PREFACE.

THE INSTITUTES OF MENU, whether regarded for their great antiquity and classic beauty, or for their importance, as being considered a divine revelation by nearly a hundred millions of people, who are mostly British subjects, must ever claim the attention of those who devote themselves to the study of the Sanscrit language, either from literary curiosity, or with the desire of fitting themselves for the Company's Service. Though inferior to the Védas in antiquity, they are held to be equally sacred; and owing to their being more intimately connected with the business of life, have tended so much to mould the opinions of the Hindus, that it would be impossible thoroughly to comprehend the literature or local usages of India, without being master of their contents. Hence, independently of the literary curiosity of the work as a record of ancient opinions, and of existing laws, it must be made a subject of elementary study by every one who is desirous of any degree of intimacy intimacy with Hindu ideas. The system of instruction at this College being one preparatory for practical application in India, these Institutes have been made a part of the course of Sanscrit study; and it must be conceded, that a better work could scarcely have been selected for the purpose.

It appeared highly desirable to take advantage of the aid which Sir W. Jones' translation would afford the student for the comprehension of so difficult, as well as ancient a book, comprising in itself every subject, from the first principles of metaphysics, to the ultimate rewards and punishments of good and evil deeds done in this state of existence. His translation forms, in consequence, the second volume of the work; and some few notes and illustrations have been added to it, where subsequent research and observation had rendered those subjects definite, which he had been obliged to express generally, or in the native terms.

To complete this work, so as to make it perfectly intelligible to scholars who study in private, the printing either the whole, or a selection of the admirable comment of Cullu'ca Bhatta would be of the highest utility. Such a plan the Editor has had in view; but state of his lealth forbids him making any promise on the subject. Should he ever be able to accomplish his wish, it will form a third volume.

Mention will be found made in the Notes of valuable criticisms and other aid received from the kindness of friends, for which the Editor is happy to express his thanks; but he feels these are more particularly due to his kind and estimable friend Mr. Charles Wilkins, for the most ready communication of his opinion, on any occasion, when difficulties required elucidation, or the sanction of higher authority than the Editor's own judgment.

It will be obvious that this work is not a publication according to the usual acceptation of the term; but is one especially appropriated for the East-India Company's Service. It has not been edited with a view either to literary fame, or the desire of evincing superior critical knowledge; but has resulted solely from the wants of the College.

SIR WILLIAM JONES.

T is a maxim in the science of legislation and government, that Laws are of no avail without manners, or, to explain the sentence more fully, that the best intended legislative provisions would have no beneficial effect even at first, and none at all in a short course of time, unless they were congenial to the disposition and habits, to the religious prejudices, and approved immemorial usages of the people for whom they were enacted; especially if that people universally and sincerely believed, that all their ancient usages and established rules of conduct had the sanction of an actual revelation from heaven: the legislature of Britain having shown, in compliance with this maxim, an intention to leave the natives of these Indian provinces in possession of their own Laws, at least on the titles of contracts and inheritances, we may humbly presume, that all future provisions, for the administration administration of justice and government in India, will be conformable, as far as the natives are affected by them, to the manners and opinions of the natives themselves: an object, which cannot possibly be attained, until those manners and opinions can be fully and accurately known These considerations, and a few others more immediately within my province, were my principal motives for wishing to know, and have induced me at length to publish, that system of duties, religious and civil, and of law in all its branches, which the Hindus firmly believe to have been promulged in the beginning of time by Menu, son or grandson of Brahma' or, in plain language, the first of created beings, and not the oldest only, but the holiest, of legislators; a system so comprehensive and so minutely exact, that it may be considered as the Institutes of Hindu Law, preparatory to the copious Digest, which has lately been compiled by Pandits of eminent learning, and introductory perhaps to a Code, which may supply the many natural defects in the old jurisprudence of this country, and, without any deviation from its principles, accommodate it justly to the improvements of a commercial age.

We are lost in an inextricable labyrinth of imaginary astronomical cycles, Yugas, Maháyugas, Ca pas, and Menwanlaras, in attem ting to calculate the time, when the first Menu, according to the Bráhmens, governed this world, and became the progenitor of mankind, who from him are called Mánaváh; nor can we, so clouded are the old history and chronology of India with fables and allegories, ascertain the precise age, when the work, now presented to the Publick, was actually composed; but we are in possession of some evidence, partly extrinsick and partly internal, that it is really one of the oldest compositions existing. From a text of Para'sara, discovered by Mr. Davis, it appears, that the vernal equinox had gone back from the tenth degree of Bharani to the irst of Aswin, or twenty-three degree and twenty minutes, between the days of that Indian philosopher, and the year of our Lord 499, when it coincided with the origin of the Hindu ecliptick; Go that PARA'SARA probably flourished near the close of the twel th century before Christ: now Para'sara was the grandson of another sage, named Va'sisht'ha, who is often mentioned in the laws of Menu, and once as contemporary with the divine Burigu himself; but the character of Burigu, and the whole dramatical arrangement of the book before us, are clearly fictitious and ornamental, with a design, too common among ancient lawgivers, of stamping authority on the work by the introduction of supernatural personages, though Va'sisht'ha may have lived

many generations before the actual writer of it; who names him, indeed, in one or two places, as a philosopher in an earlier period. The style, however, and metre of this work which there is not the smallest reason to think affectedly obsolete are widely different from the language and metrical rules of Ca'LIDA's, who unquestionably wrote before the beginning of our era; and the dialect of Menu is even observed, in many passages, to resemble that of the Véda, particularly in a departure from the more modern grammatical forms; whence it must at first view seem very probable, that the laws, now brought to light, were considerably older than those of Solon or even of Lycurgus, although the promulgation of them, before they were reduced to writing, might have been coeval with the first monarchies established in Egypt or Asia: but, having had the singular good fortune to procure ancient copies of eleven Upanishads, with a very perspicuous comment, I am enabled to fix with more exactness the probable age of the work before us, and even to limit its highest possible age, by a mode of reasoning, which may be thought new, but will be found, I persuade myself, satisfactory; if the Publick shall on this occasion give me credit for a few very curious facts, which, though capable of strict proof, can at resent be only asserted. The Sanscrit of the three three first Vedas (I need not here speak of the fourth), that of the Mánava Dherma Sástra, and that of the Puránas, differ from each other in pretty exact proportion to the Latin of Numa, from whose laws entire sentences are preserved, that of Appius, which we see in the fragments of the Twelve Tables, and that of CI-CERO, or of Lucretius, where he has not affected an obsolete style: if the several changes, therefore, of Sanscrit and Latin took place, as we may fairly assume, in times very nearly proportional, the Védas must have been written about 300 years before these Institutes. and about 600 before the Puránas and Itihásas, which, I am fully convinced, were not the productions of Vya'sa: so that, if the son of PARA'SARA committed the traditional Védas to writing in the Sanscrit of his father's time, the original of this book must have received its present form about 880 years before Christ's birth. If the texts, indeed, which Vya'sa collected, had been actually written, in a much older dialect, by the sages preceding him, we must inquire into the greatest possible age of the Védas themselves: now one of the longest and finest Upanishads in the second Véda contains three lists, in a regular series upwards, of at most orty-two pupils and preceptors, who successively received and transmitted probably by oral tradition the b 2 doctrines doctrines contained in that Upanishad; and as the old Indian priests were students at i teen, and instructors at twenty-five, we cannot allow more than ten years, on an average, for each interval between the respective traditions; whence, as there are orty such intervals, in two of the lists, between Vya'sa, who arranged the whole work, and Aya'sa, who is extolled at the beginning of it, and just as many in the third list, between the compiler and Ya'JNYAWALCYA, who makes the principal figure in it, we find the highest age of the Yajur Véda to be 1580 years before the birth of our Saviour. which would make it older than the five books of Moses and that of our Indian law tract about 1280 years before the same epoch. The former date, however, seems the more probable of the two, because the Hindu sages are said to have delivered their knowledge orally, and the very word Sruta, which we often see used for the Véda itself, means what was heard; not to insist, that Cullu'ca expressly declares the sense of the Véda to be conveyed in the language of Vya'sa. Whether Menu or Menus in the nominative and Meno's in an oblique case, was the same personage with Minos, let others determine; but he must indubitably have been far older than tie work, which contains his laws, and, though perhaps he was never in Crete, yet some of his institutions may well have been adopted in that island, whence Lycurgus, a century or two afterwards, may have imported them to Sparta.

" by

There is certainly a strong resemblance, though obscured and faded by time, between our Menu with his divine Bull, whom he names as DHERMA himself, or the genius of abstract justice, and the Mneues of Egypt with his companion or symbol, Apis; and, though we should be constantly on our guard against the delusion of etymological conjecture, yet we cannot but admit that Minos and Mneues, or Mneuis, have only Greek terminations, but that the crude noun is composed of the same radical letters both in Greek and in Sanscrit. ' That Apis and Mnguis, ' says the Analyst of ancient Mythology, 'were both representations of some per-' sonage, appears from the testimony of Lycophron and ' his scholiast, and that personage was the same, who ' in Crete was styled Minos and who was also repre-' sented under the emblem of the Minotaur: DIODORUS, ' who confines him to Egypt, speaks of him by the ' title of the bull Mneuis, as the first lawgiver, and says, "That he lived after the age of the gods and heroes, "when a change was made in the manner of life among "men; that he was a man of a most exalted soul, and " a great promoter of civil society, which he benefited

"by his laws; and those laws were unwritten, and re-" ceived by him from the chief Egyptian deity HERMES, " who conferred them on the world as a gift of the high-" est importance." He was the same, adds my learned ' friend, with Menes, whom the Egyptians represented ' as their first king and principal benefactor, who first ' sacrificed to the gods, and brought about a great change ' in diet.' If Minos, the son of Jupiter, whom the Cretans, from national vanity, might have made a native of their own island, was really the same person with Menu, the son of Brahma', we have the good fortune to restore, by means of Indian literature, the most celebrated system of heathen jurisprudence, and this work might have been entitled The Laws o Minos; but the paradox is too singular to be confidently asserted, and the geographical part of the book, with most of the allusions to natural history, must indubitably have been written after the Hindu race had settled to the south of Himálaya. We cannot but remark that the word MENU has no relation whatever to the Moon; and that it was the seventh, not the wst, of that name, whom the Brahmens believe to have been preserved in an ark from the general deluge: him they call the Child o the San, to distinguish im from our legislator; but they assign to = brother Yama the o ice which the Greeks were pleased pleased to confer on Minos) of Judge in the shades below.

The name of Menu is clearly derived (like menes, mens, and mind) from the root men to understand; and it signifies, as all the Pandits agree, intelligent, particularly in the doctrines of the Véda, which the composer of our Dherma Sástra must have studied very diligently; since great numbers of its texts, changed only in a few syllables for the sake of the measure, are interspersed through the work and cited at length in the commentaries: the Publick may, therefore, assure themselves, that they now possess a considerable part of the Hindu scripture, without the dullness of its profane ritual or much of its mystical jargon. Da'BA Shucu'h was persuaded, and not without sound reason, that the first Menu of the Bráhmens could be no other person than the progenitor of mankind, to whom Jews, Christians, and Muselmáns unite in giving the name of ADAM; but, whoever he might have been, he is highly honoured by name in the Véda itse f, where it is declared, that 'what-' ever Menu pronounced, was a medicine for the soul;' and the sage VRIHASPETI, now supposed to preside over the planet Jupiter, says in his own law tract, that 'ME-' NU held the first rank among legislators, because he ' had expressed in his code the whole sense of the Véda; ' that that no code was approved, which contradicted Menu; that other Sástras, and treatises on grammar or logick, retained splendour so long only. as Menu, who taught the way to just wealth, to virtue, and to final happiness, was not seen in competition with them; Vya'sa too, the son of Para'sara before mentioned, has decided, that the Véda with its Angas, or the six compositions deduced from it, the revealed system of medicine, the Puránas, or sacred histories, and the code of Menu, were four works of supreme authority, which ought never to be shaken by arguments merely human.'

It is the general opinion of Pandits, that Brahma' taught his laws to Menu in a hundred thousand verses, which Menu explained to the primitive world in the very words of the book now translated, where he names himself, after the manner of ancient sages, in the third person; but, in a short preface to the law tract of Na'red, it is asserted, that 'Menu, having written the laws of Brahma' in a hundred thousand slocas or couplets, 'arranged un er twenty-our heads in a thousand chapters, delivered the work to Na'red, the sage among gods, who abridged it, for the use of mankind, in twelve thousand verses, and gave them to a son of Bhrigu, name Sumati, who, for greater ease to the human race, reduce them to our thousand; that mor-

'tals read only the second abridgement by Sumati, while the gods of the lower heaven, and the band of celestial musicians, are engaged in studying the primary code, beginning with the fifth verse, a little varied, of the work now extant on earth; but that nothing remains of Na'red's abridgement, except an elegant epitome of the ninth original title on the administration of justice.' Now, since these institutes consist only of two thousand six hundred and eighty five verses, they cannot be the whole work ascribed to Sumati, which is probably distinguished by the name of the Vridd'ha, or ancient, Mánava, and cannot be found entire: though several passages from it, which have been preserved by tradition, are occasionally cited in the new digest.

A number of glosses or comments on Menu were composed by the Munis, or old philosophers, whose treatises, together with that before us, constitute the Dherma Sástra, in a collective sense, or Body of Law; among the more modern commentaries, that called Médhátit'hi that by Go'vindara'ja, and that by Dharani'-Dhera, were once in the greatest repute; but the first was reckoned prolix and unequal: the second, concise but obscure; and the third, often erroneous. At length appeared Cullu'ca Bhatta; who, after a painful course of study and the collation of numerous manuscripts, produced a work, of which it may, perhaps, be said very truly, that it is the shortest, yet the most luminous, the least ostentatious, yet the most learned, the deepest, yet the most agreeable, commentary ever composed on any author ancient or modern, European or Asiatick. The Pandits care so little for genuine chronology, that none of them can tell me the age of Cullu'ca, whom they always name with applause; but he informs us himself, that he was a Bráhmen of the Váréndra tribe, whose family had been long settled in Gaur or Bengal, but that he had chosen his residence among the learned on the banks of the holy river at Cási. His text and interpretation I have almost implicitly followed, though I had myself collated many copies of Menu, and among them a manuscript of a very ancient date: his gloss is here printed in Italicks; and any reader, who may choose to pass it over as if unprinted, will have in Roman letters an exact version of the original, and may form some idea of its character and structure, as well as of the Sanscrit idiom, which must necessarily be preserved in a verbal translation; and a translation, not scrupulously verbal, would have been highly improper in a work on so delicate and momentous a subject as private and criminal jurisprudence.

Should a series of Bráhmens omit, for three generations, the reading of Menu, their sacerdotal class, as all the Pandits assure me, would in strictness be forfeited; but they must explain it only to their pupils of the three highest classes; and the Bráhmen, who read it with me, requested most earnestly, that his name might be concealed; nor would he have read it for any consideration on a forbidden day of the moon, or without the ceremonies prescribed in the second and fourth chapters for a lecture on the Véda: so great, indeed, is the idea of sanctity annexed to this book, that, when the chief native magistrate at Banares endoavoured, at my request, to procure a Persian translation of it, before I had a hope of being at any time able to understand the original, the Pundits of his court unanimously and positively refused to assist in the work; nor should I have procured it at all, if a wealthy Hindu at Gayà had not caused the version to be made by some of his dependants, at the desire of my friend Mr. Law. The Persian translation of Menu, like all others from the Sanscrit into that language, is a rude intermixture of the text, loosely rendered, with some old or new comment, and often with the crude notions of the translator; and, though it expresses the general sense of the original, yet it swarms with errours, imputable partly to haste, and partly to ignorance: thus where Menu says, that emissaries are the eyes of a prince, the Persian phrase makes him ascribe our eyes to the person of a king; for the word chár, which means an emissary in Sanscrit, signifies four in the popular dialect.

The work, now presented to the European world, contains abundance of curious matter extremely interesting both to speculative lawyers and antiquaries, with many beauties, which need not be pointed out, and with many blemishes, which cannot be justified or palliated. It is a system of despotism and priestcraft, both indeed limited by law, but artfully conspiring to give mutual support, though with mutual checks; it is filled with strange conceits in metaphysicks and natural philosophy, with idle superstitions, and with a scheme of theology most obscurely figurative, and consequently liable to dangerous misconception; it abounds with minute and childish formalities, with ceremonies generally absurd and often ridiculous; the punishments are partial and fanciful; for some crimes, dreadfully cruel, for others reprehensibly slight; and the very morals, though rigid enough on the whole, are in one or two instances as in the case of light oaths and of pious perjury) unaccountably countably relaxed: nevertheless, a spirit of sublime devotion, of benevolence to mankind, and of amiable tenderness to all sentient creatures, pervades the whole work; the style of it has a certain austere majesty, that sounds like the language of legislation and extorts a respectful awe; the sentiments of independence on all being's but God, and the harsh admonitions even to kings, are truly noble; and the many panegyricks on the Gáyatri, the Mother, as it is called, of the Véda, prove the author to have adored (not the visible material sun, but) that divine and incomparably greater light, to use the words of the most venerable text in the Indian scripture, which illumines all, delights all, rom which all proceed, to which all must return, and which alone can irradiate (not our visual organs merely, but our souls and) our intellects. Whatever opinion in short may be formed of Menu and his laws, in a country happily enlightened by sound philosophy and the only true revelation, it must be remembered, that those laws are actually revered, as the word of the Most High, by nations of great importance to the political and commercial interests of Europe, and particularly by many millions of Hindu subjects, whose well directed industry would add largely to the wealth of Britain, and who ask no more in return than protection protection for their persons and places of abode, justice in their temporal concerns, indulgence to the prejudices of their old religion, and the benefit of those laws, which they have been taught to believe sacred, and which alone they can possibly comprehend.

LAWS OF MENU,

SON OF BRAHMA'.

CHAP. 1.

On the Creation; with a Summary of the Contents.

- 1. MENU sat reclined, with his attention fixed on CHAP. one object, the Sapreme God; when the divine Sages approached him, and, after mutual salutations in due form, delivered the following address:
- 2. 'Deign, sovereign ruler, to apprize us of the sa-'cred laws in their order, as they must be followed by 'all the our classes, and by each of them, in their 'several degrees, together with the duties of every 'mixed class;
- 3. 'For thou, Lord, and thou only among mortals, 'knowest the true sense, the first principle, and the 'prescribed ceremonies, of this universal, supernatural 'Véda, unlimited in extent and unequalled in authority.'

- I. requested by the great Sages, whose thoughts were profound, saluted them all with reverence, and gave them a comprehensive answer, saying: 'Be it heard!
 - 5. 'This universe existed only in the irst divine idea 'yet unexpanded, as if involved in darkness, imperceptible, undefinable, undiscoverable by reason, and undiscovered by revelation, as if it were wholly immersted in sleep:
 - 6. 'Then the sole self-existing power, himself undiscrened, but making this world discernible, with five elements and other principles of nature, appeared with undiminished glory, expanding his idea, or dispelling the gloom.
 - 7. 'HE, whom the mind alone can perceive, whose 'essence eludes the external organs, who has no visible 'parts, who exists from eternity, even HE, the soul of all beings, whom no being can comprehend, shone 'forth in person.
 - 8. 'HE, having willed to produce various beings from 'his own divine substance, first with a thought created 'the waters, and placed in them a productive seed:
 - 9. 'The seed became an egg bright as gold, blazing 'like the luminary with a thousand beams; and in that 'egg, he was born himself, in the form of Brahma', the great forefather of all spirits.
 - 10. ' 'e waters are ca'led nárá, because they were ' the

- ' the production of NARA, or the spirit of GoD; and CHAP.
- ' since they were his first ayana, or place of motion, he
- ' thence is named Na'ra'yana, or moving on the waters.
- 11. 'From THAT WHICH IS, the first cause, not the 'object of sense, existing every where in substance, not 'existing to our perception, without beginning or end, 'was produced the divine male, famed in all worlds
- ' under the appellation of BBAHMA'.
- 12. 'In that egg the great power sat inactive a whole 'year of the Creator, at the close of which, by his 'thought alone, he caused the egg to divide itself;
- 13. 'And from its two divisions he framed the heaven 'above and the earth beneath: in the midst he placed 'the subtil ether, the eight regions, and the permanent 'receptacle of waters.
- 14. 'From the supreme soul he drew forth Mind, existing substantially though unperceived by sense, immaterial; and hefore mind, or the reasoning power, he produced consciousness, the internal monitor, the ruler;
- 15. 'And, before them both, he produced the great 'principle of the soul, or first eapansion of the divine 'idea; and all vital forms endued with the three qualities of goodness, passion, and darkness; and the five 'perceptions of sense, and the five organs of sensation.
- 16. 'Thus, having at once pervaded, with emanations from the Supreme Spirit, the minutest portions of six B 2 'principles

- CHAP. 'principles immensely operative, consciousness and the
 1. 'five perceptions, He framed all creatures;
 - 17. 'And since the minutest particles of visible nature have a dependence on those six emanations from
 - · God, the wise have accordingly given the name of
 - · s'aríra or depending on six, that is, the ten organs on
 - ' consciousness, and the five elements on as many percep-
 - · tions, to His image or appearance in visible nature:
 - 18. 'Thence proceed the great elements, endued with 'peculiar powers, and Mind with operations infinitely subtil, the unperishable cause of all apparent forms.
 - 19. 'This universe, therefore, is compacted from the 'minute portions of those seven divine and active prin-
 - ' ciples, the great Soul, or first emanation, consciousness,
 - ' and five perceptions; a mutable universe from immuta-
 - ' ble ideas.
 - 20. 'Among them each succeeding element acquires 'the quality of the preceding; and, in as many degrees 'as each of them is advanced, with so many properties 'is it said to be endued.
 - 21. 'He too first assigned to all creatures distinct ' наmes, distinct acts, and distinct occupations; as they ' had been revealed in the pre-existing Véda.
 - 22. 'He, the supreme Ruler, created an assemblage of inferior Deities, with divine attributes and pure souls; and a number of Genii exquisitely delicate; and he prescribed the sacrifice ordained from the beginning.

- 23. 'From fire, from air, and from the sun he milk- CHAP.
- ' ed out, as it were, the three primordial Vedas, named
- ' Rich, Yajush and Sáman, for the due performance of
- ' the sacrifice.
 - 24 ' HE gave being to time and the divisions of time.
- to the stars also, and to the planets, to rivers, oceans.
- ' and mountains, to level plains, and uneven valleys.
- 25. 'To devotion, speech, complacency, desire, and
- ' wrath, and to the creation, which shall presently be
- ' mentioned; for He willed the existence of all those
- ' created things.
- 26. 'For the sake of distinguishing actions, He
- ' made a total difference between right and wrong, and
- ' enured these sentient creatures to pleasure and pain,
- ' cold and heat, and other opposite pairs.
- 27. 'With very minute transformable portions, call-
- ' ed mátrás, of the five elements, all this perceptible
- ' world was composed in fit order;
- 28. 'And in whatever occupation the supreme Lord
- ' first employed any vital soul, to that occupation the
- ' same soul attaches itself spontaneously, when it re-
- ' ceives a new body again and again.
 - 29. 'Whatever quality, noxious or innocent, harsh
- ' or mild, unjust or just, false or true, He conferred
- ' on any being at its creation, the same quality enters
- ' it of course on its uture buths;

- CHAP. 30. 'As the six seasons of the year attain respectively their peculiar marks in due time and of their 'own accord, even so the several acts of each embodied spirit attend it naturally.
 - 31. 'That the human race might be multiplied, He caused the Bráhmen, the Cshatriya, the Vaisya, and the Súdra (so named from the scripture, protection, wealth, and labour) to proceed from his mouth, his arm, his thigh, and his foot.
 - 32. 'Having divided his own substance, the mighty 'Power became half male, half female, or nature active 'and passive; and from that female he produced Vira's:
 - 33. 'Know Me, O most excellent of Brahmens, to 'be that person, whom the male power Vira's, having 'performed austere devotion, produced by himself; 'Me, the secondary framer of all this visible world.
 - 34. 'It was I, who, desirous of giving birth to a race 'of men, performed very difficult religious duties, and 'first produced ten Lords of created beings, eminent in 'holiness.
 - 35. 'Mari'chi, Atri, Angiras, Pulastya, Pulaha, 'Cratu, Prache'tas, or Dacsha, Vasisht'ha, Bhrigu, 'and Na'rada:
 - 36. 'They, abundant in glory, produced seven other 'Menus, together with deities, and the mansions of deities, and Maharshis, or great Sages, unlimited in 'power;

- 37. 'Benevolent genii, and fierce giants, blood-thirsty CHAP. 'savages, heavenly quiristers, nymphs and demons, huge
- ' serpents and snakes of smaller size, birds of mighty
- ' wing, and separate companies of Pitris, or progenitors
- ' of mankind;
- 38. 'Lightnings and thunder-bolts, clouds and co-'loured bows of Indra, falling meteors, earth-rending 'vapours, comets, and luminaries of various degrees;
- 39. 'Horse-faced sylvans, apes, rish, and a variety of birds, tame cattle, deer, men, and ravenous beasts with two rows of teeth;
- 40. 'Small and large reptiles, moths, lice, deas, and common flies, with every biting gnat, and immovable substances of distinct sorts.
- 41. 'Thus was this whole assemblage of stationary and movable bodies framed by those high-minded beings, through the force of their own devotion, and at my command, with separate actions allotted to each.
- 42. 'Whatever act is ordained for each of those 'creatures here below, that I will now declare to you, 'together with their order in respect to birth.
- 43. 'Cattle and deer, and wild beasts with two rows of teeth, giants, and blood-thirsty savages, and the race of men, are born from a secundine;
- 44. 'Birds are satche from eggs, so are snakes, 'crocodiles, fish w twout shells, and tortoises, with other animal

- CHAP. 'animal kinds, terrestrial, as chamelions, and aquatick,

 1. 'as shell-fish:
 - 45. 'From hot moisture are born biting gnats, lice, 'fleas, and common flies; these, and whatever is of the same class, are produced by heat.
 - 46. 'All vegetables, propagated by seed or by slips, 'grow from shoots: some herbs, abounding in flowers 'and fruits, perish when the fruit is mature;
 - 47. 'Other plants, called lords of the forest, have no flowers, but produce fruit; and, whether they have flowers also, or fruit only, large woody plants of both sorts are named trees.
 - 48. 'There are shrubs with many stalks from the 'root upwards, and reeds with single roots but united 'stems, all of different kinds, and grasses, and vines 'or climbers, and creepers, which spring from a seed 'or from a slip.
 - 49. 'These animals and vegetables, encircled with 'multiform darkness, by reason of past actions, have 'internal conscience, and are sensible of pleasure and 'pain.
 - 50. 'All transmigrations, recorded in sacred books, 'from the state of Brahma', to that of plants, happen 'continually in this tremendous world of beings: a 'world always tending to decay.
 - 51. 'HE, whose powers are incomprehensible, hav-'ing thus created both me and this universe, was 'again

again absorbed in the supreme Spirit, changing the CHAP. time of energy for the time of repose.

- 52. 'When that Power awakes, (for, though slumber be not predicable of the sole eternal Mind, infinitely 'wise and infinitely benevolent, yet it is predicated of 'Brahma', figuratively, as a general property of life)
- ' then has this world its full expansion; but, when he
- ' slumbers with a tranquil spirit, then the whole system
- ' fades away;
 - 53. 'For, while he reposes, as it were, in calm sleep,
- ' embodied spirits, endued with principles of action,
- ' depart from their several acts, and the mind itself
- ' becomes inert;
- 54. 'And when they once are absorbed in that su-'preme essence, then the divine soul of all beings 'withdraws his energy, and placidly slumbers;
- 55. 'Then too this vital soul of created bodies, with
- 'all the organs of sense and of action, remains long
- ' immersed in the first idea or in darkness, and per-
- ' forms not its natural functions, but migrates from its
- ' corporeal frame:
- 56. 'When, being again composed of minute ele-'mentary principles, it enters at once into vegetable
- ' or animal seed, it then assumes a new form.
- 57. 'Thus that immutable Power, by waking and reposing alternately, revivifies and destroys in eternal

 - 58. 'He, having enacted this code of laws, himself 'taught it fully to me in the beginning: afterwards I 'taught it Mari'chi and the nine other holy sages.
 - 59. 'This my son Bhrigu will repeat the divine code 'to you without omission; for that sage learned from 'me to recite the whole of it.'
 - 60. Berigu, great and wise, having thus been appointed by Menu to promulge his laws, addressed all the Rishis with an affectionate mind, saying: 'Hear!
 - 61. 'From this Menu named Swayambhuva, or 'Sprung from the sel-existing, came six descendants, 'other Menus, or per ectly understanding the scripture, each giving birth to a race of his own, all extalted in ignity, eminent in power;
 - 62. 'Swa'ro'chisha', Auttami, Ta'masa, Raivata like-'wise and Cha'cshusha, beaming with glory, and Vai-'vaswata, child of the sun.
 - 63. 'The seven Menus, (or those irst created, who are to be ollowed by seven more of whom Swayam-Bhuva is the chief, have produced and supported this world of moving and stationary beings, each in his own antara, or the period o his reign.

SUMMARY OF THE CONTENTS.

' one muhúrta: and just so many muhúrtas let man- CHAP. ' kind consider as the duration of their day and night.

- 65. 'The sun causes the distribution of day and 'night, both divine and human; night being intended 'for the repose of various beings, and day for their 'exertion.
- 66. 'A month of mortals is a day and a night of the Pitris or patriarchs inhabiting the moon; and the division of a month being into equal halves, the half beginning from the full moon is their day for actions; and that beginning from the new moon is their night for slumber.
- 67. 'A year o mortals is a day and a night of the Gods, or regents of the universe seated round the north pole; and again their division is this, their day is the northern, and their night the southern course of the sun.
- 68. 'Learn now the duration of a day and a night 'of Brahma', and of the several ages which shall be 'mentioned in order succinctly.
- 69. 'Sages have given the name of Crita to an age containing four thousand years of the Gods; the twilight preceding it consists of as many hundreds, and the twilight following it, of the same number:
- 70. 'In the other three ages, with their twilights 'preceding and following, are thousands and hun'dreds diminished by one.

71. 'The

- CHAP. 71. 'The divine years, in the four human ages just 'enumerated, being added together, their sum, or 'twelve thousand, is called the age of the Gods:
 - 72. 'And, by reckoning a thousand such divine 'ages, a day of Brahma' may be known: his night 'also has an equal duration:
 - 73. 'Those persons best know the divisions of the 'days and nights, who understand that the day of 'Brahma', which endures to the end of a thousand 'such ages, gives rise to virtuous exertions; and that 'his night endures as long as his day.
 - 74. 'At the close of his night, having long reposed, he awakes, and awaking, exerts intellect, or reproduces the great principle of animation, whose property it is to exist unperceived by sense:
 - 75. 'Intellect, called into action by his will to cre'ate worlds, performs again the work of creation;
 'and thence first emerges the subtil ether, to which
 'philosophers ascribe the quality of conveying sound;
 - 76. 'From ether, effecting a transmutation in form, 'springs the pure and potent air, a vehicle of all 'scents; and air is held endued with the quality of 'touch:
 - 77. 'Then from air, operating a change, rises light 'or ire, making objects visible, dispelling gloom, 'spreading bright rays; and it is declared to have the 'qua't of figure;

- 78. 'But from light, a change being effected, comes CHAP.
- ' water with the quality of taste; and from water is
- ' deposited earth with the quality of smell: such were
- ' they created in the beginning.
 - 79. 'The before-mentioned age of the Gods, or
- ' twelve thousand of their years, being multiplied by
- ' seventy-one, constitutes what is here named a Men-
- ' wantara, or the reign of a Menu.
- 80. There are numberless Menwantaras; creations
- ' also and destructions of worlds, innumerable: the
- ' Being supremely exalted performs all this, with as
- ' much ease as if in sport; again and again or the
- ' sake of conferring happiness.
 - 81. 'In the Crita age the Genius of truth and right,
- ' in the form of a Bull, stands firm on his four feet;
- ' nor does any advantage accrue to men from iniquity;
 - 82. 'But in the following ages, by reason of unjust
- ' gains, he is deprived successively of one foot; and
- 'even just emoluments, through the prevalence of
- ' theft, falsehood, and fraud, are gradually diminished
- ' by a fourth part.
- 83. 'Men, free from disease, attain all sorts of
- · prosperity, and live four hundred years in the Crita
- · age; but, in the Trétà and the succeeding ages, their
- ' life is lessened gradually by one quarter.
 - 84. 'The life of mortals, which is mentioned in the Veda, the rewards of good works, and the powers

- CHAP. ' of embodied spirits, are fruits proportioned among

 I. ' men to the order of the four ages.
 - 85. 'Some duties are performed by good men in the 'Crita age; others, in the Trétà; some, in the Dwá'para; others, in the Cali; in proportion as those ages decrease in length.
 - 86. 'In the Crita the prevailing virtue is declared to be in devotion; in the Trétà, divine knowledge; in the Dwápara, holy sages call sacrifice the duty chiefly performed; in the Cali, liberality alone.
 - 87. For the sake of preserving this universe, the Being, supremely glorious, allotted separate duties to those who sprang respectively from his mouth, his arm, his thigh, and his foot.
 - 88. 'To Bráhmens he assigned the duties of read-'ing the Vida, of teaching it, of sacrificing, of as-'sisting others to sacrifice, of giving alms, if they be 'rich, and, if indigent, of receiving gifts:
 - 89. 'To defend the people, to give alms, to sacrifice, to read the Véda, to shun the allurements of sensua gratification, are, in a few words, the duties of a Cshatriya:
 - 90. 'To kee herds of cattle, to bestow argesses, to sacrifice, to read the scripture, to carry on trade, to lend at interest, and to cultivate land are pre'scribed or permitted to a Vaisya:

- 91. 'One principal duty the supreme Ruler assigns CHAP. 'to a Súdra; namely, to serve the before-mentioned 'classes, without depreciating their worth.
- 92. 'Man is declared purer above the navel; but 'the self-creating Power declared the purest part of 'him to be his mouth.
- 93. 'Since the Bráhmen sprang from the most ex'cellent part, since he was the first born, and since
 'he possesses the Véda, he is by right the chief of
 'this whole creation.
- 94. 'Him, the Being, who exists of himself, pro'duced in the beginning from his own mouth, that,
 'having performed holy rites, he might present cla'rified butter to the Gods, and cakes of rice to the
 'progenitors of mankind, for the preservation of this 'world:
- 95. 'What created being then can surpass Him, 'with whose mouth the Gods of the firmament continually feast on clarified butter, and the manes of 'ancestors, on hallowed cakes?
- 96. 'Of created things, the most excellent are 'those which are animated; of the animated, those 'which subsist by intelligence; of the intelligent, 'mankind; and of men, the sacerdotal class;
- 97. 'Of priests, those eminent in learning; of the 'learned, those who know their duty; of those who 'know it, such as perform it virtuously; and of the 'virtuous,

- CHAP. 'virtuous, those who seek beatitude from a perfect
 I. 'acquaintance with scriptural doctrine.
 - 98. 'The very birth of Bráhmens is a constant incar'nation of Dherma, God o Justice; for the Bráhmen
 'is born to promote justice, and to procure ultimate
 'happiness.
 - 99. 'When a Bráhmen springs to light, he is born above the world, the chief of all creatures, assigned to guard the treasury of duties, religious and civil.
 - 100. 'Whatever exists in the universe, is all in 'effect, though not in form, the wealth of the Bráh'men; since the Bráhmen is entitled to it all by his 'primogeniture and eminence of birth:
 - 101. 'The Bráhmen eats but his own food; wears 'but his own apparel: and bestows but his own in 'alms: through the benevolence of the Bráhmen, in-'deed, other mortals enjoy life.
 - 102. 'To declare the sacerdotal duties, and those 'of the other classes in due order, the sage Menu, 'sprung from the self-existing, promulged this code 'of laws:
 - 103. 'A code which must be studied with extreme 'care by every learned Bráhmen, and fully explained 'to his disciples, but must be taught by no other man o an in erier class.
 - 104. 'The Bráhmen who studies this book, having 'performed

- ' performed sacred rites, is perpetually free from of- CHAP fence in thought, in word, and in deed;
- 105. 'He confers purity on his living family, on 'his ancestors, and on his descendants, as far as the 'seventh person; and He alone deserves to possess 'this whole earth.
- 106. 'This most excellent code produces every thing auspicious; this code increases understanding; this code procures fame and long life; this code leads to supreme bliss.
- 107. 'In this book appears the system of law in 'its full extent, with the good and bad properties 'of human actions, and the immemorial customs of 'the four classes.
- 108. 'Immemorial custom is transcendent law, ap'proved in the sacred scripture, and in the codes
 'of divine legislators: let every man, therefore, of
 'the three principal classes, who has a due reverence
 'for the supreme spirit which dwells in him, diligently
 'and constantly observe immemorial custom:
- 109. 'A man of the priestly, military, or commer-'cial class, who deviates from immemorial usage, 'tastes not the fruit of the Vėda; but, by an exact 'observance of it, he gathers that fruit in perfection.
- 110. 'Thus have holy sages, well knowing that law 'is grounded on immemorial custom, embraced, as 'the root of all piety, good usages long established.

