

MAGAZINE OF SUCCESS

C. F. WALLRAFF, 233 N. KENWOOD, MAKES HIT WITH "ATTAINMENT"

Charles Frederic Wallraff is the editor of "Attainment," the Magazine of Success. The publisher is A. Dell Segno. The magazine is published in Los Angeles. Mr. Wallraff is a resident of Glendale and is well known to most of the citizens here. He is an old newspaper man and out of his own abundant experience he is able to warn, advise, comfort, strengthen and encourage others. Having been a newspaper man in Washington, D. C., Mr. Wallraff was in close contact, at one time, with the pulse of the nation and with its most eminent citizens. Much of the wisdom gathered through years of interesting acquaintance is to be found speaking in the pages of "Attainment."

It would be difficult to find anything more stimulating to minds jaded by the commonplace of the ordinary magazine of advice than the pages of "Attainment," which sparkle with crisp sentences and in the brief space of a single sentence at times condense the wisdom of a decade.

The opening article in the July number of "Attainment" is entitled "Getting the Credit" and is meant particularly for the one who is afraid the other fellow will get the credit and therefore refrains from doing his best. Of course in this world the wrong one frequently gets the credit. It has always been so. Long before the days when Virgil wrote the famous quatrain "Sic vos non vobis" men have been found mean enough to steal the other man's work or to affix their name to the other man's production; or by hint or nod or shrug of the shoulders imply that another's work was their own. But while that is not denied Mr. Wallraff maintains that the one who keeps on plugging, who does not hold back because he fears some one else will get praise, is going to get there in the end.

It would not be difficult to divine the character of this stimulating magazine were one merely to read the titles of the articles. "On Overcoming Obstacles" is another article that gives a most encouraging account of prominent men who began life with a handicap but went to the top of the tree before life was half-way over. The motto of this article might well be Wendell Phillips' famous saying: "What is defeat? Nothing but education; nothing but the first steps to something better."

There is much to ponder in the article on "Misguided Patriots," which points out that "much of the money used in conducting political campaigns comes from the men who want value received—and then some. And they get it or they know the reason why. Other articles on "Saving and Spending Money," "Salesmanship," "Make the Most of Yourself," "Building a Business," "Friends and Friendship," "The Tyranny of Intolerance," and many others are sufficient to indicate the varied interest that the magazine creates for its readers and the excellent mental pabulum it affords.

Mr. Wallraff deserves great credit for the sweet reasonableness with which he has endowed his magazine and for the well-balanced spirit in which he writes. Advice is not always palatable; but in "Attainment" all advice comes in just the form that those in need of it will appreciate.

WINS PIGEON RACES

H. R. Sands, 1445 Burchett street, secretary of the Los Angeles Racing Pigeon club, has a very fine strain of racing pigeons, with which he has been successful in winning many prizes in the various competitions that have recently been held throughout California. The last important race which he was successful in winning was at Redding, Cal., June 25, where his pigeons won a $20 cup and he was given a diamond-studded gold medal. This was a 500-mile race for old birds. The speed attained by Mr. Sands' winner was 933.78 yards a minute. This victory also gave Mr. Sands the championship of the Pacific coast.

His pigeons won prizes in the 75-mile race at Tehachapi, May 7, 1916. They also took first and second prizes in the 150-mile race at Tip-top, Cal., May 14. Other honors were won in the 200-mile race from Fresno; the 250-mile race at Merced; the 300-mile race at Modesto and the 400-mile race at Marysville.

ANSWERS GLENDALE CITIZEN WHO SAYS PLAN IS IMPRACTICAL

To The Editor of The News:
In your paper of Aug. 8th, there appears a letter, signed by "A Glendale Citizen," stating the organization as proposed by the Baraca Class of the First Methodist Church is impracticable.

Out of justice to the class I represent I wish to take this opportunity of elaborating somewhat on our plan, in order that the entire populace of Glendale does not condemn us without first investigating.

We will assume that all are agreed upon the necessity of some movement for the young men of Glendale. If such is the case shall it be for a few or for the mass? We have a goodly number of young men in Glendale who are just starting out in life whose income is not sufficient to warrant membership in any organization with excessive dues, and yet they are the very ones who would derive the most benefit from a gymnasium and recreation room. Are we to eliminate them? It has been our endeavor to exemplify the equality of Christianity and include all, the struggler as well as the wealthy.

We had not the least intention of soliciting donations of the business men of Glendale, other than their regular dues which would be sufficient to give us a small margin above our running expenses to create a fund to cover any contingencies that may arise. It is not our desire to add one more impressive building to Glendale, but offer to our members a physical and moral benefit. It has been our experience that young men evince greater interest in anything they own and support, therefore we have planned for a large membership with nominal dues.

It is true that a good many similar organizations have failed, but in the majority of cases you will find they were not fully organized. Our scheme calls for an organized union under the auspices of the Churches, controlled by nine directors elected by ballot, with a capable man in charge who will devote his time to promoting the project, for no other purpose than the uplift of Glendale's men.

We are always open for suggestions or criticism, but believe the best method of deciding which is the most desirable plan would be to hold a public meeting and carefully consider the merits and demerits of each. Probably by taking parts from each plan we can accomplish an organization that will be satisfactory and receive the harmonious support of all concerned.

