By using white labor we have proven that we can produce more shingles with less waste than by using Chinese.

It is the writer's opinion that a plan could be worked out to train and use white help in all the shingle mills of British Columbia...

The problem connected with using white labor is that the supply of skilled men for sawing and packing is very small...

You have our best wishes and any assistance we can give in your efforts to make British Columbia a white province.

BON STEIN FOUR UP ON CHAMPION VON ELM

End of First Eighteen

Bon Stein, of Seattle, looked like the new Pacific Northwest amateur champion at noon to-day after he had trimmed George Von Elm, the present champion, by four holes in eighteen holes of rather poor golf at Colwood.

To-day's play for the championship was a big drop from the standard set earlier in the week. Stein's 75 for the first eighteen holes, it is true, was slightly above his figure yesterday, but Von Elm's 79 was a shock to his friends.

The champion took no less than 40 to cover the first nine holes and he was only 1 stroke under on this coming in. Stein, out in 38, whittled his incoming score to 37.

Another notable passenger arriving by the Makura to-day was Lady Coughlan, wife of Sir Timothy Coughlan, agent-general for the States of New South Wales in London.

Lady Coughlan is on her way from Sydney, N. S. W., to London.

GEN. G. S. CLIVE SAYS GENOA ANOTHER ATTEMPT AT PEACE

Thinks United States Will Ultimately Enter League

"Genoa was but one more attempt to make peace, but unfortunately the objective was not attained," said Briddard-General G. S. Clive, British military officer with a notable war record, and representative of the British War Commission at the Genoa and other important International conferences which have been endeavoring to unravel the post-war tangle and put Europe on her feet.

"Lloyd George was firmly of the opinion that the Genoa Conference would lead to peace. It was a wonderful effort but it failed. The real object of the Genoa Conference was to forestall anything in the nature of an alliance between Germany and Russia. The flag fell too quickly.

"It now rests with the Supreme Council to find another road to a lasting peace and once that is accomplished it will be the business of the League of Nations to maintain that peace."

In making reference to the League of Nations General Clive said he believed that the United States would ultimately enter the League as it was in her interest to do so and for the benefit of the world.

Briddard-General Clive, who is accompanied by his wife, has been traveling around the world, and recently visited Australia where he has been investigating sheep-raising possibilities.

SESSION OF ONTARIO LEGISLATURE ENDS

Prorogation Next Tuesday; Session a Record One

Toronto, June 10.—Hon. Nelson Parliament, Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, late yesterday afternoon adjourned the third session of the fifteenth Legislature of Ontario for prorogation Tuesday next. The motion by Attorney-General Raney to adjourn came quite suddenly in the absence from the chamber of Premier Drury, who was making preparations for his western trip. The members were taken by surprise as an evening session had been expected. The session, from all standpoints, has been a record one. In the number of days over which it spread, it breaks all previous records. The session opened on St. Valentine's Day, February 14, and therefore lasted eight days, in all 270 bills were placed on the members' files for consideration. Of these the majority survived the onslaught en masse, although many of them were much altered in the process of amendment.

PROTEST IN BEHALF OF STRAY DOGS

Emporia, Kansas, June 10.—(Associated Press)—A boy who would take a stray dog to the city pound to be killed for a quarter is too mean to live himself, declares William Allen White, author and editor, in a statement in his paper, The Emporia Gazette.

Mr. White's protest in behalf of the dog was evoked by an offer of twenty-five cents a head for dogs brought to the city pound by boys. "What's the matter with this city administration anyhow?" inquires the Kansas author. "Were they never boys? Here they are advertising to give boys twenty-five cents each for stray dogs brought into the city pound to be killed. "Doesn't the city administration know that the boy who would deliberately bring a stray dog to the city pound to be killed for two bits ought to be killed himself? Don't they know that boys are not so hard hearted? Don't they know that the average boy would rather earn two bits mowing a lawn?"

Roberts, Minister of Health of New Brunswick, who explained that the object of the meeting was to co-ordinate the various organizations and to attempt to arrange regular meetings. EXCHANGE BUILDING BEING ENLARGED

Winnipeg, June 10.—Work was started yesterday on the $250,000 extension to the Winnipeg Grain Exchange building. The specifications call for the raising of the original building on Lombard Street three stories, thus bringing it into line with the Rory Street extension and making the whole building ten stories in height. The Grain Exchange will then be one of the largest and most imposing office buildings in Canada. Since the Grain Exchange moved from the building originally built on Market Square by the late Nicholas Bawf to its present location on Lombard Street, it has been a constantly recurring problem to find accommodation for the office space needed by the grain trade. Shortly before the war the Rory Street extension was erected, doubling the size of the original building. After the war an annex of considerable size was erected on Lombard Street. Office space has again become an imperative need and hence the further addition. The magnificent crop prospects on the Canadian prairies this season has undoubtedly influenced the Trades' Building Association to further construction, and the greatest wheat market in the world will have for this Fall's trade a building commensurate with its ever growing importance.

Colbourne, Dominion Secretary of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, coming to Ottawa to make representations to the Federal Government in conjunction with other officers of the Dominion Veterans' Alliance for immediate action in anticipation of such a situation. In an interview Capt. Colbourne declared that "the urgency of the problem demands drastic action." C.P.R. OFFICIAL FINDS PRAIRIE CROP OUTLOOK PROMISING

Calgary, June 10.—An optimistic description of the crop situation on the prairies was given by Charles Murphy, general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, during a brief stay here. He is making one of his periodic inspection trips. "All through Southern Manitoba and Southern Saskatchewan the outlook was unusually good. The recent rain in Alberta had come at no inopportune time. In the northern portion of the province there was every cause for optimism. So far he had not been through the South, but the reports he had received were eminently satisfactory. "There is a much improved feeling springing up," he said. "Among merchants and business firms that I have recently come in contact with that feeling has been augmented a good deal by the rise in stock, wool and other products of the farm. Generally speaking, the outlook is most satisfactory."

Mrs. Wellington Knows

Mrs. S. Wellington says she never found any milk (and she has tried them all) that equals Pacific Milk for cake making. She says that in the several years she has been using it she has not had one single failure, though it is impossible for her to get the same results if the grocer sends any other brand by mistake, as has happened on a few occasions.

We are grateful for such letters, not so much because they praise our product, but chiefly because they prove that Pacific Milk is better than other brands and more practical for everyday home use.

GOOD ROADS.

For the first four days of next week Victoria will have as her guests a large number of influential representatives of progress from every Province of Canada.

It may be assumed that an average convention concerned with the discussion of roads and cognate subjects lacks appeal to the average citizen unless he has a particular or personal interest.

On this understanding a delegate's badge will not be considered the sole passport of admission to the meetings of the Convention.

It should be pointed out that officials of provincial and national Governments will be in attendance to lend the requisite air of influence and authority to the deliberations of the gathering.

OUR OPPORTUNITY.

On account of not only the prominence of its members in Canada's national life, but particularly of its far-reaching influence upon the highway construction policies of Federal and Provincial Governments, the Canadian Good Roads Association is a body of exceptional importance.

MAYOR PARNELL.

In the death of Mr. Edward Parnell, the Mayor of Winnipeg, the Manitoba capital has suffered a severe loss and the country a citizen of the highest type.

and attendance death came yesterday. Coming to this country from his native England when still a child the late Mr. Parnell commenced his business career as far back as 1881, and eventually presided over a business of his own founding.

The late Mr. Parnell was a fearless administrator and fair in all his dealings. To those in his employ he dispensed impartial justice and was regarded as a friend.