- CHAP. 111. 'The creation of this universe, the forms of I. 'institution and education, with the observances and 'behaviour of a student in theology; the best rules 'for the ceremony on his return from the mansion of 'his preceptor;
 - 112. 'The law of marriage in general, and of nup-'tials in different forms; the regulations for the great 'sacraments, and the manner, primevally settled, of 'performing obsequies;
 - 113. 'The modes of gaining subsistence, and the 'rules to be observed by the master of a family; the 'allowance and prohibition of diet, with the purification of men and utensils;
 - 114. 'Laws concerning women, the devotion of her-'mits, and of anchorets wholly intent on final beati-'tude, the whole duty of a king, and the judicial 'decision of controversies,
 - 115. 'With the law of evidence and examination; 'laws concerning husband and wife, canons of inheritance; the prohibition of gaming, and the punishments of criminals;
 - 116. 'Rules ordained for the mercantile and servile 'classes, with the origin of those that are mixed; the 'duties and rights of all the classes in time of distress 'for subsistence; and the penances for expiating sins;
 - 117. 'The several transmigrations in this universe, 'caused by offences of three kinds, with the ultimate 'bliss

- ' bliss attending good actions, on the full trial of vice CHAP.
 ' and virtue:
- 118. 'All these titles of law, promulgated by Menu, and occasionally the customs of different countries,
- ' different tribes, and different families, with rules con-
- ' cerning hereticks and companies of traders, are discussed in this code.
- 119. 'Even as Menu, at my request, formerly re'vealed this divine Sástra, hear it now from me with'out any diminution or addition.

CHAP. II.

On Education; or on the Sacerdotal Class, and the First Order.

- CHAP. 1. 'Know that system of duties, which is revered II. 'by such as are learned in the Vedas, and impressed, 'as the means of attaining beatitude, on the hearts 'of the just, who are ever exempt from hatred and 'inordinate affection.
 - 2. 'Self-love is no laudable motive, yet an exemp-'tion from self-love is not to be ound in this world.' on self-love is grounded the study of scripture, and 'the practice of actions recommended in it.
 - 3. 'Eager desire to act has its root in expectation of some advantage; and with such expectation are sacrifices performed; the rules of religious austerity and abstinence from sins are all known to arise from hope of remuneration.
 - 4. 'Not a single act here below appears ever to be done by a man free from self-love; whatever he performs, it is wrought from his desire of a reward.
 - 5. 'He, indeed, who should persist in discharging 'these duties without any view to their fruit, would 'attain hereafter the state of the immortals, and even

- ' in this life, would enjoy all the virtuous gratifica- CHAP. tions, that his fancy could suggest.
- 6. 'The roots of law are the whole Vėda, the or'dinances and moral practices of such as perfectly 'understand it, the immemorial customs of good men,
- ' and, in cases quite indifferent, self-satisfaction.
- 7. Whatever law has been ordained for any per-'son by Menu, that law is fully declared in the 'Vėda: for He was perfect in divine knowledge:
- 8. 'A man of true learning, who has viewed this 'complete system with the eye of sacred wisdom, 'cannot fair to perform all those duties, which are 'ordained on the authority of the Veda.
- 9. 'No doubt, that man who shall follow the rules 'prescribed in the Sruti and in the Smriti, will acquire fame in this life, and, in the next, inexpressible happiness:
- 10. 'By Sruti, or what was leard from above, is 'meant the Veda; and by Smriti, or what was remembered rom the beginning, the body of law: those two 'must not be oppugned by heterodox arguments; 'since from those two, proceeds the whole system of 'duties.
- 11. 'Whatever man of the three highest classes, 'having addicted himself to heretical books, shall 'treat with contempt those two roots of law, he must 'be

- CHAP. ' be driven, as an Atheist and a scorner of revelation,

 II. ' from the company of the virtuous.
 - 12. 'The scripture, the codes of law, approved 'usage, and, in all indi erent cases, self-satisfaction,
 - ' the wise have openly declared to be the quadruple
 - ' description of the juridical system.
 - 13. 'A knowledge of right is a sufficient incentive 'for men unattached to wealth or to sensuality; and 'to those who seek a knowledge of right, the su-'preme authority is divine revelation;
 - 14. 'But, when there are two sacred texts, appa' rently inconsistent, both are held to be law; for both
 ' are pronounced by the wise to be valid and recon' cilable;
 - 15. 'Thus in the Veda are these texts: "let the "sacrifice be when the sun has arisen," and, "before it has risen," and, "when neither sun nor stars can be seen:" the sacrifice, therefore, may be performed at any or all of those times.
 - 16. 'Ie, whose life is regulated by holy texts, from 'his conception even to his funeral pile, has a decided 'right to study this code; but no other man what- 'soever.
 - 17. 'ETWEEN the two divine rivers Saraswatí and Drisha watí, lies the tract of land, which the sages have named Brahmáverta, because it was frequented by Go. s:

- 18. 'The custom preserved by immemorial tradition CHAP. 'in that country, among the four pure classes, and 'among those which are mixed, is called approved 'usage.
- 19. 'Curucshétra, Matsya, Panchála, or Cámnacubja, 'and Súraséna, or Mathurà, form the region called 'Brahmarshi, distinguished from Brahmáverta:
- 20. 'From a Bráhmen who was born in that coun-'try, let all men on earth learn their several usages.
- 21. 'That country which lies between Himawat and 'Vindhya, to the east of Vinasana, and to the west 'of Prayága, is celebrated by the title of Medhya-' désa, or the central region.
- 22. 'As far as the eastern, and as far as the west-'ern oceans, between the two mountains just mentioned, lies the tract which the wise have named 'Arywerta, or inhabited by respectable men.
- 23. 'That land, on which the black antelope natu-'rally grazes, is held fit for the performance of sa-'crifices; but the land of Mlech'has or those who speak 'barbarously, differs widely from it.
- 24 'Let the three first classes invariably dwell in 'those before-mentioned countries; but a Súdra, distressed for subsistence, may sojourn wherever he 'chuses.
 - 25. 'Thus has the origin of law been succinctly 'declared

- CHAP. 'declared to you, together with the formation of this II. 'universe: now learn the laws of the several classes.
 - 26. 'WITH auspicious acts prescribed by the Veda, 'must ceremonies on conception, and so forth, be 'duly performed, which purify the bodies of the three 'classes in this life, and quality them for the next.
 - 27. 'By oblations to fire during the mother's preg-'nancy, by holy rites on the birth of the child, by the 'tonsure of his head with a lock of hair left on it, 'by the ligation of the sacrificial cord, are the se-'minal and uterine taints of the three classes wholly 'removed:
 - 28. 'By studying the Vėda, by religious observances, by oblations to fire, by the ceremony of Traividya, by offering to the Gods and Manes, by the procreation of children, by the five great sacraments, and by solemn sacrifices, this human body is rendered fit for a divine state.
 - 29. 'Before the section of the navel string a cere-'mony is ordained on the birth of a male: he must 'be made, while sacre- texts are pronounced, to taste 'a little honey and clarified butter from a golden 'spoon.
 - 30. 'Let the father per orm or, i absent, cause to 'e performed, on the tenth or twelfth day a ter the 'birth, the ceremony of giving a name; or on some fortunate day of the moon, at a lucky hour, and 'under the influence of a star with good qualities 31. 'The

- 31. 'The first part of a Bráhmen's compound name CHAP. 'should indicate holiness; of a Cshatriya's, power; of 'a Vaisya's, wealth; and of a Súdra's, contempt
- 32. 'Let the second part of the priest's name imply prosperity; of the soldier's, preservation; of the 'merchant's, nourishment; of the servant's, humble 'attendance.
- 33. 'The names of women should be agreeable, soft, 'clear, captivating the fancy, auspicious ending in long 'vowels, resembling words of benediction.
- 34. 'In the fourth month the child should be car'ried out of the house to see the sun: in the sixth
 'month, he should be fed with rice; or that may be 'done, which, by the custom of the family, is thought
 'most propitious.
- 35. 'By the command of the Veda, the ceremony of tonsure should be legally performed by the three trst classes in the first or third year after birth.
- 36. 'In the eighth year from the conception of a 'Bráhmen, in the eleventh from that of a Cshatriya, 'and in the twelfth from that of a Vaisya, let the father invest the child with the mark of his class:
- 37. 'Should a Bráhmen, or his ather or him, be 'desirous of his advancement in sacred knowledge; 'a Cshatriya, of extending his power; or a Vaisya 'of engaging in mercantile business; the investiture

- CHAP. 'may be made in the fifth, sixth, or eighth years II. 'respectively.
 - 38. 'The ceremony of investiture hallowed by the 'g'ayatr' must not be delayed, in the case of a 'priest, beyond the sixteenth year; nor in that of a 'soldier, beyond the twenty-second; nor in that of a 'merchant, beyond the twenty-fourth.
 - 39. 'After that, all youths of these three classes, 'who have not been invested at the proper time, become vrátyas, or outcasts, degraded from the gáyatri, 'and contemned by the virtuous:
 - 40. 'With such impure men, let no Bráhmen, even 'in distress for subsistence, ever form a connexion in 'law, either by the study of the Véda, or by affinity.
 - 41. 'Let students in theology wear or their man'tles, the hides of black antelopes, of common deer,
 'or of goats, with lower vests o woven sana, of
 'cshumà, and of wool, in the direct order of their 'classes.
 - 42. 'The girdle of a priest must be made of 'munja, in a triple cord, smooth and soft; that of a 'warriour must be a bow string of múrvá; that of a 'merchant, a triple thread of sana.
 - 43. If the munja be not procurable, their zones must be forme respectively of the grasses cusa asmantaca, valva a, in trive strings, with one, three, or five mass, according to the amily custom.

- 44. 'The sacrificial thread of a Bráhmen must be CHAP. 'made of cotton, so as to be put on over his head, II.
- ' in three strings; that of a Cshatriya, of sana thread
- 'only: that of a Vaisya, of woollen thread.
- 45. 'A priest ought by law to carry a staff of 'Vilva or Palása; a soldier, of Vata or C'hadira; 'a merchant of Vénu or Udumbara:
- 46. 'The staff of a priest must be of such a length as to reach his hair; that of a soldier, to reach his forehead; and that of a merchant, to reach his nose.
- 47. 'Let all the staves be straight, without fracture, of a handsome appearance, not likely to terrify men, with their bark perfect, unhurt by fire.
- 48. 'Having taken a legal staff to his liking, and 'standing opposite to the sun, let the student thrice 'walk round the fire from left to right, and perform, 'according to law, the ceremony of asking food:
 - 49. 'The most excellent of the three classes, being 'girt with the sacrificial thread, must ask food with 'the respectful word bhavati, at the beginning of 'the phrase; those of the second class, with that 'word in the middle; and those of the third, with 'that word at the end.
 - 50. 'Let him first beg food of his mother, or of 'his sister, or of his mother's whole sister; then of 'some other female who will not disgrace him.
 - 51. 'Having collected as much of the desired food

- CHAP. 'as he has occasion for, and having presented it

 II. 'without guile to his preceptor, let him eat some 'of it, being duly purified, with his face to the east:

 - 52. 'If he seek long life, he should eat with his 'face to the east; if exalted fame, to the south; if 'prosperity, to the west; if truth and its reward, to 'the north.
 - 53. 'Let the student, having performed his ablution, 'always eat his food without distraction of mind; and, having eaten, let him thrice wash his mouth completely, sprinkling with water the six hollow 'parts of his head, or his eyes, ears, and nostrils.
 - 54. 'Let him honour all his food, and eat it with-'out contempt; when he sees it, let him rejoice and 'be calm, and pray that he may always obtain it.
 - 55. 'Food, eaten constantly with respect, gives 'muscular force and generative power; but, eaten. 'irreverently, destroys them both.
 - 56. 'He must beware of giving any man what he leaves; and of eating any thing between morning and evening: he must also beware of eating too much, and of going any whither with a remnant of his food unswallowed.
 - 57 'Excessive eating is prejudicial to health, to fame, and to uture bliss in Heaven; it is injurious to virtue, and o io s among men: he must, for these reasons, y al means avoid it.

- 58. 'Let a Bráhmen at all times perferm the ablu-CHAP. 'tion with the pure part of his hand denominated 'from the Véda, or with the part sacred to the Lord 'of creatures, or with that dedicated to the Gods; 'but never with the part named from the Pitris:
- 59. 'The pure part under the root of the thumb is 'called Bráhma, that at the root of the little finger, 'Cáya; that at the tips of the fingers, Daiva; and 'the part between the thumb and index Pitrya.
- 60. 'Let him first sip water thrice; then twice wipe 'his mouth; and lastly touch with water the six be'ore mentioned cavities, his breast, and his head.
- 61. 'He who knows the law and seeks purity will 'ever perform his ablution with the pure part of his 'hand, and with water neither hot nor frothy, stand ing in a lonely place, and turning to the east or the 'north.
- 62. 'A Bráhmen is purified by water that reaches 'his bosom; a Cshatriya, by water descending to his 'throat; a Vaisya, by water barely taken into his mouth; a Súdra, by water touched with the extremity 'of his lips.
- 63. 'A youth of the three highest classes is named 'upaviti, when his right hand is extended or the 'cord to pass over his head and be used on his let 'shoulder; when his left hand is extended, that the 'thread may be placed on his right shoulder, he is 'called

- CHAP. 'called práchínávítí; and nivítí, when it is fastened on H. 'his neck.
 - 64. 'His girdle, his leathern mantle, his staff, his 'sacrificial cord, and his ewer, he must throw into the 'water, when they are worn out or broken, and receive others hallowed by mystical texts.
 - 65. 'The ceremony of cesanta, or cutting o the hair, is ordained for a priest in the sixteenth year from conception; for a soldier, in the twenty-second; for a merchant, two years later than that.
 - 66. 'The same ceremonies, except that o the sacri'ficial thread, must be duly performed for women at 'the same age and in the same order, that the body
 'may be made perfect, but without any text from the
 'Vėda:
 - 67. 'The nuptial ceremony is considered as the 'complete institution of women, ordained for them 'in the Véda, together with reverence to their husbands, dwelling first in their father's family, the 'business of the house, and attention to sacred fire.
 - 68. 'Such is the revealed law of institution for the 'twice born; an institution in which their second birth 'clearly consists, and which causes their advancement 'in holiness: now learn to what duties they must afterwards apply themselves.
 - 69. 'The venerable preceptor, having girt his pupil 'with the thread, must first instruct him in purification.

- ' tion, in good customs, in the management of the CHAP. ' consecrated fire, and in the holy rites of morning.
- ' noon, and evening.
- 70. When the student is going to read the Véda,
- ' he must perform an ablution, as the law ordains,
- ' with his face to the north, and, having paid scriptural
- ' homage, he must receive instruction, wearing a clean
- ' vest, his members being duly composed:
- 71. 'At the beginning and end of the lecture, he
- ' must always clasp both the feet of his preceptor; and
- ' he must read with both his hands closed: (this is
- ' called scriptural homage.
- 72. 'With crossed hands let him clasp the feet of
- ' his tutor, touching the left foct with his left, and
- ' the right, with his right hand.
- 73. 'When he is prepared for the lecture, the pre-
- 'ceptor, constantly attentive, must say: "hoa! read;"
- ' and at the close of the lesson he must say: "take
- ' rest."
- 74. ' A Bráhmen, beginning and ending a lecture on
- ' the Veda, must always pronounce to himself the syl-
- ' lable óm; for, unless the syllable óm precede, his
- ' learning will slip away from him; and, unless it
- ' follow, nothing will be long retained.
- 75. 'If he have sitten on culms of cusa with their
- ' points toward the east, and be purified by rubbing

' that

CHAP. that holy grass on both his hands, and be further II. prepared by three suppressions of breath each equal in time to ive short vowels, he then may fitly profunce of m.

- 76. 'BRAHMA' milked out, as it were, from the 'three Vedas, the letter A, the letter U, and the 'letter M, which form by their coalition the triliteral 'monosyllable, together with three mysterious words, 'bhur, bhuvah, swer, or earth, sky, heaven:
- 77 From the three Védas, also, the Lord of creatures, incomprehensibly exalted, successively milked out the three measures of that ineffable text, beginning with the word tad, and entitled sávited or gáyatri.
- 78. 'A priest who shall know the Veda, and shall 'pronounce to himself, both morning and evening, 'that syllable, and that holy text preceded by the 'three words, shall attain the sanctity which the Veda 'confers;
- 79. 'And a twice born man, who shall a thousand 'times repeat those three (or om, the vyáhritis, and the gáyatrì, apart from the multitude, shall be released in a month even from a great offence, as a snake from his slough.
- 80. 'The priest, the soldier, and the merchant, who 'shall neglect this mysterious text, and fail to perform 'in due season his peculiar acts of piety, shall meet 'with contempt among the virtuous.

- 81. 'The three great immutable words, preceded by CHAP. 'the triliteral syllable, and followed by the gayatri II.
- ' which consists of three measures, must be consider-
- 'ed as the mouth, or principal part of the Véda:
- 82. 'Whoever shall repeat, day by day, for three 'years, without negligence, that sacred text, shall 'herea ter approach the divine essence, move as free-'ly as air, and assume an ethereal form.
- 83. 'The triliteral monosyllable is an emblem of the 'Supreme, the suppressions of breath with a mind ixed on God are the highest devotion; but nothing is 'more exalted than the gáyatrì: a declaration of truth
- ' is more excellent than silence.
- 84. 'All rites ordained in the Vida, oblations to fire, and solemn sacrifices pass away; but that which passes not away is declared to be the syllable om, thence called acshara: since it is a symbol of God, the Lord of created beings.
- 85. 'The act of repeating his Holy Name is ten 'times better than the appointed sacrifice; an hun- 'dred times better when it is heard by no man; and 'a thousand times better when it is purely mental:
- 86. 'The four domestick sacraments which are accompanied with the appointed sacrifice, are not equal, though all be united, to a sixteenth part of the sacrifice performed by a repetition of the gayatire:
 - 87. 'By the sole repetition of the gáyatri, a priest may

- CHAP. 'may indubitably attain beatitude, let him perform, II. 'or not perform, any other religious act; if he be 'Maitra, or a friend to all creatures, he is justly named 'Bráhmena, or united to the Great One.
 - 88. 'In restraining the organs which run wild among 'ravishing sensualities, a wise man will apply diligent 'care, like a charioteer in managing restive horses.
 - 89. 'Those eleven organs, to which the first sages 'gave names, I will comprehensively enumerate as the 'law considers them in due order.
 - 90. 'The nose is the fifth after the ears, the skin, 'the eyes, and the tongue; and the organs of speech 'are reckoned the tenth, after those of excretion and 'generation, and the hands and feet:
 - 9 'Five of them, the ear and the rest in succes-'sion, learned men have called organs of sense; and 'the others, organs of action:
 - 92. 'The heart must be considered as the eleventh; 'which, by its natural property, comprises both sense 'and action; and which being subdued, the two other 'sets, with five in each, are also controlled.
 - 93. 'A man, by the attachment of his organs to sensual pleasure, incurs certain guilt; but, having wholly subdue them, he thence attains heavenly bliss.
 - 94. Desire is never satisfied with the enjoyment of desired

- ' desired objects; as the fire is not appeased with CHAP. ' clarified butter; it only blazes more vehemently.
- 95. 'Whatever man may obtain all those gratifica-
- ' tions, or whatever man may resign them completely,
- ' the resignation of all pleasures is far better than the
- ' attainment of them.
- 96 'The organs being strongly attached to sensual
- ' delights cannot so effectually be restrained by avoid-
- ' ing incentives to pleasure, as by a constant pursuit of
- ' divine knowledge.
- 97. 'To a man contaminated by sensuality neither
- ' the Védas, nor liberality, nor sacrifices, nor strict
- ' observances, nor pious austerities, ever procure fe-
- ' licity.
- · 98. 'He must be considered as really triumphant
- ' over his organs, who, on hearing and touching, on
- ' seeing and tasting and smelling, what may please or
- ' o end the senses, neither greatly rejoices nor greatly
- ' repines:
 - 99. 'But, when one among all his organs fails, by
- ' that single failure his knowledge of Gop passes away,
- ' as water flows through one hole in a leathern bottle.
- 100. 'Having kept all his members of sense and ac-
- ' tion under control, and obtained also command over
- ' his heart, he will enjoy every advantage, even though
- ' he reduce not his body by religious austerities.
 - 101. 'At the morning twilight let him stand repeat-

- CHAP. 'ing the gáyatrì until he see the sun; and at evening II. 'twilight, let him repeat it sitting, until the stars distinctly appear;
 - 102. 'He who stands repeating it at the morning 'twilight, removes all unknown nocturnal sin; and he 'who repeats it sitting at evening twilight, disperses 'the taint, that has unknowingly been contracted in 'the day;
 - 103. 'But be who stands not repeating it in the 'morning, and sits not repeating it in the evening, 'must be precluded, like a Súdra, from every sacred 'observance of the twice born classes.
 - 104. 'Near pure water, with his organs holden under 'control, and retiring from circumspection to some 'unfrequented place, let him pronounce the gáyatr', 'performing daily ceremonies.
 - 105. 'In reading the Védángas, or grammar, pro'sody, mathematicks. and so forth, or even such parts
 'of the Véda as ought constantly to be read, there is
 'no prohibition on particular days; nor in pronounc'ing the texts appointed for oblations to fire:
 - 106. 'Of that, which must constantly be read, and is therefore called Brahmasatra, there can be no such prohibition; and the oblation to fire, according to the Véda, produces goo fruit, though accompanied with the text vashat, which on other occasions must be intermitted on certain days.

- 107. 'For him, who shall persist a whole year in CHAP. 'reading the Véda, his organs being kept in subjection, 'and his body pure, there will always rise good fruit 'from his o erings o milk and curds, o clarified butter
- 108. 'Let the twice born youth, who has been girt 'with the sacrificial cord, collect wood for the holy fire, beg food of his relations, sleep on a low bed, and 'perform such offices as may please his preceptor, until 'his return to the house of his natural father.

' and honey.

- 109 'Ten persons may legally be instructed in the 'Véda; the son of a spiritual teacher; a boy who is 'assiduous; one who can impart other knowledge; one who is just; one who is pure; one who is 'friendly; one who is powerful; one who can bestow 'wealth; one who is honest; and one who is related 'by blood.
- 110. 'Let not a sensible teacher tell any other what 'he is not asked, nor what he is asked improperly; 'but let him, however intelligent, act in the multi- 'tude as if he were dumb:
- 111. 'Of the two persons, him, who illegally asks, 'and him, who illegally answers, one will die, or 'incur odium.
- 112. 'Where virtue, and wealth su nicient to secure it, 'are not found, or diligent attention, at least proportioned to the holiness of the subject, in that soil 'divine

- CHAP. 'divine instruction must not be sown: it would perish
 II. 'like fine seed in barren land.
 - 113. 'A teacher of the Véda should rather die 'with his learning, than sow it in sterile soil, 'even though he be in grievous distress for sub- 'sistence.
 - 114. 'Sacred Learning, having approached a Brúh'men, said to him: "I am thy precious gem; pre'serve me with care; deliver me not to a scorner;
 '(so preserved I shall become supremely strong.)
 - 115. 'But communicate me, as to a vigilant depo-'sitory of thy gem, to that student, whom thou shalt 'know to be pure, to have subdued his passions, to 'perform the duties of his order.''
 - 116. 'He who shall acquire knowledge of the Veda 'without the assent of his preceptor, incurs the guilt of stealing the scripture, and shall sink to the region of torment.
 - 117. 'From whatever teacher a student has received 'instruction, either popular, ceremonial, or sacred, let 'him first salute his instructor, when they meet.
 - 118. 'A Bráhmen, who completely governs his passions, though he know the gáyatrì only, is more honourable than he, who governs not his passions, who eats all sorts o commodities, even though he know the three Védas.
 - 119. 'When a superiour sits on a couch or bench,

- ' let not an inferiour sit on it with him; and, if an CHAP.
- ' inferiour be sitting on a couch, let him rise to salute
- ' a superiour.
- 120. 'The vital spirits of a young man mount up-'wards to depart rom him, when an elder approaches; 'but by rising and salutation he recovers them.
- 121. 'A youth who habitually greets and constantly 'reveres the aged, obtains an increase of four things; 'life, knowledge, fame, strength.
- 122. 'After the word of samtation, a Bráhmen must 'address an elder; saying, "I am such an one," 'pronouncing his own name.
- 123. 'If any persons, through ignorance of the San'scrit language, understand not the import of his 'name, to them should a learned man say, "It is I;"
 'and in that manner he should address all classes of 'women.
- 124. 'In the salutation he should pronounce, after 'his own name, the vocative particle $bh\acute{o}s$; for the 'particle $bh\acute{o}s$ is held by the wise to have the same 'property with names 'ully expressed.
- 125. 'A Bráhmen should thus be saluted in return: "May'st thou live long, excellent man!" and at the end of his name, the vowel and preceding consonant should be lengthened, with an acute accent, to three syllabick moments or short vowels.
 - 126. 'That Bráhmen, who knows not the form of returning

- CHAP. 'returning a salutation, must not be saluted by a II. 'man of learning: as a Súdra, even so is he.
 - 127. 'Let a learned man ask a priest, when he 'meets him, if his devotion prospers; a warriour, if 'he is unhurt; a merchant, if his wealth is secure;
 - ' and one of the servile class, if he enjoys good health;
 - ' using respectively the words, cusalam, anámayam, cshé-' mam, and árógyam.
 - 128. 'He, who has just performed a solemn sacrifice 'and ablution, must not be addressed by his name, 'even though he be a younger man; but he, who 'knows the law, should accost him with the vocative 'particle, or with bhavat, the pronoun o respect.
 - 129. 'To the wife of another, and to any woman 'not related by blood, he must say, "bhavati, and 'amiable sister."
 - 130. 'To his uncles paternal and maternal, to his 'wife's father, to performers of the sacrifice, and to 'spiritual teachers; he must say, "I am such an 'one"—rising up to salute them, even though younger 'than himself.
 - 131. 'The sister of his mother, the wife of his maternal uncle, his own wife's mother, and the sister of his father, must be saluted like the wife of his ather or preceptor: they are equal to his ather's or his preceptor's wife.
 - 132. 'The wife of his brother, if she be of the same 'class, must be saluted every day; but his paternal 'and

ON THE FIRST ORDER.

- ' and maternal kinswomen need only be greeted on CHAP. TT. ' his return from a journey.
- ' 133. ' With the sister of his father and of his mo-
- ' ther, and with his own elder sister, let him demean
- ' himself as with his mother; though his mother be
- ' more venerable than they.
- 134. 'Fellow citizens are equal for ten years; dan-
- cers and singers, for five; learned theologians, for
- ' less than three; but persons related by blood, for a
- ' short time: that is, a greater di jerence of age destroys
- ' their equality.
- 135. 'The Student must consider a Bráhmen, though
- ' but ten years old, and a Cshatriya, though aged a
- ' hundred years, as father and son; as between those
- ' two, the young Brahmen is to be respected as the
- ' father.
- 136. 'Wealth, kindred, age, moral conduct, and,
- ' fifthly, divine knowledge, entitle men to respect; but
- ' that which is last mentioned in order, is the most re-
- 'spectable.
- 137. 'Whatever man of the three highest classes
- ' possesses the most of those five, both in number
- ' and degree, that man is entitled to most respect;
- ' even a Súdra, if he have entered the tenth decad of
- ' his age
- 138. 'Way must be made for a man in a wheeled ' carriage, or above ninety years old, or afflicted with ' disease.

- CHAP. 'disease, or carrying a burthen; for a woman; for II. 'a priest just returned from the mansion of his preceptor; for a prince, and for a bridegroom:
 - 139. 'Among all those, if they be met at one time, 'the priest just returned home and the prince are most 'to be honoured; and of those two, the priest just 'returned, should be treated with more respect than 'the prince.
 - 140. 'That priest who girds his pupil with the sacrificial cord, and afterwards instructs him in the whole 'Veda, with the law of sacrifice and the sacred Upa'nishads, holy sages call an áchárya:
 - 141. 'But, he, who for his livelihood, gives instruction in a part only of the Véda, or in grammar, and in other Védángas, is called an upáahyáya, or sublecturer.
 - 142. 'The father, who performs the ceremonies on conception and the like, according to law, and who nourishes the child with his first rice, has the epithet of guru, or venerable.
 - 143. 'He, who receives a stipend for preparing the holy fire, for conducting the páca and agnishtóma, and for performing other sacrifices, is called in this code the ritwij of his employer.
 - 144. 'He, who truly and faithfully fills both ears 'with the $V\acute{e}da$, must be considered as equal to a 'mother; he must be revered as a father; him the pu- 'pil must never grieve.

- 145. 'A mere áchárya, or a teacher o the gáyatrì CHAP. 'only, surpasses ten upádhyáyas; a father, a hundred
- ' such ácháryas; and a mother, a thousand natural fa-
- ' thers.
- 146. 'Of him, who gives natural birth, and him,
- ' who gives knowledge of the whole Véda, the giver of
- ' sacred knowledge is the more venerable father; since
- ' the second or divine birth ensures life to the twice
- ' born both in this world and hereafter eternally.
- 147. 'Let a man consider that as a mere human
- ' birth, which his parents gave him for their mutual
- ' gratification, and which he receives after lying in the
- 'womb:
- 148. 'But that birth which his principal áchárya,
- ' who knows the whole Véda, procures for him by his
- ' divine mother the gayatri, is a true birth: that birth
- ' is exempt from age and from death.
- 149. ' Him, who confers on a man the benefit of sa-
- ' cred learning, whether it be little or much, let him
- ' know to be here named guru, or venerable father, in
- ' consequence of that heavenly benefit.
 - 150. 'A Bráhmen, who is the giver of spiritual birth,
- · the teacher of prescribed duty, is by right called the
- ' father of an old man, though himself be a child.
- 151. 'CAVI, or the learned, child of Angiras, taught
- ' his paternal uncles and cousins to read the Véda,
- ' and, excelling them in divine knowledge, said to them,
- " " little sons:"

- HAP. 152. 'They, moved with resentment, asked the Gods
 'the meaning of that expression; and the Gods, being
 'assembled, answered them: "The child has addressed
 'you properly;
 - 153. 'For an unlearned man is in truth a child; 'and he who teaches him the Véda, is his father: 'holy sages have always said child to an ignorant man, 'and father to a teacher of scripture.''
 - 154. 'Greatness is not conferred by years, not by 'gray hairs, not by wealth, not by powerful kindred: 'the divine sages have established this rule; "Who-'ever has read the Védas and their Angas, he among 'us is great"
 - 155. 'The seniority of priests is from sacred learn-'ing; of warriours from valour; of merchants from 'abundance of grain; of the servile class only from 'priority of birth.
 - 156. 'A man is not therefore aged, because his 'head is gray: him, surely, the Gods considered as 'aged, who, though young in years, has read and un-'derstands the Véda.
 - 157. 'As an elephant made of wood, as an antelope 'made of leather, such is an unlearned Bráhmen: those 'three have nothing but names.
 - 158. 'As an eunuch is unproductive with women, as 'cow with a cow is unprolifick, as liberality to a fool 'is fruitless, so is a Brahmen useless, if he read not the 'holy texts.

- 159. 'Good instruction must be given without pain CHAP. 'to the instructed; and sweet gentle speech must be 'used by a preceptor, who cherishes virtue.
- 160. 'He, whose discourse and heart are pure, and 'ever perfectly guarded, attains all the fruit arising 'from his complete course of studying the Véda.
- 161 'Let not a man be querulous even though in 'pain let him not injure another in deed or in 'thought; let him not even utter a word, by which 'his fellow creature may suffer uneasiness; since that 'will obstruct his own progress to future beatitude.
- 162. 'A Bráhmen should constantly shun worldly ho'nour, as he would shun poison; and rather constantly
 'seek disrespect, as he would seek nectar;
- 163. 'For though scorned, he may sleep with pleasure; with pleasure may he awake; with pleasure may he pass through this life: but the scorner utterly perishes.
- 164. 'Let the twice-born youth, whose soul has 'been formed by this regular succession of prescribed 'acts, collect by degrees, while he dwells with his 'preceptor, the devout habits proceeding from the 'study of scripture.
- 165. 'With various modes of devotion, and with au'sterities ordained by the law, must the whole Véda'be read, and above all the sacred Upanisnads, by him,
 'who has received a new birth.

