Matta arrived in the dead of night, In their bunks near the door were the two victims known by the names of Tom and Joe. Without a moment's warning Matta decended upon Tom with a double-headed axe, splitting open his skull from forehead to chin and scattering his brains in every direction. The man had also one of his hands almost severed. Joe, who had by this time been awakened by the noise, leaped from the bunk, and attempted to escipe, but before he reached the threshold. Matta sent in a crushing blow on the back of the head, which, floored him, never to rise, again.

Matta, who had secured work in Nanaimo, was a frequent visitor to the place, generally arriving there in a state of intoxication, when he would terrorize the woman and boarders. On one occasion the police were sent for to restore order, and Matta was fined in the police court for using threatening language. He then left the city for Englishman's river, where he secured employlanguage. He then left the city for Eng-lishman's river, where he secured employ-ment as cook. On Thursday he came to town and began drinking heavily. The following morning he went out to the boarding house and renewed his threats. Constable McIndoo was again sent for, but upon his arrival the affair had been apparently settled. Mattn declared he would leave the country for good, and drove back to Nanaimo with the con-stable. That evening he started drinking stable. That evening he started drinking again, and made his way back to the cabin on Saturday night, where, crazed with drink, desperately in love with the woman and jealous of her companions, he committed the double murder.

This morning in the police court Marta was charged with wilful murder. The case was remanded until afer the inquest, which opens at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

will probably succeed in suppressing the insurrection.

He expressed the belief that Bulgaria was not responsible for the outbreak, saying the centre of the disturbance was nearly two hundred miles from the Bulgarian frontier. Most of the arms of the Insurgents, he said, had been purchased from Tarkish soldiers, who had not been paid by the government. The insurrection, he said, was entirely a national Macedonian movement, and the condition of affairs was due to the excesses of Turkish soldiers, who entered Macedonian villages to plunder and destroy. NEWS FROM NAAS HARBOR.

Nass Harbor, Aug. 11.—The caming season in Naus river this year promises to be an unfortunate one both for cannery men and fishermen. Humpbacks are the only fish that are really plentiful, and they are running up the river in millions. Mison's saltery is, however, the one establishment that will buy them, and that only in more and more limited quantities. Fishermen are getting fired of the real hard work of drawing aboard sometimes as many as 1,200 humpbacks in a drift, and with them perhaps no more than half, a dozen or a dozen sockeyes. The humpbacks that get into the nets demand not only the ordinary labor for their removal, but also the added and gratuitous exertion of throwing them overboard again after they have been caught.

was a decided success in every particular. Local athletes were not as much in evidence as might have been expected with the meet being held here. To Spokane and the Multnomah Club of Portland fell the honors of sending the largest contingents to compete in the different events.

The attention given to aquatic sport in this city has doubtless detracted from the no less manly branch of field athletics. This accounts for the small number of entries from Victoria, and its effect is also seen in the case of Nancouver and Seattle. The latter city sent no representatives to the meet. The inland city of Spokane is naturally a centre for athletics, and the aggregation sent down from there fully expected to carry off most of the prizes. In this they were checked by the Multnomahs of Portland, who left the city highly delighted with the excellent showing which they had made.

The greatest surprise of the day to the visiting athletes was the cauture of the

which they had made.

The greatest surprise of the day to the visiting atheless was the capture of the mile race by H. Gowan, of this city. The visitors were able to capture all the short dashes, but when it came to the test of endurance as well as speed the Canadians carried off the prizes. In the with reason of the capture had been supported by the capture of the capture had been supported by the capture of the captur mile race H. Gowan easily outran his competitors. In the half mile flat race, another surprise was given the visitors by J. E. Craski, of Vancouver, winning the first place.

The track was in good condition, and good time was made in the races. A very light shower which fell during the afternoon rendered it disagreeable for a few minutes.

While no records were broken, the day's events were all very creditable. In the races especially, the time was in most instances excellent.

During the afternoon a Chinaman's race called forth a good bunch of Orizental, athletes. It was won by Wang Kee, a young lad who made very good time.

