

BUILDING UP LIBRARY

MRS. DANFORD TELLS OF CIRCULATION OF BOOKS AND OTHER WORK

According to Mrs. Danford, the popular librarian of Glendale public library, that institution is gradually being built up into a popular center. The leading motive of all connected with the library is "service." From the librarian down they are all at the command of the public and are willing to work for the general end of the common good.

Just at present the library suffers for lack of funds. It needs some financial backing and there is real need under the appeal recently made to the city council. Recently a patron of the library sent an appreciative letter to Mrs. Danford inclosing $10 for the library funds and expressing his belief that the work done by the library was highly beneficial to the city. This is the spirit that built up the libraries of the great universities and cities of the world. Too many people think that the proportion of the taxation set apart for the library should be sufficient to maintain it at all times.

About 5000 was the circulation figure during the busiest month of the year. That is quite a large circulation for a small library like that of Glendale. From January, 1915, to January, 1916, the total circulation amounted to 50,000. In the month of April more juvenile books were circulated than adult books; but it must be remembered in this connection that a great many of the juvenile books are taken out by adults.

At the opening of the "story hour" for this season or rather on the day that was made preparatory for that season 120 children attended. This was highly satisfactory and the story hour is certain to prove even more popular than it was last year. Parents are asked to encourage their children to resort to the library as a lounging and reading place during the coming vacation.

It is quite likely that a class for girls in their teens will be established this summer also in order to direct them toward proper literature. Many mothers are anxious to see this established. It has been suggested also that a mothers' information class be established to keep mothers posted on the books in the library on such subjects as they are likely to interest themselves in. However, there are difficulties in connection with such a class that are at present insuperable on account of the lack of room for such a class on the main floor during library hours. The floor space is limited and such room as there is will shortly be taken up by additional racks.

Another necessity for the library is a reference room apart from the circulation room. Plans are on foot to build up the industrial department of books of all vocations. Professional books are also needed. The library is now working along with the Parent-Teacher associations, the local clubs and other organizations.

It may be well for the public to know that the total amount of salaries paid to the librarian and her three assistants per month it at present $135. The average amount of salaries per month during the past year was $115. Following is the financial statement:

CARNIVAL AT TROPICO

GREAT CELEBRATION ON MUNICIPAL PLAYGROUND ON SATURDAY, MAY 13

TROPICO, May 9.—Ting-a-ling-a-ling; my phone rang and I jumped to the firing line. "Is this Alexander, the official Tropic press agent?" "It is," said I. "Well hold the wire, I want to tell you the biggest thing yet." "Yet," said I. "Yet," said the voice. "I'm on, shoot." So this is what they told me and I'll tell it to you in my feeble way. Read it. It's good:

With bands aplaying and flags a flying the big benefit for the Tropic Municipal Playground and Band will open its doors. No, its grounds, on this forthcoming Saturday, May 13 (not Friday) at 1 o'clock. The beautiful May queen will be crowned with tremendous ceremony. Bands will play. Ball games and tennis matches will happen, roaring side shows, races for prizes, peanuts, ice cream, pink lemonade, Boy Scout drills and maneuvers (according to rules and regulations); dancing, rough riding contests and numerous other stunts form an elaborate program. "This listens good," said I, "continue."

The festivities and frolics will run through the afternoon and into the evening from 5 to 7. Then will begin the dancing on a floor 40x80 feet. Confetti and serpentine battles, ribbons and Chinese lanterns, all a glitter.

And mark you, good people, it costs you nothing to get in; you can buy a tag if you like to show you are good-natured, but you don't have to. A few miserable pennies spent will sure help a heap! A dandy cafeteria dinner, served from 5 to 7 p. m., may set you back a few dimes, but I am assured the prices will be more than moderate, so don't hesitate to bring along the wife and treat her to a good homey dinner.

"But," I broke in, "I saw a notice in the paper that the dinner would be free, and I got mighty interested, in fact I was ready to send out a general call to my brother scribes," said I.

