Do.....	WM. B. MASON.....	Dec. 2, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Lewis E. Sisson.....	" 10, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Enoch W. Blasdel.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Resigned February 25, 1863.
Do.....	Andrew Smith.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Resigned February 5, 1863.
Do.....	James H. Lutgen.....	" 31, "	" 12, "	Resigned March 13, 1864.
Do.....	Andrew W. McCormick.....	" 31, "	" 12, "	"
Do.....	Richard Fourakre.....	" 31, "	" 12, "	Resigned September 2, 1862.
Do.....	Wm. T. Robinson.....	" 31, "	" 12, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Albert Chandler.....	Jan. 4, 1862	" 12, "	Mustered out. [supernumerary.]
Do.....	Isaac B. Kinkaid.....	April 8, "	May 9, "	Revoked October 31, 1862; mustered out as
Do.....	Robert H. McKittrick.....	Aug. 26, "	Oct. 8, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Thomas Ross.....	Sept. 2, "	Dec. 23, "	Dismissed September 29, 1863.
Do.....	Thomas Garrett.....	Feb. 5, 1863	Feb. 19, 1863	Mustered out.
Do.....	Sam'l. S. McNaughton.....	Feb. 25, "	May 12, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Charles H. Morris.....	April 18, "	" 25, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Thomas Mitchell.....	March 19, 1864	" 19, 1864	Resigned December 9, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. H. Fisher.....	" 24, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out.
Do.....	Wm. W. Scott.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Resigned December 1, 1865.
Do.....	Robert E. Smithson.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Samuel Fulton.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Robert H. Flemming.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Henry L. Pugh.....	Sept. 29, "	Sept. 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John L. McIntyre.....	Nov. 14, "	Nov. 14, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Leonard A. Marlow.....	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Gordon B. West.....	March 7, 1866	March 7, 1866	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant and B. Q. M.
1st Lieutenant.....	Harvey Anderson.....	Nov. 23, 1861	Feb. 12, 1862	Resigned February 12, 1863.
Do.....	Robert H. McKittrick.....	Dec. 2, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Thomas Mitchell.....	" 2, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John Henrick.....	" 2, "	" 12, "	Resigned September 20, 1862.
Do.....	Thomas Garrett.....	" 2, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Herschel B. White.....	" 2, "	" 12, "	Honorably discharged October 20, 1862.
Do.....	Sam'l. S. McNaughton.....	" 2, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. W. Scott.....	" 2, "	" 12, "	Honorably discharged August 31, 1862.
Do.....	Moratio W. Mason.....	Jan. 4, 1862	" 12, "	Resigned March 6, 1862.
Do.....	Wm. West.....	Oct. 15, 1861	" 12, "	Resigned June 5, 1862.
Do.....	Thomas J. Cochran.....	Nov. 25, "	" 12, "	Resigned October 6, 1862.
Do.....	Wm. H. Fisher.....	March 6, 1862	April 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Thomas Ross.....	" 27, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Edgar B. Pearce.....	June 5, "	Juns 24, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	David F. Jones.....	Aug. 26, "	Oct. 8, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Wm. P. Richener.....	Sept. 20, "	" 17, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Marion N. Burris.....	Oct. 6, "	" 29, "	Resigned July 15, 1863.
Do.....	Edward R. Moore.....	Aug. 31, "	Dec. 31, "	Honorably discharged August 1, 1863.
Do.....	Hanson Criswell.....	" 2, "	" 31, "	"
Do.....	David A. Henry.....	Oct. 31, "	" 31, "	Resigned December 9, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. W. Scott.....	Feb. 5, 1863	Feb. 19, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Charles H. Morris.....	" 13, "	" 23, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Robert E. Smithson.....	" 25, "	March 6, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Samuel Fulton.....	April 18, "	May 25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Charles J. Eagler.....	March 19, 1864	March 19, 1864	Resigned December 9, 1864.
Do.....	Henry L. Pugh.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Robert H. Flemming.....	Aug. 1, 1863	Nov. 27, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Nathan B. Smith.....	March 19, 1864	March 19, 1864	Not mustered as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John L. McIntyre.....	" 29, 1865	" 29, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Leonard A. Marlow.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Gordon B. West.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Robert C. Berry.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Augustus McCarty.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Discharged.
Do.....	Wm. W. Burris.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph M. Mitchell.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. M. Atkinson.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment. [Adjutant.]
Do.....	Benj. T. Hill.....	Sept. 29, "	Sept. 29, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut. and
Do.....	Henry H. Dye.....	Nov. 14, "	Nov. 14, "	Resigned October 10, 1865, as 2d Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Wm. A. Day.....	Nov. 16, 1865	Nov. 16, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	John Smith.....	Dec. 30, " "	Dec. 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Wiseman.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James P. Daugherty.....	March 7, 1866	March 7, 1866	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
2d Lieutenant	Joseph S. Steenrod.....	Nov. 23, 1861	Feb. 12, 1862	Killed April 8, 1862.
Do.	David F. Jones.....	Dec. 2, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Marion N. Burris.....	" 10, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward R. Moore.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hansen Criswell.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Oliphant S. Thomas.....	" 10, " "	" 12, " "	Died May 13, 1862.
Do.	David A. Henry.....	" 31, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Levi J. Fourakre.....	" 31, " "	" 12, " "	Honorably discharged October 21, 1862.
Do.	Henry Hobbittzell.....	" 31, " "	" 12, " "	Discharged January 8, 1863.
Do.	Wm. H. Fisher.....	Nov. 5, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert B. Greggs.....	March 6, 1862	May 9, " "	Discharged October 10, 1862.
Do.	Charles H. Morris.....	April 8, " "	April 8, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas R. Campbell.....	Aug. 26, " "	" 8, " "	Died September 25, 1862.
Do.	Robert E. Smithson.....	May 31, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles J. Eagler.....	Aug. 26, " "	Aug. 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jesse Hildebrand, jr.....	Oct. 21, " "	Nov. 25, " "	Mustered out January 23, 1864.
Do.	Henry L. Pugh.....	Aug. 26, " "	Dec. 31, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nathan B. Smith.....	Oct. 21, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Gordon B. West.....	Feb. 11, 1863	Feb. 5, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John L. McIntyre.....	Jan. 1, " "	March 5, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jesse Province.....	May 1, 1862	Feb. 10, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Isaac B. Kinkaid.....	Nov. 1, " "	March 6, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Samuel Fuiton.....	Feb. 13, 1863	Feb. 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert H. Flemming.....	" 25, " "	March 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Leonard A. Marlow.....	Jan. 1, " "	May 21, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert C. Berry.....	April 18, " "	" 21, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. E. Smithson.....	Nov. 1, " "	March 7, 1864	Resigned December 9, 1864.
Do.	Benj. T. Hill.....	March 29, 1864	" 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry H. Dye.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Resigned October 10, 1865.
Do.	Wm. A. Day.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Smith.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Wiseman.....	May 31, " "	May 31, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph M. Mitchell.....	March 29, " "	June 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. W. Burris.....	June 29, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry H. Clindenst.....	Sept. 29, " "	Sept. 29, " "	Never mustered.
Do.	Gamaliel J. Lund.....	Nov. 14, " "	Nov. 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Jeremiah Fish.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	James P. Daugherty.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Hose.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Hanson.....	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Christopher Black.....	Dec. 30, " "	Dec. 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Wm. H. Bingham.....	March 7, 1866	March 7, 1866	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

SEVENTY-SEVENTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Marietta, Ohio, in the fall of 1861, with Jesse Hildebrand as its Colonel. Colonel Hildebrand was well qualified to accomplish the work assigned him by the Governor of the State, being well known as the most active militia General in Southern Ohio for many years. At the time of his appointment recruiting was very difficult, his territory was already well drained of men, as five regiments of infantry, a battalion of cavalry, and several independent companies of artillery had been raised there, yet so well directed were his energies, that his regiment almost reached its maximum in sixty days.

Immediately upon the organization of the regiment, and before equipment, it was ordered from the place of rendezvous, at Marietta, Ohio, to Camp Dennison. From thence it was ordered on the 17th of February following, to report to General W. T. Sherman, at Paducah, Kentucky.

Reporting on the 20th of February, it was assigned to Sherman's division of Grant's army, and with the Fifty-Third and Fifty-Seventh Ohio, and two battalions of the Fifth Ohio Cavalry, formed the Third Brigade, with Colonel Hildebrand commanding.

On the 9th of March the regiment with the brigade embarked on transports, joining the expeditionary corps under the command of Major-General C. F. Smith, at the mouth of the Tennessee River. With the division it took part in the attempt to break the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, landing at Yellow Creek for that purpose on the 14th of March; re-embarked on the 15th; passing down the river disembarked at Pittsburg Landing on the 16th; made a reconnoissance to Monterey, on the main road to Corinth, on the 17th; on the 18th moved out some two miles from the Landing and went into camp, the right of the regiment resting on the Corinth road—Shiloh Church being in the midst of the camp.

The regiment took part in the operations of the division from this point toward Corinth and Purdy. On the 1st of April it embarked on transports, and passed up the river to Eastport, Mississippi; disembarked and had a spirited skirmish with the enemy between Eastport and Iuka, Mississippi, to which point it had been ordered to ascertain the strength and position of the enemy about Iuka; re-embarked and returned to Pittsburg Landing in time to take part in the affair on the 5th with the enemy's advance. At this time Sherman's division occupied the advance toward Corinth, the Third Brigade posted in the left-center of his line.

On Sunday morning, April 6th, the Seventy-Seventh moved from its camp, in accordance with orders received from General Sherman the previous evening: "That the regiment would be posted covering the open fields to the right of the See House" (three-quarters of a mile in our front, where the reserves of the picket were stationed), in anticipation of a movement of our cavalry that morning by our left. The order was repeated to the commandant of the regiment by the General in person in the morning, when he learned that our picket lines were heavily pressed by the enemy. In the execution of this movement the advance of the Rebel infantry was encountered in the open woods beyond the creek (flowing along our front to the north). Our skirmishers gathering up and steadying the retiring picket details, held the enemy in check until the regiment was disposed, in conjunction with the Fifty-Seventh Ohio, covering the Corinth road and the approaches to the creek. The regiment was strongly favored in its position, and engaged the enemy at once in his efforts to gain a footing on our side of the ravine, and break this our center. A struggle was maintained by the Seventy-Seventh and Fifty-Seventh Ohio, and Taylor's Battery (Battery A, of Chicago). Our left flank, much exposed, compelled the Fifty-Seventh to retire, and the Seventy-Seventh to withdraw on a line with the battery on the right of the Corinth Road, the left resting on Shiloh Meeting-House, still having the Rebels at disadvantage in their efforts to pass the creek and carry our position and the battery by storm. The Seventy-Seventh remained the immediate support of "Battery A," until it was ordered into the new line, then forming under the eye of Sherman. It covered this perilous movement of the battery, then yielded its camps and the church, the last position of the first line of battle. Here fell Thomas, Bruce, Booth, Wyss, Wright, Lipple, Book, Batton, Burries, Brabham, Cline, Devol, Davis, Marlow, and Fleming, besides the many brave fellows in the ranks. The regiment, driven from the old line, took position in the new one, participated in its struggle, and was actively engaged till night ended the contest. It took part with the brigade in its operations and engagements during the day of the 7th, and marched into its old camp at four o'clock P. M.

On Tuesday, the 8th instant, the regiment moved with the advance in pursuit of the retreating army. Finding the enemy, it was ordered forward to ascertain their strength and position. So reduced was the regiment by the losses in the two days' fighting, by sickness, details, and straggling, that it numbered but a little over two hundred men, with thirteen officers.

With a strong line of skirmishers, the enemy were forced through their camps, developing their line of battle in the rear. This proved to be a brigade of Kentucky, Mississippi, and Texan cavalry, led by General Forrest. Before squares were formed, or any disposition made to guard against cavalry, Forrest had charged. It was faring ill with them in this unequal contest until the Fifty-Third Ohio came into the fight, when the enemy were driven from the field. In this short affair the regiment lost many of its best and bravest. Lieutenant Steenrod was killed here, with Porterfield, Kimberly, Hepburn, Easley, Hankey, and eighteen from the ranks. Lieutenants Mitchell, Garrett, White, Fischer, Fouraker, Scott, and the Sergeant-Major, West, were severely wounded. Captains McCormick and Chandler and Lieutenant Creswell were captured.

The loss of the regiment in the battle, and this subsequent affair, was one officer and forty-nine rank and file killed; seven officers and one hundred and seven men wounded; three officers and fifty-three men missing. Total killed, wounded, and missing, two hundred and twenty.

General Sherman commended the conduct of this regiment in its determined and protracted struggle for the position at the church, and in baffling the enemy in all his attempts to capture Taylor's battery. The brigade commander, Colonel Hildebrand, says in his official report: "With regard to the officers and men who participated in the affair at 'Fallen Timbers,' and at Shiloh, I am happy to bear testimony to the fidelity, bravery, and devotion of all. Major B. D. Fearing, who was in immediate command of the Seventy-Seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, was cool and brave, and acquitted himself with as much skill as an old officer of larger experience, and was not excelled by any other field-officer who came under my observation."*

From the 9th to the 29th of April the Seventy-Seventh was in camp preparing for the advance. It took part in all the active operations of Sherman's division during the siege of Corinth, constructing field-works, roads, and bridges; picketing, skirmishing, and fighting, until the division rested beyond Corinth, returning from pursuit of the enemy. From June 1st to July 21st it was on an expedition into Northern Mississippi, and repairing the Memphis and Charleston Railroad as the division moved westward. It reached Memphis, Tennessee, July 21st, and encamped in Fort Pickering. On the 27th of August it was ordered to Alton, Illinois, to relieve the Thirteenth United States Infantry, in charge of the military prisons at that station. It left Alton July 31, 1863, with a full complement of men. The regiment reached Helena, Arkansas, August 5, 1863—the men in splendid condition. It was assigned to the Third Brigade, Third Division, Arkansas Expedition, under command of General Fred. Steele.

It participated in all the movements of Steele's army, until December 20, 1863, when the

* Justice compels us to add that General Sherman made severe complaints, at the time, concerning the conduct of this whole brigade, and that subsequently, in his official report, he said: "My Third Brigade did break much too soon, and I am not yet advised where they were Sunday afternoon and Monday morning."

regiment re-enlisted as veterans; was relieved from duty, December 23d, and started for Columbus Ohio. At that point it was mustered into service on the 22d of January, 1864, and furloughed for thirty days, to rendezvous at Camp Dennison. It left Camp Dennison for Little Rock with full ranks, on March 3d, and moved with the army thence to Shreveport, Louisiana, March 23d. It was actively engaged in the many skirmishes and fights of the army between Arkadelphia and Camden, enduring patiently and without a murmur the hardships and privations of this campaign.

On the 22d of April, 1864, the Seventy-Seventh, with the Forty-Third Indiana and Thirty-Sixth Iowa, started from Camden to escort a large train to Pine Bluff after supplies, the whole commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Drake, of the Thirty-Sixth Iowa. General Fagan's Rebel division attacked these regiments in detail while they were encumbered with the train, on the 25th, at Marks's Mills. Colonel Drake fought desperately with the Forty-Third and Thirty-Sixth, but being overpowered, was unable to hold out till the Seventy-Seventh could make a junction from the rear of the train, some four miles away. The Seventy-Seventh, under Captain McCormick, came on to the field at the moment Colonel Drake was overwhelmed. They went into the fight at once, but no effort of their's could rescue the train or their captured comrades, and after an unequal contest of two hours, being surrounded, they were compelled to accept the enemy's terms. The portion of the regiment captured, after marching until May 15th, reached the Rebel prison-pens known as Camp Ford, near Tyler, Texas, where they were kept ten months.

Those of the Seventy-Seventh not captured at Marks's Mills, together with many left at Camden, were formed into a company and took part in the struggle at "Jenkins's Ferry," on Sabine River, during the retreat of General Steele, losing, in killed and wounded, more than one-half the number engaged.

When the Seventy-Seventh was exchanged, in February, 1865, at the request of General Steele, it was transferred with him to the Army of the Gulf, and with General Steele, under General Canby, they took part in the campaign that resulted in the capture of Mobile. It then went to the Rio Grande, marching from Brazos de Santiago to Clarksville, and then to Brownsville, Texas, and encamped near that city, and were on duty there from August 1, 1865 until March 8, 1866. It was mustered out of service March 8th, and left on the same day for Columbus, Ohio.

The regiment reached Columbus, Ohio, March 23d, and received its payment and final discharge March 25, 1866, at which time its strength was seventeen commissioned officers and three hundred and forty-eight men.

Their work was done, and they who had been in the advance of the grand army in its struggle for universal freedom and enduring Nationality, became the rear-guard as they turned their faces toward home and peace.

Inscribed on the scarred and tattered banners they bore to the capitol, were Shiloh, Corinth, Little Rock, Camden, Okalona, Prairie de Ann, Marks's Mills, Jenkins's Ferry, Fort Spanish, Blakely, and Mobile; and then they, the last but one of Ohio's many noble regiments, passed back into the repose of civil life.

Organizing in 1861, reorganizing as a veteran regiment in 1863, having enlisted and on its rolls, during the four years of its service, one thousand and nine hundred men. They returned to their homes the heroes of two distinct periods of the war.

78th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	MORTIMER D. LEGGETT	Jan. 21, 1862	Feb. 6, 1862	Appointed Brigadier-General Nov. 29, 1862.
Do.	ZAC. M. CHANDLER.....	Nov. 29, " "	May 1, 1863	Declined.
Do.	GREENBERRY F. WILES	July 23, 1862	Sept. 1, " "	Promoted Brevet General March 13, 1865.
Jt. Colonel.....	MORTIMER D. LEGGETT.....	Dec. 18, 1861	Jan. 20, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	BENJ. F. HAWKES.....	Feb. 6, 1862	Feb. 6, " "	Mustered out September 3, 1862.
Do.	ZACHARIAH M. CHANDLER.....	Oct. 1, " "	Oct. 1, " "	Resigned July 23, 1863.
Do.	GREENBERRY F. WILES.....	Nov. 29, " "	May 1, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	JOHN F. RAINEY.....	July 23, 1862	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out.
Do.	HENRY L. WALLER.....	Jan. 11, 1863	" "	Declined; mustered out December 31, 1864.
Do.	ISRAEL C. ROBINSON.....	" "	" "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	GILBERT D. MUNSON.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	DAVID F. CARNAHAN.....	Dec. 26, 1861	" 20, 1862	Resigned September 7, 1862.
Do.	ZACHARIAH M. CHANDLER.....	Sept. 7, " "	Oct. 1, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOHN F. RAINEY.....	Oct. 1, " "	Dec. 4, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	HENRY L. WALLER.....	Dec. 21, 1861	" 21, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	ISRAEL C. ROBINSON.....	Jan. 11, 1863	Jan. 11, 1865	" "
Do.	JOHN B. MILLS.....	" "	" "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Surgeon.....	JAMES S. REEVES.....	Nov. 21, 1861	" 20, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Asst Surgeon	SAMUEL C. MENDENHALL.....	" "	" "	Resigned April 20, 1862.
Do.	W. MORROW BEACH.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Surgeon 118th O. V. I.
Do.	J. D. WIRTMAN.....	Aug. 26, 1862	Aug. 27, 1862	Resigned February 14, 1863.
Do.	E. C. DEFORREST.....	" "	" "	Discharged November 4, 1863.
Do.	GEORGE F. PECKHAM.....	May 25, 1861	May 25, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	RALPH D. WEBB.....	March 31, 1863	March 31, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	OLIPHANT M. TODD.....	Jan. 11, 1862	Jan. 20, 1862	Resigned November 14, 1862.
Chaplain.....	THOMAS M. STEVENSON.....	Feb. 20, 1863	April 16, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Horace D. Munson.....	Nov. 25, 1861	Jan. 20, 1862	Resigned February 22, 1863.
Do.	Zachariah M. Chandler.....	Dec. 13, " "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Samuel W. Spencer.....	" "	" "	Resigned April 16, 1862.
Do.	E. Hilles Talley.....	" "	" "	Died April 4, —.
Do.	Thomas M. Stevenson.....	" "	" "	Resigned February 14, 1863.
Do.	Avery L. Waller.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Major; declined.
Do.	Peter Gebhart.....	Jan. 8, 1862	" "	Resigned September 3, 1863.
Do.	John F. Rainey.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Andrew Scott.....	" "	" "	Mustered out December 26, 1864.
Do.	John W. Cornyn.....	" "	" "	Appointed Com. of Subsistence April 23, 1863.
Do.	Thomas P. Wilson.....	March 27, " "	May 9, " "	Declined.
Do.	Wm. S. Harlan.....	April 4, " "	June 24, " "	Resigned February 13, 1863.
Do.	Greenberry F. Wiles.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	Gilbert D. Munson.....	Sept. 7, " "	" "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	John W. A. Gillespie.....	" "	" "	Mustered out.
Do.	John Orr.....	Oct. 1, " "	May 1, 1863	Mustered out.
Do.	W. W. McCarty.....	Feb. 14, " "	March 7, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Israel C. Robinson.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Thomas P. Wilson.....	" "	" "	Mustered out December 26, 1864.
Do.	Alexander Seales.....	Nov. 29, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Resigned December 26, 1863.
Do.	John B. Mills.....	May 2, 1864	May 2, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hugh Dunne.....	Feb. 1, " "	Feb. 8, " "	Honorably discharged September 15, 1864.
Do.	George W. Porter.....	Nov. 18, " "	Nov. 18, " "	On det. duty; A. D. C. to Maj. Gen. Leggett.
Do.	Cyrus M. Roberts.....	Dec. 25, " "	Dec. 25, " "	Detached at head-quarters 17th A. C.
Do.	Adolphus Search.....	Jan. 11, 1865	Jan. 11, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Addison A. Adair.....	" "	" "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	Andrew McDaniels.....	" "	" "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	John P. Ross.....	" "	" "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	James H. Gander.....	" "	" "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	Henry Bigalow.....	" "	" "	Declined to accept.
Do.	Wm. H. Hessin.....	" "	" "	Detached at head-quarters 17th A. C.
Do.	Jacob P. Springer.....	" "	" "	Detached as A. A. Q. M. head-quarters 17th A. C.
Do.	James T. Story.....	" "	" "	Resigned April 1, 1865.
Do.	Addison A. Adair.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Iret Rhinhardt.....	April 20, " "	April 20, " "	On detached duty at head-quarters 17th A. C.
Do.	Andrew McDaniels.....	" "	" "	Absent on duty.
1st Lieutenant	John C. Donzlass.....	Oct. 22, 1861	Jan. 20, 1862	Appointed Captain and A. A. G.
Do.	John E. Jewett.....	Nov. 1, " "	" "	Resigned June 13, 1862.
Do.	Thomas P. Wilson.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Greenberry F. Wiles.....	Dec. 13, " "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. C. Godfrey.....	" "	" "	Resigned April 20, 1862.
Do.	Benj. A. Blandy.....	" "	" "	Resigned June 1, 1862.
Do.	W. W. McCarty.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Hugh Dunne.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John W. A. Gillespie.....	Jan. 11, 1862	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John F. Grimes.....	" "	" "	Resigned April 20, 1862.
Do.	John B. Mills.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Hamilton.....	" "	" "	Resigned August 31, 1862.
Do.	Lewis M. Dayton.....	April 20, " "	May 1, " "	Appointed Captain by President.
Do.	John Orr.....	March 27, " "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. S. Harlan.....	April 20, " "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James T. Caldwell.....	" "	" "	Killed.
Do.	Israel C. Robinson.....	June 1, " "	Aug. 11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Gilbert D. Munson.....	April 16, " "	Oct. 1, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jesse Patterson.....	Sept. 3, " "	" "	Dismissed April 2, 1863.
Do.	George W. Porter.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Howard S. Abbott.....	June 13, " "	Oct. 27, 1862	Honorably discharged October 14, 1863.
Do.	A. C. Cassidy.....	Aug. 31, " "	Dec. 20, " "	Resigned March 24, 1863.
Do.	Cyrus M. Roberts.....	Feb. 14, 1863	March 7, 1863	Promoted to Captain.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	James T. Caldwell.....	Feb. 22, 1863	March 30, 1863	Died of wounds May 22, 1863.
Do.	James C. Harris.....	March 24, "	May 11, "	Mustered out December 26, 1864.
Do.	Henry Bigalow.....	April 2, "	June 10, "	Quartermaster; declined promotion.
Do.	Josiah Scott.....	May 1, "	May 9, "	Died April 18, 1864.
Do.	James Carothers.....	Feb. 13, "	" 11, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. H. Hessin.....	Aug. 1, "	Aug. 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jacob P. Springer.....	Oct. 14, "	Nov. 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Adolphus Search.....	July 10, "	Jan. 6, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James T. Story.....	Feb. 1, 1864	Feb. 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Iret Rhinehart.....	Dec. 19, 1863	March 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Howard S. Abbott.....	Oct. 27, 1862	May 2, "	Honorably discharged October 14, 1863.
Do.	Addison A. Adair.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Andrew McDaniels.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John P. Ross.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James H. Gander.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Russell Bethel.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	Arthur W. McCarty.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	Joseph Miller.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	David M. Watson.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	Meander Mott.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	Charles C. Wiles.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	Alfred Wymer.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	John R. Edgar.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	Humphrey A. McDonald.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out April 6, 1865.
Do.	Archibald W. Stewart.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	A. A. C. to Major-General Leggett.
Do.	Wm. M. Sleith.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out as Adjutant.
Do.	Russell Bethel.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	A. A. D. to General R. K. Scott.
Do.	Arthur W. McCarty.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Miller.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David M. Watson.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Meander Mott.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out January 12, 1865.
Do.	Charles C. Wiles.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alfred Wymer.....	April 22, "	April 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John R. Edgar.....	May 1, "	May 1, "	On leave of absence.
2d Lieutenant	John Orr.....	Nov. 13, 1861	Jan. 20, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James T. Caldwell.....	" 25, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas E. Ross.....	Dec. 14, "	" 20, "	Resigned March 27, 1862.
Do.	Wm. S. Harlan.....	" 14, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Cyrus M. Roberts.....	" 23, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Gilbert D. Munson.....	" 26, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James T. Story.....	" 26, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph C. Jenkins.....	Jan. 11, 1862	" 20, "	Dismissed September 11, 1862.
Do.	Samuel A. De Wolf.....	" 11, "	" 20, "	Resigned August 31, 1862.
Do.	James Carothers.....	" 11, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alexander Scale.....	March 27, "	June 24, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. Dodds.....	" 27, "	" 24, "	Resigned January 28, 1863.
Do.	Israel Robinson.....	April 20, "	" 24, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James C. Harris.....	June 1, "	Aug. 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Iret Rhinehart.....	Sept. 11, "	Oct. 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph R. Miller.....	" 7, "	" 1, "	Resigned September 21, 1864.
Do.	George W. Porter.....	April 16, "	" 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Humphrey A. McDonald.....	Jan. 1, 1863	Feb. 26, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Josiah Scott.....	" 28, "	April 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Archibald W. Stewart.....	Feb. 14, "	March 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. M. Sleith.....	" 22, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Brewnan.....	" 13, "	May 11, "	Dismissed April 8, 1864.
Do.	Wm. H. Hessin.....	March 24, "	July 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob P. Springer.....	May 1, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. M. Laughlin.....	Nov. 29, 1862	Sept. 1, "	Killed July 22, 1864.
Do.	Henry Spear.....	" 17, 1863	March 2, 1864	Died August 28, 1864, of wounds.
Do.	Addison A. Adair.....	" 17, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Albert G. Gault.....	" 18, "	" 10, "	Resigned September 27, 1864.
Do.	Andrew McDaniels.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John P. Ross.....	Nov. 18, "	Nov. 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James H. Gander.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Russell Bethel.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert H. Brown.....	Jan. 11, 1865	Jan. 11, 1865
Do.	Alexander V. P. Hager.....	" 11, "	" 11, "
Do.	James R. Earich.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Declined to accept; revoked; special order 38, 1865.
Do.	James H. Echelberry.....	" 11, "	" 11, "
Do.	Milton Ward.....	" 11, "	" 11, "
Do.	Simou P. Joy.....	Feb. 10, "	Feb. 10, "
Do.	Amos Norman.....	" 10, "	" 10, "
Do.	Alfred Wymer.....	Jan. 12, "	Jan. 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John R. Edgar.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert H. Brown.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	A. V. P. Hager.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James H. Echelberry.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Milton Ward.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	On leave of absence.
Do.	Simon P. Joy.....	Feb. 10, "	Feb. 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Amos Norman.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John R. Kennedy.....	April 22, "	April 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Cockins.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Resigned July 6, 1865.
Do.	Cyrus H. Gardner.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Martin Durant.....	May 1, "	May 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.

Those whose commissions were revoked signed a request to the Governor asking them to be so revoked because of mistake in the order of promotion.

SEVENTY-EIGHTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE SEVENTY-EIGHTH OHIO was raised under special authority from Governor Dennison, issued to M. D. Leggett, Esq., of Zanesville, Ohio. The first man of the regiment was enlisted on the 30th day of October, 1861. The organization was completed on the 11th day of January, 1862, and the regiment left by cars for Cincinnati on the 11th of February, where steamers were found on which it embarked for Fort Donelson, on the Tennessee River. This point was reached on the 16th of February, and the regiment went into position on the battle-field, but too late to take part in the action. Immediately after this battle the regiment saw its first field-duty—that of taking care of the Rebel prisoners and stores.

On the first of March the regiment marched across the country to Metal Landing, on the Tennessee River, where it went into camp awaiting transportation. About the 10th of March it moved with the National forces to Crump's Landing, and thence to Adamsville, on the road to Purdy, to guard an exposed flank of the army at Pittsburg Landing. Nothing of interest transpired here excepting a few slight skirmishes with the enemy.

Early on the morning of the 6th of April picket-firing was heard by the troops stationed at Adamsville. The whole command was immediately drawn up in line awaiting orders. Receiving orders at twelve o'clock M., the Seventy-Eighth, with its brigade, marched to the battle-field, a distance of fourteen miles, and reached Pittsburg Landing at eight o'clock in the evening, in company with the whole of General Lew. Wallace's division. The fight being over for the day the regiment went into camp for the night on the extreme right of the National army.

At daylight on the morning of the 7th the regiment went into the battle on the right, and was under fire throughout the day, with, however, but slight loss. Only one man was killed and nine wounded. Retaining its position on the right, the Seventy-Eighth shared in the movement on Corinth. In guarding the right flank of the army the regiment was frequently engaged in reconnoissances and skirmishes with the enemy.

On the evacuation of Corinth the regiment marched with Lew. Wallace's division to Bethel, where it was detached and sent with the Thirtieth Illinois, under command of Colonel Leggett, to Jackson, Tennessee. The town was found in possession of a small Rebel force, which was driven off and the place occupied. At this place the regiment had the honor to raise a National flag on the pole where the first Rebel flag was raised in Tennessee.

At Jackson the Seventy-Eighth was transferred from Lew. Wallace's to General Logan's division. From Jackson the Seventy-Eighth, with the Thirtieth Illinois, were again sent, under Colonel Leggett, to Grand Junction. It remained at this point one month, and then returned to Bolivar. While there the regiment made several important and arduous reconnoissances, in which a number of skirmishes were had with the enemy. On the 30th of August the Seventy-Eighth and Twentieth Ohio, one company of the Eleventh Illinois Cavalry, and a section of the Ninth Indiana Artillery had a brisk engagement at Spring Creek, six miles from Bolivar. While this engagement was in progress, four companies of the Second Illinois Cavalry, under Colonel Hogg, reported and took part in the fight. Colonel Hogg was killed. On the day before the fight a force of mounted infantry was improvised from the Seventy-Eighth and Twentieth Ohio, by selecting three tried men from each company. This force, under command of Lieutenants G. D. Munson, of the Seventy-Eighth, and Ayers, of the Twentieth Ohio, was sent on a reconnoissance the night previous, and discovered the enemy in force. After capturing the Rebel outposts it fell back to its main body. On the next day in the battle this "Mule Cavalry" performed excellent service, and to them was attributed largely the successful result of the fight. In this affair the loss of the regiment was slight.

When the Rebel army under Price and Van Dorn moved on Iuka, the Seventy-Eighth marched with Logan's division to that point, but did not participate in the battle. Returning to Bolivar it joined Grant's forces in the movement toward Grenada, Mississippi, and was near Grenada in advance of the whole army, when, in consequence of the destruction by the enemy of Hol Springs, it fell back with the National army on that place. Immediately thereafter it accompanied Grant's forces to Memphis, Tennessee, and thence by steamer to Lake Providence, where it was employed in cutting the bank of the Mississippi, and opening Bayou Jackson for the purpose of overflowing the country below. While lying at this point the regiment, with its brigade, went to Eagle Point and up Mud Bayou to aid in saving some gunboats surrounded by the enemy.

Millikin's Bend was the next point to which the Seventy-Eighth was sent, where it joined the National army under General Grant, then concentrating for the march on Vicksburg. On the occasion of running the blockade of Vicksburg with transports, twelve members of the Seventy-Eighth Ohio were selected as part of the crew of one of the boats. Of this detachment Sergeant James McLaughlin and Private Huffman occupied themselves during the trip in playing cards by the light of the enemy's guns!

Crossing the Mississippi River at Bruinsburg, the regiment marched with the army to the rear of Vicksburg. On this march it participated in the battle of Raymond, on the 12th of May, 1863, and lost, in killed and wounded, about eighty men. On the 16th of May it was engaged in the battle of Champion Hills, where it lost one hundred and sixteen men killed and wounded. During these battles General Leggett was commanding the brigade, having received his commission as Brigadier-General on the 29th of November, 1862.

On the 17th, 18th, and 19th of May the investment of Vicksburg was completed. On the 22d of May the Seventy-Eighth participated in the general charge of that day on the enemy's works with slight loss. About the 25th of May the regiment was joined to a force sent up the Yazoo River, under General Frank P. Blair, to look after a Rebel force reported to be moving to the relief of Vicksburg, under General Joseph E. Johnston. Johnston having changed his line of march to a point further south toward Jackson, the command returned to Vicksburg, and the Seventy-Eighth Ohio resumed its position before the city. At this point General Leggett was transferred to the command of the First Brigade of General Logan's division.

On the 22d of June the Seventy-Eighth was again sent with a force to prevent the Rebel army under Johnston, from crossing the Black River at Bovina. The regiment remained at Bovina until after the surrender of Vicksburg.

On the 4th of July the Seventy-Eighth joined General Sherman in his march on Jackson, Mississippi. It was left at Clinton, where, on the 7th of July, it was attacked by Rebel cavalry, which attack it handsomely repulsed. On the return of the National forces to Vicksburg, the regiment accompanied them and remained there until the latter part of August. It then marched with McPherson's expedition to destroy the Rebel mills near Canton. Coming back to Vicksburg it went with General Logan's division to Monroeville, Louisiana, on the Washita River, to look after a force of Rebels reported to be in that vicinity.

On the 5th of January, 1864, the Seventy-Eighth re-enlisted for the war. Immediately thereafter the regiment marched with General Sherman on the Meridian expedition, and on its return was sent home on veteran furlough.

The regiment returned on the 1st of May, and rendezvoused at Cairo, Illinois. The division was reorganized at this point, and moved by steamers up the Tennessee River to Clifton. From Clifton it marched over the Blue Mountain Ridge, and joined General Sherman's army at Acworth, Georgia. It was immediately placed in position on the left, and commenced its part of the campaign against Atlanta.

On the 17th of June the regiment took part in the attack on and capture of Bushy Mountain. About the time the order was given to move on the mountain a heavy rain-storm commenced.

General M. D. Leggett, commanding the Third Division of Logan's corps, dashed up the slope and captured the Rebel works, turning its guns on the Rebels as they fled. By reason of the driving rain the other divisions that were to co-operate in the affair did not perceive General Leggett's movement, and supposing the Rebels still held the mountain and were firing on the National cavalry, directed their batteries on Leggett's division, and shelled the mountain until a staff-officer was sent to undeceive them.

On the 27th of June the regiment participated in the battle of Kencsaw Mountain. The regiment, with the Army of the Tennessee, then swung around the mountain to the extreme right of Sherman's line, extending to the Chattahoochie, at the mouth of the Nicojack Creek, thus flanking the Rebel forces and causing them to evacuate the mountain. From the 5th to the 16th of July the regiment was engaged in an almost continuous skirmishing and artillery duel. During this time, at intervals, it was almost impossible to prevent the privates of the two armies from affiliating. On one occasion a large boat was procured and placed in the middle of the Chattahoochie River, in each end of which a hostage was seated, and a squad of either party placed on the banks to shoot the hostage if treachery was practiced. Brisk trade and card playing then commenced, and continued until discovered and stopped by some of the officers.

On the night of the 15th of July the Rebels evacuated the north side of the Chattahoochie River, and on the 16th the regiment with its brigade and division marched to Rosswell Factories, and crossed the Chattahoochie at that place. While the Seventy-Eighth was on its march to this point, an affecting incident occurred. Major James Reeves, the Surgeon of the regiment, while walking through a clump of bushes was accosted by a citizen of the country with a request for a National Surgeon to administer medical aid to his sick daughter. The doctor at first demurred, but on reflection concluded to go with the man, who took him down in a valley and into a cave. In this secluded spot were congregated about two hundred Union refugees hiding from the persecution of the Rebel authorities.

From Rosswell the regiment moved directly on Atlanta. On the 21st of July the regiment participated in the attack on and capture of Bald Knob, a position commanding the city of Atlanta. The Rebels occupied it in force behind strong works. In carrying it the division suffered severely. This position being carried, shells were at once thrown into Atlanta by the National artillery. This position was considered so important by the Rebel commander that, in his anxiety to retake it, he, on the next day, threw his whole army on the left flank of the National lines and a terrible battle was the result, costing the life of the brave McPherson. The Seventy-Eighth Ohio suffered severely. It lost two hundred and three officers and men killed and wounded. At a critical moment the Seventy-Eighth and Sixty-Eighth Ohio held a line near Bald Knob, on which the Rebels made a determined attack. A hand-to-hand fight ensued in which desperate valor was displayed by both sides. Of thirteen flag and color-bearers of the Seventy-Eighth Ohio all were either killed or wounded. On one occasion a Rebel was about to capture the flag, when Captain John Orr, of company H, seized a short sword from the ground and almost completely decapitated him. For this the Captain received a gold medal from the Board of Honor of the Army of the Tennessee.

The Seventy-Eighth participated in the subsequent movements of the Army of the Tennessee till the fall of Atlanta. It then went into camp near Atlanta, and remained there until about the middle of October, when it was sent up the Atlanta Railroad to the vicinity of Chattanooga, to guard that line of supply against Hood. When Hood left the railroad and marched toward Decatur, the Seventy-Eighth returned to Atlanta by the way of Lost Mountain, reaching that place on the 13th of November. On the 15th it started with General Sherman's forces on the march to the sea.

After the taking of Savannah, and the march through the Carolinas, up to the surrender of Johnston's Rebel army, the regiment accompanied the National forces through Richmond, Virginia, to Washington City, and there participated in the grand review.

From Washington it was sent by rail and river to Louisville, Kentucky. On the 9th day of July it started for Columbus, Ohio, and on the 11th was paid off and mustered out of service.

79th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	HENRY G. KENNETT.....	Nov. 1, 1862	Nov. 1, 1862	Resigned August 1, 1864.
Do.	AZARIAH W. DOANE.....	June 8, 1865	June 8, 1865	Mustered out as Lieutenant-Colonel.
Lt. Colonel...	AZARIAH W. DOANE.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Nov. 12, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	SAMUEL A. WEST.....	June 8, 1865	June 8, 1865	Mustered out as Major.
Major	HENRY S. CLEMENT.....	Aug. 30, 1862	Nov. 12, 1862	Resigned April 9, 1864.
Do.	W. M. WILSON.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Honorably discharged November 8, 1864.
Do.	SAMUEL A. WEST.....	Nov. 29, " "	Nov. 29, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Surgeon.....	W. P. ELSTON.....	Aug. 19, 1862	" "	Resigned February 5, 1863.
Do.	HENRY A. LANGDON.....	Feb. 5, 1863	Feb. 23, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	HENRY A. LANGDON.....	Aug. 13, 1862	Nov. 12, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	W. M. H. SWANDER.....	" "	" "	Resigned December 2, 1863.
Do.	JOHN E. JONES.....	May 7, 1863	May 7, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	JAMES R. STILLWELL.....	Jan. 19, " "	Feb. 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	W. M. Wilson.....	July 19, 1862	Nov. 12, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John Cretors.....	" "	" "	Resigned December 20, 1862.
Do.	Isaac B. Allen.....	" "	" "	Resigned April 14, 1863.
Do.	George B. Hicks.....	" "	" "	Resigned December 23, 1863.
Do.	James Thompson.....	" "	" "	Resigned September 14, 1864.
Do.	John W. Kilbreth.....	" "	" "	Resigned April 25, 1863.
Do.	Ethan A. Spencer.....	" "	" "	Resigned March 15, 1863.
Do.	Joshua Smith.....	Aug. 3, " "	" "	Resigned June 7, 1864.
Do.	James R. Stillwell.....	" "	" "	Resigned January 19, 1863.
Do.	Jacob Flegle.....	Sept. 23, " "	" "	Resigned May 10, 1863.
Do.	Samuel A. West.....	Dec. 20, " "	Dec. 25, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Ira N. Snell.....	Jan. 29, 1863	Jan. 29, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Howard Dunlevy.....	March 13, " "	March 21, " "	Honorably discharged August 7, 1864.
Do.	Abraham H. Bodkin.....	April 14, " "	May 6, " "	Honorably discharged April 17, 1863.
Do.	Benton Halstead.....	" "	April 23, " "	Mustered out May 29, 1865.
Do.	Robert C. Williamson.....	May 10, " "	June 23, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Rodney Foss.....	9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Declined promotion.
Do.	Edward L. Patterson.....	Dec. 29, 1863	Jan. 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Bryant Robinson.....	July 23, 1861	July 23, " "	Declined promotion to Captain.
Do.	David Giffin.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant August 24, 1864.
Do.	John Cretors.....	Sept. 26, " "	Sept. 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas E. Smith.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. N. Wilkerson.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph A. Hill.....	Jan. 20, 1865	Jan. 20, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Van Tress.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Ira N. Snell.....	July 19, 1862	Nov. 2, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel A. West.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Rodney Foss.....	" "	" "	Prom.; decl'd prom.; hon. disch'd Oct. 25, '64
Do.	Howard Dunlevy.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Abraham H. Bodkin.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Bryant Robinson.....	" "	" "	Resigned January 7, 1865.
Do.	Benton Halstead.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David Giffin.....	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Israel D. Compton.....	Aug. 5, " "	" "	Died December 31, 1862.
Do.	Collin J. Ford.....	" "	" "	Mustered out Major colored regiment.
Do.	Edward L. Patterson.....	July 19, " "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Isaiah Dougham.....	Sept. 26, " "	" "	Resigned April 20, 1863.
Do.	John Cretors.....	Dec. 20, " "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas E. Smith.....	" "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. N. Wilkerson.....	Jan. 19, 1863	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John W. Morris.....	March 13, " "	April 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry W. Reading.....	April 25, " "	" "	Honorably discharged July 9, 1864.
Do.	Thornton Thompson.....	" "	May 6, " "	Honorably discharged December 15, 1864.
Do.	Henry C. Corbin.....	" "	" "	Resigned November 15, 1863.
Do.	Thomas Van Tress.....	May 9, 1864	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Nathan Cleaver.....	" "	" "	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant October 7, 1864.
Do.	Joseph A. Hill.....	Dec. 20, 1863	Jan. 20, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph W. Slack.....	July 25, 1-61	July 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Sylvester Snyder.....	" "	" "	Discharged November 26, 1-64.
Do.	Wm. H. Wells.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Declined promotion to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George F. Reed.....	Sept. 26, " "	Sept. 26, " "	Mustered out as 2d Lieutenant May 15, 1865.
Do.	Stephen Janny.....	" "	" "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	James O. Redman.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. G. Hallam.....	Jan. 20, 1865	Jan. 20, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Cyrus E. Custis.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Richard H. Parcell.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Collett.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John D. Clements.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert A. Wherry.....	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. P. Jnday.....	Feb. 10, " "	Feb. 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. N. Wilkerson.....	July 19, 1862	Nov. 12, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thornton Thompson.....	" "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry S. Doane.....	" "	" "	Resigned February 22, 1863.
Do.	John Reese.....	" "	" "	Resigned February 18, 1863.
Do.	Henry S. Corbin.....	" "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Harrison.....	" "	" "	Resigned February 26, 1863.
Do.	Thomas E. Smith.....	Aug. 5, " "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph W. Slack.....	" "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph A. Hill.....	July 19, " "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert C. Williamson.....	Sept. 26, " "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nathan D. Cleaver.....	Dec. 31, " "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Van Tress.....	Jan. 19, 1863	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	George Travilla	Feb. 18, 1863	April 3, 1863	Deceased.
Do.	Sylvester Snyder	" 22, "	" 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Wells	" 26, "	" 3, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Henry Barlow	" 1, "	May 6, "	Discharged November 3, 1863.
Do.	George F. Reed	April 23, "	" 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stephen Janney	" 23, "	" 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James O. Redman	May 10, "	June 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. G. Hallam	April 5, 1864	April 9, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Cyrus E. Custis	Aug. 19, "	Aug. 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

SEVENTY-NINTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized under the call of July, 1862, in the military district composed of the counties of Warren, Clinton, and Hamilton. One company was raised in Hamilton County, four in Warren, and four in Clinton. Clermont County organized one company of sharpshooters, which was assigned to the regiment, but did not join it until June, 1863. Though recruiting commenced on the 22d of July, before the 1st of September, 1862, nine companies had reported in Camp Dennison, and had been mustered into the service.

On the 3d day of September, 1862, the regiment received marching orders. It crossed the Ohio River at Cincinnati into Kentucky, that city being menaced by the Rebel army, concentrated at Lexington. After remaining near the Ohio River a few days, awaiting re-enforcements, an advance was made into the State as far as Crittenden, driving straggling parties of Rebels beyond that point. Returning from this fatiguing march, in which the troops suffered severely from heat, dust, and scarcity of water, the Seventy-Ninth was ordered to Louisville. On its arrival it reported to General Nelson, and was assigned to General W. T. Ward's brigade. Early in the month of October General Buell made an advance. The Seventy-Ninth accompanied General Dumont's division on the pike to Frankfort, which place was occupied with but little fighting, being defended by a small force of the enemy. The regiment remained at Frankfort until the 1st day of November, engaged in various expeditions against General Morgan's forces, and other roaming bands of guerrillas, in which much hard labor was performed. From Frankfort the regiment marched to Bowling Green, reporting to General Roscerans, who was in command of General Buell's army. Great suffering attended the march. The part of Kentucky which it traversed was dependent on pools for water, and these the Rebels had attempted to destroy by killing animals and throwing their carcasses into them. The soldiers had to drink from these pools or perish. After a few days' rest the regiment marched to Scottsville, thence to Gallatin, Tennessee, without incident of note, save that the measles broke out in the regiment, causing the loss of many lives.

Arriving at Gallatin the regiment was much reduced by sickness and hardships, having marched, in bad weather, a distance of five hundred and fifty miles, not including many expeditions of limited distances. From 1st December, 1863, to the 24th of February, 1864, the Seventy-Ninth was stationed at Gallatin, Buck's Lodge, Lavergne, Edgefield, and Nashville, engaged in guarding railroads, supplies, and breaking up bands of guerrillas on the Cumberland and Stone Rivers. At Nashville company F joined the regiment, having marched from Knoxville, Tennessee, where it was acting as head-quarter guard for General Burnside. At Lavergne company K (sharpshooters) joined the command, armed with Spencer rifles, and was a great acquisition to the regiment. On the 24th day of February the Seventy-Ninth, having been transferred from the Army of the Cumberland to the Eleventh Army Corps, then stationed in Lookout Valley, marched over the Cumberland Mountains, in bad weather, over miserable roads, and reached the Valley on the 10th day of March, having lost but one man. Active measures were at once inaugurated for the coming campaign, and all detailed men were ordered to rejoin the regiment. On the 2d day of May, 1864, the regiment numbered six hundred effective men; but its strength was reduced by detailing company I to division head-quarters, where it remained on duty until the close of the war. In the reorganization of the army previous to the Atlanta campaign, the Seventy-Ninth was assigned to the First Brigade, Third Division, Twentieth Army Corps, under General Hooker, an assignment that continued uninterrupted during the war.

On the 2d day of May the armies in Lookout Valley moved from their encampments on the enemy, concentrated in force at Dalton, Georgia. The Seventy-Ninth was not engaged in the demonstrations at Buzzard's Roost and Dug Gap, being in the reserve line, but after passing through Snake Creek Gap, on the 13th and 14th, near Resaca, it skirmished with the enemy with considerable loss in killed and wounded. On the 18th day of May the Seventy-Ninth was one of five regiments that were ordered to assault a strong position held by the enemy on the road leading from Dalton to Resaca. The position was defended by artillery and infantry. The assaulting party was composed of about twenty-five hundred men, under General W. T. Ward. It approached within four hundred yards of the enemy's position under cover of a dense forest of pine. At a given signal the troops rushed forward, amid a storm of grape, canister, and musket-balls, and, after hard fighting, carried the works, with a loss to the enemy of a number of prisoners, four pieces of artillery, and fifteen hundred stand of small arms. This was the introduction of the regiment to a hand-to-hand fight with the foe; and the dead and wounded that lay thick before the face of the enemy's works, on the parapet and within, indicated as landmarks where the regiment had struggled for victory. The loss in this engagement fell most severely on the enlisted men. There were no officers killed, but five were wounded. The enemy retreated during the night, and was found the following day at "Gravelly Plateaux," from which it was driven back early on Cassville. Here it made a more stubborn resistance, and again the Seventy-Ninth was engaged, but with small loss. At Dallas, on the 25th of May, the enemy was brought to bay, and the whole Twentieth Corps was hurled again and again against the lines, until sixteen hundred men were lost by the corps. On the 27th day of May an advance was ordered, and the Seventy-Ninth was one of the first to march. The movement was a success but cost the regiment many lives. On the 28th the enemy opened on the position of the regiment with artillery. On the same night an attack was made along the whole line, but was repulsed.

The Twentieth Army Corps was moved to the enemy's flank, and an attack was made on the 3d day of June. This engagement was a severe test of firmness, as the regiment was exposed to the shell of the enemy in an open field, without an opportunity of returning the fire. Another retreat by the enemy, and fighting was resumed at Pine Mountain. Skirmishing continued for some days, ascertaining the enemy's true position, and on the 15th an advance by the Twentieth Corps was ordered. On the evening of that day the Seventy-Ninth Ohio and the Seventieth Indiana were detached from the other troops, a swamp cutting off these two regiments from the main line. These regiments came upon the enemy, a desperate conflict ensued, and the enemy was driven at the point of the bayonet within seventy yards of its main works. These two regiments attempted to carry the works of the enemy, but failed; yet they held, at heavy cost, the advantage they had gained until night, when re-enforcements came to the rescue. All night was occupied in strengthening the position of the National army. The 16th day of June was occupied in an artillery duel and skirmishing. In the night the enemy retreated, and the following day was employed in skirmishing near Kenesaw Mountain.

On the 22d an assault was ordered, and in the charging party was the Seventy-Ninth, which lost several men. On the morning of the 3d of July the enemy evacuated, and the regiment was in the pursuing column, on the Marietta Railroad, being engaged with the enemy's rear-guard for about four miles. From this time until the 20th of July skirmishing and fighting was of daily occurrence.

At Peachtree Creek the Seventy-Ninth was in the front line, being the second regiment engaged. From three o'clock until seven o'clock the battle raged terribly, and the regiment lost one-half its men. The enemy made assault after assault, but was each time repulsed. The regiment had seven color-bearers killed and wounded. At the commencement of the battle it had but four or five officers, and several companies were commanded by non-commissioned officers. After this battle, and until after the capture of Atlanta, where the regiment received recruits, it was only a regiment in name not in numbers. The labor in the trenches and on the skirmish-line, the attempted surprise by day and by night, the charge and the counter-charge, go to make up the history of the siege of Atlanta. The regiment commenced the campaign with six hundred men, and at its close had one hundred and eighty-two. Fifteen recruits were received during the campaign, of whom seven were lost, thus making the loss in about one hundred days four hundred and twenty-five men. Of this number many were slightly wounded, and rejoined the regiment; so that with the recruits received on the 15th day of November, when General Sherman commenced his march to the sea, it numbered about four hundred men. The Seventy-Ninth was never engaged during the march to the sea except as details for foraging, in which it lost two men. It took part in the siege of Savannah, and it was the sharpshooters of this regiment that silenced the guns of the fort commanding the entrance to Savannah, on the Springfield Road. Here no loss was sustained.

In the march through South Carolina the Seventy-Ninth took part in the affairs of Langtonville and Columbia. The loss was small, not exceeding thirty men killed, wounded, and prisoners. In North Carolina the regiment, at the battle of Averysburg, took an active part, assaulting and carrying that part of the enemy's lines where its artillery was posted. It captured three pieces of artillery, one hundred stand of small arms, and thirty-one prisoners. In this charge the regiment received many encomiums. The loss in killed and wounded was severe, being one-fourth of its men engaged. At Bentonville, on the 19th day of March, 1865, the regiment performed its part in contributing to the final overthrow of General Johnston's forces. This was the last action in which it was engaged. After sixteen days it reported at Goldsboro', and thence marched to Raleigh. About the first day of May it turned homeward by way of Richmond, and was mustered out at Washington, June 9, 1865.

The loss of the regiment, from all causes, was about one thousand men—more than its original number. On the 17th day of June, at Camp Dennison, it was paid off and discharged.

80th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	EPHRAIM R. ECKLEY	Dec. 29, 1861	Feb. 19, 1862	Resigned February 14, 1863.
Do.	M. H. BARTLESON	Feb. 14, 1863	March 3, 1863	Died August 11, 1863.
Do.	JAMES E. PHILPOT	Aug. 15, "	Aug. 31, "	Revoked.
Do.	PRES. METHAM	Jan. 4, 1864	Jan. 1, 1864	Mustered out as Lt. Colonel April 8, 1863.
Do.	THOMAS C. MORRIS	June 16, 1863	June 16, 1863	Mustered out with regiment as Lt. Col.
Lt. Colonel	MATTHEW H. BARTLESON	Dec. 23, 1861	Feb. 19, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	WM. MARSHALL	Feb. 14, 1863	March 26, 1863	Resigned July 23, 1863.
Do.	PRES. METHAM	July 23, "	Aug. 21, "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	DAVID SKEELS	Jan. 4, 1864	Jan. 4, 1864	Mustered out December 20, 1864.
Do.	THOMAS C. MORRIS	May 11, 1863	May 11, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	HENRY C. ROBINSON	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as Major.
Major	RICHARD LANNING	Dec. 23, 1861	Feb. 19, 1862	Killed at Corinth October 4, 1862.
Do.	CHAS. H. MATTHEWS	Oct. 4, 1862	Dec. 31, "	Resigned as Captain January 15, 1863.
Do.	PRES. METHAM	Jan. 15, 1863	Feb. 20, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	DAVID SKEELS	" 23, "	Aug. 21, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	THOMAS C. MORRIS	" 28, 1863	Jan. 28, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	HENRY C. ROBINSON	May 11, "	May 11, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JAMES M. SCOTT	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	EZRA K. P. BELL	Jan. 8, 1862	Feb. 19, 1862	Mustered out.
Do.	C. W. BUYINGER	" 28, 1863	Jan. 28, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	SAMUEL H. LEE	Jan. 8, 1862	Feb. 9, 1862	Resigned September 3, 1862.
Do.	G. BAMBACK	Aug. 19, "	Sept. 8, "	Resigned July 26, 1862.
Do.	E. G. CLARK	Oct. 9, "	Oct. 9, "	Declined.
Do.	C. W. BUYINGER	May 12, "	May 12, "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	THOMAS B. KAGLE	March 10, 1863	March 10, 1863
Do.	H. G. TOPP	June 26, "	June 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	GEORGE W. PEPPER	Dec. 3, 1862	Dec. 3, 1862	Absent per Special Order.
Captain	Isaac Uman	Nov. 5, 1861	Feb. 19, 1862	Resigned May 24, 1862.
Do.	Chas. H. Matthews	" 26, "	" 19, "	Promoted; resigned January 15, 1863.
Do.	John J. Robinson	" 26, "	" 19, "	Resigned April 27, 1863.
Do.	David Skeels	" 21, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Emmerson Goodrich	" 21, "	" 19, "	Resigned March 8, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Marshall	" 25, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	Pres. Metham	" 31, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joseph H. Anderson	Jan. 6, 1862	" 19, "	Mustered out January 5, 1865.
Do.	George W. Pepper	" 7, "	" 19, "	Resigned June 15, 1862.
Do.	John H. Gardner	" 11, "	" 19, "	Resigned.
Do.	Thomas C. Morris	March 12, "	March 12, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Michael C. West	June 13, "	June 24, "
Do.	Isaac Uman	" 30, "	July 3, "	Declined.
Do.	Sylvester Wallace	May 24, "	Sept. 12, "	Resigned July 22, 1863.
Do.	James Carnes	Oct. 31, "	Dec. 31, "	Honorably discharged September 21, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Wagstaff	Jan. 15, 1863	Feb. 19, 1863	Mustered out January 12, 1865.
Do.	John Kinney	Feb. 14, "	March 27, "	Died November 25, 1863.
Do.	Daniel Korn	March 28, "	April 9, "	Resigned July 31, 1864.
Do.	James E. Philpot	April 27, "	July 10, "	Revoked.
Do.	Wm. J. Eckley	" 27, "	Aug. 21, "	Honorably discharged September 21, 1864.
Do.	Daniel G. Hildt	July 12, "	" 21, "	Mustered out December 22, 1864.
Do.	Frank Farmer	" 23, "	" 25, "	Mustered out December 20, 1864.
Do.	George F. Robinson	" 22, "	Jan. 16, 1864	Mustered out March 12, 1864.
Do.	John W. Summons	April 29, 1864	April 23, "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant July 30, 1864.
Do.	Henry C. Robinson	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Oliver C. Bowleson	" 8, "	" 8, "	Detached at own request.
Do.	Robert G. Hill	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Resigned January 3, 1865.
Do.	Thomas W. Collier	" 12, "	" 12, "	Detached at own request.
Do.	James E. Graham	Feb. 10, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Detached at own request.
Do.	James M. Scott	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Peter Haek	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Sylvester Baldwin	" 10, "	" 10, "	Resigned January 31, 1863, as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton B. Colter	" 10, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James M. Cochran	" 11, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Christian Davis	May 11, "	May 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Freeman Davis	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Cyrus W. Borton	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Othello M. Everett	Aug. 10, "	Aug. 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
1st Lieutenant	Clark H. Robinson	Oct. 23, 1861	Feb. 19, 1862	Resigned June 29, 1863.
Do.	Sylvester Wallace	Nov. 5, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Chas. F. Davis	" 26, "	" 19, "	Resigned September 2, 1862.
Do.	George W. Baker	Dec. 9, "	" 19, "	Resigned March 21, 1862.
Do.	Michael C. West	" 21, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Orme	" 23, "	" 19, "	Mustered out May 31, 1862.
Do.	Peter Haek	" 27, "	" 19, "	Resigned June 26, 1862.
Do.	James Carnes	" 31, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Wagstaff	Jan. 6, 1862	" 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Kinney	" 7, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Daniel Korn	" 11, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Chas. E. Mitchell	Feb. 24, "	" 21, "	Declined.
Do.	James E. Philpot	March 24, "	April 11, "	Resigned July 12, 1863.
Do.	John McLoughlin	June 13, "	June 13, "	Resigned February 25, 1862.
Do.	Wm. J. Eckley	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John J. Robinson, Jr.	" 26, "	July 31, "	Killed October 4, 1862.
Do.	Daniel G. Hildt	May 24, "	Sept. 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John W. Summons	Sept. 2, "	Nov. 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry C. Robinson	Oct. 4, "	Dec. 31, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Frank Farmer	" 4, "	" 31, "	Promoted to Captain.

EIGHTIETH OHIO INFANTRY.

459

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Oliver C. Bowleson	Oct. 4, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George F. Robinson	Jan. 15, 1863	Feb. 19, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert G. Hill	Feb. 14, "	April 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Beatty	March 8, "	" 9, "	Honorably discharged January 7, 1865.
Do.	Henry W. Kirby	April 27, "	July 10, "	Mustered out January 13, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Hay	" 27, "	" 10, "	Resigned July 30, 1864.
Do.	Frauk. M. Ross	" 27, "	" 28, "	Killed November 25, 1863.
Do.	Frederick Buell	" 27, "	Aug. 21, "	Mustered out December 21, 1864.
Do.	Thomas W. Collier	July 12, "	" 21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Nicholas R. Tidball	" 23, "	" 25, "	Revoked; resigned as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	John Bidwell	April 29, 1864	April 29, 1864	Honorably discharged June 1, 1862.
Do.	James E. Graham	" 29, "	" 29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James M. Scott	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Wilson	" 9, "	" 9, "	Honorably discharged September 21, 1864.
Do.	Peter Hack	" 7, "	" 7, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Maw	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Sylvester Baldwin	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Milton B. Culter	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James M. Cochran	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Christian Deis	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Freeman Davis	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Sylvester S. West	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out.
Do.	Othello M. Everett	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alpheus B. Davis	" 10, "	" 10, "	Insane; sick in hospital at Newbern, N. C.
Do.	Frank R. Price	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Cyrus W. Borton	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wilson M. Courtwright	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out.
Do.	John Isenogle	April 20, "	April 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ebenezer H. McCall	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Zaven Lanning	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George B. Wilson	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel Clark	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James McBain	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. H. Cateral	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Anderson	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Otis W. Hoiles	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Solomon Murphey	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James McBair	Sept. 4, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Serg't Major.
2d Lieutenant	James E. Philpot	Nov. 5, 1861	Feb. 19, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John J. Robinson, jr.	Dec. 9, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John McLaughlin	" 21, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel G. Hildt	" 23, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John D. Ross	" 27, "	" 19, "	Resigned August 31, 1862.
Do.	Frank Farmer	" 31, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. F. Espy	Jan. 6, 1862	" 19, "	Mustered out May 31, 1862.
Do.	Jacob W. Doyle	" 7, "	" 19, "	Resigned August 22, 1862.
Do.	Oliver C. Bowleson	" 11, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry C. Robinson	" 11, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George F. Robinson	March 21, "	June 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert G. Hill	June 13, "	Jan. 24, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Beatty	" 26, "	July 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas L. Patton	Sept. 10, "	Sept. 12, "	Resigned February 22, 1862.
Do.	Henry W. Kirby	Aug. 22, "	Oct. 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Bidwell	" 19, "	Nov. 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Hay	" 31, "	Dec. 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas W. Collier	Oct. 4, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. Scott	" 4, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James E. Graham	" 4, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frederick Buell	Jan. 15, 1863	March 11, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nicholas R. Tidball	Feb. 22, "	" 27, "	Promoted; resigned July 27, 1863.
Do.	John Wilson	" 14, "	April 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Maw	March 8, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Sylvester Baldwin	April 27, "	July 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton B. Culter	" 27, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. Cochran	July 27, "	Aug. 21, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank H. Price	April 27, "	" 21, "	On detached service at own request.
Do.	Christian Deis	July 23, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Freeman Davis	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel Suiter	Aug. 10, 1865	Sept. 4, 1865
Do.	James B. Wilson	" 10, "	" 4, "
Do.	Adam Walters	" 10, "	" 4, "
Do.	David A. Mulvaue	" 10, "	" 4, "
Do.	George W. Cox	" 10, "	" 4, "
Do.	John C. Miller	" 10, "	" 4, "
Do.	Joseph Pershing	" 10, "	" 4, "
Do.	John M. Potts	" 10, "	" 4, "
Do.	Joseph Finley	" 10, "	" 4, "
Do.	Isaac R. Aiter	" 10, "	" 4, "

Mustered out with regiment as Sergeants; complimentary commissions given after they were mustered out.

EIGHTIETH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE EIGHTIETH OHIO was recruited principally in the counties of Tuscarawas, Coshocton, and Carroll, and was organized at Camp Meigs, near Canal Dover, in Tuscarawas County. It left Camp Meigs with nine hundred and nineteen men, in February, 1862, and was taken by rail to Columbus, and thence by rail and river to Paducah, Kentucky. The regiment was not armed until it reached Paducah.

On April 20, 1862, it left Paducah, and was taken up the Tennessee River on transports to Hamburg Landing. Here it was assigned to General Pope's command, and it operated with that army throughout the siege of Corinth. On the 9th of May the regiment was ordered to the support of a Missouri Battery in front of Farmington, and in performing that duty was for the first time under fire. Thereafter during the siege it was frequently under fire in skirmishes and reconnoissances.

On the evacuation of Corinth it pursued the enemy as far as Booneville, Mississippi, and then returned to Corinth. On June 22d the regiment made a forced march to Ripley, Mississippi, a distance of forty-six miles, during which it suffered intensely from the dust and heat, and a number of the men died from the effects of sun-stroke.

On September 19th the regiment took part in the battle of Iuka, and lost forty-five men killed and wounded. Lieutenant-Colonel M. H. Bartleson commanded the regiment in this battle, and was severely wounded in the thigh. His horse was killed under him at the same time. Adjutant James E. Philpot was also wounded.

The Eightieth was now ordered to Jacinto for the purpose of watching the movements of the Rebels under General Price. It remained there some days scouting and drilling; then moved to Corinth. It took a prominent part in the battle that ensued and lost heavily. Major Richard Lanning, in command of the regiment, was killed, as also was First Lieutenant John J. Robinson of company C. Lieutenants Oliver C. Bowleson and George F. Robinson were both severely wounded. The total loss of the regiment in this battle was eighty officers and men killed and wounded. Lieutenant-Colonel Bartleson, although yet suffering severely from his wound, hearing of Major Lanning's death, mounted his horse and commanded the regiment through the remainder of the battle. It joined in the pursuit of the Rebels, and made some very severe marches. Returning to Corinth it remained there but a few days, and then marched with Grant's army through Central Mississippi. On this march the Eightieth, in company with General Sullivan's brigade, took part in a reconnoissance from Davis's Mills to Cold Water. General Sullivan, in pressing forward, went into Holly Springs, Mississippi, surprised the Rebels, and took a number of prisoners. Holly Springs was beyond the point to which General Sullivan was ordered, and he was immediately ordered back to Davis's Mills. In executing that order a forced march of twenty-two miles was made. For several miles on this march the Rebels in heavy force were in plain view, but for some cause they failed to attack.

The march toward Vicksburg was resumed, but owing to the destruction by the Rebels of the National stores at Holly Springs, the whole army abandoned the movement, and returned to Holly Springs. The Eightieth, with General Quinby's division, was ordered as guard of a provision train to Memphis, Tennessee, there to load with rations and return to the remainder of the army, then making its way toward Memphis, repairing the railroad as it marched.

The regiment remained in camp at Forrest Hill, eighteen miles east of Memphis, until about the middle of February. Marching into Memphis, it went into camp in the suburbs of the city, preparatory to the Vicksburg expedition. While at Memphis Colonel Eckly resigned his commission and returned to Ohio.

On March 1, 1863, the regiment embarked on the steamer Ed. Walsh and was taken to Woodruff's Landing. From this point it was ordered back to Helena, and in a few days thereafter it went with Quinby's division on the Yazoo Pass expedition. This was one of the wildest the regiment participated in during its whole service.

Returning to Helena it almost immediately moved to Milliken's Bend. It there disembarked and marched around through Richmond, Louisiana, and crossed the Mississippi River at Bruinsburg, with Grant's forces, on the 1st of May, 1863. The battle of Port Gibson was fought on that day, but the regiment did not get up in time to participate. It marched, however, in line of battle, and skirmished with the enemy almost the whole way to Little Black River.

On May 12th the regiment participated in the battle of Raymond, but did not lose any men. Two days later, at Jackson, the Eighteenth with its brigade had a desperate fight, and in a charge made by the brigade lost about one-third of its number killed and wounded. Captain Wallace and Lieutenant Tidball were wounded. Just after the charge was ended, General McPherson, in command of the Seventeenth Corps, rode up to the regiment, and lifting his hat, exclaimed, "God Almighty bless the Eightieth Ohio." Its loss was ninety killed and wounded.

At Champion Hills, May 16th, the Eightieth occupied the rear as train-guard, and did not actively participate in the battle. The next morning it was detailed as guard to one thousand five hundred Rebel prisoners, and ordered to take them to Memphis. This duty performed it returned to Vicksburg and took part in the entire siege and capture of that Rebel stronghold.

About a month after the capture of Vicksburg, the regiment went to Helena to re-enforce General Steele, who was moving on Little Rock. But before it reached General Steele information was received of the repulse at Chickamauga, and it was immediately ordered to Memphis, there to join General Sherman's forces in their march to Chattanooga, a distance of nearly four hundred miles. It reached the bank of the Tennessee River, opposite the mouth of Chickamauga Creek, and the regiment with other troops crossed in pontoon boats soon after midnight of the 22d of November. By daylight strong earthworks were thrown up to cover the men until the pontoon bridge was laid over the river.

On the evening of the 23d the regiment with its division marched out and took the east end of Mission Ridge. That night the regiment was on the skirmish-line for seven hours without relief. Next day the regiment, in entering the battle, was compelled to pass around a point of rocks covered by three Rebel batteries, and was exposed to a most terrific artillery fire. Singular to relate, not a man was hit. It entered the fight just east of the tunnel, was hotly engaged until near nightfall, and lost several commissioned officers and nearly one hundred men. Captain John Kinney was shot through the heart and killed. Lieutenant F. M. Ross was also killed. Lieutenant F. Robinson was wounded and captured. Lieutenant George Maw was captured.

After the battle the regiment pursued the Rebels to Graysville, Georgia, and then returned to its old camp near Chattanooga. From thence it went to Bridgeport. While here the regiment and division were permanently transferred from the Seventeenth to the Fiftieth Corps.

January 6, 1864, found the regiment at Huntsville, Alabama. Shortly after this it re-enlisted for another term. After wintering near Huntsville, the regiment started, on the 1st of April, to enjoy its veteran furlough of thirty days at home, in Ohio.

At the expiration of its furlough the Eightieth returned to Larkinsville, Alabama, where it performed guard-duty on the line of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad.

In June, 1864, the regiment went from Huntsville to Charleston, Georgia, a long and tedious March. From Kingston it went to Alatoona, and remained two weeks, and was then ordered back to Resaca to relieve the Tenth Missouri. While at Resaca the Rebel General Hood made his dash to the rear of General Sherman's army. On the 12th of October twenty-eight thousand Rebels appeared before Resaca, invested the place, and demanded its surrender. Colonel Weaver of the Seventeenth Iowa, in command of Resaca, replied that "he was there to defend the post, and if the Rebel Commander wanted it he might come and take it." They immediately opened on the garrison with artillery and musketry from the entire line. The National force numbered barely one thousand men, but by a ruse, in displaying numerous flags, and placing the entire force on the picket-line, the Rebels were made to believe that it consisted of at least ten thousand men, and that it would cost too much loss of life to risk an assault. After annoying the little garrison for two days the enemy withdrew, and swept up the railroad toward Chattanooga destroying the road as they marched.

From Resaca the Eightieth marched back to Atlanta, and joined General Sherman's "march to the sea." It went through to Savannah without meeting or performing anything of special interest. After the capture of Savannah the regiment was quartered near the city, and remained in camp until the 19th of January, 1865. It was then, with its division, ordered to Pocotaligo and from that point made its way through to Goldsboro', participating on the way in a brisk skirmish with the enemy at Salkahatchie River.

On March 19th, at Cox's Bridge, over the Neuse River, the regiment performed an important flank movement, under Colonel Morris, for the purpose of preventing the Rebels from burning the bridge. The movement was successful, the Rebels being compelled to withdraw and leave the way open to Goldsboro'.

The Eightieth Ohio then marched to Bentonville, and reached that place in time to participate in the closing scenes of that battle. It then marched to Goldsboro', where, after being refitted, it went to Raleigh, North Carolina. On this march the Eightieth Ohio held the advance of the whole army the day it crossed the Neuse River. It was ordered to make a forced march to an important bridge over that river, and, if possible, prevent the Rebels from destroying it. In four hours' time it made seventeen miles, and accomplished its order to the letter. As it came in sight of the bridge several Rebel wagons were in the act of crossing it. When the regiment reached it one end was on fire, but it was easily extinguished.

Raleigh was reached on the day it was first occupied by Federal troops. After the surrender of Johnston's Rebel army to General Sherman, the Eightieth Ohio marched, with the rest of the National forces, through Richmond to Washington City, and there participated in the grand review. A few days thereafter it was taken by rail and river to Louisville, Kentucky, and from thence to Little Rock, Arkansas, where, for some months, it performed guard and garrison-duty.

The last-named duty closed its military career. It was mustered out of the service at Little Rock, August 15, 1865, arrived at Columbus, Ohio, in a few days thereafter, and was finally discharged August 25, 1865.

81st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.*
Colonel	THOMAS MORTON	Aug. 19, 1861	April 23, 1862	Resigned July 30, 1864.
Do.	ROBERT N. ADAMS	" 8, 1861	Aug. 8, 1864	Appointed Brevet Brigadier-General.
Lt. Colonel	JOHN A. TURLEY	" 19, 1861	April 23, 1862	Resigned December 1, 1861.
Do.	ROBERT N. ADAMS	Dec. 1, "	May 7, "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	JAMES W. TITUS	Aug. 8, 1864	Aug. 8, 1864	Resigned September 8, 1864.
Do.	WM. H. HILL	Oct. 10, "	Oct. 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	CHAS. N. LAMISON	Aug. 19, 1861	April 23, 1862	Resigned April 6, 1862.
Do.	ROBERT N. ADAMS	Dec. 1, "	May 7, "	Never commissioned.
Do.	FRANKLIN EVANS	April 16, 1862	April 7, "	Resigned June 27, 1864.
Do.	JAMES W. TITUS	Aug. 8, 1864	Aug. 8, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. H. CHAMBERLAIN	" 9, "	" 9, "	Resigned.
Do.	WM. C. HENRY	Oct. 10, "	Oct. 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	WM. H. LAMME	Nov. 27, 1861	April 23, 1862	Resigned March 31, 1862.
Do.	R. G. MCLEAN	April 1, 1862	" 14, "	Resigned November 6, 1862.
Do.	WM. C. JACOBS	Dec. 23, "	Feb. 10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Asst Surgeon	R. G. MCLEAN	Nov. 20, 1861	April 23, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	J. T. REED	April 1, 1862	" 14, "	Resigned.
Do.	JOHN W. GREEN	" 24, "	" 24, "	Resigned.
Do.	C. R. REED	June 6, "	June 23, "	Never reported.
Do.	JOHN WHITTAKER	Aug. 19, "	Sept. 1, "	Resigned November 11, 1864.
Do.	HIRAM M. SHAFER	March 19, 1863	March 19, 1863	Mustered out August 24, 1864.
Chaplain	JAMES YOUNG	Feb. 11, "	April 6, "	Resigned December 26, 1863.
Captain	Peter O. Kane	Aug. 30, 1861	" 23, 1862	In 22d Regiment.
Do.	Martin Armstrong	" 30, "	" 23, "	Killed at Pittsburg Landing April 7, 1862.
Do.	Robert N. Adams	" 30, "	" 23, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Peter A. Tyler	" 30, "	" 23, "	Discharged February 20, 1863.
Do.	George A. Taylor	" 30, "	" 23, "	Resigned December 7, 1861.
Do.	Ozro J. Dodds	Sept. 1, "	" 23, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Col. 1st Ala. Col Reg.
Do.	Chas. M. Hughes	" 3, "	" 23, "	Resigned September 3, 1862.
Do.	R. B. Kiusell	Oct. 2, "	" 23, "	Resigned August 15, 1862.
Do.	R. T. Lanus	Dec. 12, "	" 23, "	Resigned February 13, 1863.
Do.	James W. Titus	April 7, 1862	" 27, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Samuel E. Adams	Dec. 1, 1861	" 25, "	Declined.
Do.	Wm. H. Hill	July 12, 1862	" 15, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	James Gibson	" 31, "	" 15, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	George W. Overmyer	Aug. 9, "	" 15, "	Honorably discharged March 27, 1865.
Do.	Benj. F. Matthews	" 15, "	" 15, "	Honorably discharged November 6, 1864.
Do.	Wm. H. Chamberlain	May 7, "	Dec. 31, "	Resigned December 31, 1862.
Do.	Chas. Lane	Dec. 31, "	Feb. 11, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.	James H. Conns	Feb. 20, 1863	April 20, "	Killed July 22, 1864.
Do.	George L. Hughes	" 13, "	March 30, "	Honorably discharged November 28, 1863.
Do.	Noah Stoker	Nov. 28, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Honorably discharged March 11, 1864.
Do.	David S. Van Felt	May 9, 1864	May 9, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wesley B. Guthrie	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hugh K. S. Robinson	Aug. 9, "	Aug. 9, "	Mustered out July 25, 1865.
Do.	Chas. W. Lockwood	" 9, "	" 9, "	Declined promotion; commission returned.
Do.	Oliver P. Irion	" 9, "	" 9, "	Resigned January 3, 1865.
Do.	Jonathan McCain	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Honorably disch'd as 1st Lieut. Aug. 22, 1864.
Do.	George W. Dixon	Oct. 10, "	Oct. 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert E. Roney	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. A. Johnson	Feb. 14, 1865	Feb. 14, 1865	Discharged October 28, 1864.
Do.	James C. Crawford	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. R. Howell	" 11, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	C. C. Platter	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out July 26, 1865.
Do.	Rufus K. Darhug	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ira Pfoutz	March 24, "	March 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Alkback	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Samuel E. Adams	May 18, "	May 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank Evans	Aug. 19, 1861	April 23, 1862	Declined promotion; mustered out.
Do.	Daniel Sherman	" 19, "	" 23, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James W. Titus	" 30, "	" 23, "	In 22d Regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Chamberlain	" 30, "	" 23, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	T. Ageter	" 30, "	" 23, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. C. Henry	Sept. 1, "	" 23, "	Resigned November 14, 1862.
Do.	John L. Hughes	" 3, "	" 23, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Eli A. James	Oct. 2, "	" 23, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. F. Wilcox	April 16, 1862	June 24, "	Dropped from Rols.
Do.	James H. Conns	" 7, "	" 24, "	Resigned April 2, 1862.
Do.	David S. Van Felt	July 31, "	Oct. 15, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John R. Hunt	Sept. 9, "	Sept. 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wesley B. Guthrie	Aug. 5, "	Oct. 15, "	Resigned September 20, 1864.
Do.	Hugh K. S. Robinson	" 7, "	" 15, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Caleb J. Sprague	" 14, "	" 15, "	Honorably discharged November 11, 1864.
Do.	Chas. Lane	" 15, "	" 15, "	Honorably discharged January 10, 1865.
Do.	Chas. W. Lockwood	" 20, "	" 15, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Oliver P. Irion	May 7, "	Dec. 31, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Noah Stoker	Nov. 14, "	" 15, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Hezekiah Hoover	Dec. 31, "	Feb. 11, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jonathan McCain	Feb. 13, 1863	March 31, "	Killed in action July 22, 1864.
Do.	Timothy Shaffer	" 20, "	April 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Dixon	" 20, "	June 20, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	James C. Crawford	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert E. Roney	" 9, "	" 9, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Wm. A. Johnson	June 14, "	June 14, "	Promoted to Captain.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Wm. D. Tyler.....	June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Resigned January 31, 1865.
Do.	James C. Crawford.....	Aug. 9, "	Aug. 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Benj. R. Howell.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Miller.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Declined promotion; commission returned.
Do.	John Allaback.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas Harpster.....	Sept. 26, "	Sept. 26, "	Mustered out.
Do.	C. C. Platter.....	Oct. 10, "	Oct. 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Pittiman.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Adam C. Post.....	Feb. 14, 1865	Feb. 14, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas M. Sellers.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. M. Murphey.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Thomas C. Harbaugh.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas H. Imes.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. B. Rush.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	John W. Hays.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M.
Do.	Price J. Jones.....	March 24, "	March 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David Kinsey.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Sick at Newbern, N. C.
Do.	Gideon Howe.....	May 18, "	May 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Seth Dixon.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harry C. Doddridge.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Sumner F. Mason.....	July 5, "	July 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Corwin B. Van Felt.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. E. Lockwood.....	Aug. 19, 1861	April 23, 1862	In 22d Regiment.
Do.	Wm. F. Wilcox.....	" 30, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	O. P. Irion.....	" 30, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James W. Post.....	" 30, "	" 23, "	Killed at Pittsburg Landing April 7, 1862.
Do.	Anthony Bowsher.....	Oct. 1, "	" 23, "	Resigned July 13, 1862.
Do.	Caleb Ayers.....	" 2, "	" 23, "	Resigned September 30, 1862.
Do.	Malton G. Bailey.....	Dec. 3, "	May 2, "	Resigned September 5, 1862.
Do.	Noah Stoker.....	April 7, 1862	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Timothy Shaffer.....	July 15, "	Oct. 15, "	Discharged August 24, 1864.
Do.	James C. Crawford.....	Aug. 7, "	" 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hezekiah Hoover.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert E. Rouey.....	" 20, "	" 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Matthew A. Ferguson.....	" 23, "	" 15, "	Resigned July 30, 1863.
Do.	Wm. A. Johnson.....	May 7, "	Dec. 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. D. Tyler.....	Nov. 14, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Allaback.....	Dec. 31, "	Feb. 11, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Miller.....	Sept. 8, "	March 31, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Thomas Harpster.....	Feb. 13, 1863	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. R. Howell.....	Sept. 5, 1862	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John R. Chamberlain.....	Feb. 20, 1863	April 20, "	Honorably discharged April 6, 1864.
Do.	C. C. Platter.....	June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Pittiman.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Adam C. Post.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas M. Sellers.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. M. Murphey.....	Aug. 9, "	Aug. 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas C. Harbaugh.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas H. Imes.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Gideon Ditto.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Gideon Howe.....	March 24, 1865	March 24, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Seth Dixon.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Sumner F. Mason.....	May 18, "	May 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Corwin B. Van Felt.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph H. Harbison.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Samuel Dotson.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	John T. Collier.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Jacob Young.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John M. Henness.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Daniel Worley.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Chas. Brennan.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Joseph S. Campbell.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	John D. Neiswanger.....	July 5, "	July 5, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	James Tucker.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.

EIGHTY-FIRST OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

DURING the summer of 1861 it was allowable, by order from the War Department, for any one to enlist men for General Fremont's command, and to have them mustered either singly, or in squads, or companies, and forwarded to his head-quarters at St. Louis. Under these orders Colonel Morton, formerly Colonel of the Twentieth Ohio, contracted to raise a full regiment, which was to be armed with the best of rifles, and was to be known as "Morton's Independent Rifle Regiment." By some bad management one company, after having been sent to St. Louis, was incorporated into another regiment, and this loss, together with the loss of one or two other companies, which were expected to join Morton's regiment, but were prevailed upon to go elsewhere, delayed the filling up of the regiment, so that it did not seem likely that the Colonel would fulfill his promise in the time allowed. At this juncture the State took the independent regiment into its fold. It was denominated the Eighty-First Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and it was agreed that the officers already appointed should be commissioned by the Governor, and that the State authorities should use every endeavor to have the regiment filled to the maximum.

Benton Barracks was the rendezvous of all the troops sent to Fremont's department; and in the ample grounds of that well-known camp the regiment entered upon its first military duties. On the 24th of September, 1861, the detachment received marching orders, and on the following day was taken to Franklin, Missouri, and a day or two after to Herman. Here the regiment went into camp, and attained a tolerable degree of skill in the evolutions. It had now reached its maximum, not the legal, but the possible, and it numbered eight companies, with an aggregate of nearly six hundred men. In November the regiment moved against a Rebel force in Calloway County, but the Rebel camp was found deserted. In December the guerrillas destroyed a portion of the Northern Missouri Railroad, and orders came for the force at Herman to march to the railroad and drive off the troublesome bands. The troops moved in extremely cold weather, with snow on the ground; and the advance reached Danville, the county-seat of Montgomery County, just as the Rebel rear left. Pursuit was in vain, as the Rebels were mounted.

During the next two weeks the regiment was marching through Northern Missouri, sleeping on the ground, in rain, sleet, and snow, with no covering but blankets. At the end of that time it was stationed at Wellsville, Montgomery City, Florence, and Danville, on the Northern Missouri Railroad, with head-quarters at the latter place. While thus stationed the regiment did an enormous amount of work, in scouting, arresting accomplices and principals in the work of destroying the railroad, and in restoring peace and quiet in the whole country round about.

About the 1st of March, 1862, the regiment was ordered to St. Louis. It was armed with short Enfields, was placed on board the steamer Meteor, and about midnight on the 17th it disembarked at Pittsburg Landing. In a few days the Eighty-First was assigned to the Second Brigade, Second Division, Army of the Tennessee. The brigade was commanded by Colonel McArthur, and the division by General C. F. Smith. The regiment went to drilling earnestly, under the direction mostly of Adjutant Evans, and attained a proficiency that was valuable in the coming contest. The battle of Pittsburg Landing opened on Sabbath morning, April 6th, while the regiment was undergoing the usual morning inspection. It was ordered across Snake Creek, and was placed in position until nearly noon, when it was withdrawn to its own color-line. It was almost one o'clock when the Eighty-First saw the enemy approaching its front, but there was only a small cavalry force, and a volley from the two right companies put them to flight. About two o'clock there was a lull; and General Grant ordered Colonel Morton to move toward the center of the line of battle and then forward until he found the enemy. Starting up a ravine in rear of the line, he proceeded thus until he could go unperceived to the front. He passed through the line of battle at a point where General Sherman was watching the movements of the enemy and advancing toward the front and left, the Colonel soon found his little regiment alone far ahead of the main line, and out of sight of it. The regiment was marching by the flank, left in front, and as the left emerged into a clear piece of ground it was greeted with a discharge of canister from a battery not more than two hundred yards away. The regiment formed line, faced to the rear, and lying down, delivered a volley or two, which silenced the enemy's fire. Not liking the position, Colonel Morton ordered a movement to a ravine a little further to the left. To reach this, a road, swept by the enemy's battery at short range, had to be passed. A company at a time ran the gauntlet, and the whole regiment was safely re-formed in the ravine. While in this position some Rebel cavalry commenced a movement to the regiment's rear, but before it was completed General Grant ordered the regiment back to the main lines. Just as Captain Armstrong, commanding the right company, gave the command, "By file right, march!" a grape shot struck him on the head and killed him instantly. The regiment was extricated without further loss, and upon reporting to General Grant, Colonel Morton was complimented for having held the enemy in check until the main line could be firmly established. The regiment was then ordered to take place in line near the right, where it remained during the rest of the day.

In the fighting on the 6th the regular brigades and divisions had in many cases become scattered. On the morning of the 7th there was no time for organization, and provisional brigades were appointed, to one of which the Eighty-First was assigned. The regiment advanced and after crossing an open field came upon a rude breastwork of logs, manned by the enemy, and raking the regiment from left to right. The shot and shell from two opposite batteries were also flying through the ranks, and it was determined to withdraw. Owing to the favorable nature of the ground this was done with but small loss. It was but a short time until the Eighty-First found itself again alone, and closely confronting a Rebel force. Lying down, the eager boys opened a brisk fire, which was hotly returned by the enemy, but so furiously did the regiment ply the Enfields that at last the Rebels broke and fled. No sooner was this perceived than the Eighty-First rose, and with yells followed the vanquished foe. So wild was the enthusiasm of the men that they never halted until they found themselves far in advance of any support and flanked both by infantry and artillery; even then it was with difficulty that they were withdrawn. In this charge the regiment captured a number of prisoners, also a battery; and it was here, too, that its principal loss was sustained. Resting and caring for the wounded occupied the next day, and then followed a month of inactivity.

On the 29th of May the Second Division started toward Corinth. There was nothing of importance in this advance, except that on the 31st of May the Eighty-First participated in a very considerable skirmish, and lost several wounded. After the evacuation of Corinth the Second Division pursued as far as Boonville. Taking into consideration the condition of the troops and the intense heat, the march to Boonville and back to Corinth was the most severe the regiment ever made. For some time the regiment was employed in picketing and fortifying. In July a recruiting party was sent to Ohio with authority to obtain a sufficient number of recruits to fill up the regiment. Companies H and G were consolidated with other companies, and this made five minimum companies in the regiment. About the middle of August, the Eighty-First was ordered to Hamburg, on the Tennessee River, where it remained in charge of public stores and performing post-duty, until the middle of September, when it returned to Corinth. In a few days marching orders were received and the regiment moved, under General Ord, against Iuka. General Rosecrans also moved upon Iuka from the rear. General Ord waited at Burnsville for Rosecrans to come up before he pressed the attack, but he waited too long, as Rosecrans pushed on and fought the battle of Iuka alone. General Ord's column returned to Corinth, and the Second Brigade took up camp in its old position, two miles south of Corinth, on the Mobile Railroad.

On the morning of the 3d of October the regiment moved toward Corinth, the brigade commanded by General Oglesby, and the division by General Davis. General Davis's division marched out by Battery Robinett, and going a short distance into the woods was halted. The Third Brigade went into the old Rebel works to the left, the Second (Oglesby's) moved a half mile further to the right, with the First Brigade on its right. The Eighty-First was on the left of its brigade, and was prolonged to its utmost capacity. The troops were hardly in position before the Rebels opened fire and with great impetuosity rushed upon the weak line. It gave way, but was speedily re-formed in front of the White House, and being now more compact than at first, it held its position during the remainder of the day. The brunt of battle had fallen upon Davis's division, and the Tishomingo Hotel, which had been converted into a hospital, gave sad evidence of the severity of the fighting. Every room was filled with the wounded, and the porches were crowded with men, mostly from Davis's division. In the ladies' parlor were General Davis's three brigade commanders—Colonel Baldwin, slightly wounded; General Oglesby, suffering intensely from a wound, which the surgeons hardly dared to say was not mortal; and General Heckelman dying. During the night General Davis's division was posted facing northwardly, its left resting on Battery Powell and its right covering Battery Richardson. About nine or ten o'clock in the morning the Rebels rushed on Davis's division, stretched in a single line, without reserves or intrenchments. The troops gave way, but the Rebels were checked by Hamilton's artillery and Batteries Williams and Robinett, and the division rallied and killed or captured the greater portion of the assaulting column. This was the end of the battle in front of the Eighty-First. The regiment lost eleven men killed, forty-four wounded, and three missing. When the regiment advanced, on the 4th, Sergeant David McCall, the color-bearer, was the first to fall. At Pittsburg Landing, though unable for duty, he left his bed and carried the flag through that battle. He had but just recovered from his sickness and joined the regiment a short time before he fell.

The regiment moved in pursuit of the Rebels to a point on the Tuscumbia River, near Chewalla. It remained here a week, and then returned to Corinth. The remainder of October, and the month of December were spent in garrison-duty. On the 19th of October five new companies arrived, which had been organized in Ohio by the recruiting party. This made the Eighty-First a full regiment. The reception of these recruits was made a formal matter. They slept all night at the depot, having arrived late, and the next morning the old troops were formed and started to Corinth, with drums beating and colors flying. When they had proceeded far enough they halted, and formed in line in open order, and faced inward. The recruits approached by the right flank, and when the head of the column entered the lines the old troops came to a "present arms." When the new companies had passed through they were formed as the old troops had been, and the latter passed through their lines, in turn receiving the salute. When this was done the regiment formed on the color-line and stacked arms. On the 1st of November the regiment moved within the inner defenses of Corinth, and erected winter-quarters. About the middle of December the regiment moved on a reconnoissance through Rienzi, Blackland, Guntown, and Saltillo to Tripoli. No enemy was found and the troops returned, bringing in numbers of mules, horses, and contrabands, and a large quantity of cotton. Forrest's raid cut communications, and on the 22d of December the garrison at Corinth was placed on half rations. This lasted about three weeks, though it occasioned less suffering than many would suppose. Foraging parties were sent out which obtained food for the animals, and limited supplies for the men. After the battle of Parker's Cross Roads, the Eighty-First, with other troops, moved to intercept Forrest at Clifton, but learning that he had crossed the river, they returned to Corinth. On the 26th of January, 1863, the regiment with the Twenty-Seventh Ohio, two Illinois regiments, and a battery, started to Hamburg for supplies. Upon reaching Hamburg the force was placed on transports, with the intention of capturing the forces under Roddy, encamped near Florence. About three miles from Hamburg it was discovered that one of the boats had injured her wheel, and the expedition was compelled to return. The Eighty-First marched immediately for Corinth, and reached its camp, a distance of twenty miles, in seven hours.

On the 15th of April the regiment moved, with almost the entire force of General Dodge, on an expedition to Tusculumbia, to co-operate with Colonel Streight in his movement upon the Southern Railroads. General Dodge remained at and near Tusculumbia several days in order to engage the attention of the Rebels. On the 28th of April there was an extensive skirmish at Town Creek, in which the Eighty-First had a few men wounded. After keeping the enemy engaged for two days and nights General Dodge returned to Corinth as expeditiously as possible. This march was one of eighteen days' duration, yet it was the best the regiment had yet made; and when it marched into camp at Corinth every man was in his place. On the 3d of June the Eighty-First moved to Pocahontas, where it spent the next few months in garrison-duty. It left Pocahontas about the last of October, expecting to join the army at Chattanooga. Upon reaching Pulaski, Tennessee, the regiment was halted, and distributed to different posts, again to perform garrison-duty. Wales, Pulaski, Sam's Mills, and Nance's Mills, were thus garrisoned. Regimental head-quarters were at Pulaski, where Major Evans had a few of his men mounted, and spent a great portion of the time in scouring the country in pursuit of guerrillas.

In January, 1864, three-fourths of the men in the regiment were willing to re-enlist, but the Secretary of War decided that the five companies lately recruited were not entitled to the privilege of re-enlisting. This prevented the regiment from going North as a veteran organization. The old companies furnished quite a number of veterans, and these went home on furlough in two squads, each in charge of a Sergeant. On the 26th of April the regiment concentrated at Pulaski, and on the 29th it moved for Chattanooga, by way of Huntsville and Larkinsville. On arriving it went into bivouac at the foot of Lookout Mountain. On the 5th of May the regiment moved southward to Lee & Gordon's Mills, and entered fairly on the Atlanta campaign. During the fight at Resaca the regiment was brought into line several times, but was not engaged. On the 14th the Eighty-First was withdrawn from the main battle field, and was ordered to Lay's Ferry, to lay a pontoon across the Oostenaula. The enemy was found in force on the opposite bank, but the boats were launched and manned in Snake Creek, and then they floated into the Oostenaula, and were pulled rapidly to the opposite shore. The men landed, and soon captured a portion of the enemy and dispersed the remainder. Three men of company C, Eighty-First Ohio, took eleven prisoners in one squad, including a Captain and two Lieutenants. The order for laying the pontoon was countermanded, and it was not put down until the evacuation of Atlanta, when the regiment crossed and again had a slight engagement with the Rebels. On the 16th of May the regiment fought at the battle of Rome Cross Roads. The regiment cleared its front of Rebels, and held its position until the Second Division was relieved by the Fourth. The regiment moved by way of Kingston and Van Wert to Dallas, where, on the 28th of May, an effort was made to draw General McPherson's corps to the left, in order to join it more closely to the rest of the army. While the movement was in progress the Rebels made seven assaults, but they were every time repulsed. The Eighty-First contributed its full share toward the result.

The regiment pressed on, with continuous skirmishing, to Kenesaw. During the movement around that place the Eighty-First was in the front line almost all the time, and was often on picket-duty; yet it was not called on to make an assault. The regiment advanced with the army, and on the 21st of July closed around Atlanta. In the battle on the 22d the Eighty-First, with three companies in reserve, was the second regiment from the right of Swecney's division. The command stood like a rock, and never was there made a more daring or more effective resistance. At an opportune moment the Eighty-First Ohio and Twelfth Illinois moved forward in a resistless charge, carrying everything before them. The Eighty-First captured a number of prisoners and three battle-flags. Later in the day General Logan called on General Dodge for re-enforcements to assist the Fifteenth Corps in recovering its works. Mersey's brigade, which included the Eighty-First, was sent. It marched on the double-quick nearly two miles, and joined in a charge by which the lost line was recovered. The Eighty-First furnished a detail to assist Captain DeGres in serving his guns on the retreating Rebels. Late at night Mersey's brigade was moved to Bald Hill, and there the Eighty-First Ohio and Twelfth Illinois built a perfect labyrinth of works. On the 28th of July, while a portion of the army was moving toward the right, Hood made another assault. The Eighty-First, with other regiments, were hurried to the assistance of the Fifteenth Corps. These regiments arrived in time to take an active part in repelling the enemy. The regiment now settled down into the regular duties of a siege. It marched on the flanking movement to Jonesboro', and participated in the engagement at that place, and in the skirmish at Lovejoy, after which it withdrew to the vicinity of Atlanta. Here the few men of the five old companies who had served three years and had not re-enlisted, were mustered out. They numbered about one hundred and fifty, and their withdrawal did not change the organization of the regiment. It was not until late in December that official notice of their muster-out was received, and even then only two companies (B and C) lost their existence. The remaining members of those companies, veterans and recruits, were assigned to the other companies of the regiment.

In September the Eighty-First was ordered to Rome, and was assigned to the Fourth Division of the Fifteenth Corps. On the 11th of November the regiment set out for Atlanta. It arrived on the 15th, and on the 16th it continued the march toward Savannah. It made the march without any notable incident, and on the 13th of December it commenced to fortify around Savannah. On the 21st the brigade entered Savannah, and on the 23d the regiment went into camp on the Thunderbolt Road, near the city. On the 19th of January, 1865, the Eighty-First crossed the Savannah River to Hutchinson's Island, but, owing to the unprecedented rain, it was found impossible to proceed in that direction, and the regiment returned to its old quarters. However, on the 28th, it marched northward to Sisters' Ferry, and there crossed the Savannah into South Carolina. The regiment participated in all the labors and dangers of the campaign of the Carolinas, and was engaged in the battle of Bentonville. Upon reaching Goldsboro' the Army of the Tennessee passed in review. The men were just off a five hundred-mile march, were in all kinds of uniform, and some were without any uniform. In the Eighty-First all the shoeless and hatless men were placed in one company, and so they passed in review before Sherman, Schofield, Terry, Howard, and Logan, with more pride than their more fortunate companions who wore shoes and hats. In the brief rest which followed a number of absentees and recruits joined the regiment. The Eighty-First, though but a fraction of a regiment for more than a year at first, in 1862 received more recruits than any other regiment in the service. Again in 1864 enough of recruits were received to supply all deficiencies, and now in 1865 such a large number was obtained that two entire companies were formed, besides giving some men to the old companies. The two new companies were designated B and C, and they filled the gap which had existed since the muster-out of these companies in 1864. The regiment marched on through Raleigh to Morrisville, where it lay while Sherman was negotiating with Johnston, after which it marched back to Raleigh.

On the 29th of April the regiment started on its homeward march. It reached Washington City on the 20th of May, and on the 24th it passed in review. Early in June it started to Louisville, going by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to Parkersburg, and thence by the Ohio River. Encamping at Woodlawn, near the city, the boys enjoyed themselves as best they could, until at last came the welcome order to muster out. This was done on the 13th of July, and the regiment immediately started to Camp Dennison, Ohio, where it was paid and discharged, July 21, 1865.

Thus we have followed the fortunes of this regiment from its first scouting over the prairies of Missouri; through its bloody baptism at Pittsburg Landing; its march into Mississippi; its participation in the battle of Corinth; its garrison-duty at that place; its march into Northern Alabama; its brief stay at Pocahontas; its march to Pulaski, and duty there; its deeds and privations in the Atlanta campaign; its march to Rome; its journey to the sea; and finally its march from Savannah to Raleigh, Washington, Louisville, and Camp Dennison. It may be truly said that in all these scenes and actions the Eighty-First ever bore an honorable part. During the regiment's term of service thirty-four men were killed in action; twenty-four died of wounds; one hundred and twenty-one died of disease; and one hundred and thirty-six were discharged for disability.

82d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JAMES CANTWELL.....	Dec. 31, 1861	Jan. 24, 1862	Killed August 29, 1862.
Do.	JAMES S. ROBINSON.....	Aug. 29, 1862	Oct. 5, "	Promoted to Brigadier-General of Vols.
Do.	STEPH. J. McGRORTY.....	Sept. 23, "	Dec. 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	BRADFORD R. DUFFEK.....	Jan. 1, "	Jan. 24, "	Resigned April 9, 1862.
Do.	JAMES S. ROBINSON.....	April 9, "	May 1, "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	DAVID THOMPSON.....	Aug. 29, "	Oct. 5, "	Brevetted Brigadier-General March 13, 1865.
Do.	JAMES S. CRALL.....	Jan. 11, 1865	Jan. 11, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	JAMES S. ROBINSON.....	Dec. 31, 1861	July 24, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	DAVID THOMPSON.....	April 9, 1862	May 1, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JAMES S. CRALL.....	Aug. 29, "	Oct. 5, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	F. S. WALLACE.....	July 11, 1865	July 11, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	JACOB Y. CANTWELL.....	Jan. 1, 1862	Jan. 24, 1862	Appointed to U. S. service by Pres. April 17, 1864.
Do.	C. W. MYERS.....	April 26, 1864	April 26, 1864	Mustered out; resigned May 28, 1865.
Do.	L. P. CULVER.....	June 13, 1865	June 13, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Asst Surgeon.....	AUGUSTUS W. MUNSON.....	Dec. 26, 1861	Jan. 24, 1862	Resigned April 4, 1863.
Do.	C. W. MYERS.....	July 4, 1862	July 23, "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	L. P. CULVER.....	July 23, 1863	July 24, 1863	Refused to muster; commission returned.
Do.	WM. B. HEDGES.....	April 27, 1864	April 27, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	HENRY B. FRY.....	Jan. 21, 1862	May 30, 1862	Resigned July 18, 1862.
Do.	JOHN BURKE.....	Jan. 14, 1863	Jan. 14, 1863	Resigned June 28, 1864.
Captain.....	David Thompson.....	Nov. 14, 1861	Jan. 24, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Lemou S. Powell.....	Dec. 25, "	Jan. 24, "	Discharged July 30, 1862.
Do.	Peter C. Boslow.....	Dec. 28, "	Jan. 24, "	Resigned May 6, 1862.
Do.	James Ewing.....	Dec. 11, "	Jan. 24, "	Resigned May 18, 1862.
Do.	James S. Crall.....	Dec. 19, "	Jan. 24, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Charles Mainis.....	Dec. 20, "	Jan. 24, "	Resigned July 23, 1862.
Do.	John S. Reig.....	Dec. 20, "	Jan. 24, "	Resigned May 10, 1863.
Do.	Nicholas Jerolaman.....	Dec. 20, "	Jan. 24, "	Resigned July 7, 1862.
Do.	George H. Purdy.....	Dec. 21, "	Jan. 24, "	Killed at Chancellorsville, May 3, 1863.
Do.	David S. Sampson.....	Dec. 21, "	March 20, "	Resigned July 30, 1862.
Do.	Wm. E. Schofield.....	April 9, 1862	May 1, "	Mustered out October 31, 1864.
Do.	John Campbell.....	March 6, "	July 31, "	Mustered out December 9, 1864; time expired.
Do.	Solomon L. Hoge.....	March 18, "	Aug. 5, "	Resigned April 24, 1863.
Do.	Wm. D. W. Mitchell.....	Jan. 1, "	Aug. 5, "	Mortally wounded at Gettysburg July 1, 1863.
Do.	David J. Mentzer.....	Jan. 30, "	Aug. 19, "	Resigned November 6, 1862.
Do.	John Costin.....	Jan. 23, "	Sept. 15, "	Mortally wounded at Gettysburg July 1, 1863.
Do.	Alfred E. Lee.....	Jan. 30, "	Sept. 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Francis S. Jacobs.....	Aug. 29, "	Dec. 18, "	Resigned.
Do.	Wm. J. Dickson.....	Nov. 6, "	Dec. 18, "	Killed at Resaca.
Do.	James B. McConnell.....	April 24, 1863	June 10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Cyrus Herrick.....	May 3, "	June 10, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Joseph Gutzwiller.....	May 10, "	June 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Cricket.....	Nov. 2, "	April 12, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John A. Mitchell.....	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, "	Honorably discharged March 6, 1865.
Do.	John P. Drannan.....	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Ap. Capt. and A. Q. M.; must'd out as 1st Lt.
Do.	Robert C. Wiley.....	Sept. 6, "	Sept. 6, "	Mustered out as 1st Lieut. Nov. 11, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Ballentine.....	Sept. 6, "	Sept. 6, "	Killed in action.
Do.	Alanson P. Cutting.....	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 30, "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant April 4, 1865.
Do.	Milton Marsh.....	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. E. Criswell.....	Jan. 28, "	Jan. 28, "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant April 4, 1865.
Do.	F. S. Wallace.....	April 23, 1862	May 26, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Henry B. Bending.....	July 31, "	Aug. 28, "	Mustered out June 29, 1865.
Do.	Anthony Gradyiski.....	April 29, 1864	April 29, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert Patterson.....	April 29, "	April 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Kirkwood.....	July 20, 1865	Sept. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Tinckler.....	July 20, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant.....	Wm. E. Schofield.....	Oct. 30, 1861	Jan. 24, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alexander S. Ramsey.....	Nov. 4, "	Jan. 24, "	Resigned May 15, 1862.
Do.	Solomon L. Hoge.....	Nov. 14, "	Jan. 24, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David J. Mentzer.....	Nov. 25, "	Jan. 24, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Campbell.....	Nov. 28, "	Jan. 24, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Porterfield.....	Dec. 6, "	Jan. 24, "	Resigned May 16, 1862.
Do.	John Costin.....	Dec. 19, "	Jan. 24, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel B. Smith.....	Dec. 20, "	Jan. 24, "	Discharged August 13, 1862.
Do.	Samuel H. Berry.....	Dec. 20, "	Jan. 24, "	Mustered out August 19, 1862.
Do.	Alfred E. Lee.....	Dec. 21, "	Jan. 24, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. D. W. Mitchell.....	Dec. 20, "	June 7, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John S. Fulton.....	Dec. 31, "	March 20, "	Died April 17, 1862.
Do.	Preston Fanght.....	April 9, 1862	May 1, "	Resigned October 30, 1862.
Do.	Francis S. Jacobs.....	April 17, "	May 1, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John P. Drannan.....	May 16, "	July 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Cyrus Herrick.....	July 31, "	Aug. 31, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James B. McConnell.....	March 18, "	Aug. 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. M. Brown.....	July 15, "	Aug. 19, "	Resigned September 12, 1862.
Do.	Wm. J. Dickson.....	July 30, "	Aug. 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Andrew H. Nickoll.....	Aug. 13, "	Sept. 22, "	Resigned October 24, 1862.
Do.	Henry Litznberg.....	July 23, "	Sept. 15, "	Killed August 29, 1862.
Do.	Wm. Cessna.....	July 30, "	Sept. 15, "	Resigned May 13, 1863.
Do.	John T. Carlin.....	Aug. 19, "	Sept. 15, "	Resigned January 20, 1863.
Do.	John A. McClasky.....	Sept. 12, "	Nov. 20, "	Resigned.
Do.	Joseph Gutzwiller.....	Nov. 1, "	Nov. 29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Nelson M. Carroll.....	Aug. 29, "	Dec. 18, "	Killed May 3, 1863.
Do.	Wm. F. Scott.....	Oct. 21, "	Dec. 18, "	Resigned April 13, 1863.
Do.	James J. Beer.....	Oct. 29, "	Dec. 18, "	Killed May 3, 1863.
Do.	Stowell L. Burnham.....	Oct. 30, "	Dec. 18, "	Killed July 1, 1863.

EIGHTY-SECOND OHIO INFANTRY

471

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	John H. Ballard	Nov. 6, 1862	Dec. 18, 1862	Resigned July 19, 1864.
Do.	James Cricket	March 1, 1863	March 7, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John A. Mitchell	April 13, ..	May 28, ..	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Blackburn	May 3, ..	June 10, ..	Discharged October 2, 1864.
Do.	Philander C. Meredith	April 24, ..	" 10, ..	Killed July 1, 1863.
Do.	Robert C. Wiley	May 3, ..	" 10, ..	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alfred Goodin	" 10, ..	" 10, ..	Mustered out March 12, 1865
Do.	George B. Fry	July 1, ..	Aug. 25, ..	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. Ballentine	June 1, ..	Dec. 21, ..	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alanson P. Cutting	July 5, ..	" 21, ..	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. S. Mahan	" 6, ..	" 21, ..	Mustered out.
Do.	Milton Marsh	" 7, ..	" 21, ..	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry Jacoby	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, 1864	Killed at Gettysburg.
Do.	J. E. Criswell	" 11, ..	" 11, ..	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Warren H. Wasson	" 11, ..	" 11, ..	Resigned October 27, 1864.
Do.	Jeff. P. Davis	" 11, ..	" 11, ..	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Brant	Sept. 6, ..	Sept. 6, ..	Resigned June 2, 1865.
Do.	George W. Youngblood	" 6, ..	" 6, ..	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Erwin Barnhart	" 6, ..	" 6, ..	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	B. Dickerson	Dec. 30, ..	Dec. 30, ..	Mustered out.
Do.	Jasper S. Snow	" 30, ..	" 30, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	James O. Lacy	" 30, ..	" 30, ..	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Amos Wheeler	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Mustered out; resigned June 3, 1866.
Do.	Benj. S. Reilly	" 28, ..	" 28, ..	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. H. Thompson	" 28, ..	" 28, ..	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Nathan B. Phillips	" 28, ..	" 28, ..	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Kirkwood	Oct. 6, 1862	Nov. 10, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles Tinckler	April 29, 1864	April 29, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph R. McIl	" 29, ..	" 29, ..	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Leonard G. Burns	June 24, 1865	June 24, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Conoway	July 20, ..	Sept. 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George M. McPeck	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	"
Do.	Jacob Bush	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Serg't-Major.
Do.	Henry Harmon	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	"
2d Lieutenant	Preston Faught	Nov. 6, 1861	Jan. 24, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John P. Drinnan	" 9, ..	" ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James B. McConnell	" 14, ..	" ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. J. Dickson	" 25, ..	" ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Morgan Simonson	" 28, ..	" ..	Resigned July 17, 1862.
Do.	Andrew H. Nickell	Dec. 20, ..	" ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles Di-Gold	" 20, ..	" ..	Mortally wounded May 8, 1862.
Do.	Loyd B. Lippitt	" 30, ..	" ..	Resigned July 17, 1862.
Do.	Henry Litzesberg	" 21, ..	" ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Francis S. Jacobs	Nov. 12, ..	March 20, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. M. Brown	April 17, 1862	May 1, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Cessna	" 9, ..	" 1, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John T. Carlin	May 10, ..	July 3, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Cyrus Herrick	July 17, ..	" 31, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nelson M. Carroll	" 30, ..	Aug. 19, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James J. Beer	May 15, ..	" 19, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stowell L. Burnham	" 18, ..	" 19, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John H. Ballard	Aug. 13, ..	" 22, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Gutzwiller	" 19, ..	Sept. 15, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Cricket	" 19, ..	" 12, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John A. Mitchell	July 7, ..	Nov. 15, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Blackburn	" 25, ..	" 26, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philander C. Meredith	" 30, ..	" 26, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert C. Wiley	" 31, ..	Dec. 2, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alfred Goodin	Aug. 29, ..	" 18, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George B. Fry	" 29, ..	" 18, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Peter W. Lee	Oct. 30, ..	" 18, ..	Resigned March 12, 1864.
Do.	Thomas Apple	Nov. 6, ..	" 18, ..	Killed May 3, 1863.
Do.	Hyman M. Howard	" 1, ..	Jan. 16, 1863	Resigned January 8, 1864.
Do.	Henry Jacoby	March 1, 1863	March 7, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. E. Criswell	" 12, ..	" 27, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Ballentine	May 3, ..	May 25, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Conrad Lue	April 13, ..	" 25, ..	Resigned August 5, 1865.
Do.	Alanson P. Cutting	May 3, ..	June 10, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. McGarry	April 24, ..	" 10, ..	Killed at Gettysburg July 4, 1863.
Do.	Wm. S. Mahan	May 3, ..	" 10, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton Marsh	" 10, ..	" 10, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Warren H. Wasson	July 1, ..	July 24, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Asa H. Geary	Oct. 23, ..	Feb. 24, 1864	Killed July 20, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Brant	Nov. 2, ..	" 24, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jeff. P. Davis	Oct. 10, ..	" 29, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Youngblood	Dec. 1, ..	March 16, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Erwin Barnhart	March 19, ..	" 19, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	B. Dickerson	Dec. 1, ..	April 12, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jasper S. Snow	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James O. Lacy	Sept. 6, ..	Sept. 6, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Amos Wheeler	" 6, ..	" 6, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. S. Reilly	" 6, ..	" 6, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. C. Layton	" 6, ..	" 6, ..	Declined.
Do.	Wm. H. Thompson	" 6, ..	" 6, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nathan B. Phillips	" 6, ..	" 6, ..	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. Gray	July 20, 1865	" 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Christopher W. Demig	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Samuel Armstrong	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Ephraim Shellmarger	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	James Wallace	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John N. Delamater	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John Dunn	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Thomas H. Bushong	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Daniel C. Storer	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	James C. Erb	" 20, ..	" 4, ..	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

EIGHTY-SECOND OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE EIGHTY-SECOND was composed of men from the counties of Logan, Richland, Ashland, Union, and Marion. Recruiting began on the 5th of November, 1861. The regiment rendezvoused at Kenton, Ohio, and was mustered into the service on the 31st of December, with an aggregate of nine hundred and sixty-eight men.

On the 25th of January, 1862, the regiment moved for Western Virginia. It crossed the Ohio River at Benwood, and on the 27th arrived at Grafton. On the 28th it went into camp near the village of Fetterman, where a regular system of instruction was instituted. On the 16th of March the Eighty-Second was assigned to General Schenck's command. It was transported by railroad from Grafton to New Creek, and from there it marched to Moorefield, arriving on the 23d. The regiment was ordered by General Schenck to explore the Lost River region, and to capture, if possible, a noted guerrilla named Harness; but Harness made his escape. The Eighty-Second moved with Schenck's brigade up the South Branch Valley, and on the 3d of May crossed the Potomac at Petersburg. Franklin was reached on the 5th. Here the troops halted two days, and then moved in the direction of Monterey. On the 6th a courier arrived with the information that Stonewall Jackson was threatening the force under Milroy. Schenck hastened to his relief, and by noon the next day joined the troops under Milroy near McDowell. The Rebels were posted on Bull-Pasture Mountain, and were well sheltered by natural obstacles. At three o'clock P. M. the National troops moved to the assault, and the fight continued until after dark. During the night the troops under Schenck and Milroy withdrew, and arrived at Franklin on the 10th. The Rebel army followed, but did not molest the retreat. On the 12th the enemy moved apparently to attack the lines at Franklin. He threw out his skirmishers, but these were repulsed, and on the night of the 13th the Rebels retired.

Schenck's brigade left Franklin with the army under Fremont on the 25th of May. On the 26th it passed through Petersburg, where knapsacks and all other baggage which could not be carried on the person were left. On the 29th the Potomac was crossed near Moorefield, and the next day the troops entered the defiles of Branch Mountain. On the 1st of June the advance of the army became engaged at Strasburg. Schenck's brigade hastened forward and deployed, but a tremendous storm put an end to the battle. During the night the Rebels, under Jackson, withdrew. The pursuit commenced at early dawn, and many Rebels who had given out on the march were captured. The column passed through Woodstock and Harrisonburg, and on the 8th fought the battle of Cross Keys. Schenck's brigade, though in season, and participating but little in the actual fighting, was exposed throughout the battle to the enemy's artillery and musketry. The next day the Rebels were in retreat and the National army in pursuit; but the destruction of the bridge over the Shenandoah stopped the chase. The troops moved back through New Market, Mount Jackson and Strasburg to Middletown, where General Sigel took command of the army.

In the organization of the Army of Virginia, under General Pope, Sigel's command was denominated the First Corps; and the Eighty-Second was assigned to an independent brigade, under Milroy. Severe campaigning had fearfully thinned the regiment's ranks, and it now mustered only about three hundred men, and additions to the sick-list were made daily. On the night of the 7th of August Sigel's corps moved toward Culpepper, and on the following morning halted in the woods south of the village. At seven o'clock P. M. the corps moved toward Cedar Mountain, where fighting had been going on nearly all day. It arrived on the field at ten o'clock P. M.; and Milroy's brigade moved to the front and relieved a portion of the exhausted forces. The troops remained under arms all night. On the 9th there was some skirmishing, but no general engagement, and on the night of the 10th the Rebels retreated. In the pursuit Milroy's brigade led the advance of Sigel's corps. On the 11th the brigade crossed Robertson's River, and went into camp on the south bank.

On the 15th of August the Army of Virginia began to withdraw from Robertson's River. Milroy's brigade covered the movement. On the 16th Sigel's corps arrived at Warren on Sulphur Springs; but on the next day it reversed its course and marched southward along the left bank of the Rappahannock River to Rappahannock Station. Here the two armies met on opposite banks of the river. Sigel's corps was at the front constantly, and on the 18th participated in a sharp skirmish at Freeman's Ford. For ten successive days Milroy's brigade was within hearing, and most of the time under fire of the enemy's guns. On the 21st Sigel's corps moved northward, hugging closely to the river. Milroy's brigade was charged with the defense of Waterloo Bridge. The Rebels made a persistent effort to gain the bridge, but with no avail. The destruction of the bridge was ordered finally, and the work was intrusted to the Eighty-Second. A select party dashed forward under a brisk fire, ignited the timbers, and in a few moments the work of destruction was complete.

On the evening of the 21st McDowell engaged the enemy in a short but severe conflict five miles east of Gainesville. Sigel's corps hastened to his assistance, but darkness prevented a general engagement. At early dawn the next morning the battle opened, and Milroy's brigade was pushed forward to reconnoiter the enemy's line. At nine o'clock A. M. Sigel's corps began a general advance. Milroy's brigade preceded the main body in battle order. The Eighty-Second and Third Virginia were deployed, and supported by the other regiments of the brigade in column. The Rebel skirmishers were driven back through a dense timber to their main force, which was posted behind a railroad embankment. When Milroy's brigade had approached within a few yards of the embankment some of the troops sprang from behind it, and crying, "Don't fire on your friends," threw down their arms, while at the same time the remainder of the force opened a heavy volley. The ruse did not have its expected effect. The firing was returned vigorously. The Eighty-Second pressed forward and commenced scaling the embankment, a portion of the regiment passing it through an opening for a culvert. Just at this moment a large force of Rebels appeared on the regiment's right flank. The Eighty-Second was now unsupported, and it was necessary to change front in order to repel the new attack. The movement was executed successfully, under a galling cross-fire; but during the evolution Colonel Cantwell fell from his horse dead, with the words of command and encouragement upon his lips. The brigade had already retired, and the regiment, under orders from Milroy, now withdrew. Under the personal direction of General Milroy the Eighty-Second, consisting of only a handful of men, was re-formed and assigned to the support of a battery. The advancing Rebels were met resolutely and repulsed, and an opportunity was afforded for the regiment and battery to retire to a safe position. In this engagement the Eighty-Second lost heavily. At dawn on the 30th it was in line, and by two o'clock P. M. it had advanced to the position so fiercely contested on the day before. At four o'clock P. M. the Rebels massed in front of McDowell's corps, and a portion of Sigel's corps, including Milroy's brigade, was sent to his assistance. The brigade was in position in time to receive the enemy's advance. The formation was slightly concave, the Eighty-Second being in the center. The Rebels advanced repeatedly, but were driven back, and Milroy's brigade maintained its position. The fighting ceased when night came on, and, under cover of darkness, the National army withdrew to Centerville.

On the 3d of September Sigel's corps arrived at Fairfax C. H. Here the Eighty-Second was detailed as provost-guard for the corps, and was attached to General Sigel's head-quarters. On the 9th of September Sigel moved his head-quarters to Fort De Kalb. The corps about this time, by orders from the War Department, was denominated the Eleventh, and was assigned to the Army of the Potomac. On the 25th the corps advanced to Fairfax C. H., and on the 4th of November it moved to Gainesville; but on the 18th it was again withdrawn to Fairfax. Here the corps remained until General Burnside's advance on Fredericksburg, when it marched to join the Army of the Potomac at that point. On the 17th of December General Sigel established his head-quarters at Stafford C. H., and the corps went into winter-quarters, the campaign having closed with the attempted capture of the Heights of Fredericksburg. General Howard succeeded General Sigel in command of the Eleventh Corps; and, at the request of Colonel Robinson, the Eighty-Second was relieved from duty at head-quarters, and was ordered to report to its division commander, General Schurz. By him it was designated as a battalion of sharpshooters for the division, and was not assigned to any brigade, but was held subject to his personal direction.

The Eleventh Corps broke camp at Stafford on the 27th of April, 1863, and moved on the Chancellorsville campaign. It crossed the Rappahannock at Kelly's Ford and the Rapidan at Ely's Mills; and on the evening of the 30th it halted within three miles of Chancellorsville. At nine o'clock A. M. on the following day the corps took up a defensive position and began to intrench. When the battle opened, on the afternoon of the 2d, the regiment stood to arms and awaited the orders of General Schurz. By his direction it was deployed with fixed bayonets to repel the attack. It was ordered very soon to fall back to the rifle-pits. The movement was executed in good order. The men moved steadily into the intrenchments, and opened a rapid fire upon the advancing foe. Disorganized bodies of troops were falling back through the Eighty-Second, and the regiment was left unsupported. The enemy swept around the flanks of the Eighty-Second, but the regiment stood to its post until retreat or capture became inevitable. The order was reluctantly given, and the regiment fell back in good order; and when the new position was reached one hundred and thirty-four men were with the colors. It remained in this position until ordered by General Howard to retire to Chancellorsville. On the morning of the 3d the Eleventh Corps was transferred to the extreme left of the army, and was charged with the defense of the approaches to the river and the pontoons. The regiment was on duty in the trenches or on the picket-line until the morning of the 7th, when the army commenced to retire and at seven o'clock P. M. the Eighty-Second reached its old camp near Stafford.

The regiment was assigned to the Second Brigade of the Third Division, and was engaged in ordinary camp duties until the 10th of June, when it moved on the Gettysburg campaign. The Eleventh Corps marched by way of Catlett's, Manassas Junction, Centerville, Goose Creek, Edwards's Ferry, Middletown, and Frederick to Emmetsburg, where it arrived on the 29th. On the 1st of July the march was resumed, and at twelve o'clock M. the corps came in sight of Gettysburg. Without any halt the troops were formed in order of battle, and the Eighty-Second was placed in support of a battery. In about an hour the battery was withdrawn, and the regiment prepared to join in a general advance. It moved over an open plain swept by the Rebel artillery, and before the regiment fired a shot it lost twenty men killed and wounded. The gaps were filled promptly, and the Eighty-Second advanced to within seventy-five yards of the Rebel lines. The Rebels were in force in overwhelming numbers, and the Eighty-Second was compelled to retire. It was assigned a position near the entrance of the now famous Gettysburg cemetery. It went into this action with twenty-two commissioned officers and two hundred and thirty-six men; and of these, nineteen officers and one hundred and forty-seven men were killed, wounded, and captured, leaving only three officers and eighty-nine men. This little band brought off the colors safely. It was not engaged seriously during the remainder of the battle.

On the evening of the 5th the Eleventh Corps moved in pursuit of the Rebels, passing through Emmetsburg, Middletown, Boonsboro', and Sharpsburg to within a few miles of Hagerstown, where it arrived on the 11th. At this point the Eighty-Second was assigned to a new brigade, which was denominated the First Brigade of the Third Division. The brigade was commanded by General Tyndal. The Eleventh Corps continued the pursuit as far as Warrenton Junction; and soon after arriving there the Third Division was assigned to the duty of guarding the Orange and Alexandria Railroad. The Eighty-Second was ordered to Catlett's Station, and there it performed very arduous guard and patrol duty until the 25th of September, when the Eleventh Corps left Catlett's Station to join the Army of the Cumberland.

On the 1st of October Tyndal's brigade arrived at Bridgeport, Alabama. On the 3d it crossed the Tennessee River, and was engaged in patrolling the adjacent country. On the 27th the Eleventh Corps, under Hooker, moved up the left bank of the Tennessee, and on the afternoon of the next day, as the column emerged from the defiles of Raccoon Mountain, it drew the fire from a Rebel battery on Lookout Mountain. After a lively skirmish the Rebel outposts were driven in, and by five o'clock the troops were encamped quietly in Lookout Valley. About ten o'clock P. M. firing was heard in the rear, and it was found that Longstreet had occupied Wauhatchie Heights, and had descended into the valley. Detachments were at once sent out from the Eleventh Corps, and Tyndal's brigade was directed to recapture Wauhatchie Heights. The brigade moved out on the double-quick; and, upon reaching the point where the assault was to be made, the Eighty-Second deployed two companies as skirmishers, and the remainder of the regiment supporting them, led the advance up the steep and rugged slope, and drove the Rebels from the summit without difficulty. The position thus gained was held by the Eleventh Corps until the 22d of November, when the corps moved down the valley, crossed the Tennessee twice, passed through Chattanooga, and bivouacked under the guns of Battery Wood. The corps was held in reserve during the engagement at Orchard Knob, but it moved up under a heavy fire from the batteries on Mission Ridge, to the left of the Fourteenth Corps, and assisted in the skirmishing which followed the engagement, and in building the intrenchments. On the 25th the Eleventh Corps marched to join Sherman's forces. The movement was completed by ten o'clock P. M. Sherman was still engaged on Mission Ridge, and the Eleventh Corps was ordered to support the assaulting column. The Third Division took position on the southern face of the ridge, and there proceeded to intrench. A party from the different regiments of the First Brigade reconnoitered the front and drove in the enemy's flankers. By night the intrenchments were complete and the position secure. The Eleventh Corps moved in pursuit of Bragg's army as it fell back from Chattanooga, to within seven miles of Ringgold. From this point an expedition was sent from the corps to destroy the railroad connecting Cleveland and Dalton. The enterprise was entirely successful.

On the 28th of November the corps moved to the relief of Knoxville. When it arrived near the town of Louisville, only eighteen miles from Knoxville, a courier arrived from General Burnside with the information that Longstreet had raised the siege. Then commenced the return march; and, after many hardships, the troops half naked and half starved, arrived at their old encampments in Lookout Valley on the 17th of December. The Eighty-Second had scarcely recovered from the effects of the Knoxville campaign, when it declared anew its devotion to the country by veteranizing. Out of three hundred and forty-nine enlisted men present, three hundred and twenty-one were mustered into the service as veteran volunteers on the 1st of January, 1864. On the 10th of the same month the regiment started to Ohio on veteran furlough. It arrived at Columbus on the 21st, and was furloughed for thirty days from the 24th. It rendezvoused on the 23d of February with two hundred recruits. It started for the front on the 26th, and on the 3d of March joined its brigade at Bridgeport, Alabama.

The Eleventh and Twelfth Corps were consolidated, forming the Twentieth, and the Eighty-Second was assigned to the Third Brigade of the First Division of this corps. On the 30th of April marching orders were received, and the regiment entered upon the Atlanta campaign. It marched by way of Whitesides, Lookout Valley, Gordon's Mills, Grove Church, Nicojack Gap, and Snake Creek Gap, to Resaca. Toward evening, on the 14th of May, the Twentieth Corps, under Hooker, was shifted to the left, in order to envelop the enemy's right. Robinson's brigade (the third), of Williams's division (the first), reached the Dalton Road just as a division of the Fourth Corps was being forced back in great confusion. Robinson's brigade at once charged and drove back the Rebels in gallant style. The Eighty-Second participated in the charge, but sustained little loss, as the enemy was too much surprised and embarrassed to fire effectively. On the next day Butterfield's and Geary's divisions advanced and captured the enemy's first line. Williams's division was then thrown forward, and took position on the left, with Robinson's brigade on the left of the division, constituting the extreme left of the army. The flank "hung in air," and, being without breastworks, was much exposed. The enemy seeing this moved two divisions into position for an attack. Robinson's brigade was posted behind a low rise of ground, with an open field in front. The enemy charged gallantly across the open space and advanced to within fifty yards of Robinson's position, but a terrible fire forced him to retire. In twenty minutes the enemy renewed the attack, but with the same result; again he advanced and again was forced back with fearful slaughter. Throughout the engagement the Eighty-Second held an important position, but had a slight advantage in being protected by a breastwork. It lost one officer killed. Darkness ended the conflict; and during the night parties were employed caring for the Rebel wounded.

The Rebels withdrew by night, and in the morning the National army started in pursuit and on the evening of the 19th the enemy was found in position near Cassville. The enemy evacuated without a battle, and the National army was allowed a few days to rest. On the 23d the march was resumed. Hooker's corps crossed the Etowah, and marched by way of Stilesboro' to Burnt Hickory. On the 25th, while the three divisions of the Twentieth Corps were advancing by different roads, General Geary encountered the enemy on a high wooded ridge four miles north-east of Dallas. Williams's division, which had arrived within three miles of Dallas by another road, at once about-faced and marched to the support of Geary. Upon arriving it was determined to attack the Rebels, and Williams's division was formed in column of brigade, with Robinson's in front. At the sound of the bugle the column advanced, and fire was opened immediately. The troops moved with great steadiness and in almost perfect order, sometimes, even in the midst of the firing, halting for a moment and dressing the line. General Hooker accompanied the column, and, turning to Colonel Robinson, said: "Your movement splendid, Colonel—splendid." The Eighty-Second held the center of the line, and behaved with conspicuous gallantry. After advancing about half a mile Robinson's brigade was relieved and Ruger's brigade took the lead. General Ruger advanced within two hundred yards of the Rebel parapet, and maintained his position until the ammunition failed, and then Robinson's brigade again moved to the front. The brigade was exposed to a severe canister fire, and by sunset almost every cartridge was gone. The cartridge-boxes of the dead and wounded were searched, and a straggling fire was kept up until night, when Robinson's brigade was relieved.

During the 26th and 27th Williams's division was in reserve. About midnight on the 27th Robinson's brigade was detailed to escort a supply-train for ammunition to Kingston and back. This duty was performed successfully. On the 1st of June the army began to move toward the left. On the 6th Robinson's brigade arrived at a position near Pine Knob, where it remained until the 15th, when the line was advanced about two miles and to within a stone-throw of the Rebel parapet. The enemy was forced back upon Kennesaw, and in the operations around that place Robinson's brigade was held in reserve, and only engaged the enemy in skirmishes. After the evacuation of Kennesaw the Twentieth Corps went into position near Nicojack Creek. The corps crossed the Chattahoochee at Pace's Ferry on the 17th of July, and pressed forward toward Atlanta. On the 20th it crossed Peachtree Creek and found the Rebels in their works four miles from Atlanta. About ten o'clock P. M. the Rebels made a determined attack. Williams hurried his brigades into position. While Robinson's brigade was forming it received a volley which would have disconcerted any but veteran troops. The Eighty-Second was the second regiment in position, and it was hardly formed before the Rebels were upon it. The combatants became mingled with each other, and for some time the issue seemed doubtful; but at last the Rebels were forced to yield. In this engagement the Eighty-Second lost, not less than seventy-five killed and wounded. Lieutenant-Colonel Thompson was struck by a bullet, but it was turned aside by a pen-knife in his pocket, and only inflicted a slight wound.

During the siege of Atlanta the Eighty-Second held an important and an exposed position on a hill adjoining Marietta street. It was within range both of artillery and musketry, and on one occasion a cannon shot carried away the regimental colors and tore them to shreds. On the night of the 25th of August the Twentieth Corps withdrew from the intrenchments, and before daylight it was fortifying a new position along the Chattahoochie. At this point General Slocum assumed command of the corps. The rest of the army in the meantime moved southward. During the night of September 1st loud explosions and a bright light were seen in the direction of Atlanta. Early on the next morning a reconnoitering party was sent toward Atlanta. About noon the Eighty-Second joined another party moving in the same direction. The city was found evacuated. The entire corps moved up, and the regiment went into camp in the suburbs, near Peachtree street.

The regiment remained in camp at Atlanta, engaged in work on the fortifications and occasionally moving on a foraging expedition, until the 15th of November, when it started with Sherman's army for Savannah. The Eighty-Second met with nothing worthy of particular note until the 25th, when Wheeler's cavalry was encountered at Buffalo Creek. One company from the Eighty-Second Ohio, with one company from the Thirty-First Wisconsin, was sent forward to dislodge the enemy. The work was well done. Wheeler was forced from his position and driven back about a mile. Robinson's brigade was on the front line about Savannah, for a time, but it was moved to the rear, and was formed, facing outward, in order to cover the trains. Here it remained until the city was occupied by the National army.

On the 17th of January, 1865, the Third Division, commanded since leaving Atlanta by General N. J. Jackson, crossed the Savannah, and on the 19th arrived at Pureysville, South Carolina. Here the command was detained by high water until the 27th, when the march was resumed, and on the 29th Robertsville was reached. Here again the column was delayed until the 2d of February, when communications were abandoned and the march through the Carolinas commenced. The Eighty-Second performed its full share of marching, foraging, and corduroying. Upon one occasion three "bummers" from the Eighty-Second, with only a carbine, unexpectedly encountered a Rebel patrol of twelve cavalry fully equipped; the bummers put on a bold front, and calling out "forward, boys, here they are!" started for the Rebels, who betook themselves to flight. A swamp impeded their progress, and accordingly they dismounted and fled on foot, leaving their horses and equipments to the bummers.

On the 18th of February the Twentieth Corps crossed the Saluda four miles above Columbia; Broad River was crossed near Alston on the 20th, and on the 21st Winnsboro' was reached. On the 23d Wateree River was crossed near Rocky Mount Post-office, and on the 27th some foragers from the Eighty-Second captured, at Lancaster, a beautiful silk banner, inscribed upon one side, "Our cause is just: We will defend it with our lives;" and upon the other side, "Presented by the ladies to the Lancaster Invincibles." The march was continued by way of Chesterfield and Cheraw, and on the 11th of March the Twentieth Corps reached Fayetteville. On the 14th the march was resumed up the left bank of the Cape Fear River, and on the 16th the enemy was encountered three miles below Averysboro'. Robinson's brigade arrived on the field about ten o'clock A. M. The Rebels were gradually forced back, and toward evening they occupied a fortified line at the junction of the roads leading to Averysboro' and Bentonville. Here they made an obstinate stand and held the position until nightfall, when they withdrew. In this affair the Eighty-Second lost two officers and eight men wounded.

On the 18th the column crossed Black River and advanced twelve miles toward Cox's Bridge. At ten o'clock A. M. on the 19th cannonading was heard in front, and at one o'clock P. M. orders were received for the troops in the rear to hasten to the front. As soon as Robinson's brigade arrived it was thrown forward to fill the vacancy in Carlin's division, of the Fourteenth Corps. The men were without intrenching tools, but with their hatchets they at once commenced building a breastwork. Skirmishers were thrown out, and an effort was made to gain possession of some buildings, but the skirmishers were driven back by a murderous fire, and the enemy moved forward to the attack. The assault was made on Carlin's left, and in five minutes all the troops to the left of Robinson's brigade were swept away, and the enemy was coming down upon the flank in irresistible masses. The brigade immediately changed front but it was now enveloped both on front and flank, and orders were given to withdraw. The line was re-formed and as Robinson's brigade was enveloped on front and flank, but with the aid of artillery the Rebels were repulsed. No less than six assaults were made on this line during the afternoon, and every time the enemy was repulsed handsomely. The firing ceased shortly after nightfall, and Robinson's brigade was relieved and permitted to drop to the rear. The next day the enemy was content to assume the defensive, and on the 21st he retired. In the battle of Bentonville the Eighty-Second lost two officers and nine men wounded and fourteen men missing.

The whole army now turned toward Goldsboro', where it arrived on the 24th. On the 25th of April, and while still at Goldsboro', the Eighty-Second and Sixty-First Ohio were consolidated. The new regiment was denominated the Eighty-Second, and a few surplus officers were mustered out. On the 10th the troops moved to Raleigh, where they remained until after the surrender of Johnston's army. On the 30th of April the corps marched for Washington City, by way of Richmond, and on the 19th of May arrived at Alexandria. The regiment participated in a grand review in Washington on the 24th of May, and then went into camp near Fort Lincoln. When the Twentieth Corps was dissolved the Eighty-Second was assigned to a provisional division which was attached to the Fourteenth Corps. On the 15th of June the corps moved to Louisville, Kentucky. At Parkersburg the troops embarked on transports. Upon reaching Cincinnati the boats carrying Robinson's brigade, of which the Eighty-Second was still a part, stopped a short time, and General Hooker came down to the wharf. He was greeted enthusiastically by his soldiers, and in return made a brief speech. On arriving at Louisville the regiment went into camp on Speed's plantation, five miles south of the city. Here it remained until the 25th of July, when it proceeded to Columbus, Ohio, where it was paid and discharged on the 29th.

83d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	FRED. W. MOORE	Aug. 22, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	Wm. H. BALDWIN.....	16, " "	25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	S. S. L'HOMMEDIEU, JR.....	" 20, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	JOHN S. MCGREW.....	" 19, " "	" 25, " "
Do.....	GEORGE CASSIDY.....	Sept. 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out to accept promotion April 1, '65.
Do.....	PLYN A. WILLIS.....	March 11, 1863		Transferred from 48th O. V. I.
Ass't Surgeon	MARION WILKERSON.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Resigned August 31, 1863.
Do.....	GEORGE CASSIDY.....	Sept. 15, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted; trans. to 182d O. V. I. as Surgeon.
Do.....	CHRISTIAN H. WILIS.....	April 4, 1863	April 4, 1863	Transferred from 48th O. V. I.
Chaplain.....	S. L. YOURTSE.....	Sept. 13, " "	Nov. 20, " "	Resigned May 3, 1863.
Do.....	HENRY FRANCIS.....	Oct. 12, 1861	Oct. 12, 1864	Commission returned.
Captain.....	Dewitt W. C. Shockley.....	July 11, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Resigned February 9, 1863.
Do.....	James W. Craven.....	" 19, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned November 7, 1862.
Do.....	Edward Mansur.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned November 7, 1862.
Do.....	Gilbert W. Boyer.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned December 15, 1862.
Do.....	Pardon D. Cornell.....	" 29, " "	" 25, " "	Discharged April 13, 1863.
Do.....	John W. Ross.....	" 29, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned January 2, 1864.
Do.....	Henry P. Deutscher.....	Aug. 11, " "	" 25, " "	Discharged March 8, 1863.
Do.....	Francis M. Lefler.....	" 19, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph B. Goussuch.....	" 19, " "	" 25, " "	Died.
Do.....	Albert M. Thornton.....	" 22, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned August 2, 1863.
Do.....	Philip Buschner.....	Nov. 7, " "	Nov. 17, " "	Resigned August 2, 1863.
Do.....	James Carlin.....	" 7, " "	Dec. 21, " "	Resigned July 26, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. H. Windeler.....	Feb. 9, 1863	April 9, 1863	Resigned July 29, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. R. McComas.....	May 8, " "	June 15, " "	Detached as Engineer 2d Division, 12th A. C.
Do.....	Lawrence Wadsworth.....	April 13, " "	" 15, " "	Killed in action.
Do.....	James P. Cummings.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John R. Phillips.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John D. Gary.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Cornelius A. Burns.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Killed in action.
Do.....	James H. Wilson.....	July 11, " "	July 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Daniel Gunsaulus.....	Feb. 21, 1863	March 25, 1863	Trans. from 48th O. V. I.; hon. dis. March 17, 1865.
Do.....	James R. Lynch.....	Nov. 1, " "	Jan. 25, 1864	Trans. from 48th O. V. I.; must. out with reg.
Do.....	Andrew M. Cochran.....	" 1, " "	" 25, " "	Trans. from 48th O. V. I.; must. out with reg.
Do.....	George N. Mosgrove.....	" 1, " "	" 27, " "	Trans. from 48th O. V. I.; must. out with reg.
Do.....	Michael McCaffrey.....	May 2, 1863	May 2, 1863	Trans. from 48th O. V. I.; must. out with reg.
1st Lieutenant	Lawrence Waldo.....	July 21, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John W. Birch.....	" 21, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned August 1, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. R. McComas.....	" 21, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Philip Beschner.....	" 15, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. H. Windeler.....	Aug. 26, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James Carlin.....	July 14, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Adam E. Billieysley.....	Aug. 8, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned June 12, 1863.
Do.....	John O'Connor.....	July 28, " "	" 25, " "	Discharged March 8, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. Weaver, jr.....	Sept. 12, " "	" 25, " "	Killed in action.
Do.....	Jerome B. Ebert.....	Aug. 9, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned June 7, 1863.
Do.....	James P. Cummings.....	" 19, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. Phillips.....	" 12, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned February 22, 1863.
Do.....	John T. Talbott.....	Nov. 7, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned February 18, 1863.
Do.....	Francis M. Lefler.....	July 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Gershon L. Tomlinson.....	Sept. 7, " "	Dec. 24, " "	Resigned March 31, 1863.
Do.....	Joseph Rudolph.....	Feb. 22, 1863	April 9, 1863	Resigned August 7, 1863.
Do.....	John Curtiss.....	March 3, " "	" 9, " "	Resigned August 21, 1863.
Do.....	Henry M. Gastrell.....	Feb. 9, " "	" 9, " "	Resigned December 16, 1863.
Do.....	Edward N. Clopper.....	May 8, " "	June 15, " "	Resigned August 2, 1863.
Do.....	John R. Phillips.....	" 8, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Jedidiah Hill.....	April 13, " "	" 15, " "	Died April 17, 1863.
Do.....	John D. Gary.....	" 15, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. A. Beasley.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Resigned January 8, 1865.
Do.....	Stacey Daniels.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out January 8, 1865.
Do.....	James H. Wilson.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John S. Mitchell.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Archie Young.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Samuel G. Kyle.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Resigned January 8, 1865.
Do.....	Edward C. Collins.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James T. Demar.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Samuel A. Keen.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George Kerr.....	April 18, " "	April 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment. [in action.
Do.....	John Snyder.....	July 11, " "	July 11, " "	Died in hosp. April 26, 1865, of wounds received
Do.....	Michael McCaffrey.....	Feb. 11, 1863	March 25, 1863	Declined; commission returned.
Do.....	Michael McCaffrey.....	Feb. 21, 1863	March 25, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. H. H. Iyke.....	March 1, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment. [1865.
Do.....	John K. Reed.....	Nov. 1, " "	Jan. 25, 1864	Trans. from 48th O. V. I.; must. out July 31,
Do.....	Wm. J. Srofe.....	" 1, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John Stroetch.....	Jan. 1, 1864	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George W. Car-y.....	May 12, 1865	May 2, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Lewis A. Davidson.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Albert Furhman.....	June 16, " "	June 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Serg. Major.
Do.....	John T. Talbott.....	July 22, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Resigned March 30, 1863.
Do.....	Henry M. Gastrell.....	" 15, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John T. Talbott.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Gershon L. Tomlinson.....	" 26, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John R. Phillips.....	" 8, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	John S. Taylor, jr.....	July 31, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.	Noah S. Broumbough.....	Sept. 12, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned November 24, 1862.
Do.	Jedidiah Hill.....	Aug. 9, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant; died.
Do.	Alfred Sheaffer.....	" 11, " "	" 25, " "	Dismissed April 13, 1863.
Do.	Edward N. Clopper.....	July 16, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. L. Robinson.....	Nov. 13, " "	Nov. 13, " "	Dismissed August 6, 1863.
Do.	Matthew Whillden.....	" 17, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned December 31, 1863.
Do.	Joseph Rudolph.....	" 24, " "	Dec. 24, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Curtiss.....	" 7, " "	" 24, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Cornelius A. Burnes.....	Feb. 13, 1863	June 11, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Snyder.....	March 30, " "	May 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James J. Sherman.....	" 13, " "	June 15, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. A. Beasley.....	Feb. 9, " "	May 18, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James W. C. Smith.....	" 22, " "	June 9, " "	Resigned August 11, 1863.
Do.	Stacey Daniels.....	April 15, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James A. Large.....	May 8, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned August 11, 1863.
Do.	James H. Wilson.....	April 13, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John S. Mitchell.....	" 13, " "	July 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

EIGHTY-THIRD OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE EIGHTY-THIRD was recruited in the counties of Hamilton and Butler; seven companies being from the former, and three from the latter county. On the 3d of September, 1862, the seven companies from Hamilton County, then at Camp Dennison were ordered into Kentucky to check Kirby Smith's advance on Cincinnati. On the night of the 3d the companies bivouacked in the streets of Covington. They were ordered at first to Fort Mitchell, but they moved from there to Camp King; and thence across Licking River to the support of Beechwood Battery, on the Alexandria Turnpike. For several days the picket-duty was severe, and then the companies were withdrawn to Camp Orchard. On the 12th of September these seven companies were joined by the three from Butler County, which had been organized at Camp Dennison; but as all the companies had the requisite number of men on the 22d of August, the regimental organization dated from that time. The Eighty-Third now numbered one thousand and ten men.

On the 18th the regiment, forming part of an expedition under General Q. A. Gillmor moved to Cynthiana; but encountering no organized force it returned to camp. The march was exceedingly fatiguing to raw troops, as the weather was warm, the roads were dusty, and water was scarce. On the 25th the Eighty-Third moved to Camp Schaler and reported to General Green Clay Smith. It arrived at Paris on the 15th of October, and at that point was assigned to the First Brigade, Tenth Division, Army of the Tennessee, General Burbridge commanding the brigade, and General A. J. Smith the division. On the 28th of October the division moved for Louisville, halting two weeks on the way at Nicholasville. Here Mr. L'Hommédieu on behalf of the Hamilton and Dayton Railroad Company, presented the Eighty-Third with an elegantly embroidered banner. While in Kentucky the regiment was allowed two two-horse and one four-horse ambulance, and twenty-six six-mule wagons; and yet this amount of transportation was inadequate to supply the wants of the regiment. Two years later three wagons to a regiment was deemed an extravagant allowance.

Smith's division sailed for Memphis on the 23d of November, and on the 20th of December it again embarked and proceeded down the Mississippi, under General Sherman. Milliken Bend was reached on Christmas Day, and Burbridge's brigade was ordered to disembark and move in light marching order to destroy the Vicksburg and Shreveport Railroad Bridge over Tennessie River, some twenty-eight miles distant. That bridge, two hundred feet long, and two others of less importance were destroyed, and a large amount of Confederate cotton was burned. The brigade returned at midnight on the 26th, greatly fatigued by thirty hours continuous marching and labor. On the 27th the fleet moved down to the mouth of the Yazoo, and up that stream to Old River, where the troops debarked, and moved against the enemy at Chickasaw Bayou. Here the regiment obtained its first full view of the grim visage of war. In the engagement it did not lose heavily but the men were under fire for several days, and were compelled to eat their rations uncooked.

From Chickasaw Bayou the troops moved to Arkansas Post. On the morning of the 11th of January dispositions were made for an attack on the enemy's position. The regiment formed the left of the first line of Smith's division, and when an advance was ordered moved forward on the double-quick. The right wing of the Eighty-Third suffered a temporary check from a force of Rebels sheltered by a cluster of cabins, but the companies rallied immediately, made a gallant charge, and drove the enemy to the fort. For more than two hours the regiment held its position under a murderous fire of musketry and artillery, advancing little by little, until within eighty yards of the fort, when, the guns commanding the glacis and ditch having been silenced, the Eighty-Third dashed forward through the broad, muddy ditch, partly filled with water, and mounted the parapet. It was the first regiment to plant the colors on the enemy's battlements. It was honorably mentioned in the official reports, and the Legislature of Ohio showed its appreciation of the regiment's bravery by a unanimous vote of thanks. The regimental colors were riddled completely, and more than one-fifth of the men were killed or wounded.

After a few days spent in demolishing the fort, burying the dead, and caring for the wounded, the army moved down the river, and on the 23d of January, 1863, arrived at Young's Point. Here the regiment lost many men by disease. On the 14th of April the baggage was placed on barges and run past the batteries to Perkins's Plantation, five miles below New Carthage, where the Eighty-Third arrived on the 25th, having moved by land to Smith's Plantation, and thence by boat down Bayou Vidale and the Mississippi. The Mississippi was crossed at Iammsburg, and at midnight on the 30th the troops commenced moving for the rear of Vicksburg. On the morning of the 1st of May the enemy was encountered. He fell back slowly, contesting every foot of ground. Fighting lasted all day. Smith's division marched on through Port Gibson, Willow Springs, and Raymond. Following the railroad from Raymond the Rebel pickets were met and driven in on the 16th. The troops marched briskly forward, and about ten o'clock found the enemy strongly posted on a ridge. The Seventeenth Ohio Battery being short of men sixteen men from the Eighty-Third were sent to help work the guns. The battle raged fiercely for more than two hours, when the enemy was forced from his position. He fell back about a mile, and made a stand until night enabled him to retire. The march was continued by way of Edward's Station to Big Black Bridge. The approach to the bridge was defended by an extensive earthwork, mounting seventeen guns. Burbridge's brigade advanced against the center of the work, across an open field, and the Eighty-Third was one of the first regiments to reach the works. Big Black was crossed on the next day, and on the 29th the regiment was confronting the Rebel works at Vicksburg. On the 22d an assault was made, the Eighty-Third forming a part of the line. The regiment lost about eight per centum of the number engaged. It assisted in the subsequent siege-operations until the surrender of the city.

On the 5th of July Smith's division moved against Johnston's forces. The regiment participated in the operations around Jackson, and upon the evacuation of that place followed the fleeing Rebels as far as Brandon, and then returned to Vicksburg. The weather was intensely warm, and but little water was to be found; and what was found was often unfit to drink, having been rendered nauseous by the putrid carcasses of animals. Adequate provision for supplying the officers with rations had not been made, and in addition to their other hardships many of them were forced to subsist entirely on green corn for several days. On the 24th of August the Eighty-Third moved to Carrollton, Louisiana. With the exception of an expedition to Donaldsonville the regiment remained in camp until the 3d of October, when it started on the Teche campaign. The troops moved up the Teche to New Iberia, and thence by way of Opelousas to Barre's Landing, on Bayou Cortableau. On the 1st of November the troops fell back through Grand Coteau, and Burbridge's brigade went into camp near Carroncro Bayou. On the 3d a force of Rebels made a sudden attack on the brigade and the camp was thrown into some confusion. The Eighty-Third chanced to be out in charge of a forage-train, and was thoroughly prepared to meet the enemy. It hastened back, and by its timely arrival the brigade was able to hold the enemy in check, and to fall back in good order until re-enforcements came up, when the Rebels were driven from the field. In this encounter the Eighty-Third lost fifty-six men, most captured. The troops fell back to New Iberia, and after remaining a month in camp moved to Berwick. From this point the regiment was sent to Algiers in charge of a wagon-train. It was ordered in haste to Fort Jackson to check a mutiny among colored troops, and after remaining four weeks it returned to New Orleans, and was ordered to Madisonville, where it was assigned to the Second Brigade, Third Division, Thirteenth Corps. The division left Madisonville on the 25th of February, 1864, and proceeded to Franklin. The Eighty-Third was here transferred to the First Brigade, Fourth Division, Thirteenth Corps.

On the 13th of March the Fourth Division started on the Red River expedition. It moved by way of Natchitoches and Pleasant Hills. On the morning of the 8th of April the Eighty-Third was placed in charge of the ammunition-train of one hundred and fifty wagons, while the remainder of the brigade was ordered to report to General Lee commanding the cavalry. At one o'clock P. M. the regiment was ordered to join the brigade as soon as possible. It marched ten miles in two hours, and went into position in a woods on the extreme right of the line of battle. At half-past three o'clock the enemy commenced to advance. The Eighty-Third moved out of the woods, closed up on the skirmish-line, and opened a deadly fire, which checked the enemy at two hundred yards and threw the first line back upon the second. The enemy rallied and advanced again; was again checked, and this time was compelled to lie down in order to avoid the fire. The Rebel left extended a long distance to the right of the Eighty-Third, and being unopposed it swung round as if to envelope the right of the National line. As the Eighty-Third was changing front in order to oppose this advance on the flank, it received directions to move to the left for the purpose of re-enforcing a portion of the line that was wavering. Although subjected to a severe cross-fire the regiment moved off in perfect order; but upon reaching the point designated it was found that the line had fallen back. The regiment retired to the crest of a ridge where the other troops were re-forming, and a gallant stand was made. The position was held for half an hour, and then the line was forced back some two hundred yards. The men were supplied with ammunition, and the Eighty-Third, with the Ninety-Sixth Ohio, was ordered to the right to ascertain if the enemy was attempting to cut off the retreat. These regiments came upon the enemy concealed in thick undergrowth, and being assailed on three sides were obliged to fall back. The troops fell back about two miles from the battle-field, and at dark the enemy was checked. The troops were withdrawn late in the evening, and at ten o'clock they commenced the return-march to Pleasant Hills. The regiment remained at Pleasant Hills in line of battle all the next day. Toward night the line fell back, and on the 11th the troops reached Grand Ecore. On the 21st the troops were again in motion, and on the 25th Alexandria was reached.

On the 2d of May the Eighty-Third and a company of cavalry, with fifty wagons, started on a foraging expedition. After a march of nine miles and a brisk skirmish, the regiment occupied the buildings on Governor Morris's plantation; but finding a superior force of the enemy strongly posted it withdrew to a favorable position and awaited the attack. In a few minutes a force of cavalry and mounted infantry formed for a charge, and came dashing down in gallant style. Every man stood steady until the enemy was within seventy-five yards, when a well-aimed volley from the rear rank, followed by one from the front rank, and then by another from the rear rank sent the Rebels back as rapidly as they had advanced. Quite a number of saddles were emptied and several horses were killed. The wagons were loaded with corn, and the regiment returned to camp without further molestation. During its stay at Alexandria the Eighty-Third furnished heavy details to work on the dam. On the 13th it moved from Alexandria, and marching by way of Yellow Bayou and Marksville, reached Fort Taylor, four miles from Simmsport. Th

Atchafalaya was bridged by lashing twenty-three steamboats side by side. The Eighty-Third crossed on the 20th, and on the 22d arrived at Morganza, on the Mississippi.

On the 28th of May it moved down to Baton Rouge, where it remained in camp until the 21st of July, when it left for Algiers. From there the regiment moved to Morganza to re-enforce that post against an expected attack. It arrived on the 28th and quietly went into camp. On the 1st of October the Eighty-Third, with other troops, marched from Morganza to sieze Morgan's Ferry, on the Atchafalaya. The position was occupied and held until the 9th, when the expedition returned to Morganza. On the 18th the regiment moved on another expedition to the Atchafalaya, at Simmsport. Here some prisoners were exchanged, and on the 29th the troops returned to Morganza. On the 1st of November the Eighty-Third embarked and moved to the mouth of White River, where it remained until December 6th, when it returned to Morganza. It was ordered to Natchez for consolidation with the Forty-Eighth Ohio. The Eighty-Third was consolidated into six companies, and the Forty-Eighth into four companies. All the field-officers of the Eighty-Third were retained.

On the 28th of January, 1865, the Eighty-Third was ordered to Kennerville, and after a short stay it proceeded to New Orleans. It moved out to Lakeport on the cars, and embarked on an ocean steamer for Barrancas, where it arrived in three days and five hours from Natchez. The celerity of the movement was acknowledged in a complimentary order. The regiment was assigned to the Third Brigade, Second Division, Thirteenth Army Corps. On the 11th of March the division moved to Pensacola, and on the 20th started on the campaign against Mobile. After severe marching on short rations, over very bad roads, the division arrived in the vicinity of Fort Blakely on the 2d of April. Siege operations were pushed forward vigorously, the Eighty-Third rendering its full share of assistance. About five o'clock P. M. on the 9th of April the regiment was moved into the advance rifle-pit, and was deployed to cover the brigade front. The works about to be assaulted were six hundred yards distant, and consisted of a series of forts connected by an elaborately constructed breastwork. The most formidable fort was in front of the regiment's center; and another well-built fort was on the left. These works were protected by two lines of abattis, by rifle-pits, and a telegraph wire stretched as high as the knee; and in addition to all this the ground was thickly planted with torpedoes. At the word of command the men sprang forward on the run, and advanced under a heavy fire of artillery and musketry. When within fifty feet of the fort the center halted a moment to allow the wings, which had been delayed by obstaeles, to close up, and then the whole line went over the works almost together. The gunners left some of their pieces partly loaded; some of the Rebels surrendered, and others fled. The fort and prisoners were placed under guard, and the regiment turned to the left, and after a spirited fight the other fort was captured and placed under guard. The Eighty-Third pursued the enemy, who fled to the landing. The brigade left the rifle-pit just as the regiment went over the enemy's works, but did not come up until the whole line of works had been placed under guard by the Eighty-Third. The regiment captured two forts, eight cannon, two mortars, a long line of breastworks, eight hundred prisoners, two flags, and a large quantity of small-arms, ammunition, and other stores. It lost thirty-six officers and men killed and wounded. The colors were well riddled, and the staffs, both of the regimental banner and the National color, were shot in two; but the color-bearers gallantly carried the tattered flags over the parapet of the fort.

On the 20th the Eighty-Third left Blakely for Mobile. On the morning of the 21st it debarked, moved out beyond the city, and went into line of battle; but in the evening it returned to the landing, embarked, and anchored in the channel. On the next day it proceeded up the river to Selma, where it performed provost-duty until the 12th of May, when it returned to Mobile, where it remained until the 13th of June, and then embarked for Galveston. The regiment performed guard-duty in the city of Galveston until the 26th of July, when it embarked for New Orleans. On the 29th it started up the river. It arrived at Cairo on the 3d of August, embarked on the cars, and reached Cincinnati on the 5th. It proceeded to Camp Dennison, where it was paid and discharged on the 10th of August, 1865.

84th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	WM. LAWRENCE.....	Jun 7, 1862	June 9, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	JOHN J. WISEMAN.....	" 7, "	" 9, "	Detached at Washington, D. C.
Major.....	JOHN C. GROOM.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Appointed Colonel 100 O. V. I.
Surgeon.....	BENJ. B. DONALD.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	JAMES W. THOMSON.....	" 1, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	ABRAHAM R. HOWARTH.....	" 9, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Richard White.....	May 31, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Roswell Shurtlee.....	" 31, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Halbert B. Case.....	" 31, "	" 7, "
Do.....	John N. Frazee.....	June 7, "	" 7, "
Do.....	James Peckands.....	" 7, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Christopher H. Orth.....	" 5, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Wm. A. Powell.....	" 4, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Abraham C. Cummings.....	" 4, "	" 7, "
Do.....	John H. Winder.....	" 5, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Uriah Gregory.....	" 6, "	" 7, "
1st Lieutenant.....	John B. Lomberg.....	May 31, "	" 7, "
Do.....	John Loubbeck.....	" 31, "	" 7, "
Do.....	James Crandon.....	" 31, "	" 7, "	Resigned June 9, 1862.
Do.....	Eli Ely.....	June 7, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Virgil C. Taylor.....	" 7, "	" 7, "
Do.....	John M. Leish.....	" 3, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Horatio H. Manning.....	" 4, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Homer Ayres.....	" 4, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Alexander G. Maynes.....	" 5, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Edmond Paine.....	" 6, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Alexander G. Stillwell.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Adjutant; died August 18, 1862.
Do.....	Charles Rhoades.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Resigned June 10, 1862.
Do.....	John B. Irwin.....	" 9, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Frank Braisted.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Quartermaster.
2d Lieutenant.....	Hamilton C. Cotton.....	May 31, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Hiram M. Field.....	" 31, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Charles S. Abell.....	" 31, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Frank H. Hinman.....	" 2, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Henry T. Nash.....	" 2, "	" 7, "
Do.....	James Wallace.....	" 3, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Alexander G. Stillwell.....	" 4, "	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	James Smith.....	" 4, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Barratt W. Kerfoot.....	" 5, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Wm. H. H. Miller.....	" 6, "	" 7, "
Do.....	Carlton S. Moorehouse.....	" 7, "	" 9, "

EIGHTY-FOURTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, on the 7th of June, 1862, and on the 11th of the same month was ordered to Cumberland, Maryland. From this point detachments of the regiment moved on several expeditions for the purpose of preventing the transportation of arms and supplies into the Rebel lines, of capturing Rebel mails and mail carriers, and of putting an end to the operations of guerrilla bands.

On the 13th of September the regiment was ordered to New Creek, where an attack was anticipated by the Rebel forces under Jackson and Imboden. A portion of the regiment occupied the fort in the rear of New Creek, and the remainder was posted in the village. The enemy retired without making an attack, and the regiment was ordered to Camp Chase for muster-out. It was ordered from Camp Chase to Camp Delaware when, together with the Eighty-Seventh, it was reviewed by Governor Tod, who complimented the officers and men upon their efficiency and the value of the service they had rendered.

The regiment was mustered out after having served about a month longer than its term of enlistment.

85th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	CHAS. W. B. ALLISON.....	June 10, 1862	June 12, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel...	PERCY S. SOWERS.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	PELUR ZIEN.....	" 10, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	L. C. BROWN.....	" 10, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	JOHN E. DAREY.....	" 10, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	HENRY L. HITCHCOCK.....	" 10, "	" 12, "	Declined.
Do.....	EDWARD P. GOODWIN.....	" 24, "	" 24, "
Captain.....	Francis S. Parker.....	" 10, "	" 12, "
Do.....	John S. Speer.....	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Charles A. Young.....	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.....	David H. Moor.....	" 9, "	" 16, "	Transferred to 87th regiment.
Do.....	Thomas S. Bunker.....	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.....	John M. Reddie.....	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Edward K. Allen.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Transferred to 87th regiment.
Do.....	John C. Moon.....	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Moses R. Bingley.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Mustered out September 4, 1862.
Do.....	John F. Herrick.....	" 11, "	" 16, "	Transferred to 87th regiment.
Do.....	Harvey Burdell.....	" 11, "	" 12, "
Do.....	Stein B. Parks.....	" 11, "	" 12, "
Do.....	James C. Henley.....	" 14, "	" 14, "
1st Lieutenant	Robert F. Johnson.....	" 10, "	" 12, "	Adjutant.
Do.....	David Humphrey.....	" 10, "	" 12, "	Quartermaster.
Do.....	Hyman Dayton.....	" 10, "	" 12, "
Do.....	Alex. A. Taylor.....	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Carroll Cutter.....	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Edward S. Meshure.....	" 9, "	" 16, "	Transferred to 87th regiment.
Do.....	Silas Holt.....	" 9, "	" 16, "	Died August 3, 1862.
Do.....	Charles E. Sausser.....	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Andrew D. McClure.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Transferred to 87th regiment.
Do.....	John W. Ross.....	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Augustus A. Wood.....	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.....	George W. Pease.....	" 11, "	" 16, "	Transferred to 87th regiment.
Do.....	Samuel A. Decker.....	" 11, "	" 12, "
Do.....	Robert Savage.....	" 11, "	" 12, "
Do.....	George Oman.....	" 11, "	" 14, "
2d Lieutenant	Moses Shelton.....	" 10, "	" 12, "
Do.....	Clark A. Moore.....	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Edwin L. Webber.....	" 9, "	" 16, "	Mustered out September 23 by order of Adjutant-General Hill.
Do.....	Josiah H. Jenkins.....	" 9, "	" 16, "	Transferred to 87th regiment.
Do.....	Ludwell W. Nichols.....	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Spencer Garwood.....	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Pauling B. Slevin.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Transferred to 87th regiment.
Do.....	Ross W. Anderson.....	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Wm. R. McMannis.....	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.....	Wallace A. Pinner.....	" 11, "	" 16, "	Transferred to 87th regiment.
Do.....	Francis M. Howard.....	" 11, "	" 12, "
Do.....	Joseph C. Plummer.....	" 11, "	" 12, "
Do.....	Henry C. Stites.....	" 14, "	" 14, "

EIGHTY-FIFTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS organization never reached the regimental point. It was recruited to the proportions of a battalion (four companies), and retained in Camp Chase to aid in guarding the large number of Rebel prisoners in confinement there. Occasionally a company of it would be attached to some regimental organization and sent to the field. It is due to the officers and men of the Eighty-Fifth to say that they performed most arduous and valuable duty, and that they merited and received the commendations of both the Governor of the State, and of the United States authorities on duty at Camp Chase.

86th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	BARNABAS BURNS	June 10, 1862	June 10, 1862	All mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	HENRY B. HUNTER	" 10, "	" 12, "
Major	WILSON C. LEMERT	" 10, "	" 10, "
Surgeon	JOHN N. MOWRY	" 13, "	" 16, "
Ass't Surgeon	JOHN HILL	" 14, "	" 16, "
Chaplain	ROBERT G. DEBOIS	" 16, "	" 12, "
Captain	Robert McFarland	" 5, "	" 16, "
Do.	Howard D. John	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.	Alfred N. Mead	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.	Andrew H. Byers	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.	Wm. H. Robb	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.	Frederick W. Wood	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.	Samuel S. Kemble	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.	Wm. Mayse	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.	Andrew V. P. Day	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.	Erastus C. Moderwell	" 10, "	" 16, "
1st Lieutenant	James W. Owens	" 5, "	" 16, "
Do.	James M. Bell	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.	Elew. C. Vining	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.	Isaac B. Himer	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.	George L. Sellers	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.	Amos W. Ewing	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.	Bradford Miller	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.	Franklin Chance	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.	Chas. C. Brandt	" 10, "	" 16, "	Adjutant.
Do.	Samuel Smalley, Jr.	" 17, "	" 17, "
Do.	David Wm. Todd	" 17, "	" 17, "	Quartermaster.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. S. Foster	" 5, "	" 16, "
Do.	D. Wm. Todd	" 7, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant
Do.	H. Stevens Crawford	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.	Wm. S. Myers	" 7, "	" 16, "
Do.	Chas. P. Cavis	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.	George S. Comer	" 9, "	" 16, "
Do.	Stephen R. Clark	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.	Amos Richardson	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.	Samuel S. Blackford	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.	Horace Potter	" 10, "	" 16, "
Do.	Richard Montjoy	" 17, "	" 17, "	Orderly-Sergeant.

ROSTER, SIX MONTHS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	WILSON C. LEMERT	July 14, 1863	July 17, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	ROBERT W. McFARLAND	" 8, "	" 17, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	WM. KRAUS	" 11, "	" 17, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	WM. R. S. CLARK	" 10, "	" 17, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	WM. C. CATLIN	" 3, "	" 17, "	Resigned September 17, 1863.
Do.	JOHN HILL	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. B. HEDGES	Sept. 18, "	Nov. 20, "
Chaplain	CHAS. REYNOLDS	July 24, "	July 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Wm. Kraus	June 16, "	June 17, "	Promoted to Major July 14, 1863.
Do.	L. W. Field	July 7, "	July 17, "
Do.	Arion K. Lindsey	" 9, "	" 17, "
Do.	John H. Reid	" 13, "	" 17, "
Do.	Thomas Yeager	" 13, "	" 17, "
Do.	Joab Squire	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	Wm. F. Milliken	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	E. W. Briggs	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	Robert Lysie	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	James W. Owens	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	Seth Truesdale	" 14, "	" 17, "
1st Lieutenant	Rufus P. Manning	" 1, "	" 17, "	Quartermaster.
Do.	Henry E. Parrott	" 10, "	" 17, "	Adjutant.
Do.	Seth Truesdale	June 16, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Clydes D. Cole	" 9, "	" 17, "
Do.	Wm. W. Cockey	" 13, "	" 17, "
Do.	Josiah B. Sanford	" 13, "	" 17, "
Do.	Samuel Wood	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	Thomas J. Sterling	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	Allen P. Steel	" 14, "	" 17, "	Resigned October 2, 1863.
Do.	Marion Lesure	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	Wm. L. Myers	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	Erskine B. Fullerton	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	Louis N. Pollock	" 14, "	" 17, "
Do.	James T. Langstroth	Oct. 2, "	Nov. 27, "

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.		COM. ISSUED.		REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Louis N. Pollock.....	June	15, 1862	July	17, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant
Do.	Brown Newlove.....	July	17, "	"	17, "
Do.	John B. Welch.....	"	9, "	"	17, "
Do.	James T. Dean.....	"	13, "	"	17, "
Do.	Justice O. Rose.....	"	13, "	"	17, "
Do.	John Zimmermann.....	"	14, "	"	17, "	Resigned October 2, 1862.
Do.	Virgil N. Weir.....	"	14, "	"	17, "
Do.	A. A. Wood.....	"	14, "	"	17, "
Do.	Robert C. Campbell.....	"	14, "	"	17, "
Do.	Chas E. Patrick.....	"	14, "	"	17, "
Do.	John Redd.....	"	14, "	"	17, "

EIGHTY-SIXTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

HERE were two organizations of this number; the first, or three months' organization, was one of several called out by Governor Tod, then the Executive of Ohio, in response to a call from the President for seventy-five thousand men, in May, 1862, to serve for three months. General Banks had retreated down the Shenandoah Valley, and the Rebel General Jackson was menacing the Northern States, therefore the urgent call for three months' men.

It was designated the Eighty-Sixth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and was organized at Camp Chase on the 11th day of June, 1862.

On the 16th of June the regiment left Camp Chase for Clarksburg, West Virginia, arriving there on the night of the 17th, via Grafton. It was stationed at this point for the purpose of guarding the railroad and protecting Grafton, that town being the base of supplies for the troops at Weston, Buckhannon, and Beverly. On the 27th of July, companies A, C, II, and I, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Hunter, were ordered by Brigadier-General Kelley to Parkersburg, in anticipation of a raid upon that point. On their arrival there they found the citizens in a state of great excitement, caused by rumors of a hostile force approaching the town. The arrival of the troops soon allayed all fears. While this detachment remained here, company II was distributed at different points on the railroad east of this place, while the other companies performed guard and provost duty.

On the 21st of August this detachment was ordered back to Clarksburg, in consequence of the whole regiment having received orders from Brigadier-General Kelley to proceed to Beverly, to prevent a Rebel force under Jenkins from crossing Cheat Mountain and making a raid on the railroad and invading Ohio. Jenkins not making his appearance in that direction, after going as far as Huttonsville, the Eighty-Sixth was ordered back to Clarksburg, the Eighty-Seventh Pennsylvania remaining at Beverly, to be in readiness in case he might appear before that place. The detachment reached Clarksburg about the 26th of July. Jenkins succeeded in crossing the mountain at another point, and coming down French Creek, attacked Buckhannon. A few troops at this place made a gallant resistance, losing a number of men killed and wounded, but the town was captured, and over one hundred thousand dollars worth of Government stores destroyed. From Buckhannon, Jenkins proceeded to Weston, marching all night, and meeting with feeble resistance, captured that place also, destroying Government stores to a large amount. Continuing westward, traveling rapidly, he reached the Ohio River, crossed it, stole a few horses, and returned into the mountains of West Virginia.

While Jenkins was in the neighborhood of Buckhannon, it was supposed it was his intention to attack Clarksburg, allured by the tempting chance to destroy a large amount of Government property in store at that place. In anticipation of such an attack, the stores were transferred to Fairmount and Wheeling. The force at Clarksburg consisted of the Eighty-Sixth Ohio and a detachment of the Sixth Virginia, placed at different points around the town for the purpose of making a vigorous defense. Jenkins's spies, of which the town and surrounding country was full, doubtless apprised the wary guerrilla of these precautions against his premeditated attack, and he very wisely avoided the town, and continued on toward Weston and the Ohio River.

The term for which the Eighty-Sixth was enlisted having expired, the regiment was placed under orders to Camp Delaware, Ohio, starting for their camp on the 17th of September, and arrived there the next day. On the 25th of September, 1862, the regiment was paid, and mustered out of the service of the United States.

The Sixth Months' Organization.

THE Rebels still manifesting their purpose to invade the Northern Border States, it was decided by the authorities that a certain number of troops should be called out for the term of six months, whereupon some of the old officers of the Three Months' Eighty-Sixth conceived the idea of reorganizing the regiment. The former Major, Wilson C. Lement, of Bucyrus, being authorized by Governor Tod, commenced and completed the organization, Camp Cleveland being the rendezvous selected for that purpose.

About the time the organization was completed, the Rebel guerrilla, John Morgan, was making his raid through Southern Ohio. The regiment had been ordered to, and was then at, Camp Tod, near Columbus. Governor Tod immediately placed it under orders to join in the chase of the invaders. The Rebels having been defeated by our forces at Bullington's Island, on the Ohio River, and prevented from crossing there, had turned in a north-west direction, and were then near the Muskingum River, below Zanesville. The Eighty-Sixth was ordered to Zanesville, and on its arrival a detachment under Lieutenant-Colonel McFarland, of two hundred men, embarked in a boat for Eagleport, on the Muskingum River, as it was supposed Morgan would attempt to cross in that vicinity. Our force arrived just in time to witness the crossing of the rear-guard of the Rebels, but not being strong enough to attack, Lieutenant-Colonel McFarland only attempted to detain them as long as possible, by skirmishing, until the force in pursuit should come up. Having executed his orders the Lieutenant-Colonel returned with his detachment to Zanesville. In the meantime Major Kraus had been ordered to Cambridge, Ohio, with the remainder of the regiment to intercept Morgan at or near that place, but meeting with some delay, he arrived at Washington, on the turnpike, eight miles from Cambridge, a few minutes after the Rebel force had passed through the town. Pursuit was continued, however, in conjunction with the command of Colonel Shackelford, resulting in the capture of Morgan's forces near Salineville, Columbiana County, Ohio.

The Eighty-Sixth returned to Camp Tod, and after remaining there a few days, was, on the 8th of August, ordered to proceed to Camp Nelson, Kentucky, there to join an expedition organizing for the capture of Cumberland Gap, East Tennessee.

The regiment arrived at Camp Nelson August 11, 1863. The expedition, under command of Colonel John De Courey, left Camp Nelson August 15th, and by easy marches arrived in front of Cumberland Gap on the 8th of September. The force under the command of Colonel De Courey consisted of the Eighty-Sixth and One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth Ohio, detachments of the Ninth and Eleventh East Tennessee Cavalry, and Captain Neil's Twenty-Second Ohio Battery. At Pittman's Cross Roads, near London, Kentucky, Colonel De Courey, in order to magnify his forces in the eyes of the Rebel spies, divided each regiment, making, apparently, two of one.

MORGAN RABBITERS IN OFFICE.

This ruse had the desired effect, as the strength of his command was greatly exaggerated to the enemy who held the Gap, it being represented to them as a force of from ten to twelve thousand men, whereas it did not exceed three thousand.

Simultaneously with the arrival of Colonel De Courcy in front of the Gap, on the Kentucky side, Major-General Burnside arrived with his forces on the opposite, or Tennessee side, thus completely investing the Rebel garrison under General Frazier. On the 9th of September the Eighty-Sixth Ohio was placed on the Harlem road, leading into the Gap from the north, and formed in line of battle, with skirmishers in advance, in front of Raeky Fort; two pieces of Niel's Battery on the left, occupying an elevated plateau, and the One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth Ohio in supporting distance to the rear. The remainder of Niel's Battery was in position in front of the Gap, and the Cavalry on the Barboursville road. This disposition being made, in conjunction with the National force under Burnside on the Tennessee side, a formal summons was sent to the Rebel commander for the surrender of the place. This demand was acceded to by General Frazier, thus doubtless saving great loss of life, as the Gap could have been stoutly defended if the Rebel General had so willed. The Eighty-Sixth Ohio immediately marched into the Fort and took possession, hoisting the Stars and Stripes in place of the Rebel bunting. Two thousand eight hundred men, five thousand stand of arms, thirteen pieces of artillery, and large quantities of ammunition, quartermaster's and commissary stores, were the fruits of this affair.

The Eighty-Sixth Ohio remained at the Gap, as a part of the garrison, until its term of service expired. The great distance from the base of supplies—one hundred and fifty miles, over bad roads—the force that garrisoned the Gap were compelled to subsist off the surrounding country, with the usual results of meager fare and scanty forage. The scarcity of subsistence in the immediate vicinity made it necessary to send foraging parties to a great distance, and the country being rough and mountainous, encounters with Rebel guerrillas were of almost daily occurrence.

On the 16th of January, 1864, the regiment started for Ohio for the purpose of being mustered out of the service. After seven days of hard and fatiguing marching it arrived at Nicholasville, on the 23d of January. From thence it proceeded to Cleveland, Ohio, arriving there on the 26th of January. The second, or six months' organization of the Eighty-Sixth Ohio, was mustered out of the United States service February 10, 1864.

87th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	HENRY B. BANNING.....	June 27, 1862	June 25, 1862
Lt. Colonel.....	JOHN FASKIN.....	" 17, "	" 17, "
Major.....	SAMUEL L. LEFFINGWELL.....	" 20, "	" 20, "
Surgeon.....	ROBERT N. BARR.....	" 23, "	" 23, "
Ass't Surgeon.....	ORLANDO C. MILLER.....	" 23, "	" 23, "
Chaplain.....	GEORGE D. OVIATT.....	" 30, "	" 30, "
Captain.....	Henry H. Otis.....	" 10, "	" 17, "
Do.....	Charles Catkins.....	" 12, "	" 17, "
Do.....	John L. Straughn.....	" 12, "	" 17, "
Do.....	Samuel Huber.....	" 12, "	" 17, "
Do.....	David H. Moore.....	" 9, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Edward K. Allen.....	" 10, "	" 30, "
Do.....	John E. Herrick.....	" 11, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Jacob L. McVey.....	" 12, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Vernum Janson.....	" 25, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Thomas F. Cooper.....	" 25, "	" 30, "
1st Lieutenant.....	Wm. T. Johnson.....	" 10, "	" 17, "
Do.....	Thomas J. McDowell.....	" 12, "	" 17, "
Do.....	Robert Shearer.....	" 12, "	" 17, "
Do.....	Philip Ford.....	" 12, "	" 17, "
Do.....	Edward S. Alesbury.....	" 9, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Andrew D. McClure.....	" 10, "	" 30, "
Do.....	George W. Pease.....	" 11, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Wm. A. Gage.....	" 12, "	" 30, "
Do.....	John S. Orr.....	" 13, "	" 30, "
Do.....	George W. Branham.....	" 25, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Jacob L'Homme Dieu.....	" 23, "	" 30, "
Do.....	A. Balles Carter.....	" 25, "	" 30, "	Quartermaster.
2d Lieutenant.....	James H. Landis.....	" 10, "	" 17, "
Do.....	George W. Johnson.....	" 12, "	" 17, "
Do.....	Daniel Wilson.....	" 12, "	" 17, "
Do.....	Christopher Keary.....	" 12, "	" 17, "
Do.....	Josiah H. Jenkins.....	" 9, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Paulding B. Silvis.....	" 10, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Wallace A. Finney.....	" 11, "	" 30, "
Do.....	James Evans.....	" 12, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Martin H. Hamblin.....	" 13, "	" 30, "
Do.....	Charles Mitchiner, jr.....	" 25, "	" 30, "

EIGHTY-SEVENTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was a three months' organization. It was recruited from almost every county in the State, and was ready for service in June, 1862. Columbus was its point of rendezvous. June 12th it received orders to repair to Baltimore and report to Major-General Wool, commanding that post. Arriving in Baltimore on the 15th of June, it was assigned to camp north of and near the city, where, for some weeks, Colonel H. B. Banning, its commander drilled and disciplined the men.

In the latter part of July it received orders to report to Colonel Miles, at Harper's Ferry. On its arrival at that place it was stationed on Bolivar Heights, where, again, it was subjected to the most rigid drill. It remained at Harper's Ferry until the siege of that place by Jackson's Rebel army, and although its term of service was ended, was so unfortunate as to be included in the surrender of the National forces on that occasion. When, however, the circumstances of the case were made known, the men were released from their paroles, and the regiment sent home from Annapolis, and mustered out of the service, at Camp Chase, on the 20th of September, 1862.

88th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	GEORGE W. NEFF.....	July 29, 1863	July 29, 1863	On detached duty; promoted to Brig.-Gen.
Lt. Colonel.....	EDWIN L. WEBBER.....	25, "	25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	EDWIN L. WEBBER.....	Dec. 31, 1862	April 29, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	JOHN W. SKILES.....	July 29, 1863	July 29, "	Mustered out July 26, 1865.
Surgeon.....	ALBERT LONGWELL.....	24, "	24, "	Di d.
Do.....	HENRY E. WARNER.....	March 21, 1865	March 21, 1865	On special duty.
Ass't Surgeon	J. H. CRUTCHERS.....	July 20, 1863	July 20, 1865	Honorably discharged April 17, 1865.
Do.....	HENRY E. WARNER.....	Dec. 17, "	Dec. 17, "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.....	WM. W. FOUNTAIN.....	March 21, 1865	March 21, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	J. P. SHILLING.....	May 2, "	May 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	JAMES W. BUSHONG.....	April 14, 1864	April 14, 1864	Resigned April 27, 1865.
Do.....	REV. DAVID H. COYNER.....	22, 1865	22, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	J. C. MOON.....	Sept. 24, 1862	Oct. 16, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel U. S. C. T.
Do.....	Thomas S. Bunker.....	" 24, "	" 16, "	"
Do.....	Francis S. Parker.....	" 24, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James C. Hentley.....	Jan. 1, 1863	May 15, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Robert Lamb.....	July 20, "	July 20, "	Honorably discharged April 7, 1865.
Do.....	Walter D. McPherson.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Jacob D. Taylor.....	June 26, "	" 27, "	Honorably discharged August 17, 1865.
Do.....	Alex. L. Anderson.....	July 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Edward K. Allen.....	June 22, "	Aug. 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Waldo F. Davis.....	July 27, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Ludwell W. Nichols.....	Oct. 8, 1864	Oct. 6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Henry E. Howe.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Honorably discharged August 17, 1865.
Do.....	Wm. A. McGrew.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Chas. E. Sausser.....	Sept. 24, 1862	Oct. 16, 1862	Resigned June 6, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. G. Neilson.....	Oct. 8, "	Dec. 4, "	Promoted to Major 27th U. S. C. T.
Do.....	Ludwell W. Nichols.....	" 8, "	" 4, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Henry E. Howe.....	Jan. 1, 1863	May 18, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. A. McGrew.....	July 20, "	July 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John W. Cluxton.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James W. Mills.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Thomas J. Kerr.....	" 24, "	" 27, "	Appointed A. Q. M. of vols. by Pres. Aug. 5, '63.
Do.....	Alex. Sankey.....	" 24, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James J. Wyley.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Discharged December 24, 1863.
Do.....	E. W. Green.....	June 22, "	Aug. 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Edward L. Quick.....	July 27, "	" 1, "	Discharged to accept promotion April 20, 1865
Do.....	Lewis H. Bond.....	Aug. 19, "	" 19, "	Honorably discharged August 17, 1865.
Do.....	Harlow Park.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.....	Wilson S. Taylor.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Honorably discharged August 17, 1865.
Do.....	Thomas F. Reber.....	June 27, "	June 27, "	Transferred to 196th O. V. I. March 28, 1865.
Do.....	Philetus Ivory.....	Oct. 6, "	Oct. 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James Wimpigler.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James D. Wilson.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John H. Marshall.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Linus R. Marshall.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	John H. Patterson.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Lewis H. Bond.....	Aug. 13, 1862	Oct. 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Alex. L. Anderson.....	Oct. 8, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. J. Holmes.....	Nov. 12, "	Dec. 4, "	Discharged January 14, 1864.
Do.....	James Wimpigler.....	Jan. 1, 1863	May 18, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	James D. Wilson.....	July 20, "	July 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Wilson S. Taylor.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Thomas S. Taylor.....	June 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Thomas F. Reber.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Linus R. Marshall.....	July 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Philetus Ivory.....	June 30, "	Aug. 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John H. Patterson.....	July 27, "	" 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Stephen C. Penberton.....	Aug. 19, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles C. Bunker.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, "	Di ed August 15, 1864.
Do.....	D. W. C. Patrick.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Isaac Defenbaugh.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Frederick Zinn.....	June 27, "	June 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John B. Dague.....	Aug. 24, "	Aug. 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph W. Jones.....	Oct. 6, "	Oct. 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Norris Killen.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David A. Vandervoort.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.....	George L. Davison.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James T. Kall.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Reuben P. Moon.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.

EIGHTY-EIGHTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized in the latter part of July, 1862, its nucleus being four companies, called the "First Battalion of Governor's Guards, Ohio Volunteer Infantry." It was mustered into the service of the United States by Captain A. E. Drake, United States Army, October 27, 1862, and was at once placed on duty at Camp Chase, near Columbus, then filled with Rebel prisoners. The duty here was very arduous. The prisoners were confined in three different tenements, and it required the whole strength of the regiment to fill the details. In a few months the service became exceedingly monotonous to both officers and men, and all were clamorous for orders to the field.

While acting as Governor's Guards on duty at Camp Chase, under the command of Major Peter Zinn, the Kirby Smith raid was made on Cincinnati. Major Zinn asked and obtained leave of Governor Tod to take his battalion to the field. Arriving at Cincinnati the command was marched across the Ohio River on the pontoon bridge, and stationed within supporting distance of Fort Michel and other fortifications erected in the rear of Covington and Newport. In this position the battalion performed all the duties of troops in presence of an enemy, and, although not called upon to engage in the deadly conflict, the officers and men were constantly on the alert, and prepared for an instant "call to arms." The battalion received not only the thanks of Governor Tod, but those of the commanding officer in front of Cincinnati, General Horatio G. Wright, U. S. A.

After repeated solicitations the Secretary of War, through Governor Tod's influence, granted authority to recruit the battalion up to a maximum regiment. The order was promulgated June 26, 1863, and by the 29th of July the regiment was completed.

George W. Neff, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Second Kentucky Infantry (recently released from a thirteen months' imprisonment in Rebel prisons, part of the time held, with Colonel's Corcoran, Wilcox, Woodruff, and others, as hostages for the lives of Rebel privateersmen), was relieved from the command of Camp Dennison, and appointed by Governor Tod Colonel of the new regiment, the Eighty-Eighth Ohio.

Colonel Neff at once placed his regiment under the strictest discipline, and soon had it drilled up to the highest point of efficiency; and the hope was cherished by the officers and men that they would be afforded a chance to display their acquirements at "the front." This hope was soon dissipated, orders having been received for the regiment to remain on duty at Camp Chase. A small detachment only was permitted to visit West Virginia and Maryland. It was, however, soon brought back to aid in the capture of John Morgan and his guerrillas, then on a raid through Ohio.

When Morgan's forces reached the Ohio line at Harrison, twenty-one miles from Cincinnati, it was surmised by Governor Tod and General Burnside, then in command of the Department of Ohio, that he would attempt the destruction of Camp Dennison, one of the most important posts in the West. The Governor ordered Colonel Neff, then in command of the post, to hold himself in readiness, and take every precaution against being surprised or overcome by the enemy. The Colonel, in obeying these orders, armed the little force of invalids and a few of the Governor's Guards on duty at headquarters, and stationed them in appropriate positions. He also called upon the citizens of the surrounding country to take their axes and obstruct the roads over which Morgan's troops would be compelled to pass. The citizens performed their work so faithfully that Morgan was compelled to make a wide detour, and was thus materially delayed in his movements. One small squad did find its way to within about a mile of Camp Dennison, but was so roughly handled by a force of invalids under Captain Von Doehn, that they hastily withdrew and joined the main column of freebooters.

Again the regiment resumed its monotonous guard-duty at Camp Chase, and continued it up to October, 1863, when Colonel Neff succeeded in obtaining orders to move his regiment to Cincinnati, as a relief to the One Hundred and Fifteenth Ohio, then performing provost-duty in that city. This change, though not so welcome as would have been orders for the field, was gladly received by all, as some relief from the excessive monotony of Camp Chase.

A detachment of the Veteran Reserve Corps took the place of the Eighty-Eighth Ohio at Camp Chase, but, from looseness of discipline and a strong disgust for the duty, a complete failure was made; so much so, that the commandant of that important prison depot informed the War Department that he should decline to be held responsible for the safe custody of the prisoners. Many of them had already escaped through the negligence of the guards.

Again the Eighty-Eighth was ordered to resume its old place at Camp Chase, and the 20th of December, 1863, found it inside its detested limits. Nothing but the most perfect discipline prevented serious disturbance on receipt of this order, so great was the antipathy of both officers and men to returning to Camp Chase.

The regiment remained on the same duty until July 3, 1865, when it was formally mustered out of the service.

The Eighty-Eighth Ohio was a complete and well-drilled regiment, and, if given a chance, would have undoubtedly performed good service in the field.

89th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	JOHN G. MARSHALL	Aug. 23, 1862	Sept. 15, 1862	Dismissed October 7, 1862.
Do.	JOSEPH D. HATFIELD	Oct. 2, " "	Dec. 2, " "	Dismissed June 6, 1863.
Do.	CALEB H. CARLTON	June 26, 1863	June 26, 1863	On detached duty at Paducah, Ky.
Lt. Colonel	JAMES ROWE	Aug. 11, 1862	Sept. 13, 1862	Resigned February 23, 1863.
Do.	WM. H. GLENN	Feb. 25, 1863	May 6, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	JOSEPH D. HATFIELD	Aug. 13, 1862	Sept. 15, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	WM. H. GLENN	Oct. 2, " "	Dec. 2, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. HAYES	Feb. 25, 1863	May 6, 1863	Resigned January 16, 1864.
Do.	JOHN H. JOLLY	Jan. 1, 1864	Feb. 2, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	HENRY BRADLEY	Aug. 19, 1862	Sept. 15, 1862	Resigned March 2, 1863.
Do.	ALFRED TAYLOR	April 21, 1863	April 21, 1863	Drowned May 23, 1863.
Do.	S. B. CREW	May 23, " "	June 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	S. B. CREW	Aug. 15, 1862	Sept. 15, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	COLIN SPENCE	" 19, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned May 28, 1863.
Do.	E. F. PURDY	July 21, " "	July 21, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	ALFRED U. BEALL	Aug. 26, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Resigned September 1, 1863.
Do.	JOHN SHINN	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	WM. H. GLENN	July 11, 1862	Sept. 13, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	WM. A. TOWNLEY	" 12, " "	" 13, " "	Dismissed August 5, 1863.
Do.	WM. HAYES	" 21, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Allison L. Brown	" 23, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned May 2, 1863.
Do.	John H. Jolly	" 24, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Marcellus A. Leeds	" 29, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned May 22, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Haught	" 29, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned April 18, 1863.
Do.	Elam Day, jr.	" 29, " "	" 13, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1863.
Do.	David M. Barrett	" 21, " "	" 15, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1863.
Do.	Wesley R. Adams	" 26, " "	" 15, " "	Appointed Colonel 175th O. V. I. Nov. 16, 1864.
Do.	Joseph H. Mulnix	Oct. 2, " "	Dec. 31, 1862	Resigned January 24, 1863.
Do.	Oliver C. Gatch	April 18, 1863	May 18, 1863	Mustered out May 15, 1863.
Do.	David W. Pearson	Feb. 25, " "	" 18, " "	Revoked; resigned as 1st Lieut. May 22, 1863.
Do.	Isaac C. Nelson	May 2, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas H. B. Norris	" 22, " "	June 8, " "	Honorably discharged July 23, 1864.
Do.	John S. Lakin	Feb. 25, " "	" 8, " "	Resigned April 19, 1864.
Do.	James R. Vickers	Aug. 5, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James W. Patterson	Feb. 1, 1864	Feb. 1, " "	Declined.
Do.	Stewart E. Benson	March 19, " "	March 19, " "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant May 15, 1863.
Do.	Elijah Hicks	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned April 19, 1864.
Do.	Otho P. Fairhead	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	" "
Do.	Samuel A. Glenn	Jan. 21, 1863	March 30, 1863	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Charles E. Harrison	Aug. 11, 1861	Aug. 11, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George H. Deloitt	Nov. 26, " "	Nov. 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Joseph H. Mulnix	July 11, 1862	Sept. 13, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Reuben W. Sparger	" 18, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned May 21, 1863.
Do.	James W. Patterson	" 18, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned August 4, 1864.
Do.	Nemiah Green	" 21, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned January 27, 1863.
Do.	John W. King	" 21, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned January 23, 1863.
Do.	Joseph R. Dixon	" 22, " "	" 15, " "	Died December 18, 1862.
Do.	Thomas H. B. Norris	" 24, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to captain.
Do.	George W. Penn	" 29, " "	" 13, " "	Died January 24, 1863.
Do.	Oliver C. Gatch	Aug. 7, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Stewart E. Benson	" 15, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Andrew J. Timmons	" 16, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned June 12, 1863.
Do.	Thomas Byrnes	" 21, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned October 24, 1862.
Do.	James R. Vickers	Oct. 24, " "	Dec. 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel A. Glenn	" 2, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David W. Pearson	Jan. 23, 1863	March 20, 1863	Resigned May 22, 1863.
Do.	Elijah Hicks	" 25, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Otho P. Fairhead	" 27, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Isaac C. Nelson	Dec. 18, 1862	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John B. Gamble	Jan. 24, 1863	" 20, " "	Resigned December 1, 1863.
Do.	Stephen V. Walker	May 2, " "	May 18, " "	Killed September 29, 1863.
Do.	Granville Jackson	April 18, " "	" 18, " "	Killed September 20, 1863.
Do.	John S. Lakin	Feb. 25, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George H. Deloitt	May 29, " "	June 8, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles E. Harrison	Feb. 25, " "	" 8, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Harrison Beard	June 12, " "	July 10, " "	Revoked.
Do.	Charles W. Borland	Jan. 14, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Revoked.
Do.	Milton May	Jan. 1, 1863	" 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph B. Fensaker	Feb. 1, " "	Feb. 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John J. Gamble	" 1, " "	" 11, " "	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant April 15, 1864.
Do.	John S. Edinson	" 1, " "	" 11, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	John V. Baird	March 19, " "	March 19, " "	Mustered out as 2d Lieutenant May 15, 1866.
Do.	Edward A. Scott	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Budwey King	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Died August 13, 1864.
Do.	John Malloy	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Francis M. Crankham	April 7, " "	April 7, " "	Discharged September 6, 1864.
Do.	Simon Stookey	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph C. Oliver	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. G. Hall	Aug. 11, " "	Aug. 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Sylvester Prosser	Sept. 25, " "	Sept. 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Glenn	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	" "
Do.	John W. Glenn	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Samuel A. Glenn	July 11, 1862	Sept. 15, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George H. Deloitt	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned February 20, 1863.
Do.	David W. Pearson	" 25, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	George H. DeWolf.....	July 24, 1862	Sept. 15, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ezekiel Staley.....	Aug. 29, " "	15, " "	Resigned January 27, 1863.
Do.	Milton May.....	15, " "	15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Eljah Hicks.....	20, " "	15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Grauville Jackson.....	21, " "	15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James R. Vickers.....	21, " "	15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James C. Nelson.....	26, " "	15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles W. Barland.....	Dec. 3, " "	Dec. 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant; dismissed Jan. 13, 1863.
Do.	John J. Gamble.....	Oct. 2, " "	31, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John J. Barton.....	Jan. 27, " "	May 18, " "	Resigned April 15, 1861.
Do.	Stephen V. Walker.....	Dec. 18, 1862	March 6, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Harrison Beard.....	Dec. 20, " "	30, " "	Resigned July 19, 1863.
Do.	Joseph B. Forecker.....	Jan. 24, " "	May 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Lakin.....	" 24, " "	March 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John S. Robins.....	" 25, " "	30, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	John V. Boyd.....	May 2, " "	May 18, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward A. Scott.....	Feb. 25, " "	18, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph R. Elliott.....	" 25, " "	25, " "	Died May 20, 1863.
Do.	Dudley King.....	May 20, " "	June 8, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Francis M. Crabb.....	Jan. 12, 1864	Feb. 16, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Mallow.....	June 12, 1863	July 22, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

EIGHTY-NINTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE EIGHTY NINTH OHIO was enlisted chiefly from the rural districts in the counties of Clermont, Highland, and Ross, under the call for volunteers of 1862. The regiment went into quarters at Camp Dennison by companies, from the 10th to the 20th of August, and was fully organized and mustered into the service on the 26th of that month. It numbered one thousand, including officers and men. The field and staff officers were selected from the several counties in which the regiment was raised. John G. Marshall, of Brown County, was commissioned Colonel; James W. Rowe, of Ross, Lieutenant-Colonel; and Lieutenant-Colonel Joseph D. Hatfield, of Clermont, Major; Lieutenant Spargur, of Highland, Adjutant; H. Bradley, of Clermont, Surgeon; S. B. Crew, of Clermont, First Assistant Surgeon; Colin Spence, of Clermont, Second Assistant Surgeon; Rev. A. W. Beall, of Clermont, Chaplain; and James W. Patterson, of Highland, Quartermaster.

On the 3d of September the Eighty-Ninth marched through the streets of Cincinnati, and halted on Third Street to listen to a short, patriotic speech from Governor Tod, delivered from the steps of the Burnet House. Crossing the Ohio River on a pontoon bridge, the regiment went into camp three miles in the rear of Covington, Kentucky. The enemy, under Kirby Smith, having fallen back without making an attack on Cincinnati, the Eighty-Ninth was ordered to Western Virginia and arrived at Point Pleasant, at the mouth of the Great Kanawha, on the 5th of October. After remaining in camp a few days at this place, the regiment was brigaded with the Thirty-Seventh Ohio and Eighth Virginia, and, under the command of Colonel Sieber of the Thirty-Seventh, marched up the valley of the Great Kanawha, expecting to find the enemy posted in some strong position ready to give them battle; but meeting with no resistance, the regiment passed on reaching the Falls of the Great Kanawha, at the foot of Cotton Mountain, on the 3d of November. After remaining at this point two weeks, the Eighty-Ninth ascended the mountain and went into winter-quarters five miles from Fayetteville C. H. During the time the regiment lay at this place it suffered with camp fever, causing the death of some and disabling of others.

Shortly after the battle of Stone River the Eighty-Ninth, with the Ninety-Second Ohio, was ordered to Nashville, Tennessee, to re-enforce General Rosecrans. Two gunboats joined the fleet of nine steamers at Cincinnati, and passing ahead arrived at Louisville on the night of the 30th of January, 1862. On the 3d of February, at eight o'clock at night, the fleet arrived at Dover, on the Cumberland River, two miles above Fort Donelson. The Eighty-Third Illinois was in Dover almost surrounded by the Rebel General Forrest's cavalry, three thousand strong. The Rebels had twice charged the works, been repulsed, and were getting into position to make the third attempt when the gunboat came in sight. Lieutenant-Colonel Smith of the Eighty-Third Illinois passed quickly aboard, gave directions where to aim, and the astonished Rebels were greeted with the bursting of shell in their midst, causing a hasty retreat under cover of the night, leaving their dead on the field. The arrival of our forces saved the post, as the ammunition of the Eighty-Third Illinois was exhausted, and they expected at the next charge of the Rebels to be compelled to either surrender or be massacred. The Confederate Colonel, McNary, and two hundred of Forrest's men were found dead on the field the next day, while the loss of the Eighty-Third was thirteen killed and fifty wounded. This was the first battle-field the regiment had seen, and it was amply sufficient to impress it with the realities of war.

After remaining at Dover two days, the fleet passed on to Nashville, arriving at that city on the 7th of February. On the 9th the troops were landed and went into camp on the Franklin Pike, some five miles from the city. While here the weather was rainy, and the regiment suffered severely from measles and influenza. Lieutenant Clement Thomas was one of the victims. While at this camp Lieutenant-Colonel Rowe was, on account of failing health, obliged to resign his commission. Colonel Marshall having also resigned, Major J. D. Hatfield was promoted to Colonel and assumed command of the regiment.

On the 22d of February, having been organized with the Thirty-Sixth, Eleventh, and Ninety-Second Ohio, and Eighteenth Kentucky, into what was known as Crook's division, the Eighty-Ninth broke camp and marched back to the city where, embarking on transports, it arrived at Carthage, Tennessee, on the 25th, and went into camp. The object of this expedition was to prevent the enemy from making inroads into Kentucky, and to drive the guerrillas from that section of the State. Crook's division was joined by Colonel Stokes's cavalry and General Spear's division of Tennessee troops, and after various scouts and skirmishes with John Morgan's guerrilla cavalry marched, on the 5th of June to join Rosecrans's main army at Murfreesboro'. It arrived there on the evening of the 8th of June and went into camp one mile from the city. After remaining at Murfreesboro' until the 24th of June, the Eighty-Ninth, with its brigade, under General Reynolds, joined in the movement against Bragg at Tullahoma. The regiment met with sturdy opposition from the enemy the first day out. At Hoover's Gap it supported Wilder's brigade of mounted infantry in a sharp encounter, in which the enemy lost over one hundred killed and wounded; National loss fourteen killed and forty-five wounded. This was the first time the Eighty-Ninth had advanced under fire and witnessed the scenes of a battle-field strewn with dead and wounded. That night the rain poured down in torrents, but the skirmish-line was held all night, next day, and far into the night ensuing, when the enemy fell back under cover of the darkness. The Eighty-Ninth, with the rest of Rosecrans's army, suffered terribly in this campaign from the incessant rains, which flooded the whole country and made it almost impossible to supply the army with rations.

By the 8th of July the enemy had been driven to Chattanooga and beyond. The whole army halted; Reynold's division (in which was the Eighty-Ninth), went into camp near Decherd, a station on the railroad some fifty miles from Chattanooga. During this campaign the Eighty-Ninth was commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel William H. Glem, who entered the service as Captain of company A, and had been regularly promoted up to the position of Lieutenant-Colonel of the regiment. Colonel J. D. Hatfield had been dismissed from the service by court-martial, for expressing disloyal sentiments. The position of Colonel was tendered to Lieutenant-Colonel Glem, but was declined by him, on account of not being possessed of a military education. Thereupon General Crook had Captain C. H. Corleton, of the regular army, and a graduate of West Point, appointed and commissioned Colonel of the Eighty-Ninth.

About the middle of July, 1863, while the Eighty-Ninth was in camp near Decherd Station, in Tennessee, Colonel Corleton took command, and commenced a thorough course of drilling of both officers and men. While in this camp, General Crook was transferred to the army in the Shenandoah Valley, and General Turchin took his place in command of the brigade.

About the middle of August, the Eighty-Ninth was detached from the Fourteenth Corps and sent up to Tracy City, in the Cumberland Mountains, six miles from Cowen Station, to guard that point and destroy the enemy's saltpeter works, at Nicojack Cave, while the main army moved forward to Chattanooga. After remaining at Tracy City three weeks, orders came for the regiment to rejoin the command without delay. On the 10th of September it moved, and on the 12th, meeting with Granger's reserve corps at Bridgeport, was temporarily attached to one of his brigades, and on the 13th started on a forced march to join the main force under Rosecrans, at Ross-ville, Georgia.

On the morning of the 19th the Eighty-Ninth moved out in Granger's corps to the skirmish-line, and engaged in the great and bloody battle of Chickamauga. During the afternoon, ten of the regiment were wounded while advancing the skirmish-line. At nine o'clock on Sunday morning, September 20th, the battle commenced, and raged for seven hours. During the afternoon the Eighty-Ninth went into the hottest of the fight, and with the Twenty-First Ohio and Twenty-Second Michigan, held its position until darkness began to settle like a pall upon the ground, when a division of the enemy came up in its rear, surrounded and captured it entire.

Lieutenant Walker, of company D, was shot through the heart and left on the field, and Granville Jackson, of company G, fell and died amid the strife, a Minie ball passing in at his mouth and out at the back of his neck. Sergeants Benjamin L. Pratt, J. W. Phillips, John Kehner, Corporal Wesley Bragdon, and privates John Mahany and J. Blackstone, were known to be killed. Lieutenants Mallow, of company E, and Barton, of company B, and fifty-two privates were wounded and sent to the rear, and a number of others were left mortally wounded on the field, to perish in the hands of the enemy. Colonel Carleton, Lieutenant-Colonel Glenn, Assistant Surgeon Purdam, Captains S. A. Glenn, Day, Gatch, Barrett, Adams, and Lieutenants Fairfield, Harris, Prentiss, Beard, and Scott were captured and sent to Libby Prison. Colonel Carlton managed to be exchanged in a few months; Captain Adams and Lieutenant Scott made their escape through Colonel Straight's underground passage, and got safely within our lines; Lieutenant-Colonel Glenn was sent to Charleston, South Carolina, and placed under the fire of our guns, and was exchanged ten months after his capture. The non-commissioned officers and privates were sent to Belle Isle, and from there to Andersonville, where a majority of them died of starvation and exposure.

Falling back on Chattanooga, our army went into the intrenchments. Monday morning at nine o'clock, Surgeon Crew of the Eighty-Ninth, sick with jaundice, and just able to ride on horseback, found himself half a mile in front of our line of battle, with forty wounded, twenty sick, and seventy-five well men, all that was left of the Eighty-Ninth. No other commissioned officer being present, the command devolved on the Surgeon. With two ambulances and a few stretchers, at ten, A. M., he started for Chattanooga, five miles distant, passed through our line of battle, and arrived there at two, P. M., leaving the wounded in hospital, and reporting the men to the officer in command. For a few days this remnant of the Eighty-Ninth was attached to the Ninety-Second Ohio, but becoming dissatisfied, Captain Harris, of the Thirty-Sixth Ohio, took command, and the Eighty-Ninth resumed its own name and organization.

Captain Jolly, who had been at home recruiting, arrived at Chattanooga the day after the battle with the sick who had recovered. He was promoted to Major, and took command of the regiment, Major Hays having resigned on account of physical disability. The Eighty-Ninth soon mustered two hundred men, and, under Major Jolly, established a respectable standing. For six weeks it lay in camp in the marble quarry at Chattanooga, with shell bursting over its camp, from Lookout Mountain, subsisting on half rations, scantily clothed, and braving the rigors of winter. It witnessed Hooker's charge up the steep of Lookout Mountain, and joined in the shout of victory as the enemy gave way and fled. The next day, when the charge was made on Mission Ridge, Major Jolly, at the head of his little band of two hundred men, led them to victory in the front of the attacking column.

After the battle of Chattanooga, or Mission Ridge, the Eighty-Ninth remained in camp at Chattanooga until the 22d of February, 1864, when the Fourteenth Corps made a reconnoissance and demonstration on the enemy's works at Dalton, Georgia. The First Brigade of Third Division made a partial charge on the enemy's works at Rocky Face, on the 25th, in which the Eighty-Ninth had two men killed, ten wounded, and two captured.

On the 13th, 14th, and 15th of May, the Eighty-Ninth was engaged in the fight at Resaca, but without loss. Near Kenesaw, Colonel Carleton rejoined the regiment and took command; thereafter the Thirty-Ninth bore its part in the almost constant fighting for four months, up to and into Atlanta. While at Atlanta Colonel Carleton got leave of absence, was detailed in charge of the post at Chattanooga, and never returned to the regiment. Lieutenant-Colonel Glenn, who had returned from his captivity, having been in prison one year, took command of the Eighty-Ninth, which he continued to hold up to the end of the war.

After participating in the expedition against Hood, in his mad attempt to capture Nashville, the Eighty-Ninth was at its post in Sherman's grand march to the sea. It was at the taking of Milledgeville, Georgia, and supported General Kilpatrick in the cavalry fight at Waynesboro'. It was also at the capture of Savannah on the 21st of December.

The regiment remained in camp at Savannah over a month; crossed the Savannah River thirty miles above the city on the 5th of February, 1865, into South Carolina, and participated in the thorough destruction of the plantations, cities, and towns of that sceditious State. It was at the crossing of the Cahawba River with the Fourteenth Army Corps, when the pontoons gave way twice from the force of the swollen and raging stream, and engaged in the fight at Averysboro' and Bentonville, North Carolina, on the 18th and 19th of March; was at the capture of Raleigh, the capital of North Carolina, and at the surrender of Johnston on the 27th of April, 1865.

On the 30th of April the Eighty-Ninth with the Fourteenth Corps left Holly Springs, eight miles from Raleigh, and marched to Richmond, Virginia, reaching there on the 7th of May, having made one hundred and eighty miles in eight days. Remaining three days in Richmond the march was resumed, and Arlington Heights, overlooking Washington City, reached on the 19th of May. On the 23d the Eighty-Ninth witnessed the grand review of the Army of the Potomac, and on the 24th participated in the triumphal pageant of Sherman's army, marching down Pennsylvania Avenue and past the White House.

After two years and nine months' service the remnant of the Eighty-Ninth was mustered out at Washington City on the 7th of June, 1865, and ordered to report at Camp Dennison, Ohio, there to receive pay and final discharge. Proceeding out west, via the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the regiment reached Parkersburg, West Virginia, on the evening of the 9th, crossed over into Ohio and took cars on the Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad at twelve o'clock, and from thence made a triumphant procession to Camp Dennison, receiving the cheers, refreshments, and plaudits of the grateful and patriotic people of Ohio.

On the 13th of June, 1865, the Eighty-Ninth was mustered out and paid in full.

90th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	ISAAC N. ROSS	Aug. 22, 1862	Sept. 10, 1862	Resigned April 14, 1863.
Do.	CHAS. H. RIPPEY	April 14, 1863	May 12, 1863	Resigned October 20, 1863.
Do.	SAMUEL N. YEOMAN	Oct. 20, " "	Dec. 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	CHAS. H. RIPPEY	Aug. 9, 1862	Sept. 10, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	SAMUEL N. YEOMAN	April 14, 1863	May 13, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	NICHOLAS F. HITCHCOCK	May 18, 1863	18, 1863	Mustered out as Major.
Major	SAMUEL N. YEOMAN	Aug. 10, 1862	Sept. 10, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel
Do.	ALVAH PERRY	April 14, 1863	May 30, 1863	Resigned November 23, 1863.
Do.	GEORGE ANGLE	Nov. 23, " "	Feb. 3, 1864	Killed July 2, 1864.
Do.	JOHN S. McDOWELL	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, " "	Commission returned.
Do.	NICHOLAS F. HITCHCOCK	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant Colonel.
Do.	JAMES F. COOK	May 30, 1863	May 30, 1863	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon	RICHARD N. TIPTON	Aug. 19, 1862	Sept. 14, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	HENRY W. CARPENTER	Aug. 19, " "	10, " "	Resigned May 26, 1863.
Do.	J. L. WILEY	10, " "	10, " "	Resigned November 5, 1862.
Do.	J. P. COATES	June 2, 1862	June 2, " "	Resigned December 18, 1863.
Do.	C. P. O'HANLON	Nov. 5, " "	10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	GEORGE L. KALE	Sept. 5, 1862	Sept. 10, 1862	Resigned May 12, 1863.
Do.	WM. C. HOLLIDAY	Dec. 21, 1863	Dec. 21, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Francis M. Black	July 11, 1862	Sept. 10, 1862	Resigned December 2, 1862.
Do.	John S. McDowell	Aug. 11, " "	10, " "	Resigned May 1, 1865.
Do.	R. D. Caddy	July 16, " "	10, " "	Killed September 21, 1863.
Do.	Alvah Perry	" 21, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	George Angle	" 21, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Thomas J. Watkins	" 29, " "	10, " "	Resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.	Thomas W. Gardner	" 29, " "	10, " "	Resigned May 15, 1863.
Do.	Nicholas F. Hitchcock	" 29, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Lewis R. Carpenter	Aug. 1, " "	10, " "	Resigned December 27, 1862.
Do.	Morris B. Rowe	4, " "	10, " "	Wounded at Kennesaw.
Do.	Wm. A. Denny	Dec. 21, " "	Dec. 21, " "	Honorably discharged on account of wounds
Do.	Samuel L. Weidner	27, " "	May 12, 1863	Revoked; commission returned.
Do.	Thomas Raines	Feb. 1, 1863	12, " "	Killed August 19, 1864.
Do.	Thomas E. Baker	May 15, " "	June 10, " "	Resigned September 21, 1864.
Do.	John S. Witherspoon	April 14, " "	10, " "	Resigned.
Do.	John M. Sutphen	Jan. 1, 1864	Jan. 28, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Augustus R. Keller	" 1, " "	28, " "	Appointed Captain and A. Q. M. Aug. 13, '64.
Do.	James F. Cook	" 1, " "	Feb. 3, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Samuel L. Weidner	Nov. 27, 1863	March 1, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alonzo W. Black	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George R. Crow	Sept. 24, " "	Sept. 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James K. Jones	24, " "	24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John D. Nicely	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Declined to accept.
Do.	Samuel W. Stuckey	Dec. 20, " "	Dec. 20, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Felton	Feb. 15, 1865	Feb. 15, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jacob B. Orman	March 18, " "	March 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John D. Nicely	May 30, " "	May 30, " "	" "
Do.	Edward A. Elliott	20, " "	30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	John S. Witherspoon	July 11, 1862	Sept. 10, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Daniel N. Kingery	15, " "	10, " "	Killed at Chickamauga.
Do.	Jacob B. Orman	" 16, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John M. Sutphen	" 21, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Daniel J. Numemaker	" 21, " "	10, " "	Resigned October 18, 1863.
Do.	Wm. A. Denny	" 22, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas Raines	" 22, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Augustus R. Keller	" 22, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jacob Freeman	" 29, " "	10, " "	Resigned November 8, 1862.
Do.	James F. Cook	Aug. 4, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alonzo W. Black	" 11, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas E. Baker	July 30, " "	16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George R. Crow	Dec. 2, " "	May 12, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Ritchie	Nov. 8, " "	March 6, " "	Revoked; commission returned.
Do.	George W. Welsh	Feb. 1, 1863	May 12, " "	Resigned; wounded at Kennesaw.
Do.	Andrew J. Willoughby	April 14, " "	June 10, " "	Resigned August 5, 1864.
Do.	Wm. J. Webb	May 15, " "	19, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Samuel L. Weidner	Feb. 21, " "	26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James K. Jones	Jan. 1, 1864	Jan. 28, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John L. Hatfield	" 1, " "	28, " "	Resigned August 5, 1864.
Do.	John D. Nicely	" 1, " "	28, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Samuel W. Stuckey	" 1, " "	Feb. 3, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. D. Hudson	July 13, " "	July 13, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Felton	Dec. 21, 1863	Jan. 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry F. Leib	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward A. Elliott	11, " "	11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Archibald M. Rogers	" 11, " "	11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Elder	Sept. 24, " "	Sept. 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hugh Ferguson	" 24, " "	24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	A. M. Mosure	" 24, " "	24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. E. Reck	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John N. Archart	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John S. Beck	" 8, " "	8, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	J. C. Bateman	May 18, " "	May 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jonathan Ellis	" 30, " "	30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. F. Yoakum	" 30, " "	30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
M Lieutenant	Joshua C. Gibson	July 11, 1862	Sept. 10, 1862	Resigned December 14, 1862.
Do.	George W. Welsh	" 21, " "	10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. J. Webb.....	July 21, 1862	Sept. 10, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Andrew J. Willoughby.....	" 22, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George R. Crow.....	" 25, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas E. Baker.....	" 25, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John N. Sells.....	" 29, "	" 19, "	Resigned January 27, 1863.
Do.	Lewis W. Redman.....	Aug. 6, "	" 19, "	Resigned April 10, 1863.
Do.	Jacob Bush.....	" 11, "	" 19, "	Resigned October 27, 1862.
Do.	Samuel L. Weidner.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. J. Bragg.....	July 29, "	" 31, "	Dropped from rolls October 1, 1862.
Do.	George Ritchie.....	Dec. 2, "	" 31, "	Resigned July 20, 1863.
Do.	Wm. K. Martin.....	Feb. 11, 1863	May 12, 1863	Revoked; commission returned.
Do.	Hugh Ferguson.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Revoked; commission returned.
Do.	Wm. F. Iron.....	Jan. 27, "	June 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	N. A. Patterson.....	Nov. 8, 1862	May 12, "	Fatally wounded at Chickamauga.
Do.	James K. Jones.....	April 10, 1863	June 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John L. Hatfield.....	Jan. 1, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John D. Nicely.....	Feb. 1, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. D. Huison.....	Nov. 27, "	March 2, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry F. Leiby.....	" 27, "	Feb. 29, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward A. Elliott.....	Dec. 19, "	March 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Archibald M. Rogers.....	March 2, 1864	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John C. Bateman.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Revoked.
Do.	John S. Beck.....	May 30, 1865	May 30, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Christian Rudolph.....	" 30, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John W. Harper.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Martin L. Stoddard.....	" 30, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Abraham Froot.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Thomas Turner.....	" 31, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Robert R. Pierce.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John L. Maxwell.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Stephen A. Parsons.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	D. S. Snyder.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

NINETIETH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Lancaster, Ohio, on the 15th of July, 1862, by the Military Committees of the Counties of Fayette, Pickaway, Fairfield, Hocking, Vinton, and Perry. August 28, 1862, the organization of the regiment was completed and mustered into service. Its aggregate strength was thirty-eight commissioned officers and nine hundred and forty-three men. At eight o'clock P. M. of August 29th it was on its way to Covington, Kentucky, where it reported to Major-General Wright, on the 30th. At ten A. M. it was on the cars, with orders to report to General Nelson, at Lexington, Kentucky. General Nelson being disabled by a wound, Colonel Ross reported to General Wright, who had assumed command. This officer ordered Major Yeoman to take four companies and picket all the approaches to the city. This duty was faithfully performed until three o'clock of September 1st, when the rumors of the advance of the Rebel army from Richmond became so strong that orders were issued to burn the army stores and prepare to move at once. By seven o'clock P. M. the regiment was in line on the Versailles Turnpike, detailed as guard for the wagon-train, four companies in the rear, under Major Yeoman, and six in the advance, under Colonels Ross and Ripley. At four P. M. the National forces had reached Versailles, a distance of twelve miles, and were in full retreat. This forced march was continued to Louisville, the men suffering awfully by the way from thirst and stifling dust. The fatigue was truly agonizing. This suffering was intensely aggravated by guarding the wells and cisterns along the route, which compelled the officers and soldiers to drink from the stagnant pools beside the road. The command consisted mostly of new levies, consequently the men were all unused to such hardships, and many sank under the terrible strain. At Shelbyville (a beautiful village) the thirst of the men was alleviated by the clear, cold spring-water kindly issued to each man by the citizens, as the column passed along.

At one o'clock P. M., September 5th, the regiment reached its camping-ground near Louisville, having marched one hundred miles in eighty-six hours, taking in the meantime less than sixteen hours' sleep. The regiment remained in this camp until the 5th of September, engaged in picket-duty and drill. On the 16th it was assigned to Brigadier-General Crafts's brigade, of Brigadier-General Woodruff's division. After maneuvering in the vicinity of Louisville for some days, the regiment was assigned to the Twenty-Second Brigade, Brigadier-General Charles Crafts; Fourth Division, General W. S. Smith; Twenty-First Army Corps, Major-General T. L. Crittenden, and marched with General Buell's army in pursuit of the Rebel forces under General Bragg. On the 8th of October it approached to within two miles of Perryville; the musketry of the battle was distinctly heard, but from some unaccountable cause the regiment was not permitted to engage in the conflict.

October 10th it moved on the Danville Road; 11th, reached that place; 12th, moved to the left of Danville, and in front of Camp Dick Robinson; 13th, it counter-marched to Danville, and on the 14th resumed the pursuit of Bragg, and bivouacked near Stanford. On the 15th, at noon, it reached Crab Orchard. Passing through Mount Vernon, it crossed Little Rockcastle River, and meeting the enemy posted on the road leading to Wild Cat Mountain, drove them from that position. On the 20th the regiment surprised twelve hundred of the enemy and, with a yell, swooped down upon them, capturing two hundred prisoners and over two hundred head of cattle. While on this march it effectually destroyed the Goose Creek Salt Works, a valuable depot from which the Rebels had long been drawing their supplies of that indispensable article.

The march through this region was one of great hardship. Many of the men were shoeless, and in marching over the snow-clad ground they left their footprints marked with blood. October 27th the regiment bivouacked near Somerset. Continuing the march, it passed over the battle-ground of Mill Springs, and on the 4th of November reached Glasgow, Kentucky. It remained here until the 8th of November, when it broke camp, and on the 19th marched through Nashville, and went into camp nine miles beyond that city.

December 26, 1862, the Ninetieth Ohio moved with the army on Murfreesboro', Tennessee, and on the 27th bivouacked at Stewart's Creek. December 29th, at eight A. M., the forward movement was resumed, the regiments marching in division, and columns at half distance. At seven P. M. on the 30th the division was massed in a cotton-field, badly mixed up with other commands, and in no condition for offensive movements. This was within one mile of Stone River. The morning of the 31st found the regiment in line; after standing thus for some hours, hearing the din of battle in their rear, its turn came to be placed face to face with the enemy; when it fought as coolly as if it had been on a hundred battle-fields. The enemy was, however, in too great numbers, and the Ninetieth, being without support, was compelled to fall back on the main force. The regiment lost in this fight one hundred and thirty men killed, wounded, and missing. Six officers were wounded, viz.: Captain M. B. Rowe, Lieutenant L. W. Reahard, of company K; Lieutenant Welsh, of company D; First-Lieutenant T. E. Baker, of company C, and Second-Lieutenant J. N. Selby, of company H, and Captain Thomas Raines, of company F; Captain Alvah Perry, and Lieutenant J. F. Cook were captured. At twelve o'clock M. the regiment was again formed on the left of the Nashville Turnpike, and supported a battery the rest of the day. The men, having lost their blankets and knapsacks, suffered terribly that night from the cold.

January 1, 1863, the third day of the battle, the regiment was in line all day, but the most of the fighting was performed by the artillery. On the morning of the 2d it occupied the hill on which was massed those forty pieces of artillery which sent Breckinridge's Rebel corps howling back over Stone River. At five P. M. General Palmer ordered the Ninetieth Ohio and the Thirty-First Indiana to move over an open field. They obeyed, and charged a Rebel position still held on the National side of Stone River, and, with but little loss, became masters of it.

On the 4th the enemy was nowhere to be seen, and the day was passed in burying the dead of the regiment, who were found stripped of all clothing but their drawers. Those seriously wounded were found with their wounds undressed and in a most terrible condition. Colonel Ross, who led the regiment in this battle, and who proved himself a brave and efficient officer, was immediately after sent to the rear in serious ill-health. Lieutenant-Colonel Rippey succeeded to the command. On the 14th of April Colonel Ross resigned, and Lieutenant-Colonel Rippey was promoted Colonel, and Major Yeomans appointed Lieutenant-Colonel.

The regiment lay in camp near Murfreesboro', with the rest of the army, until the 23d of June, when General Rosecrans commenced his movement on Tullahoma. After a hard march through the mud and rain and over almost impassable mountains, skirmishing with the enemy at several points along the route, the Ninetieth Ohio found itself, on the 12th of September, on West Chickamauga Creek, near Lee & Gordon's Mills. On the 19th it was ordered to move, with its brigade, by the left flank, to the support of General Thomas's corps. The line of battle passed at quick time over a cornfield and through a strip of timber, and on debouching from the timber discovered the enemy, at close range, in the act of completing their movement of turning and enclosing General Thomas's right flank. A charge was made which succeeded in driving back the enemy until the brigade formed on the prolongation of General Thomas's right flank. This line was established at one o'clock P. M., and notwithstanding the repeated efforts of the enemy was held until half-past two P. M., when the supply of ammunition being exhausted, Colonel Rippey received orders to retire his regiment to a strip of timber, one hundred and fifty yards in the rear.

In his new position Colonel Rippey made application for and obtained a section of battery B, First Ohio Artillery, and with it held the enemy in check until a fresh supply of ammunition was obtained. It now became evident, from the advancing roar of musketry, upon the front and right, that the position was again being flanked. To meet this new movement the regiment made a right half-wheel, about-faced, and was in position to meet the impending charge of the enemy. To save a rout of the right, it was plain that a counter-charge must be made. General Turchin gave the order, and the Ninetieth Ohio led the charge in gallant style, causing the enemy to retreat in confusion. The Rebels were followed some four hundred yards, when General Turchin called out: "Poys, we go far enough—we know not what is on our right or what is on our left!" The Ninetieth Ohio was next ordered to the support of General Johnson's division, now being hard pressed.

September 20th, the brigade constructed works, without the aid of axes, shovels, or picks, upon which the enemy made two ineffectual assaults. The Ninetieth Ohio was then ordered to relieve the Second Kentucky, which it executed under a heavy fire from the enemy, losing five men in advancing to the line of works. The enemy, finding the position too strong, massed his forces on the left of the brigade line, and succeeded in partially turning it, exposing the regiment to a rear and flank fire. It was by this fire that the gallant Adjutant of the regiment, D. N. Kingery, was killed. The National forces rallied, the enemy was in turn driven, and part of the lost ground recovered.

During the battle the breastwork of the regiment (which consisted of old logs) caught fire on the outside; but the fire was extinguished by officers and men voluntarily leaping the works and beating the fire out with their hands and clubs. The enemy concentrated their fire on these brave men, but not a single officer or man was hit while so exposed. The enemy again pressed the right flank of the position, and succeeded in turning it, which compelled the abandonment of the works. The retreat was made, under fire, on the Dry Valley Road, which connects with the Rossville Road, near that place.

The command was again placed in position on a high ridge running nearly parallel with the Dry Valley Road. From this position the regiment was ordered to Rossville, which it reached at ten P. M., and bivouacked in line of battle.

The loss of the regiment on the 19th and 20th was three officers killed, viz.: Adjutant Kingery, Captain R. D. Caddy, Lieutenant N. A. Patterson mortally wounded, and eighty-three non-commissioned officers and privates killed, wounded, and missing.

The National army fell back on the 21st and 22d of October, behind intrenchments at Chattanooga. On the 25th the division and regiment crossed the Tennessee River, and moving down it at daylight, ran the gauntlet of Rebel sharpshooters, posted at the Narrows, without loss. This march extended to Bridgeport, Alabama, where the regiment arrived on the 2d of November, at ten o'clock P. M. It was engaged in building fortifications until the 29th, and was then placed in charge of three thousand five hundred Rebel prisoners, taken at Mission Ridge. The regiment then returned to Bridgeport.

On the 24th of January, 1864, it received marching orders. It moved through Chattanooga and out the Knoxville Railroad to Ooltowah, Tennessee, and there went into camp. It was engaged at this point in various important scouts. Colonel Yeomans was now in command of the regiment, Colonel Ripley having resigned and returned to Ohio.

The camp at Ooltowah was abandoned on the 3d of May, at one o'clock P. M., and then commenced the movement on the great Atlanta campaign. For one hundred and twenty days the Ninetieth Ohio, in company with the National forces, marched, fought, and suffered until, the 8th of September, 1864, it had the satisfaction of entering the city of Atlanta—"fairly won."

The regiment camped here from the 8th of September until the 3d of October, when it received orders to move. Passing through Atlanta and out the Marietta Road, it reached a point four miles south of Marietta, and eighteen miles from Atlanta. From this point the regiment made its way over pretty much the same ground it had marched in its advance on Atlanta. Every nerve was strained to intercept and checkmate the Rebel General Hood, who was making his way toward Nashville. All the familiar blood-bought scenes on the march were again viewed by these brave men; and while in camp, lying behind breastworks which had been constructed by Rebel hands, the story of their deeds was recounted and new resolves made.

The regiment, with the Fourth Corps, participated in all the brilliant fights on the way, including that of Franklin, a battle which has been pronounced one of the most bloody and desperate of the whole war. It was also in the battle before Nashville, and after victory had crowned the National arms, joined in the pursuit of the demoralized Rebels to the banks of the Tennessee River. Returning, the regiment marched to the left, in the direction of Athens, and on the 4th of January, 1865, reached Huntsville, Alabama, where it went into camp two miles east of the city, at the foot of Mount Sinai. It remained here until the 1st of March, 1865, when it moved to Nashville, and remained there until the surrender of the Rebel armies. It was then sent home to Ohio and mustered out of the service.

91st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	JOHN A. TURLEY	Aug. 22, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Discharged Nov. 4, 1864, on accout of wounds.
Do.	BENJ. F. COATES	Dec. 9, 1864	Dec. 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	BENJ. F. COATES	Aug. 10, 1862	Sept. 29, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	LEMEEL Z. CADOT	Dec. 9, 1864	Dec. 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	JOHN R. BLESSING	Dec. 11, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Died April 10, 1863.
Do.	LEMEEL Z. CADOT	Aug. 10, 1863	June 10, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	SIMON CROSSLEY	April 9, 1863	Dec. 9, 1864	Resigned as Captain December 22, 1864.
Do.	SAMUEL F. NEAL	Jan. 4, 1863	Jan. 4, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	GEORGE H. CARPENTER	Aug. 19, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Resigned May 23, 1863.
Do.	WM. S. NEWTON	Aug. 23, 1863	June 5, 1863	Revoked.
Do.	JOHN B. WARWICK	May 23, 1861	July 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	FRANK E. POWERS	Sept. 21, 1861	Sept. 21, 1864
Ass't Surgeon	THOMAS McGOONEY	Aug. 14, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Declined.
Do.	JOHN B. WARWICK	Aug. 19, "	Oct. 10, "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	WM. S. NEWTON	Sept. 17, "	Oct. 10, "	Promoted to new regiment.
Do.	GRANVILLE S. WELLS	Aug. 11, 1862	Aug. 11, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	D. G. ALLING	March 27, 1863	March 27, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	A. H. WIXSON	April 8, 1861	April 8, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Lemuel Z. Cadot	July 13, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	James E. Niday	" 16, "	" 20, "	Died April 21, 1864.
Do.	Jacob Caldwell	" 17, "	" 20, "	Died August 9, 1864.
Do.	James E. Thomas	" 24, "	" 20, "	Dismissed August 15, 1863.
Do.	Samuel E. Clark	" 25, "	" 20, "	Killed May 9, 1864.
Do.	Kennedy R. Culbertson	" 28, "	" 20, "	Resigned September 18, 1864.
Do.	Zachariah Heeds	Aug. 4, "	" 20, "	Discharged April 18, 1863.
Do.	Simon Crossley	" 5, "	" 20, "	Pro. to Maj.; hon. dis. on account of wounds.
Do.	Thomas C. Downey	" 11, "	" 20, "	Resigned November 29, 1862.
Do.	Levi M. Stephenson	" 15, "	" 20, "	Resigned September 28, 1864.
Do.	Allen T. Wikoff	Nov. 20, "	Jan. 20, 1863	On detached service; mustered out with reg.
Do.	Lewis A. Atkinson	April 13, 1863	Dec. 27, "	Discharged February 3, 1865.
Do.	Samuel F. Neal	June 1, "	June 17, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	James Crawford	Aug. 15, "	Dec. 27, "	Resigned October 11, 1864.
Do.	Richard Blazer	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Kaps	June 14, "	June 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lawrence K. Stroup	Aug. 10, "	Aug. 11, "	Honorably discharged January 11, 1865.
Do.	Allen D. Crossland	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	James M. White	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John L. Williams	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. D. Burbage	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas W. Rose	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John A. Hamilton	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel P. Baldrige	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alva F. Kendall	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out October 16, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Samuel F. Neal	July 19, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Richard Blazer	" 21, "	" 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Kaps	" 21, "	" 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John T. Irwin	" 24, "	" 20, "	Resigned February 9, 1863.
Do.	James Crawford	" 25, "	" 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John W. Overturf	" 28, "	" 20, "	On detached service; declined promotion.
Do.	Winfield S. Underwood	Aug. 4, "	" 20, "	Resigned February 19, 1863.
Do.	Wm. W. Kiker	" 5, "	" 20, "	Resigned February 8, 1863.
Do.	Allen T. Wikoff	" 11, "	" 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Lewis A. Atkinson	July 8, "	" 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James W. Longbon	" 24, "	" 20, "	Resigned September 5, 1863.
Do.	Alex. H. Riker	" 24, "	" 20, "	Honorably discharged August 31, 1863.
Do.	Lawrence K. Stroup	Nov. 29, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Allen D. Crossland	Feb. 8, 1863	March 20, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	John W. Fuson	" 9, "	" 30, "	Resigned December 9, 1863.
Do.	James M. White	" 19, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John L. Williams	June 1, "	June 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	J. G. D. Findley	Sept. 15, "	Dec. 27, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Chas. O. Cole	Aug. 31, "	" 27, "	Resigned April 3, 1864.
Do.	Joel Hull	April 13, "	" 27, "	Resigned August 9, 1864.
Do.	Wm. D. Burbage	Aug. 15, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George B. Stroup	Feb. 17, 1864	Feb. 17, 1864	Killed June 17, 1864.
Do.	Alva F. Kendall	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. A. Donahoe	June 14, "	June 14, "	Mustered out as 2d Lieutenant August 7, 1864.
Do.	Thomas W. Rose	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	E. E. Ewing	July 13, "	July 13, "	Honorably discharged December 4, 1864.
Do.	Samuel P. Baldrige	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John A. Hamilton	" 10, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas K. Coles	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Killed in action November 18, 1864.
Do.	John W. Rockhold	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. N. Hall	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Resigned March 21, 1865, on act. of wounds.
Do.	Wm. M. Belcher	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward S. Wilson	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Adolphus H. Robinson	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James C. Freeman	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hony W. Watts	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Milton Brown	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John H. Moore	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaac H. Neel	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.

