To: Major R. W. Shufeldt, M.R.C., U.S. Army,

Subject: Importance of an Army Medical Museum.

1. A meeting of our Faculty will be held next week to pass a formal resolution on the subject mentioned in your letter of March 23rd.

2. Meanwhile, let me express my personal opinion of the great importance of the development of the Army Museum. I have always endeavored to emphasize the importance of museum establishment in Medical Schools, and the great benefits that come to teaching, from the proper use of museum material.

Subject: Resolutions adopted by the Faculty of the University of California Medical School, regarding the importance of an Army Medical Museum.

1. At a meeting of the Faculty of the University of California Medical School, held Friday evening April 26, the following resolution was adopted:

2. Resolved

That in the opinion of the Medical Faculty of the University of California it is eminently desirable to carry on vigorously the collection, collation and review of the medical research and of the medical and surgical experience now being acquired in the great war. Timely labors will not only prevent a repetition of the delinquency in this respect which characterized the medical history of our American civil conflict but will be more certain to bestow on Society at large the advantages of advances in medical procedures before or only shortly after the conclusion of peace and will above all, make such advances more certainly and rapidly available to the Army itself.

In view of the magnitude of this task, special and adequate provision should be made therefore be Act of Congress, said provision to be not only for the assembling and issuing of written reports but also of material and specimens used for medical instruction and for further study whereby the necessary great enlargement of the facilities of the Army Medical Museum and the Library of the Surgeon General's Office and the detail of medical editorial experts will be made available for the Surgeon General.

Whereas, the present great war has brought into action the utmost genius of many great countries in devising new means for wounding and killing men, and whereas this genius has been opposed by the most intensive efforts to combat and mitigate the wounds, and decrease the fatalities produced thereby, it is highly desirable that exhaustive graphic records in the form of specimens and collections, illustrating all phases of this scientific contest be preserved for the instruction of this and future generations,-

Therefore, Be it resolved that the Executive Faculty of the University of Colorado School of Medicine heartily endorses a plan proposed by Major R. W. Shufeldt for the establishment of a great central museum and library presenting a detailed medical history of this war, which may be used as an educational center for future instruction.

Be it further resolved that this Faculty heartily endorses as eminently desirable and proper the expenditure of such moneys as may be necessary to secure housing, arrangement and care for such a collection, commensurate with its importance.

Dear Sir:-

Your letter of March 23rd relating to the expansion of the Army Medical Museum and the projected Medical and Surgical History of the present war, was presented to the Faculty at a Meeting held on the 11th inst. and inclosed resolutions were adopted.

It may interest you to know that Professor Virchow in the same address referred to in the Resolution also declared "The the French in the Crimea learned from their experiences little or nothing and the Americans in their Civil War so much, that from this time dates a new era in military medicine and medical science - these results were brought about not by the magnitude of the need which the Americans had to suffer - for this was not greater than that experienced by the French in the Crimea, but rather by the critical and truly scientific spirit, the open mind, the healthy and practical understanding which in America gradually permeated all departments of the army organization, and which under the wonderful cooperation of an entire people, reached the point of humane efforts highest ever attained in a great war."

Wishing the <sup>the</sup> Medical Corps of the U. S. Army complete success in its noble work, I remain, April 15th 1918.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY THE FACULTY OF THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE
GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY AT A MEETING HELD ON APRIL 11th 1918

WHEREAS It is universally conceded that the establishment of the Army Medical Museum and the publication of the Medical and Surgical History of the Civil War has done more than any other factor to advance Medico-Military Service both in this country and abroad - be it