EXTRA FARE ABOLISHED

The misunderstanding with regard to the fare on the new section of the Pacific Electric railway, from Glendale avenue to the Childs' tract, has been straightened out and there will now be no extra charge for the additional distance. The fare as originally agreed on will be the same from the East Broadway terminus as from Broadway and Brand. At the time that the extra fare was imposed, Mr. Pontius, the traffic manager, was away on a vacation. The moment he returned the matter was brought to his attention by T. W. Watson, the city manager. The railroad management at once had the matter attended to and there will be no future trouble.

It is worth noting that all departments of the Pacific Electric railway have kept the promises made with regard to the construction of the extension. It was begun at the time promised, finished at the time promised and put in as good shape as the rest of the line from Glendale to Brand. Mr. Shoup, the manager, also promises that as soon as the balance of the right of way can be secured the remainder of the line will be completed as planned.

More than half of the right-of-way is now in the possession of the Chamber of Commerce committee that is looking after this matter. There is still required about $10,000 to purchase the remainder of the right of way. All of this sum has been subscribed and each obligation is a legally enforceable claim. It is hoped to be able to get this money in hand before long so that the railroad may be completed to a junction with the main line to Los Angeles at Tropic.

AUSTRIANS CONTRACTING THEIR FRONT IN ORDER TO PROTECT GALICIAN CAPITAL, LEMBERG

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PETROGRAD, Aug. 15.—Apparently the Austrians are determined to make a fight before giving up Lemberg. The fall of that city has been looked upon as certain during the past few weeks and it was believed the Austrians would retreat without making any opposition. As it now is they are contracting their line in the direction of the capital. The Russians have in one place penetrated that new line, at a new point on the Zlota Lipa river. They have crossed to the west bank of the river and have advanced twelve miles from the upper Strypa.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

ROME, Aug. 15.—Notwithstanding their having rallied their jaded and beaten troops to some extent and having sent fresh bodies of reserves to the fighting line the Austrians are still unable to stand before the desperate onslaught of the Italians. Several new sections of the Austrian trenches were taken today west of San Grado. Fourteen hundred Austrians were also taken prisoners.

RAIN STOPS HEAVY FIGHTING ON THE WESTERN FRONT—FRENCH AGGRESSIVE AT VERDUN

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Heavy rains on the western front have almost entirely suspended operations on both sides. The French, however, in a brief attack with hand grenades, drove the Germans from 300 yards and made an advance in depth of 100 yards. The Germans claim a recovery of 700 yards of trenches on the Picardy front from the British. Both sides are pounding away with their heavy artillery.

WINNEMUCCA, Nevada, Aug. 15.—Seven distinct earthquake shocks were felt here this morning at 5:53 o'clock. These shocks were the most severe experienced in many years. The statements assert that the aviators have already dropped incendiary bombs on the growing crops and that several fires have been started.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

APPOINT COMMITTEE TO REVISE ORGANIZATION OF THE ASSOCIATION

The regular meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce was held in the Chamber of Commerce building, 1011 West Broadway, Monday evening, August 14. J. W. Usilton, president, occupied the chair. R. M. Jackson, secretary, served in his usual capacity. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. A communication was read from the association of secretaries of the Chambers of Commerce in this section of California inviting the secretary of the Glendale association to be present at a meeting of the secretaries to be held at Santa Ana soon. The communication stated that the object of these meetings is for the mutual benefit of the secretaries of the various Chambers of Commerce who belong to the association.

A letter was read asking the Glendale Chamber to endorse the $15,000,000 State bond proposition which has a place on the ticket at the November election. The $15,000,000 which is proposed to be obtained by the selling of bonds is for the building of additional State highways. G. B. Woodberry, C. L. Chandler and W. J. Clendenin addressed the Chamber speaking in favor of the bond issues referred to above. Mr. Woodberry said that usually he would oppose any bond issue that might come up but he feels like favoring a bond issue when the money is to be used for the improvement of the State highway. Mr. Chandler presented a motion that the association endorse the communication as read.

Rev. W. E. Edmonds, who is chairman of the Chamber of Commerce railroad committee, made a report as to the progress of that committee. He said as is well known the Pacific Electric railroad has been extended to the Childs' tract and thus far the railroad company has met all requirements that were originally agreed upon between the committee and the company. He further stated that the railroad company stands ready to immediately complete the building of the road from the Childs' tract to Cypress avenue, Tropic, just as soon as the Chamber of Commerce railroad committee and the people of Glendale can turn over to them the right-of-way on which the tracks are to be laid. Mr. Edmonds said he wished to make clear a fact that was not generally understood and that is that no part of the $40,000 raised by subscription was paid to the Pacific Electric for the construction of the road, but that the money subscribed is being paid to the property owners for a right-of-way. He said his work with the committee had been very pleasant notwithstanding occasionally the committee has received very unjust criticism from people who were uninformed as to the many hindrances that came in the way of the work of the committee.

The question of the extension of Brand boulevard across the Los Angeles river near Ivanhoe came up for discussion. T. W. Watson, who is a member of the committee, said he attended a meeting of the Los Angeles city council Monday of this week and he feels sure that the council will appropriate the money for the bridge and that proceedings are now well on their way in the council for the improving of the proposed boulevard north and south of the river.