There was a very good attendance at the meet, and the members of the J. B.

A. A., under whose auspices the meet was arranged, are well pleased with the results. There cannot be a doubt that the result of it will be that more atten-tion will be devoted to field sports in this city. for the King.

At a meeting of the delegates from the athletic associations represented, held on Saturday, it was decided that the next meet should be held at Spokane. EVERETT 11, VICTORIA 4. EVERETT 11, VICTORIA 4.

Accompanied by a number of local enthusiasts the Victoria baseball team left on Saturday to play at Everett against that city's nine. The game resulted in a victory for the Everett team by a score of 11 to 4. Emerson pitched and Chase caught for the locals, while Nelson twirled for the Everett nine.

From all accounts had the locals been accustomed to the diamond they would have won the match hands down. To errors in the field is attributed the Victoria team's defeat. It is also said that the decisions of the unspire regarding balls and strikes were away out. The balls and strikes were away out.

VANCOUVER AFTER SCALPS.

The Vancouver basebal team left to-day for a week's tour of the Sound cities, and when they return they hope to bring back the scalps of the Schro Woolley team, which defeated them twice a couple of result that future meets of the N. C. A. A. Association will have more representatives of Victoria takinz a part.

The relay race, which would have been one of the most interesting events of the day, was marred by the fact that but one team entered it, the Spokane representatives. The Portland athletes, after the other events, felt unequal to this and did not enter their team. With the highest aggregate to its credit the Multinomah retired from the relay race, and allowed it to go to Spokane.

The winners of the different events was as follows:

Boys' race—1 Carrol; 2, Morley; 3, Scott. Time, 11 1-5, 100 yards flat, open to all amatours. I. J. Pearson. Spokane; 2, H. Tilley, Spokane; 3, W. E. Flood, Vancouver. Time, 10 seconds, dead.

High jump—1, Bert Gerrigan, Multnomah; 2, E. M. Murphy, Spokane; 3, 41, C. Tilley, Spokane. Height, 5 feet 64 inches.

A association will have more representatives of the scalps of the Scdro-Woolley team, which defeated them twice a couple of weeks ago.

"Manager Cohn is endeavoring to have the Victoria team play here on Friday and Saurday next," says the Vancouver of the Scdro-Woolley team.

Which defeated them twice a couple of weeks ago.

"Manager Cohn is endeavoring to have the Victoria team play here on Friday and Saurday next," says the Vancouver News-Advertiser, "but if he is not successful, he will take the Marcons to the Capital City for a couple of games."

CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT.

The British Colombia Railway Company has one to the conclusion that it is not in its province to pose as a baseball magnate, and accordingly notified Manager Cohn, of the Vancouver Jeam, that it would not run it any further this season. In order to, help the game out, however, the company will head a subscription list with a liberal donation. In order that the baseball club may finish the season and keep a champion team in Vancouver, L. H. Cohn has consented to take over the team. A canvass will be made for subscriptions.

Our Toronto contemporary has con scended to approve of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme of the government—in a modified way. If certain precautions are taken the News thinks the new transcontinental line might be made of value to the Dominion. The curious thing is that if the critics of the Toronto paper had taken the trouble to examine the agreement with the company they would have found all the precautionary provisions suggested incorporated in the instrument. The chief of these is the peragraph providing that all roads which desire such a privilege shall be granted running rights over the roadbed of the new system. That is a precaution the government has taken and which opposition critics profess to jeer at as being nonsensical in theory and impossible in practice. Yet if they had examined the records they would have found that in different parts of older Canada railway companies use