RANK.	NAME	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	John L. Williams.....	July 29, 1862	Sept. 20, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joel Hull.....	" 23, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. O. Cole.....	" 22, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Fuson.....	" 24, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. D. Burbage.....	" 25, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Allen D. Crossland.....	" 22, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. White.....	" 29, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George P. Rogers.....	Aug. 3, "	" 23, "	Resigned February 19, 1863.
Do.	Lawrence K. Stroup.....	" 11, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob Thompson.....	July 8, "	" 20, "	Resigned December 2, 1862.
Do.	Alva F. Kendall.....	Dec. 2, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George B. Stroup.....	Nov. 29, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas K. Coles.....	Feb. 19, 1863	March 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. Donahoe.....	" 19, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas W. Rose.....	" 9, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Elmore E. Ewing.....	June 1, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jerome Plummer.....	Feb. 8, "	Dec. 27, "	Dismissed.
Do.	John A. Hamilton.....	April 13, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Rockhoff.....	Aug. 31, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel P. Baldridge.....	" 15, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. N. Hall.....	Feb. 17, 1864	Feb. 17, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. M. Belcher.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward S. Wilson.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Newton B. Warwick.....	June 14, "	June 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Adolphus H. Robinson.....	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James C. Freeman.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry W. Watts.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton Brown.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John H. Moore.....	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lewis D. Hall.....	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac H. Noel.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry B. Woodrow.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Vincent Radcliff.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Cashiered May 8, 1865.
Do.	A. W. Beach.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas J. Sloan.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Died.
Do.	Wm. F. Gray.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alex. M. Scott.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Declined to accept.
Do.	E. B. Willard.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Cherrington.....	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. L. Niday.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	B. W. Lawman.....	April 26, "	April 26, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

NINETY-FIRST OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE NINETY-FIRST OHIO was raised in Southern Ohio, from the counties of Adams, Scioto, Lawrence, Gallia, Jackson, and Pike. The organization of the regiment was begun in July, 1862, and in one month it was filled above the maximum number. During the fall of 1862 the regiment was chiefly engaged in drilling, and preparing to perform efficiently the arduous work evidently before it. On the 26th of August it received its arms and accouterments, and five companies were ordered to Ironton to repel a threatened raid down the Big Sandy. On the 3d of September the remainder of the regiment joined those already at Ironton. The next day part of it was sent to Guyandotte, Virginia, to watch the Rebel Jenkins. On the 5th and 7th the Ninety-First was regularly mustered into the United States service for three years; and on the 13th received orders to proceed to Maysville, Kentucky. In passing Portsmouth a telegram was received from Governor Tod, ordering the regiment to Point Pleasant, Virginia, to relieve Colonel Lightburn, who had been driven back by the Rebel General Loring, and was retreating on that place. It arrived at Point Pleasant on the 14th, and remained there till the 26th of September, when it started on its first raid up the Kanawha. This raid was successful, in so far that a Rebel camp at Buffalo was captured, with all its contents, except the occupants, who made good their escape. On the 20th October the Ninety-First accompanied Colonel Lightburn's forces up the Kanawha to Gauley Bridge, arriving there on the 3d of November. A few days thereafter it went into winter-quarters at Fayetteville, Virginia, and remained there until the spring of 1863. After breaking up winter-quarters the first movement of the Ninety-First was to Summerville, which was intended to thwart the designs of the Rebel Imboden on that place. The attack, however, was not made, and in the meantime the Rebels concentrated under McCausland to attack Fayetteville. The Ninety-First fell back on that place, and on the 19th of May participated in the attack and pursuit of the Rebel forces, marching twenty miles, and driving the enemy from that part of the country.

The next duty performed by the Ninety-First was the pursuit of the Rebel John Morgan, who was then making his raid through Ohio. July 20th the regiment landed at Racine, and marched to Buffington's Island the same day. Morgan, however, had been defeated the day previous, and the only duty left to perform was the capture of about thirty of the raiders, coming up with them at Rankin's Point. Proctorsville was the next camping-place, from which a part of the organization, under Lieutenant-Colonel Coates, went up the Big Sandy to Louisa, to assist General White against a threatened attack from Humphrey Marshall. Without results the detachment returned, and the whole regiment went back to Fayetteville, arriving there the last of July. From this place reconnoissances were occasionally made for the purpose of keeping the enemy apprised of their proximity. In some of these marches the members of the regiment suffered terribly from the cold and deep snows. The regiment also spent its second winter at Fayetteville.

The campaign of 1864 was opened by a reconnoissance in force on Summerville about the middle of March, but finding no enemy the Ninety-First returned to its old quarters at Fayetteville. A great raid was now on the tapis. About the first of May an order was received from Crook to prepare for duty at a moment's notice. On the 2d of May regiments of infantry and artillery began to arrive at Fayetteville, and on the 3d the combined force marched on the wearisome and hazardous raid to Dublin Depot and New River Bridge. This perilous march led them into the enemy's country a distance of one hundred and fifty miles, through almost impenetrable forests and over rugged mountain ranges. The regiment left Fayetteville with about six hundred men, leaving one hundred behind in hospital.

The raid was successful; the Rebels being severely punished in their own country, the railroad torn up and destroyed, the great bridge over New River, depot-buildings, and supplies given to the flames. The honor of setting fire to the New River Bridge belongs to A. D. Crossland, Quartermaster of the Ninety-First. On their return they encountered great hardships, marching twenty-five miles per day, enduring the merciless pelting of a driving rain-storm for eleven successive days, and fighting the enemy at intervals. Starting from New River on the 11th of May they reached the National lines, at Meadow Bluffs, on the 19th, and pitched their tents for a rest. They had fought two important battles, burned the New River Bridge, captured twelve pieces of artillery, three hundred prisoners, a large amount of stores, torn up the Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, and traveled two hundred and six miles, with slight loss of life, but at the cost of terrible sufferings and hardships.

On the 31st of May the Army of West Virginia, under General George Crook, left Meadow Bluffs for Staunton, to join General Hunter, who was moving up the Shenandoah Valley to that place. The Ninety-First formed an important part of this force, being in the advance, and as it crossed a spur of the Alleghany range, and debouched into the plains near the Warm Springs, had frequent skirmishes with the enemy, in one of which Major Cadot had his horse shot under him, and three of the men were wounded. Driving and flanking the Rebels out of Panther Gap the regiment bivouacked on the night of June 5th at Goshen, on the Central Virginia Railroad. The next day the bridge over Calf Pasture River was burned, and the railroad track destroyed for eight miles. June 7th the regiment crossed the North Mountain, and the great Valley of Virginia was before it. June 8th Staunton was entered, and a junction made with the Army of the Shenandoah, under General Hunter, who, the day before, had whipped the Rebels at New Hope. A few days of rest and the two armies began their march on Lynchburg. Reaching Lexington, Virginia, on the 12th of June the Rebels, under General McCausland, were encountered, but after a cannonade of three hours' duration, and a successful flank movement, the enemy retreated. After destroying the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, the columns moved on, and on the 15th of June crossed the Blue Ridge between Otter Peak and Flat Top, the two highest points in Eastern Virginia, from whence could be seen the extensive plains of East Virginia, and the Valleys of the James and Dan Rivers. Destroying the track of the Virginia and Tennessee Railroad on their way, the National forces reached, on the 17th of June, a point within six miles of Lynchburg. At three P. M. the attack was made, the Ninety-First being in the front line of battle, to the right of the main pike leading into the city. Its support on the second line of battle was the Ninth Virginia; the Twelfth Ohio was on the right of the Ninety-First in the front line. On either side of the pike there were woods to protect the troops in their advance, except immediately on the right and directly in front of the Ninety-First. Here was an open field, through which the Ninety-First was compelled to charge, and in which the Rebels had built rail-pens. As the regiment emerged from the woods into this open field they found themselves upon an elevated part of the field, and where the Rebels used their artillery upon them with terrible effect; but the brave boys, nothing daunted, charged over the field, drove the Rebels from their defenses, captured two pieces of artillery, and pressed the enemy back to their inner lines. In this charge the commanding officer of the regiment, Colonel John A. Turley, was severely wounded. June 18th the Ninety-First was not in line of battle. Late in the day heavy re-enforcements to the enemy compelled the retreat of the National forces. The Ninety-First was the last to leave the front of the Rebels. About nine P. M. it quietly withdrew, and took up the line of march toward Liberty, traveling all night, and arriving at that place about noon of the next day (19th). The Rebels pursued with both infantry and cavalry. Three days and nights the National troops were kept on the march, with but slight intervals for rest, with the enemy harassing their rear. Marching for two weeks almost constantly, and under fire for two days in regular line of battle, gives a slight conception of the sufferings of the men. After the first three days the retreat was continued with less ardor. The last five days of the retreat the whole National force was almost completely stripped of food, and did not meet with supplies until their arrival at Dog Wood Gap, near New River. The route of the retreat lay west from Liberty, through Buford's Gap, to Salem. From thence it turned northward to Newcastle C. H., across the Alleghenics, by the Sweet Sulphur Springs, Lewisburg, Meadow Bluffs, and down the Kanawha River to Camp Piatt, where the regiment arrived on the 29th of June.

A long rest was needed. The men were worn out by fasting and heavy marches; but the exigency of the service did not permit it. Nine days were all that could be granted. Many of the men of the Ninety-First were sick, and went into hospital at Charleston. Orders to move were received, and on the 8th of July the regiment went on board a boat at Camp Piatt and started for Parkersburg, arriving there on the 11th, and immediately thereafter left by rail for Martinsburg, Virginia. By the 18th of July the entire brigade, with the train, was at Martinsburg, ready to move. The greater part of the Army of West Virginia was with General Crook, on the banks of the Shenandoah River, endeavoring to cut off the retreat of the Rebel General Early by the way of Snicker's Ford, while the Sixth and Nineteenth Corps were pursuing him across Loudon County, Virginia. Early succeeded, however, in getting safely across the Shenandoah River, and retreated by way of Berryville toward Winchester. When it was known that Early had crossed that river, the Sixth and Nineteenth Corps fell back to Washington, while Crook, with the army of West Virginia, continued the pursuit. While Crook was moving toward Berryville, the Second Brigade left Martinsburg and moved out on the pike toward Winchester, under the command of General Averill, arriving near Stephenson's Depot on the 20th of July, where the battle of that name was fought. In this brilliant affair the Ninety-First, and the brigade to which it was attached, played a conspicuous part. On the morning of the 20th of July, 1863, at eleven o'clock, our forces arrived within two miles of the battle-field. While a reconnoissance was being made the soldiers partook of the noon meal. Immediately after they advanced in line of battle. The Rebels were fully advised of the approach of the National forces, and permitted them to come within point-blank range before they opened fire. This was the strategy used, hoping, by it and superior forces, to utterly crush the little National brigade. The Rebels had posted themselves upon a gentle eminence, and in rather a thick forest extending for a quarter of a mile on either side of the pike lengthwise, and half a mile laterally. In front of their position the meadows on either side of the pike stretched away to the distance of a mile and a half, with no obstruction, except in a single instance, where a forest of four or five acres upon the left flank of the enemy, served to protect the National cavalry in the first engagement. The Rebel artillery commanded nearly the whole plain, and afforded them the best possible chance for a defensive engagement.

At twelve M., when the National advance was within half a mile of the enemy's position, the Rebels opened upon them with four pieces of artillery. This was a partial surprise, and slight evidences of wavering were exhibited, but it instantly passed away, and all was determination and activity. The cavalry dashed off to the right and left, and took a position in perfect order. The infantry were already in line, and our artillery was making rapid evolutions to get into position. Its music was soon heard, dashing and crashing, sounding sweet and comforting to the weary soldier. It began with a single gun, and scarcely a minute elapsed e'er it was one continuous roar, and in ten minutes the Rebel guns were silenced. In the meantime the infantry had gone forward and was resting behind a stone wall. General Averill reconnoitered the position, and informed Colonel Duval that he saw no reasons why he should not advance. The Colonel, equally explicit, responds "Yes; and take supper in Winchester to-night." The command was given, and the National force moved forward. The Ninth Virginia and the Ninety-First Ohio were to carry the enemy's center. The Rebel artillery had been silent so long that it was thought by many to be disabled or removed from the field. Yet caution was exercised in some degree, although the National line marched boldly forward until within fifty yards of the enemy, when it instantly laid down in the grass and began to load the guns. This artifice succeeded admirably; it drew the fire of the enemy, but they invariably overshot the National line.

At this moment the National cavalry on either flank was driven back, and things began to look badly; but an enfilading fire from the Thirty-Fourth Ohio, posted on the left flank, and the Fourteenth Virginia on the right, checked the Rebels, and drove them back with heavy loss. The entire National line then rose and advanced, and the battle raged with increased fury. The Rebel artillery hurled grape and canister into the National ranks with considerable effect. Nothing could withstand the impetuous charge that followed. It was so vigorous, so quick, and executed with such elate, that the Rebels went hopelessly down before it, some of them being clubbed over the head with the butt of the musket e'er they could rise from their hiding-places, and many of them threw away their guns and took to flight. Four brass field-pieces were captured, two by the Ninety-First Ohio, and two by the Ninth Virginia, together with the horses attached to the caissons. The next morning, July 22, 1863, Winchester was occupied.

When General Early discovered that the Sixth and Nineteenth Corps had fallen back on Washington he fell on General Crook, and after a stubborn resistance by General Crook, compelled him to evacuate the city and fall back on Martinsburg, which was reached in safety at daylight on the morning of the 25th of July. From this time until August 10th the Ninety-First, with the Second Brigade, marched and counter-marched up and down the Shenandoah Valley, skirmishing with the enemy and enduring excessive fatigue.

Tired out with the tampering policy, General Phil. Sheridan determined to make a vigorous effort to clear the Valley of the enemy, and for that purpose organized a force, consisting of the Sixth Corps, General Wright; Nineteenth, General Emory, and the Army of West Virginia, under General Crook, with a large complement of cavalry, and moved in the direction of Berryville, with the intention of flanking General Early, who was then at Winchester. The Ninety-First, with the exception of one or two regiments, was on the extreme left of this large army. August 12th the National forces arrived at Cedar Creek, but found that Early had evacuated Winchester and taken up a strong position at Fisher's Hill. A reconnoissance of four days convinced General Sheridan that it would be useless to attack the Rebels in this stronghold, and he therefore ordered a retreat to Berryville, arriving there August 17th, Early following. On the 18th the retreat was continued through Charlestown to Hallsboro, where General Crook remained several days. August 24th a reconnoissance was made by the Second Brigade, in which the Ninety-First had quite a number of men wounded. From August 26th to September 19th the National army was alternating between Charlestown and Berryville, until on that day they moved toward a common rendezvous at the crossing of the Opequan, on the pike between Winchester and Berryville. The Rebel army was there, drawn up in line of battle about two and a half miles from Winchester, on either side of the pike. The Ninety-First lost more in killed and wounded in this battle than in any it was ever engaged. The Rebels held a strong position behind a stone wall. Amid a storm of bullets the Ninety-First headed a charge, and lifted the Rebels completely out of their position with the naked bayonet.

On the 20th of September General Sheridan moved in pursuit of General Early, who had retreated toward Strasburg, and taken refuge in the breastworks at Fisher's Hill. On the 22d of September a flank movement by way of North Mountain was executed by the Army of West Virginia in splendid style. It executed one complete charge on the double-quick from North Mountain to the Valley Pike, a distance of three miles. The Rebels were too fleet of foot and escaped.

After ten days' rest the tenacious Rebel General Early moved on the National forces, and compelled them to fall back (October 8th) to Fisher's Hill; thence to Cedar Creek, where breastworks were thrown up. The Rebels were enterprising, and early on the morning of October 19th surprised and drove in the National pickets, compelling them to evacuate their intrenchments, and fall back precipitately some miles; but the National forces were quickly rallied, and, in turn, went at the enemy with such vigor that imminent defeat was transformed into a glorious and complete victory.

On the 19th of October the whole National army fell back to Kernstown. December 19th the Second Brigade was ordered to the Opequan to guard the railroad bridge over that stream.

December 30th the Ninety-First was ordered to proceed to Martinsburg, where it arrived on the 31st, in the midst of a terrible snow-storm. The hardships and sufferings endured by the brave men of this regiment in the succeeding ten days were very severe. It took them about that time to build their barracks, being compelled to get the timber for that purpose two and a half miles from town, and pry the stones for their chimneys from the frozen ground. Had it not been for the kindness of the Union-loving citizens of Martinsburg the regiment must have suffered beyond the powers of endurance. Remaining here until March 17th the Ninety-First proceeded to Cumberland, Maryland, where they arrived on the 18th. On the 5th of April it started by rail for Winchester, and on the 7th was incorporated with the Army of the Shenandoah, under General Hancock, forming a part of the First Brigade, Fourth Provisional Division.

After the surrender of Lee the Army of the Shenandoah was disorganized, the troops going in different directions. The Ninety-First remained at Winchester until the 2d of June, when it went to Cumberland, and remained there up to June 24, 1865, when it was mustered out of service, and started en route for Camp Dennison, going via Parkersburg, the Ohio River, and Cincinnati. It arrived at Camp Dennison on the 27th of June, and was paid and discharged from the service of the United States on the 30th of June, 1865, having been in service two years, ten months, and eight days.

The battles and skirmishes in which the Ninety-First was engaged during their term of service were as follows: Buffalo, West Virginia, September 26, 1862; Fayetteville, West Virginia, May 19, 1863; Blake's Farm, West Virginia, May 21, 1863; Cloyd Mountain, Virginia, May 9, 1864; New River Bridge, Virginia, May 10, 1864; Cow Pasture River, Virginia, June 5, 1864; Lynchburg, Virginia, June 17, 1864; Stephenson's Depot, Virginia, July 20, 1864; Winchester, Virginia, July 25, 1864; Near Charlestown, Virginia, August 24 and 26, 1864; Opequan, or Winchester, Virginia, September 19, 1864; Fisher's Hill, Virginia, September 22, 1864; Cedar Creek, Virginia, October 19, 1864. Its marches amounted in the aggregate to one thousand two hundred and twenty-nine miles.

92d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	N. H. VAN VORHES.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Resigned March 22, 1863.
Do.....	BENJ. D. FEARING.....	March 22, 1863	April 9, 1863	Mustered out May 19, 1865.
Lt. Colonel.....	BENJ. D. FEARING.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	DOUGLAS PUTNAM, JR.....	March 22, 1863	April 9, 1863	Honorably discharged April 11, 1864.
Do.....	JOHN C. MORROW.....	April 28, 1864	28, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	DIOCLESIAN A. SMITH.....	Aug. 10, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Resigned February 1, 1862.
Do.....	DOUGLAS PUTNAM, JR.....	Feb. 1, 1863	Feb. 4, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	ELMER GOLDEN.....	March 22, 1863	April 9, 1863	Resigned December 8, 1863.
Do.....	JOHN C. MORROW.....	Dec. 8, 1863	Jan. 14, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Surgeon.....	J. D. COLTON.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Sep. 16, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	N. B. Sisson.....	16, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned August 15, 1864.
Do.....	J. D. HOWELL.....	20, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned April 29, 1863.
Do.....	EDWIN BOOTH.....	4, 1863	Aug. 4, 1863	Never mustered.
Do.....	A. M. BEERS.....	26, 1864	26, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	WASHINGTON M. GRIMES.....	Dec. 1, 1862	Dec. 10, 1862	Resigned September 9, 1863.
Captain.....	Elmer Golden.....	July 17, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	James M. Cooper.....	21, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned December 8, 1863.
Do.....	John C. Morrow.....	27, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Wm. Wheeler.....	24, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned October 15, 1864.
Do.....	Edwin G. Dudley.....	29, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned November 3, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. Thorniley.....	29, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned April 9, 1863.
Do.....	Francis H. Loring.....	30, 1862	16, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alex. Higgins.....	30, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned May 9, 1863.
Do.....	Augustus B. Dickey.....	Aug. 2, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned July 12, 1863.
Do.....	Thomas Wilson.....	2, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned July 20, 1863.
Do.....	Edward Grosvenor.....	March 22, 1863	May 25, 1863	Died November 27, 1864.
Do.....	John Brown.....	May 9, 1863	25, 1863	Died October 2, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. B. Whittlesey.....	June 1, 1863	June 22, 1863	Died November 25, 1863.
Do.....	Milton Patton.....	July 12, 1863	Jan. 22, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Hamilton Middlethwarth.....	20, 1863	22, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James W. Merrill.....	Oct. 2, 1863	22, 1863	Honorably discharged May 24, 1861.
Do.....	Albert G. Hughes.....	Dec. 7, 1863	22, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph Stephenson.....	Nov. 25, 1863	22, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. Priestley.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Declined commission.
Do.....	Hiram Rosser.....	June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Thomas W. Morris.....	14, 1864	14, 1864	Discharged for physical disability Nov. 6, 1864.
Do.....	Bradley B. Stone.....	Nov. 18, 1864	Nov. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David Putnam.....	18, 1864	18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.....	James C. Bowers.....	July 17, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Resigned November 20, 1862.
Do.....	Edward Grosvenor.....	14, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George Hatch.....	22, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned September 29, 1863.
Do.....	Milton Patton.....	23, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Hamilton Middlethwarth.....	23, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Douglas Putnam, Jr.....	25, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	James W. Merrill.....	28, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Joseph Stephenson.....	28, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John Brown.....	29, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. C. Okey.....	29, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned May 28, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. Priestley.....	30, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Albert G. Hughes.....	Aug. 18, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Lorenzo D. Evans.....	Nov. 20, 1862	Jan. 21, 1863	Resigned August 10, 1863.
Do.....	David E. Putnam.....	Feb. 1, 1863	March 30, 1863	Honorably discharged November 24, 1863.
Do.....	Hiram Rosser.....	March 22, 1863	May 25, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. B. Whittlesey.....	May 9, 1863	May 25, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Thomas W. Morris.....	June 1, 1863	June 22, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George B. Turner.....	1, 1863	25, 1863	Died of wounds December 1, 1863.
Do.....	David Putnam.....	Aug. 10, 1863	Jan. 22, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. M. Hudson.....	Sept. 29, 1863	22, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Riley M. Merrill.....	Nov. 24, 1863	22, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John G. Rounds.....	Dec. 1, 1863	22, 1863	Resigned April 27, 1865.
Do.....	James M. Joseph.....	July 12, 1863	22, 1863	Resigned—date unknown.
Do.....	Bradley B. Stone.....	20, 1863	22, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John Kirk.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Commission returned.
Do.....	Reason A. Bull.....	Oct. 29, 1863	March 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. Gibson.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George W. Cooper.....	June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Colored command—returned commission.
Do.....	Charles A. Brown.....	14, 1864	14, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Cutler W. Goodrich.....	14, 1864	14, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James M. Cooper.....	Sept. 26, 1864	Sept. 26, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James H. McKee.....	26, 1864	26, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	J. Carmichael.....	Nov. 18, 1864	Nov. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. R. Kirk.....	18, 1864	18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant.....	Arthur T. Okey.....	July 19, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Resigned December 24, 1863.
Do.....	Lorenzo D. Stevens.....	22, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned May 9, 1863.
Do.....	Lorenzo D. Evans.....	22, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Wm. B. Whittlesey.....	23, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Thomas Day.....	26, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned February 17, 1863.
Do.....	Benj. G. Alden.....	26, 1862	16, 1862	Resigned October 14, 1863.
Do.....	James M. Joseph.....	29, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Thomas W. Morris.....	29, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Hiram Rosser.....	30, 1862	16, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John D. Smith.....	Aug. 18, 1862	16, 1862	Honorably discharged January 6, 1864.
Do.....	Hugh Townsend.....	Nov. 20, 1862	Jan. 20, 1863	Killed November 23, 1863.
Do.....	Bradley B. Stone.....	Feb. 17, 1863	March 27, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	David Putnam.....	March 22, 1863	May 25, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	George B. Turner.....	May 9, 1863	May 25, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Isaac N. Lloyd.....	June 1, 1863	June 23, 1863	Resigned October 13, 1863.
Do.....	John Kirk.....	1, 1863	23, 1863	Discharged September 8, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. M. Hudson.....	1, 1863	23, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Wm. Gibson.....	Oct. 29, 1864	Jan. 8, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

NINETY-SECOND OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE NINETY-SECOND OHIO was organized at Marietta, Ohio, during the months of August and September, 1862. It rendezvoused at Camp Marietta, then in command of Colonel W. R. Putnam. N. H. Van Vorhes, commissioned Colonel, reported and assumed command on the 1st of October, 1862. As an officer of volunteers he had been on active duty at the front since April, 1861; and while the regiment was organizing he was still on duty with General Mitchel in Alabama. B. D. Fearing, the Lieutenant-Colonel, had seen service; was at Manassas as a private; had served on the staffs of Generals Slemmer and Crook in Virginia, and evinced soldiership at Shiloh, in command of one of the regiments of General Sherman's division. All the other officers were gentlemen of experience and courage.

The men were the pick of the district— young, active, quick to learn, eager to do their best at all times, and proud of the good name and character of their regiment.

The first service performed was before the Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel, or Major had reported, or the regiment had been mustered. Adjutant Putnam, with companies A, B, and D, was ordered to move to Gallipolis, Ohio, and garrison that post, at the time the Rebels were driving Lightburn out of the Kanawha Valley. While there they made two expeditions into Virginia. These companies soon after rejoined; when the regiment, numbering nine hundred and forty-nine, rank and file, was mustered into the United States service, uniformed, and armed with Austrian rifled muskets. On the 7th of October, 1862, it was ordered to Point Pleasant, Virginia, by General Q. A. Gillmore, and assigned to Colonel Gilbert's brigade. Soon after it was transferred to the brigade of Colonel Toland, one of the brigades of Lightburn's Kanawha Division. The regiment took part in the expeditions (under General Cox) that drove the Rebel army out of the Valley of the Kanawha and beyond the mountains. At Gauley Bridge, where the regiment rested from pursuit of the enemy, it was transferred to the brigade of General Hugh Ewing, and was stationed at Camp Vinton to guard the approaches from Loupe and Alexander Creeks.

January 1, 1863, it was assigned to the brigade of General George Crook, and moved to Tompkins's Farm, on the New River, occupying the outposts of the army. Soon after, it marched to Colesworth, West Virginia, and from thence it moved (January 7) for Nashville, Tennessee. The trip from the Kanawha to Nashville was over two weeks in duration, during which the men suffered greatly from being crowded on miserable boats. It camped at Nashville until the 17th of February, 1863, when it was ordered with Crook's Brigade, to Carthage, Tennessee.

Re-embarking on transports, worse, if that were possible, than those the last trip was made on, they moved up the Cumberland. During the seven days the regiment was on these boats many of the men were compelled to sleep in the hold. Within two months ninety-six of the men were buried. There were no sanitary stores in the command, and the medicine-chests were empty, for a short time, of some of the most essential preparations.

A general order (No. 78), dated "Carthage, Tennessee, May 9, 1863, after announcing a speedy move to join the army beyond the Cumberland, and deploring the loss of many of their brave comrades by death, concludes by ordering :

"That the commandants of companies make proper details to secure the cemetery from invasion and beautify the grounds by sod, and flower, and evergreen, and bush, making it a fit resting-place for the noble fellows that there are laid.

(Signed)

"D. B. FEARING, Colonel."

The regiment was no sooner south of the Cumberland than it had a sharp skirmish with General Morgan's cavalry, after whom, on the 5th of June, it set out on a fruitless chase. After this it joined, with the brigade, the main army at Murfreesboro' General Crook was assigned to General Reynolds's division, Fourteenth Army Corps. He took with him his old troops—the Eleventh, Thirty-Sixth, Eighty-Ninth, and Ninety-Second Ohio, and Eighteenth Kentucky Infantry, and the Twenty-First Indiana Battery. His brigade was the Third, of the Fourth Division, Fourteenth Army Corps. It moved from Murfreesboro' on the 24th of June, supporting Colonel Wilder's mounted infantry, going south on the Manchester Pike. The Ninety-Second was moved rapidly to the assistance of Wilder, who had carried by storm Hoover Gap, and driven the enemy through and beyond it, but was now hard pressed by fresh troops sent to recover the valuable ground lost and to punish Wilder for his audacity. The enemy was soon driven back with much loss. The Eighteenth Kentucky Infantry and the Twenty-First Indiana Battery, reporting to Colonel Fearing, he, with them and his own (Ninety-Second Ohio) regiment, relieved Wilder's troops, having received instructions to hold the gap at all hazards. Early on the morning of the 25th the enemy made a determined struggle to repossess the gap, but the battery and regiments maintained their ground until the Fourteenth Corps, under General Thomas, moved from the gap, deployed in the valley beyond, and swept everything before it. Though actively engaged most of the day in a sharp skirmish, yet the regiment had but one man killed, Lee West, company A, and a few wounded. In pursuit of the enemy the Ninety-Second participated with the brigade in its movements at Tullahoma and in the advance to Elk River. At Big Springs, near the Elk, the regiment encamped, awaiting supplies and the baggage abandoned to facilitate the pursuit. While here General John B. Turchin assumed the command of the brigade.

In July the command moved to pleasant camps on the mountain tops, by the springs at University Place. From here they made frequent forays along the mountain-ranges and into the valleys beyond. In August the regiment, with the brigade, moved over the mountain and down through Sweden Cove, stopping a few days at Blue Springs to gather the abundant crop of delicious peaches and sweet corn. Moving through Battle Creek, they encamped in the Sequatchie Valley, near Jasper, Tennessee. On the 2d of September, at Shellmound, in flat-boats, the regiment made the crossing of the Tennessee. On the 3d it led the advance of the brigade and the army over Sand Mountain, clearing the way for the encampment of the troops in Lookout Valley. After a little skirmish on the next day, toward Chattanooga, it moved south to Trenton, Georgia. Marching from there to the base of the Lookout range, the brigade placed itself, after a severe struggle—baggage, commissary, ordnance trains, and artillery—on the mountain's top. It did not seem possible to execute it; but severe fighting in the valley beyond, and the need of the brigade there, was stimulant enough to overcome every obstacle of the pass. Passing over Lookout, from which it descended, through Cooper's Gap, into McLemore's Cove, but too late to join battle, the regiment, on the 8th, moved up the valley and took the lead of the brigade, passing Pond Spring and driving the Rebels from the Chattanooga and Lafayette Pike, and beyond Lane's Church into Catlett's Gap, in Pigeon Mountain. Here a sharp skirmish ensued, and the regiment gained control of the head of the gap, but, by a mistaken order, it abandoned the gap and took up its post at the church. Later in the day, when the regiment essayed to establish itself in the gap, it was roughly handled by a brigade of Hindman's, sent to dislodge them and hold the gap. That evening the Ninety-Second, at Lane's Church, was relieved by the Eleventh Ohio. Major-General Reynolds at this point covered the concentration of the army about Pond Springs. The Ninety-Second Ohio being a part of this mask, was busy skirmishing with the enemy, some of these skirmishes rounding into the proportions of a battle. On the night of the 18th of September the memorable march to Chickamauga was made. The regiment was with Turchin in the white heat of the fight, on the 19th and 20th, forming a part of the rear guard that heroically devoted itself to save the army.

The noble part taken by the Ninety-Second is given in detail in the admirable report of Lieutenant-Colonel Douglas Putnam, dated from head-quarters, Chattanooga, Tennessee, September 26, 1863. On the 19th Colonel Fearing was wounded and carried from the field. The command then devolved upon Lieutenant-Colonel Putnam. On the same day Captains Putnam, Brown and Lieutenant Okey were severely wounded. There were five men killed, fifty wounded and five missing. "The smallness of the loss," says the report, "was due to the very skillful management of Colonel Fearing, and his coolness and bravery while under fire and in command. On Sunday, the 20th, the regiment, with its brigade, led the charge on the right (now the left) driving the enemy in utter confusion across the field, and compelling him to abandon his artillery. Several prisoners were brought off by the regiment after this charge, among whom was a Colonel and several officers. The loss of the regiment was three commissioned officers, fifteen men wounded, and fifteen men missing."

The wound of Captain John Brown, company D, proved mortal. He was formerly a soldier in the famous Havelock (English) Brigade, and in the service of the United States proved himself a model soldier and an accomplished officer.

Lieutenant Merrill was wounded severely and captured, and sent to our lines under fire. Lieutenant Hudson, captured, went to Libby, but escaped after a long confinement, and served to the end of the war.

Returning under Thomas, the brigade went into line, covering Chattanooga. The sufferings and trials of the beleaguered army have been often told. The men of the Ninety-Second bore them all with patience and without a murmur. During the siege the brigade made several reconnoissances that were most important and hazardous. On the 26th of October Turchin's brigade, with Hazen's, was selected to take a point on the river on the further side of Lookout Mountain, known as Brown's Ferry. This movement was to co-operate with General Hooker to destroy the blockade, and relieve the beleaguered army. A detachment of expert boatmen, daring fellows, under chosen officers, reported from the Ninety-Second to Colonel Stanly of the Eighteenth Ohio, to man the pontoon-boats that were to run the gauntlet of the Rebel pickets and batteries that lined the bank and mountain side. The regiment, under Turchin, marched over the Tennessee, then over the neck of land known as the Moccasin, to the ferry, and was taken over in the boats that brought Hazen's men down the river. This move was made under cover of night. It was a complete success, reflecting credit on all engaged in it. The Ninety-Second garrisoned the point captured until relieved by a force from General Hooker's army when it returned to Chattanooga in time to take part in the initiative to Mission Ridge.

General Turchin's brigade had been maneuvering in front of the Rebel position from the 21st until the 25th of November; now spectators of the grand fight of Hooker for Lookout Mountain on the right; now on the left, with eager expectancy, watching the mortal struggle of their comrades of the Army of the Tennessee, under Sherman, with the army of the same name under Bragg. Bracing themselves for the perilous feat of scaling the ridge, the Ninety-Second, Thirty-Sixth, and Eleventh Ohio moved to the assault in double column, half distance, supported by the Thirty-First Ohio and Eighty-Second Indiana.

Companies A and B, of the Ninety-Second, under Captain Middleswarth, with the skirmishers of the Thirty-Sixth and Eleventh Ohio, did a handsome thing in clearing the rifle-pits in the woods and the works at the foot of the ridge of the enemy's advance. Moving over the plateau and through the woods, with a disciplined steadiness that was admirable, the brigade deployed and swept over the abandoned works at the foot, and made straight for those at the crest. No position could have been more difficult to carry, as the Rebel lines, bending back around the head of a ravine that pierced the assaulting lines, breaking them and destroying their impetus, had their ends terminated in batteries on the advanced knobs. The batteries and their supports, as the storming parties rose higher and higher, changed from a front to a flanking fire; and, as the line struggled under the crushing fire of grape, canister, and musketry, through the entanglements near the top, those batteries made fearful gaps in it, taking them in reverse. Under the pitiless fire they were compelled to take breath from sheer exhaustion, so steep was the ascent. Midway the regiment's commander, Lieutenant-Colonel Putnam, fell. Near him Lieutenant Townsend fell dead. Color-Sergeants and guards were all shot away. Rallying the men by the colors, young Captain Whittlesey, a brave and noble officer, fell dead.

But the men went on—they needed no leaders then. Mingling their out and tattered banners with those of the Thirty-Sixth Ohio, they swept over the works, enveloping guns and defenders. Leading the storming party over the crest, young Turner, the Adjutant, received his death-wound. Wheeling to the left, the men eagerly rushed along the ridge, rolling up the enemy's lines, and staying not in the pursuit till the recall was sounded at nightfall. The loss of the Ninety-Second was very severe, losing, in twenty minutes, thirty-three per cent. of the officers and ten per cent. of the men engaged. The regiment took many prisoners and two guns.

On the morrow the regiment, under Captain Wheeler, moved, with the brigade, southward in pursuit of the retreating enemy. The pursuit ended, they returned to Chattanooga, where they remained on active duty until the 22d of February, 1864, when, with the First Brigade (Turchin's), Third Division (Baird's), Fourteenth Army Corps, under Palmer, the regiment joined the expedition to meet the Rebels, under Johnston, at Dallas, Georgia. Major Golden having resigned soon after Mission Ridge, Captain J. C. Morrow was in command of the regiment, Fearing and Putnam still absent on account of wounds.

At Rocky Face Gap the brigade had a desperate but indecisive struggle with the enemy. In the fight the Ninety-Second lost very heavily, some of the wounded being burned in the blazing woods. Captain Edward Grosvenor, company A, was complimented in general orders for gallantry in this action.

After a diversion to relieve other divisions, General Baird moved to Ringgold Gap, where the Ninety-Second, with this division, did out-post-duty till the spring campaign opened in May. Here (at Ringgold) the regiment was in splendid camps, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel John C. Morrow, promoted, vice Putnam, mustered out on account of wounds. Colonel Fearing returned in March, and Lieutenant B. B. Stone was appointed Adjutant.

On the 7th of May the regiment marched to and through Tunnel Hill, and sat down before Buzzard's Roost, Georgia. On the 12th it moved, with its brigade, along the base of the Johns Mountain range and passed through Snake Creek Gap. On the 13th it had some skirmishing as it advanced toward Resaca. On the 14th it was in line of battle on the left of the front line of the brigade, and through the day was engaged as sharp-shooters, losing but two men killed and two wounded. On the 16th the regiment entered Resaca, and without delay followed the retreating Rebels south of the Oostenaula River, and to the banks of the Etowah. On the 23d the Etowah was forded; but the regiment returned from Raccoon Creek to escort supply-trains from Kingston to the army in the field. The regiment, with its brigade, joined the division near Dallas, Georgia, acting as guard for the corps trains until the 11th of June, when it went to the front, taking an active part in the movements that forced the enemy to evacuate his works on Pine Knob. Swinging forward through the blinding rain and dense thickets on the morning of the 18th of June, in reserve to the brigade, it saw the enemy driven from their last line of works north of Kenesaw Mountain. It took an active part, on the 19th and 20th, in forcing the enemy from the valley, to take shelter among the rocks on the side of Kenesaw, losing one officer wounded, one man killed, and one wounded.

On the 3d of July the regiment, in pursuit of the enemy, moved over his works through Marietta, Georgia, finding him some four miles south-west of that place, strongly posted; and when he was forced from this position to the new line on the north bank of the Chattahoochie, it followed in close pursuit, and again found him confronting the army in formidable works. Here the regiment took an active part, with the brigade, in the operations that forced the enemy from his position, compelling him to abandon all the territory north of the river.

After a few days' rest the line of march was resumed; crossed the Chattahoochie at Poce's Ferry on the 17th, and went into line on the 22d in front of Atlanta, losing but one man. On the 3d of August it supported the assaulting column that forced the passage of Utoy Creek; it also participated in the affair of the 6th.

On the 27th of August, 1864, the Ninety-Second, with the First Brigade, then in command of Colonel Walker, Thirty-First Ohio, withdrew from the enemy's front near Atlanta, and, joining the main army, took part in the movement south that gave us Atlanta, sharing in the glory gained by the Fourteenth Army Corps in the magnificent charge at Jonesboro', Georgia.

During the month of September the regiment was encamped south of Atlanta, on the Macon Railroad. On the 4th of October the regiment broke camp and marched north over the Chattahoochee in pursuit of the Rebel army under Hood, who was tampering with the communications of the army at Atlanta; passing over the Nicojack; through Marietta; by the Kenesaw; through the Allatoona; over the Etowah; through Kingston to Rome; up the Oostenaula to Resaca; over the Johns Mountain; through Ship Gap into Alabama; over the Coosa, through Rome, and back to Kingston by the 1st of November.

Here all the sick and feeble were carefully disposed of in the hospitals, all incumbrances destroyed or sent to the rear; while the able-bodied stored plenty of seven-thirties and greasy backs in their belts to buy yams, sweet potatoes, peanuts, sorghum, chickens, fresh pork, oysters and other delicacies. On the 12th of November, with light hearts, the men followed the enemy southward to solve the Sherman problem, over the Etowah and through the Allatoona Pass, destroying the railroad and bridges in their rear. On the 16th, leaving Atlanta, they were bound for the sea.

Thanksgiving Day found them in Milledgeville, Georgia; Christmas in Savannah, Georgia. They certainly did their share in "smashing things through Georgia to the sea." Young Cooper of company C, was killed by a guerrilla band at Covington, Georgia—"a brave boy, mourned all in the regiment." At Sandersville, Georgia, Captain Edward Grosvenor died. He was a model soldier, brave and true.

Savannah City was a beautiful spot for a winter encampment. But on the 20th of January 1865, fresh shod and clothed, the regiment moved out of the city and up the Savannah to Sibley Ferry. Crossing into South Carolina on the 5th of February they started on that remarkable march through the Carolinas—through the storms and floods; over causeways and corduroy roads through morasses; through swamps; through the pine-barrens and over the rivers—nothing bringing their way. On they went literally carrying their ponderous trains and artillery with them over the Edisto, Broad, Saluda, Little Catawba, and Pedee Rivers. The month of March found them in the grand pine-barrens of North Carolina. Passing the Cape Fear on the 16th, they came up with the enemy at Averysboro', and on the 18th, 20th, and 21st, engaged with him at Bentonville. Crossing the Neuse, they were in Goldsboro', North Carolina, and the work was finished. On the 10th of April the regiment took the road, and on the 20th arrived at Durham Station, North Carolina. It moved from Raleigh, North Carolina, on the 28th, and, passing through Virginia, came to Washington on the 19th of May, 1865, and on the 24th participated in the grand review. Then, under orders to be mustered out of the United States service, it moved to Columbus, Ohio, and on the 19th of June the Ninety-Second Ohio passed into history and the men laid aside the rifle, canteen, haversack, knapsack, and cartridge-box, and doffed their army blue; returned to their homes, which they had left three years before, in the midst of the war. Well might they be proud of the fair name of their old regiment, for by their noble deeds they had made it illustrious, and through it did their part to save the life of the Nation. Well might they love the regiment's colors, for round them clustered precious memories. Under the many of their brave comrades had gone to their death; and in the silken folds, on the tattered shreds, were names made glorious—Hoover's Gap, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Mission Ridge, Rocky Face, Atlanta, the "March to the Sea," Savannah, the Carolinas, and Peace.

93d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	CHAS. ANDERSON.....	Aug. 9, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Resigned February 21, 1863.
Do.	HIRAM STRONG.....	Feb. 21, 1863	March 6, 1863	Died of wounds October 9, 1863.
Do.	DANIEL BOWMAN.....	Oct. 9, 1862	Jan. 10, 1863	Commission returned.
Do.	DANIEL BOWMAN.....	March 3, 1863	March 3, 1863	Mustered out as Lieutenant-Colonel.
Lt. Colonel...	HIRAM STRONG.....	Aug. 25, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	ALFRED A. PHILLIPS.....	Feb. 21, 1863	March 6, 1863	Revoked; commission returned.
Do.	WM. H. MARTIN.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 20, 1864	Resigned on account of wounds Dec. 2, 1863.
Do.	ROBERT JOYCE.....	Oct. 9, 1862	Jan. 10, 1863	Commission returned.
Do.	DANIEL BOWMAN.....	March 3, 1863	March 3, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	ROBERT JOYCE.....	Oct. 9, 1862	Jan. 10, 1863	Mustered out as Major.
Major.....	ALFRED A. PHILLIPS.....	Aug. 6, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Resigned March 8, 1863.
Do.	WM. H. MARTIN.....	Feb. 21, 1863	March 6, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. BIRCH.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Died Nov. 25, '63, of wounds rec'd at Mis. Ridge.
Do.	SAMUEL B. SMITH.....	Oct. 9, 1862	Jan. 10, 1863	Commission returned.
Do.	ROBERT JOYCE.....	March 3, 1863	March 3, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	SAMUEL B. SMITH.....	Oct. 9, 1862	Jan. 10, 1863	On detached service.
Surgeon.....	GEORGE P. A. SHUMS.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Resigned August 22, 1864.
Do.	E. DILLON BOWERS.....	Sept. 8, 1862	Sept. 8, 1862	Revoked; commission not sent.
Do.	JAMES M. WEAVER.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	E. DILLON BOWERS.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon 185th O. V. I.
Do.	JAMES M. WEAVER.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	M. L. Brooks jr.....	March 22, 1863	March 22, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	WM. H. MARTIN.....	July 18, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	WM. BIRCH.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Henry H. Wallace.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Resigned June 16, 1863.
Do.	Daniel Bowman.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	John A. Allen.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Resigned July 29, 1863.
Do.	Robert Joyce.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Matthias Paulus.....	Aug. 7, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Dismissed February 5, 1863.
Do.	Matthew Distler.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Resigned November 30, 1863.
Do.	Thomas C. Mitchell.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Resigned December 1, 1862.
Do.	Samuel B. Smith.....	Aug. 20, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Timothy Regan.....	Dec. 1, 1862	Dec. 13, 1862	On detached duty.
Do.	Dickinson P. Thurston.....	Nov. 30, 1862	Dec. 13, 1862	Discharged April 6, 1863, S. O. War D'pt 212.
Do.	Elias C. Ellis.....	Feb. 21, 1863	March 13, 1863	Resigned March 19, 1864.
Do.	Philip M. Harman.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Resigned June 12, 1863.
Do.	Henry Richards.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Jarvis H. Lake.....	March 1, 1863	April 25, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Brown.....	March 25, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph T. Patton.....	June 12, 1863	June 23, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Eastman.....	Oct. 9, 1862	Jan. 10, 1864	Killed June 23, 1864.
Do.	Augustus J. Eminger.....	June 16, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaiah F. Fower.....	April 9, 1863	April 9, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry Richards.....	July 27, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Dis. by order of W. D. December 27, 1864.
Do.	John R. Gallup.....	April 9, 1863	April 9, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph B. Brock.....	Nov. 25, 1862	Nov. 26, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Shaffer.....	Jan. 20, 1863	Jan. 20, 1863	Declined to accept.
Do.	W. S. Belden.....	Feb. 10, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.	Dickinson P. Thurston.....	July 18, 1862	Aug. 11, 1862	Promoted to Captain November 30, 1862.
Do.	Timothy Regan.....	Dec. 1, 1862	Dec. 13, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Elihu B. Smith.....	Dec. 1, 1862	Dec. 13, 1862	Resigned November 21, 1862.
Do.	Elias C. Ellis.....	Feb. 21, 1863	Feb. 25, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Philip M. Harman.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John P. Kline.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Resigned January 25, 1863.
Do.	Augustus J. Eminger.....	June 16, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry Richards.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John E. Chattin.....	Aug. 5, 1862	Jan. 30, 1864	Resigned November 21, 1862.
Do.	Peter E. Paulus.....	Aug. 7, 1862	Jan. 30, 1864	Resigned November 14, 1862.
Do.	John Eastman.....	Oct. 9, 1862	Jan. 30, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph T. Patton.....	June 12, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George H. Phillips.....	Nov. 14, 1862	Dec. 13, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alex. W. Scott.....	Nov. 21, 1862	Dec. 13, 1862	Resigned April 16, 1863.
Do.	George Shultz.....	Nov. 21, 1862	Dec. 13, 1862	Resigned September 9, 1863.
Do.	Isaiah F. Fower.....	Dec. 1, 1862	Dec. 13, 1862	Dismissed March 12, 1863.
Do.	Wm. H. Brown.....	Nov. 30, 1862	Dec. 13, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Arthur C. Morgan.....	Jan. 23, 1863	March 13, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Chas. Sutphin.....	Feb. 21, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Dismissed June 12, 1863.
Do.	Daniel Shuman.....	March 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Honorably discharged December 23, 1863.
Do.	John R. Gallup.....	April 1, 1863	Jan. 30, 1864	Revoked.
Do.	Dennis N. Kelley.....	April 16, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	W. S. Belden.....	June 12, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	On detached service.
Do.	Joseph B. Brock.....	Sept. 9, 1862	Jan. 10, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Shaffer.....	March 12, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Solomon V. Boren.....	May 23, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Declined promotion.
Do.	James Tingle.....	May 31, 1864	May 31, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert B. Milliken.....	May 31, 1864	May 31, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Oscar M. Gottschall.....	July 31, 1864	July 31, 1864	Resigned November 22, 1864.
Do.	Daniel V. Bonnell.....	July 25, 1864	July 25, 1864	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	John Harman.....	Nov. 26, 1862	Nov. 26, 1862	Resigned April 2, 1865.
Do.	John W. Gregg.....	Nov. 26, 1862	Nov. 26, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John M. Patterson.....	Nov. 26, 1862	Nov. 26, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Francis M. Arnold.....	Jan. 20, 1863	Jan. 20, 1863	Killed in action.
Do.	Joseph Holmes.....	Jan. 20, 1863	Jan. 20, 1863	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	Arthur W. Cunningham.....	Jan. 20, 1863	Jan. 20, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Arthur W. Cunningham.....	Jan. 20, 1863	Jan. 20, 1863	Mustered out with regt. as Orderly Serjt. Co. K.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Stephen H. Helmer	Jan. 20, 1862	Jan. 23, 1862	Mustered out with regiment as Com. Sergt.
2d Lieutenant	Joseph F. Patton	May 29, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant Nov. 14, 1862.
Do.	Joseph R. Turner	July 18, " "	" "	Resigned November 21, 1862.
Do.	Geo. H. Phillips	" "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant
Do.	Wm. H. Brown	" "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant
Do.	Bennett C. Wroox	" "	" "	Resigned October 17, 1862.
Do.	Geo. Shultz	" "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Acker	Aug. 7, " "	" "	Resigned September 30, 1862.
Do.	Joseph C. Gilmore	" "	" "	Resigned September 30, 1862.
Do.	Arthur C. Morgan	" "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. Sutphin	" "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alex. W. Scott	Oct. 17, " "	Nov. 1, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John R. Gallup	Nov. 21, " "	Dec. 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel Shuman	Oct. 1, " "	" "	Honorably discharged May 25, 1863.
Do.	Dennis N. Kelley	Sept. 30, " "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Shaffer	Nov. 11, " "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philander B. Miller	" "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. S. Beldin	" "	" "	Honorably discharged February 1, 1864.
Do.	A. T. Babbitt	Dec. 1, " "	Jan. 20, 1863
Do.	Isaac B. Anderson	Feb. 11, 1863	April 9, " "	Resigned May 9, 1864.
Do.	Joseph B. Brock	March 1, " "	March 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Solomon V. Breen	Nov. 1, 1862	Jan. 8, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Tugle	Jan. 23, 1861	May 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert B. Maliken	May 9, " "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Goshorn	June 14, 1863	June 14, 1863

NINETY-THIRD OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE NINETY THIRD OHIO was organized during the months of July and August, 1862, at Camp Dayton, near Dayton, Ohio. It left the rendezvous for Lexington Kentucky, on the evening of August 23, 1862, numbering thirty-nine officers and nine hundred and twenty-nine men.

Under command of General Gilbert the regiment retreated from Lexington to Louisville where it was assigned to Ward's brigade, of Jackson's division, and remained in camp until September, 1862. Upon leaving, it was assigned to the Fifth Brigade of McCook's division, and upon arriving at Frankfort, Kentucky, was re-assigned to the Third Brigade, Second Division McCook's command. The Ninety-Third moved with the army to Nashville, and in December while on duty guarding a forage-train, was attacked by the Rebels, and in this, its first engagement, it lost one man killed and three wounded. At the battle of Stone River it was in Baldwin brigade, of Johnson's division, and suffered severely, on the 31st of December. After this battle it encamped on the banks of Stone River, south of Murfreesboro', until March, 1863, when moved to Camp Drake west of Murfreesboro'.

On the 23d of June, 1863, McCook's corps broke camp and marched for Liberty Gap. After a slight engagement at that place it moved to Hoover's Gap, and there joining the remainder of the army under Rosecrans, it moved on to Tullahoma, arriving July 2, 1863. The regiment remained in camp until August 17th, when, with Johnson's division, it moved to Bellefonte, Alabama, and about the last of August moved from Bellefonte to Stevenson. It crossed Lookout Mountain and bivouacked in a valley about forty miles below Chattanooga. It re-crossed the mountain, and again on the 14th of September it marched to the top and along the ridge, leaving it on the 17th of September at McLemore's Cove. On the 18th the Ninety-Third was placed as picket on the extreme right of the line of battle at Chickamauga, and was engaged in several skirmishes. On the morning of the 19th orders were received to join General Thomas, and after marching nine miles, from the extreme right to the extreme left, the last two miles at a double-quick, the regiment went into action at half-past twelve o'clock P. M. About two o'clock in the afternoon the Ninety-Third, led by Colonel Baldwin, the brigade commander, charged a Rebel battery, killed all the horses, and captured the guns and the men. The brigade was engaged until eight or nine o'clock in the evening, when, by superior numbers, it was compelled to retire two or three hundred yards, where it bivouacked for the night. During the engagement on Saturday the regiment lost one hundred and twenty-four officers and men killed, wounded, and prisoners. Early on Sunday morning the regiment commenced building breastworks (having only two axes, without picks or shovels), and by the time the Rebels advanced to the attack it was protected by a very good barricade of logs, rails, and brush. The first Rebel attack lasted one and a half hours, during which time the amount of ammunition expended by the Ninety-Third averaged one hundred rounds to the man. From that time until twelve M. there was continual skirmishing, during which private Kinsey, of company H, killed Colonel Richmond, Inspector-General on General Polk's staff, and obtained his sword and a valuable map of Ringgold and the adjoining country. Again, about twelve o'clock M., the Rebels charged and were repulsed handsomely after an engagement of an hour. The skirmishers were at once thrown out, and reported three hundred killed and wounded lying in front of the works of the Ninety-Third. At each charge the Rebels came within one hundred and twenty-five yards of the breastworks. About four o'clock P. M. the Rebels charged again, and while still fighting, the regiment was ordered to fall back. Not expecting to abandon the field, it fell back about seventy-five yards and formed in the second line of works, when orders were received to retreat on the double-quick. It fell back to Ringgold Sunday night, and at midnight of Monday, the 21st, continued the retreat to Chattanooga.

The regiment with its brigade was deployed as skirmishers along the north bank of the Chattanooga Creek, extending from the Nashville Railroad around for about two miles. It remained there for four days, and in continual skirmishing with the Rebels lost six or eight men. Strong and substantial breastworks were built, which were afterward used as the advanced picket-line.

During the first part of October the Ninety-Third was assigned to the Second Brigade (Hazen's), Third Division (Wood's), Fourth Army Corps. On the 25th of October Hazen's brigade floated down the Tennessee on pontoons, and effected a landing at Brown's Ferry. This movement relieved the want of supplies at Chattanooga, and prevented the evacuation of the place. After remaining a few days at Brown's Ferry, the regiment returned to its camp at Chattanooga.

About noon on the 23d of November, orders were received for the regiment to move out of camp as if going on brigade drill, taking nothing but arms, accouterments, and canteens. Instead of going on drill it moved into line of battle, and was consolidated with the Forty-First Ohio. This battalion was then advanced beyond the rest of the line, and in the charge upon Orchard Knob suffered severely. The time occupied in making the charge was not more than five or six minutes, during which time the Ninety-Third lost eleven killed and forty-nine wounded. Six men were shot down while carrying the regimental colors; among them was Major William Birch, who was commanding the regiment. On the 25th of November the regiment was in the assault on Mission Ridge, and sustained a loss of eight killed and twenty wounded.

On the 28th of November, 1863, the Ninety-Third started for East Tennessee. The campaign of the winter of 1863-4 was very severe, and one time the regiment was reduced to four officers and ninety men. On the 16th of January, 1864, seven officers and about eighty men, who had been left at Chattanooga unable to march, joined the regiment at Strawberry Plains, making the effective force about one hundred and seventy men. On the night of the 16th the Ninety-Third and the First Ohio were detailed for picket, and were posted about two miles and a half north of Dandridge. On the 17th about noon the Rebels attacked the line, but they were held in check until dark, when the line was withdrawn. In this skirmish the Ninety-Third lost one killed, four wounded, and three captured. The regiment with the army moved to Strawberry Plains and from there to Knoxville, and after remaining a short time the regiment, with a portion of the brigade, was stationed at Lenoir's, and was ordered to build winter-quarters. After remaining about three weeks the regiment again moved to Knoxville, and so it continued during the whole campaign, marching and counter-marching. For about a month it bivouacked at Blair Cross Roads, making occasional trips to Rutledge. On the 3d of April it arrived at Cleveland and went into camp at McDonald's Station, six miles south of Cleveland, and for a month was engaged busily in preparations for a new campaign.

On the 3d of May the regiment broke camp and started on the Atlanta campaign, with an aggregate of three hundred men. It marched to Rossville and thence to Buzzard's Roost, where on the morning of the 8th, a feint was made upon the Rebel works, in which the regiment lost four men wounded. On the evening of the 9th it withdrew to the rear, having lost that day five men wounded. The Rebels evacuated their works on the night of the 12th, and on the 13th the regiment was again on the march. About ten o'clock A. M. on the 15th heavy skirmishing was heard to the front. The Ninety-Third and One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth Ohio were in one battalion, under command of Colonel Payne, and were formed in double column closed in mass. After marching in this manner for about two miles, the battalion was deployed as skirmishers, and relieved the skirmishers of the Twenty-Third Corps. The position which was occupied was found to be untenable, as the Rebels were in force on a hill about three hundred yards in front. The order to charge was given, and the Rebels were driven from the hill. A fine position was gained, but as the remainder of the line retired the battalion was exposed to a heavy fire of shell and grape from a battery on its right. After fighting for nearly two hours, and when almost all the ammunition was expended, it was relieved by a battalion commanded by Colonel Berry. The loss of the Ninety-Third in this battle of Resaca was four killed and twenty-one wounded.

On the morning of the 17th of May the regiment entered Resaca, and advanced to Adairsville. During the day of the march to Adairsville, the brigade, of which the Ninety-Third was a part, was the advance of the column upon the railroad, and about every three miles the Rebel would make some resistance, thus compelling the brigade to form in line of battle. At five o'clock P. M. the Rebels made a stand at a small creek, about half a mile north of Adairsville. Skirmishers were thrown out and breastworks were erected. The skirmishing was severe until about nine o'clock P. M., when both parties ceased. At midnight the right wing of the Ninety-Third was detailed to cross the creek, and to build advanced works. After a night of severe labor on the fortifications it was discovered, when daylight came, that the Rebels had again commenced their tramp. The regiment marched through Kingston to Cassville, and after resting a few days advanced toward Dallas, through a section of country known as "Burnt Hickory." On the morning of the 27th of May the regiment, with the remainder of Wood's division, withdrew from their position in the lines in front of Dallas, and with Johnson's division of the Fourteenth Army Corps, marched against the right of the Rebel line. The troops started at nine o'clock A. M. in line of battle, with bayonets fixed, and marched in line and in column, without firing a shot, until five P. M., when a detachment of skirmishers, under Captain Patton of the Ninety-Third, discovered some cavalry and exchanged a few shots. Within fifteen minutes the troops were engaged heavily, the Ninety-Third being in the front line. The fight lasted until nearly dark, when the National lines withdrew about a quarter of a mile. In this action the regiment lost forty-eight killed and wounded. The night was spent in building breastworks and in obtaining ammunition, and it remained in position here until June 5th. On the night of June 5th it moved near to Acworth, where it remained a few days, and then marched toward Kenesaw. The Ninety-Third was on the skirmish-line at Pine Knob, June 17th, during the entire day, and lost seven men wounded. On the 19th it was again on the front, and on the 23d the Ninety-Third Ohio and Fifth Kentucky were sent to advance the picket-line, then not more than five hundred yards from the Rebels. The line was advanced a short distance after an hour's fight, with a loss to the regiment of three killed and thirty-seven wounded.

The Ninety-Third followed the Rebels retreating from Kenesaw, and on the 4th of July 1864, it was the extreme left regiment of Sherman's army, and connected on the flank with the cavalry. It skirmished with the enemy from ten o'clock A. M. until eleven P. M., through swamps and woods, losing three men wounded. On the 5th it reached the Chattahoochie River and overtook the Rebel rear-guard, which, after a short engagement, retreated across its pontoons and cut them loose on the National side of the river. The regiment remained here ten or twelve days, then moved up the river, crossed, and came down to a point opposite to that it had occupied July 5th. On the 18th it crossed Peachtree Creek and worked all night on the breastworks. The regiment pushed on toward Atlanta. On the morning of the 22d it came suddenly upon the Rebels, and was compelled to halt and throw up fortifications. In this position it remained until the 26th of August, performing its full share of all duty and losing but one man wounded. On the night of the 26th the regiment marched around Atlanta, and at West Point, on the 28th, assisted in destroying the Atlanta and Montgomery Railroad. The Ninety-Third was in reserve at Jonesboro', but was in the front line at Lovejoy's Station on the 30th. It remained at Lovejoy's Station several days, and then returned to Atlanta and went into camp.

In September the regiment moved to Gailsville, and from there, October 25th, to Chattanooga and thence to Pulaski, Tennessee, where it camped until November 23d, when it commenced falling back toward Nashville. On the afternoon of the 24th it arrived at Columbia, and at once resumed the old work of building breastworks. The retrograde movement continued, and on the 30th the Ninety-Third reached Franklin, and lay in reserve during the fight. On the evening of the 30th it was detailed as train-guard for the corps-train from Franklin to Nashville, and reached Nashville about noon December 1st. It lay at Nashville in the front line until December 15th, when the brigade was moved to the right to engage in the attack upon Hood, and the Ninety-Third was left to hold the works in case of a reverse. On the 16th it joined the brigade on the Granny White Pike, about four miles from the city, and moved across to the Franklin Pike. The Ninety-Third was formed to the left of the pike, with its right resting on the pike. It went into the fight with ninety men and lost four killed and twenty-one wounded.

The regiment pursued Hood to the Tennessee, and finding that he had escaped, returned to Huntsville and went into camp. At Huntsville the Ninety-Third was detailed to go to Paint Rock Bridge, about twenty miles north-east of Huntsville, for the purpose of ferrying rations across, the railroad bridge at that point having been burned. It built rafts, and in twenty-four hours ferried across seventy-five thousand rations of bread, meat, coffee, sugar, candles, and soap, then returned to Huntsville. It embarked on cars for Nashville, February 1, 1865, and remained there until February 6th, when it again returned to Huntsville. On the 15th of March the regiment left for East Tennessee. It went to Bull's Gap, thence to Greenville, thence across the mountains near to Ashville, North Carolina, from there back to Greenville, and from there to Nashville, where it arrived about the 1st of May. The regiment was mustered out of the service at Camp Harker, near Nashville, on the 8th of June, 1865, and proceeded at once to Camp Dennison, Ohio, where it was paid and discharged on the 14th of June.

Prior to the muster out of the regiment eight officers and two hundred and forty-one men were discharged for disability; four officers and two hundred and four men are accounted for as "died of disease, wounds, and killed in action;" two hundred and fifty-two men were wounded once; thirty men were wounded twice; and eight men were wounded three times. The surviving members of the Ninety-Third have an association for preserving the memories of olden times, which meets the second Friday of June, in every year. But no such association is needed to preserve the memory of their sufferings and their glory at Stone River, Chickamauga, Brown's Ferry, Orchard Knob, Mission Ridge, Resaca, Kenesaw, Atlanta, Jonesboro', Lovejoy's Station, Franklin, and Nashville.

94th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JOSEPH W. FRIZELL.....	Aug. 14, 1862	Sept. 4, 1862	Resigned February 22, 1863.
Do.....	STEPHEN A. BASSFORD.....	Feb. 22, 1862	March 12, 1863	Resigned April 16, 1864.
Lt. Colonel.....	STEPHEN A. BASSFORD.....	Aug. 11, 1862	Sept. 4, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	DAVID KING.....	Feb. 22, 1863	March 12, 1863	Resigned October 8, 1863.
Do.....	RGE. P. HUTCHINS.....	Oct. 8, 1862	Jan. 10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	DAVID KING.....	Aug. 11, 1862	Sept. 4, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	RGE. P. HUTCHINS.....	Feb. 22, 1863	May 19, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	CHARLES C. GIBSON.....	Oct. 8, 1862	Jan. 10, 1863	Resigned December 13, 1864.
Do.....	WM. H. SNIDER.....	Jan. 6, 1863	6, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	EDWIN SINNET.....	Aug. 26, 1862	Oct. 1, 1862	Resigned September 9, 1863.
Do.....	WM. B. GIBSON.....	Sept. 9, 1862	Sept. 30, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	J. L. SORBER.....	July 14, 1862	Declined.
Do.....	L. C. FOUTS.....	20, 1862	Resigned April 18, 1863.
Do.....	WM. B. GIBSON.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Oct. 28, 1862	Promoted.
Do.....	J. RESLEY.....	4, 1863	Aug. 1, 1863	Declined.
Do.....	EDWIN C. BOOTH.....	Jan. 6, 1863	Jan. 6, 1863
Do.....	DAN. W. HUMPHREVILLE.....	April 7, 1863	April 7, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	WM. ALLINGTON.....	Sept. 14, 1862	Sept. 19, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Perry Stewart.....	July 15, 1862	4, 1862	Resigned November 9, 1863.
Do.....	John C. Drury.....	22, 1862	4, 1862	Killed at Perryville October 8, 1862.
Do.....	Frederick W. Walton.....	22, 1862	4, 1862	Resigned December 25, 1862.
Do.....	Rue. P. Hutchins.....	22, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	David Steele.....	23, 1862	4, 1862	Killed December 31, 1862.
Do.....	Thomas H. Workman.....	26, 1862	4, 1862	Honorably discharged November 14, 1862.
Do.....	Wesley Gorsuch.....	Aug. 6, 1862	4, 1862	Resigned February 26, 1863.
Do.....	Charles C. Gibson.....	7, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	James Kyle.....	8, 1862	4, 1862	Resigned February 20, 1863.
Do.....	Chauncey Riddle.....	11, 1862	4, 1862	Resigned December 18, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. H. Snider.....	Nov. 14, 1862	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	James E. Edmonds.....	Dec. 25, 1862	Feb. 21, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Dixon G. McLaughlin.....	Oct. 8, 1862	19, 1862	Resigned September 26, 1864.
Do.....	Charles R. Moss.....	Feb. 26, 1863	March 30, 1863	Resigned.
Do.....	David T. Davidson.....	20, 1863	7, 1863	Resigned November 5, 1863.
Do.....	John W. Ford.....	22, 1863	May 19, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Amaziah Winger.....	18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Nathan G. McConkey.....	Nov. 9, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Renj. F. Coolidge.....	5, 1864	10, 1864	Mustered out with regt. as 1st Lt. and A. Q. M.
Do.....	Frank A. Hardy.....	Oct. 8, 1864	10, 1864	Declined; commission returned.
Do.....	Samuel H. Sherlock.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Frank A. Hardy.....	Oct. 12, 1864	Oct. 12, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alex. Haywood.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Andrew Gowen.....	6, 1865	6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Samuel Jody.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.....	Hezekiah Kelsner.....	July 15, 1862	Sept. 4, 1862	Resigned December 25, 1862.
Do.....	Joshua H. Horton.....	21, 1862	4, 1862	Resigned February 16, 1863.
Do.....	Benj. F. Coolidge.....	21, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Dixon G. McLaughlin.....	22, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James A. Pitticrew.....	23, 1862	4, 1862	Resigned November 16, 1862.
Do.....	John A. Beale.....	23, 1862	4, 1862	Died December 31, 1863.
Do.....	Alfred L. Trader.....	23, 1862	4, 1862	Resigned March 23, 1863.
Do.....	Samuel T. Arnold.....	25, 1862	4, 1862	Resigned December 25, 1862.
Do.....	Wm. H. Snider.....	26, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George D. Farrar.....	Aug. 6, 1862	4, 1862	Dismissed June 6, 1863.
Do.....	Nathan G. McConkey.....	8, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John W. Ford.....	20, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Frank A. Hardy.....	Nov. 16, 1862	Dec. 2, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Henry A. Tomlinson.....	14, 1862	Jan. 20, 1863	Resigned June 21, 1863.
Do.....	James E. Edmonds.....	16, 1862	Feb. 14, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Daniel D. Hunter.....	Dec. 25, 1862	March 30, 1863	Resigned October 12, 1863.
Do.....	John Kingery.....	31, 1862	30, 1862	Resigned July 19, 1863.
Do.....	Samuel H. Sherlock.....	Feb. 16, 1863	30, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Frederick B. McNeal.....	Oct. 8, 1862	Feb. 19, 1863	Resigned March 19, 1862.
Do.....	Amaziah Winger.....	Dec. 25, 1862	March 30, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George W. Wilson.....	Oct. 8, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Transferred to 1st U. S. V. Engineers.
Do.....	Samuel Jody.....	June 6, 1863	10, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Alex. Haywood.....	March 19, 1863	May 19, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Andrew Gowen.....	23, 1863	April 3, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Andrew Wiggins.....	Feb. 27, 1863	May 19, 1863	Resigned October 29, 1862.
Do.....	Wm. D. Putnam.....	June 21, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Henry C. Cushman.....	Feb. 18, 1863	Feb. 18, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James Mitchell.....	18, 1863	18, 1863	Resigned September 7, 1864.
Do.....	John A. Hyfling.....	18, 1863	18, 1863	Mustered out May 15, 1863.
Do.....	James T. Pierson.....	March 3, 1863	March 3, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	M. Dickey.....	3, 1863	3, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James B. Cross.....	3, 1863	3, 1863
Do.....	Morrison M. Markwith.....	Sept. 8, 1863	S-pt. 8, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Edward Conner.....	Oct. 3, 1863	Oct. 3, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Frank Dinwiddie.....	Jan. 6, 1864	Jan. 6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	H. Newton Arnold.....	6, 1864	6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant.....	Amaziah Winger.....	July 15, 1862	S-pt. 4, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Frederick B. McNeal.....	22, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Frank A. Hardy.....	23, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Andrew Wiggins.....	27, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Henry A. Tomlinson.....	22, 1862	4, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Samuel Walton.....	22, 1862	4, 1862	Dismissed October 22, 1862.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	David T. Davidson.....	July 23, 1862	Sept. 4, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George H. Maddox.....	" 23, "	" 4, "	Resigned February 17, 1863.
Do.	Charles R. Moss.....	Aug. 6, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Wilson.....	" 8, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James E. Edmonds.....	Nov. 16, "	Dec. 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. D. Putnam.....	" 14, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Kingery.....	Oct. 27, "	March 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Barton C. Mitchell.....	Nov. 16, "	Feb. 14, "	Resigned October 23, 1863.
Do.	Alexander Haywood.....	" 8, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John P. Patterson.....	Feb. 17, 1863	March 30, "	Resigned November 12, 1862.
Do.	Samuel Judy.....	" 26, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Andrew Gowan.....	" 20, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry C. Cushman.....	Dec. 25, 1862	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Mitchell.....	" 31, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John A. Hyling.....	March 23, 1863	April 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James T. Pierson.....	Feb. 22, "	May 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	M. Dickey.....	May 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

NINETY-FOURTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Piqua, Miami County, Ohio, under the immediate supervision of Colonel J. W. Frizell. The officers were appointed on the 22d of July, 1862, and so vigorously was the recruiting prosecuted that in just one month one thousand and ten men were mustered into the service of the United States.

On the 28th of August, without uniforms or camp equipage, and never having been drilled as a regiment, the Ninety-Fourth was ordered to Kentucky, that State being then invaded by Rebel forces under Kirby Smith. It proceeded via Cincinnati, and, upon arriving in that city, was immediately ordered to Lexington, Kentucky. By great perseverance the Colonel succeeded in obtaining three rounds of cartridges to the man; and, being supplied with this very limited amount of ammunition and sufficient clothing to satisfy immediate wants, the regiment took the cars for Lexington, and arrived at nine P. M. on Saturday night, and heard for the first time an authentic account of the battle of Richmond. After considerable search the Colonel succeeded in finding the officer to whom he was to report, but in such a beastly state of intoxication as to be unable to rise from his bed, and perfectly incompetent to give intelligent instructions. With the assistance of some citizens passable quarters were obtained for the men; and, hungry, tired, and anxious for the morning, the regiment tried bivouacking for the first time. Sunday morning dawned, bright and beautiful, disclosing the town full of stragglers from the Richmond battlefield, relating wild stories of defeat and disaster; and though but little confidence was placed in their reports, still this, together with the general gloom always attending such a state of affairs as then existed, caused the order for the regiment to proceed to Yates's Ford, on the Kentucky River, fifteen miles east of Lexington, on the Richmond Road, to be received with fearful forebodings. However, the order was obeyed without a murmur; and, after a hard day's march under a scorching sun, over a dry and dusty road, with water very scarce, the regiment arrived near the ford just at dark. This being the first march the regiment had made, the men were much exhausted, and dropped to the ground as soon as the order to halt was given.

While the Colonel was endeavoring, as best he could in the darkness, to select a position which could be easily defended, a fire was opened upon the regiment by a Rebel scouting party concealed in the thickets skirting the road; and it was afterward ascertained that the whole of Kirby Smith's army was encamped but a couple of miles north of the ford. A veteran regiment could not have behaved better than did the Ninety-Fourth on this occasion. The night was very dark, the men were lying down, and many had already fallen asleep; but, after the confusion incident to their rude awaking, very little trouble was experienced in getting the regiment properly formed. The Rebel fire lasted but a moment, yet two men were killed and six wounded. After posting his men to the best advantage, Colonel Frizell remained with the advance picket post (which from the nature of the country was but a short distance from the regiment), during the night; Major King, Captain Drury, and the Adjutant occupying intermediate positions between the Colonel and the regiment. The night passed slowly and without further alarm and as soon as daylight appeared the hungry men began looking in some wagons that had arrived during the night for the supplies which the officer in command at Lexington had said he would send. The search revealed one hundred and twenty-five rounds of ammunition to each man and three sacks of green coffee!

While endeavoring to make a breakfast from these "supplies," the Rebel army was reported advancing, and soon began shelling the regiment from a battery they had placed in position in the woods just across the river. Colonel Frizell watched the Rebel maneuvers for a few moments, and then ordered his Adjutant to form the regiment and march back until past the road, where it was supposed the Rebels would attempt to form and prevent a retreat. The movement was effected in good order, but none too soon, as the rear-guard had just passed the road when the Rebels came trooping from it into the pike and began firing upon Captain Drury's company, which had been selected as rear-guard. Colonel Frizell remained in the rear until the advancing Rebels were checked, when he directed the regiment to a certain point and there to form for action. He knew that his force was greatly outnumbered, but his orders were to "contest every foot of ground back to Lexington." Just as the movement was begun a messenger arrived with an order from General G. C. Smith, dated the night before, for the Ninety-Fourth to return to Lexington with all possible dispatch.

The regiment was now twelve miles from any support, with a fresh and victorious enemy (more than ten times superior in numbers) close in the rear; and to successfully conduct a retreat of raw troops under such circumstances required the most thorough ability on the part of the commander and the most undoubted confidence on the part of the men. The regiment toiled along the hot and dusty road, Colonel Frizell, Captain Drury, and other officers fearlessly exposing themselves to prevent straggling; but their utmost efforts could not prevent quite a number of the almost exhausted men from falling by the way-side and becoming an easy prey to the closely pursuing enemy.

At four o'clock the regiment reached Lexington, to the great surprise of every person who knew they had been sent out on that expedition. The order sending it to the ford was a blunder; and probably the only thing that prevented its capture was the very boldness of the movements made. Our army that had retreated from Richmond had already left Lexington, still in retreat toward Louisville, and all stores that could not easily be transported had been destroyed. With the exception of coffee and crackers on Sunday morning, the men of the Ninety-Fourth had had but little to eat since Saturday morning, were tired and footsore, and in bad condition for further marching. In the absence of instructions to the contrary, it was Colonel Frizell's intention to remain in Lexington (unless driven out) until his men had procured the much-needed food and rest; but the order for continued retreat reached him and was obeyed. At daylight the retreating army reached Versailles, and a halt for breakfast was ordered; but just as the coffee began to boil another order to "fall in" immediately came from the officer in command.

The season was very dry, and but little water could be obtained. The suffering in consequence of this may be inferred from the fact that Ohio soldiers gave five dollars for a canteen full of muddy water, a dollar for a drink, and many drank, from standing pools, the water that the horses refused to touch! The roads were almost ankle-deep with dust, and the sun shone fiery overhead. The day's march began at from two to three o'clock in the morning, and continued till late in the night. The only provisions issued (or to be obtained) were a few hard crackers each night, and what green corn yet remained in fields adjacent to camping grounds. The troops were nearly all newly enlisted, and, being unused to such a life, it is not to be wondered at that they fell out of ranks by the hundred, and were so easily captured by the force of Rebels following.

Upon arriving at Louisville the Ninety-Fourth went into camp without tents in the woods, but the men were so utterly exhausted that their only want was to rest as best they could. Having been almost entirely deprived of sleep, water, or food for seven days, marching night and day, with feet and limbs swollen almost to bursting, and every sense dulled by suffering, many of the men were pitiable objects.

In a short time, however, all had regained comparative strength, health, and cheerfulness, and were ready to go where duty called. The first regular report that the Adjutant could make after arriving at Louisville showed a loss of two hundred and eighteen men! With the exception of the two men killed at Tate's Ford, all eventually rejoined the regiment, having been paroled by the Rebels almost as soon as captured.

With the exception of some hard work in the trenches and on fortifications for the defense of Louisville, and a participation in two or three "grand reviews," the regiment had a very easy time until the 1st of October, when the movement began which resulted in the battle of Perryville and the driving of Bragg's Rebel army from Kentucky.

Previous to the battle of Perryville the Ninety-Fourth had been assigned to Rousseau's division of McCook's corps, and took a prominent part in this engagement, being highly complimented in general orders.

The regiment broke camp near Nashville on Christmas day, 1862, and was in advance of the army marching on Murfreesboro', and during the battle of Stone River was engaged every day from Wednesday until Saturday.

The Ninety-Fourth was again in the advance on Tullahoma, participating in the fight at Hoover's Gap in June, 1863; had a skirmish at Dug Gap, and were engaged in the hard-fought battle of Chickamauga. At Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge the regiment again took a prominent part, participating in the grand charge upon the ridge; was with Sherman on the march to Atlanta, taking part in the battles at Buzzard's Roost, Resaca, Kingston, Pumpkin-Vine Creek, Kenesaw Mountain, Chattahoochie River, Peachtree Creek, Atlanta, and Jonesboro'. After pursuing Hood, the Ninety-Fourth participated in Sherman's grand march to the sea, arriving in Savannah before Christmas. On the 20th of January, 1865, it was again on the march through South and North Carolina; and, after participating in the battle of Bentonville, North Carolina, arrived at Goldsboro' on the 23d of March, 1865. The Ninety-Fourth was the first regiment of infantry to enter Raleigh, North Carolina; and soon after the surrender of Johnston marched to Washington, via Richmond and Alexandria; participated in the grand review before the President, General Grant, and others; and was mustered out of the service at Washington on the 6th of June, 1865, with an aggregate of three hundred and thirty-eight men—"all that were left of them—left of" one thousand and ten!

95th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	WM. L. McMILLEN	Aug. 16, 1862	Aug. 28, 1862	Mustered out Aug. 14, 1865; pro. Bvt. Brig. Gen.
Lt. Colonel	Jas. B. ARMSTRONG	" 8, "	" 2, "	Resigned October 2, 1863.
Do.	JEFFERSON BRUMBACK	Oct. 4, "	Oct. 7, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Major	JEFFERSON BRUMBACK	Aug. 10, "	Aug. 7, "	Promoted.
Do.	JOSEPH M. STUART	Oct. 4, "	Oct. 7, "	Resigned July 28, 1863.
Do.	WM. R. WARNECK	July 28, 1863	Aug. 29, 1863	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Surgeon	H. Z. GILL	Aug. 19, 1862	Aug. 28, 1862	Prost. Hon. disch'd April 14, 1864, to accept prom. by
Do.	CHAS. F. WILBUR	June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Ass't Surgeon	W. H. JONES	Aug. 15, 1862	Aug. 28, 1862	Declined commission.
Do.	E. P. HOOVER	" 15, "	" 28, "	Honorably discharged April 27, 1864.
Do.	CHAS. F. WILBUR	" "	March 10, 1863	Promoted.
Do.	WM. S. SEARS	June 27, 1864	June 27, 1864	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Chaplain	C. W. SEARS	Aug. 19, 1862	Aug. 18, 1862	Resigned July 3, 1863.
Captain	Joseph M. Stuart	July 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted.
Do.	WM. R. WARNECK	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted.
Do.	Thomas A. Cozart	" 21, "	" 21, "	Resigned January 15, 1863.
Do.	Wells Allen	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Edward L. Taylor	" 22, "	" 22, "	Resigned July 3, 1863.
Do.	Hawley J. Wylie	" 22, "	" 22, "	Resigned December 5, 1862.
Do.	Robert M. Harrison	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out June 26, 1865.
Do.	James S. Tate	Aug. 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	George W. Darby	" 7, "	" 7, "	Resigned January 15, 1863.
Do.	David Thomas	" 16, "	" 16, "	Resigned January 15, 1863.
Do.	Isaac B. Potts	Oct. 4, "	Oct. 16, "	Resigned July 29, 1863.
Do.	James G. Bull	Dec. 5, "	Dec. 5, "	Resigned December 31, 1862.
Do.	James Killbourn	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Marcus L. Stansbury	Jan. 15, 1863	Jan. 20, 1863	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Morris Yeoman	" 15, "	" 20, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel U. S. C. T.
Do.	Thos. S. Pennington	" 15, "	" 20, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Aurelius V. Peters	July 3, "	Dec. 9, "	Honorably discharged February 17, 1865.
Do.	John G. Beall	Aug. 5, "	Sept. 9, "	Honorably discharged June 7, 1864.
Do.	Alfred G. Tutler	July 28, "	Sept. 9, "	Resigned December 30, 1864.
Do.	Isaac N. Davidson	Dec. 9, 1864	Dec. 9, 1864	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	David M. Tate	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	John C. Chittenden	Feb. 27, 1865	Feb. 27, 1865	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Oliver Colwell	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Isaac B. Potts	July 16, 1862	Aug. 18, 1862	Promoted.
Do.	Samuel D. Strayer	" 21, "	" 21, "	Resigned December 5, 1862.
Do.	Marcus L. Stansbury	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted.
Do.	James G. Bull	" 23, "	" 23, "	Promoted.
Do.	Aurelius V. Peters	" 23, "	" 23, "	Promoted.
Do.	Isaac N. Davidson	" 24, "	" 24, "	Promoted.
Do.	Alfred G. Tutler	Aug. 1, "	" 1, "	Promoted.
Do.	Thomas P. Jones	July 24, "	" 24, "	Resigned January 15, 1863.
Do.	David M. Tate	Aug. 5, "	" 5, "	Promoted.
Do.	John C. Chittenden	" 7, "	" 7, "	Promoted.
Do.	Evenant Allen	" 7, "	" 7, "	Reduced to 2d Lieutenant August 13, 1863.
Do.	Thomas S. Pennington	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted.
Do.	Morris Yeoman	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted.
Do.	James W. Eldridge	Oct. 4, "	Oct. 16, "	Resigned December 10, 1862.
Do.	Oliver Colwell	Dec. 5, "	Dec. 5, "	Promoted.
Do.	James Killbourn	" 5, "	" 5, "	Promoted.
Do.	John G. Beall	" 10, "	" 15, "	Promoted.
Do.	Henry W. Phelps	" 31, "	" 21, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	David M. Hayden	Jan. 15, 1863	Jan. 20, 1863	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Joseph A. Thrapp	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Alexander Cowan	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Vincent Allen	" 15, "	" 15, "	Died July 19, 1863.
Do.	Jerome B. Vance	July 19, "	Sept. 7, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Oscar D. Kelton	Aug. 5, "	" 3, "	Killed at Guntown, Tennessee, June 10, 1864
Do.	Murray Davis	July 28, "	" 3, "	Honorably discharged September 7, 1864.
Do.	Josiah Barber	" 3, "	Dec. 3, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Wm. H. Elliott	Aug. 23, 1864	Aug. 23, 1864	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Benjamin E. Robinson	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Allen C. Stover	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Isaac G. Poettr	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	Joseph Hoston	May 31, 1865	May 31, 1865	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	William A. Ward	" 31, "	" 21, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
Do.	William H. Grubb	" 31, "	" 21, "	Mustered out August 14, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	John C. Chittenden	July 7, 1862	Aug. 18, 1862	Promoted.
Do.	James W. Eldridge	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted.
Do.	Wm. H. Elliott	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted.
Do.	Oliver Colwell	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted.
Do.	Aurelius V. Peters	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted.
Do.	Josiah Barber	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted.
Do.	James Killbourn	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted.
Do.	Payton R. Chrisman	" 24, "	" 24, "	Resigned January 15, 1863.
Do.	Benjamin E. Robinson	Aug. 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted.
Do.	Thomas S. Pennington	" 7, "	" 7, "	Promoted.
Do.	Vincent Allen	" 13, "	" 13, "	Died July 19, 1863.
Do.	Joseph A. Thrapp	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted.
Do.	Morris Yeoman	July 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted.
Do.	J. F. N. Walton	" 19, "	" 19, "	Resigned January 19, 1863.
Do.	John G. Beall	Oct. 4, "	Oct. 16, "	Promoted.
Do.	Henry W. Phelps	Dec. 5, "	Dec. 9, "	Promoted.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Allen C. Stover.....	Dec. 5, 1862	Dec. 8, 1862	Promoted.
Do.	James C. Culvert.....	" 10, "	" 15, "	Died June 19, 1863.
Do.	Murray Davis.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted.
Do.	Isaac G. Pestre.....	Jan. 15, 1863	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted.
Do.	Joseph Houston.....	" 15, "	" 20, "	Promoted.
Do.	Alexander Cowan.....	" 15, "	" 20, "	Promoted.
Do.	William A. Ward.....	" 15, "	" 20, "	Promoted.
Do.	Thomas T. Timmons.....	" 15, "	" 20, "	Resigned August 3, 1863.

NINETY-FIFTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ON the 19th of August, 1862, the Ninety-Fifth Regiment was mustered into the service of the United States at Camp Chase, Ohio. The next day the regiment received marching orders, and proceeded to Lexington, Kentucky. Arrived there, rumors of a Rebel advance via Cumberland Gap caused the transfer of about ten thousand troops to Richmond, Kentucky, previous to August 30th.

The brigade arrived at Richmond by a forced march, drove off the Rebel troops after they had sent in a flag of truce, asking for a surrender of the town. The Ninety-Fifth had never been in line of battle until the night they were ordered to sleep on their arms in anticipation of an attack.

On the 29th of August the brigade of General Manson, then five miles south of Richmond, had an encounter with Kirby Smith's advance, in which our troops captured a gun. They remained all night on the field, confident of their ability to defend the approach to Richmond, and underestimating, in their ignorance, the enemy's strength. The almost impassable barrier afforded by the precipitous approaches to the Kentucky River had been left fifteen miles in the rear, while they advanced to encounter an army of veterans double their numerical strength, as the sequel proved.

Kirby Smith was then on his march to the Ohio River, making his famous Northern raid, that will long live in story, and in the memory of the squirrel-hunters that were summoned to the defense of Cincinnati. Across his way, and barring it, lay an army of ten thousand raw troops, provided with but nine pieces of artillery. Veterans would have fallen back to the line of the Kentucky River, where it was possible to delay the advance of the enemy until the arrival of re-enforcements.

But it was not so ordered in the book of fate. Blind to the danger, and bold to rashness, our raw troops not only stood their ground, but advanced to meet certain defeat and almost annihilation. Thus ominously began the career of the Ninety-Fifth.

As no other regiment of Ohio troops participated in the battles around Richmond, a short description of the struggle, as witnessed by one who was engaged in it, will be read with interest, for this was one of the minor decisive battles of the war.

The next morning the Rebel army made an attack, without showing much force. Skirmishing continued until nine o'clock A. M., when a determined charge drove our troops headlong from their position. One hundred and twenty men of the Ninety-Fifth and a majority of the line officers, commanded by the Lieutenant-Colonel, scorning to fly, and deeming themselves the only representatives of their State on the field, stood their ground until completely surrounded, when they were compelled to surrender.

A mile or two in the rear some fragments of regiments made another stand, and were again scattered like chaff. Pursuing their retreat, a routed and demoralized remnant of the army, devoid of artillery, rallied under the eye of General Nelson and stood their ground at the Cemetery, and behind some cornfield fences close to Richmond. In their front were open fields which it was expected the Rebels would not attempt to cross. Suspense was short. A few minutes after these preparations were completed a dust-covered, yellow line of battle was seen in front, extending right and left indefinitely, and outflanking the position. Onward it came, and behind it could be seen heavy columns in support. They reached the level clover-field in front of our center, when they received a volley deliberately aimed from behind our shelter. Without halting to return the fire, and with arms at a right-shoulder shift, these veterans of a dozen battles pulled their hats closer over their brows, closed up their ranks, and pressed on, with line dressed as on parade.

There was something appalling in the steady tramp of their approach that carried terror to the heart of many a man whose first experience this was under fire. Another discharge from our whole line brought their battalions to a halt. Then, in an instant, came the flash of the setting sunlight from thousands of Rebel musket-barrels, and their front was hid in fire and smoke. Our ranks made a feeble reply, which was met by a terrific volley that ended the battle. It was in vain that General Nelson stormed and swore, and rode back and forth exhorting his men, and telling them: "Boys, if they can't hit me they can't hit a barn-door!" All organized resistance was ended, and a tumultuous retreat began to the Kentucky River. In the battle eight men were killed, forty-seven wounded, and six hundred captured. The loss of the other regiments engaged was about two hundred and fifty killed and eight hundred wounded; captured, about two thousand. The Rebel loss was heavier in killed and wounded than ours.

"Mack," the army correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, communicated to that journal the particulars of Colonel Armstrong's escape from the Rebel grasp, which is here transferred:

"Lieutenant-Colonel Armstrong, of the Ninety-Fifth Ohio, after his release on parole, performed what may well be classed among the daring feats of the battle, though but remotely connected with it. After manfully and heroically performing his duty in the three different engagements of the day, he was taken prisoner. His capture occurred either late on Saturday night or early Sunday morning, I have forgotten which. He had a favorite and valuable horse, which was fortunate to escape unhurt. Desirous of retaining this animal—still further endeared to him by dangers safely passed through—he applied to General Kirby Smith for permission to do so, and the General, who is the most courteous of Rebels, granted his request.

"Before the Ninety-Fifth was ready to leave Richmond, General Smith had gone forward and General Heath was in command. The last-named individual countermanded the order of General Smith, and informed Colonel Armstrong that his horse was Confederate property. The Colonel was, of course, highly displeased with the fiat, and soon made up his mind to disobey it. Accordingly, he mounted his valuable charger—fully caparisoned for the battle-field—and riding through town with an air of one who has a right to do so, he started on the Lexington Pike for Cincinnati and intermediate points. It is worthy of statement that General Heath had issued an order that no paroled prisoners should be allowed to leave Richmond on horseback. But Colonel Armstrong's steed pranced through the streets with his lawful owner in the saddle as if he was 'particeps criminis' to the violation of the edict.

"Reaching the pike the Colonel put spurs to his horse, and away he dashed past Rebel guards and patrols. He soon overtook his homeward-bound regiment, stopped, dismounted, but was off again at full speed in a few minutes. About an hour after his departure a squad of Rebel cavalry came along in full pursuit of the fugitive Federal. They inquired if he had 'passed that way,' and were informed that he had. Confederate horseflesh never exerted itself to a greater extent than the secession chargers did when their riders were told that Colonel Armstrong was a good distance ahead of them. They continued the pursuit as far as the Kentucky River, inquiring of every person they met on the roadside as to the distance between them and the object of their chase.

"About an hour after sunset I met the pursuers on their retreat, and Colonel Armstrong was not with them. They had not caught him. The valiant Ohioan with his noble steed had been too much for the rebellious Texans, with their ill-fated Rosinantes, and I suppose he is now safely at home in Urbana."

On November 20, 1862, intelligence was received of the exchange of the regiment. The work of reorganizing, calling in, and drilling commenced in earnest and continued until May 25, 1863, when the regiment was ordered to Memphis, where it arrived six hundred strong. At Memphis a division was organized for service at Vicksburg. The Ninety-Fifth formed part of it, and landed at Duckport Landing, near that point, on April 1, 1863.

Here a period is reached in the history of this regiment when many others from Ohio participated in memorable operations; it is only required, therefore, to narrate the part the Ninety-Fifth sustained henceforward in the drama. They remained with the besieging forces at Vicksburg, digging canals, fighting on picket-lines, and living in bomb-proofs, until a few days before the capture of the city. They aided in the capture of Jackson, Mississippi, and in the operations around the Big Black River, and were at one time fortunate enough to receive General Sherman's thanks for being first inside a Rebel battery of four guns, which they captured, with sixty Rebel gunners.

The regiment participated in Sherman's attempt to storm the works of Vicksburg on the 22d of May, where, besides sustaining a repulse, many brave men were sacrificed. After the fall of Vicksburg the Fifteenth Corps, to which the Ninety-Fifth was attached, made a second march on Jackson, Mississippi, and drove out the Rebel army. Then moving slowly back, they destroyed railways, etc., and finally went into winter-quarters near Memphis, where, for three months, they were engaged in guarding lines of communication. The most of the Fifteenth Corps marched with General Sherman to the relief of Chattanooga. During the winter the Ninety-Fifth was assigned to the Sixteenth Corps, with which it served until the end of the war.

Early in June, 1864, an expedition, composed of three brigades of infantry, a division of cavalry, and a strong force of artillery, under the command of General Sturgis, undertook to strike the Mobile and Ohio Road in the vicinity of Tupelo. The point was distant, and to reach it the invaders must necessarily cut loose from their base, to make a bold push for the interior. Never was undertaking more rashly planned, or placed in the hands of such inadequate leadership. When the Spaniards burned their ships, and boldly turned their faces toward the heart of a hostile continent, or when John Morgan made his raid north of the Ohio, organized armed resistance could not be reasonably expected; but here the intervening country swarmed with a large force of the best cavalry in the Rebel service, under command of General Forrest, as a straggling column of a few thousand men undertook to cleave their passage one hundred and sixty miles into the heart of the Confederacy.

Memories of the Richmond disaster yet lingered in the minds of the men, and it was with forebodings they pursued their trackless march day by day, harassed continually by a partisan warfare just strong enough to lure the command forward to its destruction. A tropical sun poured its intense heat on the wasting column as it neared Guntown, a station on the railway, on the 10th of June. The enemy had ample time to collect an overwhelming force at that point, and it was without hesitation he offered battle. Our cavalry at once engaged, and the infantry and artillery, some miles in the rear, were hurried up to the scene of action. By the time of their arrival the cavalry was falling back, hotly pressed. General Sturgis's line of battle, by some fatal mistake, was formed obliquely to the enemy's approach; and, as our regiments went in, they were whipped in detail, and the fragments rolled up and dashed back, one after another, on that part of our lines unengaged. From the nature of the ground the artillery could not be brought into action until after the infantry began to give way.

It soon became a retreat; then a rout. Our ammunition and supplies and twelve guns fell into the enemy's hands. The regiment went into the fight with nineteen commissioned officers and three hundred muskets, and got back to Memphis with nine officers and about one hundred and fifty men. One-half the force was killed, wounded, and missing. Captains Hanson and Allis and Lieutenant Robinson were wounded, and, together with Captain Stanberry and other officers, were made prisoners. After being carried to Charleston, Captain Stanberry escaped in a romantic manner, and found his way to the blockading fleet in safety. Early in July, Major General A. J. Smith set out from Memphis to retrieve the disaster. The Ninety-Fifth, now a trifle over one hundred muskets strong, marched with this expedition. He had three divisions of infantry, two of cavalry, and thirty-five pieces of artillery. The Rebels, under D. N. I and Forrest, concentrated an equal force to oppose him. On the 13th Forrest's cavalry dismounted and attacked the column in motion at different points. One of these attacks was unexpectedly made at a point where the Ninety-Fifth was passing. A volley delivered from the brush at the roadside caused the men to waver; but they soon rallied and repulsed the enemy though attacking with a full brigade. In this affair a number were wounded, and the horses of Colonel Brumbach and Major Warnock were killed while these officers were rallying the regiment. At night General Smith formed his line in a well-chosen position near Tupelo. The next morning the Rebels, confident of achieving a victory as decisive as that of the previous month, attacked furiously with their whole strength, but were defeated with heavy loss. The object of the expedition being accomplished, the army returned to Memphis. On the way Forrest made a night attack and got badly whipped again. In this affair he was wounded in the foot.

On account of a rumored movement of General Price, a division was placed under the command of General Mower for operations in Arkansas. By the time of its arrival at Little Rock Price was well north of that point, in full march for Missouri. Mower pursued with two divisions, one of infantry and one of cavalry. A stern chase is a long one. He was pursued through Missouri until Rosecrans turned back the head of the Rebel column, and it finally disappeared in the wilds of Arkansas.

By this time Sherman had set out for the sea. Hood had invaded Tennessee, and Smith's forces were needed at Nashville, where they arrived, with the Ninety-Fifth, on the morning of the battle of Franklin. In a few days General Thomas assumed the offensive; and on the morning of December 15th General Smith's force, now an army corps, stationed on the right, boldly pushed out from their works, and in a few hours were on Hood's left flank. He there encountered earthworks. An assaulting column, including the Ninety-Fifth was formed. In a few minutes, the first Rebel work, mounting three guns, was captured. From a hill further on, crowned with a redoubt, the Rebels poured a galling fire on the victors. Without halting, we went our forces, like wild buffaloes, over the intrenchments and into the works, capturing many guns and holding the position.

The next day Hood's second line was attacked. The Ninety-Fifth and other regiments piled knapsacks, and with orders neither to fire a shot nor to yell, they "went" for the works and carried them by storm, capturing battle-flags, guns, and prisoners. The cloud that, for more than two years, rested above this regiment, sailed away, and the boys triumphed in the sunshine of victory, though the feeling was mixed with sadness when their rolls were called, bearing the names of one-half their comrades whose bones were whitening on many a Southern battle-field. After these successes the regiment performed its part in the pursuit of Hood, and joined General Canby's forces at New Orleans, in the reduction of Mobile, where it arrived in March, 1865.

Early in April, after Spanish Fort and Fort Blakely had been stormed, the enemy, finding the city no longer tenable, evacuated. The regiment, with its command, then began a northward march through Montgomery, where the news of the fall of the Confederacy put a virtuous end to the war, though the regiment continued to do guard-duty at scattered points until ordered to Camp Chase for muster-out.

On the 19th of August, 1865, the regiment was mustered out. The rolls disclosed the fact that of one thousand and eighty-five officers and men composing it, five hundred and twenty-eight officers and men were killed in battle, or died of wounds or disease in the service.

96th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JOSEPH W. VANCE.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Sept. 5, 1862	Killed April 8, 1864.
Lt. Colonel.....	ALBERT H. BROWN.....	" 7, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	CHARLES H. McELROY.....	" 8, "	" 5, "	Resigned July 3, 1863.
Do.....	JOSIAH LEONARD.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, 1864	Mustered out.
Surgeon.....	D. HENDERSON.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Sept. 5, 1862	Resigned April 2, 1863.
Do.....	H. K. SPOONER.....	June 5, 1863	June 5, 1863	Commission returned.
Do.....	J. T. HES.....	April 2, "	Sept. 5, "	Discharged December 31, 1863.
Ass't Surgeon	J. T. HES.....	Aug. 14, 1862	Aug. 14, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.....	WM. J. SULLIVAN.....	" 19, "	" 5, "	Resigned February 28, 1863.
Do.....	GEORGE W. RAMAGE.....	June 2, 1863	June 2, 1863	Honorably discharged December 12, 1864.
Chaplain.....	CHARLES W. KETCHAM.....	Sept. 10, 1862	Oct. 3, 1862	Resigned June 22, 1863.
Do.....	GEORGE M. SCOTT.....	June 24, 1863	Aug. 21, 1863	Discharged December 15, 1864.
Captain.....	Wm. Mitchell.....	July 21, 1862	July 5, 1862	Resigned March 3, 1863.
Do.....	Joseph Leonard.....	" 21, "	" 5, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Levi Richelieu.....	" 21, "	" 5, "	Resigned March 26, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. M. Dwyer.....	" 21, "	" 5, "	Resigned January 26, 1863.
Do.....	Samuel Coulter.....	" 21, "	" 5, "	Died of wounds April 28, 1864.
Do.....	Solomon P. Wieser.....	" 28, "	" 5, "	Resigned March 19, 1863.
Do.....	Joseph H. Kimball.....	" 28, "	" 5, "	Resigned August 3, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. B. Nevin.....	" 29, "	" 5, "	Resigned April 15, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. W. Beattie.....	" 31, "	" 5, "	Resigned August 29, 1862.
Do.....	Horatio C. Hamilton.....	" 7, "	" 5, "	Resigned August 9, 1863.
Do.....	Franklin Kendall.....	Aug. 29, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Honorably discharged August 7, 1863.
Do.....	John B. Williams.....	Jan. 28, 1863	March 30, "	Honorably discharged October 21, 1863.
Do.....	Henry P. Bennett.....	March 3, "	April 28, "	Resigned August 19, 1864.
Do.....	Emery M. Eastman.....	" 19, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Jonas Cline.....	" 26, "	" 28, "	Resigned March 11, 1864.
Do.....	Silas Baldwin.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Resigned as 1st Lieut.; commission returned.
Do.....	Wm. Chandler.....	Aug. 7, 1863	Sept. 5, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	J. G. Hamilton.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Declined; commission returned.
Do.....	John M. Godman.....	Nov. 1, 1863	Jan. 27, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Eli L. Baird.....	July 13, 1861	July 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Thomas L. Evans.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George W. Kline.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Not mustered; 1st Lieut. and Q. M. new bat.
Do.....	Valentine Lapham.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Louis H. Mitchell.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Not mustered; 1st Lieut. and Ad't. new bat.
Do.....	Lyman S. Huntley.....	Nov. 18, "	Nov. 18, "	Not mustered; 2d Lieutenant in new bat.
Do.....	David Batchelor.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Edward B. Campbell.....	May 27, 1863	Jan. 26, 1864	Transferred from 4d O. V. I.
1st Lieutenant	George N. Clark.....	July 18, 1862	Sept. 5, 1862	Resigned January 26, 1863.
Do.....	Silas Baldwin.....	" 18, "	" 5, "	Resigned December 5, 1863.
Do.....	James N. Dunlap.....	" 21, "	" 5, "	Died March 1, 1863.
Do.....	Henry J. Jarvis.....	" 21, "	" 5, "	Died December 2, 1862.
Do.....	James M. Lefever.....	" 29, "	" 5, "	Resigned July 26, 1863.
Do.....	J. G. Hamilton.....	" 29, "	" 5, "	Resigned July 12, 1864.
Do.....	Franklin Kendall.....	" 30, "	" 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. Young.....	Aug. 5, "	" 5, "	Resigned November 26, 1862.
Do.....	Jonas Cline.....	" 7, "	" 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John B. Williams.....	" 8, "	" 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Thomas E. Shunk.....	" 9, "	" 5, "	Died March 27, 1863.
Do.....	Henry P. Bennett.....	" 12, "	" 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George H. Terry.....	Nov. 26, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Resigned April 11, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. Chandler.....	Aug. 29, "	" 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Emery M. Eastman.....	Dec. 2, "	" 31, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	David A. Stark.....	Jan. 20, 1863	April 28, "	Resigned.
Do.....	John M. Godman.....	" 26, "	March 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Henry C. Ashwell.....	March 1, "	" 30, "	Revoked; resigned as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Levi L. Seigfried.....	" 1, "	April 28, "	Died July 15, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. L. Wing.....	" 3, "	" 28, "	Revoked.
Do.....	Thomas L. Evans.....	" 26, "	Jan. 22, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Oscar W. Chamberlain.....	" 19, "	April 28, 1863	Died.
Do.....	George W. Kline.....	April 11, "	Jan. 22, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Eli L. Baird.....	March 3, "	" 22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Valentine Lapham.....	Sept. 11, "	Sept. 11, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Lyman S. Huntley.....	Nov. 1, "	Jan. 22, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Louis H. Mitchell.....	Aug. 7, "	" 22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	David Batchelor.....	May 25, 1864	May 25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George McClurg.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles O. Oldfield.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John A. F. Cellar.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Daniel N. Cooper.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Never mustered as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Peter Marmon.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Never mustered; 2d Lieutenant in new bat.
2d Lieutenant	George H. Terry.....	" 23, 1862	Sept. 5, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Thomas Litzenberg.....	" 23, "	" 5, "	Resigned March 23, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. L. Wing.....	" 24, "	" 5, "	Promoted; honorably discharged May 1, 1863.
Do.....	H. J. Vanfleet.....	" 25, "	" 5, "	Resigned February 4, 1863.
Do.....	Emery M. Eastman.....	" 28, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Eli L. Baird.....	" 29, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Thomas L. Evans.....	Aug. 7, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	David A. Stark.....	" 9, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Henry C. Ashwell.....	" 20, "	" 5, "	Promoted; resigned March 17, 1863
Do.....	Wm. Chandler.....	" 23, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	George W. Kline.....	" 29, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Louis H. Mitchell.....	Nov. 26, "	March 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Lyman S. Huntley.....	Dec. 2, "	April 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	James De Wolfe.....	Feb. 4, 1862	April 19, 1863	Resigned August 9, 1863.
Do.	John Happle.....	March 1, " "	March 29, " "	Revoked; commission returned.
Do.	David Batchelor.....	" 23, " "	April 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George McCaug.....	" 3, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles O. Oldfield.....	Jan. 26, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John A. F. Cellar.....	March 17, " "	July 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Valentine Lapham.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel Cooner.....	May 9, 1863	May 9, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. W. Coulter.....	Sept. 4, 1863	Sept. 14, 1863	Missing; reputed dead.
Do.	Peter Marmion.....	Nov. 16, 1863	Nov. 16, 1863	2d Lieutenant in new battery.
Do.	Jacob Y. Dalrymple.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Simon Gieseman.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John E. Kirk.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.

NINETY-SIXTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE NINETY-SIXTH OHIO was raised in the Eighth Congressional District, and was organized at Camp Delaware, near the town of Delaware, twenty-five miles northeast of Columbus, on the 29th day of August, 1862. It numbered one thousand and fourteen men, rank and file. Its principal officers had "seen service," and were well qualified for their respective positions.

On the 1st of September, 1862, the Ninety-Sixth left Delaware, via the Cleveland and Columbus and Little Miami Railroads, for Cincinnati; arrived at that city the same evening, crossed the Ohio River into Kentucky, and quartered for the night in Covington. On the 8th of September it went into camp three miles back of Newport, Kentucky, and occupied the advance on that part of our lines during the threatened attack of the Rebel General Kirby Smith on Covington, Newport and Cincinnati.

On the 8th of October it struck tents at Camp Bates and marched to Falmouth, Kentucky. It remained in camp there till October 20th, when the regiment took up the line of march for Nicholasville, going into camp there November 1st, having encamped two or three days at Cynthiana, Paris, and New Lexington. Remaining at Nicholasville about a week, it then marched to Louisville. On the 19th of November it embarked at Louisville for Memphis, Tennessee, and went into camp at Memphis on the 27th of November.

On the 21st of December it embarked at Memphis as part of the expedition under command of General W. T. Sherman, destined "down the river." On the 25th of December it landed at Millikin's Bend, Louisiana, and made a forced march with the brigade under the command of General Burbridge, to Dallas Station, on the Vicksburg, Shreveport, and Tensas Railroad—destroyed the bridge across the Tensas, and about a mile of track and trestlework. It returned next day to the transports, having marched fifty miles in two half days, destroyed a large amount of railroad property, and burned several depots of Rebel cotton. On the next day it followed the army to Johnson's Landing on the Yazoo River; landed the same night and marched out to Chickasaw Bayou. Getting into position at ten o'clock A. M., the regiment took part in the first attack on Vicksburg. It returned with the army and embarked for "up the river" on the 1st of January, 1863.

On the 10th of January it landed near Arkansas Post and took an active part in the attack upon that fort on the subsequent day, with a loss of ten killed and twenty-six wounded. It returned to Young's Point, Louisiana, January 25, 1863; accompanied the army in its flanking movement to the rear of Vicksburg, and took part in the operations and siege of that city until its surrender on the 4th of July, 1863.

On the 5th of July it marched to Jackson, Mississippi, and took part in the siege of that place up to its evacuation on the 17th of July; then marched to Bryan's Station and Dry Creek, and thence to Vicksburg. It went by river to Carrollton, Louisiana, on the 26th of August, and from that point made several short expeditions and scouts. It moved to Brashear City on the 3d of October and engaged in the Teche campaign. The battle of Grand Coteau, a desperate fight against overwhelming numbers, occurred on the 3d of November. The regiment lost nine killed, thirty-three wounded, and sixty-eight taken prisoners. It returned to Algiers, opposite New Orleans, on the 13th of December, and on the 18th embarked for Texas.

On the 1st of March, 1864, it returned from Deerou's Point, Texas, to Algiers, Louisiana, and entered on the Red River campaign under General Banks. It marched from Berwick to Alexandria, and through this campaign, enduring all the hardships and perils of this ill-advised and unfortunate expedition. It engaged in the battle of Sabine Cross Road on the 8th of April, with a loss of six killed, including the Colonel, J. W. Vance, twenty-four wounded, and twenty-six taken prisoners. In this engagement Captain Coulter, a brave and valuable officer, was wounded and taken prisoner. He died in a Rebel hospital a few days after the battle. In that terrible and ever-memorable retreat to the Mississippi River the Ninety-Sixth was fighting and skirmishing most of the way. Getting through to Morganza, the regiment encamped at that place, sending out scouting expeditions to the Atchafalaya.

From Morganza the regiment moved to Baton Rouge and remained there until the 20th of July, when it proceeded to Algiers, from which point it embarked on the 30th and landed on Dauphin's Island, Alabama, August 3, 1864. At this point the Ninety-Sixth formed part of the forces in the siege of Fort Gaines up to its capitulation on the 8th of August. It then moved to the rear of Fort Morgan and engaged in the siege of that fort until its capitulation, August 23d.

On the 1st of September it moved back to Morganza, Louisiana; thence on November 1st to the mouth of White River, Arkansas. By Special Order No. 21 the regiment was consolidated on the 18th of November into four companies, and a company of about seventy-four men transferred from the Forty-Second Ohio and three to the Ninety-Sixth, making five companies, and designated as the Ninety-Sixth Battalion, Lieutenant-Colonel Brown commanding.

The regiment remained at the mouth of White River until the 4th of February, when it moved to Kennersville, Louisiana; thence on the 16th to Mobile Point. It was engaged in the operations around Mobile, taking part in the siege of Spanish Fort until its evacuation on the 8th of April, 1865, and in the capture of Mobile, April 12, 1864. Shortly after the capture of Mobile the regiment was sent on expeditions to Namahubbal Bluffs on the Tombigbee, and also to McIntosh Bluffs. On the 9th of May the regiment returned to Mobile.

Finally, the great rebellion having collapsed, the Ninety-Sixth Ohio was mustered out of the United States service at Mobile, on the 7th of July, 1865, and embarked from that city for Camp Chase, Ohio, via New Orleans, Cairo, and Cincinnati, where the men were paid off and sent to their homes. At the date of muster out the regiment numbered four hundred and twenty-seven, including the company transferred from the Forty-Second.

The Ninety-Sixth marched one thousand six hundred and eighty-three miles; was transported by boat seven thousand six hundred and eighty-six miles, and by railroad five hundred and seventeen miles; making a grand total of nine thousand eight hundred and eighty-six miles.

97th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JOHN Q. LANE.....	Sept. 2, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	MILTON BARNES.....	Aug. 9, " "	March 7, 1863	Mustered out with regiment; wounded twice
Major.....	JAMES W. MOORE.....	Sept. 11, " "	" 7, " "	Resigned October 7, 1864; wounded twice.
Do.....	GEORGE S. DAVIS.....	April 20, 1863	April 20, 1863	Received in action
Surgeon.....	TUOMAS W. GORDON.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Aug. 23, 1862	Resigned June 6, 1864; disabled by wound
Do.....	T. A. STEWART.....	July 13, 1861	July 13, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	J. T. EDWARDS.....	Aug. 5, 1862	Sept. 11, 1862	Resigned December 12, 1862.
Do.....	T. A. STEWART.....	Aug. 20, " "	Sept. 11, " "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.....	FRANK HODGE.....	Jan. 12, 1863	Jan. 14, 1863	Declined.
Do.....	JOSEPH W. CADWELL.....	April 4, " "	April 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	WM. McFARLAND.....	Sept. 2, 1862	Sept. 23, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	James McCormick.....	June 12, 1862	" 16, " "	Cashiered November 18, 1862.
Do.....	Wm. F. Hunter.....	July 15, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned February 12, 1864.
Do.....	Sextus Scott.....	" 23, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.....	George S. Davis.....	" 23, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	George Egan.....	" 23, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned March 13, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. Hannah.....	" 23, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned February 18, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. C. Tanner.....	" 28, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned December 13, 1862.
Do.....	Clarkson C. Nichols.....	" 30, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Emanuel Shaffer.....	" 30, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned December 27, 1862.
Do.....	Wm. Berkshire.....	Aug. 26, " "	" 16, " "	Killed in action June 27, 1864.
Do.....	James H. Linn.....	Dec. 13, " "	March 6, 1863	Resigned October 3, 1864; wounded.
Do.....	Martin Weiser.....	" 27, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment; wounded.
Do.....	Wm. P. Gilley.....	Feb. 1, 1863	June 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment; wounded.
Do.....	Geo. A. Lemert.....	" 18, " "	March 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Geo. E. Hull.....	March 13, " "	" 30, " "	Discharged for physical disability.
Do.....	Wm. E. Rosemond.....	Nov. 18, 1862	" 30, " "	Resigned October 7, 1864; wounded twice.
Do.....	Isaac H. Jones.....	Oct. 12, 1864	Oct. 12, 1864	Honorably discharged Oct. 4, 1864; wounded.
Do.....	Andrew Arrick.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Chas. M. Matthews.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Declined to accept.
Do.....	Lewis L. Cox.....	Nov. 25, " "	Nov. 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John H. Carlisle.....	Feb. 10, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph F. Gorsuch.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Geo. Smails.....	May 18, " "	May 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.....	Wm. E. Rosemond.....	July 11, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Geo. E. Hull.....	" 24, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Chas. H. Moore.....	" 25, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned February 27, 1865.
Do.....	Wm. F. Baker.....	" 25, " "	" 16, " "	Dropped from rolls.
Do.....	Geo. A. Lemert.....	" 25, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Geo. Randall.....	" 25, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned November 25, 1862.
Do.....	Bartholomew Coleman.....	" 26, " "	" 16, " "	Honorably discharged June 10, 1863.
Do.....	John J. Brady.....	" 29, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned May 2, 1864.
Do.....	Ira Ellis.....	" 29, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned December 27, 1862; wounded.
Do.....	Noah H. McLain.....	" 30, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned May 9, 1863.
Do.....	Martin Weiser.....	" 30, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Isaac H. Jones.....	Aug. 8, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James H. Linn.....	Nov. 25, " "	Dec. 4, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Andrew Arrick.....	Dec. 27, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Chas. M. Matthews.....	March 13, " "	May 6, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.....	Lewis L. Cox.....	" 13, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John H. Carlisle.....	Nov. 18, " "	March 30, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. P. Gilley.....	Feb. 18, 1863	May 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Joseph F. Gorsuch.....	Dec. 13, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George Smails.....	" 27, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John L. Ogle.....	Feb. 1, " "	Jan. 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. D. Thompson.....	Jan. 10, 1864	" 10, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Chas. H. Jones.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment; wounded.
Do.....	Walter B. Barnett.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned March 9, 1865; wounded.
Do.....	John S. Adair.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regt. as Adj.; wounded.
Do.....	Wm. C. McKisson.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Declined to accept.
Do.....	James McClure.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Milton H. Lakin.....	Dec. 21, " "	Dec. 21, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Wm. Shotts.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out; wounded.
Do.....	Chas. H. Burwell.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out with regiment; wounded.
Do.....	John Marshall.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Elisha P. Potter.....	May 18, " "	May 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment; wounded.
Do.....	John W. Sidle.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Nathan B. Mills.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out on account of wounds.
Do.....	Geo. F. Jack.....	June 14, " "	June 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant.....	Wm. P. Gilley.....	July 23, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Fred. Geiger.....	" 25, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned December 12, 1862.
Do.....	Alex. H. Kirtland.....	" 25, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned February 26, 1863.
Do.....	James H. Linn.....	" 25, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant November 25, 1863
Do.....	Wm. P. Gardner.....	" 25, " "	" 16, " "	Died November 20, 1862.
Do.....	John H. Carlisle.....	" 28, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Geo. K. Taylor.....	" 29, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned December 20, 1862.
Do.....	Andrew Arrick.....	" 30, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant; wounded.
Do.....	Chas. M. Matthews.....	" 30, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	George Smails.....	" 30, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Chas. H. Jones.....	Nov. 25, " "	Dec. 4, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Joseph F. Gorsuch.....	" 30, " "	March 11, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Lewis L. Cox.....	Dec. 12, " "	Jan. 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Walter B. Barnett.....	" 20, " "	March 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John S. Adair.....	" 27, " "	Dec. 31, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John L. Ogle.....	Feb. 26, 1863	May 6, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. C. McKisson	Nov. 18, 1862	March 30, 1863	Declined promotion.
Do.	Wm. D. Thompson	Feb. 18, 1863	May 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James McClure	Dec. 27, 1862	" 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	S. Eichelberry	March 13, 1863	" 6, "	Honorably discharged April 12, 1864; wounded.
Do.	Edward Ewing	Dec. 13, 1862	" 6, "	Resigned November 26, 1864; wounded.
Do.	Milton H. Lakin	March 13, 1863	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Shutts	Feb. 1, "	Aug. 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant; wounded.

NINETY-SEVENTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE NINETY-SEVENTH was recruited in the counties of Muskingum, Morgan, Guernsey, and Coshocton, during the months of July and August, 1862. It was mustered into the service at Camp Zanesville on the 1st and 2d of September; moved from Zanesville by cars on the 7th for Covington Heights, opposite Cincinnati; and on the morning of the 8th took position near Fort Mitchel, three miles from the Ohio River, during the Kirby Smith raid.

On the 20th the regiment embarked on the steamer Emma Duncan, arrived at Louisville on the evening of the 22d, and was immediately brigaded with General Buell's army, then in pursuit of Bragg's Rebel forces. It moved out of Louisville on the Bardstown Road with Buell's army on the 2d of October. On the 4th the rear-guard of the enemy was met at Bardstown, and a brisk skirmish ensued, in which the enemy was driven in the direction of Perryville, Kentucky.

On the morning of the 8th, the day on which the battle of Perryville was fought, the Ninety-Seventh was with the main part of Buell's army, within ten miles of that place. At the commencement of the battle the regiment, with its brigade and division, was ordered up to the battle-field, where it held in check and drove back the Rebel forces in an attempt to turn our right. On the 9th, the Rebels having evacuated Perryville, the regiment joined in the pursuit, and continued it up to Wild Cat, Kentucky. On the 22d the pursuit was abandoned, and the National army commenced its movement toward Nashville, arriving on the 21st of November, and going into camp three miles from the city, on the Murfreesboro' Railroad.

On the reorganization of the army by its new commander, General Wm. S. Rosecrans, the Ninety-Seventh Ohio was retained in General Crittenden's corps, which formed the left wing of the Army of the Cumberland. While lying near Nashville, perfecting its drill and preparing to move on the Rebel forces under Bragg, the regiment was frequently engaged in skirmishes with the enemy.

On the 26th of December Rosecrans's forces commenced the movement on Murfreesboro', and on the 27th the Ninety-Seventh met and engaged the enemy's outposts at Lavergne, fifteen miles from Nashville. Moving on with the army, the regiment was not engaged until the morning of the 31st. General McCook's right wing having been badly placed, and thus driven back on the Nashville Turnpike, the left, under General Crittenden, withstood the shock, and repulsed every assault of the exultant enemy, and at nine o'clock at night occupied its original line. At three o'clock on the morning of the 1st of January the National lines were re-formed, the Ninety-Seventh Ohio taking a position on the left of General T. J. Wood's division, the left wing of the regiment resting on Stone River. It remained in this position without engagement during the whole of the next day. On the afternoon of the 3d of January Breckinridge's Rebel corps made an attack on Van Cleve's division (which had crossed the river) and drove it back.

At this point the Ninety-Seventh Ohio became engaged, and aided in repulsing the enemy's determined assault, crossing Stone River and following him up closely to his original line.

In this battle the Ninety-Seventh lost twenty-five men killed and wounded. It went into camp on the Las Casas Turnpike, and remained there (excepting when on occasional skirmish-duty) until the 25th of June, when the movement on Tullahoma commenced. Marching with Crittenden's corps, the Ninety-Seventh was not engaged. On the 29th of August the regiment took position on Waldron's Ridge, within five miles and in sight of Chattanooga.

On the 9th of September, at 9 A. M., the Ninety-Seventh crossed the Tennessee River, drove the enemy's sharpshooters from Chattanooga, and entered the place three hours before the main army. For this gallant act General Rosecrans assigned the regiment and brigade to garrison the post. For this reason the Ninety-Seventh was not engaged in the battle of Chickamauga.

In the reorganization of the Army of the Cumberland, under Major-General George H. Thomas, the Ninety-Seventh Ohio was assigned to Sheridan's (second) division, of the Fourth Army Corps.

In the battle of Mission Ridge the Ninety-Seventh lost one hundred and fifty-six officers and men killed and wounded. Following the retreating enemy to Pigeon Mountain, the Ninety-Seventh, in company with the Fortieth Indiana, encountered his rear-guard in position, and drove him in the direction of Campbell's Station, and across Chickamauga Creek.

During the night of the 25th of November the command was moved up to Chickamauga Creek, but did not again encounter the enemy. On the 26th the regiment, with its division, moved back to Chattanooga.

On the 28th of November it accompanied General Granger's command to the relief of General Burnside, then besieged in Knoxville by General Longstreet's Rebel corps. On this march the men suffered intensely, being thinly clothed, and without tents or transportation. On the arrival of the regiment at Knoxville seventy of the men were reported as without shoes or stockings.

While in Knoxville the Ninety-Seventh occupied the East Tennessee University as quarters. About the 15th of December the enemy was again reported as moving on Knoxville. The Ninety-Seventh, with the Fourth Army Corps, was ordered to proceed to Strawberry Plains and Blain's Cross Roads, where it assisted in driving back the Rebels under Longstreet.

The Ninety-Seventh remained at Blain's Cross Roads, on the Holston River, from the 15th of December until the 16th of January, 1864, subsisting off the already impoverished country, without tents, in midwinter, and suffering from intense cold and lack of rations.

On the 16th of January the regiment (with the army) crossed the Holston River, and on the 17th arrived at Dandridge, on the French Broad River, where a brisk skirmish was had with the enemy. On the 18th the fight was renewed, and on the night of the same day General Sheridan, then in command at Dandridge, ordered the National forces to fall back to Strawberry Plains.

On the 19th of January, 1864, the Ninety-Seventh moved (with Sheridan's division) by easy marches to Loudon, Tennessee, arriving at that place on the 1st of February. It remained at Loudon until the 4th of March, and then (under orders) moved to Charleston, on the Hiwassee River, where it guarded the railroad bridge across that river until the 25th of April. On that day it joined the main army at Cleveland, Tennessee, and on the 3d of May entered (with Sherman's army) on the Atlanta campaign.

On the 7th of May the enemy's outposts were met near Red Clay, and on the 8th the regiment went into position on Rocky Face Ridge. On the 11th of May the Ninety-Seventh participated (with Harker's brigade) in an unsuccessful charge on this ridge, with slight loss. At Resaca the regiment was under constant fire for two days (the 14th and 15th of May); and at Adairsville (on the 17th) it had a sharp fight, losing twenty men in the space of less than fifteen minutes.

At Dallas the regiment was under constant fire from the 25th of May up to the 5th of June.

The enemy then fell back to Kencsaw Mountain, followed closely by the National forces. At Kencsaw Mountain, on the 17th of June, the regiment made a charge on the enemy's position, and, with the assistance of the 28th Kentucky, drove his outposts into his second line of works. On the 22d of June, the regiment being on the picket-line, was ordered to drive in the Rebel outposts. Of one hundred and fifty-three men of the regiment sent forward to perform this duty, one hundred and twelve were either killed or wounded in the space of thirty minutes. Major J. W. Moore, Captain W. S. Rosemond, and Lieutenant J. T. Gossage, in command on the skirmish-line, were seriously wounded, two of them so severely as to be disabled from further military service.

On the 27th of June the Second Division, including the Ninety-Seventh, made another charge on Kencsaw Mountain, and were badly repulsed. In this disastrous affair the regiment lost thirty-five men killed and wounded. On the 4th of July the enemy evacuated Kencsaw Mountain, and fell back toward the Chattahoochie River. At Smyrna Church, on the evening of the same day, the enemy was found strongly posted behind works, and attacked so vigorously by the National forces that he was compelled to fall back the same night to the Chattahoochie River. On the 6th of July the regiment arrived at the Chattahoochie River and went into camp on its banks; and on the 9th marched up to Rosswell and destroyed the factories at that place. On the 13th it crossed the Chattahoochie River, being the first National troops to appear on the south side of that stream.

On the morning of the 20th it crossed Peachtree Creek and drove in the outposts of the enemy. A line of battle was immediately formed, the Ninety-Seventh occupying the extreme left. At this point the Rebel General Hood made his first dash against the National forces. The Ninety-Seventh, occupying, as it did, the extreme left, received the first onset of the enemy. The shock was terrible; but, during seven determined charges made against it, this little band of less than three hundred men stood firm. So pleased were General Howard (commanding the corps) and General Newton (commanding the division to which the Ninety-Seventh belonged) that they sought out that regiment, and personally thanked the men for their bravery in standing up against the dreadful shock of the Rebel charges on the left. In addition, General Newton issued an order exempting the regiment from all further picket and fatigue duty during the campaign.

The Ninety-Seventh Ohio participated in the action at Jonesboro', and assisted in driving the enemy back to Lovejoy's Station.

On the 2d of September the National army entered Atlanta, and the troops went into camps around that city, with the promise from General Sherman of a month's rest.

On the 25th of September the Ninety-Seventh (with the Second Division of the Fourth Army Corps) was sent by rail to Chattanooga, and on the 30th relieved the Pioneer Brigade on Lookout Mountain, in order that that brigade might go to the assistance of the National forces at Tullahoma, then menaced by Forrest's Rebel cavalry.

In the flurry of Hood's dash on Sherman's rear, the Ninety-Seventh was kept for some time almost continually on the move up and down the railroads. On the 19th of October the regiment again joined Sherman's army at Alpine, Georgia, and, after moving to Wills's Valley and Stevenson, it took cars for Athens, Alabama. It arrived at Pulaski, Tennessee, on the 5th of November, and remained there until the 17th. At this time Hood's Rebel army was advancing on Columbia, hoping to beat the National forces into Nashville.

The Ninety-Seventh Ohio (with its corps) moved up in advance of the enemy to Columbia, and his advance driven from the vicinity of the place. On the 29th of November Columbia was evacuated by the National forces, and, after blowing up the fort at that place, they marched in the direction of Franklin, Tennessee. The Second Division of the Fourth Army Corps encountered the enemy at Spring Hill at three o'clock P. M. on the 29th day of November and fought him until dark. In the night the remainder of the National forces came up from the vicinity of Columbia, and the march was resumed and continued to the town of Franklin. The Second Division of the Fourth Army Corps covered the rear in this march, and was almost continually skirmishing with the enemy. This march was arduous in the extreme, the enemy giving no chance for rest.

In the battle of Nashville the Ninety-Seventh was with the Second Division of the Fourth Army Corps on the left center, and took part in the first assault on the Rebel lines, driving the enemy in great confusion.

On the 16th of December the enemy was found strongly posted on the Brentford Hills. It was again attacked and driven, the Ninety-Seventh participating in the charge. The pursuit was continued, with some fighting, across the Tennessee River, when it was abandoned, and the Ninety-Seventh (with the Fourth Army Corps) reached Huntsville, Alabama, on the 3d of January, 1865. It remained at Huntsville in quarters until the 28th day of March, when the entire corps moved to Bull's Gap, in East Tennessee, and commenced rebuilding the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, with the view of advancing on Richmond, Virginia, by the way of Lynchburg.

Receiving information of the fall of Richmond and the surrender of the Rebel armies General Thomas moved his forces back to Nashville, arriving in that city on the 2d of May.

On the 12th of June, 1865, the Ninety-Seventh was mustered out of the service at Nashville, and was immediately sent home to Columbus, where it was paid off and discharged on the 15th of December, 1865.

During the campaigns of the Ninety-Seventh it was under fire over two hundred days, and took an active part in the battles of Perryville, Lavergne, Stone River, Chattanooga, Mission Ridge, Charleston (Tennessee), Rocky Face, Resaca, Adairsville, Dallas, Kenesaw Mountain, Peachtree Creek, Atlanta, Jonesboro', Lovejoy's Station, Spring Hill, Franklin, and Nashville. It lost in these battles one hundred and thirteen officers and men killed and five hundred and sixty wounded.

98th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	GEORGE WEBSTER.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Aug. 30, 1862	Killed October 8, 1862.
Do.	CHRISAN L. POORMAN	Oct. 7, 1863	Nov. 3, 1863	Resigned June 12, 1863.
Do.	JOHN S. PEARCE.....	Nov. 5, 1863	March 15, 1864	Mustered out as Lieutenant-Colonel.
Lt. Colonel.....	CHRISTIAN L. POORMAN.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Aug. 30, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	JOHN S. PEARCE.....	Oct. 7, 1863	Jan. 13, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	JAMES M. SHANE.....	June 12, 1863	Aug. 10, 1863	Killed.
Do.	JOSEPH R. MITCHELL.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, 1864	Resigned as Captain October 14, 1864.
Do.	DAVID E. ROATCH.....	May 18, 1865	May 18, 1865	Mustered out as Major.
Major	JOHN S. PEARCE.....	Aug. 13, 1862	Aug. 30, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JAMES M. SHANE.....	Oct. 7, 1863	Jan. 13, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOSEPH R. MITCHELL.....	June 12, 1863	Aug. 10, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOHN A. NORRIS.....	July 25, 1864	July 25, 1864	Resigned as Captain October 3, 1864.
Do.	ROBERT F. WILLIAMS.....	Nov. 3, 1863	Nov. 3, 1863	Died of wounds while Captain.
Do.	DAVID E. ROATCH.....	Oct. 10, 1863	Oct. 10, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	HIRAM J. CRAFT.....	May 18, 1865	May 18, 1865
Surgeon.....	HENRY WEST.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Dec. 16, 1862	Resigned October 14, 1863.
Do.	T. W. MARSALLS.....	Nov. 12, 1863	Nov. 12, 1863	Died April 23, 1864.
Do.	W. A. McCracken.....	May 10, 1864	May 10, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	Wm. T. SHARP.....	Aug. 21, 1862	Jan. 28, 1863	Honorably discharged September 14, 1863.
Do.	THOS. N. LEWIS.....	Nov. 21, 1863	Nov. 28, 1863	Resigned March 10, 1863.
Do.	Wm. A. McCracken.....	Nov. 4, 1863	Nov. 4, 1863	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	CHAS. P. SIMONS.....	May 10, 1864	May 10, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	C. A. MOORE.....	March 22, 1863	March 22, 1863
Chaplain.....	ALEX. SWANEY.....	Aug. 21, 1862	Feb. 10, 1863	Resigned December 6, 1863.
Do.	JOSIAH F. CROOKS.....	March 24, 1864	March 24, 1864	Revoked.
Captain	James M. Shane.....	July 14, 1862	Aug. 30, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joseph R. Mitchell.....	" 23, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Moses A. Urquhart.....	" 26, " "	" 30, " "	Honorably discharged March 1, 1864.
Do.	John A. Norris.....	" 26, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Adam Corbin.....	" 29, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned January 24, 1863.
Do.	Anthony W. Butts.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned April 6, 1863.
Do.	Hugh Ferguson.....	Aug. 15, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out March 31, 1863.
Do.	Armstrong J. Thomas.....	" 15, " "	" 40, " "	Killed September 20, 1863.
Do.	Robert F. Williams.....	" 15, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted; died of wounds August 10, 1864.
Do.	Edward A. Parrish.....	" 15, " "	" 30, " "	Honorably discharged June 15, 1864
Do.	James B. Jewett.....	Oct. 7, " "	Jan. 13, 1863	Promoted Major of U. S. C. T.
Do.	Wm. C. Lockharz.....	Jan. 24, 1863	" 30, " "	Killed September 20, 1863.
Do.	A. P. Lacy.....	April 6, " "	April 28, " "	Resigned March 28, 1864.
Do.	David E. Roatch.....	March 31, " "	June 10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John F. Collins.....	Sept. 20, " "	Jan. 6, 1864	Resigned July 29, 1864.
Do.	Franklin W. McCauley.....	May 25, 1864	May 25, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Hiram J. Craft.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Barnet N. Lindsay.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. P. Brisbin.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Transferred to Pioneer Corps.
Do.	James B. McLaughlin.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George C. Porter.....	Aug. 29, " "	Aug. 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Carson.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph C. Patterson.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ryce G. Lewis.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John B. C. Sterling.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chalkley Thomas.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James McKinley.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	H. L. Cogswill.....	May 28, 1865	May 28, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	James B. Jewett.....	June 4, 1862	Aug. 30, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. P. Saunders.....	July 11, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned April 10, 1863.
Do.	Samuel Martin.....	" 16, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned April 18, 1863.
Do.	A. P. Lacy.....	" 23, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. McMillen.....	" 26, " "	" 30, " "	Died October 27, 1862.
Do.	Lewis Woodmanse.....	" 29, " "	" 30, " "
Do.	James F. Tallman.....	Aug. 1, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned January 21, 1863.
Do.	Thomas Mackey.....	" 6, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.	Ellis E. Kennon.....	" 19, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned January 7, 1863.
Do.	Wm. C. Lockharz.....	" 20, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel A. Rank.....	" 21, " "	" 30, " "	Killed October 8, 1862.
Do.	Franklin W. McCauley.....	July 22, " "	" 30, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Duncan C. Milner.....	Jan. 7, 1863	June 30, 1863	Honorably discharged December 24, 1863.
Do.	James A. Fribly.....	Oct. 8, 1862	" 30, " "	Resigned March 15, 1863.
Do.	John F. Collins.....	Jan. 24, 1863	" 30, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas J. Morgan.....	Feb. 1, " "	Feb. 14, " "	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant April 13 1863.
Do.	Barnet N. Lindsay.....	Jan. 1, " "	May 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alfred B. C. Davis.....	Jan. 21, " "	March 2, " "	Resigned June 8, 1863.
Do.	Fletcher McCullough.....	April 6, " "	April 28, " "	Resigned June 10, 1863.
Do.	J. P. Brisbin.....	March 15, " "	" 8, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George C. Porter.....	April 10, " "	May 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John W. Carson.....	" 18, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James B. McLaughlin.....	Feb. 1, " "	June 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas Sedgwick.....	Aug. 1, " "	Aug. 1, " "	Never with regiment and never was mustered.
Do.	Joseph C. Patterson.....	June 10, " "	Sept. 1, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ryce G. Lewis.....	May 25, 1864	May 25, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John B. C. Sterling.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John H. Reeves.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Killed September 1, 1864.
Do.	Chalkley Thomas.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James McKinley.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	H. L. Cogswill.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	H. N. Carver.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Commission returned.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Jacob A. Holloway.....	July 25, 1864	July 25, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert McGonagle.....	Aug. 29, " "	Aug. 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John M. Bramum.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Killed March 19, 1865.
Do.	John F. Ogleyvee.....	Sept. 26, " "	Sept. 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	H. N. Carver.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Zenas Shipman.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James F. Watson.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Captain U. S. C. T.
Do.	John W. Simmons.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Discharged January 16, 1865.
Do.	John Blotter.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank B. Fox.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Quartermaster in colored regiment.
Do.	John W. McCollum.....	Dec. 29, " "	Dec. 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jacob S. Kennedy.....	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph R. Clendening.....	" 23, " "	" 23, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George McKisson.....	May 28, " "	May 28, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Benj. H. Hough.....	July 28, 1862	Aug. 30, 1862	Resigned March 28, 1863.
Do.	John Morrow.....	" 21, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned January 21, 1863.
Do.	John F. Collins.....	" 23, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James A. Fritley.....	" 23, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hiram J. Craft.....	" 23, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alfred B. C. Davis.....	" 23, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Fletcher McCullough.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas J. Morgan.....	Aug. 9, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted; resigned April 18, 1863.
Do.	George C. Porter.....	" 21, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Carson.....	" 20, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Barnet N. Lindsay.....	Jan. 24, 1863	Jan. 30, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Roece G. Lewis.....	" 24, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. P. Brisbin.....	Oct. 8, " "	Feb. 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Richard R. McGuire.....	Feb. 1, " "	" 14, " "	Died October 19, 1863.
Do.	David E. Roach.....	Jan. 21, " "	March 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel C. McKinney.....	April 6, " "	April 28, " "	Died June 1, 1863.
Do.	John B. C. Sterling.....	March 13, " "	" 8, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John H. Reeves.....	Jan. 1, " "	May 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Anderson.....	April 10, " "	" 23, " "	Resigned December 26, 1864.
Do.	Chalkley Thomas.....	" 8, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James McKinley.....	March 31, " "	June 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	H. L. Cogbill.....	" 28, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph C. Patterson.....	June 1, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	H. N. Carver.....	" 10, " "	Sept. 1, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob A. Holloway.....	" 27, 1864	June 27, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert McGonagle.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John M. Bramum.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Zenas Shipman.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James F. Watson.....	Aug. 29, " "	Aug. 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John F. Ogleyvee.....	Nov. 24, 1863	Jan. 8, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. McCollum.....	" 10, 1864	Nov. 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob S. Kennedy.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph R. Clendening.....	Dec. 29, " "	Dec. 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George McKisson.....	May 2, 1865	May 2, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Eli C. Lewton.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"
Do.	James A. McNary.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"
Do.	Ezekiel W. Smith.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"
Do.	Robert Boothe.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"
Do.	Samuel McClintock.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"
Do.	John S. Davis.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"
Do.	George Mackeron.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"
Do.	John S. Dillon.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"
Do.	James Lavery.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"
Do.	James L. Rogers.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	"

NINETY-EIGHTH OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Mingo, near Steubenville, Ohio, on the 22d of August, 1862. It was composed for the most part of farmers' sons and industrious mechanics belonging to Jefferson and the adjacent counties. It left Camp Mingo on the 23d for Covington, Kentucky, where it received its arms, and remained till the 27th. It then moved on to Lexington, Kentucky. Immediately on its arrival in that city it was ordered to march to the relief of General Nelson, who was being hard pressed by the Rebels under Kirby Smith; but on reaching the north bank of the Kentucky River it met the Rebel cavalry in pursuit of the defeated National troops, and by them was compelled to fall back to Lexington. Thence it proceeded to Louisville, which it reached on the 5th of September. On the 1st of October it marched with General A. M. McCook's column, on the Bardstown Turnpike, and on the 8th took a prominent part in the bloody battle of Perryville. Its losses were two hundred and thirty officers and men killed and wounded, including Colonel George Webster, of Steubenville, Ohio, killed early in the action. Major Pearce taken prisoner; First-Lieutenant Wm

AV. 2. 1864.

ASTLEMAN-WAY, C. 1864.

SALISBURY PRISON, NORTH CAROLINA.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Wm. R. Davis.....	July 30, 1864	July 30, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Orander J. Benham.....	Oct. 13, " "	Oct. 13, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. Mosfoot.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James R. Homer.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Shuman.....	Feb. 21, 1865	Feb. 21, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M. Serg't.
Do.	David Allison.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "
2d Lieutenant	John A. Lattimer.....	July 15, 1862	Sept. 15, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John B. Biddle.....	" 23, " "	" 15, " "	Killed December 31, 1862.
Do.	Otis L. Peck.....	" 25, " "	" 15, " "	Honorably discharged April 20, 1864.
Do.	Daniel H. Fox.....	" 28, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert D. Lord.....	" 29, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry C. Taegert.....	Aug. 1, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philip T. Kline.....	" 2, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob Newhard.....	" 4, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted; resigned December 23, 1862.
Do.	Horace D. Olds.....	" 9, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John F. Neff.....	" 10, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. McGraw.....	Nov. 15, " "	Dec. 16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Hale.....	Dec. 23, " "	Jan. 27, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alex. C. Hosmer.....	Jan. 4, 1863	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. Roberts.....	Dec. 31, 1862	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ellert J. Squire.....	Jan. 28, 1863	Feb. 18, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jay C. Butler.....	" 25, " "	" 4, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac P. Rule.....	" 25, " "	" 4, " "	Killed at Chickamauga.
Do.	Samuel Strayer.....	" 21, " "	" 4, " "	Died February 6, 1863.
Do.	Samuel S. Blowers.....	Feb. 26, " "	March 13, " "	Resigned January 9, 1864.
Do.	John G. Petticoard.....	" 6, " "	May 5, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John S. Millman.....	Jan. 3, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. P. Myers.....	Feb. 17, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jay C. Smith.....	" 17, " "	Aug. 21, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jasper F. Webster.....	Dec. 9, " "	March 16, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. R. Davis.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Orander J. Benham.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

101st OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was one of that series of patriotic organizations raised in the dark days of 1862, when the National cause seemed to be drifting into final defeat. It was recruited from the counties of Erie, Huron, Seneca, Crawford, and Wyandotte, and organized and mustered into the service at Monroeville, Ohio, on the 30th day of August, 1862.

On the 4th of September, although not quite ready for field-service, the regiment was hurried by rail to Cincinnati, and thence across the river to Covington, Kentucky, to assist in repelling a threatened raid by Kirby Smith. After lying in camp near Covington until September 24th, it was taken by rail to Louisville, Kentucky, and there incorporated into General Buell's army, then lying at that place resting from its forced march after Bragg. It was placed in the brigade commanded by General William P. Carlin, and division of General Robert B. Mitchel.

On the 1st of October the regiment marched with the National force in pursuit of General Bragg, and was engaged in the battle of Perryville on the 8th of October. In this, its first encounter with the enemy, the One Hundred and First bore itself well and bravely, meriting and receiving the praises of its brigade and division commanders, and losing several men. It followed in pursuit of the Rebels, and at Lancaster, Kentucky, had a pretty severe skirmish with their rear-guard. Its march was continued, passing through Crab Orchard, Danville, Lebanon, and Bowling Green, and thence to Nashville, Tennessee. At Nashville General Jeff. C. Davis took command of the division, and on the 26th of December it marched with the Army of the Cumberland, General Rosecrans commanding.

On the afternoon of the same day (December 26th) the enemy was met and a line of battle formed. The brigade (Second Brigade, Jeff. C. Davis's division, consisting of the Twenty-First and Thirty-Eighth Illinois, Fifteenth Wisconsin, and One Hundred and First Ohio Regiments of Infantry, and the Second Minnesota Battery) soon engaged the enemy with spirit, sustaining a sharp fire until he was dislodged. Notwithstanding the day was fast waning, and little was known of the precise nature of the ground over which the armies were moving, General Davis resolved to follow up his advantage. The enemy retreated about two miles to a rugged hill, the road passing through a defile known as Knob Gap. Deploying on either side of the road, with one section of their artillery in the defile, and other pieces on the crest of the hill, they waited another encounter. The line advanced in the order of battle of the first collision—Post's brigade moving up the road and to the left of it, and Carlin on the right. The enemy opened upon Carlin with artillery at long range. Hotchkiss and Pinney moved up and went into action quickly, while Carlin charged up the hill with the One Hundred and First Ohio, carried the crest and captured two bronze field pieces. Post had also carried the heights on the left, driving the enemy out of position, but missing the guns. Woodruff performed his duty on the right by driving the Rebel skirmishers. The One Hundred and First Ohio, being a new regiment, was particularly signalized, the men behaving like veterans; one of the guns captured by it had on it the word "Shiloh," and belonged to Georgia troops.

On the 30th of December this brigade was the first of the army to arrive on the battle-field of Stone River. It at once engaged the enemy's outposts, and drove them back on his main line, and just at night became briskly engaged. The regiment lay on its arms all night, and was fully ready to receive the shock of battle that came with daylight on the 31st of December. The brigade stood firm, repulsing every attempt to break it, until Johnson's division and Post's brigade of the First Division on the right being driven from their positions, the enemy appeared on the right flank and rear of the brigade, when, in obedience to orders, it fell back and took up a new position, holding the enemy in check until he again threw a force on the flank and rear. The regiment continued in the hottest of the fight, taking up six different positions and stubbornly maintaining them during the day. Colonel Leander Stem and Lieutenant-Colonel Wooster were both killed on the front line on the right of the army. Both of these officers died as brave men should, leading on their men to deeds of daring. The regiment was held on the front line on the right of the army until the afternoon of January 2d, when disaster was threatening the left. It was one of many regiments that were then transferred to the left, and with the bayonet helped to turn the tide of battle. It remained there until the close of the battle, losing seven officers and two hundred and twelve men killed and wounded.

During the remainder of the winter the One Hundred and First Ohio was engaged constantly on expeditions through the country surrounding Murfreesboro', suffering very much from fatigue and exposure. It was no uncommon thing to see as many as fifty men of the regiment marching without shoes on their feet, and so ragged as to excite both the sympathies and risibilities of their companions. This marching up and down the country—the purposes or utility of which were oftentimes wholly unknown—lasted until April, 1863, when the regiment was allowed to go into camp at Murfreesboro' for rest, and for the purpose of perfecting the command in drill.

On the 24th of June the Tallahoma campaign was inaugurated. The One Hundred and First moved with that portion of the army that demonstrated in the direction of Liberty Gap, and was engaged with Cleburne's Rebel division for two days at that place. It followed the fortunes of the army up to Chattanooga, and at the close of that campaign was with Davis's division at Winchester, Tennessee. On the 17th of August the regiment marched on the Chattanooga campaign, crossing the Tennessee River at Caperton's Ferry. From thence it marched over Sand and Lookout Mountains to near Alpine, Georgia. It then counter-marched over Lookout Mountain, up Wills's Valley, and recrossed Lookout Mountain to the field of Chickamauga, where it participated in that battle on the 19th and 20th of August, displaying great coolness and gallantry. During the heat of battle on the second day the One Hundred and First retook a National battery from the enemy, fighting over the guns with clubbed muskets.

After retiring to Chattanooga the army was reorganized, and the One Hundred and First Ohio became a part of the First Brigade, First Division, Fourth Army Corps, and on the 28th of October this brigade marched to Bridgeport, Alabama. It remained in camp at that place until January 16, 1864, and then marched to Oldtawab, Tennessee.

On the 3d of May, 1864, it marched with the army on the Atlanta campaign, meeting the enemy's outposts at Catoosa Springs, on which occasion the One Hundred and First Ohio was thrown forward as skirmishers, and drove the enemy steadily up to Tunnel Hill. A reconnoissance being ordered to ascertain the enemy's position in the Pass of Rocky Face Ridge (known as Buzzard's Roost), the One Hundred and First pushed forward as skirmishers, compelling the enemy to haul away one battery posted in a detached work, and pushing its way to within thirty or forty yards of the enemy's main line of works, met with such an overwhelming and murderous fire that the men were compelled to take shelter under the overhanging rocks, and remain in their hiding-places until nine o'clock P. M. before they could be extracted from their perilous position.

As the Atlanta campaign progressed the One Hundred and First was actively engaged in the almost constant fighting of that arduous march. It moved with the army around Atlanta, fighting at Jonesboro' and Lovejoy, and back to Atlanta. In the sudden change of tactics adopted by the Rebel General Hood, it was actively employed with other National forces in pursuing, fighting, and heading off the enemy in his designs on the railroad communications of the National army. It marched from Atlanta to Pulaski, Tennessee, and from there on the retreat to Nashville.

At the battle of Franklin, just at nightfall, the One Hundred and First was ordered to retake an angle of the works held by the enemy, which it did with the bayonet, and held the position until ten o'clock, P. M., notwithstanding the Rebels were almost within bayonet reach during all that time.

The One Hundred and First was engaged in the battle of Nashville, December 15th and 16th, and participated in the assault on the enemy's center on the 15th. After the battle and rout it followed in pursuit of Hood to Lexington, Alabama, and marched thence via Athens to Huntsville, where it went into camp. It lay in camp at Huntsville until the 12th of June, 1865, when with other regiments it was mustered out of the service. It was then sent home by rail to Ohio, placed in camp Taylor, near Cleveland, paid off and discharged.

102d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	WM. GIVEN	Aug. 18, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	ABSALEM BAKER	" 11, "	" 16, "	Resigned March 6, 1863.
Do.	GEORGE H. BOWMAN	March 6, 1863	April 23, 1863	Discharged March 4, 1864.
Do.	JONAS D. ELLIOTT	April 23, 1863	" 27, 1863	Died of wounds October 13, 1864.
Do.	JOHN HUSTON	Feb. 10, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	GEORGE H. TOPPING	Aug. 14, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Resigned March 27, 1863.
Do.	JONAS D. ELLIOTT	March 6, 1863	April 23, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOHN HUSTON	April 23, 1863	" 23, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Surgeon	ALEX. V. PATTERSON	Aug. 25, 1862	Sept. 15, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	WM. S. PATTERSON	" 19, "	" 16, "	Declined.
Do.	JAMES H. ESTEP	" 19, "	" 16, "	Declined.
Do.	GEORGE WAYLAND SAYERS	Sept. 12, "	Nov. 7, "	Died December 26, 1862, at Bowling Green, Ky.
Do.	GEORGE MITCHELL	Aug. 9, "	" 6, "	Promoted to Surgeon 187th O. V. I.
Do.	AARON J. IRWIN	March 30, 1863	March 29, 1863	Must. out April 19, '64; prom. to Surg. 2d Tenn.
Chaplain	HUGH L. PARRISH	Sept. 6, 1862	Jan. 27, "	Resigned January 4, 1863.
Do.	JOHN HUSTON	July 15, "	Sept. 19, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	JOHN McNAUL	" 21, "	" 19, "	Resigned December 20, 1862.
Do.	GEORGE H. BOWMAN	" 22, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	AARON E. ZOLY	" 22, "	" 19, "	Died of wounds February 21, 1865.
Do.	AARON W. LOBACH	" 22, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JOHN W. STOUT	" 23, "	" 19, "	Resigned January 19, 1863.
Do.	ISAAC HARPSTER	" 23, "	" 19, "	Resigned March 19, 1863.
Do.	JONAS D. ELLIOTT	" 23, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	JAMES E. ROBINSON	" 23, "	" 19, "	Resigned April 17, 1863.
Do.	JOHN M. SLOAN	Aug. 5, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JOSEPH R. FOLWELL	Dec. 29, "	Dec. 26, "	Discharged October 20, 1864.
Do.	HARRISON H. ROWE	Jan. 19, 1863	Feb. 19, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	AARON WAITS	March 19, "	May 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	BENTON BEERBOWER	April 17, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. C. SCOTT	March 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	EDWARD W. BRADLEY	" 6, "	April 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	EMMANUEL HADE	April 23, 1863	" 23, 1863	Appointed A. Q. M. U. S. V. February 29, '64.
Do.	JOHN CASTOR	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. A. BEER	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. H. McMONIGAL	April 8, 1863	April 8, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Joseph R. Folwell	July 21, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	GAYLORD THOMAS	" 22, "	" 16, "	Resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.	JOHN W. BECKMAN	" 23, "	" 16, "	Appointed Major 120th O. V. I.
Do.	EMMANUEL HADE	" 23, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	JOHN CASTOR	" 23, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	JAMES H. VAN BROECKHUN	" 23, "	" 16, "	Resigned December 19, 1862.
Do.	EDWARD W. BRADLEY	" 23, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	JESSE Y. ROSS	" 23, "	" 16, "	Resigned February 24, 1863.
Do.	SIMON B. KENTON	" 23, "	" 16, "	Resigned December 22, 1862.
Do.	WM. A. BEER	" 29, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	JAMES RIDDLE	Aug. 21, "	" 16, "	Died September 25, 1863.
Do.	JOHN STATTSGADET	July 25, "	" 16, "	Resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.	WM. H. McMONIGAL	Sept. 8, "	Dec. 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	AARON WAITS	Dec. 19, "	" 23, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	HOLIDAY AMES	" 20, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	SILAS B. JOHNSON	" 22, "	Feb. 19, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. C. SCOTT	Feb. 1, 1863	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	GUSTAVUS WOOD	" 1, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	BENTON BEERBOWER	" 25, "	March 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	ELIAS A. PALMER	March 6, "	April 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	ISAAC C. MARTIN	May 19, "	June 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	DE WITT CONNELL	April 7, "	" 29, "	Discharged August 1, 1864.
Do.	DAVID HINKLE	July 1, "	Sept. 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	SAMUEL B. DONEL	April 23, 1861	April 23, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JOHN T. ROBERTS	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	ROBERT SANDS	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	EDWIN FARMER	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JAMES P. DOUGAL	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. H. RUTTER	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
2d Lieutenant	HOLIDAY AMES	July 21, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	WM. C. SCOTT	" 22, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	GUSTAVUS WOOD	" 22, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	JOHN EBERHART	" 23, "	" 16, "	Resigned February 22, 1863.
Do.	HARRISON H. ROWE	" 23, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	AARON WAITS	" 23, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	BENTON BEERBOWER	" 23, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	JAMES McNULTY	" 23, "	" 16, "	Resigned November 17, 1862.
Do.	JEROME POTTER	Aug. 20, "	" 16, "	Discharged July 15, 1863.
Do.	SAMUEL B. DONEL	" 24, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	ELIAS A. PALMER	Nov. 17, "	Dec. 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	JOHN T. ROBERTS	Dec. 29, "	Feb. 19, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Isaac C. Martin.....	Dec. 19, 1862	Feb. 19, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert Sands.....	Jan. 19, 1863	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin Farmer.....	Feb. 1, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James P. Dougal.....	" 1, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Rutter.....	" 22, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	DeWitt Connell.....	" 25, "	March 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Given Mitchell.....	April 28, "	April 28, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Patterson V. Wilkins.....	" 17, "	June 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas D. Miller.....	May 19, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas B. Bird.....	Dec. 1, "	March 29, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George C. McConnell.....	" 1, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John C. Duncan.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.

102d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized under the President's call of July 1st, 1862, for three hundred thousand three-years' troops, and was recruited in the counties of Wayne, Richland, Ashland, and Holmes. Recruiting for the regiment commenced July 23d, 1862, and it was organized with one thousand and forty-one, rank and file, on the 18th of August, and went into Camp Mansfield. It received arms and ammunition on the night of the 3d of September, and left for Kentucky on the morning of the 4th. Crossed the Ohio River at Cincinnati by daylight on the morning of the 5th. It was mustered into service on the 6th at Covington, and was ordered immediately into the works around the city; first in the Licking Valley, and finally on the heights in the rear of Covington, where it intrenched and remained in line of battle until the 22d, when it left in two divisions by boats for Louisville, Kentucky, where, after delays occasioned by low water, it arrived on the 24th. It immediately went into the trenches in defense of the city, where it remained until the 5th of October, when it was ordered to Shelbyville, Kentucky, in charge of a division supply-train, arriving on the morning of the 6th. Thence it moved by way of Frankfort to Perryville, where it lay in line within hearing of the battle at that place, but was not taken into the fight. Thence it proceeded to Crab Orchard, and thence to Bowling Green, Kentucky, arriving on the 30th of October.

Tents had been issued at Louisville and enjoyed by the command for two days, after which the regiment was without shelter until December 16th, 1862, when bell tents were issued.

On the 19th of December the regiment moved to Russellville, thence to Clarksville, Tennessee, arriving on Christmas night, where it remained for nine months, having been assigned to the Reserve Corps, commanded by General Gordon Granger. Here it attained a high degree of drill and discipline. It was engaged in collecting and forwarding supplies for Rosecrans's army, building a railroad bridge eighty feet high and three hundred feet long over Red River, and also other bridges along the line of communication.

On the 23d of September, 1863, the regiment left Clarksville and moved to Nashville; thence proceeded by rail—the left wing under command of Major Elliott—to Elk River, and the right, under Lieutenant-Colonel Bowman, to Cowen, Tennessee: Colonel Given at this time commanding brigade, with head-quarters at Cowen. On the 26th the right wing, with the brigade, under Colonel Given, marched to Shelbyville, Tennessee, to aid in repelling the raid made by General Wheeler.

On the 30th of October the regiment went into winter-quarters at Nashville, Tennessee, and was assigned to General Ward's brigade, Rousseau's division, Twentieth Army Corps. It prepared to move to the front with the brigade, but at the special instance of General R. S. Granger it was retained with the Eighteenth Michigan for duty in the city, where it remained six months.

On the 26th of April, 1864, the regiment was transferred to Tullahoma, Tennessee, where it relieved a brigade, and guarded the railroad from Normandy to Decherd until the 6th of June. Here Colonel Given was relieved of the command of the brigade, and with his regiment only marched across the Cumberland Mountains to Bellefonte, Alabama, arriving on the 10th of June, the left wing, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Elliott, continuing its march to Dodsonville, fifteen miles further down the river. Here the regiment was employed on the defense of the line of the Tennessee River from Stevenson to the foot of Seven Mile Island, a distance of fifty miles, every part of which was patrolled four times every twenty-four hours.

On this line the regiment erected twelve superior block-houses and one fort. For more than two months scouting parties were kept out every day, traveling at least twelve miles before returning, and keeping a complete journal, as required by army regulations. The object of maintaining the line of the Tennessee was to prevent the enemy, then in large numbers on the south side of the river, from crossing and destroying the Memphis and Charleston Railroad; and although the enemy frequently attempted to do so, yet they never succeeded in damaging, or even reaching any line of communication guarded by the regiment. During this summer different parts of the regiment had frequent engagements with detachments of the enemy, and were always successful; and at one time literally executed an order to destroy all the habitations in Jones's Cove—a guerrilla rendezvous on the south side of the river; at the same time killing and capturing a number of the enemy. Many prisoners and Rebel deserters—a number of whom were sent from Dodsonville—were forwarded from the head-quarters of the regiment at Bellefonte to Decatur, then district head-quarters.

On the 1st of September, at Bellefonte, the regiment went on board the cars and remained on them fourteen days, patrolling the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad from Decatur, Alabama, to Columbia, Tennessee, and on the 15th of September went into camp at Decatur.

On the night of the 23d of September Colonel Given, in command of the post, was ordered to send four hundred men to re-enforce the fort at Athens; which was done by taking about equal numbers from the One Hundred and Second Ohio and the Eighteenth Michigan, the re-enforcement being put under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Elliott, of the One Hundred and Second. The next morning this force met the enemy, under Forrest, near Athens, and by persistent fighting drove him about four miles, and twice cut their way through two brigades of the enemy; pressing for the fort and arriving in sight of it witnessed the humiliation of our flag, and the hoisting of the Confederate banner—the fort having been cowardly surrendered, and the guns, manned by Rebels, turned upon the troops under Colonel Elliott. They were surrounded by an overwhelming force of the enemy, a large number of men were killed and wounded, and the remainder captured. The officers were taken to Selma and the men to Cahawba, Alabama. The officers were afterward transferred to Enterprise, where they remained until paroled, and returned to the regiment about six months after their capture. The men were paroled and placed on board the ill-fated Sultana at Vicksburg, and as nearly as can be ascertained eighty-one of the One Hundred and Second were lost by the disaster to that boat.

It is but just to say that the officers and men of the Eighteenth Michigan deserve the same credit for their conduct in the fight at Athens that is due to the One Hundred and Second Ohio.

On the 24th day of October Hood, with thirty-five thousand men and one hundred and eight pieces of artillery, attacked the garrison at Decatur, Alabama, consisting of less than one thousand men for duty and seventeen pieces of artillery. This force was thus disposed: The right under the command of Colonel Doolittle, the left under command of Colonel Given, and the whole commanded by General R. S. Granger. The enemy attacked the left, but soon extended their lines around the whole works. During this siege, which lasted four days, and at which the enemy were repulsed with the loss of fifteen hundred men, as reported by Hood himself, the One Hundred and Second bore a conspicuous part, and was publicly complimented on the field by the General commanding for its bravery in the action, and Colonel Given has since been brevetted Brigadier-General "for gallant conduct at Decatur."

After the siege of Decatur the regiment was frequently engaged in sharp and severe conflicts with the enemy left by Hood to guard his rear, in which they drove the Rebels, at different times, from four to ten miles. It is but due to the men to say that at all times they were willing to meet the enemy, and no officer or man was ever known to quail, or attempt to avoid a conflict when the enemy was within reach. This regiment was composed of an excellent class of men, and such was their discipline and correct deportment that, while rigidly enforcing the claims of the Government, they secured the respect of the citizens of the rebellious States with whom they came in contact.

In obedience to orders Decatur was evacuated on the 25th of November, and the regiment, with other forces, marched one hundred miles to Stevenson, Alabama, where they labored incessantly in building forts to cut off Hood's retreat, should he be driven back that way. On the 23d the regiment returned by transports from Stevenson to Decatur, Alabama, arriving on the 1st of June, 1865.

After this and until the collapse of the rebellion, detachments of the One Hundred and Second were engaged in frequent conflicts with squads of the enemy's cavalry.

On the 30th day of June, 1865, it was mustered out at Nashville, Tennessee. It proceeded, with thirty officers and four hundred and sixty-seven men, to Columbus, Ohio, and was there discharged on the 8th of July, 1865.

103d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JOHN S. CASEMENT.....	Aug. 18, 1862	Sept. 17, 1862	Resigned April 30, 1865.
Do.	PHILIP C. HAYES.....	June 6, 1863	June 6, 1863
Lt. Colonel.....	JAMES T. STERLING.....	Sept. 1, 1862	Sept. 17, 1862	Resigned September 10, 1864.
Do.	PHILIP C. HAYES.....	Nov. 18, 1861	Nov. 18, 1861	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	HENRY S. PICKANDS.....	June 6, 1863	June 6, 1863
Major.....	DEWITT C. HOWARD.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Sept. 17, 1862	Honorably discharged July 5, 1864.
Do.	HENRY S. PICKANDS.....	May 18, 1863	May 18, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Surgeon.....	L. D. GRISWOLD.....	Aug. 19, 1861	Sept. 17, 1862	Resigned July 15, 1864.
Do.	D. H. BRINKERHOFF.....	" 11, 1861	Aug. 11, 1861
Ass't Surgeon.....	D. H. BRINKERHOFF.....	" 13, 1862	"	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	GEORGE FUELER.....	" 19, " "	"	Resigned May 7, 1863.
Do.	E. S. STANSBURY.....	" 4, 1862	Aug. 4, 1863	Resigned January 25, 1864.
Do.	F. M. ANDREWS.....	" 11, 1864	" 11, 1864	Died November 8, 1864.
Do.	JACOB B. CASEBEER.....	Feb. 25, 1863	Feb. 25, 1863
Chaplain.....	G. H. HUBBARD.....	Sept. 10, 1862	Sept. 18, 1862	Resigned October 27, 1864.
Captain.....	Isaac C. Vail.....	July 8, " "	" 17, " "	Died August 19, 1863.
Do.	Wm. W. Hutchinson.....	" 10, " "	" 15, " "	Killed in action May 14, 1864.
Do.	John L. Semple.....	" 12, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned January 9, 1863.
Do.	John T. Philip.....	" 13, " "	" 17, " "	Killed in action May 14, 1864.
Do.	George W. Tidwells.....	" 16, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned February 9, 1863.
Do.	Philip C. Hayes.....	" 16, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	Moses L. M. Peixotto.....	" 19, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned December 9, 1862.
Do.	George T. Brady.....	" 24, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned May 9, 1864.
Do.	Lyman B. Wilcox.....	Aug. 6, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned April 6, 1864.
Do.	W. H. Garrett.....	" 18, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned February 23, 1864.
Do.	Henry S. Pickands.....	Dec. 9, " "	Dec. 10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Francis M. Thomas.....	Jan. 9, 1863	Feb. 22, 1863
Do.	Charles E. Sargent.....	Feb. 9, " "	" 22, " "
Do.	John Booth.....	May 9, " "	June 26, " "	Resigned April 24, 1864.
Do.	Norris P. Stockwell.....	Aug. 15, " "	Aug. 22, " "
Do.	Simcon Winderker.....	April 21, 1864	March 21, 1864
Do.	George R-dway.....	May 25, " "	May 25, " "
Do.	Charles D. Rhodes.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned April 30, 1863.
Do.	John T. Kennedy.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant July 1, 1864.
Do.	Clark W. Quick.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Charles E. Morgan.....	Nov. 18, " "	Nov. 18, " "
Do.	Levi Seofield.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
Do.	Franklin B. Smith.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
Do.	Albert H. Spencer.....	May 18, 1863	May 18, 1863
Do.	Lewis S. Dilly.....	" 18, " "	" 17, " "
1st Lieutenant.....	Dudley A. Kimball.....	Jan. 2, 1862	Sept. 17, 1862	Discharged November 24, 1862.
Do.	Thomas Burt.....	" 10, " "	" 17, " "	Died December 4, 1862.
Do.	Francis M. Thomas.....	" 16, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles E. Sargent.....	" 16, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Simcon Winderker.....	" 24, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Booth.....	" 24, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George R-dway.....	Aug. 8, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Hamilton D. Dickey.....	" 9, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned December 2, 1862.
Do.	David Smalk.....	" 18, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned December 9, 1862.
Do.	Henry S. Pickands.....	" 14, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John S. White.....	" 15, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned October 1, 1864.
Do.	George B. Munson.....	Sept. 12, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned July 1, 1863.
Do.	Basil S. Spangler.....	July 17, " "	Nov. 25, " "	Mustered out as surplus officer Sept. 4, 1862.
Do.	Charles D. Rhodes.....	Dec. 9, " "	Dec. 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Luty J. Neville.....	" 2, " "	" 26, " "	Resigned February 9, 1863.
Do.	Wm. F. Hubbard.....	" 9, " "	" 26, " "	Resigned January 13, 1864.
Do.	Norris P. Stockwell.....	Nov. 24, " "	" 26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Corwin M. Holt.....	Dec. 4, " "	Feb. 22, 1863	Detached at own request.
Do.	Charles E. Morgan.....	Feb. 9, 1863	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Levi Seofield.....	" 9, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John T. Kennedy.....	Jan. 9, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Dewitt C. Hotchkiss.....	May 9, " "	June 26, " "	Resigned January 9, 1864.
Do.	Charles W. Quick.....	July 18, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Albert H. Spencer.....	Feb. 17, 1864	Feb. 17, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Franklin B. Smith.....	Aug. 15, 1863	Aug. 15, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph P. Card.....	Feb. 17, 1864	Feb. 17, 1864	Resigned December 23, 1864.
Do.	Lewis S. Dilly.....	March 21, " "	March 21, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry A. Mills.....	May 25, " "	May 25, " "
Do.	Constantine Eddy.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wilbur M. Sturtevant.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Resigned July 1, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Hall.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "
Do.	James Allen.....	Nov. 18, " "	Nov. 18, " "
Do.	Henry C. Bacon.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
Do.	Gilbert S. Judl.....	Jan. 5, 1865	Jan. 5, 1865
Do.	George B. Norton.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "
Do.	Edward B. Revolis.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "
Do.	John E. Vought.....	May 18, " "	May 18, " "
Do.	Michael Duncan.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
Do.	Henry Barban.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
2d Lieutenant.....	Corwin M. Holt.....	July 10, 1862	Sept. 17, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John T. Kennedy.....	" 16, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Levi Seofield.....	" 16, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Norris P. Stockwell.....	" 17, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant Nov. 24, 1862.
Do.	Charles E. Morgan.....	" 18, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philemon B. Parsons.....	" 24, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned June 18, 1863.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Charles D. Rhodes.....	Aug. 4, 1862	Sept. 17, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Luty J. Neville.....	" 7, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. F. Hubbard.....	" 17, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward Andrews.....	" 17, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned May 19, 1863.
Do.	Henry C. Seymour.....	Dec. 9, " "	Dec. 20, " "	Resigned July 18, 1863.
Do.	Dewitt C. Hutchiss.....	Nov. 24, " "	Feb. 4, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Franklin B. Smith.....	Dec. 2, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Marshall S. Root.....	" 9, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned February 5, 1864.
Do.	Albert H. Spieker.....	" 4, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph P. Card.....	Jan. 9, 1863	" 22, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Miles E. Wattles.....	Feb. 9, " "	" 23, " "	Resigned October 21, 1863.
Do.	Lewis S. Dilley.....	" 9, " "	" 23, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry A. Mills.....	May 19, " "	June 26, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. T. Chapman.....	June 8, " "	" 23, " "	Resigned February 23, 1864.
Do.	James McWilliams.....	May 9, " "	" 26, " "	Resigned March 16, 1864.
Do.	Constantine Eddy.....	Sept. 1, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wilbur M. Sturtevant.....	Aug. 15, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Hall.....	21, " "	Nov. 24, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Allen.....	May 25, 1864	May 25, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry C. Bacon.....	Aug. 29, " "	Aug. 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Barton.....	" " "	June 6, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

103d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND THIRD OHIO was composed of men from the counties of Cuyahoga, Lorain, and Medina. Ten companies rendezvoused at Cleveland in August, 1862; and on the 3d of September started for Cincinnati, which they found in a state of excitement and alarm, because of the near approach of the enemy, under Kirby Smith, upon Covington, Kentucky. Having received arms in Cincinnati, the regiment crossed over to Covington, where it was furnished with clothing and other necessities for camp-life. Thus equipped it marched out to Fort Mitchel on the evening of the 6th.

After a few days of painful suspense information was received at head-quarters that the enemy had retreated. Immediate pursuit was ordered. The One Hundred and Third moved out on the 18th, with other forces, in pursuit, taking the pike toward Lexington. Having followed the enemy three days without being able to overtake him, the National forces returned as far as Snow's Pond, where they encamped for a short time. While here, sickness prostrated nearly half the regiment. It was now organized, with two other regiments, into a brigade, under the command of Brigadier-General Q. A. Gillmore. The regiment, with its brigade, moved out on the 6th of October to repress the outrages of the Rebel cavalry. On the 21st it reached Lexington, encamping on the south side of the city. On the 29th the regiment, being now separated from its brigade, moved forward to Frankfort, where it went into camp on the bank of the Kentucky River. The regiment remained at Frankfort until the 5th of April, 1863, when it marched to Stanford, via Nicholasville and Camp Dick Robinson. Marauding bands of mounted men, nominally belonging to John Morgan's command, but in reality independent squads of freebooters, had kept all this region in a constant state of excitement and alarm, and gave considerable annoyance to the National troops—now capturing parties stationed at outposts and now destroying supply-trains. The infantry could do but very little to suppress these irregularities, notwithstanding they were kept continually on the move, and the Government was unable, up to this time, to send a large cavalry force into Kentucky. But now an effort was about to be made to punish the offenders. A large force was assembled at Stanford, and on the 25th an advance was ordered by General S. P. Carter, then in command. The National forces moved forward to Somerset and Mill Springs, the enemy falling back all the time; but there were not wanting indications of an intention on the part of the Rebels to concentrate their scattered forces for the purpose of making a stand at some point favorable for defense. Our infantry had considerable difficulty in crossing the Cumberland, on account of high water; but once crossed, it pushed rapidly after the enemy, preceded by the cavalry, which had crossed a little below. On the 30th the cavalry came up with a body of Rebels, when a smart skirmish took place; but the latter soon fell back and, having passed through Monticello, halted and showed indications of resistance. An order was sent back to the infantry to hasten forward. This they did; but on their arrival at Monticello they ascertained that our cavalry had charged the Rebels and driven them back, with considerable loss, and was now engaged in pursuit. The infantry took no part in these proceedings. On the 5th of May our forces were ordered back to the Cumberland, it having been decided that this river should form their line of defense. The One Hundred and Third took a position near Stigall's Ferry, where they were soon visited by a body of Rebels, who fired on them from the southern bank. Much powder was expended by both parties, but with little result. On the 5th of July the regiment, with other troops, marched forward to Danville, where they went into camp; but in a few days a report that the enemy was passing around to their rear, compelled them to pack up and hastily fall back to Hickman Bridge. The "secre" was soon at an end, when the regiment returned to Danville, where, other forces arriving, they were all formed into the Twenty-Third Army Corps, and placed under the command of Major-General Hartsuff. The Ninth Army Corps having been added to the force at this point, and all preparations for a campaign being ready, the troops began to move on the 18th of August, under the command of General A. E. Burnside. No tongue can tell what that army suffered in its march from Danville, via Stamford, Crab Orchard, the Cumberland at Burnside's Point, Chitwood, Montgomery, Emery's Iron Works, and Lenoir, to Concord, Tennessee. Knoxville was then the stronghold of the enemy in this portion of the field, but on hearing of the approach of our forces they abandoned the place, which was quickly occupied by the advance of the National army. The One Hundred and Third, with other regiments, took the cars, and passing through Knoxville, moved on to Henderson Station, seven miles from Greenville, where, hearing of the surprise to the One Hundredth Ohio by the Rebels, who were here in considerable numbers, they fell back to Lickbrick Bridge. After a few days the regiment pushed up to Greenville, where it lay until the 19th of September, when it joined in the general advance which resulted in driving back the Rebels to their main force, then assembled at Jonesboro'. The enemy being pushed still further back by our cavalry, the infantry was ordered to return to Greenville, whence, on being rejoined by the cavalry, they fell back on Bull's Gap. The regiment joined in the advance commenced October 5th, upon the enemy, within nine miles of Blue Springs, and was ordered to the front—companies C and D being detailed to the skirmish-line. These companies were soon compelled to retire, when four more were ordered forward, only to find that the enemy had retreated. The regiment lost in this engagement three men killed, four wounded, and six taken prisoner. On the 11th the National forces, now largely re-enforced, moved forward to Blue Springs, where they had a severe contest with the Rebels, resulting in the retirement of the latter.

On the 4th of November the regiment proceeded by railroad to Knoxville, and was stationed, with its brigade, on the south side of the river. Longstreet was now advancing upon the city with a large force. During the investment our troops suffered the greatest hardships from insufficient clothing, short rations, and other privations. About noon on the 25th six companies of the regiment were sent out to relieve a company on picket-duty, and while so doing a heavy charge was made by the Rebels, with the intention of capturing the whole. The men, assisted by the pickets of the Twenty-Fourth Kentucky and the Sixty-Fifth Illinois, poured into the ranks of the Rebels a well-directed fire; but this did not check them in the least, for with yells of the most horrid description they rushed upon the picket-line, and a desperate struggle ensued. The regiments of the respective pickets coming up in full force, a bayonet-charge was ordered, which soon decided the contest, for the Rebels broke and fled, leaving their dead and wounded on the field. The regiment lost in this engagement about thirty-five in killed and wounded. On the 2d of December the enemy, hearing of the approach of Sherman, withdrew, and on the following day began his march toward Strawberry Plains. Hopeless as appeared the prospect of overtaking the enemy, nevertheless the National troops, augmented by part of the Fourth Corps, marched out on the 7th in pursuit. Their progress was necessarily slow, owing to their destitute and crippled condition. Yet the National forces continued to push the enemy before them, till having reached Bear Station, the regiment was ordered back to Strawberry Plains. On the 12th of March, 1864, it was ordered to join the advance. From Morristown, on the 18th, it was compelled, by the repeated assaults of the Rebel cavalry, to fall back to Mossy Brick, where it remained till the 1st of April, and then advanced with the army up the country as far as Bull's Gap. In a few days the regiment took the cars for Loudon, from whence it proceeded on foot to Charleston, where it found the other two regiments of its brigade. After a short delay it moved forward, forming part of Sherman's grand army. On the 13th of May the army arrived in front of Resaca. The next day the Twenty-Third Corps charged the enemy's works, and carried his two lines. The regiment lost in this engagement over one-third of its effective force. Among those who fell were Captains W. W. Hutchinson and J. T. Philpot. The enemy retreated and the National troops pursued, driving him from Cassville, through Cartersville, and across the Etowah River. The army again moved, and on the 2d of June it came up with the Rebels. A charge being ordered, the regiment started for the Rebel works, the first line of which it carried bandsomely, having lost in the charge only nine or ten men. The main line of the enemy was not attempted, but that night the Rebels retreated. On the 10th an advance was again ordered, and the regiment being on the skirmish-line, pushed forward, compelling the enemy again to fall back as far as Nares Creek. In this affair the regiment lost one man killed, two mortally and four or five seriously wounded. On the 8th of July it crossed the Chattahoochee River, ahead of the army; but not meeting with any opposition, halted here for several days. On the 20th the army, having passed through Decatur, arrived in front of Atlanta. In a demonstration, on the 28th, the regiment had two men wounded; and on the 6th of August it lost one man killed, while supporting a charge. On the 28th the entire army started southward; and the regiment, with its brigade, having struck the railroad near Rough and Ready, they completely destroyed it, and then started for Jonesboro', arriving too late, however, to participate in the battle fought by General Howard. The Twenty-Third Corps being ordered to Decatur, it reached that place on the 8th of September. The regiment lost heavily during this campaign. On the 1st of May its effective force numbered four hundred and fifty men; but when it encamped at Decatur it could only muster one hundred and ninety-five.

On the 20th of October the Twenty-Third Corps being ordered to Nashville, the regiment moved up to Chattanooga; and finally, on the 19th of November, joined the command at Pultaski. At Spring Hill the regiment had another opportunity of showing its pluck. A division that had been sent forward in charge of the trains was drawn up in line, to resist any attack the Rebels might make; while the regiment, being with head-quarters' train, was ordered to support a battery, so placed as to sweep an open field in front of the National troops. The enemy, emerging from the woods, marched steadily up to the National lines, when the entire division broke and ran, leaving the One Hundred and Third and the battery to resist the attack. Fixing bayonets, the men awaited the onset. As soon as the enemy came within range they poured a well-directed fire into their ranks, which, being seconded by the battery, caused them to waver. Portions of the retreating division having rallied, the Rebels were compelled to retake themselves to the woods. On the 30th of November the regiment was at Franklin, but did not participate in the battle fought at that place. The next day it started for Nashville, in charge of Rebel prisoners, where it lay until the 15th of December, when it joined the other troops, under General Thomas, in pursuit of the routed enemy.

On the 24th of February, 1865, the regiment, with its corps, arrived at Wilmington, and on the 6th of March it started forward, moving through Kingston to Goldsboro', where it met with Sherman's army. The whole army soon took up its march, and on the 13th of April reached Raleigh, where the regiment remained till the 10th of June, when it started for Cleveland, Ohio, to be mustered out. As the train conveying the men was descending the western slope of the Alleghany mountains, a truck broke loose, which resulted in throwing three of the cars down a steep embankment, causing the death of three men and the mutilation of a much larger number. On the 19th the regiment reached Cleveland, and on the 22d it was paid off and mustered out.

104th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JAMES W. RETLEY.....	Aug. 11, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted to Brigadier-General Volunteers
Do.....	OSCAR W. STEEL.....	" 11, 1861	Aug. 11, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	ASA S. MARINER.....	" 7, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Resigned July 2, 1863.
Do.....	OSCAR W. STEEL.....	Jan. 2, 1863	Aug. 10, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	Wm. J. Jordan.....	Aug. 11, 1861	" 11, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	LORIN D. WOODSWORTH.....	" 9, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Resigned December 9, 1862.
Do.....	OSCAR W. STEEL.....	Dec. 9, " "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	Wm. J. Jordan.....	Jan. 2, 1863	Aug. 10, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	JOSEPH F. RIDGEL.....	Aug. 11, 1861	" 11, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	K. G. THOMAS.....	" 19, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Resigned December 27, 1862.
Do.....	JOHN H. RODGERS.....	Dec. 28, " "	Feb. 10, 1863	Discharged December 13, 1861.
Do.....	DANIEL F. BOYNTON.....	Jan. 4, 1863	Jan. 4, 1863	Mustered out May 15, 1863.
Do.....	S. E. SHELTON.....	June 13, " "	June 13, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	Wm. K. MCKENZIE.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Sept. 13, 1862	Resigned January 29, 1863.
Do.....	C. C. STOFFER.....	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	Commission returned.
Do.....	R. P. JOHNSON.....	Sept. 4, " "	" 4, " "	Resigned February 3, 1863.
Do.....	DANIEL F. BOYNTON.....	March 30, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.....	ISRAEL REED.....	Feb. 25, 1863	Feb. 25, 1863	" "
Do.....	D. H. COWEN.....	March 11, " "	March 11, " "	" "
Claplain.....	M. W. DALLAS.....	Sept. 1, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Resigned January 31, 1863.
Do.....	BUEL WHITNEY.....	" 10, 1861	" 10, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	O. W. Steel.....	Jan. 11, 1862	" 16, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Jesse K. Coats.....	" 11, " "	" " "	Resigned November 17, 1862.
Do.....	Hugh Sturgeon.....	" 15, " "	" " "	Resigned February 10, 1861.
Do.....	Andr. W. J. Bahney.....	" 23, " "	" " "	Captain in 2d N. C. regiment November 3, 1861.
Do.....	Walter B. Scott.....	" 24, " "	" " "	Died March 25, 1863.
Do.....	John A. Wells.....	" 26, " "	" " "	Resigned March 27, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. J. Jordan.....	Aug. 8, " "	" " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Joseph F. Riddle.....	" 10, " "	" " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Ezra Coppick.....	" 10, " "	" " "	Resigned May 29, 1863.
Do.....	Marcus C. Horton.....	Nov. 21, " "	Nov. 21, 1862	Killed at Ball's, May 28, 1861.
Do.....	Franklin A. Perdue.....	" 17, " "	" 28, " "	Mustered out June 25, 1865.
Do.....	George V. Kelley.....	Dec. 9, " "	Jan. 29, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Robert Ford.....	March 27, 1862	June 10, " "	On detached duty on General Cox's staff.
Do.....	David D. Baird.....	Mar. 29, " "	" 10, " "	Died of wounds November 20, 1861.
Do.....	John W. Fancett.....	March 25, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph B. Morgan.....	Jan. 2, " "	10, " "	Resigned January 13, 1861.
Do.....	Robert C. Taggart.....	" 13, 1861	Feb. 1, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Andrew J. Southworth.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Killed August 16, 1861.
Do.....	Wm. Grinnell.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Honorably discharged as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John W. McClanomis.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.....	Orrin G. Vanderhoff.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Detached as A. A. J. G. 1st Brig. 3d Div. 231A
Do.....	Henry H. Everhard.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. F. Kimball.....	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Killed in action November 20, 1861.
Do.....	S. M. Knapp.....	Jan. 6, 1863	Jan. 6, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Edward E. Tracey.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned April 1, 1865.
Do.....	Daniel M. Stearns.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Benj. L. Robertson.....	May 11, " "	May 11, " "	Mustered out with regt. as 1st Lieutenant.
1st Lieutenant.....	Franklin A. Perdue.....	Aug. 11, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Robert C. Taggart.....	" 13, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Lewis D. Booth.....	" 17, " "	" 16, " "	Honorably discharged February 22, 1864.
Do.....	John W. McClanomis.....	" 18, " "	" 16, " "	Declined; mustered out April 6, 1865.
Do.....	Joseph Schaeffer.....	" 18, " "	" 16, " "	Detached at own request.
Do.....	George V. Kelley.....	" 23, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	David D. Baird.....	" 23, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John W. Fancett.....	" 23, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Robert Ford.....	" 24, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Joseph B. Morgan.....	Aug. 2, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Thomas W. Whittaker.....	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned November 27, 1862.
Do.....	Augustus J. Riess.....	July 19, " "	" 16, " "	Honorably discharged November 16, 1864.
Do.....	Andrew J. Southworth.....	Nov. 11, " "	Nov. 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James E. Williamson.....	" 27, " "	Jan. 20, 1863	Deceased.
Do.....	Wm. M. Johnson.....	Dec. 9, " "	" 29, " "	Revoked.
Do.....	Stanton Weaver.....	June 1, 1863	June 23, " "	Appointed Captain in colored regiment.
Do.....	Wm. Grinnell.....	March 27, " "	" 19, " "	Honorably discharged May 25, 1864.
Do.....	Samuel F. Shaw.....	May 29, " "	" 19, " "	Detached at own request.
Do.....	Orrin G. Vanderhoff.....	March 28, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James L. Smith.....	Jan. 2, " "	10, " "	Resigned October 31, 1863.
Do.....	Henry H. Everhard.....	Oct. 17, " "	April 6, 1867	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. F. Kimball.....	Jan. 13, 1863	Feb. 1, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Shepherd M. Knapp.....	" 13, " "	" 1, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Edward E. Tracey.....	Feb. 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Daniel M. Stearns.....	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Benj. L. Robertson.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Stacey Pettit.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joshua B. D. Siss.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George L. Reed.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Stanley D. Humason.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Samuel S. Cope.....	Jan. 6, 1863	Jan. 6, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Samuel C. Taggart.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	G. P. Reed.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	" "
Do.....	Henry Vick.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles Perkey.....	May 11, " "	May 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Aram Paulus.....	" 11, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
2d Lieutenant.....	Wm. M. Johnson.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted; resigned January 21, 1863.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
21 Lieutenant	Andrew J. Southworth	Aug. 11, 1862	Sept. 16, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. F. Kimball	13, " "	16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Shepherd M. Knapp	" 20, " "	16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel F. Shaw	July 24, " "	16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Luther R. Sanford	Aug. 5, " "	16, " "	Died February 26, 1863.
Do.	James L. Smith	" 16, " "	16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James E. Williamson	" 8, " "	16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lyman Sowers	July 18, " "	16, " "	Resigned January 31, 1863.
Do.	Edward E. Tracey	" 17, " "	16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. J. Nelson	Nov. 17, " "	Nov. 28, " "	Detached at own request.
Do.	Daniel M. Stearns	" 27, " "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Orrin G. Vanderhoff	Jan. 24, 1863	June 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stanton Weaver	" 31, " "	Feb. 2, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. L. Robertson	Feb. 26, " "	June 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Horace L. Reed	May 29, " "	10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stanley D. Humason	June 1, " "	" 23, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Josiah B. D. Sless	May 25, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stacy Pettit	Jan. 2, " "	10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel S. Cope	Feb. 27, 1864	Feb. 27, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James C. Taggart	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	G. P. Reed	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Vick	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles Perkey	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Abram Paulus	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Walter	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wickliffe B. Elston	May 11, 1865	May 11, 1865

104th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was recruited almost exclusively from the counties of Stark, Columbiana, Summit, and Portage. It was organized at Camp Massillon, was mustered into the service on the 30th of August, 1862, and left Camp Massillon for Cincinnati on the 1st of September. On its arrival at Cincinnati it was taken across the Ohio River to Covington, and went into camp three miles out on the Alexandria Turnpike. Kirby Smith was then besieging Cincinnati, and the regiment acted as the outpost-guard of the National lines. Remaining in its first camp a few days, it was then transferred to Covington, and sent out to Fort Mitchell. At this point the advanced pickets of the Rebel forces were met and skirmished with, the regiment losing one man killed and five wounded. The Rebel loss was double as great, both in killed and wounded. This was the first and only blood spilled in defense of Cincinnati.

On September 12th the regiment marched in pursuit of the Rebel army toward Lexington. This, being its first march, was very severe on the men. The roads were dusty, the springs dried up, and being without tents, the men, all unused as they were to exposure, suffered intensely.

Lexington was reached at daylight on the 15th of October, a few hours after the rear-guard of the Rebel army had evacuated the place. The regiment remained in Lexington until the 6th of December. While here the drill and discipline of the regiment was attended to with such success as to carry off the palm in a review of the forces at that place, the commanding officer deciding that the One Hundred and Fourth Ohio had attained the highest state of discipline of any regiment in his command.

On the morning of December 6th the regiment resumed its line of march, and bivouacked on the bank of the Kentucky River, at Clay's Ferry. The next day's march brought it to Richmond, Kentucky. The brigade consisted of the One Hundredth, Forty-Fourth, and One Hundred and Fourth Ohio, and the Nineteenth Ohio Battery, under command of Colonel S. A. Gilbert, of the Forty-Fourth Ohio. While at Richmond, Kentucky, the command built formidable earthworks.

On December 27th the march was resumed, and the regiment reached Danville, Kentucky the following evening. This movement was for the purpose of intercepting John Morgan's guerrilla force, then operating in that vicinity. Beyond slight skirmishing nothing occurred. From Danville it went to Frankfort, arriving there in January, 1863. It performed provost-duty at this place until February 21st. While the brigade was in camp at Frankfort the Fourth Ohio was mounted.

On the evening of the 21st of February the regiment took up the line of march toward Danville. Shortly after it started a furious snow-storm commenced, through which it, with difficulty, made its way, reaching, late at night, the Kentucky Military Institute, in which it took up its quarters. Before daylight the next morning the march was resumed, and continued steadily all that day, the regiment reaching Harrodsburg late at night. The next morning it went into Danville, expecting to engage Morgan's cavalry at that point, but the enemy was not found.

The regiment continued to operate in that quarter of Kentucky, watching and checking the movements of the Rebel forces under Morgan, Pegram, and Cluke, until the following summer, when it joined General Burnside's army in East Tennessee, arriving at Knoxville about the 5th of September, 1863. The duties performed by the One Hundred and Fourth Ohio, while in Kentucky, were arduous and harassing, it being obliged to march and counter-march continually up and down and through almost the entire country. During the retreat of the National forces under General S. P. Carter, from Danville to Lexington, the regiment lost twenty-five men captured. In all the towns in which the regiment encamped in Kentucky, it maintained discipline and earned a good name. Before leaving Kentucky the One Hundred and Fourth Ohio was placed in the First Brigade, Third Division, Twenty-Third Army Corps, and General Hartsuff.

After a short rest at Knoxville the regiment, with its brigade, was ordered to Cumberland Gap. This march was made with such rapidity as to merit and receive from President Lincoln a highly complimentary telegram, sent from Washington to General Burnside.

The Gap was reached on the 7th of September. Immediately thereafter a demand for surrender was made by General Burnside, and refused. The National troops prepared to carry it at the point of the bayonet, but before the movement was made the Rebel leader, General Frazier, surrendered his entire command as prisoners of war. The One Hundred and Fourth Ohio was the first regiment to enter the works. It received the surrender of the Rebel army at stores. Remaining at the Gap for a few days, the regiment, with its brigade, returned to Knoxville. Just after this time it accompanied General Burnside in an expedition to Carter's Station on the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, and returned again to Knoxville, where, for some weeks, it performed provost-duty.

Nothing of importance occurred until the siege of Knoxville by Longstreet's Rebel corps, the latter part of November. During the siege the brigade to which the regiment was attached acted as a reserve force, but being ordered to the south side of Holston River, it had a spirited engagement with the enemy. The enemy was repulsed with considerable loss.

The regiment then returned to the city and occupied various important positions under fire up to the raising of the siege, losing some men wounded. During the siege the exposures and privations endured by the regiment were very great, its rations being limited and of inferior quality, and the weather cold, drizzly, and disagreeable in the extreme. The men were without tents, and were compelled to take their rest on the muddy ground.

The One Hundred and Fourth Ohio, with the National army, joined in the pursuit of Longstreet, and followed him up to Blain's Cross Roads, participating in the various skirmishes of that pursuit. It wintered in this inhospitable region during the whole of that inclement season and endured hardships and privations like those suffered by our Revolutionary forefathers at Valley Forge. Half-starved, half-clad, those brave and self-sacrificing men maintained the integrity to the old flag, and in the midst of these terrible sufferings declared a willingness to enter on another three years' term of service, but their enlistment not expiring within the time.

specified they were not permitted to "veteranize." The regiment remained in this portion of Tennessee until early in April, 1864, when it was ordered to Cleveland, Tennessee, where troops were assembling preparatory to the Atlanta campaign.

The One Hundred and Fourth Ohio formed part of that campaign, and participated in all its general engagements. On the 6th of August, in the desperate assault at Utoy Creek, the loss of the brigade was six hundred killed and wounded. The regiment lost twenty-six officers and men killed and wounded.

Nothing of importance occurred until the 30th of August, when the regiment accompanied the army in the flanking movement down to Jonesboro', but did not participate in the engagement at that place. In the meantime, however, it was engaged in tearing up railroads and guarding lines of communication. It remained in the vicinity of Jonesboro' until the fall of Atlanta, and then marched for Decatur.

On October 4, 1864, the regiment left Decatur, and on the same day crossed the Chattahoochie River fifteen miles from Decatur. It marched with the whole army, maneuvering so as to push the Rebel General Hood's forces in the direction of Nashville. In this march it passed through Marietta, Acworth, Allatoona, Cassville, Kingston, Rome, Calhoun, Resaca, and Snake Creek Gap, into Alabama at Gaylorsville, and finally reached Cedar Bluff, Alabama. At this place it participated in a reconnoissance to the town of Center.

On October 28th it crossed the Coosa River, and reached Rome, Georgia, on the 30th. The next point was Dalton, where it took the cars for Nashville, November 6, 1864. At this point the regiment cast its vote in favor of "veteranizing Abraham Lincoln."

On November 8th the regiment took the cars and went to Spring Hill, Tennessee. November 13th it marched to Columbia, and thence to Pulaski. From Pulaski it fell back to Columbia. At the last-named point, November 24th, it had a skirmish with a force of Rebel cavalry. From this time until the night of November 26th daily skirmishing was had with the enemy, and with great difficulty Duck River was crossed that night. After crossing the river the main army took position in a semicircle, its right and left flanks resting on the river. While the main force was in position the One Hundred and Fourth Ohio, with its brigade, occupied the center, guarding the ford. In this duty it lost Sergeant Betz and private Booker of company H, and private Solo of company A killed.

On November 29th the regiment lost from company A privates Evans and Lambertson killed, and several others stunned by the explosion of a shell thrown from the enemy's lines. The same night it moved toward Franklin, making a severe march of twenty-five miles, reaching that place at daylight the next morning. While at Franklin the regiment, with its brigade, built breastworks.

The fight at Franklin commenced on the 30th of November, at five o'clock in the afternoon, and lasted until ten in the evening. This was the most severe engagement the regiment had ever participated in, and its loss was sixty killed and wounded. Lieutenant William Kimball of company C, and Captain Bard of company I were killed in this battle. The men went into the fight with the avowed intention of revenging the loss of their comrades at Utoy Creek, and used that as their battle-cry. The Rebel General Adams was killed in front of the breastworks occupied by the One Hundred and Fourth Ohio, himself and horse rolling over in front of the regiment. Lieutenant Kimball, who lost his life, fought desperately, throwing hatchets and axes into the seething mass of Rebels in his front, until a bullet struck him down. Lieutenant Cope was severely wounded through the arm during the battle, but wrapping his handkerchief around the wound, bravely stood his ground throughout the battle. Lieutenant Coughlin, belonging to the staff of General Cox, was killed near the regiment while in the act of cheering his men.

After the battle the regiment marched with the National forces to Nashville, bearing with it eleven battle-flags captured from the enemy. It reached that city on the morning of December 1st, and on the next day took position in the main line in front of Nashville, near Fort Negley. Nothing occurred of note until the 15th of December, excepting the intense suffering of the men from cold weather.

On December 15th the corps to which the regiment belonged moved to the right to support the cavalry, and lost in a skirmish with the enemy three men wounded. On the 16th the whole line made a charge, the brigade capturing the line of works in its front with eight pieces of artillery and a number of prisoners, without the loss of a man. Resting in the enemy's works that night, the regiment moved the next morning on the Granny White Turnpike in pursuit of the enemy, and did not stop, with the exception of a short halt at Columbia, until Clifton, Tennessee, was reached, January 6, 1865.

It remained in camp at this place until January 16th, when it embarked on board of the steamer Swallow, and, landing at Cincinnati, took the cars, January 22d, for Washington City. From thence it was transferred, by the steamer Star of the South, to Federal Point, near Fort Fisher, North Carolina, arriving there February 9th.

On February 16th the regiment crossed Cape Fear River and landed at Smithville, North Carolina. February 18th it advanced toward Fort Anderson and skirmished with the Rebels, losing John Hammond, company E, killed; Lieutenant Reed, company I, wounded through both legs; Orderly Sergeant Whitney, company I, Sergeant Martin, company A, and private Weaver wounded. February 20th, at Old Town Creek, the regiment, with its division, charged the enemy, captured a number of prisoners, four field-pieces, and a large quantity of small arms. The loss of the regiment was two killed and twenty wounded. February 22d the brigade entered the city of Wilmington, where it performed provost-duty until the 4th of March, 1865, when it was relieved. It then made a forced march to Kingston to the relief of General Cox, who was threatened by overpowering numbers.

On March 20th the regiment left Kingston and marched to Goldsboro', arriving there the next day. At this place it remained until the 11th of April, when it went to Raleigh, North Carolina, arriving there on the 15th. At the grand review in Raleigh, on the 21st of April, the regiment received some high compliments from General Sherman and others for its efficiency of drill and soldierly bearing.

The One Hundred and Fourth Ohio remained in Raleigh until May 2d, when it was selected by General Cox, commanding the corps, to repair to Greensboro', North Carolina, and receive the arms and stores of Johnston's Rebel army. This duty performed, the regiment remained in Greensboro' as provost-guard until June 17, 1865, when it was mustered out and ordered to report to Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, for final pay and discharge. It arrived in Cleveland on the 24th, and on the 27th of June was paid off and discharged.

105th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	ALBERT S. HALL.....	Aug. 11, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Died July 10, 1863.
Do.	WM. R. TOLLES.....	July 10, 1863	July 16, 1863	Resigned as Lieutenant-Colonel Jan. 9, 1863.
Do.	GEORGE T. PERKINS.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment as Lieut. Col.
Lt. Colonel.....	WM. R. TOLLES.....	Aug. 9, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	GEORGE T. PERKINS.....	July 10, 1863	July 16, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	CHARLES S. EDWARDS.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment as Major.
Major.....	GEORGE T. PERKINS.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	CHARLES S. EDWARDS.....	July 10, 1863	July 16, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	GEORGE L. RIKER.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Resigned as Captain September 23, 1864.
Surgeon.....	C. N. FOWLER.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	HENRY S. FAYT.....	Sept. 4, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Honorably discharged February 19, 1863.
Do.	J. G. PAULDING.....	Sept. 4, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Resigned April 8, 1863.
Do.	JOHN TURNBULL.....	June 29, 1863	June 29, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	AARON VAN NOSTRAND.....	Sept. 29, 1862	Oct. 1, 1862	Died February 27, 1863.
Captain.....	Charles S. Edwards.....	July 25, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John Reeves.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned August 20, 1862.
Do.	Henry P. Gilbert.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned January 17, 1863.
Do.	George L. Riker.....	" 24, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted; resigned September 23, 1864.
Do.	Byron W. Canfield.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Discharged January 29, 1863.
Do.	Sherbourn H. Williams.....	Aug. 1, " "	" 25, " "	Discharged January 13, 1863.
Do.	W. S. Crowell.....	" 6, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned August 2, 1864.
Do.	Robert Wilson.....	" 9, " "	" 25, " "	Killed at Perryville October 8, 1862.
Do.	L. Dwight Key.....	" 9, " "	" 25, " "	Killed at Perryville October 8, 1862.
Do.	Edward V. Bowers.....	" 10, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned December 22, 1862.
Do.	Ephraim Key.....	" 20, " "	" 25, " "	Died January 18, 1863.
Do.	Wm. R. Tuttle.....	Oct. 8, " "	Dec. 9, " "	Mustered out June 8, 1865.
Do.	Henry C. Sweet.....	" 25, " "	Jan. 28, 1863	Discharged May 12, 1863.
Do.	Richard J. Sec.....	Dec. 25, " "	Jan. 28, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alfred G. Wilcox.....	Jan. 15, 1863	Feb. 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ambrose C. Mason.....	" 17, " "	" 19, " "	Died August 25, 1864.
Do.	E. A. Spaulding.....	" 29, " "	" 19, " "	Died September 27, 1863.
Do.	Andrew D. Braden.....	" 18, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Patton Hinrod.....	July 10, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Honorably discharged April 26, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Wallace.....	May 12, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry H. Cummings.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Marshal W. Wright.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Declined; resigned April —, 1864.
Do.	Daniel B. Stambaugh.....	March 24, " "	March 21, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Hartzell.....	Sept. 28, " "	Sept. 28, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stanley Lockwood.....	Oct. 24, " "	Oct. 24, " "	Declined to accept.
Do.	Reuben G. Morgaridge.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Wm. R. Tuttle.....	July 9, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Albion W. Bourgeois.....	" 11, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned December 6, 1863.
Do.	Henry C. Sweet.....	" 16, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain October 8, 1862.
Do.	Andrew D. Braden.....	" 19, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Richard J. Sec.....	" 23, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ambrose C. Mason.....	" 23, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Clark.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned May 15, 1863.
Do.	Charles A. Brumden.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned January 21, 1863.
Do.	Henry H. Cummings.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Marshal W. Wright.....	Aug. 1, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ambrose M. Robbins.....	" 1, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned March 28, 1863.
Do.	Alfred G. Wilcox.....	" 1, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Osborn.....	Oct. 8, " "	Dec. 9, " "	Detached at own request.
Do.	E. A. Spaulding.....	" 8, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Daniel B. Stambaugh.....	Dec. 25, " "	Jan. 28, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Albert Dickerman.....	Jan. 21, 1863	Feb. 19, " "	Transferred March 29, 1863.
Do.	James H. Baird.....	" 17, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned March 12, 1863.
Do.	John C. Hartzell.....	" 15, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Leverett A. Barnard.....	" 29, " "	" 19, " "	Died February 17, 1864.
Do.	Horatio M. Smith.....	" 18, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain and A. Q. M.
Do.	Payton Hinrod.....	March 28, " "	April 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ira T. Mansfield.....	May 19, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Detached at own request.
Do.	Reuben G. Morgaridge.....	July 10, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Stanley B. Lockwood.....	May 12, " "	" 25, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	James W. Allen.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Castle.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Discharged January 10, 1865.
Do.	Alden T. Brooks.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out June 28, 1865.
Do.	James Crays.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Norman D. Smith.....	May 25, " "	May 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Porter Watson.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. C. Olds.....	Sept. 28, " "	Sept. 28, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Forbis.....	Oct. 24, " "	Oct. 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Cheney.....	" 24, " "	" 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M. Serg't.
Do.	Clinton F. Moore.....	" 24, " "	" 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
2d Lieutenant	E. A. Spaulding.....	July 11, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel B. Stambaugh.....	" 23, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry D. Niles.....	" 23, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned February 12, 1863.
Do.	James H. Baird.....	" 23, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Osborn.....	" 23, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alonzo Chubb.....	" 24, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned October 19, 1863.
Do.	Lester Burbanks.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned February 20, 1863.
Do.	John A. Osborn.....	Aug. 6, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned January 15, 1863.
Do.	John C. Hartzell.....	" 9, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Leverett A. Barnard.....	" 10, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Albert Dickerman.....	Oct. 8, " "	Dec. 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Henry Adams.....	Oct. 8, 1862	Dec. 9, 1862	Died February 20, 1863.
Do.	Horatio M. Smith.....	Dec. 22, " "	Jan. 28, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stanley B. Lockwood.....	Jan. 15, 1863	Feb. 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Peyton Harro l.....	" 21, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Wallace.....	" 17, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Reuben G. Morgaridge.....	" 15, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Irwin Butler.....	" 18, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned May 8, 1863.
Do.	James W. Allen.....	" 29, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lra T. Mansfield.....	Feb. 12, " "	April 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Castle.....	" 20, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Merit Emertson.....	March 28, " "	" 9, " "	Died January 14, 1863.
Do.	Julius A. Moffit.....	Feb. 20, " "	" 11, " "	Resigned August 13, 1863.
Do.	Alden T. Brooks.....	March 8, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Crays.....	July 10, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Norman D. Smith.....	May 12, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Porter Watson.....	" 15, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. C. O'Is.....	" 12, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Forbis.....	" 13, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

105th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTH OHIO was peculiarly a Western Reserve regiment, composed of citizens of the counties of Lake, Ashtabula, Geauga, Trumbull and Mahoning. The regiment was mustered into the United States service on the 20th and 21st of August, 1862, at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, Ohio. The companies were raised as follows: A and H from Mahoning; G, K, and part of F from Lake; E and part of F from Geauga; B, C, and I from Geauga and Trumbull. Companies A and C were made up largely of miners. The other companies were composed principally of farmers, with a moderate number of clerks, teachers, and students, and comparatively a small number of professional men and mechanics. The last company was mustered in at ten o'clock on the morning of August 21st, and in one hour the regiment, one thousand and thirteen strong, was on the march to the depot of the Cleveland and Cincinnati Railroad, under orders to leave the State. It arrived in Covington, Kentucky, on the morning of August 22d, being the first regiment to leave the State organized under the call of August 4, 1862. Its first company rendezvoused at Camp Taylor, August 11th and ninety-five per cent. of the entire regiment was enlisted after August 1st. It remained at Covington three days, the men receiving their advance bounty and one month's pay.

Having been fully armed and equipped for the field, the regiment left Covington August 25th, by rail, for Lexington, where it arrived the same day. At Lexington it was assigned to a brigade commanded by Colonel Charles Anderson, of the Ninety-Third Ohio. Much confusion and excitement prevailed around Lexington at the time of the arrival of the One Hundred and Fifth, and the regiment had every prospect of an immediate engagement with the enemy. General Kirby Smith was advancing from Cumberland Gap toward Lexington, and the most energetic preparations were being made to meet him.

On the 30th of August the One Hundred and Fifth, with several other regiments, received orders to march for Richmond, Kentucky, with all possible dispatch, for the purpose of reinforcing General Nelson. Before reaching that place, however, the battle had been fought and lost. A halt was made at the Kentucky River until the remnants of Nelson's command could come up, when they returned to Lexington. The Rebels in large force menacing Lexington, it was ordered that the city should be evacuated. Hasty preparations were made for the departure of our forces. On the night of September 1st the last of the column left for Louisville. The march was a forced one. Colonel Hall, of the One Hundred and Fifth, asked the privilege of bringing up the rear, and was allowed to do so. The troops were all new, and, as is usual with that class of soldiers, were loaded down with baggage. The weather was intensely warm. There had been a drouth in the country marched over, and water was exceedingly scarce; and such was the supposed urgency of the retreat that the column was pushed forward with great haste, giving the men little or no time to quench their thirst when water was found. The One Hundred and Fifth being in the rear, fared badly, as the foremost regiments almost invariably exhausted the wells and creeks, leaving but the muddy dregs for their companions in the rear. At times the thirst was overpowering, and each day men fell down from sun-stroke, apparently dead. However, the march was completed, the One Hundred and Fifth faithfully performing its duty as rear-guard, not only to the retreating force, but acted as a support to a section of artillery totally unprovided with ammunition. All along the weary, dusty way, "scares" occurred, and frequent stands were made against a supposed but invisible foe, involving detours across and through cornfields, always, of course, on the "double-quick." This march was the baptismal campaign of the One Hundred and Fifth, and it told sadly on both officers and men. As yet no tents had been drawn, and the men were compelled to lie down upon the naked ground after enduring the terrible heat and dust of the day. The march was completed September 5th, the men arriving at Louisville footsore and exhausted. Many were afflicted with chronic diarrhea and fevers, the majority of whom never recovered, but were discharged or died in hospital.

At Louisville the regiment was assigned to a brigade commanded by Brigadier-General Terrill, in a division commanded by Brigadier-General Jackson, which afterward became the Thirty-Third Brigade, Tenth Division, army under General Buell. Much apprehension was felt at Louisville at the time in consequence of General Bragg's invasion of Kentucky, and the troops were at once ordered to throw up works and prepare for a vigorous defense.

General Nelson, recovering from his wound received at Richmond, took command of the army, and the utmost vigor and watchfulness were manifested, and every precaution taken to prevent surprise. The arrival of General Buell with his army allayed all fears, and the remainder of the time at Louisville was spent in drilling and making thorough preparations for an early campaign against the Rebel forces under General Bragg. Still the One Hundred and Fifth entered upon this fall campaign with comparatively little knowledge of tactics and field maneuvering.

Leaving Louisville October 1st, the regiment marched, via Taylorsville and Bloomfield, to Perryville, where it was engaged (October 8th) in the battle of that name. After marching some eight or ten miles on the morning of the 8th, making frequent halts the vicinity of the coming contest was reached, but it was not until afternoon that the battle commenced at the point where the One Hundred and Fifth was stationed. The regiment moved rapidly forward and formed at the base of a ridge, where it awaited orders. Two companies had been sent out as skirmishers, but they rejoined the regiment at this point. Another regiment, the One Hundred and Twenty-Third Illinois, and Parsons's battery, had been assigned a position further to the front and left. This regiment and battery soon became engaged, and the One Hundred and Fifth was ordered to their support. Moving by the right flank, and on the double-quick, it passed in rear of the battery for the purpose of forming on its left. Before reaching its position it received a volley from a Rebel regiment at short range, and at once halted, faced by the rear rank, and opened fire. The smoke of their guns had hardly cleared away before another Rebel regiment, within fifty yards, rose up out of the tall grass, that completely concealed it, and fired another volley. Parsons's battery had been posted without any support near it, and within fifty yards of the nearest concealed line of Rebel infantry. At the time the One Hundred and Fifth came up most of the guns of Parsons's battery had been silenced, more than half its horses shot down, and many of its men killed and wounded. At the first volley from the One Hundred and Fifth the Rebel lines, three or four deep gradually moved forward, firing as they advanced, and swept the ridge where the battery and the One Hundred and Fifth stood. In the rear of the Rebel lines of infantry, on another ridge, were posted their batteries, which did terrible execution.

General Terrill seeing the gradual advance of the enemy, ordered Major Perkins to have the men fix bayonets, move forward, and try to save the guns. The enemy seeing the movement, opened with renewed vigor. Fresh troops sprang up; new volleys smote the advancing National line. It faltered, wavered, and fell back to its former position. The enemy rushed forward and succeeded in taking the guns. The lines were now almost within pistol-shot. A second time, led on by the gallant Terrill and Major Perkins, the left wing moved forward against the foe, now swarming around the silenced guns, and with exultant cheers were pouring their destructive volleys into our line. On the left the enemy had forced back the One Hundred and Twenty-Third Illinois, turned the flank of the One Hundred and Fifth, and turned the guns on the National lines. The line again wavered, but the men were still unwilling to retreat. At length General Terrill, seeing that further resistance was hopeless, gave the order to fall back. The order was obeyed, and the men retired slowly at first, but, under the merciless fire of the Rebels, the ranks broke, the companies became scattered, and order was lost. General Terrill and Colonel Hall succeeded, however, in keeping together a few hundred men from different regiments, and these fell back from one position to another, until they finally formed in rear of a battery, which they supported until night closed the contest. Here fell General Terrill, mortally wounded. General Jackson had been killed early in the engagement; and Colonel Webster, commanding the other (thirty-fourth) brigade, having been mortally wounded, Colonel Hall, being the senior officer in the division, took command. Before the battle commenced Lieutenant-Colonel Tolles had been sent out in charge of a skirmish-line to protect the left flank, and did not rejoin the regiment until after it had fallen back from its first position, where the battery stood. Thus closed the first battle in which the regiment was engaged. How well they fought the long list of killed and wounded will show. Captain L. Dwight McKee was killed; five other officers were wounded, one (Captain Robert Wilson) mortally. Forty-seven men were killed and two hundred and twelve wounded; many of whom afterward died. The One Hundred and Fifth went into the battle eight hundred strong, so that thirty-three and one-third per cent. were struck.

After the battle the regiment, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Tolles, marched via Harrodsburg to Danville. Colonel Hall was here relieved of the command of the division by Brigadier-General Robert S. Granger, and took command of the brigade. At Danville the brigade was detached from the main army, and ordered to Munfordsville via Lebanon, where it arrived October 25th. It remained there up to the 30th of November, performing post and guard-duty. Time being had for drill at this place, great proficiency was made, and the regiment now became fairly organized. On leaving Munfordsville it marched to Glasgow; thence to Carthage, Tennessee.

After leaving Kentucky the brigade was ordered to Hartsville, on the Cumberland River, where a brigade of National Troops had just been captured by the Rebel John Morgan. Remaining at Hartsville but one night, the regiment marched thence to Bledsoe's Creek, about six miles from Gallatin, and encamped. While here the brigade was assigned to the Twelfth Division of the army, commanded by Brigadier-General J. J. Reynolds, and participated (with the division) in the pursuit of John Morgan, going as far as Cave City. The division was then ordered to return and join the main army at Murfreesboro'. This diversion after John Morgan prevented the One Hundred and Fifth from being engaged in the battle of Stone River. The division reached Stone River January 11, 1863, marching through Bowling Green and Nashville. A permanent assignment was here made, making Hall's (the second) and Reynolds's (the fifth) brigade, soon afterward the Fourth Division of the Fourteenth Corps.

The One Hundred and Fifth remained at Murfreesboro' until June, frequently accompanying the brigade and division in reconnoissances. On the 20th of March the brigade was engaged at Milton, about fourteen miles from Murfreesboro', with John Morgan's command, and inflicted on that Rebel chieftain a severe chastisement. This engagement had a most favorable effect upon the men of the One Hundred and Fifth, who fought at Perryville. They learned that by a judicious disposition of forces men may be able to stand their ground, though largely outnumbered. When the enemy made their assault, which was bold and impetuous, it was met with a steadiness that hurled them back in the utmost confusion; and a second and third attempt resulted in the same way. The engagement finally settled down into a spirited artillery duel, which lasted nearly the entire afternoon.

On June 24th the regiment broke camp to participate in the Tullahoma campaign. Colonel Hall and Lieutenant-Colonel Tolles were both left at Murfreesboro' sick, and Colonel Hall died there on the 10th of July. Lieutenant-Colonel Tolles obtained leave of absence, and returned to his home to recruit his health. Colonel Robinson (Seventy-Fifth Indiana) succeeded to the command of the brigade and Major Perkins to that of the regiment. In common with the rest of the army it shared in the fatigues of this brief campaign, which resulted in driving Bragg from his position at Tullahoma, and sending him across the Tennessee River. It lay encamped at University Mountain some time, during the warmest weather, at which Colonel King (Sixty-Eighth Indiana) was assigned to the command of the brigade.

On August 30th the regiment crossed the Tennessee River at Shellmound, and moved with the army to intercept Bragg and compel the evacuation of Chattanooga. Lookout Mountain was crossed September 11th and 12th. September 19th and 20th the regiment was engaged at Chickamauga. On Saturday (the 19th) it followed the fortunes of the day, meeting with no decided success or repulse, but did hard fighting. At two different times the regiment on its right gave way without apparent cause, and once also the regiment on its left fell back some distance, but it remained quiet, and was highly complimented by the brigade commander, who, besides being Colonel of the Sixty-Eighth Indiana, was Lieutenant-Colonel of the Nineteenth Regular Infantry, and an officer of mature years and extensive experience. On Sunday (the 20th) about three o'clock in the afternoon, in consequence of General Woods withdrawing his division from the lines, a gap was made, which the enemy quickly took advantage of. The troops of Brannan's division were flanked and fell back in confusion. Reynolds's division was posted next on the left of Brannan's. General Reynolds, seeing that his flank would soon be exposed and wholly unprotected, ordered Major Perkins to change front with his regiment and charge the Rebels on the flank as they advanced. The regiment was at this time in the second line of battle, and was lying down. The danger was imminent and the task anything but inviting. The Rebels on the right were cheering each other on, and evidently thought to follow up their success by throwing our entire line into confusion. At the word of command the regiment sprang to its feet, executed the change of front with as much precision as though on parade, and started forward with deafening yells, on the double-quick, to what seemed certain destruction. The suddenness of the movement, the thick growing underbrush, which prevented the enemy from seeing the comparatively few numbers advancing against them; the unevenness of the ground, which compelled the men to extend their front—all operated favorably. The desired object was produced, and the first line of the enemy was thrown back upon the second; upon reaching which the regiment halted and opened fire in gallant style, keeping it up for several minutes. Major Perkins soon discovered that his left flank was exposed, and he was compelled to withdraw by the right flank in haste. However, the onset of the enemy was checked and time given to General Reynolds to make such disposition as secured his right flank, and prevented further disaster to the army. This prompt movement of the One Hundred and Fifth was highly commended by General Reynolds at the time, and afterward by General Rosecrans. Its gallant commander, Major Perkins, was wounded in this charge and conveyed to the rear, and was rendered unfit for duty for nearly four months. The other casualties of the regiment were: Captain E. A. Spaulding, mortally wounded; three other officers seriously; and seventy-five men killed, wounded, and prisoners. Two of the largest companies were not in the engagement, being on detached duty, so that, in proportion to the number engaged, the casualties were very heavy.

Chattanooga was reached September 23d, and the regiment lay there with the army, doing heavy fatigue-duty and living on very short rations, until November 23d. Lieutenant-Colonel Tolles had rejoined the regiment (November 19th) from sick-leave. At this time General Grant had arrived at Chattanooga. General Sherman's army had arrived from Memphis, and General

Hooker's command (Eleventh and Twelfth Corps) lay in Lookout Valley. On the 23d of November the old Army of the Cumberland moved out of camp and took position in front of the town. While lying at Chattanooga the army had been reorganized, and the One Hundred and Fifth had been assigned to Colonel Vanderveer's (second) brigade, Brigadier-General A. Baird's (third) division, Fourteenth Corps. The One Hundred and Fifth took part in the maneuverings of the 23d and 24th, and on the 25th participated in the battle of Mission Ridge. Baird's division formed the extreme left of the Army of the Cumberland. The brigade was in the center of the division, and the regiment was in the center of the rear line, the brigade being formed in two lines. The troops of the first line of battle, as soon as they reached the top of the ridge, deployed rapidly and fought as skirmishers. The One Hundred and Fifth, as it reached the top of the ridge, halted in order to re-form the line, which had become somewhat disordered in climbing the hill. As soon as formed it moved forward, and was the first regiment of the division that moved, in regular line of battle, to the support of the troops of the first line, who were deployed. The other regiments came up promptly; and the entire division being massed in a small compass, it concentrated a heavy fire upon that portion of the Rebel army remaining on the ridge, which, after a few volleys, broke and ran down the opposite side of the ridge. The loss of the regiment in this engagement was comparatively slight. Joining in the pursuit to Ringgold, Georgia, it returned to Chattanooga and went into camp. Major Perkins rejoined the regiment in January, 1864.

After participating in a reconnoissance to Buzzard's Roost Gap, the regiment left camp and started on the Atlanta campaign with General Sherman. In this long and fatiguing campaign of many skirmishes and battles, the One Hundred and Fifth made a good record. Although not immediately engaged in any of the heavy engagements, its casualties were heavy.

On September 8th the regiment returned from Goldsboro', whither (with the army) it had gone to compel the evacuation of Atlanta, and went into camp at the latter place. Colonel Perkins obtained leave of absence while here, and Major Edwards took command. On the 3d of October the regiment joined in the pursuit of Hood, and followed him to Gaylesville, Alabama. This march was fatiguing, but the regiment was not engaged. From Gaylesville it went to Rome, Georgia, and thence to Kingston, where it arrived November 7, 1864; thence to Atlanta, destroying the railroads on their route. With the Fourteenth Corps the regiment moved east from Atlanta, on the railroad to Augusta, destroying the railroad as it advanced, until Covington was reached, a town about fifty miles east of Atlanta, when the column turned south, moving on Milledgeville, where it arrived November 23d. On the 25th the corps moved east, crossing the Oconee and Ogeechee Rivers, and passing through the towns of Sandersonville and Louisville, reaching a point midway between Millen and Waynesboro'. At this point the division was detailed to support the cavalry under General Kilpatrick. On this campaign the regiment was not engaged, but performed its whole duty.

January 20, 1865, found the One Hundred and Fifth again on the march, going up the west side of the Savannah to Sister's Ferry, where it crossed into South Carolina. Their duty was most fatiguing, tearing up and destroying railroads, building corduroy roads, etc. After crossing the Savannah River the corps passed through Barnwell C. H.; thence north, crossing the Charleston and Augusta Railroad and the North and South Edisto Rivers. The Saluda River was crossed six and the Broad twelve miles west of Columbia. Passing through Winnsboro', the Catawba River was reached and crossed February 27th; thence moving in a north-easterly direction, the Great Pedee was crossed March 7th and Fayetteville reached March 11th. Up to this point the campaign had been the severest the troops of this marching army had ever experienced. After leaving the Catawba River it rained every day; the roads were badly cut up, and had to be corduroyed in order to get the trains along. At times men and animals would cease their labors from sheer exhaustion; yet from fifteen to eighteen miles per day were made. The army rested four days at Fayetteville. Baird's division was detailed to guard the corps-trains, as it had the advance of the corps from the Great Pedee to Fayetteville. Goldsboro' was reached March 23d.

After a lapse of sixty-three days this great campaign was closed by an informal review of the troops as they came into town, passing before Generals Sherman and Schofield, and the familiar faces of the Twenty-Third Corps. The difference between this and the subsequent Washington review was very marked. Here was seen the army as it appeared in the field. Full twenty-five per cent. of the men were bare-footed; they were ragged and dirty; many in citizens' dress, and some in Rebel uniform. That at Washington may have dazzled by its pomp and precision of movements, but it was tame compared to that at Goldsboro'

After receiving clothing and other necessary supplies the army left Goldsboro' April 10th, and, after four days' skirmishing with the Rebel cavalry, arrived at Raleigh on the evening of the 13th. Before General Johnston had made any proposition for a cessation of hostilities a prompt pursuit had been ordered, and on the following morning the Fourteenth Corps took the advance toward Charlotte. It was finally halted at Cape Fear River, and remained there until Johnston had surrendered.

On April 29th the corps started for Richmond, where it arrived May 7th. In this march a break-neck race took place between the different army corps as to which should first reach Richmond. Although orders had been issued that the troops should not march more than fifteen miles per day, thirty-five miles were made on two or three different days. Several lives were lost by reason of this march.

On May 24th the regiment took part in the review at Washington; was mustered out at Washington June 3d, and started for Cleveland the same day, where it arrived on the 5th. It was paid off and disbanded on the 8th. It was the first regiment to leave Cleveland in 1862, under the call of August 4th of that year, and the first disbanded from that camp in 1865.

Eighteen men of the One Hundred and Fifth were promoted and held positions as commissioned officers of the regiment. Three men were discharged to accept appointments in other regiments.

Of the thirty-seven officers that went into the field with the regiment, but eleven returned to be mustered out with it. All but one (the Surgeon) had been promoted.

Of the one thousand and thirteen men who left Cleveland in 1862, only four hundred and twenty-seven were mustered out there in 1865.

About one hundred and fifty recruits had been received, and these were transferred to the Thirty-Eighth Ohio when the One Hundred and Fifth left Washington.

The regiment took up its line of march at Lexington, Kentucky, and halted at Washington City; marching, including its various reconnoissances, counter-marches, etc., more than four thousand miles.

106th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	GEO. B. WRIGHT			Discharged per S. O. 107, March 5, 1864.
Lt. Colonel	GUSTAVUS TAPPEL	Aug. 22, 1862	Nov. 11, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	LAURITZ BARENTZEN	" 22, "	" 11, "	On detached duty.
Surgeon	GEORGE A. SPIES	Sept. 4, "	" 11, "	Resigned February 21, 1863.
Do.	ADOLPH SCHROEN	Feb. 21, 1863	March 25, 1863	Resigned January 30, 1864.
Do.	EDGEE RINGLER	" 18, 1863	Feb. 18, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	ADOLPH SCHROEN	Oct. 24, 1862	Nov. 11, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	A. E. WESTBROOK	July 21, 1863	July 21, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Wm. Y. Gholson, Jr.	" 21, 1862	Nov. 11, 1862	Killed December 7, 1862.
Do.	Frederick Seib	Aug. 11, "	" 11, "	Resigned November 18, 1862.
Do.	Louis Knuffman	" 11, "	" 11, "	Discharged April 16, 1863.
Do.	Edward Lewis	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Vertessey	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Theodore Biese	" 20, "	" 11, "	Resigned March 13, 1863.
Do.	Herman Reintanz	" 22, "	" 11, "	Killed December 7, 1862.
Do.	M. Lichtendahl	Oct. 25, "	" 11, "	Resigned January 17, 1863.
Do.	Benj. Ruh	" 6, 1864	Oct. 6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frederick Banman	" 6, "	" 6, "	Resigned January 6, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Heydt	Nov. 18, 1862	March 25, 1863	Honorably discharged December 17, 1864.
Do.	Louis Antenrieth	Jan. 17, 1863	" 25, "	Honorably discharged October 15, 1863.
Do.	Ignatz Szabo	Dec. 7, 1862	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Philip Wich	" 7, "	" 25, "	Honorably discharged August 14, 1863.
Do.	Andrew W. Billing	March 21, 1864	" 21, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Schleyer	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Gottfried Broderson	" 21, "	" 21, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Wolfgang Schoenle	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter Weidner	April 2, "	April 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Luster	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Theodore Antenrieth	Sept. 26, "	Sept. 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Ittig	May 23, 1863	May 23, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	John H. Stalla	Aug. 11, 1862	Nov. 11, 1862	Resigned April 19, 1863.
Do.	Frederick J. Werner	" 7, "	" 11, "	Resigned January 5, 1865.
Do.	Julius Dexter	" 11, "	" 11, "	Resigned November 9, 1862.
Do.	Wm. Heydt	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Andrew W. Billing	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Louis Sontag	" 11, "	" 11, "	Resigned February 10, 1863.
Do.	Ignatz Szabo	" 20, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles Schleyer	" 10, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Philip Wich	" 22, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Louis Antenrieth	" 25, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Herman Seibel	Oct. 6, 1864	Oct. 6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter Hirschauer	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank Eiselein	Nov. 9, 1862	Nov. 20, 1862	Resigned January 27, 1863.
Do.	W. Joseph Potocke	Jan. 27, 1863	March 25, 1863	Discharged May 25, 1863.
Do.	Jacob Gessert	Dec. 7, 1862	" 25, "	Resigned March 18, 1864.
Do.	Gottfried Broderson	Nov. 18, "	" 25, "	Promoted; resigned as 1st Lieut. June 16, 1864.
Do.	Wolfgang Schoenle	Dec. 7, "	" 25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry Wiertel	Jan. 17, 1863	April 24, "	Resigned July 8, 1863.
Do.	Peter Weidner	Feb. 10, "	" 24, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Gustavus Bertgold	April 19, "	" 29, "	Killed June 30, 1863.
Do.	Charles Luster	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Died November 27, 1864.
Do.	Theodore Antenrieth	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Ittig	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas Worthington	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Julius Georgi	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Goas	April 2, "	April 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry Schwartz	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Julius C. Heintz	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Gortseisen	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Lauber	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Mauser	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Binsack	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Benj. Ruh	Aug. 11, 1862	Nov. 11, 1862	Resigned January 30, 1863.
Do.	Ferdinand Stammfeld	" 11, "	" 11, "	Resigned May 30, 1863.
Do.	Jacob Gessert	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Gottfried Broderson	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank Eiselein	" 22, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant November 9, 1862.
Do.	James Winterfeld	" 22, "	" 11, "	Resigned February 21, 1863.
Do.	Henry Wiertel	Oct. 25, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Stein	Aug. 18, "	" 11, "	Resigned November 3, 1862.
Do.	John Otter	Oct. 6, 1861	Oct. 6, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Christian Banman	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	W. Joseph Potocke	Nov. 3, 1862	Nov. 20, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wolfgang Schoenle	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles Luster	Jan. 30, 1863	March 25, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Theodore Antenrieth	Dec. 7, 1862	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Peter Weidner	Nov. 18, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Oskar Von Braubender	Dec. 7, "	" 25, "	Revoked.
Do.	Wm. Ittig	" 7, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Gerhardt Meyer	Nov. 3, "	" 25, "	Resigned July 12, 1863.
Do.	Theodore Falk	Feb. 21, 1863	" 25, "	Honorably discharged October 18, 1863.
Do.	Thomas Worthington	April 19, "	April 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Gortseisen	" 2, 1864	" 2, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Lauber	" 2, "	" 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Mauser	" 2, "	" 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Haikemper	" 2, "	" 2, "	Never mustered.
Do.	Wm. Binsack	" 2, "	" 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frederick G. Lutz	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles M. Trautman	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Julius Georgi	Dec. 12, 1863	March 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Louis Brundt	April 2, 1864	April 2, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

106th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was one of the last German regiments raised in Ohio, and was contemplated as early as July, 1862. During that month Governor Tod telegraphed to Lieutenant Gustavus Tafel, then of company A, Ninth Ohio, stationed at Tuseumbia, Alabama, informing him that he had been chosen to attempt the raising of another German regiment, south of the National Road, in Ohio. Lieutenant Tafel accepted the trust, but, from various reasons, was much delayed in reporting to the Governor at Columbus, Ohio. Although other enterprises of the same kind were in the field, before him, Lieutenant Tafel succeeded in recruiting and organizing, within a few weeks, eight companies, with an aggregate of seven hundred and thirty men, and went into Camp Dennison preparatory to the completion of the regimental organization.

On the 4th day of September the regiment was suddenly ordered to Covington, Kentucky, opposite Cincinnati, to be in readiness to aid in repelling the Rebel forces under General Kirby Smith, then threatening Cincinnati. On reaching its destination the regiment was stationed on the Lexington Pike, back of Fort Mitchel, and from thence marched over to the Tunnel Batteries, where a sight, at least, was had of the "boys in gray." The Rebel General Heath, directing a reconnoissance, encountered the National pickets near Latonia Springs, composed of a part of company E, One Hundred and Sixth Ohio, commanded by Lieutenant Schleyer, who, after a skirmish with the Rebels, fell back on the reserves. The Rebels also withdrew to their main body.

