from the top of the Soldiers and Sailors Monument. The concert was played by the Victor Military Band via the Victrola No. 50 and a Magnavox. Hundreds of people going to their lunch at the noon hour paused to listen to the United States and the Canadian national anthems as played on Victor records.

A Dealer with Merchandising Ideas

Thomas Morgan, a Victor dealer of Owensville, Ind., is fully convinced that "to be a successful salesman one must be sold on his own product first." This is an ad that Morgan has been running in the local newspaper: "$10.00 reward will be paid to anyone having a Victrola that is worn out. Victor talking machines have been in use for more than twenty years, and I have never seen one that is worn out. One dollar and fifty cents or less will renew any slightly worn parts."

Whitman Issues Attractive Cover

H. E. Whitman, manager of the Circle Talking Machine Shop, issued in April an attractive cover for the Victor monthly supplement. It was printed on blue paper with the title "Whitman's Magazine of Music." Two inside pages, one covering the front of the supplement and one covering the back, contained notes concerning new records, particularly those numbers which Mr. Whitman wished to feature. The inside of the back cover carried an advertisement for two neighboring stores, while the entire back page was devoted to giving the correct name and address of the Circle Shop.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Almabelle Ayres, of the Victor department of the Taylor Carpet Co., to Hurn Burnett, of L. S. Strauss & Co. The wedding will be June 12.

Good Demand for Pathé Records

A better feeling is apparent among Pathé dealers of the State, according to C. S. Dearborn, vice-president of the Mooney-Mueller-Ward Co., and manager of the Pathé department. He says the business in records has increased considerably in recent weeks, while machines continue to be sold in limited numbers. He says

To Hear Isham Jones Orchestra

Walter J. Baker, manager of the Brunswick Shop, has arranged to have the Isham Jones orchestra in Indianapolis May 16 for a dance to be held at the Athenaeum. The orchestra will play also before the Rotary Club on that day.

Mr. Baker completely mystified passersby recently when he developed a unique plan of entertaining with the Brunswick records. He placed in his show window a phonograph motor stripped of all covering and attachments except the turntable. People gazed at the appliance, saw it operating and heard the music, but to their amazement the music did not reach them from the window. Many of them passed the window time and again in efforts to locate the source of the sound. They failed to find the customary horn protruding from window or door. One man carefully looked over his automobile, which was parked at the curb, before driving away. He told Baker later that he thought, from the sound of the music, that someone might have hidden a phonograph in the car.

What Baker had done was to connect the tone arm of the stripped phonograph by wire with a magnavox in the basement. From there the music was wafted upward through holes bored in a manhole cover in the sidewalk.

Concentrates on Rachmaninoff

F. R. Follis, manager of the talking machine department of the L. S. Ayres & Co. store, is featuring Rachmaninoff records this month for the reason that he believes the Rachmaninoff Prelude scheduled to be issued by the Victor Co. in May will be one of the largest sellers in many months. He says that he believes his purchase of this number is three times as large as that of any other Indianapolis dealer.

Health Builders' Records Liked

Mr. Follis reports an exceptional April business in the Walter Camp records and the Wallace reducing records. The Walter Camp record, he says, is selling well throughout the State. The exercises in connection with the records were demonstrated three days in April in the tea room of the L. S. Ayres & Co. store.

Doing Well With Gennett Records

The Collins Talking Machine Co. is retailing the Gennett records in place of the Emerson. The company is also retailing the Meteor and Jewell talking machines in Indianapolis and is selling them at wholesale to agents in Indiana. The Gennett records are given as premiums to purchasers of these machines.

Takes on the Victor Line

The Pearson Piano Co., at Kokomo, has added Victor machines to its line of instruments. The store held a formal opening recently after the place of business had been rearranged and redecorated. The store was established by C. I. Shirley, manager, in 1916, when the entire stock was hauled to Kokomo on a trailer behind a Ford truck. Now it has a selling organization of fifteen people and branch stores at Tipton and Logansport.

A carload of Columbia talking machines has been placed on sale by the Silverstein Furniture Co. at Terre Haute.

Bad Weather Hurts Trade

The talking machine dealers generally in this city and in other parts of the State are reporting a slack business which is accounted for largely by the fact that there has been an unusual amount of rain and also cool weather. Country roads have been in such bad condition as to halt the trade of country merchants.

INSTITUTES BILLBOARD CAMPAIGN

One of the most aggressive Victor agencies in Illinois are the Cline-Vick Stores, which handle this line exclusively in their seven retail stores in that section of the State. At present the concern is boosting Victor products through the medium of billboard advertising.

ENJOY BRISK VOCALION BUSINESS

Appearance of Yerkes' S. S. Flotilla Orchestra in Troy Boosts Record Sales

TROY, N. Y., May 3.—The appearance here recently of the Yerkes' S. S. Flotilla Orchestra, exclusive Vocalion artists, greatly stimulated the sale of these records, according to Amos Russell, manager of the Vocalion phonograph department of Cluett & Sons, music dealers of this city. "Business is improving. We enjoyed the biggest business of any this year on April 22," states Mr. Russell. "Consistent advertising and aggressive selling methods are responsible for this very pleasing and agreeable condition of things."

Through the efforts of the California Federation of Music Clubs talking machine records have been placed in every county library in the State. The records are loaned to the rural schools in the same manner as books.

CAPITALIZE THE VANTAGE POINTS OF YOUR BUSINESS

Possibilities of Increased Record Sales Through Popularizing by "Plugging" Outlined by V. T. Stevens, Okeh Manager of Doerr, Andrews & Doerr—Value of Professional Co-operation

"There is only one way to make a success of any business," says V. T. Stevens, manager of the Okeh record department of the Northwestern Distributors, Doerr, Andrews & Doerr, Minneapolis, Minn., "that is to 'dig' in and capitalize on every possible point of vantage of your business.

"When I left the sheet music business to associate myself with the Okeh record business, I decided that there was just as great a possibility of popularizing records by what, in the terms of the sheet music world, is known as 'plugging,' as there was in the popular sheet music game itself. With that idea in mind I reorganized my Okeh force and am at the present introducing to the Okeh dealers as well as the public of the Northwest a 'live' wire service which from present indications looks as if it would be very successful.

"In the first place most of the record dealers are so busy with their own business of selling, that they do not take the time to acquaint themselves with what is happening in the musical circles of their own respective cities. Consequently we have added to our Okeh department an information bureau through which we collect in advance each week all the information concerning musical happenings for the coming week. For instance, many of the larger music publishers maintain branch offices in the larger cities. I have found the managers of these offices only too willing to co-operate with me by furnishing each Saturday a list of the popular numbers they are going to feature the following week, and where these numbers are to be used, theatres, popular gatherings, dance halls, etc.

"On Sunday when the new bills open in the local vaudeville houses an Okeh representative attends the performance and gathers the information as to what songs are being featured for the coming week. During the week Okeh representatives are to be found attending all the leading musical concerts and symphonies, while others drop into the dance halls and cafes and get reports on the numbers that are being used most and what numbers seem to be most popular.

"I have personally kept my department in touch with all the leading dance orchestra leaders of the Northwest, at all times extending them the courtesy of our reception rooms to hear the newest recordings of the Okeh dance artist and keeping them posted weeks in advance of the regular release of dance numbers, just what numbers are being used in the East. As a result every week the leaders co-operate with me by sending a post card telling me what are the five most popular 'call' numbers requested during the week. Furthermore, every principal sheet music counter in the cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul is furnishing me every week a list of its ten best sellers in sheet music for the week.

"With all this information on hand every Monday the Okeh department publishes the serial 'Live Tips on Okeh Records,' which incorporates all of the material mentioned, and in addition calls attention to the corresponding numbers of the Okeh records featuring the songs which are being used in the city. This pamphlet is mailed to all Okeh dealers, all record buyers who may desire same, as well as other record dealers throughout the Northwest, thus giving them the information which they have been too busy to collect for themselves, and giving the record salesmen in these houses a talking point on each record. Not only does this bring us new dealers, and wider distribution, but it has made hundreds of enthusiastic advertisers for Okeh records among professional people and people in the sheet music business.

"We have gone still one step further. If a song can be popularized by continually singing it before audiences in a theatre and throwing slides of the same on the screen, then a record of the same song, we believe, can likewise be popularized in the same way.

"With this idea in view I hired on my Okeh sales staff not only salesmen, but salesmen who could sing and understand music, then with the publishers' representatives this scheme was worked out. If there is any particular song which we, as Okeh distributors, decide to feature, my singing salesmen sing the song at the local theatres. At the conclusion of the song a slide is flashed on the screen worded somewhat as follows: 'The song just featured is (name of song) which is featured on the Okeh record number (record number), ask your dealer to play it for you.' In return for singing these songs by my own representative the publishers are co-operating with me to the extent that when their own singers appear on the stage they also carry Okeh slides and show them when they conclude their song. Thus as distributors we are helping create a popular demand for the Okeh record, which means more money in the cash registers of our dealers. These are only a few of the systems that are being advantageously worked out, and we have many more that will be utilized at a future date.

"In conclusion let me state that I credit most of my success so far to the fact that I am receiving the whole-hearted co-operation of professional people. This co-operation, coupled with good hard work and taking advantage of timely opportunities, is bound to bring any distributor or dealer results."

EDDIE CANTOR WITH COLUMBIA CO.

Popular Musical Comedy Star Will Make Columbia Records Exclusively—Well Known in Theatre Circles Everywhere—Now Starring in New Show, "Make It Snappy," in New York

The Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced recently that arrangements had been concluded whereby Eddie Cantor, famous musical comedy and vaudeville star, would record for the Columbia library exclusively. The acquisition of Mr. Cantor to the Columbia library is one of the most important announcements made by the Columbia Graphophone Co. in the past year, as Eddie Cantor has a following among theatregoers and vaudeville enthusiasts from coast to coast that is equaled by very few musical comedy stars of the present day.

Mr. Cantor's manner of singing popular numbers is unique and individual, and he has been responsible for the introduction of some of the greatest musical hits of recent years. At the present time he is the star of a new musical show entitled "Make It Snappy," which opened a fortnight ago at the Winter Garden and which gives every promise of being one of the most successful musical comedies of the year. Mr. Cantor made his first Columbia record a few days ago, and it will be released as quickly as possible.

Bridgeport Die & Machine Co. Tells of Progress—New Label in White and Gold

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., May 5.—The Puritan record, the new 50-cent record produced by the Bridgeport Die & Machine Co., of this city, is enjoying heavy demands. This company is restricting its sales to a territory east of the Ohio and north of the Potomac rivers, but is covering that territory very thoroughly. During the past month an impressive list of new dealers was placed upon the books of the company. Repeat orders are reported coming in in a substantial volume. A new label has recently been evolved for these records in white and gold upon black. In addition to the name a distinguishing mark is to be found in the head of a Puritan, which is incorporated into the design. The company is closely pursuing its policy of releasing new hits weekly and is making energetic plans for the future.

A recent census among the cadets at the Kemper Military School, Boonville, Mo., established the fact that one out of each eight students was the possessor of a talking machine.

SYSTEMATIC MERCHANDISING OF ALL RADIO EQUIPMENT

This Interesting Subject Discussed at Radio Conference of National Retail Dry Goods Association, Held Recently in New York and Attended by Representatives of 500 Department Stores

At the Radio Conference held in New York recently by the National Retail Dry Goods Association those in attendance represented 500 department stores located chiefly in the eastern part of the United States and doing a yearly volume of business in department store lines amounting to one and one-half billion dollars.

The conference was in session several hours, discussing the systematic merchandising of all radio equipment, and, before adjournment, a committee of five, representing geographical divisions of the United States, was appointed to continue investigation and report. The committee is composed of F. W. Tully, of R. H. White Co., Boston, chairman, for the New England division; C. S. Hammond, of Frederick Loeser, Brooklyn, for the North Atlantic Seaboard; Joseph Fisher, of Kirby, Block & Fisher, resident buyers, New York City, for the South; Joseph V. Ryan, of the J. L. Hudson Co., Detroit, for the Middle West, and Alfred Fantl, resident buyer, New York City, for the West.

The discussion covered very thoroughly all possibilities of radio development, more especially under its merchandising aspects. The general feeling was that the new popular science presents wonderful business opportunities, although all were fully informed as to the difficulties of supply and demand prevailing at present; that the business of supplying radio equipment must undergo radical changes; that the existing enormous demand may slacken and, again, that the entrance of new producing concerns may create a surplus of supply.

Every opinion expressed emphasized the consideration that the sale of all radio material must be essentially a service-giving business and that, where some receiving sets may be of a standard qualified to satisfy every demand on the part of the public, others may not give the satisfaction which the stores participating in the conference must always provide, whatever the merchandise. It was agreed that any store handling radio merchandise must be prepared to know the merchandise, and stand behind it when sold.

David Sarnoff, general manager, and Elmer E. Boucher, sales manager, of the Radio Corporation of America, were invited, toward the close of the conference, to explain the difficulties under which the Radio Corporation is working at present.

After adjournment, Lew Hahn, the managing director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, who had presided, remarked that radio is a merchandising undertaking and that the Association does not merchandise. It may be necessary, he added, to organize, outside of the Association, a separate corporation which can take charge of the general merchandising aspects in the interests of the public as well as of merchants.

The Investigating Committee of the Radio Conference called by the National Retail Dry Goods Association met later at the offices of the Association. The Committee first turned its attention to questions touching the quality and efficiency of radio apparatus and the possibility of service in its distribution.

The Investigating Committee recognized that because the radio telephone is so recent a development and because the growth of the business has inflamed the imagination of manufacturers and public alike there is a serious danger to the good will of stores handling radio goods. A well-planned and developed radio receiving set placed in the hands of the amateur user at a reasonable price should make for good will for manufacturer and retailer alike, but it is evident that much of the radio merchandise offered for sale is of the cheapest and flimsiest quality. Stores dealing in such merchandise must expect the inevitable crop of dissatisfactions likely to spring up in the wake of such business.

As its first recommendation the Investigating Committee adopted a resolution, "That all responsible manufacturers be requested to standardize the efficiency of their various receiving sets and plainly mark on each instrument the receiving radius under average atmospheric conditions."

Such a step taken by reputable manufacturers, it is believed, will have the effect of making the amateur purchaser of a radio set understand what can be expected of the particular type of instrument that he buys. Such action should improve the efficiency of all such instruments.

The Investigating Committee believes that all efforts possible should be put forth to conserve the confidence of the public in the radio telephone at this time while the demand is still new in order that the business may develop steadily without serious set-back.

It is further reported that of the seventy-one licensed radio broadcasting stations in the United States, seven are operated by department stores. Three of these stores are located in Philadelphia, and one each in New York, Newark, St. Louis, and Los Angeles. Numerous other stores throughout the country have applied for licenses for broadcasting. Sales of radio apparatus by many of the large department stores now amount to as much as $5,000 to $6,000 weekly, and the manufacturers are far behind in filling their orders.

FEDERAL SUPERVISION OF RADIO IS SUGGESTED

Supervising Board of Twelve, Under Secretary Hoover, Is Planned as Result of Conference—Amateur Wave Length 275—Other Moves

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 9.—Recommendations providing for virtual Federal control of all wireless telephones in the country have been presented to Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

The recommendations, which are to be submitted to Congress, provide for distribution of wave lengths, creation of a supervising board of twelve men, under Secretary Hoover, and full authority over Government radiophones.

These are the final recommendations of the Government radio conference held here several weeks ago to devise ways and means of regulating wireless traffic.

Hoover Supreme Chief

The plan makes Secretary Hoover supreme chief of "ether cops," with full authority to govern the development of the wireless phone as he sees fit.

The general allocation of wave lengths provides:

Transoceanic service, 6,000 meters; fixed radio telephony, non-exclusive, 3,300; mobile service, non-exclusive, 2,650; Government broadcasting, 2,050; aircraft, 1,550; city and State public safety broadcasting, exclusive, 285; amateur, 275.

When transoceanic service is begun the Secretary of Commerce will be empowered to communicate with other nations in an effort to set the wave length between 5,000 and 6,000 meters to avoid interference.

Present regulations regarding experimental stations are to remain in effect. The reason the amateur wave length was set so low was because "it was felt waves longer than 275 meters should be reserved for the needs of broadcasting services greatly desired by a large portion of the public," the report stated.

Distributing Power Provisions

In distributing power provisions the conference set the following average values:

Government broadcasting stations, 600 (land) miles.

Public broadcasting stations, 250 miles.

Private and toll broadcasting stations, fifty miles.

The report also contained the same provisions regarding government of amateurs as the preliminary provisions. It "established the status of the amateur by law" and recommended that radio inspectors be appointed for various districts throughout the country to control amateurs. The inspector himself would be an amateur who would work without remuneration.

Secretary Hoover would be assisted in his government of wireless telephony by a special commission appointed by the President, to consist of not more than twelve men, six of whom would be Government representatives and six civilians.

TALKING MACHINE MEN, INC., HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Many Prominent Grand Opera and Musical Comedy Stars Entertain New York Talking Machine Dealers at Annual Banquet Held at the Hotel Pennsylvania—Affair Unusually Successful

The annual banquet and entertainment of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., held at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Thursday evening, April 20, proved by long odds to be the most successful affair in the history of that organization, for there was provided through the courtesy of the leading talking machine companies a program that could not have been duplicated under any other conditions for many thousands of dollars.

There were present grand opera and musical comedy stars, instrumentalists of renown and the majority of the popular dance orchestras of the city, with the result that there was a continuous round of music from before eight o'clock until well after midnight. Due to the efforts of the entertainment committee the affair ran off like clockwork, and President Kurtz of the Association saw to it personally that the artists received the proper attention, and that there was no hitch in the proceedings.

To Louis James fell the honor of starting the program with several well-rendered songs. Next came John Charles Thomas, popular light opera baritone and Vocalion artist, who offered several selections amid much enthusiasm. Then in order came Virginia Burt, soprano; Duci de Kerekjarto, prominent violinist; Marie Sundelius, Metropolitan Opera soprano; Barbara Maurel, Elsie Baker, Delyle Alda, from the Brunswick laboratories; Frank Crummit, the Brock Sisters, from "The Music Box Revue"; Marguerite Young, and a number of others.

At intervals during the evening the popular orchestras paid visits to the Pennsylvania ballroom and provided music for those who craved the pleasures of dancing. First there came Ray Miller and his Melody Boys, and then in rapid succession Yerke's S. S. Flotilla Orchestra, Eddie Elkins and his Knickerbocker Grille Orchestra, Clyde Doerr's Club Royal Orchestra, Paul Whiteman's Romance of Rhythm Orchestra, Bennie Krueger's Orchestra, and other popular organizations that served to keep up an almost constant flow of melody. In addition to playing in the orchestra Zez Confrey played as a solo his own composition, "Kitten on the Keys," a selection that brought forth a brilliant display of pianistic ability.

The social success of the evening was also pronounced, for the gathering was most representative of the local trade. A great number of the manufacturing companies were represented, as were the jobbing houses and the leading dealers of New York and vicinity. The companies who made the program possible were the Aeolian Co., the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Columbia Graphophone Co., General Phonograph Corp. and the Victor Talking Machine Co.

Arrangements had been made whereby the employes of members of the Association who did not attend the dinner proper could arrive at a later hour and enjoy a part of the program and the dancing, and the result was that many took advantage of the opportunity.

There were many factors tending to enliven the evening, including the ability of many of the guests to go back to the pre-Volstead era and wet their whistles with something just a little bit stronger than the hotel water. Jimmie Davin also pulled off one of his characteristic stunts, arriving in the make-up of an Indian chief and keeping the guests guessing until his mask was pulled off.

The committee in charge of the affair, which is deserving of full credit for its efforts, consisted of Sol. Lazarus, chairman; C. Abelowitz, Max Berlow, E. G. Brown, E. G. Evans, A. Galuchie, W. M. Gibbons, Otto Goldsmith, E. Leins, C. B. Riddle and L. R. Yeager.

COLUMBIA CREDIT PLAN ANNOUNCED

Creditors' Committee of Columbia Graphophone Mfg. Co. Arrange for Indebtedness to Be Frozen for Three Years—Plan Approved

The Columbia Graphophone Mfg. Co. creditors' committees have worked out a plan under which its indebtedness will be frozen from April 1, 1922, to August 1, 1925, after deduction of an amount not in excess of aggregate bank deposit September 15, 1921. The plan has been approved by the banking creditors, the merchandise and the supply creditors, it was said this week. The debt is about $20,000,000 and interest and principal, if due, will be deferred for three years.

The plan calls for adjustment of interest on all indebtedness to April 1 of this year. Provision is made for the appointment of a committee to represent the debt, which will be known as the readjustment committee and composed of M. M. Buckner, Benjamin Joy, J. C. Neff, William C. Dickerman and G. Herrvan Kinnicut.

MISS DELEATH AS A COMPOSER

Popular Okeh Artist Composer of "Say It By Radio"—Has Several Hits to Her Credit

Miss Vaughn De Leath, well-known contralto and exclusive Okeh artist, has just composed a new selection entitled "Say It by Radio." At the recent Brooklyn radio show Miss De Leath's new song was given an enthusiastic reception, and she was obliged to sing the chorus many times over in response to the requests for encores. Miss De Leath's success as a composer is beginning to rival her popularity as a singer, and one of her new numbers, "New Orleans," has every indication of being one of the leading hits of the day. She is co-operating with Okeh dealers in every possible way, and her records are meeting with a ready sale.

The Phonograph with the "Golden Voice" HARPONOLA

To the Man Who Dared: SUCCESS

We knew of a phonograph dealer on a side street in a great city. By aggressive salesmanship, by real service and courtesy to his customers, he built up a business that far outdistanced the factory branch store on the busiest street of the same city.

The "little" dealer claimed the quantity discounts and didn't get them.

The factory believed that he dare not cut loose from the name and the fame of the machine he sold. But he did cut loose and he built even greater sales for a comparatively unknown machine. He had greater profits to spur him on.

He showed that a good machine (though little known) when coupled with real service selling methods means a still greater success.

HARROLD SINGS AT DITSON'S

Noted Metropolitan Opera Tenor and Victor Artist Renders Impressive and Interesting Program at Informal Recital for the Benefit of Local Victor Retailers—Enjoyable Affair

The most successful recital of the series being given by Chas. H. Ditson & Co., with prominent record artists as the attraction, was that given on Friday afternoon, April 21, when Orville

Orville Harrold

Harrold, prominent American tenor and Metropolitan Grand Opera star, appeared and sang close to a dozen numbers, some of them recorded and some not recorded. It is seldom that an artist is as generous at an informal recital as was Mr. Harrold on this particular occasion and the representative gathering of dealers and their assistants who made up the audience were thoroughly appreciative of the spirit shown.

Mr. Harrold opened his program with the singing of Rudolph's Narrative from "La Boheme," reaching the high C called for with an ease that inspired enthusiasm. Next he sang Herbert's "I'm Falling in Love With Someone," which he has recorded for Victor and which will be released later, and in this he reached a tone or two higher than high C, explaining that it was one of the highest notes yet recorded on a record.

For his third number Mr. Harrold selected the sacred song, "The Living God," and sang it most impressively and followed it with "Values" (Another Hour With Thee), which has been most successful as a record. He then favored the audience with a number of light Irish melodies, including "Sweet Kitty Malone" and "Molly Brannigan," and displayed a deep sympathy with the music of the Emerald Isle. As his last number Mr. Harrold sang "The Great Awakening," a sacred number of great power, which, he stated, would probably be offered in record form some time in the future.

The artist drew close to his audience at the outset and made an impression upon the dealers that will not soon be eradicated. He arranged to send an autographed photograph to all those desiring one and at the close of his program was, with Ditson & Co., accorded a rising vote of thanks, at the suggestion of Sol. Lazarus.

During the course of the program Miss Anna Pinto, a seventeen-year-old harpist, who exhibits marvelous control over that difficult instrument and is heralded as one of the coming harp virtuosi, played several selections that won prompt and enthusiastic applause.

There is no question regarding the effect of recitals such as that by Mr. Harrold in bringing together the dealers and the artists, and Chas. H. Ditson & Co. have been accorded full measure of credit for arranging the interesting series of recitals and bringing to them artists of such recognized standing. P. E. W. Carlson, manager of the wholesale Victor department of Ditson & Co., states that some interesting features along the same lines are scheduled for the near future.

The previous week Royal Dadmun, popular baritone and a recent addition to the Victor Co. list of artists, gave an informal song recital in the music parlors of Chas. H. Ditson & Co., under the auspices of E. W. Carlson, manager of the wholesale Victor department of that company.

WILSON CO. BUYS BUSINESS

STEVENS POINT, Wis., May 4.—The Wilson Music House has purchased the music department of the Boston Furniture Co., here. This department at present is devoted entirely to the Victor line of talking machines and records, but the Wilson Co., in addition to enlarging the machine and record stock, will install the Gulbransen and Vose lines of pianos and, later, a complete stock of sheet music and musical instruments. George M. Farrin is manager.

A phonograph using records that produce buzzing sounds in a quickly learned code has been invented in Austria to enable blind persons to read.

WHY SALES EFFORTS ARE HINDERED

Pointed Question and Pointed Answer on the Analyzation of Conditions

In reply to the salesman's tale of woe that it was practically impossible to make sales, due to the housing shortage, unemployment, high prices, etc., the sales manager asked: "Do you know how many people are working and receiving good incomes; how many people live in nice homes and what the ratio of salaries and prices is to pre-war days?" The salesman's answer was no. This is indicative of the twisted outlook on life and conditions which possess the minds of many who could bolster up their courage by looking at conditions as they really are. After all, things could be worse.

BRITISH INDIA INCREASES DUTIES

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—Ad valorem duties on products imported into British India have been increased under a new tariff bill, according to information just made public by the Department of Commerce here. Under the new schedule the duty on musical instruments has been increased to thirty per cent ad valorem.

NEW COLUMBIA CATALOG

Complete Listing of Columbia Records Contained in Attractive Catalog Just Issued—Listings
Arranged in Most Efficient Manner

The Columbia Graphophone Co. has just issued its 1922 record catalog containing a complete list of Columbia records issued up to and including December 31, 1921. This catalog represents a material improvement over all previous editions, not only typographically, but in arrangement and lay-out.

The new catalog is divided into six parts, as follows: Part 1, alphabetical list of artists making

Cover of New Columbia Catalog

Columbia records; Part 2, a complete list of Columbia records, arranged alphabetically as to title of selection and name of artist; Part 3, classified list of specially-selected Columbia records; Part 4, educational records for school and home; Part 5, gems and novelties from Columbia catalogs of foreign language records; Part 6, tinted section containing a list of Columbia concert and operatic stars and their recordings.

Each section is compiled with the one idea of giving the Columbia dealer and his customers maximum convenience in finding any desired record. If the Columbia record catalog is used properly by the dealer it can undoubtedly act as a sales stimulant, for every possible means has been provided to offer record customers timely suggestions as to various classes of records.

Typographically the new Columbia catalog is beyond all criticism, as every detail represents the most advanced and successful ideas in catalog arrangement. A great many illustrations are used in the catalog to relieve the monotony of the text, and these illustrations featuring Columbia artists are noteworthy for their attractiveness. In fact, the 1922 Columbia catalog as a whole is a distinct tribute to the efforts of the Columbia advertising department to provide dealers with a publication that can be used profitably as a merchandising help.

LIMA MUSIC HOUSE TO EXPAND

B. S. Porter & Son Incorporate and Arrange for Removal to Larger Quarters

LIMA, O., May 2.—The old established house of B. S. Porter & Son, this city, has been incorporated and in future will be known as the B. S. Porter Son Co. It is not only one of the oldest music stores in Ohio, but is also one of the largest, and B. S. Porter, founder of the business, is well known throughout the trade in the Middle West.

J. E. Porter, the present head of the business, has many plans for expansion under way, the most important being those looking to the removal of the business from the present location on Main street to quarters in the company's own building, further uptown, known as the Porter Block.

This change will give them one of the finest music stores in this section of the State and will take care of the needs of the business. In addition to the Lima store, others at Findlay, St. Marys and Carey, O., are operated by this company. Besides Victrolas, pianos and players, music rolls, string and band instruments, and a complete assortment of supplies are carried, making, in all, a well-appointed general music house.

Another B. S. Porter Son Co. expansion is that of the Findlay, O., store, which will move within the next thirty days to a fine, new location at 513 South Main street. Negotiations have just been completed by the house for a ten years' lease on the future home of the business. This change will put the house of Porter in the foremost rank among music stores of the city and the entire section. The new equipment will be modern throughout and the decorations most pleasing, completing a very attractive shop. The new location is ideal for a music house.

C. O'Harrow, general manager of this branch store, and C. L. Ritter, in charge of the Victrola department of the store, are both exceedingly enthusiastic about the new location and its appointments. They have in formation merchandising plans in keeping with the aggressive expansion program.

Dwight Welding has joined the sales force of the Lima store.

S. S. Kemp and Porter Lamb, of Scottsville, Ky., have opened a music store in the Mulligan Building. Talking machines and pianos are handled.

VICTROLA HELPS ENGLISH STUDY

Records by Sothern and Marlowe Featured in Johnston City, Ill., High School

Fay Luyster, manager of the talking machine department of the Cline-Vick Stores, in Illinois, recently placed a Victrola in the room of the English class in the Johnston City High School, and gave a demonstration of the value of the machine as an aid in English study through the medium of the records made by E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe for the Victor. Mark Antony's oration made a particularly strong impression on both teachers and students. It stressed the educational value of these records, which aroused considerable interest.

FORM RADIO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The National Radio Chamber of Commerce has been formed of leading and responsible houses in this line and a dinner meeting was held at Delmonico's recently to perfect the plans of organization. About fifteen concerns, so far, are members of the Association, among which are the De Forest Telephone Co., the Freed, Eisemann Radio Corp., the Jewett Co., the Home Radio Co., Dubilier Condenser Co. and the F. A. Andrea Telephone and Telegraph Co. In opening the membership to all established and responsible companies it is the purpose of the organizers to prevent, as far as possible, losses to the public through investment in unsubstantial enterprises, of which there are so many. It was pointed out yesterday by one of the tentative officers of the organization that the radio craze has caused many ex-telegraphers to enter the business.

Why discriminating buyers choose the Widdicomb

PEOPLE of taste and refinement select the Widdicomb as their phonograph for two reasons:

First—Because of its unusual tonal qualities and its surpassingly faithful reproduction of every subtle mood and varied expression of the artist, whether vocal or instrumental.

Every note of the chromatic scale from the high, clear tones of the upper register to the deep, rich bass notes, is given just the proper emphasis, without metallic harshness or “blasting.”

Second—Because the Widdicomb is an exquisite article of period furniture, fitted to take its place harmoniously—really to “belong”—among the furnishings of the most tastefully appointed home.

Into Widdicomb cabinets is built the experience of three generations of master craftsmanship in the building of fine furniture.

To a few merchants who are really interested in attracting a discriminating class of trade, the Widdicomb franchise offers a real opportunity to stimulate sales and to increase prestige.

A DEPARTMENT DEVOTED TO PROMOTING RETAIL SALES

Suggestions That Will Stimulate Sales

A WESTERN talking machine merchant popularized his store. He got columns of free publicity in the local papers and boosted his sales totals to double previous figures by giving free dancing lessons two evenings a week in the recital hall of his store, to children between the ages of five and twelve. An ad was inserted, naming a day for registration. Between 2 and 5 P. M. more than 200 were signed up, and the books were closed. In all, 500 more children were disappointed, showing the strength of the idea. Of course, the talking machine sold by this dealer supplied all the music for the dancing sessions, and the parents and relatives who brought the children had plenty of time to become acquainted with its merits. Care was taken to let no commercialism interfere with the freedom of the dancing lessons. No effort was made to advertise or sell anything at that time; but countless sales grew out of the proposition to the children's parents and friends. At the end of six weeks a matinee exhibition of dancing was given in a local theatre, the entire performance being managed and paid for by the parents of the children taking part. Prices ranged from 15c. for the gallery and 50c. for box seats. The dealer's talking machine, located in the orchestra pit, could be heard distinctly in all parts of the theatre, and the 200 children danced twenty-five numbers to its music. Before the show these 200 children canvassed the town, selling tickets. Each ticket bore the dealer's name and the name of his talking machine. The dancing lessons were managed by two women on the merchant's sales staff. At the end of the season, after all expenses were paid, there was $75 in the bank with which to start the next dance.

THERE are many buyers who have secured table machines and, after accumulating a library of records, have found that they need a cabinet to keep them in. Put four or five of these cabinets on display, according to the size of your window, including both walnut and mahogany finishes and various sizes. On the top of each cabinet place a sign which reads, "This Model Is for Smallest Size Table Machines. Special Price, $00 During Display." On your cabinets for larger machines your card should be altered to correspond. There is good money to be made from accessories. Many dealers are missing a bet by failing to see this chance for extra business. Put a table or glass showcase near your door where everyone will see it coming in or out. Display the various kinds of needles; motor oil; polish for the cabinet; automatic repeaters, which play the record over again; toy figures which dance on the record; electric motor attachments; albums, etc. Quote the prices on these now and then in your ads and on the price tags. Your sign over the display may read

"Accessories That Add to Your Talking Machine"

"HERE COMES THE BRIDE"—for May is a popular month of weddings. For a window suggesting the talking machine as a wedding gift you will need plenty of six-inch white silk ribbon. Arrange various models of talking machines in a semicircle. In the center place a small table or a box, entirely covered with white to look like a raised platform. On this is a sign reading, "The Gift Supreme for the Bride—A ———." Above this hang a large bell of white paper, and from the bell run streamers of the white ribbon to each machine in the window. On the platform at the foot of your sign place a bouquet of imitation orchids, lilies of the valley, annunciation lilies and orange blossoms. A few sprays of the flowers can also be placed on each machine. In the foreground place records of wedding marches and anthems.

AS soon as you have sold a machine and received the signed contract, show your customer how to take care of it. This little attention on your part makes an excellent impression. Say, "Now, before you go, Mrs. Brown, let me explain the proper care of your instrument." Then show how to lift the turntable and expose the motor. Show where it should be oiled, and tell how often. Show how to take the sound box off and put it on. Tell her not to leave the spring tightly wound but to let it run down when it is not in use. The customer goes away with a pleasant impression of your service, and you may save a needless repair trip later on. This bit of service seems so obvious as to need no mention, but it would surprise you to know how few sale men ever think of carrying it out. Most manufacturers supply a "Book of Instructions" with every machine, but nine out of ten people never open it. Demonstrate the mechanical features with your own hands—then the customers will understand, and, what is most important, you get the credit.

NATURALLY, you are going after all the vacation business you can get in small machines. An excellent way to develop prospects is to watch the "Personal Mention" columns of your local dailies. Whenever you see a paragraph informing the world that "Mrs. Archibald W. Smith-Brown is preparing to leave for Idlewild," send a hand-typed letter to Mrs. Smith-Brown, bringing to her attention the necessity of a talking machine to take with her.

THERE is no question about the value of soliciting suggestions from your own sales organization, but the best method of doing this is a matter of debate. A method which has proven to be practical and successful is to designate every Monday as "Letter Day." On that day every member of the organization is required to present to you a letter embodying any suggestions they may have for improvements in their own department or any other matters they want to bring to your attention. Fixing Monday as the day gives the employees Sunday in which to think over and prepare their letters. A close spirit of co-operation and many useful ideas will result from the adoption of this plan. This scheme is more useful in large organizations than in very small ones, of course.

* * *

DECORATION Day falls on Tuesday, May 30. In the center of your window set a low platform about fifteen inches above the floor and cover this with green crepe paper or green grass. On this platform place any war relics which you can procure from friends or relatives who took part in the great world war. Metal helmets, weapons and similar souvenirs are what you want. Above this platform place a large wreath of leaves. This should be not less than twenty-five inches in diameter. It can be procured from any florist at a reasonable cost. At the bottom of the wreath tie a large bow of six-inch red-white-and-blue ribbon. Between the wreath and the platform below arrange some flowers. On the floor at each side of the platform place several patriotic records, with a card in each one, giving its title. Through the hole in the center of each record run a strand of one-inch red-white-and-blue ribbon, and cut the end of this ribbon in a notch. Any florist can supply you with this ribbon in various widths. On each side of your center arrangement place a large talking machine and tie a red-white-and-blue ribbon on the front of each machine. If you wish to carry your display further procure photographs of Lincoln and General Grant in uniform, McKinley with Roosevelt and Wilson with General Pershing in uniform. These three groups include the Presidents and leading military figures of the last three wars. Arrange them in three pairs and under each pair set the date—1865, 1898 and 1918. In the center of your window, just at the base of your platform, place a gold sign lettered in black—"In Memoriam."

* * *

NEAR the front of your record department place a small blackboard, about two feet by three feet. On this board write in chalk new announcements from day to day, such as "Just received—'Georgia Rose,'" or "Special for to-day—the Model 10—at $00 monthly." A hundred uses will present themselves for such chalk talks, and the blackboard with the message written in chalk gives an impression of urgency and "newness," which is lacking in a printed sign.

MOST dealers put bands of awning material over the lower portion of their windows as sun shields during a portion of the day. This protects the objects displayed, but cuts off the view of your windows. If you letter on this sun shield the words, "Look Over the Top," you'll be surprised how many people will stop and inspect your display, in spite of the obstruction.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Mr. Gordon will publish on this page any good ideas submitted by you for the benefit of the trade, and will also answer any questions you ask him concerning merchandising problems. Use this department as much as you like. It is intended to serve you—to be a forum for the discussion and exchange of ideas of interest.

CHARLES EDISON DISCUSSES RADIO

Furnishes Reasons Why the Phonograph Trade Should Not Be Seriously Harmed by Growth of Demand for Radio—Interesting Analysis

The many members of the trade who are more or less in a quandary regarding the radio proposition will doubtless be interested in the views of Charles Edison, chairman of the board of directors of Thos. A. Edison, Inc. It is especially important, inasmuch as this company occupies a unique position in its relation to the radio field, being interested in the manufacture of phonographs, in batteries and in electrical progress generally. When asked by The Talking Machine World to express his personal opinion regarding what the attitude of the regular phonograph dealers should be toward radio and its bearing upon the talking machine industry he said:

"It is impossible to answer your inquiry without indulging in a certain amount of speculation on the future relations of the phonograph with the wireless telephone. To-day the wireless telephone is encroaching on the phonograph sales field, simply because it is a novelty with a decidedly romantic appeal to the imagination. When it has become as much of a commonplace as the electric light, the ordinary telephone or the telegraph it will find a sphere of usefulness which will not conflict with the phonograph. It seems to me that news is the wireless telephone's real function. I can readily conceive that a day will come when the debates at such a conference as that now taking place at Genoa will be listened to by millions instead of hundreds.

"The phonograph's function is to give people music. Instead of giving them any music at any time it gives them the music they want when they want it. It will exist as amicably beside the wireless telephone as it does beside the piano.

"Retail phonograph dealers are free, white and twenty-one. There is nothing in the world to prevent them from taking on wireless telephones if they wish to. In some small communities it may be an excellent expedient. I can't help feeling, however, that they'll do better if they stick to their own line."

SALES VOLUME IS SATISFACTORY

GERMAN RECORD CONCERNS ENJOINED

Anglo-German Mixed Arbitral Tribunal Issues Injunction Forbidding Export Out of Germany of Records Pressed From Matrices Originating With Victor or Gramophone Companies

The following interlocutory injunction was recently handed down by the Anglo-German Mixed Arbitral Tribunal at London in the suit of the Gramophone Co., Ltd., against the Deutsche Grammophon A. G. and the Polyphonwerke A. G. to enjoin the German companies from exporting out of Germany records pressed from matrices originating with the Victor Talking Machine Co. and the Gramophone Co., and in the possession of the German company at the outbreak of the war. The Polyphonwerke had secured these matrices by an alleged sale by the German Government during the war.

The order of the Tribunal was as follows: "The Tribunal orders that the respondents, their servants, agents and companies controlled by them, be restrained until further order from using, or permitting to be used, and from offering for sale, selling or permitting to be sold, gramophone records pressed directly or indirectly from matrices in the custody of the first-named respondents at the outbreak of war, except after giving due information to the buyers and users that the records are for use within German territory only."

DISCUSS AUSTRALIAN ROYALTIES

Louis Sterling in New York to Make Satisfactory Arrangements With Music Publishers

Louis S. Sterling, of the Columbia Gramophone Co., Ltd., London, Eng., recently arrived in the United States. Early this month he attended a meeting of the board of governors of the Music Publishers' Protective Association, the purpose of which was to arrange some satisfactory form of paying mechanical royalties on records manufactured in England and distributed in Australia.

Owing to the decision of the highest court of Australia, handed down early this year, Australian publishers who have obtained the distribution rights for American compositions in their country are entitled to the mechanical royalties accruing on the records of such works as are manufactured in England and sold in Australia. Thus the talking machine record manufacturer of England who pays the American publisher for the manufacture of records sold in England and in Australia must again, according to the decision, pay the Australian owner of the copyright.

It is thought that an arrangement can be arrived at confining the payment of royalties to one source.

NECESSITIES OF GOOD RETAILING

A leader, a general, an all-around business man.

A close tab on stock.

A proprietor who not only says "Go!" to his clerks, but who can stir up the dust with the best of them.

A square deal that will make folks come 'round like bees to honey.

A cold shoulder for mis-statement.

A human interest in the welfare of clerks—interest in clerks begets clerkly interest in sales.

A place for everything and everything in its place. Disorder means loss of time, loss of sales, loss of money. Hear the cash register groan, "Order is heaven's first law."

A stock of all-round knowledge to fit your stock of goods.

The talking machine department of the M. O'Neil Co., of Akron, Ohio, which has just closed its fiscal year, reports that a better business was enjoyed than during any other year in the history of this enterprising company.

Developing Prospects and Sales in Summer

Written for The World by CHARLES OLIVE

The Music Store, Willmar, Minn., has, by a little extra effort, almost doubled its sales of talking machines. The company has the agency for the Edison, Victor and Columbia lines, and is doing a good business. Last Summer the firm had a man on the road to boost the business, which was so successful that the plan will be continued the coming Summer. He had a small Ford truck and carried a talking machine and some records with him, and wherever he found a person who was in the market for a machine, either in town or outside, he placed one in the home for a few days' free trial. In this way many sales were made that otherwise would never have materialized.

One novel method of attracting buyers employed by this firm is that of playing a talking machine outdoors. Last Summer on Saturday evenings, and on days when something special was going on in town, a Victor with a large horn was placed in the truck outside the store and a man kept the machine going, playing all kinds of new records, and taking care of people who became interested. The machine, being loud, could be heard for blocks away, and drew all kinds of listeners. The demonstrator had a supply of booklets and other advertising matter on hand which he distributed to interested persons in the audience. If there were any who contemplated purchasing a machine at some future date he took down their names and addresses in a book, so that the prospective buyers could be followed up later. During county fair week and the Fourth of July celebrations a machine was played on the roof of the building, and because of its elevation, the machine was heard by all the crowds. A large sign described the purpose of the playing, and directed interested persons to see the man at the door. This man stood ready to take care of any customers who wanted to buy records or wished to see different models and makes of machines. All visitors were given the impression that they could buy anything in the music line at The Music Store, and the prices and the service would be the very best. By the method described, a large list of prospective buyers was obtained, and frequent sales were made to these later.

TRAIN PULLMAN PORTERS TO SING

Nine Thousand Pullman Porters to Be Organized in the Quarters for Entertainment of Passengers—Will Break Monotony of Journeys

CHICAGO, ILL., May 6.—According to announcement made by the Pullman Company, the 9,000 porters on Pullman cars are to be given musical training and organized into quartets and glee clubs for the edification of those who grow weary of the rail journeys about the country.

The company has divided the country into eight zones and there will be a chorus organized for each zone. Rehearsals have been conducted for some time and the first public try-out of the plan was made last week when porter quartets were provided for the three special trains from Chicago to the Conclave of the Knights Templar in New Orleans.

Major N. Clark Smith, well-known negro musician and teacher, head of the music department of Tuskegee Institute, and for many years leader of the Eighth Illinois Regiment Band, has been retained by the Pullman Company to train the porters. Major Smith when a boy worked for Lyon & Healy, where the late P. J. Healy was attracted by his musical talent, and provided for his tuition at the Chicago Musical College.

MOVES HIS STOCK BY ADVERTISING

ATLANTA, GA., May 8.—The Winget Jewelry Co., of Gastonia, N. C., Columbia dealer, recently featured the latest Columbia advertising campaign, and as a result practically exhausted its stock on hand in addition to a special shipment which was incidental to the campaign. In a letter to the Columbia wholesale branch in this city, this dealer stated that the advertising had enabled it to close many prospects which had been pending for several months, and in addition had provided a number of new prospects with valuable sales possibilities.

NEW SONORA DISPLAY CARD

Attractive Card Now Ready for Sonora Dealers
—Coloring Is Unusually Effective

A new Sonora display card is now being sent out by the Sonora advertising department to dealers and distributors. The accompanying illustration will give some idea of the attractiveness of this card, although, of course, the coloring cannot be reproduced. The design of the bell is a reduced facsimile of that used in the large bell poster, which has proved so popular with the dealers. The background is a rich marine blue and the word Sonora in bright yellow, with the other lettering in green and red, makes the card unusually effective.

A feature of this new card is the extra heavy cardboard upon which it is mounted. This not only makes the card very durable and does away with the need of a frame, but insures its standing and remaining perfectly flat under all conditions. The dimensions of the sign are nine inches by sixteen inches.

INDIANA CONCERN CHARTERED

The Latona Talking Machine Co., of Evansville, Ind., was recently granted a charter of incorporation under the laws of that State, with capital consisting of $50,000 of preferred stock.

Caruso painstakingly studied talking machine records of his songs to find out how he could improve his work, says Forbes Magazine. Can you afford to be less painstaking in trying to improve your work?

Expect disappointments, but scorn defeat.

Dealers Optimistic — Farmers Are Buying—Enterprise of Lion Store—News From Many Points

TOLEDO, O., May 4.—There is widespread optimism in talking machine circles regarding the business outlook. This is substantiated by the general improvement in the local employment situation, particularly in the automotive industry.

The Toledo Talking Machine Co., according to Manager Chas. H. Womeldorff, is experiencing a stronger demand for Victrolas from outside districts. The farmer in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana is again taking heart and investing in talking machines. Many dealers are going direct to him with Victrolas mounted upon delivery trucks and are putting instruments into the farm house upon very liberal terms. In some quarters it is predicted that with the farmer coming into full buying power this Fall the demand for talking machines will exceed the supply.

J. J. Davin, Secretary of the Reincke-Ellis Co., Chicago advertising specialists, talked to local Victor dealers at the display rooms of the Toledo Talking Machine Co. upon Victrola advertising plans in formation. Several of the plans submitted were adopted by the local merchants.

Easter trade at the LaSalle & Koch, Co.'s Victrola department, according to Manager R. O. Danforth, showed conclusively that the demand for festive music is sufficiently strong to make it worth while for merchants to cater to the public fancy on all special occasions.

Mr. Danforth has but recently come to the LaSalle & Koch department from the Shepard Stores, Boston, where he was located for some years.

At Grubb's Music Shoppe a new hit is featured each week. It is found profitable in putting over these selections to hitch records, rolls and sheet music together.

Doing things in a different manner, instead of waiting for customers to come to the store, is proving a winner at the Lion Store. A. J. Pete, manager of the Victrola department, states that the inserting of ads written in editorial form into the large store advertisements has resulted in fine returns. For these small human interest stories out of the ordinary topics are selected.

If the strains of a bewitching waltz have been floating on the air from the direction of your neighbor's house—and you've been wondering what it is—then you've been among the discoverers of a new Mexican waltz played by Max Dolin's Mexican Orchestra—a new Victor record. A few music lovers found it among the foreign selections—and they've been telling so many friends about it that the demand for "La Golondrina" is becoming very large. Hear this tantalizing waltz in our Victrola department.

From that tiny announcement large sales volume resulted. In fact the number outsold the entire April list of popular selections, and made re-ordering necessary several times. It is for such reasons that the department is showing an increase in sales over the early months of 1921. In addition to records the sale of Victrolas has also been brisk.

Willard S. Mefford recently opened a talking machine and record shop in the Tiedtke Bros. Co. department store. An arcade leads from Summit street to the store proper, which is situated some distance from the street entrance and extends over a city block. During the month of February a daily average of 40,000 people have passed through this arcade.

The Tiedtke Bros. store is unique in many ways. Among its features is a pipe organ which plays most of the day. Other music also is featured and customers are entertained and thus induced to linger and buy.

Fred N. Goosman, president of the Goosman Piano Co. and also of the Ohio Music Merchants' Association, took an active part in completing the organization of the Illinois Association recently at the Hotel Leland, Springfield, Ill. R. C. Hyre, secretary of the Ohio Association, also took part in the work.

At the A. B. Taggart Co., successors to Ignaz Fischer, Brunswick machines are moving briskly. A recent shipment was almost entirely taken by schools, academies and similar institutions. "Lonesome Hours," "Cutie" and "Old Fashioned Girl" are popular records.

Whitney, Blaine & Wildermuth Co., dealers in pianos and talking machines, have leased the second story of the new Newcomber Building now being completed at 620 Adams street as a future home for their business. The store will be beautifully decorated and fitted up. They expect to be installed in the new quarters about June 1.

The Madison Music Shoppe, 617 Madison avenue, opened its attractive new store during the past week. Ivory and blue decorations predominate, while the hearing booths are mahogany and ivory. The booths have skylights and are soundproof. Souvenirs were distributed to the ladies at the recent opening. Pathé, Kimball, Federal and American talking machines will be carried. Connorized music rolls, among others, will be handled. Jos. Schugarman is manager, and Kenneth Rickel is in charge of the sales promotion work.

Warren Kellogg, representative of the Toledo Talking Machine Co., upon his recent visit to Marion, Ohio, found C. G. Wiant, Victor dealer, who has been confined to his home through illness, much improved and very optimistic as to the Spring trade outlook. His son, J. Wendell Wiant, is in charge of the store, and Foster Bain and Miss Saulter are associated with record and service departments.

Miss Elsie Baer, manager of the talking machine department of the M. O'Neil Co. in Akron, recently received much publicity in connection with stunts inaugurated during the sale of Wallace Reducing records. About 250 stout ladies have been induced to join classes which meet regularly in the auditorium of the store for exercises. A niece of Miss Baer is giving exhibitions and directing a part of this interesting work.

Robt. Boyd, of the Boyd Furniture Co., Dover, Ohio, Victrola dealer, is back at the store after a severe sick spell.

C. J. Duncan, jeweler and Victrola dealer, Massillon, Ohio, who recently held a public opening of his fine new store, has devised a very unique balance for his windows, between jewelry and Victrolas. The jewelry line is displayed on windows about three feet above the street level. Talking machines are displayed on a lower level, thus giving a much even appearance than if both were displayed from the same window level.

The Victrola department is on the second floor of the handsome store and is in charge of John Longhart, who has been associated with the house for some years. Many fine floral pieces were sent by friends and jobbers during the opening. Among the latter were the Victor distributors of Toledo and Cleveland.

The Wm. Taylor Son Co., Cleveland, recently celebrated its fifty-second business anniversary. Thos. A. Davies, head of the talking machine department, took advantage of this opportunity to offer machines on special terms of 52 cents down. Mr. Davies also reports much activity in the radio department and a growing interest in this invention.

It is stated by Walter Rowlands, general manager of the J. W. Rowlands Co., at Lima, that it contemplates moving into its own building on the square in the immediate future. Plans for rearranging, enlarging and laying out the store on a more generous scale are about completed. In the new location the Victrola department will have a prominent place on the first floor, with appointments of a most pleasing character. H. E. Leach has become associated with this department.

C. S. Hockett, Bellefontaine, Ohio, Victor dealer, recently returned from an extensive sojourn at Miami, Fla.

V. S. Pfenning, St. Mary's, Ohio, Victor dealer and jeweler, is the proud father of a chubby baby boy. He has been named Vincent, Jr.

Recent visitors to the Toledo market were H. E. Deck, Bryan, Ohio; G. L. Lathrop, North Baltimore, O.; Mr. Scheuer, of S. Frankel Co., Sandusky, O.; Joseph Schottdorf, Defiance, O.; R. E. Harshberger, of the Victrola department, C. J. Schmidt Piano Co., Tiffin, O., and Ralph Crane and J. H. Hallick, of Crane's Music Store, Bowling Green, O.

REALLY, THIS IS ON THE SQUARE

The old-fashioned square piano has gone the way of the square derby and the square meal for a quarter. So New York's school board discovered recently when it offered to give away any of the scores of square pianos now in dead storage. Nobody wanted one.

"Why," cooed Mae Murray, when she heard the story, "that's only natural. People are not dancing the square dances any more."

AKRON, O.

Substantial Reasons for Trade Optimism—Views of Prominent Retail Dealers Confirm This

AKRON, O., May 8.—While noticeably increased Spring business has not as yet been manifested, generally good conditions prevail in the retail talking machine trade in the Rubber City. The betterment in weather conditions has brought increased numbers of shoppers on the thoroughfares, but it appears that many of the stores, even some of the leading retail shops of the city, have been offering great quantities of cheap machines, which, according to dealers, has had a tendency to retard sales of standard make machines to some degree.

Not in many months have dealers been as optimistic as when visited this week by a representative of The World. Local factory production is nearing normal and the unemployment situation has eased to such an extent that calls are now being sent out to nearby cities for additional labor for the factories. Collections are reported better and this feature alone is probably more encouraging than any other development in recent weeks. Dealers realize they must use the newspapers to get business and according to several of the larger talking machine dealers their advertising appropriations the past month have been increased and they are going after business with a vengeance.

While not up to the expected volume, business with the A. B. Smith Piano Co. has been highly satisfactory during April. "To compete with mail order houses and fly-by-night piano and talking machine stores the dealer must advertise and do it more extensively than in past years," said A. B. Smith, Jr., manager of the local store. "We are using the newspapers more and more each week and find them the best medium to obtain business," he declared.

Talking machine sales slowed down during the month of April at the store of the Windsor Poling Co., according to Mrs. Earle Poling. Record sales at this store have not, however, fallen off, because the management, through the medium of several original window displays, has put sales over the top again this month. Small machines for camp and canoe pleasure are being featured in a special window exhibit. The small machine is shown just as it appears in the canoe and a regular canoe model is used to make possible the display.

Ray Porter, manager of the talking machine department of the George S. Dales Co., said this week that business for April would show a slight gain. Machines priced $150 to $200 are the best sellers and have been moving briskly. The new model Victor machine is also meeting with a hearty reception by the trade. He predicts that the month of May will witness a great improvement in business.

Miss Ethel Baer, manager of the Victrola department of the M. O'Neil Co., reports business good and sales ahead of last year at this time.

J. M. Lowrey, until recently of the Story & Clark Piano Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., has been named treasurer of the A. B. Smith Piano Co. here, succeeding C. A. Mitten, who recently resigned.

Earl Woomer, formerly manager of the Canton Phonograph Co., visited this week with local friends. He is now on the road for the Lester Piano Co., Philadelphia.

F. W. Van Scoyoc has joined the sales force of the A. B. Smith Piano Co., this city, of which he was formerly advertising manager. He was recently with the talking machine department of the M. O'Neil Co. here.

SUBSTANTIAL REDUCTION IN PRICE

NEW HAVEN, CONN., May 1.—A reduction in needle prices was recently announced by the Bell Hood Needle Co. of this city. The package which originally retailed for 25 cents is now available for 15 cents. At the headquarters of the company it was stated that this reduction was made possible through decreased manufacturing costs. The new price has already proven popular with the buying public and numerous dealers have reported greatly increased sales since the reduction was made.

324 WASHINGTON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., May 2.—Everyone is looking forward interestedly to the dawn of better things, and "good times" certainly will be welcome, for April was not quite so good a month as had been hoped for. Business was decidedly spotty and there are dealers here who would do a rattling business one day and not 25 per cent of that business the day following. The weather has been admirable, of the kind to encourage people to be downtown. Those establishments which have taken on the radio outfits have found this a tempting bait to draw people inside the stores and it has frequently happened that men and boys who have had their attention riveted on the radio idea have become interested in some talking machine or record proposition to the extent of negotiating a sale. This is an interesting development.

Steinert Co. Lloyd Wireless Wholesalers

The M. Steinert & Sons Co. is one of the several houses in the city to take on a radio department and it will be in charge of Lothrop Wakefield, a radio expert who has been connected with the company's domestic factory, and who plans to give demonstrations by appointment. The Steinert house has the wholesale rights for Massachusetts and Rhode Island for the Firco wireless products which are made by John Firth & Co. and for which the Lloyd Wireless Telephone Corp. of New York is the sole distributor. Already a large consignment of goods has arrived. The Steinert Co. has an imposing exhibit of its line at the Radio Exposition, which opened in Mechanics Building a few days ago.

Henderson Opens Branch Store

Frank C. Henderson, whose Boylston street talking machine warerooms have been forging ahead commendably under the management of D. Stuart Pope, has opened a branch store at 178 Federal street, near the South station, which promises to do a good business as it is a very central location. It carries the Brunswick and Victor lines of merchandise.

New Edison Styles Much Admired

Two beautiful new console models of Edison machines, known as the William and Mary and Chippendale, have just reached the headquarters of the Pardee, Ellenberger Co., Inc., and are being much admired. They have been placed at a price that should make them very attractive purchases, especially when the figure is compared with what was asked for these beautiful period types several years ago. Frederick Silliman, head of the establishment, and his large staff are delving just now into the mysteries of the radio, an apparatus having been installed in the warerooms with a connecting antenna on the roof of the building. Mme. Levorini, the opera singer, who is an Edison artiste, gave a tone test a short time ago which was broadcasted from the big power station at Medford Hillside and which Mr. Silliman's staff enjoyed inside their building.

Court Restrains Public Playing

Judge DeCourcy, on behalf of the full bench of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, has rendered a decision which is of wide importance to the retail talking machine business in this State and may be even more far-reaching as time goes on. Through his decision the Rosen Talking Machine Co. is restrained from playing music "continuously and monotonously" in front of its School street warerooms. The complainants are several business concerns on this thoroughfare, one a shoe dealer, one a tailor and a third a shoe repairer and shoe shiner. It was claimed by the plaintiffs that the nerves of their employes were kept on edge by the noise. It has been the custom of a few talking machine houses in the city to keep a machine inside or outside the doorway and largely by means of a horn project the music into the street.

An Artistic Hallet & Davis Brochure

The Hallet & Davis Co. has just issued a handsome brochure by way of advertising "The Phonograph Beautiful," extended notice of which in its varying styles was given in the April issue of The World. The embossed cover is in chocolate brown and gold with delicate tracery. Within a sort of pocket are four leaves, on each of which is an illustration of a single style of machine, these being the Louis XIV, the Colonial, the Queen Anne and the Louis XV console types. The catalog, though it is more than that, is one of the handsomest pieces of work that any local house has turned out in a long time. A small folder, also illustrating these four console types of Hallet & Davis machines, has been given wide circulation.

The Hallet & Davis Co. is now busily engaged in mapping out its representation throughout the field for the new talking machine fathered by this house. As a general thing the present Hallet & Davis agents will in addition carry the machine provided they have proved themselves high-class, hustling representatives; but if it is found advisable to place this new product in the hands of another in any city the company reserves the right to do so holding that the man who may be able to sell a piano may not necessarily be the best person to extol the merits of a talking machine. In the matter of merchandising its new line the Hallet & Davis proposes to exercise the utmost care. Sample machines have been shipped to a great many centers, and calls have come for them from as far distant as the Coast, others going into the States of Illinois, Ohio, Utah, and so on. Thus far the only house to be definitely decided upon for representation is the Lansing Sales Co., which will merchandise this product in the New England field.

Use Talking Machine Record Chimes

There was an interesting experiment tried out at the Center Methodist Church in Malden a short while ago which develops a new use for talking machine records. In short, records were used to call the neighborhood to worship, the records used being those which in their reproduction of some musical number use the chimes or bells. The experiment was under the management of Charles W. Harper, inventor of the Oriphone and president and treasurer of the Harper Oriphone Co. of Boston and Everett. A Columbia machine was installed in a closet in the basement of the church and the music was carried up to the belfry by means of an amplifier. The bell selections played were "O Come, All Ye Faithful," "Lord, Dismiss Us With Thy Blessing" and "Auld Lang Syne." The music was carried to quite a distance and Mr. Harper said later that under perfectly quiet conditions the talking machine chimes ought to be heard for a distance of two or three miles.

To Prevent Fraudulent Sales of Talkers

It is likely that the Massachusetts legislature will pass a bill which has been favorably reported by the committee on mercantile affairs and has passed the House, and which seeks to prevent the fraudulent sales of talking machines, pianos and automobiles. The bill is fathered by Harry Spencer, of Kraft-Bates & Spencer, the Brunswick wholesale house, and the name of Frank B. Finney, of this same concern, also appears on the petition for the bill. The bill provides a penalty of $100 or six months' imprisonment or both upon any person who, with intent to defraud, alters, tampers with or obliterates the patent number, manufacturer's serial number, or the trade-mark or trade name on any talking machine, piano or automobile. The bill would also make possession for the purpose of sale of any such article which has been thus tampered with prima facie evidence of intent to defraud. Conditions that have invited the passage of this bill are more or less familiar to persons in the talking machine trade in particular, for, following the theft of machines that have been leased, perhaps it has been hard for the original dealer to identify his property. There is a Federal law touching the question of patent numbers which to a considerable degree safeguards the interests of dealers, but it has been thought that there would be a double protection through the passage of a State law.

Tremont Talking Machine Co. to Handle Radio

The Tremont Talking Machine Co. is still another concern to install the radio. A large portion of the second floor is given over to the demonstration and sale of outfits and parts, and one of the two large show windows is attractively arranged with all sorts of apparatus set against a background of blue curtains. There is an antenna on the roof and there isn't an hour of the day when snatches of something from the outside world cannot be picked up. The department is under the management of Winn Campbell, a radio expert, who has had connection with several large electrical houses.

Fred E. Mann on Extended Trip

Fred E. Mann, head of the wholesale department of the Columbia Co., is off on an extended business trip through southern New England and he will not be back in town for a week yet. He is in particular spending much time in Rhode Island and Connecticut and is making the trip by motor.

Why Less Competition Means Bigger Opportunities

One of the outstanding advantages of being a Brunswick dealer at the present time is the fact that he is not so likely to be educating his prospects to buy a Brunswick Phonograph or Brunswick Records from a rival dealer.

The time will undoubtedly come when this will not be true, but right now it is the secret of the great success of many a dealer who grasped the opportunity to be the only, or almost the only, distributing point in his community for this widely advertised and popular make.

When selling a prospect on other standard makes a dealer is too often only preparing the harvest for the other fellow to reap.

Henry Smith Co. Activities

The Henry Smith Co., manufacturer of Lansing covers for talking machines, pianos, benches, etc., is now well established in its new quarters at 2 Hudson street, this city. Henry W. Smith, of this company, recently acquired this business from the Lansing Sales Co., which continues to distribute the covers. Mr. Smith is thoroughly familiar with this field, having been connected for a number of years with the Lansing Co., and reports that the demand for covers continues in an entirely satisfactory manner, and is confident that the future will witness a steady increase in business. The Henry Smith Co. is working on a new type of console cover, and also some new covers for the portable machines, for which an initial order for 2,000 has already been received. Mr. Smith left on May 10 for an extended trip throughout the Middle West.

New England Co. Exhibit Attracted

The New England Talking Machine Co., manufacturer of Perfection tone arms and reproducers, exhibited its line at the Home Beautiful Exposition, held in Mechanics Hall, from April 15 to 29. The exhibit included attachments for the Edison machines whereby lateral cut records may be played, and also attachments for needle-playing machines whereby hill and dale records may be played. The demonstration was conducted with the idea in mind of showing the general public how to get the best results from talking machines.

Takes on Radio Receiving Sets

The Lansing Sales Co., which is a distributor of accessories in both the talking machine and piano fields, has recently added a complete line of radio receiving sets and parts. In literature covering these various fields, it has been found that the best results are obtained through a separate appeal. Following this idea a recent piece of literature has been produced entirely on the subject of piano accessories. This folder is of sixteen-page size and lists Lansing moving covers for both pianos and benches, Lansing scarfs, the concert demonstration series of Q R S rolls, Lansing duet benches, player benches, combination player benches, junior benches, chairs, stools and frames for the displaying of hangers supplied by roll manufacturers. The Lansing Co. notes a steady improvement in business conditions and believes that this improvement will continue steadily.

Visited New England Trade for Cheney

Stephen Colahan, wholesale distributor for the Cheney phonograph in the New England field, is home from a trip into Maine, where he especially visited Portland and Bangor, in both of which cities he found business picking up most perceptibly. His brother, F. A. Colahan, who is associated with him, has just returned from a trip into Connecticut.

New Brunswick Dealer in Bangor, Me.

The latest wide-awake concern to sign up with Kraft-Bates & Spencer to carry the Brunswick proposition is the Farrar Furniture Co. of Bangor, Me., whose establishment at 93 Main street is one of the largest concerns in that city. Frank B. Finney, of the Boston house, consummated the deal during a trip into the Pine Tree State. The Brunswick business is pushing ahead

Open Victor Agencies

The M. Steinert & Sons Co. has opened up several new accounts within the past month. These are C. F. Spooner, of New Bedford, who, having taken over the Victor stock lately handled by G. T. Richards, held a big opening on May 1 at the enlarged quarters at 836 Purchase street, that city. Another is the Mangarnar Music Co., Inc., at Quincy, which lately has conducted a place in South Braintree, but is now represented in the Wollaston section as well as in Quincy. Wholesale Manager Kenneth Reed, of Steinert's, reports the Victor business as

Association Luncheon a Big Success

A new era in the history of the New England Music Trade Association was ushered in on May 2, when the first of a series of luncheons was held at the Engineers' Club, which was in all respects a "hummer" and should augur well for the subsequent success of this association, too long in a dormant state. Some may say that it is in part due to new blood, yet in the present case it was some of the old-timers who put their shoulders to the wheel and actually were able to "put it over." President Frank S. Horning, of the company bearing his name, sat at one of the tables and had with him as association guests Major Judson Hannigan, of General Clarence R. Edwards' personal staff; and William Courtney, of the "Smooth as Silk" company, playing at the Selwyn Theatre. There were seventy-five men present, considerably more than provision had been made for. Dan Sullivan, of the C. C. Harvey Co., played continuously while the guests were assembling and Miss Ruby Forbes, of the Boylston street store of the M. Steinert Co., sang to Sullivan's accompaniments, and later several times to her own accompaniment.

Major Hannigan gave a valuable short talk on "Co-ordination and Co-operation" and showed how unfortunately the people of to-day are inclined to distrust the other man, something which is a decided deterrent to business progress. He thought that where there was co-operation there usually is co-ordination, and the two are essential if business is to move forward with the least friction. President Horning brought the hour and a quarter to a close with an appeal for that very co-operation that Major Hannigan had thought so necessary. He explained that it is proposed to hold these luncheons every two weeks. The success of to-day's luncheon was largely due to the committee of arrangements, President Horning, Kenneth Reed, of the Steinert house, and A. J. Cullen, of the Lansing Sales Co., supplemented by Harry L. Spencer, of Kraft-Bates & Spencer, who procured Major Hannigan. There will be a new committee for the next luncheon, as it is planned to have a separate group of members to arrange such programs. One mustn't forget a word of tribute for Secretary William F. Merrill, who always puts a lot of time into the association gatherings. He is responsible for the catchy folder announcement printed in red and black, which the members received several days in advance of the luncheon.

Big Musical Affair in Woonsocket

Quite a number of the local Victor attachés of the Steinert house are planning to go down to Woonsocket, R. I., on May 14 for the big concert which is being arranged by the La Roe Music Store, at which Paul Whiteman's Original Palais Royal Orchestra is to furnish the music. The concert is to be given in the new Laurier Theatre and it is understood that even now all the tickets have been sold.

Some Day for Herbert Shoemaker

Saturday, April 29, was a great day for Herbert Shoemaker, who is sales manager for the Eastern Co., for the Pennsylvania crew on the Charles River crossed the finish line a trifle more than one-quarter of a length ahead of the Harvard crew. The course was for one mile and 550 yards, and Shoemaker followed the Penn varsity oarsmen all the way along the course, as in fact he did at the practice work on the day before. Some day for Shoemaker.

H. G. Russell, who formerly covered the New England territory for the Victor Talking Machine Co., has been made manager of the Outlet Co., one of the largest talking machine dealers in Providence, R. I.

Some News Brieflets

Wholesale Manager Barg, of the Vocalion Co., has just returned from a survey of some of the mill cities of New England, especially those in Massachusetts, and, despite the present condition where textile and other strikes are operative, he finds cause for hopefulness, and he thinks that at the end of two or three months things will considerably have righted themselves. Manager Wheatley, of the retail department of the business, has been over in New York for several days in conference with the home officials.

Joe Burke, of the Musical Supply & Equipment Co., was over in New York a few days ago and was able to get another consignment of the new console type of Sonoras, which have been proving popular with the local dealers.

Widener's, which had been located at 23 West street for some fourteen months, has moved off the street level and is located upstairs at No. 21, where Mr. Widener has his offices. The retail business continues to be managed by Charles Shaw.

OPEN NEW ESTABLISHMENT

Kneupfer & Dimmock, of Lawrence, Mass., Honored by Large Attendance at Formal Opening

LAWRENCE, MASS., May 5.—"The House Reliability Built," known by its firm name of Kneupfer & Dimmock, dealers in pianos and musical merchandise, recently opened a new establishment at 286 Essex street, this city, and the occasion drew together a large number of townspeople and many merchants identified with the musical business from other places. All day from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. the store was full of people and the three leaders in the concern, R. G. Kneupfer, the head of the house; Henry McDade, the head salesman in the piano department, and Fred Casper, the firm's chief bookkeeper, together with the entire staff were kept busy receiving the visitors. The building is five-stories high with a commodious basement and the talking machines which the house carries, namely the Brunswick, Victor and Edison lines, have the place of honor on the ground floor and are also artistically grouped in the balcony. At the opening there were a number of talking machine representatives present, including the houses of Pardee-Ellenberger Co., the Lansing Sales Co., the Eastern Talking Machine Co., and the Hallet & Davis Co., whose new talking machine lately put on the market is likely to be included in the list to be had at this enterprising Lawrence warerooms.

The interior of the warerooms was a bower of floral loveliness, these being the contributions of the many musical houses with which Kneupfer & Dimmock do business. The house presented its guests dainty souvenirs in the shape of small gold pencils.

ALTERATIONS AT STEINERT STORE

FALL RIVER, MASS., May 2.—Extensive alterations are under way at the establishment of M. Steinert & Sons, 52 North Main street, here. A feature of the store, when the work of remodeling is finished, will be the sound-proof booths for the demonstration of Victor talking machines and records. The interior decorations will be in mahogany and old ivory, with green appointments and carpeting.

Radio Situation in Local Trade—What Talking Machine Dealers Are Doing in This Field—Music Week Celebrated—The News

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 9.—There has been no material change in the condition of the talking machine business in St. Louis during the past month. An interesting development has been that, relatively, records have not done as well as machines. This is ascribed, in some degree, to the increasing interest in the radiophone. Owners of machines who have been constant and consistent purchasers of new records seem to be turning their attention increasingly to the radio broadcasting. There is difference of opinion among talking machine men as to the extent that the radio is likely to permanently affect the talking machine business. The department stores are the first to take up radio. At the Famous & Barr Co. and the Stix, Baer & Fuller Co. it is hooked up with the talking machine departments. At the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney Co. it is handled separately. The Famous & Barr Co. has been selling receiving sets and parts for some time. Manager J. F. Ditzell, of the talking machine department, under whose direction the radio branch of the business is being developed, is proceeding cautiously and conservatively, waiting for radio to find itself and for a working out of the details of regulation. He attended the recent radio show at Pittsburgh and is keeping closely in touch with developments.

The Stix, Baer & Fuller Co. is the first to put in a broadcasting plant. A special sound-proof room has been constructed on the top floor. On the roof is a six-wire antenna 150 feet long stretched between two forty-foot steel flagpoles. The initial program was given the last week in April, with Mayor Kiel as the principal speaker. Programs are given Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings of each week. Part of each program is contributed by Victor and Brunswick records. The Hardman reproducing piano also is used. Artists of note and professors from the colleges are on the programs. A radius of 500 miles is served and Manager F. J. Ennis expects to increase it to 1,000 miles. A stock of receiving sets has been received and the business in these is crowding the talking machine business. Manager Ennis expects the radio to be absorbed without hurting the talking machine business in the long run. He thinks that a combination phonograph and radiophone will be worked out, in console model, with the phonograph on one side and the receiving radio on the other, both hooked into the tone chamber, which will serve as a loud speaker for the radiophone. Head phones, he thinks, will disappear.

At Vandervoort's the radio outfit is on the second floor, distinct from the talking machine department. There are no present plans for connecting them up. Manager A. W. Hosier does not believe that the radio is going to affect the talking machines. He is not enthusiastic over the results now being obtained, comparing them with the rasping and indistinct renditions of the early talking machines, and although he thinks there will be improvement he does not expect radio to replace talking machines. For one thing, the element of choice is lacking, people having to take whatever is in the air.

Sonora Men Report Progress

J. E. Maunder, manager of the local branch of the C. D. Smith Drug Co., St. Joseph, Mo., Sonora distributor, and E. D. Coots, of New York, special representative of the Sonora Co., have just completed a trip throughout the Southwest. They spent three or four days the first part of April with the Jones Store Co., of Kansas City, Mo., which had its opening on Sonora phonographs at that time. Mr. Lee, newly appointed manager of the phonograph department of the Jones Store Co., was very much enthused with the line, and had the opportunity of doing some nice Sonora business to start with, which included some high-class period business, with the prices for these instruments ranging about $500.

Mr. Maunder reports that he is in receipt of some good business, and the dealers throughout the entire trip were very optimistic for the balance of 1922.

"The dealers all realize," he says, "as well as we, that the phonograph business is getting on a good deal firmer basis than it has been in the last three years, and with the dealers building as they are to-day it should mean that the phonograph business will be and should be more stabilized than ever before."

Undergoes Serious Operation

Mrs. F. J. Ennis, wife of Manager Ennis, of the Stix, Baer & Fuller talking machine department, underwent recently at the Jewish Hospital a very serious major operation. She was unconscious practically all of the time for two days after the operation, but as this is written she is reported to be out of danger.

Dealers Co-operate in Music Week

The St. Louis talking machine interests co-operated fully in the observance of Music Week the last week in April. Talking machines figured in the many music programs of the week, arranged under the direction of the Civic Music Association of St. Louis. The slogan for the week was, "Give a Thought to Music." St. Louis gave more thoughts to music than it ever did before in the same length of time. Beneficial effects in a business way are confidently expected.

the records was given for an hour one day recently at the Vandervoort auditorium by Mrs. Euse White Harris, a high school physical director, and sales of the sets were greatly increased in the Vandervoort talking machine department. A large mail order sale is reported out of St. Louis.

Edison Shop Opens in Paducah, Ky.

L. M. Schlude, of the Silverstone Music Co., has returned from Paducah, Ky., where he assisted at the opening of the Wahl & Sin Edison shop, which he says is the prettiest thing in the Silverstone territory except the Silverstone store here.

E. J. Miller, of the Silverstone Music Co. sales organization, was top man on sales for April. Two new Console models, the Chippendale, $295, and the William and Mary, $325, have been received by this company and are attracting favorable attention.

J. A. Schlichter, retail sales manager of the Silverstone Music Co., was married recently. The Silverstone employees presented the couple with a clock.

R. G. Metcalf, formerly of the Silverstone Music Co., is preparing to go into business at Maplewood, a St. Louis suburb.

Myron Goldberg, vice-president of the Silverstone Music Co., has returned from a business trip to New York.

Acting in an Advisory Capacity

Miss M. Easly is making a canvass of Edison owners in St. Louis for the Silverstone Music Co., giving advice in the selection of records and adjusting complaints, where there are any, and rendering a general personal service.

Some Personal Brieflets

Frank J. Coupe, vice-president and sales manager of the Sonora Co., New York, was in St. Louis recently.

Manager A. W. Hosier, of the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney talking machine department, says the April business of that department was the biggest in its history, with sales of Victor consoles and electrics predominating, but with the record demand not so good.

B. J. Pierce, manager of the talking machine department of the Jenkins Music Co., Kansas City, Mo., was here the latter part of April attending a Masonic ceremonial.

George Mickel, of Mickel Bros., Omaha, Neb., passed through St. Louis on his way back to Omaha from a visit to his old home in Ohio.

J. H. Bennett, of the Brunswick Co., has returned from a business trip to Springfield, Mo., and Little Rock, Ark.

T. L. Husselton, Victor factory representative, spent several days here recently sizing up trade conditions, which he found satisfactory, as he had also in Kansas City and through the Southwest.

Koerber-Brenner Victrola Exposition a Success

The Koerber-Brenner Victrola Exposition, which has been touring for several weeks, returned to St. Louis May 1. Miss Golda Airy, who accompanied it as lecturer and demonstrator, reports that the tour was a complete success in every way—in fact, it exceeded expectations in increasing interest in the Victrola.

SPECIAL VICTOR RECORD RELEASES

Four Records Announced for Release to Public on May 20—Timely Hits Included

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has announced a special release of four records which will be placed on sale on May 20. The first record, 18882, is of "Swanee River Moon," medley waltz played by International Novelty Orchestra, and "Do It Again," fox-trot, played by Whiteman. Then come 18884, "Mammy Lou," and "Pick Me Up and Lay Me Down in Dear Old Dixie Land," sung by the Peerless Quartet; 18890, "California," played by Club Royal Orchestra; and "Who Believed in You?" played by All-Star Trio, and 18891, "Some Sunny Day," fox-trot by Whiteman, and "Rosy Posy," fox-trot by Club Royal Orchestra.

DIAMOND JUVENILE CONSOLES LIKED

Demand Is Growing for This Small Talking Machine—It Seems to Fill a Place All Its Own—Travelers on the Go

The Diamond Products Corp., New York City, manufacturer of the Diamond Juvenile console talking machine, reports that the demand for this instrument has been far beyond expectations. In fact, it has resulted in the taking over of considerable larger space in the Oswego factories than was first planned for to adequately care for the numerous orders received. The shipments of these small machines are now being allotted, the first of which will leave the factory on June 1, but it is hoped that they will be able to ship some before this date. General Manager H. B. Foster, who has been spending considerable time at the Oswego factories, recently left for Chicago to take in the last week of the Toy Fair which is being held there, and he is planning to visit important trade centers on his way back to New York.

J. B. Price, Middle West representative of the company, is now on an extended tour through his territory, and is booking orders for the juvenile console, also for the entire equipment which the company makes for installation in the children's booth. He stated that dealers were keenly enthusiastic about this booth equipment, and that most dealers whom he called on, whether they already had a booth of this nature or not, readily praised this new equipment, and in consequence ordered it.

Lee Conover, New England representative, made the trip to Chicago with Mr. Foster, and at the conclusion of the Toy Fair started out on an extensive tour to the Far West, touching important points on the way out and returning by a southern route, which will necessitate his being away from New York for some weeks to come.

COLLINGS & CO. SALES SCHOOL

F. A. Delano, of Victor Co., to Hold Special Classes in Newark Next Month Under Auspices of Victor Wholesalers

Collings & Co., Newark, N. J., recently completed arrangements with the Victor Talking Machine Co. whereby a salesmanship class, under the direction of F. A. Delano, director of the Red Seal School, will be held in the display rooms of Collings & Co., from June 5 to 8 inclusive. Those making application must attend the entire course and many dealers and Victor sales people in New Jersey and Northeastern Pennsylvania have signified their intentions of attending.

The course, covering four consecutive days, will be divided into two sessions, from 9.30 to 12.30 in the morning, and from 2 to 5 p. m. each day. Heretofore these courses had only been available to those who attended the sessions at the factory, and bringing them to the dealer direct should receive a ready response.

IN PITTSBURGH

Trade Improvement Continues—New Edison Dealers—Music Week Celebration a Success—New Vocalion Distributors—The News

PITTSBURGH, PA., May 10.—Trade conditions in the talking machine sector of the Pittsburgh district have shown for the past month more than ordinary improvement, and the leading dealers in talking machines in the downtown district are of the opinion that May will show a better sales period than the same month a year ago. The industrial situation is clarifying slowly and the general expectation is that the iron and steel mills will continue to show the same gain in operation that they have in the past few weeks. The coal miners' strike is slowly fading away, and it is believed that this month will see the finale of the walkout with the miners resuming work and general prosperity returning.

Take on the Edison Line

One of the outstanding events of the past month was the formal taking over of the retail Edison shop, formerly conducted by the Buehn Phonograph Co., by the Columbus Music Co., of which John Henk is the well-known proprietor. For a number of years Mr. Henk has conducted the Columbia shop at Sixth street and Duquesne way. When the Buehn Co. decided to relinquish the retail Edison shop Mr. Henk entered into negotiations with Mr. Buehn with the result that an Edison department has been opened in the Columbus Music Co.'s shop. A full line of the Edison phonographs and Edison records will be found on display in the new quarters.

In speaking of the change Mr. Henk said to The Talking Machine World representative: "For some time past we had been considering the advisability of taking on an additional line of phonographs, and when the opportunity came for us to secure the Edison line we were quick to take advantage of it. We believe that we now have a very important line of phonographs with the Columbia and the New Edison. While it is too early at this date to make any definite statement, we can say that we are more than pleased that we have taken on the Edison, and we are convinced that with the facilities we have for caring for Edison and Columbia patrons we will be able to meet all demands that are made upon us. The very excellent reputation that the Edison line has achieved in Pittsburgh will stand us in good stead and will enable us to maintain the good record. We have set aside a special department in our large store for the display and demonstration of the Edison phonographs and Edison records, which will be second to none in the State."

The Buehn Phonograph Co. will still continue to act as distributor in the Pittsburgh zone for the Edison line. A. A. Buehn, treasurer and general manager of the company, stated that all indications now point to a marked increase in sales. The Buehn Phonograph Co. is an enterprising concern, and has a corps of live salesmen on the road constantly who aim at giving the best of service to the Edison dealers.

Joseph Horne Co.'s New Quarters

Pending the work of renovating and rebuilding the Joseph Horne Co. store, the talking machine department, which is under the supervision of A. R. Meyer, has been moved from the second to the sixth floor. The company handles the Victor, Cheney, Columbia Grafonola and the Pooley. When the store alterations are completed the talking machine department will be one of the most elaborate and modern in the State.

Brunswick Publicity Plans Popular

The Brunswick phonograph dealers here are committed to the publicity plans that the company launched some months ago. They believe in them, due to the fact that substantial sales have been made through the co-operative advertising and billboard campaigns all over the Pittsburgh district. The large posters advertising the Brunswick phonograph have proven, in themselves, to be most attractive and compelling. Every one of the local Brunswick dealers who have participated in the publicity plan is more than pleased with the results that have obtained.

Edward Hoffmann, of the J. M. Hoffmann Co., Brunswick dealer, will make an extended tour of the Old World this Summer. Mr. Hoffmann, who is a veteran traveler, will sail from New York on Saturday, June 10, on the United States Line's steamer George Washington. Landing at Bremen, Mr. Hoffmann will visit Berlin, Cologne, Mayence, Stuttgart, Munich and other German cities, and also pay a visit to Oberammergau where he will witness the celebrated Passion Play. Then Mr. Hoffmann will proceed north to Leipzig, the German city which is noted for its many industrial exhibitions, etc. Following this he will visit Belgium, the battlefields of France, thence to Paris and London and then home.

New Style Victrolas Very Popular

Thomas T. Evans, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., is of the opinion that good business in the talking machine line will "come back" real soon. Mr. Evans, who is a close student of business conditions, stated that the new style Victrolas are proving very popular and are having a very brisk sale in certain parts of the territory that he covers. Mr. Evans said: "Trade conditions are showing signs of general improvement, and while the volume of sales does not show up very large, it is the repeat orders that are making it possible for us to report better business. The live and enterprising Victor dealer of to-day is constantly on the alert and is sedulously taking advantage of every opportunity to increase his business. The old-time method of seeking prospects by careful work and search will, of itself, bring many a sale that is most unexpected."

Optimistic Over the Outlook

S. H. Nichols, manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co., is quite optimistic over the outlook for his clientele the coming months. Mr. Nichols said: "All indications point to a gradual resumption of business with the restoration of industrial activity for which Pittsburgh has always been noted. I am most optimistic concerning the Columbia line and its future, and I believe that we will have some splendid business this season. It is also my firm opinion that the talking machine dealer who makes up his mind to secure business will find it by diligent and persistent search. The time is ripe for good business and the up-to-date talking machine dealer will profit just in proportion as he puts forth his efforts to secure business."

The Celebration of Music Week

Music Week was celebrated in Pennsylvania the week of April 30 to May 6 under the auspices of the Department of Public Instruction. In practically every city, town and hamlet, from the Delaware river on the east to the Ohio on the west, was there a celebration of some kind during the week. Talking machine dealers took advantage of Music Week and aided local committees in the various programs that were rendered. At the State Capital, Harrisburg, the C. M. Sigler Co., Inc., Victrola dealer, was a prominent factor in the movement, as were also Yohn Brothers, the Brunswick and Sonora dealers. The Union Music Co., Columbia dealer, emphasized the use of the Columbia Grafonola during Music Week as a medium of happiness in the home.

Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in referring to Music Week, said: "I am most optimistic as to the influence which the achievements of Music Week will have upon the future of music in Pennsylvania. It will, in the first place, give support to the State plan to incorporate in the regular public school course the subject of music. Putting music in the public schools, giving it the same daily consideration that is given the other subjects of the school curriculum will mean that every child in Pennsylvania is to be given an opportunity to develop its musical talent on a par with the other intellectual talents which it possesses. To teach every child to sing is the obligation of the school as much as it is to teach it to read.

"There is no subject more attractive to the child and none which will contribute more to its cultural and moral development than music. Beginning in September next, it is to be taught daily to every child in every school in Pennsylvania. All teachers entering the teaching profession are being trained to teach this subject.

Appointed Vocalion Distributors

C. W. and R. H. Keith, who organized the Sonora Distributing Co. here, have been appointed by the Aeolian Co. to distribute the Vocalion Red records here. O. W. Ray, general manager of the Vocalion record department for the Aeolian Co., was in Pittsburgh and made all the arrangements for the transfer of the lease at 505 Liberty avenue, and all stock from the Clark Musical Sales Co. to the Sonora Distributing Co. All members of the Clark organization in Pittsburgh will be employed by the new Vocalion record distributor. Charles MacKinnon will be the district manager for the Vocalion Co. in the Pittsburgh district.

Victors in Radio Broadcasting

T. E. Shortell, manager of the Victor department of the S. Hamilton Co., has arranged with the Doubleday-Hill Co., of Pittsburgh, to furnish Victor records and a Victrola for use in the radio broadcasting station that the concern operates every night. The Victor records for the concerts are selected by Miss Hildegard Wehrle, of the sales staff. Considerable interest is taken in the Victor recitals by many persons who manifest their satisfaction by purchasing certain records that appealed to them.

IMPORTANT BRILLIANTONE MOVE

Dealers' Imprints Now Placed on Metal Boxes on Orders as Small as 500,000

The Brilliantone-Steel Needle Co., New York City, has made the important announcement that hereafter dealers may obtain Brilliantone needles in metal boxes with their individual imprint on orders for quantities as small as 500,000 needles. Hitherto it was necessary to place a 5,000,000 needle order to receive the needles in this packing. These metal boxes not only provide an excellent advertising medium for the dealer, but also create a decidedly favorable impression on the part of the consumer in the knowledge that the dealer is big enough to have a product packed for his special purposes. The sale of Brilliantone needles during April passed all previous records in the history of the Brilliantone organization.

L. J. Unger, of the Brilliantone sales staff, is in the Canadian territory and is sending in substantial orders. V. C. Kent is attaining equal success in New England.

B. R. Forster, president of the Company, left on Sunday for Chicago and the Middle West.

Sonora Advertising Manager Attends Advertisers' Convention—Visits Jobbers and Dealers

L. C. Lincoln, advertising manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., returned to New York a few days ago after attending the annual convention of the Association of National Advertisers, held at Chicago, May 3-6. The Sonora Phonograph Co. is a member of this association, and a number of important topics were discussed at this year's convention. Mr. Lincoln took advantage of the opportunity to visit Sonora jobbers and dealers in Syracuse, Detroit and Milwaukee, and the reports he received indicate that Sonora representatives as a whole are enjoying a healthy business and are optimistic in their predictions for a satisfactory year.

INSTALLS RADIO EQUIPMENT

E. G. Rockwell, music merchant of Akron, O., has installed a radio receiving set in his store and is announcing weekly concerts. The idea has attracted much favorable attention.

LANDAU'S FINE NEW QUARTERS

Victor Line Featured in Spacious Establishment—Install Radio Department

WILKES-BARRE, PA., May 5.—Landau's music store recently moved into its new quarters at 34 South Main street. This is considered one of the most handsome and spacious establishments devoted to the sale of talking machines and musical instruments in this part of the State. The Victor line of talking machines and records is prominently featured in the new store. Forty large rooms for the demonstration of machines and records are a feature of the store.

A radio department has also been opened in which large stocks of radiophones and radio supplies are handled. In this connection a broadcasting station has been erected on the roof of the building from which nightly programs are broadcasted for a distance of ninety miles.

Thompson H. Rowley, well-known musician of this city, has been made manager of the musical instrument department. The members of the Landau firm include Hyman Landau and Harry Michlosky. The company operates stores in this city, Pittston and Hazleton, Pa.

W. C. Blackwell, a customer of Landau's, recently contributed a poem to The Sentinel in which he extols this house, its stock and its methods.

SONORA IN THE WALDORF

Handsome Art Model Installed in Famous Hotel—Visitors Praise Its Tone and Appearance

Visitors to the handsome oak room in the famous Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, have commented enthusiastically on the artistic appearance of a Jacobean Robespierre Sonora art model, which was installed in this room a few weeks ago. George E. Brighton, president of the Sonora Phonograph Co., was responsible in a considerable measure for the honor bestowed upon the Sonora phonograph by the Waldorf-Astoria management.

The talking machine business of Forrest Worrell, Tipton, Ind., has been purchased by Ed. Hewitt.

Kennedy-Schultz Co. Reorganization—Dreher's New Victor Department—Lyradion Interests—Columbia Sales Class—The News

CLEVELAND, O., May. 6.—Several important changes in the talking machine industry in this section mark the turn of the month. The Kennedy-Schultz Co. is planning a reorganization, with C. H. Kennedy in charge and H. C. Schultz contemplating entering another branch of the field. In this connection Edward F. Carson, special representative of the Granby interests, has been in Cleveland conferring with Mr. Kennedy on the future development of the Granby in Ohio. Plans call for a still more intensive campaign on Granby under the Kennedy supervision.

While here Mr. Carson expressed the opinion that the underselling practices, prevalent here as elsewhere in the country, are a benefit rather than a hindrance to good business, in that the quicker such stocks are disposed of, the sooner a strictly normal basis for the industry as a whole will be reached.

A Change in Alliance

Another change of interest is the acquisition of the Drake & Moninger Co. account at Alliance by J. H. Johnson's Sons Co., of that city, who will continue to develop the retail Victor business in that locality. Edward B. Lyons, general manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., Victor wholesaler, assisted in perfecting the details of this change.

Still another development of importance is the announcement of the H. B. Bruck & Sons Co. to enter the downtown district. The firm will take the store formerly occupied by the J. T. Wamelink & Sons Co., Huron road near Euclid, and may become an Edison factor, along with the retailing of other talking machines.

New Victor Department at Dreher's

Likewise, added prestige for the Victor interests is the result of the installation of a fine Victor department in the new store of the B. Dreher's Sons Co., also on Huron road near Euclid, where, under the capable direction of William Gordon Bowie, this branch of the business is expected to develop a significant showing. The installation of this department is the result of the joint work of Edward B. Lyons, general manager, the Eclipse Musical Co., and Howard J. Shurtle, general manager, the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesalers. Nine booths and much space on the ground floor of the new Dreher establishment will make up the department.

Brunswick Branch Moves

Removal of the Brunswick wholesale branch in Cleveland to a better and more adaptable location also is about completed. The new quarters will be at St. Clair and West Sixth, and under the direction of J. L. DuBreuil, district manager, and E. F. Hughes, service manager, an efficient co-operation for all dealers will result.

The much heralded "Molly Darling" musical comedy made its appearance in Cleveland during the last week, and Cleveland music followers obtained their first glimpse of the giant Victrola and Victor records which form a significant part of the piece. The time was not ripe, however, for the sale of records between the acts, as planned, but this will be a feature of future performances as soon as regular records are obtainable, a member of the company informed the writer.

Exhibits at Building Exposition

Advantage of the American Building Exposition was taken by two local talking machine factors, the May Co. talking machine department and the Bohm Manufacturing Co. Dan E. Baumbaugh, gifted manager of the May Co. department, was in charge the greater part of the time, and will have a significantly large prospect list to develop during the Summer, since Manager Ralph P. Stoddard, of the building show company, asserts that close to a quarter of a million persons went through the doors of the great public hall during the week of the show. Equally good results were reported by the Bohm factors, who introduced their Opera Grand phonograph and types of talking machine cabinets.

During the period Manager Dan E. Baumbaugh, of the May Co. talking machine department, has introduced the Wallace reducing records and the Walter Camp "Daily Dozen," and though the feature has been operating only a few weeks twice as much space is needed to handle this part of the business. A capable girl demonstrates the records for women, and Mr. Baumbaugh himself does the same for the men. Many full sets have been sold, according to Mr. Baumbaugh, who can guarantee the good results from personal experience, he asserts.

Columbia Salesmanship Class

Another factor that has been beneficial to Columbia interests in the last week or so has been the class in salesmanship conducted by W. H. Inderrieden, salesman in District No. 2, of the Cleveland Columbia branch. Mr. Inderrieden

Norman H. Cook Appointed Manager

In connection with the advent of the Brunswick at the Halle Brothers Co., referred to on page forty-four of this issue, Norman H. Cook, well-known talking machine department manager, has been appointed director of this new division. The success Mr. Cook has had with other interests here is believed to be a guarantee of a repetition in his new work. Mr. Cook comes from the S. Kohn & Sons Co., where he has been in charge since the Eclipse retail establishment was discontinued. Mr. Cook's place at the Kohn establishment will be taken by Meyer Perlman, who has long been identified with the talking machine industry in this section.

Miss Ellen Garlock, educational representative for the Columbia in this territory, has been conducting many successful meetings with school interests in cities throughout the district, and a significant development of school interest already is seen.

William Murstein, long identified with the Alhambra Music Co. as manager, has resigned, to become manager of the Euclid Music Co.'s Superior store.

The Lyradion Makes Its Bow

The Lyradion, newest combination talking machine and radiophone, makes its bow in Cleveland at the B. Dreher's Sons Co., and will have a conspicuous part in the work of the new store, according to Henry Dreher himself. Kenyon Mix, general manager of the Lyradion Co., was in town to supervise the installation of the instrument in the store, and likewise one in the residence of Mr. Dreher on the Heights.

Tying Up With the Artist

One of the best of recent tie-ups of the personal appearance of an artist and her records was accomplished by E. F. Hughes, service manager of Brunswick, during the appearance of Dorothy Jardon at the Hippodrome Theatre. Through his connection with the theatrical profession Mr. Hughes was able to obtain the placing of a Brunswick instrument in the lobby of the theatre, along with records of songs being sung by Miss Jardon. Dealers likewise were well supplied with said records. Needless to remark, a tremendous boost in this particular line, as well as other record business, was the result for dealers.

Planning Vocalion Activities

Plans for developing still further the Vocalion interests here are being completed, following conferences between Ray McKinnon, of the Aeolian Co., and T. W. Wade, district manager. It is probable that a four weeks' intensive drive will be part of the program.

For the first time in the history of Western Reserve University social affairs a talking machine played an important part at the University frolic. Before close to 2,000 persons James R. Frew, vice-president of the Euclid Music Co., succeeded in proving the value of the Victor machine and records as a soloist for dance and entertainment purposes. Along about the same time Mr. Frew gave nightly concerts in much the same manner in the foyer of the Keith East 105th Street Theatre, and has followed this by inducing the management of that house to use for a time a $1,500 console Victor machine as the sole orchestral accompaniment to pictures, the machine occupying a space in the orchestra pit.

To Try Out the Chain Plan

Extension of the chain store idea of talking machine and record distribution will be completed shortly when the twenty or more Marshall Drug Co. stores will be equipped with booths for demonstration of both machines and records. The Marshall Co. will be one of the main factors in this territory handling Starr phonographs and Gennett records, in the opinion of R. E. Taylor, district manager of the Starr Piano Co. Already a considerable stock of both machines and records is being carried in several stores of the Marshall chain, according to Mr. Taylor.

Theatre Tie-up Wins Approval

Another theatre tie-up that has won approval of dealers and public alike was accomplished by George Krauslick, service manager of the Cleveland Columbia branch. At the Loew's State Theatre Mr. Krauslick induced Gale Sherwood, permanent soloist at that house, to sing a series of Columbia record hits. These records were listed on a large poster in the theatre lobby, and were linked with appropriate window displays in dealers' stores. The people liked the way Miss Sherwood turned the trick, and the dealers were still better pleased with the way the public responded in buying records.

A Striking Window Display

One of the most unique window displays has been used effectively by Spohn's Music Shoppe

Featuring Al Jolson's Columbia Records and the George A. Clark Co. at Lorain, in pushing for business in records by Columbia, entitled "April Showers." Al Jolson was seen holding an umbrella. Rubbers and other rainy day necessities were included, and the whole made for a strong business puller, according to George Krauslick, service manager of the Columbia branch in this city.

SELF-SERVICE CO. IN NEW BUILDING

Growth of Business, Particularly Since Company Commenced to Distribute Radio Products, Made This Move Necessary—President Goldman Anticipated the Present Radio Trend

On May 1 the Self-Service Phonograph Co. took possession of its new building at 167 West Eighteenth street, near Seventh avenue. The constantly increasing business of this firm made this move imperative. The Self-Service Phonograph Co. will occupy the entire building, the new location providing four times as much space as was available at the old headquarters.

The Self-Service Phonograph Co. has been known for many years throughout the talking machine trade as a general distributor. H. Goldman, president of the company, some time ago foresaw the popularity of radio and its application to the talking machine dealer. He, therefore, immediately formed connections with a number of manufacturers and at the present time is doing a business in the radio field that has already reached large proportions, and is increasing daily. This company now distributes Federal, Connecticut and Eisemann sets and the Rova products. In addition to the complete sets, practically every known radio part is distributed. The radio end of the business is not conducted separate from, but rather as a part of, the talking machine business. The books of the company contain the names of a large number of talking machine dealers.

Realizing that radio and its various parts are still somewhat technically unfamiliar to the talking machine dealer, Mr. Goldman has simplified matters by carefully labeling each part with its proper name so that when the dealer is asked for a variable condenser, an induction coil, a detector, or any of the many lesser known parts, he will be able to immediately recognize the part called for.

In the new building one entire floor will be devoted to radio products and another to talking machine accessories and records.

Mr. Goldman has many important plans for the future and is constantly on the lookout for new developments. An interesting use of radio is to be found in a recent sale made by Mr. Goldman to Dr. Seymour Greenstone, a New York dentist. Dr. Greenstone conducts entirely modern dental offices and has equipped two of his chairs with Federal receiving sets.

CONCENTRATES ON EDISON LINE

J. Newcomb Blackman

20 Years

Twenty years ago on May 1, 1902, after a previous experience of five years in the talking machine business, J. Newcomb Blackman established the Blackman Talking Machine Co., as a wholesaler at 19 Beekman Street, New York. He started in a modest way, in a small store, with small capital and two employees, but with a firm conviction that he would succeed and that no work would be too hard that would make success possible.

A big, broad policy was adopted, supported by very little "wishbone" but a determined "backbone." It was a policy of "a square deal for all." A policy not to attempt too much at once, to be honest and conservative in buying and selling and not to plunge. That the business would not be allowed to expand beyond an ability to discount every bill so as to maintain the highest credit standing.

The confidence of everybody was sought, and Mr. Blackman decided not to sell any goods he could not stand back of.

The first six months proved hard sledding, but at the end of the first year success seemed assured and each year since has shown a steady and healthy growth.

Since 1910, all employees with the company over one year have shared in the profits.

The sales for the last fiscal year were sixty times those of the first year, and those of one month only, December 1921, about ten times the entire first year's business. During the same month there were times when one day's sales equalled those of the entire first year's business.

We believe this indicates that the Blackman Policy is a good one and that the trade that supports such a policy is a good trade. We want the best policy and therefore complaints and suggestions will always receive careful attention.

Blackman Service must always be the best we know how to make it.

J. Newcomb Blackman, the founder, head and controlling owner of the business, tenders his sincere thanks and appreciation to all patrons, creditors, employees and others who have contributed to the success of the business, and pledges himself to continue the Blackman Policy of the last twenty years, or any policy that will make for honest dealing and a square deal for all.

BROOKLYN DEALERS PREPARE FOR SUMMER TRADE

Intensive Selling Campaigns Bring Good Trade Results—Summer Sales Expected to Be Large—Jacob Bros. Secure Brunswick Agency—Important Trade Changes and Other Happenings

During the past month trade in the Brooklyn territory has been active enough to be satisfactory in a good many ways. Actual sales of machines and records have totaled up a respectable figure, and in the case of some dealers who have used advertising in the local papers to stimulate sales the result has been very gratifying. "This is a most opportune time for intensive selling campaigns," one dealer stated, "and in order to keep our business up to a certain monthly quota, we find that although we do not actually attain it every month, it serves as a stimulator for all concerned, and in consequence keeps our sales up to a respectable figure." Setting a monthly sales quota in the talking machine retail shop is unquestionably a splendid method of stimulating sales, and more dealers could follow this plan with profit; even if the goal is not reached the added effort will be worth while.

Prepare for the Summer Campaign

The American Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, reports that business during the past month has been satisfactory in spite of the fact that machine business was apparently in a slump. Dealers, however, showed considerable interest in the new horizontal Victor models, and sales made of these instruments helped to make the month a fair one in total business. Plans are now being prepared by R. H. Morris, general manager of the company, for an intensive campaign throughout Brooklyn and Long Island in the interest of an expected large Summer business. Attractive circulars and other literature are being prepared and will be sent out very shortly to dealers for distribution among their clientele.

Horace L. Smith Buys Diehm Business

An important change in Brooklyn retail trade this month is the retirement of John Diehm from the Victor field after an experience of many years. Mr. Diehm, who has conducted a retail store in Brooklyn for many years past and recently moved his business to 401 Knickerbocker avenue, has concluded arrangements whereby Horace L. Smith, well known in the talking machine field in New York City, becomes the proprietor of this flourishing business. Mr. Smith plans to conduct this business on the same high plane that has characterized this store heretofore, and no doubt will become as well known in the Brooklyn talking machine circles as was the former proprietor. Mr. Diehm's plans for the future have not been announced yet, but it is his intention to take a well-earned vacation before undertaking any active duties again.

Brunswick Line With Jacob Bros.

Jacob Bros., 997 Broadway, who recently re-decorated and rearranged their store, report that business since January 1 has been far in excess of their fondest expectations. Recently the company added to the instruments they already carry, the complete line of Brunswick phonographs and records, which they are to feature in a special department set aside in their spacious warerooms. The entire Brunswick record catalog will be carried so that this line will be represented in the proper way. Frank Elliott, general Brunswick representative for this territory, was responsible for securing this high-class representation for the Brunswick Co.

New Sonora Models Greatly Favored

The Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora jobber for Brooklyn and Long Island, is well satisfied with the showing made during the past month. Sales have been very satisfactory despite the general impression in the trade that the talking machine business has been in a slump. It is now displaying in its very attractive showrooms, at 150 Montague street, the first models of the new Sonora Queen Anne console, which is equipped with an improved tone arm and reproducer. It is also showing the new Sonora Heppelwhite Pembroke Period model, which has created considerable interest among Sonora dealers everywhere. The first shipment of these machines was received some days ago, and according to J. J. Schatweiser, sales manager for this company, was at once delivered to dealers. Already large repeat orders have been received from every section of this territory, which seems to indicate that these new models will meet with considerable favor.

Install Handsome Delivery Truck

The Baim Bros. & Friedberg Phonograph Co., Inc., which conducts three retail Victor warerooms in this borough, is proving that "keeping everlastingly at it" brings success. This enterprising firm did not settle back when conditions slowed down, but, rather, redoubled its efforts. The large Stewart delivery truck, shown herewith, is the last acquisition of the company in providing the maximum of service to its customers and is rolling up a considerable mileage record in taking care of the extensive business of the company. Jacob L. Rothwein, of the sales staff of the warerooms at 1525 Pitkin avenue, recently consummated the sale of a Queen Anne Art Model Victrola.

Expects Large Summer Business

Herman Spitz, of Sag Harbor, L. I., prominent Victor dealer, was a visitor to Brooklyn

WE offer our dealers a Service which is in keeping with the standards of "the Highest Class Talking Machine in the World."

this month, calling on many retail shops, and also at the American Talking Machine Co.'s headquarters, Victor wholesaler. Mr. Spitz is preparing for one of the biggest Summer businesses he has yet had, as indications point that Long Island this year will be populated by the largest Summer influx of visitors yet experienced in this popular Summer resort. As this store is well known in this section as being well equipped with complete stocks of both machines and records, it is well prepared to take care of a large amount of this business.

Queens Music Shop Secures Sonora Line

The Queens Music Shop, 21803 Jericho Road, Queens, L. I., has just taken on the complete Sonora line of phonographs, and recently featured this popular line in a very attractive window display, which created considerable interest. Lee Coupe, representative of the Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora wholesaler, secured this important account, and was responsible for an intensive campaign to properly introduce this line to the clientele of the store. To follow up the splendid window display large advertisements were carried in the local papers, and in consequence sales showed an appreciable increase during the time the campaign was going on, and it is expected that the Sonora line will prove an important asset to this live store.

Owens & Beers' New Store on Flatbush Avenue

Owens & Beers on May 1 opened the doors of the beautiful new store which they recently erected at 1074 Flatbush avenue to the public, with appropriate announcements and special features in keeping with the policy and general character of this high-class store. The store is the last word in modern store construction, and one of the finest equipped retail Victor shops in metropolitan New York. Considerable expense was entailed in the arrangement and the erecting of booths, record shelves, etc., and reflects the confidence which the proprietors of the store hold that the talking machine business has a future that warrants this expense. Owens & Beers feature the Victor line of machines and records and are well known in the Brooklyn retail field. With this beautiful new store and equipment they are splendidly prepared to furnish their clientele with a service of the highest character.

Williams Plans Record Campaign

The G. T. Williams Co., Inc., Victor distributor, has planned a campaign with its dealers to reduce the supply of what are sometimes termed "slacker records." These records of much merit are not called for any too frequently and a plan of demonstrating or calling the customer's attention to the titles should bring substantial returns. The dealers invariably have shown favor to the idea.

Sheiman Business Closed Out

It is with regret that the talking machine trade learned recently of the death of L. Sheiman, who conducted the Grand Phonograph & Piano Co. at 269 Grand street, which came after a prolonged illness. Mr. Sheiman's widow conducted the business for a short time during his illness but at his death it was decided to close it out, and in consequence the stock and fixtures were disposed of to other dealers.

FEATURE OF PHYSICAL CULTURE WEEK

Gathering at Town Hall, New York, Hears Addresses by Dr. Copeland and President Wheelan, of Health Builders, Inc., Scores Big

In New York City, National Physical Culture Week, extending from May 1 to May 8, was ushered in by an enthusiastic meeting held in the Town Hall. Dr. Copeland, health commissioner of New York City, was the principal speaker of the evening, and many other names familiar in physical culture circles were included in the list of speakers.

Appropriate to the subject of the evening, Robert B. Wheelan, president of Health Builders, Inc., 334 Fifth avenue, led those present through the exercises included in Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen." The Health Builders' records consist of these twelve nationally known exercises set to music. Mr. Wheelan placed these records on a talking machine upon the stage and the audience went through the series like veterans.

Dr. Copeland, by the way, was most enthusiastic over health possibilities through use of the "Daily Dozen" in the home.

Talking machine dealers who retail the Health Builders' course took advantage of the interest manifested by the public in general in National Physical Culture Week and specially featured the course. Attractive window displays were made and it is expected that this week will materially stimulate the sales of these records.

The New Queen Anne Sonora Model scents a material improvement in design over the old Queen Anne, which retailed at a higher price. The advertising department of the Sonora Phonograph Co. is co-operating with the dealers in the introduction of this new model and, judging from all indications, it will prove to be one of the most popular instruments in the Sonora standard period model line.

HACKETT SCORES HIT IN PARIS

Charles Hackett, the widely celebrated opera tenor and Columbia artist who is now appearing in opera in Paris has, according to cable despatches, scored the greatest success of any American artist for years in the French metropolis. His interpretation of the Duke in "Rigoletto" was a revelation to hundreds in the audience who were under the impression that America is an arid waste as far as music is concerned. The audience was aroused to the highest pitch of enthusiasm regarding the work of this great tenor, and his success has made Americans located in Paris feel proud of their countryman.

THE GENERAL WIRELESS CORP. TO MAKE RADIO PRODUCTS

New Subsidiary of General Phonograph Corp., New York, Organized to Manufacture and Import Wireless Products of C. Lorenz, A. G., Berlin—Elyria, O., Plant to Be Used

Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, manufacturer of Heineman and Meisselbach motors, tone-arms and sound-boxes, Okeh records and True-tone needles, announced recently the formation of a subsidiary company which will be known as the General Wireless Corp. The company, which is owned completely by the General Phonograph radio products in quantities sufficient to meet the vast growing requirements of the jobbers and dealers who are handling radio products. This plant is ideally qualified for radio manufacture, as it is a thoroughly up-to-date factory.

The General Wireless Corp. will not only have the benefit of the lengthy executive experience of Mr. Heineman and his associates on the directorate of the General Phonograph Corp., but will also include in its personnel wireless experts with executive and technical knowledge of every phase of the radio field. A. G. Bean, vice-president of the General Phonograph Corp., and in charge of the factories at Elyria, is keenly enthusiastic regarding the unlimited possibilities for the General Wireless Corp.

The plant at Elyria is not a new-comer in the radio field, as it has produced large quantities of radio receiving sets for the American Government. This factory was known as the Dean Electric Co. a number of years ago, and was a pioneer producer of telephone appliances. The International Insulating Corp., of Springfield, Mass., another subsidiary of the General Phonograph Corp., has been manufacturing parts and accessories for wireless apparatus for some time past, and it will also be an important factor in the plans of the General Wireless Corp.

It is interesting to note that in the accompanying photograph, showing one of the Lorenz radio receiving sets, the headpiece used by Mr. Heineman was manufactured in the plant of the General Phonograph Corp., at Elyria, O.

ANOTHER PLANT FOR SPRAYTONE

Additional Factory Quarters Secured by Spraytone Co. in Ridgewood, N. J.

R. B. Linden, head of the Spraytone Phonograph Co., Inc., manufacturer of the Spraytone portable and other model talking machines, announces that in addition to its factory in Ridgewood, N. J., it has acquired a smaller plant at 32 Union avenue, that city. These latter quarters will be used to manufacture small parts and machinery for this purpose is now being installed. The growth of this company has been so rapid that more space was needed to fill demands.

GODOWSKY IN FINAL CONCERT

Appears at Carnegie Hall, New York, on May 3 Before Sailing for South America

Leopold Godowsky, the well-known pianist and Brunswick record artist, made his only New York appearance this season and his final appearance in this city for several years at Carnegie Hall, on Wednesday evening, May 3, when he gave a piano recital with the co-operation of Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, the feature of the program being Godowsky's paraphrase on Weber's "Invitation to the Dance" for three pianos.

Mr. Godowsky will sail for South America on May 20, where he will give a series of concerts during the Summer, and next year will make a tour of the Far East. He has just completed a coast-to-coast tour in the course of which he gave eighty concerts.

VAN VEEN & CO. CONCENTRATES

Office Now Located at Manufacturing Headquarters, 413-417 East 109th Street

The executive offices of Van Veen & Co., Inc., manufacturers of Van Veen equipment for talking machine warerooms, were moved on May 1 to 413-417 East 109th street, where the Van Veen factory is located. Arthur L. Van Veen, president of the company, in commenting on this move to a representative of The World, claimed that it would materially aid in the service rendered to customers. With offices, factory and warerooms under one roof a great amount of time will be saved and increased efficiency made possible. The new offices have been fitted up very attractively and possession was taken over the week-end, thus eliminating any possible hindrance in the carrying on of the business.

Van Veen & Co., Inc., report rapidly improving conditions among dealers and Mr. Van Veen states that the general trend shows a desire for a better class of equipment.

Mr. Van Veen continued: "Dealers realize that from now on their methods of merchandising must be fully on a par with the merchandise they are selling and are making every effort to bring their business places to the same high level. The Van Veen organization has been working strenuously to show dealers the difference between a standardized high-grade equipment installation and the ordinary nail and hammer product which a great many of them have been satisfied with from local carpenters."

Mr. Van Veen reports that a number of important installations have been recently completed and that many others are being planned.

WIRELESS TELEPHONE SITUATION

Ralph L. Freeman, Director of Distribution of Victor Talking Machine Co., Offers Interesting Comment in Letter to E. F. Droop & Sons Co.

In answer to an inquiry made of the Victor Talking Machine Co. by E. F. Droop & Sons Co., Victor wholesalers in Washington, D. C., regarding the possible effects of the wireless telephone developments on the trade, Ralph L. Freeman, Director of Distribution of the Victor Co., offered the following reply, which is of general interest to talking machine men. Mr. Freeman said:

"During the recent months in which there has been so much publicity and apparent interest in wireless telephony we have been paying close attention to the development of that art to determine what, if any, relationship it bore to our own industry but we are not involved in any way which would justify the use of our name in connection with any wireless telephone apparatus, as we understand is being done. So far our conclusions are that the wireless telephone makes a strong appeal to the imagination of people when they first come into contact with it; that it probably has a good prospect for the future through the development of its utility in transmitting reports, etc., but that it will not prove of lasting interest as a home amusement proposition. To claim a permanent place in the market as a home amusement product that product must give results of a very high quality and the fact that to-day the telephone with its direct wire transmission is still very imperfect leads us to believe that the development of the wireless telephone to the point where the very annoying features of imperfect transmission are eliminated is probably still a long way off.

"We are in touch with the people who we believe are most likely to progress most rapidly in the development of the wireless telephone and it will be our aim not to overlook any opportunity to make any arrangement that might benefit the Victor trade, but, as indicated above, the situation to-day is so uncertain that we are interested only as an observer."

MODERN AMERICAN WALNUT
PHONOGRAPH CABINET,
CHIPPENDALE DESIGN.

For Period Designs in Talking Machines
The Ideal Wood Is

AMERICAN WALNUT

"The Cabinet-wood Superlative."

There are several reasons for this fact.

First, the natural beauty of the wood. A beauty of color and figure which is born in the wood itself and is not a matter of finish. From the standpoint of sound reproduction, the vital thing in a talking machine is its ability to reproduce natural tones. It is most fitting, then, that the cabinet should have a natural beauty.

Second, when a cabinet is made of real Walnut you know it is not going to fall apart at the joints, or split or warp or crack. The cabinet is going to be just as good after a generation of use as it is when first made.

There are a number of other reasons which you will find explained in our "Walnut Book." Ask for a copy.

Business Improves Steadily—Believe Radio Helps Trade—Christopherson With Yahr & Lange—New Vocalion Dealers—The News

MILWAUKEE, WIS., May 12.—Business is getting better all the time, say Milwaukee talking machine men, from manufacturers and wholesalers to the smallest retailers. The distinct impression prevails that conditions are more encouraging now than they have been in about eighteen months, barring, perhaps, the last holiday season, which, as usual, was a bright spot. There was a natural decline in sales after the opening of the new year, but by the time Easter rolled around the volume was again more satisfactory, while since then trade has been well sustained and prospects are for an active Summer.

Benefiting Rather Than Harming Trade

The radio-telephonic craze, which at first was regarded with apprehension by some who feared that it might make the home radio outfit supplant the talking machine, or result in selling such outfits to people who might otherwise buy a phonograph, seems to have benefited the music trade rather than harmed it. It is true that dealers in radio-telephone apparatus and supplies are doing an enormous business, but the new "sport" is believed to be creating more "music fans" than probably any other factor in recent years.

Experts predict that if the present sharp increase in broadcasting stations is permitted to continue unregulated by governmental agencies the air will soon be so filled with music and conversation that the amateur will give up in disgust trying to catch more than a jumble of sound. At any rate, there seems to be no reason why the talking machine trade, or the music trade in general, should fear any ill effects from the competition of the radiophone.

Business Makes Surprising Gains

Victor business in Wisconsin has made surprising gains in the past few weeks, according to

Harry A. Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co. The month of May so far has shown an accentuation of the improvement in the call for instruments, as well as records and supplies, from the Victor field organization in this territory, which has been noticeable for several months past. "We are elated over the turn business has taken and we look for a very fine business for the remaining months of the year, with prospects for the next holiday season the best we have experienced in a number of years," said Mr. Goldsmith. "The general business situation is rapidly clarifying and unemployment is being cut down faster than most of us believed it would be. The workman's pockets once more have the essentials for a tinkle and jingle that makes glad the heart of the retailer."

Brunswick Makes Big Strides

One of the surprises of the day and age which is being sustained at fever heat is the remarkable sale of Brunswick records. The instrument, too, is in excellent demand, and Thomas I. Kidd, manager of the local branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., is in a decidedly cheerful mood over past achievements, as well as the glowing outlook. In the comparatively short space of about two years the Brunswick record has taken rank with the "best sellers" and sales at this time are by far the largest in the history of the house.

Christopherson With Yahr & Lange Co.