H. A. Wilson, who is a member of the special committee whose purpose it is to get lower railroad fare between Glendale and Los Angeles, reported that he and the other members of the committee, W. J. Clendenin and C. W. Spickerman, had conferred with Mr. Shoup, president of the Pacific Electric railway on this subject. They received a very kindly reception from Mr. Shoup and Mr. Wilson feels sure that the Pacific Electric company will agree to do whatever is fair in this matter. The committee was advised to continue their good work and make a further report at the next meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

A report was called for from the banquet committee. The chairman of the committee, E. U. Emery, was not present but a communication from him stated that he would meet the members of the committee in the Chamber of Commerce room Wednesday evening of this week to complete arrangements for holding a business men's banquet under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. On motion it was decided that the committee be authorized to arrange for a supper, the cost of each plate not to exceed $1. It was also suggested that the time of holding

TRIBUTE TO KITCHENER

CLARA TURNBULL OF SUSSEX, ENGLAND, WRITES APPROPRIATE POEM

The following poem was sent to Mrs. Taylor of 134 Belmont street by a friend of hers in England, Clara Turnbull, who lives in Sussex. The poem is not only a true tribute to the deceased soldier of the British empire, the great organizer of the army of 5,000,000 men who are now doing their duty in the war; but it is also creditable verse and is worth reading. It is possible now to measure the caliber of Kitchener of Khartoum. While he was in the world his light was too bright and it was not easy to get him into proper perspective. Now that he is gone he is seen to have been a much greater man than many imagined. Being dead he yet speaketh in the voices of the 5,000,000 men who heard his voice and obeyed the summons to quit them like men and be strong.

Kitchener of Khartoum

Great men have died and have been mourn'd and miss'd,
But not as this man is: Never before
Has such swift sorrow spread from shore to shore.
The bred'd levin lets the wide world wist
That Britain mourns her truest, strongest son
Who in the troubled sea his long, long rest has won.

His work well done he rests. What grave could hold
That strength that was an Empire's? The wide sea
Linking all lands befits the majesty
Of that strange burial. There shall yet be told
Great legends of his Spirit's watch to save
Each British coast the wandering waters lave.

Well he loved England as he served her well,
Binding new wreaths for her imperial brow;
Measure his worth by our foes' boasting now
And ours as we those scornful foes repel
For in the eyes of all our Allies he Stood for all that true Englishmen should be.

Our Allies mourn with Britain, glorious France—
Sister, for whom his boyish sword was bared—
Stark Serbia, Portugal, Belgium—
That dared
Martyrdom; Italy, that doth enhance
Her ancient fame; Japan, and the vast spread
Of all the Russias honour our great dead.

The distant deserts shiver. The Seven Seas
Find each a tongue that every man may know
A Man is dead. At home our children go
Softly, because they loved him—clear-eyed these Being pure—they trusted him, and felt him great,
Knowing him as now all men know—too late.

For strong he was, and true, and in the Day
Of Fear we lean'd upon his strength and he Was steadfast, undismayed. He called and she—
Free England knowing that the Free obey—
Answered in marshal'd millions. He has shown
Earth such an army as it has not known.

Five million men he called to nobler life;
He left no son; but these called by his name
Shall win immortal memory of his fame.
A new, a greater Britain, born of strife,
Heir of heroic millions shall attain
A peace our War Lord dared death willingly to gain.

Of Peace the shield, of justice the sharp sword,
True Friend, Fair Foe, thee, time fresh wreaths shall bring!
Loved by thy people, honoured by thy King,
Dear to thy God, go now to thy reward!
The Empire's many races now made one
By comradeship and loss, echo "Well done
Thou Faithful Servant," Britain's Strongest Son.

JUDGING CANDIDATES' MERITS

There is no doubt that in President Wilson and Charles E. Hughes the Democratic and the Republican parties have put forward two able and representative men for the presidency. Both men have records. Hughes, as governor of New York state, showed himself a man of mettle and judgment. The wily boss and the cunning grafter were alike afraid of him. He struck when it was least expected and always stood for the right cause and was not afraid to support it.

In the present campaign even his enemies concede that his course regarding the presidential nomination was dignified and in accordance with the best traditions of candidates. He was nominated unpledged to bosses and yet when the call came for his declaration he gave it clearly and unhesitatingly. His strong Americanism has appealed to both Roosevelt and Taft and his determination to know nothing in this country save Americanism pure and unadulterated has united these former enemies on the common ground of the good of the country.

That of itself should be sufficient inducement for everyone to endeavor to hear this prominent representative of the American people. As an associate justice of the Supreme court Mr. Hughes always distinguished himself by his clear judgment and his sound and profound knowledge of law. This characteristic goes with him through his candidacy. It will be the event of a lifetime to hear a man of the caliber of Hughes and no one should miss it.

Hughes will be in Los Angeles on Sunday, Aug. 20. He will go to San Diego and will speak there on Monday morning. He will be back in Los Angeles Monday night by 6 o'clock and will speak in the Shrine auditorium at 8 p. m. That will be an event to be remembered. Potent issues are before the country and everyone is anxious to know what the Republican candidate has in mind regarding them.

Later on, probably some time in the beginning of October, the much laboring president of the United States, Woodrow Wilson, will also appear in Los Angeles. Wilson is a man who also is well worth hearing. Whatever citizens of the opposite party or even of his own party may think of him, if he were nothing more than president of the United States he is entitled to the highest respect his high office demands.