In this little affair it was discovered that the Austrian rifle, with which the regiment was armed, was almost useless, only six out of eighteen guns proving serviceable. Before other arms could be procured the regiment received orders to report to General Nelson, at Louisville, Kentucky. At this place the regiment was shifted from one brigade to another, on account of the unserviceable state of the guns; but finally marched with the Thirty-Ninth Brigade, Twelfth Division, of the Thirty-Ninth Army Corps, and reached Frankfort, Kentucky, on the 9th day of October. Through the intercession of General Dumont, commanding the division, the regiment was furnished with the regular army musket.

The emergency under which the regiment was ordered to take the field, before the completion of its organization, having passed, it was expected that it would be permitted to fill up its ranks to the legal maximum; but it was otherwise ordered, and the One Hundred and Sixth Ohio remained in the field as a battalion. Under this order a commission as Lieutenant-Colonel was issued to Colonel Tafel, with the promise that the regiment should be filled to its maximum at the earliest possible day.

At this time General John Morgan was disturbing that part of Kentucky, and the regiment participated in several expeditions against his forces. On the 24th of October it left Frankfort, and arrived at Bowling Green on the 4th of November. Here the division came under the command of, and was reviewed by, General Rosecrans.

The Thirty-Ninth Brigade was detached from the division, and left Bowling Green November 10th for Glasgow, Kentucky. The Rebels were operating in that section. Captain Hamilton, with eighty-six cavalry, attacked the National pickets on the Salina Road, composed of a detachment of company C, of the One Hundred and Sixth Ohio. One of the National outposts was killed, one wounded, and six taken prisoners. The reserve, of twenty men, came to the rescue, and after a spirited fight repulsed the Rebels with some loss.

A day or two later another engagement was had with Scott's Rebel Cavalry. The Rebels had two pieces of artillery. The National mounted infantry advanced on a reconnoissance, and after reconnoitering the enemy's position and firing a few rounds, succeeded in intimidating them to such an extent as to compel their withdrawal from the field.

Hartsville, Kentucky, was the next point to which the regiment moved, reaching that place on the 28th of November. On this march the regiment had several skirmishes with the enemy (Colonel Bennett's Rebel cavalry), and made a number of captures.

Colonel Scott, who had been commanding the Thirty-Ninth Brigade (the one in which the One Hundred and Sixth was brigaded), was relieved at this point, and a much inferior officer, Colonel A. Moore, of the One Hundred and Fourth Illinois Infantry, appointed in his stead. Under this last-named incompetent commander the disgraceful affair at Hartsville took place, on Sunday, December 7, 1862. The part taken in that disastrous affair by the One Hundred and Sixth Ohio is thus explained by Lieutenant-Colonel Tafel in his official report:

"We had not quite finished taking our position, forming the right of our line of battle, when our right wing was attacked with impetuosity by the enemy's infantry, which, meantime, had deployed in our front. This attack was preceded by the firing of their artillery, which, on account of its bad aim, produced no effect whatever. The men behaved very well, and our line advanced somewhat from our original position. One gun of the Thirteenth Indiana Battery now arrived on the ground, and was posted in the middle of our line, and to the left of my command. Colonel Moore then ordered the whole line to fall back to the rear of the gun, and he experienced some difficulty in making my left to conform to this order. Meanwhile I noticed a falling back on my right, which, I found, was occasioned by a part of the One Hundred and Eighth Regiment, in order to prevent a flank movement by the enemy's dismounted cavalry, who advanced on us through the woods. Thus the fight stood for some time, until our piece of artillery, after achieving fine results and blowing up one of the enemy's caissons, was forced to retire on account of its loss of men and horses, caused by its exposed position. The cannon was withdrawn to the top of a rocky hill, in the rear of the several camps, and from whence the other piece was playing across the river. Simultaneously Colonel Moore ordered the men to fall back upon that hill; the flanking movements of the enemy, however, compelled me to move the greater part of my command along the edge of the woods on the right, where the enemy had long tried to effect an opening. The train of the One Hundred and Eighth Regiment afforded me a fine opportunity to check the enemy's advance on our right flank, and there they were punished severely. When, however, the camps of the One Hundred and Eighth Ohio and One Hundred and Fourth Illinois Regiments had fallen into the hands of the enemy my position became untenable, and I fell back with the men upon the ridge occupied by brigade head-quarters. At that time Colonel Moore had already surrendered the battery and that part of the brigade that had rallied on the hill back of the camps. At this juncture men came riding up, wearing the blue army overcoat, waving their hats, and telling the men to surrender like the rest; but I cried out to the men not to listen, and that General Dumont was near with re-enforcements. The men accordingly made another stand, but were quickly surrounded by the then otherwise wholly disengaged aggregate force of the enemy. A part only made their escape across the road, and saved the regimental colors by tearing them off the staffs and hiding them on their persons. With one solitary exception, all the officers performed their duty unflinchingly, and the men, also, with very few exceptions, fought like veterans. Out of a force of about two hundred and fifty men, I had twenty-two killed, forty-two wounded, and ten missing, among them six officers. The Second (Rebel) Kentucky Infantry, with whom we had to contend, according to their own accounts, show a loss of seventy-five killed and wounded."

One company of the regiment, absent as escort to the provision-train, at Gallatin, escaped captivity. After five days' detention within the enemy's lines, during which they suffered greatly from hunger and cold, the prisoners were paroled, at Murfreesboro', and sent over the lines to General Rosecrans, at Nashville. General Rosecrans, after receiving a full report from Lieutenant-Colonel Tafel of the Hartsville affair, expressed his entire satisfaction with the conduct of the regiment and its commander on that occasion.

On the 12th day of January, 1863, the regiment was declared exchanged, and received marching orders from the paroled camps at Columbus, Ohio. It was ordered to Camp Dennison to collect the men, many of whom were absent on furlough, and to reorganize. On the 24th of March the regiment left for Lexington, Kentucky, and reported to General Gillmore, who ordered it to proceed to Frankfort, Kentucky, and relieve the One Hundred and Third Ohio.

Owen County was infested with numerous guerrilla bands. Lieutenant-Colonel Tafel determined, if possible, to put a stop to their depredations, and for that purpose organized expeditions against them, compelling the Rebel sympathizers around Frankfort to furnish the needed horses. Several desperate characters, who had long been the terror of the county, were captured and their bands dispersed and driven off. While at Frankfort the One Hundred and Sixth Ohio won praise from the citizens and State authorities, for the good conduct and soldierly bearing of both officers and men.

Receiving orders for Nashville, the regiment arrived at that city on the 4th day of May, 1863, and went into camp at Fort Morton. After remaining in this camp four weeks, the regiment was ordered to report to General Payne, at Gallatin, Tennessee, and by him ordered to guard the Louisville and Nashville Railroad from Nashville to the borders of Kentucky. This duty was thoroughly performed. The men of the One Hundred and Sixth Ohio fought the bushwhackers in their own way. "Still-hunting" was resorted to with success, until the wary rascals found that they were beaten at their own game, and left in disgust.

On one occasion only did the guerrillas get the better of the National men. On June 28, 1863, word was sent to head-quarters that a Union citizen, residing two miles from Bank Lodge, where the regimental head-quarters were, was being robbed by guerrillas. A mounted squad of a dozen men was dispatched after them, who followed the trail of the robbers all night, but finally lost it. On returning to camp the following day this squad was bushwhacked near Butler's Mills, and the Lieutenant in command (Lieutenant Bertgold) and one soldier killed and three wounded.

So galling did the vigorous rule of the One Hundred and Sixth become to the guerrillas that their leader, Captain Harper, offered a reward for the head of its commander. On several occasions Harper was so closely pressed that he was compelled to abandon his horse and take to the woods. On the 4th of December, 1863, a portion of the regiment, returning from a three-days' scout, came up with Harper's gang at Dry Fork, Sumner County, Tennessee, and though Harper himself escaped, the no less notorious Bill Berryman was killed. More than one hundred horses, besides other property, were captured from the guerrillas and turned over to the Quartermaster at Gallatin.

On the 4th of May, 1864, the regiment marched to Bridgeport, Alabama, and formed part of the garrison. Here the trained scouts were very effective among the Raccoon Mountains, where they had numerous encounters with the guerrillas of that region. On the 10th of June Lieutenant Luster's scouting party was ambushed, at Cane Creek, by Captain Caperton's guerrilla band. Two of the National scouts were badly wounded and three of the guerrillas, including Caperton, killed.

It was not until October, 1864, that the regiment was recruited to its maximum strength, although, if time had been afforded, it would have been completed in a few weeks from its entrance into the field. Two companies of maximum strength, under Captains Ruh and Bauman respectively, joined the regiment, thus completing its organization.

During the impetuous raid of General Hood the One Hundred and Sixth held on to its posts along the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, although for four weeks completely cut off from all communication with the main army at Nashville. In January, 1865, the regiment performed good service in preventing the Rebel forces under General Lyons from crossing the Tennessee River at Mud Creek.

The One Hundred and Sixth Ohio remained in camp at Stevenson, Alabama, performing valuable service, until June, 1865, when it was ordered up to Nashville for muster out, which event was consummated on the 29th of June, 1865, and the men were sent to their homes in Ohio.

107th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	SERAPIHM MEYER.....	Sept. 16, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Resigned February 8, 1864; disability.
Lt. Colonel.....	CHARLES MUELLER.....	Aug. 22, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned October 24, 1863.
Do.	JOHN S. COOPER.....	Nov. 17, " "	Nov. 17, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	GEORGE ARNOLD.....	Sept. 6, " "	Sept. 20, " "	Resigned August 21, 1863.
Do.	AUGUST VIGNOS.....	Aug. 21, 1863	Nov. 27, 1863	Resigned September 30, 1864.
Do.	EDWARD S. MEYER.....	Nov. 3, 1864	" 3, 1864	Resigned January 1, 1865.
Do.	F. C. SUHNER.....	March 18, 1865	March 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	C. A. HARTMAN.....	Aug. 20, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Killed at Frederickburg.
Do.	HUBERT SHOPP.....	June 9, 1865	June 10, 1863	Honorably discharged November 7, 1863
Do.	JOHN KNAUS.....	March 9, 1864	March 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	ANDREW WANNEWETCH.....	Sept. 4, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Resigned February 22, 1862.
Do.	JOHN KNAUS.....	Dec. 17, " "	Dec. 17, " "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	H. NIEDERMAYER.....	April 16, " "	April 16, " "	Resigned.
Do.	FRANZ SCHEL.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	CHARLES BRILLEN.....	Sept. 9, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Resigned November 30, 1862.
Do.	ROBERT F. KAHUS.....	Nov. 30, " "	April 22, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Peter Siederhorn.....	July 23, " "	Sept. 20, 1862	Resigned December 1, 1863.
Do.	August Dewaldt.....	" 28, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted; resigned March 23, 1864.
Do.	Gustave Buecking.....	Aug. 1, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned November 11, 1862.
Do.	Bernard F. Steiner.....	" 1, " "	" 20, " "	Died of wounds August 13, 1863.
Do.	John Schriink.....	" 18, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned November 30, 1862.
Do.	Lewis Traub.....	" 18, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned February 23, 1863.
Do.	Anthony Petersen.....	Sept. 6, " "	" 20, " "	Honorably discharged November 7, 1863.
Do.	August Vignos.....	" 6, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Richard Feredelle.....	" 6, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned.
Do.	Martin Vieback.....	" 6, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned November 14, 1862.
Do.	Edward S. Meyer.....	Nov. 11, " "	Dec. 12, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Samuel Surburg.....	" 14, " "	" 12, " "	Discharged December 16, 1863.
Do.	Jacob Hoes.....	Dec. 1, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned March 24, 1863.
Do.	Otto Weber.....	Nov. 20, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned March 5, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Koch.....	Feb. 23, 1863	April 22, 1863	Resigned June 4, 1863.
Do.	Otto Weber.....	April 5, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John M. Lutz.....	March 24, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned August 20, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Speyer.....	May 13, " "	May 25, " "	Resigned September 30, 1864.
Do.	Philip Setzler.....	Dec. 1, " "	Jan. 26, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Harmon.....	" 1, " "	" 26, " "	Discharged as 1st Lieutenant Sept. 1, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Fisher.....	" 1, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter F. Young.....	" 1, " "	" 26, " "	Honorably discharged December 11, 1864.
Do.	Jacob Lichty.....	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	F. C. Suhner.....	11, " "	11, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	George Billow.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Philip Wang.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Burkhart Guntner.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel Miller.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Brinker.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Anton Millert.....	March 18, 1865	March 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Braun.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.....	Daniel Umbradter.....	Aug. 1, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	R. Q. M.; resigned April 24, 1863; disability.
Do.	Jacob Hoes.....	July 30, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain December 1, 1862.
Do.	John J. Sebastian.....	" 30, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned March 5, 1863.
Do.	George Schaubs.....	" 28, " "	" 20, " "	Died October 27, 1862.
Do.	Samuel Surburg.....	" 30, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain November 1, 1862.
Do.	Otto Weber.....	Aug. 22, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Koch.....	" 18, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Pfaff.....	" 3, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned November 23, 1862.
Do.	John Sinning.....	" 5, " "	" 20, " "	Honorably discharged December 10, 1862.
Do.	Hamilton Starkweather.....	" 7, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned.
Do.	Wm. Speyer.....	" 15, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John M. Lutz.....	Oct. 11, 1862	Oct. 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John G. Winkler.....	" 27, " "	Dec. 12, " "	Died June, 1863.
Do.	Thomas F. Morskey.....	Nov. 25, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.	John H. Piers.....	Dec. 1, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned.
Do.	James E. Donner.....	Nov. 14, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out December 12, 1862.
Do.	Wm. T. Bechtel.....	" 30, " "	" 12, " "	Revoked.
Do.	John M. Knautl.....	" 1, " "	Jan. 20, 1863	Resigned July 26, 1862.
Do.	Philip Setzler.....	Dec. 10, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Harmon.....	" 12, " "	April 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Fisher.....	Feb. 1, 1863	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Peter F. Young.....	March 6, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Christian Schriener.....	Feb. 22, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned December 10, 1863.
Do.	Owen F. Browning.....	March 24, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned.
Do.	Jacob Lichty.....	April 24, " "	" 29, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	F. C. Suhner.....	May 13, " "	May 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Fischner.....	Dec. 1, " "	Jan. 26, 1864	Honorably discharged June 1, 1864.
Do.	George Billow.....	" 1, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Philip Wang.....	" 1, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Burkhart Guntner.....	" 1, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel Miller.....	" 1, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. Brinker.....	Jan. 15, 1864	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	A. G. Petersen.....	Aug. 11, " "	Aug. 11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Anton Millert.....	" 11, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph Braun.....	" 11, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harrison Flora.....	" 11, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John J. Houck.....	" 11, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Fustus Schouberg.....	" 11, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	John Stultz.....	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Philip P. Groselart.....	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Valentine Bickel.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Steiner.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Gerhard H. Albers.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Conrad Deubel.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Bowers.....	March 18, 1863	March 18, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Barnet F. Thomas.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment at Sergt. Major.
2d Lieutenant	John H. Piers.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Mohr.....	July 25, "	" 20, "	Resigned December 16, 1862.
Do.	John G. Winkler.....	" 31, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James E. Donner.....	Aug. 1, "	" 20, "	Promoted; mustered out December 12, 1862.
Do.	John M. Lutz.....	July 28, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Fisher.....	Aug. 16, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thos. F. Morskey.....	" 8, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philip Setzler.....	Sept. 6, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. F. Bechtel.....	July 28, "	" 20, "	Resigned December 8, 1862.
Do.	Wm. Martin.....	Aug. 14, "	" 20, "	Died in 1862.
Do.	John Peterssens.....	Oct. 11, "	Oct. 13, "	Resigned March 11, 1863.
Do.	Owen F. Browning.....	" 27, "	D. c. 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Christian Schriener.....	Nov. 14, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Peter F. Young.....	" 16, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Fischuer.....	" 25, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Bllow.....	" 30, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James C. Erb.....	Dec. 1, "	" 26, "	Resigned May, 1863.
Do.	Philip Wanz.....	" 10, "	June 20, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	A. G. Petterson.....	March 11, 1863	April 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Barkhart Gentner.....	" 6, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob Lichty.....	Feb. 23, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Fernando C. Sulner.....	March 24, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Sammel Miller.....	May 13, "	May 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John C. Brinker.....	Oct. 16, "	Dec. 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

107th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was composed almost wholly of Germans. It was organized August 25, 1862, at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland. It lay in camp at this place, drilling and preparing for the field, until the latter part of September, when it moved under orders, to Covington, Kentucky, opposite Cincinnati. This move was made with reference to an anticipated attack on Cincinnati by a Rebel force under General Kirby Smith, then operating within a few miles of Covington.

The regiment lay at Covington about one week, when it returned to Delaware, Ohio, but was shortly thereafter taken by rail to Washington, where it was engaged for nearly a month constructing breastworks and fortifications around and in the vicinity of the city.

In the early part of November the regiment marched to Fairfax C. H., Virginia, where it remained two weeks. Stafford C. H. was its next stopping-place. At this point it was assigned to the Second Brigade, First Division, Eleventh Army Corps, Major-General Sigel commanding. Remaining at Stafford C. H. only two weeks, it marched on a flanking expedition to the left and rear of Fredericksburg, with the purpose of co-operating with General Burnside's army in a second attack. This plan was frustrated by the wretched condition of the roads, and the whole army fell back to and around Brooks's Station, where it went into winter-quarters.

On April 29, 1863, the One Hundred and Seventh Ohio, with its brigade and division, moved across the Rappahannock to Chancellorsville, where, on the 2d and 3d of May, it took part in the battle of that name. The regiment was under the command of Colonel Meyer, and went into the engagement with the Eleventh Army Corps, under General Howard. The Eleventh Corps was completely flanked by Stonewall Jackson, and its lines were broken. In this disastrous affair the One Hundred and Seventh Ohio suffered terribly, losing two hundred and twenty officers and men, killed, wounded, and prisoners. The Surgeon of the regiment, Dr. Hartman, of Cleveland, Ohio, and several other officers, were killed.

On May 6th the regiment returned to its former camp at Brooks's Station, where it remained until June 12th. It then marched to Catlett's Station, Manassas Junction, and Centerville, its way to Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, the Rebel army under General Lee having invaded the State. Passing through Frederick City and Emmettsburg, it reached Gettysburg on the morning of the 1st of July. It was at once engaged with the enemy, taking position on the right wing. In the first day's fight the regiment and Eleventh Corps were compelled to fall back through the town of Gettysburg to Cemetery Hill, where a new line was formed and held during the remainder of the battle. In falling back to this place the regiment lost in killed, wounded, and prisoners, two hundred and fifty officers and men. In the second day's fight, in a charge made about five o'clock in the afternoon, it again lost heavily in killed and wounded. In this affair the regiment captured a Rebel flag from the Eighth Louisiana Tigers. Aside from slight skirmishing, it was not engaged in the third day's fight. Its total loss in the battle of Gettysburg—killed, wounded, and prisoners—was over four hundred out of about five hundred and fifty, rank and file, with which it entered.

A number of officers of the regiment were killed. Lieutenant-Colonel Mueller was wounded in the arm; Captain Vignos, of company II, had his right arm shot off; Captain Steiner, of company D, was shot through the bowels, from the effects of which he subsequently died; Captain Speyer, of company I, was shot through the right shoulder; Captain Fisher, company F, was shot through the breast and arm; Adjutant Young, who captured the Rebel flag, was also severely wounded; Lieutenant John Fischner, of company G, was shot through the thigh. A number of other officers were wounded, whose names can not be procured.

With one hundred and eleven guns, all that was left of the regiment, it joined in the pursuit of the Rebel army, following it to Hagerstown, and thence into Virginia, to Catlett's Station.

On August 1st the regiment sailed in transports to Folly Island, South Carolina, where it performed picket-duty until January, 1867. In that month it was taken in boats to Kiow Island, and from there waded over to Seabrook Island, and drove the enemy from that point. It returned to Folly Island, and remained there until the 7th of February, when it made a similar expedition across Seabrook Island to Jones's Island. This last movement was made to cover the operations of General Gillmore at Olustee, Florida.

On February 11th the regiment again returned to Folly Island, and on the 23d of the same month was taken on transports to Jacksonville, Florida. At this place it had a few skirmishes with the enemy, aside from which nothing of moment occurred. In July it was taken to Fernandino, when, after remaining about one month, it returned to Jacksonville.

On December 29th, the regiment was taken on transports to Devos Neck, South Carolina. While here it had several skirmishes with the enemy, and lost five men killed and some fifty wounded. From this point it marched to Pocotaligo Station, on the Savannah and Charleston Railroad; thence to Gardner's Corners, where, for some seven days, it did picket-duty. It then marched through (with some days' detention in building bridges, roads, etc.) to Charleston, South Carolina. Stopping at Charleston one day, it joined an expedition, under command of General Potter, for the purpose of ridding the vicinity of Rebel bands of guerrillas. Returning to Charleston it was placed on a gunboat and taken to Georgetown, South Carolina. It then did picket-duty until the 23d of March; then marched to Sumterville, met the enemy, defeated him, and captured three pieces of artillery, six horses, and fifteen prisoners. In this affair the regiment lost four men wounded. Marching to Singleton Plantation, it met and skirmished with the enemy, losing two men wounded. A few days later, near the same place, it captured a train of cars, which was destroyed, with thirteen locomotives and a large amount of provisions and ammunition.

On April 16, 1865, news was received of the surrender of Lee's and Johnston's armies; and amid great rejoicings over the auspicious event, the regiment marched back to Georgetown, South Carolina. Three weeks thereafter it was taken by steamer to Charleston, where it did provost-duty until July 10th, when it was mustered out of the service and sent home to Cleveland, where it was paid off and discharged.

108th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	GEORGE T. LIMBERG.....	Nov. 24, 1863	March 8, 1864	Honorably discharged May 16, 1864.
Do.....	JOSEPH GOOD.....	May 18, 1865	May 18, 1865
Lt. Colonel.....	GEORGE T. LIMBERG.....	Aug. 17, 1862	Oct. 28, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	CARLO PIERPHO.....	Feb. 3, " "	March 25, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	JOSEPH GOOD.....	March 21, 1864	" 21, 1864	Mustered out with regiment as Major.
Do.....	FREDERICK BECK, JR.....	May 18, 1865	May 18, 1865	Resigned January 15, 1863.
Major.....	FREDERICK W. EMBREG.....	Aug. 25, 1862	Oct. 28, 1862	Resigned July 31, 1863.
Do.....	JACOB A. EGLEY.....	Jan. 13, 1863	March 25, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	JOSEPH GOOD.....	July 31, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	FREDERICK BECK, JR.....	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Do.....	CHARLES LAUENSTEIN.....	May 18, 1865	May 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	A. ZIPPERLIN.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Oct. 28, 1862	Discharged December 9, 1862.
Ass't surgeon	T. C. HETTINGER.....	Sept. 4, " "	" 28, " "	Mustered out for promotion June 20, 1863.
Do.....	HUBERT STORCH.....	Dec. 24, " "	Jan. 29, " "	Resigned July 27, 1864.
Do.....	HENRY ULRICH.....	July 20, 1863	July 20, " "	Declined.
Do.....	J. S. FERGUSON.....	Aug. 4, " "	Aug. 4, " "
Do.....	J. C. MALLS.....	Sept. 26, 1864	Sept. 26, 1864	Resigned April 20, 1865.
Do.....	LEUCIS MILL.....	Dec. 7, " "	Dec. 7, " "
Do.....	ADOLPH MATZDORFF.....	May 15, 1865	May 15, 1865
Chaplain.....	ROBERT KOEHLER.....	June 14, 1861	June 14, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Carlo Pierpho.....	July 30, 1862	Oct. 28, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	Joseph Good.....	" 30, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Wm. K. tri-let.....	" 30, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned March 2, 1863.
Do.....	F. E. Humbach.....	Aug. 11, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned February 6, 1863.
Do.....	John U. Kreidler.....	" 11, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned February 10, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. Kottier.....	" 13, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned January 20, 1863.
Do.....	Philip Lautenschlager.....	" 13, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned February 8, 1863.
Do.....	Carl Von Heintze.....	Dec. 19, " "	Dec. 19, " "	Resigned February 24, 1863.
Do.....	Rudolph Heintze.....	" 30, 1863	March 8, 1864	Mustered out July 3, 1865, G. O. 26.
Do.....	Charles T. Hofner.....	" 10, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out July 3, 1865, G. O. 26.
Do.....	Frederick Beck, jr.....	Jan. 15, " "	April 13, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Jacob Dewald.....	Feb. 6, " "	" 13, " "	Killed May 14, 1864.
Do.....	Michael Strohmeyer.....	" 8, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned September 1, 1864.
Do.....	George Klein.....	March 2, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned November 10, 1864.
Do.....	Daniel Gusswiler.....	Feb. 24, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned January 13, 1864.
Do.....	Charles Lauestein.....	" 3, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Lewis Hebel.....	July 31, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned March 13, 1864.
Do.....	Christian Dilg.....	March 31, 1861	March 31, 1864	Declined.
Do.....	Wm. Doeger.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	David Treidman.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out June 19, 1865.
Do.....	Joseph Nessler.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out June 19, 1865.
Do.....	James H. Orr.....	April 19, " "	April 19, " "	Mustered out June 19, 1865.
Do.....	Michael A. McGuire.....	May 25, " "	May 25, " "	Resigned November 16, 1864.
Do.....	Hugo Elzner.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Killed in action.
Do.....	Wm. Guethner.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Commission returned.
Do.....	Frantz Fleischman.....	Jan. 20, 1865	Jan. 20, 1865	Killed April 10, 1865.
Do.....	Philip Schmidt.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Henry Schmetzer.....	May 2, " "	May 2, " "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Henry Urban.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out.
1st Lieutenant	Gustave Bauer.....	July 30, 1862	Oct. 28, 1862	Resigned January 18, 1863.
Do.....	Jacob Dewald.....	" 30, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George Klein.....	" 30, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Daniel Gusswiler.....	" 30, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Frederick Beck, jr.....	Aug. 5, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	J. Lewis Silberhorn.....	" 11, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned February 8, 1863.
Do.....	Michael Strohmeyer.....	" 15, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Charles Lauestein.....	" 1, " "	Dec. 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Frederick W. Von Strantz.....	Dec. 30, 1863	March 8, 1864	Honorably discharged June 19, 1865.
Do.....	Conrad Kress.....	" 30, " "	" 8, " "	Resigned August 27, 1864.
Do.....	Christian Dilg.....	July 30, 1862	Oct. 28, 1862	Resigned November 4, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. Doeger.....	Jan. 15, 1865	April 13, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Lewis Hebel.....	" 15, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Henry Huhn.....	Aug. 25, 1862	Oct. 28, 1862	Resigned January 15, 1863.
Do.....	David Treidman.....	Feb. 8, 1863	April 13, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Joseph Nessler.....	" 24, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James H. Orr.....	Jan. 30, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Hugo Elzner.....	March 2, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Michael A. McGuire.....	Feb. 6, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Herman Backhaus.....	" 8, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant May 8, 1863.
Do.....	Edmond Rodde.....	" 3, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned October 2, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. Guenther.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, 1864	Mustered out.
Do.....	John Bruck.....	July 31, 1863	Aug. 25, 1863	Resigned March 8, 1864.
Do.....	Frantz Fleischman.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Titus Hyer.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Philip Schmidt.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Henry Schwartz.....	April 19, " "	April 19, " "	Resigned September 22, 1864.
Do.....	Henry Schmetzer.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Louis Homann.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Mustered out.
Do.....	John Pausch.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Jacob Meyer, jr.....	Sept. 26, " "	Sept. 26, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.....	Henry Urban.....	" 25, " "	" 26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Henry Heinnueller.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Christopher Schumm.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Revoked.
Do.....	Phillip Uckle.....	Jan. 20, 1865	Jan. 20, 1865	Mustered out.
Do.....	George Kuntz.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Declined; commission returned.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Benjamin Parmelee	Jan. 20, 1865	Jan. 20, 1865	Mustered out July 3, 1865, G. O. 26.
Do.	Frederick Poschner	May 2, " "	May 2, " "	Mustered out July 3, 1865, G. O. 26.
Do.	George Ackerman	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Jacob Pfeiffer	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Frederick Koch	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out.
2d Lieutenant	Lewis Hebel	July 30, 1862	Oct. 28, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Herman Backhaus	" 30, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned May 8, 1863.
Do.	Herman Cronland	Aug. 1, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned February 19, 1865.
Do.	Michael A. McGinnis	" 6, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Bruck	" 11, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward H. Hussey	" 13, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned January 16, 1863.
Do.	Max Mosler	" 19, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned January 27, 1863.
Do.	Edmond Bodle	" 1, " "	Dec. 31, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Schwartz	Dec. 10, 1863	March 8, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Schmetzer	Jan. 2, 1864	" 8, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Kreidler	" 15, " "	April 13, " "	Resigned March 11, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Guenther	" 27, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frantz Fleischman	" 18, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Titus Hyer	" 6, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philip Schmidt	" 19, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Clason	" 8, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned November 3, 1864.
Do.	Chas. Kuhlencamp	" 3, " "	" 13, " "	Resigned October 19, 1864.
Do.	Louis Homann	July 31, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Commission returned; refused to muster.

108th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was a German organization, recruited under the call of 1862, in the counties Hamilton, Butler, and Franklin. It had partially completed its organization at Camden in August, 1862, when, in consequence of the alarm created by the Kirby Smith raid, it was hurried over the river to Covington, Kentucky. While at that place five companies were added to the regiment, making eight companies in all, numbering about a hundred men.

After the retreat of Kirby Smith the regiment was sent to Louisville, Kentucky, and thence marched via Shelbyville to Frankfort, Kentucky, that section being disturbed by John Morgan's Rebel guerrillas. While at Frankfort it made a night march, the object of which was to capture John Morgan and his followers, then encamped near Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The enterprise did not succeed, because of the failure of another National regiment to reach Lawrenceburg before Morgan could pass that village. Returning to Frankfort the regiment went into camp for a few days, and was then placed in General Dumont's division, and marched therewith to Bowling Green via Bardstown, reaching that place in ten days from the time started from Frankfort.

At Bowling Green the One Hundred and Eighth was re-brigaded, forming, with the One Hundred and Sixth (German) Ohio, and One Hundred and Fourth Illinois, the Thirty-Ninth Brigade, Twelfth Division, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Scott, of the Nineteenth Illinois. After being reviewed by General Rosecrans the brigade was ordered to Glasgow, and thence to Tompkinsville, where it remained but a few days. While waiting for its provisions train, momentarily expected to arrive from Cave City, the Rebels, under Generals Morgan, Hamilton, and Bennett, with artillery, and a greatly superior force, surrounded the command, but through the skillful leadership of Lieutenant-Colonel Scott, and the aid of some loyal Kentuckians it was successfully led into Hartsville without the loss of a man or wagon. This perilous march was made in a dark night, through by-roads known only to the loyal guide, and through the front of the enemy, who occupied all the roads leading to Tompkinsville. Hartsville, Tennessee, was next camping-ground, near which place the regiment met with a terrible disaster. Here Lieutenant-Colonel Scott was ordered to join his own regiment, and Colonel Moore, of the One Hundred and Fourth Illinois, took command. This change of commanders proved fatal to the regiment and the brigade. In spite of several warnings that General Morgan was meditating an attack on the 7th of December, Colonel Moore took no precautions whatever. The night before the attack a negro swam the Cumberland and informed Colonel Moore of Morgan's design, but that officer neglected to ascertain the truth of the statement or strengthen the picket-line.

At daybreak the camp was aroused by the approach of the Rebels in line of battle. The National pickets were captured without firing a gun. The enemy's shells soon began to drop into the camp. All was at once in the utmost confusion. Colonel Moore, utterly demoralized, failed to give his regimental officers the proper commands, and in consequence each officer did the very best he could with his own regiment. Captain Carlo Piepho was in command of the One Hundred and Eighth, and fought the Rebels resolutely for over an hour, in which time the regiment had forty-six killed and one hundred and sixty-two wounded, many of whom were hit by several bullets. Several officers were among the killed on the National side. The Rebel loss was four officers and seventy-four men. All the officers of the One Hundred and Eighth were captured except three. The National force in this affair was thirteen hundred infantry, a section of Captain Nicklin's battery, and a mounted squad of the Tenth Indiana Cavalry. The Rebels were reported to have had seven thousand infantry and ten guns. Notwithstanding this greatly superior force, it has since been understood that Morgan was on the point of retreating when Colonel Moore foolishly displayed his white handkerchief in token of surrender. This disaster was a source of much chagrin to the officers and men of the One Hundred and Eighth. A source of much comfort was found in a letter from General Roscerans, addressed to Captain Piepho, who commanded the regiment, dated at Murfreesboro', February 16, 1863, in which he said: "The conduct of the One Hundred and Eighth was proper and commendable." To have been in the "Hartsville affair," however, was long felt to be an unpleasant feature of a military record.

In due time the regiment was exchanged and ordered to assemble at Camp Dennison, Ohio. Under its new organization another company was added, and it took the field again at Frankfort, Kentucky. The regiment remained at this place for several weeks, and won golden opinions from the citizens and State authorities for its discipline and general conduct. At the solicitation of Governor Robinson and the citizens of Frankfort the order for its removal was twice revoked.

From Frankfort the regiment was ordered to Louisville; thence to Nashville, at which latter place it acted as a portion of the Reserve Corps, charged with the duty of guarding the railroad to Chattanooga, devoting four months to that arduous and monotonous service.

On the 6th of September the regiment went by rail to Stevenson, Alabama; thence, after a short stay, it marched to Battle Creek, thence to Anderson's Cross Roads, marching over roads made nearly impassable by the constant rains of that season. For two weeks it was engaged in repairing the road leading to Waldron's Ridge, which was finally crossed in November, and the regiment marched to Dallas, some fifteen miles above Chattanooga, and thence, after a stay of only one night, to Chattanooga. The camp of the regiment was placed on the extreme verge of Moccasin Point, at the foot of Lookout Mountain, as support to the Eighteenth Ohio Battery, which occasionally threw shells into the Rebel camp on the mountain. Although under fire of the Rebel guns on the mountain for ten days not a man or beast was struck. While at Chattanooga the One Hundred and Eighth was rebrigaded and made part of the Second Brigade, Second Division, Fourteenth Army Corps, Brigadier-General John Beatty commanding the brigade, and General Jeff. C. Davis the division.

On the morning of the 22d of November, with two days' cooked rations in their haversacks, the regiment crossed the Tennessee River, opposite the last spur of Mission Ridge. It crossed the Chickamauga the following night, and in the afternoon came on the Rebels as they were leaving Chickamauga Station. The Rebels did not stand a moment, but fled in such haste as to leave their dinners in the process of cooking, which the tired and hungry Germans of the One Hundred and Eighth devoured with much comfort. Following the Rebels in the direction of Graysville, the regiment was soon admonished by hostile shots that the enemy was disposed to dispute its further advance. A line of battle was soon formed, and a lively little engagement entered into, which resulted in a renewal of the Rebel retreat. A few men wounded, including an officer, were the only casualties of this affair.

The next day the line of march was taken up, and with rapid marches averaging two to five miles a day, the regiment was hurried toward Knoxville, then heavily pressed by the Rebel General Longstreet. On reaching the banks of the Little Tennessee, at Morgantown, orders were met to retrace its steps to Chattanooga, which was reached in due time. Four full weeks had been consumed in almost constant marching. For ten or twelve days many of the men were compelled to march barefooted over frozen ground, no extra shoes being on hand.

On the 27th of December the regiment went into winter-quarters near Rossville, Georgia. In February, 1864, the camp was moved to Lyne's Station, on the Knoxville Railroad. From that point the regiment took part in the reconnoissance from Ringgold to Tunnel Hill and toward Dalton. After this affair the regiment marched back to its old camp at Rossville, and was there joined by two new companies, recruited by Colonel Limberg, now reinstated to the command of the regiment.

On the 3d of May the One Hundred and Eighth took up its line of march for Ringgold, having sent all its superfluous baggage to Bridgeport. The Rebels had been driven from Tunnel Hill, and had retreated on Rocky Face Ridge and Buzzard's Roost. Now commenced the Atlanta campaign—one almost continuous scene of marching and fighting for four months. Under the command of Brigadier-General John G. Mitchell the One Hundred and Eighth participated in a series of successful bayonet-charges, driving the Rebels from strong positions. At Resaca, for four hours, the regiment stood firm amid a perfect hail-storm of bullets, and many of its brave men. On this bloody field it more than redeemed the unfortunate affair at Hartsville; and its commander, Colonel Limberg, attracted particular attention by his cool courage. At Rome, Georgia, another determined resistance by the Rebels was met and overcome, the enemy driven out of the place. The town was found to be completely sacked, and not left but a lot of fine smoking and chewing tobacco, on which the boys of the One Hundred and Eighth feasted to their hearts' content. At Acworth, at Big Shanty, at Kenesaw, and at all other memorable places of that march the regiment was in its proper place, battling for the right.

The Rebel army had changed commanders, and with its new leader, General Hood, commenced its desperate attack on Sherman's rear, tearing up the Chattanooga Railroad, attacking supply-trains, etc. To checkmate this, and save the communications of the National Army, a heavy force was needed as train-guards, scouts, etc. The One Hundred and Eighth Ohio was designated as one of the regiments to be sent back and used for this severe and arduous duty. Hardly a train passed between Marietta and Atlanta without an accident, or an attack by guerrillas and Rebel cavalry. A train thrown off the track was defended during one whole day, the enemy beaten off, by a sergeant and twenty men of the regiment. During four months only one train was captured, in a night attack near Big Shanty.

In August, 1864, a few companies of the regiment, then accidentally in Chattanooga, participated in the engagement in front of Dalton, with the Rebel General Wheeler's forces, then besieging that place. A charge was ordered and executed by the One Hundred and Eighth under Lieutenant-Colonel Good, with such effect as to compel the Rebels to abandon the siege.

The summer passed away without further notable action on the part of the regiment, although it was constantly engaged in arduous and responsible duty. In November, about the 9th or 10th of the month, the One Hundred and Eighth broke camp at Dalton, and, under orders, hastened to Atlanta to join the "march to the sea."

In the subsequent campaign of the Carolinas, at Bentonville, the One Hundred and Eighth acting with the Second Division of the Fourteenth Corps, saved the day by a heroic resistance, the fact of which is proudly inscribed on the banner of the regiment. Six different attacks by the Rebels were repulsed, although the men were compelled to jump over hastily-constructed breastworks four times to meet attacks from rear and front. After the last and sixth attack repulsed there were only two cartridges per man left, and perhaps the menacing glitter of the National bayonets, which the men had already fixed for a charge, deterred the Rebels from another attack, in which, by reason of their greatly superior force, they would most probably have been successful. It is but fair to mention that Major F. Beck commanded the regiment in this affair, Colonel Limberg being again absent at home. Lieutenant-Colonel Good returning from a leave of absence rejoined the command at Goldsboro'.

In the advance from Goldsboro', North Carolina, on the 10th of April, toward Smithfield, on the Neuse River, the One Hundred and Eighth formed the advance of the National forces, and was soon engaged with the Rebel cavalry. Every attempt of the Rebels to check the advance was frustrated by the impetuosity with which the men of the One Hundred and Eighth attacked them. The Rebels were driven fourteen miles from six o'clock A. M. until three P. M. In this engagement Captain Fleischman, of company H, was killed, and it is claimed, that as this was the last engagement of the war, that Captain Fleischman was the last National officer killed, and that the One Hundred and Eighth fired the last shot at the rebellion.

At Smithfield the news of Lee's surrender electrified the whole army, and on the next day Raleigh, North Carolina, was entered in triumph. In two days more Cape Fear River was reached, and the National army sat down on its banks, ready to cross it if the Rebel army under General Joe Johnston chose to prolong the contest.

At Holly Springs, North Carolina, the regiment tarried for a short breathing-spell, and then pushed on toward Washington City, not this time for the purpose of "saving the Capital," but to pass in review before President Johnson and the high authorities of the Nation. The march from Raleigh to Richmond, Virginia, one hundred and ninety-two miles, was made in six days and a half, without leaving a straggler in the rear. The march from Richmond to Washington was made with more leisure. Arrived at its destination the regiment encamped near Alexandria. After passing the grand review it was mustered out of the service, at Washington, on the 9th of June, 1865.

The One Hundred and Eighth was held in the highest esteem by brigade, division, and corps commanders, for its prompt action, discipline, and fighting qualities. During most of its service it belonged to the Second Brigade, Second Division, of the Fourteenth Corps. Its corps badge is the white acorn.

109th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

The organization of the One Hundred and Ninth Ohio was begun but not completed.

110th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	J. WARREN KEIFER	Sept. 30, 1862	Dec. 26, 1862	Brevet Brigadier-General Vols. Oct. 19, 1864.
Lt. Colonel	WM. N. FOSTER	" 13, "	Oct. 14, "	Resigned December 24, 1863.
Do.	OTHO H. BINKLEY	Jan. 1, 1864	Jan. 10, 1864	{ Brevet Colonel U. S. Volunteers October 19, 1864; mustered out with regiment.
Major	OTHO H. BINKLEY	Sept. 1, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. S. McELWAIN	Jan. 1, 1864	Jan. 10, 1864	Killed May 3, 1864.
Do.	AARON SPANGLER	June 25, "	June 25, "	{ Brevet Lieut. Col. U. S. Volunteers October 19, 1864; mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	S. PIXLEY	Sept. 4, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Resigned May 11, 1863.
Do.	R. R. McCANDLESS	May 1, 1863	July 10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	R. R. McCANDLESS	Aug. 26, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	E. C. OWENS	" 20, "	" 14, "	Honorably discharged April 20, 1864.
Do.	H. H. BISHOP	July 20, 1863	July 20, 1863	"
Do.	A. W. PINKERTON	April 1, 1864	April 1, 1864	Resigned; discharged August 20, 1864.
Do.	JOHN W. MACK	" 29, "	" 29, "	Commission returned.
Do.	WM. H. PARR	July 13, "	July 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	E. PRISON EBERSOLE	Sept. 5, "	Sept. 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	JAMES HARVEY	Feb. 11, 1862	Feb. 11, 1863	Resigned November 24, 1863.
Do.	LUCIUS W. CHAPMAN	" 18, 1864	" 18, 1864	Resigned.
Do.	MILTON J. MILLER	Aug. 8, "	Aug. 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	WM. D. ALEXANDER	July 7, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Honorably discharged December 15, 1863.
Do.	Jason Young	" 7, "	" 14, "	Resigned December 18, 1862.
Do.	Nathan S. Smith	" 14, "	" 14, "	Honorably discharged August 20, 1863.
Do.	WM. S. McELWAIN	" 15, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	WM. R. MOORE	" 15, "	" 14, "	Died February 27, 1863.
Do.	Aaron Spangler	" 15, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joseph C. Ullery	" 16, "	" 14, "	On detached duty.
Do.	Joseph E. Snodgrass	Sept. 1, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Luther Brown	" 10, "	" 14, "	Mustered out June 26, 1865.
Do.	Joseph B. Van Eaton	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Honorably discharged December 28, 1864.
Do.	Elias A. Shephard	Dec. 18, 1862	Dec. 26, 1862	Honorably discharged March 13, 1863.
Do.	WM. L. CROON	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Honorably discharged as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alexander Trimble	Jan. 1, "	Jan. 10, "	Died of wounds October 4, 1864.
Do.	Charles M. Gross	March 21, "	March 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. A. HATHAWAY	" 30, "	" 30, "	Killed July 9, 1864.
Do.	John M. Smith	" 30, "	" 30, "	Died of wounds May 25, 1864.
Do.	Joseph McKnight	June 14, "	June 14, "	Died of wounds as 1st Lieutenant May 25, '64.
Do.	WM. D. SHELLABARGER	July 22, "	July 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry H. Stevens	" 22, "	" 22, "	Killed in action April 2, 1865.
Do.	Wesley Devenney	Aug. 8, "	Aug. 8, "	Died of wounds October 25, 1864.
Do.	George P. Boyer	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. L. SHAW	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Mustered out June 26, 1865.
Do.	Elam Harter	Jan. 31, 1865	Jan. 31, 1865	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Thomas J. Weakley	April 8, "	April 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John F. Sherer	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. H. HARRY	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
1st Lieutenant	Joseph B. Van Eaton	Sept. 15, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Albert M. Stark	Aug. 15, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M.
Do.	WM. L. CROON	" 15, "	" 14, "	Honorably discharged March 23, 1864.
Do.	Elias A. Shephard	" 7, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	WM. L. SHAW	" 4, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	WM. A. ORR	" 8, "	" 14, "	Resigned February 22, 1864.
Do.	David Moore	" 15, "	" 14, "	Resigned November 25, 1862.
Do.	Charles M. Gross	" 15, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry Y. Rnsh	" 16, "	" 14, "	Discharged October 6, 1863.
Do.	John Cannon	" 25, "	" 14, "	Honorably discharged February 5, 1864.
Do.	WM. A. HATHAWAY	July 15, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John M. Smith	April 9, 1863	April 9, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alexander Trimble	Nov. 25, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David Langston	Dec. 15, "	" 26, "	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel Billings	April 7, 1863	April 7, 1863	Declined.
Do.	James A. Fox	Dec. 18, "	May 15, "	Killed November 27, 1863.
Do.	Joseph McKnight	Nov. 25, "	March 10, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas J. Weakley	March 21, 1864	" 21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George P. Boyer	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	WM. D. SHELLABARGER	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Miller	" 21, "	" 21, "	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Paris Horney	" 21, "	" 21, "	Died in prison at Charleston, S. C.
Do.	Darius H. Moon	" 21, "	" 21, "	Resigned November 25, 1864.
Do.	Henry H. Hackett	" 21, "	" 21, "	Revoked.
Do.	Thomas S. Clark	" 30, "	" 30, "	Honorably discharged March 22, 1864.
Do.	Henry H. Stevens	April 12, "	April 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wesley Devenney	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John F. Sherer	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joshua S. Deetes	June 14, "	June 14, "	Died of wounds September 22, 1864.
Do.	J. Mills Conwell	July 22, "	July 22, "	Declined; mustered out with reg't as 1st Lt.
Do.	George D. McMillen	" 22, "	" 22, "	Died of wounds August 21, 1864.
Do.	WM. H. HARRY	Aug. 8, "	Aug. 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	WM. L. ROBERTSON	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Discharged as 2d Lieutenant November 2, '64.
Do.	WM. A. JONES	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Honorably discharged January 19, 1865.
Do.	John E. Miller	" 3, "	" 3, "	May 6, '64, pris. war; mustered out with reg't.
Do.	Robert W. Wiley	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Honorably discharged May 15, 1865.
Do.	Edward D. Simms	" 9, "	" 9, "	Honorably discharged January 4, 1865.
Do.	Elam Harter	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Albert A. Hubbard	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Edward S. Dukeshive.....	Jan. 31, 1865	Jan. 31, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David S. French.....	31, "	31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Erastus Layton.....	April 8, "	April 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Amos Shaw.....	8, "	8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Dock W. Richardson.....	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Milton H. Myers.....	31, "	31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Thomas J. Weakley.....	July 15, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George P. Bover.....	Aug. 5, "	14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. D. Shellbarger.....	7, "	14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph McKnight.....	8, "	14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank DeHaven.....	15, "	14, "	Discharged March 8, 1863.
Do.	Alexander Trimble.....	15, "	14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Miller.....	16, "	14, "	Resigned April 18, 1864.
Do.	David Langston.....	18, "	14, "	Resigned January 2, 1863.
Do.	Paris Ilorney.....	25, "	14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John M. Smith.....	Nov. 5, "	April 9, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James A. Fox.....	25, "	Dec. 3, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Darius H. Moon.....	Jan. 2, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry H. Hackett.....	April 9, "	April 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas S. Clark.....	Dec. 18, 1862	May 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John F. Sherer.....	April 12, 1864	April 12, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joshua S. Deeters.....	12, "	12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. Mills Conwell.....	12, "	12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	D. J. Martin.....	12, "	12, "	Declined.
Do.	W. H. Locke.....	12, "	12, "	Honorably discharged January 4, 1865.
Do.	George D. McMillen.....	12, "	12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	W. L. Robertson.....	12, "	12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Harry.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. Jones.....	July 22, "	July 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John E. Miller.....	22, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert W. Wiley.....	22, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward D. Simes.....	22, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Eliam Harter.....	22, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Albert A. Hubbard.....	22, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward S. Dukeshive.....	Aug. 8, "	Aug. 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David S. French.....	23, "	23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Frank.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 18, "	Discharged March 1, 1865.
Do.	Erastus Layton.....	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Amos Shaw.....	9, "	9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Haines.....	9, "	9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Dock W. Richardson.....	24, "	24, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton H. Myers.....	24, "	24, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry L. Biddle.....	24, "	24, "	Mustered out with regiment.

110th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Piqua, Ohio, on the 3d of October, 1862. On the 19th of October the regiment moved by railroad to Zanesville, thence by steamer to Marietta, and from there by railroad to Parkersburg, Virginia. On the 3d of November it moved to Clarksburg, where it remained until the 25th, and then took the car for New Creek, where it arrived the next day. Here it remained in camp, fortifying, drilling and performing guard and picket-duty until December 13th, when it marched via Burlington and Petersburg to Moorfield, Virginia.

Three hundred men from the One Hundred and Tenth joined an expedition to move in the direction of Winchester, Virginia, while the remainder of the regiment moved with another expedition in the direction of Romney. The main portion of the regiment arrived at Winchester, without serious interruption, on the 1st of January, 1863, and joined the detachment which had arrived a week previous. While at Winchester the regiment was assigned to the First Brigade, Second Division, Eighth Army Corps, and companies A and D were detailed as provost guards. The regiment was employed in guard and picket-duty, in drilling, fortifying, and in making raids and reconnoissances. At one time a detachment went to Front Royal and captured a large amount of stores; at another time a detachment proceeded to Summit Point, and other places, dispersing bands of Rebels and destroying stores; and in the early part of May the regiment marched to New Market and returned.

On the 13th of June the regiment was moved out to Kernstown, and engaged Lee's advance. This was the first time the regiment was under fire, but it fought bravely, disputing every foot of ground against a greatly superior force. On the morning of the 14th the One Hundred and Tenth occupied a slight earthwork, about three-fourths of a mile from the main fort. In the afternoon the enemy opened on it with twenty-six pieces of artillery, and advanced in strong columns to the assault. The regiment held the works until it was driven out at the point of the bayonet by an overwhelming force. It attempted to retire in the night but was met by the enemy, and a two hours' engagement ensued, in which the regiment succeeded in cutting its way through, and marched to Harper's Ferry. On the 16th of June the One Hundred and Tenth crossed the river and encamped on Maryland Heights; on the 1st of July went by canal to Georgetown, D. C., then to Tenallytown, then to Washington, and by railroad from there to Frederick City, Maryland. At this place the regiment was assigned to the Second Brigade, Third Division, Third Army Corps, Army of the Potomac. It marched in pursuit of Lee through Williamsport, Loudon, and Upperville, to Manassas Gap, where it skirmished with the enemy, and finally reached Fox's Ford, on the Rappahannock, on the 1st of August. On the morning of the 15th the regiment left the Ford, took the cars at Bealton Station for Alexandria, and there embarked on the steamship Mississippi for New York. The regiment camped for a while on Governor's Island, and then moved to Carroll Park, South Brooklyn. Here the regiment was treated with much kindness, and received many favors from the citizens of Brooklyn.

On the 6th of September the regiment returned via Alexandria to Fox's Ford, and marched from there to Culpepper, Virginia, in charge of an ammunition-train. On the 10th of October it moved out to meet an attack, and remained under arms all night, and the next day marched across the Hazell and Rappahannock Rivers, through Centerville, Bristow, Catlett's Station, and at last reached and occupied the first line near the Rappahannock. On the 7th of November the regiment crossed the river skirmishing with the enemy, and the next morning made a reconnoissance and captured between thirty and forty prisoners. In the afternoon the One Hundred and Tenth, in the advance of Brandy Station, was severely shelled by the artillery, and was the first to occupy the enemy's position. Upon breaking camp at Brandy Station, four companies of the regiment were detached as train-guard, and the others took a prominent part in the battle of Locust Grove, losing five killed and twenty wounded. The regiment returned to Brandy Station December 3d, and occupied winter-quarters.

During the month of March, 1864, the One Hundred and Tenth became a part of the Second Brigade, Third Division, Sixth Army Corps. On the 4th of May the regiment crossed the Rapidan at Germania Ford, and the next day took a position on the extreme right of the National line at the Wilderness. After brisk skirmishing it advanced to charge and drove the enemy to their works. The regiment held its position till after dark, and only fell back when its ammunition was exhausted. The loss sustained was one officer killed and six wounded, and eighteen men killed, eighty-two wounded, and eleven missing. The next day the One Hundred and Tenth occupied the second line, but was much exposed to an artillery-fire. In the evening, the brigade on the right being routed, the regiment fell back about a mile, and held the new position all day on the 7th, and in the evening fell back through Chancellorsville to the vicinity of Spottsylvania C. H. Here the regiment was engaged in fortifying and skirmishing until the 14th, when it marched toward Spottsylvania, waded the Nye River after dark, and occupied the enemy's works, from which they had been driven.

The One Hundred and Tenth was in several reconnoissances, almost constantly engaging the enemy, marching via Guinea Station and Chesterfield Station, crossing the Pamunky and throwing up fortifications on Dr. Palmer's farm. On the 1st of June the regiment was engaged at Coal Arbor. In the assault on the Rebel works on the 3d, the regiment was in the front line, and was ordered to continue the advance after the line halted, which it did, and held an exposed position for two hours, when it was withdrawn. During the entire day the regiment was exposed to a heavy fire, losing one commissioned officer and four men killed and thirty-four men wounded. On the 14th the regiment left the works, crossed the Chickahominy, passed Charles City C. H., and at Winona Landing embarked on the transport Star, landed at Point of Rocks, and marched to Bermuda Hundred.

In the evening of the 19th it crossed the Appomattox, and arrived near Petersburg. After resting a day it marched to the Norfolk and Petersburg Railroad, and charged the enemy's line, driving it in; and a few days later moved to the Petersburg and Weldon Railroad. On the 30th of June the regiment commenced its return, and on the 2d of July occupied its former position near Petersburg. It embarked on the transport City of Albany for Baltimore, where it arrived on the 8th, and took the cars for Monocacy Junction.

It was placed in position on the south side of the Monocacy, and ordered to advance, which it did against a destructive fire of artillery and musketry, the former coming obliquely from front and rear and directly from the right. The regiment only fell back when it was pressed by overwhelming numbers and when in imminent danger of annihilation. It retired to Ellicott's Mills, where it arrived about noon on the 10th of July. In this engagement the regiment lost one officer killed, four wounded, and two captured; three men killed, seventy wounded, and fifty missing. On the 11th the regiment went to Baltimore and camped at Druid Hill Park until the 14th, when it took the cars for Washington, and the day after marched through Tenallytown, waded the Potomac near Edwards's Ferry, passed through Snicker's Gap to the Shenandoah, and skirmished with the enemy. On the 20th the regiment crossed the Shenandoah, rested awhile, re-crossed the river, marched all night and arrived at Washington again on the 23d. Three days later it broke camp and marched through Hyatt's Town, Monocacy Junction, Frederick City, Maryland, and Harper's Ferry to Healltown, arriving on the 29th, and on the 30th fell back through Harper's Ferry to Frederick City, Maryland. On the 3d of August the One Hundred and Tenth resumed the march through Buckeyston, across the Monocacy at Monocacy Mills, and then moved by cars from Monocacy Junction to Bolivar and marched from there to Healltown. On the morning of the 10th it marched through Charlestown, Newtown, and Middletown, arriving at Cedar Creek on the 12th. Here it was engaged in several skirmishes, and on the 16th marched as train-guard to Charlestown.

It fell back to Bolivar Heights, closely pursued by the enemy, but again advanced to Charlestown, and on the 29th, in an engagement, completely routed the Rebels. On the 3d of September the regiment marched to Clifton Farm and fortified. On the 19th it crossed the Opequan and engaged in the battle of Winchester, charging the enemy three times and being among the first to occupy the heights at Winchester. The regiment joined the pursuit of the Rebels, engaging them at Fisher's Hill, capturing four pieces of artillery and one hundred prisoners. It again pursued as far as Mount Crawford, and returned to Harper's Ferry. On the 6th of October it moved to Strasburg, and from there to the vicinity of Front Royal. On the 13th it marched to Ashby's Gap, and the next day returned and encamped at Cedar Creek. On the morning of the 19th, when the Eighth and Nineteenth Corps were driven back, the Sixth Corps, with the One Hundred and Tenth Ohio in the front line, was formed to arrest the advancing Rebels. Frequent stands were made, and in the final effort, which resulted in the Rebel rout, no regiment took a more active part than the One Hundred and Tenth. It lost two officers wounded, one of whom died in a few days after, five men killed and twenty-seven wounded, and one officer and one man missing. In the evening the regiment occupied the camp from which it had been driven in the morning, and continued to occupy it till November 9th, when it encamped one mile from Kernstown and built winter-quarters.

On the 3d of December it marched to Stebbins's Station, took cars for Washington, proceeded thence to City Point by steamer, took cars near midnight on the 6th, and arrived at the front at daylight. It occupied the line east of the Weldon Railroad and proceeded to build winter-quarters. On the 9th of February, 1865, it took position between Forts Fisher and Welch and again erected winter-quarters.

On the 25th of March the entire brigade assaulted the strongly-intrenched picket-line, and after a second charge, under a severe fire, carried it, capturing a large number of prisoners and small arms. An assault was made on the enemy's works before Petersburg on the 2d of April, just before daybreak, and before it was fairly light the Sixth Corps was in possession of the fortifications and many prisoners and guns. The regiment pursued the enemy, routing him at Saylor's Creek, and continuing the pursuit until the surrender of Lee. The regiment marched to Burksville Junction; and on the 17th, at the presentation of captured flags to Major-General Meade, the One Hundred and Tenth, having captured more flags than any regiment in the corps, was selected as a guard of honor to escort them to General Meade's head-quarters. The regiment proceeded to Richmond, Virginia, and while passing through the city was reviewed by General Halleck, and from there it marched to Washington City, where it was reviewed by the President and Cabinet, at the Executive Mansion.

During its term of service the regiment was in twenty-one engagements, and sustained a loss in killed, wounded, and missing, of seven hundred and ninety-five men. It was mustered out at Washington City, on the 25th of June, 1865, and was discharged at Tod Barracks, Columbus, Ohio

111th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JOHN R. BOND.....	Aug. 28, 1862	Sept. 6, 1862	Honorably discharged October 18, 1864.
Do.....	ISAAC R. SHERWOOD.....	Sept. 8, 1864	" 8, 1864	Transferred to 133d O. V. I.
Lt. Colonel.....	B. W. JOHNSON.....	Aug. 17, 1862	" 6, 1862	Resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.....	MOSES R. BRADLEY.....	Feb. 1, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Honorably discharged December 29, 1863.
Do.....	ISAAC R. SHERWOOD.....	Jan. 1, 1864	" 2, 1864	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	THOMAS C. NORRIS.....	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Major.
Major.....	MOSES R. BRADLEY.....	Aug. 28, 1862	" 6, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	ISAAC R. SHERWOOD.....	Feb. 1, 1863	Feb. 14, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	THOMAS C. NORRIS.....	Jan. 1, 1864	" 2, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	BENJ. F. SOUTHWORTH.....	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Mustered out as Captain May 15, 1865.
Do.....	HENRY J. McCORD.....	May 31, 1865	May 31, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon.....	LYMAN A. BREWER.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Sept. 6, 1862	Detached as Brigade Surgeon.
Ass't Surgeon.....	E. G. CLARK.....	" 27, " "	Aug. 27, " "	Declined.
Do.....	D. H. SILVER.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Discharged June 30, '64; com'd in U. S. C. Art. Died June 27, 1864.
Do.....	JOHN W. MOCK.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	A. HOLLINGTON.....	Sept. 19, 1862	Sept. 19, 1862	Honorably discharged September 24, 1864.
Chaplain.....	T. H. HINES.....	May 31, 1865	May 31, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John V. Beery.....	July 17, 1862	Sept. 19, 1862	Resigned March 13, 1863.
Captain.....	Thomas C. Norris.....	Aug. 25, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Albert A. Archer.....	" 4, " "	" 19, " "	Discharged June 15, 1863.
Do.....	John A. McGowen.....	" 6, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out for promotion March 24, 1864.
Do.....	Benj. F. Southworth.....	" 9, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	John E. Hill.....	" 12, " "	" 19, " "	Honorably discharged January 13, 1865.
Do.....	Henry J. McCord.....	" 15, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	John W. Smith.....	" 15, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John Yeager.....	" 15, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned February 7, 1864.
Do.....	D. W. H. Day.....	" 25, " "	" 19, " "	Honorably discharged May 19, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. H. Beal.....	March 13, 1863	April 29, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Patrick H. Dowling.....	June 15, " "	July 20, " "	On detached duty.
Do.....	George Van Blaricum.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, 1864	Mustered out February 24, 1865.
Do.....	Daniel F. Waltz.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant March 22, 1864.
Do.....	Solomon Callender.....	April 12, " "	April 12, " "	Discharged January 11, 1865.
Do.....	Benj. F. Hollister.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.....	Wm. Beery.....	June 14, " "	June 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Jeremiah Bowlin.....	Nov. 18, " "	Nov. 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Omar P. Norris.....	Nov. 17, " "	Nov. 17, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wesley S. Thurston.....	May 31, 1865	May 31, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.....	Finlay Strong.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Sept. 6, 1862	Resigned February 26, 1863.
Do.....	Isaac R. Sherwood.....	" 20, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Joseph H. Jennings.....	July 17, " "	" 19, " "	Discharged February 9, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. H. Beal.....	" 25, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Rufus Bates.....	Aug. 4, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned December 25, 1863.
Do.....	George Van Blaricum.....	" 6, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Daniel F. Waltz.....	" 9, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned March 22, 1864.
Do.....	Solomon Callender.....	" 12, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Mordecai P. Bean.....	" 15, " "	" 19, " "	Discharged June 5, 1863.
Do.....	Patrick H. Dowling.....	" 12, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Daniel W. Poe.....	" 14, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned March 16, 1864.
Do.....	Joseph O. Allen.....	" 25, " "	" 19, " "	Discharged November 21, 1863.
Do.....	Benj. F. Hollister.....	Feb. 26, 1863	May 13, 1863	Mustered out.
Do.....	Henry T. Bissell.....	" 1, " "	March 13, " "	Died September 10, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. Beery.....	" 9, " "	July 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Omar P. Norris.....	March 13, " "	May 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George W. Moore.....	June 5, " "	July 20, " "	Resigned September 28, 1864.
Do.....	Jeremiah Bowlin.....	" 15, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wesley S. Thurston.....	Sept. 10, " "	Oct. 29, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Sylvester S. Hoadley.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, 1864	Discharged.
Do.....	Benj. B. Woodcox.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Resigned.
Do.....	Rudolph Williams.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Detached at own request.
Do.....	James R. Thompson.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John T. Birdseye.....	April 12, " "	April 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James M. Woodruff.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Leander R. Hutchinsou.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Killed May 14, 1864.
Do.....	George B. McCord.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Julius D. Bolles.....	June 14, " "	June 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles Baker.....	Nov. 26, " "	Nov. 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Fernando Bennett.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Killed in action at Franklin, Tennessee.
Do.....	Myron G. Brown.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Isaac Kintigh.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles French.....	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Gustavus F. Smith.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out as 2d Lieutenant May 15, 1865.
Do.....	J. H. Cleland.....	May 2, " "	May 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Lewis Deinst.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant.....	Orrin P. Tracey.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Sept. 19, 1862	Resigned March 4, 1863.
Do.....	Moses Dubbs.....	July 17, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned January 6, 1863.
Do.....	Samuel Smith.....	Aug. 17, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned February 6, 1863.
Do.....	John H. Campbell.....	" 6, " "	" 19, " "	Honorably discharged January 31 1864.
Do.....	Elijah Carnes.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned November 26, 1862.
Do.....	Hiram H. Meeks.....	" 13, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned January 18, 1864.
Do.....	George W. Moore.....	" 15, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Orristen Holloway.....	" 14, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned December 17, 1863.
Do.....	John Bader, Jr.....	" 14, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned November 17, 1863.
Do.....	Jeremiah Bowlin.....	" 25, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Henry T. Bissell.....	Nov. 17, " "	Dec. 26, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	James A. Chilcote.....	Nov. 26, 1862	Dec. 30, 1862	Resigned December 7, 1863.
Do.	Benj. B. Woodcox.....	Dec. 17, " "	May 13, 1863	Resigned March 12, 1864.
Do.	Omar P. Norrils.....	Jan. 12, 1863	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Sylvester S. Hoadley.....	Feb. 6, " "	March 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Beery.....	March 4, " "	May 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Lewis.....	Feb. 1, " "	" 13, "	Honorably discharged November 21, 1863.
Do.	James R. Thompson.....	March 13, " "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Rudolph Williams.....	Feb. 9, " "	July 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John T. Birdseve.....	June 5, " "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wesley S. Thurston.....	" 15, " "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. Woodruff.....	Nov. 30, " "	Jan. 13, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Junius D. Bolles.....	April 12, 1864	April 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles Baker.....	" 12, " "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Fernando Bennett.....	" 12, " "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Myron G. Brown.....	" 12, " "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac Kintigh.....	" 12, " "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles French.....	" 12, " "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Gustavus P. Smith.....	" 12, " "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. H. Cleland.....	" 12, " "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lewis Deinst.....	" 12, " "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward H. Hartman.....	" 12, " "	" 12, "	Revoked.
Do.	Patrick F. Dalton.....	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harris Sweet.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Thomas Walters.....	May 2, " "	May 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Johnson O. Foote.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alex. Rowland.....	June 26, " "	June 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Michael J. Enright.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Herman N. McDaniels.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

11th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized in the month of August, 1862, and was mustered into the service on the 5th and 6th of September. It was a North-Western Ohio regiment, having been raised in Sandusky, Lucas, Wood, Fulton, Williams, and Defiance Counties. It took the field at Covington, Kentucky, on the 11th of September, 1862.

The regiment remained in front of Covington until the 18th of September, when, in company with four regiments and a battery, it made a reconnoissance to Crittenden, Kentucky. After driving out the cavalry of Kirby Smith from that place, the regiment returned to Covington. It remained at Covington until the 25th, when it took transports for Louisville, where it was assigned to General Buell's army, being in the Thirty-Eighth Brigade, Twelfth Division, under command of General Dumont. The regiment moved on Shelbyville October 3d. On the 8th of October it took the advance in the movement on Frankfort, where a slight skirmish took place. It moved on Lawrenceburg October 11th, and camped at Crab Orchard, where it joined with General Buell's whole army. After General Bragg's army had escaped through Cumberland Gap the One Hundred and Eleventh moved by rapid marches to Bowling Green, Kentucky, where it remained garrisoning forts and guarding the railroad from that place to Nashville. On the 29th of May, 1863, the regiment was ordered to Glasgow, Kentucky. At this place the One Hundred and Eleventh was assigned to the Second Brigade, Second Division, Twenty-Third Army Corps, and remained in this brigade, division, and corps until mustered out of the service. From Glasgow it took part in the movement on Scottsville and Tomkinsville.

About this time John Morgan's cavalry made a raid into Indiana and Ohio. The regiment took part in the pursuit. On the 4th of July, 1863, it marched from Tomkinsville to Glasgow, a distance of thirty-two miles, in one day, carrying guns, equipments, and forty rounds of ammunition. On the 6th of July the regiment marched to Munfordsville, and, remaining three days, it took the cars for Louisville. Morgan having crossed the Ohio River, the One Hundred and Eleventh was ordered to New Albany, Indiana. It then marched to Jeffersonville and took ports for Cincinnati. On an island ten miles above Louisville the regiment was landed, and a detachment of Morgan's command was captured. It arrived at Cincinnati on the 13th. From this city it proceeded to Portsmouth, arriving at that place on the 18th.

After the capture of Morgan the regiment returned to Kentucky. Arriving at Lebanon, Kentucky, it marched to New Market, where the Second Division, Twenty-Third Army Corps, rendezvoused preparatory to the march to East Tennessee. On the 19th of August this movement commenced. The command arrived at Jamestown, Tennessee, on the Cumberland Mountains, eighty-five miles distant from Knoxville, on the 26th. From this point the command moved by rapid marches through Yarm's Gap, and arrived on the 30th of August at Montgomery. On the 2d of September it forded the Big Emory River, and arrived at Loudon, Tennessee, on the Tennessee River, on the 4th. The regiment remained at Loudon until November 14th, and took part in the movement north of New Market to check the Rebel advance from Virginia. It also took part in several forced marches, scouts, and skirmishes along the Tennessee and Holston rivers.

The advance of General Longstreet's army appeared in front of Loudon on the 22d of October, and considerable skirmishing was kept up between the two armies. On the 14th of October the command marched to Lenoir; but meeting re-enforcements here a counter-march was ordered, and the Second Brigade was ordered to march to Huff's Ferry, three miles below Loudon, and prevent the crossing of General Longstreet's troops. Owing to the almost impassable condition of the roads it was nearly dark before arriving at the ferry. On a high bluff, about half a mile from the river, a brigade of Rebels was encountered. The Second Brigade was immediately formed in single line and ordered to charge. The charge was successful. In it the One Hundred and Eleventh only lost a few wounded, as it was on the right flank of the brigade and partially under cover of dense woods. The brigade stood to arms all night in the pelting rain, without food or shelter. At daylight the entire division fell back, and the One Hundred and Eleventh covered the retreat. At Loudon Creek a brisk skirmish took place between the regiment and the 15th South Carolina Sharpshooters, composing General Longstreet's advance. The stand was made to enable Henshaw's Illinois Battery to get its caissons up a hill above the creek. In this engagement the One Hundred and Eleventh lost four killed and twelve wounded. After this skirmish the command marched rapidly to Lenoir unmolested. On this night all camp and garrison equipage and transportation were destroyed, and on the morning of the 16th, at three A. M., moved out for Knoxville, Tennessee.

At daylight on this morning Lieutenant O. P. Norris and fifty-two men of company B, of the regiment, were captured by the Rebels while on picket. Of these fifty-two stalwart men thirty-two died of starvation and exposure at Andersonville prison. Campbell's Station was selected by General Burnside as the point to which to give battle to General Longstreet. In this engagement the One Hundred and Eleventh occupied the front line, directly in front of two batteries of Rebel artillery, and was for six hours exposed to the shells of the enemy's concentrated fire. The loss in killed and wounded was only eight, as the enemy used percussion shells, which mostly fell in the rear of the first line. The regiment marched with the command into Knoxville, a distance of six miles, having been three nights without sleep, food, or rest, and having participated in three separate engagements. It passed through the siege of Knoxville, occupying the fort on College Hill, and lost six men killed and wounded. After General Longstreet's retreat it took part in the skirmishes at Blain's Cross Roads, Danville, and Strawberry Plains, and occupied an outpost six miles in front of the city when General Schofield fell back the second time on Knoxville.

It protected the crossing of the Second Division at Strawberry Plains on the 21st of January, 1864, losing one man killed. On the 9th of February General Schofield arrived at Knoxville and took command of the department. On the 24th of February the Second Division marched to Strawberry Plains; on the 27th crossed the Holston River, and marching some distance, counter-marched at night as far back as Mossy Creek. On the 14th of March the regiment moved to Morristown, East Tennessee. On the following day it was on the picket-line, and had a brisk skirmish with the Rebel cavalry. The One Hundred and Eleventh was moved back to Mossy Creek, where it remained until the 26th of April, when it was marched to Charleston, on the Hiawassee River, a distance of one hundred miles. This it accomplished in four days, arriving at Charleston on the 30th. From this point it marched to Red Clay, Georgia, arriving on the 6th of May. At this place the Army of the Ohio united with the left wing of General Sherman's army to participate in the Atlanta campaign. It marched to Tunnel Hill on the 7th of May, and on the following day skirmished into a position in front of Buzzard's Roost. On the 9th, in the advance on Rocky Face Mountain, the regiment was assigned the front line of the skirmishers, and during an advance of three-quarters of a mile lost nine men killed and wounded.

On the 12th of May the One Hundred and Eleventh marched through Snake Creek Gap, and arrived in front of Resaca on the evening of the 15th. The brigade made a charge on the enemy's works on the following day. Being unsupported by artillery, the charge was unsuccessful and the loss heavy. The One Hundred and Eleventh had but seven companies engaged, three companies being in the rear guarding transportation. Out of the number engaged seven men were killed and thirty wounded. The regiment took part in the second day's fight at Resaca, but being in the supporting column, it sustained no losses. After an unsuccessful assault at midnight upon the National lines, the Rebels evacuated. On the 16th of May the regiment participated in the pursuit; had a skirmish with the Rebel cavalry on the 20th, and captured six prisoners. On the 27th a brigade of Rebels made an advance on the National lines. The One Hundred and Eleventh was ordered out on the double-quick, made a charge, and broke the Rebel lines. In this engagement the regiment lost fifteen men killed and wounded.

It took part in the entire campaign against Atlanta. It was actively engaged in the siege of Kenesaw, the battles at Pine Mountain, Lost Mountain, Dallas, on the Chattahoochie River near Nicojack Creek, Decatur, Peachtree Creek, and in the siege of Atlanta and the skirmishes at Rough-and-Ready, Lovejoy's Station, and Utoy Creek. It started on the Atlanta campaign with three hundred and eighty men, and of this number lost, in killed and wounded, two hundred and twelve. On the 8th of September the regiment went into camp at Decatur, Georgia, and remained there until the morning of the 4th of October, when the movement against General Hood's forces commenced. During the stay at Decatur the regiment made a reconnoissance to Stone Mountain, where it encountered Rebel cavalry and lost a few of its men. The One Hundred and Eleventh marched rapidly to Allatoona Pass, and to within eighteen miles of Chattanooga, where the corps was ordered into Alabama in pursuit of General Hood's army. It marched south as far as Cedar Bluffs, on the Coosa River, where, in a skirmish with Rebel cavalry, one officer and three men of the One Hundred and Eleventh were captured on picket. From this point the regiment marched to Rome, Georgia, where a brisk skirmish took place. From thence it moved to Resaca, where it arrived on the 1st of November, 1864.

At Resaca the regiment took the cars and was moved to Johnsonville, on the Tennessee River, eighty-five miles west of Nashville, to protect that place against a Rebel raid. It remained at Johnsonville until the 20th of November, when it was again moved by rail to Columbia, Tennessee, to assist in checking General Hood's advance. It participated in the skirmishes at Columbia, and was detailed to remain in the rear to guard the fords of Duck River while General Thomas's army fell back on Franklin. The regiment guarded a wagon-train to Franklin, and was twice attacked. Each time it repulsed the enemy. The regiment at night marched by the outposts of General Hood's army in bringing up the rear. It arrived at Franklin on the morning of the 30th of November, and was immediately assigned to the front line of works, on the left flank of the Second Division, Twenty-Third Army Corps, to the right of the Franklin Turnpike. In the fight on that day the regiment, out of one hundred and eighty men engaged, lost twenty-two men killed on the field and forty wounded. Many were killed by Rebel bayonets. The contest was so close that once the flag of the regiment was snatched from the hands of the Color-Sergeant, but the bold Rebel was killed instantly. The troops on the immediate left of the One Hundred and Eleventh fell back during the charge, and the Rebels, holding this part of the line for an hour, poured an enfilading fire along the line of the whole brigade. Owing to the large losses of officers in this and previous engagements, a detail from other regiments was necessary to command the companies.

On the morning of the 1st of December the One Hundred and Eleventh marched back to Nashville, where it was assigned a position in the line of defenses on the left. It was severely engaged during both days of fighting in front of Nashville. In a charge on the second day it captured three Rebel battle-flags and a large number of prisoners. The loss was seven killed and fifteen wounded. The regiment took part in the pursuit after General Hood. It was marched to Clifton, Tennessee, where, on the 17th of January, 1865, it took transports to make the campaign of North Carolina. It passed through Cincinnati January 23d, and arrived at Washington, District of Columbia, on the 31st. From Alexandria the regiment took an ocean steamer for Fort Fisher, where it joined the army under General Terry, and took an active part in the capture of Fort Anderson, and in the skirmishes at Moseby Hall and Goldsboro'. After the surrender of General Johnston the regiment was moved to Salisbury, North Carolina, where it remained on garrison-duty until ordered home for muster out. It arrived at Cleveland on the 5th of July, 1865, and was mustered out on the 12th.

The One Hundred and Eleventh re-enlisted as veterans in February, 1864, in East Tennessee, but, owing to the demand for troops in the field, the veteran furlough could not be granted. Again (in October, 1864), after the Atlanta campaign, more than two-thirds of the regiment re-enlisted as veterans; but, after General Hood's campaign to the rear, the order to furlough it was revoked. The One Hundred and Eleventh numbered one thousand and fifty men when it entered the service, and received eighty-five recruits. Of these men, two hundred and thirty-four were discharged for disability, disease, and wounds; two hundred died of disease contracted in the service; two hundred and fifty-two were killed in battle or died of wounds, and four hundred and one were mustered out.

112th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY

The organization of the One Hundred and Twelfth Ohio was begun but not completed.

113th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	JAMES A. WILCOX	Dec. 28, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Resigned April 29, 1863.
Do.	JOHN G. MITCHELL	April 29, 1863	May 26, 1863	Promoted to Brigadier-General.
Do.	DARIUS B. WARNER	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Resigned June 6, 1865.
Do.	TOLAND JONES	June 8, " "	June 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Lieut. Col.
Lt. Colonel	JOHN G. MITCHELL	Sept. 2, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	DARIUS B. WARNER	April 29, 1863	May 6, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	TOLAND JONES	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	OTWAY WATSON	June 8, " "	June 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Major.
Major	DARIUS B. WARNER	Sept. 8, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	LYNE S. SULLIVANT	April 29, 1863	May 6, 1863	Resigned May 30, 1865.
Do.	OTWAY WATSON	June 8, 1865	June 8, 1865	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	ABRAHAM L. SHEPHERO	" "	28, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon	JAMES L. BLACK	Aug. 9, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Resigned July 31, 1863.
Do.	ALBERT WILSON	July 31, 1863	Aug. 8, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	ALONZO HARLOW	Sept. 1, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Resigned May 11, 1863.
Do.	T. C. TIPTON	" "	31, " "	Resigned June 8, 1863.
Do.	GEORGE W. KEMP	May 19, 1863	May 19, 1863	Resigned October 6, 1863.
Do.	H. M. BASSETT	July 20, " "	July 20, " "	Transferred to 121st O. V. I. as Srurgeon.
Do.	JOSEPH MORRIS	Sept. 16, " "	Sept. 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	Toland Jones	Aug. 11, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Captain	David Taylor, jr.	" "	" "	Resigned June 10, 1863.
Do.	Win. C. Peck	" "	" "	Resigned March 17, 1863.
Do.	Marvin M. Munson	" "	" "	Resigned January 13, 1863.
Do.	John F. Riker	" "	" "	Resigned May 15, 1863.
Do.	Levi T. Nichols	" "	" "	Mustered out August 25, 1865.
Do.	Harrison Z. Adams	" "	" "	Resigned January 28, 1863.
Do.	Lyne S. Sullivan	Nov. 13, " "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Nathan Straus	Oct. 27, " "	March 6, 1863	Resigned May 17, 1863.
Do.	Abraham L. Shepherd	Dec. 8, 1863	Jan. 26, 1864	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Thomas J. Downey	Jan. 13, " "	Feb. 4, 1863	Promoted in U. S. Colored Regiment.
Do.	Alvin L. Messmore	" "	" "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Joshua M. Wells	March 17, " "	April 14, " "	Killed September 20, 1863.
Do.	Nelsou Durant	" "	" "	Honorably discharged November 25, 1864.
Do.	Otway Watson	May 16, " "	May 16, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John Bowersock	" "	" "	Killed June 27, 1864.
Do.	Horatio N. Benjamin	June 10, " "	June 23, " "	Resigned August 30, 1864.
Do.	Lucius Windle	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Swisher	July 25, " "	July 25, " "	Resigned June 6, 1865.
Do.	James Kent Hamilton	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Kite	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John S. Skeels	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Garman	May 31, " "	May 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George McCrea	June 8, " "	June 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James R. Ladd	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George H. Lippincott	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
1st Lieutenant	Nathan C. Vickers	Aug. 11, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Resigned January 13, 1863.
Do.	Thomas J. Downey	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel H. Hughes	" "	" "	Resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.	Frederick A. Eno	" "	" "	Resigned January 28, 1863.
Do.	Nelson Durant	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Bowersock	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Erasmus Skerrett	Sept. 3, " "	" "	Resigned January 26, 1864.
Do.	Charles C. Cox	" "	" "	Resigned May 28, 1863.
Do.	Alvin L. Messmore	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George St. Clair	Nov. 13, " "	" "	Resigned February 1, 1864.
Do.	Otway Watson	Jan. 13, 1863	Feb. 5, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles Sinnet	" "	" "	Commissioned in Engineer Corps.
Do.	Joshua M. Wells	Feb. 1, " "	April 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Horatio N. Benjamin	Jan. 13, " "	Feb. 5, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Julius C. Bostwick	" "	" "	Died March 16, 1864.
Do.	Miles C. Nolan	Oct. 27, 1862	March 6, " "	Resigned February 2, 1863.
Do.	Lucius Windle	March 17, 1863	April 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Holmes	" "	" "	Killed in action September 20, 1863.
Do.	Edward P. Haynes	Feb. 2, " "	" "	Discharged March 15, 1864.
Do.	Aquilla Toland	April 29, " "	May 6, " "	Resigned January 18, 1864.
Do.	James Kent Hamilton	May 28, " "	June 5, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph Swisher	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John W. Kite	June 10, " "	Dec. 26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles Garman	Feb. 1, 1864	Feb. 13, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Cyrus G. Platt	" "	" "	Killed June 15, 1864.
Do.	John S. Skeels	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Baxter	" "	" "	Honorably discharged November 25, 1864.
Do.	George McCrea	June 23, " "	June 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James R. Ladd	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jesse W. Dungan	" "	" "	Died July 4, 1864, at Chickamanga.
Do.	Theodore D. Bentley	" "	" "	Honorably discharged as 2d Lieut. Oct. 8, '64.
Do.	Edward Crouse	July 25, " "	July 14, " "	Killed June 27, 1864.
Do.	Jonathan Watson	" "	" "	Discharged as 2d Lieutenant, Oct. 26, 1864.
Do.	George H. Lippincott	" "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Brigham	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Reg't Q. M.
Do.	James Coultis	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. A. M. Davis	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David H. Chatfield	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Grove	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ambrose E. Grafton	" "	" "	Mustered out with regiment.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Timothy Haley.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. W. Mason.....	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaac N. Hobill.....	June 8, "	June 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Alex. Carpenter.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John R. Cross.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Otway Watson.....	Aug. 11, 1862	Dec. 31, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Deckey.....	" 12, "	" 31, "	Resigned November 17, 1862.
Do.	Joshua M. Wells.....	" 12, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. Sinuet.....	" 12, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lucius Windle.....	" 13, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Horatio N. Benjamin.....	" 14, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. C. Bostwick.....	" 14, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Holmes.....	" 13, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Francis O. Scarth.....	" 17, "	" 31, "	Resigned May 14, 1863.
Do.	Aquilla Toland.....	Jan. 14, 1863	Feb. 5, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. C. Hayes.....	" 28, "	"	Resigned August 5, 1863.
Do.	Joseph Swisher.....	" 13, "	"	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hiram C. Tipton.....	" 28, "	"	Resigned March 25, 1863.
Do.	Edward P. Haynes.....	Oct. 27, "	March 6, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. R. Hanewalt.....	March 25, "	April 25, "	Killed in action September 20, 1863.
Do.	Chas. Garman.....	Feb. 2, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James S. Wheelock.....	March 17, "	" 14, "	Killed September 20, 1863.
Do.	Cyrus G. Platt.....	" 17, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John S. Skeels.....	Feb. 1, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jesse W. Dungan.....	April 29, "	Aug. 25, "	Commission returned.
Do.	John W. Kile.....	March 14, "	"	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George McCrea.....	" 15, "	"	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James R. Ladd.....	Aug. 5, "	Aug. 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Theodore D. Bentley.....	Nov. 5, "	Feb. 20, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward Crouse.....	" 5, "	March 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jonathan Watson.....	" 16, "	" 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George H. Lippiucott.....	Dec. 15, "	Jan. 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David H. Chatfield.....	Nov. 5, "	March 29, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Brigham.....	March 31, 1864	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jesse W. Dungan.....	Nov. 5, 1863	April 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Coultis.....	June 14, "	June 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Parker.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Killed June 27, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Grove.....	July 25, 1864	July 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ambrose E. Grafton.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. M. Davis.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Timothy Haley.....	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac N. Hobill.....	May 31, 1865	May 31, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alex. Carpenter.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. W. Mason.....	June 8, "	June 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

113th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE organization of this regiment was commenced at Camp Chase in August, 1862. Only seven companies were recruited there, and the regiment was ordered to Camp Zanesville, and then to Camp Dennison, a company being added at each place.

On the 27th of December it was ordered to Louisville, where danger was expected from the Morgan raid. The order was altogether unexpected, as the organization was incomplete; but in two hours after its reception the One Hundred and Thirteenth was on its way, finely equipped. For some time after its arrival at Louisville, it encamped within the limits of the city, and received praise for its orderly conduct and soldierly bearing. In January, 1863, it moved to Mauldraugh's Hill, distant from Louisville about thirty miles, on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, but returned again the next month and embarked for Nashville. The trip occupied an unusual length of time, and by the overcrowding of transports the regiment sustained as serious injury as in any of the great battles in which it afterward participated. On arriving at Nashville many of the officers and men were sent to the hospital, where they suffered greatly from malignant fevers.

The regiment moved to Franklin, having been assigned to General C. C. Gilbert's division, participated in several expeditions against the enemy, and worked almost incessantly upon an extensive line of fortifications. The command formed the right wing of the Army of the Cumberland, and, joining other divisions at Triune, entered upon the Tullahoma campaign, but was not in an engagement. Remaining at Shelbyville until the partial reorganization of the army it participated in the Chattanooga campaign as a part of the Reserve Corps. After a wearisome and trying march over the mountains, the One Hundred and Thirteenth bore a distinguished part in the sanguinary battle of Chickamauga, being brought into action on the afternoon of the second day, at the most critical point and moment. It was a bloody baptism for the regiment, and its loss was one hundred and thirty-eight officers and men out of three hundred and eighty-two. It fell back to Chattanooga with the army, and endured all the trials and privations of the siege. The division, which had been designated as the Second, of the Fourteenth Corps, was detached from its corps at the battle of Mission Ridge, and formed a part of General Sherman's force. It formed the reserve line, and was not actively engaged; but in the subsequent pursuit of the enemy it fought with some loss at Stuart's Creek.

The regiment moved to the relief of Knoxville, and endured all the sufferings and trials of the campaign. The men marched without sufficient clothing, without blankets or overcoats, and many of them without shoes; and, after Longstreet was forced to retire—worn, ragged, and foot-sore—they returned to Chattanooga, arriving December 21st. After a short rest the regiment was ordered to McAfee's Church, eight miles south, to erect winter-quarters. While thus engaged it was sent on advance outpost-duty, on New-Year's eve, 1863-4, and being without shelter, suffered severely during that intensely cold night. During the winter several officers were absent on recruiting service, and, as a result of their labors, company K was formed, and the regimental organization was completed. The monotony of the winter's campaign was broken by an occasional reconnoissance, and at last the regiment moved on the Atlanta campaign, May 7, 1864.

The One Hundred and Thirteenth was at Buzzard's Gap, Resaca, and moved down the valley of the Coosa upon Rome; thence to Dallas and New Hope Church, and on to Kenesaw Mountain. In the battle of Kenesaw the regiment formed the first line of assault, and consequently lost heavily, the casualties being ten officers and one hundred and fifty-three men. In the numerous engagements around Atlanta the regiment was not actively concerned, except at Peachtree Creek, though it was always present, and almost always exposed to the fire of the sharpshooters. According to the diary of an officer, during one hundred and seven days of the campaign, the regiment was under fire eighty-nine days. After the fall of Atlanta the regiment was sent to Chattanooga, then to Huntsville and Tusculum, Alabama, and then back to Chattanooga. It again marched southward, with greatly reduced ranks, over the battle-fields of the Atlanta campaign, and joined Sherman in his "march to the sea." With the exception of an engagement between four companies of the regiment and a detachment of the enemy, in which the Rebels were severely handled, the march of the One Hundred and Thirteenth was unbroken until it reached the defenses of Savannah. During the siege rations were very scarce, and the canebrakes were the only forage for the stock. After the evacuation of the city the regiment camped at Sister's Ferry, on the Savannah River, and there remained for several days in mud and water. A crossing was at length effected, and the One Hundred and Thirteenth was on South Carolina soil. The regiment shared in all the labors of the campaign in the Carolinas, and was severely engaged at Bentonville, fighting hand-to-hand, and during the heaviest of the battle leaping the breastworks to repel assaults from either direction. This was the last battle of the One Hundred and Thirteenth. After the surrender of Johnston it moved, via Richmond, Virginia, to Washington City, and participated in the grand review.

The regiment proceeded to Louisville, Kentucky, where it was mustered out on the 6th of July, 1865, and was soon after discharged at Columbus, Ohio.

114th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	JOHN CRADLEBAUGH	Aug. 22, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned September 20, 1863.
Do.	JOHN H. KELLY	Sept. 20, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	HORATIO B. MAYNARD	Aug. 22, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned February 6, 1863.
Do.	JOHN H. KELLY	Feb. 6, 1863	April 19, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	JOHN F. MCKINLEY	Dec. 28, 1864	Dec. 28, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	JOHN H. KELLY	Aug. 22, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOHN LYNCH	Feb. 6, 1863	April 9, 1863	Resigned October 13, 1863.
Do.	EMANUEL GEBHART	Oct. 3, " "	Feb. 6, 1864	Honorably discharged September 14, 1864.
Do.	EPHRAIM BROWN	Dec. 9, 1864	Dec. 9, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	O. E. FRENCH	Aug. 21, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Mustered out.
Do.	BYRON STANTON	Dec. 26, " "	Dec. 26, " "	Mustered out May 17, 1865.
Do.	JOHN C. GILL	May 31, 1865	May 31, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	WM. L. PECK	Aug. 20, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Transferred to 3d O. V. I. November 7, 1862.
Do.	H. LEONARDSON	" 20, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned June 20, 1863.
Do.	A. A. BEAN	Nov. 7, " "	Feb. 14, 1863	Resigned April 15, 1863.
Do.	THOS. C. BAIRD	July 18, 1863	July 18, " "	Transferred to 4th O. V. I.
Do.	JOHN C. GILL	Feb. 23, 1864	Feb. 23, 1864	Promoted to Surgeon.
Chaplain	THOS. HILL	Sept. 11, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned February 2, 1863.
Do.	THEODORE STOWE	April 4, 1863	April 4, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	John Lynch	Aug. 6, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Emanuel Gebhart	" 6, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	James W. Cleveland	" 9, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned March 3, 1863.
Do.	Scott Harrison	" 11, " "	" 22, " "	Honorably discharged July 24, 1863.
Do.	Isaac M. Abrahams	" 12, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned August 28, 1863.
Do.	Cornelius Karas	" 12, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned February 6, 1863.
Do.	Ephraim Brown	" 13, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John B. Brandt	" 18, " "	" 22, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Leonard F. Muzzy	" 22, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned March 3, 1863.
Do.	George W. Hunt	Sept. 10, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned April 15, 1863.
Do.	Elbridge L. Hawk	Feb. 6, 1863	April 9, 1863	Retained in service.
Do.	John C. Hays	March 3, " "	" 9, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	John N. Bruner	May 1, " "	July 20, " "	Resigned January 11, 1864.
Do.	Charles E. Shultz	" 2, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned December 21, 1863.
Do.	Isaac Butterfield	" 3, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned December 21, 1863.
Do.	Allen Higler	July 24, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Resigned.
Do.	James G. Dunlap	Aug. 25, " "	Sept. 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry S. Beery	Feb. 1, 1864	Feb. 6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Shultz	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	James Duffy	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Joseph Bury	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Pickering	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	M. B. Radcliff	Dec. 9, " "	Dec. 9, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Elias Frownfelder	March 21, " "	March 21, " "	Transferred from 120th O. V. I.
Do.	H. H. Eberhart	Jan. 14, 1863	March 30, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	B. F. Miller	March 21, 1864	" 21, 1864	Transferred from 120th O. V. I.
Do.	Wesley W. Spear	Aug. 11, " "	Aug. 11, " "	Transferred from 120th O. V. I.
Do.	Joseph S. Rummell	March 14, 1863	March 30, 1863	Transferred from 120th O. V. I.
1st Lieutenant	Charles E. Wright	Aug. 6, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned March 1, 1863.
Do.	John N. Bruner	" 6, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. Hays	" 19, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jessc Johnson	" 11, " "	" 22, " "	Discharged April 20, 1863.
Do.	Samuel Rowland	" 12, " "	" 22, " "	Died.
Do.	Elbridge L. Hawk	" 12, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Hiram Thomas	" 15, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned October 23, 1863.
Do.	Henry S. Beery	" 18, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John D. Coulson	" 7, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned April 15, 1863.
Do.	Isaac Butterfield	Sept. 10, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph Toole	" 1, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned February 18, 1863.
Do.	Van. M. Ogle	" 28, " "	" 22, " "	Resigned August 9, 1863.
Do.	Wm. H. Shultz	Feb. 18, 1863	April 9, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles E. Shultz	March 3, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James Duffy	Feb. 6, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James G. Dunlap	Feb. 15, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Benj. S. Shirley	May 5, " "	July 20, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Allen Higler	" 1, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Pickering	" 1, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	M. B. Radcliff	" 3, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph Bury	" 4, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Arcadius B. Messimore	July 24, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	George L. Avery	Feb. 1, 1864	Feb. 6, 1864	Resigned 2d Lieutenant February 24, 1864.
Do.	Henry Allison	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lewis M. Earnest	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Reuben L. Rowe	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alex. S. Thompson	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. A. Studen	" 4, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James M. Davis	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Noah Gebhart	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M.
Do.	John Hafford	" 1, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned July 4, 1863.
Do.	Wm. A. Brown	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel Wagenhals	July 30, " "	July 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John S. Petty	Aug. 11, " "	Aug. 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Wm. Van Osten	Sept. 8, 1863	Jan. 10, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	James R. Pollock	Oct. 12, 1864	Oct. 12, " "	Transferred from 120th O. V. I.
Do.	Wm. B. Milliken	July 31, 1863	Jan. 10, " "	Mustered out July 21, 1865.
Do.	Harvey Applegate	" 30, " "	" 10, " "	Transferred from 120th O. V. I.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	J. M. Bear.....	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph P. Van Nest.....	Dec. 28, "	Dec. 28, "
Do.	R. P. Wallace.....	March 21, "	March 21, "
2d Lieutenant	Thomas J. Stevens.....	Aug. 6, 1862	Sept. 29, 1862	Resigned February 14, 1863.
Do.	Jas. T. Marfield.....	" 6, "	" 22, "	Killed December 28, 1862.
Do.	Joseph Knight.....	" 19, "	" 22, "	Resigned January 20, 1863.
Do.	Allen Higler.....	" 11, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Martin V. B. Lindsey.....	" 12, "	" 22, "	Resigned January 13, 1863.
Do.	Samuel L. Wilson.....	" 12, "	" 22, "	Honorably discharged August 19, 1863.
Do.	John Hafford.....	" 15, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. R. Burnsworth.....	" 18, "	" 22, "	Declined.
Do.	Wm. H. Gooden.....	" 15, "	" 22, "	Dead.
Do.	Joseph Bury.....	" 15, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George L. Avey.....	Aug. 18, "	Oct. 17, "	Resigned February 23, 1864.
Do.	John Pickering.....	Dec. 28, "	Feb. 13, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Willis C. Ferguson.....	Jan. 13, 1863	April 9, "	Killed May 22, 1863.
Do.	Reuben T. Kennedy.....	" 20, "	March 13, "	Killed May 17, 1863.
Do.	M. B. Radcliff.....	Feb. 14, "	April 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Allison.....	May 1, "	July 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lewis M. Earnest.....	" 2, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Anselmus B. Messmore.....	" 3, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Reuben L. Rowe.....	" 4, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alex. S. Thompson.....	" 5, "	" 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. Studen.....	" 17, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. Davis.....	" 17, "	Aug. 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philip M. Schurtz.....	Dec. 28, 1864	Dec. 28, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lemuel Dyer.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Eskridge.....	Dec. 28, 1864	Dec. 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	R. P. Wallace.....	March 15, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. S. Myler.....	Dec. 28, 1864	Dec. 28, 1864	Mustered out July 31, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Hill.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Cockburn.....	" 28, "	" 28, "
Do.	H. G. Foster.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out July 31, 1865.
Do.	Joseph L. De Long.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	T. M. Harris.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out July 31, 1865.
Do.	Joseph P. Van Nest.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

114th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND FOURTEENTH OHIO was recruited in August, 1862, from the counties of Perry, Fairfield, Pickaway, Fayette, Hocking, and Vinton. It rendezvoused at Camp Circleville, and was mustered into the United States service September 11, 1862.

The regiment remained in Camp Circleville until the 19th of September, 1862, when it was ordered to Marietta. Marching from Circleville it took the cars at Chillicothe for Marietta, arriving at the last-named place September 21, 1862, and went into camp six weeks, occupying the time in drilling and equipping for the field. December 1, 1862, it was ordered to Memphis.

On December 20th the regiment moved on transports down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers to Johnston's Landing, on the Yazoo River, where it joined General Sherman's army, then about to operate in the rear of Vicksburg. On December 26th the regiment landed near Chickasaw Bluffs, and participated in the assault on the enemy's works on Chickasaw Bayou. It was active during the whole of this battle, and was severely engaged on Sunday, December 28th, and Monday, 29th. In one of these affairs Lieutenant Wilson, of company F, was severely wounded in the foot by a shell, causing the amputation of the foot a few days thereafter. Lieutenant Marfield, of company B, was killed by a sharp-shooter. The regiment lost several others killed and wounded.

On the night of January 1, 1863, at ten A. M., the army commenced the retreat, and at sunrise of the 2d the entire command was on board the boats. Before the boats could be detached from shore the Rebels fired into them, wounding one man of the regiment.

During the six days that the regiment remained on this disastrous field the men suffered intensely from the cold and sleeting rain.

After leaving Chickasaw Bluffs the fleet of transports moved up the river, and on the morning of the 10th of January, 1863, cast anchor near Arkansas Post. The forces were landed and preparations made for an attack on the fortifications. At ten o'clock A. M., January 11th, the attack was commenced, and, after a brisk engagement between the National and Rebel forces, and a heavy cannonade from the National gunboats stationed in the rear, the post was surrendered, and the fort was occupied at two o'clock in the afternoon.

The National troops, after disposing of the material and prisoners captured, re-embarked on the transports and sailed down the Yazoo River to Young's Point, Louisiana, where they arrived January 23, 1863. During the stay of the regiment in this camp it suffered severely from sickness and death, losing over one hundred men in the space of six weeks' time.

From the 1st of December, 1862, to the 6th of February, 1863, the regiment was commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel H. B. Maynard, Colonel Cradlebaugh being absent in Washington City. From the 6th of February until March, 1863, it was commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel John H. Kelly. March 1, 1863, Colonel Cradlebaugh returned and took command.

On March 8, 1863, the One Hundred and Fourteenth moved to Milliken's Bend, Louisiana, and went into camp, where it remained until April 5, 1863.

On April 5, 1863, the National army, under General Grant, moved against Vicksburg. The One Hundred and Fourteenth was in the whole of this great campaign, and participated in the battles of Thompson's Hill, May 1, 1863; Champion Hills, May 16th; Big Black Bridge, May 17th; and the siege of Vicksburg. In the battle at Thompson's Hill it lost several men killed and wounded in a charge made upon the enemy about five o'clock in the evening. The enemy was driven from the field, and two pieces of artillery, with a number of prisoners, were captured. The Rebels were pursued until dark.

In the battle of Big Black Bridge the regiment had a number killed and wounded. Among the killed was Lieutenant Kennedy, of company C.

In the charge at Vicksburg, May 22, 1863, Colonel Cradlebaugh was severely wounded in the mouth, and a number of men killed and wounded. May 22, 1863, Lieutenant-Colonel Kelly again took command of the regiment, Colonel Cradlebaugh's wound having disabled him from duty.

On the 25th the regiment was ordered to Warrenton (ten miles below Vicksburg) to garrison that post. This duty was quite severe, consisting of strict guard and fatigue-duty. On July 14th the regiment was ordered back to Vicksburg, where it remained in camp until the 13th of August. It was then sent to Carrollton, six miles above New Orleans. On September 6th it moved by rail to Brashear City, or Berwick Bay, and remained there up to October 3d. It then marched by way of Franklin, New Iberia, and Vermilionville, to Opelousas, Louisiana, a distance of about two hundred miles from New Orleans. Remaining at Opelousas but a few days, the regiment marched back to New Orleans, where it arrived November 22, 1863. This campaign was rather pleasant, the whole of it being made without the slightest trouble from the enemy.

On November 28, 1863, the regiment embarked at New Orleans and sailed for Texas, landing at Pass Cavallo, and going into camp at Decrow's Point, on Matagorda Peninsula, December 3, 1863. It remained on this barren sand-coast until January 14, 1864, and then moved to Matagorda Island. Remaining at this place until April 18, 1864, it was ordered to Alexandria, Louisiana, and arrived there April 26th. General Banks's army was met at Alexandria, where it had fallen back after its disastrous repulse. While at Alexandria the regiment was engaged in the affair at Graham's plantation, twelve miles out on the road.

The National forces retreated from Alexandria May 13th, and arrived at Morganza, Louisiana, on the Mississippi River, May 22d. The enemy was engaged and defeated at Marksville, and at Yellow Bayou. This campaign was very severe. Forced marches of ten days' duration, through the stifling heat and dust, and being continually harassed by the enemy on both flank and rear, made it almost unendurable. As the Mississippi appeared in view the weary host sent up a glad shout at the certainty that their troubles and fatigues had for the time ended.

Colonel Cradlebaugh did not take command of the regiment after having been wounded, but resigned October 20, 1863. Lieutenant-Colonel John H. Kelly was promoted and commissioned Colonel, to rank from October 20, 1863, but was not mustered, the regiment being reduced below the minimum.

While the One Hundred and Fourteenth lay at Morganza it was concerned in several raids, scouts, and skirmishes, but did not meet with any severe engagements. On November 21, 1864 the regiment was ordered to the mouth of White River, Arkansas, arriving there November 26th. While at this point the One Hundred and Twentieth Ohio was consolidated with the One Hundred and Fourteenth, by which the following-named officers were rendered supernumerary, and were honorably mustered out of the service: Captains James Duffy, William H. Shultz, John C. Hays, John B. Brandt; First-Lieutenants M. B. Radcliff, A. B. Messmore, Benjamin S. Shirley, James M. Davis, Alexander S. Thompson; Adjutant Lewis M. Earnest, and Surgeon O. E. French.

On December 6, 1864, the regiment was ordered to Morganza, Louisiana, where it arrived on the 8th, and went into camp the next day. On the 13th and 14th it was out on an expedition to the Atchafalaya River, but did not find the enemy.

On January 8, 1865, the regiment moved to Kenna, Louisiana, where it remained until the 24th, and was then ordered to Barrancas, Florida. It remained at this camp up to May, 1865, when, the war having virtually ended, it was sent with other forces to Texas. In July it was ordered to Columbus, Ohio, to be paid off and mustered out.

During its term of service the One Hundred and Fourteenth marched by land and water over ten thousand miles, performed duty in ten different States, and was engaged in eight hard fought battles, and many skirmishes. It was successful in all except the affair at Chickasaw Bayou. It lost in killed and wounded six officers and eighty men. The loss by disease was very great the first year, about two hundred men having died, and quite a number discharged for disability.

The latter part of the service of the regiment was singularly free from casualties. For nineteen months no regimental burying occurred—an almost miraculous exception.

115th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	J. A. LUCY.....	Aug. 22, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Discharged July 6, 1864.
Do.....	THOMAS C. BOONE.....	July 20, 1864	July 20, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	THOMAS C. BOONE.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	ASA W. FITCH.....	July 20, 1864	July 20, 1864	Resigned January 5, 1865.
Do.....	HARRINGTON R. HILL.....	Feb. 8, 1865	Feb. 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	ASA W. FITCH.....	Sept. 1, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	HARRINGTON R. HILL.....	Aug. 19, 1864	Aug. 19, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	LEWIS F. HAKE.....	Feb. 8, 1865	Feb. 8, 1865	Mustered out as Captain May 15, 1865.
Surgeon.....	H. B. JOHNSON.....	Sept. 1, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Honorably discharged February 17, 1865.
Do.....	W. H. JONES.....	March 7, 1865	March 7, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	J. L. BRENTON.....	Sept. 1, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Surgeon 8th O. V. I.
Do.....	A. JONES PATTERSON.....	23, "	Feb. 2, 1863	Resigned November 23, 1863.
Do.....	W. H. JONES.....	April 1, "	May 6, 1863	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.....	GEO. H. BARROWS.....	May 30, 1864	30, 1864	Declined.
Do.....	S. D. RICHARDS.....	Aug. 25, "	Aug. 26, "
Do.....	J. W. REED.....	Sept. 20, "	Sept. 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	ASBURY CASTLE.....	17, 1862	22, 1863	Resigned August 3, 1863.
Do.....	WM. G. MARCH.....	Dec. 1, 1863	March 29, 1864	Resigned October 28, 1864.
Captain.....	HARRINGTON R. HILL.....	Aug. 1, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Lewis F. Hake.....	13, "	22, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	John A. Means.....	14, "	22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Lewis McCoy.....	14, "	22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph S. Harter.....	15, "	22, "	Died of wounds August 26, 1863.
Do.....	Alfred J. Ware.....	15, "	22, "	Resigned November 4, 1864.
Do.....	Denning N. Lowry.....	21, "	22, "	Lost on steamer Sultana April 27, 1865.
Do.....	Abdiel Sturgeon.....	22, "	22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James W. McCoull.....	23, "	22, "	Died February 8, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. Ramsey.....	25, "	22, "	Resigned March 2, 1863.
Do.....	Edward Buckingham.....	Feb. 8, 1863	Feb. 11, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	J. Newton Campbell.....	March 2, "	March 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Jeremiah G. Mohler.....	Aug. 26, "	Sept. 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. M. McClure.....	26, "	Jan. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Jeremiah G. Mohler.....	July 30, 1864	July 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John Eadie.....	Aug. 19, "	Aug. 19, "	Commission returned.
Do.....	Albert W. Thompson.....	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John Eadie.....	Feb. 8, 1865	Feb. 8, 1865	Lost on steamer Sultana.
Do.....	John S. Orr.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John B. Irwin.....	16, "	16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
1st Lieutenant	Wm. M. McClure.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John S. Orr.....	15, "	22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John Eadie.....	14, "	22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John B. Irwin.....	14, "	22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Jeremiah G. Mohler.....	July 29, "	25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Henry C. Ellisou.....	Aug. 15, "	22, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.....	Arthur L. Couger.....	21, "	22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Simon Summers.....	14, "	22, "	Resigned March 1, 1864.
Do.....	Edward Buckingham.....	19, "	22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Albert W. Thompson.....	5, "	22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. M. Hostetter.....	Sept. 4, "	22, "	Resigned December 14, 1862.
Do.....	Thomas W. Saxton.....	4, "	22, "	Resigned April 20, 1865.
Do.....	George D. Harter.....	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 24, "	Mustered out with regiment
Do.....	Hugh M. Torrence.....	Feb. 8, 1863	Feb. 11, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George M. Hershey.....	Oct. 17, "	12, 1864	Discharged July 6, 1864.
Do.....	Henry C. March.....	March 21, 1864	March 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Sumner Nash.....	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Henry H. Glosser.....	11, "	11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James M. Newell.....	19, "	19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Lafayette Foulks.....	Feb. 8, 1865	Feb. 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Hugh McCagh.....	May 2, "	May 2, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Seth Wright.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Lewis M. Slusser.....	16, "	16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
2d Lieutenant	George Hallan.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned December 8, 1862.
Do.....	Wm. Pence.....	30, "	22, "	Discharged July 6, 1864.
Do.....	George L. Waterman.....	20, "	22, "	Died of wounds September 19, 1863
Do.....	Jacob McCoy.....	15, "	22, "	Resigned February 3, 1863.
Do.....	George M. Hershey.....	14, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Henry C. March.....	15, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Sumner Nash.....	21, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Henry H. Glosser.....	Sept. 9, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Hugh M. Torrence.....	10, "	22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	J. Newton Campbell.....	Aug. 14, "	22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James M. Newell.....	8, "	Dec. 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Lafayette Foulks.....	Feb. 3, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Oscar Von Kochitzky.....	8, "	Feb. 11, "	Resigned.
Do.....	Hugh McCagh.....	March 2, "	March 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Seth Wright.....	Oct. 17, "	Feb. 12, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Lewis M. Slusser.....	Jan. 1, 1864	4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Merchant S. Hurd.....	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry H. Woods.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Deuble.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jacob N. Shaffer.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out January 9, 1865.
Do.	Henry S. Shidler.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Ely.....	Feb. 8, 1865	Feb. 8, 1865	Lost on steamer Sultana.
Do.	J. Wickersham.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. Wilson Lindersmith.....	May 2, "	May 2, "	Mustered out July 5, 1865.
Do.	Henry W. Chessman.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M. Serg't.
Do.	Wm. K. Elliott.....	" 16, "	" 16, "
Do.	Matthias H. Foults.....	" 16, "	" 16, "
Do.	James J. Clark.....	" 16, "	" 16, "

115th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Massillon, Ohio, in August, 1862, and was mustered into the United States service, September 18, 1862, by Captain A. E. Drake, of the Second United States Infantry.

Under orders, it reported to Major-General Wright, at Cincinnati, October 4, 1862. On the 9th of October the regiment was divided—five companies, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Boone, being sent to Columbus (Camp Chase) to perform guard-duty. The remaining five companies, under command of Colonel J. A. Lucy, remained in Cincinnati, and acted as provost-guard.

In November, 1862, the battalion at Columbus was ordered to Maysville, Kentucky, under command of Colonel Lucy, leaving Lieutenant-Colonel Boone in command of the battalion at Cincinnati.

In December, 1862, the battalion at Maysville was ordered to Covington, Kentucky, where it performed provost-duty until October, 1863. It was then relieved and ordered to report to Major-General Rosecrans at Chattanooga, Tennessee. Reaching Murfreesboro' it was ordered to report to the post-commander for duty. Part of the regiment was at once mounted and sent out against the Rebel guerrillas, then infesting the country between Nashville and Tullahoma.

In June, 1864, that part of the regiment not mounted was stationed on the line of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, in block-houses, to prevent the guerrillas from destroying it. August, 1864, Block-House, No. 4, in command of Sergeant Flohr, of company B, was captured by the forces of the Rebel General Wheeler. Block-House No. 5, commanded by Lieutenant John S. Orr, of company B, was attacked at the same time, and three men were killed and seven wounded, out of the detachment of forty men. In this attack the Rebels were handsomely repulsed, and failed in their desperate attempt to capture the garrison.

Shortly after the above affair company K (mounted) surprised and captured a squad of guerrillas, and lost Sergeant Richmond killed and three men wounded.

During Hood's advance on Nashville, in December, 1864, Block-Houses Nos. 1, 3, and 4 were assaulted by a large force of Rebels under Forrest, and their garrisons, consisting of parts of companies C, F, and G, captured.

The garrisons of Block-Houses Nos. 5 and 6 were, by order of General Thomas, withdrawn to Murfreesboro'. Block-House No. 7 was assaulted and surrounded by the Rebels, and for fifteen days the garrison dared not venture outside. The garrison of Block-House No. 2, under command of Lieutenant Harter, was assaulted December 9, 1864, by the enemy, with three pieces of rifled artillery, and a continuous fire kept up from nine o'clock in the morning until dark. Two of the garrison were killed and five wounded. Under cover of the night the garrison withdrew and reached Nashville in safety.

Shortly after this affair the Rebel General Buford made a desperate charge on Murfreesboro', but after five hours of hard fighting was driven back with heavy loss. On the National side there was one killed and three wounded. The garrison of Murfreesboro' at this time consisted of a battalion of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Ohio, and the Fourth and Twenty-Ninth Michigan regiments, under command of General Rousseau.

On April 27th, 1865, the battalion of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Ohio, captured by the Rebels at Block-Houses 1, 3, and 4, in December, 1864, was on board the ill-fated steamer Sultana, which exploded on the Mississippi River near Memphis, Tennessee, and Captains D. N. Lowry and John Eadie, Lieutenant J. C. Ely, and eighty men were lost. They belonged to companies B, C, F, and G. These unfortunate men were on their way to Columbus, Ohio, having been paroled for that purpose.

The regiment performed garrison-duty at Murfreesboro', and guard-duty on the line of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad from Nashville to Tullahoma, until the 23d of June, 1865, when it was mustered out of the service by Captain W. S. Wilson, A. C. M. It received its final discharge and pay at Cleveland, Ohio, July 7, 1865.

The One Hundred and Fifteenth Ohio, as will be observed by its record, was not permitted to be massed in the field at any one time. It was a reliable regiment, well-disciplined and drilled.

Lieutenant-Colonel (afterward Colonel) Boone, while in command of the battalion stationed at Cincinnati in 1862-3, had the charge of all prisoners, military and political, as well as the duty of forwarding convalescent soldiers to their respective regiments. It was during this time that the orders of General Burnside, Nos. 38 and 113, were issued, which caused considerable excitement among the community, and resulted in bringing the civil and military authorities into conflict. For carrying out these orders—refusing to deliver up certain deserters on a writ of habeas corpus—a warrant for the arrest of the Colonel was issued by Judge Paddack, Probate Judge of Hamilton County, Ohio; but the warrant could not be executed because of the guard which constantly surrounded the person of the commanding officer.

In July, the same year (1863), Colonel Boone called out his battalion, for five or six days, on the Harrison Pike, to render assistance to the cavalry in pursuit of John Morgan, then on his unfortunate raid through Ohio. In the October following the regiment proceeded to the front, and was assigned to the Fourth Division, Twentieth Army Corps.

The strength of the regiment when organized was nine hundred and eighty-five, and during its term of service it received, in addition, over three hundred recruits. At muster-out it numbered six hundred and thirty officers and men all told.

116th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	JAMES WASHBURN.....	Aug. 22, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Mustered out July 5, 1865.
Lt. Colonel	THOMAS F. WILDES.....	18, "	25, "	Prom. Col 18th O. V. I. and bvt. Rrlg. Gen.
Do.	WILBERT B. TETERS.....	Feb. 26, 1865	Feb. 26, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	W. THOMAS MORRIS.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Resigned August 24, 1864.
Do.	WILBERT B. TETERS.....	Dec. 27, 1864	Dec. 27, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOHN HULL.....	Feb. 26, 1865	Feb. 26, 1865	Discharged as Captain.
Do.	HAMILTON L. KARR.....	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon	A. R. GILKEY.....	Sept. 4, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Died June 4, 1863.
Do.	THOMAS J. SHANNON.....	July 22, 1865	July 22, 1865	Killed in action October 19, 1864.
Do.	THOMAS C. SMITH.....	Dec. 14, 1864	Dec. 14, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	JOHN Q. A. HUDSON.....	Aug. 16, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Resigned March 24, 1863.
Do.	JAMES JOHNSON.....	22, "	25, "	Resigned February 19, 1863.
Do.	THOMAS C. SMITH.....	27, "	March 27, 1863	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	JAMES L. BROWN.....	April 14, 1863	April 14, "	Resigned.
Do.	JAMES A. SAMPSON.....	Jan. 4, 1865	Jan. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JAMES T. MORAN.....	Feb. 15, "	Feb. 15, "	Mustered out with regt. as Hospital Steward.
Chaplain	EBENEZER W. BRADY.....	Sept. 24, 1862	Nov. 4, 1862	Discharged October 18, 1864.
Do.	JAMES LOGAN.....	Nov. 12, 1861	12, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Charles W. Ridgway.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Resigned March 16, 1863.
Do.	Edwin Keys.....	12, "	25, "	Killed July 19, 1864.
Do.	Frederick H. Arckonoe.....	12, "	25, "	Killed June 13, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Myers.....	12, "	25, "	Resigned August 24, 1864.
Do.	John Varley.....	12, "	25, "	Discharged September 15, 1864.
Do.	Matthew Brown.....	12, "	25, "	Discharged August 7, 1864.
Do.	John C. Golden.....	13, "	25, "	Resigned January 31, 1863.
Do.	Wilbert B. Teters.....	17, "	25, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Edward Fuller.....	18, "	25, "	Resigned January 31, 1863.
Do.	John Hull.....	18, "	25, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Hamilton L. Karr.....	Jan. 31, 1863	March 27, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Alex. Cochran.....	31, "	27, "	Resigned February 9, 1865.
Do.	Thornton Mallory.....	March 16, "	April 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James P. Mann.....	June 13, "	July 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. M. Kerr.....	Sept. 8, 1864	Sept. 8, 1864	Discharged November 23, 1864.
Do.	Richard Chaney.....	8, "	8, "	Honorably discharged February 1, 1865.
Do.	John F. Welch.....	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter Dillon.....	26, "	26, "	Resigned January 29, 1865.
Do.	John C. H. Cobb.....	Dec. 27, "	Dec. 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Adolphus B. Frame.....	27, "	27, "	Discharged as 1st Lieutenant March 2, 1865.
Do.	Wilson F. Martin.....	Feb. 15, 1865	Feb. 15, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Henthorn.....	March 18, "	March 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Mosely.....	18, "	18, "	Discharged as 2d Lieutenant March 30, 1865.
Do.	John S. Manning.....	18, "	18, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Richmond O. Knowles.....	29, "	29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel D. Knight.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ransom Griffin.....	20, "	20, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
1st Lieutenant	Frederick L. Ballard.....	Sept. 3, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Honorably discharged February 3, 1865.
Do.	Artemus W. Williams.....	3, "	25, "	Mustered out with regiment as B. Q. M.
Do.	Robert Wilson.....	12, "	25, "	Died November 19, 1862.
Do.	Thornton Mallory.....	12, "	25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James P. Mann.....	16, "	25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Peter Dillon.....	12, "	25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry McElfresh.....	12, "	25, "	Resigned February 7, 1863.
Do.	Hamilton L. Karr.....	13, "	25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Sprigg.....	17, "	25, "	Discharged January 15, 1864.
Do.	Alex. Cochran.....	16, "	25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. S. Sears.....	18, "	25, "	Resigned January 31, 1863.
Do.	Richard Chaney.....	Jan. 2, 1863	March 27, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. M. Kerr.....	Nov. 19, 1862	27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John F. Welch.....	Jan. 31, 1863	Feb. 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. H. Cobb.....	31, "	March 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Adolphus B. Frame.....	31, "	27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wilson F. Martin.....	Feb. 7, "	27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas M. Hunter.....	April 27, "	April 27, "	Failed to report.
Do.	Levi M. Lupton.....	June 13, "	July 20, "	Died Sept. 12, '64, in prison at Charleston, S. C.
Do.	Hiram L. Sibley.....	Feb. 1, 1864	Feb. 12, 1864	Honorably discharged January 11, 1865.
Do.	John C. Henthorn.....	1, "	12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Mosely.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John S. Manning.....	8, "	8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Richmond O. Knowles.....	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel D. Knight.....	26, "	26, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Milton A. Ellis.....	26, "	26, "	Detached in Signal Corps.
Do.	Ransom Griffin.....	Dec. 27, "	Dec. 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. F. Biddenharn.....	27, "	27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. B. Henry.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward Mullenau.....	10, "	10, "	Resigned.
Do.	Reese Williams.....	15, "	15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles P. Allison.....	March 18, "	March 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. J. Lee.....	18, "	18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Purkery.....	18, "	18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Bush.....	29, "	29, "	Killed in action April 3, 1865.
Do.	Jacob Wyckoff.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	John S. Heald.....	20, "	20, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Charles A. Cline.....	20, "	20, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. M. Kerr.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hiram L. Sibley.....	12, "	25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Levi M. Lupton.....	July 25, 1862	Sept. 25, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Richard Chaney.....	Aug. 12, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John C. Henthorn.....	" 11, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wilson F. Martin.....	" 12, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John C. H. Cobb.....	" 13, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Mosely.....	" 17, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Adolphus B. Frame.....	" 10, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hezekiah Myers.....	" 18, " "	" 25, " "	Declined.
Do.	John F. Welch.....	" 18, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton A. Ellis.....	Feb. 7, 1863	March 27, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ransom Griffin.....	" 7, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel D. Knight.....	Jan. 21, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Richmond O. Knowles.....	" 2, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John S. Manning.....	Nov. 19, 1862	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Gottlieb Shredley.....	Jan. 31, 1863	" 27, " "	Resigned September 17, 1864.
Do.	Wm. F. Bidlehorn.....	June 13, " "	July 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. B. Henry.....	Feb. 26, 1864	Feb. 26, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward Mullenbain.....	" 28, " "	" 26, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Reese Williams.....	Nov. 12, " "	Nov. 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. P. Allison.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. J. Lee.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Parkery.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ezra L. Walker.....	Feb. 10, " "	Feb. 10, " "	Discharged for promotion in 136th O. V. I.
Do.	Wm. H. Bush.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John S. Heald.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. A. Cline.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob Wyckoff.....	Jan. 18, " "	Jan. 18, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Man. Smith.....	June 20, " "	June 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Peter D. Wolfe.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	John L. Beach.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Adam J. Myers.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Samuel Atkinson.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Francis A. Battley.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Benj. F. Sammons.....	" 24, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	John C. Chick.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Leander Shane.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Benj. Sheffield.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Andrew W. Henthorn.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant.

116th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment, with the exception of two companies, B and C, which were guarding the Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad, rendezvoused at Marietta on the 25th of August, 1862. Companies A, C, D, E, and F, were from Monroe County; companies B and G from Meigs; companies I and K from Athens; and company H from Noble.

On the 1st of September the regiment was ordered to Parkersburg to watch the movements of the Rebel General Jenkins. On the 6th it was ordered to Gallipolis, where it was armed and equipped. The arms which the regiment carried to Parkersburg were intended more for show than for use; and those which it now received were of an inferior quality, and were afterward exchanged for a better pattern. On the 18th and 19th of September the regiment was mustered into the service, with the exception of two companies, F and K, which were not full. These companies were mustered on the 28th of October, and joined the regiment at Buckhannon, West Virginia.

On the 16th of October the regiment moved to Belpre, crossed the river to Parkersburg, and was immediately transported to Clarksburg. The regiment arrived at Buckhannon on the 27th of October, and was brigaded with the One Hundred and Tenth, One Hundred and Twenty-Second, and One Hundred and Twenty-Third Ohio. On the 9th of November it moved to Webster, passing over the battle-field of Rich Mountain, embarked on the cars, and proceeded to New Creek. Here the measles broke out and raged violently. Within a week one-fourth of the regiment was prostrated. Some died, others were discharged, and many were rendered unfit for duty for a long time. On the 12th of December it left one hundred and ten men in hospital, and moved by way of Burlington and PETERSBURG to Moorefield, where the One Hundred and Sixteenth was posted with a section of artillery. During the march the troops were much annoyed by guerrillas. On one occasion a scouting party captured nineteen prisoners and some property. On the 3d of January, 1863, the pickets were driven in and the enemy commenced shelling the camp. The regiment numbered only about six hundred and fifty men, with a section of artillery; but they were advantageously posted and the enemy could assail only at long range. About the middle of the afternoon troops from Petersburg moved to the assistance of the garrison at Moorefield, and the Rebels were compelled to retire. The regiment lost two or three men slightly wounded by fragments of shell, and about twenty were captured on the picket-line.

After a little more scouting and foraging in the Moorefield Valley, the One Hundred and Sixteenth moved to Romney, arriving January 11th. Here it was engaged in foraging, picketing, and drilling. On the 16th of February a forage-train guarded by about fifty men of the One Hundred and Sixteenth was captured. The capture was occasioned by the negligence of the officer in command of the guard, who was subsequently dismissed from the service. The regiment reached Winchester on the 17th of March, and here General Elliott was assigned to the command of the brigade. The regiment was engaged frequently in scouting and skirmishing. On the 14th of June companies A and I came in from Bunker Hill, where they had participated in an engagement and lost about half their number in killed and captured. The remainder made their escape with great difficulty. The regiment withdrew with the army from Winchester on the 4th of July; marched through Mercersburg and Loudon, Pennsylvania, and arrived at Hagerstown, Maryland, in time to meet the army under General Meade. The regiment did not unite with the army, but moved to Sharpsburg, and thence to Martinsburg, arriving August 4th.

On the 29th of April, 1864, the regiment started up the Shenandoah Valley under General Sigel. It marched by way of Woodstock, Harrisonburg, Cross Keys, and Port Republic, and found the enemy well posted at Piedmont, near Staunton. It charged the enemy's works and reached the fortifications, but was compelled to retire. It withdrew a short distance and laid down until another charge was ordered, and this time the Rebels were driven from their works. The One Hundred and Sixteenth lost one hundred and seventy-six men killed and wounded. The troops entered Staunton, and after destroying all the Rebel property moved on toward Lexington. The regiment, however, was ordered back to Staunton, to bring up a supply-train. It marched day and night for several days, and rejoined the command at Lexington. On the 14th of June the troops again advanced, passing through the Blue Ridge and Bedford Valleys, and on the 17th met the enemy four miles from Lynchburg. During the morning of the next day there was considerable skirmishing. In the afternoon the Rebels advanced upon the National lines. Supported by the Fifth Virginia, the regiment was ordered to charge, and the Rebels were driven into their works. It was now forced to fall back across an open field, and in this movement lost many men killed and wounded. As soon as it was dark the National troops began to retire. From the 18th to the 22d the regiment marched day and night, with scarcely any rations and through dust shod-mouth deep. On the 27th a small amount of supplies was received, and the next day an abundance. The march was continued until the 29th, halting at Gauley Ford.

On the 2d of July the regiment marched down the valley to Camp Piatt, and there embarked on steamer for Parkersburg, where it took cars and proceeded eastward. Upon reaching Cherry Run, fifteen miles west of Martinsburg, the railroad was found to be destroyed, and the regiment marched to Harper's Ferry and crossed to Sandy Hook, arriving on the 14th. It was ordered into Loudon County, Virginia, to assist in driving Early from the valley. On the 11th of July the enemy was met at Snicker's Gap. At the opening of the fight the One Hundred and Sixteenth was on the extreme left, but it was sent in haste to strengthen the right of the line. As soon as it arrived several companies on the right were ordered to charge, and the enemy was driven from the flank. The regiment fought with courage, and the enemy was effectually prevented from regaining his position. The Rebels were held in check until dark, when the One Hundred and Sixteenth recrossed the river and marched to Winchester. From here it fell back through Martinsburg and Hagerstown to Maryland Heights, where it arrived on the 29th, entirely exhausted.

The regiment moved to Halltown, then to Frederick, then back again across the river, and up the valley. On the 12th of August the command reached Cedar Creek, and found the enemy fortified on Fisher's Hill. In order to prevent the enemy from gaining the rear the troops fell back to Charlestown, and from there to Halltown, where the line was re-formed and fortifications were built. In a reconnoissance on the 26th a fight took place and the One Hundred and Sixteenth, having the advance, lost heavily. On the 3d day of September Sheridan's entire force advanced. The enemy was met at Berryville. The One Hundred and Sixteenth was engaged, but with slight loss. On the 19th of September the regiment participated in the battle of Opequan. It was scarcely formed when the order came to charge. The entire line of battle, with the One Hundred and Sixteenth on the left, moved forward, and everything in front gave way. A portion of the right of the enemy's line remained intact, and poured a severe flank-fire upon the One Hundred and Sixteenth. The regiment changed front under fire, and before the enemy could form to receive the attack, drove him, in a charge, from his position. It then re-formed and joined its brigade, posted behind a stone wall, and facing another, behind which the enemy was trying to rally. The men were allowed to rest a few moments, and then they again charged and drove the enemy from the stone wall to his intrenchments. The regiment was placed immediately in front of a battery, and as the enemy began to get the range it moved forward to the crest of a hill, and very soon silenced the guns. At this juncture Custer's cavalry came upon the enemy, and he was compelled to fall back to Fisher's Hill. The regiment lost four killed and twenty-two wounded. At the battle of Fisher's Hill the One Hundred and Sixteenth, with its command, succeeded in flanking the enemy's works. Then it charged and routed the enemy completely. Colonel Wells, in his official report, said: "The One Hundred and Sixteenth Ohio charged the battery in the angle of the Rebel works, received its fire when only one hundred yards from it, never wavered, but, rushing on, captured it in the very smoke of its discharge." The regiment lost one man killed and four wounded.

The One Hundred and Sixteenth was left behind to bury the dead and attend to the prisoners and captured property, and having done this it joined the command at Harrisonburg. From this point it was sent to Dayton, where it was engaged in guarding mills which were grinding wheat for the army. It remained here until the 6th of October, and on the 13th it skirmished at Cedar Creek, with considerable loss. On the 19th it participated in the general engagement. At first it was driven back with the rest of the army, but upon the arrival of General Sheridan the Rebels were checked, and finally routed completely. The regiment left Cedar Creek on the 9th of November, and arrived at Opequan Crossing on the 18th. Here it remained guarding the railroad until the 19th of December, when it moved by way of Washington City and joined the Army of the James, at Aiken's Landing, where it went into winter-quarters.

On the 26th of March, 1865, the regiment broke camp and moved upon the Petersburg campaign. It was engaged almost constantly, and participated in the assault on Fort Gregg. It was a hand-to-hand fight, and many of the prisoners were badly wounded with bayonets. A Rebel Captain cried: "Never surrender to the d—d Yankees!" but the words were hardly out of his mouth when John Cole, of company B, laid him dead with the butt of his musket. The regiment joined the pursuit of the Rebel armies. On arriving at Burksville the right wing of the regiment was sent out on the Danville Road, but the left wing moved on to Appomattox C. H., where Lee surrendered. After the surrender the left wing moved to Lynchburg. On the 15th of April it moved to Burksville, where it was joined by the right wing and the entire regiment moved to Richmond, arriving on the 25th.

On the 14th of June the regiment, with the exception of companies F and K, was mustered out. As these two companies' time did not expire until the last of October, they were consolidated with the Sixty-Second Ohio. On the 15th the regiment embarked on steamer and proceeded to Fortress Monroe, thence to Baltimore, whence it was placed on cars and transported by way of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad to Camp Dennison, Ohio. On the 23d of June, 1865, it was paid and discharged.

117th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Lt. Colonel...	CHAUNCEY G. HAWLEY.....	Aug. 21, 1862	Dec. 6, 1862	Promoted to Colonel in 1st Ohio H. A.
Major	FORDYCE M. KEITH.....	30, "	" 6, "	Promoted to Lt. Col. in 1st Ohio H. A.
Surgeon	JOHN L. FIRESTONE.....	Sept. 8, "	" 6, "	Transferred to 1st Ohio H. A.
Ass't Surgeon	C. M. FINCH.....	" 19, "	" 6, "	Resigned November 9, 1862.
Do.	WM. C. PAINE.....	Dec. 11, "	" 11, "	Declined.
Do.	STRICKLAND ALLBRIGHT.....	" 22, "	Feb. 10, 1863	Resigned August 18, 1863.
Do.	SILAS B. SIELDON.....	May 8, 1863	May 9, "	Commission returned.
Do.	WM. T. EVANS.....	July 20, "	July 20, "	Declined; commission returned.
Captain	Robert W. Caldwell.....	" 5, 1862	Dec. 6, 1862	Promoted to Major in 1st Ohio H. A.
Do.	Wm. C. Hays.....	" 25, "	" 6, "	Resigned December 1, 1863.
Do.	Leonidas C. Heaton.....	Aug. 9, "	" 6, "	Resigned November 14, 1863.
Do.	Henry L. Barnes.....	" 19, "	" 6, "
Do.	James A. Murphy.....	" 19, "	" 6, "
Do.	Amos B. Cole.....	" 22, "	" 6, "	Transferred to 1st Ohio H. A.
Do.	James Gatewood.....	" 30, "	" 6, "
Do.	Wm. J. Evans.....	Oct. 1, "	" 6, "
1st Lieutenant	Wm. Carroll.....	July 15, "	" 6, "	Promoted.
Do.	Samuel Bevin.....	Aug. 7, "	" 6, "	Promoted.
Do.	Benj. F. Holman.....	" 16, "	" 6, "
Do.	John C. Morgan.....	" 19, "	" 6, "	Promoted.
Do.	Alex. F. McMillen.....	" 19, "	" 6, "
Do.	Jacob M. Feuer.....	" 19, "	" 6, "	Resigned December 14, 1863.
Do.	Francis Walter.....	" 30, "	" 6, "
Do.	James C. Cadot.....	Oct. 1, "	" 6, "
2d Lieutenant	Joseph S. Jeffries.....	July 22, "	" 6, "	Promoted.
Do.	Peter B. Hayes.....	Aug. 4, "	" 6, "	Resigned March '21, 1863.
Do.	George L. Hayes.....	" 19, "	" 6, "	Promoted.
Do.	John W. Wallace.....	" 19, "	" 6, "
Do.	James R. Oldson.....	" 19, "	" 6, "	Promoted.
Do.	Samuel B. Violet.....	" 22, "	" 6, "
Do.	Wm. S. Martin.....	" 22, "	" 6, "	Promoted.
Do.	Samuel Drummond.....	" 30, "	" 6, "

117th OHIO VOL. INFANTRY AND 1st OHIO HEAVY ARTILLERY.

THIS regiment was organized as the One Hundred and Seventeenth Ohio Infantry, at Camp Portsmouth, September 15, 1862, with eight companies of seven hundred and ninety-six aggregate strength. On the 2d of October, it was ordered into Eastern Kentucky. Camping at Ashland till January, it then moved to Paintsville and dispersed a portion of Floyd's army, under Colonel Jack Hays. It remained in camp at Buffalo Shoals near Paintsville till February, then returned to Peach Orchard, Louisa, and Catlettsburg; and was ordered to Covington, where it arrived the same month. During the spring it was sent on numerous expeditions to Cynthiana, Paris, Lexington, Mount Sterling, and interior points, to meet raids of Morgan and other guerrillas. On the 2d of May, 1863, the regiment was ordered by the War Department to be changed into the First Heavy Artillery Ohio Volunteers, and recruited to the maximum strength of that organization. August 12th it was so reorganized with twelve companies, of five officers each and one hundred and forty-seven men, and an aggregate strength of one thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine officers and men. During its recruitment it constructed the fine and extensive fortifications for eight miles around Covington and Newport, making Cincinnati one of the strongest fortified cities in the Union. Company D, Captain Barnes, was stationed at Paris; companies F and I, Captain Cole commanding, at Lexington, and companies H, K, L, and M, under Major Matthews, at Camp Nelson. In January, 1864, the regiment was ordered to Knoxville, Tennessee, and assembling at Point Burnside remained there till February 29th, when it started over the mountains in the heavy snow and very cold weather of that winter, under command of Major Matthews, and arrived at Knoxville, March 9th.

In June four companies, under Major Barnes, were stationed at Loudon, and a detachment at Strawberry Plains. In August, Wheeler made his raid in rear of Sherman's army, and striking the Chattanooga, Knoxville and Virginia Railroad above Chattanooga, was driven away from the road by the regiment, from the Sweetwater to Strawberry Plains, a distance of one hundred and fifty miles, and he was able to do no serious damage to its heavy bridges or the Government supplies in East Tennessee, though attacking furiously at Sweetwater, the Tennessee River, at Loudon, and Strawberry Plains.

On September 21st, companies B, F, G, I, and K, under Colonel Hawley, started on the raid with cavalry, under General Gillen, all under General Ammen, commanding District of East Tennessee, to act in concert with General Burbridge's expedition from Kentucky in the raid on Saltville. General Vaughn attacked the command at Bull's Gap, September 24th, but was easily repulsed. The column moved up rapidly through Greenville and Jonesboro', arriving at Carter's Station, on the Watauga River, one hundred and fourteen miles from Knoxville, on the 27th, where it found Vaughn and Debrill strongly fortified. After a severe fight they were driven from their works. The expedition under Burbridge having failed to take the salt-works, notwithstanding Vaughn and Debrill were prevented from assisting in its defense, the command, after destroying the railroad bridge over the Watauga, returned to Bull's Gap and Knoxville.

The regiment moved to Cleveland, Tennessee, October 7th, and soon thereafter to Chattanooga, at the concentration of troops there to guard against Hood's movement in rear of Sherman; but on the 19th returned to Cleveland and Charleston. It soon joined in the cavalry raid under General Stoneman against Saltville; and on the return of that expedition in December, with the Fourth Tennessee Infantry and detachments of the Tenth Michigan Cavalry and First United States Colored Artillery, as a provisional brigade, under Colonel Hawley, covered an extensive foraging expedition on the French, Broad, and Chucky Rivers in East Tennessee and North Carolina; during the winter of 1864 and 1865, occupying Dandridge, Allen's Ford, Leadville, Greenville, and Newport. With constant detached fighting with guerrillas of Vaughn's and Debrill's commands, a large amount of grain, beef, and pork, were obtained and floated down to Knoxville, for the army in East Tennessee. Among other fights an expedition was planned of two hundred men, under Lieutenant-Colonel Keith, to take possession of the fords of the rivers in the night, prevent an escape and drive in the guerrilla bands. Captain Norman, a notorious bushwhacker leader, and his band were caught in the trap, and he and ten of his men killed.

Hundreds of prisoners, escaping from Salisbury and other prisons in the winter and spring, came into the lines of the regiment emaciated and in rags; they all told the same sad story of suffering, and how they were piloted from station to station over the mountains by the loyal mountaineers. Many soldiers were killed by the guerillas in attempting to escape. George Dudley, from near Cincinnati, escaping from Salisbury, got within five miles of the camp, and was shot by bushwhackers in Cocke County, Tennessee. His comrades escaped.

In the spring of 1865 the regiment was brigaded with the Fourth Tennessee Infantry, First United States Colored Artillery, First and Second North Carolina Infantry, Fortieth United States Colored Infantry, and Wilder's Independent Battery, as the First Brigade, Fourth Division, Department of the Cumberland, Colonel C. G. Hawley commanding brigade.

The brigade was about seven thousand strong. In connection with General Stoneman's raid and the general advance of troops, the brigade moved toward Virginia and North Carolina and occupied the mouth of Roane Creek and Taylorsville in East Tennessee, and State Gap, Boone, Watauga Gap, and Head of Yadkin, in North Carolina, shutting up all the mountain passes to the retreating Rebels in Virginia; General Stanley with his corps moving from East Tennessee up the line of the Virginia Railroad. After the surrender of Lee and Johnston the brigade was sent down to Ashville, North Carolina, toward Wilson's cavalry, and occupied Raban's Gap in Georgia and Saluda Gap in South Carolina; and at Webster, Tennessee, received the surrender of the hostile Indians, two thousand strong, under their chief, the Rebel General Thomas. Returning to Greenville, Tennessee, the regiment remained in camp till July 15th, when it started homeward for the muster-out and was discharged and paid at Camp Dennison August 1, 1865.

118th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	SAMUEL R. MOTT.....	Oct. 5, 1862	Dec. 23, 1863	Resigned February 10, 1864.
Do.	THOMAS L. YOUNG.....	April 11, 1864	April 11, 1864	Resigned as Lieutenant-Colonel Sept. 14, 1864
Do.	EDGAR SOWERS.....	June 20, 1863	June 20, 1863	Mustered out with regiment as Lieut. Col.
Lt. Colonel.....	JOHN WALKUP.....	Sept. 5, 1862	Dec. 23, 1862	Resigned April 17, 1863.
Do.	THOMAS L. YOUNG.....	April 17, 1863	April 27, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	LESTER BLISS.....	11, 1864	11, 1864	Honorably discharged July 1, 1864.
Do.	WM. KENNEDY.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Resigned December 12, 1864.
Do.	EDGAR SOWERS.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Promoted to Colonel.
Major.....	THOMAS L. YOUNG.....	Aug. 22, 1862	Dec. 23, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	LESTER BLISS.....	April 17, 1863	April 27, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. DOWLING.....	11, 1864	11, 1864	Resigned August 7, 1864.
Do.	EDGAR SOWERS.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOHN W. KINKEAD.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	WM. H. PHILLIPS.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Dec. 23, 1862	Resigned May 7, 1864.
Do.	W. MORROW BEACH.....	April 19, 1864	May 19, 1864
Asst Surgeon	HARRISON A. BODMAN.....	Aug. 27, 1862	Dec. 23, 1862	Resigned December 3, 1862.
Do.	WM. B. SHAFFER.....	Sept. 1, " "	23, " "	Resigned February 5, 1864.
Do.	N. S. RICHARDSON.....	Dec. 26, " "	Feb. 10, 1863	Promoted to Surgeon 13th O.V.C., Oct. 20, 1864
Do.	JOHN E. PATTERSON.....	April 28, 1864	April 28, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	JOHN BOGGS.....	Oct. 7, 1862	Dec. 23, 1862	Resigned December 10, 1863.
Captain.....	Wm. Dowling.....	July 18, " "	23, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Solomon Kranor.....	20, " "	23, " "	Resigned July 6, 1864.
Do.	James L. Booth.....	Aug. 11, " "	23, " "	Resigned December 2, 1862.
Do.	Wm. Kennedy.....	11, " "	23, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	Wm. D. Stone.....	13, " "	23, " "	Honorably discharged July 16, 1864.
Do.	Edgar Sowers.....	13, " "	23, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Rudolph Ruel.....	16, " "	23, " "	Resigned December 20, 1864.
Do.	Samuel Howard.....	16, " "	23, " "	Resigned April 1, 1864.
Do.	John Buchanan.....	16, " "	23, " "	Resigned December 15, 1862.
Do.	Barton A. Holland.....	Dec. 5, " "	23, " "	Resigned February 11, 1864.
Do.	John D. Garner.....	2, " "	Jan. 20, 1863	Commission returned.
Do.	Charles Floyd.....	15, " "	20, " "	Resigned April 21, 1864.
Do.	Wm. H. Taylor.....	2, " "	April 8, " "	Resigned September 19, 1864.
Do.	John W. Kinkead.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, 1864	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John D. Garner.....	April 11, " "	April 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John S. Rhodes.....	11, " "	11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Amos J. Moor.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. P. Davis.....	12, " "	12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James M. Russell.....	12, " "	12, " "	Resigned November 22, 1864.
Do.	Charles P. Washburn.....	12, " "	12, " "	Declined to accept.
Do.	Samuel A. Nickerson.....	12, " "	12, " "	Resigned April 16, 1865.
Do.	Isham B. Robbins.....	12, " "	12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Rollin C. Curtis.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Commission returned.
Do.	Abram O. Waucop.....	6, " "	6, " "	Dismissed April 24, 1865.
Do.	Sidney F. Moore.....	6, " "	6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David M. Doty.....	23, " "	23, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Josephus S. Parker.....	April 8, " "	April 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Josiah Gallup.....	Sept. 13, 1862	Dec. 23, 1862	Resigned March 31, 1863.
Do.	Lester Bliss.....	Aug. 25, " "	23, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John W. Kinkead.....	July 18, " "	23, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas Axtell.....	21, " "	23, " "	Resigned April 24, 1863.
Do.	Martin L. Higgins.....	23, " "	23, " "	Resigned March 24, 1863.
Do.	John W. Kirkbride.....	Aug. 11, " "	23, " "	Resigned January 8, 1863.
Do.	Charles Floyd.....	13, " "	23, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Taylor.....	13, " "	23, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David L. Williams.....	13, " "	23, " "	Resigned October 23, 1863.
Do.	Darius Pendleton.....	16, " "	23, " "	Resigned April 19, 1863.
Do.	John D. Garner.....	23, " "	23, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. B. Wise.....	Dec. 5, " "	23, " "	Detached at own request.
Do.	John S. Rhodes.....	15, " "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alban A. Bishop.....	2, " "	April 9, " "	Discharged March 18, 1864.
Do.	Amos J. Moor.....	March 24, 1863	May 26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. P. Davis.....	31, " "	26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Milton B. Patterson.....	April 17, " "	26, " "	Honorably discharged May 24, 1865.
Do.	James M. Russell.....	24, " "	26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles P. Washburn.....	17, " "	April 27, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Samuel A. Nickerson.....	Feb. 1, 1864	Feb. 13, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Isham B. Robbins.....	1, " "	13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Rollin C. Curtis.....	March 3, " "	March 3, " "	Detached at own request.
Do.	Abram O. Waucop.....	April 11, " "	April 11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Sidney F. Moore.....	11, " "	11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas R. Owens.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Died December 21, 1864.
Do.	David M. Doty.....	12, " "	12, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Josephus S. Parker.....	12, " "	12, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joel Eckels.....	12, " "	12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George M. Thompson.....	12, " "	12, " "	Resigned.
Do.	Joel C. Loyd.....	12, " "	12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Byron Bowers.....	12, " "	12, " "
Do.	Robert M. Campbell.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Kimmer.....	6, " "	6, " "	Commission returned; transferred to V. B. O
Do.	Thomas H. Jones.....	6, " "	6, " "	Declined to accept.
Do.	Jesse Chinn.....	23, " "	23, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Anthony Bowsher.....	23, " "	23, " "	Resigned May 15, 1865.
Do.	Samuel H. Kennedy.....	April 8, " "	April 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Pingree.....	8, " "	8, " "	Transf. to 183d O.V.I., G.O. No. 11, June 15, '65

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Fralei Fink.....	May 2, 1865	May 2, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Barton A. Holland.....	July 28, 1862	Dec. 23, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alban A. Bishop.....	" 21, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isham B. Robbins.....	Aug. 12, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel A. Nickerson.....	" 13, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John McDowell.....	" 14, "	" 23, "	Resigned January 3, 1863.
Do.	Wm. P. Davis.....	" 15, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John S. Rhodes.....	" 15, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton B. Patterson.....	" 16, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Amos J. Moor.....	" 18, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel A. Krites.....	Nov. 6, "	" 23, "	Resigned December 28, 1863.
Do.	Rollin C. Curtis.....	Dec. 5, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. Russell.....	Jan. 3, 1863	Jan. 27, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Abram O. Waucop.....	Dec. 15, 1862	March 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Sidney F. Moore.....	" 2, "	April 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Eckles.....	April 17, 1863	May 26, "	Died July 1, 1864.
Do.	Thomas R. Owens.....	May 21, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David M. Doty.....	April 24, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Josephus S. Parker.....	March 24, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joel Eckels.....	Feb. 1, 1864	Feb. 13, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George M. Thompson.....	" 1, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joel C. Loyd.....	" 1, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Byron Bowers.....	April 11, "	April 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert M. Campbell.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry H. Robinson.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant; revoked.
Do.	Samuel H. Kennedy.....	Jan. 23, 1865	Jan. 23, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

118th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTEENTH OHIO went into camp at Lima, Ohio, in August, 1862, and in September it was sent (eight companies strong) to Cincinnati, then threatened by Kirby Smith. Here the ninth company was formed, and the regiment mustered into the service.

In the latter part of September it moved with the troops under General A. J. Smith toward Lexington, Kentucky, and at Cynthiana was detached to guard the railroad. The regiment was distributed at different points, from Benton's Station to Paris, and about twenty stockades were erected at the various bridges. A large amount of guard and patrol-duty was performed, Rebel recruiting was almost entirely prevented, and much valuable information was obtained and communicated to the proper authorities. On the 8th of August, 1863, it proceeded via Lexington and Louisville, to Lebanon, Kentucky, and on the 20th set out on the march for East Tennessee. This march over the mountains occupied seventeen days, and was very severe, the men suffering greatly from heat and dust. On the 10th of November it reached Kingston, and a few days after the Rebels cut the communication between that point and Knoxville. The picket-duty became very heavy, in order to prevent surprise from Wheeler's cavalry. The victories at Knoxville and Chattanooga relieved the garrison at Kingston, and on the 9th of December the regiment reached Nashville, and moved from there to Blain's Cross Roads, and from there to Mossy Creek to support Elliott's cavalry.

On the 29th of December the Rebel cavalry, commanded by Generals Martin and Armstrong, attacked General Elliott at Panther's Creek, who fell back to Mossy Creek. As the cavalry approached the regiment took position in the edge of a woods, and the Rebel force moved directly upon them. When the enemy approached within a hundred yards the regiment opened a rapid fire, which it kept up about two hours and then charged, driving the Rebels over the crest of a hill. In this engagement the One Hundred and Eighteenth lost about forty killed and wounded. It was handled with skill by Lieutenant-Colonel Young, and was commanded by General Elliott. While in East Tennessee the regiment endured great privations, subsisting for six months on quarter and half rations. The men were without sugar and coffee for months; salt was doled out by the spoonful, and corn in the ear was issued, out of which the men made hominy. In addition, they were destitute of clothing; and yet no murmurs were heard; but, on the contrary, cheerfulness prevailed to a wonderful degree.

The regiment was engaged in marching and counter-marching, with nothing of special interest occurring, until the campaign of 1864. It marched to Charleston, a distance of one hundred miles, in five days; and on the 4th of May it encamped at the State line. Here all the baggage was sent to the rear; only two wagons were allowed to the regiment, and arms and ammunition were carefully inspected. On the 7th the One Hundred and Eighteenth moved upon Dalton and from there advanced upon Resaca. During the afternoon of the 14th it participated in charge upon the enemy's works, and, out of three hundred men actually engaged, lost one hundred and sixteen in less than ten minutes. The engagement was renewed on the 15th, and that night Johnston retired to Cassville, which place he abandoned on the approach of the National army. After a few days' rest the regiment engaged in the fierce battles of Dallas and Pumpkin Vine Creek, bearing a gallant part. It continued advancing and fortifying, until, overcome by constant labor, much sickness prevailed among officers and men.

The regiment was engaged at Kenesaw Mountain, at the crossing of the Chattahoochee, in the operations on Utoy Creek, and in the final movements which occasioned the fall of Atlanta. In these operations it lost about seventy-five men, and at no time during the campaign, after the 1st of June, did it number over two hundred and fifty men, and it diminished at one time to one hundred and twenty. During one hundred and twenty-one consecutive days the regiment was within hearing of hostile firing every day but one; during sixty consecutive days it was under fire sixty different times; and during one week there probably was not five minutes without the whistling of a ball or the scream of a shot or shell could not be heard. After the fall of Atlanta the regiment fell back to Decatur, where it rested a short time, and then joined the pursuit of Hood, and followed as far as Gaylesville, Alabama. It proceeded to Johnsonville, Tennessee, on the 23d of November; went to Columbia to join the army confronting Hood, and on the 30th reached Franklin.

The brigade of which the One Hundred and Eighteenth was a part was drawn up in a single line, its right resting on the Williamsburg Pike and its left at the Locust Grove, the One Hundred and Eighteenth being the second regiment from the right. The enemy struck the line little to the left of the One Hundred and Eighteenth. The shock was terrible, but it stood firmly, and poured a destructive fire into the Rebels. The men fought desperately, using the bayonets over the breastworks and the officers using their side-arms. By daylight the One Hundred and Eighteenth was across the river and falling back on Nashville, where it was again engaged. After the battle of Nashville it participated in the pursuit of the Rebels as far as Columbia, and from there went to Clifton.

At that point orders were received to proceed to North Carolina, and on January 16, 1865, the regiment embarked on the steamer J. D. Baldwin for Cincinnati, and there took cars for Washington, District of Columbia, arriving on the 27th of January, 1865. It embarked on the steamer at Alexandria, February 11th; landed at Smithville, at the mouth of the Cape Fear River; moved immediately on Fort Anderson, and soon captured it, the One Hundred and Eighteenth being the first regiment to plant its colors on the walls. On the 20th of February it was engaged in a sharp action at Town Creek, in which three hundred prisoners and two pieces of artillery were captured, and on the 22d entered Wilmington. On the 6th of March it moved to Kingston, and from there to Goldsboro', where it joined Sherman's army, March 23d. It camped at Mosely Hall till April 9th, when it participated in the final movements against Johnston. The regiment camped near Raleigh until the 3d of May, when it moved to Greensboro' and thence to Salisbury, where it remained until the 24th of June, when it was mustered out of the service. The One Hundred and Eighteenth arrived at Cleveland July 2d, was welcomed by Chief-Justice Chase, participated in the celebration of the 4th of July, and received its final discharge on the 9th of July, 1865.

119th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

The organization of the One Hundred and Nineteenth Ohio was begun but not completed.

120th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	DANIEL FRENCH.....	Sept. 10, 1862	Nov. 17, 1862	Resigned February 18, 1863.
Do.....	MARCUS M. SPIEGEL.....	Feb. 18, 1862	March 30, 1863	Killed in action.
Lt. Colonel...	MARCUS M. SPIEGEL.....	Oct. 2, 1862	Nov. 17, 1862	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	JOHN W. BEEKMAN.....	Feb. 18, 1862	March 30, 1863	Died September 8, 1863.
Do.	WILLARD SLOCUM.....	Sept. 8, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out.
Major	JOHN W. BEEKMAN.....	Sept. 4, 1862	Nov. 17, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WILLARD SLOCUM.....	Feb. 18, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOHN F. MCKINLEY.....	Sept. 8, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Surgeon	W. W. TAGGERT.....	Sept. 4, 1862	Nov. 17, 1862	Resigned November 13, 1862.
Do.	BYRON STANTON.....	Dec. 26, " "	Dec. 26, " "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Ass't Surgeon	JOHN W. HAMMOND.....	Sept. 1, " "	Nov. 17, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	C. C. STOFER.....	Sept. 4, " "	Nov. 17, " "	Resigned January 26, 1864.
Do.	JOHN C. GILL.....	Feb. 23, 1864	Feb. 23, 1864	Transferred to 114th O. V.
Captain	Rufus M. Brayton.....	Aug. 4, 1862	Nov. 17, 1862	Resigned January 14, 1863.
Do.	Joseph H. Downing.....	" 12, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned February 13, 1863.
Do.	John F. McKinley.....	" 13, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	George P. Emrich.....	" 15, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned March 14, 1863.
Do.	Benj. Eason.....	" 15, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned March 14, 1863.
Do.	Henry Buck.....	" 21, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned February 15, 1863.
Do.	Wm. G. Myers.....	Sept. 12, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned February 5, 1863.
Do.	Patrick Phelan.....	" 12, " "	" 17, " "	Died February 17, 1863.
Do.	Christopher Au.....	Oct. 14, " "	" 17, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	George W. Conyer.....	" 14, " "	" 17, " "	Died March 23, 1863.
Do.	Henry H. Eberhart.....	Jan. 14, 1863	March 30, 1863	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Do.	Loyd N. Mecch.....	Feb. 5, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned January 12, 1864.
Do.	Wm. McIlvaine.....	" 17, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned July 19, 1864.
Do.	John Sloan.....	" 20, " "	" 30, " "	Died September 19, 1863.
Do.	John K. Smith.....	" 18, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned September 29, 1863.
Do.	Joseph R. Rummel.....	March 14, " "	" 30, " "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Do.	Valentine Moffitt.....	" 14, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned January 7, 1864.
Do.	James B. Taylor.....	" 23, " "	Sept. 3, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. Harvey.....	Sept. 8, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out.
Do.	Benj. F. Miller.....	March 21, 1864	March 21, " "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Do.	Elias Fraunfelder.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Do.	Benj. F. Jones.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wesley W. Spear.....	Aug. 11, " "	Aug. 11, " "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Do.	Harvey Applegate.....	" 11, " "	" 11, " "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I. as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant	Willard Slocum.....	" 25, 1862	Nov. 17, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Ezra V. Dean.....	" 25, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned October 22, 1863.
Do.	John E. Strickler.....	" 4, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned January 14, 1863.
Do.	Henry H. Eberhart.....	" 12, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas J. Armstrong.....	" 15, " "	" 17, " "	Deceased.
Do.	Robert R. Gailey.....	" 15, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned March 14, 1863.
Do.	Joseph E. Roseborough.....	" 15, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned March 23, 1863.
Do.	Robert M. Zuver.....	" 21, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned January 14, 1863.
Do.	Loyd N. Mecch.....	Sept. 1, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Bryan Grant.....	" 12, " "	" 17, " "	Discharged March 11, 1863.
Do.	Wm. McIlvaine.....	Oct. 14, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John K. Smith.....	" 14, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Hiram E. Totten.....	Jan. 14, 1863	March 30, 1863	Died September 12, 1863.
Do.	Samuel A. English.....	March 15, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned July 30, 1863.
Do.	Benj. F. Miller.....	" 15, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Harvey.....	Jan. 14, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry S. Sherman.....	March 15, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned July 31, 1863.
Do.	Augustus Case.....	" 15, " "	" 30, " "	Resigned October 15, 1863.
Do.	Elias Fraunfelder.....	" 15, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James B. Taylor.....	Feb. 18, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Reuben Bechtel.....	March 5, " "	" 30, " "	Deceased.
Do.	Benj. F. Jones.....	" 15, " "	" 30, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Frank H. Mason.....	June 1, " "	June 10, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	John D. Mackey.....	Aug. 1, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Died September 21, 1864
Do.	Wesley W. Spear.....	March 23, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Hughes.....	21, 1864	March 21, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Harvey Applegate.....	July 30, 1863	Jan. 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. B. Milliken.....	" 31, " "	" 10, " "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Do.	Wm. Van Ostern.....	Sept. 8, " "	" 10, " "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Robert P. Wallace.....	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Transferred to 114th O. V. I. as 2d Lieut.
Do.	John Baer.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Do.	John B. Brown.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out.
Do.	John W. Galehouse.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Mahlon Rouch.....	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Mustered out.
Do.	John S. Petty.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
Do.	Emanuel H. Bixler.....	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Mustered out.
Do.	James R. Pollock.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Transferred to 114th O. V. I.
2d Lieutenant	Joseph R. Rummel.....	Aug. 4, 1862	Nov. 17, 1862	Promoted.
Do.	Isaiah Jones.....	" 12, "	" 17, "	Resigned January 14, 1863.
Do.	Martin J. Stauley.....	" 12, "	" 17, "	Resigned March 14, 1863.
Do.	Alex. Morrow.....	" 15, "	" 17, "	Resigned February 18, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Harvey.....	" 15, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Valentine Moffitt.....	" 15, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Hiram E. Totten.....	" 15, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James B. Taylor.....	" 15, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Sloan.....	Sept. 21, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel A. English.....	Oct. 6, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry S. Sherman.....	Jan. 14, 1863	March 25, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. B. Milliken.....	March 15, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Franklin Stotler.....	" 15, "	" 30, "	Resigned July 11, 1863.
Do.	Harvey Applegate.....	" 15, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	G. W. Althouse.....	" 15, "	" 30, "	Resigned June 15, 1863.
Do.	John Ambrose.....	" 15, "	" 30, "	Resigned July 11, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Hughes.....	" 15, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wesley W. Spear.....	" 15, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert P. Wallace.....	" 15, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John A. McMillen.....	" 15, "	" 30, "	Resigned January 30, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Van Ostern.....	" 15, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Baer.....	June 15, "	Aug. 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lucius C. Carr.....	July 11, "	" 25, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. Q. Lawrence.....	July 11, "	" 25, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Mahlon Rouch.....	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

120th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTIETH OHIO was organized at Camp Mansfield, near Mansfield, Ohio (under the call of the President for the second three hundred thousand men), in the month of August, 1862.

Five companies, raised in the counties of Wayne and Ashland, formed the nucleus of the regiment, and assembled at the camp of rendezvous on the 29th of August, 1862. The remaining companies came from Richland, Ashland, and Holmes Counties. On the 17th of October it was armed, equipped, and mustered into the United States service with an aggregate of nine hundred and forty-nine men. On the 25th of October the One Hundred and Twentieth left Camp Mansfield with orders to report to General Wright at Cincinnati. On its arrival it was ordered to report to General Ammen, commanding at Covington, Kentucky, and on the same day it crossed the Ohio and went into camp, where it remained nearly one month. On the 24th of November it embarked on transports at Covington, and reached Memphis on the 7th of December. Upon the organization of the army for the expedition against Vicksburg the regiment was assigned to Colonel Sheldon's brigade, of General Morgan's division. This, called the right wing of the Army of the Tennessee, commanded by Major-General W. T. Sherman, embarked at Memphis on the 20th of December, and moved down the Mississippi to the mouth of the Yazoo River; thence up the Yazoo to Johnson's Landing, and there debarked preparatory to an attack on the line of fortifications defending Vicksburg.

The attack was opened by the National forces late on the afternoon of the 26th of November, and on the following day the One Hundred and Twentieth was for the first time under fire, having been ordered to the support of the First Michigan Battery near the left of the attacking column. In the afternoon of the same day Sheldon's brigade, consisting of the Sixty-Ninth Indiana, One Hundred and Eighteenth Illinois, and the One Hundred and Twentieth Ohio, charged upon the enemy's forces on the extreme right, and succeeded in driving them into their fortifications. A charge by the Ninth Division (General Morgan's) was now contemplated, but night coming on our troops were withdrawn to a place of safety. This charge, though unsuccessful, was made on the following day. The One Hundred and Twentieth had been ordered to cover a working party engaged in laying a pontoon across Chickasaw Bayou, and hence took no part in this assault, but was exposed to the enemy's fire during the entire day. A terrible rain-storm, peculiar to that climate, raged during the whole of the ensuing night, which, owing to the inexperience of the officers and men of the regiment, proved very disastrous, prostrating a large number with fevers and other virulent diseases common to the South. The fruitlessness of the attack on Vicksburg from the Yazoo being recognized, the National forces were withdrawn and taken on transports to Milliken's Bend, on the Mississippi River, where Major-General McClernand assumed command. The unavoidable use of the miserable water of the Yazoo River, the exposure in the recent storm, close confinement on crowded steamboats, and poorly-prepared food, here made its mark to such extent that more than one-half the number reported "present" were unfit for active service.

The movement against Arkansas Post was now begun. On the 5th of January the fleet moved from Milliken's Bend, and on the 9th ascended the White River, and thence by a connecting canal passed into the Arkansas, and proceeded up that river to a point three miles from Fort Hindman, at Arkansas Post. On the 10th the whole force disembarked, and on the following night completely invested the entire fortifications, behind which the enemy had about five thousand troops. The attack commenced on the morning of the 11th of January, and was stubbornly resisted. The One Hundred and Twentieth was in position on the extreme left of the line, along the river bank below Fort Hindman. At four o'clock P. M. a charge was ordered on the left. The brigades of Burbridge and Landrum charged upon the outer fortifications, while the One Hundred and Twentieth charged directly upon the fort. The enemy, finding that further resistance would be futile, displayed the white flag.

The One Hundred and Twentieth, it is claimed, was the first regiment of the National forces to enter Fort Hindman, Sergeant Wallace, of company C, color-bearer of the regiment, having gallantly scaled the parapet of the fort and planted the colors of his regiment, an act which shortly afterward brought him a Lieutenant's commission.

The fortifications were destroyed by the victorious troops, after which they proceeded by river to Young's Point, Louisiana, six miles above Vicksburg. This place proved to be another unhealthy locality, and the One Hundred and Twentieth suffered so severely from measles and typhus malarial fever that, during the month of February, half the aggregate number present were reported on the sick-list. A large number of the officers became discouraged, and, unwilling to await the issue of their illness, tendered their resignations. Among them was Colonel Daniel French, the acceptance of whose resignation bears date February 18, 1863. The Colonel was constrained to take this step because of the re-appearance of a disease which he had contracted in the Mexican war. His retirement from the service was deeply regretted. Among the great number who died at Young's Point were three of the best officers of the regiment, viz.: Captain Phelan, of company H; First-Lieutenant Armstrong, of company C, and Captain Conyer.

In the month of February the army at Young's Point was reorganized, and General Grant assumed personal command. The One Hundred and Twentieth was assigned to the Third Brigade (Garrard's), Ninth Division (Osterhaus's), and Thirteenth Army Corps (McClernand's). About the middle of March General McClernand's corps moved up to Milliken's Bend, and on the 1st of April marched from that point, Garrard's brigade in advance, to occupy New Carthage. Having reached that place, the Thirteenth Corps proceeded by a circuitous route to Parker's plantation, on the west side of the Mississippi, twenty-five miles below Vicksburg. In the meantime a fleet of iron-clads and several transports had run the gauntlet of the Vicksburg batteries, and on the 29th of April the Thirteenth Corps dropped down to Hard Times Landing, about three miles from Grand Gulf, where the enemy was strongly fortified. The troops were retained on board the transports in readiness to land and take part in the reduction of that place, relying on the navy to silence the enemy's batteries. The navy failed, and the corps debarked and marched to a point three miles below Grand Gulf, and there awaited the arrival of the fleet, which succeeded in running the enemy's batteries that night. Bruinsburg was the next point of debarkation, and the troops having landed, they at once marched in pursuit of the Rebel forces under General

Greene. At midnight of April 20th the National forces caught up with the Rebels, who occupied a strong position on Thompson's Hill, near Port Gibson, Mississippi. The attack began early on the following morning. General Osterhaus's division was engaged on the extreme left, at which point the One Hundred and Twentieth was stationed. The position was well and steadily held, and late in the afternoon a charge was made, which resulted in the complete discomfiture and rout of the enemy. Instant pursuit was made, but night put an end to the combat, the National troops bivouacking on the field of battle. The loss of the One Hundred and Twentieth in this action was one for every eight of the number engaged. The Fifteenth and Seventeenth Corps having come up, the whole force was pushed forward, capturing Jackson, Raymond, and other places of military importance, within the fortnight after the battle of Thompson's Hill.

The One Hundred and Twentieth remained at Raymond until the 18th of May, when it was ordered to the front, and joined the main army on the morning of the 19th, after a forced march of twenty-two hours. Captain Eberhart, Lieutenant Wallace, and others of the regiment were left sick in hospital at Raymond, and were captured by the enemy. On the day of the arrival of the regiment within the National lines, in the rear of Vicksburg, a determined assault was made on the enemy's fortifications, in which the One Hundred and Twentieth participated. It also took part in a still more determined effort on the 22d of May. The division (Osterhaus's) remained at Vicksburg, as part of the besieging force, until the 24th of May, when it was ordered to Black River Bridge to guard against an approach of Rebel forces under General Joe Johnston, and remained there until after the fall of Vicksburg.

On the 6th of July the regiment led the advance of the Thirteenth Corps in the expedition against Jackson, Mississippi, moving along the line of railroad between that city and Black River. The intrenchments in front of Jackson were reached on the 10th of July. The Thirteenth Corps formed the right wing of the attacking column. The One Hundred and Twentieth was actively engaged in this attack from the day the investment began until the 17th of July, the day on which the enemy evacuated the place and retreated across the Pearl River. During the investment the regiment was under an almost constant fire of artillery and infantry. Its casualties of officers were Colonel Spiegel and Lieutenant Spear severely, and Lieutenant Totten mortally, wounded.

The regiment returned with the army to Black River Bridge, arriving there on the 20th of July, and on the 21st was en route for Vicksburg, where it went into camp. On the 8th of August the Thirteenth Army Corps (now commanded by Major-General Ord, a division of which was commanded by General Washburne, the successor to Osterhaus) left Vicksburg for New Orleans, and, after a week's detention at Port Hudson, arrived at its destination. The One Hundred and Twentieth went into camp at Carrollton, a suburb of New Orleans, where it remained until the 5th of September, when it accompanied the corps to Berwick City, and thence to Opelousas, returning to Berwick City on the 9th of September. Soon after the regiment, in company with the Forty-Second Ohio and Twenty-Second Kentucky, under the command of Colonel Sheldon, was sent to Plaquemine, a small town on the Mississippi River, one hundred and ten miles above New Orleans, where it lay in camp until the 23d of March, 1864, when it moved up to Baton Rouge.

The "Banks Expedition," as it was afterward named, began to assume proportion. Toward the latter part of April the Thirteenth Army Corps was ordered to re-enforce General Banks, then at Alexandria, and about to move on Shreveport, Louisiana. On the 1st of May the One Hundred and Twentieth embarked on the City Belle, with orders to report to General McClernand, who had recently assumed command of the Thirteenth Corps, at Alexandria. At four P. M., while the transport bearing the One Hundred and Twentieth was turning a bend on Red River, a short distance above Snaggy Point, a body of the enemy, at least five thousand in number, suddenly rose from a concealed position behind the levee, on the south bank of the river, and poured a murderous volley into the boat. The enemy's batteries also opened on the ill-fated boat, and it was almost instantly rendered unmanageable by a shell. Colonel Spiegel, in command, determined to hold the boat until the arrival of the gunboat Monarch, which had convoyed the City Belle from the mouth of Red River to Snaggy Point. But the odds were too great, and, after a gallant resistance for half an hour, the white flag was displayed. Two or three companies on the lower deck, not seeing the emblem of surrender, kept on firing, which so incensed the enemy that he also renewed the fire from both artillery and infantry. The boat, now totally unmanageable, floated to the opposite shore from the enemy, and a large portion of the regiment jumped ashore and escaped over the levee. Others remained on the boat, prevented from ascending the bank by the rapid firing of the enemy, covering the only spot at which the bank could be sealed. To prevent further effusion of blood, the white flag was again displayed and a formal surrender effected.

Colonel Spiegel, Surgeon Stanton, Assistant-Surgeon Gill, Captains J. R. Rummel, Miller, Fraunfelder, and Jones, Lieutenants Applegate, Baer, and Rouch, and two hundred men fell into the hands of the Rebels, beside the bodies of the killed. The gallant Colonel Marcus M. Spiegel was mortally wounded, and died on the following morning. The prisoners were at once marched off to Camp Ford, near Tyler, Texas.

After a terrible march, enduring the intense heat, the pangs of hunger, and heartless treatment, the wretched captives reached Camp Ford on the 21st of May. In this miserable prison, they remained over a year, and until the final cessation of hostilities in 1865.

Those who were fortunate enough to escape formed themselves into a battalion of three companies, under Lieutenant-Colonel Slocum, coming together for that purpose about one mile from the scene of disaster. Recognizing at once the folly of attempting to rescue their comrades from captivity, the battalion resolved to husband the remaining ammunition and use it to defend themselves against the guerrilla bands infesting the country between them and Alexandria. A fatiguing march of twenty-three hours brought them to Alexandria, where they reported to General Banks, were kindly cared for by that General and his staff, and furnished with rations, clothing, camp equipage, and comfortable quarters. This remnant of the One Hundred and Twentieth was assigned to duty on the 12th of May in the division commanded by General Lawler.

On the 13th of May General Banks began his memorable retreat. The One Hundred and Twentieth, having shared its hardships and privations, reached the Mississippi River on the 21st of May, and went into camp at Morganza, Louisiana, where it remained until the 23d of August. On that day it started with its division on an expedition into Eastern Louisiana, and after dispersing a Rebel force near Clinton, Louisiana, returned to Morganza.

On the 13th of September the One Hundred and Twentieth left Morganza again and proceeded up the Mississippi to the mouth of White River, thence up that river to St. Charles, Arkansas. On the 21st of October General Slaek's brigade, of General McGinnis's division, to which the One Hundred and Twentieth now belonged, moved up to Duvall's Bluff, Arkansas, and on the 27th returned to the mouth of White River. A second expedition was made to Duvall's Bluff, returning to the mouth of White River on the 24th of November.

On the 25th of November an order was issued from the head-quarters of Nineteenth Army Corps for a permanent consolidation of the One Hundred and Twentieth with the One Hundred and Fourteenth Ohio, and carried into effect the next day, the One Hundred and Twentieth forming five companies of the new organization. Lieutenant-Colonel Kelly, of the One Hundred and Fourteenth Ohio, was made Colonel, and Major McKinley, of the One Hundred and Twentieth, Lieutenant-Colonel of the consolidated regiment. The following named officers of the One Hundred and Twentieth, rendered supernumerary by the consolidation, were honorably discharged: Lieutenant-Colonel Slocum, Captains Au, Harvey, Taylor, and Jones, and Lieutenants Van Osteren and Hughes.

This ended the career of the One Hundred and Twentieth as a regimental organization. It entered the service in 1862 with nine hundred and forty-nine officers and men. About one hundred and fifty recruits joined it in 1864, and when merged into the One Hundred and Fourteenth Ohio, on the 27th day of November, 1864, but four hundred and forty of the whole number remained. Up to this time the aggregate number of killed in action, died of wounds and disease, and discharged because of disability, was six hundred.

121st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	WM. P. REED.....	Aug. 22, 1862	Jan. 14, 1863	Resigned November 4, 1863.
Do.	HENRY B. BANNING.....	Nov. 4, 1863	Nov. 10, "	Resigned January 21, 1865.
Do.	AARON B. ROBINSON.....	May 18, 1865	May 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Lieut. Col.
Lt. Colonel.....	WM. S. IRWIN.....	Aug. 18, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned March 17, 1863.
Do.	HENRY B. BANNING.....	March 17, 1863	March 11, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	MARCUS C. LAWRENCE.....	Nov. 4, "	Nov. 10, "	Resigned as Captain October 2, 1862.
Do.	AARON B. ROBINSON.....	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	JACOB M. BANNING.....	May 18, "	May 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as Major.
Major.....	REASON R. HENDERSON.....	Sept. 10, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned April 5, 1863
Do.	JOHN YEAGER.....	April 5, 1863	May 25, 1863	Killed June 27, 1864.
Do.	DAVID LLOYD.....	July 15, 1864	July 15, 1864	Killed August 27, 1864.
Do.	AARON B. ROBINSON.....	Aug. 29, "	Aug. 29, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	DAVID W. HENDERSON.....	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Honorably discharged as Captain Feb. 17, 1865.
Do.	JACOB M. BANNING.....	March 22, "	March 22, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOSHUA VAN BREMMER.....	May 18, "	May 18, "	Must'd out June 6, '65, for appointm't as C. S. (of U. S. A.)
Surgeon.....	T. B. WILLIAMS.....	Sept. 1, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned March 31, 1865.
Do.	H. M. BASETT.....	April 10, 1865	April 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	S. S. SCOVILLE.....	Sept. 1, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned May 4, 1863.
Do.	NATHAN S. HILL.....	" 8, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to Surgeon 52d O. V. I., Oct. 23, 1864.
Do.	S. T. CRITCHFIELD.....	May 30, 1863	May 30, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	GEORGE A. HAISE.....	April 1, 1864	April 1, 1864
Chaplain.....	LEMUEL F. DRAKE.....	Sept. 19, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Marcus C. Lawrence.....	Aug. 9, "	" 12, "	Resigned as Captain October 2, 1864.
Do.	Wilson Martin.....	" 11, "	" 12, "	Resigned July 9, 1863.
Do.	Nelson W. Cone.....	" 11, "	" 12, "	Resigned May 2, 1863.
Do.	Samuel Sharps.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Resigned March 28, 1864.
Do.	David Lloyd.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Harrison Stevens.....	" 13, "	" 12, "	Resigned September 7, 1863.
Do.	John Yeager.....	" 14, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Peter Cockerill.....	" 15, "	" 12, "	Resigned December 26, 1863.
Do.	Aaron B. Robinson.....	" 16, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Benj. F. Odor.....	Sept. 11, "	" 12, "	Killed October 8, 1862.
Do.	Marshall B. Clason.....	Jan. 9, 1863	Jan. 28, 1863	Killed June 27, 1864.
Do.	Silas Emerson.....	Oct. 8, "	" 28, "	Died March 23, 1863.
Do.	David W. Henderson.....	March 26, "	May 6, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joshua Van Bremmer.....	May 12, "	Aug. 1, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Jacob M. Banning.....	April 5, "	" 1, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Ebenezer Peters.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, 1864	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant May 20, 1864.
Do.	Lyman Spaulding.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Resigned July 30, 1864.
Do.	Theodore C. Fitch.....	April 12, "	April 12, "	Resigned November 8, 1864.
Do.	Stephen B. Moorehouse.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. T. Barr.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	James A. Porter.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Killed at Chickamauga.
Do.	Jefferson J. Irvine.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas C. Lewis.....	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	C. R. Van Houten.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Resigned.
Do.	Charles P. Caris.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Died of wounds April 6, 1865.
Do.	Benj. Banker.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James A. Moore.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Miles H. Lewis.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Declined to accept.
Do.	Robert Kerr.....	April 20, "	April 20, "	Out of service.
Do.	Otway Curry.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Mahlon E. Willoughby.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel Gillson.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James H. Ball.....	May 22, "	May 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Orlando M. Scott.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant May 14, 1865.
1st Lieutenant.....	Henry B. Collins.....	April 26, "	April 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John L. Porter.....	May 22, "	May 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. B. Smith.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Dan. J. Matthews.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Isaac D. Irwin.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as Com. Sergt.
Do.	Miles L. Adams.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Marshall B. Clason.....	Sept. 15, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ebenezer Peters.....	Aug. 29, "	" 22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David W. Henderson.....	" 15, "	" 22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Chauncey L. Barlow.....	" 11, "	" 22, "	Resigned January 7, 1863.
Do.	Joshua Van Bremmer.....	" 11, "	" 22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph A. Sheble.....	" 1, "	" 22, "	Honorably discharged March 1, 1863.
Do.	Jacob M. Banning.....	" 17, "	" 22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. McGaughey.....	" 13, "	" 22, "	Resigned May 3, 1863.
Do.	John Denny.....	" 14, "	" 22, "	Resigned January 31, 1863.
Do.	Eli Whitney.....	Sept. 4, "	" 22, "	Deceased.
Do.	Andrew Doekum.....	Aug. 16, "	" 22, "	Resigned November 11, 1862.
Do.	Silas Emerson.....	" 16, "	" 22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Lyman Spaulding.....	Jan. 7, 1863	Jan. 28, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Theodore C. Fitch.....	" 9, "	" 28, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Stephen B. Moorehouse.....	Oct. 8, 1862	April 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. B. Dunbar.....	Jan. 31, 1863	" 9, "	Resigned April 6, 1864.
Do.	Wm. F. Barr.....	Nov. 11, 1862	May 6, "	On detached duty.
Do.	Linus A. Patrick.....	March 1, 1863	" 15, "	Killed June 27, 1864.
Do.	Thomas R. Marshall.....	" 26, "	" 6, "	Resigned February 21, 1864.
Do.	Robert Flemming.....	May 4, "	Aug. 1, "	Revoked.
Do.	James A. Porter.....	" 21, "	" 1, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Elisha B. Cook.....	April 5, "	" 1, "	Resigned September 17, 1863.
Do.	Thomas C. Lewis.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, 1864	Promoted to Captain.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIRST OHIO INFANTRY. 619

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Jefferson J. Irvine.....	Nov. 2, 1863	Jan. 13, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	C. R. Van Houten.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles P. Caris.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Benj. Banker.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James A. Moore.....	April 12, "	April 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Milt'dn D. Wells.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Miles H. Lewis.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Silas Long.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Resigned.
Do.	Robert Kerr.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John J. Miller.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Honorably discharged March 31, 1865.
Do.	Otway Curry.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	A. A. Corrello.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Resigned December 10, 1864.
Do.	Mahlon E. Willoughby.....	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Daniel Gillson.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James H. Ball.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Oriando M. Scott.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 5, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Shaffer.....	April 20, "	April 20, "	Killed by guerrillas.
Do.	John J. Ramage.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ambrose R. Gage.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Declined.
Do.	Clark P. Dwinell.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. J. White.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	John W. Jones.....	Aug. 15, 1862	Sept. 22, 1862	Resigned March 24, 1863.
Do.	Charles W. Brown.....	" 11, "	" 22, "	Resigned March 28, 1863.
Do.	Francis T. Arthur.....	" 11, "	" 22, "	Resigned April 23, 1863.
Do.	Stephen B. Moorehouse.....	" 1, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Elisha B. Cook.....	" 23, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. B. Dunbar.....	" 13, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas B. Colton.....	" 13, "	" 22, "	Resigned February 22, 1863.
Do.	Wm. F. Barr.....	Sept. 4, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph White.....	Aug. 24, "	" 22, "	Killed October 8, 1862.
Do.	Joseph F. Glover.....	" 14, "	" 22, "	Resigned March 17, 1863.
Do.	Robert F. Flemming.....	Oct. 8, "	Dec. 26, "	Killed in action.
Do.	Linus A. Patrick.....	" 8, "	April 9, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Lemon.....	Feb. 22, 1863	" 9, "	Resigned November 6, 1863.
Do.	Thomas C. Lewis.....	March 17, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	C. R. Van Houten.....	" 24, "	May 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles P. Caris.....	" 28, "	" 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James A. Porter.....	Jan. 31, "	" 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. C. Jewett.....	March 26, "	" 6, "	Resigned October 19, 1863.
Do.	Benj. Banker.....	" 1, "	" 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James A. Moore.....	April 5, "	Aug. 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jefferson J. Irvine.....	May 4, "	" 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton D. Wells.....	" 2, "	" 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Andrew Stephens.....	April 23, "	" 1, "	Died of wounds October 15, 1863.
Do.	Miles H. Lewis.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Silas Long.....	Nov. 23, 1863	April 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Otway Curry.....	April 12, 1864	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	A. A. Corrello.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Mahlon E. Willoughby.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert Kerr.....	Feb. 8, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John J. Miller.....	March 14, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel Gillson.....	June 6, "	June 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James H. Ball.....	July 15, "	July 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Oriando M. Scott.....	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. B. Smith.....	April 26, 1865	April 26, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

121st OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIRST OHIO was organized at Camp Delaware, Ohio, in September, 1862, and was composed of recruits from Knox, Union, Delaware, Hardin, Logan, and Morrow Counties, the majority of whom were farmers, and without a knowledge of even the first principles of military tactics.

On the 10th of September the regiment, nine hundred and eighty-five strong, left Camp Delaware for Cincinnati, where it was supplied with worthless Prussian muskets, and placed on guard-duty about the city. It left Cincinnati on the 15th of September, crossed over the river to Covington, Kentucky, and went into camp. Remaining here only five days, the regiment, under orders, proceeded to Louisville, and was there assigned to Colonel Webster's brigade, of Jackson's division, and McCook's corps. Up to this date the men had not been drilled an hour, and, of course, were totally unfit for service in the field. In this unprepared state the regiment was joined to, and marched with, General Buell's forces, in pursuit of Bragg's Rebel army of veteran soldiers.

The only stirring event of this march was the battle of Perryville, in which the regiment participated at great disadvantage, and, of course, did not win for itself much reputation for military efficiency. Captain B. F. Odor of company K, was killed in this battle.

The regiment was detailed to remain on the battle-field to look after the wounded, and bury the dead. It remained in Kentucky, doing guard-duty, and looking after John Morgan's guerrillas, up to January, 1863, and was then taken in transports to Nashville, Tennessee, leaving Louisville about the last of January. From Nashville it went to Franklin, arriving there in February, where it performed service in watching and protecting the right flank of General Rosecrans's army, then lying at Murfreesboro'

On March 27th, on the application and petition of all the line and field officers of the regiment, Lieutenant-Colonel Banning, of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth Ohio, was detailed by General Gordon Granger, to take charge of the regiment, and drill and discipline it; and it was not long before it became one of the best regiments in the brigade to which it was attached. At the request of General Rosecrans, Lieutenant-Colonel Banning was transferred, by order of the War Department, to the command of the One Hundred and Twenty-First.

Nothing of moment occurred while the regiment lay at Franklin. When Rosecrans's army moved forward from Stone River, the regiment moved with it, and was attached to the Reserve Corps, under command of General Gordon Granger.

At Triune, on this march, the regiment was attacked by the Rebel General Forrest. After a sharp fight Forrest was driven back. This affair infused confidence in the men, and taught them the value of drill and discipline. From Triune the army moved forward, and on the 3d of July the One Hundred and Twenty-First entered and occupied the town of Shelbyville, Tennessee, remaining there about three weeks. While in this camp the men were drilled morning and afternoon, notwithstanding the intensely warm weather.

About the 25th of August the regiment was ordered to occupy the town of Fayetteville, in Lincoln County, Tennessee, a strong Rebel district, situated twenty-five miles from any other post. Colonel Banning occupied the town, barricaded the public square, and went into camp, notifying the citizens that in the event of being attacked he would burn the town. The place was held for about ten days, all of which time was spent in drilling the men.

On September 5th orders were received from General Steedman to proceed to Cowan, on the Chattanooga Railroad, by the way of Winchester, where it joined the Reserve Corps, under General Gordon Granger, and proceeded to Chattanooga, and on the 15th went into position at Rossville, eight miles south of Chattanooga.

On the 17th the regiment, in company with the One Hundred and Thirteenth Ohio, under command of General Steedman, made a reconnoissance to Ringgold, and reached that place in time to witness the arrival of Rebel re-enforcements—Longstreet's corps. Next day at ten o'clock A. M. it fell back to its old camp at Rossville, and at six P. M. moved to the relief of Colonel Dan. McCook's brigade, which was engaged with the enemy near Rossville. During the night, the enemy having withdrawn, the regiment again returned to Rossville, reaching its camp on the morning of the 19th.

On the afternoon of the 19th the regiment was ordered to the support of General Whittaker, on the Ringgold Road. It took up a position on the left of the road, and bivouacked for the night. At ten o'clock A. M. on the 20th the regiment became fully engaged in the battle of Chickamauga, forming the right of Steedman's division, of the Reserve Corps.

In the charge made by the regiment to save the only remaining road into Chattanooga, it performed feats of bravery second to no other in the army, and won for itself an enduring name. The battle-cry of the men of the One Hundred and Twenty-First was, "Wipe out Perryville!" and well did they do it. They met and vanquished the Twenty-Second Alabama Rebel Infantry, capturing its colors and a majority of the regiment itself. The enemy was driven back, and the road held; but not without severe loss. The officers killed were: Lieutenants Stewart, Fleming, and Porter; and Captains David Lloyd and Aaron Robinson. Lieutenants Marshall, Stephens, Moore, Mather, Patrick, Bryant, and Mitchell, were wounded. Privates killed, 14; wounded, 70; missing, 3—undoubtedly killed, as they never afterward were heard of.

In speaking of this battle, and of the conduct of the One Hundred and Twenty-First Ohio, and its young commander, Colonel H. B. Banning, General Gordon Granger used the following language: "To him (Colonel Banning), as much as to any other man, is owing the remarkable obstinacy with which two brigades, one of which was largely composed of Ohio troops, for more than seven hours held the key of the position on that battle-field, repulsing the repeated combined attack of more than five times their number, and saving the Army of the Cumberland from destruction." In acknowledging the receipt of the "battle-flag" of the Twenty-Second Alabama Rebel Infantry, captured by the One Hundred and Twenty-First, in the battle of Chickamauga, Governor David Tod said: "The battle-flag I am proud to receive and deposit in an appropriate room, as a trophy of the heroic valor and patriotism of your gallant command. Please convey, Colonel, to your brave officers and men my profound admiration for their glorious achievements on that desperate field, and the heartfelt thanks of all Ohio's loyal people."

Falling back with the army behind the intrenchments at Chattanooga, the regiment took position on the right, and in the reorganization of the army was assigned to the Second Brigade, Second Division, Fourteenth Army Corps, and remained quietly in Chattanooga until the battles of Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge, in which engagements it took a prominent part.

After these battles the regiment again occupied its old camp at Rossville, and recruited its attenuated ranks. It remained in this camp until the 2d of May, 1864, when it moved with the army on the Atlanta campaign.

The first engagement on this campaign in which the regiment participated was that of Buzard's Roost, on the 8th of May. It drove the enemy from an important position at the mouth of the gap. At Resaca it covered the retreat of General Judah's brigade from the charge in which it was repulsed. When the enemy retreated from Resaca the regiment formed a part of General Jeff. C. Davis's division in its movement on, and capture of, Rome, Georgia. In this affair the regiment was complimented by the brigade commander, for having been first inside the city.

On May 24th the regiment took position on what was known as the Dallas line, and was constantly in the front, engaging the enemy, daily losing men, either killed or wounded. June 19th it reached and occupied a position at the foot of Kenesaw Mountain. The regiment suffered severely, losing eleven men killed and wounded. On the evening of the 26th Colonel Durbin Ward relieved the regiment from this position, which that officer named the "Valley of Hell." At ten A. M. the day following the regiment formed part of the charging column of the Fourteenth Corps upon Kenesaw Mountain, and in that disastrous affair lost one hundred and sixty-four officers and men killed and wounded. It succeeded in making a lodgment close up under the enemy's works, and held it, thereby securing the possession of the National dead and wounded; but dearly did the regiment pay for its bravery. Among the commissioned officers the regiment mourned the loss of Major John Yeager, a brave and gallant officer. Also, the accomplished Captain Clason, the young and promising Patrick, and the brave and reliable Lloyd. There were also eight officers wounded.

On the 28th a determined charge of the enemy in front of Kenesaw was repulsed. On July 9th the regiment was engaged at the railroad bridge over the Chattahoochie River, and lost five killed and four wounded. It then went into position on the north bank of the Chattahoochie until the 17th. It crossed the river on the morning of that day, and engaged the enemy at Peachtree Creek on the 18th. On the 20th it crossed the creek, drove the enemy, and occupied his position. On the 22d the regiment joined its brigade, and took position on the right of the National line, three miles from Atlanta. It remained in this position until the 4th of August, when it moved forward and occupied a position on the Sandtown Road. While constructing works it lost one man killed, and one officer and four men wounded. It again advanced its line on the 5th, 6th, and 7th, losing nine men wounded. The works of the enemy were occupied.

On July 28th the grand flanking movement to Jonesboro' was commenced. The One Hundred and Twenty-First took the advance in this movement, acting as skirmishers for the Second Division, leading the column of the Fourteenth Corps. It became hotly engaged with the enemy immediately after passing through the earthworks of the Fourth Corps, and drove him five miles across the Montgomery Railroad. In this affair one man was killed, and two officers and six men were wounded.

The regiment, on the 30th, moved with the army in the direction of the Macon Railroad, and on the 1st of September occupied a position one mile north of Jonesboro', to the right of the Macon Railroad. At four P. M. a charge was made on the enemy's works, carrying them, and capturing Govan's Rebel battery and many prisoners. This affair forced the enemy to retire from Jonesboro', and it fell into the hands of the National army.

The Jonesboro' capture ended the Atlanta campaign. The Rebels having evacuated Atlanta that city was occupied by the National forces on the 8th. The whole army went into camp around Atlanta, and the official reports of the campaign were made. From Colonel Banning's report of the operations of the One Hundred and Twenty-First we copy the following: "I started with four hundred and twenty-nine non-commissioned officers and men, and eighteen commissioned officers. Four officers were killed, and eight wounded; twenty-two men were killed upon the field, and two hundred and five wounded; one captured."

The regiment remained in camp about three weeks, resting the men and putting the regimental affairs in proper shape.

For ability as a commander, and distinguished conduct on the Atlanta campaign, Colonel H. B. Banning was, on the recommendation of General Jeff. C. Davis (approved by General George H. Thomas), brevetted a Brigadier-General of Volunteers.

About the 29th of September the regiment was sent back to Chattanooga by rail, where, on its arrival, it was attached to an expedition against Forrest's cavalry, then raiding on the Chattanooga and Nashville Railroad. It followed the Rebel cavalry, and drove it across the Tennessee River into Alabama. It then returned to Chattanooga, and took part in the chase after Hood's army. Joining the forces under General Sherman at Rome, Georgia, the regiment marched with the expedition to Savannah and the sea. At Rome, Georgia, Colonel H. B. Banning reported to General J. B. Steedman for orders, and the command of the regiment devolved upon Lieutenant-Colonel A. B. Robinson, who led it to Savannah, and up to its final muster-out.

After the fall of Savannah the regiment joined the expedition through the Carolinas. At Bentonville, where the National forces were engaged with the enemy, it took a prominent part, and lost six men killed and twenty wounded. Captain Charles P. Caris was so severely wounded in this affair that he died shortly after, in the hospital, at Goldsboro'. Captain Willoughby was also wounded.

Reaching Goldsboro' the regiment went into camp near the town, and remained there about ten days. This takes the history of the regiment up to the 10th of April, 1865. About that time it moved to Raleigh, and at that place received the news of Lee's surrender, and the fall of Richmond.

The regiment moved from Raleigh to Cape Fear River. In the meantime General Johnston's Rebel army had surrendered to General Sherman. On April 22d it fell back to Holly Springs, and went into camp. This ended the campaigns of the One Hundred and Twenty-First Ohio. On the 1st of May it joined the march of the National forces through Richmond to Washington, and participated in the grand review.

The regiment was then mustered out and sent home. It was paid off and discharged at Columbus, Ohio, June 12, 1865.

Colonel H. B. Banning, the commander of the regiment, was breveted a Major-General "for gallant and meritorious services during the war."

122d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	WM. H. BALL	Oct. 8, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Resigned February 3, 1865.
Lt. Colonel	JOHN M. BUSHFIELD	Sept. 8, "	" 10, "	Resigned May 1, 1863.
Do.	MOSES M. GRANGER	May 1, 1863	May 13, 1863	Resigned December 10, 1864.
Do.	CHARLES M. CORNYN	Dec. 21, 1864	Dec. 21, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	MOSES M. GRANGER	Sept. 10, 1863	Oct. 10, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOSEPH PEACH	May 1, "	May 13, 1863	Discharged February 23, 1864.
Do.	CHARLES M. CORNYN	March 26, 1864	March 26, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel
Do.	JOHN W. ROSS	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	THADDEUS A. REAMY	Sept. 4, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Resigned January 5, 1863.
Do.	WM. M. HOUSTON	Jan. 5, 1863	Jan. 20, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	WM. M. HOUSTON	Sept. 8, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	ALVA RICHARDS	Jan. 16, 1863	Jan. 16, 1863	Promoted to Surgeon 126th O. V. I.
Do.	WM. G. BRYANT	April 8, "	April 8, "	Promoted to Surgeon 197th O. V. I.
Chaplain	CHAS. C. McCABE	Oct. 8, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Resigned January 8, 1864.
Captain	Joseph Peach	Aug. 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Benj. S. Herring	" 16, "	" 10, "	Resigned April 2, 1863.
Do.	George J. Henderson	" 16, "	" 10, "	Resigned February 5, 1864.
Do.	Benj. F. Sells	" 16, "	" 10, "	Discharged February 13, 1863.
Do.	Charles J. Gibeaux	" 16, "	" 10, "	Killed June 15, 1863.
Do.	Charles M. Cornyn	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Orlando C. Farquhar	" 16, "	" 10, "	Discharged February 13, 1864.
Do.	Daniel B. Garey	" 16, "	" 10, "	Honorably discharged December 7, 1863.
Do.	Charles M. Gordon	" 23, "	" 10, "	Resigned February 5, 1864.
Do.	John W. Ross	Sept. 4, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Henry S. Harding	April 2, 1863	June 10, 1863	Honorably discharged, Oct. 24, '64, for wounds
Do.	James T. Cushing	Dec. 16, "	March 26, 1864	Declined.
Do.	Thomas S. Black	June 15, "	Jan. 18, "	Honorably discharged December 19, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Glenn	March 26, 1864	March 26, "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant Sept. 21, 1864.
Do.	Joseph Works	" 26, "	" 26, "	Killed at Wilderness May 6, 1864
Do.	Wm. M. Wilson	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Gilbert H. Barger	" 26, "	" 26, "	Resigned October 26, 1864.
Do.	Alexander A. Taylor	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. Parker Dudrow	June 27, "	June 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John H. Neimeyer	" 27, "	" 27, "	Resigned September 20, 1864.
Do.	Andrew P. Stultz	" 27, "	" 27, "	Declined.
Do.	Judson S. Paul	July 30, "	July 30, "	Commission returned.
Do.	Thomas S. Armstrong	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Revoked and commission returned.
Do.	Ross W. Anderson	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Revoked and commission returned.
Do.	Wm. H. McIlger	" 3, "	" 3, "	Revoked and commission returned.
Do.	Moses D. Wheeler	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles J. Gibson	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. F. Powers	Dec. 7, "	Dec. 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Magruder	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaac B. Hendershott	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John M. Williams	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harrison D. Yarnitt	March 6, "	March 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	James T. Cushing	Sept. 10, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Resigned September 15, 1864.
Do.	David H. Mortley	Aug. 19, "	" 10, "	Honorably discharged December 8, 1863.
Do.	J. Henry Harding	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	J. J. Harris	" 16, "	" 10, "	Resigned May 16, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Glenn	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph Works	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Barton	" 16, "	" 10, "	Resigned April 14, 1863.
Do.	Wm. M. Wilson	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Gilbert H. Barger	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas S. Black	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alex. A. Taylor	" 23, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. Randall	Oct. 8, "	" 10, "	Resigned September 17, 1863.
Do.	J. Parker Dudrow	April 14, 1863	June 10, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John H. Neimeyer	" 12, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Cyrus Scott	May 16, "	" 23, "	Discharged March 24, 1864.
Do.	Andrew P. Stultz	Dec. 8, "	Dec. 29, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Judson S. Paul	March 26, 1864	March 26, 1864	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	James M. Sells	" 26, "	" 26, "	Declined.
Do.	Thomas S. Armstrong	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ross W. Anderson	" 26, "	" 26, "	Honorably discharged April 8, 1865.
Do.	Thomas Kilburn	" 26, "	" 26, "	Killed October 19, 1864.
Do.	Wm. H. McIlger	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Hartley	" 26, "	" 27, "	Killed June 3, 1864.
Do.	Moses D. Wheeler	" 26, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles J. Gibson	June 27, "	June 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Benj. F. Powers	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Magruder	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Isaac B. Hendershott	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jefferson O. McMillen	" 27, "	" 27, "	Deceased.
Do.	John M. Williams	Aug. 29, "	Aug. 29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Harrison D. Yarnitt	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph C. Houston	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Dewitt C. Biondin	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward R. Hilliard	" 3, "	" 3, "	Died of wounds.
Do.	Asbury W. Webster	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Johnson	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Gerselius	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Johnson	March 6, "	March 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David H. Danham	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	John H. Neimeyer.....	Aug. 16, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Cyrus Scott.....	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Judson S. Paul.....	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. Sells.....	" 19, "	" 10, "	Honorably discharged January 4, 1865.
Do.	J. Parker Durow.....	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Sanford M. Boling.....	" 16, "	" 10, "	Honorably discharged December 30, 1864.
Do.	John Anderson.....	" 16, "	" 10, "	Resigned May 8, 1863.
Do.	Thomas S. Armstrong.....	" 16, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. T. Meloy.....	" 23, "	" 10, "	Honorably discharged December 15, 1863.
Do.	Ross W. Anderson.....	Sept. 24, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Kilburn.....	May 16, 1863	June 23, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. McIlger.....	Jan. 7, 1864	Jan. 7, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Hartley.....	April 14, 1863	June 10, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Josiah Norman.....	May 16, "	Aug. 10, "	Deceased.
Do.	Moses D. Wheeler.....	Dec. 15, "	Jan. 18, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles J. Gibson.....	Oct. 22, "	March 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Andrew F. Linn.....	June 27, 1864	June 27, "	Deceased.
Do.	John M. Williams.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Harrison D. Yarnitt.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. F. Parr.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Commission returned.
Do.	Joseph C. Houston.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Dewitt C. Bloudin.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward R. Hilliard.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Asbury W. Webster.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Johnson.....	Aug. 29, "	Aug. 29, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph N. Yaker.....	March 6, 1865	March 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. McMillan.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Arthur Doyor.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank Spencer.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James E. Bradfield.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.

122d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-SECOND OHIO was recruited in the counties of Muskingum, Morgan, Coshocton, and Guernsey. Companies A, B, D, E, and H were mustered into the United States service at Camp Zanesville, on the 30th of September, 1862; company C, on October 3d; G, on October 5th; F, on October 6th, and companies I and K, and the field and staff-officers, on October 8th.

On the 23d of October the regiment left Camp Zanesville, with an aggregate of nine hundred and twenty-seven men, embarked at Zanesville on the steamers Powell and Patton, descended the Muskingum, and encamped at Parkersburg, Virginia. It moved by railroad to Clarksburg, and became a part of the Second Brigade, of Milroy's division; the brigade being composed of the One Hundred and Tenth, One Hundred and Sixteenth, One Hundred and Twenty-Second, and One Hundred and Twenty-Third Ohio Regiments, Carlin's Virginia Battery, and one or two Virginia Companies of Cavalry, and being commanded by Colonel Washburne, of the One Hundred and Sixteenth Ohio. On the 15th of November the regiment moved by railroad to New Creek, and on the 5th of December was temporarily assigned to the First Brigade of Milroy's division, Brigadier-General Cluscret commanding.

The brigade was ordered on an expedition up the valley of the South Branch of the Potomac, and, in a blinding snow-storm, the regiment began its first march. The column advanced by way of Petersburg, in Hardy County, and Wardensville, and struck the Valley Pike at Strasburg. The train accompanying the expedition was guarded by a detachment from the One Hundred and Twenty-Second, and was attacked by McNeil's guerrillas at Wardensville, but they were repulsed with some loss. The regiment was ordered to Wardensville to keep open communications; but lest it might be overpowered by the combined forces of Jones, Imboden, and McNeil, it was ordered to Moorefield, and moved from there, with Milroy's command, toward Romney. McNeil attacked the train just north of the ford of the South Branch, and captured the teams and teamsters of eleven wagons and four men of company A of the One Hundred and Twenty-Second, who were guarding that portion of the train. Passing through Romney the regiment entered Winchester on the 1st of January, 1863, and, with the One Hundred and Tenth Ohio, constituted for a time the garrison of the place.

On the 14th of March Milroy's division became the Second Division, Eighth Army Corps, and the four Ohio regiments which had composed the Second Brigade of the old Division, were organized into the First Brigade of the new division, in connection with Carlin's battery and some cavalry, under the command of Brigadier-General Elliott. The regiment was on scouts and expeditions, either as a whole or in detachments, to Newton, Front Royal, Summit Point, White Post, Cedar Creek, Millwood, and the Blue Ridge. During General Hooker's Chancellorsville campaign the One Hundred and Twenty-Second, with other regiments, was sent up the Shenandoah Valley to capture the town of Staunton. The expedition moved on the 4th of May, and advanced to New Market, when it was ordered back to Winchester by General Schenck.

On the 13th of June companies A and F, of the One Hundred and Twenty-Second, met the advance of J. E. B. Stewart's raid on the Strasburg road, and after a brisk skirmish retired to Winchester. The next day the entire regiment was engaged, and at night it, with other troops, forced a way through the Rebel lines and marched to Harper's Ferry. The regiment lost several officers and men captured, some of whom were not exchanged until April, 1865. It spent one night on Bolivar Heights, and then crossed the Potomac and became a part of the garrison of Maryland Heights. Upon the evacuation of Maryland Heights it accompanied the heavy guns and public stores to Georgetown, District of Columbia, moved through Washington City, and thence by rail to Frederick, where it was assigned to the Second Brigade, Third Division, Third Army Corps. The brigade at once marched against Lee, crossed the Potomac at Harper's Ferry, passed Loudon Heights by the road around their northern base; marched southward along the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge, passed through Manassas Gap, and on the afternoon of July 23d marched in line of battle, as Ewell fell back from Wapping Heights. The next day it returned, passing through the Gap and through Warrenton, encamped about the 1st of August near the Rappahannock.

On account of the New York riots the regiment was ordered to that city, and was distributed by detachments through the disturbed quarters. In September it rejoined the brigade, in camp on the Rappahannock, and marched to Culpepper C. H. During the fight at Winchester in June, about one hundred officers and men of the One Hundred and Twenty-Second became separated from the regiment, and moved with the One Hundred and Sixteenth Ohio to Cumberland, and thence to Bloody Run. They were attached to the command of Major-General Couch, and following his movements through the Cumberland Valley, formed a part of the garrison at Martinsburg. This detachment joined the regiment at Culpepper in the latter part of September.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Second moved from Culpepper to Centerville in October, and held its election for Governor and State officers while in line of battle, on the afternoon that Warren so roughly handled A. P. Hill, at Bristow Station. Returning toward the Rappahannock it crossed the river November 8th, and took part in the skirmish at Brandy Station. On the 26th it was again on the march, crossed the Rapidan, and fought at Locust Grove. It returned to Brandy Station December 3d, and occupied ground on the farm of J. Minor Botts, and constructed winter-quarters. In March, 1864, the Third Division of the Third Corps became the Third Division of the Sixth Corps.

On the 4th of May winter-quarters were abandoned. The next day the brigade guarded the road leading up the south bank of the Rapidan until noon, when it marched to the front in the battle of the Wilderness. The regiment maintained itself well through the fight, losing on the first day over one hundred and twenty men. During the subsequent movements to Spottsylvania, to Guinea Depot, to the North Anna, and across the Pamunkey, the regiment performed its full share of picket and skirmish-duty, being under fire almost every day. Arriving at Tolopotamy Creek, May 30th, it was placed on the skirmish-line, and on the 31st aided in capturing a rifle-pit from the enemy. The regiment moved to Coal Harbor, and was engaged in a general assault on the Rebel works, taking and holding those in its front. On the 3d of June it again advanced and occupied a new position. The regiment moved forward by regular approaches, being continually under fire, and sustaining considerable loss, until June 12th, when it marched to Jones's Bridge, on the Chickahominy, and thence via Charles City C. H. to Wilcox Landing on the James, ascended the river, and reported to General Butler at Bermuda Hundred.

Here a detachment of eighty conscripts and substitutes joined the regiment, and on the 10th it crossed the Appomattox and marched to the lines in front of Petersburg. After a few days' rest it went into position on the extreme left, and after heavy skirmishing on the 22d and 23d, obtained possession of the Weldon Railroad. It was held until a portion of it was destroyed, when the Rebels, having received re-enforcements, regained it. On the 29th the regiment marched to Ream's Station, fortified, destroyed a mile or two of railroad, and returned to Petersburg July 1st. On the same day between fifty and sixty conscripts and substitutes joined the regiment, and on the 6th it moved with the division, on steamers, via Fortress Monroe and the Chesapeake, to Baltimore. The One Hundred and Twenty-Second was divided, and, owing to an accident, one-half of it did not arrive in the Patapsco until July 9th, when it, with the Sixth Maryland and Sixty-Seventh Pennsylvania, started by railway for Frederick.

On that day the other half of the regiment, with the remainder of the division, fought the battle of Monocacy Junction. The troops on the cars arrived in time to cover the retreat, and the Third Division marched to Ellicott's Mills, and moved thence by cars to Baltimore. The Third Division proceeded to Washington, and from there, through Tenallytown, across the Potomac, below the mouth of Goose Creek, and joined the corps near Leesburg.

The regiment followed Early through Snicker's Gap to near Berryville, and then returned to Tenallytown. It soon after advanced via Rockville and Monocacy Junction to Harper's Ferry. On the 30th of July the army recrossed the Potomac, and concentrated near the Junction, where the regiment enjoyed a few days' rest, for the first time since the opening of the campaign. On the 7th of August the army moved to Halltown, and on the 10th marched via Clifton, Berryville, and Newton, to the front of Early's works at Fisher's Hill. After various marches and skirmishes, on the 19th of September Sheridan moved down to the crossing of the Opequan, between Berryville and Winchester, drove in the Rebel pickets, and by ten o'clock A. M. the Sixth Corps was formed in order of battle, two and a half miles east of Winchester. In the battle which ensued the regiment bore an important part, and in entering the town it came upon the old camp-ground which it occupied in 1863, under Milroy.

Before daybreak next day the troops were again on the march, and soon after midday came up with Early at Fisher's Hill. On the 22d five companies of the regiment, with other troops, on the skirmish-line, drove the Rebel skirmishers into their main works, and occupied the hills close to Early's intrenchments. As soon as Crook was known to have gained the enemy's flank, the Second Brigade pushed over the breastworks, captured three guns, and assisted in driving the Rebels from their position. The regiment pursued Early as far as Mount Crawford, and returning to Strasburg, rested a short time, and then moved via Front Royal toward Alexandria.

When the head of the column was approaching the Shenandoah, opposite Ashley's Gap, it was overtaken by an order to return to Cedar Creek, as "Early was coming down again;" and on the 14th of October the Sixth Corps was in position along the hills bordering Cedar Creek. On the 19th the regiment was actively engaged, and assisted in driving Early across Cedar Creek. Sheridan's army went into cantonments south of Kernstown, November 10th, and on the 3d of December the Sixth Corps moved by cars to Washington, and thence by boat to City Point. A few days later the One Hundred and Twenty-Second was in the lines before Petersburg, holding the curtain between Forts Keene and Wadsworth, just west of the Weldon Railroad.

In January, 1865, it moved with the corps to the left, when Grant extended his lines beyond Hatcher's Run, and was placed in position near Fort Fisher. On the 25th of March, with the brigade, it captured and held the Rebel picket-trenches.

At four o'clock A. M., April 2d, the Sixth Corps advanced against the enemy, and drove them from their fortifications. Marching in pursuit, the corps struck Lee's flying army, with the One Hundred and Twenty-Second on the skirmish-line, and broke the Rebel columns. It was present at Lee's surrender, and afterward marched to Danville, Virginia. It returned to Washington City in June, and was reviewed by the President and members of the Cabinet.

It was mustered out on the 26th of July, with an aggregate of five hundred and eighty-five men, and was paid and discharged at Columbus on the 30th of July, 1865.

123d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	WM. T. WILSON.....	Sept. 26, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	HENRY B. HUNTER.....	Sept. 26, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Honorably discharged December 8, 1864.
Do.....	HORACE KELLOGG.....	Dec. 14, 1864	Dec. 14, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	A. BALDWIN NORTON.....	Aug. 22, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Resigned March 3, 1863.
Do.....	HORACE KELLOGG.....	March 6, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	JOHN W. CHAMBERLIN.....	Dec. 30, 1864	Dec. 30, 1864	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon.....	O. FERRIS.....	Sept. 4, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Resigned November 10, 1864.
Do.....	WM. B. HYATT.....	Dec. 12, 1864	Dec. 12, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	J. H. WILLIAMS.....	Sept. 16, 1862	July 29, 1862	Resigned January 25, 1864.
Do.....	WM. B. HYATT.....	Oct. 4, 1864	Oct. 29, 1864	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.....	NAPOLEON B. BRISBINE.....	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	CHAS. G. FERRIS.....	Oct. 14, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Resigned June 9, 1864.
Do.....	John W. Chamberlin.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Horace Kellogg.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Chas. Parmeter.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Resigned October 3, 1864.
Do.....	F. K. Shawhan.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Honorably discharged March 14, 1865.
Do.....	Samuel W. Reid.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Resigned February 12, 1863.
Do.....	Curtis Berry, sen.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Resigned January 31, 1863.
Do.....	Chas. H. Riggs.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Died in prison, S. C., September 17, 1864.
Do.....	John Newman.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Resigned February 3, 1863.
Do.....	Richard A. Kirkwood.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Resigned February 5, 1863.
Do.....	Lewis Zimmers.....	Oct. 16, 1862	Nov. 3, 1862	Died December 12, 1862.
Do.....	Vill R. Davis.....	Jan. 31, 1863	March 30, 1863	Declined.
Do.....	David S. Caldwell.....	Feb. 3, 1863	30, 1863	Dismissed July 29, '64; order revoked March 17, 1866, and hon. disch'd to date July 24, '64.
Do.....	Wm. H. Bender.....	12, 1862	30, 1862	Died in hospital, Columbia, S. C., Sept. 15, '64.
Do.....	Alonzo Robbins.....	Dec. 12, 1862	30, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Dwight Kellogg.....	Feb. 5, 1863	30, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John F. Randolph, jr.....	March 6, 1863	30, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Oswell H. Rosenbaum.....	Jan. 31, 1863	May 25, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Vill R. Davis.....	Dec. 9, 1864	Dec. 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Edwin H. Brown.....	9, 1864	9, 1864	Declined to accept.
Do.....	Wm. V. McCracken.....	9, 1864	9, 1864	Honorably discharged February 1, 1865.
Do.....	Abner Snyder.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Harvey S. Bevertou.....	6, 1865	6, 1865	Honorably discharged February 1, 1865.
Do.....	Benj. F. Blair.....	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Revoked; commission returned.
Do.....	M. Hoadley Smith.....	23, 1865	23, 1865
Do.....	Josephus F. Schuyler.....	April 20, 1865	April 20, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joshua W. Leonard.....	May 3, 1865	May 3, 1865	Revoked.
Do.....	Benj. F. Blair.....	3, 1865	3, 1865	Mustered out June 20, 1865.
1st Lieutenant.....	Wm. V. McCracken.....	Sept. 19, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Edwin H. Brown.....	4, 1862	14, 1862	Declined promotion.
Do.....	Vill R. Davis.....	Aug. 12, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John F. Randolph, jr.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Edgar Martin.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Resigned February 12, 1863.
Do.....	H. L. McKee.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted by President, January 7, 1863.
Do.....	Dwight Kellogg.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Alonzo Robbins.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Oswell H. Rosenbaum.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	D. S. Caldwell.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. H. Bender.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Randolph B Ferris.....	Oct. 16, 1862	Nov. 3, 1862	Resigned March 12, 1863.
Do.....	Abner Snyder.....	Feb. 12, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Benj. F. Blair.....	March 12, 1863	30, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Caleb D. Williams.....	6, 1863	May 23, 1863	Killed in action July 18, 1864.
Do.....	Harvey S. Bevertou.....	Feb. 3, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James H. Gilliam.....	Dec. 2, 1862	30, 1862	Deceased.
Do.....	Josephus F. Schuyler.....	Feb. 12, 1863	30, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	M. Hoadley Smith.....	3, 1863	30, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Frank B. Colver.....	March 6, 1864	May 25, 1864	Honorably discharged April 4, 1865.
Do.....	Joshua W. Leonard.....	Feb. 13, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Thomas W. Boyce.....	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Mentor W. Willoughby.....	Dec. 9, 1864	Dec. 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James B. Pumphrey.....	9, 1864	9, 1864	On detached duty.
Do.....	Elmer E. Husted.....	9, 1864	9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Chas. H. Sowers.....	9, 1864	9, 1864	Mustered out as 2d Lieutenant May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Sherman A. Johnson.....	Jan. 11, 1865	Jan. 11, 1865	Honorably discharged January 13, 1865.
Do.....	George D. Acker.....	6, 1865	6, 1865	Resigned March 16, 1865.
Do.....	Chas. M. Keys.....	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David Miller.....	23, 1865	23, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Frank A. Breckinridge.....	May 2, 1865	May 2, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Fredrick C. Wickham.....	3, 1865	3, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George A. Scoby.....	3, 1865	3, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James Healer.....	3, 1865	3, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
2d Lieutenant.....	Andrew P. Ingerson.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Oct. 14, 1862	Resigned February 12, 1863.
Do.....	Caleb D. Williams.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Abner Snyder.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	J. W. Leonard.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	M. Hoadley Smith.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	James H. Gilliam.....	16, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Frank B. Colver.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Harvey S. Bevertou.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Josephus F. Schuyler.....	22, 1862	14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John Thorn.....	Oct. 16, 1862	Nov. 3, 1862	Declined; commission returned.
Do.....	Thomas W. Boyce.....	Nov. 9, 1862	17, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	James B. Pumphrey.....	Feb. 12, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Mentor W. Willoughby.....	Dec. 12, 1862	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. Williams.....	Feb. 3, 1863	" 30, "	Honorably discharged July 29, 1864.
Do.	George D. Acker.....	" 12, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. H. Sowers.....	" 5, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank A. Breckinridge.....	" 12, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Sherman A. Johnson.....	March 6, "	May 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Elmer E. Husted.....	Jan. 31, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. M. Keys.....	Dec. 8, "	March 8, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David Miller.....	Jan. 26, 1864	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	W. B. Jennings.....	May 3, 1865	May 3, 1865	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Seymour C. Lester.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Eugene Smith.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Error; commission returned.
Do.	Chas. Long.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Moses Allison.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.

123d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Monroeville, in Huron County, Ohio. Seven companies of it were mustered into the service on the 24th of September, 1862; two on the 29th; and one on the 16th of October. The regiment moved on the last-named day to Zanesville, Ohio, whence it was taken down the Muskingum River to Marietta; thence by rail to Belpre, and across the river to Parkersburg, Virginia; thence by rail to Clarksburg, reaching that place October 20th. On the 27th of October the regiment made its first march to Buckhannon, making twelve miles the first day, arriving there on the 30th. This was considered a good day's march, and almost completely exhausted the men, under the enormous loads then permitted to be carried on their persons and in their knapsacks. They left Buckhannon on the 3d of November, going to Beverly, Virginia, making thirty miles in two days. In this march the battle-field of Rich Mountain was passed over. The regiment left Beverly on the 8th of November, and marching up the Tygart River Valley, reached the site of Huttonsville, the village having been burned a few months before. It remained here in camp for eight days, its next march being to Webster, a town on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad (on the Parkersburg branch), four miles from Grafton, a distance of fifty-five miles. This brought the regiment back to within nineteen miles of the point from which it started.

On the 18th of November the One Hundred and Twenty-Third left Webster by rail for New Creek, where it went into camp and remained until about the 12th of December. While lying in this camp Captain Horace Kellogg, of company B, was sent on detached service to St. George C. H., with orders to assess the Rebel citizens of that place and vicinity for outrages committed on Union citizens by Imboden's guerrillas. Five thousand dollars were collected under this order and paid over to the Union sufferers. From this point it marched to Petersburg, West Virginia, arriving there on the 18th of December. On January 3d, 1863, it was ordered to Moorefield to relieve the One Hundred and Sixteenth Ohio, that regiment being surrounded by Rebel Cavalry, and in imminent danger of capture. The Rebels were driven off and the regiment rescued. The Regimental Quartermaster, Lieutenant E. H. Brown, who had been left in charge of stores in the town of Petersburg on the evacuation of the place, placed the stores in one of the churches of the town, set fire to it and burned both church and stores. In attempting to join his regiment with the sick and a few cavalymen, he was captured by the Rebels (Jones's Seventh Virginia Cavalry), but was paroled the next morning.

The regiment left Moorefield on the 10th of January for Romney. It arrived on the 12th and remained about six weeks, engaged almost continually in scouting-duty in that vicinity, protecting the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. While at this place one whole company of the One Hundred and Sixteenth Ohio (in the brigade) and a small detail from the One Hundred and Twenty-Third Ohio, were captured by McNeil's Rebel cavalry, and the train in their charge burned. The men were paroled and sent back into the National lines. On the 1st of March the regiment was ordered up to Winchester, arriving at that place on the 4th. While at Winchester it made several raids up the Shenandoah Valley, going as far as New Market.

Nothing further of interest occurred until the 13th of June, at which time Lee's whole Rebel army, then on its way to Pennsylvania, passed through and surrounded Winchester. On the afternoon of the 13th the One Hundred and Twenty-Third, with its brigade, under Brigadier-General Elliott, had an engagement with General Early's corps, in which it lost in killed and wounded nearly one hundred men. On the 14th the National forces were driven into their fortifications and hardly pressed by the overwhelming numbers of the Rebel army. That afternoon they were under a severe artillery fire for two hours, during which General Milroy, the division commander, directed operations from the crow's nest of the flag-staff as coolly as if on parade. The outworks being carried by the Rebels, a council of war was held, at which time it was decided to evacuate the place. The troops marched out of the works in silence at two o'clock in the morning, leaving the heavy artillery in position, but spiked. At a point about four miles on the Martinsburg Road, at four o'clock in the morning, the Rebels were found in position along the road, and further retreat was cut off. In attempting to cut their way through the regiment lost, in killed and wounded, about fifty men. In this affair the One Hundred and Twenty-Third made three distinct charges, but to little purpose. While it was forming for a fourth charge, Colonel Ely, of the Eighteenth Connecticut, temporarily in command of the brigade, surrendered to the enemy, and the whole brigade, except company D, of the One Hundred and Twenty-Third, were made prisoners of war and taken to Richmond, where the officers of the One Hundred and Twenty-Third remained in Libby Prison about eleven months. Lieutenant William A. Williams and Captain D. S. Caldwell made their escape. Colonel W. T. Wilson and Lieutenant Beverton were exchanged and sent home. The remainder of the officers, after eleven months' confinement in Libby Prison, were removed to Macon, Georgia; thence to Charleston, and placed under fire; thence to Columbia. From this point several officers made their escape, among whom were Captains J. F. Randolph, A. Robbins, and O. H. Rosenbaum; Lieutenants B. F. Blair, Frank B. Colver, Thomas W. Boyce, George D. Acker, J. B. Pumphrey, and V. R. Davis. Captain Randolph made his escape, with a number of other officers belonging to other States, in a woodscow, down the Congaree and Santee Rivers, where they boarded the National gunboat Neipsic. The remaining officers of the One Hundred and Twenty-Third made their way successfully to the National lines in Tennessee. Colonel Wilson, Lieutenant-Colonel Hunter, Captain Chamberlin, Lieutenants Schuyler, M. H. Smith, Frank A. Breckinridge, and Charles H. Sowers were exchanged. Captain Charles H. Riggs died in Charleston, South Carolina, on the 15th of September, 1864, of disease contracted in prison. Captain Wm. H. Bender also died at Columbia (South Carolina) prison of yellow fever. The privates of the regiment were exchanged within a few months and sent to the paroled camps at Annapolis, Maryland, and Camp Chase, Ohio.

Major Horace Kellogg, who was wounded, and made his escape from the enemy at Winchester, collected the stragglers of the regiment at Martinsburg, where the paroled men of the regiment, after exchange, joined him, about the 1st of September, 1863. At this place the regiment was newly armed and equipped. Being deficient in officers, it was engaged mainly in provost and picket-duty until the 1st of March, 1864, and was then distributed as guards along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad between Harper's Ferry and Monocacy Junction.

About the 1st of April the regiment was collected together at Martinsburg, and from thence moved to Winchester. From the last-named place it marched to Cedar Creek, from which it moved, under command of General Sigel, in a raid up the valley. After a sharp fight at New Market (on the 15th of May) with the Rebels under General Breckinridge, in which seventy-nine were lost (killed and wounded) in the regiment, the forces under Sigel were compelled to fall back to Cedar Creek. General Sigel being superseded by General Hunter, preparations were made for the Lynchburg raid.

On the 24th of May, 1864, General Hunter being largely re-enforced, started up the valley by easy marches, halting at Woodstock, Rood's Hill, and New Market, arriving at Port Republic on the night of the 4th of June. On the morning of the 5th, at daylight, the enemy was encountered. A brisk fight ensued, in which the Rebels were whipped and two thousand prisoners captured. The next day the command entered Staunton. The regiment was not actively engaged in this fight, but it performed valuable service in guarding trains.

Halting at Staunton for General Crook's column to come up, the forces were united and the march resumed. On the 11th of June Lexington was reached. At this point General Hunter destroyed the Virginia Military Institute, which had for years been preparing officers for the Confederacy. Three days were spent uselessly at Lexington, and the march was resumed and Buckhannon reached at night, where the James River was crossed. Crossing the Blue Ridge near the Peaks of Otter, the army marched to Liberty, on the Lynchburg and East Tennessee Railroad, and destroyed the track for twenty-five miles. From this point to the vicinity of Lynchburg an almost constant skirmish was had with the enemy.

On the morning of the 14th, near Lynchburg, the Rebels were heavily engaged, the conflict lasting all day. The One Hundred and Twenty-Third lost a number of men killed, wounded, and missing. Learning from prisoners that the Rebels were being largely re-enforced by Early's corps from Richmond, General Hunter silently drew off his army and commenced the memorable and disastrous retreat to the Kanawha Valley, being compelled to march in that direction by the fact that the Rebels had a large force between him and the Shenandoah Valley. This retreat was almost a continual fight from Lynchburg to Salem, on the Lynchburg and East Tennessee Railroad. At Salem two batteries were captured by the enemy, but were afterward recaptured and spiked. Crossing another spur of mountains, the Rebels drew off from the pursuit, and the exhausted troops went into camp for the first time since leaving Lynchburg. On this retreat the most intense suffering was endured from exhaustion and starvation. Numbers of men lay down by the roadside and died from one or the other of these causes. Ten more wearisome days brought the forces of General Hunter to Gauley Bridge, in the Kanawha Valley, where supplies were met and distributed to the famished men.

On the 2d of July the One Hundred and Twenty-Third moved to Camp Piatt, ten miles above Charleston, West Virginia. Taking transports at this point, the regiment (with its brigade and division) steamed down the Kanawha and up the Ohio River to Parkersburg, reaching that place on the 6th of July. Here, taking the cars on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the troops were moved to Cherry Run, a station on that road. From this point the army marched to Martinsburg, the place from which the same troops had started two months and a half before on the Lynchburg raid. The One Hundred and Twenty-Third had started with seven hundred men. It now returned with two hundred and fifty.

From Martinsburg the troops marched to Harper's Ferry and Berlin, at which latter place they forded the Potomac and marched up into Loudon Valley, east of the Blue Ridge. For the purpose of intercepting Early's retreat from Washington to the Shenandoah Valley, it was attempted to throw these troops in his front; but failing, they fell into his rear along with the Sixth Army Corps, which had pursued the Rebels from Washington.

On the 18th of July the Army of West Virginia, of which the One Hundred and Twenty-Third formed a part, was thrown across the Shenandoah River at Snicker's Ferry. Early's Rebel corps was met, and a brisk fight ensued. The army was driven, and, in attempting to recross the river, a number of the men of the One Hundred and Twenty-Third were killed, including Lieutenant C. D. Williams of company B. That night the Rebels retreated to Winchester and up the valley.

On the 22d of July the National troops moved after the Rebels toward Winchester, and on the 23d came up with them, and after a sharp skirmish, drove them. The next morning the Rebels attacked in force, and in their turn drove the National troops, and compelled them to retreat across the Potomac into Maryland at Williamsport. The next day they recrossed the Potomac at Harper's Ferry; then back again into Maryland. A second time they crossed the Potomac, going as far as the Pennsylvania line, anticipating that Early would make a raid on Washington or Baltimore. Remaining three or four days in the mountains, the National troops were ordered back to Monocacy Junction, where the Sixteenth Corps lay in readiness for a march up the valley.

A new era now dawned upon the Shenandoah Valley. The command of the National army was placed in the hands of General Phil. Sheridan. Getting his troops well in hand, General Sheridan moved them across the Potomac at Harper's Ferry and on up the valley.

At Berryville the Rebels were met and skirmished with, both sides losing a few men. Following the Rebels to Cedar Creek and Fisher's Hill, skirmishing by the way, the army went into camp for several days. Anticipating heavy Rebel re-enforcements, they quietly retreated during the night of the 16th of August, and fell back on the works at Harper's Ferry. Remaining at Harper's Ferry, building fortifications, until the 26th of August, they again moved up the valley as far as Charlestown. Berryville was the next point reached, where the One Hundred and Twenty-Third had a sharp fight with the enemy, and lost twenty-five men killed, wounded, and captured. The National troops lay at Berryville until the 19th of September, on the morning of which day the enemy was met near Winchester, and another battle was fought. In this affair the regiment was engaged on the right, in Colonel Thoburn's brigade, and formed part of the grand flanking column which changed the fortunes of the day. At the commencement of the battle the National forces were hard pressed. The reserve, in which was the One Hundred and Twenty-Third, was brought up about three o'clock in the afternoon, moving from their position on the opposite bank of the Shenandoah River. Crossing the river and moving up a ravine, already filled with the debris of their hard-pressed companions, the regiment gained a position on the right of the National forces, and immediately formed for a charge. The ground passed over in this charge was hilly and rough, and covered by the enemy's artillery. The progress of the charging line was, therefore, necessarily slow, the men being compelled to lie down at intervals. Nearing the Rebel works, the regiment made a final dash, and had the satisfaction of witnessing the enemy in full retreat, ending in a perfect rout. This movement decided the fortunes of the day.

The routed Rebel army was pressed by the infantry to a point two miles beyond Winchester, and the cavalry was then left to gather the fruits of the victory. Resting their wearied bodies during the night, the infantry at early dawn again took the road in pursuit. This alacrity in reaping the fruits of a victory was characteristic of their dashing commander. The loss of the One Hundred and Twenty-Third in this battle was five officers and about fifty men. The infantry extended their pursuit to Strasburg, where the enemy was discovered behind strong works. General Crook's command, in which was the One Hundred and Twenty-Third, was placed in the reserve. Moving his command to the right of the National lines, he maneuvered so as to reach the left flank of the Rebel army. The movement was successfully performed; and so quietly and secretly was this march made that the side of a wooded mountain, overlooking the Rebel forces, was reached before their notice was attracted. Watching the chances, General Crook charged his column down on the devoted Rebels and scattered them like chaff. In this action the regiment lost six men.

General Crook's command encamped near the battle-field. The next day (23d of September) the rest of the National army moved up the valley to Harrisonburg, leaving the One Hundred and Twenty-Third at Fisher's Hill to bury the dead and gather the captured arms thrown away by the Rebels. Completing this work, it joined the main army at Harrisonburg. Remaining quietly in camp for several days, the National forces commenced a retrograde movement down the valley to Cedar Creek for the purpose of drawing the enemy after them. The Rebel forces followed and went into their old position at Fisher's Hill, where they strengthened that already almost impregnable position.

The National forces remained at Cedar Creek until the 19th of October, engaged in building fortifications and keeping close watch on the enemy. During this time the brigade in which was the One Hundred and Twenty-Third, in meeting and repelling a reconnoissance made by the enemy, lost its gallant brigade commander, Colonel Thoburn, of the Fourth Virginia.

Now comes disaster. The fortifications, built with so much care and labor by the National forces, were destined to fall into the hands of the enemy. On the morning of the 19th of October, at early dawn, the enemy, under cover of a dense fog, crept up through a gap unfortunately left in the National line of pickets, and turned the left flank of the army, held by General Crook's corps, pushing the army back five or six miles, capturing the works and all that were in them. In this rout the Sixth Corps acted as a breakwater to the Rebels. When they reached that corps they were held in check until the National lines were re-formed. At this juncture General Sheridan, who had been absent at Winchester, appeared on the field, having made his famous ride of twenty miles. He at once infused new life into the demoralized forces. Making some slight changes in the order of battle, he rode down the lines amid the cheers of the men, and ordered an immediate advance of the entire line. The enemy were swept from the field, losing all their own artillery and that which they had captured in the morning. The army went into camp that night on the same ground from which it had been driven in the morning. This wholesale rout of Early's forces was complete and final. The Shenandoah Valley was cleared almost entirely of opposition to the National arms.

