinus is 487, and Vitelli proposed to insert $\tau \delta \beta$ after the consulship (cf. 1130. 3, n., for a parallel instance of the omission of $\tau \delta \beta$). Pachon 25 can belong either to the beginning or the end of an indiction; but if the year in question was 488, the 12th indiction had begun and the new year by the two eras of 324 and 355 had apparently begun with it. If the papyrus belongs to 489, the indiction was ending, and there would be nothing to show whether the years by the eras ended with it or at the end of Mesore; but it is then necessary to insert $\tau \delta \gamma$, which is unsatisfactory. Hence the starting-point of the year on the various eras remains in doubt, especially as it need not have been the same in each era.

The following table combines the evidence of the years by Oxyrhynchite eras in use up to 360, after which date only the eras of 324 and 355 are found.

					4	Eras
	Year	Day	307	324	325	334	341	352	355
92	337	Oct. 15	31		13	4	• •	• •
1575	339	May 26	32?	••	[14]	5?
1431	352	Jan. 4.	45	• •	27	••	II	**	• •
1632	353	July 25	47		29			2	••
1056	360	Oct. 10	••	37	••		• •	• •	.6

From 325-360 there seem to have been two contending parties, one dating by the eras of 307 and 325, and after 334 by a third which varied and was certainly not a cycle like the indictions, the other dating by the era of 324 and later by that of 355. To suppose that the eras of 324 and 325 are really the same is incompatible with the evidence of 1632, and no alteration of the figure of the indiction is there admissible owing to its accordance with the consular dating. The choice of particular years as starting-points of these eras probably depended in most, perhaps in all, cases upon purely local considerations. The only eras which suggest a connexion with events of great importance are those beginning in 324 and 325. With regard to the earlier of these we suggested in 125. int. that it might possibly be connected with the Council of Nicaea. Hohmann (Chronol. d. Papyrusurk. 46), in objecting to this, treats Thoth I 323 and 354 as the 'Epochetag' of the two eras beginning in 324 and 355 by an error due to a curious misapprehension of the nature of ancient eras; these begin with a year 1, not with a year 0, e.g. that by the Καίσαρος κράτησις, which corresponds to the regnal years of Augustus, or the Diocletian era, of which the 1st year was 284-5, i. e. his 1st regnal year. The Oxyrhynchite era of 324, of which the 1st year was 324-5, cannot possibly be related, as Hohmann proposes, to events in the year 323-4, during most of which Licinius was still in possession of Egypt. The change of sovereigns, so far as Middle Egypt was concerned, is now fairly well fixed in the period between Jan. 22 and December, 324 (cf. 1430. 1, n.), and the Council of Nicaea, which began in May according to some authorities and ended in September, 325, can be connected with either the era of 324 or that of 325. Possibly the era of 324 is to be connected with the triumph of Constantine, and that of 325 with the Council of Nicaea. These two rival eras may have commended themselves to different religious parties in the city, and the supporters of the era of 324 in any case proved victorious. But the absence of any specially notable events in the years 307-8, 334-5, 341-2, 352-3, 355-6 rather indicates that all these fourth-century eras at Oxyrhynchus were suggested by events of local interest.

IV. TAXATION.

1432. REPORT OF A TAX-FARMER TO A STRATEGUS.

 14.8×6.7 cm.

A.D. 214.

A monthly return of receipts of taxation, similar to those addressed to the strategus by $\pi\rho\dot{\alpha}\kappa\tau\sigma\rho\epsilon s$ $\dot{\alpha}\rho\gamma\nu\rho\iota\kappa\hat{\omega}\nu$, e.g. 1433, but written by the farmer of a tax upon sellers of two different kinds of pulse. The impost is no doubt the $\chi\epsilon\iota\rho\omega$ - $\nu\dot{\alpha}\xi\iota\sigma\nu$, a tax levied at varying rates on different trades, but uniformly upon members of the same one; cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 321 sqq., Grundz. 188. The rate on individuals is not stated in the present case, 80 drachmae in all having been paid. For other instances of $\chi\epsilon\iota\rho\omega\nu\dot{\alpha}\xi\iota\sigma\nu$ in this volume cf. 1436. 4, 1518 (on $\kappa\sigma\nu\rho\epsilon\hat{\imath}s$ at 6 drachmae each, $\kappa\lambda\epsilon\iota\delta\sigma\pi\sigma\iota\sigma\hat{\imath}$, &c.), and possibly 1517 and 1519 (different trades?).

'To Aurelius Anubion, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, from Heraclas son of Saras son of Akous, his mother being Nicaea (?), of the city of Oxyrhynchus, contractor for farming the tax on pulse-sellers and vetch-sellers. Monthly account for Pauni of the present 22nd year of Marcus Aurelius Severus Antoninus Caesar the lord, as follows. From the pulse-sellers and vetch-sellers eighty drachmae, total 80 dr., which were paid into the local public bank.' Date.

1. Aurelius Anubion is also mentioned in 1196. 1 (211-12; om. Aurelius), 1474. 1 (Jan. 31, 216), 1525. 1 (about Sept. 216).

2. $\sum a\rho \hat{a} \tau[o]\hat{v}$: $\sum \epsilon \rho \hat{\eta} \nu[o]v$ might be read, or $\sum a\rho \hat{a}\tau[o]s$.

3. Nikaias: or, perhaps, Nikâros, but that would be expected to be a man's name.

5. ὑποσχεσάριοs is a new form: for a ὑπόσχεσις in connexion with the purchase of land cf. 1633. The χειρωνάξιον was frequently farmed, e.g. the τέλος γερδίων and the imposts ἡπητῶν, κοπῆς τριχὸς καὶ χειρωναξίον, but instances of its collection by πράκτορες also occur; cf. 1436. 4 and Wilchen, Ost. i. 575–82.

6. ἀθηροπ(ω)λῶν καὶ ὀρβιοπ(ω)λῶν: ἀθήρη or ἀθἄρη, the form used by classical writers, was according to Pliny, N. H. xxii. 25. 121 an Egyptian word, olyram arincam diximus vocari. hac decocta fit medicamentum, quod Aegyptii atheram vocant, infantibus utilissimum, sed et adultos inlinunt eo. It is rarely mentioned in papyri (P. Leyden 3. 25). ὄροβοs is frequently found in documents concerning traffic between the Fayûm and Memphis, e. g. P. Fay. 69. The form ὀρβιοπώληs occurs in 1037. 4, ὀρβοπώληs in 1323; cf. P. Brit. Mus. 1445. 7, n.

1433. Two Reports of Tax-collectors to a Strategus.

12.3 × 7.8 cm.

A. D. 238.

These two returns in the same hand, addressed to a strategus by collectors of money-taxes at a village in the Thmoisepho toparchy (cf. 1436. 35, n.) concerning their receipts in successive months, form nos. 31 and 32 of a long series of documents, which were joined together and numbered probably in the βιβλιοθήκη δημοσίων λόγων. Nos. 33 and 34, two returns of unirrigated land, addressed more than a year later to a basilicogrammateus and comogrammateus respectively, are also extant (1549). Since the taxing-returns belong to the troubled year 238, the references to the reigning Emperors have a special interest. The conclusions of both documents with the dates are lost; but Col. i, which gives the account of Mesore, the last month of 'the past 1st year' (l. 15), was clearly written in Thoth of the 2nd year of Pupienus and Balbinus Augusti and Gordianus Caesar, while Col. ii, which gives the account of Thoth in the 2nd year of Gordianus Augustus, was no doubt written in the next month Phaophi. Part of the names of Pupienus and Balbinus in Col. i has been deleted, but whether the news of their death was received before or after the dispatch of the document is uncertain. 1433 thus harmonizes with the evidence of other papyri, &c., concerning the short reign of those two Emperors; cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 805 (in P. Flor, 98, which was published later, neither the year nor month of the reign is preserved). At Thebes on Epeiph 27 of the 1st year (July 21) Gordianus Caesar is ignored in an ostracon; but he is mentioned in the dating on Thoth II of the 2nd year (Sept. 8) in a Vienna papyrus from the Arsinoïte nome, while on Thoth 24 (Sept. 21) Gordianus Augustus alone occurs in another Vienna papyrus; 1433. i was therefore probably written before Thoth 24.

Similar monthly returns by collectors of money-taxes are common in Fayûm papyri; cf. P. Fay. 41. int. The instances in which the individual payments are detailed, as here (B. G. U. 42, 392, 639), are less numerous than those in which the totals for different taxes are given (B. G. U. 25, 41, 199, recto, 652-3, P. Fay. 41-2, 239; cf. 42 (a)). In the other Oxyrhynchite examples, 1046 and 1283, both systems are employed. In Col. i only the total is preserved (l. 29); in Col. ii the payments are all for beer-tax (l. 52, n.). Probably other πράκτορες also sent in similar reports, for those extant in the papyri referred to seldom give the impression of being complete returns for the month; cf. 1436, int.

To Flavius Harpocration, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, from the Aurelii Necthenibis and his associates, collectors of money-revenues of the metropolis in the Thmoisepho toparchy, district of Kesmouchis. List of individual receipts paid in the month of Mesore of the past 1st year of the Emperors Caesars Marcus Clodius [[Maximus]] and Decimus Caelius Calvinus [[Balbinus]] Pii Felices Augusti and Marcus Antonius Gordianus the most sacred Caesar, as follows. 1-5. Cf. ll. 32-6 and, for the restoration of the figures, int.

8. [μ]ητροπ(ολιτικών): cf. 1405. 20, 1419. 2, nn.

18. [Μαξίμου]: the traces suit Μαξίμου better than Που[πιήνου, which is also rather long. Mažiuov is omitted in P. Rainer, Mittheil. ii. 31.

31. There is a blank space at the end of the line, and perhaps nothing was written after $[\Delta\iota\sigma]\gamma\epsilon\nu is$.

52. ζυτηρᾶs: cf. P. Tebt. ii, p. 335, Reil, Beilräge, 169. In Roman times it was apparently a tax on beer-manufacturers, being generally called ζυτηρὰ κατ' ἄνδρα (but not here; κατ' ἄνδρα in l. 53 corresponds to κ. ἄ. in l. 41). The two payments preserved, both of 40 drachmae (ll. 56 and 60), are much higher than the amounts paid by individuals in previous centuries (4 dr. $\frac{1}{2}$ ob. 2 chal. in P. Tebt. 353, 7 dr. 4 ob. in Amh. 121. 3, 10 dr. 2 ob. in Fay. 47 (a). 5 and 262, 8 dr. in Tebt. Ost. 1, $5\frac{1}{2}$ ob. in Tebt. Ost. 2); a payment of 80 drachmae by tax-collectors occurs in P. Ryl. 196. 11 (A.D. 196). In the third century the depreciation of the coinage was making itself felt; cf. P. Strassb. 61. 5, where 28 dr. are paid for Europá in A.D. 228.

55. Probably [Θε ωνίδος or [Λε ωνίδος.

59. This 'Αριστόκλεια [ή] κ(aì) 'Αρσινόη is probably mentioned again in 1537. 4.

1434. REPORT OF A COMOGRAMMATEUS CONCERNING REMISSIONS.

28.7 × 21 cm. A. D. 107-8.

The recto of this papyrus contains most of the first column, and beginnings of a few lines of the second, from the beginning of a report concerning abatements of taxation (κουφοτέλειαι), drawn up by a lately appointed comogrammateus of several villages in the upper toparchy (cf. 1425. 4, n.), and probably intended for the strategus. P. Fay. 40, an ἀπαιτήσιμον τελωνικής ἀτελείας (which does not imply complete exemption from taxation; cf. P. Fay. 82. 14) drawn up by a comogrammateus, is somewhat similar. The scribe wrote a clear semi-uncial hand but in a very compressed style, and, owing to the loss of both the ends of lines at the bottom of Col. i and a few letters at the beginnings, the technical details, which are of a rather interesting character, are not very clear. Lines 9–17 are concerned with the estate formerly belonging to Gaius Julius son of Gaius Julius Theon, an Alexandrian official of high rank. This property was originally acquired from the Emperor Augustus, but underwent several changes of ownership (Il. 9, 15, nn.). After 1. 17 there is a blank space of a line; but Il. 18 sqq. seem to be concerned with the same estate, giving details as to its present condition, not to constitute a new section. With regard to $\kappa ov\phi o\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon ua$ little was known apart from a passage in the edict of Tiberius Alexander, which provides some interesting parallels; cf. Il. 3, 7, 15, nn.

On the verso is the conclusion of an undertaking to provide bread, written nine years later (1454).

'From Apollonius, lately appointed comogrammateus of the Monimou farmstead and other villages in the upper toparchy. Account of abatements of taxation for the 11th year of the Emperor Caesar Nerva Trajanus Augustus Germanicus Dacicus, as follows. Abatements of which the due amounts in money and corn are reckoned here: to Gaius Julius, son of Gaius Julius Theon, formerly chief-priest and hypomnematographus, of the land in this nome sacred to Isis of Taposiris Aquila conceded in accordance with an application presented by Gaius Julius Theon the father, in accordance with the concession made to him by Gaius Tyrannius by an edict, from the account of Caesar, on condition that he should pay at the city for taxes and other charges 2 talents...drachmae, at...this in the holding of Demetrius son of Po.... arurae, of which .. are in the category of land that is unsown or dry or worn away, .. in the pastures in the estates of the lord Augustus, in place of which there are planted with olives (?), reckoned up to the 20th year in the account of ..., arurae; at Psobthis taxed at I artaba I arura, making I artaba, taxed at .. $\frac{21}{64}$ arur., at Idu ... $\frac{3}{64}$ arur., total $\frac{121}{64}$ arur., at Idu ... $\frac{3}{64}$ arur.; moneytaxes, for naubion at 200 dr. of copper, for exchange (?) ..., for naubion (?) 221 (?) dr., of which 8 (?) dr...'

2. Μονίμου paid 872 drachmae in 1285. 62, being probably one of the larger villages in the nome. The ἄλλαι κῶμαι apparently included Psobthis (l. 23) and the villages mentioned in ll. 18 and 24. In 1285 the villages mentioned next to Μονίμου (all probably small) are Ξενάρχου, Νέσλα, [Σ]ενθρις, and 'Αρχιβίου.

3. [κουφ]οτελειῶν: cf. l. 7 and the edict of Tiberius Alexander (Dittenberger, Or. Gr. Inscr. ii. 669), 26 sqq. ἐνετεύχθην δὲ καὶ περὶ τῶν ἀτελειῶν καὶ κουφοτελειῶν ἐν αἶς ἐστιν καὶ τὰ προσοδικά, Wilcken, Archiv, i. 148, Dittenberger's commentary, and Rostowzew, Röm. Kolonat. 109. On the edict of Hadrian lightening (κουφίζειν) the taxes on γεωργοί see P. Giessen 4–7. int., and on a remission of taxes in the Mendesian nome B. G. U. 903. 21.

ι a (ἔτους): since Trajan has the title Dacicus (l. 5), the year cannot be earlier than the 6th, and the absence of ἄριστος and Παρθικός (cf. 1454. 12) indicates a year earlier than the 18th. All that remains of the number is the tip of an upward stroke joining the sign for $\tilde{\epsilon}_{\tau o \nu s}$, and this suits $i \mid a$ better than $s, \theta, i \mid \gamma$, or $i \mid \epsilon$.

7. For [κουφο]τελειῶν cf. l. 3, n., and for καθ(ήκοντα) ll. 29–31 of the edict of Tib. Alexander ἐπὲρ δὲ τῶν ἐκ τοῦ Καίσαρος λόγου (cf. l. 15, n.) πρα $\{\chi\}$ θέντων ἐν τῶι μέσωι χρόνωι περὶ ὧν ἐκφόρια κατεκρίθηι, ὡς Οὐηστεῖνος ἐκέλευσεν τὰ καθήκοντα τελεῖσθαι, καὶ αὐτὸς ἴστημι ἀπολελυκὼς τὰ μηδέπωι εἰσπραχθέντα καὶ πρὸς τὸ μέλλον μένειν αὐτὰ ἐπὶ τοῖς καθήκουσι. ἄδικον γὰρ ἐστιν τοὺς ὧνησαμένους κτήματα καὶ τιμὰς αὐτῶν ἀποδόντας ὡς δημοσίους γεωργοὺς ἐκφόρια ἀπαιτεῖσθαι τῶν

 $i\delta i\omega \nu$ $\epsilon \delta a\phi \hat{\omega} \nu$. Wilcken formerly (l. c.) identified $\tau \hat{\alpha}$ καθήκ, there with the προσοδικά in l. 26 (cf. l. 3, n.), supposing that the persons in question paid a vectigal, as distinct from an $\hat{\epsilon}$ κφόριον, to the State upon confiscated land bought by them; but in Grundz. 297 he withdrew the explanation of $\gamma \hat{\eta}$ προσόδον (cf. 1446. int.) as confiscated land, in deference to Rostowzew's criticisms (op. cit. 135 sqq.).

9. Gaius Julius was contemporary with Aquila (l. 12), i. e. G. Julius Aquila, praefect in A. D. 10–11 (cf. Cantarelli, Prefetti, i. 20), his father G. Julius Theon with G. Tyrannius (l. 15), praefect in 7–4 B. c. (Cantarelli, ep. cil. 19). The property, which belonged to the Emperor Augustus (l. 15, n.), was ceded by Tyrannius to G. Julius Theon, who apparently made it over to the temple of Isis of Taposiris (l. 11, n.), his son subsequently recovering it from Aquila. That it was in A. D. 107–8 still in the possession of Gaius Julius' heirs is very doubtful. That portion to which l. 20 refers apparently belonged to an olioia of Trajan, while ll. 18–19 and 23–4 seem to be concerned with $\beta aoilus \gamma \hat{\gamma}$. Possibly the space left below l. 17 indicates that the section was not completed and ll. 18 sqq. belong to a new section altogether, but in that case it is strange that the land in ll. 18 sqq. was not further characterized.

10. ἀρχ[ι]ιερέως καὶ ὑπομνημα[το]γρά(φου): on the order, which implies the superiority of the second office, see 1412. 1–3, n. ὑπομνηματογράφοι at this period probably existed only at Alexandria, and ἀρχιερεύς here probably means the ἀρχ. ᾿Αλεξανδρείας καὶ λὶγίπτου πάσης, especially as he bears a Roman name. Theon who was ἀρχιδικαστής late in the first century B. c. (P. Ryl. 257) might be identical with G. Julius Theon here, and another Theon, ἀρχιδικαστής in A. d. 58 (268. 1), and G. Julius Theon γενόμενος ἀρχιδ. καὶ ὑπομν. in the reign of Hadrian (P. Tebt. 286. 13) may well have belonged to the same family, as perhaps Theon ἀρχιδ., father of G. Julius Dionysius ἀρχιδ. in 130 (C. I. G. 4734), who might be identical with the Theon in P. Tebt. 286; cf. also B. G. U. 832. 16 (A. d. 113) Θέωνος τοῦν γεγν[μνασιαρχ(ηκότων) referring to a judge at Alexandria.

11. leρâs "Ισιδος [Τα]ποσειριάδος: cf. ll. 9, 15, nn. Ταποσειριάς may refer either to Taposiris Magna in the Libyan nome or Tap. Parva near Alexandria; cf. 1380. 67, n. The number of arurae to which leρâs refers was not expressed anywhere in ll. 11–17, but seems to have been accounted for in ll. 18 sqq.

12. ἐπεχώρησεν: cf. l. 15 and P. Amh. 68. 7 συνκεχωρημένου εἰς πρᾶσιν ὑπολόγου; a sale is meant here also, apparently. For 'Ακύλας cf. l. 9, n.

14. καθὰ καὶ αὐτός: as it stands, αὐτός must refer to Γάιος Τυράννιος, not the πατήρ, but we think that the sentence began as if $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \chi \omega \rho \eta \theta \eta$ $\delta \pi \delta$ Γαίου T. was going to follow, and for this the writer substituted $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \chi \omega (\rho \eta \sigma \epsilon \nu)$ αὐ(τῷ) Γάιος T. There is no point in καὶ αὐτός if applied to Tyrannius.

15. For Γάιος Τυράννιο(s) cf. l. 9, n. At the end of the line [ίδι (ἱον) might be supplied, but for λόγον Καίσαρος cf. the passage from the edict of Tib. Alexander quoted in l. 7, n. Καίσαρος here happens to mean Augustus (cf. l. 9, n.), but it there refers to no particular Emperor, Augustus being elsewhere in the edict called $\theta\epsilon$ δε Σεβαστός. Whether Καίσαρος λόγος = ίδιος (or οὐσιακὸς) λόγος, or is a general expression for the fiscus like κυριακός λόγος (edict of Tib. Alex. l. 18), is left doubtful by Wilcken, Ost. i. 645. Dittenberger adopts the latter view, but the present passage on the whole favours the former. Possibly a comma should be placed after Τυράννιο(s), and ἀπὸ [λό]γου connected with ἐπεχώρηντεν ᾿Ακίλας. If so, the land was, although ἰερά, in the Καίσαρος λόγος when Aquila assigned it to Gaius Julius the younger, and the nature of its tenure before Tyrannius assigned it to Gaius Julius the elder, who in any case seems to have been responsible for its becoming ἰερά (cf. l. 9, n.), was not stated in ll. 9–17. From l. 18 it appears that part of it had once been cleruchic. For an instance of cleruchic land reverting to the Emperor in the Augustan period cf. 721. An example of the conversion of ἱερὰ γῆ by Augustus into βασιλική on a large scale occurs in P. Tebt. 302 (W. Chrest. 368). But the construction adopted in the text, according to which $d\pi\delta$ [$\delta\delta$]you is connected with Tyrannius, not Aquila, is preferable. The temple lost the land in either case.

16. π όλ $(\epsilon \omega s)$ probably means Oxyrhynchus (cf. l. 11 τῷδε τῷ νομῷ) rather than ὑπὲρ τε[λῶ]ν καὶ ἐτέρων: this form of paying for land acquired from the Emperor or the State is unusual. Extant papyri concerning the sale of land by the government, whether from the ὑπῶλογον βασιλικῆς (e. g. 721. 4, P. Amh. 68), or ἄπρατα τῆς διοικήσεως (e. g. 513. 7 and 1633. 7), or confiscated land under cultivation (B. G. U. 462), refer to a τιμή with, occasionally, προσδιαγραφόμενα (513. 14). But the τέλη καὶ ἔτερα may include the τιμή, or a composition of future taxes may have been substituted for the price, which in the case of ὑπῶλογον was generally low (12 drachmae per arura in 721, 20 dr. per arur. from Λ. D. 61-246; cf. P. Amh. 68. 20 and Brit. Mus. 1157. verso).

18. [..] θ_{18} : if $[\Psi \omega \beta]\theta_{18}$ (for $-\theta_{108}$) be restored (cf. l. 23, n.), this line projected by one or two letters, which is quite legitimate, since in any case there is a change of subject. But a different village is expected in l. 23.

20. That an οὐσία of the reigning Emperor should be subject to κουφοτέλεια is natural; cf. Preisigke, S.B. 4226 . . . οὐσίας τοῦ κυρίου Αὐτοκράτορος ἀτελῆν καὶ ἀνευγάρευτου. There is no clear evidence for the taxes paid by οὐσίαι, for in P. Brit. Mus. 195 it is uncertain in what relation the Emperor Tiberius (l. 2) stood to the κτῆσις in question. For νομαί in the οἰσιακά cf. Wilcken, Grundz. 299. [..]κων might equally well be read, but suggests no suitable word. Usually οὐσίαι of the Emperor were called after their first owners simply;

but cf. P. Ryl. 134. 7 Τιβερίου Καίσ. Σεβ. οὐσία Γερμανικιανή.

21. [å]νθ΄ οδ ἀπὸ ἐλ(αιῶνος): with [å]νθ΄ οδ the line was slightly indented; with [ἀκά]νθου it would project slightly. For ἀντί in a somewhat similar context cf. e. g. P. Tebt. 343. 23 ὅστε ἀντὶ ἐλαιῶνο(s) φο(ρίμου). οδ can be explained by supposing that the number at the end of l. 20 was a fraction of an arura. The objection to [ἀκά]νθου is that this word is not found applied to land; in P. Tebt. 343. 6, &c., ἄκανθ(ος) is to be read on the analogy of συκάμινος in l. 86; cf. Wilcken, Archiv, v. 239. Possibly [..]νθου was a place-name. ἀπὸ ἐλ(ασσώματος) can be restored in place of ἀπὸ ἐλ(αιῶνος); cf. C. P. Herm. 120. recto iii. 11 καὶ ἀπὸ ἐλασσώμ(ατος) τῆς (αὐτῆς) δη(μοσίας) ἐσπ(αρμένης). The 20th year presumably refers to the current reign. At the end of the line [ὑπολόγ(ου) or [ἀτελ(ῶν) is more likely than e. g. Καίσαρος (cf. l. 16) or σιτικῶν. In the case of ὑπόλογον sold by the government three years' ἀτέλεια was sometimes accorded; cf. 721. 15.

23. $[\Psi\dot{\omega}]\beta\theta(\omega s)$: a village of this name in the upper toparchy (cf. l. 3) is known from 343. Three other villages called $\Psi\dot{\omega}\beta\theta\iota s$ in different toparchies occur in 1285. One artaba per arura is a common rate for land-tax upon cleruchic or private land (e.g. in 1459), including $\dot{\omega}\pi\dot{\omega}\lambda \omega\gamma\omega$ bought from the government (P. Amh. 68. 22). As a rent of State land it would be exceptionally low (cf. e.g. 1446), and $\dot{\omega}\pi\dot{\omega}\lambda \omega\gamma\omega$ may well be meant here.

24. ['I] $\delta\nu$ (): the papyrus has] $\bar{\delta}$, with $\iota\bar{\delta}$ later, and [..] $\bar{\gamma}$ $\nu\bar{a}$ in l. 25; but there is no certain instance in 1434 of strokes over figures and several cases occur of figures without strokes, so that the horizontal line apparently represents ν , as it does certainly in l. 19 $\kappa \alpha \tau \epsilon \xi \nu (\sigma \mu \epsilon \nu \eta s)$, and probably in l. 15 $a\dot{\epsilon}(\tau\hat{\phi})$ and l. 25 $[\dot{q}\dot{\rho}]\nu (\rho \iota \kappa \hat{a}\nu)$ $\nu a\nu (\beta \iota \nu \nu)$, and perhaps l. 26 $[\nu a]\nu (\beta \iota \nu \nu)$. ['I] $\delta\nu$ () or [..] $\delta\nu$ () is regarded by us as a new place-name; but the repetition of I $\delta\nu$ () is uncertain, and the fractions at the end of l. 23 may have been $\delta \lambda \beta$, in which case $1\frac{21}{64}$ arurae in l. 24 refer to the whole amount, not to the two Psobthis items only.

25. $[\hat{q}\rho]\gamma\nu(\rho\iota\kappa\hat{\omega}\nu)$: cf. ll. 7 and 34. For the naubion-tax cf. 1409. 20, 1436. 6, nn. 200 (copper) drachmae (per arura) is not a rate attested elsewhere. If $\hat{a}\lambda(\lambda a\gamma\hat{\eta}s)$ is right, a figure corresponding to the usual $\kappa\hat{o}\lambda\lambda\nu\beta_{0s}$ of about $\frac{1}{60}$ would be expected. If the beginning of the next line also refers to the naubion, 21 drachmae remain to be accounted for at the end of l. 25.

26. Cf. the preceding note. It is not certain that the column ends here. [..] ν () can be another place-name, or [/] ' $\Gamma \sigma \kappa a$ is possible. With the latter reading $\delta \nu$ ($\delta \rho$.) η might be a conversion of copper into silver; but the usual rate of exchange of copper drachmae was 300: 1 where the naubion was concerned, so that a rate of about 400: 1 is not very suitable, and a, not $\delta \nu$, would rather be expected, if a conversion is meant.

35. ἐν ἐποχ(ĝ): cf. P. Tebt. 337. 2, n.

36. oð $\vec{a}\lambda\lambda ay$ $\hat{\eta}$: cf. 1437. int.

1435. TAXATION-RETURN CONCERNING PASTOPHORI.

A.D. 147.

The recto of this papyrus contains part of apparently the last two columns of a very carefully written return addressed by tax-collectors or tax-farmers (1. 6 ήμ îν]; cf. 1432-3) to a strategus (11. 7-8 έξεις πράξι μον) ύπο τοῦ βασιλ(ικοῦ) γραμ.) concerning payments by παστοφόροι, who belonged to the lower ranks of the priesthood. The two entries which are preserved in Col. i and the entry immediately preceding, which is included in the total in 1, 5, uniformly recorded payments of 4 drachmae for the main tax and 1½ obols for προσδιαγραφόμενα, but owing to the uncertainty attaching to the termination of $i\pi \epsilon_{\rho}$ $i\epsilon_{\rho}[o\hat{v}]$ in 1. 6, and the ambiguity of $i\pi\epsilon\rho$, it is not clear what the precise title of the impost was, or even whether it was stated at all. That it was connected with the τέλος ίεροῦ in P. Fay. 39. 2 or ί ε ρων in P. Fay. 42 (a). ii. 10, or the early Ptolemaic φόρος ίερων is not unlikely, but other obscure payments, $i\epsilon\rho\alpha\tau(\iota)\kappa(\hat{\omega}\nu)$ $\epsilon\pi\iota($) and $\delta\omega$ () ίερευτικφ(ν) are also known; cf. P. Tebt. 354. 23, n., Otto, Priester und Tempel, i. 364. In any case the impost was levied upon priests, whether for the benefit of the temples or not. Of the two παστοφόροι one belonged to a temple of Apollo (i. e. Horus) at the Oxyrhynchite village of Teïs (cf. 1436. int.), the other to a temple of an unknown deity, Saphthis, at a village which was in the Arabian nome (ll. 8-10, n.). The sums due are stated first, being followed by the dates of the payments to a bank; but the second set of entries seems to have been written at the same time as the first, the papyrus being a fair copy, not like P. Ryl. 188, in which the second set of entries was inserted later. Col. ii, of which only the beginnings of lines are preserved, belongs apparently to a summary, carrying over arrears to a future account, and below l. 19 is a considerable blank space, indicating the end of the document. The reign was that of Antoninus (l. 18), and the year the 10th (l. 4). A different taxing-account on the verso (1436) was written in the 17th (or 19th) and 20th years of the same reign.

8–10. $\Sigma \acute{a} \phi \theta \iota s$ occurs as a Mendesian village in P. Ryl. 215. 2, but is not otherwise known as the name of a god, while [...] $\psi \acute{a} \mu \epsilon \omega s$ is not identifiable with any known Oxyrhynchite village. This payment seems to have been made in the Oxyrhynchite nome by an inhabitant of a village in the Arabian nome, the basilicogrammateus being apparently responsible for adjusting the irregularity. With $\emph{\'{a}} \nu \omega \ \tau \acute{o} \pi (\omega \nu)$ cf. 931. 15 $\sigma \tau \rho a \tau \eta \gamma \acute{\omega} \iota$ $\Sigma \epsilon \beta \epsilon \nu \nu \acute{\omega} \tau \acute{o} \tau (\omega \nu)$; but while that nome is known to have been subdivided for purposes of administration in the Roman period into two halves, there is no evidence apart from the present passage that a corresponding subdivision existed in the Arabian nome, and $\emph{\'{a}} \nu \omega \tau \acute{o} \pi (\omega \nu)$ need mean no more than the upper toparchy of a homogeneous nome. $\tau \iota \sigma \pi (a \rho \chi \acute{a} \iota s)$ is equally possible.

1436. ACCOUNT OF VILLAGE-TAXES.

 18.5×29.9 cm.

а. р. 153-6.

The recto of this papyrus contains 1435, written in the 10th year of Antoninus. On the verso is most of three columns, with the ends of a few lines of a preceding column, from a series of monthly accounts of sums collected by πράκτορες ἀρχυρικῶν for various taxes. The heading in Col. iv, which gives the account of Thoth in the 20th year of Antoninus, shows that the toparchy concerned was that of Thmoisepho, and probably the village in question was Teïs (l. 35, n.), though it is possible that the accounts concerned the whole toparchy. Cols. ii-iii, which are in a different hand, refer to two no doubt consecutive months, of which the second was either Me[cheir] or Me[sore], and with the latter restoration it is tempting to regard these two months as concluding the 19th year and make Cols. iii-iv continuous. But the mentions of arrears of the 16th year in ll. 14 and 27 make it more probable that the year in Cols. ii-iii was the 17th (cf. the reference to arrears of the 19th year in Col. iv), and if there was an interval of several years between Cols, iii and iv, Me[cheir] is slightly preferable to Me[sore], as being nearer to the 16th year, though instances of taxes paid more than a year in arrear are not infrequent in papyri.

The names of the taxes collected in the three months are preserved almost entire, but the amounts are in most cases lost. The document was no doubt drawn up either by a public bank or by the $\pi_p \acute{a} \kappa \tau o \rho \epsilon s$ themselves (cf. l. 34) from their monthly returns, which are illustrated by 1433. In Cols. ii-iii ll. 4-17 (and probably 2, 3), 20-4, 26, 29 (and perhaps 30-2 where the margin is missing) have two short strokes against them in the margin, indicating a revision of some kind; cf. 1516 and P. Ryl. 188. int. It is noteworthy that in l. 28 certainly, and perhaps in ll. 30-1, the absence of the marginal strokes coincides with the omission of the extra charges usually appended to the main sum in the case of the other entries in Cols. ii-iii; but since ll. 6 and 29 provide an instance of a tax which in both cases has strokes against the entry, but in one has no extra charges, the coincidence may be accidental.

Since the extant monthly returns of tax-collectors to the strategus cannot be depended upon as complete statements of the receipts from a village (cf. 1433. int.), and e.g. in P. Fay. 42 no details are given with regard to the sums paid direct to the bank, 1436 provides a much more comprehensive idea of villagetaxation in the second century. Ters is mentioned fairly often in Oxyrhynchus papyri and was probably a large village; for it had a temple of Apollo (i. e. Horus) with παστοφόροι (1435. 2), and if the reading of the figures in 1285. 126 is correct, it was one of six (out of about eighty) villages paying over 1,000 drachmae, while in 1448 it contributed more στιχάρια than the other villages except Dositheou. The items for particular taxes in 1436 are rather high in two cases, the poll-tax (1,000 dr. in l. 14 and over 2,000 dr. in l. 27, both items being arrears of the 16th year; in ll. 8 and 44 the figures are lost) and pig-tax (about 660 dr. in l, 9 and 481 in l. 25 for the 17th year, 219 dr. in l. 15 and 171 in l. 28 for arrears; in l. 47 the figure is missing). The poll-tax was only paid by males from fourteen to sixty years of age, and, to judge by the discovery in numerous Fayûm villages of receipts for poll-tax collected by the $\pi\rho\delta\kappa\tau o\rho\epsilon s$ of the metropolis and the frequent instances in the Oxyrhynchite nome of taxes of the metropolis collected in villages (cf. 1405. 20, n.), there were probably many persons resident at Teïs who paid polltax to the city-collectors at the lower rate of 12 drachmae, not to the villagecollectors at the rate of, probably, 16 (cf. l. 8, n.) or 20. Individual payments for pig-tax rarely exceed 2 drachmae (l. 9, n.), and the whole evidence regarding Teïs suggests that it contained several thousand inhabitants.

Besides the poll-tax and pig-tax there are during the three months fifteen different heads of taxation, several of them repeated, ranging from 226 to less than 4 dr.; but even if the accounts of a whole year had been preserved, the number of taxes is likely to have been smaller than in P. Fay. 42 (a), an incomplete list of taxes in arrear at the Arsinoïte village of Pharbaetha in the late second century, containing at least twenty-eight items, apart from the taxes on the verso, which were $\pi a \rho^{\prime} \epsilon \pi \iota \tau \eta \rho \eta \tau a \hat{\iota} s$, and a considerable number lost. Whether P. Ryl. 213 (late second century), a long taxing-list of payments by villages in the Mendesian nome, is to be explained on the analogy of P. Fay. 42 (a) as a list of arrears is now in the light of 1436 more doubtful; cf. l. 18, n. Of the monthly totals in 1436 only one is preserved (l. 33, 3,640 dr.), about $\frac{2}{3}$ being arrears of poll-tax, for which no payments on account of the current year are recorded in that month. The items of arrears in Cols. ii-iii are fewer than the items referring to the current year, but the reverse is the case in Col. iv, and there was obviously much irregularity in the times of collection, as is also indicated by e.g. the returns to strategi (1433. int.). Details concerning the taxes, of which those for a vicarius (ll. 3 (?), 21, 40), the ἐκλογιστής (l. 23), ἴδιος λόγος (l. 24), and an adaeratio of an uncertain character (l. 50), are new, are discussed in the commentary.

1-3. Cf. ll. 19-21, nn. and 38-40. 4. χι(ρωναξίου): cf. 1432. int. and 5, n.

5. $\partial \theta$ [ον(ιηρûs): cf. 1414. int., 1428. 4, 1438. int.

6. να ν(βίου): cf. 1409. 20, 1427. 3, 1434. 25, nn., P. Ryl. ii, pp. 243 sqq. It was generally paid in copper drachmae at the rate of 300 for a silver drachma, with extra payments of about $\frac{1}{10}$ and a charge for κόλλυβος ('exchange') of $\frac{1}{60}$, but e. g. in P. Fay. 41.

ii. 12 the payments were in silver. In l. 29 there are no extra payments.

7. συ(μβολικοῦ): for this resolution cf. P. Tebt. 298. 63 συμβολ[ι]κοῦ. συ(μβόλου), which occurs written out in e.g. P. Brit. Mus. 372. 9, 17 (P. Tebt. ii, p. 340) and P. Ghent verso (P. Ryl. ii, p. 421), can be substituted where only one receipt is in question, and συ(μβόλων) might be read here. The plural συμβολικά is not found written out, but very likely occurred in e.g. B. G. U. 219. 8. The evidence for this charge for giving a receipt is collected in P. Tebt. 295. 12, n. Extra payments occur here, but not in l. 30.

8. λαο(γραφίαs): cf. int. The rate of the poll-tax varied considerably in the different metropoleis, 20 drachmae a year being normally paid at Arsinoë (P. Teb:, 306, in.), where 40 dr. were paid by some classes (Wilcken, Grundz, 189) and 8 by others (P. Tebt. 354, int.), 16 at Tentyra (Milne, Archiv, vi. 127), 12 at Oxyrhynchus (e.g. 1452. 19), 8 at Hermopolis (P. Ryl. 193. 3, n.) and Memphis (P. Flor. 12). Concerning the rate of the tax in villages much less is known. In those of the Arsinoïte nome rates of 40 dr., 22 dr. 4 obols, 20, 16, and 12 dr. occur (P. Tebt. 306. int.), but apart from the payment of 16 dr. at Nebo (1438. 18), which is not certainly Oxyrhynchite, there is no evidence yet for λαογραφία in the villages of that nome. In the Arsinoïte receipts 10 obols are usually charged for extra payments, besides a charge for σύμβολα, but no προσδιαγραφόμενα occur in l. 14 nor, probably, here.

9. $\omega \kappa(\hat{\eta}s)$: for the pig-tax, which is often mentioned in Oxyrhynchus papyri, see P. Ryl. 193. 4, n., 1516. 2, 5, 1518. 7, 1520. 6. About 1 drachma 4 obols is so common a payment that this may well have been the tax on one or two pigs. The sum lost is likely to have been about 660 dr., to judge by the relation of the extra payments to the main sum for ὑική in l. 25 (nearly $\frac{1}{9}$). Elsewhere ὑική generally occurs without extra payments (but I ob. for προσδ. on I dr. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ob. for i ι ι ι η is found in 574), and in l. 28 they are not recorded; but that may be due to inadvertence, the line having no marginal strokes against it; cf. int.

In l. 15 the occurrence of extra payments is uncertain.

10. ἐπαρου(ρίου): on this land-tax upon vine and garden land in addition to the γεωμετρία see 1283. 13, n., and P. Ryl. ii, pp. 243 sqq. In P. Brit. Mus. 195 and 374 the rate is 6 dr. 4 ob. per arura, equivalent to 2,000 copper dr., which is a common rate in Roman times elsewhere, though examples of 1,000 copper dr. per arura also occur. The payment of 3 dr. 4 ob. for $\tilde{\epsilon}\pi a\rho$ in l. 31 therefore probably represents the tax on $\frac{1}{2}$ or 1 arura. The usual rate of προσδιαγραφόμενα upon έπαρ. was $\frac{1}{13}$ (P. Ryl. ii, p. 257); here and in l. 26 it was just over $\frac{1}{12}$, while in 1, 31 no $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\delta$, are recorded and in 1, 16 the details are lost.

11. $\sigma \pi o v \delta(\hat{\eta} s)$: in ll. 17 and 32 $\sigma \pi$. Διονύ(σου), for which see 1283. 17, n., P. Ryl. ii, p. 422 and 216. 128, n. It was apparently a tax of 8 dr. per aroura on $\hat{a}\mu\pi\epsilon\lambda\hat{\omega}\nu\epsilon s$, and, though probably devoted originally to religious purposes, was paid in Roman times to the department called διοίκησις, like the έξαδραχμία Φιλαδέλφου (P. Ryl. 213. 354). προσδιαγραφόμενα upon $\sigma \pi$. Διον., which here and in l. 32 are between $\frac{1}{11}$ and $\frac{1}{12}$, are not found elsewhere, but $\pi \rho o \sigma \delta$, upon the δκτάδραχμος occur in P. Ryl. 216.

12. μερισμ(οῦ) ἐρημ(οφυλακίας): cf. ll. 22, 41, and 43. On this tax for the maintenance of desert-guards see P. Fay. p. 196, Wilcken, Grundz. 191. Numerous instances show that it was paid at the πύλαι together with the octroi-duties (cf. 1439–40), but here the use of the term μερισμός indicates that it was levied as a rate per capita (cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 256), not as in the Arsinoïte nome. Elsewhere it was generally collected by tax-farmers, not πράκτορες.

13. οὐσι(ακοῦ) φό(ρου) παραδ(είσων): cf. l. 42. The impost οὐσια(κῶν) ἐδαφῶν in l. 46 is different, being more comprehensive. ἐδάφη in papyri often means land simply (e. g. σιτικὰ ἐδάφη in 286. 22), but can include land built upon; cf. P. Tebt. i, p. 598. On οὐσιακὴ γῆ, land belonging to the patrimonium of the Emperors, see Wilcken, Grundz. 298 sqq., and cf. 1434. 20.

17. $\sigma\pi(ονδη̂s)$ Διονύ(σου): cf. l. 11, n.

18. $\delta\iota(\alpha\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\hat{\eta}s)$: cf. l. 34. διαστολ $\hat{\eta}s$ occurs at this point in B. G. U. 652. 16, and πρακτορίαs in P. Ryl. 213, where the receipts are classified under the headings διοίκησις, ίερατικά, and εἴδη, as in P. Fay. 42 (a). That distinction is ignored in 1436; for ὑική, which belongs to the ϵἴδη category in P. Ryl. 213, occurs along with λαογραφία, which belongs to the διοίκησις. Local usage no doubt varied as to the observance of this distinction; cf. 1443. 8 διοικήσεως καὶ ίερα (τικῶν) (Antacopolite nome) with e. g. 1444. 8 (Oxyrhynchite), which omits these words. πρακτορίας suggests a monthly collection rather than arrears alone, and some of the features which led the editors of P. Ryl, 213 to refer that papyrus to arrears are traceable in 1436. Here too there seems to be no regular principle of assessment from month to month, and considerable fluctuations occur, while several taxes of which a mention would be expected, e.g., χωματικόν and ἀπόμοιρα, are absent. The great variety of taxation in different nomes is well illustrated by a comparison of the lists in (1) 1436 (17 taxes), (2) P. Ryl. 213 (about 42, but not more than 20 in the same village), and (3) P. Fay. 42 (a) (about 28). (1) and (2) have only five in common, (1) and (3) two, (2) and (3) three or four. That P. Ryl. 213 is to be classed with 1436 rather than with P. Fay. 42 (a) is not improbable.

19. $M \in \chi \in i\rho$ is preferable to $M \in [\sigma \circ \rho \dot{\eta}]$: cf. int.

20. The τρίτη βαλανείων (cf. l. 39), which was distinct from the ordinary tax called βαλανικόν or ὑπὲρ βαλανείων for the maintenance of public baths (cf. 1430), was apparently a charge of ½ on the profits of privately-owned baths, and has occurred in the third century B. c. (P. Hibeh 116. int.), but in Roman papyri only in P. Ryl. 213. 474.

21. βικα(ρίου): cf. l. 40, 735. 6, where an optio in A. d. 205 gives a receipt to a Καισάρων οἰκονόμου οἰκάρως for wheat supplied to ἱππεῖς, and B. G. U. 102. 1, where a Καίσαρος οἰκ. οἰνκ. in 161 gives a receipt to the elders of Socnopaei Nesus for 443½ drachmae for φόρος προβάτων paid by them. Probably here too the vicarius was engaged in tax-collecting.

23. ὑποκ(ειμένων) ἐγλογι(στεία): on the evidence for and meaning of ὑποκείμενα (= φιλάν-θρωπα: cf. 1445. 9) in relation to the offices of epistrategus, basilicogrammateus, and comogrammateus see Martin, Épistratèges, 137 sqq. ὑποκείμενα ἐννομίου, κωμογρα(μματείας), τοπ(αρχίας?), and τοπογρα(μματείας) occur in P. Ryl. 213, and ὑποκείμενα simply, in the sense perhaps of χειρωνάξιον upon bakers, in P. Ryl. 167. 21. This impost for the support of the ἐκλογιστής (cf. 1480) is new. The eclogistae were Alexandrian officials, one for each nome, who examined the revenue-accounts; cf. Wilcken, Grundz. 208, P. Ryl. 83. 18, n. That papyrus shows that they belonged to the department of the ἴδιος λόγος, which is mentioned in the next line here.

24. $\imath \delta i o v \delta \gamma o(v) \delta i(a) \mu \cdot v()$: $\delta i(a) \mu \epsilon (\rho i \sigma \mu o \hat{v}) \text{ or } \bar{\delta} \mu \epsilon (\rho i \sigma \mu o \hat{v}) \text{ does not suit this abbreviation, which is very cursively written.}$ The stroke above the line probably represents v, so that $\delta \imath a \mu o(v \hat{\gamma} s)$ is also unsatisfactory.

31. Cf. l. 10, n.

35. This is the only known village in the Thmoisepho toparchy beginning with T and is mentioned on the recto (1435. 3). That toparchy was probably smaller than the others, and was apparently situated between Oxyrhynchus and the northern ($\kappa \acute{a}\tau \omega$) toparchy; cf. 1285. 122 and 1421. 3, n. $\tau[o\mathring{v}\acute{e}\nu\epsilon\sigma\tau\mathring{\omega}\tau\sigma\sigma$ (with $\pi\rho a(\kappa\tau\acute{o}\rho\omega\nu)$ in l. 34) is possible, in which case the sums refer to the whole toparchy; but this is less likely.

45. φό(ρου) ὑπολόγου: the ὑπόλογου, i. e. unproductive land (cf. P. Tebt. i, p. 540), sometimes yielded a reduced rent; cf. Rostowzew, Röm. Kolonat. 171 sqq. In P. Tebt. 336. 8 $\pi \rho \dot{\phi} \sigma o \delta o \iota \dot{\nu} \pi (o \lambda \dot{\phi} \gamma o \nu)$ in corn are mentioned, but $\dot{\nu} \pi (a \rho \chi \dot{\phi} \nu \tau \omega \nu)$ is there possible.

46. Cf. l. 13, n.

50. $\delta \pi a[.]\lambda[: \delta \pi o[.]a[$ can be read. The title of the impost is in any case new. $\tau \iota \mu \hat{\eta} s$ χλωρῶν occurs in 1046. 1.

1437. ACCOUNT OF HIERATIC TAXES.

About A. D. 208.

