Throughout the pages of this, the 1956 edition of PINE NEEDLES, you, our fellow students and friends, will find a quality of newness. It is presented to you with humility and pride, apprehension and hope, anxiety and confidence. A metamorphosis in the divisions will be obvious; we feel that this deserves an explanation in order that you may better understand the changes we have made. We have endeavored to group the activities of the College according to their functions and degree of significance in the life of a Woman's College student. For example, we feel that our three campus publications are most significantly different in function, therefore we have placed them where each one seemed to be most relative.

As the underlying theme of the 1956 PINE NEEDLES we present Growth in a Searching Quality. With this our inspiration, we have attempted to record our personal and communal growth within the college community. We hasten to add that the picture of growth we have shown here is not a blueprint, but rather an opinion. The permission was given to us by your vote in 1955.

The presentation of our theme was a big and wonderful challenge to us because the subject lends dignity to the use of photographic excellence and literary work such as "A Girl In A Library." With this in mind we focused our attention on simple modernity.

With a distinct feeling of gratification in our hearts for the opportunity to express this opinion to you, we humbly, yet proudly, present your 1956 PINE NEEDLES.

Anne, Landy, Betty and the Staff

Dedication

Searching — for strength. Seeking — for character. We find . . . humbly we dedicate this book to Mr. Charlie, our Friend, our Example, and our Guide. We found him in religious work — we found him in community life — we found him in campus activities. His genuine handclasp eased by a merry twinkle, his sincere appraisals, his constant interest endear him always not only to the State, or to Greensboro, or to Woman's College, but to each one of us. To you, CHARLES W. PHILLIPS, we are indebted for so beautifully exemplifying the spirit of our College.

A Girl in a Library

And object among dreams, you sit here with your shoes off
And curl your legs up under you; your eyes
Close for a moment, your face moves toward sleep . . .
You are very human.

But my mind, gone out in tenderness,
Shrinks from its object with a thoughtful sigh.
This is a waist the spirit breaks its arm on.
The gods themselves, against you, struggle in vain.
This broad low strong-boned brow; these heavy eyes;
These calves, grown muscular with certainties;
This nose, three medium-sized pink strawberries
—But I exaggerate. In a little you will leave:
I'll hear, half squeal, half shriek, your laugh of greeting—
Then, decescendo, bars of that strange speech
In which each sound sets out to seek each other,
Murders its own father, marries its own mother,
And ends as one grand transcendental vowel.

(Yet for all I know, the Egyptian Helen spoke so.)
As I look, the world contracts around you:
I see Brunnhilde had brown braids and glasses
She used for studying; Salome straight brown bangs.
A calf's brown eyes, and sturdy light-brown limbs
Dusted with cinnamon, an apple-dumpling's . . .
Many a beast has gnawn a leg off and got free,
Many a dolphin curved up from Necessity—
The trap has closed about you, and you sleep.
If someone questioned you, W'hat doest thou here?
You'd knit your brows like an orangutang
(But not so sadly; not so thoughtfully)
And answer with a pure heart, guilelessly:
I'm studying . . .

If only you were not!
Assignments,
recipes.

the Official Rulebook
Of Basketball—ah, let them go; you needn't mind.
The soul has no assignments, neither cooks
Nor referees: It wastes its time.

It wastes its time.
Here in this enclave there are centuries
For you to waste: the short and narrow stream
Of Life meanders into a thousand valleys
Of all that was, or might have been, or is to be.
The books, just leafed through, whisper endlessly . . .
Yet it is hard. One sees in your blurred eyes
The "uneasy half-soul" Kipling saw in dogs'.
One sees it, in the glass, in one's own eyes.
In rooms alone, in galleries, in libraries,
In tears, in searchings of the heart, in staggering joys
We memorize once more our old creation,
Humanity: with what yawns the unwillful
Flesh puts on its spirit, O my sister!

So many dreams! And not one troubles
Your sleep of life? no self stares shadowily
From these worn hexahedrons, beckoning
With false smiles, tears! . . .

Meanwhile Tatyana
Larina (gray eyes nickel with the moonlight
That falls through the willows onto Lensky's tomb;
Now young and shy, now old and cold and sure)

Asks, smiling "But what is she dreaming of, fat thing?"
I answer: She's not fat. She isn't dreaming.
She purrs or laps or runs, all in her sleep;
Believes, awake, that she is beautiful;
She never dreams.

