MONDAY CLUB.

Henry Warren Poor of the Boston Normal School to Address Club on Monday, January 6, in Odd Fellows' Hall, East Weymouth.

On Monday afternoon, January 6, at Odd Fellows' Opera House, East Weymouth, the members of the Monday club will be entertained with an illustrated lecture, on the resources and treasures of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, treated from the artistic, historical, literary and industrial standpoints, given by Henry Warren Poor, Boston Normal school.

Mr. Poor points out in a general way the various departments of the museum, such as the Egyptian, Greek, Roman, Japanese and Chinese, the department of Textiles, of Prints, of Pottery, of Jewels, etc. But the feature of the museum to which the lecturer devotes more of his attention, is the pictures. Beginning with the old masters and ending with the modern, he leads us to appreciate and enjoy their work more intelligently.

The historical associations connected with some of the pictures are unrivaled in this country and have made Boston and its museum famous the world over.

The club will entertain the presidents of the clubs of the surrounding towns on this afternoon and while this is not an open meeting, members of the club may take guests as provided by the by-laws. Mrs. Edward C. Clark will be the hostess.

NEW YEAR PARTY.

Social Club of the Union Church, Weymouth and Braintree Celebrate.

The New Year party of the Social club, arranged by the young people of the choir for the evening of January 1, attracted a large company of the members of the social club and their friends. Fully 180 guests sat down in the prettily decorated banquet room, which was hung with red and white streamers radiating from a large red Christmas bell in the center, with four large white Christmas bells to mark the outside borders of the decorations. Over the platform were arranged large letters containing the greeting—"A Happy New Year."

A pretty menu card decorated with holly leaves and berries, hand painted, was placed before each guest. It read as follows:—tomato soup, croutons, ham, mashed potatoes, rolls, fruit and salmon and potato salads, rice and baked Indian bread puddings, coffee, crackers and cheese.

All the young ladies of the choir, assisted by Miss Bessie Miller, Miss Ary Lapham and Miss Mary Mitchell waited on the tables, while Fred Harris, Jr., Parker Whittle and Homer Hunt served in the kitchen.

While supper was being served phonograph selections were rendered and Eugene Murphy sang a solo. But the chatter of conversation and the laughter and merriment were at such height that the entertainment was postponed until the completion of the supper, after which all settled back in their chairs to enjoy it.

The musical entertainment provided by the committee, consisting of Mr. Murphy, Harold T. South, Miss Faustine Brackett and Miss Vesta Raasch was very enjoyable. There were vocal solos by Mr. Murphy, Mr. South and Miss Helen Lound; piano solos by Miss Pratt of Holbrook; trombone solos by Mrs. Gaillardet; violin solos by Stetson Avery and readings by Mr. Paffley. After a most enjoyable evening the company adjourned at a late hour.

The next social club supper will be the first Wednesday evening in February. Franklin Taylor will give an illustrated lecture on "The Floods of Norway."

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION.

Sunday School of Old South Church in South Weymouth Holds Annual Gathering.

The Christmas festivities of the Old South church of South Weymouth, which were to have been held Tuesday evening, Dec. 24, but were postponed on account of the storm, were held in the church vestry last Friday evening and in spite of the disagreeable weather a fairly good sized audience enjoyed the exercises. Miss Inez Allen and Miss Ruth Alvord had the affair in charge and Vance Munroe took the part of Santa Claus. The scholars of the school gave a program of recitations and musical selections.

Watch Service.

The East Weymouth branch of the Christian and Missionary Alliance held a New Year's watch service in the chapel on School street, East Weymouth, last Tuesday night. The services which began at 8 o'clock, were conducted by different leaders, a change being made every hour. Rev. F. W. Pocock of Brockton, James P. Haddie of East Weymouth, Rev. Frederick Kidder of Hanover and Ernest O. Pope of Hingham were the leavers. At ten o'clock an old fashioned love feast was held. At 12:05 o'clock the meeting broke up with a hearty "Happy New Year" wish for all.

East Braintree Debating Club.

The next meeting of the club will be held at Engine hall on Monday evening, January 6, at 8 o'clock. The subject of debate will be: "Resolved, That the separation of grade at Braintree as laid down in the plan of the special commission is a damage rather than benefit to the town, and ought not to pay any part of the cost for separation of grades as laid down in that plan."

At the meeting of December 23rd, the subject of debate was: "Is it advisable for a divisional town of eight thousand inhabitants to maintain motor fire apparatus?" Messrs. John A. Ryan and John Heaney spoke in the affirmative and Messrs. Franklin T. Berry and Allen Lawson in the negative. Mr. Ryan made a very strong argument for his side of the question. When the debate was opened for general discussion more than usual interest was shown, and the meeting did not close until a late hour.

The club will start the New Year with a membership of about sixty and as there have been several new members added at each meeting, it should not take long to bring the membership up to one hundred.

WEYMOUTH BOARD OF TRADE.

A Goodly Number of Members Listen to Talk on Town Matters and Plan for the March Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Board of Trade was held at the usual place last night and "Weymouth" was the topic. The president, E. W. Hunt, opened the ball with the following list of suggestions and they were all well discussed and much will be heard from some of them within the next two months.

1st. A continuation of our low Tax rate.

2nd. A closer, deeper and a more loyal interest in Town affairs by our Professional and Business Men.

3rd. A strong, healthy Board of Trade with a membership of 500 and a paid secretary.

4th. Better school accommodations in Wards 1, 3 and 5 and a general discussion of the following question: "Shall the Town continue the free transportation of its school children?"

5th. More money for Highways and better Street Lighting.

6th. The adoption by the Town of the recommendation of our committee in regard to Bath Houses and Public Landing.

7th. Have the Town take by eminent domain land for a Public playground.

8th. A new Town Home.

9th. A five cent fare from Lovell's Corner to Braintree, and later cars at least three times a week from Braintree to South Weymouth.

10th. A central Police station where at least one man shall be on duty.

11th. Our Fire Department equipped in a sane and reasonable manner.

12th. A more up-to-date Pumping station, large enough to furnish all the people with water, also the installation of meters.

13th. A Board of Trade big enough to grapple the Sewage question.

14th. A Board of Trade with influence enough to bring about through the Metropolitan Commission something metropolitan for Weymouth.

15th. A re-evaluation of all the property in the town, both real and personal, and when the assessors start their work of April 1st.

But, above all, I want to see the spirit throughout the Town that constructs, co-operates and expands for the public welfare. The spirit of co-operation and square dealing within and among our other kindred organizations to the end that selfish interest may be subordinated to the public good and all get together in one great movement for the benefit of the Town and all its people.

High School Notes.

The basketball team is scheduled to play the Wellesley High school five in the local gymnasium this (Friday) afternoon.

In the high school hall directly after the noon recess today, Thomas A. Watson of East Braintree gave a most interesting reading from Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice."

A parents meeting is to be held in the hall next Wednesday afternoon, January 8 from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock. All the parents are invited to attend the meeting. A musical program will be given by the young ladies of the senior class, after which the teachers will meet the parents for a general discussion of the scholars work and school matters in general.

It would be a very good new year resolution for the scholars to make, to get together and vow to go to the basketball games and help the boys to win and show them that you are with them, whether they win or lose. The team is really very fast, the boys pass well and are excellent shots, but they need a little encouragement from the student body. At the Taunton game on Tuesday there wasn't over half a hundred present, and a large part of these were graduates of the W. H. S. home on their Christmas vacations. Come on pupils, get busy, get some wide awake cheers and songs and above all go to the games.

The executive committee and the reading committee of the Dramatic club recently formed by the senior girls, reported at a meeting of the club on Tuesday afternoon after school. A general talk on the findings of the committees was held, but nothing definite decided upon.

The report cards for the two months ending December 29 were given out yesterday and the honor list shows the following group of names: seniors, Miss Alice Bently, Miss Edith C. Bicknell, Miss Una Carlton, Miss Helen Lincoln, Miss Martha Tirrell, Fred Philbrick; juniors, Miss Margaret Reidy; sophomores, Miss Theresa Nolan, Miss Olive Sylvester; freshmen, Fred Abel, Miss Ruth Ford, Miss Dorothy Halnan, Miss Mary L. Healey and Eric Sears.

The boys of the senior class held a social party and enjoyed a banquet at Winsor's cafe in East Weymouth on Wednesday evening.

A midget basketball five has been organized in the school, with the following members: Charles Kelley, Lester Lobus, William Reis, Lawrence Caulfield and Leonard Riley.

Rockwood carrier and Wm Lyons clerk; East Weymouth, Lloyd Marble clerk and Richard Skeeter carrier; South Weymouth, Dennis Geary carrier and C. A. Hirtle clerk; Weymouth, Patrick J. Leonard carrier. The Parcel Post carriers have been supplied with teams to deliver with.

JAMES MONROE DIES FROM INJURIES.

South Weymouth Young Man Severely Hurt at Montello Station Tuesday Evening and Died in Brockton Hospital at 8.30 Yesterday Morning.

As a result of injuries received Tuesday evening at the Montello station on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, James Monroe of Mill street, South Weymouth died yesterday morning in the Brockton hospital.

Just how the accident happened is unknown, but it is thought that Monroe was struck by the long steel crane on an express train used to grasp mail pouches from a small stand near the Montello station. It is believed that Monroe was a little late on Tuesday evening and took a desperate chance to get his mail bag on the train.

He walked back to the station after the accident, but collapsed when nearing the building.

Physicians were called and Dr. Daniel E. Brown worked over the victim a long time and later ordered him taken to the hospital, where he never wholly regained consciousness, passing away yesterday morning, with the great loss of blood, together with the severe wound in the pleuro-abdominal cavity and shock to his system.

Monroe has worked at the Montello station about two years and has always been a most careful workman and by his genial manner and gracious ways has made a large army of friends. He resided in Montello at 39 Wilmington street in order to be near his work.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday at one o'clock from his home in South Weymouth.

E. Munroe Thayer.

Mr. E. Munroe Thayer, a well known business man of this town who had conducted a dry goods store for many years died at his home Sunday evening after a short illness of pneumonia.

In business and social life Mr. Thayer was respected as a man of sterling worth and integrity and will be mourned by all who knew him.

Deceased was born in Randolph 79 years ago, but had lived in this town for more than half a century.

Mr. Thayer and Mrs. Thayer, who survives him, were married in this town Aug. 14, 1853 by the late Rev. Jonas Perkins at that time and for nearly half a century pastor of the Union Congregational church of Weymouth and Braintree. They resided for a time in Randolph but had spent nearly all their married life in this town. He is also survived by three daughters, Mrs. Mabel Totman, a teacher in the public schools of Somerville, Mrs. Emma Taylor and Miss Annie Thayer of this town and a sister, Mrs. Edward Nash of Brockton. Mr. and Mrs. Thayer joined the Baptist church the same day 42 years ago and have held their membership ever since. Deceased is a past chancellor and for 43 years, a member of Delphi lodge 15 Knights of Pythias. He was a civil war veteran having served in the 3d Massachusetts Heavy Artillery.

The funeral took place from his late residence 30 Franklin street, Wednesday afternoon and was very largely attended, including many civil war veterans and a delegation from Delphi lodge. The casket was almost hidden from view by the many beautiful floral tributes which testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends.

The stone work on the new large gates at the entrance of the Old North cemetery, which have been given by Laban Pratt of Dorchester, a native of Weymouth is practically completed and this week the contract of installing the large iron swinging gates was undertaken. The erection of these new entrances will improve the cemetery very much indeed. Both the two entrances in the western section and the one in the eastern part, have been supplied with the gates. The work is being done by a Boston contractor.

SPEED OF A SHOT

Finding the Velocity of a Missile a Simple Matter.

MEASURED BY A PAPER DRUM.

The Whirling Cylinder Registers the Projectile's Flight With Minute Accuracy at Any Desired Distance. Wing Shots and Shot Charges.

Persons at all interested in gun firing of any kind, whether of the revolver or rifle or of heavy ordnance of any kind, occasionally come upon the term "muzzle velocity" and velocities of the missile at stated distances.

"How can anybody tell how fast a bullet is traveling when it leaves the muzzle of a weapon?" is a likely comment on the part of the layman.

As a matter of fact this approximate velocity of the missile may be one of the easiest of determinations to make.

In the first place, a drumlike cylinder is made of fixed diameter and of sufficiently stiff paper to allow of its revolving rapidly on a spindle. Using a cylinder of small circumference, it is necessary that the speed approach 2,000 revolutions a minute. These revolutions are produced by electric power, and the count is made by an exact mechanical register.

The gun is placed securely at the required distance from the drum and is sighted directly at the center of the cylinder, which is spinning at so many rods, even miles, a minute, as its circumference determines. With the drum's speed adjusted an electric current discharge the weapon, the bullet striking the center of the drum as measured from top to bottom.

The reader understands that with the drum stationary the bullet would pass directly through it on the line of its diameter, coming out on the other side with scarcely a shade of impediment.

With the drum's periphery whirling at the rate of 2,000 revolutions a minute and its diameter only a fraction more than a foot this would mean a rate of 2,000 yards in sixty seconds. Thus in the fragment of a second necessary for the bullet to enter one side of the paper drum, cross it and out at the other side the opposite side of the drum would show considerable deviation from an exact diameter of line of passage.

It is this space of deflection shown inside the further rim of the drum that is used for the computation of velocity of the missile. The speed of the cylinder may be computed to the ten thousandth part of a second if necessary and the lineal distance run in that time be charted in perpendicular lines on the inner side of the paper. At whatever line the bullet penetrates outward it registers its time in crossing the diameter of the cylinder. If it has gained the ten-thousandth part of a second for the bullet to fly one foot its muzzle velocity to the mile may be computed by any schoolboy. By the same process, too, the bullet's velocity at 100 yards or 500 yards may be determined.

Years ago before wing shooting had become an art the farmer with his muzzle loading shotgun and charge of black powder would shoot directly at a wild goose or duck in full flight. He evolved a theory of his own as to the oncoming bird, holding that the heavy breast feathers "turned" the shot. He waited until the bird had passed him when, firing directly at it, he could bring down his quarry.

But it was not because the bird was not vulnerable, coming breast on. The fact was that it flew over his charge of shot. Before he could pull the trigger and the hammer fell on the percussion cap and the comparatively slow black powder could be ignited and exploded, sending the shot twenty-five or thirty yards, the bird had flown yards perhaps beyond its position when the fowler first touched the trigger. But firing directly at the bird after it had passed the shot charge had a strong tendency to drop as it flew, and the bird flying on a level line "got in the way" of the charge.

Today the modern nitro powders are immensely quicker than was the old black gunpowder, yet it has been an engineering problem to determine just how fast and in what line a charge of shot will travel. In this determination the revolving drum device has shown several important facts which have been taken in connection with the speed of individual game birds and the effects of windage on a shot charge.

That most important fact as to the flight of shot from a modern shotgun is that at forty yards the shot are "strung out" for approximately fifteen feet. While the leading pellets in the string have greatest velocity and killing power, at this distance even the trailing pellets are of sufficient force to kill.

All this has led to the modern practice of the fowler to reckon with the speed of his shot, the speed of the bird, the influence of the wind in "drifting" the charge, and out of these established facts to "lead" the bird sufficiently to kill it rather than main and cripple it—Marvin Holton in Chicago Tribune.

When a girl realizes that she is as pretty as a picture she naturally wants to be looked at in her best light.

The greatest men are those who have done the most for the good and advancement of the human race.
Put faith in the woman who really loves children and doesn't merely "dote" on them.

After a woman has been married a few years she quits trying the plans she cut out of the newspapers to make home happy for her husband.
Sunday school teacher—and what should we do after breaking a commandment, Willie?

Willie—Muzzle the papers and hire a good lawyer.—Life.
One idea of a long-felt want in certain quarters is a chemical preparation which, when applied to letters, will cause them to burn immediately they are read.

Mrs. Blatchford (in trolley car)—Look at Mrs. Knowlton, just coming in. I wonder why she pulls down her veil?
Mrs. Landsay—She sees her husband at the other end of the car, and knows she will get his seat if he thinks she is a stranger.—Lippincott's

"What's Wombat working on now?"
"Oh, he says that ladies' shoes are not sufficiently complicated to be in keeping with the rest of the attire. So he's working on a woman's shoe that buttons up the back."

"We do not need a lengthening of the school day or week or year so much as more efficient instruction." So says Massachusetts and so all should say.—Florida Times-Union.

Some men are modest enough to admit that they only know everything worth knowing.—Chicago Daily News.

Three New York gunmen who had robbed a silk factory were gathered in promptly and with little difficulty by the Newark police. No wonder New York regards New Jersey as foreign.—Boston Transcript.

"Disgraceful affair at the club. Cholly and Ferdie came to blows."
"Nothing so very disgraceful about that."
"But they allowed themselves to be held apart by a couple of bellboys and they were very small bellboys at that."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

J. Pierpont Morgan declares a money monopoly impossible, and he ought to know for it looks as though he had tried as hard as anyone to get it.—Lawrence Telegram.

Frost—Where do you get your hats, old man?
Snow—At cafes usually. But once or twice I've been lucky enough to exchange at church.—Judge.

To a woman the most tantalizing thing in the world is the crased price on a Christmas gift.—Baltimore American.

The people will not elect a man to congress unless he spends a lot of money, and congress turns him out if he does, so there you are.—Florida Times-Union.

"That wasn't a bad epigram on the magistrate's part," said the somewhat educated tramp, who had been convicted for vagrancy.
"What did he say?" asked the tramp's pal.
"Seven days," came the reply.
"That ain't no epigram, is it?"
"I'm sure it is. I asked a parson once what an epigram was, and he said, 'It's a short sentence that sounds light, but gives you plenty to think about.'"

"Who wrote that story about Roosevelt's return to the Outlook office?" asked the managing editor.
"Billy Pennington," replied the city editor. "I thought it was a pretty good story."
"It was more than that. It was a remarkable story. I think we ought to raise Pennington's salary. He didn't wind up by saying: 'The colonel then plunged into a mass of correspondence.'"
"I'm sorry to have to tell you that he did. I blue-pencilled that part of it."
"Oh, pshaw! We'll never be able to make anything of that fellow."

No. 65.
The Benedict Resolves.
[Written for the Gazette and Transcript.]
The Bride and the Benedict sat before the den fire holding council together on the last night of the old year. The logs were glowing with that hectic flush which in wood fires is the infallible sign of an approaching decline. The pile of stony popped corn was rapidly diminishing in the wide dish on the low table between them.

The Benedict had proposed the making of some New Year's resolutions.
"It isn't of any use to make resolutions," protested the Bride, gathering a handful of corn.
"I think I have heard you remark the same thing before," answered the Benedict, "but I have never believed you."

"Perhaps we haven't the same point of view, and perhaps I should say it is of no use for me to make resolutions. You may find it helpful."

"What is your objection, Beloved?"
"Och, they are so restricting. If I resolve that I will make a certain number of calls every week, it instantly gives me a feeling of contrariness and I can conjure up a dozen reasons each week for avoiding those calls. You may call it perversity or foolishness, but I hate to be bound by rules, even those of my own making."

An Appetizing Greek Dish.
Whatever may have been the secret of ancient Greek culture, it seems probable at least that it did not lie in the cuisine of the race, if the details of it that have been discovered by modern scholars are to be taken as accurate. A writer in Frazier's Magazine recently told of one dish that might have provoked a warrior to desperate deeds, but would hardly have inspired an artist or a poet. He says they mixed hog's lard and milk with thick gruel, making a paste of it and adding fresh cheese, yolks of eggs and beef brains. The mixture was wrapped in a fig leaf and boiled in the gravy of a chicken or kid. Then they took off the fig leaf and soured the morsel in a pot of boiling hog's, then ate it—Steward.

A Hundred Million Suns.
A peep into the heavens through a modern telescope is a peep into the very depths of mystery. With such an instrument one may gaze upon 100,000,000 stars, each of them a burning, blazing sun. From what little we know of creation we cannot but believe that each of those suns is giving light and heat to a train of planets, just in the same manner that our sun gives light and life to his little flock of worlds. Beyond those 100,000,000 suns there may be hundreds of millions more. Thus they may continue "system after system and worlds without end."

The Same Napoleon.
It is recorded that Napoleon, when asked to summarize the art of war, answered briefly, "The art of war consists in being strongest at a given point at a given time." This answer was terse and true, but that born but untaught fighter, General Forrest, expressed the same idea, yet more briefly and forcefully. When the grim old Confederate was asked how to win in battle he replied, "Get thar fust with the mostest men."

When Musicians Were Scarce.
In these days of conservatories and music schools, when each house has its piano or its organ, to say nothing of devotees to the cornet, violin and banjo, it seems strange to assert that there ever was a time when musicians were in demand, yet such was really the case. "In the fifteenth century," says Henry M. Brooks in his "Olden Time Music," "musicians were so scarce in England that they were impressed by government order, as in more recent times seamen had to suffer in like manner. Henry VIII. also issued warrants for the impressment of children with good voices for the choirs of the cathedrals, and in Elizabeth's time children with the proper qualification for her majesty's choirs were taken from their parents without any compensation being given to the latter."

He Could Prove It.
"How long can a human being exist without air?"
"For at least four hours."
"Quit your kidding. I'm asking a plain question, and I expect a serious answer."

"I'm giving it to you. I have proved to my own satisfaction, and very recently, that a human being can live four hours when absolutely deprived of air."

"You're a fool. A boy can stay under water for two minutes if he has strong lungs. Even an amphibious animal can."

"Oh, cut that. I've proved it. I rode from here to Buffalo in the upper berth of a sleeping car the other night. And I was taken out alive. I can prove it!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Grant's Quick Wit.
Once during the civil war, when Grant was in subordinate command, he was reconnoitering alone near the enemy's lines. Suddenly he found himself confronted by one of the Confederates' pickets, who was for arresting him. "Sho! Sho!" said Grant, with the utmost coolness. "Can't you see I am reconnoitering in the enemy's uniform? Don't make a noise. I shall be back directly." And he walked away quietly until out of the picket's sight, then ran as nimbly as he could.

Weymouth Gazette AND TRANSCRIPT

Entered in The Post Office at Weymouth, Mass., As Second Class Matter.

FRIDAY, JAN. 3, 1913.

State Auditor White has made an estimate that the state expenditures for 1913 will be $1,673,432 less than that of last year, but we will all know more about it when the legislature quits business next June or July.

The Great and General Court is now in session, Old Glory floats over the golden dome and it is now up to the members of the House and Senate to run a little glory under the aforesaid dome. The legislative wheels were started with the usual formalities and Weymouth's favorite, Rev. D. W. Waldron, the time honored chaplain, will once more intercede at the "Throne of Grace" in behalf of good and pure legislation. Weymouth's record breaking representative, John F. Dwyer, renewed old friendships and no doubt will make new ones, and his special work will be on the committee of "Roads and Bridges" and that of "Taxation" in both of which he has had a large home experience.

Since our last issue we have watched the "old year out" and the "new year in". We part with the old year with something the same feeling as we part with an old true and tried friend. 1912 was good to us and we appreciate the blessings and comforts we received day by day and reverently we look to the "Giver of Every Good and Perfect Gift" and return thanks for 1912. 1913 looked up at us as did Bret Harte's new born with his inquiry in his eyes, "here I am, what are you going to do with me" and we reply to the little fellow, we will try and do the best we can with you and make each and all of your days a blessing to that part of the great world with which we came in contact and wishing all of our friends a "Happy New Year" we ask their co-operation in the good work.

WEYMOUTH SHOE INDUSTRY.

A stranger gets off the cars at Haverhill, Lynn or Brockton and he is at once struck with the fact that he is in a shoe manufacturing town, he sees it at once and it takes him but a short time to take it all in.

The first inquiry of the same man on landing in Weymouth would be—Where is the town? Well, he can begin in the morning and when it comes night he can not have seen it all, it is so wide spread and so far apart and yet all there.

In our various factories are employed nearly two thousand people, whose daily earnings feed, clothe and shelter more than eleven thousand more.

The nearest approximation of this industry for the year now closing is $4,000,000, of which $1,400,000 was paid in wages. While these are good figures to show, and the earnings have been the means of improving many a home already established, and of building many additional ones, the question arises,—Are we getting as much as we might with all our facilities and advantages and all our skilled labor?