CHAP. 166. 'Let the best of the twice-born classes, inII. 'tending to practice devotion, continually repeat the 'reading of scripture; since a repetition of reading
'the scripture is here styled the highest devotion of
'a Bráhmen.

- 167. 'Yes verily; that student in theology performs 'the highest act of devotion with his whole body, to 'the extremities of his nails, even though he be so far 'sensual as to wear a chaplet of sweet flowers, who 'to the utmost of his ability daily reads the Véda.
- 168. 'A twice-boin man, who not having studied 'the Véda, applies diligent attention to a different and 'worldly study, soon falls, even when living, to the 'condition of a Súdra; and his descendants after him.
- 169. 'The first birth is from a natural mother; the 'second, from the ligation of the zone; the third from 'the due performance of the sacrifice; such are the 'births of him who is usually called twice-born, according to a text of the Véda:
- 170. 'Among them his divine birth is that, which 'is distinguished by the ligation of the zone, and sacri wial cord; and in that birth the Gáyatrì is his 'mother, and the A'chárya, his father.
- 171 'Sages call the Acharya father, from his 'giving' instruction in the Véda: nor can any holy 'rite be performed by a young man, before his investiture.
 - 172. ' Till he be invested with the signs of his class, ' he

- ' he must not pronounce any sacred text, except what CHAP.
- ought to be used in obsequies to an ancestor; since
- 'he is on a level with a Súdra before his new birth
- ' from the revealed scripture:
- 173. 'From him, who has been duly invested, are 'required both the performance of devout acts and 'the study of the Véda in order, preceded by stated
- ' ceremonies.
- 174. 'Whatever sort of leathern mantle, sacrificial
- ' thread, and zone, whatever staff, and whatever under-
- ' apparel are ordained, as before-mentioned, for a youth
- ' of each class, the like must also be used in his re-
- ' ligious acts.
- 175. 'These following rules must a Brahmachárí, or
- ' student in theology, observe, while he dwells with
- ' his preceptor; keeping all his members under con-
- ' trol, for the sake of increasing his habitual devotion.
 - 176. 'Day by day, having bathed and being puri-
- ' fied, let him offer fresh water to the Gods, the
- ' Sages, and the Manes; let him show respect to the
- ' images of the deities, and bring wood for the obla-
- ' tion to fire.
 - 177. 'Let him abstain from honey, from flesh meat,
- ' from perfumes, from chaplets of flowers, from sweet
- ' vegetable juices, from women, from all sweet sub-
- ' stances turned acid, and from injury to animated
- 'beings;
 - 178. 'From unguents for his limbs, and from black 'powder

- CHAP. 'powder for his eyes, from wearing sandals, and carII. 'rying an umbrella, from sensual desires, from wrath,
 'from covetousness, from dancing, and from vocal and
 'instrumental musick;
 - 179. 'From gaming, from disputes, from detraction, 'and from falsehood, from embracing or wantonly look- ing at women, and from disservice to other men.
 - 180. 'Let him constantly sleep alone: let him never 'waste his own manhood; for he, who voluntary 'wastes his manhood, violates the rule of his order, 'and becomes an avacirní:
 - 181. A twice-born youth, who has involuntarily wasted his manly strength during sleep, must repeat with reverence, having bathed and paid homage to the sun, the text of scripture: "Again let my strength return to me."
 - 182. 'Let him carry water-pots, flowers, cow-dung, 'fresh earth, and cusa-grass, as much as may be 'useful to his preceptor; and let him perform every 'day the duty of a religious mendicant.
 - 183. 'Each day must a Bráhmen student receive his 'food by begging, with due care, from the houses of 'persons renowned for discharging their duties, and 'not deficient in performing the sacrifices which the 'Véda ordains.
 - 184. 'Let him not beg from the cousins of his pre-'ceptor; nor from his own cousins; nor from other 'kinsmen by the father's side, or by the mother's;

' but

- but, if other houses be not accessible, let him begin CHAP.
- ' with the last of those in order, avoiding the first;
- 185. 'Or, if none of those houses just mentioned can be found, let him go begging through the whole dis-
- ' trict round the village. keeping his organs in subjec-
- ' tion, and remaining. silent; but let him turn away
- ' from such as have committed any deadly sin.
 - 186. ' Having brought logs of wood from a distance,
- ' let him place them in the open air; and with them
- ' let him make an oblation to fire without remissness,
- ' both evening and morning.
- 187. 'He, who for seven successive days omits the
- ' ceremony of begging food, and offers not wood to the
- · sacred fire, must perform the penance of an avacirni,
- ' unless he be afflicted with illness.
- 188. 'Let the student persist constantly in such beg-
- 'ging, but let him not eat the food of one person
- 'only: the subsistence of a student by begging is held
- ' equal to fasting in religious merit.
- 189. 'Yet, when he is asked in a solemn act in
- ' honour of the Gods or the Manes, he may eat at his
- ' pleasure the food of a single person; observing, how-
- ' ever, the laws of abstinence and the austerity of an
- ' anchoret: thus the rule of his order is kept inviolate.
- 190. 'This duty of a mendicant is ordained by the
- ' wise for a Bráhmen only; but no such act is appointed
- ' for a warriour, or for a merchant.

- CHAP. 191. 'Let the scholar, when commanded by his preII. 'ceptor, and even when he has received no command,
 'always exert himself in reading, and in all acts useful
 - ' to his teacher.
 - 192. 'Keeping in due subjection his body, his speech, 'his organs of sense, and his heart, let him stand with 'the palms of his hands joined, looking at the face of 'his preceptor.
 - 193. 'Let him always keep his right arm uncovered, 'be always decently apparelled, and properly com'posed; an when his instructor says, "be seated,"
 'let him sit opposite to his venerable guide.
 - 194. 'In the presence of his preceptor let him always 'eat less, and wear a coarser mantle with worse appendages; let him rise before, and go to rest after his 'tutor.
 - 195. 'Let him not answer his teacher's orders, or 'converse with him, reclining on a bed; nor sitting, 'nor eating, nor standing, nor with an averted face:
 - 196. 'But let him both answer and converse, if his 'preceptor sit, standing up; if he stand, advancing 'toward him; if he advance, meeting him; if he run, 'hastening after him;
 - 197. 'If his face be averted, going round to front him, rom le t to right; if he be at a little distance, approaching him; if reclined, bending to him; and, if he stand ever so far off, running toward him.

- 198. 'When his teacher is nigh, let his couch or CHAP. 'his bench be always placed low: when his precep-
- ' tor's eye can observe him, let him not sit carelessly
- ' at ease.
- 199. 'Let him never pronounce the mere name of
- ' his tutor, even in his absence; nor ever mimick his
- ' gait, his speech, or his manner.
- 200. 'In whatever place, either true but censorious,
- ' or false and defamatory, discourse is held concerning
- ' his teacher, let him there cover his ears or remove to
- ' another place:
 - 201. 'By censuring his preceptor, though justly, he
- ' will be born an ass; by falsely defaming him, a dog;
- ' by using his goods without leave, a small worm; by
- ' envying his merit, a larger insect or reptile.
- 202. 'He must not serve his tutor by the interven-
- ' tion of another, while himself stands aloof; nor must
- ' he attend him in a passion, nor when a woman is
- ' near; from a carriage or raised seat he must descend
- ' to salute his heavenly director.
- 203. 'Let him not sit with his preceptor to the lee-
- ward, or to the windward of him; nor let him say
- ' any thing which the venerable man cannot hear.
- 204. 'He may sit with his teacher in a carriage
- ' drawn by bulls, horses, or camels; on a terrace, on
- 'a pavement of stones, or on a mat of woven grass;
- ' on a rock, on a wooden bench, or in a boat.

205. 'When

- CHAP. 205. 'When his tutor's tutor is near, let him demean himself as if his own were present; nor let him, unless ordered by his spiritual father, prostrate himself in his presence before his natural father, or paternal uncle.
 - 206. 'This is likewise ordained as his constant be'haviour toward his other instructors in science; to'ward his elder paternal kinsmen; toward all who may restrain him from sin, and all who give him
 'salutary advice.
 - · 207. 'Toward men also, who are truly virtuous, let him always behave as toward his preceptor; and, in like manner, toward the sons of his teacher, who are entitled to respect as older men, and are not students; and toward the paternal kinsmen of his vene-
 - 208. 'The son of his preceptor, whether younger or of equal age, or a student, if he be capable of teaching the Vėda, deserves the same honour with the preceptor himself, when he is present at any sacrificial act:
 - 209. 'But he must not perform for the son of his 'teacher, the duty of rubbing his limbs, or of bath- 'ing him, or of eating what he leaves, or of washing 'his feet.
 - 210. 'The wives of his preceptor, if they be of the 'same class, must receive equal honour with their 'venerable husband; but if they be of a different 'class

- ' class, they must be honoured only by rising and CHAP. 'salutation.
- 211. 'For no wife of his teacher must he perform the offices of pouring scented oil on them, of attend-
- ' ing them while they bathe, of rubbing their legs and
- ' arms, or of decking their hair;
- 212. 'Nor must a young wife of his preceptor be greeted even by the ceremony of touching her feet,
- ' if he have completed his twentieth year, or can dis-
- ' tinguish virtue from vice.
- 213 'It is the nature of women in this world to cause the seduction of men; for which reason the wise are never unguarded in the company of females:
- 214. 'A female indeed, is able to draw from the 'right path in this life not a fool only, but even a 'sage, and can lead him in subjection to desire or to 'wrath.
- 215. Let no man, therefore, sit in a sequestered place with his nearest female relations: the assemblage of corporeal organs is powerful enough to snatch wisdom from the wise.
- 216. 'A young student may, as the law directs, 'make prostration at his pleasure on the ground be'fore a young wife of his tutor, saying, "I am such 'an one;"
- 217. 'And on his return from a journey, he must 'once touch the feet of his preceptor's aged wife, 'and

- CHAP. 'and salute her each day by prostration, calling to II. 'mind the practice of virtuous men.
 - 218. 'As he who digs deep with a spade comes to 'a spring of water, so the student, who humbly serves 'his teacher, attains the knowledge which lies deep 'in his teacher's mind.
 - 219. 'WHETHER his head be shorn, or his hair 'long, or one lock be bound above in a knot let not 'the sun ever set or rise while he lies asleep in the 'village.
 - 220 'If the sun should rise or set, while he sleeps 'through sensual indulgence, and knows it not, he must 'fast a whole day, repeating the gáyatrì:
 - 221. 'He, who has been surprised asleep by the 'setting or by the rising sun, and performs not that 'penance, incurs great guilt.
 - 222. 'Let him adore God both at sunrise and at 'sunset, as the law ordains, having made his ablution 'and keeping his organs controlled; and, with fixed 'attention, let him repeat the text, which he ought 'to repeat, in a place free from impurity.
 - 223. 'In a woman or a Súdra perform any act leading to the chief temporal good, let the student e careful to emulate it; and he may do whatever gratifies his heart, unless it be forbidden by law:
 - 224. 'The chief temporal good is by some declared to consist in virtue and wealth; by some, in wealth and

- 'and lawful pleasure; by some, in virtue alone; by CHAP.
- others, in wealth alone; but the chief good here
- ' below is an assemblage of all three; this is a sure
- ' decision.
- 225. 'A TEACHER of the $V\acute{e}da$ is the image of God;
- ' a natural father, the image of Вканма'; a mother,
- ' the image of the earth; an elder whole brother, the
- ' image of the soul.
- 226. 'Therefore a spiritual and a natural father, a
- ' mother, and an elder brother, are not to be treated
- ' with disrespect, especially by a Bráhmen, though the
- ' student be grievously provoked.
 - 227. 'That pain and care which a mother and father
- ' undergo in producing and rearing children, cannot
- ' be compensated in an hundred years.
 - 228. 'Let every man constantly do what may please
- 'his parents: and, on all occasions, what may please
- 'his preceptor; when those three are satisfied, his
- ' whole course of devotion is accomplished.
- 229. 'Due reverence to those three is considered
- ' as the highest devotion; and without their approba-
- ' tion he must perform no other duty.
- 230. 'Since they alone are held equal to the three
- 'worlds; they alone, to the three principal orders;
- ' they alone, to the three Vedas; they alone, to the
- ' three fires:
 - 231. 'The natural father is considered as the gár'hapatya,

- CHAP. 'hapatya, or nuptial fire; the mother as the dacshina,

 II. 'or ceremonial; the spiritual guide, as the áhavaníya,

 'or sacrificial: this triad of fires is most venerable.
 - 232. 'He, who neglects not those three, when he becomes a house-keeper, will ultimately obtain dominion over the three worlds; and his body being irradiated like a God, he will enjoy supreme bliss in heaven.
 - 233. 'By honouring his mother he gains this ter'restrial world; by honouring his father, the interme'diate, or etherial; and, by assiduous attention to 'his preceptor, even the celestial world of Brahma':
 - 234. 'All duties are completely performed by that 'man, by whom those three are completely honoured; but to him by whom they are dishonoured, all 'other acts of duty are fruitless.
 - 235. 'As long as those three live, so long he must 'perform no other duty or his own sake: but delighting in what may conciliate their affections and gratify their wishes, he must from day to day assiduously wait on them:
 - 236 'Whatever duty he may perform in thought, 'word, or deed, with a view to the next world, 'without derogation from his respect to them; he must declare to them his entire performance of it.
 - 237. 'By honouring those three, without more, a 'man effectually does whatever ought to be done: 'this is the highes duty, appearing before us like 'Dherma

- 'DHERMA himself, and every other act is an upa- CHAP. 'dherma, or subordinate duty.
- 238. 'A believer in scripture may receive pure knowledge even from a Súdra; a lesson of the - ' highest virtue, even from a Chandála; and a woman,
- ' bright as a gem, even from the basest family:
 - 239. 'Even from poison may nectar be taken;
- ' even from a child, gentleness of speech; even from
- ' a foe, prudent conduct; and even from an impure
- ' substance, gold.
- 240. 'From every quarter, therefore, must be se-
- ' lected women bright as gems, knowledge, virtue,
- ' purity, gentle speech, and various liberal arts.
 - 241. 'In case of necessity, a student is required to
- ' learn the Véda from one who is not a Bráhmen,
- ' and, as long as that instruction continues, to ho-
- ' nour his instructor with obsequious assiduity;
- 242. 'But a pupil who seeks the incomparable path
- ' to heaven, should not live to the end of his days
- ' in the dwelling of a preceptor who is no Bráhmen,
- " or who has not read all the Védas with their Angas.
 - 243. 'If he anxiously desire to pass his whole life
- ' in the house of a sacerdotal teacher, he must serve
- ' him with assiduous care, till he be released from
- ' his mortal frame:
- 244. 'That Bráhmen, who has dutifully attended his
- ' preceptor, till the dissolution of his body, passes di-
- ' rectly to the eternal mansion of GoD.

245. ' LET

- CHAP. 245. 'Let not a student, who knows his duty,

 II. 'present any gift to his preceptor before his return

 'home; but when, by his tutor's permission, he is 'going to perform the ceremony on his return, let

 'him give the venerable man some valuable thing to

 'the best of his power;
 - 246. 'A field, or gold, a jewel, a cow, or a horse, 'an umbrella, a pair of saudals, a stool, corn, cloths, 'or even any very excellent vegetable: thus will he 'gain the affectionate remembrance of his instructor.
 - 247. 'The student for life must, if his teacher die, 'attend on his virtuous son, or his widow, or on one of his paternal kinsmen, with the same respect which he showed to the living:
 - 248. 'Should none of those be alive, he must oc'cupy the station of his preceptor, the seat, and the 'place of religious exercises; must continually pay due
 'attention to the fires, which he had consecrated;
 'and must prepare his own soul for heaven.
 - 249. 'The twice-born man, who shall thus without 'intermission have passed the time of his student- ship, shall ascend, after death, to the most exalted 'of regions, and no more again spring to birth in 'this lower world.

CHAP. III.

On Marriage; or on the Second Order.

- 1. 'The discipline of a student in the three Vedas CHAP. 'may be continued for thirty-six years, in the house 'of his preceptor; or for half that time, or for a quarter of it, or until he perfectly comprehend them:
- 2. 'A student, whose rules have not been violated, 'may assume the order of a married man, after he has read in succession a $s\acute{a}c'h\acute{a}$, or branch from each 'of the three, or from two, or from any one of them.
- 3. 'Being justly applauded for the strict performance of his duty, and having received from his natural or spiritual father the sacred gift of the Véda, let him sit on an elegant bed, decked with a garland of flowers, and let his father honour him, before his nuptials, with a present of a cow.
- 4. 'Let the twice-born man, having obtained the 'consent of his venerable guide, and having performed his ablution with stated ceremonies, on his return home, as the law directs, espouse a wife of the same class with himself and endued with the marks of excellence.
- 5. 'She, who is not descended from his paternal or 'maternal ancestors, within the sixth degree, and who 'is not known by her family name to be of the same 12 'primitive

- CHAP. 'primitive stock with his father or mother, is eligible III. 'by a twice-born man for nuptials and holy union:
 - 6. 'In connecting himself with a wife, let him stu-'diously avoid the ten following families, be they ever 'so great, or ever so rich in kine, goats, sheep, gold 'and grain:
 - 7. 'The family which has omitted prescribed acts of 'religion; that which has produced no male children; 'that, in which the Véda has not been read; that, which 'has thick hair on the body; and those, which have been subject to hemorrhoids, to phthisis, to dyspepsia, 'to epilepsy, to leprosy, and to elephantiasis.
 - 8. 'Let him not marry a girl with reddish hair, nor 'with any deformed limb; nor one troubled with habitual sickness; nor one either with no hair or with too 'much; nor one immoderately talkative; nor one with 'inflamed eyes;
 - 9. 'Nor one with the name of a constellation, or of a tree, or of a river, of a barbarous nation, or of a 'mountain, of a winged creature, a snake, or a slave; 'nor with any name raising an image of terrour.
 - 10. 'Let him chuse for his wife a girl, whose form 'has no defect; who has an agreeable name; who 'walks gracefully like a phenicopteros, or like a young 'elephant; whose hair and teeth are moderate respectively in quantity and in size; whose body has extended the property of the prope
 - 11. 'Her, who has no brother, or whose father is 'not

- ' not well known, let no sensible man espouse, through CHAP.
- ' fear lest, in the former case, her father should take
- ' her first son as his own to perform his obsequies; or,
- ' in the second case, lest an illicit marriage should be contracted.
- 12. ' For the first marriage of the twice-born classes. ' a woman of the same class is recommended; but for ' such as are impelled by inclination to marry again,
- ' women in the direct order of the classes are to be ' preferred:
- 13. A Súdrà woman only must be the wife of a ' Súdra; she and a Vaisyà, of a Vaisya; they two ' and a Cshatriya, of a Cshatriya; those two and a ' Bráhmeni of a Bráhmen.
- 14 ' A woman of the servile class is not mentioned, ' even in the recital of any ancient story, as the first ' wife of a Bráhmen or of a Cshatriya, though in the ' greatest difficulty to find a suitable match.
- 15. 'Men of the twice-born classes, who through ' weakness of intellect, irregularly marry women of ' the lowest class, very soon degrade their families ' and progeny to the state of Súdras:
- 16. 'According to Atri and to (Go'TAMA) the son ' of UTAT'HYA. he who thus marries a woman of the ' servile class, if he be a priest, is degraded instantly; ' according to SAUNACA, on the birth of a son, if he ' be a warriour; and, if he be a merchant, on the ' birth of a son's son, according to (me) Burnigu.

17. ' A Bráhmen.

- CHAP. 17. 'A Bráhmen, if he take a Súdrà to his bed, as III. 'his first wife, sinks to the regions of torment; if he 'beget a child by her, he loses even his priestly rank:
 - 18. 'His sacrifices to the Gods, his oblations to the Manes, and his hospitable attentions to stran'gers, must be supplied principally by her; but the Gods and Manes will not eat such offerings; nor can heaven be attained by such hospitality.
 - 19. 'For the crime of him, who thus illegally drinks 'the moisture of a Súdrà's lips, who is tainted by her 'breath, and who even begets a child on her body, 'the law declares no expiation.
 - 20. 'Now learn compendiously the eight forms of the nuptial ceremony, used by the four classes, some good and some bad in this world, and in the next:
 - 21. 'The veremony of BRAHMA', of the Dévas, of the 'Rishis, of the Prajápatis, of the Asuras, of the Gandharvas, and of the Racshases; the eighth and 'basest is that of the Pisáchas.
 - 22. 'Which of them is permitted by law to each class and what are the good and bad properties of each ceremony, all this I will fully declare to you, together with the qualities, good and bad, of the offspring.
 - 23. 'Let mankind know, that the six first in direct 'order are by some held valid in the case of a priest; 'the four last, in that of a warriour; and the same 'four.

- ' four, except the Rácshasa marriage, in the cases of CHAP.
 ' a merchant and a man of the servile class:
- 24. 'Some consider the four first only as approved in the case of a priest; one, that of Racshases, as peculiar to a soldier; and that of Asuras, to a mer-
- ' cantile and a servile man.
- 25. 'But in this code, three of the five last are 'held legal, and two illegal: the ceremonies of Pisá- 'chas and Asuras must never be performed.
- 26. 'For a military man the before mentioned mar-'riages of Gandharvas and Racshases, whether sepa-'rate or mixed, as when a girl is made captive by her 'lover, after a victory over her kinsmen, are permitted 'by law.
- 27. 'The gift of a caughter, clothed only with a 'single robe, to a man learned in the Véda, whom 'her father voluntarily invites, and respectfully receives, is the nuptial right called Bráhma.
- 28. 'The rite which sages call Daiva, is the gift of a daughter, whom her father has decked in gay attire, when the sacrifice is already begun, to the efficiating priest, who performs that act of religion.
- 29. 'When the father gives his daughter away, after having received from the bridegroom one pair of kine, or two pairs, for uses prescribed by law, that marriage is termed A'rsha.
 - 30. The nuptial rite called Prájápatya, is when the . ' father

- CHAP. 'father gives away his daughter with due honour, saying III. 'distinctly, "May both of you perform together your 'civil and religious duties!"
 - 31. 'When the bridegroom, having given as much wealth as he can afford to the father and paternal kinsmen, and to the damsel herself, takes her voluntarily as his bride, that marriage is named A'sura.
 - 32. 'The reciprocal connexion of a youth and a 'damsel, with mutual desire, is the marriage deno'minated Gándharva, contracted for the purpose of 'amorous embraces, and proceeding from sensual in'clination.
 - 33. The seizure of a maiden by force from her house, 'while she weeps and calls for assistance, after her kinsmen and friends have been slain in battle, or wounded, and their houses broken open, is the mariage styled Rácshasa.
 - 34. 'When the lover secretly embraces the damsel, 'either sleeping or flushed with strong liquor, or discreted in her intellect, that sinful marriage, called 'Paisácha, is the eighth and the basest.
 - 'dotal class, is most approved, when they previously have poured water into the hands of the bridegroom; but the ceremonies of the other classes may be per-

35. 'The gift of daughters in marriage by the sacer-

- ' formed according to their several fancies.
 - 36. 'Among these nuptial rites, what quality is 'ascribed

- ' ascribed by Menu to each, hear now ye Bráhmens, CHAP. ' hear it all from me, who fully declare it!
- 37. 'The son of a Bráhm', or wife by the first cere-' mony, redeems from sin, if he performs virtuous acts.
- ten ancestors, ten descendants, and himself the ' twenty-first person.
- 38. 'A son, born of a wife by the Daiva nuptials, ' redeems seven and seven in higher and lower degrees; ' of a wife by the A'rsha, three and three; of a wife by ' the Prájápatya, six and six.
- 39. 'By four marriages, the Bráhma and so forth, ' in direct order, are born sons illumined by the Veda, ' learned men, beloved by the learned,
- 40. 'Adorned with beauty, and with the quality of ' goodness, wealthy, famed, amply gratified with law-' ful enjoyments, performing all duties, and living a ' hundred years:
- 41. 'But in the other four base marriages, which ' remain, are produced sons acting cruelly, speaking ' falsely, abhorring the Véda, and the duties prescribed in it.
- 42. 'From the biameless nuptial rites of men spring ' a blameless progeny; from the reprehensible, a repre-' hensible offspring: let mankind, therefore, studiously ' avoid the culpable forms of marriage.
- 43. 'The ceremony of joining hands is appointed ' for those, who marry women of their own class; ' but ĸ

- CHAP. 'but, with women of a different class, the following III. 'nuptial ceremonies are to be observed:
 - 44. 'By a Cshatriyà on her marriage with a Bráh'men, an arrow must be held in her hand; by a
 'Vaisyà woman, with a bridegoom of the sacerdotal
 'or military class, a whip; and by a Súdrà bride,
 'marrying a priest, a soldier, or a merchant, must
 'he held the skirt of a mantle.
 - 45. 'Let the husband approach his wife in due 'season, that is, at the time fit for pregnancy; let 'him be constantly satisfied with her alone; but, except on the forbidden days of the moon, he may 'approach her, being affectionately disposed, even out 'of due season, with a desire of conjugal intercourse.
 - 46. 'Sixteen days and nights in each month, with 'four distinct days neglected by the virtuous, are 'called the natural season of women:
 - 47. 'Of those sixteen, the four first, the eleventh, 'and the thirteenth, are reprehended: the ten re'maining nights are approved.
 - 48. 'Some say, that on the even nights are con-'ceived sons; on the odd nights daughters; therefore 'let the man, who wishes for a son, approach his 'wife in due season on the even nights;
 - 49. 'But a boy is in truth produced by the greater 'uantity of the male strength; and a girl by a 'greater quantity of the female; by equality, an hermal maphrodite,

- ' maphrodite, or a boy and a girl; by weakness or CHAP. deficiency, is occasioned a failure of conception.
- 50. 'He, who avoids conjugal embraces on the six 'reprehended nights and on eight others, is equal in 'chastity to a Brahmachár', in whichever of the two 'next orders he may live.
- 51. 'Ler no father, who knows the law, receive a 'gratuity, however small, for giving his daughter in 'marriage; since the man, who, through avarice, 'takes a gratuity or that purpose, is a seller of his 'offspring.
- 52. 'Whatever male relations, through delusion of 'mind, take possession of a woman's property, be it only her carriages or her clothes, such offenders will 'sink to a region of torment.
- 53. 'Some say that the bull and cow given in the 'nuptial ceremony of the Risis, are a bribe to the 'father; but this is untrue; a bribe indeed, whether 'large or small, is an actual sale of the daughter.
- 54. 'When money or goods are given to damsels, 'whose kinsmen receive them not for their own use, 'it is no sale: it is merely a token of courtesy and 'affection to the brides.
- 55. 'Married women must be honoured and adorned 'by their fathers and brethren, by their husbands, and 'by the brethren of their husbands, if they seek 'abundant prosperity:

- CHAP. 56. 'Where females are honoured, there the deities III. 'are pleased; but where they are dishonoured, there 'all religious acts become fruitless.
 - 57. 'Where female relations are made miserable, the family of him who makes them so, very soon wholly perishes; but, where they are not unhappy, the family always increases.
 - 58. 'On whatever houses the women of a family, 'not being duly honoured, pronounce an imprecation, 'those houses, with all that belong to them, utterly 'perish, as if destroyed by a sacrifice for the death 'of an enemy.
 - 59. 'Let those women, therefore, be continually 'supplied with ornaments, apparel and food, at festivals and at jubilees, by men desirous of wealth.
 - 60 'In whatever family the husband is contented 'with his wife, and the wife with her husband, in 'that house will fortune be assuredly permanent.
 - 61. 'Certainly, if the wife be not elegantly attired, 'she will not exhilarate her husband; and if her lord want huarity, offspring will not be produced.
 - 62. 'A wife being gaily adorned, her whole house 'is embellished; but, if she be destitute of ornament, 'al will be deprived of decoration.
 - 63. 'By culpable marriages, by omission of pre-'scribed ceremonies, by neglect of reading the Vėda, 'and

- ' and by irreverence toward a Bráhmen, great families CHAP. ' are sunk to a low state:
- 64. 'So they are by practising manual arts, by lend'ing at interest and other pecuniary transactions, by
 'begetting children on Súdràs only, by traffick in
 'kine, horses, and carriages, by agriculture and by
 'attendance on a king.
- 65. 'By sacrificing for such as have no right to sa-'crifice, and by denying a future compensation for 'good works, great families, being deprived of sacred 'knowledge, are quickly destroyed;
- 66. 'But families, enriched by a knowledge of the 'Veda, though possessing little temporal wealth, are 'numbered among the great, and acquire exalted fame.
- 67. 'Let the house-keeper perform domestick reli'gious rites, with the nuptial fire, according to law,
 'and the ceremonies of the five great sacraments, and
 'the several acts which must day by day be per'formed.
- 68. 'A house-keeper has five places of slaughter, 'or where small living creatures may be slain; his 'kitchen-hearth, his grindstone, his broom, his pestle 'and mortar, his water-pot; by using which, he be-'comes in bondage to sin:
- 69. 'For the sake of expiating o ences committed 'ignorantly in those places mentioned in order, the 'five great sacraments were appointed by eminent 'sages

- CHAP. ' sages to be performed each day by such as keep iii. ' house.
 - 70. 'Teaching and studying the scripture is the sa-'crament of the Vėda; offering cakes and water, the 'sacrament of the Manes; an oblation to fire, the 'sacrament of the Deities; giving rice or other food
 - ' to living creatures, the sacrament of spirits; re-' ceiving guests with honour, the sacrament of men:
 - 71. 'Whoever omits not those five great cereme'nies, if he have ability to perform them, is untainted
 'by the sins of the five slaughtering-places, even 'though he constantly reside at home;
 - 72. 'But whoever cherishes not five orders of beings, 'namely, the deities; those, who demand hospitality; 'those, whom he ought by law to maintain; his departed forefathers; and himself; that man lives not 'even though he breathe.
 - 73. 'Some call the five sacraments ahuta and huta, 'prahuta, bráhmya-huta and prásita:
 - 74. 'Ahuta, or unoffered, is divine study; huta, or 'offered, is the oblation to fire; prahuta, or well 'offered, is the feod given to spirits; brahmya-huta, 'is respect shewn to twice-born guests; and prasita, 'or well eaten, is the offering of rice or water to 'the manes of ancestors.
 - 75. Let every man in this second order employ himself daily in reading the scripture, and in performing

- ' forming the sacrament of the Gods; for, being em- CHAP.
- ' ployed in the sacrament of deities, he supports this
- ' whole animal and vegetable world;
 - 76. 'Since his oblation of clarified butter, duly cast
- ' into the flame, ascends in smoke to the sun; from the
- ' sun it falls in rain; from rain comes vegetable food;
- ' and from such food animals derive their subsistence.
 - 77. 'As all creatures subsist by receiving support
- ' from air, thus all orders of men exist by receiving
- ' support from house-keepers;
- 78. 'And since men of the three other orders are
- ' each day nourished by them with divine learning and
- ' with food, a house-keeper is for this reason of the
- ' most eminent order:
- 79. 'That order, therefore, must be constantly sus-
- ' tained with great care by the man who seeks unperish-
- ' able bliss in heaven, and in this world pleasurable
- ' sensations; an order which cannot be sustained by
- ' men with uncontrolled organs.
- 80. 'The divine sages, the manes, the gods, the - spirits, and guests, pray for benefits to masters of
- families; let these honours, therefore, be done to
- ' them by the house-keeper who knows his duty:
- 81. 'Let him honour the Sages by studying the
- ' Weda: the Gods, by oblations to fire ordained by
- ' law; the Manes, by pious obsequies; men by supply-
- ' ing them with food; and spirits, by gifts to all ani-
- ' mated creatures.