Mr. Ross was not in the East when the erticle appeared, and probably would have ignored it if he had seen it, but he has friends there who are ready to take his by his own hand. The wound which re part when he is maligned and unfairly sulted fatally was inflicted about a week that is all. Sir Thomas is ready to sa criticized. The article in the News ago, and, according to the comments of rifice all, even his liberty, to lift the stated that Mr. Ross expressed himself strong terms of condemnation of the neached Ottawa threatened to speak and vote against the government on the iseffect that the member from the north had been induced to take his departure from the capital in order that he might not embarrass the government by exsing the views of his constituents. little deserves. In fact, the statement is pure fabrication. From first to last Mr. Ross made no speeches, in the Yu-kon or elsewhere, condemning the Tread-gold concession. He took no part in the Yukon campaign, for the very sufficient reason that, when it was held, he was at Victoria, and later at Los Angeles, at Victoria, and later at Los Angeles, in the care of doctors and nurses. The fact is no secret that he did not approve the terms of the Treadgold contract, and in April, 1902, he succeeded in obtaining modifications. But the statement which has been made, that he piedged himself in the election to obtain is abtogation, is entrue. The single act Mr. Ross performed in the election was to write a letter at Victoria, accepting the nomination tendered him by telegram from the Liberal conform, accepting the nomination beneficed him by telegram from the Liberal convention, which met at Dawson, in which letter he said that he freely subscribed to the measures suggested in the convention resolutions. The Trendgold matter was not even mentioned in these matter was not even mentioned in these resolutions, and Mr. Ross is, therefore, bound by no pledge whatever concerning this matter. The resolutions charged fraud and imposition in the obtaining of certain concessions, and Mr. Ross in his letter said he would advocate the investigation of these charges, and if they

The editor of the News cannot be ignorant of the fact that just one year ago Mr. Ross suffered a stroke of paralysis. It was strong testimony to the place his work as Commissioner had won for him in the esteem of the Yukon people that in face of this fact and of the possibility that he might never fully recover his physical powers they elected him by an overwhelming ma-jority as a supporter of the gover-ment. He has, fortunately, made rement. He has, fortunately, made remarkable progress towards recovery, and is advised by the best medical spaceballs that he will completely regain his health, but that a necessary condition is abcolute rest in the meantime. They forbade him coming to Ottawa this year on the ground that when here he could not avoid some of the excitement and warry which, if he would recover, he must avoid, But so concerned is he for the interests if the Yukon that he spent more than a month here in March and April looking after Yukon matters, and was here again some days last week. SOMETHING MORE ON --CORONER'S COMMENTS

It's a Seller; Look It Up Did Not Justify Morning Paper's Attempt to Make Capital Out of Lamentable Occurrence.

This is astonishingly false, and could only have been written by one wholly ignorant of what has taken place since the sad occurrence—which—necessitated the inquiry. The coroner's criticism, while altogether unjustified, applied to both papers, the Colonist's report, having attributed the girl's death to poisonous canned meat even more definitely than the Times. The coroner did complain against the reporter on this paper seeking information from him by telephone, but his reference to "incorrect" statebut his reference to ments" had an equally strong application to the report which appeared in the Col itself out of a most deplorable case, but it is certainly within its rights in refuting the gross misstatements of fact on the part of its contemporary as well as the charges which the coroner has levelled against the press.

In its obituary notice on Wednesday last the Times stated that Miss Frith's death was caused by eating poisonous canned meat. The Colonist on the following morning published the following "Was Poisoned.—Miss Ethel A. Frith, a daughtef of F. J. Frith, who is held on the charge of murdering Bailey at Esquimait, died yesterday morning at the residence of her aunt on Pandora street, under very sad circumstances. She came to visit the residence of her She came to visit the residence of he aunt, Mrs. Brown, at 59 Pandora street at 8,30 p. m., on Tuesday, arriving after the evening meal. It was not anticipated though, that serious results would occur have been considered though. girl became alarmed, and Dr. Hart was called. Medical skill was of no avail, though, and death resulted. A post-mortem examination was held by Dr. Hart, when it was found that death had resulted from poisoning due to poisonous canned meat eaten by the deceased. No inquest will be held."

Editorially the morning paper in the same issue said:

same issue said:
"It would certainly seem to be reason able to have an inquiry into the two lamentable deaths by accident which lamentable deaths by accident which have occurred recently. A young lady met her death through eating poisonous food, a young man was drowned at Victoria Arm. These are two accidents where inquiry may lead to the prevention of similar accidents in the future. Nothing can bring the two young lives that have been sacrificed back. But a community should be forward in guarding, so far as possible, against such acing, so far as possible, against such ac cidents. The feeling is very general that cidents. The feeling is very general that the coroner should have taken steps to hold inquests in these cases. There may be most excellent reasons for his not doing so. But if there are, they are not visible so far to the "man in the street."