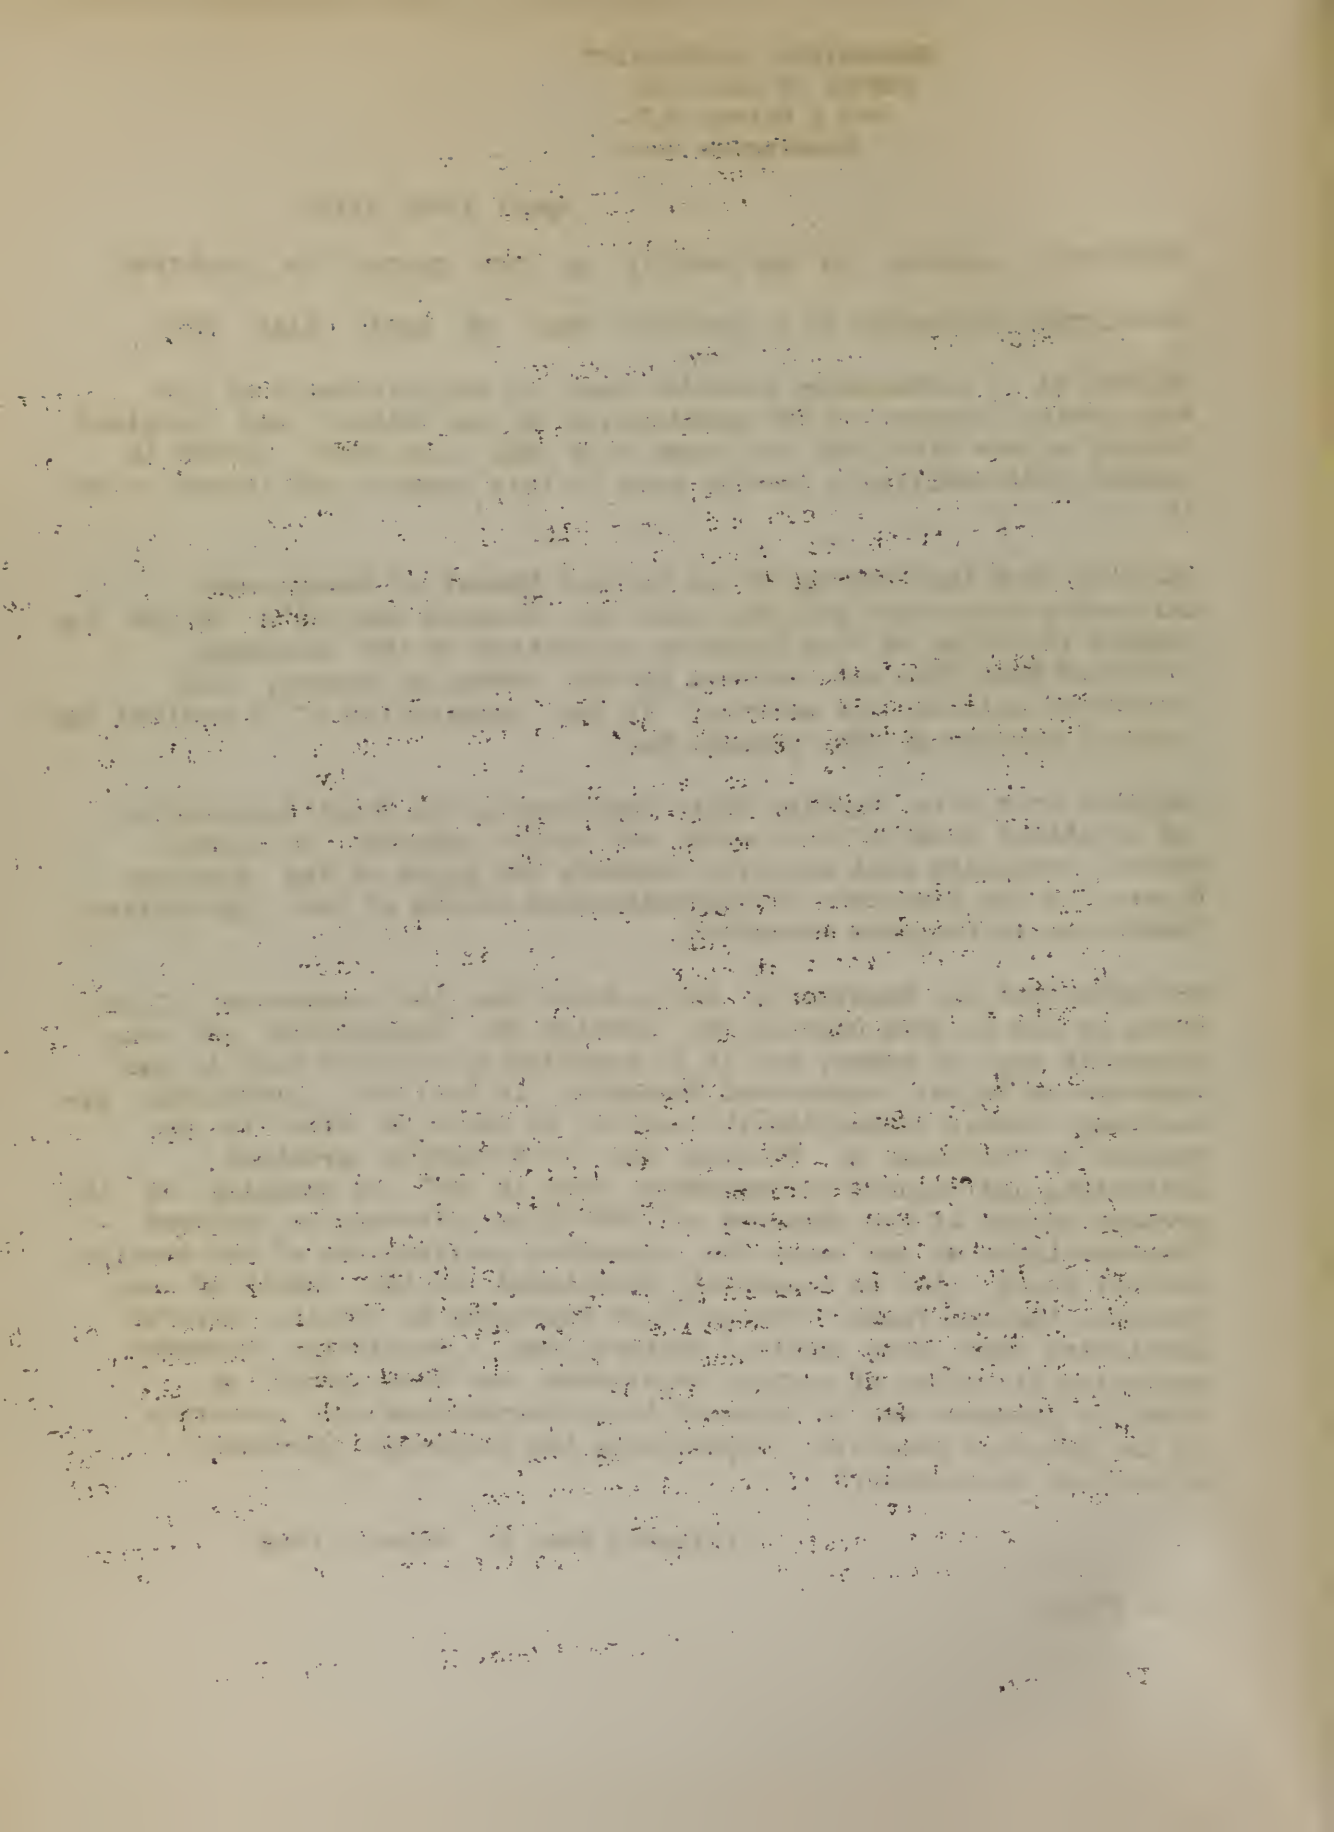

RESOLVED That the Faculty of the Medical School of Georgetown University hails with delight, that the Surgeon General's Office is engaged in adding to this valuable collection by the material forwarded here from the various battle fronts of Europe, and expects to utilize said material in the preparation of a medical and surgical history of the present War.

RESOLVED That this Faculty fully appreciates the great scientific and practical value of this work, and in the interest of higher medical education most heartily commends the plans of the Surgeon General to the favorable consideration and action of the appropriate Committees in Congress assembled.

RESOLVED That the Faculty is fully aware that the execution of the plans of the Surgeon General may involve the expenditure of considerable sums of money, but it is confidently believed that in the interest of Medical Science and Humanity, it will be a profitable investment. In this connection it may not be amiss to refer to the opinion of Professor R. Virchow, one of Germany's greatest scientists and leaders in Democracy, when in 1872 in speaking of the present status of the doctrine of infectious diseases he declared - "Whoever takes up and reads the extensive publications of the American Medical Staff will be constantly astonished at the wealth of experience therein found. The greatest exactness in detail, careful statistics even about smallest matters, and a scholarly statement embracing all sides of medical experience, are here united in order to preserve and to transmit to contemporaries and posterity in the greatest possible completeness the knowledge purchased at so vast an expense."