Apart from this, however, President Wilson commands respect because of his undoubted earnestness, his genuine desire to do what is right, his courageous struggle with one of the most difficult situations that has ever confronted any president of the United States and his success, up to now, in carrying out his policies and retaining the almost undivided support of the Democratic party. These are accomplishments that show that President Wilson is no ordinary man. It will always be impossible under the party politics system to get a president who will be acceptable to both parties; but, at least, as in the case of President Wilson, it should be possible to get a man whom both parties respect even while they differ from him.

It will be well worth every voter's while to go in to Los Angeles to hear President Wilson. He is a speaker of great power, dignity and persuasion. He is well able to give a reason for the policy he has adopted and carried out so unswervingly. In order to vote intelligently one should hear both candidates. It will be living history in any case.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR

As far as can be judged from the meager accounts that the European censors permit to be sent to this country of the course of events on the different fronts in Europe it may be judged that the war is still far from its conclusion. It may also be judged that it will be a long time before the Germans and the Austrians will come to the end of their resources although the Allies maintain that they are even now on the wane. In any case the initiative on all the fighting fronts remains in the hands of the Allies and seems likely to remain there.

Italy has scored one of the greatest successes of the war by the capture of Gorizia, which the Austrians call "Goritz." This is a feat of no small magnitude. Gorizia was fortified and defended by mountain ridges strengthened by every means known to modern engineers; yet the Italians after months of failure managed to drive the Austrians from the ridge, capture the bridgehead, then the city, and are now driving on for Trieste, the famous seaport of the Adriatic.

This province, of which Trieste is the capital, at one time belonged to Italy, but was taken from that country by the Austrians. Italy has never ceased to mourn the loss of her provinces and that was one of the most powerful appeals that Gabriele d'Annunzio, the Italian patriot-poet, was able to make with abounding to success to his countrymen to get them into this war. To get back the "irredenta provinces" is the dream of every Italian whose patriotism has the true ring. They seem on the fair way to accomplish their object.

While Italy has thus been occupying the Austrians and holding several divisions of the troops in the Trieste sector, the Russians have been smashing their way into Galicia and driving a wedge between the Austrian and German armies. There has been no cessation of the powerful attacks hurled by Gen. Brusiloff against the Teuton lines that have been defending the Galician capital so long. There seems nothing now to keep Lemberg from falling into the hands of the Russians. They have taken Stanislaw, a great railroad center where five roads meet. Those roads were essential to the Teuton defense. Without them they have been compelled to fall back and it looks as though soon the whole of Galicia would be in the hands of the Muscovites.

On the Western front the crucial fighting point is in Picardy, where the French and British are still making daily advances against the German third line of defense. Every now and then the Ger-

A SUNNY FACE

Wear a sunny face. It is your privilege. It has the quality of mercy; it is twice blessed. It blesses its possessor and all who come under its benign influence; it is a daily boon to him who wears it, and a constant, ever-flowing benediction to all his friends. Men and women, youth and children, seek the friendship of the sunny-faced. All doors are open to those who smile. All social circles welcome cheeriness. A sunny face is an open-sesame to heart and home. By it burdens are lightened, cares dispelled, sorrows banished, and hope made to reign triumphant, where fear, doubt and despondency held high carnival.

Get the glow and radiance from such nearness to the throne as God permits to his own. Bring from a loving communion a face luminous with light, and let it glow and shine on all around. A little child on the street of a great city, wishing to cross at a point where the surging throng and the passing vehicles made the feat dangerous to the strong, and especially to the weak, paused, hesitated, and then asked a sunny-faced gentleman to carry her across. It was a sunny face that won the child's confidence. Childhood makes no mistakes.—Christian Guide.

"John," asked the teacher, "what is a synonym?"
"A synonym," said John, "is the word you use when you can't spell the other one."—Harper's Magazine.

mans launch a strong counter attack, but it makes no headway. If a few yards of trench taken from them are reoccupied they are speedily driven out again and the Allies go forward for another gain of 100 yards or so. Just at present the Allies are in an excellent position for sweeping the plain down to Bapaume with their artillery and the ground around Pozieres, so long and so bitterly contested, will shortly be left for other positions farther along.

Speculation is now rife as to whether the war will drag out another year or not. Kitchener prophesied it would and how clear his judgment was is seen in the course of events. The flower of the German army is yet around the Picardy front and it is likely to put up a very stiff fight. That fighting will probably go on longer than people expect.

DO NOT BE OVER-SENSITIVE

The man who is not over-sensitive is a better citizen and is capable of doing more good in his community than the man who is too sensitive, always being ready to take guilt to himself whenever a general accusation is made. There is not any individual who is perfect. One man may have a fault in one respect, another may have a fault in another respect. These men may criticize each other and when all is done their average of perfection is the same. There is a tendency for many men to be too ready to offer fight as soon as they think somebody has attempted to remove the chip from their shoulder. Each individual does not count for much anyway in this world as a single individual. The greatness of the world is made up by the aggregate of men and women. If somebody criticizes us, let us receive the criticism kindly for what it is worth. If we are deserving of the criticism we will be benefited by it, if we are not deserving of it it will only make clear to us how easy it is for others to misjudge us. The one who does the criticizing is the one who has made the mistake. We are not the less strong on account of the other person's error.

LIFE'S UPS AND DOWNS

If life were a uniform level, broken by no vicissitudes and no disasters, with no strange and baffling problems alternating with its seasons of tranquility and success, it would be, perhaps, less trying than it generally is, but also much less interesting. Nothing is more tedious than monotony. Nothing wears on the nerves like a stirless calm. The wildest gusts and storms are more acceptable to the mariner than the inaction which is compulsory when the wind moves not.