I. O. O. F.

While representatives from every part of this country are discussing the question of good roads and more roads during the first four days of next week close upon one thousand delegates to the meeting of the I. O. O. F. Grand Lodge of British Columbia will also be in session in this city.

MORE HOPEFUL.

In spite of what appeared to be a fundamental difficulty at the outset the various conferences that are taking place in London seem to augur well for an early disposal of the numerous knotty points which took on new prominence after the nature of the pact between Edmond de Valera and Michael Collins had been made known.

Just how Ireland's condition from the industrial and economic points of view has been influenced by the recent course of events can be gathered from observations made by Mr. Collins at a meeting in Dublin on Thursday evening.

As far as the pact between de Valera and Collins is concerned it is reasonable to suppose that a coalition form of government might provide the means by which even the extremists can be weaned from their stubborn attitude.

In the death of Mr. Edward Parnell, the Mayor of Winnipeg, the Manitoba capital has suffered a severe loss and the country a citizen of the highest type.

VACANT LOTS.

To the Editor:—In last Saturday's issue of The Times I noticed an item stating that the city is unable to find people willing to cultivate vacant lots.

I venture to say that if the city would give people who cultivate vacant lots water at a flat rate of $1 per month, on the understanding that if the privilege was abused the permit would be instantly cancelled, many of the present vacant lots would be cultivated.

It is very disappointing to a gardener who has worked hard on his lot to see the boulevard six feet away being liberally soaked with water, and the crop which he has sown no labor to produce rapidly drying up and yielding only half of its capacity or else being entirely ruined.

Of course, it is necessary to water the boulevards, but if permission could be given the people cultivating the adjoining lots, to couple their hose pipes to the stand pipes already existing on the boulevards, the expense of installing meters, pipe, stopcocks and faucets would be eliminated.

With reference to the article, "Does a garden pay? Yes, but not in money," by William Lewis Edinborough, I do not believe that the author with regard to backyard gardening may be correct, but given a favorable season, two well-cultivated lots will provide a family of six with the necessary potatoes and other vegetables the whole year round.

It is a pity that the city should not have a vegetable market. I have cultivated a lot on Government Street for five years, and twice during this period my crop has been dried out.

take hundreds of players to make our links a scheme worth the outlay.

As for the figures given out at the Council meeting of June 5 as being the income from golf links inside of a given time, people who have been watching said links for purposes of proof ever since this scheme was mooted find it impossible to believe those figures as being anywhere near the truth.

With about our Reeve and Councilors trying out a plan to give our ratepayers a time of grace with the paying of taxes? Many of our ratepayers have left their homes and gone far away in search of work. It is physically impossible for these men to leave their jobs and be back here to meet their taxes in the month of June.

Fellow-workers, you can depend upon it if our proposed bill, limiting the amount of tax to be paid, the figures we have heard of, some private concern would ere now have grabbed it.

When you get to that meeting don't be afraid to speak your minds, stand up for justice and right. Don't leave all the talking to the hot-air men. RATEPAYER.

CAUSE OF CAUSES.

To the Editor:—As one of your readers who has taken a silent interest in the above controversy permit me to state, now that the said controversy has been apparently closed by the notified letter of Bishop MacDonald, that the attempt by "Ajax" to shake the faith of those who believe, "there is a Divinity that shapes our ends, etc.," must have failed miserably.

To many of your readers the discussion was in the "clouds." The beliefs on which the foundation of Christianity rests have stood the test of time and will remain. What better has "Ajax" to offer? Nothing, he has been groping in the darkness after shadows when the substance is at hand.

I do not belong to the church which Bishop MacDonald represents, but I like many of your readers of my own church (Protestant) am wholly in sympathy with the sentiments expressed in his letters on this subject.

All the modern opinions of biogenesis, based upon hypotheses, are as the dust compared to the story of the Creation. The majority of your readers will admire Bishop MacDonald's "parting word," and like him will "hope to see my myriads of angels."

When I have crossed the bar. HILFMAN.

To the Editor:—If you will give me space, I find I owe an apology to "Ajax" for having "batted" in to the discussion between him and Bishop MacDonald, and as a member of British Columbia I will henceforth rule myself out.

Before doing so, however, let me say that he appears to be the product of an intellect which he refers to, and the tragedy is that the world is today suffering the results of teaching these half-dressed theories as facts to the great generation.

His manner of dealing with my questions, however, reminds me irresistibly of the student who on being asked by the professor if he knew what electricity was replied, "I did know, Sir, but I have forgotten."

With reference to the remarkable discovery of Professor Keith of traces of men in a few prehistoric ages—Ajax has doubtless read the Pickwick papers, and if so will probably remember the learned discussion of the "Archaeological Society" on the age of a certain inscribed stone and the result.

Finally, I would suggest to Ajax that instead of pinning his faith to "monumental" theories of university professors he should study a few facts of ancient civilizations as disclosed by the excavations of Layard, Schliemann, Petrie and Sayce.

Probably he would then modify his views to the authenticity of the Bible records. A. T. FRAMPTON & P. R. G.S. continue. Elsewhere (De Verbe Apostoli Serm. 14) in the same controversy which the Bishop quotes from I take a less merciful view, saying, "I have explained to you what is the kingdom and what everlasting fire, so that when you confess the infant will not be in the kingdom, you must acknowledge he will be in everlasting fire."

Then as to the words of Thomas Aquinas quoted by the Bishop as being the words of Thomas Aquinas, I am, as it happens, neither misled nor misled. The words are there (Summa Par. 111), and I challenge the Bishop to disprove it. Let me repeat, I quote the words again, "That the saints may enjoy their beatitude and the grace of God more richly, a perfect sight of the punishment of the damned is granted them."

Again, my friend quotes Darwin, but gives it quite a twist or bias in the quoting. Let me quote Darwin's actual words: "I have always regretted that I so far truckled to popular prejudice as to use the word creation, when all I meant was that the phenomena in question were due to wholly unknown natural processes."

NUMEROUS FEATURES AT PUBLIC MARKET

Dairy Prices Fluctuate; Fruit Making Splendid Display

Some entirely new and fresh features were supplied at the Victoria public market at the regular, week-end trading session, when buying was brisk. Many interesting reductions were made in various commodities, while some splendid displays were made in the fruit section.

The fruit section was displaying fresh strawberries to-day at a lower quotation than ever. The baskets are of the large kind, while the berry is large and of a ruddy color, demanding 40c per basket. Gooseberries were selling at 15c a basket, while at other booths they were quoting the same price per pound. The supply is gradually increasing as the season advances.

New potatoes were shown in plentiful quantities and were soon cleaned up at the hands of the large throngs who attended. The Jarger variety were selling at 35c, while a lower quotation was given on the smaller potatoes, which were moving at 25c a pound. Carrots, turnips, beets and lettuce were selling at five cents, while cucumbers reached a lower quotation than ever, being picked up at a range of price of 10c to 25c.

Lamb is still scarce, this meat being between seasons. The lambs are yet too young to kill, but it is estimated that in another month early lamb will be selling at the stall supplying a lower quotation. Lamb, veal and young pork were all quoting 25c and 35c figures on their various cuts, but the price on lamb is looked to be even lower than this when the supply is increased in a month's time.

FIRST BERRIES WERE SHIPPED FROM B.C.

The first British Columbia strawberries to move to the prairie provinces were shipped from Hatzic Thursday and, although there were only three crates, Calgary wired a welcome for the local product.

Shippers claim that the berries were in first-class condition, having ripened with the recent hot spell.

and are moving east in cooler weather. It will be several days before Vancouver gets the first local strawberries from the Hatzic-Mission district, but officials of the Berry Growers' Association expect that the first of this class of fruit will arrive about Friday or Saturday, in time for the week-end trade.