Dear Dr. Shufeldt:-

The Board of Administration of Marquette University School of Medicine, being informed of the introduction in the near future of a bill relating to the Army Medical Museum urges Congress to pass this bill with adequate appropriation for future development.

There is no doubt whatever that a well carried out plan to secure and use the vast amount of medical and surgical material available from the battlefields of Europe will enlarge the scope, enrich the content on Scientific medicine and ultimately enormously benefit the public through more efficient medical service.

Of particular concern to medical colleges is the unquestioned teaching value of loan sets from the Museum's collection as contemplated - a value that cannot be overestimated in view of the crying national need for more and better doctors, that need made more acute by the exigencies of the present war.

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your circular letter, dated 23/3/18 with reference to a favourable endorsement of the Medical Faculty of McGill University regarding the collection of war pathological specimens for a central museum.

In regard to this the Medical Faculty is quite in accord with these ideas and wish to warmly support it. Canada herself has already instituted a central museum for war specimens, the organization of which is now in the process of formation. There can be no question as to the advisability of such a scheme being put forward by the Medical Corps of the U.S. Army and it should receive the warmest support.

WHEREAS:

The Director of the Army Medical Museum, of the Surgeon General of the U. S. Army, has begun a movement the object of which is to gather together material from the various battle fields of Europe and with this material to prepare an exhaustive medical and surgical history of the present war in the form of collections which may be loaned to the various universities and colleges throughout the country and to build up a museum which shall be the great medical and research center of the world,

THEREFORE: Be it Resolved, by the Science Division of the Faculty of Oberlin College, that we heartily approve of the gathering of such collections and the establishing of such a Museum, believing that they will greatly encourage a more thorough preparation of medical students for practice in Surgery and thus be of direct benefit to the people,

And, Resolved, further, that we respectfully urge upon the Congress of the United States of America the appropriation of funds sufficient to properly house and care for such collections and such a Museum.

(Signed) Frederick O. Grover
Chairman Science Division of Oberlin College.

RESOLUTION OF THE FACULTY OF THE COLLEGE OF MEDICINE
OF SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY

The present war offers an unusual opportunity for the collection of material suitable for an army medical museum. Such material when properly prepared and housed would be of inestimable value for medical study and research.

In order that this country may take advantage of these opportunities it is necessary that funds be made available so that collectors may be sent to the battle-fields of Europe and that a suitable building be provided for housing such collections.

Therefore, the Faculty of the College of Medicine of Syracuse University most heartily approves of plans outlined in the communication of Major R. W. Shufeldt and expresses the opinion that Congress should immediately provide funds for completing this undertaking.

It is resolved, further, that a copy of this resolution be sent to our representatives in Congress and to Major Shufeldt.

Dear Sir:-

We are placing ourselves on record as being in favor of any plans to enlarge the museum at the capital to a teaching and research center and should deem it a very shortsighted policy if not all possible aid were being given to make use of the liberal and unusual material furnished by the European battlefields for collection and present and future study.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:-

Believing that a collection of specimens, illustrating the lesions presented, incident to the present conditions at the European battle-front will prove of great value, not only for preparation of a medical and surgical history of the great war but also for the use of the physicial and surgeons of the future and

Believing that the present occasion offers opportunities such as have occurred never in previous world history and

Recognizing that the usefulness of such a collection cannot but prove of inestimable value to the medical and surgical professions throughout the world but particularly to the practitioners in our own country, therefore be it resolved:

That we most heartily approve of the plan to add to the Army Medical Museum at Washington, D.C., a department in which shall be deposited such specimens, forwarded from the battle fronts of Europe, to be used for historical material and for future study by students of medicine and practitioners of the United States.

We also wish to record our enthusiastic endorsement of the plan to arrange the material into loan sets to be available to the various medical schools in the country. Appreciating the overgrowing importance of the usefulness of the Army Medical Museum, and the important place it occupies in the medical educational interestd of the country, we are impressed with the great value of the proposed addition to its already extensive facilities which will make the institution well nigh matchless in the world.

It would seem to us that any expenditure, however great, would be well and judiciously administered in providing means for this important addition to the facilities for the greater efficiency of the Army Medical Museum whose fame for usefulness is already world-wide and whose work has reflected so much honor upon American Medical institutions,

No private or localized collection could possibly provide for the administration of such material, even if it were obtainable and to have it available where it may be readily accessible will be a feature at once unique and invaluable and will prove a most useful adjunct to the medical facilities of America.

To the Members of the Congress of the United States:

We, the undersigned members of the teaching staff of the School of Medicine of the Tulane University of Louisiana respectfully urge your consideration of the government support of the Army Medical Library and Museum with especial reference to the assembling of material for the historical and practical accumulation of pathological and anatomical specimens bearing upon the injuries and diseases incident to the part America is taking in this great war. The future value to medical education cannot be too highly estimated and early provision of ways and means should be undertaken.

My dear Sir:-

At its regular monthly meeting held this evening-- the first since the receipt of your letter of March 25--the Medical Faculty of the University of Virginia passed the following resolution:

RESOLVED that the Medical Faculty of the University of Virginia unanimously endorses the plan for the building of a new Army Medical Museum and to provide for the proper care and study of the material being forwarded from the battle fronts of Europe. There can be no question of the value of this material for future study and research.

We strongly urge upon Congress liberal provision for this work. The experience of the present war emphasizes the vital importance to the nation's welfare of military medicine and surgery.
Obviously this study should be concentrated in Washington, We heartily approve of the proposed plan and urge liberal appropriation to carry it into effect.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) Theodore Hough

My dear Major Shufeldt-

In response to your circular letter of March 23rd, the following resolution was adopted by the Executive Committee of the Faculty of Medicine of this school:

Resolved that the Executive Committee of the Faculty of Medicine, Western Reserve University, heartily endorses the project of increasing the space and facilities of the Army Medical Museum. It is believed that such increase will be of great advantage to medical education throughout the country.

Yours very truly,

Dear Sir:

At a meeting of the Faculty of the Woman's Medical College of Penna., on April 17, 1918, your letter of March 23, relative to the work of the Army Medical Museum, was duly presented for discussion.

