TO MY READERS

NAY, blame me not ; I might have spared
Your patience many a trivial verse,
Yet these my earlier welcome shared,
So, let the better shield the worse.

And some might say, " Those ruder songs
Had freshness which the new have lost ;
To spring the opening leaf belongs,
The chestnut-burs await the frost."

When those I wrote, my locks were brown,
When these I write — ah, well-a-day !
The autumn thistle's silvery down
Is not the purple bloom of May !

Go, little book, whose pages hold
Those garnered years in loving trust ;
How long before your blue and gold
Shall fade and whiten in the dust ?

O sexton of the alcoved tomb,
Where souls in leathern cerements lie,
Tell me each living poet's doom !
How long before his book shall die ?

It matters little, soon or late,
A day, a month, a year, an age, —

I read oblivion in its date,
And Finis on its title-page.

Before we sighed, our griefs were told ;
Before we smiled, our joys were sung ;
And all our passions shaped of old
In accents lost to mortal tongue.

In vain a fresher mould we seek, —
Can all the varied phrases tell
That Babel's wandering children speak
How thrushes sing or lilacs smell ?

Caged in the poet's lonely heart,
Love wastes unheard its tenderest tone ;
The soul that sings must dwell apart,
Its inward melodies unknown.

Deal gently with us, ye who read !
Our largest hope is unfulfilled, —
The promise still outruns the deed, —
The tower, but not the spire, we build.

Our whitest pearl we never find ;
Our ripest fruit we never reach ;
The flowering moments of the mind
Drop half their petals in our speech.

These are my blossoms ; if they wear
One streak of morn or evening's glow,
Accept them ; but to me more fair
The buds of song that never blow.

EARLIER POEMS

1830-1836

OLD IRONSIDES

This was the popular name by which the frigate Constitution was known. The poem was first printed in the Boston Daily Advertiser, at the time when it was proposed to break up the old ship as unfit for service. I subjoin the paragraph which led to the writing of the poem. It is from the Advertiser of Tuesday, September 14, 1830 : —

“ Old Ironsides. — It has been affirmed upon good authority that the Secretary of the Navy has recommended to the Board of Navy Commissioners to dispose of the frigate Constitution. Since it has been understood that such a step was in contemplation we have heard but one opinion expressed, and that in decided disapprobation of the measure. Such a national object of interest, so endeared to our national pride as Old Ironsides is, should never by any act of our government cease to belong to the Navy, so long as our country is to be found upon the map of nations. In England it was lately determined by the Admiralty to cut the Victory, a one-hundred gun ship (which it will be recollected bore the flag of Lord Nelson at the battle of Trafalgar,) down to a seventy-four, but so loud were the lamentations of the people upon the proposed measure that the intention was abandoned. We confidently anticipate that the Secretary of the Navy will in like manner consult the general wish in regard to the Constitution, and either let her remain in ordinary or rebuild her whenever the public service may require.” — New York Journal of Commerce.

The poem was an impromptu outburst of feeling and was published on the next day but one after reading the above paragraph.

AY, tear her tattered ensign down !
Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
That banner in the sky ;
Beneath it rung the battle shout,
And burst the cannon's roar ; —
The meteor of the ocean air
Shall sweep the clouds no more.

Her deck, once red with heroes' blood,
Where knelt the vanquished foe,
When winds were hurrying o'er the flood,
And waves were white below,
No more shall feel the victor's tread,
Or know the conquered knee ; —
The harpies of the shore shall pluck
The eagle of the sea !

Oh better that her shattered hulk
Should sink beneath the wave ;
Her thunders shook the mighty deep,
And there should be her grave ;
Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale !

THE LAST LEAF

This poem was suggested by the appearance in one of our streets of a venerable relic of the Revolution, said to be one of the party who threw the tea overboard in Boston Harbor. He was a fine monumental specimen in his cocked hat and knee breeches, with his huckled shoes and his sturdy cane. The smile with which I, as a young man, greeted him, meant no disrespect to an honored fellow-citizen whose costume was out of date, but whose patriotism never changed with years. I do not recall any earlier example of this form of verse, which was commended by the fastidious Edgar Allan Poe, who made a copy of the whole poem which I have in his own handwriting. Good Abraham Lincoln had a great liking for the poem, and repeated it from memory to Governor Andrew, as the governor himself told me.

I SAW him once before,
As he passed by the door,
    And again
The pavement stones resound,
As he totters o'er the ground
    With his cane.

They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning-knife of Time
    Cut him down,
Not a better man was found
By the Crier on his round
    Through the town.

But now he walks the streets,
And he looks at all he meets
    Sad and wan,
And he shakes his feeble head,
That it seems as if he said,
    “ They are gone.”

EARLIER POEMS

The mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he has prest
    In their bloom,
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
    On the tomb.

My grandmamma has said —
Poor old lady, she is dead
    Long ago —
That he had a Roman nose,
And his cheek was like a rose
    In the snow.

But now his nose is thin,
And it rests upon his chin
    Like a staff,
And a crook is in his back,
And a melancholy crack
    In his laugh.

┌ I know it is a sin
For me to sit and grin
    At him here ;
But the old three-cornered hat,
And the breeches, and all that,
    Are so queer !

And if I should live to be
The last leaf upon the tree
    In the spring,

Let them smile, as I do now,
At the old forsaken bough
Where I cling. J

THE CAMBRIDGE CHURCHYARD

OUR ancient church ! its lowly tower,
Beneath the loftier spire,
Is shadowed when the sunset hour
Clothes the tall shaft in fire ;
It sinks beyond the distant eye
Long ere the glittering vane,
High wheeling in the western sky,
Has faded o'er the plain.

Like Sentinel and Nun, they keep
Their vigil on the green ;
One seems to guard, and one to weep,
The dead that lie between ;
And both roll out, so full and near,
Their music's mingling waves,
They shake the grass, whose pennoned spear
Leans on the narrow graves.

The stranger parts the flaunting weeds,
Whose seeds the winds have strown
So thick, beneath the line he reads,
They shade the sculptured stone ;
The child unveils his clustered brow,
And ponders for a while
The graven willow's pendent bough,
Or rudest cherub's smile.

But what to them the dirge, the knell?
    These were the mourner's share, —
The sullen clang, whose heavy swell
    Throbb'd through the beating air;
The rattling cord, the rolling stone,
    The shelving sand that slid,
And, far beneath, with hollow tone
    Rung on the coffin's lid.

The slumberer's mound grows fresh and green,
    Then slowly disappears;
The mosses creep, the gray stones lean,
    Earth hides his date and years;
But, long before the once-loved name
    Is sunk or worn away,
No lip the silent dust may claim,
    That pressed the breathing clay.

Go where the ancient pathway guides,
    See where our sires laid down
Their smiling babes, their cherished brides,
    The patriarchs of the town;
Hast thou a tear for buried love?
    A sigh for transient power?
All that a century left above,
    Go, read it in an hour!

The Indian's shaft, the Briton's ball,
    The sabre's thirsting edge,
The hot shell, shattering in its fall,
    The bayonet's rending wedge, —

Here scattered death ; yet, seek the spot,
No trace thine eye can see,
No altar, — and they need it not
Who leave their children free !

Look where the turbid rain-drops stand
In many a chiselled square ;
The knightly crest, the shield, the brand
Of honored names were there ; —
Alas ! for every tear is dried
Those blazoned tablets knew,
Save when the icy marble's side
Drips with the evening dew.

Or gaze upon yon pillared stone,
The empty urn of pride ;
There stand the Goblet and the Sun, —
What need of more beside ?
Where lives the memory of the dead,
Who made their tomb a toy ?
Whose ashes press that nameless bed ?
Go, ask the village boy !

Lean o'er the slender western wall,
Ye ever-roaming girls ;
The breath that bids the blossom fall
May lift your floating curls,
To sweep the simple lines that tell
An exile's date and doom ;
And sigh, for where his daughters dwell,
They wreathe the stranger's tomb.

And one amid these shades was born,
 Beneath this turf who lies,
 Once beaming as the summer's morn,
 That closed her gentle eyes ;
 If sinless angels love as we,
 Who stood thy grave beside,
 Three seraph welcomes waited thee,
 The daughter, sister, bride !

I wandered to thy buried mound
 When earth was hid below
 The level of the glaring ground,
 Choked to its gates with snow,
 And when with summer's flowery waves
 The lake of verdure rolled,
 As if a Sultan's white-robed slaves
 Had scattered pearls and gold.

Nay, the soft pinions of the air,
 That lift this trembling tone,
 Its breath of love may almost bear
 To kiss thy funeral stone ;
 And, now thy smiles have passed away,
 For all the joy they gave,
 May sweetest dews and warmest ray
 Lie on thine early grave !

When damps beneath and storms above
 Have bowed these fragile towers,
 Still o'er the graves yon locust grove
 Shall swing its Orient flowers ;

And I would ask no mouldering bust,
 If e'er this humble line,
 Which breathed a sigh o'er other's dust,
 Might call a tear on mine.

TO AN INSECT

The Katydid is "a species of grasshopper found in the United States, so called from the sound which it makes." — Worcester.

I used to hear this insect in Providence, Rhode Island, but I do not remember hearing it in Cambridge, Massachusetts, where I passed my boyhood. It is well known in other towns in the neighborhood of Boston.

I LOVE to hear thine earnest voice,
 Wherever thou art hid,
 Thou testy little dogmatist,
 Thou pretty Katydid!
 Thou mindest me of gentlefolks, —
 Old gentlefolks are they, —
 Thou say'st an undisputed thing
 In such a solemn way.

Thou art a female, Katydid!
 I know it by the trill
 That quivers through thy piercing notes,
 So petulant and shrill;
 I think there is a knot of you
 Beneath the hollow tree, —
 A knot of spinster Katydids, —
 Do Katydids drink tea?

Oh tell me where did Katy live,
 And what did Katy do?

And was she very fair and young,
And yet so wicked, too ?
Did Katy love a naughty man,
Or kiss more cheeks than one ?
I warrant Katy did no more
Than many a Kate has done.

Dear me ! I'll tell you all about
My fuss with little Jane,
And Ann, with whom I used to walk
So often down the lane,
And all that tore their locks of black,
Or wet their eyes of blue, —
Pray tell me, sweetest Katydid,
What did poor Katy do ?

Ah no ! the living oak shall crash,
That stood for ages still,
The rock shall rend its mossy base
And thunder down the hill,
Before the little Katydid
Shall add one word, to tell
The mystic story of the maid
Whose name she knows so well.

Peace to the ever-murmuring race !
And when the latest one
Shall fold in death her feeble wings
Beneath the autumn sun,
Then shall she raise her fainting voice,
And lift her drooping lid,
And then the child of future years
Shall hear what Katy did.

THE DILEMMA

Now, by the blessed Paphian queen,
Who heaves the breast of sweet sixteen ;
By every name I cut on bark
Before my morning star grew dark ;
By Hymen's torch, by Cupid's dart,
By all that thrills the beating heart ;
The bright black eye, the melting blue, —
I cannot choose between the two.

I had a vision in my dreams ; —
I saw a row of twenty beams ;
From every beam a rope was hung,
In every rope a lover swung ;
I asked the hue of every eye
That bade each luckless lover die ;
Ten shadowy lips said, heavenly blue,
And ten accused the darker hue.

I asked a matron which she deemed
With fairest light of beauty beamed ;
She answered, some thought both were fair, —
Give her blue eyes and golden hair.
I might have liked her judgment well,
But, as she spoke, she rung the bell,
And all her girls, nor small nor few,
Came marching in, — their eyes were blue.

I asked a maiden ; back she flung
The locks that round her forehead hung,

And turned her eye, a glorious one,
Bright as a diamond in the sun,
On me, until beneath its rays
I felt as if my hair would blaze ;
She liked all eyes but eyes of green ;
She looked at me ; what could she mean ?

Ah ! many lids Love lurks between,
Nor heeds the coloring of his screen ;
And when his random arrows fly,
The victim falls, but knows not why.
Gaze not upon his shield of jet,
The shaft upon the string is set ;
Look not beneath his azure veil,
Though every limb were cased in mail.

Well, both might make a martyr break
The chain that bound him to the stake ;
And both, with but a single ray,
Can melt our very hearts away ;
And both, when balanced, hardly seem
To stir the scales, or rock the beam ;
But that is dearest, all the while,
That wears for us the sweetest smile.

MY AUNT

MY aunt ! my dear unmarried aunt !
    Long years have o'er her flown ;
Yet still she strains the aching clasp
    That binds her virgin zone ;

I know it hurts her, — though she looks
    As cheerful as she can ;
Her waist is ampler than her life,
    For life is but a span.

My aunt ! my poor deluded aunt !
    Her hair is almost gray ;
Why will she train that winter curl
    In such a spring-like way ?
How can she lay her glasses down,
    And say she reads as well,
When through a double convex lens
    She just makes out to spell ?

Her father — grandpapa ! forgive
    This erring lip its smiles —
Vowed she should make the finest girl
    Within a hundred miles ;
He sent her to a stylish school ;
    'T was in her thirteenth June ;
And with her, as the rules required,
    “Two towels and a spoon.”

They braced my aunt against a board,
    To make her straight and tall ;
They laced her up, they starved her down,
    To make her light and small ;
They pinched her feet, they singed her hair,
    They screwed it up with pins ; —
Oh never mortal suffered more
    In penance for her sins.

So, when my precious aunt was done,
 My grandsire brought her back ;
 (By daylight, lest some rabid youth Might follow on the track ;)
 " Ah ! " said my grandsire, as he shook
 Some powder in his pan,
 " What could this lovely creature do Against a desperate man ! "

Alas ! nor chariot, nor barouche,
 Nor bandit cavalcade,
 Tore from the trembling father's arms
 His all-accomplished maid.
 For her how happy had it been !
 And Heaven had spared to me
 To see one sad, ungathered rose
 On my ancestral tree.

REFLECTIONS OF A PROUD PEDESTRIAN

I SAW the curl of his waving lash,
 And the glance of his knowing eye,
 And I knew that he thought he was cutting a dash,
 As his steed went thundering by.

And he may ride in the rattling gig,
 Or flourish the Stanhope gay,
 And dream that he looks exceeding big
 To the people that walk in the way ;

But he shall think, when the night is still,
 On the stable-boy's gathering numbers,

And the ghost of many a veteran bill
Shall hover around his slumbers ;

The ghastly dun shall worry his sleep,
And constables cluster around him,
And he shall creep from the wood-hole deep
Where their spectre eyes have found him !

Ay ! gather your reins, and crack your thong,
And bid your steed go faster ;
He does not know, as he scrambles along,
That he has a fool for his master ;

And hurry away on your lonely ride,
Nor deign from the mire to save me ;
I will paddle it stoutly at your side
With the tandem that nature gave me !

DAILY TRIALS

BY A SENSITIVE MAN

OH, there are times
When all this fret and tumult that we hear
Do seem more stale than to the sexton's ear
His own dull chimes.

Ding dong ! ding dong !
The world is in a simmer like a sea
Over a pent volcano, — woe is me
All the day long !

From crib to shroud !
 Nurse o'er our cradles screameth lullaby,
 And friends in boots tramp round us as we die,
 Snuffing aloud.

At morning's call
 The small-voiced pug-dog welcomes in the sun,
 And flea-bit mongrels, wakening one by one,
 Give answer all.

When evening dim
 Draws round us, then the lonely caterwaul,
 Tart solo, sour duet, and general squall, —
 These are our hymn.

Women, with tongues
 Like polar needles, ever on the jar ;
 Men, plugless word-spouts, whose deep fountains are Within their lungs.

Children, with drums
 Strapped round them by the fond paternal ass ;
 Peripatetics with a blade of grass
 Between their thumbs.

Vagrants, whose arts
 Have caged some devil in their mad machine,
 Which grinding, squeaks, with husky groans between,
 Come out by starts.

Cockneys that kill
 Thin horses of a Sunday, — men, with clams,

Hoarse as young bisons roaring for their dams
From hill to hill.

Soldiers, with guns,
Making a nuisance of the blessed air,
Child-crying bellmen, children in despair,
Screeching for buns.

Storms, thunders, waves!
Howl, crash, and bellow till ye get your fill;
Ye sometimes rest; men never can be still
But in their graves.

EVENING

BY A TAILOR

DAY hath put on his jacket, and around
His burning bosom buttoned it with stars.
Here will I lay me on the velvet grass,
That is like padding to earth's meagre ribs,
And hold communion with the things about me.
Ah me! how lovely is the golden braid
That binds the skirt of night's descending robe!
The thin leaves, quivering on their silken threads,
Do make a music like to rustling satin,
As the light breezes smooth their downy nap.

Ha! what is this that rises to my touch,
So like a cushion? Can it be a cabbage?
It is, it is that deeply injured flower,
Which boys do flout us with; — but yet I love thee,

Thou giant rose, wrapped in a green surtout.
 Doubtless in Eden thou didst blush as bright
 As these, thy puny brethren ; and thy breath
 Sweetened the fragrance of her spicy air ;
 But now thou seemest like a bankrupt beau,
 Stripped of his gaudy hues and essences,
 And growing portly in his sober garments.

Is that a swan that rides upon the water ?
 Oh no, it is that other gentle bird,
 Which is the patron of our noble calling.
 I well remember, in my early years,
 When these young hands first closed upon a goose ;
 I have a scar upon my thimble finger,
 Which chronicles the hour of young ambition.
 My father was a tailor, and his father,
 And my sire's grandsire, all of them were tailors ;
 They had an ancient goose, — it was an heirloom
 From some remoter tailor of our race.
 It happened I did see it on a time
 When none was near, and I did deal with it,
 And it did burn me, — oh, most fearfully !

It is a joy to straighten out one's limbs,
 And leap elastic from the level counter,
 Leaving the petty grievances of earth,
 The breaking thread, the din of clashing shears,
 And all the needles that do wound the spirit,
 For such a pensive hour of soothing silence.
 Kind Nature, shuffling in her loose undress,
 Lays bare her shady bosom ; — I can feel
 With all around me ; — I can hail the flowers

That sprig earth's mantle, — and yon quiet bird,
That rides the stream, is to me as a brother.
The vulgar know not all the hidden pockets,
Where Nature stows away her loveliness.
But this unnatural posture of the legs
Cramps my extended calves, and I must go
Where I can coil them in their wonted fashion.

THE DORCHESTER GIANT

The "pudding-stone" is a remarkable conglomerate found very abundantly in the towns mentioned, all of which are in the neighborhood of Boston. We used in those primitive days to ask friends to ride with us when we meant to take them to drive with us.

THERE was a giant in time of old,
A mighty one was he ;
He had a wife, but she was a scold,
So he kept her shut in his mammoth fold ;
And he had children three.

It happened to be an election day,
And the giants were choosing a king ;
The people were not democrats then,
They did not talk of the rights of men,
And all that sort of thing.

Then the giant took his children three,
And fastened them in the pen ;
The children roared ; quoth the giant, " Be still !"
And Dorchester Heights and Milton Hill
Rolled back the sound again.

Then he brought them a pudding stuffed with plums,
As big as the State-House dome ;
Quoth he, " There 's something for you to eat ;
So stop your mouths with your 'lection treat,
And wait till your dad comes home."

So the giant pulled him a chestnut stout,
And whittled the boughs away ;
The boys and their mother set up a shout,
Said he, " You 're in, and you can't get out,
Bellow as loud as you may."

Off he went, and he growled a tune
As he strode the fields along ;
'T is said a buffalo fainted away,
And fell as cold as a lump of clay,
When he heard the giant's song.

But whether the story 's true or not,
It is n't for me to show ;
There 's many a thing that 's twice as queer
In somebody's lectures that we hear,
And those are true, you know.

What are those lone ones doing now,
The wife and the children sad ?
Oh, they are in a terrible rout,
Screaming, and throwing their pudding about,
Acting as they were mad.

They flung it over to Roxbury hills,
They flung it over the plain,

And all over Milton and Dorchester too
Great lumps of pudding the giants threw ;
They tumbled as thick as rain.

. . . . .
Giant and mammoth have passed away,
For ages have floated by ;
The suet is hard as a marrow-bone,
And every plum is turned to a stone,
But there the puddings lie.

And if, some pleasant afternoon,
You 'll ask me out to ride,
The whole of the story I will tell,
And you shall see where the puddings fell,
And pay for the punch beside.

TO THE PORTRAIT OF "A LADY"

IN THE ATHENÆUM GALLERY

WELL, Miss, I wonder where you live,
I wonder what 's your name,
I wonder how you came to be
In such a stylish frame ;
Perhaps you were a favorite child,
Perhaps an only one ;
Perhaps your friends were not aware
You had your portrait done !

Yet you must be a harmless soul ;
I cannot think that Sin
Would care to throw his loaded dice,
With such a stake to win ;

I cannot think you would provoke
 The poet's wicked pen,
 Or make young women bite their lips,
 Or ruin fine young men.

Pray, did you ever hear, my love,
 Of boys that go about,
 Who, for a very trifling sum,
 Will snip one's picture out?
 I'm not averse to red and white,
 But all things have their place,
 I think a profile cut in black
 Would suit your style of face!

I love sweet features ; I will own
 That I should like myself
 To see my portrait on a wall,
 Or bust upon a shelf ;
 But nature sometimes makes one up
 Of such sad odds and ends,
 It really might be quite as well
 Hushed up among one's friends !

THE COMET

THE Comet ! He is on his way,
 And singing as he flies ;
 The whizzing planets shrink before
 The spectre of the skies ;
 Ah ! well may regal orbs burn blue,
 And satellites turn pale,

Ten million cubic miles of head,
Ten billion leagues of tail!

On, on by whistling spheres of light
He flashes and he flames ;
He turns not to the left nor right,
He asks them not their names ;
One spurn from his demoniac heel, —
Away, away they fly,
Where darkness might be bottled up
And sold for “Tyrian dye.”

And what would happen to the land,
And how would look the sea,
If in the bearded devil's path
Our earth should chance to be?
Full hot and high the sea would boil,
Full red the forests gleam ;
Methought I saw and heard it all
In a dyspeptic dream!

I saw a tutor take his tube
The Comet's course to spy ;
I heard a scream, — the gathered rays
Had stewed the tutor's eye ;
I saw a fort, — the soldiers all
Were armed with goggles green ;
Pop cracked the guns! whiz flew the balls!
Bang went the magazine!

I saw a poet dip a scroll
Each moment in a tub,

I read upon the warping back,
    “ The Dream of Beelzebub ; ”
He could not see his verses burn,
    Although his brain was fried,
And ever and anon he bent
    To wet them as they dried.

I saw the scalding pitch roll down
    The crackling, sweating pines,
And streams of smoke, like water-spouts,
    Burst through the rumbling mines ;
I asked the firemen why they made
    Such noise about the town ;
They answered not, — but all the while
    The brakes went up and down.

I saw a roasting pullet sit
    Upon a baking egg ;
I saw a cripple scorch his hand
    Extinguishing his leg ;
I saw nine geese upon the wing
    Towards the frozen pole,
And every mother's gosling fell
    Crisped to a crackling coal.

I saw the ox that browsed the grass
    Writhe in the blistering rays,
The herbage in his shrinking jaws
    Was all a fiery blaze ;
I saw huge fishes, boiled to rags,
    Bob through the bubbling brine ;
And thoughts of supper crossed my soul ;
    I had been rash at mine.

Strange sights ! strange sounds ! Oh fearful dream !
Its memory haunts me still,
The steaming sea, the crimson glare,
That wreathed each wooded hill ;
Stranger ! if through thy reeling brain
Such midnight visions sweep,
Spare, spare, oh, spare thine evening meal,
And sweet shall be thy sleep !

THE MUSIC-GRINDERS

THERE are three ways in which men take
One's money from his purse,
And very hard it is to tell
Which of the three is worse ;
But all of them are bad enough
To make a body curse.

You're riding out some pleasant day,
And counting up your gains ;
A fellow jumps from out a bush,
And takes your horse's reins,
Another hints some words about
A bullet in your brains.

It's hard to meet such pressing friends
In such a lonely spot ;
It's very hard to lose your cash,
But harder to be shot ;
And so you take your wallet out,
Though you would rather not.

Perhaps you 're going out to dine, —
    Some odious creature begs
You 'll hear about the cannon-ball
    That carried off his pegs,
And says it is a dreadful thing
    For men to lose their legs.

He tells you of his starving wife,
    His children to be fed,
Poor little, lovely innocents,
    All clamorous for bread, —
And so you kindly help to put
    A bachelor to bed.

You 're sitting on your window-seat,
    Beneath a cloudless moon ;
You hear a sound, that seems to wear
    The semblance of a tune,
As if a broken fife should strive
    To drown a cracked bassoon.

And nearer, nearer still, the tide
    Of music seems to come,
There 's something like a human voice,
    And something like a drum ;
You sit in speechless agony,
    Until your ear is numb.

Poor "home, sweet home" should seem to be
    A very dismal place ;
Your "auld acquaintance" all at once
    Is altered in the face ;

Their discords sting through Burns and Moore,
Like hedgehogs dressed in lace.

You think they are crusaders, sent
From some infernal clime,
To pluck the eyes of Sentiment,
And dock the tail of Rhyme,
To crack the voice of Melody,
And break the legs of Time.

But hark ! the air again is still,
The music all is ground,
And silence, like a poultice, comes
To heal the blows of sound ;
It cannot be, — it is, — it is, —
A hat is going round !

No ! Pay the dentist when he leaves
A fracture in your jaw,
And pay the owner of the bear
That stunned you with his paw,
And buy the lobster that has had
Your knuckles in his claw ;

But if you are a portly man,
Put on your fiercest frown,
And talk about a constable
To turn them out of town ;
Then close your sentence with an oath,
And shut the window down !

And if you are a slender man,
Not big enough for that,

Or, if you cannot make a speech,
 Because you are a flat,
 Go very quietly and drop
 A button in the hat!

THE TREADMILL SONG

THE stars are rolling in the sky,
 The earth rolls on below,
 And we can feel the rattling wheel
 Revolving as we go.
 Then tread away, my gallant boys,
 And make the axle fly ;
 Why should not wheels go round about,
 Like planets in the sky ?

Wake up, wake up, my duck-legged man,
 And stir your solid pegs !
 Arouse, arouse, my gawky friend,
 And shake your spider legs ;
 What though you 're awkward at the trade,
 There 's time enough to learn, —
 So lean upon the rail, my lad,
 And take another turn.

They 've built us up a noble wall,
 To keep the vulgar out ;
 We 've nothing in the world to do
 But just to walk about ;
 So faster, now, you middle men,
 And try to beat the ends, —

It 's pleasant work to ramble round
Among one's honest friends.

Here, tread upon the long man's toes,
He sha'n't be lazy here, —
And punch the little fellow's ribs,
And tweak that lubber's ear, —
He 's lost them both, — don't pull his hair,
Because he wears a scratch,
But poke him in the further eye,
That is n't in the patch.

Hark ! fellows, there 's the supper-bell,
And so our work is done ;
It 's pretty sport, — suppose we take
A round or two for fun !
If ever they should turn me out,
When I have better grown,
Now hang me, but I mean to have
A treadmill of my own !

THE SEPTEMBER GALE

This tremendous hurricane occurred on the 23d of September, 1815. I remember it well, being then seven years old. A full account of it was published, I think, in the records of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Some of my recollections are given in The Seasons, an article to be found in a book of mine entitled Pages from an Old Volume of Life.

I 'm not a chicken ; I have seen
Full many a chill September,

And though I was a youngster then,
That gale I well remember ;
The day before, my kite-string snapped,
And I, my kite pursuing,
The wind whisked off my palm-leaf hat ;
For me two storms were brewing !

It came as quarrels sometimes do,
When married folks get clashing ;
There was a heavy sigh or two,
Before the fire was flashing, —
A little stir among the clouds,
Before they rent asunder, —
A little rocking of the trees,
And then came on the thunder.

Lord ! how the ponds and rivers boiled !
They seemed like bursting craters !
And oaks lay scattered on the ground
As if they were p'taters ;
And all above was in a howl,
And all below a clatter, —
The earth was like a frying-pan,
Or some such hissing matter.

It chanced to be our washing-day,
And all our things were drying ;
The storm came roaring through the lines,
And set them all a flying ;
I saw the shirts and petticoats
Go riding off like witches ;

I lost, ah ! bitterly I wept, —
I lost my Sunday breeches !

I saw them straddling through the air,
Alas ! too late to win them ;
I saw them chase the clouds, as if
The devil had been in them ;
They were my darlings and my pride,
My boyhood's only riches, —
“ Farewell, farewell,” I faintly cried, —
“ My breeches ! Oh my breeches ! ”

That night I saw them in my dreams,
How changed from what I knew them !
The dews had steeped their faded threads,
The winds had whistled through them !
I saw the wide and ghastly rents
Where demon claws had torn them ;
A hole was in their amplest part,
As if an imp had worn them.

I have had many happy years,
And tailors kind and clever,
But those young pantaloons have gone
Forever and forever !
And not till fate has cut the last
Of all my earthly stitches,
This aching heart shall cease to mourn
My loved, my long-lost breeches !

THE HEIGHT OF THE RIDICULOUS

I WROTE some lines once on a time
In wondrous merry mood,
And thought, as usual, men would say
They were exceeding good.

They were so queer, so very queer,
I laughed as I would die ;
Albeit, in the general way,
A sober man am I.

I called my servant, and he came ;
How kind it was of him
To mind a slender man like me,
He of the mighty limb.

“ These to the printer,” I exclaimed,
And, in my humorous way,
I added, (as a trifling jest,)
“ There ’ll be the devil to pay.”

He took the paper, and I watched,
And saw him peep within ;
At the first line he read, his face
Was all upon the grin.

He read the next ; the grin grew broad,
And shot from ear to ear ;
He read the third ; a chuckling noise
I now began to hear.

The fourth ; he broke into a roar ;
    The fifth ; his waistband split ;
The sixth ; he burst five buttons off,
    And tumbled in a fit.

Ten days and nights, with sleepless eye,
    I watched that wretched man,
And since, I never dare to write
    As funny as I can.

THE LAST READER

I SOMETIMES sit beneath a tree
    And read my own sweet songs ;
Though naught they may to others be,
    Each humble line prolongs
A tone that might have passed away
But for that scarce remembered lay.

I keep them like a lock or leaf
    That some dear girl has given ;
Frail record of an hour, as brief
    As sunset clouds in heaven,
But spreading purple twilight still
High over memory's shadowed hill.

They lie upon my pathway bleak,
    Those flowers that once ran wild,
As on a father's careworn cheek
    The ringlets of his child ;
The golden mingling with the gray,
And stealing half its snows away.

What care I though the dust is spread
    Around these yellow leaves,
Or o'er them his sarcastic thread
    Oblivion's insect weaves?
Though weeds are tangled on the stream,
It still reflects my morning's beam.

And therefore love I such as smile
    On these neglected songs,
Nor deem that flattery's needless wile
    My opening bosom wrongs ;
For who would trample, at my side,
A few pale buds, my garden's pride ?

It may be that my scanty ore
    Long years have washed away,
And where were golden sands before
    Is naught but common clay ;
Still something sparkles in the sun
For memory to look back upon.

And when my name no more is heard,
    My lyre no more is known,
Still let me, like a winter's bird,
    In silence and alone,
Fold over them the weary wing
Once flashing through the dews of spring.

Yes, let my fancy fondly wrap
    My youth in its decline,
And riot in the rosy lap
    Of thoughts that once were mine,

And give the worm my little store
When the last reader reads no more !

POETRY :

A METRICAL ESSAY, READ BEFORE THE PHI BETA KAPPA
SOCIETY, HARVARD UNIVERSITY, AUGUST, 1836

TO CHARLES WENTWORTH UPHAM, THE FOLLOWING METRICAL
ESSAY IS AFFECTIONATELY INSCRIBED.

This Academic Poem presents the simple and partial views of a young person trained after the schools of classical English verse as represented by Pope, Goldsmith, and Campbell, with whose lines his memory was early stocked. It will be observed that it deals chiefly with the constructive side of the poet's function. That which makes him a poet is not the power of writing melodious rhymes, it is not the possession of ordinary human sensibilities nor even of both these qualities in connection with each other. I should rather say, if I were now called upon to define it, it is the power of transfiguring the experiences and shows of life into an aspect which comes from his imagination and kindles that of others. Emotion is its stimulus and language furnishes its expression ; but these are not all, as some might infer was the doctrine of the poem before the reader.

A common mistake made by young persons who suppose themselves to have the poetical gift is that their own spiritual exaltation finds a true expression in the conventional phrases which are borrowed from the voices of the singers whose inspiration they think they share.

Looking at this poem as an expression of some aspects of the ars poetica, with some passages which I can read even at this mature period of life without blushing for them, it may stand as the most serious representation of my early efforts. Intended as it was for public delivery, many of its paragraphs may betray the fact by their somewhat rhetorical and sonorous character.

SCENES of my youth ! awake its slumbering fire !
Ye winds of Memory, sweep the silent lyre !

Ray of the past, if yet thou canst appear,
Break through the clouds of Fancy's waning year ;
Chase from her breast the thin autumnal snow,
If leaf or blossom still is fresh below !

Long have I wandered ; the returning tide
Brought back an exile to his cradle's side ;
And as my bark her time-worn flag unrolled,
To greet the land-breeze with its faded fold,
So, in remembrance of my boyhood's time,
I lift these ensigns of neglected rhyme ;
Oh, more than blest, that, all my wanderings through,
My anchor falls where first my pennons flew !

---

The morning light, which rains its quivering beams
Wide o'er the plains, the summits, and the streams,
In one broad blaze expands its golden glow
On all that answers to its glance below ;
Yet, changed on earth, each far reflected ray
Braids with fresh hues the shining brow of day ;
Now, clothed in blushes by the painted flowers,
Tracks on their cheeks the rosy-fingered hours ;
Now, lost in shades, whose dark entangled leaves
Drip at the noontide from their pendent eaves,
Fades into gloom, or gleams in light again
From every dew-drop on the jewelled plain.

We, like the leaf, the summit, or the wave,
Reflect the light our common nature gave,

But every sunbeam, falling from her throne,
Wears on our hearts some coloring of our own :
Chilled in the slave, and burning in the free,
Like the sealed cavern by the sparkling sea ;
Lost, like the lightning in the sullen clod,
Or shedding radiance, like the smiles of God ;
Pure, pale in Virtue, as the star above,
Or quivering roseate on the leaves of Love ;
Glaring like noontide, where it glows upon
Ambition's sands, — the desert in the sun, —
Or soft suffusing o'er the varied scene
Life's common coloring, — intellectual green.

Thus Heaven, repeating its material plan,
Arched over all the rainbow mind of man ;
But he who, blind to universal laws,
Sees but effects, unconscious of their cause,—
Believes each image in itself is bright,
Not robed in drapery of reflected light, —
Is like the rustic who, amidst his toil,
Has found some crystal in his meagre soil,
And, lost in rapture, thinks for him alone
Earth worked her wonders on the sparkling stone,
Nor dreams that Nature, with as nice a line,
Carved countless angles through the boundless mine.

Thus err the many, who, entranced to find
Unwonted lustre in some clearer mind,
Believe that Genius sets the laws at naught
Which chain the pinions of our wildest thought ;
Untaught to measure, with the eye of art,

The wandering fancy or the wayward heart ;
 Who match the little only with the less,
 And gaze in rapture at its slight excess,
 Proud of a pebble, as the brightest gem
 Whose light might crown an emperor's diadem.

