Rustic Simplicity and Shrewd-ness.

During the panic of 1825 in England, a woman who had long attended the Bristol market as a vender of vegetables, walked into Stuckey's banking house on the quay, and making her way direct to the cashier's desk, thus addressed Mr. M—:

"How do ye do, sir? I do hope ye be charming. I've got a bit of favor to ax you. They do tell I that things be going on but queerish like up to London, and it so happens that I've a saved by five pound Bank of England note, and I should be obliged to ye if so be as how you'd be so kind as to give I gold for it."

"My good woman," replied the cashier, "I am sorry I cannot do what you ask. We are not in the habit of giving change to strangers."

"Lord love ye, I beant no stranger; I have served Madam M— with garden stuff for many a long day; she do know I pretty well, I should think, or she wouldn't have axed me to find out a decentish, wholesome young woman to nurse your last dear beautiful baby. So now you do know all about it, and I am bound wont refuse to give change for this nice London bank note"

"I tell you again I cannot," was somewhat snappishly replied; "I am too busy to listen to your importunities just now, so it's no use your staying."

"I ax pardon, sir, but I wont keep ye a minute; if Madam was here, she would get it for me in less than no time; she said only last Saturday as ever was, she never tasted such beautiful runnets as the lot I was pleased to sell her the week afore."

The cashier evinced strong and unequivocal symptoms of impatience; these were not lost on the applicant, who in a most winning tone resumed:

"Well, now, I'll tell ye what, since you wont give I gold, maybe ye will be so uncommon kind as to change this Bank of England note for one of your own notes of the same vally? I would a precious sight rather have that, because I do know there be no fear of your breaking all into bits, though they do say a sight of banks have done so lately."

"Certainly, madam," blandly and smilingly responded Mr. M—, "I will do that with a great deal of pleasure." The proposed change was made.

"Thank ye kindly, sir, you be as civil a spoken gentleman as a body may wish to meet, and sure I will tell Madam so the next time she do come to my standing."

Thinking the business concluded to the mutual satisfaction of the parties, the cashier turned on his heel, and was about to ensconce himself in his place behind his desk, when the dealer in greens suddenly checked his progress by audibly reading:

"Promise to pay five pounds on demand! Oh, you do, do ye? Then I say, Mr. M—, I do not mean any offense, or to say anything unpleasant like; but I be hanged if do not have gold now, or I will stick myself up at the door, and cry out, the bank is stopped!"

Need we say this unsophisticated child of nature carried her point?

LOVE—ITS PURITY AND POWER.

How very bright and beautiful is love in its hour of purity and innocence—how mysteriously does it etherealize every feeling and impulse of the heart. Love, holy and mysterious love—is the garland spring of life—the dream of the heart—the poetry of nature. Its song is heard in the rude hut of the poor, as well as in the gorgeous palace of the rich—its flames embellish the solitude of the forest, and the thronged haunts of busy life, and its life imparts a brilliancy to every heart, no matter what be its condition.

Love—pure, holy and devoted love—can never change. Friends may forsake us, and the riches of this world may soar away, but the heart that loves will cling closer as loud roar the storms, and amid the wreck of the tempest it will serve as a "beacon" to light us on to hope and happiness.

Love is the mystic and unseen spell that soothes the wild and rugged tendencies of human nature—that lingers about the sanctity of the fireside, and unites in closer union the affection of society, and the soul that loves truly, will love forever. Not like the waves of the ocean, nor traced in sand, is the image impressed upon a loving heart. No, no—but it will burn on undefaced in its luster amid the quick rush of winds and the warring of the tempest cloud; and when our fate seems dark and dreary, then will love seek shelter in her own hallowed temple, and offer as a sacrifice her vows and her affections.

An eccentric old Gentleman, being waited upon with his surgeon's bill, cogitated some time over its contents, and then desired the man who called with it to tell his master that the medicine he would certainly pay for, but as for the visits, he should return them.