The following action was taken:

Whereas: the proper care of the collections at present contained in the Army Medical Museum, and also those now accumulating from the battlefields of Europe, is of great importance to the physicians and surgeons of future generations; and

Whereas: the proper care of these collections demands that there be built a new and adequate Army Medical Museum

Be it Resolved: that the Faculty of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania endorses such plans as may be devised, including the request for an adequate appropriation by Congress, for accomplishing the above mentioned purposes.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) Martha Tracy.

Dear Sir:-

I have been instructed by the Faculty of the Yale University School of Medicine to forward to you the following resolution:

Resolved: That it is of the very greatest importance to the medical profession of the United States and to American medical education that the Army Medical Museum at Washington should be suitably provided for.

Resolved: That this Faculty is entirely in sympathy with the recent plans to construct and equip a new Army Medical Museum and that they desire to urge upon the Congress of the United States through you that this matter be given immediate attention as the present building is entirely inadequate, and the conditions created by the war render a new building and equipment an absolute and immediate necessity.

Yours very sincerely,

Dear Sir:-

At a meeting of this society called January 30, 1918 it was unanimously resolved to support the plan for a new building for the Army Medical Museum and Library.

The great value of the Museum and Library to the Medical profession and to the country generally can scarcely be over-estimated. For teaching, for medical and surgical research and as repository for the medical and surgical literature of the entire world it is of great value.

In a recent visit to the building devoted to these purposes it was immediately evident that the quarters are long since outgrown and that a new building is very necessary. With regards, I am very truly yours, (Signed) Guy Hinsdale, M.D.

Secretary.

P.S. I would suggest that at a proper time you call the attention of our representatives, Hon. H.D. Flood, to the action of this society and the attention also of the senators from Virginia.

Dear Sir:-

At a regular meeting last evening of the Rochester Med. Ass'n., I presented the matter of the Med. Museum and Library.

The Ass'n voted to approve your project and the secretary will advise you to that effect.

When you get the matter before Congress, we will assist in a personal way with our Senators and Representatives is you desire.

Having a membership of over 300 we count for something as politicians view such matters.

Yours Res'fy,

Signed: Frank F. Dow.

P.S. I very much regret that the Government will not let men ripe in knowledge and experience, of sound health, help in this great struggle, because of "over age".

Dear Sir:

Your letter dated March 29, 1918, and with it a circular letter for general distribution are at hand. I am in hearty sympathy with this proposed movement as designed to advance medical and surgical ~~science~~ not only for the present,--but coming generations of students and medical practitioners.

I will seek an early opportunity to bring the matter before our County Medical Society.

CHAPTER I

THE EARLY HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

The first European settlers in North America were the Spanish, who discovered the continent in 1492. They established colonies in Florida, the Southwest, and the Caribbean. The English followed in 1607, settling in Jamestown, Virginia. The Pilgrims arrived in 1620, settling in Plymouth, Massachusetts. The French established colonies in the St. Lawrence Valley and the Mississippi River region. The Dutch settled in New York and New Jersey. The Swedish and Danish-Norwegian settlers established colonies in the Delaware and Maryland regions. The British colonies grew rapidly, and by the mid-18th century, they had established a strong sense of identity and independence from Britain.

The American Revolution began in 1775, and the United States declared its independence from Britain in 1776. The war ended in 1781 with the British surrender at Yorktown. The new nation was governed by the Articles of Confederation until 1789, when the Constitution was adopted. The Constitution established a federal government with three branches: the executive, the legislative, and the judicial. The first President of the United States was George Washington, who served from 1789 to 1797.

The early years of the United States were marked by westward expansion and the discovery of gold in California in 1848. The Civil War began in 1861, and the United States was reunited in 1865. The Reconstruction era followed, and the United States emerged as a world power. The Progressive Era began in the late 19th century, and the United States became a major industrial power. The Great Depression began in 1929, and the United States entered World War II in 1941. The war ended in 1945, and the United States emerged as a superpower. The Cold War began in 1947, and the United States and the Soviet Union were the two superpowers of the world. The Vietnam War began in 1955, and the United States withdrew its troops in 1973. The Watergate scandal led to the resignation of President Richard Nixon in 1974. The Iran-Iraq War began in 1980, and the United States supported Iraq. The Soviet Union collapsed in 1991, and the United States emerged as the sole superpower. The 9/11 attacks led to the War on Terror, and the United States invaded Afghanistan in 2001 and Iraq in 2003. The United States has been a leading force in the world since the end of World War II.

NEWPORT COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY

Newport
Rhode Island

H.R. Storer, M.D.,
Newport, R.I.

My dear Doctor:-

At a special meeting of the Newport County Medical Society held March 8, 1918, it was voted that the secretary be instructed to forward to Major R. W. Shufeldt of the Medical Corps of the U.S. Army, through Dr. H.R. Storer, Honorary President of this society its endorsement of the suggestion as contained in a communication from Dr. Shufeldt to Dr. Storer on Feb. 4, 1918 in reference to the Army Medical Museum at Washington D. C.

The Museum has, since the Civil War become recognized by the medical profession of the United States, as an institution of inestimable value, alike for the preservation of a very large number of anatomical and physiological specimens illustrative of both medical and surgical disease, extremely useful in the pursuit of scientific research, and the discovery of new methods of treatment and cure, and as a great center of both military and civil study.

It has long been known that the Museum has reached its limit of reception.

The Newport County Medical Society has learned that suitable space has been secured by the army department for the construction of a much larger and more suitable building, the society therefore most earnestly requests Congress to make such appropriation as may be required for this purpose, to become available as soon as conditions of public affairs may permit. The society would also suggest to all other associations of American medical men that they immediately join in the present movement, in order to make it apparent to the authorities at Washington that the great need above indicated does in reality exist.

Sincerely yours,

Signed: A. C<sub>h</sub>aw Sanford. Secretary.

Dear Major Shufeldt:-

Your letter in re the Army Medical Museum received. I am heartily in sympathy with the ideas and will be glad to take it up before both of our local Medical Societies, but cannot do so intelligently without a little more information.

I should have two or more reprints or copies of your paper, referred to by Doctor J. Lawn Thompson. Many of our physicians do not take the Medical Record, and, even if they did, you did not give the date of publication. If you will promptly send me all the data connected with the project which you have, so that it reaches me by Saturday of this week, I will have the matter properly presented to the Academy of Medicine next Monday evening, and will also present it to the General Practitioners' Society and to the Homeopathic Society.