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heart-felt thanks to the members of the Weymouth Fire Department, friends and neighbors, for the beautiful floral tributes, their help and sympathy in the time of our recent bereavement.

Mrs. FRED M. LOUD and family.

Town Business.

At the Monday meeting of the selectmen, there being no remonstrant, the board granted the petition of the New Eng. Tel. & Tel. Co. to erect 12 poles on East street.

It was voted to ask the Light and Power Co. and the Gas. Co. to submit proposals for 1, 3, and 5 years for lighting and the same will be submitted to the annual Town Meeting.

On Monday next the Selectmen will have a session with the officials of the street railway in regard to the disposal of snow along the line of its tracks.

It was voted at the meeting to submit to the State Highway Commission a proposal for making Washington street from Main to the Hingham line a State Highway.

Weather permitting this afternoon, representatives of the Weymouth Board of Selectmen, New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, Weymouth Light and Power Company, Bay State Street Railway, with the tree warden of the town, will take up the proposition of consolidating all the wires from Columbian square to the South Weymouth depot on one line of poles, and they will also discuss the advisability of trimming several of the trees on Pleasant street to accommodate the wires more satisfactorily.

BOY NARROWLY ESCAPES INJURY.

North Weymouth Youngster Thrown from Milk Wagon, but Escapes Serious Injury.

Donald Clark of North Weymouth narrowly escaped injury on Tuesday morning when he was accidentally thrown from the seat of the milk wagon owned by Joseph Fottler of Hingham. The youngster was dragged some distance by the horse but was not seriously injured by the mishap.

Daley—Healey.

On Christmas morning at the St. Francis Xavier church in South Weymouth, Cornelius N. Daley, station agent at the South Weymouth depot, and Miss Nellie F. Healey of South Weymouth were united in marriage by Rev. D. J. Crimmins. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John O'Neil of North Abington. The bride was attired in blue satin champagne with chiffon overdress, Irish lace bertha and pink trimmings, and wore a large picture hat. The bridesmaid wore pale blue crepe de chine, with lace overdress and large picture hat. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's father. The room were decorated with pink and white chrysanthemums, palms and foliage.

To the strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march played by Miss Emma Purcell the bridal party marched to the reception room where they received beneath a large floral arch. They were assisted by the bridesmaid and best man and the bride's and groom's fathers. Guests were present from Avon, Brockton, Randolph, Boston, Braintree, Cohasset, Scituate, Rockland and the Weymouths.

A Boston caterer served a luncheon and a musical program was given. Mr. and Mrs. Daley were the recipients of many costly and beautiful wedding gifts. On their return from their wedding trip the newly wedded couple will reside on Union street and will be at home to their friends after February 15.

WHAT'S THE HURRY?

Well, Read the Interesting Whys and Hows of the Telephone Directory

If You Want to Get In, You Had Better Call up FORT HILL 7600 To-Day

It is to the mutual advantage of the Telephone Company and the subscriber to have the latter listed in the directory as soon as possible after he gets telephone, because such a listing saves many calls for "Information."

The Boston division directory plays such an important part in promoting good service that its preparation, printing and distribution are subjects of the most careful supervision. It costs a good deal in time and money to revise an average of 40,000 listings per issue, to transform 600 tons of paper into 200,000 books of 400 pages each, and to distribute these books over 1,500 square miles but it is well worth the effort.

It is apparent that the preparation for printing must proceed on a schedule as arbitrary as that of a newspaper pressroom. If the book is not produced promptly, much of its value is lost. When the closing date is announced, therefore, the printing must proceed with whatever listings are at hand. Those received subsequently must be held over for a later issue.

The patron who rushes in at the last minute with his order may find he cannot be listed in the next book. It may be for one of many reasons, such as the running of additional wires or the setting of new poles or cross-arms; but the reason is a compelling one, although perhaps it might have been overcome had sufficient notice been given.

MORAL. Dont wait another day if you are contemplating installing a telephone, or changing to another class of service. Call Fort Hill 7600 and ask for the Contract Department. Such a call, from any Telephone or Pay Station in the Metropolitan District is FREE OF CHARGE.

Taunton 37, Weymouth, 23.

In the high school gymnasium in East Weymouth on Wednesday afternoon, the Weymouth H. S. basket ball five lost to the Taunton H. S. team 37 to 24. Both teams were inclined to disregard the rules and the officials were kept busy calling fouls throughout the game.

The Weymouth team has improved wonderfully in passing and shooting since the first two or three games and with a bit more practice, the winning side of the score sheet should look very creditable indeed.

The stars in Wednesday's game were Gardner, Baker and Condrick for the Weymouth team and Lockhart and Manter for Taunton. The summary:—

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

CHAPTER XVII.

Wherein Mrs. Comstock Possesses the Limberlost.

THEY shook hands, and Sinton went down the road, while Mrs. Comstock entered the cabin.

"Hurry and get ready, Elnora," she said. "Your supper is almost spoiled now."

Elnora closed the stair door behind her and for the first time in her life threw the heavy lever which barred out any one from downstairs.

"I got to go where they are if I get them," muttered Mrs. Comstock.

She hurried into the cabin, set the lamp on the table and stood thinking deeply.

By and by she began to see the wavering light of something she thought near the right size.

"This way, oh Lord! Make it come this way! Please! You know how I need it! Oh, Lord, send it lower!"

The moth hesitated at the first light, then slowly, easily it came toward the second, as if following a path of air.

Pete slipped several more moths into the bag.

"Now, that's five, Mrs. Comstock," he said. "I'm sorry, but you'll have to make that do."

"That's a fine idea!" said Mrs. Comstock. "They'll have so much room there they won't be likely to hurt themselves."

Mrs. Comstock looked up and stepped out with a prayer on her lips.

"No, shall I?" questioned Pete.

"No. Leave them alone. They are safe now. They are mine. They are my salvation. God and the Limberlost gave them to me! They won't move for hours. The books all say so. Oh, Heavenly Father, I am thankful to ner lips could open a big moth alighted on her breast, while she felt another walking over her hair.

"Oh, it's you!" said Mrs. Comstock. "I might have known! But you gave me a start. Here, hold these until I make some sort of bag for them."

"Pretty pieces, ain't you?" laughed Pete, but he advanced and held out his hands. "For Elnora, I s'pose?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Comstock. "In a mad fit I trampled one this morning."

Something Large as a Small Bird Was Fluttering Around.

and by the luck of the old boy himself it was the last moth she needed to complete a collection.

"Then I guess it's your funeral," said Pete. "There ain't a chance in a dozen the right one will come."

"Well, I can try to get one, anyway," said Mrs. Comstock. "I forgot all about bringing anything to put them in."

Mrs. Comstock removed her apron, tearing off the strings. She unfastened and stepped from the skirt of her calico dress.

"Well, I'll see them make me go," said Mrs. Comstock. "I've got Robert's revolver in my dress and I can shoot as straight as any man if I'm mad enough."

"We are close to the old case," said Pete. "I think I can get into it. Maybe we could slip the rest in there."

"That's a fine idea!" said Mrs. Comstock. "They'll have so much room there they won't be likely to hurt themselves."

Mrs. Comstock looked up and stepped out with a prayer on her lips.

"No, shall I?" questioned Pete.

"No. Leave them alone. They are safe now. They are mine. They are my salvation. God and the Limberlost gave them to me! They won't move for hours. The books all say so. Oh, Heavenly Father, I am thankful to you, and you, too, Pete Corson! You are a good man to help me. Now, I can go home and face my girl."

Elnora had sat by the window far into the night. At last she undressed and went to bed, but sleep would not come.

She hurried down the stairway softly calling her mother. There was no answer.

"Mother!" she called softly, then louder, "Mother!" She returned home. The time was dreadfully long before she heard her mother's voice.

Mrs. Comstock entered, dragging her heavy feet. In one hand she held the lantern, and in the other, stiffly extended before her, on a wad of calico, reposed a magnificent pair of yellow Emperors.

"Shall I put these others in the kitchen?" inquired a man's voice.

"Yes, anywhere inside the door," replied Mrs. Comstock as she moved a few steps to make way for him.

"Thank you, Pete, more than ever woman thanked you before," said Mrs. Comstock.

She placed the lantern on the table and barred the door. As she turned Elnora came into view.

Elnora awoke at dawn and lay gazing around the unfamiliar room. She noticed that every vestige of masculine attire and belongings was gone.

HISTORIC SWORDS

A Pair That Did Duty at the Battle of Bunker Hill.

ENEMIES IN THAT CONFLICT.

Now They Are Clasped in Peace in the Massachusetts Historical Society Building—A Legacy From the Historian Prescott and His Wife. The most impressive memorials of the battle of Bunker Hill are the huge shaft over in Charlestown and a pair of swords which hang crossed like a pair of clasped hands over the door of the building of the Massachusetts Historical society. Both these swords were used in the heroic duel of June 17, 1775, the one by the commander of the patriot forces, the other by the captain of one of the British war vessels which bombarded Charlestown and protected the crossing of the English troops. And for many years these swords, which had not been beaten into plowshares after the Scriptural prophecy, but which had become the symbols of peace nevertheless, hung upon the wall of a great American historian whose father was the son of the American commander and whose wife was the granddaughter of the British captain. It was to these weapons that Thackeray referred in the very first paragraph of his novel "The Virginians," which reads thus: "On the library wall of one of the most famous writers of America there hang two crossed swords, which his relatives wore in the great War of Independence. The one sword was gallantly drawn in the service of the king, and the other was the weapon of the brave and honored republican soldier. The possessor of the harmless trophy has earned for himself a name alike honored in his ancestors' country and his own, where genius such as his has always a peaceful welcome." William Hickling Prescott, author of "The Conquest of Mexico," "Ferdinand and Isabella," and other fascinating histories, the grandson in his paternal line of Colonel William Prescott, who held the hill against the British grenadiers and gave the world the first taste of the valor of the Continentals and whose wife was the granddaughter of Captain John Linzee of the royal navy, who commanded the sloop of war Falcon during the battle, was the writer to whom Thackeray referred. The only son of Colonel Prescott of Bunker Hill, named for his father, was born thirteen years before the battle was fought in Charlestown. This son was educated at Harvard, graduating with the class of 1783. Admitted to the bar in 1787, he became eminent in his profession and accumulated a fortune. His wife was Catherine Green Hickling, the daughter of a Boston merchant who was afterward consul in the Azores. The future historian was their son. Captain John Linzee on that April day in 1775 was charged with the duty of cannonading the rebels and covering the passage of the British soldiers. The British ships of war were moored at various points in front of the Charlestown peninsula. Three years after the battle, on Aug. 8, 1778, the Falcon was sunk off Newport, R. I., to prevent its capture by the French fleet under Admiral D'Estaing. This Captain Linzee's daughter, Hannah Linzee, became the wife of one of the leading merchants of Boston, Thomas C. Amory, and it was the daughter of Thomas and Hannah Amory, Susan Amory, whom William H. Prescott married. Thus the two swords came into the possession of one family. The historian had a degree of pride in his ancestry and liked to discourse upon occasion about these swords. In this respect he resembled Sir Walter Scott. The weapons used to hang over the recess of the great window in his library used commonly as a reception room, where they were the more conspicuous because of the thousands of books, the busts and the pictures by which they were surrounded. It was from the room of the scholar that these ancestral memorials were removed to the quarters of the historical society. That happened in this wise: Upon the death of the historian it was found that the thirteenth item in his will read thus: "The sword of Colonel William Prescott, worn by him in the battle of Bunker Hill. I give to the Massachusetts Historical society as a curiosity suitable to be preserved among their collections, and the sword which belonged to my wife's grandfather, Captain Linzee of the British royal navy, who commanded one of the enemy's ships during the same battle. I give to my wife." When William H. Gardiner on April 14, 1850, sent a letter to Robert C. Winthrop, president of the Historical society, formally conveying the information that the swords were to become the property of the institution he said as to the Linzee sword: "Mrs Prescott and the other heirs of Captain Linzee unite in requesting me to present at the same time in their behalf the sword of their ancestor also. But the two, which by all the memoirs which now belong to them, may still hang together on its walls." The letter read a cover was removed from a packet on the officers' table, and there were the swords, crossed presumably as they had been on the library wall and as they are today.—Boston Herald.

Courage is resistance to fear, mastery of fear—not absence of fear.

ON THE FARM

This Column Alone Cost Us More Than $200. A Year. You Can Have it a Year for $2.00 and the Rest of the Paper for Nothing.

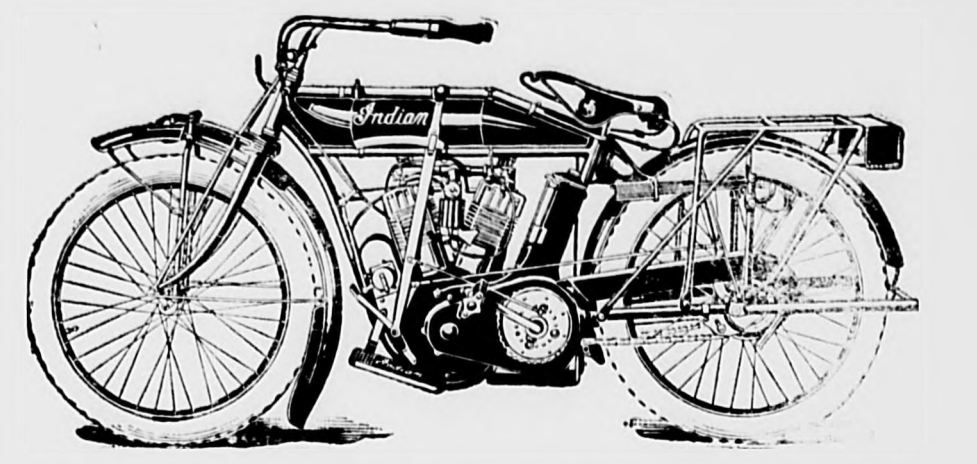

Not a bit of decayed food of any kind ever ought to be given a hen or chick. No part of farm work is so thoroughly misunderstood and neglected as the raising and selling of fruit. This is the month when you should plan how much better you are going to make the garden for the new year than your last year's garden. Try this year a few rows of vegetables with which you are unfamiliar. You may find some new vegetables which will both interest you and be profitable for the time you put into growing them. By taking the smallest pigs away from the others and feeding them by themselves as soon as they are weaned you will seldom have a runt pig on the place. Runts are merely those pigs that are small at birth and which do not have a chance with their stronger companions to get enough to eat. Many farmers think that if they shed their machinery they are escaping at least a bad conscience, but they did it fearfully rusted in the spring when they take it out. In fact, shedding is only half the battle; and unless proper oiling and painting in the shed rusts almost equal to in the field. A few ducks may be raised very well with the hens, and no disturbance will be made by either birds. The ducks are great home lovers, and if accustomed to go into their pen at night they will always remember the lesson. If confined the ducks will consume more food than the hens, but if allowed to forage they may be raised even cheaper. In confinement they are not so annoying as hens, for they will not scratch nor fly over fences, and they are very seldom attacked by disease. To diversify farm interests as much as possible must be the object of progressive wide-awake farmers. Fruit of every kind must come in the programme of such farmers, and nothing at present is more promising than the common red currant. Owing to attacks by the currant worm the price of this fruit rules much higher than formerly. Careless cultivators are driven out of the business, and as usually happens in such cases it is all the better for those who remain in. No man need sit down and brood over hard luck if he has only a small farm. Fifteen or twenty acres are enough land for making a good living and laying up money if the land is handled properly and the farming operations are carried on with skill, judgment and business ability. Making a small farm pay. The man who is not in a position to hire help is better off with a small farm than with a large one. The man who has a commercial orchard or one for home fruit supply can always find some useful work to do among the trees. Winter is an opportune time for cleaning up the orchard and making it shine for a bountiful crop next season. With all the foliage of the trees, it is easy to see dead and mangled branches, and there is abundant time for pruning and burning the trash. It is always better to burn all orchard refuse, as it contains fungi and harmful insects. If the refuse is left in piles in the orchard, or even hauled and dumped in some distant field, there is chance for the pests to still breed and spread. Burning will promptly destroy all of them. The farm home without attractively planted grounds surrounding the dwelling is almost as "homeless" a condition as the interior of the dwelling without furniture and wall decorations. There is no place where large and attractive home grounds can be had at so little cost as in the country, where land is not measured and sold by the front foot. Since the home and its immediate surroundings are the best part of the farm in relation to the real good that the family derives from it, the ground can and should be spacious and well planted to grass, trees, shrubbery vines, and of course, a few flowers.

Remember. Do you remember, if you lose heart about your work that none of it is lost; that the good of every good deed remains, and works on forever; and all that falls and is lost is the outside shell of the thing; which, perhaps might have been better done, but has nothing to do with the real good you have done to men's hearts.—Charles Kingsley.

1913 Models of the Indian Motorcycle

Following the "14 Important Improvements" of 1912, The Hendee Mfg. Company announce no less than a dozen additional new features in their 1913 model of the Indian Motorcycle. By far the most significant feature of the new machine is the Cradle Spring Frame. It is something entirely new, a radical departure from the conventional bicycle and recent motorcycle systems of "springing." Briefly the new device consists of the application to the rear wheel of the Indian Cradle Spring device as used on the front fork for the past three years. Extending back horizontally from the frame joint cluster under the saddle, flanking the rear mud guard, are two 7/8" Chrome Vanadium steel springs. The "C" shaped curls at the rear end of these springs are connected by stays to bell-cranks on which the rear axle is hung. The forward end of the rear fork has a hinge joint which enables the rear wheel to yield to imperfections of road surface. All shocks are completely absorbed by the leaf springs. The rear wheel can go through almost any vertical motion without affecting the body of the machine. There is no "bottom" to the spring device. The life of the machine is greatly increased. The Engineering Department of The Hendee Mfg. Co. devoted 18 months of exhaustive test to the Cradle Spring Frame before finally deciding on its adoption for all models of the 1913 Indian. In addition to the Cradle Spring Frame, the 1913 Indian embodies 10 other important improvements which will be appreciated by the motorcycle riders in general. Prices remain the same as last year. New style, single chain rims; larger tires; wider mud guards front and rear with larger splashers; casing for upper stretch of transmission chain and curve of sprocket; larger luggage carrier in rear, fitted to all models; foot rests, as well as pedals, fitted to regular 4 h.p. and 7 h.p. models; foot brake lever fitted on left side now operates band brake as well as the pedal action; larger size multiple disc clutch now fitted to all models alike; improved Indian type saddle. All 1913 Indians will be chain driven and finished in Indian red only.

Clapp Memorial Men's Club.
The January meeting of the Clapp Memorial association men's club, as held at the Davis Bates Clapp Memorial building, Wednesday night, was full of interest and will be long remembered by the large number of people who were present. The regular supper was served at 6:45 with the president, Horace R. Drinkwater at the head of the table and he was flanked on either side by Prof. Gunn, leading professor of the department of health at the Massachusetts School of Technology and his father Col. Drinkwater of Braintree. Divine Blessing was invoked by Rev. Walter H. Commons of East Weymouth and the discussion of a well served menu followed. At the conclusion of the supper Mr. Drinkwater called the meeting to order in words of welcome and gave a brief review of the work of the club for the year just closed, speaking of the different lectures and the one aim and object which underlaid all the work, viz, a general moral and social uplift without which nothing good could be attained, and he then introduced Prof. Gunn who will be remembered by many for his very interesting address before the board of trade a short time ago on the pure water question. For an hour and a half the people followed the professor with the closest interest as he touched upon all the ills man is subject to, both before and after he comes into active being. The cause of most of the ills of life were clearly portrayed and there was no flinching from putting many of the evils in language which could be well understood. Of the ills of childhood, he classed measles and whooping cough as the most serious in their tendency to leave behind most serious results. More sanitary conditions in certain manufacturing industries was a question of vital importance and ordinary boards of health came in for a liberal share of criticism. Improved conditions, both at home and abroad, were spoken of and it was shown that in many localities the death rate had been materially reduced by these conditions.

Weymouth Poultry at the Show.

Weymouth is well represented at the poultry show in Boston this week, and C. O. Drown has made quite a hit with his specially, the Blue Orpingtons taking a prize for a pullet and cockerel. Mr. Drown entered an exhibit of Cuckoo Orpingtons, and is the first to exhibit that bird, bred in America. He is secretary of the American Blue Orpington Club and is making quite a specialty of breeding those fowl.

Mallon—Sullivan.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon of this week when Miss Mae Elizabeth Sullivan of East Weymouth became the bride of Edward J. Mallon of Boston. The ceremony was performed at 4.30 o'clock at the parochial residence in East Weymouth, by Rev. Maurice Lynch, assistant rector of the Immaculate Conception church of East Weymouth.

The best man was Thomas Mallon of East Weymouth, a brother of the groom, and the bridesmaid was Miss Margaret Condrick of Broad street, East Weymouth.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Condrick of Broad street. A wedding lunch was served to the guests, who came from Whitman, Plymouth, Boston, Waverly, Abington and the Weymouths.

After an extended wedding trip to New York, Washington and Philadelphia Mr. and Mrs. Mallon will be at home to their friends at 7 Everett avenue, Dorchester.

Weymouth's Oldest Lady Passes Away On Wednesday At Age Of 100 Years.

Mrs. Roxanna Urquhart, Weymouth's oldest lady, passed away at her home on Front street South Weymouth on Wednesday afternoon, at the age of 100 years, death being due to a general breakdown from her great age.

Mrs. Urquhart was a remarkable woman, and one whom South Weymouth was justly proud.

She turned the century mark in life, on November 8, 1912, and at that time she was accustomed to walk about the streets of South Weymouth, unattended, requiring only the aid of a cane.

She was the mother of 14 children, nine of whom still live.

Mrs. Urquhart was born in New Brunswick and was one of six children. Her maiden name was Evans. With her parents she moved to Maine and settled on the Penobscot while she was still a child.

When about 18 years of age she married John Urquhart, and 19 years later she moved to Gloucester, Mass., where she resided until she moved to South Weymouth many years ago.

Her surviving children are: Abbie, wife of John Rowe of Gloucester; Hannah, wife of George B. Cushing of South Weymouth; Carrie, wife of W. M. Cushing of this town; Laura, widow of Edward McQuinn of South Weymouth; Lucinda, widow of George F. Barker of Seattle, Washington; Lydia, wife of Wendell Shaw of Weymouth; Estella, wife of L. A. Rivinius of Quincy Adams; John of Dorchester and Charles of Worcester. There are 34 grandchildren, one of whom is Chief of Police Thomas O. D. Urquhart of Arlington, also 17 great grandchildren and 2 great great grandchildren.

MAY TRADE HOWLEY.

Manager Charles Dooin of the Philadelphia Club of National League Searching For Catchers and Portland, Oregon Club May Trade Weymouth Star.

It is reported that Dan Howley, the East Weymouth boy who played excellent ball behind the bat for the Portland, Oregon team of the Pacific coast league last season, will become a member of the Philadelphia team of the National league this season. In his search for good catching material Manager Charlie Dooin of the Quakers is said to have offered a trade of players for Dan, and in all probability the Portland club will arrange to send the popular East Weymouth lad to the east. The many friends of Dan in this section would like to see him sign with some National or American league team and it is safe to say that if Dan is traded to the Phillies, the local sports will be out in force at the South End grounds in Boston when the Quakers open a series with the Boston Braves. Howley has been almost a big leaguer on several occasions, and this time may get a real chance.

BASKET BALL. QUINCY 21, WEYMOUTH 10.

W. H. S. Quintet Loses Hard Game to Granite City Boys in Weymouth High School Gym Last Tuesday Afternoon.

In a fine game, before a large audience the Weymouth High school basket ball team lost to Quincy High last Tuesday afternoon in the Weymouth gym by the score of 21 to 10.

The showing of the Weymouth boys was a decided surprise, as the Quincy lads were outplayed in passing and blocking throughout the game, but the shooting of the local aggregation was miserable.

Time and time again the Weymouth men had chances to gain points from easy positions to toss baskets and each time the players missed the goal by a large margin.

The stars of the game were Baker and Murphy for the home squad and Andrews and Larkin for Quincy. The summary:

Quincy: H. S. Andrews, rf; Safford, lb; Gardner, rb; Baker, c; Deane, G. Brown, lf; Murphy, lf; Condrick, rf; Rieley, lf.

