New York, Feb. 12.—A special cable

There is no doubt that news has reached here from German sources showing about the end of December. They spawn in the former fully a month earlier than in the latter. When taken in the sea, or for a day or two after entering the river, he is a beauttful fish, snowy white, with hardly a spot visible an him. He very soon loses his beauty, however, and begins to resume his breeding dress, which is very much more gaudy but not so becoming. In the first stage the black spots become more distinct, then red streaks appear on his sides and he becomes more colored about the head, finally about the beginning of March, when the female spawns, he is as ugly a fish as you would wish to see, though he never becomes as hideous as the salmon.

You must not suppose, however, that he is diseased. The act of spawning is a natural function, not a disease.

The salmon that die in such large numbers in the autumn, the dog salmon and humpback, die principally of exhaustion, though many of them are also affected with a fungoid griwth.

As to the unfitness of Gardiner's trout for food when spawning. I cannot tell you much. Some anglers took over a hundred of these fish on the spawning beds in the Cowichan river last March. What they did with them I do not know; did they cat them, did they throw them away, or all they, believing them to be diseased and unfit for human food, present them to their friends?

After spawning the steelhead retires to the deep pools, where he remains unfil he recovers his health, when he drops down the river and returns to the sea.

And now for the ductors who certified that salmon from the snawning beds were unfit for human food. Had these gentlemen stated that they were not good to cat, that they were foul, and these gentlemen stated that they were not good to cat, that they were foul, and these gentlemen stated that they were not good to cat, that they were foul, and these gentlemen stated that they were not good to cat, that they were foul, and these gentlemen stated that they were foul, and these gentlemen stated that they were foul, and these gentlemen stated that they were t

OPENING OF NOME TRADE.

A Tacoma dispatch says not less than two dozen suffing versels will start for Nome and Belefung Sea in April and May. The sawnillis on the Yukon have resumed operations for the season, and every town between bennett and Dawson is building hoats and steamers. Nearly 80 vessels will be engaged in the Alaska trade during the summer, including those on the upper and lower Yukon, together, with steamers sailing on regular routes from Puget Sound. The people of southeastern Alaska have petitoned Senator Perkins, of California, to aid them in securing a lighthouse and other means to protection of the inside route between Tacoma and Skagway. The petition sets forth that 15,000 passecures, 20,000 tons of freight and $20,000,000 in treasure are anually imported over this route.

ACCIDENT ON MAUDE.

A slight mishap occurred on the steamer Maude yesterday when the forward mast fell, throwing Donald Grant to the deck and slightly injuring his arm. Mr. Grant was being hauled up the mast to see whether it was sufficiently sound to remain where it was, when the whole thing came down. The stick was said to be rotten at the bottom; hence the accident.

The King remained there smoking eigarettes till 9-30, when one of the clerks—the

His Majesty asked him at what hour he

A commodious flaunel garment was nightly bath.

A commodious flaunel garment was kept in his nursery ready to put on overhis mother's fine dituner dress, so that, slipping away from the brilliant rooms, she might run up to his nursery, and without damage to her finery, give him his nightly wash; and have her nightly play with him while the ladies downstairs might amuse each other as best they could. She was only a girl herself, a little over nineteen, and doubtless Prince Eddy's company was far more to her taste than that of downgers, and diplomats, and great officers of state.

When in Edinburgh with the Prince of Wales, now King Edward, she visited with him the Infirmary, and one little girl who was badly burnt enlisted her warmest sympathies. Bift to tell of all the hospitals, infirmaries, orphanages, and charities the Queen Alexandra has visited and substantially helped would make a long list. Those for women and children she shows a special interest in, and she has also helped forward a very good work for women of the better class than the very poor, and that is the Kensington House, where ladies who are engaged in professions, arts, or other passatics, was find good and versioning the board and ledging, and comfort such as the lodging-house does not hold out to them. A Christmas Gift.

It is, however, not only in public matters that she has shown her sympathetic nature. Crossing the hall of Marlborough House late one afternoon, just before Christmas, she saw a delicate-looking young grl standing there waiting. Noticing her tired expression and modest Jemeanor, the Princess, as she was then, eaked her to sit down and enquired her business. She had brought some little garments for children, which the Princess had ordered to be made by the then new fashioned sewing machine. The Princess took the girl, who was quite ignorant of who her conductor was, into her own room, examined the garments, and, of who her conductor was, into her own room, examined the gauments, and, praising the neatness of the work, asked who did them. The girl replied that she had made them. She had an invalid mother to support, and she hoped by be-coming an expert and good worker on the new machines that she might be able to save enough from the shop, which took her away from home all day, to purchase a machine of her own when she might be able to earn a little more than bare bread for her mother. The Princess rang the bell, and ordered a backet to be been with some wine. basket to be brough; with some wine, oranges, and biscuits in it, asked the girl's address, and gave the basket to her to take home. On Christmas morning what was the girl's astonishment to receive a handsome new sewing machine with a paper attached to it bearing the words, "A Christmas gift from Alexandra."

