

THROUGH TIOGA PASS

HUNCHBERGER AND PEARCE FAMILIES RETURN FROM A TRIP TO YOSEMITE

After a trip of several weeks through the Yosemite valley Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hunchberger and their family and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pearce, who accompanied them, returned to Glendale Wednesday full of the wonders of their journey. "We took the Tioga Pass home and were among the first to pass over this great highway over the Sierras. This road used to be known as the "Great Sierra wagon and toll road," and its transfer to the United States as part of the park is a matter of congratulation. It cost the government $15,500. When it was first constructed to reach the Tioga silver mine just over the Sierra divide it cost $60,000 for construction.

"When we started through the Tioga pass we immediately realized how late the season was. We ran through snowbanks. One of those banks was fifteen feet deep; but others had been through before us. No one should miss this part of the Yosemite. It is wonderful. Parts of it are like the Grand Canyon. The mountain tops were covered with snow and gleamed and scintillated with the lustre of a million jewels. Mount Whitney in the distance was solemn and imposing. Some of the people we met in the Yosemite told us that the Tioga pass scenery was more beautiful than anything they had seen in the Alps of Switzerland.

"Coming down through the pass we passed through Inyo county, by way of Bishop, where we found the roads unspeakably bad. In Bishop we met C. O. Pulliam, Mrs. John Legge, and Mr. and Mrs. McFadden. Finally we got down to Newhall, where we struck the fine county road and greatly appreciated its smoothness after the primitive variations of the Inyo roads.

"We all look back to our stay in the Yosemite valley as one of the most pleasing experiences we have had. Our camp was pitched at a bend of the Merced river, where we had Glacier point on one side and Yosemite falls on the other and right across from us the Half-Dome. The scenery was beyond description and its mighty influence remains with us still. We were very close to Nature in that wonderful spot. Above all things we appreciated the marvelous silence, so restful, so healing, after the noise and strife of the outside world.

"It would not be polite to speak of the park and its wonders without mentioning the kindness the park authorities show the public. Everywhere are signs, "Help us if you can. We'll help you anyway." The authorities are really anxious to meet the public more than half way. There are nearly 1000 people employed looking after the wants of the visitors.

"Each ranger is supposed to be a walking information bureau. He is also charged with the duties of fire control, policing and traffic regulation. The park is divided into ten districts, each in charge of a man thoroughly familiar with the country. His camp is connected by telephone with the chief rangers' station in Yosemite village. The whole system of automobile checking and traffic regulation is in charge of these rangers. They prevent poaching, enforce fishing regulations and look up stray hikers. One can easily get lost in this extensive reservation."

CANDLE DAY COMMITTEES

In connection with the efforts that are being made to raise funds for the repairing of the roof and walls of the old San Fernando mission, Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, was asked by Miss Lucretia Del Valle and Mr. Lummis, who are at the head of the movement to raise funds for this purpose, to become chairman of the work for Glendale district. In accordance with the power entrusted her Mrs. Bartlett has appointed the following committee of which she is chairman: Mrs. W. Ramsay, Mrs. C. E. Harlan, Mrs. J. R. White, Mrs. R. W. Meeker, Mrs. Mattison B. Jones. These ladies will serve on the reception committee at the great celebration at the Mission, Aug. 6.

Mrs. Bartlett has also appointed as a committee for the sale of candles which are to be disposed of for the purpose of raising funds: Miss Alice Frank, Mrs. Frank Grosvenor, Mrs. Stephen C. Packer and Mrs. J. W. Cousins.

The following have also been appointed to act on the Reception committee: J. C. Sherer, C. H. Bott, M. B. Hartmann, J. B. Woodberry and H. L. Howe. All those on the committees are expected to advertise the celebration as much as possible.