Grammar School League.

The grammar school league in town got under way again last Friday after the Christmas holidays and two spirited games were played in the C. M. A. gymnasium at Weymouth Center.

The Hunt school defeated the Shaw school 28 to 4, with Dwyer and Langford for Hunt and Galusha for Shaw as the stars of the contest. The summary:—

The Athens school vs Pratt school was the finest game of the afternoon. At the end of the first half, the Pratt team led their North Weymouth opponents 5 to 2.

In the second, however, the Athens aggregation got busy and at the final whistle, the teams were a tie at eight points each.

It was agreed to play until one team or the other secured two points and after three minutes of play, McDonough shot a goal from the floor for Athens, winning the game. The stars in this game were Sprague and Martin for Pratt school, and Bettinacourt, Crawford and McDonough for Athens. The summary:—

ON THE FARM

This Column Alone Cost Us More Than $200. a Year. You Can Have it a Year for $2.00 and the Rest of the Paper for Nothing.

Comfort for the cows means better profit for the dairyman.

New blood may be added to the flock, by buying some choice pullets of a reliable poultry keeper.

When a heifer is first fresh it is especially important that all the milk be drawn from her.

Plant grape vines eight feet apart, and twelve feet apart in the rows, unless land is very high in price.

The cow that is underfed and the cow that is overfed both work to disadvantage and both fail in the best profit to their owner.

You may think you know a good deal about how to raise poultry, but the deeper you go into it the more surprises you will find.

The quince can be raised from cuttings, cut either in fall or spring. If cut in the autumn they should be laid on the grass and covered with leaves or boards.

When ready to empty the ash pan mix a good lice powder with the ashes and empty in the hen house. The hens will dust themselves in it and rid themselves of lice and mites.

A half dozen good cows are worth a dozen poor ones. It takes as much food and care to keep a poor cow as it does a good one and while the former barely returns enough at most to "pay her way," the latter returns a comfortable profit to her owner.

It is a good idea now and then to sort over the whole barrel or box of apples that have been stowed in the cellar for use, for rot spores will spread from one apple to another very quickly and often spoil several if the source of contamination is not removed.

The horse blankets get torn sometimes. Some blustery day, take a stout needle and thread and see what a good job you can do mending the rents. It is a good thing for the men folk to do such little jobs as this, and not call on the women so much. They have their own work to do every day.

Some have gone so far in stable feeding for all seasons that their cows are stabled almost all of the time, with scarcely any out-of-doors exercise. This is not a wise plan, except for cows during high producing periods, as a certain amount of exercise in free air and sun is necessary for health. It is a notable fact that tuberculosis and other malignant diseases are more prevalent among fancy herds than with common cattle, allowed to shift for themselves most of the time. Health must not be sacrificed for high production.

If you want to hatch out chicks next year that will make you the most money get ready for the work as soon as possible. This does not mean that hens are to be set or the incubator started by the last of the year, but it does mean that most of the details will be arranged for by that time. One reason why so many fail or have poor success with poultry is that the lack proper equipment. Now is the time, when other work is not pressing, to make all necessary arrangements. Coops, colony houses and buildings may be constructed. Most of the work can be done inside on stormy days.

The man on a small farm of less than forty acres can not expect to make a living for himself and family and lay up cash or make substantial improvements on general field crops such as cotton, corn, wheat, hay and oats. Several of the ordinary field crops may be and should be grown, yet special and more intensive crops must be handled for large returns.

The more special are grown and the more intensive the farming, the greater gross and net profits can be secured. The farm of less than twenty acres can be made a large and paying business, and all one man can possibly handle where considerable gardening, fruit growing or poultry-raising is done.

VILLAGE STUDY CLUB.

Interesting Meeting Held in Union Church Chapel at South Weymouth Last Monday Night.

The Village Study club held a most interesting meeting in the Union church chapel in South Weymouth last Monday evening. Arthur C. Hoald, president of the club, was in the chair.

Prince H. Tirrell read a paper on "The England Shakespeare Knew." Rev. William Wallace Rose of the Universalist church, one on "The Age in which Shakespeare Lived," and Mrs. William Wagner read Irving's "Stratford on Avon." The readings were accompanied by stereoptican views.

KING'S DAUGHTERS UNION.

Mrs. Robert S. Hoffman of East Weymouth Hostess To Several Societies In Town.

The King's Daughters Union, comprising the Opportunity, Golden Rule, Inasmuch, Whatsoever, Watchful, Pansy and Unity circles of King's Daughters in town, were delightfully entertained last Thursday evening January 2 at the home of Mrs. Robert S. Hoffman on Broad street, East Weymouth.

Piano solos were given during the evening by Miss Marion King and Mrs. William A. Hodges sang contralto solos, accompanied by Mrs. Marion Denbroeder. Cakes and ices were served by the hostess, Mrs. R. S. Hoffman.

At the business meeting it was voted to hold a fete in June for the benefit of the Old Ladies' Home in Pondville. Miss Susie E. Raymond, secretary of the Union gave a favorable report of the work that has been done, and Mrs. B. S. Lovell, Mrs. J. A. Cushing and Mrs. Joseph E. Sampson reported on the work at Pondville.

Apparently.

It appears to be necessary for the people to do a great deal of scolding and to engage pretty continuously in strong-arm work for the purpose of getting what is theirs.

A short while ago we had a very pleasant call from W. H. Dawless of Worcester, a former resident of Weymouth, and incidentally we discussed the recent action of the assessors of Worcester in assessing cemeteries and the fact in that action they were sustained by the courts. We are now, by Mr. Dawless, furnished with some very interesting figures bearing upon this matter.

The assess report a gain of $7,778,000 on taxable property and of this amount $1,141,000, was cemetery assessment gain.
This opens up a new feature of reducing tax rate and it is an open question as to how far a town or city should go in its efforts to show a low tax rate.

While we believe in a reasonably high valuation based upon the real value of certain properties there stands the fact that a forced valuation, and that upon cemeteries and other assets which have always been considered sacred and free from the tax gatherers hand is unwise and will sooner or later react upon any city or town which resorts to it for the sake of a low tax rate.

Seek Return of Tax Money.

Claiming that she had been a legal resident of Braintree for years and has never relinquished her residence in that town although, on April 1, 1912, she boarded at the home of Dr. W. F. Hath-way in this town, Mrs. Ellen F. Stetson has filed a petition in the office of the clerk of Norfolk County for the abatement of the taxes she paid Weymouth under protest. The Weymouth assessors assessed her for her personal property.
She then contended she had never given up her legal residence in Braintree and that her residence in Weymouth was only temporary. The Weymouth assessors abated $182.67, but refused to abate the whole amount and on January 4, 1913, she paid the remainder of the tax, $248.56 and interest, bringing it up to $252.81, under protest. She now seeks the return of this tax which she has already paid in duplicate willingly to the town of Braintree.

Little Doubt About That.

We may admit, with a prominent judge, that snoring is no crime, but we positively reserve the right to think it in questionable taste.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Annual Dance of Senior Class to be Held this Evening in High School Hall.

The annual dance of the senior class of the school will be held this (Friday) evening in the school assembly hall. A reception will be held from 7.30 to 8 and dancing will be enjoyed until 12 o'clock.
Shaw's orchestra will furnish music. The committee in charge is Miss Edith C.
Bicknell, Miss Madeline Hunt, Miss Alice O'Connor, Urban Nolan, Carleton Murphy, Thomas Riley, James Sweeney and Richard Lyons. Urban Nolan will be floor director, Carleton Murphy, assistant floor director and Richard Lyons and James Sweeney, aids.

In the assembly hall last Friday directly after the noon recess, Thomas A. Watson of East Braintree gave a most interesting reading from Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice."

Fine work, pupils and teachers of the school. The attendance at the Wellesley and Quincy games was excellent. Keep on coming, don't lose your courage because the team lost, the boys are due for a win soon and you want to be on hand to see the home team land on top.

Through the hustle to make up the honor list last week, the names of Miss Agnes Lyons of the freshmen class and Miss Helen Hunt of the junior class were omitted.

The game scheduled for tonight between the high school five and the C. M. A. quintet will not be played until later in the season on account of the members of the high school team wishing to "trip the light fantastic" at the senior class dancing party in the hall this evening.

At the parents' meeting on Wednesday of this week the teachers and parents of the scholars met and discussed school questions. The senior class girls presented a musical program, consisting of piano solos by Miss Frances Denlinger and Miss Hester Swan, vocal selections
by Martha Tirrell, Miss Edith C. Bicknell, Miss Madeline Hunt, Miss Sadie Trainor,
Miss Mildred Newcomb, Miss Hester
Swan and Miss Miriam McGrory. Victrola selections were also enjoyed throughout the meeting.

The high school orchestra, which gave such a fine account of itself at the concert given last spring, is holding weekly rehearsals in the assembly hall, under the direction of J. W. Calderwood, musical supervisor of the town.

On Monday afternoon after school Miss Mildred Newcomb, vice president of the dramatic club, called a meeting for the purpose of giving out the parts for the play "The Mouse Trap," to be presented by the club in a few weeks. Miss Sheehy, Miss Curtis and Miss May Hanley selected the members to enact the different parts.

Workmen have been at work the past two days improving the condition of the floor in the assembly hall for the dance tonight and it is expected that the floor will be in first class shape for the class of 1913 to make merry on their evening.

Use of Poetry.

We believe that poetry, far from injuring society, is one of the great instruments of its refinement and exaltation. It lifts the mind above ordinary life, gives it a respite from depressing cares and awakens the consciousness of its affinity with what is pure and noble.—Channing.

Must Be Pretty Bad.

Guayquil is one of the vilest pest-holes in the world, surpassing even Suz, which Kipling was invested with a hideous immortality.—New York Commercial.

GOOD NEWS.

Many Gazette Readers Have Heard it and Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in this vicinity are glad to learn where relief may be found. Many a lame, weak and aching back is had no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands upon thousands of people are telling the good news of their experience with this tested remedy.
Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. Herbert Locke, 58 Gold street, Whitman, Mass., says: "My condition was serious as a result of kidney trouble.
My back was extremely lame and sore, and I could not exert myself without suffering intensely. I had dizzy spells and my rest was badly broken. Nothing relieved me until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. In a little over a month, they did me of every symptom of kidney complaint." (Statement given October 6, 1908.)

CONFIRMED TESTIMONY.

When Mrs. Locke was interviewed at a later date she said: "I think just as highly of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I previously recommended them and am only too willing to confirm my former testimonial. This remedy certainly does good work."

A Bit of Bank History.

In the last twenty years the Weymouth Savings Bank has paid better than four per cent. January 2, 1893, an extra dividend was paid. In 1895 the regular dividends equaled 5 per cent. In 1896 they paid 4 1/2 per cent. In 1897 and 1898 they paid 4 1/4 per cent each year. In other years the rate was 4 per cent until 1911 and 1912 when the rate was 4 1/2 per cent for each year.

The Guaranty fund has been built up to 5 per cent of the deposits and they have in the Undivided earnings account a surplus of $52,810.

For twenty-eight years this bank has been open on Monday evenings, doing a full savings bank business, and proving of great accommodation to its depositors.
During 1912 they have established a School Savings department.

Always on the Job.

The solar geese are so fond of collecting materials for their nests that they do not desist from the habit even when they are about to abandon their nests for the winter migration. Off the coast of Scotland one day patches of straw bedding were seen floating, and although the birds were on the eve of departure they gathered up every wisp as though they had their nests to build, and in the same place they were seen collecting seaweed every day.

Enough of Giants.

Little Frank had had a parental meeting with his six-foot-two papa about filling the tooth-powder bottle with water. After the meeting adjourned, he went in and asked his mother to promise him one thing. Without knowing the nature of the request she promised, and then asked him what it was. He told her: "Mamma, when papa dies, I want you to promise me not to bring any more giant men to this house to live with us!"—Lippincott's.

Men Need Help—Not Charity.

There is a higher duty than to build almshouses for the poor, and that is to save men from being degraded to the blighting influence of an almshouse. Man has a right to something more than bread to keep him from starving. He has a right to the aids and encouragements and culture, by which he may fulfill the destiny of a man, and until society is brought to recognize and reverence this it will continue to groan under its present miseries.—Channing.

At this time of the year;

A resolution if applied

CHAPTER XVIII.

Wherein Mother Love is Bestowed on Elnora, and She Finds an Assistant.

UT her mother's love remained. Indeed, in the overflow of the long hardened, pent up heart, Elnora was almost suffocated with tempestuous caresses and generous offerings.

For the next few days Elnora worked at mending the moths her mother had taken. She had to go to the Bird Woman and tell about the disaster, but Mrs. Comstock was allowed to think that Elnora delivered the moths when she made the trip.

The next morning the last moth was mended and the housework finished. Elnora said to her mother, "If you don't mind, I believe I will go into the woods pasture beside Sleepy Snake creek and see if I can catch some dragon flies or moths."

Near the creek, following it toward the bridge, Mrs. Comstock found a large bed of tender dandelions and stopped to fill her pail.

Elnora remained within calling distance and was having good success. At last she crossed the creek, following it up to a bridge. There she began a careful examination of the under sides of the sleepers and flooring for cocoons.

Around the bend came a man. He was bareheaded, dressed in a white sweater and waders which reached to his waist. He kept on the bank, only entering the water when necessary. He had a queer basket strapped on his hip, and with a small rod he sent a long line spinning before him down the creek, deftly manipulating with it a little floating object.

He recoiled in his line, laid his rod across a bush and climbed the embankment to Elnora's side, produced a knife and began the work of whittling a deep groove around the cocoon.

ful. She broiled ham of her own sugar curing, creamed potatoes, served asparagus on toast and made a dandelion salad and a delicious strawberry short-cake. When everything was ready she touched Ammon's sleeve.

"Best have something to eat, lad, before you get too hungry," she said. "Please, hurry!" he begged laughingly as he held a plate toward her to be filled.

"I have no objections if Elnora really would like help," said Mrs. Comstock. In her heart she wished he would not. She wanted her newly found treasure all to herself for a time at least.

"He seems fine," agreed Elnora. The next morning Mrs. Comstock called to Elnora, "The mail carrier stopped at our box."

"Aren't you going north?" "All depends on how this fever leaves me. Uncle says the nights are too cold and the days too hot there for me.

"They are," said Elnora. "Most I have I took there. A few nights ago my mother caught a good many, but we don't dare go alone."

"All the more reason why you need me. Where do you live? I can't get an answer from you. I'll just go tell your mother who I am and ask her if I may help you."

"You are three miles from the city and less than a mile from where we live," she said. "If you will tell me what you dare eat, I suspect you had best go home with us and rest until the cool of the day before you start back. Probably some one that you can ride in with will be passing before evening."

When Elnora and her mother came out with a table they stood a short time looking at him. It is probable Mrs. Comstock voiced a united thought when she said, "What a refined, decent looking young man! How proud his mother must be of him! We must be careful what we let him eat."

He recoiled in his line, laid his rod across a bush and climbed the embankment to Elnora's side, produced a knife and began the work of whittling a deep groove around the cocoon.

"Yes, I paid my way through the high school in Onabasha with them. Now I am starting a collection which means college."

"Onabasha!" said the man. "That is where I am visiting." He paused to rest, for the bridge flooring was hard lumber, and the task he had set himself not easy.

"I have no objections if Elnora really would like help," said Mrs. Comstock. In her heart she wished he would not. She wanted her newly found treasure all to herself for a time at least.

"He seems fine," agreed Elnora. The next morning Mrs. Comstock called to Elnora, "The mail carrier stopped at our box."

THOMAS BLANCHARD PASSES AWAY.

Member of Wildey Lodge, I. O. O. F. and Caretaker of Old South Church Laid at Rest.

After an illness of a few weeks, Thomas Blanchard, aged 65, passed away last Saturday at his home on Main street, South Weymouth. He was born in the same house in which he died. Mr. Blanchard's death came after several weeks illness of hardening of the arteries and valvular heart trouble.

January Suburban Life.

Suburban Life for January opens with a valuable contribution to the literature of period furniture, entitled "How to Know Period Furniture," by Harold Donaldson Eberlein. Mary Rankin Cranston has a fascinating story, "Fourteen Acres and Freedom," which describes her success with a small farm in New Jersey, to which she turned after spending many years in professional work in New York City. A very clever story of an inexpensive garden is told in "At the Sign of the Empty Purse," by Gertrude Goldsmith. J. Mace Address describes "An Open-Fronted Poultry for a Small Lot." An interesting serial story, "The Story of an American Farm," commences in this issue. It describes the farming operations of a retired city physician, who operated his farm as a modern manufacturer would his factory—on scientific principles. Other interesting things in this attractive issue are "My Friend in Gray," "Plan Your Garden Now," "Some Good Garden Blues," "The Truth About Squab Culture," "Conservatory, Aviary and Swimming Pool," "The Lordly Light Brahma," "Shall Our Boys and Girls Go to College?" "Walking Trips in Winter," "Our Little Flower Garden," "An Attractive Square House of Brick," "Pleasure and Profit in a Propagating Bench," "Kill the Scale in Winter," "Utilizing the Cellar Windows," and "A Practical Hopper for Feeding Dry Mash."

MONSTER WHALES.

A Dozen Men Might Stand Upright in the Blue's Big Mouth.

Specimens of the blue or sulphur bottom whale weighing seventy-five tons and measuring eighty seven feet have been known. The mouth is sufficiently large to permit ten or twelve men to stand upright in it, but the throat measures only about nine inches in diameter.

The "finback," closely related to the blue whale, has been called the "greyhound of the sea," for its long, slender body is built on the lines of a racing yacht, and the animal can equal the speed of the fastest steamship.

The "humpback" is the most interesting of our large whales, because of the fact that its habits are more easily studied than are those of other members of the family.

But most extraordinary of all is the square nosed sperm whale. Instead of having plates of baleen, this whale carries a row of twenty to twenty-five heavy teeth on each side of the lower jaw. These fit into sockets in the roof of the mouth and assist in holding the giant squid and cuttlefish on which the enormous animal feeds. The squid seldom gets away from the warm currents; hence the sperm usually remains in the tropics and in the Gulf of Japan streams.—London Family Herald.

Smelled a Grafter.

A Boston clubman recently returned from a visit to New York City. In discussing his trip one of his friends asked him whether he had a policeman in his pocket. The clubman hesitated for a moment, seriously questioning his friend's sanity, when the latter added: "I didn't know whether you could be there a week without some grafter or other getting into your pocket."

Presumably the following is the morning paper which was found by the dog cut to the dog's sack. The enclosed include my initials and don Telegram.

North Weymouth Improvement Association.

As the time for making the annual appropriations for the town draws near, interest centres in the needs of the community, so far as the town can fill them. We are desirous of urging upon the attention of the town meeting such matters of local interest as possess merit. If you have had an article inserted in the warrant calling for some needed local improvement you should call the matter at once to the attention of the appropriation committee of this association, of which Peter K. Nesbit is chairman. One of the questions in which the association is just now much interested in is: "What is the best solution of our school accommodation problem?"

We are now well under way on another year's work. If you are not a member of this organization you should feel it your duty to join. It is only by united and intelligent effort that the desired good can be accomplished. Our next meeting will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 5. The membership committee consists of H. A. Bailey, Stanley E. Torrey and A. S. Frothingham. Hand your name to one of these gentlemen before that date, pay your membership fee and then come out to the meetings.

To Write a Letter.

The art of letter writing is quite simple if you will take it in all simplicity. All you have to do is to conjure up a vision of the person to whom you are writing, pick up your pen, and—talk. When you can picture a face you like, adorned with a pipe whose shape you know well, it is no difficult matter to find what to say and how to say it. A letter is a chat and the pen can be as effective as the tongue.

TUFTS LECTURE COURSE.

First of the Series Will Be One of Intense Interest.

A course of lectures under the provisions of the Tufts fund is being arranged by the Selectmen.

The Board has secured the services of Lieutenant A. W. Wyndham, late of the Panama Construction Department, who will give an illustrated lecture at the Town hall on the evening of Thursday, January 30, 1913.

Lieutenant Wyndham has had exceptional facilities for obtaining information in regard to the great canal. He has been familiar with all phases of the work from its first conception by the DeLesseps Co. and has been personally engaged on it during a large part of the time the canal has been under construction. Mr. Wyndham is considered an authority on this mammoth national undertaking and as an illustrator on the subject he probably stands without an equal. We bespeak for him a full house on the occasion of his visit to us.

Further lectures in the course will be arranged shortly and will be duly announced.

SARAH M. LOUD—1837-1913. A Life Far Above the Average in Usefulness Comes to an End.

It was with great sorrow that the many friends of Miss Sarah M. Loud learned of her death last Friday, Jan. 10, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Alexis H. French, in Brookline, Mass. Miss Loud was the daughter of Hon. John White Loud and Sarah Humphrey (Blanchard) Loud, and was born at Weymouth September 24, 1837, residing in this town until about five years ago, when she removed to Brookline, to make her home with her two sisters, Mrs. Alexis H. French and Miss Annie F. Loud, both of Brookline. She had been ill since early in November with acute bronchitis, which so exhausted her strength that she was unable to rally.

A brief service of prayer, conducted by Rev. Ambrose W. Vernon, D.D., pastor of the Harvard Church of Brookline, was held at 10 o'clock Monday morning, Jan. 13, at her late home, and the funeral services, conducted by Rev. Robert H. Cochrane, pastor of the Union Church of Weymouth and Braintree, and by Rev. Frank B. Cressey of Cambridge, formerly pastor of the First Baptist Church of Weymouth, were held at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, at the residence of her brother, John J. Loud, in Weymouth. The interment was made in the family lot at the village cemetery.

The following eminently fitting remarks are taken from those made by the Rev. Robert H. Cochrane at the funeral service: "When the word came to me that the earthly life of her whom we honor to-day was ended—it seemed to me a triumph and not a sorrow, for I thought of it as the coronation of a beautiful and noble life.

A number of Scriptural passages came unbidden into my mind. I thought of David's grief, when his friend Abner had fallen, when he said to those about him: "Know ye not that there is a prince, and a great man, fallen this day in Israel?" "Know ye not," my thoughts seemed to say, "that there is a queenly woman, a great Christian, fallen asleep this day?" But the sting was taken away, for I thought of her "as asleep in Jesus."

And another passage of Scripture came into my mind as I thought of her helpful and noble life. "A man shall be as a hiding place from the wind, and as a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land."

I use the word man in a generic sense. She was to her own family, and to her friends, a hiding place from the winds of trouble, a covert from the tempests of sorrow, as rivers of water in a desert place, and as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. She was like a strong and beautiful tower to which people fled for refuge.

For when she was about 16 years of age, the illness of her mother compelled her to bear all the family burdens, and to take the place of the mother of the family. She inherited from her father, John W. Loud, an unusually keen and well-balanced judgment, and a clear and finely discriminating mind. Had she been a man she would have had pre-eminent business success; for she had splendid executive ability and remarkable foresight.

Because of her unusual strength of mind, and sanity of judgment and force of character, and because of the breadth of her sympathies, and keenness of sense of right and wrong, and what was wise and what was unwise, the other members of her family and her intimate circle of friends came to rely upon her and lean upon her for support in every sort of perplexity and trouble.

And not only her own friends, but people outside of the home and family circle came to her for advice and assistance; and when the cause was worthy, they never came in vain. She helped many, "never letting her right hand know what her left hand was doing."

She was of scholarly tastes, a thinker, well informed, having clear-cut, practical ideas on all public and social questions, with a well-stored mind that was ever active in reaching out for the acquisition of the best and highest things.

Two of her friends who knew of her great intellectual ability confidently asserted that there was no position, open to women, not even the highest in the land, that she could not have filled with dignity and distinction. But great as she was intellectually, she was not less great, morally and spiritually, in the virtues of the soul and the wealth of the affections.

It is a noble record to have given all the strength of one's mind and heart and soul to the work of teaching in the Sunday school for almost 50 years! And this is the record of Miss Sarah M. Loud. For nearly half a century she toiled with all the strength of her mind and heart to impress upon young minds and hearts the supreme importance of the Christlike life, and in all these years many young men and boys came under her gracious influence. Only the recording angel can tell of the feet that were kept back from entanglement in the snares of evil, by her clear-sighted wisdom, and great-hearted love, and her unceasing prayers for her boys. Only the recording angel can tell how many were strengthened in their determination to become strong and true, because of her Christian womanhood.