Those sunrise-colored clouds
Around man's head—that inconceivable enchantment
From which, at sunset, we come back to life
To find our graves dug, families dead, selves dying.
Of all this, Tanya, she is innocent.
For nineteen years she's faced reality
They look alike already.

They say, man wouldn't b.
The best thing in this world—and isn't he?
If he were not too good for it. But she —She's good enough for it.

And yet sometimes
Her sturdy form, in its pink strapless formal, is as if bathed in moonlight—modulated
Into a form of joy, a Lydian mode;
This Wooden Mean's a kind, furred animal
That speaks, in the Wild of things, delighting riddles
To the soul that listens, trusting . . .

Poor senseless Life
When, in the last light sleep of dawn, the messenger
Comes with his message, you will not awake.
He'll give his feathery whistle, shake you hard,
You'll look with wide eyes at the dewy yard
And dream, with calm slow factuality:
"Today's Commencement. My bachelor's degree in Home Ec, my doctorate of philosophy in Phys. Ed.

[Tanya, they won't even scaw]
Are waiting for me . . .

Oh, Tatyana,
The Angel comes: better to squawk like a chicken
Than to say with truth, "But I'm a good girl."
And Meet his Challenge with a last firm strange
Uncomprehending smile; and—then, then!—see
The blind date that has stood you up: your life.
(For all this, if it isn't, perhaps, life,
Has yet, at least, a language of its own
Different from the books'; worse than the books'.)
Yet . . . yet . . .

to have one's life add up to yet!

You sigh a shuddering sigh. Tatyana murmurs,
"Don't cry, little peasant": leaves us with a swift
"Good-bye, hood-bye . . . Ah, don't think ill of me . . .
Your eyes open: you sit here thoughtlessly.

I love you—and yet—and yet—I love you.

Don't cry, little peasant. Sit and dream.
One comes, a finger's width beneath your skin,
To the braided maidens singing as they spin;
There sound the shepherd's pipe, the watchman's rattle
Across the short dark distance of the years.
I am a thought of yours: and yet, you do not think . . .
The firelight of a long, blind, dreaming story
Lingers upon your lips; and I have seen
Firm, fixed forever in your closing eyes,
The Corn King beckoning to his Spring Queen.

"We, the students of the Woman's College, University of North Carolina, acting under the authority granted by the Board of Directors and faculty, in order to assume individual and community responsibility in the life and conduct of the students of the college in all matters that are not reserved in the said grant of power, and believing that there is honor and dignity in Student Government, in accordance with the agreement between the President of the University and the students, do ordain and establish. . . ."

These are words taken from the preamble of the Constitution of the Student Government association. They formulate the meaning of having a governing body in which the student voice is heard, in which the student herself may practice the principles of democratic living. In a tripartite community of students, faculty, and administration, Student Government Association is the official organ of student opinion and cooperation in the promotion of common welfare at Woman's College.

In order to fulfill the needs of the Consolidated University of North Carolina on campus, the students of the three branches of the University formed the Consolidated University Student Council in 1948.

The purpose of the council is to act as a liaison among the three campuses and to represent the opinions, interests, and welfare of the students.

The three schools are represented by a board of eleven members. Meetings are held quarterly, alternating among the schools, and executive council meetings are held after each general council meeting with the President of the University.

Each year, "Consolidated University Days" are held at the three schools so that the students may know their University, and one another, better.

It is the aim of National Student Association Council to represent student opinion to regional and national assemblies and to gain from these assemblies concrete ideas which will enable them to aid their student government and campus.

The seven official members of the Council are chosen on the basis of their interest in the campus, the student government, and National Student Association. They act as representatives of their own class to the local National Student Association and to other member student governments promoting such projects as the National Student Association travel program, the campus international program, and the student government leadership training program.

National Student Association Council relaxes for a moment.

Service League

With its twofold purpose of serving the campus and the less fortunate, Service League had a full year sponsoring the Book Exchange, the Clean-Up Campaign, the Bloodmobile, and the Clothing Drive. The Annual Purse Drive was Service League's greatest objective, and the proceeds were apportioned to World University Service, Negro Scholarship Fund, Christmas Seal Fund, Care, Community Chest, Cancer, Polio, and various other worthy organizations.