I will also see whether it is possible to get an endorsement from the College of Medicine of our State University. I am not certain that this latter can be done, but if your argument is strong and your data complete as to what is necessary and its probable cost, I am inclined to believe that we can get the endorsement of the University. If we succeed in this, it will be practicable to secure the endorsement of our State Medical Society, which meets in May.

You can rest assured that I will give you every support in my power.

Washington D.C.

My dear Doctor Shufeldt:-

As promised in my letter of March 1st, I had the resolution presented to the Columbus Homeopathic Medical Society, which unanimously adopted the resolution. I am enclosing the resolution, signed by the secretary.

Trusting that these endorsements may be helpful, with the assurance that I am at your command to render any further service in this line, and with the suggestion that it might possible be of benefit if someone could visit a number of the smaller County societies and secure their endorsements, I am

My dear Major Shufeldt:-

In answer to your circular letter with regard to building a new Army Medical Museum and the receipt of a resolution from the Medico Chirurgical College at Philadelphia approving your plan, let me say that our college has lately been merged with the University of Pennsylvania as its graduate school and that therefore such a letter from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School would be equivalent to one from us.

Assuring you of my hearty cooperation in your praiseworthy plan, believe me,

Dear Sir:

I will give me undivided support to the proposition outlined in your letter to me of March 23rd at the earliest meeting of the Dental Society of which I am a member. The endorsement sought for by the Medical Suseum will be without doubt unanimously given. The medical boys will, doubtless, take care of this proposition also.

The Hennepin County Medical Society is meeting this week in the City of Minneapolis, and I will put your letter in the hands of the president in order that he may give his favorable consideration to the proposition.

Dear Doctor:-

Your letter enclosing a circular is at hand. I very heartily concur with you as to the necessity for the enlargement of the Army Medical Museum.

In my judgment this should have been begun some time ago, but I well know how difficult it is to secure the necessary appropriations to carry on work of this kind, although of the greatest importance from a scientific standpoint to the medical profession, and anything that I can do to aid you in this respect will be done heartily and cheerfully. In a small way I aided Dr. W. W. Woodward in establishing the present Museum during the war between the States, which resulted, as you know, in the publication of five magnificent volumes full of medical and surgical information.

You will allow me to suggest that it might be a good plan to prepare at this time a work like Circular No. 6 setting forth the necessity for such an increase in the size of the Army Medical Museum as was done to cause the construction of the present building.

Personally I am very glad to know that such steps are now being taken and if at any time I can be of service to you in this matter, please advise me.

Very truly yours,

I have read the circular letter sent to the Deans of the Medical Colleges and have no hesitancy in endorsing its aims and purposes. A Medical Museum with the specific object of preserving the Medical and Surgical collections from "the various battle fronts of Europe" will prove of incalculable benefit to the Medical Profession. Far more, I think than we can even now conceive.

I shall be glad to assist you in bringing it to a happy conclusion by interesting our Congressmen and Senators.

My dear Major:-

The plan to enlarge the Army Medical Museum to receive a large number of medical and surgical specimens available as a result of the world-wide war, must meet with the approval of every thoughtful physician in the United States; more than that it ought to meet the approval of our Government because to it, and to the millions whom it represents, will the advantages go. Even if a new building were required to do the housing of the specimens, their classification and the administrative work for their distribution to the great medical teaching centers of our country, that should be granted also.

And why not appeal for endorsement and moral support to the large lay bodies of our country? If this plan now developing becomes a reality it would be counted one blessing, at least, flowing from the awful carnage and suffering from the war.

I acknowledge the receipt of your letter of March 30th and am deeply interested in the plans which you present for a permanent museum for war material which is now being collected and sent to the United States. I have no hesitation in expressing as my firm conviction that such a permanent museum is of paramount importance and should have the unqualified support of every medical school in the country as well as the medical profession generally. Such an ambitious undertaking will require a large expenditure but any financial outlay however large for such purposes will be well spent.

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 4 with enclosed copy of a letter that has been sent to the Deans of all the American and Canadian medical colleges of Class "A" in the United States and Canada. I am much interested in your proposition to increase the scope of the Army Medical Museum and I highly approve your plan. I have always been interested in museums of this kind and have passed many days in the Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, which I believe is the finest museum of its kind in the world.

Several years ago we started at the Zoological Garden in Philadelphia a museum of comparative pathology in which there are now over one thousand wet specimens and very many thousands of microscopic slides. I shall be glad to do what I can to assist in furthering your project.

Will you kindly let me know when the Bill to which you refer is brought before Congress?

Dr. R. W. Shufeldt,

My dear Dr. Shufeldt:-

I regard to the efforts which are being made to increase the efficiency and usefulness of the collections of specimens in the Museum of the Surgeon General's Office, let me state that, in my opinion, such a collection is not only of infinite value to military surgeons both in the Army and Navy, but to civilian surgeons and, indirectly but effectively, to the whole population, both in peace times and in war. Opportunities such as exist at present should be embraced to the greatest possible extent, since this museum is not a collection of curios but a collection from which the present and future generations may learn much which is of value in preventing disease and saving life.

As one who has been a teacher of medicine for many years, I feel confident of the correctness of the above remarks from personal experience.

My dear Major Shufeldt:-

In reply to your letter of March 30th I will say that in my opinion it is the duty of the U.S. Government to collect data, together with specimens of all problems that are a matter of educational research in connection with the war's activity that come within the scope mentioned by you.

The work will be prodigious, and needs be carefully systematized, both as regards the materials and data connected therewith. This, in my opinion, should not be left for accomplishment until after the war, but should be instituted as soon as possible. This collection can afterwards be so correlated as to be of immense value to the cause of medicine, in all its outreaches, and should be utilized for the educational opportunities of the coming generations of the professions of medicine, pharmacy and chemistry.

The writer of this remembers the efforts made by the Surgeon General of the United States in the period that followed the war between the States. Indeed, the writer took part in helping to establish the Surgeon General's Library, the catalogue of which alone, is now so complete and has been so useful since its establishment.

Trusting that you will pardon this personal intrusion from my appreciation of the great work with which you are now confronted, and hoping that the plan you have evolved will be consummated for the benefit of America's future, I am

I am very much interested in the movement going on to properly care for the collections in the Army Medical Museum and Library, to enlarge them to the greatest possible extent and to secure appropriations therefore as well as for a proper and fireproof building for their permanent abode. All of this material will become of inestimable value to the medical students of the future and their instructors; this I know from personal experience with my copies of the medical History of the war of the Rebellion. I shall take pleasure in communicating with our representatives in Congress to urge upon them the necessity of giving the latter their support.