And, most of all, the pure ethereal fire
 Which seems to radiate from the poet's lyre
 Is to the world a mystery and a charm,
 An Ægis wielded on a mortal's arm,
 While Reason turns her dazzled eye away,
 And bows her sceptre to her subject's sway ;
 And thus the poet, clothed with godlike state,
 Usurped his Maker's title — to create ;
 He, whose thoughts differing not in shape, but dress,
 What others feel more fitly can express,
 Sits like the maniac on his fancied throne,
 Peeps through the bars, and calls the world his own.

There breathes no being but has some pretence
 To that fine instinct called poetic sense :
 The rudest savage, roaming through the wild ;
 The simplest rustic, bending o'er his child ;
 The infant, listening to the warbling bird ;
 The mother, smiling at its half-formed word ;
 The boy uncaged, who tracks the fields at large ;
 The girl, turned matron to her babe-like charge ;
 The freeman, casting with unpurchased hand
 The vote that shakes the turret of the land ;
 The slave, who, slumbering on his rusted chain,
 Dreams of the palm-trees on his burning plain ;
 The hot-cheeked reveller, tossing down the wine,

To join the chorus pealing "Auld lang syne";
The gentle maid, whose azure eye grows dim,
While Heaven is listening to her evening hymn;
The jewelled beauty, when her steps draw near
The circling dance and dazzling chandelier;
E'en trembling age, when Spring's renewing air
Waves the thin ringlets of his silvered hair;—
All, all are glowing with the inward flame,
Whose wider halo wreathes the poet's name,
While, unenbalmed, the silent dreamer dies,
His memory passing with his smiles and sighs!

If glorious visions, born for all mankind,
The bright auroras of our twilight mind;
If fancies, varying as the shapes that lie
Stained on the windows of the sunset sky;
If hopes, that beckon with delusive gleams,
Till the eye dances in the void of dreams;
If passions, following with the winds that urge Earth's wildest wanderer to her farthest verge;—
If these on all some transient hours bestow
Of rapture tingling with its hectic glow,
Then all are poets; and if earth had rolled
Her myriad centuries, and her doom were told,
Each moaning billow of her shoreless wave
Would wail its requiem o'er a poet's grave!

If to embody in a breathing word
Tones that the spirit trembled when it heard;
To fix the image all unveiled and warm,
And carve in language its ethereal form,
So pure, so perfect, that the lines express

No meagre shrinking, no unlaced excess ;
 To feel that art, in living truth, has taught
 Ourselves, reflected in the sculptured thought ; —
 If this alone bestow the right to claim
 The deathless garland and the sacred name,
 Then none are poets save the saints on high,
 Whose harps can murmur all that words deny !

But though to none is granted to reveal
 In perfect semblance all that each may feel,
 As withered flowers recall forgotten love,
 So, warmed to life, our faded passions move
 In every line, where kindling fancy throws
 The gleam of pleasures or the shade of woes.

When, schooled by time, the stately queen of art
 Had smoothed the pathways leading to the heart,
 Assumed her measured tread, her solemn tone,
 And round her courts the clouds of fable thrown,
 The wreaths of heaven descended on her shrine,
 And wondering earth proclaimed the Muse divine.
 Yet if her votaries had but dared profane
 The mystic symbols of her sacred reign,
 How had they smiled beneath the veil to find
 What slender threads can chain the mighty mind !

Poets, like painters, their machinery claim,
 And verse bestows the varnish and the frame ;
 Our grating English, whose Teutonic jar
 Shakes the racked axle of Art's rattling car,
 Fits like mosaic in the lines that gird
 Fast in its place each many-angled word ;

From Saxon lips Anacreon's numbers glide,
As once they melted on the Teian tide,
And, fresh transfused, the Iliad thrills again
From Albion's cliffs as o'er Achaia's plain !
The proud heroic, with its pulse-like beat,
Rings like the cymbals clashing as they meet ;
The sweet Spenserian, gathering as it flows,
Sweeps gently onward to its dying close,
Where waves on waves in long succession pour,
Till the ninth billow melts along the shore ;
The lonely spirit of the mournful lay,
Which lives immortal as the verse of Gray,
In sable plumage slowly drifts along,
On eagle pinion, through the air of song ;
The glittering lyric bounds elastic by,
With flashing ringlets and exulting eye,
While every image, in her airy whirl,
Gleams like a diamond on a dancing girl !

Born with mankind, with man's expanded range
And varying fates the poet's numbers change ;
Thus in his history may we hope to find
Some clearer epochs of the poet's mind,
As from the cradle of its birth we trace,
Slow wandering forth, the patriarchal race.

I.

When the green earth, beneath the zephyr's wing,
Wears on her breast the varnished buds of Spring ;
When the loosed current, as its folds uncoil,

Slides in the channels of the mellowed soil ;
When the young hyacinth returns to seek
The air and sunshine with her emerald beak ;
When the light snowdrops, starting from their cells,
Hang each pagoda with its silver bells ;
When the frail willow twines her trailing bow
With pallid leaves that sweep the soil below ;
When the broad elm, sole empress of the plain,
Whose circling shadow speaks a century's reign,
Wreathes in the clouds her regal diadem, —
A forest waving on a single stem ; —
Then mark the poet ; though to him unknown
The quaint-mouthed titles, such as scholars own,
See how his eye in ecstasy pursues
The steps of Nature tracked in radiant hues ;
Nay, in thyself, whate'er may be thy fate,
Pallid with toil or surfeited with state,
Mark how thy fancies, with the vernal rose,
Awake, all sweetness, from their long repose ;
Then turn to ponder o'er the classic page,
Traced with the idyls of a greener age,
And learn the instinct which arose to warm
Art's earliest essay and her simplest form.

To themes like these her narrow path confined
The first-born impulse moving in the mind ;
In vales unshaken by the trumpet's sound,
Where peaceful Labor tills his fertile ground,
The silent changes of the rolling years,
Marked on the soil or dialled on the spheres,
The crested forests and the colored flowers,
The dewy grottos and the blushing bowers, —

These, and their guardians, who, with liquid names,
 Strepsons and Chloes, melt in mutual flames,
 Woo the young Muses from their mountain shade,
 To make Arcadias in the lonely glade.

Nor think they visit only with their smiles
 The fabled valleys and Elysian isles ;
 He who is wearied of his village plain
 May roam the Edens of the world in vain.
 'T is not the star-crowned cliff, the cataract's flow,
 The softer foliage or the greener glow,
 The lake of sapphire or the spar-hung cave,
 The brighter sunset or the broader wave,
 Can warm his heart whom every wind has blown
 To every shore, forgetful of his own.

Home of our childhood ! how affection clings
 And hovers round thee with her seraph wings !
 Dearer thy hills, though clad in autumn brown,
 Than fairest summits which the cedars crown !
 Sweeter the fragrance of thy summer breeze
 Than all Arabia breathes along the seas !
 The stranger's gale wafts home the exile's sigh,
 For the heart's temple is its own blue sky !

Oh happiest they, whose early love unchanged,
 Hopes undissolved, and friendship unestranged,
 Tired of their wanderings, still can deign to see
 Love, hopes, and friendship, centring all in thee !

And thou, my village ! as again I tread
 Amidst thy living and above thy dead ;

Though some fair playmates guard with chaster fears
Their cheeks, grown holy with the lapse of years ;
Though with the dust some reverend locks may blend,
Where life's last mile-stone marks the journey's end ;
On every bud the changing year recalls,
The brightening glance of morning memory falls,
Still following onward as the months unclose
The balmy lilac or the bridal rose ;
And still shall follow, till they sink once more
Beneath the snow-drifts of the frozen shore,
As when my bark, long tossing in the gale,
Furled in her port her tempest-rended sail !

What shall I give thee ? Can a simple lay,
Flung on thy bosom like a girl's bouquet,
Do more than deck thee for an idle hour,
Then fall unheeded, fading like the flower ?
Yet, when I trod, with footsteps wild and free,
The crackling leaves beneath yon linden-tree,
Panting from play or dripping from the stream,
How bright the visions of my boyish dream !
Or, modest Charles, along thy broken edge,
Black with soft ooze and fringed with arrowy
sedge,
As once I wandered in the morning sun,
With reeking sandal and superfluous gun,
How oft, as Fancy whispered in the gale,
Thou wast the Avon of her flattering tale !
Ye hills, whose foliage, fretted on the skies,

Prints shadowy arches on their evening dyes,
How should my song with holiest charm invest
Each dark ravine and forest-lifting crest!
How clothe in beauty each familiar scene,
Till all was classic on my native green!

As the drained fountain, filled with autumn
leaves,
The field swept naked of its garnered sheaves,
So wastes at noon the promise of our dawn,
The springs all choking, and the harvest gone.

Yet hear the lay of one whose natal star
Still seemed the brightest when it shone afar;
Whose cheek, grown pallid with ungracious toil,
Glows in the welcome of his parent soil;
And ask no garlands sought beyond the tide,
But take the leaflets gathered at your side.

II.

But times were changed; the torch of terror came,
To light the summits with the beacon's flame;
The streams ran crimson, the tall mountain pines
Rose a new forest o'er embattled lines;
The bloodless sickle lent the warrior's steel,
The harvest bowed beneath his chariot wheel;
Where late the wood-dove sheltered her repose
The raven waited for the conflict's close;
The cuirassed sentry walked his sleepless round

Where Daphne smiled or Amaryllis frowned ;
 Where timid minstrels sung their blushing charms,
 Some wild Tyrtæus called aloud, " To arms ! "

When Glory wakes, when fiery spirits leap,
 Roused by her accents from their tranquil sleep,
 The ray that flashes from the soldier's crest
 Lights, as it glances, in the poet's breast ; —
 Not in pale dreamers, whose fantastic lay
 Toys with smooth trifles like a child at play,
 But men, who act the passions they inspire,
 Who wave the sabre as they sweep the lyre !

Ye mild enthusiasts, whose pacific frowns
 Are lost like dew-drops caught in burning towns,
 Pluck as ye will the radiant plumes of fame,
 Break Cæsar's bust to make yourselves a name ;
 But if your country bares the avenger's blade
 For wrongs unpunished or for debts unpaid,
 When the roused nation bids her armies form,
 And screams her eagle through the gathering storm,

When from your ports the bannered frigate rides,
 Her black bows scowling to the crested tides,
 Your hour has past ; in vain your feeble cry
 As the babe's wailings to the thundering sky !

Scourge of mankind ! with all the dread array
 That wraps in wrath thy desolating way,
 As the wild tempest wakes the slumbering sea,
 Thou only teachest all that man can be.
 Alike thy tocsin has the power to charm

The toil-knit sinews of the rustic's arm,
 Or swell the pulses in the poet's veins,
 And hid the nations tremble at his strains.

The city slept beneath the moonbeam's glance,
 Her white walls gleaming through the vines of France,
 And all was hushed, save where the footsteps fell,
 On some high tower, of midnight sentinel.
 But one still watched ; no self-encircled woes
 Chased from his lids the angel of repose ;
 He watched, he wept, for thoughts of bitter years
 Bowed his dark lashes, wet with burning tears :
 His country's sufferings and her children's shame
 Streamed o'er his memory like a forest's flame ;
 Each treasured insult, each remembered wrong,
 Rolled through his heart and kindled into song.
 His taper faded ; and the morning gales
 Swept through the world the war-song of Marseilles !

Now, while around the smiles of Peace expand,
 And Plenty's wreaths festoon the laughing land ;
 While France ships outward her reluctant ore,
 And half our navy basks upon the shore ;
 From ruder themes our meek-eyed Muses turn
 To crown with roses their enamelled urn.

If e'er again return those awful days
 Whose clouds were crimsoned with the beacon's blaze,
 Whose grass was trampled by the soldier's heel,

Whose tides were reddened round the rushing keel,

God grant some lyre may wake a nobler strain
To rend the silence of our tented plain !

When Gallia's flag its triple fold displays,
Her marshalled legions peal the Marseillaise ;

When round the German close the war-clouds
dim,

Far through their shadows floats his battle-hymn ;
When, crowned with joy, the camps of England ring,

A thousand voices shout, " God save the King ! "

When victory follows with our eagle's glance,
Our nation's anthem pipes a country dance !

Some prouder Muse, when comes the hour at last,

May shake our hillsides with her bugle-blast ;

Not ours the task ; but since the lyric dress

Relieves the statelier with its sprightliness,

Hear an old song, which some, perchance, have seen

In stale gazette or cobwebbed magazine.

There was an hour when patriots dared profane

The mast that Britain strove to bow in vain ;

And one, who listened to the tale of shame,

Whose heart still answered to that sacred name,

Whose eye still followed o'er his country's tides

Thy glorious flag, our brave Old Ironsides !

From yon lone attic, on a smiling morn,

Thus mocked the spoilers with his school-boy scorn.

III.

When florid Peace resumed her golden reign,
And arts revived, and valleys bloomed again,
While War still panted on his broken blade,
Once more the Muse her heavenly wing essayed.
Rude was the song: some ballad, stern and wild,
Lulled the light slumbers of the soldier's child;
Or young romancer, with his threatening glance
And fearful fables of his bloodless lance,
Scared the soft fancy of the clinging girls,
Whose snowy fingers smoothed his raven curls.
But when long years the stately form had bent,
And faithless Memory her illusions lent,
So vast the outlines of Tradition grew
That History wondered at the shapes she drew,
And veiled at length their too ambitious hues
Beneath the pinions of the Epic Muse.

Far swept her wing; for stormier days had brought
With darker passions deeper tides of thought.
The camp's harsh tumult and the conflict's glow,
The thrill of triumph and the gasp of woe,
The tender parting and the glad return,
The festal banquet and the funeral urn,
And all the drama which at once uprears
Its spectral shadows through the clash of spears,
From camp and field to echoing verse transferred,
Swelled the proud song that listening nations
heard.

Why floats the amaranth in eternal bloom
 O'er Ilium's turrets and Achilles' tomb ?
 Why lingers fancy where the sunbeams smile
 On Circe's gardens and Calypso's isle ?
 Why follows memory to the gate of Troy
 Her plumed defender and his trembling boy ?
 Lo ! the blind dreamer, kneeling on the sand
 To trace these records with his doubtful hand ;
 In fabled tones his own emotion flows,
 And other lips repeat his silent woes ;
 In Hector's infant see the babes that shun
 Those deathlike eyes, unconscious of the sun,
 Or in his hero hear himself implore,
 " Give me to see, and Ajax asks no more ! "

Thus live undying through the lapse of time
 The solemn legends of the warrior's clime ;
 Like Egypt's pyramid or Pæstum's fane,
 They stand the heralds of the voiceless plain.
 Yet not like them, for Time, by slow degrees,
 Saps the gray stone and wears the embroidered frieze,
 And Isis sleeps beneath her subject Nile,
 And crumbled Neptune strews his Dorian pile ;
 But Art's fair fabric, strengthening as it rears
 Its laurelled columns through the mist of years,
 As the blue arches of the bending skies
 Still gird the torrent, following as it flies,
 Spreads, with the surges bearing on mankind,
 Its starred pavilion o'er the tides of mind !

In vain the patriot asks some lofty lay
 To dress in state our wars of yesterday.

The classic days, those mothers of romance,
That roused a nation for a woman's glance ;
The age of mystery, with its hoarded power,
That girt the tyrant in his storied tower,
Have passed and faded like a dream of youth,
And riper eras ask for history's truth.

On other shores, above their mouldering towns,
In sullen pomp the tall cathedral frowns,
Pride in its aisles and paupers at the door,
Which feeds the beggars whom it fleeced of yore.
Simple and frail, our lowly temples throw
Their slender shadows on the paths below ;
Scarce steal the winds, that sweep his woodland tracks,
The larch's perfume from the settler's axe,
Ere, like a vision of the morning air,
His slight-framed steeple marks the house of prayer ;
Its planks all reeking and its paint undried,
Its rafters sprouting on the shady side,
It sheds the raindrops from its shingled eaves
Ere its green brothers once have changed their leaves.

Yet Faith's pure hymn, beneath its shelter rude,
Breathes out as sweetly to the tangled wood
As where the rays through pictured glories pour
On marble shaft and tessellated floor ; —
Heaven asks no surplice round the heart that feels,
And all is holy where devotion kneels.

Thus on the soil the patriot's knee should bend
 Which holds the dust once living to defend ;
 Where'er the hireling shrinks before the free,
 Each pass becomes " a new Thermopylæ " !
 Where'er the battles of the brave are won,
 There every mountain " looks on Marathon " !

Our fathers live ; they guard in glory still
 The grass-grown bastions of the fortified hill ;
 Still ring the echoes of the trampled gorge,
 With God and Freedom ! England and Saint George !

The royal cipher on the captured gun
 Mocks the sharp night-dews and the blistering
 sun ;

The red-cross banner shades its captor's bust,
 Its folds still loaded with the conflict's dust ;
 The drum, suspended by its tattered marge,
 Once rolled and rattled to the Hessian's charge ;
 The stars have floated from Britannia's mast,
 The redcoat's trumpets blown the rebel's blast.

Point to the summits where the brave have bled,
 Where every village claims its glorious dead ;
 Say, when their bosoms met the bayonet's shock,
 Their only corselet was the rustic frock ;
 Say, when they mustered to the gathering horn,
 The titled chieftain curled his lip in scorn,
 Yet, when their leader bade his lines advance,
 No musket wavered in the lion's glance ;
 Say, when they fainted in the forced retreat,

They tracked the snow-drifts with their bleeding feet,
Yet still their banners, tossing in the blast,
Bore Ever Ready, faithful to the last,
Through storm and battle, till they waved again
On Yorktown's hills and Saratoga's plain !

Then, if so fierce the insatiate patriot's flame,
Truth looks too pale and history seems too tame,
Bid him await some new Columbiad's page,
To gild the tablets of an iron age,
And save his tears, which yet may fall upon
Some fabled field, some fancied Washington !

IV.

But once again, from their Æolian cave,
The winds of Genius wandered on the wave.
Tired of the scenes the timid pencil drew,
Sick of the notes the sounding clarion blew,
Sated with heroes who had worn so long
The shadowy plumage of historic song,
The new-born poet left the beaten course,
To track the passions to their living source.

Then rose the Drama ; — and the world admired
Her varied page with deeper thought inspired :
Bound to no clime, for Passion's throb is one
In Greenland's twilight or in India's sun ;
Born for no age, for all the thoughts that roll
In the dark vortex of the stormy soul,

Unchained in song, no freezing years can tame ;
 God gave them birth, and man is still the same.

So full on life her magic mirror shone,
 Her sister Arts paid tribute to her throne ;
 One reared her temple, one her canvas warmed,
 And Music thrilled, while Eloquence informed.
 The weary rustic left his stunted task
 For smiles and tears, the dagger and the mask ;
 The sage, turned scholar, half forgot his lore,
 To be the woman he despised before.
 O'er sense and thought she threw her golden chain,
 And Time, the anarch, spares her deathless reign.

Thus lives Medea, in our tamer age,
 As when her buskin pressed the Grecian stage ;
 Not in the cells where frigid learning delves
 In Aldine folios mouldering on their shelves,
 But breathing, burning in the glittering throng,
 Whose thousand bravoës roll untired along,
 Circling and spreading through the gilded halls,
 From London's galleries to San Carlo's walls !

Thus shall he live whose more than mortal name
 Mocks with its ray the pallid torch of Fame ;
 So proudly lifted that it seems afar
 No earthly Pharos, but a heavenly star,
 Who, unconfined to Art's diurnal bound,
 Girds her whole zodiac in his flaming round,
 And leads the passions, like the orb that guides,
 From pole to pole, the palpitating tides !

V.

Though round the Muse the robe of song is thrown,
Think not the poet lives in verse alone.
Long ere the chisel of the sculptor taught
The lifeless stone to mock the living thought ;
Long ere the painter bade the canvas glow
With every line the forms of beauty know ;
Long ere the iris of the Muses threw
On every leaf its own celestial hue,
In fable's dress the breath of genius poured,
And warmed the shapes that later times adored.

Untaught by Science how to forge the keys
That loose the gates of Nature's mysteries ;
Unschool'd by Faith, who, with her angel tread,
Leads through the labyrinth with a single thread,
His fancy, hovering round her guarded tower,
Rained through its bars like Danae's golden shower.

He spoke ; the sea-nymph answered from her cave :
He called ; the naiad left her mountain wave :
He dreamed of beauty ; lo, amidst his dream,
Narcissus, mirrored in the breathless stream ;
And night's chaste empress, in her bridal play,
Laughed through the foliage where Endymion lay ;
And ocean dimpled, as the languid swell
Kissed the red lip of Cytherea's shell :

Of power, — Bellona swept the crimson field,
And blue-eyed Pallas shook her Gorgon shield ;
O'er the hushed waves their mightier monarch drove,
And Ida trembled to the tread of Jove !

So every grace that plastic language knows
To nameless poets its perfection owes.
The rough-hewn words to simplest thoughts confined
Were cut and polished in their nicer mind ;
Caught on their edge, imagination's ray
Splits into rainbows, shooting far away ; —
From sense to soul, from soul to sense, it flies,
And through all nature links analogies ;
He who reads right will rarely look upon
A better poet than his lexicon !

There is a race which cold, ungenial skies
Breed from decay, as fungous growths arise ;
Though dying fast, yet springing fast again,
Which still usurps an unsubstantial reign,
With frames too languid for the charms of sense,
And minds worn down with action too intense ;
Tired of a world whose joys they never knew,
Themselves deceived, yet thinking all untrue ;
Scarce men without, and less than girls within,
Sick of their life before its cares begin ; —
The dull disease, which drains their feeble hearts,
To life's decay some hectic thrills imparts,
And lends a force which, like the maniac's power,
Pays with blank years the frenzy of an hour.

And this is Genius! Say, does Heaven degrade
 The manly frame, for health, for action made?
 Break down the sinews, rack the brow with pains,
 Blanch the right cheek and drain the purple veins,
 To clothe the mind with more extended sway,
 Thus faintly struggling in degenerate clay?

No! gentle maid, too ready to admire,
 Though false its notes, the pale enthusiast's lyre;
 If this be genius, though its bitter springs
 Glowed like the morn beneath Aurora's wings,
 Seek not the source whose sullen bosom feeds
 But fruitless flowers and dark, envenomed weeds.

But, if so bright the dear illusion seems,
 Thou wouldst be partner of thy poet's dreams,
 And hang in rapture on his bloodless charms,
 Or die, like Raphael, in his angel arms,
 Go and enjoy thy blessed lot, — to share
 In Cowper's gloom or Chatterton's despair!

Not such were they whom, wandering o'er the waves,
 I looked to meet, but only found their graves;
 If friendship's smile, the better part of fame,
 Should lend my song the only wreath I claim,
 Whose voice would greet me with a sweeter tone,
 Whose living hand more kindly press my own,
 Than theirs, — could Memory, as her silent tread
 Prints the pale flowers that blossom o'er the dead,
 Those breathless lips, now closed in peace, restore,
 Or wake those pulses hushed to beat no more?

Thou calm, chaste scholar ! I can see thee now,
The first young laurels on thy pallid brow,
O'er thy slight figure floating lightly down
In graceful folds the academic gown,
On thy curled lip the classic lines that taught How nice the mind that sculptured them with thought,
And triumph glistening in the clear blue eye,
Too bright to live, — but oh, too fair to die !

And thou, dear friend, whom Science still deplores,
And Love still mourns, on ocean-severed shores,
Though the bleak forest twice has bowed with snow
Since thou wast laid its budding leaves below,
Thine image mingles with my closing strain,
As when we wandered by the turbid Seine,
Both blessed with hopes, which revelled, bright and free,
On all we longed or all we dreamed to be ;
To thee the amaranth and the cypress fell, —
And I was spared to breathe this last farewell !

But lived there one in unremembered days,
Or lives there still, who spurns the poet's bays,
Whose fingers, dewy from Castalia's springs,
Rest on the lyre, yet scorn to touch the strings ?
Who shakes the senate with the silver tone
The groves of Pindus might have sighed to own ?
Have such e'er been ? Remember Canning's name !
Do such still live ? Let " Alaric's Dirge " proclaim !

Immortal Art ! where'er the rounded sky
Bends o'er the cradle where thy children lie,
Their home is earth, their herald every tongue
Whose accents echo to the voice that sung.
One leap of Ocean scatters on the sand
The quarried bulwarks of the loosening land ;
One thrill of earth dissolves a century's toil
Strewed like the leaves that vanish in the soil ;
One hill o'erflows, and cities sink below,
Their marbles splintering in the lava's glow ;
But one sweet tone, scarce whispered to the air,
From shore to shore the blasts of ages bear ;
One humble name, which oft, perchance, has borne
The tyrant's mockery and the courtier's scorn,
Towers o'er the dust of earth's forgotten graves,
As once, emerging through the waste of waves,
The rocky Titan, round whose shattered spear
Coiled the last whirlpool of the drowning sphere !

THE PILGRIM'S VISION

IN the hour of twilight shadows
The Pilgrim sire looked out ;
He thought of the " bloody Salvages "
That lurked all round about,
Of Wituwamet's pictured knife
And Pecksuot's whooping shout ;
For the baby's limbs were feeble,
Though his father's arms were stout.

His home was a freezing cabin,
Too bare for the hungry rat ;
Its roof was thatched with ragged grass,
And bald enough of that ;
The hole that served for casement
Was glazed with an ancient hat,
And the ice was gently thawing
From the log whereon he sat.

Along the dreary landscape
His eyes went to and fro,

The trees all clad in icicles,
The streams that did not flow ;
A sudden thought flashed o'er him, —
A dream of long ago, —
He smote his leathern jerkin,
And murmured, " Even so ! "

" Come hither, God-be-Glorified,
And sit upon my knee ;
Behold the dream unfolding,
Whereof I spake to thee
By the winter's hearth in Leyden
And on the stormy sea.
True is the dream's beginning, —
So may its ending be !

" I saw in the naked forest
Our scattered remnant cast,
A screen of shivering branches
Between them and the blast ;
The snow was falling round them,
The dying fell as fast ;
I looked to see them perish,
When lo, the vision passed.

" Again mine eyes were opened ;—
The feeble had waxed strong,
The babes had grown to sturdy men,
The remnant was a throng ;
By shadowed lake and winding stream,
And all the shores along,
The howling demons quaked to hear
The Christian's godly song.

- “ They slept, the village fathers,
By river, lake, and shore,
When far adown the steep of Time
The vision rose once more :
I saw along the winter snow
A spectral column pour,
And high above their broken ranks
A tattered flag they bore.
- “ Their Leader rode before them,
Of bearing calm and high,
The light of Heaven’s own kindling
Throned in his awful eye ;
These were a Nation’s champions
Her dread appeal to try.
God for the right ! I faltered,
And lo, the train passed by.
- “ Once more ; — the strife is ended,
The solemn issue tried,
The Lord of Hosts, his mighty arm
Has helped our Israel’s side ;
Gray stone and grassy hillock
Tell where our martyrs died,
But peaceful smiles the harvest,
And stainless flows the tide.
- “ A crash, as when some swollen cloud
Cracks o’er the tangled trees !
With side to side, and spar to spar,
Whose smoking decks are these ?
I know Saint George’s blood-red cross,
Thou Mistress of the Seas,

But what is she whose streaming bars
Roll out before the breeze ?

“ Ah, well her iron ribs are knit,
Whose thunders strive to quell
The bellowing throats, the blazing lips,
That pealed the Armada's knell !
The mist was cleared, — a wreath of stars
Rose o'er the crimsoned swell,
And, wavering from its haughty peak,
The cross of England fell !

“ O trembling Faith ! though dark the morn,
A heavenly torch is thine ;
While feebler races melt away,
And paler orbs decline,
Still shall the fiery pillar's ray
Along thy pathway shine,
To light the chosen tribe that sought
This Western Palestine !

“ I see the living tide roll on ;
It crowns with flaming towers
The icy capes of Labrador,
The Spaniard's 'land of flowers' !
It streams beyond the splintered ridge
That parts the northern showers ;
From eastern rock to sunset wave
The Continent is ours !”

He ceased, the grim old soldier-saint,
Then softly bent to cheer

The Pilgrim-child, whose wasting face
Was meekly turned to hear ;
And drew his toil-worn sleeve across
To brush the manly tear
From cheeks that never changed in woe,
And never blanched in fear.

The weary Pilgrim slumbers,
His resting-place unknown ;
His hands were crossed, his lips were closed,
The dust was o'er him strown ;
The drifting soil, the mouldering leaf,
Along the sod were blown ;
His mound has melted into earth,
His memory lives alone.

So let it live unfading,
The memory of the dead,
Long as the pale anemone
Springs where their tears were shed,
Or, raining in the summer's wind
In flakes of burning red,
The wild rose sprinkles with its leaves
The turf where once they bled!

Yea, when the frowning bulwarks
That guard this holy strand
Have sunk beneath the trampling surge
In beds of sparkling sand,
While in the waste of ocean
One hoary rock shall stand,
Be this its latest legend, —
HERE WAS THE PILGRIM'S LAND !

THE STEAMBOAT

SEE how yon flaming herald treads
The ridged and rolling waves,
As, crashing o'er their crested heads,
She bows her surly slaves !
With foam before and fire behind,
She rends the clinging sea,
That flies before the roaring wind,
Beneath her hissing lee.

The morning spray, like sea-born flowers,
With heaped and glistening bells,
Falls round her fast, in ringing showers,
With every wave that swells ;
And, burning o'er the midnight deep,
In lurid fringes thrown,
The living gems of ocean sweep
Along her flashing zone.

With clashing wheel and lifting keel,
And smoking torch on high,
When winds are loud and billows reel,
She thunders foaming by ;
When seas are silent and serene,
With even beam she glides,
The sunshine glimmering through the green
That skirts her gleaming sides.

Now, like a wild nymph, far apart
She veils her shadowy form,

The beating of her restless heart
Still sounding through the storm ;
Now answers, like a courtly dame,
The reddening surges o'er,
With flying scarf of spangled flame,
The Pharos of the shore.

To-night yon pilot shall not sleep,
Who trims his narrowed sail ;
To-night yon frigate scarce shall keep
Her broad breast to the gale ;
And many a foresail, scooped and strained,
Shall break from yard and stay,
Before this smoky wreath has stained
The rising mist of day.

Hark ! hark ! I hear yon whistling shroud,
I see yon quivering mast ;
The black throat of the hunted cloud
Is panting forth the blast !
An hour, and, whirled like winnowing chaff,
The giant surge shall fling
His tresses o'er yon pennon staff,
White as the sea-bird's wing !

Yet rest, ye wanderers of the deep ;
Nor wind nor wave shall tire
Those fleshless arms, whose pulses leap
With floods of living fire ;
Sleep on, and, when the morning light
Streams o'er the shining bay,
Oh think of those for whom the night
Shall never wake in day !

LEXINGTON

SLOWLY the mist o'er the meadow was creeping,
Bright on the dewy buds glistened the sun,
When from his couch, while his children were sleeping,
    Rose the bold rebel and shouldered his gun.
    Waving her golden veil
    Over the silent dale,
Blithe looked the morning on cottage and spire ;
    Hushed was his parting sigh,
    While from his noble eye
Flashed the last sparkle of liberty's fire.

On the smooth green where the fresh leaf is springing
    Calmly the first-born of glory have met ;
Hark ! the death-volley around them is ringing !
    Look ! with their life-blood the young grass is wet !
    Faint is the feeble breath,
    Murmuring low in death,
“ Tell to our sons how their fathers have died ; ”
    Nerveless the iron hand,
    Raised for its native land,
Lies by the weapon that gleams at its side.

Over the hillsides the wild knell is tolling,
    From their far hamlets the yeomanry come ;
As through the storm-clouds the thunder-burst rolling,

Circles the beat of the mustering drum.
Fast on the soldier's path
Darken the waves of wrath, —
Long have they gathered and loud shall they fall ;
Red glares the musket's flash,
Sharp rings the rifle's crash,
Blazing and clanging from thicket and wall.

Gayly the plume of the horseman was dancing,
Never to shadow his cold brow again ;
Proudly at morning the war-steed was prancing,
Reeking and panting he droops on the rein ;
Pale is the lip of scorn,
Voiceless the trumpet horn,
Torn is the silken-fringed red cross on high ;
Many a belted breast
Low on the turf shall rest
Ere the dark hunters the herd have passed by.

Snow-girdled crags where the hoarse wind is raving,
Rocks where the weary floods murmur and wail,
Wilds where the fern by the furrow is waving,
Reeled with the echoes that rode on the gale ;
Far as the tempest thrills
Over the darkened hills,
Far as the sunshine streams over the plain,
Roused by the tyrant band,
Woke all the mighty land,
Girded for battle, from mountain to main.

Green be the graves where her martyrs are lying !
Shroudless and tombless they sunk to their rest,

While o'er their ashes the starry fold flying
 Wraps the proud eagle they roused from his nest.
     Borne on her Northern pine,
     Long o'er the foaming brine
 Spread her broad banner to storm and to sun ;
     Heaven keep her ever free,
     Wide as o'er land and sea
 Floats the fair emblem her heroes have won !

ON LENDING A PUNCH-BOWL

This "punch-bowl" was, according to old family tradition, a caudle-cup. It is a massive piece of silver, its cherubs and other ornaments of coarse repoussé work, and has two handles like a loving-cup, by which it was held, or passed from guest to guest.

THIS ancient silver bowl of mine, it tells of good old times,
 Of joyous days and jolly nights, and merry Christmas times ;
 They were a free and jovial race, but honest, brave,
     and true,
 Who dipped their ladle in the punch when this old bowl was new.

A Spanish galleon brought the bar,— so runs the ancient tale ;
 'T was hammered by an Antwerp smith, whose arm
     was like a flail ;
 And now and then between the strokes, for fear
     his strength should fail,
 He wiped his brow and quaffed a cup of good old Flemish ale.

'T was purchased by an English squire to please his loving dame,
Who saw the cherubs, and conceived a longing for the same ;
And oft as on the ancient stock another twig was found,
'T was filled with caudle spiced and hot, and handed smoking round.

But, changing hands, it reached at length a Puritan divine,
Who used to follow Timothy, and take a little wine,
But hated punch and prelacy ; and so it was, perhaps,
He went to Leyden, where he found conventicles and schnapps.

And then, of course, you know what's next : it left the Dutchman's shore
With those that in the Mayflower came, — a hundred souls and more, —
Along with all the furniture, to fill their new abodes, —
To judge by what is still on hand, at least a hundred loads.

'T was on a dreary winter's eve, the night was closing dim,
When brave Miles Standish took the bowl, and filled it to the brim ;

The little Captain stood and stirred the posset with his sword,
And all his sturdy men-at-arms were ranged about
the board.

He poured the fiery Hollands in, — the man that never feared, —
He took a long and solemn draught, and wiped his yellow beard ;
And one by one the musketeers — the men that fought and prayed —
All drank as 't were their mother's milk, and not a man afraid.

That night, affrighted from his nest, the screaming eagle flew,
He heard the Pequot's ringing whoop, the soldier's wild halloo ;
And there the sachem learned the rule he taught to kith and kin,
“ Run from the white man when you find he smells of Hollands gin ! ”

A hundred years, and fifty more, had spread their leaves and snows,
A thousand rubs had flattened down each little cherub's nose,
When once again the bowl was filled, but not in mirth or joy, —
'T was mingled by a mother's hand to cheer her parting boy.

Drink, John, she said, 't will do you good, — poor child, you 'll never bear
This working in the dismal trench, out in the midnight air ;
And if — God bless me ! — you were hurt, 't would keep away the chill.
So John did drink, — and well he wrought that night at Bunker's Hill !