.. 1959

Glancing back on our freshman year we realize the progress we have made since that day in September when we first became known as College Frosh. We quickly learned the habits and "ropes" of college life and hastened to catch up with the upperclassmen by choosing our leaders, our motto, and song. We had instilled in our hearts the hopes of making our first year at Woman's College a success and we eagerly looked forward to the new fall term.

Result: Two cases of map fatigue.

The dress . . . the girl . . . the dance to come

.. 1958

We felt that we had finally arrived as upperclassmen when our green jackets were delivered back in the fall. We celebrated with a Jacket Dinner and serenaded the entire campus. We "ratted" the Freshmen and entertained them with a talent show. We also worked together on the University

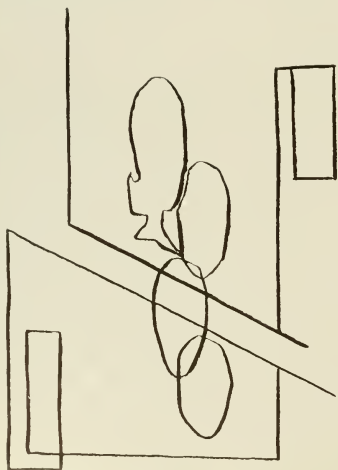

Sermon and our class project, "The Red Shoes." All year long we grew closer to one another and to Woman's College. We gained responsibility and privileges in this our Sophomore year.

Send money . . . thanks for a wonderful weekend . . . passed that fest!

Careful with that jacket, Rat!

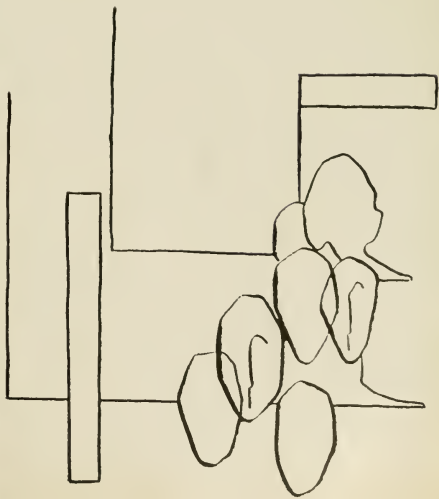

W. C. hospitality extends to Santa Claus

"Our praise to W. C. we sing . . .
shout it loud, let it ring."

She finally finished those argyles.

Spirit indefatigable!

The Class

Summer ended and we found ourselves involved in our majors. The list of required courses was behind and we could concentrate on individual goals. Fewer Saturday classes brought more free weekends. We took Friday night off for a dinner date and reserved tables at the Plantation. We were sophisticates with black rings on our fingers, noisy howlers with our own show, endless talkers about majors, and eternal dreamers about senior year.

We walked our way through fall . . .

The Class

Choked with feelings of mixed emotions, in September we packed our gray jackets for their last year at Woman's College. With each hour claimed by numerous senior activities, the days vanished too swiftly. Fall class meetings were dominated by plans and revisions for graduation festivities. Woman's College's two foreign exchange students received class jackets and were legally adopted into the group.

Writers' cramps became a common malady as we voted for mascots, our most outstanding octette, and signed away our lives to the Placement Office. The hectic, yet rewarding, hours of practice teaching brought satisfaction as well as weariness. Nothing, however, gladdened our hearts more than the tappings into various honorary organizations.

Even memories of final exams now fade into the background as remembrances of our traditions — Sister Day, Founder's Day, Senior University Sermon, Senior Show, family style meals, rainy chapel days — claim first place.

. . . and winter.

An understanding silence

Then, the sound of voices.

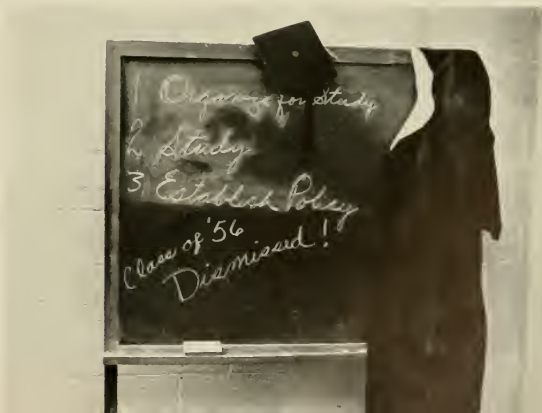

A task to come . . .