Dear Major Shufeldt:-

Having heard of the plans of the Medical Museum and Library at Washington, with reference to collecting the material that is forwarded to Washington from the various battle fronts of Europe, I would herewith express my conviction that the building of a new Army Medical Museum for housing and taking care of the material mentioned, seems to me to be of the utmost importance. It stands to reason that such collections properly arranged and ready to be loaned to the various colleges for study at all times, will give a tremendous impetus to medical science, particularly the branch of war surgery. It is, therefore, to be hoped that sufficient pressure can be brought to bear upon Congress to appropriate ample funds, and that as soon as possible, not only for building a new Army Medical Museum, but also for keeping it up and providing for the proper arrangement of the collections in question.

Believe me,

Sincerely yours,

Major R. W. Shufeldt,

My dear Major Shufeldt-

Your letter concerning plans for enlarging and rendering more useful the Army Medical Museum interests me very greatly and I shall do everything I can to help you. I have already sent a series of specimens which resulted from our studies of pneumonia in the Army Camps in Texas and have drafted a circular at the request of Col. Russell giving additional directions to pathologists in Army Camps about the Technique of autopsy work and the importance of carefully preparing and forwarding specimens with data to the Army Medical Museum. I hope that when this circular is completed and sent out it may help in securing much instructive material for the Museum.

Your plan of making the collections available to responsible workers in various parts of the country seems admirable and I have already heard much of it from Colonel Owen. It is obvious that for its success very special emphasis should be laid upon the necessity for careful clinical bacteriological and pathological data in connection with the specimens which are sent in. The technical methods employed in the preservation of the material are most important.

I take it for granted that in the new plans for an enlarged museum you will arrange for adequate laboratory space and facilities for bacteriological and pathological anatomical studies (especially the latter) so that workers may be encouraged to come from far and near to avail themselves of the opportunity of studying the material collected to the greatest advantage. The proximity of the Library of the Surgeon General would be of the utmost value.

Please count on my continued interest and enthusiasm and willingness to help you in any way I am able.

Very sincerely,

Signed: W.G. MacCallum.

My dear Major:-

Yours of April 4 atb hand, with copy of circular letter as to the collection of material for Medical and Surgical History of the present war, as well as for the enlargement of the collections in the Army Museum.

I am glad to know that this work is engaging your special attention. The result of the labors of your predecessors in the Medical Corps of the Army in preparing the Medical and Surgical History of the Rebellion was of the highest importance not only from the scientific standpoint as record of the enormous experience of that war, but also, and even in a more important degree, from the impetus which it gave to the growth and advancement of Medicine and Surgery in this country and the influence which it had in increasing the appreciation of American Medicine throughout the world. In the wonderful advancement which has been made in all departments of Medicine and Surgery in the years that have passed since that time, the Medical and Surgical History of the Rebellion, the collections of the Museum and the Library of the Surgeon General's Office which has grown out of it, have had a very important and distinct share.

I trust that you will meet support and encouragement from Congress, from the War Department and from the country at large in every effort to do for the Medicine and Surgery of the present war what your predecessors did for that of the Sixties.

Very cordially yours,

I most emphatically endorse the plan to collect and properly house and care for the medical and surgical material which is being forwarded from the battle fronts, and field hospitals of Europe, and the Eastern countries. This material is of unique importance, not only to the present day, but to the henerations to come. Its importance is naturally not limited to the military and medical world, but extends to al science, and to all humanity. Major R. W. Shufeldt, U.S.A.,

Dear Major:-

I have always taken a great interest in the Library and Museum of the Surgeon General's Office. For some time it has been evident to many doctors and our enlightened citizens visiting this building that the present structure is inadequate for the pressing needs of the army surgeons and medical profession. Since the present building was constructed medical progress has been rapid. There is a great need for an up-to-date, large laboratory and more space for books to be purchased, and the money to accomplish this end. All other branches of the government have, or will have, large handsome buildings and annexes.

The Army Medical Museum should be a center of research for the medical world. Why not? There will be collected a vast amount of valuable material in Europe. Think of the practical use to which all this will be put for the benefit of our profession, and especially the citizens of the United States.

Congress should stop and consider 20,000 medical men, in active practice, who will sacrifice this practice that has taken years to build up, and possibly their lives and limbs. These doctors will return pauperized and, as a rule, will not be able to re-establish their former practices. In appreciation of all this, what can be more befitting on the part of Congress than to appropriate a paltry sum of six millions of dollars to carry out the Surgeon General's idea for this building which will be a lasting monument to the whole profession. The doctor's future in civil life after the war will be a difficult one. I hope that Congress will be liberal to our profession and provide the amount to carry out this magnificent ideal.

I remain,

Yours very sincerely,

Dear Major Shufeldt:

This is in acknowledgment of your communication of April 1st containing a copy of a letter addressed to the deans of Class A Medical Colleges.

I need scarcely say that the profession, including all scientists, realize the urgent need of immediate provision for the collection, preservation, and exhibition of the material incident of this war. That its educational value is beyond computation, its historical value will grow with the coming years; that the opportunity for such a collection has never before been presented nor it is ever likely to occur again.

That by generous cooperation upon the part of Congress will be taken now one of those important steps which will assure to America her birthright, i.e. the center of post-graduate instruction and research.

Dear Major:-

I am informed that the Army Medical Corps is busily engaged in caring for the collections which are now being formed from the battle-fields in Europe with a view of writing an exhaustive Medical and Surgical History of the Great War.

For the preservation and use of such collections, a new Medical Museum must be built, and I am informed the site has been given, and plans have been executed for the erection of such a building.

The value of this work for scientific and educational purposes is beyond our power to estimate.

This material when collected is to be prepared in the form of loan sets, so that it may be loaned to the Colleges for study at all times, and will be of incalculable value to the physicians and surgeons of the future.

Such a Museum when completed should be the great Medical teaching and research center of the world. I attach great importance to this undertaking and sincerely trust Congress will make ample provision for its completion.

Washington D.C.

My dear Major Shufeldt:

Your proposed plan of conserving the material now collecting from the seat of war in Middle Europe and later sending out loan sets to medical colleges for the instruction of students, appeals to me as a most desirable and praiseworthy one, and should have the endorsement of every teacher in a medical school.