Falling back to Kernstown, near Winchester, the troops went into camp for about ten days. Thence they moved to the Opequan Creek to guard the line of the Harper's Ferry and Winchester Railroad. The One Hundred and Twenty-Third was engaged on this duty for about one month, and was then ordered to report to General Butler, commanding on the north side of the James River, near Bermuda Hundred, and attached to the Twenty-Fourth Army Corps, General Ord commanding. It arrived at Deep Bottom on the 27th of December, 1864. The regiment lay in camp in this vicinity until the 25th of March, 1865, at which time it broke camp and moved to the Chickahominy to aid Sheridan across that river. The Twenty-Fourth Corps was then sent to the south side of the James, to the extreme left of the National lines, on Hatcher's Run. On the 30th of March an advance was made on the Rebel works, and skirmishing continued until the morning of the 2d of April, when a general charge was made and the Rebel works were carried. The One Hundred and Twenty-Third during this time was for three days and nights on the skirmish-line, without relief, and their rations had to be carried to them by the Regimental-Quartermaster, Lieutenant E. H. Brown—a most dangerous duty. The loss of the regiment was quite severe while engaged in this long skirmish. It captured two battle-flags and a number of prisoners. The Rebels were followed toward Petersburg, their forts on the way being captured, excepting at one or two points, where a sturdy resistance was made. The One Hundred and Twenty-Third on account of its having been on the skirmish-line for such a long time, was permitted to rest for some hours, and therefore did not participate in the bloody charge on Fort Gregg. On the 3d of April the whole National army marched in pursuit of Lee's Rebel army toward Danville, reaching Burke's Junction in the night of the 5th at twelve o'clock. At this point the One Hundred and Twenty-Third was included in a force sent on an expedition to burn High Bridge, fifteen miles in the advance, on the South Side Railroad. Within half a mile of the bridge, just as the regiment was opening a fight with a brigade of Rebel home-guards, the Rebel cavalry in advance of Lee's army came in their rear, and, after a fight of three or four hours, with heavy loss on both sides, the National command, including the One Hundred and Twenty-Third, was captured. Captain J. F. Randolph, of the regiment, was shot through the right lung in this fight. General Reed, the commander of the expedition, was killed. The One Hundred and Twenty-Third, being prisoners of war, was carried along with the Rebel army to Appomattox C. H. At this point the Rebel army surrendered to the National forces under General Grant, and the prisoners were thus rescued.

The regiment immediately thereafter left City Point on transports for Annapolis, Maryland, and thence to Camp Chase, Ohio, where they remained until the 12th of June, and were then mustered out of the service.

124th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	OLIVER H. PAYNE.....	Jan. 1, 1863	Jan. 14, 1863	Resigned.
Do.....	JAMES PICKANDS.....	June 10, 1865	June 20, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Lieut. Col.
Lt. Colonel.....	OLIVER H. PAYNE.....	Oct. 22, 1862	Jan. 14, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	JAMES PICKANDS.....	Jan. 1, 1863	" 14, "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	GEORGE W. LEWIS.....	June 20, 1865	June 20, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Major.
Major.....	JAMES PICKANDS.....	Oct. 23, 1862	Jan. 14, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	JAMES B. HANESON.....	Jan. 1, 1863	" 14, "	Killed.
Do.....	GEORGE W. LEWIS.....	" 18, 1865	" 18, 1865	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	JOHN W. BULLOCK.....	June 20, "	June 20, "
Surgeon.....	DEWITT C. PATTERSON.....			Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	DEWITT C. PATTERSON.....	Aug. 22, 1861	Jan. 14, 1863	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.....	DAVIN A. MORSE.....	March 11, 1863	March 11, "	Honorably discharged August 12, 1863.
Do.....	T. S. BIDWELL.....	April 21, "	April 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	SETH D. BOWKER.....	Jan. 1, "	Feb. 2, "	Resigned September 19, 1863.
Captain.....	Wm. Wilson.....	July 15, 1862	Jan. 14, "	Discharged February 18, 1865.
Do.....	George W. Lewis.....	Aug. 23, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Robert Wallace.....	Oct. 15, "	" 14, "	Resigned May 20, 1863.
Do.....	George W. Aumend.....	" 26, "	" 14, "	Died.
Do.....	John W. Bullock.....	" 29, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Horace E. Dakin.....	" 30, "	" 14, "	Discharged May 23, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. A. Powell.....	Nov. 13, "	" 14, "	Resigned April 23, 1864.
Do.....	Eben. S. Coe.....	" 17, "	" 14, "	Mustered out for promotion March 25, 1865.
Do.....	James H. Frost.....	Dec. 2, "	" 14, "	Killed at Mission Ridge.
Do.....	Daniel Stratton.....	Feb. 6, 1863	Feb. 19, "	Commission returned.
Do.....	Sherbourne B. Eaton.....	May 23, "	June 23, "	Resigned November 3, 1864.
Do.....	Daniel Stratton.....	" 20, "	" 3, "	Resigned October 18, 1863.
Do.....	Hiram H. Manning.....	Nov. 10, "	Nov. 10, "	On detached service.
Do.....	John B. Irwin.....	Sept. 10, "	March 2, 1864	Died of wounds June 10, 1864.
Do.....	Cleveland Van Dorn.....	July 27, 1864	July 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John Raldaie.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	J. F. McGinnis.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alvin S. Galbraith.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Chas. D. Hammer.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Declined to accept.
Do.....	Wm. Hannon.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out June 9, 1865.
Do.....	Wm. Treat.....	Feb. 23, "	Feb. 23, "	Declined to accept.
Do.....	John C. Smith.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Haskell Proctor.....	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out June 9, 1865.
Do.....	John Stevens.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George Daum.....	July 5, "	July 5, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
1st Lieutenant	Cleveland Van Dorn.....	" 25, 1862	Jan. 14, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John Raldaie.....	Aug. 23, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Sherbourne B. Eaton.....	Oct. 1, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Daniel Stratton.....	" 15, "	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. C. Travis.....	" 26, "	" 14, "	Resigned March 22, 1863.
Do.....	Thos. J. Carran.....	" 29, "	" 14, "	Resigned January 10, 1864.
Do.....	Andrew J. Moulton.....	" 30, "	" 14, "	Resigned March 2, 1863.
Do.....	James Brennan.....	Nov. 13, "	" 14, "	Resigned April 28, 1863.
Do.....	Barrett W. Kerfoot.....	" 17, "	" 14, "	Resigned June 7, 1863.
Do.....	Anthony Caldwell.....	Dec. 2, "	" 14, "	Resigned March 19, 1863.
Do.....	Albert H. Lewis.....	" 1, "	" 14, "	Resigned September 3, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. R. Waldo.....	Feb. 6, 1863	Feb. 19, "	Commission returned.
Do.....	John R. Lamb.....	May 20, "	June 3, "	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant July 17, 1863.
Do.....	J. F. McGinnis.....	March 2, "	April 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Hiram H. Manning.....	" 22, "	" 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Alvin S. Galbraith.....	" 19, "	" 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John B. Irwin.....	April 28, "	June 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. R. Waldo.....	May 20, "	Aug. 25, "	Killed.
Do.....	Wm. Hannon.....	June 7, "	June 23, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Chas. D. Hammer.....	May 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out June 9, 1865.
Do.....	Chas. M. Steedman.....	March 2, 1864	March 2, 1864	Killed.
Do.....	Wm. Treat.....	Sept. 3, 1863	Jan. 11, "	Declined promotion; mustered out with reg't.
Do.....	John C. Smith.....	March 2, 1864	March 2, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Terrence Dempsey.....	" 2, "	Oct. 2, "	Killed December 19, 1864.
Do.....	Haskell Proctor.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John Stevens.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Samuel B. Payne.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Killed in action December 16, 1864.
Do.....	George Daum.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John S. Nimmons.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Chas. E. Wyman.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alex. Casky.....	Oct. 13, "	Oct. 13, "	Mustered out June 9, 1865.
Do.....	Chas. E. Warren.....	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Samuel P. Fulton.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	John K. Batchelor.....	June 12, "	June 12, "
Do.....	John R. Leman.....	" 12, "	" 12, "
Do.....	Herbert A. Smith.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alfred Wilson.....	" 12, "	" 12, "
Do.....	Chas. D. Collins.....	July 5, "	July 5, "
2d Lieutenant	George Doubleday.....	" 25, 1862	Jan. 11, 1863	Resigned June 13, 1863.
Do.....	Chas. M. Steedman.....	Aug. 23, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Oliver P. McIlrath.....	Sept. 1, "	" 14, "	Resigned January 27, 1863.
Do.....	J. F. McGinnis.....	" 29, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Orrin Story.....	" 30, "	" 14, "	Resigned August 1, 1863.
Do.....	John O'Brien.....	Oct. 15, "	" 14, "	Resigned March 19, 1863.
Do.....	John B. Irwin.....	Nov. 13, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Hiram M. Manulug.....	Dec. 2, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Albert H. Lewis.....	Dec. 2, 1862	Jan. 14, 1863	Resigned March 13, 1863.
Do.	Fred. Hogendobler.....	Feb. 9, 1863	Feb. 19, "	Commission returned.
Do.	Fred. Hogendobler.....	May 1, "	July 22, "	Resigned March 9, 1864.
Do.	John C. Smith.....	March 13, "	April 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John R. Lamb.....	May 19, "	" 13, "	Resigned July 17, 1863.
Do.	Denton J. Snider.....	Feb. 28, "	" 3, "	Resigned September 9, 1863.
Do.	Terrence Dempsy.....	May 22, "	June 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Hannon.....	March 2, "	April 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Stevens.....	May 20, "	June 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Haskell Proctor.....	April 28, "	" 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Treat.....	June 13, "	July 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel B. Payne.....	" 7, "	Aug. 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Daum.....	Nov. 12, "	Dec. 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John S. Nimmous.....	" 1, "	Feb. 19, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. E. Wymann.....	May 17, 1864	May 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank W. Smith.....	July 9, 1865	July 9, 1865

124th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was recruited in the northern counties of Ohio, with the exception of one company from Cincinnati (company I, Captain J. H. Frost). It rendezvoused at Camp Taylor, and on the 1st of January, 1863, marched into Cleveland, seven hundred and fifty strong, ready to take the cars for the field. It went via Cincinnati to Louisville, and thence to Elizabethtown, Kentucky, where it made its first camp. Remaining at this camp until March, it was ordered back to Louisville, when, after remaining a few days, it was embarked on board transports, and in company with twenty thousand other troops, after a passage of ten days, was landed in Nashville, Tennessee, reaching that city on the 10th of February.

From Nashville the regiment was sent to Franklin, Tennessee, where it went into camp and remained until the 2d of June, occupying its time in building forts, perfecting its drill, and getting itself into proper shape for the battle-field. The Rebel forces were in close proximity to Franklin, and it required the strictest watch to keep them from gaining some advantage. Frequent skirmishes were had with them—one in particular, on the 5th of March, which gave the regiment a fine chance to exhibit its efficiency of movement in battle.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth, with three other infantry regiments, a battery, and some cavalry, under General Colburn, were ordered to make a reconnoissance down the Columbia Pike. The enemy was met about four miles from Franklin, and after slight skirmishing driven back. Somewhat elated at this seeming success, the National troops pushed on to Thompson's Station, eight miles from Franklin. At this point the Rebels were encountered in much superior force, strongly posted behind stone walls. A battle ensued, lasting two hours, the ground being stubbornly contested. The fighting was continued until the majority of the command were either killed or taken prisoners. General Colburn was captured, and only eleven members of one of the regiments returned to camp. The One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth was fortunately not actively engaged, but was detailed to guard the ammunition-train. The bold front it presented to the enemy enabled the train and artillery to get safely off the field.

Nothing of interest occurred during the further stay of the regiment at Franklin, excepting that it suffered severely from camp fevers, measles, diarrhea, and other diseases incident to camp life. One company in particular, composed of sturdy, robust farmers and their sons, was literally decimated. Through all this suffering the regiment was compelled to stand in line of battle one hour before daybreak each morning, an hour too early and too dark for the purposes of drill, the inactivity of which chilled and weakened the bodies of the men.

The camp at Franklin was abandoned on the 2d of June, and after a day's march again pitched at Triune, Tennessee. Remaining in this camp a few days, the regiment was then ordered to join General W. B. Hazen's brigade at Readyville. From this point the regiment and brigade moved to Manchester, Tennessee, and made a reconnoissance to Elk River, where they spent the 4th of July, 1864; after which they returned to Manchester and went into camp. While here the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth was assigned to the Second Brigade, Second Division of the Twenty-First Army Corps, with General Palmer as the division and General Crittenden as corps commander.

The camp of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth, at Manchester, was one of great beauty and was praised for its neatness and cleanliness. While the regiment remained in it the men fared sumptuously off the luxuries of corn and fruit afforded by the farms and orchards around them. Cooking utensils were procured and roast dinners became quite common. The health of the men improved under this "home" treatment, and the sick list became almost obsolete. The drill and discipline of the men were not, however, neglected, and the regiment became so proficient in both that inspecting officers were forced to give it high praise. Its cleanliness of arms and clothing was remarkable. This standing was held by the regiment until muster-out, and was due to the untiring labors of the Colonel and Lieutenant-Colonel.

On the 16th of August the tents were struck at Manchester, and the line of march taken up over the Cumberland Mountains. On the 21st Poe's Tavern was reached in the Squatchie Valley, and a camp formed. Here again the men were in luck, in being supplied with a plentiful harvest of corn, fruit, potatoes, etc. This camp was occupied until the night of the 9th of September, when the regiment marched to the Tennessee River and forded that swift-running stream, so deep as to reach the waists of the men; by break of day the opposite bank was safely reached and the march continued, passing through the town of Ringgold and going into camp at Lee & Gordon's Mills, near the battle-ground of Chickamauga.

The next day the regiment made a reconnoissance into Chattanooga Valley and from there to Pond Springs, returning on the night of the 18th of September. At three o'clock in the morning of the 19th it bivouacked two miles north of Lee & Gordon's Mills, in double column at half distance. The Rebel army was then in motion and about to inaugurate the battle of Chickamauga. In the morning at six o'clock the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth moved forward to the State Road and stood to arms until eleven o'clock, expecting every moment to be engaged with the enemy. Heavy firing had commenced to the left, and throwing out company B as flankers, the regiment moved along the road in that direction. Gaining a position on the left, the regiment came into line and the bugle sounded the advance. It had moved forward but a short distance when firing commenced. The regiment was immediately deployed into line of battle under a heavy fire from the enemy, which was promptly returned by volleys until the men had expended their stock of ammunition. Being relieved, the regiment fell back and replenished their cartridge-boxes, and again took position in the front, delivering, as before, a rapid and destructive fire, which compelled the enemy to give ground. This was the first continued severe fire the regiment had encountered and it stood up to the work well.

The regiment was now moved to the right and went into position on the left of the brigade, but had barely got into line when the front line gave way before the enemy, and the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth, with other regiments, received the full force of a terrible fire from the Rebel line. The fire was promptly returned. The regiment being unsupported was compelled to fall back; but as it did so, stubbornly delivered several withering volleys, which, together with the steady fire of two batteries massed on the left of the line, served to check the exultant Rebel advance.

Between seven and eight o'clock in the evening heavy firing was heard on the left. The regiment moved in that direction, and went into bivouac for the night in front of the Rebel Joe Johnston's division. This rest was grateful in the extreme, as the men had been on their feet fighting since early morning, and had not tasted food during the day. They were also consumed by an oppressive thirst, as it had been impossible to procure water during the battle. In summing up the losses of the day it was found that one hundred gallant men of the regiment were either killed, wounded, or captured.

The morning of Sunday, 20th of September, dawned in splendor. With the knowledge of having gained ground from the enemy on the previous day, the regiment at once threw up a slight breastwork of logs and rails, with a battery on the right for support. From behind this breastwork the regiment poured into the enemy's ranks volley after volley, with great rapidity, and repulsed several desperate attempts to drive them from the position and capture the battery. At three o'clock P. M. the enemy retired, and the regiment was ordered to the right to the support of Harker's brigade, then hard pressed. In executing this movement it suffered a loss of several killed and wounded, from having encountered a deadly fire of grape and canister. Getting into position, the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth again drove the enemy from its front; but they now appeared again on the right. The regiment again changed position and poured into the Rebel ranks a deadly fire, by battalions, which caused them to retire. It was now twilight, and the regiment was formed into a hollow square, and remained so until after dark, when a retreat was ordered. Taking the Rossville road, it bivouacked that night in line of battle in Rossville. Remaining there until eight o'clock next morning (21st), it moved to the front line, went into position on Mission Ridge, and threw up a breastwork of rails and stone, under cover of which it remained all day, the target for a Rebel battery in its front. That night the retreat was continued, and the next day (22d) the regiment went into camp near Chattanooga.

The total loss of the regiment in this battle, of killed, wounded, and missing, was one hundred and forty. Colonel Payne was among the wounded.

At Chattanooga the regiment and army were immediately put to work building forts and throwing up breastworks. The men and animals were necessarily put on half rations, with a prospect of sheer starvation if relief was not soon afforded.

While at Chattanooga the army was reorganized, and the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth was assigned to the Second Brigade, Third Division, of the Fourth Army Corps.

On the evening of October 26, 1863, orders were received to make preparations for a move in light marching trim, with one hundred rounds of cartridges per man. The movement was to be made with the greatest caution, as the importance of success was incalculable. About nine o'clock in the evening the regiment, in company with a detachment of about seventeen hundred men, carefully picked for the service, embarked on board pontoon-boats, and floated noiselessly down the Tennessee River, passing Lookout Mountain, keeping close within the shadow of the opposite shore, and succeeded in passing the enemy's pickets, stationed along the shore, without discovery. Reaching a point a few hundred yards below Lookout Mountain, the boats pulled quickly to shore, and the troops rushed up the bank under a heavy fire from the enemy, who had now become apprised of their approach. The Rebels were instantly driven from their position and Raccoon Mountain secured. A portion of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth was advanced as skirmishers, consisting of company I, Lieutenant Galbraith in command, and the remainder employed in throwing up breastworks.

Daylight appeared, and the enemy made several desperate attempts to retake the position; but each time they were handsomely repulsed, and finally driven from that part of the Wahatchie Valley. A pontoon-bridge was then thrown across the river at Brown's Ferry, near where the force had landed. This bridge enabled General Hooker's army to cross the river, and thus reach Chattanooga and virtually raise the siege.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth remained at Raccoon Mountain a few days, subsisting on parched corn and boiled wheat, when it was relieved and supplied with rations by Hooker's forces. It then returned to its old camp in the suburbs of Chattanooga.

On the afternoon of November 23d the regiment moved out and took position on the left of the front line of battle, in the struggle for the occupation of Mission Ridge. It steadily advanced, and carried the enemy's rifle-pits, on a range of hills midway between Fort Wood and Mission Ridge. Still advancing, it took the Rebel works on the hill, where, exposed to a heavy fire of artillery from the enemy's batteries on Mission Ridge, the men worked briskly until dark, throwing up breastworks. The same work was continued up to one o'clock next morning, when the regiment was ordered on picket-duty for twenty-four hours. On the afternoon of the 25th it was ordered on the skirinish-line, with instructions to advance at the signal of six guns, and take possession of the enemy's works at the foot of Mission Ridge. A previous attempt to take these works had failed, and the enemy was fully prepared to receive any further attempts of the kind.

A clear space of six hundred yards had to be passed over in charging on the works. At the appointed signal the regiment steadily advanced, and, firing rapidly, the enemy began to retreat. With a cheer they gallantly charged and carried the works, immediately opening a heavy fire upon the retreating Rebels. It was soon demonstrated that to remain in this position was impossible, as they were exposed to a murderous fire from the Rebel batteries, on the right and left, from the top of the ridge. No orders had been given to advance beyond the point taken, and the regiment was in doubt as to its duty. All at once a simultaneous shout of forward went up from the line, and the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth, filled with confidence by the success of its achievements, commenced to scale the mountain, scrambling up its rugged sides amid showers of grape and canister thrown from Rebel batteries on the right and left, and bullets from Rebel musketry in front, which, in their destructive flight, plowed the earth and sent stones, dirt, and the shingles from the roofs of the Rebel shanties, which lined the base of the mountain, flying through the air, imparting a terrific appearance to the scene. The top of the mountain was reached, and the Rebel guns were captured and turned upon the retreating foe. Thus, without orders, this stronghold was carried by the indomitable bravery and enthusiasm of the soldiery.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth captured seven pieces of artillery, two caissons, eighty stand of arms, and a wagon-load of ammunition. Its loss was twenty-three killed, four wounded, and nineteen missing. Among the killed was Captain James H. Frost, who was mortally wounded while in the act of leaping upon the enemy's works on the top of the mountain.

On the evening of the 26th of November the regiment returned to camp, and was at once ordered to prepare for a march to the relief of Knoxville. All things being in readiness, it started with a portion of the army for that place on the morning of the 30th of November, 1863, arriving opposite Knoxville December 10th. The Rebels, anticipating relief to the besieged army, had made a furious assault on the garrison, but had been repulsed; and on the day previous to the arrival of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth, and other re-enforcements, retired from before that place.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth, after remaining a few days at Knoxville, moved off and went into camp at Clinch Mountain. The weather was intensely cold, and from the hasty manner in which the regiment was compelled to march to the relief of Knoxville the men were illy prepared to endure it. Their clothing was very scant, and with but few tents, it was a struggle with them to keep from freezing. While lying in this dreary camp the only and imperative occupation of the men was that of cutting and transporting wood to the camp, in order that huge fires might be kept up, both night and day.

From the Clinch Mountain camp the regiment made a reconnoissance, about the middle of January, 1864, to Dandridge, where it commenced the erection of log houses for winter-quarters, but the Rebels, discovering the intention, made an advance in superior force, compelling them to evacuate the place.

During the time the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth remained in East Tennessee it was almost constantly employed in reconnoissances, keeping it on the move, and preventing the men from drawing the necessary clothing. As a consequence, they were ragged, dirty, and unseemly in appearance. As an instance of the resources of a "Yankee" regiment in distress, an officer of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth, noted for his industry and perseverance under difficulties, finding his men without soap, went to work and manufactured a quantity, and astonished the rest of the regiment by the cleanliness of the members of his company. It was drily remarked by a wag, that from the visible preponderance of white blood in their faces, these men might possibly be allowed to vote at the next election, while their more unfortunate companions would from their dark complexions, naturally be refused until an exploration could be made with pick and shovel. The men generally were without stockings; many were shoeless, and in their drawers, and all in such condition as to bring shame on the Commissariat that had been so liberally supplied by a generous people. Fortunately the regiment at this time received from the good people of Green Springs, Ohio, many presents of necessary articles of clothing, contributed by the Ladies' Soldiers' Aid Society of that place.

About the 15th of April, 1864, under an order from the War Department to concentrate the army, preparatory to the spring campaign, the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth moved to McDonald Station, about thirty miles east of Chattanooga, where it was thoroughly clothed and equipped.

Resting in this camp some days, preparatory to starting on the Atlanta campaign, the regiment then marched to Tunnel Hill Station, on the railroad, and thence to Roeky Face Ridge. At this point the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth was engaged with the enemy, and made a charge against his works, in which it suffered severely. Marching and fighting it made its way to Dalton, and from Dalton to Resaca, Cassville, and New Hope Church. Here, again, it was engaged in a charge, and lost many brave men and officers. Colonel Pickands was severely wounded.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth participated in the flanking movement to Jonesboro', and consequent evacuation of Atlanta. Then back to Atlanta to reap the promised rest of thirty days in camp.

They were not, however, permitted to remain long in their camps. There came a change in the tactics of the Rebel army.

In following Hood's army the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth marched to Gaylesville and Athens, Alabama; thence to Pulaski and Columbia, passing through Franklin without participating in the battle of that name, and reaching Nashville in advance of the main forces, went into camp behind the intrenchments of that place. In the battle of Nashville the regiment participated, and at its close joined in the pursuit of the defeated and demoralized Rebel army.

In this pursuit the One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth marched to Huntsville, Alabama, where it gave up the chase and went into camp. From Huntsville it was ordered to Strawberry Plains, in East Tennessee. Thence back through Greenville to Nashville, where, on the 9th of July, 1865, the regiment was mustered out of the service. It was then sent home, and was paid off and discharged at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, the place from which it started two and a half years before.

125th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	EMERSON OPDYCKE.....	Jan. 1, 1863	Jan. 14, 1863	Appointed Brigadier-General; Bvt. Maj. Gen.
Do.	JOSEPH BRUFF.....	Oct. 16, 1863	Oct. 16, 1863	Mustered out as Lieutenant-Colonel.
Lt. Colonel	EMERSON OPDYCKE.....	Jan. 1, 1863	Jan. 14, 1863	Promoted to Colonel January 1, 1863.
Do.	HENRY B. BANNING.....	Jan. 1, 1863	Jan. 17, "	Appointed Lieutenant-Colonel 121st reg't.
Do.	DAVID H. MOORE.....	Aug. 7, 1865	Aug. 19, "	Resigned September 20, 1864.
Do.	JOSEPH BRUFF.....	Jan. 2, 1865	Jan. 2, 1865	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	EDWARD P. BATES.....	Oct. 16, "	Oct. 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Major	GEORGE L. WOOD.....	Nov. 27, 1862	Jan. 14, 1862	Resigned April 20, 1862.
Do.	DAVID H. MOORE.....	May 22, 1863	May 22, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOSEPH BRUFF.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	EDWARD P. BATES.....	" 28, 1863	" 28, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	DANIEL A. STINGER.....	Oct. 16, "	Oct. 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon	HENRY McHENRY.....	June 6, 1862	July 13, 1862	Mustered out June 1, 1865.
Do.	WM. E. MCKIM.....	June 8, 1865	June 8, 1865	Mustered out as Assistant Surgeon.
Ass't Surgeon	JAMES G. BUCHANAN.....	May 24, 1863	May 24, 1863	Resigned January 25, 1865.
Do.	PORTER YATES.....	Oct. 1, "	" 1, "	Resigned May 6, 1865.
Do.	JOHN E. DARBY.....	Sept. 24, 1862	Sept. 24, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	WM. E. MCKIM.....	March 8, 1865	March 8, 1865	Promoted to Surgeon.
Chaplain	JOHN W. LEWIS.....	Nov. 4, 1863	Nov. 25, 1863	Resigned January 20, 1865.
Captain	Joseph Bruff.....	Aug. 13, 1862	Jan. 17, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Albert Youmans.....	Sept. 20, "	" 17, "	Resigned June 7, 1864.
Do.	Edward P. Bates.....	" 20, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Isaac D. Spaulding.....	Nov. 11, "	" 17, "	Resigned April 6, 1863.
Do.	Wm. C. Buntz.....	" 12, "	" 17, "	Resigned January 18, 1864.
Do.	Steen B. Parks.....	" 13, "	" 17, "	Resigned June 20, 1864.
Do.	Calton C. Bangh.....	" 14, "	" 17, "	Mustered out July 31, 1863.
Do.	Anthony Vallander.....	Dec. 31, 1863	" 17, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert B. Stewart.....	April 6, "	July 10, "	Killed.
Do.	Elmer Moses.....	July 31, "	Nov. 2, "	Honorably discharged January 5, 1865.
Do.	Aquila Conrad.....	Sept. 24, "	" 11, "	Resigned May 9, 1864.
Do.	Sterling Manchester.....	Dec. 4, "	Dec. 4, "	Killed.
Do.	Edward G. Whitesides.....	" 1, "	Jan. 28, 1864	Mustered out June 8, 1865.
Do.	A. Bailes Carter.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel A. Stinger.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. W. Cushing.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Resigned May 24, 1865.
Do.	Ridgely C. Powers.....	June 27, "	June 27, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Charles T. Clark.....	July 25, "	July 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alexander Dickson.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Resigned June 15, 1865.
Do.	Walden S. Williams.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Nyrum Phillips.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Ralsa C. Rice.....	April 8, "	April 8, "	Resigned June 18, 1865.
Do.	Freeman Thomas.....	June 6, "	June 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles C. Chapman.....	July 24, "	July 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hezekiah N. Steadman.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Leimbach.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	Richard K. Hulse.....	Oct. 16, "	Oct. 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant	Ephraim P. Evans.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, 1864	Killed.
Do.	Herman R. Harmon.....	Aug. 12, 1862	Jan. 17, 1863	Resigned April 16, 1862.
Do.	Robert B. Stewart.....	Sept. 1, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Elmer Moses.....	" 18, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Edward G. Whitesides.....	Oct. 3, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	A. Bailes Carter.....	" 5, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Marshal W. Richards.....	Nov. 11, "	" 17, "	Resigned June 19, 1863.
Do.	Wm. W. Cushing.....	" 12, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David Humphrey.....	" 15, "	" 17, "	Resigned October 6, 1863.
Do.	Daniel A. Stinger.....	" 14, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Riley M. Merrill.....	Dec. 31, "	" 17, "	Resigned April 23, 1863.
Do.	Ridgely C. Powers.....	April 16, 1863	April 29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ephraim P. Evans.....	" 23, "	" 25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alexander Dickson.....	Dec. 1, "	Feb. 12, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles T. Clark.....	Oct. 6, "	Nov. 2, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Martin V. B. King.....	July 31, "	" 2, "	Resigned May 7, 1864, as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Horace Welch.....	Sept. 24, "	" 11, "	Resigned February 6.
Do.	Walden S. Williams.....	Dec. 4, "	Dec. 4, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel Heikes.....	" 5, "	Jan. 28, 1864	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Nyrum Phillips.....	Jan. 28, 1864	" 28, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ralsa C. Rice.....	March 3, "	March 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Freeman Thomas.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	A. C. Dilley.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Killed June 27, 1864.
Do.	Charles C. Chapman.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Rollin D. Barnes.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Resigned August 23, 1864.
Do.	Hezekiah N. Steadman.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles Leimbach.....	June 27, "	June 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Richard K. Hulse.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David Blystone.....	Aug. 19, "	Aug. 19, "	Resigned April 11, 1865.
Do.	Henry Donaldson.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Josiah H. Blackburn.....	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Crowell.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out June 8, 1865.
Do.	Alexander H. Postel.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas R. Mahan.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out June 8, 1865.
Do.	Henry Glenville.....	April 8, "	April 8, "	Mustered out June 8, 1865.
Do.	Darius W. Payne.....	June 6, "	June 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Rufus Wood.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Benj. Gardner.....	July 21, "	July 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles C. Coats.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Discharged.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Sharon French.....	July 24, 1865	July 24, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles M. Maltby.....	Sept. 20, " "	Sept. 20, " "
2d Lieutenant	Alexander Dickson.....	1, 1862	Jan. 17, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alexander Harshman.....	" 20, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned April 28, 1863.
Do.	Ridgely C. Powers.....	" 20, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ephraim P. Evans.....	" 20, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Martin Y. B. King.....	" 22, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted; resigned May 7, 1864.
Do.	Charles T. Clark.....	" 24, " "	" 17, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Albert Barnes.....	Oct. 30, " "	" 17, " "	Died of wounds October 2, 1862.
Do.	Francis Hendry.....	" 15, " "	" 17, " "	Resigned March 23, 1863.
Do.	Horace Welch.....	Nov. 12, " "	April 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant
Do.	Samuel Heikes.....	Dec. 4, 1863	Dec. 4, " "	Resigned April 2, 1864.
Do.	Nyrum Phillips.....	Nov. 23, " "	Jan. 20, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles C. Chapman.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	A. C. Dilley.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Rollin D. Barnes.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hezekiah N. Steadman.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles Leimbach.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Seabury A. Smith.....	Sept. 24, 1863	Nov. 11, 1863	Killed January, 1864.
Do.	Freeman Colling.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, 1864	Killed.
Do.	Richard K. Hulse.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David Blystone.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ralsa C. Rice.....	Jan. 28, " "	Jan. 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Donaldson.....	March 3, " "	March 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry N. Penfield.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Discharged August 29, 1864.
Do.	Josiah H. Blackburn.....	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Burnham.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Killed.
Do.	Wm. H. Crowell.....	June 14, " "	June 14, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alexander H. Postel.....	July 25, " "	July 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas R. Mahan.....	" 26, " "	" 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Glenville.....	Aug. 19, " "	Aug. 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Darins W. Payne.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

125th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was recruited under the call of President Lincoln in the fall of 1862, and was organized by Colonel Emerson Opdycke, of Trumbull County, Ohio, who had formerly been a Captain in the Forty-First Ohio. Companies A, B, C, D, G, and H, were rapidly filled, and rendezvoused at Camp Taylor. By the 6th of October, 1862, eight full companies had reported, and on the same day were mustered into the United States service by Captain C. C. Goddard, United States Army.

Colonel Opdycke's experience in the field gave him great advantages, and he immediately commenced the thorough drill of both men and officers, so that in a short time the regiment was in fine state of discipline, and ready for the field.

The regiment left camp on the 3d of January, 1863, embarked in cars at the Cleveland depot, and moved under orders for the south. At this time it numbered but six hundred and fifty-seven men, companies I and K not having joined the ranks. Reaching Cincinnati, the regiment embarked on board of steamers for Louisville, Kentucky, and on the 8th of January marched through that city to a camp one mile beyond. The greater part of January was spent in this camp, the time being profitably filled in drilling and inuring the men to field-service.

On the 28th it left Louisville on steamboats, and, in company with twenty thousand other troops, sailed for Nashville, Tennessee, where it landed on the 7th of February. Remaining in Nashville only long enough to procure an outfit for a campaign, the regiment moved out of camp with its brigade toward Franklin. On approaching that place the General commanding was apprised that it was occupied by a force of the enemy, and preparations were accordingly made. The One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth was ordered from the rear of the brigade to the front, and companies A and B placed on the skirmish-line. Rapidly advancing, the regiment drove the enemy before it; and, having forded the Harpeth, a deep and swift stream, in the face of the Rebel fire, it entered the town (Colonel Opdycke leading) attacked the Rebels, and ejected them from the place. This was the first time the regiment was ever under fire, and the bravery with which it met the enemy was a sure harbinger of its future career. Colonel Opdycke was placed in command of the post, and the regiment quartered in the town.

Smarting under their defeat, the Rebels made an effort (on the 9th of March) to retake the place, but were again defeated by the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth. On the 10th of April the Rebels again attempted the recapture of Franklin, but were a third time met and repulsed. This time the Rebels were pursued by the regiment and other forces to Columbia, where, finding pursuit fruitless, the force returned to Franklin. The regiment remained at this place up to June 2d, drilling and constructing works of defense. While here several officers of the regiment resigned by reason of ill health and other causes.

On the 21st of June it moved to Murfreesboro', where it joined the command to which it had been attached, and on the 24th the corps marched toward Hillsboro'. This march will long be remembered by all who participated in it as one of the most dreary and wretched they ever made. With scarce an intermission the rain poured down for eight days, rendering the roads almost impassable, even for infantry. Wading through seas of mud and swollen streams by day, and at night bivouacking on the water-soaked ground, the exhausted troops reached Hillsboro' on July 3d. Here they remained until August 6th, when the entire command broke camp and moved in the direction of Chattanooga. Crossing the Cumberland Mountains, the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth reached the Sequatchie Valley in the night of the 19th of August. Remaining in camp until September 1st, it moved in the direction of Shellmound; and, crossing the river on rafts and flats, reached the south side of the Tennessee River on the morning of the 4th. The next day the command moved toward Chattanooga, meeting and skirmishing with the enemy at the base of Lookout Mountain.

The regiment entered Chattanooga on the 9th of September, the place having been evacuated by the Rebels, and at an early hour on the 10th again moved out toward Ringgold ten miles, and went into line of battle. The next morning the brigade was ordered to fall back to Rossville and then diverge toward Lee & Gordon's Mills. Severe skirmishing ensued, by which the enemy was forced back across Chickamauga Creek. The One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth was held in reserve, and a section of artillery placed in command of Colonel Opdycke, to use as circumstances should require. From this time until the 18th of September the regiment was engaged in almost constant skirmishing until the opening of the battle of Chickamauga.

At one o'clock P. M. the division to which it was attached was ordered to support the left of the National lines. It entered the field on the double-quick, and was soon actively engaged. This was the first general engagement the regiment had participated in. Just as it entered the battle Colonel Opdycke turned in his stirrups and said: "Men of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth Ohio, if I or others fall, stand in the ranks until victory is ours." One of the officers, in describing the battle, used the following language: "Side by side and shoulder to shoulder did the men of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth contest that bloody field, aiming low, and promptly obeying orders from their Colonel. Nine prisoners were taken, three of whom were captured by the Colonel himself, and three by the Adjutant, E. G. Whitesides. The Rebels were routed in confusion; and after dark we bivouacked on the field, without supper, and many of our men without blankets, while the cold north wind chilled our wearied limbs almost to numbness. At two A. M. of the 20th we were again called to arms, and, having marched two miles to a new position, we halted. A hasty breakfast was prepared and eaten, and we then took our place as a reserve near the left of McCook's and at the right of Thomas's corps. The battle opened on Thomas's left at eight A. M. so severely that the division was ordered to move on the double-quick to support it. Through some misapprehension a gap was left in McCook's line unprotected, through which the enemy poured, driving his corps almost completely from the field, and exposing the troops in that vicinity to a murderous cross-fire."

At this moment Generals Thomas and Garfield rode up to the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth Ohio. The former said: "This point must be held;" to which Colonel Opdycke replied;

"We will hold this ground or go to heaven from it." Colonel Opdycke having commanded: "Fix bayonets!" rode to the front of his regiment and said: "Men, I will lead you; follow me;" and plunged into the midst of the foe, followed by the entire brigade. The One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth kept well in front of the brigade. The whole Rebel line fled. The regiment halted and lay down behind a fence, while other regiments came up and prolonged the line to the right and left.

The enemy now advanced their second line. The ground was held until the enemy's fire literally enfiladed the regiment, killing Lieutenant King, seriously wounding Captain Youmans and Lieutenant Barnes, and laying many of the men in the dust. At this critical moment it was imperative that the regiment should retire to its brigade or perish. It slowly retired; and as it did so, a flying regiment passed in confusion, and on the run; but such was the discipline of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth that its lines remained intact. Colonel Harker immediately rode up to Colonel Opdycke and complimented him on the splendid fighting of the men.

"This position must be held!" The fight went on with increasing fury. For two long hours a sea of fire swept over the field, covering the ground with friend and foe. While the battle was raging at its fiercest Colonel Opdycke rode along the ranks of his regiment, and, raising his voice above the din, said: "Stand firm, my boys; I am willing to fight for my country, to die for her, and I hope you are with me." His men responded with cheers. The Colonel was the only officer in the division who did not dismount. A ball went through his blouse, bringing blood from his side, and his horse was struck several times. The enemy was repulsed with great slaughter.

At three o'clock in the afternoon the Forty-First Ohio came up and lay down a couple of yards in rear of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth, just as the enemy made his last assault. The men of the Forty-First recognized Colonel Opdycke, who had formerly served in that regiment as a Captain, and gave him three rousing cheers as he passed them on his horse, hat in hand, amid the raging conflict.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth, with its division and brigade, remained at their posts until all firing had ceased, and night had closed upon the bloody field. The National troops then fell back slowly to Rossville, where General Thomas placed them in position, but a few hours thereafter ordered their withdrawal to Chattanooga, where strong lines of defense were built, and the army lay down in security behind them.

So prominent had been the bravery and the noble fighting of the regiment that General Rosecrans gave it a personal compliment, and General Woods christened it "The Tiger Regiment of Ohio."

The following named men were mentioned by Colonel Opdycke to the Governor of Ohio for promotion, by reason of personal bravery during the battle: Sergeant Alson Dilley, company C; Sergeant Charles C. Chapman, company G; Sergeant Rollin D. Barnes, company B; Commissary-Sergeant H. N. Steadman—all of whom were duly commissioned as Lieutenants.

On the 25th of November the storm of battle again broke forth. The enemy was to be driven from the front of Chattanooga. At two P. M. the regiment was placed in position in the second line of battle, and at the sound of the signal-gun moved forward, charging across open fields, through swamps and thickets, until it reached the first line of the enemy's works at the base of Mission Ridge, which was carried and its occupants captured. In this charge across the country for two miles much fatigue and danger were encountered. Scarcely had the line commenced to move when the ridge was crowned with a wreath of fire from the enemy's artillery and the hissing shot and bursting shell plowed the ground in all directions.

Filled with enthusiasm, and halting only long enough to secure the prisoners captured in the first line of works, the regiment toiled up the steep and rugged mountain, five hundred feet in height, amid a deluge of grape, canister and musket-balls. The dense smoke of battle enveloped the crest, concealing both parties from view. A Rebel battery stationed near Bragg's headquarters annoyed the assailing force, and the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth were ordered to capture it. The regiment at once went at the works, and had nearly reached them when the troops that protected its left, unable longer to withstand the destructive fire, gave way, exposing the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth to great peril from the enemy's cross-fire, which came from all directions except the rear; yet not a man wavered from the line; but, sheltering themselves as best they might, they awaited the order for the final charge. When it came all sprang forward, determined to succeed. The struggle was fierce. Colonel Opdycke's horse was shot as he led the demi-brigade. Mounting another, he was again unhorsed by a ball which killed the horse. Captain Bruff, of company A, was wounded, and the ranks of the regiment were being rapidly thinned. A second charge was ordered and executed, and the guns were captured and turned upon the flying Rebels.

An immediate pursuit was ordered and continued through the night, the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth being in the advance. On the morning of the 26th, just as the regiment was preparing to continue the pursuit from Bird's Mills, it was ordered to return to Chattanooga, and reached that place on the 27th. The loss of the regiment in this battle was heavy, especially in wounded.

On the 28th of November the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth, with others of the Fourth Corps, started to the relief of General Burnside's forces at Knoxville, Tennessee. The march was very severe. The weather was cold and the mud deep, and the men illy prepared for a forced march. Before reaching Knoxville, however, the enemy had been met and defeated by the besieged forces, and their aid in that quarter was not required.

With other commands the regiment was sent from Knoxville toward Dandridge, where it arrived December 16th, and was at once placed on the skirmish-line, as appearances indicated the vicinity of a large force of Rebel cavalry. At two o'clock P. M. of the 17th of December the enemy appeared in sight, firing occasional shots at the National cavalry videttes. From the top of a commanding eminence a long column of Rebel cavalry could be plainly seen descending a hill and forming in line of battle in the wooded valley.

The exposure of the left of the National line was soon discovered by the Rebels, and advantage at once taken of it. A very heavy skirmish-line came surging back on the National lines. The cavalry in front of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth retired after a few shots; and before the regiment could change its line the Rebels were upon them. After several maneuvers on both sides the Rebels attempted to surround and capture the entire regiment. The charge made for that purpose was bravely met, as was also a second. The enemy then opened upon the regiment with two pieces of artillery, with but little effect, as they shot too high. Again the Rebels charged, and again were handsomely repulsed. Just at this time companies A and C, thrown out as skirmishers to the right, charged with a yell and drove the Rebels from the ground to their second line. Night had begun to close in, and the troops were too much exhausted to follow up their advantage, or to even sustain another charge, should the Rebels attempt it.

Lieutenant-Colonel Moore (commanding the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth) learning that the brigade to which he was attached had moved early in the day, and that there was no other infantry in supporting distance, saw the danger to which his regiment was exposed, and took immediate steps to find relief. Colonel Garrard, of the Seventh Ohio Cavalry, being the only ranking officer near, was applied to and induced to send his own and the Michigan cavalry to the succor of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth.

The regiment then retired over half a mile toward town, and were posted near a road on a wooded hill. In about an hour's time the Rebels rallied and made another dash against the National works, but were bravely met by the dismounted Ohio and Michigan cavalry; but the enemy's forces were too numerous, and they retired before them to the distance of a quarter of a mile, where a rally was made and the Rebels were in turn driven. This was the last attempt made by the enemy.

In this affair the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth lost—of officers, Adjutant Smith, killed; Lieutenant Clark, of company H, wounded. Of privates, Mathias Calahan, company A; Richard R. Lykins, company D; Conrad Ling, company F; George Beckwith, company H, killed; and John Boner, F. J. Fobes, John D. Mahan, James B. Scott, Henry Graham, Cassius C. Birch, and J. Couch, wounded. Lieutenant Smith was fatally shot in the head with a musket-ball.

Adopting the strategy of lighting many fires along the hill to deceive the enemy as to their strength and intentions, the command commenced a retreat to Knoxville. At that place the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth was joined by companies K and I, lately recruited in Ohio through the efforts of Lieutenant-Colonel Moore. The regiment passed through Knoxville to Loudon, where it erected winter-quarters, and remained until the 21st of March. From this point it moved to Sweetwater, April 18th; thence to Athens on the 19th; and, passing through Charleston on the 20th, it arrived at Cleveland, Tennessee, on the 21st, where it again erected quarters. This may be regarded as the close of the campaign of 1863.

General Sherman was busily concentrating the National army for his Atlanta campaign. The Fourth Corps (and with it the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth Ohio) moved from camp, near Cleveland, on the morning of the 3d of May. The regiment at this time belonged to the Third Brigade, Second Division, Fourth Army Corps. The enemy had concentrated near Dalton, Georgia, and that was the point to which the march was directed. No opposition was made until the evening of May 7th, when the enemy's skirmishers appeared in force. The command halted and bivouacked for the night, but at early dawn it was aroused to the opening struggle of the campaign.

General O. O. Howard, commanding the corps, sent an order to Brigadier-General Harker to take the best troops in his brigade and dislodge a portion of the enemy from a position on a high and steep bluff, called Rocky Face Ridge. General Harker sent the order to Colonel Opdycke, who at once put his own regiment in motion. A line of skirmishers was thrown out and a determined feint made of attacking the north end of the ridge, when, suddenly withdrawing his command, he formed it in division by echelon, and assailed the west side, advancing slowly and tediously up the steep ascent. The command ascended from height to height along the only road up the side of the mountain, which was so steep and precipitous that the field-officers were obliged to dismount and lead their horses. The enemy showered down musket-balls, but to no purpose. The crest was gained, a charge made, and the enemy driven from his works.

The enemy was driven along the crest of the mountain to within a few rods of a line of Rebel works built across the south end of the ridge, where the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth halted for the night and threw up some works. During the night the remainder of the brigade made its way up the mountain, bringing with it, by great labor, a piece of artillery. The loss of the regiment on the 8th was four killed and eighteen wounded. So well pleased was General Howard with the result of this affair that he issued a special order, highly complimentary to both Colonel Opdycke and the regiment. The second Rebel line was equally formidable as the first. The position of the ground was such that an attack could be made only in front, as its flanks were protected by steep sides, which no foot could scale. The plan of attack was arranged by General Harker, who was in command of the brigade. The One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth was placed in position by Colonel Opdycke. Two companies of the regiment were placed to the left of the crest on the skirmish-line, while the remainder supported the Sixty-Fourth Ohio, which advanced along the narrow crest. At four P. M. the bugles sounded the charge, and the strife commenced. The skirmish-line swept up to the works, or rather the cliffs—for so steep were the rocks on the left side of the ridge that the enemy's flanks were sufficiently protected from all assault. The assaulting column was obliged to move by the flank; for so narrow was the path that but four men could move abreast. Under a sweeping fire the column was pushed to within a few feet of the works, when, so destructive became the volleys, that the regiment in front of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth came rushing back through its ranks. To succeed in pushing through the narrow gap in the face of such a fire, and with another regiment forcing itself back, was impossible. The entire brigade fell back to the works erected the previous night. The loss of the regiment was heavy in both killed and wounded.

During the night of the 12th of May the enemy evacuated the position before Dalton, and at an early hour the National forces started in pursuit, and came up with them on the afternoon of the 14th at Resaca. Here again the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth was conspicuous for its bravery. Its Colonel led it in a desperate charge, in which the brigade commander, General Harker, was wounded. Colonel Opdycke then led the brigade up to the first line of works which had been captured, and, calling on his men to follow him, sprang over them upon his horse. The One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth responded with a yell, and bounding over, charged upon the second line of works. The Colonel was struck by a ball, which passed through his arm just above the elbow, and severely bruised his side. The regiment still held its position until relieved at night. Thus it was with this gallant regiment in all the encounters of this extraordinary campaign. At Lost Mountain it distinguished itself by a charge across a deep and miry stream, driving the enemy within his works in the face of a sweeping fire of artillery.

Kenesaw Mountain came next in importance. In this charge the regiment was under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Moore, Colonel Opdycke commanding the brigade. The charge was ordered, and the regiment with a yell rushed upon the foe. The Rebel artillery and infantry opened upon the advancing line, plowing up the ground and strewing it with dead and wounded. Quicker than it can be told the line had rushed upon those rifle-pits, and when but a few feet distant poured in a withering volley against the swarming Rebels, driving them in confusion back to their works. The pits were gained and many of the Rebels captured. Then came the order: "Forward to the works!" and the line again rushed into the dreadful storm of shot and shell. The regiment advanced to the abattis, and a few of the men had penetrated it, when the column in support wavered; seeing which General Harker dashed ahead, and, waving his hat, cried: "Forward and take those works!" when instantly he fell, mortally wounded. The column gave way and fell back steadily to the line of rifle-pits. The One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth lost heavily in this affair. Lieutenant Dilley fell dead upon the abattis; Lieutenant Burnham fell close by, pierced by four balls; Captain Moses was severely wounded.

After the fall of Atlanta the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth was one of the regiments sent back against Hood, then menacing Nashville. In the battle of Franklin it won high honor. The immediate command of the regiment was in the hands of Captain Bates, who led it gallantly and well. The brigade, as usual, was led by Colonel Opdycke. This regiment was among the first to reach the works at the onset, and its cheer was the harbinger of death to the enemy. Its loss was severe, though in a measure protected, after the works were captured. It is sufficient to say that after the battle was over General Thomas rode up and said: "Colonel Opdycke, your brigade saved the army at Franklin, and saved Nashville." The regiment captured eighty prisoners and two battle-flags.

Part of the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth was on the skirmish-line during the battle of Nashville, and, under Lieutenant Hulse, did good execution. At seven o'clock A. M. the regiment advanced with the line upon the enemy's works, and, after a sharp fight, carried them. The enemy was pursued, and night closed the conflict. The next day (the 16th) the One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth was again in motion at an early hour, and the fight resumed. At four P. M. the regiment charged with the division upon the works which the enemy had hastily constructed, and, breaking the line, the Rebel army fled in confusion. Lieutenant-Colonel Bruff was in command of the regiment at this time. The pursuit of the enemy was continued with great vigor until the command reached Huntsville, Alabama, on the 6th of January, 1865, where it went into winter-quarters. During the stay at this point Colonel Opdycke was made Brigadier-General of Volunteers. On the 28th of March the command took the cars for Knoxville, East Tennessee, which was reached on the 30th, and from thence moved to Blue Springs. The regiment remained at the last-mentioned place until the 19th of April, when it was taken to Nashville by rail, reaching that city on the 30th of April. It lay in camp here until June, when it was moved to New Orleans, Louisiana, camping near that city for some three weeks. It was then taken by steamer to Texas, and was there mustered out of service on the 25th of September, 1865. Returning to Ohio, it was discharged October 17th, at Camp Chase. No particular field-service was performed by the regiment during its stay in Louisiana and Texas.

126th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	BENJ. F. SMITH.....	Sept. 10, 1862	Sept. 30, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	WM. H. HARLAN.....	Oct. 2, " "	Oct. 10, " "	Honorably discharged February 16, 1864.
Do.	AARON W. EBRIGHT.....	Feb. 16, 1864	Feb. 24, 1864	Killed.
Do.	HENRY C. YONTZ.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Revoked.
Do.	THOMAS W. MCKINNIE.....	Dec. 24, " "	Dec. 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	AARON W. EBRIGHT.....	Sept. 27, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	GEORGE W. VORHES.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, 1864	Honorably discharged as Captain, Sept. 22, '64.
Do.	GEORGE W. HOGG.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Discharged to receive promotion, Nov. 18, '64.
Do.	WM. G. WILLIAMS.....	Dec. 24, " "	Dec. 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	WM. ESTEP.....	Sept. 27, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Honorably discharged February 16, 1864.
Do.	J. SYKES ELY.....	Feb. 17, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Resigned June 7, 1864.
Do.	ITHAMAR B. WEED.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Honorably discharged November 11, 1864
Do.	ALVA RICHARDS.....	Dec. 12, " "	Dec. 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	J. SYKES ELY.....	Nov. 18, 1862	Nov. 17, 1862	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	JAMES P. ALCORN.....	Feb. 13, 1863	Feb. 13, 1863	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	ITHAMAR B. WEED.....	March 30, " "	March 30, " "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	JOSHUA WORLEY.....	June 27, 1864	June 27, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	JOHN K. ANDREWS.....	Oct. 11, 1862	Nov. 20, 1862	Resigned October 2, 1864.
Captain.....	George W. Vorhes.....	July 24, " "	Oct. 10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. B. Kirk.....	Aug. 7, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Resigned June 23, 1863.
Do.	Richard M. Lyons.....	" 7, " "	" 10, " "	Killed at " Wilderness," May 6, 1864.
Do.	Samuel Parsley.....	" 11, " "	" 10, " "	Discharged.
Do.	Wm. L. Dixon.....	" 14, " "	" 10, " "	Honorably discharged May 12, 1864.
Do.	Jacob Weyand.....	" 15, " "	" 10, " "	Hon. dis. Sept. 23, 1864, on account of wounds.
Do.	Oliveo W. France.....	Sept. 2, " "	" 10, " "	Killed at battle of " Wilderness," May 6, 1864.
Do.	J. S. McCready.....	Oct. 5, " "	" 10, " "	Died of wounds September 7, 1864.
Do.	Henry C. Yontz.....	Oct. 11, " "	" 14, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Kenben Lampton.....	" 11, " "	" 14, " "	Killed at Spottsylvania, May 9, 1864.
Do.	Robert Martin.....	March 1, 1863	March 3, 1863	Discharged November 3, 1863.
Do.	George W. Hogg.....	June 23, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Thomas J. Hyatt.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, 1864	Killed September 19, 1864.
Do.	Henry Hixon.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Killed June 6, 1864.
Do.	John E. McPeck.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Honorably discharged as 1st Lieut. Dec. 8, '64.
Do.	Lewis W. Southerland.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant June 16, 1865.
Do.	Jacob Lamb.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Samuel C. Kerr.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Thomas W. McKinnie.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	Wm. G. Williams.....	July 25, " "	July 25, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joseph C. Watson.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Samuel B. Potter.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Honorably discharged as 2d Lieut. April 21, '65.
Do.	John W. Crooks.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Albert J. Harrison.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out as 2d Lieut. December 17, 1864.
Do.	Wm. H. Smith.....	Dec. 14, " "	Dec. 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Abraham Kelley.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out as 2d Lieutenant June 25, 1865.
Do.	James W. Moffatt.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Corydon E. Patterson.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Rufus Ricksecker.....	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.....	Isaac M. Knotts.....	Aug. 7, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Hogg.....	" 11, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert Martin.....	" 13, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry Hixon.....	" 13, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John H. Benfer.....	" 20, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alex. Patterson.....	" 21, " "	" 10, " "	Resigned August 7, 1863.
Do.	John E. McPeck.....	" 21, " "	" 10, " "	Resigned March 24, 1863.
Do.	Andrew J. Dingman.....	" 31, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Smith.....	Sept. 2, " "	" 10, " "	Discharged February 24, 1864.
Do.	Thomas H. Smith.....	" 2, " "	" 10, " "	Resigned March 13, 1863.
Do.	Lewis W. Southerland.....	Oct. 3, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jacob Lamb.....	" 11, " "	" 14, " "	Declined promotion.
Do.	John M. Shaffer.....	" 11, " "	" 14, " "	Died January 18, 1863.
Do.	Thomas W. McKinnie.....	March 14, 1863	March 30, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel C. Kerr.....	" 14, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph C. Watson.....	" 21, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. G. Williams.....	Jan. 18, " "	April 29, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert Hiller.....	June 20, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel B. Potter.....	March 3, 1864	March 3, 1864	Died of wounds May 13, 1864.
Do.	John W. Crooks.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ambrose W. Moore.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Albert J. Harrison.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant July 30, 1864.
Do.	Wm. H. Smith.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Abraham Kelley.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James W. Moffatt.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Corydon E. Patterson.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Rufus Ricksecker.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Killed.
Do.	Isaac M. Knotts.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George T. Guiney.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. C. Crawford.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	George J. Henderson.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment
Do.	Elias Fouts.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Discharged May 17, 1865.
Do.	Jason L. Smith.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. N. Waddle.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	"
Do.	David R. S. Wells.....	Dec. 14, " "	Dec. 14, " "	Revoked.
Do.	Thomas H. Whitmer.....	" 24, " "	" 24, " "	"
Do.	Wm. H. Keplinger.....	" 21, " "	" 24, " "	Discharged for disability May 3, 1865.
Do.	John Scott.....	" 24, " "	" 24, " "	Discharged on account of wounds rec'd in bat.
Do.	Barclay Cooper.....	July 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	"

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Joseph McKee.....	July 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
3d Lieutenant	T. P. Williams.....	" 24, 1862	Oct. 10, 1862	Resigned March 2, 1863.
Do.	Robert Hiller.....	Aug. 7, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel C. Kerr.....	" 11, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel B. Petre.....	" 14, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Crooks.....	" 18, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry King.....	" 20, "	" 10, "	Resigned March 11, 1863.
Do.	John H. Hammond.....	" 31, "	" 10, "	Resigned November 28, 1862.
Do.	Wm. H. Hargney.....	Sept. 5, "	" 10, "	Died November 27, 1862.
Do.	Joseph C. Watson.....	Oct. 11, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. G. Williams.....	" 11, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ambros. W. Moore.....	Nov. 28, "	Dec. 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas W. McKinnie.....	" 27, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David R. S. Wells.....	March 1, 1863	March 30, 1863	Discharged February 20, 1865.
Do.	Wm. S. Keplinger.....	" 5, "	" 30, "	Commission returned.
Do.	Wm. H. McCoy.....	" 11, "	" 30, "	Honorably discharged March 14, 1864.
Do.	Albert J. Harrison.....	" 14, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin C. Lewis.....	Jan. 18, "	April 29, "	Discharged July 16, 1864.
Do.	Daniel Reed.....	March 3, "	June 10, "	Died July 30, 1863.
Do.	Wm. H. Smith.....	" 24, "	Aug. 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Abraham Kelley.....	June 25, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas H. Whitmer.....	Nov. 3, 1864	Nov. 3, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Keplinger.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Scott.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Barclay Cooper.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph McKee.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert M. Morrow.....	" 3, "	" 3, "
Do.	Hiram J. Stonebrook.....	" 3, "	" 3, "
Do.	Samuel C. Swank.....	" 3, "	" 3, "

126th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment, which was recruited in the counties of Jefferson, Harrison, Tuscarawas, Perry, and Fairfield, was organized at Camp Steubenville, in Jefferson County, mustered into the United States service on the 4th of September, 1862, and sent to Parkersburg, Virginia, on the 16th of the same month.

It remained at Parkersburg for a month, perfecting its drill and doing guard and garrison-duty. About the middle of October it was taken by rail to Cumberland, Maryland, and remained there some six weeks.

December 12th, under orders, it left for North Mountain, Virginia, on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, for the purpose of guarding that road from the incursions of the Rebel guerrillas under Imboden. The regiment moved by companies down the road, guarding the workmen as they repaired it. Martinsburg, Virginia, was reached on the 20th of December. During this winter the regiment was sorely afflicted. Typhoid fever and small-pox made sad havoc in its ranks, killing on an average six men out of every company. Many of the men who partially recovered were rendered unfit for further service.

On April 15, 1863, the regiment left Martinsburg and went by rail to New Creek, Virginia, to aid in looking after the Rebel General Imboden, who was on a raid through Western Virginia. From New Creek the regiment, with other troops, marched, under General Kelly, to Greenland Gap. Then commenced a series of marches and counter-marches, through that mountainous region, looking after the guerrillas and blocking-up mountain passes. This service, although not amounting to much, was very severe on the men.

Returning to New Creek, the regiment took the cars and went to Martinsburg, Virginia, where it remained until the 14th of June, 1863. This regiment belonged to the Third Brigade, Second Division, Eighth Army Corps, and the brigade was composed of the One Hundred and Sixth New York, One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth Ohio, and Captain Maltby's West Virginia Battery, commanded by B. F. Smith, Colonel of the One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth Ohio.

On the night of the 13th of June, while at Martinsburg, the brigade was attacked by the advance-guard of Lee's Rebel army, under command of General Rhodes. The whole of that night and the next day was consumed in brisk skirmishing. During the fight company I, while guarding a point on the railroad, and while attempting to rejoin the regiment, was captured entire by the enemy. At three o'clock P. M. of the 14th, orders were received to evacuate Martinsburg and retreat to Williamsport. This order could not be carried out, as the enemy, in overwhelming numbers, occupied all the roads, except the Shepherdstown Road, on which our troops were posted. Martinsburg was, by hard fighting, held until an hour before sundown, when the enemy opened on the little band a terrible fire from fourteen pieces of artillery, which compelled the evacuation of the position and a retreat toward Harper's Ferry. The enemy's cavalry followed close in the rear, and picked up many of the regiment who were worn out with the fatigue of the long-continued fight. Nightfall gave some relief from the enemy's cavalry, but the march was continued all that night and until Harper's Ferry was reached, at ten o'clock next morning. To attain this point the Potomac was forded at Shepherdstown, the water reaching the men's armpits in many places.

At Harper's Ferry the One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth Ohio was joined to the Third Brigade, Third Division, Third Army Corps, under General French. At the evacuation of Harper's Ferry, in the latter part of June, 1863, the division to which the regiment belonged was detailed to guard a fleet of canal-boats on the Ohio and Chesapeake Canal, conveying stores to Washington City.

Remaining in Washington City only two days, the regiment went by rail to Frederick City, Maryland, and rejoined the Army of the Potomac. With the army it marched to Sharpsburg, and from thence, after the Rebel army under Lee had crossed that river, it moved to Harper's Ferry. From Harper's Ferry it moved to Upperville, in Loudon Valley, and thence to Manassas Gap, where the Third Army Corps and Longstreet's corps had a brisk fight, in which a bayonet-charge resulted in driving the Rebels from the heights, when our army took possession of them.

From Manassas Gap the regiment marched with the army to Rappahannock Station, where it lay in camp until the 15th of August, 1863. From this place it went to New York to aid in enforcing the draft in that city. Remaining there for about three weeks, it then returned to Alexandria, Virginia, and marched thence to Rappahannock Station.

At Bristow Station, on the 11th of October, the regiment and its corps took part in a fight with a portion of Lee's army, and for many days thereafter were engaged in skirmishing with the enemy up to Centerville Heights. From Centerville Heights the One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth Ohio returned, with the army, to Rappahannock Station. After participating in the taking of an earthwork at Brandy Station, the regiment went into winter-quarters, occupying huts built by the enemy.

In pursuance of orders from the War Department the Third Corps was broken up, and the One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth Ohio assigned to the Third Brigade, Second Division, Sixth Army Corps. About the 1st of April, 1864, the regiment left winter-quarters and went into camp near Rixeyville, Virginia, where it remained until the opening of the grand campaign under General Grant, in his march on Richmond.

At daylight on the morning of the 4th of May, it moved with the brigade toward the Rappahannock River, crossing at Germania Ford about sunset of the same day, and bivouacking for the night on the bank. At eight o'clock next morning it moved on the Germania Ford Road, but had not proceeded far when orders were received to return and resume the guard of the ford. At eleven A. M. it again took the road in the direction of Orange C. H. Turnpike, and at one P. M. moved to the right of the line (the brigade reporting to General H. G. Wright, commanding a division of the Sixth Army Corps), and took a position in the rear line, and on the extreme right of the army

At twelve o'clock on the 12th of May the regiment was detached and sent to the assistance of General Wheaton's brigade of the Second Division, Sixth Army Corps. Marching to a position beyond the front line, it was exposed to a fire from the enemy of about two hours. The loss of the regiment in this well-contested fight, in which fifty rounds of ammunition were expended, was sixteen men killed, and one officer and fifty-three men wounded. Lieutenant-Colonel A. W. Ebright was in command of the regiment in this affair, and was wounded in the head. The regiment took part in every engagement of the campaign, from the crossing of the Rapidan, on the 4th of May, to the crossing of the James River, on the 17th of June, 1864.

In front of Cold Harbor it was in the assault of the Third Division on the enemy's works, carrying and holding them under a heavy fire. During the succeeding night repeated efforts were made by the enemy to retake these works, but his every effort was repulsed with heavy loss.

After crossing to the south side of the James the regiment participated in all the marches, skirmishes, etc., of the Sixth Army Corps, up to the 2d of July, when it went into intrenchments at the Williams House, five miles south of Petersburg.

On July 6, 1864, the regiment, with the division to which it belonged, marched to City Point, and embarked for Baltimore, arriving there on the 8th. On the same morning it took cars and moved to Monocacy Junction, where it arrived on the morning of the 9th, and took an important part in the severe battle of Monocacy, in which it lost heavily.

The regiment retreated with the army to the vicinity of Baltimore, and subsequently rejoined the two other divisions of the Sixth Corps at Washington. It then marched in pursuit of General Early's army, and participated in engagements at Snicker's Gap, Charlestown, Halltown, and Smithfield, Virginia, in August, 1864.

On September 19, 1864, at three o'clock in the morning, the One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth moved from Berryville with the army under General Sheridan, and took the direction of Winchester, Virginia, crossing Opequan Creek near the Berryville Turnpike. It took a position in the front line, near the right of the Sixth Corps, and participated in the battle fought on that day, losing several efficient officers. Lieutenant-Colonel A. W. Ebright, commanding the regiment, was killed early in the action; Captain Thomas J. Hyatt and Lieutenant Rufus Ricksecker were also killed; Captain Williams and Lieutenants Patterson and Wells were wounded, and a large number of men were killed and wounded.

The enemy was driven through Winchester to Fisher's Hill, where he made another stand, but was again defeated and compelled to evacuate the position. In this last action the One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth performed a conspicuous part, losing four men killed and seventeen wounded.

From this time up to October 19th the regiment was engaged in a number of marches and counter-marches, and arrived at Cedar Creek just in time to take part in the memorable battle of that date.

It occupied a position on the left of the Sixth Corps (to which it belonged), and held it until our forces were surprised by the Rebels under General Early, and driven back. In the advance, when General Sheridan arrived on the ground, the regiment came up with its brigade, and performed its share in the glorious victory which followed. At dark the regiment, under orders, went into the camp from which it had been driven in the morning.

On the 7th of November the Army of the Shenandoah encamped near Kernstown, Virginia, just outside of Winchester. The brigade occupied a position on the extreme right of the infantry. It remained at Kernstown until December 3d, throwing up several forts and earthworks, when it marched with its corps to Stevenson's Depot and took cars for Washington.

On December 4th the One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth embarked for City Point. On the 7th it moved to the front, rejoining the Army of the Potomac, and went into camp near the Weldon Railroad, relieving a portion of the Fifth Corps. On the night of the 9th of December the regiment, with a portion of the brigade and other troops, went upon an expedition to Hatcher's Run, but returned the next night to its old camp, where it remained until February 9, 1865, building winter-quarters, drilling, and performing guard and picket-duty.

On February 9, 1865, the regiment and brigade again moved and relieved a portion of the Fifth Corps, near the Squirrel Level Road. Here it again constructed winter-quarters and performed much garrison, picket, guard, and fatigue-duty. From this time forward one-tenth of the command was kept in the trenches of the forts day and night. The camps and quarters were in easy musketry range of the enemy's outer line of works and in full view of his camp.

In front of Fort Weleh, where the regiment did picket-duty, the pickets were within a hundred yards of each other; but picket firing was seldom indulged in, until the 25th of March. The men often mingled together, between the lines, in procuring fuel.

In a charge on the enemy's picket-lines, March 25th, the regiment behaved with great gallantry, being the first to enter the intrenchments.

At three o'clock of the morning of the 2d of April the One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth went into position in the front line of battle, to participate in the charge made by the Sixth Corps on the enemy's intrenched lines. The bellowing of nearly four hundred pieces of artillery, the scream of the bomb-shells, and the yells of the contending parties, combined to make up one of war's most horrid pictures. The Rebels were at last driven, and with this defeat went the last hope of the Confederate States.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth Ohio performed an important part in this assault, and was highly complimented for its gallantry and efficiency. Captains J. W. Moffatt and C. E. Patterson especially distinguished themselves, and received therefor brevet appointments of Major United States Volunteers, their commissions to date from the day of battle. Private Milton Blickensderfer, of company E, captured a battle-flag during the engagement.

This engagement led to the evacuation of Richmond. During the 3d, 4th, and 5th of April the regiment participated in the pursuit of General Lee's army, and on the evening of the 5th occupied a position facing Amelia C. H., where slight earthworks were thrown up. On that night the regiment was detached from the brigade to guard prisoners, and did not rejoin it until April 15, 1865; at Burkesville Junction.

From Burkesville Junction the regiment, with the Sixth Corps, commenced a forced march toward Danville, Virginia, under orders from General Halleck's head-quarters to "push through as rapidly as possible, to assist in the capture of General J. E. Johnston's Rebel army." It arrived at Danville on the 27th, where it halted, General Johnston's army having surrendered to General Sherman on the 26th at Greensboro', North Carolina.

The regiment remained at Danville until May 16th, at which time it moved by railroad to Richmond, Virginia, and on the 24th of May was reviewed with the corps in Richmond, and at once commenced the march for Washington, arriving at Ball's Cross-Roads, four miles from that place, on the Virginia side of the Potomac, on the afternoon of the 3d of June. It remained here until the 25th, when it was mustered out of the service. It was finally paid off and discharged at Columbus.

In General Grant's campaign through the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor, etc., Captains Lyons, France, and Lampton, and Lieutenants Hixon and Hiller were killed.

Lieutenant-Colonel McKinnie, Captain J. S. McCready, and Lieutenants Moore and McPeck were wounded. Captain McCready died of his wounds before reaching home. Captain J. Weyand was wounded at Monocacy Junction. Lieutenant A. J. Harrison, A. A. G. on brigade staff, lost an arm and was captured at the battle of the Wilderness. Lieutenant Charles Crawford, Acting Adjutant of the regiment, was wounded during the charge on the enemy's works, April 2, 1865.

The regiment lost during its term of service nine officers and one hundred and eleven men killed; ten officers and three hundred and seventy-nine men wounded. Total, officers nineteen, men four hundred and ninety; aggregate, five hundred and nine.

127th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

The sketch of this regiment will be found elsewhere with those of the other Colored Troops from Ohio.

128th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	CHARLES W. HILL.....	Dec. 25, 1863	Dec. 30, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	WM. S. PIERSON.....	Aug. 23, "	Jan. 5, 1864	Resigned July 15, 1864.
Do.	EDWARD A. SCOVILL.....	" 6, 1864	Aug. 6, "	Mustered out March 25, 1865.
Do.	THOMAS H. LINNELL.....	March 29, 1863	March 29, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	EDWARD A. SCOVILL.....	Aug. 23, 1863	Jan. 5, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	THOMAS H. LINNELL.....	" 29, 1863	Aug. 29, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JUNIUS R. SANFORD.....	March 25, 1863	March 25, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	TIMOTHY WOODBRIDGE.....	Sept. 16, 1862	Jan. 5, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	W. M. TRIPP.....	Jan. 4, 1864	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	PORTER YATES.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Thomas H. Linnell.....	Sept. 3, 1863	" 5, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Henry C. Benson.....	Oct. 11, "	" 5, "	Mustered out.
Do.	A. C. Bradley.....	Jan. 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Benj. W. Wells.....	Aug. 25, "	" 5, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Junius R. Sanford.....	Nov. 21, "	" 5, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John J. Maner.....	" 25, "	" 5, "	On detached duty.
Do.	Alfred N. Mead.....	Dec. 20, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel Starr.....	" 25, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Austin McDowell.....	" 25, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Lewis.....	" 29, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Leroy W. Bailey.....	Sept. 8, 1864	Sept. 8, "	Mustered out.
Do.	George Carver.....	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out June 9, 1865.
Do.	Adam S. McDonald.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry A. Smith.....	April 21, "	April 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Orlin S. Hays.....	June 26, "	June 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles C. Starr.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regt. as 1st Lieut. and Q. M.
Do.	Henry C. Reno.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant	Orlin S. Hays.....	Dec. 22, 1863	Dec. 31, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel D. McElroy.....	Jan. 5, 1864	Jan. 5, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lowell M. Brooks.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Appointed Capt. and A. Q. M., U. S. Vols.
Do.	Leroy W. Bailey.....	Sept. 3, 1862	" 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Carver.....	Jan. 5, 1863	" 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Adam S. McDonald.....	Aug. 23, "	" 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry A. Smith.....	Dec. 21, "	" 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John N. Harrington.....	" 26, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles C. Starr.....	" 22, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry C. Reno.....	" 25, "	" 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James H. Fluhart.....	" 29, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Anson C. Bartholomew.....	Jan. 5, 1864	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry C. Strong.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Hollenbeck.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Mustered out.
Do.	George M. Phillips.....	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles N. Stevens.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Foster V. Foillett.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Eugene O. Mitchell.....	April 21, "	April 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	George W. Hollenbeck.....	Jan. 6, 1863	Jan. 5, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac N. Rogers.....	Aug. 25, "	" 5, "	Mustered out for promotion.
Do.	George M. Phillips.....	Nov. 23, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Eugene O. Mitchell.....	Dec. 22, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles N. Stevens.....	Nov. 23, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles Stowe.....	Jan. 8, 1864	" 5, "	Resigned April 27, 1865.
Do.	Foster V. Foillett.....	Dec. 18, 1863	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Addison M. Bloom.....	Jan. 5, 1864	" 5, "	Discharged April 15, 1864.
Do.	George Hutchinson.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	"
Do.	Marshal Drewry.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Honorably discharged December 15, 1864.
Do.	Samuel H. Young.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles D. Mallory.....	Sept. 15, "	Sept. 15, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Azariah E. Billington.....	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Revoked.
Do.	James L. Camp.....	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward E. Young.....	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John F. Wallace.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph A. McCroskie.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	"
Do.	Lewis R. Ranney.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph L. Conklin.....	April 21, "	April 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert Corning.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ozias W. Foote.....	July 6, "	July 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as Serg't. Major.

128th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY,

WITH ACCOUNT OF PRISONERS' DEPOT AT JOHNSON'S ISLAND.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY EIGHTH OHIO, although chiefly occupied in guard-duty within the borders of the State, was an organization of three-years' troops, enlisted and mustered into the United States' service, the same as other volunteer troops, and was liable to service wherever required. It attained minimum strength on the 25th of December, 1863, and consisted of four companies, before known as "The Hoffman Battalion," raised at different times in 1862. At and before the time of forming the regiment, the Hoffman Battalion was under the command of a Lieutenant-Colonel and Major. Six new companies were mustered in at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, between the 8th and 15th of January, 1864. The four old companies had been on duty at Johnson's Island nearly all the time since their muster-in, but had frequently furnished detachments for service elsewhere, including a short and very active campaign in pursuit of Rebel troops in West Virginia, in 1862.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth having been chiefly occupied at the frontier posts of Johnson's Island and Sandusky, its service necessarily involves much of the military history of these posts, and can be better understood by giving a brief synopsis of that history.

Early in 1862 Johnson's Island became a depot exclusively for Rebel officers who were held as prisoners of war.

The records of the post show the strength of prisoners in 1862 as follows :

Average for April.....	444	Exchanged, September 1.....	1,123
Average for May.....	1,074	Average for September.....	595
Average for June.....	1,105	Aggregate, October 31st.....	893
July 31st.....	1,149	Aggregate, November 30th.....	295
August 31st.....	1,452	Aggregate, December 31st.....	209

It should be remembered that a cartel for a general exchange of prisoners of war had long been expected, and was finally agreed upon July 22, 1862. Under that cartel and special arrangement, exchanges went on until July, 1863, and a continuance was expected. This expectation, with the belief of general loyalty in the North, and the want of help in Canada, had their legitimate influence on the prisoners, and undoubtedly prevented efforts at outbreak and resistance until late in the fall of 1863.

The number of prisoners of war at the depot during 1863 will be sufficiently understood from the following :

January 31st.....	308	July 31st.....	1,668
February 28th.....	347	August 31st.....	1,817
March 31st.....	105	September 30th.....	2,155
April 30th.....	59	October 31st.....	2,156
May 31st.....	40	November 30th.....	2,381
June 30th.....	806	December 31st.....	2,623

In the spring and summer of 1862 the garrison on the island was strengthened by one company of the Sixty-First Ohio, relieved by one company of the Eighty-Eighth.

The stoppage of exchanges, followed by the assembling of considerable forces from the Rebel army and navy in Canada, and the machinations of disloyal organizations in Ohio, Indiana, and elsewhere, known to intend the rescue of these prisoners, with attendant devastations on the lake towns and commerce, showed these posts to be unsafe without considerable re-enforcements. Six companies of the Twelfth Ohio Cavalry (dismounted), with the Twenty-Fourth Battery (six guns), and two detachments of the First Ohio Heavy Artillery (with seven heavy guns), were sent to the island early in November, 1863, followed promptly by the Forty-Ninth and Fiftieth Regiments of the National Guard and a Pennsylvania battery. The Forty-Ninth and Fiftieth remained only eight or ten days, and the Pennsylvania battery was soon relieved. The other troops remained all winter.

The First Brigade, Third Division, Sixth Corps, including five regiments, attended by two Brigadier-Generals, from the Army of the Potomac, reached Sandusky on the 13th of January, 1864. Four of the regiments, with General Shaler, were stationed on the island. The other regiment, with General H. D. Terry, commanding the whole, was at Sandusky. They all remained until April 14, 1864, when three regiments, under General Shaler left to rejoin the Sixth Corps. The Twenty-Fourth Battery was stationed in Sandusky, and the six cavalry companies left for Camp Dennison in March. Soon after, the six new companies of the One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth, pursuant to orders from Washington, were moved to Sandusky, and on the 14th of April, 1864, with the Colonel, were stationed on the island. The whole regiment was thus, for the first time, assembled as one command.

On the 8th of May, 1864, Colonel Hill, of the One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth, succeeded General Terry in the command, and the two remaining regiments from the Sixth Corps moved off to rejoin that corps. On the 12th of July, 1864, the detachments from the First Heavy Artillery returned to their regiment, and on the 7th of August following the Twenty-Fourth Battery left for Chicago.

Other troops came to the island and departed as follows: May 11th, the One Hundred and Seventy-First Ohio National Guard; it left, June 9th, for Cleveland and Kentucky; returned June 20th, much reduced, eight of the companies being then paroled prisoners, not subject to duty; they were mustered out August 20th. The One Hundred and Thirtieth Ohio National Guard reported for duty May 21st, and left June 6th. The One Hundred and Sixty-Fifth Ohio National Guard (five hundred and forty-nine men) reported for duty May 21st, and left July 16th. The Eighth Battery, Ohio National Guard, reported September 22d, and left October 19th, and was succeeded by the Second Battery, Ohio National Guard, which left November 26th. These National Guard troops were sent to the island chiefly as a place of rendezvous, equipment, and instruction preparatory to service elsewhere. On the 24th of September the Sixth Veteran Reserve Corps (five hundred and sixty-three men), from Washington, reported for duty.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth, from the time of its being first assembled on the island was kept under strict drill and discipline.

The condition of the island, and of the docks, roads, and barracks upon it, required heavy details of working parties, to open ways of communications for defense, complete and improve the quarters, enlarge the prison-grounds and accommodations, and improve the sanitary condition of the island, which had been much neglected for many months.

The strength of the One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth present for duty, from early in May until late in the fall, was much reduced by detachments sent off by order of the Commandants of the Department, and kept away for long periods, so that, on account of absent detachments and heavy details for special duty and necessary working parties, the guard-duty became very severe; often, and for considerable periods, requiring the majority of the men remaining for that service to go on guard every other day.

The number of prisoners of war confined on the island during the year 1864 ranged as follows, varied chiefly by new acquisitions and special exchanges:

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-EIGHTH OHIO INFANTRY. 655

January 31st.....2,603	July 31st.....2,441
February 29th.....2,206	August 31st.....2,556
March 31st.....2,192	September 30th.....2,663
April 30th.....2,088	October 31st.....2,621
May 31st.....2,134	November 30th.....2,747
June 30th.....2,309	December 31st.....3,209

From the foregoing tables it appears that the average strength of prisoners for the different years was as follows:

Average for 1862.....	788
Average for 1863.....	1,205
Average for 1864.....	2,480

In 1865, until discharges on oath of allegiance or parole became more numerous, following the surrender of Lee's army, the number of prisoners ranged considerably higher, and excepting about one hundred, they were all officers of the Rebel army and navy, of all grades, from Second-Lieutenant to Major-General.

Here were officers enough for an army and navy of eighty thousand men. They were within a short distance of the Canada main, and still nearer to a Canada island. The prevailing sympathy in Canada was largely in favor of the Rebels; and there every facility and encouragement, short of direct participation in our war, was extended to the large force from the Rebel army and navy maintained in Canada to effect a rescue of these Rebel officers. If by such efforts war should be brought on between the United States and England a great point would be gained by the Rebels. No other depot of prisoners of war was on a frontier or exposed like this. During the season of navigation it could be reached from Canada in a few hours' night run, and during the winter-season men and teams could conveniently cross the lake, from island to island, not over five miles of ice intervening in any place. During the season of ice the location of the depot of prisoners practically ceased to be an island. The capture of that depot, or the rescue of the prisoners confined there, would not only be of immense advantage to the Rebel cause and give them great eclat, but would be a deep humiliation to our Government and people, and would almost certainly be attended by attacks upon our lake commerce and devastation upon our lake towns. The Rebel officers confined at the island had a large range of acquaintances and friends in the "loyal States." For them the Rebel emissaries traveling in those States, and the secret orders known as the "Knights of the Golden Circle" and "Sons of Liberty," had an especial sympathy, and were anxious to aid them by means of rescue, or with places of refuge and concealment. They had the means of knowing each other. These facts, with the difficulty about exchanges, stimulated machinations for rescue, front and rear, and kept the prisoners constantly on the qui vive, ready for any desperate adventure until after the fall of Petersburg.

It would occupy too much space to give the details of efforts at rescue, or the attempts at escape and outbreak. Suffice it to say that after 1863 picket, as well as police and prison-guard, were all of the time required; and, after the very large reduction of the command, nothing short of the strictest rules of the service and the most constant and untiring vigilance would meet the necessities of the case or answer the expectations of the Government.

Soon after the arrival of the Sixth Veteran Reserve Corps considerable detachments were sent from it for provost and other duties elsewhere; for of those who remained, infirm as many of them were by wounds and disease, the climate and exposure proved too severe; so that all who remained for guard-duty did not make good the places of the absent detachments of the One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth. The Sixth Veteran Reserve Corps left the command early in 1865.

In view of the contingencies on the frontier, and in order to hold these posts with a less force, the United States Engineer Corps, under the direction of the War Department, began the construction of three forts in the fall of 1864—one on Cedar Point, at the mouth of Sandusky Bay, opposite to the island, and two on the island. The expectation was to do this work with hired labor, but laborers were so scarce that men could not be obtained at the wages offered. At this juncture the Colonel of the One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth detailed parties from his regiment, who did at least two-thirds of the whole work, including the mechanical part, and completed all three of the forts, with their magazines, and mounted the guns. This work was done in the most inclement seasons of the year, without extra pay, and at a time when the other details were very heavy. But in this instance, as in all others, officers and men applied themselves to the duties before them with an intelligence and zeal which promptly overcame difficulties, and attained the desired result in a very creditable manner.

Although the One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth was often scattered by detachments and much burdened with fatigue-duty, its drill, including infantry and a considerable range of heavy artillery, was accurate and thorough, and its equipment, discipline, and constant readiness for emergencies and service, wherever ordered, gave assurance that it would meet the just expectations of the Government in any line of duty. Many of its officers and men had served the Government during the war with credit in other organizations, from which they had been discharged on account of disability by wounds or sickness.

In hastening the completion of the defenses at Sandusky Bay, it was anticipated that the regiment would soon be relieved by troops of the Veteran Reserve Corps, and that then the One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth would be sent to join some army in the field. Measures were taken to have it ready for such an event. Fortune did not give the regiment the opportunity, as a body, to earn laurels in battle, but it performed its duties always with faithfulness and efficiency.

Soon after the surrender of the Rebel armies, in the spring of 1865, the prisoners on the island were reduced by discharges on parole to about one hundred and fifty. The One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth left the island on the 10th of July, 1865, and was mustered out on the 17th at Camp Chase.

129th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, SIX MONTHS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	HOWARD D. JOHN	Aug. 10, 1863	Aug. 11, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel....	GEORGE L. HAYWARD.....	July 28, " "	10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	CHARLES MITCHENER.....	Aug. 10, " "	11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	GUSTAV C. E. WEBER.....	June 23, " "	11, " "	Resigned October 31, 1863.
Do.	JAMES W. SMITH.....	Oct. 31, " "	Jan. 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	JAMES W. SMITH.....	Aug. 11, " "	Aug. 11, " "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Chaplain.....	GEORGE R. BOWMAN.....	Nov. 2, " "	Nov. 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Frederick H. Stedman.....	July 1, " "	Aug. 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Mitchener.....	" 16, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Howard D. John.....	" 18, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	David J. Bailey.....	" 22, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. M. Pearce.....	Aug. 1, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Oliver S. Miller.....	" 4, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David Uric.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James M. Mercer.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Xenophon Wheeler.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Allen D. S. McArthur.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew Davis.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Richard Montjoy.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	James E. Howe.....	July 1, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew Davis.....	" 16, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Captain August 10, 1863.
Do.	Richard Montjoy.....	" 18, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Johnson.....	" 20, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M.
Do.	John G. Mecliam.....	" 22, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Nelson W. Evans.....	" 24, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. McMakin.....	Aug. 1, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry T. Ford.....	" 4, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Horace B. Steele.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Thomas H. Brown.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel W. Brooks.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Taylor.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Albert J. Beebout.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Honorably discharged November 14, 1863.
Do.	Wm. J. Irwin.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George H. Bowers.....	Nov. 14, " "	Dec. 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Charles B. Lewis.....	July 1, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Albert J. Beebout.....	" 16, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. J. Irwin.....	" 18, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles H. Heed.....	" 22, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Barnett.....	Aug. 1, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Josiah Sinclair.....	" 4, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Robinson.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Rittenhouse.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Levi Knowlton.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Josiah J. Wright.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George H. Bowers.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles Anthony.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lewis J. Scott.....	Nov. 14, " "	Dec. 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.

129th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, Ohio, August 10, 1863. and was mustered in for the term of six months. It was composed of material from different parts of the State. The process of raising it was very slow, the difficulties of recruiting at that time being almost insurmountable, notwithstanding the term of service was for but six months. Some of the companies lay in camp from June until August, causing dissatisfaction and disgust. Nearly all the officers and a large portion of the men had seen considerable service, so that on their organization comparatively little trouble was experienced in preparing the regiment for the field, and for immediate service. On the same day the regiment was organized it started for Camp Nelson, Kentucky, via Cincinnati and Covington, stopping a few days at the latter place. At Camp Nelson the One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth was brigaded with the Eighty-Sixth Ohio, another six months' regiment (which had preceded the One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth a few days), the Twenty-Second Ohio Battery, and a regiment of Tennessee Mounted Infantry, and placed under the command of Colonel De Courcy of the Sixteenth Ohio. The brigade thus formed was incorporated into the Ninth Army Corps, which was then concentrating at Camp Nelson, having just arrived from the siege of Vicksburg. On the 20th of August the brigade left Camp Nelson, as it finally proved, for Cumberland Gap. Cumberland Gap was approached by passing through the towns of Lancaster, Crab Orchard, Mount Vernon, London, Barboursville, etc., the brigade appearing before the Gap on the morning of the 8th of September. The place was thus completely invested, General Burnside having simultaneously appeared with a force on the south-eastern side.

Cumberland Gap is one of the strongest places by nature in the country, and had been so fortified as to seem absolutely impregnable. The Rebels had spent an immense amount of labor upon it. Inside the fortifications was a force, under the command of the Rebel General Frazier, numbering nearly three thousand men. As our force appeared before the main fort in regular line of battle the Rebels saluted them with three shells, but without damage. This was all the resistance made to the National advance, excepting from the pickets as they were driven into the intrenchments. A formal demand being made by the National commander for the unconditional surrender of the post, General Frazier at once acceded, and the whole garrison fell into our hands, with the exception of a small force of cavalry, which dashed off before being completely hemmed in, and escaped. The fruits of this bloodless victory were over two thousand two hundred prisoners, fourteen pieces of artillery, and a large amount of war material of all kinds.

General Burnside placed the brigade as a garrison at the Gap, and assigned Colonel Lemert as its commander, Colonel De Courcy having incurred his displeasure by entering and taking possession before he, his superior officer, arrived on the ground.

The One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth Ohio remained at and about the Gap, engaged in various duties, such as foraging, scouting, picket-duty, etc., until the morning of the 1st of December, when it was ordered to move at daylight, receiving but two hours' notice. The regiment marched through Tazewell, and in the direction of Clinch River, which was reached next day at the point where the Knoxville road crosses that stream. At this point a sharp engagement was in progress with a division of Longstreet's corps. The One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth was led into this engagement and acquitted themselves in a creditable manner. From the 2d until the last of December the regiment was kept constantly moving along the line of Clinch River, watching the enemy and occasionally skirmishing with him. The winter was very severe. The terrible hardships of this campaign can never be known except by those who participated in them. The men and officers alike had left the Gap without any baggage whatever. The men were almost out of clothes; many of them partially naked, and nearly all without shoes. Of rations they had scarcely enough to sustain life, and that of the very poorest quality, which was obtained by foraging off a country already gleaned over by the repeated passage of both armies to and fro. The inhabitants themselves were on the verge of starvation.

About the last of December the regiment fell back to Tazewell, but their condition was not bettered. The cold was intense and the enemy enterprising, so much so that foraging could not be engaged in very far from camp. The regiment, isolated as it was, was in a far worse condition than the main army, then at and about Knoxville, as Government made efforts, at least, to keep them in supplies. The troops at Tazewell were left literally to rely on their own resources. The graves which mark almost every hill-top and valley of that section of East Tennessee attest the severity and sufferings of the men who passed the terrible winter of 1863 in those inhospitable regions. The One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth, however, lost but few in comparison with other regiments serving there, although exposed as much, if not more, than any other. The Eighty-Sixth Ohio lost heavily. There were four Indiana regiments that suffered terribly. The men of these regiments died by scores, in hospital, in houses by the roadside, in the woods, in fence-corners—everywhere. The partial exemption of the One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth Ohio may well be attributed to the untiring efforts of its commander, Colonel Howard D. John, and his faithful Surgeon, James W. Smith, of Wellington, Ohio.

From Tazewell the One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth returned to the Gap, where it remained until the beginning of February, when it started for Camp Nelson, one hundred and thirty miles distant. From there it was moved straight through to Cleveland, Ohio, where the regiment was mustered out by companies—C and D on the 5th of March, and the others as they were ready, the last of them being discharged on the 11th of March, 1864.

130th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.*

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	CHARLES B. PHILLIPS.....	May 31, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Wm. B. Messenger	May 13, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	JOHN FASKINS.....	" 14, "	Do.	L. Q. Mason.....	" 13, "
Major.....	E. B. HALL.....	" 14, "	Do.	Louis Kaiser.....	" 13, "
Surgeon.....	SAMUEL S. THORN.....	" 14, "	Do.	John C. Wierfel.....	" 13, "
Ass't Surgeon	CALVIN HATHAWAY.....	" 20, "	Do.	Lyman W. Hendrickson	" 13, "
Adjutant.....	WILL B. DECKS.....	" 14, "	Do.	Squire L. Spencer.....	" 14, "
Quar'trmas't'r	MINOT J. WILCOX.....	" 14, "	Do.	Henry Brown.....	" 14, "
Chaplain.....	JAMES W. ALDERMAN	" 30, "	Do.	George P. Bristol.....	" 31, "
Captain.....	Sylvester Brown.....	" 13, "	2d Lieutenant	James C. Messer.....	" 13, "
Do.	Dan. A. Collins.....	" 13, "	Do.	Frederick Ingold.....	" 13, "
Do.	Richard Waith.....	" 13, "	Do.	John J. Barker.....	" 13, "
Do.	L. Jay Carrel.....	" 13, "	Do.	Frederick B. Shoemaker	July 11, "
Do.	George W. Reynolds.....	" 13, "	Do.	Erwin M. Fenner.....	May 13, "
Do.	Louis Koepfel.....	" 13, "	Do.	George H. H. Blaker.....	July 11, "
Do.	Warren D. Moore.....	" 13, "	Do.	Louis Reiger.....	" 13, "
Do.	Alva W. Howe.....	" 14, "	Do.	Joseph Warren.....	" 13, "
Do.	Samuel Leybourn.....	" 14, "	Do.	Jacob B. Foshbaugh.....	" 14, "
Do.	Wm. S. Webb.....	" 31, "	Do.	George Cursons.....	" 14, "
1st Lieutenant	Presley Chamberlin.....	" 13, "	Do.	Henry Lange.....	" 31, "
Do.	Wm. C. Cheney.....	" 13, "

130th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment, which was the First Ohio National Guard, was composed originally of eight companies from Lucas County. Four of these companies and a part of the fifth were from Toledo. The regiment reported promptly under the Governor's call for thirty thousand "hundred days' men," with an aggregate of six hundred and fifty men. Three companies came from Fulton County, to make a full regiment, and the eleven companies left Toledo May 12, 1864, to report to Brigadier-General Hill at Sandusky for consolidation and muster-in. The regiment moved to Johnson's Island, and was engaged in guarding prisoners of war. While the One Hundred and Thirtieth was on the Island the prisoners attempted to escape by tunneling out, but their skillfully-devised plans were discovered and thwarted.

On the 4th of June orders were received to prepare for immediate removal, and in great glee the men crossed the bay and took the cars for Washington City. At Bellair the arms and equipment, State property, were turned in, and the regiment was supplied from those belonging to the General Government. The regiment remained three days in Washington and then embarked on the transport George Weems, and reported to General Butler, at Bermuda Hundred. It was ordered to Point of Rocks, on the Appomattox, and for several days was under arms most of the time, expecting an attack. The regiment returned and went into camp near Butler's Signal Tower, at the left of the line of intrenchments. The time was occupied in drilling, digging rifle-pits, and picketing the lines, until the 21st of June, when the regiment marched to Deep Bottom and was again engaged in picketing and digging. The brigade consisted of the One Hundred and Thirtieth, One Hundred and Thirty-Second, One Hundred and Thirty-Fourth, One Hundred and Forty-Second, and One Hundred and Forty-Eighth Ohio, and was denominated the Second Brigade, Third Division, Tenth Army Corps. On the 22d the regiment participated in a skirmish with the Rebel pickets, with a loss of one man wounded.

On the 11th of August it marched to Bermuda Hundred and proceeded on transports to Fort Powhatan, where it remained till it was ordered to be mustered out. The regiment embarked September 7th on the transport Keyport, and steamed down the James. The boat encountered a heavy storm and came near sinking; but Washington was finally reached, and from there the regiment proceeded by rail to Toledo, where it was paid and discharged.

* The Rosters of the Ohio National Guard—some forty regiments—are given as they were when the organizations entered the service.

131st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel	JOHN G. LOWE	May 14, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Wm. L. Winchell	May 14, 1864
Lt. Colonel	LEVI WALZ	" 14, "	Do.	Charles S. Allen	" 14, "
Major	ELIJAH CULBERT	May 14, 1864	Do.	John P. Lease	" 14, "
Surgeon	ORSON BRITTON	" 14, "	Do.	Josephus W. Wise	" 14, "
Ass't Surgeon	LEVI B. LATHROP	" 14, "	Do.	Christian Coles	" 14, "
Adjutant	G. NELSON BIERCE	" 14, "	Do.	Wm. G. Wells	" 14, "
Quartermaster	HENRY STODDARD, JR.	" 14, "	Do.	Irley E. Jones	" 14, "
Captain	JUSTIN E. TWITCHELL	" 14, "	Do.	Asher S. Tibbals	" 14, "
Do.	Gibson G. Prugh	" 14, "	Do.	Jacob C. Pate	" 14, "
Do.	James Turner	" 14, "	2d Lieutenant	Frank R. Heckler	" 14, "
Do.	Charles D. Herman	" 14, "	Do.	Frederick Witchet	" 14, "
Do.	John Rison	" 14, "	Do.	Christian R. Heckler	" 14, "
Do.	George M. Dixon	" 14, "	Do.	Bainbridge H. Miller	" 14, "
Do.	Daniel Holterman	" 14, "	Do.	Joseph Pettit	" 14, "
Do.	Charles P. Peterson	" 14, "	Do.	John Y. Lamberson	" 14, "
Do.	Henry C. Hall	" 14, "	Do.	John Vance	" 14, "
Do.	Horace Brelsford	" 14, "	Do.	Augustus Becherer	" 14, "
Do.	Morris Skinner	" 14, "	Do.	Edward Davis	" 14, "
1st Lieutenant	James P. Murray	" 14, "	Do.	James F. Taylor	" 14, "

131st REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIRST OHIO was formed by the consolidation of the First and Twelfth Battalions Ohio National Guard. They were both raised in Montgomery County, and both went into Camp Lowe, near Dayton, May 2, 1864. The men were furloughed until the 10th, when they re-assembled and proceeded to Camp Chase. Here the work of consolidation began in earnest and was completed by the 14th, when the regiment was mustered into the United States service by Captain Douglass.

On the next day the regiment proceeded to Baltimore, by way of the Central Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads. It was delayed several days near North Mountain Virginia, by the bridge over the Potomac at Harper's Ferry being washed away; and during the time some anxiety was occasioned among the troops by rumors of the proximity of Rebel cavalry, there being no ammunition in the command. A few rounds were obtained from Harper's Ferry, which rendered everything secure. Upon arrival at Baltimore the regiment reported to Brigadier-General Morris, commanding Second Separate Brigade, Eighth Army Corps, and was assigned to garrison-duty in Forts McHenry, Marshall, and Federal Hill. The One Hundred and Thirty-First remained in charge of the forts during the exciting days in the early part of July, and on the 19th of August left for home via Harrisburg and Pittsburg. At the latter place a sumptuous dinner was provided for it by the citizens. The regiment arrived in Columbus August 21st, and was mustered out at Camp Chase on the 25th.

The regiment performed garrison-duty during the entire period of its enlistment; yet but few regiments not actually at the front have been able to see more clearly the value of their service. Fort Federal Hill being the head-quarters of Camp Distribution, Baltimore, daily calls were made on the garrison to guard detachments to Washington, Harper's Ferry, Fortress Monroe, City Point, and to other places; and it is worthy of remark that of four thousand thus guarded a very small number effected their escape. The entire regiment shares in this honor, for the companies were changed from post to post to equalize the labor and to divide the responsibility. In addition to these duties, nightly details were made for patrol-duty in the city. The men performed their labors with singular fidelity, and merited, as they secured, the hearty approval and gratitude of the entire loyal population of Baltimore.

132d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	JOEL HAINES.....	May 15, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Edward R. Chamberlin.....	May 14, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	JOHN J. PATTON.....	" 15, "	Do.	John L. Clark.....	" 14, "
Major.....	ANDREW P. MENG.....	" 15, "	Do.	John L. Swallow.....	" 14, "
Surgeon.....	WM. J. SULLIVAN.....	" 15, "	Do.	John W. Smith.....	" 14, "
Ass't Surgeon	RICHARD EDWARDS.....	" 15, "	Do.	Wm. H. Ilu-ton.....	" 14, "
Do.	ALBERT F. MATSON.....	" 24, "	Do.	Levi M. Willetts.....	" 14, "
Adjutant.....	ROBERT DOW.....	" 15, "	Do.	Eli H. Day.....	" 16, "
Quart'mast'r	ALBERT C. RAMSEY.....	" 15, "	Do.	Wm. L. Brown.....	" 15, "
Chaplain.....	AARON J. STUBBS.....	" 15, "	Do.	Enoch P. Williams.....	" 15, "
Captain.....	John J. Shirley.....	" 14, "	2d Lieutenant	Peter Snook.....	" 14, "
Do.	William B. Niven.....	" 14, "	Do.	John Seaman.....	" 14, "
Do.	John H. Harrod.....	" 14, "	Do.	James A. Brown.....	" 14, "
Do.	Jacob Beard.....	" 14, "	Do.	Jeremiah Barnes.....	" 14, "
Do.	Joseph M. Black.....	" 14, "	Do.	Peter Dow.....	" 14, "
Do.	J. J. Shriver.....	" 14, "	Do.	Daniel W. Koch.....	" 14, "
Do.	Henry B. Patterson.....	" 14, "	Do.	John H. H. Gordon.....	" 14, "
Do.	Benj. F. H. Hankins.....	" 16, "	Do.	Wm. Good.....	" 16, "
Do.	Robert B. Porter.....	" 15, "	Do.	James Eaton.....	" 15, "
Do.	Spencer W. Garwood.....	" 15, "	Do.	Arthur C. Humphrey.....	" 15, "
1st Lieutenant	Fielding S. Cable.....	" 14, "

132d REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was formed by the consolidation of three companies of the Forty-Second Battalion Ohio National Guard, from Paulding County, and one company of the Twelfth Ohio National Guard, from Montgomery County, with the Thirty-Eighth Ohio National Guard, from Logan County. The regiment was mustered in at Camp Chase, on the 14th and 15th of May, 1864, and for several days remained in camp, almost constantly engaged in drill. On the 22d, at six o'clock A. M., the One Hundred and Thirty-Second marched to Columbus and took the cars for Washington City, proceeding by way of the Central Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads, arriving May 24th, and was ordered into camp near Fort Albany. On the afternoon of the 30th it embarked at Alexandria on the steamer John Brooks, and proceeded to White House, reporting on arrival to General A. J. Smith. The regiment was assigned to the Third Brigade, Third Division, Eighteenth Army Corps. It remained here, performing very heavy fatigue and picket-duty, until June 11th, when it embarked on a small steamer and proceeded to Bermuda Hundred. Here again the regiment performed fatigue and picket-duty, and suffered severely from sickness. On the 12th of August the regiment embarked for Norfolk, where it enjoyed a period of comparative rest.

On the 27th of August the regiment embarked for Washington City, and proceeding from there by way of Baltimore, Pittsburg, and Crestline, arrived at Columbus on the morning of the 30th. The regiment was paid and mustered out at Camp Chase on the 10th of September.

133d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	GUSTAVUS L. INNIS.....	May 6, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Sylvester W. Rainey.....	May 6, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	WM. EWING.....	" 6, "	Do.	Henry A. Gentner.....	" 6, "
Major.....	JOSEPH M. CLARR.....	" 6, "	Do.	Henry L. Whitehead.....	" 6, "
Surgeon.....	C. P. LANNON.....	" 7, "	Do.	Jacob Romick.....	" 6, "
Ass't Surgeon	DAVID RIDENOUR.....	" 21, "	Do.	A. M. Bull.....	" 6, "
Do.	ROBERT M. MCCONNELL.....	" 7, "	Do.	Robert S. Boyle.....	" 6, "
Adjutant.....	GEORGE W. HAYDEN.....	" 6, "	Do.	Charles H. Parsons.....	" 6, "
Quart'mast r	CARL BANCROFT.....	" 6, "	Do.	Benjamin C. Stratton.....	" 6, "
Chaplain.....	JAMES MITCHELL.....	" 25, "	Do.	David Roberts.....	" 6, "
Captain.....	Joseph Steady.....	" 6, "	2d Lieutenant	Jefferson Darrach.....	" 6, "
Do.	Job. Wilson.....	" 6, "	Do.	Oliver Marion.....	" 6, "
Do.	Lawrence L. Meacham.....	" 6, "	Do.	S. A. Hutcheson.....	" 6, "
Do.	Hiram C. Tipton.....	" 6, "	Do.	John M. Dickerson.....	" 6, "
Do.	Ellis H. Heazler.....	" 6, "	Do.	George W. Larken.....	" 6, "
Do.	Lewis H. Webster.....	" 6, "	Do.	Wm. S. Ridenour.....	" 6, "
Do.	Edward Fisher.....	" 6, "	Do.	Wm. H. Zabrangh.....	" 6, "
Do.	Samuel W. Williams.....	" 6, "	Do.	Wm. H. Miller.....	" 6, "
Do.	Henry Plympton.....	" 6, "	Do.	James A. Stockton.....	" 6, "
Do.	Thomas Lilly.....	" 6, "	Do.	W. S. Fearn.....	" 6, "
1st Lieutenant	James Walthmere.....	" 6, "

133d REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was formed by the consolidation of two companies of the Fifty-Eighth and the Seventy-Sixth Battalions with the Third Ohio National Guard, making an aggregate of nine hundred and seventeen men. The regiment was mustered in on the 6th of May, 1864, and was immediately ordered to Parkersburg, West Virginia. It arrived there May 8th, and as soon as transportation could be furnished moved on to New Creek. The regiment first occupied Fort Fuller, but soon moved into quarters vacated by other troops, where it remained until June 7th. The time was fully occupied by drills, and strong efforts were made to fit the regiment for active field-service.

The regiment proceeded to Washington City June 7th, and was ordered to Bermuda Hundred, where it arrived June 12th, and was assigned to the First Brigade, First Division, Tenth Army Corps. On the 16th of June the First Division was ordered to destroy the Richmond and Petersburg Railroad, in order to prevent the Rebels from sending re-enforcements from the former to the latter place. The One Hundred and Thirty-Third was assigned to the support of a battery, which opened a furious cannonade on the enemy, and, with other troops, succeeded in holding the Rebels in check five hours, during which time the left of the division tore up about four miles of railroad track. The division then retired in good order, though the First Brigade was engaged in sharp skirmishing, in which the One Hundred and Thirty-Third lost two men wounded. At ten o'clock at night the regiment was relieved, and was marched to its camp for supper, having been without food during the day. On the 17th of July the regiment embarked at Point of Rocks, and proceeded to Fort Powhatan on the James. Here it was employed in work on the fortifications and in repairing a telegraph line from Fort Powhatan to Swan's Point. In this latter duty encounters with the enemy were common, in one of which the Rebels killed two men in the regiment, whom they shamelessly mutilated and left naked in the public road. A detachment was sent out to avenge the outrage, and the leader of the Rebel gang was killed and one of his comrades wounded. In addition to its other duties the regiment built a magazine, and also a signal tower eighty feet high. Fort Powhatan proved so very sickly that over three hundred of the One Hundred and Thirty-Third were on the sick list at one time. On the 10th of August the regiment proceeded to Washington City and from thence to Camp Chase, where it was mustered out August 20, 1864.

134th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	JAMES B. ARMSTRONG...	May 6, 1864	1st Lieutenant	James M. McFarland.....	May 6, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	DAVID W. TOD.....	" 6, "	Do.	Henry C. Moon.....	" 6, "
Major.....	JOHN C. BAKER.....	" 6, "	Do.	Azro Smith.....	" 6, "
Surgeon.....	JAMES K. SPAIN.....	" 6, "	Do.	Samuel Bibbs.....	" 6, "
Ass't Surgeon	BENJ. F. BAKER.....	" 7, "	Do.	Nathaniel S. Johnson.....	" 6, "
Adjutant.....	SAMUEL S. MCMORIN.....	" 6, "	Do.	Lewis H. Miller.....	" 6, "
Quart'mast'r	SAMUEL D. STRAYER.....	" 6, "	Do.	William Longacre.....	" 6, "
Chaplain.....	LEANDER H. LONG.....	" 6, "	Do.	Marion C. Grafton.....	" 6, "
Captain.....	Matt Weaver.....	" 6, "	Do.	B. W. Maxwell.....	" 6, "
Do.	Miles Wilson.....	" 6, "	2d Lieutenant	John W. Evans.....	" 6, "
Do.	Horatio G. Johnson.....	" 6, "	Do.	James C. Reid.....	" 6, "
Do.	Phil. Burnham.....	" 6, "	Do.	Ebenezer Roseberry.....	" 6, "
Do.	Wm. B. Cheney.....	" 6, "	Do.	Wm. H. Lovelace.....	" 6, "
Do.	John W. Barley.....	" 6, "	Do.	Ferguson Bowen.....	" 6, "
Do.	Robert E. Robinson.....	" 6, "	Do.	Wm. R. Clark.....	" 6, "
Do.	Jacob Kress.....	" 6, "	Do.	Isaac H. Evans.....	" 6, "
Do.	John F. Riker.....	" 6, "	Do.	James O. Alexander.....	" 6, "
Do.	D. B. Reinhart.....	" 6, "	Do.	James C. Grafton.....	" 6, "
1st Lieutenant	Cyrus C. Barr.....	" 6, "	Do.	E. S. Kilborn.....	" 6, "

134th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was composed of the Fourth Ohio National Guard from Champaign County, which reported with seven hundred and fifty rank and file at the rendezvous, companies A and B Ninety-Fourth Battalion, of Shelby County, and one company from Hancock County. It was mustered into the service of the United States at Camp Chase, on the 6th of May, 1864, and the next day moved for Cumberland, Virginia, by way of Parkersburg.

Here the regiment became well drilled, and on the 6th of June moved to Washington, where it was supplied with one hundred and fifty rounds of ammunition to the man, and then it proceeded to White House, on the Pamunkey. The regiment did not disembark on arrival, but was immediately ordered to City Point. Here it aided in pontooning the river and in building roads. On the 17th of June the regiment was engaged with the enemy at Port Walthall, during the assault on Petersburg, with a loss of two killed and three wounded. The men displayed great coolness and bravery under fire. On the 22d of June the One Hundred and Thirty-Fourth moved to the north side of James River and aided in building works, afterward held by Foster's division. Here a brigade of Ohio troops was formed, consisting of the One Hundred and Thirtieth, One Hundred and Thirty-Second, One Hundred and Thirty-Fourth, One Hundred and Thirty-Eighth, and One Hundred and Forty-Second Ohio. It was denominated the Second Brigade, Third Division, Tenth Army Corps.

For seventy days the regiment formed a portion of the advanced lines operating on Richmond, and was engaged in intrenching and picket-duty. The regiment was mustered out at Camp Chase on the 31st of August, 1864.

135th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	ANDREW LEGG.....	May 11, 1864	1st Lieutenant	George W. Hull.....	May 8, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	CONDUCE H. GATCH.....	" 10, "	Do.	George A. Ball.....	" 8, "
Major.....	DAVID THOMAS.....	" 10, "	Do.	Wm. Wansborough.....	" 8, "
Surgeon.....	M. M. STIMMEL.....	" 10, "	Do.	James C. Hancock.....	" 8, "
Ass't Surgeon	DAVID H. GREGORY.....	" 8, "	Do.	Edward John.....	" 8, "
Do.	WM. JONES, JR.....	" 9, "	Do.	James L. Stevenson.....	" 9, "
Adjutant.....	CHARLES T. DICKERSON.....	" 10, "	Do.	Isaac N. Dille.....	" 9, "
Quart'rmas't'r	SAMUEL C. FIELD.....	" 8, "	Do.	Ira Williams.....	" 9, "
Chaplain.....	L. R. BOYCE.....	June 9, "	Do.	David C. Baldwin.....	" 11, "
Captain.....	W. A. McKee.....	May 8, "	2d Lieutenant	Jesse Wilson.....	" 8, "
Do.	Ulysses S. Westbrook.....	" 8, "	Do.	Rynier V. Outcalt.....	" 8, "
Do.	Luther J. Johnson.....	" 8, "	Do.	Samuel M. Brook.....	" 8, "
Do.	John H. Baird.....	" 8, "	Do.	Joseph Atkinson.....	" 8, "
Do.	John L. Francis.....	" 8, "	Do.	George Patterson.....	" 8, "
Do.	Wm. W. Nixon.....	" 9, "	Do.	John E. Ward.....	" 9, "
Do.	Emanuel A. Donson.....	" 9, "	Do.	Horatio N. Wheeler.....	" 9, "
Do.	Michael Melhorn.....	" 9, "	Do.	Joseph D. Matthews.....	" 9, "
Do.	George D. Williams.....	" 11, "	Do.	Marvin B. Keith.....	" 11, "
1st Lieutenant	Hiram Bricker.....	" 8, "

135th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was composed of the Fifth Ohio National Guard, of Licking County, and the Thirty-Second Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Hardin County. It was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, and on the 11th of May left for Cumberland, Maryland, with an aggregate of eight hundred and fifty men.

It was soon ordered to Martinsburg, and the companies were distributed along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at Kearneysville, North Mountain, Vanclevessville, and Opequan Station, with head-quarters at Martinsburg. On the morning of the 3d of July preparations were made to abandon Martinsburg, and the companies along the railroad were ordered to head-quarters. The order failed to reach the companies at North Mountain; and, after fighting five hours in a blockhouse, against three thousand Rebels with five pieces of artillery, they surrendered. The men were taken to Andersonville and the officers to Macon; afterward to Charleston, and from there to Columbia. Only about one-half of those that were captured lived to return to their homes. About seven o'clock A. M. a portion of the regiment went into line of battle on the Winchester Pike, and remained there until eleven o'clock, when the entire regiment joined the retreating column, moving in the direction of Maryland Heights, on the Shepardstown Road. The regiment encamped near the Heights until the 6th of July, when it moved to John Brown's Schoolhouse, and was engaged in a sharp skirmish, with a loss of five killed, ten wounded (one mortally), and twenty-seven missing. After this the regiment was placed on the Heights to guard the artillery, and remained on duty there until it was ordered to be mustered out. It arrived at Camp Chase on the 28th of August, and was mustered out September 1, 1864.

136th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	W. SMITH IRWIN.....	May 13, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Simon E. De Wolfe.....	May 13, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	DAVID A. WILLIAMS.....	" 13, "	Do.	Ira M. Corry.....	" 13, "
Major.....	ALEXANDER W. DILLER.....	" 13, "	Do.	James Biggs.....	" 13, "
Surgeon.....	WM. F. BROWN.....	" 13, "	Do.	George W. Myers.....	" 13, "
Ass't Surgeon	WM. REED.....	" 13, "	Do.	James W. McCracken.....	" 13, "
Adjutant.....	ANDREW R. BGGES.....	" 13, "	Do.	Thomas Litzenberg.....	" 13, "
Quartermaster	SAMUEL H. HARBERT.....	" 13, "	Do.	J. B. Ritchie.....	" 13, "
Chaplain.....	H. H. MESSENGER.....	" 17, "	Do.	John Mitchell.....	" 13, "
Captain.....	Henry McPeck.....	June 2, "	Do.	Samuel McCullister.....	" 13, "
Do.	James B. Brown.....	May 13, "	2d Lieutenant	Spaulding P. Jones.....	" 13, "
Do.	Wm. A. Mitchell.....	" 13, "	Do.	Jonah C. Emory.....	" 13, "
Do.	David S. Norvell.....	" 13, "	Do.	Elihu Paul.....	" 13, "
Do.	Samuel Smalley.....	" 13, "	Do.	James Smith.....	" 13, "
Do.	Zachariah Meredith.....	" 13, "	Do.	James W. Fulkerson.....	" 13, "
Do.	J. Comley Baxter.....	" 13, "	Do.	John M. Moore.....	" 13, "
Do.	Charles Fullington.....	" 13, "	Do.	Warner Hayden.....	" 13, "
Do.	Moses Shank.....	" 13, "	Do.	Alex. D. Reed.....	" 13, "
Do.	Alpheus B. Carter.....	" 13, "	Do.	Oscar L. R. French.....	" 13, "
1st Lieutenant	Owen Tuttle.....	" 13, "	Do.	Bowen S. Lammie.....	" 13, "

136th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE regiment arrived at Camp Chase on the morning of the 12th of May, 1864, and on the evening of the 13th it was mustered, uniformed, armed, equipped, and on board the cars en route for Washington City. On the 20th of May the regiment was placed on garrison-duty in Forts Ellsworth, Williams, and North, a part of the defenses of Washington, south of the Potomac, and was assigned to the Third Brigade, De Russy's division. It remained on garrison-duty during its term of service, which expired August 20th. It was mustered out August 30, 1864, having lost, from disease, two officers and twenty-three men.

137th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel	LEN. A. HARRIS	May 10, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Adolph Wood	May 10, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	GEORGE W. FINCH.....	" 10, "	Do.	Robert E. Duulap.....	" 10, "
Major	GEORGE A. VANDERGRIFT	" 10, "	Do.	Wm. Young	" 10, "
Surgeon	Wm. B. DAVIS	" 10, "	Do.	Pierson R. Mitchell.....	" 10, "
Ass't Surgeon	CHAS. HUNT	27, "	Do.	Earl W. Stinson.....	" 10, "
Do.	JAM. S. CURRIERTSON.....	July 16, "	Do.	C. Swan Walker.....	" 10, "
Adjutant	GEORGE A. MIDDLETON	May 10, "	Do.	Charles T. Fortistall	" 10, "
Quartermaster	SAMUEL D. CAREY	" 4, "	Do.	Alexis Koeler.....	" 10, "
Captain	James H. Shiloh.....	" 10, "	Do.	Raper J. Williams	" 10, "
Do.	Walto C. Booth.....	" 10, "	2d Lieutenant	George W. Ward.....	" 10, "
Do.	Alfred R. Russell	" 10, "	Do.	A. W. Whelpley.....	" 20, "
Do.	M. S. Lord.....	" 10, "	Do.	Benjamin E. Hopkins	" 10, "
Do.	James G. Baldwin.....	" 10, "	Do.	H. C. Young	" 10, "
Do.	Alfred T. Goshorn.....	" 10, "	Do.	Wm. R. Oakley.....	" 10, "
Do.	Amni Baldwin.....	" 10, "	Do.	Wm. C. Chapman	" 19, "
Do.	H. H. Taten.....	" 10, "	Do.	Benjamin F. Wright.....	" 10, "
Do.	William Doney.....	" 10, "	Do.	Henry Wayne.....	" 10, "
Do.	Joseph Kirkup.....	" 10, "	Do.	John R. Selden.....	" 10, "
1st Lieutenant	James P. Lytle.....	" 10, "	Do.	Ethelbert D. Norris.....	" 10, "

137th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was designated, under the militia law of Ohio, as the Seventh Ohio National Guard, and was organized for the "hundred days' service" as the One Hundred and Thirty-Seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The rank and file of this organization was composed wholly of citizens of Cincinnati, drawn from the mercantile and mechanic interests of the city—the mercantile largely predominating. It was considered the best-drilled regiment in the State, and was to Cincinnati what the Seventh New York Regiment is to the Empire City. On the publication of the Governor's call for "thirty thousand minute-men from Ohio," there was not the least hesitation among the members of this fine organization. Every name was promptly represented in the ranks, notwithstanding there were scores of "comrades" who could well afford to purchase substitutes, but it was made a matter of pride that each and every member should report in person, unless their business absolutely forbade it.

On the 6th of May, 1864, the regiment was mustered into the United States service, at Camp Dennison, Ohio, and was put en route for Washington City on the 12th of the same month. On arriving at Baltimore it marched through the city, preceded by the far-famed Menter's band of musicians; and such was the evidence of its correct drill and thorough discipline, that Major-General Lew. Wallace, then in command of the district, was prompted to retain it in his department. Orders to that effect were at once issued, and the regiment was assigned to duty at Fort McHenry, in the harbor below Baltimore, with detachments at Forts Federal Hill, Marshall, and Carroll, and at the various head-quarters in Baltimore. The greater part of the "hundred days" were spent in that duty.

On the 1st of August the regiment moved up to Fort Marshall, and there remained until the 14th, when, its time having expired, it was transported to Camp Dennison, Ohio, and mustered out of the service on the 21st.

Its losses were but five men, all told, three of whom died of disease; the other two were killed on the way home by striking a bridge through which the train was passing.

The commander of this regiment, Colonel Len. A. Harris, had had the valuable experience of two years service in the war, as Colonel of the Second Ohio Volunteer infantry.

138th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

BANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	BANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	SAMUEL S. FISHER.....	May 15, 1864	1st Lieutenant	John H. Hanna.....	May 10, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	ERI F. JEWETT.....	" 15, "	Do.	Eli L. Muchmore.....	" 10, "
Major.....	CHARLES GILPIN.....	" 15, "	Do.	Wm. E. Don.....	" 11, "
Surgeon.....	CHARLES P. WILSON.....	" 15, "	Do.	Wm. Strunk.....	" 14, "
Ass't Surgeon	AMOS B. FULLER.....	June 5, "	Do.	James C. Timberman.....	" 10, "
Do.	HIRSH H. RUSSELL.....	" 21, "	Do.	David R. Gavin.....	" 14, "
Adjutant.....	CHARLES H. HUBBELL.....	May 15, "	Do.	Samuel Wardle.....	" 14, "
Quart'master	AARON A. COLTER.....	" 15, "	Do.	John H. Palmer.....	" 14, "
Chaplain.....	CHAS. H. WILLIAMS.....	June 11, "	Do.	John Mahan.....	" 14, "
Captain.....	Wm. J. Torrence.....	May 10, "	2d Lieutenant	Jacob Pfau.....	" 14, "
Do.	C. S. Batts.....	" 10, "	Do.	Amos Tooker.....	" 10, "
Do.	Philip M. Everhard.....	" 14, "	Do.	John T. McKittrick.....	" 10, "
Do.	Henry Gulick.....	" 14, "	Do.	L. T. J. Silsbee.....	" 11, "
Do.	Edward J. Flist.....	" 14, "	Do.	Samuel A. Butts.....	" 14, "
Do.	Edward C. Boyce.....	" 10, "	Do.	Benjamin R. Noble.....	" 10, "
Do.	Wm. B. Chenoweth.....	" 14, "	Do.	Jacob Heid, jr.....	" 14, "
Do.	Bonneville Kline.....	" 14, "	Do.	John C. Little.....	" 14, "
Do.	James Huston, Jr.....	" 14, "	Do.	Adrian A. Robertson.....	" 14, "
Do.	James Todd.....	" 14, "	Do.	A. H. Cumming.....	" 14, "
1st Lieutenant	R. Manceley.....	" 14, "

138th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was composed of the Fifth Ohio National Guard, of Licking County, the Thirty-Second Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Hardin County, and one company of the Thirty-Seventh Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Lorain County. It was mustered into the United States service on the 14th of May, 1864, and was ordered immediately to Washington City.

Proceeding by way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the regiment arrived at North Mountain, where information was received that the bridge at Harper's Ferry was impassable; and the One Hundred and Thirty-Eighth, with other "hundred days' regiments," was delayed, awaiting the repair of the bridge. A picket was established, and every precaution taken for defense. In a few days the troops moved on, and the regiment arrived at Washington May 22d. It was placed in the defenses south of the Potomac, with head-quarters in Fort Albany, and detachments in Forts Craig and Tillinghast. The time was occupied in repairing and completing those forts and drilling in infantry and heavy-artillery tactics. On the 5th of June the regiment was ordered to White House Landing, where it was employed in picket-duty and in guarding Rebel prisoners. On the 16th of June the regiment was ordered to Bermuda Hundred, and proceeded on steamer, via Fortress Monroe, up the James to Fort Powhatan. Here its progress was checked by the pontoon bridge on which the army of the Potomac was crossing the James. The regiment debarked and marched to Bermuda Hundred, distant twenty-five miles. The march was made during two of the hottest days of summer, and the men suffered greatly from dust and the want of water. The regiment arrived at Fort Spring Hill, on the eastern bank of the Appomattox, opposite Point of Rocks, on the 19th of June, and was engaged in picket and fatigue-duty at Point of Rocks and at Broadway Landing.

The regiment next moved to Cherrystone Inlet, on the eastern shore of Virginia. Head-quarters were established at Eastville, the county-town of Northampton County, and the companies were distributed at various points to guard the telegraph from Cherrystone to Wilmington, to prevent raids from the opposite side of the bay, and to intercept blockade-runners and Rebel mail-carriers. At the expiration of its term of service the regiment returned to Ohio, over the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, and was mustered out at Camp Dennison on September 1, 1861.

139th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Lt. Colonel....	J. LLOYD WAYNE, jr.....	May 20, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Edward Evans.....	May 13, 1864
Major.....	ALONZO W. BAKER.....	" 20, "	Do.	Thatcher Lewis, jr.....	" 15, "
Surgeon.....	JOHN HILL.....	" 23, "	Do.	John Miller.....	" 13, "
Ass't Surgeon	BENJAMIN F. MCKENNON....	" 22, "	Do.	Josiah McCarthy.....	" 13, "
Adjutant.....	GEORGE J. SPENINGER.....	" 20, "	Do.	L. B. Shaffer.....	" 15, "
Quart'rmas't'r	GEORGE A. BASS.....	" 20, "	Do.	Samuel H. Eckelberry.....	" 15, "
Captain.....	Nathaniel S. Hubbell.....	" 13, "	Do.	Jefferson S. Wonnell.....	" 21, "
Do.	Archibald Walker.....	" 20, "	2d Lieutenant	Jeremiah Kiersted.....	" 13, "
Do.	L. M. Rogers.....	" 13, "	Do.	James C. Cozine.....	" 20, "
Do.	Burris W. Oliver.....	" 15, "	Do.	James B. Doone.....	" 13, "
Do.	Wm. J. Richards.....	" 13, "	Do.	Truman B. Clement.....	" 15, "
Do.	John F. Ricard.....	" 13, "	Do.	John C. Buerkle.....	" 13, "
Do.	S. W. Davis.....	" 15, "	Do.	Samuel Wunder.....	" 13, "
Do.	Thomas J. Davis.....	" 15, "	Do.	George A. Hall.....	" 15, "
1st Lieutenant	Adam Hornung.....	" 13, "	Do.	Abraham Balyeat.....	" 15, "
Do.	S. F. Elwood.....	" 20, "

139th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS was one of the Cincinnati Hundred Day regiments, and its ranks were filled with recruits who had seen more or less service in organizations raised in 1861-2. Its first rendezvous was at Camp Dennison, where it lay for some ten days. It was then taken by rail to Camp Chase, where, on May 11, 1864, it was fully armed, equipped, and mustered into the United States service.

Remaining in camp for a few days, in order that the regiment might be somewhat disciplined, it moved, on May 20th, via the Central Ohio and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroads to Washington City, where it went into barracks.

On June 1st it was placed on duty at Point Lookout, Maryland, an important depot for the confinement of Rebel prisoners. At the time the regiment took up its quarters at this place, there were twenty-two thousand prisoners confined there. The force to guard and look after this number of prisoners was only eighteen hundred men, all told. From this may be judged how arduous must have been the guard and other necessary duties performed by so inadequate a force.

The details were necessarily so numerous and frequent as to almost preclude the idea of rest. This, added to the fact that there was little or no fresh water to be had on the dry and sandy beach, and that no inviting foraging-ground presented itself, made the duties of the regiment unusually severe. "Sibley's" were also denied, and officers and men were compelled to sleep on the sandy beach under those aggravating little substitutes, the shelter-tent.

The incessant duty, want of water, and the hot sun, had their effect on the troops, and fourteen good men were, in a short space of time, laid in their graves, while scores of others were on the sick-list.

On August 22d (some days after the expiration of its time of service), the regiment was taken to Baltimore, and thence by rail to Camp Chase, where, on the 26th of August, 1864, it was paid off and mustered out of the service.

140th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	ROBERT B. WILSON.....	May 10, 1864	1st Lieutenant	John Barrett.....	May 10, 1864
Lt. Colonel	VAN B. HIBBS.....	" 10, "	Do.	James N. Titus.....	" 10, "
Major.....	DAVID T. HARKINS.....	" 10, "	Do.	William Kinney.....	" 10, "
Surgeon.....	DANIEL C. RATHBONE.....	" 10, "	Do.	Fernando C. Searl.....	" 10, "
Adjutant.....	THEOPHORE G. MONTAGUE.....	" 10, "	Do.	Milton Moore.....	" 10, "
Quart'rmas't'r	WM. H. LASLEY.....	" 10, "	Do.	Robert H. Brewster.....	" 10, "
Chaplain.....	IRA Z. HAINING.....	" 18, "	Do.	Joseph Heck.....	" 10, "
Captain	Oscar P. Skinner.....	" 10, "	Do.	Timothy Sullivan.....	" 10, "
Do.	William Foster.....	" 10, "	2d Lieutenant	John C. McElhenny.....	" 10, "
Do.	Charles A. Hudson.....	" 10, "	Do.	Alvin Hobart.....	" 10, "
Do.	James G. Derry.....	" 10, "	Do.	William Nease.....	" 10, "
Do.	Charles Soule, jr.....	" 10, "	Do.	John F. Stevens.....	" 10, "
Do.	Louis Sontag.....	" 10, "	Do.	Henry R. Tracey.....	" 40, "
Do.	Wm. C. Hayes.....	" 10, "	Do.	Hiram Adams.....	" 10, "
Do.	Waldo R. Strong.....	" 10, "	Do.	James W. Martin.....	" 10, "
Do.	Charles Blain.....	" 10, "	Do.	Francis Stroug.....	" 10, "
Do.	Henry Warren.....	" 10, "	Do.	Andrew L. Cavender.....	" 10, "
1st Lieutenant	Samuel J. Grant.....	" 10, "	Do.	Sardine Guthrie.....	" 10, "
Do.	Samuel S. Cochran.....	" 10, "

140th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS organization was mustered into the service of the United States, for one hundred days, at Gallipolis, Ohio, on May 10th, 1863. It was composed of some of the best citizens of Meigs, Gallia, and Lawrence counties. In the distribution of the Ohio National Guard regiments, by the War Department, it fell to the lot of the One Hundred and Fortieth to be sent to Charleston, on the Kanawha River, in Western Virginia, its presence there being the means of relieving and sending to the front a valuable reinforcement of veteran troops.

Aside from guarding an important frontier, the services of the One Hundred and Fortieth were necessary at that point for the preservation of a large amount of army stores collected at Charleston and other points on the Kanawha River.

This description of duty was performed by the regiment during its whole term of service, and involved some hard marches, perilous scouts, etc. Its range was up and down the banks of the Kanawha and Gauley Rivers, and to Meadow Bluffs. The regiment was mustered out of the service at Gallipolis on September 3d, 1863.

141st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	ANDERSON L. JAYNES.....	May 12, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Edward P. Smith.....	May 11, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	TAYLOR W. HAMPTON.....	" 11, "	Do.	Thos. G. Angell.....	" 11, "
Major.....	ARCHIBALD D. BROWN.....	" 11, "	Do.	Benjamin W. Rutherford.....	" 11, "
Surgeon.....	CHARLES L. WILSON.....	" 11, "	Do.	Charles Stewart.....	" 11, "
Asst Surgeon	JAMES JOHNSON.....	" 19, "	Do.	Nathan Waddell.....	" 11, "
Adjutant.....	JOSEPH M. GOODSPEED.....	" 11, "	Do.	Thomas J. Purcell.....	" 11, "
Quartermaster	HENRY T. BROWN.....	" 11, "	Do.	Frank H. Atkins.....	" 11, "
Chaplain.....	O. E. BAKER.....	" 21, "	Do.	John H. Morris.....	" 14, "
Captain.....	Elijah J. Copeland.....	" 11, "	Do.	Robert Parker.....	" 14, "
Do.	Julius C. Stehman.....	" 11, "	2d Lieutenant	Joseph Cowen.....	" 11, "
Do.	Francis H. Gray.....	" 11, "	Do.	Silas Prudden.....	" 11, "
Do.	Amos O. Mauck.....	" 11, "	Do.	Isaiah Bean.....	" 11, "
Do.	Samuel Rothgeb.....	" 11, "	Do.	Augustus Kerr.....	" 11, "
Do.	Amos Ripley.....	" 11, "	Do.	David W. Berry.....	" 11, "
Do.	Wm. W. Ralby.....	" 11, "	Do.	John W. Scott.....	" 11, "
Do.	Wm. W. Knitz.....	" 11, "	Do.	Wm. H. Clark.....	" 11, "
Do.	George S. Kirker.....	" 14, "	Do.	Warren R. Nortrop.....	" 11, "
Do.	Simon M. Fiel.....	" 14, "	Do.	Ellis Washburn.....	" 14, "
1st Lieutenant	Wm. P. Wyatt.....	" 11, "	Do.	Thomas Hayslip.....	" 14, "

141st REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY FIRST REGIMENT was organized at Gallipolis, and mustered into the United States service on the 11th of May, 1864. It was composed of the Thirty-Sixth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, from Athens County; the Sixteenth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, from Gallia County; two companies from Adams County, being part of the Eighty-Fourth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, and part of a company from Scioto County, of the Twentieth Battalion, Ohio National Guard. In the organization the Colonel, Major, Surgeon, Quartermaster, and Adjutant of the Thirty-Sixth were retained; the Lieutenant-Colonel, Assistant-Surgeon, and Chaplain were of the Sixteenth Battalion. On the 21st of May the regiment was ordered to report at Charleston, West Virginia, and on arriving there was ordered to relieve the Thirteenth West Virginia Infantry, which went immediately to the East. This regiment had for nearly a year been guarding the line from Gandy-dotte to Charleston. The One Hundred and Forty-First remained on this line until the 25th of August, when it was ordered to Gallipolis and mustered out on the 3d of September. The guard-duty on this line was heavy, the regiment having some thirty-five miles to guard; and the country being infested with bushwhackers, under the command of "Clawhammer" Witcher, Smith, and Carpenter. Fully one-third of the men were on duty all the time. The health of the men generally was good, owing to the thorough policing of the camps and the strict attention of the Surgeons. Two men were wounded by bushwhackers when passing from one station to another on the line, and four died of disease and were sent home for internment. The regiment was composed of large, fine-looking men, and was noted for good discipline and drill. Although they were not "at the front," the men had the satisfaction of knowing that they were doing their country good service in the hour of her great need, and did not regret that they gave up the comforts of home at their country's call.

142d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	WM. C. COOPER.....	May 13, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Wm. Kinsey.....	May 13, 1864
Lt. Colonel...	WM. ROGERS.....	" 13, "	Do.	Lucian B. Curtis.....	" 13, "
Major.....	WM. M. YOUNG.....	" 13, "	Do.	Andrew Irwin.....	" 13, "
Surgeon.....	WILSON N. KING.....	" 13, "	Do.	John A. Weatherwax.....	" 13, "
ASST SURGEON	JACOB STAMP.....	" 13, "	Do.	W. H. H. Miller.....	" 13, "
Adjutant.....	FREDERICK D. SCURGES.....	" 13, "	Do.	David Lawson.....	" 13, "
Quartermaster	ALEX. H. FRITCHEY.....	" 13, "	Do.	Alfred R. McIntire.....	" 13, "
Chaplain.....	WM. J. TRIMBLE.....	June 25, "	Do.	Carey Bell.....	" 13, "
Captain.....	Jesse Davis.....	May 13, "	Do.	John Eichelberger.....	" 13, "
Do.	Henry Larimore.....	" 13, "	2d Lieutenant	Alex. B. Tart.....	" 13, "
Do.	Henry C. Harris.....	" 13, "	Do.	Josiah S. Wolfe.....	" 13, "
Do.	Richard Gaudern.....	" 13, "	Do.	Mills Harrol.....	" 13, "
Do.	Lambert B. Wolfe.....	" 13, "	Do.	George Anderson.....	" 13, "
Do.	A. B. Cummings.....	" 13, "	Do.	Ben. F. Leightinger.....	" 13, "
Do.	Caldo Wheeler.....	" 13, "	Do.	Ira Pealer.....	" 13, "
Do.	Josiah M. Cochran.....	" 13, "	Do.	Solomon McNabb.....	" 13, "
Do.	George W. O. Daniel.....	" 13, "	Do.	Columbus D. Hyler.....	" 13, "
Do.	Charles S. Pyle.....	" 13, "	Do.	David Mercer.....	" 13, "
1st Lieutenant	Milton L. Mills.....	" 13, "	Do.	Wm. B. Brown.....	" 13, "

142d REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, and mustered into the service of the United States, for one hundred days, on May 12, 1864. On the 14th it was marched through the streets of Columbus to the State Arsenal, where it was supplied with Enfield muskets. Thence it took cars for Martinsburg, Virginia, where it remained drilling until the 19th of May, and then left for Washington City; but, meeting with detention at Harper's Ferry, on account of the bridge being destroyed at that point, it did not reach the capital until the 21st. From Washington it marched out to Fort Lyon, nine miles distant. The regiment did not reach the fort until late at night, and finding no barracks, the men tasted their first experience of soldier-life by lying prone on the naked ground. That night's experience will long be remembered; and many a good jolly laugh has been expended at the recollection of the learned and serious conversations of the night about "suffering for the country," "the Valley Forge days repeated," etc. Their subsequent experience of the hardships and privations of the soldier's life threw that night's "frolic" far into the shade.

The regiment remained at Fort Lyon, busily engaged in strengthening the fortifications and perfecting its drill, until the 5th of June, when orders were received to report to General Abercrombie at White House Landing, on the Pamunkey River. Among the men some astonishment was expressed that they should be selected for duty at the extreme front; but, as good loyal soldiers, they felt gratified at the confidence reposed in them.

The regiment took steamer at Alexandria on the 7th of June, and arrived at White House on the 9th about midnight, and went into camp in the open field. The wounded from the battle of Cold Harbor, then in progress, were being brought in—a gloomy reception to inexperienced soldiers. Without rest, the regiment, carrying six days' rations, left all its baggage and marched (at four o'clock in the morning) to guard a supply-train through the Wilderness to General Grant's front, near Cold Harbor, a distance of sixteen miles. Arriving there in the evening Colonel Cooper reported to General Meade, who ordered him to report his regiment to General Butler at Bermuda Hundred. This point was reached, by water, on the 13th of June, where, without being permitted to land, it was conveyed on transports to Point of Rocks, about five miles below Petersburg. Here it was landed, and marched about six miles, to the extreme right of the National line. Thinking to get a night's rest, the tired soldiers lay down on their blankets; but just as they had lapsed into dreamy forgetfulness, the long roll was sounded. Leaving its tents standing, the regiment was marched three miles on the double-quick, through a dense, dark pine forest, filled with stumps and underbrush, over which the men often stumbled and fell.

The point to be defended was reached, and the men were immediately placed in rifle-pits, in which exposed position they passed about a week. They were then detailed to destroy a line of earthworks from which the enemy had been driven. While engaged in this duty they were resisted by the Rebels; but the regiment, with the aid of other troops on the line, not only effectually completed the destruction, but drove the Rebels from the field.

Hardly a day passed without the regiment or detachments from it being detailed to perform picket and fatigue-duty. At one time the whole regiment was detailed to build a fort at Turkey Bend, on the James River, which duty it performed with credit and dispatch, although incessantly annoyed by shells from a hostile battery.

On the 19th of August it received orders to repair to Washington City, as its term of service had about expired. It accordingly embarked on transports at Bermuda Hundred and reached Washington on the 21st. Thence it went by rail to Camp Chase, Ohio, and was there mustered out of the service of the United States on the 2d of September, 1864.

The One Hundred and Forty-Second Ohio National Guard was raised principally in the county of Knox, and was composed of men from all the various departments of life. The farmer, the mechanic, the lawyer—aye, and the minister—all ceased their vocations for a time, and offered their services—and their lives, if need be—to insure the perpetuity of the Union and its institutions.

Out of an aggregate strength of eight hundred and forty-five men the regiment lost fifty, mostly from disease incident to camp life, excessive fatigue, and exposure.

143d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	WM. H. VODREY	May 13, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Wm. T. Cameron	May 12, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	JOHN D. NICHOLAS.....	" 13, "	Do.	David Burson	" 12, "
Major	JOHN L. STRAWN.....	" 13, "	Do.	Jesse H. Lemmon.....	July 30, "
Burgoon.....	SAMUEL H. LEE.....	" 14, "	Do.	David F. Deunman.....	May 13, "
Ass't Surgeon	GEO. M. CHANDLER.....	June 13, "	Do.	Leonard D. Holloway	" 12, "
Adjutant.....	THEODORE ARTER.....	May 13, "	Do.	Andrew J. Stover	" 13, "
Quart'rmas't'r	HENRY C. ROBBINS.....	" 13, "	Do.	John S. Crawford	" 13, "
Chaplain.....	WM. HASTINGS.....	June 2, "	Do.	George Morley.....	" 14, "
Captain	Wm. T. Cope.....	May 12, "	Do.	Andrew J. Blockson	" 12, "
Do.	J. Newton-George.....	" 12, "	2d Lieutenant	John W. Lacock	" 12, "
Do.	Albert R. Arter.....	" 12, "	Do.	James C. McIntosh.....	" 12, "
Do.	George W. Gibbs.....	" 12, "	Do.	Wm. H. Dressler.....	June 3, "
Do.	Nicholas R. Tidball.....	" 13, "	Do.	Jonathan Oliphant.....	May 14, "
Do.	Benj. S. Wright.....	" 12, "	Do.	John Willis.....	" 13, "
Do.	Sohn L. Dougherty.....	" 13, "	Do.	John W. Detweller.....	" 12, "
Do.	James Ririe.....	" 13, "	Do.	Daniel Rose.....	" 13, "
Do.	Wm. Brunt, jr.....	" 12, "	Do.	Nathan Elliott.....	" 13, "
Do.	Oliphant M. Todd.....	" 12, "	Do.	John N. Taylor.....	" 12, "
1st Lieutenant	Wesley Desselin.....	" 12, "	Do.	George M. Adam.....	" 12, "

143d REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY THIRD REGIMENT was formed by consolidating the Eighteenth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Columbiana County, with the Sixty-Ninth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Coshocton County. It was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, on the 13th of May, and on the 15th left for Washington City. On arrival it was assigned to Haskins's division, Twenty-Second Army Corps, and was placed on garrison-duty in Forts Slemmer, Totten, Slocum, and Stevens, north of the Potomac. On the 8th of June the regiment embarked for White House, Virginia; but, without debarking, it was ordered to Bermuda Hundred. It was assigned to the Tenth Army Corps, and was placed in the intrenchments at City Point, where it remained until ordered to Fort Pocahontas. It was relieved from duty at Fort Pocahontas August 29th, and proceeded to Camp Chase, where it arrived on the 5th of September, and was mustered out of the service on the 12th.

144th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel	SAMUEL H. HUNT	May 11, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Luther Black.....	May 11, 1864
Lt. Colonel...	FREDERICK R. MILLER.....	" 11, "	Do.	Samuel J. Lamb.....	" 11, "
Major	MARQUIS DE L. BUELL.....	" 11, "	Do.	Fred. R. Bumgardner	" 11, "
Surgeon.....	JAMES L. MOUNTS.....	" 11, "	Do.	Abraham Keefer	" 11, "
Ass't Surgeon	GRANVILLE M. WHITE.....	" 12, "	Do.	Andrew Bloomfield	" 11, "
Do.	B. F. BAKER.....	" 24, "	Do.	Howard Kennedy.....	" 11, "
Adjutant	JONATHAN AYERS	" 11, "	Do.	James S. Leith	" 11, "
Quart'mast'r	JOHN H. REID.....	" 11, "	Do.	George Weddell	" 11, "
Captain	Henry H. Ragon.....	" 11, "	Do.	Benj. Bacon.....	" 11, "
Do.	Jeremiah Kitchen.....	" 11, "	2d Lieutenant	E. B. Ragon.....	June 15, "
Do.	Asa Brayton.....	" 11, "	Do.	Thomas J. Avery.....	May 11, "
Do.	Philip Smith.....	" 11, "	Do.	Amos Stetler	" 11, "
Do.	Asher Cook.....	" 11, "	Do.	John D. Mair	" 11, "
Do.	William Frank.....	" 11, "	Do.	Frank S. Tyler.....	" 11, "
Do.	James A. Gibson.....	" 11, "	Do.	Samuel H. White.....	" 11, "
Do.	John McKee.....	" 11, "	Do.	Andrew R. Ingerson.....	" 11, "
Do.	Philo. W. Hathaway.....	" 11, "	Do.	George Kimberlin.....	" 11, "
1st Lieutenant	William McFee.....	" 11, "	Do.	Edwin R. Sage	" 11, "

144th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE NINETEENTH BATTALION Ohio National Guard, of Wyandotte County and the Sixty-Fourth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Wood County, were consolidated at Camp Chase on the 11th of May, 1864, forming the One Hundred and Forty-Fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The regiment was ordered to report without delay to General Wallace, at Baltimore.

Upon its arrival in that city companies G and K were detached for duty in the fortifications, and the remainder of the regiment reported to General Morris, at Fort McHenry; and from there company E was ordered to Wilmington, Delaware; company B, to Camp Parole, near Annapolis, and company I to Fort Dix, at the Relay House. On the 18th of May the regiment was relieved from duty at Fort McHenry, and was ordered to the Relay House, where it enjoyed comparative quiet until the 1st of July, when General Early came down the Shenandoah, threatening Baltimore and Washington. Companies B, G, and I were in the engagement at Monocacy Junction, and suffered severely, losing in killed, wounded, and prisoners about fifty men. On the 13th of July the regiment was ordered to Washington, and from there moved toward Winchester, Virginia, passing through Leesburg. It was halted at Snicker's Gap, and after a day's delay was moved back toward Washington; but it was soon again faced toward the Shenandoah Valley, moving via Harper's Ferry, under the command of Major-General Wright.

At daylight on the 13th of August a portion of the One Hundred and Forty-Fourth, while guarding a train near Berryville, Virginia, was attacked by Moseby's command, with two pieces of artillery. Some confusion was caused by the first fire, but the men soon rallied, drove the enemy, and saved the train. The detachment lost five killed, six wounded, and sixty captured. The men were much fatigued by their continued marches, yet they never complained.

The regiment was mustered out of service on the 31st of August, 1864, with a loss of about one hundred and twenty-five men killed, wounded, and captured. Many of those captured were starved to death at Andersonville and other Rebel prison-pens.

145th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	HENRY C. ASHWELL.....	May 12, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Frederick W. Cogswell.....	May 12, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	LLOYD A. LYMAN.....	" 12, "	Do.	Cornelius Hull.....	" 12, "
Major.....	HENRY C. OLDS.....	" 12, "	Do.	David G. Cratty.....	" 12, "
Surgeon.....	HENRY BESS.....	" 12, "	Do.	John A. Cone.....	" 12, "
Ass't Surgeon..	JOHN D. JANNEY.....	" 12, "	Do.	Wm. E. Bates.....	" 12, "
Adjutant.....	Wm. E. MOORE.....	" 12, "	Do.	G. W. Flemming.....	" 12, "
Quartermaster	JAMES H. STEAD.....	" 12, "	Do.	Jackson S. Post.....	" 12, "
Chaplain.....	W. G. WILLIAMS.....	June 7, "	Do.	James W. McGookey.....	" 12, "
Captain.....	Edward M. Jones.....	" 12, "	2d Lieutenant	Joseph S. Hall.....	" 12, "
Do.	Lewis Moss.....	" 12, "	Do.	James S. Harmon.....	" 12, "
Do.	James Wallace.....	" 12, "	Do.	Henry M. Bronson.....	" 12, "
Do.	James M. Crawford.....	" 12, "	Do.	John Ueley.....	" 12, "
Do.	Richard W. Reynolds.....	" 12, "	Do.	John T. Nimsell.....	" 12, "
Do.	John J. Penfield.....	" 12, "	Do.	John D. Van Deman.....	" 12, "
Do.	David H. James.....	" 12, "	Do.	E. H. Draper.....	" 12, "
Do.	Archibald Freswater.....	" 12, "	Do.	H. B. Wood.....	" 12, "
Do.	Wm. H. Wilson.....	" 12, "	Do.	Christopher R. Caultkins.....	" 12, "
Do.	John Cellar.....	" 12, "	Do.	Samuel M. White, jr.....	" 12, "
1st Lieutenant	Hugh J. Perry.....	" 12, "	Do.	Aaron M. Decker.....	" 12, "

145th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY FIFTH OHIO was organized at Camp Chase on the 10th of May, 1864. It was immediately ordered to Washington City, and on its arrival was assigned to General Augur as garrison for Forts Whipple, Woodbury, Cass, Tillinghast, and Albany, comprising the southern defenses of Washington, on Arlington Heights.

The service of the regiment consisted principally of garrison and fatigue-duty, in which, during its whole term, it was incessantly employed. This duty was arduous, the men having little rest. The regiment was drilled in both infantry and heavy artillery tactics, under the supervision of General De Russy.

In July, 1864, when the Rebel General Early made his last raid down the Shenandoah Valley, and threatened Washington, the One Hundred and Forty-Fifth was daily and nightly kept under arms.

Although not engaged with the enemy during its term of service, the duties performed by the regiment were valuable, from the fact that it took the place of veteran soldiers, who were thus permitted to re-enforce General Grant in his advance on Richmond.

On August 20th, the time of its enlistment having expired, the regiment was moved by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to Baltimore, and thence by the Northern Central, Pennsylvania Central, etc., to Camp Chase, where, on the 23d of August, 1864, it was mustered out of the United States service.

146th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	HARVEY GRAMPTON.....	May 12, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Jacob W. Shertzer.....	May 11, 1864
Lt. Colonel...	JOHN R. HIFESMAN.....	" 12, "	Do.	Jonathan Lawyer.....	" 11, "
Major.....	THOMAS W. BROWN.....	" 12, "	Do.	Thomas E. Steward.....	" 11, "
Surgeon.....	ISAAC L. DRAKE.....	" 22, "	Do.	Isaac S. Reese.....	" 11, "
Ass't Surgeon	OTHO EVANS, JR.....	" 12, "	Do.	Joseph R. Whitaker.....	" 11, "
Do.	AMOS SELLERS.....	" 16, "	Do.	Pliny D. Cottle.....	" 11, "
Adjutant.....	F. S. VANHARLINGEN.....	" 12, "	Do.	Joseph Githens.....	" 11, "
Quart'master	JONAS W. SPURIS.....	" 12, "	Do.	Valentine Newman.....	" 11, "
Chaplain.....	ADOLPHUS L. DUDLEY.....	" 22, "	Do.	Andrew J. Worley.....	" 11, "
Captain.....	Sylvan B. Morris.....	" 9, "	2d Lieutenant	Henry C. Kooghe.....	" 9, "
Do.	Joseph D. Hendrickson.....	" 11, "	Do.	Wm. F. Bailman.....	" 11, "
Do.	R. H. Williamson.....	" 11, "	Do.	John W. Foote.....	" 11, "
Do.	Alfred Miller.....	" 21, "	Do.	Harvey H. Tuttle.....	" 11, "
Do.	Obadiah H. Denise.....	" 11, "	Do.	Martin W. Earhart.....	" 11, "
Do.	Oliver H. Smith.....	" 11, "	Do.	Stephen D. Varney.....	" 11, "
Do.	Wm. S. Foster.....	" 11, "	Do.	Moses D. Mulford.....	" 11, "
Do.	Daniel Weidner.....	" 11, "	Do.	George H. Walkison.....	" 21, "
Do.	Alfred Bowen.....	" 11, "	Do.	Elijah G. Coffin.....	" 11, "
Do.	Dewitt C. Keever.....	" 11, "	Do.	Wm. H. Parker.....	" 11, "
1st Lieutenant	Thaddeus Longstreth.....	" 9, "

146th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment—composed principally of men from Warren, Clark, and Lawrence Counties—was mustered into the service at Camp Dennison, on the 12th of May, 1864. On the 17th of the same month the regiment moved to Charleston, West Virginia, when companies A and H were detailed to guard three hundred Rebel prisoners to Camp Chase. On the 23d of May the One Hundred and Forty Sixth Ohio proceeded to Fayetteville, where it performed garrison-duty. The country was infested by marauding bands, and occasional dashes were made upon the pickets. Continual watchfulness was necessary on the part of the garrison to prevent surprise and capture. On the 27th of August the regiment was ordered to report at Camp Piatt, for transportation to Ohio. It was mustered out of the service at Camp Dennison, on the 7th of September, 1864.

147th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	BENJ. F. ROSSON.....	May 16, 1864	1st Lieutenant	James S. Saylor.....	May 16, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	JOHN R. WOODWARD.....	" 16, "	Do.	James W. Statler.....	" 18, "
Major.....	JOHN D. SHANNON.....	" 16, "	Do.	Benj. N. Langston.....	" 16, "
Surgeon.....	HORACE COLEMAN.....	" 16, "	Do.	Sylvanus Farrow.....	" 16, "
Ass't Surgeon	HENRY K. HERSHISER.....	June 22, "	Do.	Michael Duncan.....	" 16, "
Adjutant.....	NEWTON J. HAUSER.....	May 16, "	Do.	David Langston.....	" 18, "
Quartermaster	JOHN COPRAL.....	" 16, "	Do.	Richard T. Sharp.....	" 18, "
Chaplain.....	WM. GREENOUGH.....	" 16, "	Do.	John L. Babb.....	" 16, "
Captain.....	John Youart.....	" 17, "	2d Lieutenant	Samuel A. Collins.....	" 16, "
Do.....	John C. Mitchell.....	" 16, "	Do.	John M. Houston.....	" 17, "
Do.....	John M. Reid.....	" 18, "	Do.	John J. Scarr.....	" 16, "
Do.....	Jonathan H. Randall.....	" 16, "	Do.	Wm. H. Turk.....	" 18, "
Do.....	F. E. Johnson.....	" 16, "	Do.	Wm. A. Aldrich.....	" 16, "
Do.....	Nathan Jackson.....	" 16, "	Do.	James Robinson.....	" 16, "
Do.....	Henry Neal.....	" 18, "	Do.	John D. Weatherhead.....	" 16, "
Do.....	David Kelley.....	" 18, "	Do.	Job Westfall.....	" 18, "
Do.....	John C. Class.....	" 16, "	Do.	Samuel A. Carns.....	" 18, "
Do.....	Jeremiah F. Counts.....	" 16, "	Do.	Ichabod A. Corwin.....	" 16, "
1st Lieutenant	Reuben C. Berger.....	" 17, "	Do.	Eckert Shaffer.....	" 16, "

147th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-SEVENTH was formed by the consolidation of the Twenty-Fifth Regiment and Eighty-Seventh Battalion Ohio National Guard. The regiment rendezvoused at Troy, on the 2d of May, 1864, and was furloughed until the 13th, when it re-assembled and reported at Camp Dennison. It was mustered in on the 16th, was armed and equipped during the night of the 19th, and started for Washington City on the 20th.

Upon arrival the regiment reported to General Augur, and was ordered on duty at Fort Ethan Allen. Upon reaching the fort all the quarters were occupied, and the regiment was all night exposed to a severe storm. The next morning the regiment was ordered to Fort Strong, where it again was exposed to a continuous storm for three days. As the result of this exposure fifty men were reported on the sick list. On the 27th of May the regiment was ordered back to Fort Ethan Allen, where six companies were stationed, and the other four were ordered to Fort Marcy. On the 1st of June company A was detailed to perform guard-duty at division headquarters, and remained there during its term of service. At midnight on the 11th of June the regiment was ordered to Fort Reno, and upon arriving, at daylight, found the enemy near the fort, and the pickets skirmishing heavily. It took position in the trenches and remained until twelve o'clock, when it was ordered to Crystal Springs.

Marching as far as Fort Stevens, where the Rebels were again found, the One Hundred and Forty-Seventh moved into the trenches as a support to the First Maine and First Ohio Batteries. In this position the regiment remained until July 4th, when it returned to Fort Ethan Allen. Though the One Hundred and Forty-Seventh was not actively engaged at Fort Stevens, it was under the enemy's fire. It occupied its old quarters till the 23d of August, when it was ordered to report to Camp Dennison for muster-out. In passing through Washington the regiment halted in front of the White House, and received the thanks of President Lincoln for the service it had rendered. The regiment received its final pay and discharge on the 30th of August, 1864.

148th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel	THOMAS W. MOORE	May 18, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Hanson P. Ambrose.....	May 17, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	ISAAC B. KIRKHEAD.....	" 18, "	Do.	John Randolph.....	" 17, "
Major	WM. L. EDMISTON.....	" 18, "	Do.	Nathaniel Murphy.....	" 17, "
Surgeon.....	WM. BEEBE.....	" 18, "	Do.	Leonidas P. Pond.....	" 18, "
Ass't Surgeon	BENJ. F. CULVER.....	" 18, "	Do.	Augustus Leonard.....	" 18, "
Adjutant	TROS. DAY.....	" 18, "	Do.	Austin L. Curtis.....	" 17, "
Quartermaster	ALLEN R. DARWOOD.....	" 18, "	Do.	W. L. Woodford.....	" 17, "
Captain	Samuel S. Knowles.....	" 17, "	Do.	Wallace Wolcott.....	" 18, "
Do.	John P. Sanford.....	" 17, "	2d Lieutenant	Smith J. Dutton.....	" 17, "
Do.	Joseph J. McDowell.....	" 17, "	Do.	Wm. H. Jennings.....	" 17, "
Do.	Wm. F. Dawson.....	" 17, "	Do.	Robert S. Barnhill.....	" 17, "
Do.	Isaiah H. McCormick.....	" 17, "	Do.	Benj. Arnold.....	" 17, "
Do.	George B. Turner.....	" 18, "	Do.	Samuel G. Scott.....	" 17, "
Do.	Joseph M. McElhenny.....	" 18, "	Do.	Benj. F. Robinson.....	" 18, "
Do.	John Mitchell.....	" 17, "	Do.	John C. Wood.....	" 18, "
Do.	David J. Richards.....	" 17, "	Do.	Alex. H. Browning.....	" 17, "
1st Lieutenant	Charles B. Gates.....	" 17, "	Do.	Robert Alexander.....	" 17, "
Do.	Wm. W. West.....	" 17, "

148th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

IN response to the call of Governor Brough, the Forty-Sixth Regiment Ohio National Guard, numbering six hundred and fifty-four men, of Washington County, reported for duty at Marietta on the 2d of May, 1864. Subsequently the Ninety-Sixth Battalion, of Vinton County, was consolidated with the Forty-Sixth Regiment, forming the One Hundred and Forty-Eighth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The regiment was mustered into the service on the 17th and 18th of May. The officers were all Washington County men except Major Edmiston and Captains McDowell and McCormick. The Colonel had been a Captain in the Thirty-Sixth Ohio, the Lieutenant-Colonel had been a Lieutenant in the Seventy-Seventh Ohio, and the Major had been a Captain in the Eighteenth Ohio. Several of the line-officers also had been in the service, and nearly the whole regiment had been tried, briefly but laboriously, during the Morgan raid of the previous year. Company A, in particular, had been called out repeatedly, and on two or three occasions had been sent into Virginia, when the border was threatened. An unusual proportion of the men in this company were students and merchants, and it is worthy of remark that, during one hundred and thirty-six days' service, it was the only company in the regiment that did not lose a man by sickness.

On the 23d of May the regiment left Marietta for the field. Scarcely had the train passed out of sight of the town, when an accident occurred to it on the Union Railroad, by which Jeremiah Stuckey of company A was killed; John H. McKimm, of Athens County, and Alexander S. Nugent, of Franklin, Pennsylvania, students in the Preparatory Department of Marietta College, who were accompanying their friends in the regiment to Parkersburg, were killed; William Hildebrand, William Fleming, and First-Lieutenant Gates were seriously injured. Lieutenant Gates went forward with the regiment, but he had received such internal injury that, coupled with pneumonia, it resulted in his death on the 31st, six days after the regiment had arrived at Harper's Ferry. This accident, together with the subsequent death of Lieutenant Gates, cast a gloom over the regiment and throughout the community from which its members had been gathered. Although the youngest officer, and one of the youngest men in the regiment, no one was more generally known and more universally beloved than Charles Beman Gates. The various testimonials of affection and regret from the College Societies with which he was connected, and from the officers of his regiment, are evidence of the high esteem in which this youthful Christian patriot was held by his associates.

After remaining about ten days at Harper's Ferry the regiment moved to Washington, and on the 9th of June left that city for White House on the Pamunkey. On the 11th it left White House, arrived at Bermuda Hundred on the 12th, and on the 13th went into General Butler's intrenchments at the front. On the 16th seven companies, under command of the Lieutenant-Colonel, left Bermuda Hundred for City Point. On the 9th of August, by the explosion of an ordnance boat at City Point, three men of the regiment were killed—S. E. Graham of company H, Joseph H. Smith of company D, and Joseph D. Clarke of company A. Young Clarke was only about seventeen years old, was a member of the Preparatory Department in Marietta College, and was the oldest son of the late Colonel Melvin Clarke, of the Thirty-Sixth Ohio, who was killed instantly while gallantly leading his regiment at the battle of South Mountain, September, 1862. Sire and son, both instantly killed in their country's service, are buried side by side in the Marietta Mound Cemetery.

On the 29th of August the One Hundred and Forty-Eighth Ohio left City Point, and arrived at Marietta on the 5th of September. On the 13th a public dinner was given to the regiment by the citizens of the county, and on the 14th it was mustered out of the service.

149th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	ALLISON L. BROWN.....	May 11, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Adam G. Malloy.....	May 8, 1864
Lt. Colonel.....	OWEN WESL.....	" 11, "	Do.	Austin Purdum.....	" 8, "
Major.....	EBENEZER ROZELLE.....	" 11, "	Do.	Henry Grubb.....	" 8, "
Surgeon.....	WM. A. BROWN.....	" 11, "	Do.	Louis C. Amberg.....	" 8, "
Asst Surgeon.....	B. F. MESSER.....	" 11, "	Do.	George F. Bower.....	" 8, "
Adjutant.....	THOMAS Q. HILDEBRAND.....	" 11, "	Do.	James Brown.....	" 8, "
Quartermaster.....	DAVID C. ANDERSON.....	" 8, "	Do.	Henry C. Roby.....	" 8, "
Captain.....	Wm. W. Peabody.....	" 8, "	Do.	James V. Bannels.....	" 8, "
Do.....	John Talbert.....	" 9, "	2d Lieutenant	John W. Purdum.....	" 8, "
Do.....	Charles W. McGinnis.....	" 8, "	Do.	James Galaher.....	" 8, "
Do.....	Raymond Alston.....	" 8, "	Do.	Wm. P. Gossard.....	" 9, "
Do.....	Thomas B. Jenkins.....	" 8, "	Do.	Robert Hanson.....	" 8, "
Do.....	John Ross.....	" 8, "	Do.	Daniel M. Beard.....	" 8, "
Do.....	Joshua Hinsey.....	" 8, "	Do.	Howard A. Haynes.....	" 8, "
Do.....	Wm. R. Farlow.....	" 8, "	Do.	Sinclair L. Pitzel.....	" 8, "
Do.....	Philip A. Reeds.....	" 8, "	Do.	John F. Burris.....	" 8, "
Do.....	Wm. C. Wilson.....	" 8, "	Do.	James Q. Clark.....	" 8, "
1st Lieutenant	Edward R. McKee.....	" 8, "	Do.	Newton Shoemaker.....	" 8, "
Do.....	G. Colvin.....	" 9, "

149th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-NINTH OHIO was composed of the Twenty-Seventh Regiment, Ohio National Guard, of Ross County, and the Fifty-Fifth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Clinton County. It was organized and mustered into the service of the United States at Camp Dennison, Ohio, on the 8th of May, 1864, and on the 11th of the same month it left the State for Baltimore.

Upon arrival it was assigned to duty at the various forts in and around the city, and remained there until the 29th of May, when it was ordered to the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and distributed at different points. About the 4th of July the regiment was ordered to Monocacy Junction, and on the evening of the 8th it took position on the extreme right of General Wallace's army, at the stone bridge, on the Baltimore and Frederick Pike. Early in the forenoon of the 9th the regiment's skirmish-line was attacked, and the fight continued until late in the evening, when the regiment was compelled to fall back, though not until the left of the line had given way, and the regiment was nearly surrounded. When a retreat was ordered General Tyler, the brigade commander, directed the One Hundred and Forty-Ninth to hold the bridge until the last extremity, in order to secure the safety of the army. As evidence of the faithful manner in which the order was executed we quote the words of General Tyler, who, in a letter to the publishers of this work, says: "No officer did his duty better than did Colonel Brown, and no troops could have done more than did the men under his command in that unequal combat. It seldom falls to the lot of veterans to be more severely tried than were the Ohio National Guard at the stone bridge, and none ever carried out trying and hazardous orders better or with a more determined spirit than did the One Hundred and Forty-Ninth, and the men associated with it." The regiment lost in killed and wounded about thirty, and in prisoners over one hundred. A considerable number of these were recaptured the next day by General Hunter's cavalry at Frederick; and some effected their escape while marching up the Shenandoah Valley; but when the regiment was mustered out there were sixty-seven still in prison, a considerable number of whom have since died.

After the battle of Monocacy the regiment was brigaded with the One Hundred and Forty-Fourth Ohio and Third Maryland, under command of Brigadier-General Kelly, and took part (with the Sixth and Nineteenth Corps) in the marches in Maryland and Virginia. Portions of two companies were with the One Hundred and Forty-Fourth Ohio when it was attacked by Moseby's guerrillas at Berryville, Virginia, August 13th. One man was wounded and a few were captured. August 20, 1864, the regiment returned to Ohio and was mustered out.

150th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	WM. H. HAYWARD.....	May 5, 1864	1st Lieutenant	John C. Bull.....	May 5, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	JOHN N. FRAZER.....	" 5, "	Do.	Jason Canfield.....	" 5, "
Major.....	J. DWIGHT PALMER.....	" 5, "	Do.	John G. Parsons.....	" 5, "
Surgeon.....	JAMES W. SMITH.....	" 5, "	Do.	Edwin Rouse.....	" 5, "
Ass't Surgeon	CHARLES F. DUTTON.....	" 5, "	Do.	T. S. Lindsay.....	" 5, "
Do.	JAS. F. ARMSTRONG.....	" 5, "	Do.	Frank Dutton.....	" 5, "
Adjutant.....	THOMAS GOODWILLER.....	" 5, "	Do.	Jonas F. Rice.....	" 5, "
Quartermaster	HERMAN M. CHAPIN.....	" 5, "	Do.	Henry L. Turner.....	" 5, "
Captain.....	Thomas S. Paddock.....	" 5, "	2d Lieutenant	George W. Tibbetts.....	" 5, "
Do.	John Nevius.....	" 5, "	Do.	Arthur H. Barrett.....	" 5, "
Do.	Louis G. D. Forrest.....	" 5, "	Do.	Marcus A. Hanna.....	" 5, "
Do.	John J. Wisom in.....	" 5, "	Do.	George W. Whitehead.....	" 5, "
Do.	Joseph B. Mollynaugh.....	" 5, "	Do.	Thomas A. Stowe.....	" 5, "
Do.	Jeremiah Ensworth.....	" 5, "	Do.	Charles J. McDowell.....	" 5, "
Do.	W. R. Nevius.....	" 5, "	Do.	H. E. Chubb.....	" 5, "
Do.	Samuel H. Baird.....	" 5, "	Do.	Edwin D. naison.....	" 5, "
Do.	Edwin Farr.....	" 5, "	Do.	John G. Fitch.....	" 5, "
Do.	Albert A. Safford.....	" 5, "	Do.	George W. Phinney.....	" 5, "
1st Lieutenant	Joseph M. Richards.....	" 5, "

150th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment rendezvoused at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland. It was composed of eight companies from the City of Cleveland, one from Oberlin, and one from Independence. It was, on the 5th of May, 1864, sworn into the United States service for one hundred days, and was immediately placed on the cars for Washington City.

On its arrival the regiment was ordered to garrison Forts Lincoln, Saratoga, Thayer, Bunker Hill, Slocum, Totten, and Stevens, forming part of the chain of fortifications surrounding the National Capital. This important duty was fully and strictly performed, thereby enabling General Grant to draw from the former garrisons of these forts the re-enforcements so much desired in his movement through the Wilderness toward Richmond.

The One Hundred and Fiftieth remained in these forts during the whole term of service, and participated in the fight before Washington with a part of Early's Rebel corps, July 10 and 11, 1864. Companies G and K were engaged, but being behind breastworks did not suffer much. One man was killed and three or four men were wounded.

The regiment was sent home and mustered out at Cleveland on the 23d of August, 1864, having served one hundred and eleven days.

During its term of service the regiment was rigidly and effectively drilled, and at its muster-out had reached a point of military efficiency which fitted it for any emergency.

151st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	JOHN M. C. MARBLE.....	May 13, 1864	1st Lieutenant	George K. Truesdale.....	May 13, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	RICHARD S. HUGHES.....	" 13, "	Do.	Thomas J. Snodgrass.....	" 13, "
Major.....	JOHN L. WILLIAMS.....	" 13, "	Do.	Frank McGinnis.....	" 13, "
Surgeon.....	WM. H. HARPER.....	" 13, "	Do.	John Jennings.....	" 13, "
Ass't Surgeon	AUGUSTUS G. HOLLOWAY.....	" 13, "	Do.	W. E. Watkins.....	" 13, "
Do.	J. R. KELCH.....	" 13, "	Do.	Manchester H. Duvol.....	" 13, "
Adjutant.....	JOHN A. COLLINS.....	" 13, "	Do.	James Johnson.....	" 13, "
Quart'mast'r	SAMUEL D. CHAMBERS.....	" 13, "	Do.	G. W. Wiggins.....	" 13, "
Captain.....	Edward King.....	" 13, "	Do.	Anthony B. Walker.....	" 13, "
Do.	William Huston.....	" 13, "	2d Lieutenant	William Denning.....	" 13, "
Do.	James L. Booth.....	" 13, "	Do.	William Hall.....	" 13, "
Do.	James L. Smith.....	" 13, "	Do.	Lewis Munnaugh.....	" 13, "
Do.	Samuel D. McKee.....	" 13, "	Do.	James Ward.....	" 13, "
Do.	J. W. Patrick.....	" 13, "	Do.	Amos Cribley.....	" 13, "
Do.	Uriah Guess.....	" 13, "	Do.	John Dotto.....	" 13, "
Do.	John Oaks.....	" 13, "	Do.	George G. Moore.....	" 13, "
Do.	Joseph Chaney.....	" 13, "	Do.	Joshua Chilcote.....	" 13, "
Do.	G. M. Webb.....	" 13, "	Do.	E. B. Clow.....	" 13, "
1st Lieutenant	Enos Foster.....	" 13, "	Do.	Edward P. Strong.....	" 13, "

151st REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was formed by the consolidation of the Thirty-Third Regiment, Ohio National Guard, and the Fifty-Seventh Battalion. The Thirty-Third was from Allen County, and numbered eight companies. The Fifty-Seventh was from Hocking County, and numbered six companies. On the 2d of May, 1864, the former rendezvoused at Camp Lima, the latter at Camp Logan. Both were furloughed from May 4th to the 10th, when they again rendezvoused as before. From these camps they moved to Camp Chase, where they were consolidated and formed the One Hundred and Fifty-First Regiment. The Thirty-Third was reduced to six companies, and the Fifty-Seventh to four, thus making a regiment of ten companies, which numbered eight hundred and forty-six men, rank and file.

The regiment was equipped and mustered into service on the 13th of May. Early on the morning of the following day it left Camp Chase for Washington, by way of the Ohio Central and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads. It reached Martinsburg on the 17th, where it was detained on account of high waters. It reached Washington on the 21st of May, and reported to General Augur. It was immediately assigned to the Second Brigade of General Haskin's division, Twenty-Second Army Corps. This brigade afterward became the First Brigade of General Hardin's division, in which the regiment served its full term of service. The regiment was first stationed at Forts Sumner, Mansfield, and Simmons. During the active operations of the Rebels against Washington, on the 11th and 12th of July, the larger part of the regiment was under fire. The picket-line was kept up by regular details from the One Hundred and Fifty-First. Several of the companies were in the forts which were engaged in the battles. Companies C and G were at Fort Stevens; company I was at Battery Smeade, and company K at Fort Kearney.

On the 17th of August orders were received to concentrate the regiment at Fort Simmons. From this place the regiment moved, by way of Baltimore and Pittsburg, to Camp Chase, where it arrived on the 23d. It was mustered out on the 27th, and paid off on the 29th of August, 1864.

152d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

BANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	BANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	DAVID PUTNAM.....	May 11, 1864	1st Lieutenant	C. B. Northrop.....	May 8, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	EDWARD M. DOTY.....	" 11, "	Do.	Alexander McHornor.....	" 8, "
Major.....	JOHN H. HUNTER.....	" 11, "	Do.	Wesley Seiger.....	" 8, "
Surgeon.....	JOHN C. WILLIAMSON.....	" 11, "	Do.	Richard L. Parker.....	" 10, "
Ass't Surgeon..	JOHN A. JOBES.....	" 11, "	Do.	A. G. Clark.....	" 8, "
Adjutant.....	EDWIN B. PUTNAM.....	" 11, "	Do.	Joshua S. Miller.....	" 8, "
Quartermaster	JACOB W. SNIVELY.....	" 12, "	Do.	Alphens H. Hyde.....	" 8, "
Chaplain.....	THOMAS S. GUTHRIE.....	" 12, "	Do.	Wm. H. Bireley.....	" 11, "
Captain.....	A. L. Sharp.....	" 8, "	Do.	Benjamin H. Warder.....	" 10, "
Do.	Elias Harter.....	" 8, "	2d Lieutenant	Jesse M. Owen.....	" 8, "
Do.	Wm. P. Orr.....	" 8, "	Do.	G. L. Northway.....	" 8, "
Do.	James B. Creviston.....	" 8, "	Do.	Henry Gilbert.....	" 8, "
Do.	Asa S. Bushnell.....	" 10, "	Do.	Solomon Young.....	" 8, "
Do.	R. T. McGinnis.....	" 8, "	Do.	Asa W. Fitch.....	" 10, "
Do.	William A. Bouner.....	" 8, "	Do.	F. R. Reel.....	" 8, "
Do.	Anthony Gray.....	" 8, "	Do.	Solomon Beam.....	" 8, "
Do.	John G. Burch.....	" 11, "	Do.	Herod Mills.....	" 8, "
Do.	Charles A. Welsh.....	" 10, "	Do.	Walter Stephenson.....	" 11, "
1st Lieutenant	James H. Engle.....	" 8, "	Do.	Martin L. Frantz.....	" 10, "

152d REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment consisted of the Twenty-Eighth and two companies of the Thirty-Fifth Regiments Ohio National Guard. The two companies were from Clarke County. The consolidation was made at Camp Dennison.

The One Hundred and Fifty-Second left Camp Dennison about the middle of May, 1864. It passed through Grafton, Virginia, and reaching New Creek, went into camp. Here it had guard and picket-duty to perform—the former at the Government warehouse, the latter in the mountains surrounding the camp. From New Creek the regiment marched to Martinsburg, Virginia. Here one hundred and fifty men of the regiment were detailed to appear without arms and with one day's rations, at the head-quarters of the Chief-Engineer, for "spade-duty."

On the 4th of June the regiment started for the front with a train of one hundred and ninety-nine wagons. It reached Beverly, Virginia, on the 27th of June, with a loss of one man killed, having marched a distance of four hundred and thirty miles in twenty-three days. During this march the regiment was twice attacked by the Rebels. The first attack was made on the rear-guard, after the regiment had left Sweet Springs. It was immediately repulsed without any loss. The second attack was made when the regiment was about six miles from White Sulphur. The Rebels were one hundred and twenty-five in number, and were within fortifications. June 18th the regiment destroyed a railroad bridge and depot, and about seventy-five stand of arms. On the following day a detail of fifteen men proceeded to Grace Iron Works, and destroyed all the property belonging to them. On June 21st, when about one mile from Sweet Springs, the train was attacked by about eighty Rebels, who were secreted in the bushes on the hillside. When within four days' march of Beverly supplies became scarce, and a few ears of corn were the rations issued to the men. Having reached Beverly and rested a couple of days, the regiment started for Cumberland, arriving on the 2d of July. From here detachments were sent to various points. Two hundred men were sent to North Branch, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; one hundred to a point commanding a valley through which the Rebels would likely approach; and a few to other points. They returned about the last of July to Cumberland, where they remained until the regiment received orders to return home.

On the 14th of August, 1864, seventy sick men of the regiment arrived at Camp Dennison. On Thursday, the 25th of August, the One Hundred and Fifty-Second left Cumberland, Maryland, for Camp Dennison, and arrived there on the morning of the 28th. On the 2d of September the regiment was mustered out, and on the 5th received its final payment and discharge.

153d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	ISRAEL STOUGH	May 10, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Parley P. Hadley.....	May 10, 1864
Lt. Colonel.....	MARCELLUS A. LEEDS	" 10, "	Do.	L. W. Frazier.....	" 10, "
Major.....	ZEDAKIAH SOUTH	" 10, "	Do.	W. E. Nichols.....	" 10, "
Surgeon.....	JOHN S. COMBS.....	" 10, "	Do.	Ira B. Miller.....	" 10, "
Ass't Surgeon.....	JOHN O. MARSH.....	" 10, "	Do.	Jacob Haines.....	" 10, "
Adjutant.....	EBEN O. PARKER.....	" 10, "	Do.	Ezekiel Slade.....	" 10, "
Quartermaster.....	CHARLES N. BROWNING.....	" 10, "	Do.	Amos Crane.....	" 10, "
Chaplain.....	LUCIAN CLARK.....	" 10, "	Do.	J. F. Hill.....	" 11, "
Captain.....	PHOENIX W. RATHBONE.....	" 10, "	Do.	Edwin D. Titus.....	" 10, "
Do.....	L. M. Beckmore.....	" 10, "	2d Lieutenant	Wm. Pease.....	" 10, "
Do.....	John McNeill.....	" 10, "	Do.	James B. Johnson.....	" 10, "
Do.....	A. McNair, Jr.....	" 10, "	Do.	W. A. Frambes.....	" 10, "
Do.....	James McKinney.....	" 10, "	Do.	James H. Scott.....	" 10, "
Do.....	Harrison C. Cross.....	" 10, "	Do.	John E. Lozton.....	" 10, "
Do.....	William Johnson.....	" 10, "	Do.	Samuel Esterline.....	" 10, "
Do.....	Daniel W. Stevens.....	" 10, "	Do.	Oliver P. McAdam.....	" 10, "
Do.....	S. W. Marsh.....	" 11, "	Do.	Jerome Tice.....	" 10, "
Do.....	James W. Deem.....	" 10, "	Do.	W. A. Dallas.....	" 11, "
1st Lieutenant	John W. Hunt.....	" 10, "	Do.	Daniel Kidd.....	" 10, "

153d REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Dennison, Ohio, with Israel Stough, of Springfield, Ohio, as its Colonel, on the 12th of May, 1864. It left Camp Dennison at once for Harper's Ferry, Virginia, with an aggregate strength of nine hundred and nine men.

The greater part of May and June was consumed by the regiment in performing guard-duty at Harper's Ferry, and along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. In the latter part of June it was ordered to join General Butler's forces at Bermuda Hundred, and hold itself subject to his orders.

While in General Butler's department the regiment was engaged in guard and picket-duty, and made itself very useful in that description of service.

A detachment of the regiment was engaged in an affair at North River Mills, on July 3, 1864, and lost several officers and men killed and wounded, including First-Lieutenant L. W. Frazier.

The regiment was brought home in the latter part of July, and was paid off and mustered out of the service at Camp Chase.

154th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY - N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	ROBERT STEVENSON.....	May 9, 1864	1st Lieutenant	J. H. Matthews.....	May 8, 1864
Lt. Colonel ...	JOSEPH E. WILSON.....	" 9, "	Do.	Jedidiah Jones.....	" 8, "
Major.....	WM. A. NEIL, JR.....	" 9, "	Do.	George C. Canfield.....	" 8, "
Surgeon.....	GEORGE WATSON.....	" 9, "	Do.	Benjamin K. Barney.....	" 9, "
Ass't Surgeon	LEIGH McCLEUNG.....	" 9, "	Do.	Daniel McMillan.....	" 9, "
Adjutant.....	J. B. HAGAN.....	" 9, "	Do.	D. W. Williamson.....	" 8, "
Quart'rmas't'r	A. L. TRADER.....	" 9, "	Do.	Lucian Smith.....	" 9, "
Chaplain.....	ROBERT McCASLIN.....	" 9, "	Do.	Hartford Toland.....	" 8, "
Captain.....	James B. Corry.....	" 9, "	Do.	J. C. Emmick.....	" 9, "
Do.	N. C. Miller.....	" 8, "	2d Lieutenant	Jasper W. Reed.....	" 9, "
Do.	Alexander Swanston.....	" 8, "	Do.	Oscar Pool.....	" 8, "
Do.	Henry B. Guthrie.....	" 8, "	Do.	Isaac Hamilton.....	" 8, "
Do.	Joseph F. Bonek.....	" 9, "	Do.	Benjamin F. Derst.....	" 8, "
Do.	Richard H. King.....	" 9, "	Do.	John W. Tobias.....	" 9, "
Do.	John M. Sasser.....	" 8, "	Do.	Jesse R. Marshall.....	" 9, "
Do.	Joel Arv.....	" 9, "	Do.	John F. Daugherty.....	" 8, "
Do.	David Watson.....	" 8, "	Do.	James Thomas.....	" 9, "
Do.	Eriah Wilson.....	" 9, "	Do.	L. Willoughby.....	" 8, "
1st Lieutenant	John J. Hering.....	" 9, "	Do.	G. W. Beall.....	" 9, "

154th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was formed by consolidating the Twenty-Third Battalion Ohio National Guard with the Sixtieth Regiment Ohio National Guard. It was organized at Camp Dennison, and was mustered into the service on the 9th of May, 1864, with an aggregate of eight hundred and forty-two men. The Colonel, Assistant-Surgeon, Quartermaster, several of the line-officers, non-commissioned officers, and many of the privates had seen service in other organizations.

On the 12th of May the regiment proceeded via Columbus and Bellaire to New Creek, West Virginia, arriving on the evening of the 14th; the next day, in one of the most violent storms of the season, it laid out its camp and pitched its tents. On the 22d company F was ordered to Piedmont, West Virginia, where it remained until the regiment started to Ohio for muster-out. The One Hundred and Fifty-Fourth performed guard, picket, and escort-duty until the 29th, when one company moved to Youghiogheny Bridge, and the remaining eight companies to Greenland Gap. Scouting parties were out almost constantly, and on the 4th of June a detachment of the regiment had a skirmish with McNeil's battalion near Moorefield, in which the Rebels were defeated. About the 12th of June three hundred men from the One Hundred and Fifty-Fourth, with a cavalry force, were engaged in a ten-days' scout. Skirmishing was frequent, but the enemy kept so securely in the mountains that only three Rebel soldiers were captured in the ten days. On the 23d another scout of one hundred men and a small cavalry force were ordered out with three days' rations, but no enemy was discovered. On the 4th of July the regiment fell back to New Creek, expecting an attack; but the enemy having retired, it returned again to Greenland Gap, arriving on the 7th. Company H, until this time at Oakland, joined the regiment at New Creek and returned with it to the Gap. On the 25th the regiment again fell back to New Creek, and Greenland Gap ceased to be held as a military post. On the 4th of August the Rebels, under McCausland and Bradley Johnson, attacked the force at New Creek, but at night they were compelled to withdraw, leaving their killed and wounded on the field. On the 10th of August a detachment of the One Hundred and Fifty-Fourth proceeded to Camp Chase in charge of prisoners, and remained there until the regiment returned to the State. On the evening of the 22d the regiment started for Ohio, arriving at Camp Dennison on the 27th, where it was mustered out of the service on the 1st of September, 1864.

155th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	HARLEY H. SAGE.....	May 9, 1864	1st Lieutenant	John B. Smith.....	May 8, "
Lt. Colonel....	ROSWELL SHURTLIFF.....	" 9, "	Do.	Augustus B. Cornell.....	" 8, "
Major.....	PETER LINTZ.....	" 9, "	Do.	William Galtam.....	" 8, "
Surgeon.....	R. S. SPANBURY.....	Aug. 5, "	Do.	Chauncey Scott.....	" 8, "
Adjutant.....	THOMAS J. WATKIN.....	May 9, "	Do.	Leonidas Carson.....	" 8, "
Quartermaster	JOSEPH WALLACE.....	" 9, "	Do.	J. M. Clark.....	" 8, "
Chaplain.....	SAMUEL M. BRIGHT.....	" 11, "	Do.	Charles C. Evans.....	" 8, "
Captain.....	T. J. Stephens.....	" 8, "	Do.	L. P. Whisler.....	" 8, "
Do.	Christopher F. Meadsker.....	" 8, "	2d Lieutenant	J. T. Oliver.....	" 8, "
Do.	Henry S. Peters.....	" 8, "	Do.	Thomas Brown.....	" 8, "
Do.	Frederick W. Wherslar.....	" 8, "	Do.	Van B. Pritchett.....	" 8, "
Do.	Will Scott.....	" 8, "	Do.	Justice M. Silliman.....	" 8, "
Do.	Philip Warner.....	" 8, "	Do.	William H. McGill.....	" 8, "
Do.	Richard B. Engle.....	" 8, "	Do.	Charles F. Silliman.....	" 8, "
Do.	J. D. Muddell.....	" 8, "	Do.	Abraham Miller.....	" 8, "
Do.	Wm. J. Cochran.....	" 8, "	Do.	Issac Zarfey.....	" 8, "
Do.	A. J. Bozle.....	" 8, "	Do.	James M. Lewis.....	" 8, "
1st Lieutenant	S. G. Davenport.....	" 8, "	Do.	James Williams.....	" 8, "
Do.	Joseph B. Couch.....	" 8, "

155th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE Ninety-Second Regiment and the Forty-Fourth Battalion Ohio National Guard were consolidated at Camp Dennison, forming the One Hundred and Fifty-Fifth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry. It was mustered into the service on the 8th of May and the next day it started for New Creek, West Virginia.

Upon arrival the regiment was ordered to Martinsburg, where it performed garrison and escort-duty until the 3d of June, when it was ordered to Washington City. From there it proceeded to White House; thence to Bermuda Hundred, and thence to City Point, where it remained until the 29th, when it was ordered to Norfolk. The regiment was placed on duty in an intrenched camp near Norfolk. On the 26th of July five hundred men of the One Hundred and Fifty-Fifth, with other troops (infantry and cavalry), marched to Elizabeth City, North Carolina. Here infantry was held in reserve, while the cavalry raided the country, securing cotton, tobacco, and horses. The expedition returned to Norfolk, where the regiment remained until the 19th of August, when it was ordered to Ohio for muster-out. It arrived at Camp Dennison on the 24th of August, and was mustered out August 27, 1864.

156th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	CALEB MARKER.....	May 17, 1864	1st Lieutenant	M. V. Randall.....	May 17, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	WM. SAYLOR.....	" 17, "	Do.	G. A. Ellis.....	" 17, "
Major.....	A. L. WHITE MAN.....	" 17, "	Do.	James Gable.....	" 15, "
Surgeon.....	V. G. MILLER.....	" 17, "	Do.	W. F. Newton.....	" 15, "
Ass't Surgeon	JAMES N. ROBINSON.....	" 17, "	Do.	John Breese.....	" 15, "
Do.	CALEB S. EVANS.....	" 17, "	Do.	J. Skinner.....	" 15, "
Adjutant.....	ROBERT MILLER.....	" 17, "	Do.	Jacob L. Bennett.....	" 17, "
Quart'mast'r	FRANK MCWHINNEY.....	" 17, "	Do.	Daniel Brookhart.....	" 15, "
Chaplain.....	J. R. BROWN.....	" 23, "	Do.	Thomas Spangler.....	" 15, "
Captain.....	James R. H. Bernhart.....	" 15, "	2d Lieutenant	Isaac Kingery.....	" 15, "
Do.	Isaac Henderson.....	" 17, "	Do.	D. McClure.....	" 17, "
Do.	Ephraim Sheller.....	" 17, "	Do.	Joseph S. Brown.....	" 17, "
Do.	Robert T. Lanier.....	" 17, "	Do.	Silas Dooly.....	" 17, "
Do.	William A. Swihart.....	" 15, "	Do.	E. A. Patty.....	" 15, "
Do.	D. F. Wooster.....	" 15, "	Do.	J. M. Weeks.....	" 15, "
Do.	Samuel Craig.....	" 15, "	Do.	George W. Burke.....	" 15, "
Do.	J. R. McDivitt.....	" 15, "	Do.	P. Dills.....	" 15, "
Do.	James Judkins.....	" 17, "	Do.	Thomas McGee.....	" 15, "
Do.	Horace M. Drury.....	" 15, "	Do.	Jeremiah P. Allbaug.....	" 15, "
1st Lieutenant	Simon Degginger.....	" 15, "

156th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Dennison on the 4th of May, 1864, by the consolidation of the Thirty-Fourth Regiment with the Eightieth and Eighty-First Battalions, Ohio National Guard. The regiment was mustered into the United States service with an aggregate of eight hundred and sixty-four men.

On the 20th of May companies A, B, C, D, E, F, and H proceeded to Cincinnati, where they performed guard-duty, companies G, I, and K remaining at Camp Dennison on guard and patrol-duty, until Morgan appeared in the vicinity of Cynthiana, Kentucky, when they were sent to Falmouth, Kentucky. The seven companies remained on duty in Cincinnati until July 18th, when the entire regiment was brought together at Covington, and moved to Paris, Kentucky. The regiment was soon ordered to Cumberland, Maryland, to resist the Rebel invasion; and, proceeding by way of Cincinnati and Parkersburg, it reached Cumberland on the 31st of July, and went into camp on the hill south-east of the city. On the 1st of August, at three o'clock P. M., the regiment moved on the double-quick through the town, and out the Baltimore Pike about three miles, near to Folek's mills, where it met the enemy under McCausland and Bradley Johnson. The One Hundred and Fifty-Sixth, although exposed to a severe fire of artillery and musketry, maintained itself well and sustained but slight loss. The engagement began at four o'clock P. M. and ceased at nine o'clock P. M. The regiment lay on its arms at night, but daylight showed that the enemy had retreated. General Kelley, in a letter to Colonel Marker, complimented the regiment upon the steadiness of its line, and on the accuracy with which it returned the fire of the enemy's sharpshooters.

After this engagement the regiment remained on duty at and near Cumberland until the 26th of August, when it was ordered to Ohio for muster out. It was mustered out at Camp Dennison on the 1st of September, 1864.

157th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	GEORGE W. MCCOOK.....	May 15, 1864	1st Lieutenant	John McLeish.....	May 15, 1864
Lt. Colonel.....	JOHN MORROW.....	" 15, "	Do.	James F. Dayton.....	" 15, "
Major.....	WM. HEERON.....	" 15, "	Do.	John Fisher, jr.....	" 15, "
Surgeon.....	WM. M. EAMES.....	" 15, "	Do.	Charles M. Jones.....	" 15, "
Ass't Surgeon.....	THOS. B. EAGLE.....	" 15, "	Do.	James Templeton.....	" 15, "
Do.	B. H. FISHER.....	" 25, "	Do.	Thomas B. Coulter.....	" 15, "
Adjutant.....	JAMES ELLIOTT.....	" 15, "	Do.	Wm. Davidson.....	" 15, "
Quartermaster.....	J. STUART LOWE.....	" 15, "	Do.	Isaac N. Custer.....	" 13, "
Captain.....	Wheeler Burgess.....	" 13, "	Do.	Joseph Chambers.....	" 15, "
Do.	Wm. A. Warden.....	" 15, "	2d Lieutenant	John H. Harris.....	" 13, "
Do.	James H. Prentiss.....	" 15, "	Do.	James A. Cloman.....	" 15, "
Do.	Robert Bonds.....	" 15, "	Do.	Newton Ferree.....	" 15, "
Do.	Thomas A. Gamble.....	" 15, "	Do.	James M. Starr.....	" 15, "
Do.	Alexander Smith.....	" 15, "	Do.	Nicholas Winters.....	" 15, "
Do.	Hiram H. Cope.....	" 16, "	Do.	Wm. L. Thompson.....	" 15, "
Do.	Edward Finlay.....	" 15, "	Do.	James M. Sinceral.....	" 15, "
Do.	Jacob Everhart.....	" 13, "	Do.	Wm. Winters.....	" 15, "
Do.	Wm. B. Reed.....	" 15, "	Do.	Thomas C. Ferrell.....	" 13, "
1st Lieutenant	James M. Riley.....	" 13, "	Do.	Wm. Wesley King.....	" 15, "

157th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE Thirty-Ninth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Jefferson County, and the Eighty-Eighth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Carroll County, were consolidated at Camp Chase on the 16th of May, 1864, forming the One Hundred and Fifty-Seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The regiment was mustered into the service on the same day, and on the 17th was ordered to report to General Wallace at Baltimore. It was assigned to General Tyler's command; and, after remaining in camp a few weeks, was ordered by the War Department to Fort Delaware. During the remainder of its term of service the regiment performed guard-duty over from twelve to fourteen thousand prisoners. At the expiration of its enlistment the regiment reported at Camp Chase, and was mustered out on the 2d of September, 1864.

158th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD

The organization of the One Hundred and Fifty-Eighth Ohio was begun, but not completed.

159th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	LYMAN J. JACKSON.....	May 10, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Milton F. Timms.....	May 9, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	HORACE D. MUNSON.....	" 10, "	Do.	Noah Forsyth.....	" 9, "
Major.....	WM. S. HARLAN.....	" 10, "	Do.	Thomas J. Newman.....	" 10, "
Surgeon.....	ROBERT CHAMBERLIN.....	" 10, "	Do.	Wm. E. Atwell.....	" 9, "
Ass't Surgeon..	W. H. HOLDEN.....	" 10, "	Do.	Wm. H. Nevitt.....	" 9, "
Adjutant.....	ALBERT W. TRAIN.....	" 10, "	Do.	Samuel Bateman.....	" 10, "
Quartermaster.	HENRY LILLIBRIDGE.....	" 10, "	Do.	Fenton Bagley.....	" 9, "
Chaplain.....	J. G. MOORE.....	July 6, "	Do.	Jasper Barnett.....	" 10, "
Captain.....	Lucius P. Marsh.....	May 9, "	Do.	James A. Southard.....	" 11, "
Do.	Henry S. Allen.....	" 9, "	2d Lieutenant	Frederick Geiger.....	" 9, "
Do.	Jacob M. Robinson.....	" 9, "	Do.	Samuel L. Niles.....	" 9, "
Do.	John W. Tanner.....	" 10, "	Do.	Thomas Stuart.....	" 9, "
Do.	Charles H. Fox.....	" 9, "	Do.	Wm. Newman.....	" 10, "
Do.	Robert Leslie.....	" 9, "	Do.	Milton H. Carter.....	" 9, "
Do.	James Anderson.....	" 10, "	Do.	Robert Price.....	" 9, "
Do.	Elijah Little.....	" 9, "	Do.	Robert M. Forsythe.....	" 10, "
Do.	Elliott Griffith.....	" 10, "	Do.	Henry A. Montgomery.....	" 9, "
Do.	George B. Weaver.....	" 11, "	Do.	Thomas Griffith.....	" 10, "
1st Lieutenant	Charles W. Potwin.....	" 9, "	Do.	Jacob Bush.....	" 10, "

159th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE Eleventh Ohio National Guard and one company of the Seventy-Third Battalion, Ohio National Guard, formed the One Hundred and Fifty-Ninth Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The consolidation and organization were completed on the morning of the 11th of May, 1864; equipments were issued, and the regiment left immediately for Harper's Ferry.

It went into camp on Maryland Heights until the 17th, when it was ordered to report to General Lew. Wallace, and by him was assigned to Brigadier-General Kenly's command. The regiment camped near Camp Bradford, in the northern defenses of Baltimore. Four companies were detailed on guard-duty at Camp Bradford. These companies remained on this duty during their term of service. One company performed provost-guard duty in the city, another was detailed at Patterson Park Hospital, and the remaining companies were detailed to guard bridges on the Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Railroad. During the Rebel invasion one hundred men in the regiment were mounted, and at Monocacy they conducted themselves so gallantly that they won the official compliments of the General commanding. On the 12th of July companies B, E, G, and I, of the One Hundred and Fifty-Ninth, with other troops, moved on an expedition to Pikesville against a force of the enemy; but on reaching the town it was found that the Rebels had escaped. On the 28th of July four companies of the regiment were stationed at Havre de Grace in charge of the railroad at that point. On the 13th of August the regiment was relieved from duty. It arrived at Zanesville on the 17th, and was mustered out August 24, 1864.

160th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—N. G.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	CYRUS REASONER.....		1st Lieutenant	John F. Ball.....	May 12, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	DAVID W. D. MARSH.....	May 13, 1864	Do.	Levi Bowman.....	" 12, "
Major.....	HENRY L. HARBAUGH.....	" 13, "	Do.	Joseph Scott.....	" 12, "
Surgeon.....	JOHN KREPS.....	" 13, "	Do.	Solomon H. Shroyer.....	" 12, "
Ass't Surgeon	CALVIN B. HOLCOMB.....	" 13, "	Do.	Francis M. Wright.....	" 13, "
Adjutant.....	ROBERT F. HICKMAN, JR.....	" 13, "	Do.	James T. McMahon.....	" 12, "
Quart'rmas't'r	CHARLES DUNN.....	" 13, "	Do.	John H. Huston.....	" 12, "
Chaplain.....	JAMES WHITE.....	" 13, "	Do.	Henry Dellinger.....	" 13, "
Captain.....	Samuel Lyons.....	" 12, "	Do.	John Sweet.....	" 14, "
Do.	Andrew J. Sharp.....	" 12, "	2d Lieutenant	Simeon Handschy.....	" 12, "
Do.	Wm. H. Spencer.....	" 12, "	Do.	Thomas J. Post.....	" 12, "
Do.	Mathias Trace.....	" 12, "	Do.	Andrew J. Whips.....	" 12, "
Do.	Simeon Seigfried, Jr.....	" 12, "	Do.	Adam Hammond.....	" 12, "
Do.	David C. Fowler.....	" 13, "	Do.	John H. Smoots.....	" 12, "
Do.	Henry C. Greiner.....	" 12, "	Do.	Abner M. White.....	" 13, "
Do.	George Ritchey.....	" 12, "	Do.	William Salter.....	" 12, "
Do.	Henry S. Findley.....	" 13, "	Do.	Anstin G. Watts.....	" 12, "
Do.	George McDonough.....	" 14, "	Do.	Stewart Speer.....	" 13, "
1st Lieutenant	James T. McCormick.....	" 12, "	Do.	Isaac T. Cramer.....	" 14, "

160th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment of One Hundred Day Men was mustered into the service at Zanesville, Ohio, on May 12, 1864, and on the 13th was on board the cars en route for Harper's Ferry. Its first duty was the guarding of a supply train to Martinsburg, intended for General Sigel's army, then operating in that quarter of Virginia. On its return it was placed in the First Brigade, First Division, of General Hunter's army, and on the morning of May 25th moved with it to Woodstock, West Virginia. Thence it marched with General Hunter toward the front, but was again detached and sent back to Martinsburg in charge of a supply train. Reaching the vicinity of Middletown, it discovered that Mosby's guerrillas had made a dash on another train in the rear. Colonel Reasoner, with a detachment of the One Hundred and Sixtieth, marched to the aid of the train, and after a sharp fight with the enemy succeeded in saving a large amount of Government property. In this affair the regiment killed fourteen Rebels and wounded a large number. The Rebel loss would have been much greater, but for the fact that they were dressed in the National uniform. The conduct of the One Hundred and Sixtieth under fire was cool and determined. A number of the regiment were wounded, but none killed. One of the men—Thomas Jackson—received three wounds during the fight.

From this time until the muster-out of the regiment, it was subjected to almost continual marching and counter-marching through the Shenandoah Valley, very often in charge of large wagon-trains, on which Mosby's, and other Rebel bands of guerrillas, would make dashes. These affairs, of course, involved much skirmishing, through all of which the regiment bore itself handsomely. During most of its service it was without tents or camp equipage. Much of its duty was performed about Harper's Ferry, where, for some time, it was compelled to lie in rifle-pits, in momentary expectation of an attack from the enemy in overwhelming numbers.

Probably, of all the Ohio National Guard regiments, the One Hundred and Sixtieth can show the most continued active service in the field. On its retirement, its brigade commander, Colonel Maulsby, issued a very complimentary special order, in which he said that "Both officers and men, whether on the march, or guard, or fatigue-duty, or picket, or under fire, have performed every part of their duty with zeal and efficiency."

On August 25th, the regiment started for Ohio, and arrived in Zanesville on the 29th. On September 7, 1864, it was paid and mustered out of the service.

161st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	OLIVER P. TAYLOR.....	May 9, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Samuel Price.....	May 9, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	GEORGE S. CORNER.....	" 9, "	Do.	C. J. Barnes.....	" 9, "
Major.....	SAMUEL B. PRUGH.....	" 9, "	Do.	Peter Swick.....	" 9, "
Surgeon.....	MARTIN G. HAGAN.....	" 9, "	Do.	Wm. McCullom.....	" 9, "
Ass't Surgeon..	HENRY C. TUCKER.....	" 9, "	Do.	John Hontwinnich.....	" 9, "
Adjutant.....	WM. A. BOVEY.....	" 9, "	Do.	James J. Lewis.....	" 9, "
Quart'rmas't'r	MOSES McPANTL.....	" 30, "	Do.	Benjamin Clouser.....	" 9, "
Chaplain.....	JACOB B. DUNN.....	" 9, "	Do.	John Gallbreath.....	" 9, "
Captain.....	Jacob Blick-sunderfer.....	" 9, "	Do.	George W. Deaver.....	" 9, "
Do.....	Robert Lutton.....	" 9, "	2d Lieutenant	Sylvester S. Denuth.....	" 9, "
Do.....	Wm. A. Allen.....	" 9, "	Do.	F. L. Daniels.....	" 9, "
Do.....	John H. Collier.....	" 9, "	Do.	Isaac Philpot.....	" 9, "
Do.....	Saff'er Capl.....	" 9, "	Do.	Wm. B. Wirth.....	" 9, "
Do.....	John D. Cummings.....	" 9, "	Do.	Josiah Welch.....	" 9, "
Do.....	Eli G. Goulson.....	" 9, "	Do.	Robert T. Benner.....	" 9, "
Do.....	Wm. Fowler.....	" 9, "	Do.	George M. Matson.....	" 9, "
Do.....	Asa Vincent.....	" 9, "	Do.	Frederick Scrist.....	" 9, "
Do.....	George Foreman.....	" 9, "	Do.	Wm. J. Weller.....	" 9, "
1st Lieutenant	Lewis B. Minnich.....	" 9, "	Do.	Henry B. Green.....	" 9, "

161st REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIRST OHIO was composed of the Seventieth Battalion, from Tuscarawas County; the Forty-Third Battalion, from Morgan County; the Ninety-Third Battalion, from Noble County, and one company of the Fifty-Eighth Battalion, from Hancock County, all National Guards.

On the 9th of May the regiment was mustered into the United States service at Camp Chase for the period of one hundred days, with an aggregate of eight hundred and fifty men.

The regiment was immediately ordered to Cumberland, Maryland, where it arrived at noon on the 12th. On the 28th the regiment moved to Martinsburg, West Virginia, and on the 4th of June companies A, B, D, F, and H, with other troops, were sent up the Shenandoah Valley with a supply-train for Hunter's army, then supposed to be near Staunton. On reaching that place it was found that Hunter had advanced; but they finally overtook him at Lexington on the 11th. They remained with the army until it arrived near Lynchburg, when, having turned over the supplies, they were ordered back to Martinsburg. Encumbered by many sick and wounded, by a train of over one hundred and fifty wagons and ambulances, by one hundred and fifty prisoners, and by several hundred contrabands, they left the army on the 17th, and, with three days' rations of crackers, started on the return-march through a hostile and mountainous country. They reached Beverly on the 28th, and, after resting two days, proceeded to Webster, the entire distance marched being nearly five hundred miles. From Webster they returned by rail to Martinsburg, arriving on the 2d of July, and marched to Hainesville, where the remainder of the regiment was encamped, in charge of a corral of one hundred and twenty-five teams and wagons. They arrived in camp about eight o'clock in the evening; and, before supper could be prepared, orders were received for the regiment to return to Martinsburg.

It reached Martinsburg about daylight, and, after remaining in line of battle till eleven o'clock A. M., it fell back through Shepperdstown and Sharpsburg to Maryland Heights. Early on the 6th skirmishing commenced, and continued for two days, the One Hundred and Sixty-First taking an active part all the time; after which it went into position in Stone Fort. Subsequently it assisted in defending Maryland Heights until the Rebels were driven from the Shenandoah. On the 25th of August it was ordered to Ohio, and on the 2d of September, 1864, was mustered out at Camp Chase.

162d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	EPHRAIM BALL.....	May 20, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Thomas H. Russell.....	May 20, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	JAS. E. DOUGHERTY.....	" 20, "	Do.	Edward Cavanagh.....	" 20, "
Major.....	BENJ. A. WHITELEATHER.....	" 20, "	Do.	Seraphim Shively.....	" 20, "
Surgeon.....	D. A. MORSE.....	" 20, "	Do.	George Macamer.....	" 20, "
Asst Surgeon	THOS. H. WHITTAKER.....	" 20, "	Do.	William Williams.....	" 20, "
Do.	DAVID H. MILLER.....	" 20, "	Do.	Richard E. Wilson.....	" 20, "
Adjutant.....	CHAS. A. LEITER.....	" 20, "	Do.	Henry R. Bennett.....	" 20, "
Quartermaster	JOHN B. WEERT.....	" 20, "	Do.	Aaron B. Beams.....	" 20, "
Chaplain.....	LEVI L. KEAGLE.....	" 20, "	Do.	Wm. A. Work.....	" 20, "
Captain.....	Edwin Bayliss.....	" 20, "	2d Lieutenant	Sammel C. Bowman.....	" 20, "
Do.	M. G. Huntington.....	" 20, "	Do.	James F. Williams.....	" 20, "
Do.	Homer J. Ball.....	" 20, "	Do.	Wm. Kingsworth.....	" 20, "
Do.	George P. Davis.....	" 20, "	Do.	Hiram Hostetter.....	" 20, "
Do.	Hiram H. Housel.....	" 20, "	Do.	Reuben Schick.....	" 20, "
Do.	Jacob Flora.....	" 20, "	Do.	Leonard Stands.....	" 20, "
Do.	Reuben J. Youtz.....	" 20, "	Do.	Samuel S. Witmer.....	" 20, "
Do.	James Micheuer.....	" 20, "	Do.	Alpheus Hamilton.....	" 20, "
Do.	John F. May.....	" 20, "	Do.	James Davis.....	" 20, "
Do.	Wm. N. Rainey.....	" 20, "	Do.	Thomas D. Sanders.....	" 20, "

162d REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment, with the exception of one company from Brown County, was composed of men from Stark County. A large proportion of them were men of wealth, and many of them were farmers in good circumstances. The regiment was mustered into the United States service in May, 1864, at Camp Chase, when companies A, C, F, and K were assigned to duty at Tod Barracks, near Columbus, and the remaining companies were assigned to duty at Camp Chase, where they remained until they were ordered into Kentucky to assist in repelling John Morgan.

The regiment arrived in Covington the day after Morgan's defeat at Cynthiana. Several of the companies were placed on duty in and around Covington, and the remainder of the regiment moved down the river to Carrollton, which was threatened by Moses Webster's men. Two companies were mounted, and the country was scoured for ten or twelve miles, but Webster and his men could not be found. After remaining in Carrollton a few days the companies returned to Covington, and performed post-duty. They recruited the One Hundred and Seventeenth Regiment United States Colored Infantry, and were frequently called upon to arrest prominent Rebels in that part of the State. The regiment was mustered out of the service at Camp Chase on the 4th of September, 1864.

163d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel	HIRAM MILLER	May 13, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Joseph Cracraft	May 12, 1864
Lt. Colonel	JOHN DEMPSEY	" 13, "	Do.	Wesley Cashell	" 12, "
Major	AARON S. CAMPBELL	" 13, "	Do.	Milo E. Stearns	" 12, "
Surgeon	ALEX. SUTHERLAND	" 13, "	Do.	Joseph H. Brown	" 12, "
Ass't Surgeon	JAS. O. CARTER	" 13, "	Do.	George W. Ballou	" 12, "
Do.	DAVID C. McMILLEN	" 13, "	Do.	Charles W. Kahlo	" 12, "
Adjutant	ANDREW M. BURNS	" 13, "	Do.	Andrew Thompson	" 12, "
Quart'rmaster	SAMUEL L. NASH	" 13, "	Do.	Carpus C. Funk	" 12, "
Chaplain	SAMUEL D. BATES	" 15, "	Do.	John H. Hamaker	" 13, "
Captain	RUFUS L. AVERY	" 17, "	2d Lieutenant	John Kern	" 12, "
Do.	Thomas H. Logan	" 17, "	Do.	David P. Miller	" 12, "
Do.	Wm. W. Cockey	" 17, "	Do.	John Spade	" 12, "
Do.	Jacob M. Leely	" 17, "	Do.	Henry C. McClure	" 12, "
Do.	Wm. F. Curtis	" 17, "	Do.	Peter Starrett	" 12, "
Do.	John Saltsgeber	" 17, "	Do.	Frederick Dennis	" 12, "
Do.	R. P. Osborn	" 17, "	Do.	Henry E. Carey	" 12, "
Do.	Wells Rogers	" 17, "	Do.	James M. First	" 12, "
Do.	J. R. Remley	" 17, "	Do.	Leah Mowry	" 12, "
Do.	Wm. M. Johnston	" 17, "	Do.	Timothy C. Putnam	" 13, "
1st Lieutenant	Wm. B. Niman	" 12, "

163d REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was composed of the Forty-Eighth Regiment, Ohio National Guard, of Richland County; the Seventy-Second Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Henry County; the Ninety-Sixth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Ashland County, and the Ninety-Ninth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Stark County. The regiment was mustered into the United States service at Camp Chase, Ohio, on the 12th of May, 1864, and on the 13th it proceeded to Washington City, under orders from General Heintzelman, commanding the Department of the Ohio.

Upon arrival at Washington the regiment was assigned to the First Brigade, First Division, Twenty-Second Army Corps, with head-quarters at Fort Reno, District of Columbia. The regiment remained here on duty until the 8th of June, when it was ordered to the front, and proceeded in transports to White House, Virginia, and thence to Bermuda Hundred. It reported to General Butler, at Point of Rocks, Virginia, on the 12th of June, and on the 14th took part (with General Turner's division) in a reconnoissance on the Petersburg and Richmond Railroad. Two hundred and fifty of the men were engaged in a severe skirmish on the 15th and were highly complimented by the brigade commander, who said: "They comported themselves like veterans." On the 16th the regiment proceeded to Wilson's Landing, and from that point made several reconnoissances to the west side of the James. It also assisted in building a large portion of the works known as Fort Pocahontas. On the 29th of August the regiment was relieved from duty, and proceeded to Columbus, Ohio, where it was mustered out September 10, 1864.

164th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	JOHN C. LEE.....	May 11, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Edward Angle.....	May 11, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	AUGUSTUS S. JEMENT.....	" 11, "	Do.	John Foster.....	" 11, "
Major.....	MICHAEL SULLIVAN.....	" 11, "	Do.	Francis H. Wright.....	" 11, "
Surgeon.....	ROBERT W. HALLS.....	" 11, "	Do.	Martin Klotz.....	" 11, "
Ass't Surgeon	GEORGE S. YINGLING.....	" 11, "	Do.	Daniel W. Storer.....	" 11, "
Do.	JOHN F. SHAFFNER.....	" 21, "	Do.	John Stevens.....	" 11, "
Adjutant.....	CHARLES B. BERNARD.....	" 11, "	Do.	Norman D. Egbert.....	" 11, "
Quartermaster	AZARIAH C. BAKER.....	" 11, "	Do.	Charles Olmsted.....	" 11, "
Chaplain.....	JOHN PEATE.....	" 11, "	Do.	Herbert G. Ogden.....	" 11, "
Captain.....	Nelson L. Brewer.....	" 11, "	1st Lieutenant	Edward Lepper.....	" 11, "
Do.	Benjamin M. Gibson.....	" 11, "	Do.	Samuel Baker.....	" 11, "
Do.	Wm. M. Miller.....	" 11, "	Do.	Hugh McKibben.....	" 11, "
Do.	Norman S. Keller.....	" 11, "	Do.	Thomas E. Strong.....	" 11, "
Do.	Abraham Ash.....	" 11, "	Do.	George Hartsock.....	" 11, "
Do.	Wm. L. Everit.....	" 11, "	Do.	Charles K. Howe.....	" 11, "
Do.	Andrew V. Shetterly.....	" 11, "	Do.	Levi B. Reed.....	" 11, "
Do.	Darius F. Hunsberger.....	" 11, "	Do.	Daniel J. Mottinger.....	" 11, "
Do.	R. Alcott.....	" 11, "	Do.	John Noble.....	" 11, "
Do.	Wilson J. Crissel.....	" 11, "	Do.	Thomas Smith.....	" 11, "
1st Lieutenant	Joseph McAdoo.....	" 11, "

164th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was composed of the Forty-Ninth Regiment, Ohio National Guard, of Seneca County, and the Fifty-Fourth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, of Summit County. The consolidation was effected at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, on the 6th of May, 1864, and the regiment was mustered into the service on the 11th. On the 14th the regiment left Cleveland, and proceeding via Dunkirk, Elmira, Harrisburg, and Baltimore, reached Washington City on the 17th. It took position in the defenses on the south side of the Potomac, and during its one hundred days' service garrisoned Forts Smith, Strong, Bennett, Haggarty and other forts. The regiment was very thoroughly drilled, both in infantry and heavy artillery tactics. During Early's invasion the regiment was kept on duty almost constantly, and every night was spent either on the advance or beside the guns. At the expiration of its term of enlistment the regiment received the thanks of President Lincoln for the service it had performed, and returned to Cleveland via Baltimore, Harrisburg, and Pittsburg, where it was mustered out on the 27th of August, 1864.

165th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel	ALEX. ROHLANDER.....	May 19, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Wm. Stube.....	May 14, 1864
Major	M. RICHINGS.....	" 19, "	Do.	L. Neubaker.....	" 14, "
Surgeon	HENRY MALLORY.....	" " " "	Do.	Adolph Frey.....	" 14, "
1st Surgeon	SOLDIER WOLFE.....	" " " "	Do.	F. W. Rau.....	" 14, "
Adjutant	F. A. WALZ.....	" 19, "	Do.	John Zimmerman.....	" 14, "
Quartermaster	W. L. KLEINMACHLE.....	" 19, "	Do.	John Grimm.....	" 14, "
Captain	Wm. Keine.....	" 14, "	2d Lieutenant	Frederick Stockhover.....	" 14, "
Do.	Ed. Windgassen.....	" 14, "	Do.	Ernest House.....	" 14, "
Do.	Joseph Haider.....	" 14, "	Do.	Wm. Mayer.....	" 14, "
Do.	W. Schumann.....	" 14, "	Do.	Adam Faush.....	" 14, "
Do.	Martin Hauser.....	" 14, "	Do.	John Pfesterer.....	" 14, "
Do.	J. Hoffman.....	" 14, "	Do.	Conrad Merkel.....	" 14, "
Do.	Joseph Wolf.....	" 14, "	Do.	George Meyer.....	" 14, "
Lieutenant	Francis Baum.....	" 14, "

165th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

HERE were but eight companies in this command. The battalion was mustered and placed on duty at Camp Dennison, where it remained until the 20th of May, and was then transferred to Johnson's Island, Ohio, to guard Rebel prisoners. On the 25th of May it was ordered to Kentucky, and remained there until August 8, 1864, and was then ordered to Cumberland, Maryland. It remained in Maryland and Virginia until the 27th of August, 1864, and then returned to Camp Dennison, and was mustered out, its term of service having expired. Its duties at the several places where it served were merely guard-mounting and garrison-duty in general.

The battalion was raised in Cincinnati, and was officered principally by Cincinnati men.

166th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	HARRISON G. BLAKE.....	May 15, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Daniel Shaw.....	May 15, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	RANDOLPH EASTMAN.....	" 15, "	Do.	Daniel H. Kinding.....	" 15, "
Major.....	ROBERT W. LIGGETT.....	" 15, "	Do.	Sidney M. Owen.....	" 15, "
Surgeon.....	THOMAS M. EBRIGTT.....	" 15, "	Do.	Pomeroy Allen.....	" 15, "
Ass't Surgeon	WM. H. SYKES.....	" 15, "	Do.	Samuel W. Curtis.....	" 15, "
Do.	HENRY C. NEWKIRK.....	" 27, "	Do.	John M. Terry.....	" 15, "
Adjutant.....	DENTER E. BACON.....	" 15, "	Do.	Maiores Scott.....	" 15, "
Quart'mast'r	CHARLES B. CHAMBERLIN.....	" 15, "	Do.	James G. Carr.....	" 13, "
Chaplain.....	EDWARD P. WHITING.....	June 22, "	Do.	Lewis Fretz.....	" 15, "
Captain.....	Josiah Martin.....	May 13, "	2d Lieutenant	William Buchanan.....	" 13, "
Do.	William Bigham.....	" 15, "	Do.	Stiles A. Hosper.....	" 15, "
Do.	Jesse Kinejer.....	" 13, "	Do.	Paul W. Drake.....	" 13, "
Do.	Benjamin F. McCormick.....	" 15, "	Do.	John E. LaBarre.....	" 15, "
Do.	O. P. Phillips.....	" 15, "	Do.	John Stutts.....	" 15, "
Do.	Edgar Martin.....	" 15, "	Do.	Sterry H. Cole.....	" 15, "
Do.	Joseph Sutton.....	" 15, "	Do.	Henry W. Buckman.....	" 15, "
Do.	Edsil H. Milhorn.....	" 13, "	Do.	J. F. Hurst.....	" 13, "
Do.	Abraham B. Rudy.....	" 13, "	Do.	John G. Frizzell.....	" 13, "
Do.	Ira C. Peck.....	" 15, "	Do.	Wm. O. Saunders.....	" 15, "
1st Lieutenant	Peter Everly.....	" 13, "

166th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, by the consolidation of one company Ohio National Guard, from Wayne County, the Fifty-Ninth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, from Holmes County, the Sixty-Third Regiment, Ohio National Guard, from Huron County, and the Seventy-Ninth Battalion Ohio National Guard, from Medina County. On the 15th of May, 1864, the regiment proceeded to Virginia, and was placed on duty in Forts Richardson, Barnard, Reynolds, Ward, and Worth, with head-quarters at Fort Richardson. During Early's raid on Washington the regiment stood at its guns day and night, for six or eight days, constantly expecting an attack. After the raid sickness prevailed in the regiment to an alarming extent. Every effort was made by the regimental commander to alleviate the sufferings of the men, and in his labors he was assisted by James C. Wetmore, the Ohio State Military Agent at Washington City, who will ever be held in grateful remembrance by the members of the One Hundred and Sixty-Sixth. At the expiration of its term of service the regiment returned to Ohio, and was mustered out on the 9th of September, 1864.

167th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel	THOMAS MOORE	May 16, 1864	1st Lieutenant	S. W. Woodruff	May 17, 1864
Lt. Colonel...	JAMES E. NEWTON	" 16, "	Do.	Jacob Kurz	" 17, "
Major	JOHN F. BENDER	" 16, "	Do.	A. W. Eckert	" 14, "
Surgeon	MOSES H. HAYNES	" 16, "	Do.	Benjamin T. Banker	" 14, "
Ass't Surgeon	JAMES S. FERGUSON	" 16, "	Do.	James F. Imlay	" 14, "
Adjutant	LAFAYETTE TRABER	" 16, "	Do.	Thomas H. Robertson	" 14, "
Quartermaster	HENRY P. DOVE	" 16, "	Do.	L. D. Keil	" 14, "
Chaplain	JEREMIAH GEIGER	" 16, "	Do.	Philip H. Welty	" 14, "
Captain	James E. Stewart	" 14, "	Do.	Washington B. Davis	" 16, "
Do.	Edward T. Jones	" 17, "	3d Lieutenant	Charles M. Dexter	" 14, "
Do.	John Krelinger	" 17, "	Do.	Crosley Vaughn	" 17, "
Do.	B. F. Bookwalter	" 14, "	Do.	P. Winkellhaus	" 17, "
Do.	George C. Marvel	" 14, "	Do.	A. P. Richardson	" 14, "
Do.	John C. Lewis	" 14, "	Do.	John Bemback	" 11, "
Do.	David B. Kerr	" 14, "	Do.	Samuel S. Garver	" 14, "
Do.	James A. Stephens	" 14, "	Do.	Wm. E. McKenzie	" 14, "
Do.	Samuel K. Wickard	" 14, "	Do.	Levi Jameson	" 14, "
Do.	Daniel K. Zeller	" 16, "	Do.	Henry C. Gray	" 14, "
1st Lieutenant	James A. Kennedy	" 14, "	Do.	Matthew T. Whipple	" 16, "

167th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS was one of the National Guard, one hundred day regiments. It was organized near Hamilton, Butler County, Ohio, on the 2d of May, 1864, and was sworn into the United States service on the 16th of the same month. Two days thereafter it received marching orders for Western Virginia, and on the 21st of May had reached its point of destination, Charleston, West Virginia, and had reported to Colonel Ewart, commanding the post. Six companies of the regiment were immediately sent to Camp Piatt, and four to Gauley Bridge, relieving the Second, Third, and Seventh Regiments Virginia Cavalry.

The points named were posts of supply, and the only duty the regiment was called upon to perform was guarding Government stores, and accompanying trains to and from the main bodies of the National forces in that portion of Western Virginia.

At the expiration of their term of service the regiment was promptly relieved, mustered out, and transported home. A great majority of the members of the One Hundred and Sixty-Seventh, as well as most of the other one hundred days' regiments, joined other organizations raised shortly after their return home. Having had a taste of the service, these patriotic men determined to see the end of the rebellion, if possible; but many of them yielded up their lives long before the consummation of their wishes, and now sleep in lonely graves on the far-off fields of the South.

168th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	CONRAD GARIS.....	May 19, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Jonah Britton.....	May 13, 1864
Lt. Colonel ...	GEO. M. BARRERE.....	" 19, "	Do.	Samuel Ayres.....	" 12, "
Major.....	EMERY C. NEWTON.....	" 19, "	Do.	A. H. James.....	" 13, "
Surgeon.....	B. D. GRANGER.....	" 19, "	Do.	T. S. Beam.....	" 13, "
Ass't Surgeon	CHAS. H. SMITH.....	" 19, "	Do.	Abraham Gossard.....	" 13, "
Adjutant.....	EDMUND E. WOOD.....	May 19, "	Do.	Wm. Homey.....	" 13, "
Quartermaster	WM. A. QUARTERMAN.....	" 19, "	Do.	Luther B. Tyson.....	" 13, "
Chaplain.....	THOMAS D. HOWE.....	June 9, "	Do.	William Orr.....	" 13, "
Captain.....	R. J. Hatcher.....	May 13, "	Do.	Louis H. Mark.....	" 13, "
Do.	Joseph H. Mullenix.....	" 13, "	2d Lieutenant	J. G. Lyle.....	" 13, "
Do.	Wm. H. Homey.....	" 12, "	Do.	J. B. Morris.....	" 13, "
Do.	F. R. Parrott.....	" 13, "	Do.	John L. Barnes.....	" 12, "
Do.	Joseph Smith.....	" 13, "	Do.	J. F. Robinson.....	" 13, "
Do.	Ephraim Henkle.....	" 13, "	Do.	David Troutwine.....	" 13, "
Do.	Thomas Rankin.....	" 13, "	Do.	Samuel Marks.....	" 13, "
Do.	Henry N. Depoy.....	" 13, "	Do.	Samuel B. Straley.....	" 13, "
Do.	Louis Painter.....	" 13, "	Do.	William Haller.....	" 13, "
Do.	Edwin E. Retter.....	" 13, "	Do.	Cyrus Ellis.....	" 13, "
1st Lieutenant	Wm. P. Stewart.....	" 13, "	Do.	William Reid.....	" 13, "

168th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was formed by a consolidation of the Sixty-Seventh with the Sixty-Sixth Battalion, Ohio National Guard; and to complete the organization one company from Clark County was added. The Sixty-Seventh Regiment was from Fayette County and the Sixty-Sixth from Highland. The organization took place at Camp Dennison, and on the 19th of May, 1864, the One Hundred and Sixty-Eighth was mustered into the service. The regiment was armed with Harper's Ferry muskets, of a very inferior quality.

On the 9th of June the regiment proceeded to Covington, Kentucky, and embarked on the Covington and Lexington Railroad. Company B, with twenty men from company G, was detached at Falmouth, to guard the railroad bridge, and at other points companies were stationed to protect the road. On the 10th of June, a detachment of three hundred occupied Cynthiana, and threw out a strong picket-line, which position they held without difficulty. At six o'clock on the morning of the 11th a large force of cavalry flanked the pickets on the Davis Pike and moved against the town. The regiment formed rapidly, but being subjected to an enfilading fire on both flanks, it seized the nearest buildings, and for two hours the fight continued. The Rebels set fire to the buildings adjoining; the ammunition was almost exhausted, and the men were suffering intensely from heat and smoke. Colonel Garis stepped out to offer terms of surrender, when several shots were fired at him, wounding him in the arm and shoulder. The regiment lost eight men killed, seventeen wounded, and two hundred and eighty captured, together with the quartermaster stores and camp equipage. The prisoners were robbed of their money, watches, hats, boots, and other articles of clothing. They were soon paroled, and some walked home across the country; others reported at Cincinnati, and were ordered to Camp Dennison; and others joined the detachments of the regiment under command of Major Newton.

The portion of the regiment under Major Newton's command remained in Kentucky until the 10th of July, during which time it captured one hundred horses, seventy-five muskets, and twenty-six prisoners. On the 10th of July all who had been paroled were ordered into camp, and on the 11th the regiment reorganized at Camp Dennison. It was now armed with Enfield rifles, and despatched to Cincinnati, where it was engaged in guard-duty. The One Hundred and Sixty-Eighth was not relieved until twenty days after its term expired. On the 6th of September it proceeded to Camp Dennison, and was there paid and discharged.

169th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	NATHANIEL HAYNES.....	May 15, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Wm. H. Bacon.....	May 15, 1864
Lt. Colonel ...	JOSEPH H. CARR	" 15, "	Do.	Thomas J. Robison.....	" 15, "
Major.....	JACOB FICKES.....	" 15, "	Do.	Henry McGill.....	" 15, "
Surgeon.....	PETER BEAUGRAND.....	" 15, "	Do.	William H. Flock.....	" 15, "
Ass't Surgeon	O. C. McCARTY.....	July 6, "	Do.	Charles A. Baldwin.....	" 15, "
Do.	CHARLES HUNT.....	" 17, "	Do.	John Lichty.....	" 15, "
Adjutant.....	JOHN L. GREENE, JR.....	May 15, "	Do.	William J. Havens.....	" 15, "
Quart'mast'r	HENRY J. KAUFFMAN.....	" 15, "	Do.	William H. Goodson.....	" 15, "
Captain	Abraham Beidler.....	" 15, "	Do.	Jonathan Loveberry.....	" 15, "
Do.	Matth J. Tichnor.....	" 15, "	2d Lieutenant	Jesse M. Flickinger.....	" 15, "
Do.	Henry C. Shirk.....	" 15, "	Do.	Emanuel Sanders.....	" 15, "
Do.	Abraham Grift.....	" 15, "	Do.	Samuel B. Hughes.....	" 15, "
Do.	William K. Boone.....	" 15, "	Do.	David A. Switzer.....	" 15, "
Do.	Charles Thompson.....	" 15, "	Do.	Benj. F. Baltzly.....	" 15, "
Do.	Joseph H. Jennings.....	" 15, "	Do.	George I. Krebs.....	" 15, "
Do.	Jacob D. Thomas.....	" 15, "	Do.	C. S. Long.....	" 15, "
Do.	A. C. Anderson.....	" 15, "	Do.	Solomon Warner.....	" 15, "
Do.	Harrison R. Bowles.....	" 15, "	Do.	James J. Banks.....	" 15, "
1st Lieutenant	David W. Hardy.....	" 15, "	Do.	Philip A. Overmeyer.....	" 15, "

169th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was formed by consolidating the Fiftieth Ohio National Guard, from Sandusky County, with the Fifty-Second Ohio National Guard, from Wayne County. It was organized at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, on the 19th of May, 1864, and left the State the same day for Washington City, with an aggregate of nine hundred and forty-five men.

Upon arriving in Washington it was ordered on garrison-duty in Fort Ethan Allen, where it remained during its term of service; its participation in the defeat of Early's army being the only field-service which it experienced. It was occupied the principal part of the time in completing the bomb-proofs and magazines in the fort, and in drilling. So proficient did the regiment become in tactics, that General De Russy declared it equal in that respect to any three-years' regiment in his command. The regiment suffered severely from sickness, and in four months nearly two hundred men died or were permanently disabled by disease; but few Ohio regiments have suffered so much in the same length of time. The regiment's term of service having expired it returned to Ohio, and was mustered out on the 4th of September, 1864.

170th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	MILES J. SAUNDERS.....	May 14, 1864	1st Lieutenant	George C. Gordon.....	May 13, 1864
Do.	LEWIS LEWTON.....	Sept. 4, "	Do.	David S. Coultrap.....	" 13, "
Lt. Colonel....	ARTHUR HIGGINS.....	May 14, "	Do.	Alex C. Patton.....	" 14, "
Major.....	MILTON W. JUNKINS.....	" 14, "	Do.	James H. Graham.....	" 14, "
Surgeon.....	JAS. B. CRAWFORD.....	" 17, "	Do.	Joseph J. Mead.....	" 14, "
Adjutant.....	EDWARD T. AFFLECK.....	" 14, "	Do.	John E. Cannon.....	" 14, "
Quartermaster	JOHN CONWELL.....	" 14, "	Do.	Elias B. Lowman.....	" 13, "
Captain.....	Wm. Robinson, Jr.....	" 13, "	Do.	Wm. H. Oglevic.....	" 13, "
Do.	Wm. B. Glass.....	" 13, "	2d Lieutenant	Wilbur H. Tallman.....	" 13, "
Do.	Samuel Glover.....	" 13, "	Do.	Wm. Skelley.....	" 13, "
Do.	Jacob Gramble.....	" 13, "	Do.	George W. Green.....	" 13, "
Do.	Albert W. Lee.....	" 14, "	Do.	Benj. G. Hammill.....	" 13, "
Do.	Leonard B. Peck.....	" 14, "	Do.	Matthew N. Henderson.....	" 14, "
Do.	James Henderson.....	" 14, "	Do.	John H. Hammond.....	" 14, "
Do.	Edwin Regal.....	" 14, "	Do.	John Smith.....	" 14, "
Do.	Nathan H. Rowles.....	" 13, "	Do.	Robert P. Hanna.....	" 14, "
Do.	Lewis Lewton.....	" 13, "	Do.	Daniel Westlake.....	" 13, "
1st Lieutenant	George Giffin.....	" 13, "	Do.	George W. Healer.....	" 13, "
Do.	Wilson S. Fisher.....	" 13, "

170th REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTIETH OHIO was formed by consolidating the Seventy-Fourth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, from Belmont County, with the Seventy-Eighth Battalion, Ohio National Guard, from Harrison County. It was mustered into the United States service on the 13th of May, 1864, at Bellair, Ohio, and on the 17th it left for Washington City, but, being detained by the destruction of the bridge at Harper's Ferry, it did not reach its destination until the 22d.

Upon arrival it was assigned to duty in Forts Simmons, Mansfield, Bayard, Gaines, and Battery Vermont. Changes were afterward made by which it was relieved of Forts Bayard and Gaines, but left in charge of the other positions, with the addition of Forts Sumner and a battery further up the Potomac. On the night of the 4th of July it left the defenses at Washington, and proceeded to Sandy Hook, Maryland, to join the forces assembled in the defense of Maryland Heights. At Sandy Hook this regiment was placed in line to repel an anticipated attack, and for several days was engaged in maneuvering and skirmishing. The regiment remained in the vicinity of Sandy Hook until the 15th of July, when it was attached to the Second Brigade, First Division, Army of West Virginia, and participated during the remainder of its term of service in the movements and engagements of that army. The regiment joined the pursuit of the Rebel forces that committed such havoc north of the Potomac, and the result of the expedition to the One Hundred and Seventieth was four killed, nineteen wounded, and a number captured; among the latter was the Adjutant, who was detained as a prisoner of war until March, 1865. Hardly had the regiment recovered from the effects of this expedition, when it was ordered up Middletown Valley to secure a gap in the mountains, through which it was presumed the Rebel force that burned Chambersburg would attempt to retreat. The Rebels took another line of retreat, and the National forces moved to Frederick, Maryland, and thence, after a short stay, to Harper's Ferry. Soon after this the regiment took part in the advance made by General Sheridan up the Shenandoah Valley, by which the Rebels were driven beyond Cedar Creek. While lying at Cedar Creek the regiment was detached and ordered to Harper's Ferry as escort to a supply-train. It remained at Harper's Ferry until the 24th of August, when transportation to Ohio was furnished. The regiment arrived at Columbus, Ohio, on the 27th of August, and was mustered out on the 10th of September, 1864.