- CHAP. 82. 'Each day let him perform a sráddha with boiled 'rice and the like, or with water, or with milk, roots, 'and fruit; for thus he obtains favour from departed 'progenitors.
 - 83. 'He may entertain one Bráhmen in that sacra-'ment among the five, which is performed for the 'Pitris; but, at the oblation to all the Gods, let him 'not invite even a single priest.
 - 84. 'In his domestick fire for dressing the food of 'all the Gods, after the prescribed ceremony, let a 'Bráhmen make an oblation each day to these ol- 'lowing divinities;
 - 85. 'First to Agni, god of fire, and to the lunar 'god, severally; then, to both of them at once; next 'to the assembled gods; and afterwards, to Dhan- 'wantari, god of medicine;
 - 86. 'To Cuhu', goddess of the day, when the new 'moon is discernible: to Anumati, goddess of the day, after the opposition; to Praja'pati, or the Lord of 'Creatures; to Dya'va' and Prithivi', goddesses of sky and earth; and lastly, to the fire of the good sacrifice.
 - 87. 'Having thus, with fixed attention, offered cla-'rified butter in all cuarters, proceeding rom the east 'in a southern direction, to Indra, Yama, Varuna, and 'the god So'ma, let him offer his gift to animated 'creatures:

- 88. 'Saying, "I salute the Maruts," or Winds, CHAP. 'let him throw dressed rice near the door; saying, III.
- " I salute the water gods," in water; and on his
- ' pestle and mortar, saying, "I salute the gods of large trees."
- 89. 'Let him do the like in the north-east, or near his pillow, to Sri', the goddess of abundance; in the south-west, or at the foot o his bed, to the propitious goddess Bhadraca'li'; in the centre of his mansion, to Brahma' and his household god;
- 90. 'To all the Gods assembled, let him throw up 'his oblation in the open air; by day, to the spirits 'who walk in light; and by night, to those who walk 'in darkness:
- 91. 'In the building on his house-top, or behind 'his back, let him cast his oblation for the welfare 'of all creatures; and what remains let him give to 'the Pitris with his face toward the south:
- 92. 'The share of dogs, of outcasts, of dog-feeders, of sinful men, punished with elephantiasis or consumption, of crows, and of reptiles, let him drop on the ground by little and little.
- 93. 'A Bráhmen, who thus each day shall honour 'all beings, will go to the highest region in a straight 'path, in an irradiated form.
- 94. 'When he has performed his duty of making 'oblations, let him cause his guest to take food be-

- CHAP. 'fore himself; and let him give a portion of rice, as III. 'the law ordains, to the mendicant who studies the 'Véda:
 - 95. 'Whatever fruit shall be obtained by that student, as the reward of his virtue, when he shall have given a cow to his preceptor, according to law, the like reward to virtue shall be obtained by the twice-born house-keeper, when he has given a mouthful of rice to the religious mendicant.
 - 96. 'To a Bráhmen who knows the true principle of the Véda, let him present a portion of rice, or a pot of water, garnished with fruit and flowers, due ceremonies having preceded:
 - 97. 'Shares of oblations to the Gods, or to the 'Manes, utterly perish, when presented, through de'lusion of mind, by men regardless of duty, to such
 'ignorant Bráhmens as are mere ashes;
 - 98. 'But an offering in the fire of a sacerdotal 'mouth, which richly blazes with true knowledge and 'piety, will release the giver from distress, and even 'from deadly sin.
 - 99. 'To the guest who comes of his own accord, 'let him offer a seat and water, with such food as he is able to prepare, after the due rites of courtesy.
 - 100. 'A Bráhmen coming as a guest, and not re'ceived with just honour, takes to himself all the 'reward of the house-keeper's former virtue, even 'though he had been so temperate as to live on the
 'gleanings

- ' gleanings of harvests, and so pious as to make obla- CHAP.
 ' tions in five distinct fires.
- 101. 'Grass and earth to sit on, water to wash the 'feet, and, fourthly, affectionate speech are at no time 'deficient in the mansions of the good, although they 'may be indigent.
- 102. 'A Bráhmen, staying but one night as a guest, 'is called an atit'hi; since continuing so short a time, 'he is not even a sojourner for a whole tit'hi, or day 'of the moon.
- 103. 'The house-keeper must not consider as an 'atit'hi a mere visitor of the same town, or a Bráh'men, who attends him on business, even though he come to the house where his wife dwells, and where his fires are kindled.
- 104. 'Should any house-keepers be so senseless, as 'to seek, on pretence of being guests, the food of 'others, they would fall after death, by reason of 'that baseness, to the condition of cattle belonging to 'the giver of such food.
- 105. 'No guest must be dismissed in the evening by 'a house-keeper; he is sent by the retiring sun; and, 'whether he come in fit season or unseasonably, he 'must not sojourn in the house without entertainment.
- 106. 'Let not himself eat any delicate food, without 'asking his guest to partake of it: the satisfaction of a guest

- CHAP. 'a guest will assuredly bring the house-keeper wealth, III. 'reputation, long life, and a place in heaven.
 - 107. 'To the highest guests in the best form, to the 'lowest in the worst, to the equal, equally, let him 'offer seats, resting places, couches; giving them 'proportionable attendance, when they depart; and 'honour, as long as they stay.
 - 108. 'Should another guest arrive, when the oblation to all the Gods is concluded, for him also let the house-keeper prepare food, according to his ability; but let him not repeat his offerings to animated beings.
 - 109. 'Let no Bráhmen guest proclaim his family and 'ancestry for the sake of an entertainment; since he, 'who thus proclaims them, is called by the wise a 'vántásí, or foul-feeding demon.
 - 110. 'A military man is not denominated a guest in 'the house of a Bráhmen; nor a man of the com- 'mercial or servile class; nor his familiar friend; nor 'his paternal kinsman; nor his preceptor:
 - 111. 'But if a warriour come to his house in the 'form of a guest, let food be prepared for him, ac'cording to his desire, after the before-mentioned 'Brahmens have eaten.
 - 112. 'Even to a merchant or a labourer, approach' ng his house in the manner of guests, let him give ' food,

- ' food, showing marks of benevolence at the same time CHAP. ' with his domesticks:
- 113. 'To others, as familiar friends, and the rest before-named, who come with affection to his place of abode, let him serve a repast at the same time with his wife and himsel, having amply provided it according to his best means.
- 114. 'To a bride, and to a damsel, to the sick, and 'to pregrant women, let him give food, even before 'his guests, without hesitation.
- 115. 'The idiot, who first eats his own mess, without having presented food to the persons just enumerated, knows not, while he crams, that he will himself be food after death for bandogs and vultures.
- 116. 'After the repast of the Bráhmen guest, of his 'kinsmen, and his domesticks, the married couple may 'eat what remains untouched.
- 117. 'The house-keeper, having honoured spirits, 'holy sages, men, progenitors, and household gods, 'may feed on what remains after those oblations.
- 118. 'He, who eats what has been dressed for him-'self only, eats nothing but sin a repast on what 'remains after the sacrament is called the banquet of 'the good.
- 119. 'After a year from the reception of a visitor, 'let the house-keeper again honour a king, a sacrificer, 'a student returned from his preceptor, a son in-law, 'a fa-

- CHAP 'a father-in-law, and a maternal uncle, with a madhu-III. 'perca, or present o honey, curds, and fruit.
 - 120. 'A king or a Bráhmen arriving at the celebra-
 - ' tion of the sacrament, are to be honoured with a
 - ' madhuperca; but not, if the sacrament be over: this
 - ' is a settled rule.
 - 121. 'In the evening let the wife make an offering 'of the dressed food, but without pronouncing any
 - text of the Veda: one obiation to the assembled
 - 'gods, thence named Vaiswadéva, is ordained both
 - ' for evening and morning.
 - 122. 'From month to month, on the dark day of
 - ' the moon, let a twice-born man, having finished the
 - ' daily sacrament of the Pitris, and his fire being still
 - ' blazing, perform the solemn sráddha, called pindán-
 - ' wáhárya:
 - 123. 'Sages have distinguished the monthly sráddha
 - by the title of anwaharya, or a ter eaten, that is,
 - ' eaten after the pinda, or ball of rice; and it must be
 - ' performed with extreme care, and with flesh-meat
 - ' in the best condition.
 - 124. What Bráhmens must be entertained at that
 - ' ceremony, and who must be excepted, how many
 - ' are to be fed, and with what sorts of food, on all
 - ' those articles, without omission, I will fully discourse.
 - 125. At the sráddha of the gods he may entertain
 - ' two Bráhmens; at that of his father, paternal grand-
 - ' father, and paternal great-grandfather, three; or one
 - ' only

- only at that of the gods, and one at that for his CHAP.
- three paternal ancestors: though he abound in
- wealth, let him not be solicitous to entertain a large company.
- 126. 'A large company destroys these five advantages; reverence to priests, propriety of time and place, purity, and the acquisition of virtuous Bráhmens: let him not therefore, endeavour to feed a
- ' superfluous number.
- 127. 'This act of due honour to departed souls, on the dark day of the moon, is famed by the appellation of pitrya, or ancestral: the legal ceremony, in honour of departed spirits, rewards with continual fruit, a man engaged in such obsequies.
- 128. 'Oblations to the gods and to ancestors should be given to a most reverend Brákmen, perfectly conversant with the Véda; since what is given to him produces the greatest reward.
- 129. 'By entertaining one learned man at the ob' lation to the gods and at that to ancestors, he gains
 ' more exalted fruit than by feeding a multitude, who
 ' know not the holy texts.
- 130. 'Let him inquire into the ancestry, even in a 'remote degree, of a Bráhmen, who has advanced to 'the end of the Véda: such a man, if sprung from good 'men, is a fit partaker of oblations to gods and to ancestors; such a man may justly be called an 'atit'hi, or guest.

- CHAP. 131. 'Surely, though a million of men, unlearned in holy texts, were to receive food, yet a single man, 'learned in scripture, and fully satisfied with his entertainment, would be of more value than all of them
 - tertainment, would be of more value than all of them together.
 - 132. 'Food, consecrated to the gods and the manes, 'must be presented to a theologian of eminent learn'ing; for certainly, when hands are smeared with blood, they cannot be cleaned with blood only, nor 'can sin be removed by the company of sinners.
 - 133. 'As many mouthfuls as an unlearned man shall 'swallow at an oblation to the gods and to ancestors, 'so many redhot iron balls must the giver of the srád-'dha swallow in the next world.
 - 134. 'Some Bráhmens are intent on scriptural know'ledge; others, on austere devotion; some are intent
 'both on religious austerity and on the study of the
 'Veda; others on the performance of sacred rites:
 - 135. 'Oblations to the manes of ancestors ought to be placed with care before such as are intent on sacred learning: but offerings to the gods may be presented, with due ceremonres, to Bráhmens of all the four descriptions.
 - 136. There may be a Brahmen, whose father had not studied the scripture, though the son has advanced to the end of the Véda; or there may be one, whose son has not read the Véda, though the father had travelled to the end of it:

- 137. 'Of those two let mankind consider him as the CHAP.
- ' superiour, whose father had studied the scripture, yet
- ' for the sake of performing rites with holy texts, the
- ' other is worthy of honour.
- 138. 'Let no man, at the prescribed obsequies, give
- ' food to an intimate friend; since advantage to a friend
- ' must be procured by gifts of different property: to
- ' that Bráhmen let the performer of a sráddha give
- ' food, whom he considers neither as a friend nor as
- 'a foe.
- 139. 'For him, whose obsequies and offerings of
- ' clarified butter are provided chiefly through friend-
- ' ship, no fruit is reserved in the next life, on account
- ' either of his obsequies or of his offerings.
- 140. 'The man, who, through delusion of intellect,
- ' forms temporal connexions by obsequies, is excluded
- ' from heavenly mansions, as a giver of the sráddha
- ' for the sake of friendship, and the meanest of twice-
- 'born men:
- 141. 'Such a convivial present, by men of the three
- ' highest classes, is called the gift of Pisáchas, and
- ' remains fixed here below, like a blind cow in one
- 'stall.
- 142. 'As a husbandman, having sown seed in a
- ' barren soil, reaps no grain, thus a performer of holy
- ' rites, having given clarified butter to an unlearned
- ' Bráhmen, attains no reward in heaven;
 - 143. 'But a present made, as the law ordains, to a

 'learned

- CHAP. 'learned theologian, renders both the giver and the III. 'receiver partakers of good fruits in this world and in 'the next.
 - 144. 'If no learned Bráhmen be at hand, he may at 'his pleasure invite a friend to the sráddha, but not a 'foe, be he ever so learned; since the oblation, being 'eaten by a foe, loses all fruit in the life to come.
 - 145. 'With great care let him give food at the srád'dha to a priest, who has gone through the scripture,
 'but has chiefly studied the Rīgvéda; to one, who has
 'read all the branches, but principally those of the
 'Yajush; or to one who has finished the whole, with 'particular attention to the Sáman:
 - 146. 'Of that man whose oblation has been eaten, 'after due honours, by any one of those three Bráh- 'mens, the ancestors are constantly satisfied as high 'as the seventh person, or to the sixth degree.
 - 147. 'This is the chier rule in offering the sráddha' to the gods and to ancestors; but the following may be considered as a subsidiary rule, where no such learned priests can be ound, and is ever observed by good men:
 - 148. 'Let him entertain his maternal grandfather, his 'maternal uncle, the son of his sister, the father of his 'wife, his spiritual guide, the son of his daughter, or 'her husband, his maternal cousin, his officiating 'priest, or the performer of his sacrifice.
 - 149. ' or an oblation to the gods, let not the man, ' who

- 'who knows what is law, scrupulously inquire into the CHAP. parentage of a Bráhmen; but for a prepared oblation
- to ancestors let him examine it with strict care.
 - 150. 'Those Brahmens, who have committed any
- 'in eriour theft or any o the higher crimes, who are deprived of virility, or who profess a disbelief in a
- ' future state, Menu has pronounced unworthy of ho-
- ' nour at a sráddha to the gods or to ancestors.
- 151. 'To a student in theology, who has not read
- ' the Véda, to a man punished or past crimes by being
- ' born without a prepuce, to a gamester, and to such
- ' as perform many sacrifices for other men, let him
- ' never give food at the sacred obsequies.
- 152. 'Physicians, image-worshippers for gain, sellers
- of meat, and such as live by low traffick, must be
- ' shunned in oblations both to the deities and to pro-
- ' genitors.
- 153. ' A public servant of the whole town, or of the - ' prince, a man with whitlows on his nails, or with
- 'black-yellow teeth, an opposer of his preceptor, a
- ' deserter of the sacred fire, and an usurer,
- 154. 'A phthisical man, a feeder of cattle, one
- ' omitting the five great sacraments, a contemner of
- ' Bráhmens, a younger brother married before the elder,
- ' an elder brother not married before the younger, and
- ' a man who subsists by the wealth of many relations,
- 155. 'A dancer, one who has violated the rule of 'chastity in the first or fourth order, the husband of a

 - 156. 'One who teaches the Vėda for wages, and one who gives wages to such a teacher, the pupil of a Súdra, and the Súdra preceptor, a rude speaker, and the son of an adulteress, born either before or after the death of the husband,
 - 157. 'A forsaker, without just cause, of his mother, 'father or preceptor, and a man who forms a connexion, 'either by scriptural or connubial affinity, with great 'sinners,
 - 158. 'A house-burner, a giver of poison, an eater of 'food offered by the son of an adulteress, a seller of 'the moon-plant (a species o mountain-rue, a navigator of the ocean, a poetical encomiast, an oilman, and a 'suborner of perjury,
 - 159. 'A wrangler with his father, an employer of 'gamesters for his own benefit, a drinker of intoxicating spirits, a man punished for sin with elephantiasis, one of evil repute, a cheat, and a seller of liquids,
 - 160. 'A maker of bows and arrows, the husband of a younger sister married before the elder o' the whole blood, an injurer of his friend, the keeper of a gaming-house, and a father instructed in the Véda by his own son,
 - 161. 'An epileptick person, one who has the ery-

- ' sipelas or the leprosy, a common informer, a luna- CHAP.
- tick, a blind man, and a despiser of scripture; must
- ' all be shunned.
- 162. 'A tamer of elephants, bulls, horses, or camels, 'a man who subsists by astrology, a keeper of birds, 'and one who teaches the use of arms,
- 163. 'He, who diverts watercourses, and he, who 'is gratified by obstructing them, he, who builds 'houses for gain, a messenger, and a planter of trees 'for pay,
- 164. 'A breeder of sporting-dogs, a falconer, a se-'ducer of damsels, a man delighting in mischief, a 'Bráhmen living as a Súdra, a sacrificer to the infe-'riour gods only,
- 165. 'He, who observes not approved customs, and he, who regards not prescribed duties. a constant importunate asker of favours, he, who supports himself by tillage, a clubfooted man, and one despised by the virtuous,
- 166. 'A shepherd, a keeper of buffalos, the husband of a twice-married woman, and the remover of dead bodies for pay, are to be avoided with great care.
- 167. 'Those lowest of Bráhmens, whose manners are contemptible, who are not admissible into company at a repast, an exalted and learned priest must avoid at both sráddhas.
 - 168. 'A Bráhmen unlearned in holy writ, is extin-

- CHAP. 'guished in an instant like a fire of dry grass: to him

 III. 'the oblation must not be given; for the clarified but 'ter must not be poured on ashes.
 - 169. 'What retribution is prepared in the next life 'for the giver of food to men inadmissible into company, at the sráddha to the gods and to ancestors, 'I will now declare without omission.
 - 170. 'On that food, which has been given to Bráh'mens who have violated the rules of their order, to 'the younger brother married before the elder, and
 'to the rest who are not admissible into company,
 'the Racshases eagerly feast.
 - 171. 'He, who makes a marriage-contract with the connubial fire, while his elder brother continues unmarried, is called a perivéttri; and the elder brother a perivitti:
 - 172. 'The perivéttri, the perivitti, the damsel thus 'wedded, the giver of her in wedlock, and, fifthly, 'the performer of the nuptial sacrifice, all sink to 'a region of torment.
 - 173. 'He, who lasciviously dallies with the widow of his deceased brother, though she be legally marired to him, is denominated the husband of a di'dhishú.
 - 174. 'Two sons, named a cunda and a gólaca, are born in adultery; the cunda, while the husband is alive, and the gólaca, when the husband is dead:

175. Those

- 175. 'Those animals begotten by adulterers, destroy, CHAP. both in this world and in the next, the food pre-
- ' sented to them by such as make oblations to the gods or to the manes.
- 176. 'The foolish giver of a sráddha loses, in a fu-'ture life, the fruit of as many admissible guests, as 'a thief or the like person, inadmissible into com-'pany, might be able to see.
- 177. 'A blind man placed where one with eyes 'might have seen, destroys the reward of ninety; he, 'who has lost one eye, of sixty; a leper, of an hun-'dred; one punished with elephantiasis, of a thou- 'sand.
- 178. 'Of the gift at a sráddha, to as many Bráh'mens, as a sacrificer for a Súdra might be able to 'touch on the body, the fruit is lost to the giver, if
 'he invite such a wretch;
- 179. And if a Bráhmen who knows the Véda, receive through covetousness a present from such a sacrificer, he speedily sinks to perdition, like a figure of unburnt clay in water.
- 180. 'Food given to a seller of the moon-plant, becomes ordure in another world; to a physician purulent blood; and the giver will be a reptile bred in them; if offered to an image-worshipper, it is thrown away; if to an usurer, infamous.
 - 181. 'That which is given to a trader, endures 'neither

CHAP 'neither in this life nor in the next, and that bestowIII. 'ed on a Bráhmen, who has married a widow, resem'bles clarified butter poured on ashes as an oblation
'to fire.

- 182. 'That food, which is given to other base, 'inadmissible men, before mentioned, the wise have 'pronounced to be no more than animal oil, blood, 'flesh, skin, and bones.
- 183. 'Now learn comprehensively, by what Bráh'mens a company may be purified, when it has been
 'defiled by inadmissible persons; Bráhmens, the 'chief of their class, the purifiers of every assembly.
- 184. 'Those priests must be considered as the purifiers of a company who are most learned in all the 'Vėdas and in all their Angas, together with their 'descendants who have read the whole scripture:
- 185. 'A priest learned in a principal part of the 'Yajurveda; one who keeps the five fires constantly burning; one skilled in a principal part of the Rig'véda; one who explains the six Védángas; the son of a Bráhmì, or woman married by the Bráhma ce'remony; and one wo chants the principal Sáman;
- 186. 'One who propounds the sense of the Védas, 'which he learnt from his preceptor, a student who has given a thousand cows or pious uses, and a Bráhmen a hundred years old, must all be considered as the purifiers of a party at a sráddha.

- 187. 'On the day before the sacred obsequies, or on CHAP. ' the very day when they are prepared, let the per-
- ' former of them invite, with due honour, such Bráh-
- ' mens as have been mentioned; usually one superiour.
- ' who has three inferiour to him.
- 188. 'The Bráhmen, who has been invited to a ' sráddha for departed ancestors, must be continually
- 'abstemious; he must not even read the Védas; and
- 'he, who performs the ceremony, must act in the
- ' same manner.
- 189. ' Departed ancestors, no doubt, are attendant
- on such invited Bráhmens; hovering around them like
- ' pure spirits, and sitting by them, when they are seated.
 - 190. 'The priest, who having been duly invited to a
- · sráddha, breaks the appointment, commits a grievous
- offence, and, in his next birth, becomes a hog.
 - 191. ' He, who caresses a Súdrà woman, after he has
- ' been invited to sacred obsequies, takes on himself all
- ' the sin, that has been committed by the giver of the
- ' repast.
- 192. 'The Pitris or great progenitors, are free from
- wrath, intent on purity, ever exempt from sensual
- ' passions, endued with exalted qualities: they are pri-
- ' meval divinities, who have laid arms aside.
- 193. ' HEAR now completely, from whom they sprang;

 - 195. 'The Sómasads, who sprang from Vira's, are 'declared to be the ancestors of the Sádhyas; and the
 - ' Agnishwattas, who are famed among created beings
 - ' as the children of Mari'chi, to be the progenitors of
 - ' the Dévas.
 - 196. 'Of the Daityas, the Dánavas, the Yacshas,
 - the Gandharvas, the Uragas, or Serpents, the Rac-
 - ' shases, the Garudas, and the Cinnaras, the ancestors
 - ' are Barhishads descended from ATRI;

 - ' A'jyapas; of Súdras, the Sucálins:
 - 198. 'The Sómapas descended from Me, Bhrigu;
 - ' the Havishmats, from Angiras; the Ajyayas, from
 - ' Pulastya; the Sucálins, from Vasisht'ha.
 - 199. 'Those who are, and those who are not, con-
 - ' sumable by fire, called Agnidagdhas, and Anag-
 - "nidagdhas, the Cávyas, the Barhishads, the Agnish-
 - 5 wáttas, and the Saumyas, let mankind consider as
 - ' the chief progenitors of Bráhmens.
 - 200. 'Of those just enumerated, who are generally 'reputed the principal tribes of Pitris, the sons and
 - ' grandsons indefinitely, are also in this world con-
 - ' sidered as great progenitors.
 - 201. 'From the Rishis come the Pitris, or patriarchs:

- ' triarchs; from the Pitris, both Dévas and Dánavas; CHAP.
- ' from the Dévas, this whole world of animals and III.
- ' vegetables, in due order.
- 202. 'Mere water, offered with faith to the proge-'nitors of men, in vessels of silver, or adorned with 'silver, proves the source of incorruption.
- 203. 'An oblation by Bráhmens to their ancestors 'transcends an oblation to the deities; because that 'to the de ties is considered as the opening and completion of that to ancestors.
- 204. 'As a preservative of the oblation to the pa-'triarchs, let the house-keeper begin with an offering 'to the gods; for the Racshases rend in pieces an obla-'tion which has no such preservative.
- 205. 'Let an offering to the gods be made at the 'beginning and end of the sráddha: it must not begin 'and end with an offering to ancestors; for he, who 'begins and ends it with an oblation to the Pitris, 'quickly perishes with his progeny.
- 206. 'Let the Brahmen smear with cow-dung a 'purified and sequestered piece of ground; and let 'him, with great care, select a place with a declivity 'toward the south:
- 207. 'The divine manes are always pleased with an 'oblation in empty glades, naturally clean, on the 'banks of rivers, and in solitary spots.
- 208. 'Having duly made an ablution with water, 'let him place the invited $Br\'{a}hmens$, who have also N 2 'performed

 - 209. 'When he has placed them with reverence on their seats, let him honour them, (having first ho-
 - ' noured the Gods) with fragrant garlands and sweet doors.
 - 210. 'Having brought water for them with cusa-grass 'and tila, let the Bráhmen, with the Bráhmens, pour 'the oblation, as the law directs, on the holy fire.
 - 211. 'First, as it is ordained, having satisfied Agni, 'Soma, and Yama, with clarified butter, let him pro'ceed to satisfy the manes of his progenitors.
 - 212. 'If he have no consecrated fire, as if he be yet 'unmarried, or his wife be just deceased, let him drop 'the oblation into the hand of a Bráhmen; since, what 'fire is, even such is a Bráhmen; as priests, who know 'the Véda declare:
 - 213. 'Holy sages call the chief of the twice-born 'the gods of obsequies, free from wrath, with placid 'aspects, of a primeval race, employed in the advance- ment of human creatures.
 - 214. 'Having walked in order from east to south, 'and thrown into the fire all the ingredients of his 'oblation, let him sprinkle water on the ground with 'his right hand.
 - 215. 'From the remainder of the clarified butter 'aving formed three ba's of rice, let him offer them, 'with

- with fixed attention, in the same manner as the CHAP. water, his face being turned to the south:
- 216. 'Then having offered those balls, after due ceremonies and with an attentive mind, to the manes of his ather, his paternal grand ather, and great grandfather, let him wipe the same hand with the roots of cusa, which he had before used, for the sake of his paternal ancestors in the fourth, fith, and sixth degrees, who are the partakers of the rice and

' clarified butter thus wiped off.

- 217. 'Having made an ablution, returning toward the north, and thrice suppressing his breath slowly, let him salute the Gods of the six seasons, and the Pitris also, being well acquainted with proper texts of the Véda.
- 218. 'Whatever water remains in his ewer, let him carry back deliberately near the cakes of rice; and, with fixed attention, let him smell those cakes, in order as they were offered:
- 219. 'Then, taking a small portion of the cakes in order, let him first, as the law directs, cause the Bráhmens to eat of them, while they are seated.
- 220. 'If his father be alive, let him offer the srád'dha to his ancestors in three higher degrees; or let 'him cause his own father to eat, as a Bráhmen at the
 'obsequies:
- 221. 'Should his father be dead, and his grandfather 'living, let him, in celebrating the name of his father, 'that

 - 222. 'Either the paternal grandfather may partake 'of the sráddha (so has Menu declared or the grand-
 - ' son, authorized by him, may perform the ceremony
 - ' at his discretion.
 - 223. 'Having poured water, with cusa-grass and tila, 'into the hands of the Bráhmens, let him give them 'the upper part of the cakes, saying "Swadhá to
 - 'the manes!"
 - 224. 'Next, having himself brought with both hands,
 - ' a vessel full of rice, let him, still meditating on the
 - ' Pitris, place it before the Bráhmens without precipi-
 - ' tation.
 - 225. 'Rice taken up, but not supported with both hands, the malevolent Asuras quickly rend in pieces.
 - 226. 'Broshs potherbs, and other eatables accom-
 - ' panying the rice, together with milk and curds,
 - ' clarified butter and honey, let him first place on the
 - · ground, after he has made an ablution; and let his
 - ' mind be intent on no other object:
 - 227. 'Let him add spiced puddings, and milky
 - ' messes of various sorts, roots of herbs and ripe
 - ' fruits, savoury meats, and sweet smelling drinks.
 - 228. 'Then being duly purified, and with perfect
 - ' presence of mind, let him take up all the dishes,
 - ' one by one, and present them in order to the Bráh-
 - ' mens, proclaiming their qualities.

- 229. 'Let him at no time drop a tear; let him on CHAP.
- ' no account be angry; let him say nothing false;
- · let him not touch the eatables with his foot; let
- ' him not even shake the dishes:
 - 230. 'A tear sends the messes to restless ghosts;
- 'anger, to foes; falsehood, to dogs; contact with
- ' his foot, to demons; agitation, to sinners.
 - 231. 'Whatever is agreeable to the Bráhmens, let
- ' him give without envy; and let him discourse on
- ' the attributes of GoD: such discourse is expected
- ' by the manes.
- 232. 'At the obsequies to ancestors, he must let
- ' the Bráhmens hear passages from the Veda, from
- ' the codes of law, from moral tales, from heroick
- ' poems, from the Puráras, and from theological texts.
 - 233. 'Himself being delighted, let him give delight
- ' to the Bráhmens, and invite them to eat of the pro-
- 'visions by little and little; attracting them often
- ' with the dressed rice and other eatables, and men-
- ' tioning their good properties.
- 234. 'To the son of his daughter, though a stu-
- ' dent in theology, let him carefully give food at the
- ' sráddha; offering him a blanket rom Népàl as his
- ' seat, and sprinkling the ground with tila.
- 235. 'Three things are held pure at such obsequies,
- ' the daughter's son, the Népàl blanket, and the tila;
- ' and three things are praised in it by the wise, clean-

- CHAP. ' liness, freedom from wrath, and want of precipiIII. ' tate haste.
 - 236. 'Let all the dressed food be very hot; and 'let the Bráhmens eat it in silence; nor let them de-
 - clare the qualities of the food, even though asked
 - ' by the giver.
 - 237. 'As long as the messes continue warm, as long
 - ' as they eat in silence, as long as the qualities of the
 - ' food are not declared by them, so long the manes
 - ' feast on it.
 - 238. What a Bráhmen eats with his head covered,
 - ' what he eats with his face to the south, what he
 - ' eats with sandals on his feet, the demons assuredly
 - devour.
 - 239. 'Let not a Chandála, a town-boar, a cock, a
 - ' dog, a woman in her courses, or an eunuch, see
 - ' the Bráhmens eating:

- 243. 'Should another Bráhmen, or a mendicant, come 'to his house for food, let him, having obtained permission from the invited Bráhmens, entertain the 'stranger to the best of his power.
- 244. 'Having brought together all the sorts of food, as dressed rice and the like, and sprinkling them with water let him place them before the Bráhmens, who have eaten; dropping some on the blades of cusa-grass, which have been spread on the ground.
- 245. 'What remains in the dishes, and what has 'been dropped on the blades of cusa, must be considered as the portion of deceased Bráhmens, not girt 'with the sacrificial thread, and of such as have de'serted unreasonably the women of their own tribe.
 - 246. 'The residue, that has fallen on the ground at the sráddha to the manes, the wise have decided to be the share of all the servants, who are not crooked in their ways, nor lazy and ill disposed.
 - 247. 'Before the obsequies to ancestors as far as 'the sixth degree, they must be performed to a Bráh'men recently deceased; but the performer of them 'must, in that case, give the sráddha without the ce'remony to the Gods, and offer only one round cake; 'and these obsequies for a single ancestor should be an'nually performed on the day of his death:
 - 248. 'When, afterwards, the obsequies to ancestors

 - 249. 'That fool, who, having eating of the sráddha, 'gives the residue of it to a man of the servile class, 'falls headlong down to the hell, named Cálasútra.
 - 250. 'Should the eater of a sráddha enter, on the 'same day, the bed of a seducing woman, his ancestors would sleep for that month on her excrement.
 - 251. 'HAVING, by the word swaditam, asked the 'Brahmens if they have eaten well, let him give them, 'being satisfied, water for an ablution, and courteously say to them: "Rest either at home or here."
 - 252. 'Then let the Bráhmens address him, saying 'swadhá; for in all ceremonies relating to deceased 'ancestors, the word swadhá is the highest benison.
 - 253. 'After that, let him inform those, who have 'eaten, of the food which remains; and, being instructed by the Bráhmens, let him dispose of it, as 'they may direct.
 - 254. 'At the close of the sráddha to his ancestors, 'he must ask, if the Bráhmens are satisfied, by the 'word swadita; after that for his family, by the word 'susruta; after that for his own advancement, by the 'word sampanna; after that, which has been offered to the gods, by the word ruchita.

 be considered as wealth in the sráddha to the gods:
- 257. 'Such wild grains as are eaten by hermits, 'milk, the juice of the moon-plant, meat untainted, and salt unprepared by art, are held things fit, in their own nature, for the last mentioned offering.
- 258. 'Having dismissed the invited Bråhmens, keep'ing his mind attentive, and his speech suppressed,
 'let him, after an ablution, look toward the south,
 'and ask these blessings of the Pitris:
- 259. "May generous givers abound in our house! may the scriptures be studied, and progeny increase, in it! may faith never depart from us! and may we have much to bestow on the needy!"
- 260. 'Thus having ended the sráddha, let him cause a cow, a priest, a kid, or the fire, to devour what remains of the cakes; or let him cast them into the waters.

 - ' qualities, and performing all duties religious and civil.
 - 264. 'Then, having washed both his hands and 'sipped water, let him prepare some rice for his paternal kinsmen; and, having given it them with due 'reverence, let him prepare food also for his mater-
 - nal relations.
 - 265. 'Let the residue continue in its place, until 'the Bráhmens have been dismissed; and then let him 'perform the remaining domestick sacraments.
 - · 266. 'What sort of oblations, given duly to the manes, are capable of satisfying them, for a long time or for eternity, I will now declare without omission.
 - 267. 'The ancestors of men are satisfied a whole 'month with tila, rice, barley, black lentils or vetches, water, roots, and fruit, given with prescribed ceremonies;

- 268. 'Two months, with fish; three months, with CHAP. 'venison; four, with mutton; five, with the flesh of such birds, as the twice-born may eat;
- 269. 'Six months, with the flesh of kids; seven, with that of spotted deer; eight, with that of the deer, or antelope, called éna; nine with that of the ruru:
- 270. 'Ten months are they satisfied with the flesh of wild boars and wild buffalos; eleven, with that of rabbits or hares, and of tortoises;
- 271. 'A whole year with the milk of cows, and food 'made of that milk; from the flesh of the long-eared 'white goat, their satisfaction endures twelve years.
- 272. 'The potherb cálasáca, the fish mahásalca, or 'the diodon, the flesh of a rhinoceros, or of an iron-coloured kid, honey, and all such forest grains as 'are eaten by hermits, are formed for their satisfaction without end.
- 273. 'Whatever pure food, mixed with honey, a 'man offers on the thirteenth day of the moon, in the 'season of rain, and under the lunar asterism Maghà, 'has likewise a ceaseless duration.
- 274. "Oh! may that man, say the manes, be born in our line, who may give us milky food, with homey and pure butter, both on the thirteenth of the moon, and when the shadow of an elephant falls to the east!"
 - 275. 'Whatever a man, endued with strong faith, 'piously

- CHAP. 'picusly offers, as the law has directed, becomes a III. 'perpetual unperishable gratification to his ancestors in 'the other world:
 - 276. 'The tenth and so forth, except the four-'teenth, in the dark half of the month, are the lunar 'days most approved for sacred obsequies: as they 'are, so are not the others.
 - 277. 'He, who does honour to the manes, on even 'lunar days, and under even lunar stations enjoys all 'his desires; on odd lunar days, and under odd lunar 'asterisms, he procures an illustrious race.
 - 278. 'As the latter, or dark, half of the month surpasses, for the celebration of obsequies, the former, or bright half, so the latter half of the day surpasses, or the same purpose, the former half of it.
 - 279. 'The oblation to ancestors must be duly made, even to the conclusion o it with the distribution to the servants or even to the close of life, in the form prescribed, by a Bráhmen wearing his thread on his right shoulder, proceeding from left to right, without remissness, and with cusa-grass in his hand.
 - 280. 'Obsequies must not be performed by night; 'since the night is called rácshasi, or in ested by de'mons; nor while the sun is rising or setting, nor when 'it has just risen.
 - 281. 'A house-keeper, unable to give a monthly re-'past, may perform obsequies here below, according

- ' to the sacred ordinance, only thrice a year, in the CHAP.
- ' seasons of hémanta, grishma, and vershà; but the III.
- ' five sacraments he must perform daily.
 - 282. 'The sacrificial oblation at obsequies to ances-
- ' tors, is ordained to be made in no vulgar fire; nor
- ' should the monthly sráddha of that Bráhmen, who
- ' keeps a perpetual fire, be made on any day, except
- on that of the conjunction.
- 283. 'When a twice-born man, having performed his

On Economicks; and Private Morals.

- CHAP. 1. 'Let a Bráhmen, having dwelt with a preceptor IV. 'during the first quarter of a man's life, pass the second quarter of human life in his own house, when 'he has contracted a legal marriage.
 - 2. 'He must live, with no injury, or with the least 'possible injury, to animated beings, by pursuing those 'means of gaining subsistence, which are strictly pre'scribed by law, except in times of distress:
 - 3. 'For the sole purpose of supporting life, let him 'acquire property by those irreproachable occupations, 'which are peculiar to his class, and unattended with 'bodily pain.
 - 4. 'He may live by rīta and amrīta, or, if necessary, 'by mrīta, or pramrīta, or even by satyánrīta; but never 'let him subsist by swavrītti:
 - 5. 'By rita, must be understood lawful gleaning and 'gathering; by amrita, what is given unasked; by 'mrita, what is asked as alms; tillage is called pra'mrita;
 - 6. 'Traffick and money-lending are satyánrita; even 'by them, when he is deeply distressed, may he support 'life; but service for hire is named swavritti, or dog-'living, and of course he must by all means avoid it.

