Style of Communication

Plain language

- Use less technical terms.
- Make sentences as simple as possible.

Multilingual

- Promoting the use of various local languages.

Celebrates cultural diversity

- Contents highly inspired by the richness of cultural and lingual diversity in Indonesia

Attractive design

- Contents designed in compact, neat, and shareable format.

Types of Content

PRIMARY CONTENT

Case Study 1: Story from the Heart

The highest engaged 'Primary Content' type in Wikimedia Indonesia with >1.4K retweets, >500 shares on FB, >300 like on IG

- Telling our struggles against aggressive vandalism in Wikipedia
- Touching yet clear message
- Stimulate opinion and support

“Kami kecewa dengan vandalisme di Wikipedia.”

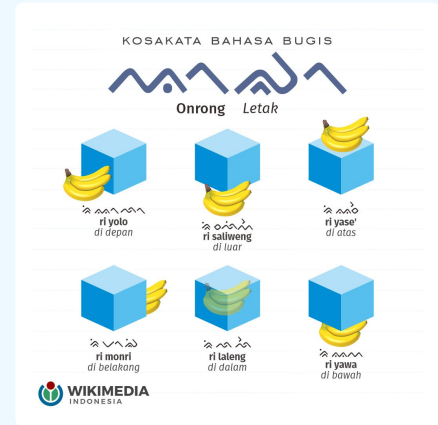

Wikipedia bukanlah tempat untuk menyalurkan kebencian, protes, atau keisenganmu terhadap lembaga, orang atau pihak mana pun.

Case Study 2: The More The Merrier

Content for local language learning comes in series that every community can participate and take pride of their heritage language.

- One main template design can produce wide variety of contents (efficient!)
- Foster a sense of togetherness in community and movement.
- Community or contributor can request a version in their own language

Case Study 3: Riding The Wave

Sometimes, following the trend is OK! Take advantage of what's people are into in some period of time. It's useful for reaching wider audience and gaining more followers.

- Seeing what's trending on social media, and create relevant content about it
- Celebration that widely celebrated can be anticipated (we can prepare a content before the day)