A dream fulfilled.

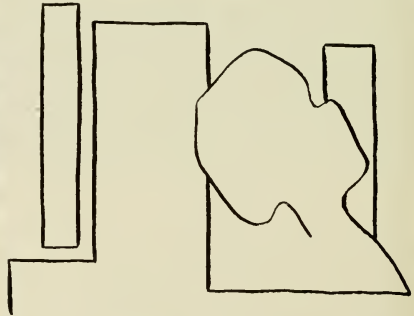

Yesterday's practice

Today's classic

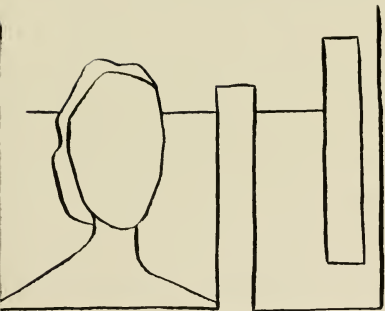

Tomorrow's classes

The pleasant moments spent . . .

Approaching a burn.

Appreciating Bach.

The Commercial Class

Proudly clad in gay white jackets, the Commercial Class skillfully budgeted a full college life into nine short months. Kirkland and Hinshaw Halls saw their daughters uncertain freshmen the first semester and sophisticated upperclassmen during the spring. Each hour of every day was crammed full of knitting, bridge, dating, study, and typing practice, while the class increased its scholarship fund and sponsored a dance. The coveted certificates were small evidence of the profitable year.

Association

In the spring we have our annual play day when we are hostess to distant Recreation Association groups. Our spring camping trips and weekends at the hut are equaled only by our banquet, where we choose the outstanding senior physical education major and recognize Honor group members on the basis of service, interest, sportsmanship, and attitude.

Opportunities are unlimited with Recreation Association which offers everything from swimming and hiking to dancing and preparing to be camp counselors. Our instructors, student coaches, and club presidents inspire and guide us, sharing in the satisfaction of a game well played.

All this is ours, all this and more . . . the thrill of seeing our motto become a living spirit at Woman's College . . .
 "A sport for every girl and a girl for every sport."

Town Students

Newly upholstered furniture, new bridge cards, and new faces greeted the Town Students when they moved back into the Town Students' Lounge at the end of the summer. The seventy-four upperclassmen saw their number increase to one hundred and eight with the arrival of freshmen and commercials; and Town Students Organization was once again a lively, enthusiastic group.

They began the year with a coke party for the freshmen. Their socials continued with the weekly Coffee Hour in the Lounge, adding a pleasant social note for the year. Turning from the quiet pleasure of the coffee hour, the group gathered for an outing at the R. A. camp and a spring picnic at Hanging Rock Park.

In addition to their own activities, the Town Students were active in campus-wide programs — eagerly participating in Student Government, Service League, drama and music groups.

As a seeking individual, and as a member of the college community, the Woman's College student is keenly interested in various fields of artistic expression. Her college offers her several opportunities for exploration in each branch through the extra-curricular groups on campus. Realizing this, she may take an active part in one or more of them, or she may join the audiences of both student and professional talent. Whether a participant or a spectator, she has multiple opportunities to broaden her field of general knowledge and to deepen her understanding of the arts. After she leaves Woman's College, she can rely on the interest developed here to maintain her artistic curiosity and perception, enriching her mind and personality.

The Festival of the Arts is presented in the spring of each year in order to provide concrete expression for each of the Fine Arts. This year, Jose Limon in dance, John Dos Passos in writing, Henry Cowell in music, and Mark Rothko were among the many artists who brought a fresh perspective and new concepts to Woman's College students. Besides the established authorities, the work of

Though the Student Theater of the Woman's College is still young, it is a lively, energetic member of the campus organizations. Headed by Michael Casey, the drama department worked this year to bring to the students both excellent entertainment and varied opportunities for participation. Offering a new major in Drama, the Department grew rapidly in 1955-56. This growth was reflected in the year's activities which began with "We the Women," a dramatic history of Woman's College. Moving from history into fantasy, the Masqueraders presented "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Spring semester featured Gigi, by Collette and the first non-professional production of "Six Characters in Search of an Author," by Pirandello. The drama students brought spectators to WUNC-TV in the "Lands and Legends" series.