In this connection it is worthy of note that the Colonist was not represented at the inquest. The Times repeats that Dr. Hart was authority for the statement that the indications pointed to ptomaine poisoning. Another medical ment that the indications pointed to promaine poisoning. Another medical practitioner who accompanied him to the house also informed a Times representative that such were the indications. The coroner himself in summing up Saturday said that the symptoms in cases of promaine poisoning and acute indigestion were viry similar. In view of these facts the public were thoroughly justified in demanding an inquiry into the death of a young girl who was stricken down with starting suddeness. None inquiry than the public, and that their "clamor," as the coroner put it, has been effective is to them a source of satisfacion. In this connection attention i which says: "Where a coroner is it formed that the dead body of a perso is lying within his jurisdiction, and ther s reasonable cause to suspect that sucstural déath or has died a sudden death which the cause is unknown, or that the person has died in prison or in any

WESTMINSTER WOS.

The intermediate teams of New Westminster and Vancouver met at the Terminal City on Saturday, and the game was won by the former twelve, the score being 16 goals to 4. Yesterday's News-Advertiser reports the match, as follows:

lt goals to 4. Lestering severa-Advertiser reports the match as follows:

The match was fast enough at the start, but the play slowed down in the second quarter and both teams slowed signs of firing out. For an intermediate match it many a day. The referee, W. G. McQuar-rie, of New Westminster, was largely re-sponsible for this, as he allowed the play-ers too much freedom with their sticks and they certainly made things hot for one an-other... No less than 11 players decorated the fence during the progress of the match, and had the referee been looking there would probably have been several more taking a forced rest. The history has taking a forced rest. The visi weight did. The boys from the Fraser played a grand combination throughout, and their excellent work, both on the home and defence, was without a doubt a feature of the match. It is quite true that they did become ragged in the last half, but not before they knew that they had the match won. Their playing was for except match wen. SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAP TER: Jim Breakspear, an ex-Colorade rancher, who has distinguished himself as a Yeomate in the South African war, and is being feted in London society, intends running down to Brighton to see Yivien Oakley, a girl he had met at several "At Oakley, a girl he had met at several "At Homes," but misses his train. Strolling about Victoria station he lights upon a round in which a saie of derelict property to bid his whole available money (£20) for an old portmanteau, marked with a Maltese cross, and its contents. He finds by incidents on the way home that some person or persons are eager by any means to procure possession of his purchase. On arriving at his lodgings, he examines his prize, and finds costumes of various naby incidents on the way home that some person or persons are eager by any means to procure possession of his purchase. On arriving at his lodgings, he examines his prize, and finds costumes of various nationalities, all marked with the Maltese cross, a death mask taken from some person who seemed to have come person who who seemed to have come person who have stored himself in his hiding tends, and ways of money. The photograph is that of a girl so lovely that Breakspear least that his lodgings from Miss Oakey, who laduces him to accompany her on an errand which, she says, is one of danger. On his return, he finds a stranger had been to his rooms with a plausible excuse and had removed the contents of the portman teau. The five sheets of paper, however, are safe in Breakspear's pocket, and he has reason to think from the way in which his way the way in which that man must have stowed himself in his hiding himself, too, that this was the man or whom he had dream;—Eagle face; of whom he had dream;—Eagle face; of whom he had dream;—Eagle face; of which himself too ther seat, and was preparing for hostile action of some sort. The five sheets of paper, however, are safe in Breakspear's pocket, and he has on to think from the way in which his reason to think from the way in which his belongings in his rooms had been over-uled, that these had been the object of special and, of course, mavailing search. Breakspear suspects Miss Oakley of com-plicity, and, without directly charging her, deavors to surprise her into an admis-on, but without effect.

cided to make himself comfortable without delay, risking intrusion. Accordingly he turned up the bars which divided the seat on one side into three, and laid himself deliberately down, his head on his arms, his travelling cap over his eyes.

