INTRODUCTION

IN writing this Introductory Note my main purpose is to explain the origin of the International Theatre Exhibition, and how it came to find a home in the Victoria and Albert Museum.

In the course of last year a small number of theatre designs and models (which we hope will become the nucleus of a much larger permanent collection) were exhibited in the Department of Engraving, Illustration and Design. This somewhat meagre representation of Theatre Design, which was the best the Museum could supply, led to suggestions in the press and elsewhere that the Museum should hold an Exhibition of Theatrical Art on a much larger scale. At the time, however, seeing that an important Exhibition of this nature was being organised at Amsterdam, no immediate action was taken; but when the Amsterdam Exhibition opened, Mr. Martin Hardie (Keeper of the Department of Engraving, Illustration and Design) was sent, with the approval of the Board of Education, to inspect the Exhibition, and to report on its nature and scope.

The undoubted success of the Amsterdam Exhibition, which owed much to the energy and enterprise of Heer H. T. Wijdeveld, led to a movement in this country, notably on the part of Lord Howard de Walden, acting as President of the British Drama League, to transfer the Exhibition to London. The Society of West-End Theatre Managers and the Actors' Association promised support. Mr. Gordon Craig, who was working at Amsterdam in close co-operation with Mr. Wijdeveld and the Dutch Committee, gave strong support to this scheme. In order to concentrate the various efforts that were being made, and to permit general discussion of the possibilities, a meeting was held at the Museum on February 23rd last, to which representatives of the British Drama League and other Associations, as well as leading Play-wrights, Managers, Actors, Artists and others connected with the Stage were invited. It gave me much pleasure when presiding at that meeting to announce that the President of the Board of Education was prepared to welcome the idea of transporting the Exhibition to London, and of allowing the Museum to offer the hospitality of its galleries to British and foreign exhibitors. It was understood, however, that while the Museum would give the necessary space and be responsible for all matters relating to administration, the Exhibition could not be held at the Government's expense, and must be open free to the public. Lord Howard de Walden, on behalf of the British Drama League, offered to raise a fund, for which he had already found several generous supporters, to cover the necessary expenses, and a definite decision was arrived at that the Exhibition should be held at the Victoria and Albert Museum.

It is, we feel, particularly appropriate that this Exhibition, the first International Exhibition of this nature which has been held in England, should find a home in this Museum. The Museum is the officially constituted centre and home for all branches of Industrial Art and Design, and there is, obviously, no branch of Art covering quite so wide a field as the Theatre, which touches Architecture, Painting, Design, and Decoration in many forms. In this country, as on the Continent, there has been, during recent years, a serious and noteworthy progress in the treatment of dramatic scenery and stage setting; and we hope that this Exhibition, by co-ordinating similar efforts made in other parts of the World, will set new standards before the public eye, and will serve a highly useful purpose in the encouragement of what is a very definite and very active branch of British Art and Design.

The Exhibition will speak for itself. It might be added that efforts have been made, wherever practicable, to extend and enlarge its scope. The British and American Sections are notably more complete than they were at Amsterdam.

The Museum has gladly undertaken the administration of the Exhibition, but the work could not have been carried out without the invaluable help given by special Committees chosen from those who are prominently connected with Theatrical Art and the production of plays. Whatever success the Exhibition may achieve will be largely due to the hearty co-operation and enthusiastic support of those whose names are given on the preceding pages.

In the preparation of this Catalogue Mr. Martin Hardie has received valuable assistance from Mrs. P. E. Richards and Miss K. Sproule.

CECIL HARCOURT SMITH,

Director.

FOREWORD

TWENTY to thirty years ago, some of us in the European Theatre felt that we could bring to the entertainment of the people something they might like to have.

Entertainment can grow as dull as anything else, and we thought that here and there the Theatre was showing signs of growing dull. So we set to work.

The drawings, models, plans, masks, and marionettes shown here are part of the results of our labour.

Out of about 900 pieces exhibited here, at least two-thirds have been carried out in large on the stages in America, Austria, Belgium, England, France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Poland, Russia and Switzerland. In most of these lands the play-writer and the actor have welcomed our ideas—for it is ideas which we have brought to the Theatres, not merely sceneries and pictures.

A new way of looking at an old thing—this was our principal idea, and this idea has freshened up that part of entertainment which was growing dull.

Ours was no hideous “revolution”—no pompous “reform.” We just made some most ordinary and desirable changes.

We based our changes on some of the oldest and best traditions known to mankind, though we rejected that ancient, and for some unknown reason, respected Tradition which orders you to “do as was done last time.”

We began to build our theatres differently, we set our stages with different scenes, and we acted our old and new plays differently—not in every land or in every city, but in nearly every land and in most cities.

And this Exhibition is held in London so that England may prepare to do not merely what other lands have already done—but much more.

GORDON CRAIG.