I tell you, there was generous warmth in good old English cheer ;
I tell you, 't was a pleasant thought to bring its symbol here.
'T is but the fool that loves excess ; hast thou a drunken soul ?
Thy bane is in thy shallow skull, not in my silver bowl !

I love the memory of the past, — its pressed yet fragrant flowers, —
The moss that clothes its broken walls, the ivy
on its towers ;
Nay, this poor bauble it bequeathed, — my eyes
grow moist and dim,
To think of all the vanished joys that danced around its brim.

Then fill a fair and honest cup, and bear it straight to me ;
The goblet hallows all it holds, whate'er the liquid
be ;

And may the cherubs on its face protect me from the sin
 That dooms one to those dreadful words, — “ My dear, where have you been ? ”

A SONG

FOR THE CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF HARVARD
 COLLEGE, 1836

This song, which I had the temerity to sing myself (felix audacia, Mr. Franklin Dexter had the goodness to call it), was sent in a little too late to be printed with the official account of the celebration. It was written at the suggestion of Dr. Jacob Bigelow, who thought the popular tune “ The Poacher’s Song ” would be a good model for a lively ballad or ditty. He himself wrote the admirable Latin song to be found in the record of the meeting.

WHEN the Puritans came over
 Our hills and swamps to clear,
 The woods were full of catamounts,
 And Indians red as deer,
 With tomahawks and scalping-knives,
 That make folks’ heads look queer ;
 Oh the ship from England used to bring
 A hundred wigs a year !

The crows came cawing through the air
 To pluck the Pilgrims’ corn,
 The bears came snuffing round the door
 Whene’er a babe was born,
 The rattlesnakes were bigger round
 Than the but of the old ram’s horn

The deacon blew at meeting time
On every "Sabbath" morn.

But soon they knocked the wigwams down,
And pine-tree trunk and limb
Began to sprout among the leaves
In shape of steeples slim ;
And out the little wharves were stretched
Along the ocean's rim,
And up the little school-house shot
To keep the boys in trim.

And when at length the College rose,
The sachem cocked his eye
At every tutor's meagre ribs
Whose coat-tails whistled by :
But when the Greek and Hebrew words
Came tumbling from his jaws,
The copper-colored children all
Ran screaming to the squaws.

And who was on the Catalogue
When college was begun ?
Two nephews of the President,
And the Professor's son ;
(They turned a little Indian by,
As brown as any bun ;)
Lord ! how the seniors knocked about
The freshman class of one !

They had not then the dainty things
That commons now afford,

But succotash and hominy
Were smoking on the board ;
They did not rattle round in gigs,
Or dash in long-tailed blues,
But always on Commencement days
The tutors blacked their shoes.

God bless the ancient Puritans !
Their lot was hard enough ;
But honest hearts make iron arms,
And tender maids are tough ;
So love and faith have formed and fed
Our true-born Yankee stuff,
And keep the kernel in the shell
The British found so rough !

THE ISLAND HUNTING-SONG

The island referred to is a domain of princely proportions, which has long been the seat of a generous hospitality. Naushon is its old Indian name. William Swain, Esq., commonly known as "the Governor," was the proprietor of it at the time when this song was written. Mr. John M. Forbes is his worthy successor in territorial rights and as a hospitable entertainer. The Island Book has been the recipient of many poems from visitors and friends of the owners of the old mansion.

No more the summer floweret charms,
The leaves will soon be sere,
And Autumn folds his jewelled arms
Around the dying year ;
So, ere the waning seasons claim
Our leafless groves awhile,

With golden wine and glowing flame
We 'll crown our lonely isle.

Once more the merry voices sound
Within the antlered hall,
And long and loud the baying hounds
Return the hunter's call ;
And through the woods, and o'er the hill,
And far along the bay,
The driver's horn is sounding shrill, —
Up, sportsmen, and away !

No bars of steel or walls of stone
Our little empire bound,
But, circling with his azure zone,
The sea runs foaming round ;
The whitening wave, the purpled skies,
The blue and lifted shore,
Braid with their dim and blending dyes
Our wide horizon o'er.

And who will leave the grave debate
That shakes the smoky town,
To rule amid our island-state,
And wear our oak-leaf crown ?
And who will be awhile content
To hunt our woodland game,
And leave the vulgar pack that scent
The reeking track of fame ?

Ah, who that shares in toils like these
Will sigh not to prolong

Our days beneath the broad-leaved trees,
Our nights of mirth and song?
Then leave the dust of noisy streets,
Ye outlaws of the wood,
And follow through his green retreats
Your noble Robin Hood.

DEPARTED DAYS

Yes, dear departed, cherished days,
Could Memory's hand restore
Your morning light, your evening rays,
From Time's gray urn once more,
Then might this restless heart be still,
This straining eye might close,
And Hope her fainting pinions fold,
While the fair phantoms rose.

But, like a child in ocean's arms,
We strive against the stream,
Each moment farther from the shore
Where life's young fountains gleam ;
Each moment fainter wave the fields,
And wider rolls the sea ;
The mist grows dark, — the sun goes down, —
Day breaks, — and where are we ?

THE ONLY DAUGHTER

ILLUSTRATION OF A PICTURE

THEY bid me strike the idle strings,
As if my summer days
Had shaken sunbeams from their wings
To warm my autumn lays ;
They bring to me their painted urn,
As if it were not time
To lift my gauntlet and to spurn
The lists of boyish rhyme ;
And were it not that I have still
Some weakness in my heart
That clings around my stronger will
And pleads for gentler art,
Perchance I had not turned away
The thoughts grown tame with toil,
To cheat this lone and pallid ray,
That wastes the midnight oil.

Alas ! with every year I feel
Some roses leave my brow ;
Too young for wisdom's tardy seal,
Too old for garlands now.
Yet, while the dewy breath of spring
Steals o'er the tingling air,
And spreads and fans each emerald wing
The forest soon shall wear,
How bright the opening year would seem,
Had I one look like thine

To meet me when the morning beam
Unseals these lids of mine!
Too long I bear this lonely lot,
That bids my heart run wild
To press the lips that love me not,
To clasp the stranger's child.

How oft beyond the dashing seas,
Amidst those royal bowers,
Where danced the lilacs in the breeze,
And swung the chestnut-flowers,
I wandered like a wearied slave
Whose morning task is done,
To watch the little hands that gave
Their whiteness to the sun ;
To revel in the bright young eyes,
Whose lustre sparkled through
The sable fringe of Southern skies
Or gleamed in Saxon blue !
How oft I heard another's name
Called in some truant's tone ;
Sweet accents ! which I longed to claim,
To learn and lisp my own !

Too soon the gentle hands, that pressed
The ringlets of the child,
Are folded on the faithful breast
Where first he breathed and smiled ;
Too oft the clinging arms untwine,
The melting lips forget,
And darkness veils the bridal shrine
Where wreaths and torches met ;

If Heaven but leaves a single thread
Of Hope's dissolving chain,
Even when her parting plumes are spread,
It bids them fold again ;
The cradle rocks beside the tomb ;
The cheek now changed and chill
Smiles on us in the morning bloom
Of one that loves us still.

Sweet image ! I have done thee wrong
To claim this destined lay ;
The leaf that asked an idle song
Must bear my tears away.
Yet, in thy memory shouldst thou keep
This else forgotten strain,
Till years have taught thine eyes to weep,
And flattery's voice is vain ;
Oh then, thou fledgling of the nest,
Like the long-wandering dove,
Thy weary heart may faint for rest,
As mine, on changeless love ;
And while these sculptured lines retrace
The hours now dancing by,
This vision of thy girlish grace
May cost thee, too, a sigh.

SONG

WRITTEN FOR THE DINNER GIVEN TO CHARLES DICKENS
BY THE YOUNG MEN OF BOSTON, FEBRUARY 1, 1842

THE stars their early vigils keep,
The silent hours are near,
When drooping eyes forget to weep, —
Yet still we linger here ;
And what — the passing churl may ask —
Can claim such wondrous power,
That Toil forgets his wonted task,
And Love his promised hour ?

The Irish harp no longer thrills,
Or breathes a fainter tone ;
The clarion blast from Scotland's hills,
Alas ! no more is blown ;
And Passion's burning lip bewails
Her Harold's wasted fire,
Still lingering o'er the dust that veils
The Lord of England's lyre.

But grieve not o'er its broken strings,
Nor think its soul hath died,
While yet the lark at heaven's gate sings,
As once o'er Avon's side ;
While gentle summer sheds her bloom,
And dewy blossoms wave,
Alike o'er Juliet's storied tomb
And Nelly's nameless grave.

Thou glorious island of the sea!
 Though wide the wasting flood
 That parts our distant land from thee,
 We claim thy generous blood ;
 Nor o'er thy far horizon springs
 One hallowed star of fame,
 But kindles, like an angel's wings,
 Our western skies in flame !

LINES

RECITED AT THE BERKSHIRE JUBILEE, PITTSFIELD,
 MASS., AUGUST 23, 1844

COME back to your mother, ye children, for shame,
 Who have wandered like truants for riches or fame !

With a smile on her face, and a sprig in her cap,
 She calls you to feast from her bountiful lap.

Come out from your alleys, your courts, and your lanes,
 And breathe, like young eagles, the air of our plains ;
 Take a whiff from our fields, and your excellent wives
 Will declare it 's all nonsense insuring your lives.

Come you of the law, who can talk, if you please,
 Till the man in the moon will allow it 's a cheese,
 And leave " the old lady, that never tells lies,"
 To sleep with her handkerchief over her eyes.

Ye healers of men, for a moment decline
Your feats in the rhubarb and ipecac line ;
While you shut up your turnpike, your neighbors can go
The old roundabout road to the regions below.

You clerk, on whose ears are a couple of pens,
And whose head is an ant-hill of units and tens,
Though Plato denies you, we welcome you still
As a featherless biped, in spite of your quill.

Poor drudge of the city ! how happy he feels,
With the burs on his legs and the grass at his heels !
No dodger behind, his bandannas to share,
No constable grumbling, " You must n't walk
    there ! "

In yonder green meadow, to memory dear,
He slaps a mosquito and brushes a tear ;
The dew-drops hang round him on blossoms and shoots,
He breathes but one sigh for his youth and his boots.

There stands the old school-house, hard by the old church ;
That tree at its side had the flavor of birch ;
Oh, sweet were the days of his juvenile tricks,
Though the prairie of youth had so many " big licks. "

By the side of yon river he weeps and he slumps,
 The boots fill with water, as if they were pumps,
 Till, sated with rapture, he steals to his bed,
 With a glow in his heart and a cold in his head.

'T is past, — he is dreaming, — I see him again ;
 The ledger returns as by legerdemain ;
 His neckcloth is damp with an easterly flaw,
 And he holds in his fingers an omnibus straw.

He dreams the chill gust is a blossomy gale,
 That the straw is a rose from his dear native vale ;
 And murmurs, unconscious of space and of time,
 " A 1. Extra super. Ah, is n't it PRIME ! "

Oh, what are the prizes we perish to win
 To the first little " shiner " we caught with a pin !
 No soil upon earth is so dear to our eyes
 As the soil we first stirred in terrestrial pies !

Then come from all parties and parts to our feast ;
 Though not at the " Astor," we 'll give you at least
 A bite at an apple, a seat on the grass,
 And the best of old — water — at nothing a glass.

NUX POSTCENATICA

I WAS sitting with my microscope, upon my parlor rug,
 With a very heavy quarto and a very lively bug ;

The true bug had been organized with only two antennæ,
But the humbug in the copperplate would have them twice as many.

And I thought, like Dr. Faustus, of the emptiness of art,
How we take a fragment for the whole, and call the whole a part,
When I heard a heavy footstep that was loud enough for two,
And a man of forty entered, exclaiming, "How d' ye do?"

He was not a ghost, my visitor, but solid flesh and bone ;
He wore a Palo Alto hat, his weight was twenty stone ;
(It's odd how hats expand their brims as riper years invade,
As if when life had reached its noon it wanted them for shade!)

I lost my focus, — dropped my book, — the bug, who was a flea,
At once exploded, and commenced experiments on me.
They have a certain heartiness that frequently appalls, —
Those mediæval gentlemen in semilunar smalls !

"My boy," he said, (colloquial ways, — the vast, broad-hatted man,) “Come dine with us on Thursday next, — you must, you know you can ;

We ’re going to have a roaring time, with lots of fun and noise,
Distinguished guests, et cetera, the JUDGE, and all the boys.”

Not so, — I said, — my temporal bones are showing pretty clear.
It ’s time to stop, — just look and see that hair above this ear ;
My golden days are more than spent, — and, what is very strange,
If these are real silver hairs, I ’m getting lots of change.

Besides — my prospects — don’t you know that people won’t employ
A man that wrongs his manliness by laughing like a boy ?
And suspect the azure blossom that unfolds upon a shoot,
As if wisdom’s old potato could not flourish at its root ?

It ’s a very fine reflection, when you ’re etching out a smile
On a copperplate of faces that would stretch at least a mile,
That, what with sneers from enemies and cheapening shrugs of friends,
It will cost you all the earnings that a month of labor lends !

It 's a vastly pleasing prospect, when you 're screwing out a laugh,
That your very next year's income is diminished
by a half,
And a little boy trips barefoot that Pegasus may go,
And the baby's milk is watered that your Helicon
may flow!

No ; — the joke has been a good one, — but I 'm getting fond of quiet,
And I don't like deviations from my customary diet ;
So I think I will not go with you to hear the toasts
and speeches,
But stick to old Montgomery Place, and have some pig and peaches.

The fat man answered : Shut your mouth, and hear the genuine creed ;
The true essentials of a feast are only fun and feed ;
The force that wheels the planets round delights in spinning tops,
And that young earthquake t' other day was great at shaking props.

I tell you what, philosopher, if all the longest heads
That ever knocked their sinciputs in stretching on their beds

Were round one great mahogany, I'd beat those fine old folks
With twenty dishes, twenty fools, and twenty clever jokes!

Why, if Columbus should be there, the company would beg
He'd show that little trick of his of balancing the egg!
Milton to Stilton would give in, and Solomon to Salmon,
And Roger Bacon be a bore, and Francis Bacon gammon!

And as for all the "patronage" of all the clowns
and boors
That squint their little narrow eyes at any freak of yours,
Do leave them to your prosier friends, — such fellows ought to die
When rhubarb is so very scarce and ipecac so high!

And so I come, — like Lochinvar, to tread a single measure, —
To purchase with a loaf of bread a sugar-plum of pleasure,
To enter for the cup of glass that's run for after dinner,
Which yields a single sparkling draught, then breaks and cuts the winner.

Ah, that's the way delusion comes, — a glass of old Madeira,

A pair of visual diaphragms revolved by Jane or Sarah,
 And down go vows and promises without the slightest question
 If eating words won't compromise the organs of digestion!

And yet, among my native shades, beside my nursing mother,
 Where every stranger seems a friend, and every friend a brother,
 I feel the old convivial glow (unaided) o'er me stealing, —
 The warm, champagne, old - particular, brandy-punchy feeling.

We 're all alike ; — Vesuvius flings the scorizæ from his fountain,
 But down they come in volleying rain back to the burning mountain ;
 We leave, like those volcanic stones, our precious Alma Mater,
 But will keep dropping in again to see the dear old crater.

VERSES FOR AFTER-DINNER

PHI BETA KAPPA SOCIETY, 1844

I WAS thinking last night, as I sat in the cars,
 With the charmingest prospect of cinders and stars,

Next Thursday is — bless me ! — how hard it will
be,
If that cannibal president calls upon me !

There is nothing on earth that he will not devour,
From a tutor in seed to a freshman in flower ;
No sage is too gray, and no youth is too green,
And you can't be too plump, though you're never to lean.

While others enlarge on the boiled and the roast,
He serves a raw clergyman up with a toast,
Or catches some doctor, quite tender and young,
And basely insists on a bit of his tongue.

Poor victim, prepared for his classical spit,
With a stuffing of praise and a basting of wit,
You may twitch at your collar and wrinkle your brow,
But you're up on your legs, and you're in for it
now.

Oh think of your friends, — they are waiting to hear
Those jokes that are thought so remarkably queer ;
And all the Jack Horners of metrical buns
Are prying and fingering to pick out the puns.

Those thoughts which, like chickens, will always thrive best
When reared by the heat of the natural nest,
Will perish if hatched from their embryo dream
In the mist and the glow of convivial steam.

Oh pardon me, then, if I meekly retire,
 With a very small flash of ethereal fire ;
 No rubbing will kindle your Lucifer match,
 If the fiz does not follow the primitive scratch.

Dear friends, who are listening so sweetly the while,
 With your lips double-reefed in a snug little smile,
 I leave you two fables, both drawn from the deep, —
 The shells you can drop, but the pearls you may keep.

. . . . .
 The fish called the FLOUNDER, perhaps you may know,
 Has one side for use and another for show ;
 One side for the public, a delicate brown,
 And one that is white, which he always keeps down.

A very young flounder, the flattest of flats,
 (And they 're none of them thicker than opera hats,)
 Was speaking more freely than charity taught
 Of a friend and relation that just had been caught.

“ My ! what an exposure ! just see what a sight !
 I blush for my race, — he is showing his white !

Such spinning and wriggling, — why, what does he wish?

How painfully small to respectable fish !”

Then said an old SCULPIN, — “ My freedom excuse,

You ’re playing the cobbler with holes in your shoes ;

Your brown side is up, — but just wait till you ’re tried

And you ’ll find that all flounders are white on one side.”

. . . . .
There ’s a slice near the PICKEREL’S pectoral fins,
Where the thorax leaves off and the venter begins,
Which his brother, survivor of fish-hooks and lines,
Though fond of his family, never declines.

He loves his relations ; he feels they ’ll be missed ;
But that one little tidbit he cannot resist ;
So your bait may be swallowed, no matter how fast,

For you catch your next fish with a piece of the last.

And thus, O survivor, whose merciless fate
Is to take the next hook with the president’s bait,
You are lost while you snatch from the end of his line

The morsel he rent from this bosom of mine !

A MODEST REQUEST

COMPLIED WITH AFTER THE DINNER AT PRESIDENT
EVERETT'S INAUGURATION

SCENE, — a back parlor in a certain square,
Or court, or lane, — in short, no matter where ;
Time, — early morning, dear to simple souls
Who love its sunshine and its fresh-baked rolls ;
Persons, — take pity on this telltale blush,
That, like the Æthiop, whispers, “ Hush, oh hush ! ”

Delightful scene ! where smiling comfort broods,
Nor business frets, nor anxious care intrudes ;
O si sic omnia ! were it ever so !
But what is stable in this world below ?
Medio e fonte, — Virtue has her faults, —
The clearest fountains taste of Epsom salts ;
We snatch the cup and lift to drain it dry, —
Its central dimple holds a drowning fly !
Strong is the pine by Maine's ambrosial streams,
But stronger augers pierce its thickest beams ;
No iron gate, no spiked and panelled door,
Can keep out death, the postman, or the bore.
Oh for a world where peace and silence reign,
And blunted dulness terebrates in vain !
— The door-bell jingles, — enter Richard Fox,
And takes this letter from his leathern box.

“ Dear Sir, —

In writing on a former day,
One little matter I forgot to say ;

I now inform you in a single line,
 On Thursday next our purpose is to dine.
 The act of feeding, as you understand,
 Is but a fraction of the work in hand ;
 Its nobler half is that ethereal meat
 The papers call ' the intellectual treat ;'
 Songs, speeches, toasts, around the festive board
 Drowned in the juice the College pumps afford ;
 For only water flanks our knives and forks,
 So, sink or float, we swim without the corks.
 Yours is the art, by native genius taught,
 To clothe in eloquence the naked thought ;
 Yours is the skill its music to prolong
 Through the sweet effluence of mellifluous song ;
 Yours the quaint trick to cram the pithy line
 That cracks so crisply over bubbling wine ;
 And since success your various gifts attends,
 We — that is, I and all your numerous friends —
 Expect from you — your single self a host —
 A speech, a song, excuse me, and a toast ;
 Nay, not to haggle on so small a claim,
 A few of each, or several of the same.
 (Signed),                      Yours, most truly,        — ”

No ! my sight must fail, —
 If that ain't Judas on the largest scale !
 Well, this is modest ; — nothing else than that ?
 My coat ? my boots ? my pantaloons ? my hat ?
 My stick ? my gloves ? as well as all my wits,
 Learning and linen, — everything that fits !

Jack, said my lady, is it grog you 'll try,
 Or punch, or toddy, if perhaps you 're dry ?

Ah, said the sailor, though I can't refuse,
You know, my lady, 't ain't for me to choose ;
I'll take the grog to finish off my lunch,
And drink the toddy while you mix the punch.

---

THE SPEECH. (The speaker, rising to be seen, Looks very red, because so very green.)
I rise — I rise — with unaffected fear, (Louder! — speak louder! — who the deuce can hear?)
I rise — I said — with undisguised dismay —
— Such are my feelings as I rise, I say!
Quite unprepared to face this learned throng,
Already gorged with eloquence and song ;
Around my view are ranged on either hand
The genius, wisdom, virtue of the land ;
“ Hands that the rod of empire might have swayed ”
Close at my elbow stir their lemonade ;
Would you like Homer learn to write and speak,
That bench is groaning with its weight of Greek ;
Behold the naturalist who in his teens
Found six new species in a dish of greens ;
And lo, the master in a statelier walk,
Whose annual ciphering takes a ton of chalk ;
And there the linguist, who by common roots
Thro' all their nurseries tracks old Noah's shoots,—
How Shem's proud children reared the Assyrian piles,
While Ham's were scattered through the Sandwich Isles !

— Fired at the thought of all the present shows,
My kindling fancy down the future flows :
I see the glory of the coming days
O'er Time's horizon shoot its streaming rays ;
Near and more near the radiant morning draws
In living lustre (rapturous applause) ;
From east to west the blazing heralds run,
Loosed from the chariot of the ascending sun,
Through the long vista of uncounted years
In cloudless splendor (three tremendous cheers).
My eye prophetic, as the depths unfold,
Sees a new advent of the age of gold ;
While o'er the scene new generations press,
New heroes rise the coming time to bless, —
Not such as Homer's, who, we read in Pope,
Dined without forks and never heard of soap, —
Not such as May to Marlborough Chapel brings,
Lean, hungry, savage, anti-everythings,
Copies of Luther in the pasteboard style, —
But genuine articles, the true Carlyle ;
While far on high the blazing orb shall shed
Its central light on Harvard's holy head,
And learning's ensigns ever float unfurled
Here in the focus of the new-born world !
The speaker stops, and, trampling down the pause,
Roars through the hall the thunder of applause,
One stormy gust of long-suspended Ahs !
One whirlwind chaos of insane hurrahs !

---

THE SONG. But this demands a briefer line, —
A shorter muse, and not the old long Nine ;
Long metre answers for a common song,
Though common metre does not answer long.

She came beneath the forest dome
To seek its peaceful shade,
An exile from her ancient home,
A poor, forsaken maid ;
No banner, flaunting high above,
No blazoned cross, she bore ;
One holy book of light and love
Was all her worldly store.

The dark brown shadows passed away,
And wider spread the green,
And where the savage used to stray
The rising mart was seen ;
So, when the laden winds had brought
Their showers of golden rain,
Her lap some precious gleanings caught,
Like Ruth's amid the grain.

But wrath soon gathered uncontrolled
Among the baser churls,
To see her ankles red with gold,
Her forehead white with pearls.
“ Who gave to thee the glittering bands
That lace thine azure veins ?
Who bade thee lift those snow-white hands
We bound in gilded chains ? ”

"These are the gems my children gave,"
 The stately dame replied ;
 "The wise, the gentle, and the brave,
 I nurtured at my side.
 If envy still your bosom stings,
 Take back their rims of gold ;
 My sons will melt their wedding-rings,
 And give a hundred-fold !"

---

THE TOAST. Oh tell me, ye who thoughtless ask
 Exhausted nature for a threefold task,
 In wit or pathos if one share remains,
 A safe investment for an ounce of brains !
 Hard is the job to launch the desperate pun,
 A pun-job dangerous as the Indian one.
 Turned by the current of some stronger wit
 Back from the object that you mean to hit,
 Like the strange missile which the Australian throws,
 Your verbal boomerang slaps you on the nose.
 One vague inflection spoils the whole with doubt,
 One trivial letter ruins all, left out ;
 A knot can choke a felon into clay,
 A not will save him, spelt without the k ;
 The smallest word has some unguarded spot,
 And danger lurks in i without a dot.

Thus great Achilles, who had shown his zeal
 In healing wounds, died of a wounded heel ;
 Unhappy chief, who, when in childhood doused,

Had saved his bacon had his feet been soused !
Accursèd heel that killed a hero stout !
Oh, had your mother known that you were out,
Death had not entered at the trifling part
That still defies the small surgeon's art
With corns and bunions, — not the glorious John,
Who wrote the book we all have pondered on,
But other bunions, bound in fleecy hose,
To "Pilgrim's Progress" unrelenting foes !

A HEALTH, unmingled with the reveller's wine,
To him whose title is indeed divine ;
Truth's sleepless watchman on her midnight tower,
Whose lamp burns brightest when the tempests lower.

Oh, who can tell with what a leaden flight
Drag the long watches of his weary night,
While at his feet the hoarse and blinding gale
Strews the torn wreck and bursts the fragile sail,
When stars have faded, when the wave is dark,
When rocks and sands embrace the foundering bark !
But still he pleads with unavailing cry,
Behold the light, O wanderer, look or die !

A health, fair Themis ! Would the enchanted vine Wreathed its green tendrils round this cup of thine !

If Learning's radiance fill thy modern court,
Its glorious sunshine streams through Blackstone's port !

Lawyers are thirsty, and their clients too, —
 Witness at least, if memory serve me true,
 Those old tribunals, famed for dusty suits,
 Where men sought justice ere they brushed their
       boots ;
 And what can match, to solve a learned doubt,
 The warmth within that comes from “cold without” ?

Health to the art whose glory is to give
 The crowning boon that makes it life to live.
 Ask not her home ; — the rock where nature flings
 Her arctic lichen, last of living things ;
 The gardens, fragrant with the orient’s balm,
 From the low jasmine to the star-like palm,
 Hail her as mistress o’er the distant waves,
 And yield their tribute to her wandering slaves.
 Wherever, moistening the ungrateful soil,
 The tear of suffering tracks the path of toil,
 There, in the anguish of his fevered hours,
 Her gracious finger points to healing flowers ;
 Where the lost felon steals away to die,
 Her soft hand waves before his closing eye ;
 Where hunted misery finds his darkest lair,
 The midnight taper shows her kneeling there !
 VIRTUE, — the guide that men and nations own ;
 And LAW, — the bulwark that protects her throne ;
 And HEALTH, — to all its happiest charm that lends ;
 These and their servants, man’s untiring friends :
 Pour the bright lymph that Heaven itself lets fall,
 In one fair bumper let us toast them all !

THE PARTING WORD

I MUST leave thee, lady sweet !
Months shall waste before we meet ;
Winds are fair and sails are spread,
Anchors leave their ocean bed ;
Ere this shining day grow dark,
Skies shall gird my shoreless bark.
Through thy tears, O lady mine,
Read thy lover's parting line.

When the first sad sun shall set,
Thou shalt tear thy locks of jet ;
When the morning star shall rise,
Thou shalt wake with weeping eyes ;
When the second sun goes down,
Thou more tranquil shalt be grown,
Taught too well that wild despair
Dims thine eyes and spoils thy hair.

All the first unquiet week
Thou shalt wear a smileless cheek ;
In the first month's second half
Thou shalt once attempt to laugh ;
Then in Pickwick thou shalt dip,
Slightly puckering round the lip,
Till at last, in sorrow's spite,
Samuel makes thee laugh outright.

While the first seven mornings last,
Round thy chamber bolted fast

Many a youth shall fume and pout,
“ Hang the girl, she 's always out ! ”
While the second week goes round,
Vainly shall they ring and pound ;
When the third week shall begin,
“ Martha, let the creature in.”

Now once more the flattering throng
Round thee flock with smile and song,
But thy lips, unweaned as yet,
Lisp, “ Oh, how can I forget ! ”
Men and devils both contrive
Traps for catching girls alive ;
Eve was duped, and Helen kissed, —
How, oh how can you resist ?

First be careful of your fan,
Trust it not to youth or man ;
Love has filled a pirate's sail
Often with its perfumed gale.
Mind your kerchief most of all,
Fingers touch when kerchiefs fall ;
Shorter ell than mercers clip
Is the space from hand to lip.

Trust not such as talk in tropes,
Full of pistols, daggers, ropes ;
All the hemp that Russia bears
Scarce would answer lovers' prayers ;
Never thread was spun so fine,
Never spider stretched the line,
Would not hold the lovers true
That would really swing for you.

Fiercely some shall storm and swear,
Beating breasts in black despair ;
Others murmur with a sigh,
You must melt, or they will die :
Painted words on empty lies,
Grubs with wings like butterflies ;
Let them die, and welcome, too ;
Pray what better could they do ?

Fare thee well : if years efface
From thy heart love's burning trace,
Keep, oh keep that hallowed seat
From the tread of vulgar feet ;
If the blue lips of the sea
Wait with icy kiss for me,
Let not thine forget the vow,
Sealed how often, Love, as now.

A SONG OF OTHER DAYS

As o'er the glacier's frozen sheet
Breathes soft the Alpine rose,
So through life's desert springing sweet
The flower of friendship grows ;
And as where'er the roses grow
Some rain or dew descends,
'T is nature's law that wine should flow
To wet the lips of friends.
Then once again, before we part,
My empty glass shall ring ;
And he that has the warmest heart
Shall loudest laugh and sing.

They say we were not born to eat ;
    But gray-haired sages think
It means, Be moderate in your meat,
    And partly live to drink.
For baser tribes the rivers flow
    That know not wine or song ;
Man wants but little drink below,
    But wants that little strong.
    Then once again, etc.

If one bright drop is like the gem
    That decks a monarch's crown,
One goblet holds a diadem
    Of rubies melted down !
A fig for Cæsar's blazing brow,
    But, like the Egyptian queen,
Bid each dissolving jewel glow
    My thirsty lips between.
    Then once again, etc.

The Grecian's mound, the Roman's urn,
    Are silent when we call,
Yet still the purple grapes return
    To cluster on the wall ;
It was a bright Immortal's head
    They circled with the vine,
And o'er their best and bravest dead
    They poured the dark-red wine.
    Then once again, etc.

Methinks o'er every sparkling glass
    Young Eros waves his wings,

And echoes o'er its dimples pass
From dead Anacreon's strings ;
And, tossing round its beaded brim
Their locks of floating gold,
With bacchant dance and choral hymn
Return the nymphs of old.
Then once again, etc.

A welcome then to joy and mirth,
From hearts as fresh as ours,
To scatter o'er the dust of earth
Their sweetly mingled flowers ;
'T is Wisdom's self the cup that fills
In spite of Folly's frown,
And Nature, from her vine-clad hills,
That rains her life-blood down !
Then once again, before we part,
My empty glass shall ring ;
And he that has the warmest heart
Shall loudest laugh and sing.

SONG

FOR A TEMPERANCE DINNER TO WHICH LADIES WERE INVITED (NEW YORK MERCANTILE LIBRARY ASSO-CIATION, NOVEMBER, 1842)

A HEALTH to dear woman ! She bids us untwine,
From the cup it encircles, the fast-clinging vine ;
But her cheek in its crystal with pleasure will glow,
And mirror its bloom in the bright wave below.

A health to sweet woman ! The days are no more
When she watched for her lord till the revel was o'er,
And smoothed the white pillow, and blushed when he came,
As she pressed her cold lips on his forehead of flame.

Alas for the loved one ! too spotless and fair
The joys of his banquet to chasten and share ;
Her eye lost its light that his goblet might shine,
And the rose of her cheek was dissolved in his wine.

Joy smiles in the fountain, health flows in the rills,
As their ribbons of silver unwind from the hills ;
They breathe not the mist of the bacchanal's dream,
But the lilies of innocence float on their stream.

Then a health and a welcome to woman once more !
She brings us a passport that laughs at our door ;
It is written on crimson, — its letters are pearls, —
It is countersigned Nature. — So, room for the Girls !

A SENTIMENT

THE pledge of Friendship ! it is still divine,
Though watery floods have quenched its burning
wine ;
Whatever vase the sacred drops may hold,
The gourd, the shell, the cup of beaten gold,

Around its brim the hand of Nature throws
A garland sweeter than the banquet's rose.
Bright are the blushes of the vine-wreathed bowl,
Warm with the sunshine of Anacreon's soul,
But dearer memories gild the tasteless wave
That fainting Sidney perished as he gave.
'T is the heart's current lends the cup its glow,
Whate'er the fountain whence the draught may flow, —

The diamond dew-drops sparkling through the sand,
Scooped by the Arab in his sunburnt hand,
Or the dark streamlet oozing from the snow,
Where creep and crouch the shuddering Esquimaux;
Ay, in the stream that, ere again we meet,
Shall burst the pavement, glistening at our feet,
And, stealing silent from its leafy hills,
Thread all our alleys with its thousand rills, —
In each pale draught if generous feeling blend,
And o'er the goblet friend shall smile on friend,
Even cold Cochituate every heart shall warm,
And genial Nature still defy reform!

A RHYMED LESSON

(URANIA)

This poem was delivered before the Boston Mercantile Library Association, October 14, 1846.

YES, dear Enchantress,—wandering far and long,
In realms unperfumed by the breath of song,
Where flowers ill-flavored shed their sweets around,
And bitterest roots invade the ungenial ground,

Whose gems are crystals from the Epsom mine,
 Whose vineyards flow with antimonial wine,
 Whose gates admit no mirthful feature in,
 Save one gaunt mocker, the Sardonic grin,
 Whose pangs are real, not the woes of rhyme
 That blue-eyed misses warble out of time ; —
 Truant, not recreant to thy sacred claim,
 Older by reckoning, but in heart the same,
 Freed for a moment from the chains of toil,
 I tread once more thy consecrated soil ;
 Here at thy feet my old allegiance own,
 Thy subject still, and loyal to thy throne !

My dazzled glance explores the crowded hall ;
 Alas, how vain to hope the smiles of all !
 I know my audience. All the gay and young
 Love the light antics of a playful tongue ;
 And these, remembering some expansive line
 My lips let loose among the nuts and wine,
 Are all impatience till the opening pun
 Proclaims the witty shamfight is begun.
 Two fifths at least, if not the total half,
 Have come infuriate for an earthquake laugh ;
 I know full well what alderman has tied
 His red bandanna tight about his side ;
 I see the mother, who, aware that boys
 Perform their laughter with superfluous noise,
 Beside her kerchief brought an extra one
 To stop the explosions of her bursting son ;
 I know a tailor, once a friend of mine,
 Expects great doings in the button line, —
 For mirth's concussions rip the outward case,

And plant the stitches in a tenderer place.
I know my audience, — these shall have their due ;
A smile awaits them ere my song is through !

I know myself. Not servile for applause,
My Muse permits no deprecating clause ;
Modest or vain, she will not be denied
One bold confession due to honest pride ;
And well she knows the drooping veil of song
Shall save her boldness from the caviller's wrong.
Her sweeter voice the Heavenly Maid imparts
To tell the secrets of our aching hearts :
For this, a suppliant, captive, prostrate, bound,
She kneels imploring at the feet of sound ;
For this, convulsed in thought's maternal pains,
She loads her arms with rhyme's resounding chains ;
Faint though the music of her fetters be,
It lends one charm, — her lips are ever free !