INTO THE WAR ZONE

PROPRIETOR OF IRISH LINEN STORE SAILS FROM NEW YORK FOR LIVERPOOL AUG. 12

John McBratney, proprietor of the Irish Linen Stores of Glendale and Monrovia, leaves Glendale for San Francisco, Aug. 2, on his way to New York, whence he will sail for Liverpool, England, Aug. 12, on the American liner Philadelphia. Mr. McBratney intends to make this partly a business and partly a pleasure trip. He has friends and relatives in London, England, whither he will go after remaining a day or so in Liverpool.

From London, where he intends to stay a week unless anything intervenes, Mr. McBratney will go to Belfast, the great linen center of Ireland, where he has many business affiliations and also many relatives and friends. He will look into the linen field there and will make what purchases may be advisable at this time. Naturally if the war is to come to a close before long Mr. McBratney would like his customers to get advantage of the lowered prices. Under these circumstances his purchases are likely to be conservative.

From Belfast Mr. McBratney will go to Dublin, where he has many friends and acquaintances. He expects to find much of personal interest in that center, where the recent fierce battles between the Sinn Feiners and the militia and regulars were fought. He is likely to have much of interest to relate concerning conditions in the Irish capital when he returns.

As an indispensable aid to traveling abroad at this time Mr. McBratney was obliged to get a passport from Washington, D. C., for the purpose of identification and for the assurance of the British authorities that his mission to the British isles is peaceable and legitimate. He had to state the reason why he was taking this journey during war time; when he was naturalized, how long he had lived in the United States. He had also to furnish photographs of himself and a close personal description. These accompany his passport.

"I will be guided by conditions and circumstances both as to my stay in England and Ireland and also as to my purchases," said Mr. McBratney. "At this time I am likely to size up conditions in the market before making purchases and such as I do make will be for the benefit of my customers."

"I do not think I am taking any very great risk. I am traveling on an American passenger boat, which carries neither war munitions nor contraband of any kind. There is not any chance of any hostile craft attacking us and the only risk we run apart from the usual chances of the sea is that of striking some of the floating mines with which the Germans have so plentifully sown the sea. That risk is not very considerable, however, even though the Hampshire, which conveyed Lord Kitchener and his staff, was destroyed by one in the very waters over which I will travel.

"I hope to be back about Oct. 1, but that will depend on circumstances. In war time no one knows what a day may bring forth. I feel that I will be pleased to see Ireland and England again, and specially to see the two countries in war time. It is probable that I will have some leisure in which to write about conditions on the other side and if so I will be glad to tell the readers of the News what is going on and how affairs on the other side look to me. During my absence both the Glendale and Monrovia stores will be under competent superintendence."

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
LONDON, July 28.—Gen. Haig's troops advanced against the strongly fortified Delville woods this morning. Most of the German detachment was killed or wounded, 163 prisoners were taken and a remnant escaped. The Germans then threw a strong force forward to counter-attack before the British could have time to consolidate the position, but the attacks were beaten off with considerable loss.

TRUSTEES' MEETING

CITY MANAGER AND PUBLIC SERVICE SUPT. FILE THEIR ANNUAL REPORTS

The regular meeting of the board of trustees of the City of Glendale was held in the city hall Thursday evening, July 27, 1916. Present, J. S. Thompson, president of board, and trustees Chas. Grist, R. M. Jackson, F. L. Muhleman, G. B. Woodberry. Also present T. W. Watson, city manager; J. C. Sherer, city clerk; W. E. Evans, city attorney; H. B. Lynch, manager public service department; G. H. Herald, city marshal; A. H. Lankford, city fire marshal.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved. An application was read from Mr. A. M. Starkey for permit to operate a motor bus, and upon motion of Trustee Jackson the same was granted.

A committee representing the Glendale Garden society was present, and Mrs. Nanno Woods, president of the association, presented a plea of that organization for financial assistance from the board. She was followed by Mr. N. C. Wells, vice-president of the society, who addressed the board briefly seconding the plea of Mrs. Woods. The chairman of the board stated that the trustees had the matter under consideration, but were not prepared to give a definite answer.

