PREFACE.

It is estimated that more than a million objects exposed in the various displays installed within the Palaces of the Universal Exposition of St. Louis, 1904. To properly classify, group and arrange alphabetically all of the exhibits of an Exposition of such international scope, is a task of character and proportions as to make it quite impossible to provide a complete catalogue of these exhibits on the opening day of the Exposition.

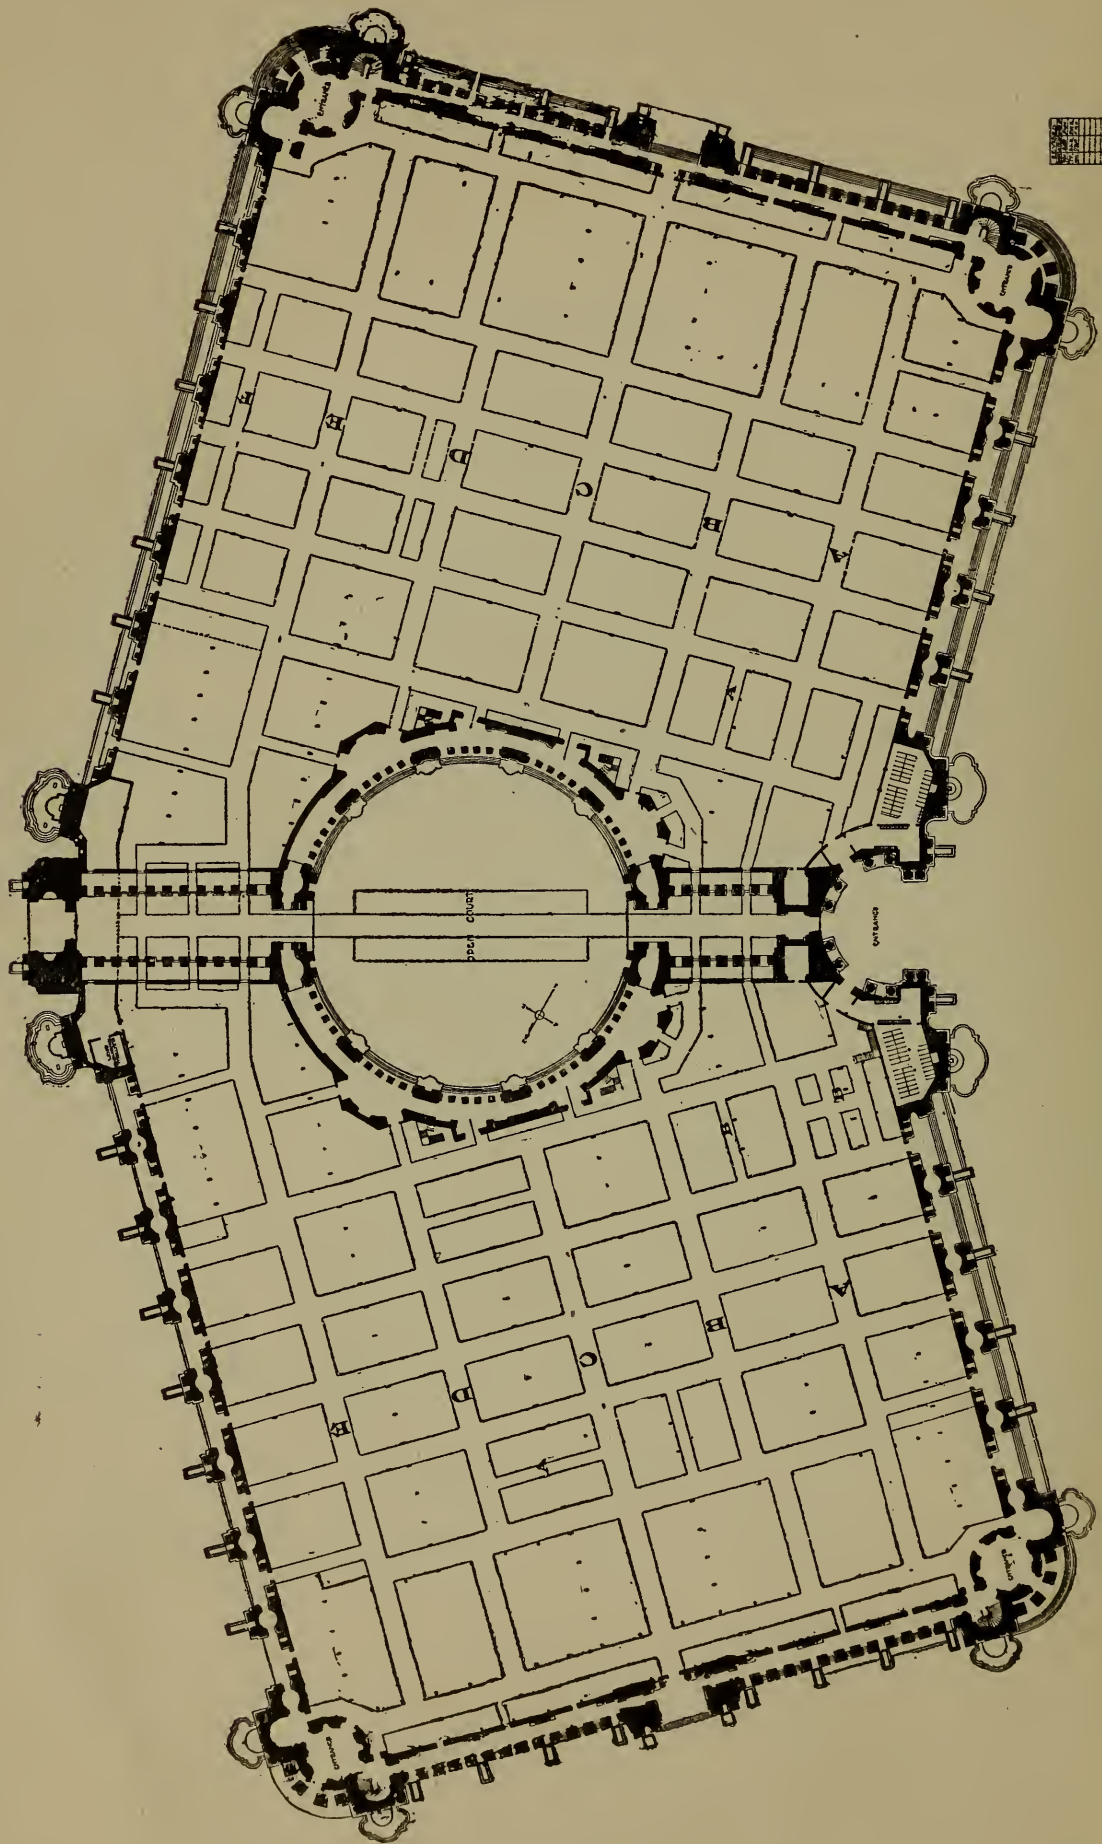

This edition of the Official Catalogue is, therefore, presented preliminary to the revised and complete catalogue which will be ready and issued within a few weeks, and to the preparation of which, in realization of its extraordinary value as a document of general and commercial reference, especial care is being given.

The present volume, however, it is believed, represents the most complete catalogue ever presented at the opening of an International Exposition. It capably serves the purpose for which it is designed, as an early index of the infinite variety of interesting exhibits which are the concrete evidences of the industrial, educational and artistic advancement of the world.