According to advices from the Calgary market it is expected that the crates shipped yesterday will bring about 45c each at their destination point. A new problem has confronted the berry growers and the packers of this province, in the recent quotations from a firm in Sarnia to put jam into Calgary at $9 a case. According to the local growers, the fruit supplied these eastern packers is from the United States and it will be difficult for the British Columbia packers to compete against the eastern firms.

The packers are holding this eastern quotation over the heads of the growers to get a reduction in the price of strawberries to be delivered. On the other hand the growers are telling the packers that if the latter do not pay a fair price for their strawberries they will not let them have raspberries, and they may even secure the assistance of a packer to can the fruit under the association label.

Paris Also Wants Greater City With 6,000,000 People

Paris, June 10.—The new plans for increasing the rank of Paris among the world's greatest cities are taking definite form through the proposal of several City Councilors this week to take in the suburbs in all directions, which will bring up the total population to more than 4,500,000.

Under last year's census Paris had a great revision of the city's rail and water traffic. Already Councillor Le Marchand is proposing that the city advance 2,000,000 francs for the construction of a great interior port system destined to make the French capital as great an interior water traffic centre as Cleveland or Chicago.

The plans include the deepening of the Seine between Paris and Havre and an additional widening of twenty feet to permit the passage of large cargo boats instead of the present tug and barge system.

The Measure of Life

CUT this rule measure out and paste it on your mirror, or some place where you will see it frequently. It represents the normal span of seventy years of life for men and women, narrowing towards the top because expectation of life narrows from year to year, and each year seems to pass more quickly than the last.

Take a pencil and place it upon the exact point in the scale, which represents your age. Look ahead and count up the years. Think seriously whether you have sufficient time ahead of you to permit of procrastinating the carrying out of any plan of life you may have decided upon.

You have always intended to take on adequate insurance. With this scale measure before you, decide now whether you have taken on sufficient insurance. Every year you delay increases the risk and the cost of carrying that risk.

The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada holds out to you practically every plan of insurance in which insurance actuaries have confidence. The Mutual Life of Canada offers insurance at cost.

ney Franklin, it is said to lead all Miss Talmadge's previous productions in artistic and dramatic achievement.

COLUMBIA

Lovers of thrills and that type of picture which plays forcibly on the human emotions will find their ideal at the Columbia Theatre this week, "The Honor System," a William Fox production, showing today for the last time.

This picture is without doubt one of the greatest human interest dramas ever screened, and is deserving of universal praise.

"Prison reform" is the subject of a great moral lesson contained in the story.

A large and excellent cast includes such stars as Gladys Brockwell, George Walsh, Miriam Cooper and Milton Sills.

CAPITOL

Ralph Graves, handsome and son of a prosperous steel manufacturer, of Cleveland, Ohio, has one of the principal roles in D. W. Griffith's sensational new picture, "Dream Street," now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

Trickling through Graves's ancestors has been a longing for the drama, generally expressed amateur efforts, as in those prudent and cautious days, the stage was never thought quite respectable.

So Ralph was destined for the foundry when he refused to continue his studies in college, but he took a trip to Chicago, and didn't use the return ticket.

His father's telegram for him to return home came at the same time a public contest was in progress by a Chicago newspaper to discover the handsomest man in the Middle West. A friend sent Ralph Graves' photograph, and the award came to him.

A motion picture company invited him to work in a picture and the entrance to the studio was the exit forever from the steel business.

Finally, Griffith, the wizard whose eyes are always roving for promising material in the screen world, saw him, engaged him, and cast him in a picture.

When "Dream Street" was started, Graves found himself in a role of a young man whose golden voice conquered the girls, and whose great bold fists conquered the men. His part is of physical exuberance and spiritual struggle, played with great understanding and so much charm that Alan Dale, the New York critic said of him: "He is the finest actor I have ever seen on the screen. He has youth, looks, talent, and great personal magnetism."

Graves plays the part of James "Spike" McFadden in "Dream Street."

COMING TO CAPITOL

Gloria Swanson, Paramount star, has been declared the winner in a popularity contest conducted by George J. Wehner, a Brooklyn exhibitor with a string of ten theatres.

Mr. Wehner decided to obtain attractions that were really what his patrons wanted. He therefore held a popularity contest in all of his theatres. The outcome showed that Gloria Swanson, Paramount star, was the best liked by the patrons of the Wehner theatres.

The scenes of the story are laid in England, Ireland and France. Magnificent on the stage, but on the screen an absolute revelation! That is "Smilin' Through." "Ten o'clock! Oh, what will they say?"
Mark Anderson laughed.
"Does it matter what they say?"
But I thought it did. I could not imagine how I was going to face Mrs. Alberry's sharp eyes or explain my absence.
We went back to the farm hand in hand, and he kissed me again in the little porch outside the door.
"Are you happy?" he asked, and I said, with a sigh of rapture, that I had never known before what a beautiful world it was.
"You're such a child!" he answered.
"Mother was married when she was as old as me," I said with dignity.
"And now—I really must go."
But even when we had said good night for the last time I went back to ask him another question.
"What was it you had told Lionel Champion say about me?"
"Why do you want to know?"
"Only because I am interested. I thought it might be something nice?"
So few people say anything nice about me.
"Well, it was something nice, and yet felt as if I could have knocked him down for it," he added gloomily. I pulled at his hand.
"Well—tell me—anyway!"
He told me reluctantly.
"He said that you were the most attractive little girl he had ever met."
"What! Oh, Mark, he didn't, not really!"
"He did—confound him!"
I drew a long breath of delight.
"Nobody has ever said a thing like that about me before."
He gave a jealous growl.
"You seem uncommonly pleased about it."
"Pleased! Why, of course, I'm pleased!" I said. "Wouldn't you be if you'd always been looked upon as the ugly duckling of the family? If

WIRELESS ANTENNA

MAY BE DANGEROUS

Lightning Real Danger Unless Precautions Taken, Says Fire Commissioner

Extracted from "Fire Control," a pamphlet issued by J. Grove Smith, Dominion Fire Commissioner, the following warning is called to the attention of wireless operators and others using aerial wires for any purpose:

"The installation of wires and other conductors outside buildings, and the extension of these conductors to radio apparatus inside buildings may introduce considerable fire hazard. Induced charges of electricity in exposed aerial wires due to lightning discharges may enter the premises and unless suitable precautions have been provided fires are likely to follow. The ground wires necessary for outside antenna should be kept out of the building as far as possible and should be connected to a permanent ground, preferably to the water pipe in the basement or cellar. When the antenna is entirely within the building the fire hazard due to receiving apparatus is relatively small and its installation requires no special safeguards unless current is taken from the light or power circuit. All aerials should be grounded during storms."

"JANE"
Laughter is a panacea for many ills and "Jane," the farce which will run for the whole of the week commencing June 12, at the Little Theatre, Oak Bay, is one of the most effective gloom chasers ever written. It is probably one of the three most popular farces, the other two being "The Private Secretary" and "Charley's Aunt." When first produced in London it enjoyed immediate popularity, and had a record run. Sir Charles Hawtrey played the part of Charley Shackleton and it was this play that established his reputation as an actor of light comedy. For the local production which is under the direction of Mr. H. N. Hincks, a very capable cast has been chosen, and a thoroughly finished performance is guaranteed. This assurance is scarcely necessary to those who have in the past enjoyed the productions of the Victoria Dramatic and Operatic Society.

Seats may now be reserved at Kent's Edison Store, Government Street.