- 7. ' He may either store up grain for three years; or CHAP. ' garner up enough for one year: or collect what may IV.
- · last three days; or make no provision for the mor-
- 'row.
 - 8. ' Of the four Bráhmens keeping house, who follow
- · those our di erent modes, a preference is given to
- the last in order successively; as to him, who most
- completely by virtue has vanquished the world:
 - 9. 'One of them subsists by all the six means of livelihood; another by three of them; a third, by two only; and a fourth lives barely on continually teaching the Véda.
 - 10. 'He, who sustains himself by picking up grains and ears, must attach himself to some altar of consecrated fire, but constantly perform those rites only, which end with the dark and bright fortnights and with the solstices.
 - 11. 'Let him never, for the sake of a subsistence, have recourse to popular conversation; let him live by the conduct of a priest, neither crooked, nor artful, nor blended with the manners o the mercantile Plass.
 - 12. 'Let him, if he seek happiness, be firm in perfect content, and check all desire of acquiring more than he possesses; for happiness has its root in content, and discontent is the root of misery.
 - 13. ' A Bráhmen keeping house, and supporting himself by any of the legal means before-mentioned, ' must

- CHAP. 'must discharge these following duties, which conduce IV. 'to fame, length of life, and beatitude.
 - 14. 'Let him daily without sloth perform his pe'culiar duty, which the Véda prescribes; for he, who 'performs that duty, as well as he is able, attains the 'highest path to supreme bliss.
 - 15. 'He must not gain wealth by musick or dancing, or by any art that pleases the sense; nor by any prohibited art, nor, whether he be rich or poor, must he receive gits indiscriminately.
 - 16. 'Let him not, from a selfish appetite, be strong-'ly addicted to any sensual gratification; let him, by 'improving his intellect, studiously preclude an exces-'sive attachment to such pleasures, even though law ul.
 - 17. 'All kinds of wealth, that may impede his read'ing the Véda, let him wholly abandon, persisting by 'all means at the study of scripture; for that will be 'found his most beneficial attainment.
 - 18. 'Let him pass through this life, bringing his ap-'parel, his discourse, and his frame of mind, to a con-'formity with his age, his occupations, his property, 'his divine knowledge, and his family.
 - 19. 'Each day let him examine those holy books, 'which soon give increase of wisdom; and those, which 'teach the means of acquiring wealth; those, which 'are salutary to life; and those nigamas, which are 'explanator of the Véda;
 - 20. 'Since, as far as a man studies completely the 'system

- system of sacred literature, so far only can he become CHAP. eminently learned, and so far may his learning shine
- ' brightly.
- 21. 'The sacramental oblations to sages, to the gods, to spirits, to men, and to his ancestors, let him constantly perform to the best of his power.
- 22. 'Some, who well know the ordinances for those oblations, perform not always externally the five great sacraments, but continually make offerings in their own organs of sensation and intellect:
- 23. 'Some constantly sacrifice their breath in their speech, when they instruct others, or praise God aloud, and their speech in their breath, when they meditate in silence; perceiving in their speech and breath, thus employed, the unperishable fruit of a sacrificial offering:
- 24. 'Other Brahmens incessantly perform those sacrifices with scriptural knowledge only; seeing with the eye of divine learning, that scriptural knowledge is the root of every ceremonial observance.
- 25. 'Let a Bráhmen perpetually make oblations to consecrated fire at the beginning and end of day and night, and at the close of each fortnight, or at the conjunction and opposition:
- 26. 'At the season, when old grain is usually consumed, let him offer new grain for a plentiful har'vest; and at the close of the season, let him per'form the rites called adhwara; at the solstices let him

- CHAP. sacrifice cattle; at the end of the year, let his oblaIV. 'tions be made with the juice of the moon-plant.
 - 27. 'Not having offered grain for the harvest, nor cattle at the time o the solstice, let no Bráhmen, who keeps hallowed fire, and wishes for long life, taste rice or flesh:
 - 28. 'Since the holy fires, not being honoured with 'new grain and with a sacrifice of cattle, are greedy 'for rice and flesh, and seek to devour his vital spirits.
 - 29. 'Let him take care, to the utmost of his power, 'that no guest sojourn in his bouse unhonoured with 'a seat, with food, with a bed, with water, with esculent roots, and with fruit:
 - 30. 'But, let him not honour with his conversation 'such as do forbidden acts; such as subsist, like cats, 'by interested crat; such as believe not the scripture; such as oppugn it by sophisms; or such as live like 'rapacious water-birds.
 - 31. 'With oblations to the gods and to ancestors, 'let him do reverence to Bráhmens of the second order, 'who are learned in theology, who have returned home from their preceptors, after having performed their religious duties and fully studied the Véda; but men of an opposite description let him avoid.
 - 32. 'Gifts must be made by each house-keeper, as 'far as he has ability, to religious mendicants, though 'heterodox; and a just portion must be reserved, with'out animal and vegetable.

- 33. 'A priest, who is master of a family, and pines with hunger, may seek wealth from a king of the military class, from a sacrificer, or his own pupil, but from no person else, unless all other helps fail: thus will he shew his respect for the law.
- 34. 'Let no priest, who keeps house, and is able to procure ood, ever waste himself with hunger; nor, when he has any substance, let him wear old or sordid clothes.
- 35. 'His hair, nails, and beard, being clipped; his passions subdued; his mantle, white; his body, pure; let him diligently occupy himself in reading the Véda, and be constantly intent on such acts, as may be salutary to him.
- 36. 'Let him carry a staff of Vénu, an ewer with water in it, a handful of cusa-grass, or a copy o the 'Véda; with a pair of bright golden rings in his ears.
- 37. 'He must not gaze on the sun, whether rising or 'setting, or eclipsed, or reflected in water, or advanced 'to the middle of the sky.
- 38. 'Over a string, to which a calf is tied, let him not 'step; nor let him run, while it rains; nor let him look on his own image in water: this is a settled rule.
- 39. 'By a mound of earth, by a cow, by an idel, 'by a Bráhmen, by a pot o clarified butter, or of 'honey,

- CHAP. 'honey, by a place where four ways meet, and by IV. 'large trees well known in the district, let him pass 'with his right hand toward them.
 - 40. 'Let him not, though mad with desire, approach 'his wife, when her courses appear; nor let him then 'sleep with her in the same bed;
 - 41. 'Since the knowledge, the manhood, the strength, 'the eye-sight, even the vital spirit of him, who approaches his wife thus defiled, utterly perish;
 - 42. But the knowledge, the manhood, the strength, the sight, and the life of him, who avoids her in that state of defilement, are greatly increased.
 - 43. 'Let him neither eat with his wife, nor look at 'her eating, or sneezing, or yawning, or sitting care'lessly at her ease;
 - 44. 'Nor let a Bráhmen, who desires manly strength, 'behold her setting off her eyes with black powder, or 'scenting herself with essences, or baring her bosom, 'or bringing forth a child.
 - 45. 'I et him not eat his food, wearing only a 'single cloth; nor let him bathe quite naked; nor let 'him eject urine or feces in the highway, nor on ashes, 'nor where kine are grazing.
 - 46. 'Nor on tilled ground, nor in water, nor on 'wood raised for burning, nor, unless he be in great 'need, on a mountain, nor on the ruins of a temple, 'nor at any time on a nest of white ants;

- 47. 'Nor in ditches with living creatures in them, CHAP. 'nor walking, nor standing, nor on the bank of a IV. 'ziver, nor on the summit of a mountain:
- 48. 'Nor let him ever eject them, looking at things 'moved by the wind, or at fire, or at a priest, or at 'the sun, or at water, or at cattle;
- 49. 'But let him void his excrements, having co-'vered the earth with wood, potsherds, dry leaves 'and grass, or the like, carefully suppressing his ut-'terance, wrapping up his breast and his head:
- 50. 'By day let him void them with his face to 'the north; by night, with his face to the south; at 'sunrise and at sunset, in the same manner as by day;
- 51. 'In the shade or in darkness, whether by day or by night, let a Bráhmen ease nature with his face turned as he pleases; and in places where he fears injury to life from wild beasts or rom reptiles.
- 52. 'Of him, who should urine against fire, against 'the sun or the moon, against a twice-born man, a 'cow, or the wind, all the sacred knowledge would 'perish.
- 53. 'Let him not blow the fire with his mouth; let 'him not see his wife naked; let him not throw any 'foul thing into the fire; nor let him warm his feet 'in it;
- 54. 'Nor let him place it in a chafing dish under his bed; nor let him stride over it; nor let him keep 'it,

- CHAP. 'it, while he sleeps, at his feet: let him do nothing IV. 'that may be injurious to life.
 - 55. 'At the time of sunrise or sunset, let him not 'eat, nor travel, nor lie down to rest; let him not 'idly.draw lines on the ground; nor let him take off 'his own chaplet of flowers.
 - 56. 'Let him not cast into the water either urine 'or ordure, nor saliva, nor cloth, or any other thing, 'soiled with impurity, nor blood, nor any kinds of 'poison.
 - 57. 'Let him not sleep alone in an empty house; 'nor let him wake a sleeping man superiour to himsel' in wealth and in learning; nor let him speak to a wo- man at the time of her courses; nor let him go to perform a sacrifice, unattended by an o iciating priest.
 - 58. 'In a temple of consecrated fire, in the pasture of kine, in the presence of Bráhmens, in reading the Vēda, and in eating his food, let him hold out his right arm uncovered.
 - 59. 'Let him not interrupt a cow while she is drink-'ing, nor give notice to any, whose milk or water she 'drinks; nor let him, who knows right rom wrong, 'and sees in the sky the bow of Indra, show it to 'any man.
 - 60. 'Let him not inhabit a town, in which civil 'and religious duties are neglected; nor, for a long 'time, one in which diseases are frequent; let him 'not

- ' not begin a journey alone: let him not reside long CHAP.
 ' on a mountain.
- 61. 'Let him not dwell in a city governed by a 'Súdra king, nor in one surrounded with men unob-
- ' servant of their duties; nor in one abounding with
- ' professed hereticks, nor in one swarming with low-
- 62. 'Let him eat no vegetable, from which the oil has been extracted; nor indulge his appetite to satiety; nor eat either too early or too late; nor take any food in the evening, if he have eaten to fulness in the morning.
- 63. 'Let him make no vain corporeal exertion let 'him not sip water taken up with his elosed fingers: 'let him eat nothing placed in his lap: let him never 'take pleasure in asking idle questions.
- 64. 'Let him neither dance nor sing, nor play on 'musical instruments, except in religious rites; nor 'let him strike his arm, or gnash his teeth, or make 'a braying noise, though agitated by passion.
- 65. 'Let him not wash his feet in a pan of mixed 'yellow metal; nor let him eat from a broken dish, 'nor where his mind is disturbed with anxious appre-'hensions.
- 66. 'Let him not use either slippers or clothes, or a sacerdotal string, or an ornament, or a garland, or a waterpot, which before have been used by another.

- CHAP. 67. 'With untrained beasts of burden let him not IV. 'travel; nor with such, as are oppressed by hunger 'or by disease; nor with such as have imperfect 'horns, eyes, or hoofs; nor with such as have rag- 'ged tails:
 - 68. 'But let him constantly travel with beasts well 'trained, whose pace is quick, who bear all the marks 'of a good breed, who have an agreeable colour, and 'a beautiful form; giving them very little pain with 'his whip.
 - 69. 'The sun in the sign of Cany a, the smoke of a 'burning corse, and a broken seat, must be shunned: 'he must never cut his own hair and nails, nor ever 'tear his nails with his teeth.
 - 70. 'Let him not break mould or clay without cause: 'let him not cut grass with his nails; let him neither 'indulge any vain fancy, nor do any act, that can 'bring no future advantage:
 - 71. 'He, who thus idly breaks clay, or cuts grass, 'or bites his nails, will speedily sink to ruin; and so 'shall a detractor, and an unclean person.
 - 72. 'Let im use no contumelious phrase: let him 'wear no garland except on his hair: to ride on the 'back of a bull or a cow, is in all modes culpable.
 - 73. 'Let him not pass, otherwise than by the gate, 'into a walled town, or an inclosed house; and by 'night let him keep aloof from the roots of trees.

74. 'Never

- 74. 'Never let him play with dice: let him not CHAP. 'put off his sandals with his hand: let him not eat,

- 75. 'Nor, when the sun is set, let him eat any thing mixed with tila; nor let him ever in this world sleep quite naked; nor let him go any whither with a remnant of food in his mouth.
- 76. 'Let him take his food, having sprinkled his feet with water; but never let him sleep with his feet wet: he, who takes his food with his feet so sprinkled, will attain long life.
- 77. 'Let him never advance into a place undistin-'guishable by his eye, or not easily passable: never 'let him look at urine or ordure; nor let him pass 'a river swimming with his arms.
- 78. 'Let not a man, who desires to enjoy long life, 'stand upon hair, nor upon ashes, bones,' or pot'sherds, nor upon seeds of cotton, nor upon husks
 'of grain.
- 79. 'Nor let him tarry even under the shade of the 'same tree with outcasts for great crimes, nor with 'Chandálas, nor with Puccasas, nor with idiots, nor 'with men proud of wealth, nor with washermen and 'other vile persons, nor with Antyavasáyins.
- 80. 'Let him not give even temporal advice to a Sú-'dra; nor, except to his own servant, what remains Q 2 'from

- CHAP. ' from his table; nor clarified butter, of which part ' has been offered to the gods; not let him in person
 - ' give spiritual counsel to such a man, nor person-

 - ' ally inform him of the legal expiation for his sin:
 - 81. 'Surely he, who declares the law to a servile ' man, and he, who instructs him in the mode of ' expiating sin, except by the intervention of a priest, ' sinks with that very man into the hell named As-
 - ' amerita.
 - 82. 'Let him not stroke his head with both hands: ' nor let him even touch it, while food remains in
 - ' his mouth; nor without bathing it, let him bathe ' his body.
 - 83. 'Let him not in anger lay hold of hair, or ' smite any one on the head; nor let him, after his ' head has been rubbed with oil, touch with oil any ' of his limbs.
 - 84. 'From a king, not born in the military class, ' let him accept no gift, nor from such as keep a ' slaughter-house, or an oil-press, or put out a vintner's ' flag, or subsist by the gain of prostitutes:
 - 85. 'One oil-press is as bad as ten slaughter-houses; ' one vintner's flag, as ten oil-presses; one prostitute, 'as ten vintner's flags; one such king, as ten pros-'titutes:
 - 86. With a slaughterer, there ore, who employs ' ten thousand slaughter-houses, a king, not a soldier

- ' by birth, is declared to be on a level; and a gift CHAP. from him is tremendous.
- 87. 'He, who receives a present from an avaricious 'king and a transgressor of the sacred ordinances, 'goes in succession to the following twenty-one hells:
- 88. 'Támisra, Andhatámisra, Maháraurava, Raurava, 'Naraca, Cálasútra, and Mahánaraca;
- 89. 'Sanjívana, Mahavíchi, Tapana, Sampratápuna, 'Sanháta, Sacácóla, Cudmala, Pútimrittica;
- 90. Lóhasancu, or iron-spiked, and Ríjísha, Pan-'thána, the river Sálmali, Asipatravana, or the sword-'leaved orest, and Lóhángáraca, or the pit of red-hot 'charcoal.
- 91. 'Bráhmens, who know this law, who speak the 'words of the Véda, and who seek bliss after death, 'accept no gifts from a king.
- 92. 'LET the house-keeper wake in the time sacred to Bra'hmi, the goddess o speech, that is, in the last watch o the night: let him then reflect on virtue and virtuous emoluments, on the bodily labour, which they require and on the whole meaning and very essence of the Véda.
 - 93. 'Having risen, having done what nature makes 'necessary, having then purified himself and fixed his 'attention, let him stand a long time repeating the 'gáyatri for the first or morning twilight; as he must, 'for the last or evening twilight in its proper time.

- CHAP. 94. 'By continued repetition of the gáyatrì, at the IV. 'twilights, the holy sages acquire length of days, perfect knowledge, reputation during life, fame after 'death, and celestial glory.
 - 95. 'Having duly performed the upácarma, or do'mestick ceremony with sacred ire, at the full moon
 'of Srávana, or of Bhádra, let the Bráhmen, fully
 'exerting his intellectual powers, read the Védas
 'during four months and one fortnight:
 - 96. 'Under the lunar asterism Pushya, or on the first day of the bright balf of Mágha, and in the first part of the day, let him perform, out of the town, the ceremony called the utserga of the Védas
 - 97. 'Having performed that ceremony out of town, as the law directs, let him desist from reading for one intermediate night winged with two days, or for that day and that ollowing night only;
 - 98. 'But after that intermission, let him attentively read the Védas in the bright fortnights; and in the dark fortnights let him constantly read all the Védángas.
 - 99. 'He must never read the Véda without accents and letters well pronounced; nor ever in the presence of Súdras; nor, having begun to read it in the last watch of the night, must he, though fatigued, sleep again.
 - 100. 'By the rule just mentioned let him conti-'nually, with his faculties exerted, read the Mantras,

- or holy texts, composed in regular measures; and, CHAP. when he is under no restraint, let him read both
- ' the Mantras and the Bráhmenas, or chapters on the ' attributes of Gop.
- 101. 'LET a reader of the Veda, and a teacher of ' it to his pupils, in the form prescribed, always avoid ' reading on the following prohibited days.
- 102. 'By night, when the wind meets his ear, and ' by day when the dust is collected, he must not read in the season of rain; since both those times are ' declared unfit for reading, by such as know when ' the Véda ought to be read.
- 103. 'In lightning, thunder, and rain, or during the ' fall of large fireballs on all sides, at such times ' Menu has ordained the reading of scripture to be ' deferred till the same time next day.
- 104. 'When the priest perceives those accidents oc-'curring at once, while his fires are kindled for ' morning and evening sacrifices, then let him know, ' that the Véda must not be read; and when clouds ' are seen gathered out of season.
- 105. 'On the occasion of a preternatural sound from ' the sky, of an earthquake, or an obscuration of the ' heavenly bodies, even in due season, let him know, ' that his reading must be postponed till the proper 'time:
- 106. 'But if, while his fires are blazing, the sound of lightning and thunder is heard without rain, his ' reading

- CHAP. ' reading must be discontinued, only while the pheIV. ' nomenon lasts; the remaining event, or rain also,
 ' happening, it must cease for a night and a day.
 - 107. 'The reading of such, as wish to attain the excellent reward of virtue, must continually be suspended in towns and in cities, and always where an offensive smell prevails.
 - 108. 'In a district, through which a corpse is carried, and in the presence of an unjust person, the reading of scripture must cease; and while the sound of weeping is heard; and in a promiscuous assembly of men.
 - 109. 'In water, near midnight, and while the two 'natural excretions are made, or with a remnant of 'food in the mouth, or when the sráddha has recently 'been eaten, let no man even meditate in his heart 'on the holy texts.
 - 110. 'A learned Bráhmen, having received an invi'tation to the obsequies of a single ancestor, must 'not read the Véda for three days; nor when the 'king has a son born; nor when the dragon's head
 'causes an eclipse.
 - 111. 'As long as the scent and unctuosity of perfumes remain on the body of a learned priest, who has partaken of an entertainment, so long he must abstain from pronouncing the texts of the Véda.
 - 112. 'Let him not read lolling on a couch, nor 'with his feet raised on a bench, nor with his thighs 'crossed,

- ' crossed, nor having lately swallowed meat, or the CHAP. ' rice and other food given on the birth or death of 'a relation:
- 113. 'Nor in a cloud of dust, nor while arrows ' whiz, or a lute sounds nor in either of the twilights, ' nor at the conjunction, nor on the fourteenth day, ' nor at the opposition, nor on the eighth day, of the moon:
- 114. 'The dark lunar day destroys the spiritual ' teacher; the fourteenth destroys the learner; the ' eighth and the day of the full moon destroy all re-' membrance of scripture; for which reasons he must ' avoid reading on those lunar days.
- 115. 'Let no Bráhmen read, while dust falls like ' a shower, nor while the quarters of the firmament ' are inflamed, nor while shakals yell, nor while dogs ' bark or yelp, nor while asses or camels bray, nor ' while men in company chatter.
- 116. 'He must not read near a cemetery, near a 'town, or in a pasture for kine; nor in a mantle ' worn before at a time of dalliance; nor having just ' received the present usual at obsequies:
- 117. 'Be it an animal, or a thing inanimate, or 'whatever be the gift at a sráddha, let him not, ' having lately accepted it, read the Veda; for such a ' Brühmen is said to have his mouth in his hand.
- 118. 'When the town is beset by robbers, or an ' alarm has been raised by fire, and in all terrours ' from R

- CHAP. 'from strange phenomena, let him know, that his lecIV. 'ture must be suspended till the due time after the 'cause of terrour be ceased.
 - 119. 'The suspension of reading scripture, after a 'performance of the upácarma and utserga, must be 'for three whole nights, by the man who seeks virtue 'more than knowledge; also for one day and night, 'on the eighth lunar days which follow those ceremonies, and on the nights at the close of the seasons.
 - 120. 'Never let him read on horseback, nor on a 'tree, nor on an elephant, nor in a boat, nor on an 'ass, nor on a camel, nor standing on barren ground, 'nor borne in a carriage;
 - 121. 'Nor during a verbal altercation, nor during 'a mutual assault, nor with an army, nor in battle, 'nor after food, while his hand is moist from washing, 'nor with an indigestion, nor after vomiting, nor with 'sour eructations;
 - 122. 'Nor without notice to a guest just arrived, 'nor while the wind vehemently blows, nor when blood gushes from his body, nor when it is wounded by 'a weapon.
 - 123. 'While the strain of the Sáman meets his ear, 'he shall not read the Rich, or the Yajush; nor any 'part of the Véda, when he has just concluded the 'whole; nor any other part, when he has just finished 'the book entitled A'ranyaca:
 - 124. 'The Rigvéda is held sacred to the gods; the 'Yajurvéda

- · Yajurvéda relates to mankind; the Sámavéda con- CHAP. cerns the manes of ancestors, and the sound of it,
- when chanted, raises therefore a notion of something
- 'impure.
- 125. 'Knowing this collection o rules, let the learned read the Véda on every law ul day, having first repeated in order the pure essence of the three ' Vedas, namely, the pranava, the vyáhritis, and the ' gáyatr).
- 126. 'If a beast used in agriculture, a frog, a cat, ' a dog, a snake, an ichneumon, or a rat, pass between ' the lecturer and his pupil, let him know, that the ' lecture must be intermitted for a day and a night.
- 127. 'Two occasions, when the Veda must not be read, let a Bráhmen constantly observe with great care; namely, when the place for reading it is imopure, and when he is himself unpurified.
- 128. 'On the dark night of the moon, and on the ' eighth, on the night of the full moon, and on the ' fourteenth, let a Brahmen, who keeps house, be ' continually chaste as a student in theology, even in ' the season of nuptial embraces.
- 129. 'Let him not bath e, having just eaten; nor ' while he is afflicted with disease; nor in the middle ' of the night; nor with many clothes; nor in a pool ' of water imperfectly known.
- 130. Let him not intentionally pass over the shadow ' of sacred images, of a natural or spiritual father, of 'a king. R 2

- CHAP. 'a king, of a Bráhmen, who keeps house, or of any IV. 'reverend personage; nor of a red-haired or copper
 - coloured man; nor of one who has just performed a
 - ' sacrifice.
 - 131. 'At noon or at midnight, or having eaten flesh at a sráddha, or in either of the twilights, let him not long tarry, where four ways meet.
 - 132. 'He must not stand knowingly near oil and other things, with which a man has rubbed his body, or water, in which he has washed himself, or feces
 - 'and urine, or blood, or mucus, or any thing chewed
 - ' and spitten out, or any thing vomited.
 - 133. 'Let him show no particular attention to his 'enemy, or his enemy's friend, to an unjust person, 'to a thief, or to the wife of another man;
 - 134. 'Since nothing is known in this world so ob-'structive to length of days, as the culpable atten-'tion of a man to the wife of another.
 - 135. 'Never let him, who desires an increase of wealth, despise a warriour, a serpent, or a priest versed in scripture, how mean soever they may appear;
 - 136. 'Since those three, when contemned, may de-'stroy a man; let a wise man therefore always beware 'of treating those three with contempt:
 - 137. 'Nor should he despise even himself on account

- of previous miscarriages: let him pursue fortune till CHAP. death, nor ever think her hard to be attained.
- 138. 'Let him say what is true, but let him say what is pleasing; let him speak no disagreeable truth, nor let him speak agreeable falsehood: this is a primeval rule.
- 139. 'Let him say "well and good," or let him say "well" only; but let him not maintain fruitless enmity and altercation with any man.
- 140. 'Let him not journey too early in the morning or too late in the evening, nor too near the mid-day, nor with an unknown companion, nor alone, nor with men of the servile class.
- 141. 'Let him not insult those, who want a limb, or have a limb redundant, who are unlearned, who are advanced in age, who have no beauty, who have no wealth, or who are of an ignoble race.
- 142. 'Let no priest, unwashed after food, touch 'with his hand a cow, a Bráhmen, or fire; nor being 'in good health and unpurified, let him even look 'at the luminaries in the firmament:
- 143. 'But, having accidentally touched them before 'his purification, let him ever sprinkle, with water 'in the palm of his hand, his organs of sensation, all 'his limbs, and his navel.
- 144. 'Not being in pain from disease, let him never without cause touch the cavities of his body; and carefully let him avoid his concealed hair.

145. ' Let

- IV. 'vances which lead to good fortune, and on the discharge of his customary duties, his body and mind being pure, and his members kept in subjection; 'let him constantly without remissness repeat the 'gáyatr', and present his oblation to fire:
 - 146. 'To those, who are intent on good fortune and on the discharge of their duties, who are always pure, who repeat the holy text and make oblations to fire, no calamity happens.
 - 147. 'In due season let him ever study the scrip-'ture without negligence; for the sages call that his 'principal duty: every other duty is declared to be 'subordinate.
 - 148. 'By reading the Véda continually, by purity of body and mind, by rigorous devotion, and by doing no injury to animated creatures, he brings to remembrance his former birth:
 - 149. 'A Bráhmen, remembering his former birth, again reads the Véda, and, by reading it constantly, attains bliss without end.
 - 150. On the days of the conjunction and opposition, let him constantly make those oblations, which are hallowed by the gáyatri, and those, which avert misfortune; but on the eighth and ninth lunar days of the three dark ortnights after the end of Agra-háyan, let him always do reverence to the manes of ancestors.

- 151. 'Far from the mansion of holy fire, let him CHAP. 'remove all ordure; far let him remove water, in which IV.
- ' feet have been washed; far let him remove all rem-
- ' nants of food, and all seminal impurity.
- 152. 'Ar the beginning of each day let him discharge his feces, bathe, rub his teeth, apply a collyrium to his eyes, adjust his dress, and adore the gods.
- 153. 'On the dark lunar day, and on the other 'monthly parvans, let him visit the images of deities, 'and Bráhmens eminent in virtue, and the ruler of the land, for the sake of protection, and those whom 'he is bound to revere.
- 154. 'Let him humbly greet venerable men, who 'visit him, and give them his own seat; let him sit 'near them, closing the palms of his hands; and 'when they depart, let him walk some way behind 'them.
- 155. 'Let him practise without intermission that 'system of approved usages, which is the root of all 'duty religious and civil, declared at large in the 'scripture and sacred law tracts, together with the 'ceremonies peculiar to each act:
- 156. 'Since by such practice long life is attained; 'by such practice is gained wealth unperishable; such 'practice baffles every mark of ill fortune:
- 157. 'But, by an opposite practice, a man surely 'sinks to contempt in this world, has always a large 'portion

- CHAP. ' portion of misery, is afflicted with disease and shortIV. ' lived;
 - 158. 'While the man, who is observant of approved usages, endued with faith in scripture, and free from
 - 'a spirit of detraction, lives a hundred years, even
 - ' though he bear no bodily mark of a prosperous
 - ' life.
 - 159. 'Whatever act depends on another man, that 'act let him carefully shun; but whatever depends on 'himself, to that let him studiously attend;
 - 160. 'ALL, THAT DEPENDS ON ANOTHER, GIVES PAIN;
 - ' AND ALL, THAT DEPENDS ON HIMSELF, GIVES PLEASURE;
 - ' let him know this to be in few words the definition
 - ' of pleasure and pain.
 - 161. 'When an act, neither prescribed nor prohibited,
 - ' gratifies the mind of him who performs it, let him
 - ' perform it with diligence; but let him avoid its op-
 - ' posite.
 - 162. ' Him, by whom he was invested with the sacri-
 - ' ficial thread, him, who explained the Vėda or even
 - ' a part of it, his mother, and his father, natural or
 - ' spiritual, let him never oppose; nor priests, nor cows,
 - ' nor persons truly devout.
 - 163. ' Denial of a future state, neglect of the scrip-
 - ' ture, and contempt of the deities, envy and hatred,
 - ' vanity and pride, wrath and severity, let him at all
 - · times avoid.

- 164. Let him not, when angry, throw a stick at CHAP. IV.
- another man, nor smite him with any thing; unless
- 'he be a son or a pupil: those two he may chastise
- for their improvement in learning.
- 165. ' A twice-born man, who barely assaults a Bráh-" men with intention to hurt him, shall be whirled ' about for a century in the hell named Támisra;
- 166. ' But, having smitten him in anger and by de-' sign, even with a blade of grass, he shall be born, ' in one and twenty transmigrations, from the wombs of ' impure quadrupeds.
- 167. ' He, who, through ignorance of the law, sheds ' blood from the body of a Bráhmen, not engaged in ' battle, shall feel excessive pain in his future life:
- 168. 'As many particles of dust as the blood shall ' roll up from the ground, for so many years shall ' the shedder of that blood be mangled by other ani-' mals in his next birth.
- 169. 'Let not him then, who knows this law, even ' assault a Bráhmen at any time, nor strike him even ' with grass, nor cause blood to gush from his body.
- 170. 'Even here below an unjust man attains no ' felicity; nor he, whose wealth proceeds from giving ' false evidence; nor he, who constantly takes delight ' in mischief.
- 171. 'Though oppressed by penury, in consequence ' of his righteous dealings, let him never give his mind

- CHAP. 'mind to unrighteousness; for he may observe the IV. 'speedy overthrow of iniquitous and sinful men.
 - 172. 'Iniquity, committed in this world, produces
 - ' not fruit immediately, but, like the earth, in due sea-
 - ' son; and, advancing by little and little, it eradicates
 - ' the man who committed it.
 - 173. 'Yes; iniquity, once committed, fails not of
 - ' producing fruit to him, who wrought it; if not in
 - ' his own person, yet in his sons; or, if not in his
 - ' sons, yet in his grandsons:
 - 174. ' He grows rich for a while through unrighteous-
 - ' ness; then he beholds good things; then it is, that
 - ' he vanquishes his foes; but he perishes at length
 - ' from his whole root upwards.
 - 175. Let a man continually take pleasure in truth,
 - ' in justice, in laudable practices, and in purity; let
 - ' him chastise those, whom he may chastise, in a legal
 - ' mode; let him keep in subjection his speech, his arm,
 - ' and his appetite:
 - 176. 'Wealth and pleasures, repugnant to law, let
 - ' him shun; and even lawful acts, which may cause
 - ' future pain, or be offensive to mankind.
 - 177. 'Let him not have nimble hands, restless feet,
 - ' or voluble eyes; let him not be crooked in his ways;
 - ' let him not be flippant in his speech, nor intelligent
 - ' in doing mischief.
 - 178. 'Let him walk in the path of good men; the 'path,

- ' path, in which his parents and forefathers walked: CHAP. 'while he moves in that path, he can give no offence.
- 179. 'With an attendant on consecrated fire, a performer of holy rites, and a teacher of the Véda, with
- ' his maternal uncle, with his guest or a dependant,
- ' with a child, with a man either aged or sick, with
- ' a physician, with his paternal kindred, with his re-
- ' lations by marriage, and with cousins on the side of
- ' his mother,
 - 180. 'With his mother herself, or with his father,
- ' with his kinswomen, with his brother, with his son,
- ' his wife, or his daughter, and with his whole set
- ' of servants let him have no strife.
- 181. 'A house-keeper, who shuns altercation with those just mentioned, is released from all secret faults;
- ' and, by suppressing all such disputes, he obtains a
- ' victory over the following worlds:
- 182. 'The teacher of the Véda secures him the
- ' world of Brahma'; his father, the world o the Sun,
- ' or of the Prajápatis; his guest, the world of Indra;
- ' his attendance on holy fire, the world of Dévas;
- 183. 'His female relations, the world of celestial
- 'nymphs; his maternal cousins, the world of the Vis-
- ' wadévas; his relations by affinity, the world of waters;
- ' his mother and maternal uncle give him power on
- 'earth;
- 184. 'Children, old men, poor dependants, and sick 'persons, must be considered as rulers of the pure

- CHAP. 'ether; his elder brother, as equal to his father; his iv. 'wife and son, as his own body;
 - 185. 'His assemblage of servants, as his own shadow;
 - ' his daughter, as the highest object of tenderness:
 - ' let im, therefore, when offended by any of those.
 - ' bear the offence without indignation.
 - 186. 'Though permitted to receive presents, let him 'avoid a habit of taking them; since, by taking many 'gifts, his divine light soon fades.
 - 187. 'Let no man of sense, who has not fully informed himself of the law concerning gifts of particular things, accept a present, even though he pine with hunger.
 - 188. 'The man who knows not that law, yet accepts 'gold or gems, land, a horse, a cow, food, raiment, 'oils or clarified butter, becomes mere as hes, like 'wood consumed by ire:
 - 189. 'Gold and gems burn up his nourishment and 'life; land and a cow, his body; a horse, his eyes; 'raiment, his skin; clarified butter, his manly strength; 'oils, his progeny.
 - 190. 'A twice-born man, void of true devotion, and 'not having read the Vėda, yet eager to take a gift, 'sinks down together with it, as with a boat of stone 'in deep water.
 - 191. 'Let him then, who knows not the law, be 'fearful of presents from this or that giver; since an 'ignorant

- ' ignorant man, even by a small gift, may become CHAP. ' helpless as a cow in a bog.
- 192. 'Let no man, apprized of this law, present even 'water to a priest, who acts like a cat, nor to him, 'who acts like a bittern, nor to him, who is unlearned 'in the Véda:
- 193. 'Since property, though legally gained, if it be given to either of those three, becomes prejudicial in the next world, both to the giver and receiver:
- 194. 'As he, who tries to pass over deep water in 'a boat of stone, sinks to the bottom, so these two 'ignorant men, the receiver and the giver, sink to 'a region of torment.
- 195. 'A covetous wretch, who continually displays 'the flag of virtue, a pretender, a deluder of the 'people, is declared to be the man who acts like 'a cat: he is an injurious hypocrite, a detractor from 'the merits of all men.
- 196. 'A twice-born man, with his eyes dejected, 'morose, intent on his own advantage, sly, and falsely 'demure, is he, who acts like a bittern.
- 197. 'Such priests, as live like bitterns, and such as demean themselves like cats, fall by that sinful conduct into the hell called Andhatámisra.
- 198. 'Let no man, having committed sin, perform 'a penance, under the pretext of austere devotion, 'disguising

- CHAP. disguising his crime under fictitious religion, and de-IV. 'ceiving both women and low men:
 - 199. 'Such impostors, though Bráhmens, are despised in the next life and in this, by all who pronounce
 - ' holy texts; and every religious act fraudulently per-
 - ' formed goes to evil beings.
 - 200. 'He, who has no right to distinguishing marks,
 - ' yet gains a subsistence by wearing false marks of
 - ' distinction, takes to himself the sin committed by
 - ' those who are entitled to such marks, and shall again
 - ' be born from the womb of a brute animal.
 - 201. 'NEVER let him bathe in the pool of another
 - ' man; for he, who bathes in it without licence, takes
 - ' to himself a small portion of the sins, which the
 - ' maker of the pool has committed.
 - 202. 'He, who appropriates to his own use the
 - ' carriage, the bed, the seat, the well, the garden,
 - ' or the house of another man, who has not deliver-
 - ' ed them to him, assumes a fourth part of the guilt
 - ' of their owner.
 - 203. 'In rivers, in ponds dug by holy persons, and
 - ' in lakes, let him always bat ie; in rivulets also, and
 - ' in torrents.
 - 204. 'A wise man should constantly discharge all the moral duties, though he perform not constantly
 - 'the ceremonies of religion; since he falls low, if,
 - ' while he performs ceremonial acts only, he discharge
 - ' not his moral duties.