At eight o'clock, on motion of Trustee Grist, the hearing of protests in regard to the opening and widening of Sycamore Canyon road were ordered to be taken up. The clerk read the engineer's report in regard to the protests, and there being no protestants present, on motion of Trustee Woodberry, the protests were denied by unanimous vote.

On motion of Trustee Muhleman the hearing of protests in regard to the opening and widening of Eighth street were ordered to be read. There being only one protest on file, the same was read by the clerk, and a motion of Trustee Jackson, adopted, denying the protest, prevailed.

On motion of Trustee Grist, "An ordinance ordering the opening, widening and laying out of Sycamore Canyon road in the manner contemplated in Ordinance No. 295 of the City of Glendale," was taken up for first reading.

On motion this ordinance was declared read for the first time and was taken up for the second reading. On motion this ordinance was declared read for the second time and was laid over till the next regular meeting for the third and final reading.

The Public Works committee, Trustee Woodberry chairman, reported having met with Mr. Coker and examined the situation on Maryland avenue where he wishes to establish weighing scales, and recommended that he be granted the permit to establish said scales, provided that it furnish no obstruction to the street, the understanding being that the scales will project two feet into the street, but will be on the level of the grade of the same. On motion of Trustee Muhleman, the recommendation was accepted and the permit granted on the condition that the easterly side of the scales be flush with the street, and that the work be done under the direction of the superintendent of the street department. The motion was adopted.

The city manager presented a report consisting of an itemized statement as to amounts estimated to be required for the expenditures of the various departments of the city for the coming year. He also made a verbal report on the progress of the repair work on Colorado street east of Brand boulevard.

The manager also presented an annual report of the business of the city, which was, on motion, received and ordered to be filed.

Y. M. C. A. FOR GLENDALE

UNITED ACTION NECESSARY TO SECURE MUCH NEEDED RECREATION CENTER

Glendale needs a plunge; Glendale needs a well equipped gymnasium; Glendale needs a club room with proper moral environment for its young men. These ideas are not new. They have been expressed many times in public meetings, in the press, and from the pulpit. They must be granted by all of the thinking people in our community. In fact many disconnected efforts have been made by different groups and organizations to secure some or all of these things.

But still the boys of Glendale overrun the old swimming hole among the marshes at Tropic, and the young men seek recreation in Los Angeles among the dangers which inhabit every large city. And why? Is Glendale, a progressive community of over 10,000 people, not large enough to have a fine Y. M. C. A. or other such organization? Why have efforts in this direction not borne more fruit? There can be but one answer: Lack of unity. No amount of enthusiasm, if bottled up within a small group of people, can get big results. There are many energetic, public spirited men and women in our community whose combined efforts could do big things. And these men and women are ready and waiting to give Glendale the best they have. If once this movement got a fair start nothing could stop it.

And when we have a Y. M. C. A. or kindred organization Glendale will have more than something to feel proud of—she will have laid a firm foundation for the future; she will have insured the moral and physical health of the coming generation, that all important factor in the future of any city, of any state, of any nation. Far more important than good street lights, and low water rates, would be the benefits of a Y. M. C. A. in this valley. I dare say there would be material results, too, results which would be felt almost immediately, for such an organization would be sure to draw to Glendale the best class of citizens—those whose chief care is the proper rearing of their families. Nothing in my opinion could be a bigger boost for Glendale.

So let us join hands, and with the motto, "In Union There Is Strength," let us launch a campaign that will write pages in the history of Glendale; a campaign that will focus the eyes of all California upon our fair city, and make our citizens forget the war and the presidential election; a campaign the enthusiasm of which will not abate until our goal is accomplished. Glendale has the material. What time is better than now?