The Yahr & Lange Drug Co., wholesale distributor of the Sonora and the Okeh records in Wisconsin and upper Michigan, has secured the services of S. R. Christopherson as sales manager of the musical merchandise division. Fred E. Yahr, president and general manager, will continue to exercise personal supervision over the department, which, by special effort, has been made one of the most powerful influences in the music jobbing business in this part of the country.

Mr. Christopherson comes to Milwaukee from Davenport, Ia., where he was manager of the Tri-City Piano Co., which features the Sonora. Previously he was with C. J. Van Houten & Zoon, at Chicago. All in all, he has devoted about eight years to the promotion of the Sonora and he established such a following that the Milwaukee house of Yahr & Lange was able to secure his services only in strenuous competition with other large interests. He knows the talking machine business from every angle and is especially qualified to handle the retail trade from the jobbers' standpoint.

Placed Vocalion Line on the Map

Harry M. Hahn, jobber of the Aeolian-Vocalion, the Vocalion record and general talking machine supplies and accessories, has succeeded in placing the Vocalion line "on the map" in Wisconsin to an extent never before reached, although he has been working on this promotion not much more than three months.

Boosts New Edison and Records

The Phonograph Co. of Wisconsin reports continued good success in "boosting" the New Edison and Edison records in the Wisconsin territory. The demand is steadily growing.

Getting Share of Export Business

The principal Milwaukee factories, such as the Milwaukee Talking Machine Mfg. Co., the General Mfg. Corp., the Singer Talking Machine Co. and several others of note are steadily increasing their capacity to meet the demands of jobbers and dealers in all parts of the country and also are getting a good share of export business.

Milwaukeeans 'Fessed Up

The historical column in the daily issue of the Milwaukee Sentinel, on April 25, under the heading, "Fifty Years Ago To-day," said: "Prof. Faber yesterday afternoon exhibited at the St. Charles Hotel a wonderful piece of mechanism, which is called a talking machine. It enunciated letters and words distinctly and spoke different languages." The files of the newspaper give very little further details, but local talking machine men have interested themselves in the matter and are trying to get more information, for they believe this is testimony that Milwaukee is one of the real pioneers in the development of the tremendous industry and might possibly lay claim to being the real originator of this business.

Bradford Co.'s Golden Jubilee

The J. B. Bradford Piano Co., which features the Victor and the Aeolian-Vocalion in its main store, at 411 Broadway, and the Sonora in the South Side branch, at 596 Mitchell street, observed its golden jubilee during the latter part of April. The business was founded in April, 1872, by the late James B. Bradford. It is now owned by Hugh W. Randall, who entered Mr. Bradford's employ in 1899 as an office assistant. One entire week was devoted to the celebration of this notable anniversary, which few retail music stores in this country have ever had the privilege of experiencing. At the main store the Victor and Aeolian department is handled by Miss Ruby Knox and Jewel Montgomery, while Miss Viola Speckin is in charge of the Sonora department in the South Side store.

New Vocalion Dealers

The Milwaukee Piano Mfg. Co., of which Elmer Netzow is manager, has secured a Vocalion franchise and since May 1 is carrying a complete line of instruments and records.

Another new Vocalion dealership established in the Wisconsin territory by Harry M. Hahn, jobber, is that of E. F. Waldhier, retail jeweler at Juneau, Wis.

The Record Service Shop has recently added the Aeolian-Vocalion to its line and reports a splendid reception on the part of its clientele.

New Stores and Changes

The Meyer-Seeger Music Co., 840 College avenue, Appleton, Wis., New Edison dealer, on May 1 moved into its new building, recently purchased and entirely remodeled. This will serve largely as a talking machine department, although the piano division also will profit from the enlargement of space and facilities.

The Hayden-Gummer Music Co., 16 Waugoo street, Oshkosh, Wis., has completed extensive improvements in its store, which give it better facilities for handling the increasing business of its Brunswick department.

Irving Zuelke, operating two stores at Appleton and Neenah, Wis., is rebuilding both establishments to gain much-needed room. Mr. Zuelke handles the Vocalion, Victor and Brunswick, as well as the Steinway and other Duo-Art reproducing pianos. The changes now being made will affect the record departments especially, these having enjoyed a remarkable growth in the past year or two.

A new music store which will handle several lines of talking machines and records is being established at Manitowoc, Wis., by the Meyer & Glaeser Music Co. Mr. Glaeser formerly was connected with the Record Service Shop, 728 North Eighth street, Sheboygan and Manitowoc, in the latter branch.

A concern known as the International Phonograph Shop recently opened for business at 147 Sixth street, Milwaukee, and used large newspaper display space to announce its entrance into this field.

Honor for Frederick Carberry

Frederick Carberry, head of the Milwaukee Association of Music Industries and featuring the Brunswick in addition to the Chickering and Ampico, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Rotary Club of Milwaukee, of which he has been a member since its inception. Mr. Carberry is being boomed by the District Club for the position of community sing leader of the international Rotary organization, a position which he holds in the District Club, which held its annual meeting recently at Duluth, Minn.

Badger Co. Pleased With Outlook

Since James A. Sandee, vice-president of the Badger Victrola Shop, took charge of the Badger Music Shop at 109 South Main street, Fond du Lac, Wis., on April 1, the business of the house has been almost doubled over the corresponding period in 1921. The Milwaukee company owns the Fond du Lac house. Leslie C. Parker, president of the two concerns and active manager at Milwaukee, is enthusiastic over the revival of business and looks for a record-breaking year. Besides the Victor line, the Milwaukee store has recently installed a piano department. The Fond du Lac store has carried pianos since it was opened.

A ninety-nine-year lease has been secured by the Badger Talking Machine Co., for the building at 191-193 Fourth street, now occupied by the Wisconsin Tire & Rubber Co., and they will move in May or the first part of June.

Now Sole Owner of Business

Opens Radio Department

The Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co., representing the Edison and Victor, has opened a radio department under the direction of M. A. Ardmore, a radio electrician and broadcasting director of fifteen years' experience. A grand concert radiophone, standing six feet high and being four feet wide, has been installed. This also is being loaned from time to time for special events outside of the store.

Demonstration of the Wallace Record

The Wallace "reducing" record was introduced in Milwaukee during the past month and many of the leading music stores have been making special campaigns to popularize the line with eminent success. Live model demonstrations have been the rule in some of the larger downtown stores and "Get Thin to Music" is now a byword in Milwaukee homes.

AMERICAN MUSIFER CO. CHARTERED

The American Musifer Co. has been granted a charter of incorporation under the laws of Delaware for the manufacture of talking machines, with a capital of $3,000,000. Chas. J. Kleber, of New York, is the incorporator.

Will Act as New York Representative for Dealers in Purchasing All Kinds of Radio Supplies for the General Trade

One of the newest developments in the commercial end of the radio field is to be found in the formation of the Radio Buyers' Syndicate, New York City, with headquarters at 145 West Forty-fifth street. This is backed by two well-known men in the talking machine field and the services of the Syndicate are planned to a great extent for talking machine dealers. The purpose will be to act as New York representative for dealers everywhere, in the purchasing of radio sets, equipment and supplies, making group purchases at quantity rates, thus making the same low price available to the individual dealer. One of the officials of the company, in describing the plan, spoke as follows: "The plan is the same as the National Department Store Association has adopted and is what makes possible the five and ten-cent stores and the chain drug, cigar and furniture stores. We have formed a central buying station whereby orders from the members of the Syndicate are sent and placed direct with the manufacturer, thus securing for each member of the Syndicate the manufacturer's best prices, which means a saving of from 10 to 25 per cent in buying and which makes the difference in profit and loss to the radio dealers. At present the talking machine dealer's overhead is so high and the discount allowed by the radio manufacturer is so short that profits are problematical. We believe that anything pertaining to music or a collection of sound waves is distinctly the talking machine dealer's business. Of course, at the present time the average talking machine dealer is not thoroughly versed in radio and, therefore, we have in our organization radio experts who will devote their trained knowledge to the buying of supplies."

The Radio Buyers' Syndicate has opened a suite of offices with stenographers, messengers, telephones, and has established connections with a number of the prominent radio manufacturers. For individual representation the maintenance of this New York service would be, naturally, expensive, but through the syndication of a number of purchases the individual cost has become small. The membership price at the present time for the first six months has been placed at $12.50 and it is expected that the increasing number of clients at the end of that period will allow a still further reduction. It is announced that the profits of the Radio Buyers' Syndicate are not derived from the purchaser but from the manufacturer, who pays for the business secured in the same manner that he would pay a traveling salesman.

SELF-OPERATING MACHINE ATTRACTS

Five Days' Demonstration of New Phonograph Proves Claims of Inventor

There was recently held a five days' demonstration of a non-winding, self-operating phonograph at the offices of the U. S. E. Corp., 7 West Sixty-first street, New York City. Many interested talking machine men and not a few engineers attended the exhibit and the successful operation brought forth much favorable comment. The machine, which automatically starts, stops and repeats, is the invention of James T. Sibley and the demonstration was for the purpose of showing that this unique product operated by dry batteries will run over a year without renewing the power.

The endurance test, which was most successful, leaves no doubt but that the machine in the home will give the service claimed for it. It is fool-proof, plays all makes of records with unvarying tone and practically all the operations are automatic.

It is understood that the product is to be marketed by the Eclipse Phonograph Corp., which is now arranging for manufacturing quarters.

The best time to tackle hard jobs is in the morning when you feel fresh. How many talking machine men are "on the job?"

TRADE IN DENVER RATHER SPOTTY

Dealers Planning Radio Departments—Denver Music Co. Adds Sonora Line—Offers Kurtzmann Piano as Contest Prize—Trade News

DENVER, COLO., May 6.—The talking machine business here during the past month has been rather spotty, but the consensus of opinion among dealers is that a slight gain in sales volume has taken place. An outstanding feature of the business is the number of dealers who have added, or are preparing to add, radio departments. As a rule, merchants are optimistic and are working hard to overcome a natural reluctance to buy on the part of the public owing to unsettled industrial conditions.

The Denver Music Co. announces that it has taken on the representation of the Sonora phonograph, which it will push in addition to the Victor, Brunswick and Columbia lines. The recently remodeled quarters of this concern make it one of the most attractive places in the city.

A piano-playing contest for persons under twenty years of age, the winner to receive a new Kurtzmann piano, will be staged by Chas. E. Wells Co. during Music Week. Contestants must reside in either Colorado, Wyoming or New Mexico. A second prize of $500 to be applied on a Kurtzmann piano will also be awarded.

The Starr line of phonographs and Gennett records have been taken on by the Milton L. Leve Music Co. This concern has also opened a piano department in which Starr pianos are featured.

The Martin Bechtold Music Co. is planning to open a radio department. Announcement has been made that a full line of radio outfits and supplies will be stocked.

The Universal Phonograph Co., manufacturer of the Electrella phonograph, is planning to close out the retail end of its business in order that every effort may be concentrated on the manufacture of the Electrella. A local firm which is successfully exploiting this instrument is the Mae E. Gerarden Music Co.

The Pattison Music Co. recently staged a removal sale in order to facilitate moving into its new quarters on Glenarm street.

The Knight-Campbell Music Co., Victor dealer, is making a strong sales drive on both machines and records. Intensive sales work is accomplishing good results for this widely known and enterprising house.

STARR RECORDS OF K. OF C. BAND

The Starr Co. of Canada, Ltd., London, Ont., Canadian distributor of Starr-Gennett records, is making a sales drive among the Knights of Columbus organizations in Canada on records made by the Knights of Columbus Band, of New York City, which recently became an exclusive Starr-Gennett recording organization.

The E. L. Lennox Piano Co. has moved into its new quarters at 221 N. Pennsylvania avenue, Indianapolis. This move was necessitated by the rapid but solid expansion of the business.

Trade Interest in Radio Growing—Brunswick Line Placed in Emporium—Fresno Dealers Meet—Prepare for Shriners—The News

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., May 6.—The talking machine trade of California is showing more interest than ever in radio projects and many firms are featuring radio concerts in connection with their regular business. It is pretty well agreed that the public interest in radio equipment means a stimulated demand for musical merchandise of all classes, though a few hold the opinion that the talking machine business will be but temporarily benefited and that the "radio" is merely a passing fad. Certainly sending music by radio must be greatly improved before it can successfully compare with the excellence of the talking machine in reproducing music.

April business is fair with most houses, though usually April is a busy month. General conditions in all lines of trade are not brisk, however, and the talking machine situation is not exceptional. The radio business is rushing.

Sonora Business Improving

The Sonora merchants report increased business since the second price reduction, which went into effect April 1, and the month has averaged well in sales volume. Morely Somers, manager of the San Francisco Phonograph Shop, is at present on the sick list, being confined in the Merritt Hospital of Oakland.

Emporium Adds Brunswick Line

Charles Mauzy, manager of the talking machine department of the Emporium, is gratified with the opening business on Brunswick machines and records, which have just been taken on in addition to the Victor line. The department gives two radio concerts daily. Mr. Mauzy is also manager of the radio department of the Emporium, and he is confident that the two departments are mutually beneficial.

Music Men Prepare for Shriners

Byron Mauzy is chairman of the Indiana committee for the big Shriner conclave, which will be held in San Francisco shortly, and Clark Wise is another local Shriner who is an active committeeman. The San Francisco music trade has a goodly number of Shriners among its members, and it is assured that visiting delegates in the music trades will be well taken care of. Sherman, Clay & Co. will turn over their entire top floor to the visiting musicians of Islam. The floor will be a club and rest room for the delegates, a place where they can congregate at odd moments and enjoy social intercourse with those of their own profession.

G. Q. Chase Returning Home

George Q. Chase, president of Kohler & Chase, who has been East since the middle of March, is on the way home. He left the East with Leon M. Lang, the new manager of the retail piano department, who has arrived here already. The company gave a dinner at the Indian Grill of the "State" café in San Francisco last week in honor of Leon M. Lang, the new manager of the piano department, and the affair was attended by all the sales force. The talking machine department in San Francisco is being remodeled somewhat, both in the display and record departments, in order to provide better facilities for handling the growing business.

Will Handle Radio Phonograph

J. M. Abrams, manager of the wholesale and retail talking machine departments, expects to have for sale within two weeks the new Burnham Supertone Radio phonograph, which combines the standard phonograph with a complete unit of a radio receiving station. The receiver will have a radius power of about five hundred miles and the instruments will sell from $300 up. Mr. Abrams says the call for such a machine is insistent and that the firm expects to make a wide distribution of the innovation, not only in the city, but in the country districts as well.

L. S. Giles a Visitor

L. S. Giles, the field sales representative of the General Phonograph Corp., of New York, was a visitor in San Francisco this month. He has been calling on the trade in the Northwest and from San Francisco left for Southern California. The Sophie Tucker selections of the Okeh records promise to have a big sale on the Coast.

News Brieflets

Andrew McCarthy, manager of the wholesale Victor department of Sherman, Clay & Co., has gone on a visit to the factories in the East.

Frank Anrys, general manager of the Wiley B. Allen Co., is taking an automobile trip through Southern California. The San Francisco store of the Wiley B. Allen Co. is undergoing a general Spring housecleaning.

will gather for a picnic and general "jinks" near San Francisco on May 14. Over two hundred are expected to attend the jollification.

I. S. Lesser, of the Blue Bird Phonograph Co., Los Angeles, has been in San Francisco for several weeks on business. His company is now manufacturing radio outfits in addition to phonographs.

Dohrmann Co. Opens New Department

The new talking machine department of the Nathan Dohrmann Co. is one of the most artistically appointed in the city, being equipped with four beautiful demonstration rooms and having ample display space on the mezzanine floor.

The Blue Bird phonograph, which is made in Los Angeles, is featured, together with the Vocalion records. Walter McCoy is in charge of the department.

Fresno Association Meets

The Fresno Unit of the Music Trades Association of Northern California gathered at an informal dinner at the Commercial Club in Fresno recently, to discuss matters of importance to the trade. The meeting was presided over by S. S. Hockett, second vice-president, of Fresno, and addresses were made by President George R. Hughes and First Vice-president Shirley Walker, both of whom came down from San Francisco to attend the meeting.

Remick Song Shop Remodeled

The Remick Song Shop on Market street has been remodeled in order to provide better facilities for the handling of Columbia machines and records. Mr. Adkins, the manager, has his troubles in accommodating his many customers in the limited area of the song shop, but under present conditions it is impossible to acquire more space at the present location.

SIMPLEX MOTOR POPULAR

New Electric Motor Being Made in Large Quantities—Company Rapidly Expanding

MONTREAL, CAN., May 6.—The Simplex Electric Phonograph Motor Co. is now turning out its new electric motor in quantities to fill the orders received from all parts of the United States and Canada. A new catalog is now on the press illustrating the motor in detail and the company is planning to give this catalog wide distribution. The officers state that in every case where the company sent out a Simplex motor on a thirty days' trial basis it received a substantial order, and the reception accorded the motor by the trade is a source of considerable pleasure.

During the past few weeks quite a number of orders have been received from talking machine dealers, but as the company is confining its efforts to manufacturers and jobbers exclusively it is turning these inquiries over to jobbers for their attention.

PATHE MAKING FAVORABLE PROGRESS

Expects to Be Able to Discharge All Claims—Business to Go Back to Owners

The Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., which has been operating under the direction of receivers in equity, is reported to be progressing in a favorable manner. Information emanating from a responsible source would indicate that a reorganization is imminent and that control of the company would soon pass back into the hands of the former management which was responsible for the growth of the Pathé organization. It is also learned from the same source that the company expects to be able to discharge all claims at 100 cents on the dollar.

LOSE SUIT AGAINST REFLEXO CORP.

The suit of Julius and Nestor Roos against the Reflexo Products Corp. was decided in the Municipal Court, New York City, in favor of the Reflexo Co. Each brother entered suit, asking damages of $1,000 each for alleged breach of contract between employer and employe. The trial lasted two days and it is reported that the evidence brought out through the trial was overwhelmingly in favor of the Reflexo Products Corp.

BLACKMAN TALKING MACHINE CO. IS TWENTY YEARS OLD

J. Newcomb Blackman Receives Many Letters and Telegrams of Congratulation From Friends and Business Associates on the Celebration, May 1, of the Twentieth Birthday of His House

On May 1 the Blackman Talking Machine Co., 28 West Twenty-third street, New York, Victor wholesaler, celebrated its twentieth birthday, and J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the company, received letters and telegrams of congratulation from his friends and business associates in all parts of the country. All of these messages conveyed a well-deserved tribute to Mr. Blackman's executive acumen and tireless efforts in behalf of the Victor industry as a whole.

The growth and rise of the Blackman Talking Machine Co. in the past two decades has been steady and impressive, rather than spectacular and flashy. In 1902 the company occupied a small space at 19 Beekman street, moving from there in 1905 to 97 Chambers street, where the foundation was laid for the present Blackman business.

After thirteen years at 97 Chambers street the company disposed of its retail business, concentrating its wholesale activities at 81 Reade street, which it had been occupying as part of its general quarters. This location, however, was very inadequate for the fast growing business, and in 1921 the Blackman Talking Machine Co. moved into its present quarters at 28-30 West Twenty-third street.

In its new home the company has at its disposal 21,000 square feet, and it is occupying one of the finest and most up-to-date wholesale establishments in the country. When the lease was signed for the second floor of the building has also devoted valuable time to civic affairs, and has represented the talking machine industry in numerous activities of nation-wide importance.

Mr. Blackman has three times received the highest honor that may be accorded a Victor jobber by his associates, having been elected president of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers at three conventions. At the tive of Victor prestige, and at the same time offer maximum service and co-operation to the Blackman clientele of Victor dealers. No expense was spared in furnishing or decorating the floor, and it stands to-day a tribute to the Blackman Talking Machine Co.'s twenty years of activity as a Victor distributor.

In 1920 Mr. Blackman inaugurated a profit-sharing plan for his employes that has been an important factor in the success of the company, and which has served as a model for commercial and industrial concerns in all sections of the country. By the provisions of this plan all employes who have been associated with the company for a period of one year or more participate in the profits, and have, therefore, a tangible interest in the success of the company.

The volume of business closed by the Blackman Talking Machine Co. is best represented by the fact that the sales for the last fiscal year were sixty times those of the first year in business, and the figures for December, 1921, alone were approximately ten times the first year's business. During that month there were times when one day's sales equaled those of the entire first year's business. These comparisons are interesting and illuminative.

Although Mr. Blackman has been personally responsible for the success of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., and personally shaped and directed its policies, he has always found time to interest himself in all matters aiming to better the talking machine industry as a whole. He present time he is a member of the executive committee of this Association, doing everything possible to serve this important body.

As a member of the Board of Directors of the American Fair Trade League, Mr. Blackman represents the talking machine industry as a whole. He is also president of the Brightwaters Holding Corp., Brightwaters, L. I., where he has his Summer home, and where he has been an active figure in all civic matters. Mr. Blackman is also treasurer of the Brightwaters Realty Corp., and president of the Blackman Securities Co. Associated with Mr. Blackman in the executive personnel of the Blackman Talking Machine Co. are Fred P. Oliver, vice-president and general manager of the company; C. L. Johnston, secretary and sales manager; J. F. Ashby, treasurer, and Geo. F. Thau, assistant secretary. They are all in thorough accord with the policies inaugurated by Mr. Blackman, which have shaped and sponsored the success of the company as a Victor wholesaler.

BETTER HOMES WEEK HELPS TRADE

MEMPHIS, TENN., May 6.—The celebration of Better Homes Week here in April had the effect of considerably stimulating all classes of trade, the talking machine trade not excepted. Special window displays, prizes and attractive inducements to the public helped to make the event an unqualified success from the standpoint of increased business.

DICTAPHONE FOR RADIO MESSAGES

Special Radio Recording Device of New York Times Receives European News Messages

A special dictaphone recording device has been built for use in connection with the reception of radio signals from Europe, when high-speed transmission is resorted to, according to an article by Arthur H. Lynch in Science and Invention, to whom we are indebted for the courtesy of the illustration. This device has been built especially for the New York Times, and it is used in that paper's radio-receiving station for copying press dispatches.

As will be seen from the accompanying photograph, there are two recording machines, driven by the same electric motor. Each machine is fitted with a clutch, which is used to carry the power from the driving motor to the drum, which carries the wax records. When one machine is in operation the other is standing still, with the exception of a short period, when both machines run simultaneously, in order to make certain of continuity of the message from one cylinder to the other. This is effected in the following manner:

The recording devices of both machines are fitted with telephone receivers which operate simultaneously. Blank wax cylinders are placed on the drums of both machines and one of them is put in operation. The recording device is moved along the wax record by a worm-gear and an arm extends from it which engages a small lever shown in the photograph. Pressure on the lever causes the clutch on the first recording machine to disengage and the machine which has been idle to start. The time the two machines run together depends upon the size of the teeth on the clutches.

It will be seen that the governor of the driving motor is quite similar to those found on phonographs and any speed may be had by adjusting it. By running the records at comparatively high speed when the signals are coming in and then placing them on a reproducing machine which is run at a lower speed it is possible for the operators to decipher messages which otherwise would be unintelligible to them, and this dual system makes certain that none of the incoming signals are lost while the records are being changed.

HARMS PIANO CO. IN NEW HOME

Well-known Aberdeen, S. D., Music House Features Victor and Brunswick Machines in Its Specially Constructed Department

ABERDEEN, S. D., May 5.—The George Harms Piano Co., George Harms, proprietor and manager, recently opened its new quarters in the Wells block, this city. The store has been entirely remodeled, and the Victor and Brunswick lines of machines and records are displayed in a specially constructed department, which is considered one of the most attractive in this part of the State. An extensive line of pianos is also handled. The staff includes, besides Mr. Harms, Miss Mildred Reese, in charge of records and sheet music; Henry Stellner, salesman; John Cushman and J. P. Jolin.

J. G. CORLEY IMPROVED IN HEALTH

John G. Corley, president of the Corley Co., of Richmond, Va., is reported as showing substantial improvement. His convalescence is now such that he expects to shortly leave the city for a period of rest in the Virginia mountains. Mr. Corley is particularly interested in the coming convention and is most hopeful of being able to attend.

T. J. Shepherd & Son, Orleans, Ind., have installed a radio equipment in their store. They make a practice to hook up the equipment with the Magnavox and enlist plenty of attention and publicity by giving a series of concerts in front of their store.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DOMINION OF CANADA

TORONTO CONTINUES TO BE AN ACTIVE TRADE CENTER

Sound Amplifier Patented by Gerhard Heintzman, Ltd.—Holley to Visit Sonora Dealers—Jewett Phonograph Co. of Canada Incorporated—Vocalion Recordings Please—News of Month

TORONTO, ONT., May 8.—Canadian patent rights have been granted Gerhard Heintzman, Ltd., on a new talking machine sound amplifier, the walls and sides of which are provided with a series of ribs, which may be varied in number, according to the size and area of amplifier. It is claimed these ribs, being placed in a fan shape and in conjunction with the deflector, equally distribute the sound waves to the orifice, taking care of all tones equally, thus making the rendition so that no tone or tones are hidden.

It is also claimed that, being ribbed, the higher-pitched tones receive the rigidity necessary, freeing them from any echo or hollowness sometimes apparent if not used in this manner.

The lower tones, having longer and slower vibrations, are therefore enriched and broadened by the gradual spreading of the fan-shaped principle of the ribs; also the relation of the vibrations or sound waves to the dimensions of the material between the ribs. In other words, high tones are amplified by the rigid portion of the board where it is ribbed and as soon as the distance becomes greater from each rib the board gradually resonates to the accommodation and benefit of the lower tones. The invention is claimed to properly balance all tones to the power value intended by the artist or artists when recording was made.

A new appointment on the staff of I. Montagnes & Co., Canadian Sonora distributors, is J. H. Holley, who will call on the retail dealers in the interests of the Sonora from Winnipeg to Vancouver and Victoria. Mr. Holley is a well-known man in Western Canada. His work will be to cover the Western provinces more minutely than has been possible in the past and is expected to mean the eventual opening of a branch office in this territory.

Edwin A. Stevenson, formerly president of the Regal Phonograph Co., Ltd., has joined the sales force of the Gold Medal Furniture Mfg. Co., Ltd., and will have charge of the talking machine sales department for the Province of Ontario.

When the May list of Brunswick recordings appears dealers will note the addition of some double-face operatic records. These, according to the Musical Merchandise Sales Co., Canadian Brunswick distributor, will be introduced into the Brunswick catalog, retailing in Canada at $1.75 to $2.25, and will be followed by others of the same nature from then on. They will bear gold labels and will replace in time the green label series, the single-faced operatic and classic discs, the production of which has been discontinued by the Brunswick organization.

Gordon Chase has become manager of Mason & Risch, Ltd., at Chatham, succeeding the late John Glassford. W. Connor, who has been temporarily in charge since Mr. Glassford's death, will continue as assistant to Mr. Chase.

Announcement is made of the incorporation of the Jewett Phonograph Co., of Canada, Ltd., with headquarters in Windsor, Ont. This new firm is capitalized at $950,000.

A "Diner" on one of the large Canadian railroad systems was recently equipped with a Brunswick phonograph. The conductor found such a marked appreciation of the music at meal-times that he ran an extra afternoon and evening program in the dining car.

The Robert Simpson Co., Ltd., is conducting a series of recitals by local artists who appear in person during the week in the talking machine department of this firm. They compose the following "His Master's Voice" artists: Frank Oldfield, Miss Vera McLean and R. H. Ruthven McDonald.

A series of musical demonstrations for school and music teachers at the Toronto Conservatory of Music marks an important step in the development of a new method of musical training.

By means of a specially made series of educational records played on a Grafonola children are led to an appreciation of the best music.

The present course, which has been marked by a large attendance of keenly interested Toronto teachers, is being conducted by Miss Mae E. Skilling and Miss Ethel McKee, of the educational department of the Columbia Graphophone Co.

The installation of talking machines with records in the public schools throughout Canada was urged by Bruce A. Carey, supervisor of music in the Hamilton (Ont.) schools in a talk before the Wentworth County Teachers' Association at Hamilton recently. Mr. Carey classified the benefits derived by the pupils of musical teaching as not only musical, but physical, mental and spiritual as well. It was valuable, he declared, as a developer of intellect, as well as a refining and civilized influence.

The London String Quartet, world-famous musical organization and Vocalion artists, has, at the insistent request of many music lovers, been recalled to Toronto for a second appearance this season.

In addition to several superb recordings the quartet has made exclusively for Vocalion records, Warwick Evans, the distinguished 'cello soloist, has also recorded a number of delightful solos that should be in every music lover's library. Scythes Vocalion Co., Ltd., Toronto, report a good demand among dealers for these particular selections.

McCORMACK'S RECOVERY PLEASES THE MONTREAL TRADE

Illness of Popular Victor Tenor Aroused Much Attention—Miss Pierce Opens Columbia Store—New Ordinance Prohibits Use of Phonograph Horns Projecting From Stores—Other News

MONTREAL, CAN., May 8.—Widespread interest was evinced in the recent illness of John McCormack, exclusive Victor artist, and the leading Montreal newspapers bulletined at various intervals during the day the progress made by the patient.

The phonograph department of H. P. Labelle, Ltd., now occupies the ground floor of its new building, with J. T. Lemieux in charge. The original "Windsor" phonograph and other makes are handled here.

Miss Pierce, for a number of years assistant to Miss Vezina, manageress of the Columbia Graphophone department of Almy's, Ltd., has opened a store on her own account at 431 Wellington street. For the present she will handle the Stewart phonograph and Columbia records.

V. Sgroi, one of Montreal's leading Columbia and Edison Amberola dealers, was the subject of a very flattering notice in a recent issue of The Standard, of this city. It pointed out how he started with a cash capital of $50 ten years ago, and now carries stock to the value of $50,000. Mr. Sgroi has an able assistant in his son.

One of the handsome main show windows of Goodwin's, Ltd., recently contained a number of Brunswick models which attracted considerable attention from passers-by. Manager Norman F. Rowell, of the phonograph department, reports business as fair.

A case has been brought to our attention whereby a firm manufacturing phonographs recently made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors. The trade-mark or transfers were sold to a dealer for a given sum who clapped them on a machine of his own make and sold them in competition with the original machine of the same make, now sold by a dealer who had a large number on hand at the time of the failure. He says it takes some tall explaining to convince customers that these two makes, while similar in name and sold at different prices, are not one and the same machine.

A new city ordinance has been passed by the City of Montreal prohibiting the use of all phonograph horns projecting from stores into the street, and any person found breaking this law is subject to a fine of $40. Commenting upon this law, one prominent dealer stated that the transmitting of music by this means netted him around $20 a month and was, he considered, a valuable asset to his business, as it invariably attracted attention to his store and was the means of having customers or probable buyers enter his place of business, and nine times out of ten converting them into buyers.

For this act Layton Bros. provided from stock an official Edison Diamond Disc Laboratory model phonograph which was used in conjunction with this musical act. Layton Bros. are authority for the statement that this artist's last appearance locally was the means of their selling a number of Edison phonographs.

Arthur Blouin, Sherbrooke, Que., is reorganizing and enlarging his record department. He reports the sale of Columbia Grafonolas and Brunswick phonographs as quite satisfactory.

The promotion and service department of His Master's Voice, Ltd., does not let an opportunity slip by for linking up its records with timely events of general interest to the music-buying public. The latest correlation has been with "School Days," a motion picture featuring Wesley Barry and his famous freckled face, that is

GIVING IMPETUS TO RECORD SALES

Winnipeg Dealers Would Like Manufacturers to Carry Advertising the Same Time Their Artists Are on Tour—Oliver With Wray Co.

WINNIPEG, MAN., May 8.—It has been pointed out before that not enough impetus is given to sales of records by the dealers and record companies when a series of great artists come through the West by the placing of advertising at the same time as the artists are making their tour. This is a matter which should be taken up by the different dealers' associations, who could collaborate with the musical representative of the leading daily newspaper in every town, in order that they may get the benefit. Timeliness in advertising is just as advantageous to the dealer as it is to the writer of newspaper articles and stories. During the past few weeks there has been considerable talk about the interesting musical standard which has been set up in Western communities within the past few years from the widespread influence of the talking machine and player-piano. It has caused many who were formerly content to hear operatic selections and drawing-room ballads sung at intervals by indifferent singers to wake up suddenly to find that they are no longer content with mediocre performances brought here by third-rate opera companies.

The local visit of the eminent pianist, composer and conductor and exclusive Columbia artist, Percy Grainger, to Regina, Sask., was the means of still further increasing the popularity of this artist's recordings and all Columbia dealers renewed activity in this direction.

W. A. Oliver, well known to the music trade of Eastern Canada, has been appointed manager of the new talking machine department of Wray's Music Store here. Victrolas, Brunswick phonographs and "His Master's Voice" records are carried.

C. D. M. Trading Co. to Look After the Marketing of Spraytone Portable Phonographs

The Spraytone Phonograph Co., Inc., Ridgewood, N. J., has appointed the C. D. M. Trading Co., 109 Lafayette street, New York, exclusive sales agent for the Spraytone portable. This does not affect the various other models manufactured by the company.

The Spraytone portable is a unique machine with a double-spring motor and full-size universal tone arm. It has, however, folding amplifying horns that act as tone modifiers. It is in mahogany finish, compact and weighs fourteen pounds.

The C. D. M. Trading Co. is already appointing distributors throughout the country. Among these is the Cabinet & Accessories Co., Inc., 135 West Thirty-fourth street, New York City, which has been appointed jobber for the metropolitan district. An intensive sales campaign has been inaugurated by the company.

DAYTON, O., May 6.—Following several weeks spent in remodeling its new store at 116 North Main street, this city, the Starr Piano Co. is now prepared to settle in the attractive new quarters, according to A. J. DeHays, local manager. A stock of new phonographs, pianos and player-pianos will be brought from the factory in Richmond, Ind., for the opening.

The White Furniture Co., of Williamsburg, Ky., was very seriously damaged by fire recently. It was partially covered by insurance.

Demand Growing—New Talking Machine Departments in Evidence—Live News Budget

BUFFALO, May 6.—Talking machine business has been showing a slow, but what many dealers believe is destined to be a permanent, improvement. The medium-priced machines of many makes are moving in increasing volume, while the models at higher prices are also moving fairly well.

One encouraging sign of the times is that the demand seems to be general. Nearly every retailer in the Buffalo district as well as those supplied from the wholesale houses here, has been making favorable reports of sales, and the general tone of business talk is more optimistic than it has been for some time.

Sales of grand opera records have been leaders here during the past few weeks, due to Buffalo's grand opera season. There has also been a gratifying increase in the sale of popular numbers and of standard records. Generally speaking, the trade outlook is better than it has been for some time past.

One of Buffalo's pioneer talking machine dealers retired from business on May 1, when C. E. Siegesmund closed out his store at 632 Main street and discontinued business. Mr. Siegesmund's stock, good-will, fixtures and his Victor franchise were taken over by A. Victor & Co., housefurnishings retailers, who have a retail store at Main and Genesee streets.

Victor & Co. at once began preparations for an elaborate set of quarters for their new Victor department. Opening of this department will take place in the near future. Arthur Victor will take personal charge of this department, which he plans to make one of the chief assets of the company's big department store. A full line of machines and records will be carried.

Mr. Siegesmund's retirement is a source of much regret among the trade, as he has been one of its real leaders for many years. Until very recently he was president of the Victor Dealers' Association of Western New York.

One of the finest talking machine departments in New York State will be found in the new music store which is about to be opened by J. N. Adam & Co. in the building in Washington street directly opposite the firm's six-story department store building. Under direction of Manager Stephen Butler, a talking machine department second to none in the vicinity is being installed as a feature of the new store.

Another fine new talking machine department about to be opened for public inspection is that which has been provided in the new Kurtzmann retail store in the Pierce Building, now nearing completion. Many new ideas in the way of talking machine and record merchandising are incorporated in the Kurtzmann store, it is understood.

Still another recent addition to Buffalo's fine talking machine retail departments is that in the new McClellan Music house in Main street, above Chippewa street.

Talking machine dealers have been giving their time to the Chamber of Commerce membership campaign, through which 1,500 new members are sought for the city's business organization. C. N. Andrews, head of the wholesale Victor house bearing his name, was the active leader of the dealers' campaign to add all of the leading men of the music industries to the Chamber's membership before the campaign closes.

The March meeting of the Victor Dealers' Association of Western New York was featured by a discussion of advertising. It was the consensus of opinion that periods of dull business should be the time for increased, rather than decreased advertising. The meeting followed noon luncheon served in the Hotel Iroquois.

Charles Hoffman, proprietor of one of Buffalo's leading Brunswick stores, has had his sales and showrooms remodeled. His patrons now find every convenience and facility for trading in the Hoffman establishment.

Lew Berk, who formerly conducted a talking machine store in South Clinton avenue, Rochester, is the manager of the new Song and Gift shop recently opened at 209 East Main street, in that city.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the U. S. District Court here by Daniel R. Rober, talking machine and record dealer of Jamestown, N. Y. Mr. Rober, who conducted his business under the name of the Song Shop, listed assets of $2,524 and liabilities of $6,609.

Columbia dealers in the Buffalo territory are giving 100 per cent co-operation in the national advertising campaign and are getting the results which co-operation usually brings. The Columbia branch here has been on the job providing instruments for the new Buffalo radio telephone broadcasting station.

The Victor Dealers Association of Buffalo held a special session on April 19, the occasion being the visit of J. J. Davin, secretary of the Reincke-Ellis Co., Chicago, who gave an hour's talk regarding the amount of money a Victor dealer can afford to spend on advertising and the media in which he should use this appropriation. Later Mr. Davin had the pleasure of visiting many of the local retail stores where he discussed matters of vital interest to the sales clerks in the various establishments.

Mamie Smith's records have had a big sale here since her recent appearance in the Broadway Auditorium. Nearly 2,500 persons attended.

Warren R. Truax has closed out his music store at East Rochester and expects to rest this Summer. In the Fall he will probably open a new music store in Canandaigua, N. Y.

The Flexola Phonograph Co., of Jamestown, N. Y., has begun commercial production of instruments.

Walter Mahoney has closed his talking machine store at Niagara Falls and has taken a position in one of Rochester's leading music houses.

TROY DEALERS JOINTLY ADVERTISE

Fine Display Made During Music Week by Leading Houses in Concerts and Publicity

TROY, N. Y., May 8.—The piano and talking machine dealers of this city celebrated Music Week with a strikingly arranged joint advertisement in the daily papers of May 3, the center of which consisted of some impressive and interesting disquisitions on the various phases of music and its importance. During the week the various music houses gave a number of entertainments, and Cluett & Sons especially had a Vocalion concert every afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m. On May 3 the Misses Nellie and Sara Kouns, sopranos, appeared with the Troy Vocal Society and the singing of these exclusive Vocalion artists was enthusiastically received. Their appearance in the Cluett store resulted in a greatly increased demand for their records. Troy was certainly placed on the map during Music Week, thanks to the enterprise of its music merchants.

The Trade in PHILADELPHIA and LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 6.—One of the features of the month that has been of particular interest to members of the local talking machine trade and which is expected to prove distinctly to their benefit was the Music Week celebration from April 30 to May 7. The celebration was State-wide in scope and the talking machine men gave to it their whole-hearted support and co-operation.

H. A. Weymann & Son, Victor wholesalers, sent out some excellent publicity to their dealers urging participation in Music Week with a view to impressing upon every person, young and old, the importance of good music in community and home life, and of the fact that the Victrola and Victor records were symbolic of the world's best music.

Florence J. Heppe, of C. J. Heppe & Son, also took an active interest in the campaign and it was largely through his efforts that arrangements were made for a course of twelve lectures on music before public school teachers by members of the Educational Department of the Victor Talking Machine department under the direction of Mrs. Frances E. Clark, director of that department.

Another Music Week enthusiast is Louis Buehn, head of the Louis Buehn Co., Victor wholesaler, and president of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, who is confident that real business will result from the interest aroused in music as a result of the many concerts and recitals. Mr. Buehn stated that a number of dealers arranged elaborate programs during the week, among them William F. Lamb, Pottstown, Pa., who, in addition to handling the Victor line, also directs Lamb's Orchestra, which gave several concerts in Pottstown and neighboring cities.

Mr. Buehn reports that business has been moving along in a normal manner and that a great deal of interest has been manifested by the public in the new Victor machines, horizontal models, which seem to appeal to patrons more than the well-known Victor upright models.

An Attractive Window Display

One of the most attractive window displays to be seen in Philadelphia during the last week was that at the Buehn Co. store. In keeping with the season there had been erected in the window a tall May pole covered with white silk ribbon and with streamers leading from the pole to the exhibits of various Victor models and records that were being shown. Large groups of Spring flowers added to the attractive display, which won the approval of the many hundreds of people who pass this window daily.

Alterations and Improvements at Penn Co.

Another Arch street house that is displaying its modern and progressive spirit is the Penn Phonograph Co., the Victor wholesaler, located at 913 Arch street. This company is making extensive alterations to its up-to-date four-story building, and the entire second floor has been remodeled in a most attractive way. Half of this floor will, in the future, be used as offices for the officials of the company, while the other half has been decorated most handsomely, and will be used for display purposes for visiting dealers and the public. A number of booths will be included in this section.

It is expected that these alterations will be completed within two weeks, and when they are finished it is certain that this company will have one of the most beautiful and up-to-date office buildings and display rooms to be found in Philadelphia. The third floor, which now houses the offices, will be used to increase the stock-room space.

Among the interesting visitors at the Penn Phonograph Co. headquarters during the last week was J. H. Hough, of Shenandoah, Pa., who gave an account of business conditions prevailing in his vicinity.

T. W. Barnhill a Lover of Art

T. W. Barnhill, of the Penn Co., is an ardent lover of art and takes great pride in the select collection of paintings by noted masters which he has gathered together during his life. Naturally he was greatly interested in the observance of Artists' Week recently. During this period dozens of stores along Chestnut street and a few other thoroughfares exhibited paintings loaned by the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts. In commenting upon these displays Mr. Barnhill said that he found it very difficult to hurry along Chestnut street when there were so many beautiful paintings to attract his attention.

Hopkins Gets the Victor Agency in Chester

Harry W. Weymann, head of H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., announces that the Hopkins Piano Co., 531 Market street, Chester, has obtained a Victor agency through the purchase of the stock of the Norwood Home Store, located in Norwood, a little town about six miles from Chester. The latter company has discontinued business. The Hopkins Co. plans to open a beautiful store, well equipped to do an extensive business.

"I am glad to be able to say that we have been doing an excellent business in the new Victrolas, horizontal style," said Mr. Weymann. "It is really remarkable how enthusiastically the public has welcomed these new models. In nearly every instance where our dealers have grouped their display of these handsome instruments separate from the display of the upright models they have shown to much better advantage with the result that they have attracted widespread attention and approval, and we have received many repeat orders from these active Victor dealers.

"According to many reports that we have received, the Victor dealers are experiencing a return to normal business conditions to an extent that is greater than was generally expected. Our dealers assert that the April sales of Victor machines and records have been a decided increase over those made in March and are also well above those made last year during the same period."

Meeting of Columbia Dealers

The monthly meeting of the Columbia Grafonola Dealers' Association was held on April 25 at the local Columbia branch, where the latest business developments were discussed at length. One of the chief subjects was the growth of the radio business, and P. C. Cummin, branch manager, told the dealers of the company's views in that connection.

Mid-month Suggestion Hanger Popular

The dealers' service department of H. W. Weymann & Son, Inc., under the direction of Charles Paulson, reports the mid-month suggestion hanger with which they supply their dealers is continuing to stimulate business in a remarkable manner. Through the suggestions on these hangers dealers have been completely sold out on otherwise slow-moving numbers and have had to re-order from Weymann. Part of the work of this department is the personal co-operation of the dealer, and Mr. Paulson is giving much of his attention to this end.

Economy Co. Buys Hunt's Stock

The Victor talking machine stock of Hunt's Drug Store in Danville, Pa., was recently taken over by the Economy Store Co., of Bloomsberg. The Economy Co. has installed considerable new Unico equipment and it now has one of the most attractive talking machine departments in that section of the State.

merly with the Geo. D. Ornstein Co. Mr. Pierce takes the place made vacant by the resignation of E. P. Bliss, who has entered the radio field.

Marriage of Robert F. Bensinger

There was quite a gathering of talking machine men in the city recently when Miss Dora B. Lovenstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Lovenstein, of Philadelphia and Jenkintown, was married to Robert F. Bensinger, son of the president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. Among those attending the ceremony were: C. T. Miller, vice-president; P. L. Deutsch, general sales manager; H. F. Davenport, secretary, and Edward M. Strauss, Eastern district manager, with headquarters in New York.

Cheney Phonographs on the Sea

The Cheney phonograph is going to attain quite some prominence on the sea, judging from the fact that the following ships built by the New York Ship Building Co. at its yards have been equipped with Cheney machines: Old North State, American Legion, Southern Cross, Hoosier State, Blue Hen State, Centennial State, Bay State and Keystone State.

Death of August Pleibel

August Pleibel, well known in the talking machine trade through his connection with the Victor department of H. A. Weymann & Son, died the closing week of April after a month's illness. The deceased had been connected with the Weymann house for fifteen years and his death, which followed an operation, has caused quite some regret.

Pathé Offices in Philadelphia

The Pathé Co. has opened local offices on the fourth floor at 1209 Arch street, with C. W. Flood in charge. There are some rumors here that the Pathé Co. is going to manufacture a combined phonograph and radio.

A Columbia Visitor

Among the recent visitors to the local Columbia Co. branch was H. C. Cox, treasurer of the company, who expressed himself as being well pleased with the progress being made.

Victor Horizontal Types Being Featured

In talking with various Victor retailers throughout the city, all reported sales of the various new horizontal types of Victrola. The proportion of sales of this type of machine in comparison with the upright types varies greatly. In some instances the sales of the horizontal type constituted twenty-five per cent of the total machine sales, whereas in a prominent chain of stores located in various parts of the city, the sales of these instruments constituted seventy-

Mr. Bliss has a host of friends in the Victor trade, and this advancement will be welcome news to them.

RETURNS FROM TWO MONTHS' TRIP

Harry Beach, Vice-president of the Unit Construction Co., at His Desk After Coast-to-Coast Trip—Reports Average Business Good

Harry A. Beach, vice-president of the Unit Construction Co., manufacturer of Unico ware-room equipment, returned to the headquarters of the company on the first of the month, thereby completing a two months' trip throughout the country, extending as far as the Pacific Coast. Mr. Beach made stops at the principal cities en route. While general business conditions might be termed good, business was found rather spotty in character, according to the locality. While in some cities business was slightly below normal, reports from other cities brought the average up through reports of very good business. The general impression to be found everywhere was that business was on the upward trend and that it was only a matter of a short time before very good business would be experienced everywhere.

POOR MANAGEMENT HURTING TRADE

J. C. Payne, of the Victor Talking Machine Co., Addresses Sales Managers

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 3.—Business throughout the country is not as dull as sometimes surmised, according to J. C. Payne, legal adviser of the Victor Talking Machine Co., who spoke at the closing banquet of the Sales Managers' Association at the Bellevue-Stratford in this city recently. "Business is held up," he said, "by fright on the part of the seller and not on the part of the buyer."

Mr. Payne, who has recently returned from a trip around the country investigating conditions for his company, said business must become less materialistic. Dealers are in a chaotic state, he believes, because of poor co-operation with manufacturers. In many cases where the retailer showed activity his business was doubled, he found.

COLUMBIA DEALER IN NEW HOME

Starr & Moss Co., of Philadelphia, Occupying Attractive Quarters—Energetic Sales Work Triples Record Sales

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 4.—The Starr & Moss Co., 3635-37-39 Germantown avenue, this city, has just moved into its new home at this address. The company, which handles Columbia Grafonolas and Columbia records, is now occupying one of the most attractive talking machine establishments in the State, and its new home is a distinct tribute to the able management of Harry Sommers, who is in charge of the Columbia department.

The Starr & Moss Co. has a novel way of building up Columbia record business, and the plan is worth trying, as it has been instrumental in tripling record sales. Each month the sales force distributes Columbia catalogs and supplements personally to the residents in the surrounding territory, thereby rendering service, creating a feeling of personal good-will and stimulating friendship between the customer and the store.

The members of the sales staff are Miss Low, a very capable saleslady, and El. Walls, who has been identified with the talking machine industry for five years. Mr. Walls is well known on the theatrical stage, having appeared in vaudeville, musical comedies and stock repertoire companies. He numbers among his friends members of the vaudeville profession throughout the country, and he has been exceptionally successful with the Starr & Moss Co.

THE NEW COLUMBIA MOTOR

The new Columbia motor has been talked about all Winter and now that it has made its appearance in the new table model at $150, a word about its construction is permissible. The first impression one has in looking it over is the careful thought given to all its details by the designer.

What should prove of utmost importance to the operation of this motor is the oil feed system, whereby oil from a small receptacle at the top of the motor plate is fed to all of the parts which need constant or frequent oiling.

The spring cage, one drum of which contains two main springs, is compact, neat, and easily removed. The ratchet and dog are positive, and so arranged that, should the gears become jammed while the main springs are wound up, the dog or pawl can be released and, with the aid of the winding key as a brake, springs can be unwound and the cage removed. This feature is a great time saver for repairmen and can be appreciated by those men who have repaired many of the Type C Columbia motors, in instances where the intermediate gears have become jammed to their shafts. The main drive gear carries the power to a second gear attached to a shaft, on the other end of which is another gear acting on the turntable spindle, in the spiral drive fashion made familiar to us by the Victor and Edison disc motors.

The circumference of the governor worm drive gear, the depth of the cut of its teeth, and the large cut of the governor spindle all contribute to the smooth and easy running of the motor. The governor balls are smaller than those used on the old style motors.

The automatic stop has been improved to such an extent that the motor is operated in its starting and stopping features entirely by the movement of the tone arm.

Taken as a whole the motor should prove to be one of the best and one that the repairmen will find pleasure in adjusting and repairing.

Regarding Spring Repairing Machine

Cleveland, O., April 25, 1922.

Dear Sir: I should like to hear further regarding the machine for repairing broken phonograph springs invented by Dominick Ruff, of Youngstown, O. I fail to see anything further on the subject in the April issue of The World, but am of the opinion that if the machine does the work as you stated in the March issue, it will prove a great saving to all repairmen. Kindly send me Mr. Ruff's address. Yours very truly, (Signed) J. M. Jones.

Answer—Mr. Ruff's address is 246 West Federal street, Youngstown, O.

LOS ANGELES

Speculation About Radio Continues—R. L. Rayner Becomes Cheney and Okeh Jobber—J. R. Pickering in New Post—Trade Activities

LOS ANGELES, CAL., May 6.—Los Angeles is sharing with the rest of the country an almost overwhelming radio excitement, and speculations are rife with regard to the effect which this interest in radio and radio sets will have upon the talking machine business. It would seem, however, that the future can be assured to the talking machine dealer by his running both with the hare and the hounds; at present, he does not know which will be hare and which will be hounds. In other words, the talking machine dealer might do worse than install radio sets and radio demonstration rooms himself. Some dealers have already done so and are receiving far more orders than they can take care of. This invasion of the electric business has led many observers to remark that the future of sales of radio sets will be between the electric supply store and the music store, with the ultimate triumph and monopoly, if properly developed and intelligently handled, of the latter.

Sonora Phonograph Equipped With Radio

Sonora period models with radio sets installed in the spaces which were formerly used for records and record albums, have already made their appearance at Barker Bros. and knots of men and women, customers and others, gather every afternoon to listen in and hear concerts and talks which are being received. In addition, separate radio sets are for sale from a regular radio department which has its place in the music section. J. W. Boothe, general manager, states that orders for radio and magnavox sets are far ahead of the present supply.

Cheney and Okeh Jobber Appointed

C. E. Sanders, of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., and M. O. Giles, of the General Phonograph Corp., spent several days in Los Angeles recently, and announced the appointment of R. L. Rayner as distributor of the Cheney phonograph and Okeh record for this section. Mr.

Rayner is a successful business man and capitalist who has resided in Los Angeles for the past two years. His firm, which will be known as Munson & Rayner, will be engaged in the wholesale business only, and the future policy outlined indicates that no expense will be spared in placing the Cheney and Okeh records among dealers of the highest reputation only, and establishing and maintaining a name which will at all times carry dignity and prestige.

Parmelee Dohrmann to Enlarge

The phonograph department of the Parmelee Dohrmann Co. will be very much enlarged in the near future, and, in all probability, it will occupy space on the main floor. Mrs. H. P. Howard took over the management of the department some few weeks ago and has succeeded in demonstrating to the firm's satisfaction the wonderful possibilities of this new department which started last Fall. Mrs. Howard is well known in Los Angeles and was perhaps still better known in San Francisco and Oakland; she was successively and successfully engaged as manager of the branch stores in the latter city for the Hauschildt Music Co. and Byron Mauzy. The Blue Bird phonograph and Vocalion records are carried.

Assistant Manager at Sherman Clay

Charles Ruggles, manager of the Los Angeles branch of Sherman, Clay & Co., has appointed J. R. Pickering as his assistant. The great increase of business as shown last year has necessitated a large increase of the staff, and new and larger quarters will be occupied within the next month or two; Mr. Ruggles has found it necessary to obtain an assistant and selected Mr. Pickering, who is well known among the trade and won a reputation for hard work and helpful co-operation while engaged in a wholesale capacity in this territory by the Aeolian Co.

Walter S. Gray Obtains Unico Line

H. A. Beach, vice-president of the Unit Construction Co., completed arrangements with the Walter S. Gray Co. whereby his company's products will be handled on the Pacific Coast by that well-known phonograph accessory company. Mr. Beach met Mr. Gray in Los Angeles last month and traveled with him to San Francisco.

New Radio Manufacturers

The directors of the Blue Bird Talking Machine Co. have formed a company known as the Radio Supply Co. for the manufacture of radio sets, and part of the Blue Bird factory is already being used for this purpose.

Columbia Manager Covers Territory

William F. Stidham, Los Angeles branch manager of the Columbia Co., has been visiting a large number of towns in his territory by auto.

During one week, recently, he traveled 1,150 miles, calling at a number of cities, including San Diego, Santa Barbara and Bakersfield. Mr. Stidham, who drives a Buick Six, states that an average speed of thirty-five miles an hour, when steadily maintained, will enable one to travel great distances with apparently small effort.

Addresses Association Meeting

N. B. Seabrook, of the Mutual Service Division of the Dodge Mfg. Co., was an invited guest at the April meeting of the Music Trades Association of Southern California. Mr. Seabrook addressed the members, explaining the purposes intended in the use of the Seabrook instrument in the leading theatres by which new releases of records could be heard by the large crowds of people attending.

Bullock's Victrola Department Opens

The opening of the new Victrola department at Bullock's Department Store took place on May 1. The new department is on the sixth floor and is a model of efficiency and is beautifully appointed in every respect. Announcement of the opening of this new section states that "Victor talking machines and records will be exploited in a manner harmonious with the character of the Victor product and the purpose of Bullock's." W. V. Ray has been appointed manager of the Victrola sales, with Miss R. Johnson in charge of the records. Mr. Ray has had eight years of experience in the U. S. and Canada with the Victor line, both in a wholesale and retail capacity.

Artistic Opera Windows Interest Public

During the recent appearance of the Chicago Opera Association in one week's grand opera, some excellent window displays were shown by Los Angeles music dealers. A number of scenes from the operas were shown and attracted a great deal of attention, enhancing the sale of seats at the opera as well as demand for operatic records. Barker Bros.' showing of a scene from "Thais" was much admired, also the miniature balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet." Great credit for the arrangements is due to Miss Donzella Cross, special Education Department representative of Sherman, Clay & Co.

Prof. Forest Cheney, inventor of the Cheney phonograph, recently embarked on a transcontinental tour, accompanied by both partners of the Van Korn-Shower Co., Michigan State distributors of the Cheney line.

BALTIMORE

Business Slightly Improved—Columbia Drive—Victor Billboard Publicity—Cohen & Hughes Campaign—New Dealers—The News

BALTIMORE, MD., May 8.—April business, generally speaking, was fair, according to consensus of opinion of the jobbing trade here, and, while "spotty," was above that of last year. The outlook for May is better, judging by the business done so far this month, and will, no doubt, run ahead of May, 1921. If it does not many of the best-posted men in the trade will be very much disappointed. As Manager Roberts, of E. F. Droop & Sons, put it, "If the business of May does not exceed that of last year I will be one of the most disappointed men in the business, and will feel like going into the shoe shining business."

Close Big Columbia Drive

Very encouraging reports are being received from the South, especially North Carolina, according to W. S. Parks, manager of the local branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., who has just returned from a trip to Norfolk, Va., where an aggressive two weeks' campaign has just closed. During the campaign 10,000 lines of newspaper advertising were used, and the result was very satisfactory. Salesman Schwartz, working with the firm of McGee & Co. there, sold twelve machines in one day, and the rest of the dealers also did a record-breaking business. O. F. Benz, general sales manager of the Columbia Co., spent several days making an auto trip with Manager Parks through the Eastern Shore and was very well satisfied with the prospects for business in that section, the dealers being encouraged over the outlook for bumper crops this Summer, which means that the farmers will be prosperous again. H. C. Cox, treasurer of the Columbia Co., was another visitor to the local branch this month.

Manager Parks is now on a trip through North Carolina and writes that business is steadily getting better in that territory. Many accounts which have been inactive for some time are taking on new life and collections are considerably better.

Cohen & Hughes Start Victor Campaign

Cohen & Hughes, Inc., are conducting a very active campaign in the interest of Victor dealers generally, one feature of which includes an offer to multigraph circular letters for the trade at actual cost. Not only will they multigraph the letters, but will also prepare special copy for dealers to meet local conditions or featuring any machines or records on which the firm should happen to be overstocked. In addition they also will make window displays at actual cost, reproducing the displays made by the Lexington Shop here, which are acknowledged to be the best of any in the city and have also proved their worth in actual business results.

Plan Victor Billboard Display

The Victor Dealers' Association of Baltimore is now outlining plans for a co-operative billboard display which will be carried out on an extensive scale. While plans so far are still in a tentative stage the move has progressed far enough to assure that it will be carried out. The city will be covered by twenty-two billboards featuring Victor machines and records, but no one dealer's name will appear in the advertisement. The Association at its last meeting at the Southern Hotel, when a luncheon was served, also took up the question of "gyp" dealers, and, while no action was taken, the matter was thoroughly discussed and a committee appointed to bring in a report at the next meeting with some recommendation for stopping this detrimental class of business, which is injurious not only to the dealer but to the manufacturer as well.

Victor Salesmanship Class

Frank A. Delano, of the Victor Co., will be instructor of a class in salesmanship which will be conducted during the week of the fifteenth at the salesrooms of the Chickering warerooms, Inc., on North Howard street, and to which the trade of this territory has been invited by both the Victor jobbers, E. F. Droop & Sons and Cohen & Hughes. Both of these firms have thoroughly circularized the trade and explained just what the proposition means in the way of getting ideas on salesmanship that it would be impossible to obtain without a special trip to the factory.

New Victor Accounts

New accounts reported by local jobbers include Smith & Boschen, who will open a store in the old Knabe Building, and who will handle the Columbia line, and the Talking Machine Shop, of Hagerstown, which handles Victor products exclusively.

Dealers' Displays at Fair

Talking machine dealers who had a display at the "Better Homes Exposition" at the Fifth Regiment Armory during the week of May 1 included the Hammann & Levin Co., A. Burdwise, Gomprecht & Bensch, Amberg & Jordan and the Phonolamp Co.

Giving Prospect List to Trade

The firm of Cohen & Hughes, which a short time ago retired from the piano business, has made a list of A No. 1 customers of the old house and will distribute the same as prospects to the trade, giving each dealer as far as possible leads in his immediate vicinity.

Praise for New Columbia Catalog

Dealers here are complimenting the Columbia Co. on its new 1922 catalog, which has been distributed among the trade and which is one of the most complete and attractive catalogs issued for some time.

The Southern Hotel is the first hostelry in Baltimore to install a radio outfit and is using the Columbia M. V. 1 magnavox with excellent results. The outfit was installed by the Westinghouse Co. and is one of the most complete in this section of the country.

NEW ORLEANS TRADE MARKING TIME

Merchants Getting Results by Hard Work—Flood Affects Trade—Harris-Loeb Doing Big Brunswick Business—Dealers Favor Radio

NEW ORLEANS, LA., May 6.—The talking machine business here is apparently marking time for the present. While there has been no noticeable move in the direction of a further increase in business, according to local dealers, there has been no backsliding, and despite certain unsatisfactory conditions merchants are courageously bending every effort to take advantage of opportunities for better business. The disastrous flood, which has swept away many levees along the Mississippi River, has inundated a great part of this State. Several dealers report canceled orders as a result of this, one reporting the loss of two piano sales.

The Harris-Loeb Piano Store, which celebrated its formal opening several weeks ago, has been doing a splendid business in Brunswick machines, which it handles exclusively. Sales have been far beyond all expectations, according to President Harris, who has just returned from a trip to Chicago. Sales of records have also been considerably better than expected.

Business at Maison Blanche has also improved decidedly during the past month, according to J. D. Moore. Mr. Moore stated that an order for $5,000 worth of talking machines for immediate shipment has been placed.

Local music merchants are looking with favor on the increasing popularity of the radio here. It is the consensus of opinion that this rapidly growing fad will not be detrimental to the music business, but on the contrary will be decidedly beneficial to the talking machine trade, particularly in the record line, due to the fact that persons hearing a selection broadcasted by radio which strikes their fancy will be influenced toward buying the recording of that air.

NEW GERMAN RECORD FILE PATENTED

A new device for filing talking machine records has been patented in Germany, according to Popular Mechanics. The device consists of a heavy paper envelope having a cardboard hanger at the top. The bottom edge of the envelope is also of cardboard so formed as to prevent the record from rolling out. Space is provided for indexing on the lower corner of the envelope, so that the figures are plainly visible when the records are hung in the cabinet.

The Hessig-Ellis Drug Co., of Memphis, Tenn., distributor of the Sonora line of phonographs in this vicinity, has added the Vocalion Red records to its stock.

SPECIAL VOCALION RECORD PREPARED FOR EQUITY SHOW

Several Artists Participating in the Annual Actors' Equity Show Collaborated in Making Unique Record—The First Record of Its Kind Ever Produced—Released on May 7

A distinct novelty in connection with the annual Actors' Equity Show held on Sunday evening, May 7, at the Metropolitan Opera House was the special Vocalion record bearing bits of recording by a number of the stars of the show and which is in every particular unique.

It is the first time that so many different artists of distinction have had a part in the making of a single record, and it is felt that it will be of unusual interest to talking machine owners, not alone for its intrinsic value, but for its significance as a souvenir of the occasion.

On one side of the record Raymond Hitchcock, DeWolf Hopper, Joseph Cawthorne, Florence Moore, introduced by Richard Barthelmess of movie fame, have contributed some of their wittiest lines and songs to "An All-star Comedy." On the reverse side is an Actors' Equity fox-trot record of "Songs of Yesterday by Stars of Today," with the Bar Harbor Society Orchestra snappily playing the accompaniment to old-time choruses sung by Ivy Sawyer and Joseph Santley of "The Music Box Revue," Louise Groody and Oscar Shaw from "Good Morning Dearie," Lillian Lorraine and Douglas Stevenson from "The Blue Kitten," and Olga Cooke and Bertram Peacock, stars of "Blossom Time."

The clever Actors' Equity Vocalion record made its debut at the May 7 performance at the Metropolitan Opera House, and is on sale in theatres, Aeolian Co. stores and at Vocalion dealers.

Review of the Trade—Music Memory Contest Big Success —Store Openings and Changes

DETROIT, MICH., May 9.—“Business is what you make it” was the recent remark made by one of our liveliest talking machine dealers, who has been in the business for about three years and who has built up a very substantial clientele. This man didn't know a great deal about the talking machine industry when he started, but he did know from the success that he made in other lines that the man who hustles is bound to produce no matter in what business he may be engaged. And so when he started to handle talking machines he realized that although a certain amount of trade came to him he could not make real money at the end of the year unless he took on considerable additional business—and to get it he went after it by personal solicitation and advertising. Wherever these principles are put into effect the dealer need have no worry about making a good profit.

Great Music Memory Contest

By the time this issue of The World is in the hands of our readers Detroit will have entered upon a gigantic city-wide Music Memory Contest conducted by the Detroit News, the Detroit Talking Machine Association and the Detroit Music Trades Association. The whole thing started some weeks ago when the Talking Machine Association sent a letter to the owners of the News, asking that publication to sponsor and promote a city-wide music appreciation contest, following the successful completion of the Music Memory Contest held in the public schools. On April 11 the News, after meeting with the committee from the Talking Machine Association and the various dealers, agreed to sponsor and promote the contest by every means in its power. A staff of newspapermen, headed by Rex G. White, has been placed in charge of the News end of the affair, and they will devote their entire time to its promotion and development for the purpose of popularizing and making the affair a huge success. The committee of the Detroit Talking Machine Association consists of Peter C. Sweeney, the Edison Shop, chairman; Samuel Lind, of Lind & Marks, Aeolian-Vocalion distributors; Phil H. Lang, president of the Association; C. S. Porter, of Grinnell Bros. E. P. Andrews, of the J. L. Hudson Music Co. talking machine department, and Mr. Bowman, of the Janney-Bowman Co., have been added to the committee. Owing to the brief interval of time, the committee felt that the underwriting plan of furnishing prizes was most feasible. On April 24 this proposal was put before the local jobbers, as a result of which prizes aggregating $12,300 will be offered to the winners. The committee has divided the city into eighteen districts, with the following prizes to be awarded in each district: First prize, $200 talking machine; second prize, $100 talking machine, and third prize, $50 talking machine. This makes a total of $6,300 in district prizes. In addition there will be three capital prizes offered as follows: First prize, choice of a baby grand model of Mason & Hamlin, Steinway, Chickering and Knabe. This prize is the donation of the Detroit News. A second grand prize is offered by Grinnell Bros. in the shape of their own make of player-piano, valued at $800. A third grand prize is a Brambach Baby Grand valued at $635, offered by the J. L. Hudson Music Co. A fourth grand prize is an eighteenth century Adam model of New Edison phonograph, a donation of R. B. Alling, of the Edison Shop, and valued at $375.

There will be special prizes for professional musicians, who have been asked to participate in the contest. There is a total of four prizes in this grouping, the total value of which is $1,225. They are as follows: $500 period model Columbia Grafonola; $300 Sonora phonograph; $250 Cheney phonograph and $175 Pathé phonograph.

There will be junior prizes for children up to eighteen years of age, which will be aside from the prizes already mentioned. The four prizes offered in this grouping are a $400 Brunswick phonograph, a $250 Manophone, a $225 Jewett Queen Anne console phonograph and a $175 Pathé phonograph.

In order to encourage competition among the Women's Clubs the members of such organizations are asked to participate, and there will be three prizes for the winners, as follows: $300 Vocalion, $250 Brunswick and a $45 Columbia with $5 worth of records.

Even the clerks in the retail stores in the downtown section are asked to take part in the contest, and so four prizes will be awarded to this grouping as follows: $295 Chippendale Edison phonograph, $145 Cheney talking machine, $100 Victrola and $50 Sonora phonograph.

Last, but not least, the Sunday schools are invited to have their pupils enter the contest, and four prizes are offered in this grouping: $200 Sheraton model New Edison phonograph, $150 Pathé phonograph, $145 Cheney talking machine and $60 Sonora phonograph.

Fifty themes from fifty famous compositions will be featured. It is planned to have hotels, restaurants, cabaret orchestras play them, and the News will broadcast them over its own radio. Music dealers will also play them and explain them at stated hours of the day in their establishments. The downtown stores will feature them during the day, while the outskirt dealers will feature them in the evenings.

All leading musical organizations of the city are being urged to co-operate in making the Music Memory Contest the greatest musical event ever staged in Detroit from a standpoint of interesting young and old, rich and poor alike, and especially the masses. While some of the smaller cities have had Music Memory Contests, never has any contest been planned so carefully and so extensively. The primary reason why the talking machine dealers are anxious for it is that it will stimulate interest in music during the usual slack Summer months, in addition to familiarizing the general public with the works of the best composers, which ultimately will result in the sale of higher-priced musical merchandise. And it is true that unless people have some understanding and appreciation of better music they will not be so apt to invest heavily in anything but the cheaper priced pianos, players, talking machines and records.

In the recent contest conducted by the Detroit public schools the News distributed a number of talking machines, while special prizes were offered by The Edison Shop and Grinnell Bros.

C. A. Grinnell, president of Grinnell Bros., has returned from Sea Breeze, Florida, where he spent a good part of the Winter.

First Prize for Charles Roat

Charles Roat, well-known talking machine dealer of Battle Creek, Mich., was awarded first prize in the Michigan composers competition, conducted under the auspices of the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs, which was the first contest of its kind ever held in this State. His prize was for the best song with piano and string accompaniment entitled "Regrets."

Saginaw Cabinet Co. Reorganization

After having been under a receivership in the United States Court for the past eighteen months, the business and property of the Saginaw Cabinet Co. was turned back to that company on April 25 and the Security Trust Co., of Detroit, was discharged as receiver. The cabinet company is to be reorganized and will resume operations. The company formerly made phonograph cabinets for the Vitanola Talking Machine Co., of Chicago.

Budget of Columbia News

H. E. Gardiner, manager of the Detroit branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., returned recently from a visit to a number of towns in Ohio and Michigan, calling upon Columbia dealers who have been participating in the mammoth Columbia advertising campaign which is going over so successfully. Mr. Gardiner states that the business at the branch is substantially ahead of the same period last year, and believes that the Columbia advertising campaign is responsible for a great deal of the increase. Mr. Gardiner finds that many of the larger dealers are developing every detail of their service in order to give their customers satisfaction.

Herman C. Schultz is a new member of the Columbia sales staff at Detroit, bringing with him many years of experience, including a previous connection in the Columbia organization. Another recent addition to the sales force is Robert Tilford, who has been visiting the trade in the northern part of Michigan and who has closed a number of desirable accounts.

Among the Columbia dealers who have secured splendid results from the Columbia advertising campaign are the following: Charles S. Ferrin Co., Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Stern Furniture Co., Jackson, Mich.; Budd's Music House, Lansing, Mich.; A. H. Van Doran, Gaylord, Mich.; C. F. Allan, Wyandotte, Mich.; Hubble Talking Machine Shop, Monroe, Mich.; Summerfield & Hecht, Detroit, Mich.; City Music Co., Detroit, Mich.; Detroit Music Co., Detroit, Mich.; Banner Furniture Co., Toledo, O., and Wauseon Music Shoppe, Wauseon, O.

Exhibitors at the Radio Show

When the Radio Show was held recently in the General Motors Building there were three displays of combination phonograph and radio. The companies exhibiting were: Lyradion Sales & Engineering Co., of Mishawaka, Ind.; the Jewett Phonograph Co. and the Detroit Radio & Talking Machine Co. Kenyon W. Mix was in charge of the Lyradion display, which was very complete, necessitating the use of three booths to show the entire line of uprights and consoles. Mr. Mix was more than pleased with the friendly reception by the public and states that there is certain to be a big demand for the combination radio and phonograph. The Jewett display was in charge of C. Fred Underwood, general manager of the company, who has been manifesting considerable personal interest in this new type of machine, and who, like Mr. Mix, believes that with the development and growth of the radio will come an increased demand for the combination machine. The Detroit Radio & Talking Machine Co. displayed cabinets of period designs.

Installs Victor Department

The Robinson-Cohen Co., a high-grade retail furniture dealer, at the corner of High and Hastings streets, has installed a complete department for handling Victrolas and Victor records. It has put in the entire line and is making a city-wide bid for business. "We feel that we are indeed fortunate in securing the Victor line, and we are going to make it one of the most important adjuncts of our business," said one of the members of the firm.

Brisk Business With Grinnell

Charles H. Grinnell, manager of the Victor wholesale department of Grinnell Bros., reports that business has been very brisk for the past six weeks and at present he is having a shortage on some of the models. He states that both machine and record business is showing a splendid increase over last year for the months of April and May.

Enthusiastic Over Trade Outlook

Sam Lind, of Lind & Marks Co., Aeolian-Vocalion distributors, was in New York recently on business. He is extremely enthusiastic about business for the balance of the year and says that even if business should slump in the Summer months, which is the usual thing, business in the Fall should be very brisk for the retailer.

L. W. COLLINGS GOING AFTER TRADE

Victor Wholesaler Carrying on Special Drive in Northern Pennsylvania Territory

L. W. Collings, general manager of Collings & Co., the Victor distributors, of Newark, N. J., made an extended trade trip into northeastern Pennsylvania territory during the early part of this month. Mr. Collings is making a sales drive on the new horizontal types of Victrolas, which he accompanies with an educational campaign outlining to dealers successful methods of placing these models before the public.

Flag System of Classification for Records—Dealers Are Using Broadcasting to Advantage—Columbia Activities—Month's News

CINCINNATI, O., May 2.—Believing that the old standard records—those popular ballads, classics, band records, etc.—which sold so well three or four years ago, must be the basis of any permanent large sale of records, A. H. Bates, of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., wholesale dealer in Victrolas, has planned out an extensive "flag system" of classification, more comprehensive than any of its kind heretofore attempted.

It is Mr. Bates' plan—a plan now progressing well toward completion—to employ the 1,000 best sellers among these standard records which sold so well some time ago, but which retailers recently have ignored in the effort to sell up-to-the-minute jazz music. This list of "standard" records would include such perennial sellers as "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," and others of that unfailingly popular type, as well as band music, violin, voice, in fact, just what Mr. Bates specifies—the 1,000 best sellers of diversified types of instrumental and vocal music.

Mr. Bates plans to list these thousand records in various broad classifications: Band, Artists, Christmas, Accordion and many others. Opposite each classification on this prepared list will appear a small square of color—red, blue, green, red and green, black and yellow, etc., denoting the "flag" by means of which envelopes containing records in that classification may be found. One of these lists will be always at hand, so that when a customer asks for a good band number, a good violin solo, or any other sort of record, all the salesman is required to do is to consult his list, slip out of his cabinets the envelopes bearing the flags of like color and hand to the customer twenty or so of the best records of the type desired.

Mr. Bates has outlined his idea to a number of retail dealers in Cincinnati and most of them have been favorably impressed, and it is his intention to see personally to the installation of these systems, with a cost to the retailer only of the very little material needed for flags, etc. In this way, Mr. Bates believes, he will be able to put over the entire idea. He wishes to avoid the possibility of seeing any dealer cut down the scope of the system to one or perhaps two classifications and thereby limit its chance to demonstrate its usefulness, of which Mr. Bates is convinced.

Mr. Bates said: "The memory of the best salesman is too short to hold the best of everything. I believe that if a customer has an opportunity to select from a large number of records which he recognizes as good, he will buy more, naturally, than if his opportunity for selection is limited. The records I am classifying, moreover, are records which themselves sell more records. There are many of them old, but not one of them is worn out. They are not the sort of records of which one tires. Nowadays many talking machine owners think they are tired of their instruments. The fact is that they are tired of the popular music which they buy from month to month, play a few times and put away in the dark. Dealers, too, are putting too much importance upon the sale of the monthly list of records, especially dance records. These really popular records which I am listing are still greatly in favor. Dealers are not trying to sell them, and they could easily be made to be the basis of a greatly increased record trade, I am sure. It is my plan to make the very best of them accessible on a moment's notice to both buyer and salesman."

To Cover the Stewart Territory

The Stewart Talking Machine Co., of Indianapolis, dealer in Victrolas, has gone out of business. The territory, however, has not been allowed to go to seed, and the Ohio Talking Machine Co., represented by J. R. Jones, who will cover southern Indiana, and W. S. Barringer, northern Indiana, is going into the field. There will be no branch established in Indianapolis. The business will be conducted from the Cincinnati end.

New Victor Accounts Opened

New Victor accounts opened by the Ohio Talking Machine Co. are: E. L. White, Columbus, O.; Alfred Wiley Piano Co., Huntington, W. Va.; W. F. Bertall Co., Logan, W. Va., and Pearson Piano Co., Columbus, Ind. The Ohio Talking Machine Co. also took care of the transfer of the goods held by the Werner Industries Co. to the Widener Grafonola Shop, West Fourth street.

Radio Broadcasting by Otto Grau

Trade in Victrolas and Brunswick products, both of which are handled, was rather quiet at the Otto Grau Piano Co. during April. In general, however, said J. F. Van Court, business was fair—satisfactory in view of conditions. A publicity feature which has aroused some interest for the Otto Grau Co. is a weekly radio concert, conducted from the company's sending station on Pleasant Ridge. These concerts consist of broadcasting Victrola and Brunswick records, and an announcer broadcasts the fact that the records come from "Otto Grau." The announcer at the same time solicits inquiries and comment, with surprising numbers of responses by mail or telephone.

Business of Average Volume

According to Mr. Oelman, of the New Edison Co., West Fourth street, business with that company during April was neither much better nor much worse than in preceding months. Sales both of machines and records held up well.

April Showed an Increase in Sales

Mr. Craig, who has succeeded Mr. Rowbotham as permanent manager of the Victrola department of the Baldwin Piano Co., reports a material increase—$700, to be exact—over March business. Mr. Craig is an energetic worker and probably will do good things for his company.

Handsome Steinway Department

While the talking machine department of Steinway & Sons, which recently took over Brunswick products for trade in its seven stores in this district, is not yet completed, enough is finished to give an impression that all equipment is to be the last word in equipment—in convenience, in artistic appearance, and all other attributes of a thoroughly up-to-date talking machine business. Mr. Browning, former manager of the Victrola department of the H. & S. Pogue Co., and now manager of the Steinway Brunswick department, said: "It is too early now to make any definite statements. We feel, however, that everything has gone forward encouragingly so far, and that in the very near future we will be doing a satisfactory business."

Columbia Gleanings

Exclusive arrangements have been made by the Crosley Mfg. Co., of this city, for the broadcasting of Columbia records by radio. D. G. Israel, the operator of the wireless station, played a concert of Columbia records that were released on April 20, and the following day received a letter from Ann Arbor, Mich., stating that the reproduction was perfect, and in this connection the names of the artists and the records played were given.

R. H. Woodford, Columbia branch manager, recently made a trip to Ohio with C. E. Kraner, the salesman, stopping off at Springfield to look over the Grafonola advertising campaign.

W. S. Samuels, of the Samuels Bittel Co., Owensboro, Ky., was given a hearty welcome on his recent visit to the Columbia branch in this city. He had been seriously ill with influenza for two weeks, but is now rapidly gaining the fullest measure of health.

L. J. Cox has succeeded H. P. Williams as manager of the Pearson Piano Co., Columbia City, Ind. The former comes from Muncie, Ind., where his record for progressiveness is one to be proud of. Mr. Williams, by the way, has become manager of the Baldwin Piano Co.'s store in Muncie, Ind.

In the Music Memory Contest conducted by the various city organizations in Vincennes, Ind., twenty-one of the twenty-four records selected by a committee composed of music teachers and professors of the local schools were those of the Columbia Co.

Miss Yates Succeeds Browning

Mr. Browning has been succeeded at the H. & S. Pogue Co. by Miss Yates, who has had long experience in this department.

Starr Record Plant Working Overtime

"Sales both in records and machines fell off somewhat during April," said E. I. Pauling, of the Starr Piano Co. "Last month—March—we were working overtime at our factory at Richmond, Ind., to turn out records. There has not been such a great demand during April."

Business Somewhat Slow

The same condition is in evidence in the Victrola department of the John Shillito Co., according to F. X. Donovan, manager. Mr. Donovan said: "Sales of radio equipment also figured in this slump. Just now it is bound to affect record sales, though we believe there will be little interference between the two departments. Radio is the thing just now, and for a time will hold the spotlight. But no matter how it may be developed, talking machines and records will continue to sell. In view of this belief we are working hard to boost both departments."

Columbia Publicity Campaign

The local branch office of the Columbia interests expects to see increased sales following the announcement of additional features of a publicity campaign backing up the Columbia Gramophones. Details of this campaign have just been received at the Cincinnati office. In the publicity drive being put on by the Columbia people the local branch stands second in points earned in the national campaign. New York is first with sixty-two, Cincinnati second with thirty-seven, Chicago third with thirty-three, Kansas City fourth with thirty-two.

R. H. Woodford, Cincinnati branch manager of the Columbia Co., went last week to New York.

Harry Weil, representative of the Baer Manufacturing Co., Chicago, cabinet maker, and E. L. Deming, of the Lyradion Sales & Manufacturing Co., Mishawaka, Ind., called on the Cincinnati trade last week.

S. Reis, Cincinnati district manager for Brunswick products, is making a trip through cities in the district for the purpose of pushing Brunswick products. Communications from him reveal considerable success.

A Novel Window Display

A combination window display including a radio set and a "Victor dog" boosted the sales of a dance record, "Bow Wow Blues," for the Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop. This record went big. Business generally has been slow.

RADIO TO BE DISCUSSED BY THE MUSIC INDUSTRY

This Will Constitute One of Many Important Subjects to Be Taken Up at the Coming Convention of Music Industries Chamber of Commerce to Be Held in New York in June

In view of the interest that is being shown in wireless telephony at the present time, particularly on the part of music merchants, a number of whom have installed radio departments, the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has taken up an investigation of the marketing possibilities of radio, toward the end of giving it a prominent place in the convention programs of the National Association of Music Merchants and the National Piano Manufacturers' Association beginning June 5, so that every branch of the industry will have an opportunity to judge of its importance to each individual business. In a statement issued this week the Chamber says:

"The connection between radio development and the music industry is becoming more and more evident as the newer science becomes an important factor in home entertainment. Without music the wireless programs are very limited in their appeal.

"The distribution of music by radio, therefore, becomes a vital consideration for the music trade. So far the distribution of radio equipment has developed along haphazard lines, with the demand far exceeding the supply, and several lines of distribution competing for the limited production. The electric supply houses, department stores, sporting goods dealers, drug and hardware stores and a number of other retail sales outlets are competing for the equipment as it is manufactured. The radio manufacturers do not seem to be giving music merchants as much consideration as important factors in their plans for distribution as they should, although a number of music merchants have taken it up.

"The permanency of the business and the dependability of sources of supply must be considered by the music trade. The patent situation is so chaotic as to make it impossible to say now which manufacturers will survive.

"The question of improvements which might make current equipment obsolete and various problems of merchandising service and policies will arise.

"The Music Industries Chamber of Commerce expects to bring the facts before the national convention in June, and will endeavor to bring about a solution of many of the problems now confronting the trade."

More Radio Sales— and an Added Profit on the Cabinet Sale

We have anticipated developments in the radio field by bringing out a modern, flat-top, Queen Anne Period cabinet designed to contain wireless receiving equipment, batteries, etc., and with all-wood amplifying horn. This new cabinet makes the radio as attractive as it is useful.

We carry in stock cabinets for the Westinghouse R. C. Sets finished in brown mahogany and American walnut. The capacity of our factory—the third largest case factory in the world—assures quick delivery. On account of certain ingenious features of installation in this style of cabinet there is great convenience in inspection and attention to batteries; and a compact, short "hook-up."

This cabinet can be adapted to any apparatus you sell. Can be sold with or without a radio outfit. Our price to dealers—$50—allows a satisfactory profit.

SOUTHERN VICTOR DEALERS TO MEET

Annual Convention to Be Held in Mobile, Ala., May 17 and 18—Constructive Program Planned—Some Notable Speakers to Be Heard

MOBILE, ALA., May 7.—Plans are under way here for the annual convention of the Southern Victor Dealers' Association, which is scheduled for the 17th and 18th of May. The plans are wide in scope and a special endeavor is being made to arrange a program that will be of a constructive and beneficial character.

Among the speakers who have been secured to date is M. L. Pierce, manager of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co., Canton, O., who will make an address on "Outside Selling." Also, it is very probable that James J. Davin, secretary of the Reincke-Ellis Co., will be present, as well as a representative from the Victor Talking Machine Co. Papers will be prepared and read by talking machine men of wide experience covering the important subjects of "Advertising," "Window Displays," "Competition," "Interest Charges," "Victor Service," "Record Stocks," "The Problem of Trade-ins," "The New Horizontal Types of Victrolas as a Stimulant to Victrola Sales," etc. In addition to this, French Nestor, of the French Nestor Co., Jacksonville, Fla.; W. R. Lewis, of the Elyea Talking Machine Co., Atlanta, Ga.; A. R. Boone, of the Talking Machine Co., Birmingham, Ala.; Jessie Houck, of the O. K. Houck Co., Memphis, Tenn.; J. A. Hofeinz, of the Philip Werlein Co., New Orleans, and W. H. Reynolds, all Victor distributors, will make addresses.

In view of the program, and the well-known members of the trade who will attend, this meeting promises to be one of great moment for better merchandising in the Southern States.

Some fellows are like a postage stamp, they never need more than one good licking—after that they deliver the goods.

AN EDISON RECORD COLLECTOR

O. R. Hunter, of San Francisco, Proud Possessor of 2,200 Edison Re-creations—Some Record

ORANGE, N. J., May 6.—Thomas A. Edison, Inc., recently received a letter from W. J. Carson, manager of the Edison Shop, in San Francisco, which conveyed some very interesting information pertaining to the re-creation collection of a resident of that city. The letter read:

"Like other Edison dealers, I have always been very interested in 'Diamond Points,' and I recall that occasionally in the past some dealer has called attention to a particularly enthusiastic Edison re-creation collector. We have a customer whose ledger account would indicate that he is a headliner, so I asked our service man, when he called to give service on the instrument the other day, to get a report on Mr. O. R. Hunter's re-creation collection. He reports that he has on hand 1,251 Edison discs (so-called records), which would make him the proud possessor of something like 2,200 separate Edison re-creations. I submit the figures to see if any other dealer has a more enthusiastic collector.

"On the theory that we are enabled to catch more flies with honey than vinegar, might I suggest that an acknowledgment to Mr. O. R. Hunter, 2927 Laguna street, San Francisco, on Edison stationery, would not be amiss, for I believe that he would prize this communication possibly higher than any one re-creation itself."

NEW EDISON CHIPPENDALE MODEL

ORANGE, N. J., May 10.—The new Chippendale console model of the New Edison has met with a very enthusiastic reception on the part of the trade and the public. This model, which retails at $295.00 and is an official laboratory model, is made in brown mahogany and is designed in strict accordance with the Chippendale school.

EDWARD F. CARSON'S NEW POST

Resigns from Granby Co. to Become Advertising Manager of Randall-Faichney Co., Inc.

Edward F. Carson, formerly assistant general manager of the Granby Phonograph Corp., has resigned his position with that company to become advertising manager of the Randall-Faichney Co., Inc., of Boston, which is a manufacturer of products outside of the talking machine industry. His reasons for making the change were solely personal.

Mr. Carson stated: "My relations with the Granby Phonograph Corp. were most cordial. The future plans of the Granby Phonograph Corp. contemplate bigger things than the past and a determined sales campaign is to be undertaken. It is with real regret that I am severing my connection with the phonograph industry, in which I have made many friends. I am very enthusiastic over the Granby product, and the improvements that have been made in it during the last year have, I firmly believe, made it a far better talking machine than ever before. The firm is determined that it shall succeed and it has the ability to do so."

TONE TEST IN FULL SWING

ORANGE, N. J., May 9.—The Spring season of Edison tone tests is now in full swing and operating on an extensive and successful schedule. Several hundred dealers gave, or will give, tone test concerts in the first half of the year, and a large number of bookings have already been made for the Fall season.

Mid-West Point of View

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., MAY 10, 1922. NO WISE man, of course, will overrate the importance of casual signs; but, on the other hand, no wise man will underrate them. In the course of a walk through the "Loop" of Chicago this week an observer was suddenly struck, more forcibly than he has been for many weeks, with the signs of sudden resumption of building. The great building of the First Methodist Church, which for so many years has occupied the block between Washington, Randolph, Clark and Dearborn streets, is in process of demolition, and upon its site is to rise a much greater building combining church, offices, stores and a thousand and one new accommodations for the business and religious worlds. The old Stratford Hotel, at Michigan and Jackson, is closed, and demolition is beginning. In place of the ramshackle hostelry so dear to the hearts of music trade men is to rise a lofty modern office building. The old offices of the American Express Co. on Monroe street, together with the obsolete buildings which occupy the State street corner, are already in the hands of the wreckers, and great signs at the corner windows tell how the famous Song Shop has already moved a few doors west. A great addition is being made to the building of the Chicago Musical College next to the Blackstone Hotel. The buildings next door to the Fair department store are being razed to afford room for further expansion of that great retail institution. A great new office building is coming to completion on Clark street near Washington. And so on. For five years these sights have been unknown in Chicago's business center. The resumption of building downtown comes as a literal surprise. Then as one leaves the Loop and travels north, south or west into the residential districts, the impression of activity is confirmed. Apartments and bungalows are beginning to raise their heads wherever one goes. It is an inspiring sight. It is particularly inspiring to the talking machine trade. For this trade is a home trade. New office buildings, for instance, mean to our trade that general business is becoming busier. When to this we add the cheering sight of new apartments and bungalows it simply means that more homes for those who spend their working hours in the office buildings are beginning to spring up, and that therefore there will be more weddings this Summer and more taking up of housekeeping by wedded folks who have had to board or live with their parents. All this means more talking machines, does it not? If not, why not?

Significant Signs

THE Illinois Music Merchants' Association has organized itself in Springfield and has decided, as a starter, to admit to membership

and Our

dealers in talking machines and records. The move is not only wise but significant. By this time, indeed, every talking machine man ought to know, even if he does not yet know, that he is in the music business. The talking machine business is a music business and the talking machine store is a music store. There is no getting away from this fact. But the need for emphasizing it is none the less immediate and important. The piano store of to-day is usually a talking machine store too, and piano merchants naturally think of themselves as music men first and foremost. On the other hand, the man who simply runs a talking machine store and nothing else is likely to forget that he is a music man first and a machine man second. It is a way of looking at things rather than anything else. Every merchant who sells talking machines ought constantly to key all his merchandising ideas by the "note" of music. That is to say, in all his advertising, in all his salesmanship of any kind, he ought to keep in mind always the idea that the machines and discs he sells are not more than media towards the expression of music, towards providing music for the masses in their homes. The talking machine merchant is a music merchant, a dealer in music-means. The Illinois Music Merchants' Association begins its career in the recognition of this fact. It is the duty—as it will be to the advantage—of every talking machine man in the State of Illinois to join the I. M. M. A. at once. The secretary is J. F. McDermott. Get in touch with him, gentlemen!

WE are never, we hope, too grouchy to appreciate and applaud when good things are being done, good ideas embodied in good selling talks, good advertising worked out into good sales results. Therefore, readers will take us seriously when we ask them to study carefully the advertising which the Cheney Talking Machine Co. has been doing lately, some of the best of which has appeared, and is appearing, in The Talking Machine World. We were particularly intrigued with the idea of giving publicity to the "man with a flashlight," who goes around the factory looking at the finished machines and who has the power summarily to reject any one and send it back to the finishing department for further attention. The whole idea of "super-efficiency" in the process of inspection is most cleverly worked out, not only cleverly but truthfully, as any one knows who has ever visited the great Cheney factories. The identical "man with the flashlight," the man who "snaps his fingers at the whole Cheney factory," may there be seen, examining every machine that is due to leave the factory, and assuring himself that it is beyond criticism. To tie up the activities of this so important department with the interests of the merchants who sell Cheney machines at retail is to display admirable good advertising sense. We congratulate the Cheney Co. on its excellent publicity.

to mess around in front of every store-window demonstration that sets up in the Loop. Well, during the last week or so there has really been some good excuse for lounging in front of some windows at least. That excuse has been the real originality of certain displays, namely, the demonstrations of gym-suit-clothed feminine persons of the Wallace "get-thin-to-music" exercises and records. Crowds have blocked the sidewalks wherever these unique demonstrations have been put on, and both men and women have taken the utmost interest in the novel idea. By this time every reader of this paper ought to know the basic principle of the Wallace reducing system. It is embodied in a set of records, each containing a full lesson, by Wallace himself, in the motions, exercises and drill devised for the man or woman who wishes to reduce weight and improve strength. The exercises are explained and counted through by the voice of Wallace on the record, and the music is given by orchestra throughout. The combination is irresistible, and wherever the window demonstrations have been made the sales results have been immediate and gratifying. There is a big future for this general idea, it should seem, and all goes to show how many hitherto unsuspected possibilities the talking machine game is likely to develop as time goes on.

"DEAR Friend Talking Machine Dealer: Do not be scared of Radio. Radio is so far one of the best friends you ever had for your business. Here in Chicago Morgan Eastman is broadcasting programs which are stirring up more interest in good music than anything short of our own great Symphony Orchestra ever could do. Samuel Insull is heading our opera, and that means, we guess, that opera will be broadcasted this Winter. And that means still more interest in talking machines and records. The more music is heard, the more records will be sold. It is a perfect logical circle, and there is no getting away from the conclusion. Radio helps. It does not hinder. Make use of it and advertise harder than ever all the records you hear of as being broadcasted. Then watch for results."

Your Friend
Radio

MANY record salesmen fail to appreciate the fact that a violin record or similar number which is soft in tone volume cannot be heard to advantage when in the next booth some loud popular or band records are being played. When your store is crowded this cannot be avoided—but if there are plenty of booths never take your customer into the next adjoining booth to the "popular" music fiend; leave a vacant booth between them.

CHICAGO, ILL., May 9.—Chicago dealers who looked through the Sunday papers recently were given something to think about in the matter of the housing situation in Chicago. For over a year a Sunday paper advertisement announcing a flat for rent has been a very rare sight, but, beginning with Sunday, April 23, the rarity ceased. In one Chicago paper alone on this date were printed seventeen full agate column advertisements advertising flats for rent. Now, what does this mean? It merely means that building has at last begun in Chicago. This, of course, is giving employment to thousands of workers about Chicago, which fact, when coupled up with the activities in the steel districts, means that industry on the South Side is going along at a fairly normal rate. On the West Side the big factories are rehiring help. Many of these institutions are spinning the wheels of their machinery once again after a rest period of several months. Chicago's building activity is even more in evidence on the North Side. The realty men on the North Shore are all wearing big smiles. There are more home sites being sold in that district than has been the case for a number of years.

Now, to get back to the dealers. We find that great numbers of them are doing an exceptionally good business in small portable machines, and it looks as though the people of Chicago are surely going to enjoy themselves during the coming vacation season.

But the activities of the dealers are not confined solely to small portable machines. Lots of them are reporting the sale of high-priced period consoles. One dealer that we know of recently sold two period type instruments in the space of a half-hour, and the total amount of these was nearly $800. The surprising part about this was that the man is in an ordinary manufacturing district, which is the first one to be hit by industrial depression. The general business situation in Chicago was, up to about the middle of April, what might be considered "spotty"; that is to say, some dealers reported business was going fine one day and not so good the next; but the last two weeks of April and the first week of May brought out the report that business, as a whole, was fairly satisfactory and that the buying public was beginning to erase this spottiness from the map. This spottiness was confined mainly to machines. The record situation was very good and all dealers were reporting good sales in this commodity. Not only are the talking machine dealers reporting an increase in business, but merchants handling pianos are unanimous in their assertion that high-grade pianos are moving at a good rate.

Talking machine merchants handling small goods, such as band instruments, are doing very well. The number of dance orchestras that have sprung up in Chicago in the last few months is surprising. It seems that nearly every second fellow or girl in Chicago is, or contemplates being, the owner of a saxophone. Just why they picked on this instrument was more or less puzzling until the real reason was discovered, namely, that the dealers began letting the public know they had saxophones for sale. Some very elaborate windows were decorated with these instruments and this, in all probability, is the real reason for the outbreak of popularity. The record companies putting out saxophone records must be very busy nowadays supplying the Chicago trade. The dealers are reporting that these records are going very fast.

Another interesting condition around Chicago is found in the banks, both national and State, which are reporting that their deposits are keeping them busy. However, the noticeable thing about it is that the depositors are not salting their money as heretofore, but are keeping it circulated.

The money dealers, who make a practice of doing a loan business on salaries, etc., are reporting that their clients have met all obligations and have cleared up their accounts and that the number of new accounts coming in is very small, indeed.

So, taking the business situation of Chicago as a whole into consideration, it is plain to see that the music industry is up against nothing at present that should worry it.

Gets Vocalion Agency

William H. Grosvenor, who conducts the Grosvenor Music House at Wilson and Montrose, has secured the representation for the Aeolian Co.'s well-known line of Vocalion talking machines and records. This shop was opened up a few months ago by Mr. Grosvenor, who was formerly in charge of the Chicago sales for Kranich & Bach's Loop store.

W. H. Wade Moves

The first of May brought about quite a bit of moving this year, and among those who spent some busy moments doing this kind of work was the Wade Talking Machine Co., 14 North Michigan avenue. As announced in these columns in March of this year, the Wade Co. purchased the interests of the J. O. Twichell Piano Co., at which time announcement was also made that there would be a consolidation of both companies. The stocks of both were brought together in the new place of business, which is the entire building formerly occupied by the Smith Piano Co., located on the east side of Wabash avenue, near Jackson Boulevard. Not all the alterations have been completed at this writing, but from present indications it is safe to assume that when the carpenters and decorators finish their jobs the new store will be one of the most elaborate to be found on Chicago's famous Piano Row.

Waterson, Berlin & Snyder in New Quarters

Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, who have for years conducted the famous Ted Snyder Song Shop on the second floor of the building on the northwest corner of State and Monroe streets, are now located in their new and elaborate store next to the Majestic Theatre, which is just across the street from the old site. The move was made necessary by the fact that the Fair Department Store has acquired the property rights for the entire building bounded by Adams and State streets, Monroe and Dearborn, and before the first of June rolls around all the property in this block other than the present Fair Building will be torn down for the purpose of erecting an addition to the department store.

Snyder's Song Shop now occupies a main floor store which measures approximately 100 feet in width and 150 feet in depth. It is elaborately fitted out with Unico equipment, and its talking machine department, which is exclusively Columbia, boasts of twenty hearing rooms of regulation size, with one big soundproof reception room some thirty by thirty feet square.

On the opening day Frank Clark, Western manager for both the wholesale and retail interests of Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, put on a series of jolly entertainments which lasted an entire week and were the talk of the town. Ted Snyder himself and other officials of the organization, together with their whole staff of song-writers, were on hand for the big event.

Walter Magill Returns

Walter Magill, Western representative of the Silent Motor Corp., of Brooklyn, has returned to his Chicago headquarters from an extensive visit throughout the West. He reports that throughout the section he visited the Silent motor is doing very nicely, far better than he had anticipated. While in the West Mr. Magill succeeded in making quite a number of important connections with manufacturers to whom he had previously sent samples of the Silent motor.

Roy Bargy Kept Busy

The management of the Tivoli Theatre, at Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue, recently secured the services of Benson's Orchestra, Roy Bargy, director, to appear as a special number on the weekly program. Announcements to the public were that Mr. Bargy would only appear for one week. However, theatregoers who attend the beautiful Tivoli evidently do not believe in signs and simply compelled the management of the theatre, as well as Messrs. Benson and Bargy, to give them a week more of that famous Victor organization's melody. Director Roy Bargy, who had been planning to take the organization on a tour of the Central West, complied with the request of the South Side movie fans and for the past six weeks has been jazzing it up to the queen's taste at the Tivoli.

Another Victor artist who is proving quite an attraction on the South Side is Mario Carboni, the celebrated baritone, who at one time sang with the late Enrico Caruso.

Chicago's First Radio Show

Announcement has been given out that Chicago's first big annual international radio show will be held at the Coliseum, October 14 to 22. It will be an exhibition of everything connected with wireless, a get-together show for buyer, seller, novice and expert. The Coliseum is the largest exposition building in Chicago, with a floor space of over 70,000 square feet. Details for the show are now being perfected and a floor plan will soon be ready. The advertising campaign for this show has already started and will be continued consistently right up to the time of the show, thereby assuring a large attendance. Special representatives of the Annual Chicago Radio Show, whose headquarters are at 126 North Dearborn street, are already on their way to Europe to investigate international developments and to bring the latest developments in radio from all parts of the world.

New Columbia Iowa Traveler

Chas. Beisel has taken over the Iowa territory for the Columbia Graphophone Co. He has had many years' experience in selling merchandise on the road, and his connection with the Columbia Co. will be welcomed by his many friends throughout the Middle West.

Goes After Foreign Trade Right

The most recent addition to the Columbia list of representatives is J. K. Foder, 24 Island avenue, Aurora, Ill. There is a very heavy foreign population throughout the Aurora and Elgin districts, including 8,000 to 10,000 Roumanians. Up until the present time no effort was made by any one music dealer to play directly to these nationalities for their record business and it has been necessary for them to make their purchases in Chicago.

Mr. Foder is now putting in a complete line of Columbia Grafonolas and foreign records. He is Hungarian by birth and speaks the Roumanian, Russian, Polish, Slovak and Bohemian languages, as well as his mother tongue. He is a good American, was wounded in the World War and is now pensioned by the Government.

The location in Aurora is very desirable. The store is 90 feet deep, one-half of which will be devoted to the Columbia line. Four modern hearing rooms will be installed to handle the record business.

The Armitage Music Shop, of 4148 Armitage avenue, is opening a new talking machine shop

CHICAGO, ILL.

March 28, 1922.

Walbert Manufacturing Company,
925 Wrightwood Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen:

Just a word regarding our success in selling the Geer Repeater.

We have found it an accessory in exceptional demand, as you know from the large reorder that we have just given you. The public seems to have been waiting for a successful, simple repeating device, after the many failures, that have been on the market in the last few years. We find that purchasers of the Repeater are very well satisfied and are buying them for their friends and for gifts.

We have found that a very successful means of introducing the Repeater is the window display, with one or more Repeaters in operation, and our dealers report that they have used the window method to good advantage. We have small Victrolas on our record counter and have our saleswoman in demonstrating records for purchasers, use a Repeater, causing an inquiry from every customer, and leading up to a great many sales.

You are assured of success with the Geer Repeater and we wish to compliment you for bringing out one of the few articles accessory to the Talking Machine Business that are worth while.

Yours very truly,
THE RUDOLPH WURLITZER CO.

Our Guarantee to Dealers

THE Geer Record Repeater is a proved product. It is as near perfect and fool-proof as mechanical ingenuity and long experimentation can make it. There is nothing to break or get out of order. It will fit any phonograph with free-swinging tone arm. We guarantee these claims and will immediately accept the return of any repeaters that prove defective. In addition we co-operate with you in every way possible—furnishing without charge sales helps and our special demonstrating record.

Walbert Manufacturing Company

Reasons Why Geer Repeaters Sell Quickly

1. They are as easy to put on and take off as a record. You simply lay the repeater on the record. They can even be put on or taken off while the record is playing.
2. They will repeat instantly and as often as desired and are adjustable for records of varying lengths.
3. They cannot possibly break or get out of order.
4. They fit any phonograph with free-swinging tone arm.
5. They come packed in a beautiful, durable box and can be laid away with the records when not in use.
6. When dancing, entertaining, dining or when music is wanted while working or resting, the Geer Record Repeater will prove its remarkable usefulness. A child can put it on or take it off.
7. There is a big demand for repeaters during the summer months. Ideal for use while camping or at summer resort.
8. The Geer Repeater will last a lifetime. It needs no attention and no repairs.
9. Full directions for use are given with each repeater. Read directions carefully.

Our Unique Window Display Will Help You to Build Business

"SALES tripled immediately upon installation of a Geer Repeater Window Display," writes the Brunswick Phonograph Shop, Chicago. "It is keeping large crowds of people before our show windows continuously," says the Wade Talking Machine Co., Chicago. The above Wurlitzer letter is further proof of the unusually rapid turnover in Geer Repeaters secured by means of our new window display record which plays through in eighteen seconds. With this record in your window turnovers will run from 12 to 52 times a year. Sales of records and machines will also be considerably stimulated.

further up on the same street, near Crawford avenue. At its present shop it is handling both the Edison and Brunswick lines, but the plans are to separate these two lines. The present place will devote its activities to Edisons exclusively and the new shop will be exclusively Brunswick.

Good Musical Merchandise Business

The Dixie Melody Shop, at 5314 Broadway, reports an exceptionally good business on harmonicas and ukuleles. R. M. Nall, proprietor of this shop, cannot account for the increased demand in this type of small goods, but nevertheless he is keeping the supply men busy shipping him goods of this sort. The shop handles a full line of Kimball instruments and Okeh and Gennett records.

Full Speed Ahead for Turek

S. K. Turek, of 2313 West Twenty-second street, recently decided to go out and do some business. By this is not meant that Mr. Turek had not been doing business. He actually was, but he just wanted to show a few brothers of his in the trade who had been complaining of bad business what real salesmanship was like. He got out his prospect list, selected a few names and then went out and spent a half-day calling on these prospects. He called on quite a number and made appointments for the next morning. The next morning three prospects showed up and in less than an hour it was all over, the results being one Pathé Actuelle, retail value $450, and one Starr, retail value $250, sold for cash. The third customer was not sold at the time, but Mr. Turek went back the next day and effected the sale. Mr. Turek is planning at present to open two other stores around Chicago and is looking for some good locations.

They "Liked" the Line

The show window of the Oriole Phonograph Shop, 2204 South Kedzie avenue, was recently smashed with a padded brick. When William Cepak, the owner, came in next morning he found that the large number of Aeolian records, as well as a small-size Aeolian machine, were missing from the show window. When the work of cleaning up the broken glass was completed a small piece of newspaper was found, whereon was scribbled in pencil, "We like the line."

New Fair Manager

Miss Gertrude Matlack, formerly in charge of the record department at the Song and Gift Shop, is now in charge of the record department at the Fair, succeeding former Manager Irvine.

Opens in Rogers Park

Z. Ganis, who for the past fifteen years has conducted a retail Columbia establishment at 326 South State street, has sold out his interests in this location and on May 1 opened a new store in Rogers Park. The new shop is located on Howard avenue, near the "1" and is fortunate in being situated in one of the busiest localities in Chicago's far north side.

Rialto Music Shop Opens

Rudolph Fractman, who formerly managed the Columbia store for Z. Ganis, at 326 S. State street, has purchased the entire good-will and stock of that business. The deal was consummated on May 1st. Workmen were immediately put on the job of remodeling the store, which will be closed for some six weeks, and when opened again it will be known as the Rialto Music Shop, and will carry a complete line of small goods, sheet music, rolls and records.

Emerald Shop Opens

The Brady Drug Co., at Forty-seventh and Emerald avenue, has just opened up a new store, which will be known as the Emerald Music Shop. The new shop will carry the Columbia line exclusively and will be managed by Miss Marie Collier, who was formerly cashier of the Chicago branch of the Columbia Co.

Take on Banner Record

The Song and Gift Shop, one of the biggest music shops in the loop on State street, has just taken on the Banner record line and is reporting excellent sales. Another line that this company has taken on recently is small crystal radio sets. The first week that they had these sets on sale was set off by a window display wherein a beautiful young lady was in the show window demonstrating the simplicity of the sets. She attracted much attention.

Dolling Up

The Lincoln Talking Machine Shop, at 3100 Lincoln avenue, is being completely redecorated. The plans call for some very elaborate fittings for this store and the proprietors are of the opinion that when the work of redecorating is completed they will have one of the handsomest little shops on that avenue.

Adding New Booths

The Greenstone Furniture Co., at 1315 Milwaukee avenue, has enlarged its talking machine department and opened what is known as "The Subway." It has equipped this new department with many booths and has also installed a complete set of the most up-to-date record racks as well as island counters.

Columbia Recorders in Chicago

L. Hausman and R. F. Bolton, of the New York Recording Laboratory of the Columbia Co., visited the Chicago branch recently, and during their stay there recorded Paul Biese's Orchestra and Frank Westphal's Rainbo Orchestra. Several personal records were also made at this time.

H. L. Pratt and Seymour Soule of the New York executive offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co., visited the Chicago branch recently.

Specializes in Italian Records

Jos. Cardinal has opened a new Columbia shop at 254 Howland avenue, Kenosha, Wis. A complete stock of Italian records will be carried and a special effort will be directed towards the portable model Grafonola business. Considerable business in Lithuanian records is expected because of the large colony located near his store.

Sonora Activities

L. Golder, sales manager of the Sonora department of Van Houten & Zoon, in discussing general business conditions, said:

The Best Motor Money Can Buy

1. The wick lubricating system, an exclusive feature of our motor, keeps every part in the gear box running in a film of oil. Not a mere smear of grease to dry away and get gummy and hard with exposure to the air, causing noise and variable speed within a short space of time, but constant circulating lubrication.

For at least two years after our motors are installed the wick will circulate pure oil and governor and gears will be perfectly lubricated. Some of the high-priced motor cars have recently adopted wick lubrication—because it is right—continuous, automatic, certain.

2. The enclosed construction makes this lubricating system possible and also keeps dirt, bits of excelsior, lint and phonograph needles, etc., from getting into the works. This prevents those trouble cases that cost the dealer money and cause his customers annoyance.

3. The design of our motor lends itself to accurate alignment of bearing and springs. When our box-like casting is clamped into the holding tools to be machined it does not distort with pressure as open castings do. The reason we have almost no spring breakage is that perfect alignment does away with the side strain which causes crystallization and breakage of springs.

REAL PRICES

1. We have a modern, complete, specially designed equipment solely devoted to the production of this motor.

2. Our plant is spacious, light, modern in every feature and our organization is seasoned and imbued with spirit of quality.

March showed somewhat of a depression in business, which for a while looked as though the trade were sliding down-hill, but towards the latter part of March and the first of April and up until May the talking machine business came back considerably. The Sonora dealers have been reporting progress for the past six weeks, and from present indications we are inclined to believe that the balance of the year is going to show the Chicago trade some very good business.

"A couple of weeks ago we received from the Sonora Co. the first lot of Lafayette models listed at $165. These instruments have met with much favor by the Sonora dealers throughout our territory. Another little Sonora instrument that has proven extremely popular is the new leather covered portable. This is something the like of which has never been offered to the public before, and is so constructed that it readily appeals to the public."

J. J. Davin Returns from Interesting Trip

J. J. Davin, secretary of the Reincke-Ellis Co., of this city, just returned from a trip which included a visit to Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, New York, Baltimore, Washington and Pittsburgh, where he not only called on the Victor jobbers but the dealers as well. In many of these cities Mr. Davin spoke at informal meetings, where he urged the Victor dealers to cash in on the tremendous advertising now being done by the Victor Co., stating that if they tied up with this publicity their dollar would be worth a third again as much, on account of the increased appropriation and activity now manifested in Victor advertising.

Mr. Davin also pointed out that there should be increased activity on the part of Victor jobbers and Victor dealers on sales promotion work, especially in view of the fact that the complete line of horizontal types is now available. Many of the Victor dealers are planning Victrola shows in their own stores and others are planning to display the Victor line at Spring exhibitions and county fairs.

New Assistant Manager

R. J. Mueller, Columbia salesman covering Iowa territory out of the Chicago branch, has just been appointed assistant manager of the Omaha branch. Mr. Mueller will be missed by many Columbia dealers throughout the Chicago branch territory.

Ed. H. Uhl Resigns From R. Wurlitzer Co.

Chicago and the music trade in general has lost one of its most aggressive and successful men. Ed. H. Uhl, head of the Chicago office and vice-president of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., has resigned his position. It is rumored that he intends going in the real estate and banking business. His business associates held a meeting on Saturday afternoon, April 29, at which time they expressed their deep regret at losing so capable and well loved an executive. But it is not only his business associates who regret the resignation of Mr. Uhl, for his many friends in the trade deplore the loss of a personality who has done much to boost the music business in Chicago and, for that matter, throughout the country.

The Chicago Piano Club has adopted a resolution regarding the resignation of Mr. Uhl which reads as follows: "Resolved, that the Piano Club of Chicago in session at a regular meeting on May 1, 1922, extends to Ed. H. Uhl the following resolution as our mark of friendship: As you leave us in your capacity as vice-president of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. we want you to know that a thought goes with you, which is even greater than the building up of the great business of this company, and that is the thought of love. We congratulate you, our former president and charter member of the Chicago Piano Club, that you have been spared in your active life until this moment, and we know that although you have surrendered the 'key' here, another 'key' symbolic of the one you have used all these years, the key of right principle, will open the door for still greater, happier and more beneficent success."

box about six inches long, one inch in width and one-half inch in depth. It contains five small receptacles, each capable of holding two hundred and fifty steel needles. These needles are assorted and packed so that the tray holds a total of 1,000 needles. The assortment consists of five types of needles, soft, opera, medium, loud and extra loud. This handy tray has been given the name of "Trutone" and retails at seventy-five cents. Packed in the box is a small cardboard strip, which is printed on both sides, one side showing a diagram of the box and what needle is contained in each compartment. On the reverse side of the card are printed suggestions as regards the use of needles and what kind of records should be used with soft, operatic, or any other kind of needles.

In New Headquarters

The General Phonograph Corp., of Illinois, has moved its headquarters from 19 West Jackson Boulevard, to the fourth floor of 216 North Michigan avenue. The new location overlooks Chicago's famous boulevard link. The entire floor has been taken over by the company and gives them a space of approximately 5,000 square feet to be utilized for their offices and demonstration rooms. Besides this, a large amount of space has been taken up for storage purposes in the rear of the building wherefrom the Chicago trade will be supplied.

The demonstration room is about twenty-five feet square and contains record racks holding the entire Okeh library. Herein can be found a sample of everything Okeh has ever pressed, beginning with record No. 1 and continuing up to the very latest number.

Bummel Petrus Goes Good

With no reference towards prohibition, now and then things happen which are like a breath of the olden days. The Columbia Graphophone Co. recently released a popular German record, "Bummel Petrus," which is a melody well known among the Germans in America. The melody was imported from Germany only recently and is going big throughout the Middle West. The number was recently released by two other companies successfully, so that on Saturday, April 22, when the Chicago branch received its initial shipment of this record it was in the dealers' hands within two hours' time. A. Schlesinger, one of the largest German dealers in the country, located at 644 West North avenue, took a very substantial initial shipment. Early Monday morning Mr. Schlesinger phoned the Chicago branch, asking for more of the selection. His entire initial shipment was sold out Saturday and Sunday, simply by playing the selection on a Grafonola at the entrance to his store. Although there was no extreme effort placed behind the sale of this record by Mr. Schlesinger, nevertheless a little moral can be gained from his experience. So many dealers, upon receipt of a new release, are prone to immediately place it in their record ranks and wait for calls to bring it out. If a special release will only be given an opportunity, invariably its sales will be very gratifying.

Hall Advertising Service

H. J. Fiddelke, sales manager for the Hall Mfg. Co., is receiving numerous requests from Hall fibre needle dealers all over the country asking for supplies of their large Kreisler wall hanger. This hanger is a very attractive affair, printed on cream paper, the lettering and design being done in black, with a likeness of Kreisler in sepia. This same attractive layout is printed in miniature 5½ inches in length and 3½ inches in width, to be used as an envelope stuffer. Large quantities of these stuffers are also being supplied to dealers on request.

This company has also brought out a cleverly gotten up order blank with the jobber's name imprinted thereon, which they are also sending to the jobbing trade. The new counter display carton, which was recently offered to the trade by the Hall Mfg. Co., has made a tremendous hit with the retail jobbers all over the country. A great number of these have written in to Mr. Fiddelke complimenting the Hall Mfg. Co. on them.

The Raymond Music Corp.

Raymond J. Healy, president of the Raymond Music Corp., makes the announcement this month that his company has taken over the retail business of the Edison Shop, at 229 South Wabash avenue. This shop was formerly conducted by the Phonograph Co., Edison jobbers of Chicago. In conjunction with a full line of Edison phonographs, the new company will handle a small grand piano manufactured by Behr Bros., as well as several other lines.

The Central Piano Co., which was formerly conducted by Mr. Healy, is being closed out and Mr. Healy will hereafter give his entire time to the interests of the Raymond Music Corp. In the new location extensive alterations have been made and Mr. Healy is planning to make his new shop one of the most attractive along Piano Row, if not in the entire city of Chicago. The new shop will utilize the main and second floors of the building and will be arranged with the machine display and demonstration booths on the first floor, and the second floor will be given over to offices and record demonstration booths. The third and fourth floors of the building will continue to be occupied by the Phonograph Co., with C. E. Goodwin as the governing head.

The Oro-Tone Amplifier

The Oro-Tone Co., of this city, has just placed on the market a new method of amplification for radio telephony. Several other companies are putting out horns and other things for the purpose of amplification, but the Oro-Tone Co. is making use of an amplifier manufactured by nature. It is none other than a conch shell, which, as everyone knows, from the earliest history has been used by man as an amplifying horn or trumpet, and was adapted to its present purpose by cutting off one end. The Oro-Tone Co. is taking this conch shell, trimming off the bottom and mounting it on a base or support of turned mahogany. In the bottom of this base are a

Open New Display Salon

One of the most elaborate display rooms in Chicago was recently thrown open to the public at 720 South Michigan avenue by the firm of C. J. Van Houten & Zoon, Sonora distributors. The purpose of this new display room, according to L. Golder, sales manager, is to have a place in Chicago wherein Sonora dealers, either local or out of town, may have a place to make their headquarters when in the business section. Another purpose that it will serve will his working capital, whereas in this idea we are endeavoring to let the Sonora dealers utilize every available cent of their working capital for business purposes. We will carry a complete line and at the same time offer them the advantages of our very high-grade salesmen."

One of the features of this new display room is a beautiful show window which is brilliantly lighted at night. Immediately above the show window is a large illuminated sign, bearing the word "Sonora." The window itself is beautifully decorated with heavy velvet portieres and valances.

New Oro-Tone Arm

Another new arm, known as Model O G, has been added to the Oro-Tone line of talking machine equipment. This new arm is built along entirely different lines for the purpose of allowing height adjustment as well as stability. Heretofore the base of the arm has been manufactured in two parts, being a base proper and a ring or collar, setting between this base and the tone arm. In the new, both the base and collar are made in one piece, and this combination permits an adjusting screw for either raising or lowering to be placed in the center stud. The center stud in turn is hollowed out so as to accept a single ball bearing, upon which rests a pivot coming down through the center of the arm. This single ball bearing does away with all other ball bearing rollers, upon which the arm formerly swung. To adjust, one merely needs take a screw-driver and either turn in or turn out a single screw which is placed in the bottom of the stud and this in turn either raises or lowers the height of the tone arm.