Think not I come, in manhood's fiery noon,
To steal his laurels from the stage buffoon ;
His sword of lath the harlequin may wield ;
Behold the star upon my lifted shield !
Though the just critic pass my humble name,
And sweeter lips have drained the cup of fame,
While my gay stanza pleased the banquet's lords,
The soul within was tuned to deeper chords !
Say, shall my arms, in other conflicts taught
To swing aloft the ponderous mace of thought,
Lift, in obedience to a school-girl's law,
Mirth's tinsel wand or laughter's tickling straw ?

Say, shall I wound with satire's rankling spear
 The pure, warm hearts that bid me welcome here?

No! while I wander through the land of dreams,
 To strive with great and play with trifling themes,
 Let some kind meaning fill the varied line.
 You have your judgment; will you trust to mine?

---

Between two breaths what crowded mysteries lie, —
 The first short gasp, the last and long-drawn sigh!
 Like phantoms painted on the magic slide,
 Forth from the darkness of the past we glide,
 As living shadows for a moment seen
 In airy pageant on the eternal screen,
 Traced by a ray from one unchanging flame,
 Then seek the dust and stillness whence we came.

But whence and why, our trembling souls inquire,
 Caught these dim visions their awakening fire?
 Oh, who forgets when first the piercing thought
 Through childhood's musings found its way unsought?
 I AM; — I LIVE. The mystery and the fear
 When the dread question, WHAT HAS BROUGHT ME HERE?
 Burst through life's twilight, as before the sun
 Roll the deep thunders of the morning gun!

Are angel faces, silent and serene,
Bent on the conflicts of this little scene,
Whose dream-like efforts, whose unreal strife,
Are but the preludes to a larger life?

Or does life's summer see the end of all,
These leaves of being mouldering as they fall,
As the old poet vaguely used to deem,
As WESLEY questioned in his youthful dream?
Oh, could such mockery reach our souls indeed,
Give back the Pharaohs' or the Athenian's creed;
Better than this a Heaven of man's device, —
The Indian's sports, the Moslem's paradise!

Or is our being's only end and aim
To add new glories to our Maker's name,
As the poor insect, shrivelling in the blaze,
Lends a faint sparkle to its streaming rays?
Does earth send upward to the Eternal's ear
The mingled discords of her jarring sphere
To swell his anthem, while creation rings
With notes of anguish from its shattered strings?
Is it for this the immortal Artist means
These conscious, throbbing, agonized machines?

Dark is the soul whose sullen creed can bind
In chains like these the all-embracing Mind;
No! two-faced bigot, thou dost ill reprove
The sensual, selfish, yet benignant Jove,
And praise a tyrant throned in lonely pride,
Who loves himself, and cares for naught beside;
Who gave thee, summoned from primeval night,

A thousand laws, and not a single right, —
A heart to feel, and quivering nerves to thrill,
The sense of wrong, the death-defying will ;
Who girt thy senses with this goodly frame,
Its earthly glories and its orbs of flame,
Not for thyself, unworthy of a thought,
Poor helpless victim of a life unsought,
But all for him, unchanging and supreme,
The heartless centre of thy frozen scheme !

Trust not the teacher with his lying scroll,
Who tears the charter of thy shuddering soul ;
The God of love, who gave the breath that warms
All living dust in all its varied forms,
Asks not the tribute of a world like this
To fill the measure of his perfect bliss.
Though winged with life through all its radiant shores,
Creation flowed with unexhausted stores
Cherub and seraph had not yet enjoyed ;
For this he called thee from the quickening void !
Nor this alone ; a larger gift was thine,
A mightier purpose swelled his vast design :
Thought, — conscience, — will, — to make them all thine own,
He rent a pillar from the eternal throne !

Made in his image, thou must nobly dare
The thorny crown of sovereignty to share.
With eye uplifted, it is thine to view,
From thine own centre, Heaven's o'erarching blue ;
So round thy heart a beaming circle lies

No fiend can blot, no hypocrite disguise ;
From all its orbs one cheering voice is heard,
Full to thine ear it bears the Father's word,
Now, as in Eden where his first-born trod :
“ Seek thine own welfare, true to man and God ! ”

Think not too meanly of thy low estate ;
Thou hast a choice ; to choose is to create !
Remember whose the sacred lips that tell,
Angels approve thee when thy choice is well ;
Remember, One, a judge of righteous men,
Swore to spare Sodom if she held but ten !
Use well the freedom which thy Master gave,
(Think'st thou that Heaven can tolerate a slave ?)
And He who made thee to be just and true
Will bless thee, love thee, — ay, respect thee too !

Nature has placed thee on a changeful tide,
To breast its waves, but not without a guide ;
Yet, as the needle will forget its aim,
Jarred by the fury of the electric flame,
As the true current it will falsely feel,
Warped from its axis by a freight of steel ;
So will thy CONSCIENCE lose its balanced truth
If passion's lightning fall upon thy youth,
So the pure effluence quit its sacred hold
Girt round too deeply with magnetic gold.

Go to yon tower, where busy science plies
Her vast antennæ, feeling through the skies :
That little vernier on whose slender lines
The midnight taper trembles as it shines,
A silent index, tracks the planets' march
In all their wanderings through the ethereal arch ;

Tells through the mist where dazzled Mercury burns,
And marks the spot where Uranus returns.

So, till by wrong or negligence effaced,
The living index which thy Maker traced
Repeats the line each starry Virtue draws
Through the wide circuit of creation's laws ;
Still tracks unchanged the everlasting ray
Where the dark shadows of temptation stray :
But, once defaced, forgets the orbs of light,
And leaves thee wandering o'er the expanse of night.

“ What is thy creed ? ” a hundred lips inquire ;
“ Thou seekest God beneath what Christian spire ? ”
Nor ask they idly, for uncounted lies
Float upward on the smoke of sacrifice ;
When man's first incense rose above the plain,
Of earth's two altars one was built by Cain !

Uncursed by doubt, our earliest creed we take ;
We love the precepts for the teacher's sake ;
The simple lessons which the nursery taught
Fell soft and stainless on the buds of thought,
And the full blossom owes its fairest hue
To those sweet tear-drops of affection's dew.

Too oft the light that led our earlier hours
Fades with the perfume of our cradle flowers ;
The clear, cold question chills to frozen doubt ;
Tired of beliefs, we dread to live without :
Oh then, if Reason waver at thy side,
Let humbler Memory be thy gentle guide ;
Go to thy birthplace, and, if faith was there,
Repeat thy father's creed, thy mother's prayer !

Faith loves to lean on Time's destroying arm,
And age, like distance, lends a double charm ;
In dim cathedrals, dark with vaulted gloom,
What holy awe invests the saintly tomb !
There pride will bow, and anxious care expand,
And creeping avarice come with open hand ;
The gay can weep, the impious can adore,
From morn's first glimmerings on the chancel floor

Till dying sunset sheds his crimson stains
Through the faint halos of the irised panes.

Yet there are graves, whose rudely-shapen sod
Bears the fresh footprints where the sexton trod ;
Graves where the verdure has not dared to shoot,
Where the chance wild-flower has not fixed its root,
Whose slumbering tenants, dead without a name,
The eternal record shall at length proclaim
Pure as the holiest in the long array
Of hooded, mitred, or tiaraed clay !

Come, seek the air ; some pictures we may gain
Whose passing shadows shall not be in vain ;
Not from the scenes that crowd the stranger's soil,
Not from our own amidst the stir of toil,
But when the Sabbath brings its kind release,
And Care lies slumbering on the lap of Peace.

The air is hushed, the street is holy ground ;
Hark ! The sweet bells renew their welcome sound :

As one by one awakes each silent tongue,
It tells the turret whence its voice is flung.

The Chapel, last of sublunary things
 That stirs our echoes with the name of Kings, Whose bell, just glistening from the font and forge,

Rolled its proud requiem for the second George,
 Solemn and swelling, as of old it rang,
 Flings to the wind its deep, sonorous clang ;
 The simpler pile, that, mindful of the hour
 When Howe's artillery shook its half-built tower,
 Wears on its bosom, as a bride might do,
 The iron breastpin which the "Rebels" threw,
 Wakes the sharp echoes with the quivering thrill
 Of keen vibrations, tremulous and shrill ;
 Aloft, suspended in the morning's fire,
 Crash the vast cymbals from the Southern spire ;
 The Giant, standing by the elm-clad green,
 His white lance lifted o'er the silent scene,
 Whirling in air his brazen goblet round,
 Swings from its brim the swollen floods of sound ;
 While, sad with memories of the olden time,
 Throbs from his tower the Northern Minstrel's chime, —

Faint, single tones, that spell their ancient song,
 But tears still follow as they breathe along.

Child of the soil, whom fortune sends to range
 Where man and nature, faith and customs change,
 Borne in thy memory, each familiar tone
 Mourns on the winds that sigh in every zone.
 When Ceylon sweeps thee with her perfumed breeze
 Through the warm billows of the Indian seas ;

When — ship and shadow blended both in one —
Flames o'er thy mast the equatorial sun,
From sparkling midnight to refulgent noon
Thy canvas swelling with the still monsoon ;
When through thy shrouds the wild tornado
sings,

And thy poor sea-bird folds her tattered wings, —
Oft will delusion o'er thy senses steal,
And airy echoes ring the Sabbath peal !
Then, dim with grateful tears, in long array
Rise the fair town, the island-studded bay,
Home, with its smiling board, its cheering fire,
The half-choked welcome of the expecting sire,
The mother's kiss, and, still if aught remain,
Our whispering hearts shall aid the silent strain.

Ah, let the dreamer o'er the taffrail lean
To muse unheeded, and to weep unseen ;
Fear not the tropic's dews, the evening's chills,
His heart lies warm among his triple hills !

Turned from her path by this deceitful gleam,
My wayward fancy half forgets her theme.
See through the streets that slumbered in repose
The living current of devotion flows,
Its varied forms in one harmonious band :
Age leading childhood by its dimpled hand ;
Want, in the robe whose faded edges fall
To tell of rags beneath the tartan shawl ;
And wealth, in silks that, fluttering to appear,
Lift the deep borders of the proud cashmere.

See, but glance briefly, sorrow-worn and pale,
Those sunken cheeks beneath the widow's veil ;

Alone she wanders where with him she trod,
No arm to stay her, but she leans on God.

While other doublets deviate here and there,
What secret handcuff binds that pretty pair?
Compactest couple! pressing side to side, —
Ah, the white bonnet that reveals the bride!

By the white neckcloth, with its straitened tie,
The sober hat, the Sabbath-speaking eye,
Severe and smileless, he that runs may read
The stern disciple of Geneva's creed:
Decent and slow, behold his solemn march;
Silent he enters through yon crowded arch.

A livelier bearing of the outward man,
The light-hued gloves, the undevout rattan,
Now smartly raised or half profaely twirled, —
A bright, fresh twinkle from the week-day world, —
Tell their plain story; yes, thine eyes behold
A cheerful Christian from the liberal fold.

Down the chill street that curves in gloomiest shade

What marks betray yon solitary maid?
The cheek's red rose that speaks of balmier air,
The Celtic hue that shades her braided hair,
The gilded missal in her kerchief tied, —
Poor Nora, exile from Killarney's side!

Sister in toil, though blanched by colder skies,
That left their azure in her downcast eyes,
See pallid Margaret, Labor's patient child, Scarce weaned from home, the nursling of the wild,

Where white Katahdin o'er the horizon shines,
And broad Penobscot dashes through the pines.

Still, as she hastes, her careful fingers hold
The unfailing hymn-book in its cambric fold.
Six days at drudgery's heavy wheel she stands,
The seventh sweet morning folds her weary hands.
Yes, child of suffering, thou mayst well be sure
He who ordained the Sabbath loves the poor !

This weekly picture faithful Memory draws,
Nor claims the noisy tribute of applause ;
Faint is the glow such barren hopes can lend,
And frail the line that asks no loftier end.

Trust me, kind listener, I will yet beguile
Thy saddened features of the promised smile.
This magic mantle thou must well divide,
It has its sable and its ermine side ;
Yet, ere the lining of the robe appears,
Take thou in silence what I give in tears.

Dear listening soul, this transitory scene
Of murmuring stillness, busily serene, —
This solemn pause, the breathing-space of man,
The halt of toil's exhausted caravan, —
Comes sweet with music to thy wearied ear ;
Rise with its anthems to a holier sphere !

Deal meekly, gently, with the hopes that guide
The lowliest brother straying from thy side :
If right, they bid thee tremble for thine own ;
If wrong, the verdict is for God alone !

What though the champions of thy faith esteem
The sprinkled fountain or baptismal stream ;

Shall jealous passions in unseemly strife
 Cross their dark weapons o'er the waves of life?

Let my free soul, expanding as it can,
 Leave to his scheme the thoughtful Puritan ;
 But Calvin's dogma shall my lips deride ?
 In that stern faith my angel Mary died ;
 Or ask if mercy's milder creed can save,
 Sweet sister, risen from thy new-made grave ?

True, the harsh founders of thy church reviled
 That ancient faith, the trust of Erin's child ;
 Must thou be raking in the crumbled past
 For racks and fagots in her teeth to cast ?
 See from the ashes of Helvetia's pile
 The whitened skull of old Servetus smile !
 Round her young heart thy " Romish Upas " threw
 Its firm, deep fibres, strengthening as she grew ;
 Thy sneering voice may call them " Popish tricks,"
 Her Latin prayers, her dangling crucifix,
 But De Profundis blessed her father's grave,
 That " idol " cross her dying mother gave !

What if some angel looks with equal eyes
 On her and thee, the simple and the wise,
 Writes each dark fault against thy brighter creed,
 And drops a tear with every foolish bead !

Grieve, as thou must, o'er history's reeking page ;
 Blush for the wrongs that stain thy happier age ;
 Strive with the wanderer from the better path,
 Bearing thy message meekly, not in wrath ;
 Weep for the frail that err, the weak that fall,
 Have thine own faith, — but hope and pray for all !

Faith ; Conscience ; Love. A meaner task remains,
 And humbler thoughts must creep in lowlier strains.
 Shalt thou be honest ? Ask the worldly schools,
 And all will tell thee knaves are busier fools ;
 Prudent ? Industrious ? Let not modern pens
 Instruct " Poor Richard's " fellow-citizens.

Be firm ! One constant element in luck
 Is genuine solid old Teutonic pluck.
 See yon tall shaft ; it felt the earthquake's thrill,
 Clung to its base, and greets the sunrise still.

Stick to your aim : the mongrel's hold will slip,
 But only crowbars loose the bulldog's grip ;
 Small as he looks, the jaw that never yields
 Drags down the bellowing monarch of the fields !

Yet in opinions look not always back, —
 Your wake is nothing, mind the coming track ;
 Leave what you 've done for what you have to do ;
 Don't be " consistent," but be simply true.

Don't catch the fidgets ; you have found your place
 Just in the focus of a nervous race,
 Fretful to change and rabid to discuss,
 Full of excitements, always in a fuss.
 Think of the patriarchs ; then compare as men
 These lean-cheeked maniacs of the tongue and pen !
 Run, if you like, but try to keep your breath ;
 Work like a man, but don't be worked to death ;

And with new notions, — let me change the rule, —
Don't strike the iron till it 's slightly cool.

Choose well your set; our feeble nature seeks
The aid of clubs, the countenance of cliques;
And with this object settle first of all
Your weight of metal and your size of ball.
Track not the steps of such as hold you cheap,
Too mean to prize, though good enough to keep;
The "real, genuine, no-mistake Tom Thumbs"
Are little people fed on great men's crumbs.

Yet keep no followers of that hateful brood
That basely mingles with its wholesome food
The tumid reptile, which, the poet said,
Doth wear a precious jewel in his head.

If the wild filly, "Progress," thou wouldst ride,
Have young companions ever at thy side;
But wouldst thou stride the stanch old mare,
"Success,"

Go with thine elders, though they please thee less.

Shun such as lounge through afternoons and eves,

And on thy dial write, "Beware of thieves!"

Felon of minutes, never taught to feel

The worth of treasures which thy fingers steal,

Pick my left pocket of its silver dime,

But spare the right, — it holds my golden time!

Does praise delight thee? Choose some ultra
side, —

A sure old recipe, and often tried;

Be its apostle, congressman, or bard,
 Spokesman or jokesman, only drive it hard ;
 But know the forfeit which thy choice abides,
 For on two wheels the poor reformer rides, —
 One black with epithets the anti throws,
 One white with flattery painted by the pros.

Though books on MANNERS are not out of print,
 An honest tongue may drop a harmless hint.

Stop not, unthinking, every friend you meet,
 To spin your wordy fabric in the street ;
 While you are emptying your colloquial pack,
 The fiend Lumbago jumps upon his back.

Nor cloud his features with the unwelcome tale
 Of how he looks, if haply thin and pale ;
 Health is a subject for his child, his wife,
 And the rude office that insures his life.

Look in his face, to meet thy neighbor's soul,
 Not on his garments, to detect a hole ;
 "How to observe" is what thy pages show,
 Pride of thy sex, Miss Harriet Martineau !
 Oh, what a precious book the one would be
 That taught observers what they 're not to see !

I tell in verse — 't were better done in prose —
 One curious trick that everybody knows ;
 Once form this habit, and it 's very strange
 How long it sticks, how hard it is to change.
 Two friendly people, both disposed to smile,
 Who meet, like others, every little while,
 Instead of passing with a pleasant bow,
 And "How d' ye do?" or "How 's your uncle
 now?"

Impelled by feelings in their nature kind,
 But slightly weak and somewhat undefined,
 Rush at each other, make a sudden stand,
 Begin to talk, expatiate, and expand ;
 Each looks quite radiant, seems extremely struck,
 Their meeting so was such a piece of luck ;
 Each thinks the other thinks he 's greatly pleased
 To screw the vice in which they both are squeezed ;
 So there they talk, in dust, or mud, or snow,
 Both bored to death, and both afraid to go !

Your hat once lifted, do not hang your fire,
 Nor, like slow Ajax, fighting still, retire ;
 When your old castor on your crown you clap,
 Go off ; you 've mounted your percussion cap.

Some words on LANGUAGE may be well applied,
 And take them kindly, though they touch your pride.

Words lead to things ; a scale is more precise, —
 Coarse speech, bad grammar, swearing, drinking, vice.

Our cold Northeaster's icy fetter clips
 The native freedom of the Saxon lips ;
 See the brown peasant of the plastic South,
 How all his passions play about his mouth !
 With us, the feature that transmits the soul,
 A frozen, passive, palsied breathing-hole.
 The crampy shackles of the ploughboy's walk
 Tie the small muscles when he strives to talk ;
 Not all the pumice of the polished town
 Can smooth this roughness of the barnyard down ;
 Rich, honored, titled, he betrays his race

By this one mark, — he 's awkward in the face ; —
 Nature's rude impress, long before he knew
 The sunny street that holds the sifted few.

It can't be helped, though, if we 're taken young,
 We gain some freedom of the lips and tongue ;
 But school and college often try in vain
 To break the padlock of our boyhood's chain :
 One stubborn word will prove this axiom true, —
 No quondam rustic can enunciate view.

A few brief stanzas may be well employed
 To speak of errors we can all avoid.

Learning condemns beyond the reach of hope
 The careless lips that speak of sōap for sōap ;
 Her edict exiles from her fair abode
 The clownish voice that utters rōad for rōad :
 Less stern to him who calls his cōat a cōat,
 And steers his bōat, believing it a bōat,
 She pardoned one, our classic city's boast,
 Who said at Cambridge mōst instead of mōst,
 But knit her brows and stamped her angry foot
 To hear a Teacher call a rōot a rōot.

Once more : speak clearly, if you speak at all ;
 Carve every word before you let it fall ;
 Don't, like a lecturer or dramatic star,
 Try over-hard to roll the British R ;
 Do put your accents in the proper spot ;
 Don't, — let me beg you, — don't say " How ? " for
 " What ? "

And when you stick on conversation's burs,
 Don't strew your pathway with those dreadful urs.

From little matters let us pass to less,
 And lightly touch the mysteries of DRESS ;
 The outward forms the inner man reveal, —
 We guess the pulp before we cut the peel.

I leave the broadcloth, — coats and all the rest, —
 The dangerous waistcoat, called by cockneys “ vest,”

The things named “pants” in certain documents,
 A word not made for gentlemen, but “gents ;”
 One single precept might the whole condense :
 Be sure your tailor is a man of sense ;
 But add a little care, a decent pride,
 And always err upon the sober side.

Three pairs of boots one pair of feet demands,
 If polished daily by the owner’s hands ;
 If the dark menial’s visit save from this,
 Have twice the number, — for he ’ll sometimes miss.

One pair for critics of the nicer sex,
 Close in the instep’s clinging circumflex,
 Long, narrow, light ; the Gallic boot of love,
 A kind of cross between a boot and glove.
 Compact, but easy, strong, substantial, square,
 Let native art compile the medium pair.
 The third remains, and let your tasteful skill
 Here show some relics of affection still ;
 Let no stiff cowhide, reeking from the tan,
 No rough caoutchouc, no deformed brogan,
 Disgrace the tapering outline of your feet,
 Though yellow torrents gurgle through the street.

Wear seemly gloves ; not black, nor yet too light,
 And least of all the pair that once was white ;
 Let the dead party where you told your loves
 Bury in peace its dead bouquets and gloves ;
 Shave like the goat, if so your fancy bids,
 But be a parent, — don't neglect your kids.

Have a good hat ; the secret of your looks
 Lives with the beaver in Canadian brooks ;
 Virtue may flourish in an old cravat,
 But man and nature scorn the shocking hat.
 Does beauty slight you from her gay abodes ?
 Like bright Apollo, you must take to Rhoades, —
 Mount the new castor, — ice itself will melt ;
 Boots, gloves, may fail ; the hat is always felt !

Be shy of breastpins ; plain, well-ironed white,
 With small pearl buttons, — two of them in sight, —
 Is always genuine, while your gems may pass,
 Though real diamonds, for ignoble glass.
 But spurn those paltry Cisatlantic lies
 That round his breast the shabby rustic ties ;
 Breathe not the name profaned to hallow things
 The indignant laundress blushes when she brings !

Our freeborn race, averse to every check,
 Has tossed the yoke of Europe from its neck ;
 From the green prairie to the sea-girt town,
 The whole wide nation turns its collars down.

The stately neck is manhood's manliest part ;
 It takes the life-blood freshest from the heart.

With short, curled ringlets close around it spread,
How light and strong it lifts the Grecian head!
Thine, fair Erechtheus of Minerva's wall;
Or thine, young athlete of the Louvre's hall,
Smooth as the pillar flashing in the sun
That filled the arena where thy wreaths were won,
Firm as the band that clasps the antlered spoil
Strained in the winding anaconda's coil!

I spare the contrast; it were only kind
To be a little, nay, intensely blind.
Choose for yourself: I know it cuts your ear;
I know the points will sometimes interfere;
I know that often, like the filial John,
Whom sleep surprised with half his drapery on,
You show your features to the astonished town
With one side standing and the other down; —
But, O, my friend! my favorite fellow-man!
If Nature made you on her modern plan,
Sooner than wander with your windpipe bare, —
The fruit of Eden ripening in the air, —
With that lean head-stalk, that protruding chin,
Wear standing collars, were they made of tin!
And have a neckcloth — by the throat of Jove! —
Cut from the funnel of a rusty stove!

The long-drawn lesson narrows to its close,
Chill, slender, slow, the dwindled current flows;
Tired of the ripples on its feeble springs,
Once more the Muse unfolds her upward wings.

Land of my birth, with this unhallowed tongue,
Thy hopes, thy dangers, I perchance had sung;

But who shall sing, in brutal disregard
Of all the essentials of the "native bard" ?

Lake, sea, shore, prairie, forest, mountain, fall,
His eye omnivorous must devour them all ;
The tallest summits and the broadest tides
His foot must compass with its giant strides,
Where Ocean thunders, where Missouri rolls,
And tread at once the tropics and the poles ;
His food all forms of earth, fire, water, air,
His home all space, his birthplace everywhere.

Some grave compatriot, having seen perhaps
The pictured page that goes in Worcester's Maps,
And read in earnest what was said in jest,
"Who drives fat oxen" — please to add the rest, —

Sprung the odd notion that the poet's dreams
Grow in the ratio of his hills and streams ;
And hence insisted that the aforesaid "bard,"
Pink of the future, fancy's pattern-card,
The babe of nature in the "giant West,"
Must be of course her biggest and her best.

Oh! when at length the expected bard shall come,
Land of our pride, to strike thine echoes dumb,
(And many a voice exclaims in prose and rhyme,
It's getting late, and he's behind his time,)
When all thy mountains clap their hands in joy,
And all thy cataracts thunder, "That's the boy," —
Say if with him the reign of song shall end,
And Heaven declare its final dividend !

Be calm, dear brother ! whose impassioned strain
 Comes from an alley watered by a drain ;
 The little Mincio, dribbling to the Po,
 Beats all the epics of the Hoang Ho ;
 If loved in earnest by the tuneful maid,
 Don't mind their nonsense, — never be afraid !

The nurse of poets feeds her wingèd brood
 By common firesides, on familiar food ;
 In a low hamlet, by a narrow stream,
 Where bovine rustics used to doze and dream,
 She filled young William's fiery fancy full,
 While old John Shakespeare talked of beeves and wool !

No Alpine needle, with its climbing spire,
 Brings down for mortals the Promethean fire,
 If careless nature have forgot to frame
 An altar worthy of the sacred flame.

Unblest by any save the goatherd's lines,
 Mont Blanc rose soaring through his "sea of pines ;"
 In vain the rivers from their ice-caves flash ;
 No hymn salutes them but the Ranz des Vaches,
 Till lazy Coleridge, by the morning's light,
 Gazed for a moment on the fields of white,
 And lo ! the glaciers found at length a tongue,
 Mont Blanc was vocal, and Chamouni sung !

Children of wealth or want, to each is given
 One spot of green, and all the blue of heaven !
 Enough if these their outward shows impart ;
 The rest is thine, — the scenery of the heart.

If passion's hectic in thy stanzas glow,
 Thy heart's best life-blood ebbing as they flow ;
 If with thy verse thy strength and bloom distil,
 Drained by the pulses of the fevered thrill ;
 If sound's sweet effluence polarize thy brain,
 And thoughts turn crystals in thy fluid strain, —
 Nor rolling ocean, nor the prairie's bloom,
 Nor streaming cliffs, nor rayless cavern's gloom,
 Need'st thou, young poet, to inform thy line ;
 Thy own broad signet stamps thy song divine !

Let others gaze where silvery streams are rolled,
 And chase the rainbow for its cup of gold ;
 To thee all landscapes wear a heavenly dye,
 Changed in the glance of thy prismatic eye ;
 Nature evoked thee in sublimer throes,
 For thee her inmost Arethusa flows, —
 The mighty mother's living depths are stirred, —
 Thou art the starred Osiris of the herd !

A few brief lines ; they touch on solemn chords,
 And hearts may leap to hear their honest words ;
 Yet, ere the jarring bugle-blast is blown,
 The softer lyre shall breathe its soothing tone.

New England ! proudly may thy children claim
 Their honored birthright by its humblest name !
 Cold are thy skies, but, ever fresh and clear,
 No rank malaria stains thine atmosphere ;
 No fungous weeds invade thy scanty soil,
 Scarred by the ploughshares of unslumbering toil.
 Long may the doctrines by thy sages taught,
 Raised from the quarries where their sires have wrought,

Be like the granite of thy rock-ribbed land, —
 As slow to rear, as obdurate to stand ;
 And as the ice that leaves thy crystal mine
 Chills the fierce alcohol in the Creole's wine,
 So may the doctrines of thy sober school
 Keep the hot theories of thy neighbors cool !

If ever, trampling on her ancient path,
 Cankered by treachery or inflamed by wrath,
 With smooth " Resolves " or with discordant cries,
 The mad Briareus of disunion rise,
 Chiefs of New England ! by your sires' renown,
 Dash the red torches of the rebel down !
 Flood his black hearthstone till its flames expire,
 Though your old Sachem fanned his council-fire !

But if at last, her fading cycle run,
 The tongue must forfeit what the arm has won,
 Then rise, wild Ocean ! roll thy surging shock
 Full on old Plymouth's desecrated rock !
 Scale the proud shaft degenerate hands have hewn,
 Where bleeding Valor stained the flowers of June !
 Sweep in one tide her spires and turrets down,
 And howl her dirge above Monadnock's crown !

List not the tale ; the Pilgrim's hallowed shore,
 Though strewn with weeds, is granite at the core ;
 Oh, rather trust that He who made her free
 Will keep her true as long as faith shall be !

Farewell ! yet lingering through the destined hour,
 Leave, sweet Enchantress, one memorial flower !

An Angel, floating o'er the waste of snow
That clad our Western desert, long ago,
(The same fair spirit who, unseen by day,
Shone as a star along the Mayflower's way,) —
Sent, the first herald of the Heavenly plan,
To choose on earth a resting-place for man, —
Tired with his flight along the unvaried field,
Turned to soar upwards, when his glance revealed
A calm, bright bay enclosed in rocky bounds,
And at its entrance stood three sister mounds.

The Angel spake: "This threefold hill shall be
The home of Arts, the nurse of Liberty!
One stately summit from its shaft shall pour
Its deep-red blaze along the darkened shore;
Emblem of thoughts that, kindling far and wide,
In danger's night shall be a nation's guide.
One swelling crest the citadel shall crown,
Its slanted bastions black with battle's frown,
And bid the sons that tread its scowling heights
Bare their strong arms for man and all his rights!
One silent steep along the northern wave
Shall hold the patriarch's and the hero's grave;
When fades the torch, when o'er the peaceful scene
The embattled fortress smiles in living green,
The cross of Faith, the anchor staff of Hope,
Shall stand eternal on its grassy slope;
There through all time shall faithful Memory tell,
'Here Virtue toiled, and Patriot Valor fell;
Thy free, proud fathers slumber at thy side;
Live as they lived, or perish as they died!'"

AN AFTER-DINNER POEM

(TERPSICHORE)

Read at the Annual Dinner of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, at Cambridge, August 24, 1843.

IN narrowest girdle, O reluctant Muse,
In closest frock and Cinderella shoes,
Bound to the foot-lights for thy brief display,
One zephyr step, and then dissolve away !

---

Short is the space that gods and men can spare
To Song's twin brother when she is not there.
Let others water every lusty line,
As Homer's heroes did their purple wine ;
Pierian revellers ! Know in strains like these
The native juice, the real honest squeeze, —
Strains that, diluted to the twentieth power,
In yon grave temple might have filled an hour.
Small room for Fancy's many-chorded lyre,
For Wit's bright rockets with their trains of fire,
For Pathos, struggling vainly to surprise
The iron tutor's tear-denying eyes,
For Mirth, whose finger with delusive wile
Turns the grim key of many a rusty smile,
For Satire, emptying his corrosive flood
On hissing Folly's gas-exhaling brood,
The pun, the fun, the moral, and the joke,
The hit, the thrust, the pugilistic poke, —

Small space for these, so pressed by niggard Time,
Like that false matron, known to nursery rhyme, —
Insidious Morey, — scarce her tale begun,
Ere listening infants weep the story done.

Oh, had we room to rip the mighty bags
That Time, the harlequin, has stuffed with rags !
Grant us one moment to unloose the strings,
While the old graybeard shuts his leather wings.
But what a heap of motley trash appears
Crammed in the bundles of successive years !
As the lost rustic on some festal day
Stares through the concourse in its vast array, —
Where in one cake a throng of faces runs,
All stuck together like a sheet of buns, —
And throws the bait of some unheeded name,
Or shoots a wink with most uncertain aim,
So roams my vision, wandering over all,
And strives to choose, but knows not where to fall.

Skins of flayed authors, husks of dead reviews,
The turn-coat's clothes, the office-seeker's shoes,
Scraps from cold feasts, where conversation runs
Through mouldy toasts to oxidated puns,
And grating songs a listening crowd endures,
Rasped from the throats of bellowing amateurs ;
Sermons, whose writers played such dangerous tricks
Their own heresiarchs called them heretics, (Strange that one term such distant poles should link,
The Priestleyan's copper and the Puseyan's zinc) ;
Poems that shuffle with superfluous legs

A blindfold minuet over addled eggs,
 Where all the syllables that end in èd,
 Like old dragoons, have cuts across the head ;
 Essays so dark Champollion might despair
 To guess what mummy of a thought was there,
 Where our poor English, striped with foreign phrase,
 Looks like a zebra in a parson's chaise ;
 Lectures that cut our dinners down to roots,
 Or prove (by monkeys) men should stick to fruits, —

Delusive error, as at trifling charge
 Professor Gripes will certify at large ;
 Mesmeric pamphlets, which to facts appeal,
 Each fact as slippery as a fresh-caught eel ;
 And figured heads, whose hieroglyphs invite
 To wandering knaves that discount fools at sight :
 Such things as these, with heaps of unpaid bills,
 And candy puffs and homœopathic pills,
 And ancient bell-crowns with contracted rim,
 And bonnets hideous with expanded brim,
 And coats whose memory turns the sartor pale,
 Their sequels tapering like a lizard's tale, —
 How might we spread them to the smiling day,
 And toss them, fluttering like the new-mown hay,
 To laughter's light or sorrow's pitying shower,
 Were these brief minutes lengthened to an hour.

The narrow moments fit like Sunday shoes, —
 How vast the heap, how quickly must we choose !
 A few small scraps from out his mountain mass
 We snatch in haste, and let the vagrant pass.

This shrunken CRUST that Cerberus could not bite,
Stamped (in one corner) "Pickwick copyright,"
Kneaded by youngsters, raised by flattery's yeast,
Was once a loaf, and helped to make a feast.
He for whose sake the glittering show appears
Has sown the world with laughter and with tears,
And they whose welcome wets the bumper's brim
Have wit and wisdom, — for they all quote him.
So, many a tongue the evening hour prolongs
With spangled speeches, — let alone the songs ;
Statesmen grow merry, lean attorneys laugh,
And weak teetotals warm to half and half,
And beardless Tullys, new to festive scenes,
Cut their first crop of youth's precocious greens,
And wits stand ready for impromptu claps,
With loaded barrels and percussion caps,
And Pathos, cantering through the minor keys,
Waves all her onions to the trembling breeze ;
While the great Feasted views with silent glee
His scattered limbs in Yankee fricassee.

Sweet is the scene where genial friendship plays
The pleasing game of interchanging praise.
Self-love, grimalkin of the human heart,
Is ever pliant to the master's art ;
Soothed with a word, she peacefully withdraws
And sheathes in velvet her obnoxious claws,
And thrills the hand that smooths her glossy fur
With the light tremor of her grateful purr.

But what sad music fills the quiet hall,
If on her back a feline rival fall !

And oh, what noises shake the tranquil house
If old Self-interest cheats her of a mouse!