Although I hope that, at the close of the present war, there will be no need for generations to come to put into practice the medical and surgical experiences which are now being acquired, I most heartily believe in preparedness and universal military training in the future for this country, and to this end special courses should be included in the medical curriculum which will fit officers for immediate field duty.

Such courses would largely obviate the necessity of training camps, as far as medical officers are concerned, would save the Nation both time and money and, possibly, the humiliation of having to send unprepared medical men into the field.

Your plan would add immensely to the interest and effectiveness of this teaching and I hope may be favorably received and acted upon.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Gold:

I have received your letter of April 14, 1954, regarding the synthesis of the compound described in your paper. I am sorry that I cannot provide a more detailed answer at this time, but I will be glad to discuss the matter further when you are in Chicago.

The synthesis of the compound in question is a complex process, and I am sure that you will find the details in the literature to be of great interest. I have been particularly interested in the work of your group in this area, and I hope to have the opportunity to visit your laboratory in the near future.

I am sure that your work will continue to be of great value to the field, and I look forward to the day when we can discuss your findings in more detail.

Very truly yours,

Dear Major Shufeldt:-

I beg to state that I am in most hearty sympathy with your desire to have Congress pass an adequate appropriation for a new Army Medical Museum. I presume it is difficult for a layman to appreciate the importance of such a museum for the future education of the medical profession, and consequently for the health of the country. I am sure you should have the support of the entire profession of the country in this plan.

Dear Sir:-

Replying to your letter of March 23rd in reference to Museum for collecting material from the battle fronts in Europe for the purpose of studying and the preparation of a surgical history of the present war, I wish to advise, I am in hearty sympathy with you and, personally, I wish to do everything I can to encourage and forward the interests of such a museum.

I am also more than glad to know that the Government has decided to construct a new army museum for the present collection has grown far out of its present accommodations. A little more than a year ago, I had the pleasure of visiting the Army<sup>al</sup> Medical Museum and Library in Washington and I could not help but note the fact that the collection of books and objects of interest in the Museum, perhaps, were the best that have ever been gotten together anywhere but the collection suffered for the want of space and proper methods of exhibit.

I sincerely hope your scheme will succeed,

Yours fraternally,

Dear Doctor:

Your letter of April 3rd to Dr. Charles H. North relative to the work in which you are engaged at present has been received. I regret to inform you that Dr. North was killed on December 12th by one of the inmates of this hospital.

I believe that such a collection as you describe would be invaluable. There is no question in my mind but the preparation of such material should be undertaken, and such a task can only be carried out successfully by the government.

Unquestionably the proposition of loan sets to be used in our Medical Colleges for the purpose of study would be of untold value. Just how valuable I suppose none but the medical fraternity can fully appreciate. I do not believe any text-book can bring to the students the picture of a disease quite as clearly as the pathological specimen.

I am sure the idea of making the museum a center of research and teaching in medicine and surgery would improve the standard of physicians in the United States and I am heartily in accord with the movement. I believe it should have the liberal support of the government.

Very truly yours,

In view of the fact that in all probability following the war America will become the medical center

I sincerely trust Congress may be induced to set aside the

It is extremely important for the advancement of the medical sciences that the United States Army Medical Museum and Library be fitted to receive and extend the medical information derived from the present war. There is no doubt whatever that the Army Medical Museum and Library is one of the best in the world, and its library is certainly by far the most important medical collection of books in existence. Its catalogue has been in use for a generation in all the leading Universities of the world as a chief source of information in medical bibliography.

Any public money expended to further the usefulness of this institution is not a matter of mere national display, but of moral obligation.

My dear Doctor:

Please accept many thanks for the distinguished compliment paid me by requesting an expression of my opinion regarding the proposed new Army Medical Museum. There can be only one way of looking at such a thing as this, namely, in a most favorable light, for it would be of immense help to every one interested in modern medical education, and also what is most vital would interest the people of this country in medical science itself, without which education all our efforts are likely to meet with great obstacles. One reason for the growth of the cult is the ignorance of the people regarding the science of medicine. Hence I welcome your project as a valuable ally to the medical profession. Medical education begins with the masses and until the people are educated there is little hope for advancement in medical science.

I have had the privilege of reading a copy of the letter which you have been forwarding to the medical schools of this country concerning the development of the Army Medical Museum.

The unique opportunity which is presented at this time for the preparation of a museum in the United States which shall be of instructive interest to the profession should be used advantageously, and I most sincerely hope that you will be able to carry out this great work for the improvement of medical science.

It is altogether probable that for generations a similar opportunity will not be presented for the development of a museum, which at this time would not only tend to promote medical science but serve as a repository for medical history.

Major R. W. Shufeldt,

Dear Major Shufeldt:

I feel the greatest interest in your proposition to enlarge and improve the Army Medical Museum of the Surgeon General. The best proof of the value of such a collection is the present Museum and its companion, the Medical Library of the Surgeon General's Office. Its invaluable product, the catalogue of the Surgeon General's Library, was the parent of the Index Medicus, without which much of the literary work done within the last thirty years would have been crippled. The proposition to have Congress provide for an extension and further development of the Army Medical Museum should meet the strongest and best support of the medical profession of the country. It will give me very great pleasure to prepare a Resolution to offer in medical societies to which I belong in the endeavor to give support to the project.

Yours truly,

Subject: The Army Medical Museum.

I am very glad to learn that which I had the honor of suggesting to your Office a year or more ago, a matter which I believe had already received the attention of the Office is the importance of extending the Army Medical Museum and increasing its usefulness by obtaining a large number of specimens of the surgery of the present war.

The missiles have so changed and the character of the wounds are so utterly different from the days of the Civil War, and the specimens now which make up the bulk of the present Museum, dating back 50 years, that it is of the utmost importance for our surgeons, in order that they may keep abreast of modern progress, shall have the opportunity of seeing and of studying such a series of recent specimens.

In connection with that, the present crowded Museum and Library are entirely inadequate to the work of the Surgeon General's Office. As I understand it a lot has been secured and all that is necessary is an appropriation to begin a new building. I would urge very strongly that such an appropriation be sought and that the profession throughout the country should be asked to support such an appropriation.