"Yes," the voice answered, "some terrible mistake has been made. It happens that the dinner is not free but will be sold at cost and below cost."

Well, that's good enough for me, anyhow, because if it was free, it couldn't be free and be good. They couldn't afford it. I once had a free dinner and it wasn't any good, but the warden said it was the best the County could afford and I guess it was. Never again. It's a pretty safe bet that those women who are going to cook this dinner know their business. There are some mighty good cooks in Tropic. I know, because I married one. The great trouble with her is to get something to cook.

So, folks, come and join the merry, happy throng. You're sure to get your money's worth. The event will surely be another triumph for Tropic and the cause is indeed a worthy one. The kids need the playground and the folks will love to listen to the band summer evenings, same as they do in our neighbor's town.

So make no date for Saturday afternoon and evening. Line up strong for the big May-day fete, carnival, circus and festival. If you are a stranger you'll find a cheery howdy-do on tap and you'll get mighty friendly with us at this little affair. Old settlers here will tell you, no matter when, how or where you found out Tropic, it's sure to work its way into your system, and make you so all-fired happy, you'll realize you have at last hit the real perpetual joymaker we couldn't make no change that'd be for the better. So come on in, buy a tag, anyhow; see the big show and let's sort of get acquainted and make a little fun, and by all means don't forget the wife and kiddies. That's all.

"Is that all?" said I. "It is," said the voice, "just now, but I may have something more to add tomorrow. Please write it up good." "I'll do my best," said I. Have I?—ALEXANDER.

OFFICIAL REPORTS FROM PARIS TELL OF SUCCESSFUL BAYONET ACTION BY TROOPS OF REPUBLIC

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
PARIS, May 11.—It was officially announced here today that French troops made a successful attack on German trenches toward the northwest of Verdun, early this morning. The Germans had an advanced trench on northwest slopes of Le Mort Homme. The French advanced with a rush and drove the Germans out. Troops advancing to assist the Teutons were held back by the curtain of fire. The new automatic rifle managed by two men played a prominent part in this action.

All the crew perished. The Austrian ship was on its way to the port of Durazzo in Albania.

RUSSIANS ON THE FRENCH FIRING LINE

GERMANS REPORT HAVING CAPTURED 309 MUSCOVITES IN FIGHTING SOUTH OF SELBERG

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
BERLIN, May 11.—It was announced here today by the war office that 309 Russian soldiers had been captured in the fighting on the French front south of Selberg. It is known that many thousand Russians have recently been landed at Marseilles. They are picked troops and as they land they are furnished by the French with arms and ammunition and sent to the front at Verdun and other points. A number of French troops were caught in an attempt to carry German trenches on H'i'l 309. The curtain of fire dropped behind them and cut them off. They numbered 515 men and a number of officers.

IRISH EXECUTIONS ARE AT AN END

BELIEVED COURTMARTIALS OF INSURRECTIONISTS WILL CEASE—CASEMENT'S FATE IN DOUBT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
LONDON, May 11.—Thomas Kent, who was shot yesterday morning, is likely to be the last rebel executed in accordance with the finding of a courtmartial, in consequence of the recent rising in Ireland. The case of Sir Roger Casement has not yet been settled. Strong influences are being brought to bear in his favor.

MISS CORA FRENZ
As Marjorie Denton in "The Voice of Conscience"

TONIGHT AND TOMORROW NIGHT

The "Voice of Conscience" will receive its first presentation at the Palace Grand tonight. The play is of more than passing interest to many people of Glendale. Not only is it being given by the Alumni association of the Glendale High School, but it is from the pen of a member of the organization. Mr. Rhodes is not a mere novice at dramatic writing, having followed that vocation since his graduation from high school.

The cast is a notable one in local theatricals. Many of them are the people who made such recent productions as "Polly of the Circus" and "A Bachelor's Romance" events to be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to see them. These players are supported by a wealth of new talent, the possessors of which bid fair to outdo the veterans in the cast.