171st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, ONE HUNDRED DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	JOEL F. ASPER.....	May 7, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Milton Matthews.....	May 5, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	HERMAN R. HARMON.....	" 18, "	Do.	Austin Wilson.....	" 5, "
Major.....	H. A. FOWLER.....	" 18, "	Do.	James L. Parmley.....	" 7, "
Surgeon.....	FRED. C. APPELATE.....	" 5, "	Do.	Newton Sutherland.....	" 5, "
Ass't Surgeon	BENJ. F. PIERMAN.....	" 10, "	Do.	Allen W. Gillis.....	" 5, "
Do.	ALBERT G. MINOR.....	" 10, "	Do.	Harrison A. Lee.....	" 5, "
Adjutant.....	J. PHIL. HURLBUET.....	" 7, "	Do.	William H. Earl.....	" 5, "
Quart'r mast'r	JACOB STRAMBAUGH.....	" 7, "	Do.	Joseph E. Johnston.....	" 7, "
Captain.....	FRANCIS E. HITCHINS.....	" 5, "	2d Lieutenant	Frank J. Mackey.....	" 5, "
Do.	Richard Swindler.....	" 5, "	Do.	John P. Lepley.....	" 5, "
Do.	Joseph M. Jackson.....	" 5, "	Do.	Benjamin Veach.....	" 5, "
Do.	Evan Morris.....	" 5, "	Do.	John Sampson.....	" 5, "
Do.	William D. Sheppard.....	" 7, "	Do.	Robert Straghan.....	" 9, "
Do.	Manning A. Fowler.....	" 5, "	Do.	Stephen N. Ford.....	" 7, "
Do.	Henry L. Burdham.....	" 5, "	Do.	William W. Herbert.....	" 5, "
Do.	Harlan H. Hatch.....	" 5, "	Do.	Alexander W. Alcorn.....	" 5, "
Do.	Cyrus A. Mason.....	" 5, "	Do.	James B. Bernard.....	" 5, "
Do.	Peter Hitchcock.....	" 7, "	Do.	Frank H. Snow.....	" 5, "
1st Lieutenant	Frederick Kinsman, Jr.....	" 5, "	Do.	Henry L. Bradley.....	" 7, "
Do.	James McGrath.....	" 5, "

171st REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment was composed of the Fifty-First Ohio National Guard, from Trumbull County; the Fourteenth Battalion, from Portage County; the Eighty-Fifth Battalion, from Lake County, and the Eighty-Sixth Battalion, from Geauga County. The consolidation took place at Sandusky, Ohio, where the regiment was mustered into the service on the 7th of May, 1864. The regiment was ordered to Johnson's Island, where it was engaged in guard and fatigue-duty, and where it soon became noted for its drill and discipline, and for its tastefully ornamented camp.

On the 9th of June the One Hundred and Seventy-First was ordered to Covington, Kentucky, to which place it immediately proceeded, reporting on arrival to General Hobson. It was placed on cars, having in charge about three hundred horses, with directions to move to Cynthiaana, and there await orders. From information received at Covington an attack was anticipated, and precautions were taken to prevent surprise by placing sentinels in the cars, and by ordering all officers to remain with their companies. Upon arriving at Kellar's Bridge, which the Rebels had burned, the regiment debarked, and one company went on picket. While ammunition and rations were being issued and the horses taken from the cars, firing was heard at Cynthiaana, and about this time the Sergeant-Major of the One Hundred and Sixty-Eighth Ohio came up and reported that Colonel Garis at Cynthiaana was attacked by General Morgan's entire command. Colonel Garis requested Colonel Asper to come to his assistance, and he would hold out if possible. Before the preparations to advance were completed General Hobson came up. Presently the One Hundred and Seventy-First was attacked by a force of Morgan's cavalry, which was repulsed; but it dismounted and again advanced, and was again driven back, when the entire force advanced, about fifteen hundred strong, against the regiment, numbering all told, only seven hundred and fifty. The fight opened at five o'clock A. M., it soon became general, and continued until eleven A. M. The Rebels were driven back several times, and at one time an advance was ordered upon the Rebel lines. Five companies of the regiment advanced promptly, but the right company was checked by a cross-fire, causing it to swing round, and finally to fall back to the hill on which it was first formed; but the left held the point it had gained throughout the fight. The Rebels were re-enforced about ten o'clock. The National position was invested in front, flank, and rear, and the Rebels demanded a surrender. As resistance was useless the demand was acceded to, with the understanding that all private property except the officers' horses should be unmolested. When General Morgan arrived he altered the terms and allowed the officers to retain their horses; but a Rebel Colonel had taken a fancy for Lieutenant-Colonel Harmon's horse and insisted on keeping it, and finally did so, giving the Lieutenant-Colonel one much inferior to his own. In this fight the regiment lost thirteen killed and fifty-four wounded, among the latter an officer; four of the wounded subsequently died.

After the surrender Morgan proposed to send General Hobson and staff, Colonel Asper, Lieutenant-Colonel Harmon, and Major Fowler, to communicate with the military authorities for the purpose of effecting an exchange. These officers gave their parole to go, under escort of three Rebel officers, to the nearest point where communication could be had by telegraph, and there effect an exchange, and in case of a failure in their negotiation, to return as soon as practicable by the nearest route. The party reached Falmouth Sunday evening, June 12th, and opened communication with General Burbridge, commanding the District of Kentucky, and after a few days' delay General Burbridge ordered General Hobson and staff to Lexington for duty, directing him at the same time to take the Rebel officers with him as prisoners of war, and ordered the Ohio officers to Cincinnati.

Soon after the fight at Kellar's Bridge Morgan was pressed so closely by General Burbridge that he was compelled to parole his prisoners, who made their way to Augusta; they were taken from there on boats to Covington, and then transferred to Camp Dennison.

The results of the fight at Kellar's Bridge were of greater importance than they at first appear to be. Morgan had planned his raid into Kentucky for the purpose of obtaining recruits, horses, and money, intending at the same time to sweep down the Licking Valley, to capture the small garrisons on the route in detail, and, if possible, to ride into Covington. At Kellar's Bridge he was delayed twenty-four hours, and General Burbridge was enabled to reach him. The citizens of Falmouth, Kentucky, held a meeting and thanked General Hobson and the officers and men under him, for the gallant manner in which they defended the valley from invasion; the citizens of Covington also thanked General Hobson, Colonel Asper, and the officers and men in their command, for the protection they had afforded the city, and the Cincinnati Gazette said: "There is little doubt that the stubborn resistance of the One Hundred and Seventy-First saved Cincinnati from visitation."

After the capture General Hobson, in a letter addressed to Colonel Asper, expressed his entire satisfaction with the conduct of the One Hundred and Seventy-First, and General Heintzelman and Governor Brough both declared to Colonel Asper, personally, their gratification at the bravery and courage displayed by the regiment.

The regiment moved from Camp Dennison to Johnson's Island and occupied its old camp, but no duty was required of the paroled officers and men until an order from the War Department declared the parole invalid, when the regiment was re-armed and placed on duty. About the same time an order announced the arrangement between General Hobson and General Morgan binding, and the Rebel officers, who were held until that time as prisoners of war, were released. The regiment remained on Johnson's Island during the remainder of its term, and was mustered out on the 20th of August, 1864.

172d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—N. G.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.	RANK.	NAME.	MUSTERED.
Colonel.....	JOHN FERGUSON.....	May 1, 1864	1st Lieutenant	Samuel W. Wright.....	May 14, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	HENRY M. CARVER.....	" 1, "	Do.	John Cozine.....	" 1, "
Major.....	JOSUA K. BROWN.....	" 1, "	Do.	Robert S. Forbes.....	" 1, "
Surgeon.....	JOHN MORGAN.....	" 1, "	Do.	Samuel Nelson.....	" 1, "
Ass't Surgeon	GEORGE WYMAN.....	June 8, 1864	Do.	Robert P. McClure.....	" 14, "
Do.	EDWARD B. MOSIER.....	" 17, "	Do.	John C. Watson.....	" 1, "
Adjutant.....	JAMES HAMMOND.....	May 1, "	Do.	James M. Vaughn.....	" 14, "
Quart'mast'r	THOMAS S. LUBOCKE.....	" 1, "	Do.	Willis M. Boyer.....	" 14, "
Captain.....	William A. Rainey.....	" 1, "	2d Lieutenant	Joseph Goodie.....	" 1, "
Do.	John T. McCormick.....	" 14, "	Do.	Wm. G. Kinkead.....	" 14, "
Do.	James A. Coleman.....	" 1, "	Do.	John S. Smock.....	" 1, "
Do.	Francis Graham.....	" 1, "	Do.	John C. Bell.....	" 1, "
Do.	David W. Menolson.....	" 1, "	Do.	John Fry.....	" 1, "
Do.	Robert Cornin.....	" 1, "	Do.	David Douglas.....	" 1, "
Do.	Samuel Baird.....	" 14, "	Do.	William N. Blair.....	" 14, "
Do.	Zachens Wilson.....	" 1, "	Do.	Andrew Burriss.....	" 1, "
Do.	Timothy J. Evans.....	" 14, "	Do.	William Carr.....	" 14, "
Do.	Samuel White.....	" 14, "	Do.	Van B. B. Johnson.....	" 14, "
1st Lieutenant	James J. Spquires.....	" 1, "

172d REGIMENT—NATIONAL GUARD.

THIS regiment, brought out by the hundred days' call, did not leave the State. It was sent from Columbus to Gallipolis, Ohio, with a strength of eight hundred and fifty-four, rank and file, and performed guard-duty at that important depot of Government stores during the whole of its service.

On several occasions the enemy made demonstrations on Gallipolis, but never ventured near enough to involve an engagement.

The One Hundred and Seventy-Second performed the duty required of it with fidelity. A large number of its members had previously seen active service in other regiments. It was mustered out of service at Gallipolis on the 24th of August, 1864, and immediately thereafter sent to Camp Chase, where it was paid and discharged.

173d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	JOHN R. HURD.....	Sept. 18, 1864	Sept. 18, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel...	C. A. SHEPARD.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	JEREMIAH DAVIDSON.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	J. C. MAIR.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	JOSEPH MORRIS.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	GEORGE WYMAN.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	GEORGE W. ISAMINGER.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	John W. FInson.....	" 16, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Miles L. Blake.....	" 16, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Marchm.....	" 16, "	" 18, "	Resigned November 10, 1864.
Do.	Isaac W. Saunders.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Resigned December 3, 1864.
Do.	John C. Malone.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David Urie.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Sammuel Welker.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Colenau Gillilan.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Anthony W. Bowen.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Slaven.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James N. Hanna.....	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	Resigned April 1, 1865.
Do.	N. W. Evans.....	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	On leave of absence at muster out of regiment.
Do.	David F. Hoyer.....	April 10, 1865	April 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Andrew J. Boothie.....	Sept. 16, 1864	Sept. 18, 1864	Resigned November 10, 1864.
Do.	James N. Hanna.....	" 16, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Elliott R. Marcum.....	" 16, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David F. Hoyer.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Helfenst-in.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Wm. McIntire.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	On leave of absence at muster out of regiment.
Do.	James M. Edmondson.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Resigned November 13, 1864.
Do.	N. W. Evans.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	L. W. Beman.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	Charles Hunt.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James O. Wall.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John T. Brady.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Elisha T. Edwards.....	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John N. Thomas.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John H. Parker.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Albert R. Morrison.....	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George G. Menckey.....	April 10, 1865	April 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Elisha T. Edwards.....	Sept. 16, 1864	Sept. 18, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John N. Thomas.....	" 16, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John H. Parker.....	" 16, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John H. Saunders.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Resigned November 10, 1864.
Do.	Albert R. Morrison.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George G. Menckey.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hiram E. Grove.....	" 17, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph C. Coffman.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Marion Martin.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Wm. T. Shades.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Moses Morgan.....	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas M. Smith.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Hamilton.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles S. Edwards.....	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Asa R. O. Thomas.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Sanders K. Vermillion.....	April 10, 1865	April 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.

173d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was recruited principally in the Eleventh Congressional District. It rendezvoused at Gallipolis, Ohio, and was mustered into the service on the 18th of September, 1864.

At the date of organization the regiment was of maximum strength, and presented a very fine appearance, the majority being either sturdy farmers or men fresh from the furnaces and rolling-mills in the iron and coal regions. Immediately after muster-in the regiment was ordered to Nashville, Tennessee, where it arrived about the 1st of October, and was assigned to duty in the city, under Brigadier-General Miller, commanding the post. The regiment was engaged in drilling and guard-duty, the latter being very heavy; as, in addition to the guards in and around Nashville, it was necessary to furnish the numerous trains on the military railroads with guards, and frequently half of the regiment was absent on this duty. This state of things continued till Hood's army invaded Tennessee and invested Nashville. The regiment was held continually in readiness for action, and almost every day was engaged in the support of some battery, remaining several hours in the trenches. Early on the morning of the 15th of December the regiment took position on the Murfreesboro' Pike, immediately in rear of the most advanced line of works, and supporting a battery confronting the enemy. After daylight the regiment was moved to the left of Fort Negley, and in the afternoon it moved to the right of the fort and remained there during the battle.

After the battle the regiment was employed in guarding prisoners at Nashville, and in their transit from Nashville to Louisville. On the 15th of February, 1865, the One Hundred and Seventy-Third was ordered to Columbia, and after remaining there a few days was directed to proceed to Johnsonville. From this point the regiment made several raids across the Tennessee, and the remainder of the time it was employed in company and battalion drill.

On the 20th of June the regiment was ordered to Nashville, where it arrived safely, and on the 28th was mustered out of the service, numbering eight hundred and eighty-four men. It was sent to Camp Dennison, Ohio, where it was paid and discharged on the 5th of July, 1865.

174th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JOHN S. JONES.....	Sept. 21, 1861	Sept. 21, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	A. JAMES STERLING.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	BENJ. C. G. REID.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Killed December 7, 1864.
Do.....	WM. G. BEATTY.....	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	F. W. MORRISON.....	Sept. 19, "	Sept. 19, "
Ass't Surgeon	MARTIN DOTY.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Died December 10, 1864.
Do.....	MITCHELL STARR.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	CHARLES E. MONROE.....	March 7, 1865	March 7, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	BENJ. J. GEORGE.....	Oct. 12, 1864	Oct. 12, 1864
Captain.....	WM. G. BEATTY.....	Aug. 16, "	Aug. 16, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Ulysses D. Cole.....	Sept. 1, "	Sept. 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	WM. H. ROBB.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Honorably discharged May 12, 1865.
Do.....	George Campbell.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James W. Combes.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Ephraim C. Carson.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Detached on Gen. Milroy's Staff at muster out [of reg't.
Do.....	Alfred H. Evans.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Honorably discharged March 23, 1865.
Do.....	John R. Bassinger.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	WM. H. GARRETT.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Henry McPeck.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Henry Rigby.....	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 30, "	Resigned May 19, 1865.
Do.....	WM. B. BROWN.....	June 16, 1865	June 16, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	David J. Hussey.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with reg't as 1st Lieut. (Thomas.
Do.....	David M. Howe.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	On detached duty as A. D. C. to Brig. Gen.
1st Lieutenant	Henry Rigby.....	Aug. 16, 1864	Aug. 16, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Peter Hill.....	Sept. 1, "	Sept. 1, "	Discharged May 12, 1865.
Do.....	WM. B. BROWN.....	" 5, "	" 6, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James Clements.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David J. Hussey.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Thornton B. Myers.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	On detached duty at muster out of regiment.
Do.....	James S. Nace.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David M. Howe.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Harry L. Boyd.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Harry M. Dean.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.....	WM. T. PATTON.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment as Reg't Q. M.
Do.....	Benj. B. McGowan.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John B. White.....	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 30, "	Discharged for disability May 18, 1865.
Do.....	A. D. Hemery.....	June 16, 1865	June 16, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	George D. Coe.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Samuel A. Price.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	WM. WEBBER.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.....	Thomas J. Weatherly.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
2d Lieutenant	John B. White.....	Aug. 16, 1864	Aug. 16, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Joseph Swartz.....	Sept. 6, "	Sept. 6, "	Detached at own request.
Do.....	A. D. Hemery.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	George D. Coe.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Samuel A. Price.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	WM. N. ROBINSON.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out as of date of muster in.
Do.....	WM. WEBBER.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	James S. Armstrong.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Resigned May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Thomas J. Weatherly.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	George Harriman.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	WM. F. WALLACE.....	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Richard T. Fields.....	June 16, 1865	June 16, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	John F. Hubler.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	Lybrand Maxwell.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	John Alexander.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	James S. Elliott.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Wounded and discharged May 29, 1865.
Do.....	Thomas C. Steward.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M. Serg't.
Do.....	Sanford W. Devoe.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.

174th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was one of the last series of regiments raised in Ohio to serve for one year, and was composed mainly of those who, having seen service in the three years' regiments and becoming tired of the monotony of civil life, eagerly enrolled their names for another year's campaign. It was organized at Camp Chase on the 21st of September, 1864, and left Columbus on the 23d, with orders to proceed to Nashville, Tennessee, and report to Major-General W. T. Sherman, then commanding the Military Division of the Mississippi.

The regiment reached Nashville, September 26th, and was immediately ordered to proceed to Murfreesboro', which point was then threatened by the Rebel cavalry under General Forrest. It remained at Murfreesboro' until the 27th of October, occupying most of the time in perfecting its drill, which it had necessarily neglected for want of time, as the regiment had been pushed to the front immediately after its organization. On the 27th of October it left Murfreesboro' with orders to report to the commanding officer at Decatur, Alabama. Decatur was reached on the 28th, and the garrison found gallantly defending itself from a fierce attack made upon it by Hood's advance. The regiment remained at Decatur until the fighting was over and the enemy driven off. It was then moved to the mouth of Elk River, leaving on the way four companies as a garrison for Athens, Alabama.

In the course of a few days the One Hundred and Seventy-Fourth was moved back to Decatur, at which place it remained until the 26th of November, when the town was evacuated. The enemy's cavalry having crossed over toward Murfreesboro', help was needed in that quarter, and the regiment was sent back to that place in haste. It remained at Murfreesboro' during the siege (December 4th) and participated in the battle of Overall's Creek. In this affair the regiment proved its good pluck and discipline by crossing the creek in the face of the enemy in good order, and driving Bates's Rebel division from the field. In obedience to the command of General Milroy, it continued to advance under a heavy artillery fire, and against five times its number, until ordered back by the proper officer. The loss of the regiment in this affair was two officers wounded, six men killed, and thirty-eight wounded. General Rousseau, on reading General Milroy's report of this engagement, ordered the One Hundred and Seventy-Fourth on dress-parade and complimented them in person for their gallantry.

On the 7th of December the regiment was engaged in what was called the battle of the Cedars, and again maintained the reputation of Ohio soldiers for gallantry and bravery in battle. Watching its chances the regiment made a gallant charge against the Rebel breastworks and captured two cannon, a stand of Rebel colors belonging to the First and Fourth Florida, and about two hundred prisoners. Its loss was one commissioned officer killed (Major B. C. G. Reid, of Zanesville), and seven wounded, and four men killed and twenty-two wounded. Major Reid was shot through the head while urging on his men to the charge. The regiment was complimented in general orders for its conduct in this affair.

The One Hundred and Seventy-Fourth participated in all the fighting around Murfreesboro', and after the siege was raised was assigned to the Twenty-Third Army Corps and joined it at Columbia, Tennessee. It was assigned to the First Brigade, First Division of that corps, and marched with it to Clifton, Tennessee. Embarking with the corps January 17, 1865, the regiment moved down the Tennessee and up the Ohio River to Cincinnati, reaching that city January 24th. Here, with its division and corps, it took the cars and sped on to Washington City, which place was reached on the 29th of January, 1865. This long journey was made in bitter cold weather, and the men suffered severely. The cars passed through places familiar to the men as their former homes, yet but few deserted.

The regiment remained in camp at Washington City until the 21st of February, when it started for North Carolina, reaching Fort Fisher on the 23d. It marched to Moorehead City, reaching there on the 24th, and Newbern on the 25th. It was here placed in the column commanded by General Cox, and took part in the battle of Five Forks, at Kingston, North Carolina. Again the bravery and discipline of the One Hundred and Seventy-Fourth Ohio were exemplified. It received and repulsed the desperate assault made by General Hoke on the 10th of March, the commanding officer of the regiment taking his orders direct from General Cox. It fought behind breastworks, and lost two officers wounded, four men killed, and twenty-three wounded. It took in over its breastworks one hundred and forty-two prisoners during the assault, and a large number afterward. This was among the last fights of the war, and the last in which the One Hundred and Seventy-Fourth was engaged.

The regiment moved with the rest of the National forces to Goldsboro', where Sherman's army was joined on the 21st of March, 1865. It remained as a part of Sherman's column until the end of the war, and operated under General Schofield in the Department of North Carolina, being sent to Wadesboro', North Carolina, to keep the chivalry in order and administer the oath of allegiance to magistrates.

Under the order mustering out volunteers whose term of service expired previous to the 1st of October, the One Hundred and Seventy-Fourth was mustered out June 28th, at Charlotte, North Carolina, and started immediately for home by way of Greensboro', Danville, and City Point, reaching Columbus July 5th. It was paid off and discharged on the 7th of July, 1865.

175th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	WESLEY R. ADAMS	Oct. 11, 1864	Oct. 11, 1864	Commission returned.
Do.	DANIEL W. McCOY	June 6, 1865	June 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	DANIEL W. McCOY	Sept. 14, 1864	Sept. 14, 1864	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	EDWARD E. MULLENIX	June 6, 1865	June 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	EDWARD E. MULLENIX	Oct. 8, 1864	Oct. 8, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	R. A. JOHNSTON	June 6, 1865	June 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	R. A. DWYER	Sept. 20, 1864	Sept. 20, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	R. B. GRANGER	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	W. F. HANGER	" 20, "	" 20, "	Resigned May 11, 1865.
Do.	JAMES P. SHULTZ	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	R. A. Johnston	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Captain	Joseph M. Heistand	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	A. F. Denistou	" 13, "	" 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. B. Logan	" 13, "	" 13, "	Killed November 30, 1864.
Do.	Wm. H. McCoy	" 23, "	" 23, "	Lost on steamer Sultana.
Do.	Wm. P. Wolf	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Abram Hoagland	Oct. 8, "	Oct. 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John F. Hill	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George C. Sedgwick	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert F. Watson	" 10, "	" 10, "	Resigned January 8, 1865.
Do.	F. M. Hanover	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant May 23, 1865.
Do.	Charles W. Apley	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Langstaff	June 6, "	June 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John E. Carpenter	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regt. as 1st Lieut. and Adj.
1st Lieutenant	Neil M. Dennis	Sept. 10, 1864	Sept. 10, 1864	Resigned December 13, 1864.
Do.	Charles W. Apley	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles J. Cunningham	" 13, "	" 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	F. M. Hanover	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Henderson	" 23, "	" 23, "	Resigned June 11, 1865.
Do.	Isaac N. Buudy	" 29, "	" 29, "	Resigned June 15, 1865.
Do.	John E. Carpenter	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Isaiah Larkin	Oct. 8, "	Oct. 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph L. Harman	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaac S. McCowan	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Francis M. Posegate	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	Wm. H. Langstaff	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	S. E. Lemon	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hiram Tyler	" 6, "	" 6, "	Resigned June 11, 1865.
Do.	Thomas J. McKeahan	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out as 2d Lieutenant May 15, 1865.
Do.	A. J. Hodson	June 6, "	June 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Josiah H. Denistou	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Rummell	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Joseph M. Ellis	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Leroy C. Sedgwick	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Samuel S. Jolly	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	S. E. Lemon	Sept. 10, 1864	Sept. 10, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas J. McKeahan	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	A. J. Hodson	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hiram Tyler	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Josiah H. Denistou	" 23, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Barrere	" 29, "	" 29, "	Lost on steamer Sultana.
Do.	Wm. Rummell	Oct. 8, "	Oct. 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph M. Ellis	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Leroy C. Sedgwick	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel S. Jolly	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Dorsey A. Lenuin	March 18, 1865	March 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Elliott	" 29, "	" 29, "	Killed at Franklin, Tenn.
Do.	Wm. R. Vanwinkle	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David Case	June 6, "	June 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Josiah T. Kinner	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Philip T. South	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John R. Ashmore	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	George Saylor	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

175th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment, with the exception of companies I and K, was raised in the Sixth Congressional District, with head-quarters at Hillsboro', Ohio. It was organized at Camp Dennison, October 11, 1864, and was ordered to the field on the same day, proceeding by way of Cincinnati and Louisville to Nashville.

The regiment was ordered to Columbia, where it performed post and garrison-duty in the town, and was also engaged in guarding the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad. In the advance of Hood one of the regiment's outposts, south of Columbia, failing to receive orders, made a strong resistance but was captured, while the remainder of the regiment fell back to Franklin. The One Hundred and Seventy-Fifth was temporarily assigned to the Third Brigade, Third Division, Twenty-Third Army Corps, and was placed on the left of the center, in reserve. In one of the enemy's charges a veteran regiment gave way in utter confusion, and though the One Hundred and Seventy-Fifth had never been under fire, and never even on battalion drill, they fixed bayonets, advanced rapidly over an open field, drove the Rebels back, gained the works, and held them, repelling charge after charge. In this engagement the regiment suffered severely, losing one hundred and sixty-one officers and men killed, wounded, and missing; among them Captain W. B. Logan, a man universally esteemed as a Christian patriot.

That night and next day the regiment fell back to Nashville and took position in Fort Negley, where it remained during the battle, and on the 25th of December was again ordered to Columbia, and engaged in the usual garrison duties and in guarding the railroad bridges.

On the 23d of June, 1865, the One Hundred and Seventy-Fifth was ordered to Nashville, and remained there five days, preparing muster-out rolls and discharge-papers, and then proceeded to Camp Dennison, arriving on the 3d of July. When the regiment entered the service it numbered nine hundred and forty-three men; it returned to Camp Dennison with five hundred and eighty-two. On the 13th of July, 1865, the regiment received its final payment and discharge.

176th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	EDWIN C. MASON.....	Sept. 21, 1864	Sept. 21, 1864
Lt. Colonel....	WM. B. NESBITT.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "
Major	WILBUR F. CUMMINGS.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "
Surgeon	WM. A. BROWN.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "
Ass't Surgeon	WM. REED.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "
Do.	J. B. YOUNG.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Declined.
Do.	C. M. FIESER.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865
Chaplain.....	NORMAN JONES.....	" 28, " "	" 28, " "
Captain.....	Reuben Oehler.....	Sept. 6, 1864	Sept. 6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ira B. Wambaugh.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Aaron K. Lindsley.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John A. Myers.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. W. Williams.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Straley.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Arthur W. Chenoweth.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Resigned January 8, 1865.
Do.	Robert A. Scott.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Resigned March 12, 1865.
Do.	Wm. McMackin.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Allen Floyd.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Resigned February 9, 1865.
Do.	Henry Fischer.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry H. Crane.....	March 18, " "	March 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph A. Lovejoy.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Henry Fischer.....	Sept. 6, 1864	Sept. 6, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry H. Crane.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph A. Lovejoy.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Beck.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned February 14, 1865.
Do.	W. J. B. Latimer.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned January 9, 1865.
Do.	Henry M. Goldsmith.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David Davis.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Houston James.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Holland.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James E. Phelps.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Finley O. Cummings.....	" 23, " "	" 23, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Clark Runyan.....	" 23, " "	" 23, " "	Honorably discharged February 18, 1865.
Do.	Joseph P. Owens.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 20, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ransom Peabody.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter J. Meddick.....	March 18, " "	March 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. A. Drunheller.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Resigned April 24, 1865.
Do.	Samuel M. Alkire.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Revoked.
Do.	Perry H. Nickles.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Marcena M. Murphy.....	April 8, " "	April 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Bucher.....	May 2, " "	May 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Peter Aller.....	Sept. 6, 1864	Sept. 6, 1864	Resigned January 31, 1865.
Do.	Joseph P. Owens.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ransom Peabody.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Randolph T. Douglas.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned December 29, 1864.
Do.	Peter J. Meddick.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. Drunheller.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel M. Alkire.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Discharged March 1, 1865.
Do.	Franklin Barger.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Resigned January 8, 1865.
Do.	Perry H. Nickles.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Simon K. Young.....	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Resigned February 14, 1865.
Do.	Marcena M. Murphy.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Bucher.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry W. Houghton.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Died.
Do.	Joel Funk.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Eberly.....	March 18, " "	March 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert W. Hamilton.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harvey H. Campbell.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lafayette L. Trask.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frederick Roach.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alex. Pricer.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Scanland.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas M. Stevens.....	May 2, " "	May 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James A. Carson.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.

176th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ON the 21st of September, 1864, the One Hundred and Seventy-Sixth Ohio was organized at Camp Chase, Columbus, Ohio, for the term of one year. As soon as the organization was completed the regiment was ordered to Nashville, Tennessee, and assigned to the Second Brigade, Fourth Division, Twentieth Army Corps.

Soon after its arrival it was detailed to perform provost-guard duty at Nashville, and during the siege and battle of Nashville it was in the works; but with the exception of a few companies, under Major Cummings, the regiment was not engaged. Quite a number of the officers and men were veteran soldiers, and their knowledge and experience gave the regiment considerable reputation for proficiency in drill and discipline.

The regiment was mustered out of service at Tod Barracks, Columbus, Ohio, on the 18th of June, 1865.

177th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	ARTHUR T. WILCOX	Sept. 23, 1864	Sept. 23, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel ...	WM. H. ZIMMERMAN.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	E. J. KREIGER	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	S. S. BURROWS	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	W. A. BIVENS.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Resigned November 30, 1864.
Do.	RICHARD EDWARDS	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	H. N. ROGERS.....	April 3, 1865	April 3, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	HENRY V. HITCHCOCK	Oct. 6, 1864	Oct. 6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	WM. C. TURNER.....	Sept. 7, "	Sept. 7, "	On detached duty at muster out of regiment.
Do.	Isaac N. Rogers.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Leander C. Reeve	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Rufus H. Burr	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel J. Tracey	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Vesey	" 26, "	" 26, "	Transf'd to 1st O. V. I. per. S. O. 62, H'd Q's [23d A. C.]
Do.	Osmar C. Chase	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles J. McDowell.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George B. Squires.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harlow N. Spencer	Oct. 3, "	Oct. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Henry J. Virgil	Sept. 7, "	Sept. 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Julius H. Gates.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Honorably discharged May 12, 1865.
Do.	Feminore E. Peck.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Resigned January 11, 1865.
Do.	George C. Gilbert.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edwin W. Poole.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Baily D. Keefer.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Peterson.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry J. Rice.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George C. Ketchum.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Resigned May 20, 1865.
Do.	James W. Raymond.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Detached on General Milroy's Staff.
Do.	Theodore B. Wire.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel H. H. Wheaton.....	Oct. 3, "	Oct. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George B. Huston.....	Jan. 24, 1865	Jan. 24, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Albert J. Hamilton.....	Sept. 7, 1864	Sept. 7, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George B. Huston.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Earl N. Jayne.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Honorably discharged March 1, 1865.
Do.	Abner Loomis.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	R. B. Tremelin.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Nelson S. Cory	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Squire S. Brown	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wilder B. Dow.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out January 14, 1865.
Do.	Silas H. Kent.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alvin Schramling.....	Oct. 3, "	Oct. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jerre C. Claffin.....	Jan. 24, 1865	Jan. 24, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John T. Cramer.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.

177th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Cleveland, Ohio, during the month of October, 1864. Having received orders to report to Major-General George H. Thomas it proceeded to Nashville by way of Indianapolis and Louisville. The day after its arrival it was ordered to Tullahoma, and constituted a part of the garrison at that place, under General Milroy. Winter-quarters were erected, and the regiment occupied the town until Hood's invasion, when the garrison of Tullahoma was ordered to Murfreesboro', where the One Hundred and Seventy-Seventh arrived on the 2d of December, after a severe march of three days, over very bad roads. On the 5th of December the Rebels made their appearance before Murfreesboro', and there was skirmishing almost every day until Hood's defeat at Nashville. On the 7th a portion of the force at Murfreesboro', including the One Hundred and Seventy-Seventh Ohio, under General Milroy, made a reconnoissance for the purpose of learning the position and strength of the enemy. The Rebels were found in considerable force, strongly posted behind a hastily-constructed work of logs and dirt. Milroy's command charged the works, drove the Rebels back, and captured two pieces of artillery and over two hundred prisoners. This was quite a brilliant affair, considering that Milroy's force was composed of raw troops. The One Hundred and Seventy-Seventh lost five or six wounded.

A few days after this, while on a foraging expedition, the troops were much annoyed by a battery that raked the road on which the train was moving. The One Hundred and Seventy-Seventh, and another regiment, charged the battery and drove it from its position, and continued to skirmish with the Rebels until dark. In this engagement the regiment lost eleven wounded, two of them mortally.

After Hood was driven from Tennessee the regiment was ordered to join the Twenty-Third Corps, at Clifton, on the Tennessee River. About the middle of January, 1865, the Twenty-Third Corps was ordered to North Carolina, when the One Hundred and Seventy-Seventh embarked at Clifton, proceeded down the Tennessee and up the Ohio to Cincinnati, where it took the cars for Washington City. From there it moved to Annapolis, Maryland, and embarked on a vessel for North Carolina, and after a stormy passage arrived at Fort Fisher on the 7th of February.

The regiment was engaged in two attacks on the enemy's works, from the Cape Fear River to the coast, and afterward crossed the river and participated in the flank movement which compelled the Rebels to evacuate Fort Anderson. It next engaged the enemy at Twin Creek, charged them in the rear, and captured the entire command, with their commander; the One Hundred and Seventy-Seventh taking one stand of colors and many prisoners.

The next morning the regiment arrived opposite Wilmington, and after building a bridge over the river, crossed and took possession of the town. The One Hundred and Seventy-Seventh remained here about a week, and then joined General Cox, at Kingston, and proceeded to Goldsboro', where it joined Sherman's army.

After the surrender of Johnston's army, the regiment was sent to Greensboro', where it remained until the 24th of June, when, its muster-out rolls being prepared, it proceeded to Cleveland, where it was paid and discharged on the 7th of July, 1865.

178th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JOAB A. STAFFORD	Sept. 26, 1864	Sept. 26, 1864	On leave of absence at muster out of reg't.
Lt. Colonel.....	AARON C. JOHNSON	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	JOHN C. HAMILTON.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	J. CAMPBELL.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	EDWIN BOOTH.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	ROBERT TAYLOR.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	JAMES MITCHELL.....	Oct. 6, "	Oct. 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	George L. Wells.....	Sept. 21, "	Sept. 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John B. Slade.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Cavinor.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edwin R. Rickey.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaac N. C. Mellinger.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John E. Evans.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Mingo D. Miller.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew Davis.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. A. Miller.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Bela D. L. Dudley.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Joseph T. Jacobs.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles A. Poland.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Discharged April 6, 1865.
Do.	Patrick H. McGrew.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David B. Russell.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	James Mauger.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frauk J. Van Horn.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. D. Mathews.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John T. Bedwell.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George L. Emmons.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry H. Dudley.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James L. Richardson.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Resigned November 29, 1864.
Do.	Henry C. Lillebridge.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	W. E. Atwell.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. P. Shrom.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	W. E. Atwell.....	Sept. 21, 1864	Sept. 21, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. P. Shrom.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John A. Sears.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Resigned.
Do.	Merrick A. Mahills.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Asberry Gardner.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel Dugan.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Weagley.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lewis T. Scott.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Theodore Crawl.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	S. S. Yodler.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John A. Boly.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John V. Morrison.....	May 11, "	May 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wallace W. Hitchcock.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.

178th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was one of the series of regiments recruited for one year's service, in the fall of 1864. It was organized by Lieutenant-Colonel A. C. Johnson, at Camp Chase, near Columbus, on the 29th of September, and was at once dispatched by rail and river to Nashville, Tennessee, with orders to report to Major-General George H. Thomas for duty. The regiment remained in Nashville some two weeks, performing guard-duty, when it was sent to Tullahoma, Tennessee, where it composed part of the post command. Nothing of interest occurred at Tullahoma, excepting the fact that Lieutenant C. A. Poland, of company B, while out scouting near Manchester, Tennessee, succeeded in capturing a noted guerrilla named John Seal. This cold-blooded murderer was executed without the formalities of a court-martial.

The Post of Tullahoma was evacuated in the winter of 1864, and the One Hundred and Seventy-Eighth Ohio was sent to Murfreesboro'. Lieutenant-Colonel A. C. Johnson was appointed Chief of Artillery, and superintended the moving of all the artillery and ordnance from Tullahoma to Murfreesboro' by rail; and during the siege of Murfreesboro' by General Hood's Rebel forces, which lasted for eighteen days, acted as Chief of Artillery on General Rousseau's staff. Frequent sorties were made in force from the fort for foraging purposes, under command of General Milroy, with severe fighting. The One Hundred and Seventy-Eighth was closely engaged under Colonel Stafford. In one of these engagements the regiment lost both of its color-bearers. In the affair on Wilkerson's Pike, the force under General Milroy (which included the One Hundred and Seventy-Eighth) captured two fine twelve-pounder Napoleons and two hundred prisoners.

After the defeat of General Hood's Rebel army at Nashville, the One Hundred and Seventy-Eighth was brigaded in the First Division, Third Brigade, Twenty-Third Army Corps, and ordered to North Carolina. It landed at Moorehead City, North Carolina, with the Twenty-Third Army Corps, and a few days thereafter participated in a smart skirmish with the enemy under General Johnston, at Wise's Fork. This was the last affair in which the regiment was engaged.

General Sherman's army was met and joined by the Twenty-Third Army Corps at Goldsboro', North Carolina, and together an advance was made to Raleigh. After Johnston's Rebel army surrendered, the One Hundred and Seventy-Eighth was ordered to Charlotte, North Carolina, where it performed garrison-duty until mustered out of the service, June 29, 1865. It was finally paid and discharged at Camp Chase, Ohio, July 10, 1865.

179th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	HARLEY H. SAGE.....	Sept. 27, 1864	Sept. 27, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel....	PETER GRUBB.....	27, " "	27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	EMANUEL T. HOOKER.....	" 28, " "	" 28, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	WM. H. WILSON.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	M. H. LOGUE.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	F. W. INMAN.....	Oct. 1, " "	Oct. 1, " "	Honorably discharged February 20, 1865.
Chaplain.....	DANIEL A. TAWNEY.....	Jan. 14, 1865	Jan. 14, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Moses B. Tice.....	Sept. 21, 1864	Sept. 21, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Lyman Parcher.....	" 23, " "	" 23, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David Jenkins.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Resigned February 11, 1865.
Do.....	James Grafton.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Stephen Morgan.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John Simmons.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James W. Glasener.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Claud B. Gibson.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George M. Kemp.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Henry P. Shaffer.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Luman G. Mills.....	March 14, 1865	March 14, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Luman G. Mills.....	Sept. 21, 1864	Sept. 21, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Thomas A. Patterson.....	" 23, " "	" 23, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Ebenezer Jones.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Vinton Evans.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Jacob F. Wickersham.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Abraham H. Buckholder.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.....	John W. Hammer.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James L. Hunter.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph N. Harris.....	" 28, " "	" 28, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.....	Joseph D. Dickelman.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Chauncey F. Keller.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Ephraim Pippinger.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Hudson B. Shotwell.....	March 14, 1865	March 14, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
3d Lieutenant	Hudson B. Shotwell.....	Sept. 21, 1864	Sept. 21, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Isaac Z. Bryant.....	" 23, " "	" 23, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Evan E. Edwards.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alex. H. Armstrong.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out as of date of muster in.
Do.....	John Atwater.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Isaac J. Marsh.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George R. Gyger.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph M. Phillips.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Resigned February 11, 1865.
Do.....	Joseph McMillen.....	" 29, " "	" 29, " "	Discharged as of date of muster in.
Do.....	Josiah W. Brelsford.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. H. Schoch.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Charles E. Lewis.....	March 14, " "	March 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. H. Saxton.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Jonathan Soule.....	May 11, " "	May 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.

179th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, on the 28th of September, 1864. It consisted of men from all parts of the State, many of whom had seen service in other regiments. It moved to Nashville, Tennessee, arriving on the 8th of October, and was ordered on duty at that post, then commanded by Brigadier-General John F. Miller. It was assigned to the Second Brigade, Fourth Division, Twentieth Army Corps, and was present at the battle of Nashville, on the 15th and 16th of December, but was only partly engaged. The One Hundred and Seventy-Ninth remained on duty at Nashville until the 18th of June, 1865, when, its services being no longer needed, it was mustered out and ordered to Columbus, Ohio, where it was paid and discharged on the 27th of June.

The regiment went to the field with almost the maximum number of men. It received many recruits during the winter, and at muster-out the rolls bore the names of thirty-eight officers and six hundred and ninety-eight men.

180th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	WILLARD WARNER.....	Oct. 12, 1864	Oct. 12, 1864	Promoted to Brevet Brigadier-General.
Lt. Colonel....	HIRAM MCKAY.....	7, "	7, "	Killed in action March 13, 1865.
Do.	JOHN T. WOOD.....	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	JOHN T. WOOD.....	Oct. 7, 1864	Oct. 7, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	BARTON A. HOLLAND.....	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	FRANK E. POWERS.....	Oct. 22, 1864	Oct. 22, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	CALVIN D. CASE.....	6, "	6, "	Honorably discharged January 24, 1865.
Do.	JAMES N. BOLAND.....	8, "	8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. H. BROWN.....	Jan. 10, 1865	Jan. 10, 1865
Chaplain	JOHN D. VAIL.....	Dec. 14, 1864	Dec. 14, 1864	Never mustered in on commission
Captain	Barton A. Holland.....	Sept. 27, "	Sept. 27, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Eli S. Anderson.....	28, "	28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Moses Abbott.....	28, "	28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel W. Mills.....	30, "	30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Calvin S. Brice.....	30, "	30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harvey Anderson.....	Oct. 1, "	Oct. 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John H. Busby.....	3, "	3, "	Discharged April 3, 1865.
Do.	Philip Bauer.....	4, "	4, "	Discharged January 28, 1865.
Do.	Henry Williams.....	5, "	5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John N. Cunningham.....	6, "	6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Matthias Ridenour.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew Smith.....	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joshua Lemert.....	July 4, "	July 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant	Matthias Ridenour.....	Sept. 27, 1864	Sept. 27, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Andrew Smith.....	28, "	28, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joshua Lemert.....	28, "	28, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas C. Hurst.....	30, "	30, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	James L. Smith.....	30, "	30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Francis A. Barnes.....	Oct. 1, "	Oct. 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Elisha P. Allen.....	3, "	3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Horace R. Abbott.....	4, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Mahlon C. Moore.....	4, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Van B. Pritchett.....	5, "	5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harlan F. Walker.....	6, "	6, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	Wm. A. Potter.....	6, "	6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Chapman.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Oscar L. R. French.....	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Wm. H. Blakely.....	July 4, "	July 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	John S. Mott.....	4, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	Thomas B. Holland.....	Sept. 27, 1864	Sept. 27, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Chapman.....	28, "	28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Oscar L. R. French.....	28, "	28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Blakely.....	30, "	30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Sid. Newton.....	Oct. 1, "	Oct. 1, "	Discharged April 18, 1865.
Do.	Morris T. Gossett.....	3, "	3, "	Resigned May 18, 1865.
Do.	Hiram C. Reed.....	5, "	5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John S. Mott.....	6, "	6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Querner.....	6, "	6, "	Honorably discharged February 6, 1865.
Do.	Wm. M. Cook.....	6, "	6, "	Died January 7, 1865.
Do.	Samuel O. Ridenour.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Resigned.
Do.	Wm. H. Nichols.....	Feb. 10, "	Feb. 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harrison Frizzell.....	10, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alex. McBride.....	May 11, "	May 11, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John Keys.....	July 4, "	July 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John Gregg.....	4, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Ephraim B. Weirrick.....	4, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Samuel G. Liles.....	4, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Benj. F. Dennistou.....	4, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

180th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was one of a series of one-year regiments, recruited in the fall of 1864. It was organized October 9, 1864, and left Camp Chase for Nashville, Tennessee, on the 15th. From Nashville it was ordered to Decherd, Tennessee, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Hiram McKay, Colonel Willard Warner being with General Sherman, in Georgia. Colonel Warner joined the regiment October 28th.

The regiment remained with its right wing at Decherd and its left wing at Elk River Bridge, under Major Wood, and was used as guard to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad for the most part of three months. It formed a part of Kryznowski's Railroad Brigade. This service was very arduous, rendered more so from the fact that the regiment was cut off from all communication with the main army, and exposed to attack from General Hood's Rebel forces, then making their way toward Nashville.

On January 6, 1865, the regiment went by rail to Nashville, and after remaining there a few days, was ordered to guard a train of wagons bound for Eastport, Mississippi. It did not, however, go beyond Columbia. It was there met by an order to return to Nashville. From there it was ordered to Washington City via Louisville and Cincinnati.

The regiment reached Washington January 31, 1865, and was placed in Camp Stoneman, near that city. After remaining some three weeks in camp, during the most severe weather, the regiment was attached to the Twenty-Third Army Corps, then under orders for Fort Fisher. On reaching the mouth of Cape Fear River, the fall of Fort Fisher was announced, rendering their services unnecessary in that quarter.

The regiment was then taken to Newbern, where it was joined to a force under General J. D. Cox, to open railway communication with Goldsboro' and General Sherman's army. At Kingston, North Carolina, the division to which the regiment was attached was engaged on the 8th, 9th, and 10th of March, with the Rebel forces under Generals Bragg and Hoke, resulting in the discomfiture of the enemy, and the capture of Kingston. Lieutenant-Colonel Hiram McKay, of the regiment, was killed, and Lieutenant Thomas C. Hurst severely wounded. Ten men were killed and thirty wounded.

From Kingston the regiment marched toward Goldsboro', rebuilding the railroad as it progressed, reaching Goldsboro' March 21st. It remained there until April 9, and then marched with Sherman's army to Raleigh, North Carolina, where it performed garrison-duty—Colonel Warner being Provost-Marshal—till the surrender of General Jos Johnston. Thence it moved to Greensboro', and from there to Charlotte, where it remained as the city garrison—Colonel Warner being Post Commandant—until July 12, 1865. It was then sent home to Columbus for muster-out, which event occurred July 25, 1865.

181st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JOHN O'DOWD.....	Oct. 15, 1864	Oct. 15, 1864	Honorably discharged May 27, 1865.
Do.....	JOHN E. HUDSON.....	June 16, 1865	June 16, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	JOHN E. HUDSON.....	Oct. 15, 1864	Oct. 15, 1864	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	JAMES T. HICKEY.....	June 16, 1865	June 16, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	JAMES T. HICKEY.....	Oct. 18, 1864	Oct. 18, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	WM. KETTELER.....	June 17, 1865	June 17, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	SOLOMON WOLFF.....	Oct. 14, 1864	Oct. 14, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	ALFRED FORCE.....	14, "	14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	OLIVER C. MCCARTY.....	Nov. 2, "	Nov. 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	JAMES M. BROWN.....	April 11, 1865	April 11, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Ferdinand McDonough.....	Sept. 29, 1864	Sept. 29, 1864	Resigned February 27, 1865.
Do.....	Wm. Ketteler.....	29, "	29, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	John E. Hudson.....	Oct. 4, "	Oct. 4, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	John O'Dowd.....	6, "	6, "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	David Gordon.....	6, "	6, "	Resigned March 4, 1865.
Do.....	Gustav Grnis.....	7, "	7, "	Discharged June 12, 1865.
Do.....	George Kountz.....	7, "	7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George A. Boss.....	7, "	7, "	Declined to accept; commission returned.
Do.....	J. Becker.....	Sept. 29, "	Sept. 29, "	Declined to accept; commission returned.
Do.....	James T. Hickey.....	Oct. 10, "	Oct. 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Charles Allen.....	18, "	18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James Foley.....	18, "	18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Louis Steubing.....	17, "	17, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	R. M. Gutenstein.....	20, "	20, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Charles Le Blanc.....	24, "	24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	L. H. Pummill.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	H. Rempel.....	8, "	8, "	Revoked.
Do.....	Louis Kuster.....	May 11, "	May 11, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.....	Patrick Merrick.....	July 10, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.....	Peter Roth.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.....	Robert S. Logan.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant.....	L. H. Pummill.....	Sept. 29, 1864	29, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	H. Rempel.....	29, "	29, "	Mustered out May 8, 1865
Do.....	R. M. Gutenstein.....	29, "	29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Charles Allen.....	Oct. 4, "	Oct. 4, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James Foley.....	6, "	6, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Daniel K. Gordon.....	6, "	6, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.....	Louis Kuster.....	7, "	7, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Laurence C. Carpenter.....	7, "	7, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Louis Steubing.....	7, "	7, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Charles Le Blanc.....	10, "	10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Frederick Anderson.....	15, "	15, "	Honorably discharged August 1, 1865.
Do.....	August Buddenbrock.....	17, "	17, "	Discharged March 17, 1865.
Do.....	Patrick Merrick.....	18, "	18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Samuel W. McCaslin.....	18, "	18, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Peter Roth.....	20, "	21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Robert S. Logan.....	21, "	21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Timothy Cannon.....	24, "	24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David B. Worley.....	19, "	19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles H. Weaver.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Frederick Hoeller.....	8, "	8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George W. Poling.....	8, "	8, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.....	Wm. H. Gibson.....	July 10, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.....	John B. Sexton.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.....	John Alexander.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.....	Frank D. Russell.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.....	Adolph Keuhn.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.....	Benj. F. Heath.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Serg't. Maj.
2d Lieutenant.....	Charles H. Weaver.....	Sept. 29, 1864	29, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John Lang.....	29, "	29, "	Promoted to Captain in 183d O. V. I.
Do.....	John C. Stahl.....	29, "	29, "	Died.
Do.....	Patrick Merrick.....	Oct. 4, "	Oct. 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Samuel W. McCaslin.....	6, "	6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Robert S. Logan.....	6, "	6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Frederick Hoeller.....	7, "	7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	George W. Poling.....	7, "	7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	August Buddenbrock.....	7, "	7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Timothy Cannon.....	10, "	10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Wm. H. Gibson.....	18, "	18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John B. Sexton.....	18, "	18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	John Alexander.....	21, "	21, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Frank D. Russell.....	21, "	21, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Francis M. Enyart.....	24, "	24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George L. Sicking.....	19, "	19, "	Never mustered.
Do.....	Adolph Keuhn.....	Jan. 18, 1865	June 18, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Joseph C. Roberts.....	July 10, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	John S. Pierce.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	Edward Cannon.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	Samuel Matthews.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	Henry Elver.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	John Leonard.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	Wm. Orstendorff.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.....	Lucien W. McKee.....	10, "	4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

181st OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was recruited in Cincinnati during the months of July, August, and September, 1864, a period when troops were greatly needed to fill the depleted ranks of the National armies. The regiment was declared organized on October 15, 1864. It was mostly composed of men who had seen service in the "Old Tenth," and in the ranks of the Fifth, Sixth, and Ninth, and other prominent Ohio regiments.

Marching orders were received on the 24th of October, and on that day the regiment started for Huntsville, Alabama, and arrived at that place on the 29th. On its arrival a fight was in progress between the National forces, commanded by General R. S. Granger, and a portion of Hood's army, on its way to Nashville. The left wing of the One Hundred and Eighty-First was immediately taken to the scene of action, and although not actually engaged the men displayed the coolness of veteran troops.

In November the regiment operated around Decatur, Alabama, meeting the enemy in several picket affairs. Evacuating Decatur, the regiment went by rail to Murfreesboro', Tennessee. On this trip an accident occurred to the train by which one man was killed and three wounded. On December 5th Major Hickey, with two hundred men, was for some time engaged in repairing the Chattanooga Railroad. On a certain occasion the force was surrounded by the enemy, but by cool maneuvering on the part of officers and men it succeeded in escaping safely into Murfreesboro'. On December 7th the regiment took part, with other troops, in repelling an attack on Murfreesboro' by the Rebel General Forrest, and lost three or four men wounded. In following up their success the National force came in contact with about eight thousand Rebels, under General Bates, in position on Wilkinson's Turnpike. A fierce fight ensued, in which the One Hundred and Eighty-First participated in a charge across an open field, mounted the Rebel works, captured one hundred and fifty prisoners, and two pieces of artillery. Its loss was five killed and thirty wounded—two mortally. The regiment was mentioned in special orders for its gallantry, by General Rousseau. The most of December was consumed in foraging around Murfreesboro'. In these expeditions the enemy was frequently met and engaged. In one of these affairs, on the 14th of December, the One Hundred and Eighty-First made several gallant charges, driving the enemy before it, and securing the success of the expedition. In this Captain Wm. Ketteler, Captain L. H. Pummill, and First-Sergeant Leonard, of company G, distinguished themselves in maneuvering different detachments of the regiment.

On Saturday, December 24th, the regiment was assigned to the Third Brigade, Second Division, Twenty-Third Army Corps, and, after a fatiguing march, joined its command at Columbia, Tennessee, on the 29th. With the Twenty-Third Army Corps, on January 2, 1865, it was taken to Goldsboro', where it joined Sherman's grand army.

Under orders the regiment joined the Wilmington expedition, and proceeding up Cape Fear River to within four miles of Wilmington, was met by the returning iron-clads, with decks crowded by enthusiastic crews, who shouted the glad news that the city was captured and occupied by the National troops. Landing at Wilmington the regiment was subjected to severe marching through the hot sands of that inhospitable country.

In April the One Hundred and Eighty-First joined in the advance on Raleigh, North Carolina, and on the 13th was met with the glad news that General Lee and his whole army had surrendered to General Grant. On the 26th of April Johnston's army surrendered, and the war was ended. The regiment was shortly after sent to Baltimore, and thence to Camp Dennison, Ohio, where, on the 29th of July, 1865, it was paid off and mustered out, having been in the service nine months and a half, and traveled and marched four thousand one hundred and sixty miles.

182d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	LEWIS BUTLER.....	Oct. 25, 1864	Oct. 25, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel....	JOHN A. CHASE.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	WM. W. WEST.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Resigned January 24, 1865.
Do.....	AMOS WHISSON.....	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	MILTON VALENTINE.....	Oct. 29, 1864	Oct. 29, 1864	Discharged March 18, 1865.
Do.....	GEORGE CASSADY.....	March 31, 1865	March 31, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Asst Surgeon	ABRAHAM H. IGER.....	Oct. 19, 1864	Oct. 19, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	PETER WILLETT.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Discharged March 20, 1865.
Do.....	THOMAS S. THOMPSON.....	April 10, 1865	April 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Jesse Burk.....	Oct. 1, 1864	Oct. 1, 1864	Resigned March 28, 1865.
Do.....	Henry C. Romer.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Resigned May 26, 1865
Do.....	Amos Whisson.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Daniel A. Terry.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Warren W. Cooke.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. C. Coslet.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John Shelton.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alex. M. Lang.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. H. Shriver.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	On leave of absence.
Do.....	Charles A. Wright.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Resigned April 29, 1865.
Do.....	Irving A. Noble.....	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John S. Laver.....	May 2, "	May 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John W. Barkhurst.....	June 6, "	June 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Irving A. Noble.....	Oct. 1, 1864	Oct. 1, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John S. Laver.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John W. Barkhurst.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Isaac G. Stall.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George M. Young.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.....	Alfred F. Stoner.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Henry Pence.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Thomas Mitchell.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Resigned June 20, 1865.
Do.....	Elijah D. Leedom.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James Douglass.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Discharged November 28, 1864.
Do.....	Owen J. Hopkins.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Discharged March 2, 1865; disability removed.
Do.....	Wm. H. Wood.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.....	Ernest F. Lopez.....	Feb. 8, 1865	Feb. 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph L. Deputy.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Harvey B. O'Harra.....	May 2, "	May 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Owen S. Hopkins.....	June 30, "	June 30, "	Discharged March 2, 1865.
Do.....	Josiah N. Smith.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Robert H. Turiettan.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.....	George W. Brittingham.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Declined; commission returned.
2d Lieutenant	Ernest F. Lopez.....	Oct. 1, 1864	Oct. 1, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	James S. Merrett.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Resigned January 11, 1865.
Do.....	Joseph L. Deputy.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Harvey B. O'Harra.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Josiah N. Smith.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Robert H. Turiettan.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	George W. Brittingham.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Levi L. Couer.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John K. Pollard.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. H. McGrew.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Resigned March 12, 1865.
Do.....	W. H. Brooker.....	March 18, 1865	March 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Samuel D. Morse.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Lawrence Wamsley.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alfred L. Sargent.....	May 2, "	May 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	H. G. Patterson.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.

182d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was a one-year regiment. Five companies of it were recruited in the vicinity of Toledo, Lucas County, Ohio, and organized at Camp Toledo, by Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Chase. Under orders from the Adjutant-General of the State, these companies were taken by rail to Camp Chase, near Columbus, where five other companies were added, thus completing the regimental organization, October 28, 1864.

On November 1, 1864, under orders, the regiment moved by river and rail to Nashville, Tennessee, and by the 6th of November joined General Sherman's forces at that place. Having been sent to the field before it could be properly drilled, it was placed in camp at Nashville, and for some weeks the men were daily put through the most thorough drill, interspersed with guard and outpost-duty.

General Hood's Rebel army appeared before Nashville early in December, 1864. The One Hundred and Eighty-Second Ohio took a prominent part in the ensuing battle of Nashville, and behaved handsomely. It did not participate in the pursuit of the enemy, but was retained in Nashville, where it performed guard and provost-duty up to the 7th of July, 1865. It was then mustered out of service and sent home to Camp Chase, Ohio, where, July 13, 1865, the men were paid off and discharged.

The One Hundred and Eighty-Second Ohio was one of the last series of regiments raised in Ohio, and entered the field when little was left to be accomplished. Yet, whenever and wherever these regiments were brought in contact with the enemy, they proved themselves brave and competent, and on no occasion turned their backs upon the foe.

183d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	GEORGE W. HOGE.....	Nov. 16, 1864	Nov. 16, 1864	On special duty at muster out of regiment.
Lt. Colonel ...	MERWIN CLARK	" 12, "	" 12, "	Killed in action November 30, 1864.
Do.	AUGUST G. HARTEY.....	Dec. 21, "	Dec. 21, "	Resigned April 1, 1865.
Do.	JOHN LANO	July 10, 1865	Sept. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Major	AUGUST G. HARTEY.....	Nov. 10, 1864	Nov. 10, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	Wm. F. Scott.....	Dec. 21, "	Dec. 21, "	Resigned June 5, 1865.
Do.	COLUMBUS THORNTON.....	July 10, 1865	July 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon.....	CYRUS HOSACK.....	Nov. 12, 1864	Nov. 12, 1864	On special duty at muster out of regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	FRANCIS C. PLUNKETT.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	EDWARD F. BAKER	" 12, "	" 12, "	On special duty at muster out of regiment.
Chaplain.....	JOHN J. GEER.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Absent at muster out of regiment.
Captain	Wm. F. Scott.....	Oct. 10, "	Oct. 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Daniel Brisser.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Killed in action November 30, 1864.
Do.	John Lang.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	Columbus Thornton.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Christian Amis.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	W. P. Worth.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thaddeus Longstreth.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel Gusweiler.....	Nov. 1, "	Nov. 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph M. Jackaway.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Nichols.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Died January 14, 1865.
Do.	Seth V. Hunkle.....	Dec. 21, "	Dec. 21, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	Albert Seibert.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	George Foerster.....	Jan. 24, 1865	Jan. 24, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	Eden B. Reader.....	July 10, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Valentine Rapp.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Seth V. Hunkle.....	Oct. 10, 1864	Oct. 10, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Albert Seibert.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Foerster.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Eden B. Reader.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Valentine Rapp.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. V. Durand.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Nicol.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	On special duty at muster out of regiment.
Do.	Frederick Eberhart.....	Nov. 1, "	Nov. 1, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Heinget.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Discharged May 29, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Heinget.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	Jacob Jacobs.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Blajah B. Hill.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Resigned February 27, 1865.
Do.	Robert S. M. Bennett.....	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Samuel C. Hemphill.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Honorably discharged March 27, 1865.
Do.	John W. Durbin.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frederick Lutz.....	Jan. 24, 1865	Jan. 24, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. F. Drury.....	July 10, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Henry Eskel.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Lorenzo Spaeth.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Frederick Saeger.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Adam Wampool.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	Samuel C. Hemphill.....	Oct. 10, 1864	Oct. 10, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Durbin.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frederick Lutz.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. F. Drury.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Harry Van Bergen.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Resigned May 18, 1865.
Do.	Henry Eskel.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry C. Koogle.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Died June 27, 1865.
Do.	Lorenzo Spaeth.....	Nov. 1, "	Nov. 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frederick Saeger.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Adam Wampool.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James H. Linton.....	Jan. 24, 1865	Jan. 24, 1865	Resigned May 18, 1865.
Do.	Herman Groskordt.....	" 24, "	" 24, "
Do.	Wm. Fairland.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Resigned June 24, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Rockhill.....	July 10, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John Blohm.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Thomas Morris.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Ed. Cook.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	James Clyde.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Michael Wallach.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Chris. Reichel.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Anton Geiger.....	" 10, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Absalom Martin.....	" 10, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Serg't-Major.

183d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Dennison between the 10th of October and the 18th of November, 1864. Eight companies were recruited principally in Cincinnati, and the other two were from Warren and Logan Counties. About one-half of the men were Germans by birth or descent. Many of the officers and men had been connected with other regiments, and had distinguished themselves in numerous engagements by their gallantry and meritorious conduct.

On the 19th of November, with seven hundred officers and men present, the regiment left Camp Dennison, and arrived at Columbia, Tennessee, on the 28th. It was at once assigned to the Third Brigade, Second Division, Twenty-Third Army Corps, with which it remained during its entire term of service. When the army retired before Hood's forces on the 29th, the regiment, with the Forty-Fourth Missouri, was left at Spring Hill, within eight hundred yards of the enemy's camp-fires, to protect the road leading to Franklin. Skirmishing was kept up all night, and early in the morning the regiment moved, with the rear of the army, to Franklin, closely pursued by the Rebels. In the battle which ensued it acted a highly important part, and though but twelve days a regiment it occupied a position near the center, and sustained itself well against every assault of the enemy.

Fifteen days later, in the battle of Nashville, the regiment showed a commendable determination to retain its early won laurels, and was favorably mentioned in the official reports. The casualties in these two engagements amounted to over one hundred.

The regiment afterward moved with the corps to Clifton, on the Tennessee River, and thence by way of Cincinnati, Washington City, and Fort Fisher, to Wilmington, North Carolina. Advancing via Kingston it joined General Sherman's army at Goldsboro', and proceeded to Raleigh. After the surrender of Johnston the regiment moved to Salisbury, and during the month of June, 1865, received an addition of four officers and about two hundred men, who were transferred from the Fiftieth, One Hundredth, One Hundred and Third, One Hundred and Fourth, One Hundred and Eleventh, and One Hundred and Eighteenth Ohio Regiments.

The regiment was mustered out at Salisbury, July 17th, and proceeding to Columbus, Ohio, it was paid and discharged on the 27th of July, 1865.

184th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	HENRY S. COMMAGER.....	Feb. 22, 1865	Feb. 22, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	CHANDLER W. CARROLL.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	E. S. DODD.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	L. G. MEYER.....	" 18, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	ROBERT A. RICHARDSON.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	HENRY H. SHAW.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	EMMETT W. PRICE.....	April 24, "	April 24, "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Captain.....	Levi S. Jameson.....	Feb. 6, "	Feb. 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Allen.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph W. Wise.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. Douglas Moler.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George P. Davis.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. J. Widener.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Luman P. P. Folkert.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Simon Perkins.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John McNeil.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Barrett.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	George A. Ellis.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alex. M. Duck.....	" 11, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jerome Dubois.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M.
Do.	David A. Murphy.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	John Giller.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	On furlough at muster out of regiment.
Do.	Joseph A. Blair.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. W. Gerwig.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert Detwiler.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Resigned June 1, 1865.
Do.	Joseph McCreary.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Archibald McNair.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Died March 11, 1865.
Do.	Henry C. Canfield.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Bettis.....	March 3, "	March 3, "	Mustered out with regiment. [muster in.
2d Lieutenant	Harry Davis.....	Feb. 10, "	Feb. 10, "	Discharged by order of Sec. War from date of
Do.	Hiram Reed.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alonzo Langdon.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Chas. E. Warren.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harrison P. Taylor.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	On leave of absence at muster out of reg't.
Do.	Michael Steck.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank Hatton.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Resigned August 10, 1865.
Do.	Wm. F. Langdon.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Horton.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David H. Commager.....	March 15, "	March 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.

184th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was one of the regiments raised under the last call of President Lincoln, to serve for one year. It was organized on the 21st of February, 1865, at Camp Chase, and immediately after muster it received orders to move for Nashville without delay. It remained there a short time doing garrison-duty. From Nashville it proceeded to Chattanooga; thence to Bridgeport, Alabama, which point it reached about the 21st of March, and was engaged in protecting an important railroad bridge over the Tennessee River. It also guarded the track of the railroad between Bridgeport and Chattanooga, a distance of about thirty miles. In the performance of this duty detachments of the regiment, stationed in the block-houses and forts along the road, had frequent encounters with Rebel guerrillas and squads of Rebel cavalry. A number of prisoners were taken, at the expense of some few casualties.

On the 25th of July the One Hundred and Eighty-Fourth was ordered to Edgefield for garrison-duty, and remained at that place until it was mustered out of service, on the 20th of September. It at once proceeded, under orders, to Camp Chase, Ohio, and on the 27th of September, 1865, the men were paid and discharged.

The One Hundred and Eighty-Fourth, like the majority of the new one-year regiments, was composed of excellent material—the majority of the men having already served two and three years. Although the regiment did not participate in any general engagement, its conduct, and the previous history of its members, made it fair to presume that, had the opportunity offered, it would have acquitted itself with bravery and distinction.

185th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS
Colonel	JOHN E. CUMMINS.....	Feb. 26, 1865	Feb. 26, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	DENNIS H. WILLIAMS.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	HORATIO N. BENJAMIN	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	E. DILLON BOWERS	March 2, "	March 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	FOSTER BODLE.....	Feb. 24, "	Feb. 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	DOUGLASS BELL.....	March 22, "	March 22, "	Declined.
Do.	JAMES H. WELSH.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	George W. Bowers.....	Feb. 21, "	Feb. 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Milton McDowell.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James C. Millis.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Matthias D. Rodacker.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	"
Do.	James H. Sifers.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Resigned September 2, 1865.
Do.	John J. Vogelsang.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. R. Ramsey.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John G. Bell.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John F. Edmiston.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Luther Black.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Martin M. Andrews.....	Sept. 18, "	Sept. 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
1st Lieutenant	Horton Park.....	Feb. 21, "	Feb. 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George L. White.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Richard H. Osgood.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Bcymer.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Martin M. Andrews.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. S. Runyon.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	James Terry.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John L. Stelzig.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Paul.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Spencer Hall.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jacob C. Steele.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Resigned June 16, 1865.
Do.	Samuel J. Lamb.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James K. Frazier.....	July 24, "	July 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles F. Myers.....	Sept. 18, "	Sept. 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	James K. Frazier.....	Feb. 21, "	Feb. 21, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph W. Turney.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Romeo Gregg.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. C. Calland.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel W. Prugh.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Oliver P. Merion.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Michael W. Hammond.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John G. Searle.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas E. Shrieves.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Resigned May 13, 1865.
Do.	Silas D. Stearns.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles F. Myers.....	May 31, "	May 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Patrick Copeland.....	July 24, "	July 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George B. Hull.....	Sept. 29, "	Sept. 29, "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M. Serg't.

185th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-FIFTH was organized at Camp Chase, on the 26th of February, 1865, with an aggregate of one thousand and six men, one-half of whom were veterans. The field and staff, and many of the company officers, had seen active service in the field.

It left Camp Chase on the 27th of February, under orders to report to General Thomas at Nashville, but was detained at Louisville by General Palmer, who applied to General Thomas and obtained permission to retain the regiment in Kentucky. Regimental head-quarters were established at Eminence, Kentucky, and the companies were scattered through the State, from Owensboro' to Cumberland Gap. Cumberland Gap was guarded for several months by four companies of the regiment, Mt. Sterling was garrisoned by two companies, together with a detachment of the Fifty-Third Kentucky, all under the command of Major Benjamin, of the One Hundred and Eighty-Fifth Ohio. At this point a brigade of Rebels came in and surrendered. Shelbyville, La Grange, Lebanon, Greensburg, and several other towns were garrisoned at times by companies of the regiment. It was scattered so much that little opportunity was afforded for drill, but its duties were performed efficiently, and its discipline was such that no complaint was ever made of the conduct of the men. It had no opportunity of showing its fighting qualities, as the bubble burst soon after it entered the service. On the 26th of September the regiment was mustered out at Lexington, Kentucky, with an aggregate of eight hundred and eighty-nine men. It repaired to Camp Chase, and was discharged on the 2d of October, 1865.

186th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	THOMAS F. WILDES.....	March 1, 1865	March 1, 1865	Brevet Brigadier-General March 11, 1865.
Lt. Colonel.....	GEORGE WILHELM.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	WESLEY L. PATTERSON.....	Feb. 27, "	Feb. 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	W. H. MATCHETT.....	March 1, "	March 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	WM. HARGRAVES.....	Feb. 27, "	Feb. 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	T. M. COLEMAN.....	March 23, "	March 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	John Elder.....	Feb. 26, "	Feb. 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Roland C. Breyfogle.....	" 28, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jerre Hauser.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John L. Greene.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. F. Bloor.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Bramhall.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	Russell Carpenter.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Discharged August 26, 1865.
Do.	Charles Hebel.....	March 1, "	March 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Herman G. Nickerson.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Howard S. Lovejoy.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James E. Philpot.....	Feb. 26, "	Feb. 26, "	Honorably discharged August 28, 1865.
Do.	Charles T. Oldfield.....	June 22, "	June 22, "	On furlough at muster out of regiment.
Do.	Arthur O. Griswold.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward W. Cook.....	Sept. 10, "	Sept. 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant	Charles T. Oldfield.....	Feb. 26, "	Feb. 26, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Frank A. Rounds.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Absent at muster out of regiment.
Do.	Orlando H. Barker.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Salathiel E. W. Baker.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	Ezra L. Walker.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	Edward W. Cook.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Arthur O. Griswold.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Bramhall.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	Bennett F. Jackson.....	March 1, "	March 1, "	Resigned August 14, 1865.
Do.	Adolphus B. Frame.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert P. Wilson.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Resigned July 3, 1865.
Do.	Uriah Hoyt.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Shadrack Hubbell.....	June 22, "	June 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George B. Kelhofer.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Dougherty.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Mitchell.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert Macrider.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Reese E. Darlington.....	July 31, "	July 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Wm. Laird.....	Sept. 10, "	Sept. 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	John W. Knott.....	Feb. 10, "	Feb. 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. Laird.....	Feb. 26, "	Feb. 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Garrett.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Resigned July 19, 1865.
Do.	Shadrack Hubbell.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George B. Kelhofer.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Dougherty.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Reese E. Darlington.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Mitchell.....	March 1, "	March 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert Macrider.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Julius C. Schenck.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	John W. Knott.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Aaron Frantz.....	June 22, "	June 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward S. Cooper.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Discharged August 26, 1865.
Do.	Henry Haugbey.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Van Ostern.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jacob Bergen.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Discharged September 20, 1865.
Do.	Smith Egbert.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Demas Adams.....	July 31, "	July 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel B. McNally.....	Aug. 25, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Com. Sergt.
Do.	John A. Courts.....	Sept. 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Samuel H. McMillen.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	George W. Phillips.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.

186th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was another of the regiments raised under the last call of the President to serve for one year, and was composed of the loyal sons of Ohio, gathered from all parts of the State, the great majority of them having already seen arduous service. Of the officers of the regiment all but two had seen service.

It was twelve o'clock, on the 2d of March, 1865, when the last company of the regiment was mustered in at Camp Chase. At that time not a gun had been issued to the command, but when Colonel Wildes was asked how soon he could have his command ready to march, he answered "at two o'clock." At the appointed time the One Hundred and Eighty-Sixth Ohio moved out of its comfortable quarters, and by four o'clock P. M. was hurrying on its way toward Cincinnati, where it took boats for Louisville, and again taking the cars, was soon in Nashville. On the 8th of March it left Nashville for Murfreesboro', arriving on the 10th. The night of the 9th of March was one that will long be remembered by the men of the One Hundred and Eighty-Sixth. There was not a tent in the command. The Regimental Quartermaster had not yet been mustered in, and, of course, could not legally draw them even if there had been any in Nashville. It had rained and snowed during the day, and turned very cold at night. In all of their three years' previous service the men had never experienced such a night. The cold was intense, but not a word of complaint was heard.

The destination of the regiment was Cleveland, Tennessee, where it went into camp, and following the example of the old soldiers, soon erected comfortable quarters. It had been in camp but a short time, when Colonel Wildes received a commission as Brigadier-General by brevet for gallantry in the Shenandoah Valley, while Lieutenant-Colonel of the One Hundred and Sixteenth Ohio. The promotion was made at the request of his superior officers, among whom was General Sheridan.

On the 2d of May the regiment moved from Cleveland to Dalton, where it remained but a few days. General Wildes had in the meantime been assigned to the command of a brigade at Chattanooga, and at his request the One Hundred and Eighty-Sixth was transferred to his command. Adjutant Frame was detailed as A. A. G., and Lieutenant Kelhofer, company D., as A. A. D. C. During its stay in camp at Chattanooga, Lieutenant-Colonel Wilhelm had disciplined the men to such proficiency that the regiment was regarded as one of the best drilled of the command.

On the 8th of June Lieutenant Walker, Regimental Quartermaster, was detailed as Brigade Quartermaster, and his place in turn was filled by Lieutenant R. Macrider, of company I.

On the 20th of July the One Hundred and Eighty-Sixth was relieved from duty at Chattanooga and ordered to Nashville. This order returned General Wildes to the command of his regiment, as it did all other officers of the regiment on detached duty. Orders were received on the 13th of September, to prepare rolls for the muster-out of the regiment. On the 19th of the same month the regiment started for Columbus, Ohio, where it was paid off and disbanded on the 25th of September, 1865.

The One Hundred and Eighty-Sixth was never in an engagement, but it certainly was not its fault. It faithfully and earnestly performed every duty required of it, and doubtless would have "acted well its part" on the battle-field.

187th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	AND. R. Z. DAWSON	March 2, 1865	March 2, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel....	L. R. DAVIS.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	DANIEL A. RUSSELL.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	GEORGE MITCHELL.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Declined.
Do.	HENRY M. SHAFFER.....	April 17, "	April 17, "	Resigned June 13, 1865.
Do.	THEODORE H. PATTERSON.....	June 26, "	June 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	H. M. SHAFFER.....	March 4, "	March 4, "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	THEODORE H. PATTERSON.....	April 3, "	April 3, "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	Wm. B. SHAFFER.....	May 2, "	May 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	H. W. CARPENTER.....	July 15, "	July 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	W. B. DAVIS.....	April 20, "	April 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Wm. W. Cockley.....	March 1, "	March 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. P. Welsh.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Resigned June 13, 1865.
Do.	John Manuel.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter Hardman.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Resigned June 13, 1865.
Do.	J. Finley Harrison.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Resigned April 20, 1865.
Do.	Wm. C. Miller.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Baxter.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	August Greiff.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Trowsell.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Rigg.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Morrow.....	July 10, "	July 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph K. Guthrie.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Died September, 1865.
Do.	Wm. H. McClure.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Resigned August 31, 1865.
Do.	John C. Bybee.....	Nov. 4, "	Nov. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Littler.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Emery F. Malin.....	Jan. 20, 1866	Jan. 20, 1866	Mustered out with reg't as 1st Lt. and Adj't.
1st Lieutenant	Emery F. Malin.....	March 1, 1865	March 1, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John A. Anderson.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Resigned August 26, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Morrow.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph K. Guthrie.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. McClure.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. Bybee.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. Littler.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John N. Gallaher.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	Warner Hayden.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Adolphus Hildebrand.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alexander S. Thompson.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Resigned June 27, 1865.
Do.	Fennimore F. Fletcher.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Amos L. Sharpe.....	July 10, "	July 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Gaskill.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Resigned August 19, 1865.
Do.	Leroy S. Dibble.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John J. Langdon.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. M. Church.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry E. F. Yaley.....	Sept. 29, "	Sept. 29, "	Resigned December 13, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Althammer.....	Nov. 4, "	Nov. 4, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	John G. Barney.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Richard M. Miller.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	Amos L. Sharpe.....	March 1, "	March 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nathan C. Welsh.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	Napoleon B. Arthur.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Gaskill.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Leroy S. Dibble.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	B. G. Merrill.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Resigned June 10, 1865.
Do.	John J. Langdon.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. M. Church.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Althammer.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Allen B. Cockley.....	April 8, "	April 8, "	Resigned August 23, 1865.
Do.	John G. Barney.....	July 10, "	July 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry E. F. Yaley.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Richard M. Miller.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Britney.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Resigned December 13, 1865.
Do.	Oliver K. Shadrack.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Carl.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Resigned December 13, 1865.
Do.	Frank W. Blessing.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Easton.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	George G. Farley.....	Nov. 4, "	Nov. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Com. Serg't.
Do.	C. E. McGlothlin.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Revoked S. O. No. 326, 1865.
Do.	Robert Hildebrand.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Hicks.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Revoked S. O. No. 326, 1865.
Do.	Adam A. Rice.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. T. Patton.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Dwight K. Frost.....	Jan. 20, 1866	Jan. 20, 1866	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

187th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was one of the last full regiments recruited in Ohio, and was of that series of organizations authorized by the War Department to be mustered for one year. It was organized March 1, 1865, and left Columbus for Nashville, Tennessee, on the 3d of the same month. On its arrival at Nashville it was met by orders to report at Dalton, Georgia. Reaching that point the regiment went into camp, and attended to drill and discipline for about two months.

From Dalton the One Hundred and Eighty-Seventh marched to Kingston, and there received the paroles of two thousand Rebel soldiers, who had presented themselves at that place, claiming to belong to the surrendered armies of Johnston and Lee.

Marching back to Dalton the regiment went into camp for some thirty days, when, the railroad being repaired, it was placed on the cars and taken to Macon, Georgia. It performed provost-duty in Macon until its muster-out, in January, 1866. Shortly thereafter the regiment was sent home to Ohio, and finally paid off and discharged January 23, 1866.

188th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JACOB E. TAYLOR.....	March 4, 1865	March 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	JOHN C. FRANKENBERGER..	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	JACOB A. LEONARD.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	AUGUSTUS W. MUNSON.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	JOHN M. WHEATON.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	HANNIBAL LANDON.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	ISAAC H. BEARD-LEY.....	April 4, "	April 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Simon Sumpter.....	May 2, "	May 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John H. McGrath.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ed. C. Sanders.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Josephus Cunningham.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alexander McIntosh.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jerome B. Sharrette.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Resigned May 15, 1865.
Do.	John F. Kennedy.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Erniek J. Brauneis.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Resigned June 18, 1865.
Do.	Philip H. Smith.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John F. McCormick.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. F. Jackson.....	June 6, "	June 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George A. Knight.....	July 10, "	July 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	George A. Knight.....	March 2, "	March 2, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George E. Sanger.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel B. Barnes.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Warren F. Whinery.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Pickett.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edwin B. Putnam.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Benj. F. Jackson.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Frank M. Smith.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Voice.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Resigned June 13, 1865.
Do.	Otto Giegling.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry A. Baker.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas O. Adkins.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Sick in hospital at Nashville, Tenn., at muster
Do.	John Benedick.....	June 6, "	June 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew W. Doty.....	July 10, "	July 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	John Benedick.....	March 2, "	March 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Andrew W. Doty.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Rempler.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Discharged October 11, 1865.
Do.	Joseph B. Swobe.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles W. Baxter.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Levi Smith.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Sidney F. Sinclair.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Died April 2, 1865.
Do.	Franz Brauneis.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Resigned July 13, 1865.
Do.	John H. Hoffmeier.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Resigned June 23, 1865.
Do.	Wm. S. Dixon.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Ziemer.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thistle Bowman.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Revoked; commission returned.
Do.	Ransom D. Burton.....	July 10, "	July 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John M. Dachtler.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	M. Arthur.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry S. Kateukamp.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.

188th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-EIGHTH was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, on the 4th of March, 1865, and the same day received orders to report to General Thomas at Nashville, where it arrived on the 9th. It was assigned to duty under Brigadier-General Van Cleve, and ordered to Murfreesboro', Tennessee, where it remained two months, and was then ordered to Tullahoma. Here it remained two more months, under very strict discipline, and was then ordered to Nashville, where it remained on duty until it was ordered to be mustered out.

On the 21st of September the muster-out was completed, and the next day the regiment started for Camp Chase, where it arrived on the 24th, and was paid and discharged on the 28th of September, 1865.

189th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	HENRY D. KINGSBURY	March 6, 1865	March 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	JAMES McDERMOTT ROE.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	NORMAN WAITE	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	SIDNEY C. GORDON	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	L. S. B. OTWELL	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	CURTIS OTWELL.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Thomas Hewlett.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Miles Lathrop.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Josiah F. Blickensderfer.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Andrew Simon.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned July 29, 1865.
Do	Wm. Kinsey.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Charles D. Dennis.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Andrew J. Applegate.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Charles Blain.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Joseph Dunn.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned August 2, 1865.
Do	Andrew D. McClure.....	" 7, " "	" 7, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	James W. Sanderson.....	Sept. 4, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Wm. T. Ryan.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	James W. Sanderson.....	March 3, " "	March 3, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do	Wm. T. Ryan.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do	Lewis S. Winsch.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out May 26, 1865.
Do	Andrew M. Anderson.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do	Edgar Longsdorf.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	J. L. Simmons.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned June 8, 1865.
Do	Milton B. Deshong.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do	Erastus Hoadley.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Thomas A. Gorrill.....	April 8, " "	April 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	John H. Sellers.....	March 6, " "	March 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Reuben D. Burgess.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Albert L. Walker.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned July 19, 1865.
Do	Charles W. Haight.....	June 28, " "	June 28, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Frank Kostack.....	" 28, " "	" 28, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Adolphus H. Demuth.....	Sept. 4, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Palmer R. Lewis.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Henry S. Williams.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Charles W. Haight.....	March 3, " "	March 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do	Frank Kostack.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do	Adolphus H. Demuth.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do	Palmer R. Lewis.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do	Henry H. Dumont.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned September 12, 1865.
Do	Henry S. Williams.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do	Francis M. Fowler.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Andrew L. Cavender.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment. [Oct. 2, '65.
Do	John Schooley.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned Sept. 7, '65; order accepting revoked
Do	Sidney S. Alden.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	George F. Carl.....	June 28, " "	June 28, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Augustus Uhleman.....	" 28, " "	" 28, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	Howard Raines.....	Sept. 4, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	John F. McBride.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do	M. Lasure.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.

189th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-NINTH was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, on the 5th of March, 1865. Four of the companies were principally from the Tenth Congressional District, one company was from Cincinnati, one from Dayton, one from Georgetown, and one from Tuscarawas County, and the remainder from different portions of the State.

The regiment left Camp Chase on the 7th of March for Huntsville, Alabama, and arrived there on the 17th. Immediately on its arrival seven companies were stationed at various points on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, between Stevenson and Decatur, and were engaged in guarding bridges and building stockades. One company was posted at Whitesburg, one at Claysville and Gunter'sville, on the Tennessee River, and one remained at Huntsville. On the 20th of June the regiment was concentrated at Huntsville, and performed post-duty until September 25th, when it was ordered to Nashville, and there was mustered out. Immediately after muster-out the regiment proceeded to Camp Chase, Ohio, where it was paid and discharged on the 7th of October, 1865.

190th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

The organization of the One Hundred and Ninetieth Ohio was begun but not completed.

191st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	ROBERT L. KIMBERLY	March 9, 1865	March 9, 1865	Promoted to Brig. Gen. of vols. by brevet.
Lt. Colonel....	EDWARD M. DRISCOLL.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	NATHANIEL J. MANNING.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	JAMES W. WARFIELD.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	B. F. MCKINNON.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	GEORGE WILLIS.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	J. G. WISE.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	John L. Kelley	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Weimer.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out May 31, 1865.
Do.	Sumner T. Smith.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Spring.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George E. Richards.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter Dow	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Kinney	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out May 31, 1865.
Do.	John E. Tracey.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James G. Lawrence.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. T. Payne.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward A. Kitzmiller.....	July 5, "	July 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel D. Liminger.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Edward A. Kitzmiller.....	March 6, "	March 6, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David J. Thompson.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment as Reg't Q. M.
Do.	Samuel D. Liminger.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	J. Frank McGinnis.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John M. Dickerson.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James H. Stewart.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Allan W. Ball.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Peter Stamats	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James R. Jolley.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Nathan Thomas.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John G. Beymer.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John F. Hoffman.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Stephen B. Porter.....	July 19, "	July 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry Hensell.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Stephen B. Porter.....	March 6, "	March 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Wright.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out May 31, 1865.
Do.	Henry Hensell.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John H. Snoots.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry S. Doggett.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Discharged June 27, 1865.
Do.	Wilson W. Batch.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Timothy F. Deveny.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Zenas Keller.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. B. Erwin.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Leopold Pape.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Sanford Prater.....	July 19, "	July 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John M. Beelman.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel Laird.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Abram Deitrich.....	Aug. 25, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.

191st OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND NINETY-FIRST OHIO was organized at Camp Chase, March 10, 1865. In accordance with the custom then observed by the Governor, its field-officers were appointed from those officers of veteran regiments in the field whose services had been satisfactory. The officers appointed were: Colonel, Robert L. Kimberly, Brevet-Colonel United States Volunteers and Lieutenant-Colonel Forty-First Ohio; Lieutenant-Colonel, Edward M. Driscoll, Captain Third Ohio; Major, Nathaniel J. Manning, Captain Twenty-Fifth Ohio. Dr. J. W. Warfield, a surgeon of much experience in the South-Western Army, was made Surgeon; and among the line-officers were a number whose service dated from the commencement of the war. The men were superior, physically, to most of those sent out in previous years, having been subjected to a rigorous medical examination.

The regiment left Columbus on the day of its organization, fully armed, and with equipments nearly complete, under orders to proceed to Winchester, Virginia, and report to Major-General Hancock, then organizing the First Army Corps at that place. At Harper's Ferry the regiment was halted, by command of General Hancock, and ordered to report to Brigadier-General John R. Brooke, who was to form a new division. The remaining equipments of the regiment were procured here, with transportation, etc., and everything put in readiness for active operations.

The One Hundred and Ninety-First was made the nucleus of a brigade, and being, soon after arrival at Harper's Ferry, joined by the One Hundred and Ninety-Second, One Hundred and Ninety-Third, and One Hundred and Ninety-Sixth Ohio, the whole were put in command of Colonel Kimberly (whose commission as Brigadier-General of Volunteers by brevet was soon issued, to date March 10, 1865), and styled the Second Provisional Brigade. This designation was afterward changed to Second Brigade, Second Division, Army of the Shenandoah. Colonel Kimberly at once organized schools of instruction throughout the brigade, under strict superintendence of the regimental and brigade commanders, and officers and men were required to devote the principal portion of every day to learning their new duties. The progress made under this regulation was admirably rapid and thorough, and the good foundation of discipline thus secured made the "Ohio Brigade," as it was called, the object of special commendation from all quarters ever after. Upon review by General Hancock, on the 20th of May, having then been organized but about two months, and a great part of that time spent in marching, the brigade was complimented by that officer by special commendation among the various brigades of the army.

The surrender of Lee's army, soon after its arrival in the Shenandoah Valley, put an end to expectations that the One Hundred and Ninety-First would see active service in that section. It was expected that the brigade, which was in excellent condition, both as to outfit and discipline, and had become accustomed to camp life and duty, would be sent to Texas. Its only service, however, was garrison-duty in the valley, marching as far southward as Winchester, where it remained until its muster out, August 27th. The "Ohio Brigade" was the last to be mustered out in the Shenandoah Valley, being retained as the preference of the commanding officers of the army as long as any volunteers were kept in service there.

The One Hundred and Ninety-First Ohio reached Columbus, for muster out, on the 3d of September, 1865, and a day or two afterward was finally disbanded. Its discipline was equal to that of any veteran regiment, and its soldierly appearance and habits always attracted attention. Its material was unexceptionable, the men exhibiting remarkable aptitude and willingness to submit to the rigorous exactions of military service, while in physical appearance and capacity they were unexcelled.

192d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	F. W. BUTTERFIELD.....	March 10, 1865	March 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel....	CYRUS HUSSEY.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	WM. W. WILLIAMS.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	WM. S. PARKER.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	CALVIN B. HOLCOMB.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	H. B. MARTIN.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	J. K. FORD.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Resigned July 8, 1865.
Captain	Frank E. Pray.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaac W. Patrick.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James W. Titus.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert G. Lybrand.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James K. Bell.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out May 31, 1865.
Do.	Joseph W. Kepler.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Gayman.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Moses Louthan.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jefferson H. Darrah.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Albert Lionin.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Harpster.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Edward Wolcott.....	March 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	Enoch Shrigley.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Resigned June 3, 1865.
Do.	Thomas Harpster.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Isaac N. Dille.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harmer J. Higgins.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John R. Wolfe.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	George M. Scutchall.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Woodward.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. C. Woodrow.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thurston Reed.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Mustered out June 2, 1865.
Do.	H. A. Holdridge.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hieronimus Bode.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Silas E. Crawford.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Milton Hurley.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Ditto.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Silas E. Crawford.....	March 9, "	March 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton Hurley.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Ditto.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. R. Williams.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Honorably discharged June 3, 1865.
Do.	Lyman Hart.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out May 31, 1865.
Do.	Lewis Kahn.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel A. Lyons.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. W. McFadden.....	" 10, "	" 15, "	Resigned June 3, 1865.
Do.	Abner Williams.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Kuntz.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Resigned June 3, 1865.
Do.	James E. Lutts.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James M. Beiler.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John H. Stewart.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Noah Krout.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John M. Galbreath.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Milton Smith.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Dudley Arthur.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.

192d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND NINETY-SECOND OHIO was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, March 10, 1865, of men enlisted mostly in Hamilton, Highland, Allen, Huron, Hardin, Richland, Hancock, Van Wert, and Licking Counties.

The regiment started to the field March 12, 1865, arrived at Halltown, near Harper's Ferry, Virginia, March 16, 1865, and reported to Brevet Major-General John R. Brooke, commanding Provisional Division. The regiment was brigaded March 20th, with the One Hundred and Ninety-First and One Hundred and Ninety-Third Ohio, and they were denominated the Second Brigade, of the First Provisional Division. Strong picket-lines were maintained at this camp, and one or two instances of skirmishing occurred. Upon the 31st of March the division broke camp and marched through Charlestown, renowned for the execution of John Brown, the bands playing "Glory Hallelujah," and encamped about one mile beyond. On the 3d of April the One Hundred and Ninety-Second moved at daylight, under orders to relieve a regiment picketing the Shenandoah River, for three or four miles above and below Kabeltown, and about ten miles from the camp of the division. This was accomplished by 12 M., without loss, notwithstanding the enemy's forces occupied the opposite bank of the river. April 4th, under orders for concentration of troops at Winchester, for movement upon Lynchburg, the line on the river was abandoned and the troops moved to Winchester, via Berryville, and encamped one and a quarter miles north-west on the 5th. Before the army was put in march for Lynchburg, the capture of the Army of Northern Virginia obviated the necessity of the intended campaign, and the Army of the Shenandoah was distributed to different posts in the valley.

The Second Division, to which the One Hundred and Ninety-Second belonged, commanded by General Brooke, was stationed some time at Stevenson Station, and afterward near Jordan Springs. The One Hundred and Ninety-Second was ordered to Reed's Hill, forty-six miles above Winchester, May 23d, at which place the regiment encamped until ordered to be mustered out, except two companies, which were stationed at Harrisonburg, twenty-five miles above. There being no other troops above Winchester except those at Staunton, the care of this entire country, including Luray Valley, devolved upon the commandant of the One Hundred and Ninety-Second. These onerous duties were discharged to general satisfaction by Colonel Butterfield, and during his absence by Lieutenant-Colonel Hussey. In order to secure the protection of life and property over so large a territory, the punishments for crime were necessarily severe and summary. All offending persons were allowed trial and counsel, except a party of four guerrillas who attacked the forces after the surrender of the Rebels, two of whom, a Rebel Captain and Sergeant, were arrested and summarily executed at Reed's Hill, June 27th, at sundown, by order of Lieutenant-Colonel Hussey, commanding post, under peremptory instructions from Army and Department Head-Quarters. The other two eluded the party sent to arrest them and were afterward pardoned. The conduct of the men was exemplary, and very few complaints were made by citizens. The regiment started down the valley, under orders to be mustered out, August 25, 1865, and was mustered out at Winchester, Virginia, September 1, 1865. It arrived at Columbus, Ohio, at midnight September 3d, and was paid and discharged on the 6th of September, 1865.

The regiment stood high in the brigade and division for drill, discipline, and efficiency. All the field and the majority of the staff and line officers had served in the army previous to entering the One Hundred and Ninety-Second, and many in the ranks were scarred veterans who had faced the enemy on many bloody fields.

193d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	EUGENE POWELL.....	March 13, 1865	March 13, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Colonel.....	JOHN E. JEWETT.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	LUKE MURBIN.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	W. M. S. NEWTON.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Asst. Surgeon.....	J. P. WASTE.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Amrose Brown.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Columbus B. Mason.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Caleb W. Chrimpton.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Caleb M. Morris.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alexander Galde.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John W. McLaughlin.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Stephen F. Elwood.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James B. Crivston.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Hugh D. Dubois.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John A. Shaffer.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Eliphas Kissel.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles W. Russell.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.....	David F. Cropton.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles Stewart.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. H. Jackson.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Ezekiel Hutchins.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Zedekiah Wiseman.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph M. C. Barringer.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Jam's McCascon.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Martin B. Patterson.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John A. Shaffer.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Resigned June 6, 1865.
Do.....	Charles F. Stone.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John T. Matthews.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.....	Nelson Simmett.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment as Reg't Q. M.
Do.....	Michael Carr.....	July 30, "	July 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant.....	Robert C. H. Huggle.....	March 10, "	March 10, "	Mustered out May 31, 1865.
Do.....	Wm. H. Clark.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Michael Carr.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Eugene A. Stewart.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Detached at own request; must'd out with reg't.
Do.....	John S. Fidan.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David Fruits.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alfred H. Powell.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Addison H. Hottelling.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph F. Oldham.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Discharged May 22, 1865.
Do.....	Daniel P. Green.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Constantine Winegardner.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	C. W. Ashley.....	July 30, "	July 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M. Serg't.
Do.....	Wm. H. Scott.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Serg. Major.

193d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND NINETY-THIRD OHIO was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, and on the same day started for the Shenandoah Valley. The regiment was officered by men who had seen service, and some of the privates had been officers in other volunteer organizations. The regiment moved from Harper's Ferry to Halltown and Charlestown, and at the latter place was partly organized, with other regiments, into brigades and divisions. The organization was hardly completed when they were joined by veteran troops, and the entire command marched up the Shenandoah Valley to Winchester. Here the One Hundred and Ninety-Third remained until after the surrender of the Rebel armies, and until the order for muster-out was received.

The regiment exhibited such proficiency in drill that, on a general review, General Sickles selected the One Hundred and Ninety-Third to perform the provost guard-duty in Winchester, and it continued on that duty until the order for muster-out was received. The regiment was discharged at Camp Chase, Ohio, on the 9th of August, 1865.

194th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	ANSON G. McCOOK	March 14, 1865	March 14, 1865	Brevet Brigadier-General March 13, 1865.
Do.	O. C. MAXWELL	Oct. 22	Oct. 22	Brevet Brigadier-General March 13, 1865.
Lt. Colonel	O. C. MAXWELL	March 14	March 14	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	H. LEE ANDERSON	Oct. 22	Oct. 22	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	H. LEE ANDERSON	March 14	March 14	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	GEORGE BROPHY	Oct. 22	Oct. 22	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon	JOSEPH E. BARRETT	March 8	March 8	Resigned July 8, 1865.
Do.	THOMAS J. LIVERS	June 26	June 26	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	JACOB T. FRANKS	March 10	March 10	Discharged (physical disability) April 8, 1865.
Do.	THOMAS J. LIVERS	Oct. 10	Oct. 10	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	B. F. GRAHAM	July 15	July 15	Mustered out October 18, 1865
Captain	George Brophy	March 12	March 12	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John C. Class	Oct. 12	Oct. 12	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benjamin Martin	Oct. 12	Oct. 12	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Gillilan	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph D. Morri-on	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Killed by accidental shooting.
Do.	Wm. Sams	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. L. Wolverton	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Milton C. Peters	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alexander E. Holland	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry Lantz	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas A. Burns	Sept. 4	Sept. 4	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank M. Baker	Oct. 22	Oct. 22	Mustered out with reg't as 1st L't. & R. Q. M.
1st Lieutenant	Thomas A. Burns	March 12	March 12	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert B. Carter	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Franklin Rowley	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Resigned May 2, 1865.
Do.	Nicholas S. Toland	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Resigned October 2, 1865.
Do.	Wilson S. Dierman	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Resigned.
Do.	J. Addison Browne	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Resigned September 26, 1865.
Do.	Frank M. Baker	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Hanson R. Frederick	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Leonard T. Adkins	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Resigned June 30, 1865.
Do.	Wm. W. Buckley	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Mustered out October 18, 1865.
Do.	Robert B. Wilson	Oct. 16	Oct. 16	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Thomas J. Cook	Oct. 16	Oct. 16	Resigned August 11, 1865.
Do.	David Diltz	May 11	May 11	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward K. Hanscom	June 28	June 28	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. W. Thomas	July 24	July 24	Dismissed September 13, 1865.
Do.	David P. Guthrie	Sept. 4	Sept. 4	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Reuben Slavens	Sept. 4	Sept. 4	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Mitchell	Sept. 20	Sept. 20	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Sylvan B. Morris	Sept. 20	Sept. 20	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas E. Exby	Oct. 10	Oct. 10	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	John B. Sampson	Nov. 4	Nov. 4	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Joseph H. Mennick	Nov. 4	Nov. 4	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	David Diltz	March 12	March 12	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert W. Morgan	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Resigned July 12, 1865.
Do.	David P. Guthrie	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Cyrus B. White	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Resigned June 3, 1865.
Do.	Edward K. Hanscom	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. W. Thomas	Oct. 13	Oct. 13	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Reuben Slavens	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John C. Mitchell	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Anthony W. Bratton	Oct. 14	Oct. 14	Resigned July 12, 1865.
Do.	John Maple	Oct. 16	Oct. 16	Honorably discharged September 21, 1865.
Do.	Sylvan B. Morris	May 11	May 11	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas E. Exby	June 20	June 20	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John B. Sampson	Nov. 28	Nov. 28	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph H. Mennick	July 24	July 24	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Diltz	Sept. 4	Sept. 4	Mustered out with regiment as Com. Serg't.
Do.	Harrison S. Miller	Sept. 4	Sept. 4	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank Sidel	Sept. 4	Sept. 4	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Theophilus P. Berry	Oct. 10	Oct. 10	Mustered out with regiment as Serg't Major.
Do.	Henry P. Ashe	Nov. 4	Nov. 4	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M. Serg't.
Do.	Jasper Nally	Nov. 4	Nov. 4	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Serg't.
Do.	James W. Stephens	Nov. 4	Nov. 4	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Serg't.
Do.	George W. Cacher	Nov. 4	Nov. 4	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Serg't.
Do.	Wm. H. B. H.	Nov. 4	Nov. 4	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Serg't.
Do.	Frank H. Burnham	Nov. 4	Nov. 4	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Serg't.

194th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THE regiment was organized at Camp Chase, and left the State on the 14th of March, 1865. It was ordered to Charlestown, Virginia, and assigned to Major-General Egan's division, composed of one brigade of Eastern and one brigade of Western troops. The regiment was constantly engaged in drilling, and in making preparations for a move up the valley; but the surrender of Lee's army caused the division and brigade to be broken up, and the regiment was ordered to Washington City, where it remained, performing garrison duty, until October 24, 1865, when, being mustered out, it proceeded to Camp Chase for discharge.

195th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	HENRY B. BANNING.....	March 20, 1865	March 20, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel....	MARCELLUS J. W. HOLTER.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Brevet Colonel; mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	WM. H. FREE.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Bvt. Lieut.; mustered out with reg't.
Surgeon.....	JOHN DICKERSON.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	HUGH L. STRAIN.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	D. B. ELSON.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	JAMES W. BUSHONG.....	May 10, "	May 10, "	Absent at muster out of regiment.
Captain.....	Thomas D. Davis.....	March 14, "	March 14, "	Resigned September 21, 1865.
Do.	John E. McCormick.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment; bvt. Major.
Do.	John Ryan.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Van Horne.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John N. Davidson.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Died.
Do.	Hiram Meek.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. W. Rutherford.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James H. Prentiss.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George H. Playford.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward Vallant.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John E. Davis.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Trownsell.....	Oct. 16, "	Oct. 16, "	Absent at muster out of regiment
1st Lieutenant	John E. Davis.....	March 14, "	March 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Lyman Abbott.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew J. Roach.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Resigned October 31, 1865.
Do.	Henry B. Taylor.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. J. Rodman.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Resigned October 28, 1865.
Do.	John M. Gest.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Porter.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas H. Teaff.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry C. London.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George A. Ball.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles H. Babcock.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as Reg't Q. M.
Do.	James Trownsell.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jacob P. Fletcher.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James E. Myers.....	Oct. 16, "	Oct. 16, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Hiram H. Peppard.....	Nov. 4, "	Nov. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	John Leming.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Jacob P. Fletcher.....	March 14, "	March 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Francis M. Lutz.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Resigned October 31, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Hutchinson.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hiram H. Peppard.....	" 15, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles T. Goulding.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Resigned.
Do.	John Leming.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Harrison T. Massie.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	No discharge furnished.
Do.	James E. Myers.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Goshen.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew J. Herring.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Resigned November 2, 1865.
Do.	Charles S. Bergin.....	June 20, "	June 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas A. Mellor.....	Oct. 16, "	Oct. 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James McNary.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Clarkson S. Whitson.....	Nov. 4, "	Nov. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Hodson.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Joseph Norman.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaiah Van Horne.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

195th REGIMENT OHIO INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was of that series recruited for one year, in the early part of 1865. It started from Camp Chase with a strength of seven hundred and fifty-nine men, the majority of whom had seen service in other regiments. All of its officers were veterans. The regiment arrived at Harper's Ferry on the 25th of March, 1865, and, after doing garrison-duty there a few days, went into camp near Winchester, with the troops of General Hancock. While in this camp news of Lee's surrender was received, and the regiment was ordered to Alexandria, Virginia, where it performed provost guard-duty until December 18, 1865. It was then ordered up to Washington City, mustered out of the service, and sent back to Camp Chase, where the men were paid and discharged to their homes.

The One Hundred and Ninety-Fifth, like all of that class of one-year regiments recruited in the fall and winter of 1864-5, was composed of men who had fought throughout the whole of the war up to that period, and were, of course, fully conversant with all the duties of the soldier. When the regiment was recruited there was little if any indication that the rebellion was hastening to its end, and the officers and men fully expected to enter the field at "the front," and take part in many a sanguinary battle. In this they were agreeably disappointed, for, within two months after the regiment was mustered into the service, Lee and Johnston's armies had surrendered, Richmond was taken, and the "Confederacy" in a state of hopeless collapse.

The Roster of the One Hundred and Ninety-Fifth bears the honored names of such men as Banning, Free, Holter and others, whose fame is well-known all over our great State. These officers had participated in many a hard-fought battle of the war, and some of them bore upon their persons the evidences of their valor and of their attachment to the "Old Flag."

The rebellion ended, officers and men retired to their homes, well satisfied that they had "endured to the end," and that their beloved country, through their help, was once more settled down to the pursuits of peace and that "war's loud alarums" would no more disturb their slumbers.

196th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	R. P. KENNEDY.....	March 26, 1865	March 26, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel...	EBEN S. COE.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	THOMAS C. THORBURN.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	H. B. NOBLE.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	J. W. DRISCOLL.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	CHARLES J. SHIELDS.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Warren H. Wasson.....	" 21, "	" 21, "
Do.	Casper Blankner.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Honorably discharged April 20, 1865.
Do.	Wm. H. Gates.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George B. Kennedy.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Francis M. Baker.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Zadoc C. Andrews.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Renben C. Berger.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jabez C. Gazzey.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Resigned June 23, 1865.
Do.	Frank H. Determann.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Theodore M. Hughes.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wood F. Townsend.....	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Eli C. Northrop.....	July 10, "	July 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Pembroke M. Cowles.....	March 21, "	March 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wood F. Townsend.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Eli C. Northrop.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Albach.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. E. Dove.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James A. Brown.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Purdy.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Christian Hohn.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Reber.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	Alex. H. Turner.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James M. Thompson.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joshua M. Yen.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	James Campbell.....	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James H. Arbogast.....	July 12, "	July 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	James Campbell.....	March 21, "	March 21, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James H. Arbogast.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Josiah Coates.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel Lee.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. B. Brown.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James H. Wall.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out May 31, 1865.
Do.	Uriah J. Favorite.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank J. White.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Wenninger.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Eli Ohls.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas R. Bisbee.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John J. Musser.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George T. Bulger.....	July 25, "	July 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.

196th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment was organized at Camp Chase, Ohio, and mustered into the service on the 25th of March, 1865. It immediately started for Western Virginia, where it was assigned to the Ohio Brigade at Winchester. Here it remained until July, and gained the reputation of being a well-drilled and well-disciplined organization. In July it was ordered to Baltimore, and assigned to duty in the fortifications around the city; a portion of it being sent to Fort Delaware. On the 11th of September it was mustered out at Baltimore, Maryland, it being the last volunteer organization in that department.

Of the thirty-eight officers composing the field, staff, and line, there were only two who had not served over two years, and the majority had served during the war, in other organizations. More than two-thirds of the men in the One Hundred and Ninety-Sixth had belonged to other regiments, and had been honorably discharged for wounds, or expiration of term of service.

The men who composed the regiment were mostly young men, and as an organization it was probably excelled by but few in appearance, discipline, and soldierly bearing; and though the regiment was not entitled to inscribe on its colors the name of any engagement, still nearly every battle-field in the Union was represented in its ranks.

197th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, ONE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	BENTON HALSTEAD.....	April 15, 1865	April 15, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel...	GERSHOM M. BARBER.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	ROBERT HILL.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	W. G. BRYANT.....	March 31, "	March 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	GEORGE W. PEASE.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	AMOS LAWRENCE.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Jacob Bolard.....	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Alexander W. Diller.....	April 1, "	April 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Josiah J. Wright.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John W. Long.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Leonard B. Osbourn.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	A. Davis Owen.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles F. Sulliman.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Samuel P. Zehring.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Commodore W. Drake.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	E. L. Quick.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Thomas R. Bunton.....	March 28, "	March 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John V. Russell.....	April 1, "	April 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Newton McKee.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. L. Platts.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Harry W. Jones.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George W. Dawson.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George W. Grindler.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Albert H. Chambers.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Ebenzer Hancock.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.....	Richard D. Short.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M.
Do.....	Zenas J. Wheeler.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Edward J. Johnson.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	On detached duty at muster out of regiment.
2d Lieutenant	George W. Collier.....	March 28, "	March 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James W. Ware.....	April 1, "	April 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George W. Lavoie.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Jacob R. Ahlfelt.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John W. Moore.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Omer E. Andrews.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John Timmons.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John E. Connelly.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Evander Turner.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John M. Webster.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	On detached duty at muster out of regiment.

197th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS was not only the last regiment which Ohio sent to the field, but was also the last complete organization which the State raised for service during the rebellion. Of its officers all except five had seen active service in other commands, and nearly one-half of the men were experienced soldiers. The first company was mustered in on the 28th of March, 1865, at Camp Chase, and the organization of the regiment was completed on the 12th of April. It was recruited to a total strength of one thousand and six men, but by the casualties incident to organization and barrack-life its effective force was reduced to about nine hundred. On the 25th of April the One Hundred and Ninety-Seventh left Camp Chase and proceeded by railroad to Washington City, and on its arrival received the tidings of the surrender of General Johnston's army—dispelling every prospect of active service.

The regiment was temporarily assigned to the Ninth Corps, and on the 29th April marched through Alexandria and encamped two miles beyond. On the 9th of May, with the Two Hundred and Fifteenth Pennsylvania and One Hundred and Fifty-Fifth Indiana, it was incorporated in the Provisional Brigade, Ninth Army Corps. Two days later the brigade broke camp, marched to Washington, and embarked on cars for Dover, Delaware, and arriving on the 5th of May it encamped at Camp Harrington. Here the One Hundred and Ninety-Seventh spent four very pleasant weeks, enjoying the generous hospitalities of the loyal village of Camden, and engaged in the usual routine of camp duties.

On the 31st of May the regiment moved by rail to Havre de Grace, Maryland, was broken up into detachments, and performed guard-duty along the railroad southward to Baltimore. At the date last mentioned the regiment became a part of the Third "Separate Brigade," Eighth Army Corps. The regimental head-quarters were removed to Fort Worthington, near Baltimore, on the 3d of July, and at that time several companies were on duty as guards at the various forts, camps, and hospitals in and around the city.

The regiment re-assembled at Camp Bradford, near Baltimore, and on the 31st of July was mustered out of the service. It was paid at Tod Barracks, Columbus, Ohio, and was disbanded on the 6th of August, 1865.

198th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, AS FAR AS ORGANIZED.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Wm. H. Ward.....	April 17, 1865	April 17, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Amos L. Parks	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Perry Prentiss	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Myers.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. John.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Tanner.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry Bush.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alexander Bohlender.....	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Thomas R. Morrison.....	" 17, "	" 17, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew J. Rayner.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Horace A. Shaw.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edgar J. Woodward.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas D. Mann.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Azro J. Cory.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry Maloney.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Jasper N. Buckmaster.....	" 17, "	" 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. O. Robb.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James W. Black.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James D. W. Mandeville.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Nicholas Montag.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel P. Drake.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Win. T. Beatty.....	" 24, "	" 24, "	Mustered out with regiment.

198th OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THERE were eight companies of this intended regiment fully recruited and assembled in Camp Chase, all of which had been mustered into the service by companies, but not as an organization. Before the maximum was reached the "Confederacy" collapsed and the men were sent to their homes.

1st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	OWEN P. RANSOM.....	Aug. 17, 1861	Oct. 5, 1861	Resigned.
Do.....	MINOR MILLIKIN.....	Jan. 11, 1862	Jan. 11, 1862	Killed at Stone River, December 31, 1862.
Do.....	THOS. C. H. SMITH.....	Dec. 31, "	Feb. 6, 1863	Revoked.
Do.....	BEROTH B. EGGLESTON.....	April 1, 1863	April 10, "	Mustered out with regt. [Pres. Nov. 29, '62.
Lt. Colonel.....	THOMAS C. H. SMITH.....	Aug. 23, 1861	Oct. 5, 1861	Prom. to Col. Dec. 31, '62; app. Brig. Gen. by
Do.....	JAMES LAUGHLIN.....	Dec. 31, 1862	Feb. 6, 1862	Resigned April 1, 1863.
Do.....	VALENTINE CUPP.....	April 1, 1863	May 29, 1863	Died September 20, 1863.
Do.....	THOMAS J. PATTEN.....	Sept. 20, "	Jan. 25, 1864	Mustered out at expiration of term.
Do.....	STEPHEN C. WRITER.....	Dec. 9, 1864	Dec. 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	JOHN D. MOXLEY.....	Feb. 25, 1865	Feb. 25, 1865	A. A. G. at Camp Webster, Nashville, Tenn.
Do.....	WM. MCBURNEY.....	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	MINOR MILLIKIN.....	Aug. 24, 1861	Oct. 1, 1861	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	MICHAEL W. SMITH.....	Oct. 31, "	Dec. 6, "	Resigned June 10, 1862.
Do.....	E. B. DENNISON.....	Nov. 27, "	Nov. 27, "	Resigned June 20, 1862.
Do.....	R. S. SMITH.....	Jan. 11, 1862	Jan. 11, 1862	Revoked for non acceptance.
Do.....	JAMES LAUGHLIN.....	June 10, "	Aug. 5, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel
Do.....	BEROTH B. EGGLESTON.....	" 20, "	Oct. 5, "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	J. H. ROBINSON.....	" 1, "	" 5, "	Died.
Do.....	DAVID A. B. MOORE.....	Sept. 7, "	Dec. 16, "	Killed December 31, 1862.
Do.....	MARTIN BUCK.....	Dec. 31, "	Feb. 5, 1863	Revoked.
Do.....	VALENTINE CUPP.....	" 31, "	" 6, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	THOMAS J. PATTEN.....	" 31, "	March 31, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	STEPHEN C. WRITER.....	April 1, 1863	May 15, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	JAMES N. SCOTT.....	" 1, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	JOHN C. FRANKENBERGER.....	Sept. 20, "	Jan. 25, 1864	Mustered out.
Surgeon.....	RUDOLPH WIRTH.....	July 7, 1861	Nov. 4, 1861	Resigned May 23, 1862.
Do.....	JAMES T. ALCORN.....	May 23, 1862	June 3, 1863	Declined.
Do.....	JOHN CANNAN.....	Feb. 1, "	Aug. 21, "	"
Do.....	WILSON V. COWEN.....	Dec. 16, 1863	Dec. 16, 1863	Resigned October 4, 1864.
Ass't Surgeon.....	JOHN CANNAN.....	Oct. 10, 1864	Nov. 4, 1861	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.....	JOHN B. MCDILL.....	Aug. 21, "	Aug. 21, "	Mustered out.
Chaplain.....	J. M. DRAKE.....	Dec. 13, "	Dec. 13, "	Resigned May 23, 1862.
Captain.....	J. H. ROBINSON.....	Aug. 16, "	Sept. 6, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	James Laughlin.....	" 16, "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Nathan D. Menken.....	" 21, "	" "	Honorably discharged June 30, 1862.
Do.....	Andrew B. Emery.....	" 21, "	" "	Killed July 14, 1862.
Do.....	Berth B. Eggleston.....	" 29, "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Martin Buck.....	" 29, "	" "	Promoted; resigned February 1, 1863.
Do.....	David A. B. Moore.....	" 30, "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Valentine Cupp.....	Sept. 17, "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Thomas J. Patten.....	" 18, "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Stephen C. Writer.....	" 23, "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Thomas J. Forshel.....	Oct. 1, "	" "	Resigned June 6, 1862.
Do.....	James N. Scott.....	" 1, "	" "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	John C. Frankenberger.....	June 6, 1862	Aug. 8, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	George F. Conn.....	" 10, "	" 9, "	Resigned September 20, 1864.
Do.....	Michael J. Alkire.....	" 20, "	Oct. 6, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.....	John C. O'Hara.....	" 20, "	Dec. 5, "	Mustered out November 23, 1864.
Do.....	Samuel G. Hamilton.....	Sept. 7, "	" 16, "	Resigned.
Do.....	Noah Jones.....	Oct. 31, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Mustered out.
Do.....	James Citter.....	July 14, "	Feb. 6, "	Mustered out April 18, 1863.
Do.....	Robert S. Waddle.....	Dec. 31, "	" 6, "	Revoked.
Do.....	Lafayette Pickering.....	" 31, "	" 6, "	Mustered out.
Do.....	Samuel W. Fordyce.....	" 31, "	" 28, "	Resigned January 23, 1864.
Do.....	Albert E. Chester.....	Nov. 16, "	Aug. 25, "	Revoked.
Do.....	John D. Barker.....	Dec. 31, 1863	March 31, "	Resigned January 21, 1864.
Do.....	Leonard Erwin.....	April 18, "	May 29, "	Resigned September 24, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. Woodhief.....	" 22, "	" 29, "	Resigned September 24, 1864.
Do.....	Samuel N. Stanford.....	Dec. 2, 1862	July 10, "	"
Do.....	John P. Rea.....	April 1, "	May 29, "	Resigned November 24, 1864.
Do.....	John D. Moxley.....	" 1, "	" 29, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Wm. McBurney.....	Jan. 23, 1864	Jan. 25, 1864	Promoted to Major
Do.....	Wm. H. Scott.....	March 16, "	March 16, "	Killed in action.
Do.....	Jacob K. Kuhn.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Mustered out January 11, 1865.
Do.....	Alfred D. Lutz.....	" 23, "	" 25, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Chas. J. Shultz.....	" 23, "	" 25, "	Resigned September 12, 1864.
Do.....	Hugh H. Siverd.....	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John N. McElvaine.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Jonathan Carr.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Henry C. Reppert.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. Lawder.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	James Kirkendall.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	H. Kruendick.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph A. O. Yeoman.....	March 18, "	March 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph T. Reynolds.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John W. Laughlin.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment. [R. Q. M.
Do.....	David M. Heart.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut. and
Do.....	Jacob M. Sullenberger.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.....	S. L. Hooker.....	Aug. 16, 1861	Sept. 6, 1861	Resigned April 16, 1862.
Do.....	George F. Conn.....	" 16, "	Aug. 24, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Hestcome R. Kirby.....	" 21, "	Sept. 14, "	Resigned November 7, 1862.
Do.....	Philip Smizer.....	" 21, "	Oct. 5, "	Resigned December 25, 1862.
Do.....	S. S. L'Hommedieu, Jr.....	" 22, "	" 5, "	Mustered out June 13, 1862, as supernumerary.
Do.....	Michael J. Alkire.....	" 29, "	" 5, "	Resigned November 22, 1865.
Do.....	Carey A. Doggett.....	" 29, "	" 5, "	Resigned June 20, 1862.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Samuel G. Hamilton.....	Aug. 30, 1861	Oct. 5, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. Frankenberg.....	Sept. 11, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out June 14, 1862, as supernumerary.
Do.	Lafayette Pickering.....	" 17, " "	" 5, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John D. Barker.....	" 18, " "	" 5, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ralph M. Houston.....	" 23, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned March 12, 1862.
Do.	James Cutler.....	Oct. 1, " "	" 5, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John D. Moxley.....	" 1, " "	" 5, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John M. Pratt.....	" 10, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out June 13, 1862, as supernumerary.
Do.	George P. Laird.....	" 25, " "	Dec. 6, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Llewellyn Wynne.....	" 30, " "	Nov. 1, " "	Lieutenant-Colonel 4th Kentucky Cavalry.
Do.	Henry Topping.....	" 30, " "	" 14, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	James M. Allen.....	" 10, " "	Dec. 9, " "	Resigned January 28, 1862.
Do.	Moses H. Neill.....	Dec. 9, " "	" 9, " "	Resigned June 16, 1862.
Do.	Chas. W. Doty.....	Jan. 9, 1862	Jan. 9, 1862	Resigned.
Do.	Wm. McBurney.....	Feb. 19, " "	Feb. 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John P. Rea.....	March 12, " "	March 12, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Leonard Erwin.....	April 11, " "	June 24, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Noah Jones.....	" 16, " "	" 24, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Peter B. Cool.....	June 16, " "	Aug. 9, " "	Discharged October 1, 1862.
Do.	Robert L. Waddle.....	" 20, " "	" 9, " "	Discharged February 9, 1863.
Do.	Samuel W. Fordyce.....	" 10, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John G. O'Harra.....	" 20, " "	Oct. 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert C. Manley.....	" 20, " "	Dec. 5, " "	Resigned.
Do.	Wm. H. Scott.....	Oct. 1, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel N. Stanford.....	Nov. 7, " "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Albert E. Chester.....	Oct. 31, " "	" 20, " "	Discharged February 4, 1864.
Do.	Joseph H. Pierce.....	Dec. 31, " "	Feb. 6, " "	Resigned August 9, 1863.
Do.	Samuel H. Putnam.....	Sept. 7, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned October 29, 1863.
Do.	Alfred D. Lutz.....	Feb. 1, 1863	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Chas. J. Shultz.....	Dec. 31, 1862	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. L. Curry.....	" 31, " "	March 31, 1863	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. F. Bryson.....	April 1, 1863	May 29, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Hugh H. Siverd.....	" 1, " "	" 29, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Amos D. Leib.....	" 18, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	David A. Reusch.....	Jan. 1, " "	June 26, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Jacob K. Kuhn.....	Dec. 12, " "	July 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John N. McLivaine.....	Nov. 16, 1862	Aug. 25, " "	Revoked.
Do.	John N. McLivaine.....	March 1, 1864	March 1, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry C. Reppert.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James Kirkendall.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jonathan Carr.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Martin V. Hiza.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Resigned October 1, 1864, as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Lawler.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Allen F. Overly.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out November 25, 1864.
Do.	H. Krumpholtz.....	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Keyes.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Honorably discharged as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Ferguson.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out November 25, 1864.
Do.	Edwin L. Hall.....	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	M. T. C. Williams.....	Dec. 14, " "	Dec. 14, " "	Mustered out at expiration of service.
Do.	Joseph A. O. Yeoman.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph T. Reynolds.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John W. Laughlin.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David M. Heart.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jacob M. Sullenberger.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thaddeus Scott.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert K. Beece.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert B. Rhodes.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out May 15, 1863, as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Brooks.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert Johns.....	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel M. Thayer.....	" 6, " "	" 5, " "	Sick in hospital at Macon, Georgia.
Do.	James Moore, Jr.....	March 18, " "	March 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Martin V. Little.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James C. Caldwell.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Wm. Davis.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Resigned June 28, 1865.
Do.	Chas. H. Goodrich.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	"
Do.	George V. Ward.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew L. Small.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Andrew M. Bard.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank P. Allen.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Died May 2, 65, from wounds rec'd. in action
Do.	Daniel W. Dye.....	July 24, " "	July 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry E. Rector.....	Aug. 15, " "	Aug. 15, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant	Noah Jones.....	Aug. 16, 1861	Sept. 6, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel W. Fordyce.....	" 16, " "	Aug. 24, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel N. Stanford.....	" 21, " "	Sept. 14, " "	Resigned April 25, 1862.
Do.	Leonard Erwin.....	" 21, " "	Oct. 5, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Erastus K. McNeil.....	" 29, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned December 12, 1861.
Do.	Robert L. Waddle.....	" 29, " "	" 5, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ira Stevens.....	" 30, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned November 7, 1862.
Do.	Henry G. Ward.....	Sept. 17, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned February 9, 1862.
Do.	Oscar H. Underwood.....	" 18, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned May 29, 1862.
Do.	John P. Rea.....	" 23, " "	" 5, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Abram F. McCard.....	Oct. 1, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned June 15, 1862.
Do.	John M. Rinnick.....	" 1, " "	" 5, " "	Died May 28, 1862.
Do.	John G. O'Harra.....	Jan. 9, 1862	Jan. 9, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Peter B. Cool.....	Feb. 9, " "	March 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Scott.....	June 10, " "	Aug. 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Woodruff.....	April 11, " "	" 24, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel N. Stanford.....	July 2, " "	July 2, " "	Resigned January 1, 1863.
Do.	Albert E. Chester.....	April 16, " "	June 24, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	T. L. Condit.....	May 29, " "	Aug. 9, " "	Killed December 31, 1862.
Do.	Arthur Watts.....	" 28, " "	" 9, " "	Discharged December 20, 1862.
Do.	Joseph H. Pierce.....	June 16, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert C. Manley.....	" 20, " "	Oct. 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. L. Curry.....	" 16, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. F. Bryson.....	Sept. 1, " "	" 24, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Amos D. Leib.....	Nov. 20, " "	Nov. 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel H. Putnam.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alfred D. Lutz.....	June 20, " "	Dec. 5, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hugh H. Siverd.....	Oct. 1, " "	Oct. 1, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. J. Shultz.....	Dec. 20, " "	Feb. 6, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John N. McLivaine.....	Oct. 31, " "	Jan. 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob K. Kuhn.....	Nov. 7, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Henry C. Reppert	Dec. 31, 1862	Feb. 6, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David A. Roush	31, " "	6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jonathan Carr	April 1, 1863	May 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Kirkendall	Jan. 1, " "	Feb. 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Martin V. Hagh	Dec. 31, 1862	March 31, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Lawder	April 22, 1863	June 26, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Allen F. Overly	" 1, " "	" 26, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Keyes	" 1, " "	" 26, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieut.; hon. dis. July 1, 1864.
Do.	Henry Ferguson	" 18, " "	" 26, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin L. Hall	Jan. 1, " "	" 26, " "	Discharged September 11, 1864
Do.	Carter Riggs	" 1, " "	" 26, " "	Resigned June 18, 1864.
Do.	Charles W. Florence	Dec. 2, " "	July 19, " "	Resigned April 17, 1864.
Do.	Jonas Thornton	Aug. 1, " "	Aug. 24, " "	Revoked.
Do.	Robert B. Rhodes	Dec. 9, " "	Feb. 29, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Marcus T. C. Williams	March 1, 1864	March 1, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph A. O. Yonman	Jan. 29, " "	" 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph T. Reynolds	March 23, " "	" 23, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Laughlin	July 30, " "	July 30, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry E. Rector	March 18, 1865	March 18, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George P. Barnes, sr.	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter B. Cool	Aug. 15, " "	Aug. 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

FIRST OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

THIS regiment was organized during the latter part of the summer of 1861, under the first call of President Lincoln for the three-years' service. Its place of rendezvous was Camp Chase, near Columbus, Ohio. The officers were mustered into the service from the 1st of August to the 1st of October, as occasion required, and the regiment, as a whole, on the 5th of October, 1861.

It being the first organization of its class raised in the State, there was at once manifested a great anxiety to join its ranks. This fact enabled the recruiting-officers and the Surgeon of the regiment to discriminate largely in the selection of men. It may well be doubted whether more applicants were ever rejected from a similar organization in the service, or if a nobler band of men in physical development could possibly have been selected from the yeomanry of Ohio.

The strictest military discipline was at once inaugurated. Each company, as soon as settled in quarters, was required to perform its regular routine of duty. The officers, many of whom had never before seen a cavalry regiment, were placed under instruction, and required to drill their men once a day. At night an officers' school was held, at which all officers were required to appear, and progress was demanded of each.

About the middle of September, 1861, companies A and C, under command of Captain Robinson, of company A, were ordered to Western Virginia, whence, after performing considerable service in that department, they were ordered to the Shenandoah Valley, and attached to the commands of Shields, Bauks, and Kilpatrick. They participated in many of the sanguinary engagements around the capital, and did not return to the regiment until January, 1865.

On the 1st of October company B was ordered to report to General Mitchel's headquarters, in Cincinnati, where it remained on duty for some weeks. While in Cincinnati it was fully equipped and sent on an expedition into Kentucky, where it had a sharp skirmish with a portion of Colonel Humphrey Marshall's command at West Liberty. Lieutenant Fordyce and several men were wounded. This company rejoined the regiment at Louisville, Kentucky, in December.

On the 9th of December the regiment broke camp and proceeded by rail and steamboat to Louisville, where it arrived on the morning of the 11th, the first regiment of cavalry to enter that department. This was the nucleus of that host of cavalry which, under the leadership of Stanley, Crook, Mitchel, McCook, Kilpatrick, Garrard, Long, Minty, and Wilson, achieved such triumphs for the country and fame for themselves. The magnitude of such conflicts as Pittsburg Landing, Stone River, Chickamauga, Mission Ridge, and Atlanta, mostly fought by other arms of the service, equally brave, but not superior, have so occupied the public mind that the achievements of the cavalry—its fearless rides, its daring raids, its bloody charges, its long nights of weary marching, as it carried desolation and destruction into the very heart of treason—have been almost overlooked. The story of the cavalry of the South-west is a record of heroic achievements unsurpassed in the annals of that service.

The regiment remained at Louisville until the 16th of January, during which time Colonel O. P. Ransom resigned his commission. Orders were received to join General Thomas at Somerset. After four days' marching a junction was effected at Lebanon, Kentucky, where the regiment went into camp. The victory of Mill Springs had been achieved a few days before. While in this camp the regiment was actively engaged in keeping the country clear of Rebel guerrillas, who had infested that region for several months previous. Among other Rebel parties a detachment of the notorious John Morgan guerrillas was encountered and severely handled.

On the 12th of February Lieutenant-Colonel T. C. H. Smith resigned his commission, and was relieved by the former senior Major, now newly commissioned Colonel, Minor Millikin. On the 14th the regiment moved to Louisville; on the 28th embarked on transports for Nashville, Tennessee, and arrived on the 6th of March, the city having been entered by the army from Bowling Green, Kentucky, some days previous. The regiment lay in camp near Nashville until the 14th of March, when it took the advance of the column moving toward Columbia, encountering and putting to flight, near that place, the rear-guard of the enemy. The bridge over Duck River was burned by the fleeing Rebels, thus retarding the column for some two weeks. A battalion of the First Cavalry, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Smith, forded the river and occupied the town, situated on the south bank.

The regiment marched through to the Tennessee River with General Thomas's division, arriving at Pittsburg Landing just after the battle of that name had ceased. It participated in the advance upon Corinth, having frequent skirmishes with the enemy, and after the evacuation it joined in pursuit of Beauregard's army, going as far as Booneville. During this pursuit it had four sharp engagements with the enemy, with, however, but little loss.

On the 7th of June, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Smith, the regiment made a reconnoissance thirty miles into the interior, avoiding all bodies of troops, and gaining much valuable information. It returned to camp near Booneville on the same evening. This reconnoissance closed the connection of Lieutenant-Colonel Smith with the regiment. He was, on the 10th of June, detailed for duty on the staff of Major-General Pope, as Inspector-General.

On the 12th of June the First returned to Corinth, where it remained for about a week. While lying at this camp several officers resigned. On the 17th the regiment moved eastward to guard the line of the Mobile and Charleston Railroad; two companies (L and M) under command of Captain Patten, were stationed at Bear Creek, near Iuka; four companies (R, D, G, and H), under Colonel Milliken, at Tusculumbia, the head-quarters of General Thomas; the remainder of the regiment, under Captain Eggleston, proceeded twenty-five miles further east, to Courtland. Company I, under Captain Writer, was sent to Decatur, the point at which the road crosses the Tennessee River. In this way the regiment was constantly engaged in scouting, and keeping the country clear of bushwhackers and guerrillas.

A detachment from Tusculumbia, under command of Captain Emery, had a severe engagement, about the 1st of July, with Roddy's Rebel command, while on a scout near Russellville, Alabama. Although successful the detachment suffered severely, losing among others, Captain Emery, mortally wounded.

On the 15th of July Captain Writer, with thirteen men of company I, while on a scout with Colonel Streight, Fifty-Seventh Indiana, some distance south of Decatur, and while detached from the infantry, were attacked by a superior force of Rebel cavalry under General Anderson. Two of the men were captured and four wounded. Through the sagacity and bravery of Sergeant (afterward Captain) Sullenberger the party succeeded in making its way back to Decatur. Captain Writer was severely wounded.

On the 25th of July Courtland was attacked by a large force of Rebel cavalry under General Anderson. Two companies of the Tenth Kentucky Infantry, and companies E and K of the First Ohio Cavalry, commanded by Captain Eggleston, engaged the enemy and held out for a considerable time, but were compelled to retire, the enemy having captured the infantry, Captain Eggleston, and twenty-one of the cavalry. The remnants of the First Cavalry reached Decatur on the 26th, whence, together with company I (stationed there), they were marched through to Athens, Alabama, rejoining the regiment on the 30th of July.

On the 1st of August the regiment started for Decherd, Tennessee, arriving there on the 5th. On the 17th Colonel Millikin, with six companies, moved to McMinnville, while the other four, under Captain Patten, were sent on a scout to Fayetteville, where, on the 19th, Lieutenant Rea, of company I, and six men, were captured while on a reconnoissance. Captain Patten, on his return, was assigned, with his battalion, to duty at General Crittenden's head-quarters, in which capacity they made the march to Louisville, Kentucky, as a portion of Buell's army. Considerable skirmishing occurred on the way. Major Laughlin, with companies F and K, had joined them at Bowling Green. Colonel Millikin, with the first battalion, marched through to Louisville with Major-General Thomas's head-quarters, arriving some days in advance of the other detachments. Colonel Millikin's battalion moved from Louisville on the 2d of October, in advance of General Schœpf's division, and on the 3d captured twenty-five prisoners in an engagement near Shepherdstown, arriving at Springfield, fifty-five miles south of Louisville, on the 6th. This battalion also took the advance on the Perryville road, carrying it with great gallantry.

On the day after the battle of Perryville the regiment was united, and remained so until its final discharge, a period of three years.

Major Laughlin's detachment left Louisville on the 2d of October, taking the advance on the Bardstown Pike, and marching directly on that place. At a point nine miles from Bardstown the enemy was met. Sharp skirmishing was continued to within one mile of Bardstown, when the enemy made a determined stand, and for a time repulsed our cavalry. An hour later they rallied and charged into the town. The loss was twenty-five killed and wounded. That of the Rebel cavalry was heavy, but not ascertained. In Bardstown a number of prisoners were captured with a large amount of army stores. This detachment also participated in the battle of Perryville, with slight loss. The regiment pursued the enemy up to Crab Orchard, with brisk skirmishing at Harrodsburg and Sanford.

The Rebel General Morgan and his band of guerrillas becoming troublesome, the First Ohio Cavalry, in connection with the First Kentucky Cavalry, was sent northward from Crab Orchard in pursuit, and followed him many miles through the center of the State. Reaching Bowling Green in the early part of November it was thrown into a brigade composed of the First and Third Ohio Cavalry, and Second and Fifth Kentucky Cavalry, commanded by Colonel Zahm, of the Third Ohio. Moving southward, this brigade encountered Morgan's command of twenty-five hundred men at Gallatin, Tennessee, routing it, and capturing seventy-five prisoners. Thence it marched via Hartsville to Nashville, where it arrived about the middle of November and went into camp.

The next service of the First Cavalry was in the advance of our forces under General Rosecrans, on Murfreesboro', Tennessee. While the regiment lay in camp in the vicinity of Nashville it was sent on several scouts and expeditions, frequently encountering the enemy, and with uniform success. When not engaged in these expeditions Colonel Millikin, its able commander, filled up the time in perfecting the drill and discipline of the men, which, for the preceding ten months, had necessarily been much neglected. When called upon to take its part in the Stone River campaign the regiment was found to be in a condition to perform most effective and valuable service.

In the advance on Murfreesboro' the regiment still formed a part of Colonel Zahm's brigade in addition to the Third and Fourth Ohio, and Second Kentucky Cavalry, and moved out on the Franklin Pike, reaching that town in the afternoon, and routing the Rebel force stationed there. On the 27th December it had a skirmish at Triune, and on the 29th, while moving toward Murfreesboro', encountered and defeated Wharton's brigade of Rebel cavalry. On the evening of the same day the brigade and regiment took position upon the extreme right of the army, and held it throughout the struggle. The 30th was spent in skirmishing. When the disaster of the 31st occurred the brigade covered the retreat of our infantry, falling back slowly, contending for the ground until near the Murfreesboro' and Nashville Pike. It was then perceived that to permit the enemy to pass that point would prove ruinous. Colonel Millikin, having received no orders from his brigade commander, took the responsibility of sending orderlies to the various regimental commanders of the brigade, requesting them to support him in a saber-charge upon the advancing foe. Seeing that instant action was necessary, and without waiting for a response, Colonel Millikin wheeled his regiment into line and threw it with irresistible power upon the enemy, driving those in his immediate front a distance of a quarter of a mile. Not receiving the expected support, the enemy rallied and closed in on his rear, making his position one of extreme peril. He was absolutely fighting the victorious left wing of the Rebel army with a force not exceeding three hundred men. Perceiving that the safety of his men demanded their immediate extrication, the "about" was sounded, and the chivalrous little band cut its way through the lines formed across its rear.

The First Cavalry fell back from the field of its glory, where it had made one of the most heroic charges of the war, with saddened hearts, for, weltering in his life's blood, in the midst of that carnage, lay its young and gallant commander, Colonel Minor Millikin. Justice never lost a more faithful champion, nor his country a more promising genius or heroic son. Fame, on the list of her favored ones, has few younger and no brighter names. Had Minor Millikin's life been spared—but we dare not say it! He lived long enough to die for his country, and who would or could ask a more glorious destiny? He was mourned by his comrades as the brave mourn for the brave.

The regiment lost on this day, besides its Colonel, Major D. A. B. Moore and Lieutenant Condit, killed; Adjutant Scott and Lieutenant Fordyce, wounded; and a long list of non-commissioned officers and privates—unnamed, but heroes of undying fame.

On the death of Colonel Millikin the command of the regiment devolved upon Major Laughlin, under whom it continued to fight until the victory of Stone River was complete.

After the battle, and retreat of Bragg's army, the First Cavalry was moved back toward Nashville ten miles, and went into camp at and near Lavergne, protecting the line of communication, until the middle of June, 1863, when it was ordered to Murfreesboro' to join its old brigade (the Second Brigade, Second Division of Cavalry), now commanded by Colonel Eli Long, of the Fourth Ohio Cavalry.

On the 24th of June the brigade moved on the extreme left of the army in its advance on Tullahoma, and on the 1st of July it entered that place, under command of Major Patten, after heavy skirmishing, in advance of General Steedman's brigade. From thence Colonel Long, with his brigade, started on an expedition into Northern Alabama, making a detour of about one hundred and fifty miles, through Huntsville, Athens, Pulaski, and Fayetteville. He returned to Winchester on the 3d of August, having captured several hundred horses and mules, destroyed large quantities of Rebel stores, and administered the oath to thousands of "repentant" Rebels.

On the 19th of August the regiment, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Cupp, in company with the brigade, commenced its march over the Cumberland Mountains, encamping, on the 23d, on the banks of the Tennessee, near Stevenson, Alabama; and on the 29th, in company with the Third Ohio and Second Kentucky Cavalry, forded the river, making a successful raid upon Trenton, Georgia, capturing a number of prisoners and a large quantity of stores. On the return the north side of the river was reached on the 31st of August. Recrossing to the south side on the 2d of September it moved, under Major-General Stanley, across the Sand and Look-out ranges, in the direction of Rome, Georgia, within twenty-eight miles of that place, in Broomtown Valley. Long's advance brigade encountered a large force of the enemy, and after an engagement of one hour drove the Rebels from their position. The loss was ten men killed and wounded. By means of a reconnoissance toward Lafayette, Georgia, it was found that the Rebels were in force near that place, and operations in that quarter, being impracticable, the cavalry moved northward toward Chattanooga to take a part in the great struggle at Chickamauga.

On Sunday, September 19th, at ten A. M., the First Ohio Cavalry arrived on the Chickamauga battle-field, and was immediately led into the fight on the right, where it was occupied in heavy skirmishing up to noon of that day. Through some misapprehension, at this hour, Lieutenant-Colonel Cupp was ordered to charge the enemy's line, and with drawn sabers the little band of not over two hundred and fifty men (four companies being temporarily detached to guard a ford) were starting across the intervening space to precipitate themselves upon the foe, when the mistake was discovered and the order countermanded. One moment more and scarcely a man could have returned. The regiment was saved, but not without the loss of its brave and dashing commander, and one-fifth of the rank and file, among the killed, wounded, and missing. The loss of Lieutenant-Colonel Cupp was a severe blow to the regiment. He was universally beloved, and was brave to a fault. The command now devolved upon Major T. J. Patten, under whom the First Ohio fell back into Chattanooga, where it arrived on the 22d September, after a narrow escape from being captured.

On the 26th of September General Crook's division, of which the First Cavalry formed a part, was dispatched to guard the Tennessee River from Chattanooga to Washington, in East Tennessee, a line of fifty miles in length. The First was stationed at Washington. On the 1st of October the Rebel General Wheeler, with eight thousand cavalry, broke through General Crook's lines, necessarily weak from their great length. The Rebel advance was met by a battalion of the First Cavalry, under Major James Scott, and a severe engagement followed, in which Captain Conn of company B was wounded, and twenty-five men of the battalion were wounded and captured. The overwhelming force of the Rebels compelled them to retire, after bravely contesting the ground. The Rebels advanced rapidly over the mountains toward McMinnville, with a view of capturing Murfreesboro'

General Crook hastily gathered up his scattered command and made hot pursuit, and so vigorous was the chase that the Rebels dared not tarry long enough in any one place to effect any damage. In this brilliant campaign the First Cavalry shared all its dangers, privations, and triumphs.

On the 10th of October the Rebels succeeded, with but a remnant of the overwhelming force that crossed the Tennessee River in triumph eight days before, in recrossing that stream at Lamb's Ferry, near Florence, Alabama. They were weakened, disheartened, and demoralized; they had lost their artillery, and more than a thousand prisoners, and had been five times routed by a force less than half their numbers.

From Florence the First Cavalry marched via Pulaski, Fayetteville, and Winchester, to Paint Rock Station, on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, twenty-five miles west of Stevenson, Alabama, where it arrived on the 19th of October. Between the 24th of June and the above date the regiment had marched about one thousand miles, had been frequently engaged with the enemy, and had subsisted to a great extent upon the country. It lay at this place, recruiting men and horses, and guarding the railroad and river, until the 18th of November, when, with five hundred men in its ranks, it moved toward Chattanooga, arriving there on the morning of the 22d of November. On the evening of the same day General Sherman, having already moved his forces across the river above the town, the First Ohio and five other cavalry regiments, under Colonel Long, crossed over under cover of the infantry, and made a raid in rear of Bragg's position, which, for its brilliant success and happy termination, is unsurpassed in the annals of the cavalry. The results were, the destruction of twenty miles of railroad and the largest percussion-cap and torpedo manufactory in the Confederacy; two hundred wagons burned; six hundred horses and mules, and five hundred prisoners captured. All the prisoners were brought safely into Chattanooga on the 25th of November. Only twenty men were lost. While on this raid the First Cavalry had a severe engagement with the enemy at Cleveland, losing fifteen men, but inflicting on the enemy a loss of at least fifty.

On the 27th of October Colonel Long's division marched toward Knoxville, having several severe skirmishes by the way, and capturing many prisoners. Tarrying a few days at Knoxville, the regiment accompanied the command on a raid into North Carolina. Many captures were made on this raid. The First Cavalry brought back only one hundred and twenty effective mounted men out of five hundred, with which it started one month before.

At Calhoun, a town on the Hiawasee River, December 16th, the Rebel General Wheeler, with twenty-eight hundred men, attacked a wagon-train lying upon the opposite side of the Tennessee River, guarded by infantry alone. Colonel Long, perceiving the danger, immediately crossed over with sixty-five men of the First Cavalry, and, charging the enemy in connection with the infantry, completely routed the Rebels. Leaving the infantry in the distance this little band of cavalry pushed forward four miles, scattering the Rebels, and inflicting upon them a loss of twenty-five killed and eighty wounded, and captured one hundred and thirty-one prisoners. This brilliant affair cost the cavalry but one man killed and three wounded. Taking into account the great disparity of numbers (the infantry being unable to take part, except in the beginning of the fight) it is almost impossible to find a parallel in the history of modern warfare. On moving, the dismounted men of the regiment were left in camp at Paint Rock.

About this time Colonel B. B. Eggleston returned from recruiting-service in Ohio, and assumed command of the regiment. January 1, 1864, Colonel Eggleston moved the regiment to Pulaski, Tennessee, and on the 4th of that month about three hundred of the men re-enlisted as veterans. On the 14th of February it was joined by one hundred more of those that had been left at Calhoun, and, with both officers and men, proceeded to Ohio to spend the thirty-days' furlough to which all veterans were entitled. Those of the regiment who did not re-enlist continued with Long's brigade during the winter, participated in the attack on Dalton, and sustained considerable loss, distinguishing themselves by bravery and endurance. On the return of the regiment to the department these men rejoined their respective companies.

On the 1st day of April, 1864, the First Cavalry was again reunited at Nashville, Tennessee, recruited to full ranks. A detachment of forty recruits for company A (still in Virginia), under Lieutenant Yeoman, also reported here at this time. On the 1st of May, having drawn a complete outfit of horses, equipments, and arms, the First marched to Columbia, Tennessee, where it remained, drilling and preparing for the field, until the 22d of May, when, together with the Third and Fourth Ohio Cavalry, under their old commander, Colonel Long, it started to join the advancing column of Sherman, then near Rome, Georgia. On the 26th it crossed the Tennessee River at Decatur; on the 27th marched to Courtland, Alabama, driving before it the command of the Rebel General Roddy, and losing only five men wounded. Two days thereafter it participated in the severe engagement at Moulton, resulting in the complete defeat of General Roddy, who, with a force of six regiments and a battery of artillery, had attacked Long's brigade. The First Cavalry lost in this engagement about twenty men killed and wounded.

On the 17th of June, near Somerville, the regiment took the advance of General F. P. Blair's corps, joining the main army near Allatoona on the 6th of June. It remained and acted with the main army up to and for some time after the fall of Atlanta, being employed mainly in covering its movements and protecting its flanks.

In front of Kenesaw the First Cavalry had frequent and severe skirmishing, in which it lost about thirty men. Captain Pickering, of company F, was among the wounded. The regiment accompanied General Kilpatrick in his raid around Atlanta. When surrounded by the enemy at Lovejoy's Station, the First Cavalry particularly distinguished itself by holding in check for some time a force from Cleburne's Rebel infantry division, with a loss of fifty men. Among the killed was Captain W. H. Scott, of company D, a gallant and efficient officer. The brigade commander, Colonel Eli Long, was severely wounded in this affair, which devolved the command of the brigade upon Colonel B. B. Eggleston, of the First Cavalry, and of the regiment upon Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas J. Patton, its old and tried chief. The regiment also took part in the movement which resulted in the evacuation of Atlanta by the Rebels. Shortly after the evacuation the time of the non-veterans of the regiment expired, and quite a number of that class were mustered out, thus weakening the organization. The regiment went into camp near Atlanta. When General Hood attempted to cut Sherman's communications the First Cavalry followed in pursuit. On the 13th of October it carried the advance of Garrard's division in the fight near Rome, Georgia, resulting in the complete discomfiture of General Armstrong's division of Rebel cavalry. Shortly after this affair, while still lying at Rome, the horses of the regiment were transferred to General Kilpatrick's division, and, in connection with the entire division of General Garrard, the members of the First Ohio Cavalry were sent to Louisville, Kentucky, to be refitted for the field. On the 17th of November the regiment arrived at Louisville. Brigadier-General Garrard was now relieved of the command, and that intrepid trooper, Eli Long, happily recovered of his wounds, was assigned to it. On the 28th of December, 1864, the regiment left Louisville to join the cavalry corps, on the Tennessee, near Gravelly Springs, Alabama. During the month of February, 1865, the First Ohio was transferred from the Second Brigade, Second Division, and brigaded with the Seventh Ohio (Colonel Garrard) and Fifth Iowa (Colonel Young), forming the Second Brigade, Fourth Division, which was placed under the command of Brevet Brigadier-General A. J. Alexander. Drilling and building huts and stables relieved camp-life of its weariness until the 19th of March, when the cavalry corps rendezvoused at Chickasaw Landing, on the south side of the Tennessee. On the morning of the 22d the cavalry moved out, and on the 26th company A, of the First, struck a body of Rebels at Jasper, and routed them. On the 27th they forded the Black Warrior River; 28th passed through Jones's Valley; 29th a battalion of the First Ohio, in the advance, burned a large iron furnace, and drove Patterson's Seventh Alabama Cavalry across the Catawba River; 30th, the command crossed the Catawba, and occupied Montevallo; 31st, about noon, the pickets were attacked at Montevallo, but the Fifth Iowa charged and routed the enemy, pursuing them as far as Five Mile Creek. They proved to be a part of Lyon's brigade of Forrest's cavalry, which were here found in strong position defending the road and ford. Lyon was dislodged, and again put upon the retreat. On the morning of the 1st of April the regiment again took the advance, and Forrest's pickets were driven out of Randolph, and considerable skirmishing continued all day, until at last the head of the column struck Forrest's command in position near Ebenezer Church. The brigade was hastily deployed, the Seventh Ohio flanking on the left, the Fifth Iowa in the center, and the First Ohio on the right. The enemy's battery of three guns was on a wooded hill by the church, and directly in front of the First Ohio. After some severe skirmishing, in which a squadron of the Seventh Ohio got under a concentric fire and was nearly annihilated, the advance was sounded, and with an irresistible impetuosity the line swept forward. The First Ohio took the three-gun battery that was in its front, and Forrest's far-famed horsemen were routed in twenty minutes from the main attack. Here fell the gallant, the noble, the admired, and beloved Frank P. Allen, the Quartermaster-Sergeant of the regiment. On the 2d of April Selma was taken; 9th the command began crossing the Alabama; 12th and 13th it rested in Montgomery, Alabama; 14th took up its march toward Columbus, Georgia; 15th Buford's division was driven ahead of us, and on the 16th the advance of the First struck the enemy near Crawford, Georgia, and charged them nine miles across the Ogeechee River. About a mile and a half from Columbus the first battalion of the First Ohio encountered the enemy, drew sabers, and charged down the hill into the town of Girard, under the fire of twenty-five guns which had been masked till then. The regiment was also engaged in the night assault upon Columbus, the capture of the works, and the saving of the two bridges which opened up Columbus, its arsenals and factories, and gave, as the result of one of the most desperate night assaults ever made, twelve hundred prisoners and ninety-six cannon. On the 22d Macon was entered, where the force heard of the surrender of Lee. The regiment then garrisoned Georgia and South Carolina until the 13th of September, when it was mustered out, paid off, and discharged, at Columbus, Ohio, on the 28th day of September, 1865.

OHIO IN THE WAR.

2d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	CHARLES DOUBLEDAY	Sept. 5, 1861	Nov. 6, 1861	Resigned June 16, 1862.
Do.	AUGUST V. KAUTZ	" 6, 1862	Sept. 20, 1862	Promoted to Brig. Gen., and brevet Maj. Gen.
Do.	A. B. NETTLETON	April 22, 1863	April 22, 1863	Promoted brevet Brig. Gen. for gallantry.
Do.	DUDLEY SEWARD	June 20, " "	June 20, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	ROBERT W. RATLIFF	Aug. 21, 1861	Nov. 6, 1862	Resigned June 23, 1863.
Do.	GEORGE A. PURINGTON	June 26, 1863	July 10, 1863	Commissioned Colonel I but not mustered.
Do.	DUDLEY SEWARD	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	A. B. NETTLETON	Nov. 4, " "	Nov. 4, " "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	DAVID E. WELCH	June 20, 1865	June 20, 1865	Mustered out January 31, 1866.
Major	GEORGE G. HINER	Aug. 21, 1861	Nov. 6, 1861	Promoted Lt. Col. 7th Cavalry Sept. 13, 1862.
Do.	HENRY F. WILSON	" 21, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned March 10, 1862.
Do.	GEORGE A. PURINGTON	Sept. 24, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	HENRY L. BURNETT	March 10, 1862	April 14, 1862	Resigned August 15, 1863.
Do.	DUDLEY SEWARD	Sept. 18, " "	Jan. 27, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	A. B. NETTLETON	June 25, 1862	July 10, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	DAVID E. WELCH	Aug. 15, " "	Aug. 20, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	MANDREK F. WEEKS	May 9, " "	May 9, 1864	Revoked S. O. 184, series 1863.
Do.	ALBERT BARNITZ	Dec. 9, " "	Dec. 9, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	HYMAN N. EASTON	May 11, 1864	May 11, 1865	Promoted to Lieut. Col. but not mustered.
Do.	R. E. LAWDER	June 20, " "	June 20, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	ALFRED TAYLOR			Appointed Surgeon 89th reg't April 21, 1863.
Do.	JOSEPH T. SMITH			Resigned.
Do.	WM. H. McREYNOLDS	April 17, 1865	April 17, 1865	Resigned June 8, 1865.
Do.	N. B. BRISQINE	June 14, " "	June 14, " "	Mustered out.
Asst Surgeon	JOSEPH T. SMITH	Sept. 6, 1861	Nov. 6, 1861	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	H. B. NOBLE	June 9, 1863	June 10, 1863	Discharged for promotion March 28, 1865.
Do.	WM. H. McREYNOLDS	Oct. 22, 1865	" "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	MATTHIAS COOK	May 18, " "	May 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	GAYLORD B. HAWKINS			Died at Fort Scott, Kansas.
Do.	EDWIN T. BROWN			Resigned April 20, 1864.
Captain	John L. Smith	Aug. 12, 1861	Nov. 6, 1861	Resigned December 11, 1861.
Do.	George A. Purington	" 16, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John H. Clapp	" 24, " "	" 6, " "	Died October 5, 1861.
Do.	John B. Franklin	" 25, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned December 11, 1861.
Do.	Henry L. Burnett	" 29, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	James Caldwell	Sept. 4, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned May 19, 1862.
Do.	Hiram A. Hall	" 6, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out by consolidation Feb. 15, 1863.
Do.	Wm. J. Keene	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned May 19, 1863.
Do.	Charles C. Smith	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out for promotion February 23, 1863.
Do.	Aaron K. Lindsey	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out by consolidation Feb. 15, 1862.
Do.	Allen P. Steele	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned August 23, 1862.
Do.	Dudley Seward	" 10, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Robert W. Stewart	" 30, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned December 3, 1862.
Do.	Chauncey Eggleston	Oct. 3, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned March 14, 1862.
Do.	Thomas W. Sanderson	" 7, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned May 16, 1862.
Do.	Bayless R. Faucett	Dec. 20, " "	Dec. 20, " "	Resigned May 16, 1862.
Do.	David E. Welch	March 14, 1862	April 14, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	A. B. Nettleton	" 10, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Mandrek F. Weeks	May 19, " "	June 24, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph B. Holmes	" 16, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out February 15, 1863.
Do.	James Caldwell	Sept. 20, " "	Sept. 21, " "	Mustered out February 15, 1863. [with reg.]
Do.	Henry Clay Pike	Dec. 3, " "	Jan. 22, 1863	On detached duty at own request; must. out
Do.	Albert Barnitz	Sept. 18, " "	Sept. 28, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Crawford W. Stewart	Feb. 23, 1863	Feb. 26, " "	Died February, 1861.
Do.	Franklin S. Case	May 19, " "	July 10, " "	Hon. Dis. on account of wounds May 15, 1865.
Do.	Frank E. Watrous	June 25, " "	June 10, " "	Mustered out October 21, 1861.
Do.	Augustus N. Bernard	Feb. 17, " "	June 10, " "	Honorably discharged November 29, 1864.
Do.	Samuel K. Williams	Nov. 12, 1862	Dec. 27, 1862	Honorably discharged November 11, 1863.
Do.	Wm. W. Woodward	" 14, " "	Feb. 12, 1865	Promoted Colonel 116th reg. Colored Infantry.
Do.	Hyman N. Easton	" 25, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. H. Ullery	Dec. 31, " "	" 12, " "	Killed near Petersburg, Va., June, 1864.
Do.	Frederick R. Deming	Jan. 1, 1861	Jan. 28, 1861	Killed near Harper's Ferry, August, 1864.
Do.	Wm. E. Pedrick	Feb. 1, " "	Feb. 13, " "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant August 26, 1864
Do.	R. E. Lawder	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Warner Newton	Nov. 4, " "	Nov. 4, " "	Killed at Five Forks, Va., April 3, 1865.
Do.	A. E. Millard	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Melancthon C. Cowdery	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Mustered out at expiration of time, Dec. 3, 1864.
Do.	L. H. Tenney	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	(Resigned June 30, 1865; breveted Major for gallantry at Five Forks.)
Do.	E. H. Eggleston	Dec. 14, " "	Dec. 14, " "	(Commissioned Major but not mustered; mustered out with regiment.)
Do.	A. C. Houghton	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	(Mustered out May 13, 1865, on acct of wds; brevet Major for gallantry at Five Forks.)
Do.	Henry W. Chester	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Resigned June 13, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Smith	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Madison R. Headby	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Nathaniel Hillhouse	June 16, 1865	June 16, 1865	Mustered out October 12, 1865.
Do.	Charles H. Bill	May 11, " "	May 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Asa S. Stratton	June 16, " "	June 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Solon A. Rand	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Adams	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles D. Rush	Sept. 4, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Scott A. Aldrey	Aug. 11, 1861	Nov. 6, 1861	Mustered out at expiration of time, Sept. 25, 1865.
Do.	Chauncey Eggleston	" 12, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Dudley Seward	" 16, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Lyman C. Thayer.....	Aug. 19, 1861	Nov. 6, 1861	Resigned March 22, 1862.
Do.	Robert L. Hart.....	" 22, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned December 11, 1861.
Do.	Samuel F. Geil.....	" 24, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned December 11, 1861.
Do.	Chas. F. Ingersoll.....	Sept. 3, " "	" 6, " "	Died November, 1861.
Do.	James D. Kennedy.....	" 4, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned January 8, 1862.
Do.	Edmund Ward.....	" 4, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned August 14, 1862.
Do.	Bayless R. Faucett.....	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Timothy D. Leslie.....	May 9, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out by consolidation Feb. 15 1863.
Do.	Henry S. Wood.....	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned February 18, 1863.
Do.	David E. Welch.....	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Miles J. Collier.....	" 10, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out by consolidation.
Do.	Thomas W. Sanderson.....	" 12, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Albert Watrous.....	" 18, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned May 19, 1862.
Do.	Joseph B. Holmes.....	Oct. 30, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wilson S. Dodge.....	Sept. 18, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned March 22, 1862.
Do.	Guerdon Woodruff.....	" 19, " "	" 6, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Maudred F. Weeks.....	" 30, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry J. Virgil.....	Dec. 20, " "	Dec. 20, " "	Resigned July 15, 1862.
Do.	John C. Hutchins.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned July 7, 1862.
Do.	Frederick R. Deming.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Peter L. Rush.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned July 4, 1863.
Do.	Henry Clay Pike.....	Jan. 8, 1862	Jan. 8, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alonzo McGowan.....	" 8, " "	March 20, " "	Resigned February 4, 1863.
Do.	Henry Frissell.....	March 22, " "	April 10, " "	Mustered out August 13, 1862.
Do.	Wm. B. Shattuc.....	" 4, " "	June 24, " "	Mustered out February 15, 1863.
Do.	Frauklin S. Case.....	" 10, " "	" 24, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. B. Nieman.....	May 19, " "	" 24, " "	Mustered out February 15, 1863.
Do.	Edward B. Hubbard.....	July 15, " "	Sept. 22, " "	Transferred to 25th Battery February 17, 1863.
Do.	Augustus N. Bernard.....	" 15, " "	Dec. 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Crawford W. Stewart.....	" 7, " "	Oct. 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Julius L. Hadley.....	May 16, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Transferred to 25th Battery February 17, 1863.
Do.	Albert Baruitz.....	Aug. 14, " "	" 7, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. E. Pedrick.....	Jan. 4, 1863	Jan. 28, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Chester L. White.....	Sept. 18, 1862	" 28, " "	Resigned June 6, 1863. [Feb., 1865.
Do.	Johu J. Pike.....	Jan. 1, 1863	" 28, " "	Com'd Capt. but declined to muster; resigned
Do.	Hiram S. Chamb. riau.....	Feb. 13, " "	Feb. 26, " "	Promoted to Captain and A. Q. M.
Do.	R. M. McDowell.....	April 27, " "	April 27, " "	Mustered out; on detached service.
Do.	Stephen A. Mason.....	Feb. 18, " "	June 10, " "	Resigned June 22, 1865.
Do.	Charles H. Bill.....	May 12, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Captain. [June 22, '65.
Do.	Timothy R. Spencer.....	Feb. 17, " "	" 10, " "	Com'd Capt. but declined to muster; resigned
Do.	Geo. H. Williamson.....	Nov. 12, 1862	Dec. 27, 1862	Resigned January 25, 1863.
Do.	Valentine Fries.....	" 14, " "	Feb. 15, " "	Resigned April 30, 1863.
Do.	McCrea Vance.....	" 25, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned May 21, 1863.
Do.	Theodore J. Fulton.....	Dec. 31, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned November 8, 1863.
Do.	R. E. Lawder.....	Jan. 25, 1863	Aug. 22, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Theodore P. Hamlin.....	April 30, " "	" 22, " "	Mustered out December 3, 1864.
Do.	A. E. Millard.....	May 21, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Warner Newton.....	" 10, " "	" 22, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jesse Law.....	" 10, " "	" 22, " "	Discharged September 12, 1864. [Oct. 24, '64.
Do.	John B. Dutton.....	" 10, " "	" 22, " "	Com'd Capt. but not mustered; mustered out
Do.	Nathaniel Hillhouse.....	March 24, 1864	March 24, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Warner Pearson.....	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	Mustered out October 23, 1864.
Do.	Richard H. Pardee.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Mustered out September 25, 1864.
Do.	Francis Paris.....	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Mustered out September 25, 1864.
Do.	George W. Bayard.....	Nov. 4, " "	Nov. 4, " "	Honorably discharged November 30, 1864.
Do.	James M. Lough.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Died of wounds November 13, 1864.
Do.	P. H. McBride.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Prom. to Captain; mustered out with reg't
Do.	Melancthon C. Cowdery.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Resigned November, 1864.
Do.	L. H. Tenney.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	E. H. Eggleston.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	A. C. Houghton.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry W. Chester.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Smith.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Madison R. Headley.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	B. G. Wilcox.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Resigned June 13, 1865.
Do.	Chas. D. Rush.....	" 26, " "	" 26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James Castillo.....	Dec. 14, " "	Dec. 14, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Asa S. Stratton.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Colon A. Rand.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Adams.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph Stearns.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Killed in action April 6, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Wilcox.....	" 14, " "	" 14, " "	Resigned June 22, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Robinson.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph A. McElroy.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Carey A. Smith.....	June 16, " "	June 16, " "	Mustered out October 12, 1865.
Do.	Edwin C. Joyce.....	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out October 12, 1865.
Do.	Newton D. Fisher.....	July 5, " "	July 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas E. Grist.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Never mustered.
Do.	Luther M. Tuttle.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert N. Traver.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. W. Randall.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward J. Lukens.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Johu L. Park.....	" 5, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John P. Laundon.....	Sept. 4, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Cromwell C. Marsh.....	" 4, " "	" 11, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Peter L. Rush.....	Aug. 10, 1861	Nov. 6, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. F. Ingersoll.....	" 12, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Miles J. Collier.....	" 16, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John C. Hutchins.....	" 22, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry J. Virgil.....	" 24, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alonzo McGowan.....	Sept. 14, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Abner D. Strong.....	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned July 22, 1862.
Do.	Stanley B. Lockwood.....	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned May 31, 1862.
Do.	Wm. B. Shattuc.....	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Franklin S. Case.....	" 9, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. B. Nieman.....	" 30, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frederick R. Deming.....	Oct. 3, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward B. Hubbard.....	" 17, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Crawford W. Stewart.....	" 23, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Augustus N. Bernard.....	Dec. 20, " "	Dec. 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David K. Carter, jr.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Died August 12, 1862, at Fort Scott, Kansas.
Do.	Alex. B. Sessions.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned July 19, 1862.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Henry Clay Pike.....	Jan. 4, 1862	Jan. 4, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Julius L. Hadley.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Frizzell.....	" 8, "	March 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hosea Townsend.....	March 22, "	June 24, "	Resigned January 15, 1862.
Do.	John J. Pike.....	" 14, "	" 24, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chester L. White.....	" 10, "	" 24, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Albert Barnitz.....	" 31, "	July 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. E. Pedrick.....	May 19, 1862	Sept. 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry O. Hampson.....	July 22, "	" 5, "	Resigned June 23, 1863.
Do.	Timothy R. Spencer.....	" 19, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank E. Watrous.....	Aug. 12, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. H. Bill.....	July 15, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Theodore P. Hamlin.....	" 7, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry G. Walcott.....	" 15, "	" 22, "	Resigned June 6, 1863.
Do.	Hiram S. Chamberlain.....	" 7, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stephen A. Mason.....	March 16, "	Nov. 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	A. E. Millard.....	Jan. 1, 1863	Jan. 28, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Warner Newton.....	Sept. 18, 1862	" 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Warner Pearson.....	Jan. 4, 1863	" 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Richard H. Pardee.....	" 15, "	Feb. 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John B. Dutton.....	Feb. 22, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jesse Law.....	" 18, "	July 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	E. H. Eggleston.....	June 25, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Levi J. McMurray.....	May 19, "	" 10, "	Honorably discharged September 6, 1864.
Do.	L. H. Teaney.....	June 6, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	A. C. Houghton.....	" 25, "	Aug. 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Francis Paris.....	April 30, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. Carrie Barnett.....	Oct. 10, 1862	Dec. 27, 1862	Resigned January 25, 1863.
Do.	George W. Bayard.....	" 17, "	Feb. 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nathaniel Hillhouse.....	" 8, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. Lough.....	" 23, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	P. H. McBride.....	May 10, 1863	Aug. 22, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Melancthon C. Cowdery.....	" 10, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry M. Drake.....	April 13, 1864	April 13, 1864	Killed near Harper's Ferry August, 1864.
Do.	Edwin B. Buell.....	Nov. 18, 1863	" 19, "	Died of wounds June 8, 1864.
Do.	Isaac L. Pierce.....	Oct. 14, 1864	Oct. 14, "	Killed in action September, 1864; not must'd.
Do.	Madison R. Headley.....	Nov. 4, "	Nov. 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	B. G. Wilcox.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles D. Rush.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Castillo.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Asa S. Stratton.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Solon A. Rand.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Adams.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Stearns.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Wilcox.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Robinson.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph A. McElroy.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant. [June 1, '65.
Do.	Lorenzo D. Bosworth.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Commis'd 1st Lt. but not mustered; resigned
Do.	Melvin B. Campbell.....	Feb. 10, "	Feb. 10, "	Resigned June 10, 1865.
Do.	Carey A. Smith.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin C. Joyce.....	April 22, "	April 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant. [out with reg.
Do.	Albert Capron.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Commis'd 1st Lt. but not mustered; mustered
Do.	Newton D. Fisher.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas E. Grist.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Albert A. Clapp.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Resigned June 16, 1865.
Do.	Luther M. Tuttle.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert N. Traver.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. W. Randall.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin J. Lukins.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John L. Park.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lewis B. Campbell.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Cromwell C. Marsh.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John P. Laundon.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isadora M. Bishop.....	July 5, "	July 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George B. Hayden.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry Gordon.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. C. McCain.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. R. White.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. F. Lovett.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. C. Leffingwell.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	V. M. Hart.....	" 5, "	" 5, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank. Allen.....	Sept. 4, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. E. Bostwick.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Ira Scott.....	" 25, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.

SECOND OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

THIS regiment was recruited and organized in the summer and autumn of 1861, under the supervision of Hon. B. F. Wade and Hon. John Hutchins, who received special authority from the War Office. The regiment rendezvoused at Camp Wade, near Cleveland, Ohio, and the last company was mustered in on the 10th of October, 1861. Being the first cavalry regiment raised in the northern part of the State, it drew into its ranks a large proportion of wealth, intelligence, capacity, and culture. Men and officers were almost wholly from the district known as the Western Reserve, and represented every trade and profession. The Second was uniformed, mounted, and partly drilled at Cleveland, and in the last of November was ordered to Camp Dennison, where it received sabers, and continued drilling during the month of December.

On December 20th a detachment of twenty men, commanded by Lieutenant Nettleton, was ordered into Kentucky on scouting-duty, and remained there until the regiment received marching orders. Early in January, 1862, under orders from the War Department, the Second proceeded by rail via Cincinnati, St. Louis, and St. Joseph to Platte City, Missouri. Reporting to General Hunter, it was quartered in the town, and for the next three weeks it scouted the Missouri border. On the 18th of February Doubleday's brigade, of which the Second was a part, was ordered to march through the border counties of Missouri to Fort Scott, Kansas. On the 22d of February and during the march, a scouting party of one hundred and twenty men of the Second Ohio Cavalry was attacked in the streets of Independence, Missouri, by an equal force under the command of the subsequently infamous Quantrill. As the results of the Second's "first fight," Quantrill was routed in fifteen minutes, losing five killed, four wounded, and five captured, including one officer. The Second lost one killed and three wounded. The brigade reached Fort Scott without further action, about the 1st of March, and camped in Sibley tents. At this time the Second was armed with sabers, navy pistols, and Austrian carbines.

Early in April Minor's battalion marched to Carthage, Missouri, where it remained several days breaking up guerrilla haunts, and then returned to Fort Scott. Two companies of this battalion were sent soon after to garrison Iola, a small interior Kansas town. About the 15th of April the Second made an expedition to Diamond Grove, on their return leaving six companies at Carthage, where they remained until late in May. The army was concentrated at Fort Scott in the latter part of May, and early in June it moved into the Indian Territory by various roads, concentrating again at Spring River. During a halt at this place a cavalry and artillery force moved on Cowskin Prairie, and drove the Indian Rebel Standwaitie from his camp. The entire command soon moved to Baxter's Springs, Indian Territory, where three regiments of loyal Indians, mounted on ponies and armed with squirrel-rifles, joined the command. Later in June the column moved from Baxter's Springs southward, the animals living upon the grass only. On this march the Second saw no enemy, and the sight of a burning prairie and the pow-wows of their red-skinned companions alone relieved the monotony and dullness of the expedition.

On the 8th of July the column went into camp at Flat Rock Creek, Indian Territory, and later in the month the Second formed part of a force which moved upon Fort Gibson and capturing it, driving a small detachment of the enemy across the Arkansas. In the early part of August the command moved for Fort Scott, where it arrived and went into camp about the 15th, when it was found that there were less than two hundred and fifty serviceable horses in the Second Ohio, a large number of men were sick, and many had died on the march from the effects of a peculiar brain fever, probably produced by the excessive heat to which they were exposed.

In the latter part of August the regiment shared in a forced march for ten days and nights, in pursuit of a raiding Rebel party, skirmishing continually but without loss. About this time one hundred and fifty men and two officers were detailed from the Second to man, temporarily, a light battery. Six months later the detail was made a transfer by the War Department, and constituted the Twenty-Fifth Ohio Battery. Early in September the mounted portion of the regiment, with the battery above-mentioned, moved with the army of General Blunt into Missouri and Arkansas, sharing in the active campaign, which ended in the victory of Prairie Grove, Arkansas, December 3, 1862. In this autumn campaign the Second fought at Carthage and Newtonia, Missouri, camped at Pea Ridge, and fought at Cow Hill, Wolf Creek, White River, and Prairie Grove.

Later in September Captain August V Kautz, Sixth United States Cavalry, was appointed Colonel of the Second, and joined that portion lying at Fort Scott. In November an effort which had been made to have the Second transferred to an Eastern army was successful, and the dismounted portion moved at once by rail to Camp Chase, Ohio, to remount and refit for the field, and the mounted portion, serving in Arkansas, followed in December. At Camp Chase the Second received fresh horses, new arms and equipments, and sixty recruits, and during the winter made great progress in drill and discipline. In February, 1863, the original twelve companies were consolidated into eight, and a battalion of four companies, raised for the Eighth Ohio Volunteer Cavalry, was added to the Second. This battalion was then serving in Kentucky, and Major Purinton was sent to assume command until it should join the regiment.

Early in April the Second left Camp Chase, and proceeded to Somerset, Kentucky, via Cincinnati, Ohio, Maysville, Lexington, and Stanford, Kentucky. Near Lexington the new battalion joined the regiment. With the exception of an occasional reconnoissance or raid the Second remained in camp at Somerset, Kentucky, until the 27th of June. In May and June the Second fought twice at Steubenville, twice at Monticello, and once at Columbia, Kentucky. In the early part of June four companies of the Second formed part of a raiding force, under General Saunders. They moved over the mountains into East Tennessee, attacked Knoxville, destroyed a large amount of supplies and several railroad bridges, and returned in comparatively good condition. Kautz's brigade, of which the Second was part, joined in the pursuit of John Morgan on the first of July, followed the great raider twelve hundred miles, through three States, marching twenty hours out of twenty-four, living wholly upon the gifts of the people for twenty-seven days, and finally sharing in the capture at Buffington Island. After the raid the Second re-assembled at Cincinnati, from which point nearly the whole regiment was furloughed by General Burnside, in recognition of its endurance and gallantry.

The Second re-assembled and refitted at Stanford, Kentucky, and in August moved with the army to East Tennessee. It was brigaded with the Second East Tennessee, Ninth Michigan, and Seventh Ohio Cavalry, Colonel Carter, Second East Tennessee, commanding. Moving through Big Creek Gap no resistance was made until they reached the Tennessee River at Loudon Bridge, and here, after a light engagement, the enemy fell back. For a few days in September the regiment was camped at Lenoir Station, and on the 5th and 6th made a forced march to Cumberland Gap. After the surrender of the Rebel garrison the Second returned to Knoxville, and was ordered up the valley. Marching along the Richmond Railroad, through Strawberry Plains, Mossy Creek, and Greenville, it joined the army at Henderson Station, about the 25th of September. Immediately after arriving the Second received orders to report at once to General Rosecrans, commanding Army of the Cumberland. The regiment marched thirty miles toward Knoxville, and was suddenly ordered back to the front. On its return it found an engagement in progress, in which it at once participated. The next morning the enemy fell back to Zollicoffer; the Second, with its brigade, pursued, and one battalion of the regiment engaged the enemy. After spending a few days at Watauga, the brigade retired to Jonesboro', then fell back to Henderson, but being re-enforced it finally advanced and fought the battle of Blue Springs, the Second bearing an honorable part. The mounted force pushed on up the valley, defeating the Rebels at Blountsville and Bristol. Late in October, as Longstreet advanced, the Second fell back with the other cavalry to Russellville, and then to the vicinity of Cumberland Gap, and engaged Wheeler's cavalry. During the siege of Knoxville it operated on the enemy's flank, and after the siege was raised joined in the pursuit. On the 2d of December it fought Longstreet's cavalry at Morristown; on the 4th it formed the advance of a brigade, which attacked and fought eighteen regiments for two hours at Russellville, losing forty men killed and wounded; and on the 6th it was at the front five hours, in the battle of Bean Station, and for the next five days was almost constantly under fire. After resting a few days at Blain's Cross Roads, the cavalry crossed the Holston and moved to Mossy Creek. Here the time was spent in maneuvering and fighting until January 1, 1864, when, out of four hundred and seventy men four hundred and twenty re-enlisted, and were furloughed. They returned North via Knoxville, Chattanooga, Nashville, Louisville, and Cincinnati to Camp Chase, and about the 16th of February disbanded for thirty days.

On the 20th of March, 1864, the Second re-assembled at Cleveland, with one hundred and thirty recruits, ready for the front. It was first ordered to Mount Sterling, Kentucky, but afterward to Annapolis, Maryland, where it arrived on the 29th of March, and on the 4th of April camped on an arm of the Chesapeake. On the 13th of April it was reviewed by Lieutenant-General Grant, Generals Burnside, Washburn, and Meigs. On the 22d the regiment moved to Camp Stoneman, District of Columbia, and by the 30th was mounted, armed, and equipped. It moved out of camp May 1st, eight hundred strong, marched through Pennsylvania Avenue, over the Long Bridge, through Fairfax C. II. and Centerville, across the Plains of Manassas, and reported to General Burnside, May 3d, at Warrenton Junction. With the Ninth Corps it moved to Brandy Station, crossed the Rapidan, and went into line on the extreme right. On the 7th it engaged Rosser's cavalry with slight loss; and from this time on, during the campaign of the Wilderness, it was employed in covering the right flank of the infantry, almost constantly, either on picket or skirmishing. On the 28th the regiment occupied Newtown, capturing commissary stores and forage. By order of Lieutenant-General Grant the Second was transferred from the Ninth Army Corps and permanently attached to Sheridan's Cavalry Corps, Army of the Potomac, and on the 29th it reported to Brigadier-General J. H. Wilson, commanding Third Cavalry Division, on the Pamunkey, and was by him assigned to the First Brigade, commanded by Brigadier-General J. B. McIntosh, then a Colonel.

The division crossed the Pamunkey on the 31st, and the First Brigade advanced on Hanover C. H. After a desultory fight, the brigade formed, dismounted, for the charge. The Second occupied the center and sustained the heaviest of the shock, driving the enemy from their front, taking possession of and holding the crest and court-house. The next day a portion of the First Brigade, including the Second Ohio Cavalry, proceeded to Ashland to attract the attention of the Rebels from a party engaged in destroying a railroad bridge over the South Anna. The force had scarcely arrived in Ashland before it was surrounded by the enemy under Fitzhugh Lee, and an action ensued which lasted until sundown, when our men withdrew, the Second covering the retreat. From this time to the crossing of the James, the Second was engaged in picketing and fighting on the right of the army from Hanover C. H. to Cold Harbor. It crossed the James on the 17th of June, and the next day camped with the division on the Blackwater. On the 22d of June the division moved on the raid to the Danville Railroad. The Second had an active share in the expedition, fighting at Nottaway C. II., Stony Creek, and Ream Station, losing one hundred men and five officers killed, wounded, and missing, and returning to the lines at Light House Point on the 1st of July. Late in July it moved to the left of the army, and did picket-duty on the left of Warren's (Fifth) corps, near the Weldon Railroad. Early in August the division withdrew from the front and went to Washington City, and on the 13th moved for Winchester, in the Shenandoah Valley, where it arrived on the 17th. The division was ordered to act as rear-guard, and to hold the town till dark. At three o'clock P. M. Early made an attack, and at sundown the division fell back. The second battalion and two companies of the third battalion of the Second Ohio Cavalry, acting as rear-guard for the whole command, fighting an hour in dense darkness in the streets of Winchester, then joining the main column and falling back to Summit Point. On the 19th Early again attacked, and after a sharp fight the division retired to Charlestown, when again Early attacked on the 22d, and the Second was closely engaged. From Charlestown the army retreated to a position inclosing Harper's Ferry, the right resting on the Potomac and the left on the Shenandoah. The Second, with its division, went to the right, and was twice engaged with the enemy. On the 26th of August the division was ordered to Boonsboro'. The Second camped twenty-four hours on the South Mountain battlefield, marched over Antietam, and recrossed the Potomac at Shepherdstown.

On the 30th of August the regiment marched to the vicinity of Berryville, Virginia, and assisted in driving the enemy from the town. In the first part of September it was engaged with the division in picket-duty on the left of Sheridan's army and in making reconnoissances, engaging the enemy frequently. On the 13th of September McIntosh's brigade, including the Second, was ordered toward Winchester, where Early's head-quarters were established, to learn the strength of the enemy. The brigade charged (Second Ohio in front), drove in the enemy's cavalry, and the Second Ohio, with the aid of the Third New Jersey, captured an entire regiment of infantry, and took them to camp at Berryville. The Secretary of War made special mention of the gallantry of the two regiments in this exploit.

At the battle of Opequan McIntosh's brigade was ordered to capture a line of hills between the Opequan and Winchester. By four hours' hard fighting, and by a bold charge, the brigade won the prize, and at night, when Early's army was retreating, the Second was the last to leave the pursuit on the Valley Pike. With its division, it moved out the Front Royal Pike, on the 20th, drove Wickham's cavalry through Front Royal, and marched and skirmished in Luray Valley until the 25th, when it joined the army at New Market. It next moved to Staunton and then ten miles east to Waynesboro', where, on the 29th, Fitzhugh Lee attacked the command at sundown. The Second fought, dismounted, till all had withdrawn, and then prepared to retire as rear-guard, when it was found that retreat was cut off by a line of Rebel infantry. The regiment charged through in column of fours, and continued as rear-guard until noon the next day, when the command reached Bridgewater. Here General G. A. Custer assumed command of the division. Rosser's cavalry attacked it at Bridgewater, and was repulsed, the Second sharing in the action. During Sheridan's march down the valley Rosser annoyed the rear, and on the 9th of October General Torbert, with the First and Third Divisions, engaged him, defeated him, and captured eleven guns and eighty wagons. The Second fought from eight o'clock A. M. until eleven, and pursued till three P. M. It then went to a position three miles west of Middletown, and occupied, with its division, the right of Sheridan's line.

On the 19th the regiment shared in the battle of Cedar Creek, being in the saddle from day-break until nine o'clock P. M. It occupied the center on the Valley Pike, to the rear of Middletown, while the infantry formed in rear of the cavalry, was present on the pike when Sheridan came to the front on his immortal ride, assisted to raise the shout of welcome, and joined in the subsequent charges which decided the victory, and at nine o'clock bivouacked, supperless, on the field. After the battle the regiment performed picket-duty until the 1st of November, when it fell back with the army to near Kernstown. On the 12th of November the regiment was attacked while on picket by Rosser's division, and, of course, driven in. The fight lasted all day between Custer and Rosser, resulting in the enemy being driven in confusion from the field. The Second marched with the cavalry on the 20th to reconnoiter Early's force at New Market, and was hotly engaged. Again, on the 10th of December, Custer's division marched to Moorfield, to intercept Rosser, and returned in four days, only the advance of the Second having been engaged. On the 20th of December the division marched to Lacey's Springs, and while there Rosser attacked the camp at daybreak with three brigades. The Second being formed for marching repulsed that portion of the enemy which attacked the First Brigade. While returning to Kernstown it was overtaken by a severe storm, and twenty-eight men were temporarily disabled by frozen feet. The division moved to a position on the Romney Pike, one and a half miles from Winchester, on the 28th of December, and began the construction of winter-quarters. From this time until February 27th, 1865, the Second did not mové, as a regiment, from camp. Detachments frequently went on scouts, and it furnished a regular detail for picket.

On the 27th of February the Second, with the cavalry under Sheridan, started on the last raid of the war. Near the town of Waynesboro', on the 2d of March, Custer's division captured the remainder of Early's army. In this engagement the Second captured five pieces of artillery with caissons, thirteen ambulances and wagons, seventy horses and mules, thirty sets harness, six hundred and fifty prisoners of war, and three hundred and fifty stand of small arms. For this it received the thanks of General Custer on the field. It had the advance of the column in entering Charlottesville, where it captured more artillery. It continued to do its share until the forces reached White House, on the 20th of March, when, after resting a week, Sheridan's cavalry joined the Army of the Potomac, near Petersburg, and entered upon the campaign that closed the war. From the 27th of March to the surrender of Lee, the Second captured and turned over to the Provost-Marshal eighteen pieces of artillery, one hundred and eighty horses, seventy army wagons, nine hundred prisoners, and quantities of small arms not counted. After the surrender of Lee the regiment marched with its division to Petersburg, and was ordered, with the rest of the corps, to North Carolina; but on reaching the Carolina line information of the capture of Johnston was received, and the force returned to Petersburg. The division soon moved to the vicinity of Washington City, and encamped two weeks. Immediately after the grand review the Second was ordered to report to General Pope at St. Louis, where it arrived on the 7th of June, and remained a month in Benton Barracks, when it was ordered to Springfield, Missouri, to relieve State troops. The order for muster out was received about the 1st of September. The regiment assembled at St. Louis, prepared its papers, proceeded to Camp Chase, Ohio, and on the 11th of September, 1865, was paid and disbanded.

The Second fought under the following general officers: Buell, Wright, Hunter, Denver, Sturgis, Blunt, Salomon, Curtis, Schofield, Burnside, Carter, Gillmore, Shackelford, Foster, Kautz, Sedgwick, Wilson, McIntosh, Torbert, Custer, Sheridan, Meade, and Grant. Its horses have drank from, and its troopers have bathed in, the waters of the Arkansas, Kaw, Osage, Cygnes, Missouri, Mississippi, Ohio, Scioto, Miami, Cumberland, Tennessee, Holston, Potomac, Shenandoah, Rappahannock, Rapidan, Bull Run, Mattapony, Pamunkey, Chickahominy, James, Appomattox, Blackwater, Nottoway, and Chesapeake. It has campaigned through thirteen States and a Territory: Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, West Virginia, Maryland, Virginia, and Indian Territory. It has traveled, as a regiment, on foot, horseback, by railroad and steamboat, on land, river, bay, and ocean. It has marched an aggregate distance of twenty seven thousand miles; has fought in ninety-seven battles and engagements. It has served in five different armies: The Army of the Frontier, of the Missouri, of the Potomac, of the Ohio, and of the Shenandoah—forming a continuous line of armies from the head-waters of the Arkansas to the mouth of the James; and its dead, sleeping where they fell, form a vidette-line half across the continent, a chain of prostrate sentinels two thousand miles long. Even in their graves, may not these patriot dead still guard the glory and the integrity of the Republic for which they fell?

3d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	LEWIS ZAHM.....	Aug. 6, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Honorably discharged January 5, 1863.
Do.	JAMES W. PARAMORE.....	Jan. 5, 1863	Feb. 7, 1863	Dismissed July, 1863.
Do.	CHAS. B. SEIDEL.....	Aug. 1, " "	Dec. 31, " "	Mustered out at expiration of service.
Do.	HORACE N. HOWLAND.....	April 8, 1863	April 8, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	DOUGLAS A. MURRAY.....	Oct. 10, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Resigned June 7, 1863.
Do.	CHAS. B. SEIDEL.....	June 7, 1863	July 10, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	HORACE N. HOWLAND.....	Nov. 23, " "	Dec. 8, " "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	DARIUS E. LIVERMORE.....	April 8, 1863	April 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	JOHN H. FOSTER.....	Sept. 13, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Resigned February 14, 1863.
Do.	JAMES W. PARAMORE.....	27, " "	18, " "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	JAMES S. BUSHN.....	Dec. 12, " "	18, " "	Declined.
Do.	CHAS. B. SEIDEL.....	Jan. 16, 1862	Jan. 16, 1862	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	HORACE N. HOWLAND.....	5, 1863	Feb. 7, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	CHAS. W. SKINNER.....	Feb. 14, " "	March 31, " "	Resigned September 10, 1861.
Do.	LEONARD ADAMS.....	June 7, " "	July 10, " "	Mustered out November 23, 1861.
Do.	THOMAS D. McCLELLAND.....	Dec. 8, " "	" "	Mustered out November 23, 1861.
Do.	DARIUS E. LIVERMORE.....	Nov. 30, 1861	Nov. 30, 1861	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	FRANCIS P. GATES.....	30, " "	30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	MARTIN ARCHER.....	" "	30, " "	Transferred to U. S. C. T.
Do.	OLIVER M. BROWN.....	April 8, 1863	April 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Do.	SEYMOUR B. COE.....	2, " "	Aug. 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon.....	M. C. CUYKENDALL.....	Oct. 28, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Mustered out.
Do.	W. B. BOYD.....	Dec. 1, 1861	1, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Asst. Surgeon.....	S. F. SELBY.....	Nov. 4, 1861	18, 1861	Resigned November 5, 1863.
Do.	JOHN K. MOORE.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Aug. 29, 1862	Mustered out (superannuated) Dec. 8, 1862.
Do.	JOHN G. BINGHAM.....	Nov. 5, 1863	Jan. 25, 1864	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	W. B. BOYD.....	March 30, 1861	March 30, " "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	W. W. BICKETT.....	" "	30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	E. Y. WARNER.....	Sept. 25, 1861	Sept. 25, 1861	Resigned August 1, 1862.
Do.	BENJ. F. W. COZIER.....	May 9, 1861	May 9, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	HORACE N. HOWLAND.....	Aug. 15, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Oliver G. Smith.....	17, " "	18, " "	Honorably discharged September 11, 1862.
Do.	Henry B. Gaylord.....	24, " "	18, " "	Resigned May 2, 1864.
Do.	Dewitt C. Doane.....	Sept. 4, " "	18, " "	Resigned November 12, 1862.
Do.	Leonard B. Chapin.....	4, " "	18, " "	Resigned March 5, 1863.
Do.	Chas. B. Seidel.....	7, " "	18, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John W. Marvin.....	8, " "	18, " "	Dismissed January 21, 1863.
Do.	Wm. B. Amsden.....	10, " "	18, " "	Died June 20, 1862.
Do.	Leonard Adams.....	15, " "	18, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Chas. W. Skinner.....	Oct. 10, " "	18, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. Fanagan.....	Nov. 9, " "	18, " "	Dismissed August 12, 1863.
Do.	Daniel Gotshall.....	15, " "	18, " "	Died June 16, 1862.
Do.	Thomas D. McClelland.....	Jan. 16, 1862	Jan. 16, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Elisha M. Colver.....	June 16, " "	Aug. 4, " "	Resigned September 26, 1861.
Do.	Richard B. Wood.....	20, " "	4, " "	Killed at Dalton, Ga., February 23, 1864.
Do.	George C. Roberts.....	Sept. 11, " "	Dec. 19, " "	Resigned April 17, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Maxwell.....	Nov. 12, " "	19, " "	Resigned February 1, 1863. Mustered out.
Do.	James B. Luckey.....	Jan. 5, 1863	Feb. 7, 1863	Dismissed Aug. 9, '63; reinstated April 5, 1864;
Do.	Henry C. Miner.....	21, " "	7, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Darius E. Livermore.....	Feb. 1, " "	April 16, " "	Prom. Maj.; dismissed Sept. 7, '63; restored to
Do.	Francis P. Gates.....	March 5, " "	16, " "	Promoted to Major. [command Nov. 13, '63.
Do.	Harrison Terry.....	Feb. 14, " "	16, " "	Resigned July 5, 1864
Do.	George T. Williams.....	April 17, " "	July 10, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Martin Archer.....	June 7, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Oliver M. Brown.....	Aug. 19, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Elihu Isbel.....	Dec. 12, " "	10, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Edwin Clark.....	Dec. 8, " "	10, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Frederick Brenard.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Henry Striker.....	13, " "	13, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Seymour B. Coe.....	Nov. 30, " "	Nov. 30, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	James S. Crock.....	30, " "	30, " "	Murdered at Macon, Georgia.
Do.	Addison H. Pearl.....	" "	30, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Jesse N. Squires.....	" "	30, " "	On detached duty as A. I. G. 2d Division.
Do.	B. Fish.....	" "	30, " "	Mustered out January 11, 1865
Do.	Orange H. Howland.....	" "	30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Numan.....	" "	30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	E. J. Wilham.....	" "	30, " "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Christopher C. Clay.....	" "	30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Garfield.....	" "	30, " "	Mustered out December 19, 1864.
Do.	John G. Oats.....	" "	30, " "	Revoked and commission returned.
Do.	Wm. B. Gates.....	Dec. 14, " "	Dec. 14, " "	On detached duty.
Do.	Philander B. Lewis.....	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Resigned July 1, 1865.
Do.	Paul Deal.....	6, " "	6, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Calvin S. Kimball.....	Feb. 23, " "	Feb. 23, " "	Revoked and commission returned.
Do.	John Moore.....	" "	21, " "	Resigned March 17, 1865.
Do.	John M. Keller.....	March 29, " "	March 29, " "	Mustered out August 1, 1865.
Do.	G. H. Clark.....	June 16, " "	June 16, " "	On detached service.
Do.	Reed V. Boice.....	Aug. 2, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with reg't as 1st Lieut. & R. C. S.
Do.	Daniel C. Lewis.....	" "	4, " "	Reported killed on Sultana.
Do.	Garner Stinson.....	" "	4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant.....	Jonathan R. Biven.....	21, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Resigned Dec. 22, 1862; hon. dis. Jan. 21, 1863.
Do.	Frank S. Sowers.....	20, " "	18, " "	Resigned June 2, 1863.
Do.	George C. Roberts.....	Sept. 2, " "	18, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas D. McClelland.....	4, " "	18, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Elisha M. Colver.....	4, " "	18, " "	Promoted to Captain June 16, 1862.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Clark Center.....	Sept. 4, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Honorably discharged January 21, 1863.
Do.	James B. Luckey.....	" 4, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert Moore.....	" 7, "	" 18, "	Resigned June 20, 1862.
Do.	Henry C. Miner.....	" 8, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Richard B. Wood.....	" 10, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	A. M. Hotlebouer.....	" 13, "	" 18, "	Resigned March 20, 1862, to enter reg. service.
Do.	Chas. W. Skinner.....	" 14, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Lewis R. Zahm.....	" 27, "	" 18, "	Resigned December 9, 1862.
Do.	Wm. Maxwell.....	Oct. 10, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wood Fosdick.....	" 25, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as supernumerary.
Do.	George C. Probert.....	" 26, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as supernumerary.
Do.	Victor J. Zahm.....	" 16, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as supernumerary.
Do.	Stiles W. Burr.....	" 26, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as supernumerary.
Do.	D. E. Livermore.....	Nov. 1, "	" 18, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. R. Jackson.....	" 4, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as supernumerary.
Do.	Wm. S. Foster.....	" 26, "	" 18, "	Mustered out as supernumerary.
Do.	Harrison Terry.....	Jan. 16, 1862	Jan. 16, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George T. Williams.....	June 20, "	Aug. 4, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alonzo B. Ennis.....	" 16, "	" 4, "	Mustered out July 2, 1862.
Do.	Francis P. Gates.....	" 20, "	" 4, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Oliver M. Brown.....	July 20, "	Dec. 20, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Martin Archer.....	Nov. 12, "	" 22, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel J. Hansey.....	Sept. 11, "	" 19, "	Resigned June 19, 1863.
Do.	Seymour B. Coe.....	Dec. 15, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George C. Probert.....	March 31, "	March 31, "	Resigned March 30, 1864.
Do.	James W. Lykins.....	Jan. 21, 1863	Feb. 7, 1863	Resigned May 2, 1864.
Do.	Frederick Brenard.....	" 21, "	" 7, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Elihu Isbel.....	" 5, "	" 7, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Edwii P. Toll.....	" 21, "	" 7, "	Resigned March 21, 1863.
Do.	Henry Striker.....	Feb. 1, "	April 16, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Henry M. Miller.....	March 21, "	" 16, "	Resigned November 20, 1864.
Do.	James S. Clark.....	" 20, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Edwin Clark.....	Feb. 14, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Addison H. Pearl.....	March 5, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jesse N. Squire.....	June 21, "	July 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	B. Fish.....	" 19, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Norman Brewster.....	" 7, "	" 10, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Orange H. Howland.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Edward A. Haines.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Thomas Nunan.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Watson.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Edwin R. Harris.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Mustered out.
Do.	F. J. Wilham.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Christopher C. Clay.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Chauncey L. Cook.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Resigned March 28, 1864.
Do.	Wm. B. Gates.....	Nov. 30, "	Nov. 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Philander B. Lewis.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Paul Deal.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Calvin S. Kimball.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Capt.; revoked; com. returned.
Do.	John Moore.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John M. Keller.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	G. A. Clark.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Barney Doland.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Revoked; commission returned.
Do.	Reed V. Boice.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas J. Coslet.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Resigned July 23, 1865.
Do.	Daniel C. Lewis.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Garner Stimson.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David E. Tyler.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with reg't as 1st Lieut. & Adj't.
Do.	Lewis B. Tooker.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles S. Kelsey.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph M. Fox.....	July 6, 1865	July 6, 1865	On detached duty.
Do.	Thomas Marlien.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas C. Baker.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas A. O'Rourke.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	On detached duty.
Do.	John Ducing.....	Feb. 23, "	Feb. 23, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	George H. Frent.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Resigned June 6, 1865.
Do.	Thomas L. McEwin.....	March 29, "	March 29, "	Mustered out with reg't as 1st Lt. & R. Q. M.
Do.	Mahlon J. Bassett.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alfred T. Washburn.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Discharged May 29, 1865, as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Ambrose D. Hawes.....	Aug. 2, "	Aug. 2, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Martin.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Berry.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac Skilman.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	John H. Wecler.....	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
2d Lieutenant	Oliver M. Brown.....	" 16, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Goodnow.....	" 30, "	" 18, "	Died May 30, 1862.
Do.	Harrison Terry.....	Sept. 4, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alonzo B. Ennis.....	" 4, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Elihu Isbel.....	" 6, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Francis P. Gates.....	" 7, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James W. Lykins.....	" 8, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George T. Williams.....	" 10, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel J. Hansey.....	" 10, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin P. Toll.....	" 13, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Oscar W. Truman.....	Oct. 23, "	" 18, "	Resigned May 21, 1862.
Do.	Ralph Devereaux.....	Nov. 2, "	" 18, "	Died June 20, 1862.
Do.	Frederick Brenard.....	May 30, 1862	Nov. 1, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Striker.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. Ransom Hall.....	" 21, "	Aug. 4, "	Resigned March 21, 1863.
Do.	Addison H. Pearl.....	" 16, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	B. Fish.....	" 20, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Norman Brewster.....	" 20, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin Clark.....	" 20, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Orange H. Howland.....	July 20, "	Dec. 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward A. Haines.....	Sept. 11, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Nunan.....	Jan. 5, 1863	Feb. 7, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	W. S. Furbay.....	" 21, "	" 7, "	Commission returned.
Do.	George Watson.....	" 21, "	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	F. J. Wilham.....	" 21, "	March 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin R. Harris.....	" 21, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chauncey L. Cook.....	March 21, "	April 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James M. Hopkins.....	Feb. 1, "	" 16, "	Discharged August 12, 1863.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	David E. Golden.....	March 5, 1863	April 16, 1863	Resigned May 15, 1864.
Do.	Christopher C. Clay.....	Feb. 4, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John G. Oats.....	June 19, "	July 10, "	Mustered out April 17, 1865.
Do.	George Garfield.....	" 7, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. B. Gates.....	Nov. 4, "	Jan. 25, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philander B. Lewis.....	" 4, "	Feb. 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel Currie.....	" 4, "	" 3, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. P. Lee.....	" 4, "	" 16, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Paul Deal.....	" 4, "	" 29, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Calvin S. Kimball.....	March 31, 1864	March 31, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Moore.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John M. Keller.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	G. A. Clark.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph M. Fox.....	Nov. 30, "	Nov. 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Marlich.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas C. Baker.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas A. O. Rotzke.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Durand.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George H. Ford.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas L. McEwin.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Mihlon J. Bassett.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alfred T. Washburn.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ambrose D. Hawes.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out May 29, 1865.
Do.	Francis C. Dodge.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Martin.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Berry.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac Skitman.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John H. Lawrence.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Wm. L. Stackhouse.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Wm. B. Kerr.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John J. Anderson.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	James Merroe.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

THIRD OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

THE THIRD OHIO CAVALRY was organized in September, 1861, at Monroeville, Huron County. It moved from Camp Worcester to Camp Dennison on the 14th of January, 1862. In February following it went to Jeffersonville, Indiana, opposite Louisville. On March 2d it was ordered to Nashville, Tennessee, and arrived there March 18th. On the 29th it left Nashville for Pittsburg Landing. On the march, on the 4th of April, General Buell detached the first battalion, sending it to Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, against Biddle's Rebel cavalry. The Rebels were met and driven out of Lawrenceburg, several of them wounded, one man killed, and six horses captured. A detachment, under Major John H. Foster, was sent to Mount Pleasant on the 6th to seize a quantity of bacon, which was captured and turned over to the Quartermaster. It then joined the regiment at Savannah, whither the Third had moved in the advance of Buell's army. On the 25th of April it marched up to Pittsburg Landing, and went into camp four miles from the river.

On the 4th of May the first battalion was ordered on a reconnoissance. It marched as far as Monterey, and received orders from General Oglesby to cross Chambers's Creek, which was effected, the enemy met, and driven back to their main body. The Third then moved up with General T. J. Wood's division to within ten miles of Corinth. At this point Major Foster, with the first battalion, made a reconnoissance to within sight of the enemy's lines at Corinth. Falling back on his main body, he was followed by the Rebels, and a brisk fight ensued, which was sturdily maintained until a portion of the second battalion was forced back by the enemy. Major Foster, seeing the perilous position of his men, gave up the fight and retired to the main body of the National forces. In this action the Rebels lost twelve killed, among whom was Lieutenant-Colonel Ingram.

On the 27th of May the whole regiment made a reconnoissance, with two others, in front of General Hurlbut's division. The enemy was discovered in force on the line of the Memphis Railroad west of Corinth, engaged, and routed, with four of their number killed.

On the 1st of June the material of the regiment was divided, the first battalion detached and ordered to join General T. J. Wood's division, after which it marched with its division to Burnsville, Mississippi, leaving the other battalions of the regiment at Corinth. From Burnsville the first battalion moved to Iuka and Tuscomb. Here, on the 19th of June, the remainder of the regiment joined it. At Iuka, Mississippi, Lieutenant Ralph Devereux died from wounds received in an engagement near Corinth. The Third lay in camp here until the 30th of June, when it went to Courtland; thence to Decatur, Alabama; and from that point to Mooresville. It lay in camp here until the 9th of July, when the second and third battalions were ordered to Woodville, thirty miles east of Huntsville.

On the 13th of July the first battalion marched to Madison, on the road to Huntsville, reaching that place the next day, where it went into camp. On the 15th it went to Shelbyville, to aid in protecting that town from an impending attack. On the 18th of July the battalion was ordered back to Winchester, where it went into camp. On the 29th of July, Major Foster, with his first battalion and two companies of infantry, went on a foraging expedition to Salem, and, discovering the enemy in possession of eighty-nine head of fat cattle, drove them off and secured the cattle.

Leaving the camp at Winchester on the 14th of August, the division and regiment moved to Manchester and thence to McMinnville. On the 29th the first battalion was ordered across the Cumberland Mountains to Dunlap to ascertain the position of the enemy. Half way up the mountain the enemy's messengers were met and captured—five men and horses, with dispatches from General Bragg to General Wheeler, who was then north of McMinnville, on the Cumberland River. Major Foster took his battalion to within five miles of Dunlap, drove in the enemy's outside pickets, killing two and wounding four others. He then fell back across the mountain to his division.

On the 3d of September the division marched to Nashville, arriving there on the 6th. On the 7th it marched for Gallatin. The division left Gallatin on the 9th for Bowling Green, Kentucky, on a forced march, making thirty-four miles per day, in order to reach that point ahead of Bragg's forces. It arrived there on the 10th. On the 16th it marched for Munfordsville, and encamped at Cave City on the 20th. On the 21st the first battalion of the Third Cavalry had a sharp engagement at Munfordsville with three times its own number, and drove them into their works in three separate charges. It lost twelve wounded and two killed. The enemy lost thirty-eight killed and sixty wounded. Among the Rebel killed was Lieutenant-Colonel Brown.

On the 22d of September the division marched for Louisville, reaching there on the 25th. On the 1st of October the pursuit of General Bragg's Rebel army was resumed. Near Bardstown the first battalion of the Third Cavalry, re-enforced by two companies of the Second Ohio and Third Kentucky Cavalry, under Colonel Cochrane, attacked the enemy, twelve hundred strong, but without success. It lost six men killed, twenty wounded, and seventeen captured. Among the disabled was Major Foster.

The Third Ohio Cavalry, during its first year of service, was attached to General T. J. Wood's division, and during most of the time was under his immediate command.

The second and third battalions, under Colonel Zahm, was stationed, during a portion of the summer of 1862, at Woodville, Alabama, guarding the line of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad. The repeated attacks of the Rebel guerrillas from the mountains of Alabama made this duty one of great activity and fatigue. An expedition under Major Paramore, during this service, to Gunter'sville, on the Tennessee, under orders from General Buell, resulted in driving the Rebel guerrillas from that section. In this affair the detachment lost six men killed and a number wounded. The Rebels were severely punished in killed and wounded. For a period of three or four months this portion of the regiment was almost daily engaged in scouting and skirmishing with the enemy.

The second and third battalions were now attached to the Second Brigade of Cavalry, under Colonel Lewis Zahm, and went into camp at Murfreesboro', Tennessee. With this brigade they formed the rear-guard of Buell's army, and guarded its transportation in the march from Nashville to Louisville in pursuit of Bragg. In this duty hardly a day passed without the train being attacked or harassed by the enemy. Colonel Zahm was highly complimented by General Buell for his success and tact in bringing the trains through in safety.

The brigade engaged the advance cavalry force of General Kirby Smith's army at Shelbyville, Kentucky, and drove the Rebels from the town, capturing a large number of prisoners. During the advance of General Buell to Perryville the brigade moved on the left flank of General McCook's corps, and was engaged in skirmishing with and forcing back the enemy's cavalry. During the battle of Perryville the Third Cavalry was engaged with the enemy at the fording of the Kentucky River, near Paris. After the battle of Perryville it went into camp near Danville. On the 19th of October a detachment of the Third Cavalry, under Major Charles Scidel, with a portion of the Fourth Cavalry, numbering in all two hundred and fifty strong, was sent, under special orders from General McCook, to escort special couriers through to Lexington and Covington—a forced march of over forty miles. This force went into camp near the old plantation of Henry Clay at Ashland. At daylight on the morning of the 20th of October the camp was completely surrounded by John Morgan's forces. They refused to surrender, and made an obstinate resistance, but to little avail. The detachment was finally compelled to yield to superior numbers. After being stripped of their valuables and dismounted, they were immediately paroled by General Morgan, sent into the National lines, and ordered to Camp Chase, Ohio.

An incident occurred on this occasion which strikingly exhibits the feeling against John Morgan. Private Weis, of the Third Cavalry, asked for Morgan. A person standing among the Rebels was pointed out to him as the renowned guerrilla leader. The man immediately drew up his carbine, and, before he could be disarmed, took aim at the reputed Morgan and shot him dead. It proved to be Charlton Morgan, a cousin of John Morgan. The private was immediately killed by the infuriated Rebels.

The remaining portion of the second and third battalions of the Third Cavalry moved from Danville to Bowling Green, Kentucky, and, under orders from General Buell, were stationed on the line of the railroad from Bowling Green to the vicinity of Gallatin, with head-quarters at Fountain-Head Station. General John Morgan's forces at this time were occupying Gallatin. Colonel Zahm ordered out a detachment of the regiment on a reconnoissance to Gallatin to ascertain Morgan's strength and position. The Rebel pickets were captured and the required information obtained. At daylight the next morning the brigade of cavalry under command of Colonel Zahm, supported by a brigade of infantry from General T. J. Wood's division, commanded by Colonel C. G. Harker, attacked Morgan's camp, near Gallatin, and succeeded in capturing his camp equipage and a large number of prisoners. Morgan hastily retreated across the Cumberland to Lebanon, Tennessee.

Here, for the first time during an active campaign of seven months' duration, the second and third battalions of the Third Cavalry met the first battalion under novel circumstances. Colonel Zahm, who was not aware that the first battalion of his regiment was in the vicinity, on approaching Gallatin from the north with his command, was attacked by a cavalry force, which proved to be his own first battalion. This unfortunate mistake was probably the cause of Morgan's escape at that time, and the failure of the expedition, he being apprised by the rapid firing of the approach of the National forces.

From Gallatin the regiment moved to Hartsville, Tennessee, where it went into camp. At this place the first and second battalions of the regiment were, for a portion of the time, placed on duty guarding the fords of the Cumberland River. A detachment, under command of Captain E. M. Culver, under orders from Colonel Zahm, went up the Cumberland River to Carthage to intercept a large drove of mules and Rebel stores which were being removed by Rebel Quartermasters, and accompanied by an escort from John Morgan's forces. After a chase of twenty-six miles, fording the Cumberland River four times, they succeeded in capturing the entire Rebel train and a drove off one hundred and forty-six mules, routing the escort to the train, killing three, and capturing seventeen prisoners, among whom were two Rebel Quartermasters and a Paymaster.

During the time the regiment was in camp at Hartsville it was almost daily engaged in skirmishing with John Morgan's forces, whose head-quarters were at Lebanon, Tennessee.

In December this portion of the Third Cavalry moved from camp at Hartsville to a camp near Nashville, Tennessee, and was incorporated into the Second Brigade of Cavalry, First Cavalry Corps, Army of the Cumberland, under General D. S. Stanley. Under this reorganization of all the cavalry, the first battalion of the Third Cavalry rejoined its regiment.

On the 21st of December a reconnoissance in force was made by the Second Brigade to Franklin, Tennessee, for the purpose of developing the strength and position of General Bragg's forces. The Third Cavalry, supported by the Fourth and First, drove the Rebels from Franklin, and, after capturing some prisoners, returned to Nashville. In this affair the notorious Rebel guerrilla, Dick McCann, was relieved of his anticipated Christmas dinner by some of the boys of the Third Cavalry.

On the 26th of December the regiment moved up with its brigade and took position on the extreme right of General Rosecrans's army, near Franklin. On the 27th a second attack was made on Franklin, which resulted in completely routing a straggling force of the enemy still remaining in that place. The regiment then fell back across the river and moved toward Triune, a portion of the command engaging the enemy that night near Triune. On the 28th the enemy was again engaged by the brigade on the Wilkerson Turnpike, beyond Triune, and was driven, with severe loss in killed and wounded. The brigade lost a few prisoners.

On December 29th a reconnoissance in force was made by the brigade to develop the position and strength of the left wing of the Rebel forces under Bragg. After skirmishing during the day, on the evening of the 30th the regiment was assigned position on the extreme right of General Rosecrans's position. At two o'clock on the morning of the 31st the first battalion of the regiment, being on picket-duty, apprised Colonel Zahm of the advance of the Rebel forces. Colonel Zahm immediately placed his brigade in line of battle, and dispatched couriers to the headquarters of General McCook, then commanding the right wing. He then threw out a heavy line of skirmishers, composed of the first battalion of the Third Cavalry, and awaited the attack.

At four o'clock in the morning the skirmish-line was driven in, and the brigade attacked by Wheeler's Rebel cavalry. The Third in this engagement was under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel D. A. Murray. After two hours' fighting, through superiority of numbers the Rebel forces forced the main portion of the brigade from the field, the regiment and brigade suffering severely, both in officers and men. During the morning of the 31st the enemy captured General McCook's corps ammunition-train, and was removing it from the field. The second and third battalions of the Third Cavalry, who had withstood the shock and remained at their posts, made a dash at the enemy and recaptured the train, taking one hundred and forty prisoners, and killing a number of Rebels and horses. During the afternoon of the 31st the regiment lost, in sustaining a charge made by the Rebels, thirteen men killed and a large number wounded.

At noon of January 1, 1863, the Third Cavalry left the field, under orders from General Rosecrans, to escort a train of four thousand wagons for Nashville after supplies. The train was attacked at Stewart's Creek by Wheeler's Rebel cavalry, and the regiment, supported by the Tenth Ohio Infantry, repulsed the Rebels with severe loss. Later in the day the train was attacked by the same force. A portion of the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, eight hundred strong, being the rear-guard, was attacked and completely routed by the Rebels. The Third Cavalry, in the rear, came up and met the enemy. A sharp fight ensued, lasting till after night-fall, in which the Rebels were repulsed. The train was safely taken through to Nashville, laden with supplies, and returned to Murfreesboro'

After the battle of Stone River the Third Cavalry was sent in pursuit of the enemy, and near Middleton, Tennessee, attacked his rear-guard and captured one of his trains. The regiment returned and went into camp at Murfreesboro'. The second battalion, while in camp at Murfreesboro', was detached, under command of Major Seidel, and reported to Colonel W. B. Hazen, the brigade commander, at Readyville. While stationed here the battalion was engaged in picket-duty, and in skirmishing with General Morgan's Rebel guerrillas. In one of these skirmishes, near Woodbury, a portion of the detachment, under command of Lieutenant Edwin Clark, lost severely in killed, wounded, and prisoners. Lieutenant Hanscy, of company II, was among the prisoners. Lieutenant Clark had two horses shot under him.

While the regiment was in camp at Murfreesboro' a detachment of the third battalion, under command of Lieutenant F. Brenard, while on a scout, was attacked and completely surrounded by the enemy, and a demand was made for surrender, and refused. Lieutenant Brenard then ordered a saber charge, and cut his way through the enemy's lines with slight loss, taking a number of the Rebels prisoners.

While in camp at Murfreesboro' the regiment was engaged in the affairs of Milton, Liberty, Readyville, Franklin, Auburn, Manchester, and McMinnville, in which it suffered in men killed and wounded and loss of horses.

On the general advance of Rosecrans's army from Murfreesboro', in July, 1863, the Third Cavalry moved with General Crittenden's corps, on the left flank of the army, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Charles D. Seidel; Colonel Zahm and Lieutenant-Colonel Paramore having resigned their commissions and returned home. On this advance, though skirmishing with the enemy almost daily, the only severe fight it had was at the crossing of Elk River, where it charged across the river, under Colonel Eli Long, commanding brigade, and routed the Rebels, punishing them severely. Reaching the Sequatchie Valley, the enemy was again encountered, and a running fight of three days' duration ensued, extending to the north bank of the Tennessee River, above Chattanooga.

About this time the Third Ohio Cavalry made several raids into North Carolina, and succeeded in opening communication between the National forces near Chattanooga and General Burnside at Knoxville.

During the battle of Chickamauga the regiment occupied a position at Lafayette, on the extreme left of the National lines. It was attacked by the Rebels and forced back to Charleston, Tennessee. After the battle the Third Cavalry moved as the advance of General Crook's forces, in pursuit of the Rebel General Wheeler's cavalry through Tennessee, engaging them at McMinnville and Farmington. The Farmington engagement was a handsome and successful cavalry fight. Wheeler's forces were completely routed and demoralized, large numbers of the Rebels being killed and captured. In this engagement the Third Cavalry lost two men killed and twenty-three captured.

In November, 1863, a portion of the regiment, under Colonel Seidel, scouted through the mountains of East Tennessee. During this time another detachment of the regiment, under Captain Richard D. Wood, was engaged at and beyond Dalton, Georgia, in which Captain Wood was killed.

In the January following (1864), at Pulaski, Tennessee, the Third Cavalry re-enlisted. Of the original number of thirteen hundred, only four hundred effective men were left at this date. On the 4th of February it left Nashville for Ohio, and reached the camp (at Monroeville) from whence it started for the field, having been absent two years. It met with a cordial reception from the citizens of Monroeville and vicinity.

On the expiration of the thirty days' furlough, 2d of March, 1864, the Third re-assembled at Monroeville. Through the efforts of Major Charles W. Skinner and Captain E. M. Colver nearly one thousand recruits were enlisted, and on its return to the front at Nashville, it numbered over fifteen hundred strong. At Nashville it was re-equipped, armed, and mounted, and went into camp at Columbia, Tennessee having supervision of the line of road from Nashville to Huntsville.

About the 1st of May the Third, under command of Colonel Seidel, attached to Colonel Eli Long's Second Brigade of Cavalry, moved from Columbia, Tennessee, to Decatur, Alabama, and acted as the advance-guard of General Frank Blair's Seventeenth Army Corps, from Decatur to Rome, Georgia. The regiment was engaged at Courtland, Alabama, with the Rebel General Roddy's command. The Rebels were routed, with the loss of a Lieutenant-Colonel, Major, and upward of thirty men killed and wounded. At Moulton, Alabama, the regiment was attacked by the same force in camp before daylight. Although partially surprised, it rallied, drove the enemy from the field, and pursued them. Reaching Rome, the Third Cavalry was assigned to a position on the left flank of Sherman's army, and participated in the engagements at Etowah, Kenesaw Mountain, Noonday Creek, and at the crossing of the Chattahoochie River. It was sent to Roswell, Georgia, to destroy the Rebel stores and factories at that place. In this affair four hundred factory-girls were captured and sent through the lines by General Sherman.

At McAfee Bridge (or Shakerack), on the 9th of July, four companies of the Third Cavalry, under command of Captain E. M. Colver, engaged a superior force of Rebel Texan cavalry, killing a Lieutenant and seven men, and capturing a large number of prisoners and horses.

After crossing the Chattahoochie River the regiment was engaged in the battles of Peachtree Creek and Decatur, and in the raids to Covington and Stone Mountain. In the Kilpatrick raid the Third Cavalry was with the brigade in the advance to the rear of Atlanta, and destroyed a portion of the railroad from Atlanta to West Point. It was also engaged in the Stoneman raid under General Kenner Garrard. In each of these raids the regiment suffered severely.

In the flanking movement on Jonesboro' the regiment was in General Garrard's division of cavalry, and was the first to attack the enemy's forces at Lovejoy's Station, taking possession of the railroad. After the occupation of Atlanta it went into camp near Decatur, Georgia. When General Hood's dash was made it was sent as far up as Kingston in pursuit. It then followed up Hood's forces, harassing his rear, through Rome, Cartersville, and Decatur, to Columbia, Tennessee.

In the first battle of Franklin, the Third Cavalry occupied a position on the left of General Thomas's forces, and was engaged with the Rebel cavalry. It was engaged in the battle before Nashville. After Hood's defeat it followed his retreating army across the Tennessee River into Alabama. It was then engaged in the Wilson raid through Alabama and Georgia, and in the battles of Selma and Montgomery, Alabama, and Macon and Griffin, Georgia. It was also engaged in the chase after Jeff. Davis, in Wilson's command. In the pursuit a detachment of the Third went through to the Gulf. In the engagement at Selma, Alabama, the regiment lost heavily in killed and wounded. Lieutenant D. C. Lewis and a number of other officers were taken prisoners. Lieutenant Lewis was afterward paroled, and while on his way home was killed in the explosion of the steamer Sultana, near Memphis. While on post-duty at Macon, Georgia, Captain J. S. Clock, commanding the provost-guard, while in the discharge of his duty, was murdered by one of the Fourth United States Cavalry.

Under orders from General Thomas the Third turned over its horses and arms at Macon, and was ordered to report at Nashville, Tennessee, for muster-out. Proceeding to Louisville, and thence to Camp Chase, Ohio, the regiment was there paid off and discharged on the 14th of August, 1865, having served four years, lacking twenty days.

4th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JOHN KENNETT.....	Aug. 30, 1861	Aug. 30, 1861	Resigned January 23, 1863.
Do.	ELI LONG.....	Jan. 23, 1863	Feb. 23, 1863	Appointed Brigadier-General of Volunteers.
Do.	OLIVER P. ROBIE.....	Nov. 3, 1864	Nov. 3, 1864	Mustered out November 20, 1864.
Lt. Colonel.....	HENRY W. BURDSALL.....	Aug. 30, 1861	Aug. 30, 1861	Resigned November 22, 1862.
Do.	JOHN L. PUGH.....	Nov. 22, " "	Dec. 24, " "	Resigned February 25, 1863.
Do.	OLIVER P. ROBIE.....	Feb. 26, 1863	March 4, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	GEORGE W. DOBBS.....	Nov. 26, 1864	Nov. 26, 1864	Killed April 2, 1865.
Do.	JAMES THOMPSON.....	July 5, 1865	July 5, 1865	Mustered out as Major July 15, 1865.
Major.....	JOHN L. PUGH.....	Sept. 5, 1861	Sept. 5, 1861	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JAMES E. DRESBACH.....	5, " "	5, " "	Resigned June 4, 1863.
Do.	HENRY C. ROGERS.....	June 4, 1862	June 24, 1862	Resigned March 5, 1863.
Do.	CONDUCE G. MCGREW.....	Sept. 16, " "	Sept. 16, " "	Resigned March 2, 1863.
Do.	OLIVER P. ROBIE.....	Nov. 22, " "	Dec. 24, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	PETER MATTHEWS.....	Dec. 25, " "	Feb. 3, 1863	Mustered out.
Do.	ROBERT E. ROGERS.....	Feb. 26, 1863	March 4, " "	Resigned April 19, 1864.
Do.	GEORGE W. DOBBS.....	March 2, " "	31, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JAMES THOMPSON.....	Nov. 26, 1864	Nov. 26, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. W. SHOEMAKER.....	July 5, 1865	July 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon.....	LUCIEN A. JAMES.....	Sept. 5, 1861	Sept. 5, 1861	Mustered out at expiration of term.
Do.	ORESTES G. FIELD.....	Oct. 25, 1864	Oct. 25, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	THOMAS MC MILLEN.....	Sept. 5, 1861	Sept. 15, 1861	Resigned July 8, 1862.
Do.	J. R. WEIST.....	July 8, 1862	July 22, 1862
Do.	H. B. NOBLE.....	Aug. 19, " "	Sept. 16, " "	Resigned December 6, 1862.
Do.	H. H. FORD.....	Dec. 1, " "	Dec. 1, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	ORESTES G. FIELD.....	March 19, 1864	March 19, 1864	Promoted to surgeon.
Do.	CYRUS F. H. BIGGS.....	Nov. 26, " "	Nov. 26, " "	Detailed with colored troops.
Chaplain.....	LABAN C. CHENEY.....	Oct. 9, 1861	Oct. 9, 1861	Dismissed July 17, 1862.
Captain.....	Hiram Stotts.....	Aug. 24, " "	Sept. 6, " "	Discharged September 17, 1862.
Do.	Conduce G. McGrew.....	25, " "	2, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Robert E. Rogers.....	Sept. 3, " "	14, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John W. King.....	" 3, " "	" 5, " "	Mustered out November 23, 1864.
Do.	Peter Matthews.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	George A. Gotwald.....	" 9, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned September 10, 1864.
Do.	Oliver P. Robie.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Henry C. Rogers.....	Oct. 5, " "	14, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Franz Zimmerman.....	7, " "	Nov. 5, " "	Resigned September 5, 1864.
Do.	Jesse P. Wilson.....	Dec. 12, " "	Dec. 27, " "	Killed near Camp Jackson, Tenn., March 2, '62.
Do.	Wellington B. Straight.....	June 4, 1862	Aug. 24, 1862	Revoked.
Do.	Philip H. Warner.....	March 2, " "	Aug. 5, " "	Resigned September 24, 1864.
Do.	James R. Johnson.....	Aug. 20, " "	Sept. 16, " "	Resigned February 26, 1863.
Do.	George W. Dobbs.....	Sept. 16, " "	16, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Richard P. Refenberck.....	June 4, " "	16, " "	Resigned February 3, 1864.
Do.	Henry B. Teter.....	Sept. 16, " "	16, " "	Mustered out November 20, 1864.
Do.	George A. Boss.....	" 17, " "	Dec. 3, " "	Resigned September 3, 1863.
Do.	Carl Adae.....	" 5, " "	3, " "	Resigned September 19, 1863.
Do.	Henry H. Hamilton.....	Nov. 2, " "	Jan. 13, 1863	Honorably discharged August 27, 1863.
Do.	Milton C. Chamberlin.....	Feb. 1, 1863	Feb. 12, " "	Resigned March 16, 1863.
Do.	James Thompson.....	" 25, " "	March 4, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joseph A. Harris.....	" 26, " "	4, " "	Dismissed March 21, '64; reinstated April 20, '64.
Do.	Wm. E. Crane.....	March 16, " "	April 28, " "	Mustered out December 30, 1864.
Do.	Ambrose McGrew.....	" 22, " "	28, " "	Mustered out November 20, 1864.
Do.	W. Cross.....	Aug. 27, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Resigned August 27, 1864.
Do.	Wm. W. Shoemaker.....	Sept. 3, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. Willshem.....	Jan. 1, 1864	23, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Norman P. White.....	" 1, " "	29, " "	Mustered out November 21, 1864.
Do.	John C. Stewart.....	March 15, " "	March 15, " "	Deceased November 22, 1864.
Do.	Charles D. Henry.....	June 14, " "	June 14, " "	Commission returned.
Do.	Alegho Morrellos.....	Dec. 9, " "	Dec. 9, " "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant Dec. 20, 1864.
Do.	Osborn Smith.....	" 9, " "	9, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Wm. B. Richardson.....	" 9, " "	9, " "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Greenleaf Giley.....	" 9, " "	9, " "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Frank Robie.....	" 9, " "	9, " "	Killed April 2, 1865.
Do.	Thomas H. Osborn.....	" 9, " "	9, " "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Joseph A. Goddard.....	" 9, " "	9, " "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	George W. Leonard.....	" 9, " "	9, " "
Do.	Isaac W. Moore.....	" 9, " "	9, " "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Justice Durrill.....	" 9, " "	9, " "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	John N. Hedricks.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	John Ruff.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Smaucker.....	Feb. 23, " "	Feb. 23, " "
1st Lieutenant.....	George A. Boss.....	Ang. 24, 1861	Sept. 6, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Philip H. Warner.....	" 25, " "	2, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James R. Johnson.....	" 25, " "	3, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas D. Hastings.....	Sept. 5, " "	5, " "	Out of service.
Do.	James Ritty.....	" 5, " "	Oct. 5, " "	Discharged April 1, 1862.
Do.	John Hohn.....	" 9, " "	Sept. 9, " "	Resigned July 1, 1862.
Do.	George W. Dobbs.....	" 10, " "	10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Richard P. Refenberck.....	Oct. 3, " "	Oct. 17, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wellington B. Straight.....	" 5, " "	24, " "	Discharged September 12, 1862.
Do.	August Reicher.....	" 7, " "	Nov. 5, " "	Resigned August 4, 1862.
Do.	Henry B. Teter.....	Nov. 11, " "	11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Marcus Symington.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Out of service.
Do.	Adam Kulus.....	Dec. 12, " "	Dec. 27, " "	Resigned January 3, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Welshear.....	Sept. 10, " "	Jan. 1, 1862	Out of service.
Do.	Carl Adae.....	Jan. 1, 1862	1, " "	Promoted to Captain.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	James Thompson.....	Jan. 1, 1862	Jan. 1, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Milton B. Chamberlin.....	June 4, "	June 24, "	Revoked.
Do.	Richard Scott.....	Sept. 16, "	Sept. 16, "	Killed September 20, 1863.
Do.	Thomas C. Barsdall.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Discharged September 16, 1862
Do.	W. Cross.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. E. Crane.....	Aug. 20, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry H. Hamilton.....	Sept. 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph A. Harris.....	June 4, "	" 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. A. Wellshem.....	Oct. 24, "	Oct. 24, "	Resigned February 21, 1865.
Do.	Norman P. White.....	Aug. 12, "	Nov. 25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. W. Shoemaker.....	March 1, "	Dec. 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Milton C. Chamberlin.....	Sept. 5, "	" 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles D. Henry.....	Nov. 22, "	Jan. 13, 1863	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Ambrose McGrew.....	Feb. 1, 1863	Feb. 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. Stewart.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Cyrus H. Pierce.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Resigned February 5, 1864.
Do.	Wm. S. White.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Mustered out November 21, 1864.
Do.	Aleghe Morrells.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Osborn Smith.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Resigned June 20, 1865.
Do.	Lester L. Taylor.....	26, "	March 4, "	Detached at own request.
Do.	Alvin M. Miller.....	March 16, "	April 28, "	Resigned August 7, 1864.
Do.	Wm. B. Richardson.....	" 2, "	" 28, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Greenleaf Cibley.....	Aug. 27, "	Sept. 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Frank Rubin.....	Sept. 20, "	Jan. 10, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas H. Osborn.....	Dec. 8, 1864	Feb. 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Edward S. Wood.....	March 15, "	March 15, "	Mustered out November 21, 1864.
Do.	Samuel Wells.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Commission returned.
Do.	Christian Tronchet.....	" 15, "	" 15, "	Dismissed as 2d Lieutenant July 16, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Miller.....	June 14, "	June 14, "	Mustered out November 21, 1864.
Do.	J. N. Wood.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Declined.
Do.	Joseph A. Goddard.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John N. Hedricks.....	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Reif.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Smucker.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles P. Bond.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Hamilton K. Williams.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Samuel Anderson.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Dismissed April 20, 1865.
Do.	Thomas Metcure.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Sokomon D. Arge.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Francis J. Gardner.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	John F. Boggis.....	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Henry Deering.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Wm. V. Neely.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	"
Do.	Jacole E. Wentzell.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	"
Do.	Hugh McAlur.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out July 15, 1865.
Do.	Edward L. Quinton.....	March 4, "	March 4, "	Mustered out July 15, 1865. (W.D. Feb. 21, '67.
2d Lieutenant	John Shadle.....	Aug. 24, 1864	Sept. 16, 1864	Dis. Dec. 26, '62, rev'd. hon. dis. Dec. 26, '62, S.O.
Do.	Wm. W. Shoemaker.....	Sept. 5, "	Oct. 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant July 1, 1862.
Do.	George Fritz.....	" 3, "	" 9, "	"
Do.	Henry H. Hamilton.....	" 10, "	Sept. 10, "	Resigned June 12, 1862.
Do.	Henry B. Teber.....	Aug. 25, "	" 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. E. Crane.....	Sept. 15, "	" 2, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph A. Harris.....	Oct. 3, "	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton C. Chamberlin.....	" 5, "	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Andrew Kephner.....	Dec. 17, "	Nov. 5, "	Resigned July 1, 1862.
Do.	George Christ.....	Dec. 12, "	Dec. 27, "	Resigned July 12, 1862.
Do.	Edwin W. Mitchell.....	Jan. 11, 1862	Jan. 11, 1862	Mustered out June 5, 1862.
Do.	Wm. S. White.....	June 12, "	Aug. 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Hayden.....	Feb. 1, "	Dec. 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Silas H. Bascom.....	July 1, "	Sept. 8, "	Resigned January 31, 1863.
Do.	Edward S. Wood.....	Aug. 20, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ambrose McGrew.....	Sept. 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles D. Henry.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lester L. Taylor.....	Nov. 6, "	Nov. 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John C. Stewart.....	Aug. 20, "	Dec. 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Aleghe Morrells.....	June 4, "	" 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Cyrus H. Pierce.....	Nov. 22, "	July 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel Wells.....	Sept. 5, "	" 13, "	Promoted; resigned September 17, 1864.
Do.	Christian Tronchet.....	Feb. 1, "	Feb. 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alvin M. Miller.....	Jan. 1, 1863	Jan. 24, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. B. Richardson.....	Feb. 1, "	Feb. 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank Rubin.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. N. Wood.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph A. Goddard.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Fredrick W. Baston.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	P. B. Sweet.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Resigned June 30, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Mellin.....	" 1, "	" 12, "	Mustered out November 20, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Mellin.....	" 26, "	March 4, "	Honorably discharged December 31, 1863.
Do.	Greenleaf Cibley.....	March 16, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas H. Osborn.....	" 2, "	April 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank Hathaway.....	Dec. 8, "	Jan. 21, 1864	Resigned November 3, 1864.
Do.	Anthony Brouard.....	" 8, "	Feb. 4, "	Mustered out November 22, 1864.
Do.	Andrew J. Jeffries.....	" 8, "	" 6, "	Mustered out November 1, 1864.
Do.	George W. Leonard.....	" 8, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac W. Moore.....	March 15, 1864	March 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Justice Dunrell.....	June 11, "	June 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John N. Hedricks.....	" 11, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Reif.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Smucker.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hamilton H. Porter.....	July 8, 1865	July 8, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Thomas Harvey.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John B. Kirman.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John Given.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Joseph Richards.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John W. Parkinson.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John Zieger.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Wm. A. O'Brien.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Lewis S. St. Louis.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

FOURTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

UPON authority from General Fremont Colonel John Kennett undertook the organization of the Fourth Ohio Cavalry, at Camp Gurley, on the 5th of August, 1861. Here it was armed, mounted, equipped, and drilled; and on the 23d of November it moved to Camp Dennison with one thousand and seventy men.