Who can estimate the power for good that came, like a breath from the mountains, into the lives of these young men? One, who is giving his life for the Master, who was under her influence as a youth, replied to my question: "What was the impression which Miss Loud's personality made upon you, as a boy?—replied, immediately, without stopping to measure his phrases: "The majesty and strength of pure womanhood."

How beautiful the tribute, and how appropriate! To exhale, as a rose exhales its fragrance, the majesty and strength of pure womanhood, through a long and victorious life! She made her Sunday school class work intensely interesting. She had a firm grip upon her young men, and could meet their difficulties and help them see the deep and eternal realities of life. There was never a dull moment in that class. She was, also, a strong temperance woman. She had high ideals for her boys and held her boys up to them, loving them, trusting them, expecting the best things of which they were capable; and the boys were absolutely loyal to her.

A noble Christian life, victorious over self, over pettiness, over trouble, by the power of a triumphant faith in Jesus Christ! Is not that supremely worth while? A life that was always helpful, always self-giving. "One who was not in the class, but who knew her well, said that the impression she made on her was the "all-round superiority of her character. It was impossible to think of any influence coming from her that was not good. Her many friends knew her but to love her, and named her but to praise."

And what is important for us to remember is that Miss Loud built up that beautiful character through humble trustful dependence upon her Lord and Saviour, by prayer, by Bible study, by faithfully attending the church prayer meeting every week, where she played the organ for years before they had a piano, by teaching in the Sunday school, by publicly confessing Christ by identifying herself with His church, by working in the parish society—in a word by faithfully availing herself of the "means of grace," for the sake of the "hope of glory."

By so doing she fitted herself for the happy, useful, victorious life, which she lived, and for the life that is immortal. So when old age came, like a glorious sunset, at the close of a beautiful day, the noble unselfishness which had characterized all her life, her sympathy and tenderness, and thoughtfulness for those about her, her wonderful patience—all the sweet virtues of her gracious Christian womanhood, were with her to the end. She expressed herself as anxious to "go home."

And she, who had made her home with God, through a long and triumphant life, went home to be with God, to receive her Father's greeting: "Well done, good and faithful servant! Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

She has fought the good fight, she has finished the course, she has kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for her the crown of righteousness. She has been faithful unto death, and the Lord hath given unto her, "the crown of life." "She's safe within her Father's house, Where many mansions be; O, pray that thus each rest may come, Dear hearts, to thee and me!"

A Mother's Boy. Whilst walking down a crowded city street the other day, I heard a little urchin to a comrade turn and say: "Say, Jimmie, lemme tell youse, I'd be happy as a clam If I only wuz de feller dat me mudder 'inks I am. She 'inks I am a wonder an' she knows 'er little lad! Could never mix wit' nothin' dat wuz ugly, mean or bad. Oh, lots o' times I sit an' 'ink how nice 'twould be, gee whizz! If a feller wuz de feller dat his mother 'inks he is! My friend, be yours a life of toil or undiluted joy, You still can learn a lesson from this small, unlettered boy. Don't aim to be an earthly saint, with eyes fixed on a star; Just try to be the fellow that your mother thinks you are. —Home Farm.

He Hadn't Heard of Socrates. A big policeman who walks a beat near the Greek settlement in the north side always gets angry when he hears this told at his expense, but there are those who will vouch for its truth: About a month ago a young man, very much excited, rushed up to this policeman and exclaimed: "Say, Jim, did you hear about a Greek by the name of Socrates taking poison?" "I did not," Jim replied innocently. Then he added, thoughtfully stroking his chin: "Sure, that's the first time I ever heard of a Greek going up against anything stronger than what he sells in his own coffee houses. I guess I'd better look this up and bulletin all the details to the department. It's an unusual case."—Kansas City Journal.

A Good Answer. A shopkeeper had for his virtues obtained the name of "the little rascal." A stranger asked him why the appellation had been given to him. "To distinguish me from the rest of my trade," quoth he, "who are all great rascals!"—London Mail.

Sure on One Point. "Out late last night? What time did the clock say when you got in?" "I don't remember what the clock said, but I will never forget what my wife said!"

CLAPP MEMORIAL WINS 33 TO 17

Union A. C. of South Weymouth Loses to East Weymouth Five in C. M. A. Gymnasium Last Saturday Night.

In one of the best games of the season thus far, the Clapp Memorial basketball five triumphed over the Union A. C. quintet of South Weymouth in the C. M. A. gymnasium in East Weymouth last Saturday evening.

An extra large audience was out to witness the struggle between the two teams and last Saturday night's game was as usual, full of action from the call of time, until Timekeeper Karl Tirrell blew the whistle announcing the end of the game.

At the beginning of the game it was evident that the contest would be decidedly rough and fouls were extremely numerous throughout the game.

Arthur Schutz, the fast back on the C. M. A. five and Morey, the crack forward of the Union A. C. continued their struggle for supremacy and on last Saturday night, the C. M. A. man had a little the better of the argument, Schutz getting seven goals from the floor, while his rival got but two. Warren and Bumpus played a fine game for Clapp and Robinson and Thomes were everywhere in their endeavor to ward off impending defeat.

The summary:

C. M. A. Union A. C.
Flannery, rf lb, Thomes
Curtin, lf rb, Robinson
Bumpus, c c, Proctor
Schutz, lb lf, Morey
Warren, lb rf, Pratt
Leonard

Score—C. M. A. 33; Union A. C., 17. Goals from floor—Schutz 7, Warren 3, Flannery 3, Bumpus 1, Leonard, Morey 2, Proctor, Pratt, Thomes. Goals from fouls—Robinson 6, Morey, Schutz 3. Referee—Fabyan. Timekeeper—Tirrell. Scorer—Pratt. Attendance—300. Time—20 and 15 minute periods.

Between the halves the Union A. C. second team played the C. M. A. second and the Clapp boys were victorious 13 to 8. Condrick and Fitzgerald excelled for Clapp while Stone, Gardner and Baker starred for Union. The summary:

C. M. A. Union A. C.
Callahan, rf lb, Baker
Studley, lf rb, Garoner Fitzgerald, c c, Sweet Fraser, rb lf, Stone
Condrick, lb rf, English

Score—C. M. A. 13, Union A. C. 8. Goals from the floor—Callahan 2, Fitzgerald 2, Condrick 2, Stone, Gardner. Goals from fouls—Gardner 4, Condrick. Referee—Fabyan. Timekeeper—Tirrell. Scorer—Pratt. Attendance—300. Time—20 and 15 minute periods.

It Was Alive.

There are in the Book Monthly some "Memories of Mark Twain," chiefly in London, by his cousin, Katherine Clemens. One of the stories told is connected with a visit the humorist paid to Mme. Tussaud's. While in the famous show he stood a long while in contemplation of an especially clever piece of waxwork. He felt a sudden stab of pain in his side and, turning quickly, found himself face to face with a dumfounded British matron, with her parasol still pointed toward him. "Oh, Lor', it's alive!" she exclaimed and beat a hasty retreat.

A Long Way Back.

The earliest authentic date that has been handed down to us was inscribed on the foundation stone of the temple to the sun god at Sippara by Naram-Sin, son of Sargon. This stone was exhumed by Nabonidus, who reigned over Babylon about 554 B. C., and it is asserted that Naram-Sin ruled 3,200 years previously. From these dates we learn that the chronology of Babylon began with the reign of Sargon I., king of Agade, 3800 B. C.

The last formality of electing a president of the United States has been performed. The electoral vote has been counted and Mr. Wilson has been declared duly elected and on the fourth of March next, the affairs of the state will pass into new hands and no doubt the sun will rise and set as usual, but it would not be strange that in the working out of some of the changes suggested, business industries became disturbed.

The Republican party of Massachusetts has earned the right to live by its action in the past few weeks in its manner of handling the great and important matter of electing a United States senator to succeed the Hon. Murray Crane. With so many candidates in the field and many of them of wide repute and acknowledged ability, a hard contest was expected and some looked forward to a repetition of some of the unpleasant events of the two Nationals, Chicago and the Baltimore conventions. The contest, however, with seven and sometimes eight candidates being ballotted for, was conducted without the aid of police, or armed force, and with no unpleasant thing said of or by opposing workers, and the final honors went to the Hon. John W. Weeks of whom the state may well be proud for the enviable record he has made as a member of the lower branch of Congress. Mr. Weeks in oratory may not be a Daniel Webster, but as a man capable of working out intricate problems and presenting them to his fellow members in a clear, forcible and convincing manner, he early won a National and even International reputation which places him at the fore front of parliamentarism of no mean ability, and the mantle of Senator Crane could have fallen upon no more worthy shoulders than those of John W. Weeks.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the members of the Old South Church, Christian Endeavor Society, Wilby Lodge
I. O. O. F., friends and neighbors, for the beautiful floral tributes, their help and sympathy in the time of our recent bereavement.

High School Notes.

The senior class held a meeting in room 6 on Wednesday afternoon to hear the reports of the committee in charge of the dance last Friday evening and also the report of the treasurer of the class.
It is reported that about $65 was netted from the dance. Urban Nolan, president of the class, presided at the meeting.

The game between the High School five and the C. M. A. team, which was scheduled for last Friday evening, but was postponed on account of the senior dance, will be played in the C. M. A. gym next Wednesday evening.

The senior class are to be congratulated on their very enjoyable and well conducted dancing party held last Friday night.
Everything went off very smoothly, and it was one of the finest parties ever held by a class in high school. Get together, scholars of the class of 1913, and persuade the "powers that be" that your many friends would like to attend another dance under your direction, in the spring, for, from the expressions heard since the last affair, nothing would please them more.

Rehearsals of the play, "The Mouse Trap," to be presented by the dramatic club, will be started as soon as a sufficient number of copies of the story can be secured.

Just Like Other Men.

Most surgeons simply go way up in the air when one of the world's great ones is stricken. When Sir Frederic Treves was called to operate on King Edward he split him open as nonchalantly as if the king had been an apple or a watermelon.—New York Press.

Seaweed in Commerce.

It is always known that seaweed contained a large quantity of iodine, but today it is used in the manufacture of a certain kind of cloth, while certain species are eaten under the names of "dulse," "stoke" and "cur-rageon." Kelp is burned seaweed, and Devonshire seaweed is used for a large number of purposes; therefore, the seaweed gatherers of today are in a better position than ever before.

Peculiar Inscription.

Not many years ago, in the Temple Court, London, was a sun dial with the motto: "Be gone about your business." This unusual inscription arose from the "builder's man" calling to receive orders about it, when the bencher in charge was so busy that he did not listen, but said: "Be gone about your business," which the man took as his answer and forthwith engraved.

THE DISPATCH BEARER

A Story For Memorial Day
 By Captain F. A. MITCHEL

It was the summer of 1862. General McClellan was moving up the peninsula lying between the James and the York rivers. Somewhere to the north of Richmond between that city and Washington was an army under General McDowell.

One day an officer wearing the blue uniform of the United States and the yellow shoulder straps of a captain of cavalry, followed by an orderly, was riding amid the dust kicked up by his horse midway between these two armies. The hour was noon, the day was hot, and the horses of both officer and orderly were jaded. Coming to a plantation in the center of which stood a manor house bearing the architectural marks of having been built in colonial times, the captain turned his horse's head in between two stone pillars and rode up the lane under arched trees, making straight for the stable. There, dismounting, he strode toward the door, which stood open. A darky, sitting on a barrel, arose as he approached.

"Got any fresh horses in here, uncle?" said the captain.

"No fresh horses, marse. Got two horses in dar dat was 'pressed into de service ob de south'n men, and dey's all worn out."

"Can't help it. They've had some rest since then, and mine can't go a mile further."

"Can I be of service to you, suh?" asked a voice from behind the captain, who turned and saw a gentleman wearing clothes that, though they had long before disappeared from the north, were still in fashion among a few planters of the south—a beaver hat, a high shirt collar with plenty of neckwear, a ruffled shirt, blue coat with brass buttons and trousers strapped down over his instep. There was something in his thoroughbred manner that made the captain ashamed of going into his stables and taking possession of his horses.

"I am sorry to be obliged, sir," said the officer in an apologetic tone, "to impress a mount for myself and my orderly into the United States service."

"If you will do me the honor, suh, to stop with me fo' an hour I can give you what you wish. My horses will be ready by that time to do a few hours' work. I am Thomas Randolph, suh, and it gives me pleasure to welcome you onto my plantation."

"I am Captain Cartright of the—United States cavalry. I certainly need something to eat; but, being a bearer of dispatches, I do not feel at liberty to delay."

At the mention of the dispatches Mr. Randolph's eyes took on a peculiar look—a crafty look. Captain Cartright was too hot and tired and hungry to notice it or that the planter had any object in his subsequent words except in relieving that hunger.

"We haven't much to give you, suh," said the gentleman; "only some chicken, but my cook knows how to fry it deliciously, and some fine sweet potatoes that melt in yo' mouth. Her co' pone is also excellent."

"Enough, sir," cried the captain. "No man, famished as I am, can resist that bill of luxuries. I'll dine with you with pleasure. Let me see"—taking out his watch—"it is now 12 o'clock. Do you think your horses will be rested by 2?"

"I think so, suh. This way, suh." Then to the darky, "Pete, take the gentlemen's horses into the stable and give them a good feed, and tell Sam to give the captain's orderly all he can eat fo' dinner."

Mr. Randolph led Captain Cartright into the house and, asking him to be seated for a few moments in the drawing room, left him. After some time he returned with a negro and said:

"This is my own body servant, Jim. He will show you to a room where you will find the wherewithal fo' getting off the dirt of the road. When you have done so come down, and dinner will be served."

"Jim led the way up the winding staircase to a spacious chamber containing an enormous four post bedstead with curtains above and valance below and other furniture of a corresponding pattern. The darky poured water into a great china bowl. The captain unbuckled his belt, from which hung his revolver and saber, and threw them on a chair. Then he took off his coat, rolled up his shirt sleeves and plunged his head into the water.

Jim took up the coat and brushed it carefully while its owner was spluttering in the water. When Cartright had finished his ablutions Jim stood holding the coat ready to help him on with it. After this had been done the captain placed his hand on his breast pocket and, feeling the envelope, was satisfied that his dispatches were still there and with a refreshed look on his face went downstairs.

Mr. Randolph received him cordially, glancing inquiringly at Jim, who was coming down the staircase behind the captain. What he saw in the negro's face evidently pleased him very much, for he renewed his attentions to his guest to such an extent that Cartright began to suspect his host to be one of those Virginians who adhered to the Union cause. A darky announced that dinner was ready, and the two went into the dining room, where they found the Randolph family waiting for them. Those at home were Mrs. Randolph, a stately lady, and her two daughters, Carey and Julia, very pretty girls. The sons were all serving in the Confederate army.

"On which side of this fracas are your sympathies, madam?" asked Cartright.

The husband and father took it upon himself to reply. "The fracas, as you call it, suh," he said, "is being disposed of by the armies of the respective sides. We noncombatants have nothing to do with the settlement. We intend to treat you no'th'ners when you come to us as our guests. Let me help you, suh, to some mo' of the chicken. Do you prefer the white meat or the dark?"

Cartright would have preferred both, but that being out of the question, he said either would do, and doubtless he could have eaten even the bones. Besides, he was observing Carey Randolph, whose southern beauty was especially pleasing to him. The dinner proceeded with marked attention on the part of all the family to the young captain, who, in the presence of a southern matron and her two attractive daughters, strove to make himself as agreeable as possible. The dinner finished, he was conducted to the drawing room, where he sat in the most comfortable chair in the room, surrounded by the Randolph family.

Nothing of moment occurred during this after dinner companionship except that the captain, looking out of a window, saw Jim, Mr. Randolph's body servant, riding down the lane leading from the house to the road. Then in a few minutes the officer saw his orderly, Mike Egan, riding full tilt in the same direction.

Presently Cartright saw Mike riding leisurely back and felt relieved. Rising, he thanked the members of the family for their southern hospitality, which he declared was famed all over the world. All were extremely gracious to him and hoped that the fortunes of war would bring him their way again. Mr. Randolph assured him that he would always find a welcome at the manor house. There was an unobserved pressure of the hand between Cartright and Miss Carey Randolph and a soft look between the two. Then the captain went out, called for the horses to take him and his orderly on their way, and, mounting amid many goodbyes, he rode away with Mike at the regulation forty paces in his rear.

They had not gone far before Mike called, "Captain!"

"What is it?"

"Are ye share the dispatches are all right?"

"Yes." And the captain felt his breast with his fingers.

"Wouldn't it be well to take 'em out and look at 'em? Them people is bad secesh."

"They're fine people, anyway," replied Cartright. But he unbuckled his coat, took out the envelope and looked at it with astonishment. There was no address or army stamp on the upper left hand corner. Tearing off the cover, he exposed blank paper.

"Great heavens!" he exclaimed.

"What is it, sorr?" asked Mike, riding up beside his superior.

"I've been tricked. Some one has substituted this for the dispatches."

"Begorra, that's bad!" exclaimed Mike.

The captain was pale and trembling. What excuse could he give for his inattention, his trustfulness? His delinquency might wreck McClellan's army.

"Orderly," he said, "draw your revolver and put a bullet through my brains; then destroy this blank paper, ride on to General McClellan and tell him that we were attacked on our way and robbed of the dispatches. You'll do that for me, won't you?"

"O'm thinkin', captain, that there's a better way of doin' it."

"What way?"

"Presintin' the real dispatches."

"But they're gone."

"They might come back."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, sorr, they say all the nagurs of the south is wid us. One of 'em isn't, I know—that black spalpeen, the planter's body servant. I was eatin' me dinner, and I saw 'im goin' out to the stable, puttin' somepin that looked like the dispatches in his shirt. Thin he kem out wid a horse, mounted and made off. Rushin' to the stable, I took a horse and followed 'im. I caught 'im on the road and fired at 'im, bringin' 'im to a halt. O'll trouble ye for the papers in your shirt, I said. 'What papers?' he asked. Fur a reply I cut off his ear wid a bullet from me revolver. Wid that he tuk the papers from under his shirt next his dirty black skin, and here they are."

The captain seized the envelope, took out the contents, satisfied himself that they were really the dispatches, then fell on his orderly's neck.

"But how in the world could the rascal have got them?" asked the captain, wondering.

"I dunno, sorr. I only know he had 'em."

"There's but one way," the captain went on, half to himself and half to Mike. "He brushed my coat. Doubtless he made the transfer then. But I can't understand how he happened to have the dummy."

"Well, sorr," Mike put in, "before the nagur carried the water upstairs for you I saw the planter hand it to 'im."

"I see it all," said the captain. "It was a neat trick, and but for you"—He embraced Mike again.

After the surrender Captain Cartright went to Virginia and married Miss Carey Randolph. Then that which might have destroyed an army and ruined the dispatch bearer became simply an interesting episode.

 The Benedict stood by the window, well back behind the curtains, and watched the two on the sidewalk. The Bride was evidently inviting the other to come in.
 "I hope she won't, I hope she won't," he repeated half aloud. He drew a long breath when they said goodbye and the Bride came in alone.
 "How did you manage it?" he inquired.
 "Manage what?"
 "To get in without her. I was worried to death for fear she'd be here to dinner."
 The Bride flashed him an inquiring look and then went on with the important business of gathering her wayward tendrils into a semblance of order and detaching them under the combs she kept in her hair for the purpose.
 "How was it?" he persisted when he had waited as long as he could.
 "The lecture? Oh, it was fine."
 "You know I don't mean the lecture. How did you get rid of your friend, the fashion plate?"
 "I didn't get rid of her. She shook herself free of me. I wanted her to come in and have dinner with us."
 The Benedict collapsed into the nearest chair.
 "As I feared!" he gasped. "But I suppose she wanted to get home before dark. It would hardly be safe for one so young and beautiful to go alone."
 "No." The Bride's tone was slightly chilly and she turned to cross the room; but the Benedict made a long arm and drew her down to his knee.
 "Beloved," he began in his most propitiating tone.
 "No, Jack," she interrupted him, "you are too sarcastic to be nice. But I want you to take my word for it that there is more to May Hilderly than you might suppose."
 "I admit she isn't much to look at and her clothes are generally a few seasons behind the fashion, but for real sweet-ness of character she's hard to beat."
 "Oh, of course, I'll take your word for it, Beloved, but I can't imagine what you see in her to admire."
 "Then I will tell you," she volunteered.
 "In the first place, she is always cheerful. You and I, in her place, would have a little grumble to repeat to every one who asked us how we did. She's poor, not very well, and she works beyond her strength all the time, but she doesn't re-herse it to everybody."
 "That's worth something," admitted the Benedict.
 "I rather guess it is, but it isn't a patch on another trait she has."
 "What's that?"
 "Her knack of doing the right thing at the right time. I'd give a good deal to possess it. Last week at the club, Mrs. Herrick had a paper. It was a good paper, well prepared, but the little lady was so frightened she had a dreadful time. She read faster and faster, more and more out of breath every minute."
 "We were all sorry for her as could be, but none of us had sense enough to do the right thing, till May got up quietly from her place and interrupted Mrs. Herrick to ask a question about something she had read."
 "The president came to the rescue and answered the question, which gave Mrs. Herrick a chance to regain her breath. If it hadn't been for May I dread to think how she could have read to the end of that paper. Most of us don't think of the right thing to do, and on the rare occasion when we do, we haven't the courage to do it for fear of being conspicuous. May doesn't care a rap for her looks. If a thing needs to be done, she does it."
 "That's a good way to get things done," said the Benedict. "You'd better insist on her coming to dinner some day; I'd like to study her at closer range. But I must say, Beloved, that you have one trait that goes ahead of hers."
 "What's that, I'd like to know?"
 "The trait of always finding everybody's good qualities."

 Simply laying the grape vines on the ground will often save them from winter injury. Throw a little earth or evergreen branches on them to make sure.

 It is very important that the water drunk by the cows giving three or more gallons of milk daily, be warmed to about 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Otherwise the cows will not drink as much as they need to keep up a good milk flow.
 It is healthy human nature to want to dig in the soil and to grow things. We can not plant in the open garden while frost and snow last, but we can plan for the work, select the plants and perhaps fertilize the garden space. We can at least make a small hotbed and start some things ahead of time, to be ready for setting in the garden soil when open gardening weather comes. Lettuce and a few other spring relishes can be grown in one corner of the hotbed for table use before crops from the open ground are ready. Making and planting a hot bed will be a pleasant means of making a start at gardening and of relieving the fevered gardening condition of the brain.
 Every farmer can and should be a specialist in some line, yet he need not devote all his time and capital to this one line. It is safer to combine the specialty with general farming, at least till the specialty is on a good-paying basis. The legitimate business of every farmer is first to grow enough garden crops, fruits, poultry, meat, milk and other feeds for the direct support of his family. Some of the field crops will be used indirectly as food on the home table. Corn and hay for instance, fed to hogs and cows, will produce meat, milk and butter. Grains and forage for poultry will be turned into eggs and table fowls for home use.