Thou, O my country, hast thy foolish ways,
Too apt to purr at every stranger's praise;
But if the stranger touch thy modes or laws,
Off goes the velvet and out come the claws!
And thou, Illustrious! but too poorly paid
In toasts from Pickwick for thy great crusade,
Though, while the echoes labored with thy name,
The public trap denied thy little game,
Let other lips our jealous laws revile, —
The marble Talfourd or the rude Carlyle, —
But on thy lids, which Heaven forbids to close
Where'er the light of kindly nature glows,
Let not the dollars that a churl denies
Weigh like the shillings on a dead man's eyes!
Or, if thou wilt, be more discreetly blind,
Nor ask to see all wide extremes combined.
Not in our wastes the dainty blossoms smile
That crowd the gardens of thy scanty isle.
There white-cheeked Luxury weaves a thousand charms;

Here sun-browned Labor swings his naked arms.
Long are the furrows he must trace between
The ocean's azure and the prairie's green;
Full many a blank his destined realm displays,
Yet sees the promise of his riper days:
Far through yon depths the panting engine moves,
His chariots ringing in their steel-shod grooves;
And Erie's naiad flings her diamond wave
O'er the wild sea-nymph in her distant cave!

While tasks like these employ his anxious hours,
What if his cornfields are not edged with flowers ?
Though bright as silver the meridian beams
Shine through the crystal of thine English streams,
Turbid and dark the mighty wave is whirled
That drains our Andes and divides a world !

But lo ! a PARCHMENT ! Surely it would seem
The sculptured impress speaks of power supreme ;
Some grave design the solemn page must claim
That shows so broadly an emblazoned name.
A sovereign's promise ! Look, the lines afford
All Honor gives when Caution asks his word :
There sacred Faith has laid her snow-white hands,
And awful Justice knit her iron bands ;
Yet every leaf is stained with treachery's dye,
And every letter crusted with a lie.
Alas ! no treason has degraded yet
The Arab's salt, the Indian's calumet ;
A simple rite, that bears the wanderer's pledge,
Blunts the keen shaft and turns the dagger's edge ;
While jockeying senates stop to sign and seal,
And freeborn statesmen legislate to steal.
Rise, Europe, tottering with thine Atlas load,
Turn thy proud eye to Freedom's blest abode,
And round her forehead, wreathed with heavenly
flame,
Bind the dark garland of her daughter's shame !
Ye ocean clouds, that wrap the angry blast,
Coil her stained ensign round its haughty mast,
Or tear the fold that wears so foul a scar,
And drive a bolt through every blackened star !

Once more, — once only, — we must stop so soon :

What have we here ? A GERMAN-SILVER SPOON ;
 A cheap utensil, which we often see
 Used by the dabblers in æsthetic tea,
 Of slender fabric, somewhat light and thin,
 Made of mixed metal, chiefly lead and tin ;
 The bowl is shallow, and the handle small,
 Marked in large letters with the name JEAN PAUL.
 Small as it is, its powers are passing strange,
 For all who use it show a wondrous change ;
 And first, a fact to make the barbers stare,
 It beats Macassar for the growth of hair.
 See those small youngsters whose expansive ears
 Maternal kindness grazed with frequent shears ;
 Each bristling crop a dangling mass becomes,
 And all the spoonies turn to Absaloms !
 Nor this alone its magic power displays,
 It alters strangely all their works and ways ;
 With uncouth words they tire their tender lungs,
 The same bald phrases on their hundred tongues :
 “ Ever ” “ The Ages ” in their page appear,
 “ Alway ” the bedlamite is called a “ Seer ; ”
 On every leaf the “ earnest ” sage may scan,
 Portentous bore ! their “ many-sided ” man, —
 A weak eclectic, groping vague and dim,
 Whose every angle is a half-starved whim,
 Blind as a mole and curious as a lynx,
 Who rides a beetle, which he calls a “ Sphinx.”
 And oh, what questions asked in clubfoot rhyme
 Of Earth the tongueless and the deaf-mute Time !

Here babbling "Insight" shouts in Nature's ears
His last conundrum on the orbs and spheres ;
There Self-inspection sucks its little thumb,
With "Whence am I?" and "Wherefore did I come?"

Deluded infants! will they ever know
Some doubts must darken o'er the world below,
Though all the Platos of the nursery trail
Their "clouds of glory" at the go-cart's tail?
Oh might these couplets their attention claim
That gain their author the Philistine's name!
(A stubborn race, that, spurning foreign law,
Was much belabored with an ass's jaw.)

Melodious Laura! From the sad retreats
That hold thee, smothered with excess of sweets,
Shade of a shadow, spectre of a dream,
Glance thy wan eye across the Stygian stream!
The slipshod dreamer treads thy fragrant halls,
The sophist's cobwebs hang thy roseate walls,
And o'er the crotchets of thy jingling tunes
The bard of mystery scrawls his crooked "runes."
Yes, thou art gone, with all the tuneful hordes
That candied thoughts in amber-colored words,
And in the precincts of thy late abodes
The clattering verse-wright hammers Orphic odes.
Thou, soft as zephyr, wast content to fly
On the gilt pinions of a balmy sigh ;
He, vast as Phœbus on his burning wheels,
Would stride through ether at Orion's heels.
Thy emblem, Laura, was a perfume-jar,
And thine, young Orpheus, is a pewter star.

The balance trembles, — be its verdict told
When the new jargon slumbers with the old !

---

Cease, playful goddess! From thine airy bound
Drop like a feather softly to the ground ;
This light bolero grows a ticklish dance,
And there is mischief in thy kindling glance.
To-morrow bids thee, with rebuking frown,
Change thy gauze tunic for a home-made gown,
Too blest by fortune if the passing day
Adorn thy bosom with its frail bouquet,
But oh, still happier if the next forgets
Thy daring steps and dangerous pirouettes !

MEDICAL POEMS

THE MORNING VISIT

A SICK man's chamber, though it often boast
The grateful presence of a literal toast,
Can hardly claim, amidst its various wealth,
The right unchallenged to propose a health;
Yet though its tenant is denied the feast,
Friendship must launch his sentiment at least,
As prisoned damsels, locked from lovers' lips,
Toss them a kiss from off their fingers' tips.

The morning visit, — not till sickness falls
In the charmed circles of your own safe walls;
Till fever's throb and pain's relentless rack
Stretch you all helpless on your aching back;
Not till you play the patient in your turn,
The morning visit's mystery shall you learn.

'T is a small matter in your neighbor's case,
To charge your fee for showing him your face;
You skip up-stairs, inquire, inspect, and touch,
Prescribe, take leave, and off to twenty such.

But when at length, by fate's transferred decree,
The visitor becomes the visitée,

Oh, then, indeed, it pulls another string ;
 Your ox is gored, and that 's a different thing !
 Your friend is sick : phlegmatic as a Turk,
 You write your recipe and let it work ;
 Not yours to stand the shiver and the frown,
 And sometimes worse, with which your draught goes down.

Calm as a clock your knowing hand directs,
Rhei, jalapæ ana grana sex,
 Or traces on some tender missive's back,
Scrupulos duos pulveris ipecac ;
 And leaves your patient to his qualms and gripes,
 Cool as a sportsman banging at his snipes.
 But change the time, the person, and the place,
 And be yourself "the interesting case,"
 You'll gain some knowledge which it's well to learn ;

In future practice it may serve your turn.
 Leeches, for instance, — pleasing creatures quite ;
 Try them, — and bless you, — don't you find they bite ?

You raise a blister for the smallest cause,
 But be yourself the sitter whom it draws,
 And trust my statement, you will not deny
 The worst of draughtsmen is your Spanish fly !
 It's mighty easy ordering when you please,
Infusi sennæ capiat uncias tres ;
 It's mighty different when you quackle down
 Your own three ounces of the liquid brown.
Pilula, pulvis, — pleasant words enough,
 When other throats receive the shocking stuff ;
 But oh, what flattery can disguise the groan

That meets the gulp which sends it through your own!

Be gentle, then, though Art's unsparing rules
Give you the handling of her sharpest tools;
Use them not rashly, — sickness is enough;
Be always "ready," but be never "rough."

Of all the ills that suffering man endures,
The largest fraction liberal Nature cures;
Of those remaining, 't is the smallest part
Yields to the efforts of judicious Art;
But simple Kindness, kneeling by the bed
To shift the pillow for the sick man's head,
Give the fresh draught to cool the lips that burn,
Fan the hot brow, the weary frame to turn, —
Kindness, untutored by our grave M. D.'s,
But Nature's graduate, when she schools to please,
Wins back more sufferers with her voice and smile
Than all the trumpery in the druggist's pile.

Once more, be quiet: coming up the stair,
Don't be a plantigrade, a human bear,
But, stealing softly on the silent toe,
Reach the sick chamber ere you're heard below.
Whatever changes there may greet your eyes,
Let not your looks proclaim the least surprise;
It's not your business by your face to show
All that your patient does not want to know;
Nay, use your optics with considerate care,
And don't abuse your privilege to stare.
But if your eyes may probe him overmuch,
Beware still further how you rudely touch;

Don't clutch his carpus in your icy fist,
 But warm your fingers ere you take the wrist.
 If the poor victim needs must be percussed,
 Don't make an anvil of his aching bust ;
 (Doctors exist within a hundred miles
 Who thump a thorax as they 'd hammer piles ;) )
 If you must listen to his doubtful chest,
 Catch the essentials, and ignore the rest.
 Spare him ; the sufferer wants of you and art
 A track to steer by, not a finished chart.
 So of your questions : don't in mercy try
 To pump your patient absolutely dry ;
 He 's not a mollusk squirming in a dish,
 You 're not Agassiz, and he 's not a fish.

And last, not least, in each perplexing case,
 Learn the sweet magic of a cheerful face ;
 Not always smiling, but at least serene,
 When grief and anguish cloud the anxious scene.
 Each look, each movement, every word and tone,
 Should tell your patient you are all his own ;
 Not the mere artist, purchased to attend,
 But the warm, ready, self-forgetting friend,
 Whose genial visit in itself combines
 The best of cordials, tonics, anodynes.

Such is the visit that from day to day
 Sheds o'er my chamber its benignant ray.
 I give his health, who never cared to claim
 Her babbling homage from the tongue of Fame ;
 Unmoved by praise, he stands by all confest,
 The truest, noblest, wisest, kindest, best.

THE TWO ARMIES

As Life's unending column pours,
Two marshalled hosts are seen, —
Two armies on the trampled shores
That Death flows black between.

One marches to the drum-beat's roll,
The wide-mouthed clarion's bray,
And bears upon a crimson scroll,
"Our glory is to slay."

One moves in silence by the stream,
With sad, yet watchful eyes,
Calm as the patient planet's gleam
That walks the clouded skies.

Along its front no sabres shine,
No blood-red pennons wave ;
Its banner bears the single line,
"Our duty is to save."

For those no death-bed's lingering shade ;
At Honor's trumpet-call,
With knitted brow and lifted blade
In Glory's arms they fall.

For these no clashing falchions bright,
No stirring battle-cry ;
The bloodless stabber calls by night, —
Each answers, "Here am I!"

For those the sculptor's laurelled bust,
The builder's marble piles,
The anthems pealing o'er their dust
Through long cathedral aisles.

For these the blossom-sprinkled turf
That floods the lonely graves
When Spring rolls in her sea-green surf
In flowery-foaming waves.

Two paths lead upward from below,
And angels wait above,
Who count each burning life-drop's flow,
Each falling tear of Love.

Though from the Hero's bleeding breast
Her pulses Freedom drew,
Though the white lilies in her crest
Sprang from that scarlet dew, —

While Valor's haughty champions wait
Till all their scars are shown,
Love walks unchallenged through the gate,
To sit beside the Throne !

THE STETHOSCOPE SONG

A PROFESSIONAL BALLAD

THERE was a young man in Boston town,
He bought him a stethoscope nice and new,
All mounted and finished and polished down,
With an ivory cap and a stopper too.

It happened a spider within did crawl,
And spun him a web of ample size,
Wherein there chanced one day to fall
A couple of very imprudent flies.

The first was a bottle-fly, big and blue,
The second was smaller, and thin and long ;
So there was a concert between the two,
Like an octave flute and a tavern gong.

Now being from Paris but recently,
This fine young man would show his skill ;
And so they gave him, his hand to try,
A hospital patient extremely ill.

Some said that his liver was short of bile,
And some that his heart was over size,
While some kept arguing, all the while,
He was crammed with tubercles up to his eyes.

This fine young man then up stepped he,
And all the doctors made a pause ;
Said he, The man must die, you see,
By the fifty-seventh of Louis's laws.

But since the case is a desperate one,
To explore his chest it may be well ;
For if he should die and it were not done,
You know the autopsy would not tell.

Then out his stethoscope he took,
And on it placed his curious ear ;

Mon Dieu! said he, with a knowing look,
Why, here is a sound that 's mighty queer!

The bourdonnement is very clear, —
Amphoric buzzing, as I 'm alive!
Five doctors took their turn to hear;
Amphoric buzzing, said all the five.

There 's empyema beyond a doubt;
We 'll plunge a trocar in his side.
The diagnosis was made out, —
They tapped the patient; so he died.

Now such as hate new-fashioned toys
Began to look extremely glum;
They said that rattles were made for boys,
And vowed that his buzzing was all a hum.

There was an old lady had long been sick,
And what was the matter none did know:
Her pulse was slow, though her tongue was quick;
To her this knowing youth must go.

So there the nice old lady sat,
With phials and boxes all in a row;
She asked the young doctor what he was at,
To thump her and tumble her ruffles so.

Now, when the stethoscope came out,
The flies began to buzz and whiz:
Oh ho! the matter is clear, no doubt;
An aneurism there plainly is.

The bruit de râpe and the bruit de scie
And the bruit de diable are all combined ;
How happy Bouillaud would be,
If he a case like this could find !

Now, when the neighboring doctors found
A case so rare had been descried,
They every day her ribs did pound
In squads of twenty ; so she died.

Then six young damsels, slight and frail,
Received this kind young doctor's cares ;
They all were getting slim and pale,
And short of breath on mounting stairs.

They all made rhymes with " sighs " and " skies,"
And loathed their puddings and buttered rolls,
And dieted, much to their friends' surprise,
On pickles and pencils and chalk and coals.

So fast their little hearts did bound,
The frightened insects buzzed the more ;
So over all their chests he found
The rôle sifflant and the rôle sonore.

He shook his head. There's grave disease, —
I greatly fear you all must die ;
A slight post-mortem, if you please,
Surviving friends would gratify.

The six young damsels wept aloud,
Which so prevailed on six young men

That each his honest love avowed,
Whereat they all got well again.

This poor young man was all aghast ;
The price of stethoscopes came down ;
And so he was reduced at last
To practise in a country town.

The doctors being very sore,
A stethoscope they did devise
That had a rammer to clear the bore,
With a knob at the end to kill the flies.

Now use your ears, all you that can,
But don't forget to mind your eyes,
Or you may be cheated, like this young man,
By a couple of silly, abnormal flies.

EXTRACTS FROM A MEDICAL POEM

THE STABILITY OF SCIENCE

THE feeble sea-birds, blinded in the storms,
On some tall lighthouse dash their little forms,
And the rude granite scatters for their pains
Those small deposits that were meant for brains.
Yet the proud fabric in the morning's sun
Stands all unconscious of the mischief done ;
Still the red beacon pours its evening rays
For the lost pilot with as full a blaze, —
Nay, shines, all radiance, o'er the scattered fleet
Of gulls and boobies brainless at its feet.

I tell their fate, though courtesy disclaims
 To call our kind by such ungentle names ;
 Yet, if your rashness bid you vainly dare,
 Think of their doom, ye simple, and beware !

See where aloft its hoary forehead rears
 The towering pride of twice a thousand years !
 Far, far below the vast incumbent pile
 Sleeps the gray rock from art's Ægean isle
 Its massive courses, circling as they rise,
 Swell from the waves to mingle with the skies ;
 There every quarry lends its marble spoil,
 And clustering ages blend their common toil ;
 The Greek, the Roman, reared its ancient walls,
 The silent Arab arched its mystic halls ;
 In that fair niche, by countless billows laved,
 Trace the deep lines that Sydenham engraved ;
 On yon broad front that breasts the changing swell,

Mark where the ponderous sledge of Hunter fell ;
 By that square buttress look where Louis stands,
 The stone yet warm from his uplifted hands ;
 And say, O Science, shall thy life-blood freeze,
 When fluttering folly flaps on walls like these ?

A PORTRAIT

Thoughtful in youth, but not austere in age ;
 Calm, but not cold, and cheerful though a sage ;
 Too true to flatter and too kind to sneer,
 And only just when seemingly severe ;
 So gently blending courtesy and art
 That wisdom's lips seemed borrowing friendship's heart.

Taught by the sorrows that his age had known
 In others' trials to forget his own,
 As hour by hour his lengthened day declined,
 A sweeter radiance lingered o'er his mind.
 Cold were the lips that spoke his early praise,
 And hushed the voices of his morning days,
 Yet the same accents dwelt on every tongue,
 And love renewing kept him ever young.

A SENTIMENT

Ὁ βίος βραχύς, — life is but a song ;
 Ἡ τέχνη μακρὴ, — art is wondrous long ;
 Yet to the wise her paths are ever fair,
 And Patience smiles, though Genius may despair.

Give us but knowledge, though by slow degrees,
 And blend our toil with moments bright as these ;
 Let Friendship's accents cheer our doubtful way,
 And Love's pure planet lend its guiding ray, —
 Our tardy Art shall wear an angel's wings,
 And life shall lengthen with the joy it brings !

A POEM

FOR THE MEETING OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCI-ATION AT NEW YORK, MAY 5, 1853

I HOLD a letter in my hand, —
 A flattering letter, more 's the pity, —
 By some contriving junto planned,
 And signed per order of Committee.

It touches every tenderest spot, —
 My patriotic predilections,
 My well-known — something — don't ask what, —
 My poor old songs, my kind affections.

They make a feast on Thursday next,
 And hope to make the feasters merry ;
 They own they 're something more perplexed
 For poets than for port and sherry.
 They want the men of — (word torn out) ;
 Our friends will come with anxious faces,
 (To see our blankets off, no doubt,
 And trot us out and show our paces.)

They hint that papers by the score
 Are rather musty kind of rations, —
 They don't exactly mean a bore,
 But only trying to the patience ;
 That such as — you know who I mean —
 Distinguished for their — what d' ye call 'em—
 Should bring the dews of Hippocrene
 To sprinkle on the faces solemn.

— The same old story : that 's the chaff
 To catch the birds that sing the ditties ;
 Upon my soul, it makes me laugh
 To read these letters from Committees !
 They 're all so loving and so fair, —
 All for your sake such kind compunction ;
 'T would save your carriage half its wear
 To touch its wheels with such an unction !

Why, who am I, to lift me here
 And beg such learned folk to listen,
 To ask a smile, or coax a tear
 Beneath these stoic lids to glisten?
 As well might some arterial thread
 Ask the whole frame to feel it gushing,
 While throbbing fierce from heel to head
 The vast aortic tide was rushing.

As well some hair-like nerve might strain
 To set its special streamlet going,
 While through the myriad-channelled brain
 The burning flood of thought was flowing;
 Or trembling fibre strive to keep
 The springing haunches gathered shorter,
 While the scourged racer, leap on leap,
 Was stretching through the last hot quarter!

Ah me! you take the bud that came
 Self-sown in your poor garden's borders,
 And hand it to the stately dame
 That florists breed for, all she orders.
She thanks you, — it was kindly meant, —
(A pale affair, not worth the keeping,) —
Good morning; and your bud is sent
 To join the tea-leaves used for sweeping.

Not always so, kind hearts and true, —
 For such I know are round me beating;
 Is not the bud I offer you,
 Fresh gathered for the hour of meeting,

Pale though its outer leaves may be,
Rose-red in all its inner petals? —
Where the warm life we cannot see —
The life of love that gave it — settles.

We meet from regions far away,
Like rills from distant mountains streaming ;
The sun is on Francisco's bay,
O'er Chesapeake the lighthouse gleaming ;
While summer girds the still bayou
In chains of bloom, her bridal token,
Monadnock sees the sky grow blue,
His crystal bracelet yet unbroken.

Yet Nature bears the selfsame heart
Beneath her russet-mantled bosom
As where, with burning lips apart,
She breathes and white magnolias blossom ;
The selfsame founts her chalice fill
With showery sunlight running over,
On fiery plain and frozen hill,
On myrtle-beds and fields of clover.

I give you Home! its crossing lines
United in one golden suture,
And showing every day that shines
The present growing to the future, —
A flag that bears a hundred stars
In one bright ring, with love for centre,
Fenced round with white and crimson bars
No prowling treason dares to enter !

O brothers, home may be a word
 To make affection's living treasure,
 The wave an angel might have stirred,
 A stagnant pool of selfish pleasure ;
HOME! It is where the day-star springs
 And where the evening sun reposes,
 Where'er the eagle spreads his wings,
 From northern pines to southern roses !

A SENTIMENT

A TRIPLE health to Friendship, Science, Art,
 From heads and hands that own a common heart !
 Each in its turn the others' willing slave,
 Each in its season strong to heal and save.

Friendship's blind service, in the hour of need,
 Wipes the pale face, and lets the victim bleed.
 Science must stop to reason and explain ;
ART claps his finger on the streaming vein.

But Art's brief memory fails the hand at last ;
 Then SCIENCE lifts the flambeau of the past.
 When both their equal impotence deplore,
 When Learning sighs, and Skill can do no more,
 The tear of FRIENDSHIP pours its heavenly balm,
 And soothes the pang no anodyne may calm !

May 1, 1855.

RIP VAN WINKLE, M. D.

AN AFTER-DINNER PRESCRIPTION TAKEN BY THE MASSACHUSETTS MEDICAL SOCIETY, AT THEIR MEETING HELD MAY 25, 1870

CANTO FIRST

OLD Rip Van Winkle had a grandson, Rip,
Of the paternal block a genuine chip, —
A lazy, sleepy, curious kind of chap;
He, like his grandsire, took a mighty nap,
Whereof the story I propose to tell
In two brief cantos, if you listen well.

The times were hard when Rip to manhood grew;
They always will be when there 's work to do.
He tried at farming, — found it rather slow, —
And then at teaching — what he did n't know;
Then took to hanging round the tavern bars,
To frequent toddies and long-nine cigars,
Till Dame Van Winkle, out of patience, vexed
With preaching homilies, having for their text
A mop, a broomstick, aught that might avail
To point a moral or adorn a tale,
Exclaimed, "I have it! Now, then, Mr. V.!
He 's good for something, — make him an M. D.!"

The die was cast; the youngster was content;
They packed his shirts and stockings, and he went.
How hard he studied it were vain to tell;
He drowsed through Wistar, nodded over Bell,

Slept sound with Cooper, snored aloud on Good ;
 Heard heaps of lectures, — doubtless understood, —
 A constant listener, for he did not fail
 To carve his name on every bench and rail.

Months grew to years ; at last he counted three,
 And Rip Van Winkle found himself M. D.
 Illustrious title ! in a gilded frame
 He set the sheepskin with his Latin name,
 RIPUM VAN WINKLUM, QUEM WE — SCIMUS — know
 IDONEUM ESSE — to do so and so.

He hired an office ; soon its walls displayed
 His new diploma and his stock in trade,
 A mighty arsenal to subdue disease,
 Of various names, whereof I mention these :
 Lancets and bougies, great and little squirt,
 Rhubarb and Senna, Snakeroot, Thoroughwort,
 Ant. Tart., Vin. Colch., Pil. Cochixæ, and Black Drop,

Tinctures of Opium, Gentian, Henbane, Hop,
 Pulv. Ipecacuanhæ, which for lack
 Of breath to utter men call Ipecac,
 Camphor and Kino, Turpentine, Tolu,
 Cubebs, “ Copeevy,” Vitriol, — white and blue, —
 Fennel and Flaxseed, Slippery Elm and Squill,
 And roots of Sassafras, and “ Sassaf’rill,” Brandy, — for colics, — Pinkroot, death on worms, —
 Valerian, calmer of hysteric squirms,
 Musk, Assafœtida, the resinous gum
 Named from its odor, — well, it does smell some, —
 Jalap, that works not wisely, but too well,
 Ten pounds of Bark and six of Calomel.

For outward griefs he had an ample store,
 Some twenty jars and gallipots, or more :
Ceratum simplex — housewives oft compile
 The same at home, and call it “ wax and ile ; ”
Unguentum resinosum — change its name,
 The “ drawing salve ” of many an ancient dame ;
Argenti Nitras, also Spanish flies,
 Whose virtue makes the water-bladders rise —
 (Some say that spread upon a toper’s skin
 They draw no water, only rum or gin) ;
 Leeches, sweet vermin ! don’t they charm the sick ?
 And Sticking-plaster — how it hates to stick !
Emplastrum Ferri — ditto Picis, Pitch ;
 Washes and Powders, Brimstone for the — which,
Scabies or Psora, is thy chosen name
 Since Hahnemann’s goose-quill scratched thee into fame,
 Proved thee the source of every nameless ill,
 Whose sole specific is a moonshine pill,
 Till saucy Science, with a quiet grin,
 Held up the Acarus, crawling on a pin ?
 — Mountains have labored and have brought forth
     mice :
 The Dutchman’s theory hatched a brood of — twice
 I’ve wellnigh said them — words unfitting quite
 For these fair precincts and for ears polite.

The surest foot may chance at last to slip,
 And so at length it proved with Doctor Rip.
 One full-sized bottle stood upon the shelf,
 Which held the medicine that he took himself ;
 Whate’er the reason, it must be confessed
 He filled that bottle oftener than the rest ;

What drug it held I don't presume to know —
The gilded label said "Elixir Pro."

One day the Doctor found the bottle full,
And, being thirsty, took a vigorous pull,
Put back the "Elixir" where 't was always found,
And had old Dobbin saddled and brought round.
— You know those old-time rhubarb-colored nags
That carried Doctors and their saddle-bags;
Sagacious beasts! they stopped at every place
Where blinds were shut — knew every patient's case —

Looked up and thought — The baby's in a fit —
That won't last long — he'll soon be through with it;

But shook their heads before the knocked door
Where some old lady told the story o'er
Whose endless stream of tribulation flows
For gastric griefs and peristaltic woes.

What jack-o'-lantern led him from his way,
And where it led him, it were hard to say;
Enough that wandering many a weary mile
Through paths the mountain sheep trod single file,
O'ercome by feelings such as patients know
Who dose too freely with "Elixir Pro.,"
He tumbled — dismounted, slightly in a heap,
And lay, promiscuous, lapped in balmy sleep.

Night followed night, and day succeeded day,
But snoring still the slumbering Doctor lay.
Poor Dobbin, starving, thought upon his stall,
And straggled homeward, saddle-bags and all.

The village people hunted all around,
 But Rip was missing, — never could be found.
 “Drowneded,” they guessed; — for more than half a year
 The pouts and eels did taste uncommon queer;
 Some said of apple-brandy — other some
 Found a strong flavor of New England rum.

Why can't a fellow hear the fine things said
 About a fellow when a fellow 's dead?
 The best of doctors — so the press declared —
 A public blessing while his life was spared,
 True to his country, bounteous to the poor,
 In all things temperate, sober, just, and pure;
 The best of husbands! echoed Mrs. Van,
 And set her cap to catch another man.

So ends this Canto — if it 's quantum suff.,
 We 'll just stop here and say we 've had enough,
 And leave poor Rip to sleep for thirty years;
 I grind the organ — if you lend your ears
 To hear my second Canto, after that
 We 'll send around the monkey with the hat.

CANTO SECOND

So thirty years had passed — but not a word
 In all that time of Rip was ever heard;
 The world wagged on — it never does go back —
 The widow Van was now the widow Mac —
 France was an Empire — Andrew J. was dead,
 And Abraham L. was reigning in his stead.
 Four murderous years had passed in savage strife,
 Yet still the rebel held his bloody knife.

— At last one morning — who forgets the day
 When the black cloud of war dissolved away? —
 The joyous tidings spread o'er land and sea,
 Rebellion done for! Grant has captured Lee!
 Up every flagstaff sprang the Stars and Stripes —
 Out rushed the Extras wild with mammoth types —
 Down went the laborer's hod, the school-boy's book —

“Hooraw!” he cried, “the rebel army's took!”
 Ah! what a time! the folks all mad with joy:
 Each fond, pale mother thinking of her boy;
 Old gray-haired fathers meeting — “Have — you
 — heard?”

And then a choke — and not another word;
 Sisters all smiling — maidens, not less dear,
 In trembling poise between a smile and tear;
 Poor Bridget thinking how she'll stuff the plums

In that big cake for Johnny when he comes;
 Cripples afoot; rheumatics on the jump;
 Old girls so loving they could hug the pump;
 Guns going bang! from every fort and ship;
 They banged so loud at last they wakened Rip.

I spare the picture, how a man appears
 Who's been asleep a score or two of years;
 You all have seen it to perfection done
 By Joe Van Wink — I mean Rip Jefferson.
 Well, so it was; old Rip at last came back,
 Claimed his old wife — the present widow Mac —
 Had his old sign regilded, and began
 To practise physic on the same old plan.

Some weeks went by — it was not long to wait —
And “please to call” grew frequent on the slate.
He had, in fact, an ancient, mildewed air,
A long gray beard, a plenteous lack of hair, —
The musty look that always recommends
Your good old Doctor to his ailing friends.
— Talk of your science! after all is said
There ’s nothing like a bare and shiny head ;
Age lends the graces that are sure to please ;
Folks want their Doctors mouldy, like their cheese.

So Rip began to look at people’s tongues
And thump their briskets (called it “sound their lungs”),
Brushed up his knowledge smartly as he could,
Read in old Cullen and in Doctor Good.
The town was healthy ; for a month or two
He gave the sexton little work to do.

About the time when dog-day heats begin,
The summer’s usual maladies set in ;
With autumn evenings dysentery came,
And dusky typhoid lit his smouldering flame ;
The blacksmith ailed, the carpenter was down,
And half the children sickened in the town.
The sexton’s face grew shorter than before —
The sexton’s wife a brand-new bonnet wore —
Things looked quite serious — Death had got a grip
On old and young, in spite of Doctor Rip.

And now the Squire was taken with a chill —
Wife gave “hot-drops” — at night an Indian pill ;
Next morning, feverish — bedtime, getting worse —

Out of his head — began to rave and curse ;
 The Doctor sent for — double quick he came :
Ant. Tart. gran. duo, and repeat the same
 If no et cetera. Third day — nothing new ;
 Percussed his thorax till 't was black and blue —
 Lung-fever threatening — something of the sort —
 Out with the lancet — let him bleed — a quart —
 Ten leeches next — then blisters to his side ;
 Ten grains of calomel ; just then he died.

The Deacon next required the Doctor's care —
 Took cold by sitting in a draught of air —
 Pains in the back, but what the matter is
 Not quite so clear, — wife calls it “rheumatiz.”
 Rubs back with flannel — gives him something hot —
 “ Ah ! ” says the Deacon, “ that goes nigh the spot.”
 Next day a rigor — “ Run, my little man,
 And say the Deacon sends for Doctor Van.”
 The Doctor came — percussion as before,
 Thumping and banging till his ribs were sore —
 “ Right side the flattest ” — then more vigorous raps —
 “ Fever — that 's certain — pleurisy, perhaps.
 A quart of blood will ease the pain, no doubt,
 Ten leeches next will help to suck it out,
 Then clap a blister on the painful part —
 But first two grains of Antimonium Tart.
 Last with a dose of cleansing calomel
 Unload the portal system — (that sounds well ! ) ”

But when the selfsame remedies were tried,
 As all the village knew, the Squire had died ;

The neighbors hinted. This will never do ;
He 's killed the Squire—he 'll kill the Deacon too."

Now when a doctor's patients are perplexed,
A consultation comes in order next —
You know what that is ? In a certain place
Meet certain doctors to discuss a case
And other matters, such as weather, crops,
Potatoes, pumpkins, lager-beer, and hops.
For what 's the use ? — there 's little to be said,
Nine times in ten your man 's as good as dead ;
At best a talk (the secret to disclose)
Where three men guess and sometimes one man knows.

The counsel summoned came without delay —
Young Doctor Green and shrewd old Doctor
Gray —
They heard the story — "Bleed !" says Doctor
Green,
"That 's downright murder ! cut his throat, you mean !
Leeches ! the reptiles ! Why, for pity's sake,
Not try an adder or a rattlesnake ?
Blisters ! Why bless you, they 're against the law —
It 's rank assault and battery if they draw !
Tartrate of Antimony ! shade of Luke,
Stomachs turn pale at thought of such rebuke !
The portal system ! What 's the man about ?
Unload your nonsense ! Calomel 's played out !
You 've been asleep — you 'd better sleep away
Till some one calls you."

“Stop!” says Doctor Gray —
 “The story is you slept for thirty years ;
 With brother Green, I own that it appears
 You must have slumbered most amazing sound ;
 But sleep once more till thirty years come round,
 You ’ll find the lancet in its honored place,
 Leeches and blisters rescued from disgrace,
 Your drugs redeemed from fashion’s passing scorn,
 And counted safe to give to babes unborn.”

Poor sleepy Rip, M. M. S. S., M. D.,
 A puzzled, serious, saddened man was he ;
 Home from the Deacon’s house he plodded slow
 And filled one bumper of “Elixir Pro.”
 “Good-by,” he faltered, “Mrs. Van, my dear !
 I ’m going to sleep, but wake me once a year ;
 I don’t like bleaching in the frost and dew,
 I ’ll take the barn, if all the same to you.
 Just once a year — remember ! no mistake !
 Cry, ‘Rip Van Winkle ! time for you to wake !’
 Watch for the week in May when laylocks blow,
 For then the Doctors meet, and I must go.”

Just once a year the Doctor’s worthy dame
 Goes to the barn and shouts her husband’s name ;
 “Come, Rip Van Winkle !” (giving him a shake)
 “Rip ! Rip Van Winkle ! time for you to wake !
 Laylocks in blossom ! ’t is the month of May —
 The Doctors’ meeting is this blessed day,
 And come what will, you know I heard you swear
 You ’d never miss it, but be always there !”

And so it is, as every year comes round
Old Rip Van Winkle here is always found.
You 'll quickly know him by his mildewed air,
The hayseed sprinkled through his scanty hair,
The lichens growing on his rusty suit —
I've seen a toadstool sprouting on his boot —
— Who says I lie? Does any man presume? —
Toadstool? No matter — call it a mushroom.
Where is his seat? He moves it every year;
But look, you 'll find him, — he is always here, —
Perhaps you 'll track him by a whiff you know —
A certain flavor of “Elixir Pro.”

Now, then, I give you — as you seem to think
We can give toasts without a drop to drink —
Health to the mighty sleeper, — long live he!
Our brother Rip, M. M. S. S., M. D.!

SONGS IN MANY KEYS

1849-1861

PROLOGUE

THE piping of our slender, peaceful reeds
Whispers uncared for while the trumpets bray ;
Song is thin air ; our hearts' exulting play
Beats time but to the tread of marching deeds,
Following the mighty van that Freedom leads,
Her glorious standard flaming to the day !
The crimsoned pavement where a hero bleeds
Breathes nobler lessons than the poet's lay.
Strong arms, broad breasts, brave hearts, are better worth

Than strains that sing the ravished echoes dumb.
Hark ! 't is the loud reverberating drum
Rolls o'er the prairied West, the rock-bound North :
The myriad-handed Future stretches forth
Its shadowy palms. Behold, we come, — we come !

Turn o'er these idle leaves. Such toys as these
Were not unsought for, as, in languid dreams,
We lay beside our lotus-feeding streams,
And nursed our fancies in forgetful ease.
It matters little if they pall or please,
Dropping untimely, while the sudden gleams

Glare from the mustering clouds whose blackness seems

Too swollen to hold its lightning from the trees.
Yet, in some lull of passion, when at last
These calm revolving moons that come and go —
Turning our months to years, they creep so slow —
Have brought us rest, the not unwelcome past
May flutter to thee through these leaflets, cast
On the wild winds that all around us blow.