THE CHARLESTON DUEL.—A correspondent of the New York Spirit of the Times furnishes a full account of the fatal duel between Taber and Magrath, near Charleston, S. C. He says:

Taber was a young man, influentially connected. His abilities were of the finest order, and his prospects of attaining future distinction as a public man, brilliant in the extreme. He was fearless, almost to audacity, and enjoyed considerable reputation as a duelist. Magrath, though a young man of family remarkable for talent, was regarded as one of those quiet, harmless, good natured fellows, who never trouble themselves about anything, and glide so smoothly down the stream of life, that not a ripple is left to mark their track.

Magrath knew little or nothing whatever of dueling. Both he and his opponent exhibited the utmost sang froid. The distance between them was but ten paces. It was arranged that they should fire "on the rise," that is, when in the act of raising, instead of whilst lowering their weapons. Just imagine the scene. The seconds take their places. The trembling spectators retire still further from the neighborhood of the duelists. "Gentlemen," say the seconds, "are you ready?"

"Yes," is the reply.

"Prepare to fire!"

"Fire!—one—two—three!"

The reports are heard almost simultaneously; a slight smoke envelopes the combatants, and their friends run up to them. Neither is found to be hurt. An effort is made at reconciliation, but without effect. The pistols are again loaded, and the principals again take their places, and again the words,

"Fire!—one—two—three!" are heard.

This time Magrath's bullet raised the dust near Taber's foot, possibly striking his boot, but no further injury is done. A second and more prolonged effort at an amicable adjustment follows.

"What do you require?" is asked of Magrath.

"I shall be satisfied," says he, "with a withdrawal of the objectionable articles and the expression, on the part of the editors of the Mercury, of regret at their appearance."

"No, no," Taber replies, in his quick, nervous manner—"no regret—never, sir—I shall disclaim them, but never express regret for their publication!"

All peaceful interference is now seen to be futile.

Again the pistols are loaded, and the principals walk up to their posts. The crowd recedes—the seconds take their stands—the pistols are presented—the order—"Fire!—one—two—three!" is given—the quick rat-tat is heard before the last word is uttered, and Taber is seen to stagger backward, reel and fall. The people rush up and see the blood oozing out of his forehead.

"Back, gentlemen," shouts the surgeon, "clear off, that we may have room to aid the wounded man."

Alas! poor fellow, he is now beyond aid from human agency. A spasm or two and all is over with him—here.

NEW BEEHIVE.—Mr. D. M. Aldrich,

a gentleman of Mokelumne Hill, who has had great experience in the culture of bees, has constructed a hive that bids fair to be an improvement on anything heretofore invented. His hive consists of a box about 17 inches square on the bottom by 16 inches high, in which he places four sets of frames—two on each side—with doors and glass so arranged that they permit the light to pass through the hive from side to side when both doors are opened. This divides each sheet of comb, from top to bottom, into four sections, any one of which can be taken out at pleasure, and an empty frame inserted in its place, without the danger of having the comb connected with two or more sets of frames. No piece of comb is larger than about six by eight inches square. It is, therefore, easily handled, without danger of breaking, either in taking from the hive or transporting to market. Each frame has a face of three-eighths of an inch on all sides of it, giving the bees access to every part of the hive. We understand that Mr. Aldrich intends to apply for a patent for his hive.

GREAT IDEAS AND SMALL DUTIES.—

A soul occupied with great ideas best performs small duties. The divinest views of life penetrate most clearly into the meanest emergencies. So far from petty principles being best proportioned to petty trials, a heavenly spirit taking up its abode with us can alone sustain well the daily toils, and tranquilly pass the humiliations of our condition. Even in intellectual culture, the ripest knowledge is the best qualified to instruct the most complete ignorance. So, the trivial services of social life are the best performed, and the lesser particles of domestic happiness are most skillfully organized, by the deepest and the fairest heart.

A MARVELOUS MEMORY.—Some people have photographic memories. If they see a face under circumstances calculated to impress it upon their recollection, it remains there forever. The memories of others are like looking glasses, from which the image passes as the substance is removed.

One of the most extraordinary specimens of the former class of memories we have ever heard of, is possessed by a gentleman of New Orleans. It is, indeed, if our authority is to be believed, "wax to receive and marble to retain."

Our informant says that some months ago, this New Orleans phenomenon—who, by the way, is an officer in the U. S. army—accosted an individual on the levee with,

"How do you do, my dear fellow; glad to see you looking so well. But that was an awful scare we got, was it not?"