Life all a plain road, no hills to climb, no obstacles to surmount, no vicissitudes to endure, is not so desirable, on the whole, as life which has its struggles, its sorrows and its losses, preliminary as they come to the final realization of its triumphs, its consolations and its everlasting gains.

The time for sturdy resistance to the difficulties and temptations of the day is usually the period of youth, when one is facing the future, as well as realizing the present, and when the past does not loom large in one's view. The past of youth is very short; the future looks interminable, and the immediate present is strenuous. Middle age often carries the burdens which youth has brought to it, carries them with a steadfast courage and serene cheer impossible to youth; and old age is, or should be, the season of tranquility—the season of resting on the oars and waiting for the end—Margaret E. Sangster.

POWER OF FEAR

O. H. JONES SAYS WORRY, TERROR, FRIGHT GENERATE POISON IN SYSTEM

If you take, deliberately, some powerful poison that instantly wipes out the life forces, the deed is diagnosed as a case of suicide, committed in a moment of mental aberration, caused by great mental or bodily suffering. But, if some prominent citizen attends an evening banquet; eats a heavy, indigestible midnight supper; overloads his stomach, and its weight and the accumulated gasses press upon the heart and other blood vessels and smother the life forces; or the poisons generated in the stuff by fermentation and putrefaction poison him; it is called an act of Providence. It should have been labeled as a plain case of suicide, caused by gluttony.

We all like to shift responsibility, and make some one else the scapegoat. It seems to be inherent in human nature. If I remember right it originated away back in the garden of Eden, where Satan was made the first scapegoat. Men and brethren, I don't care how much of this scapegoat business you load upon the Devil. He, it is said, is responsible for it, and the more you can place upon him the better; but in name of redeemed humanity, don't try to make the Lord of Hosts your scapegoat. In the case of your physical sins there is no scapegoat. Whenever you violate any of the laws of your physical being, you are committing physical sins against yourself; and you will have to pay the penalty to the last farthing. There is no mediator between you and yourself. You will have to atone to yourself for all of your transgressions against yourself. There is no sacrificial offering or vicarious sacrifice for one's physical sins. If you sin against yourself, no one can forgive those sins but yourself. For no one else has been injured. So, whenever you sin against yourself, you must offer sacrifices and prayers to yourself. No one else can or will help you. Don't mix up your physical sins with any other kind of sin. In the case of physical sins you will have to be your own savior.

Then there is superstition, occultism, fatalism, and other "isms" that exert a powerful influence over the minds and lives of large masses of people that tend to their injury. These things turn the mind away from the truth, and lead it into error. They cause the individual mind to seek after and rely upon the mysterious and the unknown. They lead us, out of curiosity, to follow some devious way instead of that which is plain and well known. We are as full of superstition as an egg is full of meat. And our curiosity keeps leading us to put our fingers into the fire, even after they have been burnt. We fill ourselves with poisons, which we take in at the mouth; and when they have made us sick, we resort to some mysterious process to get rid of them.

Not long ago disease was thought to be caused by evil spirits, and the magicians burned incense and used magic and incantations to lure them out. Only a short time ago we used calomel to drive out disease, till the calomel caused the teeth to fall out and the bones to crumble to pieces; and then we bled the patient to death to draw out the calomel. Now we use bugs. We shoot in one culture of bugs and when they get mixed up in the labyrinths and can't find their way out, we send in another squad of bug-chasers to find out what the first lot is doing. And finally, as a last resort, we go after the bugs with pick and shovel, or send down a dose of 606-salvarsan—which means that, out of 606 that take it—not the bugs they will come out all right—possible six will survive. Oh, there is no doubt about our intelligence!

This dependence upon others for guidance in matters of health; and in the absence of proper education along the lines of health; habit, custom, fads, "isms," fear, apathy, lethargy, indispotion, a more convenient season, false theories, erroneous education, don't want to appear odd or queer, a vicious appetite, and lots of other things, have added to the inconsistencies of life, and brought us into the condition of the lazyman in the story. This man became so lazy that he would not work, even to keep from starving. His neighbors thought to frighten him out of his lethargy, so they loaded him into a wagon and started for the cemetery, with the pretense of burying him alive. On the way they met another neighbor who offered to contribute a bushel of corn toward the lazyman's support. The lazyman raised himself up in the wagon, and asked, "Is it shelled?" The answer was, "No." "Drive on then," was the reply of the lazyman.

The great procession of humanity is driving on, at a rapid rate, towards the cemetery. What are we doing to check it? All the activities of the human body are dominated by a great nervous system having its center in the brain, and ramifying out from the brain to the remotest parts of the body. It is described in Gray's Anatomy as follows: "The nerve system of man is an apparatus by means of which he appreciates and becomes influenced by impressions from the outer world, reacts on those impressions, and hence is able to adapt himself to his environment. It is the organic substratum of those manifestations of nerve force engaged in the characteristic attributes of animal sensation and motion. "Broadly stated, the nerve system connects the various parts of the body with one another, co-ordinates them into one harmonious whole in order to carry on the bodily functions methodically and to control the physiological division of labor throughout the organism."