The Queen's Gambit Trend

Batik Day Celebration

ZODIAK BAHASA INDONESIA

Serapan Latin, Sanskerta, dan Arab

Astrology Trend

MENGENAL POTONGAN DAGING SAPI

Eid al-Adha Celebration

Case Study 4: Worth to Share Worth to Adapt

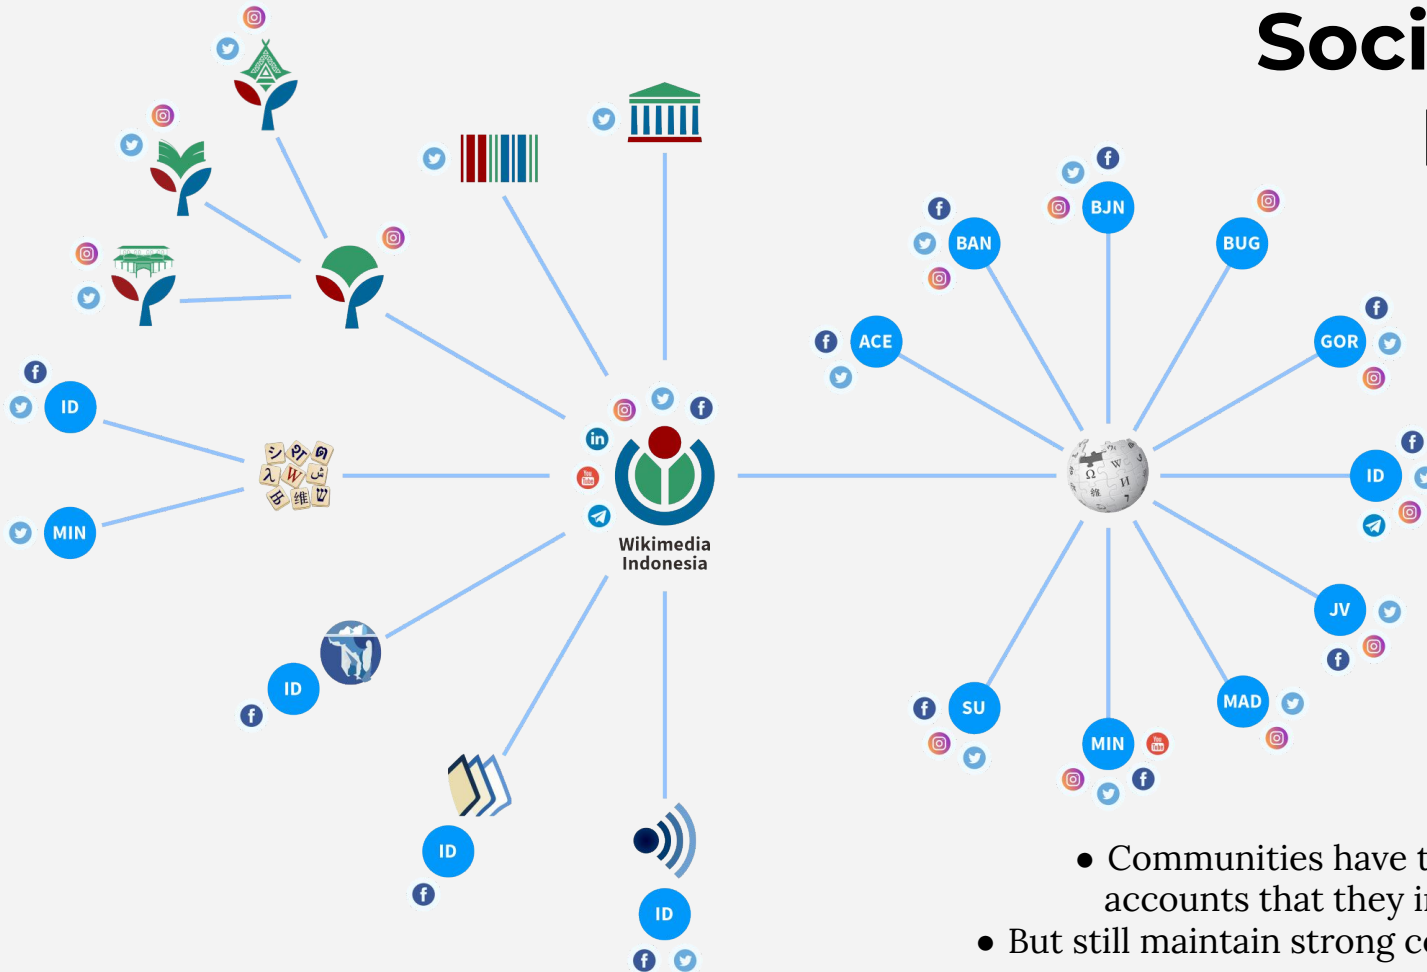

Many of our contents are adapted by other institutions/communities after getting many shares or likes (sometimes we call it viral?). We are glad that our contents are useful.

Key factors:

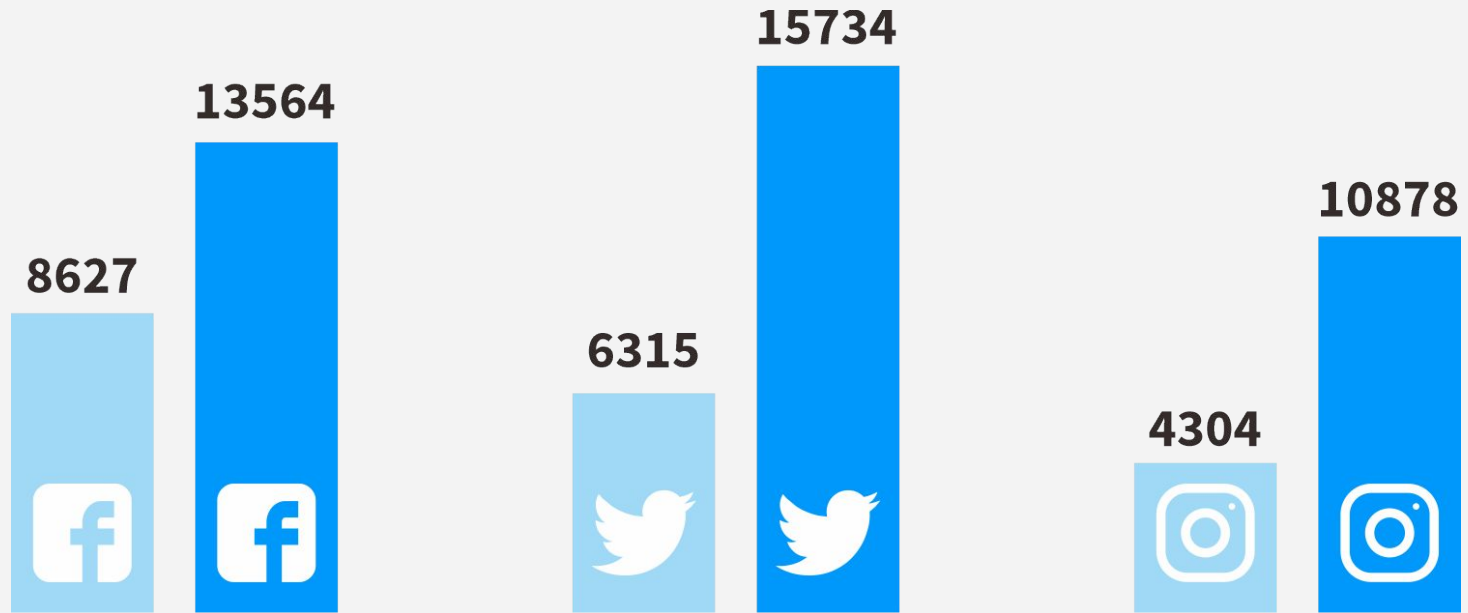

- Quick and easy to digest visualization
- Compact and rich information, long and detailed text is not preferred
- Original, new, and rare kind of knowledge found on the internet

Followers Growth

 Oct. 2019
 Oct. 2021

- In the past two years, we doubled the number of followers on TW & IG
- But the same contents seem to be worked differently on FB