"Sir," said the accosted, gravely, "you have the advantage of me."

"Had the advantage of you, you mean—but not much; you were down nearly as soon as I was."

"Sir," said the party addressed, still more gravely, "you speak in riddles. Be good enough to expound."

"Ah!" said the phenomenon, "don't remember me, I suppose. Quite natural. We had only a passing glimpse of each other."

"Sir, you probably mistake me for some one else," returned the other, more mystified than ever.

"Not a bit of it. You were on board the steamer——, when she blew up, near Memphis, on the 22d of April, at 21 minutes past 11 A. M., nine years ago, were you not?"

"Yes, I was; but——"

"But me no buts. So was I. You were blown sky high. So was I. Not that I saw you previous to the explosion. My first and only interview with you was in the air. You were going up as I was coming down. The glimpse I had of you was necessarily short. Your features were distorted with fright; our pace was killing, and I was wrong side up. Consequently my opportunities for observation were unfavorable. But I never forget faces under any circumstances, however discomposing. I photographed you, sir, and have had you in my mind's eye ever since. The moment I saw you on the levee, I recognized you as the original of my mental daguerreotype. Glad to see you looking better than when I saw you last. But we all have our ups and downs in this world. Suppose we adjourn to where we can crack a bottle of champagne, for the sake of auld lang syne."

"Which," said our informant, as he wound up the story, "they accordingly did."

THERE is a story afloat that a Chinese maestro, Lusing, is about to visit Europe on a musical mission, to combat the errors of modern music, and spread throughout the barbarian world the true principles of Chinese music. He will bring with him a Chinese orchestra to produce the compositions of Fo-hi, a cotemporary of Noah, and those of Psehery To Tsi, the Rossini of China, who died only about two hundred years ago. This story L'Eco d'Italia gives without comment. It needs none, and will be gladly welcomed by those musicians who can see nothing good in modern music, and chiefly value compositions on account of their age. As they now profess to despise Donizetti, Meyerbeer and Verdi, and gloat on Gluck and Bach, we expect they will soon despise these worthy Teutons, and fasten their affections on Fo-hi, the cotemporary of Noah.

NOT THE MAN.—A good anecdote is told of a man named Bently, a confirmed drinker, who would never drink with a friend or in public, and always denied, when a little too steep, even tasting liquor. One day some bad witnesses had concealed themselves in his room, and when the liquor was running down his throat, seized him with his arm crooked and his mouth open, and holding him fast, asked him with an air of triumph: "Ah, Bently, have we caught you at last? You never drink, ha!"

Now, one would suppose he would acknowledge the corn; not he; with the most grave and inexpressible face he calmly, and in a dignified manner, said: "Gentlemen, my name is not Bently!"

CORRECT your little faults, and you will gain courage and overcome great ones. No man arrives at excellence but through sharp watching and constant curbing of his faulty tendencies in the smallest matter. Washington and Franklin drew up rigid rules and proceeded upon a thorough system in disciplining themselves from early life. In their footsteps every young American should be proud to follow. Were less empty praise showered upon those fathers of the nation, and more earnest copies attempted of their glorious lives, we should behold a different rising generation from the present.

CALIFORNIA WOOL.—In an article from an Eastern paper, reviewing the wool trade of New York for 1860, we find very favorable mention made of California wool. It says:

"The amount received from California has been increased over last year, and is considered of superior staple, and has obtained great favor among the manufacturers. It is the opinion of those who are most familiar with its hitherto rapid and successful increase in that enterprising State, that it is destined to become one of its most important articles of export, and one of its greatest sources of wealth."

Texas is also spoken of as sending some excellent wool to that market, and it is said that, like California, it is likely to become of increasing importance, both in quality and quantity, to the manufacturers. Speaking further of California, it says:

"The soil and climate of California seem specially adapted to its growth, if we may judge from the character of the best bred wools we are now receiving—the staple of which, while it is healthy and free, is not so heavily charged with natural grease as our Western unwashed wools. We are informed that the next clip is likely to be quite an improvement on the present, from the introduction into their flocks of a large number of full-blood Merino and Southdown bucks."