May 1, 1861.

AGNES

The story of Sir Harry Frankland and Agnes Surriage is told in the ballad with a very strict adhesion to the facts. These were obtained from information afforded me by the Rev. Mr. Webster, of Hopkinton, in company with whom I visited the Frankland Mansion in that town, then standing; from a very interesting Memoir, by the Rev. Elias Nason, of Medford; and from the manuscript diary of Sir Harry, or more properly Sir Charles Henry Frankland, now in the library of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

At the time of the visit referred to, old Julia was living, and on our return we called at the house where she resided.<sup>1</sup> Her account is little more than paraphrased in the poem. If the incidents are treated with a certain liberality at the close of the fifth part, the essential fact that Agnes rescued Sir Harry from the ruins after the earthquake, and their subsequent marriage as related, may be accepted as literal truth. So with regard to most of the trifling details which are given; they are taken from the record.

It is greatly to be regretted that the Frankland Mansion no longer exists. It was accidentally burned on the 23d of January, 1858, a year or two after the first sketch of this ballad was written. A visit to it was like stepping out of the century into the years before the Revolution. A new house, similar in plan and arrangements to the old one, has been built upon its site, and the terraces, the clump of box, and the lilacs doubtless remain to bear witness to the truth of this story.

The story, which I have told literally in rhyme, has been made the subject of a carefully studied and interesting romance by Mr. E. L. Bynner.

PART FIRST

THE KNIGHT

THE tale I tell is gospel true,
 As all the bookmen know,
 And pilgrims who have strayed to view
 The wrecks still left to show.

The old, old story, — fair, and young,
 And fond, — and not too wise, —
 That matrons tell, with sharpened tongue,
 To maids with downcast eyes.

Ah! maidens err and matrons warn
 Beneath the coldest sky;
 Love lurks amid the tasselled corn
 As in the bearded rye!

But who would dream our sober sires
 Had learned the old world's ways,
 And warmed their hearths with lawless fires
 In Shirley's homespun days?

'T is like some poet's pictured trance
 His idle rhymes recite, —
 This old New England-born romance
 Of Agnes and the Knight;

Yet, known to all the country round,
 Their home is standing still,

Between Wachusett's lonely mound
And Shawmut's threefold hill.

One hour we rumble on the rail,
One half-hour guide the rein,
We reach at last, o'er hill and dale,
The village on the plain.

With blackening wall and mossy roof,
With stained and warping floor,
A stately mansion stands aloof
And bars its haughty door.

This lowlier portal may be tried,
That breaks the gable wall ;
And lo ! with arches opening wide,
Sir Harry Frankland's hall !

'T was in the second George's day
They sought the forest shade,
The knotted trunks they cleared away,
The massive beams they laid,

They piled the rock-hewn chimney tall,
They smoothed the terraced ground,
They reared the marble-pillared wall
That fenced the mansion round.

Far stretched beyond the village bound
The Master's broad domain ;
With page and valet, horse and hound,
He kept a goodly train.

And, all the midland county through,
 The ploughman stopped to gaze
 Whene'er his chariot swept in view
 Behind the shining bays,

With mute obeisance, grave and slow,
 Repaid by nod polite, —
 For such the way with high and low
 Till after Concord fight.

Nor less to courtly circles known
 That graced the three-hilled town
 With far-off splendors of the Throne,
 And glimmerings from the Crown ;

Wise Phipps, who held the seals of state
 For Shirley over sea ;
 Brave Knowles, whose press-gang moved of late
 The King Street mob's decree ;

And judges grave, and colonels grand,
 Fair dames and stately men,
 The mighty people of the land,
 The " World " of there and then.

'T was strange no Chloe's " beauteous Form,"
 And " Eyes' cœlestial Blew,"
 This Strephon of the West could warm,
 No Nymph his Heart subdue !

Perchance he wooed as gallants use,
 Whom fleeting loves enchain,

But still unfettered, free to choose,
Would brook no bridle-rein.

He saw the fairest of the fair,
But smiled alike on all ;
No band his roving foot might snare,
No ring his hand enthrall.

PART SECOND

THE MAIDEN

Why seeks the knight that rocky cape
Beyond the Bay of Lynn ?
What chance his wayward course may shape
To reach its village inn ?

No story tells ; whate'er we guess,
The past lies deaf and still,
But Fate, who rules to blight or bless,
Can lead us where she will.

Make way ! Sir Harry's coach and four,
And liveried grooms that ride !
They cross the ferry, touch the shore
On Winnisimmet's side.

They hear the wash on Chelsea Beach,—
The level marsh they pass,
Where miles on miles the desert reach
Is rough with bitter grass.

The shining horses foam and pant,
And now the smells begin
Of fishy Swampscott, salt Nahant,
And leather-scented Lynn.

Next, on their left, the slender spires
And glittering vanes that crown
The home of Salem's frugal sires,
The old, witch-haunted town.

So onward, o'er the rugged way
That runs through rocks and sand,
Showered by the tempest-driven spray,
From bays on either hand,

That shut between their outstretched arms
The crews of Marblehead,
The lords of ocean's watery farms,
Who plough the waves for bread.

At last the ancient inn appears,
The spreading elm below,
Whose flapping sign these fifty years
Has seesawed to and fro.

How fair the azure fields in sight
Before the low-browed inn !
The tumbling billows fringe with light
The crescent shore of Lynn ;

Nahant thrusts outward through the waves
Her arm of yellow sand,

And breaks the roaring surge that braves
The gauntlet on her hand ;

With eddying whirl the waters lock
Yon treeless mound forlorn,
The sharp-winged sea-fowl's breeding-rock,
That fronts the Spouting Horn ;

Then free the white-sailed shallops glide,
And wide the ocean smiles,
Till, shoreward bent, his streams divide
The two bare Misery Isles.

The master's silent signal stays
The wearied cavalcade ;
The coachman reins his smoking bays
Beneath the elm-tree's shade.

A gathering on the village green !
The cocked-hats crowd to see,
On legs in ancient velveteen,
With buckles at the knee.

A clustering round the tavern-door
Of square-toed village boys,
Still wearing, as their grandsires wore,
The old-world corduroys !

A scampering at the " Fountain " inn, —
A rush of great and small, —
With hurrying servants' mingled din
And screaming matron's call !

Poor Agnes ! with her work half done
They caught her unaware ;
As, humbly, like a praying nun,
She knelt upon the stair ;

Bent o'er the steps, with lowliest mien
She knelt, but not to pray, —
Her little hands must keep them clean,
And wash their stains away.

A foot, an ankle, bare and white,
Her girlish shapes betrayed, —
“ Ha ! Nymphs and Graces ! ” spoke the Knight ;
“ Look up, my beauteous Maid ! ”

She turned, — a reddening rose in bud,
Its calyx half withdrawn, —
Her cheek on fire with damasked blood
Of girlhood's glowing dawn !

He searched her features through and through,
As royal lovers look
On lowly maidens, when they woo
Without the ring and book.

“ Come hither, Fair one ! Here, my Sweet !
Nay, prithee, look not down !
Take this to shoe those little feet, ” —
He tossed a silver crown.

A sudden paleness struck her brow, —
A swifter blush succeeds ;

It burns her cheek ; it kindles now
Beneath her golden beads.

She flitted, but the glittering eye
Still sought the lovely face.
Who was she? What, and whence? and why
Doomed to such menial place?

A skipper's daughter, — so they said, —
Left orphan by the gale
That cost the fleet of Marblehead
And Gloucester thirty sail.

Ah! many a lonely home is found
Along the Essex shore,
That cheered its goodman outward bound,
And sees his face no more!

“Not so,” the matron whispered, — “sure
No orphan girl is she, —
The Surriage folk are deadly poor
Since Edward left the sea,

“And Mary, with her growing brood,
Has work enough to do
To find the children clothes and food
With Thomas, John, and Hugh.

“This girl of Mary's, growing tall, —
(Just turned her sixteenth year,) —
To earn her bread and help them all,
Would work as housemaid here.”

So Agnes, with her golden beads,
And naught beside as dower,
Grew at the wayside with the weeds,
Herself a garden-flower.

'T was strange, 't was sad, — so fresh, so fair !
Thus Pity's voice began.
Such grace ! an angel's shape and air !
The half-heard whisper ran.

For eyes could see in George's time,
As now in later days,
And lips could shape, in prose and rhyme,
The honeyed breath of praise.

No time to woo ! The train must go
Long ere the sun is down,
To reach, before the night-winds blow,
The many-steepled town.

'T is midnight, — street and square are still ;
Dark roll the whispering waves
That lap the piers beneath the hill
Ridged thick with ancient graves.

Ah, gentle sleep ! thy hand will smooth
The weary couch of pain,
When all thy poppies fail to soothe
The lover's throbbing brain !

'T is morn, — the orange-mantled sun
Breaks through the fading gray,

And long and loud the Castle gun
Peals o'er the glistening bay.

“Thank God 't is day!” With eager eye
He hails the morning shine : —
“If art can win, or gold can buy,
The maiden shall be mine !”

PART THIRD

THE CONQUEST

“Who saw this hussy when she came ?
What is the wench, and who ?”
They whisper. “Agnes — is her name ?
Pray what has she to do ?”

The housemaids parley at the gate,
The scullions on the stair,
And in the footmen's grave debate
The butler deigns to share.

Black Dinah, stolen when a child,
And sold on Boston pier,
Grown up in service, petted, spoiled,
Speaks in the coachman's ear :

“What, all this household at his will ?
And all are yet too few ?
More servants, and more servants still, —
This pert young madam too !”

“ Servant! fine servant!” laughed aloud
The man of coach and steeds ;
“ She looks too fair, she steps too proud,
This girl with golden beads !

“ I tell you, you may fret and frown,
And call her what you choose,
You ’ll find my Lady in her gown,
Your Mistress in her shoes ! ”

Ah, gentle maidens, free from blame,
God grant you never know
The little whisper, loud with shame,
That makes the world your foe !

Why tell the lordly flatterer’s art,
That won the maiden’s ear, —
The fluttering of the frightened heart,
The blush, the smile, the tear ?

Alas ! it were the saddening tale
That every language knows, —
The wooing wind, the yielding sail,
The sunbeam and the rose.

And now the gown of sober stuff
Has changed to fair brocade,
With brodered hem, and hanging cuff,
And flower of silken braid ;

And clasped around her blanching wrist
A jewelled bracelet shines,

Her flowing tresses' massive twist
A glittering net confines ;

And mingling with their truant wave
A fretted chain is hung ;
But ah ! the gift her mother gave, —
Its beads are all unstrung !

Her place is at the master's board,
Where none disputes her claim ;
She walks beside the mansion's lord,
His bride in all but name.

The busy tongues have ceased to talk,
Or speak in softened tone,
So gracious in her daily walk
The angel light has shown.

No want that kindness may relieve
Assails her heart in vain,
The lifting of a ragged sleeve
Will check her palfrey's rein.

A thoughtful calm, a quiet grace
In every movement shown,
Reveal her moulded for the place
She may not call her own.

And, save that on her youthful brow
There broods a shadowy care,
No matron sealed with holy vow
In all the land so fair !

PART FOURTH

THE RESCUE

A ship comes foaming up the bay,
Along the pier she glides ;
Before her furrow melts away,
A courier mounts and rides.

“Haste, Haste, post Haste !” the letters bear ;
“Sir Harry Frankland, These.”
Sad news to tell the loving pair !
The knight must cross the seas.

“Alas ! we part !” — the lips that spoke
Lost all their rosy red,
As when a crystal cup is broke,
And all its wine is shed.

“Nay, droop not thus, — where'er,” he cried,
“I go by land or sea,
My love, my life, my joy, my pride,
Thy place is still by me !”

Through town and city, far and wide,
Their wandering feet have strayed,
From Alpine lake to ocean tide,
And cold Sierra's shade.

At length they see the waters gleam
Amid the fragrant bowers
Where Lisbon mirrors in the stream
Her belt of ancient towers.

Red is the orange on its bough,
To-morrow's sun shall fling
O'er Cintra's hazel-shaded brow
The flush of April's wing.

The streets are loud with noisy mirth,
They dance on every green ;
The morning's dial marks the birth
Of proud Braganza's queen.

At eve beneath their pictured dome
The gilded courtiers throng ;
The broad moidores have cheated Rome
Of all her lords of song.

Ah ! Lisbon dreams not of the day —
Pleased with her painted scenes —
When all her towers shall slide away
As now these canvas screens !

The spring has passed, the summer fled,
And yet they linger still,
Though autumn's rustling leaves have spread
The flank of Cintra's hill.

The town has learned their Saxon name,
And touched their English gold,
Nor tale of doubt nor hint of blame
From over sea is told.

Three hours the first November dawn
Has climbed with feeble ray

Through mists like heavy curtains drawn
Before the darkened day.

How still the muffled echoes sleep!
Hark! hark! a hollow sound, —
A noise like chariots rumbling deep
Beneath the solid ground.

The channel lifts, the water slides
And bares its bar of sand,
Anon a mountain billow strides
And crashes o'er the land.

The turrets lean, the steeples reel
Like masts on ocean's swell,
And clash a long discordant peal,
The death-doomed city's knell.

The pavement bursts, the earth upheaves
Beneath the staggering town!
The turrets crack — the castle cleaves —
The spires come rushing down.

Around, the lurid mountains glow
With strange unearthly gleams;
While black abysses gape below,
Then close in jagged seams.

The earth has folded like a wave,
And thrice a thousand score,
Clasped, shroudless, in their closing grave,
The sun shall see no more!

And all is over. Street and square
 In ruined heaps are piled ;
 Ah! where is she, so frail, so fair,
 Amid the tumult wild ?

Unscathed, she treads the wreck-piled street,
 Whose narrow gaps afford
 A pathway for her bleeding feet,
 To seek her absent lord.

A temple's broken walls arrest
 Her wild and wandering eyes ;
 Beneath its shattered portal pressed,
 Her lord unconscious lies.

The power that living hearts obey
 Shall lifeless blocks withstand ?
 Love led her footsteps where he lay, —
 Love nerves her woman's hand :

One cry, — the marble shaft she grasps, —
 Up heaves the ponderous stone : —
 He breathes, — her fainting form he clasps, —
 Her life has bought his own !

PART FIFTH

THE REWARD

How like the starless night of death
 Our being's brief eclipse,
 When faltering heart and failing breath
 Have bleached the fading lips !

She lives ! What guerdon shall repay
His debt of ransomed life ?
One word can charm all wrongs away, —
The sacred name of WIFE !

The love that won her girlish charms
Must shield her matron fame,
And write beneath the Frankland arms
The village beauty's name.

Go, call the priest ! no vain delay
Shall dim the sacred ring !
Who knows what change the passing day,
The fleeting hour, may bring ?

Before the holy altar bent,
There kneels a goodly pair ;
A stately man, of high descent,
A woman, passing fair.

No jewels lend the blinding sheen
That meaner beauty needs,
But on her bosom heaves unseen
A string of golden beads.

The vow is spoke, — the prayer is said, —
And with a gentle pride
The Lady Agnes lifts her head,
Sir Harry Frankland's bride.

No more her faithful heart shall bear
Those griefs so meekly borne, —

The passing sneer, the freezing stare,
The icy look of scorn ;

No more the blue-eyed English dames
Their haughty lips shall curl,
Whene'er a hissing whisper names
The poor New England girl.

But stay ! — his mother's haughty brow, —
The pride of ancient race, —
Will plighted faith, and holy vow,
Win back her fond embrace ?

Too well she knew the saddening tale
Of love no vow had blest,
That turned his blushing honors pale
And stained his knightly crest.

They seek his Northern home, — alas :
He goes alone before ; —
His own dear Agnes may not pass
The proud, ancestral door.

He stood before the stately dame ;
He spoke ; she calmly heard,
But not to pity, nor to blame ;
She breathed no single word.

He told his love, — her faith betrayed ;
She heard with tearless eyes ;
Could she forgive the erring maid ?
She stared in cold surprise.

How fond her heart, he told, — how true ;
The haughty eyelids fell ; —
The kindly deeds she loved to do ;
She murmured, “ It is well.”

But when he told that fearful day,
And how her feet were led
To where entombed in life he lay,
The breathing with the dead,

And how she bruised her tender breasts
Against the crushing stone,
That still the strong-armed clown protests
No man can lift alone, —

Oh ! then the frozen spring was broke ;
By turns she wept and smiled ; —
“ Sweet Agnes ! ” so the mother spoke,
“ God bless my angel child !

“ She saved thee from the jaws of death, —
’T is thine to right her wrongs ;
I tell thee, — I, who gave thee breath, —
To her thy life belongs ! ”

Thus Agnes won her noble name,
Her lawless lover’s hand ;
The lowly maiden so became
A lady in the land !

PART SIXTH

CONCLUSION

The tale is done ; it little needs
To track their after ways,
And string again the golden beads
Of love's uncounted days.

They leave the fair ancestral isle
For bleak New England's shore ;
How gracious is the courtly smile
Of all who frowned before !

Again through Lisbon's orange bowers
They watch the river's gleam,
And shudder as her shadowy towers
Shake in the trembling stream.

Fate parts at length the fondest pair ;
His cheek, alas ! grows pale ;
The breast that trampling death could spare
His noiseless shafts assail.

He longs to change the heaven of blue
For England's clouded sky, —
To breathe the air his boyhood knew ;
He seeks them but to die.

Hard by the terraced hillside town,
Where healing streamlets run,

Still sparkling with their old renown, —
The “Waters of the Sun,” —

The Lady Agnes raised the stone
That marks his honored grave,
And there Sir Harry sleeps alone
By Wiltshire Avon’s wave.

The home of early love was dear ;
She sought its peaceful shade,
And kept her state for many a year,
With none to make afraid.

At last the evil days were come
That saw the red cross fall ;
She hears the rebels’ rattling drum, —
Farewell to Frankland Hall !

I tell you, as my tale began,
The hall is standing still ;
And you, kind listener, maid or man,
May see it if you will.

The box is glistening huge and green,
Like trees the lilacs grow,
Three elms high-arching still are seen,
And one lies stretched below.

The hangings, rough with velvet flowers,
Flap on the latticed wall ;
And o’er the mossy ridge-pole towers
The rock-hewn chimney tall.

The doors on mighty hinges clash
With massive bolt and bar,
The heavy English-moulded sash
Scarce can the night-winds jar.

Behold the chosen room he sought
Alone, to fast and pray,
Each year, as chill November brought
The dismal earthquake day.

There hung the rapier blade he wore,
Bent in its flattened sheath ;
The coat the shrieking woman tore
Caught in her clenching teeth ; —

The coat with tarnished silver lace
She snapped at as she slid,
And down upon her death-white face
Crashed the huge coffin's lid.

A graded terrace yet remains ;
If on its turf you stand
And look along the wooded plains
That stretch on either hand,

The broken forest walls define
A dim, receding view,
Where, on the far horizon's line,
He cut his vista through.

If further story you shall crave,
Or ask for living proof,

Go see old Julia, born a slave
Beneath Sir Harry's roof.

She told me half that I have told,
And she remembers well
The mansion as it looked of old
Before its glories fell ; —

The box, when round the terraced square
Its glossy wall was drawn ;
The climbing vines, the snow-balls fair,
The roses on the lawn.

And Julia says, with truthful look
Stamped on her wrinkled face,
That in her own black hands she took
The coat with silver lace.

And you may hold the story light,
Or, if you like, believe ;
But there it was, the woman's bite, —
A mouthful from the sleeve.

Now go your ways ; — I need not tell
The moral of my rhyme ;
But, youths and maidens, ponder well
This tale of olden time !

THE PLOUGHMAN

ANNIVERSARY OF THE BERKSHIRE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, OCTOBER 4, 1849

CLEAR the brown path, to meet his coulter's gleam !
Lo ! on he comes, behind his smoking team,
With toil's bright dew-drops on his sunburnt brow,
The lord of earth, the hero of the plough !

First in the field before the reddening sun,
Last in the shadows when the day is done,
Line after line, along the bursting sod,
Marks the broad acres where his feet have trod ;
Still, where he treads, the stubborn clods divide,
The smooth, fresh furrow opens deep and wide ;
Matted and dense the tangled turf upheaves,
Mellow and dark the ridgy cornfield cleaves ;
Up the steep hillside, where the laboring train
Slants the long track that scores the level plain ;
Through the moist valley, clogged with oozing clay,
The patient convoy breaks its destined way ;
At every turn the loosening chains resound,
The swinging ploughshare circles glistening round,
Till the wide field one billowy waste appears,
And wearied hands unbind the panting steers.

These are the hands whose sturdy labor brings
The peasant's food, the golden pomp of kings ;
This is the page, whose letters shall be seen
Changed by the sun to words of living green ;
This is the scholar, whose immortal pen

Spells the first lesson hunger taught to men ;
 These are the lines which heaven-commanded Toil
 Shows on his deed, — the charter of the soil !

O gracious Mother, whose benignant breast
 Wakes us to life, and lulls us all to rest,
 How thy sweet features, kind to every clime,
 Mock with their smile the wrinkled front of time !
 We stain thy flowers, — they blossom o'er the dead ;

We rend thy bosom, and it gives us bread ;
 O'er the red field that trampling strife has torn,
 Waves the green plumage of thy tasselled corn ;
 Our maddening conflicts scar thy fairest plain,
 Still thy soft answer is the growing grain.
 Yet, O our Mother, while uncounted charms
 Steal round our hearts in thine embracing arms,
 Let not our virtues in thy love decay,
 And thy fond sweetness waste our strength away.

No ! by these hills, whose banners now displayed
 In blazing cohorts Autumn has arrayed ;
 By yon twin summits, on whose splintery crests
 The tossing hemlocks hold the eagles' nests ;
 By these fair plains the mountain circle screens,
 And feeds with streamlets from its dark ravines, —
 True to their home, these faithful arms shall toil
 To crown with peace their own untainted soil ;
 And, true to God, to freedom, to mankind,
 If her chained bandogs Faction shall unbind,
 These stately forms, that bending even now
 Bowed their strong manhood to the humble plough,

Shall rise erect, the guardians of the land,
The same stern iron in the same right hand,
Till o'er their hills the shouts of triumph run,
The sword has rescued what the ploughshare won!

SPRING

WINTER is past ; the heart of Nature warms
Beneath the wrecks of unresisted storms ;
Doubtful at first, suspected more than seen,
The southern slopes are fringed with tender green ;
On sheltered banks, beneath the dripping eaves,
Spring's earliest nurslings spread their glowing
leaves,
Bright with the hues from wider pictures won,
White, azure, golden, — drift, or sky, or sun, —
The snowdrop, bearing on her patient breast
The frozen trophy torn from Winter's crest ;
The violet, gazing on the arch of blue
Till her own iris wears its deepened hue ;
The spendthrift crocus, bursting through the mould
Naked and shivering with his cup of gold.
Swelled with new life, the darkening elm on high
Prints her thick buds against the spotted sky ;
On all her boughs the stately chestnut cleaves
The gummy shroud that wraps her embryo leaves ;
The house-fly, stealing from his narrow grave,
Drugged with the opiate that November gave,
Beats with faint wing against the sunny pane,
Or crawls, tenacious, o'er its lucid plain ;
From shaded chinks of lichen-cruste'd walls,
In languid curves, the gliding serpent crawls ;

The bog's green harper, thawing from his sleep,
Twangs a hoarse note and tries a shortened leap ;
On floating rails that face the softening noons
The still shy turtles range their dark platoons,
Or, toiling aimless o'er the mellowing fields,
Trail through the grass their tessellated shields.

At last young April, ever frail and fair,
Wooded by her playmate with the golden hair,
Chased to the margin of receding floods
O'er the soft meadows starred with opening buds,
In tears and blushes sighs herself away,
And hides her cheek beneath the flowers of May.

Then the proud tulip lights her beacon blaze,
Her clustering curls the hyacinth displays ;
O'er her tall blades the crested fleur-de-lis,
Like blue-eyed Pallas, towers erect and free ;
With yellower flames the lengthened sunshine glows,
And love lays bare the passion-breathing rose ;
Queen of the lake, along its reedy verge
The rival lily hastens to emerge,
Her snowy shoulders glistening as she strips,
Till morn is sultan of her parted lips.

Then bursts the song from every leafy glade,
The yielding season's bridal serenade ;
Then flash the wings returning Summer calls
Through the deep arches of her forest halls, —
The bluebird, breathing from his azure plumes
The fragrance borrowed where the myrtle blooms ;
The thrush, poor wanderer, dropping meekly down,

Clad in his remnant of autumnal brown ;
 The oriole, drifting like a flake of fire
 Rent by a whirlwind from a blazing spire.
 The robin, jerking his spasmodic throat,
 Repeats, imperious, his staccato note ;
 The crack-brained bobolink courts his crazy mate,
 Poised on a bulrush tipsy with his weight ;
 Nay, in his cage the lone canary sings,
 Feels the soft air, and spreads his idle wings.

Why dream I here within these caging walls,
 Deaf to her voice, while blooming Nature calls ;
 Peering and gazing with insatiate looks
 Through blinding lenses, or in wearying books ?
 Off, gloomy spectres of the shrivelled past !
 Fly with the leaves that fill the autumn blast !
 Ye imps of Science, whose relentless chains
 Lock the warm tides within these living veins,
 Close your dim cavern, while its captive strays
 Dazzled and giddy in the morning's blaze !

THE STUDY

YET in the darksome crypt I left so late,
 Whose only altar is its rusted grate, —
 Sepulchral, rayless, joyless as it seems,
 Shamed by the glare of May's refulgent beams, —
 While the dim seasons dragged their shrouded train,
 Its paler splendors were not quite in vain.
 From these dull bars the cheerful firelight's glow

Streamed through the casement o'er the spectral
snow ;

Here, while the night-wind wreaked its frantic will
On the loose ocean and the rock-bound hill,
Rent the cracked topsail from its quivering yard,
And rived the oak a thousand storms had scarred,
Fenced by these walls the peaceful taper shone,
Nor felt a breath to slant its trembling cone.

Not all unblest the mild interior scene
When the red curtain spread its falling screen ;
O'er some light task the lonely hours were past,
And the long evening only flew too fast ;
Or the wide chair its leathern arms would lend
In genial welcome to some easy friend,
Stretched on its bosom with relaxing nerves,
Slow moulding, plastic, to its hollow curves ;
Perchance indulging, if of generous creed,
In brave Sir Walter's dream-compelling weed.
Or, happier still, the evening hour would bring
To the round table its expected ring,
And while the punch-bowl's sounding depths were stirred, —

Its silver cherubs smiling as they heard, —
Our hearts would open, as at evening's hour
The close-sealed primrose frees its hidden flower.

Such the warm life this dim retreat has known,
Not quite deserted when its guests were flown ;
Nay, filled with friends, an unobtrusive set,
Guiltless of calls and cards and etiquette,
Ready to answer, never known to ask,
Claiming no service, prompt for every task.

On those dark shelves no housewife hand profanes,

O'er his mute files the monarch folio reigns ;
A mingled race, the wreck of chance and time,
That talk all tongues and breathe of every clime,
Each knows his place, and each may claim his part
In some quaint corner of his master's heart.
This old Decretal, won from Kloss's hoards,
Thick-leaved, brass-cornered, ribbed with oaken boards,

Stands the gray patriarch of the graver rows,
Its fourth ripe century narrowing to its close ;
Not daily conned, but glorious still to view,
With glistening letters wrought in red and blue.
There towers Stagira's all-embracing sage,
The Aldine anchor on his opening page ;
There sleep the births of Plato's heavenly mind,
In yon dark tomb by jealous clasps confined,
"Olim e libris" (dare I call it mine ?)
Of Yale's grave Head and Killingworth's divine !
In those square sheets the songs of Maro fill
The silvery types of smooth-leaved Baskerville ;
High over all, in close, compact array,
Their classic wealth the Elzevirs display.
In lower regions of the sacred space
Range the dense volumes of a humbler race ;
There grim churgeons all their mysteries teach,
In spectral pictures, or in crabbed speech ;
Harvey and Haller, fresh from Nature's page,
Shoulder the dreamers of an earlier age,
Lully and Geber, and the learned crew
That loved to talk of all they could not do.

Why count the rest, — those names of later days
That many love, and all agree to praise, —
Or point the titles, where a glance may read
The dangerous lines of party or of creed?
Too well, perchance, the chosen list would show
What few may care and none can claim to know.
Each has his features, whose exterior seal
A brush may copy, or a sunbeam steal;
Go to his study, — on the nearest shelf
Stands the mosaic portrait of himself.

What though for months the tranquil dust descends,
Whitening the heads of these mine ancient friends,
While the damp offspring of the modern press
Flaunts on my table with its pictured dress;
Not less I love each dull familiar face,
Nor less should miss it from the appointed place;
I snatch the book, along whose burning leaves
His scarlet web our wild romancer weaves,
Yet, while proud Hester's fiery pangs I share,
My old MAGNALIA must be standing there!

THE BELLS

WHEN o'er the street the morning peal is flung
From yon tall belfry with the brazen tongue,
Its wide vibrations, wafted by the gale,
To each far listener tell a different tale.

The sexton, stooping to the quivering floor
Till the great caldron spills its brassy roar,

Whirls the hot axle, counting, one by one,
Each dull concussion, till his task is done.

Toil's patient daughter, when the welcome
note
Clangs through the silence from the steeple's throat,

Streams, a white unit, to the checkered street,
Demure, but guessing whom she soon shall meet ;
The bell, responsive to her secret flame,
With every note repeats her lover's name.

The lover, tenant of the neighboring lane,
Sighing, and fearing lest he sigh in vain,
Hears the stern accents, as they come and go,
Their only burden one despairing No !

Ocean's rough child, whom many a shore has known

Ere homeward breezes swept him to his own,
Starts at the echo as it circles round,
A thousand memories kindling with the sound ;
The early favorite's unforgotten charms,
Whose blue initials stain his tawny arms ;
His first farewell, the flapping canvas spread,
The seaward streamers crackling overhead,
His kind, pale mother, not ashamed to weep
Her first-born's bridal with the haggard deep,
While the brave father stood with tearless eye,
Smiling and choking with his last good-by.

'T is but a wave, whose spreading circle beats,
With the same impulse, every nerve it meets,
Yet who shall count the varied shapes that ride
On the round surge of that aerial tide !

O child of earth ! If floating sounds like these Steal from thyself their power to wound or please,
If here or there thy changing will inclines,
As the bright zodiac shifts its rolling signs,
Look at thy heart, and when its depths are known,
Then try thy brother's, judging by thine own,
But keep thy wisdom to the narrower range,
While its own standards are the sport of change,
Nor count us rebels when we disobey
The passing breath that holds thy passion's sway.

NON-RESISTANCE

PERHAPS too far in these considerate days
Has patience carried her submissive ways ;
Wisdom has taught us to be calm and meek,
To take one blow, and turn the other cheek ;
It is not written what a man shall do,
If the rude caitiff smite the other too !

Land of our fathers, in thine hour of need
God help thee, guarded by the passive creed !
As the lone pilgrim trusts to beads and cowl,
When through the forest rings the gray wolf's howl ;
As the deep galleon trusts her gilded prow
When the black corsair slants athwart her bow ;
As the poor pheasant, with his peaceful mien,
Trusts to his feathers, shining golden-green,
When the dark plumage with the crimson beak

Has rustled shadowy from its splintered peak, —
So trust thy friends, whose babbling tongues would charm

The lifted sabre from thy foeman's arm,
Thy torches ready for the answering peal
From bellowing fort and thunder-freighted keel !

THE MORAL BULLY

YON whey-faced brother, who delights to wear
A weedy flux of ill-conditioned hair,
Seems of the sort that in a crowded place
One elbows freely into smallest space ;
A timid creature, lax of knee and hip,
Whom small disturbance whitens round the lip ;
One of those harmless spectacled machines,
The Holy-Week of Protestants convenes ;
Whom school-boys question if their walk tran-
scends

The last advices of maternal friends ;
Whom John, obedient to his master's sign,
Conducts, laborious, up to ninety-nine,
While Peter, glistening with luxurious scorn,
Husks his white ivories like an ear of corn ;
Dark in the brow and bilious in the cheek,
Whose yellowish linen flowers but once a week,
Conspicuous, annual, in their threadbare suits,
And the laced high-lows which they call their
boots,
Well mayst thou shun that dingy front severe,
But him, O stranger, him thou canst not fear !

Be slow to judge, and slower to despise,
Man of broad shoulders and heroic size !
The tiger, writhing from the boa's rings,
Drops at the fountain where the cobra stings.
In that lean phantom, whose extended glove
Points to the text of universal love,
Behold the master that can tame thee down
To crouch, the vassal of his Sunday frown ;
His velvet throat against thy corded wrist,
His loosened tongue against thy doubled fist !

The MORAL BULLY, though he never swears,
Nor kicks intruders down his entry stairs,
Though meekness plants his backward-sloping hat,
And non-resistance ties his white cravat,
Though his black broadcloth glories to be seen
In the same plight with Shylock's gaberdine,
Hugs the same passion to his narrow breast
That heaves the cuirass on the trooper's chest,
Hears the same hell-hounds yelling in his rear
That chase from port the maddened buccaneer,
Feels the same comfort while his acrid words
Turn the sweet milk of kindness into curds,
Or with grim logic prove, beyond debate,
That all we love is worthiest of our hate,
As the scarred ruffian of the pirate's deck,
When his long swivel rakes the staggering wreck !

Heaven keep us all ! Is every rascal clown
Whose arm is stronger free to knock us down ?
Has every scarecrow, whose cachectic soul
Seems fresh from Bedlam, airing on parole,

Who, though he carries but a doubtful trace
Of angel visits on his hungry face,
From lack of marrow or the coins to pay,
Has dodged some vices in a shabby way,
The right to stick us with his cutthroat terms,
And bait his homilies with his brother worms ?

THE MIND'S DIET

No life worth naming ever comes to good
If always nourished on the selfsame food ;
The creeping mite may live so if he please,
And feed on Stilton till he turns to cheese,
But cool Magendie proves beyond a doubt,
If mammals try it, that their eyes drop out.

No reasoning natures find it safe to feed,
For their sole diet, on a single creed ;
It spoils their eyeballs while it spares their tongues,
And starves the heart to feed the noisy lungs.

When the first larvæ on the elm are seen,
The crawling wretches, like its leaves, are green ;
Ere chill October shakes the latest down,
They, like the foliage, change their tint to brown ;
On the blue flower a bluer flower you spy,
You stretch to pluck it — 't is a butterfly ;
The flattened tree-toads so resemble bark,
They 're hard to find as Ethiops in the dark ;
The woodcock, stiffening to fictitious mud,
Cheats the young sportsman thirsting for his blood ;

So by long living on a single lie,
 Nay, on one truth, will creatures get its dye ;
 Red, yellow, green, they take their subject's hue, —
 Except when squabbling turns them black and blue !

OUR LIMITATIONS

WE trust and fear, we question and believe,
 From life's dark threads a trembling faith to weave,
 Frail as the web that misty night has spun,
 Whose dew-gemmed awnings glitter in the sun.
 While the calm centuries spell their lessons out,
 Each truth we conquer spreads the realm of doubt ;
 When Sinai's summit was Jehovah's throne,
 The chosen Prophet knew his voice alone ;
 When Pilate's hall that awful question heard,
 The Heavenly Captive answered not a word.