But first it will be necessary to decide upon just what our goal is to be, and to arouse interest in the movement. I would suggest a live discussion in the local press. The Glendale News has always shown its willingness to publish the views of its readers, and nothing could do more to encourage thought and action than an interchange of ideas upon this matter. Let no one keep his opinion to himself with such a medium at his command.

report of that department, also a copy of petition of the City of Glendale to the Railroad Commission, asking for an extension of time within which to make certain improvements in the public service department, as required by law. GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, JULY 28, 1916

ABOUT THE NATIONAL PARKS

In an interesting interview concerning the Yosemite valley, one of California's great natural assets, Mrs. Hunchberger tells of the wonders of the new Tioga road that leads out of the valley, and which presents views that equal if not surpass those of the upper Swiss valleys. We learn of the beauties that lie almost at our doors. It cannot fail then to interest the public to learn that there are thirteen such parks administered by the department of the interior. They have a total area of more than 4,600,000 acres; 18 national monuments, with an area of about 85,000 acres and the Hot Springs reservation in Arkansas.

These various reservations have been created from time to time under laws which are not uniform. For administrative purposes each of the reservations is a separate and distinct unit. This is so even to the extent that it is not possible under the existing law to transfer a ranger from one park to another, although such action might for various reasons be desirable or necessary.

The general administrative work, preparation of concession contracts, preparation of regulations governing the reservation, consideration of legal questions that arise, disbursement of money and other questions, is handled by a small force of employees practically all of whom have other departmental duties to perform, making it impossible for them to devote more than a part of their time to this work.

It is very manifest even from what has been narrated in the Glendale Evening News from time to time by its intelligent correspondents who have traversed the Yosemite and other national parks that the activities in those parks have increased greatly of recent years. The number of people visiting the parks was greatly increased this year and the whole volume of business is increasing rapidly.

It seems a pity that the central government, the Department of the Interior at Washington, could not administer these reservations along one general comprehensive line instead of having to deal with each separate reservation as an independent entity without any relation to any other reservation. That is not business-like. It must give rise to a certain amount of inefficiency because it does not permit of the comprehensive handling of the parks which would save expense and time. These national parks should be under one head and they should be developed with some unity of purpose for the benefit of the people to whom they belong.

There is a movement on foot for the creation of a new national park service which would give effective service to the public. This and other improvements will certainly be brought about by the influx of visitors that has swept like a torrent over the national parks this year. The automobile is a blessing to the country. It has made thousands of people acquainted with the natural wonders of the land who would otherwise never have seen them.

These people have come back from such places as the Yosemite, the Muir Woods, the Grand Canyon, the Devil's Post Pile and other natural and national parks full of enthusiasm for what they have seen and their influence will be seen in the stimulation of better roads and a more numerous forest ranger and park attendants service than the Department of the Interior has seen its way to give. As the parks are public property, however, the people are likely to demand their way regarding them.

CHANCES OF PEACE BY BRITAIN

Those who talk about peace in connection with the present war just at this moment are probably as much anxious to place themselves in the limelight as to see peace where they well know there is no expectation of such an event just now. Britain and her daughter dominions—the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand, the United States of South Africa and all the colonies and dependencies of the British empire—are not by any means anxious for peace at the present moment unless on their own terms.

Indeed it would be most unlikely that Britain after having raised and trained an army of nearly 6,000,000 men in the course of two years and having just started that vast force on a great offensive which gives promise of success, would be willing to assent to any peace terms that would leave the Germans in possession of any part of Europe they now hold outside their own dominions. The British are in favor of peace, but not peace at such a price as that.

To judge from the declarations of British statesmen and manufacturers, employers of labor of all kinds and workingmen, the drain of blood and money, the knowledge that every day's prolongation of the war means a bigger debt and more deaths, has not abated the zeal of the whole people to win this year. It has been no small task to create in two years an army equivalent to that which Germany took forty years to evolve; to create munitions factories and to train 2,000,000 munitions workers; to match the wonderful workshops Germany had built up in forty years of preparation for the struggle that is now going on.

There is a peace-at-any-price party in England. There was one in the United States at the time of the Civil war. There were groups of men and women who cursed Abraham Lincoln and considered him born of the devil. But it is certain that the peace-at-any-price party in England, for there are very few of them in Scotland, and Ireland is out of the question, is by no means so numerous as the same party was in this country in Lincoln's days, and is altogether outclashed by the peace-at-any-price party in the United States at the present moment.