FARMING SIDE BY SIDE.
 Have you ever seen two farmers of the same community farming side by side, on the same kind of land, under the same sunshine and the same rainfall—one prosperous and the other barely making a living? You have, and how do you account for the difference in the circumstances of the two men? Was it because something is the matter with farming as a business? Certainly not. The difference was in the men. The same difference is found in men of every occupation other than farming. The man who succeeded, if you observed closely, was a man who farmed better in every department of his work. The chances are that he was a live stock farmer too. The other was the "happy-go-lucky" sort of man who depended more upon luck than upon pluck. Because this man failed is no argument that farming is a poor business. Where you find the man who has applied himself intelligently and untiringly to farming, you find a success. Where you find the man who failed you very often find a fellow who does as little work as he can and who employs no pointers observed from successful farmers or from the best farm literature.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A DIAGNOSIS
 By WILLIAM G. ERNST
 In a mining camp in Colorado called Jimdandy, there being no doctor, the people lived in a state of anxiety. When any one got sick those about the patient did not know what to do in the premises, and there was no one on whom to throw the responsibility. A committee was sent over to Hufton, where there were two doctors, with orders to try to persuade one of them to practice in Jimdandy.
 Dr. Farmecute was induced to take a new field, especially as Dr. Thorax, the other practitioner, bothered him by disputing his diagnosis and treatment in every case. If Farmecute said a man had typhoid fever Thorax declared he had the mumps. If Farmecute gave a sedative Thorax sneered and said that he needed a stimulant. Therefore Dr. Farmecute accepted the new field with the proviso that if his diagnosis or treatment were questioned by any one and he shot the objector he was not to be prosecuted. The committee accepted the condition, and the doctor hung out his shingle in Jimdandy.
 There had been but half a dozen cases of illness in the town in a year, though they had been worrying ones to those who took care of the patients. The hanging out of a doctor's sign seemed to have a peculiar effect on the inhabitants. While it had not occurred to them before that there was anything the matter with them, now every person who passed the doctor's office and read his sign felt compelled to consult him. But woe betide any one who ventured to disagree with him as to the disease from which the patient suffered or the treatment. One morning Tim Hickson was passing the doctor's office when Jim Ferguson came crashing through the door, forwarded by the toe of the doctor's boot.
 "What's up, Jim?" asked Hickson.
 "Why, I consulted the doctor for a sore throat, and he told me the trouble was in the stomach. I said I could eat well enough if I could get anything down, but I couldn't swallow, whereupon he hustled me out."
 "Served you right," said Hickson. "The doctor came here with the stipulation that he was not to be disputed professionally."
 "If that's so how am I to get even with him?"
 "Well, if you want to get revenge you'd better tackle him on some other subject. If you insist on throat trouble when he says your stomach's wrong and he shoots you he's not to be punished."
 Ferguson passed on, rubbing his bruises and trying to think of a way to get even with the doctor. It was evident that in a professional way Farmecute had the people of Jimdandy with him. In any fracas in that line they would favor him, and the result would be to the discredit of his patient. Ferguson brooded over his treatment, but his throat got well of itself.
 One day he went back to the doctor's office—this time he had his gun with him—and said:
 "Doctor, I'm sick. I reckon I'm going to die."
 "Where does the trouble lie?"
 "Oh, I don't know. I'm no diagnoser. That's for you to find out."
 "I didn't mean that I want you to tell me what's the matter with you. I want to know your symptoms."
 "I haven't any symptoms."
 "Then you haven't any disease."
 "Yes, I have."
 The doctor had turned away, and when he saw the patient again Ferguson was looking at him from behind the muzzle of a revolver. His own gun was in a drawer in his medicine case, but there was no opportunity to get it if Ferguson objected.
 "I've got a frightful disease, and I want you to tell me what it is."
 "How can I tell you without knowing your symptoms?"
 "I told you my symptoms the last time I called on you professionally, and you fired me out for my pains."
 "Well, I can't do anything for you."
 Ferguson cocked his weapon. "If you don't diagnose my case before I count five," he said, "I'll make a case for an undertaker. One, two—"
 "You are suffering from amnesia."
 "What's that?"
 "You're forgetting yourself."
 "Three—"
 "Let me see your tongue."
 Ferguson put out his tongue.
 "I must feel your pulse."
 "Not much. You'll have to find out what's the matter with me in some other way."
 "You will need a sedative. Excuse me a moment and I'll give you a hypodermic to quiet you."
 A little syringe was lying on a table with other instruments. The doctor picked it up, filled it with a liquid and, advancing boldly toward his patient, suddenly raised it and squirted the contents in Ferguson's eyes. Jim dropped his revolver and clapped his hands to his eyes.
 Tim Hickson happened to be passing the doctor's office again and saw Jim Ferguson coming out exactly the same way as before. Jim fell on his knees and, rising, groped about wildly.
 "What's up, Jim?"
 "Been seeing the doctor again. We've settled it. The trouble's in the eyes. I've gone blind."
 Ferguson's sight soon came back to him, but he concluded to let the doctor alone.

Demon of the Niger. The natives inhabiting the country near the source of the Niger believe that a devil lives in the rock whence the river springs. They are very superstitious and greatly fear this devil, who is supposed to kill any person who dares to look at the source. Whenever the natives are showing a stranger the spot, they cover up their faces and walk backward in the direction of the spring, pointing toward it with outstretched hand behind the back.

NERVE WON HIM LIBERTY. Quick Wit and Daring Ruse of a Russian Revolutionist. Nowhere outside of the pages of fiction would we expect such an incident as the following from the personal story of the Russian revolutionist Narodny: Narodny had just jumped from a window to escape the police. "When I scrambled to my feet I discovered myself in the yard and among half a dozen soldiers. I was without overcoat and hat—a very suspicious figure—and, having neither, I could not escape even could I get by the soldiers who surrounded me," he said.

"I jerked a card from my pocket—to this day I do not know what it was—and handed it to one of the soldiers. 'Here is my card,' I said rapidly. 'I am a member of the secret police. One of these revolutionists is trying to escape. I am after him. Quick! Give me your coat and hat!'"

"He automatically obeyed. I slipped on his coat and hat and to all appearances was a soldier of the czar. I walked past the guarded gate of the yard out into the street. Before me were thousands of soldiers. I saw my friends being brought down from the hall and put into the black vans, about which stood guards of Cossacks. I marched through my friends (all of that group are in prison today save only myself and the friend who escaped with me) with the air of a soldier on a very important message and pressed on through the mass of other soldiers that filled the street."

The Change of a Word. "Spanking" did not suggest chastisement originally. It was unknown to Johnson in this sense. To him a "spanker" meant "a person who takes long steps with agility." Rapid motion seems to be the root idea of the word "spank," which is not merely representative of the sound of the act, as "slap" and "smack" are. The low German "pakkern" or "spenkern," to run and spring about quickly, is close to the original meaning; hence a "spanking pace," a "spanking breeze" and a "spanker," in the sense of an active and sturdy person.

No Immediate Danger. The Parson (about to improve the golden hour) When a man reaches your age, Mr. Dodd, he cannot, in the nature of things, expect to live very much longer and I—

The Nonagenarian—I dunno, parson. I be stronger on my legs than I were when I started!—London Opinion

COPPERPLATE ENGRAVING.

The Art Was Discovered Through the Merest Accident. Every one has noticed on his visiting card the extremely delicate lines of his name, and almost every one knows that they are produced by printing from an engraved copperplate. Like many other things of use and beauty, this art of copperplate engraving was discovered through the merest accident by the goldsmiths of Florence in the fifteenth century.

It is a historical fact, however, that one day an engraver on gold, wishing to take a proof of his work, made the usual sulphur cast and then filled up the lines with lampblack, thus enabling him to see exactly how his work looked. While occupied in doing this it occurred to him that possibly the same results could be obtained by filling up the original engraving with lampblack instead of making an impression of it and filling up that. Struck with the idea, he put it into practical use and, with a little damp paper, succeeded in getting a fair impression from the engraving.

The discovery was communicated to other workers in the art, and they called it with joy, as it saved all the arduous trouble of making sulphur casts, but they never saw the full value of the discovery, and consequently the art of plate engraving lay for almost a century before its true import was discovered and brought out in all its great and beautiful results.

Today collectors of plate engravings rave over the crude results of earlier times and search the world for examples of these early masters to add to their collections. Many of these collections have been presented to museums, where they may be seen and appreciated by the people.

AIDED THE AERONAUT.

Washington Was the Godfather of Aviation in America. Apparently George Washington was not only the Father of His Country, but also something like the godfather of aviation in America. At any rate, he wrote a letter for one M. Blanchard, who made the first balloon ascension in this country at Philadelphia in 1793. This letter reprinted in St. Nicholas reads:

"George Washington, president of the United States of America. To all whom these presents shall come. The bearer hereof, Mr. Blanchard, a citizen of France, proposing to ascend in a balloon from the city of Philadelphia, at 10 o'clock a. m. this day, to pass in such direction and to descend in such place as circumstances may render most convenient—

"These are, therefore, to recommend to all citizens of the United States, and others, that in his passage, descent, return or journeying elsewhere they oppose no hindrance or molestation to the said Mr. Blanchard, and that, on the contrary, they receive and aid him with that humanity and good will which may render honor to their country and justice to an individual so distinguished by his efforts to establish and advance an art, in order to make it useful to mankind in general.

"Given under my hand and seal, at the city of Philadelphia, this ninth day of January, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, and of the Independence of America the seventeenth.

A Japanese Idea. The late Mutsuhito, emperor of Japan, on an occasion shortly before his death took a railway journey in the northern part of Japan and arrived at his destination half an hour late on account of a slight accident on the road. Next day the manager of the road committed suicide, giving as the reason for his act the fact that his bad management had inconvenienced the emperor. The case attracted a great deal of attention, and some of the leading men of Japan, commenting on the dead man's act, criticised his point of view.

In the eyes of his fellow townsmen, however, his deed was commendable, for they erected a statue in his honor as an ideal exponent of the Japanese conception of loyalty.

Heroism in Everyday Life. "Not in changing fights and desperate marches only is heroism to be looked for, but on every railway bridge and

The second monthly reception, supper and entertainment of the Goodfellowship club connected with the Congregational church at East Weymouth, was held Wednesday evening and it was an evening of rare enjoyment.

The reception was followed by a supper in charge of the following committee:—W. B. Binnian, chairman, C. D. Watson, Charles E. Merchant, Richard Carter, B. H. Spinney, S. B. Totman, Frank H. Holmes, Emerson R. Dizer, Frank E. Hersey, D. H. Chubbikian, Geo. F. Farrer, G. W. Perry and Elmer Salisbury.

At the conclusion of the banquet the president W. C. Earle introduced Rev. W. H. Commons as toastmaster of the evening. Mr. Commons spoke words of welcome to the members and guests and also his hopes for the future of the club and then introduced as special guest and speaker of the evening Hon. Louis K. Rourke Commissioner of Public Work of Boston.

Mr. Rourke has had 15 years experience in the canal zone and the Panama Canal was his theme. He spoke of its first conception by the Spanish explorers in the 16th century and more definite ideas along the same line by Humbolt in the 18th century and of the final beginning of the canal and its abandonment by the French, then of its purchase by the United States and further developments.

The purchase he considered a good financial bargain and subsequent work has been a marvel in accomplishment in fact the time for digging the canal was not ripe until its purchase by Uncle Sam. It needed the age of dynamite and giant machinery and that has accomplished the work.

Mr. Rourke spoke of the canal zone, while not a specially desirable place as a summer resort, as one of the most healthy places morally and physically on the face of the globe, the death rate being less than one-half of that of Boston per thousand and the rigid enforcement of law with no pardoning power has a salutary effect on those disposed to do evil.

The Canal Zone embraces the canal itself and a territorial strip five miles wide on either side from ocean to ocean and of this zone Uncle Sam has a perpetual lease but in commenting on it Mr. Rourke thought it hardly advisable for Samuel to take the title and control to the Hague.

In short Mr. Rourke is a man who must be heard in order to be appreciated and we would suggest that every Men's club in town, regardless of sect, creed or nationality, listen for an evening to Mr. Rourke.

MRS. ROSILLA MARDEN LAID AT REST.

Well-known East Weymouth Woman Passes Away in 77th Year.

Mrs. Rosilla Marden, widow of Lewis C. Marden, passed away at her home in East Weymouth, Sunday morning, after a brief illness, in her 77th year. She was a native of Weymouth and the daughter of Samuel and Hannah (Pratt) Orcutt.

For 57 years she had resided in the dwelling in which she passed away Sunday, and by her many acts of neighborly kindness, had endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact.

Twenty-six years ago she was bereaved the loss of her husband, a veteran of the Civil War, and had since then spent her time in ministering to the comfort of her younger children, the youngest of whom, Miss Mary J. Marden, has always been her constant companion.

She had been nearly all her life a member of the Methodist Episcopal church of which she was a staunch and consistent supporter. She was also a member of Steadfast Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F.; of the Bicknell Family Association, and the Orcutt-Derby Family Association.

Funeral services were held from her late home on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. George A. Grant of the Methodist church of East Weymouth conducted the services. The Steadfast Rebekah lodge attended in a body and the service of the order was held. The bearers were Waldo Turner, Quincy Spear, Joseph Ford and Thomas Otis. Burial was in Fairmount cemetery.

Will Preserve Aged Tree.

On the Canandaigua lake shore highway, at Tichenor Springs, stands a venerable tree, which, experts declare, is not less than eight hundred years old. Recently improvements at this point were begun, which, it was thought, would necessitate its removal, but in response to popular protest the highway commission has decided to let it stand.—Waterloo (N. Y.) Observer.

BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY.

Capt. Charles W. Hastings Starts on the 83rd Year of His Life.

Although a native of Schenectady, N. Y., where he was born on Jan. 18th, 1831, Capt. Hastings has been a resident of South Weymouth for sixty years and has won the right to be classed among Weymouth's most honored and respected citizens.

In 1860 Mr. Hastings had so won the esteem and confidence of the people of his adopted town that he was elected as representative to the General Court but he resigned and enlisted in Co. H. 12th Mass. and saw several years of hard and active service, was promoted to captain, wounded at Antietam and again in the hot fight at Gettysburg, suffered the horrors of Libby as a prisoner and was honorably discharged on account of his wounds, Jan. 11, 1864.

Capt. Hastings is a charter member and filled the highest offices of Reynolds' Post 58 G. A. R.

For 30 years he was connected with the State Aid Commission and until his resignation on account of ill health was at its head.

The anniversary of Capt. Hastings' birthday was fittingly observed at his home, 43 Pleasant street, South Weymouth, last Friday there being a large family gathering and many friends and comrades called with greetings and tokens of regard, among the visitors was a delegation from the State Aid Commission, who presented to their former chief an elegant loving cup.

Walsh, State Secretary Frank Donahue and Congressman Edward Gilmore are expected to be present and speak.

A meeting of the candidates to receive the third degree next Wednesday evening will be held at headquarters next Sunday afternoon. The conferring of the third degree will be held in the Town hall next Wednesday evening under the direction of District Deputy D. M. O'Brien and staff.

CITIZENS CLUB MEETING.

California Life Pictured by a Home Artist.

The regular monthly meeting of the Citizens Club of Weymouth and East Braintree was of more than ordinary interest. The newly elected president, R. B. Worster, was in the chair, and ten new members were received.

The interesting feature of the evening was an illustrated talk on California life by E. M. Vaughan, and people often go further and fare worse trying to find such an interesting lecture, as Mr. Vaughan won much praise for the commendable manner in which he presented his subject.

The February meeting of the club will be in the form of a supper, with the Selections of Weymouth and Braintree as guests, and the warrants for the coming town meetings as the topic.

Monday Club.

A splendid treat was given the Monday club ladies on Monday afternoon, January 20, at Odd Fellows' hall, when the Rev. Edward Evans of Holbrook, Mass., gave his address "An Englishman's First Impressions of America." Mr. Evans was greeted by a large audience, who continually showed their appreciation of his vivid illustrations of American mannerisms and phases as an Englishman sees them for the first time, by hearty applause.

He has a winning personality and is a fluent speaker and it was with sincere regret to all that the afternoon so soon came to a close.

Mrs. William A. Hodges gave two vocal selections charmingly rendered, accompanied by Miss Iez Wheaton.

SIXTH ANNUAL BALL

Hingham Aerie, No. 1677, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Celebrates in Town Hall, East Weymouth, Tuesday Evening.

With invited guests present from Boston, Brockton, Newton, Hingham, Abington, Braintree, Quincy, Plymouth, Hyde Park and other towns in this vicinity, the sixth annual grand concert and ball of Hingham Aerie No. 1677 Fraternal Order of Eagles was held last Monday evening in the Town hall, East Weymouth, and the affair was attended by one of the largest crowds in the six years' history of the order.

The event had been advertised all through this section and when the first number of the concert program was struck up at eight o'clock, the hall was crowded to overflowing.

Flanagan's well known singing orchestra of ten pieces, T. J. Flanagan, director of Marlboro was present and furnished music for the occasion. At eight o'clock this highly popular group of musicians rendered the following program:

March "Spirit of Independence" (Holzman) (Thomas)
Overture "Raymond" (Holzman) (Thomas) Tenor Solo, Selected
Henry E. Werner.
Selection "Hits of 1912-13" (Shapiro)
Baritone Solo, Selected Eugene Clousson.
Finale "Cavalry Charge" (Luders)

At nine o'clock the annual grand march was held, led this year by Daniel B. Daley, worthy president of the order, with Miss Ellen Daley. They were followed by Fred McIntyre, worthy vice president, with Miss Helen Hanley and nearly a hundred and fifty couples.

At the conclusion of the grand march, the well arranged order of waltzes, two-steps, moonlights, quadrilles and schottisches was begun with Daniel B. Daley in charge of the floor. He was ably assisted by Fred E. McIntyre and the following corps of aids: William Shields, George O'Brien, Bert Lincoln, John B. Daley, Henry Welch, Albert Bussiere, Philip Fraher, Joseph Wall, Charles Cotter, Frank Moore, William McKay, Joseph Coleran, William Thompson, Fred Cochran, William Daley, Harry Usher, Edward O'Brien, Edward Ridlon, James Joyce, John Sweeney, Bartholomew Daley and William Moore.

At eleven o'clock, intermission was declared and the members of the order and their many guests adjourned to the dining hall of the building where a delicious banquet had been prepared by C. C. Whittemore, caterer of Boston. The menu contained the following pleasing edibles: lobster, potato and chicken salad, roast turkey, cold ham, tongue, cranberry sauce, escalloped oysters, chicken croquettes, peas, vanilla, strawberry and chocolate ices, frozen pudding, sultana roll with claret sauce, banana fritters with wine sauce, lemon, orange and raspberry sherberts, assorted cakes, rolls and coffee.

After the appetites of the large gathering were satisfied, the second half of the dance order was taken up and until two o'clock, the young folks in the party made merry, while older folks in the balcony looked on, and wished they were young once more.

At two o'clock, special cars conveyed the hosts and their friends to their many homes and all are eager for the seventh annual in 1914.

The hall was artistically decorated for the ball with large red, white, blue and green streamers, banners, pictures, red, white and blue lights and ferns and potted plants of various kinds. A large "spoon moon" at the head of the hall gave light for the moonlight waltzes.

Special guests of the occasion were the presidents of the several aeries in eastern Massachusetts, Thomas F. Fitzgerald, chief of the Weymouth police force; John Q. Hunt, district chief of the W. F. D.; George Cushing, chief of the Hingham Fire Department; John Mitchell of Hull and several other high officials of the order of Eagles.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of the following: Charles H. Smith, chairman; assisted by George F. O'Brien, treasurer; Daniel Daley, William Thompson, Bart Daley, John Sweeney, William Daley, James Coleran, Joseph Wall, William Shields, Fred Cochran, Charles Cotter, Edward O'Brien, Bertram Lincoln, Philip Fraher, Charles Smith and Frank Moore.

This committee which so ably arranged for the grand event and Hingham Aerie as a whole are to be congratulated on their most enjoyable ball and it is safe to say that all who attended will make a special endeavor to be on hand for the seventh annual in 1914.

TUFTS LECTURE COURSE.

First of the Series Will Be One of Intense Interest.

A course of lectures under the provisions of the Tufts fund is being arranged by the Selections.

The Board has secured the services of Lieutenant A. W. Wyndham, late of the Panama Construction Department, who will give an illustrated lecture at the Town hall on the evening of Thursday, January 30, 1913.

Lieutenant Wyndham has had exceptional facilities for obtaining information in regard to the great canal. He has been familiar with all phases of the work from its first conception by the DeLesseps Co. and has been personally engaged on it during a large part of the time the canal has been under construction. Mr. Wyndham is considered an authority on this mammoth national undertaking and as an illustrator on the subject he probably stands without an equal. We bespeak for him a full house on the occasion of his visit to us.

Further lectures in the course will be arranged shortly and will be duly announced.—Advertisement 44-45.

Old Colony Association.

The Old Colony Association of Universalist Churches will hold its winter conference in the First Universalist Church at Washington square, Weymouth Landing, Tuesday, January 28. The meeting will be opened by the devotional service at 10:30 A. M. There will be a report and discussion of the Council of Methods in Sunday School Work; in charge of Rev. Howard Charles Gale of New Bedford. Dinner at 12. Business meeting at 1:30 P. M. The business meeting will be followed by several addresses from interesting and well known speakers. It is impossible now to give the names of these. Weymouth is central and easy to reach; see that your church is to be strongly represented at this conference.

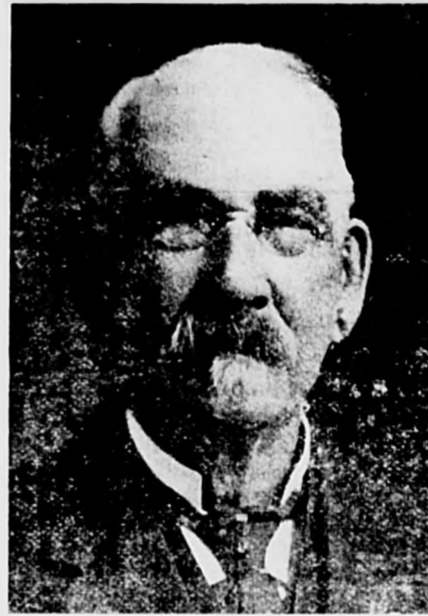

EIGHTY-TWO YEARS OLD.

Nathaniel B. Peare of East Weymouth Celebrates.

Many friends and neighbors called at the home of Nathaniel B. Peare, 36 Cedar street, East Weymouth, last Saturday to greet him on the 82d anniversary of his birth.

On the 18th day of January in the year 1831, Nathaniel Peare, the subject of this sketch, was ushered into this world in the little town of Green, Me., and up to his 15th year of age, his life was spent near the place of his birth.

Tracing of the trout brook and other conditions around him which afforded limited occupation, Peare sought other fields and landed in East Weymouth in the palm days of the Weymouth Iron Co., and at one of its mills learned to cut nails under the tuition of Norris Dyer, an expert nailer.

He has been an active life among men, always taking a deep interest in the stirring events which surround him. He was a charter member of Mechanics Temple of Honor and a member of the building committee which erected the building at Commercial Square.

At the call of his country in 1861 he enlisted and saw active service in Co. E. 32 Mass. and maintains his relation with the "Boys in Blue" by valuable service in Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R., for many years he has been affiliated with Crescent Lodge, I. O. O. F., but throughout the town he may be better known for other associations.

The Fire Department had him as one of its first and best adherents, when the department was in its infancy and the Rocket was the only dependence of East Weymouth, he became its forearm, and when the Gen. Bates succeeded it, to him largely may be credited the organizing and developing a company whose record compares favorably with any in the history of the Weymouths or any other town's fire service.

For more than thirty years, Mr. Peare was connected with the police and constabulary force of the town and eighteen years of that time was spent as night patrol in Ward 2.

Mr. Peare married Susan Chamberlain of Hingham and the ideal home which they established was broken by her death 14 years ago.

Impaired health by reason of rheumatic and heart difficulty has compelled Mr. Peare to retire from an active life but his head is still clear and he enjoys the greetings and friendship of the old comrades.

PARCEL POST.

Over 600 Packages Mailed in Weymouth During First Week of New System.

The newly introduced parcel post system has proven quite attractive to the people of Weymouth and especially so to the business men of the town. The several shoe manufacturers about town have tried out the new system during the past three weeks and nearly all are highly pleased with the new method of sending small packages, such as sample pairs of shoes, small pieces of machinery and other goods. During the first week the South Weymouth post office sent out 267 packages, the East Weymouth office 264, Weymouth Landing 68 and North Weymouth 30. The large numbers at the South and East Weymouth offices were due to the several shoe factories in East Weymouth and to the Stetson Shoe Co. in South Weymouth.

Weymouth Historical Society.

The annual meeting of the Weymouth Historical Society will be held at the Fogg Library, South Weymouth, on Wednesday, Jan. 29, at 8 P. M. A paper by Judge Cook on "Captain John Holbrook of Weymouth," will be read.

FIRE AT NORTH WEYMOUTH.

Early Morning Blaze On Tuesday On Bridge Street Does Considerable Damage.

At three o'clock last Tuesday morning, J. D. Nason of Bridge street, North Weymouth discovered a brisk blaze burning in the structure at 385 Bridge street, owned by John W. Thomas.