A fragment of an account of money-taxes at an unnamed village. One section (ll. 2–10) is nearly complete, and gives the totals collected for (1) ἀπόμοιρα, (2) $i\epsilon\rho\dot{\alpha}\,\gamma\hat{\eta}$, i. e. rent of temple-land, in the 16th year of a reign which can hardly be any other than that of Septimius Severus and his sons, the reigns of Marcus Aurelius and Gallienus being unsuitable on palaeographical grounds. The $a\pi \delta \mu o \iota \rho a$, originally an impost of $\frac{1}{6}$ or $\frac{1}{10}$ upon the produce of vine and garden land for the benefit of the temples, was diverted by Ptolemy Philadelphus to the cult of Arsinoë (cf. P. Rev. Laws xxiv-xxxvii). In the Roman period it belonged normally to the ἱερατικά department of taxation (P. Ryl. ii, p. 297; in the case of $\gamma \hat{\eta}$ $\lambda \iota \mu \nu \iota \tau \iota \kappa \dot{\eta}$ it was included under $\partial \iota \iota \iota (\kappa \eta \sigma \iota \varsigma)$, and as it is here coupled with $i\epsilon\rho\dot{\alpha}$ $\gamma\hat{\eta}$, the fragment perhaps belongs to a general report by $\pi\rho\dot{\alpha}\kappa\tau\sigma_{\rho}\epsilon s$ or a bank upon the taxation of one or more villages, arranged according to the usual classification of taxes under the headings διοίκησις, ίερατικά, and είδη; cf. 1436. 18, n. The payments for the two classes of ἀπόμοιρα are subdivided into those ων ἀλλαγή (cf. 1434. 36) and those ἐσονόμον, an unusual survival of Ptolemaic expressions, on which see P. Tebt. i, p. 599 and, with regard to the ἀπόμοιρα in particular, P. Hibeh 109. 5-6, n. The figures relating to vine-land are not preserved; the rate of the tax upon garden-land was approximately 121 silver drachmae per arura where an agio was charged, and 111 where copper was accepted at par. These rates are more than double those found in earlier papyri for ἀπόμοιρα upon garden-land; cf. ll. 2-3, n. The difference between the rates ων ἀλλαγή and λσονόμου was only 6 per cent.; cf. B. G. U. 915. 2 (about A. D. 100), in l. 2; but if l. 3 began $\delta[\nu]$ ἀλ(λαγή) it ought to have been uniform with ll. 4 sqq. instead of being indented. The objection to introducing a reference to προσδιαγραφόμενα here is that they do not occur in connexion with the parallel παραδ(είσων) $\delta\nu$ ἀλ(λαγή) in l. 5, and may have been mentioned for the first time in l. 8; but this is less likely; cf. the calculations of προσμετρούμενα in 1445. The rate of προσδ. in the case of ἀπόμοιρα was usually $\frac{1}{5}$ of the main sum (cf. P. Ryl. ii, p. 245), so that 4,100 dr. for προσδ. implies 20,500 dr. for ἀπόμοιρα. The customary rate of that tax was in the first and second centuries 10 dr. per arura upon ἀμπελῶνες, and 5 upon παράδεισοι, but in P. Hamb. 40–1 and 46–51 (A. D. 213–19) the rate was apparently 3,750 copper dr. (12 $\frac{1}{2}$ silver) per arura upon both classes (cf. P. Ryl. ii, p. 250, where 1437 is alluded to in n. 5), and since 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ dr. is the charge upon παράδεισοι in l. 5 the same rate may be taken for granted in l. 2 upon ἀμπελῶνες. 20,500 dr. would therefore imply 1640 arurae, and perhaps these figures should be restored in l. 2; but the entries before l. 2 may have also referred to ἀπόμοιρα, though in a different year (cf. e. g. 1436), and in that case the 4,100 dr. in l. 8 are the sum of several items, of which ll. 2–3 are only one.

^{2-3.} $\mathring{a}\mu\pi\epsilon\lambda\mathring{a}\nu\epsilon s$ are regularly contrasted with $\pi a\rho \mathring{a}\delta\epsilon\iota \sigma o\iota$ in connexion with the $\mathring{a}\pi\acute{o}\mu o\iota\rho a$. Since no $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\delta\iota a\gamma\rho a\phi\acute{o}\mu\epsilon\nu a$ occur in ll. 4-6 and this entry apparently occupied two lines, the details given in l. 8 are probably to be restored here, especially as $\mathring{a}[\mu\pi\epsilon\lambda(\acute{\omega}\nu\omega\nu)]$ is inadmissible in l. 3. $\mathring{a}[\nu \mathring{a}\lambda(\lambda a\gamma\acute{\eta})]$ or $(\mathring{a}\rho\sigma\nu\rho a\iota)$ [might be read in place of $\mathring{a}[\nu \mathring{\sigma}\dot{\nu}\nu \mathring{\sigma}\iota\nu \mathring{\sigma}\iota\alpha\phi\acute{o}(\rho\iota\sigma\nu)]$, and with either of those readings a reference to $\mathring{a}\pi\acute{\sigma}\mu\iota\iota\rho a$ (cf. l. 7) probably followed $\mathring{a}\mu\pi\epsilon\lambda(\acute{\omega}\nu\omega\nu)$

5. $\chi(a)\kappa o \hat{s}$) a: it has been sometimes supposed that the lowest denomination of the coinage at this period was the $\delta(\chi a)\kappa o \nu$ (cf. P. Ryl. 192. 10, n.); but I chalcus also occurs in ll. 8-9, so that it presumably was represented by a coin, though perhaps an old one.

8. προσδιαγραφόμενα were often connected with an agio on payments in copper (cf. Wilcken, Archiv, iv. 146), but special payments for κόλλυβος are usually associated with those for ἀπόμοιρα. The reduction of the 4,100 dr. 1 chal., which are ignored in the total in l. 10, to 3,150 dr. 2 ob. is inconsistent with the difference between the rate of the tax upon land ων ἀλλαγή and ἐσονόμου (cf. int.); and the difference here is probably due to other causes than a loss owing to the exchange. If our restoration of ll. 2-3 is correct, the διάφορα upon προσδιαγραφόμενα were mentioned there in connexion with land ων αλλαγή, where a reference to a difference on exchange would be quite intelligible; but if the διάφορα meant only that, the absence of any mention of them both in 1. 5 with $\pi a \rho a \delta (\epsilon i \sigma \omega r) \delta \nu d\lambda (\lambda a \gamma \eta)$ and in l. 7, the total for ἀπόμοιρα, is difficult to explain. It is moreover unsatisfactory to suppose that by $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\delta$. $\delta\rho$, $\Delta\rho \chi(a\lambda)$ a the writer meant not that actual sum in silver but an amount of copper nominally (i. e. at the ratio of 300:1) equivalent to it. If he had meant copper, he would have been expected to be more explicit. διάφορα is used quite vaguely of losses in P. Cairo 10371. 8 (= W. Chrest. 11 B), and the word is not in papyri elsewhere specially connected with a difference of exchange, though διαφορ(âs) μέτρ(ων) occurs in P. Cairo Maspero 67055. i. 1.

1438. LIST OF ARREARS OF TAXATION.

 17.3×11.7 cm.

Late second century.

On the recto of this fragment are parts of two columns of a taxing-return, probably written by a comogrammateus, like 1434. Only the ends of lines of Col. i survive, and of Col. ii the top is much damaged. The return, so far as can be judged, was concerned with arrears. Lines 10–13 give a list of three persons not forthcoming (?), who owed money for the trade-tax on cloth-weavers (l. 12, n.); this is followed by a section in a different hand concerning persons owing sums for various taxes, who had disappeared. The only individual concerning whom details are preserved was one of the three persons already mentioned. That Nεβώ, a new village mentioned in l. 16, was in the Oxyrhynchite nome is not certain; but an identification with Nαβοώι, a village in the ᾿Απολλωνοπολίτης Ἑπτακωμίας (e.g. P. Giessen 58. i. 29), is unlikely. Of the taxes some are familiar, such as the λαογραφία, χωματικόν, and δεσμοφυλακία, others rare, e.g. the ἐπιστολ(ικόν?), or new (e.g. l. 19 ἑξαδραχμία ὄνων, l. 18 λεμλ(), and those in ll. 21-2). The collective classification of them as ἐπικεφάλια, i.e. taxes levied per capita (l. 14, n.) is interesting, for that word has hitherto been misunderstood. ἐπικεφαλ() also occurs twice in the upper part of Col. ii, of which one line begins μέρους ἐγ(λόγον?) ὀθονιηρ[ᾶς (cf. 1443. 13, the μερισμὸς ἐνδεήματος ὀθονιηρᾶς in P. Ryl. 214. 42-3, and 1414. int.). At the ends of lines the extent of the lacuna, which is the same in ll. 11-22, is uncertain, but probably does not exceed thirteen letters, and may be much less. Lines 11 and 18-21 are compatible with a loss of only one or two letters, but in l. 14 a participle is required and abbreviation unlikely. The handwriting indicates a late second-century date.

On the verso are the ends of eleven lines, and beginnings of a few more in a second column, from a taxing-list of lands with amounts in arurae and artabae, mentioning $\kappa \alpha \tau \epsilon \xi \nu \sigma \mu (\dot{\epsilon} \nu \eta)$, for which cf. 1434. 19.

11. $dv\theta'$ (οδ): this expression indicates an alternative name; cf. Wilcken, Archiv, iii. 124, Viereck, Stud. Pal. xiii. 4, and 1145. 8 Ω_{ρ} [ος Πετεχώντος $dv\theta'$ ων Αμμόνι(ος) Πετεχών(τος).

12. λινού(φ)ικόν: for the χειρωνάξιον on λινόϋφοι cf. 1414. int.

13. ἄση(μα) perhaps has its ordinary sense 'with no distinguishing mark'.

14. ἐπικεφαλίων is neuter, not masculine; cf. B. G. U. 1. 15 ὑπὲρ ἐπικεφαλίο[ν] τῶν ὑπεραιρύντων ἱερέων, 833. 27 ἐγγνᾶται ἡμ[ᾶs] τῶ[ν] ἐπικεφαλίων, Milne, Theban Osl. 136. 1 λόγ(os) ἐξουσίας ἐπικεφαλείων Παήρι(o)s, De Ricci, C. R. Acad. des Inscr. 1905. 160 (= W. Chrest. 28) κα[ὶ ο]ὑ τὰ ἐπικεφάλια τελοῦντα, Cicero, ad Att. v. 16 audivimus nihil aliud nisi imperata ἐπικεφάλια solvere non posse. The word has generally been regarded as equivalent to ἐπικεφάλιαον, and, since ἐπικεφάλιαον is used in Egypt for poll-tax (e. g. 1157. 14), the ostracon in which ἐπικεφαλείων apparently referred to χειρωνάξιων naturally caused a difficulty; cf. P. Ryl. 191. 7, n. The present passage indicates that ἐπικεφάλιων is more general than ἐπικεφάλιαον and applies to taxes other than the poll-tax, but like it based on capita. The χωματικόν (l. 20) was known to have been a tax of this character, and there is no difficulty in regarding the δε[σμοφυλ(ακία) (l. 18), ἐπιστολ(ικόν?) (l. 19), and μερισ(μὸs) διπλ(ῶν) (l. 20), or most of the new taxes, as levied uniformly, like the poll-tax. In regard to the ἐξαδραχμία ὄνων (l. 19) the sum paid creates a difficulty in any case (cf. n.), but this impost was, as its name implies, in origin a tax of 6 drachmae either for each ass or for a licence.

18. λαογρα(φίας): this is so far the only example of a payment of this tax in an Oxyrhynchite village, if Nebo belongs to that nome; cf. int. and 1436. 8, n.

δε[σμοφυλ(ακίας): this tax is often coupled with λαογραφία and χωματικόν, e.g. in P. Ryl. 185, 191, Tebt. 354. It was for the maintenance of prison-guards; cf. the similar payments for μαγδωλοφύλακες in e. g. P. Ryl. 191. 5.

19. (ἐξαδραχμίας) ὅνω(ν): cf. l. 14, n., and 1457. int. The abbreviation consists of 5 with a stroke over it, followed by the sign for drachmae. The relation of the ἐξαδραχμία to the other known taxes upon asses is not clear. That the amount owing was less than 6 dr. can be explained by supposing that part of the tax had been paid; but the λαοχραφία and χωματικόν represent the charges for a whole year, and the difference between 6 dr. and 5 dr. 1 ob. is not likely to be connected with the exchange, for the χωματικόν includes the προσδιαγραφόμενα; cf. l. 20, n.

ἐπιστολ(ικοῦ?) (δρ.) δ[: 20 drachmae for ... ἐπιστολ() occur in B. G. U. 653. 13, a monthly return by πράκτορες, and payments for ἐπιστολ() ranging from ½ obol 2 chalci to 4 ob. are found in P. Tebt. 355, 544, 638. a is just possible here in place of δ. The termination of ἐπιστολ() has not yet occurred written out, and the meaning of the tax is unknown.

20. χωμα(τικοῦ): ωμ was written very cursively, if those letters were indeed intended, and the a is represented by a flourish: perhaps $\chi\omega(\mu a\tau \iota \kappa o\bar{\iota})$ should be read. 6 drachmae 4 obols were the usual amount of this tax, but 7 dr. $\frac{1}{2}$ ob. occur in P. Tebt. 353-4, Ryl. 194. 3 (where the δρ. are $\dot{\rho}\nu\pi a\rho a\dot{\iota}$), and higher rates in Theban ostraca. That the difference was due to the inclusion of $\pi \rho o\sigma \delta\iota a\gamma \rho a\phi \dot{\iota}\mu \epsilon r$, as suggested in P. Tebt. 353, int. was confirmed by a Strassburg ostracon (Wilcken, $\Delta r \epsilon h\dot{\iota} \tau$, iv. 146); cf. P. Ryl. 194. 3, n.

 μ ερισ(μ οῦ) διπλ($\hat{\omega}\nu$): cf. Wilcken, Ost. ii. 163-4, P. Ryl. 214. 9. Elsewhere the tax is called $\delta_{i\pi}\lambda\hat{\omega}\nu$ simply (e.g. in P. Tebt. 355), except in P. Fay. 53. 6 $\delta_{i\pi}\lambda(\hat{\omega}\nu)$?). The sums paid for it are small, often less than 1 drachma. In P. Brit. Mus. 844. 5, 7 (iii. 55) it is coupled with $\pi \sigma \tau(a\mu o) \phi \nu \lambda(a\kappa ia)$. $\delta_{i\pi}\lambda\hat{a}$ are commonly jars of wine, but the meaning here is uncertain.

21. Ἡρακλεωτικ(ῶν) ζευγ(ῶν): Ἡρακλεωτικῶν = Ἡρακλεοπολιτικῶν; cf. B. G. U. 934. 4 Ἡρα[κλε]ωτῶν πόλεωs. A Ptolemaic receipt for τὸ καθῆκον τέλος ζευγῶν πεντακόσια (which Wilcken corrects to πεντακοσίων, but may be for πεντακοσίας, sc. δραχμάς) occurs in Ost. ii. 1028; cf. i. 219. Wilcken doubtfully interprets ζεῦγος as a pair of oxen or a cart, but the commonest meaning of the word in papyri is for a pair of loaves. χιτῶνες also are measured by ζεῦγη in P. Leipzig 57. In P. Brit. Mus. 1157 (iii. 61) a tax called δραχμ(ῆς) ζευγματικῶν occurs among various imposts on land (cf. 1442. int.), being perhaps concerned with sluices, and ζευγ(μάτων) is possible here. But P. Giessen 26. 11 ἄρτω[ν Ἑρμο]υπολειτικῶν τ ἡμιχοι[νικε]ίων strongly favours the reference to bread.

22. ζευχ(ῶν) is probably to be supplied with Ἡλιοπ(ολιτικῶν); cf. the preceding note.

Possibly the lacuna at the end of l. 21 only contained a sum in obols; cf. int.

1439. CUSTOMS-RECEIPT.

5.3 × 5.3 cm.

A. D. 75.

This is the first example from Oxyrhynchus of a class of tax-receipts which is common in Arsinoïte papyri, concerning octroi-dues levied upon traffic across the western desert; cf. P. Fay. pp. 195 sqq., Wilcken, Ost. i. 354 sqq. and Archiv, ii. 134, P. Ryl. 197. int. The general character of the formula resembles that of the other first and early second century instances, in which $\pi \alpha \rho \epsilon \sigma \chi \eta \kappa \epsilon$ or $\pi \alpha \rho \eta \delta \epsilon$ is used in place of the later τετελώνηται, c. g. P. Brit. Mus. 1265; but it is noteworthy that the tax is only $\frac{1}{100}$ and is called $\delta \iota \alpha \pi \nu \lambda i o(\nu)$, a word which here appears for the first time in a papyrus, whereas the Arsinoïte receipts mention two taxes, of $\frac{1}{100}$ and $\frac{1}{50}$, which are not further specified, $\delta i \hat{\alpha} \pi \hat{\nu} \lambda \eta s$ with the name of a village occurring immediately after the verb. In the present case produce was being transported probably from the Small Oasis (where the tax was paid) to Oxyrhynchus rather than vice versa. The Small Oasis was united to the Oxyrhynchite nome for some purposes in the later Roman period; cf. 888. 8 (about A. D. 300) $\xi \xi \eta \gamma \eta \tau \hat{\eta}$ 'O $\xi \nu \rho \nu \nu \chi \chi i \tau \sigma \nu \kappa |ai$ Mikpâs 'Oá $\sigma \epsilon \omega s$, 485 (A. D. 178), where an inhabitant of the Oasis came under the jurisdiction of the Oxyrhynchite strategus. In other cases the Oasis was more distinct; cf. 1118. I (about A. D. 100), which mentions the strategus of the Small Oasis, 1498. 6 (before 299) στρα(τηγία) 'Οάσεως (sc. Μικρᾶς?), and 1210. 16 (about Λ. D. 1), where the [κω]μογρα[μματεί]ς 'Οάσεως της πρὸς τῶι ('Οξυρυγχίτηι? are distinguished from the κωμογρ. 'Οξυρυγχίτου. The absence of the usual $\pi \epsilon \nu \tau \eta \kappa \sigma \sigma \tau \eta$ $\dot{\epsilon} \dot{\epsilon} \alpha \gamma \omega \gamma \dot{\eta} s$ or $\dot{\epsilon} l \sigma \alpha \gamma \omega \gamma \dot{\eta} s$ (cf. 1440) may be due to the circumstance that none was levied upon traffic between the Oasis and the nome, and in any case a contrast is to be drawn between the έκατοστη διαπυλίου, which was levied at $\pi \dot{\nu} \lambda a \iota$ in the villages bordering on the desert, and the $\pi \epsilon \nu \tau \eta$ - κοστή on exports and imports, which was levied on traffic by water as well as land, and outside the Arsinoïte nome was collected separately, so far as is known; cf. 1440. int.

The writing is across the fibres, and, as usual, there is a seal, which is undecipherable.

A. D. 120.

A receipt, apparently issued by a tax-farmer, for the payment of the duty of levied upon produce exported, probably from the Hermopolite to the Oxyrhynchite nome (cf. l. 3, n.), by water or land. Corresponding receipts issued by $\tau \epsilon \lambda \hat{\omega} \nu a \iota \pi \epsilon \nu \tau \eta \kappa \sigma \tau \hat{\eta} s \lambda \iota (\mu \acute{\epsilon} \nu \sigma s) \Sigma \sigma \acute{\eta} \nu \eta s$ or $\tau \epsilon \lambda$. $\pi \epsilon \nu \tau$. ' $E_{\rho} \mu \omega \nu \theta (\acute{\iota} \tau \sigma \nu)$ occur on ostraca (cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 276 sqq.); the Arsinoïte $\pi \acute{\nu} \lambda \eta$ -receipts associate the $\pi \epsilon \nu \tau \eta \kappa \sigma \tau \acute{\eta}$ with a $\acute{\epsilon} \kappa \iota \iota \tau \sigma \tau \acute{\eta}$, the nature of which is at length cleared up by 1439; cf. int.

1. $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\beta(\epsilon\beta\lambda\eta\kappa\epsilon)$: cf. e.g. P. Amh. 122. I, Ryl. 200. I, 217. I. $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\beta(\delta\lambda\eta)$, which Preisigke prefers in P. Cairo 10264 (= his 29), does not so well balance $\mu\epsilon\mu\epsilon\tau(\rho\eta\tau\alpha)$, which is there used as an alternative, but it is possible here, in which case $\pi\epsilon\nu\tau\eta\kappa\sigma(\sigma)\tau(\eta\hat{s})$ is to be read. The construction of ll. 1–5 is confused, $d\rho\tau\delta\beta\alpha$ s being written as if $\epsilon\xi\delta\gamma\omega\nu$, not $\epsilon\xi\alpha\gamma\omega\gamma\eta\hat{s}$, had preceded. $d\rho\tau\delta\beta\alpha$ s cannot be the object of $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\beta(\epsilon\beta\lambda\eta\kappa\epsilon)$, as becomes clear in ll. 6-7.

3. Σιν[..]raπή: a Hermopolite village Σιναπή is known from P. Cairo Preisigke 8. 9, and 'Ιβιῶνο(s) Τσ[..]ε. [...]ρεως is perhaps identical with the Hermopolite 'Ιβιῶν Ταν ... () in P. Amh. 126. 12. Several other villages called after ibis-shrines, and generally distinguished by particular names, are known in the Hermopolite, Arsinoïte, Heracleopolite, and Apollinopolite (Heptac.) nomes, and in the Oxyrhynchite nome Ἰβιων Χύσεως, Ἰβ. Κ (1442. 2, n.), 'Ιβ. 'Αμμωνίου (492. 3), and perhaps another 'Ιβιών (158. 1, 998, 1071. 5). There is no antecedent probability that the villages in 1440 are Oxyrhynchite, though with the division $\Sigma w[..] \tau a \Pi \eta[...$ the Oxyrhynchite $\Sigma \epsilon \nu \epsilon \pi \tau a$, which was in the middle toparchy (1285. 120), might be meant. That name rather suggests the modern Sandafa on the right bank of the Bahr Yusuf opposite Oxyrhynchus; but if that was the site of Σενέπτα, the village would be expected to be more prominent in Oxyrhynchus papyri than it is, and Oxyrhynchus itself was in or bordered upon the western toparchy (cf. 1475. 22, n.). IIn is not at all a common beginning of a personal name in Egypt, and in view of the resemblances between the place-names in 1440 and known Hermopolite villages and the use in l. 1 of $\pi \rho \sigma \beta(\epsilon \beta \lambda \eta \kappa \epsilon)$, which is common in Hermopolite papyri but rare elsewhere, that nome is more likely to be meant than e.g. the Cynopolite. Σινία λαβή, a Hermopolite village found in B. G. U. 553 B. 4, cannot be read.

5. For the cultivation of $\tau \hat{\eta} \lambda_{is}$ in the Arsinoïte nome cf. P. Tebt. i, pp. 562-3. The fruit was used for unguents (P. Petrie ii. 34 (b). 9), and bread (1572. 3).

7. νομοφύλακος: whether νομο- refers to νόμος, νομός, οτ νομή (cf. πεδιοφύλαξ, αἰγιαλοφύλαξ) is not clear; cf. P. Amh. 108. 8, Ryl. 122. 7, n. This official is not found elsewhere engaged in tax-collecting, his main duties being those of a policeman (B. G. U. 759. 20 νομοφύλακα καὶ ἀρχέφοδον). The νομοφύλακες at Alexandria in P. Halle 1 were different.

1441. RECEIPT FOR CROWN-TAX.

7.7×10 cm.

A.D. 197-200.

The recto, to be published in Part xiii, contains part of a late second-century account of payments to workmen. On the verso is a receipt for $\sigma\tau\epsilon\phi aros$, i. e. aurum coronarium, giving some details concerning the mode of assessment, which in the present case was based upon land. ιδιωτική $\gamma\hat{\eta}$ was taxed at the rate of 8 drachmae per arura; upon another kind of land, probably $\beta a\sigma\iota\lambda\iota\kappa\dot{\eta}$, the rate is not stated, the payment being on account. The only other instance of this method of levying the $\sigma\tau\epsilon\phi avos$ -tax is Milne, Theban Ost. 96, where 4 dr. are paid for $\sigma\tau\epsilon\phi (av\iota\kappao\hat{v})$ $\chi\rho\dot{\eta}\mu(a\tau os)$ on $\frac{1}{6}$ arura in probably A. D. 222, a rate which is three times as high as that in 1441, if the land was in the same category. No. 95 of the same collection, a bilingual receipt for 3 obols for $\sigma\tau\epsilon\phi$. $\chi\rho\dot{\eta}\mu$ in the second century, mentions palm-trees in the demotic portion; but usually no indication of the system of assessment is given. Payments for $\sigma\tau\dot{\epsilon}\phi avos$ occur sporadically in the first and second centuries; cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 299 sqq., Milne, Archiv, vi. 131, P. Tebt. 353. 25, 640, B. G. U. 1123. 5, P. Ryl. 213. 352, 386. In the reign of Septimius Severus the mentions of it become frequent (1441, P. Brit. Mus. 474. (ii. 107), Ryl. 341. 4, B. G. U. 62), and still more so in the reign of Elagabalus (e. g. B. G. U. 452), third-century payments being generally in multiples of 4 drachmae (in 1522 200 dr. are paid in the course of a year by two persons in instalments of 40 dr.). 1441, being dated by Severus and Caracalla without Geta, belongs to the 6th–9th years. For later mentions of $\sigma\tau\dot{\epsilon}\phi avos$ see 1413. 25 sqq. (Aurelian), P. Brit. Mus. 966 (iii. 58; early fourth century), P. Fay. 20 (Julian?).

1442. RECEIPT FOR TAXES OF ONE DRACHMA AND TWO DRACHMAE.

9.7 X_13.1 cm.

A. D. 252.

The two taxes mentioned in this receipt, signed by a δεκάπρωτος (cf. 1410. int.), for a payment of 36 drachmae by a woman are identical with two taxes in P. Brit. Mus. II57 (iii. 62; probably A. D. 226–7 rather than 197–8, since a δεκάπρωτος is mentioned), abbreviated β^+ and α^+ . The first also occurs probably in I217. 3 of the same collection (iii. 61; A. D. 246; cf. Archiv, iv. 534) Bov($r\hat{\omega}r$) Κλε(ο)π(άτρας) β^+ in conjunction with the $rai_{\beta}lov$ impost (cf. 1436. 6, n.), which is also found in II57 together with τ έλεσμα ἀμπέλου and παραδείσων, all those taxes being classed as γυήσια τέλη (cf. P. Amh. 86. 10, where γυήσια δημόσια means ἀρταβιεία and ναύβιον). The tax α+ is often followed in 1157 by (ευγ(ματικών), which is written out in 1. 28 and sometimes stands by itself, but in place of a^+ (evy. in 11. 51 and 67 $\delta \rho \alpha \chi \mu$ () (evy μ . occurs. As we have already suggested (1157. 6, n.), a^+ there probably means 1 drachma, β^+ meaning 2 dr., and this view was confirmed by the evidence of 1185 that η^+ meant an 8 drachmae tax. It is tempting to connect the a^+ and β^+ with the $\epsilon \pi a \rho o \nu \rho \iota o \nu$, which was one of the regular taxes upon vine and garden land (cf. 1436. 10, n.) and is not mentioned in 1157, where its presence is expected. That impost is lost sight of after A. D. 219, and before that date land-taxes called I or 2 dr. are not known. It is noticeable that the rate of the $\epsilon \pi \alpha \rho o \nu \rho i \rho \nu$ was sometimes 1,000, sometimes 2,000, copper drachmae (equivalent to about $3\frac{1}{3}$ or $6\frac{2}{3}$ silver dr.) per arura; but 'A+ and 'B+ cannot be read in 1442 or P. Brit. Mus. 1157, and in view of the equivalence of a^+ and $\delta \rho a \chi \mu$ () it is best to expand $\delta \rho a \chi \mu(\hat{\eta} s)$ and regard this tax as an impost for ζευγματικά, whatever that may mean. The editors of P. Brit. Mus. 1157 suggest that it refers to sluices or bridges (cf. 1437. 21, n.). The β^+ tax might still be the successor of the ἐπαρούριον; that it was a tax on land is in any case probable.

On the chronology of the reign of Gallus and Volusianus, in which 1442 is dated, and concerning which the evidence of papyri and coins presents some special difficulties, see 1476. int.

14.2 × 8 cm. A. D. 227 (?).

This return, addressed to a strategus by sitologi of a village in the Antaeopolite nome (cf. P. Giessen 48. int.), concerning their receipts during two months, has lost the conclusion and about ten letters at the ends of lines; these can, however, be for the most part restored by a comparison with the similar returns by sitologi in the Oxyrhynchite nome (1525-6), Arsinoïte (B. G. U. 64, 529, 534, 585, 835, P. Fay. 86 (a), 332, Tebt. 339, 538, Strassb. 45, Thead. 28), Mendesian (P. Tebt. 340), and Apollinopolite Heptacomias (P. Giessen 63, Flor. 330); cf. also 1444. int. The papyrus was written probably in Hathur (cf. ll. 5-6) of the 7th year of a reign which must be later than that of Caracalla, since several Aurelii are mentioned, and is likely to be that of Severus Alexander (i. e. A. D. 227) rather than of Gordian (243) or the Philippi (249); a later date is unsuitable on palaeographical grounds. The report is divided into three sections dealing with (1) receipts of corn and other produce, with various extra charges upon the wheat similar to those in P. Tebt. 339 (ll. 8-12); (2) arrears (ll. 13-14); (3) a transference ordered by the basilicogrammateus (ll. 15 sqq.).

'To Aurelius Dionysius also called Ag . . ., strategus of the Antaeopolite nome, from the Aurelii, Dius, Melas and . . . and their associates, sitologi of Psinomerp . . . Summary account of payments to us for the months Thoth and Phaophi of the present 7th year, and further of payments on account of the past 6th year, as follows. For the general revenue and temple revenue, in payments 170 artabae, loans 8 art., barley . . art., lentils 70 art., vegetables 75 art., and for extra payments upon the wheat, for the two-artabae for storage $3\frac{1}{2}$ art. of wheat, for 1 per cent. upon the storage-charge $\frac{1}{24}$ art., for $\frac{1}{2}$ art. upon the storage-charge $\frac{1}{48}$ art., total for storage and percentages $3\frac{27}{48}$ art. of wheat, making with the 178 art. of wheat of the payments $181\frac{27}{48}$ art. of wheat. And for arrears of the said months there was entered a deficit of . . art. of wheat, 50 art. of barley, 30 art. of lentils, from the produce of the 6th year. And there were transferred by order of Aurelius Sarapion also called Heraclides, basilicogrammateus, . . . '

1. 'Ay : ι , λ , or ν can be read in place of γ .

4. $\Psi \iota \nu o \mu \epsilon \rho \pi$ (): or $\Psi \iota \nu o \mu \epsilon \rho$ (), if the semicircular sign simply represents abbreviation. The village is unknown. For ἐν κεφαλ(αίω) cf. e. g. P. Tebt. 339. 6.

8. διοικήσεως καὶ ἱερα(τικῶν): cf. 1437. int., P. Rylands 213. 37-8, &c., 215. 9, 16.

In P. Tebt. 339. 10 διοικήσεως καὶ οὐσιακῶν occurs in a similar context.

 $\mu\epsilon\tau(\rho\dot{\eta}\mu\alpha\tau\sigma)$ ($\dot{a}\rho\tau\dot{a}\beta\alpha$): an abbreviation or symbol of $\pi\nu\rho\sigma\dot{v}$ is inadmissible, though wheat is clearly meant (cf. l. 10). μετ(ρήματος) forms a suitable contrast with δα(νείων), i. e. returns of loans of seed-corn (cf. 1527), but in ll. 12 and 17 is abbreviated μετρημ(), and possibly that should be read here and $(a\rho\tau\dot{a}\beta a)$ omitted. $\rho o\delta$ is inadmissible, for δa has a stroke above $(a\rho\tau.)$ η is restored from 1, 12, on the supposition that 178 art, there is the sum of the two items in l. 8. Possibly / $(\pi \nu \rho.)$ ($a \rho \tau.$) $\rho o \eta$ followed, in which case there is not room for a mention of barley; but cf. l. 14.

9-11. For ἐπίμε τρου, which was suggested by Prof. Smyly, cf. P. Tebt. 92. 11, where 2 artabae per cent. are charged for it, corresponding to the (διαρταβία) ποδώμ(ατος) here. τάς before $\tau \circ \hat{v}$ $(\pi v \rho \circ \hat{v})$ is in any case superfluous, for there is a space after $(\pi v \rho \circ \hat{v})$ which renders the reading $\tau as \tau o \hat{v} (\pi v \rho)$ $\beta (a \rho \tau a \beta as)$ unsuitable; and since the a of τas seems to have been crossed through, the word was probably intended to be omitted. With the (διαρταβία) $\pi \circ \delta \omega \mu(a \tau \circ s)$ and the percentages upon it cf. the $(\pi \epsilon \nu \tau a \rho \tau a \beta i a)$, which is distinguished from the προσμετρούμενα in 1445. 3, and P. Tebt. 339. 17-18, where 3½ art. are charged for 2 έκατοσταί ὑπὲρ ποδώ(ματος) upon 176 art. of wheat, besides $\frac{1}{24}$ art. for (ἐκατοστὴ) ποδώ(ματος) and $\frac{1}{48}$ for $[(\eta\mu\iota]aρτάβιον)$ ποδ., similar charges for 2 (ἐκατοσταὶ) ποδ. and $(\eta\mu\iotaaρτάβιον)$ ποδ. also occurring in P. Tebt. 538; cf. 339. 17, n. $\pi\delta\delta\omega\mu$ a is found in the Ptolemaic period in P. Ryl. 71 and a papyrus to be published in P. Tebt. iii. The word refers to storage of $\theta\epsilon\mu$ aτa, for which cf. 1444. int. In l. 11 ($\epsilon\kappa\alpha\tau\sigma\sigma\tau\hat{\omega}\nu$) could be read in place of $\pi\rho(\sigma\sigma\mu\epsilon\tau\rho\sigma\nu\mu\epsilon\nu\omega\nu)$, the symbol being ambiguous; cf. crit. n.

12. ροη: the last figure is nearly certain; cf. l. 8, n. Possibly (ἀρτάβαι), not (ἀρτάβαις), should be read before it, and the 178 art. regarded as the sum of the items in ll. 8 and 10-11;

but the arrangement adopted in the text is preferable in view of rais.

15. μ [ετ |εβλήθησαν: ε |ν]εβλήθησαν cannot be read. Cf. P. Giessen 100. 13, n.

1444. REPORT OF A DECEMPRIMUS TO A STRATEGUS.

 32.7×12 cm.

л. р. 248-9.

On the recto of this papyrus is a return similar to 1443, but from a decemprimus (cf. 1410. int.) instead of sitologi, and giving a list of individual payments of corn in several months, not a summary; cf. B. G. U. 552-7, 743-4, and 1443. int. One column, dealing with receipts at the granary of Tanaïs, a village in the middle toparchy, is nearly complete, but was probably succeeded by other columns which are lost, referring to different villages; for on the verso is the beginning of a speech by an Attic orator (1366), which continued in the same direction as the writing on the recto. The heading of the return is by a practised hand, the list by an unskilful scribe, whose spelling and grammar are irregular. In the entries the nominative, dative, and possibly the genitive (l. 35) are employed without distinction, and the use of \(\delta \div \text{is} \) and \(\div \alpha \text{intro} \text{is} \) is confused. The numbers of the days of the month have strokes under them, and as the left-hand margin is not preserved and the column slopes away to the left, the names of the months may have been inserted, e.g. in 11. 10 and 15. The payments are under the three heads of $\pi \delta \lambda i \tau i \kappa a$, $\kappa \omega \mu \eta \tau i \kappa a$, and $\theta \epsilon \mu a$, the first two referring to rent or taxes, the third to private deposits of corn in the State granary; cf. 1525 6, 1539-41. In 1145, part of the day-book of a sitologus, $\theta()$, which is prefixed to most of the entries, is more likely to mean $\theta(\epsilon \mu a)$ than $\theta(\alpha \nu a \tau o s)$ or $\theta(\eta \sigma a \nu \rho o s)$.

I-15. 'To . . ., strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, from Aurelius Heraclides also called Dionysius, senator of Oxyrhynchus, decemprimus of the middle toparchy. Detailed list of wheat entered on the books as measured and paid through me from the produce of the present 6th year of the Marci Julii Philippi Caesars the lords Augusti, as follows. At the granary of Tanaïs the Marci Aurelii, heirs of Taapollos also called Megiste, ..; 1st, paid by Heraclides also called Serapion for city dues at Tanaïs 20 artabae; 1st, the same for deposit 20 art.; total the aforesaid. Panetbeus, priest, . . art.; 4th, paid by Ko . . . son of . . . for village dues at Tanaïs 4 art.; 1st Aurelius Achilles, Roman knight, for deposit 16 art.'

2. Δ]ιονυσί [ου βουλευτοῦ: decemprimi were generally, perhaps always, senators; cf.

Wilcken, Grundz. 217.

3-4. For κατ' ἄνδρα χειρὶστικοῦ πυροῦ cf. 1526. 4, and Wilchen, Ost. ii, Nos. 888-90, where l. $\chi \epsilon \iota (\rho \iota \sigma \tau \iota \kappa \circ \hat{v})$ rather than $\chi \epsilon \iota (\mu \epsilon \rho \iota \nu \circ \hat{v})$ before $(\pi \nu \rho \circ \hat{v})$. $\chi \epsilon \iota \rho \iota \sigma \tau \iota \kappa \circ s$ is not elsewhere applied to $\pi \nu \rho \circ s$. In 1257. 10–11 το s λόγοις της δεκαπρωτείας, τ $[o]\hat{v}$ έστιν τ $\hat{\varphi}$ χειριστικ $\hat{\varphi}$ δων $[\pi \rho] \circ \sigma \epsilon \lambda \alpha \beta \epsilon$ καὶ τῷ κατ' ἄνδρα τῷ ἐν δ[η]μοσ[ίῷ κατα]κειμένῷ, τὸ χειριστικόν seems to mean the current accounts (similar to e.g. 1145), as opposed to formal documents like 1444; cf. n. ad loc. The division of lines is not quite certain in ll. 3-6, the initial lacuna being of the same size throughout, and four or five letters being lost in l. 2.

4. διεσταλμένου δι' έμοῦ: μεμετρημένος refers to wheat actually brought to the θησαυρός, διεσταλμένος to wheat paid by deducting from an account of a deposit at the θησαυρός; cf. Preisigke, Girowesen, 88. There were usually two δεκάπρωτοι for each toparchy; cf. Wilcken, op. cit. 218. The δεκάπρωτος in 1444 was clearly concerned with only a portion of each month's receipts.

8. Μάρκοι Αὐρήλιοι: for this heading referring to the following names in general

cf. e. g. 1526. 7.

10. 2 is probably, as Smyly suggests, a degeneration of 2, i. e. $\mu \epsilon$), a common abbreviation in Ptolemaic times for $\mu\epsilon\tau\rho\rho\nu$ or $\mu\epsilon\mu\epsilon\tau\rho\eta\tau\alpha\iota$ (or $\mu\epsilon\rho\rho\sigma$). It recurs in l. 14, and possibly in l. 31, where part of a stroke is visible before $\delta\iota$ (), but since a similar stroke occurs in l. 34 before éavroîs, in both ll. 31 and 34 it probably refers to the number of the day. δι() suggests some part of διαστέλλειν (cf. l. 4, n.), but μέ(τρημα) δι(εσταλμένον) is not a very satisfactory combination, though in B. G. U. 652. 16 διαστολή hardly seems to differ from διαγραφή (cf. 1436, 18, n.). No special stress is to be laid on the dative Ηρακλείδη, which is equivalent to the nominative (cf. e.g. ll. 13 and 23), unless δι(à) 'Ηρακλείδ(ου) τ(οῦ) καὶ Σεραπίων(ος) be restored.

II. πολ(ιτικά): cf. 1419. 2, n. πολ(ιτῶν) could be read, with κωμητ(ῶν) instead of κωμητ(ικά) in ll. 19, &c., on the analogy of P. Strassb. 45. 20; but πολ(ιτικά) balances θέμα

(l. 33) better.

12. The abbreviation of $\gamma(i\nu \nu \tau a \iota)$ (cf. critical n.) is unusual, but the reading $\kappa \gamma$ (20\frac{1}{3} art.) leaves the following word unexplained, and $\gamma(i\nu)$ at $\pi(\rho\sigma\kappa)$ is very common in this class of accounts, e.g. P. Strassb. 45. 9.

13. The supposed sign for ἀρτάβαι has no trace of the dot under the horizontal line, and there is a space after it, so that the letter at the end of the line is perhaps not a figure.

18-21. $\dot{\eta}$ $a\dot{v}\dot{r}\dot{\eta}$ in ll. 19 and 21 is superfluous unless $(\dot{a}\rho\tau.)$. be restored at the end of Il. 18 and 20, and the same difficulty arises in Il. 28-9, where the retention of ή αὐτή is particularly difficult; cf. n. κληρ(ονόμος) in place of κληρ(ονόμοι) would perhaps render ή αἰτή in l. 19 easier, but in l. 21 ή αὐτή would have to refer to Tisoïs, Pachnubis being ignored, and διὰ τοῦ αὐτοῦ in l. 20 is in any case obscure. The writer is somewhat confused; cf.

22. Ίστρου: another village in the middle toparchy, like Γεμή (i. e. Ἰεμή) in l. 34; cf.

1285. 98, 108.

23. There is no apparent point in $\epsilon a \nu \tau \hat{\varphi}$, which here would have to be constructed with $\theta \hat{\epsilon} \mu(a)$, and in 1. 34 $\epsilon a \nu \tau \sigma \hat{\epsilon}$ does not suit $\tau \sigma \lambda (\nu \tau \nu \kappa \hat{a})$, so that probably in both places there is a confusion with τῷ αὐτῷ or τοῖς αὐτοῖς. Panetbeus was mentioned in l. 13.

28–9. . .]ριον must be a woman's name in the nominative or accusative, but γυνη cannot be read, and, since neither γυνε[nor Φa]ρ βa ιτιωνος suggests a place-name, γυν $\langle \dot{\eta} \rangle$ [Φa]ρ βa ιτίωνος is probably to be restored and $\dot{\eta}$ αὐτ $\dot{\eta}$ ignored; cf. ll. 18–21, n.

31. δι(): cf. l. 10, n.

34. έαυτοίς: cf. l. 23, n., and for Γεμή see l. 22, n.

35. .]ηλιτος: 'Ηλίτα occurs in B. G. U. 926. 7 and 'Ηλείτ (ov) in e. g. P. Ryl. 210. 6; but the name here is probably longer and in the nominative.

1445. REPORT ON UNPRODUCTIVE LAND.

15 × 25·3 cm.

Second century.

The recto of this papyrus contains the ends of sixteen lines of one column, the middle part of another, and a few letters from the beginnings of lines of a third, from a report on land at a village, probably addressed to a strategus by a comogrammateus, like P. Giessen 60 and Wilcken, Chrest. 341. While those two papyri, so far as they go, give lists of land available for cultivation at the village of Naboö in the Apollinopolite nome, the intelligible portion of 1445 is concerned with the rent and taxes upon land which was out of cultivation for various reasons; but 1445 may have belonged to a comprehensive report which included the information found in the Apollinopolite texts. Similar reports by a comogrammateus in the Ptolemaic period are extant in P. Tebt. 74-5. The land was divided into two main classes, δημοσία and ιδιωτική, these being subdivided into $\nu \hat{\eta} \sigma \sigma \iota$ and $\mathring{\eta} \pi \epsilon \iota \rho \sigma \varsigma$. ii. I is concerned with $\delta \iota \acute{a} \psi \iota \lambda \sigma \iota$ in the $\delta \eta \mu \sigma \sigma \iota \acute{a} \gamma \hat{\eta}$, the items being added in ll. 2-4 to various others which had preceded and probably concerned other kinds of νησοι, e.g. ποταμοφόρητοι (cf. l. 13). The προσμετρούμενα are nearly $\frac{1}{7}$, the barley being also subject to a special impost of 5 per cent. (1. 3, n.). In 1. 5 is an entry concerning a small amount of $\delta \eta \mu \sigma \sigma (a \gamma \hat{\eta})$ on the mainland, which for some unspecified reason was out of cultivation, the totals for $\delta \eta \mu o \sigma (a \gamma \hat{\eta})$ being calculated in II. 6-7. There follows in II. 8-9 the account of ίδιωτική γή, which is taxed approximately at the rate of I artaba per arura, with extra charges, including one for the comogrammateus himself (l. 9, n.). These items are added in Il. 10-12 to the figures of the $\delta \eta \mu o \sigma (a \gamma \hat{\eta})$. In I. 13 a new section begins concerning the 18th year, the preceding one referring probably to the 19th or 17th. The writing clearly indicates the second century, and the reigning Emperor is more likely to have been Hadrian or Antoninus than Trajan or Marcus. δημοσία γη on νήσοι ποταμοφόρητοι is the subject of 11. 13-14, which correspond to 11. 1-2; public land on the ἤπειρος, corresponding to that in 1. 5, is enumerated in 1. 15, after which the column breaks off. The rents were chiefly in wheat, with a small amount of barley; references to a trifling payment in a third kind of produce (l. 1, n.) have been deleted. The average rate (reckoning barley at $\frac{3}{5}$ the value of wheat; cf. P. Tebt i, p. 560) was from 5 to 6 artabae of wheat per arura, apart from extra charges.

On the verso is the conclusion of a tale in honour of Sarapis (1382).

1. [δι] αψείλων: sc. νήσων; cf. l. 13. Land which after the inundation had become too dry to be cultivated is meant; cf. 707. 23, n., Crönert, Stud. Pal. iv. 95, P. Hawara in Archiv, v. 397, where in a φοινικών the portion which was διάψιλος is distinguished from the ψιλός, which was included in the φόριμος.

[κο() [Δ]γ]: cf. l. 12, where from the context κο() appears to be the name of some kind of produce rather than an impost, though the bracketing, i. e. cancelling, of the entry in both places renders that argument uncertain. A small extra charge for κοσκινευτικόν (in P. Petrie iii. 129 abbreviated κο) is common in Ptolemaic papyri, but has not yet appeared in the Roman period, and κο(λοκυνθίνου) (cf. P. Rev. Laws xxxix. 6) or κο(ρίου) (cf. P. Tebt. 314. 17) is more probable.

8. $\delta \lambda \eta \tau \hat{\eta} \epsilon \pi i \gamma \rho a \phi \hat{\eta}$: the point of this phrase is that the $i \delta \iota \omega \tau \iota \kappa \hat{\eta}$ was not subdivided in detail like the $\delta \eta \mu \omega \sigma \iota a$ into $\nu \hat{\eta} \sigma \omega \iota$ and $\eta \pi \epsilon \iota \rho \sigma s$, probably because the amount was small. $\epsilon \pi \iota \gamma \rho a \phi \hat{\eta}$ in papyri of the Roman period is used in the wide sense of 'assessment' in connexion with many kinds of taxes upon land; cf. P. Brit. Mus. 195. 3 (P. Ryl. ii, p. 255), and a Hawara papyrus in Archiv, v. 397; but in Ptolemaic times (cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 194 sqq., P. Tebt. 5. 59, n.) it means 'impost', either in general or a particular tax upon land, coupled with $\delta \iota a \rho \tau a \beta \iota a$ in P. Tebt. 99 and $\dot{\eta} \mu \iota a \rho \tau a \beta \iota a$ in Milne, Theban Ost. 13–14. Here the $\dot{\epsilon} \pi \iota \nu \rho a \phi \dot{\eta}$ happens to be concerned with land-tax, $4\frac{27}{32}$ arrare yielding $4\frac{17}{48}$ artabae, so that some part was assessed at less than the very common rate of 1 artaba per arura (cf. 1459. 11, n.); but, as the other Roman instances show, the word applies primarily to the arurae, not to the artabae.

9. φιλ(ανθρώπου): sc. κωμογραμματεί; cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 401, Martin, Épistratèges, 143.

12. For the cancelled item cf. l. 1, n.

15. The number of the arurae was probably 2 or 3; cf. int.

1446. LIST OF CULTIVATORS OF STATE LANDS.

34·1 × 25 cm.

A.D. 161-210.