There is a great deal of popular dissatisfaction with the present British cabinet and prime minister. The cabinet has been guilty of diplomatic blunders of the gravest kind. On such matters as the driving of Bulgaria into Germany's arms, the troubles with Greece, which remains neutral; the fiasco at Gallipoli, the surrender at Kut-el-Amara, the mismanagement of the blockade, the neglect to intern alien enemies in England and Ireland and many other matters, the British public will yet have an accounting with Premier Asquith and his friends. But as far as the determination to drive the war through to ultimate victory is concerned there is but one heart and one mind in Britain and her dominions and dependencies.

To all appearance Britain is ready for peace—on her own terms. She demands the restoration of Belgium—the old Belgium, not a new German-made article; a Belgium restored as far as she can be restored and the restoration paid for by Teutonic money.

France is not talking peace. She has withstood the sternest and most determined assaults of the Teutons on her Verdun front for six months and has held them back. The two nations know that peace is founded on justice and honor and there is no prospect of such a peace at the present moment.

CAN YOU STAND CRITICISM?

Some men can't stand being reproved, it ruffles so in them that it puckers all their good qualities and counteracts the very best chance for improvement.

Of course we must admit that criticism must not be unjust, though it may be mistaken, and that it is unwise to criticize a man in public.

Criticism should be dealt with like confession—in private. But criticism of others and of self is absolutely necessary to progress and betterment.

It is sad to be sensitive. But it is wise to be master of the feeling it engenders.

A man who quits his task just because some one criticized the way he did it, either hasn't grounds upon which to defend himself or the bigness to overcome the childishness left in his nature.

No man can be both friend and flatterer.

The man who does us the most good is the man who shows us how to improve our work.

True friendship is measured only by a willingness to help.

Some of us need jollying, but 'tis better received after constructive criticism.

The family of fools has a large ancestry. The fool of today is the man who is always right.

The way to be safe in modern progress is to leave the door open to suggestion.

Another thought, and that is this, your results will always bring you recognition and opportunity.

There are a million eyes seeking for capable men and two million ears listening for the mention of their whereabouts.

Even if your task is a small one, do it well.

Every advancement is from a smaller task to a larger one.

When a man is transferred from a big job to a little one, he's going back.

Don't forget—

That you can better yourself.

There's nothing in the way, save your own doubt.

But— Don't let anything convince you that you are worthy of advancement unless you are doing well that which you are doing.

A bluff, a trick, or a pull may pull you up temporarily.

But to stick and keep moving forward, you have to deliver the goods.

NIGHT IN A RUSSIAN GARDEN

"All the summer, except, of course, when the weather was bad, I lived in the garden." Maxim Gorki tells us in the "Story of My Childhood," "and on warm nights I even slept out there on a piece of felt which my grandmother had made me a present of; not infrequently she slept in the garden itself and bringing out a bundle of hay, which she spread out close to my couch, she would lie down on it and tell me stories a long time."

"Night came and with it there came into one's heart something vigorous and fresh, like the loving caresses of a mother; the quietness softly smoothed one's heart with its rough hands, and all that ought to be forgotten—all the bitterness, the fine dust of the day—was washed away. It was enchanting to lie with upturned face watching the stars flaming in the infinite profundity of the sky—a profundity which, as it stretches higher and higher, opens out a new vista of stars; to raise yourself lightly from the ground and—how strange—either the earth has grown smaller before your eyes or you yourself grown wonderfully big, are being absorbed into your surroundings. It grows darker and quieter every moment, but there is a succession of minute hardly perceptible prolonged sounds, and each sound whether it be a bird singing in its sleep, or a hedgehog running along, or a human voice softly raised somewhere—differs from the sounds of daytime, has something peculiarly its own. . . . Grandmother never slept long and as she lay with her head resting upon her folded arms, she would begin at the slightest hint to tell me a story, obviously not caring whether I was listening to her or not. She was always able to choose stories which would make night still more precious and beautiful to me."