The object of the performance has already been stated—to augment the Alumni Scholarship fund. The association is hopeful of raising two hundred dollars by the two nights' performance, and if enthusiasm and energy count for anything, this will be done. The students of the High School have gotten behind the movement and tickets are going with a rush. There is promise of two packed houses, which is the best tonic which could be prescribed for these young show people.

The object of the production alone makes it worthy of the patronage of the people of Glendale, but they must not be led to believe that they are merely doing an act of charity in buying tickets and attending the play. There is every reason to believe that they will get value received. The play is worth while. And, lest we forget—tonight and tomorrow night.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT

James Arnold Compton of Riverside met with an accident, Wednesday, which afterward proved fatal. Compton was on the top of a truck that was pulled up on the side of the road, on Ontario boulevard, Ontario, Cal. The truck was loaded with heavy boxes, which showed a tendency to fall. In order to shift the load into a safe position Compton mounted on top of the load and proceeded to shift the boxes, holding on to a strip of wood nailed across the top of one of them. The nails in this strip pulled out and Compton was precipitated into the street.

Just at that moment an auto driven by Harrison H. Fogwell of Los Angeles, who was accompanied by C. G. Yarbrough of 211 S. Maryland avenue, Glendale, drove past. As Compton fell he struck on the guard of the auto and was thrown back on the street. His skull was fractured at the base and he died Thursday morning. There was no possibility of preventing the accident. Half-a-second sooner or later in the fall would probably have saved Compton's life. A coroner's jury declared the accident unavoidable.

WEATHER FORECAST—Fair tonight and Friday; west winds.

TO SHORTEN ROAD TO LOS ANGELES

Among its appropriations today the Los Angeles city council voted to give $15,000 for the purpose of building a bridge across the Los Angeles river near Ivanhoe. This will be a great matter for Glendale and Tropic as it will materially shorten the distance between them and Los Angeles.

VALUE OF SELF-TRAINING

"When you reason out a thing by your own understanding," says Locke in his "Essay on the Human Understanding," "you gain a something that abides with you." Nothing is more true. What we learn ourselves we learn willingly and we never forget. Of course, it is necessary to have teachers; but some of the best scholars got along with only a little teaching. It was sufficient to set them on the road and like Elihu Burritt or Abraham Lincoln they beat down the rest of the track themselves.

Home training cannot be overestimated. When of the right kind it is invaluable. At the same time some of those who have had every advantage frequently fail to profit by their privileges, while those who have had every disadvantage have raised themselves out of them by their native genius. No one can read the story of the youth of Abraham Lincoln without realizing that adverse circumstances formed the anvil on which was wrought out the real character of that great man. Lincoln was self-trained. Everything he learned he had made his own and he never forgot it.

When circumstances are against one then is the time to gird up the loins and strive with one's whole might. No one need complain of the adversity of his condition for while the road is hard and rough out of the valley of humiliation it constantly leads upward and some day the light of the promised land will dawn on the valiant heart. Ever if it should never so dawn in this world one may be assured that the struggle and the trial are fashioning and forging a tried and tempered soul for a better life.

Childhood is the time when a great many habits such as application and orderliness are more easily acquired than at any other time. Those who miss the training in such things are bound to acquire them some way or other. What they missed in home training always has to be acquired afterward with pain and difficulty. Yet the man or the woman who is determined to learn has usually a far better pupil than his parents had. It is never well to sit down and lament lack of opportunities. It is possible to make opportunities and to repair neglect and damage done in early days. Self-training may be difficult but it is possible and is a wholesome and valuable discipline.

CALLING OUT THE BORDER MILITIA

Some time ago the people of Arizona, Texas and New Mexico asked the United States government to give them arms and ammunition that they might be able to defend themselves from Mexican raids. The government refused. The reason alleged was that the possession of such arms and ammunition would likely lead to aggression on the part of the people of the border states against the Mexicans. It is humiliating to reflect that the absence of such means of defense has been the stimulating cause to a great extent of the most recent raid of the Mexicans on United States territory.