There is no doubt but that California wools are destined at an early day to take a high position in the market. The above favorable mention shows what has been made of wools sent forward under unfavorable circumstances. But a short time has elapsed since our wool growers began to devote much attention to its improvement. They are at present, however, aroused to a proper appreciation of the advantages California possesses for wool growing, and are rapidly improving the breeds by importing blooded stock. They are also beginning to take much greater care in preparing their wools for market. After a few years more, we confidently expect that California wools will rank among the highest.—Marysville Express.

SLIGHTLY DISHONEST.—Not many days since a trader from up country called upon a down town merchant to pay a bill, which he did in twenty dollar pieces, receiving change. The merchant left the money on his desk while he stepped out of his counting-room for some liquor to treat his customer. What was his astonishment on observing, through the glass door of his counting-room, his up country friend take a twenty dollar piece from the pile on the desk, and put it in his pocket. He returned with the liquor, took a drink with his friend, and said nothing of what he had seen; but he gave his customer credit only for the sum paid minus the abstracted twenty dollars.—S. F. Herald.

SAVAGE AFFRAY.—An affray occurred recently in Bear valley, Meriposa county, in which one Reese, well known about Princeton and Agua Frio, was shot dead by Crowell, better known as "Babe." It would appear that Reese made the attack upon Crowell without provocation or cause, with a Bowie knife. Crowell was so badly cut that his life was at first despaired of. He was, however, not so much injured as was first supposed, and was able to appear for examination. The evidence proving his entire justification in shooting Reese, he was discharged.—Sacramento Union.

A GENTLEMAN, recently traveling on the Virginia and Tennessee Railroad, when the cars stopped at Prince's Tank, overheard the following conversation between a young gent from Georgia, who was on the train, and a small boy on the road: Passenger—"What did the cars stop for?" Boy—"To take in water?" Passenger—"What river is that?" pointing to the water in the ditch. Boy—"I don't know." Passenger—"What do you know?" Boy—"I know the cars bring a lot of d—d fools along this way." The young gent drew his head in, and was soon fast asleep.

A MAN living near Fentonville, Wis., who shall be nameless for the sake of his children, was riding with his wife some weeks since, when, in crossing a railroad track, he came in collision with a passing train of cars. His wife and both the horses were killed. At the time the wretch said he did not care for the woman, but the railroad company would have to pay for his horses, and now he has brought suit to recover $400 damages, $200 of which, he says, is to remunerate him for the loss of the former, and $200 for that of the latter.

Edward W. Blossom disappeared from Rochester a few days ago. Until Tuesday his friends were in great anxiety, when they received a letter from him, stating that he was about leaving for California. No cause but temporarily insanity can be assigned for his sudden departure, as his business affairs were in a very prosperous condition.

TO OUR READERS.—In consequence of want of room, and not wishing to leave out our advertisements, we have published an Extra containing the inaugural address of President Abraham Lincoln, in full.

WE would call special attention of our readers and the public generally to the new advertisements in to-day's NEWS: Lockwood & Hendrie's Clothing Emporium, corner of J and Fourth streets, opposite the St. George Hotel, Sacramento; the St. George Hotel, Fourth street, between J and K, Sacramento; Fogus & Coghill, wholesale dealers in groceries, provisions, liquors, etc., at the old stand of Lady Adams Co's, 13 and 15 K street, Sacramento; W. M. Stoddard, wholesale and retail dealers in hardware, agricultural and mining implements, 154 and 156 J street, Sacramento.

IN another column we publish in full the report of the Grand Jury of Colusa county, at the recent Sessions. After a perusal of the document, the conclusion is forced upon us that our neighbor county is in as healthy and flourishing a condition as any county in the State. The fact of their building a magnificent courthouse and jail within the past year, and at the same time reducing their county debt, speaks well of the manner in which their affairs have been administered by the present officials. We feel in this respect our county is fast falling in the back ground, while our neighbors are all having something to show for a portion of their taxes, we of Yolo have nothing—positively, nothing! No, not even a road we can call our own.

ON Tuesday last the Sacramento Union entered upon its eleventh year as a newspaper; and we presume its proprietors, by this time, are above flattery, but we only express our honest convictions when we say it is the most perfect newspaper published within the State or nation; and California can proudly point to it as unsurpassed in any quality that constitutes a daily journal. It is with pleasure we say also, that its proprietors and conductors are reaping that reward for their enterprise and industry which they justly merit—for the Sacramento Union is a paying institution.