A Love Affair That Broke All Records

Rudolph Valentino and Gloria Swanson as the lovers in Elinor Glyn's love tale de luxe, "Beyond the Rocks," which broke all previous attendance records at the Capitol, Vancouver, last week. The picture, a lavish, scintillating romance, encompassing England, France and Italy, is highly realistic. More yet, the star wears more than a score of the most gorgeous dress creations imaginable. The picture is a love drama of Paris nights, Alpine crags and society boudoirs.

Criticizes Action.—Alderman E. B. Andros yesterday afternoon again attacked the City Council's Finance Committee on its policy in handling bond sales and purchases. The Council approved the Finance Committee's recommendation for the sale of $100,000 B. C. bonds and the purchase of Canadian National Ontario long term securities in their stead.

AVIATORS' PLAN EXTENSIVE FLIGHT

Local Pilots Will Carry Mails From Lethbridge to Ottawa

Plan to Return Through United States

Captain J. E. Palmer, son of Mrs. Waddell, of 2513 Asquith Street, and Lieut. Fitzsimmons, son of H. T. Fitzsimmons, Yates Street, both former Royal Air Force officers, contemplate a flight from Lethbridge to Ottawa, approximately 1,750 miles returning by way of Detroit, Minneapolis and Chicago.

Messrs. Palmer and Fitzsimmons are to test out an aerial mail plane to be known as the "Lethbridge." Their firm is the Lethbridge Aircraft Company, an organization that has forty per cent of its stock held in British Columbia, part in this city.

Both in R. A. F. Captain Palmer went overseas with the 19th Battalion, First Canadian Division, won a D. C. M., and transferred to the Royal Air Force. Lieut. Fitzsimmons also had an excellent war record in the Royal Air Force. The Lethbridge Aircraft Company, with which they are identified, has operated machines covering 52,990

ARRANGING FOR MAIL.

Arrangements for the trip are now being completed. But authority has been received from the post office and air board officials at Ottawa, these departments offering every possible assistance in the venture. An attractive line of souvenir advertising is off the press, also the official envelopes for the flight. Post offices in the south have been officially informed to send aeroplane mail in special envelopes to Lethbridge, where they will be placed in locked bags by the postmaster, who will hand them to the birdman on the day of the "hop off," about June 21.

These envelopes will be supplied and carried to their destination for $1 plus the usual postal rate of three cents. On arrival at each city the bag containing mail for people residing in that particular place will be unlocked by the postal authorities, the letters to be delivered in the ordinary way.

Advertising City.

The aeroplane will be painted a cream color and will bear conspicuous signs advertising Lethbridge and Southern Alberta. Publicity literature will be carried for distribution in the various states in the itinerary. The souvenir envelopes will bear this inscription: "Greetings via the first Canadian air mail plane from Lethbridge, Alberta, the biggest little city in Canada."

The journey was flown before by a machine of the Canadian Air Board.

Winnipeg Visitor Here.

Mrs. Rod Mackenzie, of Fort Garry Drive, Winnipeg, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Matthew Perry, of Wilmet Place, Oak Bay.

I.O.D.E. Garden Party.

The Robert Valentine Harvey Chapter, I.O.D.E., will hold a garden party on Saturday afternoon, June 17, at the home of Mrs. G. H. Walton, Mt. Tolmie Road. Mrs. Curtis Sampson will formally open the fete at 3 o'clock. There will be booths for the sale of plain and fancy needlework, home cooking, ice cream and candy, and other amusements. A musical programme and afternoon tea will be served.

Charged With Assault.

Charged in the city police court to-day with committing an assault upon Kabal Singh, Dolmer Johnson, colored, was remanded for hearing later. D. S. Tait appeared for the prosecution and R. C. Lowe for the accused. In the witness box to-day Singh told the court he had been struck on the nose "about three times" and had fallen to the ground. A black eye and a much-enlarged nose borne mute witness to damage received from someone.

Fish Draw Attention.

Live fresh water bass and some "horned prout," more commonly called "catfish," were displayed in an aquarium in the window of W. N. Lenfestey, Ltd., to-day, attracting much attention. The bass were imported here some twenty years ago, being placed in Langford and Florence lakes, where they have since thrived. Fresh water bass as heavy as six and a half pounds in weight have been taken in these lakes, it is said.

Police Raid Laundry.

Following a raid by Provincial Constables Wilkie, Owens, McPhail, Gidley and Keir on premises of Wah Hing at Swanigan Lake yesterday, the laundry proprietor, Wah Hing, will be arraigned in the Duncan police court on Monday charged with being unlawfully in possession of opium, and also of unsealed liquor. The raiders found some opium, unsealed liquor and a half keg of beer, it is alleged.

Pitchers Improve And Batters Slip

Major League Twirlers Hitting Their Stride With Advent of Warm Weather and Sluggers Are Finding It Harder Every Day to Hit Ball Safe; Sisler Is Still Whole Show In American; Gowdy Leads National Hitters

Chicago, June 10.—With warm weather, the major league pitchers are hitting their stride with the result that sluggers are finding it harder every day to get the ball into safe territory. This is shown by the steady shrinkage during the past week or two in the batting averages of such renowned hitters as George Sisler, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Roger Hornsby and others.

The youngsters who set the league afire in the first weeks of the season with .450 marks now are getting back to their normal averages of .275, while Sisler and the others, dropping more slowly than the flash in the pan hitters, still are rapidly getting down to their usual records.

Sisler still leads the American League batting despite a drop from .425 last week to .419 this week. He cracked out nine hits in his last six games, scored six runs and stole five bases and as a result continued to be the whole show, with exception of the home run attraction. With his twenty-third stolen base, Sisler is far in front of his rivals on the paths, his closest competitor being Kenneth Williams, who has succeeded to his credit.

They're All Doing It. The late start and slow progress made by Babe Ruth to retain his honors has encouraged other players to enter the competition in the hope of topping the Philadelphia slugger. With Harry Heilmann, Detroit, and Walker, Philadelphia, have edged each other, while Baker, New York, Judge of Washington, and Feltz, Chicago, have entered the contest with seven each.

Other leading batters for 25 or more games are: Stephenson, Cleveland, .415; Ed Miller, Philadelphia, .395; Witt, New York, .372; Cobb, Detroit, .370; Speaker, Cleveland, .369; O'Neill, Cleveland, .364; Schanz, New York, .347; Williams, Detroit, .329; Bassler, Detroit, .326; Blue, Detroit, .321; McManus, St. Louis, .320; Severely, St. Louis, .328.

Hank Gowdy, of the Boston National League, is leading the National League with an average of .384, nine points ahead of Bigbee, of Pittsburgh, and Hargrave, of Cincinnati, who are tied with .377. Hornsby, of St. Louis, and T. Griffith, of Brooklyn, are trailing for third place honors with averages of .374 each.

Still Leads With Honors. Hornsby failed to hit in his home run record in his last five games, but is far in front with thirteen. Max Carey, of Pittsburgh, continues to lead the base-stealers for 25 or more games are: B. Griffith, Brooklyn, .471; Daubert, Cincinnati, .452; Kelly, New York, .349; Grimes, Chicago, .349; Southworth, Boston, .348; Stryker, New York, .340; Maranville, Brooklyn, .339; Myers, Brooklyn, .337; Duncan, Cincinnati, .333; Groh, New York, .331; Banhoff, New York, .330; Hillbocher, Chicago, .322.

Retain "Barnstorming" Rule. New York, June 10.—Retention of the "barnstorming" rule for the breaking of which Babe Ruth and two other players were suspended, has been recommended to Commissioner Landis by seven National League clubs, which were represented at a meeting here.