Installs Laboratory

The Chicago office of the Columbia Graphophone Co. has the distinction of being one of the few in Chicago's talking machine trade which can boast of a permanent recording laboratory. This laboratory was recently installed under the supervision of Al Houseman, recording chief for the Columbia Co., who comes here from New be for dealers to bring prospects for high-priced Sonora period models. This is an idea being put forth by Manager Golder, who believes that a great many dealers do not push the sale of high-grade instruments because they cannot show them to a prospect.

"It is out of the question to ask any dealer to carry a complete complement of high-priced period models," said Mr. Golder, "for in order to do so it is necessary that he tie up a lot of York to make special recordings for Western artists, such as Frank Westphal and Paul Biese.

Lakeside on Piano Row

The Lakeside Supply Co. has at last settled down in its new home at 339 South Wabash avenue, having found its old headquarters at 416 South Dearborn inadequate. The new location is on the second floor of the building. Two years ago, when it moved from Clark street to Dearborn, the Fricke brothers thought the place would be entirely too large for them, but business has progressed steadily until it has come to pass that the Dearborn street location has been found entirely too small. It was this fact

Lyon & Healy Indiana Traveler

E. T. Huller, who was formerly connected with the traveling department of the Stewart Talking Machine Co., of Indianapolis, Ind., has taken up Indiana traveling for Lyon & Healy. He assumed his new duties for Lyon & Healy on May 1, when he established his headquarters in Indianapolis.

Ernest John Visits

Ernest John, manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co.'s advertising department, spent several days in Chicago recently. Quite a number of men in the trade representing Victor jobbers and dealers got together and tendered Mr. John a little welcome dinner at one of the large hotels.

Wallace Women Demonstrators

The Wallace Institute has created quite a bit of interest in the trade throughout Chicago in the past month by reason of its trade-stimulating activity. The advertising department is busily engaged in supplying dealers with window trims and seeing that attractive windows are put in.

In some of the big department stores of the Loop, as well as a great number of talking machine stores, the Wallace Institute has been making use of women demonstrators of the reducing records. The ladies appear in regulation outfits and go through the exercises. Many of the stores have reported that this method of demonstration has made strong appeal to the women of Chicago and is directly responsible for the sale of quite a number of talking machines purchased by women who came to look at the demonstration merely out of curiosity.

In the short month that the Wallace reducing records have been offered to the talking machine trade this company has received requests from dealers in all parts of the country asking for sample shipments of six sets of records. In numerous instances large repeat orders have resulted. Many dealers have also taken advantage of their demonstrating possibilities. The company has been swamped with requests from numerous dealers asking that the Wallace Institute supply them with women demonstrators, as they realize that they are great drawing cards and stimulate the sales not only of records but of machines as well. Quite a few of the dealers handling Wallace records at present have even gone so far as to borrow demonstrators from local gymnasiums.

Hartman's New Store

The Hartman Furniture Co., of this city, famous all over the country for its trade slogan, "Let Hartman Feather Your Nest," has just come into possession of a large building at 2500 West North avenue. In this new location the plans of the company call for the establishment of one of the largest home-furnishing companies on the northwest side. The company has not announced at this time what line of talking machines it will handle, but plans are for a very large talking machine shop.

New Talking Machine Department

Wieboldt & Co., one of the largest department stores on the west side, has just finished moving its talking machine department from the seventh floor of the building on Milwaukee avenue to the second floor. H. L. Freedman, who looks after the talking machine department, announced that the new talking machine section will occupy more space than heretofore. Plans are now under way for increasing the sales force.

Brunswick Dealer Dresses Up

Frank Naese, exclusive Brunswick dealer, at 4803 West Lake street, is now the proud possessor of one of the most elaborate talking machine establishments in his part of the city. The transformation was made through the agency of the Unit Construction Co., who went through Mr. Naese's place of business and completely overhauled the fixtures and furnishings. This store is now graced by six beautiful demonstration rooms in white ivory finish which are absolutely sound-proof and of double construction. This double construction feature as advocated by the Unit Construction Co. gives a maximum sound-proof quality.

The lobby of the store has also been wainscoted in white ivory finish, and the record shelves, also of this finish, have a capacity of 4,500 records, in front of which is placed a twelve-foot counter. The lighting effect is carried out by Unico illuminating units. The demonstration booths are equipped with the latest type record stimulating shelves, which match the finish.

Unico Visitors

Rayburn Clark Smith, president of the Unit Construction Co., was a visitor to Chicago recently. The purpose of his visit was to hold conference with A. T. Beach, vice-president of the company, who was returning from a trip to the Coast. These gentlemen spent several days going over the trade with D. D. Montgomery, the new district manager for the Unico's Chicago branch. Immediately after this conference Mr. Montgomery left on a three weeks' trip to call on the trade in Kansas City, Omaha and other central Western cities.

Some Recent Visitors

E. R. Luebe and John H. Throgmorton are two of the out-of-town dealers who visited the Chicago trade during the past week. Mr. Throgmorton conducts a Victor retail shop at Flora, Ill. He said that business was very good in his section and that he has added another Unico demonstration booth to his already fine equipment. Mr. Luebe conducts a retail establishment in Collinsville, Ill., and says that he has also equipped his place of business with a complete installation of Unico retail fixtures and counters.

Record Stimulators

The Victor publicity department of Lyon & Healy has just brought out a new monthly hanger for the purpose of stimulating record sales. The idea behind this is to select from the numerous stimulators which have been published and place them in the demonstration booths. There is quite a selection of these little hangers to pick from, and all the dealer does is to look through his record list, find out the type of record he wants to push and accordingly hand up one of these little announcements which contains that list.

The first one off the press is entitled "Let's Laugh" and shows a small sketch of two laughing little youngsters before a Victor talking machine. Immediately under this sketch is a list of Victor records calculated to cheer the hours. The list contains such numbers as "That's the Kind of a Baby for Me," "Goldstein Behind the Bars," "Uncle Josh in a Chinese Laundry," "Bake Dat Chicken Pie," etc.

Chicago Radio Ties Up With Talker Trade

Who is the logical man to handle the retail sales of wireless telephone receiving apparatus for home entertainment; and why? The Chicago Radio Laboratory, of 332 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, has come to the conclusion that this man is none other than the retail talking machine merchant for the reason that there is such a close alliance between wireless telephony and the talking machine. Both are instruments to be used in the home as a means of entertainment; in fact, some people try to bring out a distinct relationship between the talking machine and the radio receiving set, by referring to the latter as a first cousin to the talking machine.

As stated above, the Chicago Radio Laboratory, after coming to this conclusion, decided to concentrate a great deal of effort in order to secure high-class representation throughout the retail music trade. The instruments being put out by the Chicago Radio Laboratory are all equipped with the Armstrong regenerative circuits and with Audion detectors capable of working at wave lengths ranging from 180 to 1,200 meters, and of receiving good strong signals up to a 3,000-mile radius.

One of the strong features which this company has incorporated in its sales department is to be found in its efficient service. The men who care for the correspondence are able to be of great help to music dealers in solving the problems pertaining to radio which may be brought up by purchasers. They are giving some good, sensible advice to dealers as to the best way to handle radio sets. One suggestion is that the dealer should not sit up burning midnight oil trying to study out what radio is and to solve its mysteries. To get right down to it, no one knows what it is. A whole lot of theories have been advanced, but they have all followed the same route and left the eternal question at the same place.

Another thing that this company is advising dealers very strongly is not to attempt to make a junk shop out of the store by handling parts. They are seeing to it that all dealers are supplied with instruments complete as to every detail, from the antennae, through the machine to the ground wire. Of course, they expect the dealer to give service and are supplying him, therefore, with accessories, such as are needed only for Chicago Radio Laboratory instruments.

This company is the holder of the second license ever issued under the patent rights of Major Edwin H. Armstrong, the inventor of the feedback regenerative circuit, which made wireless telephony practicable.

As announced in the news columns of the April issue of The Talking Machine World, the Q R S Co., manufacturers of the famous Q R S music rolls, have been appointed by the Chicago Radio Laboratory as manufacturing agents.

Dealers Honor Frank Westphal

On the evening of April 17 nearly every Columbia dealer in Chicago was present at the Rainbo Garden to pay homage to Frank Westphal and his Rainbo Orchestra. This newest of Columbia's exclusive artists was present in person to meet the dealers and to give them his own inimitable classics of dance music. "If You Knew" and "She's a Mean Job" are the first selections to be recorded by the Columbia Co.

In presenting these numbers to Columbia dealers, Mr. Westphal first played them on a Columbia Grafonola, and then repeated the numbers with the orchestra itself. Judging by the vociferous applause that greeted Mr. Westphal's offering, this gentleman is due for unprecedented popularity. He is an artist who puts his every ounce of energy and enthusiasm into his work with results plainly evident.

Besides the musical offerings presented by Mr. Westphal, Jack Kapp, of the Chicago branch of the Columbia Co., and Sam Lemberg, Columbia's North Side salesman, came together and offered an impersonation of Gallagher and Shean. It was a very clever piece of work on the part of the Columbia boys, and quite a number of the dealers present requested Messrs. Kapp and Lemberg to have a record made of the act.

Manages Radio Department

Charles Hindringer has been appointed manager of Lyon & Healy's new retail radio department. At present his headquarters are on the sixth floor of the big Lyon & Healy Building. It is expected by June 1 these quarters will be removed to the first floor. Mr. Hindringer comes to Lyon & Healy with a vast amount of expert knowledge pertaining to radio, and since his installation as manager of this department has been a great help to Lyon & Healy dealers who have taken on these goods.

ords. Attachments such as these, according to A. B. Cornell, sales manager of the Jewel Phonoparts Co., have heretofore proved unsatisfactory, owing to the extra weight of these attachments. "We have been figuring out the possibilities for attachments such as this for quite a number of months," said Mr. Cornell, "and are happy to say that we have finally hit upon a plan which has proved very successful."

Harry Bibb Entertains

Harry Bibb, Chicago sales manager for the Brunswick Co., was chairman of the entertainment committee of the Piano Club on Monday, April 17. The program put on by Mr. Bibb was considered by the Club members as one of the best entertainments of the year. The leading light of Mr. Bibb's program was none other than Isham Jones, Brunswick exclusive artist, who, together with his orchestra, rendered a lengthy list of popular numbers. So invigorating was Mr. Jones' brand of playing that even the strictest adherents of classical music joined in with the followers of the more popular type in cheering the boys.

After the entertainment the question "Is it any wonder that popular music holds its sway when one hears melody like that?" was frequently heard.

Besides Mr. Jones there was quite an attendance of prominent songwriters, among whom were Gus Kahn, Walter Donelson and Joe Lyons, who came purposely to hear the College Inn boys deliver their best wares.

Zax Home From Trip

S. L. Zax, sales manager of the International Talking Machine Co., Chicago, has just returned from a trip through the East and South. Mr. Zax states that his trip was a very successful one, and that dealers are optimistic regarding conditions.

Wiggins Succeeds C. O. Miller

C. O. Miller, who for the past two years has been district manager for the Chicago branch of the Starr Piano Co., has announced his resignation from that company. He is now traveling the State of Ohio, representing the New York Recording Laboratories. In the Chicago office of the Starr Co. he is succeeded by F. D. Wiggins, who takes the post of district manager, both wholesale and retail. The latter is an experienced man in the music industry.

Boston Book Co.'s New Album

The Boston Book Co. is offering to the trade this month the latest addition to its famous line. The new album is a combination affair built to hold ten records of either ten or twelve-inch size. The envelopes or leaves for holding the records in place are built along entirely novel lines. They are made in two pockets, one of which is built to receive ten-inch and the other twelve-inch records. The backs of these envelopes embody the wooden construction feature. In place of solid wood the back is made up of a number of thin laminations, with the envelopes secured by insertion between them, and held securely in place by small nails. This method of construction, on which the Boston Book Co. claims patent rights, keeps the record albums from ever becoming wabby or allowing the leaves to drop out.

VITANOLA CO. HAS BEEN RELEASED FROM BANKRUPTCY

Difficulties of a Year and a Half Ago All Cleared Up and Company Is Once More Solvent and, According to Its Officers, Is Ready to Do Business—To Concentrate in Saginaw

CHICAGO, ILL., May 6.—Sam S. Schiff, vice-president and general manager of the Vitonola Talking Machine Co., of this city, has just made the announcement that the difficulties which necessitated the appointment of a receiver for them in October, 1920, have all been cleared up, and the company is once again on a firm financial basis. The Vitonola Talking Machine Co. was one of the first institutions in the West to be formed for the purpose of manufacturing talking machines for the trade. The company was organized many years ago and up to a year and a half ago was doing well in its field. Due to little difficulties which frightened a number of creditors the company was placed in the hands of receivers. The receivership has now been lifted, owing to the good work of Sam Schiff, and the organization is already producing complete instruments in its Saginaw plant. This plant is still owned and controlled by the Vitonola Co., as is the million-dollar structure which it was building in Cicero at the time of its trouble. It is now going ahead and producing an entirely new line of up-to-date models, including some exceptionally fine console machines.

The plans at present call for the moving within sixty days of the general offices as well as all other activities to the factory in Saginaw, where the plant contains 180,000 square feet of floor space. The main section is a building three stories in height by 500 feet long, which is devoted exclusively to shipping and finishing departments. Coming off this main structure is a three-story wing, 350 feet long, where the new work and cabinet assembling are done. In addition to this wing there is also a four-story warehouse.

The Biggest Value in the Talking Machine Industry Today

A Portable Phonograph built into a leatherette Traveling Case. Plays all makes of disc records with perfect tone.

The PORTOPHONE is the pioneer in the portable phonograph field, and more than 40,000 have been sold. Equipped with the highest grade, powerful, double-spring motor, regulator and turntable brake.

An instrument that is pleasing to the eye and the ear—a favorite in any home. The tone of the PORTOPHONE is equal to any instrument selling at from 5 to 10 times its price, a fact that is made possible through quantity production and organized distribution.

The Big Season for instruments of this class is just starting—tourists, campers, autoists and people with money to buy will soon be looking for a portable phonograph—and the PORTOPHONE is the answer.

A comparison of the PORTOPHONE will quickly prove our contention that it is the biggest value in the talking machine industry today. Made complete from the motor to the cabinet in one factory and sold through the legitimate channels of trade at a good margin of profit to the dealer.

The plant is well favored with shipping facilities, having a four-track spur, with track connections to the Michigan Central lines. Mr. Schiff expects that within sixty days this plant will be working to capacity, using day and night shifts and turning out no less than 200 complete instruments every twenty-four hours.

Just what disposition will be made of the big million-dollar plant at Cicero has not been announced at this time, although it is owned and controlled exclusively by the Vitanola Talking Machine Co. and at present is burdened by no encumbrances whatsoever. Further plans for the company as announced by Mr. Schiff include the establishment of a Chicago headquarters, such as a display room and office to be occupied by M. C. Schiff, president of the company, who will remain in Chicago. S. S. Schiff will take up his headquarters in Saginaw.

CAST PARTS FOR RADIO IN DEMAND

Barnhart Bros. & Spindler Are Coping With Demand and Die-Casting Department Is Working Overtime to Supply Trade Needs

CHICAGO, ILL., May 9.—That the sudden growth in the popularity of the radio is asserting itself throughout the talking machine trade is vouched for by Advertising Manager W. R. McArthur, View in Phonograph Specialties Dept.

of Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, who believes that the interest in radio is at present reflecting itself in an increased demand for talking machines. Indications are that a public which becomes habituated to the radio form of home entertainment learns also to appreciate the modern talking machine as an always available entertainer, capable of rendering selections that exactly please the taste of its owner whenever he so desires.

Mr. McArthur is urging all talking machine manufacturers, jobbers and dealers with whom he comes in contact to take cognizance of the importance of radio, telling them that the talking machine trade should take organized measures to become the main distributing channel of radio equipment.

Barnhart Bros. & Spindler are at present doing a great amount of radio die-casting in conjunc-

As attested by the activities now being carried on by their die-casting department, the volume of business has been steadily increasing since early in the year. Talking machine manufacturers have been keeping this department very busy, but now that the demand for radio equipment has come and the newcomers are beginning to order die castings, it may be said that the "grand rush" is really on in earnest, simulating to a great extent the strenuously active times of 1916 and 1920, and an even greater demand is expected in the near future.

P. Q. Shrake in Important
Post—News of the Month*

CANTON, O., May 8.—Improvement in the talking machine industry in the Canton district is evidenced in reports gleaned from the score or more dealers in the district following a survey made by a representative of The World.

"In my opinion the improvement in the talking machine industry since April 1 has been very marked," said P. Q. Shrake, head of the music department of the Klein-Heffelman-Zollars Co. "Our store sold more talking machines in April than the previous month and we expect to double last month's sales during May," he said. According to Mr. Shrake collections are showing a gain and record sales are holding up well. He said that on last Saturday the store disposed of more talking machines than on any previous day in many months, which is an indication that the people of Canton are again on their feet financially and looking for entertainment for their homes.

"Business in the store during the month of April was very slow compared to previous months and the majority of our sales were made by the men on the outside," said Manager Rutledge, of Rhines Edison Shop. "However, we are not discouraged and believe that the month of May will be a big one from the standpoint of sales," he said.

P. Q. Shrake was named vice-president of the Klein-Heffelman-Zollars Co. at the annual meeting of stockholders held last week. He is in complete charge of the sheet music, talking machine and piano departments, which require one whole floor of the big store. The business of the company for the fiscal year just ended was very satisfactory.

The new storage and salesroom building of the Alford & Fryar Piano Co. will be completed within a few days. A large portion of the floor space will be devoted to the sale, display and storage of talking machines. Cheney and Starr sales during April, according to Mr. Alford, averaged well with previous months.

George C. Wille, of the George C. Wille Co., Victor dealer here, said that, while business during April was nothing to boast of, record sales held up well during the month. Mr. Wille has returned from the East, where he made large purchases for his music store and for his new radio store recently opened on Cleveland avenue.

W. E. Pyle, manager of the music department at the store of William R. Zollinger, and who recently assumed charge of the music department at this store, having come here from the May Co., Cleveland, announces his department completely remodeled and rearranged and that he now has one of the most complete music departments in this city.

Thomas Brosky, formerly with the Davis, Burkham & Tyler Co., East Liverpool, O., is now identified with the music store of the D. W. Lerch Co., this city.

Roy Vaughn, until recently with the Drake & Moninger Co., Alliance, O., Victor dealers, is now connected with the Betty Furniture Co., this city.

PUBLISH HISTORY OF L. C. PENN

MT. VERNON, O., May 8.—The L. C. Penn Co., prominent musical instrument dealer of this city, was recently honored by having the history of the company appear in the leading local newspaper. ## REMOVES TO NEW QUARTERS

PITTSBURGH, PA., May 8.—The Starr Phonograph Co., of Pennsylvania, has moved from 811 Liberty avenue to 634 Grant street. The firm is the western Pennsylvania and adjacent territory representative of Starr phonographs and Gennett records. H. C. Niles, the secretary-treasurer, reports trade conditions as showing an improvement.

TO RECORD FOR EDISON CO.

ORANGE, N. J., May 6.—Thomas A. Edison, Inc., recently announced the securing of the Atlantic Dance Orchestra as an Edison re-creation feature. This orchestra, which will record exclusively for the Edison Co., has as its leader Dave Kaplan, nationally famous as an orchestrator.

FRIEDL ENTERS THE RADIO FIELD

Well-known Talking Machine Man Forms the Triangle Radio Supply Co. in New York

Lambert Friedl, who has long been connected with sales organizations of some of the leading talking machine companies, recently organized the Triangle Radio Supply Co., Inc., and has opened up offices and warerooms at 122 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Mr. Friedl recently resigned as manager of the Okeh wholesale division of the General Phonograph Corp. Prior to that time he was connected in an executive capacity with the Columbia Graphophone Co.

Associated with Mr. Friedl is H. A. Linde, who for over five years was with Stanley & Patterson, the well-known New York electrical supply house. Mr. Linde has many qualifications for his field of activities. He was, during the war, an instructor of radio for the United States Navy at Harvard University.

The Triangle Radio Supply Co., Inc., will act as jobber of radio apparatus and its component parts. These goods, however, are to be specially selected and of proven worth, the object being to place in the hands of the trade products having a ready sale and requiring little or no technical knowledge. However, the company will carry out an educational campaign for the dealer and is equipped, if necessary, to give technical advice.

Among the products to be handled by the new company are the radiophones of the De Forest Radio Telephone & Telegraph Co.; equipment of the Stromberg-Carlson Co.; the Brach Electric Co., the Atlantic & Pacific Vacuum Tubes, and products of De Veau Electric Works and Cutting & Washington.

TWO VISITORS FROM THE SOUTH

F. S. Hemenway and A. W. Berdon, of New Orleans, Optimistic Over the Outlook

ORANGE, N. J., May 10.—Two important visitors to the Edison Laboratories during the first week of May were F. S. Hemenway, president of the Diamond Music Co., New Orleans, and A. W. Berdon, vice-president of the same concern. These proprietors of Edison wholesale and retail interests in the South, in a chat with The World, displayed great enthusiasm over the recent increases in the price of cotton. They made it clear that the future prosperity of the phonograph industry throughout the South depends, in a basic way, on the value of the agricultural products raised by the South, and that every slight rise in price of such commodities as cotton increases the purchasing power of the Southern States by many millions of dollars.

Both Mr. Berdon and Mr. Hemenway look for a substantial improvement in general business and in the phonograph business through the agricultural sections of the South for the Fall.

FINE NEW STORE IN CHARLESTON

The Music Box Opens in West Virginia City With Full Brunswick and Aeolian Lines

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 8.—The opening of the Music Box on Quarrier street, this city, recently adds one of the finest equipped establishments of its kind to the music stores in this part of the State. The new store is owned and operated by Julius Boiarsky, well known throughout the city. Brunswick and Aeolian machines and records are handled, as well as a stock of orchestra and band instruments. Dan Nicholson has been made manager of the record department.

JOHN STEEL ON MID-WEST TOUR

Popular Victor Artist Giving Concerts Throughout Ohio and Pennsylvania

John Steel, celebrated American tenor and Victor artist, is booked for an extensive Spring concert tour throughout Ohio and Pennsylvania, according to Bradford Mills, concert manager for the artist. Mr. Steel opened with an appearance in Fort Wayne, Ind., followed by a concert in Toledo, O., on May 9. On July 4 he is scheduled to appear in concert at Hershey Park, Hershey, Pa. Geraldine Farrar and Galli-Curci will also sing here on Decoration Day and Labor Day respectively.

Mr. Steel has been booked for more than one hundred concerts throughout the country and Canada next season.

NEW BROOKLYN VICTOR SHOP OPENED

The Bay Ridge Temple of Music, 5116 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., S. Kjelsen, proprietor, was recently opened at the above address, following extensive alterations to the building. A full line of Victor talking machines and records and Wissner pianos are handled.

HAWLEY VISITS EDISON FACTORY

ORANGE, N. J., May 9.—A recent visitor to the Edison Laboratory was P. R. Hawley, manager of the Girard Phonograph Co., of Philadelphia. Mr. Hawley reported an excellent outlook and satisfactory current conditions. Incidentally, the Girard Co. has already inaugurated an extensive sales promotion campaign which will continue for several months.

HOW ORCHESTRAS CAN HELP RECORDS AND MUSIC SALES

If Orchestras Will Announce or Display the Title of the Number They Are Rendering It Will Be Received With Favor by Hearers—Co-operation That Will Be Appreciated

A not entirely new idea of making orchestras more effective as exploiters of song and instrumental numbers and an idea which, if successfully carried out, should meet the approval of all talking machine dealers and wherever possible receive their co-operation, has been evolved.

The plan is one whereby all orchestras will in some manner announce or display the title of the number that they are rendering. By this method it will be possible for those who attend a dance, cabaret, hotel, concert, etc., to know the title of the work the orchestra is playing and if received favorably make a note of it or carry it away in their minds.

This, undoubtedly, will help the sale of talking machine records, sheet music and player rolls. At the present time it is only when a number becomes exceptionally popular that the average audience, through the aid of the orchestra, is able to carry away the title and much lost motion and time in creating sales for these goods result.

Some of the orchestras are already carrying out this idea and with proper encouragement, no doubt, the majority of the orchestras throughout the country will follow suit. In a short time, under such a plan, much business should result.

This should not be confined, and probably will not, to popular numbers only. As a matter of fact, it will be more effective in creating sales for the classics. By constant plugging a popular song of merit is bound to receive its just returns, but this is not so true of some of the standard numbers, which while meeting the approval of those who hear them, are invariably harder to distinguish by title. When the audience at a particular performance takes kindly to a selection and takes note of the name there should be a response that will be felt by the record, player roll and sheet music dealer.

Undoubtedly, many sales have been lost in the past that were actually created, but were not closed, through the failure to announce what was being played.

While the publishers and some few orchestra leaders have agreed to the plans as outlined above, they need the aid of everyone who will be interested in the result. The talking machine dealer can, by becoming acquainted with his local orchestras, do much to aid in carrying out this work. We think that the orchestras will readily respond.

Paul Whiteman's Orchestra during its three weeks at the Palace Theatre, New York City, used this method in placing before the audience the titles of the songs being played. That the atreagoers approved of this we think was shown by the applause that often greeted the mere announcement of a number prior to rendition.

It might be added here that there seems to be somewhat more dignity to the orchestra using such methods. Particularly is this true where classical numbers are rendered. It adds to the prestige and standing of the organization and gives it a public acknowledgment of merit that might be otherwise overlooked.

ROYALTIES FOR RADIO

Publishers Seeking Royalty Payments for Songs Used by Radio Concerns

At a recent meeting the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers adopted a resolution prohibiting radio broadcasting stations from sending out copyrighted music belonging to members of the society without the payment of a performing license fee.

It is said that there are over 200 broadcasting stations in the United States. Most of these are controlled by three very large companies and these latter have expressed a willingness to pay the society an equitable fee for the rights of performing copyrighted musical compositions.

No specific plan has yet been arranged to set royalty figures, etc., and it is thought that it will take a short time to work out a simple plan. It might be possible to give certain broadcasting companies exclusive right to send out radio concerts of copyrighted music over a certain territory. Other ideas are under discussion.

FEATURING "IN MAYTIME"

Among the leading professionals programming the Jack Snyder, Inc., song, "In Maytime (When I Learned to Love)," are John Steel, Vaughn Comfort, Wilson Brothers, Henry Stremmel, who is with the Jimmy Hussey Revue; Lillian Herlein, who sailed early this month for Paris; Lucille DuBoiss, prima donna with Creator's Band, and Mildred Haywood, now playing on the Pantages Circuit.

Jerome H. Remick & Co. opened a new retail store in the Forrest Theatre Building, Philadelphia, Pa., last week. Sheet music, talking machine records, player rolls and novelties comprise the stock.

"SOME SUNNY DAY" A HIT

New Irving Berlin Number Proving Very Popular in Vaudeville

Just before Irving Berlin sailed for Europe his publishing company, Irving Berlin, Inc., released a new song called "Some Sunny Day." Its release stirred the professional band and orchestra and sales departments of the company as has no song in recent years. The professional department immediately got in contact with a number of headline vaudeville performers who have achieved more than usual success with the Berlin type of songs. The result is that in the short space of time since its release it has been heard frequently, particularly around New York and Chicago, and evidently will gain like results elsewhere.

The number has much to commend it; it is in fox-trot form and its theme carries those attractive and appropriate oddities that stamp it as a Berlin offering. No doubt we shall soon hear of a campaign on this number.

As announced in these columns some time ago, Charles K. Harris sang over the radio to thousands of listeners one of his late songs, "My Mother's Melodies." At the same time "My Swanee Home," from the Harris catalog, was sung by the author, J. Duryea.

BERNSTEIN MAKES ADDRESS

Prominent Publisher Talks Before Meeting of Talking Machine Men, Inc.

Louis Bernstein, of Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., addressed the monthly meeting of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., which was held at the Café Boulevard, New York City, recently.

Mr. Bernstein addressed the gathering at about the same season in 1921 and at that time he impressed the Association with the advisability of stocking popular sheet music as a retail proposition. In his talk at the meeting this year he stated that he was glad to see that to-day the average talking machine store is handling such goods.

Several members of the professional department of Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., were present and demonstrated a number of new songs in the catalog, all of which will be campaigned on during the Summer and early Fall. These include: "On the 'Gin, 'Gin, 'Ginny Shore," which has already achieved some success; "Gee, But I Hate to Go Home," a ballad which was received with enthusiasm; "Ohio Shore" and the novelty comic song, "Who Tied the Can to the Old Dog's Tail?"

NEW FEIST NUMBER

Paul Whiteman Featuring "Oriental Eyes" at His Various Concerts

"Oriental Eyes" is the title of a new fox-trot with words by Leo Wood and Irving Bibo and music by Paul Whiteman and Freddy Grofe. The number has been accepted for publication by Leo Feist, Inc., and is being featured by the Paul Whiteman's Orchestra.

Henry Welling, composer of a new song entitled "While You Are Smiling," and Miss Mary Switsky, who has been connected with other New York publishing houses, have joined the professional staff of S. C. Caine, Inc.

Representative Husted, of New York, Introduces Bill With That Object in View

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—The allocation of an appropriate site in Washington on which shall be erected a building for the use of the National Conservatory of Music of America is sought by Representative Husted, of New York, in a bill which he has introduced in Congress.

The measure provides that the Fine Arts Commission shall select the site and set it apart for the use of the National Conservatory. Such ground is to be used only as a site for the buildings of the conservatory, and any structures erected thereon are to be first approved by the Fine Arts Commission.

ROSSITER SONGS ON RADIO

Special Program of Rossiter Numbers to Be Featured This Month

Will Rossiter, Chicago publisher, who some time ago programmed several of his songs on the radio for the Westinghouse broadcasting station, has been induced by that organization to put on another show to take place on May 17. Among the songs which will be featured are "In Bluebird Land," "Love Days," "If Winter Comes" and "Longing for You Blues."

GOLDMAN CONCERTS PLANNED

Famous Band Will Play During the Summer at Columbia University

Edwin Franko Goldman, whose band has been called "A Symphony in Brass," has just completed arrangements for this season's series of concerts at Columbia University, New York. Two of his new compositions which are to be extensively featured in the Summer programs are "In the Springtime" and "Chimes of Liberty." Both are published by Leo Feist, Inc.

"MAKE IT SNAPPY" OPENS

New Eddie Cantor Show Well Received—Several Numbers That Promise to Become Hits

The new Eddie Cantor show, "Make It Snappy," opened recently at the Winter Garden. It is in two acts and twenty-seven scenes, with book and lyric by Harold Atteridge and music by Jean Schwartz. Besides Cantor himself the other principals include Nan Halperin, Marie Burke, Lillian Fitzgerald, Teddy Webb, Tot Qualters, Lew Hearn and others.

The show is of the type that has in recent years played New York throughout the Summer, and arrives after a seventy-five weeks' tour of the country by Cantor. The following songs of the score are published by Jerome H. Remick & Co.: "Lovable Eyes," "Blossom Time," "Desert Rose," "My Vision in Vermilion," "Hootch Rhythm," "My Fragonard Girl," "Gay Butterfly on the Wheel." In addition several other publishers have numbers that have been interpolated, including Fred Fisher, Inc., "The Ring Don't Mean Anything When You're Married"; Harms, Inc., "I Love Her"; the song by William Friedlander, sung by Nan Halperin, called "Cheeky-Coo," and "Don't" (Don't Stop Loving Me Now), published by Shapiro, Bernstein & Co. In addition to these songs should be mentioned M. Witmark & Sons' "My Yiddish Mamma," sung by Eddie Cantor himself, and "Pick Me Up and Lay Me Down in Dear Old Dixie Land," and "Waikiki, I Hear You Calling Me," published by Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, and also sung by Cantor.

Leo Feist, Inc., has accepted for publication a new song by Joe Burke and Lou Herscher, entitled "Wake Up, Little Girl, You're Dreaming." The number is of the ballad type and, it is said, lends itself readily to harmony combinations—duets, trios and quartets.

Harry Becker has opened a music store at 955 Fifth street, San Diego, Cal.

ATTRACTIVE FEIST DISPLAY

Kresge Store in Chicago Features Feist Hits During Two Weeks' Campaign

The S. S. Kresge store No. 8, on State street,

Feist Hits Displayed at Kresge Music Counter

Chicago, Ill., has one of the largest music departments in the United States. It is particularly noted for the length of its counter, which allows unusual displays of title pages and poster material. Early this month the store ran a two weeks' campaign on several numbers from the catalog of Leo Feist, Inc. Particular sales concentration was placed upon "Swanee River Moon" and "Stealing," and a more limited display was given to the Feist song, "Ty-tee." The result of this special campaign was that the sales for the period far exceeded those of last year's mark at this time. Chris Holzworth, manager of the store, and Earl Haubrick, manager of the sheet music department, were much gratified at the record-breaking total in point of sales achieved by the department. It is, naturally, particularly pleasing to have the result of a special drive exceed expectations and in these days when channels productive of sales are not to be overlooked, the successful carrying out of a plan as outlined above, after all, encourages such special attention to the sheet music department.

VINCENT LOPEZ SIGNS WITH OKEH

Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra Will Make Okeh Records Exclusively—The First Recordings Are Now Ready for Trade and Public

The General Phonograph Corp., New York, manufacturer of Okeh records, announced this week that Vincent Lopez and his Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra had signed a contract to make Okeh records exclusively. This organization is one of the most popular dance orchestras in the East, and Okeh dealers will undoubtedly welcome this addition to the Okeh library. Vincent Lopez is an artist of unusual attainments, and his orchestra has made the ballroom and roof of the Hotel Pennsylvania two of the most popular dance places in New York.

The first records by Vincent Lopez and his Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra have already been placed in the hands of Okeh dealers, and among the first selections are "Rosy Posy," the hit from the musical comedy, "The Blushing Bride," and "Nola," a piano solo by Vincent Lopez accompanied by his orchestra.

Compositions by the late Felix Arndt, who was ever acknowledged a master pianist, are well known the country over. One of his most successful compositions, however, is a silhouette for the piano that is becoming more popular as days roll by,—due particularly to its own peculiar originality and the fine musical qualities it possesses.

Because of its adaptability to fox-trot rhythm several prominent musical organizations are featuring "Nola" as a dance number and several large recording companies will soon announce releases of "Nola", fox-trot, dance records.

FRADKIN RECORDS FOR BRUNSWICK

Prominent Violinist and Concertmaster Signs Exclusively With Brunswick Co.—Important Acquisition to This Company's Roster

Fredric Fradkin, who has recently been engaged by the Capitol Theatre, New York, as concertmaster for its well-known orchestra, is now an exclusive Brunswick artist. The Brunwick-Balke-Collender Co., in securing the services of this very fine artist and violinist, is keeping pace with the general policy of this company to give to Brunswick record enthusiasts the selections from the best artists in the field. Mr. Fradkin is an American and studied extensively in Europe with some of the best-known teachers there, where he has appeared in concerts with much success. In 1918 he was appointed concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, having the distinction of being the first American to be appointed as such with this world-renowned orchestra. He was also concertmaster of the Wiener Concert Verein in Vienna, which post he left to accept a position as concertmaster with the Russian Symphony Orchestra of New York. He has appeared in concerts in New York many times and has played as soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, in all of which he scored a decided success. The Brunswick Co. is now getting ready for release his first numbers on Brunswick records and expects to distribute them to the trade very shortly.

NEW EDISON FOR BROADCASTING

Kipp Phonograph Co., Indianapolis, Closes Deal for Exclusive Use of the New Edison by the Local Broadcasting Station

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 5.—The Kipp Phonograph Co., Edison jobber, of this city, has just closed a deal with the Hatfield Electric Co., of here, whereby that concern will use the New Edison exclusively for phonograph reproductions in its radio broadcasting service from what is said to be the largest sending station in the Middle West.

The contract was made after a number of experiments and after many letters had been received from radio fans over a wide radius praising the reproduction of the New Edison and asking that certain solo numbers be repeated at later concerts. The Hatfield Co. is also using a Chickering grand piano with the Ampico in its broadcasting work.

Howard's Music House, 411 Lewis street, Union Hill, N. J., has bought outright the Fulton Music Shop, 303 Bergenline avenue, where it will make its headquarters in the future. This store is advantageously located.

MEMORY CONTEST MUSIC BY RADIO

Wireless Broadcasting Service Used to Excellent Advantage in Oregon Contest

PORTLAND, ORE., May 4.—Mary Elizabeth Godwin, educational director of the Seiberling-Lucas Music Co., is using the radio to splendid advantage for broadcasting the fifty selections which are being studied by thousands of Portland and Oregon school children for the annual music memory contest, which is in full swing.

Miss Godwin has been working with the grade schools for the past several months and through the Oregonian radio has been sending out five different Victor selections each day with a brief lecture on the story of each selection. She has received many messages of thanks for the great service she is rendering, and many children who would otherwise be unable to secure all the records are given a chance to study the list in this manner and will now be able to enter the contest. Miss Godwin says the radio has stimulated great interest in the contest, and many more records are purchased after knowing something about them and hearing how delightful they are.

It is estimated that more than 50,000 are now listening in, and this number is being increased as fast as apparatus can be secured, the demand being greatly in excess of the supply. Reports from all record departments are to the effect that the radio is helping the record business instead of hurting it, as some had feared it would do. All say that many records that have been passed are being asked for and sales have materially increased in selections supposed to be "down and out."

The Manganaro Music Co., Inc., of Quincy, Mass., has moved from 1619 Hancock street to No. 1511 on the same street. The firm also recently opened a branch store on Newport avenue, Wollaston, and has another branch at South Braintree.

THE VICTOR CO.'S STRONG FINANCIAL REPORT FOR 1921

Annual Balance Sheet, Recently Issued, Demonstrates the Strong Position of This Company Financially, as Well as Its Able Business Management—Surplus Exceeds $31,000,000

A document of unusual interest and importance to the talking machine trade, and for that matter to business interests generally, is the annual balance sheet of the Victor Talking Machine Co. covering the company's business during 1921 and which indicated that the output of the company during that year was about equal to the output for 1920, with a material betterment of the company's financial condition.

The figures presented by the Victor Co. are most significant from the fact that students of business economics have been inclined to agree that the worst of the business depression has been passed, and that a general business improvement is now in evidence. That the Victor Co. has been able to go through this period and in every case equal and in some instances improve over the record for the previous year is to be accepted as proof not alone of the popularity of the company's product but of the soundness of its business methods. Few, indeed, are the business houses in the United States which have or can offer a report for 1921 which is in any way as satisfactory as this submitted by the Victor Co.

In commenting upon the year's business President Eldridge R. Johnson, of the Victor Co., said: "Volume of output was maintained, being in fact almost identical with that of 1920, our best previous year. Production was somewhat curtailed during the Summer, but this period was followed by a Fall season in which demands could scarcely be met by overtime work. We are now striving to re-establish the more efficient procedure of uniform production throughout the year.

"A subsidiary corporation—Pan-American Recording Co.—has been formed to operate a reording and matrix plant in South America. "Inventories were valued at cost or market as of Dec. 31, 1921, whichever was lower, and show a healthy decrease of $3,255,840, partly due to repricing but more largely through being worked into production and sold.

"Recent reductions in prices of records, a contemplated series of record exchanges, improvements in standard instrument types without increase in price, and introduction of new models at prices figured on anticipated normal conditions rather than prevailing costs, are expected to fully absorb savings in Federal taxes for 1922, and to realize a satisfactory margin of profit it is necessary that a large volume of output be maintained. Fortunately the prospect for this accomplishment is good."

Prospects of a large volume of output for 1922 by the Victor Talking Machine Co. are good.

The Pan-American Recording Co. referred to in Mr. Johnson's statement has headquarters located in Buenos Aires, and the plant has been in operation about six months, recording and pressing records by South American artists and designed for South American trade.

The Victor Co.'s statement in full follows:

ANNOUNCES NEW RADIO HORNS

Standard Metal Mfg. Co. to Market Two Sizes of Amplifying Horns

The Standard Metal Mfg. Co., of Newark, N. J., which was one of the original manufacturers of metal horns for talking machines, and which in more recent years has devoted its factory to the manufacture of amplifying horns and talking machine supplies, recently announced a radio horn that fits all radio receiving apparatus.

At present it is making two designs, one nineteen inches high with a seven-inch bell, and one fourteen inches high with a five-inch bell. In addition, the company is prepared to make special horns for cabinet outfits on specifications.

W. A. Lawrence, president and secretary of the Standard Metal Mfg. Co., is well known in the talking machine industry. The company for twenty years has manufactured phonograph equipment and is considered among the oldest and largest horn manufacturers in the United States.

INGENIOUS ATTACHMENT IN FAVOR

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 6.—The Phono-Toner Co., of this city, is extensively featuring its product of the same name. The Phono-Toner is a device easily fastened to the needle screw of the talking machine, for which many exceptional claims are made, among them being that it softens the tones, reduces the surface noise and makes needle changing easy. It is produced in both nickel finish and gold-plated. Although a nation-wide campaign has just been started, the Phono-Toner has been successfully sold in the John Wanamaker store and the Estey warehouses, in Philadelphia, for over six months.

THE TWIN CITIES

*Business Situation Brighter—Reports From Jobbers and Dealers
—Davin Speaks on Advertising—New Dealers—News of the Month*

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., May 7.—The business situation here is considerably brighter than it has been for some time, due to the resumption of activities in the mining industry, brought about by the opening of the steel mills. Renewed activity in the lumbering regions and improved agricultural conditions are also expected to exert a favorable influence on the trade. These turns for the better in the industrial world are of too recent date to be felt by the talking machine trade, but dealers are generally of the opinion that the near future will see a decided revival in the demand for music of all kinds.

E. F. O'Neill Comments on Business

"We feel that we have passed the low point of the general business depression," said E. F. O'Neill, of the Beckwith-O'Neill Co., in discussing the situation for The World. The opening of the steel mills has caused a resumption of iron mining, and increased building in the country has opened up the lumber industry. These factors will aid the Northwest materially. The next ninety days will determine the degree of prosperity that we will attain for the ensuing year. A good crop and fair prices will presage a bright future, for the recuperative powers of the Northwest really are marvelous. Collections are considerably better and orders are somewhat larger. In the matter of records we note that there is a much stronger demand for standard music than for jazz, but this may not necessarily be due to a subsiding interest in dancing."

Use Edison Machines for Radio

The Edison people are working hand in hand with the radio fans in the Northwest, who are blossoming like dandelions. The University of Minnesota is broadcasting music with the aid of an Edison phonograph, as is the radio station at Curtiss Court.

Edison Headquarters Move

The Northwestern headquarters of the Edison have been moved to the top floor of the Warner block, 17 Sixth street South. The location is in the heart of the business district, and the move will undoubtedly prove advantageous.

New Brunswick Dealers

E. L. Kern, director of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., reports that new dealers are being signed right along. The record business continues to improve. Just now it is impossible to get enough Isham Jones Orchestra records to supply the demand.

Boutell Bros., the big local furniture house, has provided one of the finest talking machine establishments in the Northwest. The first and mezzanine floors have been rearranged in a truly artistic style for offices and demonstration booths at an expense of about $8,000. This is an exclusive Brunswick house. The Gilius house, at Duluth, has also become an exclusive Brunswick agent, and in its new location expects to do a better business than ever.

Cheney Line Gaining Popularity

Cheney phonographs are gaining a wide distribution through the efforts of the Edward G. Hoch Co. While admittedly facing stiff competition, the intrinsic merits of the Cheney are expected to bring it to the front in a rapid manner.

Sales Address by J. J. Davin

The Twin Cities Victor Dealers' Association of St. Paul and Minneapolis, recently called a special meeting of the members and their sales forces to hear a special address on advertising and selling which was delivered by J. J. Davin, of the Reincke-Ellis Co. The meeting was held in the St. Paul Athletic Club by courtesy of the Twin City jobbers. Following the luncheon, Mr. Davin made his address, and among other things he mentioned the urgent necessity of a tie-up with the Victor Co.'s national advertising campaign for 1922, convincing the dealers by some forceful illustrations that their dollar to-day was worth at least one-half again as much on account of the increase in appropriation for advertising made by the Victor Co. He also urged extensive circularizing of Victrola homes with a strong follow-up campaign by outside solicitors. He also urged an analysis of the dealers' mailing lists, so that no talking machine owner should be without a list of the Victor records, as well as the catalogs which are issued from month to month. He pointed out the importance of dealers subscribing to talking machine trade papers and urged that they read them diligently and make sure that their salespeople also study them. He concluded his talk by urging the Twin Cities Victor Dealers' Association to virtually make every remaining day of 1922 effective from a business standpoint, which can be accomplished only by concentration and increased interest, and suggested further that they plan ahead now for the Big Fair spectacle and Style Show scheduled for May and September.

Expects Revival in Mining Region

"We are frank to confess that we have seen Spring open much more auspiciously than it has this year," declared George A. Mairs, manager of the Victrola department of W. J. Dyer & Bro., "but we see many hopeful signs, although it may be some time before we realize on them. The first real activity will probably be felt in the iron country."

Pathé Holding Its Own

Musical merchandise does not appear to be any less active than other lines of business, and it is believed that the Pathé goods are holding their own with competitive contemporaries, according to G. Sommers & Co., Northwestern distributors.

Vocalion Record Sales Growing

Vocalion Red records are having a great vogue here. A. E. Monson, Minneapolis manager for the Stone Piano Co., states that the demand is growing at a pace that is truly pleasing and new accounts are being opened daily.

Trade Activities

Demonstration booths have been installed in the P. A. Starck Piano Co.'s St. Paul store. Manager Augustine states that, while pianos always will remain the favorite with him, it will be his aim to push the talking machine line with much greater vigor than ever.

Miss Musgrove has been placed in charge of the Victrola department of L. S. Donaldson Co., succeeding Miss Artz.

Milton Lowy, of the Minnesota Phonograph Co., reports that his April retail sales were ahead of those for April, 1921. In fact, he has been doing such a good business that two additional salesmen were added to his store staff.

THE SHELTON Electric Motor

The "Simplicity" electrifies Victor, Edison and Columbia phonographs by simply taking off winding handle and placing motor against turntable. Automatic switch in motor operated when the turntable is started or stopped. Operating on AC or DC current of 110 volts. Specify type of current when ordering.

WALTER L. ECKHARDT IN RADIO FIELD

Well-known Talking Machine Executive Organizes General Radio Corp.—Will Distribute Firco Wireless Telephone Product—Prominent Technical Experts Identified With Company

Walter L. Eckhardt, one of the best-known members of the talking machine industry, and identified with the leading companies in the field for the past twenty years, has announced the formation of the General Radio Corp., with headquarters at 624-626-628 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa. This company has been appointed a distributor for the Firco wireless telephone product, manufactured by John Firth & Co., Inc., for which the Loyd Wireless Telephone Corp. is sole sales agent.

The General Radio Corp was incorporated recently for $250,000. Mr. Eckhardt is president of the company, and associated with him are several prominent Philadelphia financiers and professional men, together with a group of expert radio engineers. Among the latter are J. E. Paterson, who was an instructor of radio at Columbia University, New York, for a number of years, and W. W. Thomas, a radio operator on the U.

Walter L. Eckhardt

S. battleships for four years. The professor of radio and electricity at Villa Nova College, Villa

Nova, Pa., is also co-operating with Mr. Eckhardt in the technical end of the company's activities.

Mr. Eckhardt's association with the radio industry dates back several years, for in 1920 he became keenly interested in the possibilities of radio development. In fact, one of his sons built a radio set which received President Harding's inaugural address in 1920, and since that date Mr. Eckhardt has been in close touch with every phase of the radio industry.

When he decided to become identified with the wireless telephone industry from a commercial angle, Mr. Eckhardt visited New York and carefully investigated the products on the market. He conferred with the executives of several important companies, and finally decided that the Firco products, made by John Firth & Co., Inc., offered unlimited opportunities for the development of a permanent, profitable business, and would give his dealers satisfaction in every detail. He thereupon completed arrangements with the Loyd Wireless Telephone Corp. whereby the General Radio Corp. would represent and distribute Firco products in Pennsylvania and adjacent territory, including Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia and southern New Jersey.

Mr. Eckhardt has leased a modern, up-to-date wholesale establishment and his thorough familiarity with the talking machine dealer's requirements will undoubtedly enable him to give his clientele splendid service in the sale of Firco products. He is planning to concentrate his activities in the talking machine industry, and, as he numbers among his friends practically every well-known dealer in Pennsylvania territory, the success of the General Radio Corp. is assured. The personnel of the sales staff will be announced in the near future, and it is understood that M. J. Eckhardt, Mr. Eckhardt's eldest son, will be associated with the sales organization.

ZIMBALIST'S BIRTHDAY GIFT

Presented With Record Made by His Children While in Mid-Pacific En Route for Orient

PORTLAND, ORE., May 4.—Word comes to Portland via the purser of the steamship "Keystone" to the effect that Efrem Zimbalist, famous violinist, and husband of Alma Gluck, singer, was celebrated at sea on April 9 in a manner that will long be remembered by the musician. Zimbalist, a passenger on the steamship, now on her way to Manila, was taken by surprise when a record was sent especially by the Victor Talking Machine Co. to Purser Fred Charman with the request that it be played on the violinist's birthday. The title of the song was "Happy Birthday, Dear Daddy," and it was sung by the two little children of Zimbalist, aged six and three years. Another surprise was the handsomely decorated birthday cake that centered the table. Zimbalist is on his way to Shanghai, China, to give two concerts, and then will go to Japan, where he will make a tour.

TONOFONE JOBBERS APPOINTED

E. C. Doyle Visits Jobbers in Leading Trade Centers—Closes a Number of Deals

E. C. Doyle, traveling representative for the Tonofone Co., Chicago, manufacturer of the Tonofone needle, was a recent visitor to New York, calling upon some of the local distributors. While here, Mr. Doyle made arrangements with several jobbers whereby they will feature the Tonofone needle, and he promised these jobbers the hearty co-operation of the executive offices in Chicago in developing sales plans.

Before reaching New York, Mr. Doyle visited the trade in many important centers in the East, and received substantial orders for Tonofone needles. He states that jobbers and dealers are apparently making plans for an active year, and there is a healthy undertone to general business that is decidedly encouraging. According to his plans, Mr. Doyle will visit various trade centers throughout the West before returning to headquarters in Chicago.

PLANS FOR CONVENTION OF TALKING MACHINE JOBBERS

Great Program Arranged for the Convention Which Will Be Held at the Hotel Ambassador, Atlantic City, June 12, 13, 14—Many Notable Speakers to Be Heard at This Reunion

Plans have now been practically completed for the Sixteenth Annual Convention of Talking Machine Jobbers, to be held at Atlantic City, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 12, 13 and 14, and followed, on June 15, by the annual Association golf tournament.

The new Hotel Ambassador, one of the finest, if not the finest, hostelrys at the famous seaside resort, has been selected as convention headquarters, and the management of the hotel has arranged to take particularly good care of those who attend the Association sessions.

Although as usual there will be numerous entertainment features, the daylight hours will be devoted strictly to business, for there are many problems that demand the attention of the jobbers, and none of them will be overlooked.

On Monday and Tuesday there will be business sessions of the Association both morning and afternoon, and matters to be discussed will include questions of dealer financing, which is considered of particular importance just now; means for advertising for the dealer by the jobber, plans for the co-operative buying of supplies for Victor wholesalers, and other problems of timely interest. It is also likely that one or two speakers of national reputation will address the jobbers on subjects of direct bearing on the talking machine trade.

Wednesday will be known as Victor Co. Day, when executives and department heads of the Victor Talking Machine Co. will talk to the jobbers on various phases of business. The subjects that are likely to prove of most importance to the wholesalers are now being selected and speakers will be announced later.

The entertainment program will open officially on Monday evening, when the jobbers will be the guests of the Victor Co. at a dinner, followed by a dance to be held at the Ambassador. During the course of the evening several popular Victor artists will appear for the edification of the guests.

On Tuesday evening at 5 o'clock the jobbers will enjoy an old-fashioned clambake, held on the shore, which, it is promised by the committee, will surpass even the wonderful beefsteak dinner held at the woods at Glen Cove during the course of last year's convention at Colorado Springs.

On Wednesday evening will be held the annual banquet of the Association, and several speakers of prominence are being lined up for that affair. There will be good entertainment provided during the banquet which will be followed by dancing.

The annual golf tournament of the Association will be held at the popular Sea View Golf Course, Absecon, N. J., near Atlantic City, on Thursday, and there will be the usual collection of valuable prizes to inspire the contestants to put forth their best efforts.

The prospects are that there will be a record attendance at the convention; firstly, because the importance of the meeting from a business standpoint warrants such an attendance, and, secondly, because of the many attractions of Atlantic City itself. Those who travel to the shore should take advantage of the special Summer excursion rates quoted to that resort by the various railroads in agreement with the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce.

The hotel has agreed to make a special rate

for the convention delegates, but to obtain this rate it is necessary for the members of the Association to make hotel reservations direct to the hotel, with a duplicate copy of the reservation to

Fred P. Oliver, care Blackman Talking Machine Co., 28-30 West Twenty-third street, New York.

Those who apply direct to the hotel will not be able to enjoy these special rates. The fact that the annual convention of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and allied music trade associations will be held in New York during the week preceding the convention of the jobbers at Atlantic City will make it particularly convenient for those who desire to attend both meetings.

H. T. LEEMING JOINS PATHE STAFF

The important announcement is made by the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., of the appointment of H. T. Leeming to the Pathé staff. Mr. Leeming needs no introduction to the talking machine trade. He has many friends and a past record of achievement in this field. Mr. Leeming was lately general manager of the Regal Record Co., and previously vice-president of the Emerson Phonograph Co. He will devote his exceptional executive ability to Pathé sales promotion. The appointment of Mr. Leeming to this important post is in keeping with the general reorganization being made at Pathé headquarters.

STEWART TO OPEN VICTOR SHOP

Attractive New Harrisburg Establishment to Be Unico-equipped Throughout

BALTIMORE, Md., May 6.—Cohen & Hughes, of this city, have concluded arrangements whereby Ray E. Stewart, a successful Harrisburg business man, will open an exclusive Victor shop in Hagerstown, Md. Judging by the success which has crowned Mr. Stewart's endeavors in other lines, success is predicted for his new enterprise. A short talk with Mr. Stewart is amply convincing that he will leave nothing undone to put the Victor and piano interests which he represents before the Hagerstown public in a high-class and energetic manner. His showrooms will be Unico-equipped throughout and will afford customers the same restful atmosphere in which to select records as has been found so productive of results in progressive communities throughout the country. Mr. Stewart feels that this environment as created by the Unico staff, coupled with the lines which he will handle, will mean a distinct advance for the music industry not only in Hagerstown, but in surrounding country.

BUILDING FOREIGN RECORD TRADE

Victor Talking Machine Co. Carrying on an Active Campaign Through Newspapers and by Aid of Special Literature to Stimulate Sale of Records in the Foreign Catalogs

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has just started a most active campaign to feature the company's extensive catalog of foreign records, or rather records in foreign languages, throughout the country, with a view to aiding the dealer directly in stimulating an interest in such records.

At the present time the Victor Co. is carrying on a regular campaign of advertising in foreign language daily newspapers covering in all twelve languages. These advertisements occupy liberal space, two columns wide, and in addition to listing the new recordings in the special language featured also call attention to desirable records that are already a part of the catalog. Victrolas, particularly the new horizontal models, are also featured in the advertisements.

In addition to the newspaper copy there have been issued a series of most attractive foreign record hangers, of the same size as the monthly hangers issued by the Victor Co., for the regular record releases and fitting into the same frame. Hangers covering Bohemian, German, Hebrew, Italian, Polish, Swedish and Mexican records have already been issued, and several others are in contemplation, including Arabian, Syrian, Greek, Norwegian, Portuguese, Russian, Lithuanian, Finnish and French. New catalogs in practically all of these languages have likewise been issued to the trade, and the effect of all this exploitation work has been to stimulate materially the foreign record demand.

The U. S. Census figures are taken to show that a surprising proportion of the population of the United States is of foreign birth or the children of foreign-born parents, and even in cases where individuals are citizens it is found that there is a substantial demand for the music of the Old World. As a matter of fact, much of this music may be said to be universal in character and frequently is featured as novelties in the regular catalog.

Dealers generally have responded enthusiastically to the foreign-record campaign, especially those located in cities where there is a large non-English-speaking population. Many of them are having impressed on them for the first time the extent and great possibilities of the foreign-record section of the Victor catalog and see in it a most desirable field for building up trade. Co-operation of the Victor Co. itself in its newspaper advertising and in the amount of display and publicity material being offered to the dealers is making the new campaign much easier for those in the field.

STRAND LINE IN POPULAR DEMAND

Walter L. Eckhardt, Strand Factory Representative, Opening Many New Accounts—Making Plans for Active Fall Trade

"The Strand line is going ahead at great speed in our territory," said Walter L. Eckhardt, exclusive factory representative for the Strand phonograph in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia and Southern New Jersey. "We have been closing many important accounts during the past few weeks, and the dealers throughout Pennsylvania and the adjacent territory are delighted with the sales possibilities of the Strand line. The new models in particular are meeting with a hearty reception everywhere, and it is a pleasure indeed to open packing crates and find invariably that the instruments have reached us in absolutely perfect condition and ready for immediate sale."

Mr. Eckhardt, whose headquarters are located in the Empire Building in Philadelphia, was a recent visitor to the executive offices of the Manufacturers Phonograph Co., New York, conferring with Geo. W. Lyle, president of this company, regarding sales plans for the Strand line. He stated that he is planning to augment his sales staff to take care of Fall business, and judging from all indications, Strand dealers will close a splendid business this year.

TAKES ON THE TURNEY RADIO

The Cabinet & Accessories Co., New York City, has added a new line of radio to the sets and equipment which it distributes. The latest addition to the line is made by the Turney Radio Co., of Newark, N. J. A new departure in radio service to talking machine service is to be found in a radio case, which will shortly be produced and sold by the Cabinet & Accessories Co. This case contains a number of each part used in radio construction, properly labeled and classified, and all within the one case. It is expected that this case will prove of great service to the talking machine dealer who is adding radio to his line.

H. F. MAIER OPENS VICTROLA SHOP

UNION HILL, N. J., May 8.—The Victrola Shop, 742 Bergenline avenue, this city, was formally opened here recently with a complete line of Victrolas and a large stock of Victor records, as well as pianos and musical instruments. Souvenirs were distributed to the people who attended the opening. H. F. Maier is proprietor.

VICTOR ARTISTS FOR BIG CONCERT

Homer, Schumann-Heink, Samaroff, Werrenrath and Symphony Orchestra to Entertain Convention Visitors at Carnegie Hall.

One of the big entertainment features in connection with the annual convention of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and the allied music trade associations in New York during the week of June 5 will be the complimentary concert given at Carnegie Hall on Monday evening, June 5, by the Victor Talking Machine Co., for the benefit of the convention delegates.

C. G. Child, director of recording for the Victor Co., who has charge of the program, has arranged for a truly imposing group of artists on that occasion, they including Mme. Louise Homer, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mme. Olga Samaroff, Reinald Werrenrath and the Victor Symphony Orchestra of eighty men under the baton of Josef Pasternack. All of the convention visitors will be provided with tickets for the concert, which will unquestionably prove one of the big attractions.

IMPORTANT UNICO INSTALLATIONS

Unit Construction Co. Reports Increasing Activity in Various Parts of the Country

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 8.—Among the notable accomplishments of the Unit Construction Co. for April was the factory completion and shipment of material which will be used to erect an exceptionally beautiful music emporium in Chicago to be conducted by the well-known house of Waterson, Berlin & Snyder. The fact that this material made two complete carloads is an indication of the extensive installation.

Immediately following the Waterson, Berlin & Snyder shipment another carload shipment was made to Frank Naese, 4803 West Lake street, Chicago, who will open an exclusive Brunswick Shop. A survey of the Naese plans convinces that he will be highly successful.

The installation at the Talking Machine Shop, Hagerstown, Md., a new account installed by Cohen & Hughes, of Baltimore, called for another carload shipment.

Another major installation also requiring carload shipment was that of Halle Bros. Co., Cleveland, O., which is entering the phonograph field, and its Unico department will be used in the sales of the Brunswick line.

These installations are only the high spots of Unico activity for the month. The company reports a very satisfactory month's business in both equipment and dealers' helps departments.

The Tageblatt, of Berlin, is running a copyright series of "Reminiscences of Caruso," by a former director of the tenor's German guest engagement, Emil Ledner. There are anecdotes of "Caruso the Man," who spent almost his entire life in foreign lands; accounts of his singing in Hamburg and Berlin and of an "Aida" evening at Budapest.

Cash Sales or Large Initial Payments Feature of the Trade in This Section—Dealers Pleased With Outlook—News of Trade

PORTLAND, ORE., May 4.—Cash sales or large initial payments is the report of most of the music houses for the past month with a volume of business that was very satisfactory.

Arthur W. Stein, manager of the Victrola department of Sherman, Clay & Co., reports a good high-grade business for April. Only one machine under $200 was sold during the entire month, and only one "trade-in" is on the books. One of the last sales of the month was a Victrola, $300, with $125 worth of records, all for cash. "This is just a sample of what we have been doing all month," says Mr. Stein.

The Sonora and Brunswick phonographs have also been selling for cash, according to H. H. Princehouse, sales manager of the phonograph department of Lipman, Wolfe & Co., with Sonora grands in the lead.

D. C. Peyton, manager of the phonograph department of Meier & Frank Co., says that sales showed a gain of $2,000 over business of last April.

Manager Peyton reports that the six new Walter Camp records of twelve lessons with chart and guides are going over big with several sets being sold from the sample before the arrival of the first shipment.

Another large display and demonstration room for the Victrola and Brunswick machines has been added to the phonograph department of the Wiley B. Allen Co. Manager Frank M. Case has moved his private office to the front of the store, which gives Cliff Neilson, in charge of the phonograph department, more room for demonstrating purposes. Mr. Neilson is another department manager to give a good report for April, and says his sales more than doubled April, 1921. The new horizontal Victrola and Brunswick console machines are very popular, he says.

N. C. Dezenorf, assistant manager of the Victrola department of Sherman, Clay & Co., made a trip through the lower Columbia River region of Oregon and Washington, visiting schools, clubs, societies and dealers, delivering lectures on the general use of the Victrola. He was greeted with enthusiasm and interest at all points, and he reports business conditions gradually resuming normalcy.

Wm. Smith, Oregon sales manager of the Columbia Co., has covered his territory very thoroughly during the past month, and says he can see a decided increase of optimism regarding the future, and more orders are being placed for Columbia goods than during the same period last year.

C. E. Sanders, sales manager of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., Chicago, called on G. F. Johnson, of the G. F. Johnson Piano Co., who is Oregon representative, the last week in April. Mr. Sanders was greatly pleased with conditions in Portland and vicinity.

The Reed, French Piano Co. has made extensive improvements to its establishment at 435 Washington street. All the offices have been moved to the main floor and the balcony is now used for demonstration rooms for the period and console models of the Victrola and Edison machines, which are carried. The company has also rearranged the demonstration rooms on the main floor, and record racks have been installed immediately in the rear of them, which is a very convenient arrangement. It has also installed a player roll department on the balcony.

Kohler & Chase have moved their wholesale offices to the Northwestern Bank Building at Sixth and Morrison streets, where they will be more accessible to the dealers. The company's warerooms will remain at Hoyt street.

Warren A. Erwin, of Lipman, Wolfe & Co., is in the Portland Surgical Hospital with sinus trouble and is just waiting to get home to see the new baby girl that arrived at his home during his absence.

Fritzi Jensen, for two years manager of the record department of Lipman, Wolfe & Co., has resigned and will go to the LaGrande Music store, Brunswick dealer, to take complete charge of the record, roll and sheet music departments. Roy Feldenheimer, manager of the phonograph department, has placed Kathryn Campbell in charge of the record department.

Mrs. Bertha Gribble, former manager of the phonograph department of the Applegate Furniture Store, of Eugene, Ore., has been added to the Victrola and Brunswick sales force of the Wiley B. Allen Co.

Mrs. Minette Elliott, of the Grafonola department of the Remick Song Shop, has left Portland for Los Angeles, where she expects to spend several months. Mrs. Clyde Freeman, wife of the manager of the Remick Shop, accompanied Mrs. Elliott south and expects to be joined by her husband in a month, when they will come north again by motor.

R. Stevanni, formerly in the phonograph department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., has gone over to the Hyatt Talking Machine Co.

Fritz Kreisler, who appeared in concert at the Municipal Auditorium in April, drew one of the largest audiences of the season, and his records, which are always popular, were given an added stimulus, according to Miss Nellie Mugler, who has charge of the record department of the Sherman, Clay & Co. store.

NEW ARTISTS FOR BRUNSWICK CO.

Famous Brox Sisters and Margaret Young Make Debut in May List

William A. Brophy, manager of the Brunswick Recording Laboratories, New York, has just announced that the first records of the famous Brox Sisters, Kathleen, Dagmar and Lorraine, who have been appearing in the "Music Box Revue," will be released for the trade in the May list of new Brunswick records. These popular artists have been among the headliners since the show started last Fall and have contributed in a large measure to the successful run which this show has had.

The first record to be released by these artists will be a double-faced record of "Some Sunny Day," "Schoolhouse Blues" on the reverse side.

Another new artist recently acquired by the Brunswick Co. is Margaret Young, who has been appearing in Keith's vaudeville for some time past. Miss Young is to record exclusively for Brunswick records and will make records of the latest popular numbers. The first release will be distributed to dealers on May 1 and will consist of a double-faced record of the popular numbers "Maybe You Think You're Foolin' Baby," while the reverse side will be her version of "High Brown Blues."

The Blackledge Music Co. was recently opened in Coffeyville, Kan. Musical instruments and talking machines are handled.

BUYING AND SELLING EXEMPLIFIED

Under Auspices of Knickerbocker Co., Metropolitan Victor Dealers Show How Horizontal Victrolas Should be Sold

A large gathering of metropolitan Victor retailers was held in the Knickerbocker auditorium, at the headquarters of the company, at 138-140 West 124th street, on Thursday, May 4. The session was called to order at ten o'clock by Abram Davega, president of the company, and lasted throughout the entire day.

The morning was given over to the execution of a novel idea of Mr. Davega's relative to the selling of the new horizontal type of Victrolas. Various retailers took part, some acting as salesmen and selling the models to others who placed themselves in the attitude of the average buyer. The plan worked out exceptionally well, and such interest was manifested that it was necessary to call a recess in the proceedings in order that those present might partake of the luncheon provided at the Hotel Theresa by the Knickerbocker Talking Machine

Co. The selling and buying was resumed immediately upon arriving back at Knickerbocker headquarters. It was not only intensely interesting but decidedly educational as well. Many questions were propounded by the buyers which were in turn admirably answered by the sellers. Two persons occupied the platform at one time, one as the buyer and the other as the seller. Those participating in the role of seller were C. P. Perry, of the Ideal Music Co., Brooklyn; Miss Goodman, of G. Millard, Brooklyn; C. A. True, manager of the talking machine department of Bamberger's, Newark; Leo Aronson, of the Aronson Talking Machine Co., and Herman Behrmann, of the Savoy Music Shop, New York City. The buying parts were assumed by I. Zion, Fort Lee, N. J.; Sol Lazarus, of New York City; J. A. Lowekamp, of Bamberger's, Newark; Ben Lehrer, of M. Rappaport's Music Shop, New York City; Max Rothstein, New York City, and David Feiner, of the Woodhaven Music Shop. Each participant did so well that it was a serious task for those appointed judges to select first and second choice on each side. However, it was finally decided that the first award for selling be given to C. A. True, of Bamberger's, and the second to Miss Goodman. Standing first from the buying standpoint was David Feiner and second Sol Lazarus.

After hearing the various selling points expounded it is safe to say that every one present left far better fitted to sell more horizontal type Victrolas than before his arrival. The meeting closed with a recital of June Victor releases.

MONTREAL, CAN., May 6.—The Simplex Electric Phonograph Motor Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Simplex electric motor, is making elaborate plans for a display at the forthcoming Jubilee Convention of the music industries, to be held in New York the week of June 5. The company has arranged for good-sized space at the Hotel Commodore, and, according to present plans, several models of the Simplex motor will be demonstrated.

As the Jubilee Convention will attract members of the music industries from all parts of the country, the Simplex executives are doing everything possible to expedite factory production, so that they can assure visitors to the convention immediate deliveries of their orders. This will be the first official demonstration of the Simplex motor, and the exhibit is, therefore, being given most careful consideration in every detail.

PROF. FOREST CHENEY ENTERTAINED

Dealers of Pittsburgh and Locality Entertain Well-known Inventor at Informal Banquet at William Penn Hotel—Makes Pleasing Address

PITTSBURGH, PA., May 10.—Cheney Phonograph dealers were guests at an informal dinner held on the night of May 4, at the William Penn Hotel, at which Prof. Forest Cheney, the well-known inventor of the Cheney phonograph, was present and made a very interesting and instructive address.

George R. Madson, president of the Cheney Phonograph Sales Co., of Cleveland; Marion Cheney, son of Prof. Cheney, and the Pittsburgh district representative of the Cheney interests, and Mrs. R. M. Smith, also of the Cheney Phonograph Sales Co., were on hand early to welcome the guests.

Prior to the dinner there was an informal reception at which the guests were presented to Prof. Cheney. The dinner was an elaborate one and the table decorations were unique and attractive. Following the dinner Mr. Madson made a brief address in which he explained the reason for the dinner, the primary purpose of which was to have the Cheney dealers in the Pittsburgh district meet Prof. Cheney and hear him speak. Mr. Madson then presented Prof. Cheney.

For more than an hour Prof. Cheney spoke very interestingly and entertainingly on the Cheney phonograph and explained the great care that is being taken in its construction. He said at one time during the evening: "Not how cheap but how good can we make the Cheney phonograph is the constant aim of the company." He pointed out that the question of cost is the least considered by the Board of Directors, who insist that only the best shall be used and the Cheney phonograph made the best of its kind.

Prof. Cheney told of his research and study in the realm of the talking machine and phonograph, and explained how he came to invent the Cheney phonograph. This proved to be most interesting to his hearers and it was keenly enjoyed.

Prof. Cheney then, before he ended his talk, delivered a brief homily in which he emphasized the need of always looking on the bright side of life and getting the best out of life. He said that contrasts were needed for one's development and pointed out that unless there were light and shade there could be no real pictures. He said: "I am growing younger because I keep in touch with what is going on around me. That is what all of us can do. Life is for development and we can all make the best of it and make it a success."

Referring to "chances" or "opportunities," Prof. Cheney said: "These do not come to us with a loud noise or like a circus parade down the street. Opportunities and chances for success come quietly, and it is the wise man and woman that recognize them and seize them at once. We can all be successful if we embrace the opportunity when it comes."

In closing Prof. Cheney said that this visit was one of a series he and Mr. Madson were making for the purpose of getting in personal contact with the Cheney dealers and to learn from the dealers at first hand what the Cheney organization can do to co-operate with them.

Before the guests of the evening left all assembled in the lobby and bade a kindly farewell to the distinguished speaker of the evening

OKEH MARRIED MEN VICTORS

Benedicts of General Phonograph Corp. Vanquish Single Men on Diamond—Close Score Features Interesting Game

By the close score of eleven to eight the married men in the executive offices of the General Phonograph Corp., 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York, took the measure of the bachelors in this organization at a ball game played Saturday, April 29, at Van Cortlandt Park. The game was interesting from start to finish, and the final outcome was in doubt to the very last inning when the single men rallied and almost tied the score.

At the very start of the game the married men scored two runs and the single men did likewise. Both batteries tightened up in the second and third innings, neither side scoring. In the fourth inning three benedicts crossed the plate, but the single men rallied and also scored three runs in their half of this inning. In the fifth inning neither side scored, but in the sixth inning the married men went on a batting rampage that resulted in four runs, and practically won the game. They also scored two runs in a later inning, and although the single men fought hard, they could only put three runs across the plate before the game finished.

The feature of the game was Goldman's hitting, and this "Babe Ruth" of the Okeh forces hit and urged his return to Pittsburgh at an early date. Prof. Cheney, Mr. Madson and Mrs. Smith drove from Cleveland to Pittsburgh.

The Cheney dealers at the dinner were as follows: Henry Wood, Mrs. Henry Wood, Miss M. Wible and Miss H. Schultz, of Boggs & Buhl; A. R. Meyer, Mrs. A. R. Meyer, Miss H. M. Claire, Miss H. Oliffe and Andrew Lindsey, of the Joseph Horne Co.; Miss B. E. Perry and Lee Scroggins, of Gray & Martin; L. S. Klein, H. E. Fleischman and L. B. Nathan, of the National Phonograph Co.; C. W. Glass, of the Tarentum branch of the Lechner & Schoenberger Co.; Benjamin Goldman and S. S. Wolf, of Goldman & Wolf; Miss J. S. Ackerman, of the Cheney Phonograph Sales Co.; and C. C. Latus, of the Talking Machine World.

two home runs and a triple in addition to playing an errorless game at third base. Sieber pitched a steady game and Hager's work in center field helped considerably toward the success of his side. Walker at second base, and Neuberth behind the plate were also important factors in the married men's victory. For the single men the battery consisting of Amore and Kroeger were the stars, while Schwartz, the shortstop, was all over the field.

The players were cheered by a large group of lady fans from the executive offices, while Otto Heineman, president of the company; Adolph Heineman, vice-president, and W. G. Pilgrim, treasurer, were all on hand rooting for the married men.

The entire party was conveyed to Van Cortlandt Park by special buses and during the game refreshments were served on the side lines, Otto Heineman acting as host. It is understood that a return game will be played later in the Summer, and the single men are promising to spring a "dark horse" as their twirler.

RADIO FIRMS CHARTERED IN APRIL

ALBANY, N. Y., May 9.—Fifty-six companies supplying radio apparatus were incorporated in New York State during April. Their aggregate capitalization is $1,759,600, according to tabulations made at the office of the Secretary of State.

The number of incorporations in April was 1,534, as compared with 1,717 in March.

The King Furniture Co., Columbia dealer, of San Antonio, Tex., had a very attractive float in the "Battle of Flowers" parade held in that city on April 21. It was designed by H. S. Schaub, manager of the Grafonola department, and the float was made even more attractive by the presence of Miss Allsworth, who has charge of the record department.

KANSAS CITY

Business Improves—Radio Interests—New Edisons Admired—Victor Activity—Tie-up With Columbia Artists—News of Month

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 4.—The radio craze has been raging in Kansas City for some time, and talking machine men are interested in its development. Among those who have taken special interest in it is H. J. Schmelzer, of the Schmelzer Co., who is a Victor wholesaler. Aside from the radio itself, Mr. Schmelzer is interested in how the radio may be linked up with the Victrola and assist in the sales of this instrument. He is developing some very promising experiments, and hopes to be able soon to capitalize them.

On account of his poor health, S. M. Henley has sold his lease on 813 Walnut street, where he has kept a music shop for a number of years, and will take a long vacation. He has many friends in the trade who will be interested in knowing that, while it is thought best for him to be entirely freed from the care and oversight of his store, his health is improving, and it is hoped that the rest will bring about a permanent recovery.

The Phonograph Co., Edison jobber, reports that the William and Mary console has arrived, and is receiving a great amount of favorable comment from dealers who have visited the headquarters. The case is very attractive, both in outline and finish.

Business during April was reported as about equal to the corresponding month in 1921, but a vigorous campaign in advertising was used to make these sales. This is somewhat surprising, since the March business of the branch was 100 per cent larger than in March, 1921.

The Victor wholesalers report that business is good, and that there is a great deal of interest in the new horizontal Victrola models. The Schmelzer Co. has just received its new model No. 330, which sells at $350, and reports a fine sale on the $115 model. In fact, there is a good demand for the whole line of the horizontal Victrolas. There has been a good sale of records, also.

M. C. Schonley, sales manager for the Schmelzer Co. in the Victor department, recently made a trip over the territory, and planned some campaigns for the dealers that are now being worked out. He found that even where the dealers were not doing a great amount of business at the present, they were practically all looking forward to a good business in the Summer and Fall, and were getting ready for it. New departments were being developed in stores where the business had been given scant attention, and merchants are settling down to a realization of the fact that the talking machine business is a permanent institution, and not just a fad. Then there is a disposition to put this department into the hands of a specialist, and a determination to import or to develop one. One of the features which Mr. Schonley helped his dealers develop was their mailing lists. He showed them how these might be compiled and kept up-to-date.

Fred Jenkins, of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., has been busy not only getting for his wholesale department the full benefit of the Victor record exchange plan, but also taking care of his dealers as well. Mr. Jenkins says that the effect has been the increase in the sales of records, and a better feeling on the part of dealers.

Business with the Kansas City branch of the Brunswick is ahead of the corresponding months of last year, although it just about broke even in April.

H. P. Ripley, one of the aggressive music houses of Leavenworth, Kan., has recently been added to the list of Brunswick dealers, as has R. N. Bowden, of Brookfield, Mo.

H. A. Beach, of the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, stopped over in Kansas City on his way home from his trip to the Coast. He reported a good trip, and found some good prospects here for Unico equipment when things pick up a little more.

The recent appearance of Margaret Romaine at the High School in Kansas City, Kan., under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce was very successful and sales of her records have been considerably stimulated as a result, judging from the reports of dealers. Miss Romaine, who is an exclusive Columbia artist, received some splendid press notices and her appearance was taken advantage of by all the local Columbia dealers through window displays, distribution of circulars, newspaper advertising, etc.

E. A. McMurtry, manager of the local branch of the Columbia Co., who has recently returned from a trip through western Kansas, advises that prospects for good business in that section this Fall are very favorable as a fair small-grain crop is practically assured. Columbia dealers in that part of Kansas are optimistic and are now laying plans for aggressive late Summer and Fall campaigns on Grafonolas and records. Several of these dealers have agreed to use trucks, working their immediate territories by house-to-house campaigns, newspaper advertisements and the like.

Kansas City dealers have had some very attractive displays in their windows during the past week. One of the most timely was that of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Co. It was linked up with the opening of the baseball season, and featured the new composition, "Stealing," in sheet music, records and music rolls. The central feature of the display was a game of ball, with an audience intensely interested in one of the players attempting to steal a base. All of the players, as well as the audience in the bleachers, were Victor dogs. The players were distinguished by differently colored coats. The music, records and rolls were displayed around the players. The sales attending the display are reported as very satisfactory.

The new Brunswick Shop had a display calculated to indicate the universality of the service rendered by the Brunswick records. There was at the top of the display a large map of all the countries of the world. Ribbons from this map extended to placards in the window, which told not only the name of the country, but also the name of some new selection from that country that had just been released.

The Jones Store Co. had a complete window display made of Sonora phonographs. The features were the two new models, the Intermezzo and the Imperial. There were also in the window, samples of the Grand, the Etude, the Elite and the Baby Grand.

The feature of the Columbia window was the certificate of membership in the "Go-Getter Club," of the Columbia Co. This was earned last year by the retail store here. As an inducement for persons to come into the store, there were displayed some of the Columbia Co.'s beautiful calendars, which were offered free to visitors.

J. C. Clinkenbeard, former dealer service supervisor of the Columbia Graphophone Co. branch here, has resigned to take charge of the Grafonola department of the North Mehorney Furniture Co., local Columbia dealers. Mr. Clinkenbeard has the best wishes and good-will of the local Columbia organization, which predicts big success for him in the retail end of the game.

DISTRIBUTING SPECIAL CATALOG

Buegeleisen & Jacobson, Small Goods Importers and Jobbers, Sending Out Timely Catalog Covering Summer Specialties

Buegeleisen & Jacobson, of New York City, wholesalers and importers of musical merchandise, are distributing a special and particularly timely catalog known as No. 115, covering special Summer instruments, such as ukuleles, banjos, mandolins, tenor banjos, guitars, accordions, harmonicas, etc. It also includes odd lines of merchandise which are not listed in the regular catalog and are being closed out at cost and below. Charles E. Andrews, manager of the company, in discussing the new catalog, stated: "This is guaranteed musical merchandise and enables the music merchant to anticipate his Summer and Fall wants and cover them at a considerable saving. This is particularly important when we consider that musical instruments will be advanced considerably when the new tariff ruling goes into effect. During the convention of music merchants in New York in June this wide-awake firm means to install for the convenience of the visiting merchants special service, an information bureau, writing room, stenographic service; in fact, everything that will be of assistance in making their stay pleasant and profitable."

Dealers will find an array of a complete line of up-to-date musical merchandise at the house of "Durro," 5-7-9 Union Square, one of the finest wholesale display rooms in the country; also a special exhibit at the Hotel Commodore, Room 603, will be conducted during the convention.

ACTIVITY WITH BRISTOL & BARBER

Bristol & Barber, New York City, report good business in all departments. Production is now being made on the new console talking machine which this company is producing, and delivery is being made on the large number of orders which have been received. The Okeh records, together with Odeon and Fonotopia recordings, are much in demand among the many retailers served by Bristol & Barber.

The firm of Little & Deal, Tuolumne, Cal., has discontinued its Sonora, Cal., branch.

The Wiley B. Allen Co. has opened a talking machine establishment in Yuba City, Cal.

PAMPHLET ON SCHOOL MUSIC

Victor Talking Machine Co. Issues Interesting Folder on "Joy, Health and Education"

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has just issued a new and completely revised pamphlet on "Joy, Health and Education," which is especially designed for distribution among teacher students of Summer schools and county institutes. The new pamphlet contains carefully selected lists of records for the use of the little folk, as well as a page devoted to descriptions of various Victrolas suitable for school work. Some reference is also made to the various types of educational literature issued by the Victor Co.

In issuing the pamphlet the Victor Co. states: "We have long felt the need of some very small piece of literature that would give in a nutshell a few comprehensive record lists for little children in the home, the kindergarten and the school grades, together with a brief statement of the scope of our educational work, and carrying descriptive matter upon the types of Victrolas suitable for school use."

"We believe that the enclosed pamphlet will meet this very real need, if it is given to interested persons who desire a brief statement of the possibilities of educational work, and who, perhaps, would not make good use of the more complete and more expensive general educational booklets."

WURLITZER BRANCH IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. has formally opened a fine branch store at 50 East Gay street, this city. A complete line of Victrolas, Victor records and musical instruments is handled. Part of the main floor of the establishment is given over to the Victor department. B. L. McCarty, who has been with the company for a number of years, has been made manager of the store. Gilbert C. Brooks is in charge of the talking machine department, and Miss Maud Barlow is at the head of the record department.

Talking machines are featured in Klueter's Furniture Store, recently opened in Colton, Cal.

ATLANTA

Exhaustive Survey of Trade Activities in This Thriving Southern Music Center

ATLANTA, GA., May 8.—With Easter and its demand for expenditures for Easter finery safely passed, the retail dealers here have found a marked increase in their cash sales. The past week or two have been the best in months. Every one is optimistic over the outlook for the coming Summer, as building activities are on a tremendous scale. Large sums are being spent throughout the State for road work, and industrials both here and in the Birmingham district are adding to their payrolls from month to month.

One of the encouraging signs of improvement has been the marked revival of trade and the increase in collections in south Georgia. Diversification of crops and cash money received from early strawberries, lettuce and garden truck have been the cause.

Forrest Traylor has been made general manager of all the retail departments of the Goodhart-Tompkins Co., the prominently located Peachtree street dealers in Victrolas, art goods, etc. Mr. Traylor has been active in the talking machine business for many years, coming to Atlanta recently from Nashville, Tenn.

The Wester Piano Co.'s stock of talking machines and pianos has been taken over by Ludden & Bates, who are now busily engaged in disposing of the entire lot at a special sale. Full pages are being used in the local papers. The Wester Piano Co. has gone out of business as part of the settlement of the estate of the late J. D. Wester.

I. M. Bame and Leroy Webb, two of the Victor dealers here, are making arrangements to leave on June 3 for San Francisco. They are both members of the Chanters of Yaarab Temple, which organization will take a prominent part in the Shriners' Convention at San Francisco in June.

Westervelt Terhune has just returned from a successful trip through South Carolina, calling on the principal Columbia dealers and holding conferences with his sales force for that district. He is optimistic regarding trade conditions in that part of his territory.

The local Columbia branch and dealers are eagerly awaiting first shipments of the new Console model listed at $150. This is equipped with the new motor which has been in preparation and test for some time past. Initial orders are coming in for quantities which will rapidly deplete the available supply.

The new Columbia portable machine is also about ready for distribution, the first shipments being now en route.

The Eight Famous Victor Artists were enthusiastically received in their concert at the Auditorium recently. All Victor dealers made special window displays and the tickets were on sale at the Cable Company.

The big event of the month has been the annual week of opera by the Metropolitan Opera Co. Records of the various operas scheduled have been in great demand for weeks by those realizing that a close familiarity with the arias makes for the greatest enjoyment of the actual performance.

Orville Harrold, following the plan he inaugurated in New York, gave a private concert in Cable Hall for the Victor dealers and sales people, who are now busy recommending and selling his records based on personal acquaintance with the artist.

M. E. Lyle, who is in charge of the Strand interests in the Southeast, has been busy opening up new dealer accounts throughout his territory. Early in the month he spent a week in Alabama, including some time in Birmingham, working as far north as Chattanooga. He has now just returned from a trip to the principal cities in South Carolina. He reports a universal appreciation of the Strand consoles and some nice repeat orders to prove that the line is selling.

The line of Strand Consoles is now complete and advantageously displayed in the showroom maintained by M. E. Lyle, in the Peachtree Arcade. The Italian Renaissance Model No. 2 and the Louis XVI No. 4 are attracting much favorable comment. The model No. 8, specially finished in Chinese lacquer, is one of the show pieces of the line. Out-of-town talking machine dealers find it easy to drop in because of Mr. Lyle's central location.

The Rawson & Upshaw Co. has become a jobber of Black Swan records. It has circularized the trade in behalf of this product, which has an especial appeal to the negro trade in the South.

Sonora has recently announced a flat-top Console model at $125. This is taking well and was especially stressed by Mr. Upshaw during his recent trip through Florida and South Carolina.

One of Goodhart-Tompkins' successful sales "stunts" during Opera Week was the obtaining from the local hotels of the names of all out-of-town guests. Victrolagrams featuring Dudley Glass's "Book of the Opera" were then sent to each guest. These called attention to the educational value of the book to all opera lovers. General Manager Traylor reports an instantaneous response which sold out the entire stock.

The Chamberlain-Johnson-Dubose Co. is conducting a special drive on "Crown" machines, both upright and Console models. This is going over big, backed by ample advertising. Manager A. C. Boatman has prepared by bringing the product here in carloads.

Mr. Hanff, vice-president of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., New York, was a recent visitor here, spending some time with M. E. Lyle and inspecting his Strand display room.

Paul Byrum, Mr. Riley's assistant at the Atlanta Phonograph Co., has just returned after spending two weeks in Anderson, S. C.

Okeh records of the "Muscle Shoals Blues" made such an appeal to a customer of the Atlanta Phonograph Co. that he went out and pawned his hat to raise the necessary 75 cents.

The demand for the new Victor Consoles has been beyond expectations. All models are now available and are being strongly featured.

The Polk Furniture Co., Okeh record distributor, is stocking a full line of mainsprings and is now building up a wholesale business in these and other accessories. A bulletin has been mailed giving full details as to size, prices, etc.

FORMAL OPENING ATTRACTS CROWDS

Opening of Victor Department of Griswold, Richmond & Glock Co. a Great Success

MERIDEN, CONN., May 6.—The formal opening of the new Victor department of the Griswold, Richmond & Glock Co. was held on Friday, May 5. From the large crowds that filled the department from the opening until the close of the day it would seem that almost the entire population of the city was present. The entertainment feature was Kolomoku's Hawaiian singers and players, who furnished a very attractive program in both the afternoon and evening. Each attendant was presented, as a souvenir of the occasion, with a miniature Victor dog. Representatives of many of the Victor distributing houses in the East were present. Congratulatory letters and telegrams were received in large numbers. The Victor department has been fitted out in a particularly attractive manner and Van Veen & Co., Inc., of New York City, to whom the entire contract was let, shared with the Griswold, Richmond & Glock Co. the many enthusiastic comments on its equipment.

Fay Luyster, manager of the Victrola departments of the Cline-Vick Drug Co., located in seven cities in Illinois, has made his bow as editor of a special music page of the Marion (Ill.) Evening Post under the nom de plume of "The Listener." Incidentally Mr. Luyster has managed to put into the page some really interesting material.

MORE CHICAGO RECORDINGS

R. F. Bolton Returns From Supervising New Columbia Recordings Made by Prominent Mid-West Orchestras—H. L. Pratt Returns

R. F. Bolton, director of the recording laboratories of the Columbia Graphophone Co., spent a few days recently in Chicago, where recordings were made by Frank Westphal and his Rainbo Orchestra and the Paul Biese Orchestra, both of which are exclusive Columbia artists. Mr. Bolton also renewed the Columbia contract with Paul Biese, whereby this well-known orchestra conductor will continue to record for Columbia exclusively. The Paul Biese Orchestra has been engaged to play for the Summer season at the Beaux Art, Atlantic City, N. J.

H. L. Pratt, branch service manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., returned recently from a Western trip which included a visit to Columbia branches in St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha and Chicago. He states that April business showed an increase over March, and, judging from all indications, there is a healthier tone to business generally.

INTERCHANGEABLE MILEAGE BOOKS

Legislation to That End to Come Up Before the House Committee Shortly

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10.—Legislation providing for the use of interchangeable mileage books, which is now pending in Congress, is to be brought up before the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce within a short time. It is probable that the measure will be taken up at an early date, in executive session, and disposed of.

This committee now has before it, in addition to the mileage book legislation, bills contemplating the repeal of provisions of the transportation act guaranteeing a return of 5½ per cent to the railroads, and the reinvestment in State utilities commissions of authority over intrastate rates and regulations withdrawn from them by decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

TO OPEN NEW COLUMBUS STORE

COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—S. W. Goldsmith, president of the newly organized Goldsmith Co., which will open its piano and phonograph store at 25 East State street the early part of May, is in New York visiting wholesale piano and phonograph dealers. A radio department will be a feature of the shop. Pianos, phonographs, records, player rolls, musical instruments and sheet music will be carried. A band instrument repair shop, with full equipment, will be in charge of F. C. Miller, formerly of New York.

NEW QUARTERS IN CANTON, O.

CANTON, O., May 1.—C. M. Alford, head of the Alford & Fryar Piano Co., announces the erection of a new sales and storage building, on Walnut avenue, Southeast, to be completed within the present month. The larger part of the building will be used for storage purposes and one section will be given over to the sales of pianos and talking machines. This will give the company considerably more floor space for both sales and display purposes, the space being urgently needed.

STEADMAN HOUSE TO HANDLE RADIO

YONKERS, N. Y., May 8.—The Steadman Music House, of this city, is making preparations to open a large radio department. A portion of the stock has already been received and a large room in the rear of the store will be prepared in which Friday evening radio concerts will be given.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the United Phonograph Stores, Inc., of 342 Madison avenue, New York. Assets are placed at $25,000 and liabilities slightly less.

PERCY GRAINGER'S MOTHER DIES

Mother of Prominent Pianist Falls to Her Death While Visiting Mr. Grainger's Manager

Mrs. Rose Grainger, mother of Percy A. Grainger, well-known pianist and Columbia artist, was killed on Sunday, April 30, when she fell from the eighteenth floor of the Aeolian Hall Building, West Forty-second street, New York, where she had been visiting Mrs. Antonia Sawyer, manager for Mr. Grainger's concert tours. Mr. Grainger, who was in Los Angeles, Cal., on a tour, was notified. He immediately canceled his engagements and started East.

The death of Mrs. Grainger was a great shock to thousands of friends who loved and esteemed her for her many beautiful traits of character. She was more like a sister than a mother to her son—they were great chums—and she always accompanied Mr. Grainger on his concert tours—in fact, this was the first time that, owing to her illness, she was unable to accompany him on his visit to the Pacific Coast. The World joins with an army of friends in the musical world in extending the deepest sympathy to Mr. Grainger in the passing of his beloved mother.

NED NORWORTH PRAISES SONORA

Well-known Singer and Composer Pleased With Sonora—Purchased Period Model Recently

The sales department of the Sonora Phonograph Co. received recently an interesting letter from Ned Norworth, songwriter and vaudeville headliner, who is now playing on the Keith vaudeville circuit. Mr. Norworth purchased a Sonora phonograph some time ago and in a letter to the Sonora Co. expresses his appreciation of its tone quality. Mr. Norworth is not only a singer of renown but is the composer of several song successes, among which are "Which Hazel?" and "Linda Jane."

RADIO EXPERT FOR CONVENTION

Major-Gen. Geo. O. Squier, Head of U. S. Signal Corps, to Address Music Merchants

It is announced that one of the speakers at the convention of the National Association of Music Merchants at the Hotel Commodore in June will be Major-General George O. Squier, head of the U. S. Signal Corps, and a noted expert on wireless telephony, who will talk on "The Future of the Radiophone" for the benefit of the music merchants. Another speaker, yet to be announced, will follow with an address. "The Merchandising Possibilities of the Radiophone."

The Music Shops, of Johnson City and Endicott, N. Y., which were recently incorporated, are having a great success with the Victor, Edison and Brunswick lines.

Featuring the MUSICAL POSSIBILITIES of the TALKING MACHINE

[EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the nineteenth of a new series of articles by William Braid White, devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the featuring and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

I. THE SALESMAN AS LISTENER

In the following and later articles I purpose to talk about music from the point of view of the talking machine merchant and the talking machine salesman. Now, the talking machine merchant and the talking machine salesman are dealers in music, are sellers of music and have music alone for their stock-in-trade.

Not every one will at the first take this statement at its face value. Some will say that it may be theoretically true, but in practice must be modified. Others will say that it is not even theoretically true, or, if it is, has no practical bearing. Both these points of view are commonly held, but both are wholly inaccurate and wholly wrong.

T. M. Business Is Music Business

As has been said in these columns dozens of times, as has been said on almost every page of The Talking Machine World at one time or another, the talking machine business is the business of selling to the people the means to obtain music at home. Therefore it is a business of selling music and nothing else. Therefore the most important part of the salesman's equipment is a knowledge of music, a knowledge especially directed towards and acquired on account of the needs of selling.

To sell anything at all one must know what one is selling. To sell music one must know something about music. There is no getting away from this obligation. The successful music salesman cannot at the same time be the ignorant salesman. Young people who sell talking machines and records must have a certain, even if neither a large nor a profound, acquaintance with composers, styles and forms of music. Lacking this, they become mere order takers, quite incapable of that salesmanship which turns the casual into a steady customer and the trifter with jazz into a slow but sure climber to the heights of educated, informed musical taste.

Educated Salesmanship the Need

What the talking machine business needs more than anything else is educated salesmanship, gradually producing an educated clientele. Given the latter, the position of any talking machine merchant, as of the entire industry, is forever secure. Lacking this educated clientele, the talking machine business is without a firm foundation and must rest solely upon the frivolous and shifting bases of ignorant faddishness.

That this is true needs only the evidence of the greatest houses in the industry, as disclosed in their consistent practice. Every great house has spent vast sums of money in work which is purely educational, work calculated to educate the people to the point of acquiring a discriminating judgment, of telling good from bad, of coming to like the good better than the bad. If, and in so far as, this aim is accomplished, there will rapidly grow up a section of the people interested enough in music to acquire permanent libraries of the finest vocal and instrumental records. These will be played till they are entirely worn out and then will be replaced. On such a basis, on the basis of such an educated clientele, rests the prosperity of the talking machine business both now and for the future.

If then, as a preliminary to the investigation which is to follow in succeeding articles, we agree that talking machine selling needs some musical knowledge to back it up, can we say how much knowledge is needed and how it may best be acquired?

The Intelligent Listener

The question might be resolved by saying, first, that the musical knowledge needed in the talking machine business is the musical knowledge possessed by the intelligent listener to music. The intelligent listener is the man or woman—aye, and the child, too—who goes to concerts and the opera and has a general familiarity with a larger or smaller quantity of the music which is performed at the former, as well as an equally general acquaintance with the names, stories, action and music of the best-known operas. Where such a listener is unusually intelligent he or she will be constantly striving to increase the width and depth of his or her acquaintance with musical art, and will gradually acquire the power of distinguishing between styles of music, between the music of various races, between the interpretations of different vocalists, instrumentalists and conductors.

Listening Not Technical

This acquaintance, the acquirement of which constitutes one of the most delightful of occupations, and which never grows stale, does in no sense call for a technical understanding of music. This important point should be made clear. The ability to play an instrument or to sing was in the past essential to the enjoyment of music, since opportunities for listening were comparatively so few in number. But to-day, with the multiplication of both direct and indirect means—especially with the coming of the talking machine and its records—it is much less important to be able to play some instrument, and much more important to be able to listen intelligently to the music which is presented.

Intelligent listening does not essentially require knowledge of musical notation. Such knowledge, that is to say, is not indispensable. Yet its convenience and utility cannot possibly be overrated. It is an awfully good thing to be able to read music, even in the most halting manner, for the task of making explanations of musical matters in print is rendered far easier when notation can be employed. But while this is so, the fact remains that one can be an intelligent listener without this knowledge, and certainly without any knowledge of instrumental or vocal manipulation.

There was never a time when the cultivated art lover could not enjoy paintings or sculpture, despite his ignorance of the technical processes. To-day the same is true of music. The talking machine has brought the possibility of musical enjoyment to all, and the qualities which the connoisseur of music who takes his pleasures by way of the record requires are those of expert listening. Therefore these qualities are the qualities most needed in the musical equipment of the ideal salesman.

The Qualities of Expert Listening

It only remains, therefore, within the present article to analyze these qualities so as to bring them into a form easily comprehended. We may say then that:

The intelligent listener is one who comprehends, upon hearing a piece, to what division of musical forms it belongs, who can, in fact, classify it, one might say morphologically and physiologically;

One who recognizes, as between pieces in the same general form, differences which enable him to place their period, their composer and their racial idiom;

One who understands how forms have originated, how they came to their perfection and what are the influences, if any, which to-day are bringing music away from their strictness to new and perhaps freer forms;

One, finally, who, from all these processes, partly intellectual, partly emotional, derives a constant and never-failing enjoyment, an enjoyment which feeds on itself and grows steadily in depth and intensity.

ADDS VICTOR LINE OF MACHINES

YONKERS, N. Y., May 8.—The Goldberg Furniture Co., Warburton avenue, this city, has recently added the Victor line of talking machines to its stock. A number of handsome demonstration booths are being fitted up on the main floor of the store for this line. A large portion of the main floor has also been turned over to the display of Victor machines.

How to Increase the "Attracting" Power of the Dealer's Display Window :: By Frank K. Parsons

Many years of successful experience have proven that a show window in which there is some moving object has many times the appeal to the individual passer-by as the window that simply represents a still picture, regardless of its attractiveness. On Fifth avenue, New York, not long ago, a Rembrandt, valued at over $100,000, was beautifully displayed in a large window and appropriately labeled. It attracted some attention and probably a dozen or more interested spectators were found in front of the window throughout the day.

A half block below was a window filled with packages of a toilet specialty, the feature being a miniature electric locomotive rolling around a circular track and hauling three or four small cars loaded with the preparation. The crowd that jammed about the window watching the travels of the little train left just sufficient room on the sidewalk for busy travelers to pass, and in the crowd it was difficult to find a child under sixteen, the audience being made up mostly of dignified business men who had reached their majority many years before.

There have been many very elaborate talking machine windows, typical Summer, Autumn and Winter scenes, faithful in every detail and representing heavy cost in production. A number of these windows have attracted attention and favorable comment, but it is safe to say that a neighboring display, much simpler, but with some form of dancing figure on the turntable; pulled four or five times the crowd.

It is always quite possible to put some sort of movement into the window display and still keep it dignified.

Particularly on the approach of the holidays should this matter be given consideration, for it is expected that during this season every attempt will be made to appeal directly to the child with displays that please the children. This offers a real excuse to place moving objects in the window to attract the grownups. If it is only a toy train hauling miniature packages of records and machines to the dealer's store for the vacation trade, it will attract a large enough crowd of grown people to make it real difficult for the children to get near enough to the window to see what it is all about. A shimmying doll or a dancing figure, of course, makes the quickest appeal, but a series of attractive signs rotated by a motor, a display of the motor itself brought into plain view and operated through the medium of an electric winder, or some arrangement of similar nature, is sure to get attention.

In view of the continuance of the dance craze and the prominence given talking machine records made by the various noted dance orchestras, there still lie great possibilities in the practice of having real, human dancers appear in the window at regular intervals for the purpose of demonstrating the latest steps to the accompaniment of the talking machine. The idea is not new by any means, but it never fails to get results in the matter of publicity, especially if the appearances of the dancers are properly timed and are well advertised.

It is all very well to feature records as being especially designed for dancing purposes, and to the great majority of talking machine owners such an announcement is sufficient to arouse interest. There are still a number of people who like to be shown—who like to have demonstrated the various dance steps that fit in with the music of the noted orchestras.

In arranging for dancers to appear in the window it is best, if possible, to engage those who have local reputations as dancers, for this fact adds to the general value of the display and more than repays the extra cost.

If the dancing idea does not appeal, through lack of window space or available funds, there are still many ideas for injecting movement into displays that should prove effective in almost every locality.

JOBBER FOR FIRTH PRODUCTS

Loyd Wireless Telephone Corp. Announces First List of Distributors—Several Victor Jobbers Included in List—Col. Firth's Activities Important Factor in Company's Success—New Model for Tourists Now Ready

The Loyd Wireless Telephone Corp., sole sales agent for John Firth & Co., manufacturers of Firco wireless telephone equipment, has announced the appointment of the following jobbers who will handle the complete Firth line in their respective territories: M. Steinert & Sons, Boston, Mass., Massachusetts and Rhode Island territory; Nassau Radio Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.,

Vocaphone, Model A—Designed for Homes

Brooklyn and Long Island; General Radio Corp., Philadelphia, Pa., eastern and western Pennsylvania; Schmelzer Co., Kansas City, Mo., western Missouri and State of Kansas; Sanger Bros., Dallas, Tex., State of Texas; Northeastern Electric & Radio Supply Co., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and Buffalo, N. Y., northeastern Pennsylvania and western New York; Radio Supply Co., Oklahoma City, Okla., State of Oklahoma.

Herbert A. Brennan, sales manager of the Loyd Wireless Telephone Corp., states that arrangements for the appointment of jobbers in other territories are now in process of consummation and will be ready for announcement to the trade in the near future. Mr. Brennan, who is well known throughout the talking machine industry, points with pardonable pride to the commercial and financial prestige of the jobbers already appointed for the Firth line. M. Steinert & Sons, Schmelzer Co. and Sanger Bros. are all Victor jobbers, while the General Radio Corp. is sponsored by Walter L. Eckhardt, one of the leading members of the talking machine industry. A. and O. Ruckgaber, two of the most successful retail talking machine men in Greater New York, are the heads of the Nassau Radio Co. Allen P. Kirby, president of the Northeastern Electric & Radio Supply Co., is associated with prominent financial interests, and A. G. McMahon, head of the Radio Supply Co., is one of the foremost citizens of Oklahoma.

John Firth & Co., makers of Firth wireless products, have been exceptionally fortunate in the fact that Col. Firth, chairman of the Board of Directors, and inventor of the products bearing his name, has been an important factor in the development of the wireless industry for over twenty years. In the early days of the wireless telephone when the transmitting and receiving apparatus were in their crudest form, Col. Firth exploited the first type of crystal detector, which was sold in large quantities to the United States Army and Navy. He obtained an important contract for building and erecting the first high-power radio transmitting station in the world for the United States Navy, which is now known as the Arlington station. The first form of portable radio transmitting and receiving sets for military purposes was developed by Col. Firth and his associate engineers, and these instruments were used to a great extent by the Army.

The Firth line not only includes wireless telephone instruments for use in the home, but also special models such as the Vocaphone Model AA, shown in the accompanying illustration, designed for use in clubs, hotels, theatres, etc. There is also a De Luxe model, designed to harmonize with the most artistically decorated home, and which is considered one of the handsomest wireless telephone instruments on the market. Col. Firth and his engineering staff have also designed a new portable wireless telephone, which may be used by tourists and which incorporates several improvements that make a particular appeal to discriminating purchasers.

PLANS FOR THE TEMPLE OF MUSIC

New York Manager Offers an Elaborate Suggestion for Thirty-seven-story Temple of Music in the Heart of Broadway District

Following the endorsement by State and city officials of New York of the project for erecting a peace memorial in New York City in the form of a Temple of Music and Art, the site to be provided by the city and the building to be erected from funds collected from the public, there have been a number of suggestions made for the carrying out of the project.

One of the most interesting of these is put forth by John Wesley Miller, an artist-manager of New York, who has suggested a thirty-seven-story building running from Thirty-seventh street to Thirty-ninth street, and from Broadway to Seventh avenue, with a ground area of approximately 130,000 square feet. The structure, tentative plans for which have been drafted by E. C. Horn Sons, architects, of New York, will include an opera house seating 8,000 people, elaborate stores on the street floor, studios for the use of music teachers and others, together with many offices, the rent of which it is declared will show a substantial profit on the cost of the building.

The plans call for providing an archway so that traffic on Thirty-eighth street between Broadway and Seventh avenue may be carried right under the building through arches, much as Chambers street is carried under the Municipal Building. The whole idea is most elaborate, and though the city has not taken a step to condemn the necessary property for the temple, the idea has aroused much interest. The site is a part of the old Wendall estate, and is at present covered by "taxpayers." Under any circumstances the property could only be acquired for other uses by condemnation proceedings. The site is immediately south of the Metropolitan Opera House.

ILLINOIS MUSIC MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION FORMED

Charles C. Adams Heads New Association of Illinois Dealers—Two-day Session in Springfield, Ill., Devoted to Perfecting Organization Details—Closes With Banquet

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., May 6.—The Illinois Music Merchants' Association was formed at the Hotel Leland recently by a gathering of Illinois merchants. Officers were elected and a constitution and by-laws for a permanent organization were adopted. The officers of the new organization are: Charles C. Adams, of Peoria, president; J. Barth Johnson, of Jacksonville, vice-president; Fred Watson, of Mt. Vernon, second vice-president; J. F. McDermott, of Decatur, secretary, and Lloyd Parker, of Harrisburg, treasurer.

Mr. Adams presided at the Monday afternoon session as temporary chairman. With him, in the capacity of advisers, were Fred Goosman, president of the Music Merchants' Association of Ohio, and Rexford C. Hyre, secretary of the same Association, who were there to give the new Association the benefit of their experience. W. F. Wallace, of the Q R S Music Co., and Charles Burtzloff, of the Kohler Industries, who have been boosting the formation of the Association for some time, were also present.

While the committee selected to consider the by-laws was at work M. J. Kennedy, of Chicago, was called upon for an address. He stressed the value of Association work and strongly boosted the idea of the Illinois Association.

The report of the committee on by-laws resulted in the acceptance of the Ohio statutes, with a few minor changes, including the name of the Illinois Music Merchants' Association. This was followed by the election of officers. The Tuesday morning session of the new Illinois Music Merchants' Association was devoted to a discussion of the question of building up Association membership and both dealers and travelers promised hearty support to a membership campaign between now and October, when the next meeting will be held in Peoria, Ill.

The Association has decided to prepare uniform sales contracts for the use of its members, thus enabling them to secure direct benefits and savings in litigation.

The formation of small local organizations in various sections of the State was also advocated as being of material assistance in insuring the success of the State Association.

The business session ended at noon and in the afternoon members of the Springfield Association of Commerce took the music trade visitors on a tour to Lincoln's monument and his home and then on a trip about the city.

In the evening a banquet was held at the Leland Hotel, with over eighty in attendance. Charles Adams, the president, opened the proceedings and introduced Mat Kennedy, of Chicago, as toastmaster. The principal speakers were Fred Goosman and Rexford C. Hyre, president and secretary of the Music Merchants' Association of Ohio; Alfred L. Smith, general manager of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, and Richard Bradley, the noted humorist. The entertainment of the evening was furnished by the Springfield Lions Quartet.

DA-LITE DISPLAY ATTRACTS

Cable Piano Co. Makes Interesting Test of Display's Drawing Power—Display Installed in Ten Cable Stores

TOLEDO, O., May 6.—One of the many new accounts opened recently by the Da-Lite Electric Display Co., this city, manufacturer of display signs for Victor dealers, is the Cable Piano Co., Chicago, located at Wabash, avenue and Jackson boulevard, in the heart of piano row, which installed the Da-Lite display service featuring Victor records and used a special constructed display showing the four panels simultaneously.

S. F. Patchen, manager of the Victor department of the Cable Piano Co., has advised the Da-Lite Electric Display Co. that after the display was installed an accurate account was kept of the persons passing the window in which the display was placed and that 650 out of the first 800 passers-by looked at the display, many of them stopping to examine it closely. The Cable Piano Co. has also installed the Da-Lite display service in its eight Illinois branch stores and at Atlanta, Ga.

The Diamond Disc Shop, of New York City, has merged with the Phonograph Corp. of Manhattan.

RECEIVER FOR MILWAUKEE CONCERN

Frank Macey, Factory Manager of the Milwaukee Talking Machine Mfg. Co., Made Receiver—Arrange to Manufacture Radio Supplies

MILWAUKEE, WIS., May 8.—Frank Macey, factory manager of the Milwaukee Talking Machine Mfg. Co., has been appointed receiver of the affairs of the corporation as the result of proceedings instituted in the Milwaukee County Circuit Court by John Hennes and other members of the Hennes Cartage Co., Milwaukee. The petition alleged that the corporation is on the verge of insolvency and the petition for a receivership is made to conserve the assets for the benefit of the creditors. It is stated in the petition that the company has entered into a contract with the Briggs & Stratton Co., of Milwaukee, to manufacture certain parts of radio apparatus and that this arrangement will yield large profits in case the business is carried on under a receivership. Mr. Macey has accepted the court's appointment as receiver and filed bonds, taking charge at once.

BRITISH HONDURAS MUSIC IMPORTS

Imports From the United States Lead—Substantial Increase in Valorem During Year

In 1921, imports of musical instruments into British Honduras were valued at $10,334, of which $8,821 came from the United States, $760 from the United Kingdom, $632 from Spain, $74 from Japan, and $47 from Germany, according to a report to the Department of Commerce by W. W. Early, American consul, stationed at Belize.

Musical instruments of foreign manufacture are subject to a duty of fifteen per cent ad valorem and of British manufacture to ten per cent ad valorem. In the last year the duty on goods of foreign manufacture was advanced to twenty per cent ad valorem.

NEW LIST OF ASSOCIATIONS

Chamber of Commerce of State of New York Issues New Edition of Classified List of Trade Associations and Publications

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, with headquarters at 65 Liberty street, New York City, has just issued the latest edition of its classified list of trade and allied associations and publications in the City of New York. The volume has been carefully compiled and includes in its listing the various associations and publications connected with the different branches of the music industry.

COLUMBIA ARTISTS FEATURED

Nashville Dealers Make Special Displays Featuring Presence of Two Columbia Artists

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 6.—Gypsy Smith and Will McEwan, Columbia record artists, conducted an evangelistic campaign in this city recently which was exceptionally successful. The two evangelists were welcomed enthusiastically and all of the local Columbia dealers tied up with the campaign in every possible way in order to cooperate with these artists and stimulate the demand for their records.

During their stay here, Lebeck Bros., Columbia dealers, furnished the evangelists with a Grafonola and a representative library of records. Incidentally, these enterprising dealers devoted an entire window to the artists and their records, and in addition had a large banner on their truck announcing that Gypsy Smith and Will McEwan made Columbia records. Another Columbia dealer, Bond's Graphophone Shop, also devoted a part of its establishment to featuring these artists with very satisfactory results.

BROADEN SPHERE OF OPERATIONS

OMAHA, NEB., May 10.—P. G. Spitz, the well-known talking machine man, has assumed charge of the Victrola department of the J. L. Brandeis Store, this city. Mr. Spitz is popular with the talking machine trade throughout Nebraska and Iowa, and was the first president of the Iowa Victor Dealers' Association. He is generally known as a "live wire" and his identification with the Brandeis Victrola department promises greatly increased activity there.

ACQUIRE RETAIL VICTOR BUSINESS

BOSTON, MASS., May 11.—The business of the Tremont Talking Machine Co., at 177 Tremont street, which has been handled by the Eastern Talking Machine Co. for nearly a year past, has been acquired by the Iver Johnson Sporting Goods Co., whose home is farther down Washington street at the corner of Cornhill. As heretofore, this new acquisition will continue to be a headquarters for Victor products.

EMERSON CREDITORS MEET

Meeting on Tuesday Before Judge Knox First Step Towards Final Settlement—Cash Offer of $90,000 to Be Submitted Formally

A meeting of the creditors of the Emerson Phonograph Co. was held before Judge Knox of the U. S. District Court, Southern District of New York, on Tuesday, May 9, for the consideration of any offers that might be made for the assets of the company. After listening to several propositions, Judge Knox adjourned the meeting until Friday afternoon, May 12, when all offers will be submitted formally. Thomas H. Matters, Inc., one of the receivers of the Emerson Phonograph Co., announced at Tuesday's meeting that he was authorized by certain interests to bid $90,000 for the assets of the company, exclusive of accounts receivable and cash on hand. Mr. Matters stated that on Friday he would give further details regarding this offer, which was a cash proposition.

CLOSED EXCELLENT APRIL

Greater City Phonograph Co. Established Important Sonora Agencies—Maurice Landay Praised for Effective Work in Territory

The Greater City Phonograph Co., New York, Sonora jobber in the metropolitan territory, reports the closing of an excellent April. Several important Sonora agencies were established during the course of the month and Maurice Landay, president of the company, was personally responsible for closing a number of these deals.

Mr. Landay points with pride to the fact that James McCreery & Co., New York, one of the leading retail establishments in the city, have arranged to handle the Sonora line in their talking machine department. This important move was advertised by James McCreery & Co. in the New York newspapers, and Mr. Landay has received the congratulations of the Sonora Phonograph Co. upon the consummation of this valuable connection for the Sonora line.

G. H. JACKSON CO. CHARTERED

A charter of incorporation has been granted to the G. H. Jackson Co., of Dallas, Tex., to deal in pianos, talking machines, etc. The concern is capitalized at $40,000. Incorporators are G. H. Jackson, J. B. Stiteler and Miss Lida Eidt, all of Dallas.

STEWART T. M. CO. TO RETIRE

Indianapolis Victor Wholesaler Plans Withdrawal From Trade—A. M. Stewart's Plans

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 8.—The Stewart Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, of this city, is preparing to retire from the business, according to a report here. This is the result of the desire of A. M. Stewart, senior member of the company, to retire from active business. His son, George E. Stewart, who for the past few years has had the personal supervision of the concern under his care, is planning to enter another line of business, it is understood.

TWO NEW STRAND REPRESENTATIVES

Canadian and Texas Territory Now Covered—Otis Dorian and H. J. Ivey Appointed Representatives—Both Widely Experienced

Geo. W. Lyle, president of the Manufacturers Phonograph Co., New York, manufacturer of the Strand talking machine, has announced the appointment of two new district representatives, both of whom are well known in the talking machine industry. Otis C. Dorian, for many years associated with the Columbia Graphophone Co., and for the last five years in direct charge of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. of Canada, has completed arrangements whereby he will open salesrooms and offices in Toronto, and will handle the complete Strand line in western Canada.

H. J. Ivey, connected with the Columbia Co. for many years, a large part of which he spent in traveling through Texas, has become Strand representative for Texas territory and will open offices and salesrooms in Dallas. Mr. Lyle states that he considers himself very fortunate in securing these two well-known and experienced talking machine men as Strand representatives. He is certain that they will give their dealers 100 per cent service and co-operation, as they are thoroughly familiar with the sales problems met by the dealer in his daily routine.

Laurence H. Lucker, of Minneapolis, Minn., distributor for the Edison line of phonographs and records, announces the removal of the company's offices to the Warner Building, 17 Sixth street, where the entire fifth floor will be occupied. The new location is in one of the busiest and most advantageously located sections of the city and the move will undoubtedly benefit this aggressive Edison jobber.

RADIO A BIG DRAWING CARD

Not a Competitor of the Talking Machine, Says Myer Rosenthal, President of the Air-O-Phone Co., in Interesting Talk

Myer Rosenthal, president of the Air-O-Phone Corp., an inventor of the home receiving apparatus bearing the above name, conceived the idea of installing the receiving apparatus in a cabinet early in 1921.

The announcement of deliveries of the Air-O-Phone to the trade marks the completion of his idea. The Air-O-Phone is of most simple design and requires no knowledge of radio to operate. By pushing a button and pointing the loop aërio in the direction of the broadcasting station, immediate contact is made. The Air-O-Phone Co. is already making deliveries in quantities and in a short time expects to be represented from coast to coast.

In speaking of his product Mr. Rosenthal stated that "a study of the relation of radio to talking machines reveals that instead of radio being a competitor of the phonograph the judicious use of radio is a drawing card to bring the public to the dealer's store, and that as a promoter of sales it is unexcelled."

"The phonograph dealer must not forget that the owner of a radio machine must accept the music broadcasted and cannot choose a particular selection to suit his mood that is possible to the owner of a talking machine. Also the dealer must bear in mind that thousands of records are being sold to radio fans after they hear the selections broadcasted."

Giuseppe Danise, the brilliant baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and Brunswick artist, following his appearance in opera in Atlanta, is now on a concert tour, singing at the Evanston, Ill., Festival on May 26. He will also be part of the musical forces to be heard at Ravina Park this Summer.