- 205. 'Never let a priest eat part of a sacrifice not CHAP.
- begun with texts of the Véda, nor of one performed
- by a common sacrificer, by a woman or by an eu-
- 206. 'When those persons offer the clarified butter, it brings misfortune to good men, and raises aversion in the deities; such oblations, therefore, he must carefully shun.
- 207 'Let him never eat the food of the insane, 'the wrathful, or the sick; nor that, on which lice 'have fallen; nor that, which has designedly been 'touched by a foot;
- 208. 'Nor that, which has been looked at by the 'slayer of a priest, or by any other deadly sinner, or has even been touched by a woman in her courses, 'or pecked by a bird, or approached by a dog:
- 209. 'Nor food which has been smelled by a cow; 'nor particularly that which has been proclaimed or 'all comers; nor the food of associated knaves, or of harlots; nor that, which is contemned by the learned 'in scripture;
- 210. 'Nor that of a thief or a publick singer, of a carpenter, of an usurer, of one who has recently come from a sacrifice, of a niggardly churl, or of one bound with fetters;
- 211. 'Of one publickly defamed, of an eunuch, of an unchaste woman, or of a hypocrite: nor any sweet thing turned acid, nor what has been kept a whole

- CHAP. 'whole night; nor the food of a servile man, nor the IV. 'orts of another;
 - 212. 'Nor the food of a physician, or of a hunter, 'or of a dishonest man, or of an eater of orts; nor
 - ' that of any cruel person; nor of a woman in child-
 - ' bed; nor of him, who rises prematurely from table
 - ' to make an ablution; nor of her, whose ten days of
 - ' purification have not elapsed;
 - 213. Nor that, which is given without due ho-
 - ' nour to honourable men; nor any flesh, which has
 - ' not been sacrificed; nor the food of a woman, who
 - ' has neither a busband nor a son; nor that of a foe,
 - ' nor that of the whole town, nor that of an outcast,
 - ' nor that on which any person has sneezed;
 - 214. 'Nor that of a backbiter, or of a false wit-
 - ' ness; nor of one, who sells the reward of his sacri-
 - ' fice; nor of a publick dancer, or a tailor; nor of
 - ' him who has returned evil for good;
 - 215. 'Nor that of a blacksmith, or a man of the
 - ' tribe called Nishada, nor of a stage-player, nor of
 - ' a worker in gold or in cane, nor of him who sells,
 - ' weapons;
 - 216. 'Nor of those, who train hunting-dogs, or sell
 - ' fermented liquor; nor of him who washes clothes,
 - ' or who dyes them; nor of any malevolent person;
 - ' nor of one, who ignorantly suffers an adulterer to
 - ' dwell under his roof;

- 217. 'Nor of those, who knowingly bear with the CHAP. paramours of their own wives, or are constantly in
- subjection to women; nor food given for the dead
- before ten days of purification have passed; nor any
- ' food whatever, but that which satisfies him.
- 218. 'Food given by a king, impairs his manly vi'gour; by one of the servile class, his divine light;
 'by goldsmiths, his life; by leathercutters, his good
 'name:
- 219. 'Given by cooks and the like mean artizans, 'it destroys his offspring; by a washerman, his muscular strength; but the food of knavish associates 'and harlots excludes him from heaven:
- 220. 'The food of a physician is purulent; that of a libidinous woman, seminal; that of an usurer, feculent; that of a weapon-seller, filthy:
- 221. 'That of all others, mentioned in order, whose 'food must never be tasted, is held equal by the wise 'to the skin, bones, and hair of the dead.
- 222. 'Having unknowingly swallowed the food of any such persons, he must fast during three days; but, having eaten it knowingly, he must perform the - ' same harsh penance, as if he had tasted any semi-
- ' nal impurity, ordure, or urine.
- 223. 'Let no learned priest eat the dressed grain of a servile man, who performs no parental obsequies; but, having no other means to live, he may
- take from him raw grain enough for a single night.

- CHAP. 224. 'The deities, having well considered the food IV. 'of a niggard, who has read the scripture, and that 'of an usurer, who bestows gifts liberally, declared 'the food of both to be equal in quality;
 - 225. 'But Brahma', advancing towards the gods, 'thus addressed them: "Make not that equal, which
 - ' in truth is unequal; since the food of a liberal man
 - ' is purified by faith, while that of a learned miser is
 - ' defiled by his want of faith in what he has read."
 - 226. 'Let each wealt y man continually and sedu-
 - ' lously perform sacred rites, and consecrate pools or
 - ' gardens with faith; since those two acts, accom-
 - ' plished with faith and with riches honestly gained,
 - ' procure an unperishable reward:
 - . 227. 'If he meet with fit objects of benevolence,
 - ' let him constantly bestow gifts on them, both at
 - ' sacrifices and consecrations, to the best of his power
 - ' and with a chearful heart;
 - 228. 'Such a gift, how small soever, bestowed on 'request without grudging, passes to a worthy object, 'who will secure the giver from all evil.
 - 229. 'A giver of water obtains content; a giver of food, extreme bliss; a giver of tila, desired off'spring; a giver of a lamp, unblemished eyesight;
 - 230. 'A giver of land obtains landed property; a 'giver of gems or gold, long life; a giver of a house, 'the most exalted mansion; a giver of silver, exqui'site beauty;

- 231. A giver of clothes, the same station with CHAP.
- ' CHANDRA; a giver of a horse, the same station with
- Aswi; a giver of a bull, eminent fortune; a giver
- of a cow, the mansion of Su'RYA;
- 232. ' A giver of a carriage or a bed, an excellent consort; a giver of safety, supreme dominion; a
- ' giver of grain, perpetual delight; a giver of scriptu-
- ral knowledge, union with GoD:
- 233. 'Among all those gifts, of water, food, kine,
- ' land, clothes, tila, gold, clarified butter, and the
- · rest, a gift of spiritual knowledge is consequently the
- ' most important;
 - 234. 'And for whatever purpose a man bestows any
- ' gift, for a similar purpose he shall receive, with due
- 'honour, a similar reward.
- 235. 'Both he, who respectfully bestows a pre-
- sent, and he who respectfully accepts it, shall go
- ' to a seat of bliss; but, if they act otherwise, to a
- ' region of horrour.
- 236. 'LET not a man be proud of his rigorous devo-
- ' tion; let him not, having sacrificed, utter a false-
- ' hood; let him not, though injured, insult a priest;
- ' having made a donation, let him never proclaim it:
- 237. 'By falsehood, the sacrifice becomes vain; by
- ' pride, the merit of devotion is lost; by insulting
- ' priests, life is diminished; and by proclaiming a
- ' largess, its fruit is destroyed.

- 238. 'GIVING no pain to any creature, let him col-CHAP. IV.
 - ' lect virtue by degrees, for the sake of acquiring a
 - companion to the next world, as the white ant by
 - ' degrees builds his nest;
 - 239. For, in his passage to the next world, neither
 - ' his father, nor his mother, nor his wife, nor his son.
 - 'nor his kinsmen, will remain in his company: his
 - ' virtue alone will adhere to him.
 - 240. 'Single is each man born; single he dies; sin-
 - ' gle he receives the reward of his good, and single
 - ' the punishment of his evil, deeds:
 - 241. When he leaves his corse, like a log or a
 - ' lump of clay, on the ground, his kindred retire with
 - ' averted faces; but his virtue accompanies his soul.
 - 242. 'Continually, therefore, by degrees, let him
 - ' collect virtue, for the sake of securing an insepara-
 - ' ble companion; since with virtue for his guide, he
 - ' will traverse a gloom, how hard to be traversed!
 - 243. 'A man, habitually virtuous, whose offences
 - ' have been expiated by devotion, is instantly con-
 - ' veyed after death to the higher world, with a radiant
 - ' form and a body of ethereal substance.
 - 244. 'HE, who seeks to preserve an exalted rank,
 - ' must constantly form connexions with the highest
 - ' and best families, but avoid the worst and the
 - ' meanest,
 - 245. 'Since a priest, who connects himself with the 6 best

- best and highest of men, avoiding the lowest and CHAP.
- worst, attains eminence; but sinks, by an opposite IV.
- conduct, to the class of the servile.
- 246. 'HE, who perseveres in good actions, in sub-
- ' duing his passions, in bestowing largesses, in gentle-
- ' ness of manners, who bears hardships patiently, who
- ' associates not with the malignant, who gives pain to
- ' no sentient being, obtains final beatitude.
- 247. 'Woop, water, roots, fruit, and food placed
- ' before him without his request, he may accept from
- ' all men; honey also, and protection from danger.
- 248. 'Gold, or other alms, voluntarily brought and
- ' presented, but unasked and unpromised, Вканма'
- considered as receivable even from a sinner:
 - 249. 'Of him, who shall disdain to accept such
- ' alms, neither will the manes eat the funeral oblations
- ' for fifteen years, nor will the fire convey the burnt
- ' sacrifice to the gods.
- 250. 'A bed, houses, blades of cusa, perfumes,
- ' water, flowers, jewels, butter-milk, ground rice, fish,
- ' new milk, flesh-meat, and green vegetables, let him
- ' not proudly reject.
- 251. 'When he wishes to relieve his natural parents
- ' or spiritual father, his wife or others, whom he is
- ' bound to maintain, or when he is preparing to ho-
- ' nour deities or guests, he may receive gifts from any
- ' person, but must not gratify himself with such pre-
- sents:

- CHAP. 252. 'If his parents, however, be dead, or if he IV. 'live without them in his own house, let him, when 'he seeks nourishment for himself, receive presents 'invariably from good men alone.
 - 253. 'A labourer in tillage, a family friend, a herds-'man, a slave, a barber, a poor stranger offering 'his humble duty, are men of the servile class, who 'may eat the food of their superiours:
 - 254. 'As the nature of the poor stranger is, as the 'work is, which he desires to perform, and as he 'may show most respect to the master o' the house, 'even thus let him offer his service;
 - 255. 'For he, who describes himself to worthy men, 'in a manner contrary to truth, is the most sinful 'wretch in this world: he is the worst of thieves, a 'stealer of minds.
 - 256. 'All things have their sense ascertained by 'speech; in speech they have their basis; and from 'speech they proceed: consequently, a falsifier of 'speech falsifies every thing.
 - 257. 'When he has paid, as the law directs, his 'debts to the sages, to the manes, and to the gods, 'by reading the scripture, begetting a son, and per'orming regular sacrices, he may resign all to his 'son o mature age, and reside in his family-house, 'with no employment, but that of an umpire.
 - 258. 'Alone, in some solitary place, let him con-

- ' stantly meditate on the divine nature of the soul, CHAP. ' for by such meditation he will attain happiness. IV.
- 259. 'Thus has beer declared the mode, by which
- ' a Bráhmen, who keeps house, must continually sub-
- ' sist, together with the rule of devotion ordained for
- ' a pupil returned from his preceptor; a laudable rule,
- ' which increases the best of the three qualities.
 - 260. 'A priest, who lives always by these rules,
- ' who knows the ordinances of the Veda, who is freed
- ' from the bondage of sin, shall be absorbed in the
- ' divine essence.

CHAP. V.

On Diet, Purification, and Women.

- CHAP. 1. The sages, having heard those laws delivered for the conduct of house-keepers, thus addressed the high-minded Bhrigu, who proceeded in a former birth from the genius of fire.
 - 2. 'How, Lord, can death prevail over Bráhmens, 'who know the scriptural ordinances, and perform their 'duties as they have been declared?'
 - 3. Then he, whose disposition was perfect virtue, even Bhrigu, the son of Menu, thus answered the great Rishis: 'Hear, from what sin proceeds the inclination of death, to destroy the chief of the twice- born:
 - 4. 'Through a neglect of reading the Véda, through a desertion of approved usages, through supine remissness in per orming holy rites, and through various offences in diet, the genius of death becomes eager to destroy them.
 - 5. 'Garlick, onions, leeks, and mushrooms which 'no twice-born man must eat), and all vegetables 'raised in dung.
 - 6. 'Red gums or resins, exuding from trees, and 'juices from wounded stems, the fruit sélu, and the 'thickened

- thickened milk of a cow within ten days after her CHAP. calving, a priest must avoid with great care.
- 7. 'Rice-pudding boiled with tila, frumenty, rice'milk, and baked bread, which have not been first 'offered to some deity, flesh-meat also, the food of 'gods, and clarified butter, which have not first been
 'touched, while holy texts were recited,
- 8. 'Fresh milk from a cow, whose ten days are 'not passed, the milk of a camel, or any quadruped 'with a hoof not cloven, that of an ewe, and that 'of a cow in heat, or whose calf is dead or absent 'from her,
- 9. 'That of any forest-beast, except the buffalo, 'the milk of a woman, and any thing naturally sweet 'but acidulated, must all be carefully shunned:
- 10. 'But among such acids, buttermik may be 'swallowed, and every preparation of buttermilk, and 'all acids extracted from pure flowers, roots, or fruit 'not cut with iron.
- 11. 'Let every twice-born man avoid carnivorous birds, and such as live in towns, and quadrupeds with uncloven hoofs, except those allowed by the 'Véda, and the bird-called tittibha;
- 12. 'The sparrow, the water-bird plava, the pheni'copteros, the chacraváca, the breed of the town'cock, the sárasa, the rajjuvála, the woodpecker,
 'and the parrot, male and semale;

- CHAP. 13. 'Birds, that strike with their beaks, webfooted V. 'birds, the cóyashti, those, who wound with strong 'talons, and those, who dive to devour fish; let him 'avoid meat kept at a slaughter-house, and dried 'meat,
 - 14. 'The heron, the raven, the c'hanjana, all amphi-'bious fish-eaters, tame hogs, and fish of every sort, 'hut those expressly permitted.
 - 15. 'He, who eats the flesh of any animal, is called 'the eater of that animal itself; and a fish-eater is 'an eater of all flesh; from fish, therefore, he must 'diligently abstain:
 - 16. 'Yet the two fish, called pát'hína and róhita, 'may be eaten by the guests, when offered at a re'past in honour of the gods or the manes; and so 'may the rájíva, the sinhatunda, and the sasalca of 'every species.
 - 17. 'Let him not eat the flesh of any solitary ani-'mals, nor of unknown beasts or birds, though by 'general words declared eatable, nor of any creature 'with five claws;
 - 18. 'The hedgehog and porcupine, the lizard gódhá, 'the gandaca, the tortoise, and the rabbit or hare, 'wise legislators declare lawful food among five-toed animals; and all quadrupeds, camels excepted, which 'have but one row of teeth.
 - 19. 'The twice-born man, who has intentionally 'eaten

- ' eaten a mushroom, the flesh of a tame hog, or a CHAP.
- town-cock, a leek, or an onion, or garlick, is de-v.
- ' graded immediately;
 - 20. 'But having undesignedly tasted either of those
- ' six things, he must perform the penance sántapana,
- or the chándráyana, which anchorets practise; for
- other things he must fast a whole day.
- 21. 'One of those harsh penantes, called prájápatya,
- ' the twice-born man must perform annually, to purify
- ' him from the unknown taint of illicit food; but he
- ' must do particular penance for such food intentionally
- 'eaten.
 - 22. 'BEASTS and birds of excellent sorts may be
- ' slain by Bráhmens for sacrifice, or for the suste-
- · nance of those, whom they are bound to support;
- ' since Agastya did this of old.
 - 23. 'No doubt, in the primeval sacrifices by holy
- ' men, and in oblations by those of the priestly and
- ' military tribes, the flesh of such beasts and birds,
- 'as may be legally eaten, was presented to the
- ' deities.
- 24. 'That, which may be eaten or drunk, when resh,
- ' without blame, may be swallowed, if touched with
- ' oil, though it has been kept a whole night; and so
- ' may the remains of clarified butter:
- 25. 'And every mess prepared with barley or wheat,
- ' or with dressed milk, may be eaten by the twice-
- ' born, although not sprinkled with oil.

- CHAP. 26. 'Thus has the food, allowed or forbidden to a v. 'twice-born man, been comprehensively mentioned:
 - 'I will now propound the special rules for eating and for avoiding flesh-meat.
 - 27. 'He should taste meat, which has been hal'lowed for a sacrifice with appropriated texts, and,
 'once only, when a priest shall desire him, and when
 'he is performing a legal act, or in danger of losing
 'life.
 - 28. 'For the sustenance of the vital spirit, Bran'MA' created all this animal and vegetable system;
 'and all, that is moveable or immoveable, that spirit
 'devours.
 - 29. 'Things fixed are eaten by creatures with lo-'comotion; toothless animals, by animals with teeth; 'those without hands, by those to whom hands were 'given; and the timid, by the bold.
 - 30. 'He, who eats according to law, commits no 'sin, even though every day he tastes the flesh of 'such animals, as may lawfully be tasted; since both 'animals, who may be eaten, and those who eat 'them, were equally created by Вканма'.
 - 31. 'It is delivered as a rule of the gods, that 'meat must be swallowed only for the purpose of 'sacrifice; but it is a rule of gigantick demons, that 'it may be swallowed for any other purpose.
 - 32. 'No sin is committed by him, who, having ho'noured the deities and the manes, eats flesh-meat,
 'which

- which he has bought, or which he has himself ac- CHAP. quired, or which has been given him by another:
 - 33. 'Let no twice-born man, who knows the law,
- ' and is not in urgent distress, eat flesh without ob-
- ' serving this rule; for he, unable to save himself,
- will be devoured in the next world by those ani-
- ' mals, whose flesh he has thus illegally swallowed.
- 34. 'The sin of him, who kills deer for gain, is
- onot so heinous, with respect to the punishment in
- ' another life, as that of him, who eats flesh-meat in
- ' vain, or not previously of ered as a sacriice:
 - 35. 'But the man, who, engaged in holy cites ac-
- ' cording to law, refuses to eat it, shall sink in
- 'another world, for twenty-one births, to the state
- of a beast.
- 36. Never let a priest eat the flesh of cattle un-
- ' hallowed with mantras, but let him eat it, observing
- ' the primeval rule, when it has been hallowed with
- those texts of the Véda.
- 37. Should he have an earnest desire to taste
- ' flesh-meat, he may gratify his fancy by forming the
- ' image of some beast with clarified butter thickened,
- or he may form it with dough; but never let him
- ' indulge a wish to kill any beast in vain:
- 38. 'As many hairs as grow on the beast, so many
- ' similar deaths shall the slayer of it, for his own
- ' satisfaction in this world, endure in the next from
- ' birth to birth.

- CHAP. 39. 'By the self-existing in person were beasts V. 'created for sacrifice; and the sacrifice was ordained 'for the increase of this universe: the slaughterer, 'therefore, of beasts for sacrifice is in truth no slaughterer.
 - 40. 'Gramineous plants, cattle, timber-trees, am'phibious animals, and birds, which have been de'stroyed for the purpose of sacrifice, attain in the 'next world exalted births.
 - 41. 'On a solemn offering to a guest, at a sacrifice, and in holy rites to the manes or to the gods, but on those occasions only, may cattle be slain: 'this law Menu enacted.
 - 42. 'The twice-born man, who, knowing the mean-'ing and principles of the Véda, slays cattle on the 'occasions mentioned, conveys both himself and those 'cattle to the summit of beatitude.
 - 43 'Let no twice-born man, whose mind is im'proved by learning, hurt animals without the sanc'tion of scripture, even though in pressing distress,
 'whether he live in his own house, or in that of his
 'preceptor, or in a forest.
 - 44. 'That hurt, which the scripture ordains, and 'which is done in this world of moveable and im'moveable creatures, he must consider as no hurt at 'all; since law shone forth from the light o the scrip'ture.
 - 45. 'He, who injures animals, that are not injurious, 'from

- from a wish to give himself pleasure, adds nothing CHAP. to his own happiness, living or dead; v.
- 46. While he, who gives no creature willingly the pain of confinement or death, but seeks the good of all sentient beings, enjoys bliss without end.
- 47. 'He, who injures no animated creature, shall attain without hardship whatever he thinks of, whatever he strives for, whatever he fixes his mind on.
- 48. 'Flesh-meat cannot be procured without injury to animals, and the slaughter of animals obstructs the path to beatitude; from flesh-meat, therefore, the man abstain:
- 49. 'Attentively considering the formation of bodies, and the death or confinement of embodied spirits, let him abstain from eating flesh-meat of any kind.
- 50. 'The man, who forsakes not the law, and eats not flesh-meat, like a blood-thirsty demon, shall attain good will in this world, and shall not be afflicted with maladies.
- 51. 'He, who consents to the death of an animal; 'he, who kills it; he, who dissects it; he, who buys 'it; he, who sells it; he, who dresses it; he, who 'serves it up; and he, who makes it his food; these 'are eight principals in the slaughter.
- 52. 'Not a mortal exists more sinful than he, who, 'without an oblation to the manes or the gods, desires to enlarge his own flesh with the flesh of another creature.

- CHAP. 53. 'The man, who performs annually, for a hurv. 'dred years, an aswamédha, or sacri ice o a horse, and the man, who abstains from flesh-meat, enjoy for their virtue an equal reward.
 - 54. 'By subsisting on pure fruit and on roots, and 'by eating such grains as are eaten by hermits, a 'man reaps not so high a reward, as by carefully 'abstaining from animal food.
 - 55. "Me he (mán sa will devour in the next world, whose flesh I eat in this life;" thus should a lesh eater speuk, and thus the learned pronounce the true derivation of the word mánsa, or flesh.
 - 56. 'In lawfully tasting meat, in drinking fermented 'liquor, in caressing women, there is no turpitude; 'for to such enjoyments men are naturally prone: but 'a virtuous abstinence from them produces a signal 'compensation.
 - 57. 'Now will I promulgate the rules of purification for the dead, and the modes of purifying inanimate things, as the law prescribes them for the four classes in due order.
 - 58. 'When a child has teethed, and when, after 'teething, his head has been shorn, and when he has 'been girt with his thread, and when, being full 'grown, he dies, all his kindred are impure: on the 'birth of a child the law is the same.
 - 59. 'By a dead body, the sapindas are rendered 'impure in the law for ten days, or until the ourth 'day,

- day, when the bones have been gathered up, or for CHAP. three days, or for one day only, according to the v. qualities of the deceased:
- 60. 'Now the relation of the sapindas, or men connected by the funeral cake, ceases with the seventh person, or in the sixth degree o ascent or descent, and that of samánódacas, or those connected by an equal oblation of water, ends only, when their births and family-names are no longer known.
- 61. 'As this impurity, by reason of a dead kins-'man, is ordained for sapindas, even thus it is or-'dained on a child-birth, for those who seek absolute 'purity.
- 62. 'Uncleanness, on account of the dead, is or'dained for all; but on the birth of a child, for the 'mother and father: impurity for ten days after the 'child-birth, affects the mother only; but the father,
 'having bathed, becomes pure.
- 63. 'A man, having wasted his manhood, is purified by bathing; but, after begetting a child on a parapúrvá, he must meditate for three days on his 'impure state.
- 64. 'In one day and night, added to nights three 'times three, the sapindas are purified after touching 'the corpse; but the samánódacas, in three days.
- 65. 'A pupil in theology, having performed the 'ceremony of burning his deceased preceptor, be-

- CHAP. 'comes pure in ten nights: he is equal, in that case,

 V. 'to the sapindas, who carry out the dead.
 - 66. 'In a number of nights, equal to the number of months from conception, a woman is purified on a riscarriage; and a woman in her courses is rendered pure by bathing, when her effusion of blood has quite stopped.
 - 67. 'For deceased male children, whose heads have 'not been shorn, purity is legally obtained in one 'night; but for those on whom that ceremony has been performed, a purification of three nights is required.
 - 68. 'A dead child under the age of two years, let his kinsmen carry out having decked him with flowers, and bury him in pure ground, without collecting his bones at a uture time:
 - 69. 'Let no ceremony with fire be performed for 'him, nor that of sprinkling water; but his kindred, 'having left him like a piece of wood in the forest, 'shall be unclean for three days.
 - 70. 'For a child under the age of three years, the 'ceremony with water shall not be performed by his 'kindred; but, if his teeth be completely grown, or a name have been given him, they may perform it, 'or not, at their option.
 - 71. 'A fellow student in theology being dead, three 'days of impurity are ordained; and, on the birth of 'a samánódaca, purification is required for three nights.

- 72. 'The relations of betrothed but unmarried dam- CHAP. sels, are in three days made pure; and, in as many,
- ' are their paternal kinsmen purified a ter their mar-' riage:
- 73. Let them eat vegetable food without factitious.
- ' that is, only with native, salt; let them bathe for
- three days at intervals; let them taste no flesh-
- ' meat; and let them sleep apart on the ground.
- 74. 'This rule, which ordains impurity by reason
- of the dead, relates to the case of one dying near
- ' his kinsmen; but, in the case of one dying at a dis-
- ' tance, the following rule must be observed by those,
- who share the same cake, and by those, who share
- only the same water:
- 75. 'The man, who hears that a kinsman is dead
- ' in a distant country, becomes unclean, if ten days
- ' after the death have not passed, for the remainder
- of those ten days only;
- 76. 'But, if the ten days have elapsed, he is impure
- for three nights, and, if a vear have expired, he is
- ' purified merely by touching water.
- 77. 'If, after the lapse of ten days, he know the - ' death of a kinsman, or the birth of a male child,
- ' he must purify himself by bathing together with his
- ' clothes.
- 78. 'Should a child, whose teeth are not grown, ' or should a samánódaca, die in a distant region, the ' kinsman,

- HAP. 'kinsman, having bathed with his apparel, becomes v. 'immediately pure.
 - 79. 'If, during the ten days, another death or another birth intervene, a Bráhmen remains impure, only 'till those ten days have elapsed.
 - 80. 'A spiritual teacher being dead, the sages declare his pupil impure for three days; but for a day and a night, if the son or wife of the teacher be deceased: such is the sacred ordinance.
 - 81. 'For a reader of the whole Vėda, who dwells in the same house, a man is unclean three nights; but for a maternal uncle, a pupil, an officiating priest, and a distant kinsman, only one night winged with two days.
 - 82. 'On the death of a military king, in whose do'minion he lives, his impurity lasts while the sun or
 'the stars give light; but it lasts a whole day, on
 'the death of a priest, who has not read the whole
 'Véda, or of a spiritual guide, who has read only
 'part of it, with its Angas.
 - 83. 'A man of the sacerdotal class becomes pure 'in ten days; of the warlike, in twelve; of the com'mercial, in fifteen;* of the servile, in a month.
 - 84. 'Let no man prolong the days of impurity; 'let him not intermit the ceremonies to be performed 'with ^{*} See Note on Book V. verse 83.

- with holy fires: while he performs those rites, even CHAP. though he be a sapinda, he is not impure.
- 85. 'He, who has touched a Chandála, a woman in her courses, an outcast for deadly sin, a new-
- born child, a corpse, or one who has touched a
- corpse, is made pure by bathing.
- 86. 'If, having sprinkled his mouth with water, and been long intent on his devotion, he see an unclean person, let him repeat, as well as he is able, the solar texts of the $V\acute{e}da$, and those, which confer purity.
- 87. 'Should a ! ráhmen touch a human bone moist with oil, he is purified by bathing; if it be not oily, by stroking a cow, or by looking at the sun, having sprinkled his mouth duly with water.
- 88. 'A student in theology shall not perform the ceremony of pouring water at obsequies, until he have completed his course of religious acts; but if, after the completion of them, he thus make an offering of water, he becomes pure in three nights.
- 89. 'For those, who discharge not their prescribed duties, for those, whose fathers were of a lower class than their mothers, for those, who wear a dress of religion unauthorized by the Véda, and for those, who illegally kill themselves, the ceremony of giving funeral water is forbidden by law;
- 90. 'And for women imitating such hereticks, as 'wear an unlawful dress, and for such women as live 'at

- CHAP. 'at their own pleasure, or have caused an abortion,
 v. or have stricken their husbands, or have drunk any
 'spirituous liquor.
 - 91. 'A student violates not the rules of his order, by carrying out, when dead, his own instructor in the Vėdas, who invested him with his holy cord, or his teacher of particular chapters, or his reverend expounder of their meaning, or his father, or his mother.
 - 92. 'Let men carry out a dead Súdra by the 'southern gate of the town; but the twice-born, in 'due order, by the western, northern, and eastern 'gates.
 - 93. 'No taint of impurity can light on kings or students in theology, while employed in discharging their several duties, nor on those who have actually begun a sacrifice; for the first are then placed on the seat of Indra, and the others are always equally pure with the celestial spirit.
 - 94. 'To a king, on the throne of magnanimity, the 'law ascribes instant purification, because his throne 'was raised for the protection of his people and the 'supply of their nourishment:
 - 95. 'It is the same with the kinsmen of those, who 'die in battle, after the king has been slain, or have 'been killed by lightning, or legally by the king him- 'self, or in defence of a cow, or of a priest; and 'with all those, whom the king wishes to be pure.

- 96. The corporeal frame of a king is composed CHAP.
- of particles from So'ma, Agni, Su'rya, Pavana, Indra,
- ' CUVE'RA, VARUNA, and YAMA, the eight guardian
- ' deities of the world:
- 97. 'By those guardians of men in substance is the king pervaded, and he cannot by law be impure;
- · since by those tutelar gods are the purity and im-
- ' purity of mortals both caused and removed.
 - 98. ' By a soldier, discharging the duties of his class,
- ' and slain in the field with brandished weapons, the
- ' highest sacrifice is, in that instant, complete; and
- ' so is his purification: this law is fixed.
- 99. 'A priest, having performed funeral rites, is
- ' purified by touching water; a soldier, by touching
- 'his horse or elephant, or his arms; a husbandman,
- ' by touching his goad, or the halter of his cattle; a
- ' servant, by touching his staff.
- 100. 'This mode of purifying sapindas, O chief of
- ' the twice-born, has been fully declared to you! learn
- ' now the purification required on the death of kins-
- men less intimately connected.
- 101. ' A Bråhmen, having carried out a dead Bråh-
- 'men, though not a sapinda, with the affection of a
- 'kinsman, or any of those nearly related to him by
- 'his mother, becomes pure in three days;
- 102. 'But, if he taste the food offered by their ' sapindas, he is purified in ten days; and in one cay, ' if

- HAP. ' if he neither partake of their food, nor dwell in V. ' the same house.
 - 103. 'If he voluntarily follow a corpse, whether of
 - 'a paternal kinsman or of another, and afterwards
 - ' bathe with his apparel, he is made pure by touch-
 - ing fire and tasting clarified butter.
 - 104. 'Let no kinsman, whilst any of his own class
 - ' are at hand, cause a deceased Bráhmen to be carried
 - out by a Súdra; since the funeral rite, polluted by
 - ' the touch of a servile man, obstructs his passage
 - ' to heaven.
 - 105. Sacred learning, austere devotion, fire, holy
 - ' aliment, earth, the mind, water, smearing with cow-
 - ' dung, air, prescribed acts of religion, the sun, and
 - ' time, are purifiers of imbodied spirits;
 - 106. 'But of all pure things, purity in acquiring
 - ' wealth, is pronounced the most excellent: since he,
 - ' who gains wealth with clean hands, is truly pure;
 - ' not he, who is purified merely with earth and water.
 - 107. 'By forgiveness of injuries, the learned are
 - ' purified, by liberality, those who have neglected their
 - 'duty; by pious meditation, those who have secret
 - ' faults; by devout austerity, those who best know
 - ' the Véda.
 - 108. 'By water and earth is purified what ought to
 - ' be made pure; a river, by its current; a woman,
 - 'whose thoughts have been impure, by her monthly 'discharge,

- discharge, and the chief of twice-born men, by fixing CHAP. ' his mind wholly on Gop. V.
- 109. 'Bodies are cleansed by water; the mind is ourified by truth; the vital spirit, by theology and devotion; the understanding, by clear knowledge.
- 110. 'Thus have you heard me declare the precise ' rules for purifying animal bodies: hear now the modes of restoring purity to various inanimate things.
- 111. 'Of brilliant metals, of gems, and of every ' thing made with stone, the purification, ordained by ' the wise, is with ashes, water, and earth.
- 112. ' A golden vessel, not smeared, is cleansed with ' water only; and every thing produced in water, as ' coral, shells, or pearls, and every stony substance, ' and a silver vessel not enchased.
- 113. ' From a junction of water and fire arose gold ' and silver; and they two, therefore, are best purified ' by the elements, whence they sprang.
- 114. 'Vessels of copper, iron, brass, pewter, tin ' and lead, may be fitly cleansed with ashes, with 'acids, or with water.
- 115. 'The purification ordained for all sorts of li-' quids, is by stirring them with cusa-grass; for cloths 'folded, by sprinkling them with hallowed water; ' for wooden utensils, by planing them.
 - 116. 'For the sacrificial pots to hold clarified butter and juice of the moon-plant, by rubbing them ' with

- CHAP. 'with the hand, and washing them, at the time of V. 'the sacrifice:
 - 117. 'Implements to wash the rice, to contain the oblations, to cast them into the fire, to collect, win-
 - ' now, and prepare the grain, must be purified with
 - ' water made hot.
 - 118. 'The purification by sprinkling is ordained for
 - ' grain and cloths in large quantities; but to purify
 - 'them in small parcels, which a man may easily carry, they must be washed.
 - 119. 'Leathern utensils, and such as are made with 'cane, must generally be purified in the same man'ner with cloths; green vegetables, roots, and fruit,
 - ' in the same manner with grain;
 - 120. 'Silk and woollen stuff, with saline earths; 'blankets from Népála, with pounded arishtas, or nimba
 - ' fruit; vests and long drawers, with the fruit of the
 - runt; vests and long drawers, with the fruit of the
 - ' Vilva; mantles of cshumá, with white mustard-seeds.
 - 121. 'Utensils made of shells or of horn, of bones
 - ' or of ivory, must be cleansed by him, who knows
 - 'the law, as mantles of cshumá are purified, with
 - ' the addition of cows' urine or of water.
 - 122. 'Grass, firewood, and straw, are purified by 'sprinkling, em with water; a house, by rubbing,
 - ' brushing, and smearing with cow-dung; an earthen
 - ' pot, by a second burning:
 - 123. But an earthen pot, which has been touched 'with

- with any spirituous liquor, with urine, with ordure, CHAP.
- with spittle, with pus, or with blood, cannot, even
- by another burning, be rendered pure.
- 124. 'Land is cleansed by five modes; by sweeping,
- · by smearing with cow-dung, by sprinkling with cows'
- · urine, by scraping, or by letting a cow pass a day
- ' and a night on it.
- 125. 'A thing nibbled by a bird, smelt at by a 'cow, shaken with a foot, sneezed on, or defiled by
- ' lice, is purified by earth scattered over it.
- 126. 'As long as the scent or moisture, caused by
- any impurity, remain on the thing soiled, so long
- ' must earth and water be repeatedly used in all pu-
- ' rifications of things inanimate.
- 127. 'The gods declared three pure things peculiar
- ' to Bráhmens; what has been defiled without their
- ' knowledge; what, in cases of doubt, they sprinkle
- ' with water; and what they commend with their
- ' speech.
- 128. 'Waters are pure, as far as a cow goes to
- ' quench her thirst in them, if they flow over clean
- ' earth, and are sullied by no impurity, but have a
- ' good scent, colour, and taste.
- 129. 'The hand of an artist employe in his art
- ' is always pure; so is every ven ible commodity,
- ' when exposed to sale; and that food is always clean,
- ' which a student in theology has begged an received:
- ' such is the sacred rule.