A MASTER

In olden days organization was as necessary as now with the difference that greater institutions are required in these days requiring greater efficiency to enable its members to cope with the ever-changing times.

The so-called Merchant Guilds of England were formed generations back of bakers, candle-stick makers and the masters of trades as well as the cloth merchants to handle, perhaps, just such situations and conditions as masters and traders generally complain of today.

The Guilds, on account of their fast growing ranks and the increasing membership of journeymen, were forced into separate crafts with a main organization or parent body.

They appreciated the force and effect of such organization by working closely together for general betterment. The result of their plan eventually fixed the status of a member by first causing him to pass through a series of years of apprenticeship and if at the end of his service being fully competent, establishing him in his proper place clas-

BOOKS FOR THE BLIND

Miller, a blind man of Bakersfield, Cal., who is duly authorized by the Christian Record Board as a financial agent to solicit funds for the purpose of placing The Christian Record in the hands of such blind people as are not able to meet their subscription for the same, is in Glendale at present occupied in his work. The Christian Record is a monthly journal designed for general circulation among the blind people of the United States and Canada. It contains two departments—missionary or religious and news. It is the only journal of its kind published in this country. There are nearly 100,000 blind people in the United States and 80 per cent of that number can read with their fingers. Most of them are too poor to subscribe for a paper for the blind and the paper is mailed free to them. The work is supported by contributions.

GOLD IN SAN GABRIEL CANYON

Reports that rich quartz leads have been uncovered in the upper reaches of the San Gabriel river have produced the usual excitement. Claims are being staked out and capitalists are watching the activities with interest. Placer mining has been carried on for fifty years in the San Gabriel canyon but quartz mining there has never been a success.

CALIFORNIA'S COTTON CROP

The cotton area in the Imperial Valley this year exceeds 100,000 acres, an increase of nearly 200 per cent over last year. The average yield which last year amounted to seven-tenths of a bale per year is this year expected to return to one bale. Forty per cent of the crop of 1916 is the Durango cotton, the balance short staple. With the average price of 15 cents per pound for Durango and 11 cents for short staple and $15 per ton for seed, it is expected that this crop will add $7,000,000 to the county's wealth, $450,000 of which will go to the Imperial Valley cotton gins.

HAND VS. MACHINE

Handwork is now chiefly confined to putting work together and trimming in work, and this has not seriously affected the field of employment or lowered the demand for skilled labor. Though machines now perform from 65 to 85 per cent of the work, in preparing wrought materials, seventy years ago it was all wrought by hand excepting sawn boards and plank. The demand for skilled labor increases.

SANTA MONICA TAX VALUES

Finance Commissioner M. K. Barretts of Santa Monica, also assessor ex-officio has just made public figures of the assessed valuation of that city, which show a decrease in the valuation for the first time in years. This decrease has been made possible, a study of the figures show, by a painstaking equalizing of all forms of taxable wealth rather than by an actual decrease in the wealth of Santa Monica. While county valuations are being boosted by corps of assessors, Santa Monica city valuations will be lower by nearly $100,000 than last year. The assessed valuation less operative wealth and soldiers' exemptions is $16,051,900. Last year the valuation was $16,146,875.

BURBANK

Trustees' Meeting

The regular meeting of the board of trustees of the City of Burbank was held in the city hall July 25, 1916. Meeting called to order at 2:10 p. m. with Trustees Blanchard, Pollock and Linn present, Forbes and Hogle being absent.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A petition signed by a majority of the property owners along San Fernando boulevard between Providencia avenue and Cypress avenue was read, asking the board to take the necessary step (under the Vrooman Act) to install an ornamental lighting system along that part of San Fernando boulevard, using single concrete lighting standards. After some discussion the matter was referred to the city attorney with instructions to report at next meeting the necessary action to take.