On the recto of this papyrus are parts of the last two columns of a somewhat novel kind of survey-list. The first section, ll. 1–91, gives a list of former cultivators of State lands, either $\beta \alpha \sigma \iota \lambda \iota \kappa \dot{\eta}$, $\pi \rho o \sigma \delta \delta o v$, or $i \epsilon \rho \dot{\alpha}$, at the neighbouring Arsinoïte villages of Theadelphia (Harît), Euhemeria ($Kasr\ el\ Banat$), and Polydeucia (perhaps Gebala; cf. P. Fay. p. 14), with the amounts of their holdings, the rents, and the names of the present cultivators. In l. 92 there begins a series of different and shorter entries mentioning an $\epsilon \pi i \sigma \kappa \epsilon \psi \iota s$, a strategus, several other villages in the $\Theta \epsilon \mu i \sigma \tau ov\ \mu \epsilon \rho i s$, and the 23rd year of the deified Aelius Antoninus'. Since the verso contains 1408, part of which is a copy of a proclamation issued in A. D. 210–14, the document on the recto must fall within the half century following the death of Antoninus. In Col. i about $\frac{2}{5}$ of each line is missing at the beginnings, and in Col. ii. 60–93 about the same amount at the ends; the rest of the second section (ll. 94–103, below which is a blank space) is hopelessly broken.

1446 is concerned with $\kappa \omega \nu \eta \gamma \epsilon \omega \rho \gamma i a$ (cf. l. 92), and the first section follows a regular formula, beginning with the names of one or, more frequently, two of the associates. In some cases the abbreviation $\partial \pi o($), of which the resolution is uncertain (cf. l. 84, n.), follows the first name, but $\tau \epsilon \tau \epsilon \lambda (\epsilon \nu \tau \eta \kappa \delta \tau \epsilon s)$, which regularly follows $\kappa a \lambda (\mu \epsilon \tau \delta \chi \omega)$, may qualify all the persons previously mentioned in the entry. The amounts of the holdings were generally between 30 and 60 arurae. A classification of the rents, which are remarkable on account of the unusual fractions of the artaba, is appended:

The artaba is commonly divided in the series $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{4}$ $\frac{1}{8}$ (but no further), and in the series $\frac{1}{3}$ $\frac{1}{6}$ $\frac{1}{12}$ $\frac{1}{24}$...; $\frac{1}{5}$ and $\frac{1}{10}$ also occur (cf. e.g. P. Fay. 101), but the only parallels for the irregular fractions in 1446 are in P. Tebt. 341, where the fractions $\frac{1}{15}$ $\frac{1}{20}$ $\frac{1}{45}$ (?) $\frac{1}{84}$ (?; but cf. 1446. 99), $\frac{1}{375}$ and $\frac{1}{1500}$ are found, and 986, where the fractions $\frac{1}{1.5}$ $\frac{1}{1.6}$ $\frac{1}{2.0}$ $\frac{1}{4.0}$ and $\frac{1}{7.5}$ occur, in both cases in the rents of State lands, as here. Since the corn is described in P. Tebt. as καθαρός, probably here too the presence of the curious fractions is due to a deduction for $\kappa \dot{\alpha} \theta \alpha \rho \sigma \iota s$ (cf. P. Tebt. Q2. Q, n.) or κακομετρία (cf. 1447. 6). The position occupied by the fraction $\frac{1}{12}$ in the wheat payments for $\beta \alpha \sigma \iota \lambda \iota \kappa \dot{\eta} \gamma \hat{\eta}$ at Theadelphia violates the rule that fractions are placed in a descending scale. In one place (1.55) the difficulty can be avoided by interpreting $\tau' i \beta'$ as $\frac{1}{312}$ instead of $\frac{1}{300}$ $\frac{1}{12}$, but in the other instances, in all of which $\iota'\beta'$ follows $\rho'\nu'$, it is necessary to alter $\iota'\beta'$ to e.g. $\tau'\iota'\beta'$, in order to prevent an exception to the rule. Since there are too many instances to make the hypothesis of omission probable, we prefer to suppose that the variation in this group of entries was due to the addition of an extra $\frac{1}{12}$ artaba to the rent, like that mentioned in 1. 35.

With regard to the size of the artaba, many of the small fractions, e.g. $\frac{1}{15}$ $\frac{1}{30}$ $\frac{1}{60}$ $\frac{1}{75}$ $\frac{1}{120}$ $\frac{1}{150}$ $\frac{1}{300}$ $\frac{1}{600}$, would suit an artaba of 30 choenices, others, e.g. $\frac{1}{20}$ $\frac{1}{40}$ $\frac{1}{200}$, an artaba of 40, or, in the case of $\frac{1}{500}$ and $\frac{1}{500}$, one of 25 or even 50 choenices. There is still much uncertainty concerning the normal standards of measurement in Egypt. Viedebantt (Hermes xlvii. 422 sqq., 562 sqq.) wished to abandon two points which had been generally regarded as fixed, the sizes of the chous and choenix; but his scheme of the artaba leaves out of account some important evidence of the papyri, especially P. Hibeh 85 and Leipzig 97, and the most recent evidence does not help to make the problems any easier. P. Ryl. 166 shows that the δρόμος-measure at Euhemeria in A.D. 26 contained $33\frac{1}{6}$ choenices, whereas elsewhere that measure appeared to contain 42. An unpublished Fayûm loan of A.D. 87 mentions artabae μέτρωι τετάρτωι Φιλίππωι τῶι τοῦ Μάρκου 'Αυτωνίου (the lender), which disposes of the view that the μέτρον Φιλίππου in P. Brit. Mus. 265 referred to a private person at Hermopolis called Φίλι $\pi\pi$ ος. 1640. 4 mentions an artaba μέτρ φ πρὸς έκατοστὰς δέκα, but not many of the fractions in 1446 are ἐκατοσταί.

We omit some of the entries, which contain nothing of special interest except the following rare or unknown names (all genitive and masculine except where otherwise stated): 2 Αρείτος (fem.), 2 Γερθιάνις, 2 Αημοκράτους, 2 Αραύκου, 2 Θιαθιαίθις, 2 Καλαβώτου, 2 Καλακαίλεως, 2 Νέωνος, 2 Πανηοῦτος, 2 Πανοσυεύς (nom.), 2 Πουσίμεως, 2 Σαδάλου (cf. the Oxyrhynchite village in 1426. 6), 2 Αρείου 2 τη (ικαλουμένου) 2 Σακίστ(ου?), 2 Σερώιτος, 2 Σίφωνος, 2 Ταηρακλη̂ς (nom. fem.), 2 Ταποῦτος (fem.?), 2 Τασηοῦτος (fem.), 2 Λερίστωνος (fem.)

1447. RECEIPT FOR CORN-DUES.

13·2 × 21·7 cm. A.D. 44.

This receipt, issued by a sitologus in the reign of Claudius, for corn-dues of an unspecified character is parallel to 287 and 383-4 (reign of Tiberius), and differs somewhat from the stereotyped formula of this class of receipts from the reign of Domitian onwards (cf. e.g. 1541–2). The payer was a woman, not a tax-collector as apparently in 287, and the dues were probably not rent of State lands, but land-tax on other kinds of land; cf. P. Fay. 81, int., Ryl. 202 (a), 8, n. There are three special points of interest, the $\eta\mu\epsilon\rho\alpha$ $\Sigma\epsilon\beta\alpha\sigma\tau\dot{\eta}$ (l. 2, n.), the mention of the artaba $\kappa\alpha\gamma\kappa\epsilon\lambda\lambda\phi$, which has not previously been recognized before the sixth century (l. 4, n.), and the explanation of the 4 $\epsilon\kappa\alpha\tau\sigma\sigma\tau\alpha\dot{\iota}$ added to the main payment as due to $\kappa\alpha\kappa\sigma\mu\epsilon\tau\rho\dot{\iota}\alpha$ (l. 6, n.). The writing is along the fibres of the verso, the recto having only a date in a different hand.

2. ' $\Xi\pi\epsilon i\phi$ κa [$\Sigma\epsilon$] βa ($\sigma\tau\hat{\eta}$): on the $\hat{\eta}\mu\hat{\epsilon}\rho a$ $\Sigma\epsilon$ $\beta a\sigma\tau a$ see Blumenthal, Archiv, v. 337 sqq. The evidence collected by him is supplemented by four instances in the reign of Gaius in the Rylands papyri (167. 34 Sebastus 3, 230. 13 Neus Sebastus 6, 144. 5 Pauni 2, 151. 21 Soter 20), and two in the reign of Trajan (P. Ryl. 202 (a). 4 Thoth 21, P. S. I. 40. 16 Mecheir 16), besides the present passage. Some of the days are no doubt rightly explained as monthly commemorations of the birthday or accession-day of the Emperor or his predecessors. The 21st as $\Sigma\epsilon\beta a\sigma\tau\hat{\eta}$ occurs in 288. 19 (Pauni of the 10th year of Tiberius; but the reading of the figures is uncertain) and in P. Ryl. 202 (a). 4, where it is the actual anniversary of Trajan's birthday. This number does not suit the birthdays or accession-days of Tiberius, Gaius, and Claudius, which are all accounted for in the $\hat{\eta}\mu\hat{\epsilon}\rho a$ $\Sigma\epsilon\beta a\sigma\tau a$ by other numbers (cf. Blumenthal, l. c., P. Ryl. ii, p. 142); but, especially if the reading in 288. 19 is correct, the 21st may well be connected with Augustus, who assumed that title on Jan. 16, corresponding to Tubi 21, and possibly the instance in which Thoth 21 is $\Sigma\epsilon\beta a\sigma\tau\hat{\eta}$ in Trajan's time is also to be explained as a survival of the same commemoration.

If the 21st in the Tiberius-Claudius period is not connected with Augustus, it presumably commemorated some member of the Imperial family; cf. Blumenthal, op. cit. 341.

3. Πέλα: a large village in the western toparchy; cf. 1285. 81.

4. ' $\Lambda \pi o(\lambda \lambda \omega \nu i \omega v')$ δι(à) 'Hρᾶτος: the o of απο is not much higher than usual, and ἀπὸ δι(αστολῆς) or δι(αγραφῆς) might be read, but is unsatisfactory in this context, whereas δι(ά) is expected. Possibly ἀπο(δήμου) is the word, as in 1446. 84; cf. n. 'Hρᾶτος can be either masculine or feminine.

μ ετρμ] τμ κανκέλλμ: corn described as καγκέλλμ is frequently met with in late Byzantine papyri, and Becker's explanation of it (P. Heidelb. iii, p. 32) as derived from the Persian qanqal, not the Latin cancellus, is accepted by Wilcken, Grundz. lxx. But καγκέλλμ or an adjective formed from it was probably meant by a mysterious word in P. Brit. Mus. 256 (a). 12 (ii. 99; Λ. D. 15), which has been read as κανκερλοτμ, χανκερλοτμ, χαλκερλοτμ, από χαλκειλοτμ (the preceding words being με[τρμ δημο]σίμ, and the succeeding τμ ανεντριένμ, and supposed to be an error for χαλκηλάτμ. The scribe of that papyrus is very inaccurate and elsewhere confuses μ and μ, so that καγκέλλμ with the omission of the second μ is the most satisfactory correction of the passage. In an unpublished Byzantine tax-receipt from Oxyrhynchus 226 artabae μ αγκέλλον = 200 art. καθαροῦ.

5. $\tau[\dot{\alpha}s \ \delta\epsilon\sigma]\dot{\alpha}\sigma as$: the reading is far from certain, for η is slightly preferable to v and after σ is a stroke which is not elsewhere employed by the writer in forming a, though it is hardly long enough for ι , and may represent merely a false start. $\eta\sigma\iota as$ suggests only $\gamma\nu\eta\sigma\iota as$, for which $\gamma\nu\eta\sigma\iota a \ \delta\eta\mu\delta\sigma\iota a$ in P. Amh. 86. 10 (cf. 1409. 20, n.) is not a very close parallel. $\epsilon\kappa a\tau\sigma\sigma\tau \dot{\alpha}s \ \tau\epsilon\sigma\sigma\sigma\rho as$ was not written, but, unless a substantive can be read in 1. 5, seems to have been meant, the error being due to the preceding genitive.

6. For κακομετρία the lexica quote only Eustathius, who uses it for 'bad metre'; it has not occurred previously in papyri, though additional ἐκατοσταί are found frequently for adulteration (708) or unspecified reasons (e. g. 1443. 10). Α μέτρον πρὸς ἐκατοστὰς δέκα occurs in 1640. 5.

1448. LIST OF ARREARS OF CLOTHING.

25.3 × 17 cm.

About 318.

This list of arrears of clothing owed by a number of villages was found with 1424-5 and is of approximately the same date. It is remarkable for the minute fractions of the $\sigma\tau\iota\chi\acute{a}\rho\iota\alpha$ and $\pi\alpha\lambda\lambda\acute{a}$, which are divided, like the artaba (cf. 1446. int.), in the two series $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{1}{4}$ $\frac{1}{8}$ and $\frac{1}{3}$ $\frac{1}{6}$ $\frac{1}{12}$ $\frac{1}{24}$ $\frac{1}{48}$. An instance of the division of $\chi\lambda a\mu\nu\acute{o}\acute{o}\epsilon$ s into similar fractions, which had occurred in P. Brit. Mus. 1259. verso (iii. 239), now loses its singularity. Of the seventeen villages mentioned the first four, which were formerly in the Thmoisepho toparchy (cf. 1285. 122 sqq.), are known from P. Giessen 115. ii to have been in the 8th pagus at this period, and Dositheou (l. 8), which was formerly in the lower toparchy (1285. 139), was in the same pagus (1425. 6), while Souis (l. 7) occurs next to Dositheou in 1285, and Tholthis (l. 6) was formerly in either the Thmoisepho or the lower toparchy (1285. 123, 141). The ten villages from l. 10 onwards are, with one or two exceptions (II. 10, 12, nn.), new, and probably smaller than the first seven, two of them being called $\epsilon \pi o i \kappa \iota a$ and one (I. 15) a $\chi \omega \rho i \sigma v$, a term which after the fourth century tends to supersede $\kappa \omega \mu \eta$; cf. P. Tebt. ii, p. 365. The whole list is likely to refer to the 8th pagus; cf. 1425. 4, n. Some marginal notes have been inserted, referring to partial payments of the arrears. On the collection of clothing for military purposes in the Byzantine period see P. Leipzig 59-60, Goodspeed, Class. Philol. 10 (Preisigke, S. B. 4421), 1136, 1428, and for the earlier $\delta \theta \sigma v \eta \rho \dot{\alpha}$ 1414. int.

V. DECLARATIONS TO OFFICIALS.

1449. RETURN OF TEMPLE PROPERTY.

Fr. 1 20.6 × 7.6 cm. Fr. 4 19.4 × 10 cm. A.D. 213-17.

This elaborate return of dedicated offerings, drawn up by the priests of various temples at Oxyrhynchus and in the Oxyrhynchite and Cynopolite nomes, is parallel to parts of B. G. U. 590 + 162 (W. Chrest. 91), 338, 387, 488, 590, 1023, P. Rainer 8 ap. Wessely, Karanis 59, Brit. Mus. 353 (ii. 112), all from the Arsinoïte nome, P. Ryl. 110 (Hermopolis), and 521, a list of temple property at an Oxyrhynchite village or possibly the metropolis. B. G. U. 781, which has been sometimes regarded as a similar list, probably refers to a private deposit; cf. Wilcken, Archiv, vi. 302. The deities worshipped at the shrines in question were in all Zeus, Hera, Atargatis Bethennun [is?], Core, Dionysus, Apollo, and Neotera (ll. 1-2; cf. 1-5, nn.), other references to these cults at Oxyrhynchus being scarce. Probably all the six temples at Oxyrhynchus enumerated in ll. 3-6 were much less important than the two chief ones, the Serapeum and Thoëreum, both of which gave their names to ἄμφοδα and appear in 1453 and in the list of the city buildings in 43. verso. Another probably minor temple, mentioned incidentally in 1.5, was the Demetreum. The return, like B. G. U. 387, was unaddressed, and may have been intended for the strategus or basilicogrammateus, to one or both of whom the annual γραφαί ἱερέων καὶ χειρισμοῦ, exemplified by P. Tebt. 298 and the Berlin and Vienna papyri mentioned above, were sent in the first and second centuries. The address to those officials was often omitted in Oxyrhynchite ἀπογραφαί (e.g. 1109 and 1548). The date, however, of 1449 (Hathur of the 22nd-25th year of Caracalla; cf. ll. 7, n., and 53) is subsequent to the establishment of senates, which became largely responsible for the temple administration, and one of the third-century parallels, P. Ryl. 110 (A.D. 259), was addressed to an ἀρχιπροφήτης of Alexandria. A contrast also seems to be drawn in l. 16 between 1449 and ordinary γραφαί, and since 1449 was certainly confined, like P. Ryl. 110, to a list of the $\chi \epsilon \iota \rho \iota \sigma \mu \delta s$, the question which official was addressed remains uncertain. The omission is in any case to be connected with the fact that 1449 is a rough draft or copy, as is clearly shown by the frequent abbreviations and abrupt conclusion, without any signatures or date.

The four extant fragments do not join. Frs. 1 and 2, which come from the beginning, are separated by a gap, of which the size can only be determined with any approach to certainty in the case of ll. I and 7-9. Line 7 requires at least 27 letters between $\partial v a \theta \eta \mu \dot{a} \tau(\omega v)$ and v. A much longer restoration, inserting Αὐτοκράτορος Καίσαρος or τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν Αὐτοκράτορος, as in 11. 40 sqq., before Μάρκου, would by itself be quite as satisfactory, but does not suit the corresponding lacunae in ll. 8 (of the same size) and 9 (5 letters longer), where the obvious restorations yield 24 and 32 letters respectively, and is only compatible with the corresponding lacuna in l. 1 (3 letters shorter) on the supposition that both the priest whose name is lost and his father had double names. The arrangement of Frs. 1 and 2 adopted in the text is therefore more probable. The ends of lines are also missing, but the certain restoration at the end of 1. 8 serves to fix the approximate length of the lacunae in the other lines, though there may have been some irregularities; cf. l. 7, n. In l. 12 there is a change of hand, the second being slightly smaller than the first. Fr. 4 consists of the first halves of lines belonging to the last column of the document, there being a blank space below 1. 65. Whether this column immediately followed the first is uncertain. The list of temples in ll. 3-7 does not correspond exactly to the later details, so far as these are preserved. Lines 8-11, and probably ll. 11-31 also (cf. l. 11, n.), refer to a temple of Neotera which seems to have been mentioned at the beginning of 1. 5, unless it is the temple of Apollo and Neotera in l. 4; ll. 40-1 apparently refer to one of the other five Oxyrhynchus temples, and ll. 42-53 to the Cynopolite village-temple mentioned in ll. 6-7 (cf. l. 42, n.); but ll. 54-65 are concerned with temples at various villages of the Oxyrhynchite nome which were not mentioned in Il. 3-7. There is not room in Col. i, of which the height is uncertain, but which is not likely to have exceeded 50 lines, for the account of the four remaining temples of Oxyrhynchus, if the dedications were at all numerous like those in the temple of Neotera; but there are indications that the account of the temple to which ll. 40-1 refer occupied only 21 lines (1. 40, n.), and if the other four were also dealt with briefly or partly omitted, there were only two columns in all. Hence we have provisionally assigned Fr. 3, which contains the ends of 8 lines, to the lower part of Col. i. The few details preserved in it suggest that it refers to the same temple as II. 8-31, for the objects described previously do not recur in it, and there is no trace of a mention of a new temple. But since no combination of Fr. 3 with ll. 8-31 is practicable, the list of objects at the temple of Neotera, if it continued up to 1. 39 or beyond, leaves only about 10 lines in Col. i available for the four temples not accounted for; and if one or more columns intervened between Cols. i and ii, Fr. 3 may equally well belong to the interval.

The unusually detailed list of offerings, including the donors' names where known (cf. 1l. 9-12), though much obscured by lacunae, presents a number of points of interest. The first place in each section referring to a particular temple is given to an εἰκονίδιον (e. g. 11. 8, 42, 54, 63) of the reigning Emperor with his parents: the material of these triads is not stated but is likely to have been stone. There were also numerous statues or statuettes of gods, a Eóavov of Demeter partly in Parian marble, partly in wood (ll. 10-11), one of Neotera in bronze (1. 12), and another affixed to an uncertain object (1. 13), and one of an uncertain deity, partly in marble (l. 14), figures of Typhon (l. 14) and Harpocrates (l. 24), a gold statuette of Aphrodite (1. 33?), ἀνδριαντάρια of Zeus and Hera (1. 58) and perhaps of Demeter (l. 49, n.), silver figures of Core (l. 44) and apparently Bubastis (l. 19) on lamps, and a rudder representing Neotera (l. 14?). The other offerings, classified according to their materials, comprise (1) gold, lamps (ll. 15, 48), armlets, and finger-rings (l. 16; cf. l. 12), spoons and pen (l. 17), pendant (στραγγαλίς, l. 23; cf. l. 18, n.), 2 κρίκοι (l. 24), crescent (μηνίσκιον, l. 26; cf. l. 18, n.) and other objects (ll. 17, 19 (with a προσκυνητήριου?), 21, 25); (2) silver, pens (l. 17), armlets of different kinds, crescent and pendant (l. 18), mirror (l. 19), lamps (ll. 19, 22; cf. 1. 44), altar (l. 49), besides uncertain objects (ll. 22-3); (3) bronse, mirror (ll. 21-2, 56), spoons (l. 30), lamps (ll. 35-8), altar (l. 47), trencher (μαζονόμος, ll. 58, 60), uncertain (l. 29); (4) stone, Iacchus-shrine (l. 46) and other objects (ll. 14, 20, 24); (5) wood, probably a table (1.23), couch (1.41), part of a lamp (1.44); (6) clothing, green robe (l. 13), cloaks (παλλίολον, ll. 32, 39), ἱμάτια (l. 51), coverings (περίστρωμα, 11. 55, 62); (7) miscellaneous, pearl necklaces, one containing 52 pearls (l. 25), a pair of κορδίκια (l. 53, n.), and a daily supply of oil (l. 65). Many of these objects are not found in the other lists of temple property; cf. Otto, Priester und Tempel, i. 327 sqq.

1. 'Αχι λλίδ(os): cf. e.g. 1494. 12.

 \mathring{a} μφοτέρων [.....]: the lost title was probably προφητῶν (cf. B. G. U. 488. 3) or στολιστών (cf. P. Tebt. 298. 3) or πρεσβυτ(έρων) (cf. B. G. U. 387. i. 7).

 $\Delta[\iota \acute{o}s \ \kappa \tau \lambda.: cf. ll. 5-6.$ Zeus probably = Ammon; but with whom Hera was identified is uncertain; cf. 483. 3 $\iota \acute{e}p \acute{e}\omega s \Delta \iota \acute{o}s \kappa a \iota \Halpha s \kappa a \iota \iota$, and 1265. 7-11 quoted in l. 2, n.

For Atargatis cf. l. 5, n.

2. $\kappa\acute{o}\rho\eta s$: cf. ll. 5, 44, and 52. A temple of Demeter and Core in the Arsinoïte nome is known from P. Petrie 97. 5, and they are mentioned in a stele found at Philadelphia in the same nome (Lefebvre, Annales, xiii. 99). In the Metelite nome Core was identified with Isis (1380. 72).

Διονύσου: cf. l. 46 Ίαχχάριον. Α Διονυσείον at Oxyrhynchus occurs in 908. 8, and a τόπος Διονύσου τεχνιτῶν in the ἄμφοδον Δρόμου Θοήριδος (cf. l. 4) in 171. 10 (ii, p. 208). The tax called σπονδη Διονύσου was not connected only with Oxyrhynchus; cf. 1283. 17, n.

'Απόλλων[ο]ς: i. e. Horus. Cf. 984 πασ(τοφόρος) 'Απολλ. θ εοῦ μεγίσ(του) οἰκῶν ἐν παστο-φορίω τοῦ αὐτο(ῦ) ἱερο(ῦ).

καὶ Νεωτ(έρας): cf. l. 4, where she is apparently mentioned in conjunction with Apollo. and I. 8, where a temple of her alone occurs. This was presumably different from the temple in l. 4, and the only suitable place for it in ll. 3-6 is in l. 5; for, though $\tau \hat{\eta}|_{S}$ Νεωτ (έρας) might be read in place of το ν διονύσου in l. 3 with Διον (ύσου) for Νεωτ (έρας) in l. 5 or και Διονύσου after 'Απόλλωνος in l. 4, the order of the temples in ll. 3-6 would then bear no relation to that of the list of gods in ll. 1-2. With the restorations adopted in the text the temples of the first four gods are accounted for in ll. 5-6, those of the last three in ll. 3-5, but inside each group the order corresponds to that in ll. 1-2. To suppose that the temple described at the end of l. 4 refers to $\kappa a i N \epsilon \omega \tau (i \rho a s)$ alone is unsatisfactory, for the preceding words θεοῦ μεγλάλου ἀγαθοῦ δαίμονος suit Apollo, not the name of an ἄμφοδον. A dedication Νεωτέρα θεά μεγίστη occurs in a Dendera inscription of Trajan's reign, C. I. G. 4716 (c). 3-4; cf. ll. 20-1 φροντιστοῦ ἱεροῦ ᾿Αφροδίτης θεῶς νεωτέρας. Franz supposes that Plotina, the wife of Trajan, is identified with Aphrodite, but it is not clear that a subordinate shrine rather than the chief temple of Dendera is indicated. Cleopatra is called $\theta \epsilon \hat{\alpha}$ νεωτέρα upon coins, and Νεωτέρα in 1449 no doubt means Hathor-Aphrodite, though 'A $\phi_{\rho\rho}$? $\delta\epsilon i\tau(\eta)$ occurs in l. 33 and $\nu\epsilon a$ is a special title of Isis in 1380. 85.

καὶ τῶν συννάων θε]ῶν κτλ.: cf. 1265. 7–1 I (Λ. D. 336) ἱερέως ἱεροῦ Διὸς καὶ Ἦρας καὶ τῶν συν. θ. μεγίστων [κα]ὶ κωμαστοῦ θίων προτομῶν καὶ νίκης αὐτῶν προα(γ)ούσης. The θεῖαι προτομαί there refer to the Emperor and his family, as here, and the temple was one of the three temples of Zeus and Hera in ll. 5–6. θεῶν μεγίστ ων can be read for θε ἱων, if Νεωτέρας and συννάων were abbreviated.

3.]νων is probably the termination of a participle -μϵ]νων. θϵοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ Σϵουήρου occurs regularly in Col. ii, where Julia Domna is placed third instead of second and called κυρία Σϵβαστή, as in l. 9, where she again comes second. The omission of πατρὸς αὐτοῦ is possible here, but hardly in l. 9. With θϵο[ῦ Σϵουήρου the lacuna can be filled by τῶν ὑπογϵγραμμϵ]νων. For the association of Caracalla's parents with him cf. Preisigke, S.B. 4275.

4. ᾿Απόλλωνος . [: κ[aί might be read, but the insertion of another male deity at this point is not wanted; cf. l. 2, n.

 $\Delta \eta \mu \eta \tau \rho(\epsilon lov)$: cf. 1485. 3. Several temples of Demeter in the Arsinoïte nome are known (cf. Otto, op. cit. ii. 379), her cult being sometimes associated with that of Core; cf.

ll. 2, 49, nn. and 10-11.

'Αταργάτ[ιδ os Βεθεννύν [ιδ(os)? καὶ Κόρης: Atargatis was a Semitic deity, a form of Astarte, worshipped in Syria and sometimes identified with Isis (1380. 100, n.). This is the first definite mention of her cult in Egypt, but she was presumably meant by θ εὰ Συρία in P. Magd. 2 (cf. Strack, Archiv, ii. 547). Βεθεννύν [ιδ(os) (or -ν[ηs) appears to be a Semitic compound of beth and another word. A village called Bηθενναβρίς near Caesarea occurs in Joseph, Bell. Jud. iv. 7. 4. For Core cf. l. 2, n.

6. Δρόμ(ου) Γυμνα(σίου): the context suggests that the Gymnasium was in the southwestern part of the city (l. 5); in 43. verso it occurs in iv. 6, between buildings in the south (iii. 17 νοτινή πύλη and 19 νοτ. ἐκκλησία) and places on the river-bank, i. e. east (iv. 24 Καί(σα)ρος βαλανείου, v. 1 μικρὸν Νειλομέτριου), the northern and western parts of the city apparently occupying Cols. i-ii.

Πατεμίτ λα[ὑρα]s: the lacuna is rather narrow for $v\rho a$, but Πατεμίτ as the name of a street is confirmed by the existence of a Πατεμίτηs toparchy in the Hermopolite nome (e.g. P. Ryl. 123. 12). For the termination cf. P. Amh. 35. 21 ἐπὶ τοῦ Πρεμίτ at Socnopaei Nesus.

7. The year cannot be earlier than the 22nd owing to the occurrence of the title Germanicus Maximus; cf. 1406. int. For the omission of Λετοκράτορος Καίσαρος cf. int. and e.g. B. G. U. 534. 19. The omission of Εὐτυχοῦς, which is uniformly found elsewhere in 1449, is common. The insertion of it would make this line project considerably, but in Col. ii the lacunae at the ends of lines range from 52 letters (l. 40) to 65 (l. 59), though commencing at the same point.

8. For Nεωτ(έραs) cf. l. 2, n., and for εἰκονίδιον (a new diminutive) int. p. 136. There would be room after εἰκον, for an abbreviated adjective, e. g. $\lambda i\theta(woo)$, but elsewhere in 1449 εἰκονίδιον is found without an epithet.

9–10. For [καὶ τοῦ θεοῦ κτλ.: cf. l. 3, n. The clauses ἐπι κειμε[ν]ων... ἱερῷ εἶναι seem to be awkwardly placed after the enumeration of objects had begun, and the grammar is defective; cf. the crit. nn. γινώσκειν appears to be governed by δηλοῦμεν understood. A parallel phrase γεν]ομένων ἀγνώστων ἡμεῖν occurred in B. G. U. 590. 6. τὸ κα[τ' (ἄνδρα) or τοῖς are less probable readings than τούς.

10–11. Δήμητρος θ_i εᾶς μεγίστ (ηs) : cf. ll. 49 and 5, 14, nn. For οὖ ἡ προτομὴ] Παρίνη cf. l. 14 and B. G. U. 387. ii. 3, where a similar phrase is indicated by αἱ προτομαί [following ανδρεαντάρειο ν (1. ανδρεαντάρεια [?).

11. καὶ ἐπὶ [..... ἄλλων is rather short for the lacuna, and the construction is not clear. κατὰ τὴν might be substituted for ἐκ τῆς in spite of the following κατ᾽ εἰχ(ἡν), and possibly καὶ ἐπὶ ... is connected with the preceding clause instead of being, as we suppose, a heading corresponding to ἐπι]κειμέ[ν]ων ἐπί τινων ἀναθημάτ(ων) and ἐπὶ ζὰρ ἄλλων in ll. 9-10. The offerings enumerated in ll. 12-14 in any case seem to belong to the same temple as those in ll. 8-11, and that καὶ ἐπὶ ... is contrasted with τῶν μὲν ἐν τῷ τῆς Νεωτ(έρας) ἱερ[ῷ in l. 8 is unlikely.

12. $\Phi \rho[a] \gamma \epsilon_i [o] vs(?)$: ' $\Omega \rho[i] \gamma \epsilon_i [o] vs$ cannot be read.

13. $\beta \epsilon [\lambda \epsilon \nu \kappa \omega \tau \nu [s]]$: there is hardly room for $[\nu]$ after τo . No word ending -γκωτος seems to be known, but $\beta \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \nu \kappa \omega \theta \iota a$ καὶ σηστρίδια ωσὶ εἰς ξυλαμήν occur in P. Fay. 118. 20, where instruments of some kind appear to be meant.

 $a\pi\omega\theta$. [: $a\pi\omega\theta\eta[\kappa\eta$, 'casket' (beginning a new entry), is possible, but the vestige of a letter after θ rather suggests a or ϵ .

14. $\tau \hat{\eta} s$ [Ne $\omega \tau (\acute{e}\rho as)$: cf. ll. 8, 13, and 2, n. Representations of deities are often found as the $\pi a \rho \acute{a} \sigma \eta \mu a$ of boats, i. e. on the prow, but not elsewhere in papyri upon the rudder. $\xi \acute{e} a \nu \alpha \nu \Delta \acute{\eta} \mu \eta \tau \rho \sigma s$ $\theta \acute{e} a s$ $\mu \epsilon \gamma \acute{e} \sigma \tau \eta s$ (cf. ll. 10–11, n.) just fills the space before $o | \hat{v} \rangle$, which is more probable than $\hat{\eta} | s \rangle$ [$e \check{v} | \pi \lambda a \sigma \tau (a)$ (cf. l. 17 $e \check{v} \tau \sigma (\mu a)$)) is possible instead of $| \acute{e} \pi \iota \rangle \pi \lambda a \sigma \tau (a)$.

Τυφών: i.e. Set, who in ancient times was the chief deity of the Oxyrhynchite nome.

15. κατὰ μέ(σον): cf. l. 48.

 μ]εστ(οί): cf. ll. 20, 22 (λαμπάς), 23 and 25 (in both cases followed by θ εῖος, as here), 31, 35 (λύχνος), P. Hamb. 23. 34 μ εστὰ ἀγγῖα, and n.

16. κατὰ χρόνο(ν) γρα(φων): cf. int. p. 134.

17. $\mu \dot{\nu} \sigma \tau(\rho a)$: cf. l. 30 and 921. 25. $\mu \epsilon \sigma \tau(a)$ (cf. l. 15, n.) is inadmissible.

opal: cf. ll. 23 and 18, n. It seems to be a new substantive.

ἀργυροπ(οιητο): or ἀργυρόπ(ους), since the object contained 2 τέταρται of gold.

στραν $\gamma(a\lambda is)$: cf. l. 23 and LXX Judges viii. 26. of may well be either a repetition of $\delta[\lambda \kappa \eta s \text{ or } o\rho a \dots (cf. l. 17, n.)]$.

vert \rho[\gamma(v\rho): \chi] \rho(v\sigma)$ might be read, but the weights in drachmae and obols appear to be silver, not gold; cf. ll. 19-20.

19. πρ(οσ)κυνη[τηρίω]: this word is found elsewhere only in Byzantine writers. Cf.

βωμός in l. 47.

Bovβaσ[τ] : this is more likely to refer to the goddess Bubastis than to be an adjective referring to the town of Bubastus (cf. the lamp σὺν ζωδίω Κόρης ἀργυρῷ in l. 44); but, since the preceding letter is not a figure, Boύβαστ[ις as a distinct item is unsatisfactory. λ , μ , or π can be read for the κ of κ aλal, κ for the first β and ν for σ in Bovβaσ[τ.

20. στα]θμόν: cf. l. 16. μύστ(ρα) (cf. l. 17, n.) could be read for μεστ(ά). For χυτ(ὸν) λίθ(ινον) κτλ. cf. l. 24. Neither that passage nor l. 23 favours ἐνκεκολλημ(ένον) for ἐν κεκ. here.

For a number not expressed by a figure cf. 1, 63.

21–2. κάτοπτρον | χ]αλκ(οῦν) νεωτερ[ικ(όν): cf. l. 56, and for νεώτερα, 'new style', contrasted with ἀρχαῖα in similar lists Otto, ορ. cił. i. 330. νεωτερικ(όs) may however be parallel to παιδικόs (ll. 16, 19).

24. δυσκόλλητος is known, but not εὐκόλλητος.

25. For $\theta[\hat{\epsilon ios}$ following $\mu \epsilon \sigma \tau \dot{os}$ cf. l. 15, n. $\pi \epsilon \iota \nu \dot{\omega} \tau \iota o \nu$ is not attested, but a pearl necklace suits the context. For $\kappa \alpha \tau[\hat{\alpha} \ \mu \dot{\epsilon} \sigma o \nu \ cf. \ ll.$ 15, 48.

26. Perhaps τρ άπεζα; cf. l. 23.

28. Possibly κειβωτός (cf. l. 15 τὰ ἐν γλωσσ[οκόμω), but κεφ[can be read.

35. $\lambda \hat{\nu}] \chi \nu o s \mu \epsilon \sigma \tau \hat{\nu}(s)$: cf. ll. 36, 38, and 15, n. The χ is, however, very doubtful, the traces rather suggesting]. $\iota \nu o s$.

40. The last word of the preceding column was no doubt εἰκονείδιον, and probably this was the first entry under a new temple; cf. int.

42. τοῦ Κυνοπ(ολίτου): the Cynopolite village mentioned in ll. 6-7 is expected to be identical with this one, but had a temple of Zeus and Hera, whereas this village, to which all ll. 42-53 apparently refer, had a temple of Core (l. 52; cf. the ζώδιου Κόρηs in l. 44), and the Ἰαχχάριου in l. 46 suggests that Dionysus was also worshipped there; cf. int. On the combination of the Cynopolite with the Oxyrhynchite nome for administrative purposes see 1453. 13, n.

46. $\theta \epsilon_{00} \nu$ is more probably the termination of the patronymic of the dedicator (e.g.

Ἰαχχάριον: the diminutive seems to be new. Cf. Διονύσου in l. 2.

49. $[\hat{a}]_{\nu}a\tau\epsilon\theta(\epsilon is)$: $\beta\omega\mu\delta s$ probably preceded; cf. $\delta\lambda(\lambda\delta s)$ $\beta\omega\mu(\delta s)$, which might, however, refer back to l. 47. The weight (1 lb. $5\frac{1}{2}$ oz. of silver) is slightly less than that of the silver $\beta\omega\mu\delta s$ in B.G. U. 781, vi. I (1 lb. 9 oz. and a fraction). For $\Delta\eta\mu\eta\tau\rho\delta s$ cf. l. 10.

50. For σεση(μμεν) cf. l. 51 and ll. 56, 62, where it refers to a περίστρωμα, which is

52. ἐν ἱερῷ τῆς Κόρης: cf. l. 42, n.

53. κορδικίων ζεῦγος: κορδίκιον only occurs elsewhere in P. Brit. Mus. 429. 11 (ii. 314; about A.D. 350), where one κορδ. is valued at 5 talents. The meaning is unknown. Wessely (Wiener Stud. xxiv. 134) supposed that it was a Latin word Graecized.

54. $[\kappa]\omega\mu(\hat{\omega}\nu)$: cf. int. Sinaru was a village in the lower toparchy (1285. 134).

55–6. For περίστρωμα | cf. l. 62. περιστρώματα were a speciality of Oxyrhynchus, as appears from B. G. U. 781. 10 περιστρ. Οξυρυγχιτικ(à) β. φοινίκινος, which generally refers to palm-oil or wine, is here apparently used of colour.

56. δίπ(τυχον): cf. B. G. U. 717. 12 κάτοπτρον δίπτυχον.

Τα[: the choice lies between Τακόνα, Ταλαώ (both in the lower toparchy; 1285. 130-1), Τανάεως, Τακολκίλεως (both middle top.; 1285. 99, 113), Τααμπέμου, Ταμπέτι, and Ταρουθίνου (all eastern top.; 1285. 88, 612, 384).

58. μαζονόμ(os): cf. l. 60. For ἀνδριαντάρια cf. ll. 10-11, n. Before εἰκονείδιον a village-name probably occurred; cf. ll. 42, 54 and int.

60. κα[ί: cf. l. 46. No Oxyrhynchite village beginning Ka- is known. For εἰκονείδιον, preceded by a village-name, cf. l. 58, n.

62. περίστρωμα: cf. ll. 55–6, n. Κερκεθύρις was in the western toparchy (1285. 70). The village Κερκ[ε... here coupled with it was in a different toparchy, if it was Κερκεμούνις (upper top.; 1285. 66), or Κερκεύρα or Κερκευρώσις (both in the middle top. and perhaps identical; cf. 1285. 23 and 116). But it is more likely to be an unknown village near Κερκεθύρις.

64-5. This entry concerning oil is of a different character from the rest of the list, which was perhaps left unfinished; cf. int. εξ s λυχναψίαν is not improbable; cf. 1453. 4, n.

1450. ESTIMATE OF REPAIRING A PUBLIC BUILDING.

18 × 11.4 cm.

A. D. 249-50.

This detailed estimate of the cost of roofing (l. 8 ἐπιστέγωσιs), plastering, and otherwise repairing a public building, addressed probably to representatives of the senate by a master-builder or carpenter (l. 27, n.), would, if more complete, have thrown some valuable light on the building-trade, concerning which not much is known (cf. Reil, Beiträge, 25 sqq.); but owing to the loss of both the beginning of the document and more than half of each line, as appears from the date-formula at the end, little reconstruction of the fragment is practicable in the absence of a parallel. The only other papyri which are of much assistance with regard to the technical terms are C. P. Herm. 127, verso, a fragmentary nearly contemporary account of expenses for public buildings at Hermopolis, and P. Stud. Pal. x. 259 (6th cent.), a builder's account; cf. also the Ptolemaic contracts for public works in P. Petrie iii. 43. The building in 1450 had a room or court for playing ball (ll. 5, 7 σφαιριστήριον, which has not occurred previously in papyri) and apparently five furnaces (l. 5, n.), and is therefore likely to have been a gymnasium or, better, a public bath; cf. l. 10, n., and 54, an application to a gymnasiarch and exegetes in A. D. 201 for a payment on account of repairs at the baths of Hadrian. Lines I–II give details of the estimated costs of various items, which were apparently summed up in l. 12; ll. 14–24 provide for possible modifications in the estimate owing to various contingencies connected with the materials or the workmen, concluding with a reference to the supervision of the work.

1. $\epsilon \mu \beta a \delta i (\kappa(\hat{\omega}\nu) \pi \eta \chi(\hat{\omega}\nu)$: 'square cubits'; cf. 669. 6.

4. ὀστράκων διὰ πηλοῦ: cf. πηλοποιία in C. P. Herm. 127. verso Fr. 4. The use of potsherds in making mortar was an ancient Egyptian custom; cf. Erman, Life in Ancient Egypt 410.

κονίας: there was apparently a blank space before this word, as occurs after ἐπιστεγώσεως (l. 8), ἔλαττον (ll. 11, 12), χν (l. 11), ἐγένετο (l. 13), μισθοίς (l. 14). On the plasterer's trade see Reil, op. cii. 34-5. εἰς εὐ μορφίαν is possible; cf. l. 15.

5. σφαιριστηρίου: cf. int. A comma should perhaps be placed after ὅλου.

καμείνων: in C. P. Herm. 127. verso Fr. 15. 4 two κάμινοι are mentioned, and in the next line 240 drachmae, which seem to be the price of them, so that 89 dr. 1 obol in 1.6 here are probably the price of a κάμινος.

6. κονιαταίς: cf. l. 4, n. ἐργατεία is clearly used in a concrete sense, but whether it means tools or workmen is not clear.

8. ἐπιστεγώσεως: this word seems to be new. The blank space after it (cf. l. 4, n.) may have extended to the end of the line; cf. ll. 11-12, n.

9. γραφῶν can mean 'paintings'. ζω]γραφῶν is not a correct form, but perhaps ζωγραφ(ι)ων should be read, or ζωγράφων dependent on another substantive.

 $\pi\lambda(\hat{\epsilon \iota} \circ \nu)$ $\hat{\eta}$ $[\hat{\epsilon}\lambda a\tau(\tau \circ \nu): \text{ cf. ll. } 11-12, \text{ where, however, there is no abbreviation.}]$

10. το ν βαλανίο ν should perhaps be restored; cf. int. For γυμνασίο ν there is not room.

11-12. After χν is a blank space of about 12 letters up to the end of l. 11; cf. 8 n. The next line may well have begun ωστε εἶναι τὸ πᾶν (οτ γίνονται) τῆς δαπάνης, followed by a sum. For ἐκ συν Ιόψεως cf. C. P. Herm. 127. verso Fr. 12. 5, besides ll. 17, 20 below, and P. Stud. Pal. x. 259. Ι σύνοψις αναλωμ(άτων).

13. στεγ ώσεων: cf. l. g.

24. των or ήμων or ύμων is probable before προεστώτων.

26. The year is likely to have been the 1st, since Herennius and Hostilianus are not mentioned. They occur in the extant papyri of the 2nd year, 1284. 1-5 (Choiak 19) and

C. P. R. 37. 15-19 (Phamenoth 8); cf. 1476. int.

27. ἀρχι Τέκτων: or τέκτων simply. In the Ptolemaic period ἀρχιτέκτων is the title of an official (Fitzler, Bergwerke 57 sqq.), as also usually in the Roman period (op. cit. 131 sqq.), whereas this individual was probably a private person. A private ἀρχιτέκτων occurs in P. Stud. Pal. x. 259. 6 (6th cent.) together with a τέκτων, and in P. Tebt. 277. 12 (3rd cent.) an ἀρχιτέκτων occurs in a list of trades; cf. Reil, op. cit. 31. Some of the details, e.g. the δοκοί in l. 2 and ἐπιστέγωσις in l. 8, suit a simple τέκτων ('carpenter'; cf. Reil, op. cit. 76 sqq.); but the fact that οἰκοδόμοι, ἐργάται (l. 3), and κονιαταί (l. 6) were under his direction suits 'master-builder' better.

1451. EPICRISIS OF ROMAN CITIZENS AND SLAVES.

 16.2×9.3 cm.

A. D. 175.

Of this valuable text ll. 1-10 contain the conclusion of a declaration addressed to a magistrate by a Roman woman, Trunnia . . . This announced the enclosure of (1) an extract from the official records concerning the examination (ἐπίκρισις) of her natural son L. Trunnius Lucilianus and daughter Trunnia Marcella, and three young male slaves, by a praefect of the fleet on behalf of the praefect of Egypt G. Calvisius Statianus, (2) declarations by three witnesses that Marcella was the sister of Lucilianus, and ended with an oath concerning the writer's relationship to her children, and the date. The extract itself follows in ll. 11-33, and the whole document apparently closed with the autograph signatures of Trunnia ... and the witnesses (ll. 33-4). The papyrus is incomplete on all four sides, but at the end not more than three or four lines are likely to be missing, and at the beginning not more than seven or eight, for neither a column in excess of fifty lines nor the loss of a previous column is at all probable. extent of the total gap between one line and the next is clearly fixed by the date formula in Il. 8-10 and other certain restorations, derived from parallels, in ll. 11-12, 13-14, 16-17, 21-22; the approximate starting-point of each line is determined by the heading in l. 11.

The extract from the τόμος ἐπικρίσεων of the praefect, which was certified by a βιβλιοφύλαξ of a record-office, probably at Alexandria (l. 3, n.), adds another second-century specimen to an important class of documents, of which most are badly preserved, but several can now be emended; cf. the commentary. It stands closest to B. G. U. 1032 and Bull. de la soc. arch. d'Alex. xiv. 196 sqq. (P. Alex.), which both record the epicrisis of illegitimate sons of Roman mothers, and to B. G. U. 1033, which concerns the epicrisis of slaves. Of the other examples, B. G. U. 113 and 265 (= W. Chrest. 458-9), 780, and P. Hamb. 31 and 31 a refer to the examination of veterans, while the status of the persons in B. G. U. 847 (= W. Chrest. 460) is disputed, a new interpretation of it (that they were Roman citizens) being proposed by us in l. 21, n. P. Flor. 382. 67-91 (= 57 = W. Chrest. 143), which records the epicrisis of an Alexandrian candidate for the status of ephebus before an exegetes, is also somewhat similar. The principal discussions of the relation of the extracts which do not concern veterans (all discovered recently) to the rest and to the epicrisis of οἱ ἐκ τοῦ γυμνασίου, μητροπολῖται δωδεκάδραχμοι, and other privileged classes in the nomes (cf. 1452. int.) are in Wilcken, Grundz. 196 sqq. and 395 sqq., where the earlier literature is reviewed, and Jouguet's commentary on P. Alex.