THIS is an age of specialization. We have learned through the centuries that concentration upon one goal brings success.

That is why James McCreery & Co. have focused their entire business policy upon one factor—Quality.

Heretofore, the Victrola has been supreme in its field, and we have been successful with the Victrola exclusively. Now a runner has matched it in the race. We are not giving up the Victrola, but are including its mate—the Sonora—among our products of Quality, thereby joining fame to fame.

The Victrola has given our patrons dividends of satisfaction. We believe we are increasing that dividend by offering the Sonora as well. Sonora prices range from $50 to $3000.

OUTING APPOINTS NEW JOBBERS

Two New Jobbers Added to Outing T. M. Co.'s Representation—Preparing for Active Summer Business—Portables to Be in Demand

The Outing Talking Machine Co., Mt. Kisco, N. Y., has announced the appointment of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, distributing division, and the A. J. Heath Co., Philadelphia, Pa., as jobbers. Both of these prominent concerns have placed good-sized orders for immediate delivery, and are making plans for an energetic sales drive featuring the Outing talking machine.

A. J. Cote, president and general manager of the company, states that factory facilities have been increased materially in order to give Outing jobbers and dealers efficient service during the coming Summer season. Judging from the reports received by the company from its jobbers throughout the country, there is going to be a greater demand for portables this year than ever before, and the Outing Talking Machine Co. will be prepared to co-operate with its trade in getting their full share of this prosperity.

INTERESTING SERIES OF ADS

Edison Retail Dealers Pleased With Ads Specially Conceived for May Publicity

ORANGE, N. J., May 10.—Thos. A. Edison Co., Inc., in conjunction with its advertising agents, Frank Seaman, Inc., prepared a very interesting series of newspaper advertisements for the retail Edison dealers to use during the month of May. The copy of these advertisements was devoted to such subjects as Amberol records; the Edison turntable tests; the new prices and new models; the budget system of payment and the new Edison re-creations. The illustrations involved were all of a character well adapted to newspaper use, and on the first page of the broadside appeared a facsimile of a classified newspaper ad which read as follows:

SITUATIONS WANTED—SALESMEN

NINE salesmen, highly successful and with long experience in selling at retail, want situations as salesmen for EDISON phonograph dealers. Have worked for almost everybody who is making any sales this time o' year, and know the consumers' minds and how to start them BUYING quickly. Prefer to work together, as they believe that, just as two of them can make more sales than one, so NINE of them can make more sales than just a few of them. Have no objection to working in newspapers in any city in the country, and guarantee to work steadily as soon as employed, and to approach ALL the possible purchasers of EDISON Phonographs in any dealer's locality in such a pleasing manner as to make them want to buy at the Edison dealer's store. Salary no object; indeed, will pay own transportation to your store. Pictures of these salesmen are shown in the following pages, and on receipt of the enclosed postcard, the salesmen will at once report for work. Address Advertising Dept.

THOMAS A. EDISON, Orange, N. J.

JOBBERS OF DEFOREST RADIOPHONES

Lyon & Healy, Chicago; Triangle Co., and Davega, of New York, Feature This Line

Dr. Lee deForest, who recently arrived from Europe, as reported in another part of this paper, spent three days of last month at the American plant of his company, the deForest Radio Telephone & Telegraph Co., Jersey City, N. J. While there he had a series of conferences with President Charles Gilbert and Secretary Randall M. Keator, and plans for the coming activities of the company were discussed.

Many prominent houses in the music industry have been appointed jobbers of deForest radiophones, such as Lyon & Healy, of Chicago; the Triangle Radio Supply Co., Inc., New York City, of which Lambert Friedl is the head, and Davega, New York City.

CHURCH CONCERTS STIMULATE SALES

MARSHALL, ILL., May 8.—A successful sales idea recently put into effect by Bubeck & Gallagher, Victor dealers here, consisted of a series of concerts in all of the local churches. As a result of this publicity the firm's record has grown.

FOUR NEW VICTOR ARTISTS

First Records by Tito Schipa, Hugo Kreisler, Guy Maier and Lee Pattison in May List

The Victor Record Supplement for May is particularly interesting in that it announces to the public the addition of four new artists to the notable Victor Co. list, they being Tito Schipa, Hugo Kreisler and the duo of Guy Maier and Lee Pattison.

Tito Schipa, an Italian by birth, is one of the youngest of the new generation of tenors now before the public, who stands high in his field. He made his debut in opera in Rome and first came to the United States in 1919, where he became a member of the Chicago Opera Association. He has a large repertory of standard and modern works and possesses a rich, clear voice that records well.

In Hugo Kreisler the Victor Co. has secured another artist of genuine ability, who is well known in Europe, although not so famous as his brother Fritz in the United States. As a 'cellist he stands among the leaders of his profession.

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, two young Americans, have been specializing in compositions for two pianos, several of which they have recorded for the Victor Blue Label list. Both studied at the New England Conservatory and later at Berlin, and even while in the service found opportunities for displaying their artistry in France and in England. First records by all four of these artists are to be found in the Victor May list.

SECURES VOCALION AGENCY

YONKERS, N. Y., May 9.—Extensive alterations are under way at the establishment of A. M. Krug, on Warburton avenue here. Mr. Krug has just secured the Vocalion line of machines, which he is planning to push in an aggressive manner as soon as the work of remodeling has been completed. The Pathé is also handled here.

The Cline-Bick Drug Co., which controls a chain of stores throughout Illinois, recently opened an attractive Victor department in its Zeigler, Ill., establishment.

Y., it was stated that the change of name was used for the purpose of incorporation, as the present name of the company closely resembled that of another corporation.

PIANO HOUSE ADDS VOCALION LINE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 8.—The Milwaukee Piano Mfg. Co., of this city, has added the Aeolian Vocalion to the regular line of merchandise handled in its talking machine department.

Mme. Maria Jeritza, famous soprano of the Metropolitan opera this season, is represented in the June Victor list, elsewhere in this issue, with two records—her initial offering.

FINE NEW DREHER STORE IS OPENED

Occupies Spacious Building in Heart of Cleveland—Luncheon Precedes Official Opening Attended by Mayor and Trade Members

CLEVELAND, O., May 8.—Mayor Fred Kohler was guest of honor at the luncheon and opening of the B. Dreher's Sons Co. here, May 6, and was one of many celebrities in and out of the industry who came from all parts of the country to congratulate Henry Dreher, president of the company, and his associates, on an achievement toward which Mr. Dreher has been working for close on half a century.

The event marked the entry of the Dreher firm into its own building at Huron road and Euclid avenue, now recognized as the center of musical merchandising activity in this city.

Prior to the official opening, which was attended by more than 1,000 persons, luncheon, at which Mr. Dreher was host, was served to friends in and close to the industry, as a mark of appreciation on the part of Mr. Dreher for help they have given him in past years.

Attending the luncheon were Frank B. Meade, architect who designed the building; C. W. Lundoff, the Lundoff-Bicknell Co., who built it; Ernest Urchs, Steinway & Sons; W. H. Alfring, and F. E. Edgar, Aeolian Co.; Ben H. Janssen, B. H. Janssen Piano Co.; A. L. Bretzfelder, Krakauer Bros.; William McLaughlin, Pickands-Matther Co.; E. S. Rodgers, H. D. Messick and M. E. Smith, secretary, the B. Dreher's Sons Co.; Harry R. Valentine, vice-president, the B. Dreher's Sons Co.; Hon. Fred Kohler, Mayor of Cleveland; Daniel Moeder, Jr., Cleveland News; Arthur Darmstader, Cleveland Plain Dealer; D. W. Lerch, Canton, O.; E. C. McMahon, Youngstown, O.; Kenyon W. Mix, the Dodge Manufacturing Co.; Charles H. Yahring, Youngstown, O.; A. H. Seibig, Union Banking & Trust Co.; Robert Jones, advertising manager, the B. Dreher's Sons Co.; John F. Renner, Sandusky, O.; P. B. Sheehan, Sterling & Welch Co.; T. H. Towell, Eclipse Musical Co.; C. J. Brookins, the Brookins Co.; Jerome Murphy and J. T. Sayward, M. Steinert & Sons Co.; T. L. Floyd-Jones, W. P. Haines Co.; W. H. Zelt, The Talking Machine World; Judge C. W. Collister, company attorney; Fred C. Harlow, Vose & Sons; Earl Thomas, Dodge Manufacturing Co.; William G. Bowie, talking machine department manager, the B. Dreher's Sons Co.; Frederick Sunderman, Melodee Music Co.; W. W. Ballie and F. W. Church, J. W. Greene Co., and W. H. Daniels, Denton-Cottier-Daniels Co., Buffalo.

There were some interesting addresses by Mayor Kohler, Ernest Urchs, Frank E. Edgar, C. W. Lundoff, Frank B. Meade and many others, reviewing their experiences with the House of Dreher and predicting still greater success in the new home.

During the afternoon a musical entertainment was held in the recital hall, one of the features of the new establishment, at which 1,000 persons were present. The artists who entertained included Lila Robeson, Metropolitan Opera Company; Herman Rosen, violinist; Daisy Nellis, pianist, while the new Aeolian pipe organ, the Duo-Art piano and the Lyradion, combined phonograph and radio receiver, were used effectively.

The new home of the B. Dreher's Sons Co. may be considered the last word in musical establishment development. As pointed out by authorities who were present, the store is not a piano wareroom, but a monument to what music stands for. The building is three stories high.

A mezzanine floor provides space for a sales force as well as accommodating additional rooms for the display of Victor and Vocalion talking machines. Underneath the mezzanine are located the music rolls and phonograph record departments, with special facilities for "trying out" selections. The rear of the first floor, the greater part of the second floor and part of the third floor are devoted to the display of pianos, including the Steinway and other makes in Duo-Art (reproducing) models.

FRED. GRETSCH CO. IMPORTATIONS

The Fred. Gretsch Mfg. Co., wholesaler and importer of musical merchandise, reports that it has just received a large shipment of Oskar Herrman Seidel violins. It was stated by an official of the company that these violins are of an exceptional quality and of pre-war standard. The Fred. Gretsch Co. is enthusiastic over receiving this merchandise.

RECEIVES MANY EXPORT ORDERS

The export department of the Outing Talking Machine Co., Mt. Kisco, N. Y., manufacturer of the Outing portable talking machine, received orders this week from South Africa and Spain, indicating that this instrument is attracting the favorable attention of buyers in far-distant points. The company is closing a healthy, substantial Canadian business and dealers have been established in leading Canadian cities.

BETTER DEMAND IN EVIDENCE

The Mutual Talking Machine Co., New York City, has experienced a decided demand for its tone arms and sound boxes for export trade. An improvement is also noticeable in the call from the local trade.

DEFENDS MUSIC FOR THE MASSES

Director of Community Interests of St. Louis Challenges Noted Russian Critic Who Condemns "Canned" Music for the Mob

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 11.—Miss Sarah Wolf, director of community interests of the city of St. Louis and secretary of the Municipal Theatre Association, the secretary of the committee which arranged the observance of Music Week in St. Louis, takes issue with Prof. Gregory Zilboorg, noted Russian critic, who said in a lecture last week at the Artists' Guild that he deprecated the spread of so-called "canned music" and that he would banish every instrument which provides it.

"A Russian in our midst several days ago, who intimates that he is an 'intellectual aristocrat,' declared in a lecture that art is not for the 'mob,'" said Miss Wolf. "He deprecates the fact that because of 'canned music' so-called, or properly recorded music for the talking machine, everybody now has Caruso songs which, in this intellectual aristocrat's words, 'cheapens them until they are no longer art.' Were we not aware that the Russian intelligentsia has as one of its aims the spreading of culture among the masses we would, perhaps, if guided by this Russian's statement, understand why Russia is sometimes referred to as 'Darkest Russia.' A little 'canned music' in Russia might bring a little light into this darkness. 'Canned music' has done much to bring the masters to the people. Why should not the songs of Caruso bring joy into the humdrum life of a farmer or a miner? Are the so-called intellectual aristocrats made of different clay, or were we all created in the image of God? If so, what brings joy and light into the soul of one human should be given to all.

"Music enters into the life of every human, from the cradle to the grave. The new-born babe is lulled to sleep by its mother crooning songs, and when it has reached the turn of the road it is laid to rest with a funeral dirge. Take music out of the history of civilization and you will have removed one of the most important factors of cultural development. Music influences the morals of the masses more powerfully than any of the other arts. The revolutionary ideas were carried to the four corners of the earth by the 'Marseillaise' in a manner that the work of the French encyclopedist would never have been able to achieve.

"During the world war we observed the influence of songs that sprang up at the psychological moment to put into the soul of the soldier who dislikes war the courage and enthusiasm necessary to see it through. Community singing was a new factor in the life of our nation. Unaccustomed to mass singing, the average American at first hesitatingly followed the call of the sing leaders, but gradually he became accustomed to consider himself part and parcel of a vast community chorus. The cultural effect of community songs created by war needs remained manifest at the termination of the war. Annual 'music weeks' have thus become a permanent institution in a number of American municipalities. The time will come when music will be included in the curriculum of our public schools on a par with the three 'Rs.' The importance of music to the life of man is infinitely higher than the knowledge of algebra or geometry."

BROADCASTING OF EDISON RECORDS

ATLANTA, Ga., May 8.—During the recent appearance of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Co. in this city a great stunt was pulled off by the broadcasting of the records of over half a dozen of the leading opera and concert singers on the Edison roster of artists. The use of radio in this connection was given considerable space in the local papers, for the Edison re-creations were heard miles away, and considerable interest was thus stimulated.

E. E. Crew, former manager of the talking machine department of Phillips & Crew, of Savannah, Ga., is now in charge of the Victrola department of C. W. Yates & Co., Wilmington, N. C.

CONVENTION OF TEXAS MUSIC MEN

W. L. Bush, of Bush & Gerts, Stresses the Value of The Talking Machine World as an Instructive Medium for Dealers

FT. WORTH, TEX., May 6.—Music merchants of the State and members of the Federated Music Clubs of Texas convened here on May 4 and 5. An interesting and instructive program of entertainment and business was participated in by those present.

One of the principal speakers was W. L. Bush, president of the Bush & Gerts Piano Co., of Dallas, Tex., who stressed the necessity of hard work, clean business practices and the use of the trade papers as a panacea for trade ills. He mentioned particularly The Talking Machine World, calling attention to a number of constructive articles appearing in the April issue. He said in part: "Read your trade journals. In one issue of The Talking Machine World I have read articles of which I will give you the captions. These are suggestive of what every salesperson should know."

NEW YORK FIRM INCORPORATES

The International Musifer Syndicate, of New York City, has incorporated under the laws of New York State, with a capital of $70,000. The concern will deal in talking machines. Incorporators are P. R. Bretey, C. M. Reiner and T. Neilsen.

MUSIC CONVENTION PLANS ARE ROUNDING INTO SHAPE

Extensive Program of Business and Pleasure Being Prepared for Coming Jubilee Convention of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, to Be Held the First Week in June

It is reported that plans are being rounded into shape rapidly for the forthcoming Jubilee Convention of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and the various associations affiliated with that body. The details of the arrangements call for a full week of business and pleasure for those fortunate enough to attend the convention, which opens at the Hotel Commodore, New York, on June 5. Judging from the early reservations coming in, and the reports of travelers, the attendance will come close to breaking records.

Special Railroad Rates

The railroads have agreed to grant special rates for the convention under the certificate plan, the rate providing for one and one-half fare for the round trip, and applying for the week of June 5 and extending to June 15, to accommodate those associations who have meetings the following week, as well as those delegates who stay over to enter the golf tournament.

Entertainment for Ladies

More entertainment for the ladies will be provided for this convention than at any in recent years, including a Monday night concert by famous Victor artists at Carnegie Hall, the boat trip around New York Harbor and up the Hudson River and the dress parade at West Point, in addition to the annual banquet of the National Association of Music Merchants and the Travelers' "Music Box Revue," similar to the "Midnight Frolic" at Chicago last year. The ladies will also be included in the series of noonday "cabaret" luncheons Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of convention week, when high-class entertainment will be provided and distinguished guests introduced from the musical and theatrical worlds.

A Week of Activity

The tentative schedule for the week's business and social sessions is as follows:

Monday—Registration and noonday "cabaret" luncheon; opening business session in the afternoon of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce with the entire membership of all associations in attendance; evening concert at Carnegie Hall.

Tuesday—Business sessions of Music Merchants, Piano Manufacturers, Supply Men and Organ Builders; "cabaret" luncheon at noon and annual dinner of National Piano Manufacturers' Association in the evening.

Wednesday—Business sessions continued, including credit meeting of Piano Manufacturers and annual meetings of Musical Merchandise, Band Instrument and Music Roll Manufacturers; "cabaret" luncheon at noon, and in evening entire industry guests at annual banquet and ball of National Association of Music Merchants.

Thursday—"Visiting" day, including conferences, breakfasts, luncheons and dinners of various manufacturers and their dealers; business session and annual dinner of Piano Travelers; "Music Box Revue" in the evening.

Friday—Boat excursion, with annual meeting of Chamber delegates and election of officers aboard boat; dress parade at West Point.

The boat excursion will include a trip around New York harbor, giving views of the city's famous skyline, the Statue of Liberty, Brooklyn Bridge, the great shipping docks and main ship channel, Ellis Island immigration station and Governor's Island, the military headquarters of the East; then up the Hudson, with views of the famous Palisades, Storm King and Bear Mountains and lower Catskills and, last, but not least, the military academy at West Point, where by special arrangements the cadets will go on dress parade for the visiting members of the music trade.

The Jubilee Convention Committee has arranged so that there will be no charge for the Monday night concert or the boat excursion; the series of three cabaret luncheons will be $5.00, or $2 for single tickets; the music merchants' banquet and ball will be $8 and the "Music Box Revue" $1 per person.

The Hotel Rates

The following reservations for the members of the trade during the Jubilee Convention have been guaranteed by the management of the Hotel Commodore: Single rooms with bath, shower or tub, $4 to $6; same rooms for two persons, $2 extra. Double rooms with twin beds and shower bath, $7 to $8; with shower and tub, $9 and $10. Corner suites, two large connecting rooms, $15. Rooms used for exhibit purposes 50 per cent above rates quoted.

CALLERS AT COLUMBIA CO.

W. S. Parks, manager of the Baltimore branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was a visitor to the company's executive offices in New York recently, accompanied by W. J. Boggs, president of the Guttman Furniture Co., of Briscoe, Va., Columbia dealer. Mr. Briscoe was keenly optimistic in his predictions regarding general business, stating that his sales for the first three months of the year had been very satisfactory in every respect.

Other callers at the Columbia executive offices recently included C. F. Schaffarzick, manager of the Spokane branch of the Columbia Co., and A. E. Landon, general manager of the Columbia offices at Toronto. Both of these callers brought with them pleasing reports as to the business outlook in their respective territories.

TO CONTAIN A GUARANTEE

A further development in the business of the Radio Buyers' Syndicate, New York City, is the issuance of a guarantee which will be included as a part of all future advertising of the company. The Radio Buyers' Syndicate acts as New York resident buyer for radio dealers throughout the country, buying at quantity rates for its clients, for which a small semi-annual charge is made. The refund of this charge is guaranteed if a certain specified saving is not accomplished through buying through the Radio Buyers' Syndicate.

INVALUABLE

Here is the handbook of the talking machine industry for which you have long been waiting. It is a directory you can keep on your desk to give you, in an instant, detailed knowledge about this and that company, which would otherwise consume much of your time to secure.

ONLY 50 CENTS

For instance, it will give you a complete up-to-date list of the manufacturers and jobbers who comprise the talking machine industry, including invaluable data about each concern, such as location of factories, names of officers, location of branch offices, trade names controlled, policy of marketing product, etc., etc.

ONLY 50 CENTS

Also it will give you a full, up-to-date list of the manufacturers who make any given class of product, such as talking machines, records, parts, accessories, store equipment, etc.

ONLY 50 CENTS

This book contains the kind of data about each concern which cannot be put into the company's current advertising for lack of space and which is nevertheless a kind of data that is valuable from your standpoint.

ONLY 50 CENTS

This volume also contains a number of pertinent articles on highly important topics and much other material too extensive to enumerate here in detail.

ONLY 50 CENTS

It is the only book of its kind ever published and is a volume which no enterprising member of the industry can fairly afford to do without. It has been produced by the publishers of The Talking Machine World.

Trade Outlook Brightens as Unemployment Decreases—Record Manufacturers and Music Publishers Meet to Consider German Request for Copyright License at Special Rate—Court Stops Sale of Columbia Records at Reduced Prices—Louis Sterling Visiting United States—W. H. Reynolds, Ltd., in Voluntary Liquidation—Important Copyright Decision—The News of the Month Worthy of Record

LONDON, E. C., May 5.—During the past few weeks gramophone and record sales have not inspired any cause for satisfaction, though it is generally admitted that trade might have been worse in view of the most recent disturbance of industry by the engineers' lock-out. The Board of Trade returns for the month of March show that our overseas trade made some improvement as against the figures for February. The difference, however, is greatly discounted by the extra three days' trading in March, as compared with February's twenty-eight days. Nevertheless, the improved result indicates that the tide has turned. This is also confirmed by the decrease of many thousands in the returns of unemployment. All good signs to which the gramophone industry must eventually respond.

The Question of Record Exchanges

As mentioned in a previous report from this office the question of record exchanges is at the moment very much to the fore. The practice mainly adopted by manufacturers is to grant full credit on each record a dealer returns, providing three new ones are ordered at the same time. This, obviously, has the effect of overloading dealer's stocks and places him in a very unfavourable position by tying up capital. A good plan would be to grant an out-and-out free exchange twice yearly up to five per cent of purchases over a given period. By this means the retailer would be able to keep his stock fairly up to date, conduct a rapid turnover on a cash basis, and probably do a larger trade altogether. The whole matter will doubtless be threshed out by the Gramophone Dealers' Association at the Blackpool Convention and some practical suggestions be forthcoming.

Under the Copyright Act, 1911, it was believed that copyright owners possessed the right to refuse supply of license stamps for use on records manufactured outside this country. Being a case for legal opinion, the publishers decided to seek advice before coming to a decision in the matter. Accordingly, a full meeting called by the Music Publishers' Association, Ltd., was held at the offices of Novello & Co., Ltd., on April 11. Evidence submitted clearly exposed the German plan to market the records of high international artists in the chief countries of the world.

German Record Manufacturers on the War Path?

Considerable feeling has been aroused in British gramophone record trade circles by an application made to our copyright associations from German record makers for copyright license stamps at a preferential rate. This application was known to some members of the trade as reflecting the probability of cheap German-made records being exported for sale in Great Britain and America. Under those circumstances it was thought desirable to hold a combined meeting of record manufacturers and music publishers to consider the application in all its bearings. It was a thoroughly representative gathering of the leading firms of each branch.

The Germans possess many matrices of British music and they have facilities of obtaining quite easily anything first published in England. This being so, it would be possible for them to make records and, under the present rate of exchange, export them to this country for sale at 1 s. to 1 s. 6 d. retail. The seriousness of the position may be gauged from the fact that our lowest priced record is 2 s. 6 d., and at this figure there is little profit for manufacturer, factor or dealer.

The whole scheme has with the usual Teutonic thoroughness been worked out to the last detail. According to figures made public records of about ten, eleven and twelve-inch size will, it is proposed, be marketed in Great Britain at 1 s., 1 s. 2 d. and 1 s. 4 d. each, respectively; in America and Canada at 22, 26, 33 cents; India at 1 s. 4 d., 1 s. 6 d. and 2 s.; Australia, 1 s., 1 s. 2 d. and 1 s. 4 d. In fact, prices have been fixed for each country. What it means to British and American record houses is too obvious for words. And at these figures the music publisher-copyright-owners would reap considerably less revenue in license stamps and royalties than they now do.

These facts were duly placed before the meeting. Drummond Robertson, of the Gramophone Co., Ltd., explained the circumstances of the case. After a full discussion, on the proposition of Mr. Andrews (Swan & Co., Ltd.), seconded by Mr. Abbott (Francis Day & Hunter), the following resolution was passed:

"That in view of the present state of British industry, it be resolved by this meeting of copyright owners to refuse supply of license stamps for use on records manufactured outside this country. Being a case for legal opinion, the publishers decided to seek advice before coming to a decision in the matter. Accordingly, a full meeting called by the Music Publishers' Association, Ltd., was held at the offices of Novello & Co., Ltd., on April 11. Evidence submitted clearly exposed the German plan to market the records of high international artists in the chief countries of the world.

right owners not to issue stamps for the sale of German-made records until it be otherwise agreed."

If, in view of this resolution, any attempt is made to market such records, the sellers would no doubt be proceeded against for infringement of copyright.

Exchange of Unsalable Stock Suggested

A tentative proposal put forward at a recent meeting of the Music Trades Association that an exchange of stock might with advantage take place between retailers is of interest. One speaker voiced a common difficulty when he reminded us that a dealer in a particular district with stocks of sheet music, records or other goods unsuitable for sale in that locality cannot unload at reduced prices by reason of agreements or a price-maintenance undertaking not to sell below a certain figure. In such cases what better plan than to exchange these goods for something else from a retailer in another district? The launching of such a scheme would entail careful organization of a central clearing house, or would be possible to a limited extent by direct negotiation between dealers in different towns. According to dealers present at the meeting, the latter arrangement is already in force to some little extent, and has worked quite satisfactorily. In this way: If Mr. A. is asked for a piece of music or a record not in stock, before ordering it, he rings up Mr. B., who often is in a position to supply, especially if it happens that the particular title is not overpopular. The value of the proposal was generally recognized by the members of the M. T. A., and although it was shelved at the meeting, the seed has undoubtedly taken root. I am of opinion that we shall hear more of this scheme within the near future.

Action to Protect Columbia Patent Succeeds

The question of selling second-hand records below the price fixed for new records, where such are made under a patented process, was decided in the High Court last month. The Columbia Co. sought to restrain Henry Murray, of West

Croydon, from selling its records at less than 2 s. 6 d. each. Counsel for plaintiff referred to the notice on each record: "This record (made by patented process) must not be sold below the price fixed by the patentee." It came to plaintiff's knowledge that defendant was selling their discs at 2 s. instead of the fixed price of 2 s. 6 d. Through their solicitors the plaintiff company requested defendant to cease his infringement and offered to stay proceedings upon receipt of a written undertaking to that effect. Murray wrote that he had purchased a batch of records at two pence each and must sell his remaining stock of 140 below the authorized price, as it was his living.

After much legal discussion as to the circumstances of the case, and the rights of a patentee, Mr. Justice Russell said it was with the greatest reluctance that he granted the injunction asked for. These records were patented articles and the law being on the side of the plaintiff company, it was too strong for him to get over.

Louis Sterling Visits U. S. A.

At the moment of writing, Louis Sterling (Columbia Co.) is in America on urgent business, and, according to the Federation Journal, expects to be back in time for the music convention at Blackpool. As chairman of the Federation of British Music Industries, Mr. Sterling's presence at Blackpool is, obviously, very necessary.

In Voluntary Liquidation

It is a matter for general regret that one of our reputable gramophone houses, Messrs. W. H. Reynolds (1915), Ltd., has been forced to call its creditors into consultation. The firm and its predecessor have had a varied career. Particularly, since the armistice its business appears to have been quite prosperous up to 1920, but with the general slump in trade during 1921 the business showed serious signs of decline. According to the statement of the liquidator, Stephen Child, at a recent meeting of the creditors, Messrs. Reynolds have been trading at a loss the last six months or so. A statement of affairs shows the deficiency to be about £4,000. An attempt is being made to save the company and it is believed this can be done if creditors will accept a cash composition of 4 shillings on the pound. The offer will be examined by a committee of three of the largest creditors in conjunction with the liquidator, and after an investigation of the whole case, a decision will be taken as to whether or not the offer is good enough to ask the court to sanction. Another meeting of the creditors is to be held in May.

A Striking Contrast

As some indication of the trade situation in France compared with England, it may be stated that whereas our unemployed reached a total of over 2,000,000 as at December last, the figure for the same period shows that only about 11,000 unemployed in France were in receipt of Governmental assistance. These are really significant figures which at least prove that French industries are more prosperous than our own.

Edison's Fertile Brain

Under the above caption, Thos. Edens Osborne has published the subjoined interesting announcement in the Belfast (Ireland) newspapers:

"The genius of Edison as an inventor is only equaled by the fame of Shakespeare as a poet. The ambition of the great 'American Wizard' has at last been accomplished at his famed laboratories in Orange, New Jersey, U. S. A., and his ideals realized by a new and astounding 'musical miracle.' tion and struggle for musical perfection, involving an expenditure in research work of more than three million dollars on his favorite invention, 'the phonograph with a soul' (as the New York Globe designates it) has been perfected by Mr. Edison, and has created quite a furor in America, England, and elsewhere. The records are double-sided discs, and are known by the patented name of 'Re-creation.'

By the way, membership of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland has been conferred upon Mr. Osborne, an honor which I am assured is appreciated as much as it is deserved

Decision of International Importance

In another part of this issue of The World (page 61) will be found a summary of the interlocutory decision handed down recently by the Anglo-German Mixed Arbitral Tribunal in favor of the Gramophone Co., Ltd., which sought an injunction to restrain the Deutsche Gramophon Aktiengesellschaft and the Polyphonwerke companies from selling records made from "His Master's Voice" matrices. The findings of the court are of international importance in view of the fact that the records made by the German company have been sent broadcast throughout the world.

Institutional or Group Advertising

This form of publicity is making a wide appeal throughout the English commercial community. Although in competition with each other, groups of the leading firms of a particular industry combine to advertise their product in a general way. Thus, the Gas Association will urge through advertisement the advantages of gas for heating, power or for cooking purposes. The same idea has been taken up for advocating the use of "Irish Linen," electric service, the nutrient value of bananas, currants, etc., "Eat-More-Fish," and similar co-operative campaigns.

Captain O. A. Minns develops the idea in the Federation Journal that the music instrument industry should be the next to adopt the idea. For example, apply the plan to British-made pianos or gramophones and educate the public to the fact that our instruments to-day are superior in quality and value to those of foreign manufacture. It is a timely suggestion and I think will fully justify serious consideration by British manufacturers. Operations might be started at an appropriate time, say next September, on the contributory basis of one per cent of each firm's capital or by a small levy on each instrument produced.

As Captain Minns so ably points out, in regard to the examples of group publicity mentioned, the advantages thus gained have benefited retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers. Some such scheme for the British music industry would undoubtedly prove of incalculable value to every section.

An Important Copyright Decision

Great interest is evinced here as in Australia concerning an action brought in the Supreme Court of New South Wales by the owner of Australian copyright in a song, the claim being that he was entitled to royalty on gramophone records imported from England for sale in Australia. It appears that the record manufacturers had already paid royalty to the owners of the copyright in England, and on this ground the claim was resisted. After lengthy legal argument, the court was of opinion that additional royalty on the sales of records in Australia could be claimed. This decision will be the subject of appeal in London.

New "V. F." Records

Another pleasing list of Edison Bell "Velvet Face" records has been issued by J. E. Hough, Ltd., this city. These comprise music and song of a high standard specially recorded by reputable

CONNORIZED RECORDS FOR JUNE

The Connorized Music Co. has issued the following advance list of records for June. The list covers a lot of popular numbers as well as some recordings in Italian, which should make a wide appeal to American citizens of Italian birth or descent. The list follows:

- 3072 Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean—Song, Orch. Acc., Kaufman Brothers
- You Can Have Every Light on Broadway (Davis-Simons)—Song, Orch. Acc.....Sam Ash

OREGON ASSOCIATION HOLDS DANCE

Music Trade Members Enjoy a Pleasant and Lively Evening in Portland

PORTLAND, ORE., May 4.—The Oregon Music Trades Association held an informal dance in the spacious recital hall of the McDougall-Conn Music Co., Friday night, April 28, and the large delegations from all firms of the organizations present had a royal good time. C. A. Alphonse, of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co.; J. J. Collins, of the Reed, French Piano Co., and Louis Mack, sheet music dealer, of Bush & Lane Piano Co., were the committee of arrangements and did all in their power to make the affair a success. Peppy music, light refreshments and a feeling of good fellowship made the evening one long to be artists. With the list is issued a brochure of trade and press opinions eulogistic of the quality and velvet surface of these records, which, by the way, have attained to quite a distinctive vogue throughout the country. In connection with the sale of these discs Messrs. Hough are constantly developing their retail publicity service. The latest offer to dealers is a couple of attractively designed electrically animated signs for window display. This class of publicity will eagerly be sought after by those dealers having electric light facilities, and as most dealers are so equipped it will cost little to install these signs.

A Musical Mouse Trap

The latest from the Continent is a mouse trap with a musical box attachment. Music, it is said, attracts mice and they wander quite happily into the trap. An attractive tune would undoubtedly be "Three Blind Mice"!

remembered. J. H. Dundore, manager of Sherman, Clay & Co., and president of the association, had as his guest his son, Jack Dundore, manager of the Victrola department of the Tacoma, Wash., branch of Sherman, Clay & Co.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912,

Of The Talking Machine World, published monthly at New York, N. Y., for April 1, 1922:

STATE OF NEW YORK,
COUNTY OF NEW YORK, ss.:
Before me, a Notary Public, in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared J. B. Spillane, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Editor of The Talking Machine World, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:
Publisher—Edward Lyman Bill, Inc., 373 Fourth avenue, New York City.

Editor—J. B. Spillane, 373 Fourth avenue, New York City.
Managing Editor—J. B. Spillane, 373 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

Business Manager—None.

2. That the owners are: (Give names and addresses of individual owners, or, if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock): Edward Lyman Bill, Inc., 373 Fourth avenue, New York City; Caroline L. Bill, New Rochelle, N. Y.; J. B. Spillane, 373 Fourth avenue, New York City; J. Raymond Bill, 373 Fourth avenue, New York City; B. B. Wilson, 373 Fourth avenue, New York City; Carleton Chace, 373 Fourth avenue, New York City; E. P. Van Harlingen, 209 South State street, Chicago, Ill.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.) None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is..... (This information is required from daily publications only.)

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—Sound-modifying Device for Phonographs. James R. Parrish, Nashville, Tenn. Patent No. 1,406,069.

This invention relates to a sound-modifying device for phonographs and the object of the invention is to provide a device of the above character which may be easily and expeditiously attached to the needle holder of a phonograph without changing the construction thereof, and when attached adapted to soften and lower the volume of sound waves produced by the phonograph.

Figure 1 is a detail elevation of a phonograph diaphragm casing and associated parts and illustrating the invention when applied to the needle holder; Fig. 2 is a side elevation of the device; Fig. 3 is a longitudinal transverse section of the same; Fig. 4 is a lower end view of the same; Fig. 5 is an upper end view of the same; Fig. 6 is an upper face view of the same, and particularly illustrating the angular disposal of the stem for connecting the attachment to the needle holder of a phonograph; Fig. 7 is a plan view illustrating the disposal of the device when held by the needle holder of a phonograph, and Fig. 8 is a view similar to Fig. 6, but showing a different angular disposal of the stem.

Turntable for Talking Machine. Anthony Vasselli, Newark, N. J., assignor to the Harriman National Bank of New York. Patent No. 1,409,432.

The objects of the invention are to prevent the unraveling of the edges of a disc of textile fabric, such as velvet, plush or the like, to provide means for securing a pad to a turntable to prevent relative movement of the pad and turntable, to provide means for protecting the covering or pad of a turntable, to provide a pad which will not become disarranged and improve the appearance of a turntable provided with fabric covering.

The invention contemplates the provision of means for supporting and retaining the pad in its proper position on the turntable to protect the fabric from injury and to effectively prevent unraveling of the fabric.

A further object is the provision of means of the character described, which are extremely simple in construction, neat and attractive in appearance, thoroughly reliable and efficient in its purpose and inexpensive to manufacture.

Figure 1 is a top plan view of a talking machine turntable provided with the invention; Fig. 2 is a sectional view on an enlarged scale, said section being taken on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a detail view of a modification, and Figs. 4 and 5 are detail sectional views of additional modifications.

Talking Machine Needle or Stylus. Eugene A. Widemann, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., same place. Patent No. 1,409,630.

This invention relates to a talking machine stylus and has for its object to provide a stylus which will avoid the defects inherent in the results obtained by the customary metal needles, particularly the scratchy, metallic sounds and the unpleasant mingling of blaring noises produced by the ordinary needles. To accomplish the improved results of the invention the talking machine stylus of a non-metallic elastic material is made, such as lignum-vitæ or boxwood or various equivalent substances.

Sound Reproducer. Fred Petmecky, Austin, Tex. Patent No. 1,410,115.

This invention relates to improvements in sound reproducers, an object of the invention being to provide an improved construction of stylus bar and mounting therefor which permits a turning or rotary adjustment of the stylus bar so that the sound or tone can be varied and also permits the sharpening of the stylus or needle.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a view in longitudinal section illustrating the improved sound reproducer; Fig. 2 is a view in elevation of Fig. 1; Figs. 3, 4, 5 and 6 are enlarged views illustrating the manner of sharpening the stylus or needle when employed in connection with the improved reproducer; Fig. 7 is a view in transverse section on the line 7—7 of Fig. 3; Fig. 8 is an enlarged view in transverse section on the line 8—8 of Fig. 1.

Phonograph Turntable. Frank W. Williams, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,410,234.

This invention relates more particularly to an improved type of phonograph turntable wherein a one-piece metal retaining ring is spun into place around a laminated disk, for holding a layer of felt in place to provide a frictional surface upon which a disk record may be placed.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a top plan view of a turntable embodying the principles of this invention; Fig. 2 is a transverse section thereof; Fig. 3 is an enlarged fragmentary detail section

The invention is directed to providing a means for holding the diaphragm in place with such means comprehending a resilient element which bears upon the diaphragm or upon a gasket overlying the diaphragm and is placed under tension in the assemblage of the box parts to exert a resilient holding effect upon the diaphragm edge. The holding member operates as a sounding board and through its peculiar construction is spaced throughout its full sounding area from the diaphragm.

The object of the present invention is to provide a sound box which entirely eliminates the necessity of resilient gaskets, as means whereby pressure may be exerted upon the diaphragm to hold it in place, this being accomplished in accordance with the present invention, through the agency of a resilient sounding board or partition. A shoulder is preferably formed on the interior of the sound box and against this shoulder operates a gasket which need not necessarily be resilient. The diaphragm rests against this gasket and the second gasket operates against the opposite side of the diaphragm. Against the second-mentioned gasket the outer periphery of the sounding board or partition engages. A cover closes one side of the sound box and is adapted to press against the central portion of the sounding board and places the same under tension, whereby said sounding board is maintained at all times under more or less tension and serves to tightly hold the diaphragm in position, so that the resiliency of the gaskets is not depended upon for this purpose. By this arrangement a simple, economical and highly efficient sound box results which is automatically maintained in operation, high efficiency, and does not require the tension hereinbefore referred to as necessitated by the prior constructions.

Disk-Placing Mechanism for Talking Machines. Charles B. Coe, Merchantville, N. J. Patent No. 1,410,734.

This invention has for its object to provide means for automatically bringing a series of record disks one after the other in position to be played and removing the same one by one after they have been played. A further object is to provide for the depositing of said disks in a receptacle as they are removed from the playing position.

A still further object is to provide means for bringing the needle of the sound box into proper position upon the record to be played, and elevate said needle therefrom after it has been played and prior to this record being displaced for the succeeding one.

Figure 1 is a plan view of talking machine having the improvements applied thereto, portions of the device being broken away to more clearly illustrate the operating parts thereof, the mechanism being in the position assumed at or near the end of the playing of the top record; Fig. 2 is a view similar to Fig. 1 showing the position of the parts when the record is being discharged; Fig. 3 is a side elevation partly in section and partly broken away looking in the direction of the arrow in Fig. 1, the side casing being removed; Fig. 4 is an end elevation looking in the direction of the arrow 2, Fig. 1 partly in section and partly broken away, the end of the casing being removed; Fig. 5 is an enlarged, detail plan view of the locking and retrieving mechanism; Fig. 6 is an elevation of Fig. 5; Fig. 7 is an enlarged bottom plan of the center portion of one of the record disks showing the corrugations for transmitting rotation to the disks; Fig. 8 is a section of Fig. 7; Fig. 9 is a side elevation of the disk supporting arm and the turntable carried thereon; Fig. 10 is a bottom plan view of Fig. 9; Fig. 11 is an enlarged end view of the magnet and its armature for actuating the needle lifting and releasing the disk removing mechanism; Fig. 12 is a side elevation of Fig. 11; Fig. 13 is an enlarged end view of the cushioning mechanism; Fig. 14, is a central section of Fig. 13; Fig. 15 is an enlarged section of the pneumatic cushion for centering the record disks; Fig. 16 is a section of the pneumatic cushion for resting the movement of the disks when discharged; Fig. 17 is a perspective view of the double face cam and the associated spring rest.

Reproducer for Phonographs. William Edwards Hunt, Silver City, New Mexico. Patent No. 1,410,679.

An object of this invention is to provide a reproducer by means of which a perfectly clear, distinct, loud and natural tone is secured, and in which the so-called mechanical noises and the nasal twang are eliminated.

Other objects are to provide a device in which the lapping of sounds caused by echoes is obviated, and in which the loudness of sound is increased; to provide a novel form of diaphragm which is divided into sections in such a manner as to insure clear, loud, and natural tones. Also to provide a novel means for holding the needle in the stylus bar.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a section through the reproducer; Fig. 2 is a face view thereof, a portion being broken away; Fig. 3 is a section along the line 3—3 of Fig. 1, looking in the direction of the arrows; Fig. 4 is a face

This invention relates to cover supports and has for its object the production of a simple and efficient support especially adapted to be used upon graphophones, talking machines and other devices of similar character; another object is the production of a simple and efficient cover support which will automatically co-operate with the cover so as to support the same in a raised position and which may be also easily released, for permitting the cover to drop to a closed position.

Sound Transmitting Apparatus. Generoso Di Giacomo and Louis Melchiorri, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,410,897.

The principal object of this invention is to provide a portable type of talking machine provided with a boxed lid hinged to the body of the machine so that when in an open position said lid is on a horizontal plane with the top thereof, of an improved sound transmitting apparatus, adjustably positioned on said lid, whereby the tone reproduction is taken directly from the needle, amplified through the single medium of the tone or sound arm as the sound passes through the tapering turns and out a bell-shaped terminus thereof, striking against the surface of said lid which lid thereby acts as a resounding chamber transmitting the sound vibrations to the open air; reproducing the original sound with accuracy and preserving the clearness of the modulated solo tones and the virile harmony of the chorus or the orchestra.

of Fig. 2, and Fig. 4 is a top plan view of the pyramidal cover for the cup on the lid of said machine in which the spindle of the tone arm rests.

Phonograph Record. John H. Adams, Kalamazoo, Mich. Patent No. 1,411,551.

This invention relates to improvements in phonograph records. Various attempts have been made to provide means for automatically disengaging the stylus from the record and, among other means, records have been provided with projections adapted to raise the sound box and a catch is provided for holding the sound box in elevated or raised position.

The main object of this invention is to provide a disk record having means for elevating the sound box at the end of the record which does not detract from the appearance of the record, does not prevent the records being stacked one upon another and, further, records having these advantages which are economical to produce and durable in that there are no projecting parts to be broken off in handling.

The object of this invention is to provide a device readily applicable to all commercial types of phonograph apparatus and automatically operated from the sound-record disk for lifting the stylus out of contact with the disk after it has played a record, and transferring it to the place of beginning into contact with the disk in order to repeat the reproduction of the sounds recorded upon said sound-record disk.

The object further is to provide this device of such construction and operation that if expedient to specially prepare the record disk the device will function accurately with successive records without any adjustments of the device itself; or, if standard unprepared record disks are used, a simple temporary preparation of the record disks will suffice to effect an accurate adjustment to offset the variation that exists between respective record disks in the distance from the center at which the recorded musical or other selection terminates.

Other objects are to provide such construction of this device that no part will drag on or rub the surface of the record disk and thus tend to mar its perfection of impressed selection, or even the perfection of its polish or glossy finish which might suggest damage to the record disk; also to provide a device that will so operate as not to noticeably retard the rotative speed of the record disk or cause it to slip upon the revolving turntable from which its motion of revolution is derived, or in any way tend to cause stoppage of a weakly-powered phonograph, or the cessation of useful operation due to record slippage.

box and its supporting sleeve with the invention applied, the record-disk and turntable being in section with the stylus in the groove of the disk bringing the cone-wheel of the repeater into contact with the disk; Fig. 4 is a view in rear elevation of the sound-box and associated parts shown in Fig. 3; Fig. 5 is a section on a larger scale of part of a sound-record disk embodying the invention in so far as the disk is concerned, and Fig. 6 is a like view of a modified form of disk.

Several new Vocalion agencies have been opened in the Illinois territory, including Vacca & Sons, J. Russo and the Del Principe Music House, all of Chicago, and James Kroupa, of Cicero, Ill.

The NEW Scotford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer

A new external shape of grace and beauty—without changing the internal design:

That same angle turn with the solid inclined plane deflecting the sound waves straight downward into amplifying chamber. That same famous Scotford tone—the tone of refinement—genuinely musical. Now in a tonearm of accepted, conventional, popular design. WRITE FOR SAMPLES.

NEW CONSTRUCTION

The long straight tube is of drawn Yellow Brass. Tonearm Base, Main Elbow and Connection Elbow and the Reproducer Frame, Face Ring and Back Plate are cast of TENSO White Brass Alloy—an alloy more than double the tensile strength of cast iron—much stronger, harder and lighter in weight than ordinary white metal alloys. New dies have been produced for casting all parts. The new parts are solidly cast, and are very substantial and durable.

STYLE NO. 1 FINISH

A combination of Nickel or Gold Plate and Black Rubber Japan

STYLE NO. 2 FINISH

Next to Sonora's matchless tone, its popularity has ever been especially associated with its distinctive upright designs, notably the "bulge" models.

This unique and graceful construction, exclusive to Sonora, laid the very foundations of Sonora success.

The bulge models reflect that quality which is inherent in the Sonora—for it is an expensive construction, requiring carefully selected woods and expert workmanship. It also instantly identifies

SCHOOL LECTURES INCREASE SALES

S. L. Schott, Inc., Victor Dealer, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., Makes Many Sales of Machines Through Lectures to Teachers and Pupils

The opportunities for making talking machine sales to schools, which are so often overlooked by dealers, have proved worthy of considerable effort on the part of S. L. Schott, head of the firm of S. L. Schott, Inc., which recently secured the business of Brodbeck & Co., at 64 South Fourth avenue, Mt. Vernon.

The Victor line is handled exclusively at this establishment and through Mr. Schott, who is a brother-in-law of the Landay brothers, who conduct a chain of retail talking machine stores in New York and New Jersey, is giving a series of lectures to the heads of the music departments of various schools in the territory covered by him, in which the booklets prepared by the Victor Talking Machine Co., entitled "The Victrola in Rural Schools," "The Victrola in Correlation With English and American Literature" and "The Victrola in Music Memory Contests" play an important part. These lectures have already resulted in a number of sales and the prospects of several more in the near future. Mr. Schott has been most successful in this campaign.

DELAWARE CONCERN INCORPORATES

The Globe Wholesale & Distributing Co., of Wilmington, Del., has been granted a charter of incorporation under the laws of that State to deal in talking machines, with a capital of $100,000.

Timely Suggestions on the Value of Selling

IN a recent address before the convention of the Texas Music Merchants' Association in Ft. Worth, William L. Bush, head of the Bush & Gerts Piano Co., one of the largest piano manufacturers and retailers in the country, whose stores also feature talking machines, took occasion to review conditions and make suggestions regarding what should be done to stimulate sales. In his address Mr. Bush paid a tribute to The Talking Machine World that is not only gratifying as showing an appreciation of what this publication is accomplishing for the industry, but is important to those who have not yet learned the real place held by trade publications in their own businesses. In his address Mr. Bush said in part:

"I say to every salesman, 'Read your trade journals,' and secure the benefit of the best advice, experience, intelligence and creative genius of sales people that are all represented in the columns of several of your most reputable publications. In one issue of The Talking Machine World I have read articles of which I will just give you the captions. These were published on April 15 and are only a sample or suggestion of what every salesman and saleslady in the talking machine field may have access to, week after week and month after month, to add to his intelligent and proper conception of the dignity and opportunity represented in the phonograph business. These articles I will enumerate as follows: (1) 'One Dealer Learns His Lesson!' The only comment that I have on this article is that the dealer had advertised 'Buy $10 worth of records and secure a talking machine for $1 down.' A woman who read this ad visited the store to find out whether this was a bona fide and dependable advertisement and the proprietor told her it was exactly as advertised, whereupon the woman left the store and returned with $10 worth of records that she had bought

CO-OPERATIVE SALES HELP TRADE

Merchants in Various Cities and Towns of Wisconsin Unite in Putting Over Sales

Merchants of Wisconsin, in an effort to put retail sales of 1922 above those of preceding years, are holding co-operative sales days. Fourteen cities of the State have held from one to five co-operative sales since January 1. Music merchants, in common with other retail dealers, are reaping the profits of these events.

It is generally agreed by secretaries of business organizations that a wave of co-operative merchandising is sweeping Wisconsin as it has swept other parts of the country. Not only are merchants in one line of business co-operating for increased sales, but the new development shows that an entire city can put over a tremendous sales event in a co-operative way. Neighborhoods in the larger cities have found that this method of attracting trade has been very effective.

The sales reported that are bringing unusually good results include not only style week programs and dollar day sales, but many novelty stunts such as Sport Day, Made-in-La Crosse Day, Made-in-Fond du Lac Day. In fact, as several secretaries reported, merchants of Wisconsin are ever looking for a good "excuse" for co-operative advertising and co-operative sales weeks.

The game of business takes grit of the first water. It is a real red-blooded, man-size game, and, like most worth-while things in life, it takes courage to succeed.

elsewhere and advised him to send the machine out for $1 down. He should have advertised 'You must buy $10 worth of records from us.' Other articles, educational, essential and valuable in character are as follows: (2) 'Some Essential Points in Record Salesmanship,' by Mark W. Duncan. (3) 'A Fair Knowledge of Music Is a Big Factor in the Success of the Retail Record Salesman.' (4) 'Selfishness,' by E. Fraser Carson. (5) 'Creating Sales From the Broadcasting of Records.' (6) 'The Inside History of Increased Record Sales.' (7) 'Little Ideas That Will Make Big Sales,' by Robert Gordon. (8) 'The Value of the Postal Card as a Means of Stimulating Record Sales.' These articles and numerous others appeared in one issue of one paper, and I wonder how many salesmen or salesladies have read any or all of them; that publication I recommend as a source of valuable, useful and dependable information and suggestions. I also believe that where an establishment has a department of sales consisting of two or more members, that it pays to get together to co-operate and to co-ordinate to evolve new sales plans, original ideas, special equipment, attractive displays and one hundred other things that enter into the consideration of an ambitious and successful owner, manager or salesman in the phonograph field."

Mr. Bush's views regarding the value of The Talking Machine World are in line with those of many other prominent executives in the industry who have realized for years the importance of the great fund of trade information and of practical business building ideas and suggestions that are offered each month in the columns of this paper. It is to this practical help that has been so consistently rendered to the industry that The World owes its dominating position in the field in which it exerted a helpful influence for seventeen years.

NEW FIRM GETS VICTOR AGENCY

North Country Music Co. Opens First Store in Berlin, N. H., With Complete Victor Line—Plans Three Other Stores in Near Future

BERLIN, N. H., June 5.—The first of a chain of music stores to be operated by the North Country Music Co. has been opened here with a complete line of Victor talking machines and records, which were supplied by Cressey & Allen, of Portland, Me., Victor distributors in that territory. The company is planning to open additional establishments in Colebrook and Lancaster, N. H., and Island Pond, Vt. The Victor line will be handled exclusively in all of these stores, and in addition a complete line of pianos and musical instruments will be handled. The officers of the company, which was recently organized, are C. B. Snow, president; George F. Cressey, treasurer and Clinton W. Graffam, secretary.

The Berlin establishment has been handsomely fitted up with the most modern equipment and great care was exercised to create an interior which offers the best opportunities for the display of instruments handled by the concern. The service counters and record demonstration booths have been so arranged that the center of the floor is free. On the right is a large record department, containing a complete line of Victor records. Beyond this on the same side are several glass-enclosed record demonstration booths. The other side of the store is given over to the display of pianos and small musical instruments.

Earl Young is manager of the local establishment, and G. R. Magoon is general manager of the company's stores. Karl P. Young will act in the capacity of salesman and Miss Ruth Dahl, clerk. The store, which was formally opened recently, is located on Main street, opposite the City Hall, an exceptionally fine center.

The man who allows himself to be swerved is not likely to get very far.

An Almost Untouched Record Selling Field With Millions of Prospective Customers

The secret of increasing business lies not alone in redoubling efforts in accepted and familiar fields, but in discovering and operating in new fields where it is possible to create a fresh demand for a product. It is possible to cite numerous instances where businesses have been stimulated to a tremendous degree through the discovery of new channels of distribution, and it is quite possible that such new fields are awaiting the efforts of the talking machine retailer.

As a matter of fact, the growth of the talking machine business has been due to the discovery of new uses for machines and records. At the outset the talking machine was regarded primarily as a commercial proposition designed to take dictation from business men to be transcribed by typists. Then came the realization that the talking machine was really an entertainment factor and this proved for many years its big field. Later the value of the talking machine for making permanent records of the voices of great artists of the day, and making it possible to bring those voices into the home, for the edification and education of the masses, was largely appreciated. Finally came the development of the use of the talking machine in educational work generally, with the result that machines and record libraries are found in thousands of schools throughout the country.

There is one field, however, that has apparently been neglected or ignored by a majority of talking machine retailers, and that is the field of selling records in foreign music and tongues. It offers possibilities that are quickly realized when the facts are presented properly. Various companies have for years been building up libraries of foreign language records embracing the native music of a score of nations, and with words in the foreign tongues. These foreign record libraries, however, have not received the attention that has been their due probably because the handling of the demand for domestic records provided sufficient occupation and profits for the average retailer.

Those who have gone into the foreign record field earnestly and intensively, however, have been rewarded with excellent results. The possibilities that exist in that field are to be appreciated when it is realized that in a great many cities, and for that matter, a great many districts of the country, from 60 to 75 per cent of the entire population are foreign-born, or children of foreign-born parents. In both these cases there remains, or has been instilled, a genuine liking and longing for the music of the countries from which the emigrants originally came. This is a condition that exists, and will exist, regardless of any plans of Americanization, for it is simply an exhibition of human nature.

There are many good citizens—men who have been successful in business and private life and who stand high in their communities—who still have some sentiment for the land of their nativity or the homeland of their parents, and to these men the native folk songs and native music have a sufficient appeal to represent a worthwhile asset to the energetic dealer.

Greater New York, perhaps, has the largest foreign-born population of any city in the United States, and yet in this city how few retailers show an appreciation of the possibilities of the foreign record catalog by featuring these records half as prominently as they do the dance records in the new monthly supplements? The population of New York State in 1921 was estimated at 10,525,000, and of that total 2,786,000 were foreign-born whites. In other words, over 25 per cent of the entire population of the Empire State are foreign-born, and it is safe to say that they, with their children, make up between 65 and 75 per cent of the entire population. In any field of selling the ability to offer a product that should appeal logically to such a percentage of people in any one territory would seem to insure success.

There are many mining, manufacturing and farming sections where English is rarely heard among the inhabitants, who have clung to their Old World methods and their Old World language. In the Northwest there are great colonies of Scandinavians and Teutons who, so far as the United States goes, are in them but not of them. In the mining and steel districts there are great colonies of Italians, Slavs and Hungarians. New York has a larger Jewish population to-day than Jerusalem itself had at any time in its history, and the Italian colony in New York City, nearly 375,000, is larger than the total population of a number of the leading Italian cities, including Genoa, Florence and Bologna. In New York City alone also there are nearly 215,000 Irish, over half of the population of the entire city of either Dublin or Belfast.

When some of these figures are studied, and we comprehend that they apply in proportion to Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit and dozens of other cities of the country, particularly east of the Rockies, we begin to realize that it is worth while from a cold commercial standpoint to offer these people something in their native tongue that has already been produced and needs only the selling.

Several of the larger companies have gone into this foreign language record field in a substantial way, advertising and getting out special hangers, supplements and catalogs in foreign languages, and advertising regularly in foreign language newspapers. In several of the cities of the country individual dealers for some years past have been carrying on this work in a more or less limited way, using foreign language newspapers with surprising success.

It is to be understood that the foreign-born elements of the United States have the same purchasing power as the natives, and do their share in purchasing records from the regular monthly supplements. To offer them records in their native tongues, or in the native tongues of their parents, means simply to create an additional demand. There is no more logical field right now for the talking machine dealer, especially in the larger industrial centers and in districts where there are thousands of foreign-born, than to concentrate somewhat on the foreign record catalogs suitable for his particular location. A number of dealers have proven that a mighty fine business can be built up by concentrating on the sale of records of Italian, Jewish or Irish music, etc., and other retailers who may see the light and follow a similar course are certainly not likely to lose out.

A survey of the selections offered in foreign record catalogs will surprise many a music-lover among our native Americans, for numerous selections that are accepted as classics and found in concert and recital programs are considered a part of this foreign record list and so classified.

There is a real field open for the individual who is tired of cultivating the same ground year after year. He does not of necessity have to be a linguist, for the hangers, catalogs and the records do the talking for him, and as payment is in United States money there is no complication in that direction unless it is in the counting.

Dealers With an Eye to Profits Will Take Advantage of Summer Sales Possibilities

The business to be done by the talking machine dealers this Summer will be proportionate to their efforts. To the man who makes little effort at any time of the year the Summer has no special appeal, but to the dealer who is keenly alive to every possible advantage in promoting sales, and augmenting his bank account, the Summer months make a direct appeal with resulting sales of machines and, in a larger measure, the sales of records.

There is not a hotel or boarding house in the country which should be without a talking machine. And if they are fortunate enough to possess talking machines there is no reason why each boarding house and hotel should not have a brand-new assortment of records, and in variety to suit the requirements of every person. The latest dance numbers, the popular hits, and, better than all, the standard classical instrumental and vocal records, should be sold to them. There is nothing to-day that appeals so strongly to the residents of the Summer hotel or boarding house as the talking machine, and there is no excuse for any dealer being asleep to the tremendous opportunities for increased business in this special field of operations.

Then there is the portable machine for the lake, the seashore, the mountain or motor tour in the Summer time. This wonderful little musical instrument should be more greatly in vogue, and will be if dealers only do their share in the development of sales by an intelligent campaign.

Meanwhile every sale of a portable means the sale of one or two dozen records if the dealer or the salesman has the ability to make sales. Everything depends upon the will—the desire to sell—the desire to win.

In the small towns and villages where it is impossible to get together a band the local dealer can supply the deficiency by giving concerts once a week in the public square or the much discussed "main street." One cannot conceive of a better means of advertising a store than giving a concert on a moonlight night to which the citizens are invited, and if it is in a section where there are many Summer residents and boarders it is an excellent means of advertising the product of the store and the enterprise of the dealer.

During the Summer the farmers must not be overlooked. Watch for the picnics of the Grange—the farmers' association. Be sure that every Grange clubhouse or headquarters has a talking machine and keep after the secretary or manager to the end that it is used and that new records are frequently purchased.

Last year the Staylor Music Co. made a tremendous hit when the farmers of Huntington County, Pa., staged their annual picnic. It arranged an exhibit and concert right in the heart of the woods and added not only to the enjoyment of the picnic, but closed some very good sales. This is the kind of effort that pays.

In these days the dealer must be up and doing. He cannot stay in his store and expect trade to come his way. He must seek it and he must seek it on the basis of the quid pro quo—he must co-operate with others, win their good will, and in this way sell his product, his personality and his establishment.

Meanwhile it does not matter where the dealer is located, whether in the city or country town, he can find plenty of opportunities of speeding up business in the Summertime if he only has the desire to take advantage of them. It means, of course, some thought, and, what is still more necessary, action, to accomplish results. The dealer must realize that the prize goes only to the man who wins the race—to the one who is best fitted to stand the strain. It is not the time for the theorist, but for the man of action. The latter is the type that will be able to increase trade in the Summertime—in fact, any time.

The Concerto Lamp & Radio Corp., of New York, has been chartered under New York State laws to engage in the talking machine business. The concern has a capital of $250,000.

LIVE TRADE PROMOTION CAMPAIGN NEEDED

CONFIDENCE and courage were never so necessary in the talking machine industry as to-day. Although we have long since passed the reconstruction period following the war and are marching onward to new and greater business achievements, there is a broadcasting of pessimism among a great many jobbers and retailers regarding the present and future of the industry that is incomprehensible and inexcusable.

Those who have been courting this mental viewpoint excuse themselves on the ground of expediency and conservative action. But isn't it a misnomer to describe it as conservative? Shouldn't it rather be termed evasive? The man who cannot fight when hard pressed should not be a soldier; the same applies to the business man. In the commercial field things cannot always move smoothly, and, as in life itself, financial ups and downs must be met in an intelligent and masterful way.

In the talking machine field, for the past twelve months especially, trade has been uneven. For a while complaints were made regarding machine sales which have now changed for the better. More recently we hear complaints regarding the slowing up in the demand for records.

Those who have given the business situation careful consideration will observe that the concerns that have formulated a definite policy in going after trade—in making unusual efforts to win public notice for their products and in forcing the sales issue, so to speak—are not complaining. They are devoting all of their time and efforts to getting more business. The executives, and every man in the employ of these concerns, have been not only thinking out plans that will advance their business—they have put them into practice and they have been getting results.

In normal times trade, after all, is just as we make it.

For a while in this country we had an abnormal retail demand. It was not necessary to go after trade. It came unsolicited. Things are now back to "befo' the war", and the old ways of getting on the job and commandeering business must be observed. Knocking one's head against a stone wall, or emulating a famous bird by putting one's head in the sand, gets us nowhere. There must be constructive action—the public must be educated to the importance and essentiality of the talking machine in the home.

No other instrument in the musical world has behind it such claims for popular appreciation. But this renewal of recognition from the public will not come voluntarily. It must be forced. It must be won by a great, vigorous campaign of advertising and persistent sales promotion.

Ways and means are a matter for the individual manufacturer, jobber, or dealer. But one thing is sure—some definite, stimulative action must be inaugurated to win for talking machines and records a larger national recognition.

In order to arouse the public there must be faith, courage and confidence among those making, distributing and selling these products. As Saint Paul said "Faith without good works is dead," so it is that mere faith will not be sufficient. There must be the "good works" of intelligent trade building that will bring results.

Members of the talking machine trade should stop wearing "blue" glasses so as to enable them to see the bright, clear light of a greater industry and a greater business ahead. It is not a time to be fearful of calamity because there exists keen competition, actual or imaginary. Strong men court competition. If they have faith in their own product and its possibilities in the musical and educational fields they will win out, and when they enter the real battle for trade they are bound to come out of it the victors. It is time for the talking machine men to go into the highways and byways and proclaim the faith that is in them.

SEEKING NEW FIELDS FOR RECORD SALES

TALKING machine retailers in various sections of the country during the past few months have had the unusual experience of finding numerous records, even from the current lists, piling up on the shelves and have been under the necessity of devising ways and means of moving those records instead of waiting for customers to come in and make their selection.

Many dealers, realizing the situation, immediately set about putting forth real selling effort, with the result that they have maintained their record business on a basis that compares favorably with that of last year. Others have not been so energetic and have suffered accordingly.

An interesting development of the situation has been the tendency on the part of live retailers to seek new fields for record sales, and to adopt new methods for moving stock that ordinarily is rather inactive. One of these fields that has been given a larger measure of recognition lately by both manufacturers and dealers is that devoted to the sale of foreign records, or at least records of the native music of foreign countries and in languages other than English.

The success that has been met with by dealers in this field has, in a number of cases, been most impressive, particularly where foreign record posters have been properly displayed, catalogs distributed widely and advertising campaigns carried on in foreign language newspapers. When it is realized that in many sections of the country 25 per cent of the population is foreign-born, and that 75 per cent of the total population of a number of industrial centers is foreign-born or children of foreign-born parents, the number of possible customers for foreign records is realized.

Business authorities agree that a return to normal conditions depends largely upon the discovery and utilization of new fields of distribution as a means of stimulating production. So far as the talking machine dealer is concerned, the foreign record field represents one of these opportunities. But there are others!

HOW MUSIC MEMORY CONTESTS HELP TRADE

MUSICAL taste in America has made tremendous strides during the past few years, and in this connection the Music Memory Contest has been a factor of great moment, particularly in interesting school children in music and making them familiar with the standard compositions and the great composers. It has advanced to a point where all interested in the development and a wider knowledge of music recognize that it is an ideal method for getting talking machine records into the home and an effective means of moving stocks of standard records that might otherwise prove shelf-warmers for a considerable period.

It has been proved conclusively in numerous instances that both talking machine records and perforated music rolls are indispensable to the successful conduct of a Music Memory Contest, and in cases, particularly in the larger cities, where many thousands of children have been enlisted in such a move, the actual sales have run into considerable figures without in any way curtailing the cumulative effect of the advertising that is realized for the talking machine business through the contest itself.

The talking machine companies have given full and generous recognition to the possibilities of the Music Memory Contest and have encouraged dealers to aid it in every way possible. They have issued booklets containing suggestions regarding the conduct of the contests, together with lists of records most suitable for use in connection therewith, and those dealers who have taken full advantage of the opportunities presented through the Music Memory Contest have naturally profited from their co-operation and enterprise.

Everybody interested in this campaign for the development of musical knowledge has recognized the great service contributed by C. M. Tremaine, Director of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, who originated this plan. It is hard to conceive of a more effective means of bringing the works of the great composers to the attention of the general public, or acquainting them with the value and beauty of the records of these great artists, than can be accomplished through the Music Memory Contests. It stimulates a desire among the young people to get acquainted with the great masters of music, resulting in a wider appreciation of the best in music. It serves to wean the public away from the idea that music by noted composers is of necessity heavy and uninteresting or difficult to understand and appreciate.

Through the Music Memory Contest there can be no question but that the children now growing up will, as men and women, have a wider knowledge of music, thanks to the wonderful possibilities of the talking machine record, than those of the present generation. The talking machine has brought joy and pleasure into thousands of homes, and the contest idea is a systematic educational plan that makes them acquainted with the composers and the character of the music on the record. This is certainly progress of the right kind.

DEVELOPING TRADE IN THE SUMMER MONTHS

THE approach of the Summer season has been made evident by the forehanded efforts of a number of retailers to line up opportunities for the sale of portable machines and small table models to those who spend their vacations, or perhaps the full Summer season, in camps or bungalows. Already we begin to see in a number of newspapers special announcements regarding the recognized value of the talking machine in adding to the pleasures of the Summer vacation season, and the publicity started thus early and carried on consistently is bound to get results.

The real value of the special Summer business lies not alone in the business realized on the sale of small machines and portable models, but in the possibility for selling larger and more expensive machines to the same people in the Fall or Winter for use in their permanent homes. The real reason for the small machine, in fact, is to acquaint the customer with the possibilities of the talking machine and to encourage him to secure a larger model in order to get the best results from a steadily growing library of records. And the idea is not based on theory, but has worked out successfully in practice.

THE VALUE OF ASSOCIATION ACTIVITIES

WITHIN the past few weeks there have been held a number of trade conventions, national or local in scope, which have warranted the attention and attendance of members of the talking machine industry, and it is quite likely that there will come as a result of these meetings a new stimulus to machine and record selling.

There is no question regarding the definite value of association activities in helping business. There are those, it is true, who fail to see any real benefit to the individual from much of the association work, but if little of practical value came out of the sessions themselves the fact that retailers in the same line of business have a chance to get together and talk over their problems reverts to the advantage of all.

There has been a noticeable improvement in convention programs during the past year or two, due probably to changing conditions. The addresses and discussions have been carefully selected with a view to giving to the convention delegate something practical and usable rather than simply theoretical. This new tendency adds weight to association work, whether the body be local or national.

At the present time there are enough associations of wholesale and retail talking machine men actually functioning and holding meetings at regular intervals to give to a fair proportion of the dealers of the country the benefit of business intercourse, but more such bodies are needed.

The Records Used in the Demonstration of a Machine Should Be Carefully Selected

The talking machine is essentially a musical instrument, and, as such, one of the fundamental necessities in this class of merchandising is to impress on the mind of the prospective purchaser the value of the instrument handled as a source of musical entertainment. Mechanical details and perfection of finish, while of importance, should be merely an appendage to the sales talk instead of the feature of it. People buy a talking machine for one purpose, and one purpose only, and that is to furnish musical entertainment. When the prospect has been convinced that the line shown is the one best suited for the purpose of supplying the musical entertainment he likes best the task of closing the sale has been much simplified. As a matter of fact, the prospect will be so anxious to secure that particular type of machine that he will practically sell himself.

Granted that the talking machine should be sold as a musical instrument, it naturally follows then that the records, which actually furnish the music reproduced by the instrument, play an important part in the making of a sale. Therefore, in addition to a thorough demonstration of the reproducing qualities of the instrument, the salesman should stress the fact that the records handled by him and played on the machines are of wide variety, by the best and most famous artists and can be secured in all classes of music, the classics, popular, etc.

The foregoing paragraph naturally leads to the analyzation of the customer's desires in music. In most communities there are two or more talking machine establishments, and the merchant must be exceedingly careful to hold a customer once he enters the store. The easiest way to retain confidence is to keep the customer in a congenial frame of mind, and, obviously, one way to accomplish this desirable result is to play a record which will appeal to that particular prospect. Thus the necessity of analyzation. A few questions by the salesman couched in diplomatic language will in most cases accomplish this.

There are some readers who will undoubtedly declare that this suggestion is based on theory

The Prospect Can Be Put in a Receptive Mood by Playing the Kind of Music Which Appeals to Him Most and not on fact. Therefore, the following statement from an extremely successful dealer who sells many machines on this basis may carry some weight. The enterprising merchant referred to is S. L. Schott, head of S. L. Schott, Inc., Mt. Vernon, N. Y. When Mr. Schott was asked recently what methods he found most productive of results in selling talking machines he answered as follows:

"My methods are simple enough, and they achieve the desired results. In the first place, selling talking machines does not, in my mind at least, present any greater difficulties than many other lines of merchandise. One thing which I have found of paramount importance in securing the best results in handling a prospect is the ability to immediately size up a person as soon as he or she enters the store. When a prospective customer enters my establishment I first try to determine his or her nationality. This is very important, due to the fact that from experience I find that the majority of foreign-born people, and many born of foreign parents in this country, have a leaning toward the music of their homeland, and when I place a record from the foreign catalog on the machine for demonstration purposes they are delighted to think that they can get most of their favorite old-country airs on the talking machine. This tends to place them in a happy frame of mind, creates confidence in the line of machines and records which I handle, and last, but not least, arouses the desire in their minds for ownership. These people are also good record prospects if properly followed up.

"For example, if an Italian comes into the store it is a pretty safe bet that music which savors of Italy will please him far more than any other kind. Of course, I make sure of this before I place a record on the machine. If I am in doubt a few casual questions settle the point. There are some people with a decided preference for certain kinds of music. Any other kind irritates them. Other customers are more easily pleased. They buy all kinds of music, from the operas to the jazziest of jazz. If I make an error and play the wrong kind of music I have found that it requires much harder work to make the sale and sometimes the customer is lost.

"When I have definitely found out what the prospect likes most in the way of music I select records of that nature and proceed to demonstrate the qualities of my line. I have explicit confidence in the machines I handle and I make it a point to give a complete demonstration, using various kinds of needles so that the prospect can see how the machine reproduces under various conditions."

NEW AGENCIES IN LOS ANGELES

Fitzgerald Music Co. Secures Brunswick Line—
Broadway Department Store Takes on Victor

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 6.—The Fitzgerald Music Co. announces that it has obtained a Brunswick phonograph agency, which it will represent in addition to the Edison. The Fitzgerald Music Co. has for several years been an exclusive Edison representative, and it was considered one of the largest Edison dealers in the entire country. The Brunswick Co. is to be congratulated upon obtaining this famous house as its representative.

The Broadway Department Store has also announced that it is now the agent for Victrolas and Victor records.

C. J. KEIL ADDS EDISON LINE

CLINTON, Mo., June 5.—C. J. Keil, who was the Edison dealer here for five years, has again taken the agency, and has stocked up with a complete line of Edison machines and records. Mr. Keil, due to his many years of experience in handling the Edison, thoroughly understands the merchandising of this product.

The man who is defeated even after he has exerted his best efforts need not be ashamed. Better try and fail than not try at all.

Potential Record Sales

A Novel Window

At this season of the year, when folks are going on vacations, it is pertinent to point out the advantages of the talking machine outfit at shore and country and—the value of albums for record protection.

One clever dealer last year put in a novel window trim which proved highly effective in sales returns—he showed a number of broken records in contrast to records safely stored in albums.

A large sign, by a local sign painter, illustrated an empty stall in a barn and the farmer investigating the barn door. It read: "Why lock the stable after the horse is gone?" And then in large type at the bottom: "Albums will protect your expensive records on this year's vacation."

Such a sign does not cost a great deal and conveys a timely suggestion which will not only be productive of album sales, but you know that every purchaser of an album is a potential record customer.

Try this idea in your window—this month.

Talking Machines Should Be Sold as Instruments for Providing Music

By W. Braid White

The selling of talking machines at retail is, in effect, the selling of records. The statement sounds as if it were intended to be clever rather than accurate; yet accurate it is.

Perhaps the gentlemen who are less distinguished for cleverness than for painstaking will appreciate a little elucidation. So here goes.

A talking machine business could not live if it were not for the sale of records. A store which existed merely to sell machines would neither be successful nor of lengthy existence. On the other hand, a store can exist, and exist very well, on the sale of records only.

To put it another way: The talking machine is primarily a medium through which the records may become audible. Once the customer has been convinced by means of hearing music that a certain machine, or type of machine, within a given range of possible price, will produce the music he or she wants, then that customer is "sold." It is the music that has done the selling, however, not the machine.

Truly, of course, a machine of high price, with the very best of everything, is better than a machine of low price with none of the best. But if the salesman is selling a machine whose name is known, or if the reputation of the house is sufficiently high, then there is nothing further to be said. The customer will listen to the talk, and the intelligent salesman will key that talk so as to fit in with whatever style of machine in the given make seems best adapted to the purchaser's need. Yet all the time that purchaser is primarily thinking of the music he or she is to enjoy, and not at all, save incidentally, of the fittings, mechanism or style of the machine itself, considered as a machine.

This statement is not meant to depreciate the value of fine talking machines, of fine architecture or design. It is intended simply to show that the sale of talking machines is the sale of the music they render audible. That is simply another way of saying that the sale of talking machines, considered as a business, rests upon the sale of records.

For that reason, if for no other, it follows that the art of salesmanship as applied to the talking machine business is also the art of selling music, and that means that the test of good talking machine retail salesmanship is the ability to sell good music, and plenty of it, good records and plenty of them.

This brings up the old, the ever persistent question, "How much ought a salesman to know about music?"

The answer is simple. The salesman ought to know about music just as much as is needed to acquaint him or her intelligently with as many records as possible, from the total collection of the manufacturer whose line is represented. That again is simply another way of saying that the salesman cannot know too much about music, as musical knowledge may be looked at from that point of view. That is to say, as a matter of knowing the content of the various records, of being familiar with the titles, composers and music, of as many of them as possible, the salesman cannot know too much about music.

Prosperity Rests on Fine Records

The statement applies to every kind of music. Granted that a great number of people like popular dances, songs and all that. Granted that the popular taste is not distinguished for artistic quality. Nevertheless, the prosperity of the talking machine business is built, not on the popular records but on the operatic numbers, on the great voices and on the great instrumental pieces. Everybody wants one Galli-Curci or one Caruso record. If not actually prevented from doing so, the average customer will buy one of these just out of curiosity. It is only a step from this to persuading such a customer to try a Casals or a Kreisler instrumental record. And so on. Once the good work is started with that customer, there is no end to its possibilities; provided the salesman is capable of guiding the gradually awakening love of the purchaser for fine music. For it can be safely wagered that no normal man or woman is without a latent love for something good in music. "Popular music is simply familiar music," said Theodore Thomas long ago; and he was pre-eminently right, as all experience plainly shows.

On the other hand, of course, no one wants a salesman who knows not when to stop or who strives to impress upon the purchaser the idea that he is a very clever person. The greatest

*Convince a Customer
That a Certain Make of Machine Will Produce the Best Music and the Sale Is Made*

art is that art which conceals art, which works its purpose without allowing the machinery to be seen, as it were. The salesman who knows his or her business is the salesman who can advise, guide, help, and who all the time is striving to bring to the customer's favorable attention the sort of thing in music which that customer really needs in order to obtain the utmost from the talking machine which he is buying or already possesses.

Such finesse is, of course, not acquired without careful study. When the salesman really is thoroughly familiar with the contents of the record catalog, really knows by ear a large number of pieces of every sort, and has taken enough trouble to learn something biographical or topical about every well-known composer and every famous composition, especially in the field of opera, then that salesman, if a wise salesman, will take care never to obtrude this knowledge. But it will always be on hand, always ready to be used, always at the disposal of questioner, prospect, buyer or fellow-salesman. No one need fear that opportunities for its use will be lacking. Everything else may be lacking, but the salesman will never find lacking musical questions or musical needs.

It is the sale of fine records which measures the prosperity of a talking machine business. A retail merchant who is selling large numbers of fine records each month is a merchant who can scarcely help being prosperous, if he is not making some incalculable error in another branch of his business. For when fine records are being freely sold, that in itself is proof that the merchant's clientele is intelligent and cultivated. This type of music-lovers buy records steadily month by month, because they want to acquire a permanent library of fine music which will not be thrown away or left unused after a few weeks or months. That is the sort of game to go after, and it's game much more plentiful than is generally supposed.

Catch Them Young

There are merchants in many communities, and some of them we know personally, who make it their business to obtain salesmen from among music students and bright young persons who combine some talent for making themselves agreeable, with a love for, and willingness to become familiar with, a lot of fine music. Not in the least disparaging the masses, but trained to give the people what they want, these boys and girls are constantly striving to lead their customers gently in the direction of better records, and are remarkably successful in starting "low-brow" purchasers up the road to "high-brow" musical taste.

The talking machine business is a music-selling business. The salesman is a music salesman. He cannot know too much about music, and he cannot obtrude his knowledge too little.

The Need of Vitalizing and Humanizing Advertising and Window Displays :: By H. S. Jewett

The Aeolian Co.

"WANTED.—A stage manager to inspire the purchasing public; a veritable Belasco in the advertising field; a man who would stage the sales of pianos and phonographs before various markets with as sure a sales punch as the inspired and experienced stage director promotes and presents a star.

"This genius person need not have a knowledge of markets and media, but must have the intelligence to adapt the knowledge of others and with an illuminative idea make the advertising of interest to large purchasing audiences."

The music field is not lacking in keen merchandising experts, able advertising men, keen copywriters and artists, but some day a light will shine, an impresario will grasp the ideas and experiences of many and the art of advertising musical instruments will suddenly become possessed of seven-league boots.

Think of the planning, the promoting and expense which have preceded many a merchandise debut and when the curtain was raised on the stage set to feature the product a cold public has failed to respond.

The manufacturer claimed the commodity was perfect. The merchandise man stated the plans were right, distribution arranged. The advertising manager said every detail was ready. Copy staff and artists contributed inspired ideas. The magazines and newspapers were more than considerate, and yet the big merchandise show opened, flickered expensively, flivvered and died.

No department in the promotion seemed responsible, every item was consistent, but that was not enough; in the assembled campaign there must have been a spark lacking—the sales performance was dull. The purchasing audience failed to applaud. There was no hand of approval, much less an encore sale.

What was needed was an expert in human appeal to bridge over the distance from the staged merchandise right into the purchasers' mind and heart—a merchandise Belasco with the psychology of purchasing audiences.

Music, with its rich tradition and tremendous emotional appeal, has so many human interest angles that it seems doubly tragic that any music sales plan should be dull.

Pianos and phonographs can be merchandised in so many ways to so many types of prospects that it seems merely a matter of putting your message before the right market at the opportune time; but this is not so, as has been demonstrated by the failure of many campaigns.

As in the theatrical world a popular star and good play miss fire because the producer does not have the genius quality to satisfy the human interest demand, so in the commercial field the star product may give but one flash and die for lack of the inspiration of the wizard on piano and phonograph turnovers.

Through the field of advertising there are always examples of a human way of vitalizing an account. For instance, the internationally known "Phoebe Snow" was much more than an attractive companion on a trip to Buffalo. She took the cinders from travelers' eyes, the soot from clothing and in war-time conservation made reduced portions on a diner seem a patriotic privilege instead of a discomfort. The genius stroke to Phoebe was the humanizing of travel and by cleanliness and comfort banishing all negative thoughts regarding railways. Phoebe as the institutional copy of the Lackawanna is now serving as a charming courier through halls of railway traditions.

There have been many examples where merely cutting a thought on the bias has given human appeal to merchandise. A notable instance of this is the Rogers Peet & Co. publicity which was instituted at a time when men's apparel copy was only a type set-up of styles, sizes and prices.

It was an innovation with its eye-catching cuts and has held its interest for many years.

Many incidents are recorded of sales windows which stopped traffic by a genius stroke of lighting or display of merchandise.

Two seasons ago R. H. Macy & Co. had a straw hat sale. They used a wax figure in the act of choosing between two styles. The display manager twisted the neck, bent the arms forward and back to get a truly human position and was rewarded in the morning when he returned to work by seeing the police regulating the crowds. "He is alive, I saw his hand move."

The Human Element in an Attractive Display

These remarks were often followed by "a pretty good hat for $2.49." So the message had reached the buyers. The genius stroke was in placing that figure so the shadows of the window glass produced the effect of movement in a very life-like figure.

During the bombardment of French cities many shop windows were broken and soon some inspired storekeeper put cross strips of paper on his windows to prevent glass from flying and cutting passers-by. Other shops followed and beautiful designs from ornate silver and gold paper soon were seen on the main boulevards. After the Armistice, the French windows were so crowded with merchandise that in endeavoring to show everything they displayed nothing.

One jeweler reacted from this and got a crowd comprising the many nationalities filling Paris at that time by displaying just one article in a beautiful setting. The article was a garter buckle, and instead of showing the accepted idea of an amputated leg in brilliant hosiery or a dancer kicking the hat of an inebriate rounder, the window was set in a rich purple velour and in the center was a medium-size marble of the Winged Victory. A steel-blue light concealed at the front top of the window brought out the white of the statue and illuminated a small purple pad where the gold buckle gleamed and glittered. It was called "The Victory Garter."

A pair of moving hands recently stopped the crowds before the Vocalion Store in Boston. The hands demonstrated the Graduola feature of the Vocalion and if they had been stationary would have excited no interest, but the human movement was irresistible to the crowd.

A mob-collecting feature of many windows this Spring has been the phonograph record repeater, which would hold people three and one-half minutes for the final round, which would start the record again.

Simple elements like these barely suggest the possibilities in featuring musical merchandise in newspapers, magazines, windows and outdoor advertising. They are proof that the inspired thought is present, that the stage is set for the appearance of a merchandise maestro. Maybe one will develop, but he is more likely just to happen. Geniuses usually do.

The McKinley Phonograph Co., 1505 East Fifty-fifth street, Chicago, Ill., has been incorporated in that State, to manufacture and deal in musical instruments and accessories, with a capital of $20,000. Incorporators are William N. Duffield, W. F. Duffield and P. D. Armstrong.

DEMONSTRATES RECORD MAKING

Gimbel Store in Milwaukee, Wis., Attracts Crowds to the Talking Machine Department and Greatly Stimulates the Sales of Records

MILWAUKEE, June 3.—Thousands of residents were treated to an insight into the method of manufacturing talking machine records through a special demonstration put on at the Gimbel store. A huge press was obtained from a talking machine record manufacturing concern and placed in operation in the Gimbel phonograph department. While the people watched they saw record after record stamped from the master record in the machine.

The demonstration was the first of its kind in the country, according to J. H. Hoffheimer, and a number of department store managers and talking machine distributors from the East were attracted to the local store to watch the show and its effect upon the public.

A notable stimulation was felt in the sale of records during the demonstration.

HEALTH BUILDERS' RECORDS SCORE

NEW HAVEN, CONN., June 3.—The recent demonstration of the Health Builders' record course of Walter Camp's Daily Dozen, made by Health Builders, Inc., New York, which was produced in the windows of the Loomis Temple of Music, drew large crowds. A demonstrator went through the entire set to the accompaniment of the music and commands on the records.

TOY PLANT MAKING CABINETS

OSWEGO, N. Y., June 3.—Operations at the Diamond Toy plant, which had been suspended for several months, have been resumed. The plant has been diverted from the manufacture of toys to radio boxes and talking machine cabinets.

SCHWABACHER ADDS OKEH RECORDS

Prominent Talking Machine Dealer, of Lynch, Takes on Complete Line of Paramount Machines—A Record Sales Record

Ben W. Schwabacher, talking machine dealer, of Lynch, Ky., has recently taken on the local representation for the Okeh records. A complete line of Paramount machines has also been installed in addition to the Granby line and the firm is stocking a full line of music rolls and small musical instruments.

The value of knowing how to follow up record sales with more sales is evident from the concluding paragraph in a letter from Mr. Schwabacher to The Talking Machine World, which states that: "We have a record of having sold 221 records to one customer since we sold him a machine. Do you know any dealer who is able to beat that?"

JOHNSON JOINS METROPOLITAN CO.

The many friends of Edward Johnson, the distinguished tenor and Victor artist, are delighted that he has joined the forces of the Metropolitan Opera Company next season, when he will sing leading tenor roles. Mr. Johnson has sung with some of the famous opera companies of Europe, and more recently with the Chicago Opera Company. His name ranks with those superlatively great artists who have so notably contributed in bringing the world's admiration to American musical genius. And when we say America, we include Canada, because it was in the city of Guelph that Mr. Johnson was born. Thus the honor achieved by Mr. Johnson is reflected on the continent as a whole.

Don't belittle the opinions of your associates. They are human, have brains, and the chances are that they know how to use them.

GRINNELL BROS. EMPLOYES SCORE

"Steinway Four" and Male Chorus of Grinnell Bros. Make Big Hit at Recent "Sing" of Detroit Stores Music Association

DETROIT, MICH., June 5.—One of the big hits of the recent "sings" of the Detroit Stores Music Association held at Arcadia Auditorium were the four young ladies of Grinnell Bros., Victor distributors, and the male chorus of the same concern, numbering twenty-four voices. These four young ladies, popularly known as the "Steinway Four," scored a tremendous success, and the same may be said of the male chorus, which is a well-trained body of singers. Both of these musical groups entertained thousands of radio fans recently when the Detroit News broadcasted the playing of the "Steinway Four" and the voices of the male chorus.

The Detroit Stores Music Association is the outgrowth of Michigan's first Music Week held last October. There are over eight thousand employes of the stores represented in the Association. Morning "sings" are held once or twice a week by each of the organizations, and all join in the big general musical events. Grinnell Bros.' "Steinway Four," and Grinnell Bros.' male chorus appeared in the second of these events.

The Victrola is the standard of musical value

New models that are true musical instruments

Being musical instruments the first requirement is quality of musical performance and in these new models the design is determined by their musical requirements. These requirements have been learned through twenty-four years devoted solely to the talking-machine art. See and hear these new Victrolas which, while new in design, have all the characteristic tone-quality which has made the Victrola pre-eminent.

Seeing Ourselves as Others See Us, and a Few Hints on Business Practice :: By F. C. Parsons

The deplorable lack of business ability and aggressiveness on the part of many talking machine dealers is one of the outstanding reasons for many of the reports concerning poor business in circulation among the trade. The writer, in an investigation covering approximately twelve stores in widely separated localities, including the large city and the so-called small town, found only one dealer who measured up to the standard of a real live merchant. In any business, and especially the talking machine business, an attitude of far-sightedness and clear thinking for the future must be adopted if any degree of success is to be attained.

Some who read this article may feel offended, but frankness never hurt anyone and there is no time like the present to correct faults which are detrimental to good business practice. As you read about the faults of the several merchants analyze your own method of conducting your establishment, and if you find that you are making similar mistakes take measures to correct them at once.

The first establishment visited proved to be a fine, large store in a good-sized city. This merchant handled talking machines, records, pianos and musical instruments. When questioned as to his methods of obtaining customers and making sales he replied as follows:

"We do not concentrate very much on the sale of talking machines and records because they are more of a side line with us than anything else. We devote most of our attention to our line of pianos. We make no special effort to increase our sales of talking machine accessories. If a customer asks for them we have them in stock and can make a sale, but we do not push them. As for increasing our list of prospects, the only method we use is to get the names of people who enter the store. To these we send the monthly supplement."

What a confession of poor business policy for a firm which has spent several thousands of dollars in the construction of talking machine display rooms and sound-proof record demonstration booths! Despite the fact that he considers the talking machine as a side line his sales in this direction, from all indications, are very nearly the equal of his sales of pianos or other instruments.

This merchant could materially increase his business if he systematized his conduct of the talking machine department, adopted some method of increasing his prospect list, hired a couple of outside canvassers and salesmen and made a more personal contact with his customers, in addition to the sending out of record supplements.

Another merchant in the same city, who handles three lines of machines of well-known make, complained bitterly of poor business. A glance around the store was sufficient to find the reason for this. First, the window, instead of attracting passers-by, tended to repel. The display itself was fairly good, but the point was that it had not been changed for so long that a heavy dust had settled on every object therein. The window glass itself was covered with a film of dust which partly obscured the display. The interior was in keeping with the window. A fine large showcase was in a deplorable state of disorder and a pile of record supplements and talking machine descriptive matter on a small table was bunched together in a conglomerate mass which precluded the finding of any particular piece of literature descriptive of the machine asked for without a search, unless one happened to be in luck. Of course, this is an extreme case, but within a radius of five miles two more cases of a similar nature were discovered.

The writer entered another store in a medium-sized city a few miles distant and one of the members of the firm gave him such a cold greeting that he was glad to get out of the place.

As a matter of fact, this man did not know whether or not he was addressing a prospective customer. The writer asked if he could speak to the manager and in reply he received an ungracious "No." This firm has an attractive store, but the personality of this one man pervaded the atmosphere. He made no inquiry as to whether he could be of service, but stared steadily out of the window without saying a word more. He did not know or attempt to find out whether the writer was a customer who desired to see a machine, make a complaint or was merely a friend of the manager. If the writer had been a friend of the manager do you suppose for one instant that he would ever come to that store to buy a machine or records if he happened to be in the market for one? I should say: Not on your life!

This article is written intentionally to bring forcibly to the minds of dealers just what mistakes are being made by some dealers and how they strike an impartial observer. How much more unpleasantly they must affect a man or woman who enters with the idea of making a purchase, has money to spend, and expects consideration and service. For, after all, it is well to remember that there are other stores and a customer is conveying a favor, strictly speaking, in doing business at any one of them. If these few paragraphs make only one merchant sit up and take notice, so to speak, they will have accomplished some good and the time and trouble of investigation will have been repaid.

The Cleverly Designed Window Display Card Is a Powerful Sales Factor :: By Aug. G. Baker

It would take a brave man to deny the fact that advertising is helpful to dealer or manufacturer. Yet there are those who complain that they cannot afford an appropriation for the kind of publicity they would like to use. We believe, however, that there is no merchant so poor that he cannot afford to advertise in some form, and the most inexpensive form of advertising, and in a great degree the most effective medium, is the display window.

But how many dealers realize this fact? When once you get off the main avenues, and strike the side streets and avenues in the average business sections of the city, there are plenty of stores handling talking machines the windows of which need attention, not merely in the matter of display, but, to put it bluntly, in cleanliness. The dirty window with its dusty stock does not invite customers to the store. It merely advertises the dealer as a slovenly, unprogressive personage. A clean window is helpful; a cleverly conceived display is more helpful and, better still, the cleverly designed display card is a most effective means of interesting the public in the window, in the line handled and in the store as a whole.

To-day the big merchants and the owners of the most prosperous stores find neatly lettered and tastily arranged window cards carrying timely messages about records and talking machines, or about music generally, to be a very effective means of attracting customers. Still, a great many small merchants apparently overlook this means of interesting the public. The latter type of dealer is more apt to use handbills or a similar form of cheap publicity.

Many dealers avoid the window card, because of its cost, but this cannot be a deterrent as far as the talking machine man is concerned, for the leading companies are supplying some very striking display cards which, if the window is properly "dressed," should invite consideration that should be helpful as a sales promoter. If the dealer desires to have his own cards made up along individual lines the expense is not considerable, for there are many companies making a specialty of printing or designing window cards and the cost is small compared with the value to be derived.

Every store window has a definite value in dollars and cents, and no dealer who is in the business to succeed should overlook its potentiality. Hence the merchant should not fail to appreciate the value of window cards as a means of advertising. All successful institutions use them because every one will read the signs in the window. It keeps them in mind of the display twice as long as ordinarily. It makes people stop and look at the window who would pass it by if there were no cards to excite their inquisitiveness.

In fixing a value on your window just consider how many people pass your store every day and every night, and then figure out how you may attract the attention of this vast number of people to your individual display. Once you arrest the attention of these people, and their interest is focused on your window by striking display cards or other attractive features, you have then got in contact with a large number of prospects who are not only interested in what you say to them by means of the cards, but also in your product, and when they desire to make a purchase your store is kept in mind. As has been remarked before, the store window is a reflex of the character of the owner. You cannot disassociate the clever display window from the enterprising merchant, and people like to deal with such a type of merchant because he keeps the latest and the best in his line.

In these days when one is apt to hear complaints about the slowness of business is it not the time to concentrate more earnestly than ever before on ways and means of getting out of the rut, and of interesting the public in the talking machine and record trade? Those who do this systematically are bound to be rewarded. There is no question but that the cheapest way a merchant can advertise to-day is through his window, and when he gives this subject serious consideration he is bound to stimulate interest in his product and necessarily increases his business.

INVENTION ALLOWS RADIO SECRECY

Prevents Any Station From Receiving Messages Except Those for Whom Intended—Tested by Navy and War Departments

GLOUCESTER, MASS., June 8.—An apparatus for preventing any station from taking messages except those for which they are intended has been perfected by John Hays Hammond, Jr.

The same wave can be made to carry several messages at the same time, and, further, it is stated, both voice and code may be transmitted.

The new apparatus will allow a far greater number of stations to communicate over a limited number of wave lengths. Accidental interference from other stations is greatly reduced. Efficiency is increased. Atmospheric electricity, or static, is diminished in its effect upon the new system to such extent that the system may be operated under conditions when the standard radio apparatus cannot successfully receive.

Mr. Hammond's statement declares that he has been at work upon these problems for the past fourteen years. A demonstration was given recently before officials and experts of one of the leading radio companies, and Mr. Hammond says the United States Navy and War Departments have given his latest discoveries exhaustive tests.

The system, it is declared, embodies a direct and simple means of insuring privacy, and it will be practically impossible under ordinary conditions for any other than the proper receiving station to hear anything but a jumble.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO AUGUSTA DEALER

The W. P. Manning Music Co., 311 Jackson street, Augusta, Ga., which features the Columbia Grafonolas and Columbia records most successfully in that territory, was recently the subject of a two-column article in the Augusta Herald, which credited W. The line of least resistance often has an unhappy ending.

FINE SERVICE HELPS BUSINESS

Wolf & Dessauer, Victor Dealers, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., Will Inaugurate Several Service Plans Which Prove Good Business Builders

FT. WAYNE, IND., June 4.—The Wolf & Dessauer store, of this city, has inaugurated several plans in its Victrola department which have proved effective in building good-will for the concern and have also been instrumental in greatly increasing sales of machines and records.

The company has secured the good-will of various organizations and societies by catering to their desires. For example, card tables and chairs have been provided for card parties, and whenever an organization plans to entertain in any manner the company offers the services of a Victrola and a selected list of records. Another service which is proving a sales maker is the demonstration of records over the telephone to customers who are unable to visit the store. Where machines and records are loaned to organizations of various kinds the company attends to the delivery up to a distance of seventy miles from the store.

"Courtesy Days" are frequently held. No merchandise is sold on these days, but the members of the sales staff show visitors through the store and explain the merits of the various things which interest them.

VANDEVEER BUYS FORBURGER STORE

Will Push the Sales of Edison and Brunswick Machines Exclusively

ROBINSON, ILL., June 3.—J. Vandever, of the Vandever Music Store, North Cross street, has purchased the Forburger Music Store, on the north side of the square.

At present it is Mr. Vandever's intention to confine his efforts to the retail sales field, and push his present line of talking machines and records, consisting of the Brunswick and Edison. These, with his large stock of pianos and other musical instruments, will be moved to the new location. In the meanwhile both places will be conducted under his management.

WILL CARRY OUT N. C. R. IDEALS

F. B. Patterson, President of National Cash Register Co., to Carry Out Plans Established by the Late John H. Patterson

DAYTON, O., June 3.—When F. B. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Co., and son of the late John H. Patterson, was asked as to his future plans, he firmly stated that he fully expects to devote his life to advancing and carrying out the ideals which were established by his father.

He said: "The policies which have developed our business from a one-room factory to an organization employing more than 10,000 people in all parts of the world will be continued. I also will devote a portion of my time to promoting all uplifting activities in this community.

"I am especially interested in the progress of Dayton, and will do all within my power to further community betterment, welfare work and anything that will help improve the conditions under which we live."

SIMON SALTER OPENS NEW STORE

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., June 3.—Simon Salter, who has been in the music business here for a number of years, recently opened attractive new quarters at 168 Smith street. The new store has been equipped with the most modern fixtures obtainable for a talking machine and musical instrument business. The Sonora and Columbia lines will be featured in a spacious department and a complete line of records has been installed.

The dealer who blames all reverses on hard luck had better retire to a quiet corner and analyze the situation again to see if perhaps he was not partly to blame.

GRANBY Personal MESSAGE

Number Two

Sent by Granby Phonograph Corporation, Newport News, Va.,

You, Mr. Dealer, want the one best Phonograph in the country for YOU, to sell. Whatever standard you set, you want your line to be the Best for your purpose.

By the One Best Phonograph we mean the one that is Best Suited to your trade, that sells easiest and STAYS SOLD. The one that calls for the LEAST SERVICE. And last, but by no means least, the one that shows you the best margin of PROFIT.

That meets with YOUR ideas, doesn't it?

Well, if that IS so, then you should handle the Granby.

In Design, Finish, Construction, Equipment and Tone the Granby is the peer of any phonograph at anything like its price.

Granby period models are perfect copies that appeal to the artistic eye of the discriminating buyer.

The finish we believe is superior to that of any competitive line.

The Construction is sturdy. Granby is built to last a lifetime.

The Motor is specially built for us by one of the largest motor manufacturers in the country. It embodies many unique features.

The Granby Dual Tonearm is distinctive and, with the highly polished horn, develops the unusual tone quality that has put Granby in a class by itself.

Granby prices are fair. Discounts are generous—showing you DOUBLE THE NET PROFIT you can make on any of the so-called standard lines.

Moreover, the Granby sells easiest in competition. It is live merchandise. It MOVES. And you have the benefit of a generous policy of CO-OPERATION.

If these are facts, as we claim, you will admit that the Granby proposition is at least worth investigating.

Then why not ask us to SHOW you?

Organizations and Clubs Offer the Dealer the Opportunity of a Live Prospect List

One of the most important assets that a live talking machine dealer can have is a live prospect list. From such a list, in a large measure, does the development of the business spring, provided the proper measures are taken to follow up the prospects with the idea of making sales. There are a number of methods by which a fairly good prospect list can be obtained with comparatively little effort. Securing the names from the directory or telephone book is not the most resultful, for the simple reason that many of the people listed therein must be weeded out. This is done for several reasons, the most important of which is that a great number of people are poor risks and the merchant cannot afford to sell an expensive machine or a number of records to a person who is pretty sure to fall down on his or her contract.

From the preceding paragraph it may safely be deduced that the first essential of a good prospect list is that the names thereon be of a selected class. In other words, the names of people who not only offer an opportunity for the sale of a machine or records but people who are in a financial position to meet their obligations. The question, then, which naturally arises in the mind of the merchant is: "Where can I obtain a list of the people in my community who fall in the selected category?"

The answer is simple enough: Clubs, societies, churches, schools, country clubs and all other organizations where the membership is made up of good substantial citizens of the communities. The names of all other merchants in your community may be added to this list. In other words, the middle class and the well-to-do people of the city, town or country offer the best opportunities to the merchant of making a sale with a reasonable certainty of receiving payment for his merchandise. In every community there is a shiftless class of people which it is safer to steer clear of. Then there is the extremely poor class of people who cannot afford to invest in a musical instrument of any kind. In the first-named instance the sale may be consummated and the name affixed to the dotted line, but the purchaser, who is possessed of little or no sense of responsibility or what is right, is reasonably certain to try to "get away" with anything possible. In the second case the contract will probably be entered into with good faith and the determination to meet the payments, but the condition of the finances of an extremely poor family makes the possibility of promptness very remote, and the dealer takes a greater chance than is justified.

In order that the talking machine dealer may insure the possibility of securing the names of the proper people, he must engage in civic activities of various sorts and actively enter into the interests of the community in order that he make himself known to as large a circle of people as possible. In this manner his chances of gaining access to the rosters of clubs and organizations will be greatly increased, and, besides, the fact that he is known to a large number of people will react directly to his benefit by increasing the number of customers who will voluntarily come to his establishment to make their purchases.

There may be some "doubtful Thomases" among the readers of this article who declare that it cannot be done, but it most emphatically can and has been done. This article itself is the result of a conversation with a certain live dealer who has successfully accomplished that very thing and is now reaping the profits of his labor by an ever-increasing number of sales. This dealer declared that from the Y. M. H. A. and several country clubs in his community he had secured the names of 1,200 worth-while people in one month. He is now engaged in making a special effort to secure the names of the members of several women's clubs with good results. The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., as well as several churches in his city, have also contributed live prospects.

The securing of the names is but the first step in obtaining a prospect list which will deliver returns in sales and consequently greater profits. The second, and equally important, step is to eliminate the names of persons who already possess a machine and those who are not in the market. There is little use of wasting a great deal of time and effort in trying to make a sale to people who already own a machine or to those who for some reason or other are not in a position to have one, when there are a large number of prospects who can be induced to buy with a great deal less effort.

The dealer referred to accomplishes this result as follows: After the names have been secured they are indexed alphabetically and placed on file. Then for three consecutive months personal letters, circulars, monthly supplements and other direct-by-mail efforts are made to secure the prospects' attention and interest in the line handled. The letters are so worded as to encourage in every possible manner that the prospective customer communicate with the merchant as to whether he or she is interested. If, after the expiration of the allotted three months, no reply is received the dealer makes one more effort to gain the desired information by making a personal call. Having finally assured himself which are the people who cannot be induced to buy, he drops them from the list and concentrates on the others.

Of course, there are some who will point to this method as involving a great deal of time and expense and to them the only answer is that every merchant pays rent and most of them pay for advertising, some of it non-productive, and for what? Why, to secure business, of course. In proportion to these expenses, when the sales possibilities to prospects secured in the manner described are analyzed it will be found that the cost of making sales is very small.

CONSTRUCTIVE PLAN FOR USING RECORDS IN SCHOOLS

Henry D. Tovey, Director of Fine Arts in University of Kansas, Offers State-wide Musical Education Plan That Will Help Stimulate Use of Talking Machines and Records

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., June 8.—The credit for the development of the State of Arkansas from a music desert into a music oasis is frankly given to the talking machine and to the foresight of Henry D. Tovey, Director of Fine Arts in the University of Arkansas, in urging the use of talking machines in schools and preparing and laying out definite record programs.

Mr. Tovey found that not enough attention was being given to music in the schools, and conceived the idea of sending a bulletin to schools and women's clubs throughout the State offering seven programs of records with pictures and written talks. The records were to be retained two days and then sent on to a designated school or club. There was no charge for the loan of the record. The only expense was for the express charge one way on the records. A postcard was sent to every person receiving the records telling when they would arrive and from whom and when they were to be forwarded and to whom. Later the loan time of two days was extended and the circuits shortened.

Almost immediately Mr. Tovey received twenty-four applications for the records from women's clubs. Not a request came from the schools of the State. The clubs played the records on their own machines and then took them to the schools. As a result there were many applicants for records from the schools the second year and the number has increased yearly since.

The fame of Mr. Tovey's state-wide musical education plan has spread the world over. Requests for information in regard to it have reached the originator from every State in the Union but four and from seven foreign countries.

In the majority of the schools of Arkansas the talking machine is as much a part of the equipment as the blackboard. There is a growing interest in the better class of music, and several State high schools now give credit for music.

This year the university has in circulation during ten months fifty programs, including music history, the art songs, the different voices, orchestra and instruments, operas, oratorio, etc.

The entire expense, except the purchase of part of the records and the express charges, is borne by the university.

Each set of records is accompanied by notes, explaining the music about to be heard and giving interesting facts regarding the origin, the instruments, the singers, etc. In the case of the records on musical history, and the world history of music, advance sheets are sent, so that the historic background for the music can be studied before the records arrive.

The collections include some of the finest and most valuable records made. They are shipped in new and easily handled boxes, with special packing which insures them against breaking.

Following are the rules governing the use of the records:

1. The collections are loaned free except for transportation charges. The borrower must pay charges from the person preceding him on the circuit, or, if he receives individual service, to and from this office.
2. No admission fee may be charged for the programs, except by public institutions, when the funds raised thereby go toward the purchase of material for musical education.
3. Only half tone needles must be used.
4. The turntable of the machine must be kept revolving at 78 times a minute.
5. The records must be carefully packed and shipped on the day specified by this office to the next borrower.
6. A report must be mailed immediately to this office on the blank supplied for that purpose.
7. The borrower must make good any damage to the material which occurs while it is in his possession.
8. The borrower must give at least two weeks' notice to be included or removed from a circuit. Requests for individual service will be handled in the order in which they are received.
9. In applying for material, the borrower should state for what purpose he desires it, and that he will conform to the regulations given above.

Plays Talking Machine in Manhole on Sidewalk and Places Dummy Machine in Window—Stunt Attracts Considerable Attention

Concealing the talking machine beneath the grilled cover of a coal manhole on the sidewalk, while the horn of another instrument was pressed tightly against the show window of the shop, an Indianapolis talking machine merchant attracted much attention from the people passing by and also succeeded in drawing many curious folks into the shop.

The usual stunt of letting the public hear the instrument in action by means of a horn protruding through the window or door of the shop was too ancient a plan for the merchant, who wished to do something different.

So the manhole scheme was finally hit upon as one that would make the passers-by pause and guess. The people naturally looked at the instrument the horn of which was pressed against the window and the majority wondered. Few discovered the real source of the music and many prospective customers and sales resulted.

NEW YORK CONCERN CHARTERED

The Seymour-Forsman Music System, of New York City, has secured a charter of incorporation under the laws of New York State, for the manufacture of talking machines, etc. The concern has been authorized to issue 150 shares of preferred stock at $100 per share and 100 shares of common stock at no par value. Incorporators are M. M. Bartholomew, L. W. Scudder and R. Forsman.

SELLING VICTROLAS TO SCHOOLS

The Cline-Vick Drug Co., which conducts a chain of stores in Illinois and handles a complete line of Victor talking machines and records, has been paying considerable attention to the schools as Victor prospects, with the result that recent sales include a Victrola to the Logan school and the Marion Township High School. Fay Luyster is the wide-awake manager of the Cline-Vick Victor department.

EDISON'S PLAN TO HANDLE CROPS

At an agricultural inquiry recently held in Washington, D. C., members of the joint Congressional Commission considered a plan for marketing farm crops placed before them by Thomas A. Edison. Among other suggestions he urged the marketing of crops through a system of warehouse receipts and the establishment of a chain of great warehouses for storage purposes. Mr. Edison believes that more orderly marketing with benefits to the producers and consumers would result from the adoption of the suggestion.

G. S. HARDS' STRIKING FLOAT

Geo. S. Hards, Victor dealer, of Dormont, Pa., was recently represented in a business men's parade in Dormont by a very fine float, which attracted a great deal of attention. Mr. Hards reproduced the Victor trade-mark, using a Victrola with a horn and the well-known white papier-mache dog.

The man who congratulates himself on the easy job he holds down is usually incapable of holding down a more responsible position. Also, any job can be made easy by shirking responsibilities.

PRODUCING BETTER CABINETS

Consensus of Opinion Among Veneer Men Is That Cabinet Makers Are Turning Their Attention to Making Better Products

An interview with the heads of several prominent veneer houses brought out the fact that since the war manufacturers are steadily striving to produce the best cabinet work possible. The head of one of these firms stated: "Before the war many concerns were in the market for the cheapest quality of veneer which they could possibly use. This condition has been entirely reversed during the past year. Many of these firms have gone out of business and the balance have turned their attention to turning out a quality product. They cheerfully pay the price for the best quality woods and their cabinet work shows the results. This was brought about by the fact that the average purchaser is more discriminating than formerly and will not buy the cheap-appearing product, realizing that it pays in the end to buy something worth while."

FINE ADS FEATURE MUSIC WEEK

Johnstown, Pa., Paper Devotes Entire Section to Pennsylvania Music Week

JOHNSTOWN, PA., June 3.—In connection with the recent Pennsylvania Music Week, the Johnstown Sunday Ledger devoted an entire section of the paper to a music section. In addition to articles relating to the history of local concerns prominent in the music business a number of fine advertisements appeared. Among the ads, which were especially attractive, were those of the Modernola Co., manufacturer of the Modernola phonograph; Nathan's, featuring the Edison; Swank's, the Victrola, and Rothert's, the Vocalion and the Columbia Grafonola.

A charter of incorporation has been granted to the firm of Osland, of New York City, to handle talking machines, electric parts, etc. The concern, which has a capital of $25,000, was incorporated by R. W. Osland, G. E. Cook and T. K. Jones.

The CHENEY

THE MASTER INSTRUMENT

Testing the Heart of The Cheney with a Stethoscope

Freedom from noise, throbs and pulses is one of the outstanding characteristics of the Cheney motor. The utmost simplicity of design and the most exacting standards of manufacture have made the Cheney motor as nearly perfect as it is possible to achieve. As one of the men in our factory said, "We pride ourselves on the fact that our motors are held to closer standards than any other phonograph motor that is made."

Above is illustrated the first test of a Cheney motor after it is assembled—the stethoscope test. While every part of the motor is in motion the stethoscope is applied. The slightest noise is so magnified by this device that a loose bearing or the least eccentricity is easily discovered.

No Cheney motor is allowed to pass to further tests until it has satisfactorily demonstrated its ability to run smoothly and silently.

This delicate part is the balance wheel which keeps the speed of the motor and the turntable constant. Special care is used to make it accurate.

The Cheney Motor Assembled

Before it may take its place in the finished Cheney, it must pass four of the most exacting tests which can be given to any piece of mechanism. The first of these is the stethoscope test for noise, as described.

(NO. VI)

Dear Bill:

Reading between the lines of your most welcome letter, I have come to the conclusion that you are quick-tempered and that you are harming yourself and will continue to do so unless you mend your ways, and that without delay. The fact that you let your temper get away from you because of Brown's seeming unreasonableness and gave him a piece of your mind certainly has not done you any good. On the contrary, it undoubtedly has done you considerable harm. One thing is sure, Brown will do no more business with you. Even if his complaint seemed unreasonable and childish, you would have accomplished much better results by resorting to diplomacy and making an effort to reason with him. The chances are that if you had tactfully pointed out to him that the trouble with the machine he purchased from you was the fault of the lack of attention it received at his hands and courteously offered to send some one up to look into the matter for him he would probably have cooled down and he would also have left your establishment with good feeling toward you instead of the ill will he now bears. In this manner you would have made a good customer of him.

Many years ago when I first entered the selling game I lost an important customer through a display of temper and the chastisement I received at the hands of the boss was sufficient to stick in my memory all these years. In short, I learned a lesson which I have never forgotten. Concluding his "bawling out," my boss said to me: "And never forget that no matter how unreasonable a customer seems to be he is always right. Be sure that you place yourself in his position and attack the matter from that angle." Many times after that when I have had occasion to deal with an irate customer I have remembered that advice, and I certainly have had no reason to regret using it. It pays to have full control of one's temper.

You must remember, Bill, old chap, that no man or woman will take the trouble to come to your store with a complaint unless there is a reason for it. Perhaps the customer may be wrong in assuming that the fault lies in the machine which you have sold. A complaint should be welcomed as an opportunity to make a fast friend instead of a chance to show the customer what you think of him or her. A little diplomacy will do the trick.

Amiability is one of the most important assets a business man can have, and this applies equally to every line of business. If you feel your temper rising make every effort to control it. Cheerfulness can be cultivated as easily as a frown and the reward is certainly worth the trouble. Remember that if you act in a nasty manner to one customer you may lose more than merely the patronage of that one person. The average person has a habit of passing along news of this character to friends and neighbors and you can readily see what chance you will have of doing business with any of these.

On the other hand, if you can convert this person into a firm friend of the house through courtesy, tact and cheerfulness the word will be passed along just as surely as in the case mentioned above and your circle of friends is immediately widened and your chances of enlarging your patronage is considerably increased. One thing is sure, courtesy always pays.

With best wishes,

JIM.

VICTOR SALES SCHOOL IN BUFFALO

Over Threescore Dealers and Salesmen Attended Sessions Held in That City Last Month

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 3.—The Victor Talking Machine Co. recently decided after considerable thought to carry the School for Salesmanship to the dealers in the various localities rather than require the retailers and members of their staffs to go to Camden for instruction, and the idea which is now being carried out has proven most successful.

The first point visited by the Victor School of Salesmanship was Buffalo, where the sessions opened last month with an attendance of sixty-six and continuing for four days. The majority of those attending were from Buffalo, but there was a good representation from west of New York generally and several from Pennsylvania. The sessions were held in the Buffalo Consistory, 164 Delaware avenue, a central and most convenient location.

The school was in charge of F. A. Delano, who has had charge of the Red Seal schools at the Victor factory, and he found time following the closing of the school to visit and study the Victrola departments of a number of local dealers.

The Buffalo jobbers, the Buffalo Talking Machine Co. and Curtis N. Andrews acted as host to the visiting dealers on Wednesday evening and entertained them at a dinner and theatre party, and arranged to have a group picture of the class taken, a print of which was given to each member upon leaving Buffalo.

E. L. GRATIGNY JOINS FORCE

Becomes Vice-President of the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co.—Valuable Addition to Official Force of This Live Organization

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., June 8.—The executive personnel of the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, with headquarters in this city, was completed last week when E. L. Gratigny joined the staff to take active part in the company work and has been elected to the office of vice-president in the organization.

E. L. Gratigny, who is a brother of B. W. Gratigny, president of the company, has been connected with the C. D. Smith Drug Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., for twenty-five years—in the later years as secretary and director. The latter is one of the largest wholesale drug houses in the West and Mr. Gratigny's recent sales promotion activities there have been largely in the line of fountains and store fixtures and in modernizing stores—an experience which will be of value to him in his work with the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co. He will bring to this organization a wide experience in store management and specialty selling as well as sales promotion work, and his efforts will be given largely toward dealer service and dealer development.

The existing personnel of the company will not be disturbed by Mr. Gratigny's addition—it is in the nature of an expansion and addition to the Victor distributing organization.

A LITTLE STORY WITH A MORAL

A Few Pointed Facts Which Are the Reason for Dull Business and Lead to Disaster

A music merchant who had been in business for a number of years and did not seem to be making much progress one day complained that his business was extremely dull. The writer asked him if he did anything to get new customers outside of a few inches of space which he used in the daily papers; whether he used outside salesmen and canvassers; whether he kept track of old customers in any way and made any effort to bring them back into the store.

To all of these he answered: "No, what's the use?" The writer also suggested that the fact that his windows were dusty, dirty, disarranged and the displays changed once in a "blue moon" might have something to do with the condition of his business. This man will not be in business very long. The handwriting on the wall is plain for all to see.

:: CHEERFULNESS ::

By EDWARD FRASER CARSON

I do not know just how many cardinal virtues there are, but this I do know—I am sure of it—that one of said virtues is Cheerfulness.

Edward Fraser Carson

The chap who always looks on the bright side of life is good to have around. You know "the man worth while is the man who can smile when everything goes dead wrong."

On the other hand, if there is one kind of person that every other kind of person hates it is the crape-hanger—the black face artist—the sorehead who is always bemoaning the past, kicking at the present or fearing the future.

They say it's love that makes the world go round. Maybe it is. But if so it is Cheerfulness that lubricates the works. I know how hard it is to feel Cheerful when things are not breaking right. But it is surprising how much easier it is to feel Cheerful if you only look so. You can easily look Cheerful if you only make up your mind to do so.

If you will just smile you simply can't help seeing the sun shining. You simply can't hold hard feelings against any man. Try it and see. All your troubles disappear as if by magic the instant a smile chases away the clouds from your face.

One of the most successful merchants in Philadelphia—a self-made man—born in poverty and forced to support himself before he was ten years old, told me the other day that he was often asked what was the secret of his success.

"There is no secret about it," he said. "I simply 'smile my way.' I used to sell newspapers and I found that I always sold more papers when I was feeling good. Business was always poor when I had a grouch. I figured it out that smiling had something to do with it and I got the habit. It has never left me, for I find that it has paid me well in cash."

That man is not a Rockefeller or a Vanderbilt or a Morgan, but he has passed the point where he has to worry about where his next meal is coming from. You may not believe it, but this man's "secret" will just as surely work for you as it is working for him—for he is still prospering. Just try it out. Prove it to yourself. Make up your mind to be Cheerful and smile.

If the boss or customer or friend asks you to do something do it Cheerfully. Do it with a smile. Better not do it at all than do it grudgingly. No one wants to be waited on by a grouch. So in every retail store it is the Cheerful smiling face whose sales show the biggest increase. It is sales that count when the time comes for the boss to pass out the raise in pay or to pick the man to fill the job on the next step up the ladder in his organization.