The nerve fibers connected with the central nervous system are divided into two great groups: the efferent fibers, which carry impulses outwardly from the nervous system to the peripheral tissues—outer surface of the body—and the afferent fibers, which carry the impulses inwardly—that is, from the peripheral tissues to the nerve centers.

The nerve fibers act in the capacity of telegraph wires. The least touch on the remotest part of the body is instantly transmitted to the brain.

Whenever any part of the body is suffering from an injury, the brain suffers likewise. When an injury is inflicted on the brain, it reacts to the remotest parts of the body through the nerves. If you have migraine (sick headache), the sickness is felt in the stomach; but the pain is felt in the head.

When you are in a normal condition, you are in health, and in love and harmony with Nature; with God, and in peace and harmony with all mankind.

Many of the conditions which I have described in previous articles, engender fear, dread, worry, terror, fright, revenge, and despair. All of them have a more or less baneful, shattering, depressing, and demoralizing effect upon the nervous system; and they cause a person to be out of harmony with himself, with God, with Nature, and the whole universe generally.

I use fear in the sense of doubt; to be in a state of apprehension; a fear of punishment. Dread in the sense of what causes great fear; inspiring with terror. Worry in the sense of, to be uneasy in mind, solicitude, anxiety, distracting or disturbing care, to fret. Terror, that which caused extreme fear or excites overwhelming alarm or dread. Fright, sudden and violent fear; a state of transient terror.

The effect of some of the foregoing upon the nervous system is almost beyond comprehension. Cases have been recorded where sudden and extreme fright has caused the hair to turn gray almost instantaneously, and sometimes cause death. Sudden terror, fright, fear, and a sudden fit of anger, arrests the whole process of digestion. And it is said: that a sudden fit of anger generates a poison in the system equally as noxious as the venom of a rattlesnake.

All strife, quarreling, worry, fear, display of angry passions, and all disagreeable bickerings; and everything else that has a depressing effect upon the nervous system should be carefully avoided at mealtimes, especially. Rather sing joy songs. Don't frighten your children with beggars, tramps, bugbears, hobgoblins, and ghost stories. It fills them with fear, dread, and terror of the unseen. It ruins their nerves and makes physical cowards of them for life. Don't terrorize your children with the terrible things God will do to them if they are not good. You cannot erase the evil effects which these things impress upon the brain of childhood; and make them believe that God is love, by sending them to Sunday School for an hour once a week. It would be better to take them into the woodshed and hold a peace conference with a shingle for about five minutes, than to make them nervous wrecks by telling them ghost stories to frighten them.

No ordinary physical punishment can be inflicted upon a child that will be so cruel, inhuman, and have such lasting, injurious effects upon the brain and nervous system, as the diabolical yarns that parents and others inflict on the minds of young and impressionable children. And many of them think that it is smart and great fun.

Many a night, when I was a child, have I seen a headless man pass back and forth in front of my bed, with his head under his arm, and a long knife in his hand, that was dripping with blood. I have seen, of course, in imagination, all the imps, hobgoblins, and black cats of witchcraft, that the fertile brain could drag out of the infernal regions, to scare children with. And even now, when I know that none of those things have any reality; and after having for four years participated in all the horrors of our great civil war; passed through shipwrecks, train wrecks, and cyclones, my nervous system has not recovered from the shocks it received in childhood from those bloodcurdling yarns. Is it any wonder that we get gray, baldheaded, and have neurasthenia?

It is time we put away all these relics of barbarism, if we have to indulge in them, it would not be in the presence of children. All these things are creations of the primitive mind. No one ever saw a ghost, only in imagination, or any of the other beastly things. And we ought to be civilized enough now to put them away, or we ought to own up to our relationship to our Simian ancestors.

Our next article will be "The Result of the Conditions Which We Have Been Describing."

O. H. JONES, D. F. S., 480 W. Broadway.

RECOMMEND NEW PASTOR

ACHIEVEMENT

On a little hillside farm in a Southeastern State, says County Gentleman, lives a man of forty. He married twenty years ago and bought the farm on time five years afterward. At that time he could barely read his own name and he possessed a scant hundred dollars' worth of property, including an old mare and a new suit of clothes. His wife was a year younger than he, but she had more learning. She brought to the partnership a big bundle of quilts that she herself had made and a cow her father had given her.

This man's farm was considered hopelessly poor when he bought it. It is not rich yet, but most of it makes fair crops and it is all the time getting better. His livestock is of good quality and is well cared for. His home is comfortable, and the whole place is neat and well kept. He is a diligent student of two farm papers, having learned to read under the tuition of his wife. He is busy, but he goes to the county fairs and the farmers' conventions.

He has six children. In their schooling he takes his greatest pride. The oldest one is now in college. There is no hesitation in drawing on the few hundred dollars in the bank for the children's education, but the boy in college and the girl getting ready to go are expected to help pay their own way.

This man has the respect and good will of his neighbors. He nearly always holds some local office, and brings to his official duties the same sane progressive ideas and the same painstaking attention to details that he has put into his farm work. He will never be rich or famous, and he is modest and unassertive, but he regards himself as a successful man and is ambitious to accomplish other things. His acquaintances share his view and speak of him as a man who has "done well." And he has done well. He has had ideals and has achieved.

SUMMER WEATHER

The corn is in tassel, the grass is high, Morning and evening echo with praise, Robins whistle and thrushes reply, Making the most of these holidays.