The most striking point in 1451, which admits of an almost complete restoration, is the association of a Roman girl of II (or possibly I) on equal terms with her brother, aged probably 23 (Il. 23-4, n.), in the epicrisis conducted as usual by a military representative of the praefect of Egypt. Wessely (Epikrisis 8, Sits.-Ber. Wien. Akad. 1900) had already called attention to the circumstance that the title on the verso of B. G. U. 113 appeared to indicate the epicrisis of the daughter of a veteran with her father, and, in spite of Wilcken's rejection of that view in Chrest. 458. 16, n., P. Hamb. 31, in which a veteran is associated with his son and daughter in an epicrisis, shows that θυγατρὸς αὐτοῦ in the title is dependent upon $\partial \nu \tau (\nu \rho (\alpha \phi o \nu)) \partial \tau (\nu \kappa \rho (\sigma \epsilon \omega s))$; the preceding words may well be $\kappa |\alpha|$ followed by a proper name or $\tau \hat{\eta}s$. Slaves were not more eligible for the army than women, and the epicrisis in a family group of a girl and three young slaves beside a youth of military age, and of a daughter beside her father, shows that, even if the current view concerning the military character of the epicrisis of youthful Roman citizens before the praefect be accepted, these examinations served other purposes which cannot have been military at all. Elsewhere the epicrisis of women is only known for certain in the case of a Jewess, subject to the taxes called Ἰουδαίων τέλεσμα and ἀπαρχή in her 61st year although ἐπικεκριμένη in her 59th (P. Stud. Pal. iv, p. 71. ll. 159, 184 = W. Chrest. 61). In 1. 86 of the same papyrus $\Theta[\epsilon\rho]\mu\rho\nu\theta\alpha\rho(\epsilon\nu) \epsilon\pi[i\kappa(\epsilon\kappa\rho)\mu\epsilon\nu\eta s)$ δ'μοίως ἀδελφης, referring to a woman whose parents obtained Alexandrian citizenship, was doubtfully restored by Wessely, but not accepted by Wilcken, and it is noticeable that in P. Flor. 382 the evidence of status produced by an Alexandrian woman is not an epicrisis-certificate but a payment (?) of $\partial \pi a \rho \chi \dot{\eta}$, apparently corresponding to the payment of poll-tax adduced as evidence in e.g. 1452. 21. Poll-tax was not paid by women in Egypt, so that no epicrisis for their admission to the privileged class of μητροπολίται δωδεκάδραχμοι was necessary. Hence it has been generally assumed that they required no epicrisis before assuming the title of ἀπὸ γυμνασίου; but this is not quite certain, for in P. Amh. 99. 4 Ερμιόνη ή διὰ ἐπικρίσεως Μία ή καὶ Ἑρμιότη occurs, and though this can be explained away, as is done by Wilcken, following us, διὰ ἐπικρίσεωs may refer to an ἐπίκρισιs of the woman herself. But whatever may have been the case with regard to the epicrisis of Graeco-Egyptian women in the nomes, it is now clear that Roman girls—probably in order to prove their legal status—sometimes or even regularly underwent the same epicrisis as their brothers or fathers before the praefect of Egypt or his military deputy.

Secondly, the ages of the persons subject to epicrisis in 1451 and the evidence produced in support of their claims lend no support to Jouguet's view (op. cit. 213) that Roman and Alexandrian male citizens were subject at the age of 14 to a 'financial' epicrisis, resembling that of μητροπολίται δωδεκάδραχμοι, before a military epicrisis at the age of about 20. If Lucilianus had already undergone epicrisis nine years before the date of 1451, the circumstance ought to have been mentioned in ll. 22-6 along with or in place of the μαρτυροποίησιs of his birth. That Marcella and the slaves had never been subject to epicrisis previously is obvious, and the reason which led Jouguet to infer the existence of a 'financial' epicrisis of Roman citizens at the age of 14, the possibility of evasions of poll-tax from the age of 14-19 by persons falsely claiming to be Roman citizens, seems to us insufficient in the absence of any direct evidence for his view. Male Roman citizens were not, so far as is known, brought up for epicrisis before the age of 20 or 23 (1451. 23-4, n.); but women appeared at the age of 11 (1451. 32) and slaves at the age of 19 (B. G. U. 1033. 17), 11 or 12 (B. G. U. 1033, 18, 33), 9 (1451, 32), and 5 (1451, 33). Since the examination was apparently held as a rule at Alexandria, so that a journey was in many cases necessary, it may have been the custom to present the whole family when the time came for the epicrisis of the father or son.

The occurrence of the epicrisis of girls by a praefect of the fleet on behalf of the praefect of Egypt opens, however, a wider question concerning the fundamental meaning of that term. Owing to the accident that the earliest papyri which mention epicrisis to be discovered either referred to veterans or introduced references to soldiers, the term was at first supposed to have a definite military significance, and though the subsequent evidence adduced by Kenyon (P. Brit. Mus. ii. 43 sqq.), ourselves (257. int.), and Wessely (op. cit, and Stud. Pal. iv. 58 sqq.) established the existence of a financial epicrisis conducted by local officials in the x\u00e4\u00e4a, epicrisis at Alexandria before the praefect or military officers has continued to be regarded as in the main a military proceeding with the object of enrolling recruits. From this point of view the badly written B. G. U. 143 (= W. Chrest, 454) ἐπεκρίθη Γάιος Πετρώνιος Σερῆνος ὑπ[δ] Κρ[ί]που ἐπάρχο(υ) [κλ] άσ[η]ς 'Αλεξανδρίνης τῷ (ἔτει) κγ 'Αντωνίνου Καίσαρος τοῦ κυρίου Φαῶφι ιβ ὑπὸ τοῦ πατρὸς Γάιος Πετρώνιος Μαρκελλίνος is usually explained as a recruiting-certificate of a soldier employed in the fleet, and B. G. U. 142 (= W. Chrest. 455) ἐπεκρ. 'Ισίδωρος Γερμανοῦ ὑπὸ Πρίκου ἐπάρ. κλάσ. 'Αλεξ. κγ (ἔτ.) 'Αντ. Καίσ. τοῦ κυρ. Φαῶ. ιβ έκ σπείρης β Οὐλπία ίππεὺ[ς] τύρμης 'Απο[λ]λιναρίου ύ[πδ] 'Ισιδώρου as a certificate of the transference of a soldier from a cohort to the fleet. Presumably, however, the epicrisis in those two cases was of the same character as that of Lucilianus, Marcella, and the slaves by Juvencus Valens in 1451, where there is no indication that the praefect of the fleet was anything more than the deputy of the praefect of Egypt. In B. G. U. 1033 the epicrisis was held, partly at any rate, by the praefect of Egypt himself, and instances of the delegation of the judicial powers of that official to military praefects occur in C. P. R. 18 and 237. viii. 3. Probably the epicrisis for the whole country, so far as Romans and Alexandrians were concerned, was being conducted in 175 by Juvencus Valens, as is indicated (1) by a comparison of 1451 and its parallels with P. Flor. 382, where it is expressly stated that the presiding exegetes was concerned with a particular γράμμα, (2) by the arrangement of the numbering of the σελίδες and the local subdivisions in the headings of these extracts (l. 17; cf. l. 3, n.). Marcella and the slaves were not recruits for the fleet, and that all the youths examined at the same time as Lucilianus were intended for the fleet is highly improbable, while in the case of e.g. P. Alex. it is very unlikely that all the youths examined with G. Julius Diogenes were intended for the cohort of the president. In fact we are prepared to go a step further, and maintain that, just as the epicrisis of veterans on settling in the country was quite distinct from their formal discharge (ἀπόλυσιs) from the army (cf. e. g. 1508, where veterans from the fleet are discharged $\delta i \hat{a} \tau_{\rho i \eta} \langle \rho \rangle a_{\rho \chi} \hat{a}_{\nu} \rangle$, so the epicrisis of youths of military age was quite distinct from their enrolment in the army. B. G. U. 143 we regard as a certificate that Marcellinus had undergone an epicrisis similar to that described in 1451. His father seems to have occupied the position of Lucilianus' mother (1451. 20) and that of the $\pi \alpha \tau [\dot{\eta}_P]$, if that is the right restoration (cf. l. 21, n.), in B. G. U. 847.11. The word to be supplied before ὑπὸ τοῦ πατρός is probably either [....]μενος οτ γνωστευόμενος, as in P. Flor. 382. 80. Marcellinus, like Lucilianus and Diogenes, may have been intending to become a soldier, but not all Roman citizens in Egypt entered the army. In B. G. U. 142 the circumstances were different. Here the examinee was a soldier, but the supposed transfer from one branch to another rests on a forced interpretation of ἐκ, which as e.g. P. Grenf. ii. 51. 5 διπλοκάρις ἐξ ἄλης [o]θατραν[ω]ν indicates, implies that he belonged to a cohort, not that he was leaving it. The evidence of his name, Isidorus son of Germanus, suggests that he belonged rather to the ἔτεροι (1451. 13) than to the 'Ρωμαΐοι or 'Αλεξανδρείς. That the military authorities in Egypt were not very particular as to the citizenship of recruits, at any rate in the auxiliary cohorts, is clear from the occurrence of non-Roman names in 735 and B. G. U. 696, and we should regard the epicrisis of Isidorus after he became a soldier (he seems to have been vouched for by himself; cf. Wilcken, Chrest. 455. int.) as parallel to that of Sempronius Herminus in B. G. U. 447. 20. This person was a ίππεὺς εἴλης Μαυριταυῆς ἐπικεκριμένος ὑπὸ Σεμπρωνίου Λιβεράλιος (praefect in 154-9) and probably was not an Alexandrian, much less Roman, citizen before he entered the army (cf. Lesquier, Rev. de phil.

1904. 30), for he is mentioned together with a number of Graeco-Egyptian inhabitants of an Arsinoïte village. The strongest argument for the military character of epicrisis in certain cases is the apparent correspondence of ἐπικεκριμένος to probatus in the phrase tirones probati voluntarii in B. G. U. 696. i. 28 and tir. prob. in 1022. 4 (= W. Chrest. 453), which is parallel to Trajan's phrase (Plin. Ep. x. 30) dies quo primum probati sunt (sc. tirones illi voluntarii). Probatus is the nearest equivalent of επικεκριμένος: that this term ever corresponds to translatus, lectus (ἡρημένος; cf. B. G. U. 435. 4), or missus (ἀπολελυμένος), as supposed by Lesquier, op. cit. 21, we do not believe. But it is quite impossible to attach the technical military sense of probare to επικρίνειν when this term is applied to veterans, girls, and slaves, and the proceedings connected with epicrisis before the praefect of Egypt or his representative do not in the least resemble a dilectus. That ἐπικρίνειν approximates to ἐξετάζειν was shown by B. G. U. 562 (cf. Wessely, op. cit. 25), and that it does not imply selection was proved by 39 (= W. Chrest. 456), a certificate of ἀπόλυσις concerning a weaver of Oxyrhynchus, ἐπεκρίθη ἐν 'Αλεξανδρεία being added three times at the end, and probably representing the signatures of different officials in the original document of which 39 is a copy. That papyrus has generally been considered to refer to rejection from the army. but we now prefer to regard it, with Wessely, as referring to a discharge from a liturgy of some kind; cf. 1415. 9.

To sum up the evidence concerning epicrisis by the praefect of Egypt, the following different classes can be distinguished: (1) yeterans; (2) other 'Ρωμαΐου, whether of advanced years (P. Stud. Pal. iv. 69, 342, though the reading of the figures $\nu\theta$ is doubtful and possibly the individual was a veteran) or of military age; (3) Roman women; (4) Alexandrians; (5) freedmen and (6) slaves of Romans (or Alexandrians); (7) others, i. e. Graeco-Egyptians, whether soldiers or not (B. G. U. 142 and 39). The examination was generally held by a military representative of the praefect, but the majority of the persons examined was not eligible for military service, and probably the object of the procedure was in all cases the same, i.e. the determination of legal status, corresponding to the epicrisis of Graeco-Egyptians in the $\chi \omega \rho a$, which, as is now clear (cf. 1452. int.), was by no means confined to the question of remission of poll-tax. Whether epicrisis was universal in the case of Roman citizens in Egypt is uncertain. Out of the ten extracts or certificates concerning them, five refer to veterans (in one case with a daughter) and three to illegitimate sons (in one case with his sister); there are only two cases (B. G. U. 143 and 847) in which an apparently legitimate son is presented by his father. Since these veterans may only have obtained Roman citizenship by enlisting, and there is no evidence that they had ever gone through the process of epicrisis as youths, there is a presumption that epicrisis was not resorted to in the case of Romans until or unless circumstances required a legal definition of their status. But this question can hardly be settled unless the use made of these extracts can be determined, and it remains to consider the declaration to which the extract in 1451 was appended.

Here the loss of the beginning of the document unfortunately renders the object of the declaration in ll. 1-10 obscure. The date shows that it was not a κατ' οἰκίαν ἀπογραφή, and the census held a year or two before the declaration is actually referred to in l. 26. The other extracts from the τόμοι ἐπικρίσεων of praefects do not help, being all independent documents. In P. Flor. 382 the αυτίγραφου επικρίσεως of an Alexandrian citizen (cf. p. 148) is appended to a petition from him to a praefect many years later; but the declaration on oath in 1451 is of a different character. P. Hawara 401 (Archiv, v. 395) bears more resemblance to 1451, and ll. I-7 may be restored as follows: 1 ενρήμονι ἱερεί $\epsilon \xi \eta \gamma \eta \tau [\hat{\eta} \tau o \hat{v}]^2 Aρσινοίτου? <math>^2$ παρὰ Γαίου Θέωνος Ω ρίωνος οδ[ετρανοῦ τῶν ἐντίμως ἀπο- $\lambda \epsilon \lambda (v \mu \epsilon \nu \omega \nu)$, $^3 \dot{\omega}_S \delta \dot{\epsilon} \pi \rho \delta \tau \hat{\eta}_S \sigma [\tau] \rho a \tau (as \kappa \epsilon \chi \rho [\eta (\mu \dot{\alpha} \tau \iota \kappa \epsilon) 8 1. \ \dot{a} \pi \delta \tau \hat{\eta}_S \ \dot{\gamma}_{\rho \sigma} \iota \nu \sigma \dot{\tau} \dot{\omega} \nu \ ^4 \pi \delta \lambda \epsilon \omega s$ ἀναγρα(φομένου) ἐπ' ἀμφόδ(ου) Λυσανίου [τόπων. βουλόμενος 10 l. κα- 5 τατα[γ]ηναι εἰς το[.] . . εντασ . . [10]. επενήνοχά σοι τὴν 6 επίκρισίν μου καὶ τὴν τοῦ πρὸς π [ατρὸς (or $\mu[\eta\tau\rho\delta s)$ ἀδελφιδοῦ (name) $\pi\rho\delta s$ τὸ ἐ? -⁷ π' ἐμοῦ τὸ ἀκόλουθον $\pi\rho\alpha\chi$ θῆνα[ι. The epicrisisreturn concerning a boy called Dionysius, which follows in ll. 8 sqq., is of the usual Arsinoïte type corresponding to 1452. 1-27, and, unless Διοινσίον is restored after κεχρη (μάτικε) in 1. 3, refers to την τοῦ πρὸς κτλ. not to ἐπίκρισίν μου, so that an epicrisis extract (ἐπίκρισίν μου) corresponding to 1451. 11-33 may perhaps have been added later, the conclusion of the document being lost. That the general arrangement of the declaration in 1451 was similar is not improbable, though the end was different, and out in 1. 3 may well be the exceptes or strategus, the document in any case probably being a notification of the epicrisis to a local official for a special purpose. That it refers to a change of residence is possible; cf. the phrase βουλόμενος παρεπιδημείν πρὸς καιρὸν εν τῷ ᾿Αρσινοίτη regularly found in the extracts concerning the epicrisis of veterans. But a close parallel for 1451. I-IO is not at present obtainable.

- '... to produce for you the record of the examination held by Calvisius Statianus, praefect of Egypt, through Juvencus Valens, praefect of the Imperial Alexandrine fleet, on the . . of Phamenoth of the 15th year of Aurelius Antoninus Caesar the lord, certified by the record-office at ... through Anubion also called Dionysius, keeper of the records, of which a copy is appended, with declarations of three witnesses to the effect that Trunnia Marcella is the sister of Trunnius Lucilianus, and of the examination of my slaves Euphrosynus, . . . olytus and Plutarchus; and I swear the usual oath made by Romans that they are my children and I have made no false return, under penalty of being liable to the consequences of the oath. The 16th year of the Emperor Caesar Marcus Aurelius Antoninus Augustus Armeniacus Medicus Parthicus Germanicus Sarmaticus Maximus, in the month Hadrianus.

Copy of an examination-certificate. Extract from the volume of examinations held by Gaius Calvisius Statianus, praefect of Egypt, of which the heading is "The hereinafter named veterans, Roman citizens, freedmen, slaves and others were examined by Calvisius Statianus, praefect of Egypt, through Juvencus Valens, praefect of the Imperial Alexandrine fleet, from Phamenoth of the 15th year of Aurelius Antoninus Caesar the lord until Pauni of the same year. The claims presented by them to the aforesaid Juvencus Valens are affixed to each name." After other details, sheet 74: "Oxyrhynchite nome: Lucius Trunnius Lucilianus, illegitimate, aged years, Trunnia Marcella, his sister, aged years; slaves, Euphrosynus aged years, ... olytus aged years, Plutarchus aged years. The mother of the aforesaid children and mistress of the slaves, E...ia Trunnia . . ., acting by the ius liberorum, produced concerning herself a tablet of declaration under seal dated in the 15th year of the deified Hadrianus, and concerning the children two tablets of evidence under seal, dated, that of Lucilianus in the 16th year of the deified Antoninus, and that of Marcella in the 4th year of Aurelius Antoninus, in which the aforesaid Trunnia . . . testified that the persons under examination were her children by unlawful marriage, and concerning the slaves the certificate that they were born in the house, and a census-return of the 14th year of Aurelius Antoninus, in which the slaves were registered. Trunnia also provided as certifiers . . . Hermaïscus and two Julii, Hermippus and . . ., who declared jointly with her that no fictitious evidence had been used." And (a copy) of the description made by the aforesaid Juvencus Valens, in the case of the aforesaid Trunnius Lucilianus "illegitimate, 23 years, with no distinguishing mark", in that of Trunnia Marcella "illegitimate, 11 years, with no distinguishing mark", and with regard to the slaves, in the case of Euphrosynus "9 years, with no distinguishing mark", in that of ... olytus "[.] years with no distinguishing mark", and in that of Plutarchus " 5 years, Presented by me, Trunnia . . . I, Gaius Caecilius Clemens also called Bereni-

with no distinguishing mark".

1–2. Cf. ll. 14–15, nn. The previous words probably were τὴν Τρουννίου Λουκιλλιανοῦ καὶ Τρουννίας Μαρκέλλης ὑπὸ Καλουισίου Στατιανοῦ (γενομένου?; cf. l. 8, n.), preceded by a verb governing the infinitive in l. 3 (e.g. ἀναγκαῖον ἡγησάμην οτ ἐκελεύσθην); cf. p. 153. For γεγενημένην ἐπίκρισιν cf. 1452. 43–7. γενομένην is hardly long enough.

 $\frac{1}{2}$ 3. $\frac{1}{2}$ \frac έπεσκεμμένην: cf. 1587. 3 sqq., and ἐπίσκ(εψις) ὑπομνή(ματος) in 1649, a document emanating from a βιβλιοθήκη, and B. G. U. 73. 15.

έν [16 letters: if δημοσίαs is supplied, there is hardly room for έν ['Αλεξανδρία or $[O \xi \nu \rho \nu \gamma \chi i \tau \eta]$ before it, but $\epsilon \nu [\theta \acute{a} \delta \epsilon]$ would be possible, especially since the first two letters of βιβλιοθήκης may have come in l. 3 and the a of διά may not have been elided. Alexandria was probably the scene of this epicrisis, conducted by a praefect of the fleet, as it was the place of epicrisis of Tryphon in 39 and Heron in P. Flor. 382; cf. p. 148. The other parallels mentioned on p. 148 contain no clear indications of the place, but for the most part suggest Alexandria; cf. P. Hamb. p. 132. Whether, however, the official records of epicrisis, which were tabulated geographically (l. 17), were kept at Alexandria or forwarded to the nomes is not certain, where residents in the χώρα were concerned. Wilcken (Chrest. 143. int.) supposes that the extract quoted in P. Flor. 382 was deposited at Hermopolis, but we should interpret the difficult ll. 76-7 of that papyrus differently. εἰκουισθέντων, which he connects apparently with βιβλιδίων understood and interprets as 'made in extract', is probably parallel to the preceding participle εἰσκρινομένων and qualifies παίδων, meaning 'described' and referring to the σημείωσις (cf. 1451. 30 and εἰκονισμός in B. G. U. 562. 6), while βορινοῦ is likely to refer not to 'das bekannte Nordquartier von Hermopolis', which is not attested and ought in any case to have been more explicitly indicated, but to a subdivision of the previously mentioned γράμμα at Alexandria; cf. the π λινθίον ζ βορριζν)όν of the 2nd γράμμα at Antinoë in P. Brit. Mus. 1164. (d) 12. Since the $\pi\rho\delta s \tau \hat{\eta}$ ' $\Lambda\theta\eta\nu\hat{a}$ [$\gamma\rho\alpha$] $\phi\epsilon\hat{a}$ may also be at Alexandria, and Heron's residence in the Hermopolite nome may date from a period long after his epicrisis at Alexandria, the Florence papyrus does not really provide any argument for supposing that the records of epicriseis held at Alexandria were sent away from that city, and since the position occupied by the place-name in 1451. 17 and similar extracts suggests that the σελίδες refer to the whole of Egypt, not the particular nome, ['Αλεξανδρεία or some locality within it is on the whole more probable than ['Οξυρύγχων πόλει in l. 3. Another alternative is ἐν[κτήσεων τοῦ νομοῦ (cf. B. G. U. 73. 13); but τῶν ἐν[κτήσεων would be expected.

5. μετὰ προσ]φωνή[σεω]ν: καὶ προσ]φώνη σι ν is less likely, especially as τῶν δούλων in l. 6 appears to be dependent upon ἐπίκρισιν, there being no room for another accusative after it. The name of the first witness probably occurs in l. 34; he was not identical with any of the three γνωστήρες in l. 28.

5-6. For the restoration cf. l. 18.

6-7. Cf. ll. 18-19 and 32-3. For ἔθιμον Ῥωμαίοις ὅρκον cf. Wenger, Zeitschr. f. Savignyst. xx. 252-3.

7-8. Cf. Il. 25 and 29.

8. ἔτους ίξ: ιζ is equally possible, for the association of Commodus with Marcus Aurelius, which took place in the 17th year, is ignored in papyri written in Tubi (P. Amh. 170) and Mecheir (P. Brit. Mus. 1265 f.) of that year, i. e. later than Hadrianus-Choiak (l. 10). Juvencus Valens is not called γενόμενος ἔπαρχος in l. 1, but whether Calvisius Statianus was still in office when the declaration was written is uncertain. He took part in the revolt of Avidius Cassius and was superseded by Pharmouthi 6 of the 16th year (April 1, 176; B. G. U. 327. 1).

11. ἀντίγρα (φον) ἐπικρίο εως: cf. P. Hamb. 31 α. 18, B. G. U. 113. verso 1, P. Flor. 382. 67. If ἀντίγρα φον was written out, this line probably projected by about 3 letters; for an addition of 3 letters to the lacunae at the beginnings of lines would cause a large increase in the number of words divided between two lines.

Γαίου Καλουισίο[υ Στατιανοῦ: cf. l. 8, n. and Cantarelli, Prefetti, i. 57. 1451 agrees with C. I. L. 12048 concerning his praenomen, which according to Dio lxxi. 28 was Flavius. An epicrisis held by him apparently in person, which is mentioned in B. G. U. 847. 13 (cf. l. 21, n.), was probably different. For οὖ προγρ]αφή (l. 12) cf. e.g. P. Alex. 2.

12-13. Cf. P. Alex. 2-3 'Ρωμαΐοι καὶ ἀπελεύθεροι (καὶ) δοῦλοι. 'Αλεξανδρεῖς, which follows

'Pωμαΐοι in B. G. U. 1033. 2, can be substituted for ἀπελεύθεροι.

14. ἐπάρχου στόλου Σεβαστοῦ ᾿Αλεξα[νδρίνου: cf. B. G. U. 142–3 (quoted on p. 150), 1033, where in l. 8 στό]λου ἐπιτρόπφ Σεβαστοῦ ἐκά $\langle \sigma \rangle$ τφ | ὀνόματι παράκειται and in l. 34 ἐπ άρχου στόλου are certainly to be restored, and 1032. 16, where ἐπάρχου στ $[\dot{\phi}\lambda \sigma]$ seems more likely than ἐπάρχου σπ $[\dot{\epsilon}iρηs]$. The classis Augusta Alexandrina occurs in C. I. L. iii. 43, &c.

14–15. For Φαμενώθ cf. l. 2, where Θ]ώθ is the only alternative but is excluded by the mention of Παῦν here, the period of epicrisis usually occupying three months or less; cf. B. G. U. 265. 14, where it began and ended a month earlier than in 1451, and P. Hamb. p. 132¹. For the omission of the day cf. B. G. U. 780. 5, 847. 5. There is hardly room for the insertion of it twice here, even though a day may well have been mentioned in l. 2.

For â δὲ κτλ. cf. P. Alex. 8, B. G. U. 1033. 7.

17. The figures, of which the reading οδ is very uncertain, had a stroke over them. 'Οξυρυγχείτου confirms Wilcken's reading 'Αρσινο [είτου in B. G. U. 847. 9 as against Jouguet's suggestion 'Αρσινό [ης, based upon Πηλουσίου in P. Alex., which he referred to the village of Pelusium near Theadelphia, where the papyrus was found. A nome, however, is usually mentioned at this point (cf. B. G. U. 1033. 9 'Αρσινο'] είτου), and Pelusium in P. Alex. is, we think, more likely to be the well-known city, which issued separate coins corresponding to those of the nomes and stood apart from the Sethroïte nome; cf. 1380. 74, n.

17–18. For $\Sigma \pi ovplov$ viós cf. P. Alex. 11, B.G. U. 1032. 17. The omission of the numbers referring to the ages is usual at this point, but they were inserted in the $\sigma \eta \mu \epsilon i \omega \sigma i s$; cf. ll. 23–4, n.

18-19. For the names of the slaves cf. ll. 32-3. Ίππόλυτος is too short in both

20. δούλων δέσποινα: on this analogy B. G. U. 1033. 19, where the editor reads δικαιω]μά[τ]ων δὲ εί[ε] τὴ[ν] ἐπί[κ]ρισιν (Αλμίλιος Μάρκος above the line) ε[...]το |, is probably to be restored ἐπίνουν ξερισιν δερισιν (Αλμίλιος Μάρκος above the line) ε[...]το |, is probably to be

 $\text{restored } \vec{\epsilon}\pi\acute{\eta}\nu\epsilon\gamma\kappa\epsilon\nu\ \acute{o}\ \tau \hat{\omega}\nu\ \acute{o}o]\acute{v}\lambda\omega\nu\ \acute{o}\epsilon\sigma\pi[\acute{o}]\tau\eta[s]\ \langle A\emph{i}\mu.\ M\acute{a}\rho.\rangle\ \acute{\epsilon}\pi\emph{i}[\kappa]\rho\imath\sigma\imath\nu\ \acute{\epsilon}[a\upsilon]\tau o[\mathring{\upsilon}].$

E[....] μα Τρο[υννία...: σ can be read for ϵ , but not τ , so that the first name was certainly not Τρουννία. That she had a long third name is rendered probable by ll. 24–5 and 33. The occurrence of three names for a woman is unusual, but seems inevitable. χωρὶς κυρίου is common in third-century papyri in connexion with χρηματίζουσα τέκνων δικαίω (cf. 1467. int.), but does not occur in the parallel passages of P. Alex. and B. G. U. 1032.

21. δέλτον προφε[σσιῶνος: cf. B. G. U. 1032. 1-2. For examples of Latin professiones of birth see the Cairo tablet Inv. 29807 and 894 (= W. Chrest. 212-13). The word is also to be recognized in B.G. U. 847. 16 (= W. Chrest. 460) where the editors read].. $\bar{\beta}$ [.] . $o\phi\epsilon\sigma\tau\iota$. [. . .] $\omega\nu$ (for the confusion of $\sigma\sigma$ with $\sigma\tau$ cf. e.g. Archiv, vi. 102 Κλαστικόs). The whole passage in B. G. U. 847. 9-17 we should restore on the analogy of 1451. 17-24 thus: ⁹ μεθ' έτι ερα σελίδων ιζ. Άρσινο-¹⁰ [είτου 17 letters] Μάξιμος έτῶν , Πολυδεύκη $\langle s \rangle$ 11 [έτῶν ἐπήνεγκεν ὁ τῶν ἐ]π[ει]κρινομένων πατ[ήρ] 12 [20 letters δι . [. .] . (a proper name, possibly ending Πολυ]δεύ[κη]ς) ἐπεί[κ]ρισειν έαυτοῦ ἐπεὶ 13 [τοῦ ι. (ἔτους) Μάρκου Αὐρηλίου 'Αντ ωνίνου γενομένην ύπο Καλου-14 [ισίου Στατιανοῦ τοῦ ἡγεμο νεύσαντος καθ' ἡν αὐτὸς 15 [22 l.] ἀπὸ χαλκῆς τάβλη ς ε πεκρίθη, 16 και των επικρινομένων δέλτο ν β προφεσζο λιώ νων επεί 17 σφραγείδων κεχρονισμένας, τή]ν μ[έ]ν Μαξίμ[ου τ]ή πρὸ ε . . . Jouguet had in ll. 10-11 suggested Πολυδεύκη(ς) επήνεγκεν ὁ τῶν ἐπ[ει]κρινομένων πάτ[ρων |, supposing that Maximus was a freedman; but it is unlikely that the two ἐπικρινόμενοι possessed a different status (cf. 1451. 18, where the slaves are distinguished from the 'Pωμαΐοι'), and sealed professiones of birth do not suit freedmen, slaves, or even Alexandrians. Hence we prefer to suppose that both Maximus and Polydeuces were Romans, and presented for examination by their father. Polydeuces as a Roman cognomen in Egypt is not more remarkable than e.g. Diogenes in P. Alex.

22. For the restorations at the beginning cf. l. 23, and for those at the end P. Alex. 18, B. G. U. 1032. 3. In P. Alex. the μαρτυροποίησιε concerning a twin sister of Diogenes was also produced, but she was not included in the epicrisis, being perhaps dead.

23-4. The dates of the two μαρτυροποιήσειs are no doubt the years of birth, as is shown by P. Alex., where the correspondence between the year of Diogenes' birth and the date of his mother's μαρτυροποίησις is not only to be inferred, as is done by Jouguet, from the circumstance that the μαρτυροποίησις was made in the same year as the mother's enfranchisement, but was actually stated in the undeciphered last word of the papyrus, which is εἴκοσ|ε, ε΄τῶν being omitted, as in 1451. 31-3. Concerning Lucilianus' and Marcella's age all that is quite certain is that he was aged either 3, 13, or 23 in the 15th year (l. 31), and that the μαρτυροποίησις of her birth was made in the 4th or 14th year of Marcus. There is a slight space between δ (ἔτει) in l. 24 and the lacuna, which favours the 4th as against the 14th year, and though one of the slaves was aged 5 (l. 33), and in P.Tebt. 316 Alexandrian boys became ephebi at the age of 3 and 7, the epicrisis of a girl under 2 is improbable. Hence the 4th year may be taken with much confidence as the year of Marcella's birth, especially as this suits the restoration of the lacuna in ll. 31-2. The circumstance that the 4th year, which belonged to the joint rule of Marcus and Verus, is ascribed in the 15th year to

Marcus alone is not a serious objection; cf. the references to the 1st and 6th years in 1449, written after the death of Septimius Severus. The age of Lucilianus is more open to question. There is hardly any presumption that he was older than his sister simply because he is mentioned first, for a girl would in any case be likely to be mentioned after a boy; cf. the arrangement of the sexes in κατ' οἰκίαν ἀπογραφαί, e.g. 1547-8. The age of the youth in P. Alex., 20 years, suggests 23 as the number in l. 31, and in 1022 the ages of tirones probati (cf. p. 152) range from 20 to 25. On the other hand Τρου[ννίου Λουκιλλιανού | Σπουρίου νίου τρ είων would be sufficient for the lacuna in ll. 30-1, and the insertion of είκοσι not only makes the end of l. 30 rather long, but requires in ll. 23-4 Λουκιλλιαν οῦ ι= ("έτει) θεοῦ "Αντωνίνου | τὴν δὲ Μαρκελλης | δ ("έτει), omitting τῷ before the numbers(cf. l. 2), although it occurs in l. 22. With the omission of είκοσε in l. 31, Λουκελλιαν οῦ τῶ ιβ (ἔτει) τὴν | δε Μαρκελλης τῷ] δ (ἔτει) is the natural restoration of ll. 23-4; but this is too short by about 7 letters (which might be supplied by the insertion of a month after 13 («rei) or Τρουννίαs before Μαρκέλλης), and makes the position of Αὐρηλίου 'Αντωνίνου rather unusual, since it would be expected to follow ιβ (ἔτει), and |οῦ ιβ (ἔτει) Αὐρηλίου 'Αντωνίνου | is too long. There is a great advantage in having a different reign contrasted with Αὐρηλίου 'Αντωνίνου in 1. 24, and in view of the parallel in P. Alex. we have no hesitation in preferring the insertion of είκοσι before τρ ειῶν in l. 31 either to that of δέκα (which is practically as long as είκοσι and requires $\tau \hat{\varphi} \hat{\beta}$ ($\tilde{\epsilon} \tau \epsilon_1$) in l. 23, not evading the difficulty there) or to the omission of any number before τρ είων. ἐτων είκοσι in place of Σπουρίου νίοῦ in ll. 30-1 would remove the difficulty caused by the length of the supplement, but would not be in accordance with P. Alex. or B. G. U. 1032 or the probable restoration of ll. 31-2. If, however, the ages of Lucilianus and Marcella were not 23 and 11 but 13 (or 3) and 1, that only serves to strengthen the argument on p. 150, against the military character of epicrisis. A higher age for Lucilianus than 23 is excluded by the term $\pi a i \delta \omega \nu$ in l. 22.

25-6. νίούς: P. Alex. 21 in referring to a son and daughter uses τέκνα. For τούς έπικρ[εινομένους κτλ. cf. B. G. U. 1032. 10, P. Alex. 18, 23.

26. Cf. B. G. U. 1033. 22 sqq., where a κατ' οἰκίαν ἀπογραφή and two οἰκογένειαι are produced as evidence at the epicrisis of slaves. The census of the 14th year of Marcus is the only one that could have included slaves of which the eldest was 9 (l. 32).

27–8. Three was the regular number of the γνωστήρες (certifiers to identity) in this context: cf. P. Alex. 24–5, where καί in the lacuna before the third name is to be omitted, B. G. U. 1032. 11–13, and 1033. 28 sqq., where ἔδω]κεν καὶ γνωστήρ ας Λὶμιλλίους | [δύο, . . . καὶ . . .] 'Ιοῦστον, τοὺς τρεῖς | [συγχειρογραφοῦντας αὐτῷ μ]ηδέ τοι (οτ μ]ηδενὶ) ἀλλοτ[ρίῳ] μηδὲ ἡμω|[νυμίᾳ? (cf. 1266. 35) κεχρῆσθαι is to be restored. [μηδ]έ τοι ἀλλοτρίῳ was also written in P. Alex. 26, the lacuna at the beginning of the line requiring 3 not 5 letters, and though B. G. U. 1032. 14 suggests that it is there an error of the copyist for μηδενί, μηδέ τοι seems possible in B. G. U. 1033. Probably τῶν γ Ἐπιμάχου in P. Flor. 79. 16 refers to γνωστήρες, as suggested by Wilcken, Chrest. 145. 13, n. For other kinds of γνωστήρες cf. 1490. 2, n., and P. Hamb. p. 137.

30. σημ ειώσεως: cf. P. Alex. 27 and l. 3, n. The genitive is dependent on ἀντίγραφον

31-2. On the ages of Lucilianus and Marcella see ll. 23-4, n.

33-4. Τρο[νινία is written thicker than the preceding and following lines, but is not certainly in a different hand from one of the other two: l. 34 is distinctly not by the first hand, and presumably contains the signature of one of the three witnesses mentioned in l. 5, not a writer on behalf of Trunnia, who is unlikely to have been illiterate. ἐπιδέδωκα καὶ ὀμώμοκα τὸν ὅρκον is expected after Τρο νινία on the analogy of e. g. 1266. 41; but, unless the following name (cf. ll. 20-1 and 24-5) was omitted here, as in l. 27, there is not room for more than ἐπιδέδωκα. Κλήμ[ε]νs καὶ Βερεν[ικιανός is possible, but less satisfactory.

1452. Two Epicrisis-returns.

 18.8×8.8 cm.

A. D. 127-8.

These two epicrisis-returns concerning a Graeco-Egyptian boy of thirteen called Sarapion, both sent simultaneously by his uncle to the strategus, basilico-grammateus, and other officials (l. 2, n.), are parallel to several published papyri from Oxyrhynchus. The first, which is a claim for the admission of Sarapion to the class of inhabitants of the metropolis paying 12 drachmae for poll-tax (less than the normal amount; cf. 1436. 8, n.), closely resembles 258, 478, 714, 1028, 1109, 1306, and Wilcken, Chrest. 217; the second, a somewhat different claim for his admission to the privileged class of οἱ ἐκ τοῦ γυμνασίου, corresponds to 257 (=W. Chrest. 147; A. D. 94-5) and 1266 (A. D. 98). Both returns break off just before the point at which the parallel documents give the ancestry on the mother's side; but since Sarapion's father and mother were full brother and sister (ll. 10-12, 36-9), no separate statement of his ancestry on the mother's side is required, and it is probable that practically nothing is lost in either return except the customary oath, signature, and date.

The occurrence of these two distinct returns side by side serves to throw light on several disputed points in connexion with the much discussed subject of epicrisis (cf. 1451. int.). The view of Schubart (Archiv, ii. 157) and Lesquier (op. cit. 26), that these two classes of Oxyrhynchite claims were not really different from each other, but alternatives, and that οἱ ἐκ τοῦ γυμνασίου were equivalent to μητροπολίται δωδεκάδραχμοι, which was controverted by Wilcken (Grundz. 199) and Jouguet (Vic munic. 79-80), is shown to be incorrect. The references in the second return in 1452 to οἱ ἐκ τοῦ γυμνασίου also tend to confirm Wilcken's and Jouguet's wide interpretation of that expression, i.e. 'belonging to the gymnasium', not 'descended from a gymnasiarch', as suggested in 257. int. Though some points remain in doubt (cf. ll. 34-5, 53, 54, nn.), the second return, like 257 and 1266, traces the ancestry back through the epicrisis of A.D. 72-3 (cf. Il. 44-6, n.) to the $\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\dot{\eta}$ of A. D. 4-5; but it does not describe the individual entered in the γραφή as either the grandson of a gymnasiarch (257. 20), or a guard of the palaestra (1266. 8). Probably, however, descent from a member of that $\gamma \rho \alpha \phi \eta$, rather than actual membership of a gymnasium, was the main qualification for admission into the class of οἱ ἐκ τοῦ (or ἀπὸ) γυμνασίου, or, as it is called in 1202. 18, the τάγμα τοῦ παρ' ἡμῖν γυμνασίου: for in P. Amh. 75 and Ryl. 102, two Hermopolite returns which correspond with some variations to the second return in 1452 and trace descent back to the reign of Nero, women are called $a\pi b$ γυμνασίου, and a child aged I is entered on the list of αφήλικες of that category (P. Ryl. 102. 34).

The Arsinoïte epicrisis-returns, B. G. U. 109, 324, 971, P. Gen. 18, 19, Grenf. ii. 49, Fay. 27, 209, 319, Tebt. 320, Hawara 401. 8 sqq. (cf. 1451. int.), Ryl. 103-4, all belong to the same class as the first of the two in 1452. The formula naturally differs to some extent from that of the Oxyrhynchite examples, but Wilcken, Grundz. 199-200, somewhat exaggerates the amount of the variation. The Arsinoïte examples do not insert the phrase εὶ ἐξ ἀμφοτέρων γουέων μητροπολιτῶν δωδεκαδράχμων εἰσίν (1452. 7-8), and the evidence in them is mainly that of census-lists, which are seldom, if ever, adduced as evidence in the Oxyrhynchite returns (cf. l. 27, n.), these referring to payments of poll-tax (e. g. l. 21) or ἐπικρίσεις (e. g. 478. 31); but the evidence adduced in the Arsinorte examples, where it is not stated that κάτοικοι are concerned and εἰκοσίδραγμοι are probably meant. proves that the boy was εξ άμφοτ, γον, μητροπ., the ἄμφοδα being carefully noted. Nor can we agree with Wilcken's view that the Arsinoïte expression ὑπετάξαμεν τὰ δίκαια refers, not to the details immediately following (census-lists, sometimes supplemented by ἐπικρίσεις of members of the family), but to quotations which were written on a separate papyrus, originally enclosed but not preserved. $i\pi o$ τάσσεω is commonly used with reference to something included in the same document (e.g. 1470. 6), and μèν οὖν, which follows in e.g. P. Tebt. 320. 11, indicates that the δίκαια were given in the next sentence. συμπαρεθέμην, which Wilcken regards as parallel to ὑπέταξα, seems rather to be contrasted with it. Concerning Hermopolis fresh information is afforded by the unpublished P. Brit. Mus. 1600 (Bell, Archiv, vi. 107-9), a series of applications for epicrisis, one of them written by a Έρμοπολίτης ἀπὸ γυμνασίου ὀκτάδραχμος. The evidence of that papyrus, and still more that of 1452, serves to settle the question discussed by Jouguet (Vic munic. 83-5) about the relation of the returns concerning of &k τοῦ γυμιασίου to those referring to μητροπολίται δωδεκάδραγμοι. It is now clear that these terms are not mutually exclusive, and that the epicrisis in the case of οί ἐκ τοῦ γυμνασίου had a different object from that attained by the other class of returns, which were concerned with the remission of poll-tax. Probably the local officials were chosen from οἱ ἐκ τοῦ γυμνασίου, who must have been less numerous than the μητροπολίται δωδεκάδραχμοι or δκτάδραχμοι. Admission by epicrisis into οί ἐκ τοῦ γυμν. was also a necessary preliminary for attaining to the ἐψηβεία; cf. 1202, P. Flor. 382, Jouguet, op. cit. 150 sqq., Wilcken, Grunds. 140-3. Before becoming an ephebus, however, an etokpious was necessary, and applications concerning admission to the εφη, βεία were addressed in the first instance to the exegetes of Alexandria in the case of Alexandrian citizens resident in the χώρα (477 and P. Flor. 382), or to the exegetes of the nome in the case of ordinary Graeco-Egyptian youths (P. Flor. 79, Ryl. 101), not to the strategus, basilicogrammateus, &c., as is the case with 1452 and no doubt 257 and 1266 (which have lost the address, if it was ever written). Hence the latter class of returns stands apart from those referring to ephebi, and nearer to the epicrisis-returns concerning $\mu\eta\tau\rho\sigma\pi\delta\lambda\hat{\tau}\tau\alpha\iota$, though the epicrisis of oi $\epsilon\kappa$ $\tau\sigma\hat{v}$ $\gamma\nu\mu\nu\alpha\sigma\ell\sigma\nu$ was of a municipal rather than financial character.

The following list of the successive generations in Sarapion's ancestry combines the evidence of both returns; cf. ll. 27, 44-6, and 57-8, nn. (1) Pkaës (?), (2) Ammonius, (3) Ptolemaeus, included in the $\gamma\rho\alpha\phi\dot{\eta}$ of A.D. 4-5 (ll. 53-4), (4) Diodorus, $\dot{v}\pi\epsilon\rho\epsilon\tau\dot{\eta}s$ in 72-3 (ll. 4, 26, 51), (5) Plution, $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\iota\kappa\rho\iota\theta\epsilon\dot{\iota}s$ in 72-3, registered in the census (?) of 89-90, and dead before 127-8 (ll. 3, 25, 49), (6) Sarapion, $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\iota\kappa\rho\iota\theta\epsilon\dot{\iota}s$ in 95-100, married to his full sister Tnephersoïs, registered in a poll-tax list of 123-4, and dead before 127-8 (ll. 11, 20, 37, 56), (7) Sarapion, born in 113-14, $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\iota\kappa\rho\iota\theta\epsilon\dot{\iota}s$ in 127-8 (ll. 13-14, 39-40).

Above each column is a cross like a large χ , as in 1028 and 1547.

'To Agathodaemon, strategus, and Hierax, basilicogrammateus, and the other proper officials, from Diodorus son of Plution son of Diodorus, his mother being Tatriphis daughter of Amoïs, of Oxyrhynchus. In accordance with the orders concerning the examination of boys who have reached the age of thirteen years, if both their parents are inhabitants of the metropolis rated at 12 drachmae, Sarapion the son of my brother and sister on the father's side Sarapion and Tnephersoïs, whose mother is Dogumis (?), was put in the list at the Cretan quarter as having reached the age of 13 in the past 11th year of Trajanus Hadrianus Caesar the lord. Wherefore coming forward for his examination I declare that he is rated at 12 drachmae, and that his father, my brother on the father's side Sarapion, died some time ago being rated at 12 drachmae in an undisputed (?) poll-tax list of the 8th year of Hadrianus in the quarter of Pammenes' Garden, and the father of my brother and sister on the father's side and grandfather of the minor, Plution son of Diodorus, died some time ago, being rated at 12 drachmae, who was also registered (?) in the 9th year of Domitian . . .

To Agathodaemon, &c. In accordance with the orders concerning the examination of those who have reached the class of persons belonging to the gymnasium, if they are of this descent, Sarapion, son of my brother and sister on the father's side Sarapion and Tnephersoïs, whose mother is in both cases Dogumis (?), was put in the list at the Cretan quarter as having reached the age of 13 in the past 11th year of Trajanus Hadrianus Caesar the lord. Wherefore coming forward for his examination I declare that at the examination of those belonging to the gymnasium held in the 5th year of the deified Vespasian by Sutorius Sosibius, then strategus, and Nicander, then basilicogrammateus, and the other proper officials our father, the grandfather of the minor, Plution, was examined as resident in the Gymnasium Square quarter in accordance with the proofs adduced by his father, who was over age, that his father also, Ptolemaeus son of Ammonius son of Pkaës (?), was in the list of . . . of the 34th year of the deified Caesar, which Plution died some time ago, and that the father of the minor, my brother on the father's side, Sarapion, was likewise examined in the 3rd year of the deified Trajan by Dionysius (?), then strategus, and the other proper officials, as resident in the aforesaid Gymnasium Square quarter . . .

1. 'Αγαθώ Δαίμονι: cf. 1422. 3 (year lost). He was succeeded by Asclepiades before Hathur 17 of the 14th year (1024. 1).

2. Ἱέρακι: he was still in office in the 14th year with Asclepiades as strategus (1024. 7), for whom he became deputy (1024. 43, undated). The Hierax of 579, who was contemporary with Apollinarius, strategus in the 20th-22nd years (1472. 1, 484. 2), was probably a different person.

οἷε ἄλλοις καθήκει: by these are meant the two βιβλιοφύλακες καὶ ἐπικρίται and the γραμματεὺς πόλεως (714. 5 sqq.; cf. 1028. 3, where γ(υμνασιαρχήσαντες) probably implies βιβλιοφύλακες, as remarked by Wilcken, Grundz. 201\, and there are two γραμ. πολ.). In the other Oxyrhynchite parallels mentioned on p. 160 the address is omitted, as in P. Ryl. 104.

12. Δωγύμεως (?): the name seems to be abbreviated in l. 39. Διονυσίας οτ Διδύμης cannot be read.

21. ὁμολόγ(ου): the latest discussion of this obscure term is in P. Ryl. 209. 10, n., where it is sought to show that it means 'undisputed' in all cases.

27. θ (ἔτει) $\Delta[ομετιανο]$ ῦ: this was a census-year, and the verb may have been ἀπογεγράφθαι; cf. the Arsinoïte parallels discussed on p. 161. [ό]ν καὶ κτλ. in any case probably supplied the evidence for Plution being a δωδεκάδραχμος, and corresponded to δι' όμολόγ(ον) λαογρα(φίας) in l. 21. There is hardly any doubt about the reading, ε being much less suitable than θ , and neither $\theta[εοῦ Τίτο]ν$ or Tραιανο]ῦ nor O[νεσπασιανο]ῦ being admissible. Plution underwent epicrisis in the 5th year of Vespasian, so that ἐπικεκρίσθαι cannot be restored here; but his age at the time of that event is not clear; cf. ll. 44-6, n.

