3 JENNINGS, MRS. ANN.	—	Oval, $3 \times 2\frac{1}{2}$ , nearly full face; signed B. monogram.	Earl Beauchamp.	Ascribed to Charles Beale. Judging from the style and the monogram, more likely to be the work of Bartholomew Beale, pupil of Flatman.
4 LELY, SIR PETER (supposed).	—	Signed with monogram, and dated 1679. Seated, holding a statuette in left hand; $\frac{3}{4}$ face turned to left, curtain background.	V. and A. Museum, No. 555, '05.	This is described in the V. and A. catalogue as a "portrait of a Sculptor. After a painting by Wm. Dobson." It is probably a copy of a Lely, and has a counterpart at Osterley Park (Lord Jersey's). There is a head and bust similar to it at Welbeck (Duke of Portland's). There was a p. of Lely after himself by Charles Beale sold at Strawberry Hill, 11th day's sale, lot 65, described as "a very beautiful miniature," bought by — Gosling, Esq., for £7 7s. This min. was sold at Christie's (in 1905) as by L. Crosse for £53 11s.

138 CROMWELL, OLIVER.	b. 1599, son of Robert Cromwell and Elizabeth Stuart.	—	Duke of Buccleuch.	Walpole, in A. of P. , speaks of "this fine head" as in the possession of Lady Franklin, widow of Sir Thomas, a descendant of Cromwell. Vertue engraved it. This should be Lady Frankland Russell, vide Catalogue of the National Portrait Gallery, 1897, p. 109.
This miniature, which is justly regarded as one of the best authenticated and finest portraits of Cromwell in existence, is, according to Dallas, the one which Cromwell surprised Cooper in the act of copying, and took away from him in anger. "It was brought," according to the Montagu House catalogue, "to Messrs. Colnaghi, about 1860, by a gentleman, the legal adviser of a lady to whom it had been presented by a member of the Frankland family, into whose possession it came through Mrs. Claypole."

367 PORTSMOUTH, LOUISE RENÉE KÉROUALLE (OR DE KERHOUEL).	Belonging to a Breton family. b. 1644. She was Maid of Honour to Henriette of Orleans, whom she accompanied to England in 1670. Became Mistress of Charles II., and was created Duchess of Portsmouth, 1673. At the request of Charles, Louis XIV. made her Duchesse of D'Aubigny, 1674. She was the active agent of the French King, and retained her influence over Charles to the last. Her son, Charles Lennox, was created Duke of Richmond. d. in Paris, 1725.	—	Duke of Buccleuch.	Date of her birth seems uncertain, 1644, 47, 49. There was much rivalry between this woman, of whom there is a very fine portrait in the National Portrait Gallery by Mignard, and Nell Gwynne. It is to the credit of the former that she alone of Charles's Mistresses behaved respectfully to Catherine of Braganza. It is ascribed to S. Cooper, but seems open to question, and rather rubbed. One of the four noble- men who offered their lives to save the King; retired abroad and died, it is said, of a broken heart, 1655.	Dated, 1654.	—	Bought at Strawberry Hill, 18th day, lot 145, £2 12s. 6d., when it was described as the husband of the famous Mrs. Stuart; but this is erroneous, it was Charles, Duke of Richmond, who married "la belle Stuart," q.v. In yellow satin dress; pearls in hair and pearl necklace.	Duke of Buc- cleuch.	Exh. Kens., 1865, No. 1587; and Leeds, 1868. The original of the figure of Britannia on British coinage. In Pepys' Diary are many references to this lady, its author being a great admirer of her. He terms her "a worthy woman," and tells the whole story of her position at Court, on the authority of John Evelyn, who, he says, "Believes her to be as vertuous as any woman in the world."
