Article 423.

The provisions relating to the procedure in each particular instance, in so far as these are not inconsistent with their nature, apply mutatis mutandis to the procedure in actions for renewal of procedure.

Article 424.

An action for renewal of procedure must be brought after the judgment attacked has become irrevocable and within thirty (30) days from the day on which the party has obtained knowledge of the cause for renewal of procedure.

The term specified in the foregoing paragraph is peremptory.

No action for renewal of procedure may be brought if five (5) years have elapsed after the judgment becoming irrevocable.

If a cause for renewal of the procedure arose after the judgment had become irrevocable, the term specified in the foregoing paragraph is calculated from the day on which the cause came into existence.

Article 425.

The provisions of the foregoing article do not apply to actions for renewal of procedure based on a defect in authority of representation or on the fact specified in Art. 420 par. 1, No. 10.

Article 426.

In the petition there must be entered:-

1. The parties and their legal representatives;
2. A designation of the judgment attacked and a statement that renewal of procedure is demanded against such judgment;
3. The grounds for dissatisfaction.

Article 427.

Oral proceedings and decision in the suit may be made only within the limit of the dissatisfaction expressed. The grounds for dissatisfaction may be altered.

Article 428.

Where the judgment is found reasonable even though there is a ground for renewal of procedure, the Court must dismiss the action for renewal of procedure.

Article 429.

Where a rule or order that may be attacked by immediate complaint has become irrevocable, if there exists any of the causes specified in Art. 420 par. 1, an application for re-

ARTICLE 621.

On service being effected of a demand for the distribution of the proceeds of a money claim, the garnishee is entitled to deposit the amount of the debt.

Upon demand of a creditor who is a party to the distribution, the garnishee is bound to deposit the amount of the debt.

Where the amount of the debt is deposited, the garnishee shall report to the Court the position of affairs.

ARTICLE 622.

Where the claim relates to an immovable, the garnishee is entitled, and on the demand of the attaching creditor, is bound, to deliver over the immovable to the sequestrator, who has upon the application of the attaching creditor or the garnishee been appointed by the Local Court of the place where the immovable is situated, at the same time stating the position of affairs to the sequestrator and handing over the order served on him.

ARTICLE 623.

Where the garnishee fails to fulfil his obligations in respect to the collection procedure, the attaching creditor may by an action enforce the fulfilment thereof.

Every creditor with an executory exemplification is entitled to join the plaintiff as co-litigant.

The garnishee against whom the action has been brought may, up to the first day of the oral proceedings, enter an application that those creditors who have not joined the plaintiff shall be summoned as co-litigants.

In such case the decision rendered takes effect for and against the creditors summoned.

ARTICLE 624.

When the attaching creditor has neglected collection, he may be called upon, by any creditor demanding distribution in virtue of an executory exemplification, to collect the claim within a fixed term. Where such demand produces no effect, the creditor who has made the same may, with the permission of the Court of execution, himself collect the claim.

ARTICLE 625.

The provisions of this Subsection apply mutatis mutandis to executions of which immovables do not form the subject, and which relate to property rights other than those specified in the preceding several articles.

Where there is no garnishee, the attachment is deemed effected at the day and hour when service is effected on the debtor of the injunction to refrain from any disposition of his right.

In such case the Court may order special measures to be taken, in particular, it may direct the administration or