In the matter of placing a roof on the new city hall building it was decided to have a roof consisting of five layers of ten pound felt laid with hot asphalt and this overspread with roofing gravel. It was also decided to have the front of new city hall equipped with double doors with birch panels, and the contractors were instructed to make the said improvements according to the plans and specifications now on file in the city hall.

It was voted to insure the new fire truck for the sum of $5000, the policy to be taken out with the Aetna Insurance Co. through its local agent, Chas. M. Fischer.

It was also voted to accept the fire insurance policy presented by the Continental Insurance Co. of New York through its agent, R. O. Church, in the sum of $3000, on the new city hall building, for construction and building material.

The street superintendent was instructed to erect a guard rail to protect the open culvert which juts out into San Fernando boulevard between Central and Myrtle.

City Engineer Miller thought it advisable that some sort of culvert be placed at the intersection of 11th and Providencia streets and also at 6th and Providencia. The street superintendent was instructed to make said improvements.

The building and plumbing inspector's report was accepted and ordered placed on file.

The following claims were allowed and warrants ordered drawn for the payment of same:

Adjournment.

The girls of Fleur de lis club gave a matinee party at the Morosco Saturday evening. About 15 were in the party and all report a delightful time.

Several cases of poison oak are reported in town, the result of numerous outings recently.

Ward Shelton of Angelenas street is suffering with a severe attack of tonsillitis.

Workmen are busily engaged putting the second story on the Lovering building at the corner of Olive and San Fernando boulevard. The addition is being made of concrete and when completed will be fitted up for modern office suites.

Truck gardeners in and around Burbank report a very prosperous season so far and predict a good price for their fall products, cantaloupes especially have been very active on the Los Angeles market and as a rule have brought good prices. While fruits have been scarce most all varieties have been of good quality and brought the producers good prices. Vegetables as a rule have been cheap but the enormous crops have been very remunerative to the growers.

The display of corn and apples in the Chamber of Commerce window is very fine indeed and shows that Burbank can produce the goods.

PRACTICE SAFETY FIRST

That carelessness on the part of drivers and pedestrians is primarily responsible for the alarming increase in fatalities at railroad crossings, is the gist of an address by Alex Gordon of the California State Railroad Commission, made recently before the convention of the boards of supervisors of California.

"California," said Gordon, "with less than 4 per cent of the population and less than 2 per cent of the steam railway mileage, furnishes nearly 5 per cent of the deaths and injuries reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission. During the three years ended June 30, 1915, 249 people were killed and 1093 injured at grade crossings in this state. The record is always much worse in the summer than in the winter."

"There are over 10,000 grade crossings in California and $30,000 would be a low estimate of the cost of eliminating one crossing. To separate grades at all of the crossings would cost over $3,000,000,000 and it is, of course, out of the question to consider any such expenditure at this time. Neither the people nor the railroads can stand it."

DAYLIGHT SAVING MOVEMENT

The daylight-saving movement, now sweeping the continent of Europe and born of the economic necessities of war, is nothing new. It was advocated by our own Benjamin Franklin as long ago as 1784. Students of Franklinalia have unearthed a letter written by this early Minister of France to a Paris journal, in which he suggested the plan as a means of saving some $2,000,000 a year to the people of the city of Paris in the actual cost of candles. This sum probably would be equivalent to $10,000,000 in purchasing power today. The letter is whimsical in style and purports to relate the surprise of the author on being awakened unexpectedly early one morning to find his room lighted, though the candle was not burning. Amazed, he arose to seek to discover the cause and found that it was the sun. On consulting the almanac, he found that the sun was accustomed to rise early, and that as the season progressed it rose earlier and still earlier. He was convinced, he said, that the sun gave light from the moment it rose, and he submitted the fact for the consideration of the candle-consuming French people. This was 132 years before adoption of his plan.