34-5. η έκ τοῦ γένους τούτου (εἰσίν): if η is η, these words can be construed as they stand; but the correction of η to ϵi is suggested not only by the parallel passage in 1. 7 and by the use of $\hat{\eta}$ for $\epsilon$ at the corresponding point in Wilcken, Chrest. 217. 7, but also by the Strassburg papyrus from Hermopolis quoted by Wilcken, Grundz. 200, in which some persons undergo epicrisis εὶ έξ ἀμφοτέρων γονέω[ν τὸ μητροπο]λιτικὸν γένος σώζουσι, οἱ δ' ἐκ τοῦ γυμ[νασίου εί] ἀπ' αὐτοῦ τοῦ τάγματός είσι (cf. p. 160). η είσι or η επ[ι might be read, but is unsatisfactory. With "there would be a contrast between persons who were actually members of the gymnasium and those who were descended from such persons, but this does not suit the usage of έκ τοῦ γυμνασίου, since ἀπὸ γυμνασίου is applied to women and children (cf. p. 160) and designates a class. That the ancestry was an essential point of the evidence is indicated both by the details found in all epicrisis-returns concerning οἱ ἐκ τοῦ γυμν. and by 1202. 20 ἐπικριθέντα κατ' ἀκολουθίαν τῶν ἐτῶν καὶ τοῦ γένους. The age at which young Graeco-Egyptians frequented the gymnasia is not directly attested, but has generally been assumed to be 14, that being the age of epicrisis and normally of εφηβεία. But at Athens the period of ephyseia (from 18-20) followed after that of education at a gymnasium, and since Egyptian youths became ephebi younger than Athenians, they may have also frequented the gymnasia at an earlier age.

44-6. Cf. 257. 12-15 and 1266. 25-9: in the latter case the praefect is mentioned as well as the local officials. This circumstance, coupled with the fact that the same epicrisis of 72-3 is referred to in all three papyri, suggests that the epicrisis at Oxyrhynchus in that year, which coincides with the date of the returns made by Heraclides for Arsinoë in P. Stud. Pal. iv. 62 sqq., was not an ordinary epicrisis such as was held at Arsinoë every year after 54-5 for κάτοικοι. At Oxyrhynchus the earliest mention of an epicrisis is in 60-1 (257. 33), and P. M. Meyer (Heerwesen, 230) supposed that epicrisis of οἱ ἐκ τοῦ γυμυασίου was not introduced before that year. By 94-5, the date of 257, it had evidently become annual. The origin of epicrisis is still obscure (cf. Wilcken, Grundz. 199-200), and that Plution was aged exactly 14 in 72-3 is very doubtful, since his father was then over 60 (l. 51) and the ages of the κάτοικοι at Arsinoë ἐπικεκριμένοι in 54-5 range from 18 (not 8, as stated by P. M. Meyer, ορ. cit. 116) to 62; cf. 257. 12, n. Plution's son, Sarapion (cf. the list on p. 162), was, however, born probably in 85-6, since he was apparently aged 14 in 99-100 (ll. 57-8, n.), and a date approximating to Λ. D. 58-9 is the most suitable for

51. δ πατ(ήρ) is Diodorus; cf. l. 4. For $\epsilon \nu \, \nu \pi (\epsilon \rho \epsilon \tau \epsilon \sigma \nu)$ cf. Wilcken, Grundz. 197.

53. Πκοῆτ(όs) ἐστιν: the name is remarkable, and the omission of τοῦ before it is not in accordance with 1. 4 and the usual practice. 257 and 1266 do not give a third name at this point, but have ὑιτος (1. ὑιδοῦς) γυμνασιάρχου, ἐστίν (257. 20), κ[.....] (257. 36), or simply ἐστίν (1266. 10). β can be read in place of κ and λ instead of a, but there is nothing after π to indicate that the writer meant $\pi(\rho \circ \sigma) \kappa \lambda \eta \tau(\acute{o}s)$ or $\pi(\rho \circ \sigma) \beta \lambda \eta \tau(\acute{o}s)$, which would have to mean 'added', and neither of those words is satisfactory in that sense.

 $\epsilon \phi [\eta] \beta(\omega \nu)$ is also inadmissible.

57-8. $\theta[\epsilon o \hat{\nu}]$ Traisvo $\hat{\nu}\pi \delta \Delta]$ to ν (volvo): the name of the strategus is very uncertain, the lacuna having barely room for Δ , if Traisvo is right. This can hardly be doubted, for $\Delta[\epsilon \mu]$ travo cannot be read, and $\theta[\epsilon o \hat{\nu}]$ Titov would make the date of Sarapion's epicrisis, presumably at the age of 14, 80-1, which does not combine suitably with the dates of the epicrisis of his father Plution (72-3) and his son (127-8, certainly at the age of 14). On the other hand 99-100 is just midway between 72-3 and 127-8, as is quite natural if Plution was not much over 14 in 72-3; cf. ll. 44-6, n.

1453. DECLARATION OF TEMPLE LAMPLIGHTERS.

32.5 × 13.5 cm. 30-29 B.C. Plate II.

This declaration on oath, addressed by four lamplighters (λυχυάπται), two from each of the two principal temples of Oxyrhynchus (cf. 1449. int.), to the officials called of $\epsilon \pi \ell \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ $\ell \epsilon \rho \hat{\omega} \nu$ (l. 13, n.), is especially noteworthy as being the earliest extant papyrus of the Roman period. The date in 11. 29-30 is for the most part lost, but the lamplighters undertook to provide oil 'from Thoth I to Mesore 5 of the present 1st year of Caesar', as they had provided it up to the preceding 22nd and 7th year (of Cleopatra and probably Antony; cf. l. 22, n.), which, according to Porphyry (ap. Euseb. i. 168), was the last year of her reign. Alexandria was captured on Aug. 1, 30 B. C. (C. I. L. i. 327), and since the 23rd year of Cleopatra is not attested (Svoronos is certainly wrong in assigning a series of Cypriote coins ranging from the 1st to 23rd years without double dates to Cleopatra, instead of Ptolemy Auletes, to whom they are assigned by Poole and Regling), and the custom of starting a 2nd regnal year on Thoth 1 following an accession prevailed in Egypt after the third century B.C. (cf. P. Hibeh, App. i), it was not clear whether the 2nd year of Augustus was reckoned from Aug. 31, 30 B.C., or from Aug. 30, 29 B.C. In the case of Hadrian, whose accession took place on Aug. 11, 117 according to the Vita Hadr. 4, his 2nd year began on Aug. 29 of the same year, whereas the 2nd year of Tiberius, who acceded on Aug. 19, 14, began on Aug. 30, 15 (P. Brit. Mus. 276. 17, n.), the news of Augustus' death having evidently reached Egypt after Aug. 29, 14. 1453 is clearly inconsistent with the view that Augustus' 1st year in Egypt consisted only of Aug. 1-30, and demonstrates that his 2nd year began in 29 B.C., as maintained by Wilcken (Ost. i. 786-7); but a difficulty arises from the apparent inference to be drawn from l. 20 that Mesore 5 (July 30, 29 B.C.) was the last day of the 1st year. Probably there is an error of omission, for the insertion of ἐπαγομένων after Μεσορή renders the passage normal and parallel to e. g. 1116. 12. The choice of Mesore 5 could, however, be explained without any alteration of the text by connecting it with the statement of Dio li. 19, that in 30 B. C. the senate decreed τήν τε ἡμέραν ἐν ἡ ἡ ᾿Αλεξάνδηεια ἐάλω (i. e. Mesore 6) αγαθήν τε είναι και ες τα έπειτα έτη αρχήν της απαριθμήσεως αυτών νομίζεσθαι. Wilcken (Hermes, XXX. 151 sqq., Ost. l. c.) connected this with the era of the κράτησις Καίσαρος found occasionally in papyri of Augustus' reign after his 30th year, and perhaps indicated by the mentions of his 46th year, which occur at least twice on coins, and are difficult on any other view to reconcile with the evidence pointing to the 43rd year as the date of his death (Hohmann, Chronol. 51, in discussing 721 overlooks the fact that the 44th year of Augustus in that papyrus is εἰσιόν). Owing to the agreement between the years of the κράτησις Καίσαρος and ordinary regnal years, especially in B.G.U. 174, written on Mesore 29 of the 36th year according to both systems, Wilcken concluded that the reckoning in both cases began on Thoth I, 30 B. C., and if the reading [\lambda]\(\varphi\), not [Ale or [Alc, in B. G. U. 174. 5 is certain, it seems impossible to make any distinction between them. Since we are unwilling to suppose that the ordinary regnal years of Augustus ended on any other day than Mesore Epagomenon 5, we prefer the insertion of ἐπαγομένων in 1. 20, though the chronology of the beginning of Augustus' reign is not yet quite clear. Cleopatra is thought by Wilcken and Bouché-Leclercq to have outlived the beginning of her 23rd year (Aug. 31, 30 B.C.), and the introduction of the 6th intercalary day appears to date from 22 B.C.; cf. Hohmann, op. cit. 48 sqq. In favour of the correction of l. 20 is the circumstance that the scribe of 1453 was in any case not very accurate, small omissions and other slips being frequent. Palaeographically the papyrus is valuable as a dated specimen of first-century B. C. uncial writing, resembling that of 659 (Part iv, Plate iii, Pindar's Παρθένεια) and Schubart, Pap. Graceae, Plate xia (Menander).

'Copy of an oath. If I observe the oath may it be well with me, but if I swear falsely, the reverse. The 1st year of Caesar . . .' Copies of the signatures of the parties, those of Paapis and Petosiris being written by proxies.

1.]. a: this is perhaps a number $(\kappa a ?)$, or possibly $\epsilon / \gamma \delta (\delta \sigma \iota \mu o \nu)$ (cf. 1548. 1), and may have been written in a different hand from that of the main text.

4. Tor [ή?]ου: cf. l. 38 Τοτοεῦτ os. Τοτοῆs (gen. Τοτοήους or Τοτοῆτος) is the usual nominative of this name; cf. e.g. P. Grenf. ii. 18.

λυχνάπται: λυχνάπται, the correct form, known only from Hesychius, cannot be read either here or in 1. 8. Oil for $\lambda \nu \chi \nu a \psi i a$ was one of the chief items of expenditure in the accounts of the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus at Arsinoë (B. G. U. 362 = W. Chrest. 96). In the Roman period it was often provided by gymnasiarchs (cf. P. Amh. 70. 10 (= W. Chrest. 149) and 1449. 64–5, n.), who were also responsible for oil for $\lambda \nu \chi \nu a \psi i a$ (1413. 19, n.).

6. (Ί)σίου: this subordinate shrine in or by the Serapeum of Oxyrhynchus is mentioned next after the Serapeum in 43. verso ii. 14.

11. Καίσαρ(α) θεὸν ἐκ θεοῦ: cf. B. G. U. 543. 2-3, an oath written in the 3rd year of Augustus, Καίσαρα Αὐτοκράτορα θεοῦ υίόν, as in P. Tebt. 382. 21 (year uncertain) with Αὐτοκράτορα last,

13. τοῖς ἐπὶ τῶν ἱερῶν: this title is found in the Ptolemaic period (cf. P. Tebt. 313 1-2, n.) apparently as a variant for ἐπιστάτης τῶν ἱερῶν. In P. Tebt. 313 (A.D. 210-1) an ἀρχιπροφήτης of the reigning Emperors was ἐπὶ τῶν ἐν Ἡλίον πολει καὶ ᾿Αφροδίτης [ί]ερῶν, and since the Oxyrhynchite nome is here coupled for purposes of religious administration with the Cynopolite, as in 1449, where priests of temples situated in both nomes occur, the Aphroditopolis there may well have been the capital of the Aphroditopolite nome, which probably adjoined the south of the Heliopolite nome. The Oxyrhynchite and Cynopolite nomes were administered by one strategus in the second century B. C., as appears from a papyrus to be published in P. Tebt. iii.

19. $\Theta\omega i\theta \ a$: δ or λ could be read instead of a, the bottom of the letter being lost; but Thoth I, being new year's day, is so common in this connexion that there is hardly any doubt about the reading in spite of the difficulties discussed in int.; for even if people at Oxyrhynchus began dating by Augustus before Thoth I (Aug. 31), 30 B.C., which is improbable, it is very unlikely that 1453 was written before that day. The analogy of leases, which generally cover regnal years, and were usually written in Thoth, Phaophi, or Hathur (cf. Gentilli, Stud. ital. di Filol. xiii. 289), suggests one of those three months as the most probable supplement of the lacuna in ll. 29–30, which is of quite uncertain length, since the blank space before $\partial \nu \tau i \gamma \rho [a(\phi \nu)]$ may have extended to the beginning of l. 30.

20. Μεσορή ε: cf. int. Μεσορή[ι] ε could be read, but there was probably a short blank space between Μεσορή and the number, as in l. 19 between Θωύθ and the number. The reading Mesoph [ϵ] ϵ is in any case most improbable, the line above the figure being no longer than that above the single figure in 1. 19, and Mesore 15 being inexplicable as the last day of the year. Of the ϵ only the top survives, coming above the line like e.g. the first ϵ of $\kappa \epsilon \chi \omega \rho \eta \gamma \eta \mu \dot{\epsilon} \nu \sigma is$ in 1. 23, a circumstance which renders γ or ϵ , the only possible alternatives, much less satisfactory readings.

21. The word following Kaloapos was probably an adverb $(\partial v_{\mu} = 0) [\theta \in v_{\mu}]$, not $A\dot{v} = 0$, which is not very often used in mentioning Augustus and never occurs in date formulae of his reign (cf. e.g. ll. 29–30, where there is no room for it). Moreover, the vestige of the second letter suits v but not v, the tail of the ρ of ρ os ought to have been visible, and [aropos] is rather too long for the lacuna.

22. κβ τοῦ καὶ ζ (ἔτους): cf. int. and P. Ryl. 69 (18th and 3rd year). The nature of the second reckoning is disputed, Bouché-Leclercq and Svoronos referring it to Antony, Mommsen to a second reckoning of Cleopatra, Strack to Caesarion. The recent discovery by Lefebvre of an inscription (Mélanges Holleaux) dated in the 11th year of the joint reign of Cleopatra and Caesarion confirms Porphyry's statement that from the 8th to the 15th year only one reckoning was employed, but from the 16th to the 22nd two, thus disposing of Dittenberger's restoration ἔτους ι τοῦ καὶ β in Or. Gr. Inscr. i. 194, and rendering the reading '12' much more probable than '16' (either number can be read according to Spiegelberg) in the figures of the regnal year of Cleopatra and Caesarion in P. Cairo dem. 31232. Strack's view fails to account for the introduction of a new system in the 16th year, and the numismatic evidence strongly favours the reference to Antony.

23–7. ὅντων ἡμῶν κτλ.: the construction is difficult, and would be improved either by the insertion of ἐκ before τῶν in l. 25 and the omission of ὅντων in l. 26, or, preferably, by the insertion of something like κατοχίμων οr ἐν κατοχῆ after ὅντων, and alteration of τοῦ to τῷ in l. 26. Probably the space left in l. 26 after ὅντων indicates something in the original which the copyist could not read.

29-30. There need not be any letters lost in l. 29 after Kaisapos, but there is room for e.g. $\Theta \dot{\omega} \theta$ or $\Phi a \dot{\omega} | \phi_i$. Part of l. 30 may have been blank; cf. l. 19, n.

38. Τοτοεῦτ[os: cf. l. 4, n.

1454. DECLARATION OF MUNICIPAL BAKERS.

28.7 × 21 cm.

A. D. 116.

On the recto of this papyrus is 1434. The verso contains the concluding column of an undertaking (or of the signatures to an undertaking) by bakers, addressed to officials of some kind, concerning the manufacture and sale of bread, partly from wheat supplied to them by an agoranomus (l. 8). Arrangements were made for the quality and weight of the loaves, the transfer of the price, and the commission to be received by the bakers for their trouble. Concerning the municipal supply of bread in the Roman period in Egypt very little was known; cf. Jouguet, Vie munic. 324-7, Wilcken, Grundz. 365-6. The only other papyrus which throws much light on the subject is 908, a contract between eutheniarchs in 199 for the grinding of wheat for bread. There is no evidence at present of the existence of distinct officials of this name so early as the reign of Trajan, to which 1454 belongs;

but after A.D. 150 the title δ ϵm $\tau \eta s$ $\epsilon \delta \theta \eta \nu \ell as$ occurs at Alexandria either alone (Dittenberger, Or. Gr. Inser. 705) or combined with that of agoranomus (B. G. U. 578. 9), and in the nome-capitals combined with the office of exegetes (P. Tebt. 397. 18) or cosmetes (P. Flor. 57. 75); cf. 1412. 1–3, n. Hence 1454 is more likely to have been addressed to a board of officials, perhaps including, besides local $\delta \rho \chi o \nu \tau \epsilon s$, the strategus, who in second-century papyri (cf. 1455. int.) is found managing $\delta \gamma o \rho a \ell$, than to agoranomi or eutheniarchs alone. It is presumably a copy or draft of the original, being written in a large, somewhat irregular hand with a thick pen.

'... we will expose it for sale with the customary sellers either here or wherever we are ordered to expose it (?), and will restore you the price and provide for you loaves which are baked, prepared, acceptable, ..., each weighing 2 pounds, 30 loaves being reckoned to each artaba, and we are to receive for selling and making the flour and all expenses 10 obols for each artaba; likewise also with regard to the 856 artabae by the public ... measure which we have received from ..., agoranomus in office, at Oxyrhynchus in three instalments, we will make them into flour and manufacture loaves whenever we are ordered to do so, and expose them for sale with the customary sellers, as aforesaid; and we consent to all the above-mentioned stipulations. The 20th year of the Emperor Caesar Nerva Trajanus Augustus Germanicus Dacicus Parthicus, Phaophi 30.'

1. Apparently not ἀντίγρα(φον).

^{2.} τῶν ἐξ ἔθους πρατῶν: for the restoration of ll. 2-3 cf. ll. 9-10. πρατῶν might come from πρατόs, but πράτηs is much the commoner word (cf. 1455. 5, P. Ryl. 226. 5, and the άρτοπράται in B. G. U. 304), and suits μετά better; cf. also the πρατικόν in l. 6.

4–5. ἄρτους is probably to be supplied in the initial lacuna of one of these two lines; but κατὰ μῆνα or an adverb may have occurred at the beginning of l. 4, and the construction of l. 5, where there has been a correction, is obscure. The alteration of λείτρας to λιτρῶν is attractive; for with ἔχουτας in l. 5 σταθμὸν λιτρῶν would be expected; cf. 1449. 20. The description of the loaves seems to refer to the bread in general, not to a present for the officials, though e.g. ἐκατόν might be read in l. 5. But if καθ'] ἔ[καστ]ον is right, the preceding word is likely to have been another adjective, or a participle in the nominative. For ὀπτούς cf. Hdt. ii. 92 ἄρτους ὀπτούς πυρί: ὑμ[ῦν] κοπτούς (cf. l. 6, n.) is unsuitable. ἢρτυμένους probably refers to the leavening; cf. P. Tebt. 375. 27 ζύμης ἢρτυμένης.

6. $d[\rho\tau]\omega(\nu)$ λ (μ is a less satisfactory reading) is expected at this point, 30 pairs ($\xi\epsilon\dot{\nu}\gamma\eta$) of loaves being reckoned as 2 artabae (i. e. 30 loaves to 1 art., as here) in P. Brit. Mus. 18. 22 (i. 22); cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 755. $\xi[\epsilon\nu]\gamma(\bar{\omega}\nu)$ and $\chi[\omega]\nu(i\kappa\omega\nu)$ are much less suitable readings, and, though an artaba of 30 choenices is known from P. Rev. Laws xxxix. 2, the particular kind of artaba meant here had probably been already indicated; cf. ll. 8-9 where a fresh number of artabae is stated to be μέτρω δημοσίω...

πρατικοῦ: cf. Preisigke, S. B. 4425. v. 13 τῶν [ἢ]γορασμένων χωρὶς πρατικῶν: it stands in the same relation to πράτης (cf. l. 2, n.) as μισθωτικόν in P. Amh. 88. 26 to μισθωτής;

cf. Wilcken, Archiv, v. 253.

κοπτου(ρη i)ίας: this word is new, but seems appropriate to the context; cf. ἀλευροποιήσομεν in l. 9 and κοπτάρια meaning cakes of some kind in P. Goodsp. 30. xlii. 5. κοπτοπ(οι)ίας does not suit the traces of the sixth letter so well, and to read ὀπτου(ρη)ίας or ὀπτοπ(οι)ίας (cf. ὀπτούς in l. 4), and suppose that the initial o was corrected from ω, is also unsatisfactory, κo here being written small, as in $\Delta ακικοῦ$ in l. 12.

8.]os:]ωs or]ι(o)s might be read. το]îs ἐνάρχ(οις) ἀγορανόμ(οις) is unlikely.

9. Before (ἀρτάβαs) an abbreviation of ἡμιαρταβίφ is not unlikely; cf. 1472. 19. The word in any case probably agreed with μέτρφ. πυροῦ, if mentioned again (it must have occurred in connexion with the artabae to which ll. 2–7 refer), ought to have preceded μέτρφ.

1455. DECLARATION OF AN OIL-SELLER.

A.D. 275.

A declaration on oath, addressed probably to a strategus, by an oil-seller of Oxyrhynchus, who undertook to sell fine oil (l. 10, n.) in the public market and to provide a surety. 83, a similar declaration to a logistes fifty-two years later by an egg-seller, differs by containing no mention of a surety and a more precise prohibition of any secret sale; B. G. U. 92, 649, and 730 are parallel declarations to the strategus of the Pharbaethite nome in the second century by owners of pigs, and several bonds of sureties for the performance of duties by dealers in supplies are extant in P. Brit. Mus. 974 (iii. 115; $\kappa \alpha \rho - \pi \omega \nu \eta s$ at Hermopolis, A.D. 305-6) and Strassb. 46-51 (butchers of various kinds at Antinoöpolis, A.D. 566); cf. also 1454. int. and the monthly reports of various guilds to the logistes in 85 and P.S.I. 202. The date of the papyrus, Phaophi 21 (Oct. 19 in 275) of the 7th year of Aurelian, is very important for the chronology of that reign, being inconsistent with the scheme proposed by Preisigke, which allowed Aurelian only part of a 6th year as his last; cf. 1476. int.

I swear by the fortune of our lord Aurelianus Augustus that I will provide daily in the factory which I possess in the market-place fine oil for sale and service of the city, so that no fraud may ensue, under penalty of being liable to the consequences of the oath; and I have provided as my surety Aurelius Sarapammon son of Saprion and Thaësis, of the said city, who is present and gives his consent. The 7th year of the Emperor Caesar Lucius Domitius Aurelianus Germanicus Maximus Persicus Maximus Gothicus Maximus Carpicus Maximus Pius Felix Augustus, Phaophi 21.' Signatures of Theodorus and his surety, written by Aurelius Silvanus, and of another Aurelius.

1456. DECLARATION CONCERNING APPEARANCE IN COURT.

 9.7×8.6 cm.

A. D. 284-6.

A declaration on oath, addressed to a strategus by a citizen of Oxyrhynchus, undertaking to appear at the session of the praefect's court about to be held at the city or in the nome (cf. l. 9, n.). The grounds of the action, which was directed against certain comarchs, were being stated when the papyrus breaks off. The date of 1456 is fixed within the period Oct. 284—March 286 by the mentions of Diocletian without Maximian, and of the strategus, who is known from other papyri (l. 1, n.). The praefect, M. Aurelius Diogenes, who was probably identical with Diogenes, a high official mentioned in P. Cairo 10531 (3rd-4th cent.), seems to have held office between Pomponius Januarianus and Flavius Valerius Pompeianus (ll. 1, 8, nn.). Similar declarations are 260 (M. Chrest. 74), 1195, 1258, B. G. U. 891. recto, P. Leipzig 52-3, Hamb. 4; cf. Wenger, Rechtshist. Papyrusstud. 61 sqq.

'To Aurelius Philiarchus also called Horion, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, from Aurelius Zoïlas son of Theogenes and Tauris, of the illustrious and most illustrious city of Oxyrhynchus. I swear by the fortune of our lord Gaius Valerius Diocletianus Caesar Augustus that I will present myself before our most eminent praefect, Marcus Aurelius Diogenes, when he auspiciously visits this place or the neighbouring nome, and will bring an action in his court against the comarchs from the nome now (?) present . . . on account of the . . . which they wrongly . . .'

1. This strategus also occurs in 1260. I (where l. Φιλιάρχω for Φιλίππω: Pauni 18 of the 2nd year of Diocletian and 1st of Maximian, i.e. June 12, 286), P. S. I. 162. 1 (2nd and 1st year, month lost), and 1115. 1 (Pachon 26, i.e. May 21, of the 2nd year of an unnamed Emperor). In the last mentioned papyrus the praefect in office was Pomponius Januarianus, who is also to be recognized in P. Thead. 18. 3, where l. Πομπ[ω]νίω [Ἰ ανοι [αριαν] ῷ, the year being the 2nd of a reign (l. 19), and the months Hathur and perhaps Mecheir occurring (the date in l. 22 is mainly undeciphered). A different praefect is found in 1456. 8, and in the 2nd year of Diocletian (A.D. 285-6) the elevation of Maximian to the rank of Augustus was known in Middle Egypt on Pharmouthi 5 (= March 31; B. G. U. 1090, 36) and Pachon 29 (=May 24; B.G.U. 922. 2), so that it must have taken place somewhat earlier than April r, the date assigned to it by Idatius. Hence both 1115, which on other grounds appeared to belong to the reign following that of Probus (cf. int.), and P. Thead. 18 are to be assigned to the 2nd year of Carinus and Numerianus (i.e. 283-4) rather than to the 2nd of Diocletian (285-6), and Aurelius Philiarchus' tenure of office lasted from May 21, 284, to June 12, 286. On Sept. 19, 287, the strategus was Apollonius, as is shown by a papyrus to be published in Part xiii. The accession of Diocletian took place in the autumn of 284, Carinus and Numerianus having entered on their third year in Egypt, as is shown by coins; cf. 1476. int. The date of 1456, which ignores Maximian in ll. 4 sqq., is thus limited to the period between Oct. 284 and March 286, and M. Aurelius Diogenes (l. 8) was probably the immediate successor of Pomponius Januarianus and predecessor of Flavius Valerius Pompeianus (cf. 1416. 29, n.).

8. The deleted Σαλ looks like a mistaken reference to 'Αδριάνιος Σαλλούστιος, praefect in 280 (1191. 4), who was apparently succeeded by Pomponius Januarianus (cf. l. 1, n.).

9. ἐνθάδε: i.e. at Oxyrhynchus. In the Roman period the conventus of the praefect for cases concerning the Heptanomia and Thebaid was usually held at Memphis (705. 6-7; cf. Wilcken, Archiv, iv. 366 sqq.); but he probably held courts at various points of Middle and Upper Egypt more frequently than is allowed by Wilcken; cf. P. Ryl. 74. int.

10. ἀστυγείτων νομός (i.e. the Oxyrhynchite nome) is a novel expression in papyri.

12. Perhaps [ν] υνὶ ὧδε γενομένους; but the second word is very doubtful. It cannot be read as an accusative ending in s, and [ε]νθάδε (cf. l. 9) is also inadmissible.

κωμάρχας: οτ κωμάρχ[o]υς. There might be another letter or two at the end of the line, and e.g. ἐπιτη $[[\rho \eta \sigma \epsilon \omega s]]$ is unsatisfactory, though a participle is not unlikely.

1457. REGISTRATION OF ASSES.

 16×8.4 cm.

4-3 B.C.

A return addressed to the farmers of the six-drachmae tax upon asses by a citizen of Oxyrhynchus, who registers two asses for the current year. This impost has previously occurred only in 1438. 19, but is clearly identical with the εἶδ(os) ὄνων in an unpublished Strassburg papyrus of A.D. 119-20 mentioned by Wilcken, Grundz. 205, which is also an ἀπογραφή to taxfarmers. It is remarkable that 1457 and that papyrus are the only ἀπογραφαί of asses which are known, although returns of camels, sheep, and goats are numerous (cf. Wilcken, l. c., and 1458), being addressed, unlike 1457, to the strategus and basilicogrammateus. For a return of a different character addressed to a tax-farmer cf. 262, a notification of death sent to an ἐκλήπτωρ γερδιακοῦ. The known imposts connected with asses are (1) a licence called the δίπλωμα ὄνων, which appears in B. G. U. 213 (A.D. 112), and for which 8 drachmae were paid annually on one ass, as in the case of the δίπλωμα ἵππων 8 dr. 8 obols annually on each horse (cf. P. Hamb. 9, int.); (2) a tax of 4 drachmae per ass levied on purchasers (P. Hamb. 33, A.D. 150-200; cf. P. Brit. Mus. 305, which mentions in 11. 2-3 $\epsilon \pi \iota \tau \eta(\rho \eta) \tau(a \hat{\imath} s) \hat{\epsilon} \kappa ...$ () $\kappa a \hat{\imath}$ δεκ(άτης?) ἀγορᾶς 'Αλεξάνδρου, sc. Νήσου, and in 1. 4 τέλος ὄνου ... οὖ ἢγό(ρασε), A. D. 144); (3) $\tau \in \lambda$ os $\partial \nu \eta \lambda (\alpha \tau \hat{\omega} \nu)$, for which 2 dr. 1 obol. are paid in one case, but much larger sums (75 dr. and 150 dr.) when δυηλ(ατῶν) is coupled with $\dot{a}\mu\alpha\xi(\hat{\omega}\nu)$; cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 272); (4) $\pi\epsilon\nu\theta\dot{\eta}\mu\epsilon\rho\sigma$ $\delta\nu\omega\nu$, for which 8 dr. were paid in P. Ryl. 195. 5 (cf. 1409. 20, n.). All four seem to be distinct from each other, and though the $\xi \xi a \delta \rho a \chi \mu i a$ is possibly identical with the $\delta i \pi \lambda \omega \mu a$, the sum found in 1438. 19 (5 dr. 1 ob.) does not accord with that in B. G. U. 213.

8. λε[υκόχροας: cf. P. Brit. Mus. 333. 22 (ii. 199). There is not room for λε[υκοχρώμους, which occurs in a sale of an ass to be published in Part xiii.

1458. REGISTRATION OF SHEEP AND GOATS.

14.9 × 13.1 cm.

A.D. 216-17.

The chief interest of this return of sheep and goats addressed to a basilicogrammateus lies in the fact that the papyrus was written in the Athribite nome (in the south of the Delta). like 500. The formula differs a little from those of the second-century Oxyrhynchite (74), Hermopolite (P. Amh. 73), and Arsinoïte (B. G. U. 133) parallels, and the third-century Heracleopolite one (Hartel, Gr. Pap. Erz. Rain. 74), which is also addressed to a basilicogrammateus, the others, as well as 245-6 (first century), having been sent to a strategus (καὶ οἶs καθήκει in 74). The papyrus is joined to a similar but fragmentary return by a woman Aurelia Ammonia (?) also called Heraclea, the ends of both documents being lost. They had been glued together as part of a series, and apparently brought to Oxyrhynchus, before the verso was used for writing a list of abstracts of contracts concerning land. The proper names 'Aρθῶνις, Δημητροῦς, and Κεφαλοῦς, and 'Οξυρύγχ(ων) πόλ() ἐκ τοῦ Nεικάν[ορος (or $[\delta\rho ov)$ κλήρ]ου occur; but the lines, of which parts of ten survive, were very broad, and no connected sense is obtainable.

^{6–7.} Nε[o]κόσμι[os] ὁ καὶ ᾿Αλθαιεύs: the Neocosmian tribe at Alexandria is known from P. Flor. 92. 1, Hamb. 32. 4, but the combination with the well-known Althaean deme is new.

^{12.} κa ($\ell \tau \epsilon t$): $\kappa \epsilon$ or $\kappa \gamma$ cannot be read. There is no corresponding entry in the parallel returns from other nomes. As the reports were, so far as is known, sent in annually, the interval of three years between the dates in ll. 8 and 12 is somewhat remarkable.

1459. RETURN OF UNWATERED LAND.

A. D. 226.

This return sent to a basilicogrammateus by a veteran concerning his land, which had not been reached by the inundation and was dry ($\mathring{a}\beta\rho\sigma\chi\sigma s$) or artificially irrigated ($\mathring{\epsilon}\pi\eta\nu\tau\lambda\eta\mu\acute{\epsilon}\nu\eta$), is similar to 1113, 1549, and an Apollinopolite and several Arsinoïte papyri (P. Hamb. II. int.). Part of the land was $\beta a\sigma\iota\lambda\kappa\acute{\eta}$ (ll. 12, 36); the rest, which was taxed at the usual rates of I or $1\frac{1}{2}$ artabae per arura (cf. l. 11, n.), was apparently $\kappa\lambda\eta\rho\sigma\nu\chi\iota\kappa\acute{\eta}$ which had passed into private ownership, and may have been a grant to the veteran from the State (cf. P. Giessen 60. int.). The names of the lessees (or in the case of $\beta a\sigma\iota\lambda\iota\kappa\grave{\eta}$ $\gamma \hat{\eta}$ the sub-lessees) form a lengthy list, the property being situated mainly near Palosis, but partly near two other villages in the Thmoisepho toparchy. These returns were probably made not annually, but when there was a low Nile (cf. Eger, Grundbuchavesen, 188, Lewald, Grundbuchrecht, 79, 1113. i. 14, n.); the orders in the present case are attributed to unnamed praefects and an ex-epistrategus, whereas in the other instances they were issued by a praefect or procurator usiacus.

mentioned, also probably in the 5th year.

7. Ἰουλίου Σωπάτρου: this new epistrategus is to be inserted between Aurelius Severus, deputy-epistrategus (1202. 1, P. Flor. 382. 50; A.D. 222-3), and Di... Balbinus (B. G. U. 659. 7; A.D. 228-9) in Martin's list, Epistratèges, 185. He may be identical with the judge Σώπατρος in 1408. 1–10.

9. For the association of ἐπηντλημένη γῆ with ἄβροχος cf. P. Giessen 4-7, Ryl. 96. 16.

1460. REVISION OF LISTS OF LAND-OWNERS.

 9.8×9.2 cm.

A.D. 219-20.

This return of landed property, addressed to a strategus, is of an unusual character, being intended for a revision of the government survey-lists, in which the names of the cultivators had ceased to correspond to the facts; cf. the list of deceased cultivators of Crown-lands and their successors in 1446. The reign is fixed by the name of the strategus, Aurelius Harpocration, who is known from 1283. I to have been in office in the 2nd year of Elagabalus (A.D. 218-19); the year was apparently indicated in a marginal note at the top (3rd?). Another strategus of the same name in A.D. 278 is known from 1409. I, but the handwriting decisively indicates the earlier date. 6-8 letters are lost at the ends of lines, and the papyrus breaks off before reaching the main sentence, describing the writer's own land, but not without providing some interesting information about the nature of the revision. On the left it was joined to another document, of which the ends of 14 lines survive, mentioning] $\dot{\eta}$ κρατίστη | [βουλή? and] τ $\hat{\varphi}$ επιστρα[τήγφ.

4. φλαυΐας Π. 12. $\ddot{v}\pi[a]\rho$, Π. 13. $\ddot{v}\delta[ovs Π$. 14. $\ddot{v}\delta[ovs Π$.

2. That this line was written by the writer of l. 1 is not certain, but a reference to a month is possible.

6. [σιτικών: δημοσίων is rather long.

8-9. $\frac{\partial \pi \partial u}{\partial t}$: cf. l. 6. A synonym would be improvement in view of the shortness of the interval, but there seems to be no other suitable word.

10. Probably ν [έα or ν [$\hat{v}\nu$. The subject of the infinitives is apparently σιτικά, not $\hat{a}\pi a \hat{t} \tau \eta \sigma i \nu$.

11. σωματισθῆναι: the latest discussion of this verb and σωματισμός is in Preisigke, Fachwörter, 167–8, where references to the earlier literature are given. Preisigke wishes to translate σωματίζειν 'verkörpern', i.e. put in the body of a document, and to connect it with the Byzantine use in e.g. P. Cairo Masp. 67133. 6 Ἰερημίας νομικὸς μαμτυρῶ $\hat{\sigma}$ καὶ σωματίσας ἔγραψα, which is generally regarded as different from the use in e.g. 1044. 26 ων (ἀρουρῶν) ἐσωματίσθησαν ᾿Αρσινόῳ ἄρουραι ε. An unpublished Byzantine ἐπίσταλμα σωματισμοῦ from Oxyrhynchus, similar to 126, has κούφισον . . . τελέσματα . . . ἐκ τοῦ ὀνόματος Ἰουλιανοῦ . . . καὶ ἔνεγκον καὶ σωμάτισον εἰς τὴν ἐμὴν προσηγορίαν, σωμάτισον there corresponding to θελήση . . . βαρέσαι in 126. 8. The word seems, in spite of Preisigke, often to have a special reference to responsibility for taxes.

 $\kappa \alpha [\tau \alpha \chi \omega \rho \iota \sigma \theta \hat{\eta}] \nu \alpha \iota$: this word gives a suitable sense, but is rather long for the lacuna, which does not elsewhere seem to exceed 8 letters. $\kappa \alpha [\tau \alpha \gamma \rho \alpha \phi \hat{\eta}] \nu \alpha \iota$ (in the sense of 'described') is the right length, but $\kappa \alpha \tau \alpha \gamma \rho \dot{\alpha} \phi \epsilon \iota \nu$ in connexion with land usually refers to transference of ownership.

16. $\gamma \epsilon [\nu \dot{\eta}] \mu [a \sigma \iota \text{ is possible in place of } \gamma \dot{\epsilon} [\nu \epsilon \sigma] \iota [.$

1461. REGISTRATION OF A SHOP.

A.D. 222.

This registration (ἀπογραφή) of a vegetable-shop in the reign of Severus Alexander presents some novel features, being addressed apparently to a former ύπομνηματογράφος and a former chief-priest. The papyrus is broken at the top, but the writing on the verso, which was subsequently used for an account of payments for rents (beginnings of 12 lines), has a margin above it, and probably nothing is lost before l. 1 of the recto, though it is possible that two former ύπομηματογράφοι were mentioned, not one. Property-returns, other than κατ' οἰκίαν ἀπογραφαί (with which 1461, as is shown by the date, has nothing to do) and returns of unwatered land (e. g. 1459), were usually sent to two βιβλιοφύλακες, and this may have been the actual rank of the two ex-magistrates in 1461; cf. the omission of the title βιβλιοφύλακες with the γ(υμνασιαρχήσαντες) in 1028. 3 (1452. 2, n.). As a rule ex-gymnasiarchs are found as βιβλιοφύλακες, but several instances of other ex-magistrates in that position occur (cf. Preisigke, Beamtenwesen, 34-9). Of the two in question here one had held a higher, the other a lower, office than that of gymnasiarch; cf. 1412. 1-3, n. The shop was owned by the Imperial fiscus, and the writer of the papyrus, who was apparently the lessee, was liable for the repairs, appending a receipt for payments which he had made to an ἀπαιτητής (cf. 1419. 4, n.). General ἀπογραφαί of property according to the rules laid down by Mettius Rufus in 237, viii are not known to have taken place in the third century, and are not certainly attested after A. D. 131. 1461 seems to belong to the same class as P. Brit. Mus. 940-5 (iii. 117-21), but to have been sent in unduly late. Sellers of vegetables were apparently subject to a tax called διπ(λώματος) λαχα(νοπώλου); cf. P. Tebt. 360.

6. $\epsilon \nu \epsilon \rho \gamma'(?) \Pi$. 8. γ corr. from a(?); cf. exegetical n.

'To Aurelius . . ., ex-hypomnematographus, and Aurelius Horion, ex-chief-priest, from Aurelius Hermaiscus. I register the fact that I have a vegetable-seller's shop in working order from Pachon of the 3rd year up to the present day, situated in the said 3rd year at Psou in Imperial ownership in Broad street, and have paid for repairs 20 drachmae more through Dioscorus, collector, as stated in the receipt. The 2nd year of the Emperor Caesar Marcus Aurelius Severus Alexander Pius Felix Augustus, Hathur 20. The copy of the receipt is as follows: For the vegetable-seller's shop of Hermaïscus I have received through Dioscorus for repairs 20 drachmae more; the 4th year on account 20 dr.; item 20 dr.; item 20 dr.; item 20 dr.; item the remaining 24 dr.; total 124 dr.'

6-7. $\dot{\epsilon}\nu\epsilon\rho\gamma(\acute{o}\nu)$: or $\dot{\epsilon}\nu\epsilon\rho\gamma[o]\hat{\nu}$ (with $\lambda\alpha\chi\alpha\nu\sigma\pi\omega\lambda(\epsilon\acute{\iota}o\nu)$ preceding; cf. l. 22) or $\dot{\epsilon}\nu\epsilon\rho\gamma[o]\hat{\nu}(\nu)$; cf. crit. n.

7. γ ($\tilde{\epsilon}$ rovs): sc. of Elagabalus, the mention of whose name is avoided, as in l. 25.

8. $\tau_0(\hat{v})$ $a\dot{v}'(o\hat{v})$ γ ($\check{\epsilon}\tau ovs$): the number was apparently a, at any rate originally, but this is inconsistent with $\tau_0(\hat{v})$ $a\dot{v}\tau(o\hat{v})$, and, as β (cf. l. 15) cannot be read, it is best to suppose that some superfluous ink above the end of the a represents the cross-bar of a γ , the loop of the a being left uncorrected.

9. $\pi\rho\delta s \, \tau\hat{\phi} \, \Psi\circ\hat{v}$: an island called $\Psi\delta$ near Syene is known from Dittenberger, Gr. Or. Inscr. i. 168. 42 (cf. ii. 547), and $-\psi\delta$ with the prefix $T\epsilon\rho\tau\circ\nu$ - (found in several Hermopolite villages) occurs in P. Ryl. 108. 12. $\Psi\circ\hat{v}$ seems to have been a building or $\tau\delta\pi\circ s$, but the last letter is doubtful, being perhaps η . $\Psi\delta\phi$ cannot be read, if $\epsilon\nu$ is right; and, as the vestige before ν suits ϵ better than ω , $\Psi\delta\phi$ (ϵ) ν or $\Psi\delta\omega\nu$ (ϵ) ν is unsatisfactory.

10. The Πλατεία gave its name to an ἄμφοδον at Oxyrhynchus; cf. e.g. 248. 17.

12. $\mathring{a}\lambda(\lambda as)$ ($\delta\rho a\chi\mu as$) κ : cf. l. 24, to which this payment refers, having been made apparently in the 3rd year of Elagabalus. κ suits the vestiges better than any other number, κδ or ρκδ (cf. ll. 29–30) being inadmissible. It is not possible to read $\alpha i \lambda(\alpha \pi \alpha i)$ here (cf. l. 29) and regard it as a mistake for $\tau \dot{\alpha} s \lambda(\alpha i \pi \dot{\alpha} s)$, though in l. 24 the writer seems to have confused $\ddot{\alpha} \lambda(\lambda a s)$ with $\alpha i \lambda(\alpha i \pi a i)$.

22. $\lambda a \chi a \nu o \pi \omega \lambda \epsilon i o [v]$: or possibly $\lambda a \chi a \nu o \pi \omega \lambda i o v$, but not $-\pi \omega \lambda o v$ or $\pi \omega \lambda i \kappa o [\hat{v}]$.

23. ¿σχον: who issued the receipt is not stated.

24. $\tilde{a}\{\iota\}\lambda(\lambda as)$: cf. l. 12, n.

1462. Two Notifications of Cessions.

15 × 11.7 cm.

A.D. 83-4.

These two documents, addressed to the official in supreme charge of the administration of catoecic land (καταλοχισμοί), were joined together and numbered probably in the office of the local agent of the department (II. 2-3, n.). They were written by persons to whom landed property had been ceded (at any rate in the second case by purchase; cf. ll. 29-30, n.), but owing to the loss of the conclusions the precise purpose of the notifications is obscure. Probably, however, they exemplify the process of $\mu\epsilon\tau\epsilon\pi\nu\rho\alpha\phi\dot{\eta}$, i. e. transference of ownership in the official register of catoecic land, referred to in 273. 18 sqq. (= M. Chrest. 221) κα τοι κικής γης ἀρούρας πέντε ας και εξέσ, ται τη Γαία... από τησοε της όμολογίας δι' έαυτης μετεπιγράφεσθαι [διὰ τῶν κὶαταλοχισμῶν. The communications addressed by the office of καταλοχισμοί to subordinates (P. Flor. 92) or to agoranomi (e.g. 45-6) are likely to have been the direct consequence of similar notifications. On the general evidence concerning the transfer of catoecic land see 45. int., Preisigke, Girowesen, 497 sqq., where the process as explained is probably much too elaborate, Mitteis, Grunds. 111-12. Both documents in 1462 mention contracts made through village γραφεία, i.e. parallel to those drawn up in the ἀγορανομείον or μνημονείον of the metropolis, which are probably indicated by the ὁμολογία in 45. 7 (cf. Mitteis, Chrest. 222. int.). In the second case there was an interval of at least three months between the date of the contract (Pauni of the 2nd year, 1, 35) and the notification (in the 3rd year), which is accounted for by the fact that the contract was made in a distant part of Egypt; in the first case the interval is likely to have been less, especially if Παχ ών (the 9th month of the year) in 1. 14 is right. But in any case the procedure seems to have been slower than that exemplified by 45, where the officials of the καταλοχισμοί-office are found communicating with the agoranomi on the day on which the sale was drawn up. With regard to the nature of the contracts we share Mitteis's objections to Preisigke's hypothesis that two different ones were necessary, and regard 273 as on a level with C. P. R. I (M. Chrest. 220) and an example of the kind of agreements indicated in 1462.

To Tarutillius, superintendent of the distribution of lands, through his agent Plutarchus, from Demetrius son of Callias, inhabitant of the village of Sinaru in the lower toparchy. I have had ceded to me together with other property subject to the ἐγκύκλιου-tax, by a contract executed through the record-office of Noïs and other villages in the territory of the Alexandrians in the month of Pauni of the past second year of the Emperor Caesar Domitianus Augustus Germanicus, from Eutych . . . son of . . . '

2-3 (=23-4). These lines must have projected if the restoration is correct, for only 14 and 13 letters would be expected in the two lacunae. Possibly a whole line is lost at the top, but Col. i is already higher than Col. ii. For $\pi\rho\delta$ s $\tau\delta$ 0 κ δ 1 πρ δ 5 το δ καταλοχ(ισμο δ) των κατοίκ(ων) της Α[ιγύπτον in Λ.D. 88. cf. 174, where he is called ὁ καθεσταμένος ἐπιτηρητής καὶ χειριστής καταλοχισμών 'Οξυρυγχίτου

(A.D. 88), and 345.

6-7. For the Alexandrian tribe-name there are several possibilities, but of the known deme-names $Z_{\eta\nu\epsilon\iota\sigma}$ is the only one short enough for l. 7. It occurs in combination with the tribe-names Προπαπποσεβάστειος and Σωσικόσμιος, which are both unsuitable here; cf. the list in Jouguet, Vie munic. 130-1.

9-10. Ἡραΐσ[κη κατά: Ἡραΐs is a very common feminine name, but it is not easy to fill up the lacuna. 'Hpatokos is fairly common.

19. [....] εσίου: the vestige before σ suits ϵ or a better than η , and to $[\dot{\phi}\mu \gamma \nu]\eta \sigma iov$ there is the further objection that the word following $]\chi ov$ (or $]\tau ov$) in l. 20 is not $\Delta \iota \sigma \kappa \dot{\phi}\rho ov$ (cf. l. 4), although apparently a proper name. $[vio\theta]\epsilon \sigma iov$ 'adopted' is not an attested form (though cf. $\dot{a}\phi\dot{\epsilon}\sigma iov$) and is too short.

23-4. Cf. ll. 2-3, n.

29-30. ὑποπείπτο (υσιν) ἐνκυκλίφ: the tax on sales was 10 per cent. of the price at this period; cf. 242. int. The τέλος καταλοχισμῶν paid by incoming catocci (P. Tebt. 357, Wilcken, Grundz. 305) was different; cf. 1472. 25.