KOLEHMAINEN DID NOT SET MARK; TRACK SHORT. Helsinki, Finland, June 10 (Associated Press).—The mark set Thursday by Hannes Kolehmainen, Finnish-American runner, will not stand as a world record, remeasurement of the track showing it to be 474 metres short of the forty-five kilometres required.

Hats Off to "The Trio" Responsible for the Success of P.N.W. Amateur Golf Tournament

J. A. SAYWARD, JAMES M. WOOD, BIGGERSTAFFE WILSON

Few people who have revelled in the magnificent exhibitions of golf which have been given at Colwood during the last few days will have realized the enormous amount of work that has preceded the important event which comes to an end today. What it has meant for the President of the Colwood Golf and Country Club, the Chairman of the Tournament Committee, and the President of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association, only those who have been intimately associated with them may judge.

The course itself, its improvement and "nursing," has been the chief concern of Mr. Sayward for months past. He has made of it a full time job with his usual "shifts" that have kept him at Colwood on many an occasion after the sun has set. His own personal energy and general oversight have contributed in no mean fashion to the speed with which the new clubhouse reached its present usable state. In other words, since his return from Europe some months ago this tournament and all that it has entailed have been regarded by Mr. Sayward as an undertaking that had to be successful in every sense of the term.

No less an able worker for the success of the tournament has been Mr. Wilson. As the retiring president of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association, and a participant in the annual event for years past, he has been able to bring a tournament experience to bear upon the duties that were assigned to him, and to render the general committee a great deal of useful assistance. That he has not added the amateur championship of the P.N.W. to his title of city champion is one of the fortunes of the royal and ancient pastime.

VON ELM MEETS STEIN IN FINAL

Champion Defeated Watson in Semi-finals by Fine Golf Exhibition

George Von Elm, of Salt Lake City, and Bon Stein, of the Seattle Golf Club, survived the semi-finals at Colwood yesterday and to-day are playing a thirty-six hole match to decide the holder of the Pacific Northwest amateur golf championship.

Watson made a plucky attempt to lower the colors of the champion and while he showed some good golf at times, he could not be held to the same class as Von Elm. After getting into trouble Watson would make some splendid recoveries.

Watson had a great chance to win the fourth hole, but his ball rimmed the cup and he halved the hole with a five.

The match was settled at the fifteenth. Von Elm was on the green with his tee shot, while Watson required two to get the ball into the hole in three and won the match, five and three.

Stein Recovered Well. Bon Stein had a new-racking struggle with fellow-townsmen Bob Spiers and won the right to meet Von Elm in the final.

Special Demonstration of the Blue Bird Electric Washing Machine

Commencing Monday and continuing for one week, a factory representative will conduct a demonstration of this "Aristocrat" of Washing Machines.

The Blue Bird is the de Luxe product of the industry, as well in its outward dress, as in the inner details of its construction. A wonderful triumph of Canadian mechanical genius and manufacturing ability; after thousands of years of following in the beaten path of custom, it has been proven unnecessary to rub clothes to pieces in order to remove the dirt, and what is more important still, to sacrifice human happiness in accomplishing a menial task.

The sale of Blue Bird Electric Washing Machines has topped all sale records in the East, and through the agency of the Hudson's Bay Company's stores in British-Columbia the Blue Bird will be the most popular washing machine in the West. SEE OUR WINDOW DEMONSTRATION OF BLUE BIRD. SEE THE MACHINE IN OPERATION ON THE MAIN FLOOR. HAVE A MACHINE SENT TO YOUR HOME ON TRIAL. PAY FOR IT AS YOU CAN USE IT.

CONVENTION IS RESULT OF EFFORT

The great Three in One convention which will begin in Victoria Monday morning includes the Canadian Good Roads Association and the annual meeting of Provincial Highway officials of the Dominion.

The fact that this important gathering will be held in Victoria this year is due solely to the determined efforts put forward by Good Road advocates, including the late Mayor R. J. Porter and J. L. Beckwith, president of the Canadian Highway Association, organized and incorporated at Victoria for the express purpose of putting through the all-Canadian highway route from coast to coast.

It is considered most fortunate that the convention was successfully landed by the Victoria delegates to last year's convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association which was held in Halifax. The importance of the 1922 convention being held in Victoria was emphasized by the fact that the most difficult links in the all-Canadian highway across Canada were located in British Columbia. Following the Halifax meeting Russell T. Kelley, first vice-president of the association, and S. L. Squire, executive committee, visited Victoria and concluded final arrangements for the convention here.

The Provincial Government came to the aid of the association and made it possible by giving a money grant to hold the meeting in Victoria.

The convention will be held in cooperation with the Good Roads League of British Columbia and other western Good Roads Associations.

SOCIAL FUNCTIONS DURING CONVENTION

Good Roads Delegates Will Be Well Entertained

The social side of the Canadian Good Roads Association which will open its four-day convention at the Empress Hotel here on Monday morning will be quite a feature of the affair and local bodies have matters well in hand to insure the visitors leaving Victoria with nothing but pleasant memories of the city mingled with a desire that they may some day come to this coast and make their permanent home here.

Nothing will be left undone to make the visitors feel at home. The Good Roads League of British Columbia, the Victoria Automobile Club, Vancouver Automobile Club, Chamber of Commerce, Publicity Bureau, Provincial and Municipal Representatives and all organizations aiming at making Victoria better known, will be on hand and every good citizen who takes an interest in the city's welfare is invited to assist in making the visitors informed as to the attractions which the City and Island have to offer.

Prominent among the social features of the convention will be a theatre party the first night; a reception at Government House Tuesday evening; a dinner in honor of the guests Wednesday evening and a dance at the Empress Hotel Thursday evening.

Incidentally every opportunity will be seized to take the visitors for trips around the city and to the neighboring resorts. During the convention, the entire week, including the entertaining of the guests after the business session, a reception committee made up of the chairman of the Victoria Automobile Club, the president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce will look after the welfare of the gentlemen, while the Ladies Reception Committee will include Mesdames J. C. F. Hyndman, convenor; S. F. Tolmie, J. H. Fletcher, C. W. Bradshaw, Walter Scott, J. W. deB. Farris, H. F. Crowe and Miss Grace Beckwith.

TROUT FISHING

Successful fishermen go up to DAD JAMES' place Cowichan Lake, V. I. They always go up through the week, because they are sure of the best accommodation and a good boat and Evinrude.

SIGHTSEEING NOW IS POPULAR SPORT

The great Summer influx of tourists has begun in real earnest, and scores of visitors are being taken for drives through the city and the surrounding country daily. Cameron and Calwell, the veteran sightseeing concern of Victoria, reports that the present week has been a busy one for operators of sightseeing motor cars, and this popular means of viewing the city's attractions is proving a big drawing card for visitors.

Through the sightseeing literature put out by Cameron & Calwell, Victoria is advertised very extensively throughout the entire continent and even in foreign lands. Rail and steamship tours mapped out by the big touring bureaus include Victoria in their descriptive matter covering the various itineraries.

This business is being kept right up-to-date in its method, and one of the latest interesting developments is the system adopted by one of the bureaux whereby the list of the names of the parties traveling in one company are sent ahead to the sightseeing operators. On the other hand, the visitors know beforehand who is to take care of them when they arrive in any particular city, so that friendly relations are established to a certain extent before the tourists arrive.

The trip to Butchart's gardens is one that makes a very strong appeal to most of the visitors. Brentwood, Saanich and Sooke and the famous drive over the Malahat summit on the Island Highway are also popular with tourists.

How Much is a Dependable Tire Worth to a Farmer?