BIBLES FOR MEXICO

The announcement that more than 10,000 New Testaments, printed in clear type and bound in khaki, have been sent to the Mexican border and to Camp Whitman by the New York Bible Society, for the use of members of the national guard of New York city, brings to remembrance a similar service rendered by the American Bible Society in the early '60s. During those years the national organization endeavored to supply, not only the northern soldiers with Bibles, New Testaments and single gospels, but the southern soldiers as well, despite the fact that martial law made it a crime to send help across the line. When the war was over it was found that about 300,000 Bibles and portions of the Scriptures had passed safely through to the Confederate troops.

GREEN TOMATO PIE

Put through the meat chopper one pint of green tomatoes, three large apples, and one cup of seeded raisins. To these, well mixed, add a piece of butter the size of an egg, one cup of molasses, two of sugar, one half cup of vinegar, one tablespoon of flour, and spice to taste. Cook three quarters of an hour. Pour into crust and cover with whole crust or strips. Bake as you would a mince pie. This amount makes two pies.

Of times the cloud which wraps the present hour Serves to brighten all our future days. —John Brown.

PREPARATION

Use good tools that you cannot blame, the rest is up to you.

If there is any one thing which will make a pleasure of work, it is good tools. Without good tools of proper design, size, temper, etc., the best workman is at a great disadvantage. It tries his temper as well as takes too much time to do even the simplest work.

Strictly commercial failures in the United States during the half year just ended disclosed substantial betterment in comparison with last year, while there were fewer defaults during June than in any month in two years and the liabilities were the smallest since September, 1911.

GETTING ACQUAINTED

The people of Newark, N. J., believe in the various groups of the community getting acquainted with one another, and to help to this end they have put on public view, in one of the city schools, a collection of treasures which the French, Hungarians, Germans, Chinese, Bohemians, Belgians and other newcomers brought with them from the homeland. Boston did something similar a few years ago, at its Museum of Fine Arts. Social workers went out into the byways and gathered in, from the homes of Italians, Russians, Irish and Syrians, a collection of beautiful things that astonished the natives beyond measure. Having seen the exhibit, they went away wiser and with less prejudice for people of other lands. So, no doubt, will it be in Newark.

COST OF CARELESSNESS

It is undoubtedly true that carelessness and inefficiency causes greater financial loss in the construction field than deliberate dishonesty. Some years ago many architects' offices bore upon the walls a humorous drawing captioned, "The Successful Contractor."

The artist, with grim humor, had drawn a gaunt, hollow-eyes, anemic, worried-looking figure seated at his desk. The man holds a notification that he had been the lowest bidder upon a job and had been awarded a contract. The contractor soliloquizes, "I wonder what I have forgotten now."

Though the picture is a travesty it contains a serious and not at all humorous element of truth. There is entirely too much reckless and ill-considered bidding by contractors who estimate work by "rule-of-thumb," "take a chance," and by so doing make mistakes that cause loss to themselves or to someone else. Very often they neglect to properly check over their figures and the mistake goes into the bid uncorrected.

According to the Journal of Commerce, July dividend and interest disbursements will amount to $272,372,540. This is a new high record for the period and compares with $270,270,869 last year.

SUCCESS

Some successful contractors are not mechanics at all. Their success is due to general business ability and the power to choose men. These contractors would in all probability be still more successful if they were good mechanics as well. On the other hand some first-class mechanics have failed as contractors because of poor business ability and poor judgment in choosing men. A first-class business man who is a keen judge of human nature is much more likely to make a success of contracting than the expert mechanic who is deficient in the other qualities.

Without a good grasp of general business principles hardly any man can hope for large success as a contractor. But quite as essential is the ability to choose men. No big business depends on any one man but on many. No business can grow to large proportions while any one man has to give his personal attention to every detail. The secret of big business is the marshalling of an organization of competent employees in their proper places.

"I like an outspoken adversary." "So do I," replied Senator Sorghum; "sooner or later a man who insists on doing all the talking is pretty sure to give himself a shade the worst of the argument."—Washington Star.