32. Νώεως: this village was unknown. For the ᾿Αλεξανδρέων χώρα see 1273. 8, n.

1463. APPLICATION FOR EXAMINATION OF A SLAVE.

27.2 × 15 cm.

A.D. 215.

An application for the examination (ἀνάκρισις) of a female slave, sent to the nomarch of Antinoöpolis (l. 1, n.) through his deputy by the intending purchaser, with her signature and that of the seller. All this part of the papyrus is very well preserved, but the last few lines (26-35), which contain a letter from the deputynomarch, either issuing the required certificate of ἀνάκρισις or authorizing it to be made, are in the essential portion too much damaged to be intelligible. The application was written a few years after the constitutio Antoniniana, and naturally all the persons referred to are Aurelii. The mention in two cases (those of the guardian of the purchaser and his proxy; ll. 5 and 20) of Alexandrian tribeand deme-names is not surprising (cf. e.g. 1458. 6); but, since the buyer was resident at Oxyrhynchus and the seller in the Heracleopolite nome, it is remarkable that the question of ἀνάκρισις should be referred to an Antinoïte official. Apart from the present document, all that is known about that process is that it was preliminary to the sale of a slave and was conducted by various officials; cf. P. Brit. Mus. 251. 6-8 (ii. 317; = M. Chrest. 270) αναδέδωκαν δε οί αποδόμενοι τη εωνημένη ην πεπόηνται επί της δικαιο[δ]οσίας (τ'ων οικετων ανάκρισιν ουσαν τη ένεστ ώ ση, P. Leipzig 4. i. 15-17 (= M. Chrest. 171) ή υπερ ασφάλειαν μετά και της à πογραφής και ἀνακρείσεως ής πεπρόηται two proper names τώ και Ίππία τοις άξι[ο]λιο]γω,τά τοις [ενά]ρχοις ύπομνημ(ατογράφοις) μετά καὶ της ...] προκτητικής άσφαλείας . . . ανέδωκεν ό ά ποδόμενος , 1209. 19-21 ανα κριθίση ς της Τερεύτος ώς δια τοῦ προτέρου χρηματισμοῦ [δηλοῦται]. Mitteis (Grunds. 192) explains ἀνάκρισις as a permit for the sale, Preisigke (Fachwörter, s.v.) as a certificate containing an official description of the slave. The fact that a precise description of the slave is given in the application (1463. 10–11), and that $\gamma \nu \omega \rho i \zeta \omega v$ occurs in the letter of the deputy-nomarch (l. 30; cf. the $\gamma \nu \omega \sigma \tau \hat{\eta} \rho \epsilon s$ who appear in connexion with the $\epsilon \pi i \kappa \rho \iota \sigma \iota s$ of slaves and others in 1451. 27), indicates that the 'examination' was intended to establish the identity of the slave, and somewhat resembled the process of $\epsilon \pi i \kappa \rho \iota \sigma \iota s$; cf. 1451. int. The intervention of the Antinoïte nomarch may have been due to the circumstance that the birth-certificate of the slave was deposited at Antinoöpolis during a former period of residence of her mistress at that city. The beginnings of ll. 30–1 are on a separate fragment, of which the exact position is uncertain; it can be assigned to the beginnings of ll. 28–9 or 29–30.

'To Aurelius Ammonius, nomarch of Antinoöpolis, through Aurelius Apollo also called Serenus, his deputy, from Aurelia Claudia daughter of Sarapion, of Oxyrhynchus, with her guardian, who is her husband, Marcus Aurelius Ammonius son of Dionysius son of Amerimnus, of the Sosicosmian tribe and Althaean deme. As I wish to buy from Aurelia Artemeis daughter of Amoïs and Taphamoïs, from Choinothis in the Heraeleopolite nome, acting without a guardian by the ius liberorum, a female slave called Tyrannis, of Asiatic descent, white-skinned, aged about 24 years, or by whatever other name she is called, I request that her examination may be held in accordance with the orders on the subject. Farewell.' Date, signatures of Aurelia Claudia and her guardian, the latter written by Serenus, and of Aurelia Artemeis, written by the brother of her husband, and part of a letter from the nomarch, through his deputy.

1. νομάρχη 'Αντινόου πόλεωs: the nomarch at Antinoöpolis seems to have taken the place of the strategus at other nome-capitals; cf. Kuhn, Antinoöpolis, 143 sqq.

8. The early Ptolemaic form of Χοινῶθις was Χοιβνῶτμις, found in P. Hibeh 112. 26 and 68. 3, which also indicates that it was in the Κωίτης toparchy (cf. 1416. 13, n.). Χοινῶθμις occurs in P. Stud. Pal. x. 8. 2 (4th cent.).

11. εὶ καί τι(νι) ἐτέρω ὀνόματι: this is the regular phrase; cf. B.G.U. 316. 12,

P. Strassb. 79. 2.

22. The fact that Aurelia Artemeis, though acting without a $\kappa i \rho \iota o s$ (l. 9), was unable to write is noticeable in view of the importance elsewhere attached to a knowledge of writing as a condition for dispensing with a $\kappa i \rho \iota o s$; cf. 1467. int.

27. 'Απολλωνίου: in l. 2 'Απόλλωνος.

28. Perhaps ἀντὶ ἀποδίόσεως, sc. of the charge for ἀνάκρισις.

29. $\tau \hat{\varphi} \ \tilde{v} \pi [: \text{possibly } \tau \hat{\varphi} \ \tilde{\iota} \sigma_i [\tilde{\iota} v \tau \iota, \text{ with } \tilde{\epsilon} \tau \epsilon [\iota \text{ in the next line}; \text{ but the bottom of } \iota, \text{ if that letter followed } \epsilon \tau \epsilon [, \text{ would be expected to be visible, and the position of the fragment containing the beginnings of ll. 30–1 is uncertain; cf. int.$

31. έπιτελε[υ... seems to be a participle, but έπιτέλε[ι is possible.

1464. DECLARATION OF PAGAN SACRIFICE.

A.D. 250.

On the recto of this papyrus is a libellus of the period of the Decian persecution, containing a declaration of conformity to pagan worship, like 658. Examples of these libelli from the Arsinoïte nome are now numerous; cf. P. M. Meyer, Abhand. d. Berl. Akad. 1910 and Gricch. Texte, 15–17, and P. Ryl. 12, 112. The present specimen differs slightly from the normal type, mentioning a $\theta \epsilon la \kappa \rho l \sigma ls$ (i. e. Imperial decree) in l. 6, and indicating that part, if not all, of the writer's family associated with him was represented by himself (l. 10, n.). The official signatures appended to most of the Arsinoïte libelli are here absent. 658 is incomplete at the end, but in the light of 1464 the signature in the last extant line of that papyrus is almost certainly that of the writer of the document.

The verso contains parts of ten lines of an account of names (e.g. $B\eta\sigma\hat{a}s$, $\Psi\epsilon\nu a\mu o\hat{v}\nu is$) and drachmae, written soon after 250.

^{&#}x27;To the commissioners of sacrifices at Oxyrhynchus from Aurelius Gaion son of Ammonius and Taeus. It has ever been my habit to make sacrifices and libations and pay reverence to the gods in accordance with the orders of the divine decree, and now I have in your presence sacrificed and made libations and tasted the offerings with Taos my wife, Ammonius and Ammonianus my sons, and Thecla my daughter, acting through me, and I request you to certify my statement. The 1st year of the Emperor Caesar Gaius Messius Quintus Trajanus Decius Pius Felix Augustus, Epeiph 3. I, Aurelius Gaion, have presented this application. I, Aurelius Sarapion also called Chaeremon, wrote on his behalf, as he is illiterate.'

1. [Toîs] ἐπὶ τῶν θυσιῶν αἰρεθεῖσι: this, with the perfect in place of the aorist, is the usual title of the commissioners; in 658. I they are called τοῖs ἐπὶ τῶν ἱερ(εί)ων [καὶ] θυσιῶν.

5. σέβειν: in the Arsinoïte libelli εὐσεβεῖν is used, more correctly.
9. [Τα]ῶτι: cf. e. g. 256. 4, B. G. U. 26. 18, and Ταεῦτος in l. 4.

10. Θέκλα: cf. e. g. 1059. 2 (5th cent.). Whether δι ἐμοῦ refers to her alone, or to the wife and sons also, is not clear; cf. int. In 658 a son and daughter are mentioned; but the Arsinoïte libelli generally mention one person only, even when ἐμᾶς occurs in the attestation of the officials.

 $\kappa[a]i$: this is superfluous, as the writer has participles instead of indicatives in Il. 6-7;

cf. 658. 11-12.

VI. PETITIONS

1465. PETITION CONCERNING THEFT.

14·3 × 10·5 cm.

First century B. C.

A petition to an official, complaining of a theft of corn and asking for the arrest of the suspected thieves. The script is practically uncial, resembling that of 1453 (30–29 B.C.), and the phraseology of the concluding section (ll. 9–16) is in the Ptolemaic style, so that the papyrus is as likely to have been written in the reign of Cleopatra (or possibly Ptolemy Auletes) as in the early part of the reign of Augustus. Owing to the loss of the beginning it is uncertain which magistrate is addressed, but the phrase $\kappa\alpha\tau\alpha\sigma\tau\eta\sigma\alpha$ èrì σ (l. 12) suggests the strategus or èπιστάτης φυλακιτῶν: cf. e.g. P. Ryl. 136. 14, 149. 23. Pauses are indicated by short blank spaces after $\kappa \omega \iota \tau \alpha \zeta \omega$ (l. 9), $\pi [\rho \omega \sigma \alpha \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda \lambda \omega \nu]$ (l. 10), and $\kappa \omega \mu \omega \omega$ (l. 13).

8. $\phi \nu \lambda a [\kappa] a$ of $a \lambda \omega \nu o \phi \nu \lambda$. above the line.

'... before I returned, thievishly carried off from the threshing-floor, which I own near Iseum Pekusios, as much as 4 artabae of wheat, and likewise from another threshing-floor, which I own near the same Iseum for the Crown-land cultivated by me, as much as 4 more artabae of wheat. I have suspicions against Sarapion, guard of the threshing-floors, and the others who sleep there. Wherefore having been wronged I appeal to you, and request you to give orders (to your subordinates) to search out the guilty persons and bring them before you, in order that I may recover the stolen property, and the persons who shall be proved guilty may receive due punishment, so as to prevent others, and that I may obtain relief. Farewell.'

1. $[a]\nu\epsilon\lambda\theta\epsilon[\hat{\nu}]$: $\pi\rho\hat{\nu}$ $\mu\epsilon$ may have preceded. π can be read in place of ν , and the following $a\pi\delta$ is very uncertain, but $[\epsilon\hat{\iota}]\sigma\epsilon\lambda\theta\delta[\nu\tau]\epsilon s$ $a\phi$, δ is inadmissible. The lacuna at the end of the line has room for 2 or 3 more letters, and $\tilde{\epsilon}[\chi o\mu\epsilon\nu]$ is possible, in spite of $\tilde{\epsilon}\chi$ $[\omega]$ in 1. 4.

2. Πεκύσιος Ἰσιείον: several villages called after shrines of Isis are known in the Oxyrhynchite nome (cf. 1488. 28, n.); but this one is new.

7. καθυπονοῶν οὖν: the sentence begins as if ἀξιῶ was to be the main verb, but the writer makes a fresh start in l. 9 with ὧν χάριν, adding two more participles. εἰς Σαραπίωνα is an unusual construction: the accusative simply after καθυπονοεῖν occurs in P. Ryl. 146. 19, the genitive in P. S. I. 168. 26.

8. ἀλωνοφύλα[κ]a: cf. the 6 ἀλωνοφύλακες mentioned together with an ἀρχέφοδος and ἀρχιπεδιοφύλαξ in a list of δημόσιοι of Seruphis, an Oxyrhynchite village, in a Leipzig papyrus cited by Wilcken, Grundz. 415. In P. Ryl. 90. 2, &c., ἀλωνοφυλ(ακίαν) is probably to be read in place of the unusual ἀγωνοφυλ(ακίαν).

10. $\pi[\rho o \sigma] a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda \lambda \omega \nu$: a participle has superseded the indicative as in l. 7, the writer making a pause after $-\lambda \omega \nu$ (cf. int.). This word is common in Ptolemaic petitions; cf. P. Hibeh 36. 1, 37. 2, Ryl. 68. 17, P. S. I. 172. 7.

15. πρὸς ἐπίστασιν ἄλλων: this phrase can now be recognized in the very cursively

1466. BILINGUAL REQUEST FOR A GUARDIAN.

A.D. 245. Plate I.

A request for the appointment of a guardian, addressed to the praefect Valerius Firmus by a woman, in both Latin and Greek. The writing is across the fibres, and the right-hand half of the document is lost, but can be restored by the aid of 720 (= M. Chrest, 324), a similar request in Latin to the same praefect two years later, and 1201, a bilingual application for agnitio bonorum possessionis in A.D. 258. The Latin cursive writing is much smaller and more rapidly penned than that of those papyri and 1114 (A.D. 237) and 1271 (A.D. 246). 720 was the original petition, containing the actual signatures of the applicant and her proposed guardian (both in Greek), with the answer made in the office of the praefect and a remark of assent, probably in the praefect's own handwriting. 1466 also has at the bottom the answer to the petition, but in Greek, not Latin, and since the signatures appended to the Greek text are not autographs, the document is clearly a copy made in the praefect's office, the Greek docket appended to the Latin text giving the number of the original petition, which had been entered in the praefect's books. The Latin version is probably only a partial copy of the original, the Latin date and answer being omitted in l. 2, but translated in ll. 6-7 and 10; cf. 1201. 21-2, where the Latin answer of the praefect is translated. Lines 1-3, which are close to the upper margin, may even have been written after ll. 4-10. The lower part of the papyrus contains traces of an earlier document which has been expunged, and on the verso are three widely separated lines, apparently of an account, in a different hand, besides traces of other writing at right angles, all of which seem to have been intentionally obliterated. The text of the account is $^{1}\lambda ... a. \eta ov \epsilon is \sigma \phi() \rho .[, ^{2}A\dot{v}\rho\eta$ $\lambda(iov)$ 'Axi $\lambda\lambda(iov)$ vi(ov) ϕ , 3 Avon $\lambda(iov)$ 'Ammoviov Ke ϕ a $\lambda($).[.

The juristic aspects of 720 in relation to the other evidence concerning the appointment of guardians are discussed by Mitteis, Zeitschr. f. d. Savignyst. xxix. 390 sqq., Grundz. 248 sqq. Local magistrates were also competent to appoint them before and after the constitutio Antoniniana (cf. 1473. 20, n.), and whether the guardian appointed by the praefect was permanent or πρὸς μόνην ταύτην τὴν οἰκονομίαν (56. 16) is not clear. Incidentally 1466 provides the earliest date for the praefecture of Valerius Firmus, which is carried back to Pachon 26 (May 21), 245. In P. Flor. 4. 5, written in the same month without mention of the day, a different praefect is found, Aurelius Basileus. The latter is also mentioned in 1277. recto as holding office on Mesore 25 (Aug. 18) of the 5th year of an unspecified reign, which is more likely to have been Gordian's (i. e. A. D. 242) than that of the Philippi (248), which was suggested in 1277. int. In 241 the praefect seems to have been Annianus (P. Strassb. 41. 17), and C. Julius Priscus was vice-praefect about this period (C. I. L. vi. 1638).

2. τ⁾ Π.

'To Valerius Firmus, praefect of Egypt, from Aurelia Arsinoë. I ask you, my lord, to give me as guardian according to the Julian and Titian law Aurelius Herminus. The 2nd year, Pachon 26. Sheet 94, vol. 1.

Translation of the Latin:

To Valerius Firmus &c. Presented on the 12th day before the calends of June in the consulship of the Emperor Philippus Augustus and Titianus. I, Aurelia Arsinoë daughter of Sarapion, have presented the petition, requesting that Aurelius Herminus should be appointed my guardian. I, Aurelius Timagenes (?) son of . . ., wrote for her as she is illiterate. I, Aurelius Herminus son of Dionysius, consent to the petition. The 2nd year, Pachon 26.

Unless you have the right to another guardian, I grant you the guardian for whom you ask.'

1. The restoration is derived from 720. 3-4, where et is omitted before Titia, whereas in l. 14 it was inserted, as probably here, since $\kappa[at]$ in l. 5 is practically certain, $T[i\tau tov]$ being inadmissible. rogo, domine, $des\ mihi$ also occurs in 1201. 3. Line 1 seems to have been in any case longer than ll. 4-8, and probably no word corresponding to $\epsilon n \nu \rho a \phi \delta \mu e \nu o \nu$ in l. 5 (inscribendum?) occurred in it.

2. The Egyptian date, which perhaps occurred also in l. 9, here belongs to the docket, the original Latin date corresponding to that in l. 6 being omitted; cf. int. The τ of $\tau(\delta\mu\sigma\sigma)$ (cf. crit. n.) was written like a ν , as in 1201. II $\tau(\delta\mu\sigma\sigma)$ els.

3. τῶν Ῥω[μαϊκῶν: cf. 1201. 12. 4. ἐρωτῶ . . . μοι: cf. 1201. 15.

5. ἐπιγραφόμενον was probably not represented in the Latin; cf. l. 1, n. For Ἰούλιον κ[al Τίτιον cf. l. 1, n., and for ἐδόθη 1201. 19.

7. For $\tilde{\epsilon}[\pi \iota \delta \hat{\epsilon} \delta \omega \kappa a]$ cf. 1201. 5 (in 720. 8 there is a lacuna), and for $u \hat{\epsilon} \tau \nu \nu \mu \epsilon \eta \eta \eta \tau a$ 1201. 6. 8. $\tau \iota \mu a [\gamma \hat{\epsilon} \nu \eta s]$: the reading is very uncertain. The first letter might be E or Θ , but $\tilde{\epsilon} \mu \epsilon \eta \tau a$ is unsuitable.

9. εὐδοκῶ τῆ δεήσει: cf. 720. 9-10. The insertion of the date is suggested by 1201. 21,

10. 720. 12–15 has quo ne ab [iusto tutore tutela] (so Wilcken, comparing Lex Salpensana l. 43) abeat, Pl[utammonem] e lege Iul. ct [Tit. auctorem] do, which means the same. The point of the reservation is illustrated by P. Tebt. 397. 25–6 ἐνποδίζομαι μὴ ἔχουσα τὸν ἐπιγραφησόμενόν μου κύριον τῷ τὸν συνόντα μοι ἄνδρα . . . ἐπὶ ξένης εἶναι καὶ μὴ περιεῖναί μοι πατέρα μηδὲ τοῦ πατρὸς πατέρα μηδὲ ἔχιν με ἀδελφὸν ἡ υίον. That papyrus dates from before the constitutio Antoniniana, but Graeco-Egyptian law did not differ appreciably from Roman on this point.

1467. PETITION FOR IUS TRIUM LIBERORUM.

25.8 × 8.1 cm.

A. D. 263.

This interesting document is a petition to a praefect from a woman, Aurelia Thaïsous also called Lolliane, claiming the right to act without a guardian in virtue of her possession of three children and ability to write, and asking for official sanction of her application. This was duly granted by the response added at the end, which is in the same hand as the petition, showing that the document is a copy, not the original. The beginning is lost, but evidently only a few lines containing the address are missing before l. I. The date (l. 29) is the 10th year of an unnamed Emperor, who is almost certainly Gallienus both on palaeographical grounds and because the same woman, with her alternative names generally reversed, recurs in 1475 acting without a guardian in the 14th year of that Emperor. The only other possible reign here is that of Severus Alexander, but the handwriting and the use of the epithet διασημότατος applied to the praefect strongly favour the later date. The praefect therefore is likely to have been Aurelius Theodotus, who is known from P. Strassb. 5. 6-7, 18 to have been in office on Mesore 21 of the 9th year and in an unknown month of the 10th year. On or before Pharmouthi 2 of the 13th year the praefect was Κουσσώνιος I . . . (P. Ryl. 165. 9), and perhaps another praefect who held office shortly before the 14th year was Claudius Theodorus (C. P. Herm. 119, recto iv. 25).

There are frequent references in papyri, especially after the constitutio Antoniniana, to Roman women acting χωρίς κυρίου τέκνων δικαίω κατὰ τὰ Ῥωμαίων čθη; cf. 1463. 9, Kübler, Zeitschr. f. Savignyst. xxx. 156 sqq.; but this is the first papyrus to illustrate the process by which the right was secured. The fact that so high an official as the praefect was addressed on the subject indicates that the privilege was by no means a 'reichsrechtliche Floskel', as suggested by Partsch in reviewing Kübler (Archiv, v. 472). The only extant parallel for 1467 is 1264, an application from an Oxyrhynchite citizen to the local magistrates for recognition of the right to ἀπὸ τῶν νόμων ἀσυλία, which was based (the correction εὐπαιδείαs for εὐναιδείαs in 1. 18 is confirmed by 1467. 11) upon the ius liberorum established by the Lex Iulia et Papia Poppaea; cf. 1264. int. The mention in ll. 4-5 of the number of children (by Roman law three in the case of a Roman woman, four in that of a freedwoman; cf. Kübler, l.c.) conveys the impression that they were all living, but it is not certain that the survival of the children was necessary for the granting of the ius trium liberorum. That a knowledge of writing was also generally required, though not an absolutely necessary condition (ll. 8-10, 13-15; cf. 1463. 22, n.), is new and interesting. Neither Roman nor Graeco-Egyptian law was known to have laid stress on this condition in connexion with the independence of women, though in the light of 1467 the point of ἐπισταμένη γράμματα in 56. 12 is now clear; cf. 1473. 21.

1468. PETITION CONCERNING OWNERSHIP OF SLAVES.

About A. D. 258.

A petition to the deputy-praefect, L. Mussius Aemilianus (ll. 1–2, n.), concerning the rightful ownership of some slaves. After a prelude in general terms (ll. 4–10; cf. 1469. 3–5), the writer accuses Syrus, his great-uncle, of having made a false claim to the ownership of two slaves born to a female slave belonging to his mother. This attempted fraud had been accidentally detected, and the writer's mother had taken steps (by petitioning a praefect?; cf. l. 28, n.) to vindicate her rights, which remained undisputed during her lifetime. Shortly before the date of the petition she had died, and complications had evidently arisen in connexion with the bequeathal of the slaves; but after l. 32 the papyrus, which becomes seriously damaged after l. 25, ceases to be intelligible, and soon afterwards breaks off, apparently at the point where the writer, having finished his narrative, was asking for assistance. Blank spaces, indicating a pause, occur after $\delta\iota\dot{\eta}\gamma\eta\sigma\iota\nu$ (l. 11), [$\dot{\epsilon}a\nu\tau\dot{\eta}\nu$ (l. 17), $-\theta\epsilon\nu$ (l. 20), $l\delta\iota$ [δ] (l. 26).

'To Lucius Mussius Aemilianus, the most eminent deputy-praefect, from Aurelius Theoninus also called Aphunchis, son of Dioscorus and Taaphunchis, of Oxyrhynchus. The wicked designs of those who are ready to commit crimes by artifice are not only made to be no avail, but are subjected to the decreed penalties of the laws by your active and in all cases unresting vigilance. Accordingly I, being the victim of such designs, appeal to your nobility with the full confidence that I shall obtain the rights due to me, my lord praefect. The statement of my case is as follows. My mother Taaphunchis obtained by inheritance from her mother, Thatres daughter of Apollonius, a serving-maid Thaësis, daughter of a slave born in the house, called Taaphunchis. This slave she registered in the house to house census in the 9th year of the reign of the deified Alexander, and held the ownership and possession of her for herself. On one occasion, when conducting an inquiry concerning building-land and examining the documents in the local public archives, she discovered that a fraud had been committed. She saw that her maternal uncle Syrus son of Apollonius and his wife registered . . . the children born to Thaësis, Apollonius and Harseis, and alienated the rights of lordship and ownership, which was ... and wrong, nay more it was (intolerable?) that they should take away slaves which did not belong to them as if they were their own. ... (my mother) did not maintain silence about this fraud, (but presented a petition?) to Titianus Clodianus; and during her lifetime the ownership of Harseis and Apollonius and usufruct of them were undisputed, that is to say . . . After my mother's death . months ago, . . . the heirs of the aforesaid . . . (made) new (declarations) concerning the slaves . . .

1–2. Mussius Aemilianus is also called διάπων τὴν ἡγεμονίαν in Euseb. Hist. Eccl. vii. 11. 9, and in 1201. 14 on Thoth 27 of the 6th year of Valerian and Gallienus (Sept. 24, 258). In 1201. 1 (the same day) he is styled praef (ectus) Aeg (ypti), as in P. Ryl. 110. 7 δ διασημότατος ἡγεμών on an unnamed day of Phaophi of the 7th year (Sept. 28– Oct. 27, 259). The holders of the praefecture during the reigns of Gallus and Aemilianus, and the first five years of Valerian and Gallienus are unknown; in Decius' reign Aurelius Appius Sabinus was praefect on July 17, 250 (C. P. R. 20. ii. 1), and for the praefects from the 9th to the 14th year of Gallienus cf. 1467. int. A coin with the inscription A(iτοκρ). K(aiσ). MI Αλμιλιανός, ascribed by Poole to this Aemilianus (cf. 1201. int.), is, as Mr. Milne informs us, a tooled coin of Philippus I, and therefore not really inconsistent with the names Lucius Mussius, of which the praenomen occurs only in 1468.

18. οἰ κο π [ϵδων : οἰ [κο] γϵ [νῶν (cf. l. 13) is inadmissible.]

24. .] $\delta[.]$ ro ν : or] $\delta[.]$ ro ν . $\hat{a}\nu$] $\epsilon[\kappa]$ ró ν cannot be read here, but $\hat{a}\nu$ [$\epsilon\kappa$ ró ν is possible in l. 25.

25.]ραν: it is not quite certain whether the supposed tail of a ρ (or possibly ι) before av belongs to this line or to the line below. ὑπαγαγεῖν is possible in place of ἀπαγαγεῖν.

26. λαογράφων: λαογραφ[ι]ων might be read; but the λαογράφων received census-returns (e.g. P. Flor. 4. 1; cf. 1468. 14–15), and the two slaves, being described as παίδες in l. 22, may have been under the age (14) for paying poll-tax. For the stop after $i\delta io[v]$ s cf. int. The first word of l. 27 may be a participle [...] $\sigma a\mu[\epsilon \nu \omega \nu]$.

27-8. $\sigma \iota \omega \pi \eta [\sigma \dot{\alpha}] \sigma \dot{\eta}$: $\sigma \iota \omega \pi \dot{\eta} [\sigma \alpha \sigma] \dot{\alpha} \dot{\eta}$ is inadmissible, but the dative is difficult, and perhaps $\sigma \iota \omega \pi \dot{\eta} [\sigma \alpha] \sigma \langle \alpha \rangle \dot{\eta} \mu [\dot{\eta} \tau \eta \rho \text{ should be read or } \sigma \iota \omega \pi \dot{\eta}$. There was a correction in l. 27 (cf. crit. n.), and the construction of ll. 26-q is very obscure.

28. Titianus Clodianus may well have been a praesect. The application to him was made after A.D. 230 (l. 15) and some little time (cf. l. 29) before the date of 1468.

1469. PETITION OF VILLAGE-REPRESENTATIVES.

10.5 × 24.3 cm.

A.D. 298.

A well preserved petition to Aemilius Rusticianus, an otherwise unknown deputy-praefect (l. 1, n.), from two comarchs on behalf of the village of Païmis which was situated in the western toparchy near the metropolis (1475, 22, n.). Their complaint was concerned with the repair of an embankment, and illustrates the difficulties experienced in carrying out the regulations which had been laid down a few years previously by the dioecetes in 1409. For this state of affairs the multiplication of officials was largely responsible. The embankment in question having broken down was first inspected by the δημόσιος γεωμέτρης, who estimated that 400 ναύβια (about 600 cubic metres) were required to repair it. The duty of supplying these was imposed upon the village by the χωματεπείκτης, and 250 ναίβια had already been dug. With these two officials the villagers seem to have been quite satisfied; their complaint was directed against a subordinate of the strategus, who intervened at this point, being apparently responsible for the ultimate disposition of the earth among different embankments. individual from corrupt motives, as the villagers hint, credited them with only 100 of the 250 ναύβια which they had dug, the remaining 150 being apparently transferred to another village, and the praefect was accordingly requested to set matters right. P. Thead. 17 (A. D. 332) is another petition to a praefect from a village, represented by three persons of whom at least one, Sakaon, was probably a comarch, though εναρχε δεσποται in 1. 4 represents, as is remarked by Wilcken, Archiv, vi. 300, $\tilde{\epsilon}\pi\alpha\rho\chi\epsilon$ $\delta\epsilon\sigma\pi\sigma\tau\alpha$, not $\tilde{\epsilon}v$ $\tilde{\alpha}\rho\chi\tilde{\eta}$ $\delta\epsilon\sigma\pi\delta\tau\alpha\iota$. The writing of 1469 is across the fibres of the recto and is continued on the verso, which is unusual. Evidently it was a draft or copy, the month being omitted in the date in l. 25, and the signature in ll. 23-4 being in the same hand as the rest of the document. The Greek is of poor quality; cf. 11. 8-10, nn., and 11. 16-17.

'To Aemilius Rusticianus, the most illustrious deputy in the most eminent office of praefect, from the inhabitants of the village of Paimis in the western toparchy of the Oxyrhynchite nome, through us, the comarchs of the present year, the Aurelii Pibemis and Nemesianus. It is with difficulty, my lord, that even when justice is shown to us in commands concerning us we could accomplish in full our duties, since, if any advantage of us is taken, our weakness will leave us no escape. There is a public dyke to the south of our village, in which there is a gap and places washed away, naturally requiring embankment. This dyke was estimated by the public land-surveyor to require 400 naubia, and the overseer of labour on dykes set us, the local inhabitants, to work, and made us bank up 250 naubia. Nor was this all that was imposed upon our village, since it resulted in the overseer of dykes making us responsible for the whole 400 naubia; but when the distribution of earth for the said dykes was made by the assistant of the strategus, who came first, probably for the sake of base profit—for it is the practice of the public land-surveyor, being cognizant of the localities themselves, to assign the repairs of each dyke to the neighbouring population in accordance with the size of each village—he for gain, as I said, credited us with 100 naubia, although we had already banked up 250, clearly proposing to assign the remaining 150 naubia to others. Since the official entrusted with the dykes by the praefecture than whom there is no better witness, knows of the work done by us, and the unfairness of the assistant of the strategus is evident, we appeal to you by this petition, entreating you to order by your sacred signature whomsoever your highness may approve of, or the overseer of dykes, to measure the embankment again, and to credit us with the naubia which we have previously banked up on the said dyke, we being ready to perform any other work which you may choose for us in the locality to which we were ordered.

We, the Aurelii Pibemis and Nemesianus, sent the petition to be presented. I, Aurelius Plution, wrote it on their behalf at their request, as they stated that they were illiterate. In the consulship of Anicius Paulinus for the second time and Virius Gallus.'

1. διαδεχο(μένφ) τὰ μέρη τῶν ἐξοχωτάτων ἐπάρχων: cf. P. Flor. 89. 1–2 (corr. by Wilcken, Archiv, iv. 453) διέ]πων τὰ μέρη τῆς διοικήσεως τῆ[s]ς... ἐξοχώτατος (eminentissimus) occurs frequently in inscriptions, especially those referring to praefects of the Praetorian guard or of Syria (cf. Magie, De Roman. vocab. sollemn. 103-4), but in Egypt is very rare. The only instance seems to be P. Cairo Masp. 67009. 1-2 την εξο_λ[ω]τάτη[ν ὑμετέραν] ψιλανθρωπίαν, referring to a dux of the Thebaid. The division of Egypt into three provinces, Jovia, Herculia, and Thebais, is generally assigned to A.D. 297, i. e. the year before that in which 1469 was written, so that Aemilius Rusticianus might be a praeses Herculiae; but petitions to the praefect of Egypt from inhabitants of Herculia in the reign of Diocletian or shortly after are common, e.g. 1470 (cf. Gelzer, Studien, 5), and that official is more likely to be meant here. The ordinary epithet of both the praefect of Egypt and the praesides of Herculia and Thebais was διασημότατος (perfectissimus) at this period. On Aug. 19, 299, the praefect of Egypt was Aelius Publius (1416. 29, n.).

8. ο]ικίζοντας τοις τόπο[ι]ς = οικούντας τους τόπους.

9. ναύβια υ ἐπέκειτο ἡμῖν ὁ ἐπὶ τῶν χωμάτων: for the confusion of construction cf. 1434.

10. ἐπειδή: this sentence is incomplete, the writer starting on a parenthesis in l. 11, and having forgotten the construction when l. 14 is reached.

11. a] lσχροκερ δίας: perhaps a] lσχροκερ[δείας ι] δίας, but from l. 13, where there was almost certainly a blank in the corresponding space, it appears that a piece of the upper layer had flaked off before the papyrus was written upon. In both ll. 12 and 13 the space below κερ is also blank, though the upper layer is preserved.

12. $a \partial \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ is not very satisfactory, especially as the τ is very doubtful and there would be room for another letter in the lacuna after $\tau \delta \pi \omega [\nu, \nu] a \hat{\nu} \beta [\iota] o \nu$ (but not $\nu] a \nu \beta [\iota] \omega \nu$) could be read; but even if the space before $\pi o \iota o \hat{\nu} \mu \epsilon \nu o s$ was not blank and contained a word of five letters, it is difficult to find any construction for another substantive. An adjective making a complement of $\pi o \iota o \hat{\nu} \mu \epsilon \nu o s$ and governing $\tau o \hat{\iota} s \pi \lambda \eta \sigma i o \nu o \hat{\iota} s o \hat{\iota} \sigma \hat{\iota} s$ would be suitable, or possibly $\tau \hat{\iota} a \hat{\nu} \tau \eta \nu (sc. \tau \hat{\nu} \nu \delta \iota a \tau a \gamma \hat{\nu} \nu) [\sigma \kappa o \pi \epsilon \hat{\iota} \hat{\iota}]$, with $\hat{\iota} k [o \lambda o] \hat{\nu} \theta \omega [s \tau \hat{\omega}] \hat{\epsilon} \kappa \hat{\iota} \sigma \tau (\eta s)$ in l. 13, should be read. But $\hat{\iota} [\kappa o \lambda o \nu \theta] \hat{\epsilon} \hat{\iota} \tau \hat{\omega}$ suits the vestiges there better, and part of the ϵ of $\hat{\epsilon} \kappa \hat{\iota} \sigma \tau (\eta s)$ is written on the lower layer, there being probably a blank before it; cf. l. 11, n.

21. ναύβια [ν]: ναύβια (σ)ν (cf. l. 15) is improbable; for there is no sign of ν here being intended for a figure, and the preceding a is corrected; cf. crit. n.

1470. PETITION CONCERNING OWNERSHIP OF LAND.

20.8 × 24.8 cm.

л. D. 336.

The chronological order of the three documents on this papyrus is the reverse of their actual order, the second and third being enclosures; cf. 66-7 and P. Thead. 18. The earliest (ll. 9-18) is a petition to the praefect Flavius Philagrius (l. 4, n.) from a woman called Theodora, whose father, a veteran, had shortly before his death purchased a piece of land in her name. Although the price had been paid to the seller, possession of the land had somehow passed to the seller's brother, Demetrianus, and since he refused to give it up Theodora appealed for assistance. This was granted her by a letter (ll. 6-8) from the praefect to an official of the Oxyrhynchite nome, forwarding the petition and giving instructions for the settlement of the dispute. A copy of this letter was forwarded by Theodora to the official, with an explanatory note (ll. 1-5), the document having been drawn up probably in his bureau. The loss of 25-30 letters (in Il. 1 and 9, where the restorations are certain, 28 and 27 letters) at the beginnings of lines, though these are often capable of restoration, leaves some points obscure, especially the nature of Demetrianus' claim to the land, and the rank of the nome-official addressed in the first two documents. In A. D. 336 the logistes or the defensor rather than the strategus would be expected to be found in such a context; cf. 1426. 3-4, nn. But the name of the logistes on the 30th of the month in which 1470 was written is known from 1265. 5 to have been Αὐρήλιος Παράνιος ὁ καὶ Μακρόβιος, for whose full name there is not room in 1. 3 (in l. 6 probably only the title was given); and two months later than 1470 Φλαούιος 'Ιουλιανός διοικών εκδικίαν 'Ο ξυρυγχίτου occurs in 901. 3, so that it is almost equally difficult to suppose that the defensor was addressed, especially since the Nilus (?) who is mentioned in l. 16 may be identical with the official addressed in ll. 3 and 6. Hence there are strong grounds for supposing that the official in question was the strategus, who in 3.57 is coupled with the logistes in 66, an application corresponding to 1470 with the addition of the answer of the officials addressed. 67, which is arranged on a similar plan, is addressed to a προπολιτενόμενος, but this is too long a title for l. 6.

A copy of the petition which I presented, appealing to the nobility of my lord Philagrius, the most illustrious praefect of Egypt, and of the communication which I received from him ordering that his commands should be carried out, is as follows:

"Flavius Philagrius to the strategus (?) of the Oxyrhynchite nome. Aurelia Theodora having presented a petition of which the copy is appended . . ., See that . . . if they acknowledge her claim it is restored to her, or if they object Farewell." Copy of the petition.

"To Flavius Philagrius, the most illustrious praefect of Egypt, from Aurelia Theodora daughter of Eudaemon also called . . ., formerly a veteran, of Oxyrhynchus. My father in his lifetime bought from Pasipentous son of Melas, of the said city, in the area of the village of Sento of the Oxyrhynchite nome in the holding of Apollophanes, plot 109, registered in the name of Se. onius Pasis and Inaroous ..., one and a quarter arurae, $1\frac{1}{3}$ aru., of ...land, and paid him in full the price agreed upon ... in accordance with the sale which had been effected and had been arranged in my name. 1. Cf. 1265. 1-4. This line apparently projected to the left. On Pachon 6 (May 1) the consuls of the year were known (901. 1).

3. Nείλω should perhaps be restored; cf. l. 16, n., and int.

γενο μένου οὐετρανοῦ is to be restored.

4. Φιλαγρίου: this praefect is known from references in St. Athanasius to have held office from 334-6 and again from 338-40 (cf. Cantarelli, Prefetti, ii. 25-6); but he has not previously occurred on a papyrus.

5. For χρηματισμού cf. 1472. 3. 66. 20 has ἀποφάσεως at this point.

6. ἀντίτυπον: the use of this word as equivalent to ἀντίγραφον seems to be new.

7. $\phi[\rho \acute{o} \nu \tau] i \not \xi[\epsilon: \text{cf. } 67. \text{ 10} \phi \rho \acute{o} \nu \tau i \sigma \circ \nu \text{ at the corresponding point.}$ 10. $\Sigma \epsilon \nu \tau \acute{\omega}: \text{a village in the middle toparchy; cf. } 1285. \text{ 109.}$

11. κ(οι)τῶν ἐκατ(ὸ)ν ἐνν(ἐ)α: κοίτη as a parcel of land is used in Hermopolite papyri where Arsinoïte papyri have σφραγίδ. For the numbering of σφραγίδες and κοῖται in the wider sense of subdivisions of village-lands cf. 918 and Preisigke, S. B. 4296, 4325.

12. The initial lacuna no doubt contained a patronymic, followed by an adjective such

13. Δημητρί ανός: or possibly Δημήτρι os, since Δημήτριον is admissible in l. 16 and Δημητριανοῦ in l. 14 might be a different person.

16. διὰ] Νείλου: cf. int. and l. 3, n. Φλαουίου] or Αὐρηλίου] is possible.]νοίλου or]νοίδου could be read, but suggests no suitable name;]νοί δ(ι) οὖ (cf. e. g. 1469. 20) is unlikely, though a name without a title is not very satisfactory.

VII. NOTIFICATIONS TO ARCHIDICASTAE

1471. CONTRACT OF LOAN.

22.5 × 9.4 cm.

A. D. 81.

A contract for the loan of 38 drachmae for four months at the usual 12 per cent. rate of interest, in the form of a $\sigma v \gamma \chi \acute{\omega} \rho \eta \sigma \iota s$ addressed to the otherwise unknown archidicastes Pallas, who may have been related to the well-known freedman of that name in the reign of Nero. This class of public contracts, as distinguished from private $\chi \epsilon \iota \rho \acute{o} \gamma \rho a \phi a$, is illustrated by numerous Alexandrian papyri of the reign of Augustus in B. G. U. iv; cf. Koschaker, Zcitschr. f. Savignyst. xxviii. 270 sqq., Schubart, Archiv, v. 47 sqq., Lewald, Röm.-ägypt.

Grundbuchrecht, 87-91, Mitteis, Grundz, 65-7. As is the case with most of the later συγχωρήσεις, one of the parties was a Roman citizen; cf. 727. int. 1471, of which the formula closely resembles that of B. G. U. 1056 and 1147, 1-22, is interesting on account of the occurrence of the αγώγιμος clause (ll. 22-3), found only in the Alexandrian συγχωρήσεις. The distinction between the right of personal execution conferred by it and by the ordinary clause της πράξεως ούσης έκ τε αὐτοῦ... καθάπερ εκ δίκης (cf. 11. 29-32) is discussed at length by Lewald, Zur Personalexekution im Recht d. Pap. 27 sqq., but without attaining to a very definite conclusion. Apparently some kind of immediate obligation to personal service was meant; cf. Mitteis, Grundz. 46. In the Alexandrian συγχωρήσεις containing this clause, with one exception (B. G. U. 1156), the debtor who was ἀγώγιμος was a Persian of the Epigone, and it has been generally supposed that there was a special connexion between that class and this mode of execution. 1471 is incompletely preserved at this point (l. 7); but the reading Πε[ρσίνηs is preferable there to $\tau \circ \hat{v}$ [...., and is confirmed by 1639 (22 B.C.), where the debtors who are ἀγώγιμοι are again Persians of the Epigone. The document has been crossed through, showing that the loan had been repaid.

'Debt: sheet [.]3.

To Pallas, priest, archidicastes, and superintendent of the chrematistae and the other courts, from M. Longinus Castresius, an honourably discharged veteran, and from Teteoris daughter of P..., Persian, with her guardian, her son ..., both inhabitants of the metropolis of the Oxyrhynchite nome, Teteoris acknowledges that she has received from M. Longinus Castresius from hand to hand a loan of 38 drachmae of Imperial silver coin at the interest of 1 drachma per mina each month, which she is to pay regularly to M. Longinus Castresius, and is bound to return the capital in four months from Tubi of the present 1st year of the Emperor Caesar Domitianus Augustus without any delay; otherwise she is liable to arrest and detention until she pays in full to M. Longinus Castresius forthwith the loan of 38 drachmae of silver increased by one half, and the interest, and the interest for overtime at the same rate, M. Longinus Castresius having the right of execution upon both Teteoris and all her property, as if by a legal decision.' Date and signature of an official (?).

1. The numbering of συγχωρήσεις by κολλήματα is common in the Alexandrian examples. 5. K[αστρ]ησίου: cf. ll. 12, 17, 24, which show that it is part of M. Longinus' name, though in origin probably a title meaning 'born in the camp'; cf. καστρήσιε in P. Hamb. 31. 14.

7. Πε ρσίνης: cf. int. 16. εὐτακτήσειν corresponds to διδούσα . . . εὐτάκτως in B. G. U. 1147. 12. In e.g.

B. G. U. 1107. 11 the word is used in the middle, εὐτακτουμένην . . . τροφείοις.

25. παραχρῆμα: in the Alexandrian συχχωρήσεις concerning loans this word precedes ἀγώγιμον (cf. l. 22), where it is more suitably placed.

32. Συγχωρήσεις usually have ἀξιοῦμεν at the end before the date, but ἀξιοῦμεν is also omitted in B. G. U. 741.

34. $[T\hat{\nu}\beta\iota] \epsilon$ (cf. l. 19) = Dec. 31. The accession of Domitian, which took place on Sept. 13, was known in Egypt before Dec. 6 (P. Brit. Mus. 283).

35. This line, below which probably nothing is lost, presumably contained the signature of an official in the office of the archidicastes. At this point 268 has a name followed by κατακε[χ]ώρισται, 727 a name and an abbreviated word, B.G.U. 729 an undeciphered Latin subscription.

1472. APPLICATION CONCERNING DEPOSITS.

15 × 12.8 cm.

л. р. 136.

An application, similar to 1270, to a strategus from a man who had lent some corn on deposit and wished to recover it from the heir of his debtor, enclosing an authorization from the deputy-archidicastes (ll. 8-13, n.) to the strategus for the serving of notice ($\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{\alpha}\delta\sigma\sigma\iota s$) upon the heir (ll. 4-7), this being an answer to an application from the creditor (ll. 8 sqq.). The conclusions of the two applications, corresponding to 1270. 50-61, are lost.

This class of papyri concerning the archidicastes and arranged on the same plan falls into four main groups: (1) B. G. U. 239, 614, 832, 1038, P. Flor. 55-6, Giessen 34, in which the applicant cites in his favour the ὑπογραφή of a praefect to a petition or the result of legal proceedings before the archidicastes; (2) 286, 485, B. G. U. 888, P. Flor. 68, 86, in which the contract violated was a δημόσιος χρηματισμός (i.e. either a notarial agreement, or a συγχώρησις like 1471, or a διαγραφή of a bank; cf. Mitteis, Grunds. 58-72), and the substance of it was quoted; (3) 719, 1473-4, 1560, B.G.U. 578, P. Flor. 40 (?), Griech. Texte, 6, Preisigke, S. B. 5692 (?), in which the contract in question was a private χειρόγραφον, so that the application was for registration at Alexandria (δημοσίωσιs) as well as μετάδοσις, the contract (in Griech. Texte, 6 an ἐπίσταλμα to a banker) being quoted in full; (4) 1200, 1475, 1561, B. G. U. 455, 717, P. Leipzig to, P. S. I. 74, in which the application was for δημοσίωσις only, with a view to the information of the βιβλιοφύλακες των εγκτήσεων, the contract being, as in (3), quoted in full. With regard to 1270, 1472, and P. Brit. Mus. 908 (iii. 132) the difficulty arises that while only the substance of the contracts is given, as in (2), these are described in terms which do not necessarily imply that they were δημόσιοι χρηματισμοί (όμολογία in 1270. 21, έγγραπτοι ασφάλειαι in 1472. 16, ἐνεχυρασία coupled with ἔτερα χειρόγραφα in P. Brit. Mus. 908. 34: cf. e.g. the ἀσφάλειαι in 1473. 26, 1474. 10, which required δημοσίωσις). Possibly, as suggested in 1270, int. with reference to the ὁμολογία in question, the contract was really notarial in all three cases, and these do not really differ from the examples in class (2); but private $\chi \epsilon \iota \rho \delta \gamma \rho \alpha \phi \alpha$ seem to have been accepted as evidence in actions at law, at any rate in the second century (cf. 1408. 5, n.), and the practice of $\delta \eta \mu o \sigma \iota \omega \sigma \iota s$ clearly became much more general in the third century, when a clause concerning it was regularly inserted at the end of certain classes of contracts (e.g. 1473. 17–18). A comparison of the dates of these three papyri and those in class (2) with the dates of those in classes (3) and (4) rather suggests that before the reign of Marcus Aurelius (P. Flor. 40) or Commodus (B. G. U. 578) applications to the archidicastes for $\mu \epsilon \tau \dot{\alpha} \delta \sigma \iota s$ were made without much respect to the question whether the contract in question was $\delta \eta \mu \dot{\delta} \sigma \iota s$.

On the archidicastes see 1412. 1–3, n., Koschaker, Zeitschr. f. Savignyst. xxviii. 254 sqq., xxix. I sqq., on the process of μετάδοσις Mitteis, Grundz. 124 sqq., and on δημοσίωσις Mitteis, op. cit. 84–7, Jörs, Zeitschr. f. Savignyst. xxxiv. 107 sqq. 'To Apollinarius, strategus, from Heraclas also called Heraclides son of Heraclas, of Oxyrhynchus. A copy of the communication which I received from the record-office is appended.