SEWING MACHINES.—It will be seen by reference to another column that Dexter & Fogg, 75 J street, between Third and Fourth streets, Sacramento, are the agents for Williams & Orvis' improved Sewing Machines. They are equal to any of the machines, and can do just as good sewing. The price is only $45. We would advise those wanting one to call there first and examine for themselves.

THE LAST DAY.—The last day of the Spring Races will come off to-day, (Saturday) over the Prairie race course. The day's sport will consist of a mile race, free for all Spanish horses; entrance $10, three or more to make a race. There will also be a trotting match for $50 a side.

UNION THEATER.—This evening (Saturday) for the first time will be played the fine piece entitled "Nathaniel Pancake," in three acts, after which a number of laughable farces will be played.

COURT OF SESSIONS.—On next Monday week, April 1st, the Court of Sessions will meet at Cacheville—Hon. Isaac Davis, Judge.

THE HORSE ARGYLE SOLD.—Mr. D. N. Hershey of this place, sold his fine stallion, Argyle, this week, to Messrs. Nordyke & Kent, on the Sacramento river about fifteen miles above Knight's Landing.

IN another column will be found an advertisement of Fish's Infallible Hair Restorative; that it can be purchased at Raveley's store, Knight's Landing. The merits of the above are too well known to make any remarks.

OPPOSITION STEAMER.—The opposition steamer, J. A. McClelland, made her first trip on Saturday last for Red Bluff. She returned on Wednesday evening last.

WE call attention to the advertisement in another column of a pony that strayed from Mr. Pendegast, near Yolo city, in this county.

Senatorial Election.

The Senatorial election has at last come to a focus by the Joint Convention electing J. A. McDougall. We say elected, because we cannot see how any other grounds can be taken, the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House the two presiding Officers in our Legislature, each, we understand, officially notified the Governor—that McDougall was elected by the Body in Joint Convention.

We think the Governor will on the strength of these certificates issue his Commission and send on our Representative to the Capital, when in these stormy times a Union man is much needed to represent our young and prosperous State.

WE notice, by reference to our files from below, that there is quite an excitement in the grain market, caused by the news received from England, of arrivals and sales of shipments of California flour in the port of Liverpool. We are informed that one firm in San Francisco cleared three dollars a barrel on a large shipment, thereby netting the handsome sum of ninety thousand dollars on the venture; and although they have made a handsome gain by the transaction, it is nothing in comparison to the benefit our farmers will reap by the opening up of a new market, and one that cannot be overstocked, for our surplus grain. The fact that from Knight's Landing alone over two thousand five hundred tons of grain have been shipped to points below, on the river since August last, is evidence conclusive that we need an outlet for our surplus grain, and we trust in Europe we have found a profitable one.

PRAIRIE RACE COURSE.—The Spring racing was commenced on Thursday last over the Prairie race course, seven miles above Knight's Landing. It is some time since any races for more than one day have transpired, and on account of the fine weather and continuing three days, a great many people were in attendance from different parts of the county. First day, Thursday—for saddle worth $50, and $10 entrance for each horse added, for a single dash of a mile. Annexed is a SUMMARY.

After the above, there was a match race between C. Barney's dun horse and James Tonniss' gray horse for $100—distance, two hundred and fifty yards. Won by Barney's dun horse. There were several races run during the afternoon.

CARRIAGE FACTORY.—This week, on our rambles through Sacramento, we stopped at H. M. Bernard's Carriage Factory, corner of Sixth and L streets, and saw some of the finest assortment of carriages, buggies, wagons and sulkies we have ever seen in the State. It is a treat to go and see them if even you do not want to purchase.