Now it has been found necessary to call out the border militia. The United States government has at last become alive to the fact that the leaving of a large portion of the border without protection is a certain provacatory cause of attacks on this land. How much better it would have been to have trained and armed these people long ago. Even now they will require months to complete their equipment and it has been discovered that the hesitating policy that has been observed toward the militia on the border has reduced it in some places to one-half its numerical strength.

PROTECTING HOME INDUSTRIES

It is fairly well understood by the majority of the people of the United States that it is necessary to protect American manufactures and produce from cheap foreign competition; but it is not so widely understood that this protection system is as necessary to the life of a community like Glendale as to the life of the nation. The duty of fostering home industries is a primary civic obligation.

One would think that this was almost an axiom, a self-evident truth. For many years the public of Glendale has been alive to the necessity of encouraging the establishing of industries in this city and like a sensible community has even offered considerable inducements to industries to settle here. At the same time but little has been done to protect those industries that are settled in our midst from outside competition.

Glendale has a number of industries that make a respectable beginning for the large industrial center that may some day be established within the bounds of the city. There is a large flouring laundry, a planing mill, lumber yards, sheet iron works, dye-works, a cookie manufacturing establishment, various bakeries, a macaroon and cheese factory and a very large and modern ice plant. These industries apparently have a right to expect that they will be protected from outside competition. They are home industries. The money they earn is redistributed in this city and helps to create new work and carry on other business. They surely stand in a very different relation to the community from that of the outsider who, living elsewhere, and spending his money elsewhere, comes into this community and takes money out of it, thereby making it increasingly difficult for the local businesses to flourish.

Other towns in Southern California have almost prohibitive licenses against outsiders who attempt to come into their bounds and compete with their local business men. Take the instance of laundries. It has been stated that no fewer than twenty-three outside laundry wagons come into Glendale every day and take out of this city a certain proportion of the work that could be handled just as well by the local firms.

In this as in other businesses this city needs protection. It is as certain as that night follows day that if this unlimited competition is permitted to continue Glendale will waken up some morning to find that some of the city's leading industries have sought other centers where the advantages of local payrolls are appreciated by the merchants and by the council.

Protection is a good thing for the city as well as for the nation. All the beach towns have protection against the outsider. In some cases the license for sending in wagons to collect laundry for outside firms cost $250. Glendale is unprotected. The local industry deserves protection and not merely to be put on the same level as the outsider. The city has a good many local industries now, as has been pointed out. There should be many more; but it is certain that industries will not locate in a center where they are handicapped by outside competition and a big license fee.

It is the duty of the city to foster and encourage all local industries. This is a crying need. It should be insisted on by the people who elect the council or trustees and the sense of the community on this point should be made so plain that even the most obtuse could not mistake it.

"MOTHERS' DAY"

By SAMUEL PARKER

In modest effort to line up with the current of thought, sweeping Motherward about these times, and at the same time line up some thoughts worthy of the current, I have gathered in and herewith present some paragraphic excerpts from the poets, showing the sayings of these valuable factors in moulding public opinion. And be it here recorded, that there is not a writer of verse, anywhere, well enough known to be quoted, but has his poem, or song, or verse, to the praise and homage of his mother's sex. I could have filled all this space with a single poem, by a single writer, but concluded to use single stanzas, thereby giving greater number of authors and variety to the selections and as several quotations used were anonymous, I have made them all that way, though several will be found quite familiar.

Be kind to thy mother for lo on her brow
May traces of sorrow be seen;
Oh well may'st thou cherish and comfort her now,
For loving and kind hath she been.
Remember thy mother, for thee she will pray
As long as God giveth her breath;
With accents of kindness then cheer her lone way
E'en to the dark valley of death.