The Fourth embarked for Jeffersonville, Indiana, December 6th, and on the 27th crossed into Kentucky and advanced to Bacon Creek, having been assigned to the Third Division, General O. M. Mitchel commanding. The regiment with Loomis's Battery, pushed forward rapidly in the advance to Bowling Green, but, on arriving, the fortifications were found abandoned, and the bridges burned. The Fourth, however, succeeded in capturing a train, loaded with a large amount of supplies, which the Rebels were endeavoring to remove south. It led the advance of the division to Nashville, and, upon arriving at Edgefield, the Mayor of Nashville visited the camp under flag of truce, and formally surrendered the city to Colonel John Kennett. The regiment crossed the river and camped eight miles from the city, at the outposts. On the 9th of March, 1862, John Morgan captured the forage train as it was returning to camp from Nashville, with about thirty men and eighty horses. Colonel Kennett pursued and recaptured all the men but twelve, and all the horses but sixteen. In a few days the regiment advanced to Murfreesboro', and from there an expedition went out under Captain Robie, for the purpose of destroying a powder mill and magazine near McMinnville. It was a complete success. It destroyed the mill, repulsing a force of Rebels three times its number, returning to camp without the loss of a man, and receiving the congratulations of the General commanding. The Fourth advanced to Huntsville, and, arriving at daybreak, charged into the town and captured a train, loaded with eight hundred Rebel soldiers; also, seventeen locomotives and many cars.

The regiment occupied Decatur and Athens, Alabama, and successfully held the extensive bridge over the Tennessee River at Decatur, until re-enforcements came up. When Athens was about to be overrun, in May, by Scott's Rebel cavalry, the Fourth went down from Huntsville, recaptured the wagons and arms, and drove the Rebels into the Tennessee River, where many of them were drowned. Immediately after this General Mitchel advanced toward Chattanooga, with the Fourth again in the advance. No resistance was met until Bridgeport was reached, where the Rebels were posted with infantry, cavalry, and artillery. After two hours' fighting they were routed and many of them killed and captured.

The regiment, with the exception of four companies, again returned to Huntsville, and there remained until August 31st, when it covered the rear of General Lytle's brigade to Murfreesboro', Tennessee. The four companies remained east of Huntsville, and finally took position at Battle Creek, three miles from Bridgeport. It having been ascertained that the Rebels had collected a large number of sheep and cattle near Bellefonte, the regiment was ordered to capture them. Accordingly it left camp, but, arriving near the place, was ambushed by the Rebels guarding the stock, and thus lost two men killed and four wounded. It soon rallied, routed the Rebels, and captured about four hundred head of stock. In the latter part of August Bridgeport and Battle Creek were abandoned, and the detachment of the Fourth covered the rear of the column to Murfreesboro'.

The regiment joined in the pursuit of Bragg, and, on arriving at Elizabethtown, Kentucky, was ordered to Brownsville, where Snell's wagon-train was to cross Green River. After about five days' march over a mountainous country, subsisting on flour and fresh meat with no salt, the regiment met the train at Brownsville, and was assigned a section of about nine hundred wagons to guard through. The Fourth brought the train safely to the mouth of Salt River, and then advanced via Shepherdstown, Frankfort, and Harrodsburg to Danville, Kentucky, where a detachment under Captain Robie was ordered to accompany an expedition toward Lexington, Kentucky. This expedition was unfortunate, as John Morgan, with two thousand eight hundred men, surrounded the command and, in a short time, two hundred and fifty of the regiment were surrendered, robbed, paroled, and on their way to Ohio. From Danville the Fourth proceeded by way of Crab Orchard and Lebanon to Nashville, marching sixty-nine consecutive days.

While at Nashville the regiment participated in several skirmishes, and in two raids to Franklin, Tennessee, destroying a flour mill at that place used by the Rebels. On the 26th of December the Fourth advanced toward Murfreesboro', reconnoitering the enemy's position from Franklin to Triune. It participated in the battle of Murfreesboro', and pursued the enemy toward Shelbyville, Tennessee, and on its return camped near Murfreesboro'. It was frequently engaged in skirmishing, and was on scouting expeditions to Liberty, Lebanon, and Alexandria. It engaged and routed John Morgan's command, killing and wounding seventy-five Rebels, and capturing one hundred.

The regiment with the Third Ohio Cavalry, at Snow Hill on the 3d of April, 1863, routed three regiments of Rebel cavalry, with a loss of three wounded and four captured. It formed part of an expedition to pass in Bragg's rear and cut the railroad near McMinnville, which it succeeded in doing, and also captured a locomotive and a train of cars. On the 22d of May it was again engaged in an expedition against a force of Rebel cavalry at Middletown, and attacking them at daybreak, drove the Rebels from their camps and burned them.

The regiment started southward with the Army of the Cumberland June 24th, and one battalion skirmished with the enemy at the crossing of Elk River, and after crossing, continued to drive the Rebels until dark. After continuous marching and counter-marching, it camped for a few days at Fayetteville, Tennessee, and again moved southward, and on the 9th of September fought with Wheeler's cavalry, in the vicinity of Alpine, Georgia, and routed them. The Fourth moved northward, and on the 29th was engaged on the extreme right of the army at Chickamauga, with a loss of thirty-two killed, wounded, and missing. After the battle it marched into East Tennessee, and engaged in the pursuit of Wheeler, fought with him near Farmington, Tennessee, and followed him through Pulaski to the Tennessee River, where the pursuit ended.

The regiment remained in Northern Alabama, guarding railroads and inflicting summary punishment on "bushwhackers," until December 27th, when it moved through Huntsville to Pulaski; there re-enlisted as veterans, and proceeded to Ohio on furlough. Meanwhile the second battalion marched into East Tennessee, made a raid on Cleveland, captured a large number of prisoners, and burned a shot, shell, and cap factory. Falling back it joined the expedition for the relief of Knoxville, and from there moved into North Carolina, and captured a large number of mules. The battalion then moved to Calhoun, Tennessee, where it re-enlisted and went to Ohio on veteran furlough. On the 7th of March, 1864, the regiment rendezvoused at Camp Dennison, and on the 13th started for Nashville.

It was equipped at Nashville, and from there it marched on foot to Columbia, where it was mounted. On the 22d of May it marched southward and joined the Seventeenth Army Corps at Decatur, Alabama. The regiment moved to Courtland, and thence to Moulton, where, at reveille on the 29th of May, the Rebel General Roddy, with four regiments and two battalions of cavalry, and four pieces of artillery, attacked the brigade. After two hours hard fighting he was driven, pell-mell, from the field. The regiment lost ten men wounded, one mortally. It advanced through Sommerville and Warrenton, Alabama, through Kingston, Georgia, and thence, by way of Cartersville and Allatoona Pass, to the left of the army in front of Kennesaw Mountain. It was frequently engaged in skirmishing until the 6th of July, when it moved to Roswell and destroyed some large factories engaged in making cloth for the Rebel army. Here the regiment remained until the 19th, when it crossed the Chattahoochie, destroyed the Augusta Railroad near Stone Mountain, and moved on to Decatur.

The Fourth was on a successful raid to Covington, during which two railroad bridges, two trains and locomotives, and over two million dollars worth of cotton was burned, and five hundred prisoners captured. The regiment was in Stoneman's raid. It accompanied the General as far as Flat Rock Bridge, and engaged the enemy while the General moved on to Macon. After a brisk action the Rebels were repulsed, and the regiment camped at Buckland, July 31st. The Fourth was on several scouts to Decatur, and on the 18th of August it accompanied Kilpatrick on his raid around Atlanta. It was in the advance on the 19th, skirmishing and driving the enemy toward Jonesboro'. At Lovejoy's Station the command was attacked by a large force of Rebel infantry and cavalry, and a severe engagement ensued. Finding that the Rebels had surrounded the command, it formed in column of regiments, charged with drawn sabers, broke through the Rebel lines, and brought out safely all the wagons and artillery. After a wearisome march the regiment reached Buckhead on the 22d. During this raid, it lost two officers captured and two wounded, three men killed, fifteen wounded, and six missing. On the 25th of August the Fourth marched on Sherman's flank movement to Jonesboro', and thence to Cross Keys, where it remained till September 21st. It then marched to Sandtown, and thence to Atlanta, and started northward, having orders to proceed to Nashville to remount. Hood having destroyed the railroad the Fourth did not reach Nashville till October 27th. It remained till November 8th, and being unable to procure horses, proceeded to Louisville, Kentucky, and on December 1st, being newly mounted and equipped, it started southward, marching via Shepherdsville, Nolin, Munfordsville, and Bowling Green, to Nashville, and arriving December 11th. During the battle at Nashville the regiment was engaged in picketing the Cumberland, and after the battle it guarded a wagon-train to Columbia, and returned again to Nashville, December 25th.

On the 12th of January, 1865, the Fourth left Nashville and moved to Gravelly Springs, procuring its forage off the country, after leaving Columbia. At Gravelly Springs it received the necessary outfit for a long campaign, and the time was spent in drilling and in building quarters and stables. The regiment marched down the river to Waterloo, crossed in transports, and moved to Chickasaw. From this point the baggage was sent to Nashville for storage; the only wagons allowed being those necessary for carrying the ammunition, a small quantity of forage, and sixty days' rations of coffee, thirty of sugar, and fifteen of salt; in addition to this each man carried five days' rations on his person. On the 22d of March General Wilson's cavalry command, of which the Fourth was a part, advanced via Frankfort, Russellville, Jasper, Elyria, and Montevallo to Selma. At Montevallo there was a slight skirmish, and on the 1st of April, at Ebenezer Church, fifteen miles from Selma, the enemy was encountered and routed, losing three pieces of artillery and between two and three hundred prisoners. On arriving within six hundred yards of the works at Selma, April 2d, the troops dismounted and established a skirmish-line. Wilder's brigade occupied the right and the Fourth was on their left. The entire charging force only amounted to fifteen hundred men, as one-fourth of the original number were holding the horses. When the word "Forward" was given, the Rebels had already opened with shell; and when the attacking party appeared in full view, it was met with a shower of grape and canister, while small arms poured in their still more destructive fire. Five hundred yards of open ground were passed over, and the works were reached. The men pulled up or pushed aside the palisades, jumped into the ditch, and mounted the works. The Rebels fled and our men pursued, crossing a swamp, and capturing a two-gun lunette; pressing forward they advanced across a cotton-field as level as a floor, and captured another lunette mounting five guns. Here the line halted, all opposition having ceased. Fifty men of the Fourth, killed and wounded, lay near the enemy's works, with scores of bleeding, dying heroes of other regiments. The dead were buried with military honors. The arsenal and navy-yard were destroyed, and April 6th the column took up the line of march, capturing Montgomery and Columbus, and reached Macon on the 20th of April.

Here it remained, performing guard and patrol-duty, until May 23d, when it proceeded via Atlanta and Chattanooga, to Nashville, where it arrived June 15th, and was mustered out in the latter part of July, 1865.

5th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	WM. H. H. TAYLOR.....	Aug. 26, 1861	Nov. 27, 1861	Resigned August 11, 1863.
Do.	THOMAS T. HEATH.....	" 11, 1863	Sept. 18, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	THOMAS T. HEATH.....	" 26, 1861	Nov. 27, 1861	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	JOHN PUMMILL.....	Sept. 4, 1865	Sept. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	FREDERICK SUERER.....	" 29, 1861	Nov. 27, 1861	Resigned May 24, 1862.
Do.	ELBRIDGE G. RICKER.....	Nov. 1, " "	" 27, " "	Resigned March 4, 1863.
Do.	CHAS. S. HAYES.....	" 1, " "	" 27, " "	Died May 16, 1863.
Do.	JOHN HENRY.....	Feb. 1, 1863	Feb. 19, 1863	Mustered out at expiration of term.
Do.	JOSEPH C. SMITH.....	March 4, " "	March 31, " "	Resigned September 8, 1864.
Do.	CHAS. B. COOPER.....	" 1, 1864	" 1, 1864	Resigned as Captain September 21, 1864.
Do.	GEORGE H. RADER.....	" 1, " "	" 1, " "	Mustered out April 11, '65; expiration of time.
Do.	BENJ. W. THOMPSON.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	JOHN PUMMILL.....	Jan. 13, 1865	Jan. 13, 1865	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JOHN DALZELL.....	Sept. 4, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JOHN S. BOWLES.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Do.	JOSEPH E. OVERTURE.....	Oct. 25, " "	Oct. 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon.....	CHAS. THORNTON.....	Aug. 27, 1861	Nov. 27, 1861	Mustered out August 31, 1864.
Do.	DANIEL V. RANSELLS.....	Oct. 29, 1861	Oct. 29, 1861	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	WM. M. McMILLEN.....	Aug. 3, 1865	Sept. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	GEORGE SPRAGUE.....	Sept. 11, 1861	Nov. 27, 1861	Mustered out.
Do.	D. V. DANIELS.....	Aug. 19, 1862	Sept. 1, 1862	Mustered out.
Do.	ANDREW J. SHIMONEY.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	RICHARD R. PIERCE.....	Sept. 11, 1861	Nov. 27, 1861	Resigned February 27, 1862.
Captain.....	JOHN C. CURTIS.....	Aug. 10, " "	" 27, " "	Died January 12, 1864.
Do.	CHAS. S. HAYES.....	" 27, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Philip Trounstein.....	" 31, " "	" 27, " "	Resigned March 19, 1863.
Do.	John Henry Hyde.....	S-pt. 1, " "	" 27, " "	Died June 4, 1862.
Do.	Chester M. Peor.....	" 3, " "	" 27, " "	Resigned February 27, 1862.
Do.	Clement Murphy.....	" 3, " "	" 27, " "	Discharged October 17, 1862.
Do.	Elbridge G. Ricker.....	" 10, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joseph C. Smith.....	" 21, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Phineas R. Minor.....	" 21, " "	" 27, " "	Resigned December 19, 1862.
Do.	Norris R. Norton.....	" 26, " "	" 27, " "	Honorably discharged April 13, 1863.
Do.	Wm. H. Fagaly.....	Oct. 3, " "	" 27, " "	Resigned October 29, 1862.
Do.	John Henry.....	" 8, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Isaac S. Quinlan.....	Nov. 1, " "	" 27, " "	Died.
Do.	Samuel Wamsley.....	" 1, " "	" 27, " "	Resigned February 25, 1863.
Do.	Benj. W. Thompson.....	Feb. 27, 1862	June 24, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Irving Halsey.....	June 4, " "	July 14, " "	Discharged March 24, 1863.
Do.	George H. Rader.....	Oct. 29, " "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Charles B. Cooper.....	D-c. 19, " "	Feb. 10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Charles H. Murray.....	Oct. 17, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. C. Skade.....	Feb. 1, 1863	" 19, " "	Mustered out November 9, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Jessup.....	" 25, " "	May 12, " "	Mustered out February 1, 1865.
Do.	Caleb Marker.....	March 4, " "	" 12, " "	Honorably discharged November 28, 1863.
Do.	Richard C. O'Bryan.....	" 19, " "	" 22, " "	Discharged as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Owens.....	April 13, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Peter M. Hill.....	June 1, " "	June 10, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Thomas A. Tibble.....	March 1, 1864	March 1, 1864	Mustered out February 1, 1865.
Do.	Alex. C. Rossman.....	" 1, " "	" 1, " "	Mustered out February 1, 1865.
Do.	Joseph M. Gowdy.....	" 1, " "	" 1, " "	Mustered out February 1, 1865.
Do.	Rollin Van Amburg.....	Dec. 7, 1863	April 5, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	David Culver.....	May 9, 1860	May 9, " "	Honorably discharged October 15, 1864.
Do.	Adam Landfrit.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	John Pummill.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Anderson B. Wamsley.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	John S. Bowles.....	Jan. 13, 1865	Jan. 13, 1865	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joseph E. Overture.....	" 13, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. McK. Heath.....	" 13, " "	" 13, " "	Detained as A. Q. M., 3d Brig. 3d Cav. Div.
Do.	Henry H. Crapo.....	" 13, " "	" 13, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lee S. Haldeman.....	" 13, " "	" 13, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865, as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	James E. Taylor.....	April 8, " "	April 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. A. Snyder.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865, as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Martin H. Peters.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865, as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	John Fritts.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Wilkins.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edwin T. Shaw.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865, as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles T. Jarvis.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Dalzell.....	Jan. 17, 1863	Feb. 18, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Enustus P. Coates.....	Sept. 4, 1865	Sept. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Elwood T. Miles.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	Wm. H. Straught.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	E. D. Denny.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	Wm. J. Davis.....	" 4, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John E. Craig.....	Oct. 25, " "	Oct. 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant.....	Irving Halsey.....	Aug. 28, 1861	Nov. 27, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel Wamsley.....	" 28, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John T. Taylor.....	" 31, " "	" 27, " "	Resigned.
Do.	W. W. McFarland.....	" 31, " "	" 27, " "	Resigned June 1, 1862.
Do.	Caleb Marker.....	Sept. 2, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles H. Murray.....	" 2, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Richard C. O'Bryan.....	" 9, " "	" 27, " "	Discharged June 25, 1863.
Do.	Isaac S. Quinlan.....	" 10, " "	" 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BARK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Chas. B. Cooper	Sept. 12, 1861	Nov. 27, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Owens	" 25, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Elijah J. Penn	Oct. 3, "	" 27, "	Resigned July 20, 1862.
Do.	Benjamin W. Thompson	" 8, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas G. Wood	" 8, "	" 27, "	Mustered out June 1, 1862.
Do.	J. C. Harrison	" 11, "	" 27, "	Discharged June 1, 1862.
Do.	Joseph N. Shultz	Nov. 1, "	" 27, "	Mustered out.
Do.	James Lowe	" 1, "	" 27, "	Mustered out June 1, 1862.
Do.	Daniel Sayer	" 1, "	" 27, "
Do.	James C. Shattery	" 1, "	" 27, "
Do.	John E. Craig	" 1, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Edward Crapsy	" 1, "	" 27, "	Mustered out June 1, 1862.
Do.	Wm. Jessup	" 1, "	" 27, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. E. Nichols	" 2, "	" 27, "	Mustered out June 1, 1862.
Do.	John M. Hubbell	Feb. 27, 1862	June 24, 1862	Honorably discharged January 9, 1863.
Do.	James C. Harrison	June 4, "	July 14, "	Discharged April 10, 1863.
Do.	Thomas A. Tribble	Oct. 29, "	20, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alex. C. Rossman	" 17, "	Feb. 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph M. Gowdy	Feb. 1, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Peter M. Hill	" 1, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David Culyer	" 1, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alfred N. Robinson	" 15, 1862	" 18, "	Resigned January 26, 1864.
Do.	Adam Landfrit	March 4, "	May 22, "	Discharged August 28, 1864.
Do.	Anderson B. Wamsley	Feb. 25, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Newton M. Reed	May 2, "	" 22, "	Commission returned; discharged
Do.	Elijah G. Van Cleave	March 19, "	" 22, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Joseph P. Patton	April 13, "	Aug. 25, "	Discharged August 23, 1864.
Do.	Thomas W. Hare	June 1, "	June 10, "	Mustered out February 6, 1865.
Do.	John Pummill	Feb. 6, "	May 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James C. Watson	May 9, 1864	" 9, 1864	Commission returned.
Do.	Nathan Long	" 9, "	" 9, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	James D. Hannegan	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Robert Majors	Feb. 18, "	Feb. 18, "	Mustered out February 1, 1865.
Do.	Wm. D. Dempster	" 18, "	" 18, "	Honorably discharged July 3, 1864, as 2d Lt.
Do.	John S. Bowles	March 1, "	March 1, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Chas. E. Giffin	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out February 1, 1865.
Do.	Thomas B. Behymer	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Joseph E. Overturf	July 25, "	July 25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Birtwhistle	" 25, "	" 25, "	Mustered out February 1, 1865.
Do.	Levitt F. Earhart	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Mustered out February 1, 1865.
Do.	Wm. McK. Heath	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry H. Crapo	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Barrington Behymer	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out.
Do.	James E. Taylor	Jan. 13, 1865	Jan. 13, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. A. Snyder	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Elwood T. Miles	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James H. Miller	April 7, "	April 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Straight	" 7, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	E. D. Denny	" 7, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. J. Davis	" 7, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Paulin	" 7, "	" 8, "
Do.	Henry Frank	" 7, "	" 8, "	On detached duty.
Do.	Martin D. Harrell	" 7, "	" 8, "
Do.	John E. Craig	" 7, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Erastus P. Coates	Feb. 25, 1863	March 3, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ross R. Cowan	Sept. 4, 1865	Sept. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Chas. Waters	" 4, "	" 4, "
Do.	James M. Jarrett	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Serg't-Major.
Do.	Henry L. Castleton	" 4, "	" 4, "
Do.	Asa Randall	" 4, "	" 4, "
Do.	Henry C. Warmouth	" 4, "	" 4, "
Do.	Albert Williams	" 4, "	" 4, "
2d Lieutenant	Wm. Jessup	Aug. 28, 1861	Nov. 27, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lawrence Shultz	" 31, "	" 27, "	Mustered out June 1, '62; hon. dis. July 4, 1862
Do.	Newton M. Reed	Sept. 5, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Elijah G. Van Cleave	" 7, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alex. C. Rossman	" 8, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John M. Hubbell	" 9, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Franklin B. Pepper	" 10, "	" 27, "	Resigned October 29, 1862.
Do.	James F. Porter	" 17, "	" 27, "	Died March 22, 1862.
Do.	George H. Reader	" 27, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. C. Slade	Oct. 8, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lewis C. Swerer	Nov. 4, "	" 27, "	Discharged March 25, 1863.
Do.	John Penny	" 4, "	" 27, "	Resigned October 4, 1862.
Do.	John D. Truett	Sept. 10, "	" 27, "	Resigned June 1, 1863.
Do.	Patrick Noonan	Feb. 27, 1862	June 24, 1862	Resigned June 3, 1863.
Do.	Robert Majors	June 1, "	July 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. D. Dempster	" 22, "	" 14, "	Promoted; honorably discharged July 8, '64.
Do.	Adam Landfrit	" 1, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Anderson B. Wamsley	Aug. 18, "	Aug. 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas B. Behymer	Oct. 29, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John S. Bowles	" 4, "	March 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles E. Giffin	" 17, "	Feb. 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas W. Bare	Feb. 1, 1863	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James C. Watson	" 1, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph E. Overturf	March 25, "	May 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nathan Long	Feb. 25, "	" 12, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Thomas Crer	March 4, "	" 22, "	Resigned July 27, 1863.
Do.	James D. Hannegan	May 2, "	June 29, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Birtwhistle	March 19, "	Aug. 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Levitt F. Earhart	June 1, "	June 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. McK. Heath	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry H. Crapo	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Barrington Behymer	" 18, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lee S. Haldeman	July 25, "	July 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Martin H. Peters	Jan. 13, 1865	Jan. 13, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Fritze	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Wilkins	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin T. Shaw	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles T. Jarvis	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Elwood Miles	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James H. Miller	" 13, "	" 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Ross E. Cowan.....	Feb. 26, 1863	March 31, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Francis N. Troy.....	Sept. 4, 1865	Sept. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Henry Wilson.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Eli McMinis.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Albert Hill.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Michael T. Bright.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Charles Sherberger.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Benj. T. Ely.....	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	James M. Jarrett.....	Oct. 20, "	Oct. 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph A. Adams.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Lewis P. Chaddock.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	John A. Sibbald.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

FIFTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

THE FIFTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY owes its origin to the efforts of Colonel William H. Taylor and Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas T. Heath, of Cincinnati, who commenced the work of raising this regiment early in August, 1861, under the direction of Major-General Fremont. It was at first known as the Second Ohio Cavalry, but, upon the removal of that General, its number was changed to the Fifth by Governor Dennison. The commissions of the officers from General Fremont bore date of August 26, 1861, and they were recommissioned by Governor Dennison to date from the same time. The removal of General Fremont before the organization of the regiment had been completed, and its coming under the jurisdiction of Governor Dennison, produced, for awhile, some confusion and delay, the difficulty in procuring arms in particular being peculiarly embarrassing.

The rendezvous for recruits was at Camp Dick Corwine, near Cincinnati, until November 5, 1861, when the regiment was ordered to Camp Dennison, where it remained, engaged in drilling, instruction, receiving and issuing supplies, until the February following.

About this time it was understood that General James H. Lane, of Kansas, was to have a command composed largely of cavalry, and Lieutenant-Colonel Heath and Major Hayes were sent to Chicago to confer with him as to accepting the Fifth Ohio for his South-Western Expedition, but the matter was finally abandoned.

On the 26th of February, 1862, a telegram arrived, announcing marching orders for Paducah, Kentucky, to move in two days. The reading of the dispatch at dress-parade was the signal for the most uproarious rejoicing, and for three-times-three hearty cheers. The hurried work of preparation for the departure was instantly and joyously commenced, although the armament was unfit for taking the field, consisting of but nine hundred sabers, four hundred and nineteen Joslyn's revolvers, and one hundred and twenty second-hand Sharpe's carbines, making but ten of the last to a squadron—which was a poorer armament, perhaps, than that of any other volunteer regiment in the whole country at its entry into service. But such was the enthusiasm of the men, and their eagerness to take the field, that the arms were not complained of.

Lieutenant-Colonel Heath, in command of the second battalion, left Cincinnati on the 28th of February, 1862, followed, two days later, by Colonel Taylor with the first and third battalions, in all eleven hundred and forty-two strong, composed principally of men from Hamilton and Clermont Counties, although Greene, Clark, Preble, and Brown each furnished a number.

After reporting to Brigadier-General W. T. Sherman at Paducah, the regiment proceeded to Fort Henry, where, and at Fort Donelson but a few days before, our flag had so signally triumphed. After a delay of a few days it proceeded to Danville, from which place, on the 10th, the entire fleet, each boat swarming with blue-jackets, at a given signal, cast loose and steamed up the river to Savannah, which was reached on the evening of the next day. Here the horses of the command were taken off the boats and given exercise, which they greatly needed, having been on board for twelve days. During the trip up the river, efforts to draw pistol-ammunition having failed, details of men were made from each squadron to mold bullets and make cartridges from the materials which had been drawn at Paducah and Fort Henry.

On the 14th of March the Fifth was transported to near Eastport, Mississippi, and that evening disembarked six squadrons, which started inland at eleven P. M., under the direction of Major Sanger, of General Sherman's staff, to burn a railroad bridge and disperse a force of Rebels at Burnsville. After a long and wet night-march, having frequently to swim the horses over swollen creeks, the bridge over Yellow Creek, which had to be crossed, was found to be floating, from the high water, and impassable. A return to the boats thus became necessary, and they were reached the next day at noon. This was the first expedition of the National cavalry upon the soil of Mississippi. During the night of the 15th the regiment dropped down to Pittsburg Landing, and the next evening another expedition, consisting of six squadrons Fifth Ohio and one battalion of the Fourth Illinois, under Lieutenant-Colonel Heath, was ordered in the direction of Corinth, and, when five miles from the Landing, in front of Shiloh Chapel, was suddenly fired upon by a considerable body of the enemy, under Colonel Clanton, Second Alabama Cavalry, wounding the guide and several of the Fourth Illinois. A charge was immediately made, in which several prisoners were taken. In accordance with instructions, if Rebels were found so early in the progress of the march, the expedition was to return to camp, which it did.

The several days following were spent in establishing camp and learning the lesson that going to war meant something besides ease and comfort, for the regiment had taken with it up the Tennessee enough baggage and supplies for a full brigade. It was here ordered summarily to abandon the bulk of it, above the allowance for field-service.

At the disembarkation the first and second battalions had been assigned to General Sherman's division, and the third battalion ordered to Crump's Landing, under General Smith. Each of the battalions had many initiatory skirmishes with the Rebels, every day or two, and did not usually have to march very far beyond the lines of the army before encountering the enemy, frequently finding the latter too strong for them. One of these skirmishes occurred on the 24th of March, between the first and second battalions Fifth Ohio Cavalry, acting with an infantry support, and a considerable Rebel force, some five miles to the front.

On the 12th of March the third battalion, which had reported to General Lew. Wallace, was sent into the interior, about twenty miles from Crump's Landing, to destroy some bridges on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. They started at one o'clock A. M. and marched in a drenching rain through the whole night, which was as dark as blackness itself, illumined only by an occasional flash of lightning. The guides lost the way, leaving the men to flounder about in the mud and water, on by-ways and cross-roads, until daylight appeared, when they found that they had made about six miles. At noon they reached Henderson Station, on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and proceeded at once to demolish two bridges. While thus engaged a party of Rebel cavalry made their appearance. All was excitement with the prospect of a fight, the first for the battalion. The Rebels could not stand fire, but fled, and the mounted part of the force gave chase for about two miles, capturing two prisoners and horses, with arms and equipments. After a complete destruction of the bridges they returned to the boats at Crump's Landing, at nine P. M., having marched hard, without food for horses or men, in a heavy rain, night and day. This was really one of the hardest marches the battalion was ever called upon to perform. General Chas. F. Smith issued a complimentary order, on receiving the report of the expedition, saying: "The Major-General commanding tenders his thanks to Major Hayes, Fifth Regiment Ohio Cavalry Volunteers, and the officers and men of the battalion of that regiment under his command, for the activity, skill, and courage with which the recent movement in the direction of Purdy was so successfully accomplished by them."

Between this time and the battle of Pittsburg Landing the battalion was on numerous scouts and had several skirmishes with the Rebels, in the vicinity of Purdy. On one occasion it made a dash upon their pickets and captured two of them, in full view of their troops, drawn up in line.

On the 4th of April, the second day after the review and inspection of Sherman's division by General Grant, the second battalion was hastily ordered out and the first battalion put under arms. When four miles from camp the battalion had a severe skirmish with Rebel cavalry, infantry, and artillery. The Rebels captured an officer and eight men from our infantry, wounding two of the Fifth, and losing twenty killed and a number wounded. The Fifth brought in fourteen prisoners. This affair was promptly reported to the commanding General, with the facts in regard to the force of the enemy, their bringing artillery so near our pickets, etc.; but, on the order of the General, the Fifth and the infantry support returned to quarters.

On the next day the Fifth was transferred to Hurlbut's (fourth) division, exchanging places with the Fourth Illinois, the exchange being caused by the insufficiency of the arms of the Fifth for the daily duty required in Sherman's division. The General declared that it should not again be ordered into action with no arms but sabers and pot-metal revolvers.

Early on the morning of the 6th, while the men were preparing breakfast, the storm of the Rebel attack burst upon the unprepared army, which, being totally without defensive works (and many of the infantry regiments having received their arms but a day or two previous), was almost at the mercy of the Rebels.

At the first sound of firing at the front Lieutenant-Colonel Heath ordered the first battalion, Major F. Sherer, to horse, and, not waiting for orders, reported to Brigadier-General Hurlbut, at division head-quarters, just as that officer was mounting. In forming his lines the General placed Colonel Heath on the left of his infantry, with orders to keep back the enemy's cavalry, then plainly visible in front. The tide of battle was rapidly rolling from the right, and columns of Rebels were in plain view, approaching through the open timber, accompanied by artillery. Our infantry was lying down, and opened fire by battalion at four hundred yards. The cavalry were soon the aim of the enemy's artillery, which was served rapidly, and the missiles hurtled above, below, and through the line; yet not a man of this raw cavalry regiment left standing in line, under the attack of infantry and artillery, in its first fight—and that fight Pittsburg Landing—quailed! During the forenoon the second battalion came up to the position occupied by the first, which was then sheltered, when Colonel Taylor took command. By two P. M. Hurlbut's division had been forced far to the rear. The loss had been heavy, and the infantry were being flanked in the woods on the left, when the regiment was ordered to charge. Lieutenant-Colonel Heath led the right, Major Sherer the center, Major Ricker the left; and, on the bugle sounding, the whole command raised the shout, and with great gallantry charged through the oak woods, hurling back that part of the enemy's line, and saving the threatened flank of our infantry. The column was recalled, in the dense and smothering sulphureous smoke, with a loss of but one man and several horses killed and a number wounded. Later in the day, Colonel Taylor being compelled to retire on account of sickness, Lieutenant-Colonel Heath resumed command. General Grant gave orders direct to the regiment, and assigned it various difficult and dangerous duties and positions on the field, being constantly under fire. The men received rations of raw ham and hard-tack at midnight, standing at their horses' heads in a drenching rain, and mounting again before daylight.

The second day the cavalry was held in reserve till four P. M., when the regiment led the left column and charged the enemy's rear beyond Shiloh Church. At eleven P. M. the command unsaddled, the horses were fed, and the men provided with coffee and cooked rations.

At daylight on the 8th of April the Fifth formed the advance and flank-guard of General Sherman, in the reconnoissance, and, when about eight miles out, the enemy's cavalry suddenly charged the Seventy-Seventh Ohio infantry, killing twenty-five, wounding a number more, and throwing that regiment into confusion. At this point the Fifth Ohio Cavalry charged the enemy, driving them some six miles, capturing a number of prisoners, six caissons, a large amount of ammunition, and a large hospital filled with wounded, which the enemy were unable to carry off.

The behavior of officers and men throughout their virgin battle was highly commended by both Generals Grant and Sherman.

The Fifth advanced with the army in the slow "siege" of Corinth, and had its share of picket-duty and other exposure. It was the first on its part of the line to enter Corinth, and press on to the Tuscumbia River, driving the enemy's rear-guard.

After making expeditions in various directions from Corinth, on the 10th of June, as advance-guard of the Fourth Division, the regiment marched toward Memphis, via Grand Junction, Holly Springs, and La Grange, making detours from various points on the line of march, and having many hot skirmishes with the enemy, especially at Holly Springs, first occupied by Major E. G. Ricker, with the second battalion of the Fifth. On the 27th of July it marched into Memphis, where it was armed with Burnside carbines and permitted to rest the jaded horses. It then did constant picket-duty and made frequent expeditions southward, with constant skirmishing, until the advance of the army on Brownsville, when it again took up the line of march.

The first and second battalions brought on the battle of Metamora—or as the Rebels call it "The Hatchie"—with a portion of Price's and Van Dorn's army, retreating from the terrific struggle to annihilate Rosecrans at Corinth. They fought bravely throughout the day, driving the rear-guard in their retreat, and capturing many prisoners. The third battalion was with General Rosecrans at the battle of Corinth, and behaved well. Captain Norris R. Norton, squadron K, was severely wounded in the subsequent pursuit of the enemy.

Squadrons M and B, Captains Henry and Trounstine, formed one-half the garrison, under the gallant Colonel Morgan, Twenty-Fifth Indiana Infantry, who, with two hundred and fifty cavalry and infantry, checked the advance of Van Dorn's division of ten thousand men, in the battle of Davis's Mill. In this engagement some of the cavalry men fired two hundred rounds from their carbines without changing position! The conduct of this heroic handful of men shone so brilliantly, in contrast with the shameful surrender of Holly Springs, that it caused General Grant to recount their valor in general orders from Head-Quarters Army of the Tennessee, requesting the whole army to follow their example, and ordering that the Fifth Ohio Cavalry inscribe on its colors, in addition to "Pittsburg Landing," the name of "Davis's Mill."

In December, 1862, two hundred recruits en route for the regiment, then at Jackson, Tennessee, were captured by General Forrest, about eleven miles from Lexington, and afterward paroled.

During the spring and summer of 1863 the regiment was engaged in guarding the Memphis and Charleston Railroad and the city of Memphis, being assigned to the Second Brigade Cavalry Division, Sixteenth Army Corps, Colonel A. L. Lee commanding.

Up to this time Colonel Taylor's health had not permitted his presence much of the time with the troops in the field, and being now detailed on court-martial at Memphis, Lieutenant-Colonel Heath was assigned to command. He proceeded to reorganize the regiment, instituting rigorous discipline, weeding out incompetent officers, and educating the non-commissioned officers and men, so that the reputation of the Fifth Cavalry for military discipline extended throughout the Army Corps.

On the 21st of March the regiment marched from Germantown to Memphis, and again picketed that city. Numerous expeditions were made southward against the enemy's cavalry, which had been re-enforced, under the Rebel General Chalmers. In one of these, on the 19th of March, near Hernando, Mississippi, Captain Charles B. Cooper, with forty-six men of squadron F, charged Colonel Ferguson's Rebel regiment and drove him in confusion, bringing back forty-eight prisoners. The next day a severe battle ensued at Coldwater, in which Major Chas. Hayes, third battalion, was mortally wounded. He died the next day, much lamented.

An expedition, composed of one hundred men each from the Fifth Ohio, Second Illinois, and First Missouri Cavalry, was sent out toward Panola, Mississippi, in command of Major John Henry, and on the 20th of June, while in bivouac on the plantation of Dr. Adkins, twelve miles south of Hernando, in a dense fog, he was surrounded by General Chalmers with a force of two thousand men, with six field-guns. In attempting to maneuver he lost his reckoning. The little band, however, by a gallant charge, cut through the enemy's lines and escaped, although closely pursued for ten miles. In this engagement the killed, wounded, and missing of the Fifth numbered eighty men, the Major himself being captured and retained for fifteen months in the loathsome Libby.

The corruption at Memphis was boundless, and greatly tended to demoralize the men, who, in spite of discipline, would get into the city. With joy the regiment, at length, received the announcement of "marching orders again;" and on the 30th of July moved toward Camp Davis, Mississippi, where it went into camp on the evening of August 5th. It was there joined by the third battalion, Major Smith, which had been detached for more than a year.

The action of this detached battalion may be here briefly presented in a connected form. After participating in Rosecrans's pursuit of Van Dorn's and Price's defeated armies it proceeded, on the 15th of October, 1862, to Glendale, on the Mobile and Ohio Road, to guard road and Government property. Till November 8th the time was filled up with scouting and occasional skirmishes with Roddy and Warren. For similar service the battalion was then ordered to Rienzi. On the 14th of November it had a skirmish with Rebel cavalry near Boonville, capturing one Lieutenant and five men, with horses and equipments. Three days later companies I and K captured a Captain Parker and two men. On the 4th and 5th of December the battalion made a forced march to Ripley, surprising a Rebel camp and capturing a large number of prisoners, horses, arms, and equipments.

Four days later the battalion prepared for five days' march, and reported to Colonel T. W. Sweeney at Corinth for an expedition up the Tennessee Valley. Immediately after crossing Big Bear Creek, thirty-five miles from Corinth, it came upon the Rebel pickets, who fell back until they reached Cherokee Station, where they made a stand, but were soon dislodged. They then retired three miles, to Barton's Station, and attempted another stand, but by a dash of the cavalry they were again driven. Next, they took a strong position at a narrow railroad cut in the hills. So impetuous was the charge and close the pursuit that the troops were frequently mixed with the Rebels. Four men of company K were wounded in this encounter, two of them severely. The enemy was now supported by re-enforcements, and contested every foot of ground until the artillery was brought to the front, when a few discharges caused them to scatter and take up a position behind Little Bear Creek, within three miles of Tuscumbia. Here they burned the railroad bridge and prepared to defend the ford with three pieces of artillery. After an engagement of about three hours, mostly by cannon at long range, the Rebels retired, burning their camp and all the stores for which they had no transportation. The third battalion, with a very efficient squadron of the First Loyal Alabama Cavalry, under command of Lieutenant Wm. Owens, of the Fifth, formed the whole cavalry force on this expedition, and did nearly all the fighting. The command returned to Big Bear Creek the next morning. The cotton-stealing part of the expedition was an utter failure, but it captured seventy prisoners, three officers, and a large number of horses, mules, arms, etc.

Expeditions against Forrest's cavalry now became frequent. In one of them Sergeant E. C. Little, of company K, in command of twelve men, was attacked at Rienzi, and barely escaped capture, with the loss of three men. On the 14th of February, 1863, the battalion captured a party of guerrillas in the Brown Creek region, and burned Brown's mills to stop the supplies sent south for the Rebel army. On the 17th it had a skirmish within two miles of camp; and again on the 20th at the same place, capturing two men and wounding one severely. On the 10th of April it surprised and captured a Rebel scout near Jumpertown. Six men, horses, and arms were the trophies. On the 17th it joined General Dodge on the third expedition up the Valley of the Tennessee. After it passed Big Bear Creek there were skirmishes nearly every day. It returned to Corinth on the 23d, where news was received of the death of the late Major C. S. Hayes, commanding the battalion, who had been killed near Hernando, Mississippi, three days before. General Hurlbut issued to the Sixteenth Army Corps a special order, commemorating Major Hayes's services, saying he "had fallen as a gentleman and an officer would wish to fall, in the gallant discharge of his duty," announcing that on his last expedition he secured more prisoners than he had men under his command, and deploring the loss of "the true soldier and honorable gentleman."

On May 3d a party of Rebel cavalry charged the picket and captured three men of the battalion. After a chase of eighteen miles it recaptured two of them, killed one Rebel, and captured several horses. On the 23d there was a skirmish at Burns's Cross Roads, in which the battalion captured ten prisoners, thirty-five horses and mules, and a number of contrabands. On the 27th there was another skirmish and running fight near Ripley. One Rebel Lieutenant and five men, with horses and equipments, were here captured; and one contraband family was rescued, whom they were taking south, after killing the husband and father. On the 8th of June a scout to Blackland met Rebel cavalry and captured one man. On the 15th there was another skirmish near the same place, in which the battalion captured three men, four horses, and equipments. On the 16th the Rebels made a dash on a small party of company E under Captain Marker, at Rienzi, and captured three of them; Marker and the rest escaped by good running.

On the 18th the battalion joined Lieutenant-Colonel Phillips, of the Ninth Illinois Mounted Infantry, for a seven days' scout to Pontotoe, Mississippi. On the 19th the expedition captured the Lieutenant-Colonel of the Twenty-Third Mississippi, with three men, near Ripley, and in the evening encountered a small party of Rebel cavalry, skirmished with and drove them. Through treachery of the guides they were led into the vicinity of a large Rebel force, to encamp for the night. At daylight the party was attacked by an overwhelming force; the infantry and artillery were thrown into confusion at first, but soon recovered, and succeeded in getting into good order for retreat. Meanwhile the cavalry sustained the whole force of the battle, covering the rear. It dismounted and saved the whole force from disaster. The highest commendations were lavished upon them for the courage and daring displayed. Major Smith and three men of company K were slightly wounded, and seven horses of that company were wounded and abandoned.

On the 25th the battalion engaged Rebel cavalry at Blackland, and captured five prisoners, horses, and arms. On the 3d of July company K, under command of Captain Owens, had a skirmish at Rienzi. On the 10th, in another skirmish between Rienzi and Blackland, four Rebel prisoners were taken. On the 18th the battalion moved to attack and surprise a Rebel camp near Jumpertown. It captured nine prisoners, twenty horses, and a large quantity of blankets, arms, and equipments.

Thus ended the history of the Third Battalion, Fifth Cavalry, as an independent command. While this battalion acted independently it was engaged in forty-seven skirmishes and actions, great and small. It captured more than three hundred prisoners, and as many horses and mules. It made marches and scouts over fifteen hundred miles. It lost by killed and captured not over twenty-five men and horses, and had wounded in action fourteen, eight of whom were in one company.

Resting but one day after the union of the three battalions, the regiment commenced the work to which it had been ordered—the protection of Corinth and the railroad thence to Memphis—by marching southward along the Mobile Railroad to attack a brigade of the enemy's cavalry under Colonel Anderson, which it met and drove through Baldwin, and as far south as Guntown, without loss. It returned with a number of prisoners.

It was now assigned to the Second Brigade of Cavalry, and Lieutenant-Colonel Heath assigned to the command of the brigade. The nature of the duty was arduous, and the command was almost constantly scouring the country for a hundred miles south of Corinth, having many severe skirmishes with the enemy's cavalry, always driving them, and capturing many prisoners. On one of these marches, in the latter part of August, Major Rader, commanding the second battalion of the regiment (in violation of express orders to keep the column closed up), in making a night march, halted a short time; then moving rapidly on, took the wrong fork at a junction of roads, and not overtaking the column, marched for ten miles, when he was overtaken by orderlies from Colonel Heath (who had detected his absence), with orders to counter-march at once. Knowing that the enemy was near him, he supposed it safer to proceed to Corinth, some thirty miles in his front, than counter-march as ordered. Continuing his march, in passing by a narrow causeway through a densely-wooded swamp, he was ambuscaded by Major Hamm with a regiment of Rebels. The battalion was completely stampeded, the frightened horses rearing and plunging madly to the rear. Nine men and thirty-five horses were lost. Finding the battalion did not return, and knowing it would certainly be attacked, Colonel Heath moved after it, and at three o'clock in the morning came up to the scene of disaster and gathered up the men, most of whom had hidden in the swamp. He recovered a large number of horses running loose, but could not come up with the enemy.

CAVALRY CHARGE OF AN OHIO REGIMENT

On the 26th of September Lieutenant-Colonel Heath was mustered as Colonel, though he had for some time commanded the brigade of five regiments as Lieutenant-Colonel. He was precluded from promotion for more than a year by the delay in the resignation of the Colonel, who had been at Memphis on "detached duty."

On the 16th of October Colonel Heath, then at Camp Davis, eight miles from Corinth, received the following dispatch:

"HEAD-QUARTERS, CORINTH, MISSISSIPPI, October 16, 1863.

"Colonel Heath: Report to me in person at once.

"W. T. SHERMAN, Major-General."

On his reporting to the General, who had but just arrived to move his army to the aid of the Army of the Cumberland, Sherman inquired how many horses the regiment had fit for a long march, and how soon the command could move. On being informed of the condition and number of the mount, and that, if necessary, the regiment could march at daylight next morning, he said: "I want you to go with me, Colonel. March at daylight in the morning toward Chattanooga."

The regiment, in anticipation of spending the winter at Camp Davis, had built a perfect camp—small houses of split poplar logs, with large hospital, and every camp convenience; yet, on receiving the order, with wild cheers the whole command commenced the work of stripping for the march, and at daylight the next morning left their comfortable quarters for their second winter campaign. Taking the advance of Major-General Osterhaus's division, Fifteenth Army Corps, the second battalion, Third United States Cavalry, was united to the Fifth Ohio, under Colonel Heath. While advancing toward Tusculumbia, Alabama, on the 20th of October, the enemy showed in force at Cherokee Station. A brisk fight was soon brought on. The advance-guard, under Captain B. W. Thompson, was fighting against superior numbers—the enemy being posted on a hill, and protected by the monuments and tombstones of a graveyard, from behind which they fired, when a gallant charge of the Fifth Ohio drove them beyond Barton Station some seven miles. The Fifth camped near Caney Creek without unsaddling, and throwing out heavy pickets on all sides, as the enemy was evidently getting re-enforcements. During the night he made many attacks on the pickets, in one of them killing several men of squadron A. About midnight General Osterhaus sent up to the Colonel a section of artillery and a battalion of infantry; but at four o'clock in the morning it was deemed best to fall back to the division, which was done; and, just after unsaddling the wearied horses to feed, the enemy again attacked the outposts in great force. Hastily saddling, the regiment again sallied forth and engaged them; and so far from being a mere cavalry attack, it was found to be so heavy that the greater part of the division was immediately put under arms and ordered to the support. One battalion of the Fifth was ordered to guard each flank, so that the brunt of the attack was borne by the infantry. Some of the regiments suffered severely; and the Rebels, finding a heavier force than they supposed, withdrew after an engagement of three hours. Drizzling skirmishes occupied the 22d and 23d of October, the Rebels almost environing the division, and foiling every attempt to procure forage from the adjacent country for the animals of the command; and at two A. M. of the next day charged the picket-post of Lieutenant Bunmill, squadron G, but before the regiment arrived on the ground, the attack had been repulsed with a loss to the enemy of several horses and prisoners. As had been the case several times before, the regiment had scarcely returned to camp, and unsaddled to feed and give the backs of the animals rest, when another post was attacked, and the tired men and horses again went to the front on the gallop in intense cold, and for ten hours sustained an unequal fight with Rebel cavalry and mounted infantry, but with comparatively small loss.

It being of the utmost importance to keep the enemy in the dark as to the preparations for crossing the river at Chickasaw, Osterhaus, on the morning of the 26th, sent the trains with escort to Dickson Station, and with the entire division (the Fifth Ohio in advance) started before daylight for Tusculum, driving the enemy continually, occupying the town, capturing a number of prisoners, destroying large quantities of Rebel army supplies, and returning three days afterward. Though in this expedition the enemy had not risked a general engagement, they were scarcely ever out of sight. They promptly followed the division back to its encampment, and upon the next morning drove in the pickets and attacked impetuously in force, pushing their lines to within a short distance of the General's head-quarters before they were repulsed.

The Fifth, in this engagement, as in the eight days of almost constant fighting preceding it, did its whole duty, and won weighty compliments from General Osterhaus and staff. Here the regiment drew two fine twelve-pound mountain howitzers, which were christened "Lady Heath" and "Lady Bumill," and assigned to squadron G.

The preparations for crossing being completed, and some of the divisions having already crossed, the First Division, with the Fifth Ohio as rear-guard—the enemy still following up—marched to the Tennessee, and on the 3d of November effected a crossing. It again took the advance of the division, passing Gravelly Springs, Cypress Mills, Florence, Pulaski, Mount Zion, Fayetteville, Elk River, Branchville, Rock Spring, New Market, Maysville, Paint Rock, Larkinsville, Bellefonte, Stevenson, Bridgeport, Whitesides, and up to Chattanooga, near where a part of the regiment remained during the battles of Chattanooga and Mission Ridge, guarding trains of the division, while a part served as escorts and couriers upon those fields, and followed the retreating Rebels as far as Ringgold.

On the 28th of November General Grant ordered Colonel Heath to report with his command to Major-General Sherman at Cleveland, Tennessee, that General having marched to relieve Burnside, beleaguered at Knoxville. Without food for horses and with scant rations for the men, who also suffered for clothing and blankets, the command worked all night to cross Chickamauga Creek, and toiled on over roads almost impassable, through a country destitute of forage, to overtake General Sherman, who had two days' the start in the march, and had the advantage in roads. The regiment, after three days' hard marching, reported to Sherman at Morganton, and assisted to build a bridge over the Little Tennessee River out of the houses of the town, and then first crossed, taking the advance of Ewing's division.

The third battalion (Major Smith) was detached to join Colonel Long's brigade, which cut its way through and entered Knoxville, giving Burnside information of Sherman's near approach; and two days later Colonel Heath furnished General Sherman an escort, under Lieutenant Giffin, when he went into Knoxville, leaving the troops some ten miles out scouring the country for corn, and using all the mills in the vicinity to grind meal for the troops.

General Sherman returning on the 7th of December, ordered the regiment, with Smith's division, to Tellico Plains, to intercept Longstreet's trains, said to have gone that way into North Carolina. Finding it impossible to overtake the enemy's trains, General Sherman ordered Colonel Heath to report to Major-General Howard at Athens, Tennessee, where the command rested for three days, after marching from Corinth to Knoxville. The regiment was next ordered to picket the Hiwassee River and establish a courier-line between London and Hiwassee Bridge, thus opening communication between Generals Grant and Burnside. This duty was performed through a month of intensely cold weather, the command subsisting entirely off the country, when, under orders from General Grant, the regiment next marched to report to Major-General Logan at Larkinsville, Alabama.

Telegraph wires were taken for miles, twisted together for a cable, then stretched across the river, and an old flatboat repaired, and with men continually baling to keep the craft afloat, in one day and two nights of constant work the command was ferried over the Hiawassee River, then at flood-height. The terrible condition of the roads and the hard winter-weather told severely on the troops, the regiment having lost nearly seven hundred horses in the campaign, and having a large number of men fit for the hospital on arriving at Larkinsville.

After a week's rest at this point, the regiment crossed the Tennessee on a pontoon, as advance-guard of Smith's division, and marched to within twenty-five miles of Rome, Georgia, when the expedition was ordered back, and the regiment reported to General Logan, who had moved his head-quarters to Huntsville.

When Logan started for Sherman's army, taking with him, as escort, squadrons D and I, the regiment was assigned to the Third Division, Fifteenth Army Corps. During the spring it effected a veteran organization. The regiment here manned several outposts some miles from Huntsville, engaged in many expeditions, and, in common with the infantry, assisted in the construction of a splendid defensive work, for the most part blasted out of solid rock, upon the highest point in the town.

On June 22, 1864, the Third Division, with the Fifth Ohio in advance, took up its march to Kingston, Georgia, and passing Brownsboro', Paint Rock, Bellefonte, Stevenson, Bridgeport, Chattanooga, Ringgold, Tunnel Hill, Dalton, Calhoun, Resaca, Adairsville, Kingston, and Cassville, arrived at Cartersville on the 13th of July. The hard service had dismounted several hundred of the men; and, as it was impossible to get a re-mount, they had to act as infantry. Being unused to walking, this long march was particularly hard on them. Here the regiment remained during the remainder of the summer, protecting the railroad from the almost incessant attacks of the Rebel cavalry, a duty which required constant, rapid, and arduous marches.

The battle at Allatoona, seven miles from the camp of the Fifth, was participated in by but a small detachment of this regiment, the main portion of which, excepting squadrons F and L, which had been ordered to head-quarters, Seventeenth Army Corps, were engaged in guarding the bridges of the Etowah, both above and below Cartersville, against the enemy, who were threatening that post, and in making forced marches in escorting supplies for the main army below, which were in danger.

In retaliation for repeated outrages by guerrilla-bands, which had been raised and harbored in Canton and Cassville, General John E. Smith, Third Division, Fifteenth Army Corps, ordered their destruction; and on the 31st of October, with five hundred cavalry and two howitzers, Colonel Heath made the march to those towns, swam the Etowah near Canton, dispersed the Rebel force, burned the two towns (churches excepted) to the ground, and reached Cartersville on the night of the 5th of November, to find orders transferring the regiment to General Kilpatrick's cavalry division, to move immediately.

On the 7th the regiment left Cartersville, and passing Allatoona, Acworth, Big Shanty, and Kenesaw, joined Kilpatrick's division on the 8th, and were assigned to the Second Brigade, Colonel Atkins. Here the work of concentrating the cavalry, and supplies, and munitions had been going on for some days, but so short was the time allowed for this work that it was found impossible to procure horses or supplies of clothing, which the men greatly needed. Hundreds of men, whose horses had given out from previous hard service, and could not be mounted, were organized into a dismounted brigade. The First Ohio Squadron, Captain Dalzell, was here attached to the Fifth Ohio. The cavalry left Marietta on the morning of the 14th of November, 1864, leaving the railroad totally destroyed for miles, and that city little better than smoking ruins. It arrived at battle-scarred Atlanta the same night, and before dawn the next morning, lighted by that terrible conflagration, commenced the "March to the Sea."

The position of the cavalry was on the right of the Army of the Tennessee, which was the right wing of the army, and the route took in Jonesboro', Lovejoy's Station, Bear Creek Station, Giffin, crossing the Ocmulgee at Planters' Factory, Clinton (near) Macon, Griswold Station. On the 24th of November they reached Milledgeville, the capital. At many of these points severe engagements were had between the Rebel cavalry and different parts of the command, in which the Fifth participated. A halt of but a few days was made at Milledgeville, and the column again started eastward, crossing the Ocoee and making for Millen to release the National prisoners, but they had been removed. After burning bridges and destroying the railroad for miles, and successfully repulsing several attacks of Wheeler's whole force, it retired to Lewisville and awaited the arrival of the infantry.

During the fighting at Buckhead Creek at this time, the Fifth Ohio and its howitzer section performed splendid service, which was acknowledged by General Kilpatrick, and the Colonel was brevetted Brigadier-General to date from that engagement. Wheeler having occupied a position at Waynesboro', the command now moved and attacked him, but the strength of his barricades was too great, and a second assault was ordered after the enemy's guns had been well-nigh silenced by our artillery. Moore's "Kilpatrick and our Cavalry" says: "This was the favorable moment for the attack. Accordingly the charge was sounded, and the whole line, in magnificent order, advanced without a moment's halt, took the barricades, and the enemy was forced to retire. After falling back some hundred yards he made several counter-charges to check our rapid advance, so as to enable him to relieve his dismounted men; and he was at one time almost successful, when he was attacked in flank by Colonel Heath, with the Fifth Ohio Cavalry which had been sent out on our right. The enemy yielded to this charge, gave way, and beaten at all points, rapidly fell back to the town of Waynesboro', where he took up a new position." The same work—which has been approved by General Kilpatrick—says: "The charge was sounded. The brave men advanced on the Rebels with impetuosity, drove them out of their position, and taking possession of the town, followed up their routed forces in hot pursuit with the Fifth Ohio, Fifth Kentucky, and Ninth Pennsylvania Cavalry. The pursuit continued to Brier Creek, eight miles distant from the place where the enemy had first been attacked. The railroad bridge was burned, and the railroad destroyed by tearing up and burning the track."

The Fifth was in all the operations of the command, many of them arduous and dangerous, until after the fall of Savannah, when it was placed south of the Ogeechee, near King's Bridge. General Kilpatrick, in his official report of the Waynesboro' engagements, says: "Judging from the enemy's killed and wounded left on the field, his loss must have been severe, as upward of two hundred left in our hands were wounded by the saber alone. We have three times crossed from left to right, and right to left, in front of our army, and have marched upward of five hundred and forty-one miles since the 14th day of November. Colonel Heath and his regiment, Fifth Ohio, at Buckhead Creek. Tenth Ohio, Fifth Ohio, Ninth Michigan, at Waynesboro', December 4th, have all, at the various places mentioned, behaved most handsomely and attracted my especial attention."

At Savannah the cavalry had about three weeks in which to rest the horses, procure supplies of ammunition and subsistence. Then, with a by-no-means full supply of clothing, it prepared, in the words of the dashing Kilpatrick, "to go for the Carolinians." The command left its camp on Little Ogeechee, January 28, 1865, moved to Sister's Ferry, and on the night of February 3d crossed the Savannah and, for the first time, trod the "sacred soil" of chivalric South Carolina.

Robertsville (burned), Lawtonville, Allendale, Barnwell (burned), and Blackville were each occupied and passed by the cavalry, with no engagement beyond the daily skirmishes of the advance-guard with the enemy's cavalry, until Williston was reached, where on the 8th of February the Third Brigade, of which the Fifth was now a part, composed of the First Alabama, Fifth Ohio, and Fifth Kentucky, completely routed, in a gallant charge, the Rebel General Hagan's Brigade of six regiments, capturing five battle-flags and a number of prisoners.

Destroying the railroad at Windsor, the command arrived at Johnson's Station on the 10th and built barricades that night. One brigade, with artillery, was left to hold them, while the other two brigades marched on Aiken, five miles distant, which they captured; but being attacked by Wheeler's force added to Cheatham's infantry, they were forced to retire to the works. Here the enemy again attacked, but were repulsed with loss. The object of the feint on Augusta being accomplished, the command again took up its place on the exposed flank of the army, passing, with continual skirmishing and over horrible roads, the South and North Edisto, Lexington

C. H. (which was in part accidentally burned), Saluda River, Broad River, Monticello, the Wateree, avoiding Winnsboro' and Camden, reached Lancaster C. H. on the 26th of February.

Several of our cavalymen had been captured while out foraging, and were cruelly murdered, mangled, and placed in the road with a label, "Death to all foragers!" Kilpatrick rested here one day, and visited Wheeler under flag of truce in regard to these inhuman atrocities, and it was understood that they were disavowed by that Rebel. On the 6th of March the Lynch and Peedee were crossed, and Rockingham C. H., North Carolina, was occupied after a severe skirmish. On the 8th and 9th incessant rains made the roads almost impassable, but as Hardee and Hampton were both moving rapidly for Fayetteville, the column pressed forward as fast as possible. General Kilpatrick with the Third Brigade, four hundred dismounted men and one section of artillery, having the advance, and camping (after a sharp action with the enemy in which his escort of Lieutenant Shaw and fifteen men of squadron K, Fifth Ohio, were captured) at Monroe's Cross Roads, awaiting the arrival of the other brigades. These brigades, however, having in the darkness to travel over the worst possible roads, and encountering both Hardee's infantry and a heavy force of Rebel cavalry, failed to reach the General until after the desperate engagement of the next day. Before daylight of the 10th the camp of the weary Third Brigade was charged by three divisions of Rebel cavalry led by Hampton, and great numbers of the men sabered while rising from their blankets. The suddenness of the attack insured its success, and nearly the whole command was driven from the position to a swamp a few hundred yards to the rear. Here, having time to recover from their surprise, they formed and, with such arms as they had been able to grasp while almost under the feet of the horses of the Rebels, and assisted by a few gallant spirits of each regiment who had successfully held their ground under cover of the timber, the dismounted, but now maddened cavalymen, returned the charge of the Rebels and caused them to break. At the same time they regained the guns and opened on the Rebel mass but a few rods distant. Their confusion was thus increased, and they were driven from the field and the headquarters recaptured. The Rebels left their dead and large numbers of the wounded on the field. This final victory was, however, a dearly bought one. The loss of the Fifth, in this affair alone, in killed, wounded, and missing was seventy-three, including Adjutant Haldeman, Lieutenants Peters and Snyder, and Surgeon Rannels captured.

A few days later the Cape Fear was crossed, and the command again had hard fighting near Aversboro'. On the 16th it fought both mounted and dismounted, upon the flanks of the infantry, doing excellent service. During the battle of Bentonville a few days later, the cavalry was under arms upon the field, but did not take active part in the battle. It encamped at Mount Olive and Faison's Depot for a week or two, and on April 10th the march was again commenced. A few days later Raleigh was gained with but a slight skirmish, the Fifth Ohio being the first regiment to enter the city and unfurl the regimental flag from the dome of the capitol. Johnston's army having retreated to Hillsboro', the cavalry was immediately ordered to follow and occupy the western line, which it held until after the surrender of the last formidable Rebel army. Upon the surrender General Heath was ordered with the Third Brigade, which now consisted of the Fifth Ohio, Twelfth New York, and Thirteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, to occupy and picket the country for eighty miles around Raleigh, which duty the regiment performed until July 30th.

Just before this General Heath had, in the absence of General Kilpatrick, superintended the muster-out of the entire division excepting his regiment, the Fifth Ohio, with which he was ordered to the sub-district of Morganton, embracing seventeen counties in Western North Carolina, where the regiment under command of Major Bumill, experienced fatiguing and arduous duty in preserving the peace in turbulent districts.

On September 4th the command of General Heath was enlarged to the district of West North Carolina, with head-quarters at Salisbury, to which point a detachment of the regiment was ordered; but the bulk of the regiment remained at the posts in the mountain region beyond Morganton, with head-quarters at "Camp Heath," named by Major Pummill after the Colonel, until the receipt of orders for its muster-out, October 30, 1865, when, after a protracted and meritorious term of gallant service, its members gladly resumed their citizenship.

SIXTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	WM. R. LLOYD.....	Dec. 19, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Honorably discharged April 2, 1863.
Do.	WM. STEADMAN.....	Jan. 1, 1864	" 10, 1864	Mustered out October 6, 1864.
Do.	FRANK C. LOVELAND.....	July 30, 1863	Sept. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Lieut. Col.
Lt. Colonel.....	WM. O. COLLINS.....	Dec. 19, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Detached by order War Dep., Sept. 20, 1862.
Do.	WM. STEADMAN.....	Aug. 3, 1863	Aug. 3, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	NORMAN A. BARRETT.....	Jan. 1, 1864	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out.
Do.	GEORGE W. DICKINSON.....	Nov. 12, " "	Nov. 12, " "	Resigned February 20, 1865.
Do.	FRANK C. LOVELAND.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	GEORGE W. SHATTUCK.....	July 30, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Major.....	JOHN O. FERRALL.....	Oct. 20, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Resigned September 21, 1862.
Do.	WM. STEADMAN.....	" 21, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	RICHARD B. TREAT.....	" 23, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned May 16, 1863.
Do.	THOMAS L. MACEY.....	Sept. 24, " "	Oct. 25, " "	See 1st Independent Battery
Do.	AMANDA BINGHAM.....	Oct. 1, " "	Dec. 31, " "	Discharged April 16, 1863.
Do.	BENJ. C. STANHOPE.....	Feb. 17, 1863	March 30, 1863	Killed.
Do.	JOHN H. CRYER.....	Aug. 3, " "	Aug. 3, " "	Honorably discharged.
Do.	NORMAN A. BARRETT.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	J. C. RICHART.....	Jan. 1, 1864	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out.
Do.	JAMES S. ABELL.....	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	Died.
Do.	DELOS R. NORTHWAY.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Died May 23, 1864.
Do.	GEORGE W. DICKINSON.....	July 25, " "	July 25, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. J. GRAY.....	Nov. 12, " "	Nov. 12, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	JOHN N. ROBERTS.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	MATTHEW H. CRYER.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Resigned June 3, 1865.
Do.	GEORGE W. SHATTUCK.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. L. THOMAS.....	July 30, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Do.	R. E. OSGOOD.....	" 30, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Do.	WM. K. MILLER.....	" 30, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon.....	WM. B. REZNER.....	Oct. 24, 1861	June 28, 1862	Mustered out Nov. 9, 1864, expiration of time.
Do.	A. D. ROCKWELL.....	Dec. 7, 1864	Dec. 7, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	J. C. MARR.....	Nov. 23, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Resigned September 15, 1862.
Do.	C. N. NORTHWAY.....	July 4, 1862	July 23, " "	Dropped from the rolls, Nov. 22, 1862.
Do.	AUGUSTUS P. KNOWLTON.....	May 26, 1863	May 26, 1863	Honorably discharged December 13, 1863.
Do.	JOSEPH HERBLE.....	Jan. 6, 1864	Jan. 6, 1864	Never mustered.
Do.	ASA S. ASHTON.....	Feb. 8, 1865	Feb. 8, 1865	Declined; commission returned.
Captain.....	Amanda Bingham.....	Oct. 14, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Benj. C. Stanhope.....	Nov. 8, " "	" 28, " "	Transferred to 2d Cavalry Feb. 27, 1862.
Do.	Francis M. Shipley.....	" 21, " "	" 28, " "	Discharged March 13, 1863.
Do.	Hamer Hayes.....	Dec. 9, " "	" 28, " "	Honorably discharged February 17, 1863.
Do.	John H. Cryer.....	Nov. 28, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Thomas L. Mackey.....	Dec. 13, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Norman A. Barrett.....	" 9, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John C. Richart.....	" 14, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Charles R. Bowe.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Killed.
Do.	Chauncey L. Bartlett.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned March 16, 1863.
Do.	James S. Abell.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Peter W. Van Winkle.....	" 31, " "	" 28, " "	"
Do.	Joseph L. Barber.....	" 15, " "	May 7, " "	"
Do.	John Van Pearce.....	Sept. 4, " "	Oct. 25, " "	"
Do.	Delos R. Northway.....	Oct. 1, " "	Dec. 31, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	George W. Dickinson.....	Jan. 28, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. J. Gray.....	Feb. 6, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Richard J. Wright.....	" 17, " "	March 25, " "	Discharged March 2, 1865.
Do.	James H. Leeman.....	Aug. 3, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	John N. Roberts.....	" 3, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Lewis R. Prior.....	Dec. 25, " "	Jan. 9, 1864	Mustered out December 25, 1863.
Do.	John Saxon.....	" 25, " "	" 9, " "	Honorably discharged.
Do.	John E. Wyatt.....	Feb. 27, 1864	Feb. 29, " "	Honorably discharged March 3, 1865.
Do.	Dyas C. Ellis.....	April 13, " "	April 13, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Henry M. Baldwin.....	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	Died June 24, 1862, as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Porter S. Tinan.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Honorably discharged Oct. 13, '64, as 1st Lt.
Do.	E. S. Austin.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Killed October 27, 1864.
Do.	Frank C. Loveland.....	July 25, " "	July 25, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	John L. Miller.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Matthew H. Cryer.....	Nov. 12, " "	Nov. 12, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Horace N. Wilcox.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Honorably discharged December 1, 1864.
Do.	George W. Shattuck.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. L. Thomas.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	R. E. Osgood.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. K. Miller.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joel A. Clark.....	Jan. 31, 1865	Jan. 31, 1865	Declined to accept.
Do.	A. W. Fenton.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Detached as A. I. G. 3d Brigade Cavalry Div.
Do.	Albert W. Stiles.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Resigned June 17, 1865.
Do.	Wm. A. Knowlton.....	April 8, " "	April 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hiram G. Sauter.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jacob B. Tempin.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Oliver H. Simons.....	May 31, " "	May 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	Dwight H. Corry.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Commissary.
Do.	W. A. Bushnell.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Resigned May 25, 1865.
Do.	Orlando Ferry.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. M. Davis.....	July 30, " "	July 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Frank C. Moran.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	James E. Darwent.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	Andrew H. Smith.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James H. McFarland.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	C. R. Hunt.....	Sept. 28, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Resigned July 15, 1862.
Do.	Delos R. Northway.....	Oct. 14, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles J. Murphy.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Left out in consolidation.
Do.	R. J. Wright.....	" 18, " "	" 28, " "	Discharged March 16, 1863, for promotion.
Do.	U. H. Hutchins.....	" 28, " "	" 28, " "	Supposed to have been discharged.
Do.	W. H. Woodrow.....	Nov. 5, " "	" 28, " "	Detached by order of War Department.
Do.	James W. Chase.....	" 8, " "	" 28, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Henry L. Koehn.....	" 21, " "	" 28, " "
Do.	C. B. Bostwick.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Mustered out May 16, 1862.
Do.	Wesley Love.....	Dec. 9, " "	" 28, " "
Do.	James H. Leeman.....	" 10, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. F. Reynolds.....	" 11, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned March 20, 1862.
Do.	John Van Pearce.....	" 13, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Lewis R. Prior.....	" 9, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned July 15, 1862.
Do.	John N. Roberts.....	" 14, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John E. Wyatt.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Bettes.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned March 23, 1862.
Do.	Wm. J. Haight.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Discharged October 6, 1862.
Do.	M. H. Hascall.....	" 31, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned April, 1862.
Do.	Oliver S. Glenn.....	" 31, " "	" 28, " "
Do.	Charles H. Hunter.....	" 28, " "	March 4, " "	Never with regiment.
Do.	Dyas C. Ellis.....	" 15, " "	May 7, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John J. McCook.....	Sept. 12, 1862	Sept. 12, " "	Mustered out June 21, 1863.
Do.	Thomas P. Clark.....	" 21, " "	Oct. 25, " "	1st Battery.
Do.	Mark M. Goss.....	" 26, " "	" 24, " "	Resigned July 29, 1864.
Do.	Robert E. Hedden.....	July 16, " "	Nov. 26, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Elias Sheppard.....	Oct. 6, " "	Dec. 1, " "	Honorably discharged March 14, 1865.
Do.	Henry M. Baldwin.....	Dec. 1, " "	" 1, " "	Resigned June 21, 1864.
Do.	Porter S. Timan.....	Oct. 1, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	E. S. Austin.....	Jan. 29, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Frank C. Loveland.....	Feb. 6, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles C. Baker.....	Aug. 3, " "	Aug. 25, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Johu R. Parshall.....	" 3, " "	" 25, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Matthew H. Cryer.....	Dec. 23, " "	Dec. 26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Horace N. Wilcox.....	" 25, " "	Jan. 9, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Johu L. Miller.....	April 12, 1864	April 14, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George L. Wilson.....	May 9, " "	May 9, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Henry H. Abell.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Declined promotion; mustered out as 2d Lt.
Do.	George W. Shattuck.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Josiah E. Wood.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Benj. Bingham.....	July 13, " "	July 13, " "	Discharged.
Do.	Wm. L. Thomas.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	R. E. Osgood.....	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jeremiah H. Phillips.....	Aug. 11, " "	Aug. 11, " "	Died.
Do.	George W. Milliken.....	" 11, " "	" 11, " "	Killed February 28, 1864.
Do.	Joel A. Clark.....	Nov. 12, " "	Nov. 12, " "	Resigned June 10, 1865.
Do.	Alcenas W. Fenton.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Resigned.
Do.	Albert W. Stiles.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Simon D. Young.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Charles G. Miller.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Honorably discharged March 3, 1865.
Do.	Wm. A. Knowlton.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Hiram G. Suiter.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jacob B. Templu.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Oliver H. Simons.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Dwight H. Corry.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	W. A. Bushnell.....	Jan. 31, 1865	Jan. 31, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Orlando Ferry.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. M. Davis.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Frank C. Moran.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ezra A. Faunce.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Ord. Sergeant.
Do.	David C. Ruhl.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Resigned May 25, 1865.
Do.	Andrew H. Smith.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James H. McFarland.....	April 8, " "	April 8, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Anderson.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "	Died in prison November 14, 1864.
Do.	Wallace H. Bullard.....	" 8, " "	" 8, " "
Do.	James E. Darwent.....	May 31, " "	May 31, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. H. Kneal.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Declined to accept.
Do.	Hiram A. Walling.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment, non-comm'd.
Do.	Charles G. Steadman.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment, non-comm'd.
Do.	John W. Wilcox.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment, non-comm'd.
Do.	Charles P. McElligott.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	David McIntosh.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "
Do.	J. W. Kirk.....	July 30, " "	Sept. 4, " "
Do.	Wm. S. Stegelmau.....	" 30, " "	" 4, " "
Do.	Jerome Pickett.....	" 30, " "	" 4, " "
Do.	Doctor F. Burgess.....	" 30, " "	" 4, " "
Do.	Charles Walcott.....	" 30, " "	" 4, " "
Do.	D. W. Suydam.....	" 30, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Reg. Com. Sgt.
Do.	Henry Wilcox.....	" 30, " "	" 4, " "	Mustered out as Sergeant-Major.
2d Lieutenant	Thomas P. Clark.....	Oct. 1, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Elias Sheppard.....	" 8, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Porter S. Timan.....	" 14, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lysander Pelton.....	Nov. 8, " "	" 28, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. H. Brown.....	" 21, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Carman Vauanda.....	Dec. 9, " "	" 28, " "	Honorably discharged February 17, 1863.
Do.	John L. Miller.....	" 10, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert E. Hedden.....	" 9, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George L. Wilson.....	" 14, " "	" 28, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Josiah D. Freer.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned May 16, 1862.
Do.	Henry H. Abell.....	" 16, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned.
Do.	George W. Doggett.....	" 31, " "	" 28, " "	Resigned April 20, 1863.
Do.	George W. Shattuck.....	" 15, " "	May 7, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John G. Keeves.....	Sept. 21, 1862	Oct. 25, " "
Do.	Josiah E. Wood.....	July 16, " "	Dec. 1, " "
Do.	Wm. L. Thomas.....	April 1, " "	Aug. 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	R. E. Osgood.....	May 16, " "	Dec. 1, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Oliver C. Russell.....	Oct. 1, " "	" 31, " "	Honorably discharged July 12, 1864.
Do.	Wm. C. St. John.....	Jan. 29, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Honorably discharged November 25, 1863.
Do.	Benj. Bingham.....	Feb. 10, " "	" 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jeremiah H. Phillips.....	" 17, " "	Aug. 10, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Milliken.....	Dec. 25, " "	Jan. 9, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. K. Miller.....	" 27, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Alcenas W. Fenton.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Albert W. Stiles.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Simon D. Young.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. G. Miller.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. Knowlton.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hiram G. Suiter.....	July 23, "	July 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob B. Templin.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Marshall.....	" "	" "	Dis. Sept. 3, '64; revoked: hon. dis. Sept. 3, '64.
Do.	Joel A. Clark.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	W. A. Bushnell.....	Nov. 12, "	Nov. 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Orlando Ferry.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. M. Davis.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank Towsley.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Dead.
Do.	Frank C. Moran.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ezra A. Faunce.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James H. McFarland.....	Jan. 31, 1865	Jan. 31, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James E. Dawent.....	April 8, "	April 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Kneel.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant; mustered out.
Do.	Hiram A. Walling.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. G. Steadman.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Wilcox.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Aaron Wagoner.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Resigned June 22, 1865.
Do.	Chas. P. McElligott.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Doctor F. Burgess.....	May 31, "	May 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. Walcott.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. S. Stigleman.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jerome Pickett.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Fletcher Golden.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. W. Kirk.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	D. W. Snyder.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Adams.....	July 30, "	Sept. 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	George Taylor.....	" 30, "	" 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Wm. B. Brisbane.....	" 30, "	" 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	David H. Sears.....	" 30, "	" 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Joseph Phileman.....	" 30, "	" 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Hill D. Mercer.....	" 30, "	" 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Henry C. DeWolf.....	" 30, "	" 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Isaac N. Crooks.....	" 30, "	" 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	Wm. G. Lambert.....	" 30, "	" 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.
Do.	George C. Sheppard.....	" 30, "	" 4, "	Mustered out as Sergeant.

SIXTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

THE SIXTH OHIO CAVALRY was organized in October, 1861, at Camp Hutchins, Warren, Ohio, and was the second regiment in Wade and Hutchins's Cavalry Brigade, authorized by the War Department. It was mostly recruited from the Western Reserve. In January, 1862, the regiment moved from Camp Hutchins to Camp Dennison, where it was drilled until March; when it was sent to Camp Chase to assist in guarding Rebel prisoners. Early in May it received sabers and belts, and on the 13th of May was sent to Wheeling, Virginia, where horses, carbines, and pistols were supplied them, and the regiment, equipped for the field, was ordered to join Fremont at Franklin; but, instead, joined him at Strasburg in his pursuit of Jackson down the Shenandoah Valley.

At Strasburg the regiment had its first fight, into which it entered with the same spirit that ever after distinguished it through all its hard-fought battles. In this engagement Lieutenant Osgood, company K, and six men were wounded. It moved on down the valley, continually skirmishing with the Second and Sixth Virginia Cavalry, forming the Rebel rear-guard, under General Turner Ashby. On June 6th that notorious Rebel was killed. On June 7th, at the battle of Cross Keys, the Sixth was again engaged, losing several killed and wounded. Returning with Fremont to Strasburg it encamped. Its next movements were made under orders of General Sigel (who had relieved Fremont), scouting, picketing, and fighting the guerrillas which remained in that region. It moved thence to Luray C. H., where a lively skirmish occurred; a small party of Rebel cavalry charging into the town and driving in the pickets of the regiment. Leaving Luray the regiment found its next scene of action at Cedar Mountain, though it was not here seriously engaged.

Coming under Pope's command while falling back before Jackson, it was under fire for four consecutive days, in contesting the passage of the Rappahannock. At the second Bull Run, August 29th, it was engaged, doing good service throughout that day. Retreating with the army to Alexandria, the regiment went into camp at Hall's Farm to recruit their worn-out horses. Moving from Hall's Farm the regiment encamped at Centerville, doing picket and scout-duty. On a reconnoissance to Warrenton it found the enemy in force, and sharp fighting occurred, in which its loss was four wounded and six captured, though the enemy were driven from their position. No movement of importance occurred until Burnside's advance toward Fredericksburg, when Captain Dahlgren, of Sigel's staff, with sixty men of the Sixth and one company of Sigel's body-guard, made a dash into Fredericksburg, capturing a Rebel mail and several prisoners, with little loss to themselves.

Going into winter-quarters at Potomac Creek Station the Sixth passed the winter of 1862-3 in guarding the Rappahannock, and reorganizing for the spring campaign under Hooker. In March, 1863, it was engaged at the battle of Kelly's Ford, in which it was demonstrated that, properly handled, our cavalry was equal if not superior to that of the enemy. Lieutenant Wilson and Captain John Roberts were here wounded, and thirteen men were killed and wounded.

On the opening of the spring campaign the Sixth was with Stoneman in his raid, but Hooker's movement at Chancellorsville not being a success, it returned with the army to the north side of the Rappahannock. In Lee's movement toward Maryland the regiment had several severe actions. In that of Stevensburg Major Stanhope was mortally wounded (June 9th). At the battle of Aldie (June 17th) General Kilpatrick ordered Colonel Steadman to charge, with one squadron, the head of an advancing Rebel column. Captain Northway, company A, was ordered to make the charge, which he did, only seven men returning unhurt out of thirty engaged, nearly every one being wounded in a hand-to-hand conflict. The Captain himself had a severe saber-cut on the cheek. That charge was not surpassed during the war.

At the battles of Middleburg and Upperville, June 27th, and during all the engagements with Stuart, the regiment did its share. Following Lee into Maryland it participated in the battle of Gettysburg. With Kilpatrick's brigade it was engaged July 3d in capturing and destroying a train of three hundred wagons. Night and day it was in the saddle during Lee's retreat from Maryland. It assisted at Falling Waters in capturing the rear-guard, fifteen hundred of the foot-sore and despondent enemy.

Crossing the Potomac on pontoons at Harper's Ferry it proceeded to discover Lee's whereabouts, and finally went into camp at Thoroughfare Gap. On the 1st of September Major J. H. Cryer, with a patrol of fifty men were ambushed by about two hundred dismounted Rebel cavalry, and after sharp fighting, Major Cryer (severely wounded) with only seven of his men unhurt reached camp. On Meade's advance to the Rapidan it was again engaged at Culpepper C. H. At Rapidan Station, October 13th, another severe engagement occurred, in which Lieutenant Russell was severely wounded, and three men killed and eight wounded. On Meade's retrograde movement, October 14th, sharp actions were fought at Sulphur Springs, at Auburn Mills, and Bristoe Station. In the engagement at Auburn Mills Captain C. R. Rowe was mortally wounded. Captain Richart and Lieutenants Bingham and Miller were wounded, together with thirteen men killed and wounded.

On the same day, at the battle of Bristoe Station, Captain J. H. Leeman, with one squadron, was ordered to charge through the Rebel lines and report to the rear-guard, who were not yet up, that the enemy had obtained possession of the road, a feat which he successfully accomplished without much loss. He captured more prisoners than he had men, but was obliged to release them, as his movements were too slow while encumbered with them. He returned next day with the rear-guard, having reached the command by taking another road. Late in November the regiment participated in the forward movement ending at the battle of Mine Run. Considerable fighting was witnessed in this movement, but the losses were not heavy. The Sixth, soon after, went into winter-quarters at Warrenton, where it spent the winter in picketing the rear and right of our army, and protecting it from raids from the notorious Moseby. Hardly a day elapsed without an encounter of some kind, and many were the pickets driven in upon the reserve, during this memorable winter. Some, braver than others, were shot on their posts by these raiding guerrillas. Among these was private George Bigelow, of company A, who was killed in broad daylight by a dashing Rebel cavalier riding up and shooting him. Lieutenant Russell, of company A, with a small force of his reserve, gave pursuit, and the Lieutenant being better mounted than his men outstripped them. Gaining rapidly on the pursued Rebel he was soon within pistol shot, and had emptied his revolver without effect, when, drawing his saber, he ordered a surrender; but the Rebel had no notion of surrendering to equal forces, and drawing his own pistol commenced a rearward fire, one shot of which took effect in the Lieutenant's sword-hand; but notwithstanding, he, having now come to close-quarters, by several well-directed blows over the head of the Rebel, brought him to the ground a prisoner. He proved to be one of Moseby's Lieutenants, and a "chivalric South Carolinian." Many were the midnight marches made this winter with a view to surprise Moseby in his camp, but none of them fully succeeded, he being too wary to be caught napping.

Some two hundred of the regiment re-enlisted as veterans in January, 1864, and were furloughed in accordance with general orders, with their officers, who were absent recruiting their companies, so that on the opening of the spring campaign the Sixth was filled again nearly to its maximum number.

On May 3, 1864, the regiment broke camp and started on the spring campaign, full of hope that "sixty days would end the rebellion." It was engaged in several skirmishes and actions, ending in the battle of the Wilderness; and on the 9th of May accompanied Sheridan in his raid on the enemy's lines of supply and his attempt on Richmond. It was rear-guard the first day out, and as such received several charges during the day from Stuart's chosen regiments, all of which were repulsed, not without severe loss on its part, but with greater on that of the enemy. Captain Abell was instantly killed in repelling one of these charges. Several men were killed and some thirty wounded; among the latter Sergeant Mortimer Baker, shot through the lungs, who fell into the hands of the enemy, recovered, and was a prisoner in Andersonville for many months, but was finally exchanged, and was afterward Captain in the One Hundred and Eighty-First Infantry.

Moving on with Sheridan the Sixth was engaged May 11th in the battle of Yellow Tavern, where General Stuart was killed. May 12th it fought a severe battle inside the defenses of Richmond, where Stuart's cavalry was scattered to the winds. It arrived at Haxall's Landing on the James, where men and horses were recruited for a few days. On May 28th it was engaged in the hard-fought battle of Owen Church, where Captain Northway and thirteen men were killed, and four officers and thirty-one men wounded. In Delos R. Northway the regiment met its greatest loss. Ever in the front of battle he knew no danger. His men worshiped him; and though many thousands have evinced as fervid and pure a patriotism, yet no one sacrificed more for his country's sake or gave his life more joyfully for her deliverance.

On May 31st the Sixth was engaged in the battle of Cold Harbor, where Captain Frank C. Loveland and several men were wounded. On June 6th the regiment was ordered to make a reconnoissance to Bottom Bridge, and, finding the enemy, to drive him across the river, which it successfully accomplished after a sharp engagement, with considerable loss.

On June 7th the regiment started with Sheridan's command to raid on Gordonsville, expecting to join Hunter's command from Western Virginia, but at Trevillian Station the enemy were met in such force that after two days of hard fighting the command returned to the James, the regiment being detailed to escort four hundred prisoners captured in the engagements. During the march to the James, it being excessively hot weather, several of the prisoners were sun-struck, notwithstanding that the regiment dismounted several times during the march and allowed them to ride.

On the 24th of June the division (Gregg's) was fiercely attacked by the whole force of Rebel cavalry, which had followed to and from Trevillian Station, and a hard-fought battle occurred, in which the Sixth suffered severely. As the division was finally driven, in some confusion, from the field, the regiment was ordered to form the rear-guard, in which duty it was probably excelled by no regiment in the army. Several charges of the enemy were met and repulsed. One squadron, under Captain James H. Leeman, was particularly noticed, from the manner in which it fought after every other squadron had been broken, but for which nearly the whole regiment would have been captured. Adjutant Henry M. Baldwin was left dead on the field, and several men were killed and wounded.

Crossing the James with Grant's army the Sixth found no time to rest, but pushed around our left to Ream's Station, in the hope of assisting Wilson, who was being badly handled. Finding it too late to assist him, the regiment soon after went into camp, near Prince George C. H., where several days were allowed it to recruit. It was then ordered to cross the James, where it soon became engaged, fighting the cavalry battle of Malvern Hill, in which Lieutenant-Colonel Barrett was wounded. It then recrossed the river, and made a rapid march around to the left, where our troops were fighting for the Weldon Railroad. The regiment was again engaged here. Our hold being firmly established on this important line of the enemy, the cavalry was allowed to encamp in rear of our works around Petersburg, and for some weeks only light picket-duty was required. Soon our lines need extending, and again the regiment crosses the James, fighting, skirmishing, and picketing, and finally returns to its camp, only to be called out, to have the same fighting done again, as our line on the left becomes lengthened, reaching to Hutchins's Run. Here, on the 27th of October, another severe battle is fought, in which its loss is severe—most severe of all in the loss of Captain E. S. Austin, whose coolness and perception in battle could not be surpassed. Only a few days previous to his death he had, while in command of an advance-guard, which was moving at night over an unfrequented road, captured the Adjutant-General of the Rebel brigade commander, whose brigade was moving over the same road, utterly unsuspecting of danger. Hearing the advancing columns he took position as sentinel, and waiting until they were within hearing distance, called out: "Halt! Who comes there?" "Friends," was the prompt answer. "Advance one with the countersign," said Captain Austin. One did advance, and as he proved to be a Captain and Adjutant-General of a Rebel brigade of cavalry, his surrender was requested and given. All was so quietly done that his command had no intimation of what was transpiring until a volley from the carbines of our advance-guard sent them scattering toward their own lines.

Returning to camp after this battle, the regiment went into winter-quarters, although campaigning did not end here, for on the 9th of December it again moved out on the left, with the usual amount of fighting. In all these movements there was one special place which the Sixth was destined to fill—that of advance-guard. Any point which they failed to carry while in this position was not designated for any other regiment (either cavalry or infantry) to attack.

This movement ended the fighting in the campaign of 1864; but that of 1865 was inaugurated February 3d, by still another march to our left, over the old beaten and bloody track, ending in a severe fight at Hatcher's Run, in which its loss was considerable. On the opening of the spring campaign the regiment was engaged in the battle of Dinwiddie C. H., where Smith's brigade, of Crook's division, in which the regiment was serving, held their lines until one-third of the whole force were killed or wounded, during which time support had come up. The next day the Sixth participated in the battle of Five Forks, where the fate of Richmond was sealed. During the pursuit of Lee the regiment did its full share of the fighting and marching, having severe engagements at Sailor's Creek and again at Farmville. At the battle of Appomattox C. H., on April 9th, this regiment had the honor of opening the engagement, it having marched during the night to a position across the only road left for the retreat of the Rebel army. Soon after daylight on that memorable morning an attack was made on our line, which had been fortified with a rail breastwork, and after a spirited resistance the regiment fell back, only to show to pursuing Rebels our strong lines of infantry, who had come up during the early morning. The attack had ended, a white flag was flying along the Rebel front, and the work for which they had fought so long and so well was accomplished.

The next day the regiment was detailed to escort General Grant from Appomattox to Burksville Station. Soon after it marched back to Petersburg, where it encamped until again summoned to the field. It marched through Virginia to North Carolina. When Johnston's surrender was announced it returned to Petersburg, and was soon after sent in detachments to different counties composing the "Sub-district of the Appomattox," Brevet Brigadier-General C. H. Smith, First Maine Cavalry, commanding. In August the regiment was ordered to Cleveland, Ohio, where it was mustered out of service.

During the last six months of its campaigning it was under command of a Captain, as it had not a field officer with it, nor in its organization. Nearly all of its veteran officers were mustered out of service in November, 1864, and not a sufficient number of men were on the rolls to have them replaced; but in a regiment composed of material like this it made little difference whether they were commanded by a Captain or a Brevet-Brigadier. As a newspaper regiment it has not much history. Its record shows best in the rolls of the killed and wounded, and the long list of its honorable engagements.

7th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	ISRAEL GARRARD.....	Sept. 18, 1862	Dec. 15, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	GEORGE G. MINER.....	" 18, " "	" 15, " "	On detached duty.
Major.....	WM. REANY.....	" 20, " "	" 15, " "	Mustered out July 4, 1865.
Do.....	AUGUSTUS NORTON.....	Dec. 28, " "	Oct. 3, 1863	Resigned January 30, 1864.
Do.....	JAMES MCINTYRE.....	July 1, 1863	" 3, " "	Resigned March 26, 1864.
Do.....	WM. T. SIMPSON.....	March 28, 1864	March 28, 1864	Resigned August 25, 1864. [Dept. May 5, '65.
Do.....	JOHN LEAPER.....	July 13, " "	July 13, " "	Disch. as Capt. Oct. 25, '64; reinstated by War
Do.....	SOLOMON L. GREEN.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	ISAAC TRAVIS.....	" 9, 1862	Dec. 15, 1862	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	R. H. TULLIS.....	Nov. 6, " "	" 15, " "	Died at Marietta, Georgia.
Do.....	P. G. BARRETT.....	June 9, 1863	June 10, 1863	Honorably discharged October 26, 1864.
Do.....	JOHN KRAPS.....	Jan. 4, 1865	Jan. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	James McIntyre.....	Aug. 25, 1862	Dec. 15, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Wm. T. Simp-ou.....	" 25, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	A. D. Eells.....	" 27, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned June 28, 1863.
Do.....	John Leaper.....	" 27, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Allen S. Brownfield.....	" 28, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned June 3, 1863.
Do.....	John D. Kinney.....	Sept. 1, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned December 13, 1862.
Do.....	Augustus Norton.....	" 2, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Joel P. Hieley.....	" 3, " "	" 15, " "	Killed at Blue Springs, September 10, 1863.
Do.....	Wm. H. Lewis.....	" 5, " "	" 15, " "	Honorably discharged August 17, 1863.
Do.....	James C. Campbell.....	" 12, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned January 27, 1864.
Do.....	Solomon L. Green.....	" 20, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Eben Lindsay.....	Nov. 1, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned December 25, 1863.
Do.....	John A. Ashbury.....	Dec. 13, " "	" 15, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Nehemiah Warren.....	May 25, 1863	June 10, 1863	Resigned July 20, 1864.
Do.....	Lester G. Moore.....	June 3, " "	" 10, " "	Resigned as 1st Lieut. June 3, 1863.
Do.....	Joseph B. Copeland.....	" 3, " "	Oct. 3, " "	Honorably discharged May 15, 1865.
Do.....	Richard C. Rankin.....	Jan. 1, " "	April 2, 1864	Mustered out July 4, 1863.
Do.....	James C. Shaw.....	April 2, 1864	" 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment. [Col. U. S. V.
Do.....	Theodore F. Allen.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Must. out July 4, '65; brv't. Maj., Lt. Col. aud
Do.....	Albert A. Carr.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Resigned August 26, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. R. Jackson.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Joseph B. Sautnyer.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Andrew Hall.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John McCoglin.....	May 25, " "	May 25, " "	Died March 22, 1865.
Do.....	Wm. D. Ketterman.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Lost on steamer Sultana.
Do.....	Oliver H. Eylar.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Martin Shuler.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	George D. Womeldorf.....	June 16, 1865	June 16, 1865	Mustered out with regiment. [R. Q. M.
Do.....	Alfred N. Rich.....	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut. and
Do.....	Wm. T. Burton.....	July 5, " "	July 5, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant.....	Theodore F. Allen.....	Aug. 28, 1862	Dec. 15, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John McCoglin.....	Oct. 13, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. R. Jackson.....	Sept. 15, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Lester G. Moore.....	Aug. 25, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James C. Shaw.....	" 27, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Roswell C. Nichols.....	Sept. 1, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned February 23, 1864.
Do.....	Wm. L. Tripp.....	" 2, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned December 25, 1863.
Do.....	Joseph B. Copeland.....	" 2, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Nehemiah Warren.....	" 2, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John Geyer.....	" 3, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned November 28, 1863.
Do.....	Albert A. Carr.....	" 12, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Richard C. Rankin.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Daniel Sayer.....	" 25, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned June 28, 1863.
Do.....	Joseph B. Sautnyer.....	Oct. 1, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Andrew Hall.....	" 1, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Peter Long.....	May 25, 1863	June 10, 1863	Resigned January 30, 1864.
Do.....	Samuel D. Murphy.....	June 3, " "	" 25, " "	Died July 16, 1864.
Do.....	Martin Shuler.....	" 28, " "	Oct. 3, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Oliver H. Eylar.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. D. Ketterman.....	Jan. 1, 1864	April 2, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John J. Smith.....	April 2, " "	" 2, " "	Resigned as 2d Lieut. October 20, 1863.
Do.....	George D. Womeldorf.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Alfred N. Rich.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. T. Burton.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Benj. Trago.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David W. Fisher.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Samuel Dryden.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Mustered out with regiment as R. C. S.
Do.....	Charles F. Smith.....	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Discharged July 14, 1865.
Do.....	Charles D. Mitchell.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.....	Eugene Little.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John V. Srofe.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Andrew J. Hardy.....	May 25, " "	May 25, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Thomas J. Williams.....	Oct. 12, " "	Oct. 12, " "	Declined to accept.
Do.....	Benj. F. Powers.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Killed, 1865.
Do.....	Wm. Boggs.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Philip Blazer.....	" 12, " "	" 12, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. T. Archer.....	May 18, 1865	May 18, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	W. W. Manning.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.....	Benj. F. Derstine.....	June 16, " "	June 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.....	Newton McLeod.....	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant.....	Martin Shuler.....	Aug. 25, 1862	Dec. 15, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.....	Samuel B. Johnston.....	" 25, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned February 29, 1864.
Do.....	Samuel D. Murphy.....	" 25, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	George D. Womeldorff.....	Aug. 27, 1862	Dec. 15, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John J. Smith.....	Sept. 2, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned October 20, 1863.
Do.	Peter Long.....	" 2, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alfred N. Rich.....	" 2, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Bunker.....	" 2, " "	" 15, " "	Resigned June 23, 1863.
Do.	Oliver H. Eylar.....	" 4, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. T. Burton.....	" 5, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Ketterman.....	" 15, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. Trago.....	" 1, " "	" 15, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Homer Chase.....	May 25, " "	July 20, 1863	Resigned January 20, 1864.
Do.	David W. Fisher.....	June 3, 1863	June 23, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel Dryden.....	" 3, " "	Oct. 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. F. Smith.....	" 28, " "	" 3, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Anrew J. Hardy.....	April 19, 1864	April 19, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. McKnight.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Killed at Cynthia June, 1864.
Do.	Thomas J. Williams.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. F. Powers.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Boggs.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philip Blazer.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. S. Archer.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	W. W. Manning.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. W. Derstine.....	Sept. 26, " "	Sept. 26, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Newton McLeal.....	March 18, 1865	March 18, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Homer E. Ware.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Wilson Barber.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James McGeo.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Samuel C. Tappan.....	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Wm. H. Vane.....	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Grassen M. Cole.....	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Thomas H. Nutt.....	" 16, " "	" 16, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.

SEVENTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

THE summer campaign of 1862, proved, in the main, disastrous to the National arms. In the West, the National army, under Buell, had been flanked and out-marched, and Bragg's Rebel hosts were almost at our doors. The light of the Rebel soldiers' torch had been reflected from the placid waters of our own Ohio, and the blood of both National and Rebel soldiers had been shed within cannon range of the Southern boundary of our State. In this condition of affairs, Governor Tod, on the 25th of August, ordered the Seventh Cavalry (afterward known as the River Regiment) to be recruited. Officers were appointed and ordered to enlist men from the following counties: Hamilton, three hundred men; Clermont, one hundred; Brown, one hundred; Adams, one hundred; Scioto, one hundred; Gallia, two hundred; Athens, one hundred; Meigs, one hundred; Washington, one hundred. Recruiting was commenced on the 25th of August, and in six days sixteen hundred men were enrolled, four hundred more than could be retained. Major Malcolm McDowell, United States Army, was appointed Colonel, and Israel Garrard, of Cincinnati, Lieutenant-Colonel, and the regiment was ordered to rendezvous at Ripley, in Brown County.

Before the men were mustered into the United States service an attack on Cincinnati was threatened by the enemy, under Kirby Smith, and Colonel McDowell was ordered to report to Major-General Wright, to assist in the defense of Cincinnati. Whereupon Governor Tod promoted Lieutenant-Colonel Garrard to Colonel, and appointed Major George G. Miner, Second Cavalry, to be Lieutenant-Colonel in the Seventh. With these field officers the organization of the regiment was completed, and it rendezvoused at Ripley, October 3, 1862.

While at Ripley, and before the men were all mustered into the United States service, a detachment of three or four hundred of the enemy, under command of Colonel Basil Duke and Major Clarence Prentice, appeared at the town of Augusta, Kentucky, on the Ohio River, a few miles below Ripley. They took possession of the place, set fire to several houses, and before the flames could be subdued nearly the whole town was reduced to ashes. Company E, of the Seventh, numbering at that time about one hundred and twenty-five men, procured at Ripley a number of muskets and other small arms, crossed the river, drove the enemy from Augusta, and pursued him several miles into the interior, killing, wounding, and capturing a number, and returned to Ripley without the loss of a man.

Soon after this the enemy, under Bragg, commenced the retreat from Kentucky, and four companies, A, B, C, and D, were sent out from Ripley, by direction of General Wright, with orders to scout from Maysville, Kentucky, learn, if possible, the whereabouts of Humphrey Marshall, and join the main body of the National troops advancing from Covington, at or near Falmouth. Under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Miner, these companies scouted as ordered, extending their search well into Eastern Kentucky, and as far west as Falmouth. It was learned that Colonel Garfield had fallen back from his advanced position on the Big Sandy, and that Marshall had occupied that region, being then safe within the mountain fastnesses. The party returned to Ripley, bringing with them twenty-five fine mules (which an enterprising stock-grower, living near Maysville, had sold to the Confederacy for gold), which the scouts captured while they were being driven South.

On November 22d Major Reany's battalion having been fully armed, mounted, and equipped was sent to the field, reporting to Major-General Gordon Granger at Lexington, Kentucky; where it remained till Rosecrans being prepared to give battle to the enemy under Bragg, near Murfreesboro', Tennessee, it was desired that the railroad extending through East Tennessee and South-Western Virginia (which was the only direct route of communication between Bragg and the capital of the Confederacy) should be broken, to prevent the passage of any force from the East to the support of Bragg in the West. Accordingly, on the 21st of December, the companies A, B, C, and D, of the Seventh, being fully equipped for the campaign, left Winchester, Kentucky, with eight days' rations, and after marching southward three days, joined the command of General S. P. Carter, and started on what was afterward known as the First Raid into East Tennessee. The troops marched (in the lightest possible order, having with them neither artillery, ambulances, nor wagons) night and day, passing through South-Eastern Kentucky and South-Western Virginia, to Jonesville, Virginia; thence across the Cumberland and Clinch Mountains, avoiding at all times the main roads. After nine days of almost continued marching through snow and intense cold, over three mountain ranges, fording streams full of floating ice, they reached the line of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, at Zollicoffer Station, where the railroad crosses the Holston River, on the 30th of December. They found the place garrisoned by a North Carolina regiment, and captured the entire force without firing a gun. The long railroad bridge at Zollicoffer was burned, and the block-houses were destroyed. From this point companies A and D, under command of Captain Green, were ordered to proceed to Carter's Station (six miles east on the line of railroad), capture the place with its garrison, and destroy the railroad bridge over the Watauga River. When within four miles of the station the detachment discovered a locomotive coming toward them on the railroad. An ambuscade was formed and the locomotive, with its passengers, were captured. On this locomotive was Colonel Love, commander of the garrison at Carter's Station, from whom they learned that the force he had just left numbered three hundred men with one piece of artillery. Captain Green had one hundred and thirty-three men with which to capture this force. Nothing daunted, he moved on with his little band, and having arrived near the station, dismounted his command, leaving thirty of them with the horses, and, though neither officers nor men had ever been under fire, advanced steadily to the attack with his one hundred and three men in line. A brief but spirited engagement ensued, which resulted in the defeat of the enemy, two hundred and seventy-three of whom surrendered to the National detachment, leaving six killed and eight wounded on the field, beside surrendering their piece of artillery. The magnificent railroad bridge was burned and a train of cars run into the river.

Having injured the railroad sufficiently to prevent the passage of trains for several weeks, the raiders started northward, passing through East Tennessee, South-Western Virginia and Eastern Kentucky, and arrived at Winchester, Kentucky, on the 9th of January, 1863, wearied and worn, but gratified with success. On the return trip the troops suffered severely, nearly one-half the horses died of exhaustion, and the men, barefooted or with their feet covered with pieces of blankets, and without rations, walked for many miles over the frozen, snow-clad mountains and ice-bound streams.

On the 20th of December the second battalion, being fully equipped, was sent to the field, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Minor, reporting to General Granger, at Lexington, who ordered three companies to Danville, and one company to Harrodsburg. On December 31st the third battalion, under command of Colonel Garrard, followed the other two, reporting to General Granger, and was ordered to remain at Lexington, at "Camp Ella Bishop."

Reports having been received of the advance of the enemy from Cumberland Gap, via London, the regiment started on the 22d of February, 1863, for Richmond, via Stanford and Laneaster. Arriving at Richmond no enemy was found. It was then divided—one detachment going to Hazel Green and the other to Mount Sterling. Both were fortunate in meeting the enemy, defeating him and finally driving him from the State, and the two commands united at Lexington, where they remained only a few days, during which time company I, while on a scout, captured the Rebel Colonel Alexander, whom they surprised while visiting his inamorata.

On March 20, 1863, the Rebel General Pegram crossed the Cumberland with three brigades of cavalry, and started northward on a raid into the Blue-Grass region. He was met by the National forces and his course checked at Danville. Failing in his raid, he started south again, closely pursued by a force under command of General Q. A. Gillmore, of which force the River Regiment formed a part, but was not brigaded, acting under direct orders from General Gillmore. Pegram was pursued night and day, and on the morning of the 31st of March gave battle at Dutton Hill, near Somerset, Kentucky, six miles north of the Cumberland River. The pursuing force found the enemy in position on a range of hills, where they could be attacked only by advancing across open fields, exposed to their fire. The National forces were pushed well forward, the Seventh supporting for some time a battery, till the enemy appearing to be somewhat disconcerted, a gallant saber charge was made by companies G, I, K, L, and M, which decided the day, and the enemy fled in the greatest confusion, leaving in the hands of the companies that charged up the hill one hundred and thirty prisoners, and forty-nine dead and wounded on the field. The troops had scarcely taken possession of the position held by the enemy when from their rear was heard the Rebel yell, and two regiments of Rebel cavalry, that Pegram had early in the fight dispatched to the rear of the National forces, charged at full speed down the valley. They were met at once by a counter-charge, led by Captain Saunders, of General Gillmore's staff (afterward General Saunders, killed at Knoxville) who charged with companies E, F, and H of the River Regiment, routed and scattered the Rebel charging columns, capturing from them nearly two hundred prisoners and two battle-flags. The pursuit was continued till dark, the enemy abandoning his train and two hundred and fifty beef cattle that he was attempting to drive South.

On May 1, 1863, Pegram having collected at Monticello a force of cavalry estimated to number four thousand, the regiment, with other mounted troops, crossed the Cumberland River at Mill Springs, attacked Pegram, defeated him, drove his force to their retreat beyond the Cumberland Mountains, and returned to Somerset. In June, 1863, Pegram having collected his force and again returned to the rich grazing lands about Monticello, the River Regiment, with four other cavalry regiments, all under command of Colonel A. V. Kantz, crossed the Cumberland River, and on the 9th of June again attacked and drove him from Monticello. The troops started to return to Somerset, supposing Pegram alarmed and retreating. On the return march the Seventh Ohio was in the rear of the column, with companies D and H thrown out as rear-guard. In this way the column had marched several miles, till the rear-guard discovered huge volumes of dust rising from the road in their rear, which proclaimed the pursuit by the enemy. The two companies nerved themselves to check the Rebel advance, and selected a position behind a stone wall. The enemy coming up received the well-directed fire of the guard, which emptied several saddles, but the Rebels charging gallantly drove the guard from its chosen position. Galloping along the road, closely pursued by the enemy, the guard loaded their carbines, wheeled into line and delivered a fire which checked the Rebel advance for a moment. The rear-guard was soon re-enforced by the entire regiment, and afterward by other regiments and a battery, when a close and desperate fight ensued, lasting till after dark, when both parties withdrew. This engagement was known as that of the Rocky Gap.

The next day the ground was held "neutral" by both parties, while the dead and wounded were cared for. General Burnside complimented the regiment, in orders, for their service in this engagement, which he announced as the "spirited cavalry engagement at Rocky Gap, Kentucky." Rosecrans being prepared to start on his campaign from Murfreesboro', desired the railroad in East Tennessee, connecting Bragg with the army in the east, to be cut again, and on the 10th of June one hundred picked men of the River Regiment, under command of Captain Warren, were detailed, and joined a raiding-party organized by Colonel Saunders. The force crossed the Cumberland River at Williamsburg, and thence proceeded via Jillico Mountain to the Swiss Settlement of Wartzburg, in the Cumberland Mountains, where, after a sharp engagement, they captured one hundred and fifty prisoners, and destroyed a large quantity of ordnance, quartermaster, and commissary supplies belonging to the Confederacy. They then crossed the Cumberland Mountains via the Chittwood route, and thence to Lenoir Station, on the Knoxville and Chattanooga Railroad, where they tore up the track, burned the ties, twisted the rails, and burned a large depot well filled with army supplies. The raiders then marched to Knoxville, and securing a position within the corporation of that place, threw a few shells over the town and made a feint of giving battle. They then marched rapidly to Strawberry Plains, twelve miles east, surprised and captured the garrison at that place, and burned the magnificent long railroad bridge spanning the Holston River, the depot, and several large warehouses, wherein were stored large quantities of army supplies. June 28th it was learned that Morgan, with a force of three thousand five hundred men, was on the south bank of the Cumberland River, and was about to cross to make a raid on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. From Jamestown the regiment scouted to Crellsboro, where it had a skirmish with Basil Duke's regiment.

On the 3d of July Morgan succeeded in crossing his command over the Cumberland River at Burksville, some twenty miles west of the River Regiment's position, and started on his raid into the interior of the State, the Seventh, with other troops, pursuing. The pursuit was continued till on the 10th of July the force arrived at the bank of the Ohio River at Brandenburg, Kentucky, just in time to see the rear-guard of Morgan's force departing from the Indiana shore, and the steamboats in which they had crossed enveloped in flames. A gunboat soon made its appearance, and was immediately dispatched to Louisville for boats to cross the National force over the river. Ten precious hours were lost waiting for these boats, and when they arrived the command crossed the river and continued the pursuit, following Morgan via Corydon, Vienna, and Lexington, Indiana. Crossing the White Water River at Harrison, the pursuing force entered the State of Ohio, and on the 13th of July passed thirteen miles north of Cincinnati, near Mount Pleasant; thence via Springdale and Glendale, in Hamilton County, crossed the Little Miami Railroad and River near Miamiville; thence via Shady Grove, Batavia, and Williamsburg, in Clermont County; Sardinia and New Hope, in Brown County; Locust Grove, in Adams County, Jasper and Piketon, in Pike County; thence via Rutland Corner, in Meigs County. At daylight on the morning of the 19th of July the advance-guard drove in the Rebel pickets, and the enemy was found in line of battle near Buffington Island. The River Regiment being in the advance was the first to attack, and being re-enforced by other troops, a sharp engagement ensued, which resulted in the defeat of the enemy, who fled from the field in the greatest disorder, leaving their artillery, and dead and wounded on the field, and scattering their arms and stolen property, consisting of boots, shoes, and clothing of all kinds. The pursuit was continued till dark, up to which time two thousand five hundred prisoners had been brought in, and the rest of the raiders were scattered, or hiding in the woods.

After the rout a flag of truce was sent by the enemy to Colonel Garrard, of the Seventh, the bearer of which announced that Colonels Basil Duke and Howard Smith, of Morgan's force, with their respective staffs, and a small detachment, had been cut off from their main force, and would surrender if an officer was sent to them. Colonel Garrard immediately sent Adjutant Allen and Lieutenant McColgin with the bearer of the truce to receive the surrender. These officers on reaching the ground found that the detachment of the enemy, comprising two Colonels and several other officers, and about fifty men, had surrendered to one National soldier (Sergeant Drake, of the Eighth Michigan Cavalry), who discovered the party secreted in a ravine in the woods, while he was seeking for plunder, and to him the whole party laid down their arms.

On September 3d the regiment entered Knoxville, the metropolis of East Tennessee. On the 4th it marched from Knoxville via Tazewell to within two miles of Cumberland Gap, and, with other troops, invested that stronghold. A summons to surrender was made, but was refused until the afternoon of the 9th of September, when preparations for carrying the place by assault having been made, the garrison, under General Frazer, consisting of two thousand six hundred men, with fifteen pieces of artillery, surrendered, and the River Regiment was detailed to receive the surrender, and occupy this "gateway to East Tennessee."

On September 10th the regiment returned to Knoxville, and from there marched to Carter's Station, in Upper East Tennessee, where, in a night fight, it drove a large force of the enemy from that place. Soon after the Seventh, under orders, fell back from Carter's Station to Bull's Gap, a strong position in Bey's Mountain, forty miles east of Knoxville. This position was held till the 10th of October, when, in the battle of Blue Springs, it participated in the final charge made near night, in which the enemy was routed and sought safety in retreat. The regiment lost Captain Joel P. Higley, of company K, who was killed while leading the second battalion to the charge. General Burnside caused one of the principal forts near Knoxville to be named in honor of this gallant officer, whose merits he well knew and appreciated. The day after the battle at Blue Springs the regiment, with other mounted troops, pursued the retreating enemy, and continued the pursuit for five days. Finally, after capturing from him a large number of prisoners and vast quantities of supplies, it drove him into the barren region of South-west Virginia. At Bristol, a town on the Tennessee and Virginia line, they destroyed hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of army supplies, several railroad locomotives, and a large number of passenger and freight-cars. The railroad track was torn up for miles, the ties burned, the rails twisted, and not less than six large railroad bridges burned.

On October 17, 1863, the work of destruction having been completed, Colonel Garrard, of the River Regiment, was placed in command of the Seventh Cavalry, the Second East Tennessee Mounted Infantry, and Battery M, Second Illinois Light Artillery, numbering in all about one thousand effective men, and ordered to Rogersville, Hawkins County, where they arrived on the 19th of October.

About the 1st of November Colonel Garrard moved his camp from Rogersville to a strong position about three miles up the valley of the Holston. On the evening of the 5th he received information from General Wilcox, then near Greenville with four regiments of infantry and six of cavalry, that a force of over three thousand of the enemy's cavalry, under W. E. Jones, was maneuvering between the line of the railroad held by him (General Wilcox) and the line of the Holston, held by Colonel Garrard; that it was uncertain which would be attacked, and that if the movement was on Colonel Garrard it was hoped he would be able to check their advance.

Colonel Garrard decided that it was his duty to remain at his post and make the best fight he could. Orders were given for the command to be in readiness to fight at daybreak, and at midnight strong scouting-parties were sent out on the two routes of the enemy's approach, with orders to fall back only as they were driven.

Soon after daylight the scouting-party of the Tennessee regiment was scattered and ridden over by the charge of the Rebel column coming down Carter Valley, and passing on into the town. The Rebel column in the Holston Valley was delayed by the skirmishing of the Seventh Ohio scout, so that the regular fighting in position did not commence until eight o'clock. The Rebel force that had come down Carter Valley moved up on the left and rear and opened the attack, which was followed up at once by the attack of the other force in front. The National position was a wooded table-land of about forty acres, with steep, open slopes to a creek and ravine in front, and to the open fields of the Holston Valley on the right. On the left and rear, across open fields, was a dense forest. About half-past ten the Rebels gained the ravine and charged up the slope, mainly upon the artillery. While arrangements were making here to resist this charge, it was found that the Rebels had carried the hill, captured the artillery, and were driving the Seventh back through the woods. The fight was maintained, from tree to tree, with desperation. The artillery horses had been so disabled that for some time before the charge there had been no hope of moving the guns; but before leaving them the artillery officers had rammed them full of shells, and fired their last pistol-shots at close range into the Rebel line. All who could, made their escape across the open fields under fire, to the Holston River. The defeat of the right placed the Rebels between the Tennessee regiment and the Holston River, their only route of escape, and that regiment surrendered.

The Seventh lost one hundred and twelve men and some of its best officers—McColgin, Shaw, Copeland, Carr, and Allen; the two latter escaping the following night. Assistant-Surgeons Tullis and Barrett voluntarily remained on the field to care for the wounded. Most of the men were killed or captured in the fight from tree to tree in the woods. The Orderly-Bugler Schmenke was killed at the Colonel's side. It was a terrible defeat, such as is inevitable when one thousand men are left unaided to fight three thousand five hundred; but no discredit can attach to men who were fairly whipped from the field.

Censure being cast upon Colonel Garrard for this defeat by persons who termed it a "surprise in camp," General Burnside ordered Colonel Loring, Inspector-General of the Army of the Ohio, to investigate and report upon it. After full investigation Colonel Loring reported in substance as follows: "Instead of censure, Colonel Garrard is entitled to much credit for his management of the late affair at Rogersville."

The regiment was ordered to the defense of Cumberland Gap. It crossed the Clinch Mountains, took position on the north bank of Clinch River, and held that position against the enemy during the siege of Knoxville. During this time dispatches in cipher were received by Colonel Garrard from General Grant and President Lincoln, with instructions to send them through the enemy's lines to General Burnside, then besieged in Knoxville. These were accompanied by a message from General Wilcox, commanding at Cumberland Gap, promising promotion or reward to whatever soldiers should carry these dispatches to General Burnside. Sergeants Little and Davis, of the River Regiment, volunteered for this hazardous duty, and made the trip through the Rebel lines not less than three times, with dispatches to and from General Burnside. The Governor of Ohio rewarded Sergeant Little with a First-Lieutenant's commission; but Sergeant Davis, though equally deserving, received no promotion.

On December 5th, the siege of Knoxville being raised, the regiment joined the force under General Burnside in the pursuit of the retreating enemy. On the 13th a sharp engagement occurred at Bean Station, the enemy retiring at nightfall; but on the following day he renewed the attack with his entire infantry force, and a hotly-contested battle ensued, lasting during the entire day, both parties suffering severely. On the 15th the troops at Bean's Station retired to Rutledge, and on the following day to the main army at Blain's Cross Roads. On the 17th the regiment, after seven days and nights of almost continued fighting and skirmishing (the men subsisting during that time on parched corn), was relieved from the advance line and given a few days to recruit.

On the 23d it crossed the Holston River and engaged and drove the enemy from New Market. On Christmas Day it crossed Bey's Mountain and engaged a largely superior force near Dandridge, and after hard fighting all day, and after being twice surrounded, was compelled to cut their way out.

No man of all the Army of the Ohio on duty in East Tennessee will ever forget the sad and gloomy New Year's Day of 1864, and the ten days following. The army lay on the hills about Mossy Creek, half starved; a half bushel of cornmeal was issued to a brigade of men for a day's rations; the country was searched for miles around by these famishing troops, and everything eatable taken. Horses died of starvation by hundreds. In those fearful storms the men were without shelter, and for two men there was but one blanket. The fires were kept burning all night, and men dare not sleep for fear of freezing. The men were without clothing, and many of them, instead of pantaloons could only boast of a pair of drawers, and having no boots or shoes, wrapped their feet in pieces of blankets.

On the 20th of January the regiment marched to Knoxville, crossed the Holston, and marched to Sevierville, on the Little Pigeon River, at the base of the Great Smoky Mountains. On the 23d it marched to the line of the French Broad River, and picketed the fords of that stream for a distance of twenty miles above Dandridge. On the 27th, the enemy having crossed the river, the regiment joined the force of National troops under command of General Sturgis, and gave battle to Morgan's and Armstrong's divisions of Wheeler's cavalry, at Fair Garden. After several hours' fighting they were defeated and driven in full retreat across the French Broad River. Two pieces of Rebel artillery and several hundred prisoners were captured. From East Tennessee the regiment was sent to Kentucky by railroad, going via Knoxville, Chattanooga, Nashville, Tennessee; Louisville and Lexington, Kentucky, to Nicholasville, where it arrived on the 9th of May, 1864. On the 8th of June information was received of the presence of Morgan's force at Mount Sterling, Kentucky, threatening Lexington; and the regiment was ordered to that place, when Colonel Garrard, being the ranking officer present, ordered the small National force in Lexington to retire to and hold the fort near town, while he, with his brigade, moved back to Nicholasville and took position to defend Camp Nelson, a fortified camp, containing millions of dollars' worth of supplies. On the 10th of June Morgan entered Lexington with his force and burned the railroad depot, but did little other damage. In the afternoon of that day the Seventh Ohio marched to Lexington, and joined the force under General Burbridge, in pursuit of Morgan. On the night of the 11th the regiment, with the force under General Burbridge, marched toward Cynthiana, where they arrived at daylight of the 12th, and there attacked Morgan's force, defeating, and driving him from the field in confusion. Captain Hall, with his company of the Seventh, captured an entire company, and its officers, from a Rebel regiment. While driving the enemy in full retreat toward the Licking River Captain Rankin, of the Seventh, with eight or ten of his men, headed off a party of running Rebels, and forty-two of them surrendered to the Captain without firing a gun. In the impetuous charge made by the left wing of the National forces, which was commanded by Colonel Garrard, General Burbridge commanding the right wing, the River Regiment succeeded in breaking through the Rebel right, and, charging at full gallop, reached the rear of the Rebel line of battle before it gave way on the center or left. Captain Allen, with Lieutenants Burton and Mitchell, leading a saber-charge, succeeded in wresting from the enemy and holding the bridge over Licking River, the Rebel line of retreat, and of gaining and holding the opposite bank of the river; and with the rallying cry of "Rogersville!" killed, wounded, and captured a large number of the same enemy who had defeated them at Rogersville, Tennessee, November 6, 1863. In this engagement the regiment captured some five hundred prisoners, though in doing so sacrificed several valuable men, including Lieutenant William McKnight.

Colonel Garrard's brigade was ordered to pursue Morgan. It marched rapidly to Claysville, and compelled the fleeing enemy to liberate some four hundred prisoners whom they had captured from General Hobson a few days before. On the 14th of June, having followed Morgan into the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, where neither rations nor forage could be obtained, the pursuit was abandoned. The Seventh had marched two hundred and seventy-two miles in six days and nights.

On July 4th the regiment started from Nicholasville to join the army under General Sherman on the Atlanta campaign, reaching Atlanta July 26, 1864. Until the 2d of September it participated in the siege of the "Gate City," being actively engaged with the enemy almost daily. It then marched to Decatur, six miles east of Atlanta, where it remained till the 4th of October. Then, till the 6th of November, it was employed in scouting the country for forty miles around Atlanta, and bringing supplies from the country to the garrison. On November 30th was fought the bloody battle at Franklin, Tennessee, where the regiment, on the left of the National line, tenaciously held its position. After the battle of Franklin it continued to operate on the flanks of General Schofield's army till it reached Nashville, where it was engaged in scouting, picketing, and skirmishing, till the 13th of December. It was then ordered to Edgefield, and the cavalry corps being reorganized, was assigned to the First Brigade, Sixth Division, Cavalry Corps, commanded by General Wilson, and two days afterward participated in the battle of Nashville. In the first day's fight, charging by squadrons, it drove the enemy in its front a mile and a half, capturing four pieces of artillery; and on the second day was actively engaged. In the subsequent pursuit of the remnant of Hood's army it was the first regiment to cross the Harpeth River, and attack the enemy in his chosen position at Franklin, finally driving him from the place, and securing from him two thousand seven hundred Rebel wounded, besides a large number of National wounded, in hospital at Franklin.

On Christmas Day, 1864, the regiment engaged the Rebel rear-guard at Pulaski, and drove him from the place in haste and disorder, capturing from him three pieces of artillery, an ammunition-train, several caissons, etc.; and on the 27th drove the flying and dispirited rear-guard of the enemy across the Tennessee River. On account of the impassable condition of the roads, and the impossibility of supplying the troops, the pursuit was ordered to be discontinued.

The Seventh now went into winter-quarters at Gravelly Springs, Alabama, where it remained till the 22d of March, 1865. At that date the cavalry corps commanded by General Wilson (about eighteen thousand strong) marched southward, to destroy all railroad communications, supplies, etc., between the Rebel armies of the west and east. At Elyton the regiment destroyed the Red Mountain Iron Works, and at Monticello the Shelby Iron Works, and the Iron Works at Columbiana. These several works were worth over a million of dollars, and were of inestimable value to the Rebels as the source of iron supply for the naval and military arsenals at Selma.

On the 1st of April, near Plantersville, the Rebels, under General Forrest, made a stand, and the River Regiment was closely engaged, losing, among the killed, Lieutenant Grassen M. Cole, a valuable officer. The enemy was defeated, and fell back within the trenches about Selma, which place was carried by assault. The Seventh Ohio, after entering the town, was ordered to pursue the retreating Rebel column, and in the pursuit the regiment captured four pieces of artillery, a wagon-train, and some three hundred prisoners. When on the Andersonville Road, and the regiment on the full gallop toward the "prison-pen," driving the enemy before them, a flag of truce was shown by the enemy. The regiment was halted, and the bearer of the truce announced the capitulation of Lee at Appomattox C. H., the surrender of Johnston to Sherman, and the close of the war. The pursuit was at once discontinued, and the forces, which an hour before had been contending in deadly strife, joined hands and bivouacked on the same field.

The regiment then moved to Macon, thence to Atlanta, Georgia, where it was engaged till the 15th of May in scouting Northern Georgia, to prevent the escape of Jeff. Davis. After his capture it was ordered to Nashville, where it laid down its arms and was honorably mustered out of service, on the 4th day of July, 1865.

During the three years' service there were received into the regiment two hundred recruits, which gives a total of fourteen hundred men belonging to the regiment during its service. When mustered out it numbered eight hundred and forty men, showing a loss of five hundred and sixty men by the casualties of war. Included in this loss were the following-named officers, who were killed in action, or died of wounds, or of disease contracted in the service: Captains Joel P. Higley, William D. Ketterman, Arthur D. Eells, Samuel D. Murphy; Assistant-Surgeon Richard H. Tullis; First-Lieutenant and Regimental-Commissary John McColgin; Lieutenants Lester G. Moore, William McKnight, Frank B. Powers, and Grassen M. Cole.

8th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	SAMUEL A. GILBERT.....	Oct. 14, 1861	Oct. 14, 1861	Resigned April 20, 1864.
Do.	ALPHEUS S. MOORE.....	May 9, 1861	May 9, 1864	Resigned January 4, 1865.
Do.	WESLEY OWENS.....	May 2, "	May 2, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	ALPHEUS S. MOORE.....	Jan. 30, 1864	April 11, 1864	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	ROBERT YOUART.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Dismissed February 4, 1865.
Do.	AUGUSTUS DOTZ.....	" 31, 1865	" 31, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	ROBERT YOUART.....	Jan. 30, 1864	April 11, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	JACOB SONDERS.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Resigned.
Do.	JAMES M. SHAW.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	AUGUSTUS DOTZ.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	NICHOLAS D. BADGER.....	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	C. H. EVANS.....	Jan. 11, 1865	Jan. 11, 1865
Surgeon.....	M. J. BOWLAND.....	Oct. 6, 1861	Oct. 6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Asst Surgeon.....	M. J. BOWLAND.....	May 14, "	May 14, "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	BENT F. DAVIS.....	March 11, 1863	March 11, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	ROBERT A. RICHARDSON.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Lewis H. HAZELTINE.....	May 11, "	May 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	EDWARD COOPER.....	June 9, 1864	June 9, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Alpheus S. Moore.....	Sept. 10, 1861	Oct. 11, 1861	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel
Do.	Robert Youart.....	Dec. 26, "	Dec. 26, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Jacob Sonders.....	June 16, 1862	Sept. 12, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Nicholas D. Badger.....	July 28, "	Aug. 5, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	James M. Shaw.....	May 29, 1863	June 15, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Augustus Dotze.....	June 30, "	July 20, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	C. H. Evans.....	Sept. 23, "	April 11, 1864	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Samuel C. Howell.....	Jan. 30, 1864	" 11, "	Declined; mustered out February 12, 1864.
Do.	Hezekiah Winger.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Mustered out.
Do.	John C. Allen.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	A. N. Thompson.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Resigned.
Do.	Wm. W. Knoop.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Declined promotion; commission returned.
Do.	Frank E. Moore.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alphonso Pettit.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Retained in service by order from War Dep't.
Do.	Alex. McAlpin.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert Lyle.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lafayette Bechel.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John K. Furrow.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Resigned May 25, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Frushour.....	June 14, "	June 14, "	Resigned as 1st Lieutenant September 26, 1864.
Do.	Joseph Badger.....	Nov. 12, "	Nov. 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alex. McConkey.....	May 11, 1865	May 11, 1865	Resigned June 6, 1865.
Do.	Hazel Cramer.....	July 8, "	July 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac Vannest.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Cable.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
1st Lieutenant.....	Samuel F. Todd.....	June 30, 1863	" 20, 1863	Mustered out November 10, 1864.
Do.	James Lewis Reily.....	Nov. 12, "	Nov. 12, "	Deceased June 6, 1864.
Do.	C. H. Evans.....	Oct. 9, 1861	Oct. 14, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel C. Howell.....	April 5, 1862	May 5, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Hezekiah Winger.....	July 28, "	Oct. 5, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. Allen.....	April 19, 1863	May 13, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	A. N. Thompson.....	May 29, "	June 15, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. W. Knoop.....	April 9, "	July 20, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	J. N. Miller.....	Dec. 17, "	April 11, 1861	Mustered out.
Do.	Frank E. Moore.....	Jan. 30, 1864	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph Badger.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alphonso Pettit.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alex. McAlpin.....	Sept. 23, 1863	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert Lyle.....	Jan. 30, 1864	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Lafayette Bechel.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John K. Furrow.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Frushour.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas B. Burkholder.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Killed.
Do.	Hazel Cramer.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alex. McConkey.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Isaac Vannest.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Peter M. Hawke.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Resigned September 7, 1864.
Do.	Joshua Peck.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Killed.
Do.	George Cable.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John H. Babb.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Resigned May 19, 1865.
Do.	David Knece.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Honorably discharged January 11, 1865.
Do.	John M. Foster.....	June 14, "	June 14, "	Resigned February 28, 1865.
Do.	Jacob D. Kennedy.....	Nov. 12, "	Nov. 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Ashworth.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Resigned February 22, 1865.
Do.	George H. Potter.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Folger Howell.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Died November 2, 1865.
Do.	Warden M. Wheeler.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Anthony C. Rockentfield.....	May 11, 1865	May 11, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David Dalton.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lewis M. Hageman.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lyman M. Wood.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. W. Swayn.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Eli Kelley.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Hon. discharged per S. O. 114, June 12, 1865.
Do.	James M. Kurtz.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant.....	J. N. Miller.....	July 28, 1862	Oct. 5, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank E. Moore.....	Oct. 5, "	" 5, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Badger.....	Nov. 17, "	Dec. 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	A. Pettitt.....	April 19, 1863	May 13, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alex. McAlpin.....	" 29, "	June 15, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert Ly'e.....	" 9, "	July 20, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Alex. McConkey.....	July 24, "	April 11, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Hazel Cramer.....	Jan. 30, 1864	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Peter M. Hawke.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Cable.....	Oct. 19, 1863	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac Vannest.....	Dec. 17, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joshua Peck.....	Jan. 30, 1864	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John H. Babb.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David Kneer.....	" 30, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John M. Foster.....	Sept. 23, 1863	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Fagan.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Jacob D. Kennedy.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Ashworth.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George H. Porter.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Folger Howell.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Warden M. Wheeler.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Anthony C. Rockenfield.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David Dalton.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lewis M. Hageman.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lyman M. Wood.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. W. Swayn.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Eli Kelley.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph Pearsons.....	" 11, 1865	" 11, 1865	Declined.
Do.	Joseph M. Sims.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Volney B. St. John.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Francis M. Billings.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Aspinall.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Nelson.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John B. Fagan.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Declined.
Do.	Michael W. Llewellyn.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Chas. W. Cook.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel J. Harrison.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Oscar F. Hale.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Hartly.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Oscar B. Fry.....	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.

EIGHTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ON the 28th of March, 1864, the veterans and recruits of the Forty-Fourth Ohio Infantry were ordered to report at Camp Dennison, where they repaired without delay, and were organized into the Eighth Ohio Volunteer Cavalry. The progress in arming, equipping, and mounting the regiment was slow. April wore away, and no arms or equipments were furnished. On the 26th of April six companies, not mounted, were ordered to Charleston, West Virginia, and on the 8th of May the detachment remaining in camp was ordered to march to Cincinnati, to be transported thence by steamer to Charleston.

Early on the morning of the 10th they left camp for Cincinnati, mounted, bare-backed, with no rein but a rope, and each man leading two or three horses. They arrived in the city a little after noon, in a drenching rain, and by dark were on the boat and on the way up the river. On the second morning after starting they landed at Guyandotte, and again mounting, bare-backed, rode to Charleston, arriving on the morning of the 14th, very much exhausted by the roughness of the road and the novel mode of riding. They remained here only long enough to draw arms and equipments, being furnished with the Union carbine and saddles of the Alleghany pattern. The men were allowed no time to perfect themselves in the use of their arms or the management of their horses; and, indeed, the regiment was reported ready for the field, when it was only partly armed. On the 29th of May they broke camp and marched to Lewisburg, over the same road they followed when they were the Forty-Fourth Infantry.

The regiment arrived at Lewisburg on the 1st of June, and on the 3d started with Averill on the Lynchburg raid. It was at first temporarily assigned to General Duffie's brigade, and afterward to the brigade commanded by Colonel Schoonmaker, Fourteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry. The troops advanced by way of White Sulphur, and the night of the third day encamped in Warm Springs Valley. On the 9th they arrived at Staunton and formed a junction with General Hunter. On the morning of the 13th the brigade to which the Eighth belonged, and another cavalry brigade, moved with the intention of surprising the Rebels under McCausland, near Buckhannon. Being apprised of the approach of the two brigades, the Rebels fled, but were hotly pursued. The Eighth rested at Buckhannon until the 15th, when it moved over the Blue Ridge direct toward Lynchburg. The next day two companies of the regiment had a skirmish with a party of Rebels near Otter Creek Bridge, and on the next day, a little after noon, the Rebels were met. Forming line rapidly, they drove back the Rebel advance; but as our forces had neither artillery or infantry (they being some distance in the rear of the cavalry), without some assistance the National line must retire; but just as the Rebels were forming for a charge the infantry came up, and the position was held. That night the Rebels were re-enforced, and at the close of the next day's engagement our forces were in retreat. All night they marched, and soon after daylight the next morning the Rebels were on their rear, and constant skirmishing ensued. When near Liberty it became necessary to strengthen the rear-guard, and the Eighth was ordered to the rear for that purpose. It maintained itself for some time against a brigade of mounted Rebels, suffering a loss of seventy-one in killed, wounded, and prisoners. At another time, when the Rebels charged the artillery-train, the Eighth dismounted, drove the Rebels from the guns, and recaptured them. After this the retreat was not molested, and they at last arrived at White Sulphur Springs on the 24th.

Upon reaching Greenbrier River, near Lewisburg, the regiment was ordered back to White Sulphur Springs, where it was divided, the dismounted men, with the Colonel, proceeding to Charleston, while the mounted men, with the Lieutenant-Colonel, were ordered to Beverly. After a weary march of four days the mounted detachment reached Beverly at noon on the 30th of June, having been thirty-three days almost constantly in the saddle, and having marched about six hundred miles. This place became the scene of the future operations of the Eighth. After being twice ordered to the Shenandoah, and twice ordered back before reaching their destination, the Eighth settled down in charge of the post of Beverly. On the 23d of August companies C, H, and K, eighty men in all, stationed at Huttonsville, were surprised and captured. The men were released, but their arms, equipments, and horses were taken by the Rebels. Soon after company A was captured, and the Captain and some of the men were taken to Richmond.

With now and then a scout, the regiment rested quietly until the 29th of October, when three hundred Rebels dashed into camp, just before daylight, intending a surprise. Fortunately the men were all up, and some of the companies were falling in for roll-call; and when the firing at the pickets was heard the men seized their carbines and formed behind the horse-racks, and were able for a time to check the advance; but the Rebels came in by the flank and rear, and it soon became a hand-to-hand conflict, the men fighting by squads, by couples, and singly, with carbines clubbed, and in some instances grappling without weapons, and endeavoring to strangle each other. Near the officers' quarters a party was collected, and charged a portion of the Rebels twice, scattering them in all directions. About this time the Rebel leader, Major Hill, of the Sixty-Second Virginia Infantry, was shot by one of our scouts, who was just returning. The Rebels, seeing their leader fall, fled, but were closely pursued, and nearly all the prisoners they had taken released. The rout was complete, the Rebels losing seventeen killed, twenty-seven wounded, and ninety-two prisoners, while the regiment lost only eight killed, twenty-five wounded, and thirteen prisoners.

From this time until the 1st of December the regiment was actively employed scouting and skirmishing. About the 1st of December Colonel Moore joined the regiment with his detachment from the Shenandoah. This detachment had followed Hunter in the valley, sharing in all the skirmishes in which the cavalry were engaged; was almost constantly in the saddle for six weeks previous to the battle of Winchester; was in the cavalry charge upon the fortifications at Winchester; fought at Fisher's Hill; barely escaped capture at Cedar Creek; followed Early in his retreat, wielding both torch and sword, and shared in all the dangers and glories of the campaign. Soon after the arrival of this detachment five companies were mounted on the best horses, and the rest of the horses turned over to the Quartermaster. Four of the mounted companies were ordered to Philippi, where forage could be more conveniently procured. About this time the post was strengthened by the Thirty-Fourth Ohio Infantry, then reduced to less than three hundred men.

Between three and four o'clock on the morning of the 11th of January, 1865, the Rebels surprised the camp. A few escaped, but twenty-five were killed and wounded, and five hundred and seventy-five men and eight officers captured. They were compelled to march through snow from one to three feet deep, many of the men barefooted, their clothes frozen so that it was almost impossible to march; wading deep streams; sleeping in the snow without any protection or covering; receiving only two days' rations in seven days, and marching in that time one hundred and sixty-two miles. At Staunton they were loaded into stock-cars at the rate of seventy to a car, taken to Richmond, and lodged in Libby Prison. Here the prisoners underwent a final search, being compelled to strip themselves of every garment, which was carefully examined; they were even ordered to open their mouths, lest something of value might be concealed. If any one objected, or resisted the search and seizure, he was knocked down and kicked, and beaten into submission. The regiment was divided while in prison, and part placed in the Pemberton Building, where they remained until exchanged. All the misery and suffering of prison-life was endured until the 15th of February, when they left the prison, went to Annapolis, and from there to Columbus, Ohio, where they were paroled. Some returned to Clarksburg, where the four mounted companies, and those who had escaped capture were stationed, and the others were mustered out as prisoners of war in June. In August the remainder of the regiment was once more ordered to Camp Dennison and mustered out of the service.

9th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	WM. D. HAMILTON.....	Dec. 2, 1863	Dec. 19, 1863	Brevet Brigadier-General April 18, 1865
Lt. Colonel.....	WM. D. HAMILTON.....	Oct. 30, " "	Nov. 4, " "	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	THOMAS P. COOK.....	Dec. 2, " "	Dec. 19, " "	Discharged September 9, 1864.
Do.	WM. STOUGH.....	Oct. 1, 1864	Oct. 1, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	WM. D. HAMILTON.....	Dec. 6, 1862	Feb. 11, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	THOMAS P. COOK.....	Oct. 30, 1863	Nov. 4, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. SIMS.....	" 20, " "	" 4, " "	Resigned June 21, 1864.
Do.	JOHN WILLIAMSON.....	Dec. 2, " "	Dec. 19, " "	Resigned July 25, 1864.
Do.	HENRY PLESSNER.....	" 7, " "	" 19, " "	Discharged January 11, 1865.
Do.	ELIJAH HOAGUE.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, 1864	Resigned March 9, 1865.
Do.	WM. STOUGH.....	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	L. H. BOWLUS.....	Oct. 1, " "	Oct. 1, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JOHN W. MACUMBER.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JAMES IRVINE.....	May 31, " "	May 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	C. M. FINCH.....	Oct. 5, 1863	Oct. 5, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon.....	WM. McMILLEN.....	March 26, " "	March 26, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JAMES C. THORPE.....	Oct. 5, " "	Oct. 5, " "	Discharged April 18, 1864.
Do.	CHARLES H. PINNEY.....	April 22, 1864	April 22, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	EZEKIEL S. HOAGLAND.....	Jan. 18, 1863	Jan. 18, 1863	Resigned on surgeon's cer. of dis. Aug. 20, '64.
Captain.....	WM. SIMS.....	Oct. 11, 1862	Feb. 11, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John Williamson.....	Nov. 6, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Elijah Hoague.....	" 8, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Ezekiel S. Hoagland.....	Dec. 6, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Chaplain January 18, 1864.
Do.	Henry Plessner.....	Sept. 4, 1863	Dec. 19, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joseph McCutcheon.....	" 19, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out of service September, 1864.
Do.	Joseph N. Hetzler.....	" 17, " "	" 19, " "	Discharged March 25, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Stough.....	Nov. 2, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Benj. Turner.....	" 16, " "	" 19, " "	Died July 18, 1864.
Do.	L. H. Bowlus.....	Dec. 2, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	James Irvine.....	" 2, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	A. P. Gatch.....	" 2, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Breyfogle.....	" 7, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned October 3, 1864.
Do.	Joseph B. Daniels.....	" 2, " "	Jan. 6, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Macumber.....	Oct. 30, " "	" 6, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Stephen R. Hill.....	Jan. 18, 1864	Feb. 1, " "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Wm. Hendersou.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. S. Winnett.....	July 13, " "	July 13, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Brown.....	" 30, " "	" 30, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph McCullough.....	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James P. Caldwell.....	Oct. 1, " "	Oct. 1, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel H. Cole.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Hon. discharged as 1st Lieut. Feb. 4, 1865.
Do.	Alban Coe.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter F. Swing.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Arthur T. Hamilton.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Killed, or died of wounds, March, 1865.
Do.	Thomas J. Cochran.....	May 31, " "	May 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Walter Morrison.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry Epply.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant.....	John W. Macumber.....	Oct. 11, 1862	Feb. 11, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph B. Daniels.....	Nov. 6, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. S. Winnett.....	" 8, " "	" 11, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Stephen R. Hill.....	Dec. 6, " "	" 11, " "	Honorably discharged May 9, 1864.
Do.	Charles Breyfogle.....	Aug. 31, 1863	Dec. 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas Brown.....	Sept. 17, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas W. Fanning.....	Oct. 17, " "	" 19, " "	Resigned January 20, 1865.
Do.	Joseph McCullough.....	Oct. 9, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James P. Caldwell.....	Nov. 2, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel H. Cole.....	Dec. 2, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alban Coe.....	" 2, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Peter F. Swing.....	" 2, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Arthur T. Hamilton.....	" 16, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Frey.....	" 16, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Reg. Q. M.
Do.	Samuel D. Miner.....	" 16, " "	" 19, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Reg. Com. Sgt.
Do.	Walter Morrison.....	Jan. 17, 1864	Jan. 13, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Thomas J. Cochran.....	Oct. 30, 1863	" 6, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Richard B. Mason.....	Dec. 22, " "	" 6, " "	Died June 25, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Henderson.....	Jan. 18, 1864	Feb. 1, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry Epply.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John M. Stewart.....	July 13, " "	July 13, " "	On detached service.
Do.	St. Clair Fickner.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned November 8, 1864.
Do.	James Stonehawker.....	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank H. Knapp.....	Sept. 8, " "	Sept. 8, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. P. Gardner.....	Oct. 1, " "	Oct. 1, " "	Resigned February 4, 1865.
Do.	Wm. B. Ely.....	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Cornelius P. McFarly.....	" 3, " "	" 3, " "	Honorably discharged March 25, 1865.
Do.	Allen J. Alexander.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Honorably discharged March 25, 1865.
Do.	Samuel B. Woodmance.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	E. L. Mann.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Buleau.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles C. Vance.....	" 10, " "	" 10, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Angus A. Methven.....	May 31, " "	May 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. R. Wood.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry A. Morrison.....	" 31, " "	" 31, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. F. Oviatt.....	June 23, " "	June 23, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	Charles M. Cunningham.....	" 23, " "	" 23, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
2d Lieutenant.....	Henry Cochran.....	Nov. 11, 1863	Feb. 11, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Richard B. Mason.....	Feb. 2, 1863	Feb. 11, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John M. Stewart.....	Oct. 17, 1862	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Arthur T. Hamilton.....	Feb. 4, 1863	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	St. Clair Eichner.....	Sept. 4, "	Dec. 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Anthony Prichard.....	" 17, "	" 19, "	Resigned April 4, 1864.
Do.	Frank H. Knapp.....	Oct. 21, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Frey.....	" 30, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Stonehawker.....	" 10, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. P. Gardner.....	Nov. 16, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	C. B. Sweetland.....	Dec. 2, "	" 19, "	Honorably discharged October 17, 1864.
Do.	W. B. Ely.....	" 2, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Henderson.....	Nov. 18, 1863	Jan. 6, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel B. Woolmanse.....	Jan. 26, 1864	" 26, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Cornelius F. McCarty.....	Oct. 30, 1863	" 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Allen J. Alexander.....	Dec. 22, "	" 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	E. L. Mann.....	June 14, 1864	June 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Boibau.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. C. Vance.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Angus A. Methven.....	Sept. 8, "	Sept. 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	W. R. Wood.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry A. Morrison.....	" 8, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lewis Geaque.....	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. E. Oviatt.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	A. Briner.....	" 3, "	" 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Corhart, jr.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Honorably discharged March 25, 1865.
Do.	Chas. M. Cunningham.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Max. Van Oettinger.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Riley Y. Woodlief.....	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Edward Ashley.....	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Merritt A. Rice.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Axline.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Finley Ryan.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Bishop Martin.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Wm. Peairs.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	D. M. Ferguson.....	June 23, "	June 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	C. M. Story.....	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

NINTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ON the 3d day of October, 1862, Governor Tod received instructions from the President to raise three regiments of cavalry, to be known as the Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth Ohio Volunteer Cavalry. A short time previous to this Captain W. D. Hamilton of the Thirty-Second Ohio Infantry, then stationed at Winchester, Virginia, had been ordered from the field to recruit another company for that regiment. He had enlisted fifty men for that purpose, when the regiment, with a number of others, was captured by "Stonewall" Jackson, September 15th, 1862. Captain Hamilton reported for instructions to the Governor, who assigned him the duty of organizing a cavalry command, to be known as the Ninth Ohio Volunteer Cavalry.

The men recruited for the captured regiment formed the nucleus, and the remainder was raised in the eastern portion of Ohio. They rendezvoused at Zanesville. On the 1st of December seven companies were ready for muster, but three of these companies were transferred to complete the Tenth Ohio Volunteer Cavalry, then organizing at Cleveland. The four remaining companies were designated the First Battalion of the Ninth Ohio Volunteer Cavalry, and were ordered to Camp Dennison. Here the battalion was equipped and remained under drill until April 23d, when it was ordered to report for field-duty at Lexington, Kentucky. It was then ordered to Clay County to drive out a Rebel force and protect the country. The battalion, consisting of three hundred effective men, moved forward, driving the enemy from the mountainous regions, and established its camp at Manchester.

The command remained in this region, having frequent skirmishes with the enemy, until the 15th of June, when an expedition was planned to penetrate into East Tennessee, to ascertain the true condition of the inhabitants, and to destroy some extensive factories below Knoxville.

The whole force consisted of about two thousand mounted men, in which were two hundred of the battalion. On the night of the 16th of June this force crossed the Cumberland River at Williamsburg, and moved toward Big Creek Gap, a Rebel stronghold commanding one of the entrances into East Tennessee, between Cumberland Gap and Knoxville. The main road to this point crossed a spur of the Cumberland Mountains at Pine Mountain Gap, a strong pass which was held by the enemy. By a strategic movement the Rebels were surprised, and nearly all captured without firing a gun. Next morning the command moved toward Big Creek Gap, and when within about twelve miles—the battalion being in the advance—the enemy was encountered, and skirmishing was kept up until he was driven within his works at the gap. The enemy evacuated, and without opposition the command accomplished its designs.

The battalion returned to London, Kentucky, where, on the evening of July 5th, an order was received to report at Stanford, Kentucky. It traveled all night and arrived at Stanford—a distance of fifty miles—at three o'clock the next day. It was then ordered to Danville to check the progress of General Morgan. He having avoided Danville, the battalion was ordered back to Wild Cat, near London, to watch and embarrass the progress of the Rebel General Scott, who, it was reported, had entered with a cavalry force, by way of Cumberland Gap, to support General Morgan. General Scott took a circuitous route to the right, and a force, hastily organized at Camp Dick Robinson, was sent in pursuit. In the running fight of ten days the battalion, part of the time, marched at the rate of fifty-seven miles in twenty-four hours—the men living chiefly on blackberries, which they gathered by the road-side while the horses were resting.

On the 1st of August the battalion proceeded from Stanford to Glasgow, Kentucky, a distance of one hundred miles, where a cavalry brigade was organizing under orders of General Burnside, which was destined to take the advance of his expedition into East Tennessee. On the 17th of August this brigade moved forward and crossed the Cumberland River near Burkesville, where it was met by General Burnside in command of the infantry. The cavalry took the advance across that portion of the Cumberland Mountains, supposed to present the fewest obstacles to the passage of an army. During this march both men and horses were, sometimes, two days without food. Knoxville was taken with but little opposition. Major Hamilton was appointed Provost-Marshal of the city, and the battalion was assigned to patrol and guard-duty around the suburbs.

During this time very strong efforts were made in the North to obtain recruits for the army. An order had been issued to raise two more battalions to complete the Ninth, and Major T. P. Cook, formerly of the Fiftieth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, was assigned by Governor Tod to take charge of the recruits for the regiment at Camp Dennison. On the 6th of November the second battalion for the regiment was organized. On the 16th of December the regiment was completed by the organization of the third battalion. The two battalions, raised to their maximum number, together with one hundred recruits for the old battalion, were at once furnished with horses, were armed and equipped with sabers and Smith carbines, and were carefully drilled in camp until February 6th, 1864, when they were ordered to proceed by water to Nashville, Tennessee.

They embarked at Cincinnati, upon seven steamboats, and proceeded as far as Louisville, Kentucky, where, by reason of the reported presence of some guerrillas in that State, they disembarked and marched through the country to Nashville. The march was made without opposition. The regiment was then attached to the left wing of the Sixteenth Army Corps, and ordered to report for field-duty at Athens, Alabama. Here the two battalions were assigned the duty of watching the movements of the enemy along the Tennessee River.

At this time Colonel Hamilton proceeded to Knoxville with orders for the first battalion to join the regiment. The severe campaign, through which this part of the regiment had passed, rendered an entire equipment necessary. For this purpose the men were sent by railway to Nashville, where, after much trouble and delay on account of the difficulty of procuring horses, this battalion took the field and joined the others at Athens, Alabama. Four companies were ordered to the shoals of the Tennessee River, twenty-five miles from Athens, to examine the islands in that portion of the river, reported to have stock and provisions secreted there. This occupied nearly a week. During this time company G was sent to the vicinity of Florence, Alabama, twenty-five miles further down the river, to examine the country and collect stock.

On the night of the 13th of April an Alabama regiment surrounded a barn, in which the men were sleeping, shot two of the sentinels, and, after a short struggle, succeeded in capturing Captain Hetzler, Second Lieutenant Knapp, and thirty-nine men. The remainder of the company escaped and reported at head-quarters near the shoals, where they arrived the next evening. The remaining three companies were pushed forward with all speed, but they failed to rescue the prisoners. The non-commissioned officers and men were sent to Andersonville prison. Eight months after the capture a report from Orderly-Sergeant Kennedy, showed that twenty-five of the number had died. Captain Hetzler and Lieutenant Knapp were sent to Columbia, South Carolina. Lieutenant Knapp, after two unsuccessful efforts to escape, in which he was retaken by the aid of bloodhounds, finally succeeded in reaching Knoxville, Tennessee, after traveling three weeks, principally at night, securing food and assistance from the negroes. At one time he heard the hounds on his trail, and again would have been captured but for the generous assistance of a negro, who, after giving him something to eat, said: "Now, bress de Lord, Massa Yank, you jist trust to me, and we'll fool dem dogs. You trot along fust, den I'll come too, steppin' in your tracks. Go 'bout half a mile, den you come to some watah; you take right through dat, den I'll keep on t' other way. Sec dem dogs is used to huntin' niggers, dey knows de smell, and likes to follow de black man's foot." "But," said the Lieutenant, surprised at this singular offer, "the dogs will catch you and probably tear you to pieces." "Oh, Massa," said he, "let dis nigger alone for dat, I'se fooled dem dogs afore for de Yanks; and, bress de Lord, I'll try it again. Now trot along, Massa, for I hear dem dogs a comin'." Shortly after crossing the pond the Lieutenant heard the hounds howling in the direction taken by the negro, and he was no longer disturbed by them. He afterward joined the regiment at Savannah, Georgia, in January, 1865. Captain Hetzler remained a prisoner until near the close of the war, when he was exchanged.

Another battalion of the Ninth Ohio Volunteer Cavalry was sent out, in the vicinity of Florence, to patrol the river and keep watch of the movements of the enemy. In this work the regiment was engaged for about three weeks, living upon the country. The river was guarded for a distance of fifty miles, and frequent skirmishes with the enemy took place. The regiment was ordered to report at Decatur, Alabama, where it arrived on the 5th of May. On the morning of the 8th the enemy made an attack on the place. The Ninth moved out to ascertain the strength of the enemy upon the skirmish-line, a half a mile from the works. The country was about equally divided between timber and level, open land. The Rebels formed on the open ground, and, as the regiment swung around the timber, a battle took place, in which the Rebels were driven back in confusion. The Ninth had one man killed and three severely wounded. For weeks the enemy's pickets were posted within two miles of town, and cavalry skirmishes were of daily occurrence. About the 1st of June the regiment was sent to Pulaski to re-enforce the Seventh Illinois Infantry, which had been driven from Florence. After driving the enemy back beyond Florence, and remaining a few days, it returned to Decatur.

When it became known that the Rebels received large supplies over the Atlanta and West Point Railroad, it was desirable to destroy it. Of the twenty-five hundred men chosen to effect this, seven hundred were from the Ninth Cavalry. The command started as secretly as possible, desiring to strike the road anywhere between the extreme point guarded by General Johnston's troops, and Montgomery, Alabama. It left Decatur on the 10th of July. For three days the command moved unmolested except by bushwhackers. In the evening of the third day the command reached the Coosa River, and found a force of the enemy preparing to dispute its passage. A contest ensued in which the enemy suffered severely. On the evening of July 17th the command reached the village of Sochapolka, upon the railroad thirty miles east of Montgomery, and about two hundred miles south of Decatur. It was almost exhausted, yet it went immediately to work to destroy the road. For a few days the command was engaged in this work, and was attacked several times, in rear and front, by the enemy.

This expedition traveled, on an average, twenty hours per day, effectually destroyed twenty five miles of an important railroad, one hundred miles beyond the Rebel lines, and sustained, comparatively, a small loss. That of the Ninth Cavalry amounted to twenty-six men, mostly captured while foraging. Having accomplished its purpose it started, in a north-easterly direction, and reached General Sherman's lines, near Marietta, on the 22d of July.

Two days after arriving at Marietta the regiment was ordered to report to Brigadier-General Edward McCook, who was starting upon a raid around the right and rear of Atlanta. Upon arriving at the Chattahoochee River, thirty miles below the city, the horses of the regiment were found to be too much jaded to attempt to make the raid. It remained, therefore, at the river, guarding the pontoon bridge which had been brought to effect a crossing. The enemy sent a force to destroy the bridge, but did not succeed. After defending it until the evening of the next day the regiment lifted the bridge, and returned to the National lines.

After a week's rest at Viningo Station it was ordered to report to Colonel Garrard, commanding a cavalry division upon the extreme right of General Sherman's army in front of Atlanta. Here it remained on duty until the fall of that city, one battalion doing service at the battle of Jonesboro'. Four hundred and fifty men of the regiment, who had been dismounted while with Colonel Garrard, were ordered to Nashville to procure horses. On the night of the 2d of September while the train, containing the men, was passing Big Shanty, Georgia, it was thrown from the track, and six cars were demolished. The enemy, concealed beside the track, opened fire on the wreck. The fire was returned and the cowards fled. One man was killed and three were wounded by the accident, and two killed and five wounded by the enemy's fire. Failing to procure horses in Nashville the regiment proceeded to Louisville, where it obtained them and returned to Nashville, en route for the front.

About ten hours after arriving at Nashville this portion of the regiment formed a part of the force sent out to check General Forrest, who was reported about twenty miles from the city. After various encounters, during a period of ten days, the enemy was compelled to retire beyond the Tennessee River, below Florence, Alabama.

The regiment proceeded to Chattanooga, en route for Atlanta. Here a dispatch was received, that the Ninth had been designated as one of the regiments composing a new cavalry division in the reorganization of the army under General Sherman, and that this portion of the regiment should march to Marietta as rapidly as possible. On arriving at Marietta the regiment found the city vacated and partly burned. Pushing on it arrived at Atlanta on the morning of November 17th, having passed over a distance of eighty miles in thirty-six hours. The city being evacuated it proceeded to McDowell, seventeen miles southward, where it joined the other portion of the Ninth. Although the regiment had suffered some severe losses in killed, wounded, captured, and sickness, yet its strength was sustained by recruits, and it was able to number seven hundred men present for duty.

From this time the Ninth was identified with the cavalry division of General Sherman's army to the Coast. It had almost daily encounters with the enemy. Its duty was to cover the march of the infantry, make false marches to deceive the enemy, and at all times prevent him from harrassing the columns. On the 20th of November, the third day of the march, skirmishing commenced and continued, more or less, until December 4th, when a general engagement took place at Waynesboro', in which the regiment made the second charge and broke the Rebel lines. After driving the Rebels within their works around Savannah, and while the siege was progressing, the regiment, with part of the cavalry command, moved in a south-easterly direction on the Savannah and Gulf Railroad, destroyed parts of it as far as the Altamaha River, and succeeded in burning a portion of the extensive trestle-work and bridge across the swamp and river. The expedition returned to Savannah, where the army remained until the latter part of January, 1865. At this time one hundred and fifty men of the Ninth, who had been attached to General Thomas's army at the battles of Franklin and Nashville, joined their regiment.

On the night of the 3d of February the cavalry division crossed the Savannah River at Sisters' Ferry, forty miles above the city, and commenced the decisive campaign of the Carolinas. Most of the night was occupied in crossing a swamp seven miles wide. On the 6th the regiment, having the advance, encountered the Rebels at a swamp near Barnwell. The men dismounted, waded the swamp, under cover of the timber, and drove them from their position. From this point, during the march, the enemy made several attempts to check the cavalry under General Kilpatrick, and harass the infantry. The cavalry was ordered to cover the movements of the army, by making a feint upon Augusta, Georgia. Striking the Augusta and Charleston Railroad at Blackwell, February 9th, it tore up the track within five miles of Aiken, and twenty-five miles from Augusta. At Aiken the regiment was engaged and assisted in driving the Rebels beyond their lines. Orders came to fall back, and the Ninth guarded the rear and protected the ambulances and artillery. During the march through the Carolinas, the frequent scarcity of grain, as well as the number and character of the swamps encountered, rendered a large number of the horses unfit for service, and as the enemy prevented the capture of others, many of the men were dismounted. These were organized into a "dismounted command."

On the night of the 9th of March General Kilpatrick went into camp with the Third Brigade and the dismounted men, about three miles in advance of the remainder of his command. The Fourteenth Army Corps were about two miles on the right, and the Rebel cavalry, under General Hampton, about the same distance on the left. On the 10th the Rebels dashed in upon the camp and captured the wagons, artillery, and many of the officers and men before they had time to dress themselves. The dismounted men rallied, returned, and opened a close and heavy fire upon the Rebels, who were pillaging the camp. A rapid and irregular fight ensued, during which the artillerists recovered their cannon and opened on the enemy. After a short contest, in which twenty-five National and seventy-five Rebel soldiers were killed, all the stores were taken and the Rebels held at bay until the arrival of the Second Brigade.

In the battle of Averysboro', on the 15th of March, which was fought by infantry and cavalry on both sides, the Ninth supported the right flank of the Twentieth Corps, and was hotly engaged. At Bentonville, North Carolina, where the final battle was fought, General Kilpatrick's entire division occupied the left flank. After the defeat the army moved forward to Goldsboro', North Carolina, where it remained until the 19th of April. General Kilpatrick led the advance upon Raleigh, skirmished a little, and on the 14th of April entered the capital with but little opposition. On the morning of the 18th, a portion of the left wing of General Johnston's army occupied the village of Chapel Hill. It was protected by a brigade of General Wheeler's cavalry, stationed at a swamp, through which the road passed. At daylight the regiment was ordered to advance and, if possible, to effect a crossing. Upon arriving at the swamp the second battalion was dismounted and moved forward through the water, under cover of the cypress timber, until the enemy was brought within range of the Spencer carbines. A spirited conflict ensued in which the enemy was driven from his position, leaving a Captain and staff-officer of General Wheeler and three men dead on the ground. Orders, in the meantime, had arrived from General Sherman suspending hostilities. After the surrender the command was ordered to Concord, North Carolina, where it remained on duty until the last of July.

The services of the cavalry being no longer necessary, the Ninth was ordered home. On the 2d of August, 1865, the regimental colors and property were turned over at Columbus, and the regiment was mustered out of service.

10th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	CHARLES C. SMITH.....	Feb. 25, 1863	Feb. 25, 1863	Honorably discharged January 13, 1865.
Do.....	TIBOS W. SANDERSON.....	Jan. 30, 1863	Jan. 30, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	WM. E. HAYNES.....	Nov. 10, 1862	Feb. 17, 1863	Resigned April 12, 1864.
Do.....	TIBOS W. SANDERSON.....	April 20, 1864	April 20, 1864	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.....	WM. THAYER.....	Jan. 30, 1863	Jan. 30, 1863	Commission revoked.
Do.....	JAMES D. PLATT.....	Feb. 10, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	LYMAN C. THAYER.....	Nov. 10, 1862	"	"
Do.....	WILLARD S. HICKOX.....	Jan. 14, 1863	"	Honorably discharged October 6, 1863.
Do.....	THOS. W. SANDERSON.....	Jan. 15, 1863	"	Resigned October 10, 1863.
Do.....	WM. THAYER.....	Oct. 7, 1861	Jan. 3, 1864	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	ABRAM F. MCCURDY.....	Feb. 1, 1864	Feb. 1, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	JAMES D. PLATT.....	Aug. 2, 1863	"	Discharged May 20, 1864.
Do.....	NAT. W. FILKIN.....	"	Aug. 2, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.....	DAVID STRATTON.....	Jan. 30, 1863	Jan. 30, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Surg. on.....	JAMES W. THOMPSON.....	Oct. 27, 1862	Feb. 17, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	MICHAEL HAYES.....	Dec. 7, 1861	Dec. 7, 1861	Died November 23, 1861.
Ass't Surgeon.....	MILTON VALENTINE.....	Feb. 11, 1863	Feb. 11, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	WM. G. HALL.....	"	"	Resigned October 8, 1863.
Do.....	MICHAEL HAYES.....	Oct. 1, 1861	March 4, 1863	Resigned September 15, 1863.
Do.....	JAMES F. GARDNER.....	March 24, 1861	Oct. 28, 1861	Promoted to Surgeon.
Chaplain.....	SETH G. CLARK.....	Feb. 23, 1863	March 24, 1864	Resigned January 15, 1865.
Captain.....	Wm. Thayer.....	Oct. 4, 1861	Feb. 2, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Abraham F. McCurdy.....	Nov. 7, 1862	"	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	George E. Hutchinson.....	"	"	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	James D. Platt.....	Jan. 25, 1863	"	Resigned September 8, 1864.
Do.....	Nat. W. Filkin.....	Jan. 15, 1863	"	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Andrew V. P. Day.....	"	"	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	David Stratton.....	"	"	Resigned December 17, 1863.
Do.....	Arthur G. Caneby.....	"	"	Promoted to Major.
Do.....	Byron F. Spelman.....	"	"	Resigned April 21, 1864.
Do.....	Alon B. Freeman.....	"	"	Resigned May 31, 1864.
Do.....	Edwin R. Brink.....	"	"	Discharged June 23, 1863.
Do.....	James H. Harford.....	Nov. 10, 1861	Nov. 25, 1861	Resigned May 9, 1865.
Do.....	J. Madison Allen.....	March 17, 1861	Nov. 10, 1861	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.....	John Paist.....	"	"	Discharged as 1st Lieutenant April 28, 1864.
Do.....	Samuel E. Norton.....	"	"	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Edward M. Hayes.....	"	"	Killed in action.
Do.....	Henry Brown.....	"	"	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Julius B. Kilbourne.....	June 14, 1861	June 14, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Wm. H. Day.....	July 14, 1861	July 14, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	David L. Cockley.....	July 25, 1861	July 25, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	John W. Haynie.....	Jan. 30, 1865	Jan. 30, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Edwin McGaughey.....	"	"	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Newton Thayer.....	"	"	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Elias C. Gregg.....	"	"	Honorably discharged April 25, 1865.
Do.....	Edwin B. Campbell.....	May 30, 1861	May 30, 1861	Hon. discharged as 1st Lieut. March 27, 1865.
Do.....	J. H. M. Perry.....	"	"	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	D. C. Hill.....	"	"	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	J. B. Hill.....	"	"	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
1st Lieut.	Henry Frissell.....	Oct. 4, 1862	Feb. 17, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	J. Madison Allen.....	"	"	Resigned June 12, 1863.
Do.....	John C. Sheets.....	"	"	Discharged April 18, 1864.
Do.....	Milton Valentine.....	Nov. 1, 1861	"	Honorably discharged February 5, 1864.
Do.....	John Paisley.....	Oct. 3, 1861	"	Mustered out for promotion.
Do.....	Amos Mardis.....	Nov. 7, 1861	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Samuel E. Norton.....	Jan. 25, 1863	"	Resigned April 10, 1863.
Do.....	Edward M. Hayes.....	Jan. 15, 1863	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Abraham L. Jones.....	"	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James H. Harford.....	"	"	Resigned January 1, 1864.
Do.....	Henry Brown.....	"	"	Honorably discharged July 23, 1864.
Do.....	Julius B. Kilbourne.....	"	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Wm. H. Day.....	"	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Edwin R. Brink.....	"	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Henry S. Arkley.....	June 1, 1861	June 3, 1861	Resigned September 20, 1864.
Do.....	David L. Cockley.....	Jan. 27, 1861	Feb. 15, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	John O. Parisin.....	Feb. 14, 1861	"	Resigned July 3, 1864.
Do.....	John W. Haynie.....	May 1, 1861	June 23, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Edwin McGaughey.....	March 17, 1861	March 17, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	George W. Bonas.....	"	"	Resigned July 11, 1864.
Do.....	James S. Morgan.....	"	"	Killed in action.
Do.....	Edwin B. Campbell.....	June 14, 1861	June 14, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	James L. Thayer.....	"	"	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant August 12, 1864.
Do.....	James S. Fuller.....	"	"	Resigned January 10, 1865.
Do.....	John P. McKay.....	"	"	Discharged as 2d Lieutenant August 12, 1864.
Do.....	J. H. M. Perry.....	"	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	D. C. Hill.....	"	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	J. B. Hill.....	"	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Paul J. D. Hoggie.....	July 25, 1861	July 25, 1861	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Charles Seltzer.....	"	"	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Marius N. Haynie.....	"	"	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.....	Newton Thayer.....	March 17, 1861	March 17, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Elias C. Gregg.....	"	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Henry H. Crooks.....	"	"	Promoted to Captain.
Do.....	Charles D. Clark.....	"	"	Killed.
Do.....	Matthew J. Borland.....	"	"	Mustered out with regiment as Commissary.
				Resigned April 9, 1865.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	John M. Harkness.....	Jan. 30, 1865	Jan. 30, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Adjutant.
Do.	John R. Berry.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wallace Linder.....	" 31, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. J. Thomas.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Resigned June 2, 1865.
Do.	John R. McCullough.....	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as Q. M.
Do.	Robert Mackey.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Enos A. Bradley.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James D. Caldwell.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Hayden.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Lucius E. Brooker.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	John O. Parish.....	Nov. 8, 1862	Feb. 17, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin McGaughey.....	Oct. 4, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ebenezer G. Jack.....	" 7, "	" 17, "	Died June 19, 1863.
Do.	George W. Boggs.....	" 7, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James S. Morgan.....	" 8, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas G. Northrop.....	" 16, "	" 17, "	Resigned April 14, 1863.
Do.	David L. Cockley.....	" 20, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nelson A. Saxton.....	Nov. 1, "	" 17, "	Resigned February 12, 1863.
Do.	Wm. H. Brooker.....	Jan. 15, 1863	" 17, "	Discharged March 27, 1863.
Do.	Newton Thayer.....	" 16, "	" 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Elias C. Gregg.....	Nov. 7, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin B. Campbell.....	July 25, "	Aug. 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry H. Crooks.....	Feb. 12, "	Feb. 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Martin Cox.....	Jan. 27, "	" 25, "	Resigned September 3, 1863.
Do.	Charles D. Clarke.....	Feb. 14, "	" 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James L. Thayer.....	Dec. 5, "	Jan. 8, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John P. McKay.....	" 5, "	" 8, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Mathew J. Bortland.....	June 18, "	July 21, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. H. M. Perry.....	Dec. 7, "	March 3, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jared S. Fulier.....	Nov. 17, "	Dec. 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David C. Hill.....	Dec. 7, "	March 7, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph B. Hill.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel D. Hopper.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles Saeltzer.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Marcus N. Haynie.....	June 14, 1864	June 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John M. Harkness.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John R. Berry.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wallace Linder.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. J. Thomas.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John R. McCullough.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert Mackey.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob M. Winter.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Killed in action.
Do.	Enos A. Bradley.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James D. Caldwell.....	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Worling B. Leggett.....	July 25, "	July 25, "	Resigned May 13, 1865.
Do.	Aaron C. Lovett.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Resigned April 9, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Hayden.....	" 25, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Pool.....	May 31, 1865	May 31, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Parson Dodds.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	H. W. McRill.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel Hill.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.

TENTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY

THE TENTH OHIO CAVALRY was organized at Camp Taylor, in October, 1862, by Charles C. Smith, under a commission from Governor Tod. It was not, however, fully equipped and ready for the field until the spring of 1863, when it left Camp Taylor, for Nashville, Tennessee, and arrived in that city in good marching time. Their services being wanted at the front the regiment was at once ordered to Murfreesboro', at which place and vicinity it remained, performing picket and scout-duty, until the Army of the Cumberland opened the campaign against General Bragg, at Tullahoma. During this campaign the Tenth Cavalry was engaged wherever duty called, and performed a vast amount of marching and counter-marching, acting efficiently as the "eyes of the army," fighting and vanquishing such Rebel cavalry as it met. For a time the regiment was encamped at Shelbyville, Tennessee, and Huntsville, Alabama, with the exception of company L, commanded by Lieutenant David Cockley, which was on the left of the army, acting as advance guards to General Van Cleves's division on the McMinnville pike.

At the battle of Chickamauga one company, commanded by Captain Haynie (then a lieutenant), acted as escort to General Granger, the main portion of the regiment being ordered to guard communications in the rear. After the battle the Tenth was ordered up the Sequatchie Valley, to guard that country against guerrillas under Champ Ferguson, a noted Rebel bandit of that locality. While occupying this valley, performing the duties allotted to it, a portion of the regiment was detailed to accompany a detachment of the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry on a scout into East Tennessee, under command of Colonel Palmer, of the last-mentioned regiment. This detachment was absent from the regiment about three months, and during that time was almost daily engaged with the enemy (Indians and white men) attached to General Longstreet's command. At one time the detachment engaged and defeated a force of five hundred Rebels (three hundred Indians and two hundred North Carolinians), led by Governor Vance, of North Carolina, who was captured, together with one hundred of his men and his wagon-train, ere they could ascend the mountain at the base of which they were attacked. This scout was successful in every particular, and effectually rid that part of the State from banditti of every kind.

The expedition, on its return from East Tennessee, found the regiment stationed at Bridgeport, Alabama, where it had removed from Rossville, Georgia. It was dismounted, the horses having starved to death from scarcity of forage. Remaining at Bridgeport some days awaiting transportation to the rear, to remount, it arrived at Lavergne, Tennessee, in the spring of 1864, and went into camp. In one month from the day of its arrival at Lavergne, the command was again mounted and fully equipped for the field.

Receiving marching orders for Ringgold, Georgia, the regiment proceeded to that place (then "the front") in good condition, and was at once attached to the Second Brigade, Third Division, Cavalry Corps. Colonel Smith was assigned as Brigade commander, and acted as such until the army arrived before Marietta. In this march (a long and tedious one) the command was repeatedly engaged with the enemy, and at the battle of Resaca the Tenth, under Colonel Smith, led the charge which commenced that fight. In this brilliant dash the loss of the regiment was severe.

It was actively engaged in all of Kilpatrick's movements during Sherman's Atlanta campaign, and several times made raids around Atlanta, cutting the enemy's communications, and otherwise annoying them. In one of these raids Lieutenant Crooks, of company K, was killed by a Rebel sharpshooter.

The great "March to the Sea" was inaugurated. This promised serious work, for the cavalry at least, and so it proved. On that march most of the fighting that occurred was performed by the cavalry. The Tenth Ohio was more frequently engaged than the other regiments, from the fact that it had a fashion of using the saber oftener than the gun. The enemy was first encountered at Jonesville, Georgia, and from that place to Savannah, Georgia, scarcely a day passed without encounters with the Rebel General Wheeler's and other cavalry and infantry. The victory at Lovejoy's Station was mainly attributable to a general charge by the entire division (nine regiments) of cavalry.

Bear Creek Station was the scene of the next encounter, the Tenth engaging the enemy singly, behind formidable barricades. Here again the saber was used, and the enemy fairly lifted from behind their barricades and put to ignoble flight. Lieutenant James Morgan, of company F, was killed while gallantly leading his men in this charge.

According to instructions from General Sherman, the cavalry command crossed the Ocmulgee on Howard's pontoons, and moved on the Clinton and Macon Road, intending to demonstrate toward the latter place, as if to attack it. General Kilpatrick fought his command to within a mile of the city, and under the fire of thirteen pieces of artillery, the Tenth Ohio, led by Captain Hofford, charged the work with drawn sabers and never halted until the fort was entered and two pieces of artillery were captured; but not without heavy loss in killed, wounded and prisoners. Among the prisoners was Captain J. Hofford. The enemy was also encountered at Griswoldsville, Gordon, and Milledgeville.

When the capital of the State fell into the hands of the National army, Kilpatrick was ordered to move his command on the Augusta Road, and endeavor to rescue our prisoners, then in stockades on the railroad between Millen and Augusta. With such object in view, and also to impress the Rebels with the idea that Augusta was our objective point, Kilpatrick crossed the Oconee and moved on the road indicated, by way of the Ogechee Shoals. Arriving at the Shoals Captain Estes (Adjutant-General of Kilpatrick's cavalry), with a detachment of the Tenth, under command of Captain Norton, of company D, under orders from Kilpatrick, left the command and marched rapidly in the direction of Waynesboro'; arriving at that place in a very short time, traveling night and day, but too late to rescue our prisoners, as they had been removed to Savannah or some other point South. The command, in due time, arrived at Waynesboro', and though pressed by Wheeler (who now had added to his command all the Rebel cavalry in and around Augusta), destroyed several miles of the railroad track, and succeeded in accomplishing all that was desired. The command then withdrew in the direction of Louisville, closely followed by Wheeler, with whom several conflicts occurred, our troops always repulsing their attacks.

After a day's rest at Louisville, Georgia, orders were received from General Sherman to move in the direction of Augusta with vigor, as if to take it, and if Wheeler's cavalry should oppose the movement, to attack and, if possible, defeat it. Accordingly, the National cavalry moved as directed, and encountering the Rebel cavalry a few miles from Louisville, attacked and drove it in the direction of Waynesboro', which town (it was reported by scouts) Wheeler intended that no Yankee should again occupy.

On the morning of December 1st, Kilpatrick moved his command—which, in compliance with orders of the night previous, stripped for a fight. The National force numbered but five thousand six hundred, while the Rebel cavalry, three divisions strong, numbered from ten to twelve thousand. The Second Division (at this time commanded by Colonel Adkins, of the Ninety-Second Illinois Infantry, composed of the Tenth Ohio Cavalry, Ninety-Second Illinois Infantry, and Ninth Michigan Cavalry), moved out in advance. The men of the Ninety-Second Illinois, on foot, with their Spencer seven-shooters, made directly for the barricades, while the Tenth, with drawn sabers, charged on the flanks. The advance squadron of the Tenth was led by Captain Samuel Norton, of company D, who was killed at the head of the column, while encouraging his men to deeds of daring. This officer was considered by the Division Commander one of the most daring and reliable in his command, and was frequently selected for enterprises that required bravery united with judgment. The enemy, though outnumbering the National cavalry two to one, was completely routed and driven eight miles. The loss on both sides was severe.

After this engagement the cavalry followed the army (then in advance) on its march to the coast, covering the entire rear, from right to left, and so completely protected the trains from Wheeler's numerous attacks that not a single wagon fell into the hands of the enemy.

On reaching the Gulf Railroad, Kilpatrick was ordered to cross the Ogechee River and endeavor to communicate with our fleet from Kilkenny Bluff. This was accomplished by Captain Estes and Captain Day, of the Tenth Ohio Cavalry.

The closing campaign of the war was reached—that through the Carolinas. In this, too, the Tenth was actively engaged, meeting the enemy frequently, both cavalry and infantry, and almost invariably repulsing their attacks. General Kilpatrick frequently expressed his opinion that the Tenth Ohio Cavalry was the best charging regiment he had under his command.

Colonel Smith, the commander of the Tenth during the majority of the time the regiment was in service, was on duty as Brigade Commander, and although greatly enfeebled by ill-health, caused by his arduous duties, remained with his command until it reached Cartersville, Georgia, when he was compelled to leave for home. His health remaining poor, by the advice of his medical attendant, he reluctantly resigned his commission, the service losing one of the most efficient drill-masters in the cavalry arm.

11th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Lt. Colonel	WM. O. COLLINS	Dec. 19, 1864	Jan. 28, 1865	Mustered out April 1, 1865.
Do.	THOMAS L. MACKAY	May 1, 1865	May 1, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	JOHN O'FERRALL	Oct. 20, 1864	Jan. 28, 1865
Do.	THOMAS L. MACKAY	Sept. 21, 1862	Oct. 25, "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	B. C. CONVERSE	July 18, 1863	July 18, 1863	Honorably discharged April 11, 1864.
Do.	WESLEY LOVE	Dec. 7, 1864	Dec. 7, 1864	Mustered out April 1, 1865.
Do.	LEVI G. MARSHALL	May 1, 1865	May 1, 1865	Mustered out; resigned March 1, 1866.
Do.	WM. H. EVANS	Feb. 27, 1863	Feb. 27, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	GEORGE C. UNDERHILL	July 20, 1863	July 20, 1863	Mustered out April 1, 1865.
Asst. Surgeon	I. H. FINFROCK	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out April 1, 1865.
Do.	ALFRED F. ZEIGLER	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out May 1, 1865.
Do.	J. H. FINFROCK	Oct. 1, 1865	Oct. 1, 1865	Declined to accept.
Do.	JAMES F. RICH	Dec. 8, "	Dec. 8, "
Chaplain	GEORGE A. ADAMS	July 31, 1862	July 31, 1862	Resigned November 25, 1864.
Captain	Thomas M. Shipley	Sept. 21, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Dismissed March 13, 1863.
Do.	Hamer Hayes	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 28, "	Honorably discharged February 17, 1863.
Do.	Thomas L. Mackey	" 13, "	" 28, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Peter W. Van Winkle	" 31, "	" 28, "	Waives promotion; mustered out April 1, '65.
Do.	John Van Pearce	Sept. 21, 1862	Oct. 23, "	Resigned June 9, 1863.
Do.	Wesley Love	Feb. 17, 1863	May 28, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Henry L. Koehne	March 13, "	" 28, "	Mustered out April 1, 1865.
Do.	Thomas P. Clark	June 9, "	June 23, "	Mustered out April 1, 1865.
Do.	Levi G. Marshall	May 29, "	July 29, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Wm. H. Evans	June 10, "	" 29, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Levi M. Rinehart	May 29, "	" 29, "	Killed by Indians February 20, 1865.
Do.	Jacob S. Shuman	June 10, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. L. Humphreysville	Nov. 3, 1864	Nov. 3, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Oliver S. Glenn	Dec. 7, "	Dec. 7, "	Declined.
Do.	Edwin L. Pettyjohn	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out as 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob F. Apt	March 28, 1865	March 28, 1865	Mustered out April 1, 1865.
Do.	H. C. Bretny	May 1, "	May 1, "	Discharged.
Do.	Ewell P. Drake	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Ellsworth	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	T. B. Harlan	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James A. Brown	Dec. 28, "	Dec. 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Q. Lewis	" 28, "	" 28, "	Retained in service by order of Sec. of War.
1st Lieutenant	James W. Hanna	Feb. 27, 1866	Feb. 27, 1866	Mustered out September 8, 1866.
Do.	Henry L. Koehne	Nov. 21, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wesley Love	Dec. 9, "	" 28, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Van Pearce	" 13, "	" 28, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Oliver S. Glenn	" 31, "	" 28, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Edwin L. Pettyjohn	Feb. 17, 1863	May 28, 1863	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. H. Brown	March 13, "	" 28, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Thomas P. Clark	Sept. 21, 1862	Oct. 23, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John G. Reeves	June 9, 1863	June 23, 1863	Mustered out.
Do.	John H. Bault	" 23, "	" 26, "	Mustered out.
Do.	David S. Dick	" 19, "	July 29, "	Died September 4, 1863.
Do.	Henry E. Averill	" 23, "	" 29, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Ewell P. Drake	" 11, "	" 29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Henry C. Bretny	July 18, "	" 29, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Ellsworth	Sept. 16, "	Sept. 16, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel J. Rice	" 4, "	" 16, "	Honorably discharged December 7, 1864.
Do.	T. B. Harlan	Nov. 3, 1864	Nov. 3, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James A. Brown	" 3, "	" 3, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Charles W. Waters	Dec. 7, "	Dec. 7, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Jacob F. Apt	" 7, "	" 7, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James W. Hanna	May 1, 1865	May 1, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Caspar W. Collins	" 1, "	" 1, "	Killed.
Do.	John Q. Lewis	" 1, "	" 1, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. R. Beluymmer	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas G. Morrow	" 1, "	" 1, "	Discharged March 10, 1866, as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	J. R. Maloney	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Benj. P. Blades	Nov. 27, "	Nov. 27, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	S. B. White	Dec. 28, "	Dec. 28, "	Declined.
Do.	John B. Finay	Feb. 2, 1866	Feb. 2, 1866	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Waterman Swearingen	" 27, "	" 27, "	Mustered out October 21, 1866.
Do.	Byron Morfoot	March 26, "	March 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Walter Florentine	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Thomas P. Clark	Oct. 1, 1861	Jan. 28, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Brown	Nov. 21, "	" 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Carmau Yamauda	Dec. 9, "	" 28, "	Promoted.
Do.	George W. Duggett	" 31, "	" 28, "	Resigned April 23, 1863.
Do.	John G. Reeves	Sept. 21, 1862	Oct. 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles W. Waters	Feb. 17, 1863	May 28, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob F. Apt	April 20, "	" 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob L. Humphreysville	March 13, "	" 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Rufus E. Talpey	June 9, "	June 23, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Samuel J. Rice	" 19, "	July 29, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James W. Hanna	" 19, "	" 29, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Caspar W. Collins	" 30, "	" 29, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George H. Boyd	July 31, "	Sept. 16, "	Discharged March 6, 1865.
Do.	John Brown	Sept. 4, "	" 16, "	Killed by Indians.
Do.	John Q. Lewis	July 22, "	July 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. R. Maloney	Nov. 3, 1864	Nov. 3, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. R. Beluymmer	" 3, "	" 4, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. A. Morris	Dec. 7, 1864	Dec. 7, 1864	Mustered out.
Do.	Robert Hamilton	" 7, "	" 7, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Thomas G. Morrow.....	" 7, "	" 7, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ben. P. Blades.....	May 1, 1865	May 1, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	S. B. White.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Waterman Swearingen.....	" 1, "	" 1, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Sellers.....	Sept. 29, "	Sept. 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Marsh.....	Oct. 30, "	Oct. 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Reed	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	E. B. Heaton.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Discharged December 26, 1865.
Do.	Wm. P. Cochran.....	Nov. 27, "	Nov. 27, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Walter Florentine.....	Dec. 28, "	Dec. 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. A. Wagner	Feb. 27, 1866	Feb. 27, 1866	Discharged April 15, 1866.
Do.	Pleasant W. Brown.....	July 20, "	July 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Lewis B. Hull.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.

ELEVENTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

TOWARD the close of the summer of 1861 William O. Collins, of Highland County, was authorized to recruit a regiment of cavalry, to be denominated the Seventh. Recruiting commenced about the 1st of October, and the full number of companies was soon under way, with a fair prospect of speedy completion. But about the 1st of December an order was issued by the authorities at Washington City, stopping the enlistment of cavalry, and directing the muster-out of all incomplete organizations, unless they could be consolidated with others. Under these circumstances the Seventh was consolidated with the Sixth, and the new organization was denominated the Sixth Ohio Volunteer Cavalry. The Seventh dropped all incomplete companies, and furnished for the new regiment one battalion of four companies. The new regiment was never together, except for a few days at Camp Dennison, in February, 1862. It then appeared that the battalion furnished by the Seventh was mounted and equipped, while the other two battalions were merely uniformed, with no immediate prospect of being furnished with horses and arms. The battalion from the Seventh, being ready and anxious for active service, was ordered to St. Louis, Missouri, leaving the other two battalions in Ohio, and never meeting them afterward. During the summer these two battalions were recruited to a full regiment, and the connection between them and the battalion in the field was permanently dissolved, and the latter was designated the First Independent Battalion, Ohio Volunteer Cavalry.

While the battalion was at Benton Barracks, awaiting the movement of an expedition to the South-West, of which it was to form a part, the Indians of the plains and mountains, instigated by Rebel agents, suddenly became hostile, and, by destroying mail-stations and mail-coaches, effectually cut off all overland communication with the States and Territories of the Pacific. It was ordered at once to proceed across the plains, to open and protect communication. The command left St. Louis about the 4th of April, 1862, on the steamers Robert Campbell and Sam. Gaty, and arrived at Fort Leavenworth about the 11th. On their way up the Missouri River the boats were fired into repeatedly by guerrillas, but the fire was always returned promptly, and the enemy silenced. The command was delayed at Fort Leavenworth for its outfit of mules, wagons, and commissary stores until the 26th of April, when it struck out for Fort Laramie, seven hundred miles distant, by way of Fort Kearney and Julesburg (now Fort Sedgwick). The streams were swollen and dangerous, the storms of rain, hail, and snow were terrible, and the men and stock suffered severely. Exposure brought on disease, from which six men died. They were buried at Fort Kearney, where the command halted to recruit. The battalion reached Fort Laramie on the 30th of May, having traveled the seven hundred miles in twenty-six marching days. The Indian troubles being still further west, the battalion, with the exception of a few officers and men detailed for duty at Fort Laramie, was ordered forward into the mountains. Detachments were left at various points along the North Platte and Sweetwater Rivers, and on the 20th of June head-quarters were established near Pacific Springs and the South Pass, about two hundred miles east of Salt Lake City, and three hundred west of Fort Laramie. The service proved to be one of ceaseless activity and exposure. The small number of troops, their scattered positions, and the vast extent of country under their charge, required them to be constantly watchful.

In July the Overland Mail Company changed its route from the North Platte and Sweetwater to the Cherokee Trail. This added another main line to be guarded. The principal posts were at Camp Collins and Fort Halleck. About the 1st of September battalion head-quarters were removed to Fort Laramie, but detachments were left at proper stations on both lines. The winter was very severe, and procuring supplies and like duties were attended with great suffering. Attacks were made by the Indians upon the detachments at South Pass, Sweetwater Bridge, Platte Bridge, and other places, but they were all repulsed, though some lives were lost.

In the summer of 1863 Lieutenant-Colonel Collins was authorized to recruit another battalion for service in the Rocky Mountains. This was done in June and July. The two battalions were raised to a regiment, which was denominated the Eleventh Ohio Volunteer Cavalry. The second battalion was at Camp Dennison at the time of the Morgan raid, and it shared in the pursuit and capture of the invaders. It left Ohio early in August and arrived at Fort Leavenworth about the last of the same month. While there, awaiting transportation and supplies, the sacking and burning of the town of Lawrence occurred. Two hundred and fifty men were sent in pursuit of the murderers; but, after a rapid and exhausting chase of several days and nights, they returned unsuccessful. This battalion left Fort Leavenworth early in September, and arrived at Fort Laramie on the 13th of October, 1863. There were now no troops on either of the overland mail routes from Julesburg to Green River, a distance of over one thousand miles, except the Eleventh Ohio Cavalry; and not only these two main routes, but many minor and cross routes, were to be cared for by them alone. Recruiting continued during the winter of 1863-4, and the recruits reached the regiment during the following spring and summer. Many men enlisted for the regiment never reached it, being gobbled up and assigned to other regiments in Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska. No other Ohio troops were on duty west of the Missouri during the war, except some in Southern Missouri and Arkansas. The head-quarters of the district were usually at its extreme eastern end, either at Fort Leavenworth or Omaha, the latter six hundred and the former seven hundred miles from Fort Laramie; and for three years after the arrival of the first battalion at that post it was only visited twice by a district or department commander. General Craig had his head-quarters there in the summer of 1862, and General Mitchell made a hasty visit in the summer of 1864. Visits from inspecting-officers, mustering-officers, and paymasters were equally rare.

On the 1st of April, 1865, the first battalion was mustered out at Omaha, Nebraska, having served about three years and a half; and the remaining companies were mustered out at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and were sent to Columbus, Ohio, for payment, in July, 1866. They were the last troops in the service from Ohio.

Of the services of this regiment it is impossible to give even an outline. A complete history would be full of startling incidents and hair-breadth escapes. Those who may suppose that the service in which the regiment was engaged was a peculiarly safe one, will be surprised to learn that the loss of life fully equaled the average loss in other cavalry regiments from Ohio. In addition to the losses in battle and from disease, many men were frozen to death. The most important battles in which the regiment was engaged were those of Mud Springs and Rush Creek. The skirmishes were almost innumerable. An idea of their frequency may be obtained from the fact that company G is said to have had thirteen engagements with the Indians between the 1st of March and the 5th of September, 1865. The length of the expeditions by scouting and escorting parties was probably not paralleled in any other service during the war. Single trips were made to the distance of one thousand miles into the depths of the wilderness, and sometimes in the dead of winter. To make the circuit of the posts required one thousand miles' travel; and to keep up communication with the most distant was at times extremely difficult and dangerous. Every winter some men were frozen to death; others lost their feet or hands, and many were temporarily disabled by the frost. In an expedition after the Utes, in February, 1863, the commander of the regiment, with about sixty men, was overtaken by a snow-storm when near Fort Halleck, a point eight thousand three hundred feet above the level of the sea, and every man was more or less frozen, and two lost their lives. The occasional severity of the weather is worthy of record. On the 3d, 4th, and 5th of January, 1864, the mercury at Fort Laramie froze each night—on the 3d for four hours, on the 4th for fifteen hours, and on the 5th for twelve hours. A spirit thermometer would have indicated, probably, from fifty to sixty degrees below zero. On one of these mornings an experiment was made with sanitary whisky, and upon being exposed in a tin cup, it froze solid in twenty minutes, and was tossed about like a brickbat.

Skillful rifle-shooting is especially important in Indian fighting, and target-practice was constantly maintained. An artillery company was organized of picked men, and, after a few months' drill, it obtained great proficiency. A brass and field band were also organized. A library of about eight hundred volumes was obtained from the States by donation and purchase, and a reading-room was established at head-quarters, which was well filled with newspapers and magazines. All books and newspapers were distributed to distant posts, and were exchanged from time to time. Even a theater was improvised; and though pantomime was cultivated principally, tragedy and comedy were not neglected, and in fact, were not badly presented. It appeared that some of the men had faced the footlights before.

The regiment was never actually together during its term of service. It was engaged with the Snakes, Sioux, Cheyennes, Arrapahoes, and Utes. The number of posts regularly garrisoned was from fifteen to twenty, all of which were built by the soldiers of the regiment, except Fort Laramie. The ground of its operations was in the center of the Rocky Mountains, and extended nearly six hundred miles east and west, and three hundred north and south, embracing portions of Nebraska, Dacotah, Colorado, Utah, Oregon, Idaho, and Montana. Within this district no other troops were stationed after the arrival of the first battalion, except a few regulars at Fort Laramie and a company of Kansas volunteers at Fort Halleck. Both were withdrawn in the spring of 1863. In August, 1864, a detachment of Iowa cavalry came out, and in the spring of 1865 large bodies of troops were sent out.

No better evidence of the regiment's courage and vigilance can be had than the fact that after the distribution of troops in the summer of 1862, until February, 1865, communications were never interrupted on either route for twenty-four hours in succession.

12th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	ROBERT W. RATLIFF	Nov. 24, 1863	Dec. 1, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	ROBERT H. BENTLEY	" 24, "	" 1, "	Resigned July 15, 1865.
Do.	JOHN F. HERRICK	July 15, 1865	Sept. 4, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	JOHN F. HERRICK	Oct. 24, 1863	Dec. 1, 1863	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	MILES J. COLLIER	Nov. 7, "	" 1, "	Resigned July 14, 1865.
Do.	ERASTUS C. MODERWELL	" 24, "	" 1, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. H. HUNTER	July 5, 1865	July 5, 1865	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Do.	MERVILLE L. SAUNDERS	Oct. 13, "	Oct. 13, "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Surgeon	GEORGE W. BROOKE	Oct. 15, 1863	Dec. 1, 1863	Resigned August 7, 1865.
Do.	W. H. HUGHES	Aug. 16, 1863	Sept. 4, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	ABRAHAM H. HUNT	Nov. 6, 1863	Dec. 1, 1863	Honorably discharged March 23, 1865.
Do.	W. H. HUGHES	" 6, "	" 1, "	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	D. H. GREGORY	June 26, 1863	June 26, 1863	Declined.
Do.	GEORGE W. PEASE	Sept. 20, "	Sept. 20, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	THOMAS ROBERTS	Sept. 22, 1864	Jan. 22, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	Erastus C. Moderwell	Sept. 3, 1863	Dec. 10, 1863	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Alexander A. Monroe	" 26, "	" 10, "	Major in 122d Colored Regiment Infantry.
Do.	Samuel D. Hawley	Oct. 23, "	" 10, "	Discharged April 18, 1865.
Do.	Wm. H. Hunter	" 23, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Merville L. Saunders	" 21, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Orange Sells	" 25, "	" 10, "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Miles J. Collier	" 28, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	John W. Johnston	Nov. 7, "	" 10, "	Discharged April 18, 1865.
Do.	Thomas K. Parkinson	" 5, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	C. M. Degenfeld	" 7, "	" 10, "	Resigned July 25, 1865.
Do.	Ezekiel B. Holmes	" 12, "	" 10, "	Resigned July 10, 1864.
Do.	W. A. Gage	" 12, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Lieut. Col. 121st U. S. Col. Inf.
Do.	James Hicks	" 24, "	" 10, "	Absent at muster-out of regiment.
Do.	Franklin A. Dubois	" 24, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank H. Mason	Aug. 19, 1864	Aug. 19, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	R. H. Sardana	" 19, "	" 19, "	Resigned February 10, 1865.
Do.	John G. Roll	May 11, 1865	May 11, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Jacob Snyder	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	M. E. Douglas	" 11, "	" 11, "	Resigned October 9, 1865.
Do.	John Armstrong	" 11, "	" 11, "	Resigned July 20, 1865.
Do.	Henry H. Lohmire	June 28, "	June 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Obadiah J. Jackson	Sept. 4, "	Sept. 4, "	Died of fever at Sweetwater, Tenn. Aug. 31, '65.
Do.	Wm. C. Heddlson	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with reg't as 1st Lt. and Adj't
Do.	James J. Deigh	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	Robert B. Smith	" 29, "	" 29, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James A. Thompson	Nov. 12, "	Nov. 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
Do.	Archibald H. Thompson	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieut.
1st Lieutenant	Frank H. Mason	Aug. 26, 1863	Dec. 1, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. S. Wool	Sept. 17, "	" 1, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Milton W. Parsons	Nov. 24, "	" 1, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	R. H. Sardana	Oct. 19, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John G. Roll	" 25, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Jacob Snyder	" 23, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Franklin A. Dubois	" 24, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John W. Johnston	" 28, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	M. E. Douglas	" 30, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	H. P. Caldwell	Nov. 5, "	" 10, "	Resigned January 24, 1865.
Do.	Henry H. Lohmire	" 7, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Obadiah J. Jackson	" 12, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John W. Higby	" 12, "	" 10, "	Declined; commission returned.
Do.	Philip S. Vandvke	" 24, "	" 10, "	Resigned August 8, 1865.
Do.	David A. Newell	" 24, "	" 10, "	Honorably discharged May 20, 1865.
Do.	Wm. C. Heddlson	" 7, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Armstrong	Oct. 23, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James J. Deigh	Jan. 6, 1864	Jan. 6, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert B. Smith	Aug. 19, "	Aug. 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James A. Thompson	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Robert J. Stewart	May 11, 1865	May 11, 1865	Died July 31, 1865, at Sweetwater, Tenn.
Do.	Thomas S. Finch	" 11, "	" 11, "	Resigned August 10, 1865.
Do.	Archibald H. Thompson	" 11, "	" 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	L. A. Harvey	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel Hammond	" 11, "	" 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry C. Jones	June 16, "	June 16, "	Discharged February 7, 1865.
Do.	Erastus J. Van Tuvl	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles G. Ramsells	Sept. 4, "	April 4, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Amos W. Longfellow	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Nelson Holt	" 4, "	" 4, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Milo S. Blanchard	Nov. 12, "	Nov. 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	David C. Pugh	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Elija Z. Davis	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Frank M. Rupert	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Wm. Hamblong	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
Do.	Joseph T. Thompson	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieut.
3d Lieutenant	Wm. P. Leonard	Aug. 26, 1863	Dec. 10, 1863	Resigned January 4, 1864.
Do.	James A. Thompson	Oct. 17, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert J. Stewart	" 23, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David A. Newell	" 24, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas S. Finch	" 26, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Archibald H. Thompson	" 28, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Eli N. Flaisig	" 29, "	Dec. 10, 1863	Discharged February 26, 1864.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	L. A. Harvey.....	Nov. 5, 1863	Dec. 10, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel Hammond.....	" 7, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James J. Defigh.....	" 12, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	C. A. Beery.....	" 24, "	" 10, "	Mustered out.
Do.	Robert B. Smith.....	Aug. 24, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry C. Jones.....	Dec. 24, "	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Erastus J. Van Tuyel.....	Jan. 4, 1864	Jan. 13, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. G. Rannels.....	" 6, "	" 6, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Amos W. Longfellow.....	May 19, "	May 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Nelson Holt.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas M. Schlabaugh.....	Aug. 19, "	Aug. 19, "	Resigned June 18, 1865.
Do.	Milo S. Blanchard.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David C. Pugh.....	June 16, 1865	June 16, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Eliza Z. Davis.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank M. Rupert.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Hamilton.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Humlong.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph T. Thompson.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	S. R. Nettleton.....	July 5, "	July 5, "	Mustered out with regiment as Vet. Surgeon.
Do.	Leslie N. Aylesworth.....	Sept. 20, "	Sept. 20, "	Mustered out with regiment as Hos. Steward.
Do.	John C. Gratz.....	Nov. 12, "	Nov. 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as Ord. Serg't.
Do.	George W. Pippinger.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	George W. Kirkland.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Elijah Baker.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Nelson A. Latham.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	David A. Woodland.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Richard H. Sheldou.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Peter J. Hershoy.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Joseph W. Briggs.....	" 12, "	" 12, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.

TWELFTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

THE TWELFTH OHIO CAVALRY was recruited during the months of September and October, 1863, from nearly every county in the State, rendezvousing at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, where it was mustered into the service on the 24th day of November, 1863. One-half of the regiment was engaged in doing guard-duty, during the winter of 1863-4, on Johnson's Island, having been ordered there on the 10th of November. On the 29th the regiment moved from Camp Dennison, where it was mounted, armed, and equipped, to Louisville, and then to Lexington and Mount Sterling.

Little of importance transpired until the 23d of May, when the regiment was a portion of General Burbridge's command on the first Saltville raid. On the arrival in the vicinity of Pound Gap, after eight days' marching, it became evident that John Morgan had entered Kentucky, and the command immediately started in pursuit. After severe marching, with but little time for eating or sleeping, the command arrived at Mount Sterling on the 9th of June, 1864. The Twelfth was closely engaged with the Rebels at this point, behaving with great gallantry, and being specially complimented by General Burbridge. The Twelfth again overtook Morgan at Cynthiana, and fought with him, scattering his forces in every direction. The regiment charged through the town, crossed the river, and pursued the retreating Rebels for three days. On the 30th of July a portion of company A attacked some sixty guerrillas near Lebanon, Kentucky, killing their leader and five or six of his men, and completely routing the remainder. Except during a march to Burnside's Point, the head-quarters of the regiment were at Richmond, Kentucky, until September 20th, when it started, in General Burbridge's command, on a second expedition to Saltville. The salt works were reached, and the regiment engaged for half a day in hard fighting. It becoming necessary to silence a battery posted upon a hill, the Twelfth, with its brigade, charged up the hill and drove the enemy from his works. After this the head-quarters of the regiment were established at Lexington, the companies being scattered through different counties, until they were ordered to Crab Orchard to join another Saltville expedition. The division, General Burbridge commanding, left Crab Orchard on the 22d of November, during a severe snow-storm, and moved via Cumberland Gap to Bean's Station. On the night of their arrival the Twelfth made a successful reconnoissance to Rogersville. It did its full share of duty under General Stoneman, at Bristol, at Abingdon, at Marion, and thence as support to General Gillam in his pursuit of Vaughn; then back again to Marion, where General Stoneman engaged Breckinridge for forty hours, and finally defeated him. In this engagement all of the Twelfth bearing sabers, participated in a grand charge, driving back the enemy's cavalry. The regiment behaved gallantly throughout the fight, and received the praises of Generals Stoneman and Burbridge.

On the 21st of December Saltville was captured, and the forces returned to Kentucky, and regimental head-quarters again established at Richmond. As the result of this raid four boats were captured, one hundred and fifty miles of railroad, thirteen trains and locomotives, lead mines, salt works, iron foundries, and an immense quantity of stores of all sorts, were completely destroyed. During the raid company F acted as escort to General Burbridge.

About the middle of February the regiment was thoroughly armed, equipped, and mounted. It then proceeded by way of Louisville and the river to Nashville, arriving March 6th. From Nashville it moved to Murfreesboro', and from there to Knoxville. At this point it again formed part of a raiding expedition under General Stoneman. They penetrated North Carolina, and by an angular movement struck the Lynchburg and East Tennessee Railroad at Christiansburg, Virginia. That was destroyed for some thirty miles, and they next cut the Danville and Charlotte Railroad at Greensboro', North Carolina. This drew the garrison from Salisbury, and cutting the road again between them and Salisbury, that place, with its stores and the National prisoners confined there, fell into our hands on April 12th. Moving south they destroyed sections of branch railroads to Morgantown and Rutherford, and the Danville and Columbia Road south of Charlotte, and the work seemed done. Thenceforward they aided in the capture of Jefferson Davis, moving through South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama, capturing Generals Bragg and Wheeler, and their escorts, and finally reaching Bridgeport, Alabama, having been sixty-seven days in the saddle. From Bridgeport the regiment went to Lenoir, East Tennessee, where it remained three months, and about the 1st of September moved to Pulaski, where the regimental head-quarters were established, while the companies were scattered through several counties, enforcing law and order.

The Twelfth finally rendezvoused at Nashville, and was mustered out on the 14th of November, 1865; then proceeded to Columbus, where it was paid and discharged on the 22d and 23d of the same month, after two years of incessant service.

13th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	STEPHEN R. CLARK	June 6, 1865	June 6, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel	NOAH H. HINSON	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Discharged October 26, 1864.
Do.	STEPHEN R. CLARK	March 4, 1865	March 4, 1865	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	RICHARD H. WHEELER	Aug. 2, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Major.
Major	JOHN N. CHERRY	May 7, 1864	May 7, 1864	Resigned September 8, 1864.
Do.	STEPHEN R. CLARK	Sept. 2, " "	Sept. 2, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	FRANCIS C. RUSSELL	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Resigned February 4, 1865.
Do.	W. M. JARVIS	Feb. 20, 1865	Feb. 20, 1865	Resigned June 24, 1865.
Do.	RICHARD H. WHEELER	May 18, " "	May 18, " "	Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	BENJAMIN F. KLING	Aug. 2, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out as Captain.
Do.	ROBERT C. CAMPBELL	Aug. 2, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Do.	PAUL V. PETARD	Aug. 2, " "	Sept. 4, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Captain.
Do.	N. WARREN PULSIFER	Aug. 2, " "	Sept. 4, " "	On detached service.
Surgeon	W. M. H. PARK	May 6, 1864	May 6, 1864	Returned commission.
Do.	NATHAN S. RICHARDSON	Oct. 20, " "	Oct. 20, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	ROBERT C. DOWNEY	May 4, 1864	May 4, " "	Resigned April 23, 1865.
Do.	KUND KEBELE	March 22, 1865	March 22, 1865
Do.	H. W. CARPENTER	June 8, " "	June 8, " "
Captain	Stephen R. Clark	Jan. 29, 1864	May 9, 1864	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Francis C. Russell	April 25, " "	April 25, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Joshua Gare	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Discharged March 25, 1865.
Do.	Samuel Wydman	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Revoked August 13, 1864; not mustered.
Do.	Wm. C. Taylor	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Discharged February 3, 1865.
Do.	Thomas E. Roberts	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Discharged March 25, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Jarvis	May 7, " "	May 9, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Richard H. Wheeler	Aug. 22, " "	Aug. 22, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Benjamin F. Kling	Sept. 2, " "	Sept. 2, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Benjamin F. Metcalf	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Killed March 31, 1865.
Do.	Joseph F. Kirkhart	Nov. 3, " "	Nov. 3, " "	Honorably discharged May 3, 1865.
Do.	Hiram G. Brown	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Revoked; declined to muster.
Do.	Robert C. Campbell	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Paul V. Petard	Feb. 21, 1865	Feb. 21, 1865	Promoted to Major.
Do.	James A. Childress	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Revoked.
Do.	Wm. Mark	May 18, " "	May 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	N. Warren Pulsifer	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Frederick C. Dietz	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as R. Q. M.
Do.	David Thomas	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Young	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank Wright	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph H. Strahl	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Arthur M. Haughton	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Lieutenant.
1st Lieutenant	Benjamin F. Kling	April 25, 1864	April 25, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph F. Kirkhart	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Paul V. Petard	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Isaac W. Short	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Killed.
Do.	Frederick A. Waldo	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Discharged September 12, 1864.
Do.	Clayton G. Jewell	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Killed.
Do.	John W. Emmick	May 7, " "	May 7, " "	Discharged March 25, 1865.
Do.	Hiram G. Brown	" 7, " "	" 7, " "	Declined promotion; resigned May 30, 1865.
Do.	Clark Runyan	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Refused to muster him on account of age.
Do.	James S. Totten	" 24, " "	" 24, " "	Mustered out September 1, 1864.
Do.	Robert C. Campbell	Sept. 2, " "	Sept. 2, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James A. Childress	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Dismissed.
Do.	John B. Conaway	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Resigned March 9, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Mark	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	N. Warren Pulsifer	Oct. 10, " "	Oct. 19, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Frederick C. Dietz	Nov. 18, " "	Nov. 18, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	David Thomas	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Edward F. Cooper	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Killed in action April 9, 1865
Do.	Charles Young	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Frank Wright	Feb. 21, 1865	Feb. 21, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph H. Strahl	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Arthur M. Haughton	" 21, " "	" 21, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Prettyman King	May 18, " "	May 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 2d Lieutenant.
Do.	Clement T. Park	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
Do.	Milton J. Hamiltou	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as Ord. Serg't.
Do.	Howard M. Aston	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Frank D. Richardson	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
Do.	James K. Piersoll	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
Do.	Russell H. True	" 18, " "	" 18, " "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Marion Lozier	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
Do.	Wm. R. Brawley	" 18, " "	" 18, " "
2d Lieutenant	Hiram G. Brown	April 25, 1864	April 25, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles Parker	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Resigned December 1, 1864.
Do.	Frederick C. Dietz	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert C. Campbell	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	David Thomas	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John B. Conaway	" 25, " "	" 25, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward F. Cooper	May 7, " "	May 7, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robert Montgomery	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Deceased September 28, 1864.
Do.	Charles Young	Sept. 2, " "	Sept. 2, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jonathan Wadley	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Absent at muster out of regiment.
Do.	Josiah S. Dein	" 2, " "	" 2, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. Fenner	Oct. 10, " "	Oct. 19, " "	Mustered out May 15, 1865.
Do.	Frank Wright	" 10, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Joseph H. Strahl.....	Nov. 18, 1864	Nov. 18, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Doughty.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Resigned June 13, 1865.
Do.	Prettyman King.....	Feb. 21, 1865	Feb. 21, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Clement T. Park.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John H. Clark.....	May 18, "	May 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	John H. Gaskill.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Patrick Harley.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Martin Mehan.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as Sergeant.
Do.	Josiah E. Corey.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out August 18, 1865.
Do.	Perry C. Maxwell.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Richard Taggart.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Josiah V. Morris.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment as 1st Sergeant.
Do.	Robert B. Dailey.....	" 18, "	" 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.

THIRTEENTH OHIO VOLUNTEER CAVALRY.

THE THIRTEENTH OHIO CAVALRY was formed by the consolidation of the Fourth and Fifth Independent Battalions, and by recruits during the winter of 1863-4. It was mustered into the service May 6, 1864, for three years. The regiment was ordered from Camp Chase on the 11th, and it joined immediately the Ninth Army Corps, composing a part of the Army of the Potomac, where, acting as infantry, it participated in the following battles: White House Landing, June 19th; Charles City C. H., June 23d; and in the protracted siege and various heavy assaults on the Rebel works at Petersburg, Virginia. During the terrific assault at this place which occurred July 30th, the Thirteenth Ohio made for itself a noble name by the courage and daring of both officers and men. The loss of the regiment was nineteen killed, one hundred and three wounded, and fifty-nine captured.

The regiment also participated in the engagements at Weldon Railroad, August 19th, 20th, and 21st; Ream's Station, August 25th; Poplar Grove Church, September 30th; Pegram's Farm, October 2d, and Boydton Plankroad, October 27th. In all these fights the officers and men sustained their reputation for valor, and acquitted themselves in their usual brave manner.

For seven long months they had passed through the severe training of a soldier's life; the officers cheerful and kind; the men dutiful and patient. On December 18th the regiment drew cavalry arms, equipments, and horses, and reported to Major-General Gregg, commanding Second Division, Cavalry Corps, Army of the Potomac. Forming a part of this division, it participated with it in the battle at Hatcher's Run, February 6th, 1865. On the 28th of March, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Stephen R. Clark, and forming still a part of the Second Division, it was ordered to report to Major-General Sheridan, and under his command aided in the rout, destruction, and capture of the Rebel army under Lee. On the 31st of March the regiment again distinguished itself for bravery and intrepidity near Dinwiddie C. H., Virginia, losing two officers and several privates.

On the 5th of April, at Jetersville, the regiment made a splendid mounted charge, capturing eight hundred and fifty prisoners and a stand of colors. The colors were captured by the Sergeant-Major, James K. Piersall, for which he received a medal from the War Department and a commission as First Lieutenant from the Governor of Ohio. At Sailor's Creek Colonel Clark was ordered by Major-General Crook to charge and burn a train of wagons, forty in number, that was on a road in the rear of the Rebel infantry, heavily guarded. The charge was made, the train was entirely destroyed, and two hundred and eighty prisoners, one hundred and forty mules, and twenty-eight horses were captured, with the loss of Captain Strahl and fifteen men taken prisoners. The regiment, immediately on its return, took part in a mounted charge, which resulted in the capture of over five thousand men, including Brigadier-General M. D. Corse, three of his staff, and six hundred and twenty-eight of his officers and men.

On the 7th of April it was the advance regiment, pressing and constantly fighting Lee's rear-guard. About noon the regiment made a dash into Farmville, capturing three hundred and eight prisoners. The command marched from Farmville to Prospect Station, on the Virginia and East Tennessee Railroad, and, at a point between Prospect Station and Appomattox C. H., in connection with the Sixth Ohio Cavalry, captured a train of railroad cars, bearing forage and provisions for Lee's army.

Near Appomattox C. H., April 8th, after General Sheridan's command had gone into camp for the night, the Thirteenth was placed on picket immediately to the left of the Court-House, and in Lee's immediate front. In this position it stood all the night through; everything quiet until about daybreak, April 9th, when Lee's forces made an impetuous dash at the National army, attempting to break the lines, but unsuccessfully. Here the regiment fought manfully, holding its position over two hours, when it was charged by a division of Lee's infantry. This charge, fiercely made, was stubbornly resisted by the handful of men composing the regiment; but, on account of superior numbers, they were forced to fall back, which they did slowly and in good order to the edge of a wood. In this engagement Lieutenant E. F. Cooper fell mortally wounded. A most affecting spectacle was presented to the regiment in the rescue of this wounded soldier, which will never be forgotten. When the young officer fell from his horse his position was such that he must have fallen into the hands of the enemy. This danger caught the quick eye of the Surgeon, Nathan S. Richardson, and he rode through the lines, exposing himself to the fire of the enemy, reached the place where the Lieutenant lay bleeding, and, assisted by his brave orderly, John Rush, took the dying young hero upon his saddle and carried him off the field. A secure place was soon reached, and though everything was done which skill and sympathy could suggest, he "breathed his life out sweetly there."

When the Thirteenth reached the point to which it was ordered the crisis was reached which was to determine the fate of the Rebel army. General Sheridan's entire cavalry force, the Thirteenth in the front, charged the enemy's whole line, which resulted in the surrender of Lee's army. Soon after, the regiment accompanied General Sheridan's command to re-enforce General Sherman; but when near Danville, Virginia, the intelligence was received that General Johnston had surrendered his entire army, and the whole command at once returned to Petersburg, Virginia. The Thirteenth was afterward ordered to Amelia C. H., Virginia, and was detailed as provost-guard for Amelia and Powhatan Counties, in which capacity it served until August 10th.

At this time and place the regiment was mustered out of the United States service and ordered to Columbus, where it received final discharge and pay, August 18th.

The entire loss of the Thirteenth during its term of service was sixty-eight killed, two hundred and eighty-three wounded, and ninety-one captured. It took an active part in fourteen hard-fought battles, captured one General, one stand of colors, and two thousand and sixty-six prisoners.

1st OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain.....	James R. McMullen.....	July 31, 1861	Aug. 6, 1861	Mustered out.
Do.	George P. Kirtland.....	Aug. 18, 1864	" 18, 1864	Mustered out June 26, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	George L. Croome.....	July 31, 1861	" 17, 1861	Killed September 14, 1862.
Do.	Robert C. Smith.....	Aug. 9, 1862	Sept. 6, 1862	Resigned December 6, 1862.
Do.	George P. Kirtland.....	Aug. 9, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Isaac C. Fair.....	Dec. 6, " "	Dec. 24, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Chas. H. Fee.....	Aug. 18, 1864	Aug. 18, 1864	Mustered out June 26, 1865.
Do.	Dennis J. Ryan.....	Dec. 30, " "	Dec. 30, 1864	Mustered out June 26, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	George H. McClung.....	July 31, 1861	Aug. 6, 1861	Resigned July 11, 1862.
Do.	Isaac C. Fair.....	June 1, 1862	" 12, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant
Do.	Chas. H. Fee.....	Aug. 9, " "	Sept. 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Dennis J. Ryan.....	Dec. 6, " "	Dec. 24, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John R. Hooker.....	Aug. 18, 1864	Aug. 18, 1864	Mustered out June 26, 1865.
Do.	John M. McCleary.....	Dec. 30, " "	Dec. 30, " "	Mustered out June 26, 1865.

FIRST OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THIS BATTERY was composed chiefly of recruits from the counties of Richland, Huron, Crawford, Clermont, and Montgomery. It was organized and mustered into the service at Camp Chase, Ohio, on the 6th of July, 1861, under Captain McMullen, of Mansfield. Its first service was performed in Western Virginia, with General Cox, on the Kanawha and Gauley Rivers.

Then it was transferred to the column under General Rosecrans' personal command, and performed valuable service at Carnifex Ferry. Remaining in West Virginia, it served with the Kanawha Brigade, and with it was transferred to the Army of the Potomac, temporarily, to assist in the battles of South Mountain and Antietam.

While on service in Western Virginia its complement of guns was incomplete. It had but four guns, and was styled, in the army terms of that day, a "Jackass Battery;" a class of artillery very efficient in the wild mountain districts of that country, it being furnished with mules instead of horses.

The battery returned with the Kanawha Brigade to Western Virginia, and was in the arduous expedition, under General Crook, to Newbern Bridge and Cloyd Mountain. At the last mentioned place the notorious Jenkins was killed. Returning from this movement the battery went into camp at Lewisburg, Virginia.

It was ordered to Staunton, Virginia for the purpose of joining General Hunter's expedition against Lynchburg. It moved out of Staunton with the National forces, and met the enemy at Lexington, where a brisk fight was had, in which the First Ohio Battery took a prominent part. It shelled the enemy vigorously, and was very efficient in dislodging the Rebel sharpshooters from the Observatory of the Lexington Military Institute. The battery lost but one man killed in this affair, private George Tank, of Dayton.

Moving with the army to Lynchburg, the battery shelled the Rebels in front of that place, and aided in driving them into their works.

In the rapid and disastrous retreat of General Hunter's forces from Lynchburg, the First Battery aided in guarding the rear of the National forces, and suffered, equally with the whole army, for want of rations, rest, and transportation. History never will record the extent of the privations and intense sufferings endured by the National army in this disastrous retreat. It is computed that the First Battery marched at least one thousand miles in this expedition.

Reaching Parkersburg, it was placed on the cars and taken to Martinsburg, Virginia. Captain George P. Kirtland was in command of the battery at this time, and up to the end of the service. From Parkersburg it marched, July 20, 1864, with General Averill's brigade, toward Winchester, and at Stevenson's Depot, four miles out of Winchester, it had an engagement with General Ramseur's North Carolina Rebel division, defeating it, and taking one hundred and fifty prisoners and four pieces of artillery. Just before entering this engagement a sad accident occurred. One of the caissons of the battery exploded, killing privates Samuel Miller, of Galion, and Charles Ward, of Shiloh, Richland County, and seriously injuring five others, the most of whom were ever after unfitted for duty. General Little, a Rebel brigade commander, was killed in this affair. The next morning, with its brigade, the battery entered Winchester, after driving the Rebels out of the place.

On the 24th of July, the enemy, under General Early, made a furious attack on Winchester, with overwhelming numbers. The National forces, under General Milroy, made a sturdy resistance, but were compelled to evacuate the city, and make a rapid retreat in the direction of Harper's Ferry. In this retreat the First Battery was included. The Potomac River was crossed at Williamsport, Maryland, at which place the battery went into camp. The battery material here came under the eye of an Inspecting Officer, and was condemned as unfit for further service. Turning over its dilapidated guns and accouterments to the proper authorities, it went to Martinsburg, Virginia, where, for six months, it performed guard-duty over the Government stores. In the latter part of March, 1865, it was ordered down to Harper's Ferry. While there the news of Lee's surrender and the fall of Richmond was received. Immediately thereafter it was ordered to report at Washington City, and reached that place the day before President Lincoln was assassinated. It is mentioned with great satisfaction and pride by members of the battery that as the men marched up Pennsylvania avenue, in Washington, Mr. Lincoln, coming down in his carriage, stopped and held a short conversation with "the boys."

After performing duty at Forts Meigs and Washington, near the capital, on the 17th of June the First Battery was ordered to Columbus, where it was paid off and mustered out of the service June 26, 1865. The service of this battery was continued and arduous from the day of its entrance into the field until its muster-out. A large number of its members were recruited in and around the town of Plymouth, Richland County, Ohio.

2d OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Thomas J. Carlin	Aug. 6, 1861	Sept. 16, 1861	Resigned June 19, 1862.
Do.	Wm. B. Chapman	June 19, 1862	July 1, 1862	Resigned October 11, 1862.
Do.	Newton J. Smith	Oct. 11, "	Nov. 13, "	Discharged August 28, 1862.
Do.	Augustus Beach	" 8, 1863	April 25, 1864	Mustered out August 10, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Wm. B. Chapman	Aug. 6, 1861	Sept. 16, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Conrad Gansevoort	Sept. 9, "	July 14, 1862	Resigned June 19, 1862.
Do.	Newton J. Smith	June 13, 1862	" 14, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Orlando S. Huston	" 19, "	" 14, "	Resigned October 1, 1862.
Do.	Augustus Beach	Oct. 1, "	Nov. 13, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Harvey Guthrie, jr.	" 11, "	" 13, "	Mustered out as supernumerary.
Do.	Wm. H. Harper	April 25, 1864	April 25, 1864	Mustered out August 10, 1865.
Do.	Samuel S. Eaton	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Mustered out August 10, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Conrad Gansevoort	Aug. 6, 1861	Sept. 16, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Newton J. Smith	Sept. 9, "	July 14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Orlando S. Huston	" 9, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Augustus Beach	June 19, 1862	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Harvey Guthrie, jr.	" 19, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. H. Harper	Oct. 11, "	Nov. 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Wheaton	" 11, "	" 13, "	Mustered out as supernumerary.
Do.	Robert Calder	April 25, 1864	April 25, 1864	Commission returned.
Do.	Samuel S. Eaton	June 14, "	June 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Homer A. Andrews	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Mustered out August 10, 1865.
Do.	Thaddeus S. Young	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out August 10, 1865.

SECOND OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE SECOND OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY was organized and mustered into the service at Camp Chase, Ohio, on the 6th of August, 1861. It started on the 15th, under orders, to report to Major-General Fremont at St. Louis, Missouri. On the 18th it was dispatched by rail for the relief of Colonel Mulligan, at Lexington, Missouri, but was disembarked at Jefferson City, Mulligan having surrendered.

While at Jefferson City it received orders (October 4th) to march toward Springfield. After four days' march through the most terrific roads, the battery was halted at Tipton, and rested about one week. While lying at Tipton the Secretary of War, Simon Cameron, and Adjutant-General L. Thomas, visited and reviewed Fremont's forces. The battery fired a salute in honor of these dignitaries.

The march to Springfield was resumed and continued until Warsaw, on the Osage River, was reached, where, by reason of a burned bridge, the whole army was delayed. While awaiting the repair of the bridge Captain Carlin took twenty of his men, mounted them, crossed the river, and struck out into the country for a scout. Seeing some corn standing in the shock he halted his men for the purpose of feeding the horses. An old dilapidated log cabin stood near, which, on examination, was found to be filled with corn-fodder. This feed was preferred for the horses; and, in throwing it out, the men discovered, secreted under the floor of the cabin, twenty-two kegs of powder. A wagon was procured and the powder taken to head-quarters. Captain Carlin received from General Fremont a note of thanks for this exploit.

Springfield was reached on the 1st of November, but only to find that Price's army had fled. The campaign was ended for the winter. The battery returned to Rolla and remained there until the 24th of February, 1862. On that day it marched once more against Price's Rebel army, and followed him up to Pea Ridge, where a battle was fought on the 6th and 7th of March.

The battery was closely engaged in this battle, and lost one man killed and twelve wounded. Lieutenant W. B. Chapman was badly wounded in this affair. It also lost seven horses killed, and a caisson, but in turn captured a caisson from the enemy; and, though closely pressed, drew from off the field all of its pieces in safety. The battery thereafter marched, with General Curtis's column, through Arkansas to Helena, on the Mississippi River.

It lay at Helena until January 23, 1863, and then accompanied an expedition up White River to Duvall's Bluff. Not finding the enemy it returned to Helena.

March 20th the battery left Helena, and was taken by transports to the mouth of the Yazoo River, where it joined Grant's army, then operating in the rear of Vicksburg. It took part in the battles of Black River Bridge, Raymond, and Champion Hills, and was on duty until the surrender of Vicksburg.

The battery was then ordered to report to General Banks, commanding the Department of the Gulf, at New Orleans, and accompanied the disastrous expedition up Red River. Returning, it was stationed at Plaquemine, Louisiana, on the Mississippi River, where it remained, guarding that point, up to February, 1864.

February 23d the battery re-enlisted and was thoroughly reorganized. It was then ordered to Ship Island, Mississippi, to guard Rebel prisoners, and remained there on that duty until July, 1865, when it was ordered to Columbus, Ohio, where it was mustered out of the United States service on the 21st of July, 1865.

3d OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Wm. S. Williams.....	Jan. 20, 1862	Feb. 28, 1862	Resigned.
Do.	John Sullivan.....	Nov. 26, 1864	Nov. 26, 1864	Mustered out July 31, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Wm. J. Mong.....	Jan. 20, 1862	Feb. 28, 1862	Resigned.
Do.	Francis J. Myers.....	" 20, "	" 28, "	Resigned April 2, 1864.
Do.	John Sullivan.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Seifert.....	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	Mustered out July 31, 1865.
Do.	Thomas Bowen.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out July 31, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. S. Williams.....	" 11, 1861	Feb. 28, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. G. Watson.....	Feb. 21, 1862	" 28, "	Resigned June 30, 1862.
Do.	Stephen Keith.....	" 21, "	" 28, "	Resigned October 12, 1862.
Do.	Thomas J. Blackburn.....	June 30, "	Oct. 21, "	Resigned April 1, 1864.
Do.	John Sullivan.....	Oct. 12, "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Seifert.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles H. Bartlott.....	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	Mustered out July 31, 1865.
Do.	Franklin White.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out July 31, 1865.

THIRD OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE THIRD OHIO (otherwise known as Williams's) Battery, was recruited and organized by Captain W. S. Williams, of Canton, Stark County. It left that place in February, 1862. The nucleus of this battery consisted of but one gun, which was taken to the field in the spring of 1861 by Captain Williams, and attached to General J. D. Cox's division, operating in Western Virginia. At Charleston, after the fight at Searey Creek, it added another gun by capture from the Rebels, and thereafter served throughout the three-months' service. The exigencies of the service required it to serve an additional three months, and until it could be relieved by other batteries.

In February, 1862, Captain Williams recruited his battery up to six guns and one hundred and sixty-one men, and again entered the service in time to participate in the second day's fighting at Pittsburg Landing. Following with the army, it took part in the siege and capture of Corinth, where it remained and participated in the battles of Corinth and Iuka, under General Rosecrans. In the battle of Corinth it lost one man (private Nicholas Mouse) killed and a number wounded.

In the fall of 1862 it moved with Grant's column on the Tallahatchie, toward Jackson, and in the return to Memphis. In this campaign the men of the battery suffered from want of rations, and were compelled to subsist for some days on parched corn and hominy.

The battery moved with Grant's army to the rear of Vicksburg. In this campaign it was a part of Logan's division, and operated with it throughout the siege. On the march to Vicksburg it took part in the battles of Raymond, Jackson, and Champion Hills, and was in position in the rear of Vicksburg for forty-six days, where it lost a number of men from wounds and exposure.

The battery remained at Vicksburg until the movement on Meridian was made. It accompanied General Sherman on that expedition, and had a heavy artillery fight at Clinton, Mississippi. In this fight it lost two men killed and several wounded. At Meridian it lost two men captured, who subsequently died in the prison-pen at Andersonville. Returning to Vicksburg the battery performed duty in that place until the spring of 1864.

In April, 1864, the battery went on transports to Cairo, under orders to join General Sherman's army, then preparing for the Atlanta campaign. Passing up the Ohio and Cumberland Rivers, it landed at a point on the last-named river, and marched across the country to Huntsville, Alabama. Thence it went to Rome, Georgia, and joined Sherman's army at Big Shanty. At this time it was in the Seventeenth Corps, then commanded by General Frank P. Blair, and operated with it at Kenesaw Mountain and Nicotack Creek. On the 22d of July, at Leggett's Bald Knob, it was engaged from eleven o'clock in the morning until sundown. In this affair it lost one man killed, two wounded, and two captured. One of its guns was captured by the Rebels, but was recaptured in fifteen minutes.

The next fight in which the battery was engaged was at Jonesboro'. The Rebels were driven from that point and pursued to Lovejoy's Station. Atlanta having fallen, it returned to that place, and remained there until the dash of Hood's army to the rear of the National lines.

The battery followed Hood's forces up to Nashville and aided in its defense. From Nashville it was transferred to Fort Donelson. After remaining there some months it was ordered to Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, for muster out, which was effected August 1, 1865.

During its service the battery lost the following named men: Sergeant Chalmer Peterson, killed at Vicksburg, March 30, 1864; Corporal Jas. M. Whittaker, Clinton, Mississippi, March 26, 1864; Corporal Henry Wendling, Nashville, Tennessee, November 28, 1864; John Aker, July 22, 1864, at Atlanta, Georgia; Charles Allen, at New Garden, April 21, 1864; Abraham Best, August 4, 1864; Charles L. Davis, Mound City, May 17, 1864; Henry Gorby, Rome, Georgia, August 31, 1864; Wm. Junkins, at Andersonville prison, Georgia, September 12, 1864; Joseph Keckley, Marietta, Georgia, August 25, 1864; Alex. McIntosh, Atlanta, Georgia, September 22, 1864; Adam Miller, Vicksburg, Mississippi, April 4, 1864; Joseph Neeley, Rome, Georgia, August 19, 1864; Samuel Ness, on board steamer Emperor, December 1, 1864; Jacob Rea, Huntsville, Alabama; Gilmore Rea, Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, March 20, 1864; Austin Vanderhoef, Rome, Georgia, August 20, 1864; Samuel Black, Vicksburg, Mississippi, April 4, 1864; Corporal Robinson Supernick, Bolivar, Tennessee, August 31, 1862; Peter Leigh, January 17, 1863, at Moscow, Tennessee; John Stevens, Newton J. Burnet, Jacob Barnett, Samuel Butz, September 5, 1863; Marcus Burnet, April 2, 1863; Levi Brandebury, August 25, 1863; Nathan Dawson, Corinth, Mississippi, July 16, 1862; George Evans, October 31, 1862; Michael Fitzpatrick, August 17, 1863; Solomon Foutz, October 16, 1863; Oliver Hunt, Corinth, Mississippi, May 10, 1862; Joseph Hooser, June 22, 1862; Benj. Hackthorn, September 1, 1863; Lester Kern, April 10, 1862; Wm. Koonse, January 17, 1863; Alfred Loutzenheiser, October 8, 1863; John May, August 15, 1863; Nicholas Mouse, at Corinth; George Morse, October 10, 1863; John McDougall, September 26, 1863; Gustavus Pepin, June 27, 1862; Joseph Rhoads, December 15, 1863; Fred. Reinhart; Benj. Riggle, June 14, 1862; John Siege, August 29, 1863; Wm. Speakman, September 17, 1863; William Troxell, June 6, 1862; John Troxell, Reuben Thomas, June 2, 1862; Wm. Wickard, October 8, 1863; George Zollars, October 26, 1863.

Captain Williams left the service November 11, 1864, at the expiration of his commission. The men of his command presented him a fine gold-mounted saber, belt, and sash.

4th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Lewis Hoffman.....	Aug. 17, 1861	Aug. 17, 1861	Resigned June 28, 1863.
Do.	George Froehlich.....	June 28, 1863	" 23, 1863	Resigned September 26, 1864.
Do.	Louis Zimmerman.....	Dec. 30, 1864	Dec. 20, 1864
2d Lieutenant	George Froehlich.....	Aug. 17, 1861	Aug. 17, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Lewis Piderett.....	Dec. 9, "	March 20, 1862	Died October 5, 1863.
Do.	Louis Zimmerman.....	Feb. 17, 1864	Feb. 17, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Herman Blume.....	March 18, 1865	March 18, 1865
2d Lieutenant	Lewis Piderett.....	Aug. 17, 1861	Aug. 17, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Max. Frank.....	17, "	27, "	Resigned February 24, 1864.
Do.	Louis Zimmerman.....	Dec. 9, "	March 20, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Hugo Hang.....	Feb. 24, 1863	" 31, "	Resigned August 25, 1864.
Do.	George Hurst.....	" 18, 1864	" 18, "	Killed at Jonesboro September 1, 1864.

FOURTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE FOURTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY was organized at Cincinnati, August 2, 1861, by Captain Lewis Hoffman, and mustered into the United States service August 17, 1861. Under orders, it left Cincinnati on the 18th, and reported at St. Louis, Missouri, on the 21st of August. While in camp near the city the battery was supplied with a complete equipment of James's rifled guns, caissons, horses, etc.