- CHAP. 130. 'The mouth of a woman is constantly pure;

 v. 'a bird is pure on the fall of fruit, which he has
 'pecked; a sucking animal, on the flowing of the
 'milk; a dog, on his catching the deer:
 - 131. 'The flesh of a wild beast slain by dogs, 'Menu prenounces pure; and that of an animal slain 'by other carnivorous creatures, or by men of the 'mixed class, who subsist by hunting.
 - 132. 'All the cavities above the navel are pure, 'and all below it, unclean; so are all excretions, that 'fall from the body.
 - 133. 'Gnats, clear drops from the mouth of a 'speaker, a shadow, a cow, a horse, sun-beams, dust, 'earth, air, and fire, must all be considered as clean, 'even when they touch an unclean thing.
 - 134. 'For the cleansing of vessels, which have held 'ordure or urine, earth and water must be used, as 'long as they are needful; and the same for cleansing 'the twelve corporeal impurities.
 - 135. 'Oily exudations, seminal fluids, blood, dan-'druff, urine, feces, ear-wax, nail-parings, phlegm, 'tears, concretions on the eyes, and sweat, are the 'twelve impurities of the human frame.
 - 136. 'By the man, who desires purity, one piece of earth together with water must be used for the conduit of rine, three for that of the feces; so, ten for one hand, that is, the let; then seven for both:

 'but, i necessary, more must be used.

- 137. 'Such is the purification of married men; that CHAP. 'of students must be double; that of hermits, triple; 'that of men wholly recluse, quadruple.
- 138. 'Let each man sprinkle the cavities of his body, and taste water in due form, when he has discharged urine or feces; when he is going to read the Veda; and, invariably, before he takes his food:
- 139. 'First, let him thrice taste water; then twice 'let him wipe his mouth, if he be o 'a twice-born class, 'and desire corporeal purity; but a woman or servile 'man may once respectively make that ablution.
- 140. 'Súdras, engaged in religious duties, must perform each month the ceremony of shaving their heads; their food must be the orts of Bráhmens; and their mode of purification, the same with that of a Vaisya.
- 141. 'Such drops of water, as fall from the mouth or any part of the body, render it not unclean; nor 'hairs of the beard, that enter the mouth; nor what 'adheres awhile to the teeth.
- 142. 'Drops, which trickle on the feet of a man 'holding water for others, are held equal to waters 'flowing over pure earth: by them he is not defiled.
- 143. 'He, who carries in any manner an inanimate burden, and is touched by any thing impure, is cleansed by making an ablution, without laying his burden down.
 - 144. 'Having vomited or been purged, let him bathe

- CHAP. bathe and taste clarified butter, but, if he have eaten V.
 - ' already, let him only perform an ablution: for him,
 - ' who has been connected with a woman, bathing is
 - ' ordained by law.
 - 145. Having slumbered, having sneezed, having
 - eaten, having spitten, having told untruths, having
 - ' drunk water, and going to read sacred books, let
 - ' him, though pure, wash his mouth.
 - 146. 'This perfect system of rules for pulifying men
 - ' of all classes, and for cleansing inanimate things,
 - ' has been declared to you: hear now the laws con-
 - ' cerning women.
 - 147. 'By a girl, or by a young woman, or by a
 - ' woman advanced in years, nothing must be done,
 - ' even in her own dwelling place, according to her
 - ' mere pleasure:
 - 148. 'In childhood must a female be dependent on
 - 'her father; in youth, on her husband; her lord
 - being dead, on her sons; if she have no sons, on the
 - ' near kinsmen o her husband; if he left no kinsmen,
 - ' on those o' her ather; if she have no paternal kins-
 - 'men, on the sovereign: a woman must never seek
 - 'independence.
 - 149. 'Never let her wish to separate herself from
 - 'her father, her husband, or her sons; for, by a
 - ' separation from them, she exposes both families to
 - ' contempt.
 - 150. 'She must always live with a cheerful temper, ' with

- with good management in the affairs of the house, CHAP.
- with great care of the household furniture, and with v.
- a frugal hand in all her expences.
- 151. 'Him, to whom her father has given her, or
- ' her brother with the paternal assent, let her obse-
- ' quiously honour, while he lives; and, when he dies,
- · let her never neglect him.
- 152. 'The recitation of holy texts, and the sacri-
- ' fice ordained by the lord of creatures, are used in
- ' marriages for the sake of procuring good fortune to
- ' brides; but the first gift, or troth plighted, by the
- ' husband, is the primary cause and origin of marital
- ' dominion.
- 153. 'When the husband has performed the nuptial
- ' rites with texts from the Véda, he gives bliss con-
- ' tinually to his wife here below, both in season and
- out of season; and he will give her happiness in
- the next world.
- 154. 'Though inobservant of approved usages, or
- 'enamoured of another woman, or devoid of good
- ' qualities, yet a husband must constantly be revered
- ' as a god by a virtuous wife.
- 155. 'No sacrifice is allowed to women apart from
- 'their husbands, no religious rite, no fasting: as far
- ' only as a wife honours her lord, so far she is ex-
- ' alted in heaven.
 - 156. 'A faithful wife, who wishes to attain in heaven

- CHAP. ' the mansion of her husband, must do nothing unkind v. ' to him, be he living or dead:
 - 157. Let her emaciate her body, by living vo-
 - ' luntarily on pure flowers, roots, and fruit; but let
 - her not, when her lord is deceased, even pronounce
 - ' the name of another man.
 - 158. 'Let her continue till death forgiving all injuries,
 - ' performing harsh duties, avoiding every sensual plea-
 - sure, and cheerfully practising the incomparable rules
 - of virtue, which have been followed by such women,
 - ' as were devoted to one only husband.
 - 159. 'Many thousands of Bráhmens, having avoided
 - sensuality from their early youth, and having left no
 - ' issue in their families, have ascended, nevertheless,
 - ' to heaven;
 - 160. And, like those abstemious men, a virtuous
 - ' wife ascends to heaven, though she have no child,
 - ' if, after the decease of her lord, she devote herself
 - ' to pious austerity:
 - 161. 'But a widow, who, from a wish to bear chil-
 - 'dren, slights her deceased husband by marrying
 - ' again, brings disgrace on herself here below, and
 - ' shall be excluded from the seat of her lord.
 - 162. 'ssue, begotten on a woman by any other
 - ' than her husband, is here declared to be no progeny
 - of hers; no more than a child, begotten on the
 - ' wife of anot er man, belongs to the begetter: nor is
 - 'a second

- ' a second husband allowed, in any part of this code, CHAP. ' to a virtuous woman.
- 163. 'She, who neglects her former (púrva lord, though of a lower class, and takes another para of a higher, becomes despicable in this world, and is called parapúrvá, or one who had a di erent husband before.
- 164. 'A married woman, who violates the duty, 'which she owes to her lord, brings infamy on her'self in this life, and, in the next, shall enter the 'womb of a shakal, or be afflicted with elephantiasis, 'and other diseases, which punish crimes;
- 165. 'While she, who slights not her lord, but keeps 'her mind, speech, and body, devoted to him, attains 'his heavenly mansion. and by good men is called 'sádhwì, or virtuous.
- 166. 'Yes; by this course of life it is, that a woman, whose mind, speech, and body are kept in subjection, acquires high renown in this world, and, in the next, the same abode with her husband.
- 167. 'A twice-born man, versed in sacred ordi-'nances, must burn, with hallowed fire and fit imple-'ments of sacrifice, his wife dying before him, if she 'was of his own class, and lived by these rules:
- 168. 'Having thus kindled sacred fires, an performed funeral rites to his wife, so died before him, he may again marry, and again light the nuptial fire.

CHAP. 169. 'Let him not cease to perform day by day,
v. 'according to the preceding rules, the five great
'sacraments; and, having taken a lawful consort, let
'him dwell in his house during the second period of

CHAP. VI.

On Devotion; or on the Third and Fourth Orders.

1. 'Having thus remained in the order of a house-CHAP. 'keeper, as the law ordains, let the twice-born man, vi. 'who had before completed his studentship, dwell in a forest, his faith being firm and his organs wholly

- ' subdued.
- 2. 'When the father of a family, perceives his muscles become flaceid and his hair gray, and sees the child of his child, let him then seek refuge in a forest:
- 3. 'Abandoning all food eaten in towns, and all his household utensils, let him repair to the lonely wood, committing the care of his wife to her sons, or accompanied by her, if she chuse to attend him.
- 4. 'Let him take up his consecrated fire, and all his domestick implements of making oblations to it, and, departing from the town to the forest, let him dwell in it with complete power over his organs of sense and of action.
- 5. With many sorts of r e food, such as holy sages used to eat, with green herbs, roots, and fruit, let him perform the five great sacraments thefore mentioned, introducing them with due ceremonies.

- CHAP. 6. 'Let him wear a black antelope's hide, or a vi. 'vesture of bark; let him bathe evening and morn'ing; let him suffer the hairs of his head, his beard,
 'and his nails to grow continually.
 - 7. 'From such food, as himself may eat, let him, 'to the utmost of his power, make offerings and give 'alms; and with presents of water, roots, and fruit, 'let him honour those who visit his hermitage.
 - 8. 'Let him be constantly engaged in reading the 'Véda; patient of all extremities, universally bene'volent, with a mind intent on the Supreme Being;
 'a perpetual giver, but no receiver of gifts; with tender affection for all animated bodies.
 - 9. 'Let him, as the law directs, make oblations 'on the hearth with three sacred fires; not omitting 'in due time the ceremonies to be performed at the 'conjunction and opposition of the moon.
 - 10. 'Let him also perform the sacrifice ordained in honour of the lunar constellations, make the prescribed offering of new grain, and solemnize holy rites every four months, and at the winter and summer solstices.
 - 11. 'With pure grains, the food of ancient sages, 'growing in the vernal and autumnal seasons, and 'brought home by himself, let him severally make, 'as the law ordains, the oblations of cakes and boiled 'grain;
 - 12. 'And, having presented to the gods, that purest 'oblation,

- oblation, which the wild woods produced, let him CHAP.
- eat what remains, together with some native salt, VI.
- ' which himself collected.
- 13. 'Let him eat green herbs, flowers, roots, and 'fruit, that grow on earth or in water, and the productions of pure trees, and oils formed in fruits.
- 14. 'Honey and flesh-meat he must avoid, and all 'sorts of mushrooms, the plant bhústrina, that named 'sigruca, and the fruit of the sléshmátaca.
- 15. 'In the month Aswina let him cast away the 'food of sages, which he before had laid up, and 'his vesture, then become old, and his herbs, roots, 'and fruit.
- 16. 'Let him not eat the produce of ploughed land, 'though abandoned by any man, who owns it, nor fruit and roots produced in a town, even though hunger oppress him.
- 17. 'He may eat what is mellowed by fire, and 'he may eat what is ripened by time; and either 'let him break hard fruits with a stone, or let his 'teeth serve as a pestle.
- 18. 'Either let him pluck enough for a day, or 'let him gather enough for a month; or let him col'lect enough for six months, or la un enough for 'a year.
- 19. 'Having procured foo, as he is alle, he may eat it at eve or in the morning; or he is a ke-

CHAP. 'only every fourth, or every eighth, such regular VI. ' meal:

- 20. 'Or, by the rules of the lunar penance, he may ' eat a mouthful less each day of the bright, and ' a mouthful more each day of the dark fortnight; or ' he may eat only once, at the close of each fort-' night, a mess of boiled grains:
- 21. 'Or he may constantly live on flowers and roots, ' and on fruit matured by time, which has fallen ' spontaneously, strictly observing the laws ordained for hermits.
- 22. 'Let him slide backwards and forwards on the ' ground; or let him stand a whole day on tiptoe; ' or let him continue in motion rising and sitting alter-' nately; but at sunrise, at noon, and at sunset, let ' him go to the waters and bathe.
- 23. ' In the hot season, let him sit exposed to five ' fires, four blazing around him with the sun above; ' in the rains, let him stand uncovered, without even a ' mantle, where the clouds pour the heaviest showers; ' in the cold season, let him wear humid vesture; and ' let him increase by degrees the austerity of his devotion:
- 24. 'Performing his ablution at the three Savanas, ' let him give satisfaction to the manes and to the ' gods; and, enduring harsher and harsher mortifica-' tions, let him dry up his bodily frame.

- 25. 'Then, having reposited his holy fires, as the CHAP. 'law directs, in his mind, let him live without ex-
- ' ternal fire, without a mansion, wholly silent, feeding
- on roots and fruit;
- 26. 'Not solicitous for the means of gratification,
- chaste as a student, sleeping on the bare earth, in
- ' the haunts of pious hermits, without one selfish affec-
- ' tion, dwelling at the roots of trees.
- 27. 'From devout Bráhmens let him receive alms
- ' to support life, or from other housekeepers of twice-
- "born classes, who dwell in the forest:
- 28. 'Or the hermit may bring food from a town,
- having received it in a basket of leaves, in his naked
 - ' hand, or in a potsherd; and then let him swallow
 - ' eight mouthfuls.
 - 29. 'These and other rules must a Bráhmen, who
 - ' retires to the woods, diligently practise; and, for
 - ' the purpose of uniting his soul with the Divine
 - ' Spirit, let him study the various Upanishads of scrip-
 - ' ture, or chapters on the essence and attributes o God,
 - 30. 'Which have been studied with reverence by an-
 - ' chorites versed in theology, and by housekeepers,
 - ' who dwelt afterwards in forests, for the sake of in-
 - ' creasing their sublime knowledge and devotion, and
 - for the purification of their bodies.
 - 31. Or, i he has any incurable disease, let him
 - ' advance in a straight path, towards the invincible
 - 'north eastern point, feeding on water and air, till his

- CHAP. ' his mortal frame totally decay, and his soul become VI. ' united with the Supreme.
 - 32. 'A Bráhmen, having shuffled off his body by 'any of those modes, which great sages practised,
 - 'and becoming void of sorrow and fear, rises to exaltation in the divine essence.
 - 33. 'Having thus performed religious acts in a forest during the third portion of his life, let him become a Sannyásí for the fourth portion of it, abandoning
 - 'all sensual affections, and wholly reposing in the Su-'preme Spirit:
 - 34. 'The man, who has passed from order to order, has made oblations to fire on his respective changes
 - ' o state, and has kept his members in subjection,
 - ' but, tired with so long a course of giving alms and
 - ' making offerings, thus reposes himself entirely on
 - ' God, shall be raised after death to glory.
 - 35. 'When he has paid his three debts to the sages,
 - ' the manes, and the gods, let him apply his mind to
 - ' final beatitude; but low shall He fall, who presumes
 - ' to seek beatitude, without having discharged those ' debts:
 - 36. 'After he has read the Védas in the form pre-
 - ' scribed by law, has legally begotten a son, and has
 - ' performed sacrifices to the best of his power, he
 - ' has paid his three debts, and may then apply his
 - ' heart to eternal bliss;
 - 37. 'But if a Bráhmen have not read the Véda, if 'he

- he have not begotten a son, and if he have not CHAP.
- ' performed sacrifices, yet shall aim at final beatitude,
- 'he shall sink to a place of degradation.
- 38. 'Having performed the sacrifice of PRAJA'PATI, accompanied with a gift of all his wealth, and hav-
- ' ing reposited in his mind the sacrificial fires, a Bráh-
- ' men may proceed from his house, that is, from the
- ' second order, or he may proceed even from the first, to
- ' the condition of a Sannyásí.
- 39. 'Higher worlds are illuminated with the glory
- of that man, who passes from his house into the
- ' fourth order, giving exemption from fear to all ani-
- ' mated beings, and pronouncing the mystick words of
- ' the Véda:
- 40. 'To the Bráhmen, by whom not even the smallest
- ' dread has been occasioned by sentient creatures, there
- ' can be no dread from any quarter whatever, when
- ' he obtains a release from his mortal body.
- 41. Departing from his house, taking with him
- ' pure implements, lis water-pot and sta, keeping
- ' silence, unallured by desire of the objects near him,
- ' let him enter into the fourth order.
- 42. 'Alone let him constantly dwell, for the sake
- ' of his own felicity, observing the happiness of a
- ' solitary man, who neither forsakes nor is forsaken,
- ' let him live without a companion.
- 43. 'Let him have no culinary fire, no domicil; let
- 'him, when very hungry, go to the town for food;
 2 A 'let

- CHAP. 'let him patiently bear disease; let his mind be firm;
 VI. 'let him study to know God, and fix his attention
 'on God alone.
 - 44. 'An earthen water-pot, the roots of large trees, coarse vesture, total solitude, equanimity toward all creatures, these are the characteristicks of a Bráh-
 - 45. 'Let him not wish for death; let him not wish 'for life; let him expect his appointed time, as a 'hired servant expects his wages.
 - 46. 'Let him advance his foot purified by looking 'down, lest he touch any thing impure; let him drink 'water purified by straining with a cloth, lest he hurt 'some insect; let him, if he chuse to speak, utter words purified by truth; let him by all means keep his 'heart purified.
 - 47. 'Let him bear a reproachful speech with pa-'tience; let him speak reproachfully to no man; let 'him not, on account of this frail and feverish body, 'engage in hostility with any one living.
 - 48. 'With an angry man let him not in his turn be angry; abused, let him speak mildly; nor let him utter a word relating to vain illusory things and confined within seven gates, the five organs of sense, the heart and the intellect; or this world, with three above and three below it.
 - 49. 'Delighted with meditating on the Supreme 'Spirit, sitting fixed in such meditation, without need'ing

- ' ing any thing earthly, without one sensual desire, CHAP.
- without any companion but his own soul, let him VI.
- ' live in this world seeking the bliss of the next.
 - 50. 'Neither by explaining omens and prodigies,
- onor by skill in astrology and palmestry, nor by
- casuistry and expositions of holy texts, let him at
- ' any time gain his daily support.
- 51. 'Let him not go near a house frequented by hermits, or priests, or birds, or dogs, or other beg'gars.
- 52. 'His hair, nails, and beard being clipped, bear-'ing with him a dish, a staff, and a water-pot, his 'whole mind being fixed on God, let him wander
- ' about continually, without giving pain to animal or
- ' vegetable beings.
- 53. 'His dishes must have no fracture, nor must 'they be made of bright metals: the purification or- dained for them must be with water alone, like that 'of the vessels for a sacrifice.
- 54. 'A gourd, a wooden bowl, an earthen dish, or 'a basket made of reeds, has Menu, son of the Self- 'existing, declared fit vessels to receive the food of 'Bráhmens devoted to God.
- 55. 'Only once a day let him demand food; let 'him not habituate him to eat much at a time; for an anchorite, habituated to eat much, becomes in 'clined to sensual gratifications.
 - 56. At the time when the smoke of kitchen fires

- CHAP. ' has ceased, when the pestle lies motionless, when ' the burning charcoal is extinguished, when people
 - - have eaten, and when dishes are removed, that is,
 - · late in the day, let the Sannyásí always beg food.
 - 57. 'For missing it, let him not be sorrowful; nor
 - for gaining it, let him be glad; let him care only
 - ' for a sufficiency to support life, but let him not be
 - ' anxious about his utensils.
 - 58. 'Let him constantly disdain to receive food
 - ' after humble reverence; since, by receiving it in con-
 - ' sequence of an humble salutation, a Sannyásí, though
 - ' free, becomes a captive.
 - 59. ' By eating little and by sitting in solitary places,
 - ' let him restrain those organs, which are naturally
 - ' hurried away by sensual desires.
 - 60. ' By the coercion of his members, by the absence
 - of hate and affection, and by giving no pain to sen-
 - · tient creatures, he becomes fit for immortality.
 - 61. Let him reflect on the transmigrations of men
 - ' caused by their sinful deeds, on their downfal into
 - ' a region of darkness, and their torments in the man-
 - ' sion of YAMA:
 - 62. 'On their separation from those, whom they love,
 - ' and their union with those, whom they hate, on their
 - ' strength overpowered by old age, and their bodies
 - ' racked with disease;
 - 63. 'On their agonizing departure from this cor-' poreal

poreal frame, their formation again in the womb, and CHAP. the glidings of this vital spirit through ten thousand VI. · millions of uterine passages:

- 64. 'On the misery attached to embodied spirits from a violation of their duties, and the unperishable bliss attached to them from their abundant performance of all duties, religious and civil.
- 65. 'Let him reflect also, with exclusive application of mind, on the subtil indivisable essence of the Supreme Spirit, and its complete existence in all beings, whether extremely high or extremely low.
- 66. 'Equal-minded towards all creatures, in what order soever he may have been placed, let him fully discharge his duty, though he bear not the visible marks of his order: the visible mark, or mere name, of his order, is by no means an effective discharge of his duty;
- 67. 'As, although the fruit of the tree cataca pu'rify water, yet a man cannot purify water by merely
 'pronouncing the name of that fruit: he must throw
 'it, when pounded, into the jar.
- 68. 'For the sake of preserving minute animals by 'night and by day, let him walk. though with pain 'to his own body, perpetually looking on the ground.
- 69. 'Let a Sannyási, by way of expiation for the 'death o' those creatures, which he may have destroyed unknowingly by day or by night, make six 'suppressions of his breath, having duly bathed:

70 'Even

- CHAP. 70. 'Even three suppressions of breath, made acVI. 'cording to the divine rule, accompanied with the
 'triverbal phrase (bhur bhuvah swah) and the triliteral
 'syllable (6m), may be considered as the highest de'votion of a Bráhmen;
 - 71. 'For as the dross and impurities of metallick 'ores are consumed by fire, thus are the sinful acts of the human organs consumed by suppressions of the breath, while the mystick words, and the measures of the gayatrì are revolved in the mind.
 - 72. 'Let him thus, by such suppressions of breath, burn away his offences; by reflecting intensely on the steps of ascent to beatitude, let him destroy sin; by coercing his members, let him restrain all sensual attachments; by meditating on the intenate union o his own soul and the divine essence, let him extinguish all qualities repugnant to the nature of God.
 - 73. 'Let him observe, with extreme application of 'mind, the progress of this internal spirit through 'various bodies, high and low; a progress hard to be discerned by men with unimproved intellects.
 - 74. 'He, who fully understands the perpetual om-'nipresence of God, can be led no more captive by 'criminal acts; but he, who possesses not that sub-'lime knowledge, shall wander again through the 'world.
 - 75. 'By injuring nothing animated, by subduing all 'sensual

- sensual habits, by devout rites ordained in the Véda, CHAI.

 * and by rigorous mortifications, men obtain, even in VI.

 * this life, the state of beatitude.
- 76. 'A mansion with bones for its rafters and beams; with nerves and tendons, for cords; with muscles and blood, for mortar; with skin, for its outward covering; filled with no sweet perfume, but loaded with feces and urine;
- 77. 'A mansion infested by age and by sorrow, 'the seat of malady, harassed with pains, haunted with the quality of darkness, and incapable of standing long; such a mansion of the vital soul let its 'occupier always cheerfully quit:
- 78. 'As a tree leaves the bank of a river, when it 'alls in, or as a bird leaves the branch of a tree at 'his pleasure, thus he, who leaves his body by neces'sity or by legal choice, is delivered from the raven'ing shark, or crocodile, of the world.
- 79. 'Letting his good acts descend by the law of 'the Veda,) to those, who love him, and his evil 'deeds, to those, who hate him, he may attain, 'through devout meditation, the eternal spirit.
- 80. 'When, having well considered the nature and 'consequence of sin, he becomes averse from all sen'sual delights, he then attains bliss in this world;
 'bliss, which shall endure after death.
- 81. Thus having gradually abandoned at earthly attachments, and indifferent to all pairs of opposite things

- CHAP. 'things, as honour and dishonour, and the like, he vi. 'remains absorbed in the divine essence.
 - 82. 'All, that has now been declared, is obtained
 - ' by pious meditation; but no man, who is ignorant
 - of the Supreme Spirit, can gather the fruit of mere
 - ' ceremonial acts.
 - 83. Let him constantly study that part of the
 - · Vėda, which relates to sacrifice; that, which treats
 - ' of subordinate deities; that, which reveals the na-
 - ' ture of the Supreme GoD; and whatever is declared
 - ' in the Upanishads.
 - 84. 'This holy scripture is a sure refuge even for
 - ' those, who understand not its meaning, and of
 - ' course for those, who understand it; this Veda is a
 - ' sure resource for those, who seek bliss above; this
 - ' is a sure resource for those, who seek bliss eternal.
 - 85. 'That Bráhmen, who becomes a Sannyásí by this
 - ' discipline, announced in due order, shakes off sin
 - ' here below, and reaches the Most High.
 - 86. 'This general law has been revealed to you
 - ' for anchorites with subdued minds: now learn the
 - ' particular discipline of those who become recluses
 - 'according to the Véda, that is, of anchorites in the - ' first of the 'our degrees.
 - 87. 'The student, the married man, the hermit,
 - ' and the anchorite, are the offspring, though in four
 - ' orders, of married men keeping house;
 - 88. 'And all, or even any, of those orders, assumed in their turn, according to the sacred ordinances, CHAP. lead the Bráhmen, who acts by the preceding rules, to the highest mansion:

- 89. 'But of all those, the house-keeper, observing 'the regulations of the Sruti and Smriti, may be 'called the chief; since he supports the three other 'orders.
- 90. 'As all rivers, female and male, run to their 'determined place in the sea, thus men of all other 'orders, repair to their fixed place in the mansion of 'the house-keeper.
- 91. 'By Bráhmens, placed in these four orders, a 'ten-fold system of duties must ever be sedulously 'practised:
- 92. 'Content, returning good for evil, resistance to 'sensual appetites, abstinence from illicit gain, purification, coercion of the organs, knowledge of scripture, knowledge of the Supreme Spirit, veracity, and freedom from wrath, form their tenfold system of duties.
- 93. 'Such Bráhmens, as attentively read the ten 'precepts of duty, and after reading, carefully practise them, attain the most exalted condition.
- 94. 'A Bráhmen having practised, with organs under 'command, this ten-fold system of duty, having heard 'the Upanishads explained, as the law directs, and 'who has discharged his three debts, may become an 2 B 'anchorite,

CHAP. 'anchorite, in the house o his son, according to the VI. 'Véda;

- 95. 'And, having abandoned all ceremonial acts, 'having expiated all his offences, having obtained a 'command over his organs, and having perfectly 'understood the scripture, he may live at his ease, 'while the household affairs are conducted by his 'son.
- 96. 'When he thus has relinquished all forms, is intent on his own occupation, and free from every other desire, when, by devoting himself to God, he has effaced sin, he then attains the supreme path of glory.
- 97. 'This four-fold regulation for the sacerdotal 'class, has thus been made known to you; a just 'regulation, producing endless fruit after death: next, 'learn the duty of kings, or the military class.

CHAP. VII.

On Government, and Publick Law; or on the Military Class.

- 1. 'I WILL fully declare the duty of kings; and show CHAP. 'how a ruler of men should conduct himself, in what VII. 'manner he was framed, and how his ultimate re- 'ward may be attained by him.
- 2. 'By a man of the military class, who has received in due form the investiture which the Véda prescribes, great care must be used to maintain the wiole assemblage of laws.
- 3. 'Since, if the world had no king, it would quake 'on all sides through tear, the ruler of this universe, 'therefore, created a king, for the maintenance of this 'system, both religious and civil,
- 4. 'Forming him of eternal particles drawn from the 'substance of Indra, Pavana, Yama, Su'rya, of Agni 'and Varuna, of Chandra and Cuve'ra:
- 5. 'And since a king was composed of particles drawn 'from those chief guardian deities, he consequently sur'passes all mortals in glory.
- 6. 'Like the sun, he burns eyes and hearts; nor 'can any human creature on earth even gaze on him.
- 7. 'He is fire and air; he, both sun and moon; he, 'the god of criminal justice; he, the genius o we —; 2 B 2 'he,

- CHAP. 'he, the regent of waters; he, the lord of the firma-VII. 'ment.
 - 8. 'A king, even though a child, must not be treated 'lightly, from an idea that he is a mere mortal: no; 'he is a powerful divinity, who appears in a human 'shape.
 - 9. 'Fire burns only one person, who carelessly goes 'too near it; but the fire of a king in wrath burns 'a whole family, with all their cattle and goods.
 - 10. 'Fully considering the business before him, his 'own force, and the place, and the time, he assumes 'in succession all sorts of forms, for the sake of 'advancing justice.
 - 11. 'He, sure, must be the perfect essence of ma-'jesty, by whose favour Abundance rises on her lotos, 'in whose valour dwells conquest; in whose anger, 'death.
 - 12. 'He, who shews hatred of the king, through 'delusion of mind, will certainly perish; for speedily 'will the king apply his heart to that man's perdition.
 - 13. 'Let the king prepare a just compensation for 'the good, and a just punishment for the bad: the 'rule of strict justice let him never transgress.
 - 14. 'For his use Brahma' formed in the beginning of 'time the genius of punishment, with a body of pure 'light, his own son, even abstract criminal justice, the 'protector of all created things:

- '15. 'Through fear of that genius, all sentient beings, CHAP. whether fixed or locomotive, are fitted for natural vii. enjoyments and swerve not from duty.
- 16. 'When the king, therefore, has fully considered place and time, and his own strength, and the divine ordinance, let him justly inflict punishment on all those, who act unjustly.
- 17. 'Punishment is an active ruler; he is the true manager of publick affairs; he is the dispenser of laws; and wise men call him the sponsor of all the four orders for the discharge of their several duties.
- 18. 'Punishment governs all mankind; punishment alone preserves them; punishment wakes, while their guards are asleep; the wise consider punishment as the perfection of justice.
- 19. When rightly and considerately inflicted, it makes all the people happy; but, inflicted without full consideration, it wholly destroys them all.
- 20. 'If the king were not, without indolence, to punish the guilty, the stronger would roast the weaker, 'like fish, on a spit; or, according to one reading, the stronger would oppress the weaker, like fish in their 'element;)
- 21. 'The crow would peck the consecrated offering of rice; the dog would lick the clarified butter; ownership would remain with none; the lowest would overset the highest.