The silver birches are laughing out, An emerald plume lifts the sculptured fern, While thistle blossoms begin to pout, And the wild red roses begin to burn.

Here they come trooping now, one and all, Larkspur and bluebell and gay marigold— Had they been waiting the fairy's call, What the sparrow croons over her nest.

Steeped in the happy summer weather, Each content with its fortunate dower, Life is enough, no matter whether One be a girl, a bird, or a flower! —Mary Newcomb Prescott.

"Courtesy is sure to win its way in the world. A person who is thoughtful of the feelings of those with whom he associates is sure to make friends and will be richly rewarded."

THE GAIN OF BEING YOUNG

In speaking of how great a thing it is to be young, East and West says, "To have never an ache or a pain, to feel so well that you don't quite know what to do with all your energy." It is fine to be so full of life that the days are too short for all the things you want to do.

But youth brings responsibility just as surely as it brings privilege. You are called to do something with your strength, else it is no better than wasted. Now is your appointed time to tackle projects that are worth while, to bring your enthusiasm and courage to bear on hard problems, to get under some of the burdens that the older people have been carrying.

EVERY ONE CASTS A SHADOW

Every one casts a shadow. There hangs about us a sort of penumbra—a strange, indefinable something—which we call personal influence, which has its effect on every other life on which it falls. It goes with us wherever we go. It is not something we can have when we will as we lay aside a garment. It is something like that which always pours out from our life, like light from a lamp, like heat from a flame, like perfume from a flower.—J. R. Miller.

A PRECIOUS HERITAGE

"Sweetness of temper is a precious heritage. It gives beauty to everything. It keeps its windows open toward the spice country and fills the home with perpetual delight. The fortunate possessor of a sunny soul is God's evangel in a dark world. He is a living gospel which no one will ever repudiate, and the blessedness of which all men will appreciate. The body will grow old and the smooth brow will be furrowed, but a happy disposition is an aureole to the gray crown of age. Blessed is he whose life looks out upon the land of Beulah and whose soul is responsive to the outlying vision."

KEEP YOUR FEELINGS IN GOOD TONE

The just are to live by faith, not by feeling, yet religious feeling is an excellent thing to have. Like every other good habit it is sometimes acquired slowly and gradually. A strong and lasting affection, a pure and abiding love, grasping, vigorous, appropriating faith, will generally keep the emotions in lively exercise so that the worshiping heart will be little less than a well of water springing up into everlasting life. Keep your feelings in good tone. They help immensely in giving satisfaction to life.

WE LEARN BY DOING

We learn by doing rather than hearing. It would be a very easy thing to memorize a recipe for making a cake, but if you girls should conclude that you could make a cake, just because you know the recipe by heart, you would make a big mistake. The way to learn to make cake is to make it, and keep on making it.

The men who learn endurance are they who call the whole world brother.—Charles Dickens.

THE MORNING COMETH

The poets of all nations since even the world began have stood in awe and wonder before the greatest of all earthly events, the dawning of a new day. To the old Hebrew poet-prophet there seemed nothing so wonderful and full of meaning in all the world as the coming of the morning. It was like a new and untouched gift fresh from the hand of God, and spoke to him of the infinite divine goodness that brought out of the death of night the glory and joy of a newly created world. It gave him a glad new hope for life; it covered the failure and the folly of all the past with the brightness and joy of a new opportunity. How much poorer our earth would be if life ran on through one long day and there was no coming of the morning. And how poor indeed our human life becomes when we shut out of it all faith and hope of the dawning of a new and better day. But, let life be ever so dark, how steady and brave that man may be who can say with unquestioning trust, "The Morning Cometh."—The Christian Guardian.

A FINE PAIR

Wishing does not amount to much unless it is harnessed up with trying. When a boy looks on a splendidly built man and says, "I wish I were as big and strong as he is," his wishing will not do him any good as long as he goes off where he cannot be seen, and smokes a cigaret. The boy who smokes, throws away his chances to become a fine, strong man, and all the wishing in the world will not help him. But if he wishes it enough to throw his cigaret into the gutter where it belongs, and then go home and begin to exercise with dumbbells and horizontal bars, very likely his wish will come true. Wishing and trying harnessed up together, make a fine pair.

GREATEST DEPTH OF THE SEA

The greatest depth of the sea reached by man's plummet has lately been found by the German exploring ship "Planet," ten sea miles north-east of Mindano, one of the Philippine Islands. The depth is 9780 meters—32,667 feet, almost equal to the elevation of Mt. Everest in the Himalayas, the highest peak on the surface of the earth. The scientist on board of the "Planet," Dr. Horn, got also the temperature of the bottom of the sea and a sample of the earth down there.—Selected.

The Printer and Publisher tells a little story of a printer who supplied a customer with a quantity of bill-headers. The price charged for the job was so absurdly inadequate that a fellow-printer in another city who learned of the incident was emboldened to ask questions. "Why," he said, "your price wouldn't pay for the stock, let alone the printing of it." "Well," replied the printer, "since you think you know so much, let me tell you something. The stock cost nothing—it was dead stock which I had on hand for two years. Neither did the composition cost me anything, for my daughter did it. So you see you are not so god-darned smart after all.

Perseverance and strength of character will enable us to bear much.—Charles Dickens.

AUGUST ON THE RIVER

The swooning heat of August Swims along the valley's bed. The tall reeds burn and blacken, While the gray elm droops its head, And the smoky sun above the hills is Glaring hot and red.