Yes, sir, Cheerfulness is the cream on the strawberries of life. The face with the smile does win. It wins happiness—it wins friends—it wins business—it wins prosperity. It disarms your enemy and leaves him nothing on which to vent his spleen.

So I say to you, "Young man, be Cheerful—be Cheerful and smile—be Cheerful if only because it will put money in your pocket and it surely will.

But—be Cheerful—smile.

EDISON'S EARLY RADIO DISCOVERY

Phenomenon Bared in Studying Incandescent Lamp of Importance in the Field of Wireless

Although the name of Thomas A. Edison is rarely, if ever, connected with radio in the minds of the enthusiasts, he was, nevertheless, one of the early experimenters who discovered a phenomenon which later proved to be of vast importance in the field of wireless.

Mr. Edison was busy working on other phases of electricity at the time that he made his observations, so that nothing then came of them. Later, however, Lee de Forest and many other investigators went further along the same line and the result was the vacuum tube, the marvelous bulb which has made the modern radio possible.

Mr. Edison, in studying the action of the incandescent lamp, observed that a current could be passed from the filament across the vacuum in the bulb to a wire or plate inserted in the tube. He found that this current flowed as soon as the filament became incandescent and flowed only in one direction, toward the extra wire of plate. What was happening was that a great number of electrons of negative electricity were leaping the gap from the negatively charged filament to the plate, which was positively charged in relation to the filament. This phenomenon later became known as "the Edison effect."

WORK FOR TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING

Birmingham Music Merchants Participating Actively in Local Campaign

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., June 3.—Birmingham piano and talking machine dealers, together with other merchants of the city, are co-operating with The Birmingham Age Herald in a new movement of "truthful advertising." The Age Herald guarantees to its readers the reliability, the honesty and truthfulness of all Birmingham firms advertising in that publication.

This method of advertising is something new in the South, but it is proving most popular with the merchants of the city in general. The reliable merchants say this method of advertising will drive from the city snide stores, selling inferior goods with an effort to deceive and defraud the public.

"That day has passed when an unscrupulous music dealer can sell an inferior piano, talking machine or other musical instrument to the people, claiming it is a first-class instrument," said a well-known piano dealer of Birmingham. "The public is too wise nowadays to be humbugged as a general rule. However, there are times when an untruthful advertisement will sell an inferior piano or talking machine, thus knocking the honest merchant out of a sale, and at the same time making a dissatisfied customer of the purchaser later on, when that person has learned what he has really bought. This kind of advertising always injured the business, and it always will. This is an age when business must be conducted along business lines and the merchant must advertise and tell the truth, if he expects to remain in business and prosper," said this merchant.

Some of the piano dealers, as well as merchants engaged in other lines of trade, say that the "truthful advertising" plan is increasing their business. This method of advertising is especially bringing more and more out-of-town business to the city, a number of merchants say. "People outside of Birmingham have learned that they can depend on the advertising they read in the Birmingham newspapers—knowing that when they visit the city they will find the goods as advertised—and, I tell you, it is helping trade, too," said one big talking machine dealer.

RADIO ON TRAINS A SUCCESS

Experiments of Two Railroads With Radio Installation May Result in Other Lines Equipping Trains With Receiving Sets

The successful installation of radio equipment on trains of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Lackawanna railroads is attracting considerable attention and the near future is likely to see equipment of a similar character on other lines. The buffet cars on trains of both these companies have been equipped in this manner and the monotony of a long, tedious rail journey has been broken by music, etc. The next step will probably be the installation of transmitting apparatus on trains, so that travelers may send messages while en route.

WOODBIDGE ELECTED PRESIDENT

Sales Manager of Dictaphone Division of the Columbia Graphophone Co. Elected Head of the Advertising Club of New York

C. K. Woodbridge, sales manager of the Dictaphone division of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, was recently given a signal honor in being elected president of the well-known Advertising Club of New York City. In his new post of distinction he carries with him the good wishes of his many friends in the talking machine trade for a thoroughly successful administration of the Club's affairs during the coming year. Mr. Woodbridge is well known in advertising talking machine circles in New York City and his election to the presidency of this live organization is a flattering reflection of his popularity among advertising men in this city.

THE ART OF SELLING DEFINED

The Essential Points So Necessary to Success in the Sales Field Interestingly Presented

The art of selling includes: The ability to lead the customer by diplomatic suggestion and the exercise of tact. Otherwise the salesman descends to the status of a mere order-taker.

The treatment of various types of personalities in order to get the best results. No two people will react in the same way to the same kind of treatment. What is sauce for the goose in many instances is vinegar for the gander.

A knowledge of human nature sufficient to permit the salesman to study quickly and accurately the character of the customer with whom he is doing business in order that he may select the type of merchandise which will most please the prospect.

Knowing the line handled thoroughly so that there is absolutely no hesitation in the presentation of the sales argument. Lack of this knowledge is detrimental to the best results in trying to make a satisfactory sale.

DEALERS TIE UP WITH HAPPY SIX

Miller & Kades, of Harrisburg, Pa., Profit by Local Appearance of Columbia Artists

HARRISBURG, PA., May 31.—Miller & Kades, Columbia dealers of this city, received some excellent publicity through the recent appearance at the Willow Garden, here, of the Happy Six, exclusive Columbia artists. Previous to the appearance of the artists Miller & Kades ran a number of "hook-up" advertisements in newspapers and also placarded the various dance halls, telling the dancers where records by the Happy Six could be obtained. On the night of the concert the dealers had a Grafonola placed in the main entrance of the hall and a boy to keep it in continuous operation. The stock of Happy Six records was checked up by John F. Trace, sales representative of the Philadelphia Columbia branch, so that it was complete and ready for the rush which followed.

What Okeh Dealers Think of

Okeh Records

Okeh Records bring bigger business to Dealers Everywhere. Read what they say

I sell more Okeh Records than others because of their wonderfully smooth surface. Customers always come back for more.—A. J. Whartnaby, Philadelphia, Pa.

Since I have begun to handle Okeh Records my trade will have nothing else. Am dropping other lines; Okeh exclusively hereafter!—J. A. Schillinger, Syracuse, N. Y.

I am agreeably surprised at the way people compliment us on Okeh Records. It surely is a line no live dealer can be without. I personally think they are the peppiest records on the market, and the line of foreign language records is marvelous.—Hillman's, C. Buell, Record Department, Chicago, Ill.

We are having splendid success with Okeh Records since taking on the line and the records are giving universal satisfaction. The people are coming in every day and asking for Okeh. This is the best index we know of as to what they think of them.—Harry N. Chesebrough, Oakland, Calif.

Okeh Records sell fast, and make friends. Three hours' record was 25 sales consisting of three old friends and 22 new ones.—Moore Music, Royal Oak, Mich.

We wish to go on record as saying that we consider Okeh Records the best lateral cut record on the market, without exception. The Okeh policy of being first with the hits makes them a most valuable asset to any dealer.—Cowling Music Shop, Wyandotte, Mich.

We are well satisfied with Okeh Records. Customers who buy them return for more. We think they are the best and sweetest toned records on the market.—G. I. Holland, Arlington, Mass.

We handle three lines of records, and Okeh are two to one the best sellers. Our business in Okeh Records is double that of last year. Most of our customers will not buy any other kind.—T. H. Perkins, Furniture Co., Brookhaven, Miss.

We take pleasure in saying that we have found the Okeh Records entirely satisfactory and one of the best sellers of three leading lines. Our customers especially appreciate the wide range of up-to-date music obtainable on these records, and the fact that there is always a good selection on both sides of the Okeh Record.—Barker Brothers, Greensboro, N. C.

Okeh Records are good, snappy and clean. The manufacturers have done well in keeping them so. They are fast sellers.—Smith & Nixon Piano Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

I like to handle Okeh Records because they are easy to sell, they stay sold and every record sold means future sales.—C. Gether, Gether Piano Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

We find that Okeh Records are first with the latest hits, and last to be discarded on account of their clear, natural tone, and wonderful durability.—Adel Drug Co., Adel, Ga.

OPENING OF PACKARD MUSIC HOUSE

Elaborate Musical Program and Eight-page Newspaper Supplement Mark Opening of New Retail Quarters in Ft. Wayne—Two Anniversaries Fittingly Celebrated

FT. WAYNE, IND., June 5.—The formal opening of the attractive new quarters of the Packard Music House, which was held in this city recently and marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the retail store, and the fiftieth anniversary of the Packard Piano Co., was made the occasion for compiling a special eight-page newspaper supplement which appeared in the Ft. Wayne Journal-Gazette on Sunday, May 14. The supplement gave a complete history of the music house with details of the interior arrangement and views of the various departments. Those decorators and supply houses who played a part in the decoration and equipment of the new store filled much of the space in the supplement with their congratulatory advertisements.

The new home of the Packard Music House is at the corner of Harrison and Wayne streets in the heart of the business section and comprises over 14,000 feet of floor space. The main floor, which has five large show windows facing the street, is given over to the Victrola department, band instrument and musical merchandise department, the sheet music library and the main office. The Victrola department is well equipped with sound-proof booths and includes a large record library. In the band instrument section are carried the C. G. Conn, Pensler, Mueller & Co., Ludwig & Ludwig, Deagan, Schuster and Vega lines of instruments.

The second floor of the building is given over to piano showrooms, where the Packard and Bond pianos and players are handled exclusively. The showrooms are handsomely decorated and hung with a number of valuable paintings. The third floor has been laid out as an auditorium with a seating capacity of 400.

An elaborate musical program was arranged for the opening with concerts by Johnny Watt's Orchestra. The Packard reproducing piano was featured in the concert with a number of local artists appearing.

In the newspaper supplement two full pages were devoted to the history of the Packard Piano Co., embellished with pictures of Albert S. Bond, president of the company, with various officials and department heads.

WIRELESS RECORDS ON PAPER

Wireless Station in France to Receive High-speed Messages on Paper Disc

Two systems of receiving high-speed messages which will be installed in a new wireless station in Lyons, France, are described in a recent issue of Popular Mechanics. One is the method of making a photographic record on a strip of sensitized paper, and in the other method the message is taken on a special high-speed phonograph. After the message has been recorded on the extra-heavy disc, the latter is placed in a machine running at much slower speed, and can then be transcribed by an operator. The reverse of this system can also be used in transmitting messages at speeds up to 150 words per minute.

EXCELLENT PROGRESS WITH CENSUS

Figures for 1921 Will Be Published About October of This Year

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12.—Very good progress on the 1921 census of manufactures is reported by E. F. Hartley, chief statistician for manufactures, of the Census Bureau, who states that approximately 80 per cent of all the reports have already been received in less than four months' actual working time. Mr. Hartley's division is making every effort to cut down the time which must elapse between the taking of the census and the publication of the figures, and expects to be able to issue the first preliminary statements by October, cutting down by more than a year the time required for the publication of the 1919 census.

A new method of handling the work is to be adopted whereby the reports of production in various industries will be issued before reports showing production by areas, it being Mr. Hartley's belief that the desires of the business men can be best met by furnishing them as soon as possible with a report showing the total production in their industry and following it with reports giving details of manufacturing in the various sections.

Distinction Conferred on the Home by the Selection and Use of Good Record Music

Too many people are prone to overlook the distinction conferred on the home by the selection and use of good music. Before the advent of the talking machine millions of people in America were unable to enjoy good music in their homes because a great majority of them did not play any musical instrument. If they played at all it was indifferently. They had to go to the concert halls to hear the great pianists, violinists or famous orchestras. But what a change! To-day rich and poor alike can in their homes hear and enjoy the greatest artists and organizations in the world supplying music that reflects their tastes and inclinations. The great artists, as well as the great soloists of world fame, are at their command, and with a good book and a happy spirit no millionaire or kingly personage can enjoy a greater treat or one that exalts the spirituality of the humblest citizen. The selection of records in the home invariably mirrors personality, and in this connection there were some very timely words in a recent article in the record department of the New York American which fit in very aptly with the line of thought just expressed. It read:

"When a man has, in heat of battle, done a fine and fearless act of heroism he is rewarded by a mark of distinction. With regiment drawn up in panoply, he is called from the ranks and recognition is conferred. A medal, as a mark of valor, is pinned over the stout heart that beats rapidly in his breast, for it is the emblem of his fellow man's respect that lies above it.

"This mark, this medal, is but an inanimate lump of metal dangling from the bosom of his uniform that, but for the difference of a die, might as well have been a button on his coat, yet it lies there and marks him apart among men—the mark of distinction, of character.

"We, all of us, have our marks of distinction. Some are conferred, like the friendship of a worthy fellow man; others are acquired and we display them unconsciously in our every act and speech. Good breeding, education, honesty and clean living are some of them.

We are judged, in a great measure, by the company we keep; like attracts like, birds of a feather flock together. Worthy friends serve worthy ends.

"In the same sense are we judged by our characteristic differences of personality, of refinement and by the things of beauty and charm with which we surround ourselves. The home is the mirror that reflects, in a hundred different ways, our good taste through the silent expression of the things it contains that distinguish it as different.

"It may be an old-fashioned but home-like place that breathes a spirit of sweet simplicity, or it may be garishly over-furnished and uncomfortably oppressive—the sign of sudden affluence and a pronounced desire to show it. In any event, these things have a marked tendency to indicate the character of its occupants. How often have you been judged thus unknowingly?

"But of all things, our music and our books are the most important gauges of the true culture of the individual. If my friend has a 100 per cent collection of the latest popular jazz numbers, and no good music, I am moved to conclude that he is perhaps a little light-headed but, withal, a very jolly fellow and endowed with certain social graces that center mostly around a pair of nimble feet. On the other hand, should he have a well-balanced collection, comprising the finer music, I very naturally assume that he has an appreciation of the beautiful; that he is not shallow and that there must be much in his nature that is in harmony with these finer things. If, also, I notice a volume of Keats or Longfellow or Shakespeare lying on the library table, it is just another indication in support of my deductions.

"You might answer me by saying that surroundings count for very little. 'Was not the Keats you speak of born in a stable, the son of a stableman? Did not Poe write his "Raven" in a garret? Was not Lincoln born in a log cabin where he had none of these things?"

"True, but these conditions were but the circumstances of birth and fate, they were not matters of choice. If you could have gone into their literary workshops, if you could have peeped over Keats' shoulder or Poe's and read the stuff they were creating, you would have said, 'Not for the lack of these things but in spite of the lack of them genius prevails.' But then, again, that is the way of genius, and my friend of the books and records, after all, is not a genius and therefore has a greater need of these things."

CHANGES IN COLLINGS PERSONNEL

Promotions for H. A. Lamor, A. J. Wilckens and R. P. Vause Announced by L. W. Collings

Collings & Co., Victor distributors of Newark, N. J., who confine their activities to New Jersey and northeastern Pennsylvania, recently announced changes in personnel which were made necessary by the untimely death of John L. Spillane, secretary of the company.

L. W. Collings, general manager of the company, stated he thought the best interests of the trade would be served by the general promotion of the staff. In this manner the company will be able to continue its past policies with as little interruption as possible and secure the co-operation of a set of men to promote the interests of its customers who are already acquainted with their particular needs.

The new appointments are as follows: Harold A. Lamor, manager sales and order departments; Alexander J. Wilckens, special sales representative for northern New Jersey and northeastern Pennsylvania; Raymond P. Vause, manager shipping and stock departments.

The Pizarro Phonograph Co., with headquarters at 3217 Avondale avenue, Chicago, Ill., has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities are listed at $2,074.37 and assets are valued at $1,250.

A SUGGESTION FOR EDITING AND IMPROVING RECORDS

New Yorker Suggests Method for Inscribing on Records Lines and Indentations Not Actually Recorded, but Which Will Tend to Improve Reproductive Qualities

Dr. N. Sulzberger makes a rather original suggestion in a recent communication to the New York Times in which he points out that in order to utilize the talking machine, or rather its records, creatively, he would inscribe on these records (which may possibly be modified as to material and shape of the present ones) lines and various other indentations by sharp-pointed instruments (pencils, etc.) and other mechanical means, such lines and indentations being similar, more or less, in their nature to those which are, up to the present, inscribed on the records by sound waves only. "By the use of such mechanical means it is readily understood and seen," says Dr. Sulzberger, "that lines and markings can be made which have never been heard or in audible form before being inscribed on the records. The first time these mechanically inscribed indentations and markings on the records will be transcribed into audible form will be when these records are placed in touch with the reproducing needle and sounded into the air.

will be required to produce pleasing and the desired effects. But when once these sound values are and have been ascertained there is practically no limit to novel and beautiful and artistic effects, and the musical composer, for instance, may find a new way of expressing his ideas and inspirations by novel combinations of notes and chords, and by sounds which no instrument or other means could produce."

In view of the foregoing it is interesting to note that a new device has just been completed by students at the University College in England, whereby vibrations and sounds of a talking machine record are by special means magnified and reproduced on a chart. It is claimed that by this device inventors are enabled to improve records by remedying any existing defects, and in this way procuring a perfect tone. On the chart appears an actual imprint of the recording of the music or voice sufficiently enlarged to enable one to study and analyze the movements of vibrations, and by the use of expert tools, such as are used in watch making and other minute high-grade work, to correct any defects which may exist.

It is asserted by record fans that this magnifying device would be invaluable in the recording laboratory because a great many records of great voices which may contain minor faults could be made perfect, and from them could be made a master or mother record from which others could be pressed, in this way securing the perfect record creation.

ORDERS CUT IN FREIGHT RATES

Average Reduction of 10 Per Cent to Be Effective July 1, Under Orders of Interstate Commerce Commission—A Big Saving

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—Under a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission railroad freight rates will be reduced on July first by amounts equal to 10 per cent of the present level.

Practically all classes and commodities of traffic are affected by the decision concluding the investigation begun last Autumn into the reasonableness of existing freight levels.

Agricultural products in all sections of the country outside of New England, live stock and Western grain and grain products are the chief commodities excluded from the reduction, these comprising the freight classifications recently reduced. Passenger charges and Pullman fares are left unchanged by the decision.

With its decision the Commission announces also its determination of 5.75 per cent as the reasonable annual return which carriers in the future will be entitled to earn on their actual capital investment. This compares with 6 per cent fixed under the Transportation Act for the period expiring March 1.

Railroads were required to signify to the Commission before May 31 whether they would voluntarily make new schedules or require the Commission to issue its detailed order for the alteration. The full weight of the Commission appeared to be thrown behind the statement made in the majority and controlling opinion that "general reduction in the rate level as substantial as the condition of the carriers will permit will tend to stabilize the conditions under which commerce and industry are carried on, with consequent fuller assurance to carriers of realizing a fair return."

On the statement of the Commission that rail freight revenues in 1921 approximated $4,000,000,000, to-day's decision will reduce the national freight bill by $400,000,000 per year.

AN ADVERTISING YARDSTICK

The four essentials of a good advertisement are defined by the Wales Advertising Agency, New York, as follows: First, it must attract attention; second, the first glance must arouse interest; third, it must be persuasive; fourth, it must determine action. This is a yardstick for measuring the worth of advertising, which is worth considering.

*Dealers Tie Up With Concerts—
Ernest L. Arthur With Elder-
Johnson Co.—Trade Activities*

COLUMBUS, O., June 3.—Announcement has just been made by the Women's Music Club of this city of the artist concert course to be presented during the next season and in that course it is gratifying to note that three Victor artists of the first magnitude have been engaged. They are Frances Alda, famous soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co.; Merle Alcock, American contralto, and John McCormack, the noted tenor.

It is of interest to show that all three of these artists have given concerts in this city before, and, in view of this fact, the general public is looking forward with pleasure to their appearance.

The local Victor dealers are co-operating with the Women's Music Club for the reason that they see a distinct advantage in having these great Victor artists here. Outstanding among the dealers who are helping to make this course a success is Heaton's Music Store, at 168 North High street. The seat sale is being conducted in the box office of this firm at the present time. Otto B. Heaton, president of the Heaton's Music Store, is also running large display advertisements of this course in the local newspapers. Mme. Frances Alda and her concert company will open the course on Friday evening, October 6. Merle Alcock appears during the second week in January. The course will be concluded with the appearance of John McCormack, who will sing here on the 19th of April.

Ernest L. Arthur, formerly of the Starr Piano Co., Indianapolis, Ind., has joined the Elder-Johnson Co. at Dayton, O. Mr. Arthur is an accomplished vocalist, having sung tenor roles at festivals given at Ann Arbor and Evansville, on which occasions he appeared on the program with Frieda Hempel. More recently he has been singing in the Jewish Temple in Indianapolis. Because of his thorough knowledge of music Mr. Arthur is very much interested in his work and the fact that he is in the Victrola department of the Elder-Johnson Co. is considered by him a splendid opportunity to serve his firm through his service to the public.

Don Johns, of the Johns Music Store, Lima, O., reports a steady increase in the sale of records to the schools. Practically all the schools are showing a marked improvement in their record libraries, according to Mr. Johns.

Through the generosity of the Elite Music Store, 211 South High street, the field day exercises in a number of the local public schools were made more attractive. Not only were machines loaned to some of the schools, but members in this firm's sales force worked in co-operation with the school teachers in picking out the appropriate records for the folk dances, drills and marches, which records also were loaned to the schools for these occasions. Perhaps it is because this firm is so ready and willing to assist the teachers in bringing music to the school rooms that it enjoys a large school trade. Harry Patton, general manager of the Elite Music Store, has also arranged the presentation of Victrola concerts in the Knickerbocker Theatre as a part of this theatre's program.

So well pleased was Frieda Hempel with the Z. L. White's Jenny Lind window display that before leaving Columbus, following her concert, she came in person to the talking machine department of this firm and thanked the attachés of the concern for it. She told members of the firm that in all the cities that she had visited she had not seen a window that was more artistically designed or that she liked better than that of the Z. L. White Co.

All the June records released by the Victor Talking Machine Co. will be offered in concert before the patrons of the Z. L. White Co. on Monday, June 5. A well-known vocal soloist will also be on the program. This is to be the third concert that Mr. Connor will have presented to the patrons of his firm. "Our customers are in the habit of looking forward to these concerts now. They find it a help in their selection of the new records and we are glad to let them know the records that are released," said Mr. Connor in commenting on these concerts.

Through the efforts of Phillips & Son, Victrola dealers, Mt. Gilead, O., approximately seventy rural schools have purchased Victrolas and records. These machines are being used in teaching music appreciation and folk dances.

During the past two years the Shakespeare Club of Kenton, O., has devoted a great deal of time to the study of music. In 1920 a course on the opera was taken by members of this organization. The following year this club studied the history of music. In this course the members used the book entitled "What We Hear in Music," which is published by the Victor Co. As a culminating feature of the club's progress

ASSISTANT TO SECRETARY HOOVER

David L. Wing Appointed to Take Charge of Trade Association Activities

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—David L. Wing, formerly with the Federal Trade Commission, has been appointed an assistant to Secretary of Commerce Hoover, and will be in charge of all the department's trade association activities. The announcement recently that the Department of Commerce was anxious to confer with all trade associations regarding co-operation in the gathering of statistics, information regarding foreign trade, etc., has resulted in a number of organizations asking for conferences, which the crowded calendar of the Secretary will not permit him to hold. He has, therefore, designated Mr. Wing to meet with the representatives of the associations and to work out with each association individually the method in which the organization and the department can co-operate with the best possible results.

Because of the different activities of the various associations, no formula can be devised for working out a program that will apply to all, and it will be necessary to do this association by association.

TRADE REVIVING, SAYS HARDING

Speaking Before Chamber of Commerce of the United States, President Urges Honesty in Business as a Vital Necessity to Success

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 3.—President Harding, speaking before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States here recently, declared that the country "at this very moment is on the threshold of a new era"; that business is reviving and the "country is finding itself."

The Government, he said, was greatly interested in restoration of normal world business and economic conditions and he added that there was no disposition on its part to hold aloof from other nations. American industry, however, he said, should not be destroyed to build up the commerce of other lands.

"If there is any one realization," he said, "which fixes itself more firmly than another in the mind of one charged with great responsibility it is the conviction that the business life of the Republic is the reflex of all its good fortunes. I think I can venture to say that commerce and civilization go hand-in-hand, and were it not for commerce there would be no civilization."

"From the viewpoint of one in authority and having responsibility comes another consideration. Commerce finds its place in all our considerations. Undoubtedly it had much to do with the bringing about of the World War and

I think I can say just as confidently that it was never once forgotten in the negotiation of peace. It is so inextricably associated with all we do that commerce is always foremost in the life of any people.

"While I am speaking very briefly I wish to speak for a commerce with a conscience.

"If I were to bring only one admonition to you I would like to charge you men and women of influence and responsibility with the task of eliminating from American commerce those who do not have conscience, whose conscienceless practices bring that criticism which sometimes attends our American activities.

"There is not an agency in American life which can so quickly put an end to abuses and offenses in American commerce as those who are conspicuous in the leadership of that commerce.

"At the very moment we are on the threshold of a new era. Undoubtedly there is more than a mere business revival in sight. Our country is finding itself again. We are fundamentally right and we do not intend ever to be discouraged for a long time.

"Business is reviving and we are soon to resume our onward sway.

"I know you are interested in world restoration. So is your Government. But I beg to remind you we must always be right at home before we can be very helpful abroad. We do not mean to hold aloof; we want to play a great nation's, aye, a great people's part in the world. I do not know of anything that would help more than to give the world an example of a commercial nation with an abiding conscience."

BANNER RECORD DEALERS' SERVICE

New Department Opened to Co-operate With Retailers in Arranging Window Displays, Advertising Campaigns, etc.

The Plaza Music Co., New York City, manufacturer of the Banner records, has opened a service department which will co-operate with retailers in arranging window displays and carrying out advertising campaigns. A series of advertising mats has just been forwarded to Banner dealers to be used in local papers and special dealer circular matter. These mats are of various sizes, making them available for either a small or large advertising appropriation. They include illustrated matter, publicity on current hits and general constructive copy. These mats are sent to the dealer free.

The window display service includes free multi-colored prints resembling oil paintings. They are most attractive and have the appearance and qualities which should make them available for any dealer's window. Full instructions are sent with each set and the designs, copy and titles are changed each month. In connection with the exploitation of Banner records, the Plaza Music Co. has copyrighted the name "Opera-Trots." This is a special series of dance records the themes of which are based upon famous operas. The arrangements, however, are most modern, carrying a snappy fox-trot rhythm. Since their original introduction last month the "Opera-Trot" records have made notable progress in the talking machine trade.

WHITEMAN PLAYS IN WOONSOCKET

Noted Orchestra Gives Concert in That City Under Auspices of LaRoe's Music Store

WOONSOCKET, R. I., June 1.—Paul Whiteman and his famous Palais Royal Orchestra gave a most successful concert at the Laurier Theatre, this city, recently under the auspices of LaRoe's Music Store, exclusive Victor dealer, who emphasizes strongly that the Whiteman Orchestra made the popular Victor dance records.

Earl J. LaRoe, proprietor of LaRoe's Music Store, has been instrumental in bringing a number of Victor artists to Woonsocket, among them Reinald Werrenrath, Lambert Murphy, Lucy Marsh, Charles Harrison, the All-Star Trio, the Eight Famous Victor Artists, etc., and as a result has increased the company's business to a most substantial degree. Naturally, he is among the optimistic ones regarding Fall trade.

Acting without thinking is like looking into the business end of a gun and pulling the trigger and trusting to Providence. The inquest usually follows, both in business and personal life.

DISCUSSES BRUNSWICK DEVELOPMENT

Interesting Article by D. M. Hubbard in Printers' Ink Tells of the Success of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. in Entering and Establishing Itself in the Phonograph Field

One of the feature articles in Printers' Ink for May 25 was entitled "New Hall of Fame of Music Rises Out of Bar Fixture Ashes," and referred at length to the success of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. in the talking machine field following prohibition and the dropping off in the demand for billiard equipment. The article was by D. M. Hubbard, who put the matter well when he said: "It is a far cry from bar fixtures to baritones," and who described most interestingly the progress of the Brunswick Co. in building a definite place for itself in the talking machine field and building up a catalog of record artists of international standing.

One of the most important features of the article was an interview with A. J. Kendrick, sales manager of the Phonograph Division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., who is quoted as saying:

"When we entered the phonograph field we had a ready-made jobbing organization in the form of a number of branch houses in different parts of the country. These had handled our line of billiard and bowling equipment for years and they simply added our phonographs and records. This condition led us to concentrate on the retailer, and let me say that the average retailer needs help in rolling selling obstacles out of his path. Fortunately, we have not had to push our line with the jobber and we have accordingly been able to give the dealer more time and help than many manufacturers.

"One of the first things we found out was that our line would become known by the company it kept—that is, by the dealers who handled it. That is a cardinal principle with us now. If we sign up a dealer who is asleep and unprogressive to represent us, we know that Brunswick phonographs and records will not get across in his territory. So we have picked dealers. We have never drafted them. We have recruited volunteers and we have always rejected more dealer applications than we have accepted.

"In working with the dealer we found that there was an immense field for education. We have had to sell dealers on advertising. We have had to teach them effective display methods. We had to determine what was the kind of booth in which the customer could best listen to Brunswick records and then get the dealer to install that kind. Some of our dealers felt that the phonograph market had about reached the saturation point. We sent out a man to study the field. The results of his investigations proved interesting and enlightening. For example, in and around Columbus, O., territory, his census showed that there were phonographs in only 23 per cent of the homes. That convinced us and the dealer as well that there was business still to be had for the man willing to supply what the remaining 77 per cent wanted.

"The Brunswick sales force has always encouraged and helped our dealers to advertise. And in working with them we have furnished the copy and cuts and shared their expense. But it has been our aim to have the retailer put his advertising on a schedule basis so that it would run systematically and regularly instead of simply now and then.

"As for the retailer, he has been willing to work with us because he has felt that we were doing our best to help put him on the map. For example, last year when values were changing we protected dealers when a number of new models which we were bringing out made old phonographs hard to move. We called in 15,000 old models, took them to our factories and rebuilt them, thereby pulling many a dealer out of a hazardous position. You can imagine what that did for dealer morale."

The person whose activities are not actuated by the divine discontent will not travel very far on the road to success.

VAN WICKLE OPENING CELEBRATED

Elaborate and Interesting Concerts Mark Formal Opening of New Washington Store

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 3.—The formal opening of the elaborate new store of the Van Wickle Piano Co., at 1222 F street, previously announced in The World, was celebrated most effectively during the middle of May with a concert at the company's store in the afternoon and evening, followed by an elaborate public concert in the Willard Room of the Willard Hotel, under the auspices of the Van Wickle Co., at which a number of prominent artists appeared, including Blanche DaCosta, soprano; Elizabeth Winston, pianist, and Henri Sokolov, tenor. Gertrude McRae Nash appeared as accompanist.

A feature of the concert was the presentation of the A. B. Chase reproducing piano, which reproduced the playing of Gabrielowitsch and other noted pianists. The instrument made a distinctly favorable impression.

For the formal opening the Van Wickle Building was profusely decorated on the outside with flags and bunting and on the interior with palms and baskets of cut flowers. Many floral pieces were sent by trade and personal friends of Mr. Van Wickle.

The concert at the store was given by Meyer Davis' New Willard Orchestra, which played both afternoon and evening. Selections were also played by the A. B. Chase reproducing grand, the Price & Teeple reproducing upright piano and the Victrola.

SATISFIED CUSTOMERS BOOM TRADE

There are many talking machine dealers who make it a point in their advertising to impress the public with the service they render. In many instances this so-called service is merely a myth, as the customer soon discovers to the harm of the merchant. If a statement of this sort is made the firm should back it up to the limit of its ability, because the satisfied customer is the best advertising which a business can receive.

ADVERTISING AS A TRADE SOLUTION

Wm. H. Rankin, Noted Publicity Specialist, Tells How Advertising Is More Necessary To-day to Manufacturers and Dealers Than Ever Before

Discussing the importance of advertising as one of the great factors in developing and stabilizing business, Wm. H. Rankin, the well-known advertising specialist, made the following remarks in the Chicago Journal of Commerce, which are well worthy of the consideration of those who have not given his viewpoint attention. He said:

"Nearly every business man is asking what can I do to help business and unemployment. Here is the remedy:

"Advertising is more necessary to-day to manufacturers and retailers than ever before. It can be used to help restore the proper balance of trade and produce more work through emptying the dealers' shelves. The sooner any business—and especially the retail business—is able to price its present inventories so that the public will rush in and buy the sooner salesmen will have an opportunity to get real substantial orders from the retailers.

"Orders from retailers will help the manufacturers make up their minds to help sell their goods to the consumer through advertising. Such advertising, provided the price and the quality of the merchandise is right, will help the retailer sell the consumer at less cost than through any other means.

"Consumer buying will help the retailer—when the retailers' shelves are cleared. Then the manufacturer's salesmen will have the opportunity not only to book orders for immediate delivery, but for future delivery as well. These orders will start the smoke in many factories which will give employment to thousands that are now unemployed—and to get to the seat of things—advertising can and will start this wheel of employment and prosperity if it is given the chance.

"I know of a half dozen instances where advertising is doing and has done during the last six months just what I have described in this article, and I will be glad to give names and show plans that have worked out successfully.

"When you stop to consider that an advertiser may use a national or local newspaper campaign at a cost of one-tenth of a cent for each home reached you can understand why newspaper advertising pays so well.

"If advertising can be used to restore proper buying by the consumer—and I know it can if properly used—then automatically the unemployment problem will be solved, and solved quickly.

"So let us all set about to see what we can do to help solve this unemployment problem by getting behind a campaign to help the retailers clear their shelves through energetic and persistent advertising and salesmanship, and thus create orders for the manufacturer, which, in turn, will put the unemployed to work."

A CLEVER USE OF THE POST CARD

QUINCY, ILL., June 6.—The Halbach-Schroeder Co., Brunswick dealer of this city, has evolved a clever stunt, which is proving effective in keeping his store before the public. At periodical intervals post-cards containing a picture of the store on one side are sent to customers. On the other side of the card are listed certain records which it is believed will interest the customers.

CHANGES IN NEW TARIFF BILL

Senate Finance Committee Reports Many Changes in Section Bearing Upon Talking Machines, Records and Supplies for the Trade

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5.—The new tariff bill, as prepared by the Senate Finance Committee, contains many changes of interest to talking machine and musical instrument dealers. The bill is now being considered by the Senate. Some of the provisions of vital interest to our trade are:

Phonographs, gramophones, graphophones and similar articles, and parts thereof, 30 per centum ad valorem.

Mica, unmanufactured, valued at not above 15 cents per pound, 4 cents per pound; valued above 15 cents per pound, 25 per centum ad valorem; mica, cut or trimmed, and mica splittings, 30 per centum ad valorem; mica plates, and built-up mica, and all manufactures of mica or of which mica is the component material of chief value, 40 per centum ad valorem; ground mica, 20 per centum ad valorem.

Felts, not woven, wholly or in chief value of wool, valued at not more than 50 cents per pound, 20 cents per pound and 30 per centum ad valorem; valued at more than 50 cents, but not more than $1.50 per pound, 30 cents per pound and 35 per centum ad valorem; valued at more than $1.50 per pound, 40 cents per pound and 40 per centum ad valorem.

Albums for phonograph records, wholly or partly manufactured, 35 per centum ad valorem (House Bill, 23 per centum).

The bill places the following on the free list: Music for educational purposes; discs of soft wax, commonly known as master records, or metal matrices obtained therefrom, for use in the manufacture of sound records for export purposes admitted free of duty under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; cedar, lignum vitae, lancewood, ebony, box, granadilla, mahogany, rosewood, satinwood, and cabinet woods, in the log, rough or hewn only.

The rates on graphite fixed by the Senate Finance Committee have been approved by the House and the Senate. The duties recommended by the Finance Committee consist of a 10 per cent ad valorem tax on amorphous graphite, 20 per cent on crystalline lump and 2 cents per pound on crystalline flakes.

Why You Should Sell Sonora Phonographs

Sonora's Tone

Baby Grand
$200

*The Highest Class Talking Machine
in the World*

Sonora has never surrendered its leadership in tone—nor has it ceased to develop and refine the perfection of tone with which it began.

The Sonora of today is vastly greater than the Sonora which won highest score for tone at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Such an instrument as the new Baby Grand—to mention only one of the many new models—is a miracle of clarity and naturalness never before equaled.

The more the great mass of phonograph buyers learn about phonographs and music, the more they believe that ultimate satisfaction lies in Sonora for its matchless tone.

To the dealer this prestige means less sales resistance and lower selling costs. And with Sonora quality taking new strides forward, Sonora prices are lower than they have ever been.

STARR PHONOGRAPH PRESENTS ITSELF TO BILLY SUNDAY

Over 1,000 Employees of Starr Piano Co. Attend Big Revival in Richmond When Starr Phonograph With Special Records by Rodeheaver Is Presented to Noted Evangelist

RICHMOND, IND., June 6.—The evening of Thursday, May 18, was "Starr Night" at the big tabernacle here where Billy Sunday, the noted evangelist, was holding one of his successful meetings, and over 1,000 employes of the Starr Piano Co. marched to the meeting in a body wearing appropriate ribbons with the Starr trade-mark thereon and carrying banners bearing inscriptions such as: "The Starr Piano Co.," "Starr Pianos," "Starr Phonographs" and "Gennett Records."

The main event of the evening was the presentation of a Style X Starr phonograph to Billy Sunday by the factory, the phonograph making its own presentation speech. A special Gennett record was made by Homer Rodeheaver, the Sunday choir leader, at the Starr recording laboratories at Richmond for the occasion and caused a great deal of surprise and comment. A special spruce horn four feet long was built and connected to the regular horn of the phonograph, so that the words of the presentation speech could be heard in the most remote corner of the great building. The instrument was played by Clarence Gennett, treasurer, and Fred Mayer, superintendent of the Starr factory.

The obverse side of the record bore a talk calling attention to the fact it was the first time a phonograph had ever presented itself to an individual, in commenting upon the manufacture and equipment that made such a feat possible. The reverse side reviewed in well-chosen words the development of the phonograph, how it had the magical power of invoking happiness and joy or sorrow and sadness. Its value in spreading the Gospel was also dwelt upon and, in closing, the record said: "Many a soul would rejoice and accept religion through my reproduction and many a family could be held together if I were allowed to speak out the truths of Christianity."

The reproduction of the special record aroused tremendous and prolonged applause and Mr. Sunday had difficulty in finding words to express his appreciation of the gift.

Gennett records of the tabernacle songs recently recorded at the Starr factory by Homer Rodeheaver were then played and enjoyed by the crowd. An interesting feature of this was the playing of one verse and chorus of various selections alternated with the singing of the same piece by Mr. Rodeheaver, much to the delight of the throng. The stage was decorated with several large baskets of irises presented to Mr. Sunday by the women of the Starr Piano Co.

BRUNSWICK DEALERS TRY NEW ONE

Sending Out Girl to Find Users of Brunswick Machines Stimulates Record Sales and Results in Considerable Publicity and Business

Dealers handling the Brunswick line of phonographs and records throughout the Philadelphia territory have adopted a new plan which is acting as a considerable stimulant in the sale of records and, in addition, is arousing keen interest in the Brunswick line.

The plan is to announce in the papers that between certain hours in the evenings a girl will call at residences and wherever she finds a Brunswick in use she will present the owner with a certificate which may be used to pay for a $2 purchase of Brunswick records in the dealer's store. Among the dealers who have operated this plan is M. J. Thorman, of Bangor, Pa., who states that winners of certificates often purchase more than the amount called for.

There can be no question but that sentiment is a great factor in making business. But keep in mind that advertising makes sentiment.

NEW VAN VEEN INSTALLATIONS

Handsome Equipment for Griffith Piano Co. in Newark—Lyons and Schwartz's Establishments Also Fitted Most Artistically

L. Tobias, secretary of Van Veen & Co., Inc., New York, points to the number of installations of wareroom equipment in process and completed by his firm as evidence of the revival of activity in the talking machine and piano business. Arrangements have just been completed by T. M. Griffith, of the Griffith Piano Co., of Newark, N. J., with Van Veen & Co. for the complete equipment of its establishment, including booths, record racks, ornamental screen fronts and other appointments.

The Griffith wareroom will rank without doubt among the most beautiful piano showrooms in the Eastern part of the United States. The decorations will be in the Louis XVI period, finished in ivory and blue. The walls will be laid out in panel effect and the Griffith Co. is sparing no expense in making it complete in every detail, such as rugs, furniture and other appointments. The Griffith Co. will feature the Steinway piano in this store and also Sonora phonographs.

Van Veen & Co. have recently completed a very handsome Sonora establishment for Mrs. Margaret F. Lyons, 306 Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., and also will equip a complete Colvan department for the Schwartz Bros. Furniture Co., in Norwich, Conn. The Schwartz department will consist of four large hearing rooms, approximately running from 9 by 9 to 9 by 15, and complete record department.

CAMPAIGNING FOR BUSINESS

BLUEFIELD, W. VA., June 1.—The Lemkuhl-Shepherd Co., Victor retailer of this city, is using energetic methods to develop business. A Ford truck was purchased last week and a house-to-house canvass and demonstration in the surrounding country will be made.

DEATH OF JOHN L. SPILLANE

Secretary of Collings & Co., Newark, Passes Away Suddenly as Result of Operation—Widely Known in Talking Machine Industry

The death of John L. Spillane, secretary and sales manager of Collings & Co., Victor jobbers of Newark, N. J., which occurred on Thursday, May 18, at St. Mary's Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., from blood poisoning following a cut on the arm incurred while working in the garden at his home, was a severe shock to his large circle of friends in the metropolitan district and New Jersey.

Mr. Spillane was one of the best-known members of the Victor trade. For many years he was associated with the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, holding the position of assistant secretary with that important concern.

With the reorganization of Collings & Price, under the direction of L. W. Collings, and the forming of Collings & Co., Inc., he was induced to join this organization. He was generally recognized as one of the foremost authorities on Victor distribution, particularly as applied to records, having specialized on the development and growth of that department.

It is indeed with regret that the host of friends which Mr. Spillane had in the trade will learn of his unexpected death. He was a man who possessed those admirable traits of character that endeared him to all with whom he had business or social relations and who admired him for his broad sympathies and desire to help his fellow man.

The funeral services were held at the family residence, 376 Madison street, Brooklyn, on Saturday morning, followed by requiem mass at the Church of Our Lady of Victory, the interment being in Calvary Cemetery. Among those from the trade attending were Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Collings, Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Lamor, Fred P. Oliver, George E. Thau, Mr. Pavie, of the Chalmers Music Co.; Mr. Millard, of the Ridgewood Talking Machine Co., Ridgewood, N. J.; Hugo Traeger, Sr., of Stapleton, Staten Island, and George Hirtzel, of Elizabeth, N. J.

Mr. Spillane is survived by his widow, three sons, John, James, Charles, and a daughter, Catherine.

Special Window for Virginian Historical Pageant—Schwoebel Reports Business Improvement—R. C. Gentry's New Post in Wholesale

RICHMOND, VA., June 6.—The Virginian Historical Pageant held here during the week of May 22 was appropriately marked by many excellent window displays.

One of the most attractive was that of the Corley Co., Victor wholesaler, of this city. The Corley window represented a cotton field, real earth and plants being used. This formed the setting for featuring the Red Seal record of "Carry Me Back to Ol' Virginny," sung by Alma Gluck.

F. W. Schwoebel, in charge of the Victor wholesale department, recently completed a trip through the Southern States. He states that crops look good and that the Victor retailers expect a marked improvement in business.

The Corley Co. announces the appointment of R. C. Gentry to the wholesale sales staff. He has had a number of years of retail experience and is well fitted for his new duties.

STOP SENDING MAIL TO DEAD ONES

Some Excellent Advice on Avoiding the Wasting of Supplements Offered by Victor Co.

To talking machine dealers who make a practice of developing business through the means of a live mailing list the Victor Talking Machine Co. in a recent circular letter offered the following excellent business advice:

"One of the best ways to stop duplication in mailing lists is to stop sending the supplements to the Victrola owner who is not patronizing your store.

"Your time and effort and our time and effort, to say nothing of the money involved, are deliberately wasted when you continue to send the supplement to the customer who does not respond—who fails to come to your store for the new records.

"The monthly supplement produces business in direct proportion to the amount of intelligent effort made to place it in the hands of customers buying from your store. But the finest piece of sales literature ever written will fail to fulfill its mission if it is distributed in a haphazard manner."

MAKES EXHIBIT DURING PALMA FESTA

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 1.—J. L. Mimnaugh, Victor retailer of this city, had a striking exhibit at the Palma Festa, held here recently in Exhibition Hall. In addition to the merchandise well-displayed operatic figures in costume drew much attention.

Edison "tone test" recitals given in a number of Southern cities by Elizabeth Spencer, soprano; Jacques Glockner, 'cellist, and Emil Bertl, pianist, were received with enthusiasm by Edison dealers and the public in Georgia, South Carolina, Florida and Tennessee, the States covered by the tour. The concerts were instrumental in arousing the interest of the public in the Edison, and the mood change charts, prepared at the music research department of the Edison laboratories, also came in for considerable attention.

TALKING MACHINE MEN TALK RADIO

Subject Discussed at Length at Monthly Session—M. P. Campbell Makes Address—New Committees Appointed—Ball and Entertainment to Be Held in October

The regular monthly meeting of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization composed of progressive talking machine dealers of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, was held at the Café Boulevard, New York City, on May 17, and as usual, the meeting proper was preceded by a luncheon.

An unusually large attendance was on hand and the important subject of the day relating to radio and its relationship to the music dealer was freely discussed. Max Landay, of Landay Bros.; M. Max, of Gimbel Bros., and Sol Lazarus, well-known New York talking machine dealer, all of whom have stocked radio apparatus, treated the subject in a way that was most enlightening to their hearers.

It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that the present rate of discount given to the dealers by radio manufacturers did not justify the stocking of such goods, although it was generally admitted that these discounts would be increased shortly. Most of the dealers seemed to be under the impression that radio was a permanent proposition and that it behooved the dealer to give it attention. Some even suggested that the goods should be stocked even with the low discounts and await the further development of that industry.

There was some discussion on what is the matter with business and ways and means of improving conditions.

The committee empowered to investigate the radio situation and report back at the June meeting was appointed and was composed of M. Max, Henry S. Conn and H. Goldfinger. The following were added to the membership of the Association by unanimous consent: Jack Bliss, of the United States Music Co.; Cheney Sales Corp., Musical Products Distributing Co. and Schliecher & Sons.

Mark P. Campbell, the well-known piano manufacturer, was the guest of the Association and made an address in which he reviewed the work of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and its ally, the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music. His remarks were well received, and while some members of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., are already members of the National Association of Music Merchants, there seemed to be an indication of additional members joining, in order, as they ex-

SERVICE AND THE SALES FORCE

We will have reached the millennium when everybody wakes up to the fact that he is a salesman, and that the price he gets for his service is potentially influenced by one of the same laws that so largely regulate the sale of merchandise, namely, that the price is very largely regulated by the quantity and quality of the goods delivered, "I'm not paid for doing that" never made good goods in the way of service. "I'm earning my salary now, and I'll be blessed if I will do any more," never brought a raise.

The man who is always looking to see how little service he can render never becomes a master salesman, and that's what every man in the commercial world to-day should strive to be—a master salesman; for a master salesman is a master business builder, and the master business builder is the architect of a nation's commercial greatness.

Plaza Music Co. Announces New Portable Model to Be Known as the "Pal"

The Plaza Music Co., 18 West Twentieth street, New York City, recently placed on the market a new portable phonograph which carries the trade name of "Pal" and will retail at a popular price. The case is delivered finished in either walnut or mahogany, as desired. It is a small compact machine, weighing about twenty pounds, plays all makes of records and has a special sounding board.

The sales department of the Plaza Music Co. looks forward to a heavy demand for portable machines throughout the Summer months; in fact, they are using the slogan: "This is a portable year," in all their advertising material. Special literature to assist the dealer in selling this new portable machine has been issued by the company.

Only 50 Cents

The Talking Machine World Trade Directory has filled a long standing want of the industry. It is kept as a handy reference volume on the desks of a large number of the members of the talking machine industry where, in an instant, it provides detailed knowledge about this or that company and the products made by each company.

It gives the kind of information it would otherwise consume much time to secure. For instance, it will give you a complete up-to-date list of the manufacturers and jobbers who comprise the talking machine industry, including the invaluable data about each concern, such as location of factories, names of officers, location of branch offices, trade names controlled, policy of marketing product, etc., etc.

HERE IS WHAT SUBSCRIBERS SAY:

"Your 1922 Model Talking Machine World Trade Directory reached us all right, and the writer went over it carefully yesterday at his home, and we wish to compliment you. There has never been a Trade Directory got up that has been so accurate as regards firms listed and that has covered the field so thoroughly.

"There is no question but that this Directory will prove of real, tangible benefit, not only to its advertisers and those who are listed in same, but to the general dealer trade at large, who have needed a directory of just this nature."

"We congratulate you on the appearance of The Talking Machine World Trade Directory and trust that you will make it a yearly feature of your business.

"We could use two more copies of this publication in our organization to great advantage, therefore request that you send them to us, proper billing.

"Just before closing wish to state that we consider the move on your part of issuing a directory of the talking machine industry as being one of the most forward movements occurring in the industry for several years."

COLUMBIA NEWS FROM LOS ANGELES

Many New Accounts Opened—Percy Grainger Enthusiastically Received—Dealers Using Extensive Publicity—New Representatives Chosen

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 3.—There has been considerable activity in Columbia circles during the past few weeks, and among the important events was the opening of a new exclusive Columbia store by Samuel Lavatt and John Cooper. This store, which was opened at 229 West Second street, is one of the most attractive retail establishments in this city, and the clientele is already under way of development. Mr. Lavatt has been in the real estate business for some time past, and Mr. Cooper is the owner of Cooper's Melody Shop, exclusive Columbia dealer, at 432-A South Broadway, in this city. The name of the store will be the Los Angeles Phonograph & Record Co., and it will be managed by Mr. Lavatt personally, Mr. Cooper continuing to manage his other store. Mr. Cooper, in addition to being a Columbia dealer, is a very well-known songwriter, having to his credit such successes as "Do You Ever Think of Me?", "In Siam," and "Have You Forgotten?"

The Norma Talmadge picture, "Smilin' Through," which ran recently at the Kinema Theatre in this city, created quite a sensation, and the local Columbia dealers tied up very strongly with it. Nearly every city dealer carried a complete window display featuring the photoplay and the "Smilin' Through" record by Oscar Seagle. An added feature was the broadcasting by wireless from the Kinema Theatre broadcasting station of the Oscar Seagle record, and the playing of the record at the Los Angeles Athletic Club on a special machine which had a screen in the mouth of the tone chamber, on which a portion of the picture was projected at the same time that the record was played.

A new Columbia account, the International Music Co., located at 229 West Third street, opened its door recently. Mr. Van Grove, the proprietor, also controls the International Music Co., 124 West Second street. Columbia Grafonolas will be handled exclusively, together with a line of pianos at both stores.

Percy Grainger, the famous pianist and exclusive Columbia artist, received a warm welcome in Southern California on the occasion of his recent concert appearance here, particular effort being made by Elliott's Music Shop, 216 Pine avenue, Long Beach, Cal. Mr. Grainger appeared personally at this store in the afternoon of the day of the concert, autographing all of his records that were sold during his stay. After his personal appearance Mr. Elliott entertained Mr. Grainger, Mr. Mills, local concert manager, and H. J. Allen, of the Columbia sales staff, at dinner at the Hotel Virginia at Long Beach.

A new exclusive Columbia dealer opened recently at Huntington Park, Cal., consisting of the firm of Elliott & Youmans. The latter has been for some time associated with Mr. Elliott in a sales capacity and enters the new store as a full-fledged partner.

bia dealer, at 620 South Main street, Los Angeles, has opened with the Selected Dealers' Grafonola Newspaper Campaign, series number one, and from the first advertisement sold forty-two instruments. They expect at least 250 sales from the entire campaign.

A new Columbia dealer, the Inglewood Music Store, has opened in Inglewood, and Arthur Domasch, the proprietor, is also owner of the San Pedro Furniture Co., San Pedro, Cal. Columbia Grafonolas are carried exclusively at both locations.

The Italian Jewelry Co., 205 North Spring street, Los Angeles, has opened with a complete line of Columbia Grafonolas and records exclusively. This company caters to the Italian trade, and in addition to its jewelry and phonograph business conducts the largest Italian newspaper in this city.

A wireless broadcasting station has been installed at El Monte, Cal., and daily concerts are being given at which Columbia records are used exclusively. This is an achievement on the part of A. D. Bassett, proprietor of the El Monte Music Shop, exclusive Columbia dealer at El Monte, Cal.

A. E. Stuelke, owner of Stuelke-Fullerton Music Shop, Fullerton, Cal., has opened a new store at Corona, Cal., which will be called Stuelke-Corona Music Shop. The owners are Albert E. Stuelke and Wm. H. Haaf, who has been associated with Mr. Stuelke for some time in a sales capacity. Columbia records and Grafonolas are carried exclusively at both of these stores.

The interior finish of the store and all the decorations are in a rich shade of old ivory. Demonstration booths for talking machines line one side of the store, while facing them are the record racks. The piano stock is in the rear. A number of manufacturers and jobbers took occasion to express their good-will for the success of the venture through the medium of handsome floral pieces.

The accompanying photograph affords some idea of the general arrangement of this new establishment.

Convention of Southern Victor Dealers

Most Successful and Best Attended Convention of This Association Held at Mobile May 16-18—W. H. Reynolds Officiates as Host—Unusually Effective Sales Talks and Addresses—Governor Harding Guest at Banquet—J. V. Dugan Elected President for Coming Year—Many Visitors From Far Distant Points

MOBILE, ALA., June 5.—The fourth annual convention of the Southern Victor Dealers' Association, held in this city on May 16 to 18, was by far the most successful held in the history of this Association. There were almost one hundred official registrations at the Cawthon Hotel, headquarters of the convention, establishing a new record for attendance.

W. H. Reynolds, Victor jobber of this city, was the official host for this year's convention and he carried out his duties with typical Southern hospitality and good cheer. On Tuesday morning, May 16, when the convention preliminaries were scheduled for settlement, the members of the executive committee were all on hand, together with several out-of-town guests and jobbers' representatives from nearby points. Mr. Reynolds took charge of the party at noontime and after luncheon was served they were conveyed by automobiles through Mobile, visiting the many points of interest in this famous Southern city. Arriving at "Minnehaha Farm," Mr. Reynolds' Summer home, the visitors were amazed at the beauty and size of his farm, which has over 3,000 orange trees—one of the show places in this section. At 7 o'clock in the evening the entire party were Mr. Reynolds' guests at a shore dinner, served at the Alba Hunting and Fishing Club, on Dog River, one of the famous scenic spots of Alabama.

Wednesday Morning Session

The convention formally opened on Wednesday morning in the auditorium of the Cawthon Hotel, when Mayor Crawford, of Mobile, made an address of welcome, handing the visitors the "key to the city." Gordon E. Smith, president of the Mobile Chamber of Commerce, followed the Mayor in extending to the Association a most hearty welcome. Both of these speakers congratulated the Association and the talking machine industry upon having such an able and popular representative in Mobile as Wm. H. Reynolds. B. B. Burton, of the Cable-Shelby-Burton Piano Co., Birmingham, Ala., responded to the addresses in behalf of the Association.

Wm. H. Reynolds

Subsequent to the annual reports of the president, secretary and treasurer, the business meetings were opened with R. G. Brice, Charlotte, N. C., president of the Association, occupying the chair. The first paper, entitled the "Voice of the Victor," was read by J. A. Hofheinz, manager of the wholesale Victor department of Philip Werlein, Ltd., New Orleans, La., who pointed out in an interesting, practical way just how the "Voice of the Victor" could be used to splendid advantage by the Victor dealers.

Under the heading of "The Problem of Trade-ins" W. G. Quinn, of Adam Glass & Co., Mobile, Ala., furnished the dealers with plenty of food for thought. Mr. Quinn treated his subject from two angles: First, when the customer desires to trade in a machine other than a Victrola and, second, when the prospective purchaser wishes to trade in a small Victrola to apply on the purchase of a larger-type instrument. William Humes, of the Humes Music Co., Columbus, Ga., followed Mr. Quinn with a paper entitled "Why I Am an Exclusive Victor Dealer." The Humes Music Co. is one of the best-known music houses in the South and Mr. Humes' paper was followed carefully by those in attendance.

Martin L. Pierce, research and promotion manager of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co., Canton, O., was the principal speaker at the Wednesday morning session, closing the meeting with an inspiring talk, entitled "If I Were a Victor Dealer." Mr. Pierce is recognized nationally as one of the foremost exponents of the most efficient methods of merchandising, and in his important capacity as research and promotion manager of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co. has attained phenomenal results. For many years Mr. Pierce has been keenly interested in Victor activities and has made a careful study of the Victor industry, particularly in connection with efficient and productive merchandising. His address was one of the convention features and at the close of his talk Mr. Pierce was given a rising vote of thanks for the practical and valuable suggestions that he had given the Association.

Wednesday Afternoon Meeting

The convention assembled at 2 o'clock on Wednesday, when the meeting was opened by J. V. Dugan, of the Dugan Piano Co., New Orleans, La., on the subject of "Interest Charges." As one of the leading Victor merchants in the South Mr. Dugan was well qualified to handle this interesting topic and at the close of his talk there was a general discussion by the members, which brought out many important points. J. D. Moore, manager of the Victor department of the Maison Blanche Co., New Orleans, La., followed Mr. Dugan with a talk on "Record Stocks." Mr. Moore divided his subject into five parts: First, systems of ordering and moving stock in order to get the proper percentage of turnover; second, advisability of carrying a representative stock; third, value of catalog numbers, as compared with supplement records; four, building up Red Seal trade; five, selling records on the club plan. Mr. Moore's extensive experience in the Victor industry provided him with facts and figures on this topic that were keenly appreciated by every one present.

J. B. Gressett, of the A. Gressett Music House, Meridian, Miss., read a paper on "Go Out and Get 'im," his talk living up to its title in a most convincing fashion. The main speaker of the Wednesday afternoon session was J. J. Davin, secretary of the Reincke-Ellis Co., Chicago, who gave an excellent discourse, entitled "Questions Victor Dealers Ask Reincke-Ellis." "Jimmy," as he is popularly known in the Victor industry throughout the country, was in splendid form at this particular meeting and furnished the dealers with a series of practical, informative ideas regarding advertising and publicity plans that were based on his many years' experience in the Victor industry. His talk was enthusiastically applauded and at the close of the meeting Mr. Davin gave an impromptu discussion anent dealer advertising and publicity, in response to the inquiries of many of the dealers.

The Annual Association Banquet

On Wednesday evening the fourth annual banquet of the Association was held in the "Vineyard" on top of the Cawthon Hotel. A delightful dinner was served and a number of informal addresses were made, the speakers including W. G. P. Harding, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank; Wm. H. Armbrrecht, a prominent Mobile attorney; John G. Paine, of the Victor Talking Machine Co.; M. L. Pierce and J. J. Davin. The banquet was entirely informal and was one of the high spots of the convention program.

The various addresses were enthusiastically received, particularly the talk by Governor Harding, who is recognized internationally as one of the world's foremost financial authorities. In his address, Governor Harding suggested to the talking machine dealers that they take their local bankers into their confidence, and co-operate with them in every possible way. This is the first time that Governor Harding has ever attended a talking machine function, and W. H. Reynolds was congratulated in securing this famous banker as one of the speakers at the dinner.

Thursday Business Session

On Thursday morning the business meetings were resumed with a talk by E. W. Wilson, Jr., of the Collins Piano Co., New Orleans, La., on "Closer Co-operation Between Competitive Deal-

Winning Confidence

By giving Victor dealers in this territory helpful, constructive service, we have won their confidence and friendship; an invaluable asset for any distribution.

The fall of 1922 promises to be one of the greatest seasons in Victor history, and Southern Victor dealers will find our organization splendidly equipped to give them the type of service that will produce tangible results.

The Sail Down the Bay

On Thursday afternoon the entire convention party assembled at the docks, where they boarded the "Bay Queen," a good-sized steamer, which had been chartered by "Bill" Reynolds. All the way down the bay the dancing devotees had plenty of time to exercise their favorite sport, while some of the boys tried to prove that "naturals" were merely incidents and not necessities. The boat landed at "Fair Hope," where a large Victor dog extended a welcome to the convention party. It was announced that dinner would be served at 5:30 and during the intervening hour the swimming enthusiasts decided to test out the famous waters of Mobile Bay. Jimmy Davin gave a diving exhibition that was ers." Mr. Wilson covered this topic thoroughly and carefully, pointing out that co-operation and not competition is the life of business to-day, showing the dealers ways and means by which competing dealers may get together to their mutual advantage. W. R. Lewis, of the Elyea Talking Machine Co., Atlanta, Ga., appealed to the dealers to have maximum faith in the product they are handling, complete confidence in the factory making the goods and to work together in every possible way. Mr. Lewis pointed out the advantages of the new types of horizontal Victrolas, urging the dealers to give the new product everything possible in the way of co-operation and stimulation. On the subject of "Resale Selling" Mr. Pierce again provided the Association with a powerful and effective address, giving the dealers important statistics on the trend of business, and emphasizing how sales efficiency could be intensively developed.

Wm. H. Reynolds was called upon for a brief address, and, although he insisted with characteristic modesty that he had not prepared a talk, he was still able to furnish the dealers with one of the most inspiring addresses of the convention. Mr. Reynolds was followed by French Nestor, of the French Nestor Co., Jacksonville, Fla., the newest entrant in the Victor Southern field. Mr. Nestor, who is widely known throughout the Victor industry, having been associated with the Standard Talking Machine Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., for a number of years, recently acquired the Florida Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber. He was given an enthusiastic ovation by the convention visitors and responded with a message of appreciation of the cordial reception extended.

John G. Paine, of the Victor Talking Machine Co., was the main speaker at the Thursday morning meeting and in the course of his address gave the dealers interesting facts, based on the practical knowledge of every phase of Victor retail merchandising. Mr. Paine cited as an example the success attained by one enterprising Victor dealer who had made a conscientious study of his business. Incorporated in this part of Mr. Paine's address were vital, practical sales suggestions that could be used to advantage by Victor dealers everywhere. Mr. Paine emphasized the necessity of all the dealers carrying a representative stock of records and a representative stock of machines. He illustrated how record sales had been stimulated by the particular dealer he had in mind and how the most minute details of this dealer's activities were subject to careful consideration and thought. Mr. Paine's address was received with tremendous applause and he was personally congratulated by all of the members of the Association upon the logic and practical merit of the suggestions he had offered them.

New Officers Elected

After Mr. Paine's address, Mr. Brice announced that the Association had elected the following officers for the coming year: President, John V. Dugan, of the Dugan Piano Co., New Orleans, La.; vice-president, Dan Orndorff, Knoxville Music Co., Knoxville, Tenn.; secretary, E. W. Wilson, Collins Piano Co., New Orleans,

Real Constructive Work

TALKING machines today are sold not only on their intrinsic merits, but also on their tendency to harmonize with surrounding furniture in homes that reflect the owners' taste. Mahogany-made machines embody the discriminating genius of such master furniture builders as Chippendale, Sheraton, Hepplewhite and others.

Far-seeing furniture manufacturers have fostered and cultivated the public's pride in correct house appointments. Two long steps in the right direction have been taken toward placing their business on a sound, healthy basis. The National Council of Furniture Associations has published standards that should govern dealings between Manufacturers and Dealers in Furniture.

— and the Associated Advertising Clubs, after conferences with Manufacturers and Dealers in Furniture, has established standards that should govern in the Retailers' relations with the Public.

Both standards are so much alike as to indicate a genuine desire to protect and foster the confidence upon which all good business rests, and the Mahogany Association tenders its hearty congratulations upon the results achieved.

enthusiastically received, especially as Mr. Davin is recognized as one of the foremost diving experts in the Victor industry.

When dinner was served it was noticed that a jazz orchestra had been provided by Mr. Reynolds, and during the course of the dinner the latest Victor hits were served as music for the dancers. The orchestra also provided music subsequent to the close of the dinner and was induced to join the party on the "Bay Queen" for the trip back to Mobile. It was a tired but happy party of conventioners who reassembled at the Cawthon Hotel before the final good-byes were in order. Mr. Reynolds was given three cheers and a tiger for the tireless efforts he had made in behalf of the Association, and for the wonderful entertainment that he had provided for their stay at Mobile. All of the dealers were unanimous in stating that this year's convention had furnished them with a greater number of practical ideas than they believed could ever be presented at any convention.

Bokaz and Brikbatz

The pre-convention ceremonies were held Tuesday night in the park in front of the hotel. There was a convenient railing around the fountain so that all catastrophes were avoided.

John G. Paine, of the Victor Talking Machine Co., was with "the boys" at all times. He not only provided the most important address on the program, but participated in the aquatic events, danced with all the fair members of the party and proved himself an "all-around good fellow."

Where was "Jimmy" Davin when the boat pulled out? Possibly he was arranging for a special course in advertising for some of his friends down South.

"Bob" McDavid, secretary of the Association, was unable to attend the convention because of serious illness in his family. He was greatly missed, as he is one of the most popular members of the Association.

Governor W. G. P. Harding, of the Federal Reserve Bank, recalled the fact that he purchased the first Victrola XVI to be sold in the city of Birmingham, mentioning, incidentally, that the instrument was still in service.

Messrs. Hofheinz and Clapperton, of Philip Werlein, Ltd., were very quiet during the convention proceedings, but their friends feel sure that they know the reason.

One of the features of the convention was the wonderful window display at the Reynalds Music House. The “Consecration” scene from “Aida” had been worked out in every detail by Robert Fee, of the Reynalds staff.

“Bill” Lewis, of the Elyea Talking Machine Co., wired home for money. It was forwarded with the suggestion that hereafter he carry his own instead of depending on Mobile African wonders.

One of the most enthusiastic convention visitors was Mrs. Ned Wilson, of New Orleans. When she wasn't renewing old acquaintances or making new friends, she was always to be found on the dance floor.

HEMPEL SINGS IN THE CHOIR

Sings in Christ Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.—Closes Busy Season and Sails for Europe

Frieda Hempel, exclusive Edison artist, celebrated Mother's Day by singing in Christ Church, Brooklyn. A special service marked the eighty-seventh anniversary of the church. Miss Hempel sang an old English vesper hymn, “I Know That My Redeemer Liveth,” from the “Messiah,” and joined the surplice choir in the “Inflamatus” from “Stabat Mater,” and the regular hymns. Robert Gaylor, organist and musical director of the church, played Miss Hempel's wedding march four years ago. He is also a phonograph impresario of great renown, being the Gatti-Cassaza of Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

Frieda Hempel closed her season of more than seventy appearances at the Ann Arbor May Festival, as soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, on May 19. She sailed on the “Aquitania” on Tuesday, May 23, for a five months' trip abroad.

The prima donna will sing in Albert Hall, London, on June 11. Later she goes to Copenhagen, where her debut last year caused such a furore, for a number of concerts. Later she will go up in the Engadine, near St. Moritz, her favorite mountain resort, to follow the trails for a month. In September she will appear in “The Rosenkavalier” at the Royal Opera, Budapest. The King of Sweden has invited Miss Hempel to sing in Stockholm on October 6, the 102nd birthday of Jenny Lind.

Industrial Improvement Helps Talking Machine Trade—How the Aeroplane Played Its Part—Sherman-Clay Picnic—Live News of the Trade

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., June 5.—Industrial conditions on the Coast have improved materially in the last month, but the effect of this as yet has not been felt very much in retail lines. The labor unions have been urging their members to economize on living expenses for a long time, and the effect of such propaganda is naturally felt in the music trade more keenly than in many other lines, but at the same time when the purchasing power of the people increases their desire to spend increases in proportion. The Shriner convention to be held in June will bring in millions of dollars to the city, and this will also help to stimulate the demand for musical merchandise. The outlook is anything but discouraging in the talking machine field.

Annual Sherman, Clay & Co. Picnic

The second annual picnic of the Northern California employes of Sherman, Clay & Co. was held on May 28 at Kendall-Dell. The picnic was under the auspices of the company's employes' association, and members came from this city, Oakland, Vallejo, Santa Rosa, Stockton, Sacramento and other places. The barbecue luncheon was engineered by Billy Morton, manager of the retail talking machine department of the company in San Francisco. Billy is a famous amateur chef as well as an expert master of ceremonies. The diversions were dancing, eating, games and hiking two by two. A large part of the company was transported to the picnic grounds in the large Sherman, Clay & Co. piano trucks fitted up with seats. Picnic Committee—Harry Anderson, Henry Rassmussen, Charles F. Moore and Miss E. Ireland.

Miss F. Mattern Is Promoted

Miss F. Mattern, who has been with the Newberry Electric Co., on Sutter street, since the new store with the talking machine department was opened several months ago, has succeeded to the management of the talking machine department in place of Mr. McKellers, who resigned two weeks ago. The department handles the Sonora line and is enjoying a ready sale on Vocalion records.

Passing of Morley Somers

The death of Morley Somers, manager of the Phonograph Shop, 109 Stockton street, this city, recently, while not altogether unexpected in view of his late illness, nevertheless came as a shock to his many friends in the music trade. Mr. Somers was respected alike for his personal qualities and his business ability. He was one of those rare souls who make friends, keep them and at the same time do not neglect the work of making a success of their business. He was forty-six years of age and is survived by a widow and a son. For a number of years Mr. Somers represented the Victor Co. as a traveling salesman, and before coming to San Francisco was with Frederick & Nelson, of Seattle, Wash. While with the Sonora Co. he was active both in the retail and wholesale departments and was held in the highest esteem by his late employers.

Emporium Celebrates Birthday

Last week was the twenty-sixth birthday anniversary of The Emporium, and the event was duly celebrated by a special sale in all departments. The talking machine department won the prize for the largest attendance in proportion to the size of the department and was given a dinner of honor by the management. Charles Mauzy, the manager, was congratulated for his work in promoting public interest in talking machine merchandise.

Porter Visits Dealers in Aeroplane

There is nothing slow about the business methods of P. S. Kantor, the local manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., and this fact is fully appreciated by Robert Porter, field sales manager of the Columbia Co., who is at present making a tour of the Coast territory. Mr. Kantor is a professional aviator with a war record, and he still clings to the aeroplane, making frequent business trips to California cities via the air route. He carried Mr. Porter as a passenger on a trip to visit the Columbia dealers in the Sacramento Valley, and the much-traveled sales manager protests that the aeroplane is the most enjoyable means of transportation he has yet experienced.

W. Hamilton a Visitor

W. Hamilton, traveling Victor factory man, is in San Francisco for a stay of several weeks, during which he will have a series of heart-to-heart talks with the dealers on salesmanship and other topics kindred to business efficiency. He will also call on the trade throughout the State.

G. R. Hughes to Attend Convention

George R. Hughes, secretary of the Wiley B. Allen Co., is in the East on a business trip and will attend the Piano Merchants' Convention while in New York. J. J. Black, treasurer of the company, expects to accompany the Shriners on their trip to the Hawaiian Islands after the national Shriner conclave to be held in San Francisco in June.

News Brieflets

Henry Hauschildt, of the Hauschildt Music Co., has left for a business and pleasure trip to New York with his family.

Sherman, Clay & Co. are increasing the facilities of their store at Vallejo, Cal., by adding some new demonstration rooms for talking machine records.

Sherman, Clay & Co. are featuring radio concerts this month. Concerts are given daily from

Plans Second Columbia Ad. Campaign

So successful was the first advertising campaign run by the Eastern Outfitting Co. on Columbia Grafonolas and records that plans have been made for a second campaign which will cover 756 inches of advertising in the local papers. Mr. Sireoty, of the Eastern Outfitting Co., reports phenomenal sales. In fact, he advises that he has sold more Grafonolas in the last two months than he sold during the year 1921. This has started quite a few of the country dealers running the second campaign in order to tie up the campaign that is being run in the city. Dealers in the San Francisco territory who have recently taken on the campaign are as follows: Steinhouse & Eaton, Watsonville; Blue Bird Drug Co., San Mateo; Martin Music Shop, Palo Alto, and the Hartley Hardware Co., Mt. View.

Dealers Interested in New Grafonolas

The introduction of the new Columbia portable is being received with a great deal of interest on the Coast, and many orders have already been sent in for a stock of these machines. The new console type Grafonolas which Columbia distributors are exhibiting, but which have not been placed on the market as yet, are also arousing considerable interest among the dealers, who eagerly await distribution.

Mr. Steel recently appeared in a concert at the Akron Armory, under the auspices of the Windsor-Poling Co., which earlier in the year presented three other celebrated artists in concerts.

SALES COURSE FOR VICTOR DEALERS IN WASHINGTON

Most Resultful Gathering of Victor Dealers in the Nation's Capital, All of Whom Enjoy F. A. Delano's Constructive Talks as Well as the Hospitality of the Local Jobbers

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5.—A four days' sales course for Victor retailers was held at the City Club here beginning May 22, under the direction of F. A. Delano, of the Victor Talking Machine Co. This course was the regular Red Seal course, usually given at the factory in Camden, but in a slightly condensed version.

A good proportion of the dealers in the territory were present and much interest and enthusiasm was manifested from start to finish. An added feature of the course which caused considerable interest was a buying and selling contest staged by the dealers attending. The contest drew forth many interesting angles on salesmanship and was intensely instructive. The judges consisted of the executives of the various Victor distributing houses located in Washington:

boro, N. C.; L. E. Rice, Rice's Music Store, Winchester, Va.; R. A. Sloop, People's Home Furnishing Co., Mooreville, N. C.; Robert L. Shipley, Storm & Shipley, Frederick, Md.; D. E. Odom, Bennettsville, S. C. Washington was represented by the Misses Florence and Rebecca Gordon, S. Gordon Music Co.; Mrs. Barbara Mushake, Wm. Mushake; Miss M. Drury and Jose E. Espinosa, Louis & Co.; Agnes C. Sexton, K. C. Sexton Co.; Harry A. Chick and Basil D. Jones, S. Kann Sons Co.; R. W. Fuller and Theo Gannon, Ansell, Bishop & Turner, Inc., and Thos. Kavanagh and Mrs. G. Skinner, Arthur Jordan Piano Co.

In addition to the executives a number of the members of the staffs of the local distributors took advantage of the course. Those present

F. H. Harris, of Cohen & Hughes; Carl Droop, of E. F. Droop & Sons; Robert C. Rodgers and John Fischer, of Rogers & Fischer.

The affair ended up with a dinner party at the Madrillon, after which the entire party went to the Belasco Theatre to see Frances Starr in "Shore Leave." During the dinner Harry A. Chick, of S. Kann Sons Co., accompanied on the piano by Mrs. G. E. Williams, of J. B. Bell Co., Inc., Lynchburg, Va., gave a splendid exhibition of a very fine tenor voice, singing two popular ballads in an attractive way. Mrs. Williams was equal to the occasion, her piano accompaniment being of the highest order.

Among out-of-town dealers present were: R. D. Thomas and Miss Ruth Oldham, Darnell & Thomas Co., Raleigh, N. C.; G. E. Williams, J. P. Bell Co., Inc., Lynchburg, Va.; Charles E. Keefer, Kranz-Smith Piano Co., Baltimore, Md.; G. Ralph Shoop, Sitnek's Drug Store, Altoona, Pa.; Harry M. Shipley, Frederick, Md.; Fred H. Reeves, Andrews Music Store, Inc., Charlotte, N. C.; Andrew J. Oldewurtel, Talking Machine Shop, Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. R. M. Dixon and Miss Hazel Diuguid, Roanoke Talking Machine Corp., Roanoke, Va.; Mrs. Kenneth Hawkins, J. M. ### INVENTS VIOLIN FOR RADIO WORK

"Magnifying Violin" Has Horn and Can Be Used as Recording Instrument

Radio has caused the invention of a special "magnifying violin." It is the product of Harold Stern, director of a New York hotel orchestra. Mr. Stern has been lately broadcasting violin music from the large stations around New York, using his invention as the instrument. He says he made it especially for this purpose.

The "magnifying violin" is similar to others except for the body or sounding box. Instead of the body, there is a cylindrical metal box out of which projects a horn. When the bow is drawn over the string a louder sound is produced than out of the ordinary violin.

Another surprising feature about this "magnifying violin" is that it can be used as a recording instrument during the radio concerts. All that need be done is separate the cylindrical sounding box and horn from the rest of the instrument and attach it to the telephone receivers.

EXCLUSIVE EDISON SHOP OPENS

ROCKFORD, ILL., June 6.—The Dahlin Music Store is the name of a new concern which was recently opened at 1202 Fourteenth avenue, this city. The store has been handsomely decorated and is equipped with all the latest merchandising devices. The Edison line of phonographs is handled exclusively. Pianos, player-pianos and other music accessories are also carried.

RECORDS 200 YEAR OLD TUNE

Interesting Old Melody Incorporated in Vocalion Record of "Mother Machree's Lullaby," by Musical Director Robt. Hood Bowers

A new art has been developed in connection with the musical settings used in the phonograph recordings of to-day. No longer is the song or dance number recorded simply "as is." Instead, the musical director racks his brains for some novel way of introducing a bar or two of some other particularly appropriate piece of music or descriptive musical scenery, such as chimes, bird voices or a saxophone that gives "the merry ha-ha."

An interesting illustration of this is found in the new July Vocalion record of "Mother Machree's Lullaby" (An Irish Mother's Love Song), which introduces in it a quaint old Irish tune over two hundred years old—just such an old folk melody as Mother Machree might have sung.

To find just the right tunes and other novelties to introduce involves considerable research work on the part of the musical director, who in this instance is Robert Hood Bowers, noted composer of the "Chinese Lullaby" and other popular numbers, and musical director of Vocalion records.

A PROGRESSIVE TORONTO DEALER

The Adams Furniture Co., of Toronto, Can., Enjoys Rapid Growth Through Aggressive Merchandising and Publicity Methods

TORONTO, CAN., June 6.—The Adams Furniture Co., Columbia dealer, is probably the largest and best-known furniture house in this city and possibly Canada. The company has been handling the Columbia line almost ten years, during which the Grafonola department has enjoyed a steady growth under the management of N. A. Little.

The Adams Co. had its best year in 1921. Taking the fullest advantage of the reduction in prices, it sold seventy-eight floor models of Grafonolas on the first Saturday after the reduction was announced, and it has been a small day with them since when they have sold less than thirty instruments on a Saturday.

The Adams Furniture Co. is the type of concern which believes in taking up every reasonable suggestion for publicity purposes, and the number of stunts it has put over would, if described, "fill a book."

17,500 RADIO INCORPORATIONS

More than 17,500 incorporations of radio concerns were filed in twenty States since January 1, according to an estimate gathered from various State capitals. These aggregate a capitalization of more than $90,000,000.

NEW YORK CONCERN INCORPORATES

The Stettner Phonograph Corp., of New York City, has been granted a charter of incorporation under the laws of New York State, with a capital of $25,000. Incorporators are M. Stettner, D. Silverman and R. Rosenberg.

CANTON

Business Uneven — Prospects Improving—A Satisfactory Summer Business Is Looked For—Talker Section for Seitner — The News

CANTON, O., June 3.—Although reports gleaned from the music trades the past week indicate a general slowing up in the trade, no dealer interviewed this week appeared discouraged as to the future, and in every instance declared that the let-up was only temporary and that the Summer months held much in store for the trade. Business as a whole has been satisfactory, according to the prominent dealers, and talking machine sales, in some instances, are ahead of those a year ago.

Industrially Canton continues strong and people appear to have more money than at any time in recent months, but the people have many obligations to meet and within a short time will again turn their thoughts towards musical instruments, records and player rolls. Collections are improving each week and a large percentage of the sales, both talking machine and piano, are for cash.

Judging from a survey made the past week, pianos are far more active than talking machines, although sales of the latter are holding up well in the rural district where practically every local dealer has a crew of men at work canvassing and placing machines on trial. The $150 machine appears to be the best seller at this time.

C. M. Alford, of the Alford & Fryar Piano Co., reports that talking machine sales, the Cheney and Starr, are on a par with those of previous months, but record sales show a falling off. Country trade is holding up well and sales of machines in the rural district are helping the month's volume to a great extent.

George Wille, head of the music firm by the same name, reports that talking machine sales show a slight falling off in May, and can explain no reason for the let-up.

The removal of the talking machine department at the Klein-Heffelman-Zollars Co. from the third floor to the rear mezzanine has helped business wonderfully, according to Mr. Shrake, manager of this section of the big store.

H. T. Hanmer, new manager at the store of the J. W. Brown Piano Co., which store sells the Sonora machine, reports talking machine sales were fewer in May than the previous months. He says business with the store during the month of May has been highly satisfactory and declared considerable merchandise was moved during the month.

At the music section of the William R. Zollinger & Co. store, Manager Pyle, head of the music department, reported business doubled that of May, 1921. He says talking machines are moving fairly good and that record sales are somewhat off compared to a year ago. Mr. Erdman, field representative for the Victor Talking Machine Co., was a visitor at the store this week.

Mr. Pyle says the store plans to push the sale of the new Victor portable machine, which is built especially for use of the camper, autoist and canoeist.

The Edison machine is moving along fairly well, according to Manager Rutledge at Rhines' Edison shop. The Massillon, O., store of this company is doing very well and business at the local store is very satisfactory.

D. W. Lerch, head of the D. W. Lerch Piano Co., one of the largest distributors in the Canton district, says that the piano trade, as well as the talking machine business during the month of May was quiet.

The Seitner Co., owner of department stores here and in many Michigan towns, which recently acquired the W. E. Davis Co., at Alliance, plans to add a talking machine department when the store is enlarged under the expansion program, it was announced by officials of the concern this week.

Optimism in the Trade Grows— J. W. Greene Co. Plans Improve- ments—Activities of the Month

TOLEDO, O., June 6.—Talking machine and record merchants are decidedly optimistic and visualize the immediate future as holding many opportunities. The recent appearance of John Steel in concert at the Coliseum and later as a radio broadcasting star did much to stimulate the sale of his records. Practically every store in the city benefited from these events.

An incident in connection with the Steel concert illustrates his popularity. After the performance Chaplain MacLane, who saw overseas service, presented him with a large bouquet of daisies, the gift of local American Legion Posts. This was in recognition of the pleasure given 300 homeless soldiers last Thanksgiving, when Mr. Steel sang several songs at a dinner given for the boys.

The Toledo Talking Machine Co. is experiencing a gratifying volume of May sales. The demand for the four Victor specials which went on sale on the 20th, and the extra special, "Stumbling" and "Georgia," released for the 26th, is brisk. The numbers are pronounced very pleasing and have caught the popular fancy, according to Chas. H. Womeldorff, general manager.

The J. W. Greene Co., talking machine dealer, has plans formulating for a complete remodeling of the record and talking machine section, says Manager Kopf. The work will start at an early date in order that it may be completed in time for Fall trade. It is the intention to convert this division into one of the finest departments of its kind in this section of the State. The Lyradion line of radio instruments has been added to the talking machine department and will be exploited in a big way.

At Grinnell Bros., Miss Mary Baumann, long manager of the music roll department, has been placed in charge of the record section. This promotion is in line with the policy of the house to advance workers from those inside rather than go outside the organization for material. R. C. Elwell, manager of the Victrola department reports a favorable volume of May sales.

The Lion Store Victrola department is experiencing a very satisfactory demand for horizontal Victrolas. The total sales volume for 1922 exceeded that of last year, and the May total for 1921 was reached before the 20th of May, 1922, according to A. J. Pete, department manager.

During his Toledo stay John Steel autographed 250 records at an afternoon appearance at the Lion store. These were readily sold. About 500 persons crowded into the department on that occasion to see him. He was also a guest at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club, where he sang several selections.

Mother's Day was observed in a special manner at the Lion Store. Each package of Mother records contained a beautiful gift card bearing one of these sentiments: "With love and all good wishes to my dear mother," or "With best love to the best mother." Memorial Day was also commemorated with appropriate selections and assortments of records.

An epidemic of reducing has seized the stout women of Toledo and vicinity. The Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Grady are both victims of the malady. As a result of the demand for Wallace reducing records, and the interest in the exercises, the Victrola department has organized three afternoon classes. About 300 robust women are enrolled in these and are daily trying to lose surplus weight. In order to add zest and wide interest to the work a prize of $10 will be awarded to the lady succeeding in losing the most pounds of flesh. Many prominent members of society and women widely known locally are enrolled in the classes and are working earnestly to lose a pound a day for the next three weeks, which is in accordance with the promise of the promoters. Miss Adalyne Johnson, of the Wallace Reducing Record Co., and Mrs. Grace Foster, of the Lion Store, are in charge of the work.

Moreover, in order to further this effort and broaden its usefulness, arrangements have been completed whereby the News-Bee, an afternoon newspaper, will work in conjunction with the Lion Store and send out via Radio a Wallace reducing record lesson each week for the next five weeks.

The Madison Music Shoppe is about to launch a drive on portable machines for camp and Summer resort use, Kenneth Rickel states. The Modernola, with complete equipment, will be featured. Another addition to the line of talking machines is the Sonora, and this instrument will be exploited in an early campaign.

Grubbs Music Shoppe is coupling its efforts with the radiophone. Concerts are held each noon at 12 o'clock and every evening at 7:30.

These are so popular that many persons come in and make a purchase in order that they may more freely enjoy the concert. It is felt that this device is an excellent advertising medium.

Frank H. Frazelle, Adams street dealer, is conducting an advertising campaign which has for its main object the assisting of outside salesmen in closing talking machine sales. The Jewett and Sonora are featured. H. G. Pulfrey, sales manager, reports a considerable betterment in collections with a corresponding increase in record sales.

The Whitney, Blaine & Wildermuth Co. has purchased the Victrola stock and good-will of the department of the Wm. B. Duck Co. The W.-B. & W. Co. is about to move into its fine new upstairs store in the heart of the shopping district on Adams street. The acquiring of this Victrola agency gives the company a very complete line of high-grade pianos, players and talking machines and makes it an even greater factor in the local musical merchandise field than heretofore.

The B. H. Broer Co., South Side, Brunswick dealer, reports new activity in records and machines. Railroad employes form a large part of the clientele of this house.

Rae & Maxwell, Columbia, Vocalion and Jewett dealers are exploiting portable machines under the caption: "Summer Time Is Nature's Music Time." A. E. Rae, reports good results. The Columbia portable Grafonola is featured. Among the records favored are: "Jimmy, if You Knew," "Some Sunny Day," "Doo Dad Blues" and the Bert Williams selections "Not Lately" and "You Can't Trust Nobody."

The Record Shop reopened its newly decorated and equipped store with much splendor recently. On account of fire the shop was obliged to curtail operations some time ago, but with the shop again functioning in all departments several additions to the sales force will be made. Brunswicks are featured.

The Goosman Piano Co. has purchased the stock of the local Starr Piano Co. factory branch store. The lease on the Starr location does not expire until July 1, and for that reason no definite announcement as to the disposal of that store is forthcoming at this time. However, much of the stock will be disposed of through a gigantic clearance sale, which will start at once.

The new owners will act as Starr agents for Toledo and vicinity. Gennett talking machines and records will be widely featured through advertising and promotion work. The Goosman Piano Co. will be incorporated with Fred N. Goosman as president.

This Starr change is in line with the new policy of the factory to dispose of many branch stores. It is stated on good authority that a similar plan will be followed in other districts. The Cleveland district, in addition to Toledo, Akron, Canton and Mansfield is affected. C. E. Everingham, manager of the Starr branch, has joined the Chicago Starr sales organization.

The Da-Lite Electric Display Co., North Erie street, announces the following panel releases for June: "California" and "Rosy Posy," two Club Royal Orchestra numbers, and "Pick Me Up and Lay Me Down in Dear Old Dixieland," sung by the Peerless Quartet.

The A. B. Taggart Co., successors to the Ignaz Fischer Music House, has inaugurated a record approval service with a two-day trial privilege. The plan is being developed through a direct mail campaign. Moreover, this house has become distributor for Toledo and vicinity of the Radiola, a newly invented and simplified radiophone. It looks like a cabinet phonograph and is said to be easier to operate than a talking machine. It is sold installed with the Brunswick.

The sales appeal will be directed to the better class of buyers, and it will be sold for cash. Roy Thorpe is in charge of the development work and will direct sales promotion efforts.

The LaSalle & Koch Co. Victrola Shop, in charge of R. O. Danforth, reports considerable sales activity in May, efforts being directed towards closing contracts for Victrola combinations. The appeal is made to persons of the middle class. The June bride is receiving special attention, also folks moving into new homes.

The J. W. Rowlands Co., of Lima, furniture dealer, celebrated the opening of its fine new store on the Public Square with a banquet in the evening to visiting representatives of manufacturers and jobbers. For this event J. W. Rowlands came from his Hollywood, Cal., home. His son, W. D. Rowlands, is general manager of the enterprise. Coincident with the opening was the thirtieth anniversary of the house. At the banquet in the Barr Hotel guests and visitors delivered short addresses. The Victrola department, which is among the finest in the city, is situated on the first floor, and is easily accessible. The service counter and demonstration booths are in close proximity. The decorative scheme is old ivory throughout. The new building is three stories and basement and has been especially arranged for the needs of a growing business. Souvenirs were given to the 6,000 persons visiting the store on the opening day. Music was also a feature.

R. D. Malcolm, Flint, Mich., has moved his general music house to 134 and 136 East Kearsly street, a large three-story structure. This is a marked improvement over the former location and a fine increase in sales is looked for as a consequence. The talking machine department is on the main floor. There are seven full-length plate glass demonstration booths and excellent service record racks. The store ranks second to none in the city. Interior decorations are French gray and ivory and the wood finish is mahogany. The whole presents a very attractive appearance.

Frank H. Frazelle has returned from a buying trip to the Chicago market.

Chas. H. Womeldorf will attend the convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, which will be held week of June 11 at the Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City.

VICTOR FINANCIAL REPORT IMPRESSES BUSINESS WORLD

Bankers and Financial Men Accept Statement as Indicating the Stability of the Talking Machine Industry—Figures Quoted Most Favorably in the Newspapers

That the annual balance sheet of the Victor Talking Machine Co. issued recently and which emphasized so strongly the enviable position of that company not only in the matter of production, but in the matter of financing, has made a great impression in business circles generally, and particularly in financial circles and among bankers, is indicated by the number of newspapers that have felt called upon to comment favorably upon the report and its significance.

There was a time not so many months ago when certain bankers were inclined to look askance at the talking machine business and its possibilities. They witnessed a number of the smaller companies liquidating their business or going to the wall and found that there were many concerns that could not be regarded as strong financially or with prospects that were calculated to invite credit.

The statement of the Victor Co. has unquestionably done much to rewin the confidence of the banking interests in the talking machine industry. It has shown that the talking machine business properly conducted can be maintained on a sound money-making basis and the effect of this renewed confidence on the trade as a whole cannot be overestimated in the development of business.

The statement of Eldridge R. Johnson, president of the Victor Co., regarding the 1922 prospects for business, backed as it is by the financial report of the company, has had wide circulation and has done much to impress those outside the industry with the present and future possibilities of the talking machine trade.

In commenting upon the excellent progress made by the Victor Co. in the face of unusual conditions a number of writers in the financial and daily papers are taking occasion to call attention to the manufacturing policies of the Victor Co. in reducing record prices and improving machines, as well as the company's consistency in the matter of advertising. There is no question but that this volume of favorable comment will react directly to the advantage of the industry as a whole.

The E. G. Hays Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., has been incorporated in that State for the manufacture and sale of musical instruments, with a capital of $50,000. Incorporators are E. G. Hays and C. H. Wilt.

The Trade in BOSTON and NEW ENGLAND
 JOHN H. WILSON, Manager
 324 WASHINGTON ST., BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., June 5.—The month of May made a much better showing than some in the trade had looked for. It was an unusual period so far as good weather went, and that is a factor that must be reckoned with when it comes to business prospects. Salesmen got on the track of many desirable prospects and, while some good sales followed, there are enough ahead to warrant the trade at large in taking hope that the late Summer and early Fall are bound to see much improved business. Not a few houses were able to report, and, with a degree of satisfaction, that the May business was considerably in advance of that for April, and there were others, too, which could honestly say it was better than the same month a year ago, so that in either case there was food for encouragement.

Frank S. Horning Puts It Over

No one can doubt Frank S. Horning's ability to "put over" anything he starts to do. The head of the Frank S. Horning Co., as president of the New England Music Trade Association, has already presided over two luncheons at the Engineers' Club, and at each there was a creditably large attendance. In fact, at the first one there were so many that the luncheon was late in getting started. At the first luncheon Dan Sullivan, of the C. C. Harvey Co., kept the company entertained during the early part of the luncheon with piano selections; and at the second luncheon the pianist was Arthur Morse, of the Colonial Piano Co. Much credit must be given to the committee of three which co-operated with Mr. Horning in getting up the luncheon details. For the next luncheon, which has been postponed until after the New York convention, the committee consists of Jerome

Murphy, of the M. Steinert Co; Walter Gillis, a Victor dealer, and Leonard M. Wright. The program mapped out for the New England Music Trade Association by way of getting the members together has started off most auspiciously and with good speakers as they have had at the two luncheons there is no reason why the organization should not be one of the leaders among music clubs of the country. President Horning is urging every member to bring another music man to the next luncheon.

Hallet & Davis Phonograph Grows in Favor

It is now two months since the Hallet & Davis talking machine has been out and in that time it is astonishing to those close to this product to note the extent to which it has been given attention by the trade. That it is going to be a good seller is now proved to be a fact. No sooner were the samples out than there was a call for them from remote sections of the country, and letters began to pour in to the Hallet & Davis offices, all these communications of a highly commendatory character, some of these communications telling of sales that had been made shortly after the receipt of the samples. These same dealers immediately wired for a consignment of goods and there were urgent calls, too, for the privilege of controlling exclusive territory for the handling of these talking machines. The company very naturally was not in too much haste to allot territory, as it wanted to get the best representation possible everywhere. Now, however, there are well established agencies on the Pacific Coast and in the Western and Middle West field, all of them under the management of dealers whose reputation is of the highest. The regular roadmen of the company have been most successful in introducing the instrument among its following.

Mapping Out an Organization

R. O. Ainslie, that indefatigable worker in the field of music, is now mapping out an organization which will include two special talking machine salesmen for handling this product in New England. Owing to Mr. Ainslie's increased duties incident to his activities in the new national advertising and merchandising campaign which the Hallet & Davis Co. has recently launched, it has been necessary for him to organize an efficient talking machine department which will be under his immediate supervision. The company arranged for a very complete display of its talking machines at the Hotel Commodore, New York, during the big music trade convention, and there also was a full line of samples at the company's New York offices on the fifth floor, 18 East Forty-second street.

By way of indicating the tone of the communications that have been received by the Hallet & Davis Co. touching its new product, let the trade read the following from the Daynes-Beebe Music Co., at Salt Lake City, Utah, under date of May 20:

"I want to take this occasion to say to you that we are very much delighted with the three sample Hallet & Davis phonographs sent us. They just arrived to-day, and we are all charmed. The tone seems to be as near perfect as it is possible for mechanism to make it. I congratulate you upon having achieved such signal distinction. Let's hope that the splendid instruments that you have made will quickly become popular, and that the sales will be in harmony

PROGRESS

The New England Victor dealer has kept step with the progress of his community, and in many instances is just a few steps ahead of his brother merchants in other lines. New England is fast regaining its place as this country's most prosperous territory, and Victor dealers are sharing in this prosperity.

As heretofore, Cressey & Allen are admirably equipped to offer 100% service and co-operation of the New England Victor dealer.

with the standard of the machine." This spontaneous tribute was greatly appreciated.

Merging of Thomas and Vocalion Stores

Nos. 190-192 Boylston street hereafter will be known as Vocalion Hall instead of the Vocalion Co., as heretofore. The new house represents the combination of two well-known music centers, the old Vocalion and the Edison Shop, formerly the music department of the F. H. Thomas Co., which was farther out on Boylston street. Thus, instead of the Vocalion headquarters now confining itself to the well-known instruments of that name, the Edison line also will be carried and under the new arrangements one may find the very best models of both lines, some being the very latest in console types. Besides the Edison and Vocalion talking machines, it is the plan of the concern operating the New Vocalion Hall to carry pianos and reproducing pianos, and of course, a full line of records. The quarters are under the management of W. E. Birdsall, formerly manager of the Edison Shop at the Thomas Co., at which place he has had a long and valuable experience. In the management he will be assisted by Charles Foote, who has been connected with the Vocalion Co. for some time. It is understood that there will be very few changes in the personnel of the new house, the leading members of the sales force being retained. E. M. Wheatley, whom Mr. Birdsall succeeds, has gone back to New York, where he continues in the employ of the Aeolian-Vocalion Co. at its New York headquarters.

Makes Survey of New England Field

Manager Joe Burke, of the Musical Supply & Equipment Co., lately entertained President J. O. Morris, of the company, and the two made a careful survey of the New England field, which is now entirely in Mr. Burke's hands. Mr. Morris's visit here followed his return from the Virginia Hot Springs, where he had spent several weeks. Both President Morris and Manager Burke found the local field looking very encouraging, better than in some time, in fact, and as they viewed the situation everything pointed to greatly improved business in the Fall. A consignment of the new Queen Anne Sonora models was received here a short time ago and all the instruments were quickly taken by the large stores which handle the Sonora, including the Jordan Marsh Co., which annually disposes of a number of them. This new type of Sonora has a new style of tone arm and new tone chamber as special features. The portable Sonoras which have proved very popular since introduced are in great demand among the dealers. E. B. Shiddell With General Phonograph Corp.

E. B. Shiddell, head of the company bearing his name, is no longer associated with the Boston talking machine industry, having accepted a position as general manager of the distribution division of the General Phonograph Corp. The Outing line which Mr. Shiddell has lately been carrying here for the New England territory has been taken over by Arthur Erisman, of the Grafonola Co. of New England and will be handled by him from his retail store in Avery street. The Shiddell headquarters in the Pope building on Columbus avenue will be continued for a few weeks by John Connelly, lately associated with Shiddell, pending the final transfer of the goods.

A Popular Brunswick Visitor

A welcome visitor in town off and on for several weeks has been W. C. Hutchings, assistant general sales manager for the Brunswick line. His purpose in coming here from Chicago toward the middle of May was to make a study of the business situation in New England and in company with Harry Spencer, of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, New England distributors of the Brunswick, he visited a number of the leading places in Maine and other of the adjacent states, including, of course, the principal cities in Massachusetts. Mr. Hutchings' trip was an eminently successful one and he was surprised everywhere he went to note the general attitude of talking machine dealers, which was different from what he had found in the Northwest. He thinks the local field is ready for a big boom in talking machines of the best makes, and speaking for his own product, the Brunswick, he said that by the time December is reached it should prove in volume of business to be much greater than was 1921. Mr. Hutchings left Boston on June 1 and carried back with him some optimistic views of the future of business in New England and of the up-to-date manner in which Harry Spencer is handling the Brunswick in his territory.

Fred E. Mann Talks in Dartmouth College

Fred E. Mann, wholesale manager of the Columbia Co., during May went to Dartmouth College and gave one of his interesting talks on the Columbia's merchandising and distributing methods. While in Hanover Mr. Mann was the guest of Harry R. Wellman, professor of marketing in the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration. Mr. Mann has lately finished a successful tour among the Columbia agencies in Rhode Island and Connecticut territory. Mr. Mann found all the dealers in a more hopeful mood than for some time, and all were imbued with the belief that the talking machine industry was on the eve of quite a substantial boom. In the record line he reports that there has been a very heavy demand for the Columbia's latest

Among the business-building helps which belong to the Brunswick dealer the very day he takes on the line is the Brunswick Dealer's Finance Plan.

We will be glad to explain this Plan to you by mail or in person.

It is radically different from any other arrangement for handling instalment paper with which you may now be familiar.

While it is a brand-new idea to most phonograph dealers, it has been in operation with Brunswick dealers long enough to have established its money-making value.

We will be glad to mail you the full details, in the form of a booklet, upon request.

Unico Booths in New Brunswick Shop

The new Brunswick shop at 60 Washington street, Salem, has closed a contract with the Unit Construction Co. for the installation of a series of artistic booths and when these are in, the store will be ready for a grand opening which is to take place on July 20 and 21. Carl Fenton's orchestra has been secured for these two days and concerts will be given each evening. It is planned to make this shop one of the most attractive Brunswick headquarters in the East. Odell Brothers are the managers, and on the opening day they plan to entertain among others Harry Spencer, the New England manager of the wholesale Brunswick department, and other Brunswick representatives hereabouts.

New Posts for Hallet & Davis Co. Executives

The recent announcement by the Hallet & Davis Piano Co. of the advancement of John L. Cotter to the office of vice-president and treasurer of the company, and of R. O. Ainslie to the office of secretary, has been received with much gratification by the many trade friends of the two men.

In both cases the promotion is well deserved. Mr. Cotter not only has had long experience with the Hallet & Davis Co., but in the field of merchandising his years of service have made him an invaluable factor in the company's interests, and he is, besides, one of the best-known piano men in the field.

Never too busy to keep his fingers on the pulse of business conditions, he has a very keen insight into the situation from coast to coast. Up to a few years ago Mr. Cotter spent considerable of his time on the road and developed the big business of the company in the Middle West and Pacific Coast, and even now, despite his busy Boston departments, finds time to take the long trip occasionally. Recently Mr. Cotter turned his attention to developing the export trade and a marked increase has been shown in this department. The Boston end of the company's new Virtuolo publicity and merchandising campaign rests in the hands of Mr. Cotter. His numerous friends throughout the trade have not been slow to congratulate Mr. Cotter on the honor of the new office.

Mr. Ainslie belongs to the younger generation of piano men, but so rapid has been his progress that an unusual interest is focused on him. For the past few years he has acted as treasurer and his appointment as secretary comes as no surprise to those who have come in contact with his work. Joining the company about seven years ago, he has devoted his attention largely to the machine division and he is responsible for bringing forth the Hallet & Davis machine, and has received commendation from all quarters for its unusually high quality.

Having established a complete organization,

Mr. Ainslie is hard at work assisting in putting over the publicity and merchandising end of the business. A strong believer in quality, with an enthusiasm to keep things moving, this young man bids fair to make a name for himself in the rapid development of the Hallet & Davis business.

Value of Steinert Service Department

satisfaction of all concerned. It is the Steinert Co.'s purpose to make this one of its most valuable departments.

Stone in Charge of Iver Johnson Store

One would not recognize the interior of the Tremont Talking Machine Co.'s store at 177 Tremont street now that the Iver Johnson Sporting Goods Co. has taken it over for a general ripping out of fixtures. It is now under way preparatory to general remodeling. The ground floor will be devoted to sporting goods, but the entire second floor will be reserved for the Victor product, and this department will be in charge of Edgar Stone, who has been with the Iver Johnson Co. for some time and is familiar with the Victor line.

Great Campaign for Strand Phonograph

Arthur Erisman continues to have phenomenal success with the Strand instrument, which he is introducing throughout New England. Besides Arthur Chamberlain, who has been devoting his attention outside to this line, Mr. Erisman now has Henry Blakebrough who has been with him for some time, and he is focusing his attention on the Strand in the field. There are a number of large houses which Mr. Erisman has signed up with for carrying the Strand.

Outing Line With Grafonola Co.

The Grafonola Co. of New England, of which Arthur Erisman is the head, has taken over the Outing line, for which it now has the exclusive rights for the New England territory. This is the line lately handled by the E. B. Shiddell Co. The Grafonola Co. has also taken over the Cameo records, which comprise a rather large catalog of numbers.

Attended Convention by Motor

Kenneth Reed, wholesale manager of the Victor department of the M. Steinert Co., is planning to motor over the road on the occasion of the Victor convention. It is possible Robert Steinert may also go over by automobile.

Thomas M. McHale a Visitor

Thomas M. McHale, general counsel and credit manager for the Brunswick-Balke-Collen-der Co., which big house sponsors the Brunswick talking machine, was in Boston toward the latter part of May, making his headquarters at the Hotel Touraine. He was here in regard to the other interests of the company outside of the talking machine industry.

Shoemaker Attends Nutting Opening

Herbert Shoemaker, wholesale manager of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., was one of those to be entertained by Bill Nutting on the occasion of the big opening of the Nutting retail store at Nashua, N. H., on May 22. Mr. Shoemaker returned with a pronounced conviction that Bill's reputation as an entertainer was well earned. Mr. Nutting had a fine display of Victrolas at the opening.

The Hallet & Davis Salesman

"The Hallet & Davis Salesman" of six pages has made its bow to the trade and with 1,000 copies spread broadcast at the New York convention this little house organ of the Hallet & Davis Co. ought to be pretty well known by the time the second number is issued. Page three is devoted entirely to a consideration of the company's talking machine proposition. In a review of the business for the past six years, it is noted that during the war many new concerns sprang up because the recognized companies could not supply the demand, and this comment is made:

"The public seemed to be too busy to care whether the tone was right or whether the cabinets looked well in the home. Since the war, however, people have become more discriminating; they demand quality, yes, the very best, and at the right price. In the past two years we have seen hundreds of different phonographs fall by the wayside and completely disappear; there was no place for them. When the storm cleared away there were left only four or five well-known makes. Why did they survive? Because they were quality instruments and had been nationally advertised."

There are four cuts of the models of Hallet & Davis machines and several testimonials are reprinted. The whole sheet is a credit to the house in every detail. The editor of the publication ought to be made known. He is J. A. Mango, who has some rather clever advertising ideas up his sleeve. He has lately associated himself with the Hallet & Davis Co. and is a valuable addition to the staff.

To Handle Publicity for Retail Stores

John A. Davis, formerly vice-president of the John J. Morgan Advertising Agency, Inc., which has for many years handled the advertising of the American Felt Co. and the Boston Piano Supply Co., has embarked in business for himself

Attended Plaut-Cadden Co. Opening

H. C. Spain, of the Hallet & Davis forces, went over to New London, Conn., Friday for the opening the evening of that day of the Plaut-Cadden Co.'s new store, this being a branch of the house which this company operates at Norwich. There was a large and beautiful display of the Hallet & Davis and Chickering lines of pianos and of the Hallet & Davis, Victor and Columbia line of talking machines. The store is managed by Adlard Morrin, an experienced man in the music trade. The store was handsomely decorated with flowers and there was a large crowd to give the interior a careful inspection.

Kammler With Hallet & Davis

C. E. Kammler, who has been with the Lansing Sales Co., has become associated directly with the Hallet & Davis Co. and will devote his entire time to the new talking machine which this company now has on the market. He will be the traveling representative and will confine himself to the New England territory. Mr. Kammler has had a valuable experience in the music field and has been with Chickering & Sons, and more recently with the M. Steinert Co. He has a number of friends in the trade who are glad that he has associated himself with so well-established a house, and is to handle a machine that already is popular in the trade.

Lansing Sales Co. Changes

Some interesting changes have lately taken place at the Lansing Sales Co.'s establishment. A. J. Cullen, who has lately been at the head of the concern, has been advanced by the Hallet & Davis Co. and will go to Chicago for the house, making that his headquarters. As Mr. Cullen came here originally from that city, he is especially familiar with that field.

Henry Smith, who was originally with the Lansing Co., and took over the manufacture of the khaki covers on his own account about a year ago, establishing himself close by in Hudson street, has taken over the Lansing Co.'s interests and will remove all his appurtenances back into the old quarters at 170 Harrison avenue, where he originally was, and which is the Lansing store. He will carry all kinds of talking machine accessories and associated with him as manager will be R. G. Lipp, who since coming from Chicago about two years ago has been closely associated with Manager Cullen.

The Lansing Sales Co. has given up the handling of the Okeh records, all the stock having been turned over to the Bay State Music Corp., at 142 Berkeley street, which has been also exploiting this line for several months past.

Attends Outlet Co. Opening

There was quite a party of Boston Victor people who went to Providence late in May for the opening of the Outlet Co.'s Victor department. The All Star Trio was on hand to furnish music together with an orchestra. The department is fitted up with a number of booths. It is estimated that 3,000 persons inspected the quarters. There was dancing that same evening. Among those going there from Boston were Kenneth Reed, wholesale manager of the Steinert Co., and Mrs. Reed; Herbert Shoemaker, of the Eastern Co., and Mrs. Shoemaker; Ted Hersey, of the Eastern Co. staff; James Frye, of the Victor staff, and Mrs. Frye. There were several present from New York also.

Board Binder for Record Order Books

The M. Steinert & Sons Co., Victor wholesaler, is supplying its regular dealers with an attractive board binder in black and gold to serve as a cover and protect their record order books. Many enthusiastic words of appreciation have been received from dealers regarding it.

New Cover for Consoles Popular

The Henry Smith Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Lansing padded covers for talking machines and pianos, finds business shaping up in good form. The new cover for console types of talking machines has proven an exceedingly popular number of the line.

R. O. Ainslie a Busy Man

R. O. Ainslie, of the Hallet & Davis Co., who had his hands full at the New York Convention, left Boston on the evening of June 1 for New York, going over the road in his car. He was accompanied by Mrs. Ainslie. Mr. Ainslie had entire charge of the luncheon arrangements at the Hotel Commodore on Thursday, June 8.

Decided Betterment in Business

The New England Talking Machine Co., of this city, manufacturer of Perfection tone arms and reproducers, finds a gradual betterment in business conditions. The recent exhibit of the company at the Home Beautiful Exposition drew large numbers and proved profitable. Comprehensive plans for the further development of business are under way.

A. J. Cullen Visits the West

A. J. Cullen, of the Lansing Sales Co., spent a fortnight out in Chicago the middle of May. He came back with a new angle as to business conditions in the Middle West. While away he visited Minneapolis, Minn.; Davenport, Ind., and Des Moines, Ia.

A slightly but steadily increasing demand for all talking machine products distributed by the Lansing Sales Co., of this city, is noticeable, presaging good business ahead.

Brieflets

Kenneth Reed, of the Steinert house, had a long holiday over the Memorial Day period, and he with Mrs. Reed went down to Orleans, on the Cape, where he enjoyed his fill of golf. Mr. Reed has leased an estate at Orleans for the Summer and he will motor down each week-end.

Miss Silberstein, who is in charge of the Krey Music Company, of Boston, which is a Columbia headquarters, was lately married, her life partner being T. W. Lloyd. She will continue to boom the Columbia in the Krey shop, however.

This is the wedding month for J. J. Kravitz, manager of the talking machine department at Richardson's, which concern is operated by the Davis Co.

Clarence W. Hill, proprietor of Hill's Music Shop at Meeting House Hill, Dorchester, has become the father of a bouncing boy and it's a youngster to be proud of, too.

Jerome H. Remick Co. of Tremont street has so altered its windows as to allow of a better display of the Columbia line of goods.

PROOFS OF BUSINESS EXPANSION

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., June 4.—The new music store of J. G. Heidner & Son, Inc., of this city, has been so successful since its opening the first week in March that it has already increased sales facilities. To the original Unico equipment in Victor and musical merchandise departments the company has now added a new Unico piano room, approximately 15x15. The N. W. Brown Piano Co., also of this city, through its energetic manager, N. W. Brown, is well known within "radio distance" of Springfield. This firm supplies the Brunswick records which are broadcast by the Springfield radio broadcasting station. Mr. Brown has recently moved to State street and has found the record business increasing to such proportions that a new Unico record department has been added to the store.

THE OUTLOOK IN NEW HAVEN TRADE

NEW HAVEN, CONN., June 1.—The Horton-Gallo-Creamer Co., Victor distributor, of this city, reports that Victor retailers in the territory it covers are energetically going after business. The new horizontal models are increasing steadily in popularity and exceptionally good Fall demands are predicted. The Horton-Gallo-Creamer Co. is calling attention to the particular seasonal opportunities in the portable model, although it has been found that the No. 50 has enjoyed an all-year-round demand.

INAUGURATE CHILDREN'S HOUR

The Cline-Vick Drug Co., operating stores in various Illinois cities, and handling the Victor line of talking machines exclusively, has derived considerable publicity and benefit from the Children's Hour parties which are held occasionally. These events, under the management of Fay Luyster, manager of the talking machine end of the Cline-Vick business, are rapidly gaining in popularity.

FORMAL OPENING IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., May 29.—The formal opening of the new Goldsmith Music Store at 25 East State street was held on last Friday with music by "Saxy" Strahl's Orchestra in the afternoon, and Donald Abbott's Society Orchestra in the evening. An elaborate display of pianos, talking machines, band instruments and musical merchandise generally was a feature of the opening, which was largely attended.

Orville Harrold Addresses the Merchants—New J. N. Adam and Kurtzmann Stores—News

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 8.—Talking machine dealers from three States met in this city on May 26, to hear solos and an address by Orville Harrold, Victor artist, and tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who appeared with the Scotti Opera Company, which was playing an engagement here. There were delegations from Cleveland, Elmira, Waverly, Lockport, the Tonawandas, Hornell, Oakfield, and other cities in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Salesmen, as well as dealers, were present at the meeting.

Mr. Harrold gave a number of his most popular record numbers and then explained the process of making records, which, he said, is a most exacting and often a trying one. The great care which is exercised in the Victor laboratories to reproduce the human voice was described in a most interesting manner, Mr. Harrold proving himself an entertaining talker, as well as an artist of first magnitude. He answered questions at the close of his address.

The meeting was held in the Hotel Iroquois, under the auspices of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of western New York. At the conclusion of the meeting the dealers present held an executive committee meeting, at which plans were made for an outing, to be held late in June. Acting President B. E. Neal presided at the meeting.

Mr. Harrold was taken to Niagara Falls on a sight-seeing trip by Curtis N. Andrews, Victor jobber, Mrs. Harrold joining her husband here and being a member of the party.

Small Machines in Demand

The demand for smaller models is the feature of the talking machine trade just now. Many portables are being sold for use at the numerous beaches and other resorts in this vicinity. The demand for records runs to lighter numbers, especially for dance records, which are usually most popular at this season of the year.

Business Improvement Continues

As a whole, dealers are satisfied that business is on the up grade, although the improvement is somewhat spotted. There is one very cheering factor entering into all of the reports as to business conditions, and that is the steadily diminishing number of returned instruments. Those who buy now do so after careful deliberation, dealers say, and are reasonably certain, before making purchases, that they will be able to meet payments promptly.

Siegesmund Visits Mountains

C. E. Siegesmund, former president of the Buffalo Talking Machine Dealers' Association, who recently retired from active business, selling his stock to A. Victor & Co., has returned after a tour of the Adirondack Mountains. Business with the latter company is expanding.

New C. Kurtzmann & Co. Store

Two new music stores with well equipped talking machine departments have just been opened here. The new retail store of C. Kurtzmann & Co. has been opened in the new Pierce Building on Main street. The talking machine and record departments occupy most of the first floor space of the new building, which is one of the most attractive as well as one of the most efficiently designed and arranged in western New York. Many talking machine dealers attended the formal opening and complimented Manager Joseph Owenhouse on the beauty and utility of the new store.

J. N. Adam & Co. Open Store

The new music store of J. N. Adam & Co., on Washington street, is now open. It is one of the largest in New York State, occupying three floors of the entire building formerly used by the U. S. Rubber Co., and having two additional floors available for future expansion. The talking machine and record departments are on the first floor, and are unusually well equipped and most pleasing in appearance. Manager Stephen J. Butler designed the plans for the arrangement of the new store.

Presents Two Sonoras

Two fine Sonoras were given away by John G. Schuler, Inc., distributor of the Sonora, following the Better Homes Exposition, at which Mr. Schuler's Sonora exhibit was a pronounced feature. A Sonora was offered to the person guessing nearest the number of talking machine needles in a jar, but when two persons were found to have guessed the exact number both were awarded machines of the model which was to have been given a single winner.

New Furniture and Grafonola Store

Joseph Mangus has opened a new furniture and music store, at 334 Niagara street. He is specializing in Columbia Grafonolas and records, and reports an excellent business in this department. Mr. Mangus is specializing in Italian language records, as his store is in the heart of a section in which reside 40,000 Italian-Americans—all potential buyers.

Song Shop Creditors Meet

At the first meeting of creditors of Daniel R. Rogers, proprietor of the Song Shop of Jamestown, Attorney Augustus Nelson, of Jamestown, was named trustee by the creditors. Fred Danielson, Howard E. Olson and Arthur E. Laudenslager were named appraisers. Schedules show assets of $2,524, and liabilities of $6,609.

A Clever Window Display

Max Long, of Olean, recently had an unusual merchandising display in his window, presenting a clever interpretation of Ted Lewis' record, "Down the Old Church Aisle." Mr. Long engaged a trio of musicians and arrayed the cornet player in bridal costume, the trombone artist as bridegroom and the leader as clergyman. A mock wedding was staged by the trio.

J. J. Doherty in New Post

J. J. Doherty has been appointed assistant manager of the Buffalo Columbia branch, to succeed H. W. Cardozo. Mr. Doherty was formerly with the Columbia branch at Philadelphia, and although in Buffalo but a short time has already made many friends.

Recent visitors at the Buffalo Columbia branch included Gust Swanson, of Jamestown; G. L. Traver, of North Tonawanda; J. W. Beach, of Gowanda; J. A. Goldstein, of Niagara Falls, and W. A. Phillips, of Rochester. Mr. Goldstein is planning a unique window display, featuring "Who Tied the Can on the Old Dog's Tail."

News Brieflets

Concerts which were arranged by A. Victor & Co., and by J. N. Adam & Co., were received in their stores, through receiving sets, and were heard by large audiences. Denton, Cottier & Daniels also presented an attractive program in which the Steinway Duo-Art was featured.

T. A. Goold, of Goold Bros., has returned, after visiting his boyhood home in Great Britain. Mr. Goold also visited several European countries, while abroad. He arrived in New York early this month, sailing from England on May 26.

Three Buffalo music stores with talking machine departments have recently co-operated with the Federal Telephone & Telegraph Co. in presenting radio-telephone concerts through the new Federal broadcasting station here.