Of course you love her, but let her know,
How long has it been since you told her so?
Put a single flower in her silvering hair,
'Twill do her more good than a cart load out there.
Her cheek may be browned and furrowed, too,
But its color and roundness went to you.
Could you give her a better love token than this—
To implant on that care-worn cheek a kiss.
Prolong her stay, make her happy this side,
For all too soon she will pass the divide.
Then tell her, "I love you, Mother."

Backward turn backward, Oh time in your flight,
Make me a child again just for to-night;
Mother come back from the echoless shore,
Take me again to your heart as of yore.
Kiss from my forehead the furrows of care,
Smooth the few silver threads out of my hair;
Over my slumbers your loving watch keep,
Rock me to sleep, Mother, rock me to sleep.

"Oh thou" she cried, "a mother's love
Hast known a mother's grief;
Bend down from starry heights above
And send my heart relief.
Sweet lips that smiled are drawn in pain,
Yet rest his life may keep,
And give him to my arms again,
Oh let my baby sleep.

An angel from the upper skies
On silent mission crept,
He softly kissed those troubled eyes,
And lo—the baby slept.

My mother's voice! How often creep its accents on my lonely hours
Like healing sent on wings of sleep,
Or due to the unconscious flowers.

I can forget her melting prayer
While leaping pulses madly fly,
But in the still unbroken air
Her gentle tones come stealing by;
And years of sin and folly flee,
And leave me at my mother's knee.

'Tis true that oft our footsteps roam
Through pleasures flowery maze,
And we forget the ties of home
In Sin's deceitful ways.
Yet there's a charm to lure us back
Like some poor weary dove,
That charm so pure and beautiful
Is a Mother's holy love.

It now lies on the shelf, it is faded and torn,
That dear old shawl by my mother worn;
'Tis all that is left for this heart to adore,
To bring to mind those happy days of yore.
How often those hands to these folds have been pressed,
That now beneath the daisies are at rest;
The tears come unbidden and silently fall
To gleam like gems on Mother's old red shawl.

Oh river so placidly flowing
Hard by Old Babylon's walls,
Have ye not the power of knowing
And telling how frequently falls
The tears of the Hebrew mother,
Whose heart was eclipsed that day,
As in the land of the stranger,
She laid her baby away.

That old arm chair I gaze on it now,
With quivering lip and throbbing brow;
'Twas there she nursed me, 'twas there she died,
And love for her shall forever abide.
Say it is folly and deem me weak,
While scalding tears course adown my cheek,

Oh empty may run the river
'Till its bed is dusty and dry,
Earth roll from its base forever,
Props fall from under the sky;
An end come to ties mere human,
But beyond these will survive
The heaven born love of woman,
For her offspring, dead or alive.

Oh mother dear I sigh in vain
To live my childhood o'er again;
To see they mild love beaming eye
Outshine the stars in yonder sky.

"A Mother's love," I felt it when
Her first fond glances fell on me.
In childhood, and in youth, ah then
I knew 'twould constant be.
And oh thank Heaven, she lives to prove
How changeless is a mother's love.

DEATH OF ELIZA JANE COOPER

Entered into rest, at her home, 211 E. Adams street, Eagle Rock, Wednesday, May 10, Eliza Jane Cooper, aged 63 years. Mrs. Cooper was the wife of W. A. Cooper and mother of Miss Mary Cooper and Mrs. Crow, both of Eagle Rock. Mrs. Cooper has been a patient sufferer for some time. A sister-in-law, Mrs. Englebeck, of Des Moines, Iowa, was with her at the end. Private funeral services will be held at the Jewel City Undertaking company's parlors, Saturday, 2 p. m. Interment at Forest Lawn.

DEATH OF JOHN A. MACNAMARA

WHO WANTS FOXGLOVES?

Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, 101 S. Brand boulevard, who is an active member of the Glendale Garden society, has a number of young plants of the foxglove (digitalis purpurea) which she will be pleased to give away to those who call for them. This is a beautiful and showy plant and is easily grown.

Mrs. Calvin Whiting and Mrs. W. B. Crocker were among those who heard Calve at the Orpheum Wednesday.