Mr. Nason gave the alarm from box 18, which brought the Ward 1 fire apparatus to the scene in record time. The firemen found the blaze to be mostly on the second floor and by hard work succeeded in confining the fire to the upper rooms of the building.

The front rooms of the building are occupied by H. K. Cushing express office. In the rear is an apartment, tenanted by Patrick Foley and family, and the upper floor is occupied by Division 11 A. O. H. The Foley family were forced to vacate their rooms hurriedly on account of the smoke and fire, but a large part of the damage to their possessions was from water. The entire upper floor was badly gutted, while H. K. Cushing's loss is slight. The cause of fire is unknown.

The building is in a thickly settled part of the village and with the high wind of Tuesday morning, the firemen did valiant service in preventing a serious conflagration.

UNIVERSALIST MEN'S CLUB.

Rev. E. R. Miles of Dorchester Speaks on "Behind the Scenes" at North Weymouth.

The Men's club connected with the Universalist church in North Weymouth held its monthly supper and social in the church vestry last Monday evening, with the largest attendance of the members the club has ever shown. At 6:30 o'clock a delicious turkey supper was served by Mrs. Russell H. Whiting, Mrs. R. H. Dix, Miss Olive Blake, Mrs. Earle Williams and Mrs. Stanley T. Torrey.

After the supper the members and the guests were called to order by Edward Kavanagh, master of ceremonies, and the business of the evening taken up. At the conclusion of the routine business the chairman introduced the speaker of the occasion Rev. Edson R. Miles of Dorchester, who gave a most interesting talk on "Behind the Scenes" which was most highly enjoyed by the members and their guests. Three new members were added to the club membership at the meeting on Monday night.

SPINNING EGGS.

Relation of Fluid Friction to the Soli-dity of the Earth.

An interesting experiment exhibits the phenomenon of fluid friction. Take two eggs, one raw, the other hard boiled, and suspend them by wires from an electric light fixture or other support, their long axes being vertical.
Then if they be gently turned around once or twice it is found that while the boiled egg continues to revolve the raw one comes immediately to rest.

This difference is due to the fact that the boiled egg is a solid body, the whole egg turning, while the raw egg is a fluid contained in a shell, the shell alone being turned by the twisting of the wire and the fluid remaining stationary.

The investigator who devised this and the following experiments employed it as one of the proofs that the earth is a solid body and not a thin crust of rock surrounding a fluid or "pasty nucleus." In that case, he held, the observed swinging and swaying motions of the earth's axis in procession and nutation would be impossible.

The same phenomenon is shown in the following experiment, though in a directly opposite way: If two eggs be spun rapidly on their sides on a mirror or other perfectly smooth surface the experimenter by gently placing his hand upon the boiled egg as it spins stops its movement permanently. But if the same experiment be made with the raw egg it will immediately begin to spin again when the hand is removed. Indeed, it is extraordinary how long one can hold his hand upon the raw egg without destroying its motion. The reason of this is apparent. The fluid within the shell continues to revolve, although the shell itself is stationary, while in the other case the whole egg is stopped.

If one attempt to spin the eggs on the mirror, after the manner of a top, he will find that the boiled egg will spin for a considerable time, but that the other will fall almost immediately on its side. It has been observed that this experiment furnishes a solution of Columbus' problem—how to make an egg stand on end. First boil the egg hard and then spin it.—Harper's Weekly

BRIDES IN JAPAN.

First They Are Arrayed In White Silk,
Then In Red.

Brides in Japan follow the same custom which prevails in the western world —that of wearing white at the wedding ceremony, at least during a part of it. But the significance attached to the choice of this color is quite different on the two sides of the world.

The Japanese bride is dressed first in resplendent garments of white silk, the sleeves of the costume usually being about three feet in length, while the sash, an important feature, measures about eleven feet in length.

But white is the mourning color in Japan, and the bride leaving her parents' house considers herself dead in the sense that she will never return alive, preferring death to divorce and in consequence wearing a white costume.

After the exchange of cups of sake with the bridegroom, which is the most important part of the wedding ceremony, the bride changes her costume to a red one. This is called Iromashi (changing color). Red is supposed to have a purifying power and perhaps clears the minds of the parties of all association of mourning.

This is the origin of the Japanese custom of using white costumes at weddings, but many people in modern Japan do not any longer have time to bother their heads with these questions of color and simply go ahead and marry according to the accepted custom, with no thought of what the colors signify.—Oriental Review.

"Sure," said the brakeman "Sure, Mike, I understand."

"So they started off, and the first stop was Sunapee."

"Sunapee!" roared the conductor, as the train slowed down.

"An instant later, poking his head in at the rear door of the car, the brakeman roared:

"Same at this end!"

Women Rigidly Excluded.
Malwathin, on the borders of Russia in Asia, is the only city in the world peopled by men only. Chinese women are not only forbidden to live in this territory, but even to pass the great wall of Kalkan and enter into Mongolia.

Fear for Industrial Necessity.
Bauxite powder, the chief ingredient in all cutting wheels in cut-glass factories, is found only in Russia and Virginia. The Russian beds, however, are being rapidly depleted. The wheels are made at Niagara Falls.
They last only a few weeks.

ALMOST SHIPWRECKED.

Trying Ordeal For the Sailor Who Wanted to Be a Master.

Joseph Conrad, who was a sailor before he turned author, has told of the examination that he underwent for his master's certificate. The examiner began by trying to make him talk nonsense.

"But I had been warned of that fendish trait and contradicted him with great assurance. After awhile he left off. So far good. Placing me then in a ship of a certain size at sea under certain conditions of weather, season, and so forth, he ordered me to execute a certain maneuver. Before I was half through with it he did some material damage to the ship. As soon as I had grappled with that difficulty he caused another to present itself, and when that, too, was met he stuck another ship before me, creating a very dangerous situation. I felt slightly outraged by this ingenuity in piling trouble upon a man.

"I wouldn't have got into that mess," I suggested mildly. "I could have seen that ship."

"No, you couldn't. The weather's thick."

"Oh!" I apologized blankly.

"The examiner did not stop there.
Difficulty followed difficulty in the inaginary homeward voyage until when just off a lee shore with outlying sand banks the examinee said desperately,
"I shall have to think a little, sir."

"Doesn't look as if there were much time to think," was the sardonic reply.

"No, sir," the examinee responded,
"not on board a ship; but, then, I could see. As it is, so many accidents have happened that I really can't remember what there's left for me to work with. Have I two anchors at the bow, sir?"

"Yes. But there's only one cable You've lost the other?"

"Then I would back them if I could and tall the heaviest hawser on board on the end of the chain before letting go, and if she parted from that, which is quite likely, I would just do nothing."

"Nothing more to do, eh?"

"No, sir. I could do no more."

"You could always say your prayers."

"But the exhausted captain of this vessel in multiform distress was not shipwrecked after all. He passed with credit."

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY-THREE YEARS AGO. Sleighriding is all the rage now. The South High School went to Quincy last Monday evening, in the barge owned by William Lond.

Wm. T. Shaw has killed four hogs, which he raised, whose aggregate weight amounts to 1999 lbs. If anybody can beat this we would like to hear from them.

We advise everybody to save all the coal ashes they can, carry them out into the highway and dump them in the middle of the street. It makes such nice sleighing.

At the annual meeting of the Stock holders of the Union National Bank of Weymouth, held at their banking house, on the 14th instant, the old Board of Directors was re-elected, viz: Albert Humphrey, Thomas Humphrey, James Jones, Minot Tirrell, Jonathan French, Amos S. White, M. C. Dizer, John P. Lovell, E. P. Worster.

Double rippers have been numerous on our hillside streets during the week, and sliding-down-hill has been the leading sport of old and young. Some of the porters could not even lay by for Sunday services, but kept up their fun during last Sunday, without hindrance from ye constables or any other official, much to the disgust of those who prefer a decent observance of the Lord's day.

At the meeting of the Directors of the Agricultural Society, held at Albert Tirrell, Esq's, on Monday evening, a committee of nine, Albert Tirrell, Joslan Reed, Joshua Wilkins, Geo. Hollis, D. L. Sterling, Thomas H. Humphrey, Oran White, William Dyer, Loring Tirrell were chosen to revise the premium sheet.

THIRTY-TWO YEARS AGO. Rumors are rife of more business for one of our shoe firms, and consequently more work for our citizens. South Weymouth needs such a revival. It is not yet able to set up as a purely residential community.

The First National Bank of South Weymouth elected the following officers, Tuesday Jan 13th. Directors—John S. Fogg, Josiah Reed, Loring Tirrell, Henry B. Reed, Allen B. Vining, J. H. Stetson, Joseph Dyer.

Alvin Hollis has filled his ice-houses with 3,000 tons of ice, 10 to 14 inches thick. He predicts that the old rates will prevail next season. The South Boston Ice Company is putting in ice which is not of quite as good a quality. Cheaper ice-cream next summer!

The firm of Fogg Bros. & Co., bankers, has handled between 250 and 300 million dollars worth of commercial paper in the past fourteen years, and has held paper of only one insolvent firm. This establishes a record among Boston bankers.

It may be of interest to your readers to know the growth of Weymouth during the last hundred years. It can be ascertained by comparing the United States census recently taken with the first national decennial census taken in 1790.

The census of Weymouth at that time was taken by Col. John Steele Tyler of Roxbury. The following is his report: Number of houses, 232; number of families, 278; free white males of 16 years and upwards, 346; free white males under 16 years, 368; free white females, 747; all other free persons, 8; total population, 1,469. Samuel W. Reed.

NINETEEN YEARS AGO. E. W. Shaw, our local ice-dealer, cut ice enough the latter part of last week to fill one of his houses about two-thirds full. At that time there was about ten inches of ice on the pond.

The largest pickerel ever taken from Whitman's pond was caught this week; it was nineteen inches long and nine inches in circumference; it is on exhibition at the store of Mrs. Ellen A. Pratt.

The republicans of Ward 1, met last night to organize for the current year. A. W. Bartlett was elected chairman of the meeting and William Cherrington as secretary; the following were elected as members of the town committee: John A. Cushman, W. Cherrington, A. W. Bartlett, Austin Beard and David Dunbar.

The Union National Bank of Weymouth elected officers January 16 as follows: Directors, Francis Ambler, George H. Bicknell, Thomas H. Humphrey, John P. Lovell, Henry A. Nash, Edwin P. Worster, Benjamin S. Lovell, Franklin D. Thayer, Henry A. Richards; president, Henry A. Nash; vice president, Edwin P. Worster.

The river presents the appearance of a camp ground at this time and every day there is a line of tents on the ice from the wharf of J. F. Sheppard & Sons in East Braintree down the river as far as the eye can reach. About nine men out of ten always go a-fishing when they haven't anything else to do, and just at present when many of our citizens are out of work the fishing industry in Weymouth river is being worked for all it is worth.

No. 67. The Bachelor's Trials.

[Written for the Gazette and Transcript.]

The Bachelor started up as the clock chimed ten. "I must tear myself away," he yawned. "You must do nothing of the sort," declared the Benedict. "If you have come to life once more, you must redeem yourself by being decently companionable for a few minutes."

The Bachelor's face well expressed the contrition he felt. "Have I been unspeakably stupid?" he asked.

"Just a little more so than usual," teased the Benedict; "but I don't know that we can expect more from a man in your condition."

"My condition?" repeated the Bachelor, and if his surprise was feigned it was an excellent imitation.

"Yes, old man, you're in love; and if you don't know it some one should tell you."

Now it chanced that the Bachelor did know it.

"Why do you think I'm in love?" he parried.

"Oh, I know the symptoms," said the Benedict, grandly. "But that's not the point; the question is, why don't you tell her about it and make yourself happy?"

The Bachelor sat erect and threw out his hands as if scattering caution to the winds.

Plainly, the Bachelor would as soon think of asking for the moon.

"Now here!" exclaimed the Benedict, a little nettled, "you made a statement and I'm going to show you you're wrong. You say I know nothing about the case. On the contrary, I know three things about it. First, you are in love with Bernice. Second, you refrain from telling her so because of financial reasons. Third, you are very foolish to let such reasons keep you from a happiness you richly deserve."

"Right on the first two counts," admitted the Bachelor; "I'm not so sure of the third. It seems to me absurdly foolish to expect Bernice to share pot luck with a poor old scrapper like me. But it sets me wild to think of it," he added with sudden heat, "that while I am plotting along and getting myself into a position where I'd feel justified in asking her, some other chap with a bonus from his father may step in and carry her off."

"If that happens, old man, the fault will be yours."

"Just how? Am I to blame that she was born with a silver spoon in her mouth and that she can spend in a month more than I can earn in a year?"

"No, of course not. But it is your fault, good and plenty, that she hasn't yet had a chance to refuse you. Perhaps she has more common sense than you give her credit for."

"It has nothing to do with common sense," declared the Bachelor. "I tell you I haven't the face to ask her."

The idea seemed to afford him the deepest misery. He glowered at the fire while the Benedict watched him in silence. Presently the silence was broken by a ripple of laughter from the doorway. They both looked up to see the Bride.

"You men are too funny," she said coming in. "I take myself off so you can have an evening to yourselves and all you do is sit like two sphinxes and glare at the fire."

The Bachelor roused up and looked at the Bride.

"How do you women feel about giving up a rich father for a poor husband?" he inquired.

The Bride answered him with measured words.

"If you think Bernice would hesitate, then the sooner you forget her the better."

And in spite of his questioning, she would say no more except "Think it over," which the Bachelor proceeded to do.

C. M. A. Wins 55 to 27 and C. M. A. Second Team Loses to Bunker Hill Boys' Club of Charlestown 33 to 18.

The North Abington Y. M. C. A. Intermediates journeyed to East Weymouth last Saturday evening and after thirty-five minutes of play the C. M. A. quintet were returned victorious by the overwhelming score of 55 to 27. From the tap of the go at the start, the C. M. A. had played magnificent basket ball and all the East Weymouth squad had their eyes on the basket, Bumpus and Schütz being especially accurate at caging the ball. Poole, the crack forward of the North Abington team was ably looked after by Basil Warren and Leonard, the Rockland boy getting but one basket as his share of the evening's work. For Clapp, Bumpus and Schütz excelled and for North Abington the work of Crossman and Doughly was a feature. The summary:—

C. M. A. North Abington Flannery, rf. lb, Bishop rb, Crossman Bumpus, c. c, Tucker Warren, rb. lf, Poole Leonard, lb. Schütz, lb. rf, Doughly

In the second game the C. M. Gallagher and Hickey starred for the winners, while Sampson played well for the C. M. A. second team. The summary:—

How Empress Punished.

"The first person I saw punished in the palace at Peking was a servant girl; she had made a mistake about her majesty's socks and had brought two which were not mates. Her majesty finding that out, ordered another servant girl to slap her face ten times on each cheek. This girl did not slap hard enough so her majesty told the one who had been slapped to slap the other. I thought that was too funny for anything and wanted to laugh the worst way, but did not dare."—Two Years in the Forbidden City, by the Princess Der Ling.

FRIDAY, JAN. 24, 1913.

The Gazette & Transcript is printed and mailed Friday afternoons, and is for sale at all Newsstands in the Weymouths and at the South Terminal, Boston.

All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.

Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fees is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 10 cents per line in the reading matter, or regular rates in the advertising columns.

Friday, Jan. 24th, 1913, 7 o'clock A. M., thermometer 50 above in the open air, no ice in the ponds, no frost in the ground, dandelions and pansies in blossom and maple buds opening. Cut this out for future reference.

The Warrant for the annual Town meeting is now practically completed in the Selectmen's hands and as usual asks for a good many things, and as usual large expenditures of money the largest of which is for school purposes. School money is the most important money we spend and should be raised and expended to the extent of our ability and then we should demand of the school authorities good results it does seem however that in the expenditure the request of the lower grade teacher should receive careful consideration and in view of the advanced cost of living and prices paid for similar services in other towns and cities a reasonable advance in salaries should be made.

SOMETHING TO TURN DOWN.

The following resolve was one of the acts of legislature of 1912:

CHAPTER 103.

RESOLVE TO PROVIDE FOR AN INVESTIGATION OF LOSSES OF LIFE AND PROPERTY BY FIRE IN THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

Resolved, That the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, shall, within sixty days after the passage of this resolve, appoint a commission of five persons, citizens of the commonwealth, to investigate the loss of life and property by fire, the causes of fires, the improvements in means for their prevention, and the fire hazard in the metropolitan district as defined by section three of chapter four hundred and seven of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-three. Of the said commissioners, one member shall be the fire commissioner of the city of Boston, one member shall be an architect, one a builder, one a person skilled in the insurance business, and one a person familiar with the business of dealing in or managing real estate. The members of the commission shall serve without compensation, but may incur such expenses in the performance of their duties, not exceeding the amount of twenty-five hundred dollars, as may be authorized by the governor and council. The commission shall report to the general court, on or before the first Wednesday of January in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, with recommendations concerning legislation for the prevention of fires and loss of life and property by fires, and with such other recommendations concerning the subject of the fire hazard in the metropolitan district as it may deem proper. (Approved May 11, 1912.)

The committee appointed under this act got somewhat busy and at the appointed time made its report, in fact, two reports, a majority and minority report, and those reports are now sent to the leading official of the several towns and cities of the metropolitan district.

The majority report signed by three members of the committee, is quite elaborate and we might say will be quite expensive if ever approved by the legislature and enacted as law.

The report establishes one more commission in the state, a body of three men elected or appointed for a term of five years with a salary of $4,000 for the chairman and $3,500 for each of the others, and it also provides permanent rooms and clerical assistance for the board.

It recommends a new arrangement and practically a new head of the fire department of the metropolitan district and all others subordinate to it and a paid 24-hour man or men in every engine house in the district. Also a new order of things along the health line by which the several Boards of Health in the district shall become under one general supervision.

It also empowers the commission to order any city or town to connect its water department with the metropolitan system. The majority's report is signed by three members of the committee, a fourth member on account of ill health was not acting, and a fifth submits a very brief and concise report in which he suggests that such action is uncalled for.

RESOLUTIONS.

In the death of Fred W. Loud, we have sustained a misfortune which all who had the pleasure of knowing him can feelingly estimate. We condole with you most sincerely on the sad event, and if the sympathy of friends can be of any consolation under the trying circumstances, he assured all who knew him share in your regret for his loss. There is, however, a higher source of consolation than earthly friendship, we commend you to that future where the sunnier ties of earth are reunited.

RESOLVED, That a copy be forwarded to the widow of our late Comrade,

That a copy be published in the South Weymouth Times, and the Weymouth Gazette, also the same to be spread upon the records of the Company.

BOWLING NOTES.

Arthur Cunningham, captain of team 2 in the C. M. A. candle pin league gave the fans something to talk about when he rolled 115 in a single string in the match with team 4 last Monday. 115 is the record in a match thus far in the league, P. T. Pearson of the "city" team holding the record previous to Monday night with 111.

The candle pin league at the Norfolk club will start next week and with the many fine candle pin rollers in South Weymouth, high scores may be looked for when the boys get down to form.

On the Clapp Memorial alleys last Monday evening, team 2, Arthur Cunningham, Norton F. Pratt, Albert Newcomb, N. Cann and Charlie Denbroeder, walloped team 4, Dr. F. L. Doncett, John Coyle, Dan Looney, Bill Stillman and Fred Bumpus, all three strings and total with a pinfall of 433, 426, 430—1289, against 408, 391, 383—1182 for team 4. Arthur Cunningham was high man of the evening with a three string total of 279 and a single of 115.

P. F. Pearson's "city" team pinned defeat on B. J. Elkington's aggregation last Tuesday night at the C. M. A. in the candle pin league, by taking two strings and total with a pinfall of 1235 to 1224. Team 5, composed of P. T. Pearson, F. W. Hilton, Rev. Edward Yaeger, J. B. Merrill and Ben Allen, took the first string, 409 to 394, but team 3, Louis Carter, Harry Bates, Bennie Elkington, E. E. Leonard and Robert B. Raymond, came back strong, and took the second string, 417 to 393. The deciding string went to team 5, 433 to 413, Rev. Mr. Yaeger starting in this string with a single of 100 Harry Bates was high man of the evening with 379 in three strings.

The prize winners in the Norfolk bottle pin league just closed are as follows:—Highest average in each rating, Philbrick, E. Veazie, Lyons, Hall and E. C. Loud; team prize, team 8; high single string, Gridley, 233; high 3 string total, A. Reed 576. The prizes were fine silk umbrellas.

Hard to See Under Water.

There is no scientific instrument of the "scope" character which enables one to see down to 50 or 60 feet under water. When the sun shines vertically over water, a box or bucket with a glass bottom is often used to look into the water. A cloth covering to exclude light from the box or bucket is sometimes employed. But without electric or some other light in the water these devices are not very satisfactory.

Dust In One's Eyes.
 To "cast dust into one's eyes" perfectly explains itself. It is, however, interesting to know that Epaminondas at the battle of Tegea defeated the Spartans by masking his movements with a large body of cavalry. He caused the horsemen to gallop to and fro in front of the enemy in such a way as to raise a cloud of dust and so veiled the movements of his infantry and enabled them to take up a new and more advantageous position.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

CHAPTER XX. Wherein the Limberlost Sings For Ammon.

ELNORA lifted the violin and began to play. She wore a school dress of green gingham, with the sleeves rolled to the elbows.

As he changed positions he saw that Mrs. Comstock had followed them and was standing on the trail, where she could not have helped hearing everything Elnora had said.

He was wondering what he dared say, how much he might express, when the last note fell and the girl laid the violin in the case, closed the door, locked it and hid the key in the rotting wood at the end of a log.

"If you could only realize it, my girl, you are in college, and have been all ways. You are in the school of experience, and it has taught you to think, and given you a heart.

"Do you remember your promise about these violets?" asked Ammon. "Tomorrow is Edith's birthday, and if I'd put them special delivery on the morning train she'd get them in the late afternoon. They ought to keep well that long. She leaves for the north next day."

"Of course you can have them," said Elnora. "We will quit long enough before supper to gather a great bunch. They can be packed so they will carry all right. They should be perfectly fresh, especially if we gather them this evening and let them drink all night."

Then they went back to hunt Cattalene. It was a long and a happy search. Ammon came to Elnora at dusk daintily holding one by the body, its dark wings showing and its long, slender legs trying to clasp his fingers and creep from his hold.

Elnora studied the black wings intently. "I surely believe that's Sappho," she marveled. "The Bird Woman will be overjoyed."

"We must get the cyanide jar quickly," said Ammon. "I wouldn't lose her for $100. Such a chase as she led me!" Elnora got the jar and began gathering up paraphernalia.

He took the greater part of the load and stepped aside for Elnora to precede him. She went down the path, broken by the grazing cattle, toward the cabin and nearest the violet patch she stopped, laid down her net, and the things she carried. Ammon passed her and hurried forward.

"I'm going to get this moth home in a hurry," he said. "This cyanide has lost its strength, and it's not working well. We need some fresh in the jar."

He had forgotten the violets. Elnora stood looking after him, a curious expression on her face. One second so then she picked up the net and followed. At the blue bordered pool she paused and half turned back, then she closed her lips firmly and went on. It was 9 o'clock when Ammon said goodby and started to town. His gay whistle floated to them from the farthest corner of the Limberlost.

She was on the floor with the first tinkle of the alarm, and hastily dressing, she picked up the basket and a box to fit it, crept down the stairs and out to the violet patch. When the basket was filled to overflowing, she set it in the stout pasteboard box, packed it solid with mosses, tied it firmly and slipped under the cord a note.

Then she took a short cut across the woods and walked swiftly to Onabasha. It was after 6 o'clock, but all of the city she wished to avoid were asleep. She had no trouble in finding a small boy out, and she stood at a distance waiting while he rang Dr. Ammon's bell and delivered the package for Phillip to a maid, with the note which was to be given him at once.

On the way home through the woods passing some baited trees she collected the captive moths. She entered the kitchen with them so naturally that Mrs. Comstock made no comment. After breakfast Elnora went to her room, cleared away all trace of the night's work and was out in the arbor mounting moths when Ammon came down the road. "I am tired sitting," she said to her mother. "I think I will walk a few rods and meet him."