Ground has been broken at North Tonawanda, for the new plant of the Artizan Factories, Inc., a new firm which is contemplating the manufacture of musical instruments.

TONE QUALITY par excellence

Purity, resonance, volume, individuality, sweetness, mellowness, nuance, color—all these qualities are faithfully reproduced by the Violin Spruce Diaphragm. Nature's perfect resonating medium—violin spruce—scientifically adapted, is free from all the inherent faults of mica and other vibrating mediums.

Wins Instant Approval

The following excerpts are from letters in our files:

A famous artist, under exclusive contract with a maker of phonograph records, says:

"... that is the most perfect, the most beautiful reproduction of my playing I have ever heard."

From a phonograph manufacturer:

"... it proves to be first-class and the best we have heard on classical records."

From a builder of special designs only:

"We have concluded our tests... it is superior to any we have tested heretofore... we intend to use your tone arm."

From household owners:

"... is the most wonderful I have ever heard."

"... it has brought out tones from my records I never heard before."

"... I tell my friends it is the perfect reproducer."

From a sales executive, fourteen years in the talking machine business:

"... I have tried it (the reproducer) on every kind of record imaginable and the reproduction is excellent."

EDISON DEALERS WORKING FOR TRIP

Winners in Sales Contest Inaugurated by Harger & Blish, Inc., Edison Distributors, Des Moines, to Be Conducted on Trip to New York and Through Edison Laboratory, Orange, N. J.

DES MOINES, IA., June 7.—Harger & Blish, Inc., enterprising Edison distributors in this territory, have evolved a unique contest which is resulting in energetic sales efforts on the part of Edison dealers and salesmen throughout the territory. The five winners of the competition, which started April 1 and ends Friday, June 30, will be conducted on a trip to New York, accompanied by Harger Blish, Jr. Stops will be made at interesting points en route, including Chicago and Niagara Falls, and visits will be made from New York to Atlantic City, Washington, D. C., and other points of interest.

The headquarters of the visitors will be in Gotham, where four days will be spent in seeing the sights. One of the most interesting phases of the trip will be a visit to the laboratories of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in Orange, N. J., where Thomas A. Edison and Charles Edison will welcome the visitors in the famous music room. Each winner will be presented with an autographed photograph of the famous inventor. Following a trip through the Edison plant, dinner and the theatre will be enjoyed.

Harger & Blish, Inc., have mapped out their territory in four divisions, numbered two, three four and five, consisting of dealers in towns of 1,000 population; 1,000 to 3,000 population; 3,000 to 10,000 population, and those in towns of 10,000 population and up, respectively.

Each division is provided with a punch board and the number of punches to which the dealer is entitled depends upon the style of machine sold. Numbers on slips of paper punched from the board determine the number of points with which the contestant will be credited, and the winning dealer or salesman in each division will be entitled to the trip. Trip number 1 will be given to the dealer holding a lucky number. Thomas

Harris, Ediphone dictating machine distributor for Harger & Blish, has charge of the distribution of points.

RADIO SONG PROVES SUCCESS

“Kiss Me by Wireless” Being Used by Bands and Orchestras—Okeh Record Division Co-operating With Artists in Publicity Work

The General Phonograph Corp. has been co-operating with the publishers of the new radio song, “Kiss Me by Wireless,” toward making this selection one of the popular hits of the day. This number has been played for the Okeh record library by Vincent Lopez and his Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, and the record is being used by radio broadcasting stations throughout the country.

The tremendous publicity accorded “Kiss Me by Wireless” is reflected in the fact that the number is being featured by many of the leading instrumental organizations, together with a large number of vocal stars. At the present time “Kiss Me by Wireless” is being used by the following organizations and artists: John Philip Sousa and his band; Pat Conway and his band; Philadelphia Police Band; Vincent Lopez and his Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra; Ray Miller’s Black and White Boys; Joseph Knecht’s Waldorf Astoria Orchestra; Natzy and his orchestra; Sophie Tucker, Forrest Lamont, J. Neilson and others.

CAMPING SCENE PRODUCES SALES

New York Victor Dealer Features Attractive Display—E. G. Evans Co-operates With Dealer in Preparing an Exceedingly Artistic Window

William Waldman, progressive Victor dealer at 601 Ninth avenue, New York, has been featuring in his window a camping scene that has proven such a powerful attraction to passers-by that it has been necessary to call the police in order to clear the sidewalks. This window display, which features the Victrola portable, was prepared by Mr. Waldman in co-operation with E. G. Evans, traveling representative for C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor distributors.

Mr. Evans conceived the general plan of the camping scene, which consists of a khaki-clad figure sitting on a real tree stump, facing a Victrola Portable, which is also stationed on a real tree stump by the side of a camp fire and real logs. Incidentally, the tree stumps and the logs were all furnished by Mr. Evans, who brought them to New York from his Connecticut home.

To add to the reality of the scene, a good-sized tent is used with grass scattered on the floor. The camping scene as a whole is placed against a back drop showing a marine scene or a lake with a canoe drawn on the shore and fringed with a typical lake view. The incidental furnishings to the display consist of a canoe, paddle, camping dishes, etc., all of which were loaned to Mr. Waldman by the Winchester Store in New York City.

A card in the middle of the window bears the following inscription: “The Victrola Portable—Gives an extra ton of pleasure for a few pounds extra weight.” In addition to attracting the attention of all passers-by, it is gratifying to learn that this window has produced direct sales of Victrola portables, and Mr. Evans has been congratulated upon the ingenuity he displayed in the preparation of this timely window.

The Daniels & Fisher Stores Co., Denver, Colo., has enlarged its talking machine department.

James Sheridan, a tenor who has done concert work in and around New York for several years past, has been secured by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. as an exclusive Brunswick artist. Mr. Sheridan was an employe of the talking machine department of Hahne & Co., Newark, N. J., and recently when the Brunswick Co. recognized him as an artist with a promising future he realized a lifetime ambition. Last week Mr. Sheridan was the recipient of a sum of money which enabled him to take a two years' course in the best schools of Italy. He is now on his way to Italy and carries with him a fine letter of commendation written by John McCormack, well-known tenor, to the impresario of the famous La Scala Opera in Milan. This young artist has established for himself an enviable reputation in this section of the country and made such an impression with John McCormack that this great tenor is manifesting a special interest in this young singer's future. The first records to be released by the Brunswick Co., according to Wm. A. Brophy, director of the Brunswick Recording Laboratories, New York, were sent out to the trade a short time ago, and they have been received enthusiastically by Brunswick dealers.

PLAN TO FORM RADIO MUSIC CLUB

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—Plans for the formation of a radio music club are rapidly assuming concrete proportions here. Prominent among those interested in the movement are a number of music merchants and musicians. The club, when organized, will devote its efforts to the development and encouragement of musical activities by radiophone and steps will be taken to perfect methods for broadcasting and receiving music by this means.

PREDICTS VICTROLA SHORTAGE

Howard J. Shartle, Head of Cleveland Talking Machine Co., Looks for Shortage This Fall—Presents Some Logical and Sound Reasons

CLEVELAND, O., June 6.—Howard J. Shartle, head of the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., is predicting a shortage of Victor goods in the Fall. Mr. Shartle said to the World: "I really expect a serious shortage in October, November and December. Jobber stocks are not as heavy as is supposed and dealer stocks are very light. They have been buying on a hand-to-mouth basis since the first of the year and, whereas in June of 1921 they had fairly good stocks on hand, they are to-day at rock bottom.

"With these depleted stocks and general business improving a serious shortage is not only possible, but very probable. I believe the machines retailing from $150 to $200 will be most scarce, as it is these types which are better suited to the public's purse this year. Records will not be so seriously affected."

RECORD HELPS TO SELL REAL ESTATE

New York Auctioneers Send Record Bearing Description of Property Offered at Auction to Several Thousand Prospects

The talking machine record has been adopted by New York's real estate auctioneers, who arouse the interest of the public in prospective sales of tracts of real estate in this city. Joseph P. Day, Inc., and J. Clarence Davies, Inc., the best-known real estate auctioneers in the metropolitan district, recently advertised the sale of a number of lots in the Bronx section, formerly belonging to the Astor Estate, and announced that the first 5,000 people responding to the advertisement would receive a phonograph record, giving a history of the property. The record was of the small six-inch sort, and bore a description of the property with emphasis laid upon the opportunity it presented for securing a home site or making a profitable investment.

It is understood that several thousand people took advantage of the opportunity to get a record for nothing, and the offer itself would indicate that the real estate men held to the belief that there is a talking machine of some sort in practically every home.

KIMBALL PHONOGRAPHS IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8.—T. P. Culley & Son, Kimball representatives in this territory, are making rapid progress in the introduction of the new Kimball line of phonographs. This instrument is made in both console and upright models, and, although it has been on sale here but a short time, a good demand is reported by T. P. Culley & Son, who have represented the W. W. Kimball Co. nearly a half century.

THE EDISON BABY CONSOLE

New Product, Most Artistically Designed, Promises to Make a Strong Appeal

A new model, known as the Baby Console, has recently been created by Thomas A. Edison, Inc. The new instrument, as may be seen from the illustration, is of a design and character adaptable for practically any home. It is made in brown mahogany wax finish. Its length is 40 inches, height 35½ inches, depth 20½ inches, and it retails for $175.

On either side of the amplification chamber are compartments containing the special Edison filing device for records. A bulletin relating to this model reads in part as follows:

"A few years ago Thomas A. Edison, Inc., offered the public the first Console Period Models ever manufactured in the phonograph industry. These were the higher-priced authentic Period designs. In late years has come a desire for finer designs at popular prices and Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has met this desire with the charming Baby Console."

Deliveries on the new model are scheduled to come through in July and, in the meantime, this model has awakened wide interest on the part of Edison jobbers and dealers throughout the country, and according to all indications will be a model which will enjoy a large turnover.

OPENS FINE VICTOR DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 5.—Bullock's, of this city, has opened an attractive Victrola department. This is one of the largest department stores on the Pacific Coast and the handling of talking machines is a new venture for the company. W. V. Ray has been placed in charge of Victrola sales and Miss R. Johnson, formerly with Sherman, Clay & Co., is manager of the record department.

The Munson, Rayner Corp., of Los Angeles, Cal., has been made a Cheney distributor in that territory.

BROOKLYN DEALERS TELL OF BRIGHTER PROSPECTS

Prepare for Summer Trade—The Radio Situation—Bain Bros. & Friedberg Increase Capital to $150,000—New Sonora Representatives—Islip Dealer Expands—New Quarters for Lyons—Pavloff in Concert—News of Month

Talking machine business in Brooklyn and Long Island during the past month has been rather quiet, but talking machine dealers, considering everything, are getting their share. Long Island, with its many Summer resorts, where a large influx of visitors come each year, is much better off than its neighbors in Brooklyn, as regards sales. Already the demand for small machines, of the portable and table model type, has been evident and the result is that sales have not been far behind those of the previous month. All the new record releases of the different manufacturers have been featured intensively by a great number of dealers and in consequence the revenue from the sales of these records has helped make the month's total a satisfactory one.

As in every other section of the country, there has been considerable radio activity and although talking machine dealers have not taken on any appreciable amount of stock of radio equipment some has been sold. In most cases, however, talking machine dealers have been moving slowly as regards taking on the radio, and those who have done so very conservatively. There is a general feeling among the dealers that there is a field for radio equipment to be developed in conjunction with the talking machine and ultimately dealers, it is believed, will carry a representative stock.

Developing the Summer Campaign

The American Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler for Brooklyn and Long Island, is busy making plans for a Summer campaign among its dealers designed to promote the sale of small table Victrolas and the new Victrola portable. This work is opportune and it is expected that dealers will profit by this timely campaign. Charles Offerman, well-known sales representative of this company, is spending considerable of his time in the Long Island section and reports that dealers are quite optimistic about Summer business. Mr. Offerman will attend the Victor-Jobbers' Convention, which is to be held at Atlantic City, beginning June 12, and will be the representative there of this live wholesale concern.

Brun's "Maderite" moving covers for talking machines, report that the demand for the new console cover, recently placed on the market, has been very gratifying and that dealers are much pleased with it. They have also perfected a cover to fit the new Victrola portable model and are now working on a particular type of this cover that will enable the user of this small machine to play any record without removing the cover. It is so designed as to allow the lid of the machine to be lifted and opened without removing the padded cover. It is expected that this new feature will be received enthusiastically by the trade.

Increase Capital Stock to $150,000

Bain Bros. & Friedberg, well-known Victor dealers who conduct retail stores at 1655 Pitkin avenue and 1525 Pitkin avenue, and 1430 St. John's place, report that business with them has more than held its own since January. Last week the Board of Directors voted to increase the capital stock of the company from $30,000 to $150,000, this increase in capital to be used in promoting a larger growth of their already thriving business.

"The Regal" Makes Its Debut

The latest addition to the Brooklyn retail trade is a modern and up-to-date store, which was opened this month, at 360 Livingston street. This new store is to be known as "The Regal," and will feature several well-known makes of machines and records. Melvin Rieher, who has had considerable experience in the talking machine field, and who has been connected with prominent talking machine shops in Greater New York, is proprietor of this new establishment, and is well-qualified to insure the success of this new venture. The store is attractively decorated in a unique color scheme of black and orange, and as this location is a particularly desirable one from the retail talking machine standpoint, this store should soon become one of the best known in this section. Mr. Rieher is featuring in a very attractive window display, this month, a small imported table machine made entirely of wicker, and he reports that he has already sold a large number, and expects to sell many more before the Summer is over.

Death of John L. Spillane Regretted

The death recently of John L. Spillane, who was secretary of Collings & Co., Newark, N. J., the well-known Victor jobbers, is greatly regretted by a host of friends in Brooklyn and Long Island, where he was well known through his association with the talking machine trade for many years past. Mr. Spillane's son, James L. Spillane, who is following in the footsteps of his father in the talking machine field, is the manager of the Park Slope Talking Machine Co., Victor dealers, at 310 Flatbush avenue. His many friends in the trade sympathize with him on the untimely death of his beloved father.

New Sonora Dealer in Brooklyn

Among the new Sonora dealers established recently by the Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora jobbers for Brooklyn and Long Island, is A. Hielbronn & Sons, who conduct an up-to-date retail shop at Fifty-third street and Fifth avenue. To properly introduce this new line to the people of their immediate vicinity this company featured the entire Sonora line in a very attractive window display, which created much interest and received favorable comment by passers-by. During the week that this attractive window display was in use sales of machines increased surprisingly and being followed up by advertising in the local papers helped the sales for the month to show a very fine total figure. This account is considered a very desirable one, and it is expected will become one of the best accounts established by this hustling wholesale house.

T. J. Lyons Opens Margaret Music Shop

Thomas J. Lyons, well known in musical circles in Brooklyn, has just opened an exclusive Sonora shop at 306 Seventh avenue, to be known as the Margaret Music Shop. Mr. Lyons is to feature the Sonora line exclusively and will carry a complete stock of the well-known Aeolian-Vocalion records. His many friends in Brooklyn are wishing him every success in this new venture and his wide musical acquaintance should qualify him admirably to conduct a music shop in the best possible manner.

A Progressive Islip Dealer

H. L. Terry & Sons, Inc., who conduct Victor retail shops at Sayville and Islip, Long Island, are preparing for one of the busiest Summers they have yet experienced. In order to take care of the expected Summer business, the shop at Islip has been entirely renovated, new fixtures and booths installed and the show window enlarged and redecorated. Everett L. Terry, one of the sons, is manager of this store, and is considered one of the keenest retail managers in this section of Long Island. He has built up for this company, through his courteous and efficient service, a thriving Victor business. With this new equipment he will be able to serve the trade much better than heretofore and, in consequence, should show an appreciable increase in sales at the end of the year.

The Portable a Big Summer Factor

"Many dealers are taking advantage of the possibilities in the sale of the portable Victrola," said G. T. Williams, head of the G. T. Williams Co., Inc., Victor jobbers. "Those who have made a special point of displaying and demonstrating this machine have found a fertile sales field. Some dealers have called special attention to the portable through the use of their mailing lists, holding to the belief, and justly so, that many owners of Victrolas are logical prospects for the portable."

New Store for C. Ludwig Baumann

C. Ludwig Baumann, who conducts a retail store at 1449 Broadway, has just opened a new store at 935 Flatbush avenue, where the Sonora phonograph will be handled exclusively. A splendid new window has been erected with an attractive sign, which adds materially to the retail establishments of this particular section of Brooklyn. The addition of this new store to his already thriving business is certainly evidence that he has sufficient confidence in the future of the talking machine business to warrant this expenditure.

Sonora Jobbers Make Cheery Report

The Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora jobber for Brooklyn and Long Island, reports that business for the past month was very fair; in fact, officials of the company state that the totals exceeded those for the previous month. Considering the quiet condition of the trade, this statement by these officers is very gratifying. Discussing conditions, J. J. Schratweiser, general manager of the company, stated that every effort was being made to establish with their dealers a personal contact and that in every case possible, when a letter might be sent, a personal call is substituted, with the result

The Victor Portable

It is now time to display the Victor portable in your window and give it a conspicuous place in your wareroom.

Many of your record customers, although owners of Victrolas, are prime prospects for the portable.

Refer to it in your sales talks, whenever appropriate, and you will get many responses. The season is now on—get your share of the sales.

that a closer contact is established and a service rendered the dealer which he appreciates.

During the month of May four Louis XV DuBarry models, which retail for $650 each, were placed in the hands of Sonora dealers by this live wholesaler, and evidences the good work it has been doing in merchandising Sonora products in this section of New York.

New and Larger Quarters for J. J. Jones

J. J. Jones, prominent Sonora dealer, who has conducted a retail establishment at 1426 Nostrand avenue, for some time past, has found it necessary to look for larger quarters to take care of his increasing business; consequently, Mr. Jones has secured a very fine new store on Church avenue, near Nostrand, which he will equip in the latest and most approved manner. When completed it will be one of the very finest in this section of Brooklyn and will be admirably equipped to give to the people of this vicinity a service of the highest calibre.

Abraham & Straus Add Sonora Line

The Abraham & Straus department store recently added the Sonora line of phonographs to the lines of well-known makes already handled. This store, which is one of the largest in Brooklyn, has a fine, spacious talking machine department in which the new line is elaborately displayed.

Congratulations for Joseph Pavloff

The many friends of Joseph Pavloff, genial sales representative at the Pease-Behning Co. talking machine shop, 364 Livingston street, are extending their congratulations to him for his successful appearance in a dual concert with Irwin Hassell, held at the Academy of Music two weeks ago. Mr. Pavloff is a baritone singer and has appeared in many local concert events and is also well known as a church soloist. He has had a thorough musical education, which has helped him materially in merchandising talking machines to a very select musical clientele in Brooklyn. With this distinct qualification as a musician Mr. Pavloff is considered one of the best sales representatives in the Brooklyn talking machine trade and his success as such has been commented on by dealers throughout metropolitan New York.

Well-known Furniture House Will Handle Okeh Records Exclusively—Artophone Corp. Closes Important Deal With Bly-Moos Co.

St. Louis, Mo., June 5.—The Artophone Co., of this city, distributor of Okeh records, recently closed arrangements whereby the Bly-Moos Furniture Co., of St. Louis, will handle the complete line of Okeh records exclusively. The Bly-Moos Furniture Co. has opened attractive quarters at 4115-17 Manchester avenue, and the music department is one of the important features of its new home. An intensive publicity campaign will be inaugurated in behalf of Okeh records and the Artophone Corp. is delighted to include this prominent furniture house in its fast growing line of Okeh dealers.

COLUMBIA JOBBER HANDLES RADIO

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—H. C. Grove, Inc., 1210 G street, distributor in this territory for the products of the Columbia Graphophone Co., recently announced the addition of a complete stock of radio outfits and supplies. Since the company has become interested in the radio line a good business has been worked up and the demand is increasing steadily.

UNIQUE HONOR FOR IRENE PAVLOSKI

A unique honor was bestowed upon Irene Pavloski, Brunswick artist, at the close of the season of the St. Cecilia Club, of Tacoma, Wash., when at the final concert of the season she was presented with the baton and was asked to lead the chorus and audience in the singing of America. At the close of the concert she was tendered a reception by the members of the club and her work during the season was given the highest praise by critics in all the local papers. She scored a great success and arrangements have been made for her to appear again during the next concert season in this musical city.

Showing a Good Front!

The largest and most successful retail operators in the country place greater value on their show window space than on any other part of their store. Their gigantic success can be attributed in great part to the "dress" of their show windows. Getting the public's interest is always their plan, for that's more than half the game in selling merchandise.

Well known is the fact that people will enthuse over and patronize a store if only on account of the cleanliness and attractiveness of their display windows.

Many Victor Dealers have yet to learn the value—the real dollars and cents earning power—of their show windows. For the Victor Dealer, they truly have much to do with his success—they are his introduction to the public.

Whatever the make-up of the buyer, he will invariably direct his purchases to the store or establishment that makes a favorable and dignified showing—and what better method is there than through the "eyes of the store"—the show windows? Victor Dealers—who know—are "cashing in" through the agency of their window displays.

Morning, noon and night they are utilizing this most valuable space to the fullest extent and with lucrative results. Your show windows, Mr. Victor Dealer, will do real work for you if you will but lend a hand. Capitalize their use!!

National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers Holds Convention

Sixteenth Annual Gathering at Hotel Ambassador, Atlantic City, June 12 to 15, Attracts a Ninety Per Cent Membership Assemblage—Important Subjects Discussed in Reports of Officers and at the Various Business Sessions—A. A. Trostler Elected President—Most Successful Reunion

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 15.—The sixteenth annual convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers opened at the Hotel Ambassador on Monday morning with over 90 per cent of the membership represented and ready to give serious consideration to the trade problems of the day as they came up in the course of the program, as well as the suggestions offered by the Association officers and others looking to the betterment of Victor business.

The first session of the convention was given over to the reports of the officers and committees of the Association, the first report being that of Louis Buehn, the president, who reviewed the general situation clearly and at length as follows:

President Buehn's Report

As your presiding officer it is my duty and I consider it a privilege to give you a brief résumé of the activities of the Association since the last annual convention held in Colorado Springs.

My worthy predecessor at that time made reference to the serious problems that confronted us and suggested that it would be very difficult to correctly diagnose or offer any infallible remedy for them.

Some of the problems to which he referred are still with us and have been augmented by others to which we must give careful consideration and to the solving of which we must lend our best thought and energy.

While 1921 was undoubtedly a very trying year I believe it is quite safe to say that since January of this year we have been experiencing a most unsatisfactory condition in the sale of our product, and particularly in the sale of records.

This situation has become critical with many distributors and dealers, and while it may be difficult to find the precise reason for lack of sale, unquestionably the records that have been marketed at cut prices and the introduction of several nakes of 50-cent records have contributed very materially to this condition. In addition, we have the radio craze, which has taken, and is taking, considerable money out of phonograph channels, to contend with.

May I call to your attention that the demand by dealers for an increased discount on Victor products is becoming more and more general—the statement being made that at the present discount first-class stores cannot operate profitably—and comparison being made with the larger discounts being offered by competing lines.

Both of these conditions should have our earnest consideration, so that we may arrive at conclusions that will permit recommendations or action that will correct them, if, in our good judgment, we deem it necessary or desirable.

Fundamental Business Conditions Better

Available reports indicate that fundamental business conditions throughout the country are better to-day than they have been for many months and a striking illustration of this is the tremendous recovery of the automobile industry, which goes far to substantiate this statement. It is my opinion that when our own line shows a recovery that may be compared to this many of our present worries will disappear.

It is my hope that at these meetings we will consider wisely the problems directly concerning us, and reach conclusions that will be helpful to each and every one and make it possible to have our industry continue on the high plane to which it is entitled.

Executive Committee Meetings

Since our last annual meeting there have been two open executive meetings, the first held at Chicago at the Hotel Drake on Monday, March 13 and Tuesday, the 14th, and the second in New York City at the Hotel Commodore, on March 15 and 16. At these meetings many questions were discussed vital to our business with which you are all familiar, either having been in attendance in person or having received a report from the secretary. As a result of these meetings two committees were appointed, one to investigate the desirability of recommending favorably or otherwise the financing of dealers' leases through finance companies and the other committee to inquire into the desirability of co-operative buying. Both of these committees will report to this convention. In addition, your president appointed a your treasurer. May I suggest that close attention be given this report, as we are an organization with constant demands being made upon us and some consideration should be given to our growing needs.

Membership

There have been some changes in our membership in the past year, which will be given you in detail by the chairman of the Membership Committee.

Music Industries Chamber of Commerce

It was my privilege to attend two of the meetings of the board of directors of the Chamber and I can endorse heartily the value of this organization to the music trade generally. They are coming to realize more fully the value of the phonograph industry and are working exceedingly hard and efficiently for the good of the music industry in general. They have instituted an excellent system of credit reports, of which I

special committee to meet with the directors of the Victor Co. early in January, a detailed report of which meeting was sent each member, under date of January 12.

Legislation

Last Fall the chairman of your Legislative Committee, J. N. Blackman, and your president attended a conference held in Washington with the Senate Finance Committee. This was also attended by representatives of many other industries, who were unanimous in recommending a sales tax to replace the present excess profits tax.

The new tax law now in effect removes the excise tax on phonographs. This was accomplished largely through the efforts of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, and particularly through special work done by Ralph L. Freeman, of the Victor Talking Machine Co.

Finance

Our financial situation will be fully covered by would recommend every member of our organization to take advantage. Their financial report shows an income of something over $90,000 for the fiscal year, of which amount the phonograph industry contributed $17,000. Of this latter amount our organization gave $5,000, and it is my recommendation that we continue to give the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce our financial as well as moral support.

Committee on Arrangements

Your committee has worked to make this convention not only interesting and enjoyable, but also profitable, and I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the chairman and his co-workers for the excellent manner in which they have accomplished their work.

The annual golf tournament will be held at the Seaview Country Club, under the direction of the chairman, J. C. Roush, who in due course will announce the details of the program.

The other standing committees of our organization will each have a report to make, so I need not dwell upon them here.

May I refer at this time to the action taken at our two open Executive Committee meetings, the endorsement of the Distributors' Transfer Bureau and likewise the endorsement of the horizontal type Victrolas.

If the Transfer Bureau has not functioned to your entire satisfaction it is not due to any fault of the Victor Co., but to conditions over which they have had no control and which they no doubt will gladly explain.

The Horizontal Victrolas

I sincerely hope that our endorsement of the horizontal Victrolas has had the hearty support of each distributor in selling this proposition to the dealer and I am happy to say that such reports as have come to me indicate an increase in business on these types which insures its success and again vindicates the wisdom of the Victor Co. in its manufacturing program.

I would be remiss if I did not make special mention of our secretary, W. F. Davisson. As you all know, the secretary elected at the last pared and mailed to the members on January 24.

The only Executive Committee meetings held during the year were two open meetings in March. The first was held in Chicago, March 13, with a good attendance of Western members, and the second held in New York March 15 and 16, with an attendance of members which more nearly resembled an annual convention than an Executive Committee meeting. Many important subjects were very thoroughly discussed at these meetings. The Executive Committee on March 17, immediately following the New York meeting, held a conference at Camden with the directors of the Victor Co. The committee brought to the attention of the Victor officials some of the matters discussed at our open meetings and we presented them with a resolution pertaining to the exploitation of the new horizontal models. This resolution was enthusiastically received. A copy of it was sent to all members shortly after the meeting.

The Association Roster

Our Association roster now consists of seventy parent houses and seven branch houses. We have lost during the past year four parent houses, owing to their retirement from the talking machine business.

I am pleased to inform you of the addition to our organization of two new parent houses, the French Nestor Co., of Jacksonville, Fla., and the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co., of Oklahoma City, Okla. We therefore have suffered a net loss of two parent houses during the past year. There is still one Victor wholesaler who is not a member, Orton Bros., Butte, Mont.

This organization has been asked by the National Chamber of Commerce during the past year to vote on three referenda, Nos. 36, 37 and 38. Due to the splendid work of our national councillor and the co-operation of our Executive Committee all ballots have been cast in an intelligent manner.

Financial Status

The report of our treasurer at the last convention showed cash and Liberty bonds, mostly Liberty bonds, amounting to $1,017.26. During the past year the secretary's office has collected and turned over to Treasurer Mairs $7,250 received for dues and $7,150 from the special assessment voted at Colorado Springs, the total sum from two sources being $14,400.

I regret the necessity of reporting $350 delinquent dues and assessments. One member is de-will have this week will be the result of this committee's work. I want to extend my thanks to members of this committee, not only for the good work done here, but for the share they played in the success of the March open meetings. I also wish to thank each officer and the members for the excellent co-operation extended me. I have frequently asked for assistance or suggestions and the response has been prompt and helpful.

Treasurer Mairs Tells of Finances

Next in order came the report of the treasurer, George A. Mairs, indicating that the finances of the Association were in good shape, after which J. Newcomb Blackman, chairman of the legislative committee, presented the following report on legislative and legal matters:

Report of Legislative Committee

During the war it was obvious that no legislation was important enough to receive serious consideration other than that having to do with annual convention, Charles Bennett, had to give up his duties. Mr. Davisson was the unanimous choice of the executive committee and the excellent manner in which he has conducted his office compels me to single him out for special commendation.

In conclusion, I wish to express my appreciation of the splendid co-operation of the various officers and committees and the hearty support that has been given me during my term by all the members.

Report of Secretary Davisson

The next report was that of the secretary, W. F. Davisson, who has accomplished much since assuming the office at the first of the year. His report read:

Since assuming the duties of the secretaryship of this Association, which duties I was requested by President Buehn to assume, about December 1 last, all matters pertaining to the secretary's office have been attended to in a manner which, I hope, has been satisfactory to all of the membership.

Early in January President Buehn appointed a special committee of five, composed of Messrs. Buehn, Blackman, Rauth, Wiswell and your secretary, to meet with the directors of the Victor Co. on January 9. The subjects discussed were horizontal models, record exchange, shortage of supplements and foreign records. The report of this meeting was sent to each of you under date of January 12.

Fully realizing the importance of the Supreme Court's decision, in the Beechnut case, to our members Mr. Montague was asked to prepare a statement as to just how this decision affected our members. A statement was promptly prelinquent in both dues and assessments, while another member who has one parent and one branch membership has not paid the assessment.

W. F. Davisson, the New Secretary

My work has been greatly lightened by our very able Arrangement Committee. It has handled every detail in connection with this convention, and all the good times which I am sure you the conduct and winning of the war. With the signing of the Armistice the mass of legislation of the most important character had to have first attention. Recent events disclose the fact that Congress is very busy in an attempt to pass bills considered by everybody as calling for immediate solution.

The Stephens-Kelly Bill

The "Stephens-Kelly" bill in its present form represents many amendments, all of which have been made to conform with the recommendations of the Federal Trade Commission, as well as others influential in the Government. Perhaps at no other time has the outlook been as favorable for passage of this much-needed legislation.

The American Fair Trade League, to which we contribute annually, has been constantly active to keep alive this bill and prepare the way for its passage when those best fitted to know determine it is opportune to have it reported and urge its passage. At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the League, attended by me, our long and tireless fight seemed to be approaching success when the reports of the secretary of the League and of its chief counsel, Joseph E. Davies, were received. Mr. Davies was formerly chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

A Friend at Court

In James M. Beck, the present Solicitor General of the United States, we have a friend for the reason that his former association as counsel for the Victor Co. enables him to know many of our problems, the abuses from which we have been suffering and the merits of our recommendations for legislation supplementing the Sherman Act.

It is unfortunate and very annoying that the Victor Co., and we distributors, have been a target in attacks in the courts and through investigations on the part of Governmental bodies. Still, it is my firm belief that the dawn of much better days is ahead. I think we have seen the worst and will eventually be successful in having passed some legislation which will give us the legal right to not only choose our customer, but to enter into a voluntary contract with him under terms and conditions that will foster continued business relations profitable to the parties thereof and insuring honesty in merchandising for the public.

Your Legislative Committee might also be termed a Legal Committee. Therefore your chairman has kept in close touch with the legal situation, following various decisions of the Supreme Court, and our counsel, Gilbert H. Montague, has kept us informed of the progress being made or ground lost through legal action, and particularly court decisions. In this report it will not only be quite impossible, but inadvisable, to attempt to go into detail regarding the activity of what may be termed your Legislative and Legal Committee.

So, I will conclude with the recommendation that we continue our activities along the lines we have pursued and that I be given an opportunity to address our members in convention covering any details that might be important enough to discuss, or to answer questions.

The Financing of Dealers

Mr. Blackman also presented a report for the special committee on financing dealers, of which he is chairman, which read:

Your special committee appointed to investigate and report upon the desirability of Victor dealers financing their instalment accounts through the medium of so-called financing companies has given the subject very careful consideration and reports as follows:

We do not believe that in normal times there would be a great demand for supplemental financing of this kind. This conclusion is arrived at because when business is normal there is sufficient turnover and cash transactions.

Broadly speaking, all merchants, including Victor dealers, should be competent to run a business and have due regard for the philosophy of business economics. They should have reasonable capital. This will entitle them to a liberal amount of credit on merchandise, as well as banking accommodation, consistent with their financial responsibility and credit reputation.

The Wisdom of Conservatism

There appears to be a natural tendency for the smaller dealer to compete with the large one. In doing so he often attempts to do more business than he can handle safely. In other words, when a Victor dealer has reached the point of having exhausted his own capital, plus bank accommodation, he should consider very seriously the wisdom of expanding his business beyond that point.

The cost of getting money from financial companies is very high when compared with usual bank rates. It is argued, however, that inasmuch as the business done on this plan is over and above the usual volume the overhead is correspondingly lower and it is profitable. Our investigation discloses the fact, however, that when a dealer assigns his instalment leases and it becomes known by his creditors his credit is weakened and his accommodation reduced.

J. Newcomb Blackman

Dealers Should Consult Distributors

We do not feel that we can fairly recommend our Association either favoring or disapproving of the use by Victor dealers of financing companies in connection with their instalment business. It is apparent to us that every case to be decided is one having its own situation to meet and that the Victor dealer should come to his distributor and frankly seek his advice in the matter. Many distributors are financially able and will welcome directly aiding their dealers in the extension of credit, the acceptance of their notes or in approaching their banks, either to get credit or to obtain a larger loan. We believe it is the proper function of the Victor distributor to take on these obligations and not encourage his dealer going to a financing company until he has first frankly stated his need for this help to his wholesaler. Furthermore, the banks are more friendly and will give better support to their borrowing depositors if they seek advice regarding such needs.

The Right and the Wrong Way

If this plan is followed by the Victor dealer and he uses a finance plan with the approval of his Victor distributor and his bank he may be sure that he is not courting financial embarrassment at some future time. On the other hand, if he fails to do this and his line of credit is stopped or seriously curtailed by the finance company for any of many reasons which may bring about that condition he is not in a position to get the support of his wholesaler or of his bank. A condition resulting in bankruptcy has occurred in many such cases.

Most financing plans are not needed by the big dealer with ample capital and credit. Therefore we find this demand largely among the smaller dealers who want to increase their volume or meet the terms of larger competitors. In most cases this involves the endorsement of the dealers' notes by the distributor. If the distributor must endorse for the dealer and become a party to the transaction we believe he should consider seriously first the need for such financing. He should have the courage of refusal and be willing to suffer the loss of that dealer's business rather than encourage an unprofitable transaction and an eventual financial embarrassment.

We suggest that our Association recommend that all Victor dealers accept credit from financing companies only with the approval and cooperation of their principal Victor distributors and bank creditors.

Report of Traffic Committee

Next came the report of the traffic committee by Chairman E. C. Rauth, who said:

Since our traffic matters are so ably looked after by the Victor Talking Machine Co. your committee has had nothing to occupy its attention during the past year.

The 10 per cent reduction in freight rates, to take effect July 1, of which all of our members are no doubt aware, will act as a stimulus to

PERMANENCY

WHAT a wonderful meaning the word "Permanency" really has!
WHAT a world of meaning it holds for the talking machine dealer.

PERMANENCY OF THE QUALITY OF THE INSTRUMENT
 PERMANENCY OF THE SERVICE RENDERED
 PERMANENCY OF THE MANUFACTURER
 PERMANENCY OF THE WHOLESALER

The Victrola has always been a quality product. The permanency of its style and tone and its supremacy of performance make it the most highly desired talking machine in the world today.

The Victor Talking Machine Company has for a quarter-century been engaged in the sound-reproducing art—years of brain, heart and hand, which have produced an instrument without a peer in permanency of sound-reproduction and satisfaction.

The Eclipse Musical Company has been serving the dealers in this territory continuously for the past eighteen years. During this period T. H. and P. J. Towell have uninterruptedly controlled and guided the affairs of this company, and our Manager, E. B. Lyons, has been in daily contact with your requirements for the past seven years, watching conditions, assisting and protecting the interests of the trade—permanency of service which has held the confidence of hundreds of Victor dealers throughout the territory.

Through these many years of merchandising we have won a reputation with our customers which is built upon a Gibraltar of faith and permanency.

Link permanency with durability, dependability and performance and you have all that can be desired in a talking machine. All are of such vital importance that each and every one should have equal weight with you, Mr. Dealer.

We unhesitatingly claim that the VICTROLA has every one of these qualifications.

Do you know any other talking machine that has?

business generally, as well as to that of our industry.

Thanks the Trade Press

The report of the press sent in by Dan Creed, chairman, reviewed the support given the Association by The Talking Machine World and other trade publications during the year and expressed the thanks of the committee for the advance publicity given the present convention by these publications.

J. C. Roush on Golf Plans

Joseph C. Roush, as chairman of the Golf Committee, offered a report in which he reviewed the results of the tournament at Colorado Springs last year and outlined the arrangements for this year's tournament, giving a list of the various prizes offered by Association members and others, including a cup presented by The Talking Machine World.

The morning session closed with a report by L. C. Wiswell on a co-operative advertising plan presented to the jobbers, which was held over for discussion at the afternoon session.

Co-operative Advertising Plan

The report presented by Mr. Wiswell, as chairman, was that of a special committee appointed to investigate the possibilities of co-operative buying and advertising methods for the sales development of dealers' business and, in full, was as follows:

Inasmuch as your special committee was instructed to investigate and report at this convention on two separate and distinct subjects, namely, distributors' co-operative advertising, methods of dealers' sales-helps and co-operative buying, we will offer our report in two parts, first report covering the advisability of our Association, through some agency, issuing dealers' sales-helps, etc., and, secondly, co-operative buying of such packing supplies as commonly used by our members.

Report No. 1

Your committee has individually and collectively studied this question at considerable length, also held a meeting with Reincke-Ellis Co., specialists in Victor dealers' advertising and sales-helps and who at our last Executive Committee meetings presented an outline of their ideas on the subject. The findings of our investigation and conclusions are that while there is obviously a great wastage of effort on the part of various distributors and their salesmen in featuring special advertising and sales-helps to their clientele of dealers, as well as at times a seemingly excessive cost for certain advertising matter (account of lack of quantity output), yet we are apprehensive lest the elimination of this work on the part of the various distributors, having all the promotional work done through one central agency, would, in a measure, have a tendency to destroy on the part of the distributor his initiative and development of competitive sales methods, thus deadening, so to speak, the enthusiasm for sales promotion work. For example: Parents are more concerned in their own offspring than they are in their neighbor's children, more concerned over their welfare and growth, just so is the distributor more concerned and enthusiastic for the success of his own individual ideas as expressed in his dealers' sales-helps than he would be for the same character of material furnished through some central bureau.

Undoubtedly some central agency, like the Reincke-Ellis Co., which understood the Victor game, distributors' and dealers' problems, especially the dealers' needs in the way of advertising assists and sales-helps, with the help of the Association and the members' traveling representatives, could create such an outlet among the Victor dealers for these sales-helps, etc., to warrant a large run, thus bringing the cost down, hence lower selling cost and consequent saving to the dealer. However, viewing it in a larger sense, would not this slight saving in cost to the distributor and dealer be inconsequential when measured against the loss of distributors' initiative and enthusiasm for sales promotion ideas?

This is an important as well as big piece of work, and despite the work done by your committee they are still of the opinion that there is much unexplored ground to cover and hesitate to make any definite recommendation, rather leaving further action to the pleasure of the convention, and if it be the sense of this convention that workable arrangements could be made, that a new committee be appointed to carry on investigations to a definite conclusion.

At the time of our meeting with the Reincke-Ellis Co. ideas were advanced by Mr. Reincke, namely, that our Association issue a monthly trade publication for distribution to every recognized Victor dealer. It was suggested by Mr. Reincke that the magazine would be issued under the caption or name "Sound Selling" and that the object of the publication would be to disseminate such information to the Victor dealer trade as would be of interest to them and beneficial in their promotion of Victor business.

The publication, while in a measure similar to the Victor Co.'s publication, "Voice of the Victor," would be unlike it in that it would be the mouthpiece of every Victor distributor, broadcasting to his dealers not alone interesting facts about the Victrola game and the success of this or that dealer who by some novel advertising method is putting over a nice sales campaign, but would by illustrated articles vividly teach the dealer how not only to close sales in his store but to really go out after the business.

Through the medium of the publication of this kind the distributor could say much in commendation of the Victor proposition that the Victor Co. would hesitate to say itself; for illustration, the new horizontal type Victrola. There is much the Victor Co. could say about the merits of these instruments but for obvious reason would not like to express itself. However, we as distributors, in a monthly publication (not being handicapped by any reserve), could wave the flag and blow the trumpet, telling Victor dealers everywhere regarding the merits of these particular instruments, why the dealer should put the line over, and other instances innumerable could be cited.

Your committee is of the opinion that a publication of this character would mean much to the Victor trade as a whole. However, as in all things, the element of cost must be taken into consideration. The Reincke-Ellis Co. informs us that it would cost approximately 25 cents per copy to issue a booklet of the character they have in mind and of which Mr. Reincke has samples here at this convention, and I am going to ask that at the proper time the convention permit Mr. Reincke to present his ideas, which will be more concrete and to the point than we could cover in this report, the cost of 25 cents per copy to cover cost of editing, printing, mailing postage, etc. Figuring approximately eight thousand Victor dealers in the United States to whom a copy of this booklet should be sent, the cost would be $2,000 per month, and on a twelve months' contract would amount to $24,000.00, which sum, of course, would have to be forthcoming from our treasury, which would mean either an increase in dues or special assessment.

As a subject of this kind has not a precedent in our Association, your committee would rather offer their findings without specific recommendation, assuming that it would be best that open discussion be had on the subject with our report as basis for such discussion.

Report No. 2—"Co-operative Buying"

Under date of April 26 your committee sent out a letter to all Association members requesting certain information as to sizes, cost, quantity used and name of manufacturer of packing material used in their business, such as packing boxes and corrugated sheets. A special form was enclosed for the reporting of this information, and we are happy to report that the co-operation given us by the members in returning the forms promptly was splendid.

Considerable labor was involved in recording this information, reducing all of the reports to concrete form in order that the figure could be properly analyzed. After this work was done the chairman called a meeting of the committee at his office in Chicago, at which time the matter was thoroughly gone into.

Your committee was amazed to find from the reports received the great difference in ideas as to the proper size of record packing boxes as shown by the hundreds of different sizes used by distributors, hardly any two distributors using the same size packing boxes. Our members are using over two hundred different-sized packing boxes, which means that each member has his own idea as to what size box to use. In many instances there is only a variation of a fraction of an inch, yet it is a different size, and where material that does not cut into this or that size does not cut to advantage it means increased cost of manufacture.

The conclusion of your committee in regard to packing boxes was that it would be useless to follow the matter up further in view of the great discrepancy in size of the boxes used, and in our estimation and judgment co-operative buying would not be practical until we, as distributors, decide upon and adopt a suitable packing box of uniform size and quality. If this is made possible then prices could be obtained from manufacturers in such quantity lots that we could undoubtedly effect considerable saving.

In the matter of corrugated sheets or boards, 10-inch and 12-inch size, information gathered shows that by co-operative buying a saving could be effected for practically every distributor. From figures given the committee, members are paying for 10-inch cardboard sheets prices ranging from $3.50 to $10.65 per M. and for 12-inch size $3.95 to $11.60 per M. You will, therefore, readily appreciate from this range in price that there should be no question that if we could get together and pool our business, so to speak, agreeing to purchase through the organization, either through the secretary's office or special committee, all our cardboard sheet requirements, a considerable saving could be effected for us all. To substantiate our statement we have had quotations submitted by various corrugated paper manufacturers, based on .009 stock million quantity lots, LCL and CL shipments, f. o. b. destination, from Hinde-Dauch Co., Sefton Mfg. Co. and Thompson-Norris Co. Quotations from Hinde-Dauch Co. are lower in every instance with just one or two exceptions than that paid by our members, and it is possible in the cases of the exceptions that lighter weight stock of paper is being used, possibly .007 stock, whereas quotations were asked for on .009 stock.

Your committee recommendation, based on their hurried investigation and survey—time would not permit our going into the subject in complete detail—is that the question of co-operative buying of all packing material commonly used by all our members, corrugated packing boxes and corrugated sheets, is not only feasible but advisable. However, before such scheme could be worked out our members should be a unit in the adoption of a uniform packing box as to size and quality, and it is the sense of your committee that this report be favorably received and that the chairman appoint a new committee to conduct further investigation.

Plan Receives Favorable Consideration

The entire afternoon session on Monday was devoted to the discussion of the matter presented in the report, and favorable consideration was given to the plan for getting out a monthly publication. The special committee, consisting of Mr. Wiswell, H. Goldsmith, C. H. Grinnell, J. N. Blackman, French Nestor, T. H. Towell and H. W. Weymann, took the matter under discussion again for the purpose of recommending a plan for financing the project.

Victor Co. Entertains Jobbers

The opening social event of the week was the dinner and dance tendered to the members of the National Association of talking machine jobbers and their friends by the Victor Co. at the Hotel Ambassador on Monday night. It was a most delightful affair in every particular, being planned and carried out in characteristic Victor Co. style.

During the dinner in the Venetian Room there was some lively entertainment by the Kentucky Serenaders, who sang as well as played, followed by a short concert by Paul Whiteman and his celebrated orchestra. Then came the dancing in the Pompeian Room, also to the music of Whiteman's Orchestra, which kept up until there was very little time to catch a few winks of sleep preparatory to the next day's business. It was a wonderful evening and started the week off most successfully.

Second Convention Session Tuesday

The Tuesday morning session of the convention was devoted to the consideration of the report of the committee on the publication plan. After a discussion participated in by all the members, it was finally agreed to increase the annual dues of the Association from one hundred to four hundred dollars in order to finance the plan. The balance of the session was given over to general discussions regarding machine types and merchandising subjects, nothing of startling significance, however, materializing.

M. P. Campbell Talks on "Better Selling"

The Tuesday afternoon session of the convention opened with an address by Mark P. Campbell, president of the Brambach Piano Co., on "Better Selling," a subject that has a special appeal for the talking machine men. In the course of his talk Mr. Campbell said:

"What a wonderful industry we have!—it has no parallel and no competitor. Its appeal is fundamental and inherent. The lowliest tribe in darkest Africa has its form of music and rhythm. The newspapers have had a fine time exploiting the experiments of music with animals. One paper, commenting on the fact that cows can be induced to give more milk when a Victrola is played near at hand, asks if the bossies would give a milk shake if a jazz orchestra were playing.

The Misuse of "Luxury"

"During the past war the word 'luxury' suffered more defining, abuse, contorting and condensing than perhaps any other ever has, as on its interpretation depended the fate of so many industries in the war. So far as I am able to analyze the various activities and occupations that make up the cycle of human endeavor, luxury plays an important part in all of them. The suit of clothes that each of us is wearing has an average cost, say, of $50. The material is worth about $6 or $7. The balance of the cost represents the style—discrimination and vanity—all of which is in excess of the primitive want. If you think I am exaggerating, ask any friend to show you his favorite picture of the best camping trip he ever took. You will find him photoed in a two-dollar sweater, a worthless pair of pants and a happy smile that is absolutely free. Go right down the line—take your house (I don't care whether it is a beautiful Park Avenue apartment, a Long Island estate or a place in the Santa Fe Valley), compare it with the tent or the shack on the picture I mentioned a few minutes ago. Isn't it also true of the things you eat—they, too, are about 90 per cent luxury and 10 per cent necessity.

"Next on the list of life's necessities is music—much or little of it could hardly be put in the extravagance class. To me, if luxury were at-

Intensive Merchandising

Victor dealers who thoroughly appreciate the value of intensive merchandising will find the 1922 fall season the most productive in their history. There will be a shortage of Victor product this fall, and far-sighted Victor dealers will bear this fact in mind when making their plans.

The C. C. Mellor Co. Victor organization is splendidly equipped to assist you in developing an intensive merchandising campaign.

tempted in this sphere, it would no longer be music.

Selling a Great Art

"The manufacturing of anything is a habit—the selling of it is a great art. It is sometimes said that the real selling is done at the manufacturing plant, and an article well made is half sold. And I will ask you to think of so perfect a thing as a true diamond—it is the very pinnacle of quality, yet, gentlemen, I know you realize that before it is placed the finest work in the art of the selling profession must be used.

"Salesmanship has just entered the ranks of professionalism. We are still in the very early stages of its development. It is true that the professors who hold the chair of selling in our University of Industry have taken enormous strides in the metaphysics of the art. But, as Abraham Lincoln would say, it is a long way from their exalted position to the people who break their crackers in their soup.

"Hugo Chalmers says 'Salesmanship is simply a matter of showing your merchandise to enough people.' This old, stand-by method has moved many a piece of old stock.

The New School of Selling

"In the floundering around to get a new stand after the passing of the old school of selling, i. e., selling only through friendships, everything has been tried; hunches followed; tips eagerly sought; advertising used extensively, and many things that were all out of balance with industrial continuity of action.

"It was but a few short years ago that business conditions were forecast by quiet whisperings of what the Victor Co. were going to do or what the U. S. Steel Corp. were preparing for. Then this epidemic spread and many who could attach a title to their names sent out warnings and advice, prognosticating what was sure to happen in the following six months. This kind of advice was more common and wearisome than the 'Special Sales' that we now have to endure. Our own Music Week had for counter attractions in the same week Physical Culture Week and Linoleum Week. The banks began to give out selling aids in the way of monthly bulletins, basing their decisions not on oracle-like gossips but on cold facts of exports and imports, bank clearing and deposits. One bank quietly wrote off about $15,000,000 while it was telling the world how to make money. The professional dopesters have come up like a lot of mushrooms. If we do as they say, where and when, selling will be a mere matter of form. Two firms—one in Chicago and one in New York—have dedicated their business to selling, at high prices, information that gives the secret of success of other companies.

"All of this information is good to have—it charts the sea, but it does not sail the boat. The latter is what we have to do for ourselves.

Market the First Consideration

"The market is the first consideration, and our fingers must be kept on its pulse at all times to know just what the conditions are. The fact that it has always been strong, healthy and even vigorous is not proof of its continuing so. Strong men sometimes die in their prime. The music box manufacturer was courting a very fickle lady—overnight she turned her fancy to the talking machine. The home organ slipped out to the edge of oblivion. On the horizon comes a mystery about which we know little in a conventional way, but which is causing real heart-flutters on the part of music dealers. Should we call it a foreign competitor and see to it that it does not cross our paths, or should we welcome it with open arms and lend it every possible assistance—develop it and call it one of the family? I do not think that it has taken form, it can't be distinguished yet. Perhaps it is only a mechanical toy and perhaps the greatest of all musical instruments. We must watch it carefully at any rate. What will be the surname of Radio? Its present position reminds me of one of Irving Cobb's stories of the Ozark mountaineers. An old mountaineer said to his wife:

'Be that our kid out by the well yonder?' His wife replied: 'T's been watchin' him off and on for the past two days. Maybe if I get a chanct I'll catch him, ef I can, wash him good and see.'

When to Change the Bait

"The psychology of the buying public is applicable to the old saying of the fisherman: If they don't bite, change the bait. How true that is in selling! You are all salesmen and know that the effect of changing the bait has often been to increase the sales. The last change was to the console model, and a dealer told me it had jumped his sales over 100 per cent over a year ago. In department stores clerks are told when they have completed the sale to recommend an article of an entirely different nature. The effect is often wonderful—the power of suggestion and the new idea combine to bring action.

"All runners are interested in the condition of the track. A good track means better racing, and that means better prizes to be divided. The problem before us now is fundamental and underlying. Before we get ready with our crack selling forces to break selling records we must get a good track ready. That track is not made of cinders, but of a natural love of music expressed consciously. For the next few years that is to be the big selling idea.

Reaching the Children With Music

"The Bureau for the Advancement of Music has made tremendous strides with the children in the schools—in organizing the Music Memory contests and through the music teachers. Tremendous credit must be paid to Mr. Childs and the Victor Co. for what they have done in the home. It is a positive delight to hear small children talk of operas and show an appreciation of the composers and their work. If you will stand on the side streets just off Broadway in the district of musical publishers you will hear every other person humming a tune, with music coming through the windows. I never go through that section of New York without wanting to sing. That, gentlemen, is the atmosphere that we want to create throughout America.

"It is my opinion, and I say it advisedly, that we should give away as many samples of music as time and opportunity will allow, free concerts, music in the stores—boost choral societies, promote festivals—do everything within our power to have music radiate and fill the air. Edgar Guest says: 'It is pictures for the blind and it is surely food for the heart.'

The Meaning of Service

"Now, by 'service,' I do not imply any meaning of the word 'servant' for the salesman. That is quite another thing. The usual meaning of 'service,' as applied to a business, means a large stock of merchandise on hand with prompt deliveries and records on approval without limit. The mechanical part of the business is a subject of which I will say nothing, as it varies so much with the localities, the customs of the neighborhood and the way in which dealers have educated the people. Let me make myself clear on this point in a few words: We should promote service of music, not personal attention.

"Edward Bok puts over a mighty fine text in his book, 'The Americanization of Edward Bok,' in which he preaches: 'Let each one of us live so that this world will be a more livable and happier place in which to dwell.' What a chance we have with music to carry out this idea!

"Someone has defined a civil engineer as 'a man without a job.' Reflect on this and you will readily see how true it is. Twenty-five years ago our technical schools were turning them out by the hundreds. The demand for them was tremendous; railroads could not get them fast enough for railroad constructing and for bridge building; cities wanted them for water systems, enlargements, planned cities, etc. Development was the order of the day for the country. Efficiency was the watchword of the factory. Taylor and his school were thought of in terms of admiration because he enabled a man to produce two times as much as he could consume. That left a large surplus for the luxuries of life. Secretary Davis, of the President's Cabinet, said in his speech to the music merchants last week in New York: 'Enable the worker to produce a surplus over his needs and pay him for it so that he may have some of the luxuries. One partaking of the luxuries of life is happy, even if they are small luxuries.'

"Education is a delicate subject to discuss, unless one lauds it generally. So I speak advisedly. I do not believe that the educational system of higher education will continue or be the solution of the future. We have general pity for those who have had riches and have lost them.

To me their troubles are commonplace to those of a man or woman who has been given an education he cannot support. The education of a person should be to the extent of his or her ability to satisfy his desires and no more.

"The best wish that I could give a little girl is that she may have the essentials of life, and for luxuries—a sense of humor and a working knowledge of one of the fine arts: music, painting or literature.

"Pleasure or happiness is to be desired over keen efficiency without love and life, or perhaps I had better say living.

We Live to Work

"On every hand we are told that the world is improving. That is just a delusion. For, to-day we live to work, instead of working to live. Read your ancient history, from the days of Babylon to Napoleon. See what each succeeding generation has added to the happiness of mankind. Some generations have added nothing; some have taken away. The majority have added. Take our own generation, and what is the one predominating factor? The watchword is Speed, and more speed. To-day we must surpass yesterday and to-morrow to-day. Morse connected Baltimore with Washington to transmit messages in a moment's time. The world took it up and our country alone is entangled in 9,000,000 miles of wire to speed the thoughts of man. In twenty-five years our railroads put a net over our land and through our mountains, so that the people, the products and the merchandise might be delivered sooner. The telephone shoots the human voice 3,000 miles and back in the twinkling of an eye; the telegram was too slow. Eighteen hours to Chicago, because a mail contract hung in the balance, regardless of wrecks and lives that were sacrificed. And now, gentlemen, the aeroplane has left the once magnificent Limited creeping and crawling on its belly of steel.

"If I thought that the men in my factory were making production records for the sake of the records or to return to me my own talent or my five talents, I would stop the factory to-day, give the workmen my ideas on life and how to live, and send them on their way.

"The piano, as a console Victrola, has a mission in life, more than just to be a sale for cash. If that was its only purpose, it would have but one uniform price and that is thirty pieces of silver, regardless of the rate of exchange.

"No—to spread happiness, to endear the members of each family to the shrine of the fireside and to make pictures for the soul—that is Music. That is our mission.

"You gentlemen have within your grasp the most powerful factor with which to do this work—the Victrola, and Mr. Childs' Victor catalog of music.

Everywhere I hear comparisons of the Victor to other talking machines, or rather other machines to the Victrolas—that is the supreme compliment to the Victor.

Rudyard Kipling framed the words for the lips of the director of the destinies of Victor in "The Mary Gloster" when he said:

"I didn't begin with askings. I took my job and stuck; I took the chances they wouldn't, and now they're calling it luck. And they asked me how I did it, and I gave 'em the Scripture text, 'You keep your light so shining a little in front o' the nex.' They copies all they could follow but they couldn't copy my mind, and I left 'em sweating and stealing a year and a half behind."

In closing Mr. Campbell declared that talking prosperity had almost become a cult and that the time had come to stop talking and plan ways and means and go to work. We have had years of prosperity and have been sowing and sowing. Now was the time to profit by that labor and do some reaping.

Following Mr. Campbell's address the regular business of the meeting was again taken up and there were several discussions on problems with a particular bearing on the Victor business from the jobbers' angle.

New Officers Elected

Next came the election of officers with the following result:

President—Arthur A. Trostler, the Schmelzer Co., Kansas City.

Vice-president—Thomas F. Green, Silas E. Pearsall Co., New York.

Secretary—W. F. Davisson, Perry B. Whitsit Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Treasurer—George A. Mairs, W. J. Dyer & Bro., St. Paul, Minn.

Executive Committee—Louis Buehn, L. C. Wiswell, J. N. Blackman, W. H. Reynolds, E. C. Rauth, C. H. Grinnell, G. A. Dodge, G. E. Mickel, J. C. Roush and W. T. Haddon.

The Annual Banquet of the Association

On Tuesday evening was held the annual banquet of the Association, which proved one of the most enjoyable affairs of the week because the official program was short and snappy and just long enough to prove interesting.

During the discussion of the elaborate menu the guests were entertained by the Kentucky Serenaders and later by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, so that there was a continuous round of music. There was also the popular "Angel Chorus" singing the usual songs in the usual way.

Louis Buehn, the retiring president, in introducing James F. Bowers as toastmaster, cited the fact that the past year has been one of accomplishment for the Association, and took occasation to thank the officers and committees for the work that had been done. Mr. Bowers, whose fame as a toastmaster may be said to be national, rose to the occasion in his accustomed brilliant style and left with the diners a number of witticisms that were bright and entertaining. He even proposed a toast to the ladies—something as follows: "To the ladies, God dress them."

Ralph L. Freeman's Address

The first speaker introduced by Mr. Bowers was Ralph L. Freeman, director of distribution of the Victor Talking Machine Co., who delivered the following optimistic message to the jobbers.

"It is a natural human instinct to desire to hide our weaknesses and especially from our friends. We shun a comparison of our efforts with those of others who are more expert. Accordingly, you can perhaps imagine my feelings as I stand sandwiched in between your fluent chairman, Mr. Bowers, and your guest to-night, Senator Runyon, who also has and deserves a great reputation as an orator. Indeed, there could be no excuse for my attempting to say anything except for the unfailing courtesy of your officers in inviting me, the fact that at Camden we have facilities to observe a wider range of facts pertaining to business conditions in our industry than anyone whose business is within a smaller area could have and that, at times like the present, it is not right for anyone who has a cheerful outlook on the future to remain silent.

"The Victor Co.'s message to you is one of good cheer. The shock of the inevitable post-war readjustment has not shaken the solid foundation upon which your business and ours was builded. The prospects for the future are much greater than anything than has been realized.

"New conditions, so large and far-reaching that it is difficult to visualize or comprehend them, are developing throughout the world. They represent greater opportunities for conscientious workers than have heretofore existed, and it is plain that we in this country must benefit from the position of advantage we occupy.

"There is, however, a condition that we must fulfill. We must be faithful—unto others as to ourselves—no less. No mad scramble for business can be allowed to benumb our sense of obligation and fairness else we shall deserve to lose and will lose our opportunity.

"This statement is not a mere platitude, referring generally to the public at large, but a definite fact to be applied to each of us individually who have it in mind to contend within our sphere for a share in the prosperity in the future. We must work and we must be faithful to the trust of those whose patronage we desire.

"The Victor Co. is a large consumer of a great number of commodities used in the manufacture of our product. Our offices are besieged by those who have these commodities to sell. A rather unusual rule prevails there under which every caller is received and has an opportunity to state his proposition. But this obligation of courtesy being fulfilled, do you suppose that vendors who have been even morally delinquent or unfaithful in past performances have a flying start in the race to supply our needs in the present buyers' market? Your trade customers occupy the same position as does the Victor purchasing department and you must count upon winning or losing their trade according to the quality of your service.

"One of the most harmful results of the last era of boom business was the tendency, highly developed in some quarters, for sellers to forget their utter dependency on the people who represent their logical market. It is better for all of us that the time when such forgetfulness was practical is past. It will be a good thing for us all to again learn the value and importance of the homely old words 'Please' and 'Thank You.' In the future business will be more than ever transacted on a basis of good will, and it behooves the Victor trade to be as far ahead of competition in this respect as Victor products are in quality, in performance and lasting satisfaction.

"I recently came across a quotation whose author deserves a better fate, for he is unknown. Under the heading, 'The Priceless Ingredient,' it reads as follows: 'In the city of Bagdad lived Hakeem, the wise man. Many people went to him for counsel, which he gave freely to all, asking nothing in return. There came to him a young man who had spent much and gotten little and said: "Tell me, wise one, what shall I do to receive the most for that which I spend?"

"Hakeem answered: "A thing that is bought or sold has no value unless it contains that which cannot be bought or sold. Go look for the priceless ingredient."

"But what is this priceless ingredient?" asked the young man. Spoke then the wise one: 'My son, the priceless ingredient of every product in the market is the honor of integrity of him who makes it; consider his name before you buy.'

"It is a truth that will bear repetition that the Victor Co. at all times makes a very unusual effort to manufacture products by the quality and honesty of which we shall be glad to have our honor and integrity judged. To have the spirit of faithfulness pervade the entire organization has been the unceasing effort of the founder of this business and his associates. There is no thought of any change from this policy, and with it as the basis of our belief we have no great misgivings as to the future. In conclusion, let me say on behalf of the Victor Co.: Thank you for the wonderful business your combined purchases have amounted to and ask that you will please continue to trust us with your confidence and your patronage."

President Trostler Speaks

The next speaker was the new president, Arthur A. Trostler, who confined himself to expressing his appreciation of the honor accorded him in electing him president of the Association and who promised to put forth his best efforts in behalf of the organization during the incumbency of his office.

Address of Hon. W. N. Runyon

The final speaker was Hon. William N. Runyon, former United States Senator from New Jersey, who offered a brilliant piece of oratory in the course of which he referred to those engaged in the talking machine business as a company of Crusaders dealing in romance, music and poetry, and declared that the distribution of music and music-producing instruments was particularly necessary in these parlous times because of the fact that people with music in their soul were happy and contented people. This was an address well worth hearing.

Dance to Whiteman Music

Following the banquet proper, the guests adjourned to the Pompeian Room, where they danced for several hours to the music of Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, forgetting heat and fatigue in response to the enticing strains of the music.

The Session on Wednesday Morning

The Wednesday morning session was opened with a talk by Ralph L. Freeman, director of distribution of the Victor Talking Machine Co., who spoke on several important subjects which had been discussed by the jobbers during the previous two days. Mr. Freeman specially emphasized the fact that it is the desire of the Victor Co. to furnish the jobbers with production sufficient to meet the requirements of the trade. He also suggested that the jobbers place their orders with the factory with due thought and consideration as to the best interests and welfare of the dealers to whom they are so ably catering.

At the close of Mr. Freeman's talk there was a general discussion of various important topics of general interest, in which all of those present participated.

Following Mr. Freeman, George W. Smith, of the engineering department of the Victor Co., gave a very interesting and timely address on the subject of radio. Mr. Smith during the course of his talk pointed out that radio need not and should not be considered a competitor of the Victrola, emphasizing various vital points in connection with radio as applied to the interests of the Victor industry. After Mr. Smith had finished his talk the jobbers asked various questions which formed the basis for a general discussion that was one of the most interesting features of the convention meeting.

Old-fashioned Clambake Greatly Enjoyed

The meeting then adjourned, and the jobbers took a well-deserved rest for a few hours, leaving at 5 o'clock in specially-chartered buses for Margate Beach, where the entire convention party were the guests of the Association at an old-fashioned clambake. This informal party was thoroughly enjoyed by all of the visitors, proving to be one of the most successful and interesting social events that has ever been offered to the jobbers and their guests. After the clambake the party returned to the hotel, where the Arrangements Committee was given a vote of thanks for the care and consideration that they had given every detail of the 1922 convention.

In addition to the Association members and Victor Co. officials present at the convention there were seen about the lobbies of the Ambassador: Arno B. Reincke, J. J. Davin and L. A. Graham, of the Reincke-Ellis Co., Chicago, and H. A. Beach, of the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia.

GOLF TOURNAMENT ENDS CONVENTION

Talking Machine Jobbers Try Their Skill at the Ancient Game at Seaview Golf Club

As this form goes to press the third annual golf tournament of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers is being held at the Seaview Golf Club. The participants in the ancient game were warned to be prepared to tee off at 9.30, and according to the records on file with J. C. Roush, chairman, and judging from the crowded buses which left the Hotel Ambassador at 8.30 a. m., a red-letter day was in store for the golf enthusiasts in the trade. Immediately after the conclusion of the play, which meant around sundown, the various trophies were awarded. The World is sure that the best men won on Thursday, June 15

PHONOGRAPH EXPORTS IN APRIL

Exports of Machines and Records in April Announced by the Department of Commerce

Exports of phonographs and records now amount to more than a quarter of a million dollars a month, according to figures which have just been made public by the Department of Commerce, showing our export trade in April. The department reports that 4,406 phonographs, valued at $154,891, and 196,750 records, valued at $101,912, were reported during that month.

A little more punch; a little more pep;
A little more cheer; a little less fear;
An outlook of courage and grit sublime;
The stopping of leaks and waste of time
Will bring a reward both big and fine.

ORGANIZATION

Every factor of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co.'s organization is particularly qualified for the work it is doing. There are no round pegs in square holes, but on the contrary, we are fortunate in having an experienced, capable organization that is equipped to serve Victor dealers efficiently and conscientiously.

BUFFALO

Stray Splinters From the Boardwalk

While a number of Easterners enjoyed the mountain atmosphere and scenery of Colorado Springs last year there is no question but that those who live inland favor strongly the seashore. The attendance indicated the fact.

Those who appreciated particularly the ocean air where the several jobbers who had attended the conventions of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and allied organizations in New York the week before, when the temperature kept well above the eighty-degree mark.

It begins to seem as though a convention of jobbers without the attendance of Paul Whiteman and his orchestra would be ranked as a failure and the Whiteman music never seems to get stale or tiresome.

Judging from the number of jobbers seen about the Ambassador Sunday night it would have been possible to have started the convention off with full meetings on Sunday and saved the day had the executives been so inclined.

The Committee of Arrangements denied emphatically that the inclusion of two admission tickets to the Ambassador bath house on the regular convention slip was any reflection upon the bathing proclivities of the delegates.

Although the management of the Ambassador Hotel made every effort to provide for the comfort of the jobbers there were found a number who missed being in the center of things, as it were, and who spent most of their time rolling along the Boardwalk in the direction of the Inlet and back.

There is no question but that prohibition has proven a strong factor in bringing to the surface the inventive genius of man, judging from the variety of clever containers used to carry about the amber fluid prohibited by law.

The officers of the Association were enthusiastic over the selection of the Seaview course at Absecon for the golf tournament, as it is recognized as one of the best courses in the East, lying as it does right at the edge of the ocean. Even a plentiful supply of mosquitoes did not serve to dampen the enthusiasm.

The largest single party at the convention was that of Abram Davega, of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., who brought with him four members of his family, as well as two members of his sales organization.

Frank K. Dolbeer, manager of the traveling sales department of the Victor Co., was early on hand for the purpose of welcoming the jobbers and the famous Dolbeer smile acted as a tonic for many travel weary talking machine men. E. E. Schumacker, of the Victor Co., was also early on the ground.

Anyone who places confidence in the reports issued by the Government and other agencies to show that the cost of living, and particularly of food, has dropped materially had that confidence rudely shattered after receiving a check for a meal at one of the Atlantic City hotels. If any part of the service breaks down it is not the adding machine.

The genial countenance of Wm. H. Reynolds, of Mobile, was sadly missed at the convention. Mr. Reynolds, however, remained home to be present at the graduation of his daughter from college, which took place on June 13. It is the first convention Mr. Reynolds has missed since the Association was organized.

Over a score of jobbers and their friends came down to the shore on a special car attached to the 12.10 train over the Pennsylvania road on Saturday, in order to get well set before the convention sessions opened. The party had hardly landed here before the click of the galloping dominoes and the chips had cast their spell over the sportively inclined.

An interesting feature of the convention was the presence for the first time of three generations of the Geissler family, Louis F. Geissler, director and former general manager of the Victor Co.; his son, Arthur D. Geissler, president of the New York and Chicago Talking Machine Cos., and his grandson, Kenneth D. Geissler, a young man in his teens.

Several of the jobbers went out to the Seaview Golf Club for a round or two of golf on Saturday morning, but could not withstand the attacks of the notorious Jersey "skeeters" and had to quit after playing five holes. As a matter of fact, citronella was the most popular fluid during the convention period.

Louis Buehn spent considerable time before the golf tournament explaining to some of the golf fans just how a mashie should be used to get the best results.

The popular social center for the men of the convention was Suite 1016, of the Ambassador, where there was generally something stirring for those who craved action.

The showing of the golf prizes, including the cup donated this year by The Talking Machine World, served to stimulate several of the golfing enthusiasts to special efforts. Secret practice was not unknown.

Norman B. Curtice, general manager of the firm of Ross P. Curtice, Omaha, Neb., arrived at the convention Monday noon. He arrived East a week previous, in order to take in the Jubilee Convention of the Music Industries at New York, and also the reunion of the American Field Service at Plymouth, Mass. He was a member of the latter organization in France during the war.

If Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Green's two sons, James and George, missed anything that was going on during the week the fault was not theirs. They saw about everything that was to be seen.

Charles Offerman, of the American Talking Machine Co., spent a pleasant three hours on the train, under competent instruction, trying to match up pictures. He did not prove a very apt pupil.

Fred P. Oliver and Lloyd L. Spencer, who looked after the details of the convention arrangements, duplicated last year's success and everything went through without a single hitch.

It was the first convention attended by Mrs. L. C. Wiswell and that charming lady quickly established a popular place for herself among the delegates.

One of the convention party took great pains to lock his liquid reserve in his suitcase to forestall pilfering and then lost the key. After being duly sworn to secrecy and properly "sweetened" the hotel locksmith prevented a drought.

French Nestor arrived late, but the "baby" of the jobbers' family was given a hearty handshake by all of his many good friends.

P. W. Simon and his man "Monty" were kept busy telling the jobbers just how the eight Famous Victor Artists could win new laurels on next season's tour.

Someone started the report that Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jenkins III were on their honeymoon, but efforts to congratulate the happy couple brought forth the fact that they had been married for five years.

The various boardwalk cabarets and some on the side streets soon found out the jobbers were in town, for several of them got a strong play,

Loyalty

We feel deeply indebted to the Victor dealers in this territory for the cordiality they have manifested toward this new organization. It emphasizes a loyalty to Victor ideals and aims that is most gratifying.

In turn, we are trying to perfect an organization that will thoroughly understand and appreciate the Victor dealer's problems. The preliminary work is finished, and we are now ready to start work.

We will welcome any suggestion you may offer that will aid us in promoting your interest and welfare as a Victor dealer.

especially in the early morning hours after the scheduled affairs at the hotel had ended.

C. R. Wagner, of the Musical Instrument Sales Co., motored down from New York, or at least motored most of the way, though the trip will long be a nightmare to him.

A jobber who changed a bill to get some dimes to tuck into the open hands of hotel help added a new term to his vocabulary when the hotel cashier referred to the change as "pleasure lozenges."

One of the ladies, commenting upon the inconsistencies of men, called attention to the fact that, although they came to the seashore ostensibly to absorb sunshine and fresh air, they spent most of their spare time crowded in smoke-filled rooms wooing the Goddess of Chance in one of her many forms.

Among the well-known supply men around the lobby were H. A. Beach and Geo. A. Lyons, Unit Construction Co.; B. R. Forster, H. W. Acton and Louis Unger, of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co.; Phil Ravis, Peerless Album Co.; Louis A. Schwarz; Harry Cuddeback, Da-Lite Electric Display Co.; Leon Tobias, A. L. Van Veen & Co.; Mr. Kramer, Martian Display Co., and others.

The Boston delegation arrived in groups, and Monday's trains brought the last contingent. New England was well represented at all the gatherings, business and social.

Albert N. Blackman, heir to the Blackman fortunes, was busy on the tennis courts, where he well emphasized the Brightwaters family achievements. In fact, Albert was so engrossed in his tennis that he forgot his meals, and Mr. and Mrs. Blackman were always among the last to enter the dining room.

Mrs. H. A. Lamar made her first convention trip, and "H. A.," together with L. W. Collings, completed a splendid Newark representation.

The convention pet was little Olive K. Gallo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Gallo, a charming little miss who appeared to enjoy the activities to the utmost.

H. Emerson Yorke, representing M. Witmark & Sons, the prominent music publishers, happened to be at the Ambassador during the convention and proved a most delightful host at several parties.

A. Conan Doyle, the distinguished author and lecturer on spiritualism, was a guest at the Ambassador during the week, but did not pull a séance for the benefit of the jobbers.

'AIN'T SCIENCE WONDERFUL'

A camera man, working for the educational department of a film company, met an old farmer coming out of a house in the town where he was working, and explained his presence in these words: "I have just been taking some moving pictures of life out on your farm." "Did you catch any of my laborers in motion?" asked the old man, curiously. "Sure I did." The farmer shook his head reflectively, then said: "Science is a wonderful thing."

It may be only a coincidence, but you will note that the successful houses are those that advertise.

AN ATTRACTIVE SERVICE CAR

Richter Music Co., of Casper, Wyo., Speeds Delivery of Talking Machines and Secures Publicity by Means of Delivery Car

CASPER, WYO., June 9.—The Richter Music Co. here has put into service an attractive service car, which is a little different from the usual run of such vehicles. The machine is not only a continual advertisement of the business, but is useful in insuring the quick delivery of machines and records to customers.

The rear of the machine is taken up with a model of a talking machine, large enough to hold a machine for delivery. Attractive notices concerning the lines handled by the company are painted on the sides of the model, acting as a constant reminder to the public.

George E. Richter, president of the company, has been in business here for several years and,

The Richter Music Co.'s Service Car starting with a small investment in a stock of sheet music, he rapidly developed his business through aggressive merchandising. He now handles complete lines of Victor talking machines and Brunswick phonographs, records, pianos and musical instruments of all kinds.

STRONG RECORD CO. CHARTERED

A charter of incorporation has been granted to the Strong Record Co., of New York City, under the laws of New York State, with a capital of $500,000. Incorporators are: J. Strong; L. F. Stumpf and G. A. Hopkins.

DEALERS USING SONORA PUBLICITY

During the past few weeks Sonora dealers in metropolitan territory have been using good-sized space in the local newspapers featuring the Sonora line. This publicity has produced excellent results both directly and indirectly. The advertising used by the dealers has served to emphasize the fact that the Sonora representatives in Greater New York are making plans for an active Fall trade, and are optimistic regarding the future. The very constructive and well-arranged advertisements used by the well-known Brooklyn department store, Abraham & Straus, are typical of this publicity.

NEW POST FOR J. J. DOHERTY

J. J. Doherty has been appointed assistant manager of the Buffalo branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. Mr. Doherty comes to the Buffalo branch as assistant manager from the Philadelphia branch, where he has been stationed for several months past, and takes the place of H. C. Cardoza, who resigned a few days ago.

The Gately-Haire Co., Inc., Albany, N. Y., has filed an answer in the form of a denial in the suit brought against it by the Victor Co. to recover $43,548, which it is alleged is due for merchandise.

BRAND NEW

Here is the handbook of the talking machine industry for which you have long been waiting. It is a directory you can keep on your desk to give you, in an instant, detailed knowledge about this and that company, which would otherwise consume much of your time to secure.

ONLY 50 CENTS

For instance, it will give you a complete up-to-date list of the manufacturers and jobbers who comprise the talking machine industry, including invaluable data about each concern, such as location of factories, names of officers, location of branch offices, trade names controlled, policy of marketing product, etc., etc.

ONLY 50 CENTS

Also it will give you a full, up-to-date list of the manufacturers who make any given class of product, such as talking machines, records, parts, accessories, store equipment, etc.

ONLY 50 CENTS

This book contains the kind of data about each concern which cannot be put into the company's current advertising for lack of space and which is nevertheless a kind of data that is valuable from your standpoint.

ONLY 50 CENTS

This volume also contains a number of pertinent articles on highly important topics and much other material too extensive to enumerate here in detail.

ONLY 50 CENTS

It is the only book of its kind ever published and is a volume which no enterprising member of the industry can fairly afford to do without. It has been produced by the publishers of The Talking Machine World.

LIMA VICTOR DOG SIGNS

Business Builders for VICTOR DEALERS

An Attractive OUTDOOR SIGN That Catches Every Eye

And Links Your Store with Victor Products

DESCRIPTION

This large cut out metal sign of the Famous Fox Terrier Victor Dog is 12 ft. high and 7 ft. wide, when erected it stands 14 ft. high. The Dog is painted in twelve colors in oil on 24 gauge non-rust steel, the sign is then varnished with spar varnish, making it as durable as possible. The back of the sign is painted with red lead, same as the posts, supports, etc. The posts that are to be placed in the ground are dipped in creosote to prevent rotting. Every sign comes complete and ready to erect—Dealer's name and the name VICTROLAS painted on the body of the dog in red letters outlined with white, the base below the dog can be used for any copy that the dealer may prefer.

The 3 ft. signs are made of 24 gauge non-rust lead and zinc coated steel and the dog is painted on in four colors in oil, holes are punched along the edge of sign for wiring to fences and tacking to buildings, etc. Dealer's name and address and the name VICTROLAS is all the copy that this sign will accommodate.

These signs carefully placed on highways, curves in a road or on the side of a hill catch the eye of every person passing. It means much to a Victor Dealer to have his name before the public at all times in a manner such as this. It immediately connects your store with Victor products and if this can be done the business will follow.

SALT LAKE CITY TRADE IMPROVES

Better Industrial Outlook Has Its Effect in Stimulating Talking Machine Sales—Local Association Discusses Radio

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, June 6.—The industrial outlook is highly satisfactory and considerably better than it has been for the past two years. Not only are the metal mines working once more, after having been closed down for twelve months, but the State is to have a new industry that promises to furnish a substantial payroll. This industry will have to do with the manufacture of radio equipment and the whole of the million-dollar stock of the company has been subscribed. Talking machine dealers report business just now as improving.

The O'Loughlin and Utah Music Co., Brunswick dealers, have been using full pages for joint weekly ads in local papers.

The Auerbach talking machine department is to undergo some physical changes in the near future, announces manager Ashworth. This department was opened some months ago and is already very attractive. Mr. Ashworth says he is figuring on something unique.

The members of the Utah Association of Music Industries held a lively meeting at the Hotel Utah a few days ago, when the principal topic was the possible effect on their business of the recent developments in wireless. No real conclusion was arrived at, but most of those who spoke felt that the radio music will not take the place of the talking machine any more than the latter has taken the place of the vocalist and the concert.

The Victor portables are beginning to sell locally, some of the dealers having sold several of them. Their value under certain conditions was demonstrated recently, when a shepherd bought one and took it to his camp. Fellow-workers came from a great distance to hear it play.

John Elliot Clark, head of the John Elliot Clark Co., Victor wholesaler, says he has been unable to supply the demand for the new horizontal models put out by the Victor Talking Machine Co., and also reports an increasing demand for records.

JAZZ WITH A BRINY FLAVOR

How Benny Krueger and His Orchestra Entertained the Dancers at Starlight Park

Recently Benny Krueger, exclusive Brunswick artist, and his orchestra made a decided hit by a unique performance which he gave at Starlight Park, New York. He and his orchestra dressed in special waterproof clothes, waded into the salt water pool at this summer resort and entertained the bathers with the latest popular hits. A platform was erected near the pool where the bathers enjoyed the music and held an impromptu dance in bathing costume. Mr. Krueger and his "Salt Water Jazz" certainly made a hit with this unique bit of entertaining, which was cleverly caught by the International.

T. M. M. OUTING AT SEA CLIFF

Outing of Talking Machine Men, Inc., Will Be Held at Sea Cliff, L. I., July 26

The entertainment committee of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., has selected Sea Cliff, L. I., as the site for the Talking Machine Men's outing scheduled for July 26. A number of likely places on the Island were visited before the selection was made. Karatsonyi's Inn will be the headquarters and in addition to other entertainment bathing will be enjoyed.

E. G. Evans, of C. Bruno & Son, Inc.; Max Berlow, of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., and Al. Galuchie, treasurer of the organization, were the pilots on the expedition.

Musical entertainment will be supplied by one of Paul Whiteman's orchestras. The personnel of the particular orchestra which will accompany the talking machine men has not been announced, but it is understood that some of the best musicians associated with Mr. Whiteman will do their part to make the event a success. Tickets for the outing will soon be mailed to members or, if desired, they can be obtained from Secretary E. G. Brown, 719 Broadway, Karatsonyi's, Bayonne, N. J., at $6 each.

NEW CHINESE LACQUER MODELS

Manufacturers Phonograph Co. Introduces Two Attractive Models—Dealers Report Active Demand for Chinese Lacquer Cabinets—Geo. W. Lyle on Extended Trip to the Pacific Coast

The Manufacturers Phonograph Co., manufacturer of Strand phonographs, has felt a sufficiently strong demand for Chinese lacquered consoles to introduce two models in this finish: one a Queen Anne, the other a Louis XV. Both are flat-top consoles, decorated in a handsome black lacquer with polychrome Chinese decorations, the relief set off with mother-of-pearl. No two of these instruments are exactly alike in decoration, as each instrument is distinctive and individual. During the past few months the Manufacturers Phonograph Co. has received letters from its dealers throughout the country stating that the popularity of Chinese lacquer is growing beyond all expectations. Orders for the new Queen Anne and Louis XV Strand models have been received from the dealers generally, emphasizing that the popularity of this cabinet finish is producing sales.

The various other models in the Strand line, consisting of the Queen Anne, Louis XV, Italian Renaissance and Louis XVI consoles in mahogany and walnut, are also winning new friends in all of the leading trade centers, and Geo. W. Lyle, president of the company, is being congratulated upon the splendid cabinet work of the Strand instruments and their tone quality. The two consolettes manufactured by the Manufacturers Phonograph Co., to accommodate the Victor VI and the Victor IX, are proving ready sellers, as is also the case with the two types of mirrors which are made especially to be used with Strand period consoles.

Mr. Lyle left recently for an extended trip to the Pacific Coast and, according to his present plans, he will visit Strand representatives and dealers in all of the leading trade centers. His first reports indicate that there is a healthy undertone to business which augurs well for Fall trade. He has appointed several new representatives, and in all probability will close a number of important deals before returning to the executive offices of the company in New York.

The fellow who thinks he knows it all usually has a great deal to learn.

The Trade in PHILADELPHIA and LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., June 6.—A distinct feeling of optimism seems to pervade the talking machine and record trade in this city as the dealers, almost without exception, say that business during the past month exceeded their expectations, and moreover that all indications seem to point to a very active business in the Fall.

The different dealers feel pleased over the business done during May owing to the fact that in April they had all resigned themselves to look forward to a distinct slump such as is invariably experienced with the beginning of May and the warm weather. But to their surprise the anticipated drop in business failed to materialize, at least not to the extent that had been expected. The only thing that tended to mar the satisfaction of the dealers last week was the period of frequent showers and rain storms that followed the Memorial Day holiday and that naturally resulted in a very quiet week so far as business was concerned.

Victor Dealers Enjoy Live Picnic

All the members of the Philadelphia Victor Dealers' Association are unanimous in asserting that the stag picnic and planked shad dinner held by the Association last week at the Old Mohican Club House, at Morris-on-the-Delaware, seven miles above Camden, was the most successful outing ever held by their organization. As one member of the Association expressed it, "A good time was had by all and everybody seemed to have lost a dollar or two at the great game of 'African golf' except those who won a dollar or two. Those who lost had their fun out of the game, and those who won had their fun, so everybody was happy."

The dealers assembled promptly at one o'clock in Camden, and proceeded by automobiles to the destination. A baseball game started the activities, giving way later to other scheduled sports. The first event, a 100-yard dash, was won by Frank Hovey, of the Victor Talking Machine Co. C. E. Greninger, of the Linton Co., Victor retailers, finished first in the fat men's race. Mr. Moser, an invited guest of Mr. Youngjohn, Victor retailer of Norristown, Pa., took the honors in the hop race. Mr. Moser and Mr. Youngjohn also constituted the winning team in the tennis doubles.

Following the sports all participated in the fine planked shad dinner which was served, during which music and singing were provided by a colored jazz band. At the close of the dinner, G. W. Huver, president of the Association, who presided, awarded the prizes and commended the committee on the great success of the affair.

Representatives of the Victor Co. were present as well as the executives and members of the staffs of the five Victor distributors located in Philadelphia and which were guests of the Association, including F. B. Reineck and William H. Nolan, of the Louis Buehn Co.; T. W. Barnhill and H. F. Miller, of the Penn Phonograph Co.; H. W. and A. C. Weymann, of H. W. Weymann & Son; Eugene Stern and Harry A. Ellis, of the Talking Machine Co., and George W. Witney, of C. J. Heppe & Son.

G. W. Huver, the president of the Association, added a great deal to the jollity of the occasion by his humorous remarks made during the presentation of the prizes to the winners of various contests that were conducted. The committee members in charge of the affair were frequently congratulated upon their efficient management of the arrangements. The smoothness with which the outing was conducted added considerably to the enjoyment of the one hundred and seventeen Victor dealers and their guests who were present. The members of the committee were: L. F. Quimby, of the Estey Piano Co., Homer C. Davis, Robert McCarthy, of Gimbel Brothers, J. R. Wilson and W. G. Linton.

Building Boom Helps Sales

"I am more than pleased with the business we did last month," said H. W. Weymann, head of H. A. Weymann & Son, in discussing present conditions in the talking machine world in general and the Victor business in particular. "Our business has improved rather than dropped off and our Victor talking machine and records sales during the past three months have been considerably larger than for the three previous months and a decided increase is noted in comparison with the same period of last year. Moreover, I believe that there will be an improvement in the demand for Victrolas and Victor records this Fall. One cause for this I believe may be found in the increased activity in the building trades which are now working at full force.

"Hundreds of families are now moving into new homes or are moving from small apartments into their own residences and many of these families will be buying Victrolas for their new living quarters as they have refrained from buying up to the present because they were living in temporary quarters or doubling up with other families. This condition is rapidly passing away with the increase in building, so I feel free to predict that many of our dealers who share these views and who are in business in places where these conditions exist soon will be placing their advance orders for Fall as their stock on hand will only answer their immediate requirements."

Local Dealers Expanding

According to F. B. Reineck, of the Louis Buehn Co., Victor wholesaler, while business was rather quiet last week, sales for last month were most satisfying. He states that Joseph Heim, whose store is located at 3800 North Broad street, has acquired the adjoining property and is making extensive alterations to the building. A number of additional private booths are being constructed to meet the demands of his increasing business.

Qualifies as Baseball Captain

Morris C. Rath, one of the Buehn Co. dealers, whose store is located at 6928 Market street, Upper Darby, Pa., has recently been elected captain of the Strawbridge & Clothier baseball team. Mr. Rath is an ardent baseball fan and has undertaken to guide the destinies of the Strawbridge team on account of his love for the sport and his desire to keep in close touch with the game. He is well fitted for the office through his years of experience in the Big League baseball teams. He was formerly on the Cincinnati team, up to about two years ago when he went with the Pacific Coast League, leaving that organization to embark in his own business.

Business Good With the Vocalion

"Business is good, particularly when all things are considered," asserts B. H. Rogers, manager of the Lincoln Business Bureau, jobbers of Vocalion talking machines and records, located at 1011 Race street. "Naturally, there has been some slight drop from the high peak of the winter months but that was to be expected and it is foolish for dealers and others to attribute this to the present popularity of the radio. The way I view the radio business is really as an aid rather than a competitor to the phonograph and record business, because many people who will hear different selections broadcasted by radio will be led to buy those records, for then they can play it whenever they desire and they will not be dependent upon the program of the broadcasting station."

Mr. Rogers is busy at the present time in arranging for the opening of new territory and in assigning new dealers to the various sections controlled by the Lincoln Business Bureau, which includes Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and all of Delaware.

Opens New Radio Department

The Talking Machine Co., whose central city store is located on Chestnut street, below the Adelphia Hotel, has just opened a radio department to its business. This department will occupy a large section of the second floor of its building and while it will be conducted under the trade name of Morton Radio Co., the management is the same as that of the Talking Machine Co., according to Harry Ellis, manager of the company.

Philadelphians at Jobbers' Convention

Practically all of the Victor wholesalers in Philadelphia had planned to attend the convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers to be held in Atlantic City beginning June 12. A large number of dealers also attended the convention of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and allied associations in New York this week. Florence J. Heppe, head of the famous house bearing his name, together with Mr. Elwell and Mr. Hillebrand, are in New York and at the close of those meetings both Mr. Heppe and Mr. Elwell will attend the Atlantic City convention. The display of the new portable model Victrola in the Heppe show windows is attracting considerable attention from passers-by, many of whom undoubtedly are planning their vacations at the present time and are figuring on taking one of

Starr Sales Are Keeping Up

Benjamin W. Witlin, head of the Witlin Musical Instrument Co., whose salesrooms are located at 807 Chestnut street, in the I. Press Building, reports that business in the Starr pianos and phonographs and the Gennett records is running along smoothly despite the warm weather that has prevailed the last month.

Expect Record-Breaking Fall Trade

"Business conditions are good and the prospects for a record-breaking Fall trade are excellent," reports R. M. Nelson, Philadelphia distributor for the Brunswick. This sentiment is also agreed to by Louis Buehn, the prominent Victor wholesaler, who has received numerous fine reports to-day from his salesmen, all of whom were in from the road for the usual periodical conference.

Now Exclusively Wholesale

The Sayre-Level Radio Co., Inc., 41 North Tenth street, has announced a change in its policy, effective June 1, whereby the retail end of its business was discontinued and the company became exclusively wholesale.

Mid-Month Record Suggestion Hanger Popular

H. W. Weymann, of H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., Victor wholesalers, reports that the May Mid-Month Record Suggestion Hanger, issued by their sales promotion department, has proved of exceptionally great advantage to the Victor retailer. This was evidenced by the large amount of orders for the numbers from the general catalog which were listed on this hanger. H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., are putting particular effort behind their sales promotion department, realizing the importance of helping the Victor retailer to keep the volume of his business up during the Summer period. The Mid-Month Suggestion Hanger is only one of the many ideas created by the sales promotion department and at the same time it is one of the most successful. Dealers report that it is creating extra business from many of their customers who would ordinarily only visit their warerooms at the first of each month. These hangers have proven their worth to such an extent that it will hereafter be a regular feature of Weymann service—one that is evidently appreciated.

ARDMORE, PA., June 9.—The Azpell Music Co. here, which is under the energetic guidance of Barclay W. Azpell, has opened for business in a new and better location. The new store is located in the Ardmore Theatre Building in the center of activity. The excellent appearance of the store is in keeping with the location. Its appointments have already caused much favorable comment and consist of Unico equipment with five rooms and ample record department facilities to assure a trade of maximum service in Victor merchandising.

NEW DEALER IN ALLENTOWN

ALLENTOWN, PA., June 5.—A new Brunswick dealer has entered the field in this city and judging from the energetic manner in which he has made his start success seems assured. The new company of Neverman & Gaumer will conduct an exclusive music store. A complete installation of Unico equipment in ivory finish has been made.

to blame. And he forthwith proceeded to make exhaustive investigation of competitive conditions and so forth in Ohio. After gathering, compiling and analyzing a mountain of data, Mr. Mahin notified the general manager that he was ready to take up the matter with him.

On a day named by Mr. McMahan, Mr. Mahin arrived with his data. Without examining it Mr. McMahan said, "Sit here while I call in our Ohio salesmen." Eight men trooped in. He asked them what the trouble was, and there was remarkable unanimity among them as to the cause. Then, Mr. McMahan began to address them. Before he got through he had them all assenting that the cause was something totally different from what they had declared—all except one salesman who ventured to disagree with the boss and insisted that in his opinion the trouble was what he had originally outlined. "That's all!" snapped Mr. McMahan, as he dismissed the salesmen.

Turning to Mr. Mahin, he said: "We don't need to go any farther to find the trouble. Eight so-called salesmen and only one man in the whole lot."

Are you executives quite sure that a lot of your people don't think it wisest to "Yes" you? And are you quite sure that you don't encourage them to agree with you rather than speak straight up to you when they think you are wrong?

There is a suggestion here, too, says Forbes Magazine, for those who weakly and meekly "Yes" the boss. "Yes-ing" pays nobody in the end.

VICTOR CO. EMPLOYE WINS PRIZE

After Only One Year in United States Solomon Dabinski Is Awarded Medal for Best Patriotic Essay in English—An Unusual Record

Solomon Dabinski, employed in the factories of the Victor Talking Machine Co., Newark, N. J., was recently awarded a bronze medal by the National Society of Colonial Daughters of Washington for the best patriotic essay in English. The award is particularly notable in that Dabinski came from Poland about a year ago without the slightest knowledge of the English language and so applied himself after his arrival that he was able to write the essay that won the prize, which represents a remarkable example of perseverance.

JUNE OKEH WINDOW DISPLAY

Latest Display Embodies New Layout and Design Features—Okeh Artists Given Prominence in Display

The June window display issued by the General Phonograph Corp., featuring Okeh records is one of the most artistic that have been issued in this series. It is somewhat different in character from the previous displays, although fundamentally it embodies the main features of the series as a whole.

As before, there are seven units in the June display, but instead of the illustrations being devoted to whimsical characters, illustrating different selections, the units are actual reproductions of Markels' Orchestra, Vincent Lopez and his Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, etc. The center panel is devoted to an actual reproduction of a photograph of Sophie Tucker, popular vaudeville star and new Okeh artist. The scheme and layout of the display have been somewhat changed, for the small unit is 22 x 7 inches in width and in the form of huge exclamation points with a solid black background and a white outline border.

It is planned to have each feature displayed differently each month, not only in color scheme and art treatment, but in layout and other details. There will be ample opportunity for changing the displays in view of the fact that new artists are being added daily to the Okeh recording organization.

PLANS FOR TRADE ARBITRATION

United States Chamber of Commerce Proposes Local and National Machinery for Settling Commercial Disputes Out of Court

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—Arbitration as a means of settling commercial disputes between business men is advanced by the United States Chamber of Commerce which, according to an announcement last week, intends to use its influence to have American business adopt the idea.

The plan takes into account the present wide use of arbitration in this country and contemplates making it more general by extending it among business organizations making up the national Chamber's membership. As sent to all member organizations, the plan carries suggestions for settling up arbitration machinery and a statement of the services which the national Chamber can render to organization members supplemental to their own efforts, both in domestic and foreign commerce.

Arbitration, under the arrangement proposed, would consist of settlement of local controversies by local commercial bodies; of settlement of disputes with an industry by trade associations, and of the handling by the National Chamber of cases that do not fall within local or trade jurisdiction. The national Chamber already has provided machinery for handling disputes that may come to it.

The plan provides, aside from arbitration, for the use of good offices by business organizations as a means of settling differences wherever possible by conciliation without resort to arbitration.

The Stahl Music Co., of Puyallup, Wash., has moved to the Green Music House on Meridian street. Mr. Green has been placed in charge of the talking machine department and Mr. Stahl will handle the piano sales. It is planned to carry on an active sales campaign.

Victor quality is internationally known and is of standardized perfection. Heppe service in the distribution of Victor merchandise is also on an appropriate high plane and constantly striving to uphold the high Victor standards.

An Open Letter About Radio

To the Music Dealer:—

What am I going to do about Radio?
You are not the only dealer who is asking himself this question.

A new business closely allied to the music trades has suddenly taken a firm hold of the public. What stand should the music dealer take toward this business that promises to become one of the largest industries of the nation? Will he deliberate and watch the other fellow in an entirely foreign line take from him a kindred business? The music dealer's position is not as complex as it appears. Why shouldn't he be the largest Radio dealer in his locality?

The investment is small. No increase in selling force is necessary. He need not enlarge his present quarters. No special technical knowledge is required. It is a huge attraction to his store. The newspapers are giving radio a tremendous amount of free publicity, arousing people to become keenly interested in radio, thereby creating a constant demand.

It seems almost unbelievable that any music dealer should hesitate about adding radio to his present stock of musical merchandise. A wider scope of business activity is presenting itself for his immediate participation.

It is better to leave radio alone than to decide to retail an unknown and inferior product. When you make the decision to handle radio, consider this. The Radio Corporation of America, of world-wide repute, has appointed Landay Bros. distributors of their radio products manufactured for them by the Westinghouse, Wireless Specialty and General Electric Companies. All of these companies enjoy a reputation that is based upon sound business dealings and mechanical excellence.

Landay Bros. are ready at the present time to help you install adequate radio apparatus in your store and will gladly answer any questions that may be on your mind. Dealers are now being appointed and supplies distributed in order of receipt of inquiries. Now is the time for you to establish your radio department so that you will be prepared to reap the radio harvest this fall.

Respectfully yours,

Business Improvement Grows—Optimistic Note Sounded—Edison Activities—Seabrook Incorporates—New Stores and Recent Changes

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., June 9.—Steady improvement in the general business conditions of this city, arising chiefly from large building activities, is being reflected in the talking machine business. Interest in the radio is playing no small part in the situation, for electrical supply houses, machine shops and various other concerns which have been doing comparatively little business for several months now are working full time to supply the demand for those things so much sought by radio fans.

Sound Optimistic Note

George P. Zerkle, manager of the talking machine department of the Carlin Music Co., says: "Comparing the talking machine sales of recent months with the sales of the corresponding months last year shows a healthy increase in business. This is not indicated in the number of sales, but rather in the amount of business turned over. This is true both in the record and machine sales and the condition was brought about by a demand for the higher-priced machines. A gradual increase can be seen now in the sales of medium-priced machines, which is due to the fact that labor conditions have experienced a decided improvement.

"At this particular time of year there always is quite a demand for the portable models which can be used in canoes. These models are also popular with grade school teachers, who use them extensively for class-room work. Our record business is not just what we would wish it to be, but we are planning a direct campaign by which we expect to increase sales largely by the use of personal letters sent to a selected list of prospects."

W. G. Wilson, of the Widener Grafonola Shop; Charles E. Collins, of the Collins Talking Machine Co., and T. H. Bracken, of the Starr Piano Co., all report that by "plugging away" they are developing satisfactory trade. They voice the opinions of other dealers as well as their own opinion when they say that they are finding no cause for complaint even though business is not such as to develop elation.

Baldwin Co.'s Redecorating Completed

C. P. Herdman, of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co., says that record sales have been exceptionally good during the last month. The interior redecorating made necessary by the fire of last November has been completed and business in his department is having its first chance since then to get back to normal, Mr. Herdman says.

Circle T. M. Shop Edits House Organ

H. E. Whitman, of the Circle Talking Machine Shop, reports a May business that was about up to the average with the console and portable models running a close race for first place in volume of sales. Mr. Whitman is editing a small journal known as Whitman's Magazine of Music, which includes the monthly Victor record lists as well as several articles along musical lines together with a list of special hits.

Sonora Sales Growing

C. H. Becherer, of Chas. Mayer & Co., reports the sale of Sonora machines during May to have been greater than during May of last year. This, he says, was the development for the month despite the fact that the class of trade to which he caters has begun its annual Summer exodus.

Edison Re-creations Popular

"Conditions in our territory continue to show a very steady improvement," says H. G. Anderson, general sales manager for the Kipp Phonograph Co., Edison distributors. "One of the most noticeable features in the Edison line is the increase in the Edison Re-creation business. We are of the opinion that Edison dealers in this territory will soon be doing an enormous record business as the result of the new attachment which makes it possible to play Edison Re-creations on other phonographs and talking machines. The new flashes from Broadway are meeting with a very wonderful reception among the Edison owners, appealing as they do to music lovers as well as dancing-fans.

"We have noticed a very encouraging improvement of conditions in the farming districts of Indiana and Illinois. While the farmers at this time of the year are unusually busy and hard to talk to, their mental attitude is very much changed from what it was sixty days ago. Consequently, many of our live dealers are having no trouble in getting "Mr. Farmer" interested in the Edison phonograph.

"The new William and Mary as well as the Chippendale console models are meeting with the genuine approval of all our dealers and their customers. Judging by the orders already placed for these models, it will be very hard for us to keep a surplus stock on hand. One of the very recent surprises given by Mr. Edison to his dealers was the introduction of a new Baby Console model, and this, at $175, is without doubt one of the most popular merchandising values in our territory to-day."

Seabrook Phonograph Corp. Chartered

The Seabrook Phonograph Corp., of Mishawaka, has been incorporated, with an authorized capital stock of $100,000. The directors are M. W. Mix, W. W. Dodge, Kenyon W. Mix, F. P. Howlett and E. M. Carver. It has been announced that the number of employes of the Seabrook plant has practically doubled within the last two months. This is partly the result of the manufacture by the company of radio sets in addition to the concert phonograph which is being made for the motion picture business.

Brunswick Shop Adds Pianos

The Brunswick Shop at Terre Haute has added the Gulbransen player-piano to its line of goods. Jensen Brothers, proprietors of the shop, report increased business in all instruments handled by them.

Edison Shop Does Record Business

Business for the Edison Shop during May was the best of any month for more than a year with the exception of last December, according to W. E. Hopkins, manager. The business of the Shop has been stimulated by devoting particular attention to the current record hits, which have been featured with special window and newspaper displays.

First Campbell Gennett Record a Hit

The first Gennett records made by Clara Mae Campbell, vocalist, of Richmond, for the Starr Piano Co., are reaching a large sale in Indiana. Four hundred were sold the first day in Frankfort where Miss Campbell formerly lived. "In the Garden of My Heart" is on one side of the record, and "Until" is on the other. Miss Campbell is at present on tour.

E. L. Mayer in New Post

Edward L. Mayer has been placed in charge of the Sonora department of the Kiefer-Stewart Co. He says that the improved business conditions this Spring have been reflected most favorably in Sonora sales. "There no doubt is a demand for phonographs," he says, "but dealers must realize that they are required to put forth a great deal more effort than during the 1919-1920 period in order to produce worth while results. Although we are facing the usual quiet Summer months, the future appears most encouraging and we are anticipating an exceptionally large Sonora business next Fall."

Hope to Resume Business

Neal Grider, cashier of the People's National Bank, was appointed receiver of the J. D. Hunt Manufacturing Co., early in May. The action was a friendly one and it is expected by Mr. Grider that the company will shortly be in a position to resume its normal operations.

Featuring the MUSICAL POSSIBILITIES of the TALKING MACHINE

[EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the twentieth of a series of articles by William Braid White, devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the featuring and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

2. THE PATHWAY TO KNOWLEDGE

The function of the talking machine is to stimulate musical pleasure exclusively through the faculty of listening. The salesman who has to sell talking machines and records must first get into his or her mind the underlying principle on which all such salesmanship rests. That principle is simply expressed by saying that it is music which is being sold and not machines or discs. Machines and discs are merely the material media. The buyer wants music and that is why he or she comes into a talking machine store. The salesman has music to sell. The conjunction of the want with its supply constitutes the process of the sale.

Liking What One Sells

Naturally, then, the salesman ought to like the products he sells. One cannot imagine a butcher who is a vegetarian and a successful meat salesman at the same time. Yet it seems to be regarded as perfectly proper for a talking machine or record salesman not even to possess a specimen of the goods he or she is selling!

The man or woman who sells music ought to like music. Now, most men and women do in reality like music very much, but this latent liking is oftener than not untrained and ignorant, not knowing where to begin or how to proceed. Fortunately, the very process of learning to sell talking machines and records involves a parallel process of constant listening to music. Between mere hearing and intelligent listening there is a great gulf fixed, whose width measures the difference between intelligent and unintelligent sales work in all that concerns musical merchandise.

Popular Is Familiar

When Theodore Thomas said that popular music is simply familiar music he uttered a great truth. It undoubtedly is true that the general public taste in music is very low, but then, other things being equal, it is easier from the point of view of any brain work that may be required, to follow the mass than to lead it. But when one follows the mass one follows at the very end of the procession. In a word, when we "give the public what the public wants" in musical merchandise we necessarily, in effect, give what the least intelligent members of the public want, and nothing else.

Now, the people actually will listen to fine voices and fine instrumental music and actually will buy it, even though they be neither musical

"high-brows" nor anything else of the sort. This is proved by the sales of the great record-making companies. But wherever average people are buying fine records it is certain that the brand of salesmanship which has been used on them is an intelligent, fine brand. There is no room for unintelligent salesmanship in handling fine music.

Well, the basis of all such intelligent salesmanship is knowledge. The basis of knowledge from the point of view of such salesmanship is familiarity with the greatest possible quantity of fine music through listening.

The Salesman's Kind of Listening

As I showed last month, this intelligent listening ought to be cultivated by every salesman who expects to sell fine records and fine machines. But such listening is something quite different when the salesman does it primarily for his selling purpose, from what it is when it is done by the owner of a talking machine for the purpose of enjoyment pure and simple. The salesman's listening is to be done in order that he or she may learn to know certain special facts about different kinds of music. These facts, indeed, are artistic facts and quite as interesting and enjoyable as any others of the kind, but the point is that among all the lovely and delightful things which are to be found in listening to music the salesman must select some special things for his selling purposes. The others he may also learn to recognize and enjoy, yet they are not the most important for his own special ends.

Finding Artistic Worth

The first point towards which the salesman should direct his attention is the point of carefully listening to every new record which exhibits any trace of artistic worth. Such a record is quite likely to be a choice bit of dance orchestra work, or a fine example of musical comedy singing. On the other hand, of course, it is even more likely to be found in the violin playing of the great artists who make records or in the singing of the golden-throated men and women who adorn the grand opera stage. The first point to be considered in listening to the interpretation of any musician, however, is artistic worth, irrespective of grade. And if the effort be obviously sincere and the musician be obviously doing the best that he or she knows how to do, then almost certainly there will be something worth while to be discovered by close listening.

Artistic Classification

After artistic worth comes artistic classification. Instrumental music divides itself naturally into certain forms. The salesman who will carefully consult the record catalogs will perceive that instrumental music generally resolves itself into three great divisions: Orchestra and band music, ensemble music and solo music.

Orchestra music will be found listed under such titles as symphony, overture and selections from this or that opera. "Orchestra" in this sense refers to what is called the "grand orchestra," a body of instrumentalists containing from fifty up to one hundred and more instrumentalists, playing violins, violas, 'cellos, stringed basses, flutes, oboes, clarinets, bassoons, horns, trumpets, trombones, drums, etc., with the strings forming more than half of the total. This orchestra, the true orchestra, must be carefully distinguished from the dance orchestra of six or ten instruments specially selected for dance purposes. The generic term for the large organization is "symphony orchestra."

Symphony orchestras have not as yet made a very large number of records, although the practice, fortunately, is on the increase. American record makers have found a large foreign market, however, for the finest orchestral records and so, of course, have the Italian, French and German recorders. Although the great American catalogs show only a small number, comparatively speaking, of fine orchestral renditions, yet those they do carry are almost uniformly of the greatest excellence.

How to Begin

As a starter the salesman who desires to learn to know the orchestra should study the educational records put out by the Victor Co. One set of these consists of four double-faced records with the general title, "The Instruments of the Orchestra." On them are contained specimens of the tones of every instrument used in the grand orchestra from violin to trombone and drums. Each instrument is represented by a musical passage drawn from some famous symphony, overture or grand opera, wherein its voice is set forth to advantage. By listening to these records the salesman may learn to distinguish all the various instruments of the orchestra and thus to "hear"—perhaps for the first time in his life—the inner workings of a piece of great orchestral music.

Stress is laid upon preparatory work of this kind, because it is not only delightful, but highly useful. The familiarity which comes hereby inspires the salesman with new confidence and fits him or her to handle and exploit successfully the finest kinds of high-priced records.

Remember: The money is in the high-priced records, but it takes knowledge to sell this kind.

KANSAS CITY

Music Memory Contest Helps Trade—Radio News—Good Crops Help Trade—Portables in Favor—Business Steadily Bettering

KANSAS CITY, KAN., June 8.—The musical program for the year in the public schools of Kansas City, Mo., culminated recently in the Music Memory Contest at the auditorium, when more than twelve hundred public school children contested for prizes. During the whole of the school year there has been a vigorous campaign carried on under the direction of Miss Mabelle Glenn, the music supervisor, to stimulate interest and increase the appreciation of music among the school children. Among other things, the campaign was connected up with the programs of the symphony orchestra concerts that have been given in this city during the Winter. Large numbers of the children have attended these concerts, and in each case the concerts were preceded by classes in music appreciation. The selections were played on the talking machine, and the music director would explain the selection.

At the Music Memory Contest given there were twenty selections made from the forty-five numbers given during the season, and the pupils, armed with pencil and paper, were given an opportunity to test their memory. It is announced that there were a great many perfect papers and that there were many more which were almost perfect.

The music during the contest was rendered on the piano instead of the talking machine, as during the school year. Four of the numbers were played by Mrs. Eva Faith Rider, and the others were produced on the Duo-Art, under the supervision of Walter Ehrnman, of the J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co.

Prizes were offered to the various school teams by the Kansas City Star, consisting of sets of talking machine records, and the winning team was taken to the Saturday matinee on May 27, given by the Kansas City Grand Opera Co. at the Shubert Theatre. The program for the matinee consisted of a rendition of "Faust." The winners of the second prize were given balcony seats, through the courtesy of the J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co. In addition to this, each pupil making a perfect score was presented with a silver pin from the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music.

While the direct sales from the records used in the training of the pupils in the schools have been made practically all by the Victor people, the indirect benefits have been gained by all music dealers. The interest has by no means been confined to the children, but has spread to all classes. The effect on the sales in the past has been gratifying, and the prediction is freely made that it will be much larger in the future.

Buys Victrola for Radio Broadcasting

Radio broadcasting is on the increase, and the trade in all kinds of radio instruments is growing rapidly. One of the largest stations is connected with the Kansas City Star, which has recently added to its equipment a Victor talking machine and a stock of records to be used in its concerts. A school machine was purchased because it is fitted up with a horn, making it especially adapted for the service required.

Chappell Music Co. Moving

The Chappell Music Co., of Salina, Kan., is moving. It finds that it is not only a desirable thing to be in the center of the business district, but also that it is worth while to get on the right side of the street. While it is about it, it is also enlarging its quarters and installing Unico equipment.

Gets Victor Publicity Through Radio

In Wichita, Kansas, the J. O. Adams Music Co. has joined with the Wichita Beacon in broadcasting, and the two have put on some very attractive programs. Recently, besides Victor records, a Victor artist of note was heard. He was Prince Lei Lani, and he took part in the concert given May 25. The hook-up with the daily paper has not only increased the interest in music generally in the community, but has given the music company some very valuable front-page publicity which money alone could not buy.

Practical Talk to Students

For some months Miss Pratt, head of the science department of the Fort Scott high schools, has been making a practice to take the students under her care to some local plant or institution where knowledge of a scientific nature might be gleaned. Recently the class decided that it would like to look into the subject of talking machine and record making, and John Synnott, a Fort Scott Columbia dealer, was approached on the subject.

Mr. Synnott thought the idea an excellent one and cordially invited the class to visit his store next visiting day, and the invitation was politely accepted. Mr. Synnott told the students, too, that he would endeavor to have a regular phonograph man present for the occasion to talk to them. With this thought in mind Mr. Synnott quickly got in touch with E. A. McMurtry, local branch manager of the Columbia Co. at Kansas City, and as a result Thomas Devine, one of the Kansas traveling representatives of the company, was delegated to take care of the matter.

Mr. Devine spoke to some forty or more students at Mr. Synnott's store, May 23. His talk, of a little more than an hour's duration, covered the history of the phonograph from its inception. The part played by Edison, Bell, Tainter, Smith, McDonald, etc., was touched upon in an

New Edison Dealers

C. J. Keil, a prominent jeweler of Clinton, Mo., who has been out of the phonograph business for a time, has stocked up with Edison machines and records, again and is ready to serve his community.

The Blackledge Music Co., of Coffeyville, Kan., H. H. Kahn, manager, has added the Edison to its line, which now includes the Edison, the Victor and the Brunswick lines. The Blackledge Sales Co., of Caney, Kan., operated by the same people, has also added the Edison line. The Nicholson Furniture Co. is also a new Edison dealer.

Co-operate in Brunswick Advertising Campaign

Among the most attractive advertising that has appeared in Kansas City dailies is the series of page ads which pertain to June brides and is run over the names of the Brunswick dealers of this city. This publicity is backed up with a vigorous selling campaign, and good results in the way of orders are reported.

Good Crops Create Trade Optimism

Fred Jenkins, manager of the Victor wholesale department of the Jenkins Music Co., was one of the Trade Trippers who recently went from Kansas City through Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado and Kansas. He reports that he found a splendid spirit of optimism all along the way, and that the prospects for good business in these States is fine. Reports from his field men indicate that in all the agricultural districts of the territory, except in southwestern Kansas, feeling is fine, and business is on the increase. There is some depression in the mining districts, owing to strikes which are in effect there. The latest estimate of a wheat crop for Kansas, which is expected to reach 121,000,000 bushels, will explain why Kansas is so optimistic.

Takes on the Cheney Line

The Victor-Arnold Music Co., which has done a good business in the mail order line, has moved from the Bryant Building to the first floor of the new Mahoney Building, which is located next the new Pantages Theatre. The exit from the theatre is next door to the new music shop. The company has not only improved its location, but has added the Cheney line of phonographs and the Vocalion line of records.

Edison Club Booming Business

"Only $1 will admit you to the Edison Club" is the attractive announcement that is adorning the windows of the Edison dealers of this district. Manager Blackman is pushing the campaigned by a personal tour of the territory, and the reports from dealers who have started clubs are to the effect that the plan is popular with the people. Three styles of cabinets are offered in this club campaign, with prices ranging accordingly.

Growing Demand for Portable Machines

One of the features of the trade this season is the large demand for portable machines. The Victor portable is in such demand even this early in the season that the jobbers are not able to secure machines to supply the demand. The very thought of what it will be when the vacation period begins in earnest brings a broad smile to the faces of the Victor wholesalers.

A. A. Trostler, secretary of the Schmelzer Co., is now East attending the Jubilee Convention and Jobbers' Reunion at Atlantic City. He will also visit the Victor factory at Camden, N. J.

B. L. Plank, of the Jenkins Music Co.'s field force, plans to attend the Jobbers' Convention at Atlantic City.

J. W. Grantham, of Baxter Springs, a well-known music dealer of Kansas, is attending the Jubilee Convention in New York.

A very decided improvement is being worked out in the arrangement of the interior of the local store in Kansas City of Smith, Barnes & Strober, by Manager Baldwin. The record department is being brought up to the front of the store and the whole department will be given more prominence.

HEMPSTEAD MUSIC SHOP OPENS

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., June 3.—The Hempstead Music Shop is the latest business institution to open its doors to the public here. It is located in the Hempstead Theatre building on Fulton avenue, and is carrying a complete line of Sonora phonographs and Vocalion records. The store has been handsomely fitted up with the most modern equipment for the handling of this line of goods.

The man who allows the other fellow to express an opinion can often learn something to his advantage.

18 WEST 20th STREET

NEW YORK

Mid-West Point of View

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., JUNE 10, 1922.

THERE is a musical instrument manufacturer in the State of Indiana who has been through every panic since 1873. This is the veteran,

A
Veteran

Jesse French, Sr., of New Castle, head of the great piano-making house of Jesse French & Sons. The veteran piano maker knows what a financial depression is. He knows by this time just how these economic phenomena arise, and what their after-effects are sure to be. When a man like him, therefore, says that he is full of confidence, business men, especially in the music industries, will stop and take notice. For Mr. French is not only a veteran but a successful business man. The business of which he is the head is a large and successful manufacturing business with a world-wide reputation. When, therefore, such a man says, as he said the other day to a traveling representative of The Talking Machine World, that he considers the business outlook encouraging we cannot withhold our attention. When, further, he shows that he means what he says by preparing to make up a large stock of pianos and player-pianos for Fall consumption he makes his statement convincing. We cannot help feeling that he knows what he is talking about. A man who has seen the ups and downs of American business during forty years is necessarily a man to whom the ways of panics are familiar. He knows how they come, how long their effects are felt and how they go. When such a man declares at a time like the present that he is getting ready, by putting in his money and his skill, for a good business this year we feel that he knows what he is doing. His message is a message which all, particularly talking machine men, may read and from which all may draw practical encouragement.