Demetrius also called Domitius, deputy-archidicastes, to the strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, greeting. Give instructions that a copy of the memorandum which has been presented be served, as follows. Good-bye. The 20th year of the Emperor Caesar Trajanus Hadrianus Augustus, Epeiph 5.

To Aelianus son of the former exegetes Euphranor, neocoros of the great Sarapis, formerly praefect of the second cavalry cohort of the Commagenes, priest, archidicastes, and superintendent of the chrematistae and other courts, through Demetrius also called Domitius, exegetes-elect and deputy-archidicastes, from Heraclas also called Heraclides, son of Heraclas, of Oxyrhynchus. Whereas I am owed by Diogenes son of Heraclides son of Mincion, of the said city, in accordance with two written deeds of security made in the 12th year of Hadrianus Caesar the lord, the first in Thoth, for deposit, 24½ artabae 9 choenices of barley by the public ½-artaba measure, and the second in Phamenoth of the said 12th year, likewise for deposit, 24 art. 3 choen, of wheat by the public ½-artaba measure, all of which he agreed to repay me whenever I choose, in addition to taxes on sale and assignment of land, and whereas the periods have elapsed and no repayment has been made and Diogenes has died leaving as his heir his son . . ., I beg you to give instructions for a letter to be written to the strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, stating that he is to serve a copy of this memorandum upon . . ."'

1. 'Απολιναρίωι: he was still strategus on Mecheir 3 of the 22nd year (484. 2; cf. 579, which is undated).

7. The signature of a subordinate of the archidicastes and that of the clerk who wrote the olkovoula (cf. 1474, 6-7, nn.) are customary after the date at this point.

8–13. Neither Aelianus nor his deputy Demetrius also called Domitius was known previously. A year before the date of 1472 Claudius Philoxenus was archidicastes (B. G. U. 73. 3–5, 136. 23–4), and two years after it Nicolaus was deputy (P. Brit. Mus. 1222. 3 = iii. 126). For the association of the office with that of νεωκόρος of Sarapis cf. Koschaker, ορ. cil. 261. The occurrence of an ex-soldier as archidicastes is somewhat unusual; cf. Koschaker, ορ. cil. 260. The cohors ii Flavia Commagenorum equitata is only known to have been stationed in Dacia (cf. Pauly-Wissowa, Realencycl. iv. 274), and seems to have been different from the σπεῖρα δευτ(έρα) Κομμαγηνῶν ἱππική: but a προσκύνημα of soldiers belonging to an εί]λη Κομμαγηνῶν οccurs in C. I. G. 5057, an inscription at Talmis; cf. Preisigke, S. B. 4575. The mention of the rank of Aelianus' deputy (exegetes-elect) is interesting, since the other references to deputy-archidicastae give no information on this point. The office of archidicastes was sometimes combined with that of gymnasiarch (B. G. U. 614. 10 ᾿Απολλωνί]ω τῷ πρὸς τῷ μέρει τοῦ τῆς πόλεως γυμνασίου ἱερεῖ ἀρχιδικαστῆ), but, as the order in B. G. U. 614 indicates, was superior to it, the exegetes ranking next below the gymnasiarch at Alexandria, as in the nomes; cf. 1412. 1–3, n.

15. Cf. P. Brit. Mus. 908. 22 sqq. (iii. 133; = M. Chrest. 229), where in the restoration of l. 23 καθ' ην is to be omitted, and in l. 26 ['Aφροδίσιος] to be supplied.

19. ἡμιορταβί φ is new in connexion with μέτρ φ , but is perhaps to be restored in 1454. 9. μέτρον έξαχοίνικον and μ . τετραχοίνικον are common.

24–5, δπηνίκα έὰν αἰρῶμαι was the usual stipulation with regard to the return of παραθῆκαι, e. g. P. Tebt. 387. 9. For $[\tau]$ ελῶν ἐνκυκλίου καὶ καταλ $[\sigma]$ χισμῶν see 1462. 29–30, n.

25-7. ν και, ν ι of $\gamma[\epsilon]\gamma[\alpha\nu]\nu[\alpha]$ s and ω $\nu[\omega]$ were on a separate fragment, which is not certainly placed here, especially as καί [is not very satisfactory and καὶ χ [might be read. γεγοννίαs is however the regular word at this point; cf. e. g. 1474. 23.

27. The word after $vi[\hat{\varphi}]$ is presumably a proper name; cf. Griech. Texte, 6. 22–3. $|\pi\phi|$ in l. 29 suggests $\hat{v}|\pi\phi|\chi\rho\epsilon|\omega$ (cf. e. g. P. Flor. 56. 14), but $\hat{\eta}|\mu\epsilon\tau\epsilon\rho\omega$ \hat{v} does not fill the

28–9. For ϵn] $\delta o[\hat{v}]va[\iota$ cf. 485. 29; but the vestiges do not suit very well, and it is doubtful whether there is room for $\epsilon n\iota$. For the restoration of the end of l. 29 cf. l. 27, n.

33. $[\nu[.]a\nu \text{ might belong to } \mu \in \nu[\sigma]a\nu] [\kappa\nu\rho(a\nu) : \text{cf } 1270. 52-3.$

Fr. 1. 2.] $a\nu$ [does not belong to $[a\nu\tau i]\gamma\rho a(\phi a\nu)$ in l. 29.

3.]aφη[suggests ἐὰν δὲ καὶ] ἀφή[λικες ὧσι (cf. e. g. 485. 30); but that phrase would be expected in l. 31, and the slight traces of ll. 30-2 do not fit into the formula of 485 or 1270.

1473. APPLICATION CONCERNING A REMARRIAGE.

 26.2×25.4 cm.

A. D. 201.

An application to a strategus from Horion, enclosing an authorization from the archidicastes for the serving of notice ($\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{\alpha}\delta\sigma\sigma\iota s$) upon Horion's wife Apollonarion, following upon the registration at Alexandria ($\delta\eta\mu\sigma\sigma\iota s$) of the contract for their remarriage; cf. 1472. int. The earlier part of the papyrus, which is lost, but must have corresponded in arrangement to e.g. 1474, contained

(a) the beginning of the application to the strategus, (b) the authorization of the archidicastes, and the beginnings of (c) Horion's application to the archidicastes and (d) the contract. Lines 1-36 give the rest of (d), including in II. 19-33 (c) an application from Apollonarion to the deputy-strategus for the appointment of a guardian ad hoc, and his authorization. This is followed by the conclusion of (c) (II. 37-42) with copies of the signatures of a scribe of the archidicastes (II. 42-3 &s $\kappa\alpha\theta\acute{\eta}\kappa\epsilon\iota$... ' $A\theta\grave{\nu}\rho$ γ), and the archidicastes himself (I. 43 &[σ] $\eta\mu\iota\omega\sigma\acute{\alpha}\mu\eta\nu$), and the conclusion of (a) (II. 43-5). The documents are arranged, as usual, in the reverse of their chronological order.

The contract for remarriage is of an uncommon type; cf. B. G. U. 1101 (13 B. C.). The date of the original marriage does not appear, but it must have taken place before 194, since the offspring of it was aged 5 in 198-9 (l. 10). Apollonarion, who owned property (l. 13) besides her dowry (l. 5), became indebted both to the State in connexion with some vine-land (l. 3, n.) and to other creditors (ll. 4, 7-8, 15), and these debts may well have been connected with the separation. In Thoth (Aug. 29-Sept. 27) 197 the claims of the original contract were disposed of by a document of the nature of a divorce. apparently drawn up by a bank (l. 6, n.). By this the wife's dowry was repaid by Horion to Apollonarion, who made it over to her creditors (l. 5), and the legitimacy of the offspring was recognized (l. 9). Horion did not, however, break off relations with his former wife, for in the course of the same year 197-8 he lent her money to pay her dues to the State (II. 26-7), and before Pharmouthi I (March 27) had arranged to remarry her (l. 32). The actual contract, which was between the husband and wife like the Alexandrian συγχωρήσεις concerning marriage in B.G.U. iv, and not, as in most other marriagecontracts, between the husband and the parents of the wife, was drawn up on Pharmouthi 13 (April 8). There was probably no fresh dowry, such as is found in B.G.U. 1101, for there is no reference to a repayment of it in the provisions concerning divorce (ll. 11-16; cf. 1273. 25 sqq.); but Horion lent Apollonarion 2½ talents (ll. 34-5), and received security for the repayment of her debts both to himself and other creditors, being empowered to receive the revenues of her property until all claims had been satisfied (ll. I-8, 12-16). The legitimacy of the offspring was the subject of a renewed declaration (ll. 8-10).

The application for a guardian and the response (ll. 19-33) are parallel to P. Tebt. 397, Brit. Mus. 1164. (a) (iii. 156; cf. Wilcken, Archiv, iv. 550), and 56 (application only). The concluding sections (ll. 37-45) follow the formula of 719, so far as that papyrus goes, and show the correct restoration of a rather important lacuna in it (ll. 37-8, n.). The brief request to the strategus for μετάδοσις (ll. 43-4; cf. 1270. 57-8) does not indicate any breach of the contract, and seems to be merely a precautionary measure, the δημοσίωσις of contracts becoming frequent in the third century; cf. ll. 17-18, n. and 1472. int. The strategus himself is likely to have been Dioph(anes), who was in office at the end of the 8th year (199-200); cf. 899. int.

"... drachmae at the interest of I drachma per mina each month, apart from the three talents and more paid by Apollonarion, including the dowry provided by her parents to Horion at the time of their marriage, which contract was discharged in the past 6th year in the month of Thoth through the bank of the Serapeum at Oxyrhynchus. With regard to her other debts at interest Apollonarion shall be responsible for them, delivering to Horion the documents of settlement until the rest of her debts are paid off. Both Apollonarion and Horion acknowledge the son born to them, who was also acknowledged in the deed of divorce, Chaeremon also called Faustus, aged 5 in the present 7th year. Let the parties to the marriage therefore live together blamelessly, as they did formerly, observing the marriagerights, and let the husband provide the wife with necessaries according to his means; but if, which heaven forbid, they part from each other owing to a dispute, if this takes place before Horion recovers the aforesaid 2 talents 3,000 drachmae and the accrued interest, Horion shall take the revenues of Apollonarion's property until he recovers the debt, paying the taxes upon them, and for subsistence providing Apollonarion annually with 50 artabae of wheat by the aforesaid measure and 55 jars of wine, and shall repay the other creditors who may appear up to that time. But from the date on which all the debts are paid off, thenceforth Apollonarion shall take her own property, all the provisions of the contract being observed. This contract is valid, and whenever the parties to the marriage or one of them choose they shall effect the publication of it, both parties being responsible for the taxes and scribes' charges. The 7th year of the Emperors Caesars L. Septimius Severus Pius Pertinax Arabicus Adiabenicus Parthicus Maximus and M. Aurelius Antoninus Augusti, Pharmouthi 13. The copy of the request for a guardian is as follows: Ammonianus basilicogrammateus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, deputy-strategus. If there is no objection, no public or private interests being injured, you are at liberty, as you request, since you know how to write, to employ Eudaemon as your guardian for this transaction only. Signed. The 7th year of L. Septimius, &c., Pharmouthi.. To Ammonianus, basilicogrammateus and deputy-strategus, from Apollonarion daughter of Chaeremon . . ., of Oxyrhynchus, her mother being Carpocra . . . As I know how to write, and am making a marriage-contract with my former husband Horion son of Hierax, ex-exegetes of Oxyrhynchus, by the terms of which Horion obtains security for the sums which he lent me and paid in the past 6th year into the public bank on account of the revenue of vine-land . . . demanded from me, and further am acknowledging with him the son born to us jointly, Chaeremon also called Faustus, together with the other provisions concerning our cohabitation to be inserted in the contract by joint agreement, I request that you may appoint as my guardian for this transaction only Eudaemon son of Agenor also called Theoxenus, son of Apollonius, his mother being Taeus also called Demetrous, of the said city, who is present and gives his consent. I have paid the prescribed tax for my request. The 7th year &c., Pharmouthi 1. I, Apollonarion daughter of Chaeremon, have presented the application. I, Eudaemon son of Agenor, consent to it. I, Apollonarion daughter of Chaeremon, have been united to my former husband Horion in marriage, and have received the 21 talents, total 15,000 drachmae, of silver, and consent to all the aforesaid terms. I, Eudaemon son of Agenor, at her request have been appointed guardian of Apollonarion. I, Horion son of Hierax, have been united to Apollonarion in marriage upon all the aforesaid terms, and have agreed, whenever, which

And whereas I desire this contract to be publicly registered, I give to the city, because it is single and does not contain the provisions concerning the disposition (?), the prescribed 12 drachmae, and request you on receiving it from me with my attestation that the signatures appended to it are autographs, the first of Apollonarion, the second of her guardian and co-signatory, the last of myself, Horion, to register it together with this application, the original at the Library of Hadrian and a copy of it at the Library of the Nanaeum, and to give instructions for a letter to be written to the strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, stating that he is to serve a copy of this application upon Apollonarion, in order that she may herself know that henceforth the rights in virtue of it are assured to me, as by a public deed.

Let the proper steps be taken. The 9th year &c., Hathur 3. Signed.

This being so, I request that it be served upon Apollonarion in the proper way. The oth year &c., Pauni 10.'

3. ἀμπέλου πρόσοδ[ον: cf. l. 27, which shows that it was a tax, not one of Apollonarion's own πρόσοδοι (l. 13), and int. The impost προσόδ(ων) or $-\delta(ον)$ ἀμπελ(ώνων) or $-\lambda(ον)$ occurs in the nearly contemporary 1046. 3, and is parallel to the impost προσόδων φοινίκ(ων) or $-\kappa(ώνων)$ in Wilcken, Ost. no. 276; but the relation of it to the other known taxes upon vine-land is uncertain. 1436. 13, where οὐσιακοῦ φόρου παραδείσων occurs in a list of taxes, suggests that ἀμπέλου πρόσοδος might be equivalent to ἀμπ. φόρος, i.e. rent of vine-land belonging to the State; but πρόσοδος might refer to προσόδον γῆ (cf. 1446. 4, &c.). The present passage, especially if ὑπέρ is restored before λ]όγου, seems to connect the πρόσοδος with the 8-drachmae tax, which is known to have been levied upon vine-land, and was generally called σπονδή in the Oxyrhynchite nome; cf. 1436. 11, and P. Ryl. 216. 128, nn. For λ]όγου ὀκταδρ[άχμου cf. P. Ryl. 186. 3 λόγου (ὀκταδρ.) νομ(οῦ) [, the preceding entry recording a payment for ἀ]μπέλ(ου).

4. $[\chi][\lambda i]\omega\nu$ is unsatisfactory, for that word is spelled $\chi\epsilon\iota\lambda i\omega\nu$ later in the line, and if the letter before $\omega\nu$ was ι , the tail of it should have been visible. After $\delta[\rho a\chi\mu\hat{\omega}\nu]$ either $[\tau\epsilon\tau\rho]a\kappa\iota$

6. ἐλύθη: for λύειν in reference to payment of debts cf. P. Hamb. 1. 14, n., P. Ryl. 176.
3. The mention of the bank (cf. P. Ryl. 176) also indicates that the repayment of Apollonarion's dowry by Horion is meant; cf. int. and l. 9, n.

9. περιλύσεωs: cf. 129. 12 περιλύσεωs ρεπούδιον, and P. Giessen 30. 15 τὰ τῆς περιλ. γράμματα, both referring to divorce. Probably this document was identical with that concerning λύσις implied in l. 6; cf. int.

10-12. συμβιούτωσαν . . . ἀλλήλων: the usual formula; cf. e.g. 1273. 22-5.

17-18. ηνπερ όπηνίκα κτλ.: this is the earliest example of the stipulation at the end of contracts concerning marriage, sale, &c., which became stereotyped during the next thirty years in a slightly different form (e.g. 1273. 37-40, 1475. 33-4), omitting the references to taxes. The τελη consisted of (1) the usual 12 drachmae for Alexandria (l. 38; cf. 1475. 41), (2) the obscure τοῦ τιμήματος τέλη (1200. 45, P. Leipzig 10. ii. 21), which correspond to τὸ ὑπερ τῆς δημοσιώσεως ὡρισμένου in 1475. 42 (cf. n.), and to which the payment for δημοσίωσες in P. S. I. 109. 2 and the sums sometimes acknowledged by the first signatory to the authorization of the archidicastes (cf. 1474. 6, n.) apparently refer. The γραμματικά, i. e. payments to the scribe of the καταλογείου who drew up the οἰκουομία (1474. 7, n.), are not mentioned elsewhere, but probably correspond to the σπουδαί in P. S. I. 109. 7. The sharing of the expenses is not in accordance with the evidence (e.g. in ll. 37-8) that the person who made the application for δημοσίωσις was actually responsible for the charges.

20. 'Αμμωνια(νό)s: cf. 899. 34, where he was deputy-strategus on Pachon 27 (May 22) of the 7th year, the reading of the figure there being confirmed by the dates in ll. 22-3 and 31 here. On the competence of the exegetes, as well as the strategus, to appoint guardians see P Tebt. 397. 4, n. ὑπομνηματογράφοι (cf. 1412. 1-3, n.) were also competent, as is shown by 1645; but sometimes the praefect was petitioned on the subject (1466).

20-1. εὶ μηδὲν ἀντιπείπτει: so in an unpublished Oxyrhynchus papyrus cited by Wilcken, Archiv, iv. 550-1, which proceeds μητὲ (l. μηδὲ) δημόσιον ἡ ἰδιωτικὸν καταβλάπτεται, and omits επισταμένη γράμματα, for which cf. 56. 12 and 1467. int. In P. Ryl. 120. 25 εὶ μηδέ]ν is more probable than εἰ δέ τ]ι before ἀντιπείπτει.

22. πρὸς μόνην [ταύτ]ην τὴν οἰκονομίαν: cf. l. 29, 56. 17, P. Tebt. 397. 4, n., Brit. Mus.

1164. (f) 6-7, Ryl. 120. 26.

23. It is improbable that Fr. 1, which might be Π]αῦν .[, is to be placed after [Σεβαστῶν, for Pauni is not a suitable month for the response, the application having been made on Pharmouthi 1 (l. 32), and the contract dated on Pharmouthi 13 (l. 19). In P. Tebt. 397 the response is dated, but not the application; in P. Ryl. 120 the date of the application corresponds to that of the response, but is a later insertion.

27. ἀμπελου προσόδου: cf. l. 3, n., and int.

30–1. διέγρα $\langle \psi \rangle$ α . . . τέλος : cf. 56. 22. P. Ryl. 120. 17–18 alone indicates the amount, having τοὺς δὲ ὑπὲρ τῆς αἰτήσεως κελευσθέντας δίδοσθαι εἰς το . . [24 letters] πόλεως [δ] βολοὺς ἐννέα ῆμι[σν] διέγραψα ἐπὶ τὴν ἐν Ἑρμοῦ πόλει δημο[σίαν τράπεζαν.

33. $\pi\rho\omega\omega r[\tau]\iota$: $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\nu \nu[\delta]\nu[\tau]\iota$ (cf. l. 25) cannot be read, but may have been meant, if the scribe wrote $\pi\rho\omega\nu v[\delta]\nu[\tau]\iota$, as is possible. For $\pi\rho\langle o\delta\rangle\nu\tau\iota$ cf. e.g. P. Ryl. 154. 4, referring to a previous period of $\tilde{a}\gamma\rho\sigma\phi\sigma$ $\gamma\tilde{a}\mu\sigma\sigma$.

34. τάλαντ[α β] η μισυ: cf. l. 12.

37-8. δίδωμι ιβ: cf. 719. 30-i, where l. διδού[s τὰs] δρισθείσας (δρ.) ιβ ἔνεκα τοῦ μὴ περιέχειν με (?) τὰς περὶ [τῆς διαθέ]σεως διαστολὰς καὶ μοναχὸν δημοσιοῦσθαι. With the wrong restoration [δημοσιώ]σεως that passage was very obscure, and the technical meaning of διάθεσις here is far from clear; but 1473 shows that the subject of περιέχειν is the contract and in 719 με is probably to be corrected to μον, if μον cannot be read. In both papyri the contract in question was single, whereas where the clause ἔνεκα τοῦ (or διὰ τὸ) κτλ. is omitted it was τρισσή (1561. 11, P. Leipzig 10. ii. 19) or δισσή (1200. 44, 1475. 41, B.G. U. 578. 14, 717. 23); and διάθεσις perhaps refers to the division of the copies of a contract among the parties, e.g. in 1273. 37. διά, though uncertain, suits the traces better than πρός, and ἔνεκα is more likely to have a causal than a final sense.

38. [ύ]ποκεχειρογραφημένον: cf. Griech. Texte, 6. 25.

40. On the two Alexandrian libraries see 34.

42. ἴνα [εἰδῆ αὐτ]ἡ ἀπὸ [τοῦ νῦν μέν]οντα: 1200. 50, 1475. 45, and P. Leipzig 10. ii. 26 have πρὸς τὸ μένειν, 485. 32 ἴν' εἰδῶσι καὶ ποιήσωνται . . . ἡ εἰδῶσι χρησόμενον (ὅπως ποιήσωνται . . . ἡ εἰδῶσι is more usual; cf. e.g. B. G. U. 578. 20), 1270. 52 has ἴν[α εἰδῶσι μένουσαν | κυρίων την όμολογί[αν . . . τνα [αυτη είδ]η is less likely.

ώς καθήκει: cf. 1270. 54, 1475. 50, nn. In the corresponding passage Griech. Texte, 6. 35 P. M. Meyer reads $\gamma(\nu\epsilon\sigma\theta\omega)$ ώς καθ.; but the γ is not certain and in any case is omitted in the Oxyrhynchite examples. This endorsement was written for the archidicastes by a γραμματεύς, the signature of the archidicastes himself being ε[σ]ημιωσάμην in l. 43; cf. Griech. Texte, 6. 38.

45. Geta occurs in the date-formulae in Egypt in the 9th year of Severus on Tubi 13 (P. Brit, Mus. 347. 4 = ii. 71); cf. l. 43 where he is not mentioned on Hathur 3. B. G. U. 156. 11-12 (=W. Chrest. 175) of the 9th year is said to have Έπ(εί)φ after Εὐσεβοῦς, omitting $\Sigma \epsilon \beta a \sigma \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ and Geta; but we suspect a misreading of $\Sigma \epsilon \beta a (\sigma \tau \hat{\omega} \nu) \Phi a (\hat{\omega} \Phi \iota)$.

1474. APPLICATION CONCERNING A LOAN.

13.6 × 18.3 cm.

A. D. 216.

An application, similar to 1473, to a strategus from a woman with reference to the return of a loan, enclosing copies of (1) an authorization from the archidicastes for μετάδοσις (ll. 3–8), (2) her application to him for δημοσίωσις and μετάδοσις of the contract (ll. 8–11, 23), and (3) the contract itself (ll. 11–22); cf. 1472. int. The conclusion, corresponding to 1473. 37–45, is missing. The reference to a payment of 14 drachmae by the applicant at the office of the archidicastes (l. 6, n.) explains the corresponding passage in B. G. U. 578, which has hitherto been misunderstood. The terms of the loan, which was without interest, but subject to an increase of one-half if not repaid at the proper time, are somewhat unusual; cf. l. 18, n. A few corrections have been made in a different hand.

'To Aurelius Anubion, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, from Aurelia Didyme also called Dionysia, and however she is styled, through Aurelius Nilus, scribe. A copy of the communication which I have received from the bureau is as follows.

Aurelius Casius, priest and archidicastes, to the strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, greeting. Let a copy of the publication which has been effected be served, as follows.

Good-bye. The 24th year of Aurelius Severus Antoninus Caesar the lord, Mecheir 5. I, Marcus Aurelius Harpocration, have signed for 14 drachmae. I, Marcus Aurelius Nemesianus also called Irenaeus, and however I am styled, scribe of the bureau, wrote the document.

To Lucius Septimius Aurelius Casius, priest, archidicastes, and superintendent of the chrematistae and other courts, from Aurelia Didyme also called Dionysia, and however she is styled. Appended is a copy of the bond issued to me in duplicate and of the signature "Pekusis son of Peusirion and Tetheus, of Oxyrhynchus, to Aur. Didyme also called Dionysia, and however she is styled, through Suchammon, freedman of your grandfather Aurelius Diogenes, greeting. I acknowledge that I owe you the 45 artabae of wheat which I received from you on loan, and will repay these to you without interest in the month of Epeiph of the present 23rd year in wheat that is new, pure, unadulterated, unmixed with earth or barley, sifted, and measured into the public granary here in the Oxyrhynchite nome by your receiving-measure of the village of Syron, the measurement being performed by your agents, all without any delay, or, if I fail, I will forfeit to you interest for the overtime at the rate of half the capital, you having the right of execution upon both my person and all my property of every kind. This bond, written in duplicate, is valid wheresoever it is produced and whosoever produces it on your behalf. The 23rd year &c., Choiak 20. I, Pekusis son of Pausirion, have received the aforesaid 45 artabae, and will repay them as aforesaid." The period of the loan having expired and no repayment having been made, I desire that of this duplicate bond [a single copy should be sent to the Library of Hadrian &c.'

Αὐρηλίω 'Ανουβίωνι: cf. 1432. 1, n.

4. $\tau \epsilon \tau \langle \epsilon \rangle \lambda i \langle \omega \rangle \mu \epsilon \nu \eta s$ δημοσιώσεωs: so 1200. 7, 1475. 5 in the secondary application to the archidicastes, to which there is nothing corresponding in the earlier examples such as 1474. The archidicastes himself in the letter corresponding to 1474. 3–6 there uses $\tau \epsilon \tau \epsilon \lambda \langle \epsilon \iota \omega \mu \epsilon \nu \eta s \rangle \pi \rho \sigma \sigma \phi \omega \langle \nu \dot{\eta} \sigma \epsilon \omega s \rangle$ (1200. 2, 1475. 1). The usual phrase at this point is $\delta \epsilon \delta o \mu \dot{\epsilon} \nu \sigma \omega \dot{\nu} \tau \omega \rho \nu \dot{\eta} \mu \alpha \tau \sigma s$, e.g. 485. 5; but B. G. U. 578. 4 has $\delta \eta \mu \sigma \sigma \iota \dot{\omega} \sigma \epsilon \omega s$ $\chi \rho [\eta] \mu \omega [\tau \iota \sigma \mu \sigma \dot{\omega}]$ where 1474. 3

6. σεσημίωμαι (δραχμὰs) ιδ: cf. B. G. U. 578. 8, where the words after σεση(μείωμαι), which Mitteis (Chrest. 227. 8, n.) did not understand, are (δραχμὰs) ε. This entry apparently corresponds to that in P. Leipzig 10. ii. 32–3, to which 1200. 4 and 1475. 3 (cf. n.) are parallel, and the first of the two signatories usually found at this point (e. g. 485. 7–8) was probably ὁ πρὸς τῆ διαλογῆ τῆς πόλεως, the second being regularly, as here, a scribe of the καταλογεῖον (in B. G. U. 888. 4 called νομογράφος ἀγορᾶς), who wrote the document (οἰκονομία: cf. l. 7, n.). The 14 drachmae here may include the 12 drachmae regularly paid to Alexandria (e. g. 1473. 38), but part of the sum presumably belongs to the τοῦ τιμήματος τέλη (1473. 17–18, 1475. 42, nn.), like the 5 drachmae in B. G. U. 578, and the whole 14 drachmae may well be exclusive of the 12 drachmae for Alexandria. Perhaps they include γραμματικά (cf. 1473. 17–18, n.). The payments of 16 drachmae 1½ obols and 12 dr. [.] ob. in P. S. I. 109. 9, 23 seem to be for the δημοσίω(σις) of contracts, including σπονδαί, and to be of the same nature as the payment of 14 drachmae here.

7. οἰκονομίαν: Mitteis (Chrest. 239. int.) refers this only to the ὑπογραφή of the archidicastes, but the whole document is probably meant, especially if οἰκονομίαν [π]ᾶσαν is right in

B. G. U. 578. 9.

8. This archidicastes was previously unknown.

14. διαφόρου practically = τόκου: cf. l. 18, n., and 1040. int.

16. μέτρφ παραλημπτικφ: cf. 101. 41, where it is τετραχοίνικον χαλκόστομον. This measure was formerly explained by Wilcken (Ost. i. 772) as that used by officials called παραλημπτια, but he abandoned that explanation (Archiv, i. 1311) in favour of the view that it was equivalent to $\ddot{\phi}$ καὶ παρείληφε. This is, we think, unlikely, for in 1040. 17–19 μέ $(\tau \rho \phi)$ παραλ, σοῦ $\ddot{\phi}$ καὶ παρα $[\mu \epsilon]$ μετρήμεθα occurs. In favour of Wilcken's earlier explanation can be urged the parallelism of μέτρον σιτολογικόν (740. 17); but a 'receiving-measure' may be a technical expression like the δοχικόν or παραδοχικόν measure, which was contrasted with the ἀνηλωτικόν measure (P. Hibeh 87).

Σύρων: a village in the western toparchy (1285. 75).

18. διάφορον εξ ήμωτείαs: i. e. if the debtor failed to repay the 45 artabae in Epciph, he had to pay $67\frac{1}{2}$, i. e. the ήμωλία. It is more usual for a διάφορον of $\frac{1}{2}$ to be charged in place of interest, apart from penalties for delay; cf. 1040 and the ήμιόλιοι τόκοι in P. Reinach 15, &c. In 1640. 7 διάφορον εκ τρίτον occurs in a similar context, and in P. Strassb. 71. 8–9 l. εκ | τρίτον for the unsatisfactory μο[ν | τρίτον. That passage means that the borrower had to repay 4 artabae in place of the 3 which he received, not, as Preisigke supposes, that he actually received only 2 out of 3 artabae nominally lent to him.

23. Twenty-seven letters are expected in the first lacuna, and the first καί may be

1475. APPLICATION CONCERNING A SALE OF LAND.

35 × 19.6 cm.

A. D. 267.

This long and well-preserved papyrus is closely parallel to 1200, and is mentioned in 1200. int. It was written a year later than that series of documents, and, like it, contains (a) an application to an archidicastes (l. I, n.) concerning the $\delta \eta \mu \sigma \sigma i \omega \sigma \iota s$ of a sale (ll. 6-9, 41-7), (b) a copy of the sale (ll. 10-40), (c) a further application to the archidicastes for the communication of the δημοσίωσις to the β ιβλιοφύλακες τῶν ἐγκτήσεων (ll. 4–5, 48–9), with (d) an endorsement on his behalf (l. 50), and (e) the required letter to the βιβλιοφύλακες inserted in the upper margin (II. 1-3). (d) and (e) are in the same hand as 1200. 1-4(and 56?) and 1561, 20-1 (A. D. 269), where the line corresponding to 1200. 4 and 1475. 3 occurs at the end of the document, as in P. Leipzig 10. The body of the document was written in the three cases by different scribes, that of 1475 employing a more cursive hand than the other two, and in his ligatures sometimes approximating to the style of the letter of the archidicastes (cf. Part ix, Plate vi). The decipherment of the difficult line 1200. 4 in the Alexandrian chancery script can now be carried a stage further, though one word is still uncertain; cf. l. 3, n. The maker of the application, Aurelia Thaïsous also called Lolliane (l. 5, n.), is known from 1467, where she claimed the right to act without a guardian. 1475 does not contain at the end a subsequent endorsement by her corresponding to that in 1200. 57-61, where in 1. 58 the date is to be read (ἔτους) a καὶ (ἔτους) δ, i.e. the ordinary reckoning of Aurelian and Vaballathus, not (ἔτ.) γ καὶ (ἔτ.) α. As in 1200, there are a few marginal notes in a third hand (different in the two papyri), these having been made in the $\beta \iota \beta \lambda \iota o \theta \eta \kappa \eta \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \epsilon \gamma \kappa \tau \eta \sigma \epsilon \omega \nu$ (1, 1, n.).

'Aurelius Gaius also called Harpocration, priest and archidicastes, to the keepers of the property-registers of the Oxyrhynchite nome, greeting. A copy of the communication which has been executed follows. Good-bye. The 14th year of Gallienus Augustus, Pharmouthi 18. The examiner-in-chief of the city: she has paid (?), Aurelius Alexander acting.

To Aurelius Gaius also called Harpocration, priest, archidicastes, and superintendent of the chrematistae and other courts, from Aurelia Thaïsous also called Lolliane. A copy of the publication which has been executed follows.

To Aurelius Gaius, &c., from Aurelia Thaïsous also called Lolliane, daughter of Sarapion also called Agathodaemon, ex-agoranomus of Oxyrhynchus. A copy of the bond issued to me in duplicate with the signature succeeding the date follows.

"Aurelius Agathinus also called Origenes, son of Varianus also called Clarus and Origenia also called Tauris, of Oxyrhynchus, to Aurelia Thaïsous also called Lolliane, daughter of Sarapion also called Agathodaemon, ex-agoranomus of the said city, and of Dionysia also called Diaena, of the said city, acting without a guardian by the ius liberorum, greeting. I acknowledge that I have sold and ceded to you from the present time for ever the property below written, which is mine by right of purchase and formerly belonged to you the buyer, in the area of the village of Paimis in the western toparchy of the said Oxyrhynchite nome in the holding of Nicon also called Nicomedes, consisting of 11 arurae of corn-bearing and other land, in which is a tank in disrepair and the water-wheel likewise partly in disrepair with the apparatus belonging to it, the adjacent areas of the whole being on the south and west a canal, &c., on the north land formerly belonging to Julius Theon. on the east the buildings, open spaces, and existing orchard mentioned below, and in the said village in the northern and western parts of it two houses with all their fittings and appurtenances and the open spaces to the north and west of these with the intervening orchard which is now dry, of the extent of $\frac{1}{16}$ arura more or less, and the existing well, the adjacent areas of these buildings, open spaces, and orchard, when they are surveyed in one piece, being on the south the parts of the metropolis along the desert, on the north the circumference of the village, on the east a hawk-shrine, on the west the aforesaid corn-land, in all respects according to just sale and cession. And I have herewith received from you from hand to hand in full the sum jointly agreed upon for the price and cession-money of all the aforesaid property, 9,700 drachmae of Imperial silver coin, making 1 talent 3,700 drachmae of silver. Wherefore you and your descendants and heirs are masters and owners of the property ceded by me as aforesaid, and have power to use and administer it as you choose, and I am bound to deliver it to you guaranteed and free from claims in my name only or by any one else in my name, you being satisfied with the guarantee from yourself to me concerning all charges up to and including the past 13th year, because the products of the property from the present 14th year henceforth belong to you the buyer, who are also responsible for the taxes beginning with the calends of the said 14th year. This sale and cession, written in duplicate, is valid, and whenever you choose you may publish it through the record-office without requiring further concurrence on my part, because I hereby concur in the publication to be made by you; and having been asked by you the formal question whether this is done rightly and fairly I have given my consent. The 14th year of P. Licinius Gallienus, &c., Hathur 23. I, Aurelius Agathinus also called Origenes, have sold and ceded to Lolliane also called Thaïsous the aforesaid property and all the constructions appertaining to it, and have received the r talent 3,700 drachmae of silver for the price, and will guarantee the property from claims in my name only, and I consent to the publication to be made by you, and in answer to the formal question have given my consent."

Wishing that one copy of this duplicate bond should be made public, I pay to the city the prescribed 12 drachmae and the sum prescribed for the publication, and request that, on receipt of the bond from the person whom I have dispatched, Aurelius Nilus, with his attestation that the signature after the date is the autograph of Aurelius Agathinus also called Origenes, you will register the original with this application in the Library of Hadrian, and a copy of it with the application in the Library of the Nanaeum, in order that the rights derived from it may be assured to me, as from a public deed, because Aurelius Agathinus also called Origenes has consented to the publication of the bond. The 14th year of Gallienus Augustus, Phamenoth 24.

And whereas I desire that this should be communicated to the keepers of the property-registers of the Oxyrhynchite nome, I request that, on receipt of the aforesaid publication duly signed, you will give instructions for a letter to be written to them for their information.

Let due steps be taken. The 14th year of Gallienus Augustus, Phamenoth 27.'

1. The marginal note παρετ(έθη) is absent in 1200. It means that the document was entered in the διαστρώματα of the βιβλιοθήκη έγκτήσεων: cf. 1547. 1, 1552. 1, Mitteis, Grundz. 103 sqq., Lewald, Römisch-Aegypt. Grundbuchrecht, 38 sqq. The marginal note in the same hand against l. 17 corresponds to that against 1200. 18 (in a different hand), showing that the apprentions in 1800 were also made at the θυθυκθένη.

that the annotations in 1200 were also made at the $\beta \iota \beta \lambda \iota \circ \theta \acute{\eta} \kappa \eta$.

Γάιος ὁ καὶ 'Αρπ[οκ]ρατίων: this archidicastes was previously unknown. In Pauni of the 13th year (1200. 3, 56) Didymus also called Sarapion was in office, as in P. Giessen 34, where in ll. 4–5 there is some mistake in the dates. The number of the year is read doubtfully as $\iota\gamma$ in ll. 4 and 9, the day being in the latter case Pachon 28, which is in accordance with 1200. In l. 5 Φαῶ]φι $\iota\delta$ is restored, but this date must be later than Pachon 28 since ll. 5–9 are an enclosure in ll. 1–5, and either 'Επει]φί or (more probably) Μεσο]ρή must be read in l. 5, unless (ἔτους) $\iota\delta$ can be read in l. 4.

μένης); but here τετελ is quite clear.

3. Cf. P. Leipzig 10. ii. 32-3 (=M. Chrest. 189) of $\pi\rho\delta$ s $\tau\hat{\eta}$ dialogy $\hat{\eta}$ $\tau\hat{\eta}$ s $\pi\delta\lambda\epsilon\omega$ s. $\delta\iota\epsilon\gamma\rho a(\psi\epsilon\nu)$ $\Lambda\dot{\nu}\rho\eta\lambda(io\nu)$ $\Sigma a\rho a\pi\dot{\alpha}\mu\mu\omega\nu\sigma$ s $\chi\rho\eta\mu(a\tau i\zeta\sigma\nu\tau\sigma s)$. Concerning the name $\Lambda\dot{\nu}\rho(\eta\lambda io\nu)$ ' $\Lambda\lambda\epsilon\xi\dot{\alpha}\nu\delta\rho\sigma\nu$ here, as in 1200. 4, 1561. 20 (cf. int.), there is little doubt, and if $\delta\iota\epsilon\gamma\rho a(\psi\epsilon\nu)$ is certain in the Leipzig papyrus that is probably the preceding word in the Oxyrhynchus examples also. The abbreviation is more like $\delta\iota\epsilon\gamma\rho a(\psi\epsilon\nu)$ in 1475 than in 1200 and 1561, and $\dot{\alpha}\pi\dot{\epsilon}\chi\epsilon\iota$ ' $\Lambda\lambda\epsilon\xi$. or $\dot{\alpha}\pi\dot{\epsilon}(\chi\epsilon\iota)$ $\Lambda\dot{\nu}\rho(\eta\lambda.)$ ' $\Lambda\lambda\epsilon\xi$. (cf. 1200. 1–4, n., Wilcken, l. c.) is most improbable. $\delta\iota\epsilon\gamma\rho a(\psi\epsilon\nu)$ refers to the payment of the $\tau\epsilon\lambda\eta$; cf. 1474. 6, n. $\chi\rho\eta(\mu\alpha\tau i\zeta\sigma\nu\tau\sigma s)$ was supposed by Mitteis and Wilcken to mean 'performing his office' in connexion with the payment, but it might refer to the scribe who wrote the $olk\sigma\nu\rho\mu ia$; cf. 1474. 7, n. In P. Leipzig 10. ii. 32 there is stated to be no change of hand corresponding to that in 1561. 20.

5. Θαϊσοῦτος της κα[ί] Λολλιανης: the order of the names is the reverse in l. 37, as in

10. Aurelius Agathinus also called Origenes is probably identical with the agoranomus of that name in 1208. 16 (A.D. 291). 1642 is concerned with his appointment to that office.

15. ἀνθ' οδ: cf. 1438. 11, n.

17. For the marginal note cf. l. 1 and 1200. 18, nn.

22. νότου παρόρια τῆς πόλεως: from this it appears that Païmis (l. 23) was on the edge of the desert near Oxyrhynchus on the north, so that the western toparchy (l. 15) was in that region; cf. 1421. 3, n. For παρόρια cf. 1113. 17 and P. Flor. 50. 9, 86 ($\dot{\eta}$ παρόριος). A village called Μέγα Παρόριον is known from 154. 12 and P. Iand. 51. 8, and Παρόριον is coupled with Senokomis (cf. 1506. 2) in 1545. 5.

24. δικαία: δι' έμοῦ might be read, but is less likely.

30. ἀπὸ σοῦ βεβαιώσι: the present buyer had owned the property previously, and sold it to the present seller; cf. l. 14 and 1635. 23 (A.D. 249) ἀρκουμένου σο(υ) τῆ εἴς με ἀπὸ τ[οῦ] προτεταγμένου μου προκτήτορος . . . βεβαιώσει.

41. βουλόμενος for βουλομένη, as here and in l. 48, occurs in the corresponding passages of 1200.

42. τὸ ὑπὲρ τῆς δη[μο]σιώσεως ὡρισμένον corresponds to τὸ τοῦ τιμήματος τέλος in 1200. 45; cf. τὰ τοῦ τιμ. τέλη in P. Leipzig 10. ii. 21. In the latter instance τίμημα has been explained as a penalty for delay (Gradenwitz, Koschaker) or as an ad valorem tax (Mitteis). 1200, where there is no question of delay, does not at all favour Gradenwitz's view, but neither the new evidence concerning the amounts apparently paid for the τίμημα, 14 drachmae in the case of a deposit of 45 artabae of wheat (worth about 500 drachmae), 5 dr. in the case of a loan of 1,200 dr. (cf. 1474. 6, n.), nor the present passage provides any definite support for Mitteis's view, though not incompatible with it, if the 14 drachmae in 1474 include the usual 12 dr. for Alexandria. The technical sense of τίμημα in the phrase ιδίω τιμήματι (85. 7), and ἐαυτοῦ τιμήματι (1208. 4; cf. 1562. 3), is also obscure, and whether the meaning 'valuation' is implied in τιμήματος τέλη is very doubtful.

48. $\pi \rho o \sigma \phi \omega [\nu] \eta \theta \hat{\eta} \nu a \iota$: so in 1200. 53 and probably in B.G.U. 825. 13, where in a similar context Schubart (ap. Preisigke, Berichtigungen, 70) reads $\pi \rho o [.] \ldots \theta \hat{\eta} \nu a \iota$.

50, $\cos \kappa_0[\theta \hat{\eta}]\kappa(\epsilon \epsilon)$: cf. 1473. 42, n. In 1200. 56 (which was perhaps written in the same hand as 1200. 1-4) there is an interval of only two days between the dates in ll. 3 and 56, whereas here the corresponding interval is twenty-one days; cf. l. 2. In Griech. Texte 6 the day is the same in ll. 6 and 37.

VIII. HOROSCOPES AND CHARMS

1476. HOROSCOPE OF SARAPAMMON.

9.8 × 7.7 cm.

A. D. 260.

This horoscope of a person born on Phaophi 2 of the 1st year of Macrianus and Quietus (the earliest certain date by those Emperors), which year corresponded to the 8th of Gallienus (cf. P. Strassb. 6. int.), was found with 1563, another, but less well preserved, horoscope of a person born two years earlier, in the 6th year of Valerian and Gallienus, Thoth 27. In both papyri the positions in the signs of the zodiac occupied by the sun, moon, five chief planets, and δροσκόπος (point on the horizon which was rising; in 1564 5 called ὅρα) were indicated by degrees and minutes, as in P. S. I. 23 and the much more elaborate horoscopes P. Brit. Mus. 98, 110, 130 (i. 126–39); the other horoscopes of the first four centuries (235, 307, 585, 596, 804, 1564 5, Class. Rev. viii. 70. P. S. I. 22, 24–5) give the signs only, with occasional descriptions (e.g. in 1565) of the relation of the body in question to the sign, such as are also found in 1476.

1476 and 1563-4 are the only horoscopes which belong to the period of uncertainty concerning the chronology of the Roman Emperors in Egypt from Decius to Diocletian (a.d. 250-284; 1565 belongs to 293). Decius died in the spring or summer of 251; his 2nd year in Egypt, which began Aug. 29, 250, is not attested later than March 4, 251 (C.P.R. 37), and there are no Alexandrian coins of a 3rd year. The argument from the silence of coins is by no means conclusive, for there are no Alexandrian coins of the 1st year of Decius' successors, Gallus and Volusianus, and only oneand that not absolutely certain-of their 2nd year, though papyri of their 2nd year are numerous (e.g. 1442); but there is no reason to suppose that Decius' reign extended into the year beginning Aug. 30, 251, which was the 2nd of Gallus and Volusianus. 3rd year, as appears from 1119. 5, 14, 40, was reckoned at Oxyrhynchus as still current on Aug. 16 and 22, 253. This circumstance is less surprising than is implied in 1119. 5, n. (where 1119 is wrongly referred to the year 254); for coins of their 3rd year are very common, while those of Aemilianus, their successor, all belong to his 2nd year, and it is probable that Aemilianus' 1st year consisted of only a few days. The only extant dating by that emperor is 1286. 10 (2nd year Ph[aophi], i. e. Sept. 28-Oct. 27, 253). Valerian and Gallienus are known from C. I. L. viii, 2482 to have been recognized in Numidia before Oct. 22, 253, but apart from coins 1187. 21 (June 20) is the only record of their 1st year in Egypt, which is generally supposed to have been 253-4, not 252-3. A census-return for the 5th year of an unnamed third-century reign (P. Stud. Pal. ii, 32), which is apparently that of Valerian and Gallienus, strongly supports the usual view, since these returns were made at intervals of 14 years and 257-8 is the right year for a census. After the revolt of Macrianus and Quietus (about Sept. 260-Nov. 261) and the restoration of Gallienus the chronological difficulties The accession of Claudius was in 1906 placed by Preisigke (P. Strassb. 6. int.; cf. Hohmann, Chronol. d. Papyrusurk. 54-7) in the autumn of 268 (between Aug. 29 and Oct. 16, so far as Egypt was concerned) on the apparently conclusive evidence of P. Strassb. 7 and 10-11 (subsequently confirmed by P. Tebt. 581) that the 15th year of Gallienus was followed by the 1st of Claudius. Earlier writers had usually accepted the statement of the Vita Claud. iv. 2 that his accession took place in March (268), or, like the editors of the Prosopogr. Imp. Rom., placed that event between Jan. 1 and July 1, 268, in order to make the 15th year of Gallienus coincide with the 1st of Claudius. Claudius is generally thought to have died in his 3rd year (270-1 according to Preisigke, 269-70 according to most earlier writers). The few weeks' reign of Quintillus is attested in Egypt by coins only, and the accession of Aurelian (who in Egypt at first had to admit the association of Vaballathus) was placed by Preisigke between Aug. 29 and Dec. 31, 270 (he was consul in 271), while most other writers, including Homo, Essai sur l'empereur Aurélien, 340, assigned it to the spring of 270. The accession of Tacitus, which was preceded by an interregnum of uncertain length, is universally assigned to Sept. 275, so that it occurred in the 6th year of Aurelian according to Preisigke, who ignored the Alexandrian coins of the 7th year, in the 7th year according to others. Tacitus, who was consul in 276, did not live until Aug. 29 of that year, the latest date by his reign being on June 8 (P. Strassb. 8. 17), and the accession of Probus is assigned to the spring or summer of 276. The coins credit him with 8 years (Homo, op. cit. 337-8 by misstating the figure as 7 vitiates his chronology of Probus and Carinus), and, though papyri do not reach later than Sept. 29 of his 7th year (P. Brit. Mus. 1243; cf. Archiv, iv. 553), the accession of Carus with Carinus and Numerianus is generally assigned to the autumn (Oct.?) of the year beginning Aug. 29, 282. 55, dated April 7 of their 1st year, is the only Egyptian record of their reign apart from coins of the 1st and 2nd years of Carus and 1st-3rd years of Carinus and Numerianus, and 1564 (March 23 of the 1st year of Carinus alone, the papyrus having probably been written soon after the death of Carus). With the accession of Diocletian firmer ground is reached, especially as datings by consuls began to supplement, before they supplanted, those by regnal years, and there is no reason to doubt that his 1st year in Egypt began soon after Aug. 29, 284, from which the era of Diocletian dated.