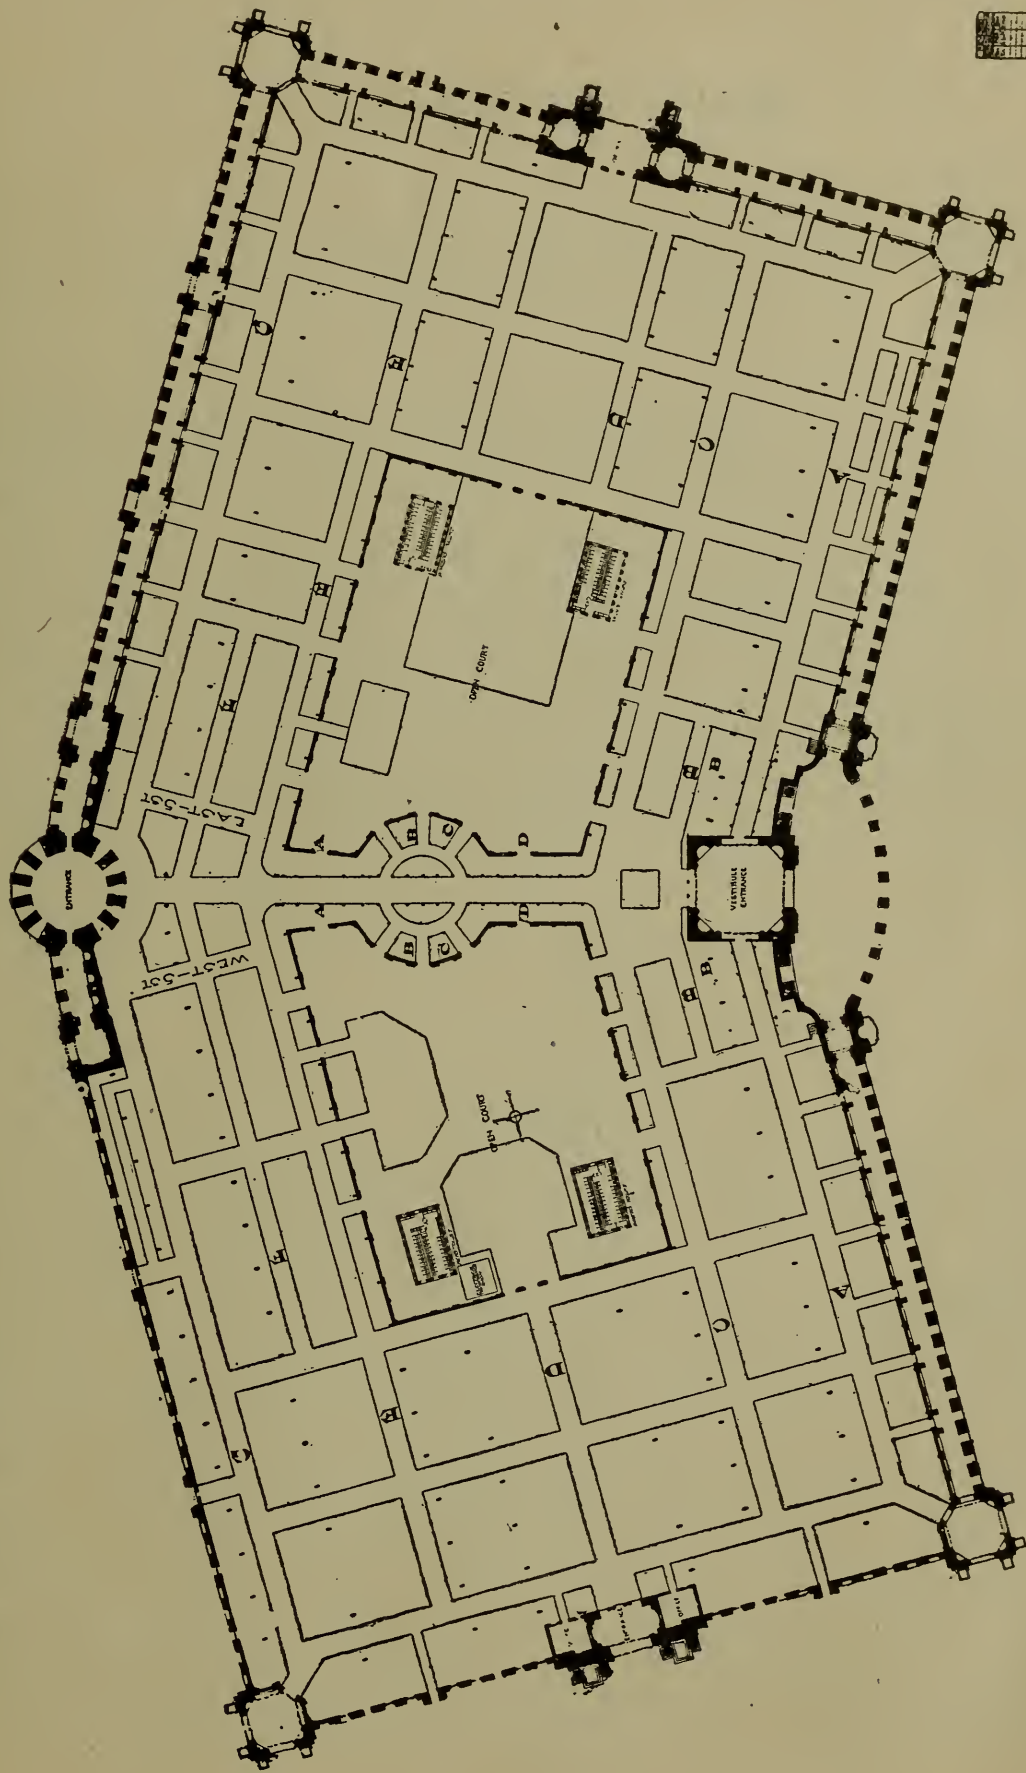

Acknowledgement is hereby offered of the excellent co-operation received in the compilation of this catalogue from the Commissioners-General of participating nations, officers of State Commissions, individual exhibitors, and, more particularly, the various officers of the Division of Exhibits, and the Official Catalogue Company, publishers of the Catalogue.