IT does not seem that even the plainest truths have power to penetrate the human consciousness until they have been driven in by repeated blows. One has to say them over and over again, and even then some folks never lay hold of them. Tons of paper have been consumed in talks about radio, not to mention gallons of ink. Yet the most obvious truth about the whole affair seems to have been almost entirely overlooked. Music merchants can sell, and sell profitably, radio outfits. But any music merchant who is foolish enough to suppose that radio is a substitute for the talking machine or for any other domestic musical instrument simply shows that he does not understand the essential principle involved. Radio is, in fact, not a music-in-the-home proposition in the sense in which a piano or a player-piano or a talking machine may be so described. Radio is simply a ticket and transportation to a concert. It is a listening-in proposition. It is limited to whatever the transmitting station may see fit to send out. The listener has no more choice as to the program than has the seat-holder at a symphony concert. On the other hand, the talking machine is distinctly a personal possession, shared not at all by the outer world, and affording to its owner the precious advantage of choice. The owner goes to the record cabinet, takes out the record he wants and plays it. How simple, but how important! Music that you want, when you want it and as often as you want it! That is the sign of the talking machine. And it is one which no listening-in mechanism can take away or replace.

Simple,
Common Sense

To put it in another way, we shall be the most foolish of people if we allow ourselves to build an enemy or a cause for fright out of the popularity of our new friend and assistant, radio. Those who make this error simply do not understand their own game. The way to treat radio is to take it up and make use of it. The first thing is to find the right sort of outfit. This must be self-contained and reliable. The music merchant wants something to sell that looks like a musical instrument and sells like one. Then, when he has this, whether as a combination with a talking machine or by itself, let him set to work to sell it for exactly what it is, that is to say for a new medium for getting in touch with music. Radio is a listening-in proposition; the talking machine is a music-maker. One is intermittent, the other continuous. You get radio music when it is sent out. You get talking machine music when you want it. There is the difference. Neither can substitute for the other. Our job as talking machine men is to handle both, or rather to handle the newcomer while we push the old stand-by harder than ever. Nor let us forget that radio is the best little advertising agent the talking machine record ever had. No advertising comes in effectiveness anywhere near an announcement, made through radio, that a certain song or dance, as recorded on such a record, will now be broadcasted. The listeners listen. They are pleased. They go to the music store and they buy that record for their talking machine. It is good stuff and it works.

A RECENT number of Printer's Ink contains one of the best articles we have ever read and on a subject, too, which is near to the thought of every music man in these days. The writer of the story has been talking with A. J. Kendrick and others of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., and what he has to say is most instructive. He points out how five years ago, two years before the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment, the great Brunswick house began to shut down on the manufacture of fixtures for saloons, seeing clearly the signs of the time. The great plant must, they then saw, be shut down or else be kept busy by means of some substitute line of manufacture suitable to its capacities. Piano case-making was tried, then cabinets were made for talking machines. Lastly, the heads of the company came to the conclusion that the talking machine had a future, and they went into its manufacture with all the care and all the wisdom which have always characterized their acts. The result we know. But the Brunswick policy itself has never been, in our judgment, so well set forth in a few words as by Mr. Kendrick himself, when he said, in substance, to the Printer's Ink man that the basis of their success lies in getting the right sort of dealer, educating him to the Brunswick idea, then backing him up with the most carefully worked out advertising. One foundation of this advertising is what may be called the Brunswick "Hall of Fame" principle. According to this principle the meritorious newcomer among instrumental and vocal artists is taken up by Brunswick, put into its Hall of Fame alongside the Godowskys and the Hubermans and thus placed before the public at once in the rank where he or she belongs. Brunswick advertising seems to be of the kind that builds up, and Brunswick dealers are naturally profiting by it.

Brunswick Principles Disclosed

SPEAKING of dealers, why is it that so many will always insist upon taking the line of least resistance? Why is it that we still find dealers

The 23
Per Cent
Community

talking about the market for talking machines as if that market had already reached the point of complete saturation? It all reminds us of something else we once heard this same A. J. Kendrick say; this time about a census taken by his company in Ohio to discover the actual condition of talking machine distribution in a certain prosperous community. The local merchants thought the market was glutted, but the census showed that fewer than one-fourth of the families in the community possessed talking machines! The figures will be found to apply to many other communities too if the truth be told. Nor shall we forget that a market is saturated only if and when all the families in a community have been sold. Until they have been sold the community is not saturated. Well, is there any reason why that community—any community—should not be sold to at least the extent of 90 per cent? How much does the average dealer really understand about the attractive power of the talking machine upon the normal man or woman? How much, indeed? A little more enthusiasm and a little more knowledge are the greatest needs of our industry on its retail side.

THE difficulty of the small boy in learning to spell because the teacher changed the words every day is nothing to the difficulty of becoming a salesman and meeting new arguments every day. But one way or another the boy generally learns to spell and, there is no doubt about it, change of argument is what makes the successful salesman.

A. SNYDER

CHICAGO, ILL., June 9.—The Chicago trade, both wholesale and retail, while showing an improving trend, has been more or less spotty during the past two or three weeks. The demand this month has been somewhat similar to that of last month, namely, for small machines, particularly portables. Some retail dealers assert that the record business has picked up materially. In fact, some of them say that in looking over the sales lists of records and paying particular attention to the names of the records sold, they find quite a similarity between them and the musical numbers which are being broadcasted by the radio transmitting stations.

The Radio Situation Reviewed

The radio has had quite a large effect on the talking machine trade in Chicago and has done a great deal to stimulate business in many instances. Of course, there are numerous predictions as to what is in store for radio for the future, but from the looks of things most of these predictions may be regarded as far-fetched. Chicago people are of the opinion that radio is still too young for predictions.

One thing that is very striking concerning the retail radio situation is that great numbers of retail electrical concerns handling radio apparatus are not quite so enthused with it as they were a few months ago. The reason, they state, is that they cannot get materials and that people are not buying at this particular time. However, from the regular old-line music merchants who have well-established stores handling talking machines and other musical instruments, one learns a somewhat different story. This other story is that the shortage of goods hampers them in their sales, but that they have plenty of demand. This demand they are making themselves. They are utilizing their canvassing forces and making house-to-house calls. The canvassing man is not devoting all of his time to radio, as might be expected, but when he calls on a prospect he talks talking machine as well as radio. In other words, he is hitting the prospect from both sides, and if he does not get him on one he does on the other, and so stands a likely chance of getting him on both.

Dealers' Trade Hurt by Building Situation

The building situation in Chicago has been hampering the work of the dealers to a great extent. This situation has brought about a sort of a status which is certainly not due to lack of employment. There is plenty of employment to be had in Chicago in the building line and plenty of men to go around, but the influence of the building trades unions is holding the men in check. Anyone who has been keeping an eye on the Chicago papers during the last month or two is well aware of the turmoil that has existed in labor circles for some time past. Many of the workers are alleging that it is unsafe to go to work no matter what side of the fence they are on, so that one can easily see wherein the trouble lies.

Cut in Freight Rates Helping Business

The manufacturers and jobbers are jubilant over the announcement that was let loose a week or so ago concerning freight rates. They are all of the opinion that this will have a tremendous influence on every line of business. For quite a number of months there has been more or less of a cry among manufacturers in all lines that freight rates have not kept pace with the general downward trend of prices, and now that the move has been made along this line we can look forward to increased activities in shipping. Then, again, some say that although this cut in freight rates will stimulate business to a great extent the speed of shipping will not be much affected, in view of the fact that the railroads have not been keeping up their rolling stock. For this latter assertion we do not vouch, but if there is an increase in the amount of shipping it will necessarily mean that the rolling stock of the railroads will have to be replenished. When this condition is taken care of much activity will be seen in districts devoted to the manufacture of railroad equipment, and we can then look for a great spurt in the music business in districts such as Pullman, Michigan City and other railroad equipment manufacturing centers.

Frank Westphal Entertains

Frank Westphal and his orchestra, exclusive Columbians, were the feature attraction at the Chicago Piano Club gathering on Monday, May 22. The story pertaining to the event, as related afterward by one of our bright young men, is given here verbatim:

"Frank Westphal was playing at the Chicago Piano Club. He and his orchestra were announced by the chairman, after which they proceeded to settle themselves in their chairs and make ready to play. There was no particular enthusiasm shown. It was purely a business courtesy with them. The Piano Club had requested them to play and the club contains in its membership some influential men in the music

A New Member of the Sterling Family

In response to a demand for a Throw Back Tone Arm, we have designed the No. 82 which embodies all the advantages of Sterling construction with the addition of the Throw Back feature. When in its normal operating position the Sterling Reproducer maintains perfect alignment under all conditions.

When in its Throw Back position the reproducer, even when adjusted for Edison or hill and dale records, "clears" the tone arm.

A new and improved needle holder is another added feature.

industry. Generally speaking, the place and time (musicians, according to Hoyle, are fast asleep at 12.30) were not propitious to inspirational outpourings. The room was low, everybody had been smoking, and, to cap the climax, everyone knew it was raining outside. They had come in from the rain and had to go out in the rain. On the whole, these were not the best conditions in the world for either music or enthusiasm of any kind.

"The boys settled down to their work. One number was played and everyone clapped. A second number was given. The boys, looking around on the smiling faces, knew that the crowd was with them. Their enthusiasm increased. A third number was played and it was as plain as day that considerably more pep was being put into their work. They had been warmed up by the crowd and after the encore that greeted their third effort they fairly danced into the fourth number. Pleasure was written all over their faces. They were enjoying it as much as the audience itself. Two numbers, or, at the most, three, was all that had been asked for, but when someone called the name of a fifth selection the musicians without a moment's hesitation accommodated them. They wanted to. They liked it.

"What a contrast between the start and the finish! They caught the real Chicago spirit and something admirable which is always in the hearts of all Chicagoans had been awakened. The Piano Club in return voted Frank Westphal and his organization a humdinger crew—a gang of regular fellows who certainly know how to entertain. It was 'some' event."

The Brunswick Dispatch Contest

The editor of the Brunswick Dispatch, a clever little house organ devoted to the exclusive Brunswick trade, has just launched a "Question and Answer" contest for Brunswick sales people. The contest began with the May issue of the Brunswick Dispatch and on the 29th of the month. The day set as the deadline for answers receivable the Dispatch editor's desk was literally groaning under the weight of numerous replies. The contest is made up of questions which relate to Brunswick artists and Brunswick records and the history of music, and this contest will be a monthly affair. For the best set of answers sent in each month by Brunswick sales people a cash prize of $25 will be given, with a second prize of $15, as well as a third prize of $10. The contest is open to all persons actively engaged in selling Brunswick products and each set of answers submitted must be countersigned by the store owner. A list of the ten questions recently asked is as follows:

"1. Name three violinists now recording for Brunswick.

"2. Name leading dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co.

"3. Name leading dramatic tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co.

"4. Name leading dramatic baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Co.

"5. Who has been recognized throughout the entire world as 'The Master Pianist'?

"6. Name two prominent arias from the opera 'La Boheme' released on Brunswick records March 15, naming acts in which they appear.

"7. What two operatic arias were released on the Brunswick April list as sung by the leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Co.?

"8. Is there a story connected with the word 'Tarantelle'? What recording have we recently released bearing this title?

"9. Name the remarkable soprano recording released on April 15, the theme of which was used for a most recent popular dance recording.

"10. How many records were released for sale on April 15, naming number of operatic, piano and violin records included in this list?"

In answering questions relative to Brunswick recordings the record number, color of label and artist's name must be mentioned.

Jewett Office Operates

The Jewett Phonograph Co., of Detroit, has just completed the equipment of its new Chicago office at Room 1624, North American Building. The entire line of Jewett instruments, including the new Jewett radiophone, is now on display. Emil F. Sharp, assistant sales manager of the Jewett Co., is looking after the firm's activities at its Chicago office.

Papineau Manages Fair Department

W. B. Papineau, who for some time past was the office manager for the Sam Fox Pub. Co. and who for many years besides this was general manager for the well-known chain of retail stores presided over by Col. Goetting throughout the New England States, has just been made manager of the musical merchandise department of The Fair. In conjunction with his managerial duties Mr. Papineau will buy the musical merchandise.

Davin Wins First Prize

J. J. Davin, secretary of the Reincke-Ellis Co., this city, won first prize in an advertising idea contest introduced at Northwestern University recently, in behalf of the Owl Drug Co., one of the leading retail organizations in this city. Mr. Davin attends the advertising course at the Northwestern University, and when it was announced that a prize would be awarded for the best analysis of the "Owl" advertising and sales campaign he joined with the other students in submitting ideas and plans. Needless to say, Mr. Davin was extraordinarily pleased to learn that he had been awarded the first prize of $25, and he received the other day a letter of congratulation from A. R. Specht, vice-president of the Owl Drug Co.

Lyon & Healy's Victrola Show Week

Lyon & Healy have created quite a sensation in talking machine circles in Chicago, by means of their Victrola show, which lasted a full week, and was carried out on a most extensive publicity scale. One feature of the show was that the entire window space fronting Jackson boulevard and Wabash avenue, comprising over 15,000 feet, was entirely devoted to the Victor display.

Concerts were given daily and many popular Victor artists appeared in person both at the

The Best Motor Money Can Buy

1. The wick lubricating system, an exclusive feature of our motor, keeps every part in the gear box running in a film of oil. Not a mere smear of grease to dry away and get gummy and hard with exposure to the air, causing noise and variable speed within a short space of time, but constant circulating lubrication.

For at least two years after our motors are installed the wick will circulate pure oil and governor and gears will be perfectly lubricated. Some of the high-priced motor cars have recently adopted wick lubrication—because it is right—continuous, automatic, certain.

2. The enclosed construction makes this lubricating system possible and also keeps dirt, bits of excelsior, lint and phonograph needles, etc., from getting into the works. This prevents those trouble cases that cost the dealer money and cause his customers annoyance.

3. The design of our motor lends itself to accurate alignment of bearing and springs. When our box-like casting is clamped into the holding tools to be machined it does not distort with pressure as open castings do. The reason we have almost no spring breakage is that perfect alignment does away with the side strain which causes crystallization and breakage of springs.

REAL PRICES

1. We have a modern, complete, specially designed equipment solely devoted to the production of this motor.

2. Our plant is spacious, light, modern in every feature and our organization is seasoned and imbued with spirit of quality.

concert hall and in the Victrola department. One of the big drawing cards was Roy Bargy, director of the Benson-Victor orchestra, who, with his men, played in the retail Victor department each day from 12 to 2. Besides this well-known organization, such artists as Pauline Marshall, Lucille Hayley, Marie Turner, Claire Louise Thurston and Harold Saxler were on the bill.

On the main floor over one hundred different models and finishes were on display, with prices ranging from $25 for the portable model, to the elaborate period design, at $850. Announcements of the show were made by means of full-page display advertising which appeared in all of the Chicago dailies.

W. H. Wade Patents the "Impresad"

W. H. Wade, of the Wade-Twichell Co., has patented and is now manufacturing a clever little device called the "Impresad." This is a small instrument made of aluminum and consists of two parts; one part forming a base and spindle, and the other part consisting of a circular stamp and hollow handle, wherein the spindle of the base fits. The record is placed on the spindle, and the pad, which has a rubber stamp attached to its under surface, is slipped into space and pressed down. Upon removing the record from this little instrument there is stamped around the margin of the record label the name of the dealer who made the sale.

Another Lyon & Healy Sales Help

Lyon & Healy have just completed two of the most handsomely decorated demonstration booths for Victor talking machines that have ever been seen here. One of the big ideas concerned in the decoration of these booths is to teach the dealers in a practical way just how effectively a booth may be finished; and what results may be obtained from such a finish. The booths as they now stand are equipped with the most elegant tapestry and furnishings that money can buy. One big and prominent feature, which stands out and makes its appeal to women, is a group of artistically arranged mirrors placed about the walls.

Another effective piece of Victrola advertising which Lyon & Healy have carried out is located at the entrance of their main doorway. It consists of a very handsome Circassian walnut console Victrola placed upon a blue plush pedestal, which is surrounded by a fence-like arrangement made of gold cord. It is so arranged that the sunlight strikes it in the late afternoon, and if the day is cloudy a large electric bulb is placed in the scenery directly over the instrument, which carries out the same effect.

The Nobles Entrain

Very few of the Nobles of Chicago's Medinah Temple were absent from the big turnout of that body on the evening of June 8, when 1,075 of them, accompanied by their wives and families, marched from the Temple to the Northwestern depot. The procession was headed by the Honorable W. H. Wade, Potentate of the Medinah Temple. "Bill" was togged in full dress regalia and perched artistically upon the hump of a very large camel. The reader may rest assured that there were plenty of talking machine boys along the line of marchers. The party was headed for San Francisco, where they went to attend the annual session of the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine, June 12, 13, 14 and 15. After the 15th three trainloads of Shriners and their families will make a trip through the Grand Canyon; two trainloads will make the trip North to Portland and the mountains in that section, and several hundred of them will embark for a trip to Honolulu.

The Piano Club Drive

The far-famed membership drive of the Chicago Piano Club, under the direction of Harry D. Schoenwald, Chicago representative of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., and chairman of the membership committee, closed on Wednesday, May 31, in a whirlwind of excitement and a blaze of glory for the winner. We beg to introduce, ladies and gentlemen, the jovial, genial and gentle person of Sidney Sachs, better known as "Sid," who won the drive with a total of sixteen new members secured. Jack Kapp, of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was second, with a total of thirteen. Both these gentlemen worked hard and late in rivalry to gain the greatest number of new members, and each deserves great credit for his interest. It was nip and tuck right up to the finish, with Jack ahead one day and Sid the next, and if ever there was a successful membership campaign it was that just closed by the Chicago Piano Club. The winner will receive a first prize of $25 and second $15.

We must not fail to mention, however, the important fact that Harry Schoenwald himself brought in fifty members, more than three times as many as the winner. Mr. Schoenwald, however, eliminated himself from the contestants because of the fact that he was conducting the campaign.

The total number of new members secured was 124, 100 of whom are resident and twenty-four non-resident. One hundred and twenty-four new members between April 10 and May 31 is some record, we claim, and too much credit cannot be given the boys who put the thing across. The club now has a total paid membership of 366.

Fletcher-Wickes Co. Expands

The Fletcher-Wickes Co. is now occupying new headquarters on the same floor of the building where it has been located since its organization. The new headquarters, however, are simply additional space which the constant growth of this company has necessitated. Most of this new space is devoted to offices and assembling department, and, in addition to this space, the company also occupies the third floor and basement of this building.

Feature Piano Records

One of the most sensational talking machine advertisements which have appeared in local papers for some time was the full page used in the Chicago dailies recently by the Brunswick Co. These pages feature Brunswick piano records and call attention to Brunswick's remark—able feats in recording which have startled the musical world. Every Brunswick shop in Chicago has its name and address given in the advertisement, suggesting that all interested should visit these shops. The artists featured in this advertisement were Elly Ney and Leopold Godowsky, pianists, exclusive Brunswick artists. The list of the Ney and Godowsky piano records were given, together with their numbers.

During the week special piano recitals were given each day and evening for the entire week in all Brunswick shops in Chicago.

The Geer Repeater

The Geer Repeater has certainly gone over big in Chicago. This may be easily seen in a very short while if one cares to walk through Chicago's trade barometer, namely, Piano Row. In every store, without exception, along this famous Row, you will find the Geer Repeater on sale. Each store has an electric motor equipment placed in the window with turntable, Geer repeater and tone arm in action. This situation has been maintained for the past two months. The men along the street claim that anything moving is always an attractive drawing card and the Geer Repeater as a moving attraction has proved wonderfully successful.

Elaborate Window Sign

The Victor Shop of Davidson Bros., located in Piano Row, has just had a large and elaborate gold sign lettered on its display window. This new sign is one of the largest gold lettered window signs in the Loop and announces the firm's name as well as its monogram, "Davidson's Service." This show window, by the way, has gained fame far and wide by virtue of its beautiful Victrola window displays.

New Vitanola Agency

Samuel S. Schiff, of the Vitanola Talking Machine Co., gave out the news this month that the company is opening many new agencies and has at present some of the liveliest dealers of the country on its books. All the talking machine dealers throughout the country are concentrating to put over a Vitanola sales campaign in their respective territories. This campaign is likely to be the talk of the music business before long. Each Vitanola dealer is satisfied that he is going to make his business the most attractive and popular one in his town. The Vitanola Co. is now in the process of manufacturing an entirely new line of uprights and consoles at prices that will make the dealers happy.

Getting Its Annual Bath

The Steger Building, one of Chicago's large skyscrapers, and the home of the Steger & Sons Mfg. Co., manufacturers of the Steger phonograph and pianos, located at Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard, has gone through the process of having its annual bath recently. A large contracting company was busily engaged with some fifteen employes for over a week in cleaning off the front of the building. This building, like all other Chicago buildings which have a white facing, is indeed a beautiful sight and stands out in all of its whiteness, but Chicago's far-famed smoky atmosphere will cause this whiteness to last but a few months at the most.

New Distributor for Wall-Kane

Charles S. Slack, head of the Melody National Sales Co., has just been appointed Chicago representative for the Wall-Kane needle. This needle is now being given better representation in this territory than ever before, and it is Mr. Slack's intention to keep the Wall-Kane dealers in this section acquainted with the most up-to-date helps obtainable. Mr. Slack reports that the Summer resort territory is creating quite a demand for the Melody portable machine and there are quite a number of dealers who are making great numbers of sales on this handsome little instrument.

Starr Popular in Milwaukee

The Chicago office of The World is in receipt of a letter from Miss O. Wachs, manager for A. G. Kunde, Milwaukee distributor of Starr phonographs and Gennett records, which states that both these well-known lines of goods are going bigger than ever in Milwaukee. Miss Wachs further states that they are signing up numerous dealers to handle Starr phonographs and Gennett records in this territory.

One of the latest accounts in Milwaukee to be closed by Kunde for Starr phonographs and Gennett records is the P. W. Voland Furniture Co., 3202 North avenue. This concern is the largest furniture house on the Northwest Side and has put in a complete line of the above-mentioned goods. This firm, through its many years of experience and its well-known reputation, is in a fine position to put over a real music campaign in its territory.

Lakeside's Portable

The Lakeside Supply Co. has come out with a new portable, to which it has given the trade name of "Chorister." This is a very small model of an outing talking machine, being 18 1/4 inches high and 16 1/2 inches wide; equipped with a double-spring motor capable of playing two and one-half ten-inch records on one winding. The tone-arm equipment is of the universal type, connected to an all-wood amplifier. A compartment is provided which holds about eighteen records and when full the total weight of the machine, plus the records, is around nineteen pounds.

It Was a Proceeding in Equity

In the May issue of The Talking Machine World a story was run about the activities of the Vitanola Talking Machine Co. In this story the word "bankruptcy" was used. This term was used in error and the company has asked us to rectify the mistake. The Vitanola Co. was not relieved from bankruptcy, for bankruptcy proceedings were not taken. A receiver in equity was appointed, who has now been discharged.

several foreign concerns are approaching dealers and jobbers throughout the United States and offering for sale fibre needles, which are a direct infringement on the Hall patents and which are poor imitations. Several times in the past few years attempts have been made by foreign companies to unload spurious goods of this character upon the American market. At one time a few years ago one concern was running over the market in such a roughshod manner that the Hall Mfg. Co. found it necessary to take the matter up in court, when it was found that the Hall patents were valid and infringed. It is now the intention of the Hall Co. to get after all imitators more strenuously than ever.

That Grand Opening

Ted Snyder himself and one hundred stage stars were there to greet the public and sing for them at the grand opening of Ted Snyder's big song shop on Saturday, June 3. All departments were open for inspection.

The opening announcement was heralded in the daily papers and called the public's attention to the fact that Columbia, Victor and Cameo records were on sale. Machines of all those makes were on display in twelve beautiful demonstration rooms. Besides having departments devoted to records, talking machines and sheet music, there has been established in this new shop a piano roll department, as well as a radio department. The slogan carried on all

Snyder publicity is a little rhyme, which reads: "A ring on the phone brings a song to your home."

Besides his activities at this grand opening, Mr. Snyder, while here, composed a special song, which his firm, in conjunction with the Chicago Evening American, will publish, as a soldier bonus song. This song was sung throughout the grand opening of the new shop. "I'll Be There"

While we are on the subject of songs and songwriters, we must not fail to state that Lee S. Roberts, of the Q R S Co., wrote a special song for the Jubilee Convention of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce. The Jubilee singers of Chicago who pulled out for the convention on Saturday evening, June 3, at 6.30, surely made the air ring with "I'll Be There." The first singing of this song was done at the May 29 meeting of the Piano Club, when Billy Collins led the assemblage in a rousing chorus.

Columbia Activities

M. G. Peters, dealer service supervisor of the local branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., returned recently from a successful trip through Iowa and Illinois. Mr. Peters traveled these States in the interest of dealer service and was very much enthused.

John McKenna, manager of the Chicago branch of the Columbia Co., was one of those present on the Piano Club Special to the Convention in New York. Mr. McKenna was accompanied by his wife. While in New York he visited the executive offices.

J. W. Dux, formerly with the Westinghouse Electric Co., has come into the Columbia organization and will travel Iowa.

Chas. Beisel, one of the best-known traveling men in the Middle West, has also come into the Columbia Graphophone Co., with the Chicago branch, and will travel Indiana.

Mr. Stepanek, of Stepanek & Vondracek, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was recently a visitor to the Chicago branch. Mr. Stepanek is very much enthused over Grafonola business in Cedar Rapids, and is enjoying a healthy business at this time.

S. R. Lemberg, our North Side salesman, enjoyed his vacation by taking in St. Louis, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, New York and Boston. In the latter city Mr. Lemberg visited relatives. He was accompanied by Mrs. Lemberg.

Magnola at Exhibit

The Magnola Talking Machine Co., of this city, held an exhibit at Suite 1252, Hotel Commodore, during the big national convention in New York. The exhibit was in charge of Messrs. Bassett, Hewitt and Gustafson, of that company. Besides a full line of Magnola instruments, there was on display a full line of Schulz player-pianos and small grands, which are the product of the M. ganization of the Magnola Co. Mr. Bassett, who is vice-president of both concerns, reported that the dealers exhibited much interest in the Magnola line.

Changes Company Name

The Art Music Shop has just changed its company name to the Brunswick Shop, Inc. This store is one of the most attractive and busiest exclusive Brunswick shops in this territory and plans are now being made to increase their present holdings within a short time.

Takes on Diamond Juvenile Console Line

E. A. Fearn, of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., reports a very active demand for the Diamond Juvenile Console line, which his company is representing as jobbers in this territory. This clever little line is being received with much favor by dealers in this section, who regard it as a real musical instrument for children.

Diamond Juvenile furniture is manufactured by the Diamond Products Corp., and makes an ideal setting for a children's booth and an attractive display window. The set consists of a table, four chairs and a clothes rack, as well as a handsome little console talking machine, which will play ten-inch records.

Opens Radio Department

The Bent Music Shop has just opened a new radio department on its main floor and up to date has been doing a thriving business with this line. The shop handles the well-known Amord line of receiving sets as well as accessories and parts. One of its Wabash avenue show rooms is given over for display purposes and a few of its demonstration rooms are being utilized for demonstrating radio in connection with a full line of Victrolas and Victor records.

Another concern to establish a radio department is the Central Piano Co., formerly conducted by Raymond Healy.

Neumeister to Europe

Charles W. Neumeister, Western manager of the record division of the General Phonograph Corp., of Illinois, left Chicago on June 10 for a two months' business trip and vacation. He was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Neumeister. England, Holland, Belgium, France and Germany will be visited and Mr. Neumeister expects to return to Chicago by the end of July, Mrs. Neumeister following by the end of August.

C. W. Neumeister

A most successful trip in the interests of Okeh records has just been completed by Mr. Neumeister, who in his travels covered nearly every city of importance in the Central West. In Minneapolis recently he attended an Okeh demonstration week, which was put on by Vernon T. Stevens, local manager of Doerr, Andrews & Doerr. One of the features of this Okeh demonstration was a radio-equipped car and Magnavox, which created quite a sensation, both in Minneapolis and St. Paul. It made quite a hit.

Returns from Western Trip

Frank P. Whitmore, secretary of the W. W. Kimball Co., has just returned from a very successful six weeks' trip which took him through the Pacific Coast territory. Mr. Whitmore stated that the dealers in that section are anticipating an excellent Summer and Fall business and are placing good orders.

Part of his trip was made in company with George T. Bowen, who has just been appointed to act as general representative for the W. W. Kimball Co. in its coast territory. Mr. Bowen is one of the best-known music travelers in that section of the country and has established his headquarters in Room 1229, Hearst Examiner Building, in San Francisco.

Harry Hahn a Visitor

Harry Hahn was one of the trade's recent visitors, coming in from Milwaukee to visit the Aeolian headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Hahn has been representing the Aeolian throughout Wisconsin for a number of months and is to be congratulated in view of the fine work he is doing for his company in that section.

The Jubilee Convention Special

The local talking machine industry was well represented on the Jubilee Convention Special which left Chicago on Saturday, June 3, bound for New York. More than 130 piano and talking machine dealers, manufacturers and representatives were on board the train and their trip to New York was thoroughly enjoyed from start to finish.

The Chicago Piano Club and the Piano and Organ Association were represented in force, and M. J. Kennedy, who was in charge of the party, was congratulated on the care and attention he gave to every detail. En route to the convention the party was entertained by Mme. Sturkow-Ryder in connection with the Apollo reproducing grand. The music for the trip was furnished through the courtesy of the Apollo

When the train pulled into Harmon, N. Y., the visitors were welcomed by a committee from New York, and when the special reached Grand Central Terminal, the Westerners were greeted by three Scotch lassies dressed in native costume who provided music in the way of bagpipes and drums.

Byrne on the Value of Trade Papers

The value of publicity in trade mediums of responsibility was well set forth recently by Chas. E. Byrne, secretary-treasurer of the Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co., who said: "Though the powerful Steger publicity addressed to piano and phonograph merchants includes direct-mail pieces and other effective forms of advertising, the trade paper announcements are really the backbone of the entire campaign. So satisfactory have been the results from the latter that, where a choice is to be made between trade journal advertising as against all other forms of publicity, from the standpoint of interesting dealers, I would recommend the business papers."

This commendation from a man of wide experience in the advertising field is worthy the attention of those arranging advertising appropriations. It is significant that the persistent users of advertising have the least cause to complain about poor business.

Six Brown Brothers Score

Tom Brown and the original Six Brown Brothers, famous in talking machine circles as saxophonists, have proven great drawing cards in all the big movie houses around Chicago, where they have been showing lately. At the Riviera and Chicago theatres they had to hang out the S. R. O. sign. Tom Brown has been devoting quite a bit of his time to his "Tom Brown Saxophone Shop," at State and Lake streets, where he has not only been retailing a big lot of Buescher saxophones, but has been tutoring numerous coming saxophonists as well.

Magill Takes Radio Line

Walter Magill is determined to keep himself busy. He has been doing a great amount of work in the talking machine line, selling motors and other parts, but he is not satisfied with this, so he has taken on another line and has formed the Universal Radio Co., Inc. His new firm is putting out a number of cleverly designed Crystal outfits, which range in price from $10 to $25 retail. The headquarters of this concern are in Room 1200, Consumers' Building.

Isham Jones Moves

Isham Jones and his orchestra terminated their engagement at the Winter Palace on May 1 and began a long Summer engagement, which will take them to nearly every principal city in the mid-Central States. Their first engagement was Cleveland, O., where they put on an elaborate musical program at the opening of the Brunswick department at Halle Bros. After the opening of this new institution they returned to Chicago and played at the Senate Theatre and then started "round the wheel." Their travels will take them to Springfield, Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, Notre Dame, Kalamazoo, Jackson and then back to Chicago, to play again at the big movie houses.

Enjoying Their European Visit

The Western office of The Talking Machine World has just received word from Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Kunde, of Milwaukee. They are at present taking in Germany as part of their tour of Europe. They left the States on April 1 and, in all probability, will not return until late in Summer.

This company started as a Victor jobber in 1914 at 185 Fourth street and in 1916 it moved to 135 Second street, where it remained until the present move. The announcements were sent out by Harry A. The Vis-Matic Album Being Marketed

A new company known as the Unyversal Utylyty Unyts Co., has just entered the field and is now marketing a new type of record album, to which it has given the trade name "Vis-Matic." The story of the invention of the Vis-Matic album, as told by E. A. Banschbach, its inventor and president of the Unyversal Utylyty Unyts Co., is a very interesting one. Mr. Banschbach was for a long time connected with the sales force of the Burroughs Adding Machine man tops the list for a certain number of successive years he is given an honorary all-star life membership. The prizes that the top-notchers receive from the Burroughs Co. may be of choice, and it was one of these choice prizes which was the thing that got Mr. Banschbach interested in talking machines.

His choice about five years ago was a high-grade talking machine with an assortment of albums. He had hardly gotten his prize home and started to file a number of records which he purchased, when, as he says, he became dissatisfied with albums and started out to tinker around in order that he might file them in a way which appealed to him. He made quite a number of filing devices of different kinds and finally, about a year or so ago, hit upon the idea which he is now marketing.

His first affair was a rather clumsy contrivance built in an all-brass case, whose cost of production could not have, under any conditions, been brought down to under $5. The latest Vis-Matic filing device, however, is a light and handy filing unit which sells at a very attractive retail price.

New Cicero Store

Krall's Music Store is a new establishment, located at 5819 West 22nd street, which opened recently with a complete line of talking machines, pianos, player-pianos, rolls and records. Mr. Krall, the proprietor, is a veteran in the music business.

Exhibited Compact Radio

John F. Fishbach, head of the Compact Radio Co., of Indianapolis, Ind., held a week's exhibit at the Drake Hotel in Chicago during the Confectioners' Convention. His instrument is a very elaborate radio hook-up of the non-generative type. The hook-up is patented by Mr. Fishbach and has two states of radio frequency and two states of audio frequency. A folding loop antenna is used, which when not in use doubles up and fits into the cabinet.

Electric Sign Features Brunswick

One of the largest and most elaborate electric signs that have ever graced Chicago's Piano Row has been erected by the Wade-Twichell Co., located at 311 South Wabash avenue. This sign carries announcements of all of the goods handled by this company. The largest and most prominent space is given over to Brunswick.

Tone Arm Business Improving

A. B. Cornell, of the Jewel Phonoparts Co., reports that from present indications the manufacturers of talking machines are making great headway in their factories. This is evidenced, according to Mr. Cornell, by the numerous orders coming in for tone arms. Great interest is being shown this season by the Jewel mute, one of the prominent features of their well-known tone arm. This mute is a little addition to the sound box, which controls volume just like the human throat. It is built into the reproducer and the length and strength of vibrations are minutely regulated so that the reproduced tones may be softened or increased as desired with clearness.

The mute operates by means of a small thumb screw located on the edge of the sound box, which gives instant adjustment and perfect regulation. This sound box, by the way, is made with an exceedingly long diaphragm and long stylus bar perfectly balanced with carefully worked ratios. Instead of using mica for the diaphragm entirely the Jewel Co. is supplying its famous "Nom-Y-Ka" composition.

Unit Construction News

D. D. Montgomery, district manager of the Chicago division of the Unit Construction Co., gives out the good news this month that during the Summer season Chicago will see more activity in store remodeling and the installation of new equipment than it has ever seen before. The trade, as a whole, has come at last to realize that good appearance makes for better business and the Unit Construction Co. is acting accordingly "the last month or so," said Mr. Montgomery, "I have covered a great deal of Chicago territory calling on dealers and getting their views. All have the same story to tell. Business is going to be better because they are going to make it better. They appreciate the

Lidseen Business Increasing

The fibre needle cutting department of Lidseen Products, of this city, has just taken additional space in its factory for the production of this well-known little instrument. The Lidseen cutter has met with approval on the part of the trade by virtue of the fact that it is the only fibre needle cutter which permits the sharpening and recutting of a fibre needle without its being removed from the stylus bar of the reproducer. This instrument is built mechanically perfect. The cutting plate is of the wheel type and the rotary motion is produced by the mere pressing down of a small lever. When in position for cutting the instrument is placed on top of the record, with the turntable shaft of the motor inserted through a slot in the base of the cutter. The end of the fibre needle is then placed in a groove of the cutter, the lever of the cutter is pushed down and the needle is thus sharpened.

Musical Treats of the Movie Houses

The big movie houses of Chicago are starting out along new lines for Summer entertainment. Heretofore it has been customary to run long pictures and short musical programs. Now, however, beginning with the Summer season, nearly every first-class movie theatre in town is just reversing this program; that is, shortening the pictures and lengthening the musical programs. For example, such artists as Isham Jones, Six Brown Bros., Benson's Orchestra and other well-known organizations have been making the rounds of the theatres.

The Stratford Theatre, the largest movie house in Englewood, instead of trying the modern dance and popular music on its audience, has installed a high-class symphony orchestra for the Summer season, with Bruno Steindel, world-famous cellist, and Richard Czerwonky, eminent violinist and composer, as leaders. It will be inter-

The Cheney Resonator

The Cheney Talking Machine Co. is continuing its publicity campaign with increased vigor. Much attention has been called to the Cheney by means of other propaganda, entitled "The Man With the Spot Light," and its latest publicity has to do with the Cheney resonator and its construction. This advertising literature brings out the points of chief concern in the manufacture of the amplifier in that this part of the machine is actually carved out of seasoned violin wood. The wood utilized in the construction of the Cheney resonator is carved from seasoned spruce and maple, which resonant woods develop and bring forth all of the beautiful violin tones in a rich, sweet manner.

The Cheney publicity further states that the wood used in this resonator is not kiln dried, but is carefully seasoned for a year or more, this seasoning being brought about by time and the elements. Sales Manager A. Harper, of the Cheney Co., reports that this company is going through a very active month of business and that he is making preparations for the opening of the semi-annual furniture market at Grand Rapids.

This big market holds forth twice a year, in July and January.

Sterling Devices Co. in Radio

The Sterling Devices Co. is bringing out a supersensitive radio receiving head-set, which will be placed on the market in a short time. These headphones, according to Manager Miessner, of the Sterling Co., are built along unique lines and involve many new and original improvements. Mr. Miessner is an old-time telephone engineer who thoroughly appreciates the peculiar requirements of headphones for radio telephony. He has been working for many months on these new ideas. Besides the headphones the Sterling Co. will probably within the next few months place on the market quite a number of other accessories for radio work.

Mr. Miessner has at last perfected an electrically driven talking machine motor that embodies a new non-set stop principle and offers every promise of filling a long-felt want.

Roy Bargy Off to Atlantic City

The PORTOPHONE

Open

The Biggest Value in the Talking Machine Industry Today

A Portable Phonograph built into a leatherette Traveling Case. Plays all makes of disc records with perfect tone.

The PORTOPHONE is the pioneer in the portable phonograph field, and more than 40,000 have been sold. Equipped with the highest grade, powerful, double-spring motor, regulator and turntable brake.

An instrument that is pleasing to the eye and the ear—a favorite in any home. The tone of the PORTOPHONE is equal to any instrument selling at from 5 to 10 times its price, a fact that is made possible through quantity production and organized distribution.

The Big Season for instruments of this class is just starting—tourists, campers, autoists and people with money to buy will soon be looking for a portable phonograph—and the PORTOPHONE is the answer.

A comparison of the PORTOPHONE will quickly prove our contention that it is the biggest value in the talking machine industry today. Made complete from the motor to the cabinet in one factory and sold through the legitimate channels of trade at a good margin of profit to the dealer.

The New Oro-Tone Amplifier

In last month's reading columns of The Talking Machine World a short item appeared relative to the new Conchshell amplifier for radio which the Oro-Tone Co. is placing on the market. No further publicity was given to this during the month of May than appeared in the news columns of The World, but in spite of this numerous inquiries began coming in to the Oro-Tone Co. To-day one can hardly go around the Loop stores of Chicago without running across this unique and clever amplifying device, and the dealers in turn are reporting heavy sales and placing more orders to back up these reports.

The Oro-Tone conchshell amplifier is made of a genuine conch shell mounted on a base or support and at the bottom of this base is a receiving receptacle which is provided with a clamp for holding the telephone receiver of the headset in position.

Brunswick Family Growing

A. J. Kendrick, sales manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., is a firm believer in the old adage that "Seeing is believing." Therefore, instead of merely giving out a report that new Brunswick dealers are being taken on he showed The World representative a long list of Brunswick dealers who have recently signed up with this company. Among the most important of these dealers is the prominent house of Sterchi Bros., of Knoxville, Tenn. Not only has this firm taken on this popular line in its home office, but it has also taken it on in its branch stores at Cincinnati, Chattanooga, Bristol, Tenn.; Atlanta, Ga.; El Paso and San Antonio, Tex. The Bartlett Music Co., of Los Angeles, Cal., one of the oldest-established houses in that territory; the Music Box, conducted by Julius Bolarsky, at Charleston, W. Va.; F. S. Kelley Furniture Co., of Duluth, Minn., and San Francisco's large department store, "The Emporium," are among other newcomers into the Brunswick family.

Wolf's Mfg. Co.'s Chicago Office

Carl A. Knittel, representative of the Wolf Mfg. Industries, of Quincy, Ill., has established a sales office for his concern at 123 West Madison street, Chicago. Since the establishment of this office some weeks ago Mr. Knittel has equipped it with a full line of Wolf instruments and has made it one of the most attractive showrooms for wholesale in Chicago. Mr. Knittel for the past few weeks has been calling on the trade in the Central West and reports that although business is somewhat spotty dealers everywhere are confident that ere the Summer season passes business will again have come into its own, this time to stay.

Install Complete Unico Equipment

In connection with the opening of the Water-son, Berlin & Snyder new establishment referred to elsewhere in this department it should be mentioned that the equipment covering all of the sales facilities of the company, consisting of eight demonstration rooms, record racks, record counter, player roll and sheet music racks and counters, musical instrument, wall and floor cases, as well as the ornamental effects and window back, was installed by the Unit Construction Co., of Philadelphia. The entire installation was carried out in French gray, with a two-tone French gray for the window work.

Oro-Tone Introducing Portable

The Oro-Tone Co., of this city, has just introduced to the trade a new portable talking machine, which it is now manufacturing. This little instrument is complete in every detail and is so constructed that it embodies many new talking points appreciable to the trade, among which is the record filing device located on the lid of the machine. This device obviates any tendency on the part of the user to handle the records when looking for a certain one in particular. Another important feature is the tone arm, which is the company's new large-sized concert model, which is adjustable in length and height. It is of the throwback type, which permits the reproducer to clear the arm when thrown back, regardless of whether it is in position to play hill-and-dale or lateral-cut records. The cases come finished with a waterproof "leatheroid" covering which may be had in either black or brown.

Frank Naese's Artistic Store

Frank Naese, 4803 West Lake street, recently held the formal opening of his new establishment, which has been completely Unico equipped. There are five rooms, record and player roll departments, and window work all finished in ivory. Mr. Naese handles the Brunswick line.

Joins Wade-Twichell

J. E. Kurzenknabe, for the past sixteen years with the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.'s Chicago branch, is now connected with the sales department of the Wade-Twichell Co.

A Number of Important Features Embodied in the Claims of Chicago Inventor

John Gabel, of Chicago, Ill., was last month granted patents No. 1,414,563 and No. 1,414,564, on an invention relating to automatic talking or sound-reproducing machines in which mechanism is provided for changing the records and for shifting the sound box or reproducer. The invention seeks to provide improved record shifting mechanism by which record discs of different sizes are automatically shifted into and out of playing position upon a rotatable record support or turntable, and to provide improved means for automatically controlling the movement of the sound box or reproducer so that it will properly co-operate with record discs of different sizes.

A further object of the invention is to provide improved means for rotating the turntable or record support and for operating the record and sound box shifter mechanism.

Barker, president of Barker Bros., Inc., well-known local dealers in housefurnishing goods and musical instruments, died at his home here recently after a lengthy illness, which culminated in an attack of pneumonia. Mr. Barker was 59 years old and for 30 years had been one of the active merchandisers on the Pacific Coast, having started to work for his father here in 1883. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, a director in the Merchants' National Bank, and interested in numerous public affairs. He is survived by a widow and one son, C. Lawrence Barker.

At a meeting of the board of directors of Barker Bros., Inc., just held, Chas. H. Barker brother of W. A. Barker, was elected to the presidency. C. Lawrence Barker, son of W. A. Barker, was elected first vice-president. All other officers were re-elected as follows: Frank A. Barnes, second vice-president; J. W. Beam, treasurer; Frank K. Colby, secretary.

It is announced that following Mr. Barker's death there will be no change in the executive personnel of the company other than to fill the vacant presidency and that the business policy of the house will be maintained as formerly.

LIMA VICTOR DOG SIGNS POPULAR

New Type of Outdoor Display Sign Meeting With a Hearty Welcome—Solomon-Edwards Co. Increases Factory Space to Meet Trade Demands for This Very Striking Display

LIMA, O., June 6.—The Solomon-Edwards Co., of this city, has just introduced Lima Victor dog signs, constituting a form of outdoor display for Victor dealers. This new display consists of the famous Victor dog in a large cut-out metal sign. The signs are made of twenty-four-gauge steel and are mounted on heavy frames and posts so that they may be used permanently. The signs are sold outright to Victor dealers through the Victor jobbers, and at the present time Victor wholesalers throughout the country are included in the company's distribution campaign.

One of the Lima Victor Dogs

The new metal signs are being used extensively by Victor dealers, and the sales department of the Solomon-Edwards Co. states that Heaton's Music Store in Columbus, O., has secured exclusive rights for Columbus and Franklin County; the De Forest Music Co. has exclusive rights in Sharon, Pa.; Greenville, Pa.; Warren, O., and Niles, O. Among the other well-known dealers in Ohio using these new signs are L. Meier & Sons, Cleveland; Earle K. Hawkin & Sons, Springfield; J. C. Welton & Sons, Lancaster, and the Home Furnishing Co., Athens.

There are two types of these signs, one of which is twelve feet high and makes a splendid showing on highways, curves in the road, on the tops of business buildings and other points of vantage. The smaller signs, measuring three feet in height, can be used advantageously on the roads leading into the city and may also be easily and quickly fastened to fences, posts, buildings, etc.

D. John, sales manager of the company, states that the trade has given the Lima Victor dog signs a hearty welcome and that it has been found necessary to increase the factory capacity in order to give the dealers efficient service. The signs are sold to only one Victor dealer in each city and may be used as an important link in the Victor dealer's publicity campaign.

SOUND LESSONS TO AID TEACHERS

Frank E. Morton Develops Plan for Making Music Instruction Easier Through the Medium of the Piano—Details of the Idea

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 3.—A series of project lessons to be sent to school teachers in nearly every State in the Union for the teaching of the nature of sound through the medium of the piano is the unique plan of Frank E. Morton, chairman of the board of directors of the Jackson-Morton Piano Co., and an acoustical engineer of national repute.

Great steps have been taken within the last half-century to bring the educational system down to a practical basis, arranged in such a way as to induce individual thought and the habit of inquiry in the child rather than the mere ability to memorize. In connection with this movement has come the practical demonstration of theories through mediums familiar to the child and encountered by him in the course of everyday life.

In this way, through practical demonstration with the prism, color charts and other means, the theory of the division of light into colors has been made clear to every graded school student. But while the development of the sense of sight has been well taken care of, that of the ear, or sound, has not, according to Mr. Morton. Few are familiar with the composite nature of tones, a knowledge of which increases a thousandfold the appreciation of music, he says.

Mr. Morton says this theory can be made clear to the student in a fascinating manner through the piano better than with the elaborate and unfamiliar apparatus of the physics laboratory. Not only will the child understand music far better through these lessons, but he will be a more valuable citizen, since his emotions as well as his intellect are receiving constructive training.

Although jazz is, to quote Mr. Morton, "the appeal of one neurotic to another," he believes it will continue to maintain a place for some time to come, and even has a beneficial aspect in forming a contrast to higher forms of music and as an incentive to progress in the artistic. However, he believes that with the higher education of the child along musical lines we will no longer be used by jazz, but will be enabled to use it to advantage instead.

Mr. Morton will open the course with the beginning of the Fall term. There will be about eight lessons, free to any teacher interested.

THE TWIN CITIES

Distributors and Dealers Report Trade Betterment—Resumption of Mining Activities and Good Crops Responsible—Month's News

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., June 6.—Talking machine distributors and jobbers in Minneapolis and St. Paul are making preparations for a spirited revival in trade and the outlook now is for some real fine business. Crop conditions are reported to be excellent and the farmers are able to obtain money on very reasonable terms to carry them along until they can cut their grain and market their potatoes. The resumption of work in the mining districts has had a stimulating effect and has been felt by all the cities having connections with the iron range towns.

"We are all set," declared Sewell D. Andrews, of the Minneapolis Drug Co., distributor of Sonora phonographs. "As soon as mining operations are on in earnest, which will be in a short time, the music jobbers will have an inning after a long rest. Stocks among the country dealers are very light and as soon as they see business in sight they will begin ordering, for they are well aware that people will begin to buy again. There has been a rather brisk demand for portable machines of late, but, generally speaking, matters have been somewhat quiet."

W. L. Sprague on Trip

W. L. Sprague, Northwestern manager for the Columbia Graphophone Co., is making a tour of southern Minnesota with one of his travelers, W. F. Warren, to obtain first-hand evidence as to trade and crop conditions. Business is reported as very satisfactory by Assistant Manager Tanner, as a result of the intensive special advertising campaign conducted by the house.

Cheney Business Gaining

The Cheney is making steady and sure headway in the Northwest, according to L. C. Kearney, of the Edward G. Hoch Co., Northwestern distributor. "Every Cheney buyer is a permanent friend and a constant booster and advertiser and we can see most decided progress every month." Mr. Kearney left last week on an automobile tour to Denver by way of Sioux City and Nebraska Point. He expects to do considerable business en route.

Victor Distributors Feel Revival

Victor distributors, particularly W. J. Dyer & Bro. and the Beckwith-O'Neill Co., find considerable comfort in the revival of business activities in the cities of the iron ranges through the resumption of iron mining on a large scale. Eugene F. O'Neill states that the rural districts are rather quiet, but everybody is in good spirits. Collections are much better and business truly is on the up-grade.

Many New Brunswick Accounts

New accounts are being opened right along by the phonograph department of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. Among those recently signed up are O. V. Karlberg, of Albert Lea, and the F. S. Kelly Furniture Co., Duluth, the latter to become an exclusive Brunswick store. A dealers' service department has been established with E. N. Lukas as manager. The latter is a recent arrival from Chicago, but is making himself at home.

New Edison Headquarters

Fine new headquarters for the Edison phonographs have been opened in the Arner Building, 17 South Sixth street, Minneapolis, by Laurence H. Lucker, Edison distributor. The quarters are well arranged, with plenty of sunlight on all sides and about 5,000 square feet more space than the former place.

Miss D. Burling in New Post

The retail stores of the Minnesota Phonograph Co. have had excellent results and report that the volume of sales is ahead of that of last year for the corresponding period. Miss Dorothy Burling, formerly with the sheet music department at Donaldson's, has been added to the retail sales force of this establishment.

New Columbia Shop

Harry A. Segal and Samuel Eddleson have opened an exclusive Columbia shop in Duluth, with several novel features, such as bungalow rooms, to attract attention.

News Brieflets

Davis & Rubin, Victor retailers in Minneapolis, have been enjoying the best returns since the war, possibly on account of the aggressive efforts of Radford Sabra, manager of the Victrola department.

W. S. Collins, vice-president of the Cable Piano Co., will forget about Victrolas for a time, while he is attending the Rotarian Convention in San Francisco.

George A. Mairs is booked as a visitor to the Victor Jobbers' Convention.

WILL VISIT PACIFIC COAST

Frank J. Coupe Making Plans for Lengthy Trip—Sonora Sales Executives Visiting Trade

Frank J. Coupe, vice-president and director of sales of the Sonora Phonograph Co., will leave shortly for a trip to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Coupe plans to be away seven weeks, visiting all of the Sonora jobbers en route from New York to the Coast and conferring with the jobbers regarding plans for Fall activities.

E. D. Coots and H. J. O'Connor, assistants to the sales manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., have just left New York on extended trips which will include visits to a number of Sonora jobbers.

Chas. Arthur Richards, who was recently appointed export manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., sailed for Europe recently. Mr. Richards will spend some time in London and then proceed to the various European trade centers.

POPULAR SONGS AGAIN ACTIVE

Several Current Popular Melodies Revive Sales—Results Will Be Felt in Record Field During the Summer Months When Trade Is Slow

Despite the fact that popular songs have had very slow sales during the past two months, the publishers protest against the statement that this has been caused by the lack of meritorious material. Naturally, any depression in the sales of popular music is reflected in the lack of demand for popular records. It is, therefore, gratifying to know that during the past few weeks there have been two or three popular numbers which have been successful enough to be called "hits" in the fullest meaning of that word.

Particularly is this true of the novelty song and dance, "Stumbling" (Feist), which almost overnight has jumped into national popularity. Seemingly, this is the best sales creator since the appearance of the now famous "Dardanella," and all channels of the industry have been quick to see its great possibilities. Some of the talking machine record companies have made special releases of the number and the whole industry is practically co-operating in exploiting this issue.

The statement of the publishers that there have been other numbers of much merit issued in recent months is quite true, but, with all their merits, few of them have made any decided impression—that is to say, gained national prominence and universal recognition.

No one seems to know just what a song or instrumental number needs to make this universal appeal. We know, of course, that it must have distinct merit, but there is also an indefinable something that a big hit needs to gain popularity on a large scale. When such a number does arrive it hardly needs an introduction, it is so quickly accepted.

It is very fortunate that an exceptional individual number has arrived at this particular period. It will serve to make sales active in the sheet music, talking machine record and player roll field. Not only for "Stumbling," but for other works of merit. Coming at a time when sales were none too active makes it welcome, but to arrive at what can be termed the opening of the Summer season, makes it doubly important, for invariably a hit of this caliber is followed by two or three other numbers having good sales.

There is no reason to doubt but that history of this sort will be repeated. At any rate, the popularity of "Stumbling" will extend well into the Summer and there are possibilities that it will even be popular at a much later period, particularly inasmuch as its present success is based upon its value as an instrumental number, and while it has yet to be tested for its vocal appeal there are those who believe that it will achieve prominence also from that angle.

MAKES EMPLOYEES STOCKHOLDERS

Leo Feist, Inc., Celebrates Twenty-fifth Anniversary of Founding of Business by Distributing Common Stock to Members of Company Staff

Leo Feist, Inc., the well-known popular publishing house, announced late last month that in celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary arrangements have been made for distributing a liberal portion of the common stock of the company among those employes who by their loyalty and earnest efforts have contributed to the company's success.

The following heads of departments have been selected to participate in the first distribution of stock: Philip Kornheiser, Rocco Vocco, Theodore Morse, Lee Olean Smith and Meyer Jacobs.

The announcement further states that what has been done is only a beginning. "Further distribution of stock will be made from time to time to employes selected by the board on the basis of merit and period of service. He who wins the spurs shall wear them."

Saul Bornstein, Returning From Continental Trip, Reports Herman Darewski Renews Contract to Handle Berlin Catalog in Europe

Saul Bornstein, general manager of Irving Berlin, Inc., who, as announced in these columns recently, returned to his desk after a short stay in Europe, announces that Herman Darewski has again contracted with Irving Berlin, Inc., to handle the Berlin catalog in England for a period of years.

Mr. Bornstein returned to this country ahead of schedule, owing to his mother being suddenly stricken ill. However, at last reports Mrs. Bornstein had shown a decided improvement.

Title of "Dear Old Nebraska" Changed to "Meet Me Next Sunday"

Jack Snyder, 1658 Broadway, New York City, publisher of "In Maytime" and other successes, announces that a new song, "Dear Old Nebraska," has had its title changed to "Meet Me Next Sunday." This is a typical Summer song in point of lyrics and its melody is a novelty fox-trot.

ORGANIZING COPYRIGHT COMMITTEE

E. C. Mills, of Music Publishers' Protective Association, Organizing Committee to Interest Itself in Copyright Matters Which May Arise

E. C. Mills, chairman of the executive board of the Music Publishers' Protective Association, is organizing an inter-organization copyright committee for the purpose of having the committee take an active interest in all copyright propositions such as the recent resolution in Congress for the entrance of the United States into the International Copyright Union and similar propositions.

Mr. Mills has asked the following organizations to have one of their members or a representative sit in the committee which he is forming: Society of American Dramatists and Composers, American Academy of Arts and Letters, Authors' League of America, Inc., National Association of Book Publishers and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and other such organizations interested in copyright matters.

When an important copyright situation arises it is the intention of Mr. Mills to have his committee go into the matter thoroughly and if it merits such they will endorse the bill, and support it in every way possible.

WILL FILM OPERAS AND SONGS

Series of Viennese Operettas and Many Popular Songs Form the Basis of Film Productions— Idea Found to Be Mutually Profitable to Both Dealers and Film Producers

United Plays, Inc., which last year purchased the rights to film a series of Viennese operettas, are to make releases of one of two of these productions through the Famous Players-Lasky organization during the coming season, according to a recent announcement.

In addition to the above, which applies to works that can be considered more or less classical, there have been produced during the past year several films based upon popular songs, including Gus Edwards' "School Days."

It is said that other motion picture interests are about to film "Sweet Rosy O'Grady," which is to be followed by "Second-hand Rose," and "Broadway Rose."

The Selig-Kalem Features, Inc., was recently organized to film stories based exclusively on songs. Among these is "The Skylark," based upon "Hark, Hark, the Lark." This is to be a two-reeler and, according to the present plans, is to be followed by a series of twelve others.

When Jane Cowl won unusual success in the drama "Smilin' Through," M. Witmark & Sons dedicated a particularly appropriate song to Miss Cowl and the play in question. More recently Norma Talmadge appeared in a photoplay of the same name, a considerable part of which was based upon the musical composition. As a matter of fact, this picture is still running throughout the country and the manner in which the song is used as the musical theme as well as part of the story is unusually effective.

The "Kashmiri Song," from the catalog of Boosey & Co. was used as the musical theme in the photoplay "The Sheik" and several hundred thousand copies of the number were sold by that means of exploitation. Simultaneously, Waterson, Berlin & Snyder issued a song called "The Sheik of Araby." This, too, was linked up with the picture advantageously. Of course, in the case of "The Sheik of Araby" the number would have had a large sale in any season. It would have proved of the hit caliber without any aid other than the usual channels.

Probably the most intensive drive and co-operation on a song in conjunction with a motion picture of the same name was "Mickey," the photoplay in which Mabel Normand starred. The song of the same name was originally published by Daniels & Wilson and later taken over by Waterson, Berlin & Snyder. The Griffith film, "Hearts of the World," closely followed, and the publicity was the means of making this number quite popular.

Following the success of "Mickey" several publishers inaugurated special departments for the release of songs in conjunction with motion pictures. Invariably, they had the promise of the producer's co-operation. These latter interests naturally grasped any opportunity which would add to the publicity of their feature film. However, none of the series of ten or fifteen

JACK SNYDER NUMBER FEATURED

McCrorry Store in Philadelphia Features "In Maytime" During Music Week

During Music Week the J. G. McCrorry store, of Philadelphia, Pa., made a special point to keep its music counters active. Music was given a conspicuous position throughout the store and constant demonstrations of songs all day drew large crowds.

A most attractive window display was made of the Jack Snyder, Inc., number, "In Maytime." This served to create attention and hundreds of requests were made at the music counter for the number. Herewith is shown a reproduction of the J. G. McCrorry window, which gives a good idea of its attractiveness.

songs issued in that form was much of a success.

A new idea on the subject of songs bearing film titles seems to have found a place with motion picture producers, as can be seen by the co-operation and the exceptional use made of the song "Smilin' Through."

S. C. Caine, Inc., has released a song entitled "Isle of Zorda" in conjunction with the Pathé photoplay of the same name, and this firm, too, is receiving unusual co-operation.

The activities as outlined in the opening paragraphs of this article would seem to mark a new era for the combination of song and films and the mutual exploitation of each.

PLAN LIBRARY MUSIC SECTIONS

General Federation of Women's Clubs and National Federation Working for Music Sections

PEORIA, ILL., June 3.—A music section in every public library in the United States is the joint aim of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the National Federation of Women's Clubs. Both federations have created a department of library extension, with Mrs. James H. Hirsch, of Orlando, Fla., as chairman. Mrs. Hirsch said the proposed music section would prove valuable in making available information on music to those desiring it.

The committee working with Mrs. Hirsch includes: Mrs. J. LaLacey Harper, Yuma, Ariz.; Mrs. Franklin W. Cochens, Salida Co.; Mrs. J. C. Hancock, Stuart, Fla.; Mrs. Iola Bishop, Savannah, Ga.; Mrs. Frank Cowles, Crawfordsville, Ind.; Mrs. Jacob Van De Zee, Iowa City, Ia.; Mrs. Gordon Kingsbury, St. Clair, Mich.; Mrs. Clara N. ## FEIST HIT GAINING FAVOR

One of the important successes of this season is the waltz song, "Three O'Clock in the Morning," published by Leo Feist, Inc. The number has had a steady sale since late last Fall, but commencing with the early Spring there was an added impetus to its sales. It now ranks among the leading sellers of the Feist catalog and, naturally, being a waltz, this will continue over a lengthy period.

A. J. Stasny, of the A. J. Stasny Music Co., returned to New York recently after spending several months in Europe. After a short visit at the New York offices of his company he departed for the Middle West, where he will make a circuit of the larger trade centers.

American Authors to Get Same Protection as That Accorded Germans in This Country

BERLIN, GERMANY, May 22.—American authors will be awarded the same copyright protection in Germany as is given Germans in the United States, the copyright law having been passed in the Reichstag last week.

The new law accords protection for the works of literature, art and photography on the same basis as is designated in the law of January 15, 1892, and is retroactive in application to the period between August 1, 1914, and July 2, 1922, although it does not apply to the rights of publication, circulation and duplication of any American product which might have been obtained by a third party previous to December 18, 1919.

NEW CHAPPELL-HARMS ISSUES

Among this season's new issues released by Chappell-Harms, Inc., and which have shown favorable indications of becoming quite prominent are "Closer" (L'Adoree De Mon Coeur), a waltz song with words and music by Leon Du Parc; Archibald Joyce is the composer of the waltz known as "Sweet William"; the ballad, "There's Silver in Your Hair" (But There's Gold Within Your Heart), is also having a big sale.

Trade Betterment Gains Momentum—A. H. Bates' "Flag" System—Widener-Werner Deal—H. L. Chubb's Window Display—The News

CINCINNATI, O., June 7.—Continuing the trend of April, trade with Cincinnati dealers in talking machines and auxiliary lines gained still greater momentum during May and the first few days in June. Regardless of the fact that "out-of-door" time always cuts substantially into this business, progress in Cincinnati indicates that the back of the slump has been broken. Cash business is good, as it has been, owing to the limited class of buyers. Now there is more gross business than before.

Most dealers, while hardly enthusiastic, still maintain a feeling of considerable pleasure over the trade outlook of the present and for the future. Practically everyone believes things to be on the upgrade. Energetic efforts are being made by all houses to stimulate this encouraging advance, and advertising and hard work are producing results.

A. H. Bates, of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., one of the largest Victor jobbers in this district, who worked out an extensive "flag" system of classifying at least a thousand best standard records as an aid to the not infallible memory of even the best salesman, reports that Cincinnati dealers are eager to obtain this system as soon as he has it ready for use. Mr. Bates expressed appreciation of what assistance the publicity given his plan in The Talking Machine World brought to the venture.

Record Classifying System in Demand

Mr. Bates reports an encouraging run of business, and remarked: "The prospects are very bright. Our business this month, in spite of the growing number of usual Summer attractions, was better than business in April. It looks like a very good year."

Widener's Secures Werner Stock

Widener's Grafonola Shop took over early this month the stock of the Race street store of the Werner Industries. This store handled Victor goods. The Widener concern plans to operate the Race street store on its present basis until the end of June, when the lease on that property expires. The Victor stock then will be removed to the Widener Shop, West Fourth street, and will be handled in connection with the Columbia and Granby lines which the shop now handles.

E. B. Follin, general manager of Widener's Grafonola Shops, with an office in Boston, was in Cincinnati for a few days superintending the taking over of the Werner Industries stock.

Report Business Betterment

Morris L. Fantel, of Widener's, reported a fine business during the month of May. Mr. Fantel said: "Our business has increased every month since the first of the year. Our May trade was 50 per cent better than the same month last year. No doubt the tremendous volume of building being done in the city is one of the main factors in this increase. One can hardly drive over a Cincinnati street without seeing homes or larger structures going up."

Steinway Doing Well With Brunswick

Steinway & Sons, who installed booths, record racks, etc., early this month and contracted to sell Brunswick products, report a good business, although the talking machine department was not ready for business as early in the month as was expected. Mr. Browning, who made a great success of the H. & S. Pogue Victrola department, has carried his energy into the Steinway store.

Exhibits Jackie Coogan's Clothes

Carrying further his innovations in the matter of show windows, Howard L. Chubb, of the Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop, East Sixth street, has obtained the tattered clothing worn by Jackie Coogan, juvenile film star, in the popular picture, "Trouble." This picture was shown at a local theatre, and the theatre manager contrived to obtain the garments for Mr. Chubb. This "Huck Finn" apparel—consisting of profusely patched pants, makeshift suspenders, battered cap and much worn-at-the-heel shoes—adorn the Chubb-Steinberg window, draped upon a wax figure. The background is formed by a flour barrel, such as Jackie Coogan inhabits in the picture, and as a chum in penury, there is a Victor dog. The old clothes, because of the popular interest in them, are to be auctioned off by a Cincinnati newspaper in an effort to take up a $5,000 mortgage which encumbers a free day nursery in this city.

In another recent display, Mr. Chubb had in his window the gold, silver and bronze trophies to be awarded to the victors in a Y.M.C.A. water carnival. Alongside of this athletic display, Mr. Chubb had advertisements calling attention to Walter Camp's physical culture records.

"Our business," said Mr. Chubb, "is excellent—growing all the time. We are making every preparation for a real spurt in trade during the Summer months."

Mr. Golden, of the Superior Phono Parts Co., New York, was a visitor at the Chubb-Steinberg establishment the other day.

Some Dealer Sold Them

A long canoe trip up the Ohio and Great Miami rivers last week-end revealed the fact that the Summer campers—who are just now flocking to their camps—must be excellent customers of the talking machine dealers. It seemed that hardly a cottage, however unpretentious, but had a talking machine and a selection of records, and most of them were doing Spartan duty.

New Columbia Console Favored

Much favorable comment is being made at the Cincinnati branch of the Columbia Co. regarding the new console model put out by the Columbia Co. When information was had that a shipment of these models was being made, Columbia dealers in this district fairly outdid themselves to reach the local branch and inspect the machine, and, incidentally, to give orders.

M. Polasky, Sr., of Georgetown, O., visited the Cincinnati branch of the Columbia Co. recently. Mr. Polasky recently returned from a nine months' trip through England, France, Spain, Italy, Palestine, Turkey, Switzerland, Germany and Poland.

Jones Drug Co. Secures Columbia Stock

The Jones brothers, of the Jones Drug Co., Waverly, O., have taken over the entire stock and fixtures of E. T. Tetrick, Columbia dealer, in that city. They will handle the Columbia line.

News Brieflets

The S. Fred Co., Lebanon, O., celebrated its thirty-first anniversary recently. This company, which sells Columbia stock, is an example of what an energetic concern can do. In the thirty-one years of business the company has grown to be exactly eighty times its original size.

It is reported that M. Dietrich, of the Rose City Pharmacy, New Castle, Ind., has acquired a machine with all of the very latest improvements and a remarkable tone volume. We refer to the baby boy which came to boss his home and business the first of May.

According to S. Reis, of Brunswick Products, Brunswick enjoyed a very good month, doing a business which eclipsed that of last month and continued the general increase that has been noted since the beginning of the year.

Silverstein Bros., Terre Haute, Ind., agents for the Columbia Co., recently sold a machine to a party in Jerusalem. The Cincinnati branch of the company is to pack and ship the machine.

E. I. Pauling, of the Starr Piano Co., as well as Mr. Craig, manager of the Victrola department of the Baldwin Piano Co., reports an encouraging business for the month.

The Aeolian Co., West Fourth street, which handles the Aeolian-Vocalion, reports a good business for the month of May.

GRAFONOLA AT SCHOOL EXERCISE

Pushmobile Grafonola and Magnavox Used at Delaware Celebration—Teachers Delighted

NEWARK, DEL., June 6.—The school children from the State of Delaware congregated at this city a fortnight ago to conduct their annual May Day. The Columbia Grafonola Parlors of Wilmington agreed to furnish the music and at the appointed time a Pushmobile Grafonola and a Magnavox were placed in an automobile and the parade started from the public school grounds to the athletic field of the University of Delaware. Moving pictures were taken of the entire affair and the field activities were conducted through the Magnavox. The day proved very successful and the teachers were delighted with the way in which the Grafonola served their purpose.

FORMAL OPENING OF THE STANDARD CO.'S NEW BUILDING

Great Gathering of Victor Dealers and Prominent Guests Enjoy Hospitality of Standard Talking Machine at Dedication of New Home—Speeches by J. S. Macdonald, J. G. Paine and Others

PITTSBURGH, PA., June 5.—The Standard Talking Machine Co., of this city, Victor wholesaler, formally opened its new four-story-and-basement building in the heart of the Pittsburgh business district with an all-day housewarming on May 24. Everyone of the 150 Victor dealers who visited the "Standard" plant saw demonstrated the fact that a ground floor Victor jobbing service is possible even in a city the size of Pittsburgh.

The officers of this enterprising jobbing house have so planned their building that practically all the every-day functions are conducted and all the constantly used equipment is located on the street floor, including a spacious and beau-

Luncheon was served on the Hotel Chatham Roof, a few doors away from the Standard Building, following which the formal addresses of the day were begun. J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co., presided and introduced the speakers. Dr. J. T. Holdsworth, vice-president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, talked on the business outlook, with particular reference to conditions in and around Pittsburgh.

The Address of J. S. Macdonald

J. S. Macdonald, sales manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., followed with a very excellent talk on the outlook for the coming season's business, viewed from the sales manager's office. Among the many interesting subjects dis-their Victor jobbers the new building which the Standard had just opened and the constantly increasing investment and advertising by the Victor Co. He assured his audience that an excellent Fall and Winter business was in store for Victor dealers.

Martin L. Pierce, of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co., Canton, O., was the third speaker on the program. He devoted his address entirely to selling ideas, which he believed a Victor dealer could use profitably and which had been worked successfully by his company. His address made an excellent impression on the dealers present, many of whom made notes during the progress of his talk.

John G. Paine, of the legal department of the Victor Co., delivered the closing address, which was replete with oratory and good common-sense advice on subjects connected with Victor merchandise. This was the first occasion that Mr.

tifully decorated lobby, offices, record stocks, packing, shipping, printing and repairing rooms all working toward and terminating in the inside loading platform at the rear of the building and opening on a public alley.

Other interesting features of the Standard plant include its own railroad siding of the Pennsylvania Railroad, a spiral chute for handling stock from the second floor to the shipping room, a display room on the second floor, beautifully equipped for dealers' customers, and which can be converted into an assembly room as needed, and an attractive board room, admirably adapted to small group meetings of dealers and to other uses of the trade, all covering 36,000 square feet of floor space.

The Standard Co.'s housewarming furnished a busy day for the Victor dealers of western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia. From early morning until a reasonably late hour at night the friends and customers of Standard were alternately instructed and entertained to the best of the company's ability, which any dealer of that section will tell you goes a long way.

The morning was devoted to an inspection of the Standard Building with President J. C. Roush, Manager Wallace Russell, assisted by J. E. McCormick, H. A. Davies, E. A. Ferguson and C. E. Willis, of the Standard staff, as guides; auto trips to Pittsburgh and nearby points of interest.

cussed by Mr. Macdonald, all of the keenest interest to his audience, were the record exchanges, which, he stated, would follow the exchange recently announced until all existing "cut-outs" were returned and many additional records which had not yet been announced as "cut-outs." He bespoke the cordial support of Victor dealers for the new line of horizontal models, for which there is a rapidly increasing demand. He pointed out that, while the Victor Co. had no objection to the flat top talking machine, yet his company would certainly refuse to build a flat top Victrola, because it had, up to this time, been found impossible to build a talking machine with a flat top which at the same time would develop the musical qualities on which the Victor Co. must continue to insist in the construction of its product.

In referring generally to radio he saw no reason why dealers should view this with any apprehension, because, while the great volume of radio sales during the past very unsatisfactory business period undoubtedly affected sales of Victrolas as well as other products, yet the same sales of radio during a more satisfactory period would affect the average dealer very little, if at all.

Mr. Macdonald had some excellent suggestions to offer the trade as to an aggressive campaign for Victor business, and gave as positive proof of both the sincerity and the optimism of Paine had spoken in Pittsburgh and the dealers enjoyed a rare treat in his fine address.

Great Time at Bongiovanni Inn

The afternoon meeting adjourned at five o'clock and the following hour was spent at the Standard Building. At six o'clock all were loaded into two large interurban cars, decorated with Victor banners and with toy balloons imprinted with the Victor trade-mark and the word Standard. A merry crowd it was which left promptly at six o'clock for, as the program stated, "parts unknown." A negro orchestra in costume enlivened this trip with plantation melodies and songs.

The "parts unknown" developed an hour later into the famous Bongiovanni Inn at Wildwood, where an evening filled with entertainment and good-fellowship was spent, including an interesting vaudeville program of twenty acts. One of the novelties of the evening was a solo dance by a pretty little girl of six years, who emerged from a Victrola to the strains of a new popular dance hit. A beautiful miniature Victrola 300, with a lid which raised, disclosing the Standard trade-mark and compartments for pins, ink and paper clips, was found at each place as a desk souvenir. The party was returned to the city in the special cars about 10:30 o'clock.

In addition to the speakers of the day the guests from a distance included: Leslie Wiswell, of Lyon & Healy, Chicago, Ill.; Perry B. Whitsit and Frank Davisson, of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., Columbus, O.; Edward B. Lyons, Eclipse Musical Co., Cleveland, O.; Rayburn C. Smith, Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

W. F. FREDERICK CO. ELECTS

Annual Meeting of Stockholders and Directors in Uniontown, Pa., Elects Officers

UNIONTOWN, PA., June 5.—The W. F. Frederick Piano Co., which operates a chain of retail piano and talking machine stores in western Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia, recently held its annual stockholders' and directors' meeting at the general headquarters of the company in this city.

The election of directors for the ensuing year resulted as follows: W. F. Frederick, president; E. B. Heyser, vice-president; A. V. Williams, vice-president; William Shafenberg, vice-president; C. G. Hugus, secretary, and F. Snider, treasurer.

The W. F. Frederick Co., in addition to a complete line of pianos, handles the Victor line of talking machines and records in all of its stores.

The Davis, Burkham & Tyler Piano Co., an allied company, with retail branches in Wheeling and Clarksburg, W. Va.; Steubenville, Cambridge and East Liverpool, O., also held its annual meeting here and elected the following officers: W. F. Frederick, president; E. B. Heyser, vice-president; N. E. Davis, vice-president and manager; C. G. Hugus, secretary, and F. Snider, treasurer. The directorate consists of W. F. Frederick, F. Snider, A. V. Williams, E. B. Heyser, William Shafenberg and N. E. Davis.

LANDAY NEW RADIO DISTRIBUTORS

Well-known Talking Machine House of Landay Bros., Inc., Becomes Distributor of Radio Products of Radio Corp. of America

Landay Bros., of New York City, the well-known talking machine distributors, who operate a number of successful retail establishments in New York and New Jersey, were recently appointed wholesale distributors of radio apparatus by the Radio Corp. of America.

Landay Bros. have given the wireless telephone and its relationship to the music industry much attention, and in order to become versed in the possibilities of radio distribution for the music dealer they have, for the past several months, sold such goods in their retail establishments.

Following their success along these lines they were appointed distributors for the products of the Radio Corp. of America, by the Westinghouse, General Electric and Wireless Specialty companies. Thus Landay Bros. have secured some of the very highest class products in the radio field.

In a recent statement to the press Benjamin Landay, general manager of the wholesale radio division of Landay Bros., said: "The present demand for radio apparatus will be greatly overshadowed during the Fall months. Dependable merchandise will be persistently in demand and the consumer will naturally seek out the better grades of instruments, those with established reputations and with whose names they are familiar."

While the company received the appointment some time ago, distribution was held up due to a shortage of supplies. Landay Bros. are now in a position to take care of dealers and are determined to use every means of pushing the new line.

ROBERT B. WHEELAN MARRIED

Robert B. Wheelan, well known throughout the talking machine industry as the president of Health Builders, Inc., was married on June 8 to Miss Dorothy Demarest. Immediately upon the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wheelan left for an extensive motor trip of about three weeks' duration. Much of the time will be spent among the Adirondack Mountains and other nearby beauty spots.

TELLS OF IMPROVED BUSINESS

William Phillips, president of the Wm. Phillips Phono Parts Corp., New York City, reports that his company is doing exceptionally good business. Mr. Phillips stated: "Business is good. We have just passed through one of the best months in the history of our organization. This good business is continuing and I firmly expect that we will experience satisfactory business straight through the Fall and Winter seasons."

NEW ORLEANS

Dugan Enthusiastic Over Success of Dealers' Meeting in Mobile —Business Conditions in City and State Continue to Improve

NEW ORLEANS, LA., June 5.—The New Orleans delegation to the Southern Victor Dealers' convention, numbering twelve or more, returned from Mobile filled with enthusiasm and anxious to put into practice a number of sales plans which they had learned at the convention. They brought back with them two new officials of the Association, J. V. Dugan, of the Dugan Piano Co., who was elected president, and E. W. Wilson, Jr., of the Collins Piano Co., who was elected secretary. To a man the sentiment was that the convention was the biggest and best ever held and that everyone who attended profited by his attendance.

President Dugan stated that the spirit that prevailed among the dealers was inspiring. Competitors in the same town who had never met before were brought together and left the best of friends. The convention seemed to create a sort of fraternalism among the dealers and there they substituted the word co-operation for the old word competition.

The discussion on the question of "interest charges on time contracts" served to bring out the feeling that once existed and that now prevails among the dealers. Two dealers from the same town were called upon to explain just why they did not charge interest on time contracts. They both answered, "Because their competitor did not." Result. They both charge interest now.

Talks made by John G. Paine, of the Victor Talking Machine Co., and by M. L. Pierce, of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co., were inspiring as well as instructive. The attendance totaled about 128 dealers.

Improved Business Reported

Practically every talking machine store in town reports an improvement in business during the past fifteen days. It is claimed generally that May has been a better month than April and in a few instances the improvement has surpassed the business of May, 1921.

New Demonstration Rooms at Gruenwald's

Robert Young, Victor manager of the Gruenwald Co., reports a wonderful improvement in record sales. The Gruenwald Co. has just completed the remodeling of its demonstration rooms and has added five new ones downstairs and two upstairs. Particular attention was paid to the layout of the record department. It is now arranged so that the largest kind of a crowd can be handled expediently and comfortably. Mr. Young claims it to be the best in the city.

Horizontal Types in Demand

J. D. Moore, at Maison Blanche, reports that the horizontal model Victrolas are very popular sellers and that business is ahead of last May. "In fact," says Mr. Moore, "our business has kept ahead of last year's business all during 1922."

Manager Wilson, Jr., at the Collins Piano Co., reports the horizontal types in demand with an increasing amount of records being sold.

Big Demand for Portables

Manager Powell, of Werlein, Ltd., has just completed a Spring drive which has about cleaned him out of the portable model Victrolas. He has noted a big improvement in trade within the past fifteen days with increased interest shown particularly by the middle class of people. Both jazz and Red Seal records are big sellers at Werlein's.

New Edison Console Model

Manager Billet, at the Edison Co., announces a new Console model that is just being offered at prices ranging upward from $295. Though only on sale a week it has proven very popular and he has sold all in stock.

New Columbia Ad Campaign

The Columbia Graphophone Co. is now in the midst of a "Selected Dealers' Advertising Campaign," in which dealers buying new stock are given a certain amount of advertising in their community by the Columbia people. This has proven to be quite an attractive offer and though only in progress two months has been a big success.

Mr. Sparrow, local district manager, is one of the leaders in the race among the districts for the best showing. Though about fifth on the list, when everything is considered, that is, the size of the district and the population therein, the percentage is in Mr. Sparrow's favor, ahead of the list.

Columbia Dealers Recovering From Flood

In spite of the floods and the heavy rains which are delaying and ruining crops, Mr. Sparrow says that the country business is running better than the city business throughout the Gulf district. The flood completely wiped out twenty Columbia dealers, but they have already sent in their orders for more machines and merchandise and are planning to come back stronger than before. The city dealers, Mr. Sparrow has found, are pessimistic but not discouraged. They expect a much bigger business in the Fall than they have had for some time and they are already putting in their orders for Fall goods.

One of the feats accomplished in the Gulf district by the Columbia line was obtaining the services of Ben Martin, known throughout the Delta country, and around Jackson, Miss., as one of the biggest phonograph men in that section. Mr. Martin has accepted the position as manager of the Columbia department of the Feld Furniture Co. store in Vicksburg. The Feld store was one of those which accepted the Columbia agency and sent in a big order even while the flood waters were still in the backyard. This is the kind of courage that wins.

It is understood that F. E. Mahoney, a Victor dealer, of Chattanooga, is moving to New Orleans. His plans are not known.

Recent Visitors

Among the visitors in town during the past fortnight was J. F. Bennett, assistant manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of St. Louis. He visited the Harris-Loeb Piano Co., local agent for the Brunswick Co.

DISTRIBUTORS OF DE FOREST RADIO

A Number of Important Talking Machine Distributors Arranging for Distribution of DeForest Radio Line in Talking Machine Trade

The DeForest Radio Telephone & Telegraph Co., which recently moved into greatly enlarged quarters in Jersey City, N. J., in a building occupying an entire city block, has been enabled through increased production to make deliveries in substantial quantities to several music houses which have been appointed its distributors. The DeForest products, which are among the best-known in the wireless field, are recognized as among the leading products in the world of radio.

Among the firms in the music industry which have been appointed distributors by the DeForest Co. are: Lyon & Healy, of Chicago; Owens & Beers, Inc., New York City; S. B. Davega Co. and the Triangle Radio Supply Co.

OUR CONGRATULATIONS, MR. UNGER

The announcement was recently made of the engagement of L. J. Unger, of the sales staff of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. Mr. Unger has traveled extensively throughout the trade in the interest of Brilliantone steel needles and numbers many friends among the talking machine dealers in all sections of the country. The announcement of his engagement has already caused him to receive many expressions of a congratulatory character.

Trade Looks for Busy Summer—Badger Co.'s New Home—Dealers Interested in Association—Recent Trade Changes and Other News

MILWAUKEE, WIS., June 6.—This is not going to be the usual "quiet Summer" in the Milwaukee talking machine trade—not if local jobbers and dealers can help it. While the first five months of the year were not far behind the average of former years in volume of business, there has been enough of an incentive to give every factor in the local trade the desire to go out and do some real business at a time when in the average year nearly everyone was complacent about the character and scope of trade until the vacation season and torrid spell were over and out of the way.

It is really surprising to make the rounds of the local trade and find the optimistic spirit that prevails. It is optimistic in more than one sense, for it is predicated not alone upon a good May business following a fairly active April, but upon the prospects of a relatively brisk trade in June, July and August. These three months usually have been slow save in respect to sales of records, for at the beginning of June there has been a rush for the lake and resort country which did not end until the new school term was in view. This exodus was aggravated in the last two to three years by the fact that housing conditions in this city were miserable and the only alternative for many families was to seek refuge in the country.

Unemployment Decreases

This year a great many people are going to the lakes, as usual, but in most instances the feeling is far less depressed than it was last year and two years ago. Most heads of families are now employed, while in 1920 and 1921 they were without jobs and without steady income. The stage has been reached where almost every family has been fortified against necessity and has something left over to spend for the better things in life—needed pleasures and enjoyments.

Business Stability Returning

Reports from distributors and jobbers in this city, who as a rule handle the entire Wisconsin and upper Michigan trade, are unanimous that business has more than sustained the "turn for the better" which set in some time ago. There is nothing spectacular about business; in fact, leaders in the trade are rather glad that this is so, for they have come to learn that the "boom" is an inflation, and the less there is of this sort of business the better the industry will be in the long run.

"We are gratified with the state of business and the prospects," said Harry A. Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber. "Personally, I would rather have volume grow slowly but steadily than jump forward like a frightened deer and then drop dead in its tracks from a single bullet. Our retail trade is ordering goods with much more eagerness than usual at this time of the year, but in view of the cautious buying which they have been doing so long we are not surprised. On the other hand, this is testimony that the public is buying, for no one knows better than we that dealers are adhering to a 'hand-to-mouth' buying policy, and whenever their orders increase it can be traced directly back to better consumer demand. We look for an active Summer—in fact, it looks as if we shall have a better business than the average hot period has ever produced."

G. F. Ruez on Trade Extension Tour

George F. Ruez, president of the Badger Co., spent a solid week visiting the trade as a member of the party which went forth under the banner of the Jobbers' Division of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, May 21 to 27. It was the nineteenth annual trade extension tour and the twelfth which Mr. Ruez has taken in. While the territory circumscribed by the route was relatively limited, and mostly in southeastern Wisconsin and northern Illinois, nevertheless Mr. Ruez was able to get a mighty good slant at current conditions. He is satisfied that things are decidedly on the mend and in the music line some big things are to be expected.

Demand for New Edison Grows

The New Edison, according to reports emanating from the Phonograph Co., of Milwaukee, State jobber, is showing steady increases in sales, while the Edison record line is actually establishing some new sales records in this territory.

Columbia Record Sales Increasing

Columbia business in the eastern half of Wisconsin has made giant strides against unusual conditions affecting general business adversely, according to R. H. Walley, representing the line in this part of the State. Mr. Walley, too, speaks especially of the remarkable advance made in record sales, although the Grafonola itself is keeping pace with other of the leading makes.

Sonora Campaign Successful

Fred E. Yahr, president and general manager of the Yahr & Lange Co., jobber of the Sonora line in Wisconsin and northern Michigan, is one of the real optimists in the musical instrument business and his views are backed up by a most satisfactory selling result of the last three months' special campaign.

Dealers Co-operate in Advertising

While record trade is active, and perhaps more so than ever before, probably due to the much larger number of instruments in use now, local dealers are not content with the business that is coming to them through ordinary sources. For instance, on the last few Sunday mornings, the local newspapers have carried joint advertisements of numerous dealers, featuring the favorite songs of various denominations and creeds. Last week the Badger Shop, Harry W. Krienitz, Inc., and W. E. Vollmar & Co. combined in advertiswick records have been leading a merry pace for many months, and those who believed this was to be short-lived have been disappointed to find that there is a great deal of substance in Brunswick popularity. The records have been going especially well, while instruments have at least held their own with the other leading makes.

Dealers Pushing Reducing Records

Special records such as the Wallace reducing course have been pushed vigorously by all talking machine shops with excellent sales results in recent weeks. Many of the stores have put into effect novel means of attracting public attention to the records. Dealers report many amusing experiences in selling discs to "stylish stout" women, and some of them have told The Talking Machine World representative that after this experience they might be able to qualify for positions as corset salesmen.

Merchants Active in Association

Talking machine men are taking an active part in the rejuvenation of the Milwaukee Association of Music Industries, and their interest is partly responsible for the generous attendance Milwaukee furnished the annual conventions in New York this month. The new president, Frederick Carberry, is a Brunswick dealer as well as Chickering representative, and he has manifested a very broad conception of the needs of the talking machine trade in addition to the requirements of piano dealers. Leslie C. Parker, head of the Badger Victrola Shop, has been appointed chairman of the membership committee, which is one of the most important bodies of the organization under its plan of getting into the fold every person connected with an establishment that deals in talking machines, records and musical instruments and equipment of any sort.

Badger T. M. Co. in New Quarters

The Badger Talking Machine Co. is now located in its spacious new quarters at 191-193 Fourth street. The new building is centrally located and offers excellent facilities for the presentation of the Victor line, for which the company acts as distributor.

Boom Victor Dealer for Postmaster

A boom for Peter F. Piasecki for appointment as postmaster has been started by his friends, and it is daily gaining momentum. Mr. Piasecki is a prominent South Side Victor dealer. He holds the rank of colonel, in which capacity he served as commander of the 127th Infantry of the famous Thirty-second Division in France.

A. G. Kunde Pushing Gennett Records

A. G. Kunde, formerly one of the best-known Columbia dealers in this city, and more recently engaged in the foreign record jobbing business has turned his attention to marketing the Gennett record as a wholesaler in this territory. Mr. Kunde is operating from his old headquarters at 344 East Water street. He instituted an active campaign early in June, using the monthly catalog of the Starr Piano Co.'s talking machine division as the basis. Excellent results already have been secured.

Among the newer industries engaged in the talking machine industry here is the Everplay Needle Co., with headquarters at 2502 Burleigh street. The Everplay needle is something new, and in tests has played 27,000 times without replacement. The item sells for $1 each.

New Columbia Shop

A new music shop has been opened at 254

South Howland avenue, Kenosha, Wis., by Joseph Cardinal, a furniture dealer and funeral director of that city. The original business is being operated at the original location, while the newly developed music department has been made a distinct business and established by itself. Mr. Cardinal is a Columbia dealer and also represents the Kimball line.

Presents Brunswick to Y. M. C. A.

R. W. Bailey, a well-known retail jeweler of Beaver Dam, Wis., who has worked up a large talking machine department in recent years, has presented the local Y. M. C. A. with a console type of the Brunswick, which has been made the subject of much favorable comment in the newspapers of Beaver Dam and vicinity.

PICCAVER WELL-KNOWN ARTIST

Okeh and Odeon Records by Alfred Piccaver Proving Popular—Has Attained Success Here and Abroad—Has Sung in Berlin and Vienna

Alfred Piccaver, whose records are being produced under the Odeon label by the General Phonograph Corp., is a native-born American who has achieved considerable success abroad. His records are meeting with a wide popular demand, and the General Phonograph Corp. is planning to bring out additional recordings in the near future.

After several years of study at the School for Opera at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, Mr. Piccaver went to Europe to continue his musical studies and his European career has been replete with success. He is now considered one of the foremost tenors in Europe, having sung in the Royal Opera Houses at Vienna and Berlin.

His first record, released by the General Phonograph Corp., was the "Flower Song" from "Carmen" in the Okeh catalog, and this has been followed by "Thou Hast Spread Thy Wings," which will be issued next month under the Odeon label.

Radiophone Still Interests—Music Memory Contest at Hannibal— Leading Jobbers and Dealers Conduct Big Campaign for Business

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 7.—The talking machine business in this city the past month has been fair, when adverse conditions are considered. The radiophone has continued to encroach, not so much as an actual business competitor, although it is becoming that, but in the way of dividing the interest which has heretofore been enjoyed by the talking machines exclusively.

Stix, Baer & Fuller Handling Radio

At the Stix, Baer & Fuller store, which was the first to go into radio in connection with talking machines, the sales last month were actually greater, in money volume, than the sales of talking machines. The department has an assortment of outfits ranging in price from $15 to $700, but the range of most of the sales is between $100 and $200. Manager Ennis expects the radio to hold its own from now on. Most of the sales of phonographs also are at prices ranging from $100 to $200. There is also quite a good demand for smaller machines. More portables are being sold by the dealers than ever.

Sounds Cheering Note

William McC. Martin, Federal Reserve agent for the Eighth District, in his monthly report said: "A decided turn for the better during the past thirty days is almost universally indicated in replies to questionnaires addressed by this bank to leading business interests throughout the Eighth Federal Reserve District. The improvement affects both actual volume of transactions and sentiment. In all branches of activity notable strides have been made in the direction of normal, and there seems to be more confidence in values and the future of business than at any time in more than eighteen months. This confidence is being manifested in a disposition to deviate somewhat from the recent practice of purchasing only enough for immediate requirements on the part of merchants, and among agriculturists, to enter with greater enthusiasm upon the tasks incident to heavier production of crops and live stock.

Addresses Salespeople on Music Tendency

Mr. Durham, who books the artists for the International Concert Bureau, New York, was in St. Louis recently and when Manager Hosier, of the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney talking machine department, learned of it he secured Durham for a talk to the sales organization on the personal characteristics of famous artists. He showed the salespeople the human side of the artists. Mr. Hosier declared that from an educational point of view the talk was one of the best that he ever heard. Mr. Durham had been to New Orleans and was passing through on his way back to New York. He said he was delighted to find that there is a tendency in the country toward a reversion to a higher class of music. The better sort of popular music is still in vogue, he said, but the jazzier kind of jazz is dying out. He urged the encouragement of the tendency toward better music by inculcating it in children through the schools and children's concerts.

Manager A. W. Hosier, of the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney talking machine department, says that business was better during the second half of May than in the first half. Wallace reducing records are doing well, with women as the principal purchasers.

A Unique Brunswick Ad Campaign

Brunswick dealers here have been co-operating in an advertising campaign of "A Club for Married Men" whose wedding anniversaries come in June and for the fathers of girl graduates and June brides. It takes the form of the June-day Gift Club. The following dealers joined in it: Arco Furniture Co., Baldwin Piano Co., Demerville Music Co., Famous-Barr Co., Field-Lippman Piano Stores, Tyler B. Hauk Music Store, Home Phonograph Co., Kaemmerer Music Shop, Kirkland Piano Co., Lehman Piano Co., Mengel Music Co., Meyer Piano Co., Schmitt-Baker Music Co., Stock-Peterman House Furnishing Co. and Trorlicht-Duncker.

Columbia Dealer Gives Concert

The Music Shop & Record Exchange, of this city, Columbia dealer, gave a concert recently which was quite a success. G. S. Moul, of the Music Shop, had the program very nicely arranged, and the demonstration of Columbia goods was given the second place on the program. The Columbia demonstration was followed by the orchestra, and then after several other musical numbers Mr. Moul raffled off an E-2 fumed oak Columbia, which was won by the No. 13. Following this dancing was enjoyed.

Music Memory Contest at Hannibal

A most successful Music Memory Contest was put on in Hannibal, Mo., recently. The enthusiasm it aroused was largely due to the Federated Women's Clubs, assisted by the civic and business organizations, the public schools and the music merchants of the city. Prominent among the latter was E. A. Parks, Victor dealer, who loaned four Victrolas during the contest. There were twelve numbers rendered in the junior test and eighteen in the senior test. There were twenty-eight perfect papers in the former and to each child a sterling silver perfect score pin was presented by the women of Hannibal. The first prize to the school with the best average was $15 worth of records, and $7.50 worth of records as the second prize, given by the P. E. O. and Study Club.

In the senior class there were five perfect scores for the eighteen numbers played and a banner donated by the National Association for the Advancement of Music was won by the Eugene Field School.

The program was given by four of the leading musicians of Hannibal, including two vocalists, a violinist and a pianist. The vocal numbers were hummed.

At the close of the program, while the papers were being graded, Mr. Parks, of the Parks Music House, gave a talk on the Music Memory Contest, its origin and development.

T. E. Clark Sells Store

T. E. Clark, of the T. E. Clark Music Co., Cape Girardeau, Mo., has disposed of his store and expects to locate in California. The new proprietors are Claude R. Juden and Walter Kempe, both of whom have been in Mr. Clark's employ for several years and have gained a reputation for industry and knowledge of the music business. They expect to continue as exclusive Victor dealers.

Clever Merchandising Plan

R. L. Berry, Victor dealer, of Springfield, Ill., has just issued a folder describing a "New Kind of Record Service." It offers to send out each month three of the best sellers of the month, with the privilege of exchange within forty-eight hours. The cost is charged to his account. This gives to the customer the certainty of receiving the choicest numbers on the first day these records are released without effort on his part. The record selection is suited to the taste of the customer.

Gets Standing Record Order From Japan

Miss Fleeta Trout, in charge of the talking machine department of the Taylor Music Co., of Columbia, Mo., reports the sale of a large bill of records to a Japanese customer, a student at the School of Journalism, and a standing order since his return to Japan of six records each month of Miss Trout's own selection.

News Brieflets

Mr. Peabody, one of the four proprietors of the Emerson Piano House, of Decatur, has withdrawn from the company and has identified himself with a dental supply house of Decatur. Mr. Peabody has been interested in the Victor educational work in Decatur and his loss will be felt.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Parker, of the Parker Music Co., of Harrisburg, are planning a three months' vacation in the West.

The T. E. Clark Music Co., Victor dealer, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., gave the silver loving cup offered as first prize in a Music Memory Contest, held in connection with the recent field-day events at the Southwest Missouri Teachers' College.

J. F. Ditzell, manager of the Famous & Barr Co.'s talking machine department, is in New York attending the convention.

J. E. Maunder, manager of the local branch of the C. D. Smith Drug Co., St. Joseph, Mo., Sonora distributor, has returned from a successful trip through Missouri. One of the important accounts recently opened by Mr. Maunder was with Paul Whitten, Moberly, Mo.

J. H. Bennett, assistant manager of the Brunswick Co., has returned from a trip through the South.

The recent visit of the Isham Jones Orchestra greatly stimulated the demand for the Brunswick records of that organization.

The Silverstone Music Co. reported Edison business better than the preceding month. The radio supplies for which the firm contracted some time ago have been shipped and the firm will soon be distributing them through its territory.

Miss Marion R. Fox, of the Silverstone Music Co., broke her record on retail sales last month.

J. L. Moore, of the Hoops Mercantile Co., Crocker, Mo.; A. E. Baldwin, of Kennett, Mo., and J. Fiquart, Lincoln, Ill., Edison dealers, were recent visitors to St. Louis.

Miss Vivian Dewes has joined the retail sales organization of the Silverstone Music Co.

NEEDLE SITUATION SATISFACTORY

B. R. Forster, president of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., New York City, reports that the needle situation is satisfactory and that the buying public is continuing to demand good needles. The quality of the American-made needle has earned for it the highest place. During the Music Convention in New York City the entire facilities of the offices of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. were placed at the disposal of visiting dealers and distributors and open house was kept.

Keep your word, no matter what the cost. The man known as one who lives up to his promises is bound to be recognized for his integrity.

Monthly Meeting of Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. Well Attended—Many Interesting Features on Program—Little Roslyn Louise Davega Scores as Dancer—Makes Big Hit

The monthly meeting held under the auspices of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., Inc., Victor wholesaler, for the benefit of the metropolitan Victor retailers, was held on Friday, June 2, in the West Ballroom of the Commodore Hotel. The meeting opened promptly at 9:30 a. m. and continued until 4.00 p. m. with intermission for lunch, which was furnished in an adjoining room by the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. The entire list of July Victor record releases was played and a number of novel events made the meeting interesting from start to finish. During the playing of the dance numbers those present were invited to avail themselves of the opportunities offered by the clear space of the ballroom floor. There was also a waltz dancing contest.

Roslyn Louise Davega

Abram Davega, president of the company, spoke interestingly on Victor merchandising and gave many excellent suggestions for increasing business. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the program was a suggestion contest on "How to Improve Victor Business." No special judges were appointed, but the general consensus of opinion of those present was relied upon in determining the winner. Many excellent suggestions were given and the meeting was highly beneficial to all who attended.

A special entertainment feature and one calculated to well demonstrate the importance of the Victrola in child entertaining was a Hawaiian dance in costume given by Roslyn Louise Davega, young daughter of the president. This petite young miss gave an excellent performance and received great applause from those present. Later in the day she danced again to the accompaniment of the Victrola and again scored in the applause that followed.

Miss Tucker has been appearing in two of the leading theatres in London, and in order to satisfy the demands of her audiences she has been obliged to deliver numerous songs outside of her repertoire, which incidentally includes over 250 numbers.

The sales department of the General Phonograph Corp. states that Sophie Tucker's Okeh records are meeting with an exceptional sale with Okeh jobbers and dealers everywhere.

Committee in Charge of Affairs Recommends New Company to Enter Radio Field Supplemented by Phonographs and Records—Project Favored by Creditors of Old Company

A comprehensive report was recently issued by the temporary committee reporting the bank creditors of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., which is at present operating under receivers in equity. The report includes a definite plan for an entirely new company to engage in the business of manufacturing and distributing radio instruments and accessories, supplemented by phonographs and phonograph records. It is reported that the suggested company is in process of acquiring certain promising patents, licenses and devices which it expects to exploit and market and it is planned to add to the staff of the organization experienced men now actively engaged in radio. Negotiations will also be undertaken with the Pathé Co. in Paris with the idea of arranging, if possible, for the continuance of the use of the Pathé name in connection with the business of the new company.

From a report of the receivers issued at the same time it is found that a complete liquidation of the present company would not yield a large return to the creditors, whereas the acceptance of the new plan by the creditors gives a possibility of receiving 100 cents on the dollar. The new plan is being submitted for the approval of the creditors and calls for the changing over of the temporary committee into a reorganizing committee. It is planned to issue to the creditors of the old company, who shall become party to this agreement, income bonds in the new company to the extent of 100 cents on the dollar. It is stated that the banks who hold the present mortgage on the property have indicated their willingness to enter into this new plan and immediately upon receipt of the approval of the required majority of creditors steps will be taken for the formation of the new company.

The Grafonola Store, 123 East Main street, Waterbury, Conn., was recently damaged by fire.

CLEVELAND

Opening of New Stores Shows Trade Betterment—Columbia Dealers Tie Up With Artists—Health Records Popular—The News

CLEVELAND, O., June 8.—Plenty of openings of new establishments by firms long in business and others new in the talking machine world of Cleveland and vicinity have supplied pep for the industry during the month.

Topping the list may be considered the Halle Bros. Co., exclusive Brunswick department, which, as referred to in The World last month, was created under the careful guidance of the Cleveland district branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of which J. L. DuBreuil is district manager and E. F. Hughes service director. Norman H. Cook is manager of the new department, and the selection of Mr. Cook is attested to by the business already booked in the new department.

Not only is this one of the largest exclusive divisions in this section, but also one of the most elaborate, equipment and decorations in three machine display rooms mounting to $10,000. A feature of one room is an imported Italian Renaissance fireplace and mantel of Carrara marble, while all rooms have expensive tapestries and furniture, with rare bronzes for decorative purposes. Fifteen record demonstration rooms have been installed. The entire front of the Halle store, eight windows, was used to display Brunswick instruments on the opening day, this being the first thing of its kind ever seen in Cleveland in the talking machine field, or in the history of the thirty-one years of Halle activities here. At the opening were A. J. Kendrick, general sales manager, and A. L. Fran, manager of the record sales division, of Brunswick, both of whom came from Chicago.

New Buescher Victor Store

Official opening of the new Buescher Co. Victor establishment was held June 10. This firm adds one more music establishment to the Huron road musical center. Twice as much space is available in the new location. Fifteen record rooms and three large machine display rooms have been provided, and a stock of 40,000 records will be carried. Local orchestra and Cleveland musical talent entertained through the day, and the greater part of the 7,000 persons invited attended the official opening.

H. B. Bruck & Sons in New Location

At the same time the H. B. Bruck & Sons Co. opened its new downtown location, also in the same locality. Essentially a piano house, this firm has not overlooked the importance of the talking machine, and a large separate department is provided on the mezzanine floor, where Edison and Granby instruments, as well as other lines, will be featured.

Dreher's Featuring Victor and Vocalion

The B. Dreher's Sons Co. establishment, likewise in the same vicinity, now is an accepted fact, this being the first of the several to open during the month. A feature of this event was the dinner to celebrities and newspaper folk by Henry Dreher, at which Mayor Fred Kohler spoke. A mezzanine floor will be used here for machine displays, and half of the main floor for record sales and demonstrations. The event marks the introduction of the Victor line on a large scale, which with the Vocalion will be featured by this establishment. William Gordon Bowie will be manager of the department.

New Vocalion Accounts

Many new accounts for Vocalion have been opened in and near Cleveland in the last few weeks, according to T. W. Wade, manager of the Vocalion Co., of Ohio. Among these are the Sumac Bros. and the Mintz Piano Co., both new in the talking machine field.

Dealers Add Sonora

Sonora interests likewise have opened two new dealers in one week, which is considered quite a stroke at this time, and two more for early closing are in prospect.

Edison Console Models in Demand

New console models by the Edison interests have arrived at the Phonograph Co., but not in sufficient quantity to take care of the orders previously booked, according to E. S. Hirschberger, advertising manager. The Chippendale and William and Mary models so far are the most popular, it appears.

Several orders for these instruments already have been taken at the Bailey Co., according to E. A. Friedlander, talking machine department manager. Equally good results are being obtained by Mr. Friedlander with the new Pooley instruments, which seem to appeal because of appearance as well as price.

L. Meier Gets Publicity Through Truck

Favorable publicity was obtained by the L. Meier & Sons Co. in the use of its truck, depicting a mammoth Victrola, the only device of its kind in this section of the country, when this instrument was used at the outdoor exercises at Gilbert School. Children drilled and danced to the music from the truck, while thousands of fond parents and others looked on.

Orville Harrold Addresses Victor Dealers

The biggest meeting of the year of talking machine factors in the Cleveland district was held in connection with the appearance here of the Scotti Grand Opera Company, more than 150 members from Cleveland and nearby cities gathering at the Lattice Room, Hotel Statler, to hear his version on record making from Orville Harrold, opera tenor. The affair was arranged jointly by Edward B. Lyons, Eclipse Musical Co., and Howard J. Shartle, Cleveland Talking Machine Co., and served to bring home more forcibly than ever the importance of the Red Seal Victor record as a business getter and holder.

Columbia Dealers Tie Up With Artists

Another plan that was successful in bringing the artist as a record maker before the public was achieved by the staff of the local Columbia branch when Van and Schenck, appearing at the Hippodrome Theatre, autographed records in the Hippodrome Music Shoppe for the greater part of one day, while a Columbia instrument played their records. Twelve dealers hooked up with this event, which was arranged by George Krauslick, Columbia branch service manager. S. S. Larmon, branch manager, took the vaudevillians to William Taylor Son & Co., where they met the girls in Manager Davies' talking machine department. H. C. Cooley, assistant branch manager, showed them over the Cleveland Columbia plant.

Miss Grazella Puliver Weds

Miss Grazella Puliver, well known in local and Eastern talking machine circles, announces her marriage to Arthur Shepherd, assistant director of the Cleveland Orchestra.

Dealers View New Sonora Display

The Paco Building, West Superior street, has been the Mecca during the month of dealers from all parts of the city and adjoining territory, to view the new display of Sonora instruments, in which standard and period models are shown, this having been arranged by the C. L. Marshall Co., wholesaler.

May Co. Rushing Health Records

Further development of the health records, which have been featured in the May Co. talking machine department, is being made by Dan E. Baumbaugh, department manager. Heads of other departments and sales staffs have been advising customers of the benefits derived from this

THE SHELTON Electric Motor

The "Simplicity" electrifies Victor, Edison and Columbia phonographs by simply taking off winding handle and placing motor against turntable. system, and in such divisions as corsets and the like stout people have been advised to try the courses. Many have, and these have told others, with the result that much new business in this and the regular line of records is coming forward. Many of the employes are now regular devotees of the courses, since they are part of the recreation in employes' rooms.

Clever Columbia Windows Sell Records

"Smilin' Through," the motion picture that made a three weeks' stay at a local picture house,

Columbia Window on "Ten Little Bottles"

was the basis for a strong tie-up for Columbia dealers by the Cleveland Columbia branch. The window created for this purpose was set up in the Columbia branch model shop and many dealers took turns using it through the campaign. Equally good results were acquired with the record. "Ten Little Bottles" was featured, in which ten "little" bottles were displayed.

Policeman Stops Music, Buys Columbia

Another new firm in the local field is Fleischer Bros., who will feature the Columbia lines. During the opening event a Magnavox was used, and this attracted too large a crowd to please a certain policeman, who asked that the device be discontinued, if only for a little while. Otto Fleischer did not let the opportunity pass—he sold the policeman a Columbia instrument before the argument was settled.

Analyzes Radio Effect on Trade

Investigation of the effect of radio concerts on the talking machine industry by S. S. Larmon, branch manager, the Columbia Graphophone Co., brings forth the following conclusions: That the radio, instead of diminishing interest in the talking machine, increases interest in music, because the radio concert is not lasting, while the graphophone record remains indefinitely. Likewise the radio concert brings new music into the home and increases the desire to possess records of the music given by the wireless method. In short, it is the belief of Mr. Larmon that radio will be a boon rather than a handicap to the music industry generally and the phonograph division particularly.

John Steel Helps Sell His Records

The personal appearance of the artist idea had an adequate demonstration when John Steel, Victor artist, appeared at the Windsor-Poling Co., Akron, and sang and autographed records. Mr. Steel's appearance was made doubly impressive, since he was one of the stars at a bazaar conducted by a fraternal organization.

NEW BUILDING IN OKLAHOMA CITY

Ground Broken for Commodious and Specially Equipped Structure for the Use of the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co., Victor Jobbers

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., June 5.—Ground was broken this week for a new building on Main street, Oklahoma City, to house the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, and which will be one of the few buildings in the country designed especially for the handling of Victrola instruments and records at wholesale.

Work on the side walls of the structure is well under way and will be pushed to completion so as to be ready for occupancy in July.

The building will be two stories of modern brick and concrete construction. The location is in the 600 block on Main street within a stone's throw of the retail music district and easily accessible to the hotel district.

The building will have a store front to allow for arranging demonstration window displays for the edification of visiting dealers and it will include an advertising display room in addition to the usual office arrangement, which will be in the first floor front. At the rear will be the record racks and bins, together with a shipping room arranged for the rapid handling of record releases.

A modern repair department and parts room will also be included on the ground floor. The top story will be given over to instrument storage space and the arrangements include adequate elevator and freight dock facilities.

This will be the first structure in the Southwest devoted exclusively to the housing and merchandising of Victor goods as the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co. is the only distributor in the Southwest handling Victor goods exclusively.

A feature of the arrangements for the construction of the building typical of the Southwest was that the corner stone was laid and work commenced within two hours of the signing of the construction contract.

Notwithstanding this speedy arrangement, E. L. Gratigny and P. A. Ware, of the company's board of officers, and Thomas LaRue Husselton, the Victor Co. representative in Oklahoma, staged an impromptu corner stone dedication which was followed by an appropriate affair in which knives and forks took a prominent part.

DISTRIBUTION RAPIDLY EXPANDING

The Qualitiphone Sales Corp., manufacturer and distributor for the Qualitiphone small table talking machine, reports the demand for this little machine has been country-wide and that many of these small machines have been shipped to many points throughout the entire world. The company has received orders for quantities of these machines from Australia, Japan, China and two of the largest cities in South Africa. Repeat orders have been received from two of these far-off clients, which have greatly confirmed the opinion of the officials of the company as to the merits of this little machine.

One of the most desirable outlets for which the company recently completed negotiations is with the chain of Winchester sporting goods stores, which are featuring the machine in a special camp outfit. Considerable numbers have already been sold by the Winchester stores and it is expected that during the coming months the sale of these little machines will be given an impetus that will more than put it over the top in sales totals. William V. O'Brien, general manager of the Qualitiphone Co., is keenly enthusiastic over the reception received by this machine from the trade.

NOW COMES THE ESKIMO SONG

A few years ago who would have dreamed that ice cream could be covered by hot chocolate without melting and served up as Eskimo pie! Along with the vogue of this concoction, comes an Eskimo popular song, "Oogie-Oogie Wa-Wa," just recorded on a new June Vocalion record and featuring an Eskimo dance played on the piccolo.

CLEVER TIE-UP WITH ARTIST

Ed Patton, Omaha Victor Dealer, Takes Advantage of Galli-Curci's Appearance to Boost Her Records in a Novel and Successful Way

OMAHA, NEB., June 6.—Ed. Patton, an exclusive Victor dealer, 1522 Farnam street, this city, recently took advantage of the appearance of Amelita Galli-Curci, Victor artist, in a song recital, and by a rather clever plan drew attention to her Victor records and the fact that he handles them. In the program each song by this famous Victor artist, which had been recorded was marked with a star, while at the bottom of the program a similar star was placed before the words "Victor Records," which naturally emphasized the fact to those present that Victor records of these songs could be obtained. On the back of the program was the firm's advertisement announcing that every Galli-Curci record could be obtained there. There was also an announcement concerning the line of machines handled.

Important New Agencies Established—Console Models Grow in Favor—Cheney Distributors Open Up—Records for Stammerers

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 1.—The Music Trades Association dance which was held last month proved a great success, so much so that it has been voted to hold similar ones at least annually. The weather was not very propitious, but in spite of that there was an attendance of about 250 and it is anticipated that at least twice that number will be present at the next dance. Talking machine departments were well represented, managers, salesmen, record salesladies being there. The music, consisting of eight pieces, was supplied by Hancock's Vista Del Arroyo Orchestra. Mr. Hancock owns a Brunswick phonograph shop in Pasadena.

Broadway Department Store Victor Agents

The Broadway Department Store has obtained a Victrola agency, which it will handle exclusively. A. G. Faulkner, general manager of the music department, reports that the new stock was received in the early part of May and that the public has readily responded to the advertisements announcing the new department and he expects that the large clientele which the Broadway Department Store possesses will soon show their appreciation and that a large increase will result.

New Cheney Distributors Open Offices

The Munson-Rayner Corp., California distributor of the Cheney phonograph, has opened handsome offices in the Homer Laughlin Building. E. R. Darvill, who has been appointed sales manager by Munson-Rayner Corp., left for the New York Convention on May 30 and will visit the Cheney factories before returning to Los Angeles. Mr. Darvill is very well known throughout the territory through his former connections with the Aeolian Vocalion Co. in the distribution of Vocalion records. The Munson-Rayner Corp. announces that, in addition to the Cheney phonograph, it will handle a line of phonograph accessory supplies.

Console Models in Greater Demand

Harold Jackson, manager of the phonograph department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., states that the demand for console models is showing a rapid increase and that sales of these types are exceeding those of the upright models. He is placing advance orders accordingly, believing that this choice on the part of the public will increase in the near future. Mr. Jackson also drew attention to the tendency—which will increase—of customers to apply for exchanges of their upright models; he has, therefore, found it necessary to make a rule that no exchanges of this kind will be made unless the price of the console, which the customer desires, exceeds the original price of the upright, which the customer wants to turn in, by at least $100; an allowance under these circumstances will be made on the basis of the price at which the upright can be resold less the usual cost for handling and reselling.

Bullock's Victor Department Opens

The new Victrola and record department of Bullock's was opened on May 1. Mr. Crawford, merchandise manager of the department, has appointed W. V. Ray to be in charge of Victrola sales. Mr. Ray is well known in Los Angeles and was formerly in Canada, where he had several years' experience both in retail and wholesale Victor departments. Miss R. Johnson, formerly with Sherman, Clay & Co., is managing the record department.

Series of Records on Stammering

O. H. Ennis, who has made a national reputation in the public schools as a lecturer of a method for the curing of stammering, has made three double-sided records on which a complete course for the cure of stammering has been recorded. The set, which will be sold to the public and placed in the public schools, will be distributed by jobbers to dealers throughout the country.

Fitzgerald Installs Brunswicks

The Fitzgerald Music Co. has opened a Brunswick phonograph and record department. The announcement was a great surprise to the trade in Los Angeles, and the Brunswick Co. is to be congratulated on securing this well-known music house as its representative. The Fitzgerald Music Co. has always been a very large advertiser and it has already launched a large Brunswick advertising campaign.

Radio Outfits Selling Big

I. Lessor, special representative of the Blue Bird Talking Machine Co., returned last week from San Francisco, where he had been working for some time. He reports excellent sales both from the radio supply departments and also large orders for Blue Birds and special cabinets.

Long Beach Dealer Enthusiastic

George M. Parker, manager of the phonograph department of the Fitzgerald Music Co., reports fine business in the Long Beach Edison department. He states that the Edison has always been a favorite in that section and that the outlook is most favorable.

IMPORTANT PATHE CHANGES

Several important changes have been made in the sales staff of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y. Charles Usher, formerly of the traveling staff of the Emerson Phonograph Co., has joined the Pathé organization and will occupy an important position on the Pathé sales staff. S. A. Price, also an ex-Emerson man, is now on the Pathé sales staff. James Watters, for many years secretary of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., recently severed his connections with that company and has not as yet announced his future plans.

There's a Curious Thing About BUBBLE BOOKS

The first Bubble Book sale isn't the whole story—by a lot. It's only a scratch on the surface.

That first sale really means that you've got a prospect lined up for thirteen other sales, and it's up to you to make them. For there is one sure thing about Bubble Book buyers—they always come back for more. And that's where your profits lie.

It's easy to make sales, but Bubble Books do more than that—they make customers.

BLACKMAN CO. TO INCREASE ITS CAPITAL TO $1,000,000

Announcement Made at Dinner Marking Twentieth Anniversary of Founding of House—J. N. Blackman's Interesting Address—Participants in Profit-sharing Bonus—Dance Follows Dinner

At the thirteenth annual banquet of the employes of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, held at the Hotel McAlpin, New York, on Saturday, June 3, J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the company, announced that arrangements had been made whereby the company's capital stock would be increased from $200,000 to $1,000,000. This announcement was received with tremendous applause, as it indicated that the Blackman Talking Machine Co. had made phenomenal progress, and, in fact, had attained an exceptional degree of success for a wholesale concern. Mr. Blackman stated that the company had decided upon this important move in order to meet the demands of its fast-growing business and to take care of certain vital plans which the board of directors had decided upon recently.

This dinner also marked the twentieth anniversary of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., which, as announced in last month's Talking Machine World, took place officially on May 1 of this year. Prior to the dinner the employes, officers and guests of the Blackman Talking Machine Co. visited the Palace Theatre, where a top-notch vaudeville show was keenly enjoyed.

After the culinary achievements of the Mc-

Alpin chef had been thoroughly appreciated Mr. Blackman gave an interesting and inspiring address, calling attention to the ideals and attainments of the Victor Talking Machine Co. and emphasizing the increased prestige achieved by Victor products during the past year. He also spoke briefly of the Blackman Talking Machine Co.'s activities as a Victor wholesaler during the past twenty years, giving his employes some idea of the principles and policies which had served as a foundation for the business.