Eternal Truth ! beyond our hopes and fears
 Sweep the vast orbits of thy myriad spheres !
 From age to age, while History carves sublime
 On her waste rock the flaming curves of time,
 How the wild swayings of our planet show
 That worlds unseen surround the world we know.

THE OLD PLAYER

THE curtain rose ; in thunders long and loud
The galleries rung ; the veteran actor bowed.
In flaming line the telltales of the stage
Showed on his brow the autograph of age ;
Pale, hueless waves amid his clustered hair,
And umbered shadows, prints of toil and care ;
Round the wide circle glanced his vacant eye, —
He strove to speak, — his voice was but a sigh.

Year after year had seen its short-lived race
Flit past the scenes and others take their place ;
Yet the old prompter watched his accents still,
His name still flaunted on the evening's bill.
Heroes, the monarchs of the scenic floor,
Had died in earnest and were heard no more ;
Beauties, whose cheeks such roseate bloom o'er-spread
They faced the footlights in unborrowed red,
Had faded slowly through successive shades
To gray duennas, foils of younger maids ;
Sweet voices lost the melting tones that start
With Southern throbs the sturdy Saxon heart,
While fresh sopranos shook the painted sky
With their long, breathless, quivering locust-cry.
Yet there he stood, — the man of other days,
In the clear present's full, unsparing blaze,
As on the oak a faded leaf that clings
While a new April spreads its burnished wings.

How bright yon rows that soared in triple tier,
Their central sun the flashing chandelier!
How dim the eye that sought with doubtful aim
Some friendly smile it still might dare to claim!
How fresh these hearts! his own how worn and cold!
Such the sad thoughts that long-drawn sigh had told.

No word yet faltered on his trembling tongue;
Again, again, the crashing galleries rung.
As the old guardsman at the bugle's blast
Hears in its strain the echoes of the past,
So, as the plaudits rolled and thundered round,
A life of memories startled at the sound.

He lived again, — the page of earliest days, —
Days of small fee and parsimonious praise;
Then lithe young Romeo — hark that silvered tone,
From those smooth lips — alas! they were his own.
Then the bronzed Moor, with all his love and woe,
Told his strange tale of midnight melting snow;
And dark-plumed Hamlet, with his cloak and blade,
Looked on the royal ghost, himself a shade.
All in one flash, his youthful memories came,
Traced in bright hues of evanescent flame,
As the spent swimmer's in the lifelong dream,
While the last bubble rises through the stream.

Call him not old, whose visionary brain
Holds o'er the past its undivided reign.
For him in vain the envious seasons roll
Who bears eternal summer in his soul.

If yet the minstrel's song, the poet's lay,
Spring with her birds, or children at their play,
Or maiden's smile, or heavenly dream of art,
Stir the few life-drops creeping round his heart,
Turn to the record where his years are told, —
Count his gray hairs, — they cannot make him old !

What magic power has changed the faded mime ?
One breath of memory on the dust of time.
As the last window in the buttressed wall
Of some gray minster tottering to its fall,
Though to the passing crowd its hues are spread,
A dull mosaic, yellow, green, and red,
Viewed from within, a radiant glory shows
When through its pictured screen the sunlight flows,
And kneeling pilgrims on its storied pane
See angels glow in every shapeless stain ;
So streamed the vision through his sunken eye,
Clad in the splendors of his morning sky.

All the wild hopes his eager boyhood knew,
All the young fancies riper years proved true,
The sweet, low-whispered words, the winning glance
From queens of song, from Houris of the dance,
Wealth's lavish gift, and Flattery's soothing phrase,
And Beauty's silence when her blush was praise,
And melting Pride, her lashes wet with tears,
Triumphs and banquets, wreaths and crowns and cheers,
Pangs of wild joy that perish on the tongue,
And all that poets dream, but leave unsung !

In every heart some viewless founts are fed
From far-off hillsides where the dews were shed ;

On the worn features of the weariest face
 Some youthful memory leaves its hidden trace,
 As in old gardens left by exiled kings
 The marble basins tell of hidden springs,
 But, gray with dust, and overgrown with weeds,
 Their choking jets the passer little heeds,
 Till time's revenges break their seals away,
 And, clad in rainbow light, the waters play.

Good night, fond dreamer! let the curtain fall:
 The world's a stage, and we are players all.
 A strange rehearsal! Kings without their crowns,
 And threadbare lords, and jewel-wearing clowns,
 Speak the vain words that mock their throbbing hearts,
 As Want, stern prompter! spells them out their parts.
 The tinselled hero whom we praise and pay
 Is twice an actor in a twofold play.
 We smile at children when a painted screen
 Seems to their simple eyes a real scene;
 Ask the poor hireling, who has left his throne
 To seek the cheerless home he calls his own,
 Which of his double lives most real seems,
 The world of solid fact or scenic dreams?
 Canvas, or clouds, — the footlights, or the spheres, —
 The play of two short hours, or seventy years?
     Dream on! Though Heaven may woo our open eyes,
 Through their closed lids we look on fairer skies;
 Truth is for other worlds, and hope for this;
 The cheating future lends the present's bliss;

Life is a running shade, with fettered hands,
That chases phantoms over shifting sands ;
Death a still spectre on a marble seat,
With ever clutching palms and shackled feet ;
The airy shapes that mock life's slender chain,
The flying joys he strives to clasp in vain,
Death only grasps ; to live is to pursue, —
Dream on ! there 's nothing but illusion true !

A POEM

DEDICATION OF THE PITTSFIELD CEMETERY, SEPTEMBER
9, 1850

ANGEL of Death ! extend thy silent reign !
Stretch thy dark sceptre o'er this new domain !
No sable car along the winding road
Has borne to earth its unresisting load ;
No sudden mound has risen yet to show
Where the pale slumberer folds his arms below ;
No marble gleams to bid his memory live
In the brief lines that hurrying Time can give ;
Yet, O Destroyer ! from thy shrouded throne
Look on our gift ; this realm is all thine own !

Fair is the scene ; its sweetness oft beguiled
From their dim paths the children of the wild ;
The dark-haired maiden loved its grassy dells,
The feathered warrior claimed its wooded swells,
Still on its slopes the ploughman's ridges show
The pointed flints that left his fatal bow,

Chipped with rough art and slow barbarian toil, —
Last of his wrecks that strews the alien soil !

Here spread the fields that heaped their ripened store

Till the brown arms of Labor held no more ;
The scythe's broad meadow with its dusky blush ;
The sickle's harvest with its velvet flush ;
The green-haired maize, her silken tresses laid,
In soft luxuriance, on her harsh brocade ;
The gourd that swells beneath her tossing plume ;
The coarser wheat that rolls in lakes of bloom, —
Its coral stems and milk-white flowers alive
With the wide murmurs of the scattered hive ;
Here glowed the apple with the pencilled streak
Of morning painted on its southern cheek ;
The pear's long necklace strung with golden drops,
Arched, like the banian, o'er its pillared props ;
Here crept the growths that paid the laborer's care
With the cheap luxuries wealth consents to spare ;
Here sprang the healing herbs which could not save
The hand that reared them from the neighboring grave.

Yet all its varied charms, forever free
From task and tribute, Labor yields to thee :
No more, when April sheds her fitful rain,
The sower's hand shall cast its flying grain ;
No more, when Autumn strews the flaming leaves,
The reaper's band shall gird its yellow sheaves ;
For thee alike the circling seasons flow
Till the first blossoms heave the latest snow.
In the stiff clod below the whirling drifts,
In the loose soil the springing herbage lifts,

In the hot dust beneath the parching weeds,
Life's withering flower shall drop its shrivelled
seeds ;
Its germ entranced in thy unbreathing sleep
Till what thou sowest mightier angels reap !

Spirit of Beauty ! let thy graces blend
With loveliest Nature all that Art can lend.
Come from the bowers where Summer's life-blood flows

Through the red lips of June's half-open rose,
Dressed in bright hues, the loving sunshine's dower ;
For tranquil Nature owns no mourning flower.

Come from the forest where the beech's screen
Bars the fierce noonbeam with its flakes of green ;
Stay the rude axe that bares the shadowy plains,
Stanch the deep wound that dries the maple's veins.

Come with the stream whose silver-braided rills
Fling their unclasping bracelets from the hills,
Till in one gleam, beneath the forest's wings,
Melts the white glitter of a hundred springs.

Come from the steeps where look majestic forth
From their twin thrones the Giants of the North
On the huge shapes, that, crouching at their knees,
Stretch their broad shoulders, rough with shaggy trees.

Through the wide waste of ether, not in vain,
Their softened gaze shall reach our distant plain ;
There, while the mourner turns his aching eyes
On the blue mounds that print the bluer skies,
Nature shall whisper that the fading view
Of mightiest grief may wear a heavenly hue.

Cherub of Wisdom ! let thy marble page
 Leave its sad lesson, new to every age ;
 Teach us to live, not grudging every breath
 To the chill winds that waft us on to death,
 But ruling calmly every pulse it warms,
 And tempering gently every word it forms.
 Seraph of Love ! in heaven's adoring zone,
 Nearest of all around the central throne,
 While with soft hands the pillowed turf we spread
 That soon shall hold us in its dreamless bed,
 With the low whisper, — Who shall first be laid
 In the dark chamber's yet unbroken shade ? —
 Let thy sweet radiance shine rekindled here,
 And all we cherish grow more truly dear.
 Here in the gates of Death's o'erhanging vault,
 Oh, teach us kindness for our brother's fault :
 Lay all our wrongs beneath this peaceful sod,
 And lead our hearts to Mercy and its God.

FATHER of all ! in Death's relentless claim
 We read thy mercy by its sterner name ;
 In the bright flower that decks the solemn bier,
 We see thy glory in its narrowed sphere ;
 In the deep lessons that affliction draws,
 We trace the curves of thy encircling laws ;
 In the long sigh that sets our spirits free,
 We own the love that calls us back to Thee !

Through the hushed street, along the silent plain,
 The spectral future leads its mourning train,
 Dark with the shadows of uncounted bands,
 Where man's white lips and woman's wringing hands

Track the still burden, rolling slow before,
That love and kindness can protect no more ;
The smiling babe that, called to mortal strife,
Shuts its meek eyes and drops its little life ;
The drooping child who prays in vain to live,
And pleads for help its parent cannot give ;
The pride of beauty stricken in its flower ;
The strength of manhood broken in an hour ;
Age in its weakness, bowed by toil and care,
Traced in sad lines beneath its silvered hair.

The sun shall set, and heaven's resplendent spheres
Gild the smooth turf unhallowed yet by tears,
But ah ! how soon the evening stars will shed
Their sleepless light around the slumbering dead !

Take them, O Father, in immortal trust !
Ashes to ashes, dust to kindred dust,
Till the last angel rolls the stone away,
And a new morning brings eternal day !

TO GOVERNOR SWAIN

DEAR GOVERNOR, if my skiff might brave
The winds that lift the ocean wave,
The mountain stream that loops and swerves
Through my broad meadow's channelled curves
Should waft me on from bound to bound
To where the River weds the Sound,
The Sound should give me to the Sea,
That to the Bay, the Bay to thee.

It may not be ; too long the track
To follow down or struggle back.
The sun has set on fair Naushon
Long ere my western blaze is gone ;
The ocean disk is rolling dark
In shadows round your swinging bark,
While yet the yellow sunset fills
The stream that scarfs my spruce-clad hills ;
The day-star wakes your island deer
Long ere my barnyard chanticleer ;
Your mists are soaring in the blue
While mine are sparks of glittering dew.

It may not be ; oh, would it might,
Could I live o'er that glowing night !
What golden hours would come to life,
What goodly feats of peaceful strife, —
Such jests, that, drained of every joke,
The very bank of language broke, —
Such deeds, that Laughter nearly died
With stitches in his belted side ;
While Time, caught fast in pleasure's chain,
His double goblet snapped in twain,
And stood with half in either hand, —
Both brimming full, — but not of sand !

It may not be ; I strive in vain
To break my slender household chain, —
Three pairs of little clasping hands,
One voice, that whispers, not commands.
Even while my spirit flies away,
My gentle jailers murmur nay ;

All shapes of elemental wrath
They raise along my threatened path ;
The storm grows black, the waters rise,
The mountains mingle with the skies,
The mad tornado scoops the ground,
The midnight robber prowls around, —
Thus, kissing every limb they tie,
They draw a knot and heave a sigh,
Till, fairly netted in the toil,
My feet are rooted to the soil.
Only the soaring wish is free! —
And that, dear Governor, flies to thee!

PITTSFIELD, 1851.

TO AN ENGLISH FRIEND

THE seed that wasteful autumn cast
To waver on its stormy blast,
Long o'er the wintry desert tost,
Its living germ has never lost.
Dropped by the weary tempest's wing,
It feels the kindling ray of spring,
And, starting from its dream of death,
Pours on the air its perfumed breath.

So, parted by the rolling flood,
The love that springs from common blood
Needs but a single sunlit hour
Of mingling smiles to bud and flower ;
Unharm'd its slumbering life has flown,
From shore to shore, from zone to zone,

Where summer's falling roses stain
 The tepid waves of Pontchartrain,
 Or where the lichen creeps below
 Katahdin's wreaths of whirling snow.

Though fiery sun and stiffening cold
 May change the fair ancestral mould,
 No winter chills, no summer drains
 The life-blood drawn from English veins,
 Still bearing wheresoe'er it flows
 The love that with its fountain rose,
 Unchanged by space, unwronged by time,
 From age to age, from clime to clime !

AFTER A LECTURE ON WORDSWORTH

COME, spread your wings, as I spread mine,
 And leave the crowded hall
 For where the eyes of twilight shine
 O'er evening's western wall.

These are the pleasant Berkshire hills,
 Each with its leafy crown ;
 Hark ! from their sides a thousand rills
 Come singing sweetly down.

A thousand rills ; they leap and shine,
 Strained through the shadowy nooks,
 Till, clasped in many a gathering twine,
 They swell a hundred brooks.

A hundred brooks, and still they run
With ripple, shade, and gleam,
Till, clustering all their braids in one,
They flow a single stream.

A bracelet spun from mountain mist,
A silvery sash unwound,
With ox-bow curve and sinuous twist
It writhes to reach the Sound.

This is my bark, — a pygmy's ship ;
Beneath a child it rolls ;
Fear not, — one body makes it dip,
But not a thousand souls.

Float we the grassy banks between ;
Without an oar we glide ;
The meadows, drest in living green,
Unroll on either side.

Come, take the book we love so well,
And let us read and dream
We see whate'er its pages tell,
And sail an English stream.

Up to the clouds the lark has sprung,
Still trilling as he flies ;
The linnet sings as there he sung ;
The unseen cuckoo cries,

And daisies strew the banks along,
And yellow kingcups shine,

With cowslips, and a primrose throng,
And humble celandine.

Ah foolish dream! when Nature nursed
Her daughter in the West,
The fount was drained that opened first ;
She bared her other breast.

On the young planet's orient shore
Her morning hand she tried ;
Then turned the broad medallion o'er
And stamped the sunset side.

Take what she gives, her pine's tall stem,
Her elm with hanging spray ;
She wears her mountain diadem
Still in her own proud way.

Look on the forests' ancient kings,
The hemlock's towering pride :
Yon trunk had thrice a hundred rings,
And fell before it died.

Nor think that Nature saves her bloom
And slights our grassy plain ;
For us she wears her court costume, —
Look on its brodered train ;

The lily with the sprinkled dots,
Brands of the noontide beam ;
The cardinal, and the blood-red spots,
Its double in the stream,

As if some wounded eagle's breast,
Slow throbbing o'er the plain,
Had left its airy path impressed
In drops of scarlet rain.

And hark! and hark! the woodland rings;
There thrilled the thrush's soul;
And look! that flash of flamy wings, —
The fire-plumed oriole!

Above, the hen-hawk swims and swoops,
Flung from the bright, blue sky;
Below, the robin hops, and whoops
His piercing, Indian cry.

Beauty runs virgin in the woods
Robed in her rustic green,
And oft a longing thought intrudes,
As if we might have seen

Her every finger's every joint
Ringed with some golden line,
Poet whom Nature did anoint!
Had our wild home been thine.

Yet think not so; Old England's blood
Runs warm in English veins;
But wafted o'er the icy flood
Its better life remains:

Our children know each wildwood smell,
The bayberry and the fern,

The man who does not know them well
Is all too old to learn.

Be patient! On the breathing page
Still pants our hurried past;
Pilgrim and soldier, saint and sage, —
The poet comes the last!

Though still the lark-voiced matins ring
The world has known so long;
The wood-thrush of the West shall sing
Earth's last sweet even-song!

AFTER A LECTURE ON MOORE

SHINE soft, ye trembling tears of light
That strew the mourning skies;
Hushed in the silent dews of night
The harp of Erin lies.

What though her thousand years have past
Of poets, saints, and kings, —
Her echoes only hear the last
That swept those golden strings.

Fling o'er his mound, ye star-lit bowers,
The balmiest wreaths ye wear,
Whose breath has lent your earth-born flowers
Heaven's own ambrosial air.

Breathe, bird of night, thy softest tone,
By shadowy grove and rill;

Thy song will soothe us while we own
That his was sweeter still.

Stay, pitying Time, thy foot for him
Who gave thee swifter wings,
Nor let thine envious shadow dim
The light his glory flings.

If in his cheek unholy blood
Burned for one youthful hour,
'T was but the flushing of the bud
That blooms a milk-white flower.

Take him, kind mother, to thy breast,
Who loved thy smiles so well,
And spread thy mantle o'er his rest
Of rose and asphodel.

The bark has sailed the midnight sea,
The sea without a shore,
That waved its parting sign to thee, —
“ A health to thee, Tom Moore ! ”

And thine, long lingering on the strand,
Its bright-hued streamers furled,
Was loosed by age, with trembling hand,
To seek the silent world.

Not silent ! no, the radiant stars
Still singing as they shine,
Unheard through earth's imprisoning bars,
Have voices sweet as thine.

Wake, then, in happier realms above,
 The songs of bygone years,
 Till angels learn those airs of love
 That ravished mortal ears !

AFTER A LECTURE ON KEATS

“ Purpureos spargam flores.”

THE wreath that star-crowned Shelley gave
 Is lying on thy Roman grave,
 Yet on its turf young April sets
 Her store of slender violets ;
 Though all the Gods their garlands shower,
 I too may bring one purple flower.
 Alas ! what blossom shall I bring,
 That opens in my Northern spring ?
 The garden beds have all run wild,
 So trim when I was yet a child ;
 Flat plantains and unseemly stalks
 Have crept across the gravel walks ;
 The vines are dead, long, long ago,
 The almond buds no longer blow.
 No more upon its mound I see
 The azure, plume-bound fleur-de-lis ;
 Where once the tulips used to show,
 In straggling tufts the pansies grow ;
 The grass has quenched my white-rayed gem,
 The flowering “ Star of Bethlehem,”
 Though its long blade of glossy green
 And pallid stripe may still be seen.
 Nature, who treads her nobles down,

And gives their birthright to the clown,
Has sown her base-born weedy things
Above the garden's queens and kings.
Yet one sweet flower of ancient race
Springs in the old familiar place.
When snows were melting down the vale,
And Earth unlaced her icy mail,
And March his stormy trumpet blew,
And tender green came peeping through,
I loved the earliest one to seek
That broke the soil with emerald beak,
And watch the trembling bells so blue
Spread on the column as it grew.
Meek child of earth! thou wilt not shame
The sweet, dead poet's holy name ;
The God of music gave thee birth,
Called from the crimson-spotted earth,
Where, sobbing his young life away,
His own fair Hyacinthus lay.
The hyacinth my garden gave
Shall lie upon that Roman grave !

AFTER A LECTURE ON SHELLEY

ONE broad, white sail in Spezzia's treachcrous bay ;
On comes the blast ; too daring bark, beware !
The cloud has clasped her ; lo ! it melts away ;
The wide, waste waters, but no sail is there.

Morning : a woman looking on the sea ;
Midnight : with lamps the long veranda burns ;

Come, wandering sail, they watch, they burn for thee !

Suns come and go, alas ! no bark returns.

And feet are thronging on the pebbly sands,
And torches flaring in the weedy caves,
Where'er the waters lay with icy hands
The shapes uplifted from their coral graves.

Vainly they seek ; the idle quest is o'er ;
The coarse, dark women, with their hanging locks,
And lean, wild children gather from the shore
To the black hovels bedded in the rocks.

But Love still prayed, with agonizing wail,
“ One, one last look, ye heaving waters, yield ! ”
Till Ocean, clashing in his jointed mail,
Raised the pale burden on his level shield.

Slow from the shore the sullen waves retire ;
His form a nobler element shall claim ;
Nature baptized him in ethereal fire,
And Death shall crown him with a wreath of flame.

Fade, mortal semblance, never to return ;
Swift is the change within thy crimson shroud ;
Seal the white ashes in the peaceful urn ;
All else has risen in yon silvery cloud.

Sleep where thy gentle Adonais lies,
Whose open page lay on thy dying heart,

Both in the smile of those blue-vaulted skies,
Earth's fairest dome of all divinest art.

Breathe for his wandering soul one passing sigh,
O happier Christian, while thine eye grows
dim, —

In all the mansions of the house on high,
Say not that Mercy has not one for him !

AT THE CLOSE OF A COURSE OF LECTURES

As the voice of the watch to the mariner's dream,
As the footstep of Spring on the ice-girdled stream,
There comes a soft footstep, a whisper, to me, —
The vision is over, — the rivulet free !

We have trod from the threshold of turbulent
March,
Till the green scarf of April is hung on the larch,
And down the bright hillside that welcomes the day,
We hear the warm panting of beautiful May.

We will part before Summer has opened her wing,
And the bosom of June swells the bodice of Spring,
While the hope of the season lies fresh in the bud,
And the young life of Nature runs warm in our blood.

It is but a word, and the chain is unbound,
The bracelet of steel drops unclasped to the ground ;

No hand shall replace it, — it rests where it fell, —
It is but one word that we all know too well.

Yet the hawk with the wildness untamed in his eye,
If you free him, stares round ere he springs to the sky ;

The slave whom no longer his fetters restrain
Will turn for a moment and look at his chain.

Our parting is not as the friendship of years,
That chokes with the blessing it speaks through its tears ;

We have walked in a garden, and, looking around,
Have plucked a few leaves from the myrtles we found.

But now at the gate of the garden we stand,
And the moment has come for unclasping the hand ;
Will you drop it like lead, and in silence retreat
Like the twenty crushed forms from an omnibus seat ?

Nay! hold it one moment, — the last we may share, —

I stretch it in kindness, and not for my fare ;
You may pass through the doorway in rank or in file,

If your ticket from Nature is stamped with a smile.

For the sweetest of smiles is the smile as we part,
When the light round the lips is a ray from the heart ;

And lest a stray tear from its fountain might swell,
 We will seal the bright spring with a quiet farewell.

THE HUDSON

AFTER A LECTURE AT ALBANY

'T WAS a vision of childhood that came with its dawn,
 Ere the curtain that covered life's day-star was drawn ;
 The nurse told the tale when the shadows grew long,
 And the mother's soft lullaby breathed it in song.

"There flows a fair stream by the hills of the West," —
 She sang to her boy as he lay on her breast ;
 "Along its smooth margin thy fathers have played ;
 Beside its deep waters their ashes are laid."

I wandered afar from the land of my birth,
 I saw the old rivers, renowned upon earth,
 But fancy still painted that wide-flowing stream
 With the many-hued pencil of infancy's dream.

I saw the green banks of the castle-crowned Rhine,
 Where the grapes drink the moonlight and change
 it to wine ;
 I stood by the Avon, whose waves as they glide
 Still whisper his glory who sleeps at their side.

But my heart would still yearn for the sound of the waves
 That sing as they flow by my forefathers' graves ;
 If manhood yet honors my cheek with a tear,
 I care not who sees it,— no blush for it here !

Farewell to the deep-bosomed stream of the West !
 I fling this loose blossom to float on its breast ;
 Nor let the dear love of its children grow cold,
 Till the channel is dry where its waters have rolled !
 December, 1854.

THE NEW EDEN

MEETING OF THE BERKSHIRE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY,
 AT STOCKBRIDGE, SEPTEMBER 13, 1854

SCARCE could the parting ocean close,
 Seamed by the Mayflower's cleaving bow,
 When o'er the rugged desert rose
 The waves that tracked the Pilgrim's plough.

Then sprang from many a rock-strewn field
 The rippling grass, the nodding grain,
 Such growths as English meadows yield
 To scanty sun and frequent rain.

But when the fiery days were done,
 And Autumn brought his purple haze,
 Then, kindling in the slanted sun,
 The hillsides gleamed with golden maize.

The food was scant, the fruits were few :
 A red-streak glistening here and there ;

Perchance in statelier precincts grew
Some stern old Puritanic pear.

Austere in taste, and tough at core,
Its unrelenting bulk was shed,
To ripen in the Pilgrim's store
When all the summer sweets were fled.

Such was his lot, to front the storm
With iron heart and marble brow,
Nor ripen till his earthly form
Was cast from life's autumnal bough.

But ever on the bleakest rock
We bid the brightest beacon glow,
And still upon the thorniest stock
The sweetest roses love to blow.

So on our rude and wintry soil
We feed the kindling flame of art,
And steal the tropic's blushing spoil
To bloom on Nature's ice-clad heart.

See how the softening Mother's breast
Warms to her children's patient wiles, —
Her lips by loving Labor pressed
Break in a thousand dimpling smiles,

From when the flushing bud of June
Dawns with its first auroral hue,
Till shines the rounded harvest-moon,
And velvet dahlias drink the dew.

Nor these the only gifts she brings ;
    Look where the laboring orchard groans,
And yields its beryl-threaded strings
    For chestnut burs and hemlock cones.

Dear though the shadowy maple be,
    And dearer still the whispering pine,
Dearest yon russet-laden tree
    Browned by the heavy rubbing kine !

There childhood flung its rustling stone,
    There venturous boyhood learned to climb, —
How well the early graft was known
    Whose fruit was ripe ere harvest-time !

Nor be the Fleming's pride forgot,
    With swinging drops and drooping bells,
Freckled and splashed with streak and spot,
    On the warm-breasted, sloping swells ;

Nor Persia's painted garden-queen, —
    Frail Hourî of the trellised wall, —
Her deep-cleft bosom scarfed with green, —
    Fairest to see, and first to fall.

---

When man provoked his mortal doom,
    And Eden trembled as he fell,
When blossoms sighed their last perfume,
    And branches waved their long farewell,

One sucker crept beneath the gate,
One seed was wafted o'er the wall,
One bough sustained his trembling weight ;
These left the garden, — these were all.

And far o'er many a distant zone
These wrecks of Eden still are flung :
The fruits that Paradise hath known
Are still in earthly gardens hung.

Yes, by our own unstoried stream
The pink-white apple-blossoms burst
That saw the young Euphrates gleam, —
That Gihon's circling waters nursed.

For us the ambrosial pear displays
The wealth its arching branches hold,
Bathed by a hundred summery days
In floods of mingling fire and gold.

And here, where beauty's cheek of flame
With morning's earliest beam is fed,
The sunset-painted peach may claim
To rival its celestial red.

---

What though in some unmoistened vale
The summer leaf grow brown and sere,
Say, shall our star of promise fail
That circles half the rolling sphere,

From beaches salt with bitter spray,
O'er prairies green with softest rain,
And ridges bright with evening's ray,
To rocks that shade the stormless main?

If by our slender-threaded streams
The blade and leaf and blossom die,
If, drained by noontide's parching beams,
The milky veins of Nature dry,

See, with her swelling bosom bare,
Yon wild-eyed Sister in the West, —
The ring of Empire round her hair,
The Indian's wampum on her breast!

We saw the August sun descend,
Day after day, with blood-red stain,
And the blue mountains dimly blend
With smoke-wreaths from the burning plain;

Beneath the hot Sirocco's wings
We sat and told the withering hours,
Till Heaven unsealed its hoarded springs,
And bade them leap in flashing showers.

Yet in our Ishmael's thirst we knew
The mercy of the Sovereign hand
Would pour the fountain's quickening dew
To feed some harvest of the land.

No flaming swords of wrath surround
Our second Garden of the Blest;

It spreads beyond its rocky bound,
It climbs Nevada's glittering crest.

God keep the tempter from its gate!
God shield the children, lest they fall
From their stern fathers' free estate, —
Till Ocean is its only wall!

SEMI-CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY

NEW YORK, DECEMBER 22, 1855

NEW ENGLAND, we love thee; no time can erase
From the hearts of thy children the smile on thy face.

'T is the mother's fond look of affection and pride,
As she gives her fair son to the arms of his bride.

His bride may be fresher in beauty's young flower;
She may blaze in the jewels she brings with her dower.

But passion must chill in Time's pitiless blast;
The one that first loved us will love to the last.

You have left the dear land of the lake and the hill,

But its winds and its waters will talk with you still.
"Forget not," they whisper, "your love is our debt,"

And echo breathes softly, "We never forget."

The banquet's gay splendors are gleaming around,

But your hearts have flown back o'er the waves of the Sound ;
They have found the brown home where their pulses were born ;
They are throbbing their way through the trees and the corn.

There are roofs you remember, — their glory is fled ;
There are mounds in the churchyard, — one sigh
for the dead.
There are wrecks, there are ruins, all scattered around ;
But Earth has no spot like that corner of ground.

Come, let us be cheerful, — remember last night,
How they cheered us, and — never mind — meant
it all right ;
To-night, we harm nothing, — we love in the lump ;
Here 's a bumper to Maine, in the juice of the pump !

Here 's to all the good people, wherever they be,
Who have grown in the shade of the liberty-tree ;
We all love its leaves, and its blossoms and fruit,
But pray have a care of the fence round its root.

We should like to talk big ; it 's a kind of a right,
When the tongue has got loose and the waistband
grown tight ;
But, as pretty Miss Prudence remarked to her beau,
On its own heap of compost no biddy should crow.

Enough! There are gentlemen waiting to talk,
Whose words are to mine as the flower to the stalk.
Stand by your old mother whatever befall;
God bless all her children! Good night to you all!

FAREWELL

TO J. R. LOWELL

FAREWELL, for the bark has her breast to the tide,
And the rough arms of Ocean are stretched for his bride;
The winds from the mountain stream over the bay;
One clasp of the hand, then away and away!

I see the tall mast as it rocks by the shore;
The sun is declining, I see it once more;
To-day like the blade in a thick-waving field,
To-morrow the spike on a Highlander's shield.

Alone, while the cloud pours its treacherous breath,
With the blue lips all round her whose kisses are death;
Ah, think not the breeze that is urging her sail
Has left her unaided to strive with the gale.

There are hopes that play round her, like fires on the mast,
That will light the dark hour till its danger has past;
There are prayers that will plead with the storm
    when it raves,
And whisper "Be still!" to the turbulent waves.

Nay, think not that Friendship has called us in vain
 To join the fair ring ere we break it again ;
 There is strength in its circle, — you lose the bright star,
 But its sisters still chain it, though shining afar.

I give you one health in the juice of the vine,
 The blood of the vineyard shall mingle with
 mine ;
 Thus, thus let us drain the last dew-drops of gold,
 As we empty our hearts of the blessings they hold.

April 29, 1855.

FOR THE MEETING OF THE BURNS CLUB

1856

THE mountains glitter in the snow
 A thousand leagues asunder ;
 Yet here, amid the banquet's glow,
 I hear their voice of thunder ;
 Each giant's ice-bound goblet clinks ;
 A flowing stream is summoned ;
 Wachusett to Ben Nevis drinks ;
 Monadnock to Ben Lomond !

Though years have clipped the eagle's plume
 That crowned the chieftain's bonnet,
 The sun still sees the heather bloom,
 The silver mists lie on it ;

With tartan kilt and philibeg,
What stride was ever bolder
Than his who showed the naked leg
Beneath the plaided shoulder?

The echoes sleep on Cheviot's hills,
That heard the bugles blowing
When down their sides the crimson rills
With mingled blood were flowing ;
The hunts where gallant hearts were game,
The slashing on the border,
The raid that swooped with sword and flame,
Give place to "law and order."

Not while the rocking steeples reel
With midnight tocsins ringing,
Not while the crashing war-notes peal,
God sets his poets singing ;
The bird is silent in the night,
Or shrieks a cry of warning
While fluttering round the beacon-light, —
But hear him greet the morning !

The lark of Scotia's morning sky !
Whose voice may sing his praises ?
With Heaven's own sunlight in his eye,
He walked among the daisies,
Till through the cloud of fortune's wrong
He soared to fields of glory ;
But left his land her sweetest song
And earth her saddest story.

'T is not the forts the builder piles
 That chain the earth together ;
 The wedded crowns, the sister isles,
 Would laugh at such a tether ;
 The kindling thought, the throbbing words,
 That set the pulses beating,
 Are stronger than the myriad swords
 Of mighty armies meeting.

Thus while within the banquet glows,
 Without, the wild winds whistle,
 We drink a triple health, — the Rose,
 The Shamrock, and the Thistle !
 Their blended hues shall never fade
 Till War has hushed his cannon, —
 Close-twined as ocean-currents braid
 The Thames, the Clyde, the Shannon !

ODE FOR WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

CELEBRATION OF THE MERCANTILE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION,
 FEBRUARY 22, 1856

WELCOME to the day returning,
 Dearer still as ages flow,
 While the torch of Faith is burning,
 Long as Freedom's altars glow !
 See the hero whom it gave us
 Slumbering on a mother's breast ;
 For the arm he stretched to save us,
 Be its morn forever blest !

Hear the tale of youthful glory,
While of Britain's rescued band
Friend and foe repeat the story,
Spread his fame o'er sea and land,
Where the red cross, proudly streaming,
Flaps above the frigate's deck,
Where the golden lilies, gleaming,
Star the watch-towers of Quebec.

Look! The shadow on the dial
Marks the hour of deadlier strife;
Days of terror, years of trial,
Scourge a nation into life.
Lo, the youth, become her leader!
All her baffled tyrants yield;
Through his arm the Lord hath freed her;
Crown him on the tented field!

Vain is Empire's mad temptation!
Not for him an earthly crown!
He whose sword hath freed a nation
Strikes the offered sceptre down.
See the throneless Conqueror seated,
Ruler by a people's choice;
See the Patriot's task completed;
Hear the Father's dying voice!

“By the name that you inherit,
By the sufferings you recall,
Cherish the fraternal spirit;
Love your country first of all!

Listen not to idle questions
 If its bands may be untied ;
 Doubt the patriot whose suggestions
 Strive a nation to divide ! ”

Father! We, whose ears have tingled
 With the discord-notes of shame, —
 We, whose sires their blood have mingled
 In the battle's thunder-flame, —
 Gathering, while this holy morning
 Lights the land from sea to sea,
 Hear thy counsel, heed thy warning ;
 Trust us, while we honor thee !

BIRTHDAY OF DANIEL WEBSTER

JANUARY 18, 1856

WHEN life hath run its largest round
 Of toil and triumph, joy and woe,
 How brief a storied page is found
 To compass all its outward show !

The world-tried sailor tires and droops ;
 His flag is rent, his keel forgot ;
 His farthest voyages seem but loops
 That float from life's entangled knot.

But when within the narrow space
 Some larger soul hath lived and wrought,
 Whose sight was open to embrace
 The boundless realms of deed and thought, —

When, stricken by the freezing blast,
A nation's living pillars fall,
How rich the storied page, how vast,
A word, a whisper, can recall !