The executive group of the Student Theater, the Masqueraders, played a vital role in bringing the students closer to Aycock and in working as crew chiefs for their productions as well as acting "out front."

television

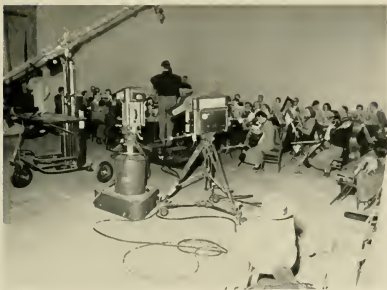

Mr. David Davis, director of Television at Woman's College, and his staff offered professional-level programs in its second year of operation, giving many long hours and much hard work. Primarily an educational station, WUNC-TV offered two credit courses to registered viewers, but it also featured excellent entertainment in the "Lands and Legends" series. The students behind the cameras presented faculty and student talent to an area of over two hundred miles; using a mobile unit, the station covered off-campus events, including hurricane Connie. Always a hard job, occasionally a headache, WUNC-TV has become even more a source of pride to Woman's College in 1955-56.

Coraddi, the student literary magazine, introduced a wider variety of Fine Arts material this year by adding music, drama, and dance to its usual repertoire of short stories, poems, and art. Issued quarterly, Coraddi provides the undergraduate artist the opportunity of seeing his work on the printed page. In the spring, Coraddi sponsors an Arts Forum issue which represents student writing from colleges all over the country. Through this media writers and students on campus can compare Woman's College writing with that of other colleges. Coraddi also sponsors the Coraddi Club which is open to all interested students.

The 1956 Interfaith Forum with its theme of "Religion and the Inquiring Mind," focused on questions that have arisen in the minds of students and thinking people through the ages: What is religion? By what ways of knowing and through what channels do we approach to an understanding of religion and of God? Dr. Glenn Olds, Director of Cornell United Religion Work, Cornell University, was the principal speaker.

The Forum was planned by steering committee headed by Shirley Councilman, and carried out through the co-operative effort of all the religious groups on campus.

Interfaith Council

With Mrs. Ruth A. Clarke, adviser, and thirty-one enthusiastic members — the president and one representative from each denominational group, the Y.W.C.A., and the Dormitory Devotions Chairman committee — the Interfaith Council has worked to co-ordinate religion on the campus, to aid each denominational group, and to sponsor activities of a campus-wide nature.

Friday night suppers, University Sermons, dorm devotions, and work shops were only a few of the highlights in religious activities encouraged by the Council. Throughout the year many outstanding speakers were presented by the various religious groups at Chapel services held twice monthly.

Continuance of the Religious Handbook, programs for Thanksgiving, Brotherhood Week, and the Interfaith Forum further aided the plan to help religion become an essential part of each student's life at Woman's College.

Mr. Price Coursey and Mr. Frank Fleming

We Thank You . . .

In this year 1955-56, we discovered a communion of thoughts and ideas which finally materialized in the completion of this book. We cannot, however, claim total laurels, for each of the following persons played a distinctive role:

MR. PRICE COURSEY . . . he winked a friendly eye and gave encouragement . . . "Anyone for tennis?" and the tension lifted . . . this was Coursey

Miss Nancy Fleming

Mr. Randall Jorrell

Mr. Carroll Martin

Mr. Fay Smith and Mr. Andy Laws

our engraver. We met MR. FAY SMITH and MR. ANDY LAWS for the first time . . . the excellent Junior-Senior portraits are their contribution. If MR. CARROLL MARTIN grew impatient we never knew it . . . Freshman-Sophomore groups were his lot, along with the informals. MR. FRANK FLEMING was our printer . . . "but Mr. Fleming, we simply have to have a few more days. Pretty please?" . . . and he complied. RANDALL JARRELL our poet laureate . . . tennis on warm afternoons . . . from informal chats, a quickening zeal . . . "A Girl in a Library" is his. From the class of 1955 we found photographic talent in NANCY FLEMING. Her interest and resulting contributions were invaluable to us when the 1956 Pine Needles was only a dream. and MR. ALBERT WILKINSON of the News Bureau . . . responsibility with Trojan-like efficiency.

To all we owe the debt which cannot be paid except through feeble words of gratitude. With the deepest sincerity, we thank you.