Very truly yours,

DIRECTOR OF EXHIBITS.

GROUND PLAN PALACE OF MANUFACTURES SHOWING LOCATION OF EXHIBITORS

GROUND PLAN PALACE OF VARIED INDUSTRIES, SHOWING LOCATION OF EXHIBITS

How to Find an Exhibitor.

The exhibit palaces, ground plans of which accompany each catalogue, are arranged in blocks, with aisles, like the squares and streets of a well-planned city. Aisles are lettered and numbered. Blocks are numbered and over each block is suspended a large sign which indicates the number of the block beneath. In every case possible at this early date, the location of the Domestic exhibitor by block and aisle or street is given. It has been impossible to do this in the case of the foreign exhibits for the preliminary edition. State exhibits are located by blocks and aisles. In the Department of Manufactures, the location of the exhibit in the Palace of Varied Industries is indicated by the sign (V. I.); when installed in the Palace of Manufactures, no symbols are given. Streets and numbers of exhibit spaces are also given.

INTRODUCTION.

INSTALLATION OF EXHIBITS, DEPARTMENT OF MANUFACTURES.

By Milan H. Hulburt, Chief.

The two great palaces respectively to the left and right of the Great Basin, forming an important part in the main picture of the Exposition, are devoted to Manufactures and Varied Industries. These two buildings comprise one department—the largest in the classification.

The Palace of Manufactures, a very imposing structure of the Corinthian style of architecture, is 1200 ft. long and 525 ft. wide, covering about 14 acres. There are imposing entrances at the centers of the main facades, and these are elaborately ornamented with sculptural groups. The architects are Messrs. Carrere & Hastings of New York. The cost of the structure is approximately $720,000.

The Palace of Varied Industries is of almost exactly the same dimensions as the Palace of Manufactures, covering about 14 acres. The exterior shows an almost continuous line of colonnade. There are corner pavilions, monumental main entrances at the east and west fronts, with turrets flanking the principal entrances and a portico in the center. This building cost approximately $620,000 and was designed by Messrs. Van Brunt & Howe, Kansas City.

The exhibits in this Department, though covering approximately nine hundred industries, broadly speaking, include all the goods one would find in the principal retail shops of a large city, viz.:

|--------------------|------------------------|
| Stationery, | Rubber, |
| Artists' supplies, | Toys, |
| —Furniture, | China and glass, |
| Dry Goods, | Men's furnishings, |
| Millinery, | Leather goods, |
| Jewelry, | Hardware, |
| Ladies' tailoring, | Men's tailoring. |
| | Undertakers' supplies, |

together with everything that goes into the interior finish and decoration of public and private dwellings, including the plumbing, heating and ventilation, lighting, except by electricity, and all the machinery and processes that are especially adapted for making any of the goods sold in these stores.

More than forty-five per cent. of the space in each building is devoted to foreign exhibits. This space in each building for foreign exhibits, like that for domestic exhibits, is devoted solely to the display of merchandise classified in the building. The division has been made, however, so that all the foreign exhibits are together in one part of the building. This has divided the foreign space into groups according to nationalities, while the domestic space in each building is divided according to industries.

These exhibits have been divided again into three great classes—in the Varied Industries Building we have all merchandise classified as industrial art—that which is made to please the eye—such as art pottery, art glass, jewelry, bronzes, precious stones, silverware, etc., etc.

In the Manufactures Building we have the other two great divisions—the goods being utilitarian in nature, in contradistinction to those in Varied Industries—one of these divisions is installed in the west half of the building, including hardware, heating apparatus, lighting apparatus, other than electrical, undertakers' goods, and a large variety of merchandise in woods and metals. The east half of the building is devoted to textiles, including tissues, clothing of all kinds, etc., etc.