"Who's a trump?" called Ammon from afar. "Well, not you!" retorted Elnora. "Confess that you forgot!" "Completely," said Ammon. "But in truth it would not have been fatal. I wrote Polly last week to send Edith something appropriate and handsome today, with my card."

bow. Then Ammon went home. The women walked to the gate with him and stood watching him from sight. "That's what I call one decent young man!" said Mrs. Comstock. "To see him fit in with us, you'd think he'd been raised in a cabin, but it's likely he's always had the very 'cream' of the pot."

"Yes, I think so," laughed Elnora. "but it hasn't hurt him. I've never seen anything I could criticize. He's teaching me so much unconsciously. You know he graduated from Harvard and has several degrees in law. He's coming in the morning."

Next morning Ammon came early, and he and Elnora went at once to the fields and woods. Mrs. Comstock had come to believe so implicitly in him that she now stayed at home to complete the work before she joined them, and when she did she often sat sewing, leaving them wandering hours at a time. It was noon before she finished, and then she packed a basket of lunch. She found Elnora and Phillip near the violet patch, which was still in its prime. They lunched together. Then Mrs. Comstock carried the basket back to the cabin, and Ammon and Elnora sat on a log, resting for a few minutes.

"Do you remember your promise about these violets?" asked Ammon. "Tomorrow is Edith's birthday, and if I'd put them special delivery on the morning train she'd get them in the late afternoon. They ought to keep well that long. She leaves for the north next day."

"Of course you can have them," said Elnora. "We will quit long enough before supper to gather a great bunch. They can be packed so they will carry all right. They should be perfectly fresh, especially if we gather them this evening and let them drink all night."

He took the greater part of the load and stepped aside for Elnora to precede him. She went down the path, broken by the grazing cattle, toward the cabin and nearest the violet patch she stopped, laid down her net, and the things she carried. Ammon passed her and hurried forward.

"I'm going to get this moth home in a hurry," he said. "This cyanide has lost its strength, and it's not working well. We need some fresh in the jar."

He had forgotten the violets. Elnora stood looking after him, a curious expression on her face. One second so then she picked up the net and followed. At the blue bordered pool she paused and half turned back, then she closed her lips firmly and went on. It was 9 o'clock when Ammon said goodby and started to town. His gay whistle floated to them from the farthest corner of the Limberlost.

She was on the floor with the first tinkle of the alarm, and hastily dressing, she picked up the basket and a box to fit it, crept down the stairs and out to the violet patch. When the basket was filled to overflowing, she set it in the stout pasteboard box, packed it solid with mosses, tied it firmly and slipped under the cord a note.

Then she took a short cut across the woods and walked swiftly to Onabasha. It was after 6 o'clock, but all of the city she wished to avoid were asleep. She had no trouble in finding a small boy out, and she stood at a distance waiting while he rang Dr. Ammon's bell and delivered the package for Phillip to a maid, with the note which was to be given him at once.

On the way home through the woods passing some baited trees she collected the captive moths. She entered the kitchen with them so naturally that Mrs. Comstock made no comment. After breakfast Elnora went to her room, cleared away all trace of the night's work and was out in the arbor mounting moths when Ammon came down the road. "I am tired sitting," she said to her mother. "I think I will walk a few rods and meet him."

"Who's a trump?" called Ammon from afar. "Well, not you!" retorted Elnora. "Confess that you forgot!" "Completely," said Ammon. "But in truth it would not have been fatal. I wrote Polly last week to send Edith something appropriate and handsome today, with my card."

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE.

James Humphrey School Wins From Athens and Shaw Loses to Pratt.

In the grammar school basket ball league last Friday, the James Humphrey school registered a defeat over Athens school of North Weymouth 11 to 7, and the Shaw school of Nash's Corner, lost to the Pratt school of Lovell's Corner, 22 to 9. The contest between the James Humphrey school and the Athens aggregation was the most exciting of the afternoon.

At the end of the first half the North Weymouth boys were ahead 5 to 0 and the gloom in the Humphrey school camp was decidedly thick. However, in the second half Jack Gannon, the diminutive forward on the East Weymouth squad, got busy and before the period was half over the Humphrey lads led and at the finish the score board showed eleven points for Humphrey and but seven for Athens. The summary:— James Humphrey School. Athens School.

Score—Pratt school 22, Shaw school 9. Goals from the floor—A. Sprague 9, Martin, Cummins 2, Talbot, Richardson 2, Sprague 2. Goal from foul—Galusha. Referee—Fabyan. Timer—Curtin.

Mend That Cat. Little Fred's mother, who had been giving him some training in regard to the all-powerfulness of the divinity, found him one afternoon with a dead cat, over which he was saying: "God, I said mend that cat; I've said it three times now, and I won't speak to you again."

An Art Critic. An actor who is known as Lew is of German descent, and his father speaks broken English. Lew says the old gentleman went to a big art gallery recently and came home greatly enthused. "Saw a fine painting, Louis," he said. "You did?"

He Was Sarcastic. Dubbleigh's car lay flat on its side and deep in the mud in the freshly plowed field, having skidded off the road, through the low stone wall, to get there. "Ah!" cried a passerby from the roadside. "Had an accident?"

How Apes and Monkeys Differ. What are the differences between apes, baboons and monkeys? Apes are such as are destitute of tails; baboons have muscular bodies, elongated muzzles, and their tails are usually short; monkeys are those whose tails are in general long, some of them, the sapajous, having prehensile tails, which can at pleasure be twisted around any object, and thereby, in many instances, answer the purpose of an additional hand.—"Reason Why."

A Quaker Oath. Two small boys in a family of Friends, writes a contributor, had a disagreement, during which the elder boy became very much incensed. Finally, no longer able to control himself, he took his brother by the shoulder and shook him, with the exclamation, "Oh, thee little you, thee!"

Ingratiating. "This is the fifth time you have been brought before me," said the judge severely. "Yes, your honor," smiled the offender. "When I like a feller I like to give him all my business. You see?"

Fame. Fame is the inheritance not of the dead, but of the living. It is we who look back with lofty pride to the great names of antiquity, who drink of that flood of glory as of a river and refresh our wings in it for future flight.—Hazlitt.

But for some trouble and sorrow we should never know half the good there is about us.—Dickens.

ANOTHER VETERAN GONE.

B. Frank Richards Joins the Great Majority.

After a long illness B. F. Richards was called from his home on Green street, Weymouth Heights, to his final resting place, last Sunday afternoon.

He was born October 15, 1833, in the house on Front street, Weymouth, built by his grandfather, Nathaniel Richards, Sr., 140 years ago. The house is now occupied by a brother of the deceased, Edward E. Richards.

He was a son of the late Nathaniel Richards, Jr., and Marion Charlotte Hayden, and lived all his life in this town, making his home the past few years with his daughter, Mrs. Albert Newcomb and his son, Frank A. Richards, of Weymouth Heights.

He was a man of sterling character, and endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact.

On April 29, 1861, he enlisted in company H, 12th Massachusetts regiment, and served three years, receiving his discharge in July, 1864. He saw active duty in the battles of Gettysburg, Bull Run and Fredericksburg.

Since 1875 he has been a member of the Old North Congregational church of Weymouth Heights, of which he was a staunch and valuable supporter. For thirteen years he served as a deacon of the church and for several years was a member of the parish committee. He was also sexton of the church for a long time, and for a period of twenty-four years was superintendent of the Sunday school.

He was a member of the police force of this town for many years. In October, 1868, he joined Reynolds post 58, G. A. R., and passed through the several offices, and was chosen commander in 1906.

Mr. Richards is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Albert Newcomb of Weymouth Heights and Mrs. Nettie E. Marion of Newton, two sons, Frank A. Richards and George Richards, a brother, Edward E. Richards, and two sisters, Mrs. Katherine Bates, wife of Samuel N. Bates of East Weymouth and Mrs. Annie Smith of Weymouth.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at the Old North Parish church in Weymouth Heights. Rev. E. J. Yeager officiated. The choir of the church rendered two of Mr. Richards' favorite hymns, "Sometime We'll Understand," and "Abide With Me." Reynolds post 58, G. A. R., attended, and the Grand Army burial service was read by Commander Joseph P. Ford and J. Quincy Spear, chaplain. Interment was in Old North cemetery, where three volleys were fired over the grave by the color guard of post 58, and "taps" were sounded by Miss Theodora Keith, bugler. The bearers were Nelson W. Gardner, Joseph H. Burdell, Isaac H. Walker and Webster Hunt. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful.

PILGRIM CIRCLE FAIR.

Two Days Sale and Entertainment Draws Large Crowds to Vestry of Pilgrim Church on Tuesday and Wednesday of This Week.

The Pilgrim Circle connected with the Pilgrim Congregational church at North Weymouth, conducted a two days fair in the church vestry on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings of this week.

The several sales tables of the affair were in charge of—supper, Mrs. H. A. Farrington; fancy, Mrs. A. H. Alden; food, Mrs. W. A. Pratt; candy, Mrs. Horace Walker; 10 cent table, Mrs. S. G. Dunbar; grates and peanut table, Mrs. Charles Williams.

On Tuesday evening at 7.45, the juvenile cantata, entitled "The Brave Band," was presented by 35 children. Cornet solos and violin selections were also given by Miss Theodora Keith and Miss Marion White.

On Wednesday evening the three-act drama, "A Virginia Heroine," was presented with the following people in the cast—Mrs. Ida Farrington, Dorothy Leavitt, Rita Page, Priscilla Alden, Beth Clark, Anna Alden, Bertha Dunbar, Mrs. Lucy Libby, Ruth Thayer, Maud Williams and Velma Collier. Violin solos by Miss Marion White were highly enjoyed, between the acts.

The committee in charge of these entertainments were Mrs. W. E. Beane, Mrs. Gardner Alden, Mrs. Harry Gould and Mrs. John Thomas.

All the chairmen of the many tables and booths report large sales, and a tidy sum was added to the treasury of the circle for use in its work.

TUFTS LECTURE COURSE.

Largest Opening Night in the History of These Lectures.

Had Cotton Tufts been at the Town hall in East Weymouth last night he might well be proud of the result of his labors and contribution to education.

The hall was crowded to its limit with people from all parts of the town to listen to Lieutenant A. W. Wyndham in his celebrated lecture on the Panama Canal.

Bradford Hawes in behalf of the Board of Selectmen opened the meeting with a few remarks and introduced Lieutenant Wyndham, who received a cordial greeting.

Lieut. Wyndham is an enthusiastic speaker and got at his subject without delay and for an hour and a half held the most close attention of the 1200 people before him. His collection of illustrative slides was good and showed the territory covered and much of the detailed work.

His remarks in regard to the ownership and control of this, the leading great wonder of the world, gave a new significance to it, to most of his hearers. He emphasizes the fact that the United States did not own the Canal Zone but had a perpetual lease of it at a rental of $250,000 a year and like any other lease a breach of contract forfeits it.

The next lecture in the course will be in Fog's opera house, South Weymouth, next Wednesday night. Earl Ovington, the daring aviator, will be the speaker and to accommodate all parts of the town a special car will leave Thomas' Corner, North Weymouth at 7.15 o'clock and run direct to Columbian square, South Weymouth by the way of Central square, Jackson square and Pleasant street.

WOMAN'S BOARD OF MISSIONS.

Winter Meeting of the Norfolk and Pilgrim Branch Held in Union Congregational Church at South Weymouth on Tuesday.

In the Union Congregational church in South Weymouth on Tuesday, the 35th winter meeting of the Norfolk and Pilgrim Branch of the Woman's Board of Missions was held, with an extra large number of delegates present.

The meetings were presided over by Mrs. Henry S. Huntington of Milton, vice president of the board. The address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. Irville Waterman of Stoughton. Mrs. A. D. Tirrell of Weymouth gave a report of the last meeting and Mrs. Mark McCully of Waltham spoke on "Our Treasury."

Echoes from the annual meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions brought responses from Mrs. Evie W. Drew, Mrs. Arthur N. Whitney, Mrs. Adolbert Keith, Mrs. Benjamin A. Willmott and Mrs. Mark McCully. Mrs. A. A. Lincoln of Wollaston conducted a service of prayer.

In costume, Mrs. Mark McCully gave an impersonation entitled, "The Story of a Hindu Woman."

At noon a luncheon was served by a committee of ladies of the Union church.

At the afternoon session Rev. Albert V. House, pastor of the Union church, led the devotional exercises and there was a roll call with 125 delegates responding.

"Mrs. Extra Effort" impersonated by Mrs. William Wagner and "Mrs. Old Way," impersonated by Mrs. Walter R. Fields, held an interesting interview.

There was a memorial service for the late president of the Norfolk and Pilgrim Branch, Mrs. John E. Bradley, in which Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. McCord and Miss Loud had parts.

The afternoon address was delivered by Dr. Harriet E. Parker of Madras, India, on "Medical and Mission Work in India." Miss Mary F. Loud read several letters from missionaries, and congregational singing, with solos by Mrs. Cynthia Ewell, were the musical features.

A Study for Antiquarians.

While engaged in clearing up a piece of land on the estate of E. B. Nevin of South Weymouth, the early part of the week the workmen unearthed a stone which promises to be quite a study for those who delve in ancient history.

The stone in its composition is not unlike most of the surrounding rocks and stones, and is about seven feet long, two and a half feet wide and nearly a foot in thickness, and on removing the earth and scraping away the dirt, mould and moss, this inscription was found:

with some other characters which are hardly legible.

The find has been a subject of much talk and speculation as to whether it marked the resting place of some early settler or was placed there for some other purpose.

The elementary teachers of Weymouth met at the High school building Tuesday afternoon, January 28, and perfected an organization called the Weymouth Teachers' Association.

The executive committee consists of the above named officers with the addition of Miss May Chessman and Miss Inez Allen. Miss Helen Rockwood, Miss Elizabeth Tracy and Miss Olive Nolan were chosen to represent the association at the meeting of the appropriation committee held Thursday evening.

While the primary reason for the formation of the association was for advocating an increase in the salaries of its members, it is proposed to make the organization a permanent one, and all the teachers in town are invited to its membership.

RETURN PARTY.

Young Men of East Weymouth Hold Dance in Honor of Former "Leap Year" Entertainers.

The return party of the young men of East Weymouth, to their former "leap year" entertainers, in Grand Army hall, East Weymouth, Wednesday night was a huge success.

The decorative scheme was in green and white, with many college banners and pennants in evidence.

Dancing was enjoyed from 8 to 12. Cakes and ices were served during the intermission. The matrons were Mrs. William A. Wheaton, Mrs. Charles Bates and Mrs. J. Herbert Libby.

Funeral services were held in the Immaculate Conception church, Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Mass was celebrated by Rev. James Allison and the burial was in St. Francis Xavier cemetery. Mrs. Donahue is greatly mourned by her four children, Mrs. Michael Carroll, Mrs. Mary McGovern, Miss Bridget Donahue and James Donahue.

METHODIST CHURCH EAST BRAINTREE

REV. T. C. COLLISTER

The East Braintree church is prospering. The auditorium is crowded at the regular Sunday services. The vestry is over crowded at prayer meeting. There is an average attendance at the prayer meeting of about fifty. The average attendance for the last three months at the Sunday school has been 135. A cradle roll has been organized and has at present 25 members. The Junior and Senior Leagues are well attended.

A class of twenty is studying psychology with the pastor as teacher. Nearly every teacher in the Sunday school is a member of this class. Not only are the societies growing in numbers, but the spiritual life in all departments is growing. Mr. Herbert Clouston and Mr. Albert Slater are working, with great results with the boys. There have been about twenty accessions to the church.

The pastor was pleasantly surprised at the Christmas tree with a purse of gold. A Christmas morning service was held at eight o'clock, with forty in attendance. Over eighty were at the watch night service.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS NOTES

Third Degree Conferred on Large Class of Candidates in Town Hall, East Weymouth, on Wednesday Evening.

Weymouth Council, K. of C., held a special meeting in the Town Hall, East Weymouth, on Wednesday evening, and the third degree was conferred on a class of candidates by District Deputy Grand Knight D. M. O'Brien and suite of Rockland. Visitors were present at the services from all the surrounding towns and the Weymouths and a banquet was served after the initiation, by Burns, caterers of Boston. About five hundred set down to the repast.

With a large delegation of rooters from the local council, the tournament teams of Weymouth council journeyed to Quincy Tuesday evening and contested with the council teams of the Granite City with the following results: J. Desmond of Quincy won from White of East Weymouth in pool 50 to 45. Ed. Madigan of Weymouth council defeated C. Buckley of Quincy 50 to 29 at pool.

In bill whist Michael Coffey and John McCarthy were beaten by James White and Thomas Shortle 21 to 9. Chas. Smith and Frank McCarthy lost to G. Reinhalter and T. It is rumored that he will go to Europe this summer.

Mr. Collister has his Bachelor of Arts and his Master of Arts degrees and he is also a candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Sacred Theology from Boston University which he expects to receive in June 1913.

FARRELL—SMITH.

Weymouth Young Lady Becomes Bride of Popular Somerville Man.

In the church of the Sacred Heart in Weymouth on Wednesday, Miss Mary Louise Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Smith of Phillips street, Somerville, became the bride of William R. Farrell, son of Mrs. Annie Farrell of Austin street, Somerville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. Holland, rector of the Sacred Heart church.

The best man was William H. Powers of East Boston, a friend of the groom, and the bridesmaid was Miss Nellie T. Smith, a sister of the bride.

The wedding march was played on the organ by Mrs. John Hanley, organist of the church, and the ushers were Bernard Farrell of Somerville, a brother of the groom, and George C. Smith, the bride's brother of this town.

The flower girls were the little Misses Marguerite and Dorothy Smith, sisters of the bride.

The bride was most magnificently gowned in white satin, with pearl and lace trimmings. The bridesmaid's dress was of pink chiffon over yellow crepe net, with silver trimmings.

After the ceremony a reception attended by the immediate families and friends of the couple, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith at 25 Phillips street. Mr. and Mrs. Farrell were assisted in receiving by the best man and bridesmaid and Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

The rooms were most artistically decorated with ferns, potted plants and an abundance of pinks. A wedding luncheon was served to the guests during the reception.

Guests were present from Boston, Allston, Somerville, Braintree, Rockland, Quincy and the Weymouths.

At a late hour, Mr. and Mrs. Farrell left on an extended wedding tour to New York, Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Philadelphia and other southern points of interest. On their return they will be at home to their many friends at 2 Webster street, Allston, after April 1.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents from 6 until 9 o'clock. The couple were assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and of the bridegroom. For very early cabbages sow seed in the hot bed and transplant to cold frame in March.

It is impossible to develop a colt into a sound, serviceable horse if it is kept tied on a hard floor day in and day out through the winter.

When it is considered, that a fair crop of corn can be grown on land of ordinary quality, and that the crop can be raised and gathered with less labor than most other grains, no good reason can be given why the farmer should not raise enough for his own consumption.

Many men get poor results because of their curious mania for deep planting. Generally, a ring on the stalk will show where the plant stood in reference to the surface of the ground when in the nursery. Let it go into the earth just deep enough to hide this ring under half an inch of soil.

Much time is lost in the spring by waiting for plants and seeds. Orders for seeds should be sent in before January is over. Make out the list of varieties desired and give plain directions, to avoid mistakes. Every spring there are many who are delayed in their work by ordering plants and seeds just at the time they are wanted.

Corn stalks from winter fodder or corn stover feeding are generally considered objectionable in handling manure. They not only make the manure more difficult to fork, but they are bulky, coarse and hard as bedding material. For these reasons, as well as for greater feeding value, many farmers are now shredding their corn fodder for winter feeding.

The proper time to apply any kind of fertilizer to an orchard is in the winter. Then the melting snow and spring rain carry its soluble portions into the soil. There is in every direction from a vigorous tree such a network of roots that there is no possibility of the fertilizer being washed away through the soil without being at some point taken up and brought into the tree.

Tests with cows with and without salting gave results highly in favor of salting. Those which were given salt produced about twenty-five per cent more milk than those without salt, other conditions being the same. Cows relish salt, and they do not seem to be healthy and satisfied without it. The cow that eats salt will drink more water and a cow must be a good drinker to be a good milker. Never feed salt in a mixture with other feeds.

It is a very small garden indeed which a place can not be found for a few raspberry and currant bushes—say, a dozen of each. Both are easy to grow and there is now an ever-bearing raspberry, so called, which may be depended upon to yield fruit for three months. And currants, unlike most small fruit, may be allowed to hang the bushes a long time after they ripen.

In the South Shore district winter chicken growing has been followed for many years. The industry did not reach anything like its present development until after the general introduction of dependable incubators, as the problem of hatching many chicks by natural methods during the late summer and fall months is not easily solved. With dependable incubators, however, the hatching can be done at any time and chicks produced in any number, provided well-fertilized eggs can be secured.

Don't mix the various kinds of chickens if you wish to breed up the best strains for anything. Reversions in crossings are as likely to occur as improvements, and may happen just at the time when success seems apparent. In the hands of skilled breeders cross-breeding has produced wonders where it was properly guided; but promiscuous mixing may go one way as well as another. Many a dairyman has crossed the Jersey and the Holstein, only to find that the result was to intensify the frailties of both without the virtues of either. Unrestrained hybridism in nature nearly always results in an inferior animal—all things considered.

C. M. A. WINS THREE BOUTS.

Wrestling Meet With Harvard Held in Hemmenway Gymnasium in Cambridge Recently Shows the C. M. A. Wrestlers to be Among the Best in New England.

A few evenings ago, the wrestling team of the Clapp Memorial Association journeyed to the Hemmenway gym in Cambridge and wrestled the Harvard University grapplers in seven classes.

The Harvard wrestlers had the best of the going in the lightweight contests, while the Clapp heavyweight artists held their own with the more experienced grapplers under Sam Anderson's charge.

In the 115 pound class, J. J. Mora of the Crimson, threw Harold Morse of the C. M. A. in 1 minute and 30 seconds. In the 125 pound division, A. A. Shapiro of Harvard, won the decision over Harold Morse of Clapp Memorial, after 9 minutes of excellent wrestling.

In the same class Martin Zeoli of the C. M. A., lost the decision to H. B. Goodfriend of the college squad, but it was hard to see where the Crimson wrestler had anything at all on the East Weymouth boy.

In the 135 pound class, F. S. Moulton of Harvard won from Albert Ahlstedt of the C. M. A., in 5 minutes, flat.

In the 140 pound contest, Haiga Siiron went down to defeat before H. Loomis of Harvard in 7 minutes, 30 seconds.

The result in the 145 pound class was a little more favorable for the Clapp boys, Frank Zeoli showing his class by winning the decision over his opponent, Griffiths of the Crimson, after nine minutes of struggling. Griffiths weighed about 15 pounds more than Zeoli, and therefore the Clapp lad's work was all the more praiseworthy.

In the 158 pound class, the C. M. A. again cleaned up, when Archie Jeannette won over F. H. Tyler, and Basil Warren defeated H. Brennan of Harvard on points.

The heavyweight class went to Harvard, Stambaugh, the Harvard man, throwing Bryan Leonard of the C. M. A., in 2 minutes.

Wanted to Be Sure.

A German farmer left his horses unhitched in front of a hardware store in Gary. When he came out after an interval of a half hour they were gone. There had been no sound of a runaway, so the farmer surmised that they might have gone home. He phoned his wife, saying: "Chulla, iss der horses dere?" A negative came over the phone, for he added: "Nor der vagon elder?"—Chicago Post.