September 30th it went by railroad to Jefferson City; thence to Sedalia; and on the 13th of October marched with General Sigel's division, and was with that division in all its wanderings up to Springfield, passing through Warsaw and over the Osage River. Springfield was occupied on the morning of the 13th of February, 1862, Price's forces having evacuated the place during the night. The battery joined in the pursuit of the enemy, and continued it until the 20th of February, having repeated engagements with the Rebel rear-guard. The Rebels having escaped over the Boston Mountains, near Bentonville, Arkansas, the pursuit was abandoned, and the battery commenced its return-march. While passing through Bentonville the rear-guard of the National forces was attacked. The battery was ordered to take position in an open field, so as to control the main road, over which the troops were passing. This duty was so efficiently performed as to compel the enemy to abandon his design and uncover the road. The column then marched in good order to Sugar Creek. March 7th the battery was ordered to advance with Colonel Osterhaus's division on the Leetown Road, the enemy having, during the night, formed a strong line across the Telegraph Road, cutting off the line of retreat; and being brought into position, opened vigorously on the enemy. The battle raged from ten o'clock A. M. until near dark, when the enemy fell back and concentrated his entire force against the right wing of the National forces. Again the battle commenced, but the enemy, being placed under a cross-fire of all the batteries of the division, he was compelled to give up the contest and retreat. The Fourth Ohio Battery, during this terrible fight, was in an exposed position, and received the fire of all the enemy's batteries. It lost four men and one caisson by capture, three men wounded, and one horse killed. Thus was fought the battle of Pea Ridge, one of the fiercest engagements of the war.

The National forces, under General Curtis, including the Fourth Ohio Battery, took up the line of march for Helena, Arkansas, on the Mississippi River. This march was a most arduous one, made, as it was, over the most wretched roads, obstructed by the enemy in every possible way. The march was commenced on the 12th of March, and ended at Helena, July 14, 1862. The weather was excessively hot, and water so scarce as not to be found, sometimes for an entire day.

On August 16th the battery accompanied an expedition down the Mississippi River on transports, under command of Colonel C. R. Woods. It landed at Milliken's Bend and captured the Rebel steamer Fair Play, filled with arms and ammunition, and bound for Little Rock, Arkansas, as supplies for Price's army. August 21st, at the same place, the camp of the Thirty-First Louisiana Rebel Infantry was surprised and its entire equipment captured. Pursuing the flying Rebels a short distance inland, a railroad depot and several cars, filled with supplies, were destroyed.

The battery returned to Helena on the 27th of August, and remained in camp during all of September. October 7th it was brought up the river to St. Genevieve, Missouri; was at Pilot Knob on the 17th, where it remained in camp until November 11th. It then returned to St. Genevieve and embarked on steamers for Helena. Landing opposite that place, November 23d, it was taken to Camp Steele, Mississippi, and remained there until December 19th, when it joined General Sherman's expedition against Vicksburg, and took a prominent part in the assault on the enemy's works at Chickasaw Bayou. The battery was also engaged in the attack and capture of Arkansas Post, January 11, 1863. It was in a very exposed position, and had one of its guns disabled by a solid shot from one of the enemy's siege guns.

On January 29th the battery was in position at Perkins's Plantation, Louisiana, guarding the Mississippi River against transports passing up to Vicksburg. The high water drove it further down (to Ballard's Farm), where it remained performing duty up to April 2d. It was then taken to Greenville, where it took care of the enemy until April 26th. On that day it embarked on steamers, and arrived at Milliken's Bend the next day. May 2d the battery, under Lieutenant George Frœhlich, left the Bend, marched to a point opposite Grand Gulf, and, crossing the river, bivouacked in that place for the night.

On May 8th the battery left Grand Gulf with the National army, and took part in all the engagements of the march to the rear of Vicksburg. It was also very efficient in the siege of Vicksburg, and remained in its position until the surrender of that place to General Grant, July 4, 1863.

On July 5th the battery was sent, with other troops, to look after General Johnston's Rebel forces at Jackson, Mississippi. It took position before that place, eight hundred and fifty yards from the enemy's rifle-pits, and fired four hundred and fifty-one rounds at the doomed place. Jackson was evacuated on the night of July 16th. September 22d found the battery again in Vicksburg. September 28th it was at Memphis, Tennessee. While marching up the levee a caisson exploded, killing privates Henry Eggemayer, George Sehaub, and Nicholas Markowitz.

On October 1st the battery left Memphis for Corinth, arriving there the same night. October 9th it went to Iuka, and on the 20th was in the engagement at that place. It was also in several other sharp fights about this date. October 30th it marched to Chickasaw, on the Tennessee River, arriving there on the night of the 31st. It crossed the river November 2d, and, passing through Florence, Pulaski, Fayetteville, New Market, Maysville, Woodville, Larkinsville, and Bellefonte, reached Bridgeport, November 20th. It marched to Shellmound on the 21st, and to Whitesides on the 22d. Chattanooga was reached on the afternoon of the 23d, where it joined the balance of the Fifteenth Army Corps.

On November 24th the division to which the battery belonged (General Osterhaus's) was ordered to join General Hooker in his operations against Lookout Mountain. In this affair the battery performed efficient service. Immediately after the battle it crossed Lookout Mountain, and advanced toward Mission Ridge, which was occupied during the day, and camped there until December 3d. While here, by order of General Grant, two of the six-pound James rifled guns were exchanged for four twelve-pound field guns of the celebrated "Ferguson Battery," captured from the enemy at Mission Ridge.

After marching to and fro during the month of December the battery went into camp at Larkinsville, Alabama, and remained there during the rest of the year.

The battery was moved from Larkinsville to Woodville, Alabama, the latter part of December, 1863, and arrived at Woodville January 1, 1864. It remained in camp at this place until April 30, 1864.

It is proper to remark here that Captain Lewis Hoffman had been in command of the battery since May 2, 1863, the date of the resignation of Captain George Frœhlich.

On May 1, 1864, the battery, in company with the First Division of the Fifteenth Army Corps, left Woodville for Atlanta, and by the 13th was before Resaca. All of its guns were placed in position and used on the enemy's works. In this affair two men (Jacobs and Nagel) were wounded, the latter mortally. The enemy having evacuated Resaca, the battery marched to Dallas, arriving at that place May 25th. On that day the enemy made a desperate charge, coming within fifty yards of the battery and within fifteen yards of the National rifle-pits. The battery repulsed the Rebels with heavy loss. Colonel Taylor, Chief of Artillery, was wounded in this affair.

On June 4th the battery was at New Hope Church, where, during the night, it fired one hundred and thirty-six rounds. Passing through Acworth, and over Lost Mountain, it was, on the 12th of June, in position before Kenesaw Mountain, and for some days bombarded the enemy's position. June 27th General Sherman ordered a charge on the enemy's works, which resulted in heavy loss to both parties, and caused the Rebels to evacuate the mountain.

The battery then marched to Marietta, Georgia, and went into camp. July 4th it was ordered to take position on the right flank of the army, and by the night of July 8th was behind intrenchments near Atlanta. During the night of the 9th the enemy left this position and crossed the Chattahoochie River. The battery was then taken back to Marietta, arriving there July 12, and by the 14th was at Rossville, on the bank of the Chattahoochie River, where it rebuilt a bridge burnt by the Rebels.

On July 22d, near Decatur, the enemy made a determined charge on the Fifteenth Army Corps. Two men of the battery (Burkhard and Helwig) were wounded, and four twenty-pound Parrott guns, of De Gray's Illinois Battery, fell into the hands of the enemy. The Fourth Ohio Battery immediately changed position, killed the horses of the battery captured by the Rebels, and compelled them to abandon the guns of the Illinois Battery and fall back in disorder, leaving many of their number dead upon the field.

On July 24th, the battery destroyed five miles of railroad from Decatur to Atlanta, and on the 27th was in position at the outposts on the right flank of the National army. During the memorable battle on the 28th of July, near Atlanta, in which the Rebel army made a charge in mass, the battery was for some time in a critical position, but, by determined fighting, was extricated without loss. Fighting was continued up to August 12, 1864, the battery being under fire for the most part of the time.

The three-years' term of service for which the battery enlisted having expired, it was relieved on the battle-ground, August 14th, by infantry, and by the 23d of August had reached Cincinnati, where (on the 29th) it was mustered out of the service, and the remaining recruits, whose term of service had not expired, consolidated with the Tenth Ohio Battery.

5th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Andrew Hickenlooper.....	Aug. 31, 1861	Oct. 2, 1861	Promoted by President to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	Theophilus Kates.....	Sept. 30, 1864	Sept. 30, 1864	Mustered out May 13, 1865.
Do.	Charles J. Marsh.....	Oct. 19, "	Oct. 19, "	Discharged November 30, 1864.
1st Lieutenant	John H. Hollenshade.....	Aug. 31, 1861	" 2, 1861	Resigned March 18, 1862.
Do.	Anthony B. Burton.....	31, "	" 2, "	Resigned March 23, 1864.
Do.	Lewis C. Sawyer.....	March 18, 1862	April 11, 1862	Resigned June 12, 1864.
Do.	Bellamy S. Matson.....	June 12, "	June 24, "	Resigned January 13, 1863.
Do.	Charles J. Marsh.....	Jan. 13, 1863	Feb. 10, 1863	Declined promotion.
Do.	John D. Bruner.....	" 13, "	April 22, "	Resigned May 9, 1861.
Do.	Charles J. Marsh.....	July 30, 1861	July 30, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Theophilus Kates.....	30, "	30, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	J. Henry Stegeman.....	Sept. 30, "	Sept. 30, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Walter J. Trotter.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Mustered out with battery.
2d Lieutenant	Lewis C. Sawyer.....	Aug. 31, 1861	Oct. 2, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant
Do.	Julius F. Blackburn.....	31, "	" 2, "	Resigned June 12, 1862.
Do.	Wm. C. Broadwell.....	March 14, 1862	April 14, 1862	Resigned June 1, 1862.
Do.	Bellamy S. Matson.....	June 1, "	June 17, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Charles J. Marsh.....	" 12, "	" 24, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John D. Bruner.....	" 12, "	Feb. 10, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Theophilus Kates.....	Jan. 15, 1863	" 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Walter J. Trotter.....	July 30, 1861	July 30, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. Henry Stegeman.....	30, "	30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ozro L. Edwards.....	Sept. 22, "	Sept. 26, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Alex. Temple.....	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Mustered out with battery.

FIFTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THIS battery of light artillery, which afterward became the Fifth Ohio, was recruited by authority of Major-General Fremont, then in command in Missouri. Three weeks of active recruiting, principally in Hamilton, Wayne, Mercer, and Jackson Counties filled the battery to a maximum of one hundred and seventy men, who had been forwarded to St. Louis as fast as enlisted. Some delay occurring in the receipt of commissions from General Fremont, whose authority to issue them was somewhat doubtful, the officers were at length commissioned by the Governor of Ohio; and on the 22d of September, 1861, the battery was organized as the "Fifth Independent Ohio Battery of Volunteer Light Artillery."

Before armament, clothing, or other essentials could be procured General Fremont and his forces had started on the march, which terminated at Springfield with the removal of the General from command; and on the 11th of October the company was ordered to Jefferson City. A period of three months now elapsed, passed by the men in doing garrison-duty, working on fortifications, and drilling with some old iron guns found at the post, and by the Captain in vain efforts to procure guns and equipments. At last, upon his personal application to the Governor of Ohio, a full battery, with all necessary adjuncts, was furnished. It arrived January 17, 1862. The six pieces consisted of four six-pounder James rifles and two six-pounder smooth-bores. On March 7, 1862, the battery shipped on a steamer at Jefferson City and proceeded direct to Savannah, Tennessee, and thence to Pittsburg Landing, disembarking at the latter point on the 19th. On the 5th of April it joined the command of General Prentiss (Sixth Division, Army of the Tennessee), camped about two and a half miles from the river, and not far from Shiloh Church.

On the following morning, while the men were at breakfast, a section (two pieces) was ordered out by General Prentiss, and as soon as possible was placed in position, by the General in person, a few hundred yards in advance of the camp. The Captain, anticipating an order to that effect, had the rest of the battery prepared, and in a few minutes joined the first section. The infantry support had scarcely been placed in position when the enemy appeared in force. To the right of the battery their line was in advance of the rest, and General Prentiss ordered the battery to change front to the right. This was done, but it exposed the left flank to a close fire of the enemy, which killed many horses and rendered it difficult to manage the rest. The infantry support melted swiftly away, and two pieces were unavoidably left in the hands of the enemy. The others retired through the woods slowly, firing as they fell back, and fighting for some time almost literally without any support. The battery was then ordered further back, and was for a short time out of the line of battle. Soon after noon it took a position further to the right, under General Sherman, and was actively engaged through the remainder of that hard-fought day. The next day, not being in condition to pursue the enemy, from lack of horses to replace those killed, etc., it was not engaged. The battery lost in this, its first battle, one man killed and twenty wounded (including Lieutenant Burton), two pieces, four caissons, sixty-five horses, and all camp and garrison equipage.

On the 14th of April Captain Hickenlooper was appointed Chief of Artillery on the staff of Brigadier-General McKean. Subsequently filling different positions of enlarged usefulness, he was never again in command of the battery.

About the middle of September the battery, with its division, marched to Iuka, but was not in position to take part in the action. Having returned to Corinth, the division moved out a short distance, on the 3d of October, to meet the advance of the Rebel forces, then approaching under Van Dorn and Price, and the same night returned to the line of works around Corinth, when the battery took up position immediately on the left of the earthwork known as Fort Phillips. The next day the battery was actively engaged. It suffered no loss, however, from the fact that the main attack of the enemy on that part of the line was directed against Forts Phillips and Robinett, on its right, which they assaulted repeatedly with great fury. The next morning the battery moved, with the rest of General Rosecrans's army, in pursuit, as far as Ripley, when, Corinth being threatened by Rebel forces from the east side, the army returned there.

General Grant now organized a force to move down into Mississippi by land, to operate against Vicksburg; and in a few days the entire army at Corinth, except sufficient to garrison the place, moved westward, the Sixth Division stopping for the time at Grand Junction, Tennessee.

In the meantime Lieutenant Burton, having partially recovered from the wound received at Pittsburg Landing, had recruited forty men for the battery at Cincinnati, and was about to start with them for the command, when the advance of Kirby Smith began to threaten the city. The Lieutenant tendered the services of himself and men to General Lew. Wallace, commanding, and was assigned to the service of the guns at Fort Mitchel, an earthwork, two and a half miles south of Covington, Kentucky. The heavy guns in the fort were soon mounted and a short supply of ammunition procured for them, after some search, in Cincinnati.

On the 24th of September Lieutenant Burton was ordered to organize a light battery with his own recruits and sixty-five of the Ninth Ohio Battery, under Lieutenant Rundell, who were ordered to report to him. Four light twelve-pounder guns, with everything necessary, were drawn, and the battery, when complete, was assigned to the division of General G. Clay Smith. Shortly afterward all available troops started from Covington toward Lexington, under command of General A. J. Smith, too late, however, to take part in any of the fighting in Central Kentucky, or to come up with Humphrey Marshall, then retreating westward. The march to Lexington was made by a wide circuit to the west, and was very fatiguing. At Lexington Lieutenant Burton was ordered to turn the guns and all other property of the temporary battery (the emergency having passed which caused its organization) over to the Ninth Ohio, which had arrived there, and to proceed with his men to his own battery in Mississippi. On the 11th of November he joined and took command of the Fifth at Grand Junction, Tennessee.

Two twelve-pounder howitzers were now added to the battery, making six pieces in all once more; and soon after it was transferred from McArthur's (sixth) to McKean's (fourth) division, Army of the Tennessee, part of the command of General McPherson, then at La Grange, Tennessee. On the next day it started on the march, with the rest of General Grant's army, southward into Mississippi, and reached Holly Springs on the 29th. From there slow progress was made, owing to so large a body of troops moving on one narrow road, and to the fact that the cavalry was constantly skirmishing with the enemy in the advance. On the 12th of December the battery went into camp on Yocana Creek, eleven miles south of Oxford, which was the turning point of its march, though the cavalry went some distance further. The surrender of Holly Springs, and the loss of an immense quantity of commissary and other stores there, compelled the army to fall back, and the men were at once put on three-quarter, and soon on half rations. Christmas found the battery camped a short distance above the Tallahatchie River, the men entirely out of regular rations, and depending on the country for meat, and on the few mills of the neighborhood, which were being operated by our troops, for a scanty supply of corn-meal.

On the 5th of January, 1863, the division marched to Holly Springs, and remained until the 10th, forming the rear-guard of the army. During the entire march, both going south and returning, the destruction of property by fire was immense. Everything that would burn was consumed—houses, barns, cotton-presses, negro-quarters, and fences were all destroyed, excepting dwellings that were occupied. Occasionally the battery was obliged to turn off into fields to avoid the burning fences, which fell in the road, and rendered it unadvisable to drive over them with chests of ammunition; but the climax was reached at Holly Springs the night before the last troops left it on the return. Notwithstanding the efforts of officers and of the provost-guard, the largest portion of the town was destroyed, and it must have been a night of terror to the women and children in the place.

From Holly Springs the division, commanded by General J. G. Lauman, marched to Moscow, Tennessee, and the battery remained at that place, assisting in guarding the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, until March 8th, when it proceeded to Memphis. Two months of inaction occurred here, which were used to good advantage in drilling; and when orders were received, on the 17th of May, to embark for Vicksburg, the battery was in the best possible condition, the men in excellent health, and thoroughly drilled; horses looking well, and appointments complete.

On the passage down the river the fleet of transports was fired into at Friar's Point by guerrillas, with artillery, on the Mississippi shore, and a number of soldiers were killed and wounded. In retaliation, the troops landed and burned the village of Greenville.

The division disembarked at Haines's Bluff, on Yazoo River, and took position on the heights to meet an expected attack from General Jos. Johnston's forces, which, however, was not made. After remaining here for some days the division was ordered to the extreme left of the forces besieging Vicksburg, and was assigned to the Thirteenth Army Corps, General McClelland commanding. On the 1st of June the battery took position in the siege proper, and was not again off duty till the end of the siege. After some days a forty-two-pounder rifle and an eight-inch smooth-bore gun, captured from the Rebels at Warrenton, were brought up and put into position, and were worked by the battery throughout the siege, in addition to its own guns. The position it held was on a prominent hill rather in advance of the general line, and the view was uninterrupted for several miles to the right. About three thousand rounds of ammunition were fired by the battery during the siege. A number of the men were wounded, more or less severely, as the siege progressed, but none were killed outright. On the morning of July 4th white flags were put up on the Rebel works in token of surrender, and in two hours afterward the battery was under orders to march in pursuit of Johnston. Leaving the works in which it had been so long and actively engaged, preparations were at once made for the march.

The first day's march from Vicksburg was the most intensely hot, dusty, and exhausting the battery had probably ever experienced, though the distance traveled was only ten miles. The expedition was under command of General Sherman, and consisted of the Thirteenth (now Ord's), Fifteenth, and Ninth Army Corps. Jackson was reached on the 11th, and the lines were formed around it, the flanks resting on Pearl River, above and below the town. The Fourth Division was placed on the extreme right. On the next morning a demonstration by the whole line was made on the enemy's works, but no assault was ordered. The battery was posted on an eminence, and kept up a steady fire for some time, when two pieces were ordered to an advanced position; and subsequently the other four were ordered up, the whole supported by the Third Iowa and the Forty-First and Fifty-Third Illinois Infantry. The little brigade was exposed to a tremendous fire at short range from the enemy's works, but the infantry pressed forward and attempted an assault. No other troops but those named were within supporting distance; and, having lost half their number killed and wounded in a few minutes, they were compelled to fall back. The battery lost one killed and eight wounded. Of the eight hundred infantry engaged, four hundred and four were killed and wounded, including a large proportion of the officers. General Lauman was at once placed under arrest by General Ord for disobedience of orders in making the assault; but it is probable that the infantry advanced impetuously without direct orders.

The morning of Friday, July 17th, found Jackson evacuated by the Rebels, and it was at once occupied by our troops, who did not pursue Johnston any further. Nearly all the large buildings in the place had been burned at its former occupation, previous to the siege of Vicksburg, and the work was now completed. The capitol, penitentiary, and two or three other large buildings were, however, spared, through the watchfulness of the provost-guard, which was at once established. Four days afterward the march back to Vicksburg was commenced, and concluded on the 24th, without incident.

The battery was now ordered to report at Helena, Arkansas; and, embarking on a steamer, it reached that place July 29th and disembarked. The troops with which it was thenceforward associated were then styled the Army of Arkansas, and were subsequently recognized as the Seventh Army Corps, Major-General F. Steele commanding. On the 13th of September an expedition, composed of all the troops which had been concentrated at Helena, started into the interior, with the intention of capturing and occupying Little Rock. There was much sickness among the troops, and the battery suffered very severely. Fourteen men had died before Little Rock was reached, and at one time, at Duvall's Bluff, there were but two well men in the command. The Rebels attempted to make a stand at Little Rock, and a slight engagement took place there. The Fifth Ohio and other batteries took position on the north bank of the Arkansas River, opposite the city, and engaged the attention of the enemy by a fire of shell, while a force of cavalry crossed some distance below and advanced rapidly upon the town. Thus flanked, the enemy retreated in great haste, and General Steele's head-quarters were soon established in the place.

A period of much-needed rest now occurred, during which the number of the battery was brought up to its proper standard by the arrival of recruits from Ohio. It formed a part of the Army of Occupation of Arkansas, and of the garrison of Little Rock, for the remainder of its term of service, the quiet of which was broken only by a march in April to Pine Bluff and some distance south of that place to re-enforce General Steele's expedition, then returning from Camden, and two other marches, in August, 1864, in pursuit of a force of Rebels under Shelby. One or two pieces were also frequently sent as guard on transports going to Fort Smith.

On the 20th of September those of the original members of the battery who were left, with the exception of fifteen who had re-enlisted as veterans, were mustered out and returned home. The battery was then re-mustered into service for a new term, and the arrival of more recruits shortly afterward restored it to nearly its original strength. Lieutenant T. Kates having been commissioned Captain, went on duty as such, but was subsequently mustered out by special order of the War Department, his appointment being deemed irregular, and Captain Hickenlooper's name was again taken up on the rolls.

Nothing further of note occurred until the 31st of July, 1865, when, the war being over, and its services no longer required, the entire battery was mustered out and ceased to exist.

6th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF BANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Cullen Bradley.....	Nov. 11, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Mustered out January 17, 1865.
Do.	Aaron C. Baldwin.....	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Mustered out September 1, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Oliver H. P. Ayers.....	Nov. 20, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Died July 8, 1864
Do.	James P. McElroy.....	" 20, "	" 18, "	Resigned March 10, 1864.
Do.	Aaron C. Baldwin.....	March 30, 1864	March 30, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George H. James.....	July 30, "	July 30, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	E. H. Neal.....	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Resigned May 29, 1865.
Do.	Joel Hersh.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out September 1, 1865.
Do.	Adam P. Galloway.....	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out September 1, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Cullen Bradley.....	Oct. 23, 1861	Dec. 18, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Oliver H. P. Ayers.....	" 9, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James P. McElroy.....	" 4, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Aaron C. Baldwin.....	" 9, "	" 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edwin S. Ferguson.....	" 15, "	" 18, "	Resigned November 7, 1862.
Do.	George W. Smith.....	Nov. 7, "	" 27, 1862
Do.	George H. James.....	March 30, 1864	March 30, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	E. H. Neal.....	May 9, "	May 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	D. R. Wright.....	July 30, "	July 30, "	Resigned May 29, 1865.
Do.	Joel Hersh.....	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lemuel Krushner.....	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out September 1, 1865.

SIXTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THIS battery formed a part of what was termed John Sherman's Brigade, and was recruited mainly through the exertions of that Senator. It was organized at Camp Buckingham, near Mansfield, Ohio, November 20, 1861. Captain Bradley was an experienced artilleryist; and, before leaving Camp Buckingham, had his battery in complete trim for active service. It comprised four ten-pound Parrott guns and two six-pound bronze Rodmans.

On December 15th the battery and brigade moved, under orders, to Louisville, Kentucky, and thence by steamer to Nashville, Tennessee, reporting to General Buell December 20th. The brigade was here scattered to different localities. The battery found its way into Camp Gilbert, near the city, where, for some twenty days, it was occupied in perfecting its drill and getting ready for field-service.

On January 12, 1862, it received orders to report to General Boyle at Columbia, Kentucky. It arrived there January 15th, and was at once placed in position, blockading the Cumberland River. The battery was divided, Lieutenant McElroy's section (six-pound guns) remaining at Columbia, while the other four guns were taken to Jamestown, Kentucky, there reporting to Colonel Thomas E. Bramlette. This section proceeded five miles south of the town, to the Cumberland River, but, through mistake, took position at the ferry-landing. Rebel cavalry pickets, stationed on the opposite bank, took the alarm, and reported to General O. B. Crittenden, the Rebel commander, the presence of a National force. This accident precipitated the battle of Mill Springs. The battery remained at this point, watching the river, until the fall of Nashville. In company with the Third Kentucky, Nineteenth Ohio, and Colonel Woolford's cavalry, the battery sailed on transports to Nashville, arriving there March 19th. While lying in camp on the Tennessee River it lost, by disease, Corporal James M. Walton and privates James Brandon, George Nier, and Henry Frizzell.

At Nashville the battery was placed in the Artillery Reserve, commanded by Colonel James Barnett, First Ohio Light Artillery, and marched with the army for Pittsburg Landing. It landed at Savannah, Tennessee, April 10th. It was taken by steamer to Pittsburg Landing, April 15th, and went into camp on the battle-field.

On April 29th, by order of General Buell, the battery reported to Brigadier-General Wood for duty, and from that date to the end of its service operated with his division or corps. It moved with the army on Corinth; and, May 31st, entered that place on its evacuation by the Rebel army.

On June 1st the battery marched with its division across Northern Alabama, arriving at Moore-ville July 3d. The next day being the 4th of July, it was celebrated with appropriate ceremonies. A rumor having gained circulation that the enemy was about to attack Decatur, the battery, on July 9th, was counter-marched to the Tennessee River, and its guns placed in position covering the town. The Rebels did not show themselves.

On July 18th the battery marched to Stevenson, Alabama, and went into camp until August 21st, when it joined Buell's forces in their march to Louisville in pursuit of Bragg's Rebel army. The city of Louisville was reached at five o'clock A. M. of September 28, 1862; and after a rest of three days, again took up the line of march. The division to which the battery was attached (General T. J. Wood's) marched by the Bardstown Turnpike, and reaching Rolling Fork Creek, in the vicinity of Perryville, on October 8th, the roar of battle, only seven miles away, could be distinctly heard. Late in the day of the 8th the battery and its division marched for the battle-field, and formed in line within fifteen hundred yards of the enemy, and, although in close range of the Rebel batteries, were compelled to be spectators of the unequal fight then in progress.

On October 14th, while in pursuit of the enemy, at Stanford, Kentucky, the battery fired a few rounds at the Rebel cavalry. The pursuit was abandoned at Mount Vernon, and the National army returned to Nashville, arriving in that city November 26, 1862. While on the march to Nashville, and crossing Stone River, Sergeant S. W. Debell, a fine soldier, was kicked by a horse, crushing his skull, from the effects of which he died on November 26th.

The army was reorganized at Nashville by General Rosecrans, and reviews and foraging became the order of the day. In the last-named duty the battery was, on several occasions, brought in contact with Wheeler's Rebel cavalry.

The battery marched with Crittenden's corps, on the Murfreesboro' Turnpike, in the advance to Stone River. The Rebels were first encountered at Lavergne, a little place fifteen miles from Nashville. Occasional shots were fired by the battery, and the enemy was slowly pushed back toward Stone River. At sundown of the 29th of December the river was reached, within two miles of Murfreesboro'. On the 30th the battery engaged a Rebel four-gun battery, which it completely silenced.

On December 31st the battery was placed in position, covering the ford. At daylight of this day came the crushing blow to McCook's right wing, sweeping all before it. The battery was hastily withdrawn from the line, and moved with great rapidity to check the rushing column of the enemy at the right. The Rebels, however, succeeded in breaking through the brigade on the left and flanking Harker's brigade. The battery fell back five hundred yards, and again attempted to stem the current. Again it was flanked; and before it could be retired three men and fifteen horses were shot down—private John Scott killed and Sergeant G. W. Howard mortally wounded. Lieutenant Ayres and First-Sergeant Smelts were each compelled to abandon a gun, first spiking them, however. Fifteen minutes later these guns were retaken, and restored to working order during the night.

Next day, by a skillful arrangement, the artillery was massed under the immediate supervision of the General commanding. At eight o'clock A. M. the enemy's line advanced, and when within close range every gun belched forth its iron hail, staggering and driving back the Rebels.

On January 2d, at eight o'clock A. M., the enemy opened with twenty guns on the lines between the railroad and turnpike, occupied by the Sixth Battery, Eighth Indiana Battery, and one section of Captain Standart's Ohio Battery, the Sixth being on the left, and near the railroad. The Eighth Indiana and Standart's section soon withdrew from the field in some disorder. The Sixth held its ground, notwithstanding the concentrated fire of the enemy, keeping up a vigorous and accurate fire; but, owing to a rear fire from the Chicago Board of Trade Battery, was finally compelled to withdraw. Before the Chicago Battery could be notified that it was firing on friends, seven men of the Sixth Ohio Battery fell, severely wounded, and seven of its horses were killed.

The Sixth soon repaired damages. At three o'clock P. M. Breckinridge's Rebel corps attacked the National left. For a time this attack was successful. Soon, however, Major Mendenhall, the Corps Chief of Artillery, had every gun playing into the advancing Rebel lines, which promptly checked them, and an infantry charge, led by General Rosecrans in person, decided the day. During the night the Rebels withdrew, and on the 4th of January the army marched through and beyond Murfreesboro'

After the battle of Stone River the following-named men of the Sixth Ohio Battery were specially mentioned for gallantry: First-Sergeant G. W. Smelts; Sergeants Hust, Miller, Howard, Casey, and Hartman; Corporals Collins, Tool, Kimberk, and Scott; privates Evans, Kirby, and Robbinett.

On September 19th the battle of Chickamauga was fought. The center section of the Sixth Ohio Battery, during the engagement, came under a heavy infantry fire. Lieutenant Smelts fell, severely wounded; private Charles Wicks was killed, and six men wounded. During the two days of the battle the battery expended three hundred and eighty-three rounds of ammunition, lost two caissons, a battery-wagon, and had two horses killed. It then fell back with the army to Chattanooga, to which the Rebels immediately laid siege.

While in Chattanooga the battery, owing to want of forage, was dismounted, and its guns were placed in Fort Wood. In the battle of Mission Ridge, fought on the 21st of November, one section of the battery was put in moving order, but was not engaged at any time during the three days' engagement. Owing to want of horses it remained in Chattanooga when its division moved toward Knoxville.

On December 12, 1863, two-thirds of the battery re-enlisted as veterans, the non-veterans being transferred to the Twentieth Ohio Battery. The veterans started for Ohio on thirty-days' furlough, January 1, 1864, and while at home added one hundred men to their ranks.

In the Atlanta campaign the battery operated with General Wood's Third Division, Fourth Army Corps, and was almost constantly engaged during the one hundred and twenty days of that brilliant march. At Dallas Corporal William Matthews fell, mortally wounded, and on the next day Bugler Whitley was killed by sharpshooters. At Kenesaw, June 19th, private Alfred Hersh was killed and three others were wounded. The battery maintained its position before Kenesaw, and was highly complimented by General O. O. Howard for accurate firing.

On June 27th, during a charge, the battery expended two hundred and fifty rounds of ammunition. In this charge the gallant General Harker fell. He had ever been a great favorite with the battery, and his death cast a gloom over the company. July 6th Lieutenant O. H. P. Ayres, commanding the battery, went to the right, one hundred and fifty yards, to watch the effect of the battery's fire, and was hit by a Rebel sharp-shooter in the right thigh. He was promptly removed to the field-hospital, but, owing to the large loss of blood, died July 8, 1864, and his remains were sent home for interment. Lieutenant Ayres's loss was deeply mourned. Captain Bradley, who had been acting on General Wood's staff as Chief of Artillery for more than eighteen months, now resumed command of the battery. The artillery of the corps was also organized into a brigade, under command of the Corps Chief of Artillery. From July 13th to the 25th the battery was busily engaged in bombarding the city of Atlanta. On August 25th it formed a part of the great flanking movement to Jonesboro', and took part in all the subsequent operations. On August 31st it was at Lovejoy's Station, and on September 9th it made its entry into the city of Atlanta, where it was re-equipped for the field.

On October 3d the battery moved, in company with the Fourth Corps, after General Hood, who had commenced his march to the rear of Atlanta. Captain Bradley had received a twenty-days' leave of absence, which devolved the command of the battery on First-Lieutenant A. C. Baldwin.

Near Franklin, Tennessee, November 30th, the enemy attacked the wagon-train, but was quickly repulsed by the Sixth Ohio Battery, which was complimented on the spot by General Wood. In the battle of Franklin the battery was assigned to General Riley's brigade, Twenty-Third Army Corps, and participated in the whole of that engagement. It expended all of its ammunition. Eighteen stands of colors were taken on the battery front during the battle, and the Rebels so crowded the embrasure that private Jacob Stinebaugh resorted to the use of axes and picks with great success. In this battle the battery lost William B. Welch, mortally wounded, and four others slightly. Welch fell into the hands of a Mrs. Bentley, of Franklin, who kindly nursed him, regardless of Rebel opposition, and when he died saw him properly buried, with headboard and inscription, and a representation of the flag he so nobly fought under cut upon the board.

On December 16th, the second day of the battle before Nashville, the battery went into position in front of Overton's Hill, eight miles from the city, on the Franklin Pike, and engaged Sanford's Mississippi Rebel battery, completely silencing their guns and exploding two of their limber-chests. It joined the pursuit of the enemy to the banks of the Tennessee River, and then marched for Huntsville, Alabama, arriving there January 15, 1865.

On February 1, 1865, the battery made a terrible march of eight days' duration, having been ordered to Eastport, Mississippi. Before reaching Eastport the order was countermanded, and the battery returned to Huntsville, Alabama, where it remained in quarters until the end of hostilities. It was brought home to Ohio in the latter part of August, 1865, and mustered out of the service at Camp Chase, Ohio, September 1, 1865.

During its service the battery made a reputation for discipline and effectiveness in the field second to no other in the army. It lost by death—From wounds, sixteen; by disease, twenty-six. Discharged—By reason of disease, thirty; of wounds, four; by expiration of service, twenty-one. Re-enlisted as veterans, sixty-six.

7th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS
Captain	Silas A. Burnap	Dec. 31, 1861	March 14, 1862	Mustered out Jan. 6, 1865, exp'n of service.
Do.	H. P. McNaughton	Jan. 6, 1865	Jan. 6, 1865	Mustered out August 11, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Theodore F. Carson	Feb. 6, 1862	March 14, 1862	Died May 22, 1862.
Do.	David R. Jacobs	" 6, "	" 14, "	Resigned December 22, 1862.
Do.	H. P. McNaughton	Dec. 23, "	March 21, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Ellis Conant	May 22, "	" 31, "	Resigned June 6, 1864.
Do.	Royal Church	Aug. 11, 1864	Aug. 11, 1864	Resigned October 29, 1864. [A. Maltby.
Do.	Columbia Downing, Jr.	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	On detached duty as A. D. C. to Brig. Gen. J.
Do.	Henry Dorst	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out August 11, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	David R. Jacobs	Feb. 6, 1862	" 14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Obadiah F. Walker	" 6, "	" 14, "	Transferred to Third U. S. C.
Do.	Columbia Downing, Jr.	June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Royal Church	" 14, "	" 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry Dorst	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Stevenson	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 30, "	Discharged Jan. 6, 1865, expiration of service.
Do.	Harrison Stebbins	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out August 11, 1865.

SEVENTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THIS battery was recruited in the county of Meigs, Ohio, by Captain S. A. Burnap. It was organized at Camp Dennison, and was mustered into the United States service January 1, 1862. On March 13, 1862, it received its arms and equipments, and on the 18th of the same month it marched to Cincinnati. It was there placed in cars and taken to St. Louis, with orders to report to General Halleck.

On April 6th it received orders to report to General Grant at Pittsburg Landing, and on the same day went on board the steamer Edward Walsh, bound for that place. On April 11th it disembarked at Pittsburg Landing and reported to General Grant.

On April 20th the battery was assigned to General Sherman's Fifth Division, of General Grant's army. On April 26th twenty men of the Thirteenth Ohio Battery were transferred to the Seventh, the first-named battery being disbanded by order of General Hurlbut.

On April 28th the advance on Corinth, Mississippi, was commenced, and the Seventh moved with the army until the evacuation of that place.

Having been transferred to Hurlbut's Fourth Division, the battery marched with it to Grand Junction, by the way of Big Hatchie. It was quartered at Lagrange, Tennessee, for about one week, and then marched to Coldwater, where it had a skirmish with the enemy. It then returned to Lagrange, and thereafter marched to Memphis, Tennessee, arriving at the last-named place on July 21, 1862.

While at Memphis it made several reconnoissances, and remained up to September 6th. It then marched to Bolivar, Tennessee, where it arrived on the 16th of September. On a reconnoissance to Lagrange it came in contact with a large force of the Rebels, under Van Dorn and Price, and but for its rapid marching would have been overwhelmed.

On October 4th the battery marched with its division to the relief of Corinth, then heavily pressed by the enemy. On this march the Rebels, in superior force, were met at the Big Hatchie and routed. In this affair a Rebel battery was captured; and, in consideration of the gallantry of the Seventh Ohio Battery, it was presented by General Hurlbut with two of the captured guns.

On December 12th the battery was at Yacona, Mississippi, below Coldwater and Holly Springs, having marched with General Grant's column to that place. The Rebels having captured Holly Springs, the troops were compelled to fall back to Memphis.

On May 13, 1863, the battery was taken on transports to Young's Point, opposite Vicksburg, and thence it sailed up the Yazoo River and encamped at Haines's Bluff. From this point it marched to a position in the rear of Vicksburg, on the Warrenton Road, where it was relieved by General Herron's forces. It was then placed on the Hall's Ferry Road, and remained until the surrender of the city.

On the evening of July 4th the battery marched with Sherman's command to Jackson, Mississippi, arriving there on the 7th. It took position in Lauman's division, on the extreme right, and held it until the evacuation of the place.

On July 24th the battery returned to Vicksburg, and on August 12th was taken on transports to Natchez, Mississippi. Several reconnoissances were made from this place, and there were some skirmishes with the enemy. It remained at Natchez until November 11th, and then returned to Vicksburg.

On the 1st of December the battery was at Camp Heborn, near Black River Bridge, in the rear of Vicksburg. In the latter part of January, 1864, it accompanied General Sherman on his raid to Meridian. On this expedition the battery had several sharp encounters with the enemy—at Baker's Creek, February 3d, and at Ricker's Run. It returned to its old camp at Heborn, and shortly afterward was moved into Vicksburg.

Twenty-two men of the battery had re-enlisted on the 1st of January, and had been home on furlough.

On May 7, 1864, the battery had a fight with the enemy at Benton, Mississippi, losing Pher-silius Austin, killed. In this fight the battery dismounted two of the enemy's guns and disabled a third. Several of the enemy were killed.

On May 22d it reached Vicksburg, and from that time until January 3, 1865, was attached to the post and defenses of Vicksburg. On January 6, 1865, Captain S. A. Burnap and fifty-one men were mustered out of the service by reason of expiration of term of enlistment.

On January 3, 1865, the guns of the battery and equipments were turned over, the men provided with muskets, and placed on duty as infantry at Jackson. On January 16th a Sergeant, with a detail of ten men, went out on a scout to a point thirty-six miles from Jackson, and captured a piece of artillery which had been hid in the woods by the Rebels. The men of the battery also did infantry service at Hazlehurst, on the Jackson and New Orleans Railroad. This duty was continued until July, 1865.

The battery then returned to Jackson, Mississippi; thence to Vicksburg, and home to Camp Dennison, where it was mustered out, paid off and discharged.

8th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Lewis Margraff	Jan. 12, 1862	March 14, 1862	Honorably discharged July 9, 1862.
Do.	Charles H. Smith	July 9, "	Nov. 10, "	Resigned February 4, 1863.
Do.	James F. Putnam	Feb. 4, "	May 9, 1862	Mustered out August 7, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Charles H. Smith	Jan. 12, 1862	March 14, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Emil Smith	July 9, "	Nov. 10, "	Revoked; resigned May 29, 1863.
Do.	James F. Putnam	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Amos H. Worley	Feb. 4, 1863	Aug. 19, 1863	Mustered out August 7, 1865.
Do.	Jeremiah Cain	June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Mustered out August 7, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Jacob Heitzman	Jan. 12, 1862	March 14, 1862	Resigned April 25, 1862.
Do.	Emil Smith	April 25, "	April 26, "	Mustered out.
Do.	James F. Putnam	July 9, "	Nov. 10, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob M. Porter	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Resigned January 29, 1863.
Do.	Jeremiah Cain	Feb. 4, 1863	Aug. 19, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Francis M. Coover	June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Mustered out August 7, 1865.
Do.	Thomas Lewis	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Resigned July 18, 1865.

EIGHTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE EIGHTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY was recruited in the counties of Montgomery, Darke, and Miami, and organized at Camp Dennison, Ohio, March 10, 1862. March 22d it moved, under orders, to Benton Barracks, near St. Louis, Missouri, and on its arrival there reported to General Halleck, commanding at that post. Without going into quarters the battery was placed on transports and ordered to report to General Grant, at Savannah, on the Tennessee River.

On March 28th it arrived at Savannah, and, without landing, proceeded on up the river, and reported to General W. T. Sherman, at Pittsburg Landing. It went into camp a short distance from the landing, where it remained until the commencement of the battle, on the 6th of April.

In both days of the battle the battery fought with General Sherman's division, and was, on several occasions, in close contest with the enemy, and in the charge made by the Rebels in mass, on Sunday evening, was within a few paces of their advanced skirmish-line. The loss of the battery in this battle was one killed—Sergeant Leonard Ullery, of Greenville, and three wounded.

In the advance on Corinth the battery moved with Lew. Wallace's brigade, of the Second Division, occupying the extreme right of the division. Marching by day, and erecting fortifications at night, it reached a point within two miles of Corinth. Discovering that the town was evacuated it entered that place with Halleck's forces.

Resting on its arms it remained in Corinth about three hours, and was then ordered to march with General Grant's column to Memphis, Tennessee, which place was reached June 17, 1862. The battery remained in Memphis, engaged in frequent scouts and skirmishes, until December 20, 1862. On that day it started with General Sherman's command for Vicksburg, Mississippi, and on the 27th of December took part in the disastrous repulse of the National forces, under Sherman, at Chickasaw Bayou. It remained in this critical position from Saturday until Thursday, exposed to the enemy's fire during all of that time. January 1, 1863, it retreated with the army to the transports, and made its way to the Mississippi River.

On January 6, 1863, the battery joined the expedition against Arkansas Post, and took a prominent part in that successful affair.

Young's Point was its next rendezvous, where it went into camp, and remained until the opening of General Grant's campaign against, and in the rear of, Vicksburg. In that campaign it participated in the battles of Grand Gulf, Black River Bridge, Raymond, Champion Hill, and in the rear of Vicksburg. For this service the battery received the special thanks of Generals Grant and Sherman. It operated on the extreme right of the National line in General Steele's division, of the Fifteenth Army Corps, and used thirty-pound Parrott guns, the heaviest pieces on the line.

After the surrender of Vicksburg the battery was sent to Jackson, Mississippi, to help look after the Rebel forces under Johnston. That matter settled, it returned to Vicksburg, where it went into barracks, and remained until December, 1863. It then accompanied General Sherman on his Meridian expedition. Returning to Vicksburg the battery was placed on duty in the city, where it remained, with occasional expeditions to the interior, until December, 1864.

December 22, 1864, it accompanied an expedition to the central part of Mississippi, to destroy the Central Mississippi Railroad, and prevent re-enforcements from reaching General Hood, who was then on his retreat from Nashville. Forty miles of track, three locomotives, and forty cars, loaded with Confederate cotton and corn, were destroyed. A battle was also fought at the bridge over Black River. The enemy was driven out of strong stockades and the bridge burned.

The battery made its way back to Yazoo City and Vicksburg. At Yazoo City it was surrounded by the enemy, but, crossing the river, it escaped down the opposite bank, under fire for some four miles.

The battery remained at Vicksburg until May 20, 1865, and was then ordered to Natchez, where it performed garrison-duty until the last of June. It was then ordered to Vicksburg, and was kept on provost-duty in that city up the last of July, 1865. It was then ordered to Camp Dennison, Ohio, and mustered out of service at that camp, August 9, 1865.

9th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Henry S. Wetmore.....	Oct. 11, 1861	Nov. 20, 1861	Resigned December 12, 1862.
Do.	Harrison B. York.....	Dec. 12, 1862	Dec. 27, 1862	Mustered out July 25, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Leonard P. Barrows.....	Oct. 11, 1861	Nov. 20, 1861	Resigned August 3, 1862.
Do.	John M. Hinde.....	Aug. 3, 1862	Aug. 21, 1862	Resigned December 5, 1862.
Do.	Henry A. Tallmadge.....	Sept. 11, " "	Dec. 2, " "	Resigned June 7, 1864.
Do.	George S. Hazen.....	Dec. 5, " "	" 16, " "	Resigned April 28, 1864.
Do.	George J. Rundell.....	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Honorably discharged.
Do.	Frank Keeny.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Mustered out July 25, 1865.
Do.	Wm. W. James.....	Nov. 10, " "	Nov. 10, " "	Resigned January 21, 1865.
Do.	George W. Church.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out July 25, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	John M. Hinde.....	Oct. 11, 1861	Nov. 20, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry A. Tallmadge.....	Aug. 3, 1862	Aug. 21, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George S. Hazen.....	Sept. 11, " "	Nov. 14, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Harrisou B. York.....	" 11, " "	Dec. 2, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George J. Rundell.....	Dec. 5, " "	" 16, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward Cowles.....	" 12, " "	" 26, " "	Resigned April 12, 1864.
Do.	Frank Keeny.....	May 8, 1864	May 8, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. W. James.....	" 9, " "	" 9, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George W. Church.....	June 27, " "	June 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Albert Reeves.....	Nov. 10, " "	Nov. 10, " "	Mustered out July 25, 1865.
Do.	Hiram D. York.....	Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out July 25, 1865.

NINTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THIS battery was organized at Camp Wood, Cleveland, Ohio, on October 11, 1861. It was intended to form a part of the Forty-First Ohio Infantry. The strength of the command was three commissioned officers and eighty men. It was at first fitted out as a four-gun battery, with two ten-pounders and two twelve-pound howitzers, but afterward became a full six-gun battery.

The battery moved from Cleveland December 7, 1861, and arrived at Camp Gilbert, Kentucky, December 20, 1861. It remained in this camp, for drill, until January 7, 1862, and then joined General Carter, at Somerset, Kentucky. This arduous march was accomplished in seven days, over the most wretched roads that could be imagined. The battery reported at Somerset January 17th. On the 19th it took part in the battle of Mill Springs, and, by order of General George H. Thomas, was posted on a hill commanding the ferry on the Cumberland River, over which the troops of the enemy were being transported with all possible dispatch. A few well-directed shots, at a distance of nearly two miles, set the steam ferry-boat on fire, and compelled an immediate surrender of the Rebel works. The battery encamped for the night in the works, and returned to Somerset January 22d, making the march through deep mud and heavy rains.

For its gallant services in the battle of Mill Springs, General Thomas (approved by Major-General Buell) gave two of the captured six-pound bronze guns to the battery, fitted out with captured horses and harness.

On January 30, 1862, the Ninth moved from Somerset for Cumberland Ford, by way of London, Kentucky; and, after a march of seven days, over routes rendered almost impassable from mud and heavy rains, arrived at London February 5th, and Cumberland Ford February 10, 1862. This point is fourteen miles distant from Cumberland Gap, which was at that time occupied by a Rebel force under General Rains.

Hard marching, fatigue, and exposure began to tell upon the health of the men. At one time (March 12, 1862) thirty-five men only were reported fit for duty. Owing to the scarcity of forage the horses nearly all died.

On March 21st, in connection with a brigade of infantry, under General Carter, the battery marched from Cumberland Ford on a reconnoissance of the enemy's position at Cumberland Gap. This reconnoissance brought on an engagement, which commenced on the morning of March 22, 1862. The Ninth gained a position one and a quarter miles from the Rebel works on the extreme point of Elrod Ridge, and was under fire for seven hours without casualty.

On March 23d the battery returned to Cumberland Ford, where it lay in camp for several months. On June 7th it marched to Rodgers's Gap, in the Cumberland Mountains, crossing into Powell's Valley on the 14th. Further advance being countermanded by orders from General Buell, the battery returned to Williamsburg, Kentucky.

The disheartening process of again climbing the mountains being accomplished, orders were received, with enthusiasm, to return once more to the valley, where the battery took part in the movements against the enemy which resulted in the capture, by the United States forces, of Cumberland Gap, June 19, 1862. On the 18th of August the Rebels re-entered Kentucky and invested the Gap, cutting off all supplies from the National forces. Sergeant Calvin Coolidge, of the battery, with five men and four wagons, foraging near Richmond, Kentucky, were captured by the enemy. The Sergeant was badly wounded in the disastrous battle of Richmond.

The Ninth having received a new supply of horses a few days previous to communication being cut off, orders were received to transfer them to the Seventh Regiment Kentucky Infantry. Skirmishes were of daily occurrence with the enemy in front, the artillery coming in for its full share.

On September 17, 1862, at night, the United States forces at Cumberland Gap, under General George W. Morgan, commenced their memorable retreat. The Ninth Ohio Battery and Thirty-Third Indiana Infantry took the advance and marched to Manchester, Kentucky, having in charge a train of one hundred wagons, filled with ammunition. During the march the Rebel cavalry were continually harassing the retreating column.

The battery having thus been placed in charge of a train, on the safety of which the whole retreat depended, felt like sacrificing themselves to a man rather than permit it to be captured; and on this determination it acted during the whole of that arduous march. Owing to the scarcity of water, the men were ordered to fill their canteens upon the eve of march, with the understanding that it must last two days, when it was expected the command would reach the Kentucky River. The first night of the march from Manchester being very dark, one of the gun-carriages was overturned, falling down a perpendicular bank twelve feet. The ammunition in the limber-chest exploded when it reached the bottom, severely wounding three men, and causing a general consternation, from the idea that a masked Rebel battery had opened fire upon the retreating columns. The wreck was instantly cleared and the column again put in motion. Day and night the almost exhausted troops toiled on, the infantry frequently making halts that the batteries might hurry to the front and beat off an attack by the Rebels.

The provisions gave out, and the men made corn, gathered from the fields along the way, their food, grating it by means of their tin plates, which were perforated with holes for that purpose.

After sixteen days' marching, Greenupsburg, Kentucky, on the Ohio River, was reached on the 2d of October, 1862, at nightfall. The Ohio River and shore was plainly seen in the clear moonlight, and drew from the wearied officers and men a succession of cheers, which came straight from their hearts. The river was crossed on the 3d of October. The citizens of Wheelersburg, Ohio, came en masse with provisions to feed the hungry soldiers; and if ever kindness was appreciated, it was by those bronzed and suffering veterans. At other places the same kindness was manifested.

After remaining in camp a few days, resting, the battery reported, by order, to Major-General Gordon Granger, at Covington, Kentucky, where it arrived October 17, 1862. After drawing a new supply of clothing and a complete outfit of guns and horses, the battery marched to Lexington, Kentucky, where, on October 31st, it was joined by Sergeant Rundell with sixty-six recruits, making it number three commissioned officers and one hundred and fifty-six men, and six twelve-pound Napoleon guns. Here the battery was joined by Captain Henry S. Wetmore, and was placed in a camp of instruction, near the residence of James B. Clay, until November 25, 1862. On the 26th of November it reported to General A. Baird, at Nicholasville, Kentucky.

The Ninth Independent Battery of Ohio Volunteer Artillery being now recognized at the War Department as a six-gun battery, and as such entitled to a full complement of officers, Second-Lieutenant Henry A. Tallmadge was commissioned as First-Lieutenant, and Sergeants Geo. S. Hazen and Harrison B. York as Second-Lieutenants, the three promotions dating from September 11, 1862. The resignation of First-Lieutenant John M. Hinde being accepted on December 5, 1862, Second-Lieutenant George S. Hazen was commissioned as First-Lieutenant, and Sergeant George J. Rundell as Second-Lieutenant from the same date.

On December 10, 1862, the battery left Nicholasville, Kentucky, and arrived at Danville, Kentucky, the next day. At this point the resignation of Captain Henry S. Wetmore was accepted, and Lieutenant H. B. York was commissioned as Captain, to date from December 12, 1862. On December 26, 1862, the battery marched from Danville toward Lebanon, Kentucky, to look after John Morgan's cavalry, but returned the next day, after an unsuccessful scout through the rain and mud.

On January 26, 1863, the battery received orders to report to the Army of the Cumberland at Nashville, and on January 31st sailed on transports from Louisville for Nashville. Arriving at Nashville, it encamped there until March 6th, when it moved out to Franklin and took position with the right wing of the Army of the Cumberland. On March 9th it pursued the Rebel cavalry to within five miles of Columbia without bringing on an engagement, and returning to Franklin on the 12th. On the 27th of March the battery returned to Brentwood with a brigade of infantry, the garrison of that place having been captured the day previous by the enemy. On April 8th the battery again returned to Franklin, Tennessee, and, in company with a brigade of infantry, had a brisk skirmish with the enemy, pursuing him four miles, and returning to camp at midnight. On June 11th, at Triune, the enemy made a sudden demonstration in force, but was repulsed, with some loss on both sides. During June and July the Ninth had several skirmishes around Triune and Murfreesboro', and on the 5th of September marched for Tullahoma, Tennessee.

On November 21, 1863, the battery, Captain H. B. York commanding, was assigned to the First Division, Twelfth Corps, Department of the Cumberland, Captain H. B. York being announced as Chief of Artillery of the Division, Brigadier-General A. S. Williams commanding.

On December 23, 1863, four men of the battery were captured by guerrillas, from a foraging train, in Lincoln County, Tennessee. The Rebels tied their hands behind them and then inhumanly shot them, throwing their bodies into Elk River. Two of these men escaped by getting their hands loose and swimming to the shore—one of the two dying the next day. The other, James W. Foley, of Hudson, Ohio, was permanently disabled in the right leg. General Order, No. 6, Head-Quarters Army of the Cumberland, series of 1864, was immediately issued, making an assessment of $30,000 on the neighborhood, for the benefit of the families of the three murdered men.

On February 22, 1864, forty-one men of the original organization, being three-fourths of the number present, having re-enlisted as veterans, were permitted, together with Captain H. B. York and First-Lieutenant H. A. Tallmadge, to report at Cleveland, Ohio, as an organization, for the purpose of again recruiting its ranks.

On the 9th of April, 1864, the battery reported at Tullahoma, Tennessee, with an aggregate of one hundred and fifty-one men and five commissioned officers, only three men being absent.

In the early part of May the battery started with General Sherman's forces on the Atlanta campaign, and fought throughout that remarkable march. It also followed that General in his "March to the Sea."

The battery was mustered out of the service at Cleveland, Ohio, on July 25, 1865.

10th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	H. Berlace White	Jan. 9, 1862	March 14, 1862	Discharged March 4, 1864.
Do.	Francis Scaman	May 9, 1864	May 9, 1864	Discharged October 26, 1864.
Do.	J. R. Crain	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	Mustered out July 17, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	F. W. Bardwell	Jan. 9, 1862	May 14, 1862	Resigned February 28, 1863.
Do.	Ambrose A. Blount	March 1, "	" "	Resigned April 4, 1862.
Do.	Edward Grossehoff	April 4, "	June 6, "	Resigned February 9, 1863.
Do.	Wm. L. Newcomb	Feb. 9, "	May 26, 1863	Discharged April 5, 1864.
Do.	J. R. Crain	May 9, 1864	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Joseph B. Gage	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	Mustered out July 17, 1865.
Do.	James E. Gillmore	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	Mustered out July 17, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Ambrose A. Blount	Jan. 9, 1862	March 14, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edward Grossehoff	Jan. 9, "	March 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George Kleider	March 1, "	June 6, "	Resigned November 3, 1863.
Do.	Lanson Zane	Jan. 18, 1863	May 26, 1863	Discharged April 5, 1864.
Do.	John R. Crain	Dec. 28, "	March 16, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Joseph B. Gage	May 9, 1864	May 9, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James E. Gillmore	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel A. Galbreath	Dec. 14, "	Dec. 14, "	Mustered out July 17, 1865.
Do.	Joseph C. Bontecon	Feb. 6, 1865	Feb. 6, 1865	Mustered out July 17, 1863.

TENTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THIS BATTERY was organized at Xenia on the 9th of January, 1862, and was mustered into the service at Camp Dennison on the 3d of March. It was rapidly armed and equipped, and was ordered to St. Louis, Missouri. On the 4th of April it moved up the Tennessee River to Pittsburg Landing, where it arrived on the 9th. On the 13th it received some twenty men from the Thirteenth Ohio Battery, whose officers had been discharged because, in attempting to obey orders, they had lost their guns. The men were distributed among several Ohio batteries, and were brave and faithful soldiers. The battery moved upon Corinth with the army; but, during the siege, it was held in reserve and took no active part in operations. From the 25th of June to the middle of September the battery remained at Corinth. It then moved to Iuka, and remained at that post on garrison-duty. While there the supply of forage ran short, and orders were given to procure it from the adjacent country. A portion of the men, under command of Lieutenant Grossehoff, while in the performance of this duty, were attacked by Roddy's Rebel cavalry at a point five miles below Iuka, and lost, by capture, privates Wm. F. Nixon, Richard Sparrow, John W. Shoemaker, Abe Hulsizer, and William Leslie. These men were taken to Southern prisons, and were afterward exchanged.

On October 1st the battery moved toward Corinth. On the 2d it passed through Corinth and stopped for the night at a fort south-west of the town. On the morning of the 3d it was ordered to take position near where the Chewalla Road crosses the Memphis Railroad. From this place the battery was ordered into position just north of Corinth. About eleven o'clock on the morning of the 4th the Rebel lines advanced. The battery opened with shell, and one piece was disabled after the first fire by a shell getting fast half way down. Two shells were fired by each of the other three pieces, and then canister (doubled) was used to the direct front. The ground was favorable for canister-practice; and at each fire gaps of twenty, thirty, and forty feet wide were cut in the advancing columns. The battery stopped three columns of Rebels, and each piece was pouring out from eighteen to twenty rounds of canister per minute, when the order was given to retire. The Rebels had advanced on the right, and the battery was without the support of a single musket, right or left. The pintle-key of the third piece had to be tied in its place; and the Corporal, while tying it, discovered that the sponge-bucket was left. He called out: "Get the bucket, Number Two." George S. Wright, a boy of eighteen, acting as Number One, ran back toward the Rebels, picked up the bucket when they were not more than twenty-five yards from him, and returned with it to the gun. As fast as the pieces were limbered they went off at a gallop. They were unlimbered east of town and south of the Decatur Railroad, but only for a moment, when they were returned to a point about one hundred yards in rear of the former position. In a short time the enemy retired. The battery lost only three men wounded. A number of horses were also wounded, including those belonging to Captain H. B. White and bugler Wm. H. Bretney. It pursued the enemy as far as Ripley, and then returned to Corinth.

In the latter part of October the battery received forty men from an Iowa brigade, but about twenty of them were returned. In November it moved to Grand Junction, and marched with the army into Mississippi along the Mississippi Central Railroad. After the surrender of Holly Springs the battery returned to that point and formed part of the garrison. New-Year's Day, 1863, found the battery at Lafayette, and from this point it moved to Memphis. On the 21st of January it moved down the river to Milliken's Bend, and after staying a week or so, proceeded to Lake Providence. In April it returned to Milliken's Bend, and moved from there to Grand Gulf. On May 15, 1863, while at Grand Gulf, General Dwight, of General Banks's army, arrived on a gunboat, on his way to General Grant's head-quarters, then near Black River. There being no cavalry at the post, Captain White was detailed, with thirty men of the battery, to act as an escort to the General. They left Grand Gulf May 16th, at nine P. M., and rode all night. The battle of Champion Hills being in progress, they were unable to reach General Grant's head-quarters, and were compelled to remain on the road in their saddles until two o'clock A. M. of the 18th, without rations for themselves or forage for the horses. At six o'clock in the morning, when General McPherson's head-quarters were reached, the men were completely exhausted and the horses unfit for further travel. Later in the day the escort commenced its return to Grand Gulf, having supplied themselves with horses and mules taken from citizens. On its march through the woods the escort ran into a brigade of Pemberton's Rebel army, that had been cut off from the main force. Captain White so maneuvered his men as to make the Rebels believe he had a large force of cavalry, and actually succeeded in capturing thirty-four Rebels. On returning to camp some of the men of the escort were asleep in their saddles.

On the 13th of June it reached Vicksburg, and on the 18th it was posted in Fort Ransom. On the next day one of the guns broke its axle and another its stock, leaving but two serviceable pieces. On the night of the 19th, Quartermaster McPherson, with the wagonmaster and artificer Cline, procured another carriage from near the Rebel lines, "cutting it out," as it were, under the fire of Rebel guns. On the morning of the 20th, artificers Cline and Wheeler, while under fire from the enemy's sharpshooters, repaired the disabled guns. The battery remained in the fort until the latter part of June.

In the latter part of June the battery moved to Big Black, and immediately after the surrender of Vicksburg it marched to Jackson. As soon as it arrived it was ordered back to Champion Hills to guard the communications. Champion Hills were reached on the next day, and on the 28th of July the battery entered Vicksburg and camped just above the cemetery. In August, of seventy-two men present, only seventeen were reported for duty. The men were worn out with sickness and service. The well men did guard-duty, took care of seventy horses and mules, went for forage and rations, hauled water, fixed shades, and at night cared for their sick comrades.

The garrison went into winter-quarters on the bluffs south of Vicksburg. One section was sent to Red Bone Church, twelve miles south of Vicksburg; the other on duty at Hall's Ferry Road. During the winter the battery received about ninety recruits. Thirty-two men, out of fifty-four who were eligible, re-enlisted, and on the 8th of April, 1864, the battery (with one hundred and fifty men for duty) left Vicksburg for Cairo. The battery was attacked on its way up the river by a portion of Forrest's force, but it used its guns effectually and drove off the Rebels. Fort Pillow was held by the enemy.

The battery returned to Memphis, and remained on duty there until the latter part of April, when it moved to Cairo. The veterans proceeded to Ohio and were furloughed. The Morgan raid through Kentucky prevented the veterans from joining the battery until the 23d of June. They were retained at Louisville, Kentucky.

At Cairo the battery received a new outfit. On the 9th of May it moved to Paducah, and on the 13th it started up the Tennessee. On the morning of the 14th it disembarked at Clifton, and on the 16th began the march to Acworth, Georgia. The distance was about five hundred miles; the march occupied twenty-four days, and the route lay through Pulaski, Huntsville, Decatur, Rome, and Kingston. The weather was exceedingly warm, but the battery did not lose a man. At Acworth it was placed in the Fourth Division of the Seventeenth Army Corps. On the 10th of June it took position at the front, and, with the exception of the 4th of July, was engaged every day for a month, most of the time in front of Kenesaw Mountain, but most severely at Niojack Creek. On the 12th of July it returned to Kenesaw, and after remaining a few days took position at Marietta, where it formed a part of the garrison until November. During Hood's march in October the battery was ordered out frequently, but it was engaged only once. About the last of October the horses and mules were turned over and the battery was ordered to Nashville. About the same time seven recruits were received from Ohio. On the 2d of November the battery left Marietta, and, after more than a week's detention at Chattanooga, it procured transportation, and arrived at Nashville on the 14th. It was posted at Camp Barry. About the middle of November the majority of the men in the battery were sent about thirty miles up the Cumberland to get timber for winter-quarters. They did not return until the 1st of December. When Hood threatened Nashville the battery was posted in Fort Gillen, but it was not called into action. About the last of December the battery moved to Camp Barry and erected comfortable winter-quarters. The men were armed with muskets, and for two months acted as infantry. On the 13th of March, 1865, the Fourth and Tenth Ohio Batteries were consolidated. Sixty-four men were thus added to the Tenth, which retained its name and organization. The men from the Fourth were mostly Germans. About the 1st of April the battery was ordered to East Tennessee, and, after guarding the post of Sweetwater for two weeks, it was ordered to Loudon, where it remained until orders to muster out were received. The battery was mustered out at Camp Dennison on the 17th of July, 1865, and paid off and discharged on the 21st.

11th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Archibald G. A. Constable	Aug. 10, 1861	Nov. 5, 1861	Resigned December 13, 1861.
Do.	Frank C. Sands	Jan. 7, 1862	Jan. 7, 1862	Resigned June 9, 1864.
Do.	Fletcher E. Armstrong	July 12, 1861	July 12, 1861	Mustered out with battery.
1st Lieutenant	Frank C. Sands	Sept. 3, 1861	Nov. 5, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Cyrus Sears	Oct. 12, " "	" "	Appointed Colonel of colored regiment.
Do.	Henry M. Neil	Jan. 7, 1862	Jan. 7, 1862	Appointed Captain 22d Battery.
Do.	Fletcher E. Armstrong	April 10, 1863	April 29, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. M. Wynne	June 16, " "	June 16, " "	Resigned.
Do.	Milton D. Whaley	July 12, 1861	July 12, 1861	Mustered out with battery.
2d Lieutenant	David A. Southworth	Sept. 7, 1861	Nov. 5, 1861	Resigned September 3, 1862.
Do.	Wm. D. Linn	" 9, " "	" 5, " "	Resigned December 13, 1861.
Do.	Wm. K. Perrin	Feb. 8, 1862	Feb. 8, 1862	Discharged September 13, 1862.
Do.	Fletcher E. Armstrong	Nov. 20, " "	Nov. 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Amos B. Alger	" 20, " "	" 20, " "	Resigned February 9, 1863.
Do.	Wm. M. Wynne	Feb. 9, 1863	April 29, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Milton D. Whaley	April 10, " "	" 29, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Bush	June 6, " "	June 16, " "	Honorably discharged April 8, 1864.
Do.	John A. McCarthy	" 27, 1861	" 27, 1861
Do.	D. A. Galusha	" 13, " "	July 13, " "	Revoked.
Do.	David A. Montgomery	" 13, " "	" 13, " "

ELEVENTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE men who composed this battery were enlisted at Cincinnati, from Athens, Butler, Hamilton, Vinton, and Wyandott Counties, between the 20th of August and 17th of September, 1861, and rendezvoused at St. Louis Arsenal, Missouri, where they were mustered into the service on the 27th of October, 1861, with one hundred and fifty-one men, rank and file.

The battery consisted of two six-pound rifled guns, caliber 3.67; two six-pound smooth-bore guns, caliber 3.67, and two twelve-pound field-howitzers, caliber 4.62, with gun-carriages and caissons complete, and battery-wagon and blacksmith-shop. In addition to the regular equipments, the battery had two water-tanks, capable of holding several hundred gallons each, which on several occasions proved of great benefit in supplying men and horses with water, but were finally turned over for lack of transportation.

The uniforms for the men were made to order, from actual measurement, of the best material, and each man was furnished a pair of superior buck gauntlets in addition to the regular uniform. The non-commissioned officers, in addition to their regulation sabel, were armed with Beal's patent revolver, and the privates with sabel-bayonets.

The organization having been completed, on the 26th of October the battery marched from the arsenal to department head-quarters, and was reviewed by Major-General Fremont, then commanding the Western Department, and was there presented by Mrs. Fremont with a magnificent silk guidon. The battery was ordered, on the 28th of October, to embark on board of transports for Boonville, Missouri. Owing to a low stage of water in the Missouri River, the battery disembarked at South Point, Missouri, and proceeded from there by rail to Tipton, where it encamped, and a rigid course of instruction in the field evolutions of the battery was practiced.

The battery marched to Syracuse, Missouri, on the 27th of November, and returned, on the 29th, with the command of General Hovey, to Tipton, where it remained until the 15th of December, when it marched to Otterville, Missouri, remaining there in winter-quarters until February 2, 1862. Marching from Otterville, in conjunction with the Forty-Seventh Illinois, the battery reached Boonville on the 4th of February, where it joined the brigade of Colonel Worthington (Fifth Iowa Infantry), and marched with it to St. Charles, where the command arrived on the 17th. This march, for speed, considering the muddy state of the roads and the severity of the weather, was remarkable, the column moving thirty-one miles the last day.

From there the troop proceeded on board transports to Commerce, Missouri, where they disembarked, and formed a part of the New Madrid expedition under General Pope. The expedition arrived before New Madrid on the 3d of March, and immediately commenced operations for the reduction of the enemy's forts. The battery participated in several reconnoissances, and was repeatedly under fire of the Rebel gunboats and land batteries. A few days later General Pope's forces crossed the Mississippi River at New Madrid, which compelled the evacuation of Island No. 10, and resulted in the capture of about five thousand prisoners. The battery, participating in this expedition, brought in two Rebel six-pound guns as trophies of its success, and returned to New Madrid, where it remained in camp until the 12th of April, improving the time by drilling in field maneuvers. From here the battery proceeded, with the division to which it was attached, on board of transports to Fort Pillow for operations against that place; but in the meantime the battle of Pittsburg Landing had been fought, and General Pope's forces were ordered to re-enforce General Grant. Proceeding from Pittsburg to Hamburg Landing, the army commanded by General Pope disembarked and advanced toward Corinth, forming the left wing of Halleck's army. During the siege, and in the battles and skirmishes resulting in the evacuation of Corinth, the battery bore its full share.

The battery participated in the pursuit of the retreating Rebels as far as Boonville, Mississippi, returning afterward to Corinth, near which place it remained until the latter part of June. It participated in the Ripley expedition, under General Rosecrans, during the last of June and first of July, again returning to Corinth, where it remained until the beginning of August.

About the 1st of August the battery, with the division of General C. S. Hamilton, moved to Jacinto, Mississippi, where it remained until the morning of the 18th of September, when it moved with the forces of General Rosecrans for the purpose of co-operating with General Grant in the movement against General Price at Iuka. The battery went into action one hundred and two strong (three officers and ninety-nine men), under the command of Lieutenant Sears. During the engagement it was charged on three different times, suffering a loss of two officers and fifty-five men killed or wounded, eighteen being killed on the field and others dying afterward. Not a man flinched, and numbers were killed or wounded after the Rebels had passed the muzzles of the guns, some of them nobly dying in the attempt to spike their pieces. Upward of sixty horses were killed or disabled during the action, with the entire loss of harness and equipments. The assaulting Rebel column suffered terribly, having received over a hundred rounds of canister and other shot while traversing less than a hundred yards. Night closed the contest just as re-enforcements for Rosecrans reached the scene of action, enabling him to hold his position, both sides picketing the field of battle; but morning found the Rebels in full retreat.

Severely as the battery suffered in this engagement in the loss of men and equipments, it was, in a short time, again ready for the field, and took a prominent part in the battle of Corinth, on the 3d and 4th of October following, nobly maintaining its reputation for efficiency and gallantry. Coming into action on the second day's engagement, after the first line in the center had given way, and when the Rebels, flushed with temporary success, were pressing the second line with exultant shouts, the battery poured a destructive and continuous fire upon the advancing Rebels, who, although coming within fifty yards, could not longer withstand the murderous discharge of canister, but broke and fled. The battery participated in the pursuit as far as Ripley, returning again to Corinth, having suffered a loss of five men wounded during the action.

The battery participated in the movement to co-operate (via Holly Springs) with General Sherman in his attack on Vicksburg, and fell back to the vicinity of Memphis after the capture of Holly Springs by the Rebel General Van Dorn. From December, 1862, until January, 1863, the battery was stationed at Germantown, Tennessee, a few miles from Memphis, when it moved to the last-named city, where the Seventeenth Corps, to which it was attached, commanded by Major-General James B. McPherson, rendezvoused, preparatory to participation in the Vicksburg campaign. Leaving Memphis in March, the battery proceeded, on board transports, to Lake Providence, forming part of the command whose endeavor it was to get below Vicksburg by that route. Failing in that, it returned with its division to Helena, Arkansas, from which point it participated in the attempt to reach Vicksburg via the Yazoo Pass.

The expedition met its first serious obstructions at Fort Greenwood, whose massive and well-garrisoned fortifications offered a determined resistance to further progress. A series of engagements and reconnoissances by the gunboats and troops demonstrated the impracticability of the expedition, and the command withdrew to Helena. Resting for a few days, the division steamed down the Mississippi River to Milliken's Bend, Louisiana, where it remained for a short time, when it started with the army, under General Graut, on the Vicksburg campaign.

On the 1st of May the battery crossed the river below Grand Gulf and moved rapidly forward to "Thompson's Hill." Arriving too late to participate in the engagement, the battery, with its division, pushed forward early next morning in pursuit of the retreating Rebels. In the constant skirmishing that took place from day to day, and in the battles of Raymond, Clinton, Jackson, and Champion Hills, the battery bore a prominent part.

Crossing Black River on a bridge of cotton, the battery pushed forward to Vicksburg, arriving before that stronghold on the 19th of May, its corps (the Seventeenth) occupying the center of the line. At twelve o'clock M. the battery was ordered into position by Captain Sands, Chief of Artillery, on a hill immediately in front, and within point-blank range of the three main forts of the Rebel defenses, including Fort Hill. To reach the position assigned, it was necessary for the battery to pass along the crest and down the side of a hill directly in rear of the one designated for it to occupy; and while doing so was exposed to the concentrated fire of the three Rebel forts, but on reaching the ravine it was for a time in comparative safety. So precipitous was the hill before it that twelve horses, with the men at the wheels, were required to take a single gun up it. After severe exertions the guns were placed a few yards in rear, and under cover of the crest of the hill. At two P. M. the order was received to open fire, and every gun was promptly moved forward. The moment that the heads of the leading horses became visible a storm of shot and shell burst forth from the Rebel guns that caused the bravest momentarily to hold his breath. The men behaved with steadiness, and the battery delivered its fire as rapidly as was consistent with precision; and while engaged expended over five hundred rounds of ammunition, losing one man killed and two wounded.

At ten P. M. the battery was relieved. During the remainder of the siege it was held in reserve, and participated in several expeditions to the rear, fighting as occasion required; and on the day of the capitulation it was camped at Snyder's Bluff, on the Yazoo River.

During the month of July the battery was much reduced in numbers from sickness, its camp being located in one of the low, swampy bottoms of the Yazoo River.

In the many changes consequent upon the reorganization of the army after the capture of Vicksburg, the battery was transferred from its old command—Seventh Division, Seventeenth Army Corps—to a provisional division, and soon after moved with its new command to Helena, Arkansas, destined to form part of the Arkansas expedition.

Marching with the Army of the Arkansas (Major-General Steele commanding) from Helena, about the middle of August, destined for Little Rock, Arkansas, the battery passed through all the vicissitudes of a long and tedious campaign. Arriving before Little Rock on the 9th of September, 1863, it immediately became engaged with the enemy and drove them from the river. In this short but decisive engagement the battery expended about one hundred rounds of ammunition, and both officers and men received the commendations of the Commanding General for the ability with which the battery was handled, and for accurate firing at both long and short range. With this battle the active campaigning of the battery may be said to have ceased. It remained at Little Rock until the spring of 1864, taking part in one or two unimportant expeditions. About the 1st of April the battery, with the division to which it was attached, left Little Rock for Pine Bluff, Arkansas, for the purpose of escorting a supply train to and re-enforcing General Steele at Camden, on his way to co-operate with General Banks in the Red River expedition. Arriving at Pine Bluff, the news was received that General Steele, on account of the disaster to General Banks, was falling back on Little Rock; and, soon after, the battery was assigned to duty with the forces garrisoning Pine Bluff, where it remained until its departure for Ohio to be mustered out. Arriving at Columbus about the 1st of November, 1864, the battery was mustered out on the 5th, having served its time faithfully to the end.

12th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Aaron C. Johnston	May 17, 1862	Jan. 13, 1862	Mustered out at expiration of service.
Do.	Frank Jackson	July 12, 1863	July 13, 1864	Resigned April 29, 1865.
Do.	Alfred Noecker	May 11, 1863	May 11, 1865	Mustered out July 10, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Darius Durlant	March 17, 1862	Jan. 13, 1863	Resigned July 6, 1862.
Do.	Archibald McClelland	July 17, " "	July 13, " "	Resigned September 10, 1862.
Do.	Wm. B. Fleming	July 6, " "	July 13, " "	Resigned January 22, 1863.
Do.	Ami P. Fairbanks	Sept. 10, " "	July 13, " "	Resigned January 13, 1863.
Do.	Abner A. Powers	Jan. 13, 1863	Feb. 6, " "	Resigned March 6, 1863.
Do.	John B. Ward	" 22, " "	" 6, " "	Resigned May 28, 1863.
Do.	Wm. W. Banning	March 6, " "	March 31, " "	Resigned May 28, 1863.
Do.	Frank Jackson	May 28, " "	Jun. 26, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Myron Webber	" 28, " "	" 26, " "	Resigned September 30, 1863.
Do.	Alph. E. Gregory	Sept. 30, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out at expiration of service.
Do.	Alfred Noecker	July 13, 1864	July 13, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Madison M. Moore	" 13, " "	" 13, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Joseph Bittings	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Mustered out July 10, 1865.
Do.	Oregon F. Morgan	May 11, " "	May 11, " "	Mustered out July 10, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. B. Fleming	March 17, 1862	Jan. 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ami P. Fairbanks	July 6, " "	July 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Abner A. Powers	Aug. 12, " "	July 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John B. Ward	Dec. 1, " "	July 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank Jackson	Jan. 13, 1863	Feb. 6, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. W. Banning	" 22, " "	" 19, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Myron Webber	March 6, " "	March 31, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Anderson Blue	May 28, " "	June 26, " "	Mustered out.
Do.	Alph. E. Gregory	" 28, " "	July 20, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	C. A. Day	Sept. 30, " "	Jan. 10, 1864	Mustered out.
Do.	Joseph Bittings	July 13, 1864	July 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Oregon F. Morgan	" 13, " "	" 13, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Henry C. Kilburn	April 8, 1865	April 8, 1865	Resigned June 17, 1865.
Do.	Wm. B. Fleming	May 11, " "	May 11, " "	Mustered out July 10, 1865.

TWELFTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

AS was frequently the case in the early part of the war, this organization was made up from one of the companies of the Twenty-Fifth Ohio Infantry—company D. It was mustered in for three years, and served with the Twenty-Fifth Ohio Infantry in West Virginia, under Generals Reynolds and Milroy, during the winter of 1861. The battery was in almost every engagement that occurred during that campaign. The men belonging to the battery continued to act as company D of the Twenty-Fifth Ohio, and joined in all the scouts and skirmishes of the regiment. When the National troops, encamped on Cheat Mountain, were surrounded by the Rebels, company D was the only company of its regiment under fire. It captured six prisoners and lost one member of the company. At Greenbrier it was under fire, and in an affair on the Alleghany River, on the 13th of December, 1861, the company led the advance, and fought until its ammunition was expended. Its loss was two killed, nine wounded, and one taken prisoner. The company was also present and took part in the taking and burning of Huntersville, January 5, 1862. It remained at Elkwater, Virginia, until March 17, 1862, when an order from the Secretary of War transferred the company permanently from the infantry to the artillery service.

It was organized as the Twelfth Ohio Independent Battery, and received an equipment of Wiard's steel rifled cannon. By order of General Fremont the battery immediately joined General Milroy at McDowell, West Virginia. In the battle at that place the members of the battery performed their first service as artillerymen, and performed it so well that it was specially mentioned for efficiency on that occasion.

The battery continued with General Milroy's brigade, under Fremont, through all the engagements in the Shenandoah Valley. At the battle of Cross Keys it was for six hours under continuous fire, and discharged six hundred shots from five guns, one being disabled early in the engagement. In this affair the battery received special notice from Generals Fremont and Milroy. Its next service was in the army of General Pope, under General Sigel, in Milroy's brigade; and, by special order of General Sigel, it led the advance in all the engagements on the Rappahannock. The battery had been fighting every day for eight days previous to the second Bull Run, and expended from two to six hundred shots daily. It took the advance at Bull Run, and fought all of the first day and the next afternoon, with a loss of nine men killed and wounded. It was efficient in covering the retreat of the National forces from the battle-field. On inspection, immediately after the battle, it was found that the guns of the battery were, from continuous firing, totally unfit for service, and were abandoned.

On again taking the field the battery was supplied with the Rodman gun, and attached to the Eleventh Army Corps, then on its way to Fredericksburg. It passed the winter of 1862-3 at that place; and on the opening of spring fell back, with the Army of the Potomac, to Fairfax, where it was detached and ordered to the defenses of Washington. It remained on this duty for about five months, and was then transferred to the Western army at Nashville. The battery passed the winter of 1863-4 in Nashville, and in the spring was sent to Murfreesboro', and remained in garrison at that place during the summer, fall, and winter of 1864.

While at Murfreesboro' it took an active part in the various engagements around that place, connected with the Rebel General Hood's reckless advance on Nashville, and performed a distinguished and very effective part, under Generals Milroy and Rousseau, in the battles of Franklin and Nashville. After the retreat of General Hood the battery was not actively engaged. In its last engagements it was under the immediate command of Captain R. F. Jackson, its former commander, then acting as Chief of Artillery on the staff of General Rousseau.

The battery was finally mustered out of service on the 12th of July, 1865.

A. C. Johnson served as Captain of the battery for three years, and was never absent from his post during active movements. R. F. Jackson was its second Captain, remaining so for nearly a year.

Although engaged in as much active service as any other battery from Ohio, it never lost a gun.

[THE THIRTEENTH OHIO BATTERY was never fully organized. A section of it was in the battle of Pittsburg Landing, and was unfortunate enough to lose its guns in the first day's fight. After the battle the men of the battery were, by order of the division commander (duly approved at head-quarters) distributed into other Ohio batteries, and the number was dropped.]

14th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Jerome B. Burrows	Sept. 10, 1861	Nov. 11, 1861	Resigned August 26, 1864.
Do.	Seth M. Laird	Oct. 12, 1861	Oct. 12, 1861	Mustered out.
Do.	Wm. C. Myers	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Mustered out August 9, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Edward Spear, Jr.	Sept. 10, 1861	Nov. 11, 1861	Resigned January 1, 1862.
Do.	Homer H. Stull	" 10, "	" 11, "	Died May 17, 1865.
Do.	Wm. H. Smith	Jan. 1, 1862	" "	Resigned April 16, 1862
Do.	Hamilton H. Burrows	April 16, "	Dec. 2, 1862	Resigned February 19, 1861.
Do.	Seth M. Laird	May 17, 1863	June 10, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Allen L. Callendar	April 13, 1861	April 13, 1861	Resigned as 2d Lieutenant June 10, 1864.
Do.	George Hurlbut	July 13, "	July 13, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Wm. C. Myers	Aug. 11, "	Aug. 11, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Irwin S. Childs	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Mustered out August 9, 1865.
Do.	Thomas Jeffrey	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Mustered out August 9, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. H. Smith	Sept. 10, 1861	Nov. 11, 1861	Resigned April 16, 1862.
Do.	Hamilton H. Burrows	" 10, "	" 11, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Seth M. Laird	April 16, 1862	July 28, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Walter B. King	" 16, "	Dec. 2, "	Mustered out April 22, 1862.
Do.	Allen L. Callendar	Aug. 22, "	" 2, "	Promoted; resigned June 10, 1864.
Do.	George Hurlbut	May 17, 1863	June 10, 1863	Mustered out August 9, 1865.
Do.	Wm. C. Myers	April 13, 1861	April 13, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Irwin S. Childs	July 13, "	July 13, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Thomas Jeffrey	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John W. Francis	Dec. 9, "	Dec. 9, "	Mustered out August 9, 1865.

FOURTEENTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE FOURTEENTH OHIO LIGHT ARTILLERY was mustered into the service at Cleveland, Ohio, on the 10th day of September, 1861, by Lieutenant J. W. P. Niel, Eighteenth U. S. Infantry. It was mainly recruited in the counties of Ashtabula, Lake, Trumbull, and Geauga, under authority from the Secretary of War, empowering Hon. B. F. Wade and Hon. John Hutchins to raise a regiment of cavalry and a battery of artillery. The battery was mustered for three years, unless sooner discharged. In its ranks were two hundred and forty-nine men and ten commissioned officers.

The battery reported for service at Camp Dennison on the 1st of January, 1862. On the 5th of February it left camp, and passed through Cincinnati en route for Kansas, in compliance with orders from the Adjutant-General of the State of Ohio. It reached St. Louis on the 9th of February, and was ordered by General Halleck to remain in that city until further orders. On the 13th of February it was ordered to proceed to the theater of war in Kentucky or Tennessee, touching at Cairo and Paducah, where additional instructions would be met. At Cairo it was ordered to proceed without delay to the vicinity of Forts Donelson and Henry. On landing at Paducah it was attached to the command of General Hurlbut, and marched with his division toward Fort Henry, reaching there on the evening of the 6th of March. On the 7th it embarked with the army up the Tennessee River.

On the 14th of March the whole force was disembarked at Pittsburg Landing, and the battery placed in position some three-fourths of a mile from the landing, where it went into camp. On the 5th of April it was transferred and assigned to the First Division, General McClelland commanding, and on the 6th participated in the battle of Pittsburg Landing, with a loss of four men killed and twenty-six wounded; also fifty horses killed and wounded and all their guns left on the field. This last casualty was occasioned by the failure of an infantry support. The guns were not abandoned until long after the infantry had retired. On the 7th the guns were recovered without damage.

The battery remained in the same division and participated in the advance on Corinth. After the evacuation of that place by the enemy, it was assigned to General John A. Logan's division, and on the 4th of June accompanied it to Jackson, Tennessee, where it performed garrison duty mainly until the 2d of June, 1863. On that day it moved, by order of General Oglesby to Corinth, Mississippi. Here it remained up to the 2d of November, when it commenced its march along with the left wing of the Sixteenth Army Corps, Brigadier-General Dodge commanding. Lynnville, Tennessee, was the terminus of this march, where it went into camp and remained until the 13th of March, 1864. From this point many expeditions were planned and carried out.

On the 1st of January, 1864, while in camp at Lynnville, eighty-four men of the Fourteenth Ohio Battery expressed their willingness to re-enlist for another term of three years, and were mustered into the United States service as veterans on the 16th of the same month, to date from the 1st of January, 1864. More than three-fourths of the original organization having re-enlisted, the battery was thereby constituted a veteran organization. Leaving the battery and equipments in the hands of Lieutenant Seth M. Laird and those of the men who declined to re-enlist, the veterans left Lynnville for Cleveland, Ohio, reaching there, by railroad and river, on the 25th of January, where they received furloughs and dispersed to their homes.

Punctual to the day on which their thirty days' furlough expired, the veterans of the Fourteenth Ohio Battery were in camp at Cleveland, ready to return to the field. On the 2d of March the battery was en route for Lynnville, Tennessee, via railroad and river, reaching its destination on the 7th. While the veterans were absent at home a section of the battery was sent to Culleoka, a small station on the Nashville and Decatur Railroad, eight miles from Lynnville, to repel a threatened attack from the Rebels. Soon after the return of the veterans this section was restored.

On the 13th of March the battery marched from Lynnville, under command of Captain J. B. Burrows, in company with the Third Brigade, Second Division of the Sixteenth Army Corps, Colonel M. M. Bane, of the Fiftieth Illinois Infantry, commanding brigade, and reached Athens, Alabama, about fifty miles from Lynnville, on the 15th. It remained at this place until the 21st. While here it was transferred to the Fourth Division of the Sixteenth Army Corps.

On the 19th of April, while lying at Athens, Alabama, thirty-three men were detailed, under orders from Brigadier-General Dodge, and sent to Culleoka, Tennessee, under command of Lieutenant Allen L. Callender. At Pulaski they were furnished with two pieces of artillery by Major Ross, Chief of Artillery of the left wing of the Sixteenth Army Corps. The battery left Athens on the 21st, reaching Decatur, Alabama, the same day, marching sixteen miles. On the 28th the section that had been sent to Culleoka returned to the battery, and was ordered to report to Brigadier-General Stephenson, commanding Decatur, on the 1st of May. While lying at this place, Captain Burrows was appointed Chief of Artillery of the Fourth Division, Sixteenth Army Corps. This change devolved the command of the battery on Lieutenant Seth M. Laird.

On the 1st of May the battery, with the exception of the section at Decatur, left that place, with the Fourth Division, Sixteenth Army Corps, Brigadier-General Veatch commanding, and arrived at Woodville, Alabama, on the morning of the 8th, and camped at Rossville that night. On the morning of the 13th of May it moved out, with the army, to a point near Resaca, where it was placed in position and immediately commenced shelling the enemy on the opposite bank of the Oostenaule River. The battery continued to operate effectively throughout the battle, and on the evening of the 15th succeeded in silencing and driving from position a formidable battery, with which the enemy was successfully annoying the National forces. In this battle the battery expended three hundred and forty-two rounds of ammunition, without casualties. It was supported by the Twenty-Seventh, Thirty-Ninth, Forty-Third, and Sixty-Third Ohio Infantry.

On the 16th of May the battery marched to the south of the Oostenaule River, taking position near Calhoun's Ferry, and shelling the retreating enemy. The march was resumed, passing through Kingston and Dallas. On the evening of the 26th of May the battery was detailed as a part of the guard of the army supply-train, moving on Dallas. It was relieved from this duty the next day, and rejoined the division, taking position in front of Dallas, where it was engaged in shelling the enemy's works from the 28th to the 30th of May. It also took an active part in repelling the attack of the enemy on the National lines, on the evening of the 28th. In this affair one hundred and thirteen rounds of ammunition were expended.

Under orders from General Dodge the battery marched with the Second Brigade, Second Division, of the Sixteenth Army Corps, to a point four miles north of Dallas, where it took position and remained on the line until the 5th of June, when it marched to Acworth, reaching there on the afternoon of the 6th. On the 10th of May it joined the division at Big Shanty. On the 11th it was placed on the line of battle, where it was continually engaged in shelling the enemy's skirmish-line up to the 19th of June, performing effective service in driving the Rebel sharpshooters from their rail-pens and log-houses, from which they kept up for a time a deadly fire and succeeded in resisting the advance of the National lines. Four hundred and thirty-seven rounds were fired in this affair, with one man slightly wounded.

On the evening of the 19th of May the battery took a position before Kenesaw Mountain, and was constantly under fire from that date to the 2d of July. It succeeded in silencing the enemy's guns on its front, after expending one thousand three hundred and forty-six rounds, and losing two men wounded. On the 3d it marched to near Ruff's Mills, where it took position and participated in the engagement at that place. One section of the battery, under Lieutenant Myers, had a spirited and successful duel with a Rebel battery protected by strong works. The Thirty-Ninth Ohio Infantry skirmished with the battery, and afterward, with the brigade, charged and carried the enemy's works. In this charge Colonel Noyes, of the Thirty-Ninth, received a serious wound, from the effects of which he lost a leg.

On the 5th of July the battery moved with the division to the vicinity of the Chattahoochie River, near Howlatt's Ferry. At this point a section of the battery, under Lieutenant George Hurlbut, was detached by order of General Dodge, and assigned to duty with General Stoneman's cavalry command, where it performed excellent service, silencing the enemy's batteries on two occasions at river crossings. On the 7th another section, under Lieutenant Myers, engaged in the same work with success. During the two days' fight on the Chattahoochie River, ninety-nine rounds were fired and, though much exposed, no casualties occurred.

On the 9th of July the battery marched with the division to Marietta, at which place it was rejoined by the section attached to Stoneman's cavalry. On the 10th it marched to Roswell and took position covering the crossing of the National forces to the east bank of the Chattahoochie. It remained in camp near Roswell until the 17th, when it marched, with the division, on the expedition to Decatur.

Throughout the whole of this campaign the battery was almost constantly engaged at points where its splendid gunnery was most effective. Whenever and wherever it was brought into direct antagonism with the enemy's artillery, it invariably silenced and drove it from positions. During the latter part of the siege of Atlanta the battery was located within thirteen hundred yards of the enemy's heavy-guns, behind casemated works. From this position it fired with great accuracy of aim, throwing shells through the embrasures of the enemy, and cutting off the timbers forming the covering of their casemates. Eight men of the battery were wounded, two horses killed and four wounded, during these twenty-eight days of almost continuous firing. Two thousand six hundred and forty-two rounds were expended by the battery.

On the 25th of August the battery marched with the division on the flank movement to Jonesboro', and to a point near Lovejoy's Station, taking position on both flanks of the army, but, for various reasons, was not engaged. It returned with the division to East Point, arriving there on the 7th of September. While near Lovejoy's Station the command of the battery devolved upon Lieutenant Myers. During the campaign commencing May 1st and ending the 1st of September, the battery marched over four hundred miles, expended in all five thousand eight hundred and thirty-two rounds of ammunition, had three men killed and eighteen wounded, and two horses killed and fifteen wounded.

The remainder of September was consumed in needed rest and in making necessary repairs. By order of General Howard the battery was transferred to the Seventeenth Army Corps, First Division, and on the 1st of October it moved out in the direction of Fairburn, on a reconnoissance. A column of the enemy was discovered in the act of crossing the railroad at Fairburn, and the battery opened on it at once, causing much confusion and, for a time, a general stampede. Returning to East Point it met orders to prepare to move with the army next morning in pursuit of the Rebels under General Hood, who had doubled on his tracks and double-quickened his men to the rear of the National forces, on the railroad between Kenesaw and Dalton. Moving around Atlanta on the west, crossing the Chattahoochee River at Vining's Station, the battery reached, during the first day's march, a point a few miles south of Kenesaw Mountain. Another day's march brought it to Marietta. On the morning of the 9th of October it marched through Marietta and around Kenesaw Mountain to the east, camping for the night near Big Shanty.

It moved out from Big Shanty at ten o'clock on the 10th of October, and reached Acworth at two o'clock the next morning. The Allatoona Mountains were crossed at Allatoona Pass in the afternoon, and the Etowah River in the evening, camping late at night near Cartersville. The pursuit of the enemy was resumed in the morning, and kept up day after day, toiling through the obstructions placed in the roads, driving its rear-guard from old fortifications and keeping strict watch of his movements. Gaylesville, Alabama, was reached on the 21st of October, where the battery remained until the 24th. Orders were received from Head-quarters Army of the Tennessee to report to Head-quarters Reserve Artillery, at Nashville. In accordance with these orders the battery marched to Rome, Georgia (arriving there on the 25th of October), and turned over all the horses of the battery to the Fifteenth Ohio Light Artillery.

Since leaving East Point the battery had been compelled to abandon fifty-one horses, nearly all of which dropped down helpless from fatigue and exhaustion. The chase after Hood compelled a march of something over two hundred miles, for the most part through a country stripped of forage for both man and beast, and filled with obstructions ingeniously and industriously placed in the way by the desperate Rebels.

On the night of the 31st of October the battery proceeded to Nashville, Tennessee, by rail, stopping a short time at Chattanooga, where the section under Lieutenant Laird (left at Atlanta) joined it, and on the 16th of November the battery, once more united, reached Nashville. Shortly after its arrival it was transferred to the Cavalry Corps Military Division of the Mississippi, and assigned to duty, by order of General Wilson, to the Seventh Cavalry Division. A new supply of horses and harness was drawn, and the battery was constituted Horse Artillery.

During the battle of Nashville, on the 15th of December, the battery was in reserve in the third line of battle. On the second day it advanced to the front, and occupied a position on the right of the Hillsboro' Pike, seven miles south of Nashville, where one section, under Lieutenant Myers, drove a Rebel battery from position. While lying at this place Lieutenant Myers was commissioned as Captain. On the 17th the pursuit of the enemy was commenced, the battery accompanying the cavalry. It was a close chase, the rear-guard of the Rebels being frequently in sight. At Richland Creek, on the Franklin Pike, sixty-six miles south of Nashville, on the 24th of December, the battery shelled and drove from position the Rebel rear-guard, formed in line of battle on the south side of the creek. And again at Sugar Creek, in North Alabama, where the enemy attempted to make a stand, the battery fired on their position with success. On the 31st of December orders were received for the battery to proceed to Huntsville, Alabama. It had reached a point within twenty miles of that place, when orders were received to counter-march. Huntsville was left in the rear, Elk River again forded, and the march directed toward East Point, Mississippi. On the 15th of January the battery encamped within twelve miles of Eastport, on the Tennessee River, where comfortable quarters for the men and stables for the horses were erected. The battery remained here until the 6th of February, when it was ordered to join the expedition then fitting out for New Orleans.

From the battle of Nashville to the time of arrival at Eastport, the battery had marched two hundred miles over roads almost impassable, during the most severe weather of the season, and was compelled to subsist off the already impoverished country. The men were frequently without rations of any sort save a small quantity of meal; and while lying in camp during the dreary month of January, the same want of rations was severely felt.

The battery left the camp on the Tennessee River, in company with the First Brigade of the Seventh Cavalry Division, and marched into Eastport. Here a fleet of thirteen steamers received the troops and steamed down the Tennessee and Ohio Rivers to Cairo, Illinois, arriving at that place on the 11th of February. Leaving Cairo the fleet sailed down the Mississippi River (stopping at Memphis a few days) to Vicksburg, arriving at that place on the 19th, and going into camp four miles from that city on the next day. Here it remained until the 5th of March, when it returned to Vicksburg, embarked on the steamer Metropolitan, and on the same night went down the river, bound for New Orleans. Dropping a few miles below the city, the battery went into camp on the old battle-ground. It remained here until April 3d, when it again embarked on board steamship, and by dark that evening was in the Gulf of Mexico, with a rough sea washing the decks of the steamer. At three o'clock on the morning of the 5th the steamer anchored inside of Mobile Bay, near Fort Morgan, and in the forenoon of the same day moved up the bay toward Spanish Fort, and anchored near Stark's Landing. During the night the battery was lightened to the shore, and the men went into camp near Stark's Landing. The battery was stationed on the extreme left of the National line, and did not participate in any of the active operations against the city.

On the 13th the battery moved up the bay toward Blakely, and was placed in Brevet-Major-General Grierson's command, and by his order assigned to the Second Brigade of Cavalry Division of the Mississippi. At two o'clock P. M. of the 18th of April the battery marched with its brigade to Greenville, Alabama, reaching that place on the 22d. On the next day the caissons, battery-wagon, forge and transportation wagons, with a detail of men, under Lieutenants Childs and Francis, were, by order of General Grierson, sent directly to Montgomery, with General A. J. Smith's command, while the battery moved on the 24th. This march through the heart of Alabama was made without molestation from the enemy, the men and horses subsisting off the country. The battery arrived at Eufaula on the 29th of April and went into camp on the Georgia side of the Chattahoochie River, three miles from Eufaula.

On the 5th of May the battery was again on the move, and with its brigade recrossed the Chattahoochie River into Alabama, and resumed its march toward Montgomery, near which place it went into camp on the 8th. Here the detachment sent to Montgomery from Greenville rejoined the battery. On the move again, the battery passed through Montgomery on the 11th, and continued its march until the 21st of May, at noon, when it reached Columbus, Mississippi. The distance marched from its camping place on the Chattahoochie River in Georgia to Columbus, Mississippi, was a fraction over three hundred miles. Since the 1st of January, 1864, a distance of four thousand four hundred and eighty miles had been traversed.

The battery remained at Columbus, Mississippi, until the 27th of July, when it received orders to report at Cairo, Illinois, for muster-out. At Cairo it was ordered to report at Cincinnati. Reaching that city on the 7th of August it was sent to Camp Dennison, and on the 11th received final payment and discharge.

15th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Edward Spear, jr.....	Jan. 1, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Discharged September 20, 1864, exp. of service.
Do.	James Burdick.....	Nov. 3, 1864	Nov. 3, 1864	Mustered out June 20, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Adrian A. Burrowes.....	Jan. 1, 1862	Aug. 25, "	Resigned December 31, 1862.
Do.	James Burdick.....	" 1, "	" 25, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Edwin F. Reeve.....	Dec. 31, "	Oct. 24, 1863	Resigned June 16, 1864.
Do.	Chas. W. Moore.....	July 30, 1864	July 30, 1864	Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	G. R. Casper.....	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Mustered out December 18, 1864.
Do.	Lyman Bailey.....	Feb. 14, 1865	Feb. 14, 1865	Mustered out June 20, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. H. H. Crowell.....	Jan. 1, 1862	Aug. 25, 1862	Resigned November 15, 1862.
Do.	Edwin F. Reeve.....	" 1, "	" 25, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Chas. W. Moore.....	" 1, 1863	" 14, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	G. R. Casper.....	Oct. 24, "	April 20, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lyman Bailey.....	July 30, 1864	July 30, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stiles E. Sturges.....	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 23, "	Mustered out June 20, 1865.

FIFTEENTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE FIFTEENTH BATTERY OF LIGHT ARTILLERY was recruited in the counties of Trumbull, Ashtabula, Cuyahoga, and Lorain, by Captain J. B. Burrowes and First Lieutenant Edward Spear, jr., of the Fourteenth Battery, in the months of December, 1861, and January, 1862, rendezvousing at Camp Dennison.

On the 1st of January, 1862, Lieutenant Edward Spear, jr., of the Fourteenth Battery, was transferred and promoted to the Captaincy of the Fifteenth Battery, and on the 1st of February the battery was mustered into the service by Captain A. B. Dod, of the Fifteenth United States Infantry. It was immediately ordered to Cincinnati, where, on the 16th of February, it embarked under orders for Fort Leavenworth, Kansas; but on reaching Paducah, Kentucky, disembarked at that place, in obedience to an order from General W. T. Sherman.

Horses were drawn at this point, and on the 16th of April the battery embarked on a steamer with orders to report to General Grant, at Pittsburg Landing, Tennessee. While proceeding up the Tennessee, and near Whitehall Landing, the boat was fired into by guerrillas from the shore. The fire was returned with shell, under cover of which the men of the battery landed, drove the guerrillas from their cover, and captured some prisoners and horses. The town from whence the Rebel force marched was burned, and several thousand bushels of corn destroyed. In this expedition the battery lost one man wounded. It reported to General Grant on the 20th, and was assigned to the Fourth Division of the Army of the Tennessee, Brigadier-General S. A. Hurlbut commanding, and went through the slow approach to and siege of Corinth. During this siege Burnap's Seventh Ohio Battery and the Fifth Ohio Cavalry were attached to the same division.

After the evacuation of Corinth the battery was ordered across the country to the Mississippi River, and arrived at Memphis on the 21st of July. On the 6th of September it marched with its division to Bolivar, Tennessee, reaching that place on the 13th of September, at which point the Rebels, regular and guerrilla, were very troublesome.

On the 20th of September the battery, in conjunction with other forces, started on an expedition for observation toward Grand Junction, the combined force being under the command of Brigadier-General Lanman. On the 21st a large force under the Rebel Generals Price and Van Dorn, was discovered making an effort to get in the rear of the National forces, by means of a parallel road. To defeat this design the National column was reversed; and a force started on the double-quick to the rear, to reach the junction of the roads in advance of the Rebel column. After some pretty heavy skirmishing for five or six miles the designs of the enemy were frustrated. In this running fight the battery performed effective service, taking positions at points favorable to artillery practice, doing the enemy considerable damage, and killing an aid to General Van Dorn. The battery lost one man (John Pope) mortally wounded and one taken prisoner.

On the 10th of October the Division Commander was changed, General Hurlbut retiring on account of promotion, and General Lanman succeeding. On the 5th of October, in company with the Fifth Ohio Cavalry and Burnap's Seventh Ohio Battery, it took part in the battle of Metamora. The Sixty-Eighth Ohio was also engaged, and acted as a support to the Fifteenth Battery. In this affair there was some very hard fighting, at close range, though the battery lost but two men wounded. It returned to Bolivar on the 7th of October, where they were kept in motion most of the time scouting and skirmishing with the enemy.

On the 15th of November the battery was ordered south toward La Grange, and on the 28th started with the army under General Grant for Jackson and Vicksburg, Mississippi. This movement being defeated by the capture and destruction by the enemy of all the National stores at Holly Springs, this force was ordered back, after having advanced as far as Tocubee Creek. Calersville, on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, was reached on the 18th of January, where the houses of the town were appropriated for barraeks. The battery remained at Calersville until the 9th of March, when it again marched for Memphis. While at Bolivar the men of the battery built a fort near the depot, which the year following was probably the means of saving General Sherman and his escort, they having retired to this fort when entirely surrounded by a heavy force of Rebel cavalry.

The Fifteenth Battery participated in the engagement of the 19th of April on Coldwater Creek, Mississippi, and was present when the gallant Major Hayes, of the Fifth Cavalry, received his mortal wound. In this engagement, which lasted for five hours, the battery lost one man killed instantly (private George Gesner), one mortally wounded (private John Maddox), and two wounded slightly; also seven horses killed and wounded. It returned to Memphis on the 23d, and remained in that city until the 11th of May, when it embarked for Vicksburg.

The battery was on the front line during the siege of Vicksburg, having position on the Hall's Ferry Road, to the south-east of the city, and temporarily assigned to Ord's Thirteenth Army Corps. Its last position was within two hundred yards of the enemy's works, and enfilading several hundred yards of their line, from which they were compelled to retire. In this, as in all the engagements in which the battery figured, most excellent service was performed, eliciting on every occasion the commendations of the commanding officers. It lost a number of men disabled during the siege, but none were killed. It expended two thousand three hundred and one rounds of ammunition in the siege.

With the rest of the forces under Sherman, immediately after the surrender of Vicksburg, the Fifteenth Ohio Battery started on an expedition against General J. E. Johnston toward Jackson, Mississippi. Much hard skirmishing and some heavy fighting occurred. In the battle of the 12th of July, when the fortifications of Jackson were attacked, the battery was stationed on the extreme right of the National line, south of Jackson, and had two men wounded, and expended two hundred and twenty-three rounds of ammunition. Immediately after this it was assigned to the Seventeenth Army Corps, under General McPherson, and General Lanman was superseded in the command of the division by Brigadier-General M. M. Crocker.

The battery returned to Vicksburg, and on the 15th of August embarked for Natchez, Mississippi, from which point several expeditions were sent out, the principal one being to Harrisonburg, Louisiana. It occupied ten days and resulted in complete success.

The battery again embarked for Vicksburg (December 1st) and reaching there went into camp on Clear Creek, about eight miles in the rear of the city. On the 3d of February it started on an expedition, under General Sherman, against Meridian, Mississippi. It operated at Meridian, Enterprise, and Quitman, and destroyed all public property and railroads from Quitman to the Pearl River, as also everything that could be used by the enemy, excepting those articles that could be appropriated to the use and comfort of the National forces. The battery arrived at its old camp near Vicksburg on the 4th of March, having marched upward of three hundred and fifty miles without a day's rest.

While at the last-named camp thirty-six men (three-fourths of all that remained) re-enlisted for another term of three years' service. The veterans being entitled to thirty days' furlough, started for Ohio, under charge of Lieutenant Reeve.

On the 13th of April Captain Spear was assigned to duty as Chief of Artillery of the division, on the staff of General Crocker, and the command of the battery was turned over to First Lieutenant James Burdick.

On the 2d of May the battery embarked for Cairo, Illinois, to join the army of General Sherman, operating in Northern Georgia. After a few days' detention at Cairo, it was embarked on steamers for Clifton, on the Tennessee River. Thence it went by land to Huntsville and Decatur, Alabama, joining the main army under Sherman at Acworth, Georgia, on the 8th of June. The battery engaged in the siege and was in the battles at Kenesaw Mountain, and claims that its guns killed Bishop Polk, a Major-General in the Rebel army. As the killing of General Polk is a matter of dispute, an Illinois battery having claimed to have done it, the matter became a subject of correspondence. Major-General W. Q. Gresham, present and in command of the Fourth Division of McPherson's corps, is strongly impressed with the fact that the Fifteenth Ohio Battery was the one that forever silenced the distinguished Rebel, and backs his belief by a conversation he had with General McPherson.

The battery was in some severe skirmishes and engagements on the Nicojack and Chattahoochie Rivers. A pleasing little incident happened during the heat of the last-named affair. A bird flew upon the shoulder of private Seth Bowers, who was acting No. 1 at one of the guns, where it remained during the engagement. At every discharge of the piece the bird would thrust its head into the man's hair. After the recoil it would again take its position on the man's shoulder, and watch the operations of loading. After the battle the bird remained around the men's quarters for a few days, but finally disappeared.

The Fifteenth Ohio was at the capture of Augusta Railroad, near Decatur, Georgia, and participated in the bloody engagement of the 22d of July, on the National left, where the gallant and lamented McPherson gave his life for his country. It was the only battery engaged on the National side on the 28th of July, when the Rebel General Hood struck General Logan's corps, on the National right, with two corps of the Rebel army. It was also in Sherman's flank movement to the rear of Atlanta, and in the battles of Jonesborough and Lovejoy's Station. It returned with the army to Atlanta, and remained there until the movement of Hood to the rear of the National army, when, with its corps, it marched north in pursuit of the Rebel army, as far as Snake Creek Gap and Gaylesville, Alabama. At the last-named place the artillery was detached from the division, and formed into an artillery brigade, and in a few days went back to Atlanta by way of Rome, Georgia, where it arrived on the 11th of November.

On the 13th of November the battery joined Sherman's columns on their march to the sea, moving with the right wing, under command of General Howard.

The battery participated in the siege of Savannah, and lost Lieutenant C. W. Moore, whose leg was shot off by a cannon-ball, and private Jesse Day. It accompanied the army to Goldsborough, North Carolina, by way of Columbia, South Carolina, and was present at the surrender of General Johnston and the Rebel army to General Sherman. After participating in the grand Review at Washington, the battery went by rail to Columbus, Ohio, and on the 20th of June turned over its battle-stained flag to the State authorities, was paid off, and mustered out.

The battery marched, including steamboating, about five thousand miles, and was engaged in more than thirty battles and skirmishes. Until within the last two months of the war, it served in but one division.

16th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS
Captain	James A. Mitchell.....	Aug. 17, 1861	Dec. 12, 1861	Died May 27, 1863.
Do.	Russell P. Twist	May 27, 1863	June 23, 1863	Mustered out August 2, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Russell P. Twist.....	Aug. 17, 1861	Dec. 12, 1861	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Murdock	Aug. 20, 1861	Dec. 12, 1861	Mustered out August 15, 1863.
Do.	Edward H. Fuston.....	May 27, 1863	June 23, 1863	Mustered out August 2, 1865.
Do.	Isaac N. Mitchell.....	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Mustered out August 2, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Edward H. Fuston.....	Aug. 20, 1861	Dec. 12, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Isaac N. Mitchell.....	Aug. 20, 1861	Dec. 12, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Daniel Dawson.....	Nov. 18, 1863	March 23, 1864	Mustered out August 2, 1865.
Do.	Cornelius S. Chancellor.....	Jan. 7, 1864	July 28, 1864	Mustered out August 2, 1865.

SIXTEENTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THIS battery—the third light battery organized in Ohio—was recruited at Springfield, and went into Camp Clark, Clark County Fair Grounds, August 20, 1861. It was recruited for the regiment of light artillery then being raised by Colonel Sherwin. Sherwin failing to raise his regiment, and Adjutant-General Buckingham, of Ohio, being slow to accept the battery, Major-General Fremont notified his acceptance of it, by telegraph, for his Department of the South-West, and immediately ordered it to St. Louis. It moved forward, and arrived at Cincinnati September 5th, where it embarked. While on its way down to Lawrenceburg it was mustered into the United States service by Captain Lew Wilson. Arriving at St. Louis September 7th, the men went into camp in a brick house, opposite the barracks, where they were uniformed. Drilling continued till October 14th, when they were ordered to Jefferson City to work on the fortifications of that place and help to garrison the town. Owing to the battery not having gone into camp in its own State, and the mustering officer having failed to furnish the Adjutant-General of Ohio with a copy of the muster-roll, it did not receive its designation until some time in December; hence, instead of its being the Third, it was numbered the Sixteenth Ohio Volunteer Artillery.

The battery received its pieces and other equipments from Ohio, while at Jefferson City, consisting of four 3.80 bronzed rifle and two 3.67 bronzed smooth-bore guns. On February 14, 1862, the battery was ordered to St. Louis, where it arrived in time to fire a salute in honor of the fall of Fort Donelson. It remained at St. Louis, in Benton Barracks, until March 6th, when it was ordered to Pilot Knob, Missouri, there to form a part of General Steele's division for the invasion of Arkansas. On March 21st it marched to Doniphan, Missouri, where it arrived on the 31st, and participated in a skirmish—the Rebels retiring on the approach of General Steele. It arrived at Poehontas, Arkansas, April 11th, where it captured Rebel stores of considerable amount. It reached Jacksonport May 3d, where it remained until the 14th, when two divisions of the battery, under Captain Mitchell, together with Steele's division, went to Batesville to join General Curtis's army. One section of the battery remained in command of Lieutenant Twist, with the Ninth Illinois Cavalry, to guard that place; from which they were subsequently driven by the Rebel gunboat "Blue Wing." On this occasion the Colonel refused to allow the section of the battery to fire at the gunboat, lest any person should be hurt on the opposite shore, although he had been offered ten dollars per shot for the privilege; and although the citizens, women and children as well as men, were cheering the Rebel gunners all the while they were shelling the troops with nine-inch shell.

The section rejoined the battery, with Curtis's army, on the 1st of June, which took up its line of march on the 20th. Passing Jacksonport, now nearly in ashes, it arrived in Augusta, Tennessee, in time to celebrate the Fourth of July in that place, on which occasion, our lines being opened, many citizens came in and participated in the rejoicing. Leaving Augusta July 5th, the army entered upon one of the severest marches on record, through a hot and inhospitable country, dust half-knee deep, and destitute of water, wells being filled up to retard our progress. Long and severe marches were resorted to in order to hasten through, which resulted in strewing the road with dead and dying horses and mules. Arriving at Clarendon, on White River, July 8th, but not finding the expected fleet, the army marched to Helena, which it reached on the 15th. The battery remained at that place, and at Old Town Landing, during the fall and winter, suffering much from sickness. It participated in two expeditions up White River, which resulted in the capture of Des Arc and Duvall's Bluff, with some heavy pieces of artillery, many small arms, and eight hundred prisoners.

It was assigned, in the spring of 1863, to the Twelfth Division, Thirteenth Army Corps. Leaving Helena, Arkansas, April 8th, it joined Major-General Grant's expedition for the capture of Vicksburg, participating in the battles of Port Gibson, Fourteen-Mile Creek, and Champion Hills. At the last-named place, May 18th, the battery was brought into the thickest of the fight, and it suffered much. Here Captain Mitchell fell, and, but for the gallantry of the men, the battery would have fallen into the hands of the Rebels. Hardly stopping to take breath, the battery moved out to Black River Bridge, and thence to Vicksburg, taking position before that stronghold, under cover of darkness, on the night of the 20th. It moved within four hundred yards of the main line of the enemy's works, in order to cover a charge (which was gallantly made the next day), occupying, according to the statement of General Grant, "the most conspicuous position on the line, of which it made good use from day to day and from night to night." Although the Rebels tried hard to dislodge this battery, they could not; and were forced to admit that it disabled seven of their guns. The battery did not lose a single piece, but lost a few men in killed and wounded.

On the 5th of July it was ordered to march for Jackson, where the enemy was routed and the city captured. On returning to Vicksburg, July 22d, it was indulged with a quiet rest for a few weeks. In this campaign the battery expended over fifty tons of ammunition.

In August it slipped for New Orleans, and went into camp just above the city, under the famous live oaks. Then followed the gay reviews of Generals Banks and Grant; after which the battery remained until September 20th, when it was ordered to Berwick's Bay, where the men spent a few pleasant months, and where they re-enlisted in the service. The battery returned to New Orleans December 27th, and was the first organization in the Department of the Gulf mustered into the veteran service.

On January 1, 1864, it embarked on board the steamship Alabama for Texas. Passing close under the guns of the forts at Galveston in a fog, seven rounds were fired at the vessel from the fort of Brazos Santiago; but after four days' struggling with a storm and heavy seas, the vessel landed at Pass Cavallo, "only to find," says an officer of the battery, "an almost famishing army." He goes on to say: "Our twenty days' hard-tack was divided to the last box, and then came the hardest soldiering, on account of short rations, we had yet seen. * * * Landed on Matagorda Peninsula, sixty miles to the nearest timber, a fierce 'northerner' blowing, which continued two weeks, the most severe ever known there; so cold, indeed, that the ice was piled up on the beach, and wagon-loads of fish, that had chilled and drifted to the shore, were collected by the soldiers. Then followed the most delightful weather that had ever been seen by us Northern boys."

The battery remained in Texas, on Matagorda Peninsula, at Indianola, Powderhorn, and on Matagorda Island, until June, when it went to New Orleans. In the meantime the commanding officer in Texas refused to furlough the battery in a body, as orders required, on the ground that its services at the front could not be dispensed with. But he furloughed the men in two detachments, thus keeping the battery constantly in service; to do which he detailed from the infantry men sufficient to supply the place of those gone home.

At New Orleans the battery received an entire new outfit—new guns, new carriages, and new harness; and here it remained, the men "leading a gay soldier's life," until it started home, July 13, 1865. It was mustered out, August 2d, at Camp Chase.

17th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS
Captain	Ambrose A. Blount.....	July 12, 1862	Dec. 20, 1862	Resigned July 2, 1863.
Do.	Charles S. Rice.....	2, 1863	July 23, 1863	Mustered out August 16, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Charles A. Ege.....	Aug. 23, 1862	Dec. 20, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George A. Ege.....	July 12, "	" 20, "	Resigned August 11, 1863.
Do.	Wm. Hunt, jr.....	July 2, 1863	July 23, 1863	Mustered out August 16, 1865.
Do.	Absalom H. Mattox.....	Dec. 2, "	March 1, 1864	Mustered out August 16, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. C. Howard.....	Aug. 11, 1862	Dec. 20, 1862	Resigned April 2, 1863.
Do.	Jeremiah Yeazel.....	July 12, "	" 20, "	Resigned February 5, 1863.
Do.	Abner Tuttle.....	Feb. 5, 1863	Feb. 19, 1863	Died April 15, 1863.
Do.	Absalom H. Mattox.....	April 2, "	April 22, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Hunt, jr.....	15, "	" 27, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frank H. Houghton.....	Aug. 7, "	Aug. 20, "	Mustered out August 16, 1865.
Do.	Samuel R. Strayer.....	Dec. 21, "	March 1, 1864	Mustered out August 16, 1865.

SEVENTEENTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE SEVENTEENTH OHIO BATTERY was organized under special authority from the President, dated July 12, 1862. It was recruited and organized at Dayton, by Captain A. A. Blount, and mustered into the service at that place on the 21st of August, 1862.

The battery was equipped at Cincinnati. It entered the field on the 3d day of September, taking a position in the rear of Covington, Kentucky, near Fort Wallace, to assist in repelling an expected attack from the Rebels under General Kirby Smith. In company with the forces of Generals A. J. Smith, Gilmore, and Burbridge, the battery marched to Lexington and Louisville, and was sent to Memphis to join General Sherman's expedition. This was about the 1st of December. On the 25th of December it, along with the forces of General Burbridge, aided in the destruction of the O. and S. Railroad, and was present at the five days' fight at Chickasaw Bayou.

It marched with General McClelland's forces and participated in the capture of Arkansas Post, and, thereafter, encamped, with the troops of the expedition, at Young's Point. At this place the members of the battery suffered sadly, losing in a few weeks from disease, poor rations and surgical attention, more men than during all the rest of its three year's service.

In March the battery went into camp at Millikin's Bend, and on the 15th of April moved with the Thirteenth Army Corps on the campaign against Vicksburg, and was engaged in the battles of Port Gibson, Champion Hills, Black River Bridge, and for forty-seven days in the siege of Vicksburg.

In the demonstration against Jackson, immediately after the fall of Vicksburg, the battery was again actively engaged, and performed valuable service in the reduction and capture of that place. Subsequently, it was ordered to accompany the Thirteenth Army Corps to New Orleans, where it arrived about the middle of August. It followed General Burbridge on the Teche expedition in the fall of 1863, and was hotly engaged in the fight at Grand Coteau, Louisiana, November 3d, in which more than half the brigade was killed, wounded and captured. The battery alone lost twenty-five men, twenty-one horses, one gun, and one caisson.

Immediately after the disaster the battery returned to New Orleans, and was stationed there until August, 1864. It then went under General Granger to Mobile Bay, and took a prominent part in the capture of Fort Morgan. That valuable service accomplished, the battery once more embarked for New Orleans, where it remained until ordered to join the Sixteenth Army Corps, General A. J. Smith, in March, 1865, in the expedition against the city of Mobile. It was engaged against Blakesly in the following April, and thereafter marched, under orders, to Montgomery, Alabama, where it lay until ordered to Ohio for muster-out, on the 16th of August, 1865, five days before the expiration of its service by limitation.

While in the service the Seventeenth Battery participated in ten battles and sieges, fired fourteen thousand rounds of ammunition, lost upward of forty men by death, and marched more than ten thousand miles (by land and water). The battery entered the service with one hundred and fifty-six men, and at its muster-out its rolls showed one hundred and fifty-eight. During its term of service there was, from time to time, two hundred and eighty-four names added to its rolls.

In company with the Eighty-Third and Ninety-Sixth Ohio, it received the thanks (by joint resolution) of the Ohio Legislature for services at Arkansas Post, and was honorably mentioned in the official reports of Generals A. J. Smith, McClelland, Burbridge, Washburn, and Colonel Owen:—by the last named, for special and valuable service at Grand Coteau.

13th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain.....	Charles C. Aleshire	July 15, 1862	Oct. 1, 1862	Promoted Brevet Major U. S. A.
1st Lieutenant	Wm. R. Morgan	" 15, " "	" 1, " "	Resigned March 3, 1863.
Do.	Henry A. Regan	" 15, " "	" 1, " "	Resigned April 16, 1863.
Do.	Joseph McCafferty	March 3, 1862	April 22, 1862	Mustered out June 29, 1863.
Do.	Albert S. Bierce	April 16, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out June 29, 1863.
2d Lieutenant	Joseph McCafferty	July 15, 1862	Oct. 1, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benj. W. Rutherford	" 15, " "	" 1, " "	Resigned March 3, 1863.
Do.	Albert S. Bierce	March 3, " "	April 22, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Casey Roseburg	" 3, " "	" 29, " "	Resigned Sept. 18, 1864.
Do.	James W. Chesnut	April 16, " "	" 29, " "	Mustered out June 29, 1863.
Do.	James C. Patterson	Oct. 12, 1861	Oct. 12, 1861	Mustered out June 29, 1863.

EIGHTEENTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

IN the spring of 1862 the President called for three hundred thousand volunteers, and before that number had been raised, another call was made for three hundred thousand more. Under this call the Eighteenth Battery was raised. The men were principally from Gallia and Pike Counties. Recruiting commenced July 18, 1862, and, although these counties had sent many men into the infantry service, yet, on the 13th of August, about one-half the requisite number was sent to Camp Portsmouth. On the 22d of August the remainder necessary to constitute a six-gun battery were enlisted and in camp.

The men were immediately put on foot-drill, and passed the time in this way until the 2d of September. On the 13th of September the battery was mustered into the service, receiving one month's pay in advance. From the above date it was kept drilling until the 9th of October, when marching orders were received, and the command proceeded by railroad to Cincinnati. The following morning it crossed the Ohio River and went into camp near Covington. On the 12th of October it commenced receiving its equipment. The guns were the three-inch Rodmans, rifled. On the 22d of October the battery was reported complete, and on the morning of the 23d was on the road to Lexington, Kentucky. It marched on the Covington and Lexington Pike, and, when within three miles of Lexington, halted and went into camp. The distance was ninety miles, and was made in six days. From October 28th drilling on foot, manual of the piece and with the battery hooked up, was maintained regularly until November 1st, when it moved out south-east of the city and went into camp on the Ashland farm, the home-stand of Henry Clay. It remained in Camp Clay until the 30th of November, when it was ordered to Camp Ella Bishop, west of Lexington, Kentucky. After arranging camp the drill was resumed. Early on the morning of the 26th the battery was on the road, bound for Louisville, Kentucky, and reached that place on the 30th, making the distance of eighty-eight miles in five days. At Louisville it turned over some unserviceable horses, drew fresh ones, and embarked on board the steamer Bostona No. 2, in company with some forty-five transports, and eleven gunboats as convoy, for Nashville, Tennessee, by way of the Ohio and Cumberland Rivers. It arrived at Nashville on the 7th of February, disembarked, and went into camp three miles south of the city, near the Franklin Turnpike, where it remained until the 21st. The battery was now assigned to Colonel Coburn's brigade, First Division, of the Fourteenth Army Corps. On the morning of the 21st of February it proceeded to Brentwood, a station on the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad, thirteen miles south of Nashville. Here it was kept drilling as long as it remained. Owing to the disagreeableness of the winter and change in manner of living, the battery was, by sickness, deaths, and discharges, much reduced; and, to make the number required for a six-gun battery complete, a detail had to be made. Accordingly, on the 27th of February, thirty-nine men were detailed from Colonel Coburn's brigade. On the 2d of March the battery moved to Franklin, Tennessee; thence on the 4th at daylight, on the road leading to Spring Hill and Columbia. When out about three miles the Rebels were found drawn up in heavy force, of cavalry, mounted infantry, and one battery of artillery. The Eighteenth Battery was immediately placed in position, and opened fire. After a spirited engagement the enemy fell back toward Spring Hill. This was the first engagement in which the battery participated. The command moved up one mile and encamped on the ground which the Rebels had occupied.

It moved out early on the morning of the 5th, and had proceeded but a short distance when skirmishing commenced, and was kept up for two miles. It moved cautiously along the road toward Thompson's Station, on the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad. When within about eight hundred yards of the station the enemy opened with one of its batteries, which swept the road on which the National line was advancing. Three pieces of the Eighteenth Battery were placed on the left of the turnpike and two on the right. The pieces on the right were supported by the Thirty-Third and Eighty-Fifth Indiana Infantry, and those on the left by the Nineteenth Michigan and Twenty-Second Wisconsin. Soon after the engagement commenced the enemy opened with two batteries on the right and one on the left of their center, thus making a cross fire of three batteries on the Eighteenth. The artillery firing was spirited. A charge was ordered, but the enemy arose in heavy force from behind a stone wall, and the National line was forced to retire. The Eighteenth kept up a continuous fire on the enemy while the National line was retreating. The battery was finally ordered back to Franklin, where it went into camp.

After the action at Thompson's Station the enemy attacked the National pickets daily. On the 10th of April they made an attack on Franklin. In this battle the battery took a position on the right of Fort Granger, on a high bluff on the north side of the Harpeth River. It opened a brisk fire on the enemy's line, and kept it from getting its batteries in position. There being but two twenty-four-pound siege-pieces in the fort, the right section of the Eighteenth was ordered into the fort, that it might get a better sweep of the field. The lines were soon broken, and the enemy retired with considerable loss, while the National loss was small.

The battery was kept drilling from this time until the 2d of June, when it was attached to the First Brigade, of the First Division. On the 2d of June it moved to Triune, Tennessee, where the Fourteenth Corps was concentrating, preparatory to a general move on the Rebel forces at Tullahoma and Shelbyville. The Rebels were prowling around the front, occasionally driving in the pickets. On the 11th of June they attacked the National line in force. Heavy firing was going on in front, and the battery received an order to "double-quick" to the scene of action. It was placed in position by section. As the right section was coming to an "action front" the Rebels opened on it with a battery of ten-pound rifled guns. Not being able to hold their position, they hauled off to the rear.

About this time the Fourteenth Corps was organized as the reserve of the Army of the Cumberland. This corps, to which the battery was attached, held the extreme right wing of the army. Early on the morning of the 27th the whole corps moved in the direction of Shelbyville. When about five miles from that place the outposts of the enemy were encountered. The Rebels were forced back until they reached Guy's Gap, where the main army was stationed. A running fight ensued, in which the battery was engaged. It kept pace with the cavalry until within a short distance of Shelbyville. The Rebels were driven into the town. A few rounds from the battery were fired, when the cavalry charged and captured the place, with all its stores, five hundred prisoners, four pieces of artillery, horses, and equipments. On the next day the battery, with the command, moved back to the camp from which it had started on the 27th. On the 1st of July it moved to Shelbyville and went into camp. On the 3d of July the battery was ordered to Wartrace, a depot on the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, eight miles from Shelbyville. After arranging the camp at Wartrace and giving the men a little time to recuperate, the battery was again put on drill, and so continued drilling during its stay at that place.

On the 12th of August it was ordered to march. It reached Elk River at Estell Springs on the following day, and remained here until the 21st of August, when two sections were ordered back to Tullahoma, leaving one section at the river. On the 7th of September it was ordered to march toward Chattanooga. On the 12th a dispatch was received that the National army was about to engage in a general battle. The Eighteenth Battery was ordered to turn over its knapsacks and camp equipage. The next morning it was on a forced march for the extreme front. Two days later it crossed Lookout Mountain, leaving Chattanooga two miles to the north, and arrived at Rossville, where it awaited orders. Here the battery received fresh horses.

On the morning of the 18th orders were received for the First Brigade, with the Eighteenth Battery, to advance on the Ringgold Road as far as the Chickamauga Creek and hold the bridge, if it could be done without bringing on a general engagement. When out about four miles, near the Little Chickamauga Creek, the enemy was met in considerable force, and immediately skirmishing commenced. The right section of the battery was put in position and opened on the enemy. The enemy was forced back on their main line. On the 19th the enemy advanced from the woods, and both pieces were brought into position. The enemy being in superior numbers, forced these pieces back to a position in front of the other two sections. All opened on the enemy, and the Rebels were repulsed. It being night, the battery moved one-half mile to the rear, in an open field, near McAfee's Church, where it slept in line of battle.

In the ensuing battle of Chickamauga the battery did good service. At one time it was cut off from the command. When the order was given to retreat it was with General Hazen's command, which covered the rear. The whole army fell back to Rossville, and about midnight settled down to rest.

On the 21st of September the battery was put in position at the Rossville Road Gap, in Mission Ridge. Here the enemy made a furious charge, but was defeated. On the morning of the following day the battery was ordered to the north side of the Tennessee River, to take a position on Stringer's Ridge, in sight of and overlooking Chattanooga. It lay on this ridge until the 24th, when one section of the battery was sent two miles down the river to guard Brown's Ferry. The other two sections were sent to the extreme south end of the ridge, and took a position so as to watch a crossing at the foot of Lookout Mountain, and also to annoy the Rebels on the Mountain.

On the 28th of September the right section of the battery moved up and joined the battery on Moccasin Point. Soon after, the enemy planted batteries on the side of the mountain and on the summit overlooking the valley. On the 5th of October they opened on the Eighteenth with all their batteries, and a heavy artillery fight was kept up all day. At this time subsistence became scarce. Half-rations were issued for a short time, then quarter-rations, and finally nothing except ears of corn, which had been obtained by foraging the country for thirty miles around. The men of the battery, having to be at their posts day and night, had no opportunities to forage, and, consequently, underwent terrible hardships. While at this place the battery did some fine artillery shooting. On the 9th of October the enemy placed a signal-flag on the top of the mountain. The perpendicular height of the mountain above the battery was eighteen hundred feet. The artillerists feared that the guns would be dismounted, or would burst, as they necessarily had so great an elevation in order to reach the flag. The first shell fell a few yards short, but the second fell exactly at the feet of the signal-officer, and the flag was seen to fall. The battery was under fire and engaged with the Rebel batteries for fifty-six days. Frequently during the night-time the Rebels would open on it, and the men would have to rouse from their slumbers to be ready for any emergency. On the 27th of October orders came to be ready to protect the fleet of pontoon-barges which that night were to float down the river. All went so quietly that the battery was not needed. On the morning of November 24th, when General Hooker stormed Lookout Mountain, the Eighteenth received orders to stand at arms, and, when signaled, to open on the enemy. The whole battery opened on the column of the enemy with great accuracy, having, by prolonged practice, obtained the exact range to any point on the face of the mountain.

After this battle the battery went into camp at Chattanooga, where it remained until the 1st of December, when it was ordered to turn over its guns, horses, and camp equipage, and proceed by railroad to Nashville, Tennessee. Here it went into winter-quarters, and spent most of the time in drilling.

On the 7th of March, 1864, fifteen recruits were received. The spring and summer were spent in this camp, which was called "Camp Brough." On the 6th of October it was ordered to march to Chattanooga, Tennessee, which place it reached on the 21st. Here it camped and remained until the 17th of November, when it was ordered to move near Fort Wood and go into camp on the line established for a regular reserve artillery. On the 27th of November orders were received to move in the direction of Nashville, Tennessee. Part of the way was made on boats and part by railway. While on the railroad, and within nine miles of Murfreesboro', two cars became wrecked, wounding two men and killing nine horses. While removing the wreck the Rebel line swung round and attacked a colored regiment, which was on a train in the rear. The regiment fought bravely, but was overpowered. The battery succeeded in removing the wreck, and proceeded into the National lines.

On the 15th day of December occurred the battle of Nashville, in which the battery, having got into a position for an enfilading fire, did great execution with shell and solid shot. It joined in the pursuit, and experienced the most severe trials that soldiers endure. The command to which it was attached, on account of misfortunes, did not reach its objective point, and was ordered back to camp at Chattanooga, two hundred miles distant. The battery was not landed at Chattanooga until January 8, 1865, the campaign having lasted forty days. Here it constructed houses and stables for winter-quarters. It remained in camp during the winter and drilled occasionally. In the spring a regular system of drill was kept up until the 1st of May, when the battery was ordered to Resaca, which place it reached on the 3d. It remained at Resaca, with nothing but camp duty to perform (excepting one march and counter-march), until the 20th of June, when the order was received to report to the proper authorities for muster out. The battery was paid off and finally discharged at Camp Dennison on the 29th of June, 1865.

19th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM.	ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Joseph C. Shields	July 28, 1862	April 29, 1863		Resigned September 15, 1864.
Do.	Frank Wilson	Nov. 3, 1864	Nov. 3, 1864		Mustered out June 27, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Frank Wilson	July 28, 1862	April 29, 1863		Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. Dustin	28, "	29, "		Mustered out June 27, 1865.
Do.	Charles B. Harris	Nov. 3, 1864	Nov. 3, 1864		Mustered out June 27, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Charles B. Harris	July 28, 1862	April 29, 1863		Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Robertson Smith	28, "	29, "		Resigned February 3, 1865.
Do.	John N. Estabrook	May 23, 1864	May 23, 1864		Mustered out June 27, 1865.
Do.	James W. Grimshaw	Jan. 23, 1863	Jan. 26, 1865		Mustered out June 27, 1865.

NINETEENTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THIS battery was recruited in the vicinity of Cleveland, and left Camp Taylor, near that place, on October 6, 1862, en route for Covington, Kentucky. Here it remained until July, 1863, during which time not a shot was fired, except in the way of practice. In the latter part of July the battery joined in the chase after Morgan's Rebel cavalry through Indiana and Ohio, after which it was ordered back to Kentucky and placed in the reserve artillery of General Burnside's army. With that force it crossed the Cumberland Mountains into East Tennessee, and in September, 1863, moved forward from Knoxville with the forces that advanced on Cumberland Gap, and to whom General Frazier, the Rebel commander of that stronghold, surrendered without firing a shot. It then returned to Knoxville, and remained there up to the time of and during the siege. During the siege it occupied positions on the extreme right of the line, but was not, to any extent, engaged. The right section was stationed in Fort Sanders during the entire siege, and did good execution, without the loss of a man.

The battery participated in the East Tennessee campaign of 1863-4, and shared all its hardships. In the spring of 1864 it was attached to the Second Division of the Twenty-Third Army Corps (General Judah commanding), and moved with that corps from Knoxville on April 28th. The corps was joined at Calhoun, Tennessee, by the Third Division. Reaching Red Clay, Georgia, it joined the Army of the Tennessee, and on May 9th was hotly engaged in the battle of Rocky Face Ridge.

On May 23d the battery was again engaged at very short range, using canister freely. From this on to the close of the Atlanta campaign, from Rocky Face Ridge to Lovejoy's Station, it was engaged in all the fierce battles of that march. On September 8th, with the whole army, it fell back to Atlanta and vicinity. The battery was stationed at Decatur, and while there reorganized and re-equipped for the next campaign.

The movements of the enemy did not allow much time for recruiting either horses or men. October 3d found the battery again inside the fortifications of Atlanta, where it remained until November 1st, when orders were received to proceed to Nashville by rail. At Nashville it drew a complete new outfit, and on November 16th was ready to take a part in the reception of General Hood and his forces.

On December 15th the battery moved out of Nashville with General Thomas's army and took part in the brilliant fights of the 15th and 16th, the results of which were the utter defeat of the Rebel army and its precipitate retirement from before Nashville.

The battery followed the flying Rebels to a point on the Tennessee River, where, under orders, it was placed on transports and taken to Cincinnati, and thence by rail and transports to Fort Fisher, North Carolina. It arrived at Fort Fisher on the 22d of February, 1865, and, without landing, was taken on up the river to Wilmington.

On March 6th the battery joined in the North Carolina campaign. In this there was much hard marching and little fighting. A few skirmishes with the enemy at important points along the route was about all that transpired. On March 21st it entered Goldsboro', and on the 24th, near Goldsboro', made a junction with General Sherman's army. It lay at this place until April 9th, and then moved to Raleigh.

While at Raleigh, news of Lee's surrender and Johnston's capitulation was received. The battery, however, was selected to do garrison-duty at Salisbury, North Carolina, and remained at that place up to June 15th, when it was ordered to proceed to Greensboro', turn over its ordnance stores, and take transportation for Cleveland, via Danville, City Point, and Washington City. It arrived at Cleveland on the 23d of June, and was paid and mustered out of the service on the 29th of June, 1865, after three years of faithful and arduous service.

The East Tennessee campaign of 1863-4 was probably the most trying of any that the battery passed through during the whole of its service. The winter was unusually severe, and the ground almost continually covered with snow and ice. So severe, indeed, was the cold that the men were almost constantly employed in cutting and hauling fuel to ward off death by freezing. Provisions were very scarce. The country had already been closely foraged by both armies, and it was an utter impossibility for the Government authorities to send supplies into that bleak and almost inaccessible country. And yet the casualties of the battery were slight; the men seemed to be as thoroughly inured to the hardships of their position as if they had always lived in that part of the country.

In addition to the privations of cold and lack of rations, the men were compelled to improvise habitations, as their tents had all been left in the rear. Under these circumstances the advent of spring was gladly hailed as the harbinger of better times and more comfortable campaigns. Spring opened, and with it came the Atlanta campaign, one of the busiest and most arduous of the war.

20th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Louis Smithwright	Aug. 2, 1862	Nov. 1, 1862	Resigned April 25, 1863. (September 17, 1864.
Do.	John T. E. Grosskopff	April 25, 1863	May 6, 1863	Appointed Major ordered Heavy Artillery Sep-
Do.	Wm. Backus	Dec. 5, 1864	Dec. 5, 1864	Mustered out July 13, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Henry Roth	Oct. 1, 1862	Nov. 1, 1862	Discharged.
Do.	Francis O. Robbins	Aug. 26, " "	6, " "	Resigned April 21, 1863.
Do.	Oscar W. Hancock	May 22, 1863	June 11, 1863	Dismissed October 22, 1863.
Do.	Charles F. Nitchelm	Nov. 25, " "	Dec. 2, " "	Deceased August 15, 1864.
Do.	Wm. Backus	25, " "	2, " "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John Burdick	Aug. 29, 1864	Aug. 29, 1864	Killed November 30, 1864.
Do.	Harlan P. Josselyn	Dec. 5, " "	5, " "	Mustered out July 13, 1865.
Do.	Henry Horn	30, " "	30, " "	Mustered out July 13, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Henry Roth	Aug. 24, " "	Nov. 1, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Matthias Adams	24, " "	1, " "	Resigned May 22, 1865.
Do.	Oscar W. Hancock	Oct. 1, " "	1, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Frederick Nitchelm	May 22, 1863	June 11, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. Backus	22, " "	11, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Burdick	Nov. 25, " "	Dec. 2, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Harlan P. Josselyn	25, " "	2, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Co.	Henry Horn	Dec. 5, 1864	5, 1864	Mustered out July 13, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Nieracher	5, " "	5, " "	Mustered out July 13, 1865.

TWENTIETH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE TWENTIETH BATTERY was organized at Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, in August, 1862, numbering one hundred and fifty-six officers and men, and was mustered into the United States service on the 29th day of October. Under orders from head-quarters the battery left Camp Taylor on the 31st of December, 1862, to join the Cumberland Army, then at Murfreesboro', Tennessee, under command of General Rosecrans, and arrived at that place on the 8th of February. It was immediately assigned to the Second Division of the Twentieth Army Corps. The long inaction of the Cumberland Army while in cantonments at Murfreesboro' enabled the officers of the battery to perfect their men in the drill and discipline of the service.

In April Captain L. Smithwright was discharged, by reason of disabilities received in the service, and John T. E. Grosskopff, of Dayton, was appointed in his stead. This appointment made, as it was, outside of the battery, created considerable disappointment and ill-feeling among the old officers, and led eventually to the resignation of Lieutenants Robbins and Adams, and the dismissal, by court-martial, of First-Lieutenant H. Roth and Second-Lieutenant O. W. Hancock.

In June, 1863, the movement of the Cumberland Army on Tullahoma commenced. The battery participated in the affair at Liberty Gap (its first engagement), and lost one man killed and two slightly wounded. Its next engagement was in the battle of Chickamauga, in which it performed good service, and lost three men wounded and two taken prisoners.

On the 20th of October, 1863, Captain Grosskopff was relieved, and Chas. F. Nitchelm put in command of the battery. The National army falling back on Chattanooga the battery was stationed at that place, and went into camp, but, on the inauguration of the Atlanta campaign, it moved with General Sherman's forces, and was in active service during the whole of that eventful and arduous march. Its principal duty was in repelling the attacks of the Rebel cavalry under Generals Forrest and Wheeler, in their repeated attempts on the different flanks of Sherman's army. The battery was frequently called out by General James B. Steedman, commanding the District of the Etowah, to preserve communication between the main army and Chattanooga. On the 13th of August the Rebel General Wheeler was reported near Dalton, Georgia, with six thousand cavalry. General Steedman, with one division of infantry and the Twentieth Battery, under command of First-Lieutenant William Backus, left for Dalton. On arrival at that place the town was found to be in possession of the Rebels. On the morning of the 15th an attack was ordered, which, after seven hours of hard fighting, resulted in the defeat of the Rebels, and their expulsion from the place.

Leaving one section of the battery at Dalton, the remainder returned to Chattanooga. The month of August was signalized by several scouts, but nothing of moment transpired.

The first disaster to the battery occurred early in September. The Rebel General Hood, in making his dash to the rear of Sherman's army, after the capture of Atlanta, appeared before Dalton in heavy force, and demanded its surrender. Colonel Miller, of the Forty-Second United States Colored Infantry, in command, became impressed with the idea that he could not hold the place, complied with the demand, gave up the town and the command with which he had been intrusted, including the section of the Twentieth Ohio Battery left there in August.

On the 4th of September the battery, under command of Lieutenant William Backus, was ordered to march with the expedition under General Schofield to join the main army under General Sherman, near the Blue Mountains, in Georgia. It arrived at Alpine, Georgia, without opposition, on the 20th of September.

A few days thereafter the separation of the Army of the Mississippi and the Army of the Cumberland took place, General Sherman marching with the former toward Savannah, and the south, and General Thomas with the latter in the direction of Nashville. The Twentieth Ohio Battery moved with the Cumberland Army, and was assigned to the Second Brigade, Second Division, Fourth Army Corps, Brigadier-General Bruce commanding, and with this command marched across the Lookout and Sand Mountains to Pulaski, Tennessee, where it joined the main army.

The battery took part in the battle of Franklin, and lost fourteen men killed and wounded. Among the wounded was Lieutenant T. S. Burdick, who died in the hands of the enemy, a few days after the battle. The battery was engaged in the battle of Nashville without casualty. Soon after the Rebels were driven from Nashville it was ordered to Chattanooga, arriving there on the 6th of February, 1865. It remained at Chattanooga until the 2d of July, at which time orders were received from General Thomas to proceed to Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, for muster-out. On the 7th the Twentieth Battery arrived at Camp Taylor. On the 19th it was mustered out, and the members were sent to their respective homes. On that day there were present one hundred and sixteen rank and file, only seventy-one of whom were original members of the battery.

All the promotions in this battery (with the exception of one) were made from the ranks, based on actual and practical fitness for the positions they were called to fill.

21st OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	James W. Patterson.....	Nov. 13, 1862	July 27, 1863	Resigned May 9, 1864.
Do.	James N. Walley.....	May 25, 1864	May 25, 1864	Mustered out July 21, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	James N. Walley	Jan. 7, 1863	July 27, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Harrison L. Holloway.....	Nov. 19, 1862	" 27, 1863	Resigned December 23, 1863.
Do.	Wm. H. H. Smith.....	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Mustered out July 22, 1865.
Do.	John M. Raymond.....	May 25, " "	May 25, " "	Died November 18, 1863.
2d Lieutenant	Wm. H. H. Smith.....	Nov. 9, 1862	July 27, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John M. Raymond.....	Jan. 7, 1863	" 27, " "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. D. Mann	Feb. 18, 1864	Feb. 18, 1864	Mustered out July 21, 1865.

TWENTY-FIRST OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE TWENTY-FIRST BATTERY was mustered into the United States service April 29, 1863. On May 8th four of its guns, under command of Captain J. W. Patterson, were sent to West Virginia, and after an arduous campaign in that quarter, was ordered back to Camp Dennison.

On May 20th the battery was placed on board the gunboat Exchange, at Cincinnati, as guard to Vallandigham, who had been banished by President Lincoln to the Rebel States. It went as far as Louisville, Kentucky, and was then brought back to Camp Dennison.

When John Morgan crossed the Ohio River it was taken to Madison, Indiana, and four of its guns placed on board of steamers, to act as patrol along the river. In this way Morgan was followed until he was captured, the boats keeping well up with the cavalry all through the pursuit.

On September 22d the battery started for Camp Nelson, Kentucky, and from thence, October 1st, went to Greenville, Tennessee. From that time up to January 16, 1864, it was kept on the move through the roughest and most broken part of Tennessee. It took a prominent part in the fight at Walker's Ford, Tennessee, December 2, 1863, doing considerable execution in the ranks of the enemy.

The battery continued on duty in Tennessee and Alabama, guarding important fords and railroad lines, until the end of the war. On July 21, 1865, it was sent home to Cleveland, and at Camp Taylor, near that city, was finally paid and mustered out of the service.

22d OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Henry M. Niel	April 28, 1863	April 28, 1863	Resigned February 13, 1864.
Do.	Amos B. Alger.....	Feb. 19, 1864	Feb. 19, 1864	Mustered out July 13, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Amos B. Alger.....	July 14, 1863	July 14, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Taylor.....	Murdered February 14, 1864
Do.	Peter Cornell.....	Feb. 19, 1864	Feb. 19, 1864	Killed June 21, 1864.
Do.	Harvey Burdell.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out July 13, 1865.
Do.	Silas H. Fowler.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Mustered out July 13, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Peter Cornell.....	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Harvey Burdell.....	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Silas H. Fowler.....	Feb. 19, 1864	Feb. 19, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Jacob M. Sharpe.....	" 19, "	" 19, "	Mustered out July 13, 1865.
Do.	Wm. Weste.....	Aug. 3, "	Aug. 3, "	Mustered out July 13, 1865.

TWENTY-SECOND OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

PERMISSION was received from the Secretary of War by Governor Tod, on November 6, 1862, to raise the Twenty-Second Ohio Battery. The Governor issued commissions to H. M. Niel, George W. Taylor, and A. B. Alger, and by the 1st of April, 1863 enough men had been secured to man two of its guns. This was slow work, but this section of a battery was put to good use by being placed on duty at Wheeling, Virginia, and in Holmes County, Ohio, where a number of Rebel-sympathizing citizens had banded together to resist the draft.

This section of the intended battery was brought back to Camp Chase on June 19th, a number of new recruits added, and two more guns drawn. Thus re-enforced, the almost completed battery was ordered by General J. D. Cox, commanding the District of Ohio, to Parkersburg, West Virginia, to assist in checking a raid upon that place by the Rebel guerrilla Jackson. Lieutenant A. B. Alger was in command.

From Wheeling it moved to Hancock, Maryland, in support of General Kelley; and then returned to Parkersburg, sending out the men by detachments in pursuit of the Rebel General Morgan, then on his raid through the South-Eastern portion of Ohio. Near Georgetown, Ohio, one of the detachments had a skirmish with Morgan's men, and followed up the pursuit until the Rebels were captured, in the latter part of July, near Salineville, Columbiana County, Ohio.

The battery then returned to Camp Chase, where it was fully organized and supplied with six wrought-iron rifled guns, of the 3-inch "Rodman" pattern, and re-mustered into the United States service, with the full complement of men.

On the 12th of August, 1863, under orders from General Burnside, the battery (under command of Captain H. M. Niel) marched to Camp Nelson, Kentucky, where it was attached to Colonel DeCourcy's brigade, of the Ninth Corps, Army of the Ohio, and with it, on September 1, 1863, commenced the march toward Cumberland Gap. It arrived in front of the Gap on September 7th, and thereafter took an active part in the operations which compelled its surrender.

On January 3, 1864, one gun, under command of Lieutenant A. B. Alger, in company with a force of three hundred and fifty cavalry, while on a reconnoissance on the right flank of Longstreet's Rebel army, was surrounded by a force reported to be four thousand five hundred strong under General Jones, and after twelve hours' fighting was compelled to surrender for want of ammunition.

On February 14, 1864, Lieutenant George W. Taylor was murdered by a Rebel citizen, near Barboursville, Kentucky, and on June 21, 1864, Peter Cornell was killed by Rebel guerrillas at a point within eight miles of Cumberland Gap.

On June 27th the battery, commanded by Lieutenant S. H. Fowler, was ordered to Knoxville, Tennessee, where it remained as part of the garrison. On July 5, 1865, it was ordered from Knoxville, to Camp Chase, where, on the 13th, it was paid off and mustered out. It had been frequently complimented in general and special orders for gallant and efficient service in times of great emergency.

TWENTY-THIRD OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

No rolls or roster of the Twenty-Third Battery are on file in Adjutant-General's office. It was detached from the Second Kentucky Infantry in 1861, and therefore does not properly belong to Ohio.

24th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	John L. Hill.....	Aug. 4, 1863	Aug. 8, 1863	[No muster-out rolls of this battery.]
1st Lieutenant	John L. Hill.....	July 1, "	" 8, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	James W. Gamble.....	" 1, "	" 8, "	Resigned November 14, 1864.
Do.	James J. Brown.....	" 2, "	" 8, "
Do.	Frederick W. Poor.....	Nov. 29, 1864	Nov. 29, 1864
2d Lieutenant	Frederick W. Poor.....	Aug. 3, 1863	Aug. 8, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. March.....	" 4, "	" 8, "
Do.	Samuel Lyle, jr.....	Nov. 29, 1864	Nov. 29, 1864

TWENTY-FOURTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE TWENTY-FOURTH BATTERY was organized and mustered into the United States service on the 4th of August, 1864, at Camp Dennison, by Captain J. L. Proctor, United States Army. It left that camp September 22d, by order of General Cox, and on the next day reported to Lieutenant-Colonel Eastman, at Cincinnati.

On November 10, 1863, by order of General Cox, the battery was taken by rail to Johnson's Island, in Sandusky Bay. It reached the island on the 11th, in the midst of an excitement as to a contemplated attempt on the part of the Rebel prisoners confined there to effect their escape.

Two guns of the battery were stationed on the island and the remaining four at Cedar Point, commanding the entrance to Sandusky Bay.

The danger having passed, the battery was ordered to select a camp on the main land, with instructions to drill the men for active service. In obedience to this order a position was selected near the city of Sandusky, and named Camp Hill, in honor of the commander of the battery, Captain J. L. Hill. This camp was beautifully situated, and became one of the finest of its kind in the State.

On June 9, 1864, orders were received to take the battery by rail to Kentucky to aid in looking after John Morgan's cavalry; but, on reaching Xenia, Ohio, counter orders were met, and the battery returned to Camp Hill.

On August 6th it was taken to Camp Chase, some trouble being anticipated there with Rebel sympathizers. It remained at Camp Chase until August 27th, when, its presence being unnecessary, it was ordered to report at Camp Douglas, near Chicago, Illinois. At this time much excitement prevailed in that excitable city in regard to a rumored attempt to release the Rebel prisoners confined there.

The Democratic National Convention was then in session at Chicago, and had just nominated General George B. McClellan as its candidate for President. The presence of the Twenty-Fourth Ohio Battery, or most probably a knowledge that their schemes were discovered, deterred the conspirators from attempting to carry out their purpose. A large quantity of ammunition and three cart-loads of guns were discovered and captured. They were secreted in the dwelling of one Charles Walsh, situated near Camp Douglas. A number of the leaders of the conspiracy were arrested.

While at Chicago the battery was on duty day and night. General Jos Hooker reviewed the troops at Camp Douglas, and paid the Twenty-Fourth Ohio Battery the high compliment of pronouncing it the best-equipped and best-drilled organization of the kind he ever met with.

On June 10, 1865, orders were received by the commander of the battery to report at Camp Dennison, and on June 24th it was mustered out of the service.

Although not permitted to reach "the front," the services of the Twenty-Fourth were valuable. On being relieved from duty at Camp Douglas the following general order was issued by the General commanding at that post:

"HEAD-QUARTERS POST, CAMP DOUGLAS, ILLINOIS.

"GENERAL ORDER, No. 20.

"The Twenty-Fourth Ohio Battery, Light Artillery, Captain John L. Hill, after some months of service at this post, has been relieved from duty and ordered to be mustered out. This battery is a noble organization. During its service here it has been in admirable discipline, as shown by uniform soldierly bearing and good conduct. It has obeyed all orders and performed varied and important duty with alacrity, intelligence, accuracy, and zeal.

"The Brevet Brigadier-General commanding thanks Captain Hill, his officers, and enlisted men for good conduct, patience, and efficiency in the discharge of every duty.

"B. J. SWEET, Brevet Brigadier-General, Commanding Post.

"E. R. P. SHURLEY, Captain and A. A. G."

25th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Julius L. Hadley	Feb. 17, 1863	March 5, 1863	Mustered out December 12, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Edward B. Hubbard	" 17, "	" 5, "	Resigned September 12, 1864.
Do.	Gilbert J. Doolittle	" 17, "	" 5, "	Resigned.
Do.	Edward F. Webster	Sept. 26, 1864	Sept. 26, 1864	Mustered out December 12, 1865.
Do.	Alex. C. Ruple	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 30, "	Resigned March 20, 1865.
Do.	Stephen Clifford	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Mustered out December 12, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Joseph R. Johnson	Feb. 17, 1863	" 5, 1863	Resigned September 9, 1864.
Do.	Thomas M. Morley	" 17, "	" 5, "	Discharged September 21, 1864.
Do.	Alex. C. Ruple	Sept. 26, 1864	Sept. 26, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Stephen Clifford	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Leonard Doolittle	Dec. 30, "	Dec. 30, "	Resigned June 17, 1865.
Do.	B. H. Rickard	March 29, 1865	March 29, 1865	Resigned September 27, 1865.
Do.	Ashley B. Crane			Mustered out December 12, 1865.

TWENTY-FIFTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ON the 27th of August, 1862, the Second Ohio Cavalry, then in the Army of the Frontier, under General Blunt, was stationed at Fort Scott, in Southern Kansas. General Blunt was greatly in need of artillery, and a detail was made of thirteen men from each company of the Second, and two Lieutenants from the same regiment. They were organized into a battery, which was placed under the command of Captain Job B. Stockton, of the First Kansas Infantry, and was denominated, by General Blunt, the Third Kansas Battery.

On the 17th of September the battery moved south-east into Missouri to intercept the Rebel General Cooper, and on the 25th it arrived at Sarcoxie. On the day of arrival private James A. Russell straggled a short distance from the line of march in search of water. In passing through a corn-field he was halted by two Rebel scouts and ordered to surrender. Russell drew his revolver, and immediately all three began firing. Russell fired five shots, three of which took effect in one of the Rebels and two in the other, while he escaped unhurt. He returned to the column, procured a conveyance, and brought his wounded prisoners into camp. On the 29th of September the left half of the battery joined a reconnoitering party to test the strength of the enemy at Newtonia. An attack was made at daylight on the 30th, and, after three hours' fighting, the enemy moved out in force, and the reconnoitering party was compelled to withdraw. But to do this was no easy matter, as two miles of prairie had to be passed over before the timber was reached, and the enemy was in force on each flank. The battery covered the retreat, and twice succeeded in checking the advance of the Indian allies. Upon reaching the timber an overwhelming force of Texans and Indians was encountered, which scattered the cavalry and captured the infantry almost in mass. The battery escaped by a narrow road, and was hotly pursued for about two miles, when it met re-enforcements, and the pursuers now became the pursued, and were driven from the timber. A two-hours' harmless cannonade ensued, and the battery then returned to its camp at Sarcoxie. It lost two men wounded. The enemy was again attacked, and was driven from his position at Newtonia on the 4th of October. The pursuit was continued to Maysville, Arkansas, where, after a severe fight, on the 29th, the Rebel forces were completely scattered.

The battery continued in the Army of the Frontier, and participated in the battles of Kane Hill, November 29th; Prairie Grove, December 7th, and Van Buren, December 29th. After this the battery returned to Missouri by long and tedious marches, passing over the Ozark and Boston Mountains in midwinter. On this march the command became water-bound. The roaring waters of White River presented what seemed to be an impassable barrier. The river was seventy-five yards wide, fifteen feet deep, and was running at the rate of five miles per hour. No boat of sufficient size could be found to ferry the command across, and one was improvised by the battery. The wagon-boxes were lashed together and covered with tarpaulins, and rails were used for decking. After the boat was furnished the difficulty of getting a line across, by which to work the boat, yet remained. An attempt was made to carry it across in a small dug-out, which swamped, and the crew came very nearly being drowned. An attempt was also made to swim a horse across, but it was unsuccessful. A sagacious Quartermaster proposed to tie the line to a mule's tail and drive him across without a rider, but the mule persisted in landing on the same side from which he started, and finally refused to land at all, and went down stream, carrying the line with him. The difficulty was finally obviated by Lieutenant Hadley, who attached the line to an empty case-shot and threw it across from one of his guns. The battery was ferried over without the loss of a single article. After crossing, it fired a salute in honor of the event, by order of the division commander, and, after a tedious march of ten days, it went into camp at Crane Creek, Missouri.

During all this time strenuous efforts had been made to have the detail returned to the regiment, but they were unsuccessful; and, on the 22d of January, 1863, an order was issued by the War Department, making the detail a permanent Ohio battery, and directing the muster-out of officers from other States serving with it. In obedience to this order the Twenty-Fifth Ohio Battery was organized on the 17th of February, 1863. On the 27th of February it moved to Camp Solomon, near Mount Vernon, Missouri. During the months of March and April it marched into Arkansas among the Boston Mountains after Marmaduke's command. It returned by way of Forsyth, Springfield, Hartville, and Houston to Salem, Missouri, arriving on the 1st of May. On the 22d it was ordered to Rolla, where it was repaired thoroughly and refitted, and the old smooth-bore guns exchanged for rifles. On the 23d of June the battery was inspected minutely by Brigadier-General J. G. Totten, Inspector-General, Department of the Missouri. In his report General Totten pronounced the Twenty-Fifth "one of the best batteries of volunteer light artillery I have ever seen in service." On the 26th of June the battery was ordered to report to General Davidson at Pilot Knob, and on arrival it was assigned to the Second Brigade of the cavalry division, under General Davidson. On the 1st of July the division moved southward into Arkansas to operate against the Rebels under Price and Marmaduke. On the 8th of August the command reached Clarendon, on White River. The march was one of unprecedented difficulty in the history of the battery, owing to the numerous swamps and rivers, and to the extreme scarcity of rations and forage; but, during this entire march of five hundred miles, the battery had one hundred and thirty-eight men present for duty, and not a man on the sick-list. While on this march the battery was detached from the Second Brigade, all the artillery being consolidated and placed under the command of Captain Hadley, of the Twenty-Fifth, who was assigned to duty as Chief of Artillery. At Clarendon the battery lost its first man by death since its organization. Private Thomas Scott, of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, died of chronic diarrhea, aged sixty-two years.

On the 18th of August the cavalry division crossed White River, and, in connection with two divisions of infantry, under General Steele, moved against the enemy at Little Rock. The cavalry crossed Grand Prairie, and on the 25th reached Brownsville, a country town in the edge of the timber, twenty-four miles east of Little Rock. At the edge of the timber the Rebels were drawn up, and, after some skirmishing, they opened with artillery. The Twenty-Fifth was placed in position, and in a few moments the enemy's battery was silenced, and the Rebels were forced to retire. The battery was engaged frequently until the 10th of September, when, after three hours' hard fighting, the cavalry division entered Little Rock. The battery remained at Little Rock during the months of September and October, and was engaged in scouting and operating against the enemy in Southern Arkansas. During the remainder of the year 1863 the battery was divided, doing duty at different points in the State of Arkansas. One section was stationed at Pine Bluff, one at Benton, and one at Little Rock, all occasionally participating in important scouts and skirmishes.

On the 1st of January, 1864, the battery was ordered to concentrate at Little Rock, preparatory to being mustered as a veteran battery. One hundred and twelve men out of one hundred and twenty-nine re-enlisted; and, of the seventeen who did not re-enlist, two-thirds were ineligible. On the 20th of January the battery was mustered as a veteran organization, with one hundred and nine enlisted men and all the original officers. On the 21st the battery started for Columbus, and arrived on the 29th. Those who did not re-enlist were left at Little Rock, and were assigned to Battery E, Third Missouri Light Artillery. The Second Ohio Cavalry and the Twenty-Fifth Ohio Battery arrived at Columbus on the same day, and within the same hour, and for the same purpose. The greetings of the two organizations were most cordial. The battery was furloughed, and within five days from the date of the furlough it was full to the maximum. It rendezvoused at Cleveland, and on the 17th of March returned to Little Rock, by way of Columbus, Cincinnati, Cairo, and Duvall's Bluff. It was placed on duty in Fort Steele, where it remained until it was newly equipped and mounted, when it was assigned to duty in the cavalry division of the Seventh Army Corps. During the fall and winter of 1864-5 the battery remained in camp at Little Rock, participating occasionally in scouts. On the 24th of March, 1865, it was assigned to the First Division of the Seventh Army Corps. The battery remained at Little Rock until after the last organized force of Rebels had surrendered. It was ordered to Ohio for muster-out, and was finally discharged at Columbus on the 12th of December, 1865.

During its term of service the battery participated in thirteen battles and skirmishes, and marched six thousand three hundred and fifty one miles.

26th OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

BANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Theobald D. Yost.....	Dec. 22, 1863	Dec. 22, 1863	Mustered out September 2, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Levi J. Cox.....	" 22, "	" 22, "	Resigned September 11, 1864.
Do.	Omar S. Lee.....	March 2, 1864	March 2, 1864	Mustered out September 2, 1865.
Do.	John C. Hampson.....	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Mustered out September 2, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Omar S. Lee.....	Dec. 22, 1863	Dec. 22, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John C. Hampson.....	March 21, 1864	March 21, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Abel J. Lee.....	" 21, "	" 21, "	Mustered out September 2, 1865.
Do.	John E. Kittsmiller.....	Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Mustered out September 2, 1865.

TWENTY-SIXTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTERY.

THE nucleus of this organization was a detachment from the Thirty-Second Ohio Infantry. Its complement of men was completed by Captain B. F. Potts (afterward Colonel of the Thirty-Second Ohio Infantry and Brigadier-General U. S. V.) at Augusta, Carroll County, in the month of August, 1861. After completion it was attached to the Thirty-Second, as company F, and served with that regiment until July 20, 1862. At that time it was detached for artillery-duty at Winchester, Virginia, fully armed and equipped as a battery of light artillery, and called "Potts's Ohio Battery."

On General Pope's retreat, in 1862, Winchester was evacuated, and its garrison, including the Twenty-Sixth Ohio Battery, retired to Harper's Ferry on the night of the 11th of September. On its arrival there one section was immediately ordered to Sandy Hook, an important point on the road leading to Harper's Ferry, and about five miles below that place, where for two days it skirmished with the enemy. On the 13th of September the enemy brought to bear upon this section six pieces of artillery, which it withstood for a time, and until an order was received to fall back toward the ferry. This order was very difficult of execution, as the National forces had evacuated Maryland Heights, and the enemy had gained a position on the flank of the section in order to prevent it from joining the main force; but, with the aid and support of a Maryland regiment, the section fought its way through to the garrison.

On the 14th a fierce artillery duel was kept up, in which the entire battery was constantly engaged from ten o'clock A. M. until dark. It was exposed to a fierce fire from Loudon Heights and an enfilading fire from Maryland Heights. During the same evening the position of the battery was changed to the extreme left of the National line, where the enemy was massing a force with the intention of making a vigorous attack.

At sunrise on the 15th the Rebels opened upon the battery, front, right, and left, with twenty-four guns, and for upward of an hour this unequal contest was continued, and for some time after the white flag had been raised by the National forces.

In this engagement the battery occupied an exposed position in an open field, and it was within ten yards of its position that Colonel Miles received the wound from the effects of which he died. After the surrender the battery, with the other troops composing the garrison, were paroled, and sent to Chicago, where the company was rejoined to the Thirty-Second Ohio Infantry, which had also been surrendered at Harper's Ferry.

On the 21st of January, 1863, being exchanged, the battery-company again left for the field, in company with the Thirty-Second, and served with it through General Grant's Mississippi campaign until May 16, 1864. At the battle of Champion Hills the brigade to which the Thirty-Second was attached charged and turned the enemy's left, capturing a battery of six guns. General John A. Logan having been informed of the proficiency of company F in artillery practice issued an order that these guns should be placed in their charge, and to have them in readiness for action the next morning. Notwithstanding more than one-half the horses had been killed, the harness cut and torn throughout, and numerous other damages to repair, yet, by the industry and perseverance of the officers and men, the battery entered the column next morning at daylight, ready for action.

The company was now called "Yost's Captured Battery," and during the entire siege of Vicksburg was actively engaged. Its position was on the left of Logan's division, but it was afterward transferred to the right of the same division, and in front of the Rebel Fort Hill, an extremely exposed position, within three hundred yards of the enemy's works. Although destitute of the facilities of a regular organized battery, this company endured the dangers and hardships of the entire siege, and received high compliments from Generals McPherson and Logan.

On the 3d of August, 1863, the company was again remanded to the Thirty-Second Ohio Infantry; but was soon after again temporarily detached—one-half with Battery D, First Regiment Illinois Light Artillery, and the other half with the Third Ohio Battery, and was associated with them in the expedition from Vicksburg to Canton, in October, 1863, the first-named battery commanded by Captain S. D. Yost, and Lieutenant O. S. Lee, of the Third Ohio Battery. In this expedition both batteries were engaged in several skirmishes.

On the recommendation of General James B. McPherson the War Department gave authority to Governor Tod to transfer the company from the Thirty-Second Ohio, and on the 22d of December, 1863, it was made into a distinct organization, and designated as the Twenty-Sixth Ohio Battery.

The battery becoming entitled to veteran furlough it was, on the 1st of January, 1864, ordered home to Ohio, where it remained the usual thirty days. On the 3d day of February, 1864, it returned to the field at Vicksburg, with recruits sufficient to bring it up to the maximum strength. The battery was a participant in a number of expeditions from Vicksburg and Natchez, resulting in skirmishes. The first raid (in July, 1864), made by the battery and other troops, was led by General Slocum. The second was a cavalry raid from Vicksburg to Natchez, in October, 1864, commanded by Colonel Osband. It was a very rapid and fatiguing march, accompanied with daily skirmishing.

On the 8th of November, 1864, the battery was ordered to report at Natchez, Mississippi, for garrison-duty. This was the last of its active service, excepting an occasional brush with guerrillas in the vicinity of Natchez, and across the Mississippi River. After the close of the war it was attached to the Texas expedition, and served on the Rio Grande until August, 1865, when it was ordered to Ohio, and on the 2d day of September, 1865, it was mustered out of the service at Tod Barracks, Columbus.

1st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	CO.	DATE OF RANK.	COM.	ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	JAMES BARNETT.....		Sept. 3, 1861	Feb. 25, 1862		Mustered out on exp'n of term, Oct. 15, '64.
Do.....	CHARLES S. COTTER.....		Nov. 25, 1861	Nov. 26, 1864		Mustered out with battery.
Lt. Colonel.....	WILLIAM H. HAYWARD.....		25, 1861	Feb. 25, 1862		Resigned March 18, 1863.
Do.....	WALKER E. LAWRENCE.....	March 8, 1864	March 8, 1864	March 8, 1864		Declined promotion; died Nov. 26, 1864.
Do.....	CHARLES S. COTTER.....	Oct. 20, "	Oct. 20, "	Oct. 20, "		Promoted.
Major.....	WALKER E. LAWRENCE.....	Sept. 12, 1861	Feb. 25, 1862			Promoted.
Do.....	SEYMOUR RACE.....	Oct. 12, "	"	"		Resigned September 8, 1863.
Do.....	WILLIAM P. ISRAEL, JR.....	Nov. 26, "	"	"		Resigned June 9, 1862.
Do.....	CHARLES S. COTTER.....	June 9, 1862	July 22, "			Promoted.
Do.....	ANDREW J. CONKLE.....	Sept. 8, 1863	Dec. 31, 1863			Honorably discharged August 8, 1864.
Do.....	WARREN P. EDGERTON.....	March 16, 1864	March 15, 1864			Honorably discharged July 9, 1864.
Do.....	D. T. COCKERILL.....	July 25, "	July 25, "			Mustered out July 26, 1865.
Do.....	F. SCHULTZ.....	Oct. 20, "	Oct. 20, "			Mustered out July 12, 1865.
Do.....	WILBER F. GOODSPEED.....	"	"	"		Mustered out with battery.
Surgeon.....	A. C. SWARTSWELDER.....	Sept. 28, 1861	Feb. 25, 1862			Mustered out December 5, 1862.
Ass't Surgeon.....	BYRON STANFON.....	Oct. 24, "	"	"		Mustered out December 5, 1862.
Do.....	CHARLES L. AMES.....	July 21, 1862	July 21, "			Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	THOMAS H. OAKLEY.....	Oct. 15, 1861	Oct. 17, 1861			Resigned March 30, 1862.
Captain.....	Charles S. Cotter.....	Aug. 5, "	Sept. 25, "			Promoted.
Do.....	William A. Standard.....	B. 10, "	Oct. 23, "			Resigned October 31, 1863.
Do.....	Dennis Kenny, Jr.....	C. Sept. 9, "	"	"		Resigned June 17, 1862.
Do.....	Warren P. Edgerton.....	E. Oct. 7, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	Andrew J. Conkle.....	E. Aug. 6, "	Feb. 7, 1862			Promoted.
Do.....	D. T. Cockerill.....	F. 15, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	F. Schultz.....	M. Sept. 5, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	William L. De Beck.....	K. Oct. 10, "	"	"		Resigned May 11, 1863.
Do.....	Henry F. Hyman.....	I. 22, "	"	"		Dis. on Surgeon's certificate, Sept. 16, 1862.
Do.....	Joseph Bartlett.....	G. Nov. 16, "	"	"		Resigned January 21, 1863.
Do.....	I. F. Huntington.....	H. 7, "	"	"		Resigned October 26, 1863.
Do.....	L. N. Robinson.....	L. Oct. 31, "	"	"		Resigned November 12, 1862.
Do.....	Wilber F. Goodspeed.....	A. June 9, 1862	July 22, "			Promoted.
Do.....	Daniel K. Southwick.....	C. June 17, "	"	"		Resigned October 19, 1863.
Do.....	John N. Bennett.....	I. Sept. 16, "	Oct. 1, "			Honorably discharged November 17, 1862.
Do.....	Hubert Duker.....	I. Nov. 17, "	Nov. 22, "			Mustered out with battery.
Do.....	T. C. Gibbs.....	L. 13, "	Dec. 12, "			Mustered out July 4, 1865.
Do.....	Alexander Marshall.....	G. Jan. 21, 1863	Feb. 20, 1863			Mustered out with battery.
Do.....	Louis Heikman.....	K. May 11, "	May 25, "			Mustered out with battery.
Do.....	Marco B. Gary.....	C. Oct. 19, "	Nov. 9, "			Mustered out with battery.
Do.....	George W. Norton.....	H. 26, "	"	"		Resigned March 21, 1864.
Do.....	Norman A. Baldwin.....	B. 31, "	Dec. 1, "			Mustered out with battery.
Do.....	Giles J. Cockerill.....	D. March 16, 1864	March 16, 1864			Mustered out June 30, 1865.
Do.....	Albert G. Ransom.....	E. 30, "	"	"		Resigned September 26, 1864.
Do.....	Stephen W. Dousey.....	H. April 13, "	April 13, "			Mustered out with battery.
Do.....	William H. Pease.....	F. July 30, "	July 30, "			Mustered out with battery.
Do.....	Edmund B. Belding.....	E. Oct. 20, "	Oct. 20, "			Mustered out with battery.
Do.....	Charles W. Seaville.....	M. 20, "	"	"		Mustered out with battery.
Do.....	Norval Osborn.....	A. 20, "	"	"		Mustered out with battery.
1st Lieutenant.....	John N. Bennett.....	B. Aug. 4, 1861	"	"		23, 1861 Promoted.
Do.....	Albert L. Beckley.....	A. 5, "	Sept. 25, "			Resigned April 24, 1862.
Do.....	Wilber F. Goodspeed.....	A. 6, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	J. H. Sypher.....	B. 10, "	Oct. 23, "			Resigned February 3, 1864.
Do.....	Albert G. Ransom.....	E. Oct. 7, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	Stephen W. Dousey.....	E. 7, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	John H. Miller.....	C. Sept. 9, "	"	"		Resigned March 20, 1862.
Do.....	Marco B. Gary.....	C. 9, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	George W. Howe.....	QM 9, "	Jan. 4, 1862			Mustered out.
Do.....	Paul F. Rochelocher.....	D. 1, "	Feb. 7, "			Resigned January 1, 1862.
Do.....	Lemuel R. Porter.....	D. 1, "	"	"		Resigned August 28, 1863.
Do.....	Samuel M. Espey.....	F. Aug. 15, "	"	"		Resigned June 15, 1862.
Do.....	Giles J. Cockerill.....	F. 15, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	Constantine Schwerer.....	M. Sept. 5, "	"	"		Resigned November 30, 1862.
Do.....	Ferdinand Amann.....	M. 5, "	"	"		Resigned November 26, 1862.
Do.....	George B. Haskins.....	K. Oct. 10, "	"	"		Resigned October 20, 1862.
Do.....	Henry F. Hyman.....	I. 16, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	William Dammert.....	I. 22, "	"	"		Resigned July 9, 1864.
Do.....	Alexander Marshall.....	G. Nov. 12, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	John D. Holden.....	K. Feb. 19, 1862	"	"		Resigned March 27, 1862.
Do.....	George W. Norton.....	H. Nov. 7, 1861	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	G. Davenport.....	H. 7, "	"	"		Resigned January 7, 1863.
Do.....	T. C. Gibbs.....	L. Oct. 31, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	F. Dorries.....	L. 31, "	"	"		Died May 3, 1863.
Do.....	T. C. Floyd.....	G. Dec. 29, "	"	"		Died July 9, 1862.
Do.....	James H. Miller.....	I. Sept. 28, "	"	"		Resigned June 1, 1862.
Do.....	Joseph D. King.....	I. March 13, 1862	March 13, 1862			Honorably discharged November 14, 1862.
Do.....	William H. Pease.....	D. Jan. 1, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	Charles G. Mason.....	H. March 12, "	"	"		Resigned April 26, 1862.
Do.....	Henry F. Camp.....	K. 27, "	June 24, "			Died September 15, 1862.
Do.....	Edmund B. Belding.....	A. April 24, "	July 22, "			Promoted.
Do.....	Daniel K. Southwick.....	C. May 20, "	June 24, "			Promoted.
Do.....	Norval Osborn.....	F. June 15, "	July 22, "			Promoted.
Do.....	Charles W. Seaville.....	A. 9, "	"	"		Promoted.
Do.....	Eugene A. Osborn.....	G. July 9, "	"	"		Mustered out for promotion.
Do.....	Frank Veits.....	C. June 9, "	"	"		Resigned March 23, 1863.
Do.....	Thomas M. Bartlett.....	K. Sept. 13, "	Oct. 1, "			Resigned October 30, 1863.
Do.....	Norman A. Baldwin.....	B. 16, "	"	"		Promoted.

RANK.	NAME.	CO.	DATE OF RANK.	CO.	ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	C. H. Robinson.....	L.	Nov. 12, 1862	Dec. 12, 1862		Resigned May 13, 1864.
Do.	Jos. ph. Hein.....	M.	" 25, "	" 24, "		Resigned March 16, 1864.
Do.	John Crable.....	G.	" 25, "	" 31, "		Resigned July 13, 1864.
Do.	Christian Widman.....	L.	" 4, "	Jan. 15, 1863		In command at Chattanooga at muster-out
Do.	E. n. F. Sturgis.....	M.	" 30, "	March 3, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Martin B. Ewing.....	A.	Jan. 7, 1863	Jan. 20, "		Resigned June 3, 1863.
Do.	Robert D. Whittlesey.....	G.	" 21, "	Feb. 20, "		Resigned May 20, 1863.
Do.	William W. Walworth.....	L.	March 13, "	May 12, "		Died May 8, 1864.
Do.	Hiram W. Turner.....	C.	" 23, "	" 12, "		Resigned October 19, 1863.
Do.	Louis Heckman.....	K.	Oct. 20, 1862	" 12, "		Promoted.
Do.	Herbert F. Guthrie.....	L.	May 6, 1863	" 12, "		Mustered out October 30, 1864.
Do.	William A. Ewing.....	H.	June 4, "	June 23, 1863		Mustered out October 24, 1864.
Do.	George W. Bills.....	G.	May 2, "	July 10, "		Resigned January 20, 1864.
Do.	Charles M. Schilley.....	K.	" 11, "	Aug. 1, "		Honorably discharged October 13, 1863.
Do.	Nathan M. Newell.....	G.	July 13, "	" 25, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Columbus Bolanmour.....	K.	Oct. 15, "	Nov. 11, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Jerome B. Stevens.....	C.	" 19, 1863	Jan. 10, 1864		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Andrew Berwick.....	K.	" 30, "	" 10, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	James H. Hill.....	C.	" 31, "	" 10, "		Resigned as 2d Lieutenant January 8, 1864.
Do.	Henry C. Lloyd.....	D.	Aug. 28, "	" 10, "		Revoked.
Do.	Thomas King.....	C.	Oct. 19, "	" 25, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Roland G. Day.....	B.	March 3, 1864	March 3, 1864		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Charles H. Randall.....	D.	" 3, "	May 3, "		Mustered out October 12, 1864.
Do.	James M. Patton.....	B.	" 3, "	" 3, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Albert G. Merrill.....	H.	" 3, "	" 2, "		Resigned October 12, 1864.
Do.	Henry G. Vincent.....	L.	" 30, "	" 20, "		Resigned October 12, 1864.
Do.	Charles F. Chase.....	M.	" 30, "	" 20, "		Declined promotion.
Do.	M. Z. Paddock.....	E.	" 30, "	" 20, "		Mustered out.
Do.	Frank R. Rockard.....	M.	April 13, "	April 13, "
Do.	Clark Scripture.....	E.	" 13, "	" 13, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	James Guden.....	L.	May 25, "	May 23, "		Declined promotion.
Do.	David H. Throup.....	L.	July 30, "	July 30, "		Declined promotion; must'd out with bat'y.
Do.	John H. Rois.....	L.	" 30, "	" 30, "		Commission revoked August 16, 1864.
Do.	William F. Slincy.....	D.	" 30, "	" 30, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Jacob Zeigler.....	L.	Aug. 23, "	Aug. 23, "		Declined promotion; must'd out with bat'y.
Do.	Samuel W. Telford.....	L.	Oct. 20, "	Oct. 20, "		Mustered out September 13, 1865.
Do.	Edward Herriman.....	A.	" 20, "	" 20, "		Declined promotion.
Do.	Lowell M. Palmer.....	F.	" 20, "	" 20, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Josephus G. Lankester.....	L.	" 20, "	" 20, "		Declined promotion; must'd out with bat'y.
Do.	Silcott Miller.....	L.	" 25, "	" 25, "		Resigned as 2d Lieutenant Feb. 23, 1865.
Do.	James Harris.....	H.	Feb. 8, 1865	Feb. 8, 1865		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	William H. Perrigo.....	H.	" 8, "	" 8, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Otho D. Foster.....	D.	" 10, "	" 10, "		Mustered out July 4, 1865.
Do.	John H. Res.....	E.	May 2, "	May 2, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Albert Edwards.....	G.	" 2, "	" 2, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	James Storer.....	L.	" 2, "	" 2, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Willard M. Welcher.....	F.	" 2, "	" 2, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	B. K. Davis.....	L.	" 2, "	" 2, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Henry C. Grant.....	L.	" 2, "	" 2, "		Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Edward Van Antwerp.....	A.	" 2, "	" 2, "		Mustered out with battery.
2d Lieutenant	Charles G. Mason.....	A.	Aug. 5, 1861	Sept. 25, 1861		Promoted.
Do.	Allen W. Penney.....	A.	" 5, "	" 25, "		Resigned March 15, 1862.
Do.	Norman A. Baldwin.....	B.	" 18, "	Oct. 23, "		Promoted.
Do.	Eben. P. Sturgis.....	B.	Sept. 10, "	" 23, "		Promoted.
Do.	Frank Veits.....	C.	" 9, "	" 23, "		Promoted.
Do.	Daniel K. Southwick.....	C.	" 9, "	" 23, "		Promoted.
Do.	William W. Northrop.....	E.	Oct. 7, "	" 23, "		Discharged November 18, 1862.
Do.	Andrew Berwick.....	E.	" 7, "	" 23, "		Promoted.
Do.	William H. Pease.....	D.	Sept. 1, "	Feb. 7, 1862		Promoted.
Do.	Henry C. Lloyd.....	D.	" 1, "	" 7, "		Promoted; mustered out October 23, 1863.
Do.	George W. Blair.....	F.	Aug. 16, "	" 7, "		Resigned April 1, 1862.
Do.	Norval Osborn.....	F.	" 16, "	" 7, "		Promoted.
Do.	Joseph Hein.....	M.	Sept. 3, "	" 7, "		Promoted.
Do.	Joseph Eberle.....	M.	" 5, "	" 7, "		Resigned October 15, 1862.
Do.	John D. Holdeu.....	K.	Oct. 10, "	" 7, "		Promoted.
Do.	Samuel H. Day.....	L.	Nov. 4, "	" 7, "		Resigned September 25, 1862
Do.	Eugene A. Osborn.....	G.	" 20, "	" 7, "		Promoted.
Do.	Louis Heckman.....	K.	Feb. 20, 1862	" 20, "		Promoted.
Do.	John Crable.....	G.	Dec. 25, "	" 25, "		Promoted.
Do.	Thomas M. Bartlett.....	H.	Nov. 7, "	" 25, "		Promoted.
Do.	Martin B. Ewing.....	H.	" 7, "	" 25, "		Promoted.
Do.	Henry F. Camp.....	K.	Jan. 7, "	" 25, "		Promoted.
Do.	C. H. Robinson.....	L.	Oct. 31, 1861	" 25, "		Promoted.
Do.	William Walworth.....	L.	Jan. 7, 1862	" 25, "		Promoted.
Do.	Lewis Doerr.....	L.	March 13, "	March 13, "		Resigned June 17, 1862.
Do.	Nathan M. Newell.....	D.	Jan. 1, "	" 30, "		Promoted.
Do.	Edmund B. Belding.....	A.	March 12, "	" 31, "		Promoted.
Do.	Charles W. Scoville.....	A.	" 15, "	" 31, "		Promoted.
Do.	William A. Ewing.....	F.	April 1, "	May 15, "		Promoted.
Do.	Rowland G. Day.....	A.	" 26, "	June 18, "		Promoted.
Do.	Hiram B. James.....	K.	March 27, "	" 24, "		Resigned May 11, 1863.
Do.	Hiram W. Turner.....	C.	May 20, "	" 24, "		Promoted.
Do.	Henry W. Pollis.....	C.	June 9, "	Jan. 15, 1863		Died December 30, 1862.
Do.	James M. Patton.....	F.	" 15, "	July 22, 1862		Promoted.
Do.	Robert D. Whittlesey.....	G.	July 9, "	" 22, "		Promoted.
Do.	Christian Widman.....	L.	June 14, "	" 22, "		Promoted.
Do.	Charles H. Randall.....	A.	" 9, "	" 22, "		Promoted.
Do.	John J. Kelley.....	B.	Sept. 16, "	Oct. 27, "		Resigned March 12, 1863.
Do.	Herbert F. Guthrie.....	L.	Nov. 12, "	Dec. 12, "		Promoted.
Do.	L. C. Linn.....	M.	Oct. 15, "	" 24, "		Resigned June 5, 1863.
Do.	George W. Hills.....	G.	Nov. 26, "	" 31, "		Promoted.
Do.	Henry G. Vincent.....	E.	" 18, "	Jan. 15, 1863		Promoted.
Do.	Albert G. Merrill.....	H.	Sept. 15, "	" 15, "		Promoted.
Do.	Charles F. Chase.....	L.	" 25, "	" 15, "		Declined promotion.
Do.	M. Z. Paddock.....	M.	Nov. 26, "	" 15, "		Promoted.
Do.	Frank R. Rockard.....	M.	Jan. 7, 1863	" 20, "		Promoted.
Do.	Clark Scripture.....	L.	Nov. 21, 1862	Feb. 5, "		Promoted.
Do.	George D. Eldridge.....	J.	Jan. 1, 1863	" 20, "		Died.
Do.	James H. Hill.....	D.	Nov. 30, 1862	March 5, "		Resigned January 8, 1864.
Do.	Thomas King, jr.....	C.	Dec. 30, "	April 14, "		Promoted.
Do.	Charles M. Schilley.....	K.	Oct. 20, "	May 12, "		Promoted.
Do.	David H. Throup.....	B.	March 12, 1863	Aug. 1, "		Declined promotion; must'd out with bat'y.

RANK.	NAME.	CO.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Elijah S. Gurney.....	C...	March 23, 1863	Aug. 1, 1863	Declined prom.; must'd out with battery.
Do.	John Lyuch.....	L...	June 4, "	June 23, "	Killed September 19, 1863.
Do.	James Gildea.....	L...	May 6, "	May 12, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Columbus Rodamour.....	K...	" 11, "	Aug. 1, "	Promoted.
Do.	J. B. Stevens.....	C...	June 4, "	June 23, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Jacob Zeigler.....	M...	" 4, "	" 23, "	Declined prom.; must'd out with battery.
Do.	William F. Sliney.....	G...	May 21, "	Aug. 25, "	Promoted.
Do.	Samuel W. Treat.....	F...	June 4, "	June 23, "	Promoted.
Do.	John H. Reis.....	K...	May 11, 1862	Aug. 21, "	Promoted.
Do.	Moses G. Ransom.....	D...	July 13, "	" 25, "	Resigned April 15, 1864.
Do.	Lowell M. Palmer.....	C...	Nov. 23, "	Jan. 26, 1864	Promoted.
Do.	Josephus G. Laukster.....	B...	" 23, "	" 8, "	Promoted.
Do.	James Storer.....	D...	Jan. 15, 1864	" 15, "	Promoted.
Do.	Willard M. Welcher.....	E...	Nov. 24, 1863	March 3, "	Promoted.
Do.	Albert Edwards.....	L...	Dec. 14, "	Jan. 16, 1864	Promoted.
Do.	Edward Herriman.....	C...	Oct. 19, "	" 25, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	B. K. Davis.....	A...	March 30, "	March 30, "	Promoted.
Do.	Henry C. Graut.....	A...	" 30, "	" 30, "	Promoted.
Do.	Silcott Miller.....	F...	Nov. 23, "	April 7, "	Promoted.
Do.	Josiah Brown.....	G...	May 9, 1864	May 9, "	Resigned June 13, 1865.
Do.	Albert Reagler.....	H...	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Joseph Maloney.....	K...	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Cecil C. Reed.....	E...	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Charles Kortzbaue.....	L...	" 9, "	" 9, "	Died August 16, 1864.
Do.	Stephen Sloane.....	M...	" 9, "	" 9, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	James Harris.....	G...	" 9, "	" 9, "	Promoted.
Do.	William H. Perrigo.....	L...	June 14, "	June 14, "	Promoted.
Do.	William M. Camp.....	D...	Sept. 26, "	Sept. 26, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Le. P. Batty.....	M...	" 26, "	" 26, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	William H. Smith.....	G...	" 26, "	" 26, "	Resigned June 4, 1865.
Do.	William W. Pixley.....	L...	Oct. 20, "	Oct. 20, "	Mustered out July 1, 1865.
Do.	Stephen Shaw.....	M...	" 20, "	" 20, "	Commission returned; out of service.
Do.	Milton A. Mitchell.....	F...	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Edward Van Antwerp.....	" 20, "	" 20, "	" 20, "	Promoted.
Do.	Cornelius Linchan.....	C...	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	William Evans.....	B...	" 20, "	" 20, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	William E. Parmlee.....	M...	Feb. 8, 1865	Feb. 8, 1865	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Philip Hauser.....	L...	" 10, "	" 10, "	Mustered out July 4, 1865.
Do.	Lewis B. Maxwell.....	H...	May 2, 1865	May 2, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Silas H. Judson.....	H...	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	William H. Manning.....	M...	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Otto Marolotze.....	K...	" 2, "	" 2, "	Resigned June 10, 1865.
Do.	Frederick Miller.....	L...	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	F. W. Edgerton.....	D...	" 2, "	" 2, "	Mustered out with battery.

FIRST OHIO LIGHT ARTILLERY.

UNDER the militia law of 1860 an organization was formed, called the First Regiment of Light Artillery. It constituted a portion of the Third Brigade, Fourth Division, of the Ohio Militia, and consisted of six companies, having one gun to each company, and officered as follows: James Barnett, Colonel; E. B. Sturgis, Lieutenant-Colonel; — Gates, Major; Amos Townsend, Quartermaster; Randall Crawford Quartermaster's Sergeant. This organization was drilled and disciplined, and, at the breaking out of the rebellion, was in a condition, if necessary, to take the field.

In the winter of 1860, in view of the troubles then brewing, and momentarily expected to culminate in over tacts against the Government, the officers and men of this organization adopted a resolution tendering their services to the State authorities in the event of difficulty. This tender was accepted by Adjutant-General Carrington in complimentary terms, with the remark that "he did not anticipate that their services would be required." The organization was kept intact; and, five days after the fall of Sumter, the following telegram was received:

"COLUMBUS, April 20 1861.

"Colonel James Barnett, Cleveland, Ohio:

"Report your six pieces, caissons, and full battery, including the Geneva company, at Columbus forthwith—Monday, if possible. You can hire horses for the guns here or at your point of service. Bring harness and everything else. Twenty men to each gun. You retain Colonel's rank. By order.

H. B. CARRINGTON, Adjutant-General."

In obedience to this order, the command reported at Columbus on Monday night, 22d of April, and was immediately sent forward by cars to Marietta, where it went into camp, and the guns were placed in position to cover the place from an anticipated attack from the opposite shore of Virginia.

The command remained in Camp McClellan, at Marietta, until the 28th of May, when, by order of General McClellan, two guns, with the requisite complement of men, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel S. B. Sturgiss, were sent to Colonel Steedman, of the Fourteenth Ohio, then stationed at Parkersburg, intended for duty on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The rest of the command, under Colonel Barnett, followed the next day to Benwood, and thence to Grafton, where it reported to General T. A. Morris.

The two guns under Lieutenant-Colonel Sturgiss moved up the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and participated in the affair at Philippi. This was the first artillery fired by the National forces in the War of the Rebellion. After having remained at Philippi about one month the command was rejoined by the detachment under Lieutenant-Colonel Sturgiss, and moved with General Morris's forces to Laurel Hill, and joined in the attack made on the Rebels at that place. The flying Rebels were pursued and again encountered at Carrick's Ford, where the Rebel commander, General Garnett, was killed and most of his war material captured. This affair terminated the three-months' term of service. Moving back to Laurel Hill, the regiment lay there until ordered to Columbus for muster-out. This occurred about the 26th of July, 1861. Being only a State organization, it was necessary, in order that the command might be paid by the United States authorities, that it should be mustered into and out of the United States service on the same day.

Governor Dennison being anxious that Ohio should be represented in the field by a full regiment of light batteries, under proper authority from the War Department, the regiment, with its twelve light batteries, was mustered into the United States service for three years, dating from the 3d of September, 1861, the date of Colonel Barnett's commission.

The command was organized by batteries at Camp Dennison, and, as each battery was filled and equipped, it was sent to the field.

BATTERY A.

Battery A, under Captain C. S. Cotter, was mustered into the service on the 25th of September, 1861. It left immediately thereafter for Louisville, Kentucky, receiving its equipment while on the march at Cincinnati. It was the first Ohio battery to report in that department. On October 22d it left, under orders, for Camp Nevin, Kentucky, and reported to General A. M. McCook. With McCook's command it moved to Green River; thence to Louisville, Kentucky, and by river to Nashville, Tennessee. From Nashville it marched to Pittsburg Landing, and arrived on that field at the close of the action. It also participated in the advance on Corinth. It then moved with McCook's division to Florence, Alabama, and thence to Battle Creek and Jasper, Tennessee; thence it marched to Decherd; through Winchester to Tullahoma and Shelbyville, and on to Nashville. After a short rest at Nashville it accompanied Buell's army to Louisville, and through Kentucky.

While on the march to Louisville a detachment of the battery aided in the defense of Mundefordville, and was captured with that garrison by the Rebel forces under General Bragg. It moved out of Louisville with General J. W. Sill's division, and participated in the numerous skirmishes and difficulties of that march up to Perryville, Kentucky. At Dog Walk a portion of the battery was actively engaged. It did not reach Perryville until October 11th, three days after the battle. It moved with the main army through Danville to Crab Orchard, where the retrograde march was commenced; thence through Lebanon to Bell's Tavern, Kentucky, and reached Bowling Green on the 31st of October, and Nashville November 7th.

Under the new commander of the Army of the Cumberland, General W. S. Rosecrans, the battery moved in McCook's division on Murfreesboro', Tennessee, and operated with that command on the right of the army. When the disaster occurred on the right at Stone River, it stubbornly contested the ground with two of its guns saved from capture. The officers and men fired these guns at every rallying point of the whole space over which McCook's forces passed to the Nashville Turnpike, where, with Simonson's Indiana Battery, they were placed in position, and performed effective service throughout the remainder of the battle, and until the last gun was disabled by a shot from the enemy. After this the officers and men aided in working other batteries on the field. After taking possession of Murfreesboro' the battery was reorganized and equipped, and formed, with Simonson's Indiana Battery and the Twentieth Ohio Battery, into an artillery brigade, for duty in the Second Division of the Army of the Cumberland. It participated in the movement on Tullahoma, and at Liberty and Hoover's Gap, and accompanied McCook over Sand Mountain. It took part in the battle of Chickamauga, and did some of its best fighting on that eventful day. When nearly surrounded by the enemy, by a change of front its guns were extricated, but not without the loss of seventeen men killed and wounded. Major Goodspeed commanded the battery in that battle. It entered Chattanooga with the army, and aided in the defense of that place. On October 18th the battery moved to Sale Creek and reported to General Speer, commanding at that point. On the march through East Tennessee to Strawberry Plains it was almost constantly engaged with the enemy's cavalry up to the 30th of January, 1864. At this date it re-enlisted, and returned to Ohio on thirty days' veteran furlough.

It was re-mustered at Cincinnati in February, 1864, and returned to Nashville. After a month's drilling it went to Catoosa Springs and joined the Second Division of the Fourth Army Corps. It thereafter participated in the whole of the Atlanta campaign. From Atlanta it came back to Chattanooga, and thence to Pulaski and Columbia, at which points it was engaged with the Rebels under General Hood. It arrived at Nashville just after the decisive battle before that city, and had the pleasure of drawing the captured Rebel artillery from off that well-contested field. Thence it marched to Gallatin, Tennessee, and was thereafter taken with Stanley's division to New Orleans, whence it was sent home and mustered out of the service.

During its service Battery A marched in the States of Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia, four thousand five hundred miles, and was transported by Government fifteen hundred miles, making a total of six thousand miles traveled. It was in thirty-six skirmishes and nine heavy battles. It hurled from the cannon's mouth thirty tons of ammunition at the Rebels, twenty-five tons of which were fired in the Georgia campaign of 1864, under General Sherman.

BATTERY B.

Was organized at Camp Dennison, and mustered into the service October 8, 1861, with an aggregate strength of one hundred and forty-seven men. By order of General O. M. Mitchel it left Cincinnati to report to General George H. Thomas, then in command at Camp Dick Robinson, Kentucky. The first experience it had in the field was a brisk little affair at Camp Wild Cat, in which it fired twelve rounds and silenced one of the enemy's guns. From Wild Cat it marched to London, Kentucky, where it remained quietly in camp for two weeks. It then returned in the direction of Wild Cat, and did not halt until Lebanon was reached. Resting a day or two, it moved to Danville.

On November 5th the battery, under orders, joined the Seventeenth Ohio at Fishing Creek, and was engaged during the whole of that month in skirmishes and scouting-duty, with headquarters at Somerset. It remained at Fishing Creek until January 17th, when it moved with General Schœpf's brigade to re-enforce General Thomas at Mill Springs. It took part in the battle of that name (or Logan's Cross-Roads, as General Thomas calls it), and performed very effective service. After the fight was ended the battery returned to Somerset, and remained there until the 10th of February, when it took up the line of march for Louisville, Kentucky. It embarked at that point on transports for Nashville, arriving there on the 4th of March, 1862, and went into camp with General George H. Thomas's division. On March 16th it was assigned to the Artillery Reserve, Colonel Barnett commanding, and on the 29th ordered to move with the Seventh Brigade of Buell's army. From this date until the 10th of July the battery was engaged by sections in expeditions through Middle Tennessee, being severally under command of Captain Standart, Lieutenants Sypher, Bennett, and Sturgiss. Its principal duty was looking after the Rebel cavalry, which then infested that place in large numbers.

On July 18, 1862, it reported to Major-General Nelson at Murfreesboro', and, during the months of July, August, and September, was almost constantly on the march through portions of Eastern and Middle Tennessee, and was frequently engaged in skirmishes with the enemy.

On the morning of September 3d the battery left McMinnville, Tennessee, on the march northward with General Buell's army, halting at Louisville, September 26th. On October 2d it moved out of Louisville with the army, arriving at Bardstown on the 5th. At the battle of Perryville the battery had a position on the right wing of the army, but was not engaged.

From the 10th of October up to the 26th of November it was engaged in marching and counter-marching through Southern Kentucky. On the 26th it reported at Nashville to General Crittenden, of the Fourth Division, Twenty-First Corps. On December 26th the battery moved, with its brigade and division, toward Murfreesboro', skirmishing heavily with the enemy in and about Lavergne. In the battle of Stone River it was stationed on the left of General Negley's division, being the left division of the right wing. It was involved in the disaster on the right, but succeeded in withdrawing all its guns from the field. It bore its part in the battle throughout, and lost seventeen men killed, wounded, and missing, and twenty-one horses killed. Those killed were Sergeants Thomas J. Thompson and George Wolf, and privates Chauncey Lyon, Samuel Rumble, and John Elliott.

On January 7, 1863, the battery took position eight miles from Murfreesboro', on Cripple Creek, on outpost duty, with General Cruft's brigade. It remained here up to the 24th of June, and then joined in the advance of the National forces on Tullahoma, marching with the left, in General Crittenden's corps. Nothing of moment occurred on this march. The battery reached the vicinity of Chattanooga on the 8th of September, and crossing the Tennessee River at Shell Mound, moved out to Lafayette and Ringgold. On September 18th it went into camp near Lee & Gordon's Mills. The battle of Chickamauga began the next morning, and the battery was engaged, with Palmer's division, on the left. On the second day of the battle it was charged by a large body of the enemy, but succeeded at first in beating them off. A second charge overwhelmed the battery, and it was compelled to leave two of its guns in the hands of the enemy. In this charge several members of the battery were wounded and captured.

It was now cooped up with the rest of the army in Chattanooga, and it suffered with them all the privations of that siege. On October 19th it went into quarters at Black Oak Ridge, just across the Tennessee River, and remained there until the battle of Chattanooga. It was then sent to Nashville, arriving there December 6th, and, with five other batteries, went into camp near that city, all under the personal command of Colonel Barnett. The command was designated as the First Division of Reserve Artillery. While in this camp Lieutenant Baldwin was commissioned Captain of the battery.

On January 4, 1864, sixty-five of the original members of the battery had re-enlisted as veterans, and by February 4th were on their way home to enjoy the thirty days' furlough. At nine o'clock on the morning of February 6th these veterans reached Cleveland, having been in the service nearly two and a half years.

The battery returned to Nashville in March, and on the 16th of that month reported, by order of General George H. Thomas, at Bridgeport, Alabama, where it remained until July, 1866. It was then sent home to Columbus, and there mustered out, being one of the last organizations to leave the service.

BATTERY C.

This battery was organized and mustered into the United States service on the 9th of September, 1861, at Camp Dennison. On October 1st it left that camp under orders to report to General George H. Thomas, commanding at Camp Dick Robinson, Kentucky. It there joined an expedition, consisting of about ten thousand men under General Albin Schoepf, for the purpose of relieving East Tennessee. This expedition resulted in the battle of Mill Springs, and the defeat of the Rebel General Zollicoffer. Battery C here did some effective firing. One of its discharges—a James projectile—burst over a column of Rebels, killing seven and wounding thirteen men. The army now concentrated at Nashville, under General Buell.

In March, 1862, the Army of the Ohio was reorganized, and Battery C was retained in the First Division, under General Thomas. In the movement to Pittsburg Landing across Tennessee, the battery formed a part of the rear-guard, and therefore did not reach the field in time to take part in that battle.

In the advance of the army on Corinth the battery was almost incessantly engaged, performing some of the most arduous duty of its campaigns. On the evacuation of Corinth it joined in the pursuit of the Rebel army to Boonville, Mississippi, and thereafter returned to Corinth.

From Corinth it marched, under command of Captain Southwick, to Tusculum and Winchester, and thence to Nashville, and Louisville, Kentucky, forming a part of the rear-guard of General Buell's army, then on its way to intercept Bragg's Rebel army in its invasion of Kentucky. While lying at Louisville the Army of the Ohio was again reorganized, and the battery moved with the Twelfth Corps, under General Gilbert. It was not engaged at Perryville, being held in reserve near General Buell's head-quarters. It followed in the pursuit of the Rebel army to Crab Orchard, and then marched back to Bowling Green, where the army was again reorganized under General Rosecrans.

On October 30, 1862, the battery was placed in the Fourteenth Army Corps, under General Thomas, and sent to Gallatin, Tennessee. It remained at this place until December 25th, when it accompanied Colonel Carlin's brigade in an expedition through Kentucky to intercept John Morgan's forces in a raid on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. At Rolling Fork, in an engagement, on the 31st of December, with Morgan's men, it lost Lieutenant Henry W. Paulus, mortally wounded. From Rolling Fork it was sent to Lavergne, near Nashville, where it remained until the advance of the army on the Tullahoma campaign. It reached Winchester about the middle of July, and on the 19th and 20th of September took part in the battle of Chickamauga. The battery was at this time under the command of Captain M. B. Gary. It fought under the immediate eye of General George H. Thomas, and received a verbal compliment from that officer on the field of battle. It lost thirteen men, thirty horses, and one gun dismounted. It fell back with the army into Chattanooga, and was thereafter engaged in the battle of Mission Ridge. At the close of this campaign it re-enlisted, and returned to Ohio on veteran furlough.

On March 1, 1864, the battery returned to the field at Chattanooga, and was assigned to the Third Division, Twentieth Army Corps. On May 2d it started with the army on the Atlanta campaign, and was engaged in the battles of Resaca, Cassville, New Hope Church, Peachtree Creek, and siege of Atlanta, during all of this time under command of Lieutenant J. B. Stevens. In this campaign the battery lost twenty men killed and wounded. On the 15th of November it started with Sherman's army on the Savannah campaign, and encamped in the city of Savannah December 22, 1864. On this march Lieutenant Stevens was in command of the battery, Captain Gary having been placed in command of the artillery of the Third Division. On January 28th it started on the campaign through the Carolinas, and was engaged at Averyville and Bentonville. In the last-named affair it lost Corporal Daniel Reed, a most excellent soldier.

This closed the active service of the battery. It then marched up through Richmond to Washington City, and formed a part of the grand review. On June 15, 1865, it was mustered out of the service at Cleveland, Ohio.

BATTERY D.

Battery D was mustered into the United States service at Camp Dennison in September, 1861. The organization consisted of one hundred and fifty men. It left Camp Dennison on the 1st of November, and on the 10th reported to Brigadier-General William Nelson, at Mount Sterling, Kentucky. It marched with General Nelson's command up the Big Sandy River to Picketon, Kentucky, reaching that place on the 10th of November. On its march, at Ivy Mountain, the battery had a brisk skirmish with the enemy, and lost one man killed.

With the army, the battery returned from Picketon by steamers to Louisa, Kentucky, and thence to Louisville, arriving at the last-named place November 25, 1861. Three days thereafter it left Louisville, and on the 29th of November reported to Major-General A. M. McCook, at Camp Wood, Munfordsville, Kentucky.

On February 13, 1862, the battery reported, under orders, to General Nelson, at Elizabethtown, Kentucky, but soon returned to Camp Wood, whence it moved with McCook to Nashville. From Nashville it moved with the Fourth Division to Pittsburg Landing; thence to Corinth, Mississippi, and on the 30th of June it was at Athens, Alabama.

On July 30th the battery moved from Columbia, Tennessee, with General Nelson's command, and was at Lebanon, Kentucky, on the 31st of August, 1862. In September, 1862, at Munfordsville, the battery was so unfortunate as to be overwhelmed by the enemy, and its entire force and material were captured. On this occasion the men were paroled, and sent home to Ohio, where they remained, at Camp Chase, until exchanged in January, 1863.

The battery was reorganized and re-equipped at Columbus, Ohio, in the latter part of January, 1863, and joined the Third Brigade, Fourth Division, Twenty-Third Army Corps, at Lexington, Kentucky, in March. On April 4th it left Lexington, and on the 18th of the same month went into camp at Mount Vernon, Kentucky.

On June 14, 1863, Lieutenant Lloyd, with thirty-four men, thirty-one horses, and two guns, accompanied Colonel Saunders, Chief of Cavalry of the Twenty-Third Army Corps, on a raid into East Tennessee. It returned June 26th, having lost both guns, and one man murdered by guerrillas. This raid was carried entirely through East Tennessee, and was for the most part successful. Important bridges were burned, a large amount of ordnance and commissary-stores destroyed, and the enemy damaged in various other ways.

In July the battery marched with General Burnside's army to Cumberland Gap, and took part in the capture of that Rebel stronghold. In August and September it was engaged in raiding through Kentucky and Tennessee with Colonel Frank Woolford's cavalry. On December 2, 1863, it lost seven men by capture, six of whom died at Andersonville. It was engaged throughout the entire siege of Knoxville. Immediately after the siege was raised the battery re-enlisted, and the men were sent to Ohio on thirty days' veteran furlough.

The ranks of the battery were filled at Cleveland, and it returned to Knoxville, Tennessee, early in 1864. When the march on Atlanta commenced it moved with Sherman's forces, and was in all the engagements of that arduous and eventful campaign. It operated with the Twenty-Third Army Corps.

The battery was engaged in the battles of Franklin and Nashville, and after the army of Hood was driven across the Tennessee River it returned to Nashville, and was sent with the Twenty-Third Army Corps to Wilmington, North Carolina. It was finally mustered out of service at Cleveland, July 15, 1865.

BATTERY E.

This battery was mustered into the service at Camp Dennison, August 23, 1861, and in December following it joined, at Bacon Creek, Kentucky, the old Third Division, then in command of General O. M. Mitchel. It was engaged in nearly all the exploits of that officer through Kentucky, Tennessee, and Alabama.

The battery returned with Buell to Louisville, September, 1862, when it was assigned to General Sill's division. It frequently skirmished with the enemy while following Bragg's retreating army, as far as Crab Orchard, Kentucky. Thence it marched with the army to Nashville, Tennessee. On November 16, 1862, it had a severe artillery duel with Captain Morgan's First Louisiana Battery at Lavergne, and drove the enemy from their works. On December 26, 1862, it marched with McCook's right wing to Nolinsville, and the next day assisted in driving Hardee's Rebel corps beyond Triune. It silenced Robison's Texas Battery, on the left wing of Bragg's army, and repulsed repeated charges of infantry and cavalry at Stone River on the 30th.

On the morning of December 13, 1862, the battery was overwhelmed, in an exposed position, on the extreme right of McCook's wing, and, after a brief though stubborn resistance, was captured. It had three men killed, twenty wounded, and twenty-five taken prisoners. Among the latter were Captain W. P. Edgerton and Lieutenant A. Berwick.

Just before the battle of Chickamauga the battery was ordered to report to General Gordon Granger, in whose command it there served. During the battle of Mission Ridge it held an important point, and in the decisive battle of Nashville it acted with conspicuous gallantry.

In whatever position the battery was placed during its career, it maintained its good name, and was regarded among the most reliable in the service.

BATTERY F.

This battery was recruited by Captain Daniel T. Cockerill, in July and August, 1861. On the 15th of August the men went into Camp Lucas, near Olive Branch, Clermont County, Ohio, with the understanding that they should join Colonel Piatt's brigade, from Athens County; but, on the 1st of September, they received orders to join the First Regiment, Ohio Light Artillery, under the command of Colonel Barnett, and the same day they marched to Camp Dennison. The battery having been mustered into service for three years by Captain Brisbin, United States Army, on the 3d of December, was ordered to Louisville, where it was added to General Nelson's command. From Louisville it proceeded by river to Nashville, Tennessee, and was the first to pass through that city after its evacuation by the Rebels, on the 23d of February, 1862. While in camp at Nashville the battery was transferred to General Wood's division. From this place it marched to Savannah, Tennessee, where it embarked for Pittsburg Landing, but arrived too late to participate in the battle fought there on the 6th and 7th of April, 1862. It then moved on to Corinth, where, during the siege, from the 8th of April to the 1st of June, it made its maiden effort of throwing shells at the enemy.

From Corinth it moved, with its division (which now had the advance), through Mississippi and Alabama. On reaching Tusculum, Alabama, it encamped for a few days, to the great gratification of both men and horses, who there luxuriated in the waters of its far-famed spring.

The battery next moved to Decatur, crossed the Tennessee, passed on to Huntsville; thence to Fayetteville, and on to Shelbyville, where the men were delighted at seeing the Stars and Stripes floating in the breeze from the top of a liberty-pole erected by the citizens. Here orders were received to join General Nelson's command at Murfreesboro', Tennessee. By a forced march the battery and its escort arrived, early in July, just as the city had been captured by the enemy; but it was again evacuated on the approach of General Nelson from Athens, Alabama. Falling back toward Louisville, the battery was attached to Hazen's brigade; and then it proceeded to Perryville, where it participated in the fight at that place, on the 8th and 9th of October, 1862, without the loss of a man, and moved on to Wild Cat Mountain, and thence to Pittman's Cross, skirmishing with the enemy all the way. Turning at this point, the battery moved to Glasgow, Kentucky, where it lay in camp for some time. Again the battery moved with its brigade into Tennessee, going into camp at Nashville.

It participated in the battle of Stone River on the 30th and 31st of December, 1862, and the 1st and 2d of January, 1863, losing two men killed and twelve wounded. Captain Daniel T. Cockerill was also severely wounded. Some thirty horses were killed and one limber-wheeled was blown up. Lieutenant Osborn now took command, which he held till April, 1863, when he was succeeded by Lieutenant Giles J. Cockerill, jr.

The battery moved with the brigade to Readyville, Tennessee, where and at Woodbury, in the month of June, it had several skirmishes with the enemy. Thence it moved to Tullahoma over the mountains, and across the Tennessee River at Friar Island, above Chattanooga, where it had a brush with the Rebels. It was in the thickest of the battle at Chickamauga, September 19th and 20th, losing Second Lieutenant John Lynch, killed, and some ten men wounded. Having fallen back to Chattanooga, it was ordered to perform garrison-duty in one of the front forts. Here it was joined by Captain D. T. Cockerill, whose wound was not yet perfectly healed. It witnessed the fights at Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge, and then returned to Nashville and was placed in the Reserve Corps. Here the battery was re-enlisted and mustered in as veterans by Captain Fulmer, United States Army, for a second three-years' service, to date from January 4, 1864. There were seventy-six men re-enlisted out of ninety-six. They immediately went home on furlough for thirty days, during which time the company was filled up by new recruits. On the completion of the furlough the battery was ordered to move, with a brigade of cavalry, to Decatur, Alabama, where it performed post-duty, during which time it had several skirmishes with the enemy. Captain Cockerill was promoted to Major, August 8th, and ordered to take command of the artillery at Bridgeport, Alabama. When General Granger evacuated Decatur the battery took the river to Bridgeport, from which it again returned to Decatur, where it remained until it was ordered home to be mustered out. It reached Camp Dennison, via Nashville, Louisville, and Cincinnati, on the 25th of July, 1865, only lacking a few days of four years' service.

BATTERY G.

Battery G was recruited by Captain Joseph Bartlett, Lieutenants Alex. Marshall, T. C. Floyd, John Crable, and Eugene A. Osborn, at Cleveland and Painesville, November and December, 1861. It was organized and mustered in at Camp Dennison, Ohio, December 17th. It was kept at squad-drill and camp-duties till the 1st of January, 1862, when it drew horses and guns. It then had field-drill and target-practice to February 10th, when it marched to Cincinnati, and there embarked on steamboat, and arrived at Louisville on the morning of the 11th; went into Camp Jesse D. Bright at Jeffersonville, Indiana, and remained there, drilling and fitting for the field, till the 27th, when it moved, with six days' supplies, via steamer Rocket for Nashville; arrived at Nashville Tuesday evening, March 4th, and went into Camp Jackson, on the Charlotte Pike. On the 11th it was ordered, with Captain Mendenhall's regular battery, to report to General Crittenden, commanding Fifth Division. It moved with the column on the Franklin Pike. On Sunday morning, April 6th, fifteen miles from Savannah, on the Tennessee River, heavy firing at Pittsburg Landing was heard. Hard marching over bad roads enabled the column to reach Savannah at eight P. M., where it embarked on the steamer John J. Roe, with Mendenhall's regular battery and General Boyle's brigade. It reached Pittsburg Landing at one o'clock A. M., Monday, April 7th; disembarked and took position in line of battle at six A. M., supported by General Boyle's brigade, of Crittenden's division, and was engaged the entire day. This battery was the only volunteer battery of Buell's army engaged in this battle.

It had to replenish its ammunition chest several times. The official records of commanding officers show that it did good service.

The battery served with General Crittenden's division through the siege of Corinth, during which (June 4th) it was ordered into the Artillery Reserve, and on the 10th moved for Athens, Alabama. Crossing the Tennessee River at Tusculum, Alabama, on the 14th, it reached Athens on the 30th, where it reported to Colonel Neibling, commanding the Twenty-First Ohio. One section was stationed with Colonel Starkweather, commanding First Wisconsin, at Mooresville, Alabama. On the 19th of August the battery was ordered to Nashville, where it arrived the next day, and reported to Colonel W. E. Lawrence, commanding the artillery at that place. On the 7th of September it reported to General Negley, commanding Eighth Division, Army of the Cumberland, and moved into camp on the Franklin Pike, two miles from the city, taking part during the blockade. General Negley spoke in terms of warm commendation of this battery, giving it credit for efficiency and good discipline.

The Eighth Division reported for duty in the Fourteenth Army Corps, December 12th; was reviewed and inspected by General Rosecrans at Camp Hamilton on the 10th, and then moved on the Franklin Pike, with Colonel Miller's (seventh) brigade, en route for Murfreesboro'. It took part in the engagement at Stone River.

On the 20th of January, 1863, Captain Bartlett resigned, having been absent from the command since the siege of Corinth, and First-Lieutenant Alex. Marshall was promoted to Captain. (This officer served with the company from its organization to its muster out. He accompanied it in every march and was present in every engagement.)

The battery took an active part in skirmishing while lying at Murfreesboro' and on the march to Tullahoma. It marched from Murfreesboro' June 24th and reached Manchester on the 27th; and, soon after the dislodgment of Bragg's army at Shelbyville and Tullahoma, it encamped at Decherd, Tennessee. It moved from Decherd to Cave Spring, Alabama, August 16th, being at this time attached to the Third Brigade, Second Division, Fourteenth Army Corps. From Cave Spring it proceeded with the corps, crossing the Tennessee River at Stevenson, Alabama, September 6th. At Dug Gap it took part in the engagement, covering the rear in retiring. It was also engaged at Chickamauga on the 19th and 20th, whence it fell back with the army to Chattanooga, taking position on the Rossville road, where it was continually under fire until after the battle of Mission Ridge.

On October 9th, upon the reorganization of the army, it was ordered to report to Colonel Barnett, the commanding officer of the Reserve Artillery. On December 2d it marched for Nashville, re-enlisted, and was mustered in as a veteran battery, January 4, 1864, and, during the month of March, moved with the Fourth regular cavalry to re-enforce Fort Donelson, returning again to Nashville after an absence of about ten days. In the month of August it was ordered to report to the Chief of Artillery in the field, near Atlanta, Georgia, but was prevented by the cavalry under General Wheeler. It then moved with the cavalry, under General Croxton, in pursuit of Wheeler's forces, which, after three or four sharp engagements, were driven across the Tennessee River at Florence, Alabama. Returning to Nashville, it refitted, and within one week made a similar expedition after the forces under General Forrest, his command crossing the Tennessee River at the same place that Wheeler's had crossed. The battery moved to Chattanooga in October and built winter-quarters; but in the same month it received orders to report to the Chief of Artillery of the Fourth Army Corps, at Pulaski, Tennessee, where for some two weeks it was employed in building fortifications.

On the 23d of November it broke camp at Pulaski, and while falling back toward Nashville disputed the ground with Hood day by day. On the 30th it checked Hood's advance into Franklin, and covered the rear of the National column moving out; and reached Nashville on the night of December 1st. The loss of the battery in killed and wounded at the battle of Franklin was twenty-three. It was highly complimented by General Stanley for gallant services in the field.

On December 2d it took position in line of battle on a hill near Fort Casino, Nashville, Tennessee, from which date to the 14th it was daily engaged with the enemy. On the 14th a general engagement took place between Generals Thomas and Hood, in which the battery took part, serving in Elliott's Second Division, Fourth Corps, General Wood commanding.

In the advance of our column in Hood's retreat to the Tennessee River the battery was sharply engaged with the enemy at Rutherford Creek; after which it went into winter-quarters at Huntsville, Alabama.

In March, 1865, it moved with the Fourth Corps into East Tennessee and North Carolina, and in April returned to Nashville. In June it moved with the Fourth Corps for New Orleans, Louisiana; returned in August for Ohio, and was mustered out at Camp Chase, September 1, 1865.

One section, under Lieutenant Newell, did duty with different cavalry commands in the latter part of 1863 and beginning of 1864, with a great deal of credit. At that time the battery was composed of eight guns. In its original organization it had but six. The battery went into service with one hundred and fifty-six men; the number mustered out was eighty. The rolls show that over four hundred men served in the battery during the four years.

BATTERY II.

This battery was organized during October, November, and December, 1861, at Camp Dennison, Ohio, by Captain James F. Huntington, of Marietta, and Lieutenant George A. Norton of Lucas County, near Toledo.

On June 20, 1862, it left Camp Dennison, and proceeded by river to Parkersburg, West Virginia, and thence on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to Patterson's Creek. In a few days thereafter it joined General F. W. Lander's division at Paw-Paw Tunnel.

On March 1st the battery marched with the command to the vicinity of Bloomery's Gap, where a force of the enemy was encountered, but the movements soon stopped, by reason of General Lander's sudden death. A few days afterward the whole division, under command of General James Shields, moved to Martinsburg, and thence to Winchester, where the battery lay for two weeks.

On March 18th the battery first met the enemy (Ashby's cavalry) at Strasburg, eighteen miles south of Winchester, but not until after he had been routed by the First Michigan Cavalry. It then retired to Winchester, where, on March 22d, Ashby again appeared, south of the town. Battery II was ordered to the front, and in less than forty minutes was engaged with the enemy. It received three or four volleys from the Rebel battery, which were returned with interest. Nine of the enemy's gunners were killed and his battery completely routed. Battery II did not participate in the general engagement (battle of Winchester) of the next day, 23d March, being held in reserve.

During April and part of May the battery marched and counter-marched up and down the valley with General Banks's corps, and took part in the skirmishes at Edenburg, Reed's Hill, New Market, Mount Jackson, etc.

On May 14th Shields's division was ordered east, and joined McDowell at Fredericksburg. It crossed the Blue Ridge at New Market, and made its way to Falmouth, opposite Fredericksburg. After two and a half days' rest it was ordered back over the same route, and on June 1st lay at Front Royal all day with another of McDowell's divisions, while General Fremont was having a brisk fight with the Rebel General Jackson near the old battle-field of Winchester. The next eight days were spent in marching south on the east side of the Shenandoah River, in the fruitless efforts to entrap Stonewall Jackson by co-operative movements. The battery was four miles from the battle-ground at Cross Keys, on June 8, 1862, but could not join Fremont, owing to the high water in the river.

On June 9th the battle of Port Republic was fought by the Third and Fourth Brigades of General Shields's division—all Western troops—consisting of two thousand four hundred infantry and thirteen pieces of artillery, against Jackson's whole force of twenty-one thousand infantry and sixty pieces of artillery, of which the Rebel General used some eight thousand infantry and twenty-four pieces of artillery. Besides Battery H, Battery L, of the First Ohio Light Artillery, and E, of the Fourth United States, Captain Clark, were engaged. Three guns were left upon the battle-field and fell into the hands of the enemy; but General Shields complimented Battery H on its gallantry and the efficient service rendered by it.

Immediately after this battle Battery H went to Alexandria to refit, and on October 17, 1862, joined General McClellan at Harper's Ferry. It marched with the army back to Fredericksburg, and took part in the bombardment of that place, by General Burnside, on the 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, and 17th of December. It threw nearly one thousand shells into the town.

In January, 1863, Battery H accompanied General Burnside in his march up the Rapidan, to attack Lee's extreme left, but was compelled by bad weather to return to camp. The whole army lay inactive in front of Fredericksburg until the latter part of April, 1863, when the campaign of Chancellorsville opened.

Battery H was at first ordered to a point three miles below Fredericksburg to cover a crossing. It then marched to United States Ford, and crossed over to the Chancellorsville House, then the head-quarters of the Potomac Army.

On Friday afternoon, May 2d, the battery was ordered to the front, and accompanied the Third Corps, under General Sickles, in a reconnoissance to ascertain what Stonewall Jackson was about. At five o'clock P. M. the Eleventh Corps was crushed and flying through the lines. At this critical moment Battery H, assisted by the Eleventh and Fourth New York, stood to their guns, and, without doubt, saved the National army from destruction. A point about one mile from Hooker's head-quarters was tenaciously held by these batteries, and the enemy's victorious troops driven back with great slaughter.

Battery H was, in June, 1863, placed in that splendid organization, the Artillery Reserve of the Potomac Army, and acted with it during the remainder of the war. It was brought home to Camp Taylor, near Cleveland, and there mustered out of the service, June 14, 1865.

BATTERY I.

The nucleus of this organization was a company of light artillery recruited by Lieutenant Dammert, under the patronage of the City Council of Cincinnati. Its first duty was that of guarding the fortifications and approaches to Cincinnati, back of Newport, Kentucky, Mount Adams, and Price's Hill.

On December 3, 1861, an order was received from the War Department, through Adjutant-General Buckingham, to muster the battery into the service of the United States. This was done at Camp Dennison, and the organization was designated as Battery I, of the First Regiment of Ohio Light Artillery, Colonel James Barnett commanding.

On January 26, 1862, the battery left Camp Dennison for West Virginia. It first landed at Parkersburg, and from that place went by rail to New Creek, Virginia. It marched from New Creek to Moorefield February 10, 1862, and at that place had its first engagement with the enemy. It then returned to New Creek, and went by rail to Clarksburg, where it lay for three weeks. On March 26th the battery marched from Clarksburg to Beverly. Remaining at Beverly about ten days it then moved over Cheat Mountain to Monterey, and on April 25th took part in the battle of Dinwiddie's Gap, near Monterey. The battery was then taken over to McDowell, and near that place it aided in fighting the battle of Bull Pasture Mountain. In this it lost one man killed. Retreating down the valley to Franklin it there joined General Fremont's forces, and went into camp.

On the movement of General Fremont's army it marched with it to Strasburg, and joined in the pursuit of the Rebel army under Jackson, up the Shenandoah Valley to Cross Keys. Here it shared in the battle, losing one man killed and four wounded. After the battle the battery fell back to Middletown, Virginia, and went into camp.

On July 5th it was again on the march, and passing through Sperryville and across the Blue Mountains, it went into camp at Luray, Virginia. Its duties while it lay at Luray were very arduous, as the enemy was desirous of crossing the mountains into Luray Valley. In its efforts to prevent this the battery was almost daily engaged with the enemy.

From Luray it marched to Culpepper, and took part in the battle of Slaughter Mountain. It then fell back to Warrenton, and from thence to White Sulphur Springs, where it again engaged the enemy. Reaching Freeman's Ford, on the Rappahannock, it was again engaged. It then moved with General Pope's forces, and took part in the second Bull Run battle. The battery lost twelve men killed and wounded, and twenty-two horses. It also had two of its guns dismounted, and the rest of its pieces were so disabled as to be unserviceable. Lieutenant Dammert drew, at Washington, a complete new outfit.

On October 1, 1862, it left Washington, marched to Fairfax C. H., and went into camp. On November 1st it marched to Thoroughfare Gap, and thence to Centerville. From Centerville it went to Fredericksburg, and took part in the bombardment of that place. Falling back with the army it went into winter-quarters at Brooks's Station.

On the opening of the spring campaign in March, 1863, the battery joined General Hooker's army, and took part in the battle of Chancellorsville. Here it lost five men killed and six wounded, and one gun, and sixteen horses. It then returned to Brooks's Station, and, on the reorganization of the Potomac Army, marched with it to Gettysburg. In this battle the battery had four men killed and fifteen wounded. It also lost nearly all of its horses. Impressing horses from the farms around Gettysburg, it moved with the army in pursuit of Lee. Crossing the Potomac at Berlin, it went into camp at Catlett's Station.

In October, 1864, the battery was transferred with the Twentieth Army Corps, General Jos. Hooker commanding, to the Army of the Cumberland, at Chattanooga. Lookout Valley was the scene of its first engagement in the west. It was also engaged at Mission Ridge. The battery was then sent with General Sherman's forces to the relief of Knoxville. Returning, it went into camp at Chattanooga, and early in the spring joined in the Atlanta campaign. It was engaged with the enemy in almost every battle fought in that campaign. Its losses summed up forty men killed and wounded, and Second-Lieutenant John Kortzbue, killed in front of Kenesaw Mountain.

From Atlanta the battery returned to Chattanooga, where it remained about three weeks, and its term of service having expired, it was sent to Camp Dennison, Ohio, and mustered out of the service July 24, 1865.

During the whole service of Battery I it was noted for its faithfulness and efficiency, and on numerous occasions was honorably mentioned in official reports by the Generals commanding.

BATTERY K.

Was organized and mustered into the service at Camp Dennison, Ohio, October 22, 1861. In February it joined General Schenck's command, at Cumberland, Maryland, and moved with it to Romney, Virginia. After remaining in camp some days it marched to Petersburg and Bull Pasture Mountain. At the last-mentioned place the battery took part in the battle of McDowell.

From McDowell it went to Franklin, and from thence to Strasburg, Cross Keys, and Port Republic, taking part in the battle at the last-named place. Marching through Winchester, it went into camp at Kernstown. Thereafter it was joined to and moved with General Fremont's forces through the Shenandoah Valley to Warrenton. It was at Cedar Mountain, and other affairs in which General Pope's forces were engaged.

At Lairy's Ford, in a sharp engagement with the enemy, the battery lost sixteen men wounded, and thirty-three horses killed. Lieutenant Henry F. Camp was here killed.

It now moved with General Pope's army, and took part in the second Bull Run battle. Falling back with the army to Washington, it lay in camp for some weeks, and was then ordered to Fredericksburg, Virginia, where it aided in the bombardment of that place.

The next battle in which the battery was engaged was that of Chancellorsville, where it shared in the vicissitudes and mistakes of that strange engagement. After lying in camp some weeks the battery was joined to the forces under General Meade, then making a forced march through Maryland and Pennsylvania to intercept Lee's Rebel army. In the battle of Gettysburg the battery was so closely engaged as to lose five men killed and twenty-seven wounded, among the latter Lieutenant Schilley, severely.

From Gettysburg the battery moved with the army in pursuit of Lee's forces, and crossing the Potomac went into camp with the Twentieth Corps, at Catlett's Station.

In October, 1864, it was taken with the Twentieth Corps (under General Hooker), to Chattanooga, Tennessee, to aid in raising the siege of that place. Reaching the vicinity of Chattanooga it was engaged in the night fight at Wauhatchie Valley, in which the Rebels were badly defeated. It was also engaged at Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge.

The battery was then moved to Bridgeport and Stevenson, Alabama. It remained at the last-named place until the 3d of July, 1865, when it was ordered to Camp Dennison, Ohio, and there mustered out of service July 17, 1865.

BATTERY L.

Battery L, First Ohio Light Artillery, was recruited at Portsmouth, Ohio, in October, 1861, by L. N. Robinson. It reported at Camp Dennison November 7th, and remained in camp, perfecting its drill, until January 20, 1862, when it joined General Lander's command, at Patterson's Creek, West Virginia, arriving at that point January 27th. It marched with Lander to Paw-Paw Tunnel, but did not take part in the Bloomery Gap fight, which occurred shortly afterward.

On March 1st the battery and command started for Winchester, Virginia, but the death of General Lander compelled a return. On March 7th another move was made toward Winchester, by way of Martinsburg, General James Shields in command. On March 20th the battery had a brisk skirmish with Ashby's cavalry, and again returned to Winchester. On the 22d it had another skirmish with Ashby's cavalry, and drove it back.

On March 23d the battle of Winchester was fought. The battery was in several positions during the day, the last one being on the right wing, which the Rebels attempted to turn, but failing, took shelter behind a stone wall. A few solid shot from Battery L, and a simultaneous charge of infantry, closed the battle. The battery lost one man killed and several wounded.

The Rebels were pushed up the valley to Harrisonburg, after which the battery crossed the Massanutten Mountains and the Blue Ridge, and joined General McDowell at Fredericksburg, May 21, 1862. It was ordered back, however, to intercept Stonewall Jackson on his return from his raid against General Banks. In performance of this duty the battery crossed the Bull Run Mountains and the Blue Ridge, and on May 31st was engaged at Front Royal, one section, under Lieutenant Dorries, firing repeated rounds at the enemy. One man was wounded.