No medal lifts its fretted face,
Nor speaking marble cheats your eye,
Yet, while these pictured lines I trace,
A living image passes by :

A roof beneath the mountain pines ;
The cloisters of a hill-girt plain ;
The front of life's embattled lines ;
A mound beside the heaving main.

These are the scenes : a boy appears ;
Set life's round dial in the sun,
Count the swift arc of seventy years,
His frame is dust ; his task is done.

Yet pause upon the noontide hour,
Ere the declining sun has laid
His bleaching rays on manhood's power,
And look upon the mighty shade.

No gloom that stately shape can hide,
No change uncrown its brow ; behold !
Dark, calm, large-fronted, lightning-eyed,
Earth has no double from its mould !

Ere from the fields by valor won
The battle-smoke had rolled away,

And bared the blood-red setting sun,
His eyes were opened on the day.

His land was but a shelving strip
Black with the strife that made it free ;
He lived to see its banners dip
Their fringes in the Western sea.

The boundless prairies learned his name,
His words the mountain echoes knew,
The Northern breezes swept his fame
From icy lake to warm bayou.

In toil he lived ; in peace he died ;
When life's full cycle was complete,
Put off his robes of power and pride,
And laid them at his Master's feet.

His rest is by the storm-swept waves
Whom life's wild tempests roughly tried,
Whose heart was like the streaming caves
Of ocean, throbbing at his side.

Death's cold white hand is like the snow
Laid softly on the furrowed hill,
It hides the broken seams below,
And leaves the summit brighter still.

In vain the envious tongue upbraids ;
His name a nation's heart shall keep
Till morning's latest sunlight fades
On the blue tablet of the deep !

THE VOICELESS

WE count the broken lyres that rest
Where the sweet wailing singers slumber,
But o'er their silent sister's breast
The wild-flowers who will stoop to number?
A few can touch the magic string,
And noisy Fame is proud to win them : —
Alas for those that never sing,
But die with all their music in them !

Nay, grieve not for the dead alone
Whose song has told their hearts' sad story, —
Weep for the voiceless, who have known
The cross without the crown of glory !
Not where Leucadian breezes sweep
O'er Sappho's memory-haunted billow,
But where the glistening night-dews weep
On nameless sorrow's churchyard pillow.

O hearts that break and give no sign
Save whitening lip and fading tresses,
Till Death pours out his longed-for wine
Slow-dropped from Misery's crushing presses, —
If singing breath or echoing chord
To every hidden pang were given,
What endless melodies were poured,
As sad as earth, as sweet as heaven !

THE TWO STREAMS

BEHOLD the rocky wall
That down its sloping sides
Pours the swift rain-drops, blending, as they fall,
In rushing river-tides !

Yon stream, whose sources run
Turned by a pebble's edge,
Is Athabasca, rolling toward the sun
Through the cleft mountain-ledge.

The slender rill had strayed,
But for the slanting stone,
To evening's ocean, with the tangled braid
Of foam-flecked Oregon.

So from the heights of Will
Life's parting stream descends,
And, as a moment turns its slender rill,
Each widening torrent bends, —

From the same cradle's side,
From the same mother's knee, —
One to long darkness and the frozen tide,
One to the Peaceful Sea !

THE PROMISE

NOR charity we ask,
Nor yet thy gift refuse ;
Please thy light fancy with the easy task
Only to look and choose.

The little-headed toy
That wins thy treasured gold
May be the dearest memory, holiest joy,
Of coming years untold.

Heaven rains on every heart,
But there its showers divide,
The drops of mercy choosing, as they part,
The dark or glowing side.

One kindly deed may turn
The fountain of thy soul
To love's sweet day-star, that shall o'er thee burn
Long as its currents roll !

The pleasures thou hast planned, —
Where shall their memory be
When the white angel with the freezing hand
Shall sit and watch by thee ?

Living, thou dost not live,
If mercy's spring run dry ;
What Heaven has lent thee wilt thou freely give,
Dying, thou shalt not die !

HE promised even so!
 To thee his lips repeat, —
 Behold, the tears that soothed thy sister's woe
 Have washed thy Master's feet!

March 20, 1859.

AVIS

I MAY not rightly call thy name, —
 Alas! thy forehead never knew
 The kiss that happier children claim,
 Nor glistened with baptismal dew.

Daughter of want and wrong and woe,
 I saw thee with thy sister-band,
 Snatched from the whirlpool's narrowing flow
 By Mercy's strong yet trembling hand.

“Avis!” — With Saxon eye and cheek,
 At once a woman and a child,
 The saint uncrowned I came to seek
 Drew near to greet us, — spoke, and smiled.

God gave that sweet sad smile she wore
 All wrong to shame, all souls to win, —
 A heavenly sunbeam sent before
 Her footsteps through a world of sin.

“And who is Avis?” — Hear the tale
 The calm-voiced matrons gravely tell, —
 The story known through all the vale
 Where Avis and her sisters dwell.

With the lost children running wild,
Strayed from the hand of human care,
They find one little refuse child
Left helpless in its poisoned lair.

The primal mark is on her face, —
The chattel-stamp, — the pariah-stain
That follows still her hunted race, —
The curse without the crime of Cain.

How shall our smooth-turned phrase relate
The little suffering outcast's ail?
Not Lazarus at the rich man's gate
So turned the rose-wreathed revellers pale.

Ah, veil the living death from sight
That wounds our beauty-loving eye!
The children turn in selfish fright,
The white-lipped nurses hurry by.

Take her, dread Angel! Break in love
This bruised reed and make it thine! —
No voice descended from above,
But Avis answered, "She is mine."

The task that dainty menials spurn
The fair young girl has made her own;
Her heart shall teach, her hand shall learn
The toils, the duties yet unknown.

So Love and Death in lingering strife
Stand face to face from day to day,

Still battling for the spoil of Life
While the slow seasons creep away.

Love conquers Death ; the prize is won ;
See to her joyous bosom pressed
The dusky daughter of the sun, —
The bronze against the marble breast !

Her task is done ; no voice divine
Has crowned her deeds with saintly fame.
No eye can see the aureole shine
That rings her brow with heavenly flame.

Yet what has holy page more sweet,
Or what had woman's love more fair,
When Mary clasped her Saviour's feet
With flowing eyes and streaming hair ?

Meek child of sorrow, walk unknown,
The Angel of that earthly throng,
And let thine image live alone
To hallow this unstudied song !

THE LIVING TEMPLE

NOR in the world of light alone,
Where God has built his blazing throne,
Nor yet alone in earth below,
With belted seas that come and go,
And endless isles of sunlit green,
Is all thy Maker's glory seen :

Look in upon thy wondrous frame, —
Eternal wisdom still the same!

The smooth, soft air with pulse-like waves
Flows murmuring through its hidden caves,
Whose streams of brightening purple rush,
Fired with a new and livelier blush,
While all their burden of decay
The ebbing current steals away,
And red with Nature's flame they start
From the warm fountains of the heart.

No rest that throbbing slave may ask,
Forever quivering o'er his task,
While far and wide a crimson jet
Leaps forth to fill the woven net
Which in unnumbered crossing tides
The flood of burning life divides,
Then, kindling each decaying part,
Creeps back to find the throbbing heart.

But warmed with that unchanging flame
Behold the outward moving frame,
Its living marbles jointed strong
With glistening band and silvery thong,
And linked to reason's guiding reins
By myriad rings in trembling chains,
Each graven with the threaded zone
Which claims it as the master's own.

See how yon beam of seeming white
Is braided out of seven-hued light,

Yet in those lucid globes no ray
 By any chance shall break astray.
 Hark how the rolling surge of sound,
 Arches and spirals circling round,
 Wakes the hushed spirit through thine ear
 With music it is heaven to hear.

Then mark the cloven sphere that holds
 All thought in its mysterious folds ;
 That feels sensation's faintest thrill,
 And flashes forth the sovereign will ;
 Think on the stormy world that dwells
 Locked in its dim and clustering cells !
 The lightning gleams of power it sheds
 Along its hollow glassy threads !

O Father ! grant thy love divine
 To make these mystic temples thine !
 When wasting age and wearying strife
 Have sapped the leaning walls of life,
 When darkness gathers over all,
 And the last tottering pillars fall,
 Take the poor dust thy mercy warms,
 And mould it into heavenly forms !

AT A BIRTHDAY FESTIVAL

TO J. R. LOWELL

WE will not speak of years to-night, —
 For what have years to bring
 But larger floods of love and light,
 And sweeter songs to sing ?

We will not drown in wordy praise
The kindly thoughts that rise ;
If Friendship own one tender phrase,
He reads it in our eyes.

We need not waste our school-boy art
To gild this notch of Time ; —
Forgive me if my wayward heart
Has throbb'd in artless rhyme.

Enough for him the silent grasp
That knits us hand in hand,
And he the bracelet's radiant clasp
That locks our circling band.

Strength to his hours of manly toil !
Peace to his starlit dreams !
Who loves alike the furrowed soil,
The music-haunted streams !

Sweet smiles to keep forever bright
The sunshine on his lips,
And faith that sees the ring of light
Round nature's last eclipse !

February 22, 1859.

A BIRTHDAY TRIBUTE

TO J. F. CLARKE

WHO is the shepherd sent to lead,
Through pastures green, the Master's sheep?
What guileless "Israelite indeed"
The folded flock may watch and keep?

He who with manliest spirit joins
The heart of gentlest human mould,
With burning light and girded loins,
To guide the flock, or watch the fold;

True to all Truth the world denies,
Not tongue-tied for its gilded sin;
Not always right in all men's eyes,
But faithful to the light within;

Who asks no meed of earthly fame,
Who knows no earthly master's call,
Who hopes for man, through guilt and shame,
Still answering, "God is over all";

Who makes another's grief his own,
Whose smile lends joy a double cheer;
Where lives the saint, if such be known? —
Speak softly, — such an one is here!

O faithful shepherd! thou hast borne
The heat and burden of the day;

Yet, o'er thee, bright with beams unshorn,
The sun still shows thine onward way.

To thee our fragrant love we bring,
In buds that April half displays,
Sweet first-born angels of the spring,
Caught in their opening hymn of praise.

What though our faltering accents fail,
Our captives know their message well,
Our words unbreathed their lips exhale,
And sigh more love than ours can tell.

April 4, 1860.

THE GRAY CHIEF

FOR THE MEETING OF THE MASSACHUSETTS MEDICAL SOCIETY, 1859

'T IS sweet to fight our battles o'er,
And crown with honest praise
The gray old chief, who strikes no more
The blow of better days.

Before the true and trusted sage
With willing hearts we bend,
When years have touched with hallowing age
Our Master, Guide, and Friend.

For all his manhood's labor past,
For love and faith long tried,
His age is honored to the last,
Though strength and will have died.

But when, untamed by toil and strife,
 Full in our front he stands,
 The torch of light, the shield of life,
 Still lifted in his hands,

No temple, though its walls resound
 With bursts of ringing cheers,
 Can hold the honors that surround
 His manhood's twice-told years !

THE LAST LOOK

W. W. SWAIN

BEHOLD — not him we knew !
 This was the prison which his soul looked through,
 Tender, and brave, and true.

His voice no more is heard ;
 And his dead name — that dear familiar word —
 Lies on our lips unstirred.

He spake with poet's tongue ;
 Living, for him the minstrel's lyre was strung :
 He shall not die unsung !

Grief tried his love, and pain ;
 And the long bondage of his martyr-chain
 Vexed his sweet soul, — in vain !

It felt life's surges break,
 As, girt with stormy seas, his island lake,
 Smiling while tempests wake.

How can we sorrow more ?
Grieve not for him whose heart had gone before
To that untrodden shore !

Lo, through its leafy screen,
A gleam of sunlight on a ring of green,
Untrodden, half unseen !

Here let his body rest,
Where the calm shadows that his soul loved best
May slide above his breast.

Smooth his uncurtained bed ;
And if some natural tears are softly shed,
It is not for the dead.

Fold the green turf aright
For the long hours before the morning's light,
And say the last Good Night !

And plant a clear white stone
Close by those mounds which hold his loved, his own, —
Lonely, but not alone.

Here let him sleeping lie,
Till Heaven's bright watchers slumber in the sky
And Death himself shall die !

NAUSHON, September 22, 1858.

IN MEMORY OF CHARLES WENTWORTH
UPHAM, JR.

HE was all sunshine ; in his face
The very soul of sweetness shone ;
Fairest and gentlest of his race ;
None like him we can call our own.

Something there was of one that died
In her fresh spring-time long ago,
Our first dear Mary, angel-eyed,
Whose smile it was a bliss to know.

Something of her whose love imparts
Such radiance to her day's decline,
We feel its twilight in our hearts
Bright as the earliest morning-shine.

Yet richer strains our eye could trace
That made our plainer mould more fair,
That curved the lip with happier grace,
That waved the soft and silken hair.

Dust unto dust! the lips are still
That only spoke to cheer and bless ;
The folded hands lie white and chill
Unclasped from sorrow's last caress.

Leave him in peace ; he will not heed
These idle tears we vainly pour,

Give back to earth the fading weed
Of mortal shape his spirit wore.

“ Shall I not weep my heartstrings torn,
My flower of love that falls half blown,
My youth uncrowned, my life forlorn,
A thorny path to walk alone ? ”

O Mary ! one who bore thy name,
Whose Friend and Master was divine,
Sat waiting silent till He came,
Bowed down in speechless grief like thine.

“ Where have ye laid him ? ” “ Come,” they say,
Pointing to where the loved one slept ;
Weeping, the sister led the way, —
And, seeing Mary, “ Jesus wept.”

He weeps with thee, with all that mourn,
And He shall wipe thy streaming eyes
Who knew all sorrows, woman-born, —
Trust in his word ; thy dead shall rise !

April 15, 1860.

MARTHA

DIED JANUARY 7, 1861

SEXTON ! Martha 's dead and gone ;
Toll the bell ! toll the bell !
Her weary hands their labor cease ;
Good night, poor Martha, — sleep in peace !
Toll the bell !

Sexton! Martha's dead and gone;
 Toll the bell! toll the bell!
 For many a year has Martha said,
 "I'm old and poor, — would I were dead!"
 Toll the bell!

Sexton! Martha's dead and gone;
 Toll the bell! toll the bell!
 She'll bring no more, by day or night,
 Her basket full of linen white.
 Toll the bell!

Sexton! Martha's dead and gone;
 Toll the bell! toll the bell!
 'T is fitting she should lie below
 A pure white sheet of drifted snow.
 Toll the bell!

Sexton! Martha's dead and gone;
 Toll the bell! toll the bell!
 Sleep, Martha, sleep, to wake in light,
 Where all the robes are stainless white.
 Toll the bell!

MEETING OF THE ALUMNI OF HARVARD COLLEGE

1857

I THANK you, MR. PRESIDENT, you've kindly broke the ice;
 Virtue should always be the first, — I'm only SEC-OND VICE —

(A vice is something with a screw that 's made to hold its jaw Till some old file has played away upon an ancient saw).

Sweet brothers by the Mother's side, the babes of days gone by,
All nurslings of her Juno breasts whose milk is never dry,
We come again, like half-grown boys, and gather at her beck
About her knees, and on her lap, and clinging round her neck.

We find her at her stately door, and in her ancient chair,
Dressed in the robes of red and green she always loved to wear.
Her eye has all its radiant youth, her cheek its morning flame ;
We drop our roses as we go, hers flourish still the same.

We have been playing many an hour, and far away we've strayed,
Some laughing in the cheerful sun, some lingering in the shade ;
And some have tired, and laid them down where darker shadows fall, —
Dear as her loving voice may be, they cannot hear its call.

What miles we 've travelled since we shook the dew-drops from our shoes
We gathered on this classic green, so famed for heavy dues !
How many boys have joined the game, how many slipped away,
Since we 've been running up and down, and having out our play !

One boy at work with book and brief, and one
with gown and band,
One sailing vessels on the pool, one digging in the sand,
One flying paper kites on change, one planting
little pills, —
The seeds of certain annual flowers well known as little bills.

What maidens met us on our way, and clasped us hand in hand !
What cherubs, — not the legless kind, that fly, but never stand !
How many a youthful head we 've seen put on its silver crown !
What sudden changes back again to youth's em-purpled brown !

But fairer sights have met our eyes, and broader lights have shone,
Since others lit their midnight lamps where once
we trimmed our own ;
A thousand trains that flap the sky with flags of rushing fire,

And, throbbing in the Thunderer's hand, Thought's million-chorded lyre.

We've seen the sparks of Empire fly beyond the mountain bars,
Till, glittering o'er the Western wave, they joined the setting stars ;
And ocean trodden into paths that trampling giants
ford,
To find the planet's vertebræ and sink its spinal cord.

We've tried reform, — and chloroform, — and both have turned our brain ;
When France called up the photograph, we roused
the foe to pain ;
Just so those earlier sages shared the chaplet of renown, —
Hers sent a bladder to the clouds, ours brought their lightning down.

We've seen the little tricks of life, its varnish and vener,
Its stucco-fronts of character flake off and disappear,
We've learned that oft the brownest hands will heap the biggest pile,
And met with many a "perfect brick" beneath a rimless "tile."

What dreams we've had of deathless name, as scholars, statesmen, bards,
While Fame, the lady with the trump, held up her picture cards !

Till, having nearly played our game, she gayly whispered, " Ah!
I said you should be something grand, — you 'll
soon be grandpapa."

Well, well, the old have had their day, the young must take their turn ;
There 's something always to forget, and something
still to learn ;
But how to tell what 's old or young, the tap-root
from the sprigs,
Since Florida revealed her fount to Ponce de Leon Twiggs ?

The wisest was a Freshman once, just freed from bar and bolt,
As noisy as a kettle-drum, as leggy as a colt ;
Don't be too savage with the boys, — the Primer does not say
The kitten ought to go to church because the cat doth prey.

The law of merit and of age is not the rule of three ;
Non constat that A. M. must prove as busy as A. B.
When Wise the father tracked the son, ballooning
through the skies,
He taught a lesson to the old, — go thou and do like Wise !

Now then, old boys, and reverend youth, of high or low degree,

Remember how we only get one annual out of three,
And such as dare to simmer down three dinners into one
Must cut their salads mighty short, and pepper
well with fun.

I've passed my zenith long ago, it's time for me to set ;
A dozen planets wait to shine, and I am lingering yet,
As sometimes in the blaze of day a milk-and-watery moon
Stains with its dim and fading ray the lustrous
blue of noon.

Farewell ! yet let one echo rise to shake our ancient hall ;
God save the Queen, — whose throne is here, — the Mother of us all !
Till dawns the great commencement-day on every shore and sea,
And "Expectantur" all mankind, to take their last Degree !

THE PARTING SONG

FESTIVAL OF THE ALUMNI, 1857

THE noon of summer sheds its ray
On Harvard's holy ground ;
The Matron calls, the sons obey,
And gather smiling round.

CHORUS.

Then old and young together stand,
The sunshine and the snow,
As heart to heart, and hand in hand,
We sing before we go !

Her hundred opening doors have swung ;
Through every storied hall
The pealing echoes loud have rung,
“ Thrice welcome one and all ! ”
Then old and young, etc.

We floated through her peaceful bay,
To sail life's stormy seas ;
But left our anchor where it lay
Beneath her green old trees.
Then old and young, etc.

As now we lift its lengthening chain,
That held us fast of old,
The rusted rings grow bright again, —
Their iron turns to gold.
Then old and young, etc.

Though scattered ere the setting sun,
As leaves when wild winds blow,
Our home is here, our hearts are one,
Till Charles forgets to flow.
Then old and young, etc.

FOR THE MEETING OF THE NATIONAL SANITARY ASSOCIATION

1860

WHAT makes the Healing Art divine ?
The bitter drug we buy and sell,
The brands that scorch, the blades that shine,
The scars we leave, the "cures" we tell ?

Are these thy glories, holiest Art, —
The trophies that adorn thee best, —
Or but thy triumph's meanest part, —
Where mortal weakness stands confessed ?

We take the arms that Heaven supplies
For Life's long battle with Disease,
Taught by our various need to prize
Our frailest weapons, even these.

But ah ! when Science drops her shield —
Its peaceful shelter proved in vain —
And bares her snow-white arm to wield
The sad, stern ministry of pain ;

When shuddering o'er the fount of life,
She folds her heaven-anointed wings,
To lift unmoved the glittering knife
That searches all its crimson springs ;

When, faithful to her ancient lore,
She thrusts aside her fragrant balm

For blistering juice, or cankering ore,
And tames them till they cure or calm ;

When in her gracious hand are seen
The dregs and scum of earth and seas,
Her kindness counting all things clean
That lend the sighing sufferer ease ;

Though on the field that Death has won,
She save some stragglers in retreat ; —
These single acts of mercy done
Are but confessions of defeat.

What though our tempered poisons save
Some wrecks of life from aches and ails ;
Those grand specifics Nature gave
Were never poised by weights or scales !

God lent his creatures light and air,
And waters open to the skies ;
Man locks him in a stifling lair,
And wonders why his brother dies !

In vain our pitying tears are shed,
In vain we rear the sheltering pile
Where Art weeds out from bed to bed
The plagues we planted by the mile !

Be that the glory of the past ;
With these our sacred toils begin :
So flies in tatters from its mast
The yellow flag of sloth and sin,

And lo! the starry folds reveal
The blazoned truth we hold so dear:
To guard is better than to heal, —
The shield is nobler than the spear!

FOR THE BURNS CENTENNIAL CELEBRA-TION

JANUARY 25, 1859

HIS birthday. — Nay, we need not speak
The name each heart is beating, —
Each glistening eye and flushing cheek
In light and flame repeating!

We come in one tumultuous tide, —
One surge of wild emotion, —
As crowding through the Frith of Clyde
Rolls in the Western Ocean;

As when yon cloudless, quartered moon
Hangs o'er each storied river,
The swelling breasts of Ayr and Doon
With sea-green wavelets quiver.

The century shrivels like a scroll, —
The past becomes the present, —
And face to face, and soul to soul,
We greet the monarch-peasant.

While Shenstone strained in feeble flights
With Corydon and Phillis, —

While Wolfe was climbing Abraham's heights
To snatch the Bourbon lilies, —

Who heard the wailing infant's cry,
The babe beneath the sheeling,
Whose song to-night in every sky
Will shake earth's starry ceiling, —

Whose passion-breathing voice ascends
And floats like incense o'er us,
Whose ringing lay of friendship blends
With labor's anvil chorus ?

We love him, not for sweetest song,
Though never tone so tender ;
We love him, even in his wrong, —
His wasteful self-surrender.

We praise him, not for gifts divine, —
His Muse was born of woman, —
His manhood breathes in every line, —
Was ever heart more human ?

We love him, praise him, just for this :
In every form and feature,
Through wealth and want, through woe and bliss,
He saw his fellow-creature !

No soul could sink beneath his love, —
Not even angel blasted ;
No mortal power could soar above
The pride that all outlasted !

Ay! Heaven had set one living man
Beyond the pedant's tether, —
His virtues, frailties, HE may scan,
Who weighs them all together!

I fling my pebble on the cairn
Of him, though dead, undying;
Sweet Nature's nursling, bonniest bairn
Beneath her daisies lying.

The waning suns, the wasting globe,
Shall spare the minstrel's story, —
The centuries weave his purple robe,
The mountain-mist of glory!

AT A MEETING OF FRIENDS

AUGUST 29, 1859

I REMEMBER — why, yes! God bless me! and was it so long ago?
I fear I'm growing forgetful, as old folks do, you
know;
It must have been in 'forty — I would say 'thirty-nine —
We talked this matter over, I and a friend of mine.

He said, " Well now, old fellow, I'm thinking that you and I,
If we act like other people, shall be older by and by;

What though the bright blue ocean is smooth as a pond can be,
There is always a line of breakers to fringe the broadest sea.

“ We ’re taking it mighty easy, but that is nothing strange,
For up to the age of thirty we spend our years like change ;
But creeping up towards the forties, as fast as the old years fill,
And Time steps in for payment, we seem to change
a bill.”

“ I know it,” I said, “ old fellow ; you speak the solemn truth ;
A man can’t live to a hundred and likewise keep his youth ;
But what if the ten years coming shall silver-streak
my hair,
You know I shall then be forty ; of course I shall not care.

“ At forty a man grows heavy and tired of fun and noise ;
Leaves dress to the five-and-twenties and love to the silly boys ;
No foppish tricks at forty, no pinching of waists
and toes,
But high-low shoes and flannels and good thick worsted hose.”

But one fine August morning I found myself
awake :

My birthday : — By Jove, I 'm forty ! Yes, forty, and no mistake !

Why, this is the very milestone, I think I used to hold,

That when a fellow had come to, a fellow would then be old !

But that is the young folks' nonsense ; they 're full of their foolish stuff ;

A man 's in his prime at forty, — I see that plain enough ;

At fifty a man is wrinkled, and may be bald or
gray ;

I call men old at fifty, in spite of all they say.

At last comes another August with mist and rain
and shine ;

Its mornings are slowly counted and creep to twenty-nine,

And when on the western summits the fading light appears,

It touches with rosy fingers the last of my fifty years.

There have been both men and women whose hearts were firm and bold,

But there never was one of fifty that loved to say
“ I 'm old ” ;

So any elderly person that strives to shirk his years,
 Make him stand up at a table and try him by his peers.

Now here I stand at fifty, my jury gathered round ;
 Sprinkled with dust of silver, but not yet silver-crowned,
 Ready to meet your verdict, waiting to hear it
 told ;
 Guilty of fifty summers ; speak ! Is the verdict
old ?

No ! say that his hearing fails him ; say that his sight grows dim ;
 Say that he's getting wrinkled and weak in back
 and limb,
 Losing his wits and temper, but pleading, to make amends,
 The youth of his fifty summers he finds in his twenty friends.

BOSTON COMMON : THREE PICTURES

FOR THE FAIR IN AID OF THE FUND TO PROCURE BALL'S STATUE OF WASHINGTON

1630

ALL overgrown with bush and fern,
 And straggling clumps of tangled trees,
 With trunks that lean and boughs that turn,
 Bent eastward by the mastering breeze, —

With spongy bogs that drip and fill
     A yellow pond with muddy rain,
 Beneath the shaggy southern hill
     Lies wet and low the Shawmut plain.
 And hark ! the trodden branches crack ;
     A crow flaps off with startled scream ;
 A straying woodchuck canters back ;
     A bittern rises from the stream ;
 Leaps from his lair a frightened deer ;
     An otter plunges in the pool ; —
 Here comes old Shawmut's pioneer,
     The parson on his brindled bull !

1774

The streets are thronged with trampling feet,
     The northern hill is ridged with graves,
 But night and morn the drum is beat
     To frighten down the "rebel knaves."
 The stones of King Street still are red,
     And yet the bloody red-coats come :
 I hear their pacing sentry's tread,
     The click of steel, the tap of drum,
 And over all the open green,
     Where grazed of late the harmless kine,
 The cannon's deepening ruts are seen,
     The war-horse stamps, the bayonets shine.
 The clouds are dark with crimson rain
     Above the murderous hirelings' den,
 And soon their whistling showers shall stain
     The pipe-clayed belts of Gage's men.

186—

Around the green, in morning light,
 The spired and palaced summits blaze,
 And, sunlike, from her Beacon-height
 The dome-crowned city spreads her rays ;
 They span the waves, they belt the plains,
 They skirt the roads with bands of white,
 Till with a flash of gilded panes
 Yon farthest hillside bounds the sight.
 Peace, Freedom, Wealth ! no fairer view,
 Though with the wild-bird's restless wings
 We sailed beneath the noontide's blue
 Or chased the moonlight's endless rings !
 Here, fitly raised by grateful hands
 His holiest memory to recall,
 The Hero's, Patriot's image stands ;
 He led our sires who won them all !

THE OLD MAN OF THE SEA

A NIGHTMARE DREAM BY DAYLIGHT

Do you know the Old Man of the Sea, of the Sea ?
 Have you met with that dreadful old man ?
 If you have n't been caught, you will be, you will
 be ;
 For catch you he must and he can.

He does n't hold on by your throat, by your throat,
 As of old in the terrible tale ;
 But he grapples you tight by the coat, by the coat,
 Till its buttons and button-holes fail.

There 's the charm of a snake in his eye, in his eye,
And a polypus-grip in his hands ;
You cannot go back, nor get by, nor get by,
If you look at the spot where he stands.

Oh, you 're grabbed ! See his claw on your sleeve, on your sleeve !
It is Sinbad's Old Man of the Sea !
You 're a Christian, no doubt you believe, you believe :
You 're a martyr, whatever you be !

Is the breakfast-hour past ? They must wait,
they must wait,
While the coffee boils sullenly down,
While the Johnny-cake burns on the grate, on the grate,
And the toast is done frightfully brown.

Yes, your dinner will keep ; let it cool, let it cool,
And Madam may worry and fret,
And children half-starved go to school, go to school ;
He can't think of sparing you yet.

Hark ! the bell for the train ! " Come along !
Come along !
For there is n't a second to lose."
" ALL ABOARD !" (He holds on.) " Fsht ! dingdong ! Fsht ! ding-dong !" —
You can follow on foot, if you choose.

There 's a maid with a cheek like a peach, like
a peach,

That is waiting for you in the church ; —
But he clings to your side like a leech, like a leech,
And you leave your lost bride in the lurch.

There 's a babe in a fit, — hurry quick! hurry quick!

To the doctor's as fast as you can !
The baby is off, while you stick, while you stick,
In the grip of the dreadful Old Man !

I have looked on the face of the Bore, of the Bore ;

The voice of the Simple I know ;
I have welcomed the Flat at my door, at my door ;
I have sat by the side of the Slow ;

I have walked like a lamb by the friend, by the friend,

That stuck to my skirts like a bur ;
I have borne the stale talk without end, without end,
Of the sitter whom nothing could stir :

But my hamstrings grow loose, and I shake, and I shake,

At the sight of the dreadful Old Man ;
Yea, I quiver and quake, and I take, and I take,
To my legs with what vigor I can !

Oh the dreadful Old Man of the Sea, of the Sea !

He 's come back like the Wandering Jew !
He has had his cold claw upon me, upon me, —
And be sure that he 'll have it on you !

INTERNATIONAL ODE

OUR FATHERS' LAND

GOD bless our Fathers' Land !
Keep her in heart and hand
    One with our own !
From all her foes defend,
Be her brave People's Friend,
On all her realms descend,
    Protect her Throne !

Father, with loving care
Guard Thou her kingdom's Heir,
    Guide all his ways :
Thine arm his shelter be,
From him by land and sea
Bid storm and danger flee,
    Prolong his days !

Lord, let War's tempest cease,
Fold the whole Earth in peace
    Under thy wings !
Make all thy nations one,
All hearts beneath the sun,
Till Thou shalt reign alone,
    Great King of kings !

VIVE LA FRANCE

A SENTIMENT OFFERED AT THE DINNER TO H. I. H. THE PRINCE NAPOLEON, AT THE REVERE HOUSE, SEPTEMBER
25, 1861

THE land of sunshine and of song !
Her name your hearts divine ;
To her the banquet's vows belong
Whose breasts have poured its wine ;
Our trusty friend, our true ally
Through varied change and chance :
So, fill your flashing goblets high, —
I give you, VIVE LA FRANCE !

Above our hosts in triple folds
The selfsame colors spread,
Where Valor's faithful arm upholds
The blue, the white, the red ;
Alike each nation's glittering crest
Reflects the morning's glance, —
Twin eagles, soaring east and west :
Once more, then, VIVE LA FRANCE !

Sister in trial ! who shall count
Thy generous friendship's claim,
Whose blood ran mingling in the fount
That gave our land its name,
Till Yorktown saw in blended line
Our conquering arms advance,

And victory's double garlands twine
Our banners? VIVE LA FRANCE!

O land of heroes! in our need
One gift from Heaven we crave
To stanch these wounds that vainly bleed, —
The wise to lead the brave!
Call back one Captain of thy past
From glory's marble trance,
Whose name shall be a bugle-blast
To rouse us! VIVE LA FRANCE!

Pluck Condé's baton from the trench,
Wake up stout Charles Martel,
Or find some woman's hand to clench
The sword of La Pucelle!
Give us one hour of old Turenne, —
One lift of Bayard's lance, —
Nay, call Marengo's Chief again
To lead us! VIVE LA FRANCE!

Ah, hush! our welcome Guest shall hear
But sounds of peace and joy;
No angry echo vex thine ear,
Fair Daughter of Savoy!
Once more! the land of arms and arts,
Of glory, grace, romance;
Her love lies warm in all our hearts:
God bless her! VIVE LA FRANCE!

BROTHER JONATHAN'S LAMENT FOR SISTER
CAROLINE

SHE has gone, — she has left us in passion and pride, —
Our stormy-browed sister, so long at our side !
She has torn her own star from our firmament's
glow,
And turned on her brother the face of a foe !

Oh, Caroline, Caroline, child of the sun,
We can never forget that our hearts have been one, —
Our foreheads both sprinkled in Liberty's name,
From the fountain of blood with the finger of flame !

You were always too ready to fire at a touch ;
But we said, "She is hasty, — she does not mean much."
We have scowled, when you uttered some turbulent threat ;
But Friendship still whispered, "Forgive and forget !"

Has our love all died out ? Have its altars grown cold ?
Has the curse come at last which the fathers fore-
told ?
Then Nature must teach us the strength of the chain
That her petulant children would sever in vain.

They may fight till the buzzards are gorged with their spoil,
Till the harvest grows black as it rots in the soil,
Till the wolves and the catamounts troop from their caves,
And the shark tracks the pirate, the lord of the waves :

In vain is the strife ! When its fury is past,
Their fortunes must flow in one channel at last,
As the torrents that rush from the mountains of snow
Roll mingled in peace through the valleys below.

Our Union is river, lake, ocean, and sky :
Man breaks not the medal, when God cuts the die !
Though darkened with sulphur, though cloven with steel,
The blue arch will brighten, the waters will heal !

Oh, Caroline, Caroline, child of the sun,
There are battles with Fate that can never be won !
The star-flowering banner must never be furled,
For its blossoms of light are the hope of the world !

Go, then, our rash sister ! afar and aloof,
Run wild in the sunshine away from our roof ;
But when your heart aches and your feet have grown sore,
Remember the pathway that leads to our door !

March 25, 1861.

Mr. Emerson has quoted some lines from this poem, but somewhat disguised as he recalled them. It is never safe to quote poetry without referring to the original.

Page 115. Hark ! The sweet bells renew their welcome sound.

The churches referred to in the lines which follow are, —

1. King's Chapel, the foundation of which was laid by Governor Shirley in 1749.

2. Brattle Street Church, consecrated in 1773. The completion of this edifice, the design of which included a spire, was prevented by the troubles of the Revolution, and its plain, square tower presented nothing more attractive than a massive simplicity. In the front of this tower, till the church was demolished in 1872, there was to be seen, half imbedded in the brick-work, a cannon-ball, which was thrown from the American fortifications at Cambridge, during the bombardment of the city, then occupied by the British troops.

3. The Old South, first occupied for public worship in 1730.

4. Park Street Church, built in 1809, the tall white steeple of which is the most conspicuous of all the Boston spires.

5. Christ Church, opened for public worship in 1723, and containing a set of eight bells, long the only chime in Boston.

Page 281. INTERNATIONAL ODE.

This ode was sung in unison by twelve hundred children of the public schools, to the air of "God save the Queen," at the visit of the Prince of Wales to Boston, October 18, 1860.