[Written for the Gazette and Transcript.]
"Wasn't the lecture great?" exclaimed the Bride as she joined her husband in the vestibule.
"Yes," said the Benedict without enthusiasm.
"Did you ever see such gorgeous pictures?"
"No."
"I wanted to ask you lots of things about them. It is a shame you had to give up your seat."
"Yes." The monosyllabic answer was getting to be a habit with the Benedict. The Bride shook the arm into which she had linked hers.
"What is the matter with you, Jack?" she demanded. "I believe you're cross."
"Maybe I am," admitted the Benedict, "and perhaps I have a right to be. 'I'm tired."
"You poor boy, you did have to stand, didn't you?"
"Yes, I did, but that wouldn't have tired me under ordinary circumstances," the Benedict assured her.
"What were the extraordinary circumstances?" she asked gently.
"Something which is getting to be more and more ordinary every day," he told her: "the increasingly noticeable habit of the average woman to take favors for granted. I cannot fail to offer my chair to a woman who is standing, because that is the way my father trained me; but I cannot, for my life, see how a woman can take an offered seat without a 'thank you.'"
"Most of them can't, I fancy," said the Bride.
"That's where you're mistaken, Beloved. It is one of the commonest happenings of a day's work. I give up my seat in the car about four mornings in the week and it's not often that I get a 'thank you' for it."
"You're better than some of the men I encounter in trolley cars," declared the Bride. "A row of four great men let me hang to a strap nearly all the way in town yesterday. They read their papers and pretended not to see me. I think that's as bad as not saying 'thank you.'"
"Granted," agreed the Benedict. "I know a number of men who won't offer their seat to a woman unless they know her or have an axe to grind with her husband. I am a marked man because I do it, but it's only because it's hard to break away from my early training."
"Father would be proud of little Willie!" chuckled the Bride.
"Not if he knew how unwillingly I followed his precept. If you ever noticed, Beloved, it is the older men, like Father, who can teach us youngsters the art of true courtesy; but I'll leave it to any of them to say whether the women do their share."
"You should do as Mother used to do with our children," suggested the Bride, "not let them have the seat unless they express their gratitude. Many's the time I have had my cake taken away from me because I failed to say 'thank you' before I had it fairly off the plate. It was hard training but I guess it worked."
"I am afraid I'd get more than I bargained for, trying to carry out any such discipline," laughed the Benedict. "Fancy trying to reclaim a seat to which a fair damsel thinks she has a perfect right. I guess it is safer to go on in the old way."
EVELYN EARLE.

CLAPP IN AGAIN.
Defeats Braintree Circle In Fast Game at C. M. A. Last Saturday Night in South Shore League Series.
The Capp Memorial basketball five annexed another victory last Saturday night in the home gym in East Weymouth, when the Braintree Circle team found the pace too hot, and succumbed to the tune of 33 to 25. The Clapp quintet showed nearly a complete reversal of the form they showed in the North Abington game the week previous, and their shooting and passing was not up to their usual standard. The Braintree boys were with out the services of Scollard and Wood, two of their fastest men, and as a consequence, their game was broken up some. For Clapp, Schütz and Ralph Curtin starred, while for Braintree the class was displayed by Cahill and Smith. The summary:
C. M. A. Braintree Circle
R. Curtin, rf lb, Smith
Schütz, lf rb, Kaler
Bumpus, c c, Qualey
Flannery, rb lf, Cahill
Warren, lb rf, Minchin
Score—C. M. A. 33; Braintree 25. Goals from the floor—Curtin 5, Schütz 3, Bumpus 3, Smith 3, Kaler, Qualey, Cahill 3, Minchin 3. Goals from fouls—Schütz, Cahill 2, Minchin. Referee—Fabyan. Umpire—Jones. Timer—Tirrell. Scorer—Pratt. Time—20 and 15 minute periods.
Between the halves a spirited game was put on between the Weymouth Center Civic club and the C. M. A. second team, in which the Clapp boys were again victorious, 19 to 8. Fraher and Sampson excelled for the winners while Reis and Curtin were the bright lights of the losing quintet. The summary:
C. M. A. 2d. Civic Club
J. Fitzgerald, lf rf, Cross
Fraher, rb lf, Curtin
Wynan, c c, Reis
Sampson, lf lb, Albert
Studley, rf lb, G. Fitzgerald
Score—C. M. A. Seconds 10, Civic club 8. Goals from the floor—Fraher, Sampson 2, Studley, Reis 2, Curtin 2. Goals from fouls—Studley 2. Referee—Fabyan. Umpire—Tirrell. Scorer—Pratt. Time—20 and 15 minute periods.

Didna Look It.
A photographer who had taken Dr. Ian MacLaren's picture destroyed the negative. When there was a considerable demand for the picture the photographer's Scotch heart was disturbed, and he remarked aggrieved: "That man might hae tell't me he was famous and I would have keep't him. He didna look like it."—Christian Register.

The End of a Career.
"Why have you given up the idea of going in for a professional career?" asked her friend.
"Because I have met a perfectly splendid man who thinks I would be a lovely ornament to a bungalow that he has his eye on."—Chicago Record-Herald.

UNION WINS FROM BROCKTON.
South Weymouth Team Brings Shoe City Quintet Down a Notch in South Shore League Race.
The Brockton Y. M. C. A. Intermediates received a shock to their pennant aspirations in the South Shore League last Saturday night, when the speedy Union A. C. quintet pinned a 24 to 22 defeat on the shoe city boys in the Union gymnasium at South Weymouth.
The Brockton lads are at the head of the South Shore league, but after the defeat by Union last Saturday evening, the North Abington Y. M. C. A. and the Clapp M. A. teams are within striking distance of the first place berth.
The game at South Weymouth last Saturday evening was replete with fast passing and clever shooting by both teams.
Robinson starred for Union and Pratt and English also put up a fast game. For the Shoe City boys Downey was high man at shooting with four baskets to his credit and Cole and Wood played in high class form also. The summary:—
UNION A. C. BROCKTON Y. M. C. A.

FRIDAY, JAN. 31, 1913.

The Gazette & Transcript is printed and mailed Friday afternoons, and is for sale at all News-stands in the Weymouths and at the South Terminal, Boston.

All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.

Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 10 cents per line in the reading matter, or regular rates in the advertising columns.

A column of town matters is necessarily left over this week for want of room and time. There is, however, much doing and we will try and give it next week. The several boards of town officers are busy with their annual reports, the appropriation committee is hard at work with the 105 articles in the Warrant for the Town meeting. Notices are being printed for republican caucuses in all the wards on the night of February 14th and a general caucus at the Engine house, Ward 2 on the night of the 18th. There is also much activity by those interested in the movement for a citizens nomination of a complete, or nearly so, overturn of town officers and indications are that the next three or four weeks will be like our present January, much warmer than usual.

Away From Dust of Autos.
The increase of motoring and the consequent increase of dust have, to some considerable extent, changed the value of villa and hotel sites in visitors' resorts. The choice, especially in the south of France and Italy, is now much in favor of houses well away from the main road, and even well outside towns.

Kept Track of Food Consumed.
It is, of course, not easy to estimate the amount of food consumed by each of us in a year, but one dietetic expert who kept a record of his meals during twelve months declares that he ate 180 loaves of bread, 150 pounds of meat, drank 61 gallons of milk, and ate no fewer than 300 eggs, in addition to other things.—London Tit-Bits.

House Boss in Egypt.
Old Mr. Egyptian carried a stick or a small club about the house with him and laid it upon his women like a thousand of brick whenever they disobeyed or displeased him. In the graves the mummies show that nearly every woman had a forearm fracture. When Mr. Egyptian came home in a bad humor he would fall into her with a stiff stick, and as the arm was thrown to protect the face it was generally broken while warding off the blow.

NEW STORE.
Reidy Drug Co. to Open Modern Drug Store To-morrow in Jackson Square, East Weymouth.

The new, large store of Daniel Reidy, Pharmacist, at 781 Broad street has been completed and the past week Mr. Reidy and his assistants have been busy moving the stock from the present store at 720 Broad street to the up-to-date quarters in Jackson square. The building, which was formerly occupied by Dominic Ghiorzi as a fruit store, has been thoroughly remodeled and equipped with modern plate glass windows and fixtures throughout, under directions of Contractor George M. Keene of East Weymouth. Mr. Reidy has had one of the most complete soda fountains in this section installed, and with new ice-cream dispensers, candy cases, cigar stands and drug and medicine cabinets, the new store will present a most attractive appearance. Gas and electric lighting apparatus has been installed and with two large lights over the sidewalk, this new drug store will be among the best lighted in town. The formal opening of the new store will be held to-morrow (Saturday) evening and Mr. Reidy and his assistants will be on hand to welcome former patrons and also new ones.

In Remembrance of Miss Sarah M. Loud.

Between the worlds she hovered, as if both Drew her by turns to go, and still to stay; To leave earth's preciousness, her heart was loath, While yet her spirit fluttered towards the Day.
So close to the Divine, her soul had dwelt, From this world into that, not far the flight; How many a life the glow of hers has felt, Because she lived so near the Land of Light!
Closely companioned were her word and deed; This was the vital in the memory; Hers was a faithful sowing of sound seeds, Whose harvesting now is, and is to be.
In but not of the world; with grace and cheer, She wrought her selfless, high activities; And even worldings felt, when she was near.
How full of charm, a Christy Christian is!

Energy That Counts.

The friction of men in action is the energy that sends the world spinning. Disagreements are like flint and steel, they strike the new sparks. Contrary opinions fill the chaff out of ideas.—Herbert Kaufman

Their Honeymoon.

A newly married couple living in Fulton took their honeymoon on a motor cycle. This department is not qualified to testify as an expert in the matter of honeymoons, but, believe us, motor cycling doesn't appeal to us as a start toward conjugal bliss. Some folks may call it exercise, but it looks more to us like sitting in a draft.—Kansas City Times.

Emblem of Charity.

Love, kindness, toleration, whatever charity may be, or if she is compounded of them all, I know not. All that I do know is that she is rare, and that her emblem on a sailor's arm—is always drawn between the anchor and the cross.—Cunninghame-Graham.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

As a result of the daily "musicals" held during the noon recess in the hall by the senior girls, many of the class of 1913 are becoming quite proficient in the dancing art, and it is safe to say that when the graduation dance rolls around next June, none of the girls of the graduating class will be forced to "sit out" a dance on account of the lack of knowing how to "trip the light fantastic."

Student Manager Lewis Nolan and Faculty Manager Cosgrove have begun to book dates for the baseball team the coming season, and already have several games listed and a long hard schedule will be arranged for the season of 1913. No captain of the nine has been selected yet, but a meeting will be held soon to choose a leader for the coming season. With Ray Condriek and Harry "Buster" Burrell for first string pitchers, "Sig" Murphy, Mills Baker, Leo Fraher, Harold Gloster and Elbridge Gardner of last year's team to build around, and with a number of promising recruits, Coach Carter should develop a very fast team to represent Weymouth High on the diamond this year. The hardest position to fill will be the catching end as "Pappy" Wall, who has caught for several years, graduated last June. The playing of Wall and Humphrey will be sorely missed and a second baseman will have to be developed, as Morgan, last year's second sacker, is not in school now.

The junior class held a class meeting on Monday night after school and arrangements for a party to be held by the class in a few weeks were discussed. A committee, Harold Gloster, chairman, was chosen to complete details of the affair.

The basketball team is scheduled to play the Taunton High school five at Taunton on next Tuesday and on next Friday the Clapp Memorial team of East Weymouth will be the opposing team in the local gymnasium. The game scheduled with Melrose H. S. at Melrose yesterday was canceled.

The high school midget basketball team easily defeated the Pratt school quintet of Lovell's Corner 21 to 2, last Tuesday afternoon between the halves of the Oliver Ames vs Weymouth game. Reilly, Reis and Caulfield were the stars of the game. The two teams lined up as follows: W. H. S. Midgets: Reilly lf, Reis rf, Lobnes c, Caulfield lb, Kelley rb; Pratt school: Cole rb, Morrison lb, Sprague c, Cummins rf, Talbot lf.

Members of the class of 1912 of the school met recently with the class secretary, Miss Helen O'Dowd of Reed ave. South Weymouth, and arranged for a banquet, to be held some time in March.

No Difference.
It was a breezy morning, and the city train was packed. A crusty old gentleman with his back to the engine "preferred the window down for ventilation," while a wheezy individual facing the window persisted in pulling it up again, as he "hated these beastly east winds."

"I can't stand this stuffy herring box!" chortled the crusty man, tugging the strap and letting the window drop for the fourth time.

"Nor I these Siberian blasts that only convicts could stand," rejoined the wheezer. "Don't you know it's an old adage that when the wind is in the east 'tis neither fit for me nor you?"

"Ha, ha!" laughed the crusty man, appealing to the passengers to laugh also. "Here's a man who doesn't know that old proverb. Why, sir, the last words are 'man nor beast!'"

"Well, there's no difference in what I said," chuckled the wheezer as the passengers roared in chorus.—London Tit-Bits

Fun For the Elephants.
A queer elephant yarn is told by the captain of a trading steambot. On one occasion he had on board a cargo of forty elephants. The vessel was anchored in a perfectly smooth sea off the coast of Zanzibar, but to the great surprise of the passengers the steamer began to roll. At first they supposed the motion to be caused by the ground swell, but when the motion kept increasing there was general alarm, and the captain instigated an investigation. Then it was revealed that the elephants had in some way found that by swaying to and fro all together a rocking motion was produced that seemed to please them immensely. So the great heads and bodies rolled and swung in unison until the steamer, which had no other cargo and rode lightly, was in imminent danger of rolling clean over. The attendants hurried down into their hold and, after a great deal of shouting and thumping, managed to stop the dangerous amusement.

Always an Anti-Climax.
It is always reassuring to read of some millionaire's son who, dressed in overalls, has taken up some hard grating job at a few dollars a week, just as a poor farmer's or mechanic's son might do. But his election, in a few weeks, to the directorship or vice presidency of his father's business shows a growth that boys of more humble parentage can hardly hope to equal.—Christian Science Monitor.

Maine's Needle Rock.
In Blue Hill Bay, Maine there is a pinnacle rock of only six feet in diameter at its top, which projects to within seven feet of the surface of the water and rises nearly perpendicularly out of a depth of 75 feet. The existence of this rock is an evidence of the difficulty, even in well-known waters, of demonstrating that no isolated rocks are lying in wait for heedless victims.—Harper's Weekly.

BOWLING NOTES.

Ladies' nights on the C. M. A. alleys are proving unusually popular, quite a number of the "fair sex" availing themselves of the opportunity to become proficient in the art of bowling. Every Thursday night lately the alleys have been kept busy by the ladies, and it is rumored that in a few weeks more, the men may receive a challenge from their fair companions for a match to decide who are the most adept at the game, the ladies or the men.

The teams in the five men candle pin league at the C. M. A. have been completed and the six teams in the race for the cups are as follows: team 1, L. D. Loring, Dr. Joseph Chase, W. L. Pratt, William Reamy and Thomas Noonan; team 2, Arthur Cunningham, Norton F. Pratt, Norman Cann, Charles Denbroeder and Albert Newcomb; team 3, B. J. Elkington, Louis Carter, R. B. Raymond, Harry L. Bates and Elmer E. Leonard; team 4, Dr. Fred L. Donette, John Coyle, Fred Bumpus, William Stillman and Daniel P. Looney; team 5, P. T. Pearson, F. W. Hilton, Rev. Edward Yaeger, J. B. Merrill and Ben Allen; team 6, Carl Tirrell, Fred Drinkwater, Charles DeRusha, Henry Tilden and L. W. Bates.

Team 2, Arthur Cunningham, Norton F. Pratt, Charles Denbroeder, Albert Newcomb and Norman Cann cleaned up four more straight points in the C. M. A. league last Monday night, when they won from team 3, Benjamin Elkington, Elmer E. Leonard, Robert B. Raymond, Louis Carter and Harry Bates 1230 to 1145. The first string was easy for team 2, 405 to 381 as was also the second 434 to 386. In the third round team 3 got a good start and the string was nip and tuck until the last frame, when team 2 nosed out a win by 13 pins, taking the string 391 to 378. Arthur Cunningham, captain of team 2 was high man of the evening with a single of 114 and a three string total of 306.

The candle pin league tournament on the Norfolk club alleys began last Tuesday evening with the following six teams in the race for the championship: team 1, Warren Philbrick, A. Lound, Herbert Rockwood, Stanley Hersey and Charles Brown; team 2, D. Hall, Harold Souls, Thomas V. Nash, E. C. Lound and Drown; team 3, Frank Lound, Kenneth Brennan, Elliott Veazie, Macauley, Frank Barnes; team 4, Wallace Lyons, Calvin Veazie, Stephen F. Pratt, Carl Gridley and Thomas; team 5, Bert Hobart, George Crawford, Fred Rivinius, Harry Raymond and Morgan; team 6, Randolph Lamphrey, Frank Howe, Abbott Howe, A. Shaw and William Nash.

At the C. M. A. on Tuesday night teams 4 and 6 split honors, each taking two points apiece. Team 4, John Coyle, William Stillman, Fred Bumpus, Dan Looney and Dr. F. L. Donette took one string and total, while team 6, Charlie DeRusha, L. W. Bates, Fred Drinkwater, Carl Tirrell and Henry Tilden took the first two strings. The pinfall of team 4 was 1161 and for team 6, 1158.

In the first match of the candle pin league at the Norfolk club, held on Tuesday evening, team 1, Warren Philbrick, captain, won from team 2, Ed Hall, captain, by taking all three strings and total 1312 to 1169. Team 1 got all four points. Warren Philbrick was high man of the evening with a single of 120 and a three string total of 301.

The match in the Foresters of America bowling league between the Court Monaquot team of this town and the team from John Adams Court of Quincy, at Burrell's Alleys, Weymouth, Monday evening, was the most exciting one bowled thus far in the series. Each team won two points. The visitors won two of the three strings and the teams were tied in the totals, 1344 pins each. They rolled off two boxes, and the Weymouth five won, 83 to 80. White of the Weymouth team was high man with a three string total of 303 and a single of 108.

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

CHAPTER XXI. Wherein Elnora Makes a Confession.

THESE days were the beginning of the weeks that followed. After June the moth hunts grew less frequent—the fields and woods were scoured for material for Elnora's grade work. Mrs. Comstock was a great help. Always her practical thought and sterling common sense were useful. When they were afield until exhausted they came back to the cabin for food, to prepare specimens and classify them and to talk over the day. One warm August afternoon a blue-coated messenger entered the gate. "I have a message for Phillip Ammon."

"Elnora," he whispered, "will you kiss me goodby?"

"I am broad enough to answer. It came in less than an hour. Going to teach this winter. With dearest love, Elnora." Mrs. Comstock held the message a long time. When she arose she was ravenously hungry, but the pain in her heart was a little easier. She went to a restaurant and got some food then to a dressmaker. At night she was so tired she scarcely could walk home, but she built a fire and cooked and ate a hearty meal. Later she went out by the west fence and gathered an armful of tansy, which she boiled to a thick green tea. Then she stirred in oatmeal until it was a stiff paste. She spread a sheet over her bed and began tearing strips of old muslin. She bandaged each hand and arm with the mixture and plastered the soggy, evil smelling stuff in a thick poultice over her face and neck. She was so tired she had to sleep, and when she awoke she was half skinned. She bathed her face and hands, did the work and went back to town, coming home at night to go through the same process. By the third morning she was raw, even red; the fourth she had faded to a brilliant pink under the soothing influence of a cream recommended. That day came a letter from Elnora saying that she could not come.

Mother. Then she sat waiting for the answer. It came in less than an hour. Going to teach this winter. With dearest love, Elnora." Mrs. Comstock held the message a long time. When she arose she was ravenously hungry, but the pain in her heart was a little easier. She went to a restaurant and got some food then to a dressmaker. At night she was so tired she scarcely could walk home, but she built a fire and cooked and ate a hearty meal. Later she went out by the west fence and gathered an armful of tansy, which she boiled to a thick green tea. Then she stirred in oatmeal until it was a stiff paste. She was so tired she had to sleep, and when she awoke she was half skinned. She bathed her face and hands, did the work and went back to town, coming home at night to go through the same process. By the third morning she was raw, even red; the fourth she had faded to a brilliant pink under the soothing influence of a cream recommended. That day came a letter from Elnora saying that she could not come.

"Mother!" she cried. "You my mother! I don't believe it!"

home until after school Monday night. That suited Mrs. Comstock, and she at once answered the letter saying so. The next day Mrs. Comstock was a pale pink and the following a delicate porcelain white. That day she went to a hairdresser and had the great rope of snowy hair which covered her scalp washed and dressed. Then she went home, rested and worked by turns until Monday. When school closed on that evening and Elnora, so tired she almost trembled, came down the long walk after a late session of teachers' meeting a messenger boy stopped her. "There's a lady wants to see you most important. I am to take you to the place," he said. Elnora groaned. She could not imagine who wanted her, but there was nothing to do but go and find out. "This is the place," said the boy, and went his way, whistling. Elnora was three blocks from the high school building on the same street. She was before a quaint old house, fresh with paint and covered with vines. Inside she could see bare polished floors, walls freshly papered in low toned harmonious colors, straw rugs and madras curtains. It seemed to be a restful, homelike place to which she had come, and a second later down an open stairway came a tall, dark eyed woman with cheeks faintly pink and a crown of fluffy snow white hair. Elnora stepped inside the door. "Mother!" she cried. "You my mother! I don't believe it! You are perfectly beautiful, and this house is a little paradise, but how will we ever pay for it? We can't afford it!" "Humph! Have you forgotten I telegraphed you I'd found some money I didn't know about? All I've done is paid for and plenty more to settle for all I propose to do."

Ammon was disappointed over that note and instead of keeping it he tore it into bits and dropped them into the wastebasket. Throughout the winter Elnora and her mother enjoyed the city thoroughly and the change of life it afforded, but signs of spring did wonderful things to the hearts of the country bred women. They decided to keep the city house during the summer, but to go back to the farm to live just as soon as school closed. (To Be Continued.) GATHERED UP. The man who is true to himself is a friend to everybody. The wisest man would make a good bargain if he could trade off what he knows for what he doesn't know. He who procrastinates wastes his own time and that of his fellows. "I don't object to a man telling all he know," said Uncle Eben, "if he sure enough an' honestly knows all he tells." A Chicago woman has requested that the courts force her husband to remain home at night. With the average man it would take more than a court injunction to do that. Knicker—"What is the matter with Smith?" Bocker—"His baby wants the moon and his wife wants the earth." The girl who thinks no man is good enough for her may be right, but it is more likely that she is merely spoiled. "What happens," shouted the candidate, "when you put the almighty dollar before the man?" "The man goes after it," answered the old farmer in the front row. "Go away from me," said the fashionably dressed woman to the tramp. "I wouldn't have you touch me for a dollar." "I was only going to touch you for a dime, lady." Telephone girls in one locality have been forbidden to powder their faces. Under such conditions it is useless to deny that tyranny, oppression and cruelty are still rampant in this free land. Ted—Do you believe that woman should hold the reins? Ned—It is all right when you have the girl out in a sleigh. When a bride returns home on the first visit after her marriage she has to tell many untruths to keep the homefolks from plying her. It isn't necessary to have an automobile to run down one's neighbors. "Had any accidents on this road lately?" asked the traveler. "Yep," replied the man who hangs around the station. "Three trains came in on time last week." "What did your husband say when you told him that you proposed to join the suffragists in their hike to Washington?" "He said that if I was so enthusiastic over long-distance walking, I could relieve him of walking the floor nights with the baby." Heck—They say a ring around the moon is a sign of rain. Peck—So is a ring around around a woman's finger a sign of reign. Some crank wants the legislature to pass a law prohibiting women from smoking. In view of the efforts being put forth by some of the ladies to get equal rights with men, we reckon there would be something doing if their privileges were interfered with to any such extent as this. A French novelist says that love is a criminal madness. He is not the first to assail the frenzy, but it may be noticed in passing, that love as a human institution has survived all its critics. One of the greatest tonics for building up sound healthy business constitutions is "Cash Discount," taken in monthly doses. "Why did the elopement fall through?" "We had a signal arranged. She told me to come to her window and make a noise like a robin. I did so." "Yes?" "Then her father popped out and made a noise like a shotgun." "Here's an item," observed Rivers, who was looking over the exchanges, "to the effect that the king of Sweden raises prize dogs on his farm." "I suppose he uses them," suggested Brook, "to drive his Stockholm." "After which the rattle of the typewriter broke out afresh with great violence."

What Think You

One month has gone off the new year, which brought to us so much of cheer; Whateer the cause, one thing we know, The days grow brighter as we go.

Brighter perhaps because we've done a good deed to some struggling one; Perhaps some word that we have said Has cheered some heart once filled with dread.

Perhaps a smile has sweetened up What would have been a bitter cup; And two hearts have been happier made, Because the smile was not delayed.

Our spice Cup Cones will make you smile, Our Lemon Snaps are right in style; Our Jelly Doughnuts will supply A long felt want, if you will buy.