INTERESTING DECISION.—The San Francisco Bulletin of March 16th says: Judge Hagar, this morning, decided that the Act under which the Bensley Water Company is at work, and the railroad Act of this State are both unconstitutional, to the extent that they deprive land-owners of the right to trial by jury. The case on which this decision was rendered was entitled, "The People ex rel. Heyneman vs. M. C. Blake, County Judge." The Bensley Water Company want to run a tunnel under the relator's land, to which process he decidedly objects. The law of 1845 and the railroad law provide for the appointment of commissioners to estimate the damages suffered by the relator, and for an appeal to the County Judge, but for no appraisal of damages by jury. But, under the Constitution, every citizen has the right of trial by jury guaranteed him. So Judge Hagar rendered judgment, annulling the proceedings before the county Judge, by which commissioners were appointed to condemn the relator's land.

DIVORCED AND MARRIED AGAIN.—The Visalia Sun gives the following account of a recent divorce case in that town:

A woman applied to the District Court for a divorce, and on the case being called for trial she proved a terrific list of grievances and troubles, which she won on the jury that a verdict in her favor was at once rendered. The poor victim of matrimonial oppression received the news of her release from thralldom with tears of joy, and—was married next day, and before the decree of divorce was signed by the Judge! The pair took up their abode on the ranch of the bridegroom, where husband No. 1 had been employed, and the good people of that neighborhood manifested their disapprobation by entertaining them, on the night of their arrival, by a combination of the most horrible sounds that ever saluted mortal ears. "Visalia serenades" were nowhere. Tar and feathers were suggested, but the suggestion was not acted on.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY OF COLUSA COUNTY.

The Grand Jury for the March Term of the Court of Sessions, Colusa county, report that during the present term they have found the following bills, to wit:

For grand larceny, three indictments; for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder, one indictment; for burglary, one indictment; for altering marks on hogs, one indictment; against one of the prisoners confined in the county jail upon a charge of grand larceny, sufficient evidence could not be obtained to justify us in finding a bill.

The Grand Jury have made inquiry into the subject of supplying the Indians in this county with intoxicating liquors, and although satisfied that the offense had been frequently committed, they could not find sufficient evidence to justify them in bringing a bill against any particular individual; but in view of the deleterious influence its use has upon a people who were once the proprietors of the soil, but are now fast passing away, and also of the fact well known to almost every citizen, that nearly every crime which has been committed in this county by the Indians has been whilst they were under the influence of liquors; for the sake of humanity and our own safety, we would earnestly call upon all good citizens to use their best endeavors to put a stop to the traffic, and see that the law is enforced.

One other subject has most forcibly presented itself to the minds of the present Grand Jury. It is a fact well known to every member of the Jury, that even in those cases which had come before us from Justices' courts, we have in several instances had neither papers nor a list of witnesses laid before us, and much unnecessary delay has been caused in our action, from the fact that witnesses have failed to be present at the time set for examination of cases, either from not being properly summoned, or from their own failure to comply with the same; if from the latter cause, we think it would be the means of expediting the business of courts in the future, and thereby a great saving of expense, if such delinquents were given to understand that they rendered themselves liable to action for contempt of court, and were subject to punishment accordingly.

The Grand Jury have visited the jail, and found that whilst the prisoners were securely confined, they are at the same time treated with a kindness and humanity that reflect credit upon those having them in charge.

They have also examined the books of the Treasurer and County Auditor, which were found to be highly satisfactory. The bonds of the county officers were also examined, and are thought to be sufficient.

In conclusion, we can congratulate the county upon the fact, that whilst, during the past year, we have built a handsome and commodious court-house, containing a safe and comfortable jail, and offices where the public records are secure, we have, in the same time, reduced our county debt. No better criterion of the manner in which our county affairs have been administered, is needed than the fact, that within the last two years our scrip has increased twenty per cent. in value.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

STEWART HARRIS,
Foreman Grand Jury.
Colusa, March 15th 1861

Arrival of the Pony Express!

Dates to March 9th.

FORT CHURCHILL,
March 20th.
The Pony Express arrived this morning. The following is from the Union:
St. Louis, March 8th,
via Fort Kearney,
The new Administration is proceeding harmoniously.

Members of the Cabinet have been confirmed. Secretary of State, Wm. H. Seward, of New York; Secretary of the Treasury, Salmon P. Chase, of Ohio; Secretary of War, Simon Cameron, of Pennsylvania; Secretary of the Navy, Gideon Wells, of Connecticut; Postmaster General, Montgomery Blair, of Maryland; Secretary of the Interior, Caleb B. Smith, of Indiana; Attorney General, Edward Bates, of Missouri.