For the past thirteen years the employes of the Blackman Talking Machine Co. have partici-

P. Oliver, C. L. Johnston, secretary and sales manager; James F. Ashby, Geo. Thau, Frank Roberts, John Mills, Edgar S. Palmer, Miss May V. Johnston, Miss Elizabeth Reighton, Miss Mae Dranow, Miss Laurretta W. Haggerty, Walter R. Grew, Arthur C. Herman, Geo. Geise and A. L. Davidson.

Subsequent to the close of the dinner a lively jazz orchestra gave the Blackman forces an opportunity to display their dancing ability. In addition to those mentioned there were present at the dinner the following: Mrs. Frank Roberts, Mrs. C. L. Johnston, Mrs. James F. Ashby, Mrs. Clara Per Lee, Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Lundquist, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kay, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Barck, Lee Robinson, Talking Machine World; Miss Peters, Mrs. Edgar S. Palmer, Glad Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Sheetz, Mr. and Mrs.

Thirteenth Annual Banquet of Employees of Blackman Talking Machine Co.

ated in a profit-sharing plan, whereby all employes who have been in this company's service for a fiscal year share in the company's profits. This broadminded movement was instituted by Mr. Blackman as a means of co-operating with and stimulating the activities of his employes, and the Blackman profit-sharing plan has undoubtedly been a vital factor in the success of the company. In addition a number of employes have become stockholders of the Blackman Talking Machine Co. and at each annual banquet receive a dividend check besides their profit-sharing bonus.

At this year's dinner the following officers and employes received stock dividends: Fred P. Oliver, vice-president and general manager; James F. Ashby, assistant treasurer, and Geo. Thau, assistant secretary. Among the other stockholders present were: Mrs. J. Newcomb Blackman, Mrs. Fred P. Oliver, Mrs. A. A. Houghton, Albert M. Blackman and Frank Roberts. Mr. Roberts, who has recently retired, has the distinction of being the first employe in the Blackman organization. He joined the Blackman forces twenty-one years ago, at the time when J. Newcomb Blackman entered the talking machine industry, and until a year ago was one of the most active employes in the organization. He is beloved by every member of the staff and no Blackman dinner would be complete without his cheery good-fellowship.

Among those who participated in this year's profit-sharing bonus were the following: Fred

Geo. A. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wessell, Mrs. John Mills, Miss M. Erhardt, Miss Frances Koehler, Miss Anna O'Connor, Miss Marion Franks, Miss Lillian Weiss, George Skroblus, Leonard Graham, Arthur Harrington, Carlton Schissel and L. E. Fournier.

REMOVES PLANT TO PLAINFIELD

The Stephenson Laboratories, manufacturer of tone arms, sound boxes and the "Stephenson Precision-made Motor," recently moved its plant from Newark, N. J., to Plainfield, N. J. In addition to continuing its activities in the talking machine field, the company is also manufacturing radio apparatus. Agents are now being appointed for the distribution of its radio products.

The North American, a Philadelphia newspaper, has inaugurated a music section, which is a departure from the usual musical department conducted by newspapers. Instead of merely listing the records manufactured by the various record companies, a paragraph is devoted to an analysis of the quality of the music of each record.

RED SEAL SCHOOL FOR NEW YORK

Victor Wholesalers in Metropolitan District Make Preliminary Arrangements for Holding Red Seal School Here Next Month Under the Personal Direction of F. A. Delano

At a meeting of Victor wholesalers of the metropolitan district held at the headquarters of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, on June 1, preliminary arrangements were made for the holding of a Red Seal School in this city under the personal direction of F. A. Delano, head of the Victor Salesmanship School, and with the co-operation of all the jobbers.

J. Newcomb Blackman, of the Blackman Talking Machine Co.; Lloyd L. Spencer, of Silas E. Pearsall, and Charles B. Mason, of the New York Talking Machine Co., were appointed a committee to look after the details in connection with the school. It is very probable that the sessions will be held in the Hotel Pennsylvania, although definite arrangements toward that end have not yet been made.

The first class will open on July 10, and will last four days, to be followed immediately by a second class covering a similar period. It is believed that a sufficient registration will be made to warrant the holding of two, and perhaps three or more, classes, judging from the interest that has been shown in similar Red Seal Schools conducted in Buffalo, N. Y.; Washington, D. C., and other cities.

HEALTH BUILDERS RECORDS POPULAR

Good All-Year Proposition for Dealers—Important Recognition from Australia—Canadian Campaign Opens—C. A. True Joins Force

The Health Builders set of records, consisting of Walter Camp's Daily Dozen set to music, is proving a good all-year-round sales proposition for the talking machine dealer. At the headquarters of the company in New York City it was stated that the sales volume of these sets is continuing in a satisfactory manner and it would seem that many dealers are planning to feature them strongly during the Summer months.

Robert B. Wheelan, president of the company, reports that considerable foreign recognition of these records is being received. S. P. England, noted physical culture authority of Australia, who was recently in this country, took back with him several sets of the Health Builders' course. As an aftermath of this visit, Mr. Wheelan received a cablegram for a substantial number of sets to be shipped immediately.

Mr. Wheelan also makes the important announcement that arrangements have been completed with the Berliner Gramophone Co. of Canada for the manufacture and distribution of Walter Camp's Daily Dozen set to music in the Dominion.

C. A. True, who was for many years manager of the talking machine department of Bamberger's store, Newark, N. J., has severed his connection with that company and joined the staff of Health Builders, Inc. It is Mr. True's plan to immediately thoroughly canvass the dealers throughout the State of New Jersey and actually demonstrate to them not only the best method of selling Health Builders' records but how Summer sales can be increased with the Health Builders' set.

The history of the radio telephone goes back twenty years—to the discovery of the three element vacuum tube. For twenty years De Forest Leadership in this field has been acknowledged and unquestioned.

Dr. Lee De Forest is the inventor of the present-day vacuum tube. It was he who applied it to the wireless telephone. Since 1902 every notable advance, every radical improvement has been a De Forest achievement. The Unit-Panel System was brought out by De Forest; the Interpanel Arrangement of Apparatus was a De Forest creation.

The De Forest Reputation and Prestige is ably upheld during the present popularity of radio by five well-known instruments: The Everyman Receiver, the Radiophone Receiver, the DT-800 Amplifier, the Radiobest Receiver and MR-6, the 150-20,000 meter Receiving Set. A complete line of parts is also made by De Forest for those who "build their own."

ATLANTA

*Trade Outlook Brightens—
"Progress and Prosperity Week"—News of the Month*

ATLANTA, GA., June 10.—The outstanding feature at the present time is the strong feeling of optimism, of certainty that business during the coming months will be good. This feeling was first apparent in the southern counties of Georgia and Alabama. This section, because of its earlier season, began to get returns from early crops weeks ahead of more northerly districts.

The same feeling that conditions are sound is now evident in practically all sections; so much so that the Atlanta Constitution recently referred to the situation in the following paragraphs:

"Last year and the year before the cotton boll weevil ruined the farmers of the Southeast; but during those two years the farmers learned how to farm successfully in spite of the weevil. The results of that severe two years' schooling are becoming manifest now.

"Diversified farming and stock raising obtains all over the South now, in contrast to all-cotton a few years ago. At this season in years past the farmers went to banks and supply stores to borrow money to carry them through the Summer or until they sold their cotton in the Fall.

"This Spring they have garden truck, fruits, grain, hogs, cattle, chickens, eggs, etc., to sell for cash, and they are selling and getting cash. Papers of the Southeast teem with news items of hog sales, cattle sales, the shipping of fruits and vegetables by carloads, and with the exception of peaches from Georgia and early vegetables from Florida, this is an innovation in the South."

The above coincides with the views expressed to the writer by Westervelt Terhune, manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s local branch, who has spent several weeks recently in thoroughly covering a great part of this Southeast territory. Since Mr. Terhune is of almost twenty years' experience in the phonograph business here, it is most encouraging to learn that the conditions in our line are fully in keeping with the general improvement.

Further assurance of betterment is to be found in the fact that Atlanta felt the time was now ripe to stage a "Progress and Prosperity Week." Everything has been carried out on a large and lavish scale, beginning with a street pageant, "The Story of the Rose." The richly decorated monster floats as used at this year's Mardi Gras were brought here from New Orleans. The parade was followed by a ball and carnival at Lakewood Park; and the general program was continued with a series of fetes throughout the entire week. An abnormal amount of rain caused the postponement of several events.

Walter Waldman, of the Cable Piano Co., has recently been transferred to the Jacksonville branch, where he is in charge of the Victrola department.

Handsome salesmen's portfolios for use by the retail dealers when at work outside the store are now being distributed by M. E. Lyle, Southern representative of the Strand consoles. They will be an invaluable selling aid to those dealers who realize that the way to do business is to "Go Out and Get It."

P. C. Brockman, who is in charge of the wholesale phonograph division of the Polk Furniture Co., has recently spent a couple of weeks North visiting the offices and factory of the General Phonograph Co., and stopping at Philadelphia in connection with his recently organized accessory supply department. Before leaving Atlanta he finished the rearrangement of his warerooms, as it was found necessary to add space to the record stock department. Growing Okeh record business has made it necessary to add Charles Ray to the staff. Mr. Ray should prove of great value as he has had a long experience here with the Southern Sonora, Elyea and other talking machine firms.

LANDAU'S IN FINE NEW STORE

Quarters in Wilkes-Barre One of the Finest in the State—Victor Line of Machines and Records Are Featured—Radio Handled

WILKES-BARRE, PA., June 8.—Landau's, Victrola and jewelry dealer, and one of the oldest concerns in this city, is now located in its handsome new quarters in the firm's own building at 34 South Main street. The new establishment is without a doubt one of the finest stores of its kind in the State and its favorable location, together with its fine appearance and spaciousness, is expected to make it one of the most popular musical shopping centers in that part of the city.

A public radio receiving station is another feature. Other features of the store are forty rooms for demonstrating Victor records and handsome display cases.

The firm will make a specialty of handling radiophones. A broadcasting station has been erected on the roof of the Hampton Building from which programs will be broadcasted nightly for a distance of ninety miles for the present, the distance to be increased later.

The heads of this prosperous concern are Hyman Landau and Harry Michlosky, who through their energetic merchandising policies have built up a large clientele. Branch stores are also operated in Pittston and Hazleton, Pa. Thompson H. Rowley, well known in the musical circles of the city, has been placed in charge of the musical instrument department.

ISHAM JONES ENTERS TRADE FIELD

PRESIDENT WILLSON DISCUSSES COLUMBIA CO. AFFAIRS

With Financial Status of Columbia Co. Now Satisfactorily Arranged an Aggressive Campaign With New Policies of Production and Dealer Co-operation Has Been Inaugurated

"Six months' work on the part of the creditors of the Columbia Graphophone Co. has culminated in a satisfactory arrangement whereby the indebtedness of the company, both principal and interest, at the discretion of a readjustment committee, is postponed for a period of three years, leaving the company free from embarrassment through individual actions and in position to proceed aggressively with its new policies of production and dealer co-operation," says H. L. Willson, president of the company, in his public statement since the readjustment plan was effected.

"The Columbia Co. is not and never has been in the hands of a receiver. A petition for such action was filed by small holders of stock but the plea was dismissed promptly. The agreement of a majority of note holders against the company to defer payments both on interest and principal from April 1, 1922, to August 1, 1925, after deducting an amount not in excess of aggregate bank deposits on September 15, 1921, is healthy indication of the faith they have in the earning capacity of the Columbia Co. under normal conditions. This plan could have been blocked by objections from 25 per cent of the note holders, but not three per cent objected.

"All of this means that the company has cleared its decks of the unfortunate situation created by the sudden stoppage of business, the sudden falling off in sales and the accumulation of inventories, and the management is in a position to devote its entire energies to carrying forward the company's business of serving the public demand for the best that can be produced in the way of instruments and records, and it is the earnest intention of the management to devote itself to carrying out this policy.

"The volume of business in the last month, considering the season and the uncertainty as to the success of efforts to effect a reorganization plan that would fully meet the approval of all concerned, has been more than satisfactory. Improved products, the closest possible relations with our family of dealers and strictest economies in production we are confident will combine to develop a steadily improving business outlook for the company. Through the period of depression, we did not let up on experimentation tending to improve our products. As a result, we can say definitely that discoveries have been made in our plants that are of significance to all lovers of phonographic music."

With the financial policy of the company determined, additional confidence has been created through the type of man at the head of the company. Mr. Willson has eighteen years of practical experience in all phases of the business and is recognized as being fully familiar with the details of production, dealer policies and publicity. His record is one of progress tempered with conservatism.

MORE SPACE FOR VICTOR SHOWROOM

Peoria Dealer to Give More Prominence to Victor Department—Furnishes Shakespearean Records to English Classes of High School

PEORIA, ILL., June 5.—P. A. Bergner & Co., of this city, are planning to move their Victrola department to a more prominent place in the store. The balcony is at present being considered, and it will probably be the home of the department in the future.

The Victrola department in this establishment recently loaned the senior English classes of the Peoria High School all of the Shakespeare Victor records, which were used to entertain the students through their class period. It is quite likely that many of these records will find a permanent place in the English department of the High School for the entire year. The loan resulted in some excellent publicity.

Mr. Lyle, who has a multitude of friends and admirers on the Pacific Coast, reports excellent sales in all parts of the country of the Strand line of phonographs. He expected to meet W. S. Gray, of the W. S. Gray Co., Pacific Coast representative of the Strand, but the latter was summoned to San Francisco on account of the death of a near relative.

SUMMER SALES

To keep the sales volume up during the summer months has two important requisites—a well defined sales campaign and merchandise that provides quick turnover.

Puritan records provide quick turnover. They make this turnover possible because of our policy of issuing hits while they are hits. Two new releases are made each dealers report that while they have not as yet noticed much of a difference in sales, as compared with previous summer months, collections are showing great improvement and people are paying up their back accounts.

Dance records enjoy good summer sales. Puritan dance records are good and the price is right. There are good profits in it for you.

The talking machine dealers of this city have certainly shown a wonderful spirit of co-operation in connection with the Music Memory Contest being conducted by the Detroit News, and which is attracting widespread interest all over the city from every class of people. The News is so interested in the success of the contest that it is now devoting anywhere from two columns to one page every day and has a staff of three of its best writers assigned to getting human interest news. These men visit the music stores every day and write up anything that is worth while. Each day this newspaper also announces the concerts or special stunts at the various music stores. Some of the stores are giving concerts every night, while others are giving them at least once a week. As in all affairs, you will find some dealers going further than others in endeavoring to create interest. One dealer told The World representative that it was not with an idea of securing direct sales that he was spending so much time in furthering the contest, but rather because he felt it was his duty to stimulate all the interest he could in music itself—that ultimately results would certainly come in abundance. He feels that whatever he does is "sowing the seed" and that the harvest will take care of itself. Among some of the stores which deserve special mention are the Edison Shop, Grinnell Bros., Gardner-White Furniture Co., McCarron Music Co. and Waite & Co.

The Brunswick Shop, on East Grand River avenue, has been doing things lately. In fact, this store is forging to the front because of its wide-awake methods. Several weeks ago it gave daily demonstrations of the Wallace Reducing Records and a great many people took advantage of the free concerts or demonstrations, a special instructor having been engaged for the occasion. When Margaret Young, who makes Brunswick records, played a week's engagement at the Capitol Theatre the Brunswick Shop spared no expense to let everybody in Detroit know about it. These are the things that make a store talked about and "live" in the minds of the public. It brings the crowds and the people to-day like to go where the crowds go.

Fred Underwood, general manager of the Jewett Phonograph Co., reports that business is exceedingly brisk. In fact, so much so that the factory is way behind in its orders on both uprights and consoles. The latest addition to the Jewett line is the Jewett radio-phonograph, made in several models, which is taking the country "by storm." Mr. Underwood states that sales are merely a matter of production. "We can sell the radio-phonograph machines as fast as we turn them out," he declared. A. A. Fair, sales manager of the company, has been away considerably of late, visiting different sections of the country and meeting with great success everywhere. From St. Louis alone he brought back one order for three carloads of Jewett phonographs. Mr. Underwood believes that this will be a big year for the phonograph industry, especially for those concerns making a quality product and selling it at lowest possible prices.

A. J. Kendricks, general sales manager of the Brunswick, was a recent visitor to Detroit.

Sam Lind, of the Lind & Marks Co., says that Summer business is better than a year ago and so far this year sales of Vocalion phonographs and records are more than 100 per cent ahead of a year ago. Mr. Lind is very optimistic about the Fall. He has been very active on the committee that arranged with the Detroit News for the Music Memory Contest.

C. A. Grinnell, president of Grinnell Bros., was among those from Detroit who attended the New York convention of the piano merchants the week of June 6. He also attended the Victor Jobbers' Convention at Atlantic City, as also did A. A. Grinnell and C. H. Grinnell, of the same firm.

Henry S. Doran, of the Doran Phonograph Co., on Michigan avenue, is seeking another location downtown on account of his lease expiring the first of August and he having received notice to vacate, as a twenty-story office building will be erected on the same site. Mr. Doran admits that downtown locations are hard to find at a reasonable rental.

The Woodward Talking Machine Co., formerly located in Highland Park, near the Ford Motor Co. plant, is moving this month to its own building on the same street at the nine-mile road in the village called Ferndale. Mr. Oppenheim, proprietor, believes that he can do considerably better in his new location, while he has cut his overhead very materially.

The Pier Music Shop, located at Jefferson and the Belle Isle bridge approach, Detroit, is doing a very good business, handling the Jewett line of phonographs and the Vocalion line of phonographs and records. Being located in the heart of a public amusement park, where thousands and thousands of people congregate every afternoon and evening, the opportunities for business are above the average. Records are kept playing constantly, which are amplified through a large horn that can be distinctly heard all over the park.

NEW SONORA PERIOD MODEL

"Marquette" Is Added to Sonora Line—Has Many Important Constructional Qualities

The Sonora Phonograph Co. announced recently a new Sonora period model which will be known as the "Marquette." This instrument, which will retail at $125, embodies all of the tone and cabinet quality which has made the Sonora one of the popular lines of the industry. The "Marquette" is finished in walnut, brown mahogany and mahogany. It measures 30 inches in width, 33 inches in height and 19 inches in depth, with all trimmings nickel-plated and the cabinet design is patented. The mechanical equipment includes a double-spring motor of standard construction, tone modifier, automatic stop and envelope filing system. The advertising department of the Sonora Co. has just issued an attractive folder featuring this new model.

Sonora Marquette

HAPPENINGS IN THE DOMINION OF CANADA

NOTABLE TRADE BETTERMENT IN TORONTO AND VICINITY

Talkers in the Schools—The Radio Situation—Two Bad Fires in the Trade—Montagnes & Co. Expand in the States—Plan Extensive Handling of the Vocalion—News of Month

TORONTO, ONT., June 6.—At the annual meeting to be held shortly of the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music a plan is being arranged whereby it is expected that the sale of talking machines for use in schools will be greatly increased. While all retailers of phonographs can appreciate the business possibilities in their respective communities resulting from the installation of talking machines in the schools, the selling in this market has not offered returns for the work involved sufficient to cause dealers to give it as much attention as the more indirect returns might justify.

That the General Phonograph Corp., Ltd., will be actively engaged in radio business in Canada has been definitely decided, said C. J. Pott, Canadian manager, to The World, when asked about its plans in this field. At this date, however, developments were not sufficiently matured to permit of the announcement of particulars that will appear in the near future.

One of the four biggest sufferers in the fire which recently visited Elmira, Ont., was the Phonola Co., which maintained its offices uptown in one of the destroyed buildings, where also the stock of thousands of Phonola-Okeh records was carried. The World understands that the stock was adequately insured.

The fire does not in any way affect the stock of Phonola phonographs, as the factory warehouse, where these instruments are carried, is on the outskirts of the town.

The Scythes-Vocalion Co., Ltd., Toronto, has secured the services of two strong Vocalion wholesale representatives, Wesley Mason and H. W. Johnston, who have been assigned to Eastern and Western Ontario territory.

E. H. Van Gelder, of I. Montagnes & Co., Canadian Sonora distributors, informs your correspondent that the Sonora phonograph equipped with a radio attachment will be available for the Canadian trade shortly.

Due to a fire which started in the bowling alley adjoining the factory of the Starr Co., of Canada, Ltd., London, that firm lost probably 50 per cent of the $70,000 to $75,000 stock carried at the factory. After the management had had a chance to ascertain all the facts it was found that the loss through fire was not as heavy as the loss from water. Fortunately a good stock of Starr phonographs is carried at the London warehouse, quite separate from the factory, and in addition to the stocks at other branch warehouses, so that their business could proceed without interruption. No records at all were stocked at the factory, so that the record end of the business is not concerned. The management of the company believes that the insurance will take care of the loss that has been sustained.

Claude A. McMurty, sales manager of the Gold Medal Mfg. Co., Ltd., was married recently to Miss Rosamond Denton, of Toronto. R. J. Purdy, head of the Purdy Phonograph Co., Toronto, has announced that his firm has been appointed Canadian agent for Constat wireless equipment, made by the Stevenson Laboratories in Plainfield, N. J., the home of the well-known Stevenson Precision phonograph motor.

Emil H. Van Gelder, of the Toronto music house of I. Montagnes & Co., Sonora distributors for Canada, was in New York lately on business connected with the proposed opening of a branch of the Montagnes interests in that city. The plan of the Canadian company is to develop in the United States a general phonograph supply business, including steel needles, albums, envelopes and a large number of accessories, as well as small musical instruments and supplies.

Arrangements made by Mr. Montagnes and Mr. Van Gelder during recent trips to Europe call for heavy importations of such merchandise by the Montagnes interests, and it is their plan to develop the United States as well as the Canadian market in these lines.

C. Kavanagh, of Orme, Ltd., Ottawa, recently conferred with the head of the Scythes-Vocalion Co., Ltd., Canadian distributor, Toronto, and the Aeolian Co. of New York regarding plans for extensive handling of the Aeolian-Vocalion and Vocalion records by Orme, Ltd., starting next Fall. Orme, Ltd., is already handling this line, but proposes to push it more vigorously.

The R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., Ottawa, made special announcements regarding the reductions in the price of the New Edison. Various models of the New Edison were also shown simultaneously with revised prices in a special window display.

Messrs. Leach, Clegg & Leach, one of the leading piano and phonograph firms in Ottawa, have opened a radiophone department in their business. This firm proposes to hook up the music of pianos and phonographs with the operation of local broadcasting stations.

Seventy-five per cent of the pianos and 60 per cent of the talking machines are purchased by women, estimates Herbert N. Casson in an article in Marketing.

Announcement has been made by the Starr Co. of Canada, Ltd., that in future it is the intention to supply all Gennett dealers with a set of record dummies monthly for window display purposes.

E. C. Scythes, of the Scythes-Vocalion Co., Ltd., Toronto, in company with R. M. Kempton, head of the Vocalion division of the Aeolian Co., New York, lately paid a visit to London, Hamilton, Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec, Boston and New York. While business conditions haven't been such as to cause complete satisfaction, Mr. Scythes found signs of returning stability that warrant the hope of better selling conditions the coming Fall. One of the pleasing reports Mr. Scythes received in New York was the rapid growth of Vocalion record sales.

R. G. Ashton, who formerly had charge of the phonograph department of Moutrie & Co., Shanghai, China, is home in Canada on a visit.

A. E. Landon, Canadian manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was a recent visitor to the New York headquarters.

A public offering of $400,000 capital stock of the Jewett Radio-Phonograph Co., Ltd., of Windsor, was made recently by a syndicate. The company has acquired numerous patent claims in connection with wireless receiving apparatus used in combination with phonograph reproduction and amplifying of sound, and will specialize on the radio-phonograph.

The official figures on imports of phonographs into Canada for the month of February show total imports valued at $98,680, of which $96,442 came from the United States, compared with $73,880 in the same month of 1921. The total imports of records for February amounted to $10,736, of which the imports from the United States amounted to $10,466, as compared with $15,868 for the same month of 1921.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN MONTREAL

H. S. Berliner Discusses Conditions in Europe—New Console Types of Victrolas Popular—Protest Against Interference With Stores

MONTREAL, QUE., June 8.—H. S. Berliner, president of the Compo Co., Ltd., returned from a visit to England a short time ago. Asked by The World as to the state of business, he stated that he found conditions very little improved over what they were on the occasion of his European trip in August last, but the general feeling he found to be better. The radio craze, as it is in Canada, had not yet reached England.

The Compo Co., Ltd., of Lachine, Que., which has been incorporated with a Dominion charter, as previously announced in The World, recently held an organization meeting, when the following directorate was elected: H. S. Berliner, president; T. Nash, of Toronto, vice-president; W. J. Olmstead, secretary; J. McWilliam, treasurer; Messrs. F. Fridberg, Toronto; Elmer Avery, and Saint Eve, Lachine, directors.

In addition to other makes, The Compo Co., Ltd., manufactures Apex records.

John Burgoyne, manager of the St. John, N. B., branch of the Starr Co. of Canada, Ltd., is finding an improvement in business conditions in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

The Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., recently announced five new console models of Victrolas, all of them decided departures from the usual Victrola line. With these new models, "His Master's Voice" Victor dealers can now secure Victrolas in no less than 198 regular styles and finishes, not to mention special finishes and special order period models. As already mentioned in these columns, Victrola 50, a portable machine, has made quite a hit with the trade.

Phinney's, Ltd., Halifax, N. S., has the full and exclusive distribution rights for Marconi wireless radio receiving sets and equipment for the Province of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton.

New companies recently registering in Montreal include Standard Phonograph Accessories & Supply Co., Rod Lamoureux, phonographs, Montreal Sales Agency, phonographs.

A delegation of music store owners, headed by A. A. Gagnier, proprietor of the Canadian Graphophone & Piano Co. (Columbia dealers), waited on the city executive recently to protest against the police interfering with gramophones that discourse music through windows of the stores. Several of these owners have been summoned to the Recorders Court.

Opening of Shore Resorts Will Help Trade—Dealers Enjoy Jobbers' Hospitality—Columbia Activities—New Stores and Changes

BALTIMORE, MD., June 10.—The talking machine business, generally speaking, is quiet, due to the fact that Summer weather started in about a month ahead of time this year, as it has been "hot," not warm, here since shortly after the first of last month. This has had a tendency to drive a number of people away from the city, who usually do not leave until around the end of June. Dealers, however, are looking forward to a good trade when all the shore resorts open up and thousands of city dwellers here take up their residence on the shores of the numerous water resorts in the vicinity.

This usually takes place after the close of schools and already a noticeable increase in the sales of portable machines is reported. This also means a proportionate increase in the sale of records, especially the dance records.

Great Time at Dinner and Outing

Victor dealers are still talking about the dinner and outing given by the three Victor jobbers, Eisenbrandt's, Cohen & Hughes and E. F. Droop & Sons, at the Hotel Bayou in Havre de Grace on the eighteenth of last month, when about seventy-five dealers accompanied by their wives, sweethearts and daughters were the guests of the above jobbers. The dinner was given as a wind-up of the ten-day salesmanship school conducted by F. A. Delano, director of the salesmanship school at the Victor factory, in the concert room at the Chickering warerooms, and was attended by a very large number of the local dealers and their salesmen. The outing was preceded by a dinner on the seventeenth at the Southern Hotel at which Mr. Delano was the principal speaker and outlined a number of plans for going after new business. He gave a budget of new ideas in salesmanship and a number of dealers report excellent results already from the school of instruction.

Columbia Broadcasting

The local Columbia agency has adopted the plan of broadcasting its latest records through WKC, which is the local broadcasting station, and reports excellent results from the experiment. Only the other night Record No. 3580—Stars and Thrills—was sent out and before the next number on the program could be flashed the telephone rang and one of the radio fans wanted to know the name and number of the record and where it could be bought, which, according to John H. Marshall, sales manager of the Columbia Co., is about the limit for quick results.

The Columbia Co. also has on display one of its "fool-proof" motor period design machines, which is being thoroughly tested out before being put on the market in this territory. After it has been given every test at the agency it is the intention of Manager Parks to put several of them in the hands of the consumer through certain dealers and have them tested out in the home before they are finally placed on sale through the dealers generally. The machine at the agency has stood every test that could be thought of so far, and it is with the idea of giving it a test along the lines of some things that a dealer or salesman would never think of doing that the machines are going to be placed in several homes.

Aggressive Newspaper Campaign

Under the management of Charles F. Shaw, the Brunswick is rapidly coming to the front in this territory. He has adopted an aggressive line of newspaper advertising and this is supplemented by the efforts of his sales force working in connection with the Brunswick dealers. Since the first of the month he has been featuring the "June Bride" series of advertisements and the June-Day Gift Club plan, which are attractively displayed in quarter-page advertisements with a list of Brunswick dealers at the bottom.

Looks for Big June Business

W. C. Roberts, of E. F. Droop & Sons while reporting business last month as not up to his expectations, says he has very good reasons to believe that business this month will run ahead of that for the same period last year. He reports an increased sale in the portable variety of machines and for the first time in several years is now up with his orders on the horizontal types, which are still popular despite the many period and other models which have been put on the market since.

Albert Eisenbrandt, I. Son Cohen and W. C. Roberts were among those who attended the Jobbers' Convention in Atlantic City on the twelfth.

Found Improvement in the South

Manager W. S. Parks, of the Columbia agency, has just returned from a trip through Virginia and North Carolina and reports business outlook as considerably improved. While at the Furniture Dealers' Convention in North Carolina he met Manager Terhune, of the Atlanta branch, and the latter said business generally was improving in the South.

Sol Freidberg, of the Grafonola Shop of Norfolk, Va., was a recent visitor who reports business as being very good. He had just completed an advertising campaign at an outlay of $4,000 which he said had been very profitable, as his shop had practically been cleaned out of every machine that he had in stock.

New Stores and Changes

R. H. Fox, who recently opened a Columbia Shop in Lexington, Va., is one of the live wires of that section, according to salesmen who have visited his place. He is conducting an intensive campaign of country trade solicitation that is "bringing home the bacon," to quote one of the salesmen.

Boschen & Smith, who recently opened up in the old Knabe Building, are going after the high-class trade exclusively and meeting with excellent results, according to the number of machines that they have placed in Baltimore and vicinity in the short time that they have been open.

David Weintraub has opened a new music shop at 603 East Baltimore street, featuring the Phonolamp, but handling other makes of machines as well.

The Red Record Music Shop at 2113 North Fulton avenue is another new place that is meeting with big success. It is the only exclusive record shop in this section of the city.

Andrew J. Oldewurtel, of the Talking Machine Shop, 305-307 North Howard street, and C. Edward Keefer, of the Kranz-Smith Co., Charles and Fayette streets, who were unable to attend the Victor salesmanship class here last month, went over to Washington the first part of the month and joined the class which was conducted there by Mr. Delano.

Hofferbert Bros., who recently opened up an up-to-date music shop at 3133 Greenmount avenue, report business as improving every day. They are pioneers in this section and save residents of the neighborhood a long trip down town.

The Talking Machine Shop, of Hagerstown, had its formal opening last week and according to H. T. Bosse, sales manager of Cohen & Hughes, who attended the opening, it is one of the most complete and up-to-date establishments in that section of the State.

S. S. SPIVAK NOW THE OWNER

S. S. Spivak, jeweler and talking machine dealer of East Hampton, N. Y., has purchased the Victrola business of I. Meyer. Mr. Spivak will handle the Columbia line in addition to Victrolas.

MARK

The Mission of the SIMPLEX Electric Phonograph Motor is to reproduce music just as it was originally rendered. For its perfect and faithful reproductions of all disc records the SIMPLEX Electric Phonograph Motor will play any record you wish to hear and play it as it should be played.

It has an absolute constant speed under variations of voltages and frequency and records may be set at any speed desired—and it is built absolutely without a governor.

BETTER BUILT

BETTER DESIGNED

The SIMPLEX Electric Phonograph Motor has no competition because it is the only electric phonograph motor of its kind in the world. There are many features by which one can determine the efficiency of the SIMPLEX Electric Phonograph Motor. The essential features are:

No Gears	No Commutator	No Springs	No Oiling
No Governor	No Brushes	No Winding	Noiseless
No Adjustments	No Transformer	No Belts	Troubleproof

Record Stops Automatically on Last Note

It represents the very best of inventions and improvements and we therefore confidently say that the SIMPLEX Electric Phonograph Motor is combined with the highest precision of workmanship and select material.

TEST A SIMPLEX ELECTRIC MOTOR ON OUR 30-DAY TRIAL OFFER

When a Simplex Electric Motor is sent out, it is not sold until the motor has demonstrated in your own shop, in your own cabinet, during a 30-day test, that it will do all we claim. RAY MILLER SIGNS WITH COLUMBIA

Popular Dance Orchestra Leader Will Make Columbia Records Exclusively—Signs Two-year Contract—First Records Are Issued

R. F. Bolton, director of the recording studios of the Columbia Graphophone Co., announced this week that arrangements had been completed whereby Ray Miller and His Black and White Melody Boys would record exclusively for the Columbia library. A two-year contract has been signed with this well-known organization, and the first recordings under the new contract were released recently.

Ray Miller and His Black and White Melody Boys need no introduction to the talking machine trade or to dance enthusiasts throughout the country, as this organization is recognized as one of the finest dance orchestras now playing. For several years past Ray Miller has appeared at the leading dance palaces in the country and in addition has been a headliner at the Winter Garden in New York when that house played Shubert vaudeville. Ray Miller and his band have also appeared in several very successful musical comedy hits and Mr. Miller has a host of admirers throughout the country who proclaim him one of the foremost exponents of modern dance music.

EDISON PHONOGRAPH IMMORTALIZED

Continues to Sing, Although Charred and Twisted in Big Fire in Wichita Falls, Texas

Crowds of persons gathered around the charred remains of an Edison phonograph which reposed on a box in front of the Phonograph Shop, at Wichita Falls, Texas. "The Soul of a Phonograph From the Phonograph With a Soul," read the placard that hung in front of the instrument. A big fire had swept a portion of Wichita Falls' business section and a store in which the Edison was being demonstrated was burned to the ground. The toasted phonograph was removed from the smouldering ruins and was placed on the sidewalk in front of the Phonograph Shop. The Re-creation of "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," which also survived the blaze, was played. The tones of the instrument, which had been a victim of the $200,000 conflagration, seemed sweeter because of the injury. All who congregated around it listened intently and all were charmed by the sweet refrains of a song that has never grown old with the years that it has lived, but has really grown more refreshing.

SHELTON NON-SET STOP POPULAR

MUSIC WEEK AIDS DENVER TRADE

Activities of Merchants During Music Week Productive of Results—Pattison's New Quarters

DENVER, COLO., June 5.—The outstanding event of last month in the Denver talking machine trade was the Music Week held during the week ending May 27. The energetic efforts of the dealers in the matter of attractive window displays, advertising, etc., were noticeably felt in a stimulation of business.

T. P. Pattison, one of the veteran music dealers of the city, recently moved his business into attractive new quarters at 1540 Glenarm street. Features of the establishment are a number of large mirrors on the walls of the booths and the main display room and sound-proof record demonstration rooms constructed of plate glass. The Victor line of talking machines and records is handled exclusively.

A window display which attracted considerable attention among music lovers and the general public recently was staged by the Denver

Music Co. A piano constructed by the Bacon Piano Co. in 1767 and sold to Jacob Astor, of New York, founder of the Astor fortune, was exhibited.

The Moore-Bird Phonograph Co., distributor of the Sonora phonograph and Okeh records, has added the line of radio outfits and accessories of the General Wireless Co., of New York, which it will distribute in the States of Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico.

Milton L. Leve, Starr phonograph dealer here, has added Gennett records to his stock.

RADIO PHONO. CO. CHARTERED

The Radio Symphony Phonograph Co., of Huntington, W. Va., has been granted a charter of incorporation under the laws of that State, with a capital of $500,000. The concern will engage in the manufacture and distribution of talking machines, musical merchandise and radio equipment and supplies. Incorporators are James A. Young, E. W. Ward, J. H. Steenberg, E. E. Winters and C. C. Thurmond.

FINE NEW EDISON SHOP OPENS

Wahl & Sons Formally Open Attractive New Establishment in Paducah, Ky.—Large Number of People Attended Opening

PADUCAH, KY., June 7.—Wahl & Sons, who enjoy the reputation of having the oldest firm name in this city, have opened an exclusive Edison shop at 518 Broadway. This location has been a music shop for the past twenty years, having been previously occupied by the Gibson Piano Co., which sold the Edison line. The picture above tells the story as to the go-getting stuff these Wahl boys possess. The construction of booths is of the Swiss cottage type, color scheme of ivory and green. A rest-room with all conveniences is furnished most exquisitely with Reed furniture. L. M. Schlude, of the Silverstone Music Co., St. Louis, attended the opening and reports that it was a grand success in every way. One thousand carnations were given to the ladies, who were particularly pleased with the attractiveness of the new Edison shop. Mr. Schlude says that Wahl & Sons will sure make things hum in and around Paducah, also that they should develop to be one of the best Edison accounts in the South.

ACTUELLE RECORD PRICES REDUCED

New Price Is Fifty-five Cents Each or Two For One Dollar—Sales Greatly Stimulated

On June 1 an important announcement was issued from the headquarters of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., relative to the Actuelle needle-cut records. On this date the price of these records was reduced from 75 cents to 55 cents each, or two for $1.00. It was announced by Eugene A. Widmann, formerly president of the company and now one of the three receivers in equity, that the change in price was made in response to the demand of the trade for popular-priced discs and also through extensive production economies effected by the company.

There will be no other change in the sales plan of these records other than the price. The same Actuelle wholesalers will distribute these records. In order to provide quicker delivery, however, it was announced that deliveries will be made direct from the factory in quantities of 100 records, ten of a number, at the regular retail discount, orders and payments to be received through Actuelle jobbers as usual. Operatic and other standard selections will continue to be available on Actuelle records at the reduced price. It was stated that this change of price has already increased sales of Actuelle records.

The price of the Pathé Sapphire records are not affected and remain at 75 cents as usual.

VICTOR DEALERS ENJOY OUTING

Three Victor Jobbers of Baltimore Entertain Retailers of the City at Dinner and Dance at the Bayou Hotel, Havre de Grace

BALTIMORE, MD., June 7.—A most enjoyable outing was given to the Victor dealers of this city at the Bayou Hotel, Havre de Grace, recently by the three local Victor jobbers, Cohen & Hughes, E. F. Droop & Sons, and H. R. Eisenbrandt & Sons. The dealers and their wives and sweethearts were taken to the hotel in machines supplied for that purpose by the dealers. One of the features of the event was a real, honest-to-goodness Maryland style dinner, prepared under the personal supervision of Manager "Pink" West. Following dinner the party enjoyed dancing until the wee sma' hours of the morning, when they were driven back to Baltimore.

L. G. Evans, of Lancaster, Pa., has secured a lease on spacious quarters at 225 West King avenue, that city, where he will locate a talking machine and piano business.

NEW COLUMBIA CONSOLES

New Line of Console Models Announced by Columbia Graphophone Co.—Moderate Prices a Feature—Eight Models Ready for Delivery

The Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, has announced a new line of Columbia console period models which, from all indications, will meet with a ready sale throughout the country. Columbia dealers who have visited the executive offices during the past few weeks have evinced keen enthusiasm regarding the new models, stating that they are well qualified to meet the requirements of the most discriminating purchasers.

There are eight models in the new line and the prices are exceptionally moderate for console models, ranging from $175 to $225. Before establishing these prices the Columbia Graphophone Co. made a careful study of merchandising and trade conditions throughout the country and finally decided upon this price list as being in accord with present-day conditions.

The new Columbia console models with their retail prices are as follows: Queen Anne, spring motor $185, electric motor, $200; Heppelwhite, electric motor $200; Adam, electric motor $200; Louis XV, spring motor $200, Louis XV electric motor $225; William and Mary, spring motor $200; William and Mary, electric motor $225; Heppelwhite, console table, electric motor $175; Jacobean, console table, electric motor $175. The cabinet designs of these new period models, illustrations of which are shown in this issue, are true to the period styles they represent and the cabinets are produced by a well-known manufacturer of high grade furniture.

The Standard Music Co., 293 South Main street, Akron, O., has leased attractive new quarters adjoining its present place of business. The firm is engaged in selling musical instruments and leather goods.

NEW RADIO CABINET SET INTRODUCED

H. P. Disbecker & Co.'s New Outfit Will Be Known as the Consolette—Handsomely Designed and Possesses Individual Features

Harry P. Disbecker & Co., New York City, are introducing to the trade a new radio cabinet set designed for the drawing room of the home, which will be known as the Consolette and be manufactured in mahogany and American walnut finishes. The entire radio equipment is concealed within the cabinet and consists of a Western Electric non-regenerative vacuum tube detector, a tuner and one stage of amplification. This in turn is hooked up with the Western Electric loud-speaking telephone equipment, which "steps up" the sound enough to fill a good-sized room. The amplifier is a two-stage vacuum tube outfit, and is considered in its entirety one of the very finest receiving sets on the market to-day. In a chat with Mr. Disbecker, he stated that this product of Western Electric engineers is built entirely on sound and tried scientific principles. Many combinations of amplifying and receiving stages have been tried, and this particular set is specially designed to do away with any foreign noises and to reproduce faithfully. The circuit is compensated in a manner that will insure the best possible result.

It is the belief of Mr. Disbecker, who conceived this new radio cabinet outfit, that "the ultimate set to be marketed will be one of this type and that prospective radio-purchasers will not be satisfied with the unsightly radio receiving set unless it is enclosed and a thing of beauty that can be brought into any drawing-room where it will fit in with the home surroundings." Simplicity of construction is the keynote of this particular outfit and any amateur after a demonstration can produce desirable results. He also stated that talking machine dealers had shown considerable interest so far and were very enthusiastic regarding it. When production reaches the figures expected he will be able to furnish any number to dealers everywhere. Particular stress was laid by Mr. Disbecker on the fact that it required no expert knowledge to successfully operate this set and for that reason it has made a hit wherever shown. At the radio show at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory last month, Mr. Disbecker had a very attractive exhibit and entertained hundreds of visitors who were keenly interested in the possibility of this outfit. In addition to the receiving set they exhibited an interior antennae made in the form of a loop that can be placed in a room with the receiving set, designed to replace the antennae wires which usually are strung up on the roof of the house or some elevated position. With this feature Mr. Disbecker believes that he has a combination that must win supporters and friends under proper merchandising conditions.

ABRAMS TELLS OF EMERSON PLANS

Purchaser of Assets of Emerson Co. to Conduct Business Along Progressive Lines Operating the Regal and Emerson Companies

On May 29 there was held a meeting of the creditors of the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., New York City, in the United States District Court in the Southern District of New York, before Judge John C. Knox for the purpose of considering an offer for the assets of the above company, which has been in bankruptcy for many months. Owing to the small number of creditors in attendance, however, the Court postponed the hearing until Thursday, June 1, at which time the offer of Benjamin Abrams of $50,000 for the right, title and interest of the receivers of the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., was accepted.

The purchase included everything with the exception of the accounts receivable, which the creditors decided to withhold and collect under the receivership. Mr. Abrams' purchase includes all the physical assets, merchandise, furniture, master records, patents, trade marks, machinery, accessories, leases, etc., including the name Regal Record.

According to a statement of Benjamin Abrams, the business is to be continued practically along the lines that made the Emerson organization successful. Shipments of records are being made daily and these in increasing quantities. In a very short time an entirely new and up-to-date record list will be issued and plans for carrying on sales and making deliveries of both Emerson and Regal records have been arranged.

The present plans of the new owner call for the incorporation of two companies, one to carry on the sales of Emerson records and the other to continue the activities of the Regal organization.

Mr. Abrams also announced that he would be president of the new organizations and that Rudolph Kanarek would be treasurer, the other officers to be selected later.

The Chicago offices of the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., have been closed. M. Abrams, brother of Benjamin Abrams, is spending some time in that city for the purpose of carrying out the details of the discontinuance.

MUSIC MASTER HORN AMPLIFIER

This is the only loud speaker which reproduces and magnifies sound with a complete absence of that unpleasant metallic distortion so common in the usual Amplifier. It greatly enriches and mellows the voice of the Radio and is certain to improve the sound delivery of any set.

The Music Master Horn Amplifier is easily attached (in the same manner as a head phone), requiring no additional batteries or current. Furthermore there is nothing intricate about it, no delicate adjustments to get out of order.

The Music Master Horn is fully covered by basic patents.

It is beautifully designed and finely made to harmonize with the finishing of any room. The Horn proper is made of laminated wood and is connected to the cast aluminum goose-neck by a nickel-plated ring of special alloy. The goose-neck fits lightly into the decorated metal base which protects the amplifying device.

It is made in two sizes: 14-inch orifice (widest diameter) for general use in the home and 21 inches for concerts and out of doors.

WARREN SCHALLER A BENEDICT

Member of Firm of Cool & Schaller, Victor Dealers in New York City, Weds Miss Louise Moore—Now on Extended Honeymoon

Warren Schaller, of Cool & Schaller, Victor dealers, of 653 West 181st street, New York, is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon his wedding on June 6. The bride was Miss Louise Moore, daughter of William Moore, a prominent builder and contractor in the Fordham section. Mr. and Mrs. Schaller left immediately after the ceremony on a honeymoon, which will be spent in Boston and neighboring sections of New England, followed by a trip through the West.

Cool & Schaller opened a Victor store on Washington Heights last November, and have been very successful as a result of adopting progressive business methods. They make excellent use of two large display windows and have recently been featuring a camping scene in which a portable Victrola holds the dominating position.

ZIMMERMAN-BITTER CO. FORMED

New Metropolitan Concern Engaged in Interior Store Construction and Decoration

The Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co., with headquarters in New York City, is the latest concern in the metropolitan district to enter the field of interior store construction and decoration. Both Mr. Zimmerman and Mr. Bitter, heads of the new concern, are widely known to the talking machine trade, having been engaged in work of a similar character for a number of years. The company is planning to cater to the talking machine trade in the construction of booths, service counters, etc.

Modern equipment has already been installed by this company in the Broad & Market Shop, which was recently opened in Newark, N. J., and another contract for interior construction secured is that of the Morris Music Shop, formerly the De Rivas & Harris store, at 130 Fordham road, this city. Designs and plans for several other stores are being prepared and, although the concern has been in existence but a short time, the prospects for the future are exceedingly bright.

CHILVERS JOINS STRAND FORCES

Prominent Canadian Talking Machine Executive Now Strand Representative

The Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., New York, manufacturer of Strand phonographs, announced this week that Richard L. Chilvers had joined the company's organization, and will act as a Strand direct representative in the territory east of Kingston, Ont., with headquarters in Montreal. Mr. Chilvers is one of the veterans of the Canadian talking machine industry, as he joined the forces of the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., as far back as 1909. In December, 1910, he was elected to the board of directors of that company, and appointed general sales manager, in which position he continued until January of the present year.

Mr. Chilvers is well known to the talking machine trade throughout the Dominion of Canada, as well as in the United States. He has made a number of coast-to-coast trips and his broad experience should prove very successful in the merchandising of Strand phonographs.

SIEGSMUND WITH C. N. ANDREWS

Well-known Talking Machine Dealer of Buffalo, N. Y., Joins Staff of Local Victor Wholesaler—Has Had Wide Experience

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 8.—That Curtis N. Andrews, Victor wholesaler of this city, has faith in the future of the talking machine industry is proven by the addition to his sales force on June 1 of C. E. Siegesmund, a man of recognized ability, with several years of experience in the retail talking machine field. Mr. Siegesmund a few years ago purchased the retail department of the Andrews store when Mr. Andrews decided to wholesale exclusively.

Mr. Siegesmund conducted an exclusively Victor shop, which he sold to A. Victor & Co., a local housefurnishing establishment, at a figure he could not afford to overlook. He has long taken an active interest in trade affairs and served twice as president of the Talking Machine Association of Buffalo, enjoying the friendship of every member.

Mr. Andrews feels that Mr. Siegesmund's experience in the retail field will prove of great value to the dealers in his territory in assisting them in installing successful sales systems.

Otto Heineman Denies Rumors That Company Will Make 50-cent Records—Odeon and Fonotopia Repertoires to Be Enlarged

Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, stated this week that he wished to deny absolutely the rumors in existence to the effect that the company was planning to make records retailing at 50 cents. He stated that there was no foundation to this rumor and that the General Phonograph Corp. would continue to manufacture Okeh records at the standard retail price of 75 cents and would do everything possible to furnish the trade with a quality product commensurate with the company's standing in the talking machine industry.

In the near future the General Phonograph Corp. will enlarge materially its Odeon and Fonotopia repertoires. These new recordings will not only include records of foreign languages, but also recordings made by a number of prominent artists who will be identified next season with the Metropolitan and Chicago opera companies, and who will record exclusively for the Odeon and Fonotopia libraries.

Close of Successful Salesmanship Classes Under F. A. Delano Followed by Dinner and Theatre Party in New York—Marks of Appreciation

One of the most successful salesmanship classes arranged by Victor distributors was held in the warerooms of Collings & Co., of Newark, N. J., June 5 to 8, inclusive. The class was under the instruction of F. A. Delano, director of the Red Seal School of the Victor Talking Machine Co., Camden, N. J.

The course was unusually interesting, embracing all phases of the talking machine business, not mere theory, but practical pointers on business producers. A large number of dealers responded to the Collings & Co. offer and L. W. Collings and Mr. Delano were particularly pleased with the results.

On Thursday evening, June 8, Collings & Co. were hosts and had as their guests all of the dealers who were in attendance at the salesmanship classes at a dinner at the Palais Royal, New York, following which they attended the performance of "Good Morning, Dearie."

The class presented Mr. Delano with a traveling case in recognition of his interest in the dealers' problems and his instructions, which many dealers enthusiastically stated were invaluable.

The dealers also presented L. W. Collings with a gift in honor of his thoughtfulness and vision in making it possible for Mr. Delano to be heard by the trade in Newark.

The gathering at the Palais Royal and the Globe Theatre, for the show, "Good Morning, Dearie," was quite large and the event was particularly pleasing in the earlier part of the evening when Paul Whitman personally greeted the diners.

*Two New Dealers Open Departments and Add Brunswick Line—
Many Changes in the Trade During the Month—Dealers Active*

PORTLAND, ORE., June 6.—John R. Leach, owner of the Phoenix Pharmacy, at 6616 Foster road, this city, has just completed erecting a handsome new store and has installed a most complete Brunswick department.

"Currius for Drugs" is an attractive little drug store of Klamath Falls, Ore., which has been appointed exclusive Brunswick dealer by M. Davis, district manager of the Brunswick Co.

H. G. Launspach has been added to the outside selling force of Weeks & Orr at Medford, Ore., exclusive Brunswick dealers.

H. L. Moore, of Salem, Ore., who formerly owned the Moore-Dunne music store, has purchased the store of W. W. Moore and consolidated the two firms, which are now known as Moore's Music House. Brunswick and Victor machines are handled.

E. M. Thompson, of the Thompson Music Co., Bend, Ore., who is an exclusive Columbia dealer, has returned from an extended trip into New Mexico and Arizona.

Mr. Porter, field manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., spent several days in Portland in company with W. H. Lawton, branch manager of Oregon and Washington, with headquarters in Seattle.

The Sonora phonograph was demonstrated for several weeks in one of the main windows of the Lipman-Wolfe store. A demonstration of the assembling of motor and sound box attracted a great deal of attention.

Richard "Burtrain" Miller, manager of the San Francisco office of the Wiley B. Allen Co., spent a week at the Portland store.

The little Queen Anne Brunswick console is making a big hit in Portland and H. J. Young, manager of the exclusive Brunswick department of the Edwards furniture store, is among the department managers to report a big run on this type of machine.

J. Walter Johnson, window decorator of Powers furniture store, won a handsome silver cup as grand prize for the best decorated window displays during the Elks Golden Jubilee, May 15 to 20. One of his windows featured a large Victor dog, an Elk head, Victrolas, records, etc.

Roy Feldenheimer, owner and manager of the phonograph department in the Lipman-Wolfe store, has placed Kathryn Campbell in charge of the record department to fill the place of Fritz Jensen, who went to La Grande, Ore.

Taylor C. White, former manager of the Portland Remick Song & Gift Shop, has been made manager of the Laraway Music House, of Eugene, Ore., Victrola and Brunswick dealer.

George Reaney has been added to the sales force of the phonograph department of the Wiley B. Allen Co. Mr. Reaney was formerly with the Bendix Talking Machine Shop, of Walla Walla, D. C. Peyton, manager of the phonograph department of the Meier & Frank store for the past two years, has resigned his position and has left for the South. He expects to locate in Los Angeles.

WHY A. H. CURRY IS OPTIMISTIC

In a recent interview with The World A. H. Curry, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in charge of the phonograph division, stated that the outlook in the phonograph field at the present time is highly encouraging. Current orders for both instruments and records are mounting, in accordance with a very steady upward curve.

Mr. Curry looks for considerable improvement by Fall and attributes the prosperity which awaits the phonograph industry to several factors are the favorable changes in basic conditions throughout the world and particularly in the United States, the passing of radio as a fad proposition and the reports which are coming in daily from wholesalers and retailers in the phonograph business throughout the width and breadth of the land, whose contact with the purchasing public is of a character that cannot be questioned from the standpoint of accuracy and significance.

WALLACE REDUCING RECORDS

For the benefit of those who may have thought Get Thin to Music a mere novelty, or fleeting fancy, we offer these actual experiences of the trade with Wallace records:

Famous & Barr Co.
St. Louis, Mo.

say—

"We find a ready sale for these unusual records. Our turnover on them has been as great as any in the entire department. They continue to sell well."

Dugan Piano Co.
New Orleans, La.

say—

"We are selling six sets a day with hardly any effort. Also, Wallace records have sold for us many small phonographs in homes already having a big machine. The window display you gave us has sold a lot of the records."

The Fair
Chicago, Ill.

say—

"Our Wallace demonstration has made many new friends for the record dept. From the quantity of daily sales we know our net is going to be very satisfactory. We wish you continued success."

The May Co.
Cleveland, Ohio

say—

"We have over a thousand women weighing themselves daily, and the records create a lot of interest."

Jones Music Co.
Grand Island, Nebr.

say—

"Not only do we know these records to be a good investment, and find demand for them increasing, but we believe they are doing purchasers a world of good. They have helped business for us in other records, and in instruments."

A Good Proposition for Good Dealers —and Good NOW

The Wallace reducing course has been widely advertised, in more than a quarter of a million dollars' worth of high grade magazine space. It is the original course on records. It is generous value for the money. Those who buy it and use it always become boosters. Beautifully packed in compact and complete sets retailing for $15.

Swing in with this big feature now—Summer weather is ideal for reducing by this novel and interesting method. Summer business in Wallace reducing records has not fallen off! Waiting for Fall means just that much time and money lost. Prices to trade: 6 sets 40% off or $9 each; 12 sets at $8.55; 25 sets at $8.10; 100 sets at $7.50.

NOTE: Wallace is the originator of the music-method of physical exercise. Similar records are imitations which will all be prosecuted with vigor. Dealers are urged—in their own interest as well as ours—to decline to handle any of the pitiful substitutes being offered. Wallace reducing records are scientifically sound. Wallace reducing records reduce. Each bears the signature "Wallace."

OTTO HEINEMAN BACK FROM EUROPE

President of General Phonograph Corp. Returns From Short Trip Abroad—Radio Activities Purpose of European Visit—Will Soon Announce Radio Sales Plans

Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., returned to New York on June 2 on the steamer "George Washington," after spending four weeks in Europe. Mr. Heineman made this trip in record-breaking time, as he left New York on May 2 and was back here exactly one month later. The purpose of Mr. Heineman's trip abroad was primarily in connection with the activities of the General Wireless Corp., which, as announced in last month's issue of The World, is a subsidiary to the General Phonograph Corp. The former company will manufacture wireless receiving sets, wireless telephone apparatus, etc., under the Lorenz patents and models of these various instruments are now in the hands of the factory executives at Elyria, O.

Mr. Heineman states that his company had planned to have these sets ready for the market within a few weeks after the first announcement, but he found that in order to maintain the quality and prestige of these instruments it would be desirable to give detailed thought and consideration to every phase of their technical development. Machinery for the production of these wireless outfits is now being completed at Elyria and embodies important new principles. Within a short time the General Wireless Corp. will issue an official announcement giving the trade accurate information as to its plans for co-operating with the talking machine industry.

DEATH OF MISS ADA JONES

Well-known Record Artist Dies While on Concert Tour—Popular With Talker Owners

Miss Ada Jones, well-known soprano and one of the most popular artists in the record catalogs, died a few weeks ago while on a concert tour down South. Miss Jones, who started recording when the talking machine industry was in its infancy, was for many years one of the most popular singers of soubrette songs, child ballads and ragtime hits in the record catalogs. She recorded for several of the leading companies, and made many duet records that attained signal success.

SIMPLEX MOTOR MAKING PROGRESS

New Electric Motor Well Received by Trade—Exhibit at Convention Produces Direct Sales—New Mailing Card Interests Dealers

MONTREAL, CANADA, June 9.—The Simplex Electric Phonograph Motor Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Simplex electric phonograph motor, has just issued an attractive mailing card which is being used to splendid advantage in the company's publicity plans. This mailing card features a splendid illustration of the Simplex motor, and furnishes interesting details as to its construction and specifications. Special emphasis is made of the fact that the motor has no gears, governor, commutator, brush, transformer, springs or belts, and requires no adjusting. It is furnished to the trade with a twelve-inch velvet turntable, electric automatic stop switch and one-piece nickel-plated frame.

Doris, Albert and Harry Farmer of the company's executive staff, returned to Montreal yesterday, after attending the Jubilee Convention of the Music Industries held at the Hotel Commodore, New York. The company maintained a very attractive exhibit at this convention, and, in addition to securing valuable publicity for the motor, closed a number of important deals to be announced very shortly. The exhibit was visited by hundreds of interested talking machine manufacturers and dealers, who were keenly interested in the mechanical features of the motor, and many of whom placed orders for immediate delivery. Plans are now under way for the enlargement of the factory in order to meet the trade demands and take care of orders on hand.

DEATH OF B. W. GRATIGNY

President of Oklahoma Talking Machine Co. Dies at His Home—Was Well Known and Highly Esteemed in Western Business Circles

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., June 5.—B. W. Gratigny, who a short while ago became president of the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co., died at his home here a few days ago. Mr. Gratigny was well known in business circles in this section of the country and his death is keenly regretted. E. L. Gratigny, his brother, joined the Oklahoma Talking Machine Co. recently as vice-president, and it is understood that Mr. Gratigny's death will not interfere with the company's plans. Percy A. Ware, well known in the talking machine trade, is sales manager of the company.

Business-Building Ideas Worth Trying

WHEN vacation time approaches you can sell a lot of portable models if you go after this business. To suggest the vacation idea in your window, put a large trunk a little to the left of center—not a new one, but showing marks of travel. You doubtless have just the right trunk at home in your attic. The lid should be turned back and the interior packed with clothing. The top layer should be clothing, but the bottom may be stuffed with newspapers. Bathing suits, tennis shoes and other Summer apparel are visible. Pairs of man's shoes, woman's shoes and little sandals of child's size will give the suggestion of a family. In the far corner of the trunk a clear space has been left as if for a portable talking machine. On a small chair beside the trunk stands the machine, waiting to be packed. Resting across the corner of the trunk is a full record album, and on the floor another. Above the talking machine is a sign reading:

This Model (name here).....
Fits Into Your Trunk
(and certainly fits into vacation pleasure)

Toward the right is a portable machine of the type with special shipping case. The sign beside this reads: "This Model..... Has a Trunk of Its Own!" On the handle of this little trunk is a large tag reading "To M. Y. Self, Joytown-by-the-Sea, U. S. A." On the floor near the window drop a timetable or two, also a Summer resort booklet. The cost of this display is practically nothing. If you wish to make it more elaborate, your sign expert can make a large background painted with vacation scenes showing the portable machine in use for dancing on the beach, canoeing, camping, etc.

* * *

IF you gave a present and the recipient took it in silence, without a word of thanks, would you be likely to ever give the same person another gift? The two words "Thank You," in acknowledgment of favors, are so familiar in personal friendships that we ought to see their enormous importance in business relationships. Customers who buy from you instead of from your competitors are doing you a favor. Thank them for it. Nothing so pleases and flatters them as the thought that you value their business and are grateful for it. The proposition of a little printed card, bearing the words "Thank You," to be wrapped in all packages, mailed with all receipted bills, etc., has already been tried and found immensely successful. It holds business and builds good will. Have your printer make up for you a neat "THANK YOU" card, with your store name and address at the bottom in caslon type. He can print you several thousand at a trifling cost. Slip a card into every package of records; enclose one with every receipted bill or copy of instalment contract. It's one of the little things that make a big difference.

* * *

EVERYONE is interested in knowing which books are the best sellers. No reason why people aren't interested in which records sell best. In the center of the window on a white card, 10x14 inches, printed in pale green letters, have the message, "These were the best selling records last week." Have two groups of records in the window. At the left, the popular; at the right, the classical.

Card at left headed,	And at right,
3 best sellers	3 best sellers
Popular	Classical
.....	.....
.....	.....
.....	.....

Change this bulletin from week to week and to everyone who calls for a "Best Seller" try to sell other records also.

* * *

MAKE it a habit to get several copies of the programs of concerts, recitals and musical comedies. Cut out the page listing the musical numbers and paste it on a piece of dark paper, such as is used in photograph albums. Put a star (*) in red ink after each song which you have in your record stock. Under the program paste a white strip of paper, on which you have typewritten or lettered: "We have these songs (*) which John McCormack sang last night at the Armory," or "Come in and hear these records from 'The Follies,' now playing at Blank's Theatre." Post one of these on your window and keep others on your counters or in your booths. If you make a practice of this managers and musicians will gladly mail their programs regularly and people will get the habit of looking for the latest "music news" in your windows. Your record sales will show the results.

MAKE a careful note of every talking machine you sell which is given as a wedding present. Find out when the wedding is to be and try to learn when the newlyweds will return from their honeymoon. At this time—about a month or six weeks after the wedding—see to it that a letter is sent informing Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed that their talking machine was purchased at your store and that you have in new records which they will wish to add to their record library. Selling the instrument is only part of your work. Get the business of the Newlyweds as well as that of their relatives who sent them the talking machine.

* * *

JUNE is the month of roses and nothing is more inviting than a window full of these beautiful flowers. If you can, secure as a background for your window a latticework of wooden laths spaced about a foot apart. Paint this green and twine roses and green leaves in and out on the lattice framework in a decorative fashion. If this cannot be done, place a talking machine in the center of the window toward the back. Flank it on each side with a tall cut-glass or silver vase about twenty-four inches high and fill these vases with varicolored roses. In the front of the window have a card about 24x36 inches on the gilt background on which is painted in rose pink letters "June—The Month of Roses." Then have heaps of records spread across the floor, each heap having in front of it a card 6x9 inches giving in clear, easily read letters the names of the selections, which can be "Rosy Posy," "Rose of Stamboul," "Georgia Rose," etc.

* * *

HERE'S a striking way to feature your best record hit of the month. Down in the cellar pick out a half dozen small lumps and little chips of coal. Wash off the dust. Get a 25-cent bottle of gilt paint from an art store and gild each bit of coal to look like a nugget. Now make a sign, using any record title you wish, which reads:

Worth its weight in gold!
"CUTIE"

If possible, borrow from a hardware dealer a pair of balances. In one pan put your record with a little price tag. In the other pan put enough "gold nuggets" to balance. Set this display near the front of your window with a sign above it. If you can't get a pair of balances set the record on a puff of white crepe paper or silk with a border of contrasting color. Beside it, on another puff of the same size and shape, set the gold nuggets, and the effect of balance is almost as good.

* * *

A "WEDDING WINDOW" can be arranged as follows: Kewpie dolls dressed as bride, groom and bridesmaids. A card reading, "Wedding Gifts that Delight Them." In the center of the window one of your finest upright models with a broad white satin bow around the middle of the instrument. A package of records done up in white paper with a big white ribbon bow around it. A card in front of this reading, "The Way We Send the Records You Choose for Wedding Gifts."

* * *

MANY factories are willing to use pay envelopes which you furnish free with your ad on the back. These envelopes can be printed monthly and you can use them to announce the latest records. This is a new plan which has unusual advantages, because this advertising is not immediately thrown away, nor is it overlooked.

* * *

NOTE all the good charge accounts on your books that have been closed up. Mail to each one a bill on which you have written, "You don't owe us a dollar. We wish you did!" Enclose with it your new record bulletin or some of your circulars.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Mr. Gordon will publish on this page any good ideas submitted by you for the benefit of the trade, and will also answer any questions you ask him concerning merchandising problems. Use this department as much as you like. It is intended to serve you—to be a forum for the discussion and exchange of ideas of interest.

REPEATER SUIT IS SETTLED

Validity of Geer Patent Recognized—Gold Seal Co. Will Make Repeaters Under Geer Patent—New Distribution and Sales Plans Announced by the Walbert Mfg. Co.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 12.—W. H. Huth, head of the Walbert Mfg. Co., of this city, manufacturer of the well-known Geer repeater, announced to-day that the litigation between his company and the Gold Seal Co., New York, N. Y., had been settled. The Gold Seal Co. will hereafter make Gold Seal repeaters under the terms of the Geer patents, which are owned and controlled by the Walbert Mfg. Co.

The validity of the Geer patent has been sustained by a decree entered in the U. S. District Court, Southern District of New York. Judge Knox making the decision. As a result of this decree the Gold Seal Co. has admitted and satisfied judgment, and in return has been licensed to make and sell Gold Seal repeaters under the Geer patents, which are basic. These patents also cover all foreign fields.

According to the sales plan as announced by

Mr. Huth, the Walbert Mfg. Co. will make and market the Geer repeater as heretofore, and will also act as exclusive sales representative for the Gold Seal repeater in the territory west of the Alleghenies, including Canada, west of Toronto. The Gold Seal Co. will make and market Gold Seal repeaters and will act as sales representative for the Walbert Mfg. Co. in Eastern territory, including eastern Canada. This sales plan will provide for maximum service to the trade, and enable both companies to make prompt shipments of the Geer repeater, which retails at $2.50, and the Gold Seal repeater, retailing at $1.00. Both of these repeaters have attained phenomenal success, and the settlement of the litigation will be welcome news to the trade.

There is a possibility that the Gold Seal Co. will be absorbed in its entirety by the Walbert Mfg. Co., and activities in this direction together with other important plans may be announced in the near future.

The Walbert Mfg. Co. and E. S. Geer were represented in this legal action by Duell, Warfield & Duell, New York, N. Y., and the Gold Seal Co. was represented by Cooper Kerr & Dunham, New York, N. Y.

NEW RECORD PLAYER INTRODUCED

U-Pla-M Record Player Has Many Unique Features—Trade Interested in New Novelty

A new device called the U-Pla-M record player has just been placed on the market by the U-Pla-M Record Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., and is now being introduced to the trade generally. This device, which is the invention of Paul Hoag, Brooklyn, N. Y., enables the owner of the talking machine to play a desired melody by using a sliding bar and a master record specially recorded for this device.

A musical scale consisting of two octaves is recorded on the master record, and by using the sliding bar, which crosses the face of the record, the ordinary reproducer of the talking machine may be utilized to reproduce any desired tone or series of tones, and thereby play the selection desired. The various notes of the scale are marked across the sliding bar and may easily be located on the master record. This unique device has been shown by Mr. Hoag to the local trade, and many dealers have evinced keen interest in this novelty.

STERLING CO. BUYS GOETZ & CO.

George U. Tompers, vice-president of the Sterling Piano Co., 518 Fulton street, Brooklyn, N. Y., has purchased the business of Goetz & Co., Inc., located at the corner of Livingston and Court streets. Plans are under consideration by Mr. Tompers to consolidate the two institutions by moving the Sterling plant to the present location of Goetz & Co. In addition to pianos the Sterling Co. handles the Victor line of machines and records.

ALTERATIONS AT PISER & CO.

Piser & Co., 2887 Third avenue, New York City, are remodeling their Victor talking machine department. When the work is completed the department will be considerably larger than heretofore. There will be thirteen sound-proof record demonstration booths and a large space for the display of Victrolas. The department is under the management of C. Buckner, who is assisted by Ernest Janelli. Mr. Selig, president of the company, is in Europe on a brief vacation at present.

ATTRACTIVE WINDOW DISPLAY

Reynalds Music House Features "Consecration Scene" From "Aida"—Subject Well Handled

MOBILE, ALA., June 6.—During the recent convention of the Southern Victor Dealers' Association held in this city one of the centers of attraction was the unusual window display presented at the Reynalds Music House, Victor dealer. The accompanying illustration will give some idea of the distinctive appearance of this Reynalds' Artistically Arranged Window window, but the display as a whole can hardly be appreciated in black and white.

This display, which featured the "Consecration Scene" from "Aida," was worked out in every detail from the photograph showing this scene in the Victrola Book of the Opera. Three months were consumed in preparing the display, which was made in its entirety by Robert Fee, of the Reynalds Music House. All of the work on the columns was done by hand and even the idol in the background stage was cast by Mr. Fee. Visitors to the convention were amazed at the infinite care represented in this display, and Mr. Fee was congratulated by the Victor dealers and jobbers upon the presentation of an exceptionally attractive window.

J. M. Jordan, who has been assistant manager of the Wurlitzer store, New York City, is leaving this organization for a three months' vacation which he expects to spend at his home in Baltimore and is also planning to spend some time in the West. Mr. Jordan has been connected with the Wurlitzer organization for the past year and is well known in the talking machine trade in metropolitan New York. His plans for the future are not yet ready to be announced, but he will be located in New York on his return, in the talking machine trade in some capacity.

JOHN BROWN'S IMPORTANT POST

Well-known Musical Authority Appointed Assistant Director of Columbia Recording Studios—Prominent in Every Phase of Music

The Columbia Graphophone Co. announced this week the appointment of John Brown to the important position of assistant director of the recording studios. This appointment is a matter of keen gratification to all who realize the aid which is being brought to the artistic end of the talking machine industry by those experienced in musical fields.

Mr. Brown has been identified with the musical world since 1909, when he became treasurer and assistant secretary of the Metropolitan Opera Co., New York, later being appointed business comptroller of the Metropolitan, a position created for him by Otto H. Kahn, chairman of the board. For over seven years Mr. Brown carried out the important duties of this office, serving as chief aid to General Manager Giulio Gatti-Casazza and installing systems in the Metropolitan which still exist. During all this time Mr. Brown also served as assistant secretary of the New Theatre (now the Century). During the season of 1914-1915 the Diaghileff Russian Ballet toured the United States under Mr. Brown's management, attaining phenomenal success. In 1916 Mr. Brown resigned from the Metropolitan Opera Co. and for three years thereafter was Eastern manager of the Chicago Opera Association. Under his direction the Chicago Opera Co.'s seasons in New York developed to the imposing figures which now form the bulwark of each season's New York business.

Early in 1920 Mr. Brown joined the forces of the Columbia Graphophone Co., where he first undertook the direction of its concert department, which was then being conducted under another name, and reorganized it as the National Concerts, Inc. In the Fall of 1921 Mr. Brown was placed in charge of the Columbia Co.'s opera and concert department, later being appointed manager of the artist department. As assistant director of the recording studios of the Columbia Co. Mr. Brown will have unlimited opportunities to exercise his valuable knowledge of every phase of the musical field.

BARBARA MAUREL SAILS FOR EUROPE

Miss Barbara Maurel, well-known concert artist, who records exclusively for the Columbia library, sailed Saturday, June 3, for London, where she will appear at Wigmore Hall on June 30. Miss Maurel will also appear at several other important concerts abroad; this tour having been arranged by the Wolfsohn Musical Bureau.

NEW RECORD MAKES ITS DEBUT

Produced by New Organization With H. T. Leeming as Sales Manager

A new record has been placed on the market named the Perfect Record. The new organization, known as the Perfect Record Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., is under the direction of H. T. Leeming as sales manager. The new record is to retail for 50 cents. Much preliminary work was spent on the record before its initial offering and it is predicted that it will be one of the most popular in the 50-cent record field. While popular hits of the day will constitute an important part of the output of the company, it is also planned to offer a wide variety of operatic selections by artists of note at the same price.

It is stated the merchandising policy of this organization calls for only one big distributor in a city or town. In a number of cities the largest department store has taken on the Perfect line. H. T. Leeming is well known throughout, and has had much experience in the popular-price record field and is exceptionally well qualified to direct the destinies of the new company.

James G. Landay, of Landay Bros., Inc., who had been ill has been enjoying a short vacation in the Carolinas.

MUSIC TRADE ASSOCIATIONS HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTIONS IN NEW YORK

There were held at the Hotel Commodore, New York, during the week of June 5, the annual conventions of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and a number of trade associations affiliated with that central body, including the National Association of Music Merchants. With several of the trade bodies in convention the various factors in the talking machine trade have direct or indirect connections, the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers being members of the Chamber of Commerce and a number of individual talking machine wholesalers and dealers being affiliated with the Music Merchants' Association.

The Music Industries Chamber of Commerce

In the Chamber of Commerce convention various reports were made regarding the activities of that organization during the year, particular stress being laid upon the successful efforts to have the excise tax removed from pianos, talking machines, etc., and upon the accomplishments of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, the new Trade Service Bureau for the assistance of dealers and other subsidiary bureaus.

The Finance Committee of the Chamber offered a budget covering the proposed activities of the Chamber for the coming year, the amount set forth being $103,400, as compared with $129,400 for the year just passed. The budget provides for the raising of specified sums by various divisions of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, $20,000 being allotted to the talking machine trade, including the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, which last year subscribed $5,000 to the work of the Chamber. The new budget increases the appropriation for the advancement of music work and the Trade Service Bureau, and provides for the raising of $10,000 to meet exigencies.

The business session of the Chamber was held on Monday, June 5, and the delegates and directors elected by the various associations during the week met on Friday and elected officers with Richard W. Lawrence, of New York, as president of the organization.

National Association of Music Merchants

The annual convention of the National Association of Music Merchants was held on June 6 and 7, and the addresses made and papers read included an interesting paper on "The New Place of the Player-piano and the Phonograph in Musical Education," by Marshall Bartholomew, director of undergraduate music at Yale University; an address on "Music Weeks as a Business Asset," by Robert Lawrence, well-known community song leader; "Planning the Retail Advertising," by Robert E. Ramsay, of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World; "For a Better Understanding of Better Advertising," by J. A. Hall, of the same organization, and others.

Interesting Meeting Devoted to Radio

A number of talking machine wholesalers and retailers attended the meeting of the Association on Wednesday afternoon, when radio came up for much attention. One of the principal speakers was Major-General George O. Squier, Chief of the United States Signal Corps, who talked on "The Future of the Radiophone." Another speaker of prominence was David Sarnoff, general manager of the Radio Corp. of America, who gave an excellent and practical address upon radio, what it had accomplished and its possibilities from a commercial standpoint.

Mr. Sarnoff declared that although he was an electrical man, rather than a musical man, he could nevertheless see a very plausible connection between the radio and the music industry, not only in the matter of broadcasting, but from the fact that from its very inception radio had to borrow from music in order to live at all. He went on to state that although the radio for home use is a musical device, yet in its present shape the radio does not approach or equal all the nicety of a musical device, but must be made so by the electric manufacturer and engineer if radio broadcasting is to survive and be a real industry. He declared that the ultimate development of the radiophone would most closely approach the phonograph and that the various interests were now moving in the direction of a combination instrument which will include both the merits of the radiophone and the phonograph.

One of the most interesting statements of Mr. Sarnoff was the expression of his belief that the reproduction of the voice through the medium of the talking machine had about reached its limit and that any further improvement in the matter of voice or musical reproduction would come about through the development by electrical methods. The success met with in transmitting the human voice in practically all its purity over five or ten thousand miles of wire was pointing the way to further developments along that line.

Mr. Sarnoff also took occasion to make some pertinent comments regarding the patent situation in the trade and what was being planned for the clearing up of that situation.

Benjamin H. Jefferson, of Lyon & Healy, Victor wholesalers and general music merchants of Chicago, and who for some time past have been conducting a radio department in their store, read an excellent paper on "The Merchandising Possibilities of the Radiophone," and the Trade Service Bureau of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce offered a carefully prepared report on "The Radio Industry," handling the question from the angle of the retailer.

Important Resolution Adopted

One of the important resolutions passed by the Merchants' Association was that protesting against "certain indiscriminate sales methods in vogue in certain sections of the trade." The resolution protested against the distribution of talking machines through department stores, automobile concerns and other outside agencies; against price-cutting methods and unfair advertising. It urged that the manufacturers endeavor to confine their distribution to exclusive talking machine and music merchants and that manufacturers consider allowing a more liberal discount to retailers.

J. Edwin Butler, of Marion, Ind., was elected president of the National Association of Music Merchants; W. C. Hamilton, Pittsburgh, Pa., first vice-president; Robert N. Watkin, Dallas, Texas, second vice-president; Carl A. Droop, Washington, treasurer, and M. J. Kennedy, Chicago, secretary.

National Piano Manufacturers' Association

The National Piano Manufacturers' Association also held its annual convention on June 6 and 7. The chief discussion was concerning the proposed plan for a co-operative advertising campaign in the interests of the player-piano being carried on by that branch of the trade. The meeting was addressed by Charles C. Parlin, manager, Commercial Research Division, Curtis Publishing Co., who talked on "The Possibilities of Co-operative Advertising in the Piano Business," and after he had made the piano men feel good by declaring that musical instrument advertising was next in volume to that of passenger automobiles, threw a damper on the meeting by explaining that over 70 per cent of the total advertising of musical instruments was confined to talking machines and records.

C. C. Chickering, of Chickering Bros., Chicago, was elected president of the National Piano

Manufacturers' Association by unanimous vote. Other associations that held their conventions at the Commodore during the week were: the National Musical Merchandise Association; Organ Builders' Association of America; Musical Supply Association of America, made up of piano supply houses; the Band Instrument Manufacturers' Association, and the National Piano Travelers' Association.

Talking Machine Interests Represented

One of the entertainment features of the week was the complimentary concert given at Carnegie Hall on Monday night by the Victor Talking Machine Co. as a tribute to the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, a detailed story of which appears elsewhere. At the annual banquet of the Merchants' Association on Wednesday evening, Paul Whiteman and his famous orchestra from the Palais Royal appeared and played a number of popular selections. It is estimated that over 1,000 members of the music trade were present at the various convention sessions, among the representatives of the talking machine trade being Arthur A. Trostler, secretary of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers; L. C. Wiswell, J. Newcomb Blackman, past-presidents of that organization; Thomas F. Greene and Lloyd L. Spencer, of the Silas E. Pearsall Co.; C. N. Andrews, Buffalo; W. D. Andrews, Syracuse; H. A. Weymann, Philadelphia; W. C. Dierks, of C. C. Mellor Co., Pittsburgh; Max Landay, Landay Bros., New York; Robert Steinert, M. Steinert & Sons Co., Boston, and a number of others.

ing the week, and the dealers were well pleased with the new cabinet designs.

In Room 1951, the Eagle Radio Co., Newark, N. J., displayed radio receiving sets and parts. H. F. Thornell, well known in the talking machine industry, was in charge of the exhibit.

The new Fischer phonographs, manufactured by J. & C. Fischer, Inc., New York, were displayed in Room 803. The various upright and console models attracted considerable attention, and Chas. Schultz, who was in charge of the exhibit, entertained many of his dealer friends who called at the exhibit.

In Room 1005 the General Phonograph Corp. showed some of the latest forms of window display and dealer service helps that are being offered to the trade by the Okeh advertising department. Informal concerts featuring Okeh records were given at frequent intervals, and M. D. Giles, of the traveling sales staff, entertained the visitors. Among those who dropped in during the course of the convention were Otto Heineman, president of the company; W. C. Fuhri, general sales manager of the Okeh record division, and others.

Otto Goldsmith, president of the Cabinet & Accessories Co., New York, distributor of talking machine accessories, was in charge of the company's exhibit in Room 867. A wide line of accessories was displayed together with portable machines, radio sets and parts and other prod-

Interesting Exhibits For Talking Machine Trade

A convention feature was the diversity of the talking machine exhibits which were shown on various floors at the hotel. As indicative of the excellent outlook for business this Fall in the talking machine industry, it is interesting to note that practically all of these exhibits attracted wide attention, and jobbers and dealers from all parts of the country were keenly interested in the different products on display.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Chicago, showed several of its popular console and upright models in Room 1829. Open house was in order during the entire convention, and among those who welcomed the trade were A. J. Kendrick, sales manager of the Brunswick phonograph division, Chicago, Ill.; E. A. Strauss, manager of the New York branch, and Chester Abelowitz, metropolitan sales representative.

Buegeleisen & Jacobson, New York, wholesalers and importers of musical merchandise, exhibited an extensive line of Durro violins, bows and strings, S. S. Stewart banjos, ukuleles and a general line of musical merchandise in Room 603. In charge of the exhibit was Chas. T. Kaffenberger, assisted by Felix Baer and Harry Dorfmann.

The Carola Phonograph Co., Cleveland, Ohio, displayed the new Carola phonograph in Room 556. This instrument, which is one of the smallest phonographs on the market, attracted general attention, and N. I. Schwartz, in charge of the exhibit, welcomed the visitors.

Geo. Clay Cox, Rochester, N. Y., manufacturer of the Clayola electric motor, Clayola phonographs and other products in the talking machine field, introduced several new products in Room 1673. One of the features of this exhibit was the Pianophone, which consists of a new device that is installed in the piano in order to permit accompanists to attain perfect results through intensive training. The Pianophone, which consists of a regular turntable, tone arm and sound box, plays the record while the pianist uses the sheet music for accompanying purposes.

Another novelty in Mr. Cox's exhibit was a combination writing desk, radio and phonograph which embodied many distinctive features that were carefully inspected by visitors to the exhibit. Mr. Cox also introduced several combination radio phonographs, and concerts were given throughout the convention.

The Dual-Tone Phonograph Mfg. Co., Manor, Pa., displayed several of its latest models in Room 630. Chas. W. Bowers, well known in the piano trade, entertained many of his friends dur-acts incidental to the talking machine domain. In Room 941, the Fred Gretsch Mfg. Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., exhibited an attractive display of Vio'aphone needles, together with a varied line of musical merchandise, which included Gretsch American saxophones, Twentieth Century drums and band instruments, Rex Spring instruments and others. The Gretsch souvenir, "Shuffle 'Em," which was distributed during the convention, was a decided hit. Fred and Walter Gretsch attended the exhibit together with E. E. Strong and Wm. Brenner.

Landay Bros., New York, popular talking machine jobbers, who were recently appointed distributors for the radio product manufactured by the Radio Corp. of America, carried an extensive exhibit of wireless apparatus in Room 936. Radio concerts were given throughout the week, and the products displayed attracted marked attention.

A new four-spring motor was displayed by the Lorimer Mfg. Co., Troy, Ohio, in Room 662. E. S. Kaiser, from the Troy offices, was in charge of the exhibit, assisted by W. O. Bacon, Eastern representative of the company.

The Lyradion Engineering Sales Co. (Dodge Mfg. Co., Mishawaka, Ind.) displayed the new Lyradion in Room 2103. This combination radio and phonograph was one of the features of the convention, and radio concerts from all of the broadcasting stations in the East were thoroughly enjoyed by the visitors to this exhibit. Five Lyradion models were displayed, all of which were equipped with the Seabrook horn, including several popular Lyradion consoles. Kenyon W. Mix, director of sales for the Lyradion Sales & Engineering Co., was in charge of the exhibit, assisted by Burton E. Colver and H. L. Coombs.

The M. Schulz Co., Chicago, manufacturers of the Magnola talking machine, carried an attractive exhibit in Room 1254. Many out-of-town dealers called at the Schulz headquarters during the week and were given a cordial reception by Messrs. Bassett, Hewitt and Gustaefson.

Louis A. Schwarz, New York, factory representative for many well-known talking machine accessory houses, showed a fine line of his products in Room 938. Radio sets and parts were also displayed and Mr. Schwarz welcomed many of his out-of-town friends during the convention proceedings.

The Simplex Electric Phonograph Motor Co., Montreal, Can., manufacturer of the Simplex electric motor, maintained a very attractive exhibit in Suite 726. This new electric motor, which is proving a signal success, was demonstrated to hundreds of visitors during Convention week.

and a handsome glass display case served to attract the mechanical features of the motor. The exhibit was in charge of Doris, Albert and Harry Farmer, of Montreal.

One of the most attractive exhibits at the hotel was that of the Starr Piano Co., Richmond, Ind., which occupied Suite 600. A representative line of Starr phonographs was on display, together with a good-sized library of Gennett records. Impromptu concerts were given throughout the week and keen interest was manifested in the exhibit. Among those in attendance at the Starr display were M. R. Martin, A. E. Nolder, A. M. Sweetland and A. L. Jewett, from Richmond headquarters, and A. W. Holdgate, manager of the New York branch.

Strand phonographs were attractively displayed in Room 1841, where the new model which accommodates the Victrola IX was the center of attraction. R. H. Arnault, New York factory representative, was in charge of the exhibit, assisted by Walter Brunner, and many out-of-town visitors favored this exhibit with a call during the week.

The hotel lobbies were crowded with talking machine men during the week, and among those who were noticed traveling around the hotel were the following: L. C. Wiswell, Lyon & Healy, Chicago, Ill.; Arthur A. Trostler, Schmelzer Co., Kansas City, Mo.; W. H. Huth, Walbert Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.; W. J. McNamara, Empire Phono Parts Co., Cleveland, Ohio; John McKenna, Columbia Graphophone Co., Chicago, Ill.; E. A. Fearn, Consolidated Talking Machine Co., Chicago, Ill., and many others.

VICTOR CONCERT GREAT SUCCESS

Complimentary Concert to Music Industries Chamber of Commerce Enthusiastically Received—World Famous Victor Artists on Program—Capacity Audience at Carnegie

One of the most important and successful events held during the Jubilee Convention of Music Industries was the complimentary concert given at Carnegie Hall, Monday evening, June 5, by the Victor Talking Machine Co. to the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce. This concert, which was attended by a capacity audience, was given through the courtesy of the following famous Victor artists: Mme. Louise Homer, Mme. Olga Samaroff, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Reinald Werrenrath, Josef A. Pasternack, Rosario Bourdon and the Victor Symphony Orchestra.

At 8.30 when the first number on the program was ready for presentation there wasn't an empty seat in Carnegie Hall, and in fact tickets for this concert had been at a premium for three days prior to the event. The music industries recognized the fact that it was most unusual for such a group of world-famous artists to be assembled on one program and the compliment tendered the music industries by the Victor Talking Machine Co. was keenly appreciated by every manufacturer, jobber and dealer present.

The opening number on the program was the overture, "Leonore No. 3" (Beethoven), played by the Victor Symphony Orchestra of ninety pieces under the leadership of Josef A. Pasternack, musical director of the Victor Talking Machine Co. and one of the country's foremost musicians. This number was followed by the introduction of Reinald Werrenrath, famous baritone and exclusive Victor artist, who sang the following selections: "Vision Fugitive" (Fleeting Vision), from "Herodiade" (Massenet), and "Danny Deever" (Kipling-Damrosch). Mr. Werrenrath was obliged to render several encores in response to the demands of the audience.

Under the direction of Rosario Bourdon, the Victor Symphony Orchestra played the "Danse Macabre" (Saint Saens) and after this number Mme. Schumann-Heink, the celebrated contralto and exclusive Victor artist was introduced. Mme. Schumann-Heink, whose fame is international, sang the following selections: "But the Lord Is Mindful of His Own" (Mendelssohn) and "Leggiero Invisible" (Arditi) and after receiving a tremendous ovation favored the audience with a number of encores.

The next artist on the program was Mme. Olga Samaroff, famous pianist and exclusive Victor artist, who played "Liebestraum" (Liszt) and "Ride of the Valkyries" (Wagner-Hutcheson). Mme. Samaroff's masterly interpretation of these numbers was received with enthusiastic applause and she responded with two well-chosen encores. The Victor Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Pasternack's direction, played "Capriccio Italien" (Tschaikowsky). Following this selection, Mme. Louise Homer, the famous contralto and exclusive Victor artist, was introduced and sang the "Largo" from "Xerxes" (Handel) and "Mon Cœur S'Ouvre a Ta Voix" from "Samson et Delila" (Saint-Saens). She was accorded an ovation of several minutes' duration and sang several encores to satisfy the audience. Mme. Homer was the great favorite of the concert.

The closing number on the program was "Die Meistersinger" Prelude (Wagner), played by the Victor Symphony Orchestra and directed by Mr. Pasternack, and at the close of the concert there was enthusiastic applause for the masterly work of the orchestra which, under the able direction of Mr. Pasternack and Mr. Bourdon, had contributed so materially to the success of the program.

W. LIONEL STURDY, MANAGER

The Business Situation Remains Unsettled but the Outlook Is Steadily Bettering—Members of the Industry Have Been Following the Activities of the British Federation of Music Industries With Interest—A Gramophone Invention Has Attracted Considerable Attention—New Method of Recording and Reproducing—Death of Major S. W. Dixon—Details Regarding the Flamephone—The News of the Month in Detail

LONDON, ENGLAND, June 2.—Business continues somewhat unsettled in the gramophone field, but there is unquestionably a sound undercurrent of optimism and confidence among manufacturers and dealers which should lead to improved business the coming Autumn. The educational possibilities of the gramophone are being more widely recognized among the masses of the people, and it is safe to say that this instrument is now on a sounder basis than ever in its history. It's no longer a toy, but a musical factor of prime importance, which is doing its share in bringing into the homes of the people the best in music, as well as the most popular numbers of the day. If the merchants of the country will only do their share in stimulating business by progressive programs that will interest the public much will have been achieved. It is a time for all of us to work together for the common good of the industry, and this means real work.

The Blackpool Convention

During the last few weeks the activities of the Federation of British Music Industries have been directed to organizing and preparing arrangements for the Twelfth British Music Industries Convention at Blackpool, of which I hope to forward a report for publication in the next issue of this journal. The attendance will reach quite 250; no less than 238 members having booked at the date of writing. Everything, therefore, points to the Convention being the largest and most successful on record. On the gramophone side subjects for discussion will be "The Disposal of Unsalable Records," "The Limitation of Record Catalogs," and "The Hire Purchase System as Applied to Gramophone Sales."

Probably the subject that will create most interest refers to the disposal of unsalable records. This has already been under discussion between manufacturers of the Gramophone Dealers' Association. The claims put forward on behalf of dealers for the establishment of some better system than a three to one exchange, which places retailers in a much worse position than before, has received sympathetic consideration by record manufacturers, who are coming to realize that in the long run it is to their own interest to meet the problem. The introduction of an equitable scheme for exchange of surplus or unsalable stock will tend to the creation of more elasticity in the conduct of retail businesses. With the present restriction on trade, dealers find their profits on the shelves in the shape of bad stock rather than in the bank. They are out to capitalize this stock in the interests of free trade and business development. It is only fair that they should be assisted in this matter.

A Revolutionary Gramophone Invention

Few readers, I imagine, have ever thought it possible to impress eleven or twelve songs or instrumental works on a double-sided record of only twelve inches diameter. But it has just been accomplished by a radically new system, the result of some two years' experiment and close study of the problem. The invention is to the credit of Pemberton Billing, one time member of the British Parliament. And what's more, P. B., as he is popularly known, has made his record available to the millions of owners of any kind or class of gramophone by the use of a simple device for controlling the speed of the ordinary spring mechanism of present-day instruments.

This invention enables P. B.'s record to run for fifteen minutes or more, each side. It so regulates the speed of the record as to permit eighteen inches of record surface, or lineal path, to pass the needle at a constant speed from the outer edge to the center of the record. By this economy of speed it is possible to register on one side of a twelve-inch disc from three to five times as much speed or music as on an ordinary record of the same diameter.

"When an ordinary record is playing the outer edge is traveling faster than the inner," said Mr. Pemberton Billing in the course of an interview. "To produce music properly the record surface should pass the needle at a speed of one foot six inches per second. In order that this speed shall be possible at the end of the record where the circles are smaller, the beginning of an ordinary record races round much faster than is necessary—at about five feet per second. My control device insures a uniform time-speed throughout. The outer track of the record rotates slowly, the revolutions of the record gradually increasing as the needle travels inwards towards the center. This inconstant speed is achieved by the controller wheel traveling on the record surface, and by a traversing gear operated by a small friction wheel (rubber) in contact with the edge of the turn-table, which carries the controller over the surface of the record in exact relation to the position of the needle."

Continuing, my informant states, "Thus, the bother of changing record and needle after three or four minutes' playing has at last been eliminated, with the result that a twelve-inch record may contain as many as a dozen songs and play over a period of a half hour with only one interruption to change over. By the economizing of speed the energy of the motor is released pro rata, one winding being sufficient for playing through these records."

Questioned regarding the wear on the needle, Mr. Billing avers that the length of track on his records is no more than on an ordinary standard record of the same size. The slow, rotating speed of records under his system offers less resistance and consequently less friction on the needle. The result is to reduce scratch and wear. In fact, P. B. assures me that a needle used on one of his thirty-minute records shows less wear than one used on an ordinary three-minute record.

By this new method of recording and reproduction there is said to be no limit to the size of a record. With discs of, say, twenty-two-inch diameter it will be possible to record a complete opera or musical comedy. A full dance program could be recorded on a twelve-inch record; in fact, the possibilities in this direction are unlimited.

It is surprising to learn that the price of the new records carrying up to a dozen selections will cost no more than the present type holding two! Should a person require to play only one particular item it is not necessary to play through the whole record to get at it. If, for example, selection 4 on the record is required it can be located immediately by the use of a selector scale which is supplied with each outfit.

Space precludes more extended reference this month but I should just like to add that as far as I am able to judge at present Mr. Billing's invention offers big possibilities of gramphonic development. The quality of the records is decidedly good and of a fidelity equal, if not superior, to some of the best standard records. It is a wonderful invention—in my opinion, the most revolutionary since the inception of the science of sound recording. Nevertheless, one can anticipate difficulties with regard to the selling price, in view of high recording fees and copyright royalties, and in regard to such a lengthy recording process. It remains to prove itself a commercial proposition.

An Amusing Explanation of "H. M. V."

To be "hung" is sometimes a distinction. Many portraits have been "hung" at the Royal Academy this year and among them we observe a speaking likeness of the director of "His Master's Voice," Alfred Clark, Esq. This distinction has been the subject of considerable comment because of the initials "H. M. V." appended to Mr. Clark's name in the Academy catalog. Most people are familiar with "His Master's Voice," but the abbreviation to "H. M. V." seems to have mystified people. Some new order conferred upon Mr. Clark, many thought. But the most amusing explanation, says the Music Trades Review, was given by an artistic-looking damsel who assured her companion that Mr. Clark was "His Majesty's Vocalist." And after all who shall say that she was not right?

Cash Composition Offer for Reynolds Creditors

The committee of creditors acting with the liquidator in the matter of W. H. Reynolds (1915), Ltd., (in voluntary liquidation) have circularized the creditors regarding the original cash offer of 4/- in the pound. They report having succeeded in securing an increased offer of 5/-, and strongly recommend its acceptance. Most of the creditors having already agreed (at time of writing) to accept, a settlement on this basis will doubtless be completed forthwith. It's the best thing that could be done; a forced sale of assets would have produced little or nothing to-day. Messrs. Reynolds, I understand, will undergo reorganization for a continuance of the business.

Still a Market for Cylinder Records

Disc records bearing about twenty different makers' labels so completely outsell the cylinder that one might be lulled into believing that the latter is non-existent as a commercial proposition. But it is not so. Quite a good business is still handled by various houses dealing with the Edison cylinder, and in addition another make, the Clarion, issues new records from time to time. The latter concern has just introduced an exchange scheme on the three to one basis. Of cylinder machines, the Amberola is now the only one on the market.

A New Pathé Invention

What is described as an extraordinary invention, styled the Pathé "Difisor," whatever that may mean, has been announced to the trade by Messrs. Pathé Frères London house. It is a contrivance that renders unnecessary the use of a sound box, tone-arm, trumpet or sound chamber of any kind. To play a record, the only thing required with a "Difisor" is mechanism for running the turn-table in the usual way. Imagine an inverted electric lamp shade floating across a record and you have some idea of the appearance at any rate of this contrivance. It appears to be made of vellum, which is kept taut by means of aluminum rings and center pin. The top ring is hinged to a back rest and so floats lightly on the record. At the apex is fitted a sapphire holder, and, by the way, the "Difisor" is for playing only sapphire-cut records. It appears to be quite a good idea, insuring a better-toned and more detailed reproduction than is attained by the ordinary gramophone.

The "Little Pop," a 5½-inch double-side record, is a miniature edition of the well-known "Popular" 10-inch label made by the Sound Recording Co., this city. Quite a big demand is being experienced for this little disc and to meet all musical requirements its repertory has been considerably augmented, with a promise of additional issues each month. The present list comprises a program of over 100 titles of vocal, solo instrumental, band and orchestral selections in charming variety and of good quality.

Death of Major S. W. Dixon, O. B. E.

General regret has been felt here over the death of Sidney Wentworth Dixon, one of the pioneers of "His Master's Voice." Major Dixon joined the Gramophone Co. as far back as 1903, when, under the late Barry Owen, the founder and first managing director of the company, he quickly rose to the important position of manager of the British sales department, and within a few years was appointed joint managing director. No man had a more complete grasp of gramophone trade requirements than Major Dixon. His was an outstanding figure of strength and his inspiring example of hard work enthused and earned the co-operation and respect of all with whom he came in contact. The deceased took an active part in the Boer War and as Captain Dixon rejoined His Majesty's forces in 1914, rendering distinguished service with the R. A. S. C. throughout the great war. Though broken in health as the result of exposure, Major Dixon could not bring himself to retire from active participation in the business he loved so well, and may be said to have died in harness, suddenly and peacefully, while dressing to proceed to his office.

An Unique Instrument—The Flamephone

The Flamephone is a new gramophone that is attracting considerable attention here. It represents an attempt at a return to the conditions of atmosphere prevalent during the recording of sound. No equipment in the shape of a horn or sound amplifying chamber is carried by this instrument, excepting a short vertical elbow from the tone-arm mouth. To the front of this elbow is fitted a couple of perforated metal tubes or gas jets, the gas feed being connected up to the tone arm by a flexible tube. When lit up one can observe the pulsations of the gas flames as the sound waves of a record pass through. At the back a metal sounding board or reflector is fitted. The difference in reproduction of a ord with and without the flame is remarkable. The heat seems to have the effect of purifying the music and also eliminates much of the harshness noticeable in records.

At present the Flamephone is made as a portable model which easily holds the whole equipment of reflector, tone-arm, gas burners and tube arrangement. Other models are in course of preparation for marketing within the near future. In the build of the instrument great care has been exercised to provide a high-class finish and fittings. Of British manufacture, the motor mechanism is the well-known Garrard production.

To operate the Flamephone it is necessary to connect up the gas tube with an ordinary gas socket. The amount of gas used per hour would be about fifteen feet at an approximate cost of one penny.

A Good Zonophone List

Records to hand this month are generally of excellent standard of recording, and as always with the Zonophone repertory, by artists well known in their particular sphere of musical activity. The Black Diamond Band on twelve-inch record A260 provides a brilliant rendering of "La Sonnambula," selections 1 and 2. Another pleasing twelve-inch is the vocal "Ah, Now I Feel the Burden" and "Oh, Mermol!", by Geo. Parker. Ten-inch—on 2217, charming Miss Olive Fox entertains with two humorous items, "I Don't Think It Matters" and "Sam Mayo is wonderfully good in two funny songs on 2222—"Bread and Marmalade" and "The Trumpet Song." As may be imagined, the funninesses are punctuated by a plentiful use of the trumpet. "The Slippery Slide" and "The Coster's Courtship" (2212) should meet with a ready demand. The rendition of both is really good and well up to the "prize" standard of the St. Hilda Colliery Band. On 2219 we have "A Moonlight Night in Venice" and "Daffodils," two entrancing morceaux exquisitely rendered by an instrumental quartet—violin, cello, piano, and organ. It is a record of outstanding merit, one of the best of its class recorded by any company. Without exception, I think the foregoing issues should prove popular sellers in almost every class of locality.

The "His Master's Voice" News

Announcement is made by the Gramophone Company of the marketing of a new sound-box, No. 2, and that it will be fitted to certain models unless otherwise ordered. The company will not change the new box for exhibition models now forming part of machines dealers have in stock. But the No. 2 box may be purchased separately and the old model sold. This offer, if dealers have been informed, cannot remain open indefinitely.

The company is now in a position to handle orders for "extra loud" Tungstyle needles at a price of one per packet of four.

The extended credit conditions of easy payment inaugurated by this company has brought a larger number of dealers into the scheme, which should result in favor of increased trade.

R. Gordon Smyth Makes a Change

For over sixteen years the Scottish and Irish representatives of the Gramophone Co., Ltd., Gordon Smyth advises the severance of his connection with that company. He is now associated with the Symphola Co. as managing director. This is a Belfast firm of gramophone and musical instrument jobbers. The many friends of Mr. Smyth will wish him, as I do, every success in his new sphere.

TO RECORD VOICES OF NOTED MEN

A Special "Voice" Section Has Recently Been Established by the Prussian State Library

A despatch from Berlin says the news that eminent men of all nationalities are prepared to allow their voices to be registered in the recently established "voice" section of the Prussian State Library will be warmly welcomed by the educational authorities here.

Prof. William Doegger, the organizer and director of the "voice" archives which, it is claimed, form the only state institution of the kind in the world, outside of Paris, has filed away gramophone plates on which are registered the voices of Germany's greatest living men—Von Hindenburg, Ludendorff, Einstein, Hauptmann, among others—and is now anxious to give the "voice" museum a more international character.

Leading Berlin chemists state that, thanks to the special chemical preparation used in their manufacture, the plates should continue in good condition for at least 10,000 years. Military cadets or students of physics in the year 12000 will, therefore, it is confidently predicted, be able to hear respectively Hindenburg on military tactics and Einstein on relativity.

FAIR ONLY FOR BUYERS

Merchandise Show in August Not to Be Open to the Public

Conferences of a number of resident buyers with the managers of the National Merchandise Fair to be held at the Grand Central Palace from August 7 to 25 took place during the last week. The object of the meetings was to secure active co-operation among all those interested in the fair, which is expected to be attended by the largest number of buyers ever gathered under one roof. The resident buyers were urged to advise their accounts to send representatives.

It has now been decided not to open the fair to the public at all, but to make it strictly a buying and selling proposition for the trade only. The management of the fair has limited the space of exhibitors, believing that, in justice to from Middle street to 85 City Road, E. C., a fine building of four floors and basement, which, by the way, the firm occupied before the war. In addition to the representation of Carl Lindstrom, Beka record, and other Continental houses, Messrs. Ruhl plan to market a line of British pianos of various models. Their trading policy is wholesale only.

The Brunswick in London

I understand, by the way, that the Brunswick phonographs and records, which are so highly thought of in the States, are now being handled by Arthur Graham & Co., Crofton Park, London, S. E. The fame of these artistic products has already reached the phonograph fans here, and there is certain to be quite a lively interest manifested in these musical entertainers.

smaller manufacturers, no one exhibitor should monopolize attention. With few exceptions, it is stated, and these where the manufacturer cannot possibly display all his lines in the limited space, only one booth will be sold to an exhibitor. Lavish expenditures in decoration will not be encouraged, inasmuch as the spectacular appeal would be mainly for the public.

EXPANSION OF LOESER BUSINESS

The talking machine department of Frederick Loeser Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., has had a very successful May business, the sales for this month being better than any previous month from January 1, reflecting the amount of work being done by the sales staff in general to make this showing. Joseph Flanagan, manager of this department, reports that the demand of the console type machines has materially influenced this increase in sale, but upright models have found their favor also with the trade. Record business has been very satisfactory and the new releases have been featured in the local papers with the result that a lively demand existed. Plans are now being made to inaugurate one of the most intensive Summer campaigns yet inaugurated by this store, and it is expected that the portable type machine will meet with a ready demand.

BUNGALOW GRAFONOLA SHOPPE

DULUTH, MINN., June 8.—The Bungalow Grafonola Shoppe, recently opened at 101 West First street, this city, is one of the most handsome talking machine establishments in this part of the State. The demonstration rooms of the store are unique in that they are large enough to comfortably hold an entire family. The Columbia Grafonola and records are handled. Messrs. Segal and Edelson, the proprietors are well known in local musical circles.

The retail warerooms of the Griffith Piano Co., which were recently opened, are situated at 211 North Washington street, Scranton, Pa., and not Newark, N. J., as previously mentioned. The equipment was installed by Van Veen & Co., Inc., New York City.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8.—Reproducer for Phonographs. Harry M. Duncan, Los Angeles, Cal. Patent No. 1,411,566.

It is the object of this invention to provide a sound reproducer having extremely simple, but efficient means for varying the intensity of the sound produced.

A reproducer constructed in accordance with the invention will also eliminate to a great extent all scratching sounds incident to the employment of usual reproducers. Variations in the intensity of the sound and the elimination of scratching are produced by providing a spring loop in the stylus bar and mounting a clamping member upon said spring loop for adjustment upon the same.

Fig. 2 is a section through the same on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a detail section on the line 3—3 of Fig. 1.

Talking Machine. Mervin E. Lyle, John Scully and Frank L. Capps, Bridgeport, Conn., assignors to the Columbia Graphophone Co., same place. Patent No. 1,412,059.

This invention relates to talking machines, and it has for its object to provide a tone-arm and mounting therefor that are simple in construction, inexpensive to manufacture, easy to assemble, and efficient in operation, this application being a division of application Serial No. 37,731, filed July 2, 1915, entitled "Talking machines, patented February 4, 1919, No. 1,293,489.

The inventive idea is capable of receiving a variety of mechanical expressions, one of which, for the purpose of illustrating the invention, is shown on the accompanying drawing, but it is to be expressly understood that such drawing is for the purpose of illustration only and not for the purpose of defining the limits of the invention. In said drawing Figure 1 is a perspective view of a talking machine embodying one form of the invention; Fig. 2 is a vertical sectional view through the tone-arm support.

Phonograph Mute. Paul Brinkman, Portland, Ore. Patent No. 1,412,672.

The object of the invention is to provide a simple means in the form of an attachment which is applicable to the sound or voice rod of a phonograph sound box as a means for softening or modifying the tone, eliminating the unnecessary or superfluous mechanical vibration to eliminate the scratching and other mechanical sound, and for varying the intensity of the reproduction, more especially as to volume, to suit the character of the composition which is being reproduced and the capacity of the room or apartment in which the reproduction is occurring; and with these objects in view the invention consists in a construction and combination of parts of which a preferred embodiment is shown in the accompanying drawings, wherein Figure 1 is a view of the mute applied in the operative position to a sound box, the latter being shown as viewed from the edge; Fig. 2 is a face view of the sound box showing the mute applied thereto; Fig. 3 is an enlarged side view of the mute detached; Fig. 4 is a plan view of the same; Fig. 5 is a transverse sectional view thereof; Fig. 6 is a sectional view taken on the plane indicated by the line 6—6 of Figure 3, looking in the direction indicated by the arrows.

Horn or Amplifier for Phonographs. Edwin A. Caviness, Battle Creek, Mich. Patent No. 1,412,772.

The invention relates to improvements in horns or amplifiers for phonographs, the main objects are to provide an improved horn or amplifier which produces very clear tones, tones caused by sympathetic vibrations being very largely eliminated.

A structure which is a preferred embodiment of this invention is illustrated in the accompanying drawings.

Talking Machine. Francesco Cirelli, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,412,166.

One object of this invention is to provide a talking machine which can be easily carried and which will be so constructed that if not desired for use the parts thereof can be arranged and held in a compact form within the casing. Another object is to so construct said casing that it will serve as an exceptionally good resonant support for the tone reproducing elements when the machine is in operation. A still further object is to provide said casing with a lid which will be bound thereto through the medium of the center post of the record-supporting turntable and to so construct said lid that it will be placed under resilient tension due to its connection with said center post so that the parts will not rattle while being carried or transported and so that a number of records can be safely carried in the casing.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a side elevation of the improved talking machine with the operative parts removed from the casing and in the position which they occupy during the operation of the machine; Fig. 2 is a top plan view of Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a sectional elevation taken on the line 3—3 of Fig. 2; Fig. 4 is a sectional plan view taken on the line 4—4 of Fig. 3; Fig. 5 is a detached elevation showing certain of the parts in central section and illustrating the arrangement of the removable parts in the order or position which they occupy when either arranging the machine for operation or for transporting purposes; Fig. 6 is a sectional elevation showing the parts illustrated in Fig. 5 in their position when the machine is closed so that all parts are retained within the casing; Fig. 7 is a sectional plan view taken on the line 7—7 of Fig. 1 and drawn on a smaller scale; Fig. 8 is a perspective view of the improved machine as it appears when the casing is entirely closed with all of the elements contained therein; Fig. 9 is a fragmentary elevation, partly in section, showing how the tone arm is constructed to permit the sound box to be stored therein, and Fig. 10 is a view showing said sound box in its position within the storing space of the tone arm.

Sound Reproducer. Edmund Kuhn, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to the Remington Phonograph Corp., Wilmington, Del. Patent No. 1,412,560.

This invention relates to phonographs and like sound-reproducing devices, and one of the principal objects is to provide an improved sound volume regulating means. A second important object is the provision of an improved reproducer so arranged that the volume of sound passing from the reproducer to the tone arm may be increased or diminished at will.

A third important object is to provide, in such a device, means to ensure a full volume of sound with each change of the needle unless such volume is wilfully reduced.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a side elevation of a portion of a phonograph showing the improved arrangement of the tone arm and reproducer, the latter being shown on a disk record; Fig. 2 is an enlarged detail showing the reproducer raised in needle-changing position; Fig. 3 is an enlarged detail partly in section on the line 3—3 of Fig. 2; Fig. 4 is a section on the line 4—4 of Fig. 3; Fig. 5 is a detail side view of the reproducer removed from the tone arm; Fig. 6 shows grouped details illustrating in side and end elevation the sound volume regulating valve.

Sound Box for Talking Machines. James F. Smith, St. Louis, Mo. Patent No. 1,412,294.

This invention relates to sound boxes for talking machines and particularly to the connection between the stylus lever and the sound box; and the invention is an improvement in the construction shown in Patent No. 1,302,479, dated April 29, 1919.

The invention consists principally in means for pivotally connecting the stylus lever to the sound box casing whereby free motion of the stylus lever is permitted in two vertical directions at right angles to each other.

In the accompanying drawing Figure 1 is a side view of a sound box, showing a stylus lever mounting embodying the invention; Fig. 2 is a side view of the same; Fig. 3 is a vertical cross-section through the supporting bracket and spring support for the stylus lever, the section being taken on the line 3—3 in Fig. 2; Fig. 4 is a horizontal section through the supporting bracket and stylus lever on the line 4—4 in Fig. 2; Fig. 5 is a bottom plan view of the sound box and stylus lever support; Fig. 6 is an enlarged vertical section taken through the pivots which support the stylus lever, and Fig. 7 is an enlarged vertical section taken through the pivots which support the collar in which the stylus lever is pivotally supported, the section being taken at right angles to the section shown in Fig. 6.

Portable Talking Machine. Francesco Cirelli, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,412,841.

One object of this invention is to provide an improved talking machine of simple construction which can be made in a compact form and desired can be used as a readily portable machine. Another object is to provide an improved talking machine of the type including a hinged lid or cover and to so arrange the parts that the lid or cover serves as resounding means for the reproduced sounds in a manner far superior to any machine of like character made prior to the present invention. A further object is to so construct and arrange the tone arm or sound-conducting means to which the sound box is attached that it can be moved as a whole into a locked position with the sound box raised from the record a sufficient distance to permit a needle to be inserted and removed from the sound box by one hand, thus permitting a person who only has one hand to easily change the needles and operate the machine.

Figure 1 is a front elevation of a readily portable talking machine constructed in accordance with the present invention. Fig. 2 is a top plan view of Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a side elevation of Fig. 1; Fig. 4 is a sectional elevation with the parts in their operative playing position. Fig. 5 is a fragmentary view, partly in section; said section being taken on the line 5—5 of Fig. 4 and showing the tone arm in its locked position in which the sound box has been raised from the record; Fig. 6 is a fragmentary elevation of a part of the tone arm construction showing how the tone arm serves to retain and protect the sound box when not desired for use; Fig. 7 is a fragmentary perspective view showing the resilient support for the resounding lid; Fig. 8 is a perspective view showing the improved machine in a position partly closed; Fig. 9 is a perspective view of the machine when entirely closed ready for carrying, and Fig. 10 is a fragmentary elevation showing a slight modification of a part of the locking means for the tone arm.

Automatic Repeater. Robert G. Brown, Swarthmore, Pa., and John E. Streitmeier, Cincinnati, O. Patent No. 1,413,554.

This invention relates to phonograph repeating mechanism and it aims to effect an improvement on the mechanism disclosed and claimed in the co-pending application of Brown and Streitmeier, No. 120,302, filed September 15, 1916, whereby said mechanism is universally applicable to various types and varieties of phonographs without necessitating special element or fixture adaptable for given machines only.

Figure 1 is a plan of a conventional phonograph having this fixture combined therewith, and showing the davit in overhanging relation with the free end of the tone arm, and with the trip-lever located in its normal position about to be tripped by impact of the stylus. Fig. 2 is the side elevation of the same showing the operating mechanism in section along line 2—2 of Fig. 1. Fig. 3 is a section along line 3—3 of Fig. 1, and Fig. 4 is a section along line 4—4 of Fig. 1.

The present invention relates to new and useful improvements in stylus-bar mountings. The object is to provide an improved mounting for the stylus of a sound-reproducing machine, said mounting forming a spring support for the stylus bar and means for accurately adjusting the position of the stylus bar with relation to the sound box and diaphragm for adjusting the spring tension of its support with accuracy.

This invention relates more particularly to an improved supporting mechanism adapted primarily for use on a phonograph cabinet for the purpose of holding the cover balanced in any desired position of adjustment. Important objects of the invention are: To provide a balance-weight-cover support for a phonograph cover to permit the cover to be held in any one of a plurality of open balanced positions against its own weight, and also to provide a supporting mechanism of simple and effective construction adapted for use on a phonograph cabinet cover, said mechanism being controlled by a spring which does ordinarily not pass dead center when the cover is completely closed.

Figure 1 is a front elevation of the upper portion of a phonograph cabinet the cover of which is held balanced in an adjusted open position by cover supports embodying the principles of this invention. Fig. 2 is an enlarged side elevation of the device showing the operation in dotted lines and further disclosing fragmentary parts of the phonograph cabinet and its cover, the right side of the drawing indicating the front of the phonograph. Fig. 3 is a sectional top plan view taken on line 3—3 of Fig. 2. Fig. 4 is a sectional view taken on line 4—4 of Fig. 2. Fig. 5 is an enlarged fragmentary detail section taken on line 5—5 of Fig. 2, showing the pin in elevation. Fig. 6 is a detail view taken on line 6—6 of Fig. 2. Fig. 7 is a detail view taken on line 7—7 of Fig. 2.

HANDICAPPING ONESELF

The fellow who starts out in the morning behind time buckles a handicap on himself that follows him throughout the day. He is wrong himself—and when a man is wrong and knows it he is sure to diffuse a feeling of discomfort wherever he goes and leaves its imprint upon the product of his hand and brain. People who get into the habit of being always just a few minutes behind time go through life dragging the heavy chain of a disturbed existence behind them.

AKRON MERCHANTS OPTIMISTIC

Portable Machines in Demand—F. W. Van Scoyoc to Open Business—E. E. Peak With M. O'Neil Co.—George S. Dales on Trip

AKRON, O., June 8.—Business has been "spotty" during the past month, but everyone predicts that June and July will mean added business, due to the fact that industrial conditions are still improving and money is loosening up to a considerable extent. Many shops are adding radio accessories and are featuring them side by side with their talking machine lines.

Miss Ethel Baer, manager of the talking machine section of the M. O'Neil Co., told The World this week that her section showed a good gain last month, compared to the same month a year ago. One week, she said, the improvement registered 50 per cent, but toward the last of the month business slowed down. June has opened strong and good weather is helping the trade. This department recently was enlarged to twice its normal size and the Brunswick line of talking machines and records added. The Cheney and Victor machines are also handled.

Earle Poling, of the Windsor Poling Co., exclusive Victor distributor, says special emphasis is being placed now on exploiting the sale of the Victor portable talking machine and that the store plans to use its entire June advertising appropriation for pushing sales of this product!

George S. Dales, proprietor of the Dales Victrola Parlors, predicts a revival of the talking machine trade this month and believes that the people of Akron are about ready to again turn their attention to music in the home.

F. W. VanScoyoc, for many years with the A. B. Smith Piano Co., has left the employ of this firm and will enter business for himself in the near future. For some years he was advertising manager of the company.

E. E. Peak, formerly with the J. W. Brown Piano Co., at Canton, O., and the A. B. Smith Piano Co., is now identified with the salesforce of the M. O'Neil Co.

George S. Dales, of the George S. Dales Co., Victor distributor and large piano dealer, leaves for an extended Eastern trip this week.

The NEW Scotford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer

A new external shape of grace and beauty—without changing the internal design:

That same angle turn with the solid inclined plane deflecting the sound waves straight downward into amplifying chamber. That same famous Scotford tone—the tone of refinement—genuinely musical. Now in a tonearm of accepted, conventional, popular design. WRITE FOR SAMPLES.

NEW CONSTRUCTION

The long straight tube is of drawn Yellow Brass. Tonearm Base, Main Elbow and Connection Elbow and the Reproducer Frame, Face Ring and Back Plate are cast of TENSO White Brass Alloy—an alloy more than double the tensile strength of cast iron—much stronger, harder and lighter in weight than ordinary white metal alloys. New dies have been produced for casting all parts. The new parts are solidly cast, and are very substantial and durable.