How much is it worth? How much would he lose if his truck failed to deliver his milk to the cheese factory in time? How much would he lose if his milk missed the train? How much would he lose in temper and disposition and Christian character, if his moral balance was continually upset by blown-out tires—especially with a load on? Farmer's are "handy" at "fixing things," but what farmer cares to stop on the road to fix tires? Whether truck or pleasure car, the farmer wants uninterrupted service. A farmer's car is as much a business car as a bus or a taxi-cab. The surest precaution against the delays and expense of tire trouble is to have all four wheels shod with

A Narrow Escape

Further adventures of "Tom Sealey," contributed by Mrs. Harrison Eke.

"WHAT are you young ones supposed to be doing?" questioned a voice beside them. Startled, they both turned and faced the speaker. It was old man Wiggleby.

"Nothing," replied Tom shortly, who was first to find his voice.

"It don't seem like it either," returned the old man, glancing perplexedly at the car, with its radiator and steering arms badly damaged in the collision.

"It wasn't our fault, Mr. Wiggleby," spoke up Ben, now fully recovered from his fright. "We just got in to wait for Morris to give us a lift home and the car started, and we couldn't stop her nohow."

"That so?" returned Mr. Wiggleby, taking his straw hat off, and rubbing his bald patch, his eyes still on the damaged car.

Tom sought to divert the old man's attention by asking for the loan of a team.

"A team," he repeated, turning his eyes on the boys, "and do you suppose I am going to lend you a team to get mused up that-a-way," pointing to the car once more. "You came here mighty quick; believe me, you'll get back quick enough if you take all day over it." There was a world of meaning in the man's tones which did not escape the boys' ears. Their eyes turned from the man to the car questioningly.

"How much do you think it will cost for repairs?" asked Tom, with a view to sharing the cost from his two months' pay which still remained untouched in his grip.

The old man's glance was quizzical as he answered.

"Somewhere around fifty dollars, perhaps more. She certainly ain't that sure means considerable damage which isn't fixed for a few cents." He knew Ben's father as a neighbor, and also financially it was reported he was well fixed, and able to pay for damages. Therefore he did not feel the least hard-hearted as he smiled at the boys' discomfiture at his disclosure.

When Seth Morris came out from delivering his goods, his car was just a speck in the distance. He stood for an instant, puzzled, and then muttering something about auto thieves rushed back to the house and rang up the police, who set out to find the car. Then he hurried a fast horse and traveled with all speed toward the trail of the thieves. On the way he met Tom Sealey and Ben who beckoned him, but not suspecting them he sped on. He had no time for idle talk, therefore on reaching the scene of the damaged auto, he marvelled when the old Wiggleby came from his barn and imparted the news. Ben thus informed, he wished he had stopped by the way and listened to what the boys had to say. "He would have given them a scare not easily forgotten." Angrily he dismounted and examined the auto.

"Umph," he growled, "there'll be something doing when Ben Smith's father hears of this." Taking the remaining orders from the car, among which was Mr. Smith's, and leaving them in old man Wiggleby's care, he left for home. Angry voices were carried over the wires as the boys, hot and tired and sooty looking, entered the house. Mrs. Smith stood by the side of her husband who was denying stoutly that it was his son or Tom Sealey who had driven the auto.

"They can't drive an auto, I tell you, Morris," Ben's father was saying. Then he caught sight of the boys entering the doorway. "They're right here now, so how could it be them," he went on. "What's that a Ask them? Sure! Hold the line." Mr. Smith turned and looked in the boys' faces, who were denying stoutly their innocence to fade. His alarm became apparent as he questioned them.

"Did you tamper with Mr. Morris's auto to-day?" he asked, going to the point at once.

"Yes, sir," answered Tom promptly.

Ben hung his head.

"Dang you boys," stormed Mr. Smith, "what next won't you do?" Turning to the telephone, he said:

"I'll ring you up later, Morris. It was these boys all right," Mr. Smith jammed the receiver back on its hook viciously.

Tom did not wait to be questioned further. "We just got in, sir, to wait for Morris to drive-as home," Mr. Smith turned and looked at the boys, who were denying stoutly their innocence to fade. His alarm became apparent as he questioned them.

"I know the rest, you needn't tell me," said Mr. Smith sharply. "If it had been your father's auto, he would have told you to go to the minute. As it is, you can go to the end of the month, so look out for a job meanwhile. As for you, Ben," turning to his son, "you can pay for the damage out of your savings. No Winter schooling for you, my son. It's a wonder the both of you weren't killed outright."

"Now, Pa, don't be harsh," cried Mrs. Smith tearfully, "boys will be boys."

"There you go, ma, encouraging them in their tomfoolery. Best let me manage this business when it means paying fifty dollars or more for being boys as you call it. It's time a man handled things his own way."

"Will it cost as much as that, sir?" ventured Tom, who had been listening intently.

"Every cent, and maybe more," Mr. Smith informed Tom with emphasis.

"Well, sir, returned Tom, "I'm going to pay my share. It wasn't all Ben's fault."

"You'll pay nothing, Tom. Take your wages when the time comes. You'll need them."

Ben, about to put on his hat, turned sharply.

"Say, Pa," warned Ben, "if Tom goes, I go, too." It was the first time in his life Ben had gone against his father's wishes, but he was determined Tom should not suffer alone.

Mrs. Smith gazed at her son with astonishment.

"Ben," she said sternly by way of correction, "you're forgetting yourself."

"No, ma. It's not right to send Tom away like that."

"And who knows better than I, the right and wrong of this business?" burst forth his father angrily, "you or I?"

"Now, Pa, don't lose your temper," advised Mrs. Smith.

"You may be right, ma. I fall to see it though, since I was as much to blame as Tom."

Then it suddenly dawned on their astonished parents their son had reached the age of discretion.

"You boys best get to work," commanded Mr. Smith without further utterance. The two boys turned and left the house, truer, stouter friends than they had yet been.

"Do you know, Ben," said Tom, who was the first to speak, "I was writing a letter to our old schoolmaster this mornine asking him

"Man in the Moon" Carries Lighter Burden

WHO has not heard of the frolicking cow in the nursery rhyme which says:

"Hi, diddle, diddle, The cat and the fiddle, The cow jumped over the moon. The little dog laughed to see such sport And the dish ran away with the spoon."

You might have pardoned the cow, little reader, if at that moment the cow had been a duly qualified resident of the moon, providing that life were possible there now, which of course we know it is not. Many, many years ago before the moon had cooled off to the state of dead quiescence that now prevails, the cow jumped over the moon, and arm to arm would have seemed more natural.

With a diameter nearly four times greater than our moon, and a mass of some sixty-four times as great, the earth exerts an attraction upon all objects here, that we call the "weight" of the object. For instance, daily in the stores we buy a pound of this or that, that pound being a mass upon which the earth exerts a constant attraction. If the earth were larger than it is it would exert a greater attraction on what we now know as a pound of anything, and if smaller, a less.

In the moon, a body of very much less mass than the earth, the ordinary weights of things as we know them would suffer a severe shrinkage. It would be no effort for the "man in the moon" to carry six sacks of coal, or at least he could do so with the same effort taken to carry one sack of coal here. A baseball may travel 100 yards on a fair hit here, but in the moon the same ball would be likely to travel nearly half a mile. A horse which jumped a three-barred gate with ease on this earth would, if able to live on the moon, find no difficulty in jumping over a house without scratching the shingles.

So when the "little dog laughed to see such sport" as a cow jumping over the moon, he should have taken into account that the cow was feeling frisky with just as much bone and muscle as on the earth but with only a fraction of the same weight to carry.