Our Medical and Surgical History of the Civil War is the finest publication of its kind issued by any government. It represents conditions over fifty years ago. We ought to have a similar account of the present war as storehouse of facts which our Surgeons and physicians can draw their information and inspiration.

Baltimore, Md.

April 9, 1918.

Dear Major Shufeldt:

I hardly know of any work more important than that outlined in your letter and projected by the Army Medical Museum; namely, the collection of various exhibits relating to the medical and surgical history of the war as they are furnished by the activities of the troops on the front, and as they accumulate from month to month. Such material must necessarily form a permanent background of any medical or surgical work done in the future, and the possession of such material is absolutely necessary for the instruction of our medical men in the Army and Navy as they fit themselves for their respective duties.

Kindly excuse my delay in answering partly due to absence from the city.

Faithfully yours,

Signed: Howard Kelly.

Dear Sir:-

In answer to your letter of March 23, 1918, I would express the opinion that it is of the greatest importance to the future of medical education of men who are ultimately to serve the United States Army, that opportunity be given to adequately study the lesions and diseases of modern warfare. In order to bring this about it will be very necessary for Congress to appropriate an adequate sum of money to cover the construction of a new Army Medical Museum and in addition to provide some means by which the collections of the museum may become available to the medical schools of the country. This could be done as has been suggested by arranging loan collections. If I can be of any assistance to you by writing to the Congressmen or representatives from this district kindly let me know.

Yours very truly,

George Blumer, Dean.

Dear Major Shufeldt:-

I am in receipt of your letter of April 2nd and relative to establishing a medical museum.

In answer to your inquiries I would say that I consider it of very great importance that at this time there should be established in this Government, a museum of sufficient extent and comprehensiveness to be of value not only to the Medical Department of the Government but also to the medical professions of the country. All we have by way of illustrative material in connection with the Civil War is the small museum which is now under your supervision. Such a collection would be of inestimable value to students, practitioners and teachers.

In connection with this, there should be a comprehensive collection of pathological specimens of the domesticated animals, especially the horse. Now that the Veterinary Corps is in the Medical Department, it is very proper that pathological specimens illustrating the affections of the horse and I believe also of the food producing animals should be made and kept in this museum. Because of the necessary expense of maintaining such collections, it has thus far been impossible for medical or veterinary colleges to maintain suitable museums.

I am very much interested in this subject and assure you that I shall be glad to do anything that I can to assist you in this effort.

Trusting that Congress will cooperate with you in this most worthy enterprise, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) Veranus V. Moore.

My dear Major Shufeldt:-

In reply to your letter of March 29 I have no hesitation in saying that the project of collecting ample material for a thorough medical and surgical history of the present war appeals to me very strongly. Such a collection as you propose will be invaluable in furthering the advancement of knowledge and will enable men of science to utilize fully the unique information that is being made available in the work of the military organization. It is hardly necessary to urge the great advantage such material will be in the future in preventing infectious diseases and in checking the progress of epidemics.

Yours very truly,

I have read with great interest the prospectus of the work you have laid out for yourself in connection with the Army Medical Museum, as detailed in your letter of March 23rd.

This is a most important undertaking, and it should have the encouragement not only of medical men but of laymen as well. Such a museum would be of untold benefit to medical teaching, which means to the public as well. I hope you will secure the hearty cooperation of those who are in a position to help further your enterprise.

My dear Major Shufeldt:

I am deeply interested in the fullest possible development of the National Medical Museum and, in the Surgeon General's Office, I am Chairman of the Committee on development of the Museum and the securing of medical records and specimens of the present war; we are working along the lines that England and France have adopted for their National Medical Museum. Doctor L. B. Wilson of our staff is the Director of the Museum and he is now in France.

The erection of a new building is very essential in order that the institution may be developed to its fullest capacity as an educational one for the public, the physicians and the teachers of medicine.

Very truly yours,

My dear Sir:-

Your letter dated March 26th and evidently received March 27th was unintentionally overlooked by me for which please accept my apology. There can be not the slightest doubt that the project mentioned in your letter concerning a medical and surgical history of this great war is of an importance which cannot be overestimated. It gives me great pleasure to most heartily endorse the idea and to offer my services in any capacity possible should later events place me in a position where such services would be of the least value.

A physical defect, viz., an injured knee has kept me out of active military service so far and my work has been confined to Advisory Board work, etc., but doubtless later when the idea is evolved that medical men practise medicine and surgery rather with their heads than with their heels there may be some place found for me.

With best wishes for the success of the project mentioned, I am

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Major Shufeldt:-

I cannot express too emphatically my thorough approval of your splendid idea to found an Army Medical Museum in Washington D.C.

The educational value of such a Museum as you describe will be immense. The grand results of the McGill Museum of Montreal, of the Jefferson Museum of Philadelphia, the Army Medical Museum in Washington and the Museum of Normal Anatomy of Tulane University at New Orleans are a sure guarantee of the tremendous success that will attend the Museum you have in mind.

Will you notify me and I will delight in writing in its behalf to the Louisiana delegates in Congress.

Dear Doctor:

I have yours of the 28th ult, with enclosure concerning the efforts now making for the collection of material for the preparation of the medical and surgical history of the present war. I do not hesitate to express myself as enthusiastically in favor of this movement. The value of such a history can scarcely be estimated. The advances in the treatment of war surgery have already been so great and will doubtless continue, that we cannot afford to miss the opportunity of collecting all available data with a view of putting it in such shape as will make it available for the use of physicians, medical colleges, and medical students for all future time. You may count on my cordial cooperation in every effort put forth for the promotion of this great work.

Dear Doctor:-

Your highly esteemed letter of the 2nd has just reached me, as also enclosed your appeal to the deans of all medical colleges in America and Canada in Class A.

And as you ask for my personal expression of opinion I write to say that the plan you outline in your prospectus seems to me most admirable and well balanced. The material you will collect from the battle fields of Europe will be of priceless value, and as far as I am informed the first of its kind in any Museum in America to be intelligently classed and arranged for future study of the outcome of the great war we are now in.

The idea then after collection proper preparation of specimens, to loan them in sets to Medical Colleges, will add much towards the advance of medicine and surgery in our country, and should we think receive a large and efficient appropriation from our government to make its accomplishment sure.

Trusting then your endeavors will meet with unbounded success, that this Museum will become the great center of learning and research work, not only for this country but for the world at large.

I remain sincerely and fraternally yours,

(Signed) Allard Meminger.