A few Senators voted against Blair and Bates, because they were from the South.

Numerous State delegations called on the President, among them one hundred and forty-four persons from California. They met with pleasant receptions. The Senate continues in executive session.

Douglas takes the position that the Inaugural Message is peaceful in his view, and he will sustain it; though he will not support the Administration. He and Crittenden telegraphed to the Virginia Convention to this effect, and urging the State not to secede.

Southern sentiment generally first looked on the Inaugural as menacing war, consequently great excitement was produced, even among the most conservative Union men. For the last day or two things are more quiet, and all parties seem to wait the action of the Government.

Seward, in a short speech to the Illinois delegation, said the battle of freedom had been fought and won, and henceforth all influence must be given to save the Union. The matter of forts at the South is left wholly in the hands of Jeff. Davis' government. There have been no hostile demonstrations as yet.

Crawford, Forsyth and Looman, southern envoys, now in Washington, are about to make known the views of their government.

Texas has adopted the secession ordinance by a large majority.

Virginia and Missouri Conventions have taken no definite action yet. A speech in favor of coercion was made in each Convention yesterday.

Returns indicate that the Unionists have succeeded in North Carolina. Arkansas elected Union officers in its Convention.

It is understood that the action of the border States is withheld for a correct understanding of the policy of the Administration. If it proves not to be coercive, no doubt every one will stick to the Union. If it is coercive, the result is doubtful.

Crittenden is spoken of for the Supreme Court, but is opposed by Trumbull and others.

Judd, of Illinois, is appointed Minister to Berlin.

F. W. Howard is Assistant Secretary of State.

Major Anderson and Col. Sumner are spoken of for Twigg's place.

Twiggs was enthusiastically received at New Orleans on the evening of March 5th.

Dispatches from Fort Sumter state that Major Anderson is all right.

The United States Treasury at New Orleans refused to pay Secretary Dix's draft for work done on the Custom house.

Col. Lee and confidential friends of Gen. Scott resigned their commissions in the army and returned to Virginia.

Ex-President Buchanan arrived at Wheatland had had a formal reception at Harrisburg.

Floyd arrived at Washington to stand trial.

One Day Later.

St. Louis, March 9th.

Reported that Lincoln stated to a Southern gentleman that the Inaugural meant peace.

Crittenden, in response to a serenade, urged his friends to stand by the Union. The people alone can settle the question.

Gen. Cooper and Assistant Adjutant General Withers have resigned.

Cassius M. Clay, it is reported, will be Minister to Mexico.

It is reported that Jeff. Davis has sent a Secretary and agent there.

It is asserted that Governor Houston has resigned.

The army officials oppose the promotion of Major Anderson.

OUTRAGE IN SAN FRANCISCO.—The Alta of March 18th relates the following case of outrage :

The attention of a number of gentlemen walking on Sacramento street was, yesterday forenoon, attracted to the figure of a girl on the top of a house nearly opposite Gray's coffin warehouse. She appeared to be much alarmed, and she was calling loudly for help. Suddenly she disappeared, and a minute afterwards rushed out of the doorway and across the street into a house on the opposite side, pursued by a notorious bully named Billy Carr, who was expropriated by the Vigilance Committee in 1856. The girl, on finding herself secure from harm, related her story, while Carr made off down the street. Several persons attempted to arrest him, but being unarmed, they were not willing to take the chances against the knife, which he violently threatened to use upon any man who should attempt to interfere with him. The girl, who is modest and virtuous, and resides with her mother, in the house first above referred to, stated that she was engaged in sweeping out the hall in the second story, when Carr, whom she had never seen before, came up the stairs and commenced making disgusting proposals to her. She was alone and unable to protect herself, and as he made towards her, she ran up the stairs leading to the third story. He followed her, and, in terror at his actions, she got out of the scuttle upon the roof, where he partly went after her, using the most opprobrious epithets, and threatening her if she did not stop her noise and come back. As he stepped upon the roof, she ran back again and reached the street as above stated Officers Bovee and Douglas arrested Carr soon after near the United States Appraiser's office. He pretends now to have been drunk. He has been repeatedly arrested for rowdiness, and bears a very bad character with the police force.