Along the shrinking river, Where the salmon nets hang brown, Piles the driftwood of the freshets, And the naked logs move down To the clanking chains and shrieking saws Of the mills above the town.

Outside the booms of cedar, The fish-hawks drop at noon; When night comes trailing up the stars, We hear the ghostly loon; And watch the herons swing their flight Against the crimson moon.

—Lloyd Roberts.

A Methodist bishop was a guest at the home of a friend who had two charming daughters. One morning the bishop, accompanied by the young ladies, went out in the hope of catching some trout. An old fisherman, out for the same purpose, wishing to appear friendly, called out: "Ketchin' many, pard?" The bishop, drawing himself to his full height, replied, "Brother, I am a fisher of men." "You've got the right kind of bait, all right," was the fisherman's rejoinder.—Exchange.

SAVING TIME

The habit of saving is a significant trademark upon any young man's life. And the habit of saving time is more important than the habit of saving money.—Assembly Herald.

ACCORDING TO DESCRIPTION

Inspector—"An abstract noun is something we can think of, but cannot touch. Can you give me an example?" Tommy—"Yes, sir; a red-hot poker."

Figures obtained through a canvass of medical authorities and hospitals of the country by the Board of Temperance of the Methodist Episcopal church show that there has been a revolution in the attitude of medical men toward alcohol. Some of the replies received from physicians say that the decrease has been so marked that virtually none is used now.

PAT

A motorist, who was touring in Ireland one day, met a native who was driving a donkey and cart. Thinking he would like to have a little fun at the Irishman's expense, he began, "What is the difference, Pat, between your turnout and mine?" "Oh, not a great dale," promptly replied Pat. "Shure, the donkey's in the shafts of wan, and on the sate in the other."

I say to thee, do thou repeat. To the first man thou mayest meet. In lane, highway, or open street— That he and we and all men move Under a canopy of love, As broad as the blue sky above. R. C. Trench.

this banquet should be set at some suitable date in September.

The question of bettering the appearance of the Glendale postoffice building was discussed. It seemed to be the opinion of members present that if Postmaster Brown of Los Angeles could be made familiar with the ill-kept appearance of the interior of the Glendale postoffice room that he would be willing to see that conditions are bettered. The plan of carting truck loads of mail by way of the front entrance of the postoffice through a narrow passage greatly at the inconvenience of patrons who may be in the lobby was discouraged. Also the present custom of having only one window open for the transaction of business of all departments of the office is not in keeping with modern accommodations of a well regulated postoffice in a community of 8,000 people. Postmaster Brown will be waited upon and requested to make a personal inspection of conditions in the Glendale postoffice building.

A. S. Dudley, assistant secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, who resides at 1209 Lomita avenue, was present and gave a very interesting talk as to practical methods of conducting a Chamber of Commerce in a community of the population of Glendale. Mr. Dudley for a number of years served as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at Riverside, California, and he is therefore very conversant with the needs of a small city and the possibilities of a Chamber of Commerce doing valuable work for the good of the city.

Attorney Steele, who has also recently become a resident of Glendale, has had considerable experience in Chamber of Commerce work in the San Gabriel valley and expressed himself as being ready to render assistance as a member of the Glendale Chamber. Attorney Owen C. Emery of Glendale said he has not been taking the interest in the meetings of the Chamber of Commerce that he should and hereafter he promised to be one of the live wires of the organization. Messrs. Dudley, Steele and Emery were appointed as a committee to devise ways and means of building up the Chamber of Commerce and establishing it upon a more successful basis. The plan suggested by these gentlemen is to so conduct the affairs of the Chamber of Commerce that the business men of the city will readily recognize the value of being active members of this body.

As the year has about closed for which the city of Glendale agreed to pay the rent of the Chamber of Commerce building a committee was appointed to wait upon the city trustees for the purpose of advising them as to the wish of the Chamber for the ensuing year. The committee appointed was Atty. C. L. Chandler, M. B. Hartmann, H. A. Wilson. The meeting was considered a very profitable one and it was the opinion of those present that it is the beginning of a revival in the Chamber of Commerce.

CHECKS FOR CENTS

Do you know that when you write a check, or any paper that is to circulate as money, for less than $1, you are laying yourself liable to fine of $500 and imprisonment up to six months in jail under the United States laws?

Though there is a law against writing a check for less than $1, it is done hundreds of times each day in the business world.

Under the title of "Offences against the currency, coinage, etc., section 178, criminal code of the United States," the law relative to checks is made very plain. Section 178 is as follows:

"No person shall make, issue, circulate or pay out any note, check, memorandum, token or other obligation for a less sum than $1, intended to circulate as money, or to be received, or used in lieu of lawful money of the United States; and every person so offending shall be fined not more than $500, or imprisoned not more than six months, or both."—The Frisco Man.

NORWAY'S NEW RAILWAY

The government of Norway is planning to build a new railway line which, in conjunction with the Norwegian and Danish steamship lines, will shorten the journey from Christiania to Paris by four hours, and that from Christiania to London by five and one-half miles.

The proposed railway will run from Christiania to the Port of Christiansand in Southern Norway, where connection will be made by boat and rail with the Port of Hirtshels on the west coast of the Danish mainland. Hirtshels does not possess at present the requisite port accommodations, but it is hoped that the interest already shown by the Danish government in the scheme will correct these deficiencies.