Supposing on the other hand the cow had lived on a planet as large as the sun, its good humor would have vanished rapidly, for now it would have experienced the greatest of difficulty in merely standing up, and if it lay down it could not get to its feet again. The weight of anything on such a large planet would be so very much greater than prevails here on this earth that, in the case of the moon-jumping cow, its strength would not have been sufficient to support its own weight, or but scarcely so.

Were a man to live on such a planet he would not be able to raise his hand and arm to his hat. By leaning against a wall he might prop himself up from falling, but once off the ground he would have been as helpless as a knight of the middle ages in a full dress uniform of the best steel armor. Athletes would be praised for jumping a matter of a few inches, while the man who jumped a foot would undoubtedly be the world's champion high jumper.

So it is, little reader, that the weight of a body, as we know it, is a matter of the size of that body, its constituents, and to a very large extent its position in the heavens in relation to the size of the planet which carries it. If we feel tired and foot sore after a busy outing here, what would we feel like if we lived in a land the size of the sun? Again, if we could live on the moon how annoying it would be to have to anchor ourselves to the ground every time a strong wind came up for fear of being blown away? A wise Providence has placed us on a planet suited to our needs, and how well suited we are to habitation on this earth few suspect, and still fewer care.

Pauline Goes Swimming With Unexpected Results

PAULINE wavered, thrust one pink toe into the water and shrieked. It was cold! In spite of the fact that a hot June sun had been pouring down all day long, and that freckles were in fashion again, the water at the beach remained as cold and chilly seemingly as it had all winter.

The little girl awayed backwards, and forwards on the sands for a while, then fearing taunts from her brothers if she did not proceed, made a second attempt. This time Pauline raised her left foot and plunged it into the water up to the ankle with a rapidity that prevented her from getting it out again as quickly as the first time. Colder, and colder, it seemed.

However, it was no use going to the beach if one did not have a plunge, she thought, and with teeth chattering she waded in slowly. The icy water rippled over her insteps, rose in chilly ripples around her ankles, seemed to crawl, leaving paralysis in its wake, up to her knees, and then it happened. Unmindful of where she was placing her feet, the little girl touched a flounder which slid with a rush from beneath her feet. The fright of the sudden, clammy encounter brought another shriek, and a waving of arms that resulted in a lost balance and a deafening splash.

With a mouth full of salt water, and limbs flying like flails Pauline scrambled to her feet, and beat a retreat heading for the shore. Half way there she paused; some how the water seemed to have grown warmer, she mused. There was no need to stay in long, she thought, merely a short swim-and then a run home to get warm. Now in spite of her timidity Pauline was an excellent swimmer and very soon she was enjoying herself in the water.

It must have been twenty minutes later that a tired little girl wavered ashore, playing with scraps of seaweed, and splashing a great deal.

Once wet all over the water had not been too cold, and with the pride of accomplishment Pauline left the water and started up the beach.

In the meantime the tide had risen, cutting off a sand spit that crossed the mouth of the little cove. Turning to have a last look at the water, Pauline caught sight of a little black spaniel on the sands, now cowering and whistled, rounded by water. She whistled and whistled, and after a great deal of persuasion the little dog waded into the water and commenced to swim the 100 yards separating it from the shore.

For a while all went well, the dog swimming rapidly, but with its head a trifle too high in the water. Soon it seemed to Pauline, who was urging it on, the spaniel appeared to grow tired or frightened, for it ceased swimming properly and commenced to trash the water with its forepaws. Pauline whistled and whistled, but in vain, the dog had given up swimming and was rapidly becoming exhausted with its struggles.

In the excitement of the incident the little girl had waded into the water up to her waist. She stepped on a flounder, but this time kicked it aside with annoyance and pressed on. Presently she was swimming as a careening tongue. It was then that Pauline discovered the mystery of the spaniel's plight, two hind legs were broken, and swimming must have been an agony.

"I cannot understand what is keeping you Uncle Peter, Pauline," said her mother later, "he came by the moon train and said he was going down to the beach for you to swim."

"I did not see him, mother," replied the little girl, "he was interrupted by a knock at the door. Uncle Peter entered, and coincidental with his advent a very tired spaniel thumped an apology for a fall on the floor."

Uncle Peter, when he saw the spaniel, exclaimed Uncle Peter, and then the story came out. It seemed the spaniel, Pat, had gone with his master to the beach, but had wandered away when the latter sat down to read. Looking for the dog later Uncle Peter had failed to find any trace of him, and finally,

THE VAIN MERMAID Part I

ONCE upon a time there lived on a rocky coast in a far-off country a fisherman and his wife and a very pretty daughter named Greta.

They were very poor and only from the sea did they get their food, and what was to become of Greta when they died often worried the fisherman's wife.

"No lover will ever find her here," sighed the mother, "and I am sure our child is handsome enough to marry an earl."

"If she is to marry, some one will find her even here," said the jolly fisherman, who never worried about anything; "instead of an earl a prince may come for our daughter, wife be happy, you get me live at court."

One day while Greta was sitting by the sea she heard some one talking and peeking around the ragged corner of the rock she was filled with amazement by what she saw.

A beautiful mermaid, with long golden hair and silvery body, was stretched along the rock in the sun and beside her was a large silver fish. "Am I not the most beautiful of all creatures?" asked the mermaid.

"Yes, Queen, replied the fish, "no one can compare with you."

"If I only had a silver comb to comb out my golden locks," said the mermaid. "I am sure I should be still more beautiful, but this

How to Make an Ice Cart

In many cities it is the custom for people to go to an ice station, get their ice for themselves and carry it home. While this has proved to be a money-saver for the customers, it is a bit unhandy for most of them because they have no convenient way of getting the ice home.

With the cart described this week, however, all the difficulty of carrying the ice is removed. While the cart is designed especially for the carrying of ice, it may be used for other purposes as, for instance, a grocery cart. The cart may be made of any scrap crating or other lumber that you may have. Old baby carriage wheels may be used, or wheels may be sawed out of wood.

I have detailed the drawing carefully so that you will have no difficulty constructing the parts and assembling them.

The cleat across the front of the cart prevents the ice or whatever is carried, from sliding out. The leg under the front of the bottom piece makes the cart stand level.

When you have reached home with your load of ice, remove the pegs that hold the handle in place. Lift the crate to the door of the ice box, grasping it at the hand-holds. Set the front edge of the crate on the edge of the ice box. Turn the wooden wing that holds the cleat in place. Remove the cleat, tip the crate, and the ice will slide into the box.

GEORGE BURY RECEIVED THE ENGINEER'S REPORT

An Accident Happened on Western Division of C.P.R. When He Was in Charge.

SOME years ago when Sir George Bury was in charge of the western division of the C.P.R., a rather ludicrous incident occurred.

Sir George Bury.

to the usual information he gave the mileage where the accident happened; showed that the roster was trespassing; described, as nearly as possible, his color; gave a brief record of his lineage, and advised it was impossible to tell how many children survived.

Mr. Bury made no comment. However, it was evident he did not consider it of sufficient importance to be relayed to Montreal; or handed over to the claims agent, as he checked it off for filing.

GILBERT PARKER AND FRIEND'S TROUSERS

One Time He Was in "Seats of the Mighty."

FEW Canadians have played the varied parts in so many corners of the world as have fallen to the lot of the famous novelist Gilbert Parker.

Sir Gilbert Parker.

"My dear, I can't for the life of me see why all this fuss is made about Parker. Years ago at—he was so impetuous he had to borrow my son N—'s dress trousers to attend a dance."