The new evidence already adduced in the present volume, besides suggesting doubts as to the correctness of the received chronology of Valerian and Gallienus (1407. int.), has confirmed the evidence of Alexandrian coins with regard to the existence of a 7th year of Aurelian (1455. 20), and a reconsideration of the chronology of the whole period from 250-284 is necessary. Under these circumstances the opportunity afforded by the horoscopes of verifying on astronomical grounds dates by the regnal years of Valerian and Gallienus, Macrianus and Quietus, and Carinus is particularly we'come, since it enables us to decide whether the evidence of 1455 can be reconciled with that of the Strassburg papyri and P. Tebt. 581 either by pushing back the accession of Valerian and Gallienus from Sept.-Oct. 253 to a month before Aug. 29 and not later than June of that year (on account of 1187, which would have to belong to June 20, 253, instead of June 20, 254), or by making the accessions of Tacitus, Probus, and Carus with his sons take place a year later than on the received chronology. One of those two alternatives seems at first sight to be the only method of accounting for a 16th year of Gallienus as well as a 3rd of Claudius and 7th of Aurelian; but either of them would lead to difficulties, the second by upsetting the received dates of the consuls in 276-284, the first by necessitating the elimination of Aemilianus (on the hypothesis that Valerian ignored him and dated from the death of Gallus), or the deduction of a year from the reign of Gallus and Volusianus, and in either case making 1187 earlier than 1119 (cf. p. 230).

Dr. J. K. Fotheringham, whose authority on matters relating to Graeco-Roman chronology is well known, has kindly computed from Neugebauer's Tafeln zur astronomischen Chronologic, ii (1914), the correct position of the heavenly bodies indicated in the four horoscopes of this volume, and we present his results in tabular form. In the case of 1563, where the figure of the hour is obliterated, it is assumed that the middle of the sign Capricorn (in which was the ώροσκόπος) was on the horizon, i.e. 1.45 p.m. Egyptian time (which= 11.45 a.m. Greenwich time). In 1476 the '10th hour completed, 2 minutes' is regarded as 3.48 p.m., and the '1st hour' in 1564 as 6.59 a.m., but in 1565 as 6.35 a.m., the hour in all three cases being reckoned as 10 of the interval between sunrise and sunset at Oxyrhynchus. In the case of 1563 and 1476 computations have been made both for the years according to the generally received chronology of Gallienus (A. D. 258 and 260 respectively) and for the years preceding (which in 1476 involves a difference of 1 in the Julian equivalents of the days owing to intercalation). A.D. 257 and 259 would of course only be applicable if the accession of Valerian and Gallienus took place before instead of after Aug. 29, 253. In the case of 1564-5, where details of the astronomical positions were not given, the computations for the generally received dates are sufficient; for in any two consecutive years the signs occupied by at any rate Mars and the moon would inevitably be quite different, so that the agreement between the statements of the horoscopes and the facts with regard to those bodies in the years 283 and 293 is adequate proof of their disagreement in the years 284 and 294.

Dr. Fotheringham writes 'It is clear that the data given on the horoscopes are obtained by computation, not by observation; for all the horoscopes are cast for some time during the day, when the stars were invisible, and even the moon was above the horizon on only one of the four occasions (1476). The agreements for the years 258, 260, 283, 293 are so close as to remove all possible doubt of the dates for which the horoscopes were cast. In comparing the signs given on the horoscopes with those found by computation, it should be observed that the horoscopes always name them in order, either beginning or ending with the Horoscopos. The bodies falling within six signs after the Horoscopos would normally be below the horizon, and those within six signs before the Horoscopos would normally be above the horizon.' The order of the signs to which he alludes is also observed in most other horoscopes, but not in 585, P.S. I. 22, 29–38, 23, 1–12, 24, 11–19, and 25: it is sometimes a useful help in supplying gaps; cf. 1476, 12, n., 1563, 8.

The valuable results of the astronomical evidence are thus to confirm the generally accepted dates of the accessions of Valerian and Gallienus (between Aug. 29 and Oct. 22, 253) and Carinus (about Oct. 282), and there is no longer any doubt about the Julian years corresponding to their regnal years, or any reason to question the accuracy of the consul-lists between 251 and 284. The period of uncertainty in the datings by regnal years is now limited to 268–75. Here there must be some errors in the evidence concerning the duration of reigns, and if the limits securely fixed by the horoscopes are observed, either the last year of Gallienus was really his 15th, not 16th, or that of Claudius his 2nd, not 3rd, or that of Aurelian his 6th, not 7th. The papyri which give the fullest information on this period are P. Strassb. 6–8, a series of receipts for payments of 2,000 drachmae a year, generally in two instalments, by the same persons on account of sheep-tax; these begin in the 2nd year of Valerian and Gallienus, and proceed regularly through the reign of Macrianus and Quietus up to the 15th year of Gallienus, when 1,000 dr. were paid on Sept. 14, 267, and March 20, 268. The next entries are 1,000 dr. on Nov. 5 and March 26 of the 1st year of Claudius, on Sept. 21 and July 17 of his 2nd, and Sept. 20 of his 3rd, [καὶ γ (ἔτουs)] being a certain restoration in the last line of P. Strassb. 7. P. Strassb. 8 records the usual payments on March 31st of Aurelian's 1st year (the earliest extant reference to him) and on Nov. 17 and April 13 of his 2nd year, after which there was no further payment until Nov. 5 of the 5th year (the reading of the month and the figure of the year is somewhat doubtful), when 4.000 dr. were paid on account, followed by a payment of 3,000 dr. on account on June 8 of the 1st year of Tacitus (i.e. 276). P. Strassb. 10. 25 has the earliest reference to Claudius (Oct. 16 of his 1st year), and P. Strassb. 11. 9-15, written on March 10 of his 1st year, mentions the 'past 15th year', sc. of Gallienus. This evidence in favour of Claudius' accession between Aug. 29 and Oct. 16, 268, fits in very well with P. Tebt. 581, 1-3 erous ις' τοῦ κυρίου ήμῶν Γαλλιηνοῦ Σεβαστοῦ Φαῶφι a' (there is no real doubt about any of the readings, being much less suitable than 15'), which is the only direct reference to the 16th year indirectly implied by the Strassburg texts. The 3rd year of Claudius is also mentioned in 1646 αἴτους (ὶ. ἔτ.) τρίτου Κλαυδίου Σεβαστοῦ ΦαῷΦ[ι τρί]τη [καὶ εἰ]κάς, i. e. Oct. 20, by which date (the latest extant reference to him) he may have been dead. The brief reign of his brother Quintillus, lasting a few weeks probably, was recognized in Egypt by the issue of coins in his name, but is not attested by papyri. Since Aurelian became consul on Jan. 1, 271, the Strassburg papyri seemed to limit definitely the date of Aurelian's accession to the period between the end of Sept. and the end of Dec. 270; but against them must be set (1) the statement of 1208. 11 that the 2nd year of Claudius became the 1st of Aurelian, which has generally been regarded as a mere error (β for γ), (2) the date in 1455. 20, Oct. 18 of Aurelian's 7th year, (3) a date in 1633. 38, Aug. 23 of his 6th year. All of these require the accession of Aurelian to have taken place before Aug. 29, 270, and, when taken in combination with the dates of Aurelian's 1st year (P. Strassb. 8. 1 March 31; 1200. 58 May 25; cf. 1475. int.), some time before the end of March 270.

From this impasse there seems to be only one method of escape, since the astronomical evidence bars the two simplest ways out of the difficulty. A year has to be eliminated, and the choice is in the last resort best left to the coins. These support the 3rd year of Claudius and 7th of Aurelian, but not the 16th of Gallienus. Sallet (Die Daten der alex, Kaisermünzen, 73), after rejecting three supposed examples of that year, was disposed to accept the statement of Cohen that he had seen one, but neither the British Museum nor the Dattari collection contains any coins of the 16th year, and Mr. Milne has not met with one, although he has examined four large hoards covering this period, which contained altogether 889 coins of the 15th year of Gallienus and 864 of the 1st year of Claudius. There is thus a very high degree of probability that, if there had been any coins of the 16th year of Gallienus, they would have occurred in these hoards, and it is almost certain that Cohen was mistaken. The accession of Claudius must in any case have taken place near the beginning of the Egyptian year, since it was known at Hermopolis by Oct. 16 (P. Strassb. 10. 25). If he really came to the throne in July 268 shortly before the close of Gallienus' 15th year, it is quite possible that coins of the 1st year were minted at Alexandria, but that the news of his accession did not penetrate into the upper country until Sept.-Oct., thus giving rise to a second system of dating, according to which Gallienus entered upon his 16th year and Claudius' 1st and 2nd years corresponded to his 2nd and 3rd by the official reckoning. It is true that in the case of other emperors who came to the throne shortly before Aug. 29, e.g. Tiberius and Hadrian, no trace of a double system of reckoning their regnal years is found (cf. 1453. int.); but 1208. II is, so far as we are aware, the only example of a clear divergence from the official mode of reckoning an emperor's reign, and may well be more than a mere slip. P. Strassburg 10 and 11 can easily be explained as examples of the Upper Egyptian reckoning parallel to 1208, while P. Tebt. 581, dated by Gallienus probably two months or more after his death, is not more remarkable than e.g. 104, which is dated by Domitian more than two months after his death, or

B. G. U. 515, which is dated by Commodus five months after his death; cf. Wilcken, Ost. i. 802, Hohmann, op. cit. 51 sqq. The only really serious objection to the hypothesis that the dates in the early part of the 1st year of Claudius refer to a different system from that implied by the coins and papyri which extend to the 3rd year, is P. Strassb. 7, which has two entries in his 1st year, two in his 2nd, and one in his 3rd. In order to reconcile that papyrus with the chronology of Claudius which we prefer (July 268–Jan. 270), it is necessary to suppose that the scribe has confused the two systems, and has put down two entries too many. This is not very satisfactory, but is preferable to supposing that coinage was issued in Aurelian's name for a year which did not come into existence, and that 1455 was written a whole year after Aurelian's death, in the 2nd year of Probus.

l. Κρόνος.

5-6. ἀκρώνυκτος: with this spelling cf. ἀκρώνυχος for ἀκρώνυχος in P. Hibeh 27. ἀκρώνυκτος is the word used by Ptolemy for an opposition, as Dr. Fotheringham informs us. Cf. l. 11, where the position of the sun is nearly exactly six signs distant from that of Saturn, and int.

άφαιρετι[κό]s: Dr. Fotheringham writes 'A planet is said to be ἀφαιρετικόs when the inequality in its longitude resulting from its anomaly or epicyclic motion is, if positive, diminishing, or, if negative, increasing. Substituting the heliocentric for the epicyclic theory of the motion of the planets, this would in the case of one of the outer planets, such as Saturn, mean that the planet would be ἀφαιρετικόs when the excess of its geocentric over its heliocentric longitude was diminishing, or the excess of its heliocentric over its geocentric longitude increasing. Putting l for heliocentric longitude, λ for geocentric longitude, and t for time, the condition is that $\frac{d}{dt}$ is positive. This condition is fulfilled by Saturn at both the dates for which the computation has been made.'

7. $a\dot{v}$. [.] $\tau\epsilon\rho\sigma$: π can be read in place of τ , but ϵ is almost certain. The actual position of Mars at the beginning of Leo (cf. p. 232) suggests that the adjective corresponds to $d\rho\chi$ in 1565. 8, and in that case it would be expected to begin $a\dot{v}\tau$ - or $a\dot{v}\theta$ -. $a\dot{v}\theta$ [$\dot{\eta}$] $u\epsilon\rho\sigma$ is unsatisfactory. Or it might begin with $a\dot{v}$ ξ ι - and be contrasted with $d\phi\alpha\iota\rho\epsilon\tau\iota\kappa\dot{\sigma}$ $\dot{\sigma}$ in 1. 6; but the usual opposite of that term is $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\theta\epsilon\tau\iota\kappa\delta$ s. Dr. Fotheringham remarks 'Mars is $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\theta\epsilon\tau\iota\kappa\delta$ s at both dates. But in the absence of any numeral to express the position in Leo it is practically certain that the mutilated word means "at the very beginning", and has nothing to do with anomalistic motion.'

12. (Αἰγόκερφ) was supplied by Dr. Fotheringham from the astronomical calculations, and is in accordance with the position of this entry at the end after that dealing with Libra (l. 11); for the starting-point of the entries was Aquarius (l. 4), and between Libra and Aquarius there are only Scorpio, Sagittarius, and Capricorn. A regular order was usually observed; cf. p. 232.

1477. QUESTIONS TO AN ORACLE.

 15.2×8.9 cm. Late third or early fourth century.

The recto of this papyrus contains part of a list of payments by γεωργοί (1532), written late in the third century. On the verso, probably written in or shortly before the reign of Diocletian, is part of a curious list of questions to a deity, which are similar to those found in P. Fay. 137-8, B. G. U. 229-30, Wesselv, Script. Gr. Spec. 26, P. Brit. Mus. 1267 d (Archiv, iv. 559), 923, 1148-9, and 1213. Each question was numbered consecutively: those preserved are nos. 72-92 with slight traces of a preceding column, and there is likely to have been at least one later column, unless the papyrus was much reduced in breadth before the verso was used. There seems to be no particular plan in the arrangement of the questions, which are of a general character, suitable for persons of various ranks, not one particular individual, and apparently intended to cover the principal subjects on which people were accustomed to appeal to the gods for information. The numbering suggests a possible reference to a spell of some kind as the mode to be employed in obtaining answers, but the purpose of the document as a whole is quite obscure. A high stop is employed after the figures.

- οβ, εί λήμψομαι τὸ ὀψώνιον;

'72, shall I receive the present? 73, shall I remain where I am going? 74, am I to be sold up? 75, am I to obtain benefit from my friend? 76, has it been granted to me to make a contract with another person? 77, am I to be reconciled (?) with my offspring (?)? 78, am I to get furlough (?)? 79, shall I get the money? 80, is the person abroad alive? 81, am I to profit by the transaction? 82, is my property to be sold by auction? 83, shall I find a means of selling? 84, am I able to carry off what I am thinking of? 85, am I to become a beggar (?)? 86, shall I take to flight? 87, shall I become an ambassador (?)? 88, am I to become a senator? 89, is my flight to be stopped? 90, am I to be divorced from my wife? 91, have I been poisoned? 92, am I to get my own?...

1. $\epsilon \iota$ is probably for $\hat{\eta}$ rather than $\epsilon \iota$; cf. 1148. 2, n.

2. Cf. P. Fay. 137. 2 χρημάτισον μοι ή μείνωι έν Βακχιάδι; ή (or ή) μέλ(λ)ω έντυνχάνιν;

5. δέδοται: cf. 1213. 4 and n.

6. $\gamma \delta \nu \nu \nu$ is not very satisfactory, especially as the first letter is more like σ than γ . But the third, if not ν , must be κ or μ , and there is no room for $\sigma \delta \nu$ followed by a word beginning with σ , unless the latter was abbreviated.

7. κομίατον apparently = commeatum, and might mean 'provisions'.

14. βιόπρατος or βιόπρωτος can be read, but neither word is known. βροντητός is inadmissible.

16. Whether πρεσβεύσω refers to rank or age or an embassy is not clear. A βουλευτής πρεσβύτατος occurs in P. Giessen 34. 2; cf. the next line here.

1478. GNOSTIC CHARM FOR VICTORY.

 5.4×11.9 cm. Late third or early fourth century.

A short Gnostic charm, containing a prayer for the success of a certain Sarapammon in a race. The efficacy of the amulet depended on ten or eleven magical symbols and the invocation of a mysterious deity, whose name is written in larger letters. P. Brit. Mus. 121. 390–3 (i. 97), entitled $\nu\iota\kappa\eta\tau\iota\kappa\delta\nu$ $\delta\rho\circ\mu\epsilon\omega s$, is similar. The writing is across the fibres.

3. σ(τ)αδίου: cf. P. Brit. Mus. 121. 392 δός μοι . . . χάριν ἐν τῷ σταδίῳ.

5. The beginning of the name recalls that of Συλιήλ, an angel at the end of the list in P. Brit. Mus. 124. 36 sqq. (i. 123).

IX. PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE

1479. LETTER TO THRACIDAS FROM ALEXANDRIA.

12.5 × 15.2 cm.

Late first century B. C.

The concluding part of a letter to Thracidas from a person who had apparently gone to Alexandria in connexion with a law-suit, Thracidas, who had been with the writer, having left him shortly before (cf. 1. 7). It is joined on the right to another letter from a different person to the same Thracidas, of which the beginnings of eight lines survive. The handwriting in the two cases leaves no doubt that the reign mentioned in 1. 14, where the number of the year is lost, was that of Augustus. The first letter is a palimpsest, but the earlier writing was completely obliterated.

(Addressed) 'To Thracidas.'

1. $\gamma \nu \omega [\sigma] \tau \dot{\eta} \rho$: cf. 1490. 2, n.

4. ἀντιβεβλημένα: cf. B. G. U. 970. 3-4 εμαρτυροποιήσατο εκγεγρά[φθαι] καὶ προσαντιβεβληκέναι εκ τεύχους βιβλειδίων . . : ἐπ[άρχου] Λιγύπτου, and 35. 9-10 ἐκγεγραμμέ[νον καὶ προσαντιβε]-βλημένον ἐγένετο ἐκ συνκολλησί[μων βιβλιδίων . . . ἐπ. Λιγ.

7. There is a short space before ἀφ' οδ.

8. Φιλομούσφ: the last letter might be o, but the dative was clearly meant.

10. κραμβειν is more likely to be for κραμβείον, a word found in medical writers, than for κράμβην.

13. This, the usual late Ptolemaic formula, is still found in A.D. 57; cf. B.G.U. 1095. 22.

1480. LETTER OF HERMOGENES TO A PROPHET.

30 × 5.8 cm.

A. D. 32.

An incorrectly spelled letter, written in the reign of Tiberius to a prophet by a friend, with reference to a delay (?) in making some payment, in which a comogrammateus and eclogistes (auditor of accounts of the nome; cf. 1436. 23, n.) were concerned.

1481. LETTER OF A SOLDIER TO HIS MOTHER.

9.3 × 12.5 cm.

Early second century.

The first part of an early second-century letter of more than usual interest, written by a soldier in camp to his mother, reassuring her about his health, acknowledging the receipt of various presents (II. 7–9 $\theta a \lambda \lambda i a$ and $\theta a \lambda \lambda i s$), and expressing his general satisfaction. B. G. U. 423 (=W. Chrest. 480), the well-known letter from Italy of a soldier serving in the fleet to his father, which is a little later in date, was written in a still more cheerful tone; cf. also Griech. Texte 20. The writing is across the fibres.

'Theonas to Tetheus his lady mother, many greetings: I would have you know that the reason why I have been such a long time without sending you a letter is that I am in camp, and not that I am ill; so do not grieve about me. I was much grieved to hear that you had heard about me, for I was not seriously ill; and I blame the person who told you. Do not trouble to send me anything. I received the presents from Heraclides. Dionytas my brother brought me the present, and I received your letter. I give thanks to (the gods)...continually,... (Postscript) Do not burden yourself to send me anything... (Addressed) From Theonas to Tetheus...'

1482. LETTER OF MORUS TO A FRIEND.

21.4 × 12.2 cm.

Second century.

On the recto of this papyrus are the beginnings of the first seventeen lines of a letter from Epimachus to Panares written about A. D. 120–60. The only passage that is intelligible is ll. 4-5 $\pi \epsilon \mu \pi \epsilon \iota \nu$ où ν μ 00 ν 0 στολάς. On the verso is a letter to the same Epimachus from a friend called Morus, who together with Panares had been winnowing some barley under difficulties caused by the weather. Storms such as that described in ll. 6–9 are not uncommon in January at Oxyrhynchus. The script is the rude uncial of an illiterate writer, who makes numerous mistakes of spelling in spite of several corrections.

'Morus to my lord Epimachus, greeting. I write to inform you that we have winnowed the barley of the man from the Oasis on the 8th, and we never had so much trouble in winnowing it; for it rained and the wind was irresistible, and Panares knows how we worked to succeed in transferring all the rest with the help of the gods. The total result was 38 artabae 4 choenices; of these I have disposed beforehand of 12½ art. 8 choen. I made inquiries about the price of annual grass: it was sold in the village at 7 drachmae the load, as Panares too knows. After many inquiries I found some that was dry, and not to be paid for in ready money, but after four months. You will examine the question how you are to transport it, and, if you please, write to me about this, and say what proportion I am to dispose of beforehand from the large holding, and whether you want me to mix what belongs to the man from the Oasis with the rest. I have stored my share in the room belonging to your father. I supplicate on behalf of you and all your children and all your brothers and . . . I pray for your health, my lord.'

7. $\pi \epsilon \pi o \langle \dot{\eta} \rangle \kappa a \mu \epsilon \nu$: Or $\pi \epsilon \pi o \langle \nu \dot{\eta} \rangle \kappa a \mu \epsilon \nu$. $\pi \epsilon \pi \langle \dot{\omega} \rangle \kappa a \mu \epsilon \nu$ is less likely.

12. ἐφετινοῦ: ἐφέτειος occurs in MSS. as a variant of ἐπέτειος and aspiration before ἔτος is common in papyri, but ἐφετινός is apparently a new form.

15. εὐθύχαλκα: a rare adjective, for which Ducange cites Basilic. 9. 3.

16. The object of βαστάζιζες (cf. crit. n.) is probably the barley (cf. l. 19), not the grass.

24. $\kappa[ai]$ was followed by a name, or $\kappa[a\tau]$ ovoµa] can be read.

25. $\epsilon \rho \rho \hat{\omega} \sigma \epsilon$ or: the last two letters could be $\sigma \epsilon$, but the first two cannot be read as $\epsilon \rho \rho \hat{\omega} \sigma \theta | \alpha$ or $\epsilon \rho \rho \hat{\omega} \sigma | r \epsilon$.

1483. LETTER OF REPRIMAND TO A SUBORDINATE.

 15.8×8 cm. Late second or early third century.

A sharply worded letter from Dius to Zoïlus, who, though called the writer's friend in one of the two addresses on the verso, is blamed for his absence and for having presented an unsatisfactory account of payments in connexion with a vine-yard or garden-land. At the end Dius threatens to take measures against Zoïlus' surety, and throughout writes in the tone of an official superior. Not improbably he was an $\epsilon \pi \iota \tau \eta \rho \eta \tau \eta s$ and Zoïlus a $\chi \epsilon \iota \rho \iota \sigma \tau \eta s$, the land belonging to an $o \iota \sigma \iota a$, or being at any rate administered by the government. The date of the letter is probably the period from Commodus to Caracalla.

When you went away, you rendered to me an account consisting of a list of what you had spent yourself. You write that you spent 33 jars upon the gardeners and two calves which you sacrificed, and you have spent upon them things of which absolutely no one has received the value, since you had it. Other claims are being made against you in the vineyard, of which you will have to render an account at the reckoning-office. Know that, unless you pay all quickly and discharge the claims made against you, I shall seize your surety, until you pay me the value of the claims. I pray for your health. (Addressed) To Zoïlus from his friend Dius. Deliver to Zoïlus from Dius.'

2. μoi : $\mu \dot{\eta}$ can equally well be read, but does not suit the context.

5. ἀναγραφης: for the use of this term in connexion with taxation-lists cf. P. Amh. 77. 13 ἀντίγραφον των ἀναγραφίων των διὰ τῆς πύλης εἰσαχθέντων. διὰ γραφῆς is inadmissible.

23. The second address is possibly in a different hand.

1484-1487. INVITATIONS TO FEASTS.

Second-fourth century. Plate I (1487).

These four invitations with 1579-80 are of the type which has been made familiar by Oxyrhynchus papyri (110 11, 523-4, 747, 926-7, 1214; cf. P. Fav. 132), but present some new details of interest. 1484 (second or early third century) is another invitation to dine at the table of the lord Sarapis' (l. 3, n.), a meal which was here held in the temple of Thoeris (cf. 1453) not, as in 110, at the Serapeum. nor, as in 523, at a private house, and was apparently connected with a festival in honour of ephebi. In 1485 (second or early third century) and 1486 (third or early fourth century) the invitation was for the same day, not, as usually, for the day following. In 1485 the entertainer was an exceptes, and the meeting-place the temple of Demeter (cf. 1449. 5). 1486 and 1487 (fourth century) fix the 8th hour for the feast, like 747 and 1580, while 1485 fixes the 7th, like 1214: the 9th hour (generally about 3 p.m.) was more usual, but whether the difference was real or due to the change of the time of sunrise (which varies about two hours in Egypt) is uncertain. The new words $\mu\epsilon\lambda\lambda\delta\kappa\delta\delta\rho\iota a$ (1484. 4, n.) and $\lambda\delta\kappa\alpha\nu\delta\rho v$ (1486. 2; meaning obscure) occur. The writing is across the fibres except in 1485. It is noticeable that in the course of the third century $\kappa\alpha\lambda\epsilon\hat{i}$ takes the place of the earlier $\epsilon\rho\omega\tau\hat{a}$.

1486. 'Xenicus also called Pelius invites you to his wedding . . . to-day, Pharmouthi 22, at the 8th hour.'

1487. 'Theon son of Origenes invites you to the wedding of his sister to-morrow, which is Tubi 9, at the 8th hour.'

1484. 3. [κ]λείνην τοῦ κυρίου Σαράπιδος: Wilcken (Chrest. 99. int.) regards this as a cult meal, to which view Mr. Milne objects, comparing Aristides εἰς Σάραπιν 27, where it is said that people make S. their companion at feasts, προϊστάμενοι δαιτυμόνα αὐτὸν καὶ ἐστιάτορα.

4. μελλοκουρίων: probably a festival in honour either of μελλοέφηβοι (cf. 1202. 17), or of persons ceasing to be ἀφήλικες (at the age of 25; cf. 491. 16), or possibly in honour of an approaching marriage, if [άδελφῶν] refers to a brother and sister.

1488. LETTER OF SARAPAMMON TO HIS SISTER.

20.3 × 5.5 cm.

Second century.

A letter from a man to his 'sister' (the expression may be conventional; cf. 1296. 15, n.), giving various directions about some wine (ll. 3-13) and a mortar (ll. 13-19; cf. l. 14, n.). A curious reason for the writer's postponement of his return is assigned in ll. 22-5.

Let me know whether you received it; for if it was not brought to you, go to the fuller's shop at Heracleum (?) and find out whether it was delivered to them and get it. Go also to the workshop and find out whether the large mortar placed in the portico is safe and sound, and write to me how you are; for I intended to come back, but put it off until I learn whether Isas is in love or not, and whether there is need for me to come back. I pray for your health. Choiak 24. (Addressed) To Iseum for Thaësis from Sarapammon.'

9-10. γναφεῖον Ἡρακλείου: γναφική was one of the monopolized trades (cf. P. Fay. 36. int., Wilcken, Grundz. 250), and Ἡρακλείου is therefore probably a village, not a person, in spite of the fact that (τὸ) Ἡρακλεῖον was in the middle toparchy (1285. 100); cf. l. 28, n. Cf. Brit. Mus. 286. 13 (ii. 184) γναφικήν κω[μῶν Νεί]λου πόλεως καὶ Σοκνοπαίου [Νήσ]ου.

14. ἐργαστ[ήριον: this may well have been used for making oil, mortars being often mentioned in connexion with the oil-manufacture (cf. Otto, Priester und Tempel, i. 295). Mortars may have been used also in the γναφική, as they were in the milling-industry (λίθος σιτοκοπικὸς σὺν θυείη occurs in an unpublished Byzantine contract from Oxyrhynchus), but the έργαστήριον here does not seem to be connected with the γναφείον.

28. $\tau \delta$ 'I $\sigma \epsilon \hat{i} \circ \nu$: several Oxyrhynchite villages called after Isis-shrines are known, being usually distinguished from each other; (1) 1539. 11 'I. "A $\nu \omega$: cf. 732. 2, where l. 'I $\sigma i \circ \nu$ "A $\nu (\omega)$, (2) 897. 7 'I. $Z \alpha \pi i \tau \circ \nu$ (?), (3) 1285. 32 'I. $K \alpha \tau \omega$, (4) P. (1), (3), (7), and probably (4) were in the $\kappa \dot{\alpha} \tau \omega$, (5) in the $\ddot{\alpha} \nu \omega$ toparchy; of (2) and (6) the toparchy is unknown. Which village is meant here is uncertain; cf. ll. 9–10, n.

1489. LETTER OF SATTOS TO HIS SISTER.

9.4 × 13.1 cm.

Late third century.

A letter in vulgar Greek from a man to his 'sister' (cf. 1488. int.), giving various directions about a cloak which he had left behind, &c., and referring to his debts. The writing is across the fibres in a small cursive hand of the period from Gallienus to Diocletian.

1490. LETTER OF HERACLIDES TO AN OFFICIAL.

9.7 × 14.9 cm.

Late third century.

On the recto of this papyrus are the ends of thirteen lines, and beginnings of fourteen more in a second column, of an account of various payments in drachmae $(ai\rho\epsilon\sigma\iota_{\mathcal{T}})$, $\phi\circ\lambda\epsilon\tau\rho\circ(v)$ [, $\delta\iota aro(\mu\eta s)$ ($\delta\rho\circ\nu\rho\delta v$) [, &c.), written in the latter part of the third century. On the verso is a letter written nearer the end of the century to Sarapion, probably an official of some kind (cf. l. 1, n.), by Heraclides, asking him to help a $\gamma\nu\omega\sigma\tau\eta\rho$ (l. 2, n.) who was in difficulties. The ink is much obliterated in places.

'Ηρακλε[ίδης Σαρ]απίωνι τῶι ἀξιολογωτάτω χαίρειν.

3. ϋπερ Π. 9. ϊσχυσης Π.

'Heraclides to the most notable Sarapion, greeting. Demetrius, the certifier, asked me to speak to you, so that he may be freed from anxiety about the previous years. He says "I helped him greatly in the matter of the annona." He says that the annona is now being claimed. If then you can again get him off by yourself(?), good luck to you; but if not, give instructions as to what preparations you wish to be made. Do not neglect this, for they have not yet gone away. If you are strong enough to get him off, it will be a great achievement, since I have no cattle or pigs. I pray for your complete health.'

1. ἀξιολογωτάτω: this term is used of strategi, logistae, and senators; cf. Zehetmair, De appellationibus honorificis, 44, and 1408. int.

2. γνωστήρ: in the third and fourth centuries γνωστήρες are generally found presenting persons for liturgies; cf. P. Hamb. 31. 20, 1451. 27-8, nn.

4. ὅτι ἀφελησα αὐτόν: Demetrius' actual words are quotod, αὐτόν being Sarapion.

5. νῦν ζητεῖται was suggested by Mr. E. Lobel. . . ν δύναται is possible; but it is difficult to find any suitable infinitive, even if ἀνν(ών)αν or ἀννών(αν) be read in place of αννων.

6. ἐκπλέξαι: cf. P. Tebt. 315. 21 κἀγὼ αὐτὸν ἐκπλέξω, P. S. I. 93. 16 (from Oxyrhynchus) πέμ?]ψαι αὐτῷ ἐπιστολίδιον ὅτι ἐξεπλέκη. In P. Brit. Mus. 988. 9 sqq. (iii. 244; cf. Archiv, iv. 558) ὶ δ΄ οὐ (or ἰδοῦ) σὰ οὐκ ἡθέλησας αὐτὸ (sc. α διαστολικόν) ἐκπλέξαι, ἰς μεγάλα πράγματα ἀπήλθαμεν, the sense is different, and in P. Strassb. 73. 17–18 the context of ἐκπλέξας is unintelligible.

9. ἄλλφ is unsatisfactory, and, as Lobel remarked, seems to have a line drawn through it. ἄλλον or ἄλλως cannot be read.

5-6. προϊστασαι Π. ΙΙ-Ι2. Ι. Διονυσίου τοῦ ἐπισφραγιστοῦ.

'Alypius to his brother Sarapammon, greeting. I am confident in the first place about my household that if there is any trouble you are supporting me, and I beg you to find out at what price the foster-son of Dionysius, the sealer of Taampemou, is contracting to get barley for me, in order that I may provide for the money. I pray for your health, brother. (Signed) I pray for your health, brother.'

11. ἐπισφραγιστὴς τῆς Ταμπέμου: the ἐπισφραγιστής was an official attached to the village granaries; cf. P. Tebt. 340. 14 (Mendesian nome). Τααμπέμου is the more usual spelling; cf. 1421. 3, n.

1492. CHRISTIAN LETTER.

22.6 × 10.3 cm. Late third or early fourth century.

This letter,1493–4, and 1592 have a special interest as being among the earliest Christian documents from Egypt and approximately contemporary with the well-known letter of Psenosiris (P. Grenf. ii. 73); cf. also 1161–2 and 1495, which are somewhat later. 1492, from Sotas to his son, begins with a somewhat unusual formula (cf. l. 1, n.), and after pious reflections (ll. 4–8) proceeds to give directions about the 'separation' of some land which the son intended to present to a $\tau \delta \pi \sigma s$ in accordance with ancient custom (ll. 8–15). Possibly this refers to a gift for religious purposes. The script is a good-sized cursive. P. S. I. 208, a fourth-century letter on vellum from Sot as to his 'brother' Peter, which recalls the phraseology of 1492 (cf. the nn.), was possibly written by the same person.

If then you have decided in accordance with ancient custom to give the arura to the place, see that it is separated, so that they may use it; and however you may decide about the work lee ίερ[έ: cf. l. 21 and 1592. 7.

1. $Xa[\hat{i}]\rho\epsilon$: for this style of beginning a letter cf. P.S. I. 206, 208, and Ziemann, De Epistularum Graec. formulis, 295–7.

3. $\pi\rho$ [οσαγορεύω: this word (cf. l. 17), though rather long for the available space, is employed at this point in 526. 2, P. S. I. 206. 2, 208. 3, Flor. 140. 2.

 η-10. κατὰ τὸ παλ[αιὸν] ἔθος: cf. P. S. I. 208. 6 κατὰ τὸ ἔθος.

12. ἀφ(ο)ρισθηναι: cf. int. and B. G. U. 1060. 33 τὸν ἀφωρικότα τὸ ἔδαφος. Part of the Libyan nome was called ἡ ἀφωρισμένη in the third century B. c. (P. Rev. Laws lxi. 3).

17. προσαγόρευε: cf. P. S. I. 208. 10 προσαγορεύομε(ν).

1493. CHRISTIAN LETTER.

 10.9×9.6 cm. Late third or early fourth century.

The first part of another interesting early Christian letter (cf. 1492. int.), from a man to a friend or relative with reference to the addressee's son, who had been entrusted to the writer's charge. $\kappa \acute{\nu}\rho \iota \iota \sigma s$ is contracted, but not $\theta \epsilon \acute{\sigma} s$; cf. P. Grenf. ii. 73 and 1495, where both are contracted, and 1592, where $\kappa \acute{\nu}\rho \iota \iota \sigma s$ and $\pi \alpha \tau \acute{\eta} \rho \sigma s$ are contracted.

I shall not neglect to make him attend to his work,'

11-13. Cf. 1581. 5-7.

1494. CHRISTIAN LETTER.

14.4 × 9.7 cm.

Early fourth century.

Another early Christian family-letter, badly spelled, which has lost the beginning. The handwriting suggests a date not much later than A.D. 300, while the high price of olives (3 talents for a $\kappa \nu i \delta i \omega r$ in l. 17) indicates a reign not earlier than Diocletian's. The verso contains, besides the address, two lines written at right angles to it in a different hand (1 Ta v_{μ} ia 2 ($\check{\epsilon}\tau ovs$) ϵ ' $\Lambda\theta \check{\nu}_{\rho}$.), which seem to have no connexion with the letter. This dating presents a difficulty; for the reign of Probus seems too early, and there is no suitable reign in the fourth century, during most of which datings by more than one regnal year were employed, where regnal years were used at all. Possibly one of the various Oxyrhynchite eras beginning in A.D. 307, 324, &c., was meant; cf. 1431. 5, n.

Fourth century.

A letter from Nilus to his 'brother', asking him to pay a debt on his behalf. The biblical contractions of $\kappa \nu \rho \nu \sigma$ and $\theta \epsilon \sigma$ occur; cf. 1492. int. The handwriting suggests about the middle of the fourth century.

'To my lord brother Apollonius Nilus, greeting. First of all I pray for your prosperity before the Lord God. By every means, brother, give my brother Zakaon the confectioner about forty talents on my account, and let me know if I am to pay the equivalent amount where you are, and you shall have it, since . . ., as he could not bring it with him. Pray do not neglect this, brother, for you know my debt (?) in that quarter. I pray for your continued health, my lord. (Addressed) To my lord brother Apollonius from Nilus.'

7. πλακουντ \hat{a} : πλακουντ \hat{a} s (cf. e. g. ἀρτυματ \hat{a} s in 1517. 14) is an apparently new variant of πλακουντάριος (πλακουι[τα]ρ[ίφ] in P. Klein. Form. 1053) οτ πλακουντοποιός (Preisigke, S. B. 984. 5). In P. Klein. Form. 694 and 967 the form is uncertain owing to abbreviation. With the reading πλακοῦντα there is no construction for τως τεσσαράκοντα τάλαντα.

11. Another person, to whom $a \tilde{\nu} \tau o \tilde{\nu}$ and $\tilde{\epsilon} \delta \nu \nu \eta' \theta \eta$ in l. 12 would refer, was perhaps mentioned in this line; but l. 12 may refer to Zakaon. $\tilde{\epsilon} \pi \iota'$ presumably = $\tilde{\epsilon} \pi \epsilon \iota'$, in spite of $\tilde{\epsilon} \pi \iota \delta \eta'$ in l. 12, and $a \tilde{\nu} \tau o \tilde{\nu} = a \tilde{\nu} \tau o \tilde{\nu}$.

praefect being the chief speakers. The position of Fr. 2 (near the ends of ll. (9-20) is fixed by the suitable combinations in ll. Lines 5-8 begin somewhat to the right of ll. 1-4, which have lost a few letters at the beginnings. Lines 2-4 are concerned with the veteran's dismissal from the fleet, which was effected by trierarchs (cf. p. 151); ll. 5-8 refer to his purchase from the State of unproductive land at Senepta (in the middle toparchy; cf. 1285. 120) as a colonia, on which see Wilcken, Archiv, v. 434, Grunds. 403, P. Fragment from the middle of a column of a taxing-list, recording payments by inhabitants of Oxyrhynchus, who are classified according to μερισμοί of their ἄμφοδα, for, probably, poll-tax (cf. 1436. 8, n., and 1520) and pig-tax (cf. 1436. 9, n.). - 1517. 13 × 11.8 cm. A.D. 272 or 278. On the verso of 1555, which was written in A.D. 260-1. A list of money-payments on Phamenoth 10 for Mecheir of the 3rd year of an Emperor, who being later than Gallienus (cf. the recto) must be Aurelian or Probus, since Claudius and Carinus are unsuitable (cf. 1476. int.). The trades of the payers are usually given, which suggests that the impost was the χειρωνάξιον (cf. 1518-19 and 1432. int.); but in 1. 6 the payment seems to be for oil, and the charge may have been of the same nature throughout. If so, since the account is clearly official, the oil-monopoly must have continued to a later date than has generally been supposed. At the bottom, written in the opposite direction, is a note concerning arrears from two villages $\Theta \hat{v}_{\rho is}$ and $\Delta \acute{a} \chi \mu \omega \nu$ (gen.), which are otherwise unknown and perhaps were not Oxyrhynchite. ¹ Λόγος είσπράξεως μηνὸς ² Μεχείρ (ἔτους) γ Φαμενὼτ ι. ³ Διονύσιος ταπιτᾶς (cf. 1431, 2, n.) persons whose trades were generally stated, possibly because the tax was the $\chi \epsilon \iota \rho \omega r \dot{\alpha} \xi \iota \sigma \nu$ (cf. 1517–18); (2) in ll. 10–14 part of a similar list of arrears of rent for buildings owned by the State (cf. 1461), the figures being omitted. $\kappa \omega \delta \hat{a} s$ (l. 4) and $\pi o \rho \tau \hat{a} s$ (l. 7) seem from the context to be new titles for sellers of fleeces (for $\kappa \omega \delta \iota a$ cf. e.g. P. 1523. 15.2 x 8 cm. Third century. An interesting tax-receipt of a somewhat novel character, but incomplete at the top, where several lines belonging to the date formula are lost, and wanting about 5-7 letters at the beginnings of lines (cf. Il. 4, 7), while large portions are hopelessly obliterated. The payment (164 drachmae?) was made to ἐπιτηρηταὶ ἐγκυκλίου καὶ κομακτορίας (a new word) $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu \hat{\epsilon} \kappa [\dots] \kappa \nu \rho o \nu \mu \hat{\epsilon} \nu \omega \nu$ by the purchaser of two slaves; cf. P. Strassb. 79, a contract for the purchase of slaves διὰ κομακτόρων (=coactores). Preisigke, following Premerstein ap. Pauly-Wissowa, Realencycl. iv. 126, regards κομάκτορες as a species of bankers: but it is clear from 1523 that the conduct of a public auction (in P. Strassb. 79. 3 ἀπαρτ(ι)α corresponds to the word lost after $\hat{\epsilon}_{\kappa}$ here) was the essential part of their duties. The έγκύκλιου was normally 10 per cent. in the Roman period, but a higher rate $(73 \text{ dr. } 5\frac{1}{2} \text{ ob. or } 3[.] 5 \text{ dr. } 5\frac{1}{2} \text{ ob.})$ is found in A.D. 250; cf. 1284. int. Part of a list of holders of catoecic, private, and (rarely) Crown land, arranged according to κλῆροι, probably at a village in the Thmoisepho toparchy (cf. the mention of Paomis, which was in that toparchy, in l. 12), and possibly at Νικοστράτου ἐποίκιου οτ Palosis, if the Πτολεμαίου τοῦ Φιλίππου κλῆρος (l. 4) is identical with the Πτολ. καὶ Φιλ. κλ. in 1459. 32. List of places ordered to supply meat, probably for military purposes (cf. 1513), Oxyrhynchus providing for 10 days' supplies (l. 11) and various villages for lesser periods, the length of which is probably a rough criterion of their comparative sizes. The papyrus belongs to the period after the division of the nome into pagi in place of toparchies (cf. 1425. 4, n.); but there is no indication that the villages belonged to any one pagus. Taampemou was in the eastern toparchy, Seruphis (which is mentioned next; cf. 1421. 3, n.) in the western, like Senokomis, which is here coupled with Παρόριον (cf. 1475. 22, n.). Teïs was in the Thmoisepho top., Petne in the middle top.; Milon [os?] and Severias were previously unknown.

1560. 10 x 9 cm. A. D. 209. Fragment from the beginning of an application to a strategus (ll. 2-5), enclosing a letter (ll. 5-8) of the archidicastes Eudaemon also called Asclepiades, who was previously unknown, authorizing the μετάδοσις of a ὑπόμνημα, of which a copy is appended (ll. 8-12), together with a copy of the contract in question (ll. 13 sqq.). The whole document is similar to 1474; cf. 1472. int. The applicant, Aurelius Horion, who is also known from 705, bears an interesting list of Alexandrian titles; cf. 1412. 1-3, n. 1562. 22.7×8.8 cm. A. D. 276-82. Beginnings of lines of a contract by Demetrianus for the ἐκμαρτύρησις of a διάλυσις (l. 25) by Ammonius (? his brother; cf. ll. 3-4). The reign was that of Probus (cf. l. 7 with l. 27), and in spite of the great length of the lines (110-120 letters are lost at the ends; cf. ll. 1 · and 26) much of the ἐκμαρτύρησις (ll. 1-5 and 29) can be restored from the nearly contemporary and completely preserved parallel, 1208. nature and purpose of ἐκμαρτύρησις see 1208. int., Jörs, Zeitschr. f. Savignyst. xxxiv. 107 sqq. The contract of διάλυσις (ll. 5-28) concerned house-property which was to have been conveyed (καταγράφεσθαι) to Demetrianus by Ammonius (l. 12); but before payment was made the agreement was interfered with by the claims of a third party (apparently the Eudaemon mentioned in Il. 9 and 18), who demanded from Ammonius the repayment of a debt concerning the Treasury (ll. 14-16). The matter was brought before a deputy-epistrategus (l. 17), an extract from the proceedings being quoted in 11, 18-19, which are indented, with the result that the original contract of καταγραφή deposited in the archives was annulled (ll. 19-21) and Ammonius undertook to waive any claims against the original purchaser. ¹ [Ετο]υς [. 1577. 17·3 × 9·1 cm. Third century. Demand addressed to Heraclides, overseer of an estate, by the φροντιστήs of Stephanitis (a village; cf. 1578. 2 and 998 Στεφανίωνοs), to send money in order to pay for repairs of dykes, price of reeds, and the writer's salary, making 880 drachmae in all, from which were to be deducted (αντιλημμάτισον: cf. 1578. 11 αντελλόγησον) 18 drachmae, the price of two jars of wine sold by the φροντιστήs. Written in the 2nd year of an unnamed Emperor, the reign being very likely the same as that in 1578 (4th year), which was found in the same mound and may refer to the same estates. ¹ Αὐρη(λίω) Ἡρακλείδη ἐπιτρόπ(ω) ²π(αρὰ) Αὐρηλ(ίου) Ἡρθωνίου φροντιστ(οῦ) Στεφα- ³νείτιδος. αἰτοῦμαι ἐπισταλῆναι ⁴ εἰς χωφόριον κτήματ(ος) Στεφανείτιδ(ος) ⁵ τοῦ καθήκ(οντος) α (ἔτους) μέρους (δραχμὰς) υ, ⁶ καὶ εἰς τιμὴν καλάμου τούτ[ο]υ ⟨τοῦ⟩ μέρους ὁ(μοίως) † ἐπὶ λόγ(ου) (δρ.) τ, κὰμοὶ ὑ[πὲ]ρ 8 ὀψωνίων τῶν ἀπὸ Χοίακ ἔως 9 Μεχεὶρ μηνῶν γ (δρ.) ρπ. 10 γ(ίνονται) τῆς αἰτήσεως (δρ.) ωπ. 11 ἐξ ὧν ἀντιλημμάτισον 12 ὑπὲρ τιμῆς οἴνου κεραμ(ίων) β ἐκά[στ(ου) 13 (δρ.) θ (ὀβολοῦ) (δρ.) ιη (δυοβολούς). 14 (ἔτους) β Μεχεὶρ ε. 15 (2nd h.) 1578. 17.6 x 18.3 cm. Third century. Three demands, which were originally separate, similar to 1577, addressed in successive months to Sarapammon, overseer of the estates of the heirs of Claudia Isidora, by a φροντιστής of Tholthis in the Thmoisepho toparchy. Col. i has only a few letters from the ends of lines. In Cols. ii-iii money was required for the writer's salary, grass-seed, seed-corn, expenses, and unspecified έργα. A deduction for wine sold at the same rate as that in 1577. II occurs in l. II. All three columns contain the signature of Sarapammon authorizing the payment (cf. 1577. 16), and in Col. iii a different person has added a note ordering the payment of an instalment of a sum due to Didymianus for an $\epsilon \pi \iota \theta \eta \kappa \eta$ (note of credit; cf. 1055. 6, B. EGYPT EXPLORATION FUND

GRAECO-ROMAN BRANCH.

THE EGIPT EXPLORATION FUND, which has conducted Archaeological research in Egypt since 1882, in 1897 started a special department, called the Graeco-Roman Branch, for the discovery and publication of remains of classical antiquity and early Christianity in Egypt.

The Graeco-Roman Branch issues annual volumes, each of about 250 quarto pages, with facsimile plates of the more important papyri, under the clitorship of Profs. Grenfell and Hunt.

A subscription of One Guinea to the Graeco-Roman Branch entitles subscribers to the annual volume, and to attendance at the Fund's lectures in London and elsewhere. A donation of £25 constitutes life membership. Subscriptions may be sent to the Honorary Treasurers—for England, Mr. J. Grafton Milne, 37 Great Russell St., London, W.C.; and for America, Mr. Chester I. Campbell, 527 Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass.