He was sure that, he would wake when the train slowed into the station from which it was not many miles distant, but he had not been in a recumbent position for three minutes before he was sound asleep dreaming. His dream was sound asleep dreaming. His dream was singularly vivid, too, and so promising that he would have been loth to wake from it had he known it was not reality, the was "afficing to Brandon-Payne about the beautiful photograph, which lay now the been for its vanishing. D. V. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont. a railway carriage, with a moving panorama flying past the windows.

By Jove, how real that dream had been! he said to himself. Flatness of disappointment crept in, because he was after all no nearer the goal of acquaintance with the "Lady of the Lilles," as he had begun to call her in his mind. He sat up and looked out of the window, and judged by the landmarks that, while he slept, the train must have reached the expected station and left it again. The noise and confusion which had vaguely disturbed his dream must have been at that time, yet he had not woke up, and, in the hope of going back to the promise of joy he had left in dreamland, deliberately lay down once more. But sleep did not come to him so easily again. He lay still with eyes half shut, couring unconsciousness, but could not forget that he was travelling from Brighton to Londen.

The day was growing more and more the windows. Black clouds were boling the windows. Black clouds were boling from Brighton to Londen.

he thought of himself as the victim."

Now, the question was—if there were time to ask and answer it—how had Eagle-face slipped in, and why had he been so over-cautious as to choose his present uncomfortable—position rather than boldly attack a sleping enemy? Jim decided that he must have marked the desired compartment, waited till all extraneous persons had left it, and planned to get in at the last station—before the CHAPTER V.

The Thing That Movel Under the Seat.

The first train back to London was a slow one, and stopped at several small stations, but Jim preferred taking it to waiting. Two or three persons shared the first class compartment with him instarting, out they got out at warside stations. Breakspear had consulted a time-table, and knew that after the next stopping-place there was a run of forty minutes before the train would pause again.

He was very sleepy, not having rested any better than had Vivien Oakley the night before, but at first he decided to wait before indulging his almost overpowering desire for rest until the one more station was past, as after that he want before indulging his almost overpowering desire for rest until the one more station was past, as after that he wait before indulging his almost overpowering desire for rest until the one more station was past, as after that he wait before indulging his almost overpowering desire for rest until the one more station was past, as after that he would be sure whether or not be was to the even of the eyes. It was all that he could do to restrain a cluckle of satisfaction, for Fate was playing his game now, and reality bade fair to be better than the dream. But he controlled himself modding, however, and a soft dreamlness steeped his brain as with poppy juice. He nodded once or twice, and then decided to make himself comfortable without down and it at the probably chloroform, or ether, or think that probably chloroform, or ether, or ether, or the first and plant and that person's had left it, and planned to get in at the last station before the twait be subcy and either begun ning when he was given reason to suppose that Breakspear was not to wake the sleeper, and had either begun ning when he was given reason to suppose that Breakspear was waking up. There seemed to, be a good deal of noise and confusion at the moment of his appearance, and Jim began feeling for a weapon of some sort, being under the impression that the duet was to be fought at once, if at all, or that Eagle-face would fall upon him while he was unarmed, and attempt to kill him.

He hastily felt in all his pockets, but could discover neither knife nor revolver, which disturbed him so much that he opened his eyes and was astonished to find himself stretched out on a seat in What Would You Do If You Bought Bad Eggs?

Keep them and never buy any more because they were bad!

The above is the logic of a great many people in Victoria regarding MINING STOCK.

We know you would not me such an argument about the eggs. You would dispose of them quickly and try for good ones.

Why not do the same with your worthless mining stock, and buy ROSELLA HYDRAULIC at 25c.? It will compensate you for all your losses, and give you an income as well:

There is not a property in B. C. (and we say it without fear of contradiction) with prospects equal to this. $1.000 per day is a conservative estimate of the output as soon as the plant is in operation, which will be next June or July. A portion of stock is for sale on easy terms. Apply now.