HOP ROOTS—FIRST PREMIUM.

J. R. Ray, 106 J Street, Sacramento, has for sale a limited stock of those superior Roots, from his old Hop Yard, thirty miles below Sacramento, where the sample sack was raised that took the first premium at the late Fair of the State Agricultural Society.

As much has been said about male and female plants, and often to mystify the subject, it may be well to say that purchasers of Roots will be provided with the proper proportion of each, with directions for planting, if desired.

The plants which we offer roots are five years old, having been brought from one of the best hop yards in the Atlantic States.

As the stock of Roots from my yard is limited this season, it may be well for those contemplating planting to advance me early.

Send for a circular giving direction for cultivation. J. R. RAY, Seed and Nursery Warehouse, 106 J street, feb2-3m Sacramento.

THE Knight's Landing News.

LIVING WITHIN MEANS.—We hold it to be one of the first of temporal duties, that an individual should not suffer his annual expenses to exceed his income. This may often call for the most rigid economy and self denial, but this sacrifice must evidently be made, or somebody must be wronged. The ability to get more than one has the means of paying for, is founded on credit, and as every person is presumed to know the state of his own finances better than others can know it, to buy without the reasonable prospect of being able to meet fully the expectations of the creditor, deserves no lighter name than fraud.

Extravagance in living is a prominent cause of debt and embarrassment, and that pride which is unwilling to come down to one's actual circumstances, and which seeks to hide poverty by a show of wealth, is a principle source of this extravagance. Yet a man always commands the respect of the world, who conforms his style to his real condition—looking the latter full in the face himself, and not unwilling that others should see it as it is. A man of character can afford to do this; the fictitious sensibility and the false shame belong to the pretenders to gentility.

We were impressed with these thoughts in a pleasant call which we lately made on a young family of our acquaintance. The young man belongs to one of the liberal professions, and his residence is within sight of the elegant homestead, richly furnished within, and surrounded by ample and shaded grounds, where his early years were passed, and where his parents still reside. His young wife was brought up tenderly, and to a character of natural delicacy adds the charms of social culture and refinement. They occupy their own house—and what is its style? The simplest and cheapest of all cottages, containing, we believe, five little rooms, all told—the whole structure costing less than the annual rent of hundreds of houses in this city, which are built to rent. But affection, intelligence, and taste preside over that cultivated home, making it more attractive to an appreciative visitor than a palace would be without these accessories, and to its inmates it is fragrant with the breath of their first-born child. It is their own house, and be their prospects never so flattering, nothing can be more sensible than this simplicity; and as it is all which is at present within their means, they are contented and cheerful—happier far than the occupants of splendid dwellings who cannot pay their bills. We commend the example to "fast" young men and ambitious belles, if there are any such among our readers, reminding them that hardly any social spectacle is more delightful than a graceful conformity to an humble style of living, in one who is fitted by early training to adorn the most elegant.

—Cony Herald.

HORATIO KING, now Postmaster-General, entered the Department over which he now presides when twenty-five or six years of age with an appointment as copying clerk, and a salary of $1,000 per annum. He was called to the First Assistant Postmaster Generalship on the death of Gen. Hobbie. It is a singular circumstance that he began his public career as conductor of a newspaper at Paris, Maine, having Hanibal Hamlin, now Vice President elect, as his partner in the business.

A LA BLOOGS.—A devoted wooer of the Nine, on hearing of the marriage of a man named Felton, with a lady before the shrine of whose beauty he had been an unsuccessful worshiper, perpetrated the following:

"Eliza was a buxom lass
As e'er a poet dwelt on,
But would not be content, alas!
Until she had been FELT-on."

A GOOD looking young lady recently entered a dyer's shop, and thus accosted him,
"You are the man that dyes, are you not?"
"No, I'm the man that lives; but I will dye for you."

YOUNG LADY—"Oh, I'm so glad you like birds; which kind do you admire most?"

Old Squab—"Well, I think a goose with plenty of stuffing is about as nice as any."

"I SAY, Pat, what are you about—sweeping out the room?" "No," answered Pat, "I am sweeping out the dirt, and leaving the room."