HAP. 22. 'The whole race of men is kept in order by vii.' punishment; for a guiltless man is hard to be found:

' through fear of punishment, indeed, this universe is

- ' enabled to enjoy its blessings;
- 23. 'Deities and demons, heavenly songsters and 'cruel giants, birds and serpents, are made capable, 'by just correction, of their several enjoyments.
- 24. 'All classes would become corrupt; all barriers would be destroyed, there would be total confusion among men, if punishment either were not inflicted, or were inflicted unduly
- 25. 'But where punishment, with a black hue and 'a red eye, advances to destroy sin, there, if the judge 'discern well, the people are undisturbed.
- 26. 'Holy sages consider as a fit dispenser of cri'minal justice, that king, who invariably speaks truth,
 'who duly considers all cases, who understands the 'sacred books, who knows the distinctions of virtue,
 'pleasure, and riches;
- 27. 'Such a king, if he justly inflict legal punish-'ments, greatly increases those three means of happi-'ness; but punishment itself shall destroy a king, 'who is crafty, voluptuous, and wrathful:
- 28. 'Criminal justice, the bright essence of majesty, 'and hard to be supported by men with unimproved 'minds, eradicates a king, who swerves from his 'duty, together with all his race:
 - 29. 'Punishment shall overtake his castles, his ter-'ritories,

- ' ritories, his peopled land, with all fixed and move- CHAP. 'able things, that exist on it: even the gods and the VII. 'sages, who lose their oblations, will be afflicted and
- 'ascend to the sky.
- 30. 'Just punishment cannot be inflicted by an ig'norant and covetous king, who has no wise and
 'virtuous assistant, whose understanding has not been
 'improved, and whose heart is addicted to sen'suality:
- 31. 'By a king, wholly pure, faithful to his promise, 'observant of the scriptures, with good assistants and 'sound understanding, may punishment be justly inflicted.
- 32. 'Let him in his own domains act with justice, 'chastise foreign foes with rigour, behave without 'duplicity to his affectionate friends, and with lenity 'to Bráhmens.
- 33. 'Of a king thus disposed, even though he sub-'sist by gleaning, or, be his treasure ever so small, the 'fame is far spread in the world, like a drop of 'oil in water;
- 34. 'But of a king with a contrary disposition, 'with passions unsubdued, be his riches ever so great, 'the fame is contracted in the world, like clarified 'butter in the same element.
- 35. 'A king was created as the protector of all 'those classes and orders, who, from the first to e 'last, discharge their severa uties;

- CHAP. 36. 'And all, that must be done by him, for the VII. 'protection of his people, with the assistance of good 'ministers, I will declare to you, as the law directs, 'in due order.
 - 37. 'Let the king, having risen at early dawn, 'respectfully attend to Bráhmens, learned in the three 'Védas, and in the science of ethicks; and by their 'decision let him abide.
 - 38. 'Constantly must he show respect to Bráh'mens, who have grown old, both in years and in 'piety, who know the scriptures, who in body and
 'mind are pure; for he, who honours the aged, will
 'perpetually be honoured even by cruel demons:
 - 39. 'From them, though he may have acquired 'modest behaviour by his own good sense and by study, 'let him continually learn habits of modesty and composure; since a king, whose demeanour is humble 'and composed, never perishes.
 - 40. 'While, through want of such humble virtue, 'many kings have perished with all their possessions, and, through virtue united with modesty, even herimits have obtained kingdoms.
 - 41. 'Through want of that virtuous humility Ve'na 'was utterly ruined, and so was the great king Na'HUSHA, and SUDA'SA, and YAVANA, or, by a di erent
 'reading, and SUDA'MAN, the son of PIYAVANA and
 'SUMAC'HA, and NIMI;
 - 42. 'But, by virtues with humble behaviour, PRIT'HU 'and

- ' and Menu acquired sovereignty; Cuve'ra, wealth in- CHAP. 'exhaustible; and Viswa'mitra, son of Ga'dhi, the VII. 'rank of a priest, though born in the military class.
- 43. 'From those, who know the three Védas, let him learn the triple doctrine comprised in them, together with the primeval science of criminal justice and sound policy, the system of logick and metaphysicks, and sublime theological truth: from the people he must learn the theory of agriculture, commerce, and other practical arts.
- 44. 'Day and night must he strenuously exert him-'self to gain complete victory over his own organs; 'since that king alone, whose organs are completely 'subdued, can keep his people firm to their duty.
- 45. 'With extreme care let him shun eighteen vices, 'ten proceeding from love of pleasure, eight springing 'from wrath, and all ending in misery;
- 46. 'Since a king, addicted to vices arising from 'love of pleasure, must lose both his wealth and his 'virtue, and, addicted to vices arising from anger, he may lose even his life rom the publick resent'ment.
- 47. 'Hunting, gaming, sleeping by day, censuring 'rivals, excess with women, intoxication, singing, in'strumental musick, dancing, and useless travel, are 'the ten-fold set of vices produced by love of plea'sure:

- CHAP. 48. 'Talebearing, violence, insidious wounding, envy, VII. 'detraction, unjust seizure of property, reviling, and 'open assault are in like manner the eight-fold set 'of vices, to which anger gives birth.
 - 49. 'A selfish inclination, which all wise men know 'to be the root of those two sets, let him suppress 'with diligence: both sets of vices are constantly 'produced by it.
 - 50. 'Drinking, dice, women, and hunting, let him 'consider as the four most pernicious in the set, 'which love of pleasure occasions:
 - 51. 'Battery, defamation, and injury to property, 'let him always consider as the three most heinous in the set, which arises from wrath;
 - 52. 'And in this seven-fold assemblage of vices, 'too frequently prevailing in all kingdoms, let an 'enlightened prince consider the first, and so forth in 'order, as the most abominable in each set.
 - 53. 'On a comparison between death and vice, the 'learned pronounce vice the more dreadful; since, 'after death, a vicious man sinks to regions lower and lower, while a man, free from vice, reaches 'heaven.
 - 54. 'The king must appoint seven or eight minis-'ters, who must be sworn by touching a sacred image 'and the like; men, whose ancestors were servants 'of kings; who are versed in the holy books; who

- · are personally brave; who are skilled in the use of CHAP weapons; and whose lineage is noble.
- 55. 'Even an act easy in itself is hard sometimes 'to be performed by a single man, especially if he have no assistant near: how much harder must it be 'to per orm alone the business of a kingdom with great 'revenues!
- 56. 'Let him perpetually consult with those minis-'ters on peace and war, on his forces, on his reve-'nues, on the protection of his people, and on the 'means of bestowing aptly the wealth which he has 'acquired:
- 57. 'Having ascertained the several opinions of his counsellors, first apart and then collectively, let him 'do what is most beneficial for him in publick affairs.
- 58. 'To one learned Bráhmen, distinguished among 'them all, let the king impart his momentous counsel, 'relating to six principal articles.
- 59. 'To him, with full confidence, let him intrust 'all transactions; and with him, having taken his 'final resolution, let him begin all his measures.
- 60. 'He must likewise a point other officers; men 'of integrity, well informed, steady, habituated to gain 'wealth, by honourable means, and tried by experience.
- 61. 'As many officers as the due performance of his business requires, not slothful men, but active, 2 c 2 'able,

- CHAP. 'able, and well instructed, so many, and no more, VII. 'let him appoint.
 - 62. 'Among those let him employ the brave, the 'skilful, the well-born, and the honest, in his mines 'of gold or gems, and in other similar works for 'amassing wealth; but the pusillanimous, in the re- 'cesses of his palace.
 - 63. 'Let him likewise appoint an ambassador versed 'in all the Sástras, who understands hints, external 'signs, and actions, whose hand and heart are pure. 'whose abilities are great, and whose birth was il-'lustricus:
 - 64. 'That royal ambassador is applauded most, who is generally beloved, pure within and without, dexterous in business, and endued with an excellent memory; who knows countries and times, is handsome, intrepid, and eloquent.
 - 65. 'The forces of the realm must be immediately 'regulated by the commander in chief; the actual 'infliction of punishment, by the officers of criminal 'justice; the treasury and the country, by the king 'himself; peace and war, by the ambassador;
 - 66. 'For it is the ambassador alone who unites, 'who alone disjoins the united; that is, he transacts 'the business', by which kingdoms are at variance 'or in amity.
 - 67. 'In the transaction of affairs let the ambassador comprehend the visible signs and hints, and discover

'the

- ' the acts, of the foreign king, by the signs, hints, CHAP. ' and acts of his confidential servants, and the mea-
- ' sures, which that king wishes to take, by the character ' and conduct of his ministers.
- 68. 'Thus, having learned completely from his ambassador all the designs of the foreign prince, let the king so apply his vigilant care, that he bring no evil on himself.
- 69. 'Let him fix his abode in a district containing open champaigns; abounding with grain; inhabited chiefly by the virtuous; not infected with maladies; beautiful to the sight; surrounded by submissive mountaineers, foresters, or other neighbours; a country, in which the subjects may live at ease.
- 70. 'There let him reside in a capital, having, by 'way of a fortress, a desert rather more than twenty 'miles round it, or a fortress of earth, a fortress of 'water, or of trees, a fortress of armed men, or a 'fortress of mountains.
- 71. 'With all possible care let him secure a fortress of mountains; for, among those just mentioned, a fortress of mountains has many transcendent properties.
- 72. 'In the three first of them ive wild beasts, vermin, and aquatick animals; in the three last, apes, men, and gods, in order as they are named:
- 73. 'As enemies hurt them not in the shelter of their several abodes, thus foes hurt not a king, who

- CHAP. 'has taken refuge in his durga, or place of difficult vii 'access.
 - 74. 'One bowman; placed on a wall, is a match 'in war for a hundred enemies; and a hundred, for 'ten thousand; therefore is a fort recommended.
 - 75. 'Let that fort be supplied with weapons, with 'money, with grain, with beasts, with Bráhmens, with 'artificers, with engines, with grass, and with water.
 - 76. 'In the centre of it let him raise his own palace, well finished in all its parts, completely defended, habitable in every season, brilliant with white stucco, surrounded with water and trees:
 - 77. 'Having prepared it for his mansion, let him 'chuse a consort of the same class with himself, en'dued with all the bodily marks of excellence, born 'of an exalted race, captivating his heart, adorned 'with beauty and the best qualities.
 - 78. 'HE must appoint also a domestick priest, and 'retain a performer of sacrifices, who may solemnize 'the religious rites of his family, and those performed 'with three sacred fires.
 - 79. 'Let the king make sacrifices, accompanied with 'gifts of many different kinds; and, for the full discharge of his duty, let him give the Bráhmens both 'legal enjoyments and moderate wealth.
 - 80. 'His annual revenue he may receive from his 'whole dominion through his collectors; but let him

- ' in this world observe the divine ordinances; let him CHAP. act as a father to his people.
- 81. 'Here and there he must appoint many sorts of intelligent supervisors, who may inspect all the acts of the officers engaged in his business.
- 82. 'To Bráhmens returned from the mansions of 'their preceptors, let him show due respect; for that 'is called a precious unperishable gem, deposited by 'kings with the sacerdotal class:
- . 83. 'It is a gem, which neither thieves or foes take 'away; which never perishes: kings must, therefore, 'deposit with Bráhmens that indestructible jewel of 'respect ul presents.
- 84. 'An oblation in the mouth, or hand, of a Bráh-'men, is far better than offerings to holy fire: it 'never drops; it never dries; it is never consumed.
- 85. 'A gift, to one not a Bráhmen, produces fruit of a middle standard; to one who calls himself a 'Bráhmen, double; to a well-read Bráhmen, a hundred thousand-fold; to one who has read all the 'Védas, infinite.
- 86. 'Of a gift made with faith in the Sastra, to a 'person highly deserving it, the giver shall adubitably 'gain the fruit after death, be the present small or 'great.
- 87. 'A KING, while he protects his ople, being 'efied by an enemy of equal, grea er, or less orce, mu.t.

- CHAP. 'must by no means turn his face from battle, but VII. 'must remember the duty of his military class:
 - 88. 'Never to recede from combat, to protect the people, and to honour the priests, is the highest duty of kings and ensures their felicity.
 - 89. 'Those rulers of the earth, who, desirous of 'defeating each other, exert their utmost strength in 'battle, without ever averting their faces, ascend after 'death directly to heaven.
 - 90. 'Let no man, engaged in combat, smite his 'foe with sharp weapons concealed in wood, nor with 'arrows mischievously barbed, nor with poisoned arrows, nor with darts blazing with fire;
 - 91. 'Nor let him in a car or on horseback strike his 'enemy alighted on the ground; nor an effeminate 'man; nor one, who sues for lie with closed palms; 'nor one, whose hair is loose and obstructs his sight; 'nor one, who sits down atigued; nor one, who says, '"I am thy captive;"
 - 92. 'Nor one, who sleeps; nor one, who has lost 'his coat of mail; nor one, who is naked; nor one, who 'is disarmed; nor one, who is a spectator, but not 'a combatant; nor one, who is fighting with another 'man:
 - 93. 'Calling to mind the duty of honourable men, 'let him never slay one, who has broken his weapon; 'nor one, who is afflicted with private sorrow; nor 'one,

- one, who has been grievously wounded; nor one, CHAP. who is terrified; nor one, who turns his back.
- 94. 'The soldier, indeed, who, fearing and turning 'his back, happens to be slain by his foes in an 'engagement, shall take upon himself all the sin of 'his commander, whatever it be:
- 95. 'And the commander shall take to himself the 'ruit o all the good conduct, which the soldier, 'who turns his back and is killed, had previously 'stored up for a future life.
- 96. 'CARS, horses, elephants, umbrellas, habiliments, 'except the jewels which may adorn them, grain, cattle, 'women, all sorts of liquids and metals, except gold and silver, are the lawful prizes of the man who takes them in war;
- 97. 'But of those prizes, the captors must lay the 'most valuable before the king; such is the rule in 'the Veda concerning them; and the king should distribute among the whole army what has not been 'separately taken.
- 98. 'Thus has been declared the blame ess primeval 'law for military men; from this law a king must 'never depart, when he attacks his foes in battle.
- 99. 'What he has not gained rom hi oe, let him 'strive to gain; what he has ac uire, et im reserve with care; what reserves, let im augment ; and what he has augmented, et him estow on the deserving.

VII. 'sider as the sure means of attaining the great object of man, happiness; and let him practise it fully with out intermission, without indolence:

- 101. 'What he has not gained, let him strive to 'gain by military strength; what he has acquired, let 'him preserve by careful inspection; what he has preserved, let him augment by legal modes of increase; 'and what he has augmented, let him dispense with
- ' and what he has augmented, let him dispense with ' just liberality.
- 102. 'Let his troops be constantly exercised; his 'prowess, constantly displayed; what he ought to secure, constantly secured; and the weakness of his 'foe, constantly investigated.
 - 103. 'By a king, whose forces are always ready for 'action, the whole world may be kept in awe; let 'him then, by a force always ready, make all creatures 'living his own.
 - 104. 'Let him act on all occasions without guile, 'and never with insincerity; but, keeping himself ever 'on his guard, let him discover the fraud intended 'by his foe.
 - 105. 'Let not his enemy discern his vulnerable part, 'but the vulnerable part of his enemy let him well 'discern: like a tortoise, let him draw in his mem- 'bers under the shell o' concealment, and diligently let
 - ' him repair any breach that may be made in it.
 - 106. 'Like a heron, let him muse on gaining ad-'vantages;

- ' vantages; like a lion, let him put forth his strength; CHAP.
- · like a wolf, let him creep towards his prey; like a VII.
- ' hare, let him double to secure his retreat.
- 107. 'When he thus has prepared himself for con-
- ' quest, let him reduce all opposers to submission by
- ' negotiation and three other expedients, namely, pre-
- ' sents, division, and 'orce of arms:
- 108. 'If they cannot be restrained by the three first
- ' methods, then let him, firmly but gradually, bring
- ' them to subjection by military force.
 - 109. 'Among those four modes of obtaining success,
- ' the wise prefer negotiation and war for the exalta-
- ' tion of kingdoms.
 - 110. 'As a husbandman plucks up weeds and pre-
- ' serves his corn, thus let a king destroy his opponents
- ' and secure his people.
- 111. 'That king, who, through weakness of intellect,
- ' rashly oppresses his people, will, together with his
- ' family, be deprived both of kingdom and life:
- 112. ' As, by the loss of bodily sustenance, the lives
- ' of animated beings are destroyed, thus, by the dis-
- 'tress of kingdoms, are destroyed even he lives of
- 'kings.
- 113. ' For the sake of protecting his cominions, let
- ' the king perpetually observe the ollowing run; or,
- ' by protecting his dominions, he wi irerease
- ' own happiness.

1 et

- CHAP. 114. 'Let him place, as the protectors of his realm, 'a company of guards, commanded by an approved 'officer, over two, three, five, or a hundred districts, 'according to their extent.
 - 115. 'Let him appoint a lord of one town with 'its district, a lord of ten towns, a lord of twenty, 'a lord of a hundred, and a lord of a thousand.
 - 116. 'Let the lord of one town certify of his own accord to the lord of ten towns any robberies, tu'mults, or other evils, which arise in his district, and 'which he cannot suppress; and the lord of ten, to the 'lord of twenty:
 - 117. 'Then let the lord of twenty towns notify 'them to the lord of a hundred; and let the lord of 'a hundred transmit the information himself to the 'lord of a thousand townships.
 - 118. 'Such food, drink, wood, and other articles, 'as by law should be given each day to the king 'by the inhabitants of the township, let the lord of one town receive as his perquisite:
 - 119. 'Let the lord of ten towns enjoy the produce of two plough-lands, or as much ground as can be tilled with two ploughs, each drawn by six bulls; the lord of twenty, that of ten* plough-lands; the lord of a hundred, that of a village or small town; the lord of a thousand, that of a large town.
 - 120. 'The affairs of those townships, either jointly

- ' or separately transacted, let another minister of the CHAP.
- ' king inspect; who should be well affected, and by VII.
- ' no means remiss.
- 121. 'In every large town or city, let him appoint
- one superintendent of all affairs, elevated in rank,
- ' formidable in power, distinguished as a planet among
- 'stars:
- 122. 'Let that governor from time to time survey
- ' all the rest in person, and, by means of his emis-
- ' saries, let him perfectly know their conduct in their
- ' several districts.
- 123. 'Since the servants of the king, whom he
- ' has appointed guardians of districts, are generally
- ' knaves, who seize what belongs to other men, from
- ' such knaves let him defend his people:
 - 124. 'Of such evil-minded servants, as wring wealth
- ' from subjects attending them on business, let the
- ' king confiscate all the possessions, and banis them
- ' from his realm.
- 125. 'For women, employed in the service of the - ' king, and for his whole set of menial servants, let
- ' him daily provide a maintenance, in proportion to
- ' their station and to their work:
- 126. 'One pana of copper must be given each day
- ' as wages to the lowest servant, with two cloths, or
- ' apparel every half-year, and a drona of grain every
- ' month; to the highest must be given wages in the
- ' ratio o six to one.

- CHAP. 127. 'HAVING ascertained the rates of purchase and VII. 'sale, the length of the way, the expences of food and of condiments, the charges of securing the goods carried, and the neat profits of trade, let the king oblige traders to pay taxes on their saleable commodities:
 - 128. 'After full consideration, let a king so levy 'those taxes continually in his dominions, that both 'he and the merchant may receive a just compensation for their several acts.
 - 129. 'As the leech, the suckling calf, and the bee, take their natural food by little and little, thus must a king draw from his dominions an annual revenue.
 - 130. 'Of cattle, of gems, of gold and silver, added 'each year to the capital stock, a fiftieth part may be 'taken by the king; of grain, an eighth part, a sixth, or a twelfth, according to the di erence o the soil, 'and the labour necessary to cultivate it.
 - 131. 'He may also take a sixth part of the clear 'annual increase of trees, flesh-meat, honey, clarified 'butter, perfumes, medical substances, liquids, flowers, 'roots, and fruit,
 - 132. 'Of gathered leaves, potherbs, grass, utensils 'made with leather or cane, earthen pots, and all 'things made of stone.
 - 133. 'A king, even though dying with want, must 'not receive any tax from a Bráhmen learned in the 'Védas.

- ' Védas, nor suffer such a Bráhmen, residing in his CHAP. territories, to be afflicted with hunger.
- 134. 'Of that king, in whose dominion a learned 'Bráhmen is afflicted with hunger, the whole kingdom 'will in a short time be afflicted with famine.
- 135. 'The king, having ascertained his knowledge of scripture and good morals, must allot him a suitable maintenance, and protect him on all sides, as a father protects his own son:
- 136. 'By that religious duty, which such a Bráh'men performs each day, under the full protection of 'the sovereign, the life, wealth, and dominions of
 'his protector shall be greatly increased.
- 137. 'Let the king order a mere trifle to be paid, in the name of the annual tax, by the meaner in'habitants of his realm, who subsist by petty traf'fick:
- 138. 'By low handicraftsmen, artificers, and servile 'men, who support themselves by labour, the king 'may cause work to be done for a day in each 'month.
- 139. 'Let him not cut up his own root by taking 'no revenue, nor the root of other men by excess of 'covetousness; for, by cutting up his own root and 'theirs, he makes both himself and them wretched.
- 140. Let him, considering the diversity o cases, be occasionally sharp and occasionally mild, since a 'king

- CHAP. 'king, duly sharp and mild, becomes universally apvil. 'proved.
 - 141. 'When tired of overlooking the affairs of men,
 - ' let him assign the station of such an inspector to a
 - ' principal minister, who well knows his duty, who is
 - ' eminently learned, whose passions are subdued, and
 - ' whose birth is exalted.
 - 142. 'Thus must he protect his people, discharging,
 - ' with great exertion and without languor, all those
 - ' duties, which the law requires him to perform.
 - 143. 'That monarch, whose subjects are carried from
 - ' his kingdom by ruffians, while they call aloud for
 - ' protection, and he barely looks on them with his
 - ' ministers, is a dead, and not a living king.
 - 144. 'The highest duty of a military man is the
 - ' defence of his people, and the king who receives
 - ' the consideration just mentioned, is bound to dis-
 - ' charge that duty.
 - 145. 'Having risen in the last watch of the night,
 - ' his body being pure, and his mind attentive, having
 - ' made oblations to fire, and shown due respect to
 - · the priests, let him enter his hall decently splendid:
 - 146. 'Standing there, let him gratify his subjects,
 - ' before he dismiss them, with kind looks and words;
 - ' and, having dismissed them all, let him take secret
 - ' council with his principal ministers:
 - 147. 'Ascending up the back of a mountain, or 'going

- ' going privately to a terrace, a bower, a forest, or CHAP. ' a lonely place, without listeners, let him consult VII.
- ' with them unobserved.
- 148. 'That prince, of whose weighty secrets all as-'semblies of men are ignorant, shall attain dominion 'over the whole earth, though at irst he pessess no 'treasure.
- 149. 'At the time of consultation, let him remove the stupid, the dumb, the blind, and the deaf, talking birds, decrepit old men, women, and infidels, the diseased and the maimed;
- 150. 'Since those, who are disgraced in this lie by reason o sins ormerly committed, are apt to betray secret council; so are talking birds; and so above all are women: them he must, for that reason, diligently remove.
- 151. 'At noon or at midnight, when his fatigues 'have ceased, and his cares are dispersed, let him 'deliberate, with those ministers or alone, on virtue, 'lawful pleasure, and wealth;
- 152. 'On the means of reconciling the acquisition of them, when they oppose each other; on bestowing his daughters in marriage, and on preserving his sons from evil by the best education;
- 153. 'On sending ambassadors and messengers; on 'the probable events of is measures; on the behaviour o his women in the private partment; and on the acts even of his own emissares.

CHAP. 154. 'On the whole eight-fold business of kings, re-VII. 'lating to the revenue, to their expences, to the good 'or bad conduct of their ministers, to legislation in 'dubious cases, to civil and criminal justice, and to 'expiations for crimes, let him reflect with the greatest 'attention; on his five sorts of spies, or active and 'art ul youths, degraded anchorets, distressed husband-'men, decayed merchants, and actitious penitents, whom 'he must pay and see privately; on the good will or 'enmity of his neighbours, and on the state of the 'circumjacent countries.

155. 'On the conduct of that foreign prince, who has moderate strength equal to one ordinary foe, but no match or two; on the designs of him, who is willing and able to be a conqueror; on the condition of him, who is pacifick, but a match even or the ormer unallied; and on that of his natural enemy, let him sedulously meditate:

156. 'Those our powers, who, in one word, are 'the root or principal strength of the countries round 'him, added to eight others, who are called the 'branches, and are as many degrees o allies and opponents variously distinguished, are declared to be 'twelve chief objects o the royal consideration;

157. 'And five other heads, namely, their ministers, 'their territories, their strong holds, their treasuries, 'and their armies, being applied to each of those 'twelve, there are in all, together with them, seventy-two oreign objects to be carefully investigated.

158. 'Let

- · 158. 'Let the king consider as hostile to him, the CHAP. ' power immediately beyond him, and the favourer of
- that power; as amicable, the power next beyond his
- ' natural foe; and as neutral, the powers beyond that ' circle :
- 159. 'All those powers let him render subservient
- ' to his interest by mild measures and the other
- ' three expedients be ore mentioned, either separate or
- ' united, but principally by valour and policy in arms
- ' and negotiation.
- 160. 'Let him constantly deliberate on the six
- ' measures of a military prince, namely, waging war,
- ' and making peace or alliance, marching to battle,
- ' and sitting encamped, distributing his forces, and
- ' seeking the protection of a more powerful monarch:
 - 161. 'Having considered the posture of affairs, let
- ' him occasionally apply to it the measure of sitting
- 'inactive, or of marching to action, of peace, or of
- war, of dividing his force, or of seeking protection.
- 162. 'A king must know, that there are two sorts
- of alliance and war; two, of remaining encamped,
- ' and of marching; two, likewise, o dividing his army,
- ' and two of obtaining protection from another power.
 - 163. 'The two sorts of alliance, attended with pre-
- ' sent and future advantages, are held to be those,
- ' when he acts in conjunction with his ally, and when
- ' he acts apart from him.
 - 164. 'War is declared to e of two sorts; when 2 E 2

- CHAP. 'it is waged for an injury to himself, and when it is waged for an injury to his ally, with a view to
 - ' harass the enemy both in season and out of season.
 - 165. 'Marching is of two sorts, when destructive acts are done at his own pleasure by himself apart,
 - ' or when his ally attends him.
 - 166. 'The two sorts of sitting encamped are, first, when he has been gradually weakened by the Divine Power, or by the operation of past sins, and, secondly, when, to favour his ally, he remains in his camp.
 - 167. 'A detachment commanded by the king in 'person, and a detachment commanded by a general 'officer, for the purpose of carrying some important 'point, are declared by those, who well know the 'six measures, to be the two modes of dividing his 'army.
 - 168. 'The two modes of seeking protection, that 'his powerful support may be proclaimed in all countries, are, irst, when he wishes to be secure from 'apprehended injury, and, next, when his enemies 'actually assail him.
 - 169. 'When the king knows with certainty, that at 'some future time his force will be greatly augmented, and when, at the time present, he sustains little 'injury, let him then have recourse to peaceful measures;
 - 170. 'But, when he sees all his subjects consider-

- 'ably firm in strength, and feels himself highly ex-CHAP alted in power, let him protect his dominions by VII. war,
- 171. 'When he perfectly knows his own troops to be cheerful and well supplied, and those of his enemy quite the reverse, let him eagerly march against his foes;
- 172. 'But, when he finds himself weak in beasts of burden and in troops, let him then sit quiet in camp, using great attention, and pacifying his enemy by degrees.
- 173. 'When a king sees his foes stronger in all 'respects than himself, let him detach a part of his 'army, to keep the enemy amused, and secure his own 'safety in an inaccessible place;
- 174. 'But, when he is in all places assailable by the hostile troops, let him speedily seek the protection of a just and powerful monarch.
- 175. 'Him, who can keep in subjection both his 'own subjects and his foes, let him constantly sooth by all sorts of attentive respect, as he would honour 'his father, natural or spiritual:
- 176. 'But if, even in that situation, fin such protection a cause of evil, let him alone, though weak, wage vigorous war without fear.
- 177. 'By all these expedients let a politick ince act with such wis om, that neither alies, ne tral owers,

- CHAP. 'powers, nor foes, may gain over him any great ad-VII. 'vantage.
 - 178. 'Perfectly let him consider the state of his 'kingdom, both actually present and probably future, 'with the good and bad parts of all his actions:
 - 179. 'That king shall never be overcome by his 'enemies, who foresees the good and evil to ensue 'from his measures; who, on present occasions, takes his, resolution with prudent speed, and who weighs 'the various events of his past conduct.
 - 180. 'Let him so arrange all his affairs, that no 'ally, neutral prince, or enemy, may obtain any ad- 'vantage over him: this, in a few words, is the sum 'of political wisdom.
 - 181. 'When the king begins his march against the domains of his foe, let him gradually advance, in the following manner, against the hostile metropolis.
 - 182. 'Let him set out on his expedition in the fine 'month Márgasírsha, or about the month of Phál- 'guna and Chaitra, according to the number o his 'forces, that he may ind autumnal or vernal crops in 'the country invaded by him:
 - 183. 'Even in other seasons, when he has a clear 'prospect of victory, and when any disaster has befallen his foe, let him advance with the greater part of his army.

- 184. 'Having made a due arrangement of affairs in CHAP. 'his own dominions, and a disposition fit for his en-
- ' terprize, having provided all things necessary for
- ' his continuance in the foreign realm, and having
- ' seen all his spies dispatched with propriety,
- 185. 'Having secured the three sorts of ways, over 'water, on plains, and through forests, and placed his
- ' six-fold army, elephants, cavalry, cars, infantry, o i-
- ' cers, and attendants, in complete military form, let
- ' him proceed by fit journeys toward the metropolis
- ' of his enemy:
- 186. 'Let him be much on his guard against every
- ' secret friend in the service of the hostile prince, and
- 'against emissaries, who go and return; for in such
- ' friends he may find very dangerous foes.
- 187. 'On his march let him form his troops, either
- ' like a staff, or in an even column; like a wain, or
- ' in a wedge with the apex foremost; like a boar, or
- ' in a rhomb with the van and rear narrow and the
- ' centre broad; like a Macara or sea-monster, that is,
- ' in a double triangle with apices joined; like a needle,
- ' or in a long line; or like the bird of Vishnu, that
- ' is, in a rhomboid with the wings ar extended:
- 188. 'From whatever side he apprehends danger,
- ' to that side let him extend his troops; and let him
- ' always conceal himself in the midst of a squadron
- ' formed like a lotos-flower.
 - 189. 'Let him cause his generals and the chief com-

- CHAP. 'mander under himself, to act in all quarters; and VII. 'from whatever side he perceives a design of attacking him, to that side let him turn his front.
 - 190. 'On all sides let him station troops of soldiers, in whom he confides, distinguished by known colours and other marks; who are excellent both in sustaining a charge and in charging. who are fearless and incapable of desertion.
 - 191. 'Let him at his pleasure order a few men to 'engage in a close phalanx, or a large number of warriours in loose ranks; and, having formed them 'in a long line like a needle, or in three divisions 'like a thunderbolt, let him give orders for battle.
 - 192. 'On a plain, let him fight with his armed cars and horses; on watery places, with manned boats and elephants; on ground full of trees and shrubs, with bows; on cleared ground, with swords and targets, and other weapons.
 - 193. 'Men born in Curucshétra, near Indraprest'ha, in Matsya, or Viráta, in Punchála, or Cányacubja, and in Súraséna, in the district of Mat'hurà, let him cause to engage in the van; and men, born in other countries, who are tall and light.
 - 194. 'Let him, when he has formed his troops in 'array, encourage them with short animated speeches; 'and then, let him try them completely: let him know, 'likewise, how his men severally exert themselves, 'while they charge the foe.

- · 195. 'If he block up his enemy, let him sit en- CHAP. camped, and lay waste the hostile country; let him VII.
- ' continually spoil the grass, water, and wood of the ' adverse prince.
- 196. Pools, wells, and trenches let him destroy. It him harass the foe by day, and alarm him by night.
- 197. 'Let him secretly bring over to his party all 'such leaders as he can safely bring over; let him 'be informed of all that his enemies are doing; and, 'when a fortunate moment is offered by heaven, let 'him give battle, pushing on to conquest and abandoning fear:
- 198. 'Yet he should be more sedulous to reduce 'his enemy by negotiation, by well applied gifts and 'by creating divisions, using either all or some of those methods, than by hazarding at any time a 'decisive action.
- 199. 'Since victory or defeat are not surely fore-'seen on either side, when two armies engage in the 'field; let the king then, i other expedients prevail, 'avoid a pitched battle:
- 200. 'But, should there be no means of applying 'the three be ore-mentioned expedients, let him, after 'due preparation, fight so valiantl', that his enemy 'may be totally routed.
- 201. 'Having conquered a country, let him respect the deities adored in it, and their virtuous prests;

- CHAP. 'let him also distribute largesses to the people, and VII. 'cause a full exemption from terrour to be loudly 'proclaimed.
 - 202. 'When he has perfectly ascertained the con-'duct and intentions of all the vanquished, let him 'fix in that country a prince of the royal race, and 'give him precise instructions.
 - 203. 'Let him establish the laws of the conquered intheir books; and let him gratify the new prince with gems and other precious gifts.
 - 204. 'The seizure of desirable property, though it cause hatred, and the donation of it, though it cause love, may be laudable or blameable on different occasions:
 - 205. 'All this conduct of human a fairs is considered as dependent on acts ascribed to the deity, and on acts ascribed to men; now the operations of the deity cannot be known by any intenseness of thought, but those of men may be clearly discovered.
 - 206. 'On the victor, considering an ally, territory, 'and wealth as the triple fruit of conquest, may 'form an alliance with the vanquished prince, and 'proceed in union with him, using diligent circum- 'spection.
 - 207. 'He should pay due attention to the prince, 'who supported his cause, and to any other prince 'in the circumjacent region, who checked that sup-'porter, so that, both from a well-wisher and from an 'opponent,

- ' opponent, he may secure the fruit of his expedi- CHAP. tion.
- 208. 'By gaining wealth and territory a king acquires on to so great an increase of strength, as by obtain-
- ' ing a firm ally, who, though weak, may hereafter be powerful.
- 209. 'That ally, though feeble, is highly estimable, 'who knows the whole extent of his duties, who gratefully remembers benefits, whose people are satisfied, 'or, who has a gentle nature, who loves his friend, 'and perseveres in his good resolutions.
- 210. 'Him have the sages declared an enemy hard 'to be subdued, who is eminently learned, of a noble 'race, personally brave, dexterous in management, li- 'beral, grateful, and firm.
- 211. 'Good-nature, knowledge of mankind, valour, benignity of heart, and incessant liberality, are the assemblage of virtues, which adorn a neutral prince, 'whose amity must be courted.
- 212. 'Even a salubrious and fertile country, where cattle continually increase, let a king abandon without hesitation for the sake of preserving himself:
- 213. 'Against misfortune, let him preserve his wealth; at the expence of his wealth, let him preserve his 'wife; but let him at all events preserve himself, even 'at the hazard of his wife and his riches.
 - 214. 'A wise prince, who finds every sort of ca a-2 r 2 'mity

- CHAP. 'mity rushing violently upon him, should have recourse VII. 'to all just expedients, united or separate:
 - 215. 'Let him consider the business to be expe-'dited, the expedients collectively, and himself who 'must apply them; and, taking refuge completely in
 - ' those three, let him strenuously labour for his own ' prosperity.
 - 216. 'Having consulted with his ministers, in the 'manner before prescribed, on all this mass of publick 'ajairs; having used exercise becoming a warriour, 'and having bathed a ter it, let the king enter at 'noon his private apartment for the purpose of taking food
 - 217. 'There let him eat lawful aliment, prepared by servants attached to his person, who know the difference of times and are incapable of perfidy, after it has been proved innocent by certain experiments, and hallowed by texts of the Véda repulsive of poison.
 - 218. 'Together with all his food let him swallow 'such medical substances as resist venom; and let him constantly wear with attention such gems, as 'are known to repel it.
 - 219. 'Let his females, well tried and attentive, their 'dress and ornaments having been examined, lest some 'weapon should be concealed in them, do him humble 'service with fans, water, and perfumes:
 - 220. 'Thus let him take diligent care,' when he 'goes

- goes out in a carriage or on horseback, when he CHAP.
- ilies down to rest, when he sits, when he takes food,
- ' when he bathes, anoints his body with odorous es-
- * sences, and puts on all his habiliments.
 - 221. 'After eating, let him divert himself with his
- ' women in the recesses of his palace; and, having
- ' idled a reasonable time, let him again think of pub-
- ' lick affairs:
- 222. 'When he has dressed himself completely, let
- ' him once more review his armed men, with all their
- elephants, horses, and cars, their accoutrements, and
- ' weapons.
 - 223. 'At sunset, having performed his religious duty,
- ' let him privately, but well armed, in his interior
- ' apartment, hear what has been done by his reporters
 - ' and emissaries:
 - 224. 'Then, having dismissed those informers, and
 - ' returning to another secret chamber, let him go,
 - 'attended by women, to the inmost recess of his
 - ' mansion for the sake of his evening meal;
 - 225. 'There, having a second time eaten a little,
 - ' and having been recreated with musical strains, let
 - ' him take rest early, and rise refreshed from his labour.
 - 226. 'This perfect system of rules let a king, free
 - ' from illness, observe; but, when ree, afflicted with
 - ' disease, he may intrust all these affairs to his of-
 - ' ficers.'