Kilmarnock Scotch Whisky

This very fine quality of Scotch Whisky is fast growing in favor in British Columbia. It has for many years been the leading whisky all over Europe, and is to be obtained in all the leading hotels, clubs and refreshment places in London and other large cities of Great Britain. It is termed the "Johnnie Walker," which mean's Walker's famous "Kilmarnock."

The people of British Columbia demand a good Scotch Whisky, which we take pleasure in presenting, and if you will try the "Kilmarnock," you will accept no other. The proprietors of this whisky, Messrs. John Walker & Sons, of Kilmarnock, do not spend money in fancy advertising matter, and attractive labels, bottles, etc., preferring to put the value into the whisky, thus giving the consumer the benefit.

The "Kilmarnock" is always the same in quality. It is to be found in all the clubs, hotels and refreshment places in British Columbia. Take no substitute. If your grocer does not keep it, come to us, and we will take pleasure in directing you to places where it can be obtained, if desired, in small quantities. We have it in case and in wood.

Redvers Buller comes in for criticism.

The first dispatch undertakes to "give a concise account of the state of the affairs of this country in South Africa, on my arrival, January 19th." It describes the forces as much scattered, "I decided to leave General Buller a free hand in Natal, but otherwise to remain on the defensive until reinforcements arrived, and until the transport had been organized," Gen. Roberts found no transport corps existing. The colonial forces had not been sufficiently used. Cape Colony was restless.

Writing from Jacobsdal on February 16th, Lord Roberts says: "General Buller, February 6th, wired that he had pierced the enemy's lines but that to get his army across the Lodysmith plain would cost from 2,000 to 3,000 men. I.

In the course of a sketch of the capure of General Cronje, the occupation and cavalry horses, and they regained courage."

The marches of Johannesburg and Pretoria were uneventful as described by Lord Roberts, his chief concern being to provision the army. "We are practically living from hand to mouth," he wrote, "and at times had not even a day's rations to the good."

He finds that no specific blame can be attached to Colonel Broadwood in the Sanana's post affair, as the "disaster was mainly due to the failure of the patrol at Bushman's Kop to warn their com-trades that an ambash was prepared."

The officer who was placed in command of the patrol is not mentioned.

Tranquility of the Republies "depends upon the complete disarma-ment of their inhabitants, a task difficult. I admit, but attainable with time and patience."

Queen Alexandra Reported to Be Growing Deaf Gossip From London.

- CONTRACE

(Associated Press.) London, Feo. 9.—In all the homage paid to King Edward, Queen Alexandra is little heard of. "Proclamation by the King," in big black type, parades itself curiously on London buildings, and the young blood of England is insensibly fired by the idea that a manly, almost mertial, ruler once more controls their destines. There exists something of that feeling with which the London ap-prentices hailed the accession of the last Edward, so there is little wonder that Queen Alexandra, for the time, comes in for but a small part of this virile enthusiesm.

A diplomat thoroughly conversant with court details, informed a representative of the Associated Press that Her Majesty assumes her increased responsibilities with feeling

"I am growing so old," she said the other day, "that I almost feel mable to face the arduous duties before me." The Queen's appearance belies her words. It Queen's appearance belies her words. It is her growing deafness which is likely to prove her greatest handicap. Before long it is feared she will have to use an ear trumpet. In other ways she is not so strong as formerly. The rumor that King Edward is suffering from cancer, dealed by Sir Felix Semon, physician for diseases of threat to the National hospital for epilepsy and paralysis, through the Associated Press, arose from the fact that Sir Felix Semon is attending Oneen Alexandra for arose from the fact that Sir Felix Se-mon is attending Queen Alexandra for a sore throat, to which recently she has been extremely susceptible, though there are no traces of serious disease. She would, the Associated Press inform-sent says, be only too glad if destiny had permitted her to finish her days in Eng-land as Princess of Wales, the greater freedom and simplicity of the minor title being much preferable to this wo-man who, by has endeared herself to her adopted peo ple. Since the death of Queen Victoria, she has frequently expressed herself as determined to carry off, as far as pos-sible, those old time public and private customs which made the former rulers of the court so different from any others in Europe.

According to report, King Edward and Queen Alexandra will visit the Dowager Empress Frederick in March, and will spend Eister at Copenhagen with the King of Denmark. But if this programme is carried out it will be done in the quietest way. Speculation is rife as to the date of King Edward's coronaas to the date of King Edward's corona-tion, some people maintaining that it will occur as early as September, but probably the year of court mourning will be strictly observed, the coronation not occurring until February, or later in 1992

Whenever the King has appeared in the Upper House it was as an attentive auditor of the debates, sitting on the ordinary benches. The ordy time he voted was in favor of legalizing the marriage of a deceased wife's sister, which he persistently, but fittiely, supported. Among other functions which are shortly to be performed by the King is the

One of the redeeming features of what was naturally a dull week socially was a dinner given by Sir Richard Wyatt, the government parliamentury agent, in honor of his American sonin-law, Mr. J. A. Burratt, who has just been admitted to the English bar.