ANOTHER MEAT MARKET FOR GLENDALE

Stores which properly serve the public usually receive their share of patronage, and maintain a steady growth. As an example of this business rule we mention the fact that G. L. Smith, who conducts a grocery and hardware store at 771-773 S. Brand Blvd., enlarges the scope of his business by opening a meat market today. Mr. Smith started in business in Glendale about three and a half years ago with a small stock of groceries at 771 S. Brand boulevard. It was not long before his stock was doubled and he put on an auto delivery. Since then the growth of patrons has been phenomenal and a year and a half ago he leased the adjoining store room and put in a stock of light hardware and house-furnishings.

In opening the new meat market Mr. Smith feels sure that he is filling a real need in the southern part of Glendale. Mr. McA. Randall, a meat cutter with a wide experience and large circle of friends, who was formerly with Payne & Moode, will have charge of the new department. Mr. Smith now has one of the largest stores of his kind in the Valley and will no doubt be as successful in the future as in the past.

GOOD TEMPLARS MEET

After initiation a short business session was followed by the installation of the newly elected officers. The ceremony of installation was performed by Mrs. Annie Robbins, D. C. T. The newly elected officials were: Arthur Lindley, D. C. T.; J. P. Fansett, P. C. T.; C. Wilkes, V. T.; Frank Jepson, Fin. Sec.; Victor Carr, Treas.; Alice Watson, Sec.; Barbara Askeland, A. Sec.; Oscar Wenberg, M.; Hazel Page, D. M.; Lewis Reid, G.; Robert Taylor, Sen.; Mrs. J. P. Fansett, C.; Mrs. Emma Reid, O.; Mrs. Hattie Gaylord, S. T. E.

The contest which has evoked so much enthusiasm was closed and the Blues, of whom C. Askeland was captain, won. Alice Watson, captain of the Reds, is planning a treat for the winners. Strawberries and cream were served at the close of the proceedings. Toasts were given under the direction of Robert Taylor, toastmaster, and the remainder of the enjoyable evening was spent in games.

EAST SIDE NOTES

One of the most interesting addition to the families resident in the district bordering on the Eagle Rock line, in the vicinity of Rock Glen avenue, is the family of Mr. and Mrs. Thane. They are high-caste Burmese, from British Burma. They have come to this country for the education of their family. In honor of Mrs. Thane a pleasant afternoon tea party was given last Thursday, at the home of Mrs. F. H. Lerchen, 115 N. Ellis avenue. About twenty guests assembled to do honor to the new arrival and also to another arrival in the neighborhood, Mrs. Horsch. The guests of honor were heartily welcomed and Mrs. Thane exhibited a large number of pieces of native Burmese embroidery of exquisite design and work.

Another pleasing affair was the celebration of the birthday of C. W. Young, at his home on Rock Glen avenue, last Sunday. The guests present on that occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Horton of Glendale, and their interesting family, and Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Healy of New York city. A very pleasant time was spent after dinner in the beautiful grounds of the Young residence.

Miss Elizabeth Hoffman of Santa Monica spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Young of Rock Glen avenue.

DINNER PARTY AT TROPICO

The rooms were beautifully decorated with ferns, honeysuckles, and roses. Those present were W. Reese, Miss Emily Burton of Montrose and Howard Stickney. After dinner a most enjoyable time was spent in games and music.