On the 1st of June the battery marched up the south branch of the Shenandoah, and on the 8th arrived at Port Republic. Captain Robinson, with one section of the battery, dashed into the town with Colonel Carroll's cavalry. This opened the battle of Port Republic. The army of Stonewall Jackson at once attacked, and after a sharp fight the National forces were compelled to retire. One piece of artillery was lost by Battery L. This piece, under command of Sergeant James Gildea, was stationed in front of the covered bridge, double-shotted with canister. When the bridge was filled with Rebels, making their way across, Sergeant Gildea pulled the lanyard, spiked the piece, and was severely wounded in escaping.

On June 9th the battery became hotly engaged, and repulsed several stubborn charges, in which the gallantry of Sergeant P Houser and Corporal Sam. Cochran were conspicuous. On June 8th and 9th the battery lost two men killed and several wounded. Lieutenant C. H. Robinson and six men were taken prisoners. Thirty horses were killed, and three pieces of artillery left on the field.

The battery fell back through Luray and Front Royal to Alexandria, Virginia, where it went into camp to recruit and refit. Captain Robinson went to Ohio on the recruiting-service.

On August 29th Battery L was again ordered to the front, and on that day took part in the battle of Chantilly. It marched with General McClellan's forces on the Antietam campaign, and at Shepherdstown, September 19th, became engaged with the enemy. The battery went into camp near Sharpsburg, Maryland, and remained there until November. Captain Robinson went home on sick leave, and was mustered out of the service November 12, 1862.

On November 1st the battery moved with the Army of the Potomac, being attached to the Second Division of the Fifth Corps. It passed with the army into Virginia, and went into winter-quarters near Stoneman's Switch, on the railroad between Aquia Creek and Fredericksburg.

On December 13th the battery crossed the Rappahannock into the city of Fredericksburg, and remained in its streets under fire until the morning of the 16th, when it recrossed the river. It took part in another advance on Fredericksburg February 21st, but was mud-bound, and returned to its old camp.

On April 30, 1863, the battery entered on the Chancellorsville campaign, crossing the Rappahannock at United States Ford. It became actively engaged on the morning of the 3d of May, at Chancellorsville, and at intervals during the day losing Lieutenant Dorries and one man killed, and a number of men wounded. One caisson was badly disabled, and several horses were killed. On the 4th and 5th of May the battery had another engagement with the enemy in recrossing the Rappahannock.

On June 1st the battery moved to Banks's Ford, on picket-duty, and on the 13th of June started with the Fifth Corps on the Gettysburg campaign, passing through Manassas Junction, and crossing the Potomac at Edwards's Ferry, and thence through Maryland to the battle-field of Gettysburg, where it arrived on July 2d, at eight o'clock A. M. The battery was assigned position on the extreme right of the line, under a sharp skirmish-fire. About four o'clock P. M. it moved and parked on the Baltimore Turnpike. Afterward it followed the Second Division of the Fifth Corps, on the trot, taking position on the right hand slope and foot of "Little Round Top," where it became warmly engaged with Longstreet's corps, which was making desperate efforts to turn the left. So close was the work that the guns were double-shotted with canister, and worked so rapidly that the men could not lay hands upon them. The battery became the nucleus around which the hotly-pressed division rallied and forced the enemy back to his lines. The battery remained in the same position during the 3d instant. It lost several men wounded, but none killed. The infantry in line near the battery lost quite a number killed and wounded.

It crossed the Potomac with the Fifth Corps into Virginia, going into camp at Beverly Ford, on the Rappahannock. Thence it marched to Culpepper C. H., and on the 12th of October entered with the army on the celebrated race for Manassas Junction between Generals Meade and Lee, and just missed the fight at Bristoe Station. It thereafter followed the fortunes of the army, and took part in the battle at Rappahannock Ford.

On November 27th the battery crossed the Rapidan at Gold Mine Ford, and the next day became warmly engaged on the Orange C. H. Plank Road, where it lost one man and several horses killed, and a number of men wounded. The battery recrossed the river with the army, and went into winter-quarters at Warrenton Junction. On December 22d five men of the battery were captured by guerrillas.

On January 1, 1864, thirty-five men of the battery re-enlisted as veterans. During the latter part of April it went to Camp Barry, Washington City, to recruit and refit. Thence it went into the fortifications of Washington, occupying Forts Phil. Kearney and Sumner.

After the fight at Fort Stephens on July 11, 1864, the battery was attached to Dwight's division, Nineteenth Army Corps, marched with it into Maryland Virginia, and participated in the Snicker's Ferry fight. Returning to Washington, it marched with its division in pursuit of Early's Rebel forces, and went into camp at Harper's Ferry.

On September 15th the battery reported to General Sheridan at Summit Point, Virginia, and moved with his army up the Valley, taking part in the battles of Winchester and Fisher's Hill. The whole army went into camp beyond Harrisonburg for a few days, and then returned down the Valley to Cedar Creek, where the battery occupied the right of General Crook's command. During this march three members of the battery were captured by the enemy.

In the battle of Cedar Creek, October 19th, the battery opened fire at daylight on the suddenly-appearing enemy. This lasted but a short time, and the left having been turned and some of its artillery captured, it became involved in the common and hasty retreat. General Sheridan appeared upon the field, and the lines were re-established. The battery had twelve different positions during the day, and behaved handsomely, having fired the first and last artillery shot in the battle. It covered the retreat and led in the advance. One man was killed and twelve were wounded, some very severely by shell.

The battery remained in Camp Russell, near Winchester, Virginia, until the latter part of December. Thence it went to Harper's Ferry and took rail to New Creek, West Virginia, reaching that point on January 4, 1865. It remained at New Creek in winter-quarters until June 30, 1865, when it was taken to Columbus, and there mustered out July 4, 1865.

Battery L was in service three years and eight months, and during that time traveled three thousand five hundred miles. It lost, in killed, one officer and six men, had fifty men wounded, and one officer and fourteen men were taken prisoners. It also had one hundred horses killed in service, having, during its campaigns, had charge of four different batteries. It took part in the battles of Winchester, March 23, 1862; Port Republic, Chantilly, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Mine Run, Fort Stephens, Winchester, September 19, 1864; Fisher's Hill, and Cedar Creek.

BATTERY M.

Was recruited in the counties of Auglaize, Shelby, and Miami, and organized at Camp Dennison in September, 1861. It was mustered into the United States service by Captain P. H. Breslin, United States army, December 3, 1861. In January, 1862, in company with Battery F, it proceeded to Louisville, Kentucky, and reported to Major-General Buell, who was at that time organizing the Army of the Ohio.

The battery was ordered to join the main army at Bowling Green. It moved with the army to Nashville, and was there attached to the Artillery Reserve, Colonel Barnett commanding, with which it operated during the march to and the battle of Pittsburg Landing. It also took an active part in all the movements before Corinth, and, after the evacuation of that place by the Rebels, moved to Huntsville and Stevenson, Alabama.

In August, 1862, it returned to Nashville, and remained there as part of its garrison during Buell's march to Louisville and through Kentucky, and until the return of the army to Nashville under Rosecrans.

Battery M was then assigned to General Negley's division, of the Fourteenth Corps, and with that division took part in all the skirmishes preceding the battle of Stone River. It greatly distinguished itself in that engagement.

When Rosecrans's army moved from Murfreesboro' toward Tullahoma and Chattanooga, Battery M accompanied it, and took part in all the skirmishes of that march. It also fought through the battle of Chickamauga and the subsequent victory of Mission Ridge.

At this time the battery was ordered to turn over its guns and horses, and, with the remainder of the First Ohio Light Artillery, was taken to Nashville and organized into an Artillery Reserve, under the command of Colonel James Barnett. While in Nashville it was recruited up to its maximum, and newly equipped with guns and horses. It was shortly thereafter again ordered to the field, and on the 25th of June, 1864, it joined the main army at Kennesaw, Georgia.

On July 22d the battery joined General George H. Thomas's Fourth Army Corps at Peachtree Creek, having marched overland from Nashville. It was assigned to the command of Major-General D. S. Stanley, and was immediately placed in the trenches before Atlanta, where it remained until the flanking movement against Jonesboro'. From that time to the battle of Jonesboro' the battery was attached to the First Division of the Fourth Army Corps, and took part in all its marches and skirmishes. Pushing on with the army from Jonesboro' to Lovejoy's, the battery took part in the hot work at the last-named place.

A few days thereafter the whole army was ordered back to Atlanta, and while there battery M was relieved from duty and ordered to Chattanooga. Here it was mustered out in October, 1864. Immediately thereafter it was sent home, paid, and discharged.

It will be observed that each battery has a separate and distinct history, notwithstanding they were component parts of the First Ohio Light Artillery. So scattered, indeed, was this organization that its commanding officer, Colonel James Barnett, of Cleveland, seldom had a sufficient number of its companies together to constitute a respectable command. The different batteries were, therefore, compelled to rely on their company officers for orders, and to those officers belongs mainly the credit of whatever merit they displayed.

On two occasions during the war the regiment was consolidated (or at least nearly so), and placed, with other organizations, in an Artillery Reserve, the combined force under the command of Colonel Barnett. This officer proved himself fully competent for the position, and, whether in command of the Artillery Reserve, or acting as chief artillery officer of head-quarters staff, gave full and complete satisfaction.

The amount of effective service performed by the respective batteries of the First Ohio Light Artillery was very great. They were constantly on duty, and were ever to be found in the most dangerous and critical positions.

1st REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER HEAVY ARTILLERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM.	ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	CHAUNCEY G. HAWLEY.....	Aug. 1, 1863	Sept. 16, 1863		Mustered out with regiment.
Lt. Colonel.....	CHAUNCEY G. HAWLEY.....	2, 1863	Dec. 26, 1863		Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	FORDYCE M. KEITH.....	1, 1863	Sept. 16, 1863		Mustered out with regiment.
Major.....	FORDYCE M. KEITH.....	20, 1863	Dec. 6, 1863		Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.
Do.	WM. G. DICKSON.....	July 3, 1863	Sept. 16, 1863		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	ROBERT W. CALDWELL.....	Aug. 1, " "	16, " "		Discharged January 29, 1864.
Do.	TIMOTHY S. MATTHEWS.....	10, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	HENRY L. BARNES.....	April 9, 1863	April 9, 1864		Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon.....	JOHN L. FIRESTONE.....	Sept. 8, 1862	Dec. 6, 1862		Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	C. M. FINCH.....	19, " "	6, " "
Do.	WM. C. PAINE.....	Dec. 11, " "	11, " "		Declined.
Do.	STRICKLAND ALBRIGHT.....	22, " "	Feb. 10, 1863		Resigned August 18, 1863.
Do.	SILAS E. SHELTON.....	May 8, 1863	May 9, " "		Commission returned.
Do.	W. T. EVANS.....	July 20, " "	July 20, " "		Declined; commission returned.
Do.	E. G. HARRIS.....	Aug. 12, " "	Sept. 16, " "		Resigned August 28, 1864.
Do.	A. B. LAFFERTY.....	Nov. 10, " "	Nov. 10, " "		Resigned January 9, 1865.
Do.	HENRY C. BEARD.....	Jan. 4, 1865	Jan. 4, 1865		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	GEORGE A. E. CAREY.....	Feb. 8, " "	Feb. 8, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain.....	TUNIS T. KENDRICKS.....	Aug. 10, 1863	Sept. 16, 1863		Resigned April 7, 1864.
Do.	JACOB DUPUY.....	March 18, 1863	March 18, 1863		Mustered out with regiment.
Captain.....	Robert W. Caldwell.....	July 15, 1862	Dec. 6, 1862		Promoted to Major.
Do.	WM. C. HAYES.....	25, " "	6, " "		Resigned December 1, 1863.
Do.	Leonidas C. Heatou.....	Aug. 9, " "	6, " "		Resigned November 14, 1863.
Do.	Henry L. Barnes.....	19, " "	6, " "		Promoted to Major.
Do.	James A. Murphy.....	19, " "	6, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Amos B. Colburn.....	22, " "	6, " "		Resigned December 19, 1864.
Do.	James Gatewood.....	30, " "	6, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. J. EVANS.....	Oct. 1, " "	6, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alex. Lewis.....	July 21, 1863	16, 1863		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. FEAS.....	May 27, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. CARROLL.....	Aug. 1, " "	16, " "		Mustered out July 19, 1865.
Do.	Joshua S. Probst.....	May 20, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry J. Bly.....	July 16, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel B. Evans.....	Nov. 14, " "	21, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John C. Morgan.....	Dec. 1, " "	21, " "		Sick at muster out of regiment.
Do.	B. J. F. Holman.....	April 9, 1864	April 9, 1864		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James C. Cabot.....	Jan. 10, 1865	Jan. 20, 1865		Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	WM. CARROLL.....	July 15, 1862	Dec. 6, 1862		Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel B. Evans.....	Aug. 7, " "	6, " "		Promoted to Captain.
Do.	B. J. F. Holman.....	16, " "	6, " "		Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John C. Morgan.....	19, " "	6, " "		Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Alex. F. McMullin.....	19, " "	6, " "		Promoted to Captain 1st U. S. Col'd Heavy Art.
Do.	Jacob M. Tenor.....	19, " "	6, " "		Resigned December 14, 1863.
Do.	Francis Walter.....	30, " "	6, " "		Declined promotion; mustered out with reg't.
Do.	James C. Cabot.....	Oct. 1, " "	6, " "		Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George Dickerson.....	July 21, 1863	Sept. 16, 1863		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel Saylor.....	May 20, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Timothy S. Matthews.....	Sept. 16, 1862	Dec. 6, 1862		Promoted to Major.
Do.	Washington C. Apple.....	16, " "	6, " "		Declined promotion.
Do.	Joseph S. Jeffries.....	Aug. 1, 1863	Sept. 16, 1863		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Elisha Fitzwilliam.....	1, " "	16, " "		Resigned February 25, 1864.
Do.	George L. Hayes.....	19, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hugh S. Fullerton.....	1, " "	16, " "		Resigned August 12, 1864.
Do.	S. S. Forrester.....	1, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James R. Oldson.....	10, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Q. Shumway.....	10, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. S. MARTIN.....	10, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Calvin C. Mingus.....	July 24, " "	16, " "		Resigned January 17, 1865.
Do.	WM. H. WALLACE.....	June 1, " "	16, " "		Resigned May 5, 1864.
Do.	Bolivar Webber.....	Aug. 28, " "	16, " "		Honorably discharged May 27, 1864.
Do.	Ebenezer Wilson.....	1, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James H. Ainsley.....	1, " "	16, " "		Mustered out July 25, 1865.
Do.	Nelson E. Prentiss.....	Sept. 5, " "	16, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John S. Armstrong.....	Nov. 14, " "	Dec. 21, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George H. Ritchey.....	Dec. 1, " "	21, " "		Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	Dan. W. Firestone.....	14, " "	21, " "		Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	J. W. Wallace.....	April 9, 1864	April 9, 1864		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel B. Violet.....	9, " "	9, " "		Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	Joseph Rule.....	July 13, " "	July 13, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas M. James.....	13, " "	13, " "		Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	John Foreman.....	13, " "	13, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Philoander S. Abbott.....	Nov. 26, " "	Nov. 26, " "		Resigned June 12, 1865.
Do.	Lewis Harris.....	Jan. 20, 1865	Jan. 20, 1865		Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Clinton D. Evans.....	May 31, " "	May 31, " "		Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Joseph S. Jeffries.....	July 22, 1862	Dec. 6, 1862		Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Peter B. Hayes.....	Aug. 4, " "	6, " "		Resigned March 21, 1863.
Do.	George L. Hayes.....	19, " "	6, " "		Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. W. Wallace.....	19, " "	6, " "		Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James R. Oldson.....	19, " "	6, " "		Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel B. Violet.....	22, " "	6, " "		Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	WM. S. MARTIN.....	22, " "	6, " "		Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel Drummond.....	30, " "	6, " "		Honorably discharged May 17, 1864.
Do.	David Foster.....	July 24, 1863	Sept. 16, 1863		Resigned November 29, 1863.
Do.	Nesbit Combs.....	Aug. 10, " "	16, " "		Discharged April 9, 1864.
Do.	John S. Armstrong.....	March 16, " "	April 29, " "		Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
2d Lieutenant	Lewis Farris.....	Aug. 10, 1863	Sept. 16, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Clinton D. Evans.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel R. Russell.....	" 4, "	" 16, "	Mustered out February 26, 1865.
Do.	John W. Potts.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Mustered out July 13, 1865.
Do.	Thomas M. James.....	June 23, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Dan. W. Firestone.....	Aug. 10, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Edmund W. S. Neff.....	July 20, "	" 16, "	Resigned May 13, 1865.
Do.	Wm. H. Bonsall.....	Aug. 10, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David C. Howard.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Hutsepillar.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Joseph Kube.....	June 18, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Lot Davies.....	Aug. 10, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hugh Sheop.....	July 21, "	" 13, "	Resigned November 23, 1863.
Do.	David Delay.....	Aug. 10, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Foreman.....	" 1, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George H. Ritchey.....	" 10, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Philander S. Abbott.....	" 1, "	" 16, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Benajah C. Miller.....	" 1, "	" 16, "	Resigned November 22, 1864.
Do.	Thomas W. Terry.....	Nov. 23, "	Dec. 21, "	Died May 3, 1864.
Do.	Wm. C. Cole.....	" 23, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Eri S. Keith.....	" 14, "	" 21, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaac C. Wynn.....	Dec. 1, "	" 21, "	Resigned June 8, 1865.
Do.	Charles M. Stenson.....	" 14, "	" 21, "	Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	Noah S. Clark.....	April 9, 1864	April 9, 1864	Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	John Dascomb.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alexander Power.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David Snoddy.....	" 9, "	" 9, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Robert W. Hubbard.....	July 13, "	July 13, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Hilburn C. Miller.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	Augustus W. Ridgeway.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Resigned June 24, 1865.
Do.	James Martin.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	David J. Comley.....	" 13, "	" 13, "	Resigned October 28, 1864.
Do.	James W. Tarleton.....	Sept. 26, "	Sept. 26, "	"
Do.	Wm. Revens.....	Nov. 26, "	Nov. 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James G. Fish.....	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Marshall Brambleth.....	Jan. 20, 1865	Jan. 20, 1865	Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	Wallace E. Bratton.....	" 30, "	" 30, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. Lawson.....	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out June 20, 1865.
Do.	John N. Forster.....	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.

The history of this organization is included in the sketch of the One Hundred and Seventeenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, on pages 608 and 609 of this work. The 117th formed the nucleus of the First Ohio Heavy Artillery.

2d REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER HEAVY ARTILLERY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	CO.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Colonel	HORATIO G. GIBSON		Aug. 15, 1863	Oct. 10, 1863	Mustered out with reg't; brvt. Brig. Gen.
Lt. Colonel	HORATIO G. GIBSON		1, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	MARTIN B. EWING		15, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	MARTIN B. EWING		July 1, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	LAFAYETTE HAMMOND		Aug. 1, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	WM. S. IRWIN		18, "	10, "	Resigned August 6, 1864.
Do.	DAN. W. HOFFMAN		30, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	PHILIP ROTHROCK		Aug. 19, "	Aug. 19, 1864	Died of wounds October 12, 1864.
Do.	LEMON S. POWELL		Oct. 11, "	Oct. 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	STRECKLAND ALBRIGHT		Aug. 11, "	10, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	FRANK E. POWERS		" 25, "	" 10, "	Promoted to Surgeon 180th reg't Oct. 12, '64.
Do.	R. A. DWYER		" 25, "	" 10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	E. V. KUNDIG		Sept. 27, 1864	Sept. 27, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	JOHN MORGAN		Nov. 12, "	Nov. 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Chaplain	JOHN F. SPANGLER		Sept. 23, 1863	Oct. 10, 1863	Resigned November 17, 1864.
Do.	JOHN Q. GIBSON		Dec. 28, 1864	Dec. 28, 1864	On detached duty at muster-out of reg't.
Captain	WM. S. IRWIN		July 14, 1863	Oct. 10, 1863	Promoted.
Do.	George F. Souner		Sept. 8, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Philip Rothrock		B. Aug. 5, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Horace G. Whiting		" 19, "	10, "	Resigned May 27, 1864.
Do.	John G. Durbin		" 28, "	10, "	Honorably discharged March 22, 1865.
Do.	Wm. B. Bowland		" 27, "	10, "	Mustered out from date of muster-in.
Do.	Edward S. Aleshaite		" 29, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Orris O. King		" 28, "	10, "	Resigned May 12, 1865.
Do.	John F. Herbert		" 26, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas A. Stevenson		" 25, "	10, "	Resigned June 10, 1865.
Do.	Dan. W. Hoffman		" 27, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Lemon S. Powell		" 5, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Wm. H. H. Crowell		" 27, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Stowell S. Hazen		K. Sept. 30, "	Dec. 25, "	Resigned June 24, 1865.
Do.	Harley N. Gifford		C. June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Resigned June 12, 1865.
Do.	Wm. F. Houston		E. July 19, "	July 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	S. S. Burke		B. Aug. 19, "	Aug. 19, "	Declined promotion.
Do.	Samuel Coleman		B. Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Resigned February 21, 1865.
Do.	Richard Burns		L. 18, "	18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James E. Dresbach		C. Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment. [1st Lt.
Do.	Alpheus R. Rogers		B. March 18, "	March 18, "	Com. revoked; muster out with reg't as
Do.	James B. Doney		D. April 8, "	April 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Isaac J. Vance		I. May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Murphy		B. 31, "	31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Alonzo J. Thompson		I. June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Walter S. Bradford		K. 16, "	16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
1st Lieutenant	Samuel S. Burke		A. July 20, 1863	Oct. 10, 1863	Appointed Captain 5th reg't Penn. M. I.
Do.	Jacob M. Grim		A. Jan. 1, 1864	Feb. 8, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel Coleman		B. Aug. 3, 1863	Oct. 10, 1863	Promoted.
Do.	Isaac J. Vance		" 5, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Wm. H. Elliott		" 31, "	10, "	Discharged November 4, 1863.
Do.	Harley N. Gifford		D. July 20, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	David Cozad		C. Aug. 19, "	10, "	Resigned.
Do.	Charles O. Baker		C. 27, "	10, "	Died May 12, 1864.
Do.	Thomas J. Cooper		E. 27, "	10, "	Resigned April 11, 1865.
Do.	Walter S. Bradford		E. 27, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	James E. Hebard		F. 29, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Q. Gibson		F. 29, "	10, "	Promoted to Chaplain.
Do.	Walter B. King		G. 28, "	10, "	Resigned August 8, 1864.
Do.	Stephen D. Rockhill		G. 28, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. H. Murphy		H. 26, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	James E. Dresbach		H. 26, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	James B. Doney		I. 26, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Alonzo J. Thompson		I. 26, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Stowell S. Hazen		K. 27, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Richard Burns		K. 25, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Alpheus R. Rogers		L. 24, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. F. Houston		L. July 18, "	10, "	Promoted.
Do.	John F. Wisniewski		M. Aug. 29, "	10, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel N. Castle		M. 29, "	10, "
Do.	Thomas M. Sechler		K. Sept. 30, "	Dec. 28, "	Resigned June 3, 1865.
Do.	Charles W. Doyle		C. June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Walter G. Marmon		D. 14, "	14, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles H. Newton		D. July 19, "	July 19, "	Resigned January 19, 1865.
Do.	Ira Temple		C. 19, "	19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. T. Evans		D. 19, "	19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Adrian A. Burrows		E. 19, "	19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Harrison Wiley		G. Aug. 19, "	Aug. 19, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hiram C. Holt		B. 19, "	19, "	Resigned June 14, 1865.
Do.	Emery Godden		A. Oct. 12, "	Oct. 12, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles A. McManis		K. 1, "	18, "	Resigned June 24, 1865.
Do.	John D. Vandeman		F. Dec. 28, "	Dec. 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James A. Hedges		C. 28, "	28, "	Resigned June 18, 1865.
Do.	Edward A. Davidson		H. 28, "	28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Walter G. Marmon		H. Feb. 10, 1865	Feb. 10, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. R. Lawrence		E. March 18, "	March 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wm. P. Chapman		I. April 8, "	April 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles W. Doyle		B. May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Louis Baer		H. 31, "	31, "	Mustered out with regiment.

RANK.	NAME.	CO.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
1st Lieutenant	Francis Reichman.....	K.	June 16, 1865	June 16, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George W. Bell.....	B.	" 16, "	" 16, "	On General Cartter's Staff at muster out of
Do.	Thomas D. Woods.....	C.	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Perceval C. Wilson.....	L.	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John Williams.....	E.	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	Jacob M. Grimm.....	A.	July 20, 1865	Oct. 10, 1865	Promoted.
Do.	Wm. P. Chapman.....	A.	Sept. 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Charles W. Doyle.....	E.	" 10, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Francis Reichman.....	B.	Sept. 25, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	John Fisher.....	C.	" 18, "	" 10, "	Desired promotion.
Do.	Ezra A. Herriman.....	C.	" 20, "	" 10, "	Resigned May 20, 1864.
Do.	John D. Vandeman.....	D.	" 28, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	James Mulcahy.....	D.	Sept. 26, "	" 10, "	Died December 1, 1863.
Do.	James A. Hedges.....	E.	" 27, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Edward A. Davidson.....	E.	" 27, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Louis Baer.....	E.	" 29, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	A. Marshallman.....	F.	" 29, "	" 10, "	Resigned February 15, 1865.
Do.	John F. Gifford.....	G.	" 29, "	" 10, "	Resigned June 12, 1865.
Do.	Wm. R. Lawrence.....	G.	" 28, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Ira Temple.....	H.	" 26, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Wick Corwin.....	H.	Sept. 21, "	Nov. 14, "	Resigned August 8, 1864.
Do.	Wm. T. Evans.....	I.	Aug. 28, "	Oct. 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Hiram C. Holt.....	I.	" 28, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Thomas M. Schler.....	K.	" 28, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Charles H. Newton.....	K.	" 29, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Harrison Wiley.....	L.	" 24, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Walter G. Marmon.....	L.	" 24, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Adrian A. Burrows.....	M.	" 29, "	" 10, "	Promoted.
Do.	Stephen R. Powell.....	M.	" 29, "	" 10, "	Resigned October 1, 1864.
Do.	George W. Bell.....	K.	Sept. 30, "	Dec. 28, "	Promoted.
Do.	Charles A. McManis.....	L.	" 7, "	July 19, 1864	Promoted.
Do.	Emery Godden.....	D.	" 7, "	" 19, "	Promoted.
Do.	Martin Godkey.....	A.	Jan. 1, 1864	Feb. 8, "	Resigned March 29, 1865.
Do.	Thomas D. Woods.....	C.	Aug. 19, "	Aug. 19, "	Promoted.
Do.	Perceval C. Wilson.....	H.	" 19, "	" 19, "	Promoted.
Do.	John Williams.....	L.	Sept. 15, "	Sept. 15, "	Promoted.
Do.	Thomas Underwood.....	K.	" 15, "	" 15, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Lyman Spencer.....	M.	" 15, "	" 15, "	Resigned June 3, 1865.
Do.	Isaac B. Smith.....	H.	" 26, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John W. Smith.....	I.	" 26, "	" 26, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Calvin V. Wilcox.....	L.	Oct. 18, "	Oct. 18, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Frank M. Thomas.....	L.	" 18, "	" 18, "	On detached duty at muster out of reg't.
Do.	James M. Hingley.....	M.	" 18, "	" 18, "	Absent on sick leave at mus. out of reg't.
Do.	George W. Harbaugh.....	I.	Nov. 3, "	Nov. 3, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Atkins.....	M.	" 3, "	" 3, "	Resigned May 12, 1865.
Do.	Joseph W. Rothrock.....	D.	Dec. 28, "	Dec. 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Foster Todd.....	E.	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Fisher.....	E.	" 28, "	" 28, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas J. Corwin.....	L.	Feb. 23, 1865	Feb. 23, 1865	Resigned June 24, 1865.
Do.	Charles H. Dalrymple.....	F.	" 23, "	" 23, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Thomas Fisher.....	G.	March 18, "	March 11, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James M. Hingley.....	A.	April 8, "	April 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Addison A. Kennedy.....	G.	" 8, "	" 8, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Boster.....	M.	May 31, "	May 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	James Shields.....	B.	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Samuel W. Vincent.....	F.	" 31, "	" 31, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Marion McDonald.....	M.	June 16, "	June 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John A. Sapp.....	G.	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Daniel A. Rhudy.....	B.	" 16, "	" 16, "	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Henry A. Flarey.....	K.	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John George.....	C.	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Peter F. Trapanier.....	H.	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	George Anderson.....	I.	Mustered out with regiment.

SECOND OHIO HEAVY ARTILLERY.

BY the middle of 1863 the National armies had made important captures of forts and other strongholds belonging to the enemy. It became necessary to recruit a class of troops whose duty it should be to fortify, garrison, and hold these captures. The One Hundred and Seventeenth Ohio Infantry had already been used as a nucleus for the First Heavy Artillery, and its ranks had been recruited up to the maximum standard. The Second Ohio Heavy Artillery, consisting of twenty-four hundred men, rank and file, was then authorized.

BATTERY A

Was mustered into the service on the 20th of July, 1863, at Camp Dennison, and on the 19th of August was moved to Covington Barracks. Thence, on October 11th, it was sent to Fort Jones on Muldraugh's Hill. On January 10, 1864, one-half of the battery moved to Fort De Wolf, near Shepherdsville, Kentucky, and on May 24th to Camp Sedgwick, Cleveland, Tennessee.

On August 17, 1864, the battery was engaged with the enemy under Wheeler, and from August 22d to the 28th marched with Steedman's column in pursuit of the Rebels. From August 17th to October 9, 1864, it was encamped at Fort McPherson, Cleveland, Tennessee. It moved on the 9th to Loudon, Tennessee, and occupied Forts De Hart, Davis, and Russell. On the 18th of November it moved with the column under Brigadier-General Tillson, to open communication with the forces then engaged with the enemy at Strawberry Plains. On the 20th it returned to Knoxville, and on December 7th accompanied Brigadier-General Ammen's command to Bean's Station, and thence with an auxiliary force covering the operations of the cavalry under Major-General Stoneman in south-western Virginia.

The battery returned to Knoxville on the 29th of December, and moved from that place to Camp Rothrock and Fort Saunders on the 9th of January, 1865. On the 23d of August, 1865, at Nashville, Tennessee, it was mustered out of the service, and on August 29th was paid and discharged at Camp Chase.

BATTERY B

Was mustered into the service on the 5th of August, 1863, at Camp Dennison, and on the 19th it moved to Covington Barracks; thence, on the 5th of September, to Fort Smith at Bowling Green, Kentucky. It lay here until May 26, 1864, and then moved to Charleston, Tennessee.

On August 3d the battery was at Cleveland, Tennessee, and took part in an engagement with the enemy's cavalry under Wheeler, on the 17th of the same month. In this affair Captain Philip Rothrock was wounded. On October 9th the battery moved to Fort Saunders and Knoxville, and on November 18, 1864, marched with General Tillson's command to open communication with the Union forces then in a critical position at Strawberry Plains. On the 20th of November it returned to Fort Saunders, Knoxville, and on the 7th of December marched with General Ammen's command to Bean's Station, Tennessee. On December 29, 1864, it again returned to Knoxville, moving immediately thereafter to Camp Rothrock and Fort Byington, which points it reached in January, 1865.

On the 23d of August, 1865, the battery moved to Nashville, and was there mustered out of the service. On the 29th of the same month it was paid and discharged at Camp Chase.

BATTERY C

Was mustered into the service on the 26th of August, 1863, at Covington Barracks. It moved to Fort Smith at Bowling Green, Kentucky, on the 5th of September, 1863. Remaining here until May 26th, 1864, it was then sent to Charleston, Tennessee. While at the last-named place, on August 18, 1864, it was engaged with the enemy's cavalry under Wheeler. Thence it marched in pursuit with Major-General Steedman's command, and participated in the subsequent operations with the rest of the regiment, as already described in the sketches of the preceding batteries.

On December 29th it returned to Knoxville. Thence it moved to Loudon, Tennessee, arriving there on January 11, 1865. The battery remained at this point in garrison, until the 23d of August, 1865, when it was taken to Nashville and mustered out of the service. On the 29th of August, 1865, it had reached Camp Chase, and the men were on that day paid and discharged.

BATTERY D

Was mustered into the service on the 7th of September, 1863, at Covington, Kentucky, and on the 19th of the same month it moved out to Fort Saunders on Muldraugh's Hill. Thence, on May 26, 1864, it went into garrison at Tyner's Station, where it remained up to October 9th. It was then transferred to Loudon, Tennessee.

On November 18, 1864, the battery marched from Loudon with Brigadier-General Tillson's command, to open communication with the forces at Strawberry Plains. On November 20th it returned to Knoxville, and a few days thereafter marched with a column under command of Brigadier-General Ammen, to Bean's Station.

The battery again returned to Knoxville, reaching there on the 29th of December. Thence it went to camp Rothrock and Loudon, Tennessee, reaching the last-named place on January 11, 1865. On the 23d of August it returned to Nashville, and was there mustered out of the service. On the 29th of the same month it had reached Camp Chase, and was on that day paid and finally discharged.

BATTERY E

Was mustered into the service on the 9th of September, 1863, at Covington Barracks. On the 19th it moved out on the Railroad, from Louisville, to Muldraugh's Hill, as garrison to Fort Boyle at that place. It lay here up to May 26, 1864, when it was ordered to Camp Sedgwick, near Cleveland, Tennessee. On August 17, 1864, the battery had its first engagement with the enemy under Wheeler, and participated with the rest of the regiment in the subsequent movements already described.

On December 29, 1864, it returned to Knoxville and went into Camp Rothrock. Thence, on January 11, 1865, it moved to Loudon, Tennessee, where it lay until the 20th of August, 1865, when it was taken to Nashville and mustered out of the service on the 23d of the same month. On the 29th of August, 1865, the battery had reached Camp Chase, and the men were on that day paid and discharged.

BATTERY F

Was mustered into the service on September 23, 1863, at Covington, Kentucky, and on October 11th moved to Fort Lytle at Bowling Green, Kentucky. It occupied this fort until May 26, 1864, when it moved to Charleston, Tennessee. While at this point, in August, it was engaged with the enemy under Wheeler, and thence shared the movements of the regiment already described.

On the 29th of December it returned to Knoxville and went into Camp Rothrock. Thence, on January 11, 1865, it moved to Loudon, Tennessee. It was taken to Nashville, where, on the 23d of August, 1865, it was mustered out of the service. Thence it went home to Camp Chase, and on August 29, 1865, was paid and discharged.

BATTERY G

Came into the service at Covington, Kentucky, on the 19th of September, 1863. On October 11th it moved to Fort Baker at Bowling Green, Kentucky. It remained at Fort Baker until May 26, 1864, when it was transferred to Charleston, Tennessee. On August 3d it moved to Cleveland, where, on the 17th of August, it took part in an engagement with the Rebel cavalry under Wheeler, and then moved with the other batteries in the operations under Steedman and Ammen already described.

On February 1, 1865, the battery moved to Athens, Tennessee. It was mustered out at Nashville, August 23, 1865. It reached Camp Chase on the 29th of August, 1865, and was on that day paid and finally discharged.

BATTERY H

Was mustered into the service on the 7th of September, 1863, at Covington Barracks, whence, on October 11th, it moved to Battery McConnell at Munfordsville. It remained in garrison at Battery McConnell until the 26th of May, 1864, when it went to Camp Sedgwick at Cleveland, Tennessee. While at Cleveland it was engaged with the enemy's cavalry under Wheeler, and joined Steedman's column in pursuit, from the 22d to the 28th of August, 1864. In the engagement with the Rebel cavalry Major Rothrock of the regiment was killed.

Thereafter the battery shared with the others the subsequent operations already described. It remained at Strawberry Plains from December 23, 1864, until August 23, 1865, when it was taken to Nashville and mustered out. It was finally paid and discharged at Camp Chase, on the 29th of August.

BATTERY I

Was mustered into the United States service on the 7th of September, 1863, at Covington, Kentucky, and on October 11th moved to Fort De Wolf at Shepherdsville, Kentucky. Remaining here until January 10, 1864, it then went to Fort Nelson (Camp Nelson), Kentucky. On May 26, 1865, the battery moved from Camp Nelson to Camp Sedgwick at Cleveland, Tennessee, and while there was engaged (August 17th) with a Rebel cavalry force under Wheeler.

On October 9, 1864, the battery was transferred to Fort Galpin at Knoxville, and on December 7th it marched with the forces under Brigadier-General Jacob Ammen, to Bean's Station. It returned to Fort Galpin at Knoxville, where it remained up to August 23, 1865. It was then taken to Nashville and mustered out of the service. On August 29, 1865, it was paid and finally discharged at Camp Chase.

BATTERY K

Was also mustered into the service on September 7, 1863, at Covington Barracks, and on October 11th was moved to Munfordsville. On May 26, 1864, it was transferred to Charleston, Tennessee, where, on the 18th of August, it was engaged with the enemy's cavalry under Wheeler, and participated in the subsequent movements already described.

It remained in camp at Clinch Gap, Tennessee, until December 31, 1864, when it returned to Fort Lee at Knoxville. Shortly thereafter the battery was ordered to Greenville, Tennessee, and thence to Nashville, where, on the 23d of August, 1865, it was mustered out of the service. On August 29, 1865, it was finally paid and discharged at Camp Chase.

BATTERY L

Came into the service on September 7, 1863, at Covington Barracks, and on October 8th was moved to Fort Boone, Frankfort, Kentucky. Thence it was transferred, in December of the same year, to Battery Simons at Munfordsville, Kentucky. From there, in May, 1864, it marched by land to Camp Sedgwick, at Cleveland, Tennessee, as guard to the regimental wagon-train.

On August 3, 1864, it moved to Charleston, Tennessee. There it participated in the engagement with the Rebel cavalry under Wheeler, and in the subsequent movements till it reached Strawberry Plains, where it remained up to August, 1865. It was then taken to Nashville and mustered out of the service on August 23, 1865. On August 29th it had reached Camp Chase, and on that day was finally paid and discharged.

BATTERY M

Was mustered into the service on September 9, 1863, at Covington Barracks, and on the 18th of the same month it moved to Fort Willich, Munfordsville, Kentucky. On the 10th of January, 1864, it was transferred to Fort Taylor at Camp Nelson, Kentucky, where it remained on duty up to May 26, 1864. Camp Sedgwick at Cleveland, Tennessee, was the next scene of its operations; and from this point it participated with the rest of the regiment in the operations already recounted.

On February 1, 1865, it was at Athens, Tennessee. Thence it was taken up to Nashville, and there mustered out of the service on August 23, 1865. On the 29th of the same month it was finally paid and discharged at Camp Chase.

In November, 1864, a detachment of the regiment, in command of Captain Coleman and Second-Lieutenants W. R. Lawrence and J. B. Smith, engaged the enemy under Breckinridge and Vaughan, near Morristown, Tennessee, and covered the retreat of General Gillem's forces in a creditable manner.

127th REGIMENT OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY—(Colored.)

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	REMARKS.
Colonel	J. W. CONINE	Nov. —, 1863	Resigned August, 1864.
Do.	G. W. SHURTLEFF	Sept. 29, 1864	Resigned July, 1865. Brevet Brigadier-General.
Do.	J. B. COOK	—, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Lieut. Colonel	G. W. SHURTLEFF	Aug. —, 1863	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	J. B. COOK	Sept. 29, 1864	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	W. R. BRAZIE	—, 1863	Mustered out with regiment.
Major	J. C. FERRY	—, 1863	Transferred by promotion.
Do.	W. R. BRAZIE	—, 1864	Promoted to Colonel.
Do.	GEO. B. COCK	—, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Surgeon	LYMAN S. ALLEN	—	Resigned June, 1865.
Do.	— MERRILL	June —, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Ass't Surgeon	LYMAN S. ALLEN	Sept. —, 1863	Promoted to Surgeon.
Do.	— MERRIWEATHER	—	Died April, 1865.
Do.	A. J. GRAY	June —, 1865	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	— EASTMAN	July —, —	Mustered out with regiment.
Captain	O. P. Brockway	—	Died from wounds received June 13, 1864.
Do.	Carl Von Heintze	—	Commission revoked.
Do.	Gustave W. Fahrion	—	Resigned June, 1865.
Do.	A. M. Poundstone	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Charles Oren	—	Killed in siege of Petersburg, Va., July, 1864.
Do.	E. C. Ford	—	Transferred by promotion November, 1864.
Do.	George B. Cock	—	Promoted to Major.
Do.	E. R. Blood	—	Resigned September, 1864.
Do.	Frank J. Ford	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	C. T. Speer	—	Commission revoked.
Do.	C. A. Bennett	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	U. S. Marvin	—	Mustered out as Brevet Major.
Do.	E. F. Bates	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. H. Dearborn	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Wales Wilbur	—	Died of wounds received September 29, 1864.
Do.	R. H. Jones	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	E. F. Graybill	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	Hubbard	—	Promoted from Fourth reg.; never reported.
1st Lieutenant	J. B. T. Marsh	—	Quartermaster; resigned May, 1865.
Do.	E. F. Graybill	—	Adjutant; promoted to Captain.
Do.	C. A. Bennett	—	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	W. Wilbur	—	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	E. F. Bates	—	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	U. S. Marvin	—	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	R. H. Jones	—	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	R. D. Johnson	—	Killed June 15, 1864.
Do.	C. W. Griffith	—	Resigned.
Do.	P. A. Stamatis	—	Resigned.
Do.	E. R. Smith	—	Killed July, 1864.
Do.	C. T. Speer	—	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	John A. Price	—	Resigned August, 1864.
Do.	J. S. McClelland	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	D. L. Way	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. J. S. Roggs	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	B. S. Spangler	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. T. Johnson	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	John B. Viers	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	A. A. Safford	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	H. L. Turner	—	Adjutant, mustered out with regiment.
Do.	F. J. Call	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	W. H. Ryder	—	Mustered out with regiment.
2d Lieutenant	R. H. Jones	—	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	B. S. Spangler	—	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. S. McClelland	—	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	D. L. Way	—	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. T. Johnson	—	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	F. J. Call	—	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	W. H. Ryder	—	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	J. B. Viers	—	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	E. R. Smith	—	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Long	—	Resigned December, 1863.
Do.	B. D. Wilson	—	Resigned September, 1864.
Do.	L. Chapin	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	J. B. Johnson	—	Transferred by promotion.
Do.	D. L. Rockwell	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	W. A. Barrows	—	Mustered out with regiment.
Do.	T. C. Owen	—	Commission revoked.

127th OHIO; OR, FIFTH COLORED U. S. INFANTRY.

THIS was the first complete negro regiment recruited in Ohio. Previously there had been quite a number of colored men recruited for the Fifty-Fourth Massachusetts, who had been sent to Boston, and thus, in a measure, lost in the "credits" of another State. In the summer of 1863 Captain McCoy of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry was detailed by Governor Tod to superintend the recruiting of colored troops in Ohio, and stationed at Camp Delaware, in Delaware County. With considerable difficulty a few colored men were collected at this camp, with which to form the nucleus of a regiment. Notwithstanding there was no law of Congress regulating the organization of colored troops, and no order from the War Department calling them into service, the initiative was taken by the mustering into the service of J. B. T. Marsh as Quartermaster of the One Hundred and Twenty-Seventh Ohio. The only law, indeed, which gave a semblance of authority to such organizations was that known as "The Contraband Law," which gave a colored laborer in the service of the United States ten dollars per month, three dollars for clothing, and seven dollars as his pay proper.

Recruiting progressed slowly; the few who had enlisted became dissatisfied, and the organization could with difficulty be kept together. A few faithful men, however, who thought they saw in the future that their race would be greatly benefited by the results of the war, and who were ambitious to show themselves worthy of their freedom, stood firm. Prominent among these were Sergeants Tyler, Holland, and Beatty, who exercised a controlling influence over the men, and sought by every means in their power to induce them to remain true to the cause in which they were enlisted.

Finally, an order from the War Department called colored men into the service of the United States. Boards were convened for the examination of officers, and promises were given that the next Congress would provide for them by placing them on an equality with the other troops.

The organization was changed from the One Hundred and Twenty-Seventh Ohio to the Fifth Regiment of United States Colored Troops, and G. W. Shurtleff, of Oberlin, was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel. This gentleman, who had previously made a fine reputation as a gallant officer in the Seventh Ohio, infused new life into the enterprise, and brought order out of chaos to such degree that recruiting went on more rapidly.

Officers were appointed, and early in November the regiment, fully equipped, went to Virginia with nine companies and nearly the full complement of officers. A few days after its arrival at Norfolk Colonel Conine, who had been commissioned by the President as commander of the regiment, reported for duty and assumed command.

In December, 1863, the regiment formed part of the command under General Wild in the rapid raid made by that officer through the enemy's country to Elizabeth City, North Carolina. While on this raid a detachment of four companies of the Fifth, while on the march, were attacked by guerrillas in ambush. Four men of the detachment were killed, and several wounded by the first fire. Flankers were promptly thrown out to uncover the enemy and ascertain their strength, but, failing to dislodge or draw them from their position, Captain George B. Cock, with his company, made a charge which scattered them into the adjacent swamps.

In January, 1864, the regiment moved to Yorktown, where it remained until April. During this time it twice made rapid marches up the peninsula to the Chickahominy River, within a few miles of Richmond. In February Captain Speer joined the regiment with the tenth company.

In May, 1864, the regiment accompanied the expedition planned by Major-General Butler from Fortress Monroe against Richmond and Petersburg, forming a part of the colored division of the Eighteenth Army Corps. The Fifth was the first regiment to gain the shore at City Point, capturing the Rebel signal officers and the corps stationed there. Up to the 15th of June the greater part of the time of the regiment was employed in picketing and fortifying City Point and Fort Converse, on the Appomattox River.

The 15th of June, 1864, is memorable as the beginning of the siege of Petersburg, when the colored division stormed the heights, and captured two strong earthworks, with several pieces of artillery. General "Baldy" Smith, who commanded the Eighteenth Corps, watched the colored division with great anxiety, and when he saw them carry the works with the bayonet, he exclaimed: "That is equal to Lookout Mountain. No troops ever did better fighting!"

In this action the regiment lost a number of men and one officer killed. Among the wounded was Colonel Conine, who shortly afterward was sent to hospital at Annapolis, and while there tendered his resignation.

From the date of this action up to the 15th of August the regiment was constantly on duty in the trenches, building forts, or on the skirmish-line, during which time it lost many men and several valuable officers. In the latter part of August the Third Division of the Eighteenth Corps (colored troops), under General Paine, was withdrawn from the front of Petersburg, and transferred to the north side of the James River, at Deep Bottom. While in camp at this place the Fifth received three hundred and seventy-five recruits from Ohio, making, all told, one hundred and eleven men to each company. Many of the men, however, were on detached service, and in hospitals, sick and wounded. On September 29, 1864, occurred the battle of Chapin's Farm, the storming of New Market Heights, and the capture of Fort Harrison. At daylight the colored troops moved from their camps at Deep Bottom, drove in the Rebel pickets, and assaulted their works at New Market. The first onset was made by the Fourth and Sixth Regiments United States Colored Troops, and was repulsed with severe loss. The Fifth, Thirty-Sixth, and Thirty-Eighth regiments then charged, in the face of a deadly fire of musketry, across a stream densely fringed with thick underbrush, over thorny abattis, and carried the works like a storm. In this assault forty-five men dead, and many wounded, were left upon the field. Colonel Shurtleff and three of the Captains of the Fifth were wounded. In the afternoon of the same day the Fifth, along with a brigade of white troops, assaulted Fort Gilmer. The white troops faltered, wavered, and finally withdrew in confusion, while the Fifth Colored, unsupported and alone, pressed on close up to the fort, and two or three of the men had actually scaled the walls, when Major Terry received an order to withdraw the regiment, which was effected in good order. A few men and one Lieutenant were left on the field, and fell into the hands of the enemy. In this day's fighting the regiment lost nine officers wounded, one of whom (Captain Wilbur) died; and out of five hundred and fifty men in rank who went into the fight, eighty-five were killed and two hundred and forty-eight wounded, the loss thus amounting to over fifty per cent. The bare mention of the fact constitutes an encomium as high as any troops may hope to win. Sergeants Beatty, Holland, Pimm, and Brunson, of the Fifth, were awarded medals, both by Congress and by General Butler, for gallantry in this action.

General Paine's division of colored troops (in which the Fifth was included) accompanied General Terry's expedition against Fort Fisher and Wilmington. At the capture of Fort Fisher the colored troops rendered good service by keeping at bay the Rebel General Hoke's division, which was attempting to re-enforce the garrison. They also took an active part in the assault on Sugar Loaf and Fort Anderson, and marched with Terry's command to Raleigh, North Carolina.

After the surrender of the Rebel armies the Fifth was stationed awhile at Goldsboro'. Thence it went to Newbern and to Carolina City. In the latter part of September it returned to Columbus, where, after as honorable service as any of the regiments, it was discharged, October 5, 1865.

4th REGIMENT VIRGINIA VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEAR'S SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF COM.	REMARKS.
Colonel.....	J. J. LIGHTBURN.....	July —, 1861	Janehaw, West Virginia.
Do.....	JAMES H. DAYTON.....	April 15, 1864
Lt. Colonel.....	W. H. H. RUSSELL.....	July —, 1861	Sandy Hill, West Virginia.
Do.....	JOHN L. VANCE.....	April 15, 1864
Major.....	JOHN T. HALL.....	July —, 1861	Point Pleasant, West Virginia.
Do.....	HENRY GRAHAM.....	April 15, 1864
Adjutant.....	P. B. STANBERRY.....	July —, 1861	Pomeroy, Ohio
Do.....	ALPHEUS BEALL.....	April 15, 1864
Quartermaster.....	J. V. STEVENS.....	July —, 1861	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Surgeon.....	G. K. ACKLEY.....	" —, "	Racine, Ohio.
Do.....	JOHN R. PHILSON.....	" —, "
Assistant Surgeon.....	JOHN R. PHILSON.....	April 15, 1864	Racine, Ohio.
Do.....	H. C. WATERMAN.....	April 15, 1864	Middleport, Ohio.
Chaplain.....	— WOODHULL.....	July —, 1861	Point Pleasant, West Virginia.
Captain.....	J. S. Welton.....	" —, "	Mason City, West Virginia.
Do.....	John L. Vance.....	" —, "	Gallipolis, Ohio.
Do.....	T. J. Smith.....	" —, "	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	Arza Goodspeed.....	" —, "	Athens, Ohio.
Do.....	Wm. R. Brown.....	" —, "	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	George W. Story.....	" —, "	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	Henry Graham.....	" —, "	Gallipolis, Ohio.
Do.....	P. H. Brunker.....	" —, "	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	A. Vance.....	" —, "	Gallipolis, Ohio.
Do.....	James H. Dayton.....	" —, "	New Creek, West Virginia.
Do.....	M. V. Lightburn.....	April 15, 1864
Do.....	B. W. Curtis.....	" 15, "
Do.....	B. J. Rawlins.....	" 15, "
Do.....	John L. Mallance.....	" 15, "
Do.....	D. A. Russell.....	" 15, "
Do.....	W. S. Hall.....	" 15, "
Do.....	Wm. H. Graham.....	" 15, "
Do.....	B. D. Boswell.....	" 15, "
Do.....	C. A. Shepard.....	" 15, "
Do.....	John Mansell.....	" 15, "
1st Lieutenant.....	D. A. Smith.....	July —, 1861	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	Wm. Bailey.....	" —, "	Gallipolis, Ohio.
Do.....	B. J. Rawlins.....	" —, "	Letart, West Virginia.
Do.....	John L. Mallance.....	" —, "	Athens, Ohio.
Do.....	E. C. Carson.....	" —, "	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	Wm. S. Hall.....	" —, "	Murraysville, West Virginia.
Do.....	John DeLill.....	" —, "	Gallipolis, Ohio.
Do.....	H. F. Donnelly.....	" —, "	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	C. A. Shepard.....	" —, "	Gallipolis, Ohio.
Do.....	J. Mansell.....	" —, "	Cumberland, Maryland.
Do.....	John Sayre.....	April 15, 1864
Do.....	Wm. H. H. Sisson.....	" 15, "
Do.....	W. L. McMasters.....	" 15, "
Do.....	W. H. Hankerson.....	" 15, "
Do.....	Edward Mallory.....	" 15, "
Do.....	J. A. Scott.....	" 15, "
Do.....	Luther Lightburn.....	" 15, "
Do.....	Michael Christie.....	" 15, "
Do.....	James Dale.....	" 15, "
Do.....	E. Cline.....	" 15, "
2d Lieutenant.....	John Davis.....	July —, 1861	Mason City, West Virginia.
Do.....	B. W. Curtis.....	" —, "	Middleport, Ohio.
Do.....	W. L. McMasters.....	" —, "	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	W. H. Hankerson.....	" —, "	Athens, Ohio.
Do.....	D. A. Russell.....	" —, "	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	William Ong.....	" —, "	Murraysville, West Virginia.
Do.....	William Blake.....	" —, "	Gallipolis, Ohio.
Do.....	Benjamin D. Boswell.....	" —, "	Pomeroy, Ohio.
Do.....	James Dale.....	" —, "	Gallipolis, Ohio.
Do.....	Alpheus Bell.....	" —, "	Frostburg, Maryland.
Do.....	John McDonald.....	April 15, 1864
Do.....	Alex. Warrnberg.....	" 15, "
Do.....	Robert Dyke.....	" 15, "
Do.....	John Dean.....	" 15, "
Do.....	Allen Broomfield.....	" 15, "
Do.....	Wm. Hodge.....	" 15, "
Do.....	Wm. Malone.....	" 15, "
Do.....	E. H. Trickle.....	" 15, "

FOURTH VIRGINIA VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

THIS regiment, although mustered into the service as a Virginia organization, was recruited mainly in Ohio. Seven full companies of it were recruited in the counties of Meigs, Gallia, Lawrence, and Athens. These numbered some six hundred men. Portions of the remaining companies were also interspersed with Ohioans.

The regiment was organized and mustered into the service in July, 1861, at Point Pleasant, West Virginia.

The regiment moved from Point Pleasant on the 22d of August, 1861, up the Kanawha Valley, and operated in connection with General Rosecrans's army until November, 1861. During the winter of 1861-2 it was in camp at Ceredo, West Virginia. Being there joined to Colonel Garfield's division, it marched with it on his expedition to Louisa C. H., in Eastern Kentucky.

On April 3d the regiment marched up the Kanawha Valley and joined General Cox's command. It participated in the fights at Fayette C. H., Gauley, and Charleston, on the 4th, 8th, and 13th of September, 1862. Being overwhelmed by the enemy, the army retreated down the valley to Point Pleasant, where it remained until the 19th of October, when, being re-enforced by General G. W. Morgan's command from Cumberland Gap, it again marched up the Kanawha Valley in pursuit of a Rebel force under General Eckles. It skirmished with the enemy at Pocotaligo, with slight loss. The Rebels were driven out of the valley and the forces rested at Fayetteville.

On December 30th the regiment left Fayetteville and marched to Camp Piatt, where it embarked on transports with General Hugh Ewing's brigade, destined for Vicksburg. The flotilla arrived at Vicksburg on February 2, 1863, and the regiment was attached to the Second Division of the Fifteenth Army Corps, General F. P. Blair commanding.

On April 5th it took part with General Sherman's command in the disastrous attack on Haines's Bluff. It remained at Young's Point, opposite Vicksburg, until April 12th; was then taken to Grand Gulf, and marched to the rear of Vicksburg. Crossing Black River Bridge, the regiment and division reached Vicksburg on May 18, 1863.

On the morning of May 19th the regiment participated in a charge on the enemy's line of intrenchments, in which it lost one hundred and ninety-two men and officers killed and wounded, out of four hundred with which it entered the charge. On May 22d it was in a second assault, and lost thirty-one officers and men killed and wounded. It continued in the front line of the army during the whole of the siege (losing men almost daily) until the surrender of Vicksburg, on July 4, 1863.

On the night of July 4th it was dispatched to Jackson, Mississippi, in Sherman's column moving against General Joe Johnston. It skirmished with the enemy from Black River Bridge to Jackson, and took part in the ten days' siege and capture of Jackson. It then returned to Camp Sherman, within fourteen miles of Vicksburg, where it remained for two months.

On September 27th the regiment marched to Vicksburg and there, taking transports, sailed to Memphis, Tennessee. It left Memphis on October 28th and marched toward Chattanooga with Sherman's command. At Bear Creek, a point about half way between Memphis and Chattanooga, the army was attacked by Forrest's Rebel cavalry. A fierce fight ensued, in which the Fourth Virginia lost heavily.

On November 21st the regiment arrived at Chattanooga, and on the 24th crossed the Tennessee River on General Bragg's right. The 24th and 25th were consumed in fighting, with heavy loss. On November 26th it followed in the pursuit of Bragg's army to Ringgold, Georgia. It then marched with General Sherman's column to the relief of General Burnside at Knoxville, Tennessee. Not being needed at Knoxville, the command crossed the Smoky Mountains into North Carolina, in pursuit of Longstreet's Rebel forces. On December 1st orders were received to return to Larkinsville, Alabama, where it arrived on the 16th of December, after marching nine hundred and ninety-six miles.

The next event in the history of the Fourth Virginia was its re-enlistment on February 3, 1864. On March 15th the regiment started for Wheeling, West Virginia, on its veteran furlough. When, a month later, it reported for duty, numerous changes were made in the line and staff.

On May 3d the Fourth started from Gallipolis, Ohio, and joined General Hunter's command at Cedar Creek, West Virginia. It marched with the army to Piedmont, Virginia, and on June 5th was engaged in a battle with the enemy at that place. About thirty officers and men were killed and wounded.

On June 6th the regiment started with Hunter's command on the Lynchburg raid. It was in the fight at Lynchburg, with slight loss. The army having been defeated, it retreated to Charleston, West Virginia, where it arrived on July 3d. It embarked on board transports and was conveyed to Parkersburg, West Virginia; thence on cars to a point near Hancock, Maryland, from which the regiment marched to Snicker's Ferry.

On July 18, 1864, the Fourth was engaged in a sharp fight with Early's command, losing one-third of its number, killed and wounded. On July 22d it moved up to Winchester, and on the 24th was engaged in the battle of Winchester, losing heavily of officers and men. Being defeated, the forces retreated through Martinsburg into Maryland. Nothing of interest transpired until the 19th of September, when the regiment was engaged in the battle of Opequan, whence the Rebels retreated up the valley to Cedar Creek, where, on the 19th of October, it was engaged in the battle of Cedar Creek. After this battle the regiment returned to Stephenson's Depot, where it remained until the latter part of December. It then marched to Cumberland, Maryland; thence to New Creek, and remained until the latter part of May, 1865.

The regiment was ordered to Wheeling for muster-out in the latter part of June, 1865, and was at that time paid off and disbanded. It numbered two hundred and forty, rank and file, at its muster-out.

INDEPENDENT COMPANIES OF SHARP-SHOOTERS.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	CO.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Calvin Reed	1.	Nov. 20, 1861	Feb. 16, 1862	Attached to 66th Illinois Vol. Inf. [1863.
Do.	Campbell Dougherty	2.	25, "	16, "	Attached to 66th I. V. I.; must. out Dec. 3,
Do.	George A. Taylor	3.	April 5, 1862	April 7, "	Attached to 66th Illinois Vol. Inf.
Do.	Jacob Flegle	4.	Sept. 26, "	Nov. 12, "	Transferred to 79th regiment O. V. I.
Do.	Gershon M. Barber	5.	Nov. 1, "	Feb. 16, 1863	Mustered out to accept promotion.
Do.	David W. Botsford	5.	April 26, 1865	April 26, 1865	Mustered out July 19, 1865.
Do.	Charles H. Reed	6.	Nov. 16, 1862	Feb. 16, 1863	Resigned December 17, 1863.
Do.	James H. Reed	6.	Dec. 17, 1863	Dec. 31, "	Resigned June 24, 1865
Do.	Samuel McCamant	6.	July 5, 1865	July 5, "	Mustered out July 19, 1865.
Do.	Wm. C. Squibb	7.	Nov. 11, 1862	Feb. 16, "	Detailed on General Rosseau's staff.
Do.	Charles A. Barber	8.	Aug. 1, 1863	Aug. 28, "	Mustered out July 19, 1865.
Do.	Wm. L. Stearns	9.	March 1, 1864	March 12, 1864	Transferred to 60th regiment O. V. I.
Do.	Henry A. Stevens	10.	31, "	31, "	Transferred to 60th regiment O. V. I.
1st Lieutenant	Benj. G. Longstreth	1.	Nov. 20, 1861	Feb. 26, 1862	Attached to 66th Illinois Vol. Inf.
Do.	James W. Lorraine	2.	25, "	26, "	Attached to 66th Illinois Vol. Inf.
Do.	A. J. Davis	3.	April 5, 1862	April 7, "	Attached to 66th Illinois Vol. Inf.
Do.	Isiah Doughman	4.	Sept. 26, "	Nov. 12, "	Transferred to 79th regiment O. V. I.
Do.	Jonathan Peckard	5.	Nov. 1, "	Feb. 16, 1863	Resigned September 9, 1864.
Do.	Franklin H. Sowers	5.	20, 1863	Dec. 29, "	Discharged May 7, 1864.
Do.	David W. Botsford	5.	June 14, 1864	June 14, 1864	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Wm. N. Watson	5.	April 26, 1865	April 26, 1865	Mustered out July 19, 1865.
Do.	Robert Shank	6.	Nov. 1, 1862	Feb. 16, 1863	Resigned April 10, 1863.
Do.	David C. Johns	6.	April 10, 1863	April 10, "	Resigned May 20, 1863.
Do.	James H. Reed	6.	June 1, "	June 23, "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George L. Evans	6.	Dec. 17, "	Dec. 31, "	Resigned January 9, 1865.
Do.	Samuel McCamant	6.	Jan. 28, 1865	Jan. 28, 1865	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George M. Barrick	6.	July 5, "	July 5, "	Mustered out July 19, 1865.
Do.	Wm. McCrory	7.	Nov. 11, 1862	Feb. 16, 1863	Mustered out July 28, 1865.
Do.	Cyrus B. Moore	8.	Aug. 1, 1863	Aug. 28, "	Mustered out July 19, 1865.
Do.	Norman D. Machan	9.	Feb. 26, 1864	March 12, 1864	Transferred to 60th regiment O. V. I.
Do.	S. S. Blackford	10.	March 31, "	31, "	Transferred to 60th regiment O. V. I.
2d Lieutenant	Thomas D. Mitchell	1.	Nov. 20, 1861	Feb. 26, 1862	Attached to 66th Illinois Vol. Inf.
Do.	Joseph W. Ledick	2.	25, "	26, "	Attached to 66th Illinois Vol. Inf.
Do.	John Pifer	3.	April 5, 1862	April 7, "	Attached to 66th Illinois Vol. Inf.
Do.	Robert C. Williamson	4.	Sept. 26, "	Nov. 12, "	Transferred to 79th regiment O. V. I.
Do.	Franklin H. Sowers	5.	Oct. 11, "	Feb. 16, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	W. L. Stearns	5.	Nov. 20, 1863	Dec. 29, "	Promoted to Captain 9th company.
Do.	David W. Botsford	5.	March 19, 1864	March 19, 1864	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. N. Watson	5.	June 14, "	June 14, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Wm. C. Lennan	5.	April 26, "	April 26, 1865	Mustered out July 19, 1865.
Do.	David C. Johns	6.	Nov. 12, 1862	Feb. 16, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James H. Reed	6.	April 19, 1863	April 28, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George L. Evans	6.	June 1, "	June 23, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	James Cox	7.	Oct. 22, 1862	Feb. 16, "	Mustered out July 28, 1865.
Do.	David N. Long	8.	Aug. 1, 1863	Aug. 28, "	Mustered out July 19, 1865.
Do.	Wm. H. Lawrence	9.	Jan. 16, 1864	March 12, 1864	Transferred to 60th regiment O. V. I.
Do.	John D. Hadsey	10.	March 31, "	31, "	Transferred to 60th regiment O. V. I.

INDEPENDENT COMPANIES OF SHARP-SHOOTERS.

IN all, ten companies of sharp-shooters were recruited and partially organized in Ohio. But three of them, however, had an active company organization (and were recognized throughout the war) as sharp-shooters. These were Company G, organized at Dayton; Company H, at Findley, and Company K, at Lima, in September and October, 1861. It was originally intended to raise a full regiment, to be known as Birge's Western Sharp-shooters, and to be sent to General Fremont, but the project failed. As each company was raised it was sent to the field, being there attached to some regiment not yet having men enough to secure the commissions of the regimental officers. All, however, were taken by regiments from other than their own State.

Company G left Dayton for Benton Barracks, Missouri, in October, 1861; was armed with the American target rifle, and equipped with bear-skin shot-pouch, scraped powder-horn, squirrel-tail cap, blue coat, and gray pantaloons. After some skirmishing duty in Missouri, it was sent up the Cumberland River, to Fort Donelson, where its members opened the battle and bore an honorable part throughout. Subsequently it was in the battle of Pittsburg Landing. It was then merged, by order of the Secretary of War, into the Fourteenth Missouri. After participating in the battle of Corinth, and some of the other movements through the summer and fall of 1862 in that region, it became, on November 28, 1862, by order of the Secretary of War, a part of the Sixty-Sixth Illinois, Companies H and K being also in the same regiment. The three served in the following engagements and skirmishes:

Tuscumbia Bridge, Miss., Feb. 8, 1863; Danville, Miss., March 24 and 31, 1863; Rienzi, April 1, 1863; Blackland, Miss., April 7 and 8, 1863; Rienzi, May 19, 1863; Jumpertown, Miss., July 19, 1863; Hatchie River, July 23, 1863; Booneville, Miss., August 31, 1863; Whiteside's Farm, Miss., Sept. 9, 1863.

They re-enlisted as veterans in December, and early in 1864 received their veteran furlough, going with their regiment to Chicago, and being then detached and sent home to Ohio. On their return in time for the Atlanta campaign they became a part of the left wing, Sixteenth Army Corps, McPherson's army, and in this position passed through the actions of that famous march. The men enumerate the following battles and skirmishes as a part of their record:

Taylor's Ridge, Georgia, May 8, 1864; Snake Creek Gap, Georgia, May 9, 1864; Dick's Ridge and Sugar Valley, Georgia, May 11 and 12, 1864; Resaca, Georgia, May 13, 1864; Lay's Ferry, Georgia, May 14 and 15, 1864; Rome's Cross-roads, Georgia, May 16, 1864; Dallas, Georgia, May 26 to June 1, 1864; Lone Mountain, Georgia, June 1, 1864; New Hope, Georgia, June 3, 1864; Big Shanty, Georgia, June 11, 1864; Brush Mountain, Georgia, June 15, 1864; Little Kenesaw, June 21, 1864; Kenesaw Mountain, Georgia, June 25 to July 2, 1864; Ruff's Mills and Nicojack Creek, Georgia, July 4, 1864; Howe's Ferry, Georgia, July 7 and 8, 1864; Cross Keys, Georgia, July 18, 1864; Peachtree and Naney's Creek, July 19, 1864; Decatur, Georgia, July 20, 1864; before Atlanta, July 21, 1864; Bald Hill, Georgia, July 22, 1864; Howard House, Georgia, July 22, 1864; before Atlanta, July 23 to 26, 1864; Utoy Creek, July 27, 1864; Ezra Church, Georgia, July 28, 1864; Proctor's Creek and Cherry Run, Georgia, July 31 and August 1, 1864; Proctor's Creek again, August 4 and 11, 1864; siege of Atlanta, August 12 to 26, 1864; Jonesboro', Georgia, August 31, and September 1, 1864; Lovejoy's Station, Georgia, September 2 to 5, 1864.

In this campaign their losses were twenty-two killed or mortally wounded, eighteen prisoners, and four missing, supposed to have been murdered by guerrillas, near Dalton, Georgia. They subsequently participated in the easy march to the sea and in the campaign of the Carolinas.

They were mustered out at Louisville on the 15th of July, 1865, and were paid and discharged at Camp Dennison.

UNION LIGHT GUARD.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	George A. Bennett.....	Dec. 19, 1863	Dec. 19, 1863	Discharged June 10, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Arthur W. White.....	Nov. 6, "	" 19, "	Discharged.
Do.	James B. Jameson.....	Dec. 14, 1864	" 14, 1864	Mustered out September 9, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	James B. Jameson.....	Nov. 6, 1863	" 19, 1863	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	George C. Ashman.....	Feb. 4, 1865	Feb. 4, 1865	Mustered out September 9, 1865.

UNION LIGHT GUARD.

THIS organization was perfected in December of 1863, and was intended by Governor Tod as the Body-guard of President Lincoln. The Governor had previously visited Washington, and while there noticed the unguarded situation of the Capitol, the President's house, and the person of President Lincoln, and, knowing the desperate character of the Cabinet at Richmond, he came home somewhat apprehensive for the safety of the public offices, and more especially for the life of the President. He at once commenced raising the Union Light Guard, by recruiting one man in each county of the State. By December 22d, 1863, the company was completed, and on the morning of that day it started for Washington City.

Reaching the capital, its commanding officer reported to the Secretary of War, and was assigned to duty in and around the city, a strong detail being placed near the President's house, the Treasury Building, War Office, and other public buildings. In this description of duty the Union Light Guard served through 1863-4-5, and part of 1866, when it was sent home to Ohio, paid, and mustered out of the service. Its original strength was one hundred and three men.

FREMONT BODY GUARD.

THIS guard was a body of cavalry selected from a host of applicants on account of the high intelligence, the fine physique, and the manifest aptitude of its members for military service. Without question it was one of the finest bodies of cavalry ever seen in the United States service; made up of ardent young Americans, mainly from Ohio and Kentucky, including only thirty foreigners.

The guard especially distinguished itself at the battle of Springfield, Missouri, where numbering one hundred and fifty men under Major Zagoni, it routed a force of two thousand Rebels. It advanced cautiously against the Rebels until within half a mile; then halted and drew sabers; and a moment later the men were dashing toward the enemy, shouting, "Hurrah for Cincinnati!" "Old Kentucky forever!" "Remember the Queen City, boys!" "Fremont and Union!" They were exposed to a terrific fire, and fifty-two men, over one-third of the entire number fell upon the field. Four officers out of nine were wounded, but still the guard pressed on. Zagoni was at the head of the column, and every man seemed to struggle to be foremost. The Rebels soon broke and fled with a loss of one hundred and seven men killed and thirty captured. Among the dead were one Colonel and several Captains; and among the prisoners was one Lieutenant-Colonel. The field of battle gave distinct evidence of the fierceness of the conflict. In one place not ten yards square lay four dead horses, and near them their fearless riders. This victory was achieved after a march of one hundred and five miles in forty-eight hours, upon one meal, principally of salt beef.

When these young heroes returned to St. Louis they were met by an order to disband them "for sentiments expressed at Springfield;" so the official document read; and the offensive sentiments were, "Fremont and Union." No explanation was vouchsafed. The brilliant victory was ignored, and those men, returning triumphant from their first battle-field, were insulted out of the service. They were refused rations, forage, clothes, and pay; and were reduced to the extremest suffering. General Sturgis went to review them before mustering out, but he was so much impressed by their appearance that he declared himself unable to discharge such men, and so the ceremony was postponed. Price appeared again on the line of the railroad and the guard were at once above par. Compliments were heaped upon the men; the most advantageous offers were made to them if they remained in the service; and it was even proposed to incorporate them into the regular army. But the men felt too keenly their former insults, and accordingly they were mustered out.

The Fremont Body Guard occupies but one page in history, and none save its slanderers need blush at what is written thereon. It has been the subject of a graceful little volume, entitled "The Story of the Guard," written by Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont.

McLAUGHLIN'S SQUADRON OF CAVALRY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Major	WM. McLAUGHLIN.....	Sept. 28, 1861	Dec. 11, 1861	Died July 19, 1862.
Do.	GAYLORD McFALL.....	July 19, 1862	Sept. 5, 1862	Resigned January 17, 1863.
Do.	Richard Rice.....	Jan. 17, 1863	Feb. 18, 1863	Mustered out November 19, 1864.
Captain	Gaylord McFall.....	Nov. 26, 1861	Dec. 11, 1861	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Samuel R. Buckmaster.....	Dec. 6, "	" "	Resigned May 26, 1862.
Do.	Richard Rice.....	May 26, 1862	July 18, 1862	Promoted to Major.
Do.	Samuel H. Fisher.....	July 19, "	Sept. 5, "	"
Do.	John Dalzell.....	Jan. 17, 1863	Feb. 18, 1863	Transferred to 5th O. V. Cav.
Do.	John L. Skeggs.....	Feb. 25, "	March 31, "	Resigned December 12, 1864.
1st Lieutenant	Enoch Smith.....	Nov. 26, 1861	Dec. 11, 1861	Resigned September 20, 1862.
Do.	Benj. B. Locke.....	Dec. 6, "	" "	Resigned February 17, 1863.
Do.	John L. Skeggs.....	Sept. 20, 1862	Oct. 21, 1862	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Pomeroy.....	Feb. 17, 1863	March 31, 1863	Resigned May 10, 1864.
Do.	Erastus P. Coates.....	" "	" "	Transferred to 5th O. V. Cav.
Do.	Jacob O. Stout.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, 1864	Honorably discharged May 2, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Enoch Smith.....	Oct. 5, 1861	Dec. 11, 1861	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Samuel H. Fisher.....	Nov. 26, "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Samuel R. Buckmaster.....	Oct. 10, "	" "	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	Herman Allerton.....	Dec. 6, "	" "	Resigned September 15, 1862.
Do.	John L. Skeggs.....	July 19, 1862	Sept. 5, 1862	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Erastus P. Coates.....	Sept. 20, "	Oct. 21, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	John Day's II.....	" "	Jan. 20, 1863	Promoted to Captain.
Do.	George W. Pomeroy.....	Jan. 17, 1863	Feb. 18, "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Ross R. Cowan.....	Feb. 25, "	March 31, "	Transferred to 5th O. V. Cav.
Do.	Jacob O. Stout.....	July 17, "	" "	Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.
Do.	Anthony Luskard.....	July 13, 1864	July 13, 1864	Mustered out May 15, 1865.

McLAUGHLIN'S SQUADRON OF CAVALRY.

IN the latter part of October, 1861, the Secretary of War, at the request of the Governor of Ohio, issued a special order to Major William McLaughlin of Mansfield, to raise a force of cavalry, which should be an independent command, and named McLaughlin's Squadron. Major McLaughlin was an old citizen of Mansfield, and had participated in the Mexican War. He was quite advanced in years, of rough exterior and iron will, and just the man to take to the field and successfully carry through an independent command of this kind. He was patriotic in the extreme, and was always at his post in the hour of battle. The exertions and privations of his last service were, however, too much for one of his years, and, in July, 1862, he went to his rest, in the field, on the Big Sandy River, in Kentucky. His remains were sent to his home in Mansfield, and buried with the honors of war.

The squadron left Mansfield for the field in the latter part of November, and was sent to Eastern Kentucky to look after Humphrey Marshall's Rebel command, then near Paintville. It operated with the command of Colonel Garfield of the Forty-Third Ohio, and was with that command at the battles of Middle Creek, Pikeville, and Pound Gap. The squadron was then sent to Gladesville, Western Virginia, across the Cumberland Mountains, and, after burning Gladesville, it surprised and captured a Rebel regiment, just being formed by Colonel Caudle.

The movements above described consumed nearly two years of service, the greater part of which was taken up with scouting, forced marches, and skirmishing with the enemy.

In August, 1863, the squadron left Eastern Kentucky and joined the Twenty-Third Army Corps, under General Hartsuff, then marching for Knoxville in Eastern Tennessee. While at Knoxville it performed escort and picket-duty, with occasional skirmishes with the enemy, until January 10, 1864, at which time it re-enlisted, and returned to Ohio to enjoy its veteran furlough of thirty days.

During its stay in Ohio the squadron was recruited up to its maximum. About the 1st of May it moved from Camp Dennison, and joined a brigade of cavalry at Nicholasville, Kentucky, under command of Colonel Capron of Illinois. Moving through Kentucky and Tennessee, it joined General Sherman's forces at Big Shanty, Georgia, and formed a part of General Stoneman's command in his raid to Macon. In this raid the squadron suffered severely in killed, wounded, and missing. The remainder of the squadron marched back to Marietta, where it rejoined General Sherman's forces, in the latter part of July, 1864.

Colonel Israel Garrard of the Seventh Ohio Cavalry having superseded General Stoneman, the squadron marched in company with his command, and operated in Sherman's flanking movements toward Atlanta. "Atlanta taken and fairly won," it joined General Kilpatrick at Marietta, Georgia, and operated with Sherman's forces from that point to Savannah. Thence it went with the National forces through North and South Carolina, participating in the fight at Bentonville, and the brisk skirmishes of Blackville and other points on the march up to Raleigh, North Carolina.

The squadron was then sent up to Lexington and Concord, North Carolina, returning to Raleigh in July, 1865. At this place it was consolidated with the Fifth Ohio Cavalry.

It remained here up to the latter part of October, was then sent to Salisbury, North Carolina, and was mustered out of the service at that place on the 1st of November, 1865. Then, returning to Ohio, it was paid off and discharged at Camp Chase on the 17th.

HARLAN'S LIGHT CAVALRY.*

THIS company was organized under an order from the Secretary of War, Simon Cameron, authorizing Colonel Josiah Harlan to raise an independent regiment of cavalry, the intention being to have companies from twelve different States. It was subsequently found, however, that the laws of Congress did not authorize the recruiting of single companies in a State. This body of Ohio men was, therefore, attached to the Eleventh Pennsylvania Cavalry. It was composed of citizens of Marion, Crawford, Meigs, and Wyandotte Counties, and was at first officered by N. M. Runyan, as Captain; Wm. H. Kilmer, as First Lieutenant, and Gerard Reynolds, as Second-Lieutenant. It was mustered into the service at Camp Chase, August 31, 1861, and it proceeded at once to join the Eleventh Pennsylvania Cavalry at Hesterville, a suburb of Philadelphia. It was designated as Company M.

Captain N. M. Runyan was promoted to Major, First-Lieutenant Wm. H. Kilmer resigned, Second-Lieutenant Gerard Reynolds was promoted to Captain, and Company Quartermaster-Sargent S. N. Titus to First-Lieutenant. Lucien F. Prudhomme, of Philadelphia, was appointed Second-Lieutenant.

From Philadelphia the company was sent with its regiment to Ball's Cross-roads, Virginia, where it went into camp. In November it proceeded to Annapolis, and thence to Fortress Monroe, where it lay for six months. In March detachments of the regiment, including Company M, were sent to Newport News, in General Mansfield's command, where they remained until the fall of 1862. Its active campaigning commenced on September 15, 1862. It was at the siege of

* Enlisted in Ohio, but attached to the Eleventh Pennsylvania Cavalry

Suffolk by Longstreet, from 1st of April to 11th of May, Company M being stationed at South Mills as an outpost, guarding the approach in that direction. During this whole year's service Company M, in connection with the regiment, constantly scouted over the country on the left bank of the Blackwater and Chowan Rivers, from the James to Albemarle Sound, keeping the country clear of the enemy, capturing many prisoners and considerable property. It is estimated that each company marched three hundred miles per month during this period.

On June 21, 1863, the regiment and company marched to Portsmouth, and there embarked on transports for White House, on the Pamunkey River. A rapid march brought the command on the 26th to the Virginia Central Railroad bridge over the South Anna River, near Hanover C. H. The enemy's works were immediately attacked in the rear by a mounted and dismounted charge, in which Company M participated, resulting in the capture of one hundred and twenty-five Rebel prisoners, the Rebel Brigadier-General W. H. F. Lec, seven hundred horses and mules, eighty wagons, and other property. The expedition, however, failed in its main object—the severance of railroad communication between Richmond and Lee's army, then near Gettysburg—but on the night of July 4th Companies M and G destroyed the railroad bridge, station, and public property at Ashland. The remainder of 1863 was devoted to daring raids around Richmond and into North Carolina, in which Company M performed effective service.

After re-enlisting, Company M, early in February, 1864, joined its regiment and participated in Brigadier-General Wistar's expedition for the surprise and capture of Richmond. After the failure of this effort, it returned to Portsmouth, Virginia, and on May 5th accompanied Brigadier-General A. V. Kautz in his operations against the Weldon Railroad, Danville Railroad, etc. At Jarrett's Station Company M lost one man killed, and Lieutenant Prudhomme and ten men wounded.

On June 10th, after a rapid march to the rear of Petersburg, the division made an attack, carried the works, and with Company M in advance entered the town. On the 16th Company M participated in the attack which resulted in the capture of the main line of works around Petersburg. It thereafter joined Kautz and Wilson's raids for the destruction of the Danville and South Side Railroads, and lost one of the best officers of the regiment—Captain Reynolds, of Company M, killed. Company M also lost three men captured, and afterward starved to death in Rebel prisons. The vacancy caused by the death of Captain Reynolds was filled by promoting First-Lieutenant S. N. Titus to Captain, to date from July 1, 1864. Second-Lieutenant L. F. Prudhomme was promoted to First-Lieutenant, and Seargent John Bacon to Second-Lieutenant.

The company and regiment were attached to the great army in its several movements against the Weldon Railroad. At Ream's Station the company and regiment engaged the enemy for three days, almost without intermission, with some loss. On August 29th the company and regiment joined in the attempt to surprise and enter Richmond from the north by the cavalry, while the infantry made an attack on the Fort Harrison side. The fort was taken, but the night attack of the cavalry failed, owing to the troops losing their way in the darkness.

On the morning of October 7th the right flank of the army was turned by a heavy force of the enemy, and the command was driven back with the loss of its artillery. Major S. N. Titus, formerly Captain of Company M, was severely wounded in the right arm and taken prisoner. Captain Bacon, of Company M, was also captured and held in Rebel prisons. Both were exchanged February 22, 1865. T. G. Elliott, formerly Seargent of Company M, was about this time made Captain of Company F, Eleventh Pennsylvania Cavalry. During the remainder of October and November the regiment operated in General Butler's attempts to turn the enemy's left. In March, 1865, it crossed the James and Appomattox Rivers, and followed the fortunes of Sheridan's command during the short but brilliant campaign culminating in the surrender of Lee at Appomattox C. H.

On the 1st of April, at the battle of Five Forks, the Eleventh Pennsylvania Cavalry (including Company M) had the advance of the division which was ordered to attack on the extreme right of Sheridan's forces. A mounted and dismounted charge was made, and the enemy driven from his position in confusion, notwithstanding his superiority of numbers. On April 9th it was with Mackenzie's command of Sheridan's cavalry, and had the honor of opening the attack of the final action of the war at Appomattox C. H., by a movement of cavalry and infantry that resulted in driving the enemy nearly a mile to the slope of the hill overlooking the main Rebel position. While in this position hostilities were suspended, terms agreed upon, and the final surrender made. The next day (10th of April) a squadron of the Eleventh Pennsylvania Cavalry, under Captain Elliott, found and took possession of fifty-four pieces of artillery which the Rebels had buried at Red Oak Church. In this short campaign the Eleventh Regiment bore a conspicuous part.

On the 19th of April, 1865, the regiment was discharged and paid at Camp Cadwallader, Philadelphia.

1st OHIO INDEPENDENT CAVALRY COMPANY.

ROSTER, THREE MONTHS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Wm. H. Burdsall.....	June 5, 1861	June 30, 1861	} Mustered out.
1st Lieutenant	Minor Millikin.....	" 5, "	" 30, "
2d Lieutenant	C. B. Hunt.....	" 5, "	" 30, "

FIRST INDEPENDENT COMPANY OF CAVALRY.

THE recruiting of cavalry was not, at the commencement of the war, asked for by the General Government. The State, however, considered it necessary to the success of the other arms of the service, and authorized the recruiting of several companies as independent commands.

The First was raised by Captain Wm. H. Burdsall of Cincinnati; largely aided by the energy and lavish use of private means of the lamented Minor Millikin. It was composed of excellent material—young men of the counties of Hamilton and Butler—who entered the field from the purest patriotism and love of country.

This company was sent to Western Virginia, and was used with excellent effect in that wild region of country. It proved literally, in the well-known language of General Rosecrans, "the eyes of the army." During its term of three months' service its members were almost constantly in the saddle, guarding trains, scouting the wild passes of the mountains, and frequently meeting organized and unorganized bands of the enemy in hand-to-hand encounters.

At the end of its term it was disbanded; most of its members joining the First Ohio Cavalry, which was then recruiting its ranks for the three years' service.

3d OHIO INDEPENDENT CAVALRY COMPANY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Philip Pfau.....	July 4, 1861	Aug. 20, 1861	Resigned March 10, 1862.
Do.	Frank Smith.....	March 10, 1862	June 14, 1862	Mustered out July 11, 1864.
1st Lieutenant	Frank Smith.....	July 4, 1861	Aug. 20, 1861	Promoted to Captain March 10, 1862.
Do.	Jonas Seaman.....	March 10, 1862	Jan. 24, 1862	Resigned December 5, 1863.
Do.	Wildeman G. Wahle.....	Dec. 5, 1863	July 25, 1864	Discharged.
2d Lieutenant	Frank A. Dessman.....	July 4, 1861	Aug. 20, 1861	Resigned March 12, 1862.
Do.	Frederick Smith.....	March 12, 1862	June 24, 1862	Discharged.
Do.	Wildeman G. Wahle.....			Promoted to 1st Lieutenant.

THIRD INDEPENDENT COMPANY OF CAVALRY.

THIS company was purely a Cincinnati organization, recruited early in 1861 under the personal supervision of its commander. A few days sufficed to prepare it for the field, and early in May it was sent to Western Virginia, and attached to the forces already in the field under General McClellan.

While there, Pfau's Company of Horse was noted for the energy and success with which it performed the work of scouting and skirmishing marked out for it by the commanding General.

It was mustered into the three years' service near the end of its three months' term, but was shortly afterward absorbed into the early cavalry organizations raised in the latter part of 1861.

4th OHIO INDEPENDENT CAVALRY COMPANY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	John S. Foster.....	July 9, 1861	Aug. 13, 1861	Mustered out at expiration of service.
Do.	John L. King.....	Sept. 8, 1864	Sept. 8, 1864	Mustered out May 28, 1865.
1st Lieutenant	Wm. H. Hannah.....	July 9, 1861	Aug. 13, 1861	Resigned May 17, 1864.
Do.	Thomas J. Thompson.....	Aug. 9, 1864	" 9, 1864	Declined.
Do.	Joseph F. Thomas.....	Sept. 30, "	Sept. 30, "	Mustered out May 28, 1865.
2d Lieutenant	Stephen D. Porter.....	July 9, 1861	Aug. 13, 1861	Mustered out at expiration of service.
Do.	Thomas C. Yates.....	Jan. 18, 1865	Jan. 18, 1865	Mustered out May 28, 1865.

FOURTH INDEPENDENT COMPANY OF CAVALRY.

THIS company was organized at Georgetown, Ohio, on the 9th of July, 1861. Each man furnished his own horse and horse equipments, and was armed with sabers and carbines at Georgetown. On the 10th the company started for Camp Chase, where, in a short time, it acquired great proficiency in drill. On the 19th of August it was ordered to St. Louis, Missouri, and it arrived at that point on the 21st. It spent a few days at Camp Benton, and was then ordered into the city as provost-guard. The company, by its promptness and efficiency, did much toward preserving order. It was sent, on one occasion, to suppress a riot. In less than five minutes after the order was received the men had saddled and mounted and were on their way to the scene of disturbance.

In September the company was ordered to Syracuse, and while stationed there it was sent into the country to press horses, mules, and wagons. In three days it returned with a large number. The company marched to Springfield, then returned to Syracuse, when it was transferred to General Pope's command.

During the months of December, 1861, and January and February, 1862, it was engaged in scouting over western and northern Missouri. It participated in many skirmishes and in the battle of Silver Creek, in which it lost one man killed and one officer and six men wounded. In February it returned to Benton Barracks, and on the 1st of March it was taken into St. Louis, and placed on duty at General Halleck's head-quarters. On the 9th of April it accompanied General Halleck as escort up the Tennessee to Pittsburg Landing. It continued to act as escort during the siege of Corinth. It joined the pursuit of Beauregard, and after that remained on duty at department head-quarters until Halleck was transferred to Washington City. Next came miscellaneous service in Western Tennessee, under McClernand, Logan, and Lawler; and there was scarcely a cross-road or by-path in all that country with which the company was not familiar. On the 1st of September it participated in the battle of Britton's Lane, and was honorably mentioned in the official report of the General commanding. It lost one man killed and two wounded.

In November the company was appointed escort to General McPherson. It moved on General Grant's expedition down the Mississippi Central Railroad, and then returned to Grand Junction. It moved to Memphis, and proceeded down the Mississippi to Lake Providence, and thence to Milliken's Bend, where General Grant's army concentrated for the Vicksburg campaign. About the last of April the company moved on this campaign, and participated in the battles of Port Gibson, Raymond, Jackson, Champion Hills, Big Black Bridge, and in the siege of Vicksburg. The company remained at the head-quarters of the Seventeenth Army Corps, moving occasionally on some expedition, until the 1st of February, 1864, when it joined Sherman's Meridian raid. On this expedition it lost five men captured. Soon after returning to Vicksburg the company moved with General McPherson to Chattanooga, and entered on the Atlanta campaign. It continued with the army until the Chattahoochee was reached, and as its term of service was about to expire, it was ordered to be mustered out. General McPherson bade the company farewell in a complimentary order, and on the 16th of July, 1864, it was mustered out at Cincinnati, with an aggregate of twenty-seven men.

From the organization of the company to the 1st of August, 1862, it received twenty-two recruits, and lost in killed, discharged, and deserted, forty-two men. During the months of August and September, 1862, the company received sixty-eight recruits; thus at the expiration of its term of service there were about fifty men who had from one month to one year to serve. These men were left at General McPherson's head-quarters, and in August and September, 1864, John L. King, who had been a sergeant in the original organization, recruited the company to the maximum number, and was commissioned as Captain. This company participated in the march to the sea through Georgia, and in the campaign of the Carolinas. It was present at the grand review in Washington City, and was mustered out on the 28th of May, 1865, and was transported to Camp Dennison, where it was paid and discharged.

FIFTH INDEPENDENT BATTALION OF CAVALRY.

JULY, 1863, was a gloomy month for those who were doing battle for the Union. The Rebel army, under General Robert E. Lee, was marching northward, overcoming all opposition, and John Morgan, the Rebel freebooter, was making his triumphant way through Indiana and into Ohio. The State was almost completely stripped of organized troops, and it became urgently necessary that some plan should be adopted by which a force could be quickly raised with which to combat the invaders of its soil.

Governor Tod went to work, with his accustomed energy, and in a very short time succeeded in bringing into the field a respectable body of troops, with which the movements of Morgan were much embarrassed. Among other troops raised at this time were those composing the Fifth Independent Battalion of Cavalry. The call was made for six months' service. The first company was composed mainly of residents of Columbus. It was recruited by Mr. John F. Ijams, of that city, and was mounted and equipped at all points, and sent to the southern border of the State, where it performed valuable duty in scouting and keeping watch of the movements of Morgan and his followers. For a period of over three weeks these patriotic men, fresh from the civil pursuits of life, and unused to the hardships of the field, were in the saddle almost constantly.

After the capture of Morgan and his band, Captain Ijams was ordered to report at Camp Chase and proceed to recruit his organization to a force of four companies which, being accomplished in a few weeks, was classed as the Fifth Independent Battalion of Ohio Volunteer Cavalry, and Captain Ijams was promoted to Major.

On September 8th he received orders to report, with his command, to General D. C. Cox, at Cincinnati. The battalion was sent into Eastern Kentucky, with orders to make head-quarters at Flemingsburg. This portion of the State was then unguarded, and bands of guerrillas and horse-thieves were holding high carnival, robbing friends and foes, and murdering Union citizens.

Soon after its arrival in Kentucky the battalion instituted a series of scouts and raids through the rugged hill country of that region up to Pound Gap, resulting in the capture of a number of the most noted guerrillas, and completely breaking up their pillaging raids. Peace and security were thus restored to the inhabitants of Eastern Kentucky.

Although the Fifth Independent Battalion did not participate in any regular battle, it was only because there was no organized force pitted against it. Owing to the exigencies of the service it was kept in the field some time beyond its term of enlistment. It was finally mustered out of the service, at Columbus, in November, 1863.

6th OHIO INDEPENDENT CAVALRY COMPANY.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Jeptha Garrard.....	Sept. 11, 1861	Sept. 25, 1861
1st Lieutenant	James K. Wilson.....	" 11, "	" 25, "
2d Lieutenant	Joseph C. Grannan.....	" 11, "	" 25, "	Resigned December 9, 1861.
Do.	George F. Dern.....	Dec. 16, "	Dec. 16, "

SIXTH OHIO INDEPENDENT CAVALRY COMPANY.

THIS company, recruited in the counties of Greene and Hamilton, rendezvoused in August and September, 1861, at Camp Dennison, and on the 23d of the latter month was ordered to Washington City. Quarters were there assigned the company in the Park-House Barracks, and, by the persistent efforts of the Captain, it was armed, equipped, and splendidly mounted. The camp was soon moved to a pine grove, near the old Soldiers' Home, and called Camp Ohio. Strict discipline was maintained, and the men made rapid progress in their new profession. The company was finally attached to the Third New York Volunteer Cavalry, and denominated company L. On the 9th of December it joined the regiment at Camp Bates, near Poolesville.

In January, 1862, the company was designated to cross the Potomac at Conrad's Ferry, to pass around the pickets, and to dash into Leesburg, capture General Hill, and retreat across the river. Sabers were ground, the fleetest horses and boldest men selected, and all night they awaited orders to move; but, on account of a change in the position of the pickets, the attempt was abandoned. On the 1st of March company L, with the battalion, crossed the Potomac at Harper's Ferry and moved to the outpost beyond Charlestown, Virginia. Berryville was soon occupied; and on the morning after the occupation company L was engaged in a skirmish with Ashby's cavalry, driving them several miles. From here the forces marched to Winchester, where the cavalry again made a successful dash at Ashby and Stuart. After remaining a few days the battalion returned to Harper's Ferry; and on the day of the battle of Winchester marched for Washington City, where it remained until the latter part of April, when it moved to Alexandria, preparatory to embarking for North Carolina. Except a short detention on account of fog at Fortress Monroë, the company had a prosperous voyage, without accident; and on the evening of the 12th of May cast anchor in the harbor of Newbern. As soon as the regiment landed it was sent in detachments to the outposts; the most important of these, on the Trent Road, being guarded by four companies, of which company L was one.

The summer was occupied in scouting and in expeditions to the interior, until the 1st of September, when the battalion moved to Washington, North Carolina, for the purpose of joining an expedition to the Roanoke in the direction of Hamilton. Upon the arrival of Colonel John Mix, who took command of the post, all intercourse through the lines was prohibited; and on the morning of the 6th the expedition moved, company L taking the advance. Scarcely had they started when a volley of musketry was heard on the opposite side of the town, and Captain Garrard wheeled the advance and dashed in the direction of the firing. The first platoon charged through the Rebels, who were found on the Greenville Road. The second platoon, consisting of a Lieutenant and sixteen men, without any support, formed across a narrow street, and until after broad daylight held the enemy at bay successfully, resisting three charges. The Rebels were at last completely routed with a heavy loss. Company L had ten men wounded and fourteen horses killed and disabled. After scouting the country for a day or two, bringing in prisoners and arms, company L was ordered to Plymouth, on the Roanoke, on the 9th; and after remaining ten days was ordered to Newbern, where it arrived on the 29th.

About this time the battalion made a raid through the neighboring country, capturing nearly two hundred horses and mules, returning to Newbern on the 15th of November. The company was engaged in scouting and picket-duty until December 11th, when General Foster moved from Newbern, intending to penetrate, if possible, to Raleigh. During this movement company L acted as cavalry provost-guard of the army, and shared in the battles of Kingston, White Hall, and Goldsboro' Bridge. After the return of this expedition all was quiet until the 13th of March, 1863, when the Rebels attacked Newbern, but failed to take the place, and fell back just in time to avoid a complete defeat from a flank movement, made by way of Washington, for the purpose of cutting off their retreat. During the siege of Washington, which immediately followed, the cavalry was kept continually on the scout. In the early part of autumn twelve hundred cavalry, with some artillery, made a raid on the Tarboro' Railroad, which they succeeded in cutting, and captured a large amount of property belonging to the Rebel Government. Nine regiments of infantry, three of cavalry, and two batteries endeavored to prevent their return, and had it not been for the thorough knowledge of the guide with the country they must have been cut off. When within five miles of Newbern they were completely surrounded, and an engagement seemed inevitable; but the gunboats came to their assistance and the Rebels retreated.

Sharing in all the raids, scouts, skirmishes, and battles around Richmond, in the spring of 1864, some were killed and others captured; and when the company's time expired but very few were left to muster out. As evidence of the ability of the men who composed this company, it is only necessary to say that it furnished to the service one Colonel, one Major, four Captains, and fourteen Lieutenants.

SHERMAN'S BODY-GUARD,

OR, SEVENTH INDEPENDENT COMPANY SHARP-SHOOTERS.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Watson C. Squire.....	Nov. 11, 1862	{ On det. duty, chiefly as Judge-Adv'te, after Chickamauga; Brevet Major.
Do.	Wm. McCrory.....	March 1865
1st Lieutenant	Wm. McCrory.....	Nov. 11, 1862	Brevet Major.
2d Lieutenant	James Cox.....	Nov. 11, "	In command of company during march to the [sea.

SHERMAN'S BODY-GUARD,

OR, SEVENTH INDEPENDENT COMPANY SHARP-SHOOTERS.

THIS command was recruited in the summer and fall of 1862, and was mustered into the service as the Seventh Independent Company of Sharp-Shooters, for three years, at Cleveland, on the 27th of January, 1863. It continued in active service until the 28th of July, 1865, when it was mustered out at Camp Chase.

During this period it was on duty as Sharp-Shooters, first under General Rosecrans, from the 10th of March, 1863, until his supersedure, and then under General George H. Thomas. It participated in the battle of Chickamauga (losing their First-Sergeant, A. D. Baily, a good officer), Lookout Mountain, and Mission Ridge. It also kept up, at a point about four miles below Chattanooga, known as the Little Suck, a brisk sharp-shooter's duel with a similar company of Alabamians, during a part of the siege of Chattanooga, and finally drove them from their position.

On the 20th of May, 1864, the company was ordered to General Sherman's head-quarters, where it remained on duty near the person of the Commanding General of that army until the close of the war—with inconsiderable loss, save on a foraging expedition near Marietta, Georgia, in which eight men were captured. These remained in Rebel prisons until the close of the war.

The company was with General Sherman through the march to the sea, the campaign of the Carolinas, and the Grand Review, and it accompanied him to St. Louis, where it continued to serve for a short time as head-quarters' guard. It was under the command of Captain Squire until his detail as a Judge-Advocate after Chickamauga, and for the rest of the time under Captain McCrory, save during the march to the sea, when, in the absence of Captain McCrory, Lieutenant Cox had command.

On its departure for Ohio for muster-out, General Sherman issued the following:

“HEAD-QUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION OF THE MISSISSIPPI, }
 “St. Louis, Missouri, July 17, 1865.” }

“The General commanding tenders to the officers and men of the Seventh Independent Company of Ohio Sharp-Shooters his personal thanks for their long and valuable services near his person in the eventful campaigns beginning at Chattanooga, on the 1st of May, 1864, and ending with the war.

“He commends them as a fine body of intelligent young volunteers, to whom he attributes his personal safety in the battles, marches, and bivouacks in Georgia and the Carolinas.

“He wishes them long life and a proud consciousness of having done their duty with a cheerfulness, precision, and intelligence worthy the great cause in which they were engaged, and he bespeaks for them a kind and generous welcome back to their old homes in Ohio.

“W. T. SHERMAN,
 “Major-General.”

DENNISON GUARDS.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	E. V. Brookfield.....	May 19, 1862.....
1st Lieutenant	Chauncey Brown	“ 19, “	Discharged September 24, 1862.
Do.	James M. Barr	Appointed but never mustered.
2d Lieutenant	Frank D. James.....	Appointed but never mustered.

DENNISON GUARDS.

THIS independent company of infantry was recruited and organized at Camp Dennison between May and August, 1862, to serve three years. It was, however, under orders from the War Department, mustered out of the service on the 24th of January, 1863.

TRUMBULL GUARDS.

ROSTER, THREE YEARS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Chas. W. Smith	Nov. 9, 1862
1st Lieutenant	Thos. P. Gilman	" 9, "
2d Lieutenant	Josiah D. Freer	" 9, "

TRUMBULL GUARDS.

THIS independent company of infantry was organized at Gallipolis, on the 9th of November, 1862, under an enlistment for three years. Under orders from the War Department, it was mustered out of service July 1, 1865.

DEPARTMENTAL CORPS.

ROSTER.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Jas. L. Deens	July 16, 1863
Do.	Hamilton Eaton	Aug. 12, "
Do.	Jas. P. Avrck	" 19, "
Do.	Samuel Beard	" 28, "
1st Lieutenant	Wm. Smith	July 16, "
Do.	Geo. P. Nuzum	Aug. 19, "
Do.	Noble Carter	" 19, "
Do.	Aquila Thomas	" 28, "
2d Lieutenant	Samuel J. Evans	July 16, "
Do.	Tyson C. Rowles	Aug. 18, "
Do.	Wm. H. Liugo	" 19, "
Do.	Jno. C. Hampton	" 28, "

DEPARTMENTAL CORPS.

THIS was an anomalous organization composed of eight companies, four from Pennsylvania and four from Ohio, enlisted for service in the Department of the Monongahela during the pleasure of the President.

The Ohio companies were organized, respectively, at Barnesville, Somerton, and Hendrysburg, Ohio, between the 12th and 27th of July, 1863. They were mustered out of the service November 1, 1864.

CAPTAIN BARD'S COMPANY.

ROSTER, THIRTY DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Sylvester W. Bard.....	Sept. 2, 1862	Mustered out at expiration of service.
1st Lieutenant	Peter C. Bonte.....	2, "	Mustered out at expiration of service.

CAPTAIN BARD'S COMPANY.

THIS independent company of infantry was organized at Cincinnati during the sudden alarm in the fall of 1862, to serve for thirty days. On October 3, 1862, it was mustered out, by reason of the expiration of its term of enlistment.

WALLACE GUARDS.

ROSTER, THIRTY DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Charles Worthington	Sept. 2, 1862	Mustered out at expiration of service.
1st Lieutenant	Samuel K. Williams.....	" 2, "	Mustered out at expiration of service.
2d Lieutenant	H. M. Diggins.....	" 2, "	Mustered out at expiration of service.

WALLACE GUARDS.

THIS independent infantry company was another of the hasty organizations formed at Cincinnati in the fall of 1862, during the alarm about the safety of the city, and was among the few of them that were mustered into the United States service. On the 4th of October, 1862, it was mustered out by reason of the expiration of its term of enlistment.

SECOND OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTALION.

ROSTER, SIXTY DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Robert R. Waddell.....	Aug. 16, 1864	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Samuel Amen	Oct. 18, "	Mustered out with battery.
1st Lieutenant	Benj. J. Harris.....	Aug. 16, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Henry F. Foreaker.....	Oct. 18, "	Mustered out with battery.
2d Lieutenant	Jacob Chrig.....	Aug. 16, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Wm. Favor.....	Oct. 18, "	Mustered out with battery.

2d OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTALION.

THIS battalion—so called on the books of the War Department—was composed of two companies, organized at separate times for temporary service, near the close of the National Guard movement in 1864. The first company was organized at Columbus, on the 16th of August, and mustered out on the 15th of October. The second was organized at the same place on the 18th of October, and mustered out on the 16th of December—the service of each being limited to guard-duty.

FOURTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTALION.

ROSTER, SIX MONTHS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Major	JOSEPH T. WHEELER.....	Aug. 21, 1863	} Mustered out with battalion.
Captain	John H. Winder.....	July 18, "
Do.	Joseph C. Grannan.....	Aug. 21, "
Do.	Francis C. Russell.....	" 22, "
Do.	Joshua Gore.....	" 22, "
Do.	Samuel Widman.....	Sept. 21, "
1st Lieutenant	Wm. C. Taylor.....	Aug. 3, "
Do.	Thomas W. Cook.....	" 3, "
Do.	Paul V. Petard.....	" 22, "
Do.	Andrew P. Morgan.....	Sept. 10, "
Do.	J. E. Holbrook.....	" 29, "
2d Lieutenant	Isaac W. Short.....	Aug. 3, "
Do.	James Watters.....	" 3, "
Do.	David Thomas.....	" 22, "
Do.	Joseph F. Kirkhart.....	" 22, "
Do.	Alex. M. Guthrie.....	Sept. 29, "

FOURTH OHIO INDEPENDENT BATTALION.

THIS battalion of Ohio cavalry, composed of five companies, was organized at Cincinnati from 3d of August to 21st of September, 1863, to serve for six months. From the nature of the organization the service was necessarily detached. The several companies were mustered out as their respective terms of enlistment expired, from 15th of February to 14th March, 1864.

SECOND OHIO BATTERY—N. G.

ROSTER, SIXTY DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Samuel M. Espy.....	Oct. 17, 1864	Mustered out with battery.
1st Lieutenant	James Tripp.....	" 17, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	James H. Bradford.....	" 17, "	Mustered out with battery.
2d Lieutenant	George H. Darling.....	" 17, "	Mustered out with battery.
Do.	Wm. A. S. Brasley.....	" 17, "	Mustered out with battery.

SECOND OHIO BATTERY—N. G.

THE history of the Second Ohio Independent Battery has already been given (pp. 830-31), but another organization from Ohio was mustered into the United States service for the short term of sixty days, which, on the books of the War Department, is known by the same name.

It was organized at Camp Cleveland, on the 17th of October, 1864, and was mustered out by reason of the expiration of its term of enlistment, on 22d of December, 1864. Its whole term of service was spent in guarding the depot of Rebel prisoners at Johnson's Island.

EIGHTH OHIO BATTERY—N. G.

ROSTER, SIXTY DAYS' SERVICE.

RANK.	NAME.	DATE OF RANK.	COM. ISSUED.	REMARKS.
Captain	Charles H. Babcock.....	Sept. 9, 1864	Mustered out with battery.
1st Lieutenant	Fred. C. Gruninger	Aug. 15, "	Mustered out with battery.
2d Lieutenant	Henry Fish.....	Sept. 9, "	Mustered out with battery.

EIGHTH OHIO BATTERY—N. G.

THIS was another of the sixty days' organizations called out for the defense of the depot for Rebel prisoners at Johnson's Island. It was organized at the island on the 15th of August, 1864, and it remained on duty there until the 17th of October, 1864, when it was mustered out by reason of the expiration of its term of enlistment.

EIGHTH OHIO BATTERY—N. G.

Four Months' Service.

TWO months after the muster-out of the battery last mentioned, it was reorganized under its Second-Lieutenant, Henry Fish, to serve on the same species of duty for four months; and on the books of the War Department it was given the same name already borne by two other organizations. It was mustered into the service on the 19th of December, 1864, and by reason of the expiration of its term of enlistment, was mustered out on the 19th of April, 1865.

INDEX.

A

ALDIE, Battle of, Sixth Cav., p. 791.
 ALLEGHANY, Camp, Advance on, Thirty-Second inf., 213.
 ALLEN, Q. M. Sergeant Frank P., First Cav., killed at Ebenezer Church, 753.
 ANDERSON, Colonel Sixth Inf., wounded three times, 53.
 ANDERSON, Fort, capture of, One Hundred and Eighteenth inf., 612.
 ANTIETAM, Battle of, Fifth Inf., 45; Eighth inf., 67; Eleventh inf., 84; Twelfth inf., 90; Twenty-Third inf., 161; Twenty-Eighth inf., 195; Thirtieth inf., 204; Thirty-Sixth inf., 231.
 APPOMATTOX C. H., Battle of, Thirteenth Cav., 827.
 ARKANSAS, Army of, assignment of Twenty-Second inf., 156.
 ARKANSAS POST, Battle of, Forty-Eighth Inf., 298; Seventy-Sixth inf., 441; Eighty-Third inf., 481; Ninety-Sixth inf., 532; One Hundred and Fourteenth inf., 599; One Hundred and Twentieth inf., 615; Fourth ind. bat., 835; Eighth ind. bat., 818; Seventeenth ind. bat., 871.
 ARMSTRONG, Lieutenant-Colonel Ninety-Fifth inf., escapes from Richmond, 528.
 ASHLAND, Battle of, Second Cav., 759; Third cav., 766.
 ATHENS, Battle of, One Hundred and Second inf., 551; Eighteenth Mich. inf., 551.
 ATLANTA, Battle of, Twenty-Seventh Inf., 191; Thirtieth inf., 205; Forty-First inf., 265; Forty-Sixth inf., 288.
 ATLANTA, Campaign of, First Inf., 20; Fifth inf., 46; Sixth inf., 52; Tenth inf., 80; Thirteenth inf., 97; Fourteenth inf., 108; Seventeenth inf., 124; Nineteenth inf., 137; Twenty-First inf., 151; Twenty-Sixth inf., 186; Twenty-Ninth inf., 199; Thirty-First inf., 210; Thirty-Second inf., 215; Thirty-Third inf., 220; Thirty-Fifth inf., 230; Thirty-Seventh inf., 212; Thirty-Eighth inf., 248; Thirty-Ninth inf., 254; Fortieth inf., 258; Forty-Third inf., 273; Forty-Fifth inf., 283; Forty-Seventh inf., 294; Forty-Ninth inf., 303; Fiftieth inf., 307; Fifty-First inf., 311; Fifty-Second inf., 319; Fifty-Fourth inf., 328; Fifty-Fifth inf., 333; Fifty-Seventh inf., 345; Fifty-Ninth inf., 353; Sixty-First inf., 364; Sixty-Fourth inf., 379; Sixty-Fifth inf., 381; Sixty-Sixth inf., 389; Sixty-Eighth inf., 397; Sixty-Ninth inf., 402; Seventieth inf., 406; Seventy-Third inf., 423; Seventy-Fourth inf., 428; Seventy-Sixth inf., 432; Seventy-Eighth inf., 452; Seventy-Ninth inf., 458; Eighty-First inf., 468; Eighty-Second inf., 475; Eighty-Ninth inf., 498; Ninety-Second inf., 515; Ninety-Third inf., 520; Ninety-Seventh inf., 536; Ninety-Eighth inf., 541; Ninety-Ninth inf., 544; One Hundredth inf., 547; One Hundred and First inf., 550; One Hundred and Third inf., 559; One Hundred and Fourth inf., 563; One Hundred and Fifth inf., 570; One Hundred and Eighth inf., 582; One Hundred and Eleventh inf., 592; One Hundred and Thirteenth inf., 595; One Hundred and Eighteenth inf., 612; One Hundred and Twenty-First inf., 621; One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth inf., 639; One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 645; First cav., 752; Third cav., 768; Fourth cav., 773; Seventh cav., 802; Ninth cav., 812; Tenth cav., 816; Third ind. bat., 833; Fourth ind. bat., 836; Sixth ind. bat., 843; Fourteenth ind. bat., 861; Fifteenth ind. bat., 867; Nineteenth ind. bat., 876; Twentieth ind. bat., 878; Battery A, First lt. art'y., 893; Battery C, First lt. art'y., 895; Battery D, First lt. art'y., 896; Battery I, First lt. art'y., 902.
 ATLANTA, Siege of, Twentieth Inf., 144.
 ATLANTA AND WEST POINT RAILROAD, Raid on, Ninth cav., 811.
 AUBURN MILLS, Battle of, Sixth Cav., 791.
 AVERYSBORO', Battle of, Seventy-Ninth Inf., 457; Ninth cav., 813.

B

BAKER CREEK, Crossing of, Fifty-Sixth Inf., 337.
 BALDWIN, Camp, Expedition against, Twenty-Fifth inf., 176.
 BARD'S COMPANY, 937.
 BARDSTOWN, Engagement at, First Cav., 749; Third cav., 765.
 BEAN STATION, Battle of, Second Cav., 759; Seventh cav., 801.
 BELL, Captain John M., Forty-Fourth Inf., drowned in Kanawha, 278.
 BENTLY, Mrs., of Franklin, cares for National soldiers, 814.
 BENTON, Battle of, Seventh Ind. Bat., 846.
 BENTONVILLE, Battle of, Twenty-First Inf., 152; Thirty-Third inf., 220; Thirty-Ninth inf., 235; Forty-Sixth inf., 289; Seventy-Third inf., 425; Seventy-Fourth inf., 430; Seventy-Ninth inf., 457; Eighty-Second inf., 478; Ninety-Eighth inf., 541; One Hundred and Eighth inf., 582; One Hundred and Thirteenth inf., 576; One Hundred and Twenty-First inf., 623; Ninth cav., 813.
 BERRYVILLE, Battle of, Twenty-Third Inf., 165; Thirty-Sixth inf., 237; One Hundred and Twenty-Third inf., 632; One Hundred and Forty-Fourth inf., 674.
 BEVERLY, Surrender of, Thirty-Fourth Inf., 227.
 BEVERLY, Battle of, Eighth Cav., 806.
 BIRDSONG'S FERRY, Skirmish at, Forty-Sixth inf., 286.
 BLAKELY, Fort, Siege of, Seventy-Second Inf., 416.
 BLOOMERY FURNACE, Skirmish at, Fifth Inf., 43.
 BLUE'S GAP, Capture of, Fifth inf., 42.
 BLUE SPRINGS, Battle of, One Hundred and Third inf., 558; Seventh cav., 800.
 BLUNT'S MISSOURI CAMPAIGN, Second Cav., 758.
 BOLIVAR, Battle of, Twentieth inf., 141; Seventy-Eighth inf., 451.
 BOONE, Lieutenant-Colonel One Hundred and Fifteenth inf., commands battalion in Cincinnati, 603 note.
 BOWERS, Private Seth, Fifteenth Ind. Bat., bird lights on him during engagement at the Chattanooga, 867.
 BRAGG, General, Advance into Kentucky, First Inf., 16; Third inf., 30; Thirteenth inf., 94; pursued from, First inf., 17; Third inf., 31.
 BRICE'S CROSS-ROADS, Battle of, Seventy-Second inf., 415.
 BRIDGEPORT, Engagement near, Fourth Cav., 772.
 BRINKMAN, Corporal, Saves colors at Port Republic, Fifth inf., 44.
 BRISTOE STATION, Battle of, Sixth Cav., 791.
 BRITTON LANE, Battle of, Fourth Ind. Cav. co., 930.
 BROUGH, Governor, Makes a speech to Twenty-Fourth inf., 172.
 BROWN, Private William F., Fifty-Ninth Inf., gallantry of at Stone River, 354.
 BROWN'S FERRY, Battle of, Sixth Inf., 52.
 BROWN'S SCHOOL-HOUSE, John, Skirmish at, One Hundred and Thirty-Fifth inf., 664.
 BUCKHANNON, Scout from, by Third Inf., 28.

BUELL'S ARMY, Assignment of, Tenth Inf., 79.
BUFFINGTON ISLAND, Battle of, Seventh Cav., 799.
BULL-PASTURE MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Twenty-Fifth inf., 177; Thirty-Second inf., 214.
BULL RUN, Battle of, First Inf., 15; Eleventh inf., 83; Twelfth inf., 89; Twenty-Fifth inf., 177; Thirty-Sixth inf., 231; Fifty-Fifth inf., 332; Sixty-First inf., 363; Seventy-Third inf., see Manassas, 429; Seventy-Fifth inf., 435; Eighty-Second inf., see Gainesville, 473; Sixth cav., 791; Twelfth ind. bat., 859.
BULL, Sergeant, Eleventh Inf., at Mission Ridge, 86.
BURKE, Colonel, commanding Tenth Inf., at Perryville, 79.
BUSHY MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Seventy-Eighth inf., 452.
BUZZARD'S ROOST, Battle of, Seventy-Fourth inf., 425; One Hundred and First inf., 551.

C

CALHOUN, Engagement at, First Cav., 752.
CAMPBELL, Colonel Sixty-Ninth Inf., warns citizens of Franklin against insulting National dead, 400.
CAMPBELL'S STATION, Battle of, One Hundred and Eleventh inf., 591.
CANOVAN, Private Twentieth Inf., gallantry at Raymond, 142.
CARNIFEX FERRY, Battle of, Ninth Inf., 72; Tenth inf., 78; Twelfth inf., 89; Thirteenth inf., 93; Twenty-Eighth inf., 194; Thirtieth inf., 202; Forty-Seventh inf., 292.
CAROLINA, North, Raid into, First Cav., 752.
CAROLINAS, Campaign of, Thirty-Eighth Inf., 249; Thirty-Ninth inf., 255; Fifty-Third inf., 323; Fifty-Fifth inf., 334; Sixty-Eighth inf., 398; Sixty-Ninth inf., 402; Seventieth inf., 406; Seventy-Sixth inf., 443; Eighty-Second inf., 477; Eighty-Ninth inf., 498; Ninety-Second inf., 516; One Hundred and Eighth inf., 582; One Hundred and Thirteenth inf., 596; Fifth cav., 786; Ninth cav., 813.
CARRICK'S FORD, Battle of, Fourteenth Inf., 104.
CARRONCRO BAYOU, Battle of, Eighty-Third inf., 482.
CARTER, Sergeant Thirtieth Inf., color-bearer at Antietam, 201.
CEDAR CREEK, Battle of, Twenty-Third Inf., 166; Thirty-Sixth inf., 237; One Hundred and Tenth inf., 588; One Hundred and Sixteenth inf., 607; One Hundred and Twenty-Second inf., 627; One Hundred and Twenty-Third inf., 633; One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth inf., 650; Second cav., 766; Battery L, First lt. art'y, 905.
CEDAR MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Fifth Inf., 44; Seventh inf., 60; Sixty-Sixth inf., 388.
CEDARS, Battle of, One Hundred and Seventy-Fourth inf., 707.
CENTERVILLE, Battle of, Thirtieth Inf., 203.
CHAMBERLAIN, Quartermaster, A. B., Thirtieth inf., runs blockade at Vicksburg, 204.
CHAMPION HILLS, Battle of, Twentieth Inf., 142; Thirty-Second inf., 215; Fifty-Sixth inf., 337.
CHANCELLORSVILLE, Battle of, Fourth Inf., 37; Fifth inf., 45; Seventh inf., 61; Eighth inf., 68; Twenty-Fifth inf., 178; Fifty-Fifth inf., 178, 332; Sixty-First inf., 363; Sixty-Sixth inf., 388; Seventy-Fifth inf., 178, 436; Eighty-Second inf., 474; One Hundred and Seventh inf., 577; Battery I, First lt. art'y, 902; Battery L, First lt. art'y, 904.
CHANCELLORSVILLE, Campaign of, Seventy-Third inf., 421.
CHAPEL HILL, Battle of, Ninth Cav., 813.
CHAPMANVILLE, Battle near, Thirty-Fourth inf., 223.
CHATTASCOCHIE, National and Rebel soldiers on banks of, 453.
CHATTANOOGA, Campaign of, Sixth Inf., 52.
CHESTER STATION, Battle near, Sixty-Seventh inf., 392.
CHICKAMAUGA, Battle of, First Inf., 18; Second inf., 25; Sixth inf., 52; Ninth inf., 74; Tenth inf., 80; Thirteenth inf., 96; Fourteenth inf., 106; Fifteenth inf., 112; Seventeenth inf., 121; Eighteenth inf., 130; Nineteenth inf., 137; Twenty-First inf., 150; Twenty-Fourth inf., 172; Twenty-Sixth inf., 155; Thirty-Third inf., 220; Thirty-Fifth inf., 230; Thirty-Sixth inf., 235;

Fortieth inf., 237; Forty-First inf., 263; Forty-Ninth inf., 303; Fifty-First inf., see Lee & Gordon's Mills, 311; Fifty-Second inf., 317; Fifty-Ninth inf., 355; Sixty-Fourth inf., 379; Sixty-Fifth inf., 384; Eighty-Ninth inf., 497; Ninetieth inf., 502; Ninety-Second inf., 513; Ninety-Third inf., 518; Ninety-Eighth inf., 541; Ninety-Ninth inf., 544; One Hundred and First inf., 550; One Hundred and Fifth inf., 592; One Hundred and Thirtieth inf., 595; One Hundred and Twenty-First inf., 621; One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth inf., 636; One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 642; First cav., 731; Third cav., 768; Fourth cav., 773; Tenth cav., 815; Sixth ind. bat., 845; Eighteenth ind. bat., 874; Twentieth ind. bat., 878; Battery A, First lt. art'y, 893; Battery B, First lt. art'y, 894; Battery C, First lt. art'y, 895; Battery F, First lt. art'y, 898.
CHICKASAW BAYOU, Battle of, Sixteenth Inf., 118; Forty-Second inf., see Vicksburg, 269; Forty-Eighth inf., see Vicksburg, 298; Fifty-Fourth inf., 327; Fifty-Seventh inf., 344; Eighty-Third inf., 481; One Hundred and Fourteenth inf., 598; One Hundred and Twentieth inf., 614; Fourth ind. bat., 835; Eighth ind. bat., 848.
CHIDLAW, Chaplain Thirty-Ninth Inf., 255.
CHURCH, Organized in Eleventh Inf., 83.
CINCINNATI, Defense of, One Hundred and Fourth inf., 561; welcomes Tenth inf., 79.
CLARK, Colonel Thirty-Sixth Inf., killed at Antietam, 234; Joseph D., notice of, 679.
CLARKESVILLE, Surrender of Seventy-First Inf., 410.
CLINCH RIVER, Battle of, One Hundred and Twenty-Ninth inf., 658.
CLINTON, Battle of, Third Ind. Bat., 833.
CLOYD MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Twelfth Inf., 90; Twenty-Third inf., 162.
COAL ARBOR, Battle of, One Hundred and Tenth inf., 587.
COCKERILL, Colonel Seventieth Inf., gallantry of at Pittsburg Landing, 405.
COLDWATER, Battle of, Fifth Cav., 780; Fifteenth ind. bat., 866.
COLEMAN, Colonel Eleventh Inf., at Antietam, 84.
COLOR GUARD, Thirty-Eighth Inf., at Jonesboro', 249.
COLUMBUS, Battle of, First Cav., 753.
CORINTH, Advance on, Fifty-Seventh inf., 343.
CORINTH, Battle of, Twenty-Seventh Inf., 190; Forty-Third inf., 273; Sixty-Third inf., 373; Eightieth inf., 460; Eighty-First inf., 467; Third ind. bat., 822; Fifth ind. bat., 838; Tenth ind. bat., 853; Eleventh ind. bat., 856.
CORINTH, Siege of, Sixth Inf., 51; Ninth Inf., 73; Thirteenth inf., 94; Seventeenth inf., 123; Nineteenth inf., 136; Fifth cav., 780.
COTTON HILL, Battle of, Thirteenth Inf., 93; Forty-Fourth inf., 279, note.
COURTLAND, Skirmish at, detach. of First Cav., 719.
COVINGTON, Raid on, Fourth Cav., 774.
CROSS KEYS, Battle of, Twenty-Fifth Inf., 177; Sixtieth inf., 358; Seventy-Third inf., 420; Twelfth ind. bat., 859; Battery H, First lt. art., 900.
CROSS LANES, Skirmish at, Seventh Inf., 58.
CULP'S FARM, Battle of, Sixty-First Inf., 365.
CUMBERLAND, Army of General Rosecrans assumes command of, 24; Tenth inf. announced as head quarters guard for, 79.
CUMBERLAND GAP, Battle of, Ninth Ind. Bat., 850.
CUMBERLAND GAP, Retreat from, Ninth Ind. bat., 850.
CUPP, Private Fifteenth Inf., gallantry of, 113.
CYNTHIANA, Battle of, One Hundred and Sixty-Eighth inf., 698; Seventh cav., 802.

D

DALLAS, Battle of, Fifteenth Inf., 113; Twenty-Seventh inf., 191; Forty-First inf., 264; Forty-Third inf., 275; Forty-Sixth inf., 287; Fifty-Seventh inf., 345; Sixty-First inf., 364; Sixty-Third inf., 374; Eighty-Second inf., 476; Fourth ind. bat., 836; Fourteenth ind. bat., 862.
DALTON ROAD, Battle of, Eighty-Second Inf., 475.
DANDRIDGE, Battle of, One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 644.

DANVILLE RAILROAD, Raid on, Second Cav., 759.
 DAVIS'S MILLS, Battle of, Fifth Cav., 780.
 DAVIS, Sergeant Seventh Cav., carries dispatches to Burnside, 801.
 DECATUR, Battle of, Thirty-Ninth Inf., 254; Sixty-Third inf., 374; Ninth cav., 811.
 DECATUR, Siege of, One Hundred and Second inf., 554.
 DEEP RIVER, Battle of, Sixty-Seventh Inf., 393.
 DE LANY, Private Hayden, gallantry of, at Atlanta, 206.
 DENNISON GUARDS, 935.
 DEPARTMENTAL CORPS, 936.
 DIEBOLT, Lieutenant H. W. Twenty-Seventh inf., mortally wounded at Dallas, 191.
 DOBSON'S FERRY, Battle of, Fifty-First Inf., 310.
 DONELSON, Fort, Siege of, Twentieth Inf., 141; Twenty-Second inf., see Thirtieth Mo., 155; Fifty-Eighth inf., 399; Sixty-Eighth inf., 395.
 DRAKE, Sergeant Eighth Mich. Cav., captures Basil Duke and other Rebels, 799.
 DUBLIN DEPOT AND NEW RIVER BRIDGE, Raid on, Ninety-First inf., 505.
 DUMFRIES, Battle of, Fifth Inf., 45; Seventh inf., 61; Sixty-Sixth inf., 355.
 DUTTON HILL, Battle of, Seventh Cav., 798.

E

EBENEZER CHURCH, Battle of, First Cav., 753; Fourth cav., 774.
 ELIZABETH CITY, Raid on, One Hundred and Twenty-Seventh inf., 916.
 ELKWATER JUNCTION, Skirmish at, Third Inf., 24.
 EIGHTH INFANTRY, 64.
 ELEVENTH INFANTRY, 81.
 EIGHTEENTH INFANTRY, 126.
 EIGHTIETH INFANTRY, 458.
 EIGHTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 463.
 EIGHTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 470.
 EIGHTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 479.
 EIGHTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 484.
 EIGHTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 485.
 EIGHTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 486.
 EIGHTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 490.
 EIGHTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 491.
 EIGHTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 494.
 EIGHTH CAVALRY, 804.
 ELEVENTH CAVALRY, 818.
 EIGHTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 847.
 ELEVENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 855.
 EIGHTEENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 872.

F

FARMINGTON, Battle of, Third Cav., 768.
 FAYETTE C. H., Battle of, Twelfth Inf., 90.
 FAYETTEVILLE, Battle of, Thirty-Fourth Inf., 223.
 FISHER'S HILL, Battle of, Thirty-Fourth Inf., 226; One Hundred and Sixteenth inf., 607; One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth inf., 650.
 FITZGIBBON, Gallantry of, at Carnifex Ferry, 78.
 FIVE FORKS, Battle of, One Hundred and Seventy-Fourth inf., 703.
 FOLCK'S MILLS, Battle of, One Hundred and Fifty-Sixth inf., 687.
 FORD, Colonel Thirty-Second Inf., Ex. from report of Mil. Com. in case of, 216.
 FRANKLIN, Battle of, Fiftieth Inf., 307; Sixty-Fourth inf., 380; Sixty-Fifth inf., 384; One Hundred and First inf., 551; One Hundred and Fourth inf., 563; One Hundred and Eleventh inf., 592; One Hundred and Eighteenth inf., 612; One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 641, 646; One Hundred and Seventy-Fifth inf., 710; One Hundred and Eighty-Third inf., 725; Third cav.,

769; Seventh cav., 803; Sixth ind. bat., 844; Twentieth ind. bat., 879; Battery G, First lt. art'y., 899.
 FREDERICKSBURG, Battle of, Fourth Inf., 37; Eighth inf., 68.
 FREMONT'S BODY-GUARD, 924.
 FRONTIER, Army of, Twenty-Fifth Ind. Bat., 885.
 FIRST INFANTRY, 13.
 FOURTH INFANTRY, 34.
 FOURTH VIRGINIA INFANTRY, 918.
 FIFTH INFANTRY, 40.
 FOURTEENTH INFANTRY, 101.
 FIFTEENTH INFANTRY, 109.
 FORTIETH INFANTRY, 256.
 FORTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 259.
 FORTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 266.
 FORTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 271.
 FORTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 277.
 FORTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 280.
 FORTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 284.
 FORTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 290.
 FORTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 296.
 FORTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 299.
 FIFTIETH INFANTRY, 305.
 FIFTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 308.
 FIFTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 313.
 FIFTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 320.
 FIFTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 325.
 FIFTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 329.
 FIFTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 335.
 FIFTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 340.
 FIFTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 348.
 FIFTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 352.
 FIRST CAVALRY, 745.
 FOURTH CAVALRY, 770.
 FIFTH CAVALRY, 775.
 FIRST INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 828.
 FOURTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 834.
 FIFTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 837.
 FOURTEENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 860.
 FIFTEENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 865.
 FIRST LIGHT ARTILLERY, 889.
 FIRST HEAVY ARTILLERY, 907.
 FIRST INDEPENDENT CAVALRY COMPANY, 928.
 FOURTH INDEPENDENT CAVALRY COMPANY, 929.
 FIFTH INDEPENDENT CAVALRY BATTALION, 931.
 FOURTH INDEPENDENT BATTALION, 938.

G

GAINESVILLE, Battle of, Seventy-Fifth Inf., 437.
 GALLATIN, Battle of, Sixty-Ninth Inf., 401; First cav., 749; Third cav., 766.
 GARNET, Sergeant Forty-First Inf., gallantry of, at Nashville, 265.
 GATES, First-Lieutenant One Hundred and Forty-Eighth inf., injured by railroad accident, 678.
 G COMPANY, Eleventh Cav., among the Indians, 820.
 GETTYSBURG, Battle of, Fourth Inf., 38; Fifth inf., 45; Seventh inf., 61; Eighth inf., 68; Twenty-Fifth inf., 178; Fifty-Fifth inf., 333; Sixty-First inf., 363; Seventy-Third inf., 422; Seventy-Fifth inf., 436; Eighty-Second inf., 471; One Hundred and Seventh inf., 578; Sixth cav., 791; Battery I, First lt. art'y., 902; Battery K, First lt. art'y., 903; Battery L, First lt. art'y., 904.
 GILDEA, Sergeant James, Battery L, First lt. art'y., gallantry at Port Republic, 903.
 GILMER, Fort, Assault on, One Hundred and Twenty-Seventh inf., 917.
 GORDON'S MILLS, Battle near, Eleventh Inf., 85.
 GRAHAMSVILLE, Battle near, Twenty-Fifth inf., 179.
 GRAND COTEAU, Battle of, Ninety-Sixth Inf., 533; Seventeenth ind. bat., 871.
 GRAND GULF, Battle of, Fifty-Eighth Inf., 351.

GRANGER, General Gordon, commends Lieutenant-Colonel Banning, One Hundred and Twenty-First inf., 621.
 GREGG, Fort, Assault on, Sixty-Seventh Inf., 393; One Hundred and Sixteenth inf., 607.
 GROSVENOR, General, Forbids a woman to take the oath of allegiance, 131.
 GUNTERSVILLE, Expedition against, Third Cav., 765.
 GUNTOWN, Battle of, Ninety-Fifth Inf., 529.
 GUTHRIE GRAY BATTALION, 50.

H

HAINES'S BLUFF, Capture of, Seventy-Sixth inf., 441.
 HALLTOWN, Engagement at, Twenty-Third inf., 165.
 HANOVER C. H., Battle of, Second Cav., 759.
 HARLAN'S LIGHT CAVALRY, 926.
 HARPER'S FERRY, Battle of, Sixtieth Inf., 359.
 HARPER'S FERRY, Surrender of, Thirty-Second inf., 214; Twenty-Sixth ind. bat., 888.
 HARTSVILLE, Battle of, One Hundred and Sixth inf., 571; One Hundred and Eighth inf., 580.
 HATCHER'S RUN, Battle of, One Hundred and Twenty-Third inf., 633.
 HATCHIE, Big, Battle of, Seventh Ind. Bat., 846.
 HAWKINS, Colonel Joseph G., commanding Thirtieth inf. at Stone River, 95.
 HAYES, Lieutenant-Colonel Twenty-Third Inf., 161; gallantry of at South Mountain; Colonel Twenty-Third inf., gallantry of at Opequan, 166.
 HERNANDO, Engagement at, Fifth Cav., 780.
 HEWITT, Sergeant-Major Eighteenth Inf., gallantry of at Chickamauga, 180.
 HIBBETS, Colonel Thirty-Second Inf., captured Fayetteville, North Carolina, 216.
 HIGH BRIDGE, Battle of, One Hundred and Twenty-Third inf., 633.
 HINDMAN, Fort, Capture of, Forty-Second Inf., 269; Forty-Seventh inf., 344.
 HOLCOMB, Private Forty-First Inf., gallantry of at Nashville, 265.
 HOLSTON VALLEY, Battle in, Seventh Cav., 800.
 HOOKER, General, commands Twenty-Fourth ind. bat., 853.
 HOOVER'S GAP, Engagement at, Second Inf., 24; Fourteenth inf., 106; Seventeenth inf., 124; Thirty-First inf., 210; Thirty-Third inf., 230; Thirty-Sixth inf., 235; Sixty-Ninth inf., 401; Eighty-Ninth inf., 496; Ninety-Second inf., 513.
 HOWARD, General, commands One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 645.
 HUNTER, General, burns Washington College and Governor Letcher's residence, 163.
 HUNTSVILLE, Garrisoned by Tenth Inf., 79.
 HURLBUT, General, mentions services of Major Hayes, Fifth cav., in special orders, 781.

I

ILLINOIS, Number of troops furnished by, 4.
 IMBODY, Private Joseph, Eighteenth Inf., gallantry of at Chickamauga, 130.
 INDIANA, Number of troops furnished by, 4.
 INTRODUCTORY, 3.
 ISLAND NO. 10, Capture of, Twenty-Seventh inf., 189; Forty-Third inf., 273; Eleventh ind. bat., 556.
 IUKA, Battle of, Twenty-Seventh Inf., 190; Eighty-ninth inf., 460; Third ind. bat., 822; Eleventh ind. bat., 856.
 IVY MOUNTAIN, Engagement at, Second Inf., 23.

J

JACKSON, Battle of, Forty-Sixth Inf., 287; Forty-Seventh inf., 293; Forty-Eighth inf., 298; Fifty-Seventh inf., 344; Seventy-Second inf., 414; Eightieth inf., 461; One Hundred and Twentieth inf., 616; Fourth ind. bat., 835; Fifth ind. bat., 840; Fifteenth ind. bat., 866.

JACKSON, Private Thomas, One Hundred and Sixtieth inf., wounded three times in a skirmish, 690.
 JARVIS, Major Dwight, assumes command of Thirtieth inf. during battle of Stone River, 95.
 JENKINS'S FERRY, Battle of, Seventy-Seventh inf., 418.
 JETERSVILLE, Thirteenth Cav. at, 826.
 JOHNSON, Andrew, United States Senator, in camp of Fourteenth inf., 165.
 JOHNSON, General R. W., Action of a part of his command at Stone River, 17.
 JOHNSON'S ISLAND, Prisoners' depot on, 653.
 JOHNSON'S LANDING, Skirmish at, Fifty-Eighth inf., 351.
 JONESBORO', Battle of, Fourteenth Inf., 108; Twentieth inf., 144; Twenty-First inf., 152; Thirtieth inf., 206; Thirty-Eighth inf., 248; Forty-Sixth inf., 288; Fifty-Seventh inf., 346; Sixty-Ninth inf., 402; Seventy-Fourth inf., 429.

K

KANAWHA, Campaign of, Eleventh Inf., 83.
 KEARNSTOWN, Battle of, Thirty-Sixth Inf., 237; Sixty-Seventh inf., 392; One Hundred and Tenth inf., 586.
 KELLAR'S BRIDGE, Battle of, One Hundred and Seventy-First inf., 701.
 KELLY'S FORD, Battle of, Sixth Cav., 791.
 KENESAW MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Thirteenth inf., 99; Twenty-First inf., 151; Thirtieth inf., 205; Forty-Sixth inf., 287; Fifty-Second inf., 319; Fifty-Third inf., 323; Fifty-Seventh inf., 345; Seventy-Third inf., 423; Ninety-Ninth inf., 544; One Hundred and Thirtieth inf., 596; One Hundred and Twenty-First inf., 622; One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 646; Fourteenth ind. bat., 862.
 KENTUCKY, Number of troops furnished by, 4.
 KIMBALL, Lieutenant One Hundred and Fourth inf., gallantry of at Franklin, 563.
 KINGSTON, Battle of, Fiftieth Inf., 307; One Hundred and Eightieth inf., 719.
 KIRKUP, Lieutenant, gallantry of at Port Republic, 44.
 KLEINHAUS, Private Forty-First Inf., gallantry of at Nashville, 265.
 KNAPP, Lieutenant Ninth Cav., escapes from prison, 811.
 KNOB GAP, Battle of, One Hundred and First inf., 550.
 KNOXVILLE, Siege of, Forty-Fifth Inf., 283; One Hundred and Third inf., 558; One Hundred and Fourth inf., 562; Second cav., 759; Nineteenth ind. bat., 876.
 KOSHT, Private Twenty-Third Inf., gallantry of at Cloyd Mountain, 163.

L

LAING'S FORD, Engagement at, Battery K, First lt. art'y, 902.
 LANE, Captain Eleventh Inf., bridges the Poetalizo, 83.
 LANGDON, Lieutenant-Colonel, commanding First inf., at Mission Ridge, 20.
 LARAMIE, Fort, severe weather at, 821.
 LAVERGNE, Skirmish near, Thirteenth Inf., 95.
 LEWISBURG, Battle of, Thirty-Sixth Inf., 233; Forty-Fourth inf., 279, note.
 LIBERTY GAP, Battle of, Fifteenth Inf., 112; One Hundred and First inf., 550; Twentieth ind. bat., 878.
 LITTLE ROCK, Battle of, Fifth Ind. Bat., 840; Eleventh ind. bat., 857.
 LITTLE, Sergeant, Seventh Cav., carries dispatches to Burnside, 801.
 LOGAN, Captain W. B., One Hundred and Seventy-Fifth inf., killed at Franklin, 710.
 LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Second Inf., 25; Fifth inf., 46; Seventh inf., 62; Twenty-Ninth inf., 199; Thirty-Third inf., 230; Fortieth inf., 257; Sixty-Sixth inf., 388; Ninety-Ninth inf., 541.
 LOST MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Thirteenth Inf., 98.
 LOUISVILLE, Welcomes Forty-Ninth Inf., 301.

LOVEJOY'S STATION, Battle of, Thirteenth Inf., 99; Nineteenth inf., 138; Twentieth inf., 144; Forty-Sixth inf., 288; First cav., 752; Fourth cav., 774.
 LYLE, Chaplain Eleventh Inf., in battle near Gordon's Mills, 85; presents stand of colors from ladies of Troy, Ohio, to Eleventh inf., 86.
 LYNCHBURG AND TENNESSEE RAILROAD, Raid on, Twelfth cav., 824.
 LYNCHBURG, Raid on, Twelfth Inf., 90; Thirty-Fourth inf., 224; Thirty-Sixth inf., 236; Ninety-First inf., 507; One Hundred and Sixteenth inf., 606; One Hundred and Twenty-Third inf., 631; One Hundred and Sixty-First inf., 691; Eight cav., 809.
 LYNNVILLE, Burning of houses in, Fifty-Second inf., 316.

M

MACON, Battle near, Forty-Sixth Inf., 288; Tenth cav., 816.
 MAGNOLIA CHURCH, Battle of, Forty-Second inf., 2-9.
 MAINS, Sergeant Richard, Fifty-Sixth Inf., gallantry of on Red River, 339.
 MARCH TO THE SEA, Thirty-Seventh Inf., 243; Thirty-Ninth inf., 294; Forty-Seventh inf., 295; Fifty-Seventh inf., 346; Sixty-First inf., 365; Sixty-Third inf., see Atlanta to Savannah, 375; Sixty-Eighth inf., 397; Sixty-Ninth inf., 402; Seventy-Third inf., 424; Eighty-Ninth inf., 498; One Hundred and Thirteenth inf., 596; Fifth cav., 753; Tenth cav., 816.
 MARION, Battle of, Twelfth Cav., 824.
 MARK'S MILLS, Battle of, Seventy-Seventh Inf., 448.
 MARSHALL, Humphrey, defeated at Middle Creek by Fortieth inf., 257.
 MARTINSBURG, Battle of, One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth inf., 649.
 MARYLAND HEIGHTS, Defense of, One Hundred and Sixty-First inf., 691.
 MATAMORA, Battle of, Sixty-Eighth Inf., 395.
 MAY, Jack, defeated by the Second Inf., 23.
 MAYNARD, Horace, Congressman, in camp of Fourteenth inf., 105.
 MCALLISTER, Fort, assault on, Thirtieth Inf., 206; Thirty-seventh inf., 244; Forty-Seventh inf., 295; Fifty-Seventh inf., 346; Seventieth inf., 406.
 MCCALL, Sergeant David, Eighty-First Inf., gallantry of, 467.
 MCCOOK, Colonel Dan., burns the house of the murderer of General Robert L. McCook, 316.
 MCCOOK, Fort, defense of, Thirty-Third Inf., 219.
 MCCOOK, General Robert L., murdered by guerrillas, 73, 106, 229.
 McDOWELL, Battle of, Seventy-Fifth Inf., 434; Twelfth ind. bat., 859.
 MCFARLAND, Lieutenant-Colonel Eighty-Sixth inf., skirmishes with John Morgan at Eagleport, 488.
 MCGROARTY, Colonel Sixty-First Inf., captures seventeen Rebels at Culp's farm, 365.
 MCCLAUGHLIN'S SQUADRON OF CAVALRY, 925.
 McMINNVILLE, Powder-mill at destroyed by Fourth cav., 772.
 MCPHERSON, General, commands Eightieth inf. at Jackson, 461.
 MERIDIAN, Expedition, Twentieth Inf., 143; Thirty-Second inf., 215; Third ind. bat., 833.
 METAMORA, Battle of, Fifth Cav., 780; Fifteenth ind. bat., 866.
 MIDDLE CREEK, Battle of, Fortieth Inf., 257; Forty-Second inf., 267.
 MILLER, Captain Eighteenth Inf., defends a stockade, 130.
 MILLIKEN, Colonel First Cav., killed at Stone River, 750.
 MILLIKEN'S BEND, Battle of, Fifth United States heavy art'y (colored), 143.
 MILL SPRINGS, Battle of, Ninth Inf., 73; Fourteenth inf., 105; Seventeenth inf., 123; Ninth ind. bat., 849; Battery B, First lt. art'y, 893; Battery C, First lt. art'y, 895.
 MILTON, Battle of, One Hundred and Fifth Inf., 508.
 MISSION RIDGE, Battle of, First Inf., 19; Seventh inf., 62; Ninth inf., 74; Eleventh inf., 86; Thirteenth inf., 96; Fourteenth inf., 107; Fifteenth inf., 112; Seventeenth inf., 124; Nineteenth inf., 137; Twenty-Sixth inf., 185; Thirty-Third inf., 2-0; Thirty-Fifth inf., 230; Thirty-Sixth inf., 236; Thirty-Seventh inf., 242; Thirty-Eighth inf., 248; Forty-First inf., 264; Forty-Sixth inf., 287; Forty-Seventh inf., 294; Forty-Ninth inf., 303; Fifty-Fifth inf., 333; Sixty-Fourth inf., 379; Sixty-Fifth inf., 384; Sixty-Ninth inf., 402; Seventy-Third inf., 423; Eightieth inf., 461; Eighty-Ninth inf., 497; Ninety-Second inf., 514; Ninety-Third inf., 519; Ninety-Seventh inf., 536; Ninety-Ninth inf., 544; One Hundred and Fifth inf., 570; One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth inf., 637; One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 643.

MITCHELL, General, action of his division in Murfreesboro' campaign and subsequent operations, Third inf., 29.

MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD, Raid on, Fifth cav., 778.

MOBILE, Campaign of, Seventy-Seventh Inf., 44; Eighty-Third inf., 483; Ninety-Fifth inf., 530; Seventeenth ind. bat., 871.

MONOCACY, Battle of, One Hundred and Tenth inf., 587; One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth inf., 650.

MONOCACY BRIDGE, Battle of, Eleventh Inf., 84.

MONOCACY JUNCTION, Battle of, One Hundred and Forty-Fourth inf., 674; One Hundred and Forty-Ninth inf., 680; One Hundred and Fifty-Ninth inf., 689.

MONROE'S CROSS-ROADS, Battle of, Fifth Cav., 787.

MONTEREY C. H., Battle of, Seventy-Fifth Inf., 434.

MOODY, Colonel Seventy-Fourth Inf., gallantry of at Stone River, 431, note.

MOOREFIELD, Skirmish near, Seventy-Third inf., 419; One Hundred and Fifty-Fourth inf., 688.

MORGAN, John, capture of Third Inf., 33; pursued by Forty-Fifth inf., 282; Second cav., 758; Seventh cav., 799.

MORRIS ISLAND, Battle of, Sixty-Second Inf., 349.

MORRIS ISLAND, Seventy-Fifth Inf. on, 436.

MOSSY CREEK, Battle of, One Hundred and Eighteenth inf., 611.

MOULTON, Engagement at, First Cav., 752; Fourth Cav., 773.

MUD SPRINGS, Battle of, Eleventh Cav., 820.

MUNFORDSVILLE, Engagement at, Third Cav., 765.

MUNFORDSVILLE, Skirmish near, Forty-Ninth inf., 301.

MURFREESBORO', Campaign of and subsequent operations at, Sixth inf., 51.

MURFREESBORO', Skirmish near, One Hundred and Seventy-Seventh inf., 714.

N

NASHVILLE, Battle of, Thirteenth Inf., 100; Fifteenth inf., 113; Eighteenth inf., 131; Forty-First inf., 265; Forty-Ninth inf., 304; Fifty-First inf., 312; Sixty-Fourth inf., 380; Sixty-Fifth inf., 384; Seventy-First inf., 410; Seventy-Second inf., 416; Ninety-Third inf., 521; Ninety-Fifth inf., 530; Ninety-Ninth inf., 545; One Hundred and First inf., 551; One Hundred and Fourth inf., 564; One Hundred and Eleventh inf., 593; One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 646; One Hundred and Seventy-Third inf., 705; One Hundred and Seventy-Ninth inf., 717; One Hundred and Eighty-Second inf., 723; One Hundred and Eighty-Third inf., 725; Seventh cav., 803; Sixth ind. bat., 844; Fourteenth ind. bat., 863; Eighteenth ind. bat., 875; Twentieth ind. bat., 879.

NASHVILLE, Occupied by the Army of the Ohio, 51.

NEW CREEK, Battle of, One Hundred and Fifty-Fourth inf., 685.

NEW HOPE CHURCH, Battle of, Nineteenth inf., 137; Twenty-First inf., 151; Forty-Sixth inf., 287; Seventy-Third inf., 423.

NEW MADRID, Battle of, Twenty-Seventh Inf., 189; Forty-Third inf., 273; Sixty-Third inf., 373.

NEW MADRID, Siege of, Eleventh ind. bat., 856.

NEW MARKET, Battle of, One Hundred and Twenty-Third inf., 630; One Hundred and Twenty-Seventh inf., 917.

NICKELS, Private Samuel, Fifty-Sixth Inf., gallantry of on Red River, 339.

NORTH MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Twenty-Third inf., 166; One Hundred and Thirty-Fifth inf., 664.

- NORTH RIVER MILLS, Skirmish at, One Hundred and Fifty-Third inf., 684.
 NINTH INFANTRY, 70.
 NINETEENTH INFANTRY, 132.
 NINETIETH INFANTRY, 499.
 NINETY-FIRST INFANTRY, 504.
 NINETY-SECOND INFANTRY, 511.
 NINETY-THIRD INFANTRY, 517.
 NINETY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 522.
 NINETY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 526.
 NINETY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 531.
 NINETY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 534.
 NINETY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 539.
 NINETY-NINTH INFANTRY, 542.
 NINTH CAVALRY, 808.
 NINTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 849.
 NINETEENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 876.
- O
- OHIO, Army of, retreat to Louisville, Sixth Inf., 51; Ninth inf., 73.
 OHIO, Legislature thanks Eighty-Third Inf. for bravery at Arkansas Post, 481.
 OHIO, Military organizations in the field during the war, 7.
 OHIO, Number of troops furnished by, 3.
 OHIO, Number of men raised in by draft, 5.
 OHIO SOLDIERS, Casualties among, 5; desertions of compared with other States, 5, note; mortality of compared with other States, 5, note; services of, 5.
 OLD TOWN CREEK, Battle of, One Hundred and Fourth inf., 564.
 O'NEAL, Lieutenant George E., Thirtieth Inf., runs blockade at Vicksburg, 204.
 OOSTENLA, Assault on point commanding bridge across, Forty-Third inf., 274.
 OPDYCKE, Colonel One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., gallantry of at Chickamauga, 642; at Resaca, 646.
 OPEQUAN, Battle of, Twenty-Third Inf., 165; Thirty-Sixth inf., 237; Ninety-First inf., 399; One Hundred and Sixty-ninth inf., 607; One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth inf., 630; Second cav., 700.
 ORANBURG, Battle of, Twentieth Inf., 144.
 ORCHARD KNOB, Battle of, First Inf., 19; Nineteenth inf., 137; Forty-First inf., 264; Ninety-Third inf., 519.
 ORR, Captain John, Seventy-Eighth Inf., gallantry of at Atlanta, 453.
 OVERALL'S CREEK, Battle of, One Hundred and Seventy-Fourth inf., 707.
 OWEN CHURCH, Battle of, Sixth Cav., 792.
 ONE HUNDREDDTH INFANTRY, 546.
 Do. FIRST INFANTRY, 548.
 Do. SECOND INFANTRY, 552.
 Do. THIRD INFANTRY, 556.
 Do. FOURTH INFANTRY, 560.
 Do. FIFTH INFANTRY, 565.
 Do. SIXTH INFANTRY, 572.
 Do. SEVENTH INFANTRY, 576.
 Do. EIGHTH INFANTRY, 579.
 Do. NINTH INFANTRY, 583.
 Do. TENTH INFANTRY, 584.
 Do. ELEVENTH INFANTRY, 589.
 Do. TWELFTH INFANTRY, 593.
 Do. THIRTEENTH INFANTRY, 594.
 Do. FOURTEENTH INFANTRY, 597.
 Do. FIFTEENTH INFANTRY, 601.
 Do. SIXTEENTH INFANTRY, 604.
 Do. SEVENTEENTH INFANTRY, 608.
 Do. EIGHTEENTH INFANTRY, 610.
 Do. NINETEENTH INFANTRY, 613.
 Do. TWENTIETH INFANTRY, 613.
 Do. TWENTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 618.
 Do. TWENTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 624.
 ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-THIRD INF., 623
 Do. TWENTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 634.
 Do. TWENTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 640.
 Do. TWENTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 647.
 Do. TWENTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 652, 915
 Do. TWENTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 652.
 Do. TWENTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 657.
 Do. THIRTIETH INFANTRY, 659.
 Do. THIRTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 660.
 Do. THIRTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 661.
 Do. THIRTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 662.
 Do. THIRTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 663.
 Do. THIRTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 664.
 Do. THIRTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 665.
 Do. THIRTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 666.
 Do. THIRTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 667.
 Do. THIRTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 668.
 Do. FORTIETH INFANTRY, 669.
 Do. FORTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 670.
 Do. FORTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 671.
 Do. FORTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 673.
 Do. FORTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 674.
 Do. FORTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 675.
 Do. FORTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 676.
 Do. FORTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 677.
 Do. FORTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 678.
 Do. FORTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 680.
 Do. FIFTIETH INFANTRY, 681.
 Do. FIFTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 682.
 Do. FIFTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 683.
 Do. FIFTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 684.
 Do. FIFTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 685.
 Do. FIFTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 686.
 Do. FIFTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 687.
 Do. FIFTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 688.
 Do. FIFTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 688.
 Do. FIFTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 689.
 Do. SIXTIETH INFANTRY, 690.
 Do. SIXTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 691.
 Do. SIXTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 692.
 Do. SIXTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 693.
 Do. SIXTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 694.
 Do. SIXTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 695.
 Do. SIXTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 696.
 Do. SIXTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 697.
 Do. SIXTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 698.
 Do. SIXTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 699.
 Do. SEVENTIETH INFANTRY, 700.
 Do. SEVENTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 701.
 Do. SEVENTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 703.
 Do. SEVENTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 704.
 Do. SEVENTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 706.
 Do. SEVENTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 709.
 Do. SEVENTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 711.
 Do. SEVENTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 713.
 Do. SEVENTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 715.
 Do. SEVENTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 717.
 Do. EIGHTIETH INFANTRY, 718.
 Do. EIGHTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 720.
 Do. EIGHTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 722.
 Do. EIGHTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 724.
 Do. EIGHTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 726.
 Do. EIGHTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 727.
 Do. EIGHTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 728.
 Do. EIGHTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 730.
 Do. EIGHTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 732.
 Do. EIGHTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 733.
 Do. NINETIETH INFANTRY, 734.
 Do. NINETY-FIRST INFANTRY, 734.
 Do. NINETY-SECOND INFANTRY, 736.
 Do. NINETY-THIRD INFANTRY, 738.

ONE HUNDRED AND NINETY-FOURTH INF., 739.
 Do. NINETY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 740.
 Do. NINETY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 742.
 Do. NINETY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 743.
 Do. NINETY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 744.

P

PARKER'S CROSS-ROADS, Engagement at, Twenty-Seventh inf., 190.
 PEACHTREE CREEK, Battle of, Second Inf., 25; Sixty-First inf., 365; Seventy-Third inf., 424; Seventy-Ninth inf., 457; Eighty-Second inf., 476; Ninety-Seventh inf., 537.
 PEA RIDGE, Battle of, Second Ind. Bat., 831; Fourth ind. bat., 834.
 PECK, Sergeant Eleventh Inf., gallantry of in battle near Gordon's Mills, 86; Lieutenant Eleventh inf., gallantry of at Mission Ridge, 86.
 PENNSYLVANIA, Number of troops furnished by, 4.
 PERRYVILLE, Battle of, Second Inf., 24; Third inf., 30; Ninth inf., 73; Tenth inf., 79; Thirty-Third inf., 219; Thirty-Eighth inf., see Chaplin Hills, 247; Forty-First inf., 262; Fiftieth inf., 306; Fifty-Second inf., 315; Ninety-Seventh inf., 533; Ninety-Eighth inf., 540; One Hundred and First inf., 549; One Hundred and Fifth inf., 567; One Hundred and Twenty-First inf., 620; detachment of First cav., 749; Third cav., 766.
 PETERSBURG, Action near, Sixty-Second Inf., 369.
 PHILIPPI, Battle of, Fourteenth Inf., 103; First lt. art'y., 892.
 PHILIPPI, Capture of, Eighth Cav., 807.
 PIEDMONT, Battle of, Twenty-Eighth Inf., 196; One Hundred and Sixteenth inf., 108; Fourth Virginia inf., 920.
 PIERSALL, Sergeant-Major James K., Thirtieth cav., gallantry of at Jetersville, 828.
 PINE MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Sixty-Sixth Inf., 389.
 PITTSBURG LANDING, Battle of, First inf., 16; Sixth inf., 51; Thirteenth inf., 91; Fifteenth inf., see Savannah, 111; Nineteenth inf., 135; Twentieth inf., 141; Twenty-Second inf., see Shiloh, 156; Twenty-Fourth inf., 171; Forty-First inf., 261; Forty-Sixth inf., 287; Forty-Eighth inf., 298; Forty-Ninth inf., 301; Fifty-Third inf., 321, 324; Fifty-Fourth inf., 327; Fifty-Sixth inf., 336; Fifty-Seventh inf., 342; Fifty-Eighth inf., 350; Fifty-Ninth inf., 353; Sixty-Fourth inf., 378; Sixty-Fifth inf., 383; Seventieth inf., 405; Seventy-First inf., 409; Seventy-Second inf., 413; Seventy-Sixth inf., 440; Seventy-Seventh inf., 446; Seventy-Eighth inf., 451; Eighty-First inf., 465; Fifth cav., 779; Fifth ind. bat., 834; Eighth ind. bat., 847; Fourteenth ind. bat., 861; Battery G, First lt. art'y., 898.
 PLANTERSVILLE, Battle of, Seventh Cav., 803.
 POLK, Bishop and Major-General, killed by Fifteenth ind. bat., 867.
 POPE'S CAMPAIGN NEAR WASHINGTON, Fifth inf., 47.
 PORT GIBSON, Battle of, Fifty-Sixth Inf., 337.
 PORT REPUBLIC, Battle of, Fifth inf., 44; Seventh inf., 60; Sixteenth inf., 358; Sixty-Sixth inf., 377; One Hundred and Twenty-Third inf., 631; Battery L, First lt. art'y., 903.
 PORT WALTHALL, One Hundred and Thirty-Fourth inf., 603.
 POTOMAC, Army of, Twenty-Ninth Inf., 199; Sixtieth inf., 361.
 POWHATAN, Fort, One Hundred and Thirty-Third inf., 602.
 PRICE, Pursuit of into Missouri, Seventy-Second inf., 416.
 PRINCETON, Battle of, Thirty-Seventh Inf., 240.
 PUMPKIN-VINE CREEK, Battle of, Sixty-Sixth inf., 389.

Q

QUANTRELL, Defeated by Second Cav., 757.

R

RACCOON MOUNTAIN, Capture of, One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth inf., 637.
 RAPIDAN STATION, Battle of, Sixth Cav., 791.

RAYMOND, Battle of, Twentieth Inf., 142.
 RED RIVER, Campaign of, Fifty-Sixth Inf., 338; Eighty-Third inf., 482; One Hundred and Twentieth inf., see Banks' expedition, 616; Second ind. bat., 831.
 REEVES, Surgeon James, Seventy-Eighth Inf., visits Union refugees concealed in a cave, 453.
 REILLY, Thomas, citizen, carries dispatches at Stone River, 80.
 RESACA, Battle of, Second Inf., 25; Forty-Third inf., 274; Forty-Fifth inf., 283; Fifty-Third inf., 322; Fifty-Seventh inf., 345; Sixty-First inf., 364; Sixty-Third inf., 374; Sixty-Ninth inf., 402; Seventy-Third inf., 423; Seventy-Ninth inf., 456; Ninety-Third inf., 520; One Hundred and Third inf., 559; One Hundred and Eighth inf., 582; One Hundred and Eleventh inf., 592; One Hundred and Eighteenth inf., 612; One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 646; Tenth cav., 816; Fourth ind. bat., 836; Fourteenth ind. bat., 861.
 RICHARDSON, Sergeant Madison, Forty-Seventh inf., bears dispatches to Sherman, 294.
 RICHARDSON, Surgeon Nathan S., Thirteenth cav., gallantry of at Appomattox C. H., 827.
 RICHMOND AND PETERSBURG RAILROAD, Raid on, One Hundred and Thirty-Third inf., 662.
 RICHMOND, Battle of, Ninety-Fifth Inf., 527.
 RICH MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Nineteenth Inf., 134.
 RINGGOLD, Battle of, Sixty-Sixth Inf., 388.
 RITTER, Sergeant Daniel, gallantry of at Mission Ridge, 96.
 RIVER'S BRIDGE, Charge on, Forty-Third Inf., 276.
 ROBINSON'S CROSS-ROADS, Skirmish at, Fourth inf., 38.
 ROCKY FACE RIDGE, Sixty-Fourth Inf., 379; Eighty-Ninth inf., 498; One Hundred and Eleventh inf., 592; One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., 645.
 ROCKY FACE GAP, Battle of, Ninety-Second inf., 515.
 ROCKY GAP, Battle of, Seventh Cav., 799.
 ROME, Battle of, First Cav., 753.
 ROME, Capture of, One Hundred and Twenty-First inf., 621.
 ROME, Raid on iron-works at, Third Inf., 32.
 ROMNEY, Campaign against, Sixty-Sixth Inf., 387.
 ROMNEY, Rebels driven from, Fourth Inf., 36.
 RUFF'S MILLS, Battle of, Fourteenth ind. bat., 862.
 RUSSELLVILLE, Battle of, Second Cav., 759.

S

SABINE CROSS-ROADS, Battle of, Forty-Eighth inf., 298; Fifty-Sixth inf., 338; Ninety-Sixth inf., 533.
 SAILOR'S CREEK, Thirtieth Cav. at, 826.
 SALKEHATCHIE, Crossing of, Twenty-Seventh inf., 191.
 SALTVILLE, Raid on, Twelfth Cav., 823.
 SAVANNAH, Siege of, Seventy-Ninth Inf., 457; Fifteenth ind. bat., 867.
 SAWYER, Captain Twenty-Seventh Inf., mortally wounded at Dallas, 191.
 SCARY CREEK, Battle of, Twelfth Inf., 89; Twenty-First inf., 148.
 SELMA, Battle of, Third Cav., 769; Fourth Cav., 774.
 SHAW, Corporal Fifth Inf., gallantry of at Port Republic, 44.
 SHAW, Lieutenant-Colonel Thirty-Fourth Inf., killed at Winchester, 225.
 SHARP-SHOOTERS, Independent companies of, 921.
 SHEPHERDSTOWN, Engagement at, First Cav., 749.
 SHERIDAN, General, at Cedar Creek, Twenty-Third inf., 168.
 SHERMAN, General, commands Fifty-Third inf., 324.
 SHERMAN'S BODY-GUARD, 934.
 SILVER CREEK, Battle of, Fourth Ind. Cav. co., 930.
 SMITH, Colonel Forty-Third Inf., killed at Corinth, 273.

- SMITHFIELD, Advance toward, One Hundred and Eighth inf., 383.
- SMITH, General "Baldy," commends the conduct of colored troops at Petersburg, 917.
- SMITH'S FARM, Battle of, Fifty-Fifth Inf., 334.
- SNICKER'S FERRY, Battle of, One Hundred and Twenty-Third Inf., 631.
- SNICKER'S GAP, Battle of, One Hundred and Sixteenth inf., 603.
- SNOW HILL, Engagement at, Fourth Cav., 773.
- SNYDER, Major J. T., gallantry of at Lost Mountain, 98.
- SNYDER'S BLUFF, Battle of, Fifty-Seventh Inf., 341.
- SOUTH MOUNTAIN, Battle of, Eleventh Inf., 84; Twelfth inf., 89; Twenty-Third inf., 161; Thirtieth inf., 203; Thirty-Sixth inf., 234.
- SPANISH FORT, Siege of, Seventy-Second Inf., 416.
- SPRINGFIELD, Battle of, Sixty-Fifth Inf., 384; Fremont's Body-Guard, 924.
- SPRING HILL, Battle of, Fiftieth Inf., 307; Sixty-Fourth inf., 3-0; One Hundred and Third inf., 559; Eighteenth ind. bat., 873.
- Squires, Major, commanding Twenty-Sixth Inf. at Stone River, 185.
- STAFFORD, Major J. A., commanding First Inf. at Stone River, 17; gallantry of at Mission Ridge, 20.
- STEVENSON'S DEPOT, Battle of, Ninety-First inf., 308; First ind. bat., 829.
- STONEMAN'S RAID, Fourth Cav., 774.
- STONE RIVER, Battle of, First Inf., 17; Second Inf., 24; Third inf., 31; Sixth inf., 51; Tenth inf., 80; Thirteenth inf., 95; Fifteenth inf., 112; Seventeenth inf., 123; Eighteenth inf., 130; Nineteenth inf., 136; Twenty-First inf., 150; Twenty-Fourth inf., 172; Twenty-Sixth inf., 183; Thirty-First inf., 210; Thirty-Third inf., 220; Thirty-Eighth inf., 248; Forty-First inf., see Murfreesboro', 262; Forty-Ninth inf., see Murfreesboro', 302; Fifty-First inf., 310; Fifty-Second inf., 315; Fifty-Ninth inf., 354; Sixty-Fourth inf., 378; Sixty-Fifth inf., 383; Sixty-Ninth inf., 401; Seventy-Fourth inf., 428; Ninetieth inf., 501; Ninety-Seventh inf., see Murfreesboro', 535; Ninety-Ninth inf., 513; One Hundred and First inf., 550; First cav., see Murfreesboro', 750; Third cav., 767; Fourth cav., see Murfreesboro', 773; Sixth ind. bat., 842; Battery A, First lt. art'y., 833; Battery B, First lt. art'y., 894; Battery E, First lt. art'y., 897; Battery F, First lt. art'y., 898.
- STORER, Judge, presents colors to Tenth Inf., 78.
- STRASBURG, Battle of, Sixtieth Inf., 358; One Hundred and Twenty-Third inf., 632; Sixth cav., 790.
- SUMTERVILLE, Battle of, One Hundred and Seventh inf., 578.
- SECOND INFANTRY, 21.
- SIXTH INFANTRY, 48.
- SEVENTH INFANTRY, 54.
- SIXTEENTH INFANTRY, 115.
- SEVENTEENTH INFANTRY, 120.
- SIXTIETH INFANTRY, 356.
- SIXTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 362.
- SIXTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 366.
- SIXTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 371.
- SIXTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 376.
- SIXTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 381.
- SIXTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 385.
- SIXTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 390.
- SIXTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 394.
- SIXTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 399.
- SEVENTIETH INFANTRY, 403.
- SEVENTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 407.
- SEVENTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 411.
- SEVENTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 417.
- SEVENTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 426.
- SEVENTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 432.
- SEVENTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 439.
- SEVENTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 444.
- SEVENTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 449.
- SEVENTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 454.
- SECOND CAVALRY, 754.
- SIXTH CAVALRY, 788.
- SEVENTH CAVALRY, 795.
- SECOND INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 830.
- SECOND BATTERY NATIONAL GUARD, 939.
- SIXTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 841.
- SEVENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 845.
- SIXTEENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 868.
- SEVENTEENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 870.
- SECOND HEAVY ARTILLERY, 909.
- SIXTH INDEPENDENT CAVALRY CO., 932.
- SEVENTH IND. CO. SHARP-SHOOTERS, 934.
- SECOND INDEPENDENT BATTALION, 938.

T

- TAYLOR'S RIDGE, Assault on, Seventh Inf., 62; Seventy-Sixth inf., 442.
- TECHE, Campaign of, Fifty-Sixth Inf., 338; Eighty-Third inf., 481.
- TENNESSEE, East, Campaign of, First Inf., 20; Sixth inf., 52; Nineteenth inf., see Knoxville, 137; Twenty-Sixth inf., see Knoxville, 186; Thirty-Seventh inf., 242; Forty-First inf., see Knoxville, 264; Forty-Sixth inf., see Knoxville, 287; Forty-Seventh inf., see Knoxville, 294; Forty-Ninth inf., see Knoxville, 303; Fifty-Second inf., 318; Fifty-Fifth inf., see Knoxville, 333; Fifty-Seventh inf., see Knoxville, 345; Seventieth inf., see Knoxville, 406; Eighty-Second inf., see Knoxville, 475; Ninety-Third inf., 519; Ninety-Seventh inf., 536; One Hundred and Eighth inf., see Knoxville, 582; One Hundred and Thirteenth inf., see Knoxville, 596; One Hundred and Twenty-Fourth inf., see Knoxville, 638; One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., see Knoxville, 644; Nineteenth ind. bat., 876; Battery A, First lt. art'y., 893.
- TENNESSEE, East, raid into, Seventh Cav., 797, 799; Ninth cav., 809; Tenth cav., 816; Battery D, First lt. art'y., 896.
- THOMAS, General, addresses Tenth Inf., 80; commends Colonel Opkycke, One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth inf., at Franklin, 646.
- THOMPSON'S HILL, Battle of, One Hundred and Twentieth inf., 616.
- THOMPSON'S STATION, Battle of, Eighteenth ind. bat., 873.
- TOLAND, Colonel Thirty-Fourth Inf., killed at Wytheville, 224.
- TOWN CREEK, Battle of, One Hundred and Eighteenth inf., 612.
- TRACY CITY, Capture of, Thirty-Eighth Inf., 247.
- TRAPP, Captain, gallantry of at Mission Ridge, 20.
- TRIMBLE, Colonel Sixteenth Inf., procures release of colored servants captured at Harper's Ferry, 359.
- TRUMBULL GUARDS, 936.
- TUNNEL HILL, Assault on, Thirtieth Inf., 205.
- TUPELO, Expedition against, Seventy-Second Inf., 415; Ninety-Fifth inf., 529.
- TWIN CREEK, Skirmish at, One Hundred and Seventy-Seventh inf., 714.
- TYLER, General, action of part of his command at Port Republic, 60; commends Colonel Brown and One Hundred and Forty-Ninth inf. at Monocacy Junction, 680.
- THIRD INFANTRY, 26.
- TENTH INFANTRY, 76.
- TWELFTH INFANTRY, 87.
- THIRTEENTH INFANTRY, 91.
- TWENTIETH INFANTRY, 139.
- TWENTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 146.
- TWENTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 153.
- TWENTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 158.
- TWENTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 169.
- TWENTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 174.
- TWENTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 182.
- TWENTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 187.
- TWENTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 192.
- TWENTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 197.
- THIRTIETH INFANTRY, 200.
- THIRTY-FIRST INFANTRY, 207.
- THIRTY-SECOND INFANTRY, 211.
- THIRTY-THIRD INFANTRY, 217.
- THIRTY-FOURTH INFANTRY, 221.
- THIRTY-FIFTH INFANTRY, 228.

THIRTY-SIXTH INFANTRY, 231.
 THIRTY-SEVENTH INFANTRY, 238.
 THIRTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY, 245.
 THIRTY-NINTH INFANTRY, 250.
 THIRD CAVALRY, 762.
 TENTH CAVALRY, 814.
 TWELFTH CAVALRY, 822.
 THIRTEENTH CAVALRY, 825.
 THIRD INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 832.
 TENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 852.
 TWELFTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 858.
 THIRTEENTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 859.
 TWENTIETH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 878.
 TWENTY-FIRST INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 880.
 TWENTY-SECOND INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 881.
 TWENTY-THIRD INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 882.
 TWENTY-FOURTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 882.
 TWENTY-FIFTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 884.
 TWENTY-SIXTH INDEPENDENT BATTERY, 887.
 THIRD INDEPENDENT CAVALRY CO., 929.

U

UNION LIGHT GUARD, 923.
 UNION RAILROAD, Accident to One Hundred and Forty-Eighth inf. on, 678.
 UTEs, Expedition against, Eleventh Cav., 821.
 UTOY CREEK, Battle of, One Hundred and Fourth inf., 563.

V

VAN DORN, Killed by Dr. Peters, 316.
 VICKSBURG, Campaign of, Sixteenth Inf., 118; Thirty-Second inf., 215; Forty-Second inf., 269; Forty-Seventh inf., 293; Forty-Eighth inf., 298; Fifty-Fourth inf., 327; Fifty-Sixth inf., 337; Fifty-Seventh inf., 344; Sixty-Eighth inf., 396; Seventy-Second inf., 414; Seventy-Eighth inf., 452; Eightieth inf., 461; Eighty-Third inf., 481; Ninety-Fifth inf., 529; One Hundred and Fourteenth inf., 599; One Hundred and Twentieth inf., 616; Second ind. bat., 831; Third ind. bat., 832; Fourth ind. bat., 835; Eighth ind. bat., 848; Eleventh ind. bat., 857; Sixteenth ind. bat., 869; Seventeenth ind. bat., 871; Twenty-Sixth ind. bat., see Mississippi, 888; Fourth Virginia inf., 919; Fourth ind. cav. co., 930.
 VICKSBURG, Detail from Seventy-Eighth Inf. runs blockade at, 452.
 VICKSBURG, Siege of, Twentieth Inf., 143; Thirtieth inf., 205; Thirty-Seventh inf., 241; Seventy-Sixth inf., 441; Fifth ind. bat., 839; Seventh ind. bat., 849; Tenth ind. bat., 853; Fifteenth ind. bat., 866.
 VIENNA STATION, First Inf. at, 15.
 VINING'S STATION, Engagement at, Twenty-First inf., 151.
 VIRGINIA AND TENNESSEE RAILROAD, Raid on, Twenty-Third inf., 162; Thirty-Fourth inf., 223-224; Thirty-Sixth inf., 236; Thirty-Seventh inf., 240.
 VIRGINIA, West, campaign of, Tenth Inf., 79.

W

WAGNER, Fort, assault on, Sixty-Second Inf., 369; Sixty-Seventh inf., 392.

WALKER'S FORD, Battle of, Twenty-First Ind. bat., 880.

WALLACE GUARDS, 937.

WALLACE, Sergeant One Hundred and Twentieth inf., gallantry of at Arkansas Post, 615.

WALTMAN, Corporal William, Twenty-First inf., gallantry of at Vining's Station, 151.

WARD, Lieutenant-Colonel Durbin, commanding Seventeenth inf. at Hoover's Gap, 124.

WASHINGTON, Engagement at, First Cav., 751; Sixth ind. cav. co., 932.

WASHINGTON CITY, Fight before, One Hundred and Fiftieth inf., 681.

WAUHATCHIE, Battle of, Sixty-First Inf., 364; Seventy-Third inf., 422; Eighty-Second inf., 475.

WAYNESBORO, Battle of, Second Cav., 761; Fifth cav., 786; Ninth cav., 812; Tenth cav., 817.

WEBER, Corporal William, Forty-Seventh Inf., bears dispatches to Sherman, 294.

WEIS, Private Third Cav., attempts the life of John Morgan, 766.

WETHERBY, Lieutenant Twentieth Inf., fights with Eighty-First Illinois at Raymond, 142.

WETMORE, Jas. C., Ohio State Military Agent, renders aid to One Hundred and Sixty-Sixth inf., 695.

WHIPPLE, General W. D., addresses complimentary letter to Tenth inf., 80.

WHITEHALL LANDING, Skirmish at, Fifteenth ind. bat., 865.

WHITE RIVER, Crossing of by Twenty-Fourth ind. bat., 885.

WHITE, Sergeant Thirtieth Inf., gallantry of at Antietam, 204.

WHITE SULPHUR, Skirmish near, One Hundred and Fifty-Second inf., 683.

WHITTAKER, Nathan, Eleventh Inf., gallantry of at South Mountain, 84.

WILD CAT, Battle of, Fourteenth Inf., 105; Seventeenth inf., 123.

WILDERNESS, Battle of, One Hundred and Tenth inf., 587; One Hundred and Twenty-Second inf., 626.

WILDERNESS, Campaign of, Second Cav., 759.

WILHELM, Captain Fifty-Sixth Inf., gallantry of at Champion Hills, 337.

WILKERSON'S PIKE, Skirmish at, One Hundred and Seventy-Eighth inf., 716; One Hundred and Eighty-First inf., 721; Third cav., 767.

WILSON, Captain Twentieth Inf., gallantry of at Raymond, 142.

WILSTACH, Hon. Chas. F., raises the Wilstach Regiment, 291.

WINCHESTER, Battle of, Fifth Inf., 43; Seventh inf., 59; Eighth inf., 67; Twenty-Third inf., 165; Thirty-Fourth inf., 225-226; One Hundred and Tenth inf., 588; One Hundred and Twenty-Second inf., 627; One Hundred and Twenty-Third inf., 630, 632; Second cav., 759; First ind. bat., 829; Battery L, First lt. arty., 903.

WOLFORD'S BRIGADE, Captured at Philadelphia, 282.

WOOD, General, commends Twenty-Sixth Inf., 184.

WRIGHT, Private George, Tenth Ind. Bat., gallantry of at Corinth, 853.

WYTHEVILLE, Battle of, Thirty-Fourth Inf., 223.

Y

YATES'S FORD, Ninety-Fourth Inf. at, 523.

BOOKS PUBLISHED BY
MOORE, WILSTACH & BALDWIN,

25 WEST FOURTH STREET, CINCINNATI,

AND 60 WALKER STREET, NEW YORK.

After the War:

A SOUTHERN TOUR; MAY, '65, TO MAY, '66. By ["Agate"] WHITE LAW REID, of the "Cincinnati Gazette." 1 handsome vol., 12mo., of 589 pages, illustrated, $2.50.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"An accomplished writer, trained to shrewd observation of events and men.

The volume before us, opulent in paper and typography, and enhanced by a fine impression of Mr. Ourdin's matchless engraving of the ex-Secretary, is the record, not merely of Mr. Reid's practiced observation, but of the judgment and thought of the entire party."—N. Y. Independent.

"Mr. Reid was fortunately one of the party that accompanied Chief-Justice Chase on the trip down the Coast, on board the revenue cutter Wayanda. Enjoyed rare facilities, and made industrious and valuable use of them."—Cincinnati Commercial.

"Mr. Reid's descriptions of the Louisiana and Mississippi plantations, and of the new relations between employers and employed, are the most valuable and readable portions of the book."—N. Y. Evening Post.

"We close our extracts from Mr. Reid's very interesting and valuable work with the following paragraphs of advice to those who purpose emigrating to the South."—N. Y. Tribune.

"We have seen nothing so complete and impartial as this volume in its descriptions of the Southern people, both white and colored."—Western Christian Advocate.

"He wrote as he saw, and he saw as it was. A close observer, and a candid, unprejudiced man."—Toledo Blade.

"Marked by decided literary ability, remarkable descriptive powers, clearness and accuracy of narrative, and general reliability."—N. Y. Times.

"Mr. Reid enjoyed extraordinary facilities for the preparation of the work and we can not but be charmed with his pleasing, vivid and sparkling style."—Indianapolis Journal.

"He gives the reader facts and impressions, and then allows him to draw his own conclusions. The only way therefore to get an idea of the book is to read it. There are many fine points which we are tempted to copy, but must omit for want of space."—Toledo Commercial.

"In its pages Mr. Reid has demonstrated his mastery of every style as a writer—the descriptive, the analytic, the narrative and the dramatic. Apart from the intrinsic attractions of the topic and the matter, the work deserves a high appreciation as a purely literary effort, and will, we predict, endure as a classic when time may have obscured its other merits."—Theodore Tilton, Editor of Independent.

"Our author appears to have been constantly on the alert, and has omitted to mention nothing of interest which came under his observation. Society, scenery, the devastation, moral and material, which the march of armies left in their course, as well as the indications every where apparent at the time that notes were taken—a period anterior to the Southern retrogression, occasioned by the unwonted position taken by President Johnson—of a dawning reform, are treated in a clear and quite exhaustive manner. The negro schools; the condition of the freedmen on the Sea Island plantations as well as those on the main land; the cotton speculations which immediately followed the close of the war; the culture of sugar and rice, etc., are mentioned in detail, at considerable length. The book is also adorned with interesting items of history, and the description of places long and well identified with the annals of American heroism, such as the last resting-place of 'Light-Horse Harry,' the distinguished son of the 'Lowland Beauty,' Washington's earlier love.

Mr. Reid's style is excellent. He always writes well, and often elegantly."—The Times (San Francisco).

"The book is forcibly written. As a mere record of travel it is very good, and the political comments on the situation add to its attractiveness. The author always has something to say, and he knows how to say it. He went to the South in company with Chief-Justice Chase, whose portrait is the frontispiece, and whose authority is frequently cited."—Alta California.

"OFFICE OF THE TRIBUNE, New York, Sept. 13, 1866.

"Gentlemen: Mr. Whitelaw Reid's graphic account of his journeyings and observations throughout the South 'After the War,' is a most genuine, hearty, truthful and instructive portrayal of an interesting part of our country at the most memorable stage of its history.

"That it may be widely read and pondered is the hope and trust of "Yours,

HORACE GREELEY.

"TO MESSRS. MOORE, WILSTACH & BALDWIN."

"'AFTER THE WAR,' by Whitelaw Reid, is a book of remarkable interest, giving a graphic account of the condition and feeling of the whites and negroes in the South since the suppression of the insurrection. The author was one of the suite of the Chief-Justice of the United States, who was commissioned to go through the South and observe the state of things there with especial reference to the practicability of re-establishing the courts of law which had been thrown into confusion. The writer is candid and exact, as well as a practiced delineator of men and things. He has much humor, and is also able to portray the pathetic side of the subject with which he is dealing, and the reader feels assured at every step that the account is true. There is no little philosophical interest in tracing the efforts of a society completely overthrown to re-adjust itself in accordance with a new idea and order which a stronger power has made necessary."—London Review.

The Trials for Treason at Indianapolis,

Disclosing the plans for establishing a North-Western Confederacy. Being an official record of the Trials before the Military Commission convened by Special Orders No. 129, Head-quarters District of Indiana. Containing the testimony, arguments, findings and sentence in the case of Dodd; also of Bowles, Humphreys, Heffren, Milligan and Horsey. Developing the origin, history, extent, names of officers, etc., of the secret orders of Knights of the Golden Circle, the Circle of Honor, the Order of American Knights, and Order of the Sons of Liberty; their organization, rituals, passwords, grips, oaths, obligations and penalties; their ostensible and real purposes. With accurate illustrations of the Greek-fire shells, hand grenades, rockets and infernal machines of the conspirators, introduced in evidence on the trials. To which is added the full Report of Judge-Advocate-General Holt on the Order of American Knights alias the Sons of Liberty, a Western conspiracy in aid of the Southern Rebellion. Edited by BENN PITTMAN, Recorder to the Military Commission. 1 vol. 8vo., with five Portraits on Steel, by Ritchie. Cloth, $3.00; law style, $3.50.

The Assassination of President Lincoln,

AND THE TRIAL OF THE CONSPIRATORS, David E. Herold, Edward Spangler, Lewis Payne, Michael O'Laughlin, Samuel Arnold, Mary E. Surratt, George A. Atzerodt, and Samuel A. Mudd, before a Military Commission at Washington, specially convened by President Johnson. President of the Commission, Major-General David Hunter; Judge-Advocate, Brigadier-General Joseph Holt, Judge-Advocate-General; Special Judge-Advocates, Hon. J. A. Bingham and Brevet Colonel H. L. Burnett; Special Provost-Marshal of the Commission, Major-General Hartranft. Containing the Testimony, Documents introduced in Evidence, Discussion of Points of Law, Arguments of Counsel for the Accused, and the Reply of Special Judge-Advocate Hon. John A. Bingham; also the Findings and Sentences of the Accused; with Portraits on Steel, by Ritchie. Compiled and arranged by BENN PITTMAN, Recorder to the Commission. 1 vol. royal octavo, 450 pages, double columns, with Maps and Plans. Published by authority of the Secretary of War and the Judge-Advocate-General. The only authorized and complete edition. Law style, $4.00; cloth, $3.00.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"A full and reliable report."—N. Y. Independent.

"It is in all respects a satisfactory record of one of the most exciting and important trials in the history of crime."—Cincinnati Gazette.

"This work will become a standard of reference in regard to the great conspiracy trials."—Washington Weekly Star.

"Compiled from the mass of testimony with great labor, and well and faithfully in every particular."—Cincinnati Commercial.

"There are few who will not desire to possess so complete a record of the great historical tragedy."—Buffalo Morning Express.

"The work contains the entire testimony elicited by the trial, and the circumstances which led to the death of Mr. Lincoln. Strictly correct in every particular, this work will be valuable as an historical reference; and fresh as the events of the recent period are in the minds of every intelligent citizen, the book itself is new and exceedingly interesting."—Forney's Chronicle.

Rosecrans's Campaign with the 14th Army Corps,

OR THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND. A Narrative of Personal Observations, with an Appendix, consisting of an Official Report of the "Battle of Stone River." By W. D. BICKHAM. With a Topographical Sketch of the Battle-field. 1 vol. 12mo., 476 pages, $2.00.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"It is a meritorious contribution to the history of the war."—N. Y. Independent.

"It is the only complete history of this important portion of the war in the West that has yet appeared."—Indianapolis Journal.

"This interesting book most graphically describes the principal events in the history of the noble 'Army of the Cumberland.' It is a book that should be in the hands of every Union man in the nation."—Columbus Journal.

"It will impart to the general reader a vivid idea of the realities of war as they appear from the head-quarters of a department, in camp, in bivouac, in a hostile city, on the march, and on the battle-field. It will be especially interesting to the army whose valor is recorded and celebrated."—Cincinnati Commercial.

"Mr. Bickham is a close observer, and industrious collector and spirited narrator of facts. His sketches are interesting from their fervid style, as well as the inherent importance of their subject."—Cincinnati Gazette.

"It is written in a flowing style, and bears the impression of truthfulness. The author's description of the battle of Stone River is most graphic. The book will be read with melancholy interest by thousands who had friends engaged in that deadly struggle."—St Louis Democrat.

Illustrated Life of Abraham Lincoln,

Presenting his Early History, Political Career, and Speeches in and out of Congress; also, a General View of his Policy as President of the United States; with his Messages, Proclamations, Letters, etc., and a History of his Eventful Administration, and of the scenes attendant upon his tragic and lamented demise. By Hon. JOSEPH H. BARRETT, Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C. 1 vol. 8vo., of 842 pages, bound in embossed cloth, $3.00; sheep, library style, $3.50; printed on extra fine paper, and bound in half calf, $5.00.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"Mr. Barrett has enjoyed unusual opportunities to render his work interesting, reliable and complete, and it is the only book on the subject that is so."—St. Paul Press.

"It is what it purports to be, a complete, full and correct biography of Abraham Lincoln. It contains the best likeness of Mr. Lincoln yet produced, and we think the only true likeness ever published. As to the book, it is the best life of the People's President yet published, or, we are quite sure, that will be published."—Indianapolis Gazette.

"We commend this volume for its intrinsic worth. It is a record to which all can refer with confidence for the great facts of Mr. Lincoln's career."—Dayton Journal.

"This work is valuable, because it contains the pith of all Mr. Lincoln's speeches and letters, and where they were of great interest, the documents are given entire."—Cincinnati Commercial.

"This is a handsome volume. The style in which it is written is attractive, and all that can be said of Mr. Lincoln is said in as modest a manner as possible."—N. Y. Tablet.

"A personal friend of Mr. Lincoln, enjoying his unrestrained converse, and wielding a graceful pen, he has made an excellent biography. This is the best life of the great martyr yet given to the public."—The Methodist.

"Every loyal family should subscribe for it, and the youth of the country should read it, and try to imitate the life and character of our late deceased President."—Washington Gazette.

"It is not only the portion of the work which relates to the important period of Mr. Lincoln's life that is of distinguished value, he (Mr. Barrett) has given a more elaborate account of the early career of his subject than has ever before been presented to the public."—Buffalo Morning Express.

"Both supporters and opponents will doubtless refer to this book, and Mr. Lincoln's admirers will not fail to read it with great interest. We know not where a better life of the President can be found. The getting up is creditable, as if the publishers meant that the work should outlast the present."—Western Advocate.

"As a careful compilation of Mr. Lincoln's public addresses, messages and proclamations, the book has a permanent value. The homely charm of Abraham Lincoln tinges every page. Every important speech and public document spoken or written by the martyr is here word for word, and we are glad that Mr. Barrett has given them in full. The best lesson of our day is the life of Lincoln."—N. Y. Independent.

"Its completeness renders it a standard volume for reading and reference. Its style is vigorous and lucid; its historical statements accurate; its reflections on political and military men and events candid and courteous; and its estimate of Mr. Lincoln's character just and appreciative. We warmly commend the work."—Washington Chronicle.

"The Hon. J. H. Barrett, the author, had every advantage for his work. His position as Commissioner of Pensions, and his personal intimacy with Mr. Lincoln placed at his command the most reliable sources of information, and also gave him the opportunity of obtaining the principal facts of the past life of the subject of this biography. Mr.

Barrett's work is not only a biography of the man; it is also a virtual history of the war, and of the questions that led to the war, and that arose out of it, with notices of the principal characters that figured throughout its exciting scenes."—Toronto Christian Guardian.

The Blennerhassett Papers.

Embodying the Private Journal of Harman Blennerhassett, and the hitherto unpublished Correspondence of Burr, Alston, Comfort Tyler, Devereaux, Dayton, Adair, Miro, Emmet, Theodosia Burr Alston, Mrs. Blennerhassett, and others their cotemporaries; developing the purposes and aims of those engaged in the attempted Wilkinson and Burr Revolution; embracing, also, the first account of the "Spanish Association of Kentucky," and a Memoir of Blennerhassett. By WILLIAM H. SAFFORD. 1 vol. 8vo., muslin, 665 pages, $3.50.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"The volume has a romantic interest, and Mr. Safford has told us a strange, eventful story, which possesses in its incidents all the attractiveness of one of Scott's historical novels.

The volume is admirably printed with large type, and on excellent paper, besides being illustrated with portraits of Blennerhassett, of Burr, and of his daughter Theodosia."—American Literary Gazette.

"A romantic interest attaches to the name of Blennerhassett. Wealthy, educated and refined, a voluntary exile from his native land, settling himself on a beautiful island of the Ohio, and creating around him an Eden 'which Calypso might have envied,' he became a victim of that unscrupulous and desperate adventurer Aaron Burr, by whom he was entrapped into schemes which resulted in the ruin of his fortunes and the wreck of his earthly happiness. The volume traces his varied career to its sad and tragie close."—N. Y. Evangelist.

"There is in all biography hardly any thing more mournful than the story, set forth in his own letters, of the man returning at three-score, penniless and broken-hearted, to the country which he had left, in the prime of manhood, rich and hopeful; how he begged his old friend to get him some post, at home or abroad, by which he and his children, more helpless than himself, might live. This work is a valuable acquisition to the domain of American history."—Harper's Magazine.

"This book is an interesting and important one, both on account of the matter it contains, and because of the fact that the 'Blennerhassett Papers' were never before published. It is a good-sized book, containing 664 large octavo pages, well printed on the best quality of paper, and bound in embossed muslin. It may be classed among the more important and interesting books of the time."—Indianapolis Even'g Gazette.

"It does credit to the author's zeal and industry, and will take its permanent place as a contribution of value to the material for the history of the Western States at an obscure and critical period."—N. Y. Times.

"Is a book of remarkable interest and historical value. It seems all but incredible that such schemes could have been on foot, but here is the veritable evidence. The biography of Blennerhassett and his wife is quite in the style of Wirt's description in his celebrated speech on the trial of Burr."—N. Y. Observer.

"Mr. Safford has executed his work with judgment, ability and fairness."—N. Y. Ev. Post.

The Body Politic,

A Book for Americans. By W. H. BARNES. 1 vol. 12mo., 309 pages, beveled boards, cloth, $1.75.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"Those who would study political philosophy without overmuch weariness, will find these pages at once attractive and instructive; and those who are called upon to discuss such topics before a popular audience will find them suggestive."—N. Y. Methodist Quarterly Review.

"If law and political economy can be couched in popular language, the author of this work has done it. The profound principles that govern social and political existence, and those especially connected with our own nation, are discussed by him with a rare felicity and profusion of illustration.

Our National Constitution is explained, and the needs of the nation presented. The last chapter, 'The Political Life to Come,' is a graphic vision of the possible future and relations of our country."—Western Christian Advocate.

"From the first sentence of the introduction to the last paragraph of the concluding chapter, it is intensely interesting, as well as highly entertaining and instructive. The author has been eminently successful in the attempt to convey useful lessons in a clear yet figurative and humorous manner. What strikes us as one of the most noticeable features is its originality. The author occupies almost wholly unexplored fields, and to say the least, his explorations have been conducted in a different manner, and with a different object in view from those of others."—North-Western Farmer.

"Professor Barnes popularizes and simplifies a subject heretofore rendered either abstruse or juiceless from its manner of treatment. The design of this work is to contemplate our Republic in the concrete, composed of living, moving, irrepensible Americans. This design we believe the author has fully carried out in the thirty chapters of the book.

The volume, both as to its inwards and outwards, shows that we of the West are not dependent on the East either for authors or publishers."—Indianapolis Daily Journal.

"It is an ably written book, full of original ideas, well worthy of careful consideration. It gives a correct idea of America; its faults, and what its attainments may be. It carries the reader along, from the infancy of the nation to the present status; points out its deadly disorders, and the manner in which they can be cured and purged from it, and the body politic assume its true position. The whole is aptly illustrated by references to classic history, showing profound reading on the part of the author, and adding zest to the book."—Indianapolis Daily Gazette.

"'The Body Politic' is a decidedly original attempt to give liveliness and popularity to an exposition of the great principles which lie at the basis of our system of government. The style is vivacious. The book has the merit of being attractive to many who would go on in ignorance rather than get their learning from less agreeable sources. To students, and all those who desire to combine pleasure with utility, the work will be acceptable. It is very neatly printed."—Cincinnati Gazette.

"We commend its perusal, especially to the young men of the land. We trust the author will reap fame from this timely book."—F. C. Halliday, D.D., in Temperance Journal.

Cyclopedia of Modern Travel,

By BAYARD TAYLOR. A Record of Adventure, Exploration and Discovery for the past sixty years. Comprising Narratives of the most distinguished Travelers since the beginning of this century. Prepared and arranged by BAYARD TAYLOR. 2 vols. royal 8vo., neatly bound in dark leather, embellished with fine Portraits on Steel, by Buttre, and illustrated by over sixty Wood Engravings by Orr, and thirteen authentic Maps by Schonberg.  Sold to subscribers only.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"A magnificent work, which for general interest and value, is worthy of the distinguished compiler, and equally worthy of universal patronage. The volumes really contains the value of a whole library, reliable as books of reference, and as interesting as books of romance."—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

"The popular lectures and writings of Bayard Taylor have awakened in the United States a thirst for information respecting foreign countries and nations. A striking proof of this is given in the fact that a publishing house in Cincinnati has issued, under the auspices of Bayard Taylor, a work of over one thousand pages, devoted exclusively to records of travel."—N. Y. Independent.

"The reading public owes to Bayard Taylor many a debt for rare and valuable instruction, most agreeably conveyed; but we doubt if he ever performed a more useful service than in compiling this massive, varied and most valuable work. The entire circle of books of which he has given the spirit and juice, would form a library; and many of them are now almost inaccessible."—N. Y. Evangelist.

"No writer of the present age can be found so admirably qualified for such an undertaking."—Louisville Journal.

"It is just the work for the family library; all classes will be interested in its perusal."—Ladies' Repository.

"The conception of this work is admirable; and its execution is what might be expected from one of the most accomplished and intelligent travelers of the age. It is remarkable for compactness, condensation and symmetry; and is illustrated with a large number of maps and engravings, which are executed with great skill and care, and add much to the interest of the narratives to which they are prefixed."—Puritan Recorder.

"Mr. Bayard Taylor is the very Ulysses of modern tourists, and Emperor Adrian of living ramblers, and so is qualified to edit, or compile from the works of other travelers."—Boston Chronicle.

"Apart from the confidence inspired by the name of the writer, it needs but a brief explanation of its contents to show that it forms a highly important addition to the family library. Its pages are crowded with interesting information."—N. Y. Tribune.

"A scholar, traveler and writer, having a reputation so deservedly high in this three-fold relation as Bayard Taylor, may be presumed to give his name only to works worthy of it.

Both the plan and execution are in my judgment marked by ability, extensive knowledge, good taste and good sense."—Prof. C. C. Felton, of Harvard University.

"Mr. Bayard Taylor has done the reading public a great favor in bringing together the most essential and interesting portions of so many narratives within a very moderate compass, and in such a form as to be accessible to multitudes whose libraries must take little room, and cost but moderate expenditure. It is safe to say that no man's selection would be accepted so unhesitatingly in America as those of our own favorite travel storyteller."—Oliver Wendell Holmes, M.D., author of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," etc.

"I have examined it with great interest. It contains a large amount of entertaining and instructive matter, very conveniently and carefully arranged; and I shall value it as a work both for present reading and future reference."—Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, of Boston, formerly Speaker House of Representatives, U. S.

Nine Years a Sailor,

By CHARLES NORDHOFF, now one of the Editors of the "New York Evening Post."
With Tinted Illustrations. 1 vol. crown 8vo., 1000 pages, $3.00.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"We recommend all the boys in the land to get this book and read it."—Pittsb'g Gazette.

"A writer who is destined to cheer the family circle in many thousand houses on many a winter night. He writes well, admirably; that is, simply and truthfully, and in a very interesting way indeed. He tells the story of the vicissitudes as well as the pleasures of the life of the boy or man before the mast, so that no youth who longs to be on the 'deep, blue sea' may hereafter say that it was out of his power to learn precisely what he would have to encounter on becoming a sailor. The moral of the work is excellent, and its style pithy and descriptive."—Washington Star.

"Full of variety, and adapted to awaken the interest of young people in traveling adventure, while it must greatly extend their geographical knowledge."—N. Y. Times.

"Very striking and graphic pictures of the life at sea, evidently authentic and very instructive. Has adventure enough to please, yet truth enough to dissipate the charm of a sailor's life."—N. Y. Evangelist.

"There is in this a vast amount of information respecting the commerce of the world."—Presbyterian Witness.

"This book is not for mere children, but for lads of some years and discretion. It is remarkably well written."—N. Y. Independent.

"One of the best and truest descriptions of seamen and of a seaman's life ever given to the public, and the reader is only left to wonder why one who can write so remarkably well had ever any thing to do with the rigging. He describes the various countries which he visited so far only, be it remembered, as they fell under his own observation; and this careful restriction and regard to the truth forms one of the principal charms of the work."—Boston Traveler.

"Has a fine eye for observation, and excellent descriptive powers."—Louisville Courier.

"Multitudes of young readers will delight in this book."—Presbyterian Banner.

"Since Dana's 'Two Years before the Mast,' we do not call to mind any more admirable descriptions of a sailor's life at sea than are contained in this graphic volume. Herman Melville's nautical narratives are more highly spiced with piquant descriptive scenes, it is true, but for quiet, absorbing, and as far as landsmen can judge, faithful accounts of life on shipboard, commend us to this author. He somewhat resembles Captain Basil Hall in his lively pictures of the routine of sea service, but he is not so rambling nor so flippant as that celebrated 'old salt.'"—N. Y. Tribune.

"It is excellently well written, is characterized by a high moral tone, and impresses the reader with the truthfulness of its sketches, while it has all the fascination of a romance. It is by far the best book for boys that we have ever seen. It both instructs and amuses them. Indeed, there are few men who will commence this book and lay it down unfinished."—Lexington (Ky.) Statesman.

"Mr. Nordhoff is a young writer who has seen every variety of sea life, from the artistic organization of the man-of-war to the rough and tumble arrangements of a Nantucket whaler; and, without assuming any of the airs of authorship, has given a straightforward account of his adventures, which in frank, confiding naturalness are not without something of the secret charm which so bewilders all classes of readers in the perusal of works like Robinson Crusoe. Not that he makes use of any imaginary touches to add to the piquancy of his autobiographical confessions, but he has the rare gift of investing every-day realities with an atmosphere of human sympathy which is more effective than the most dazzling colors of romance."—Harper's Magazine.

Ancient History,

By EDWARD FARR. Containing the History of the Assyrians, Egyptians, Chaldeans, Medes, Lydians, Carthaginians, Persians, Macedonians, the Seleucidæ in Syria, and the Parthians; from authentic sources, ancient and modern. 4 vols. 12mo., 1334 pages, library sheep, marble edges, $4 00.  This work is much superior to Rollin, having been recently compiled from the latest and best authorities. It has been ordered for all the township libraries of Indiana, and must take rank as altogether the best work of the kind for family, school and other libraries.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"As a comprehensive ancient history, adapted to the use of families and schools, it is probably the best extant, and should soon supersede all others. The style is terse and vigorous, and at the same time easy and agreeable. The author has availed himself of all the modern as well as the ancient sources of information, and carefully separating the chaff from the wheat, gives us only reliable facts."—Marietta Intelligencer.

We consider these volumes valuable both to the youth and the more advanced student of ancient history, presenting as they do, in closer connection than we usually find them in works of a general nature, the two sources from which all ancient history is derived—sacred and profane—and moreover, everywhere giving its due importance to sacred history. The arrangement of the work we think highly favorable to an easy and thorough understanding of the matter. In some particulars we judge it to be a decided improvement upon other works of the kind.”—Western Christian Advocate.

“The compend of ancient history by Mr. Rollin has kept its seat in the library for the want of a better to supply its place. Its author was distinguished for his industry, and almost equally so for his credulity; and his work is a mixture of fact and fable, nearly as unreliable as it is entertaining. The volumes before us are based upon the history of Rollin, but executed with a view to avoid his most conspicuous fault. An attempt has been made to embody the truth and exclude the error by a re-appeal to the authorities, and the use of such new resources as have been made available since the other was produced. The author appears to have executed his task faithfully, and the work gives fair promise of usefulness. The style is clear and perspicuous, and it will, we doubt not, be a valuable addition to the library.”—Cincinnati Commercial.

History of the Puritans and Pilgrim Fathers,

By STOWELL and WILSON. THE PURITANS IN ENGLAND, by Rev. W. H. STOWELL, Professor of Theology, Rotherham College. THE PILGRIM FATHERS, by D. WILSON, F.S.A., Scot., Author of “Cromwell and the Protectorate,” etc., etc. One volume 12mo., muslin, 508 pages, $1.25.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

“It is the record of the hero age in English history, and of the origin of modern social and religious liberty. This portable and cheap volume will undoubtedly enjoy what it richly merits, a wide circulation.”—Zion's Herald.

“The entire story is written in a spirit of unusual candor and fairness, neither seeking to gloss over their faults, nor to depreciate the staunch and often heroic virtues of the admirable men whose lives it portrays. The author displays a degree of enthusiastic veneration for the worthies whose lives and deeds he sketches, which, while it in no way detracts from his merits as a reliable historian, will not fail to affect pleasantly every American reader of his pages. We commend the volume to the attention of the reading public.”—Western Christian Advocate.

“There is no history in which the American scholar should feel a deeper and more lively interest than that of the Puritans and Pilgrims, whose principles are at the foundation of our Government, and whose virtues are interwoven with our history as a Nation.”—Newcastle Courier.

Scenes and Legends of the North of Scotland,

By HUGH MILLER, author of “Footprints of the Creator.” 1 vol. 12mo., 436 pp., $1.50.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

“A delightful book, by one of the most delightful of living authors.”—N. Y. Courier and Enquirer.

“In this book Hugh Miller appears as the simple dramatist, reproducing home stories and legends in their native costume, and in full life. The volume is rich in entertainment for all lovers of the genuine Scotch character.”—N. Y. Independent.

“Fascinating portraits of quaint original characters, and charming tales of the old faded superstitions of Scotland, make up the ‘Scenes and Legends.’ Purity of diction and thoughtful earnestness, with a vein of easy, half-concealed humor pervading it, are the characteristics of the author’s style. Added to these, in the present volume, are frequent touches of the most elegantly-wrought fancy, passages of sorrowful tenderness that change the opening smile into a tear, and exalted sentiment that brings reflection to the heart."—Citizen.

"This is a book which will be read by those who have read the other works of this distinguished author. His beautiful style, his powers of description, his pathos, his quiet humor and manly good sense would give interest to any subject. There is no part of the book that is not interesting."—Louisville Journal.

"This is one of the most unique and original books that has been written for many years, uniting, in a singularly happy manner, all the charms of fiction to the more substantial and enduring graces of truth. The author is a capital story-teller, prefacing what he has to say with no learned circumlocutions. We can not now call to mind any other style that so admirably combines every requisite for this kind of writing, with the exception of that of his more illustrious countryman Scott, as the one Hugh Miller possesses."—Columbian.

"The contents of the book will be as instructive and entertaining as the exterior is elegant and attractive. Hugh Miller writes like a living man, who has eyes, and ears, and intellect, and a heart of his own, and not like a galvanized skeleton, who inflicts his dull repetitions of what other men have seen and felt, in stately stupidity, upon their unfortunate readers. His observation is keen, and his powers of description unrivaled. His style is like a mountain stream, that flows on in beauty and freshness, imparting enlivening influences all around. His reflections, when he indulges in them, are just and impressive."—Christian Herald.

"Tales so romantic, yet so natural, and told in a vein of unaffected simplicity and graphic delineation, rivaling Hogg and Scott of the same land, will command a vast number of admiring readers."—N. Y. Christian Intelligencer.

"The interest of its facts far exceeds romance."—N. Y. Evangelist.

"This book is worthy of a place by the side of the world-renowned volumes which have already proceeded from the same pen."—Phil. Chronicle.

Moffat's Southern Africa.

MISSIONARY LABORS AND SCENES IN SOUTHERN AFRICA. By ROBERT MOFFAT, twenty-three years an Agent of the London Missionary Society in that country. Twelfth edition. 1 vol. 12mo., muslin, $1.25.

The writer offers these pages to the churches of his country as an humble contribution to their stock of knowledge relative to heathen lands. It contains a faithful record of events which have occurred within the range of his experience and observation, and supplies much that may serve to illustrate the peculiar attributes of African society. It may, he ventures to hope, tend materially to promote the study of the philosophy of missions. It will furnish both the sage and the divine with facts for which, perhaps, they were not prepared, and exhibit phases of humanity which they have not hitherto observed. It will further show, that amid circumstantial differences there is a radical identity in the operations of human depravity, in Asia, in Polynesia, and in Africa; and that while the Gospel is the only, it is also the uniform remedy for the distress of a world convulsed by sin and writhing with anguish. It will present striking examples of the complete subjugation of some of the fiercest spirits that ever trod the burning sands of Africa, or shed the blood of her sable offspring. He bequeaths his book as a legacy of grateful affection to the multitudes of all classes from whom he has received tokens of personal kindness, which, while life lasts, he will ever remember; and as an expression of a deep solicitude to promote the diffusion of the Gospel in that land to which his labors have been more particularly directed.

"No more interesting work, for the general reader, can be found."

Moffat's Life of Dr. Chalmers.

LIFE OF THOMAS CHALMERS, D.D., LL.D. Edited by JAMES C. MOFFAT D.D., Professor in the Theological Seminary, Princeton. N. J. With a Portrait. 1 vol. 12mo., muslin, $1.25.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"Professor Moffat has, in this handsome volume, with great tact and taste, managed to condense the history of the interesting, exciting and useful career of Dr. Chalmers. It is a book for all to read who would trace not only the blazing track of a great genius, but who would see genius, talent and power all combined for the good of man. Dr. Chalmers combined the great and the useful in a large measure, and was at home both with the distinguished ones of the earth, and with the humblest of his fellow-men, and was admired and loved by all."—Cincinnati Gazette.

"As an orator, a philosopher, a professor, a philanthropist, a successful parish minister, and a learned divine, Dr. Chalmers stood foremost, not only among the great men of Scotland but of Christendom."—Commercial.

"The memoirs of such a man as Dr. Chalmers should be in the hands of every one. His life is a grand moral lesson, a golden example, a gospel of the nineteenth century. His splendid talents, his intense application, his strenuous zeal, his glowing faith, and his humble spirit, might each have illuminated a distinct individual, and made him famous; united, they dazzled, enlightened and warmed the world."—Times.

"Chalmers moves before us; Chalmers speaks to us; we pass from chapter to chapter and page to page with the man we venerate, and catch the inspiration of his genius and his goodness.

The author's idea of the work he attempted to make is ours of that which he has accomplished. We like the plan of letting such men as Chalmers speak for themselves in their biographies."—Christian Herald.

"Professor Moffat has succeeded, and we can not but believe his labor will be widely appreciated."—Presbyterian.

"There is not much writing about the man. He is rather brought upon the stage to speak and act for himself."—Christian Press.

"Thousands will heartily thank Professor Moffat for inviting them to so rare an intellectual feast."—Daily Ancient Metropolis.

Moffat's Æsthetics,

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE STUDY OF ÆSTHETICS. By JAMES C. MOFFAT, D.D., Professor in the Theol. Sem., Princeton, N. J. 1 vol. 12mo., muslin, $1.25.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"The title of this book may frighten some worthy people, with whom Æsthetics is something mysterious, and therefore fearful. But the volume is a pleasantly written and quite attractive treatise upon the beautiful in art; art of all kinds and of every branch. Prof. Moffat seems to us a sound and clever writer. He does not assume to be original, but is systematic and clear, and very readable. The arguments are illustrated by anecdote and quotations."—Boston Post.

"Prof. Moffat has succeeded in making his definitions accurate, and his distinctions clear and tangible. He has brought the aid of strong common sense to his task, and while far from making up a volume of dry detail has presented the subject in such a light as to make it intelligible to all minds of ordinary strength."—Western Christian Advocate.

"The work of Dr. Moffat of Princeton is simply what it proposes to be. In simplicity of arrangement, and in the transparent beauty of its style, it is, we think, far better adapted for a text-book than many another treatise of more pretensions and fame."—Cincinnati Gazette.

"It is a profoundly elaborate treatise, evinces a highly philosophical mind, and can scarcely fail to secure to its author a recognized place among the lights in the department of which he has treated."—Puritan Recorder.

The Course of Creation,

With a Glossary of Scientific Terms added to the American Edition. By JOHN ANDERSON, D.D. With numerous Illustrations. Third Edition. 1 vol. 12mo., muslin, 384 pages, $1.50.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"It is thoroughly scientific, but popular in its style, and exceedingly entertaining."—Zion's Herald.

"The author's style is clear and engaging, and his graphic descriptions seem to convey the reader at once into the fields of geological research to observe for himself."—Ohio Observer.

"Another valuable contribution to the cause of truth and sound science. Its value is very much enhanced by the Glossary of scientific terms appended to it by the publishers; for scarcely any one of the sciences has a larger number of terms with which ordinary readers are unacquainted than geology."—Presbyterian of the West.

"We commend the volume to all who would be instructed in the wonderful works of God. Chapters such as that on the 'Economic History of Coal,' and those on 'Organic Life' and 'Physical and Moral Progression,' have a special value for the student of Divine Providence."—N. Y. Independent.

"Dr. Anderson is evidently well skilled in geology, and writes with a freedom and vivacity rivaled by no writer on the subject, except Hugh Miller."—Methodist Quarterly Review.

"This book is intended for general readers, and such readers will be entertained by it; but it is none the less thorough, and enters boldly into geological inquiry."—Boston Advertiser.

"One of the most interesting and valuable works on geology that we have ever met with. The author is a thoroughly scientific man; but his scientific accuracy does not prevent the work from being understood by unscientific readers. It is a very readable book."—Louisville Journal.

Poetry of the Vegetable World.

A Popular Exposition of the Science of Botany in its Relation to Man. By M. J. SCHLEIDEN, M.D. Edited by ALPHONSO WOOD, M.A. Illustrated with Engravings. Second Edition. 1 vol. 12mo., muslin, 356 pages, $1.50.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"Schleiden is one of the most distinguished and most accomplished botanists of the present day. The exhaustless beauties of the vegetable world, its spiritual aspect, lies beyond the reach of mere science. Herein lies the charm of this work. While its author has everywhere exhibited the principles of science in the most attractive and perspicuous style, he has also contrived to blend with them the imaginative and the spiritual, and thus to render his work the exponent of the relations of the plant to the human soul. He has shown that the multiform vegetables of the material world are all ministering spirits. In a word, science and poetry are beautifully and harmoniously blended together."—Merchants' Magazine.

"The originality of its views, the poetic charm of its illustrations, and the large amount of positive instruction which it imparts, will recommend it to every reader of taste and intelligence."—Harper's Magazine.

"Prof. Schleiden's capital treatise on the teachings of the vegetable world would pass muster with the most rigid utilitarian that ever existed. It is as interesting as the most attractive romance, as beautiful as nature, and as pleasing as the finest poem."—Boston Atlas.

"It is an interesting, amusing and instructive work."—Philadelphia Pennsylvanian.

Life, Times and Characteristics of John Bunyan,

Author of the "Pilgrim's Progress," By ROBERT PHILIP, author of "Life and Times of Whitefield," "The Experimental Guides," etc. With an Introduction, by DR. PHELPS. Embellished with Steel Portrait, and Colored Lithograph of "Vanity Fair," and forty-four beautiful and authentic illustrations.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"This is confessedly the fullest and ablest biography of the 'Glorious Dreamer' of Elstow ever written. Not only does it exhibit the life and character of Bunyan, but also a vivid portraiture of the civil and religious commotions in which he participated either as actor or martyr. The style of Philip is terse and vigorous, eminently Saxon; and next to the 'Pilgrim's Progress,' this production deserves to be regarded as one of the finest specimens of 'English, pure and undefiled,' to be found in the whole range of our literature."—N. Y. Christian Intelligencer.

"The writings of John Bunyan never grow old, for the simple reason that truth is eternal; hence the undiminished interest that is felt in his writings. His 'Pilgrim's Progress' will be read and admired as long as Christianity endures. The volume before us is a faithful history of those times and of the humble individual whose life and character it delineates."—Hartford Christian Secretary.

"A beautiful octavo edition of the well-known Life of Bunyan by Philip! The typographical execution of the book is admirable, and the illustrations, which are numerous, are in very good taste. A curious feature of the volume is the reproduction of the quaint wood cuts that were wont to figure in editions of the 'Pilgrim's Progress' nearly two centuries ago."—N. Y. Independent.

"The edition is handsomely got up. It is incomparably the most readable life of this marvelous man, and likely to remain such. We are glad to see it challenging the attention of religious readers, who ought never to lose sight of Bunyan, and never can know too much of him."—N. Y. Evangelist.

"The 'Arabian Nights,' 'Robinson Crusoe,' and many other productions of genius that might be named, all have their merits and their attractions; but in their hold upon universal nature, none can compare with that of the 'Poor Tinker's.' Bunyan holds on. He has won the heart and will never let it go. It is said truly, while human nature lasts he lasts, caring not a whit about tastes, fashions, laws, criticisms, or rivalry of any kind."—N. Y. Advocate and Journal.

"A very beautiful octavo edition of a very thorough and interesting life of Bunyan. It is as complete a biography of the despised preacher of Bedford Jail as documents and traditions at this late period can furnish. Perhaps no book except the Bible and Prayer Book has been published in so many various forms and different languages, or been so widely spread throughout the Christian world, as the 'Pilgrim's Progress;' and a work which will diffuse a minute history of the chequered fortunes and trials of its great author can not but be eagerly sought after and read."—N. Y. Protestant Churchman.

Hooper's Western Fruit Book.

A Compendious Collection of Facts, from the Notes and Experience of Successful Fruit Culturists. Arranged for Practical use in Orchard and Garden. 1 vol. 12mo., with Illustrations, $1.50.

Several thousand copies of this work have been sold.

Practical Landscape Gardening,

By G. M. KERN. Containing twenty-two Illustrations and Plans for laying out Grounds, with full directions for planting Shade-Trees, Shrubby and Flowers. Third Edition. 1 vol. 12mo., muslin, $1.50.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"Mr. Kern has produced the right book at the right moment."—Putnam's Magazine.

"His suggestions are in an eminent degree valuable, and his opinions (which are expressed in clear, concise and lucid diction) easily interpreted by even the most limited conception, fairly assert his claim to a station in the foremost rank of rural improvers."—N. Y. Horticulturist.

"It abounds in useful and tasteful suggestions, and in practical instructions."—Northern Farmer.

"It is a very timely and valuable book. Better adapted to the wants and circumstances of our people than any other upon the subject."—Ohio Cultivator.

"No one can long walk hand in hand with Mr. Kern without being sensible that he is in the hands of one who is worthy of all confidence."—Louisville Courier.

"Has so nobly succeeded as to render his volume an invaluable acquisition to all."—Boston Traveler.

"It is plain in its details, and will be more valuable to the million than any work on the subject of landscape gardening yet published. The mechanical execution of the volume is the very perfection of printing and binding."—Ohio Farmer.

"Admirably calculated to meet the wants of the public."—Boston Atlas.

"By a careful perusal of this little volume, which will cost but $1.50, the purchaser will probably find that he has learned what he has been all his life wishing to know, and what will be worth to him more than ten times its cost."—Nashville Whig.

"He descends to the minutest details of instruction, so that his book may be taken as a manual for the practical operator."—N. Y. Evangelist.

Grape and Strawberry Culture.

THE CULTURE OF THE GRAPE AND WINE MAKING, by ROBERT BUCHANAN. With an Appendix, containing Directions for the Cultivation of the Strawberry, by N. LONGWORTH. Sixth Edition. 1 vol. 12mo., muslin, 75 cents.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"It contains much opportune and instructive information relative to the cultivation of these two delicious fruits."—Michigan Farmer.

"One of the books which pass current through the world on account of the great authority of the author's name."—Hoboken Gazette.

"There are no men better qualified for the undertaking."—Louisville Journal.

"It deals more with facts, with actual experience and observation, and less with speculation, supposition and belief, than anything on the topic that has yet appeared in the United States. In other words, a man may take it and plant a vineyard, and raise grapes with success."—Horticulturist.

"We can not too strongly recommend this little volume to the attention of all who have a vine or strawberry-bed."—Farm and Shop.

"This book embodies the essential principles necessary to be observed in the successful management of these fruits."—Boston Cultivator.

"We have on two or three occasions said of this little book, that it is the best we have ever seen on the subjects of which it treats. A man with ordinary judgment can not fail in grape or strawberry culture, if he tries to follow its advice."—Ohio Farmer.

The Wheat Plant,

Its Origin, Culture, Growth, Development, Composition, Varieties, Diseases, etc., together with a few Remarks on Indian Corn, its Culture, etc. By JOHN H. KLIPPART, Corresponding Secretary of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture; Member of the Academy of Natural Sciences, Cleveland; Honorary Member West. Acad. Nat. Sciences, Cincinnati. Profusely illustrated, 1 vol. 12mo., muslin, $1.75.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"No work in the language will be found equal to it in the complete, thorough discussion of the great cereal in its entire history. The book ought to be considered indispensable to every farmer, and will be an addition to the library of every intelligent merchant as well as devotee to science."—Cincinnati Commercial.

"We have read it with profit and interest. It should be placed in the hands of every farmer in Wisconsin. Ohio is one of the best wheat-growing States of the Union; yet the average of wheat to the acre has declined from twenty-five to thirteen. In England the crop has been more than doubled, until it now averages thirty-six bushels to the acre. This has been accomplished by the closest attention to the wants of the soil."—Milwaukee Daily Wisconsin.

"The author of this instructive treatise has employed the labor of many years to a thorough investigation of the important plant to which it is devoted. A minute and accurate knowledge of the subject is exhibited on every page; and its fullness of detail, clearness of illustration, and variety of information, must at once elevate it to the rank of a standard authority."—New York Tribune.

"It would occupy too much space to go into a general review of this truly valuable work, but we must content ourselves with a few brief sentences taken at random. It is highly important that it should be in the hands of every farmer in the Union."—Iowa State Democrat.

"The first comprehensive treatise ever published in this country on this subject, and perhaps the most thorough work on the subject ever published. The author has examined the kindred publications of France and Germany, and with his own observations has combined those of the most learned agricultural writers and naturalists. It is illustrated with engravings representing the different varieties of this great plant, and of the insects which are its bane and its destroyers."—Louisville Journal.

"The importance to farmers and all agriculturists of such a book as this, written with great care by such an author, can not be too highly estimated. Every farmer should have a copy of this invaluable work. It will amply repay its cost."—Cleveland Morning Leader.

"He has produced a work which should be in the hands of every agriculturist, as it contains a vast amount of information which, if properly put in practice, must result in better and more certain wheat crops."—Davenport Daily Gazette.

"We have examined this work with great interest, and have marked many of its pages for future reference and quotation in our magazine."—American Farmer, Baltimore.

"The most elaborate, but also the most valuable, production hitherto published on that important subject in this country."—Prof. HOYT, in Wisconsin Farmer.

"To point out any particular portion as particularly excellent, where all is first-rate, is a difficult task. No farmer should be without it."—L. V. BIERCE, in Ohio Farmer.

"It is the result of careful and untiring investigation, which, although conducted with special reference to this crop, its varieties, growth, etc., in Ohio, can not but be of great service to the farmers of other States."—Country Gentleman.

"This important work is just published. It is a book for those who wish to know and keep on hand all that is interesting about wheat. Dull and routine men do not value such a book; but those whose farming is a mental as well as a manual occupation, may here find a winter's reading, a summer's observation, and a life's view of nature. Every wheat-grower should master this work, and then keep it at hand for constant reference as a wheat cyclopedia."—Toronto Daily Colonist.

"The papers upon Ergot, Rust, and the diseases and insects which have proved so detrimental to the wheat crops for the last few years are very full, and contain facts of great importance to the farming community."—Warren Chronicle.

"Mr. Klippart has done himself much credit, and the State service, in producing this work, which bears upon every page evidence of fine observation, untiring industry, and sound judgment."—Zanesville Courier.

"Take it all in all, it is an exceedingly valuable book. Every farmer in the State should have a copy."—Hamilton Intelligencer.

"Looked at either as a scientific essay, or a practical hand-book, the value of Mr. Klippart's work must be instantly acknowledged. His book abounds in the widest and fullest information, and the most interesting results. No point of clearness is sacrificed to thoroughness. It is succinct, lucid, and satisfactory. We congratulate the author on the successful accomplishment of so great a task."—Portsmouth Tribune.

"We know of no person in the country better qualified—from his thorough acquaintance with the principles of agricultural chemistry, his knowledge of the German and French languages, and his connection with the Ohio State Board of Agriculture as Corresponding Secretary—to write a treatise on this great staple cereal, than Mr. Klippart. Notwithstanding so much has been written about agriculture, yet this most important subject has remained almost uninvestigated. Mr. Klippart shows that the capacity of the United States for the production of wheat is greatly overestimated, and that in the vain belief that 'we can feed the world from our surplus,' we have squandered our resources. Mr. Klippart gives it as his opinion, that Ohio has reached her maximum of wheat production, and if not retrograding, is at least stationary. The average will continue to grow less, unless an improved system of agriculture is generally adopted."—Cincinnati Daily Gazette.

The Three Great Temptations of Young Men,

With several Lectures addressed to Business and Professional Men, by SAMUEL W. FISHER. 1 vol. 12mo., 336 pages, $1.25. Contents:—The Sirens; The Wine-cup; The Card-table; The Christian Lawyer; The Mosaic Law of Usury; The Slayer of the Strong; The Play house; The Web of Vice; The Path of Infidelity; Commercial Morality.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"A work of unusual attraction. We know not where to have seen these subjects so impressively, yet so properly and guardedly examined. Far above common-place specimens. They expose dangers of terrible imminence, and urge persuasions of incomparable importance, in a way that offends not the taste, yet reaches the heart and engages the thoughts."—N. Y. Evangelist.

"Able and often eloquent. A work which may well be put into the hands of youth just entering upon life."—N. Y. Observer.

"We shall put the book by upon one of the choice shelves of our private library."—Boston Congregationalist.

"Paints in vigorous language the horrible consequences of vice."—Boston Post.

"We would that every young man in the land could be persuaded to read it carefully."—Louisville Recorder.

"Written in a style most inviting to youth and worthy of a very wide circulation."—Christian Herald.

"The man who sits down to the perusal of this volume must rise up wiser and better, if there be any virtue in good counsel beautifully and touchingly given."—Madison Courier

The Science of Education,

AND ART OF TEACHING. In two parts. By JOHN OGDEN, A. M. 1 vol. 12mo., 480 pages, $1.50. It is proper to say that Mr. Ogden has for many years been engaged almost exclusively with Teachers and in Normal Schools.

NOTICES.

"The truly philosophical and thoroughly practical methods of early culture, suggested to the primary teacher, if faithfully acted on, would make our elementary schools scenes of the most attractive and delightful, as well as instructive, occupation for childhood."—Rev. Wm. Russell, State Educational Lecturer, Massachusetts.

"MY DEAR SIR: Allow me to say that, in my humble judgment, you have struck the right vein, both in the conception and execution of your ideas regarding the Philosophy of Teaching. You afford a splendid contribution to our limited means for the training of Teachers. A good scholar merely has fulfilled only one of the conditions essential to a good educator. What we most need is a clear elucidation and a scientific classification of the principles of education, so that they may be mastered and applied to the rearing and training of rational and immortal beings. I need not assure you that this task you have, according to my notions, most happily executed. The application of diagrams to the work seems to me to be a happy thought, addressing the subject to that most perfect of all senses, the sense of sight."—Wm. F. Phelps, A. M., Principal of the New Jersey State Normal Schools.

"It is by far the best work of the kind with which I am acquainted."—Cyrus Knowlton, Esq., Principal of Hughes High School, Cincinnati.

"Messrs. MOORE, WILSTACH & BALDWIN: I have given attention to every work announced in England or this country, treating upon this subject; and I may say, without hesitation, that Mr. Ogden's treatise is, in its conception and arrangement, the most scientific among them all. It can not be read by the teacher without great practical advantage; it will prepare him for the business of the school-room; it will give new direction to his speculations; it will, I believe, greatly assist to establish the business of teaching as a profession.

"Schoolmasters owe it to themselves and their profession to give this book a circulation never yet reached by any of a similar character. Its use should not be confined to teachers alone. It should find a place in the library of every family, as the most valuable contribution yet made in our language for the advancement of education."—A. J. Rickoff, late Superintendent of Cincinnati Public Schools.

"OGDEN ON EDUCATION.—Is a very full and systematic work on the general subject of education, full of suggestive thoughts, tersely expressed. They deserve and demand proper consideration, seasoned by that confidence in their author which his evident carefulness and experience beget."—Rhode Island Schoolmaster.

"Is just the hand-book for teachers who intend to be thorough and foremost in their profession. Intelligent parents would find it an interesting and valuable aid in the hours when they 'ponder in their hearts' how to bring up children."—Toronto (C. W.) Colonist.

"A very elaborate, philosophical, and thorough work on a great subject, too much overlooked by thinking men. Must be immensely valuable to every parent and teacher."—N. Y. Observer.

"Contains, in a single volume, a great deal of valuable material. The whole subject of human culture is laid before the reader, and treated in simple yet comprehensive language. Parents and teachers should be induced to study this excellent work."—Massachusetts Teacher.

"Has many features, both novel and ingenious, which entitle it to consideration as an original work."—New York Century.

Art of Elocution :

EXEMPLIFIED IN A SYSTEMATIC COURSE OF EXERCISES. By H. N. DAY, A. M., author of "The Art of Book-Keeping," "Rhetorical Praxis," Editor of "Hamilton's Logic, Reduced and Prepared for Use in Colleges and Schools," and formerly Professor of Rhetoric in "Western Reserve College." This work is the fruit of much experience in teaching, and of long and earnest study. 1 vol. 12mo., 384 pages, $1.50.

NOTICES.

"Prof. Day has gone over the subject with much care, and endeavored to form an art where Dr. Rush had created a science. He has laid open briefly but clearly the great facts relating to the voice in connection with a series of exercises, designed to give the pupil a perfect command of the organs of speech, and a clear conception of what he actually does with his voice in expressing the various modifications of thought and feeling. Such a course of exercises is admirably adapted to break up the dull, inarticulate, mechanical mode of speaking formed by so many in early life, and perpetuated by the hurried and declamatory style of speaking prevalent in most schools.

"His explanations are far more clear and practical than those of any writer we know of, who has attempted to lay open the subject so fully; and we do trust that much good will result from a general circulation of this work among teachers. It will give definite views on many subjects which were wrapped in mystery till Dr. Rush commenced his investigations, and which are still very imperfectly understood by many who think themselves acquainted with the general principles of his treatise. Prof. Day, however, has examined for himself. He has not trusted to the dicta of any man. He has seen reason to differ from Dr. Rush on some minor points, and has given the subject a very thorough and searching examination in all its material parts."—Professor Goodrich, of Yale College, Editor of the more recent editions of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary.

A Professor of high standing in another of our best colleges, in a private note, thus speaks of it: "I know not how to do without it. I know of nothing which I could substitute for it."

"This a good book, prepared by a good man for a good purpose. The author was, some thirty years ago, valedictorian at Yale, and then tutor in that college. Subsequently, for some years he was Professor of Rhetoric in Western Reserve College, and now he worthily fills the office of President of the Ohio Female College, at College Hill. A better text-book on the Art of Elocution we have never met."—Ohio Educational Monthly.

"Prof. Day's Rhetoric has a very high reputation; and this book is what might be expected from the author of that work. The treatise on the Art of Elocution is simple, complete, systematic, and scientific. The extracts are well chosen. We commend the work highly."—Rhode Island Schoolmaster.

"I have examined the work of H. N. Day, on 'The Art of Elocution,' with much pleasure. Having put parts of the work to a practical test, I would cheerfully commend it to the attention of teachers and public speakers."—Professor Sylla, of the University of Chicago.

The Systematic Accountant:

THE ART OF BOOK-KEEPING; Methodically unfolded in its principles, and illustrated by copious exercises, for use in schools and private study. By HENRY N. DAY, A. M. Author of "Elements of the Art of Rhetoric," "Rhetorical Praxis," and "The Art of Elocution." 1 vol. 12mo., 168 pages, 75 cents.

Rhetorical Praxis,

THE PRINCIPLES OF RHETORIC, Exemplified and Applied in copious Exercises for Systematic Practice, chiefly in the Development of the Thought. By HENRY N. DAY, D. D., LL. D., author of "Elements of the Art of Rhetoric," and formerly Professor of Rhetoric in Western Reserve College. 1 vol. 12mo., $1.12.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"I have examined it carefully and with much satisfaction. I believe it is a most excellent work, and needs only to be known to secure for it an introduction into all our High Schools. We have adopted it as a text-book."—JOHN LYNCH, Superintendent of Circleville (O.) Public Schools.

"Books of Rhetorical Praxis are usually the duller and most unprofitable of all text-books. The ingenious author of this volume has certainly proposed to himself the true ideal to be accomplished in teaching Rhetoric; for he would teach his pupil to write by teaching him to think. We believe this book to be superior to any other of the kind, and to have the highest claim upon practical teachers for a trial, for its thoroughness, its comprehensiveness, as well as for the great ingenuity and skill with which it has been prepared. We recommend it most cordially to teachers."—New Englander.

"The design of this work is to train the pupil in the principles of Rhetoric as applied to the unfolding of thought; so that Rhetoric, instead of an artificial code of rules, is a philosophical outgrowth of ideas and the principles of language. The plan is excellent, and the various exercises are prepared with judgment and skill. The pupil is taught to analyze his ideas; to get at the theme or proposition to be stated; and then to frame this in appropriate words. Professor Day brings to his task philosophical judgment, refined taste and practical experience. His work should become a text-book in all schools, in lieu of the customary exercises in composition."—New York Independent.

"It is a thoroughly practical treatise for developing the art of discourse upon a true idea. Almost all systems of Rhetoric which are in common use in the English language proceed upon the idea that style is everything, and pay but little attention to the thought itself. This work just reverses these plans, goes back to the systems of the Greek fathers in Rhetoric, and finds the true doctrine in the fact so well stated by Daniel Webster, that 'all true power in writing is in the idea, not in the style,' and that the first of all requisites, as Sir Walter Scott observes, is in 'having something to say.' The 'Development of the Thought' is the basis; and when the thought stands out in all its well-built proportions, the drapery of style is thrown around it. No better book can be placed in the hands of young students in our male colleges. It should be closely studied by every Freshman class in every college, and in all the high schools in this country. We sincerely wish we could have had this book years ago."—Educational Repository and Family Monthly, Atlanta, Georgia.

"This work is truly scientific and practical. It seizes the old idea of invention, unfolded by both Aristotle and Cicero, and develops it in the light of modern metaphysics, and thus illuminates it and adapts it to the present analysis of the mental powers. It is, to all intents and purposes, the art of thinking, rather than of writing. It makes thought the pedestal, style the shaft, ideas the soul and body too of composition, style the mere habiliments—the having something to say—the motive power—the manner of saying it—the mere machinery; in one case characterized by strength, in another by grace, beauty, and polish. Let teachers try it; they will not be disappointed. It is an aid in the right direction."—New York Observer.