TWO SIDES TO A QUESTION

IN the course of a recent after-dinner speech, the British home secretary, Mr. Edward Shortt, K.C., remarked that one of the wittiest retorts he ever remembered hearing in a court of law came from a litigant who had had his toes plucked under a van wheel, and had sued the driver for damages, being awarded the sum of £100.

"But, my lord," protested the defendant, addressing the judge, "I can't pay all that money. I've only got my wages. I ain't no millionaire."

Rev. Dean Starr Proved A Very Fine Forager

When a Chaplain at Barriefield Camp He Found Meals for the Troops.

NOT only is the Very Rev. Dr. Starr, of Kingston, dean of the diocese of Ontario, a rattling good soldier (as he proved while a militia officer years ago), but also was he during the late war a thoroughly well-liked chaplain.

THE early days of the struggle, when he was attached as a chaplain to Barriefield Camp, Dean Starr was detailed to accompany a detachment of mounted rifles proceeding on a trek through the neighboring country.

GRAHAM BELL NEVER USES IT

IT is reported that Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, finds that device a nuisance, and will not have one in his own house!

In confirmation, a lady has told the story of how she met him at a reception given in his honor at Washington.

When she was introduced to the inventor some imp of mischief, she relates, made her say to him, "Glad to meet you, but sometimes I wish you had never been born."

For an instant her heart stood still as she realized what she had said and as she noted the wave of displeasure that passed across the face of her hostess.

But after a second's hesitation—for he was himself taken aback by the unexpected remark—Dr. Bell answered, with a merry twinkle in his eyes: "I don't blame you; I never use the beast!"

He wanted to see "Mr. Henry Drayton." He presented a laundry bill three feet long and explained that the last time "Mr. Drayton" was in Edmonton he had sent considerable laundry to his place to be washed and had left town without paying his bill.

Cook Boy and Boss Meet After a Lapse of Years

And Hiram Robinson Knew Robert Dollar, Whom He Had Hired.

ONE day about ten years ago a large man, in general appearance not unlike the late James J. Hill, walked into the office of the late Hiram Robinson of Ottawa, then president of the Hawkesbury Lumber Company.

"I'll bet you can't tell who I am," said the visitor, unceremoniously.

Mr. Robinson stroked his white beard and a twinkle came into his grey eye as he said in his high-pitched voice, "I'll bet your name that I can. You're Dollar, Robert Dollar."

"Right this time, but now I'll bet you can't remember the first time you saw me."

"You lose again. The first time I saw you was the day I hired you as cook boy to help the cook in one of our shanties on the Little Nation River."

With a laugh Mr. Dollar admitted that Mr. Robinson was right, and then the cook boy and the woods boss of those former days talked over old times in the Ottawa valley, when they had started on their climb to their later high positions.

Philip Gibbs Thought We Knew the Symptoms

His Definition of Free-Lance-Writers on Visit to Vancouver.

WHEN Sir Philip Gibbs visited Vancouver recently, he was invited by the British Columbia Institute of Journalists to come and "talk shop" at an informal dinner.

Being assured that such was the case, he wanted to know how many daily papers Vancouver had. Three, he was told.

"It would look as if they carried fairly large staffs," he commented, looking around the crowded room.

"All these are not on the dailies," he was informed. "A large number are free lances."

"That explains it!" said the famous war correspondent. "Free lances, eh! All the same, I didn't think there were so many newspaper men out of work in British Columbia!"

Ay, An Old Scot Would Vote Against Mr. Butler

Ay, Ay, When the Goderich Liberals Voted Against Proudfoot.

By VICTOR LAURISTON.

SENATOR PROUDFOOT, at one time M.L.A. for Centre Huron and leader of the Liberal opposition in the Ontario legislature, began his political career at a comparatively early age in his home town of Goderich, which in the latter '80's and early '90's elected him reeve year after year.

During the latter part of Proudfoot's term as reeve, John Butler was mayor.

Proudfoot was a Liberal, Butler was a Conservative, and both were equally unbeatable. It was a time when party lines counted for more in municipal affairs than they do now.

After Butler had held the mayoralty three years and downed all comers, the Goderich Grits decided it was time for a change.

They made that the slogan of their opposition to Butler's re-election, and carried on a vigorous canvass in behalf of Butler's opponent, on the ground that "three years was enough."

Among those canvassed was an old Scotman, reckoned a strong pro-Butler man, who listened with characteristic stolidity.

"Ay, ay," he assented, briefly. "I agree wi' ye."

The canvassers were elated. "And we can count on you voting against Butler?"

"Ay, ay," agreed the Scot, "when ye vote against Proudfoot."

The Liberal delegation went out very quietly, and Butler continued to reign till he retired of his own volition.

GREENWOOD KEPT GOING HIGHER WITH COMPLAINTS

He Might Have Reached Foot of the Throne Only Conditions Were Remedied.

By WILLIAM LEWIS EDMONDS. THERE are two qualities in which Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, was never lacking. The one was courage and the other was a penchant for cutting "red tape" when it barred his way.

Greenwood was at the time taking the officers' training course at Stanley Barracks during the regime of Col. Otter. Not being in the easy financial circumstances that he is to-day, Greenwood could not afford to possess the regulation dress uniform which officers and budding officers were in the custom of donning at mess.

Some of the officers of this was tantamount to appearing at a high-class society wedding without prescribed wedding garments. And because Greenwood persisted in appearing at mess in the customary working garments of an officer he became in time a sort of pariah among these sticklers for military etiquette.

Now this was even a more serious breach of military regulations than appearing at mess improperly garbed. This Greenwood discovered, three days later, when he was summoned from the parade ground to appear before the commandant.

"Greenwood," remarked the commandant as he exhibited the offending letter, which had been sent on by the militia department, "you are a fool. Hereafter when you wish to address the department do so through me. Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, you may retire. But be careful you don't do it again."

Greenwood, not being sure that he "wouldn't do it again," retired without further remark. For the space of about a week he patiently waited, hoping that possibly, through the intervention of the commandant, better treatment might be accorded him by his brother officers.

Then, the better treatment not forthcoming, he again took his pen in hand. But not for the purpose of inditing a letter to the minister of militia, or even to the commandant. He made up his mind to write to the governor-general direct. And this he did.

Back to the commandant this letter, of course, came. And Greenwood was again summoned to the commandant's office.

"Greenwood," exclaimed the now irate commandant; "did I not the other day tell you that you were a fool?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I want to tell you now that you are a doubly distilled fool (the adjectives used were somewhat stronger than here given), for you have taken the hitherto unheard of course of addressing his excellency direct. You ought to be discharged from the service. And that is what will happen if you repeat the offense. Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir," came the laconic reply, but without any promises attached to it. And goodness knows what further steps Greenwood might have taken had not his fellow officers, probably under instructions, accorded him better treatment, for Greenwood's blood was hot, and he might possibly have even ultimately laid his grievance at the foot of the throne itself.

HAM DIVIDES CANADIANS INTO JUST TWO CLASSES

CANADIANS are divided into two classes," said Col. George Ham of the C. P. R., speaking at a recent dinner of the Waterloo County Canadian Club in Kitchener.

Those who believe that the Senate should be abolished and those who believe they should be members of it.

In support of his statement he told of a conversation which passed between himself and Judge Emily Murphy of Edmonton, the well-known "Janey Canuck."

Col. Ham had heard that Mrs. Murphy was desirous of obtaining a seat in the Senate and asked her in a characteristic fashion, "What the devil she wanted to be in the Senate for?"

"Well," replied Judge Murphy, "there are a great bunch of old women in the Senate now, so surely one more wouldn't matter."