LITTLELANDS

Home Croft Meeting

At the Home Croft meeting Friday evening the prize badges obtained at the Flower Show at Glendale were on exhibition and a letter from the Garden society was read. Through some misunderstanding the Garden society seems to have had the impression that the exhibit provided by Littlelands was made by the Woman's club. True the Woman's club appointed a committee which, co-operating with a committee from the Home Croft club arranged for and had charge of the Littlelands exhibit, but there was nothing on the tables to indicate that the exhibit belonged to the Woman's club or the Home Croft club, although the Home Croft club had been invited personally by Mrs. Nanno Woods to have part in the Flower Show and responded to the invitation by helping as stated above in the Littlelands exhibit. We are sure the president and members of the Woman's club have no desire to sail under false colors or to appropriate to themselves honors which do not belong to them as a society, but which do belong to the community of Littlelands. The prize ribbons, of which there were two, are rightfully the property of Littlelands for the exhibit was a Littlelands exhibit and was so marked both by the pennant bearing the name Littlelands placed back of our tables, and by the card attached to the vegetable basket, calling attention to what could be raised in Littlelands. We make this rather lengthy explanation so that there shall be no further misunderstanding of this affair either by the Glendale Garden society or the Woman's club of Littlelands or by any one else.

On a motion made by Mr. Darlington it was decided that the Home Croft society should have the custody of one of the prizes and the Woman's club take charge of the other. The report of the committee on the Colony Fair was read and accepted. After a general discussion of this matter the meeting adjourned.

These men went last week to this region and staked out their mining claims. They came back last Saturday and report great excitement in that location. Livingstone has a government claim in this district and was of great help to the others in staking their claims.

Poultry Club

At the Poultry club Monday evening it was decided to change the hour of meeting from 7:30 to 8 o'clock p. m. After the reading and approval of the minutes there was a general discussion on the care of little chicks; mites and their remedies. It was stated that till chickens are two days old they require nothing but some clean sand and fresh water; after that for a few days dry bread crumbs and hard boiled eggs in the proportion of one egg to 20 chicks, and minced onion; after a few days, rolled oats and chick feed are the proper food, with plenty of green food. There was also a discussion as to the relative value and cost of different grains.

A Few Pertinent Observations

The camping season is upon us. People are coming here every day seeking temporary summer homes, camping sites, etc., where they may spend their vacations and find a place for recreation and pleasure and recuperate their fagged energy. Are we prepared for them? No. With big capitals—but we ought to be and with a little push and go and a small expenditure of cash Littlelands could prepare an ideal camping resort in the mountains that would bring the people here by the hundreds and the venture would soon pay for itself and could be made a permanent source of profit.

The scheme needs a head to assemble and co-ordinate the resources of this community and bring out the latent energy and force necessary to the success of such an undertaking. Wake up everybody! The time has come for us to undertake for ourselves. We have been exploited enough to kill a giant, but are we dead? Well, hardly. The time has come when the people of Littlelands must launch their own boat and man it themselves.

Mr. J. H. Lamson has some good ideas for a summer camp that only need developing. Mr. P. J. Blake has a head full of embryo projects which, unfolded and brought to a workable basis, would furnish a means of income for the whole community. A trail should be built to the top of Mount Elsie as a beginning and the other roads to the canyon and mountain improved. These good roads are needed not only for campers and hunters but in the case of forest fires they are of untold value in providing a means of approach to the burning districts. There are many other things under consideration, which will be touched upon from time to time.

These rabbits have been bred up to a certain standard until the markings and qualities breed true to type. Rabbits are sold for breeding purposes as high as $100.00 per pair.

SUNDAY STUDY DETRIMENTAL

Preparing school or college studies on Sunday, aside from the moral aspects, does not pay. A report of scientific experiments, made by Dr. E. G. Martin of Harvard University shows that the men who work seven days a week thereby lower their efficiency. It is declared, after a careful investigation, that one day's rest in seven is necessary for the "economic, physical, social, and spiritual welfare of a human being."

The chief method by which Dr. Martin made his tests of students depended on the determination of the weakest electric shock the subjects could feel. Perception of a very weak shock signified high sensitivity, and vice versa. The underlying principle was that high sensitivity would go hand in hand with a high degree of nervous efficiency. A falling off of sensitiveness indicated a lowering efficiency.

The students who devoted a part of their Sundays to study showed the highest degree of sensitiveness at the beginning of the week. On Friday and Saturday they began to betray a marked decrease, as a result of cumulative fatigue.
